The citizenship and civil government bill for Porto Rico was passed by the Senate without roll-call. It already had passed the House of Representatives. For the first general election voters shall be recognized under the present laws. Thereafter they shall be citizens of the United States if they are twenty-one years of age, or over, and have such other qualifications as may be prescribed by the legislature, provided that a property qualification for voting shall at no time be imposed. The bill provides for a governor appointed by the President of the United States and an executive council composed of commissioners of justice, finance, interior, education, agriculture, and labor and health; that legislative powers be lodged in a legislature elected by the people, the Senate to consist of nineteen members; that the House of Representatives consist of thirty-nine members.

The secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has authorized the location survey of a section of the first project in road construction submitted under the national forest section of the Federal aid road act. Roads built under authority of this law are designed primarily to promote economic development and to serve public convenience in localities where much of the land is in national forests. The proposed road on which action is taken is in the Apache national forest, Greenlee County, Ariz., and the preliminary estimate of the cost of construction of the seventy-one miles of road to be surveyed is $342,500. The construction will make possible a north and south trunk line through a region now inaccessible, and will connect with existing east and west state highways.

The loss to the Government of timber, forage, and young growth during the year 1916, as a result of fires in the national forests, is estimated at $162,385. Although there was more than the average number of fires, the loss is the smallest that has been sustained from this cause since the national forests were established, due it is thought to a favorable season. A total of 299,377 acres was burned over, and of the 5655 fires which occurred, 73 per cent were confined to areas of less than ten acres. Lightning was responsible for 23 per cent of all the fires, careless campers started 17 per cent, while the cause of 18 per cent was unknown.

The New Zealand Government maintains an extensive tourist organization, with headquarters in Wellington and branches in all the more important centers, where tourist tickets and descriptive printed matter may be obtained, and where tourists' itineraries will be arranged free of charge. A tourist ticket good for seven weeks and covering 2950 miles of railway in the country can be purchased for sixty-three dollars, and one good for four weeks and covering the railways of either North or South Island can be had for thirty-nine dollars.

A report of recent scientific study of paper pulps, particularly those of American manufacture, has been published by the United States Bureau of Standards. Samples of pulps, each representing a different method of preparation, have been examined to determine their chemical properties. The loss in weight produced by reagents, causing hydrolysis and oxidation, and the gain in weight when nitrated, have been determined with the same pulps. The effect of sunlight, temperature, and ozonized air on the chemical constants of ground wood has been ascertained.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad has a plan for electrifying which, if undertaken, will be the largest development of this kind by any steam road east of the Mississippi. It is proposed to electrify the main line from Jersey City, N. J., to Wilkes-Barre, Pa., a distance of 176 miles, and fifty-one miles of the Mahanoy and Hazleton division from Penn Haven Junction to Mount Carmel, Pa. The cost would be very large, but it is estimated that the saving in hauling trains, especially the long freights, over the heavy grades would compensate.

An appropriation of $100,000 has been asked for by the Massachusetts Homestead Commission. The proposition is for the state to buy land and build houses that could be sold to working people who earn no more than fifteen dollars a week, such houses to cost not more than $2000. The commission wants the legislature to authorize this amount for an experiment upon which to base its future policy.

The fishery products landed at Seattle, Wash., by American fishing vessels in their 517 trips during the calendar year 1916, aggregated 17,411,435 pounds of fresh fish, having a value to the fishermen of $1,361,233. The fares were taken from fishing banks off Oregon and Washington and northward to Portlock Bank, Alaska. The products consisted chiefly of halibut.

The Government of Panama is planning extensive improvements in various parts of the country to facilitate communication and internal development. Laws have been enacted providing for the construction of new roads and the repair of old ones, for the building of bridges, wharfs, and warehouses, and for the installation of water-works, telephones, and electric service.

The fatalities in American coal mines during 1916 were less than in any of the past ten years, although the year was the most prosperous in the history of mining, with more men employed and a greater tonnage taken from the earth than ever before. The army of mine workers numbered over three quarters of a million.

At the annual Boston meeting of the American Society of Landscape Architects, reports of committees on preservation of Niagara Falls, encroachment on park lands, timely acquisition of park areas, national forests, national highways, national parks, and billboards were submitted.

The general dam bill, one of the water-power measures before Congress, was killed for this session by a hopeless disagreement of conferees, who were unable to reconcile differences between the House of Representatives and the Senate provisions.

Logwood to the value of $500,648 was invoiced at the American Consulate at Cape Haitien, Haiti, for the United States during 1916, compared with that valued at $1711 for 1915.

The naval appropriation bill, the largest in the nation's history, was passed by the United States House of Representatives, 353 to 28. It carries a total of $368,000,000.

In the year 1915-16 British India had seventy jute mills, employing 39,890 looms and 812,421 spindles.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

"What I say unto you, I say unto all, WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX March 10, 1917 No. 28

The Healing Mind

SAMUEL GREENWOOD

No subject is of greater moment to humanity than that of mind. What makes up the warp and woof of one's mental life? What stands sponsor for a man's opinions, inclinations, or acts? What is the deciding factor in our thinking, or whence do our thoughts come? Is God acknowledged as the supreme and only Mind, and therefore as the only source of right thought, or does that which is not good occupy the throne of intelligence for us and hold us captive to unworthy thoughts?

The apostle Paul differentiates between mental states by dividing them into two classes, namely, carnal-mindedness and spiritual-mindedness, the former including all evil and its effects, and the latter embracing all right consciousness and activity. In Christian Science these contrasting terms stand for mortal mind and divine Mind; and they represent the difference between error and Truth, between what is unreal in human existence and what is real. Each human being is directly involved in making a distinction in these terms, from the fact that knowingly or unknowingly he is accepting one or the other as his mind or consciousness. And what can possibly concern a man more intimately than his choice of a mental abode?

According to the New Testament narratives Jesus healed disease, sin, and death by spiritual means alone, and thus uncovered the mental nature of all error. On page 219 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy says, "Not muscles, nerves, nor bones, but mortal mind makes the whole body 'sick, and the whole heart faint;' whereas divine Mind heals." Many physicians have departed from the old school of material thinking far enough to admit that to some extent disease may be produced mentally; but to be radically progressive they must push on to the discovery that all disease is mental, and that God, divine Mind, is the only healing agency. This would ultimately bring the medical schools to the point of adopting Christian Science, or the Science of the Mind which was in Christ Jesus,—a desideratum for which humanity has long been waiting.

The carnal or mortal mind is defined by St. Paul as a state of "enmity against God," and among the evidences of this mind he enumerates hatred, wrath, strife, variance, and other unholy things. The revelator in a figure refers to this sensuous mentality as the home of "every unclean and hateful bird." Confronted squarely by such a picture, what one of us would not protest against his mental abode being thus classified? Yet an honest self-examination would probably reveal that some of these unclean and hateful birds are making their nests in our own branches and finding shelter and activity in the field of our consciousness.

The importance of this question is such that we cannot too soon set about discovering whence our thoughts come. Are there times when with eyes open we let hatred, variance, or strife bias and darken our thinking, or when discouragement, fear, and doubt are given the reins in our consciousness? If so, we should remember that these and kindred errors make up the carnal mind, which is never at peace with God or with His children. This wrong-mindedness sooner or later pushes its fears to the surface under the name of disease, poverty, crime, suffering, and death; and what possible remedy exists for this false mentality and its effects other than right-mindedness? It should be evident that evil conditions cannot be corrected on a material basis or by appealing to the Beelzebub of mental suggestion, but only by a change of consciousness. Christian Science practice is not, therefore, a process of doctoring the carnal mind, but of getting rid of it altogether.

The opposite nature and effect of mortal mind and divine Mind may be simply illustrated. Take the hypothetical case that one person has wronged another. If the victim turns for relief to mortal mind, he will forthwith begin to think disturbing and destructive thoughts, the promptings of anger, resentment, revenge, and the like, all the while believing that they are his own. Even physicians admit that such vicious mental activity tends to induce bodily disease, sometimes in its worst forms.

Now if the victim turns for relief to divine Mind, if he lets this Mind be his, he will forthwith begin to think divine thoughts, the promptings of forgiveness, mercy, kindness, and brotherly love, and to manifest them in forbearance, tenderness, and compassion. What medical practitioner is ignorant enough to affirm that such qualities of godlike thought induce distress of mind or body? On the contrary, it has been demonstrated in scientific practice that good thoughts habitually cherished exclude the causes of disease, or nullify their effects if they have been admitted.

Mrs. Eddy tells us that "sick humanity . . . looks for relief in all ways except the right one" (Science and Health, p. 371). Mortals examine the material body, watch its action, regulate its food, and so on, instead of looking into mortal thought for their enemy and putting out what has no business there. It is obvious that trouble of any kind could not occur in human experience unless human thought had first made it possible; nor could suffering result from any circumstance apart from mental action. Therefore the potent remedy in sickness as in other errors is to obey the Scriptural injunction of Isaiah, "Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon." In other words, the Scripture implies that if the sufferer will turn from his unrighteous thoughts and let divine Truth govern his thinking, he will be abundantly pardoned; that is, healed.

To quote Mrs. Eddy again, "The divine Mind produces in man health, harmony, and immortality" (Science and Health, p. 380). Admitting that God is the source or Principle of all being, the truth of this statement is self-evident; and that it is humanly possible to have this Mind, is proved by the ability which mankind universally possess to do good instead of evil and to express thoughts of love and peace instead of hatred and strife. The divine Mind is made known in the presence and activity of divine thoughts. It is the consciousness wherein the things of God alone are real; where Love is, but no hate; where peace reigns, but no contention; where Truth is, but nothing that "worketh abomination, or maketh a lie."

Copyright, 1917, by The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Digitized by Google

If one is not healed, let him not be despondent because of material conditions, but let him take note of his mental activity, whether it is directed by what he knows of God or by what he believes of evil. There is obviously no profit in going to a practitioner, or in extending treatment over a long period, unless one is willing to forsake what is wrong in his thinking and to find his joy in thinking what is right and good. The carnal mind, that is, the mind which believes in matter and evil, always produces disease, because it has no harmony in itself to make manifest. If we are finding our consciousness in fear, anger, resentment, unforgiveness, self-love, passion, and other things that God does not know; if we let these decide our thinking, how can we expect to find the healing Mind there?

Only by actually having this Mind as ours, by the spontaneous and joyous thinking of divine thoughts, can permanent healing be realized. Disease will then naturally make place for health, for evil can have no place in the consciousness of good. Therefore let us hasten to acquaint ourselves with God as the only Mind, because there is no other way by which we may be at peace.

✧

"In your patience possess ye your souls"

JESSIE B. RICHMOND

Long ago Christ Jesus said to his disciples, in preparing them for the tribulation which they would encounter in overcoming mortal and material belief, "In your patience possess ye your souls." Christian Science teaches a new concept of patience. In its more spiritual sense patience loses its material accretions, and is no longer confused with inaction, tending to a stagnant condition of thought, or with resignation to some form of evil which mortals seem powerless to overcome. Through the teaching of our revered Leader patience is clearly seen to be instead a quiet, undaunted continuance in well-doing, undismayed by the threats of material sense because sustained by the hidden manna of the Word of God. This "bread from heaven" enables the student to prove daily and hourly that Truth is man's real food. Christian Science requires the steadfast, untiring application of patience to every detail of daily living, to everything that touches consciousness. It is the faithful performance of man's primary function and duty of separating the real from the unreal, holding fast to the things that are lovely, honest, and of good report. Patience is the fruit of one's recognition of the government of divine Principle.

The Bible is one long record of the infinite patience of divine Love, ever ready to be gracious to men as soon as men will let go the blinding veil of belief in an existence separate from good. Never altering or lowering the standard of perfection, the sacred writings show "the patient, tender, and true, the One 'altogether lovely'" (Science and Health, p. 3), blessing every sincere turning away from evil toward the abiding joys of spiritual good. To those who are beginning to learn of the divine nature and purpose by exercise of spiritual discernment, it is ever true that God's "hand is stretched out still" to all His children.

This loving patience of our heavenly Father is seen exemplified and reflected in prophets, apostles, and saints. These prophets, uplifted by spiritual understanding, saw much that their fellow countrymen and contemporaries could not see. Bravely and cheerfully they bore the misunderstanding and even abuse of those who did not wish their dream of material substance and personal desires broken in upon and the nothingness of the human or mortal mind exposed. It was this vision of unseen realities which made these prophets the practical helpers of their race, enabling them to act as judges, leaders, and lawgivers, bearing aloft the torch of progress.

Moses' patience was tested and tried by the years in the desert of Midian before he led Israel out of Egypt. This experience disciplined his ardent nature, and so tempered the blade which was to cut Israel's bonds. During these forty years of quiet thought and work there were developed those qualities of leadership which enabled him to bring his oppressed countrymen forth to freedom, where they might serve God in the land "flowing with milk and honey,"—a condition abounding in all innocent and satisfying joy. His predominating quality, meekness, is the fruit of these years of waiting on divine guidance. Unlike Parsifal in the Grail legend, who forfeited years of kingship by failing to ask the crucial question, Moses, taught by patience and its kindred quality of thoroughness, turned aside to see why the bush was not consumed, and so gained the revelation of the ever living Spirit, the great "I AM." Thus he was able to endure "as seeing him who is invisible," and to deal patiently with the querulous and stiff-necked people given over to his care.

Even after Abraham's visioned revelation of God as his "shield" and his "exceeding great reward," he waited through many years before he saw the promise that through him should come a blessing to the world, fulfilled in the birth of Isaac and the establishment of his line. Joseph, one of the most winsome characters depicted on Bible pages, proved that he possessed this grace, for in his patience he indeed possessed his soul, or spiritual sense. Knowing good as the only reality, he remained calm and serene, though cruelly and unjustly treated, until the inevitable working of Principle lifted him up to opportunity for wide service, and the exercise of a forgiving affection akin to that of our Master, who prayed, "Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do."

Those familiar with the life story of the Founder and Leader of Christian Science know the marvelous demonstration of patience which is unfolded therein. Far ahead of her time, seeing clearly much that no one else could even begin to conceive, she knew both how to wait and how long to wait, as well as when to go forward. At an early stage of her work she saw that the press was a special avenue through which human thought could be brought into touch with the Christ-idea, or Christian Science. Patiently and persistently one Christian Science periodical followed another, and a quarter of a century passed before she felt the time had come to give to the world The Christian Science Monitor, that daily messenger of good at work in the affairs of men. All of these periodicals are today reconciling men to God by showing the universal application of Truth and Love.

Patience is a predominating quality of the saints and heroes of all ages, illustrating the difference between the calm and constant diligence of the man governed by Principle and the rash or hesitating actions of the one who is swayed by the mesmerism of impulse or passion. To preserve a serene and unruffled temper without murmuring or fretfulness, to express fortitude when tried, constancy though betrayed, and perseverance in the face of difficulty or failure, —this is to have patience. It is to rise above discontent, whenever the suggestion of an erroneous condition touches consciousness, and bravely pressing on till perfection's sacred height is won. Patience is the needed nutriment of the sick and suffering, and therefore an essential qualification for a practitioner of Christian Science.

Digitized by Google

On page 2 of her Message for 1902 Mrs. Eddy says, "To live and let live, without clamor for distinction or recognition; to wait on divine Love; to write truth first on the tablet of one's own heart,—this is the sanity and perfection of living, and my human ideal." In thus living one may truly possess his soul in patience. As the lake or sea reflects only when its surface is unruffled by storm, so man reflects the "beauty of holiness" only when human restlessness gives place to the patient quiet of the consciousness that has learned in truly Christian endeavor that "the Lord is in his holy temple: let all the earth keep silence before him."

Divine Mind alone is reflected in the real man, and in that ever-presence error's personal sense of things fades away into silence. The freed and awakened faculties of humanity then find fresh energy and wider purpose, and the world sees and marvels at that miracle of this age,—a consecrated and genuine Christian Scientist. Such a one is ever striving to emulate the Master, who "went about doing good" and healing all who were oppressed of evil. Happy to find that in gaining dominion over himself he has taken the first step toward dominion over all the earth, in his patience he has learned to possess his soul, and has proved the promise that "in due season we shall reap, if we faint not."

✧

Nothingness of Pain

WILLIAM ROY RONALD

MRS. EDDY says, "The fact that pain cannot exist where there is no mortal mind to feel it is a proof that this so-called mind makes its own pain—that is, its own belief in pain" (Science and Health, p. 153). This statement not only expresses that metaphysical perception which pierces "even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow," but is also abundantly fruitful of blessings to poor suffering humanity, so long in the bondage of belief in the reality of pain. By following the way of Christ Jesus, who made no compromises with error of any kind, and by accomplishing the overthrow of pain through the bold exposure of its nothingness, Mrs. Eddy has pointed the way to freedom from its relentless enslavement, recalling the comforting declaration from heaven heard by St. John, "Neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away."

The profundity of the statement quoted above from the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," must be pondered, and be understood at least in part in order to be appreciated. It is self-evident that matter, if dissociated from all mind, can experience no pain. Every one must immediately recognize that matter itself is without sensation, and therefore unable to know that there is such a thing as pain. Then, if matter plus some form of mind has a sense of pain, and matter without such form feels no pain, it must be true that the pain appertains to the mind altogether, and not to matter at all.

This being clear, the question follows, What kind of mind is it that "feels" pain? If it were the divine Mind, creator of the universe, that harbors pain, then divine Mind, a synonym of the eternal God, would be found to contain an element of discord, imperfection, self-destruction. To attribute any inharmony to divine Mind is to deny that infinite Mind is perfect and eternal, and to assert that it eventually must collapse because of such an inherent defect. If, therefore, we are to believe that pain exists in divine Mind, we must believe in a self-destroying creator—an obvious absurdity. In Christian Science, however, we learn that neither pain nor any other error can have any lodgment or part in divine Mind, which by its very nature is unerring, imperishable, and everlastingly harmonious.

There is left just one possible explanation for the phenomenon called pain,—that it is a figment of false belief, of a counterfeit mentality, the human mind, or, as Mrs. Eddy aptly denominates it, mortal mind. If further proof were needed of the untruthfulness of the sense of pain, it is furnished by the human mind itself, for mortal mind does not acknowledge pain as any progeny of its own, but vigorously asserts that it belongs to matter and is in matter. In other words, the human mind presents pain not as what it is, the offspring of itself, but as what we know it cannot possibly be, an attribute of insensate matter. If the very progenitor of the sense of pain gives it the form of a lie, then surely its own utter falsity should be as clearly apparent as is the mendacity of its author.

If pain cannot be a quality of matter, if it has no part in divine Mind, if the only other alternative is to recognize it as the product of erring mortal mind, and if it comes in all the habiliments of a falsehood by professing to be that which we know it cannot be, then there is no other conclusion than that it is precisely what Mrs. Eddy declares it to be,—nothing. The one effectual deliverance from bondage to pain or any other false belief is to know the truth about it, which is that it is a manifestation of ignorance or denial of the truth of being, and therefore does not really exist at all. The way of escape from the thraldom of such beliefs is succinctly stated by Mrs. Eddy in Science and Health (p. 346), where she says, "When a sufferer is convinced that there is no reality in his belief in pain,—because matter has no sensation, hence pain in matter is a false belief,—how can he suffer longer?"

✧

[Translated from the German]

The Spiritual Idea of Brotherhood

SOPHIE ARGELANDER

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE renders humanity an inestimable service by furnishing the glorious proof that the spiritual idea of brotherhood is an inviolable fact, however hard mortal mind may seek to reverse it. The Master came to liberate men from their mental fetters, and to lift them out of the bondage of low ideals into spiritual unity with God. He said, "Call no man your father upon the earth: for one is your Father, which is in heaven."

Since God is the only Mind, as Mrs. Eddy teaches us on the strength of the Bible, the idea of spiritual brotherhood must be included in this one Mind; hence it must be as unchangeable as God Himself, the source of all reality. Recognizing this idea as one of the greatest facts and as a fundamental truth of being, Jesus was able to pray for his enemies even while passing through the agonies of the cross: "Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do." He knew that it was only the ignorance of his time which hid the pure idea of spiritual brotherhood and unifying love from his persecutors, and this knowledge enabled him to rise above the belief of hatred and injustice into the realm of harmony, where, as our Leader says, "one mind is not at war with another, but all have one Spirit, God, one intelligent source" (Science and Health, p. 276).

When through the teaching of Christian Science the idea of spiritual brotherhood dawns upon our consciousness, we have begun to solve the problem of universal salvation. We can realize the great importance of this idea when we bear in mind that our experiences on this plane of existence rest for the most part upon our relations with our fellow men. Harmonious relations constitute our happiness, while animosity causes suffering. What a wealth of good is given us in Christian Science, and what a mass of error it is able to destroy! It gives us a true idea of our heavenly Father as Love, a true idea of our brother as the reflection of this all inclusive Love, and it also takes away from us the false belief of an existence in the flesh separate from God.

Digitized by Google

When we keep in mind the truth about our brother we shall then be able to judge righteous judgment. Isaiah said of the one through whom this saving thought would appear, "He shall not judge after the sight of his eyes, neither reprove after the hearing of his ears." Should we let ourselves be troubled and turn away from the true path because our brother does not yet understand the idea of spiritual brotherhood and therefore does not express it? There is neither excuse nor justification for swerving from good. Whatever the nature of the enmity which assails us, the spiritual idea of brotherhood will always afford us sure protection, as the Master himself demonstrated in an hour of cruel persecution, and enable us to enter into the all-presence of spiritual Love, which excludes all belief of the reality of evil.

The spiritual understanding that God "is man's only real relative on earth and in heaven" (Miscellaneous Writings, p. 151), and that therefore all men are in reality brothers, finds expression in that universal love which we must all earnestly strive to attain if we would prove to the ignorance of mortal mind that we do not worship an "unknown God," but a loving Father, to whom Jesus, because of his spirituality, could pray: "O righteous Father, the world hath not known thee: but I have known thee."

If we follow our great Exemplar and faithfully keep his commandments, we shall know, as he knew, that we are all one in this new understanding of the one Life, the one Truth, and the one Love,—one with God, infinite Mind, who knows neither enmity nor separation.

✧

Impersonality

EVERETT EDGAR KING

Sooner or later every student of Christian Science comes to understand that both good and evil are impersonal. Good represents the harmonious action of divine Mind, while evil represents the discordant operation of mortal mind. Mankind may at times reflect good and at other times evil, but they do not at any time possess either. Jesus recognized the impersonality of good when he said to the rich man, "Why callest thou me good? there is none good but one, that is, God." On page 336 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy says: "The spiritual man's consciousness and individuality are reflections of God. They are the emanations of Him who is Life, Truth, and Love." Scientifically speaking, we live in an atmosphere of love, of intelligence, and of action. Mind is everywhere around us, sustaining us at every point.

Likewise, the error which we seem to manifest does not belong to us and is no part of us, although it may seem to take possession of us at times as the wind does a paper on the street,—blowing us hither and thither at will. In his epistle to the Romans St. Paul says: "For the good that I would I do not: but the evil which I would not, that I do. Now if I do that I would not, it is no more I that do it, but sin that dwelleth in me." If we see those around us becoming disturbed, possibly angry or sick, we should at once understand that the cause of disturbance is as foreign to them as the wind is to the paper it is blowing. Error may come to us in one form one day and in another form another day, but it is always the same old serpent,—the same crafty impostor, beguiling while "seeking whom he may devour."

To one uninstructed in Christian Science this error seems to originate in and thus to become a product of his own thinking. Such a belief is a mistake; and so long as one is cherishing this belief, any attempt to free himself from error is well-nigh a failure. It is only by knowing that we are children of God, and as such can entertain and manifest only right thoughts and actions, that the thrusts of error lose their seeming effectiveness.

Furthermore, mortals are taught that they possess innate power and ability to do and to act. The situation may be represented by a simple illustration. A child in his eagerness to write comes to his parent for assistance. The parent, seeing this desire and being ever anxious to help, guides the little hand to mold intelligible characters. As long as the child is willing to be guided in this manner, his efforts are effective. Should he, however, show an unwillingness to be directed by the parent hand and manifest a desire to act alone, the results would not be so comprehensible. It is true he may make marks. He may in all seriousness think that he is writing, and to him the lines may seem as intelligible as before; but to one who knows, the efforts are wholly futile. It is only those who are "leaning on the sustaining infinite" (Science and Health, Pref., p. vii) that are scientifically demonstrating the great problem of being, and realizing health, harmony, and happiness.

✧

"Who hath ears to hear"

INEZ KOCH

To those who are growing in the understanding of Christian Science it becomes more and more apparent that every human concept must yield to the true idea. Especially is this the case with the evidence of the physical senses, such as sight, hearing, touch, taste, and smell. Even those who seem to be in perfect possession of these five material senses must lose the false in order to gain the true or spiritual sense. For instance, one may have normal physical hearing, and yet not be able to hear (understand) one word of the truth. Two people may be listening to a lecture on Christian Science, one with perfect physical hearing and the other with a belief of being more or less deaf. Perhaps the one whose hearing is not perfect does not catch all the sound vibrations, but if he is receptive to God's word he will understand more of the truth than the other, who listens to the words of Truth with his understanding clouded by material beliefs.

In the parable of the sower, Jesus said of those whose materiality hindered them from grasping the metaphysical truth he presented to them, "Hearing they hear not, neither do they understand." Further indicating the great necessity of spiritual hearing or understanding, as opposed to material hearing, he said: "Many prophets and righteous men have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them; and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them;" and again, "Blessed are your eyes, for they see: and your ears, for they hear."

On page 79 of "Retrospection and Introspection" Mrs. Eddy says: "Not by the hearing of the ear is spiritual truth learned and loved . . . We glean spiritual harvests from our own material losses." The loss of mere human happiness, and even of the physical faculties, may serve to turn us to the true sense of being, in which the senses of Mind, spiritual sight and hearing, will be found perfect. The road may seem hard and stony at times, but the Master said, "Be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." Every battle won over the false claim of physical sense brings us nearer the perfect manifestation of infinite Mind and its infinite ideas.

Digitized by Google

To be at-one with God means to be like God, to manifest Truth and Love in all we think, say, and do; but this is not attained in a day. Steady and persistent work alone wins the goal, and the time when we shall have risen to the perfect consciousness "knoweth no man, . . . neither the Son, but the Father." Still, every overcoming hastens the day until all shall hear the word of God and understand the power and presence of good.

✧

Church Meetings and Progress

G. ALFRED KNOCHE

CORPORATE meetings of Christian Science branch churches usually involve taking account of and reviewing somewhat the status of the organization in general and the consideration of specific needs in particular. Reports of the permanently organized activities, such as the Sunday school, reading-rooms, literature distribution, and so on, are usually routine matters of great interest to the members. These reports may indicate somewhat the rising or falling mental mercury of the organization, but they may also create a false impression in consequence of the fact that increased outward activities in church work may not always serve as a correct index to progress. On the human plane activity and progress are not necessarily synonymous terms.

It is said that a man who has lost his way will wander in a circle while imagining that he is making progress in a definite direction. This may serve to illustrate the unconscious traditional, or we may say repetitional, tendency of human endeavor. Hence the need of extending our analysis beyond the mere appearance of activity. Religious history since the days of the early Christians is largely a record of this traditional tendency. Orthodoxy, meaning correctness, is its adopted name. It is the effort to make past performance the perpetual standard, and thus stifle progress. It would assume that salvation is to be found in precedent rather than in progress. It argues immunity from challenge or question because it bases its claims on that which was done before.

Christian Scientists will no doubt agree that we cannot stand still. There is present the eternal demand to go forward in our course to higher attainments, but the thought foundations of past experience and growth must be corrected, extended, and reestablished if we would avoid the danger of stagnation and be found basing present activity on past achievement, and thus completing a repetition of cycles which may have the appearance of activity but in which there is no real progress.

"Where there is no vision, the people perish," declared the wise man. Let us therefore be perfectly clear that we are allied with a progressive cause; that there is no other course than the direct line of progress; that the precepts in which each organization is united tend only to progressive unfoldment and consequent enlightenment. "Let there be light" is a normal process in this school of mutual helpfulness which we call our branch church organizations. This involves serving,—serving Principle,—and we cannot serve honestly without the impulsion of love, and therein is the vision of progress that unfetters and saves. In "The People's Idea of God" (p. 1) Mrs. Eddy says that "every step of progress is a step more spiritual."

We need to eliminate all complicated processes and to avoid the merely academic, remembering that Jesus likened fitness for the kingdom of heaven to the humility and simplicity of a little child.

Selected Articles

[Duncan Sinclair in The Partick (Scotland) Gazette]

A clergyman is reported to have said at a meeting in Whiteinch Baptist Church that "they had suffered a great deal of vexation of soul" from Christian Science, and that people had gone over to Christian Science "simply because they did not know their Bible." We are certain that the reverend gentleman would not have spoken in this way of Christian Science if he had been rightly informed about its teachings.

The whole endeavor of Christian Science is to regenerate the human consciousness by replacing the evil beliefs of the "carnal mind," which St. Paul said "is enmity against God," with the spiritual understanding of good. And this endeavor is made possible by the light which Christian Science throws on the nature of God and of spiritual man, God's image and likeness. On page 465 of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," Mrs. Eddy refers to God thus: "God is incorporeal, divine, supreme, infinite Mind, Spirit, Soul, Principle, Life, Truth, Love." Every deduction which Christian Science draws from these synonyms for God is perfectly logical and in entire accord with the Bible. There is not a single Christian Scientist but will acknowledge with the deepest gratitude that Christian Science has illumined the Bible in a manner that previously he had thought impossible, making it to him the most interesting and the most spiritually helpful book in the world.

✧

[Aaron E. Brandt in Johnstown (Pa.) Democrat]

Christian Scientists are asked to answer a series of questions propounded by a minister of another church, who states: "These are the questions that I should want answered clearly if I were considering becoming a Christian Scientist." It should be stated in advance that Christian Science is a revelation of spiritual truth, while the questions asked pertain entirely to personal matters and problems of materialists. By the study of spiritual truth most of the matters concerning which answers are desired will, probably contrary to the expectation of the questioner, be explained away as no part of God's creation.

Material concepts and spiritual realities are essentially opposites, and the necessity of explaining away the former will appear more fully in the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," and the other writings by Mrs. Eddy, which may be read or obtained in any Christian Science reading-room and in most public libraries. Those who desire an understanding of Christian Science and a knowledge of Mrs. Eddy's personal history are respectfully referred to her books, and to "The Life of Mary Baker Eddy" by Sibyl Wilbur.

One of the questions asked is a rather surprising one, if not a new one, coming from a minister of the gospel, viz., whether equality with Christ is claimed by Mrs. Eddy, or for her by her followers. This question could only arise through a misunderstanding of her teaching, or through being fathered by the hope that some grounds may be laid for maligning her and her followers. There never was any foundation for such a statement. Mrs. Eddy was honored as few women have been honored in this age, and by people who would have turned from her if such a statement had any basis of fact.

From the very first of her writings on Christian Science Mrs. Eddy consistently distinguished between healing by the reflected power of divine Mind and the practices which have since come to be known by the names "personal magnetism," "mesmerism," "hypnotism," and "suggestion." For instance, she said on page 375 of Science and Health, "The Christian Scientist demonstrates that divine Mind heals, while the hypnotist dispossesses the patient of his individuality in order to control him;" and again on page 482: "Christian Science is the law of Truth, which heals the sick on the basis of the one Mind or God. It can heal in no other way, since the human, mortal mind so-called is not a healer, but causes the belief in disease."

Digitized by Google

The teaching of Christian Science that pain and sickness are unreal to spiritual sense enables Christian Scientists to give a more helpful sympathy to the suffering. The followers of Christ Jesus are not less compassionate because of his precepts and example, nor less compassionate than those who do not understand his teaching and cannot heal.

The conclusion is inevitable that if pain and sickness are real, Jesus would not have destroyed them, for he said, "I am not come to destroy but to fulfil;" and in the light of the understanding that only the creations of God are real and good, Christian Science is doing more for the salvation of humanity today than are all other movements combined, for it lays the axe to the very root of the tree of evil. The world is rapidly recognizing its beneficent teaching, and is accepting its sacred truth as a present salvation for man just as fast as misrepresentations, unbelief in the reality of good, and material concepts are swept away from the consciousness of mankind. Its ministrations and humanitarian work are not confined to giving alms merely, but extend to the healing of many so-called incurable diseases, healing mankind from the worst of all ills,—poverty, drunkenness, and fear.

✧

[Willis D. McKinstry in Atchison (Kan.) Globe]

Your quotation from a monthly periodical published in a recent issue of the Globe, states that Christian Scientists worship Mrs. Eddy; it also infers that the teachings of Christian Science cannot be demonstrated. To state that Christian Scientists worship Mrs. Eddy is to misapprehend their true attitude toward their beloved Leader. It is quite natural that Christian Scientists should express loving gratitude to her, yet this reverence cannot be likened to the act of paying divine homage to Deity, the one and only Supreme Being, to whom all honor and worship is due.

Mrs. Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, is not viewed as a God or Christ by her followers; their love and devotion is but gratitude for the Christian service she has performed in restoring the healing Christ to human consciousness. The touchstone of Christian Science is demonstration, and for half a century it has stood the test. Christian Science is now established in all parts of the world and its ministrations are no longer questioned by the fair-minded. On page 233 of "Miscellaneous Writings" Mrs. Eddy writes, "What think you of a scientist in mathematics who finds fault with the exactness of the rule because unwilling to work hard enough to practise it? The perfection of the rule of Christian Science is what constitutes its utility: having a true standard, if some fall short, others will approach it; and these are they only who adhere to that standard."

✧

[Lloyd B. Coate in Urbana (Ohio) Citizen]

Our critic says that to declare God is all "makes God responsible for all, every sin and devil—every sin and sinner—that disgraces God." In Christian Science it would be an utter impossibility for God, infinite good, to be responsible for "every sin and devil—every sin and sinner—that disgraces God." If God is omnipotent, how can there be any room or place for any other power? Can there be more than omnipotence?

Christian Science accepts Jesus' definition of Deity,—"God is a Spirit." The marginal reading of the American Standard Version is, "God is spirit." Christian Science also accepts John's statement, "All things were made by him; and without him was not any thing made that was made." If God is Spirit and everything was made by Spirit, nothing that God made could be unlike the nature and quality of the divine Mind; therefore His creation must be spiritual and not material. In Genesis we read: "And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness . . . So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them." To the five material senses creation appears material. To these same senses the sun seems to rise in the east and set in the west. As the science of astronomy disputes this testimony, so the Science of Christianity, or Christian Science, teaches us that the spiritual and not the material is the reality of existence, despite all the evidence of the five material senses to the contrary.

Jesus said, "It is the spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing: the words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life." Paul wrote, "While we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen: for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal." Christian Scientists are aware that there is a claim of sin and disease in the world, but they do deny that God, Spirit, is responsible for it. In the ratio that we understand God's all-power, we are able to prove the unreality and falsity of any other god or power beside the one great "I AM," the true and living God. Christian Science teaching is in strict accord with Jesus' command, "Have faith in God." Faith in the devil, or belief in evil, can never save mankind, but to understand God's omnipotence as taught and demonstrated by Christ Jesus will save the world from both sin and sickness.

To accept God as omnipotent, as the first commandment teaches, is to exclude all evil from God's creation. To admit that man is God's image and likeness, and abide in this consciousness, is to exclude all evil or sin from the domain of God's man, for evil does not express the nature of God. When we learn what God is, and that man is His image and likeness, this spiritual understanding will destroy the belief in evil. God's man cannot express anything unlike the divine Mind. Habakkuk the prophet has given us a bright glimpse of God: "Thou art of purer eyes than to behold evil, and canst not look on iniquity." If it be true, as the Scriptures teach, that unto God, divine Mind, belongs all "glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and ever," where is there any place for God's so-called opposite, except in human belief, which is not the reality of existence?

Christian Science teaches that all God created is the real and eternal, therefore what God did not create (sin and disease) can only rightly be classified as the unreal, or as an illusion, even though to mortal sense it may seem painfully real. Christian Science teaches that there is need of a Saviour to save us from the awful deception of sin, and to lead us to see that God is all-power, that beside Him there is no other god or power, and that man is His image and likeness. Every statement in Christian Science follows necessarily from a full understanding of this basic proposition. If we accept the major premise, that God is Spirit, as Jesus taught, and the minor premise, that man is God's own image and likeness, then the only logical conclusion of a correctly stated syllogism is that God's man is not material; he is spiritual. There is a vast difference between God's image and likeness and a sinning race of mortals.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science stands untouched by all such falsehoods. Christian Science is making Bible students out of many professed Christians who before knowing of its teachings gave very little attention to the Scriptures. Now they love to read the Bible, because they understand it better. A teaching that is leading mankind to have only one God, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, the God to whom Jesus taught us to pray "Our Father," a teaching that is leading mankind more fully to accept Jesus' promises, cannot be opposed to Christianity. This Christian Science is doing. So long as it continues to heal the sick and reform the sinner, as it has done in thousands of instances, none of such negative statements can hinder its onward progress. Surely the ministry can well afford to let this matter rest on the basis of the wisdom of Gamaliel: "And now I say unto you, Refrain from these men, and let them alone: for if this counsel or this work be of men, it will come to naught: but if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it; lest haply ye be found even to fight against God."

✧

[W. D. Hinchsliff in Bartlesville (Okla.) Enterprise]

A clergyman in his sermon as reported attacks Christian Science, classing it with Mohammedanism and Spiritualism, to which it has no analogy. He also says it is unchristian. Christian Science is founded upon the Bible, and is doing the works that the Founder of Christianity commended. The first tenet of Christian Science is, "As adherents of Truth, we take the inspired Word of the Bible as our sufficient guide to eternal Life" (Science and Health, p. 497).

Christian Science is Christian because it insists on following the commandments and teachings of Christ Jesus. By practice as well as precept it is imitating him, for it heals the sick, reforms the sinner, and comforts the sorrowing. Its teachings emphasize the necessity of being pure in thought, word, and deed. Instead of Christian Science attracting the gross by its impurity, it is its purity and simplicity that is attracting the sinning, the sick, and the downtrodden. It gives the beauty of health physically and spiritually, and the harmony of life and love for the husks of sensualism and depravity. It is the straight and loving way founded on the life, teachings, and demonstrations of Christ Jesus. Nothing that is unclean or that "maketh a lie" can enter it. All who will may come and partake of "the water of life" that flows freely for all through the understanding of the divine will.

Students of Christian Science are seeking to do the will of God, and are showing it in love for all mankind, thus keeping the commandments. The proof of its influence is seen in the character and life of its adherents.

✧

[F. Elmo Robinson in Lower Columbian, Astoria, Ore.]

It is not the desire or the practice of Christian Scientists to engage in religious controversies of any sort, and we quite freely accord to "Observer" the right to think as he chooses regarding the Christian Science lecturer's illustrations and explanations to which he takes exception.

It is quite true that in belief the human mind controls the body and governs its feelings and action. This fact, however, in no way disproves the statement that God is the basis of the healing method of Christian Science, nor does it prove that God is the basis of those systems which rely wholly or in part upon matter for healing. On page 162 of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" Mrs. Eddy says that "the effect of this Science is to stir the human mind to a change of base, on which it may yield to the harmony of the divine Mind." In Christian Science treatments neither the human mind nor any form of matter is relied upon for healing. God, and God alone, is recognized therein as the healer of all diseases.

"Observer" asks just what is meant in Christian Science by "real" when it is affirmed that matter has no real existence. Christian Science teaches that God is the only cause and creator, and that in accord with the Scriptures He is Spirit. His creation, therefore, being like Him, must be spiritual, and not material. God's creation, Christian Science teaches, is the only real creation, because it is an expression of infinity, of divine Principle, besides whom there can be none else. That which appears to the finite senses as matter, together with all its accompaniments, not being created by God, Spirit, can only be temporary,—experiences of the carnal or mortal mind, which must ultimately disappear. Paul says, "The things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal."

Briefly, then, Christian Science teaches emphatically the unreality of matter, sin, disease, and death. The word unreality is used to designate that which in human experience, although having an appearance of substance, has no Principle, no basis, no foundation in fact, and therefore no power of continuance. According to Christian Science, God and His creation, perfect and eternal, constitutes the only reality.

✧

[Editorial in The Dispatch, Pittsburgh, Pa.]

The coroner's physician in Chicago furnishes a happy change in the view often presented in the case of those who die under Christian Science treatment and official inquiries follow. And a physician of the homeopathic school said a word of praise which is so different from the usual routine that it is noticeable.

A man well known in Chicago business circles died after a few days of illness. He was under the care of a Christian Scientist, and had steadfastly refused the services of any other. He grew worse with the passing of each day, but his confidence did not waver. When death came, a homeopathic physician was asked to issue a certificate of death causes, but declined, and reported to the coroner. The official autopsy which supplied the surprise was next in order.

The coroner's physician who performed the post mortem found a pathological situation which amazed him, and which brought from the homeopath who was present the professional absolution for the Christian Science treatment. The coroner's physician declared that, in the light of the condition revealed by the examination, no treatment would have availed to save the patient's life, and no blame therefore could be attached to the "irregular" Christian Science. At most it had worked no harm.

The homeopath went further in courtesy and almost expressed professional admiration. He said that, judged by the patient's condition as shown by the post mortem, it was marvelous that he lived so long as he did. Nothing could have saved him, he added, or made an improvement, and unless faith in Christian Science treatment were credited with keeping him alive so long, the doctor could not say why he had not died sooner. Judged by the pathology alone, the doctor said, without knowing anything of the time of death, he would have said that no man could have survived so long as he did. Hence he gives Christian Science the credit for prolonging life beyond a time when medical treatment would have ended, and this is a frank fairness not always met with.

Digitized by Google

Editorial

The Sunday Services

On page 302 of "Miscellaneous Writings" Mrs. Eddy says, "Much good has been accomplished through Christian Science Sunday services," a statement which is corroborated by the experience of every Christian Scientist. Not only is the beauty and simplicity of these services apparent to all who attend them, but their deep spiritual content brings a sense of peace and joy and understanding which frequently results in the healing of the sick. It is this healing power which is the distinctive feature of these services, and which differentiates them from all other religious experience of the present time, just as the same power established Immanuel—God with us—in the experience of the earliest Christians.

Realizing the value and importance of these services as a factor in the growth of the cause, and especially of the Lesson-Sermon, which constitutes their central figure, Mrs. Eddy set forth in a by-law of The Mother Church (Manual, Art. III, Sect. 1) a rule to be followed by those who are entrusted with the great responsibility of these services. From this by-law we quote as follows: "The readers of The Mother Church and of all its branch churches must devote a suitable portion of their time to preparation for the reading of the Sunday lesson,—a lesson on which the prosperity of Christian Science largely depends."

This rule has properly been construed by readers to mean not only that they shall individually devote a suitable portion of each day to the study of the lesson which is to be read at the services on the following Sunday, but also that the first and second readers shall at some time during the week study or rehearse this lesson together, so that they may receive and therefore be able to give out at the regular service a harmonious understanding of its meaning. Such is the custom of the readers of The Mother Church, and its adoption is recommended to the readers of the branch churches, so that they too may come to the platform prepared to read the lesson in a unity of understanding and with power to heal the sick, awaken the sinful to repentance, and bind up the broken-hearted. Through this preparation they will realize that the Scripture texts and the correlative passages from Science and Health which they are called upon to read are not merely unrelated statements taken at random from these books and with no definite purpose in view, but on the contrary that they are parts of one harmonious whole, each correlated with the others and presenting the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in some of its infinite phases.

In the Quarterly it is said of these lessons that the "scriptural texts, and their correlative passages from our denominational text-book, . . . corroborating and explaining the Bible texts in their spiritual import and application to all ages, past, present, and future—constitute a sermon undivorced from truth, uncontaminated and unfettered by human hypotheses, and divinely authorized." This is not only the ideal and purpose of the Lesson-Sermon as instituted by our Leader, but it is also a statement of the importance of this central figure of the Sunday services which should convey to both readers and congregation an impulse and desire to understand and transmit to the whole world the healing and uplifting message of Truth compiled from the two books which, as the explanatory note also makes clear, our Leader has ordained as "our only preachers."

That the fullest measure of good may be realized from the Sunday services, it is important that not only should the readers give this preliminary preparation to the proper presentation of the Lesson-Sermon from the desk, but also that the congregation should through individual daily study prepare themselves to receive its message in the pews. Through such intelligent cooperation and coordination of purpose and effort, the Sunday services will continue to accomplish the purpose for which they were instituted, namely, in obedience to the commission given his disciples by the great Teacher when he sent them forth "to preach the kingdom of God, and to heal the sick."

Archibald McLellan.

The Church Triumphant

The mission of The Mother Church of Christian Science is divinely compassionate. She opens her fold to shelter the lambs shorn by the winds of adversity, buffeted by the storms of moral and physical persecution and of conflicting opinions. Within this fold is the good shepherd, the Christ, Truth, comforting, protecting, cherishing, and rewarding his own, and teaching the receptive thought the spiritual lesson of two in one, of inspiration and demonstration, of faith and works, science and practice. As long ago as 1895 Mrs. Eddy wrote in the dedicatory sermon to be found on page 3 of "Pulpit and Press," "No longer are we of the church militant, but of the church triumphant; and with Job of old we exclaim, 'Yet in my flesh shall I see God.'"

In our day the spiritual idea of church has come to the flesh and is expressed in a manner which humanity can understand. Founded upon the rock, Christ, Truth, drawing her membership from all quarters of the globe, and feeding them with the bread of heaven, The Mother Church is a true mother, as was her prototype, the church at Jerusalem. She speaks to the spiritual children of Israel, calling them together from captivity and dispersion, assembling the hosts for the battle which is the Lord's, and demonstrating to them the brotherhood of man under the fatherhood and motherhood of God. During these times of world strife, quite undeterred by material difficulties, she has lovingly sent financial relief to Christian Scientists everywhere, and through them to men, women, and children of all nations. She has given of the water of life freely to the thirsty, and placed the healing and saving Science in the very trenches of relentless warfare. Literally tons and tons of literature, containing the good news of Christian Science, have been sent to fortify and console, to cure and redeem the stricken, the wounded, and the mourning, and to comfort the lonely sentinels in the watches of the night. At this very time a great extension in the overseas distribution of Christian Science literature is taking place from certain ports of the United States and from at least one of Great Britain.

In order to carry forward the many and growing activities of The Mother Church a corps of practical Christian Scientists have been drawn to Boston from many parts of the world, but the government remains, as Isaiah foreknew, "upon his [Christ's] shoulder." Self-government can only succeed as it patterns God's government, and in fidelity to the teachings of a beloved Leader the work of directors, trustees, readers, editors, and others is both blessed and blessing. Under this Leader's inspiration the church triumphant found a local habitation in Boston, and it should not be forgotten that Mrs. Eddy declared unequivocally, as we read on page 320 of "Miscellaneous Writings," "The star of Bethlehem is the star of Boston, high in the zenith of Truth's domain, that looketh down on the long night of human beliefs, to pierce the darkness and melt into dawn."

This church cannot be rent asunder nor shaken from its foundation by any disturbance of matter or mortal mind. The true children of this mother recognize as the Judas thought the false belief in a power apart from God, which would constantly betray if it could the Christ in their own consciousness. Therefore they are alert to prove that any suppositious mind which denies Christ is wasting its efforts in attempting to poison or pervert, to kill or to cure. The hour of choice between good and evil is always at hand, and nothing "that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lie," can find an abiding place in the church triumphant, but only those right ideas "which are written in the Lamb's book of life," in the record of innocence and love.

Digitized by Google

A vision of supreme bliss unfolds to the loyal Christian Scientist who is willing to take the required human footsteps and answer to the call of inspiration. On page 133 of Miscellany Mrs. Eddy writes, "So shall all earth's children at last come to acknowledge God, and be one; inhabit His holy hill, the God-crowned summit of divine Science; the church militant rise to the church triumphant, and Zion be glorified."

WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN.

Listening and Rejoicing

ALL through the Scriptures we find admonitions about listening for the divine voice. The Hebrew people were all familiar with the command, "Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord;" and this runs as a refrain all through the Scriptures. On many occasions Christ Jesus rebuked those who gathered about him, because they did not listen and hear the voice of Truth, and so missed their way. On the other hand, we are told of others to whom the voice of God came as the sound of a trumpet or as the sound of many waters; but the one important thing for us all to know is, that all may hear the divine voice if only they desire this above all else and are willing to obey.

Strangely enough, the belief is widely prevalent today that God does not speak to humanity as He did in the olden time, and that for this reason we must not expect to see evidences of the divine ever-presence such as those which are recorded in the Scriptures,—a mistaken belief which Christian Science is replacing by actual demonstrations of the ever-presence and all-power of divine Truth and Love. One of the most inspiring passages in all of Mrs. Eddy's writings is to be found in the familiar hymn so dear to all Christian Scientists (Hymnal, p. 237), where we find these lines:—

I will listen for Thy voice,
Lest my footsteps stray;
I will follow and rejoice
All the rugged way.

Now mortal sense never thinks it easy to rejoice when the way is rugged,—indeed it usually justifies itself for murmuring at such times,—but Mrs. Eddy's admonition to rejoice is strictly in line with the words of our Master in the Sermon on the Mount, when he bids us "rejoice, and be exceeding glad" in the midst of the bitterest persecutions.

It may be well at this point to trace the close relation between listening for the divine voice and rejoicing; and it is almost self-evident to the student of Christian Science that if we are unable to rejoice at all times and under all circumstances, it is because we have failed to listen. Here we may recall again the statement already quoted, "Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord," for to the Christian Scientist this means one Mind, one intelligence, one Life, Truth, Love, one power. If we listen for the voice of the one God, and desire above all else to be guided by infinite Mind, we shall be able to realize clearly and fully the spiritual supply for all our need,—the sense of Life which heals and strengthens, of Love which illumines and gladdens the way, and of Truth which destroys all error. Emerson never said a truer thing than this: "We need only obey. There is a guidance for each of us, and by lowly listening we shall hear the right word."

Mrs. Eddy says: "The Soul-inspired patriarchs heard the voice of Truth, and talked with God as consciously as man talks with man" (Science and Health, p. 308). This statement is almost startling if we compare it with present-day experience, even on the part of professed Christians. At the tomb of Lazarus Jesus said, in calling upon the Father, "I knew that thou hearest me always;" and we read in the twelfth chapter of John's gospel that when he called upon God to glorify His name, there came "a voice from heaven, saying, I have both glorified it, and will glorify it again."

It seems that those who stood by were not acquainted with the divine voice as was Jesus, and so they said that "it thundered;" but in the case of Christ Jesus the spiritual sense was so keen that he could hear the divine voice and fully apprehend its meaning. In this way he was able to take one step after another without making the mistakes so common to mortals, yet in his final demonstration it would seem that the divine guidance had to be sought at each step of the way, which to mortal sense was very dark; but never once did it fail him, and never once will it fail us if we are faithful in acquainting ourselves with God, so that we listen for His voice and never allow mortal belief to enter through the channels of personal sense.

ANNIE M. KNOTT.

The War Relief Fund

THE amount contributed to Feb. 28, 1917, by Christian Scientists in the United States to the War Relief Fund was $264,442.35, of which sum $256,386.63 has been distributed to those in need in the following countries, namely: England, Canada, Australia, Jamaica, Germany, France, Italy, Armenia, Holland, Switzerland, Denmark, Turkey in Asia, Mexico. This fund will remain open until further notice, and in the mean time remittances from individuals and organizations may be sent to Adam H. Dickey, Treasurer, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

Our readers will note with interest the following excerpts from a few of the letters received from some of the beneficiaries of this fund:—

"I can hardly find words to express to you and to the relief committee of the Christian Science Society my deep-felt thanks for the beautiful gift and the groceries. There was so much of it that I felt that God was pouring out His horn of plenty over us. Then the words came to me: 'I will . . . open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it.' Oh, how I thank God for the unexpected help which He sent to us through the love of good people."

"Permit me to express to you my deepest gratitude for the proof of divine Love which we received through your assistance in the form of money and other gifts. In times as hard as we are having at present, such help is doubly appreciated, and all the more when one has to meet such a difficult financial problem as we have. Without wanting to underestimate the material value of the gift, I nevertheless wish to say that we have thereby been strengthened in our faith, for it has been proven to us that God, divine Love, according to His promise, cares for His children."

"This morning I received the twenty francs, and I am very grateful to The Mother Church in Boston as well as to the relief committee of Christian Science for all the love and good will expressed. Yes, it is just as you say: the divine source is inexhaustible. We will not despair; our heavenly Father cares for all who trust in Him. Daily I read the ninety-first psalm and firmly believe that divine Love will protect my dear husband. The thought that he is under divine protection never leaves me."

Digitized by Google

"I wish to inform you that I have received the twenty francs and the groceries, and I rejoice together with my family that God has again provided for us as a father."

"I feel impelled to express to you my deepest gratitude for the effectual help afforded my family and me.

"The feeling of belonging to a great brotherhood which gives proof of its love by also helping the brother in need across the ocean, thus demonstrating the omnipresence and power of divine Love, was to me in the days past a great comfort, and has filled me with a new confidence that divine Love at all times meets our needs."

"Please accept my sincere thanks for all of you for the Christmas present of fifty francs. May God bless you for all the good that you have done for my dear children and me. It seems hard, at the present time, for a widow with three small children to make her way, but I have been privileged many times to experience that God does not forsake the widows and the fatherless. He has always heard my prayer for help. I am immeasurably grateful that God has led me to Christian Science."

"For the thirty francs given to us in such a loving manner I wish to express my own and my husband's gratitude. This gift has meant a great relief to us, as it has enabled us to meet the most urgent needs. May God's blessing be with all the loving donors and all those who participate in this noble work."

"The money received from the War Relief Fund is a beautiful demonstration of divine Love which I am not likely to forget. My funds were low, not having received separation allowance since my husband enlisted (Nov. 22), and now overseas. Fear had taken hold of me, but I will never doubt again. I am more than grateful to Christian Science, and most of all to God."

❖ ❖ ❖

Among the Churches

Current Notes

Boise, Idaho.—First Church of Christ, Scientist, this year [1916] finished paying for a lot on the northwest corner of Fourteenth and Washington Streets. This lot was purchased a number of years ago for the purpose of erecting upon it a new church edifice as soon as the attendance outgrew the present church building at 814 State Street, which seats about two hundred and fifty. As the attendance shows a growing need for more room, plans for a new building in the near future are under consideration.—Idaho Statesman.

Santa Ana, Cal.—A deed has been recorded for the property that has been bought by First Church of Christ, Scientist, as a site for a new church. The property lies on the north side of Tenth Street, between Main and Sycamore Streets, and comprises a strip that has a frontage of 125 feet on Main Street and 125 feet on Sycamore. The price paid for it was $8084.50. Soon after the first of the new year the church board will begin plans for the building. It is expected that the church will be constructed before the end of 1917.—Santa Ana Register.

Pasadena, Cal.—On New Year's day, in accordance with the custom of several years past, the Tournament of Roses held its annual parade. This is always of great interest to southern California people and visiting tourists. The reading-tent maintained by First Church of Christ, Scientist, was visited by more than twenty-one hundred people, and nearly eight hundred pieces of Christian Science literature were accepted and carried away by these visitors.

Neillsville, Wis.—The edifice of the Christian Science Society, which has been in course of construction during the past few months, is completed and will be regularly opened for services next Sunday [Feb. 4]. The building complete cost about seventy-five hundred dollars.

Republican and Press.

Porterville, Cal.—During the past year First Church of Christ, Scientist, has given out 819 Sentinels, 133 Journals, 12 Heralds, 5206 Monitors, 14 Quarterlies, 365 lectures, 155 reprints, making a total of 6704 pieces; also six copies of Science and Health and two Manuals.

Weiser, Idaho.—A building fund has been started by the Christian Science Society to meet the need of the future, and a foundation has been donated.—Weiser Signal.

Athol, Mass.—First Church of Christ, Scientist, has purchased a church site at the corner of Beacon and Taylor Streets. The price paid was thirteen hundred dollars.

❖

Admission to Membership in The Mother Church

The next admission of candidates will be June 1, 1917. Application blanks may be obtained by addressing the Clerk of The Mother Church, and should be returned to him on or before Wednesday, May 9, 1917.

An application sent to the Clerk does not constitute the applicant a member. Notice of election will be sent to those who are admitted to membership.

Those who have made application for membership prior to Nov. 3, 1916, and have not received notice of election, may communicate with the Clerk if they so desire, and are especially requested to do so before sending in a second application.

John V. Dittemore, Clerk,
236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

❖ ❖ ❖

The Lectures

Boston, Mass. (The Mother Church).—Charles I. Ohrenstein, lecturer; introduced by William D. McCrackan, who said in part:—

The Mother Church of Christian Science invites you to take shelter from the storm of conflicting opinions. The Mother Church is the custodian for this age of the truth wherein alone is salvation for all mankind. She offers to you the herald of Truth, "Science and Health with Key to the Schiptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, which she invites you to read in connection with the Bible of our fathers. These two are her only preachers and the two witnesses of Scripture.

The Mother Church opens her wings to all mankind, and these wings belong not only to the dove of peace, but also to the eagle soaring into exalted heights through spiritual understanding. Therefore Christian Science brings to this age both inspiration and demonstration. With the keenness of its vision it detects, uncovers, and destroys error, and with its divine compassion it saves, heals, cherishes, protects, and rewards. Our beloved Leader has said, "On one side there will be discord and dismay; on the other side there will be Science and peace" (Science and Health, p. 96).

Digitized by Google

The lecturer of the evening does not appear before you as a preacher, but has the purpose of elucidating the teaching of the only preachers of Christian Science, and of showing to you as well as can be done in the short time at his disposal some of the essential features of Christian Science, and at the same time correcting any misapprehensions which may lurk in public thought. He will thus be fulfilling this twofold task of inspiration and demonstration.

The Christian Science Monitor.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. (First Church).—Bliss Knapp, lecturer; introduced by Audley F. Hewitt, who said in part:—

Christian Science is helping a great many people to get a clearer, better, more practical knowledge of God. It is doing this because it adheres strictly to the teachings of Jesus of Nazareth, not just by word and profession, but by application and demonstration in every experience of life; and after all, this knowing God, knowing Truth, is the greatest thing for which we have to live. It is, in fact, all that we have to live for. Do we not have Jesus' saying in the gospel of John, "This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent"?

GREAT FALLS, MONT. (First Church).—Dr. Walton Hubbard, lecturer; introduced by William C. Kaufman, who said in part:—

The tendency of the human mind is to medicine one human condition with another. Jesus gave the remedy when he said, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." But many are still questioning, as did Pilate, "What is truth?" Centuries ago the spiritually wise found the truth taught and demonstrated by Christ Jesus, and today the spiritually wise find the same truth taught and demonstrated in Christian Science. Christian Science has answered Pilate's question by declaring that the spiritual understanding of God, of Christ, of the spiritual man, and of the universe, is the truth of being. This truth is the remedy, because it reveals the nothingness of sin, sickness, and death, and the allness of God and His manifestation. Therefore Christ is with us, and through the comprehension of the teachings of Christian Science we shall behold him, and say with Mary, "Rabboni." After we have found the Christ, we learn to know the Father-Mother God.—Great Falls Leader.

NEW YORK, N. Y. (First Church).—William R. Rathvon, lecturer; introduced by John W. Hanson, who said in part:—

Browning in one of his poems pictures a young girl singing through the streets of a little village a simple song of joy and gratitude, the refrain of which is,—

God's in His heaven:
All's right with the world.

And it is recorded that the sick and sinful within the sound of her voice responded immediately to the purifying influence of a song breathing the omnipotence and omnipresence of God. Through the discovery and development of Christian Science by Mrs. Eddy, myriad voices are today singing the new-old song of God's allness to a listening world, and as a result "a cloud of witnesses" testify to the healing power of that understanding of God, "whom to know aright is Life eternal," as we read on page vii of the Preface of Science and Health.

Lectures to be Delivered

[By Members of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.]

CALIFORNIA—Oakland (Second Church): Dr. Francis J. Fluno, Church Edifice, Thirty-fourth and Elm Streets, 3 p.m., March 18.

CANADA—Ottawa, Ontario: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Russell Theater, 3 p.m., March 18.

Port Arthur, Ontario: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Lyceum Theater, 8:15 p.m., March 20.

CONNECTICUT—Hartford (Second Church): Virgil O. Strickler, Parsons Theater, 3:30 p.m., March 18.

ENGLAND—London (First and Second Churches): John Sidney Braithwaite, Cannon Street Hotel, E.C. (Great Hall), 1 to 1:15 p.m., March 28.

FLORIDA—Tallahassee: Frank Bell, Leon County High School, Park Avenue, 8 p.m., March 15 (note change).

GEORGIA—Atlanta: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Church Edifice, Peachtree and Fifteenth Streets, 8:15 p.m., March 20.

Macon: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Grand Opera House, 8:30 p.m., March 18.

Rome: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Auditorium, Carnegie Library, 8 p.m., March 19.

Shellman: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Princess Theater, 8 p.m., March 22.

ILLINOIS—Chicago (Second Church): Bicknell Young, Church Edifice, Wrightwood and Pine Grove Avenues, 8 p.m., March 19, 20, and 22.

INDIANA—Indianapolis (joint lecture): Bicknell Young, Keith's Theater, 12:15 p.m., March 17.

Indianapolis (Third Church): Bicknell Young, Tomlinson Hall, 3:30 p.m., March 18.

IOWA—Charles City: Clarence W. Chadwick, Church Edifice, Hulin and Milwaukee Streets, 3 p.m., March 18.

KANSAS—Kansas City: William W. Porter, Scottish Rite Temple, Seventh Street and Ann Avenue, 8 p.m., March 20.

MASSACHUSETTS—Leominster: Frank Bell, Municipal Building, 3 p.m., March 18.

MICHIGAN—Saginaw: Virgil O. Strickler, Masonic Temple, 8:15 p.m., March 20.

NEBRASKA—Omaha (First Church): Clarence W. Chadwick, Church Edifice, St. Mary's Avenue and Twenty-fourth Street, 8 p.m., March 22 and 23.

NEW YORK—Kenmore (auspices First Church, Buffalo): John W. Doorly, Town Hall (note change), 8:15 p.m., March 16.

Saratoga Springs: Virgil O. Strickler, Masonic Temple, 8 p.m., March 22.

OHIO—Cleveland and Lakewood (community lectures), Ezra W. Palmer:

Cleveland, Third Church Edifice, West Twenty-fifth Street and Mapledale Avenue, 8 p.m., March 15 and 16; Fifth Church Edifice, Franklin Avenue and West Fifty-eighth Street, 8 p.m., March 19 and 20.

Lakewood, First Church Edifice, Detroit Avenue at Arthur Avenue, 8 p.m., March 17.

OREGON—Baker: Paul Stark Seeley, Elks Hall, 8 p.m., March 20.

Burns: Paul Stark Seeley, Tonanama Hall, 8 p.m., March 22.

Hermiston: Paul Stark Seeley, Hermiston Auditorium, 2:30 p.m., March 18.

SOUTH DAKOTA—Aberdeen: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Orpheum Theater, 8:15 p.m., March 22.

Webster: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Coteau Opera House, 8 p.m., March 20.

WASHINGTON—Centralia: John Randall Dunn, Church Edifice, Main and Rock Streets, 8 p.m., March 19.

Everett: John Randall Dunn, Everett Theater, 8:15 p.m., March 20.

Seattle (Fourth Church): John Randall Dunn, March 18.

WISCONSIN—Baraboo: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Al Ringling Theater, 2:45 p.m., March 18.

Superior: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Superior Grand, 8 p.m., March 22.

Notice

John Sidney Braithwaite has postponed his lecture tour in the United States and Canada, until further announcement. In the mean time he is open for lecture engagements in Great Britain and Ireland.

Digitized by Google

Testimonies of Healing

When Christian Science revealed to me the truth of being, I was, so far as my relationship to God was concerned, a rudderless derelict. What little spiritual food I obtained was from the best of the books which I read,—prose and verse, fiction and fact. Intellectually it was all very well, but spiritually it was not a very nutritious diet, and I was conscious of suffering from spiritual lack. Perhaps my highest incentives to right conduct—and these were often ineffectual—were the lives of the best people around me, especially my father and mother; but the hunger remained.

In 1905 I went to Concord, N. H., to do some professional work, and on several occasions saw Mrs. Eddy riding in her carriage. My work entails an analytical scrutiny of faces, and I read in hers the fact that Christian Science had for its Leader a woman of extraordinary significance of appearance. In 1907 I went to a Christian Science Sunday service, and was impressed that Science and Health contained something I had never heard from any of the pulpits of my former days, namely, essential truth. In a desultory way I then investigated this teaching, and my interest slowly deepened. I was continually astonished to find that the idealism of Christian Science was loftier than my own structureless imaginings, and that with all its elevation of thought it was strictly, inexorably logical. I found God something more than a first cause, and—strange as may seem the necessity to state it—wholly good. The gods of Greek mythology, which my professional work obliged me not unwillingly to study, were superhumanly immoral; and the Hebrew Jehovah, whom I had been rather coercively urged to adore, seemed to have most of the human failings except the sensual. But in Christian Science I found that spiritual interpretation of the Scriptures which includes at the outset a knowledge of God,—a God whose consciousness cannot for a moment include evil.

In the spring of 1913 a boy of mine was instantaneously healed by absent treatment of a baffling disease of the eyes, which, so far from being cured by medical science, had not even been clearly diagnosed. Other healings have taken place in my family since then, but the healing element in Christian Science was not what originally attracted me, although through it I have overcome recurrent bilious attacks and was instantaneously healed of an acute attack which seemed like ptomaine poisoning. It was a long time before I recognized the necessity of healing as a proof of the truth of that gospel which it should invariably accompany.

I have been fairly persistent, also very happy, in the effort to acquire a knowledge of this wonderful rebirth of primitive Christianity, and have been lovingly helped from time to time. Then too I have enjoyed the privilege of class instruction. To Mrs. Eddy, whose beautiful face first led me to think that Christian Science was worth investigating, I am deeply grateful. I am also grateful for our literature, and above all thankful to God, who when I was yet afar off came to meet me, to lavish upon me His inexhaustible treasures of good, and whom in my turn I learned not to dread but to love.—E. Wyly Grier, Toronto, Ontario, Canada.

✧

This acknowledgment of my healing is lovingly submitted. Nearly thirty years ago I was healed through Christian Science after all hope of recovery was abandoned by family and friends. From young girlhood I had not been well, and the various diseased conditions assumed more and more critical stages as time passed. New and dangerous ailments appeared while I was under the care of good physicians. Change of climate and different modes of living were tried, but I only grew worse.

When I was apparently nearing the end, a ray of light reached me through a copy of The Christian Science Journal. How comforting the message it contained, for life seemed so precious to me then! Yet I do not think that I was so much impressed with the thought of physical ease as of relief from the mental unrest. I longed to have some assurance of the forever care of our heavenly Father, and was very loath to give up the sense of life until I had this. When it was most graciously given, imagine if possible the joy of finding that it was not necessary to die to gain this understanding, but that I needed only to realize Life more fully.

The physical condition was almost forgotten in this spiritual quickening, but I soon found myself able to do as others did, and for the first time seemed to be in normal health. I do not recall a day in all the years since my healing when I have been wholly incapacitated, although there have been times when discords have had to be eradicated from consciousness. I love to think of Mrs. Eddy's heroic leadership, of the example she was to the whole world in her loving dependence on God for guidance, and then how gently she would lead her followers up to "the throne of grace."

Elisabeth Wendland Stoltey, Champaign, Ill.

✧

Deep gratitude is felt for the benefits which have come into my life through the daily study and application of Christian Science. When I turned to Science I was in great need of physical healing, having been for several years a constant sufferer from a stomach disorder and extreme nervous exhaustion. My sight also was much impaired. Medical skill could do no more for me, and I cried constantly to God for help. I studied the Bible earnestly, knowing that God could and would heal me if only I had a better understanding of Him.

One day about five years ago, while reading the words of the psalmist, "Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it: except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain," I saw the futility of all human striving and turned to God more unreservedly for help. About three days after this I decided to investigate Christian Science, and as a result was instantly healed of the stomach trouble and impairment of sight. The spiritual understanding of divine law was so revealed to me that I grasped, in some measure at least, the great fact of the one lawgiver, God, and of man in His image and likeness.

It is almost seven years since my first healing in Christian Science, and there has not been the slightest return of the ailment. I am now able to spend long hours in constant toil, and to perform without fatigue any task that is required of me, for I have learned the source of strength; it is omnipotent Mind.—Eva M. Thorpe, Philadelphia, Pa.

✧

When my former religious faith failed to satisfy or bring me any comfort, I turned to Christian Science, which revealed to me the true nature of God and my relationship to Him, bringing peace and restoring me to useful activity.

I have been healed of rheumatism, also of a fear of it so great that whenever any pain was experienced there arose in my thought a picture of myself as deformed and helpless. I am happy to say that through the study of our text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, this fear has been completely eliminated. I have also been healed of catarrh, a throat affection, and the tendency to have severe colds. On one occasion I fell on the top of a very hot stove, striking the palm of my hand and destroying almost all the flesh. I asked for help in Christian Science, with the result that the pain and burning sensation was relieved in about an hour and did not return. In two weeks new flesh had formed and the hand was as perfect as before. I feel sure that but for Christian Science the hand would be disfigured.

Digitized by Google

I am most grateful for the understanding of God which Christian Science has revealed to me.

KATHRYN HUSTON, Cleveland, Ohio.

✧

At the birth of my first child, several years ago, the three doctors in attendance despaired of saving either the baby or myself. I recovered partially, but only to be told that I would have to be operated on before I could hope to be well. I had experienced healing in Christian Science on several occasions, but seemed to have drifted into the wrong thought to such an extent as to consider the operation necessary, and so was very much discouraged.

At this time a friend reminded me of Christian Science, and help was asked for. As a result I was soon well and strong, without having to undergo the operation. The year following I had an illness, but immediately wired for Christian Science treatment, and in three days was all right. Later, when another child was expected, I wrote for treatment and the practitioner helped me to overcome the pitfalls of fear, worry, and doubt. The rumor was current here that I could not pass through this experience, and much fear was expressed by my friends. This is a small community and a great deal of talking was done, so I soon had quite a struggle to overcome fear.

In engaging a doctor I tried to choose one who would not be antagonistic to Christian Science, and told him I was being treated in Science. He said a little of it was all right but no one could change a bodily malformation. I however told him that "with God all things are possible." The birth was perfectly harmonious, and my gratitude and joy knew no bounds when told we had a lovely baby girl. The following days were full of peace and happiness. The doctor made two friendly calls after the baby came, and said he wished all the homes he visited were as peaceful and happy as was ours. The baby is now a strong, beautiful child and is indeed a precious gift.

I am deeply thankful for this proof of God's loving care for His children, and grateful to Mrs. Eddy for showing me how to find and understand God.

MARIE C. BOYER, Fairbanks, Alaska.

✧

About fifteen years ago I was afflicted with rheumatism, which came on suddenly and in a severe form. Several of the best physicians in New Orleans treated me, but as no permanent benefit was received, my husband sent me to Hot Springs, Ark., where I was treated by two of the best specialists, and took the mineral baths. I was also kept on a most rigid diet for months. I went there for three years in succession, as the doctors told me this was the only treatment which would ever benefit me, but finally became greatly discouraged, since there was no improvement in my condition. When finishing the last course of treatment I asked the doctor if he thought I could ever be cured by continuing to go back there for treatment. He said to me, "Madam, you will never be cured, and if you live to be an old woman you will most likely be a helpless invalid, as the chalk deposits in your joints will continue to accumulate till finally you will be unable to use your limbs."

I did not however give up hope; intuitively I felt that I would be healed in some way. After my return home a friend advised me to try Christian Science, and I decided to do so. Treatment was begun at once and I was wonderfully benefited in a short time. The complete healing was slow, but I felt assured that God's promises were true and would be made manifest if I was faithful. This has proved to be so, for not only has the rheumatism been overcome, but many other ills in myself and in members of my family.

One case deserving of mention was a nervous breakdown from which my eldest daughter suffered while in the midst of her school examinations. For several months she was treated by the family physician in accordance with her father's wish, but as her condition did not improve I asked for treatment in Christian Science, and she was restored to health in a very short time. Instead of the sick, nervous child that she was, today she is a perfectly healthy young woman.

A few years ago, when a loved one passed away, I was called on to prove the ever-presence of divine Love and was wonderfully sustained throughout the trying experience. I had learned that God was my strength and my life, and was therefore enabled to bear up under all that had to be borne at that time. When the thought comes to me of being separated from one I loved most dearly, it is met by the assurance that there is no separation in the realm in which God's child lives, moves, and has his being.

My gratitude for all that Christian Science has done for me and mine is sincere. I am indeed thankful to God, the giver of all good, and grateful to Mrs. Eddy for having so clearly and lovingly shown us the way to eternal harmony.

THEODORA HARDEE BROGAN, New Orleans, La.

✧

I did not come into Christian Science because of any need of physical healing, but when in November, 1914, my wife was healed through its ministrations of a complication of diseases of long standing, I knew it was the truth. She had never been strong or healthy, but her greatest trouble, a nervous breakdown, dated back seven years, when our last child was born, a condition being left which we were told could be removed only by a surgical operation.

In the early summer of 1914 the trouble became more serious than ever and resulted in a complete collapse. At the end of five weeks, however, on the advice of the attending physician, I took my wife on a trip, the nurse going with us. We were gone three months, and most of this time, when we were not traveling, my wife spent in bed, all the while being under the care of the physician and taking his medicine, even after our return home in September. About the middle of October I returned from a business trip to find that she was worse than ever.

At this juncture a neighbor who is a Scientist brought over a copy of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, at the same time telling my wife what Christian Science had done for her and for her family for some eighteen years. After reading the book for a week, with the prayerful desire that if the good was there she might find it, my wife was benefited so much that she went to see a practitioner. Two days afterward she talked with the practitioner over the telephone and work was taken up for a bowel disorder of lifelong standing. In two days more this had disappeared never to return. Since then the spinal trouble, which prevented the free use of her arms, has been overcome in proportion as the truth has come into her consciousness. At the end of a year my wife took up the household duties. Words cannot express the gratitude that filled every member of our household at this wonderful demonstration of the healing power of Christ, Truth.

Digitized by Google

After my wife's healing it was pointed out to me that God is perfect, and that therefore His image and likeness must be perfect, because God made everything good. After reading a little in the text-book, and especially the chapter on Prayer, I believed nothing was impossible to God. I then consulted a practitioner, and after about six weeks was able to lay off spectacles which had been worn for over twenty-six years. The eye trouble was near-sightedness and a structural defect, and was so bad that I had to wear glasses constantly. Words cannot express my thankfulness to God and my gratitude to Mrs. Eddy for the deliverance from this bondage.

I have had many other proofs of the truth of Christian Science. The smoking habit has left me; chronic headache, believed to have been inherited, has been overcome, and pleurisy and lumbago have also vanished. Our two daughters have had many beautiful demonstrations. The younger one, ten years old, has been healed of liver trouble, which she had from infancy, also of nervousness.

I am grateful for all the physical healings, but more so for the spiritual uplift, for the better understanding of God and of man's relation to Him, for the peace and harmony of consciousness that has come through the study of Christian Science, and for the more beautiful concept of God and of Christ Jesus our Wayshower. Words are inadequate to convey my gratitude for our noble Leader, Mrs. Eddy, who has given the world this wonderful truth. My desire is to be a true Christian Scientist.

O. J. Gross, Lakewood, Ohio.

I wish to corroborate the above testimony, and to say that we truly have reasons for the rejoicing and gratitude that prevails in our home. We are more grateful every day that Mrs. Eddy had the courage to go on through the storm of criticism and follow the star that led her to Christ, Truth, and that she was able to give her discovery to the world.—Clarinda A. Gross.

So much good has come to me as a direct result of the teachings of Christian Science, that I should like to add my testimony to those already given. Four years ago, while living in Philadelphia, Pa., I was, according to sense-testimony, a physical wreck. After lying in bed eleven weeks, suffering intensely, I was told by the physician that an operation would be necessary, but I had always had a dread of the knife, so could not be reconciled to this ordeal.

Christian Science was mentioned to me by my sister, who knew nothing about it except that a business associate had been healed of an ugly disposition; indeed, the change in this person was so marked that every one with whom she came in contact noticed the transformation. A few copies of the Sentinel were brought to me from this lady, and after reading them I decided to try Christian Science. My husband therefore called on a practitioner and stated my condition to her, also the fear I entertained at the thought of an operation, with the result that after about two weeks' treatment I was out gathering violets.

The following Wednesday evening I attended my first testimony meeting, twice climbing a steep flight of stairs and descending the same to and from the elevated road, but knowing all the way that God was my strength. Upon entering the house on my return, the erroneous manifestation came away without a particle of pain. Truly Mind had performed the operation. Wishing to know more of this healing truth that had made me free, I began at once to study Science and Health, and as my concept of God changed and I learned that He is all-loving, Life, Truth, all things became new.

Since this spiritual awakening I have had many beautiful demonstrations. Weak lungs have given place to strong ones, and deafness that held me for over a year has been dispelled. My fourteen year old daughter was the channel for this healing. A sense of financial loss at the burning of our home has been overcome by the realization of what our true home is in consciousness; that it can never be destroyed.

For the physical healing deep gratitude is felt, but for the spiritual understanding that is daily being gained through the study of the Lesson-Sermons and the reading of the periodicals, I am more grateful than words can express. I would also add that I appreciate the privilege of membership in The Mother Church.—Ella Husband, Chicago, Ill.

Christian Science has never failed to help me, and it is therefore with a deep sense of gratitude that I try to express some of my love for Mrs. Eddy and her teachings. For the past ten years the truth as revealed to me through the study of Science and Health has been my only guide. It has helped me through a thorny pathway and brought me to peace. My home has been transformed from one of wretchedness and disorder to a place of love and joy. At the birth of each of my three children much help was received from Christian Science treatment; in fact the last baby was born with very little pain or inconvenience. These children have always relied entirely on the power of Truth for health and happiness, have never tasted medicine, and are sturdy, normal children.

One case stands out especially clear now,—that of an abscess, which was wonderfully and quickly healed. The trouble appeared quite suddenly underneath my eldest daughter's chin. There was great pain, with inflammation and swelling, and it soon became very severe. I wrestled with the fear in my own thought, and although I then knew little of the text-book, soon after my effort the child fell asleep. When she awakened all pain had gone, but the swelling still remained. This condition lasted for a fortnight longer, but from that first sleep there was no return of the pain.

On another occasion this same little girl, when climbing a tree, slipped and seemed to hurt herself badly. There was great pain and considerable bleeding, so it seemed necessary to put her to bed. I treated her as before, but she was very restless that night, and the next day at intervals seemed in intense pain. At night, however, peaceful sleep came to her, and that was the end of the trouble.

One healing in particular taught me that even if one seems to be incapable of working for one's self, outside help is received just the same. It was during a very hot summer and the ailment appeared to be poisoning. Alarming symptoms developed very rapidly, and I was not conscious when help was sent for about three o'clock in the afternoon. That night my condition was much improved, and the next day the whole trouble passed away. I have also been healed of influenza, poisoned fingers, colds, and other ailments in a much shorter time than would have been the case without Christian Science treatment.

To tell of all the blessings that have come to me since understanding even a little of this healing truth would not be possible, for I have been taught the way to apply its teachings to the smallest details of my life. I rejoice daily that I have been led to Christian Science, and my gratitude for the loving help always received is beyond words. This help has enabled me to fulfil my duty and stay at my post through well-nigh impossible circumstances.

Digitized by Google

The understanding of God that I am slowly gaining seems to fill my every moment with joy, and gives me courage and strength to press on without fear, knowing that divine Love is always near to help and to bless every effort for good. I can truly say that each day only adds to my sense of joy and gratitude.

MABEL S. HARRIS, Mitcham, Surrey, England.

✧

In August, 1907, my leg and ankle were badly injured in an accident. Several well known physicians were of the opinion that I might lose the use of the leg entirely, while others thought that I might walk again after a year or more. All agreed that medical treatment could do nothing for me. Then Christian Science was mentioned by a friend of my mother, and although I had no faith in it, I was willing to try anything. I was carried upstairs for my first treatment, but was able to walk down, whereas for seven weeks I had been dependent upon crutches. The next day all swelling disappeared and a high-heeled house slipper was worn with perfect comfort. In three weeks I was in the schoolroom and able to walk about twenty-four blocks a day. I have had no further trouble with the leg. Later my eyes were healed, although glasses had been worn over ten years and I had been told they would always be needed. A few years ago chronic appendicitis was overcome in three days, and a large abnormal growth disappeared under the same treatment.

These are only a few of the blessings I have received from Christian Science, for which I am deeply grateful.

DAISIE G. SAMSON, Des Moines, Iowa.

✧

I wish to bear grateful witness to the power of Truth as demonstrated in the healing of my little daughter from infantile paralysis. The child was taken ill one day about four years ago, and the symptoms were so unmistakable that I telephoned at once to her father, at his business office, telling him of the condition. As he had at that time no knowledge of Christian Science, in fact felt himself to be much opposed to it, he asked me to call a physician. This was done, and the trouble was declared to be infantile paralysis. The diagnosis was confirmed the following day by a specialist. Both physicians were frank in saying that they had no cure to offer.

At this point my daughter was put under Christian Science treatment, and the improvement was marked at once, though treatment was continued for several months before I was convinced that she was absolutely free. One day after her healing had taken place I was watching her at play, and when I saw her joyous, spontaneous activity these words of Jesus came to me with a new meaning: "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly."—ELIZABETH B. GITHENS, Webster Groves, Mo.

✧

My gratitude for the truth that is revealed to me through the study of Christian Science can never be fully expressed in words. Several years ago I was healed of a growth on the breast. It was growing worse and more painful, and I feared it was of a malignant nature. I called on a Christian Science practitioner, and was healed in about three weeks' treatment.

For all the blessings that have been received I am most thankful to God, and much indebted to our dear Leader, Mrs. Eddy. I shall always strive to live this blessed truth as revealed in Christian Science.

ELLA M. CAMREN, Tipton, Ind.

From Our Exchanges

[Northwestern Christian Advocate]

It is the gentle folk that really do things in this world. They learn their lesson from the great world of nature about them, for from bottom to top of creation the law is sustained that gentleness is power.

The rain comes down from heaven with almost imperceptible patter and waters the earth. The streams flow quietly and the rivers majestically to the sea, with scarcely a ripple, bearing upon their bosoms the argosies of nations. The winter snows descend with absolute quiet, heaping the mountains with a reserve for the summer's need. Winds sweep through the forests and across the fields with but murmurous evidence. The ponderous tide ebbs and flows with stealthy movement, and noiselessly. The earth itself wheels upon its axis without a creak and swings in its vast reach about the sun with the silence of death. . . .

So with the intellectual and spiritual. Fussiness never wrought effectually. It is the man of quiet, persistent, and determined mind and heart that accomplishes his purpose, and that purpose of value. The ranter, the expostulator, the driver, may seem to be making progress; but he of the steady nerve can be depended upon to accomplish his end on time and to the world's satisfaction. Volcanic temperaments may cast a lurid light for a while, but their eruption only serves to incapacitate the surrounding soil for satisfactory cultivation.

[Zion's Herald]

Whatever variant views may be held regarding detailed points in Biblical criticism, all really reverent Christian men are agreed that the Bible is an inspired book. Holy men of old spoke as they were moved by the divine Spirit, and their messages to mankind, having been preserved to us in substance at least, are evaluated to us in terms of modern experience. The question What is inspiration? like the inquiry What is life? may be a difficult question to answer in precise categorical definitions; but there can be no doubt as to the main fact involved,—that the Bible is unique, in a class by itself, full of the breath of a heavenly life, vibrant with the passionate enthusiasms of an eternal hope, and alike in the Old and the New Testament, authenticated as the word of a changelessly righteous yet tenderly compassionate God. If we do not know just what "inspiration" is, we are yet sure that the Bible is inspired.

[Western Christian Advocate]

Do not be puzzled because you are perplexed. . . . In God's good time we always come to understand. In this world things do not always fall into easy, straight lines. Life is complex, its paths are complicated, its duties, problems, and its tasks difficult. We must walk by faith, believing where we cannot prove. Our only safety is to seek to move forward, for the aggressive attitude of soul demands a way of light, while that of reluctance, uncertainty, bewilderment, dooms the soul in darkness and despair. That admonition of Jesus was worthy our acceptance when he said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life." We want to know the way. With him we can afford to wait for the truth. The perplexity of today is the vantage ground of tomorrow.

[Rev. H. Maldwyn Hughes in The Methodist Times]

We are accustomed to date the Reformation from Martin Luther; but its real origin lies farther back in the inner life of humble souls who kept alive the simple love of Jesus, and who prayed and taught their families to pray, "Thy kingdom come in earth." It was in the hearts of these that spiritual forces were operating silently, until at length the pent-up energy broke its bounds and was reenforced by fresh outpourings of the Spirit, so that the revival was born.

Digitized by Google

This is why it is impossible to foretell the time of the advent of a spiritual revival. It is dependent not merely upon the immediate and direct activity of God, but on the cumulative power of spiritual forces operating out of sight in many hearts; and we cannot determine their exact trend or estimate their strength.

[John B. Anderson, D.D., in The Biblical World]

If the religion of the New Testament had been in control of the intellectual life of the whole world during the last fifty years, the great war would have been impossible. As present world conditions prove, a non-religious and an irreligious intellectuality is a danger than which hardly any can be greater. Better have no advanced intellectual life at all, better have no triumphs of modern science, if we cannot have the influence of some pure and potent religion sovereign over all.

[The Christian Advocate]

It is no slur upon the other noble activities which have their source in the teaching of Jesus to insist that the fundamental activity of the church is the extension of the saving knowledge of Christ. A saved social order can be set up and maintained only by men who have themselves experienced the regenerating power of the gospel. Today the command that rings in the ears of the church is this ancient word of Jehovah: "Go forward." If the church is to fulfil its high mission for the redemption of men through Jesus Christ, it will sound the advance and move forward for conquest in the salvation of souls.

[Rev. Charles S. Burch, D.D., in The New York (N. Y.) Herald]

The peace of the world and the happiness of men can surely and only be builded on spiritual foundations. There is a spiritual life to be lived by every one who wills to live it, with compensations beyond compare with those of the purely transient, material effort, and only when the God spirit shall govern mankind instead of the world spirit will peace and justice and love and service come into their rightful sovereignty over the world of men.

[Francis J. Hall, D.D., in The Constructive Quarterly]

Openness of mind means openness to all truth and readiness to accept each new item of knowledge both in itself and in its consequences, however radical these may prove to be. It does not mean, however, vacancy of mind, which belongs only to the densely ignorant and incompetent; nor, to use a phrase of President Butler, is it equivalent to a mind which is "open at both ends," that is, lacking an assured standpoint.

[The Methodist Recorder]

We are living in a day of great opportunity for the church. At home there is a more serious spirit awakened by the tremendous crisis through which we are passing; a spirit of prayer is moving amongst the people. The nation has not become Christian, but there is a greater readiness to listen to the claims of religion and of Christ, and an earnest appeal by the united church might meet with a more cheering response than at any time within the last generation.

[The Outlook]

We want from our preachers neither ethics nor theology, but life. This is what the people mean by their demand for practical preaching.

Special Announcements

From the Publisher of Mrs. Eddy's Works

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE TEXT-BOOK, "SCIENCE AND HEALTH WITH KEY TO THE SCRIPTURES."—For styles of bindings and prices see back cover of this periodical.

A NEW CONCORDANCE.—The publication is announced of a Concordance to Mrs. Eddy's published writings other than Science and Health.

The new volume has been compiled with the same comprehensive care and is issued in uniform style with the Concordance to Science and Health. It contains 1103 pages, and is published only in the Oxford India Bible paper edition, with stiff morocco covers. The thumb index will not be used in this Concordance, as it is to be discontinued in future editions of the Concordance to Science and Health. Prices: Single copy, $6.00; in lots of six or more to one address, each $5.50.

Announcement is made of the publication of a German translation of the Manual of The Mother Church. The volume is uniform in size, style, and price with the regular cloth-bound edition, and the publisher is now prepared to fill orders. Single copy $1.00; six or more to one address, each 75 cents.

Orders for the books named above and other works by Mrs. Eddy should be addressed to ALLISON V. STEWART, Falmouth and St. Paul Streets, Boston, Mass.

From the Editor

All manuscripts submitted for publication in the Sentinel, Journal, and Herold, whether articles, poems, or testimonies, and all correspondence relating thereto, should be addressed to the EDITOR, and not to individuals.

From the Publishing Society

The Christian Science Quarterly is published in the Dutch and German languages. These editions are printed with the foreign language and English version on opposite pages. Orders for single copies, quantities, and subscriptions will be filled at the rates as shown on the opposite page.

The pamphlet "Prayer and Confidence" containing four articles reprinted from The Christian Science Journal, has been translated into Dutch.

A lecture by Francis J. Fluno, M.D., entitled "Christian Science: A Reasonable and Rational View of all Things," has also been translated into Dutch.

Both of these pamphlets are printed with the English version opposite the translated page and are on sale at prices as shown on the opposite page under the list of pamphlets.

From the Clerk of The Mother Church

CHURCH TENETS.—The tenets of The First Church of Christ, Scientist,—The Mother Church,—printed on folded sheet for use of the branch Churches of Christ, Scientist, with space for printing their authorized forms of application for membership or extracts from their by-laws, can be had at seventy-five cents a hundred. Orders will not be taken for less than one hundred and postage stamps should not be sent in payment.

Correspondence relative to the tenets or to membership with The Mother Church, should be sent to J. V. DITTEMORE, Clerk, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

From the Church Treasurer

The annual per capita tax of members of The Mother Church is due June 1, but may be paid at any time during the year. The per capita tax of members uniting in November is reckoned from the preceding June, this being the beginning of the church year. Unless otherwise directed by the sender, the full amount of each remittance will be credited for the current year.

Please remit by postal or express money order, bank draft, or check. Currency should be sent by registered letter only.

Please advise promptly of any change in name or address.

Send per capita taxes and contributions to ADAM H. DICKEY, Treasurer, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

Digitized by Google

The Christian Science Journal

Published Monthly

Founded April, 1883, by Mary Baker Eddy, Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, and author of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures."

This monthly magazine is the official organ of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. In addition to articles, editorials, and testimonies not published elsewhere, it contains a complete list of Christian Science practitioners, and a directory of Christian Science Churches, Societies, and Reading Rooms.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $2; six months $1; three months 50 cents. SALE PRICE: Single copy 20 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 15 cents. For Canada add 25 cents for postage. SALE PRICE: Single copy 20 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 17 cents. In all other countries add 65 cents for postage for each annual subscription. SALE PRICE: Single copy 25 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 20 cents.

BOUND VOLUMES: Current and past year, cloth $3.00; half calf or half morocco $3.75. On earlier volumes write for prices.

The Christian Science Quarterly

Published January, April, July, and October

Contains the Lesson-Sermons which are read at the Sunday services throughout the year in all the Christian Science churches. These Lessons, which present citations from the Bible and "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," are valuable for daily study. Also printed in Dutch and German.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION AND SALE: In the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year 50 cents; single copy 15 cents; four copies or more to one address, each 12½ cents. For all other countries one year 60 cents; single copy 18 cents; four copies or more, each 15 cents.

Subscriptions not accepted for less than one year. Subscriptions begin with current quarter unless otherwise designated, and terminate with the last of the month named on wrapper.

The Christian Science Monitor

Published Daily, Except Sundays and Legal Holidays

An international daily newspaper. Adequate news service. The various departments of a modern newspaper. Unique Home Forum page. Entire page of editorials dealing with the vital topics of the day. Contributions to the columns of the MONITOR should be addressed: Editor, THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States (except in the Boston Postal District), Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $5; six months $2.50; three months $1.25; one month 50 cents. In all other countries additional postage at the rate of $3 yearly is required. By carrier through a local news dealer, one week 12 cents; one month 50 cents. In the Boston Postal District, by mail, one year $7.25. Quantity rates will be furnished on application.

Der Herold der Christian Science

Published Monthly

A magazine printed in German, which publishes original and translated articles bearing upon Christian Science, also testimonials of healing.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $1; six months 50 cents; three months 25 cents. For other countries, one year $1.25; six months 63 cents; three months 32 cents.

SALE PRICE, DOMESTIC TERRITORY AND CANADA, POSTPAID: Single copy 10 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 8 cents. Foreign rate, single copy 12 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 10 cents.

Bound Volumes in cloth, $2.75 each; half calf or half morocco $3.50 each. Write for list of volumes in stock.

Pamphlets

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS RELIGIOUS PHILOSOPHY. By HON. CLARENCE A. BUSKIRK.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: "THE RESURRECTION AND THE LIFE." By CLARENCE W. CHADWICK.

CAUSATION: VIEWED IN THE LIGHT OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By FREDERICK DIXON. Also printed in Norwegian and Swedish.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING VS. MENTAL SUGGESTION. By FREDERICK DIXON. Reprinted from the Weekly Budget, London, England. Also printed in Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE TRUE CHRISTIANITY. By CLARENCE C. EATON.

"THE SONS OF GOD." By COL. WILLIAM E. FELL.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE VS. FINITE SENSE. By FRANCIS J. FLUNO, M.D.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE GOSPEL OF FREEDOM. By WILLIS F. GROSS.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE SCIENCE OF SALVATION. By HERMANN S. HERING.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING: SPIRITUAL AND SCIENTIFIC. By PROF. HERMANN S. HERING. Also printed in German.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS CONCERNING CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. Also printed in Dutch, German, and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS ADVANTAGE TO MANKIND. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. A London lecture. Also printed in French.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: MAN'S DOMINION OVER EVIL. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. Also printed in modern Greek, Italian, Norwegian, and Russian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS DIVINE AUTHORITY. By BLISS KNAPP.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE EXPLANATION OF THE IDEAL MAN. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS DISCOVERY AND DEVELOPMENT. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: GOD'S LOVINGKINDNESS PROVED TO MEN. By REV. WILLIAM P. MCKENZIE. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS RESULTS. By WILLIAM R. RATHVON. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE RELIGION OF DIVINE LAW. By JACOB S. SHIELD.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM. By JUDGE CLIFFORD P. SMITH. Also printed in French and German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A RELIGION OF LOVE. By VIRGIL O. STRICKLER. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE NEW BIRTH. By BICKNELL YOUNG. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

THE LAW OF KINDNESS.
"WHAT WENT YE OUT FOR TO SEE?"
"THEN THE FULL GRAIN IN THE EAR."
UPWARD FOOTSTEPS. Also printed in Dutch.
FULFILLING THE LAW. Also printed in Danish.
PRAYER AND HEALING. Also printed in French and German.
THE DIVINE NATURE. Also printed in Dutch and Norwegian.
ENVIRONMENT AND OPPORTUNITY. Also printed in French.
THE FATHER'S BUSINESS. Also printed in German and Swedish.
SEEKING AND FINDING. Also printed in Dutch, German, and Swedish.
THE PROVIDENCE OF GOOD. Also printed in French, Spanish, and Swedish.
LAW AND WORK.
CONFIDENCE AND SUPPLY.
BIRTHRIGHT AND DOMINION.

Other Translated Pamphlets

*FAITH AND GENEROSITY. Printed in French.
MAN'S UNITY WITH GOD. Printed in German only.
"PEACE ON EARTH." Printed in German only.
PRAYER AND CONFIDENCE. Printed in *Dutch and German.
MARY BAKER EDDY. By ARTHUR BRISBANE. Printed in German only.
*MARY BAKER EDDY: HER PURPOSE AND ACCOMPLISHMENT. By FREDERICK DIXON. Printed in French and German.
THE FOUNDER OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By B. O. FLOWER. Printed in German only.
*CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A REASONABLE AND RATIONAL VIEW OF ALL THINGS. By FRANCIS J. FLUNO, M.D. Printed in Dutch.
*CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: HUMANITY'S HELPER. By PROF. HERMANN S. HERING. Printed in Dutch.
*CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE COMFORTER OF PROMISE. By FRANK H. LEONARD. Printed in French.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: DEMONSTRABLE RELIGION. By FRANK H. LEONARD. Printed in Norwegian only.
*CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A RELIGION OF PROGRESS. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Printed in French and Swedish.
*CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS PRINCIPLE AND METHOD. By BICKNELL YOUNG. Printed in French and Swedish.

PRICE, POSTPAID: Single copy 5 cents; twelve copies to one address 55 cents; fifty copies $2; one hundred copies $3.50. Orders for above pamphlets may be assorted as desired.

For table of English, German, Swiss, and French money equivalents, see inside front cover page.

*These pamphlets are printed with the English version opposite each page of the translation.

Miscellaneous

A Catalogue of Selected Bibles will be furnished upon application, and quantity rates on other items specified below will be found in the current catalogue in The Christian Science Journal.

BIBLES. 01483 x. Clarendon Brevier, heavy-faced, distinct type; Turkey morocco, corresponding in size and binding to pocket edition of Science and Health, $4.75.

01440 x. Brevier, light-faced type; self-pronouncing, Turkey morocco, corresponding in size and binding to pocket edition of Science and Health, $4.50.

01683 x. Large type Bible, 10¾ x 8 inches, bound in Alaska seal. Specially adapted for use of second readers, $12.50.

Black morocco open case to hold pocket edition of Science and Health, Quarterly, and Bible, $1.40.

Two other sizes of open case listed in the current issue of the Journal.

Black morocco closed case with handle and purse on outside, $3.75; without purse, $3.50.

The improved index will be added to any Bible listed in our catalogue for an additional charge of 35 cents. Catalogue No. 23 of selected Bibles will be mailed free upon application.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS ON THE LIFE AND WORK OF MARY BAKER EDDY. 132 pages with index. Paper covered, 15 cents; cloth binding, 35 cents.

THE LIFE OF MARY BAKER EDDY. By Sibyl Wilbur. 424 pages. Cloth, $2. Edition de luxe, $5.

PERSONAL CONTAGION, ALSO WHAT OUR LEADER SAYS. By Mary Baker Eddy. Special pamphlet. Paper cover, 10 cents.

THE MOTHER CHURCH. By Joseph Armstrong. A history of the building of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. Illustrated, 107 pages. Cloth, $1.50.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS LEGAL STATUS. By Judge Clifford P. Smith. 128 pages, paper covered, 10 cents.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HYMNAL. Cloth, $1.15; half morocco, $1.40; full morocco, $2.50; levant, $3.50; pocket edition, size 4⅝ x 6⅝, $3

SHEET MUSIC. Poems written by Mary Baker Eddy and used by special permission, have been set to music as follows: "The Mother's Evening Prayer," 75 cents; "Christ, My Refuge," 75 cents; "Love," 40 cents; Communion Hymn—"Saw Ye My Saviour?" (Johnson), 50 cents; "Blest Christmas Morn," 27 cents; "O'er Waiting Harpstrings of the Mind," 27 cents; "Shepherd, Show Me How to Go," 27 cents; "Saw Ye My Saviour?" (Root), 27 cents. The first three hymns are arranged for high and low voice in the same copy. The last five hymns are published separately in high and low keys. When ordering state key desired.

PHOTOGRAVURE OF MRS. EDDY, printed in three sizes on India paper and mounted on heavy plate paper ready for framing. 8-inch (mount 12 x 16), $1; 12-inch (mount 15 x 20), $2; 16-inch (mount 21 x 29), $3.50.

PICTURE OF THE FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, IN BOSTON, MASS., AND THE PUBLISHING HOUSE. Artist's proof with remarque on Japanese vellum, size 18 x 24 inches, $5; on India paper without remarque, $3. Smaller reproduction, size 11 x 14 inches, on Japanese vellum, $1. Photogravure postcards of the Church Edifice and Publishing House, 5 cents.

QUARTERLY COVERS in black morocco, $1.30; with purse, $1.50.

ALUMINUM LESSON MARKERS. Set of thirty, with paper shields, 50 cents. Extra paper shields, one hundred, 15 cents.

PRICE LIST OF BIBLE CONCORDANCES AND DICTIONARIES OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE supplied on request. Express charges collect on delivery.

REPRINTS (not printed in English). Two-page leaflets, 14 subjects in French and Swedish; 18 subjects in German. Ten copies to one address, 10 cents.

Remittances should always accompany orders, and be made by check, money order, or exchange on Boston or New York. Currency or coin should not be sent by mail unless registered. Please send no money or business letters to the Editor or Editorial Department.

Send all orders for the works of Mrs. Eddy, with remittance by New York or Boston draft or money order, direct to Allison V. Stewart

For literature listed above address orders and make remittances payable to

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

FALMOUTH AND ST. PAUL STREETS, BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

Digitized by Google

Works on Christian Science

Written by MARY BAKER EDDY, Discoverer and Founder
of Christian Science and Author of its Text-book

Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures. In one volume, 700 pages. The original, standard, and only text-book on Christian Science Mind-healing. Cloth, one to eleven copies inclusive (cloth only), each $3.00; twelve or more, each $2.75. Full leather, stiff, beveled boards, gilt edges, same paper as in cloth binding, single copy $4.00; twelve or more, each $3.75. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $5.00; twelve or more, each $4.75. Levant, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, round corners, gilt edges, silk sewed, heavy Oxford India Bible paper (wide margins, large-sized book) single copy $6.00; twelve or more, each $5.75.

LARGE TYPE EDITION. Designed especially for the use of first readers. Large type (18-point) on Oxford India Bible paper, bound in leather. Size 10¾ inches long by 8 inches wide. Single copy $7.50, with a discount of 25 cents each when included in an order for twelve or more copies of Science and Health, and in any or all of the different bindings.

GERMAN TRANSLATION. Cloth, one to five copies inclusive, each $3.50; six or more, each $3.25. Pocket edition, printed on Oxford India Bible paper. Morocco, one to five copies inclusive, each $5.50; six or more, each $5.25. Orders for the German translation in lots of six or more may include both bindings.

Orders for Science and Health in lots of twelve or more at quantity prices may include both English and German editions, and different styles of binding.

Miscellaneous Writings. A book of 471 pages, containing articles published in The Christian Science Journal from 1888 to 1896, with revisions and additions. Cloth, single copy $2.25; twelve or more, each $2.00. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $4.00; twelve or more, each $3.75. Levant, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, round corners, gilt edges, silk sewed, Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $5.00; twelve or more, each $4.75. Orders for Miscellaneous Writings in lots of twelve or more may include any or all of the different styles of binding. No discount will be allowed on orders for twelve books which include both Science and Health and Miscellaneous Writings.

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany. A book of 364 pages, containing articles published in The Christian Science Journal and Sentinel, subsequent to the compilation of Miscellaneous Writings, together with historical matter pertaining thereto. Cloth, single copy $2.25; six or more, each $2.00. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $4.00; six or more, each $3.75. Orders for six or more may include the two styles of binding.

Concordance to Science and Health. This work contains about eighty thousand references (more than ten thousand words being indexed), also an index to the Marginal Headings, and a list of the Scriptural Quotations in Science and Health. 611 pages, stiff morocco cover, single copy $5.00; six or more, each $4.50.

Concordance to Mrs. Eddy's Published Writings Other Than Science and Health. It contains 1,103 pages, and is published only in Bible paper edition, with stiff morocco cover. Single copy, $6.00; six or more, each, $5.50.

Christ and Christmas. An illustrated poem. Single copy $3.00; six or more, each $2.50.

Unity of Good and Other Writings. One volume, containing Unity of Good, Rudimental Divine Science, No and Yes, Retrospection and Introspection; uniform in style with the pocket edition of Science and Health. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, heavy Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $3.50; six or more, each $3.25.

Christian Healing and Other Writings. One volume, containing Christian Healing, The People's Idea of God, Pulpit and Press, Christian Science versus Pantheism, Messages of 1900, 1901, 1902; uniform in style with the pocket edition of Science and Health. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, heavy Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $3.50; six or more, each $3.25.

Church Manual. Containing the By-laws of The Mother Church. Cloth, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents. Pocket edition, morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $2.00; six or more, each $1.75.

GERMAN TRANSLATION. Cloth, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Retrospection and Introspection. A biographical sketch of the author; the way she was led to the discovery of Christian Science; its fundamental idea and growth. Library edition, cloth, 95 pages, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Unity of Good. This book lays the axe at the root of error, elucidating and enforcing practical Christian Science, thus affording invaluable directions for all true Scientists. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, 64 pages, single copy 60 cents; six or more, each 45 cents. Pocket edition, leather covers, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Pulpit and Press. A unique work, of importance in the history and to the readers of Christian Science; containing the message or sermon written for the dedicatory service of The Mother Church, January 6, 1895, and scintillations from the press of that occasion. Library edition, cloth, 90 pages, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Rudimental Divine Science. A brief and concise statement of Divine Science, alias Christian Science, in the form of questions and answers. Pebbled cloth covers, gilt top, 17 pages, single copy 32 cents; six or more, each 25 cents. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 35 cents.

PRINTED in the New York point system of type for the use of the blind, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

No and Yes. A brief statement of very important points in Christian Science. Pebbled cloth covers, 46 pages, single copy 32 cents; six or more, each 25 cents. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 55 cents; six or more, each 45 cents.

Messages to The Mother Church. Including in one volume, 94 pages, Christian Science versus Pantheism, and the Messages of 1900, 1901, and 1902. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy $1.50; six or more, each $1.15.

Christian Science versus Pantheism. The Pastor Emeritus' Message delivered at the Communion Season in The Mother Church in Boston, June, 1898. A clear and strong refutation of the charge that Christian Scientists are pantheists. Pebbled cloth covers, 15 pages, single copy 25 cents; six or more, each 20 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1900. Paper covers, deckled edges, 15 pages, single copy 25 cents; six or more, each 20 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1901. Paper covers, deckled edges, 35 pages, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 38 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1902. Paper covers, deckled edges, 20 pages, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 38 cents.

Christian Healing, and The People's Idea of God. Two sermons in one volume, 36 pages. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 55 cents; six or more, each 45 cents.

Christian Healing. A sermon delivered in Boston. Paper covers, 20 pages, single copy 20 cents; six or more, each 17 cents.

The People's Idea of God. A sermon delivered in Boston. Paper covers, 14 pages, single copy 20 cents; six or more, each 17 cents.

Poems. This volume of 79 pages includes all of Mrs. Eddy's hymns, also her earlier poems which appeared in various publications from forty to sixty years ago. Specially bound. Single copy $1.50; six or more, each $1.25.

Feed My Sheep. Solo. Words by Mary Baker Eddy, music by Lyman F. Brackett. Single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

The foregoing prices cover all charges for express or postage on shipments either domestic or foreign.

Quantity prices are on shipments to one address only, but quantity lots at quantity prices cannot be made up of different books or of different styles of binding. Attention is called, however, to the exception to this rule which is made in the cases of Science and Health, and of Miscellaneous Writings, as given under these titles in this price list.

Address all orders for above works, and make remittance by New York or Boston draft or money order, to

ALLISON V. STEWART, FALMOUTH AND ST. PAUL STS., BOSTON, MASS.

Digitized by Google

MAR 17 1917

HISTORICAL LIBRARY

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SENTINEL

"What I say unto you I say unto all-WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX No. 29

Boston, March 17, 1917

Contents of This Number

Items of Interest (Brief Mention of Important Events) 562
Truth Alone Repeats Itself — Irving C. Tomlinson, M.A. 563
Two Memorials — Frances Mack Mann 563
Death Destroyed — Elsa Cross 564
Truth Absolute — Reuben Pogson 565
Our Daily Bread — Florence E. B. Donaldson 565
"Canonical writings" — Elma Warwick Wilmarth 566
We Praise Thee, O Lord (Poem) — Helen A. Lee 567
Selected Articles 567
Editorial
Healing by Prayer 570
Acquaintance with the Scriptures . 570
Humor 571
Among the Churches (Current Notes)
Walla Walla, Wash. 571
Durban, Natal, South Africa . . 572
Exeter, England 572
The Lectures
Silver Creek, N. Y. 572
Cape Town, Cape Colony, South Africa 572
Testimonies of Healing 574
From Our Exchanges 577

A LADY WITH A LAMP SHALL STAND IN THE GREAT HISTORY OF THE LAND

A NOBLE TYPE OF GOOD HEROIC WOMANHOOD
Longfellow

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY
FALMOUTH AND ST PAUL STREETS BOSTON MASS U.S.A.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

(THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE WEEKLY)

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY BY
THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY
Falmouth and St. Paul Sts., Boston, Mass., U.S.A.

ARCHIBALD McLELLAN
Editor

ANNIE M. KNOTT — WILLIAM D. McCRACKAN
Associate Editors

Subscription Price

Payable in advance

Annual subscription price, postpaid, in the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, $2.00; six months, $1.00; three months, 50 cents. For Canada add 45 cents and for all other countries 95 cents annually for postage. For subscriptions in quantities please refer to page four in THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE JOURNAL.

Subscriptions to the SENTINEL will begin with the current issue unless otherwise specified. The delivery of the periodical will indicate that a remittance has been credited and will be our acknowledgment of the subscription.

Bound Volumes: Current year or two years previous, cloth, $3.25; half calf or half morocco, $4.00. On earlier volumes write for prices.

Terms of Sale

	United States, Mexico, and Cuba	Canada	All Other Countries
Single copy	$ .05	$ .06	$ .07
Four or more copies . .	.03½	.04	.05

Equivalents of United States money

		£	s.	d.	Marks	Francs
$ .60	equals	0	2	6	2.52	3.12
1.15	"	0	4	9	4.85	5.98
1.25	"	0	5	2	5.30	6.50
2.33	"	0	9	7	9.85	12.09
2.38	"	0	9	10	10.05	12.35
2.63	"	0	10	9	11.10	13.65
2.65	"	0	10	10	11.20	13.78
2.70	"	0	11	1	11.40	14.04
2.95	"	0	12	2	12.50	15.34
5.00	"	1	0	7	21.15	26.00
7.50	"	1	10	10	31.73	39.00
8.00	"	1	12	11	33.85	41.60

Make all remittances payable to The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Postage required for remailing this copy: 1 cent domestic and Canada; 2 cents other countries.

Entered at Boston, Mass., post-office as second-class matter.

Items of Interest

"I predict that in the lives of the younger men now before me there will be seen from ocean to ocean in the United States the greatest system of highways to be found anywhere in the world," was the prediction of Senator Bankhead, chairman of the Senate committee on post-offices and post roads, when speaking recently in Atlanta, Ga., at a meeting held for the purpose of accelerating the building of the Bankhead Highway through the southern states. "The present Federal appropriation of $85,000,000 is but the beginning of the work that the national Government will shortly be doing in the matter of road construction," he said.

A soap factory in Lourenco Marques, Mozambique, started in 1914 with a capital of about $15,000, and an output of 600 cases, or 85 tons a month, has at present a capital of $60,000, and an output of 6000 cases a month. The soap is made entirely from vegetable oils and is in two qualities,—"mottled" and "yellow." The latter quality, which is said to be suitable for all toilet purposes, is made solely from coconut oil. The factory is run practically on the products of the district, only about 6 per cent of the materials used coming from abroad. These are mostly sodas and silicates.

A comparatively little known but valuable tree, most often called slash pine, is fast replacing long-leaf pine in many sections of the South, says the Forest Service. In some respects it is considered a better tree than the long-leaf pine. Its growth is more rapid, its yield of turpentine larger, and its wood is the heaviest, hardest, and strongest coniferous wood grown in the country. The chief causes for the rapid spread of the tree are its frequent and abundant seed production, its rapid growth, its ability to endure the shade of other trees, and its capacity to adapt itself to a wide range of environment. The tree is destined to play an important part in the future of the cut-over lands of the South. As an example of the high money returns obtained by turpentining the tree, it is stated that in one instance in South Carolina a twenty year old stand averaged 520 trees an acre, each of which yielded one cup. The turpentine operator paid the owner ten cents a cup, or a total of fifty-two dollars an acre, for the privilege of tapping the trees.

The Baldwin Locomotive Works of Philadelphia, says the Manufacturers' Record, has completed and delivered to the Virginian Railway for use on its lines a large triple articulated compound locomotive, which is apparently the most powerful railroad engine yet built. It cost more than eighty thousand dollars, and is of the same type as the big engine built for the Erie Railroad in 1914. While the latter is slightly heavier, the Virginian locomotive is a little more powerful. The new engine weighs 844,000 pounds, and has a tractive force of 166,300 pounds; the Erie engine weighs 853,000 pounds, and its tractive force is 160,000 pounds. The engine and tender combined are about 105 feet long.

An annual appropriation of $500,000 for three consecutive years is provided for in a bill to be considered by the Wisconsin legislature. The bill is aimed to improve and clear stump land in northern Wisconsin. This money will be available for clearing their lands to settlers in the upper part of the state, who can prove ownership of twenty acres or more of good agricultural, cut-over stump lands, and who are desirous of farming and cultivating them, provided that the work does not cost more than forty dollars an acre. The money will be loaned by the state on a twenty-year instalment plan, plus interest at 3½ per cent, payable annually.

By asking the Michigan legislature to increase its annual appropriation to $150,000, the Public Domain Commission of that state is preparing to carry into effect the most extensive forest conservation or tree planting plan which has ever been tried in this country, or possibly by any foreign nation. The state now owns, in round numbers, 540,000 acres of land. It is proposed to plant trees at the rate of 4500 acres a year, and beginning with 1947 to cut at the rate of 4500 acres a year and plant at the same rate with the more valuable pines.

In connection with the plan for improving the school system of China, and with a view to bringing the same up to the standards obtaining in the United States and other foreign countries, a Chinese commission left Shanghai at the beginning of the year to investigate the educational progress of the Philippine Islands, and en route made a short investigation in Japan. The commission is charged with the duty of devising methods whereby the industrial phases of modern educational effort may be applied to the schools of China in a practical way.

A remarkable expansion in the American potash industry has resulted from efforts to make the United States independent of foreign sources for potash. The 1916 production is estimated at 10,000 tons, with a value of $3,500,000. Of 8830 tons reported, 5750 were produced from mineral and 3080 from organic sources. Natural salts and brines yielded 3850 tons; alunite and silicate rocks 1900 tons; kelp 1110 tons; pearlash 200 tons, and miscellaneous industrial wastes 1750 tons.

Returns from 160 wood pulp mills throughout the country, received in connection with the census of pulp wood consumption and wood pulp production being made by the Forest Service in cooperation with the Newsprint Manufacturers' Association, show that in 1916 the reporting mills used 3,419,000 cords of wood and had an output of approximately 2,229,000 tons of pulp.

The National Astronomic Observatory at Cordoba, Argentina, will soon possess a new telescope which it is claimed will be the most powerful in the southern hemisphere and the third most powerful in the world. The Argentine Congress in 1912 appropriated $118,888 for the telescope and its dome, to be situated 1200 meters above sea level in the Sierra Chica. The telescope, which is a reflector, will have an aperture of 61 inches.

The National Assembly of Panama has under discussion a bill, which in all probability will be enacted into law, whereby the Government is authorized to use all efforts deemed opportune to found and maintain a Pan-American University in Panama City. The National Institute of Panama may serve as a base for the university.

The drainage basin of the Yenisei River in Siberia, Russia, and its tributaries, has an area of approximately nine hundred and seventy thousand square miles. River steamers can run on the main stream from Minusinsk, near the Mongolian border, to the Arctic Ocean, a distance of about fifteen hundred miles.

There were 20,000,000 baby chicks shipped in 1916 in the United States, in shipments ranging from twenty-five to several thousand in a single order. Express service is the only means of transportation at present, and the express companies make special provision for handling the shipments.

More than 42,000 miles of motion picture films were exported from the United States during 1916. Of this 30,000 miles were "exposed" films ready to be used. The balance were unexposed films, to be used in taking scenes abroad. The total value of the exported films was estimated at $10,000,000.

The annual trade returns of Hong Kong for 1916 may be the last in which opium will be considered as a factor of any consequence. Five years ago this trade involved from twelve to twenty million dollars annually, and represented one of the most profitable lines of business in the port.

The second and final gathering of Canary Islands cochineal, just ended, confirms the forecast made May 20, 1916, of a more than average crop of decidedly improved quality. Dealers now report a yield of approximately 727,500 pounds, with a large proportion of top quality.

During the fiscal year 1914-15 the British East African exports of goatskins amounted to 13,465 hundredweight of 112 pounds, valued at $267,900. In the same year the exports of sheepskins amounted to 2497 hundredweight, valued at $19,343.

During the crop year of 1915-16 the protectorate of Uganda, British East Africa, devoted 92,127 acres to cotton, and the production amounted to 99,341 hundredweight of 112 pounds, valued at $1,194,364.

In New Zealand there were 2338 public schools with 183,214 pupils enrolled at the close of 1915. The total amount expended for educational purposes during that year was $6,183,399.

Utah has displaced Michigan, which held third place in the beet sugar states, while it is well to the front in the production of minerals.

The area of olive trees under cultivation in Italy in 1916 was 5,703,169 acres. The olive oil yield is estimated at 874,786,000 pounds.

Fox skin and other fur exports to the United States from Prince Edward Island in January totaled $550,000 in value.

The autumn crop of cocoons in Japan was a large one, 9,472,600 bushels being gathered.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

"What I say unto you, I say unto all, WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX March 17, 1917 No. 29

Truth Alone Repeats Itself

IRVING C. TOMLINSON, M.A.

A PROVERB frequently quoted declares that "history repeats itself." Too often this saying of mortals is translated to mean that mistakes, sins, sicknesses, and disasters repeat themselves; in fact, many mortals live under the constant apprehension that evil must needs be their portion. This false belief that evil repeats itself is so ingrained in human consciousness that some of the severest afflictions of mankind are the outcome of this mistaken thinking.

Heredity is the false doctrine that the sins and ills which have afflicted the parents will be manifested in the children. Mortals even go so far as to believe it a law that the poverty, discord, and disease of ancestors will necessarily have a repetition in their offspring. The belief of contagion is another noxious weed springing from this seed of error. The only law is divine; and if it were true that this was a divine law,—that evil and disease iterate and reiterate themselves,—then God would be powerless and Truth could not set men free. Christian Science, however, teaches that Truth is ever available, and ready to enlighten mankind as to man's God-bestowed birthright. Truth is powerful because of its very simplicity. Only the carnal mind produces complications.

Christian Science brings to the attention of all the vital fact that Truth alone really repeats itself; that only God, good, Life and Love, are repeated in God's man. We do not live today just because we lived yesterday, but because we are reflections of that eternal Life which sustains its own individual expressions. Science and Health says (p. 207), "The spiritual fact, repeated in the action of man and the whole universe, is harmonious and is the ideal of Truth." The spiritual fact of the universe is that God, the creator of it, is Life, Truth, and Love; therefore the conclusion to be drawn is that infinite Life, Truth, and Love are repeated in the action of the true man. In other words, God's man reiterates the activity of infinite Mind, everlasting Life, eternal Truth, and this is in exact accord with the Master's teaching that it is the Father that "doeth the works."

The spiritual fact of the one universe declares for universal peace, abiding joy, divine Love; hence God's man, held in the God-consciousness, is a repetition of peace, joy, and spiritual love. It follows from this that whatever is not the manifestation of health, harmony, or peace is without reality, presence, or being, and so has no existence in Truth; therefore discord of every name and nature is a fiction of belief, a dream of the night, and no part of God's universe or God's man. Again, in the glad summer days nature is manifesting itself in beauty, order, growth, and abundance. This is merely a hint of the underlying spiritual fact; and that which we name beauty, order, growth, and abundance is therefore made permanently manifest in the true man. The best that the eye sees indicates but faintly that which God has prepared for His children; and through this spiritual realization matter fades from thought. In very truth God's child is now the possessor, reflection, and expression of all that outward grace which nature repeatedly displays, and also of that eternal and unchanging perfection which it typifies, for "who is so great a God as our God?"

Each one, then, should not fail to appropriate for himself all the good he has known and all that ever can be known. George Macdonald writes of one of his characters: "It was truth and higher truth he was always seeking—only one thing could satisfy:—the conscious presence of the eternal." This divine beneficence is man's heritage, and no false whisperings of mortal mind, usurping reality and power, should be allowed to rob him of the spiritual fact of his existence; hence the important behest of our beloved Leader, "Hold thought steadfastly to the enduring, the good, and the true, and you will bring these into your experience proportionably to their occupancy of your thoughts" (Science and Health, p. 261).

What a convincing example we have in Christ Jesus of this very truth as to the spiritual fact being repeated in the action of man! The healing of the man who had never seen the light of day proved that the affliction was the outcome of the false belief of mortals that error can repeat itself, instead of the enactment of God that sight is the gift of divine Love and that only spiritual vision can be expressed in the action of man who is born of Spirit. The disciples also caught some glimpse of this great truth, as was evidenced in their healing of the life-long cripple before the gate Beautiful, as recorded in the third chapter of Acts. The man's companions, with their limited sense of good, expected that lameness would be a continuous repetition of mortal belief in his life, but the disciples, having some understanding of the truth of being, saw man only as the reflection of God, and he who had been a cripple went with them into the temple "leaping, and praising God."

How truly it may be said of the Master that all he said and did was a replication of the divine activity, because he was vitally conscious of his unity with the Father. His thoughts were expressions of Truth, his words were God's words, his acts revealed the activities of divine Mind; and he said, "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also." What a fair vista does this open to the undimmed eye, and what an inspiration to "work—work—work—watch and pray" (Message for 1900, p. 2), that day by day and more and more in our own lives the spiritual fact may be clearly repeated in the action of man, God-governed.

Two Memorials

FRANCES MACK MANN

NEAR the end of Jesus' days on this earth, while the members of the Sanhedrin were planning for his crucifixion, he went up to Bethany to the pleasant home of Simon, who had been healed of leprosy. Mary, Martha, and Lazarus lived there with Simon, and many believe that Simon was Martha's husband. Be that as it may, Jesus' visit to this home is the only incident recorded in the New Testament in which mention is made of Lazarus after he was so marvelously brought back from his stay in the unseen world. To do Jesus honor the family had made him a supper, with invited guests, and Lazarus reclined with him on the table couch. This company was no doubt composed of those whom Jesus and his disciples had healed, and this gathering of friends and disciples, at a time when all present knew that the authorities of the Sanhedrin and temple were seeking to put him to death, was in itself a loyal tribute to Jesus, their beloved friend.

Copyright, 1917, by The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Digitized by Google

Doubtless the two sisters, Martha and Mary, had often thought of how they could express their gratitude for all that Jesus had done for them, for had he not healed Simon of leprosy and brought Lazarus back to them after he had lain three days in the tomb, and by so doing given to them the surety of eternal life? But it was through Mary—the Mary who had sat at Jesus' feet and chosen the one thing needful, divine Love—that this gratitude was to be expressed.

Rabbis who attended a marriage feast were often anointed on the head with oil. Jesus had once been anointed by a grateful penitent who had poured ointment upon his feet, and had besides washed them with tears and wiped them with her flowing hair, as we read in the seventh chapter of Luke's gospel. This woman's social status forbade her approach to Jesus as he reclined at table in the house of Simon the Pharisee, except from behind the couch, where she could easily reach his feet. "She loved much," and she had offered her tribute of gratitude as best she could. Jesus openly approved her for doing this and said: "Thy faith hath saved thee; go in peace."

But now Mary of Bethany, with her great love, outdid all former honors paid to Jesus. As a hostess on friendly terms with her honored guest, she was free to approach him from the center of the triclinium. Taking the costliest anointing oil of pure spikenard, made from a rare Indian plant and used only by the wealthy, she poured some of the perfume on the head of Jesus. She had rendered the highest earthly tribute to one who was more than a king. According to John, she anointed the feet of Jesus and, as did the penitent woman, she too wiped them with the hair of her head. The fragrant odor filled the room, and soon voices were heard,—mutterings even among the guests and disciples,—until Judas Iscariot asked, "Why was not this ointment sold for three hundred pence, and given to the poor?" But Jesus rebuked him by saying, "For the poor always ye have with you; but me ye have not always." Then, speaking of Mary's act, he said, "Verily I say unto you, Wheresoever this gospel shall be preached in the whole world, there shall also this, that this woman hath done, be told for a memorial of her."

From time to time we have read in our Sentinel this notice: "The memorial fund is still open, and contributions thereto will be received and receipted for by the Treasurer of The Mother Church." There has been no appeal for contributions to this fund. The statement that there was an opportunity to contribute to it has been all that was necessary; but the same spontaneous gratitude which moved Mary of Bethany to pay to her beloved Master the highest tribute in her power has moved the hearts of the Christian Scientists today to erect to their beloved Leader, Mrs. Eddy, a suitable memorial. Since first the opportunity to contribute to this fund was made known, there has been a steady, uninterrupted response on the part of Christian Scientists the world over, until now the full amount required is on hand.

It has been said that Mrs. Eddy's memorial is in her books; that she needs no other and would have wanted no other. True it is, "but wisdom is justified of all her children," and Mrs. Eddy will live in the hearts of men for her unselfish life and her never dying love manifested to all mankind throughout her words and works. The statement that Mrs. Eddy would not have wanted a memorial expressing the gratitude of her followers cannot be proved. If she had not believed in anything of this kind, would she have given five hundred dollars to the Baron and Baroness de Hirsch fund and written: "The movement to erect a monument to the late Baron and Baroness de Hirsch enlists my hearty sympathy. They were unquestionably used in a remarkable degree as instruments of divine Love" (Miscellany, p. 287).

The completion of the fund for this beautiful memorial for Mrs. Eddy—a song in stone—is cause for rejoicing. Nevertheless it is secondary to the fact that this expression of gratitude speaks of the ever increasing love for the truth as revealed to this age through our incomparable Leader, the noblest woman of the ages, the truest friend—excepting only Jesus of Nazareth—that the world has ever known.

Death Destroyed

ELSA CROSS

In his first epistle to the Corinthians the apostle declares that "the last enemy that shall be destroyed is death." Our beloved Leader writes in Science and Health, "Sin brought death, and death will disappear with the disappearance of sin." Again, in the same chapter, she says, "It is a sin to believe that aught can overpower omnipotent and eternal Life, and this Life must be brought to light by the understanding that there is no death, as well as by other graces of Spirit" (pp. 426, 428).

We need to see to it that we do not underestimate the importance of these teachings, or allow them to become inoperative in our consciousness through lack of sufficient practice. We cannot afford to deal lightly with the thoughts of death which are aggressively suggested to us in one form or another every day. We should meet and dispose of them with Christian Science, otherwise we are liable to reap the results of entertaining wrong conceptions of life eternal.

The days are not far past when such inventions as the automobile, the aeroplane, the wireless telegraph and telephone, were declared to be impossible and ridiculous daydreams, and this by members of the community who were looked up to as intelligent citizens. Nevertheless, thanks to the patient, persevering work of inventors, we are today realizing the value and usefulness of these same things. The genuine Christian Scientist stands in much the same position as these pioneers of invention; he has undertaken to demonstrate the healing power of divine Truth in every department of human life, and he must prove this in the face of every error,—sin, disease, and death.

The first two of this triad of evils—namely, sin and disease—are being effectually overcome by the power of Truth, and the Christian Scientist needs to shake off the inertia which would mesmerize him into evading the necessity for destroying his belief in death, in every thought, word, and deed where his assent to its possibility, actuality, or necessity is being demanded by mortal mind. He needs to know constantly, and to respond with the actual, indisputable fact that because God is the only presence and power, any lie which would assert the opposite of Truth is instantaneously self-destroyed when it is uncovered.

Such gross error as looking forward to a time of helplessness and death is a sin from which we should daily defend ourselves by the understanding that our glorious birthright as sons and daughters of divine Love is the authority, dominion, and power whereby we are daily to overcome in ourselves and in others the evil beliefs of death, disease, and sin in all of the myriad forms of sensuous appeal. Our Leader says, "The history of error or matter, if veritable, would set aside the omnipotence of Spirit; but it is the false history in contradistinction to the true" (Science and Health, p. 521). Knowing this, let us labor continually to deny and overcome all the claims of evil, whenever and however they may be presented, and so establish the kingdom of Life, Truth, and Love in the world.

Digitized by Google

✧

Truth Absolute

REUBEN POGSON

It was the transitory nature of all things material which was dawning upon a child's consciousness when she asked, "Does everything break?" Her mother fertilized the opportunity by presenting the contrast between the eternality of Spirit and the flittings of materiality. For many years mortals pursue material prizes, only to find that they all break. Each pursuer sees the unsatisfactory nature of the prizes which he himself does not strive for, but fails to discern that his own unattained prize rests on the same feet of clay. It is all written in Ecclesiastes, but in high disdain we pay the expensive fees and enter the school of hard experience to learn under the rod of affliction.

There can be nothing of absolute actuality in a transitory world. Such a world exists only to mortal sense. "Up" exists only so long as there is a "down;" "here" depends upon a "there;" obliterate a transitory "now," and we should have no "then" of any kind. If we were to apply to material things such absolute terms as infinite, eternal, good, we would either be using them in hyperbole or would have reduced them to a mortal sense. It is one of the easiest things in the world to take excerpts from a book containing absolute and relative terms and make the author appear to be inconsistent. The Bible and the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, contain absolute and relative terms, and the world contains critics.

To reply in terms of absolute truth to a question put from the standpoint of material sense might seem like perjury, which in a court of law would receive a penal sentence. Christian Scientists must distinguish between the spiritual facts which they are taught in Science and Health to declare to themselves, and what they have to admit to those who are questioning them from a material standpoint. When the husband of the Shunammite woman questioned her respecting the necessity of her journey to see Elisha, she replied, "It shall be well;" but when she answered Elisha's query, "Is it well with the child?" she said, "It is well," although to mortal belief the child was dead. The difference in her replies seems to have been the result of her recognition of the diverse standpoints of the questioners. Jesus exposed the inability of the material or human sense to perceive truth when he said, "Having eyes, see ye not?"

Speaking of the Word, John says, "He was in the world, and the world was made by him, and the world knew him not." The first and second "world" were used in the absolute sense, meaning the spiritual universe; the last "world" was used to indicate the world of mortal, material sense. Throughout Science and Health there are statements of absolute truth, cognized by spiritual understanding, and again there are numerous statements which deal with material belief, which are sometimes termed the relative. Many of the words in the Glossary are explained in both the absolute and the relative significations. Mrs. Eddy condemns the use of such statements to the suffering sense of the patient as "Nothing ails you" (see Science and Health, p. 460), and she herself practised this considerate treatment.

The so-called relative sense is capable of deceiving and being deceived, while absolute Truth can never deceive or be deceived. Mental reservation, practised by certain religionists who justify evil means for the sake of the end to be gained, is one of the deceits of the relative sense. The Jewish philosophers juggled with the relative sense of truth; hence Pilate's weary cynicism, "What is truth?" Jesus himself had exposed the "Corban" farce and many others. Some of these evasions contained a humorous element, and as they injured naught save the users' moral sense, they were winked at. At their best the isms of the world are mainly composed of relative truths, their remedial power for the world's discord being similar to the blind leading the blind, who unite in finding the inevitable ditch. Christian Science is the fan which separates material chaff from spiritual wheat.

By revealing God as Principle and declaring that only to be true which is in perfect accord with Principle, Christian Science reveals the way of emergence from this transitory material state of consciousness into the eternal security of absolute Truth. Be the human mind ever so astute, it cannot dodge or hoodwink Principle. That rightness whose standard is Principle sweeps away the mortal sense of right which builds Juggernaut cars, lights Moloch fires, and raises funeral pyres for their contingent victims. A ram instead of a lad represented Abraham's first step from a material sense of sacrifice toward the spiritual. In Hebrews we find the truth about sacrifice: "In burnt offerings and sacrifices for sin thou hast had no pleasure. Then said I, Lo, I come . . . to do thy will, O God." Sacrifice is the odor of sanctity reascending from man to God, the infinite Giver.

The metamorphosis which spiritual understanding produces is illustrated by the origin, life, and ascension of Christ Jesus. That Spirit was the everlasting Father, and man His coexistent Son, was the truth which changed Mary's sense of creation and resulted in the immaculate conception of Jesus. His life was the progressive overcoming of all the asserted material laws of existence by his understanding of the absolute law of Principle. "Be of good cheer," he said, "I have overcome the world,"—the entire range and compass of a material sense of existence. On the mount called Olivet the Master dispelled every vestige of the manifestation of material sense, and this demonstration has been rightly termed the ascension. When reading that portion of the Scripture where Jesus said, "Son, . . . thy sins be forgiven thee," Mrs. Eddy caught her first glimpse of the truth of man's indestructible being and was healed, as she tells us on page 24 of "Miscellaneous Writings." Who then dare say that Christian Science is neither scientific nor Christian!

✧

Our Daily Bread

FLORENCE E. B. DONALDSON

Daily reiteration of the familiar phrases of the Lord's Prayer would seem to have led to mere verbatim repetition of great fundamental truths which were intended as practical guides and waymarks in our journey through the desert of human hopes and fears. Christian Science not only throws new light upon this perfect epitome of the needs of humanity, but teaches that when a true understanding of its meaning has been gained it will instantaneously heal the sick. We are, however, dealing here with the single clause, "Give us this day our daily bread;" and Mrs. Eddy's interpretation, or the spiritual sense of it, as given on page 17 of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," the text-book of Christian Science, which reads, "Give us grace for today; feed the famished affections."

The great stress laid by Christ Jesus on the importance of seeking supply for the need of the day only, reveals a point of deep metaphysical significance. Since he spoke to the Jews, his words might well have fallen on understanding ears, had not the following of the law of Moses become mere letter and routine instead of spiritual obedience to divine commands. In the journey through the wilderness the Israelites had learned that the manna fell to meet the need of the day only. There was enough for them all to gather as they chose, but if they tried to store it, except as divinely commanded, the food became bad and useless. The great Teacher's insistence on the taking of no thought for the morrow showed how necessary this was, not only as a proof of trust and confidence in the unfailing love and care of the heavenly Father, but as signifying spiritual understanding of the fulness of man's inheritance of good. That at least one of his immediate disciples grasped the true meaning of this prayer is evident from St. John's words: "Now are we the sons of God." There could be no sense of want or lack in the Father's house. For every returning prodigal, even, there is "enough and to spare."

Digitized by Google

Even a superficial study of the gospel narratives shows that the simple words of this clause of the Lord's Prayer cover both the material and the spiritual needs of mortals. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you," was the definite promise given to the listening multitudes in the Sermon on the Mount. The spiritual nature of the true bread from heaven is brought out continually in the teaching of Jesus of Nazareth, as well as in the epistles of St. Paul and the other writers of the New Testament. Mrs. Eddy's paraphrase, already referred to, emphasizes the fact that spiritual grace is, or should be, the real object of this petition. What we need is grace to assimilate the fruits of Spirit; strength to turn from the material to the spiritual; wisdom and understanding to let go of the false and to grasp the true. To crave food for the "famished affections" is the desire to—

> Make channels for the streams of love,
> Where they may broadly run, as we read on page 89 of the Christian Science Hymnal. To pray aright is necessarily to know that the right desire is already granted. The only possible hindrances to the manifestation of good sought from on high are such things as doubt, fear, anxiety, self-seeking, and unbelief; but however arid the nature of the surroundings, God can furnish a table in the wilderness—even "in the presence of mine enemies," as the psalmist declared. We must, however, be careful to draw near to it clad in the garment of righteousness, and not in the rags of erroneous belief or materialistic thought.

Christian Science brings home to its students the supreme importance of seeking spiritual food unfailingly for each separate day. Some people may deem it possible to store enough on Sunday to last through the week, but Christian Science shows how impossible this is, and how imperative is the injunction of Christ Jesus to his disciples to pray for daily bread. The need to seek for grace daily becomes more apparent with each point gained. The supply is indeed unfailing, but the conditions imposed are the daily service of good. The prophet Isaiah summarized these requirements as follows: "He that walketh righteously, and speaketh uprightly; he that despiseth the gain of oppressions, that shaketh his hands from holding of bribes, that stoppeth his ears from hearing of blood, and shutteth his eyes from seeing evil; he shall dwell on high: his place of defense shall be the munitions of rocks: bread shall be given him; his waters shall be sure."

The teaching of Christian Science makes quite clear to its students that spiritual understanding is manifested in spiritual blessings. At the same time the spiritualization of thought becomes apparent in improved human conditions, but this improvement is incidental. There are numerous interesting illustrations in the Bible of the right apprehension of man's food as spiritual, being followed by the meeting of the human need. The manna which fell in the wilderness daily for forty years supplied the need of the Israelites. Elijah was fed by the ravens when "he went and did according unto the word of the Lord." Later the channel for his supply was the widow of Zarephath, who not only supplied the need of the prophet, but received also for herself and her household for obedience to the "word of the Lord, which he spake by Elijah."

Again, when Daniel and his three friends turned from the dainty food of the king's palace, the effect of the simple fare they chose in exchange proved their understanding of the fact that purity of purpose and motive was more potent for health of countenance than the richest material food. When Jesus hungered in the wilderness and resisted the temptation to turn stones into bread for his own need, we are told that "angels came and ministered unto him." In the clear understanding that man's true life was not dependent on material food, spiritual sense overcame the human belief of material need. On another occasion his sense of hunger vanished as he fed with the bread from heaven the receptive thought of the wondering woman of Samaria. Again, when thousands of hungering hearts had followed him into desert places in search of spiritual food, he knew they could not suffer for seeking truth, and the handful of loaves and fishes supplied the human need for all.

It is useful to note that the Master's recognition of unlimited supply to meet the needs of mortals was always attended with minutest care that there should be no waste. The "good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over," is available for all in the spiritual bread of life, but it must be sought for, utilized, assimilated, and shared with others.

"Canonical writings"

ELMA WARWICK WILMARTH

We are quite likely to attach the most value to those things which we have had to make some effort to gain. A large majority of people claiming to be Christians take the Bible for granted, just as they do the air and the sunshine. Most of us cannot remember a home in which there was not at least one copy of the Book of books; but how it came into existence perhaps mattered little to us. Some of us read or studied the Bible from a sense of duty, some from habit, some because it stood for the best in certain kinds of literature, and others because it was a light to their feet and an inspiration. When, however, its sacred pages were made radiant in the light thrown on them by Science and Health, then indeed its value increased, until by much study it became "our sufficient guide to eternal Life" (Science and Health, p. 497). We now realize that, as Ruskin says, "no book is worth anything which is not worth much; nor is it serviceable until it has been read and reread, and loved and loved again."

Just as we accepted the Bible without question, so we may lazily accept the various names which have been given to it. Do we stop to consider just what is meant by the term "canonical writings" in the explanatory note of The Christian Science Quarterly? To the Bible student it means exactly what the familiar term "authorized" means in speaking of the Christian Science literature. The word canon in classical Greek is properly a straight rod. As the early Christian fathers used the word in its widest sense to mean "the rule of the church," so the canon of Scripture may be described as the collection of books which form the original and authoritative written rule of the faith and practice of the Christian church. The uncanonical books were described simply as "those without," or those "uncanonized." The apocryphal books, which were supposed to occupy an intermediate position, were called "books read." Popular belief assigned to Ezra and the Great Synagogue the task of collecting and promulgating the Scriptures as part of their work in organizing the Jewish church. Doubts have been thrown on this belief, but it is in every way consistent with the history of Judaism. The Old Testament as a whole appeared after the time of the Maccabean persecution. The complete canon of the New Testament, as commonly received at present, was ratified at the third Council of Carthage 397 A.D.

Digitized by Google

No book offered to us as "just as good as the Bible" would be tolerated; and since its treasures have been unlocked for us by Mrs. Eddy in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," should we not, as one of our chief obligations to its author, likewise zealously guard our text-book against substitution? In Section 6 of Article VIII of the Manual every member of The Mother Church is admonished not "to forget nor to neglect his duty to God, to his Leader, and to mankind." Loyal students of Christian Science have been criticized and called narrow-minded because they follow their Leader's instructions and read only the authorized literature of Christian Science, together with the Bible, in studying the Science of Christianity, through which they are enabled to repeat the healing works of Christ Jesus and his early followers. Since, however, Mrs. Eddy has given the world this new-old religion, is she not entitled to our loyal obedience if we take the name of Christian Scientists?

To guard against adulteration Mrs. Eddy has given very plain instructions for our guidance in the Manual. Of special importance is this part of the by-law relating to the reading in churches: "The readers shall not read from copies or manuscripts, but from the books" (Art. III, Sect. 4). A further safeguard for the literature is given in Section 11 of Article VIII, where we read: "A member of this Church shall neither buy, sell, nor circulate Christian Science literature which is not correct in its statement of the divine Principle and rules and the demonstration of Christian Science. . . . A departure from the spirit or letter of this By-law involves schisms in our Church and the possible loss, for a time, of Christian Science." Students of this teaching should readily perceive that no less care should be taken in preserving this literature in its purity than has been exercised in respect to the Bible, since the welfare of humanity is so vitally concerned therein.

✧

[Written for the Sentinel]

We Praise Thee, O Lord

HELEN A. LEE

For love that makes all alien people kin;
For joy that glows, illuming all within;
For peace, full flowing river of the soul;
Long suffering charity, beholding aye the goal;
For gentleness, compassionate to the poor;
For goodness, native, changeless, and secure;
For meekness, of reviling unaware,
And temperance, to use Thy gifts with care;
For faith, assurance Thou art still the same
Pure Spirit whom Thy plenteous gifts proclaim,—
We laud and magnify Thy glorious name!

Selected Articles

[C. W. J. Tennant in North Herts Mail, Hitcham, England]

A more careful study of Christian Science on our critic's part would have prevented him from making statements which, although true in the absolute sense, cannot be held to be true in the relative sense which he intended. For instance, he declares that Christian Science says there is no such thing as suffering. In the absolute sense this is perfectly true. By the absolute I mean that in God, divine Principle, Life, Truth, and Love, there can be no suffering. It does not proceed from the creator, "with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning." On the other hand, to the relative or temporal sense sin and suffering seem very real. In this connection the teaching of Christian Science is made very plain by Mrs. Eddy in the following passage from page 460 of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures": "Sickness is neither imaginary nor unreal,—that is, to the frightened, false sense of the patient. Sickness is more than fancy; it is solid conviction. It is therefore to be dealt with through right apprehension of the truth of being."

Christian Science is not a new religion, as our critic seems to imagine; it is Christianity in its pure and primitive form, healing the sick as well as reforming the sinner. It is fulfilling the injunction of the Founder of Christianity to go into all the world and preach the gospel and heal the sick,—not by will-power, material means, or any other contrivance of the human mind, but through the spiritual understanding of the word of God, who forgives all our iniquities and heals all our diseases. The practice of Christianity in the first century of the Christian era destroyed the "works of the devil,"—sin, disease, suffering, and death,—and it will do so again in the twentieth.

✧

[Thorwald Siegfried in Tacoma (Wash.) Tribune]

In answering a critic of material medicine in your columns a physician went out of his way to "judge that our critic belongs to that class of people who believe in Christian Science." In the fact that the critic he names is not a Christian Scientist the doctor may find food for thought because it indicates that material medicine is unpopular even with those who are not fortunate enough to have displaced it with Christian Science healing.

The doctor says that it is the "duty of those whom we call physicians and surgeons to secure for the human race such good health as shall bear them in activity and happiness onward in their course to that goal, euthanasia." If that be a correct statement of the purpose of material medicine, then popular dissatisfaction with it is indeed warranted, and its failure to bring the healing which well intentioned doctors hope for and expect, is easily explained. Euthanasia means, very simply, an easy death, and with that as an ideal, or "goal," it is difficult to see how any one can help mankind to experience harmonious and eternal life.

If it be answered that death itself is a stepping-stone to life eternal, it may fairly be said that no bit of rational proof has ever been brought in support of such a self-contradictory proposition; moreover, both the precept and the example of Christ Jesus accord with Mrs. Eddy's statement concerning the perfect life: "Death can never hasten this state of existence, for death must be overcome, not submitted to, before immortality appears" (Science and Health, p. 76). Of his own mission Jesus said that its purpose was "that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life," and that he who understands him "hath everlasting life, and . . . is passed from death unto life."

Digitized by Google

Christian Scientists have learned that every person's experience tends to conform to the ideals which he has in mind. Therefore they are intent on having perfect ideals, and they are perhaps oftenest accused of inconsistency when they are most consistent in keeping these perfect ideals in view, however much they may seem to be contradicted by sense-testimony. Far from being an inconsequential affair, this practical and indomitable idealism has become to Christian Scientists the most effective means for bringing perfectly harmonious and eternal life into their experience, at least in proportion to their consecration and wisdom. And it will be a glad day for humanity when all doctors follow the example of Christ Jesus in having an ideal of perfect Life in place of euthanasia, and in healing disease through a large acquaintance with true spiritual health instead of seeking ever more intimate knowledge of disease. In that day doctors will heal sin and disease together, as Christian Science does now.

The arduous training of the physician outlined by our critic is more than matched by the lifelong endeavor of the faithful Christian Scientist to conform his every thought and act to the perfect standard of Christ Jesus. Physicians who have become Christian Scientists have found in Science and Health more about health than their study of disease ever had, or could have, revealed to them. In making the new-old gospel effective for healing the sick they find necessity for greater consecration of thought and purpose, more constant prayerfulness, and more loving consideration for their fellows than ever before.

Our medical critic states that he knows of a single case in which an invalid died when the surgeon "knew that life was but a matter of a few short hours without surgical aid," and attributes death to the invalid's preference for Christian Science to the operation which had already been prepared for. Knowing nothing of the facts except his statement, it may be pertinent to say that patients are often healed in Christian Science after every material remedy has failed. Christian Science inevitably prolongs life, and instead of laying the blame for this one death at its door the surgeon might profitably have refrained from being quite so sure that death would follow refusal to accept his particular treatment. Of surgical treatment it is well known that death sometimes follows quickly and in cases where every assurance is given that there is no danger. We need not go beyond our own state to find recent cases in which surgical operations on the tonsils and adenoids, and for other so-called minor ailments, have resulted fatally, contrary to all expectations. The doctors and relatives involved in these cases no doubt acted in good faith. Had their confidence been greater in another remedy they would have employed that one; and the best interests of humanity will be served by each system striving to merit popular confidence through clean, effective healing, instead of casting unnecessary aspersions at their competitors. Christian Science bears intelligent comparison with other systems of healing; careless criticism of it, grounded in entire ignorance of the subject, benefits no one.

✧

[S. T. Downs in The Huntington (Ind.) Herald]

It would be necessary for one to read dispassionately but a small portion of Mrs. Eddy's writings or the Christian Science periodicals to know that it is stated and restated on practically every page that the mission of Christian Science is to destroy sin. Therefore when a public speaker implies that Christian Science tries to argue against the necessity for the destruction of sin, as did a local evangelist, he shows that he is either guessing at what Christian Science teaches, or that he is accepting and repeating misinformation from others.

The Bible tells us that sin brought sickness and misery to mankind, and shows clearly that sin is not a part of God's creation; hence sin is unreal, untrue as a spiritual fact—a false belief of mortal mind, called the "carnal mind" by St. Paul. The Christian Science teaching of the unreality of sin has been construed by some to mean that sin should be ignored, while, as stated, the belief in sin must be destroyed. The writings of Mrs. Eddy bring to mankind an understanding of spiritual law that lifts human consciousness—possibly gradually, but surely—above the belief in and love of sin; and it is thus that the destruction of sin is accomplished.

Those who have not tested Christian Science for themselves may ask if this teaching is practical and if it is demonstrable, and the answer is that it is not only intensely practical but Christianly scientific, and hence provable. Multitudes have testified to its efficacy in the destruction of false appetite, dishonesty, and sin of every name and nature, and as a natural consequence there have been a like number of testimonies of the healing of every kind of physical disorder. Since sin causes sickness and disease, their destruction naturally follows the destruction of the cause.

✧

[W. D. Kilpatrick in Escanaba (Mich.) Mirror]

The evangelist recently holding meetings in Escanaba made it a part of his duties to attack Christian Science. His objections and observations, it may be noted, are ones which have been so often repeated and replied to that it would be difficult to plead any excuse for the misstatements incorporated in his attack. Just how he proposes to further the interest of Christianity and its message of brotherly love by his methods, he probably knows best.

The critic objects to the Christian Science teaching that heaven is not a locality but a divine state of Mind, probably forgetting Jesus' words, "The kingdom of God cometh not with observation: neither shall they say, Lo here! or, lo there! for, behold, the kingdom of God is within you." Christian Science does not teach that Jesus was God, nor does the Bible so teach; but Christian Science does teach that Jesus was the Son of God and that, as Mrs. Eddy says, the "Christ, or divinity of the man Jesus, was his divine nature, the godliness which animated him" (Science and Health, p. 26).

Christian Scientists believe implicitly in prayer,—in constant prayer, in prayer without ceasing; and they believe that sin and sickness are overcome in proportion to man's ability through prayer to conceive of these conditions as not of God and consequently without the reality which underlies the creation of Spirit, or God. The mission of Christian Science is to relieve the world of its sin, sickness, and misery of every name and nature, and to put in place thereof the better understanding of God and of man's true relation to Him. In accomplishing its purpose it has passed far beyond the stage where shallow and unchristianly criticism can impede its steady progress.

Nothing in the teachings of Christian Science warrants the assertion that Christian Scientists do not believe in marriage. Christian Science teaches the absolute necessity of purity of thought as an essential to spiritual growth, and those at all acquainted with Christian Science or Christian Scientists know that an atmosphere of impurity is something foreign to the teaching of their religion or their methods of living.

Christian Science teaches that God is infinite Person, but it does not personalize Him in a limited, humanly circumscribed sense. No authority can be found in the Bible for so conceiving of God, and Christian Scientists could hardly be criticized for thinking of God as Jesus described Him, that is, as Spirit. In defining God as infinite intelligence, or Mind,

Digitized by Google

Christian Science is in no way diverging from the Bible; and its conception of God as "Love" certainly finds authority in John's declaration that "God is love." The definition of God as Principle admits of no questioning from the standpoint of the Scriptures, for we find in the dictionary that Principle is "beginning; commencement; a source, or origin," which of course is according to the Bible definition of God. Attention to what Christian Science teaches would reveal the fact that it is in agreement with the Scriptures at every point.

✧

[Lloyd B. Coate in Salem (Ohio) News]

If the charge made by the reverend critic be true, that the teaching of Christian Science is opposed to God's Word, how are we to account for the fact that thousands of people who never before took any interest in the Bible, have become, after reading the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, Bible students and now love and revere the Bible? The good Book says, "A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit."

This critic claims that Christian Science denies the divinity of Jesus. Christian Science does not deify Jesus, but glorifies his name in accord with his own words as given in the seventeenth chapter of John's gospel. Jesus taught all mankind to worship not his personality but God. Speaking of Jesus' resurrection, Mrs. Eddy says that "the crucifixion of Jesus and his resurrection served to uplift faith to understand eternal Life, even the allness of Soul, Spirit, and the nothingness of matter" (Science and Health, p. 497).

As a result of Mrs. Eddy's teachings we have better citizens; students have an increased faith in God; a greater impetus is given to Bible study; a greater desire has been awakened to follow in the footsteps of Christ Jesus. The great Master said, "By their fruits ye shall know them." Since Mrs. Eddy's teaching leads mankind to God and the acceptance of Christianity, it cannot be opposed thereto.

✧

[From an editorial in The Record, Los Angeles, Cal.]

The Record, being fairly wise in its day and generation, has not lavishly used the publicity stuff sent out by various "benevolent" institutes, societies, associations, and clubs. We speak now of those much advertised associations that seek to advise the public in regard to its health, or that seek to prevent disease, or that desire to shoot us all full of serums and germs before we catch something. Somehow we always have had a mean suspicion that most of these associations were conducted largely for the benefit of certain doctors who seek a medical monopoly in this country. We are glad to discover our suspicions verified by a recent yellow circular from the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

This circular says that there is a national movement on foot to institute a National Medical Examination day for every person, sick or well. It is planned that at least once a year every person in this country be examined by a doctor, who will in nine cases out of ten find something wrong with the subject; and who better could be found to rectify the ailment than the examining doctor? The circular naively says: "Out of the thousands who have been examined and found to be impaired, only 10 per cent imagined there was anything wrong with them; the remaining 90 per cent supposed themselves perfectly well."

So once a year it is proposed to herd the people of this nation together for the members of the Medical Association to go over. . . . The cold fact is, that the medical schools of this country have been turning out tens of thousands of doctors for whom there were no patients. It has been increasingly difficult for a doctor to make a living from the normal supply of patients; so the start was made when by law school children were vaccinated, their tonsils excavated, their glands side-swiped, their ears drilled out, and their blessed little tummies thoroughly made over.

But even infantile paralysis fear waves, and epidemics of appendicitis—said being frequently merely constipation, and school clinics and health departments costing millions, could not provide enough jobs; and with the automobile, and some new mental creeds, and other revelations keeping the people disgustingly healthy, it becomes necessary not only more closely to watch and ward the public health by law, but to prevent by law any healer healing unless he is a "regular." The latest move in the big plot is to put every person in the nation under the direct power of the members of the American Medical Society, and this is a move that should be checked before it is too late. . . .

The circular closes by saying, "The best way to discover disease early is to have a periodic overhauling of your body at least once a year." . . . Let's have one week a year when everybody has to subscribe to at least six daily papers and pay for a year in advance. Isn't a newspaper as much of a necessity as a doctor? And since lawyers and writers and other professions do not have to compel folks by law to support them because they cannot make a living by their own efforts, why should a certain clique of a certain brand of medical theory—not science theory—be given this sort of a strangle hold? Nix on that annual examination thing; we have trouble enough now keeping in trim without combating half a million professional fear germs.

✧

[Robert S. Ross in Gloversville (N. Y.) Herald]

In reply to the criticism of an evangelist permit me to state: It is true that those who get an understanding of Christian Science lose the desire to pray as they once prayed, if they prayed at all, but they by no means lose the desire to pray. According to the old order, believers are taught to plead with God for blessings, while Christian Scientists are taught that God has already provided all good for them, and that all mankind need do, therefore, is to wake up and realize His all-power and ever-presence.

"God is Love," Mrs. Eddy writes on page 2 of Science and Health. "Can we ask Him to be more?" she continues. "God is intelligence. Can we inform the infinite Mind of anything He does not already comprehend? Do we expect to change perfection? Shall we plead for more at the open fount, which is pouring forth more than we accept? . . . Asking God to be God is a vain repetition. God is 'the same yesterday, and today, and forever;' and He who is immutably right will do right without being reminded of His province."

It is true also that those who get an understanding of Christian Science surrender the common belief that the crucifixion of Jesus in any way relieves them of the responsibility of working out their own salvation. Jesus was the Way-shower. We follow him only to the extent that we profit by the example he left us, and overcome error in our own lives. "His true flesh and blood were his Life," Mrs. Eddy writes on page 25 of Science and Health; "and they truly eat his flesh and drink his blood, who partake of that divine Life."

If there is one thing more than another that Christian Science is doing, it is freeing the human mind from the brood of time-honored superstitions that infest it and is putting Christianity on a reasonable, demonstrable basis. The people of the world have been taught to believe in God, but Christian Science teaches them how to know Him.

Digitized by Google

Editorial

Healing by Prayer

In her dedicatory sermon, delivered in The Mother Church, Jan. 6, 1895, Mrs. Eddy, speaking of Science and Health, said, "This book is the leaven fermenting religion; it is palpably working in the sermons, Sunday schools, and literature of our and other lands" (Pulpit and Press, p. 5). From time to time in the more than two decades since this statement was penned, fresh evidence of its truth has been presented, and in no wise is this more strikingly manifest than in the change which has taken place in the attitude not only of the general public, but also of religious and educational groups, toward the healing of the sick by prayer. Formerly it was almost universally believed and taught that the healing of sickness which comprised so great a part of Jesus' ministry was due to a power pertaining exclusively to himself and those few who came into personal contact with him, and upon whom he specifically conferred this power. This belief necessarily carried with it the further belief that the healing was miraculous, in the sense that this word is used to denote something not according to law,—something supernatural.

Of course this estimate of our Master's work was contrary to his own words, but this inconsistency either was not noted or else was not taken into account by those who recognized their inability to heal as Jesus and the early Christians had healed, and the conclusion was therefore reached that Christian healing was a closed dispensation. Jesus had said, "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father;" also, "These signs shall follow them that believe; In my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover;" but until Mrs. Eddy called attention to the true significance of these words, and demonstrated the truth of her interpretation of them, they were as a closed book. Commenting on the latter saying, Mrs. Eddy writes: "This is an unqualified statement of the duty and ability of Christians to heal the sick; and it contains no argument for a creed or doctrine, it implies no necessity beyond the understanding of God, and obedience to His government, that heals both mind and body" (Christian Healing, p. 7).

The new gospel which the Master taught was sufficiently striking in its departure from the teachings handed down from the time of Moses to bring the multitudes about him to listen, but it is at least an open question how lasting an impression would have been made had he not emphasized his teachings with the healing works. No argument could have been so convincing to John's messengers as what they witnessed "in that same hour," for we read that the great Teacher "cured many of their infirmities and plagues, and of evil spirits; and unto many that were blind he gave sight." Because in every age there are those eager to "hear some new thing," people flocked to listen to the new-old gospel which Mrs. Eddy preached, but it was not until she had proved indubitably that it was possible for every earnest student of her teachings to heal the sick, that the older churches awoke to the value and possibility of this work, and since then some of these churches have held classes for teaching the healing of the sick by prayer.

One of the most recent and one of the most important acknowledgments of the power of prayer to heal the sick comes to us from the University of St. Andrews, Scotland, in its notice issued last May inviting the submitting of essays on prayer, and offering a prize of one hundred pounds for the essay found to be "most widely helpful." The reason advanced for soliciting these essays is that "at this time of world tragedy the significance of prayer in daily life is everywhere becoming more widely recognized, and it is felt that the time may have come for gathering together a record of the thoughts of those who have realized its meaning and power and are willing to share their experiences with others." The scope of these essays is to include, "The meaning, the reality, and the power of prayer; its place and value to the individual, to the Church, and to the State: in the every-day affairs of life, in the healing of sickness and disease: in times of distress and of national danger, and in relation to national ideals and to world progress."

To Christian Scientists, prayer is, as some one has well said, "the Christian's vital breath," and the importance of obeying the command to "pray without ceasing" is well understood. That the use of prayer as Jesus used it for the healing of the sick is today more frequent and is entered upon with more expectancy of favorable results, is indeed something for which to be thankful; and as Mrs. Eddy's teachings on this subject become more widely known, their leavening qualities will be more clearly seen and be more gratefully noted and acknowledged.

Archibald McLellan.

Acquaintance with the Scriptures

In reading the gospels it is very interesting to note how thoroughly acquainted Christ Jesus was with the Scriptures of the Old Testament. What is more, it often happened that when he was confronted with what seemed very difficult problems, he answered his questioners, whether they were friendly inquirers or hostile critics, with some passage of Scripture which all the people claimed to accept. It is, moreover, deeply interesting to observe that he "plunged beneath the material surface of things, and found the spiritual cause," as Mrs. Eddy tells us on page 313 of Science and Health. In other words, he seldom took the accepted and usually material sense of the Scripture to which he referred, but found its spiritual and metaphysical meaning, and thus gave to every unbiased thinker a nobler outlook upon the human problem involved.

When the Sadducees came to ask him what he believed about the future life, and presented the case of a woman who had had seven husbands, he answered them by saying, "Ye do err, not knowing the scriptures, nor the power of God." Now, there was nothing in the Old Testament which dealt specifically with such a case as the one presented, namely, which husband such a woman would have in the future life, and yet the Master held them firmly to the Scripture statement found in the third chapter of Exodus, and gave his own interpretation of it in these words: "He [God] is not a God of the dead, but of the living: for all live unto him." On many other occasions his profound acquaintance with the Scriptures furnished him with the needed defensive argument when he was assailed by the materialistic thought of those who claimed to be deeply religious people; and at one time he intimated that while they searched the Scriptures thinking that in them they would find eternal life, yet he added, "Ye will not come to me, that ye might have life."

This of course applies to the many today who claim to accept the Scriptures as a whole, especially the New Testament, and yet who refuse to seek life in the Christ way,—in the way which is not only pointed out all through Mrs. Eddy's teachings, but which has been found by unnumbered thousands as the way of health, holiness, and happiness. Nay more, how many are there outside of Christian Science who at all admit the only kind of life which the great Teacher presented, namely eternal life, the unbroken consciousness of being as the expression of God, forever with us, reflected in the immortal qualities of the Christ-idea.

Digitized by Google

Christian Scientists may well ask themselves whether they deserve the criticism passed by the Master when he said, "Ye do err, not knowing the scriptures, nor the power of God." They do undoubtedly "search the scriptures," and the impelling motive is that they may know more about the power of God to overcome everything on the human plane which is unlike Him. They should, however, often question themselves whether this study is followed with the same devotion which would be required in pursuing any branch of physical science. No one would suppose for a moment that a mere smattering or superficial knowledge of a subject along this line would fit one for demonstrating its rule, and yet people are sometimes tempted to believe that this is sufficient when it comes to a demonstration of the Science of being,—a mistake which is far more serious than one would be on the plane of material sense.

The writer remembers a night spent in prayer and Scripture study when a case of healing appeared to be at a standstill, but the right word was found in the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth verses of the eleventh chapter of Mark's gospel. It was not enough merely to read them,—the mortal sense which resisted the spiritual demand, on the part of patient and practitioner, had to be uncovered and overthrown, and as this was done the mountain of sickness and fear was "cast into the sea." We cannot too often remind ourselves of the first tenet of our church, as given on page 497 of our textbook, namely, "As adherents of Truth, we take the inspired Word of the Bible as our sufficient guide to eternal Life."

ANNIE M. KNOTT.

✧

Humor

IN one of Emerson's fables the squirrel is made to say to the mountain, "If I cannot carry forests on my back, neither can you crack a nut." This little mite of a creature is represented as maintaining its intelligent individuality in the face of the mountain's great bulk, and the juxtaposition of these two wholly dissimilar bodies furnishes an example of humor which justly brings a smile. The Christian who cannot take a joke is in need of spiritual help, for human experience is full of the most ridiculous pretensions on the part of evil which should be promptly laughed out of court. What, for instance, could be more preposterous than the attempts of error to substitute itself for truth, to prove itself to be something when it is really nothing; what more laughable than its apelike mimicry of the qualities of good? Every Christian Science practitioner knows the healing value of not taking sickness at its own valuation. Evil asks nothing better than to be taken seriously, whereas it is invariably illogical, futile, and foolish, because outside the precincts of reality.

Genuine humor always has a touch of kindliness, which is another way of saying that it is akin to love and happiness, and so tends to destroy fear. It is noticeable that races which have this saving grace of humor, though they may not have reached a high state of intellectual development, do not disappear before so-called superior races, but find a place for themselves under the sun. Nations which can take their misfortunes humorously do not go down before those who hate, but rather follow a spiritual law of the "survival of the fittest."

The writings of the Discoverer of Christian Science are marked by an underlying kindliness which is not incompatible with humor and is closely allied with happiness. Indeed Mrs. Eddy, with the unerring touch of the true metaphysician, dared to coin a word which humanity sorely needed and the dictionary failed to supply,—the word "happify." On pages 57 and 58 of Science and Health we read, "To happify existence by constant intercourse with those adapted to elevate it, should be the motive of society. Unity of spirit gives new pinions to joy, or else joy's drooping wings trail in dust." One wonders that this precious word, "happify," has not long since found an abiding place in the language of true religion.

Contrary to certain strange notions which have prevailed about religion, Christian Science emphasizes the happifying influence of Christianity when scientifically understood. Under its benign influence youth need not fade into ugliness, but may shine forth perpetually in the lives of those who have learned to love evermore. We read in the Preface of "Miscellaneous Writings," "Truly may it be said: There is an old age of the heart, and a youth that never grows old; a Love that is a boy, and a Psyche who is ever a girl" (p. ix). The pink freshness and springtime spontaneity of some little shepherdess in Dresden china and the "little boy blue" blowing his horn through a nursery rhyme are but symbols of charming right ideas. It should not be forgotten that in Zechariah's vision of the restoration of Jerusalem he prophesied, "And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof." If a heavenly Father-Mother protects and cherishes, should not the children play? Christian Science does not make of Jack a dull boy because of all work and no play.

The meadows and pastures, the waters of brook or sea, the growing corn with "first the blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear," the trees of the forest, the birds of the air, the tinted morning glory, and the sweet wild rose, they all may bring some inmost meanings to the attentive ear of spiritual understanding. As they typify, so they happify. Glad surprises are constantly held in readiness for "the poor in spirit," the meek and hungry, the receptive among God's little ones, who take no pride in mere solemnity. It takes a scientifically trained Christian justly to appreciate the metaphysical humor of the squirrel's encounter with the mountain, to sound this tiny idea's tremendous declaration of rights whereby each of the infinite number of ideas constituting the universe is entitled to live, move, and have its being in the infinite Mind.

WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN.

✧ ✧ ✧

Among the Churches

Current Notes

WALLA WALLA, WASH.—Christian Science services are held every Sunday in the Washington State Penitentiary under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist, and are supported by the churches and societies of the state of Washington and by individuals interested in the work. The average attendance has been one hundred and eighty-four men. At the Thanksgiving service, which was held in the chapel in the early afternoon, there were present nine women, twenty townspeople, and two hundred and fifty-eight men. Ten copies of the Sentinel, 8 Journals, 4 Heralds, and 56 Monitors are listed and put on routes till all who wish to read them have had a chance to do so. There is a large class of men who are reading the literature but do not yet attend the services.

Digitized by Google

DURBAN, NATAL, SOUTH AFRICA.—The sale of literature for the year ended Oct. 31, 1916, has exceeded all previous records in the history of our organization, and the demand continues to increase. It is interesting to note that the public are beginning to support The Christian Science Monitor, of which six copies are now being sold weekly. New subscribers have also been added to the list. The lending library has been freely used, and at times the supply of copies of the text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, has been insufficient to meet the demand. The number of copies of the different works in the library now are: 22 of Science and Health, 29 of Mrs. Eddy's other works, and 6 of "The Life of Mary Baker Eddy" by Sibyl Wilbur. The Sunday school has progressed steadily, the number of scholars attending being greater than in any previous year.

The public libraries of Pietermaritzburg, Dundee, Estcourt, and Pinetown have through their secretaries accepted gifts of Mrs. Eddy's works, and in some cases the periodicals also. The attacks on Christian Science and the adverse criticisms which have been published, have been mainly from a religious and theological source. Twelve answers in all from the committee on publication have been printed in the Natal Mercury, the Natal Witness, and the Times of Natal. During the year there has been an increase of twelve in the number of institutions and stores regularly receiving Christian Science literature. The list now totals thirty-seven, and includes public institutions, police and fire stations, prison, Salvation Army Social Farm, tea rooms and hair dressing saloons, hotels and railway stations, troops on active service in East Africa. Copies of Science and Health have also been presented to the Durban Women's Home and the Durban Men's Home.

EXETER, ENGLAND.—During the year 1916 there were distributed by this society 4404 pieces of Christian Science literature, comprising 600 Sentinels, 108 Journals, 3496 Monitors, and 200 pamphlets. They were delivered at the various military hospitals, police stations, cab stands, barracks, clubs, railway stations, and other places, where they were readily accepted, also appreciated.

MESA, ARIZ.—The dedication of the new home of the Christian Science Society last evening [Feb. 4] was attended by a large number of people. This home is a very attractive one, located in a convenient part of the city. The first society was organized in Mesa Feb. 1, 1908, and continued for about two years. It was reorganized in 1913 and met at the Palm House for several months, then moved to the K. P. Hall and held services there until the completion of the new home. The first service in the new building was held on Oct. 29, 1916.—Mesa Tribune.

✧

Admission to Membership in The Mother Church

The next admission of candidates will be June 1, 1917. Application blanks may be obtained by addressing the Clerk of The Mother Church, and should be returned to him on or before Wednesday, May 9, 1917.

An application sent to the Clerk does not constitute the applicant a member. Notice of election will be sent to those who are admitted to membership.

Those who have made application for membership prior to Nov. 3, 1916, and have not received notice of election, may communicate with the Clerk if they so desire, and are especially requested to do so before sending in a second application.

JOHN V. DITTEMORE, Clerk,
286 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

The Lectures

SILVER CREEK, N. Y. (Society).—John Randall Dunn, lecturer; introduced by Lester D. Ehmke, who said in part:—

It is now generally acknowledged that human wisdom and diplomacy of themselves are not equal to the task of destroying mortal hate and fear; for whenever God and the brotherhood of man are ignored, peace and health are invariably sacrificed. Christian Science, on the other hand, makes the love for God and man so vital to one's daily life that he feels no security when living in disobedience to divine law. It does not, however, seek to be judged solely by its teachings, but rather according to the consummate test, What is it doing for mankind?

CAPE TOWN, CAPE COLONY, SOUTH AFRICA (First Church).—Clarence W. Chadwick, lecturer; introduced by the Honorable Mrs. Hay, who said in part:—

Nothing that is true can be new, for all of truth is and always has been ever present; but man's consciousness needs to be aroused in order to be able to discern it and to understand how to apply it. This is what Christian Science is doing for the world today; it is showing us how it is possible for us to open our hearts to receive the things of infinite good and to make them practical in our daily experiences.

VANCOUVER, B. C., CANADA (First Church).—Paul Stark Seeley, lecturer; introduced by William H. George, who said in part:—

Christian Scientists have become such only because they have found a demonstrable, satisfying understanding of God in this teaching which has been their help in time of trouble. Our greatest need is really to acquaint ourselves with God. There is a human yearning, a hungering however faint in the consciousness of each one, to know God. This is not surprising, for the Bible records God as saying, "Look unto me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth: for I am God, and there is none else." What do we need to be saved from if God is All and there is none else beside Him? Only from ignorance of God and the effects of that ignorance. Since God is All-in-all, He must be the very source of wisdom, intelligence, health, strength, and life. Jesus the Christ summed up the result of really knowing God in these words: "This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent." Christian Science is acquainting its adherents with God by giving them a provable understanding of Him; and because of this it may rightly be called the grandest discovery of modern times.

The Vancouver Sun.

FORT WAYNE, IND. (First Church).—Willis F. Gross, lecturer; introduced by Alton H. Perkins, who said in part:—

In reply to the question of the Pharisee as to which was the great commandment in the law, Jesus said: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets." This answer of Christ Jesus would indicate that the whole purpose of the Bible was and is to teach men how to love truly.

Christian Scientists, through the understanding that Christian Science has given them, are accepting this rule or law of love as the only practical philosophy of life, and they are joyfully learning to apply it to every department of human activity. The sick are being healed; home is becoming happier; social relationships are growing more kindly, sincere, and dignified; business is conducted with greater ease and success, and public service has come to mean what the name implies. And so as Christian Scientists have stepped from the kingdom of selfishness into the kingdom of service, they have visioned a new race,—healed, ennobled, unified, and redeemed through that Mind which was in Christ Jesus.

Digitized by Google

Journal-Gazette.

URBANA, ILL. (Society).—Dr. Walton Hubbard, lecturer; introduced by the Rev. Frank D. Adams, pastor Universalist church, who said in part:—

The faith and philosophy of Christian Science is meeting a need in some of our neighbors or it would not be here. That is the simplest of spiritual axioms. As Emerson said of himself, "The fact that I am here proves that the Great Soul had need of an organ here." It may well be true that the established churches could have met that need. Personally I believe they could; for they are Christian churches. But they evidently did not meet it; so this faith came to join its ministry with theirs, therefore Christian Science has no apology to make for its being here. Possibly the rest of us ought to apologize for making it necessary for it to come.

FAIRFIELD, IOWA (First Church).—Virgil O. Strickler, lecturer; introduced by Rollin J. Wilson, who said in part:—

Sooner or later there comes to every one a sincere desire to know God aright, and to experience in the here and now, as well as in the hereafter, the freedom of existence which that knowledge and conformity thereto alone confirm. At no time within the Christian era have men and nations, individually and collectively, stood in greater need of the prevalence of that knowledge and the freedom of existence resultant from true conformity to the truth. Christian Science would seem to hold that the fulfilment of sincere desire unto freedom of existence is the complete restoration of primitive Christianity.—The Fairfield Tribune.

✧

Lectures to be Delivered

[By Members of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.]

ARIZONA—Nogales (auspices Tucson): George Shaw Cook, High School Auditorium, 8:15 p.m., March 26.
Tucson: George Shaw Cook, Tucson Woman's Club, 8 p.m., March 27.

CALIFORNIA—Sacramento (First Church): John W. Doorly, Tuesday Club House, Twenty-eighth and L Streets, 8 p.m., March 30.

CANADA—Montreal, Province of Quebec: Virgil O. Strickler, Windsor Hall, Windsor Hotel, 8:15 p.m., March 27.

ENGLAND—Bournemouth, Hampshire: John Sidney Braithwaite, King's Hall, Royal Bath Hotel, 3 p.m., April 12.
St. Albans, Hertfordshire: John Sidney Braithwaite, The Hall, 20 London Road, 8:15 p.m., March 26.

GEORGIA—Augusta: Charles I. Ohrenstein, The New Mojeska Theater, 3:30 p.m., March 25.

ILLINOIS—Champaign (First Church): Clarence W. Chadwick, Sunday afternoon, March 25.
Chicago (Twelfth Church): John Randall Dunn, Le Moyne School Auditorium, Waveland Avenue and Rokeby Street, 8 p.m., March 27.
Monmouth: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, New City Hall, North Main Street, 8 p.m., March 27.
Oak Park: John W. Doorly, Church Edifice, Oak Park Avenue and Ontario Street, 8 p.m., March 24.
Shelbyville: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Yale Theater, 8 p.m., March 30.

INDIANA—Crown Point: Clarence W. Chadwick, Central Music Hall, 8 p.m., March 26.

IOWA—Des Moines (Second Church): Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Auditorium, 8:15 p.m., March 26.
Fort Dodge: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Strand Theater, 912 Central Avenue, 8 p.m., March 29.

KANSAS—Garden City: William W. Porter, Stevens Opera House, 8:30 p.m., March 27.
Great Bend: William W. Porter, Regent Theater, 8 p.m., March 26.
Hutchinson: William W. Porter, De Luxe Theater, 3 p.m., March 25.
Wichita: William W. Porter, Church Edifice, 828 North Lawrence Avenue, 8:15 p.m., March 23.

MARYLAND—Baltimore (First Church): Virgil O. Strickler, Garden Theater, Lexington Street, near Park Avenue, 3:30 p.m., March 25.

MASSACHUSETTS—Greenfield: Bicknell Young, Victoria Theater, 19 Chapman Street, 3 p.m., March 25.
Northampton: Bicknell Young, Academy of Music, 8 p.m., March 25.

MINNESOTA—Fergus Falls: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Lyceum Theater, 8:15 p.m., March 27.
Minneapolis (Third Church): John Randall Dunn, Church Edifice, West Lake Street and Holmes Avenue, 3:30 p.m., March 25, and 8 p.m., March 26.
Montevideo: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Montevideo Opera House, 8:15 p.m., March 30.
St. Paul: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Church Edifice, Summit Avenue and Grotto Street, 8 p.m., March 23 and 24, and 3:30 p.m., March 25.

MISSOURI—Brookfield: William R. Rathvon, De Graw Theater, 3 p.m., March 18.

NEW JERSEY—Asbury Park (Society): Bliss Knapp, Armory, Lake Avenue and Bond Street, 3:15 p.m., March 18.
Weehawken: Bicknell Young, Union Hill High School, 8:15 p.m., March 29.

NEW YORK—Jamestown: John Randall Dunn, Samuel's Opera House, 8 p.m., March 29.
New York (First Church): Bicknell Young, Church Edifice, Central Park West and Ninety-sixth Street, 8 p.m., March 26 and 27.
Potsdam: Virgil O. Strickler, Opera House, 8 p.m., March 26.
Tonawanda: Virgil O. Strickler, Y. M. C. A. Auditorium, 8 p.m., March 19.
Troy: Bliss Knapp, Griswold Opera House, 3:30 p.m., March 25.
Yonkers (Second Church): John W. Doorly, Fernbrook Hall, Laurence Street, 8:15 p.m., March 22.

NORTH CAROLINA—Charlotte: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Academy of Music, 8:30 p.m., March 26.
Greensboro: Charles I. Ohrenstein, The Municipal Theater, 8 p.m., March 29.
Wilmington: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Academy of Music, 8:30 p.m., March 27.

NORTH DAKOTA—Ellendale: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, I. O. O. F. Auditorium, Main Street, 8 p.m., March 23.

OHIO—Chillicothe: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Elks Hall, 42 West Second, 8 p.m., March 29.

OREGON—Portland (First Church): Paul Stark Seeley, Church Edifice, Everett Street, between Eighteenth and Nineteenth Streets, 8 p.m., March 29 and 30, and 3 p.m., April 1.
Salem: Paul Stark Seeley, Opera House, 3 p.m., March 25.

PENNSYLVANIA—Philadelphia (First Church): Frank Bell, Church Edifice, Walnut Street, west of Fortieth, 3:30 p.m., March 25, and 8 p.m., March 26.
Pittsburgh (First Church): Ezra W. Palmer, Soldiers Memorial Hall, Fifth Avenue and Grant Boulevard, 3 p.m., March 25.

RHODE ISLAND—Providence: John W. Doorly, Church Edifice, Prospect and Meeting Streets, 8 p.m., March 19 and 20.

SOUTH CAROLINA—Charleston: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Seigling Recital Hall, 8 p.m., March 24.

SOUTH DAKOTA—Sioux Falls: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Colonial Theater, 4 p.m., March 25.
Watertown: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Church Edifice, Maple Street and First Avenue, S.E., 8 p.m., March 26.

TEXAS—Paris: George Shaw Cook, Elks Building, Grand Avenue and Nineteenth Street, 8 p.m., March 30.

VIRGINIA—Richmond: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Academy of Music, 8:30 p.m., March 30.

WISCONSIN—Madison (Society of University of Wisconsin): Virgil O. Strickler, Woman's Building, 8 p.m., March 29.
New London: Virgil O. Strickler, Grand Opera House, 8 p.m., March 30.

Digitized by Google

Testimonies of Healing

I have been in Christian Science over seven years. For twenty years I had been sick with organic heart trouble, malaria, catarrh, and minor ailments, and the doctors said I would never be well. While I was visiting my mother at Scranton a Christian Scientist loaned me Science and Health, and through reading it I was entirely healed of every ailment in a few months. My husband has been healed of rheumatism and bronchial trouble.

We are very thankful for the healing of our little son when he was five years old. While my husband and I were away from home the boy was taken down with what is called "black diphtheria." We were sent for, and when I saw the boy I knew by past experience (as two children had passed on with the same illness) that from a material point of view there was no hope, so we telephoned to a Christian Science practitioner. We were advised to send for a doctor in order to comply with the law, and we did so. When the physician arrived he said it was a very bad case and administered antitoxin, saying there would be no results from it for at least twelve hours.

The practitioner arrived just after the doctor left, and began treatment, but at about sunrise to material sense the boy was dying. The practitioner told us to have no fear, but to hold to the truth. Up to this time the child had been breathing with great effort, but now he stopped, opened his eyes, and turned on his side. The doctor came in and my husband informed him that the crisis was over. The physician showed surprise and said that the antitoxin did not take effect so soon, and he sat there waiting for the boy to pass on, but instead the child was getting better. He continued to improve for a few days, then had a hemorrhage. It seemed necessary to send for the doctor, but I also telephoned to the practitioner. The doctor tried to check the hemorrhage but could not, so telephoned for a specialist. The bleeding had then continued about three hours. We again telephoned the practitioner that the child was no better, but she spoke very encouragingly, telling us not to fear, and in about twenty minutes, and before the other physician had arrived, the flow of blood stopped. No one knows how thankful we were for these demonstrations.

Later, paralysis in its worst form developed, and the physician said nothing could be done for the child. He could not swallow or talk, could not take even liquid nourishment. The doctor said this condition would be very slow in yielding, but two days later the boy was able to swallow with ease. The physician called occasionally to see how he was getting on, for three months, but the only medicine the child took was half a tablet which the doctor gave him at the beginning of the illness. He knew we were Christian Scientists, and after seeing how every difficulty was overcome, he did not offer any more drugs. He said so severe a case always left some trouble, but the boy is in perfect health. We are very thankful to God for Christian Science.

KATE A. DEVINE, Woodcliff-on-Hudson, N. J.

✧

Deep gratitude impels me to tell what Christian Science has done for me. When I turned to it a few years ago I was suffering from what the doctors called congestion of the blood, rheumatism, nervous trouble, and severe headaches, but with the help of a practitioner in a short time I was restored to perfect health. At the last treatment glasses which had been worn for two years were laid aside.

Since then a paralyzed condition was overcome in a few days. I have also experienced an instantaneous healing of an injured finger. Although it was badly crushed, so that the bone was splintered, there was no sense of pain. I immediately applied the truth as taught in Christian Science, with the result that in a little while the finger was normal in size and in a few days it was completely healed. For this experience I am exceedingly grateful, as it proved to me the ever-presence and power of God. My health is now better than ever before. Divine Love has since been and always will be my only physician.

I am grateful for the physical healing, but still more for the spiritual uplift, for the peace of mind that indeed "passeth all understanding." I am deeply grateful to our Leader, who has revealed this truth to all mankind, and I hope to live each day as one should live who professes to be a Christian Scientist.—MARY HERB, Philadelphia, Pa.

✧

[Translated from the German]

Having long remained silent, I feel compelled to testify to the blessings which I have received through Christian Science. In 1910 I was taken ill with rheumatism, and after seven weeks' treatment at the hospital was dismissed with a stiff elbow joint. I was unable to work and constantly suffered great pain. After two years of unsuccessful treatment with steam and mechanical motion, an operation was suggested as the proper means of obviating the trouble. The operation brought no improvement, however, but instead there was atrophy of the muscles in the hand, which became entirely numb and void of sensation. Massage was resorted to, as well as electrical treatment, but it was all of no avail. Finally, after having become a cripple, I was told that I must accept the situation.

Through a lady with whom I was acquainted my attention was then called to Christian Science, and as one who is drowning will catch at anything, so did I grasp this teaching. I applied to a practitioner, who gave me treatment, and the feeling returned to my arm within a short time. I began to work with that hand as formerly, and how grateful and happy I was for this result, and for having found Christian Science, which has brought me so much good! In March, 1916, I was taken severely ill with catarrh of the lungs, as stated by the physician whom I had to call in. I made no use of the medical prescriptions, but notified a Christian Science practitioner, who lovingly took up treatment. Within a short time I was able to leave my bed, and am feeling quite well. I am thankful for the benefits which our heavenly Father has bestowed upon us, and gratefully remember our Leader, Mrs. Eddy, who has done so much for mankind.—FRAU ANNA HOFFMANN, Berlin, Germany.

✧

Nine years ago my wife and I were asked to read and study Science and Health, that we might help the work of a practitioner who had been asked to treat one of our relatives. Since all things else had failed, we gladly entered into it, with no other motive than to help this brother, and without realizing the great change which was taking place in our own consciousness until after about a year of earnest study and regular attendance at church services.

I had been considered frail from birth, and as I grew to manhood was sick a great deal; but after beginning the study of Christian Science I soon discovered that chronic headaches and bowel trouble had disappeared. One day in helping to lower a heavy case my little finger was almost torn off at the first joint. Every one in the warehouse wanted to send for a doctor, but I went directly to a Christian Science practitioner, who gave me treatment, and then home. My wife dressed the finger, and in two hours I was back at work. There was never any pain or swelling, and in a month the finger was perfectly healed.

Digitized by Google

Several years after this, while traveling, my lungs became so sore that it was difficult for me to breathe; but I managed to reach home, and then telephoned to a practitioner for help. Within a few days I was free from the pain, but what is known as lung trouble had developed. I worked every day, but members of my family who were not Scientists were so worried they begged me to go West. I however knew that God was my only salvation from sickness and all sin, so continued to have Christian Science treatment. Although my business associates gave me just six months to live, in three months I was entirely healed without having missed a day from my work.

Over two years ago I seemed on the verge of a nervous breakdown, and although Christian Science treatment was given me, I grew worse until I was unfit for work. As nearly four months had passed since I began treatments, and by this time I knew practically nothing that was going on, my wife changed practitioners. My relatives were nearly frantic over my condition, and it was decided to allow them to call a specialist for examination and diagnosis of the case. The specialist pronounced it insanity of a type that has never been healed by medical treatment. A blood test was taken, which confirmed the verdict. One of the relatives then sought another specialist, who assured him that he had an entirely new treatment which he was trying at his sanitarium. He said that at the end of eight weeks' treatment I would either be well or would have to be sent to the state hospital for the insane. It was deemed best to satisfy mortal mind in this way, so as a last resort I went to the sanitarium and Christian Science treatment was discontinued. At the end of the prescribed time, as I was still apparently hopelessly ill, one of the relatives asked my wife if she would be willing to take me from the sanitarium and have Christian Science treatment for me. My brave and faithful wife at once took me to the home of a loving sister who was a Christian Scientist, and asked the last practitioner to resume the work. It sometimes seemed a hard fight, on account of the manifold phases this error assumes, but at the end of six weeks after leaving the sanitarium I was entirely healed and ready to stand a living testimony to the efficacy of Christian Science to heal every discordant condition.

When I called to see the manager of the business with which I had been connected for years, he confessed surprise and said he had never expected me back again. He also said he had filled my position; but I knew that man is always in his right place and that God is his true employer, and in two weeks I was back at work. To say that I am filled with overflowing love to God, and with gratitude to our beloved Leader, is inadequate to express my feeling. I can truly say that for every bitter fight and tribulation I glorify God each hour of the day. I feel that I have been raised from worse than death, and that every trial has been a waymark to eternal life here and now.

RALPH C. TRUITT, Kansas City, Mo.

I wish to add to the foregoing testimony a word of gratitude. Though sometimes the evidence of the senses was far from assuring, I never for one instant doubted that the power of God could and would be demonstrated through Christian Science treatment and the healing ultimately accomplished. As my husband was unable to work for six months, there were many laws of financial limitation, but these were all broken and he has a better position than ever before. For four months I had to be separated from our two little girls. This in itself at one time would have been a great trial, but I knew that my place was with my husband, and I not only overcame all sense of unhappiness because of the absence of the children, but at no time had any fear for myself in being with my husband, knowing that I was divinely protected and cared for every moment. My husband quite frequently meets in a business way the examining specialist who pronounced him incurably insane, and who again examined him the day he left the sanitarium. He never fails to tell my husband how glad he is to see him well.

The children have never taken any medicine. They have passed through the experiences of measles, mumps, whooping-cough, chicken-pox, and many minor ailments, but through Christian Science have been quickly healed, with no bad after effects. I myself have not only been wonderfully benefited physically, but many faults of disposition have been corrected. I have learned that the spiritual healing is priceless, and is in fact the only real and true healing. I appreciate more and more every day what our Leader has so lovingly done for us all and made it possible for us to do, and am truly grateful for the knowledge that God is Love.—MARY E. TRUITT.

✧

I am deeply grateful for the spiritual understanding gained from a study of the Bible and Science and Health, and for the many blessings received since coming into Science. Six years ago my leg was broken, and after it had been in a cast for six weeks the doctors found it was an inch and a half short, so they broke it again in the hope of getting it to knit so that it would be like the other. This it refused to do, and when the doctors saw they could do nothing for me, they said I would be lame for life. Although I was under Christian Science treatment, I suffered continually, but I persevered and in about two months was able to walk. I was a trifle lame at first, but the lameness has all disappeared. About two years ago I was healed of a throat affection from which I had suffered every winter. My brother at the age of sixteen became paralyzed on the left side, so that his arm, his leg, and the muscles of his face were affected. A Christian Science practitioner gave him treatment, and in about six weeks the condition was overcome. He is now a strong, healthy young man.

My daily prayer is to have the Mind which was in Christ Jesus, that I may bring others into this truth. I am more than thankful for the understanding I have of God, and am grateful to our Leader, Mrs. Eddy. Two brothers and myself were brought up in this wonderful truth, and it is seventeen years since any one of us has taken a drop of medicine.

WALTER MANTEY, Milwaukee, Wis.

✧

For about ten years I have been studying Christian Science, and often the thought has come to send my thanks to the Sentinel, but each time error has said that I needed something big, something definite to speak of. I did not come to Science for healing; in fact did not know how much it was needed. A friend took me to a Wednesday evening meeting, and during the service I experienced a great sense of peace, for which I was indeed grateful, being storm tossed at the time. After that not a mid-week service was missed, and a year later I began to attend the Sunday services, finding they gave me much more help than those of the church which I had been attending.

About four years ago I was healed by Christian Science treatment of poisoning in both hands. Circumstances were so difficult at the time that I was most impatient, and this retarded the healing; but as soon as I was able to be more grateful and try to see what could be learned through the experience, the healing came, and with it greater patience and gratitude. My healing seemed slow, about six months elapsing before it was complete, but when compared with that of a relative who was suffering from the same condition, it was quick. This relative was quite incapacitated for a year, although a doctor was in almost daily attendance.

Digitized by Google

The condition manifested itself at the busiest time of the year for my work, but whenever I needed something done which was more than usually difficult, some one always offered to do it. For this added proof of Love's protection and care I was most grateful. I did not lose an hour from my work, although during the whole time I was unable to dress myself.

I am most grateful for our literature, especially the Monitor, which is very helpful. Gratitude to Mrs. Eddy can only be expressed by endeavoring to live and work faithfully, according to one's highest understanding of Christian Science.

Lilian A. Blacklock, Chelsea S.W., London, England.

✧

My heart is filled with thankfulness to God for all that has been done for me in Christian Science. I used to have colds and throat trouble from the beginning of winter to the end. Now I am very seldom troubled in this way, and when I am the difficulty is quickly overcome.

Deep gratitude is felt for the healing and spiritual uplift which came to me at the birth of my last child. I was sick two hours, but held to the truth all the time and never had so many beautiful thoughts as came to me during that experience. I knew that every declaration of truth the practitioner made was healing me of just that much error, which must be destroyed at one time or another. I was able to go to church when the baby was a week old and have missed only one or two services since. I was almost entirely healed of a great sense of hurry and impatience, which would often result in my being very nervous, and was shown that God gives us all things good, plenty of time to do our mental work, and that each day's supply of strength and love comes with that day. I am beginning to have in some measure that peace "which passeth all understanding."

I can never tell half of what Christian Science has done for me; and my love for Mrs. Eddy, who was pure enough to hear the silent voice of Truth, can be proved only by loving God above every one and my neighbor as myself. I never was so well and happy in my life, and have cause every day to be more grateful to Christian Science.

Lillian J. Hathaway, Chicago, Ill.

✧

It is about nine years since I was led to the truth and healed of what is known as lung trouble in its worst form, after I had been given up by our physician, who told my wife that I could last but a few weeks. Christian Science was brought to my notice, but at first I refused to have anything to do with it. I was finally persuaded to attend a Wednesday evening meeting, but was not much impressed by it. Soon afterward, however, a copy of the Sentinel was handed me, and after reading it through I became so interested that instead of not wanting to attend the service I offered to accompany my wife on the following Wednesday evening if she wished to go. We went, and the truth was surely brought to me. I then applied to a practitioner for help, and through her clear knowledge of the truth I was healed. I have been able to overcome many errors since. The tobacco habit, which had been with me since I was seven years old, left without any apparent effort on my part.

On the last day of the year 1914 I fell downstairs while carrying part of a press weighing about two hundred pounds. I landed on the ground sixteen steps below, breaking through the last three steps. Thanks to the power of Truth I received only a slight bruise on the elbow of my left arm, although I was unconscious for a few minutes and was doubled up under the heavy iron. I felt no ill effect from the fall, and had the stairs repaired and the press in the new shop before two hours had passed. I have been healed of acute throat trouble instantaneously, also of a severe cut across the left knee, which almost exposed the bone. Two hours after this accident I went across the bay to San Francisco to visit friends. No ill effects were experienced either then or afterward.

I thank God for all the blessings I have received, and am very grateful to our Leader, Mrs. Eddy, for the path she has pointed out to us. I am also grateful to all those who have helped me on my journey from sense to Soul. My greatest hope is that I shall continue in the light and be able to lead others into the truth. God is keeping me in health and strength and supplying my every need, giving me that spiritual uplift I never had before.

V. M. Green, Oakland, Cal.

✧

It gives me great joy to write this testimony of my gratitude. In February, 1915, I was taken with great pain in the abdomen, and swelling set in accompanied by high fever. I was in and out of bed for days, was scarcely able to walk, and at last got so bad that my husband insisted on my seeing a doctor. The physician said I had two abnormal growths, with an abscess forming; also that a rupture left from an operation several years before was pressing on the bowels, and that an immediate operation was necessary. I asked him for something to relieve the pain, as I was in such misery, but he said medicine would do no good.

I went home to talk the matter over with my husband, and we both dreaded the operation. Then suddenly the thought came to me to try Christian Science, in which I had been interested years before but which had not been thought of for some time. About two blocks up the street was a reading-room, and very painfully I dragged myself there that night about half past seven. I told the attendant of my condition and what the doctor had said, and her reply was, "God, divine Truth, can dissolve tumors, and He will heal you." She loaned me a copy of Science and Health, also a Journal from which I could choose a practitioner. It was nine o'clock when I reached home, but I read until one o'clock, then went to bed and had the first good night's sleep in a week and a half. The next day I went to see a practitioner, and after several treatments began to get better. By the tenth of March, when I left Chicago to go to the country, the healing was complete.

I am thankful to God for Christian Science, and grateful to our Leader, Mrs. Eddy. Many blessings have been received since my first healing, and I am striving to have my daily life express my gratitude. My health has never been better.—Agnes Schram, Coloma, Mich.

✧

When about to board a car on a busy thoroughfare, I was run over by a heavy touring car, which passed directly over the middle of my body. I was taken into a near-by establishment and my head, which was cut and bleeding, was bound up. I was perfectly calm, and requested that I be taken to my home in East Cleveland, eight miles away. I also gave our telephone number, so that my daughter and her husband might be informed that I needed help.

The message was received by my son-in-law just as they were about to start for evening service, and he answered that everything would be taken care of. Christian Science treatment was given me at once. I was taken home in the automobile which had run over me, but even before the long, slow ride was over I knew I was having help. I had been scarcely able to breathe and the pain was extreme, but I began to breathe more easily. When I reached home the practitioner was informed that the pain was severe, and in half an hour it had all disappeared. My injuries were considered very serious, but my recovery was rapid and wonderful, so that in twelve days I was back at my office.

Digitized by Google

The morning after the accident, among the many telephone calls was one from a business man, an entire stranger to me, who said to my daughter: "I saw the whole thing. I stood within a few feet of her when the accident occurred, and it was nothing short of a miracle that she escaped with her life, and she was the coolest one in the crowd." Had he known that a few years previous I was healed of what had been called an incurable heart trouble, he would have been surprised that I did not even lose consciousness.

It is about eight years since this experience, and there has been no return of the alarming conditions caused by the accident, nor have there been any bad after effects. The healing was perfect. I am grateful indeed for this proof of God's power to heal, for other benefits too numerous to mention, and for the light which Christian Science has shed on the Scriptures. As the wife of a Methodist minister I had learned to love the Bible, but Christian Science has opened up to me new beauties in its pages. While it was to me an interesting account of healing work long past, and of beautiful promises which I did not know how to apply, Christian Science has made it a present help in time of trouble, and a guide in every affair of life. I cannot adequately express my gratitude for our Leader, Mrs. Eddy, who gave us this "Key to the Scriptures."

ELLEN J. HUBBARD, East Cleveland, Ohio.

Christian Science has indeed been a blessing to me, and I am glad to give my testimony in the hope that it may help some one who is searching for the light of Truth. It is several years since I began the study of the text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy. With the help of a practitioner I have been healed of bronchitis and severe colds, which were a regular winter occurrence from childhood and which several physicians had failed to cure. An unhappy, complaining, pessimistic disposition has also been overcome. Life is one glad song to me now, for I have found that God is Love and will meet our every need.

When my little son was born I had many wonderful proofs of God's power. My husband not being a Scientist, it seemed as though a wall was closing around me. The nurse, physician, and all my friends thought I could not get well, but we are promised that through the prayers of the righteous the sick are healed, and I was wonderfully delivered through the work of a faithful practitioner.

I am thankful to God for all these blessings, and grateful to Mrs. Eddy, that noble woman who has made it possible for the world to know Christian Science. My desire is to be worthy to be called a Christian Scientist, and to be able to guide my child in the straight and narrow way that leads into peace and up to God.

LAURA BARTLOW MARTIN, Hamilton, Ohio.

It gives me pleasure to verify my daughter's testimony. I was with her during the weeks that followed the birth of her child and saw the overcoming of many serious physical conditions. I am very grateful for all the blessings we have received.—NANCY BARTLOW.

From Our Exchanges

[The Christian Work]

We have now come to a great crisis in the world's history—it may be a second era after two thousand years of Christian preaching and teaching. Certain it is that we are coming to a fresh and enlarged conception of the gospel of Jesus. His moral and ethical teaching in the beatitudes and the Sermon on the Mount have a significance and a grip on the minds and consciences of men as never before. We admit the oriental imagery, but his sayings embody the second commandment of loving our neighbor as ourselves, and always turning the other cheek of kindness, no matter how many times we may have been smitten. We are to understand his command to resist not evil as literal. There is no place in the heart of the real follower of Christ for malice, revenge, envy, or hatred—"love is the fulfilling of the law." And what he says about hearing these sayings and doing them is literal truth which we must all face.

[The Christian Intelligencer]

Christ himself was an optimist. He spoke of his joy as being necessary to make man's joy full. Now how could he have such great joy and so bright a view of the world? Was it because he ignored the evils in the world and the sorrows of men? We know that that is not true. For no man ever saw so clearly and felt so keenly the wretchedness of human sin and the agony of human sorrow. No one ever gave himself so completely to wipe away the stain of the one and the tears of the other.

And, also, no man ever knew so well the power that was at work overcoming these and building up holiness and happiness into the world's life. There is the secret of Christ's joy. Let a degraded sinner be brought into his presence, he knew the remedy for all the sin. If a Herod sat upon the throne while John lay in prison, he knew the irresistible power that would overturn that throne and break that prison door. If the cross stood waiting to receive him to a shameful death, he knew the glory that would gather round its head sublime. It was the marvelous hopefulness of Christ that filled his troubled life with joy supreme.

[Rev. George W. McPherson in The Watchman-Examiner]

Men must come to Christ before they can become brothers of men and children of God, claiming God as their Father. Our Lord hedged these great truths round about as one would the moral and legal grounds of relationship in a family. I want no one to tell me that John Smith is my natural brother, for I know who are my natural brothers as I know who is my natural father. To say that John Smith is my brother would be to incriminate the character of my father. And as human relationships have their boundaries and lines of demarcation and clearly defined laws and characteristics, so likewise has the great regenerated family of God. It is in Christ alone where God is our Father, and in Christ alone where men are brothers.

[Western Christian Advocate]

A casual study of the ordination Christ gave his first disciples, the twelve, will present some interesting facts. He sent them forth "to preach, and to have power to heal sicknesses, and to cast out devils." His ordination now is strangely limited to preaching, teaching, and ministering, some may claim. A trinity of functions, but not covering the entire life of man, one may say. That all depends on the breadth of interpretation given to the word "ministry." That ought to cover an ordination for service to all the needs of man.

Digitized by Google

[The Biblical World]

Christianity has never been effective when it has endeavored to evangelize forces which are reactionary. It has always centered around those persons by whom history is actually being made. The current of real history carried Paul away from Antioch and Ephesus and other cities that were soon to be only symbols of the past, and flung him across the sea into creative history at Rome. When Paul came to Rome, Christianity began to evangelize the inevitable. So, too, Luther was caught up by the new forces which made modern Europe, and carried into these forces the gospel.

Every man who has been of religious significance in history has had an intuitive readiness to throw in his lot with the inevitable while it was in the making, and to leaven it with the gospel. Our own day calls for similar evangelization. The church must win the loyalty of the men who are actually making tomorrow.

[William H. P. Faunce, D.D., LL.D., in The Homiletic Review]

We need a new theology, simpler, larger, more human than anything the past has given us, a theology which will be based on our deeper knowledge of human nature and on the simple teaching of Jesus Christ. The men who in the trenches have faced the last and most searching tests of the soul will insist on a religion that is real, and if they cannot get it inside the churches they will seek it elsewhere.

[The Congregationalist and Christian World]

A truer imitation of Christ and a more thorough sharing of his secret by his church and his disciples would secure for us all the warrior spirit without the hate which war engenders; simplicity of life without the austerity of the ascetic, and a holy power, the want of which is half the secret of our restlessness. When we can say with the great captains of their souls, "I have learned, in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content," we may also begin to say with them, "I can do all things."

[Francis J. Hall, D.D., in The Constructive Quarterly]

Another requirement of truth seeking is openness of mind, or readiness to recognize and accept truth from whatever quarter it may come, however unexpected its tenor may be, and whatever may be its effects upon our previous convictions and postulates. In ultimate issues there are no closed questions—no questions, that is, which we are debarred from reconsidering when new light is thrown on them.

[S. Zane Batten in The Pacific Baptist]

It was a sad day for the world when the distinction was made between the clergy and laity, and when work for the kingdom was narrowed down to preaching. Under the influence of this false conception the work of the priest and preacher was exalted; doing church work for the mass of men meant attending church service, listening to preaching, and aiding in evangelistic work.

[The Methodist Recorder]

We have to venture with God. We have to be prepared to risk something on His faithfulness. The wind and the clouds are to test our faith. The Christian life, from beginning to end, is really a great adventuring ourselves with God in despite of winds and clouds.

[Zion's Herald]

Everywhere the Bible appeals to men to make a life, and not just to earn a living; to rub the sleep from their eyes, to awake from the dead, and to press toward the mark of a highly developed, that is a spiritualized, manhood.

Special Announcements

From the Publisher of Mrs. Eddy's Works

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE TEXT-BOOK, "SCIENCE AND HEALTH WITH KEY TO THE SCRIPTURES."—For styles of bindings and prices see back cover of this periodical.

A NEW CONCORDANCE.—The publication is announced of a Concordance to Mrs. Eddy's published writings other than Science and Health.

The new volume has been compiled with the same comprehensive care and is issued in uniform style with the Concordance to Science and Health. It contains 1103 pages, and is published only in the Oxford India Bible paper edition, with stiff morocco covers. The thumb index will not be used in this Concordance, as it is to be discontinued in future editions of the Concordance to Science and Health. Prices: Single copy, $6.00; in lots of six or more to one address, each $5.50.

Announcement is made of the publication of a German translation of the Manual of The Mother Church. The volume is uniform in size, style, and price with the regular cloth-bound edition, and the publisher is now prepared to fill orders. Single copy $1.00; six or more to one address, each 75 cents.

Orders for the books named above and other works by Mrs. Eddy should be addressed to ALLISON V. STEWART, Falmouth and St. Paul Streets, Boston, Mass.

From the Editor

All manuscripts submitted for publication in the Sentinel, Journal, and Herold, whether articles, poems, or testimonies, and all correspondence relating thereto, should be addressed to the EDITOR, and not to individuals.

From the Publishing Society

The Christian Science Quarterly is published in the Dutch and German languages. These editions are printed with the foreign language and English version on opposite pages. Orders for single copies, quantities, and subscriptions will be filled at the rates as shown on the opposite page.

The pamphlet "Prayer and Confidence" containing four articles reprinted from The Christian Science Journal, has been translated into Dutch.

A lecture by Francis J. Fluno, M.D., entitled "Christian Science: A Reasonable and Rational View of all Things," has also been translated into Dutch.

Both of these pamphlets are printed with the English version opposite the translated page and are on sale at prices as shown on the opposite page under the list of pamphlets.

From the Clerk of The Mother Church

CHURCH TENETS.—The tenets of The First Church of Christ, Scientist,—The Mother Church,—printed on folded sheet for use of the branch Churches of Christ, Scientist, with space for printing their authorized forms of application for membership or extracts from their by-laws, can be had at seventy-five cents a hundred. Orders will not be taken for less than one hundred, and postage stamps should not be sent in payment.

Correspondence relative to the tenets or to membership with The Mother Church, should be sent to J. V. DITTEMORE, Clerk, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

From the Church Treasurer

The annual per capita tax of members of The Mother Church is due June 1, but may be paid at any time during the year. The per capita tax of members uniting in November is reckoned from the preceding June, this being the beginning of the church year. Unless otherwise directed by the sender, the full amount of each remittance will be credited for the current year.

Please remit by postal or express money order, bank draft, or check. Currency should be sent by registered letter only.

Please advise promptly of any change in name or address.

Send per capita taxes and contributions to ADAM H. DICKEY, Treasurer, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

Digitized by Google

The Christian Science Journal

Published Monthly

Founded April, 1883, by Mary Baker Eddy, Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, and author of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures."

This monthly magazine is the official organ of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. In addition to articles, editorials, and testimonies not published elsewhere, it contains a complete list of Christian Science practitioners, and a directory of Christian Science Churches, Societies, and Reading Rooms.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $2; six months $1; three months 50 cents. SALE PRICE: Single copy 20 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 15 cents. For Canada add 25 cents for postage. SALE PRICE: Single copy 20 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 17 cents. In all other countries add 65 cents for postage for each annual subscription. SALE PRICE: Single copy 25 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 20 cents.

BOUND VOLUMES: Current and past year, cloth $3.00; half calf or half morocco $3.75. On earlier volumes write for prices.

The Christian Science Quarterly

Published January, April, July, and October

Contains the Lesson-Sermons which are read at the Sunday services throughout the year in all the Christian Science churches. These Lessons, which present citations from the Bible and "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," are valuable for daily study. Also printed in Dutch and German.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION AND SALE: In the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year 50 cents; single copy 15 cents; four copies or more to one address, each 12½ cents. For all other countries one year 60 cents; single copy 18 cents; four copies or more, each 15 cents.

Subscriptions not accepted for less than one year. Subscriptions begin with current quarter unless otherwise designated, and terminate with the last of the month named on wrapper.

The Christian Science Monitor

Published Daily, Except Sundays and Legal Holidays

An international daily newspaper. Adequate news service. The various departments of a modern newspaper. Unique Home Forum page. Entire page of editorials dealing with the vital topics of the day. Contributions to the columns of the MONITOR should be addressed: Editor, THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States (except in the Boston Postal District), Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $5; six months $2.50; three months $1.25; one month 50 cents. In all other countries additional postage at the rate of $3 yearly is required. By carrier through a local news-dealer, one week 12 cents; one month 50 cents. In the Boston Postal District, by mail, one year $7.25. Quantity rates will be furnished on application.

Der Herold der Christian Science

Published Monthly

A magazine printed in German, which publishes original and translated articles bearing upon Christian Science, also testimonials of healing.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $1; six months 50 cents; three months 25 cents. For other countries, one year $1.25; six months 63 cents; three months 32 cents.

SALE PRICE, DOMESTIC TERRITORY AND CANADA, POSTPAID: Single copy 10 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 8 cents. Foreign rate, single copy 12 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 10 cents.

Bound Volumes in cloth, $2.75 each; half calf or half morocco $3.50 each. Write for list of volumes in stock.

Pamphlets

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS RELIGIOUS PHILOSOPHY. By HON. CLARENCE A. RUSKIRK.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: "THE RESURRECTION AND THE LIFE." By CLARENCE W. CHADWICK.

CAUSATION: VIEWED IN THE LIGHT OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By FREDERICK DIXON. Also printed in Norwegian and Swedish.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING VS. MENTAL SUGGESTION. By FREDERICK DIXON. Reprinted from the Weekly Budget, London, England. Also printed in Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE TRUE CHRISTIANITY. By CLARENCE C. EATON.

"THE SONS OF GOD." By COL. WILLIAM E. FELL.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE VS. FINITE SENSE. By FRANCIS J. FLUNO, M.D.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE GOSPEL OF FREEDOM. By WILLIS F. GROSS.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE SCIENCE OF SALVATION. By HERMANN S. HERING.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING: SPIRITUAL AND SCIENTIFIC. By PROF. HERMANN S. HERING. Also printed in German.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS CONCERNING CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. Also printed in Dutch, German, and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS ADVANTAGE TO MANKIND. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. A London lecture. Also printed in French.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: MAN'S DOMINION OVER EVIL. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. Also printed in modern Greek, Italian, Norwegian, and Russian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS DIVINE AUTHORITY. By BLISS KNAPP.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE EXPLANATION OF THE IDEAL MAN. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS DISCOVERY AND DEVELOPMENT. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: GOD'S LOVINGKINDNESS PROVED TO MEN. By REV. WILLIAM P. MCKENZIE. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS RESULTS. By WILLIAM R. RATHVON. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE RELIGION OF DIVINE LAW. By JACOB S. SHIELD.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM. By JUDGE CLIFFORD P. SMITH. Also printed in French and German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A RELIGION OF LOVE. By VIRGIL O. STRICKLER. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE NEW BIRTH. By BICKNELL YOUNG. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

THE LAW OF KINDNESS.

"WHAT WENT YE OUT FOR TO SEE?"

"THEN THE FULL GRAIN IN THE EAR."

UPWARD FOOTSTEPS. Also printed in Dutch.

FULFILLING THE LAW. Also printed in Danish.

PRAYER AND HEALING. Also printed in French and German.

THE DIVINE NATURE. Also printed in Dutch and Norwegian.

ENVIRONMENT AND OPPORTUNITY. Also printed in French.

THE FATHER'S BUSINESS. Also printed in German and Swedish.

SEEKING AND FINDING. Also printed in Dutch, German, and Swedish.

THE PROVIDENCE OF GOOD. Also printed in French, Spanish, and Swedish.

LAW AND WORK.

CONFIDENCE AND SUPPLY.

BIRTHRIGHT AND DOMINION.

Other Translated Pamphlets

*FAITH AND GENEROSITY. Printed in French.

MAN'S UNITY WITH GOD. Printed in German only.

"PEACE ON EARTH." Printed in German only.

PRAYER AND CONFIDENCE. Printed in *Dutch and German.

MARY BAKER EDDY. By ARTHUR BRISBANE. Printed in German only.

*MARY BAKER EDDY: HER PURPOSE AND ACCOMPLISHMENT. By FREDERICK DIXON. Printed in French and German.

THE FOUNDER OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By B. O. FLOWER. Printed in German only.

*CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A REASONABLE AND RATIONAL VIEW OF ALL THINGS. By FRANCIS J. FLUNO, M.D. Printed in Dutch.

*CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: HUMANITY'S HELPER. By PROF. HERMANN S. HERING. Printed in Dutch.

*CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE COMFORTER OF PROMISE. By FRANK H. LEONARD. Printed in French.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: DEMONSTRABLE RELIGION. By FRANK H. LEONARD. Printed in Norwegian only.

*CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A RELIGION OF PROGRESS. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Printed in French and Swedish.

*CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS PRINCIPLE AND METHOD. By BICKNELL YOUNG. Printed in French and Swedish.

PRICE, POSTPAID: Single copy 5 cents; twelve copies to one address 55 cents; fifty copies $2; one hundred copies $3.50. Orders for above pamphlets may be assorted as desired.

For table of English, German, Swiss, and French money equivalents, see inside front cover page.

*These pamphlets are printed with the English version opposite each page of the translation.

Miscellaneous

A Catalogue of Selected Bibles will be furnished upon application, and quantity rates on other items specified below will be found in the current catalogue in The Christian Science Journal.

BIBLES. 01483 x. Clarendon Brevier, heavy-faced, distinct type; Turkey morocco, corresponding in size and binding to pocket edition of Science and Health, $4.75.

04440 x. Brevier, light-faced type; self-pronouncing, Turkey morocco, corresponding in size and binding to pocket edition of Science and Health, $4.50.

01683 x. Large type Bible, 10¾ x 8 inches, bound in Alaska seal. Specially adapted for use of second readers, $12.50.

Black morocco open case to hold pocket edition of Science and Health, Quarterly, and Bible, $1.40.

Two other sizes of open case listed in the current issue of the Journal.

Black morocco closed case with handle and purse on outside, $3.75; without purse, $3.50.

The improved index will be added to any Bible listed in our catalogue for an additional charge of 35 cents. Catalogue No. 23 of selected Bibles will be mailed free upon application.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS ON THE LIFE AND WORK OF MARY BAKER EDDY. 132 pages with index. Paper covered, 15 cents; cloth binding, 85 cents.

THE LIFE OF MARY BAKER EDDY. By Sibyl Wilbur. 424 pages. Cloth, $2. Edition de luxe, $5.

PERSONAL CONTAGION, ALSO WHAT OUR LEADER SAYS. By Mary Baker Eddy. Special pamphlet. Paper cover, 10 cents.

THE MOTHER CHURCH. By Joseph Armstrong. A history of the building of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. Illustrated, 107 pages. Cloth, $1.50.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS LEGAL STATUS. By Judge Clifford P. Smith. 128 pages, paper covered, 10 cents.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HYMNAL. Cloth, $1.15; half morocco, $1.40; full morocco, $2.50; levant, $3.50; pocket edition, size 4⅝ x 6⅝, $3

SHEET MUSIC. Poems written by Mary Baker Eddy and used by special permission, have been set to music as follows: "The Mother's Evening Prayer," 75 cents; "Christ, My Refuge," 75 cents; "Love," 40 cents; Communion Hymn—"Saw Ye My Saviour?" (Johnson), 50 cents; "Blest Christmas Morn," 27 cents; "O'er Waiting Harpstrings of the Mind," 27 cents; "Shepherd, Show Me How to Go," 27 cents; "Saw Ye My Saviour?" (Root), 27 cents. The first three hymns are arranged for high and low voice in the same copy. The last five hymns are published separately in high and low keys. When ordering state key desired.

PHOTOGRAVURE OF MRS. EDDY, printed in three sizes on India paper and mounted on heavy plate paper ready for framing. 8-inch (mount 12 x 16), $1; 12-inch (mount 15 x 20), $2; 16-inch (mount 21 x 29), $3.50.

PICTURE OF THE FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, IN BOSTON, MASS., AND THE PUBLISHING HOUSE. Artist's proof with remarque on Japanese vellum, size 18 x 24 inches, $5; on India paper without remarque, $3. Smaller reproduction, size 11 x 14 inches, on Japanese vellum, $1. Photogravure post-cards of the Church Edifice and Publishing House, 5 cents.

QUARTERLY COVERS in black morocco, $1.30; with purse, $1.50.

ALUMINUM LESSON MARKERS. Set of thirty, with paper shields, 50 cents. Extra paper shields, one hundred, 15 cents.

PRICE LIST OF BIBLE CONCORDANCES AND DICTIONARIES OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE supplied on request. Express charges collect on delivery.

REPRINTS (not printed in English). Two-page leaflets, 14 subjects in French and Swedish; 18 subjects in German. Ten copies to one address, 10 cents.

Remittances should always accompany orders, and be made by check, money order, or exchange on Boston or New York. Currency or coin should not be sent by mail unless registered. Please send no money or business letters to the Editor or Editorial Department.

Send all orders for the works of Mrs. Eddy, with remittance by New York or Boston draft or money order, direct to Allison V. Stewart

For literature listed above address orders and make remittances payable to

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

FALMOUTH AND ST. PAUL STREETS, BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

Digitized by Google

Works on Christian Science

Written by MARY BAKER EDDY, Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science and Author of its Text-book

Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures. In one volume, 700 pages. The original, standard, and only text-book on Christian Science Mind-healing. Cloth, one to eleven copies inclusive (cloth only), each $3.00; twelve or more, each $2.75. Full leather, stiff, beveled boards, gilt edges, same paper as in cloth binding, single copy $4.00; twelve or more, each $3.75. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $5.00; twelve or more, each $4.75. Levant, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, round corners, gilt edges, silk sewed, heavy Oxford India Bible paper (wide margins, large-sized book) single copy $6.00; twelve or more, each $5.75.

LARGE TYPE EDITION. Designed especially for the use of first readers. Large type (18-point) on Oxford India Bible paper, bound in leather. Size 10¾ inches long by 8 inches wide. Single copy $7.50, with a discount of 25 cents each when included in an order for twelve or more copies of Science and Health, and in any or all of the different bindings.

GERMAN TRANSLATION. Cloth, one to five copies inclusive, each $3.50; six or more, each $3.25. Pocket edition, printed on Oxford India Bible paper. Morocco, one to five copies inclusive, each $5.50; six or more, each $5.25. Orders for the German translation in lots of six or more may include both bindings.

Orders for Science and Health in lots of twelve or more at quantity prices may include both English and German editions, and different styles of binding.

Miscellaneous Writings. A book of 471 pages, containing articles published in The Christian Science Journal from 1883 to 1896, with revisions and additions. Cloth, single copy $2.25; twelve or more, each $2.00. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $4.00; twelve or more, each $3.75. Levant, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, round corners, gilt edges, silk sewed, Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $5.00; twelve or more, each $4.75. Orders for Miscellaneous Writings in lots of twelve or more may include any or all of the different styles of binding. No discount will be allowed on orders for twelve books which include both Science and Health and Miscellaneous Writings.

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany. A book of 364 pages, containing articles published in The Christian Science Journal and Sentinel, subsequent to the compilation of Miscellaneous Writings, together with historical matter pertaining thereto. Cloth, single copy $2.25; six or more, each $2.00. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $4.00; six or more, each $3.75. Orders for six or more may include the two styles of binding.

Concordance to Science and Health. This work contains about eighty thousand references (more than ten thousand words being indexed), also an index to the Marginal Headings, and a list of the Scriptural Quotations in Science and Health. 611 pages, stiff morocco cover, single copy $5.00; six or more, each $4.50.

Concordance to Mrs. Eddy's Published Writings Other Than Science and Health. It contains 1,103 pages, and is published only in Bible paper edition, with stiff morocco cover. Single copy, $6.00; six or more, each, $5.50.

Christ and Christmas. An illustrated poem. Single copy $3.00; six or more, each $2.50.

Unity of Good and Other Writings. One volume, containing Unity of Good, Rudimental Divine Science, No and Yes, Retrospection and Introspection; uniform in style with the pocket edition of Science and Health. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, heavy Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $3.50; six or more, each $3.25.

Christian Healing and Other Writings. One volume, containing Christian Healing, The People's Idea of God, Pulpit and Press, Christian Science versus Pantheism, Messages of 1900, 1901, 1902; uniform in style with the pocket edition of Science and Health. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, heavy Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $3.50; six or more, each $3.25.

Church Manual. Containing the By-laws of The Mother Church. Cloth, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents. Pocket edition, morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $2.00; six or more, each $1.75.

GERMAN TRANSLATION. Cloth, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Retrospection and Introspection. A biographical sketch of the author; the way she was led to the discovery of Christian Science; its fundamental idea and growth. Library edition, cloth, 95 pages, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Unity of Good. This book lays the axe at the root of error, elucidating and enforcing practical Christian Science, thus affording invaluable directions for all true Scientists. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, 64 pages, single copy 60 cents; six or more, each 45 cents. Pocket edition, leather covers, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Pulpit and Press. A unique work, of importance in the history and to the readers of Christian Science; containing the message or sermon written for the dedicatory service of The Mother Church, January 6, 1895, and scintillations from the press of that occasion. Library edition, cloth, 90 pages, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Rudimental Divine Science. A brief and concise statement of Divine Science, alias Christian Science, in the form of questions and answers. Pebbled cloth covers, gilt top, 17 pages, single copy 32 cents; six or more, each 25 cents. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 35 cents.

PRINTED in the New York point system of type for the use of the blind, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

No and Yes. A brief statement of very important points in Christian Science. Pebbled cloth covers, 46 pages, single copy 32 cents; six or more, each 25 cents. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 55 cents; six or more, each 45 cents.

Messages to The Mother Church. Including in one volume, 94 pages, Christian Science versus Pantheism, and the Messages of 1900, 1901, and 1902. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy $1.50; six or more, each $1.15.

Christian Science versus Pantheism. The Pastor Emeritus' Message delivered at the Communion Season in The Mother Church in Boston, June, 1898. A clear and strong refutation of the charge that Christian Scientists are pantheists. Pebbled cloth covers, 15 pages, single copy 25 cents; six or more, each 20 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1900. Paper covers, deckled edges, 15 pages, single copy 25 cents; six or more, each 20 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1901. Paper covers, deckled edges, 35 pages, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 38 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1902. Paper covers, deckled edges, 20 pages, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 38 cents.

Christian Healing, and The People's Idea of God. Two sermons in one volume, 36 pages. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 55 cents; six or more, each 45 cents.

Christian Healing. A sermon delivered in Boston. Paper covers, 20 pages, single copy 20 cents; six or more, each 17 cents.

The People's Idea of God. A sermon delivered in Boston. Paper covers, 14 pages, single copy 20 cents; six or more, each 17 cents.

Poems. This volume of 79 pages includes all of Mrs. Eddy's hymns, also her earlier poems which appeared in various publications from forty to sixty years ago. Specially bound. Single copy $1.50; six or more, each $1.25.

Feed My Sheep. Solo. Words by Mary Baker Eddy, music by Lyman F. Brackett. Single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

The foregoing prices cover all charges for express or postage on shipments either domestic or foreign.

Quantity prices are on shipments to one address only, but quantity lots at quantity prices cannot be made up of different books or of different styles of binding. Attention is called, however, to the exception to this rule which is made in the cases of Science and Health, and of Miscellaneous Writings, as given under these titles in this price list.

Address all orders for above works, and make remittance by New York or Boston draft or money order, to

ALLISON V. STEWART, FALMOUTH AND ST. PAUL STS., BOSTON, MASS.

Digitized by Google

BOSTON PUBLIC
HISTORICAL LIBRARY

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SENTINEL

"What I say unto you I say unto all-WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX No. 30

Boston, March 24, 1917

Contents of This Number

Items of Interest (Brief Mention of Important Events) 582
"Wars and rumors of wars" George Shaw Cook 583
Spiritual Weapons and Warfare Gray Montgomery 584
Purifying Experience . Cora F. Collison 584
Gossamer Webs . Caroline E. Linnell 585
"Whence comest thou?" . W. L. Merritt 586
Wholeness . . . Louis A. Gregory 586
From Cross to Crown (Poem) M. Louise Baum 587
Selected Articles 587
Editorial
One Standard 590
Playing Safe 590
"Mark the perfect man" . . . 591
Among the Churches (Current Notes)
Northern California . . . 591
Southern California . . . 592
New York, N. Y. 592
The Lectures
Petoskey, Mich. 592
Weiser, Idaho 592
Highland Park, Ill. 592
Tampa, Fla. 593
Testimonies of Healing 594
From Our Exchanges 597

A LADY WITH A LAMP SHALL STAND IN THE GREAT HISTORY OF THE LAND

A NOBLE TYPE OF GOOD HEROIC WOMANHOOD
Longfellow

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY
FALMOUTH AND ST PAUL STREETS BOSTON MASS U.S.A.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

(THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE WEEKLY)

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY BY

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

Falmouth and St. Paul Sts., Boston, Mass., U.S.A.

ARCHIBALD McLELLAN
Editor

ANNIE M. KNOTT, WILLIAM D. McCRACKAN
Associate Editors

Subscription Price

Payable in advance

Annual subscription price, postpaid, in the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, $2.00; six months, $1.00; three months, 50 cents. For Canada add 45 cents and for all other countries 95 cents annually for postage. For subscriptions in quantities please refer to page four in THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE JOURNAL.

Subscriptions to the SENTINEL will begin with the current issue unless otherwise specified. The delivery of the periodical will indicate that a remittance has been credited and will be our acknowledgment of the subscription.

Bound Volumes: Current year or two years previous, cloth, $3.25; half calf or half morocco, $4.00. On earlier volumes write for prices.

Terms of Sale

	United States, Mexico, and Cuba	Canada	All Other Countries
Single copy	$ .05	$ .06	$ .07
Four or more copies	.03½	.04	.05

Equivalents of United States money

		£	s.	d.	Marks	Francs
$ .60	equals	0	2	6	2.52	3.12
1.15	"	0	4	9	4.85	5.98
1.25	"	0	5	2	5.30	6.50
2.33	"	0	9	7	9.83	12.09
2.38	"	0	9	10	[illegible]	12.35
2.63	"	0	10	9	[illegible]	13.65
2.65	"	0	10	10	11.20	13.78
2.70	"	0	11	1	11.40	14.04
2.95	"	0	12	2	12.50	15.34
5.00	"	1	0	7	21.15	26.00
7.50	"	1	10	10	31.73	39.00
8.00	"	1	12	11	33.85	41.60

Make all remittances payable to The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Postage required for remailing this copy: 1 cent domestic and Canada; 2 cents other countries.

Entered at Boston, Mass., post-office as second-class matter.

Items of Interest

Brazil, a field rich in possibilities for the cattle industry, has been a cattle country, although not a meat exporting one, since early colonial times. For the past year the new meat export business has received the special attention of Brazilian officials, business men, and economists. The only existing census of the herds in the republic sets their total at 30,000,000, but the number is undoubtedly larger than that. It is thought that not only the rolling plains of southern Brazil, which border upon Uruguay, Argentina, and Paraguay, but also a vastly more extensive central and tropical highland region, may prove in time to be valuable cattle ranges. In these states are vast lands still undevoted to agriculture. Frost is practically unknown there. A special pasture adapted to the Brazilian soil and climate grows there all the year round and keeps the cattle constantly in fit condition.

The administration revenue bill, designed to raise $350,000,000 through special taxes and bond issues, passed the United States Senate by a vote of 47 to 33, and was signed by President Wilson. The bill provides that $175,000,000 of the taxes collected under it, and under the revenue bill of last year, shall "constitute a special preparedness fund" to be used in army, navy, and fortifications expenditure. Strong objection was made to the excess profits tax feature of the bill, which placed a tax of 8 per cent on the net profits of corporations and joint stock companies when they exceed $5000 a year and are more than 8 per cent of the capital invested. A second important feature will increase the present tax on estates 50 per cent. This tax will range from 1½ per cent on net estates over $50,000 to 15 per cent on estates over $5,000,000.

Colombia has worked out a comprehensive road system intended to facilitate highway traffic and to connect interior points with railways, ports, and commercial centers. Much interest in road construction has also been shown recently in the neighboring countries of Venezuela and Peru, and there is a certain similarity between the completeness of the Peruvian plan and that of the project passed by the Colombian Congress. The extension of roads will cover practically the whole of Colombia. The best routes have been selected, and their maintenance provided for. To provide a special fund for this road construction a surtax of 5 per cent will be levied on all imports. In addition to this fund the toll tax, which has been collected on certain roads, will continue. Other assistance may be granted by legislative bodies to petitioners for roads when requests are accompanied by satisfactory details and estimates.

Congress has passed, and Secretary Lane has recommended to President Wilson that he approve, the act under which surplus lands in Indian reservations will become subject to settlement and entry, notwithstanding that they may be withdrawn as coal lands or may be valuable for coal deposits. These lands heretofore have not been subject to agricultural entry for the reason that there was no law under which entrymen might acquire title to the surface thereof with reservation of the coal deposits to the Government. The present act provides for such agricultural entries and for the issuance of patents to entrymen with reservation of the coal, and the right to mine the same, to the Government. This act will open to entry several hundred thousand acres of land in Indian reservations.

Since colonial times Boston and New York have been linked by the Boston post road. Up to the introduction of the railroad, it was the only means of land communication between New England and New York. Automobile associations and others are interested in urging that it be reconstructed into a concrete road, as concrete has proven both satisfactory and economical for use as a road-bed. The plan now urged to effect this object is the formation of an Interstate Commission comprised of state officials of New York, Connecticut, and Massachusetts, as well as auxiliary members from boards of trade of the cities traversed by the road.

A company has recently been formed in New Zealand, with a capital of £70,000, for the purpose of producing iron and steel from magnetic and titaniferous iron sand, of which there is a large deposit on the coast of Taranaki, near New Plymouth, North Island. Works are being erected at this place. The present intention is to install a furnace capable of dealing with seventy tons of iron sand weekly, but plans have been drawn for the installation later of an additional furnace capable of dealing with 200 tons weekly. The production of steel is also contemplated.

Income tax collections in the second or down town district of New York, N. Y., are expected to amount to $66,000,000 for this year. The collections for the same district last year were less than $24,000,000; the year before about $15,000,000, and in 1914 less than $14,000,000. It is calculated that when the time for filing returns closes, 55,000 individuals and 29,000 corporations will have presented their statements. The large increase in revenue from this source over previous years is accounted for in part by the fact that the rate has been increased.

A state wide tree planting campaign has been started in Kansas, in which the State Agricultural College and the state forester will cooperate. A series of meetings to encourage the planting of trees will be held at various community centers over the state. Care will be taken to advise the residents of the different localities to plant only trees which are able to grow best there. A second series of meetings will be held early in April, when the actual tree planting is to be done.

There was more fog during 1916 than in any previous year for which records have been kept, according to figures compiled at the various signal stations for the United States Bureau of Lighthouses. The greatest fog was at the San Francisco light vessel, where there was a murk for 2221 hours during the year, more than one quarter of the time. The highest record on the Atlantic coast was at Egg Rock, Maine, where 2048 hours of fog were recorded, equivalent to about 23 per cent of the year.

After eight years of investigation, the United States Department of Agriculture says it has discovered the secret of making Roquefort cheese. Instead of limestone caves in which French Roquefort cheese is ripened, department experts are using ordinary refrigerators, and for the expensive goat's milk used in the French process they are substituting cow's milk. After further experiment at the department station at Grove City, Pa., the process will be turned over to American cheese makers.

The first meteorological station in Ecuador was established in October, 1915, at the Quinta Normal (Agricultural School) near Ambato. Substations are now established at twelve other places, and all are in charge of the director of the Quinta Normal, where the data are computed and reduced to tables each month. Twenty-five more substations are to be installed and equipped.

Out of the total of approximately seventy-five thousand adult males in Arizona, thirty thousand are employed directly in mining and ore reduction, says the Tucson Citizen, and many thousands of additional men are employed in the industries for which mining is directly responsible. Almost forty million dollars is paid annually in wages to the men employed underground.

The Peruvian Government has adopted new provisions for agricultural loans, Congress having passed a law on this subject which provides for loans to farmers and stock raisers on agricultural implements, sawmills, live stock, meat and dairy products, fruits growing or harvested, timber and lumber.

The Standard Oil Company of the United States, it is reported, will seek indemnity for the destruction of its oil properties in Rumania at the time of the German invasion of that country.

The two principal items invoiced at the American Consulate at Basel, Switzerland, for the United States during 1916 were aniline colors and schappe (spun silk), their values being $2,046,990 and $2,031,462 respectively.

The third forecast of the cotton crop in Burma for the season of 1916-17 gives 212,007 acres under cotton in the ten districts that make regular returns. The total yield for the province is estimated at 43,504 bales.

During 1916 there were 17,358,144 coconuts, valued at $697,768, invoiced at the American Consulate at Colon, Panama, for the United States.

The exports of ball bearings from the Goteborg (Sweden) consular district for the United States for 1916 were invoiced at $1,367,761.

Approximately 95,000 tons of sulphur were produced in Japan during 1916, of which 75,000 tons were exported.

The so-called Chinese rice paper is made from the pith of a tree growing in Formosa.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

"What I say unto you, I say unto all, WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX March 24, 1917 No. 30

"Wars and rumors of wars"

GEORGE SHAW COOK

IT is becoming more and more evident that we exist in a world of thought. Everything in our environment, all that we use, what we eat, what we wear, what we buy and sell, the houses in which we live, the churches in which we worship, exist because of thought, and from the Christian Science viewpoint, in the last analysis, as thought. Every action of the physical body, every act of the body politic, every commercial or industrial activity, originates in thought and is controlled by thought. Thought is the source and essence of all things.

Human activities and instrumentalities, being products of the human mind, partake of the nature of that mind. They reflect, therefore, the limitations and idiosyncrasies of the mind which is their cause or inducement. For this reason so-called material conditions are subject to variation, instability, reversal, disturbance, discord, upheaval, conflict. Writing more than forty years ago, Mrs. Eddy said: "This material world is even now becoming the arena for conflicting forces. On one side there will be discord and dismay; on the other side there will be Science and peace" (Science and Health, p. 96).

Since this world is a thought world, it is evident that mortals are to a great extent controlled by the state of thought which for the time being is predominant. The contagion of thought is such that one is likely at present to be controlled by "discord and dismay," unless his understanding of Principle is sufficient to govern him in peace. Today the mental atmosphere is surcharged with thoughts of war, for the world is gazing with horror upon the most appalling struggle that has ever been known to mankind. Millions of mortals are engaged day and night in the manufacture of engines of destruction, and other millions in their use, while human ingenuity and human resources are being taxed to the utmost in order that one group of nations may prove itself victorious over another group.

Nor is this all. Even before the present war is ended there has appeared above the mental horizon the specter of a post-bellum conflict for commercial supremacy. Meanwhile, not to mention political disturbances and upheavals, we find ourselves constantly threatened by, if not actually experiencing, bitter strife between capital and labor. And one need only read week by week a digest of editorial opinion on current topics to realize that we are always in the midst of a "war of words" about every passing event.

Since these conditions seem in belief to exist, is it at all strange that many times persons find themselves, often without apparent cause, feeling irritable, argumentative, contentious, or even angry and hateful? Is it any wonder that at other times people believe themselves to be unhappy, depressed, and discouraged? Should we be surprised, then, to find such thinking externalized as discordant conditions in the home, the office, or the church? May not this also furnish a possible explanation for some conditions of physical disease which have not been otherwise explained?

We have seen that no so-called material condition can exist without a mental cause; and, as is obvious, conditions of social, political, and commercial unrest have their origin and existence in thought. If then there seems to be a diseased body, a disturbed home, a discordant church, or a depressed business, shall we not as metaphysicians be acting wisely if we turn our attention to the prevailing belief in war as a possible cause of the trouble? Christian Science teaches us to look for and discover mental causes of discord. It shows us how to analyze these causes, and explains that when they are discovered and analyzed they can be removed only by right thinking; by substituting right ideas for wrong beliefs.

We have found the prevailing belief in war to be a probable cause of much present-day suffering. How shall we analyze this cause? What is its nature? What is its basis? War is based upon the belief that there are countless minds. This belief in many minds results in conflicting opinions, misunderstanding, contention, strife, destruction, desolation, and destitution.

The truth which corrects or destroys this mistaken belief and its awful consequences is, that there is but one Mind; for in the one immortal Mind there can be no war, no confusion, no discord, disease, or death. The one omnipotent Mind is God, and God is infinitely good, infinitely loving, infinitely just. War is not good. On the contrary, it is quite the reverse of good; it has even been classed by a noted general as "hell." Then war cannot be an idea of the one infinitely good Mind. It does not exist in Mind.

War is not loving. It is in fact the expression of envy, jealousy, fear, and hatred. It is not, therefore, instituted or authorized by that Mind which is infinitely loving, which is perfect, divine Love. There is no war in Love. War is not just. The cause of war is frequently, if not always, injustice. Hence war is not caused or permitted by an infinitely just Principle, or Mind, which is the only real lawmaker. There is no Principle in war, and no war in Principle. We thus see that war has no basis in Truth. It manifests no real intelligence. It is without real law or authority. In reality there is nothing to sustain it or upon which it can depend. It is not going on in Mind. It has no origin, history, or continuity. It can therefore have no consequence or effect. Life, Mind, is the only real presence, and Life cannot be disturbed or destroyed. In the realm of reality, in the universe of Mind, there is no turmoil, no confusion. All is perfect harmony, always.

Relatively speaking, war seems real and its causes often seem to be justifiable. In every conflict one side appears to human sense more nearly right than the other. It is not necessary, however, in this article to assign causes or to judge motives. From the human viewpoint the present conflict seems very real, and we as Christian Scientists are not indifferent to the hardships it entails. As humanitarians we have been glad to contribute materially to the relief of suffering; but this does not free us from the responsibility of declaring and knowing that in the absolute sense it is all unreal, because it is not of God. Nor is it right for us to accept evil conditions as inevitable or to prophesy their continuance or their recurrence.

Copyright, 1917, by The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Digitized by Google

While John the revelator says "there was war in heaven," and on page 567 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy says of the angel Michael that he "fights the holy wars," to the student of Christian Science it is evident that these statements refer to the mental conflict between good and evil, Spirit and matter, which is taking place in the partially regenerated human consciousness. This is the Christian warfare whereby in the individual and collective human consciousness evil is being overcome with good. It is only from the limited, finite point of view that war, or conflict of any kind, can appear real; for as Mrs. Eddy goes on to say of the angel whose office it is to impart a sense of Love's protecting care, "The Gabriel of His presence has no contests. To infinite, ever-present Love, all is Love, and there is no error, no sin, sickness, nor death."

Spiritual Weapons and Warfare

GRAY MONTGOMERY

ST. PAUL declared: "For though we walk in the flesh, we do not war after the flesh: (for the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strong holds;) casting down imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God." The warfare of Christian Science is not directed against any person or class of persons, or against any church; the battle is wholly waged against evil thoughts.

In Christian Science we know that evil is not a person; it is not an ecclesiastical organization or a medical association, but it is wrong thinking. The weapons of our warfare are right thoughts reflected from divine Love. Thoughts of Love overcome all fearful thoughts; good, pure, and holy thoughts remove all bad, impure, and ignoble thoughts, just as light banishes all darkness. We get rid of the evil thoughts of the carnal or mortal mind by the power of right thoughts based upon the spiritual understanding of perfect, infinite God, or divine Love, and perfect spiritual man in God's own image and likeness.

We do not "war after the flesh," but we aim to bring every thought "to the obedience of Christ." We do not overcome hatred and malice by giving back hatred and malice in return, but we overcome evil with good; we overcome hate through divine Love. We do not overcome malicious mental malpractice or aggressive mental suggestions by sending back evil and destructive thoughts, by cherishing unloving and bitter thoughts, thus becoming mental malpractitioners ourselves, but we can dissolve all error by knowing the allness of infinite Love, in whom there is no element of evil or destruction. Love does not know either sin, disease, or death, and in Love's presence evil thoughts and malicious purposes cannot exist.

In the chapter of Science and Health entitled Animal Magnetism Unmasked, we are told that mistaken, ignorant, and malicious thoughts may cause a person who fears them, accepts them, and believes in their so-called power, to sin, to be sick, and to suffer. Mrs. Eddy then shows us how to destroy this wrong mental influence by recognizing God, infinite Love, as the only power, the only Mind. While she explains that the practice of animal magnetism leads to destruction, she never intended that we should declare either mentally or audibly that any particular person, no matter how great a sinner, would be destroyed. In fact, she has directed us to do exactly the opposite, for on page 106 of "The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany" she says, "I admonish Christian Scientists either to speak charitably of all mankind or to keep silent, for love fulfils divine law and without this proof of love mental practice were profitless."

Throughout her writings Mrs. Eddy admonishes us not only to "speak charitably of all mankind" but to think charitably, and in our daily deeds to express unselfish and universal love toward our fellow men. Nothing less than a life of loving-kindness is demanded of us as Christian Scientists. As did the Saviour, so Mrs. Eddy makes the expression of love the true test of discipleship. Animal magnetism is rendered harmless as we turn to ever present divine Love, God, from whom flows only goodness and love, and in whom "we live, and move, and have our being."

Already there are unnumbered thousands who through the power of divine Love have risen above many false beliefs, have overcome a great deal of fear, and have put off much that is sensual and sinful. They are genuine Christian Scientists who, by becoming clear transparencies for Truth or reflectors of divine Love, are able to bring healing to others. If one is not living the pure, consecrated life demanded of a Christian Scientist, he cannot gain the spiritual understanding which heals the sick. Even though one is able to repeat word for word the statements of truth contained in the Bible and Science and Health, he can realize spiritual harmony and the reign of divine Love only in the degree that he has demonstrated spiritual living and goodness in his own life. Mrs. Eddy says (Miscellany, p. 160), "To live so as to keep human consciousness in constant relation with the divine, the spiritual, and the eternal, is to individualize infinite power; and this is Christian Science."

Purifying Experience

CORA F. COLLISON

IN scanning the history of mankind as revealed in the Bible, we find that many of its narratives tell of the lives of those who have passed through fiery trials and risen to higher planes of thought, and who through these experiences have become shining lights to all generations. In speaking of those "of whom the world was not worthy" Paul says, "Wherefore seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us."

Frequently through trials and suffering the gold of human character is separated from the dross; then the true man, the man created in God's image and likeness, is brought to light. On page 278 of "Miscellaneous Writings" Mrs. Eddy says, "Those only who are tried in the furnace reflect the image of their Father." So, when passing through trying ordeals we may follow the example of Moses as he approached the burning bush, and take off our shoes,—lay aside material beliefs of life and intelligence as resident in matter,—and step reverently, for the ground upon which we tread is holy.

It was through bitter experience that Moses learned meekness and humility. The pride of power and of human intellect had to be overcome before, chastened and purified, he beheld the light of Truth revealing the way of salvation. Thus he became the great leader of his people, and it was after he ascended the mount which burned,—a further overcoming of materiality,—that his ears were attuned to hear again the voice of Truth. This revelation brought forth the ten commandments, upon which all law and gospel were founded. How often it is seen that not until we are tested and tried to the utmost do we rise above the material sense of life and hear the "still small voice" of Truth.

Digitized by Google

Isaiah says concerning the Messiah, "In all their affliction he was afflicted, and the angel of his presence saved them: in his love and in his pity he redeemed them." This prophecy was fulfilled in the life of Christ Jesus. Even he, the immaculate one, was "a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief." Those priceless words of wisdom contained in the Sermon on the Mount were proclaimed after the temptations encountered in the wilderness, and the full proof of life as indestructible and eternal was revealed after he rose above the shadow of the cross and the tomb. Yes, "with his stripes we are healed." Following in his footsteps we encounter, as he did, the world's resistance to the truth; but the Christ-man, being spiritual, is never touched by error.

It is the unwillingness of the human mind to part with material belief which causes all inharmony, and until each individual rises above the plane where the human will crosses the divine, his upward path is overshadowed by these material beliefs. Wrong purposes and selfish desires opposed to the will of God cause all human strife. The giving up of the human will may seem to bring darkness and desolation, but as this veil of material sense is torn asunder a brighter and more spiritual light dawns upon the vision; then the true man, the risen Christ, appears. All who look beyond the veil of the flesh may recognize this ideal man, who ever has been and ever will be at-one with the Father. Then we can say with Job, "I know that my Redeemer liveth," and with the Master, "I and my Father are one." Through this self-renunciation we are prepared for the descent of the Holy Ghost, the spiritual inspiration which brings to disciples of Truth today, as of old, the assurance and proof of God's omnipotence and healing power, casting out all error and establishing the brotherhood of man.

The great error in all human problems is the belief that there is a power apart from God. Just in proportion as His omnipotence is realized and this knowledge applied to everyday problems, happiness and success are manifested in human affairs. The world's problems are but a replica of individual ones. Out of all the seeming conflict and confusion which at times agitates the minds of mortals, the voice of Truth will eventually be heard; but not until all elements of discord, such as pride, anger, malice, envy, revenge, and the like, are uncovered and entirely consumed, can peace and holiness become paramount in the hearts of mankind. Jesus once said that he came to send fire upon the earth, adding, "What will I, if it be already kindled?" Jesus was referring to the truth which he had taught and practised, the truth that man always has existed and always will exist as God's image and likeness, pure and unfallen.

Then as now this truth was a rebuke to all that is unlike God, and it caused dissension in the hearts where pride and materiality reigned. Notwithstanding the trials and persecutions which beset his pathway, Jesus ever stood firm in his realization of man's identity as the son of God. Paul and other apostles were tested to the utmost, suffering many persecutions for Truth's sake. In this day and age another follower of the Master faced the anathemas of an ungrateful world with courage unshaken, as again the voice of Truth sounded forth its clarion notes and the "seven thunders uttered their voices;" but through every adverse circumstance which beset Mrs. Eddy during her earthly career she learned the omnipotence of divine Love and constantly proved the truth of the Master's teachings.

It is through the clearer understanding of Truth which they are gaining through the inspired teachings of Mrs. Eddy and the study of the Bible as illumined by the text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," that Christian Scientists are learning how to bring forth "signs following." They rejoice in this knowledge, and that they have learned how to "abide under the shadow of the Almighty" and there rest secure from all the attacks of error. They pray "Thy kingdom come," knowing that it has come, and affirm with assurance that God is omnipotent and ever present.

Then let us rejoice, though human experience may seem to have its Gethsemane and its Calvary, for it is even by these that we are uplifted to see the dawn of that brighter day when all earth born shadows will have melted away in the sunrise of Spirit, radiant with light from above. And with joyous song caught from strains of heavenly melody, we shall find our lives attuned to the perfect harmony of celestial being. Then with hearts aflame with the reflection of divine Love we shall reach out to our brother man, and the warmth of that touch will bring healing and blessing and make the whole world kin.

Gossamer Webs

CAROLINE E. LINNELL

One beautiful August day, as I was walking on the slope of a Colorado mountain in one of nature's own gardens, the profusion, variety, and beauty of the flowers were a joy and an inspiration to me. Blue harebells, the gaillardia, the Indian paint-brush, and many varieties of gentians covered the ground as thickly as if sown by a gardener; but the particular flower for which I was searching, the beautiful Mariposa lily, was rare and most difficult to find. Presently in a little grove of aspens I saw a partly opened bud, but when I picked the dainty thing, instead of the beautiful promise of the lily bud I found a misshapen flower with the petals drawn and crumpled together. On looking closer to discover the cause of the malformation, I found that when it was only a bud a spider had spun his web so closely about it that the flower had not been able to unfold in its perfection.

Gently I broke the gossamer bands, and the pearly silken petals rolled back, revealing the painted throat of the lily and its feathery golden stamens. As I looked at the beautiful, perfect flower and the fragments of the spider's web which had bound it, I recalled the well known passage in Science and Health where Mrs. Eddy tells us that "mortal mind is constantly producing on mortal body the results of false opinions; and it will continue to do so, until mortal error is deprived of its imaginary powers by Truth, which sweeps away the gossamer web of mortal illusion" (p. 403). The spider's web had been no part of the flower, but seemed to make it misshapen, thus obscuring and deforming its perfection. So also the webs which are spun by false mortal belief are no part of the divine creation, even though they may seem to deform and deface the perfect manifestation.

Mankind has for ages accepted the binding claims of false belief as an inevitable part of human existence, and has helplessly allowed the weaving of the gossamer webs until there has seemed to be no hope of freedom; but to this generation has come the call of Truth, showing us how to break the web of illusion and thus obtain our freedom. On page 227 of Science and Health we read: "Citizens of the world, accept the 'glorious liberty of the children of God,' and be free! This is your divine right." As this gossamer web which seems to bind and entangle is woven by wrong belief, so our emancipation comes by knowing that the bonds of one's enslavement are not real and enduring, but are merely the illusion of material sense and can be swept away by the touch of Truth. When we learn that sickness is no part of man's true being, this very understanding sets us free to overcome the enslaving sins and fears which seem to make this bondage possible.

Digitized by Google

The chief cause of sin and sickness is ignorance as to our real selfhood. We have thought that we were children of mortality, bound by material laws which were so mighty that it was an impossibility for poor struggling humanity to break them. Now we are learning that all this was a mistake, that we are in reality the children of God, with all that this implies; that our heritage is health, peace, freedom, power; that we are governed by spiritual law, not by material belief; that we are influenced by the divine Mind, not by any human mentality. We are learning that because we are the children of God we have a right to expect in ourselves qualities which are like our Father: that because God is Love, we can be pure, loving, happy, peaceful; that because God is all-power, we have strength; because God is Life, we reflect health and vigor; and because God is Mind, we manifest mental activity.

As we more and more realize the truth of our being and daily dwell in the consciousness of our real selfhood, this realization becomes to us the power of Truth, "which sweeps away the gossamer web of mortal illusion" and sets us free to attain the "glorious liberty of the children of God."

"Whence comest thou?"

W. L. MERRITT

As a usual thing, the one who is coming into Christian Science finds the first rough place in his upward climb to be the question, If God is All-in-all, and all-power and all-presence, whence comes the evil that seems to finite sense to be in the world? In the first chapter of Job, even God is credited with this same question,—"And the Lord said unto Satan, Whence comest thou?" Satan's answer is typical of all evil and is the only way evil could ever be explained to mortal mind, namely, "From going to and fro in the earth, and from walking up and down in it." In other words, mortal belief is the result of delving into matter for cause, and of believing in matter as substance; the result of a material, sensuous state of mind. It is, however, nothing, for it is the seeming absence of God, Spirit, as the true Life of men. It is as darkness, which although it is nothing to spiritual vision, to material sense is very real.

Where does a mistake in a mathematical problem come from? A little thought soon shows that it is due to a lack of knowledge of the principle of mathematics, or, personifying the mistake, the mistake might say of itself that it came "from going to and fro" in numbers, regardless of their basic law. Now let us see how this applies to the problem of the origin of evil. Mrs. Eddy tells us in Science and Health that God is Principle. Then sin, sickness, death, and all evil, seem to be present because we have gone "to and fro in the earth" and not lived according to Principle, or God's law. Manifestly the way to correct this mistake and its resultant discord is to apply divine Principle, Truth, to our every problem; or, as is said in the Bible, "Acquaint now thyself with him [God], and be at peace."

Again, it is easily seen that a mistake in numbers is not real in the absolute sense, but only seems real or true to the one who accepts it as correct; and as soon as the correct rule or basic law is applied, the mistake vanishes and is unreal. So evil is real only to those who indulge or believe in it, and when the law of God, or Principle of the universe, is applied to it, it vanishes into its native nothingness.

Christian Science does not teach us to ignore evil; but as in mathematics that which corrects the mistake is not the disregarding of the error but the application of the truth to the problem, so also in life that which corrects evil and destroys it is not the disregarding of it but the applying of the law of God to it, as Jesus did when he healed the sick and the sinning. Thus Mrs. Eddy shows us, on page 339 of Science and Health, that "a sinner can receive no encouragement from the fact that Science demonstrates the unreality of evil, for the sinner would make a reality of sin . . . Only those, who repent of sin and forsake the unreal, can fully understand the unreality of evil."

Wholeness

LOUIS A. GREGORY

WHOLENESS is a universal human ideal, an innate, heartfelt, spiritual desire. Even the thought that erroneously rejects perfection as "too good to be true," usually accepts this synonym of perfection as a practical standard of soundness, health, or completeness, including all desirable elements. The admonition to be "whole" therefore makes a stirring appeal to human consciousness. So effectual was this appeal, voicing the spiritual thought of Jesus, that virulent disease and sin instantly vanished before it.

The word "whole" occurs frequently in the score or more of cases where the gospels quote the language Jesus addressed to those whom he healed, and even where the word does not occur the sense connotes wholeness. Mrs. Eddy says: "The so-called laws of matter and of medical science have never made mortals whole, harmonious, and immortal. . . . Hence the importance of understanding the truth of being, which reveals the laws of spiritual existence" (Science and Health, p. 273). The Christ-command to be "whole," or the declaration that the one addressed was whole, was not that of one mortal speaking to another; it was spiritual man, the idea of God, speaking to the human sense. It was always heard and understood in that way, as proved by the instant and perfect healing that accompanied it, for the human mind and senses do not so perceive man, and consequently cannot heal in that way; neither can they convey or receive such perception or healing. Christ, the ever present, perfect, and only healer, states the truth and synonymity of holiness and wholeness to every individual continually, and the hearing and expressing of that truth is healing.

Wholeness is the eternal condition of man as God's child, and includes spiritual consciousness as the only consciousness of man; therefore he understands this true condition and demonstrates it. The spiritual power and good that Jesus demonstrated is not then peculiarly and exclusively his possession; but it is peculiar to the Christ-spirit manifested by him and is exclusive of everything else, as the full reflection of infinity must be. Surely the same power and good that Jesus reflected are elements of the "Spirit of truth" that he said should remain for all time with those who follow him as "the way,"—who understand and apply the truth he taught and demonstrated.

Jesus made it clear in many ways that bodily health or wholeness depends upon holiness. Directly to the point is his admonition to the impotent man: "Behold, thou art made whole: sin no more, lest a worse thing come unto thee." Likewise the Science of Christ teaches that genuine wholeness and true holiness are always inseparable. It reveals that belief in physical health and harmony apart from goodness is a delusion, since "only the action of Truth, Life, and Love can give harmony" (Science and Health, p. 169). On the one hand, this Science disagrees with the medical method that attempts to heal disease without correcting the evil which in mortal belief caused it; on the other hand, it shows that religious teaching is erroneous if it does not prove the power of infinite Mind, God, good, to destroy disease and all inharmony as well as sin.

Digitized by Google

Erroneous or creedal religion does not destroy sin as does the spiritual power of Christ, Truth, nor does material medicine heal sickness as Christ Jesus did. He proved long ago what Christian Science is demonstrating today—that perfect religion, spiritual understanding, says to the sick, "Be whole," and its command is followed by healing, just as it says to the sinning, "Sin no more," and the response is reformation, for both are expressions of infinite Principle. Mistaken religious profession, lacking the recognition of God as Principle, does not accomplish either result, for the departure from Principle which denies the power or presence of Spirit to heal disease, detracts from the demonstration of spiritual power and presence to heal sin.

Truly to be "whole" one must possess the undivided garment of Truth, must accept and prove the Christ-teaching of salvation from all evil, sin, and death. Yet ofttimes a slight perception of the glorious truth the Master taught is sufficient to transform human experience. The epistle of Mark tells of a woman who, hearing of Jesus and his works, felt if she could but touch the hem of his robe she would be healed. She was healed, and received the assurance, "Daughter, thy faith hath made thee whole; go in peace, and be whole of thy plague."

Faith in anything imperfect neither produces such healing nor fulfils the Messianic promises of complete salvation; but true faith in the perfect Principle of the Master reproduces such healing now and leads to the promised knowledge of the truth that makes free. Such freedom, or wholeness, must be among the "greater works" that the Saviour declared should be accomplished by his followers, "because I go unto my Father," as he said,—because man, conscious of his unity with God, is whole.

✧

[Written for the Sentinel]

From Cross to Crown

M. LOUISE BAUM

WAYMARK of victory, triumph white,
Pillared with beauty and domed with light.
Circle of empery, grand and good,
Crowning at last high womanhood.

Long had the solemn cross pointed the way
Down the dark centuries toward the day.
Sealed was the sepulcher, none saw Christ;
Woman, the first there, kept the tryst.
Dawned on her waiting heart vision of Life,
Blameless forever, unstained of strife.
Saw she the perfect round, Parian pure,
'Stablished in Spirit, in Love secure.
Here is a conqueror God hath crowned,—
Love slays the dragon without a wound.

What shall a world of woe offer here?
Ah! not a sword, but a cleansing tear!
Meekness in samite robed, bringing sheaves,
Nothing can give but a heart that receives.
Steps for the pilgrim are plain to trace,
Where who love God meet face to face;
Where, in the placid pool, troubled no more,
The heavens are mirrored from shore to shore.
Built is the shining whole, stone on stone,
Promise, fulfilment, and lo! the crown!

Selected Articles

[Judge Clifford P. Smith in Pittsfield (Mass.) News]

It ought to be a plain proposition that a medical doctor should be almost the last person to explain the method of Christian Science healing. If he understood it he would practise it,—at least he would wish he were able to do so. Nevertheless, medical journals continually misrepresent the practice of Christian Science, and some of those items are reprinted in disinterested periodicals.

An instance of this occurred recently, when the News reprinted an article from the Journal of American Medicine. In that article the writer described the method of Christian Science as "an application of the power of a stronger mind over a weaker one." This is the very opposite of Christian Science, and is what this religion emphatically condemns. Christian Science declares the right of every individual, whether called weaker or stronger than another, to be free from the domination, mental or physical, of other persons; and it teaches how to attain and maintain this freedom. Mrs. Eddy, more than any teacher in modern times, has exposed the danger and evil of hypnotism, suggestion, and mental trespass upon human rights. Any one who wishes to know the method of Christian Science needs first of all to learn that its theology and practice are based, to quote words used by Mrs. Eddy in "Miscellaneous Writings" (p. 62), "on the action of the divine Mind over the human mind and body."

✧

[H. R. Colborne in Sydney Telegraph, New South Wales, Australia]

From a report of a case in which a conscientious objector stated he was a Christian Scientist, a misconception may arise in the minds of your readers as to the teachings of Christian Science.

Mrs. Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, at the time of the Spanish-American War wrote as follows: "Pray for the prosperity of our country, and for her victory under arms; that justice, mercy, and peace continue to characterize her government, and that they shall rule all nations" (Christian Science versus Pantheism, p. 14). In answer to the question that was put to her about the same time, "Should difficulties between the United States and Spain be settled peacefully by statesmanship and diplomacy, in a way honorable and satisfactory to both nations?" she wrote, "I will say I can see no other way of settling difficulties between individuals and nations than by means of their wholesome tribunals, equitable laws, and sound, well-kept treaties;" and later on she says, "But if our nation's rights or honor were seized, every citizen would be a soldier and woman would be armed with power girt for the hour" (The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany, p. 277). On page 448 of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," Mrs. Eddy writes, "It is Christian Science to do right, and nothing short of right doing has any claim to the name."

From these quotations it will be seen that Christian Science stands for right and justice; it nowhere teaches that men should shirk their duty, but it does teach that their acts are the results of their right or wrong thinking, and that while in the present stage of human experience the sword may have to be taken in defense of human rights, it never teaches that the sword should be taken for any other purpose, nor that it should be taken with the thought of malice, hatred, or revenge; nor does it teach that war will be destroyed by war. In speaking of the first commandment of the Decalogue Mrs. Eddy says that it is her favorite text, and adds that "one infinite God, good, unifies men and nations; constitutes the brotherhood of man; ends wars; fulfils the Scripture, 'Love thy neighbor as thyself;' annihilates pagan and Christian idolatry,—whatever is wrong in social, civil, criminal, political, and religious codes; equalizes the sexes; annuls the curse on man, and leaves nothing that can sin, suffer, be punished or destroyed" (Science and Health, p. 340).

Digitized by Google

As was well pointed out by the Christian Science lecturer who recently visited this city, divine protection can be claimed only by a man who is thinking and acting rightly. That men have been divinely protected is evidenced by many instances recorded in the Scriptures. Christian Science teaches that the law of divine protection is an ever operative spiritual law, and this has been proved by many; but it is always subject to the condition stated in the first and ninth verses of the ninety-first psalm—well described as the soldiers' psalm.

✧

[Lloyd B. Coate in The Alliance (Ohio) Review and Leader]

If our friendly critic is correctly reported, there are some things said deserving of commendation, and some things that need correction. He is reported as saying that "there were many things the church might learn from Christian Science, including greater loyalty to the Bible, more faithful testimony to the power and grace of Jesus Christ, the value and privilege of prayer, and last, but not least, the potency of a holy life." We appreciate this statement, together with his admission that Christian Science heals the sick. This fact is now quite generally conceded.

While Christian Scientists are most grateful for the physical healing of disease, our friend is wrong if he thinks they give more emphasis to physical healing than to spiritual. That people are healed of physical disease is not the only reason for the growth of the Christian Science church. In most instances the greater joy that comes to Christian Scientists is due to the fact that the teachings of Science and Health satisfy the deepest spiritual needs of men. In the light of Christian Science the Bible is more precious than before this truth was made known. A teaching that leads its followers to have greater confidence in God and the promises of Christ Jesus cannot be opposed to Christianity.

Instead of Christian Science being opposed to and contrary to the Bible, it is saving the Bible from mutilation through the unbelief of those who believe in matter and a material creation as the real, rather than in Spirit and a spiritual creation as the only reality of existence. Fairness and justice would give Mrs. Eddy the same right to her view of the Scriptures as the dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago would ask for himself. Through Mrs. Eddy's understanding of the Scriptures the sick are healed and the sinner is reformed as Jesus promised. Shall Mrs. Eddy's explanation of Scripture be called unreasonable when it heals the sick, while a material interpretation does not? Surely the one nearest right is the one whose fruit is most in accord with what the great Master said would follow those who believe and understand his words.

Christian Scientists are strict monotheists; that is, they believe in only one God. On page 587 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy defines God as "the great I AM; the all-knowing, all-seeing, all-acting, all-wise, all-loving, and eternal; Principle; Mind; Soul; Spirit; Life; Truth; Love; all substance; intelligence." Christian Science insists that the only reality in existence is God and God's creation. On page 71 Mrs. Eddy says: "Nothing is real and eternal,—nothing is Spirit, —but God and His idea. Evil has no reality. It is neither person, place, nor thing, but is simply a belief, an illusion of material sense." When professed Christians accept God as omnipotent, then they will begin to see the unreality of evil. Evil is to be scientifically reduced to nothingness by understanding that God is all-power, in the way taught by Jesus.

Christian Scientists believe in God as infinite Person, but not in the sense of a big corporeal man. On page 116 of the text-book Mrs. Eddy says, "If the term personality, as applied to God, means infinite personality, then God is infinite Person,—in the sense of infinite personality, but not in the lower sense." It would be impossible for human language to pay a higher tribute to Jesus the Christ than may be found in the writings of the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science. Christian Scientists believe in glorifying Jesus as he requested in that remarkable prayer recorded in the seventeenth chapter of John's gospel.

Christian Science is leading mankind out of the darkness of atheism and infidelity into a clearer understanding of God. The Church Manual governing all Christian Scientists teaches that Christ Jesus is the ensample for all Christian Scientists, and it states that to acknowledge any other Christ than the one mentioned in the Scriptures would disqualify one from membership in this church. (See Art. VIII, Sects. 3, 7.) We believe if the ministry would make a more careful and prayerful investigation of Christian Science, a greater number would make a similar acknowledgment to that of the clergyman in Broadway Tabernacle Print: "Christian Science is a protest against the awful materialism of our age." Referring to the disbelief in the world against Jesus' healing work, he says: "It was at this crisis that the Founder of Christian Science arose, and in defiance of the opinion of her day not only claimed all the miracles of Jesus of Nazareth as genuine, but asserted that just such mighty things can be done today. Her teaching was a protest against the entire materialistic conception of man."

✧

[W. Stuart Booth in Canon City (Col.) Record]

A paper purporting to be for Bible students, which was widely distributed in Canon City recently, referred to Christian Science as having been brought forward by Satan with a view to confusing the people and leading them away from the truth. It is indeed passing strange that Satan should be credited with bringing forth the very teaching that not only posits but proves the powerlessness, yea, the utter nothingness, of Satan and all evil, including sickness and sorrow, fear and lack, as well as sin. That Christian Science does this is now an acknowledged or indisputable fact, even where its method of accomplishment is not understood.

Inasmuch as the carnal mind is ever the same, it is interesting to note that when the Pharisees could no longer deny the healings wrought by Christ Jesus, they attempted to discredit him by saying that he cast out devils by the prince of devils, which is just another way of saying that Satan had sent forth Jesus to confuse the people. The Master refuted this lie with the self-evident truth, "Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation; . . . and if Satan cast out Satan, he is divided against himself; how shall then his kingdom stand?"

The study of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, reveals its basis to be the immutability of God, good, and His perfect creation. From that premise it proves that all evil is simply the figment of the devil, declared by Christ Jesus to be a liar and the father of lies. Mrs. Eddy was eminently practical in all her teachings, which are not expressed in dry dogmas but in daily deeds. All through her writings we find such admonitions as the following from pages 283 and 201 of Science and Health: "We must receive the divine Principle in the understanding, and live it in daily life; and unless we so do, we can no more demonstrate Science, than we can teach and illustrate geometry by calling a curve a straight line or a straight line a sphere." "The best sermon ever preached is Truth practised and demonstrated by the destruction of sin, sickness, and death." Christian Scientists are daily finding that in proportion as they obey these admonitions, and conform their thinking and living to the law of God, the fruit of the Spirit is their present reward, and they know of a certainty that "God is not the author of confusion, but of peace."

Digitized by Google

✧

[Avery Coonley in The Whig, Quincy, Ill.]

In his recent revival in Quincy an evangelist had a number of things to say about Christian Science. Of those quoted in The Whig one was true, namely, that there are intelligent people in the movement. Another, that Christian Science teaches there is no such thing as sin, was true if it be understood that Christian Science recognizes sin only as a belief of the human mind. Christian Science declares that God made all that was made, "and, behold, it was very good." Since sin is not good but evil, God did not create it, and therefore it exists only in false belief. The correction of error by truth reforms the sinner and destroys the sin.

The evangelist's statement that Mrs. Eddy is a "false teacher" because she does not interpret the Bible statements about "blood" as he does, is only an expression of his opinion. Since there are scores of Christian denominations, each differing from the others in the interpretation of the Scriptures, this opinion is not important. It may be said of Mrs. Eddy's understanding of the Bible, that it has enabled Christian Scientists to heal the sick as Jesus promised "them that believe" they should be able to do. No other Christian denomination is putting its interpretation of the Bible to so searching a test.

The statement that Christian Science "makes it impossible to pray" is absurd. Christian Scientists not only endeavor to "pray without ceasing," but they strive to make the solution of their daily problems the subject of prayer, and it is commonly remarked by friendly members of other denominations that their prayers are answered in unusual degree, a fact which indicates that they know how to pray.

✧

[Editorial in Los Angeles (Cal.) Graphic]

Opportunity for propaganda is being made of the commission appointed by the state legislature to examine into the various aspects of health insurance by those who are desirous of a socialization of medical practice, and if Californians don't watch out the doctors will surely "git" them. This propaganda desires "to make the public understand the necessity of frequent examinations, the value of supervision rather than mere treatment;" and "if the people at large could be interested in the matter sufficiently to make them act at all, they would probably make the organization complete and arrive with one leap at state medicine." There you have it. You are going to be doctored whether you will or no.

Now, we are familiar with the socialist argument that as all the people in a state maintain all the doctors in the state in order to cure them when they are sick, they might as well pay those doctors through the state to prevent people from sickness, and indeed give them a bonus on a reduced death rate. That is excellent in theory, but some medical men we know, having regard to the acknowledgedly inexact state of their science, are candid enough to say, "Heaven forbid that we doctors be given compulsory powers over private citizens."

It may be true, just as the more crime there is the more prosperous are the police, that the more sickness there is the more healthy it is for the doctor's bank-roll; but there is at present not sufficient evidence that the medical men know enough about disease and the ways of curing it to justify their endowment with compulsory powers. Bernard Shaw, for instance, who is for state compulsion in all sorts of things, tried in his "Doctor's Dilemma" to make out that even with the great advances in medical knowledge practitioners are yet but a sorry set of bunglers, forgetting that if he is logical in his state socialism he must nevertheless compulsorily hand himself and the bodies of his fellow citizens over to the empirical care of these same "bunglers."

It is old-fashioned to talk about personal liberty, and admittedly as society becomes more complicated and highly organized it involves further interference with the life and conduct of the individual citizen; but there is surely a reasonable limit. Otherwise we shall soon see Mr. Private Citizen, who, because too busy making bread and butter for his bairns and enough money to pay his increasing state taxes, has neglected to appear at the City Hall for his weekly inspection, being held up in Broadway by the state doctor and a squad of police and forcibly made to put out his tongue for the "once-over." And what lively elections we shall see when the fight is on between the various factions for possession of the state medicine chest! Possibly a bloc composed of the advocates of mental therapeutics, faith healers, psycho-analysts, osteopaths, and homeopaths may triumph at the polls over the lancetites and the serumites, what time the poor patient has not a kick left, because he will have paid his doctor's bills in advance to Sacramento.

But there is a ray of hope. Those who are seeking compulsory methods and discussing "the harmful results of free choice of physicians," are lecturing among the women voters a great deal. Well, there will be a slump in the propaganda as soon as the woman understands that under a state system she will not be able to choose her own personal doctor. Regarding that sacred prerogative the average woman is adamant.

✧

[Charles W. J. Tennant in Reading (England) Observer]

Our critic says that Christian Science is antichristian. This is not true. Christian Science is the restoration of Christianity in its original simplicity and purity, healing the sick and reforming the sinner by the same spiritual understanding which was possessed by Jesus, his disciples, and the early Christians. If this critic were fulfilling the command of our Master to heal the sick by this means, he would know of the doctrine, whether it was of God or not. He who has not the signs which "follow them that believe" is hardly in a position to judge those who have.

Another of our critic's gratuitous remarks is that Christian Science is a great delusion. Had he any conception of the hundreds of thousands of sick and suffering who have been healed and regenerated, of the multitudes of victims of every form of vice and bad habits who have been transformed into pure, upright, and worthy citizens through the benign influence of Christian Science, he would be the last person to call it a "great delusion." Again, Christian Science has nothing in common with pagan philosophies. The age is crying out for the practice of Christianity more than for the preaching of dry dogmas. Humanity is calling for bread in place of the stones of creeds and ceremonies. Christian Science is giving this bread of life, and for this reason the movement is spreading throughout the civilized world with a rapidity unknown by any religion save primitive Christianity. The opposition of the carnal mind has no effect on its growth; it is of God, therefore it advances.

Digitized by Google

Editorial

One Standard

When Jesus sent forth the twelve disciples he gave them this comprehensive commandment: "As ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand. Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils: freely ye have received, freely give." This command has since been called "the great commission," and upon this great commission is largely based the authority for all Christian ministry. It must be noted, however, that before our Master commissioned these disciples to go forth, he gave them power to do the things which constituted this ministry, even the healing work which he himself had done. Matthew says that he "gave them power against unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to heal all manner of sickness and all manner of disease;" in other words, he taught them how to minister to those in need: not only those who were worried or afraid about their spiritual condition and aspirations, but also those who were suffering from all manner of bodily ills.

It is upon these same lines that Mrs. Eddy has predicated the Science of Mind-healing, and that she taught Christian Scientists to minister to those having the same spiritual and physical needs today. It is also to be noted that Jesus foresaw that as ministers of Truth his disciples would be misunderstood and mistreated, therefore he warned them that because of the perversity of mortal mind they would be as "sheep in the midst of wolves," and that only by the exercise of wisdom surpassing the wisdom of this world, and by faith in God, could they escape the snares set for them. Because she too discerned the iniquity of mortal mind, and the hatred of Truth which is a part of this belief of mind in matter, Mrs. Eddy saw the necessity for preparing her followers to heal the sick and to protect themselves while so doing.

Christian Scientists have had ample reason to be grateful for the Leader's keen discernment and that she provided for their need not only through personal instruction, but also through her writings, especially Science and Health, of which she writes on page 50 of "Miscellaneous Writings": "'Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures' is a complete text-book of Christian Science; and its metaphysical method of healing is as lucid in presentation as can be possible, under the necessity to express the metaphysical in physical terms. There is absolutely no additional secret outside of its teachings, or that gives one the power to heal; but it is essential that the student gain the spiritual understanding of the contents of this book, in order to heal."

In the Church Manual, page 86, direction is given as to the basis of teaching from Science and Health in both the Normal and Primary classes, and on page 84 there is a rule for the guidance of students' associations which directs that the Bible and Science and Health shall be their only guides. Over twenty years ago the Bible and Science and Health were ordained to be the impersonal pastor of the denomination, and during all this time the Sunday Lesson-Sermons have been compiled from these two books. It is plain therefore that Mrs. Eddy recognized that in establishing Christian Science, and in making it useful to the world and able to withstand the misrepresentations and denials that were sure to follow its faithful practice, she must set a standard by which the genuineness of all that purports to be Christian Science might be determined; and with her usual wisdom and foresight she took every means possible to identify Science and Health as this standard.

With this standard of Christian Science, supplemented and sustained by her other writings, Mrs. Eddy has equipped her followers to carry on the work which Christ Jesus commissioned not only his immediate followers, but all Christians to do. To those who today are teachers of Christian Science, this standard of correct teaching says, on page 454: "Teach your students the omnipotence of Truth, which illustrates the impotence of error. The understanding, even in a degree, of the divine All-power destroys fear, and plants the feet in the true path,—the path which leads to the house built without hands, 'eternal in the heavens.' Human hate has no legitimate mandate and no kingdom. Love is enthroned."

Strengthened by this assurance, and also the assurance that the purity and authenticity of Christian Science as taught by Mrs. Eddy is established and preserved as definitely as is the standard of fine gold, Christian Scientists may proceed with confidence to do the works which their Master, Christ Jesus, said should crown the labors of all who should believe on him.

Archibald McLellan.

Playing Safe

Since Paul in addressing the Corinthians once drew a most telling illustration of spiritual activity from the races in the Isthmian games, it may be permissible to point a similar moral from the modern athletic field. Sometimes nothing less than a phrase culled straight from the common vernacular will suffice to place a given situation squarely before human thought. When one side in a game has obtained the advantage and tries to maintain this advantage without taking any further risks, it is said to be "playing safe." This policy may succeed for a time, but presently the side which continues to "play safe" loses the power of initiative, drops its individuality and activity, and becomes incapable of further effort.

The reason for this effect is simple enough. "Playing safe" is always due to fear, and eventually earns the fruits of fear; and the same is true in regard to the mental battles so prevalent in human life. Men and institutions after reaching an assured position have a way of settling down into a groove of profitless conservation, which is mental dry-rot. They are tempted to leave well enough alone, or to "let sleeping dogs lie," as the saying is, out of a dread of disturbing others or of being disturbed themselves. Thus fear paves the way for greed, personal power, autocracy, and reaction, and the freshness and spontaneity of spiritual progress is effectually blocked.

An individual or organization bereft of inspiration cannot bring forth demonstration, but is turned over to the tender mercies of mortal mind, which is enabled to know beforehand just what will be done under given circumstances. In this stagnant state of mind individuals often outstay their usefulness in office, and institutions keep on their swaddling clothes long after they have outgrown them. The competitor having run a good race and received a prize, clings to his prize, forgetting that he has other races to run and that his goal is perfection. It is quite useless to look to "the wisdom of this world," even though supported by popularity, or to man-made laws, or to mechanical efficiency for safety from hidden foe or false friend.

On page 89 of "Miscellaneous Writings" Mrs. Eddy has summed up the statement of man's true safety in the words, "Immortal man, in God's likeness, is safe in divine Science;" and mankind must seek safety in the spiritual realization of this fact, or else forego any possibility of attaining peace on earth. On another page (117) of this same work Mrs. Eddy writes: "The student of Christian Science must first separate the tares from the wheat; discern between the thought, motive, and act superinduced by the wrong motive or the true—the God-given intent and volition—arrest the former, and obey the latter. This will place him on the safe side of practice. We always know where to look for the real Scientist, and always find him there."

Digitized by Google

He who will not choose the better part, and who rests content in moral atrophy, excludes himself by this very fact from the joys of heaven. For him there can be no moments of supreme gratitude over sin destroyed, or disease cured, or grief rejected through Christian Science, since all of this involves taking a stand and overcoming error by drawing the line of demarcation. The sweet moments resulting from self-sacrifice are not for him who refuses to renounce self, nor can he reach a Sabbath rest after the six days of his endeavor. Can the early dew, the limpid blue of the sky, the pink of the trailing arbutus, the tender haze upon the distance, the boldness of cliff or crag, the velvet green pastures or the peace of still waters be ever truly comprehended as symbols or divine qualities, till the Christian through spiritual understanding has learned to separate matter from Mind? Can he ever truly run his race and win his prize, if he continues trying to "play safe," and is not willing to risk all for Christ, Truth? For Truth makes safe,—and there is no other safety.

WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN.

"Mark the perfect man"

BIBLE students in general are acquainted with the psalmist's statement, "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright: for the end of that man is peace." This statement usually carries with it a thought of sadness, because many take it to mean that even the perfect man does not find peace before the end of his earthly days. In Christian Science, however, we are taught to look diligently for both peace and perfection, even though the religious opinions of those about us may tell us that these are not to be attained here, at least. One of the profound utterances of the great Teacher is this: "The disciple is not above his master: but every one that is perfect shall be as his master."

Unbiased students of the New Testament must admit that perfection was the goal toward which all thought was directed in the time of Christ Jesus and his immediate followers; and that this truth had a vital place in the healing work done at the beginning of the Christian era is clearly understood by all students of Christian Science. On page 259 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy says, "The Christlike understanding of scientific being and divine healing includes a perfect Principle and idea,—perfect God and perfect man,—as the basis of thought and demonstration." It needs no argument to show that without a perfect Principle no problem can be worked out rightly or with satisfying results; and if our demonstrations at times appear to be slow, it only proves that we have failed to grasp the meaning of the perfect Principle of Christian Science or are unwilling to comply with its high demands.

The religious teachings which were familiar to many of us before we came to Christian Science embodied a certain kind of humility which made us quite ready to declare that we were constant offenders against divine law; but this teaching also furnished the belief that God was acquainted with this human imperfection and was at least partially responsible for it. Christian Science, however, takes away from us this crutch of mortal belief by uncovering the lameness of the mortal argument that anything which God made is ever less than perfect.

Here it may be asked how or where we are to "mark the perfect man." This brings us to Mrs. Eddy's oft quoted statement on page 476 of Science and Health: "Jesus beheld in Science the perfect man, who appeared to him where sinning mortal man appears to mortals." A superficial reading of this passage might leave one with the impression that Jesus regarded every sinning man whom he met as God's perfect man. The passage, however, distinctly says that he beheld this perfect man "in Science." This does not mean that a Christian Scientist would for a moment admit the reality of the sinning mortal concept of a man, but would look away from this and beyond it to the perfect spiritual idea, which, like the perfect creator, is ever present. Paul presents this very beautifully in the first chapter of his epistle to the Colossians, where he speaks of "Christ in you, the hope of glory." To this he adds, "Whom we preach, warning every man, and teaching every man in all wisdom; that we may present every man perfect in Christ Jesus." Without this sense of man's real nature and capabilities it would not be possible to bring about healing for any one. It is to be noted that the practitioner does not make the man perfect, but his work is to present the perfection which is inseparable from the Christ-idea.

Of all our Master's utterances none has more profound significance than these words spoken to his followers: "I in them, and thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one; and that the world may know that thou hast sent me, and hast loved them, as thou hast loved me." St. John, who gave us these wonderful words, says in his first epistle, "If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his love is perfected in us." Christian Science constantly reminds us that God is Love, and teaches us that it is through the recognition and demonstration of divine Love that we reach the perfect man and find here and now the peace of God "which passeth all understanding."

ANNIE M. KNOTT.

Lecture in The Mother Church

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston, Massachusetts, announces a free public lecture on Christian Science by Virgil O. Strickler, C.S.B., a member of the Christian Science board of lectureship, in the church edifice, Falmouth, Norway, and St. Paul Streets, Back Bay, Friday, April 6, 1917, at eight o'clock. The public is cordially invited.

Among the Churches

Current Notes

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA.—The press as a general rule maintains a friendly attitude. Reprints from the Christian Science publications, the Sentinel, Journal, and Monitor, have appeared in a great many papers and magazines. Christian Science lectures were published in full by local papers in twenty communities. Copies of these papers have been circulated by local workers and also by this office.

Christian Science publications and periodicals have been sent to the state prisons at San Quentin and Folsom, and to the Preston Industrial School at Ione. Services are held in San Quentin the first and third Sundays of each month, three workers from San Francisco having charge; and at Folsom services are conducted every Sunday morning, the workers from Sacramento attending to this. Public libraries have been supplied with Christian Science books and periodicals by the Trustees under the Will of Mrs. Eddy, and renewals of subscriptions to periodicals are being made when they terminate.—Committee on Publication.

Digitized by Google

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.—The newspapers continue to be increasingly friendly to our cause. While nearly twice as many corrections were sent out from this office as compared with the previous year, only one newspaper owner, outside of the sectarian press, refused to print the correction, and this on the ground that the erroneous statement was minor and unimportant. In one paper a three column article attacking Christian Science and Mrs. Eddy was printed as a paid advertisement, but the reply was accepted without charge. Thirty-four corrections were published, as were also eighty-three full reports of lectures delivered by members of the Christian Science board of lectureship of The Mother Church (twenty more than last year), and a large number of reprints from our periodicals and of articles favorable to Christian Science and to medical freedom which appeared in other periodicals. More than one hundred thousand of these papers were distributed, in addition to their normal circulation.

Literature distributed from this office is approximately as follows: 10,302 Sentinels, 1972 Journals, 307 Heralds, 46,-331 Monitors, 229 Quarterlies, 1275 pamphlets; 3100 papers containing corrections, 27,593 containing full reports of Christian Science lectures, 7000 containing articles on medical freedom; 15 copies of Science and Health, 22 of other writings by our Leader, 3 of "The Life of Mary Baker Eddy" by Sibyl Wilbur; 1000 copies of the speech by Senator John D. Works, 200 pamphlets, "Dangers in the Use of Serums," and 500 copies of "Medical Freedom."

There have been placed in ninety-eight libraries in southern California, through the assistance of the Trustees under the Will of Mrs. Eddy, 681 books and 132 subscriptions.

Committee on Publication.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—The past year has witnessed a most encouraging awakening to the teachings of Christian Science in our state. The newspapers have published 179 answers written to correct attacks on or misrepresentations of Christian Science. They have also published 379 favorable articles, exclusive of lectures and answers, including news items and editorials on the Cole case. The number of reports of lectures published was 235, including 11 full lectures, making a total of 793 favorable articles of all kinds published during the year. This office is assisting the Trustees under the Will of Mrs. Eddy to place complete or partial sets of our Leader's writings and other authorized Christian Science literature in public libraries, libraries of universities, colleges, and normal schools, also Federal and state prisons and reformatories. The number of copies of the various publications so donated during the past year was 220 pieces, and 347 subscriptions to the Sentinel, Journal, or Monitor. The literature distributed by this office direct numbered 59,115 pieces.—Committee on Publication.

Admission to Membership in The Mother Church

The next admission of candidates will be June 1, 1917. Application blanks may be obtained by addressing the Clerk of The Mother Church, and should be returned to him on or before Wednesday, May 9, 1917.

An application sent to the Clerk does not constitute the applicant a member. Notice of election will be sent to those who are admitted to membership.

Those who have made application for membership prior to Nov. 3, 1916, and have not received notice of election, may communicate with the Clerk if they so desire, and are especially requested to do so before sending in a second application.

JOHN V. DITTEMORE, Clerk,
236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

The Lectures

PETOSKEY, MICH. (First Church).—Ezra W. Palmer, lecturer; introduced by the Rev. Louis Grosenbaugh, who said in part:—

Speaking of more recent developments in the sphere of religion, our attention is at once directed to Christian Science. Its growth and fruitage have been truly phenomenal, and its record is almost without a parallel. The name "Christian Science" at once challenges attention. What I mean by this will be understood when I say that Christ Jesus on the one hand and science on the other are preeminently the dominating forces in present-day life. No intelligent man will deny that the world of today is rapidly yielding to the teaching of Christ and accepting the findings of science. To be truly Christlike, and to be genuinely scientific, means for us in these days the highest and best to which man can attain. How much of the teaching of Christ and how much of the finding of science the great movement before us has assimilated, will very likely appear in the lecture to which we shall soon listen.

Like every other new movement in the world's religious history, Christian Science has met with strong and bitter opposition. Much of this unkind criticism is, I am sure, the outgrowth of misconceptions as to what Christian Science really embodies. In many instances a false image has been set up, and against this caricature men have vented their spleen. Such criticism need not be taken seriously. The critics threw stones at the prophets and they put a crown of thorns on the head of Christ Jesus, but this did not bring to naught any of the things for which Christ and the prophets had stood. But Christian Science is facing the dawn of better days. Its phenomenal growth on the one hand and its fine fruitage on the other are rapidly putting the mistaken and unfriendly critics to silence. The logic of facts is winning out. The tree is coming to be known by its fruits.—The Petoskey News.

WEISER, IDAHO (Society).—Dr. Walton Hubbard, lecturer; introduced by Attorney Frank Ryan, who said in part:—

Christianity and civilization have produced many creeds, and those creeds have in turn developed advocates of all degrees of religious enthusiasm. To me the least admirable Christian, if Christian he can be called, is the one who fails to apply his religion to his every-day life, who takes his religion only as a best suit for Sunday wear. A church should be measured by the quality of men and women it produces. While myself not a Christian Scientist, I number many of that faith among my friends and acquaintances, and have been pleased to note their zeal in their work and endeavor to apply the fundamentals of their faith in daily life. They occasion admiration because they do not practise empty forms, but appeal to the reason, and through it endeavor to reach the heart and soul. An institution which can thus compel admiration and show the almost phenomenal growth it has, besides numbering among its members so many worthy and intellectual people, must have much to commend it and justify its existence.

HIGHLAND PARK, ILL. (First Church).—Virgil O. Strickler, lecturer; introduced by F. W. Smith, who said in part:—

The one quest of all mankind is for happiness. One looks for it in achievement, another in acquiring knowledge or great learning. Some hope to find it in the exercise of power or influence, and many pursue it in pleasure or the possession of wealth, only to say with Solomon of old, "Vanity of vanities; all is vanity," or to find the long sought golden apples filled with ashes. But whether the journey be through narrow and winding by-paths or along the broad highway, the goal is always the same,—happiness.

Digitized by Google

Some fifty years ago a consecrated woman made the discovery that true happiness consists in living in harmony with absolute good, or God. Now, to dwell in harmony with God it is necessary to know God, and Mrs. Eddy's discovery of scientific Christianity, by interpreting the Scriptures in their spiritual meaning, discloses to us an ever present God who is infinite Love, whom we can reflect with ever increasing clearness, and in whom we can live with ever increasing harmony. The Master said, "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect."

TAMPA, FLA. (First Church).—Willis F. Gross, lecturer; introduced by George Silas Hall, who said in part:—

The words Christian Science were first applied to the religious movement which started nearly fifty years ago in one of the small states among the hills, not of Judæa, but of New England. The author of this great movement was not a mighty potentate or of ecclesiastical descent, but a mild, gentle, loving type of womanhood, whose receptive ear caught the whisper of a "still small voice," which said, "Peace, be still." She at once began to whisper this message of peace to others, with the result that there are today several million men, women, and children who are daily and hourly sending out a prayer of praise and thanksgiving to God for blessings received physically, morally, and mentally.

The Tampa Tribune.

ROCKFORD, ILL. (First Church).—John Randall Dunn, lecturer; introduced by A. C. Woods, who said in part:—

Christian Science presents to the world today the undivided garment of religion as taught and practised by Christ Jesus nineteen centuries ago. As a rule the churches in general have been unanimous in their efforts to better mankind, and no doubt have accomplished much good in the world, but there has been lacking the complete fulfilment of Jesus' command wherein he admonished his disciples not only to preach the gospel but also to heal the sick, and added, "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also;" and he further stated, "By their fruits ye shall know them." It is the endeavor of Christian Scientists to fulfil the entire demands of the Master, both in preaching the gospel and in healing the sick.

Lectures to be Delivered

[By Members of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.]

ARIZONA—Tucson: George Shaw Cook, Armory (note change), 8 p.m., March 27.

CALIFORNIA—Los Angeles (Ninth Church): John W. Doorly, Church Edifice, 430 South New Hampshire Avenue, 8 p.m., April 6.
Pasadena: William W. Porter, Church Edifice, Oakland Avenue, near Colorado Street, 8 p.m., April 2.

COLORADO—Denver (First Church): Bicknell Young, noonday talks, April 2, 3, and 4.
Trinidad: Bicknell Young, Church Edifice, 317 Pine Street, 8:30 p.m., April 5.

CONNECTICUT—Middletown: Bliss Knapp, Middlesex Theater, Main Street, 3 p.m., April 1.
New Haven: Frank Bell, Hyperion Theater, 3:30 p.m., April 1.

ENGLAND—Cambridge: John Sidney Braithwaite, The Guildhall, 5 p.m., March 29.

ILLINOIS—Chicago (Fourteenth Church): Virgil O. Strickler, Constellation Masonic Temple, Byron and North Robey Streets, 8 p.m., March 31.
Jacksonville: Clarence C. Eaton, Odd Fellows Temple, East State Street, 3 p.m., April 1.
Wheaton: Clarence W. Chadwick, Library Hall, 8:10 p.m., March 27.

INDIANA—South Bend: Frank Bell, Oliver Opera House, 8 p.m., April 6.

IOWA—Red Oak: Bicknell Young, Beardsley's Opera House, 3 p.m., April 1.

KANSAS—Garnett: Willis F. Gross, Opera House, 8 p.m., April 6.

KENTUCKY—Louisville: Clarence W. Chadwick, Macauley's Theater, 3 p.m., April 1.

MAINE—Bangor: Frank Bell, City Hall, 8 p.m., April 2.
Portland: Ezra W. Palmer, Keith's Theater, 3 p.m., April 1.

MARYLAND—Cumberland: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, City Hall Auditorium, 8 p.m., April 5.

MASSACHUSETTS—Boston (The Mother Church): Virgil O. Strickler, Church Edifice, Falmouth, Norway, and St. Paul Streets, 8 p.m., April 6.
Boston (Second Church): Charles I. Ohrenstein, Whiton Hall, Centre Street, Dorchester, 8 p.m., April 2, and Church Edifice, Elm Hill Avenue and Howland Street, Roxbury, 8 p.m., April 3.
Greenfield: Bicknell Young, Victoria Theater, 19 Chapman Street, 3:30 p.m. (note change), March 25.
Holyoke: Virgil O. Strickler, City Hall, 8 p.m., April 5.
Rockland: William R. Rathvon, Happy Hour Theater, 4 p.m., April 1.

MICHIGAN—Howell: Virgil O. Strickler, Woman's Club, 8 p.m., April 1.

MINNESOTA—Alexandria: Clarence W. Chadwick, High School Auditorium, 8:15 p.m., April 3.
Thief River Falls: Clarence W. Chadwick, Auditorium, 8:15 p.m., April 5.

NEBRASKA—North Platte: Bicknell Young, Masonic Hall, 8 p.m., April 6.

NEW JERSEY—Orange: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Central School Auditorium, 3:30 p.m., April 1.
Trenton: John Randall Dunn, Taylor Opera House, Broad Street, 3:30 p.m., April 1.

NEW YORK—Brooklyn (First Church): John Randall Dunn, Church Edifice, New York Avenue and Dean Street, 8:15 p.m., April 5 and 6.
New York (First Church): John Randall Dunn, Church Edifice, Central Park West and Ninety-sixth Street, 8 p.m., April 2.
New York (Fifth Church): Charles I. Ohrenstein, Aeolian Concert Hall, 34 West Forty-third Street, 8 p.m., April 6.
Syracuse: William R. Rathvon, Empire Theater, 4 p.m., March 25.

NORTH DAKOTA—Devils Lake: Clarence W. Chadwick, Court House, 8 p.m., April 6.

OHIO—Columbus (First Church): Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Church Edifice, East Broad Street, near Ninth Street, 8:15 p.m., April 2 and 3.
Mansfield: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Opera House, 3 p.m., April 1.

OKLAHOMA—Lawton: George Shaw Cook, High School Auditorium, 8 p.m., April 3.
Tulsa: George Shaw Cook, Convention Hall, 3 p.m., April 1.

OREGON—Grants Pass: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Opera House, 8 p.m., April 6.

PENNSYLVANIA—Bethlehem: Charles I. Ohrenstein, High School Auditorium, 8 p.m., April 5.
Oil City: Bliss Knapp, Carnegie Hall, 8:30 p.m., April 6.
Pottsville: Willis F. Gross, Garden Theater, 3:30 p.m., April 1.

VERMONT—Bennington: Willis F. Gross, High School Auditorium, 8 p.m., March 30.

WASHINGTON—Mount Vernon: Paul Stark Seeley, Rex Theater, 8 p.m., April 3.
Puyallup (First Church): Paul Stark Seeley, I. O. O. F. Hall, Pioneer Way and Second Street, 8 p.m., April 5.
Seattle (Second Church): Paul Stark Seeley, Ballard High School Auditorium, 8 p.m., April 2.
Toppenish: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Lyceum Hall, 8 p.m., April 3.

WISCONSIN—La Crosse: Clarence W. Chadwick, La Crosse Theater, 8:15 p.m., April 2.

Digitized by Google

Testimonies of Healing

Two years ago I first learned what Christian Science really is, when I was instantaneously healed of two serious conditions while reading Science and Health. For fourteen years I had suffered from a hernia, which came soon after a very delicate operation, when two abnormal growths were removed. Refusing another operation, which promised only temporary relief, I had a surgical appliance made and wore it all the time. Two and a half years ago another growth came, which developed rapidly; then a double hernia appeared. As doctors had told me that there was no cure for these diseases in a material way, I made myself as comfortable as I could with a stronger support.

At this time a Christian Scientist came to live in the hotel where we were then staying, and I often asked him questions about Christian Science healing, for the subject was new to me. After two months, as I was growing worse, I asked this gentleman if I could be helped through Christian Science, and he said I could be healed as well as others. He advised me to get a copy of Science and Health and try to understand it as I read, adding that the chapter on Prayer would be very helpful. My prejudice against Mrs. Eddy and her teachings had been strong, although I did not really know anything about her or about Christian Science; therefore some time passed before my thoughts were changed enough for me to obtain her book. When I finally did so, I shut myself in my room at seven o'clock in the evening, and read and reread the chapter on Prayer. As I read I knew that a great change was taking place, but was so interested that I forgot the bodily conditions. My consciousness was filled with gratitude to Mrs. Eddy for being able to write those wonderful words, and all prejudice vanished. I had never heard of any one being healed by reading a book, and was greatly surprised, when my husband told me it was midnight, to find that I had been healed. For the first time in months I slept all night like a child, and in the morning I was like a new woman, the growth having dissolved and passed painlessly away.

My neighbor assured me that if I had no fear, and would leave off the truss, the other trouble would go. I thought this was impossible, because I had suffered from it so long that it seemed a part of me. However, that day I read every available minute, and all the evening until bedtime. Upon retiring I noticed that the hernia simply disappeared from sight, and in the morning the material support was laid away and has never been worn since. A few days later a fear of a return of these troubles became rather alarming to me, as did a sense of pain, so I asked for a few treatments. The third day proved to me that I was healed forever, as all fear went with the pain.

I cannot express my gratitude to Mrs. Eddy for her book "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," when I realize that today I am a perfectly well woman. Christian Science not only has made me well and happy, but has taught me that there is a God, for when I prayed aright He heard me and healed me.

CORA H. SPENCER, Medford Hillside, Mass.

I wish to verify the statement made by my wife regarding her truly wonderful and complete healing through Christian Science over two years ago. Since then she has enjoyed the best of health. Previous to her healing she had been in poor health for years, dangerously ill at times, and had undergone a surgical operation which had left her in a very serious condition. Another operation was recommended as the only help from further suffering, but at this she rebelled, and turned to Christian Science as the last resort. I was with her during all this time and am extremely grateful for the good that has come to both of us.—W. W. SPENCER.

✧

I wish to express my deep gratitude to God for the great blessings that have come to me through gaining an understanding of Christian Science. It has completely changed my life from constant ailing to one of health and usefulness. Christian Science found me at the darkest period of my life, when all that seemed to make life worth living had been taken from me and I was almost in despair. For many years I had felt it was of no use to pray, for I thought God did not hear my prayers; that He had sent all these troubles for some reason, and I am afraid I was very resentful.

Just at this time a Christian Scientist explained to me something of her religion, and told me that God is Love. She also gave me a copy of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, which I earnestly studied, along with the Bible, and soon learned that God is indeed Love and "a very present help in trouble." In a short time my sorrow was turned into joy and peace. When I began the study of Christian Science I was suffering from severe lung trouble, and two doctors had told me I would never be able to stand the British climate. I soon learned that with God's help it is possible to live anywhere, and before long I was healed. That was about ten years ago, and my health is better than it ever has been before. Many erroneous conditions have presented themselves since, such as asthma, rheumatism, headaches, loneliness, also an internal trouble which I had had for many years and which had caused me much pain and inconvenience; but all these conditions have been overcome through the understanding of Christian Science.

I am grateful to Mrs. Eddy for giving us our text-book, also for our literature, which indeed meets every need; but above all, I am thankful for my fuller knowledge of God.

JEANNIE HUNTER, Birkenhead, Cheshire, England.

✧

From early girlhood I had been a church member, but sought in vain the spiritual illumination which I craved. It was this, rather than a hope of physical healing, which finally impelled me to make a serious effort to learn the truth as revealed in Science and Health.

My early training was lacking in discipline, my mother having yielded to my caprices mainly because our family physician had impressed her with the thought that I must be humored owing to a weak and sickly condition, consequently I grew to young womanhood with impaired health and a wilful disposition. Later a great sorrow came into my life, and neither the teachings of the church to which I belonged nor the pastor to whom I went for comfort could supply my spiritual needs; so I left the church of my youth, though never ceasing to pray to be led to the light.

When I came into Christian Science in the spring of 1910, I was full of discord, both mental and physical; but gradually all the old beliefs slipped away into their native nothingness, among them throat trouble (from which I had suffered since childhood and which several of the best specialists in the city had pronounced incurable), anemic conditions, extreme nervousness, headaches, female troubles, and constant colds. I was also healed of a bad case of erysipelas, chills and fever, falling hair, and stiff neck. A severe attack of influenza was overcome in a few hours by absent treatment.

In the summer of 1914 I was instantaneously healed of a severe abdominal trouble through the loving help of a member of our family. This healing was a revelation to me, and never before or since have I felt such spiritual uplift as was mine in the moment the pain left me. My hearing was very bad when I first came into Christian Science, as I had been deaf for over ten years. Now I can hear the readers in church, and even hear the clock tick, and I am confident the condition will yield entirely with growth in the truth. My disposition has changed a great deal for the better, and if I keep in the narrow path I shall yet reach the heights.

Digitized by Google

I am very grateful that my home life is so harmonious. My husband, who is also a Christian Scientist, has been a great help to me in overcoming lesser ailments. We have found that the truth meets all our problems,—physical, financial, and spiritual. Above all the physical help I am grateful for the understanding of God I have gained in Christian Science. It is a joy to know that He is not responsible for all the sin and sorrow in this world. I am also grateful to that wonderful woman, Mrs. Eddy, for the courage she had to open the way for us, and that her loving forethought has made it possible for us to enjoy our helpful Christian Science literature.—SATIE M. BOLDTMANN, New York, N. Y.

✧

[Translated from the German]

It is with a sense of deep gratitude to God that I give this testimony in recognition of the blessed power of Truth and Love. It was in 1912 that I first heard of Christian Science, after having gone through years of severe physical suffering. Since the birth of our child an anemic condition prevailed, which affected my lungs and indeed the whole system. Upon medical advice I was taken to a sanitarium in 1909, where I stayed six months and seemed to recuperate; but unfortunately the trouble returned with greater force in 1912. I was again taken to a sanitarium, and also spent a few weeks in the South in order to get rid of hoarseness, but received no benefit.

Sorrow and mental anguish drove me almost to despair. Everything seemed wrapped in darkness and gloom, when through the light of Christian Science my path began to be illumined. Like one drowning I seized the help extended, and the stream of life which I thereby found restored me to health and happiness. I saw as never before that God, our Father, is Love, and many have been the blessings which I and my seven year old child have received. I never doubted the power of Truth and Love, which was explained to me untiringly by my practitioner until all error disappeared.

I am entirely well today, and happy with my dear ones. I know that God is an ever present help, our strength and comfort. Our thankfulness to God is immeasurably great, and we are very grateful to Mrs. Eddy, whose discovery is blessing mankind so abundantly.

FRAU EMILIE BRANDENBERGER-SCHMIDT, Basel, Switzerland.

✧

Over ten years ago I attended a Wednesday evening meeting at a Christian Science church, but hearing there a statement which seemed to me to be exaggerated, and having previously been prejudiced against Christian Science, I found it an easy matter not to attend any more meetings. Six years later I again attended a few services, also purchased a copy of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy; but not long after beginning to read this book I heard a lecture, "Why I am not a Christian Scientist," and as a result discontinued attending all church services and gave away my copy of Science and Health.

As time wore on my miserable sense of existence brought me to a state where I was daily seeking a way to bury my heavy mental burdens, and nightly praying to a personal God to relieve me of my troubles so that the world would be made better by my having been in it. One day in April, 1915, in cleaning out my desk I came across a pamphlet covered with dust, which proved to be a speech delivered by Senator Works in the United States Senate. I had not read very far before a change took place in my thought; the door of human consciousness opened, light entered, and I was made free. This was a demonstration which only those who have shared in a similar experience can appreciate, for like the pamphlet buried in dust, so was I buried in materiality. I then discontinued the use of medicine, liquor, and tobacco, without any ill effects upon my nerves, although I had been a tobacco fiend until that time.

The Christian Science literature, reading-rooms, and practitioners have contributed to my better understanding. In offering this token of gratitude I can only say that I hope to be ever mindful that I am a living representative of divine Mind, and that this testimony will be instrumental in bringing others to acknowledge the truth. Less than two years ago I was a miserable person; now I am a different man. I have gained in weight, and have experienced a peace of mind that I would have said it was impossible for even God to give me.

I am thankful to the author of the pamphlet, who so generously devoted the necessary time and labor to collect the evidence contained therein, for it opened to me the way to understanding. I thank God that Mrs. Eddy was fitted to receive the truth, and demonstrated that she was the one divinely authorized to promulgate the teachings of Jesus in a way to be most readily understood.

JOHN H. N. DAVIS, Chicago, Ill.

✧

Words cannot express the joy I have found in Christian Science, for it is the "pearl of great price," and has brought me health and peace. I was healed of stomach trouble of ten years' duration, also of constant headache. At a time when all material means had failed, a kind neighbor advised us to try Christian Science. Soon after taking up treatment I seemed to grow worse, and it was thought I was passing on, but I was brought back by the realization that God is the only Life. That was the turning point, and I was healed at once of the stomach trouble. Through the loving help of the practitioner and an honest, careful study of Science and Health I gained an entrance into the kingdom of God, where we know ourselves as spiritual, made in the image and likeness of God.

We have passed through sorrow which to mortal sense seemed beyond endurance, but have found comfort in the assurance, "The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms." My heart goes out in love to Mrs. Eddy for her unselfish, noble work in giving to the world this great blessing. My earnest desire is to help some one else to know the truth.

MRS. R. E. BROBST, Knoxville, Iowa.

✧

From my own experience it has been proven to me that Christian Science is the truth, and that through the understanding and faithful application of its teachings physical diseases are overcome and discordant conditions corrected. Earnest study of the Lesson-Sermon has brought me many blessings, and has enabled me to grow more and more in the knowledge of Christian Science. Even when it has seemed impossible to go over the Lesson, the persistent effort on my part has been cause for rejoicing. I am very grateful for my first healing, that of tuberculosis, through the reading of

Digitized by Google

"Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy. This healing took place in 1910 and there has been no return of the disease.

Christian Science has met my every need, but of all the many blessings the greatest has come to me through standing as a living witness and testifying to the benefits received. Two years ago my baby was born one Wednesday morning, and the following Sunday I attended Christian Science services. The overcoming of the many obstacles that came up to prevent my going to church gave me a greater opportunity to prove God's sustaining power, and words can never tell of the spiritual uplift and the understanding that I received. I was more positive than ever before that God is on the battle field.

When the time arrived for me to take class instruction, it seemed as though everything came up to prevent my going, but by adhering strictly to the thought that God would open the way, I was able to go, for which I am profoundly grateful. My prayer is that my daily life may bear witness to this truth, and thereby glorify our Father which is in heaven.—Pearl Strickland Strong, Hollywood, Cal.

✧

In October, 1913, I first attended the Christian Science church, and ever since have earnestly studied its gracious, wholesome teachings, daily receiving increasing light and help. In January, 1914, I experienced what to me seemed a wonderful demonstration of the ever watchful care of divine Love. I was riding in the ring of a riding academy one evening, when my horse became restless and finally threw me. I was not at all hurt, as the ring was thickly covered with tan-bark, so raised myself on my elbow, expecting to jump up at once. A startled snort from the horse made me look up, to find him rearing over me.

For a moment I was frightened, for there was not time to roll away from the horse or to scramble up out of his way. Just then the thought came to me that I would be protected, and at the same time I was prompted to throw myself under him, so that as he came down upon all fours his forefeet landed one on either side of me. Although fully aware of my seeming peril I had absolutely no fear, but was conscious of the protecting care of divine Love. I escaped with only a rather bad bruise, and would not have had even that if one small doubt had not crept in, with the result that I was struck upon one knee, although hardly conscious of it until I had been riding again for five or ten minutes, when I realized that the knee was aching severely. By the time I dismounted, it was very stiff and painful, but I clung to what little knowledge I had gained through Christian Science, and next morning went to my work as usual. It was several weeks before the bruise entirely healed, but I have had no trouble with the knee since, although anxious friends predicted lifelong lameness.

It seems almost unnecessary to state that I am profoundly grateful—grateful always to God, and thankful to our Leader, Mrs. Eddy, whose consecrated life work has made it possible for each one of us to prove the truth of her words on page 494 of Science and Health, "Divine Love always has met and always will meet every human need."

Lillian Stockwell Trask, Philadelphia, Pa.

✧

It is with loving thankfulness to God, and gratitude to Mrs. Eddy, that I submit my experiences in Christian Science. About seven years ago my wife was healed in Science after she had failed to get relief from material remedies. She had been confined to her bed for several weeks and had been forbidden by the doctor even to move around. On my arrival home from work one evening, she asked me if I cared if she tried Christian Science, but not believing in prayer myself, I did not see how praying could help her. The next night when I came home from work she met me at the door with a smile, and said she had been down town, which is eight blocks, to see a Christian Science practitioner, had walked back home, and was feeling fine. There was no return of the trouble, and several days later we started on a thousand mile trip, which the doctor had forbidden her to attempt.

This experience awakened me to the fact that Christian Science might also help me, as I was suffering from bowel trouble of ten years' standing and seemingly was getting worse. I was healed of this trouble in one week, and also lost the desire for smoking, a habit I had contracted when about eleven years old. The social drink habit also was overcome. A broken nose and a broken finger have been healed through Science, no physician being employed in either case, even to set the bone. A very severe attack of influenza was overcome in less than an hour by reading the Sentinel.

In relating the physical healings I am telling but the least part which Christian Science has taken in my life. It has taught me what God is and our relation to Him, and through this understanding the Bible has become a very precious and loving companion. My daily prayer is that I may assimilate more of this wonderful truth and be able to help others.—Philip D. Steinmetz, Hammond, Ind.

✧

In January, 1912, our family physician advised me to get my mother interested in Christian Science, as it would serve to keep her mind off her physical condition. Knowing nothing of this teaching, I went to a practitioner, feeling that if Christian Science was the truth I wanted it. She explained to me some of its fundamentals and said it was Christ's method of casting out evil and healing the sick. This appealed to me, for I had never been able to understand why the healing works were not done now as they were in Jesus' day. The following Wednesday I attended the testimony meeting, and came away rejoicing that I had found a practical religion. A few days later the thought came to me that I had not experienced a symptom of asthma since the meeting, and the sense of a heavy weight in the chest had entirely disappeared. I had not known what it was to be without this sense of weight for five years, and had been troubled with asthma for the same length of time.

For the five years before I heard of Christian Science I was utterly miserable. The doctors said the altitude was much too high for me, and my health gave way completely. I suffered all the time from shortness of breath, and the constant headaches nearly drove me wild. A great portion of my time was spent in crying and praying for death, also praying for light, and to be led to "know the truth." I did not seem to get any light from the churches I attended, and therefore gave up going to church and decided to study the Bible and trust all to God. Not long after this decision was reached I was directed to Christian Science.

When I began the daily study of the Bible, together with the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, and the other Christian Science literature, and tried to put into practice the little knowledge I was gaining, I was freed from extreme nervousness, chronic liver trouble, and weak eyes. Slowly but surely selfishness, jealousy, pride, envy, revenge,—indeed "everything that defileth, . . . or maketh a lie,"—is also being cast out, and love is fast taking its place. Through my own understanding I have been able to solve most of my problems. Colds, headaches, stomach disorders, and many other discordant conditions have been overcome.

Digitized by Google

I consider my physical healing as a drop in the bucket compared with the spiritual awakening. My unceasing prayer is to have more of that Mind in me "which was also in Christ Jesus." I am grateful to Mrs. Eddy, and to all who have helped me on my journey from sense to Soul; also for the understanding which enables me to help others along the way.—VERNA MAHONE HINES, Deming, N. Mex.

✧

In October, 1898, a friend who had been helped in Christian Science presented me with the text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy. At that time I was a member of another church, but for a number of years had not been satisfied with its teachings and was reaching out for something better, so was prepared to grasp some of the truth in this book. After reading it a month I was healed of stomach trouble, and of a structural defect of the eyes for which glasses had been worn.

In 1906 I met with an accident, whereby my ankle was said to be fractured. The surgeon who set the bones said it was a compound comminuted fracture, and the medical law was that a person of my age would have to go on crutches for two years at least, and perhaps always, as the result of such an accident. Treatment was given me by a Christian Scientist, and in three and a half months I was walking without the aid of crutches or cane. I am indeed very grateful for this healing.

In the years of studying and trying to put into practice this living truth I have found much help along the lines of lessening fear, anxiety, sensitiveness, and supposedly inherited tendencies. Christian Science has been a great comfort to me in sorrow, and has helped me to point the way for others. A broken rib and a broken wrist have been healed and burns have been overcome. A dislocated knee-joint yielded in a few days to the power of Truth.

It was my privilege to have class instruction in 1904. I find a growing appreciation of Science and Health, also of the other Christian Science literature, and for our honored Leader, Mrs. Eddy, who had courage, perseverance, and love for all mankind, thus enabling her to discover the Science of the Christ.—MARION O. SIMONDS, Syracuse, N. Y.

✧

First among the memories of my childhood is that of pain. Then at the age of fourteen an attack of rheumatic fever left me an invalid for a number of years. All kinds of remedies, doctors, baths, electricity, and the like, as well as change of climate, were tried with only temporary benefit.

Seven years ago, while I was in Seattle trying to regain strength after a breakdown caused by bowel disorder, a friend persuaded me to try Christian Science. The trouble was soon overcome, and with the help of a faithful practitioner I received my first glimpse of Truth. Since that time the blessings have multiplied, until I hardly know how to begin to enumerate them. Coughs, colds, croup, rheumatism, stomach trouble, and fever have all disappeared into their native nothingness. When only a few months old my baby was instantaneously healed of croup, and many times since I have proved the truth of the words, "Your Mind-remedy is safe and sure" (Science and Health, p. 384).

The Christian Science periodicals and the Lesson-Sermons have been my daily food, and it has been a great joy and privilege to help others. My heart goes out in thankfulness to God, and gratitude to Mrs. Eddy for this healing truth.

DAISY REICHMAN ADAMS, Waterloo, Mont.

From Our Exchanges

[Percy Pegler in The Methodist Recorder]

The Lord of the temple is seeking to cleanse us today by confronting one man after another of us, in the quietness of our own hearts, and demanding a cleansing there. If we submit to it, he adds us to the little groups of men growing up here and there who are going to make the churches new places. Then, and not till then, will the churches speak to the nation with the only authority that is worth anything; and when they do, the nation will listen, for it knows the voice of humanity's Lord, when it hears it. That process is going on. How far it will go, how fast it will go, depends upon how many people listen and how completely they obey. The Lord of the kingdom may succeed in cleansing the churches more quickly than seems to us possible. On the other hand, the process may be slower, or it may be checked. If it is checked, he will speak outside the churches just as once he discarded Judaism in the temple. What is going to happen, how soon it is going to happen, depends upon how many people listen to him when he says as he looks around the dusty, tawdry temple of our own hearts, "Take these things hence."

[T. R. Glover in The Constructive Quarterly]

Alive as he [Jesus] is to evil in human nature, he never tries to take men out of it, and he seems to have been very little afraid of it. He believed in the power of good—because after all God is "Lord of the harvest." He invents no special methods—a loving heart will hit the method needed in the particular case; the Holy Spirit will teach this as well as other things. How far he even organized his church, or left it to organize itself if it so wished, students may discuss. Does not what we mean by the incarnation imply putting everything in the long run on man, quickened into new life by a new relation with God and taught a new love of man by Jesus himself? The heart of friendship and the heart of the incarnation are in essence the same thing—giving one's self in frankness and love to him who will accept, and by them winning him who refuses.

Has not this been the secret of the spread of the gospel? The simplicity of the whole thing and the power of it grow upon us as we study them. But, after all, as Tertullian said, simplicity and power are the constant marks of God's work—simplicity in method, power in effect.

[Rev. John A. Hutton, D.D., in The Christian World]

He [the Lord] besought us not to hold down "the truth in unrighteousness," not to stand still while some warm emotion is knocking at the door of our will, not to do nothing. He besought us to walk while we have the light, lest darkness come upon us. For if the light that is in us be darkness, if the throb of the higher will within our wills be permitted to sink and die, having effected nothing,—then is our darkness great indeed. It was a very constant thought in our Lord's direct dealings with men,—that they should not trifle with their own better impulses, that they should not suppress the warm instigations of the Spirit which break in upon the monotony and usualness of their lives, that rather they should be obedient to these heavenly visions, should arise and shine when the light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon them.

Not in so many words, indeed, but in many a grave saying to various people, did our Lord declare that for man there is but one great misfortune: to receive an idea that exerts no influence upon his active life.

Digitized by Google

[The Christian Intelligencer]

The Christian life has been rightly called the great adventure. Just as Abraham was called to go out to a land which he knew nothing about and along a way which was unknown to him, so God calls men in Christ to undertake life as a spiritual pilgrimage, committed to the purposes for which Christ came. Just what obedience will cost we cannot say. We can be sure of God, and since Christ is himself the way, we can learn step by step just what the Lord demands of us. The demand will be a perpetual surrender of self, a continual crucifixion of the flesh, and unbroken obedience to the claims of faith. God's purpose for us in the life of consecration is high.

[Albany (N. Y.) Argus]

No follower of scientific and philosophical thought through the last generation can fail to have been impressed with its growing tone of reverence and its recognition, however vague, that behind the material, which it can comprehend, is an all-pervading immaterial and moral force, which it must recognize even if it cannot comprehend. In a word, the notion that science and religion are incompatible is disappearing, as in the advance of the former it is found how wonderfully in accord with the largest present knowledge are most of the things Revelation told us about ages ago; in the tongue of the race's childhood, to be sure, and for its understanding, but embodying the truth of all time.

[The Watchman-Examiner]

It appears that the old theology and the new estimate human nature by divergent standards. The old tends to make prominent man's unlikeness; the new, man's likeness to God. The old dwells on the disaster that sin brought; the new stresses man's capacity to rise above sin. Thus, with one, human ability is a controlling thought; with the other, human inability. With the new, man is already a son of God. All he needs to do is to claim his sonship and enter upon his divine heritage. With the old, man must acquire sonship through faith in Christ and regeneration by the Spirit.

[The Methodist Times]

Never was the call to ceaseless, united, and trustful prayer more urgent than at the present time. In these days the command which bids us pray is reenforced by the human need which constrains us to pray. The future is in the hand of God. His purposes will be fulfilled as men become the channels of His grace, the instruments of His will, the partners of His mind.

[Rev. Arthur Pringle in The Christian World]

Take life where you will, the supreme test is in the power to endure, and this in turn means the constant resolve to pervade today and tomorrow with the inspiration of yesterday. It was well for Emerson to say that the essence of heroism is persistence; but if that is to carry any dynamic helpfulness, we must also say that the secret of persistence is to preserve our early eagerness and spirit.

[The Biblical World]

What the world needs just now is the gospel that Jesus himself preached,—that love is more powerful than the doing of injury, that blessing is more effective than vituperation, because God is love as well as law.

[The Continent]

Anything that purports to be religion must be constantly challenged to serve life as it is, with all its crises and all its strains. When it cannot do that, then it must be modified or deserted.

Special Announcements

From the Publisher of Mrs. Eddy's Works

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE TEXT-BOOK, "SCIENCE AND HEALTH WITH KEY TO THE SCRIPTURES."—For styles of bindings and prices see back cover of this periodical.

A NEW CONCORDANCE.—The publication is announced of a Concordance to Mrs. Eddy's published writings other than Science and Health.

The new volume has been compiled with the same comprehensive care and is issued in uniform style with the Concordance to Science and Health. It contains 1103 pages, and is published only in the Oxford India Bible paper edition, with stiff morocco covers. The thumb index will not be used in this Concordance, as it is to be discontinued in future editions of the Concordance to Science and Health. Prices: Single copy, $6.00; in lots of six or more to one address, each $5.50.

Announcement is made of the publication of a German translation of the Manual of The Mother Church. The volume is uniform in size, style, and price with the regular cloth-bound edition, and the publisher is now prepared to fill orders. Single copy $1.00; six or more to one address, each 75 cents.

Orders for the books named above and other works by Mrs. Eddy should be addressed to ALLISON V. STEWART, Falmouth and St. Paul Streets, Boston, Mass.

From the Editor

All manuscripts submitted for publication in the Sentinel, Journal, and Herold, whether articles, poems, or testimonies, and all correspondence relating thereto, should be addressed to the EDITOR, and not to individuals.

From the Publishing Society

The Christian Science Quarterly is published in the Dutch and German languages. These editions are printed with the foreign language and English version on opposite pages. Orders for single copies, quantities, and subscriptions will be filled at the rates as shown on the opposite page.

The pamphlet "Prayer and Confidence" containing four articles reprinted from The Christian Science Journal, has been translated into Dutch.

A lecture by Francis J. Fluno, M.D., entitled "Christian Science: A Reasonable and Rational View of all Things," has also been translated into Dutch.

Both of these pamphlets are printed with the English version opposite the translated page and are on sale at prices as shown on the opposite page under the list of pamphlets.

From the Clerk of The Mother Church

CHURCH TENETS.—The tenets of The First Church of Christ, Scientist,—The Mother Church,—printed on folded sheet for use of the branch Churches of Christ, Scientist, with space for printing their authorized forms of application for membership or extracts from their by-laws, can be had at seventy-five cents a hundred. Orders will not be taken for less than one hundred and postage stamps should not be sent in payment.

Correspondence relative to the tenets or to membership with The Mother Church, should be sent to J. V. DITTEMORE, Clerk, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

From the Church Treasurer

The annual per capita tax of members of The Mother Church is due June 1, but may be paid at any time during the year. The per capita tax of members uniting in November is reckoned from the preceding June, this being the beginning of the church year. Unless otherwise directed by the sender, the full amount of each remittance will be credited for the current year.

Please remit by postal or express money order, bank draft, or check. Currency should be sent by registered letter only.

Please advise promptly of any change in name or address.

Send per capita taxes and contributions to ADAM H. DICKEY, Treasurer, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

Digitized by Google

The Christian Science Journal

Published Monthly

Founded April, 1883, by Mary Baker Eddy. Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, and author of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures."

This monthly magazine is the official organ of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. In addition to articles, editorials, and testimonies not published elsewhere, it contains a complete list of Christian Science practitioners, and a directory of Christian Science Churches, Societies, and Reading Rooms.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $2; six months $1; three months 50 cents. SALE PRICE: Single copy 20 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 15 cents. For Canada add 25 cents for postage. SALE PRICE: Single copy 20 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 17 cents. In all other countries add 65 cents for postage for each annual subscription. SALE PRICE: Single copy 25 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 20 cents.

BOUND VOLUMES: Current and past year, cloth $3.00; half calf or half morocco $3.75. On earlier volumes write for prices.

The Christian Science Quarterly

Published January, April, July, and October

Contains the Lesson-Sermons which are read at the Sunday services throughout the year in all the Christian Science churches. These Lessons, which present citations from the Bible and "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," are valuable for daily study. Also printed in Dutch and German.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION AND SALE: In the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year 50 cents; single copy 15 cents; four copies or more to one address, each 12½ cents. For all other countries one year 60 cents; single copy 18 cents; four copies or more, each 15 cents.

Subscriptions not accepted for less than one year. Subscriptions begin with current quarter unless otherwise designated, and terminate with the last of the month named on wrapper.

The Christian Science Monitor

Published Daily, Except Sundays and Legal Holidays

An international daily newspaper. Adequate news service. The various departments of a modern newspaper. Unique Home Forum page. Entire page of editorials dealing with the vital topics of the day. Contributions to the columns of the MONITOR should be addressed: Editor, THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States (except in the Boston Postal District), Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $5; six months $2.50; three months $1.25; one month 50 cents. In all other countries additional postage at the rate of $3 yearly is required. By carrier through a local newsdealer, one week 12 cents; one month 50 cents. In the Boston Postal District, by mail, one year $7.25. Quantity rates will be furnished on application.

Der Herold der Christian Science

Published Monthly

A magazine printed in German, which publishes original and translated articles bearing upon Christian Science, also testimonials of healing.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $1; six months 50 cents; three months 25 cents. For other countries, one year $1.25; six months 63 cents; three months 32 cents.

SALE PRICE, DOMESTIC TERRITORY AND CANADA, POSTPAID: Single copy 10 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 8 cents. Foreign rate, single copy 12 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 10 cents.

Bound Volumes in cloth, $2.75 each; half calf or half morocco $3.50 each. Write for list of volumes in stock.

Pamphlets

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS RELIGIOUS PHILOSOPHY. By HON. CLARENCE A. BUSKIRK.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: "THE RESURRECTION AND THE LIFE." By CLARENCE W. CHADWICK.

CAUSATION: VIEWED IN THE LIGHT OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By FREDERICK DIXON. Also printed in Norwegian and Swedish.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING VS. MENTAL SUGGESTION. By FREDERICK DIXON. Reprinted from the Weekly Budget, London, England. Also printed in Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE TRUE CHRISTIANITY. By CLARENCE C. EATON.

"THE SONS OF GOD." By COL. WILLIAM E. FELL.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE VS. FINITE SENSE. By FRANCIS J. FLUNO, M.D.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE GOSPEL OF FREEDOM. By WILLIS F. GROSS.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE SCIENCE OF SALVATION. By HERMANN S. HERING.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING: SPIRITUAL AND SCIENTIFIC. By PROF. HERMANN S. HERING. Also printed in German.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS CONCERNING CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. Also printed in Dutch, German, and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: MAN'S DOMINION OVER EVIL. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. A London lecture. Also printed in French.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: MAN'S DOMINION OVER EVIL. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. Also printed in modern Greek, Italian, Norwegian, and Russian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS DIVINE AUTHORITY. By BLISS KNAPP.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE EXPLANATION OF THE IDEAL MAN. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS DISCOVERY AND DEVELOPMENT. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: GOD'S LOVINGKINDNESS PROVED TO MEN. By REV. WILLIAM P. MCKENZIE. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS RESULTS. By WILLIAM R. RATHVON. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE RELIGION OF DIVINE LAW. By JACOB S. SHIELD.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM. By JUDGE CLIFFORD P. SMITH. Also printed in French and German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A RELIGION OF LOVE. By VIRGIL O. STRICKLER. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE NEW BIRTH. By BICKNELL YOUNG. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

THE LAW OF KINDNESS.

"WHAT WENT YE OUT FOR TO SEE?"

"THEN THE FULL GRAIN IN THE EAR."

LAW AND WORK.

CONFIDENCE AND SUPPLY.

BIRTHRIGHT AND DOMINION.

UPWARD FOOTSTEPS. Also printed in Dutch.

FULFILLING THE LAW. Also printed in Danish.

PRAYER AND HEALING. Also printed in French and German.

THE DIVINE NATURE. Also printed in Dutch and Norwegian.

ENVIRONMENT AND OPPORTUNITY. Also printed in French.

THE FATHER'S BUSINESS. Also printed in German and Swedish.

SEEKING AND FINDING. Also printed in Dutch, German, and Swedish.

THE PROVIDENCE OF GOOD. Also printed in French, Spanish, and Swedish.

Other Translated Pamphlets

*FAITH AND GENEROSITY. Printed in French.

MAN'S UNITY WITH GOD. Printed in German only.

"PEACE ON EARTH." Printed in German only.

PRAYER AND CONFIDENCE. Printed in *Dutch and German.

MARY BAKER EDDY. By ARTHUR BRISBANE. Printed in German only.

*MARY BAKER EDDY: HER PURPOSE AND ACCOMPLISHMENT. By FREDERICK DIXON. Printed in French and German.

THE FOUNDER OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By B. O. FLOWER. Printed in German only.

*CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A REASONABLE AND RATIONAL VIEW OF ALL THINGS. By FRANCIS J. FLUNO, M.D. Printed in Dutch.

*CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: HUMANITY'S HELPER. By PROF. HERMANN S. HERING. Printed in Dutch.

*CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE COMFORTER OF PROMISE. By FRANK H. LEONARD. Printed in French.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: DEMONSTRABLE RELIGION. By FRANK H. LEONARD. Printed in Norwegian only.

*CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A RELIGION OF PROGRESS. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Printed in French and Swedish.

*CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS PRINCIPLE AND METHOD. By BICKNELL YOUNG. Printed in French and Swedish.

PRICE, POSTPAID: Single copy 5 cents; twelve copies to one address 55 cents; fifty copies $2; one hundred copies $3.50. Orders for above pamphlets may be assorted as desired.

For table of English, German, Swiss, and French money equivalents, see inside front cover page.

*These pamphlets are printed with the English version opposite each page of the translation.

Miscellaneous

A Catalogue of Selected Bibles will be furnished upon application, and quantity rates on other items specified below will be found in the current catalogue in The Christian Science Journal.

BIBLES. 01483 x. Clarendon Brevier, heavy-faced, distinct type; Turkey morocco, corresponding in size and binding to pocket edition of Science and Health, $4.75.

01440 x. Brevier, light-faced type; self pronouncing, Turkey morocco, corresponding in size and binding to pocket edition of Science and Health, $4.50.

01083 x. Large type Bible, 10¾ x 8 inches, bound in Alaska seal. Specially adapted for use of second readers, $12.50.

Black morocco open case to hold pocket edition of Science and Health, Quarterly, and Bible, $1.40.

Two other sizes of open case listed in the current issue of the Journal.

Black morocco closed case with handle and purse on outside, $3.75; without purse, $3.50.

The improved index will be added to any Bible listed in our catalogue for an additional charge of 35 cents. Catalogue No. 23 of selected Bibles will be mailed free upon application.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS ON THE LIFE AND WORK OF MARY BAKER EDDY. 132 pages with index. Paper covered, 15 cents; cloth binding, 85 cents.

THE LIFE OF MARY BAKER EDDY. By Sibyl Wilbur. 424 pages. Cloth, $2. Edition de luxe, $5.

PERSONAL CONTAGION, ALSO WHAT OUR LEADER SAYS. By Mary Baker Eddy. Special pamphlet. Paper cover, 10 cents.

THE MOTHER CHURCH. By Joseph Armstrong. A history of the building of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. Illustrated, 107 pages. Cloth, $1.50.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS LEGAL STATUS. By Judge Clifford P. Smith. 128 pages, paper covered, 10 cents.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HYMNAL. Cloth, $1.15; half morocco, $1.40; full morocco, $2.50; levant, $3.50; pocket edition, size 4⅝ x 6⅝, $3

SHEET MUSIC. Poems written by Mary Baker Eddy and used by special permission, have been set to music as follows; "The Mother's Evening Prayer," 75 cents; "Christ, My Refuge," 75 cents; "Love," 40 cents; Communion Hymn—"Saw Ye My Saviour?" (Johnson), 50 cents; "Blest Christmas Morn," 27 cents; "O'er Waiting Harpstrings of the Mind," 27 cents; "Shepherd, Show Me How to Go," 27 cents; "Saw Ye My Saviour?" (Root), 27 cents. The first three hymns are arranged for high and low voice in the same copy. The last five hymns are published separately in high and low keys. When ordering state key desired.

PHOTOGRAVURE OF MRS. EDDY, printed in three sizes on India paper and mounted on heavy plate paper ready for framing. 8-inch (mount 12 x 16), $1; 12-inch (mount 15 x 20), $2; 16-inch (mount 21 x 29), $3.50.

PICTURE OF THE FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, IN BOSTON, MASS., AND THE PUBLISHING HOUSE. Artist's proof with remarque on Japanese vellum, size 18 x 24 inches, $5; on India paper without remarque, $3. Smaller reproduction, size 11 x 14 inches, on Japanese vellum, $1. Photogravure postcards of the Church Edifice and Publishing House, 5 cents.

QUARTERLY COVERS in black morocco, $1.30; with purse, $1.50.

ALUMINUM LESSON MARKERS. Set of thirty, with paper shields, 50 cents. Extra paper shields, one hundred, 15 cents.

PRICE LIST OF BIBLE CONCORDANCES AND DICTIONARIES OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE supplied on request. Express charges collect on delivery.

REPRINTS (not printed in English). Two-page leaflets, 14 subjects in French and Swedish; 18 subjects in German. Ten copies to one address, 10 cents.

Remittances should always accompany orders, and be made by check, money order, or exchange on Boston or New York. Currency or coin should not be sent by mail unless registered. Please send no money or business letters to the Editor or Editorial Department.

Send all orders for the works of Mrs. Eddy, with remittance by New York or Boston draft or money order, direct to Allison V. Stewart

For literature listed above address orders and make remittances payable to

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

FALMOUTH AND ST. PAUL STREETS, BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

Digitized by Google

Works on Christian Science

Written by MARY BAKER EDDY, Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science and Author of its Text-book

Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures. In one volume, 700 pages. The original, standard, and only text-book on Christian Science Mind-healing. Cloth, one to eleven copies inclusive (cloth only), each $3.00; twelve or more, each $2.75. Full leather, stiff, beveled boards, gilt edges, same paper as in cloth binding, single copy $4.00; twelve or more, each $3.75. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $5.00; twelve or more, each $4.75. Levant, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, round corners, gilt edges, silk sewed, heavy Oxford India Bible paper (wide margins, large-sized book) single copy $6.00; twelve or more, each $5.75.

LARGE TYPE EDITION. Designed especially for the use of first readers. Large type (18-point) on Oxford India Bible paper, bound in leather. Size 10¾ inches long by 8 inches wide. Single copy $7.50, with a discount of 25 cents each when included in an order for twelve or more copies of Science and Health, and in any or all of the different bindings.

GERMAN TRANSLATION. Cloth, one to five copies inclusive, each $3.50; six or more, each $3.25. Pocket edition, printed on Oxford India Bible paper. Morocco, one to five copies inclusive, each $5.50; six or more, each $5.25. Orders for the German translation in lots of six or more may include both bindings.

Orders for Science and Health in lots of twelve or more at quantity prices may include both English and German editions, and different styles of binding.

Miscellaneous Writings. A book of 471 pages, containing articles published in The Christian Science Journal from 1883 to 1896, with revisions and additions. Cloth, single copy $2.25; twelve or more, each $2.00. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $4.00; twelve or more, each $3.75. Levant, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, round corners, gilt edges, silk sewed, Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $5.00; twelve or more, each $4.75. Orders for Miscellaneous Writings in lots of twelve or more may include any or all of the different styles of binding. No discount will be allowed on orders for twelve books which include both Science and Health and Miscellaneous Writings.

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany. A book of 364 pages, containing articles published in The Christian Science Journal and Sentinel, subsequent to the compilation of Miscellaneous Writings, together with historical matter pertaining thereto. Cloth, single copy $2.25; six or more, each $2.00. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $4.00; six or more, each $3.75. Orders for six or more may include the two styles of binding.

Concordance to Science and Health. This work contains about eighty thousand references (more than ten thousand words being indexed), also an index to the Marginal Headings, and a list of the Scriptural Quotations in Science and Health. 611 pages, stiff morocco cover, single copy $5.00; six or more, each $4.50.

Concordance to Mrs. Eddy's Published Writings Other Than Science and Health. It contains 1,103 pages, and is published only in Bible paper edition, with stiff morocco cover. Single copy, $6.00; six or more, each, $5.50.

Christ and Christmas. An illustrated poem. Single copy $3.00; six or more, each $2.50.

Unity of Good and Other Writings. One volume, containing Unity of Good, Rudimental Divine Science, No and Yes, Retrospection and Introspection; uniform in style with the pocket edition of Science and Health. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, heavy Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $3.50; six or more, each $3.25.

Christian Healing and Other Writings. One volume, containing Christian Healing, The People's Idea of God, Pulpit and Press, Christian Science versus Pantheism, Messages of 1900, 1901, 1902; uniform in style with the pocket edition of Science and Health. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, heavy Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $3.50; six or more, each $3.25.

Church Manual. Containing the By-laws of The Mother Church. Cloth, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents. Pocket edition, morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $2.00; six or more, each $1.75.

GERMAN TRANSLATION. Cloth, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Retrospection and Introspection. A biographical sketch of the author; the way she was led to the discovery of Christian Science; its fundamental idea and growth. Library edition, cloth, 95 pages, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Unity of Good. This book lays the axe at the root of error, elucidating and enforcing practical Christian Science, thus affording invaluable directions for all true Scientists. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, 64 pages, single copy 60 cents; six or more, each 45 cents. Pocket edition, leather covers, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Pulpit and Press. A unique work, of importance in the history and to the readers of Christian Science; containing the message or sermon written for the dedicatory service of The Mother Church, January 6, 1895, and scintillations from the press of that occasion. Library edition, cloth, 90 pages, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Rudimental Divine Science. A brief and concise statement of Divine Science, alias Christian Science, in the form of questions and answers. Pebbled cloth covers, gilt top, 17 pages, single copy 32 cents; six or more, each 25 cents. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 35 cents.

PRINTED in the New York point system of type for the use of the blind, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

No and Yes. A brief statement of very important points in Christian Science. Pebbled cloth covers, 46 pages, single copy 32 cents; six or more, each 25 cents. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 55 cents; six or more, each 45 cents.

Messages to The Mother Church. Including in one volume, 94 pages, Christian Science versus Pantheism, and the Messages of 1900, 1901, and 1902. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy $1.50; six or more, each $1.15.

Christian Science versus Pantheism. The Pastor Emeritus' Message delivered at the Communion Season in The Mother Church in Boston, June, 1898. A clear and strong refutation of the charge that Christian Scientists are pantheists. Pebbled cloth covers, 15 pages, single copy 25 cents; six or more, each 20 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1900. Paper covers, deckled edges, 15 pages, single copy 25 cents; six or more, each 20 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1901. Paper covers, deckled edges, 35 pages, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 38 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1902. Paper covers, deckled edges, 20 pages, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 38 cents.

Christian Healing, and The People's Idea of God. Two sermons in one volume, 36 pages. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 55 cents; six or more, each 45 cents.

Christian Healing. A sermon delivered in Boston. Paper covers, 20 pages, single copy 20 cents; six or more, each 17 cents.

The People's Idea of God. A sermon delivered in Boston. Paper covers, 14 pages, single copy 20 cents; six or more, each 17 cents.

Poems. This volume of 79 pages includes all of Mrs. Eddy's hymns, also her earlier poems which appeared in various publications from forty to sixty years ago. Specially bound. Single copy $1.50; six or more, each $1.25.

Feed My Sheep. Solo. Words by Mary Baker Eddy, music by Lyman F. Brackett. Single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

The foregoing prices cover all charges for express or postage on shipments either domestic or foreign.

Quantity prices are on shipments to one address only, but quantity lots at quantity prices cannot be made up of different books or of different styles of binding. Attention is called, however, to the exception to this rule which is made in the cases of Science and Health, and of Miscellaneous Writings, as given under these titles in this price list.

Address all orders for above works, and make remittance by New York or Boston draft or money order, to

ALLISON V. STEWART, FALMOUTH AND ST. PAUL STS., BOSTON, MASS.

Digitized by Google

STORICAL
LIBRARY

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SENTINEL

"What I say unto you I say unto all-WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX No. 31

Boston, March 31, 1917

Contents of This Number

Items of Interest (Brief Mention of Important Events) 602
"As little children" Louise Knight Wheatley 603
"Many mansions" . . Peter E. Mackay 603
Human and Divine Love . Anna Göritz 604
The Divine Nature and Attributes Carl E. Herring 605
Fear and Pain Denied . . May Smith 606
"Charity suffereth long, and is kind" Otis P. Le Ross 606
Selected Articles 607
Giving (Poem) . Elfrieda S. Krauss 609
Editorial
Spiritual Preparedness . . . 610
Jerusalem Old and New . . . 610
"In God we trust" 611
Funds Still Open 611
Among the Churches (Current Notes)
Covina, Cal. 611
New Hampshire 612
Nebraska 612
The Lectures
Chicago, Ill. 612
Detroit, Mich. 612
Wellesley, Mass. 612
Testimonies of Healing 614
From Our Exchanges 617

A·LADY·WITH·A·LAMP· SHALL STAND IN THE·GREAT·HISTORY ·OF THE·LAND·

A·NOBLE TYPE OF· ·GOOD·HEROIC
WOMANHOOD·
Longfellow

THE·CHRISTIAN·SCIENCE·PUBLISHING·SOCIETY
·FALMOUTH·AND·ST·PAUL·STREETS· ·BOSTON·MASS·U·S·A·

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

(THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE WEEKLY)

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY BY

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

Falmouth and St. Paul Sts., Boston, Mass., U.S.A.

ARCHIBALD McLELLAN
Editor

ANNIE M. KNOTT — WILLIAM D. McCRACKAN
Associate Editors

Subscription Price

Payable in advance

Annual subscription price, postpaid, in the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, $2.00; six months, $1.00; three months, 50 cents. For Canada add 45 cents and for all other countries 95 cents annually for postage. For subscriptions in quantities please refer to page four in THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE JOURNAL.

Subscriptions to the SENTINEL will begin with the current issue unless otherwise specified. The delivery of the periodical will indicate that a remittance has been credited and will be our acknowledgment of the subscription.

Bound Volumes: Current year or two years previous, cloth, $5.25; half calf or half morocco, $4.00. On earlier volumes write for prices.

Terms of Sale

	United States, Mexico, and Cuba	Canada	All Other Countries
Single copy	$ .05	$ .06	$ .07
Four or more copies	.03½	.04	.05

Equivalents of United States money

		£	s.	d.	Marks	Francs
$ .60	equals	0	2	6	2.52	3.12
1.15	"	0	4	9	4.85	5.98
1.25	"	0	5	2	5.30	6.50
2.33	"	0	9	7	9.83	12.09
2.38	"	0	9	10	10.05	12.35
2.63	"	0	10	9	11.10	13.65
2.65	"	0	10	10	11.20	13.78
2.70	"	0	11	1	11.40	14.04
2.95	"	0	12	2	12.50	15.34
5.00	"	1	0	7	21.15	26.00
7.50	"	1	10	10	31.73	39.00
8.00	"	1	12	11	33.85	41.60

Make all remittances payable to The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Postage required for remailing this copy: 1 cent domestic and Canada; 2 cents other countries.

Entered at Boston, Mass., post-office as second-class matter.

Items of Interest

The United States is now consuming nearly two thirds of the world's supply of India rubber. The exports of this commodity from the various producing areas in 1916 were approximately four hundred and forty-three million pounds, while the United States in that year imported about two hundred and seventy million pounds. There has been a great increase in the supply, and this has come entirely from the rubber plantations of the Orient, while the forest product has declined in the mean time. This increase has apparently prevented any advance in price. The export price to the United States averaged in 1910 over a dollar a pound, in 1911 eighty-nine cents, in 1912 eighty-four cents, 1913 sixty-six cents, 1914 and 1915 fifty cents, and in 1916 fifty-nine cents. Plantations now supply about three fourths of the world's rubber output. They are, stated in the order of their contribution to the world's output, the Malayan Peninsula, the Dutch East Indies, Borneo, Ceylon, Burma, and India. The forest supplies are chiefly from Brazil, but smaller quantities come from other South American countries and from the Kongo valley in Africa. The capital invested in the rubber manufacturing industries in the United States is over three hundred million dollars.

For nearly five years the New York State College of Forestry at Syracuse, N. Y., has been carrying on a wood utilization service which has bent its efforts toward developing a better market for forest products in New York. Over four hundred wood using industries and manufacturers of forest products are cooperating actively. Only about 50 per cent of all lumber is used either in rough or finished form. The other half is sawed up into a great variety of small pieces for use as furniture, musical instruments, woodenware, fixtures, and a thousand and one other uses. The College of Forestry is urging manufacturers to offer to the trade the small pieces formerly burned or wasted, so that those who can use these small pieces to advantage may not be forced to cut up larger and more valuable lumber.

Hearings on the suit by the Government to dissolve the United States Steel Corporation have been held before the Supreme Court. The principal charge of the prosecution is domination by the corporation in the iron and steel industry. It is said to furnish more than one half of the national production and to control prices. By its formation in 1901, the Government alleges, competition was illegally stifled. The defense is that the organization has actually operated beneficially, has not oppressed competitors or the public, and is not illegal merely because of its size and combined assets.

Douglas fir is recommended by the chief forester at Stavanger for the reforestation of western Norway, whose former wealth of oak forest was exhausted hundreds of years ago. Norway has been cutting very heavily during the last decade, and the Government has taken effective steps to safeguard the nation's timber supply, both by encouraging reforestation and by limiting the cutting to trees above 6¾ inches in diameter, measured five feet from the ground. Both pine and spruce are employed for paper making, the principal use to which timber is put.

The fruit industry in New Zealand, with the assistance and encouragement of the Government, is making splendid progress, and the country will soon be in a position to supply large quantities of fruit for export. The best apples are grown in South Island, where the weather is cooler, and in the Nelson district in the northwestern part of the island many million trees have been set out during the past few years. It is estimated that soon this district alone will have a million cases for export. Last year it had 250,000 cases for export, but owing to shortage of shipping space only 100,000 cases were shipped.

The efforts of the forestry department of the state of Pennsylvania to re-cover its denuded hills with trees is meeting with the hearty cooperation of water companies. So far nearly a hundred have responded, and have asked for more than one hundred thousand trees. The department has agreed to make a free examination of all their planting sites. There will be 2,000,000 seedlings ready for distribution this spring, and, including the requests of the water companies, there are now applications approved for the distribution of 750,000.

Three indictments handed down by the Federal grand jury, which has been investigating food and coal price fixing, name fifty-five individual defendants and one hundred and eight corporations. It is charged that there was a combination among the selling agents and producers of 22,000,000 tons of coal out of the 35,000,000 produced annually in the Pocahontas and New River districts of West Virginia, to fix prices arbitrarily.

That a much stronger box than the type ordinarily used can be made with less material by increasing the number of nails and by properly proportioning the thickness of the sides and ends, has been demonstrated by engineers of the Forest Products Laboratory at Madison, Wis. A loss that reaches many millions of dollars annually is, it is stated, caused by damage to goods in transit, largely because of faulty containers.

Kansas farmers throughout the western half of the state are having plans made for thousands of small reservoirs which they will build to store the winter waterfall for summer use. The state has announced that it will reduce the tax assessment of each farmer $100 for each dirt pond that will hold ten acre-feet of water. Four ponds are allowed for each quarter section.

A Toronto newspaper states that a company making Portland cement at Durham, Ontario, Canada, is now turning out as a by-product from the feldspar twelve to sixteen tons of potash daily. Feldspar rock is added to the limestone as a raw material for cement, and a process has been evolved for collecting the liberated potash. The company claims that it is possible to produce an article which is almost pure.

The National Forest Reservation Commission has authorized the purchase by the Government of 32,266 acres of land in the southern Appalachian and the White Mountains, for inclusion in the eastern national forests. In accordance with the policy of the commission only tracts were approved which block in with the land already owned or acquired in the established "purchase areas."

The cost of the Connaught Tunnel through Mount MacDonald in the Selkirk Mountains, on the Canadian Pacific Railway in the Canadian Northwest, was $6,500,000. The length of this double track tunnel is five miles. Previous to this the longest railway tunnel on the American continent was the Hoosac Tunnel in western Massachusetts,—four and three eighths miles long.

Preliminary reports to the United States Treasury Department from every section of the country since March 1 indicate that the Government will collect $300,000,000 in income taxes during the current fiscal year, or about two and one half times as much as during the preceding twelve months. The internal revenue receipts are expected to exceed $700,000,000.

New Mexico, by a decision in the Supreme Court of the United States, lost its case, in which it disputed the Government's title to valuable coal lands in the Gallup, N. Mex., field. Under a Federal school land grant of 1898 the state was given public lands, but the Government contended that exception was implied of coal and other mineral lands.

The Pennsylvania Railroad, it is said, proposes to electrify its line between Baltimore and Washington. Officials estimate the total expenditures involved in the contemplated improvements about Baltimore itself at $18,000,000.

The Government of Colombia has authorized the organization of a scientific commission to make a geological study of the country and to prepare new maps. Geological experts, either native or foreign, will be engaged to execute this project.

An investigation of blankets for the determination of their warmth has been started by the United States Bureau of Standards in connection with the work of the heat division of that bureau. The results are later to be made the subject of a report.

A law passed by the Bolivian Congress at its last session and recently approved by the President of Bolivia provides for the conservation of that country's resources of coal, petroleum, and sulphur.

Ecuador in 1916 exported from the port of Guayaquil approximately 82,000,000 pounds of cacao, over 4,000,000 pounds of coffee, 2,000,000 pounds of hides, and 1,000,000 pounds of ivory nuts.

Citric, tartaric, and sulphuric acids are to be manufactured at Messina, Sicily. Sicilian fruit growers are financing the venture.

The gross shipments of crude oil and petroleum from the Tampico district of Mexico in January reached 2,429,750 barrels.

Walnuts invoiced at Grenoble, France, for export to the United States during 1916 amounted to 4,923,902 pounds.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

"What I say unto you, I say unto all, WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX March 31, 1917 No. 31

"As little children"

LOUISE KNIGHT WHEATLEY

It is always a joy to older workers to see what children are accomplishing in Christian Science. Mrs. Eddy has called them "the hope of our race" (Pulpit and Press, p. 9), and surely we may well rejoice if in that which is regarded as our maturer consciousness there is found the same simple, unquestioning faith which characterizes the child thought and the child nature.

A mother who had been studying Christian Science for about two months, said to her little boy, who was manifesting a very discordant physical condition: "What shall we do, dear? Mother used to give you medicine for that, but we mustn't do that any more, must we?" "No," said the child; "now we are Scientists you must give me a treatment." "But I don't know how," said the mother anxiously. "I do," was the unexpected answer. "I heard about it in Sunday school yesterday. You must always begin everything by remembering that God is Love." He explained to his mother as best he knew, and then went off to his play, perfectly satisfied. In less than ten minutes the ailment was overcome.

One to whom the mother told the story found much to think about in the little incident, for she began to wonder whether in the face of all discordant conditions she too always began everything "by remembering that God is Love." If this were always done, and done perfectly, would not all else follow as an inevitable consequence? Christian Science teaches that "the vital part, the heart and soul of Christian Science, is Love. Without this, the letter is but the dead body of Science,—pulseless, cold, inanimate" (Science and Health, p. 113). This "vital part" the child had quickly grasped and made his own. May not we "children of a larger growth," who long for more instantaneous demonstrations of healing, learn something from this little practitioner of six? Might it not be well, when any problem presents itself for solution, to ask ourselves first of all if any part of it is in accord with Love and its perfect laws?

God is Love. God is All. Hence divine Love is All, and there is no other power or presence. From this, also, it must logically follow that anything which does not accord with Love and its perfect laws is not true. It has no foundation, principle, permanence, life, substance, entity, or reality; therefore it is not to be believed in, nor is there anybody to believe in it. How quickly error melts away before the touchstone of the question, Did Love do it? For instance, if a thing is not right, it is obvious that Love could have had no part in it. If it is not just, Love does not uphold it. If it is not true, Love cannot support it, for Love maintains only that which is like itself. That which was ever supported by Love has always been supported by Love, and will continue to be throughout eternity.

"Love never faileth" (Rev. Ver.). Would it be in the nature of Love to start things going and then leave them to take care of themselves? Would Love give us work to do and then fail to show us how to do it? Would Love give us something beautiful and right and then allow it to be snatched away from us just as we were about to take it? Would Love lead us a part of the way and then desert us at the darkest place in the path? Would Love send us on some holy mission and then let us pay a penalty for going? Would not Love be less than Love if it sent a message of hope to a weary world and then failed to protect the messenger who carried it?

The trouble is that our understanding of God is limited. We are ready enough to say with our lips that God is Love, but do we really believe it? It is not those who simply say, "Lord, Lord," that shall enter the kingdom. If we say that God is Love, we must believe it, or else we are saying what we do not think is true. If we believe it, we must prove it; and the only proof that Christian Science accepts is demonstration. If God is Love, and the real man is God's reflection, as Christian Science teaches, then it follows that the only man there really is, is the reflection, the expression, the manifestation of Love, and hence is loving, lovely, and lovable. How many of us by our every word and act prove that we honestly believe this to be true?

Yet how quickly the child thought proves what it believes by demonstration. A little boy telephoned his father that he had been bitten by a squirrel. "My hand hurts so, and the boys say it will all swell up," he said. In the simplest words at his command the father told the child that all the ideas of God loved each other, that the squirrel did not really want to hurt him, nor could he be hurt by the squirrel, because he too was an idea of God. "But I want to see you," begged the boy. "Won't you come home?" The father promised, telling the child to remember in the mean time what he had said. When he reached home, about an hour later, the boy was gone and nobody knew where he was. About dinner time he appeared, and seeing his father exclaimed: "Oh, I forgot you were coming home early. I was out looking for the squirrel. I thought I would feed him some nuts, just to show him that I was sorry I hated him for biting me." And the hand was well.

O Love divine, who carriest the lambs in Thy bosom, may we whom the world calls older and wiser ones, rejoice to sit at the feet of a little child like this, remembering in all humility the Master's words, "Except ye . . . become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven."

"Many mansions"

PETER E. MACKAY

In the fourteenth chapter of John's gospel is the assurance, "In my Father's house are many mansions." These words of comfort addressed by Jesus to his disciples have been the subject of much conjecture and controversy ever since they were uttered. Scholastic theology, with its contracted horizon, invariably interprets them from a physical rather than from a metaphysical standpoint. Bounded by material beliefs about man and his Maker, mankind has come to regard the Father's house of "many mansions" as a place of rest divided into compartments reserved and made ready for the people of God who should occupy them after death.

Copyright, 1917, by The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Digitized by Google

Unbelievers are supposed to have a place prepared for them quite apart from the abodes of the blessed.

This narrow concept, as selfish as it is limited, is born of the belief that heaven is a local habitation where, beyond the grave, saints receive immortal rewards, but which sinners can never enter. The Saviour of mankind, who was the "friend of publicans and sinners" as well as the close companion of his chosen twelve, taught the multitudes from a mountain in Galilee the religion of Love,—a religion broad enough to embrace the whole of humanity. He said of our Father in heaven, "He maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust." This sublime conception, however, found little lodgment in the human mind until the discovery of Christian Science by Mrs. Eddy fifty years ago, when the divine idea was again definitely expressed in the following words: "Love is impartial and universal in its adaptation and bestowals" (Science and Health, p. 13).

Some years ago the writer visited the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City. After procuring catalogues necessary to an intelligent survey of that immense storehouse of treasures, he proceeded to pasture among the pleasant fields of art. The first department visited was that of painting, in the galleries of which were hung world famous pictures of the old masters, as well as masterpieces by the best painters of modern times. On every hand were displayed, with a lavishness which exceeded expectation, works of genius, paintings that were poems without words, pictures that live in memory. The next department entered was that of sculpture. Here were presented the finest conceptions of celebrated sculptors exquisitely chiseled in stone and noble expressions of ennobling thought skilfully carved in marble, —rare statuary depicting life, delineating character, and counterfeiting the fascinating forms of nature. These, together with a thousand cameos, served to delight the eye, refine the taste, and inform the mind.

Continuing his tour with absorbing interest, the writer was then attracted to the halls of architecture, which contained a wonderful collection of models representing the five principal styles of architecture. The different styles of building were exemplified in types ranging from the cottage to the chateau, from the castle to the cathedral. Wherever concepts of order and proportion, beauty and utility, grace and truth, are found to combine in unity, there harmony prevails. This was certainly true amidst such varied triumphs of consummate art, such luxurious blossomings of harmony, such marvelous symphonies in stone as arrested the attention of the visitor at every turn.

There is little wonder that during this progress through the museum the thought should occur and recur that the master builder, the grand architect of the universe, had from all eternity manifested to man His infinite ideals of creation. How else could it be possible for the human sense to echo the divine artist, or to be so prolific in what is called creative genius? It must forever be true that before the beautiful in art or in nature can be expressed or even appreciated, a sense of the beautiful must be gained and carried in consciousness. Jesus declared, "The kingdom of God is within you;" and on page 247 of Science and Health we read, "Beauty is a thing of life, which dwells forever in the eternal Mind and reflects the charms of His goodness in expression, form, outline, and color."

As gallery after gallery was visited, the writer saw represented in the several departments the growth, culture, and achievement of the human race for the past four thousand years. Millenniums, it may be said, shrink into small measures of time when the swing of centuries unfolding the progress of ages is comprehended in cycles of thought. The apostle Peter reminds us that "one day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day."

When at length the day was done and the doors of the great museum were closed to visitors, the writer sat down beside the Egyptian obelisk which stands in Central Park and thought upon the words of Jesus, "In my Father's house are many mansions." He became aware in a new way how truly Christian Science opens one's eyes to the deeper meanings of all things, and that in so doing it ever points away from the material to the spiritual. He reflected upon eternity, on the endless round of life in the realm of Spirit, on the glories of earth, sea, and sky as spiritually understood, on the worlds upon worlds of infinite expression and inexhaustible unfoldment, on the everlasting revelations of Truth and Love, of which the apostle Paul said, "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him."

Last of all, thought dwelt upon God's masterpiece, His highest and holiest work,—man. There was nothing left to think about except this: that in the Father's house, the consciousness of Love, there is no room for a false image, for a fallen idol, for the unlikeness of the One "altogether lovely."

✧

[Translated from the German]

Human and Divine Love

ANNA GÖRITZ

Among the many wondrous things which Christian Science brings us, perhaps the most excellent is the understanding of divine Love, for this Love is the basis of Christian Science, also of its demonstration. How imperfect is that which mortal sense generally believes to be love! Consider for one moment the affection of one person toward another. It expects a like return for what it gives; it would occupy the time and thought of its object, and if possible own it exclusively. Such loving bears in its inception the stamp of selfishness, as in a strict sense it seeks its own, and that often at the expense of the personal liberty of the so-called beloved one.

Even the love held to be the most exalted, that is, the mother's love for her child, though capable of the greatest human devotion and sacrifice, yet lacks much of the ideal of true love. For does not this mother-love largely seek in the child its own likeness, and does it not consider the child as its own, thereby separating it in thought from God and believing itself to be alone responsible for the child's welfare and well-being? The insufficiency of the human ability, however, is then manifested in the worry with which this love surrounds the child, in the mistaken belief that it is thus doing what is right. And such worrying, which in many instances follows the child through youth and even into maturity, means a burden rather than a blessing. Thus what is called the highest love, and which believes itself to be fully entitled to this name, may become a serious handicap, if not a lasting fetter.

The causes for the greatest tragedies of human life may be traced back into the labyrinths of mortal love in its varied manifestations. Like a light from on high Christian Science shines into this chaos of human loving. Correcting and saving, it proclaims anew the old gospel of love which has its origin in God alone, and therefore is eternal. How we drink in this new message! How we would like to make it our own! but our mortal senses are not equal to the occasion, and a complete change of thought must precede the higher apprehension. The new message tells of God and of His children, of His love which they must reflect. Can we reflect what we have never seen and what is foreign and unknown to us?

Digitized by Google

No; in order to be able to reflect God, we must learn to know Him as "our Father-Mother God, all-harmonious" (Science and Health, p. 16). Thus only do we grasp our relation to Him as His children. As such we are related to Him, belong to Him only; and this recognition causes the enslaving chains of human ownership to drop from us.

God loves all His children alike. Then if we want to be His children and love as they do, we must also see our neighbor as God's child, as the pure reflection of His nature, of His perfect qualities. Every man united with God, the source of his life, and with Him alone, is a separate individuality with all his inalienable rights. It is absolutely necessary that these rights be respected at all times, but to mortal thought this is not possible. What is required, however, is a constant correction of the human concept. It is a question of struggling daily, hourly, in our relations with our neighbor, against the error which would intervene in various ways between God and His ideas, recognizing and denying the untrue nature of mortal sense, and incessantly seeking in our brother the pure God-idea which is hid to mortal sense but always manifest to spiritual sense.

We used to apply the standard of our critical thinking in judging those we loved, and believed that because of our affection toward them we had a right to attempt to remodel them, or at least to influence them in our way. In Christian Science, however, there is an end to this. We learn that to respect individuality means nothing less than to grant to it freedom of thought and action at all times, regardless of our own wish or will, for as a God-idea it must express its own nature and must do so in its own way.

When we look upon our brothers and sisters in this way, a great change cannot fail to take place in our own selves. Since we cannot change anything about God's idea, nor is it necessary to do so, it becomes clear to us that the mistake must be in our false consciousness, and that what we have to do is to bring about a change in this consciousness. Thus if we are acting intelligently we will in cases of disharmony see first of all whether everything is as it should be in our own thought; that is, whether it is in accordance with the law of God, as far as we apprehend it. Every unloving, unjust, and intolerant feeling or thought is contrary to the law of God, of good, of the altogether lovely and just, and calls forth, in a way analogous to the law of reflection, an outward disturbance in the case of our neighbor.

In order to walk in the right way, we must keep our thought open to the knowledge of God, good, as the Father of all His ideas, His children, remembering that "Love is impartial and universal in its adaptation and bestowals" (Science and Health, p. 13). As we see more and more in God the only Ego, we are enabled gradually to put off the false sense, until finally selfishness has given place to the divine sense of love,—to the love of God toward His idea. Then all recollection of an injury received is wiped out, for it existed only in erring mortal sense. All feeling of resentment and bitterness has departed, and in its stead sincere pardon extends its arms toward the mistaken brother, and our heart is filled with a deep yearning for more knowledge of that which is true and good, which is the pure reflection of God's nature.

Then our path in life grows brighter, the relation to our surroundings more peaceful and blessed. The harmony inherent in us radiates harmony and is reflected back to us. Any arrow with which error would strike us no longer finds a lodgment, but glances off the armor with which the knowledge of God and of His love has clad us, and as so much dust to dust—nothing to nothingness—drops to earth without having harmed us.

Must we not experience a feeling of deep gratitude when we think of the gentle woman who made it her life work to declare the revelation which came to her from God in the text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," that humanity might be able to walk in the way of peace! And must we not thank God from the depths of our heart that in His ever watchful love He has directed our steps into His path!

Christian Science is the name of the new-old truth which this noble woman, Mrs. Eddy, gave back to the world, in that she made available to it the understanding of this truth. It opens wide its arms to all who would seek refuge therein from the dream of mortal error with all its sad experiences. Christian Science compassionately calls to all, without distinction, in the words of our Saviour, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

The Divine Nature and Attributes

CARL E. HERRING

EARNEST students of Christian Science have the incentive of a continual unfoldment of new and higher meaning in every passage of our text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, and this awakened mentality leads to an equally exhaustless evolution of spiritual truth revealed in the Bible. As a corollary to this, such study reveals more and more the fact that the fundamentals of Christian Science are the eternal truths which were revealed to Moses and the prophets, and repeated in parables and demonstrated by Jesus, and taught to his disciples.

Paul's wonderful address to the Athenians on Mars Hill, which has been distorted into having for its primary purpose the prophecy of a judgment day and the resurrection of the dead, is in fact a radical exposition of the allness of God and an earnest plea for obedience to the first commandment. He makes it plain that the world then as now was yielding obedience to the dictates of mortal mind and attempting to worship God, Spirit, in "temples made with hands." The fear of contagion, climate, heredity, has erected supposititious temples in which mortals bow down to health laws, utterly oblivious of the true God, who is the Lord of heaven and earth, or, as Mrs. Eddy says, "the eternal builder, the everlasting Father, . . . which mortal sense cannot impair nor mortal belief destroy" (Science and Health, p. 428).

Instead of the oft repeated assertion that God is a person dwelling in some far off place, Paul declares Him to be ever present, near, and helpful,—"not far from every one of us: for in him we live, and move, and have our being." While Paul doubtless caught with clear vision the message that Jesus left of God's fatherhood, the same truth bursts forth in the words of the psalmist, "Whither shall I go from thy spirit? or whither shall I flee from thy presence?" and the prophet Jeremiah echoes the same thought when he says, "Do not I fill heaven and earth? saith the Lord."

No fact is more firmly established by Scriptural authority than that God is everywhere and all inclusive. What then is the application of this great truth in Christian Science living? The first deduction is the absolute elimination of any power opposed to God. No matter how much we may be disturbed by the phenomena of evil, discord, sickness, and death seemingly about us, we may always return to our rock of security that, if God is All, there is no room for more. These apparent derangements cannot be overcome by setting up a principality opposed to God.

Following up the line of exclusion, we take another important step when we determine that God is good, not evil, for the moment this is revealed to us we have excluded the possibility of God being the author of evil; and as God is the author of all being, we have moved evil still farther into the shadows of unreality. In other words, by an indisputable process of elimination we have demonstrated the nothingness of evil, for we would not commit mental suicide by saying that God who is all good creates evil, or that God who is all powerful is opposed by a power able to thwart His will. All of this, however, would be mere scholasticism if it were not made practical in our every-day life, for Mrs. Eddy did not give her message to the world to add luster to fruitless dogmas.

Digitized by Google

When the two basic propositions advanced are combined, it is an easy step to absolute Truth, but an essential one if we wish to give dynamic force to our declarations. The world in its yearning for a personal God has thought to accomplish this by giving to God certain attributes which appealed to it as worthy, but drawn from human emotions and relationships. As a result God has been endowed with love, spirituality, intelligence, truthfulness, life, and the possession of certain laws. These laws however have been regarded as subject to suspension in times of great emergency, or when it seemed necessary to bring a recalcitrant people into line, in which cases they were supposed to have been supplanted by miracles.

This leads us to the ultimate consideration and the point of variance at which the world has missed the great benefit to be derived from an understanding of the first commandment and of Paul's statement to the Athenians that God was to them an "unknown God." Spirit, Love, Life, Mind, are not attributes of God, but they constitute the one absolute God. When we attempt to change the absolute into an attribute of a personal concept of Deity, we fall short of the spiritually scientific understanding which enabled Paul to speak of the Mind that was in Christ Jesus, and John to declare that God is Love. All this is summed up by Mrs. Eddy on page 465 of Science and Health, where she presents in unmistakable terms "the nature, essence, and wholeness of Deity."

The distinctions made in Science and Health become of tremendous importance in giving a Christian Science treatment, because we cannot expect to solve a problem of sin or sickness if our standard is not absolute, any more than a mathematician could work a problem in arithmetic if he believed that two and two produced a variable result. The opportunity for growth in spiritual understanding and in power is unlimited, because as we progress, and add the graces of humility and gratitude, we shall find that all discord, including poverty and limitation of every kind, will fade into nothingness, for we shall not attempt to limit in any wise the omnipresence, omnipotence, and goodness of God.

✧

Fear and Pain Denied

MAY SMITH

THERE comes a time in the experience of every seeker after truth when he faces the parting of the ways, when a decision must be made; and with what perfect willingness does he see mortal beliefs go,—all the falsities of pain and sorrow, fear and failure, all the wrong thinking and wrong doing. Even when to our limited understanding we seem to have grasped but little of the truth of being, that little has brought such a sense of peace and joy that the experience awakens a desire to know more.

Well do I remember an incident that occurred when I was not very far advanced in Science. One of my hands was injured, and as I clasped it in the other and closed my eyes in silent denial of the seeming power of pain, my little granddaughter, a child of three years, who was with me at the time, said, "Grandmother, tell God about it." To this I gladly responded, and when we reached my room and were seated, she leaned her arms upon my knee and together we, she in her baby way and I in mine, repeated the "scientific statement of being" (Science and Health, p. 468), which declares that "God is All-in-all." To me the instinctive turning to God for help on the part of the little child was beautiful; her simple faith and trust, knowing nothing else but God, good, was most helpful. The child did not forget to turn to divine Love, while the older one was fighting a belief of fear.

If we walk with our faces turned toward the light of Truth and Love,—like Jacob as he stood in the light of a new understanding, after a night of darkness and doubt when he had struggled with error until the victory was won,—we in reaching out for the "things which are before" will bring into our lives the realization of the living presence and all-power of good. Like the little child, we can turn to God under all circumstances; put our trust in a loving Father who is, as Mrs. Eddy tells us (Science and Health, p. 7), the "all-hearing and all-knowing Mind, to whom each need of man is always known and by whom it will be supplied."

✧

"Charity suffereth long, and is kind"

OTIS P. LE ROSS

PAUL wrote to the Romans, "Owe no man anything, but to love one another." He clearly saw the lurking evil which would beset human existence in the temptation to owe anything and everything to another, except the love which in another epistle he so aptly calls charity. Honesty demands faithfulness to a trust or an obligation, and requires nothing less than that obligations must be fulfilled; but the law of Christ bids us love one another, and since divine Love is infinite it must of necessity be infinitely expressed. Just in proportion as one is striving to learn more of the divine law of Love and his relation to it, he is fulfilling his obligation, and consequently will lose the desire to owe his brother anything but love.

Love and charity are one and inseparable, and he who is charitable will be patient, for the same apostle tells us that "charity suffereth long, and is kind." Real charity reflected by us will greatly assist the brother who is weak in the faith in finding God. On page 270 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy says, "Meekness and charity have divine authority." True kindness is as far removed from the world's concept of kindness as the infinite is from the finite. The kindness of divine Love is compassionate and healing. It does not pity a man because of his false beliefs, thereby confirming the testimony of the material senses, but rather heals him of his wrong thinking and bids him "go in peace."

The true Christian Scientist seeks the guidance of divine Mind in what he says and does, and is thereby gaining a truer concept of kindness, which in the days when pity and kindness were thought to be one and the same had little place in his consciousness. It is absolute Christian Science that the humble seeker for truth desires, and in the beginning of one's experience he needs to learn what it means to depend upon God alone for wisdom and guidance.

A careless word dropped from unthinking lips, or a false estimate expressed, tends to influence the awakening thought and turn it for the moment away from the realities of Spirit. The words expressed may have been intended as a warning and actuated by the desire to do a kindness. Yet is it not more than probable that the estimate expressed was a result of personal prejudice, and would it not have been the kindlier way to commit the seeker to God's guidance and let Him point the path to safety and protection? The psalmist says, "He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness," and certainly the paths of wisdom's choosing are those which enable one to fulfil the law and to "love one another."

Digitized by Google

To work out one's own salvation is a privilege accorded to every individual. Real kindness does not question this right, but rather aids it through gentleness, love, and patience. A person can see only from the standpoint which he has attained, and if one has reached a higher viewpoint than another there should be no condemnation, for each is striving to reach the goal and may justly exclaim at the view which he beholds. It is impossible to see things the same from different points on an ascending path.

Is it of vital importance, when one who is half way up a mountain, thinks he is about to reach the top, and another, who is just a little farther up, finds that what seemed to be the top is only a plain leading to a range beyond? Need the two stop where they are and begin to dispute and argue because they cannot see alike? Both may be equally truthful. Would it not be kinder, more charitable for him who had gone high enough to see the plain, to wait patiently until the companion reached the same point? No disputing or arguing would be necessary then, for the truth of the situation would be self-evident and the two might journey on in perfect harmony. Then in the ascent from material belief to spiritual understanding the one important thing to know is that divine wisdom is guiding not only our feeble footsteps, but also those of every one who is striving to attain the mountain top of holiness.

Paul points out many of the ordinary differences of opinion which if persisted in would foster bitter strife and envying. He tells of one man who believes he may eat all things, and of another who believes he may eat only herbs, and shows that it would not be consistent for him that eateth to despise him that eateth not, or vice versa. He reminds us that a man may esteem one day above another and his friend every day alike, pointing out the utter folly of one arguing with the other as to which is the better policy, and he adds, "Let every man be fully persuaded in his own mind." In the light of Christian Science it hardly behooves us to judge another because his way happens to differ from ours, for it is well to remember that "we shall all stand before the judgment seat of Christ." We are assured that "the kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost."

The one thing needful is more charity, enabling one to cease doing those things which tend to cause a brother to stumble or tarry in the way. Paul says, "It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor anything whereby thy brother stumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak." It may not be a question of eating or not eating meat. It may be our home surroundings, our amusements, our mental attitude and consequent expression of that attitude among friends, in business relations or elsewhere, that causes the seeker for Truth to stop and ask himself if this is in accordance with Christian Science.

In this connection the writer is especially grateful for the "Rule for Motives and Acts" in the Manual of The Mother Church (Art. VIII, Sect. 1). This one rule alone would, if it were always adhered to, cause mankind to exercise true charity and to "owe no man anything, but to love one another." We may well ponder the words of the apostle, "Let us therefore follow after the things which make for peace, and things wherewith one may edify another."

Selected Articles

[Hector Wallace Smith in Fraserburgh (Scotland) Advertiser]

In the column devoted to science and invention in a recent issue Christian Scientists are referred to in a way that is apt to create a wrong impression. The passage in question is as follows: "Pain and Self-control. Undoubtedly some Christian Scientists under the spell of religious zeal are able to efface their sensations." As there is no "spell of religious zeal" in Christian Science, it is quite a mistake to suppose that Christian Scientists efface sensation or do away with pain while under the influence of any such spell. In the practice of Christian Science healing no use whatever is made of hypnotic power, or human will influence, or suggestion in any form.

It is the spiritual understanding of what the one and only true God really is, as taught in Christian Science, that frees individuals from pain and heals sickness and sin. The divine control of the one Mind, God, who is Life, Truth, and Love, produces the harmonious and beneficial effects that are being seen today in the spiritual healing activities of Christian Science. Normal and natural conditions, both physical and mental, are manifested in every individual who gains some knowledge of these teachings of divine Truth, which are set forth by Mrs. Eddy in the text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures." In this book she writes as follows (p. 203): "If God were understood instead of being merely believed, this understanding would establish health." Many people in this country have gratefully borne testimony to the fact that not only discordant sensations of all sorts but the most severe forms of painful illness have been completely healed by Christian Science after all material remedies had failed.

✧

[Hans Frey in Neues Winterthurer (Switzerland) Tageblatt. Translation]

Permit me to make a few explanatory remarks in regard to an article on Christian Science which appeared recently in your valued paper.

The statements, "Since all is of God, there is no evil in the world," and "There is no evil, no sickness, no poverty, no materiality, and, perhaps, no war in the world," are not Christian Science teachings. If in the place of "in the world" the writer had put, in the kingdom of God, in the divine consciousness, he would have been correct. Moreover, by doing so he would have induced the reader to abandon his material point of view and, like the apostle Paul, to set his affection "on things above, not on things on the earth." This would have enabled the reader to gain an understanding of the subject in question.

The Christian Scientist draws a distinction between material belief and absolute reality. He considers as absolutely real only that which is immutable, and he knows that the immutable cannot be found in the material. When, therefore, he speaks of reality or unreality he does so from this viewpoint, which of course is different from the generally accepted way of thinking; consequently he does not "give his own principle the lie." Similarly, "right thinking" in Christian Science does not coincide with what is generally understood by this term. To the Christian Scientist right thinking means having that Mind "which was also in Christ Jesus;" his whole conception of life rests on the Bible, on the teachings of Jesus and of the apostles. He insists that he adheres to them more strictly than the church in general does; therefore he does not evade the saving work of Christ Jesus, as the writer of the article in question avers, but is more closely connected with it than the church. The question as to whether "suffering, evil, and even sin are a means of education in God's plan of salvation," is answered for him by the apostle James, who says: "Let no man say when he is tempted, I am tempted of God: for God cannot be tempted with evil, neither tempteth he any man: but every man is tempted, when he is drawn away of his own lust, and enticed. Then when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth sin: and sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death." If space permitted, it could be shown in yet another way, from the standpoint of Christian Science, that the answer to this question must be in the negative.

Digitized by Google

Extremely strange is the assertion that the stand which Christian Science takes against evil is one-sided in that it is limited to the healing of disease. In her book "Rudimental Divine Science" (p. 2) Mrs. Eddy, the Founder of Christian Science, says: "Healing physical sickness is the smallest part of Christian Science. It is only the bugle-call to thought and action, in the higher range of infinite goodness. The emphatic purpose of Christian Science is the healing of sin." The fact is that in Christian Science moral and physical healing go hand in hand. Above all, it makes better men. It works for the "ethical and religious improvement of the whole man;" indeed, its ethical standard is so high that many shrink from it on account of the sacrifices required. Christian Science peremptorily demands the putting off of "the old man with his deeds."

✧

[F. Elmo Robinson in Benton County Courier, Corvallis, Ore.]

Our critic assails vigorously his "man of straw," but in reality fails to touch even the hem of the garment of Christian Science. Such attempts are bound to result, in this case as in hundreds of similar cases, in many thoughtful readers turning to the text-book of Christian Science, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, to find therein the truth about Christian Science and, perchance, deliverance from the bondage of sin and disease.

Christian Science, being scientific Christianity, is demonstrable. Christian Scientists are striving earnestly, and with a gratifying measure of success, to demonstrate its divine Principle in healing the sick and reforming the sinner. Now, I am sure that your readers will readily recognize that one who has demonstrated Christian Science, even in a small degree, is better qualified to state the truth about it than one who has given only superficial consideration to the subject, and that with a view to attacking it. Clergymen of other denominations do not advise people to seek, or expect them to get, a fair statement of the teachings of Christianity from its enemies; neither can those who are seeking correct information on the subject of Christian Science expect it from those whose thought is manifestly characterized by blind prejudice or by hatred of Christian Science, its Founder, and her students.

It is quite true that when the subject of Christian Science is under consideration we quote as authority the words of Mrs. Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science and author of its text-book, and expect fair-minded people to take her "seriously." I might add that we do not expect such people to take the statements of misinformed critics of Christian Science seriously.

Christian Science does deal with sin, and does so very effectually. In fact, that the healing of sin is the distinctive mission of Christian Science is set forth by Mrs. Eddy on page 150 of Science and Health. There she says: "The mission of Christian Science now, as in the time of its earlier demonstration, is not primarily one of physical healing. Now, as then, signs and wonders are wrought in the metaphysical healing of physical disease; but these signs are only to demonstrate its divine origin,—to attest the reality of the higher mission of the Christ-power to take away the sins of the world." A great many hopeless victims of vicious habits have been completely regenerated through the understanding of God and His Christ, gained through the study and application of Christian Science.

✧

[Lloyd B. Coate in Ohio State Journal, Columbus, Ohio]

A writer seems to think that Christian Science teaches that hell is done away with, that the devil is a myth, that punishment for sin is all a fake, that we deny there is any wickedness in the world, and assert that God is too good to punish sin, that all may now "eat, drink, and be merry," and that fear no longer annoys.

The teaching of Christian Science in regard to the devil is in accord with what Jesus taught: "He was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own: for he is a liar, and the father of it." Did you ever stop to think what a lie is when uncovered and destroyed? On page 588 of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, the word hell is defined as follows: "Mortal belief; error; lust; remorse; hatred; revenge; sin; sickness; death; suffering and self-destruction; self-imposed agony; effects of sin; that which 'worketh abomination or maketh a lie.'"

Christian Scientists do not ignore the claim of evil or sin in the world, but they do deny that God sent it. Christian Science teaches that wrong doing makes its own hell, and right living its own heaven. Sin is to be dealt with and overcome in a Christianly scientific manner, in the way Jesus taught and demonstrated. The sinner can receive no encouragement in Christian Science for wrong doing. Christian Science most emphatically teaches that so long as sin continues, suffering will continue. The sinner must repent and turn away from the belief that sin is a reality and confers a pleasure. He must handle it as Jesus did,—as a lie and a liar,—and no longer be deceived by it, but find refuge in God, infinite good.

✧

[Robert S. Ross in The Tribune, New York, N. Y.]

No one familiar with his teachings can truthfully deny that many of Buddha's views were what the world calls idealistic; nevertheless Buddha, like many other religious and philosophical teachers, believed more or less in the reality of both good and evil, Spirit and matter, Truth and error. Throughout the ages the Hebrew prophets alone caught glimpses of God, good, as the one and only cause of all that really exists, thereby demonstrating the unsubstantiality and impotence of matter and evil. Not until Jesus of Nazareth appeared on the scene, however, did one succeed in fully demonstrating this truth. Jesus triumphed over every material law and completely disposed of the belief in a material body as substance.

History does not record that any other teachers besides Jesus and Mrs. Eddy have clearly taught that all substance, intelligence, and power belong to God, Truth. The name of Mrs. Eddy is here linked with that of Jesus of Nazareth because some people, including a rabbi, who recently referred to her teachings as Buddhism, seem to be under the impression that there is a difference between original Christianity and Christian Science. As a matter of fact, they are one and the same. Any sincere student of Science and Health can prove this by putting its teachings into practice. On page 107 of the volume above referred to Mrs. Eddy writes, "In the year 1866, I discovered the Christ Science or divine laws of Life, Truth, and Love, and named my discovery Christian Science."

Digitized by Google

If the teachings of Christian Science are demonstrably based on those of Jesus of Nazareth, and if Jesus of Nazareth demonstrated in its completeness that which the Hebrew prophets before him demonstrated only in part and at rare intervals, then Christian Science is not alone entitled to the profound respect of all Jews who believe in the Old Testament writings, but it may be unreservedly adopted by them as the inevitable outcome and full fruition of Scriptural prophecy. Many Jews are turning to Christian Science because they are finding it to be the "promised day of Israel."

✧

[S. T. Downs in The Columbia City (Ind.) Post]

An article reprinted from a New York paper told how a doctor "lied in order to supply an antidote to the evil effects" of fear, and thereby effected the recovery of a woman whose sickness had become alarming to herself and family. In the discussion of the incident an attempt was made to establish a relation between it and Christian Science, also between Christian Science and New Thought, psychology, and other forms of suggestion,—the influence of one human mind over another. It is not uncommon for uninformed writers and speakers to make this mistake. Christian Science and suggestion are, however, direct opposites.

It is to be observed that, according to the article, the doctor used psychology, or mental suggestion, to cause belief in that which at the time was thought to be untrue. In spite of the fact that he was actuated by good motives, and in this instance the results seem to have been desirable, the practice of mental suggestion is fraught with the greatest danger. Christian Science is opposed to mental suggestion because it is a material, unspiritual concept. Its advocates admit it is just as effective in bringing about evil results as in producing desirable ones; and its use ultimates often in a worse mental, moral, or physical condition than that which it seeks to improve. In Christian Science mental suggestion is known as animal magnetism, which is an inclusive term for all evil and sin; it is a belief in many minds and in a power opposed to God.

Christian Science destroys fear in a much better way than by mental suggestion, namely, by the understanding of that which is eternally true. Instead of a belief in many minds, Christian Science establishes the fact that God is Mind, and there is no other. Since man is the image and likeness, or reflection of God, man cannot be separated from Him, and the activities of Mind, spiritual law, are ever operating and available in man's behalf. Through a demonstrable understanding of this power of good, and the activities of divine Mind, human consciousness is lifted above that which is opposed to Truth, Life, and Love, and the truth of being is brought into manifestation.

✧

[John M. Dean in The Memphis (Tenn.) Press]

Your kindly editorial regarding the renewed attempt in New York to make it a crime to pray for sick people, will be appreciated by every one who believes in religious freedom. It may interest you to know that there is rarely a session of the legislature in any state in the Union at which some attempt is not made to pass restrictive medical laws under which Jesus and the apostles, if they were here today, would be tried and convicted as common criminals.

But for one's understanding of the perversity of the human mind and its opposition to all progress, one would wonder at the animosity which Christian Science excites, even among those who might otherwise be expected to show a friendly feeling for every movement which has the good of mankind as its object. However, an illuminating analogy may be found in the experience of the gentle Nazarene, who met with the most vindictive opposition from the established systems of his day merely because he went about doing good. This is the sole mission of Christian Science, and yet there are still found those who would consign its followers to the ranks of criminals and outlaws.

Christian Scientists have no fight to make on the doctors, and they will never be found objecting to the passage of laws to regulate the practice of medicine. Those who administer poisons and wield the surgeon's knife should be thoroughly competent, and the medical profession is to be commended for its insistence on proper laws to govern these practices. However, materia medica and Christian Science are so entirely dissimilar that it is a travesty to attempt to make Christian Scientists subject to rules designed for those who administer material medicine. To require a Christian Scientist to graduate from a medical college before becoming legally qualified to pray for the sick, would be as foolish as compelling the doctor to take a thorough course in Christian Science before he is allowed to give a pill. And yet this is what a certain minority class of doctors is constantly trying to accomplish. Again, many of these proposed laws would make it a crime to accept a fee for treating the sick by spiritual means, while ignoring the act of treating. This would indicate that the question of money is at the bottom of such attempts—certainly not a very commendable motive in the members of a profession which is enlisted in an endeavor so vital to humanity that its every thought should be actuated by pure altruism.

No system of healing requires laws for either its propagation or its destruction. Any effective system will stand without legal recognition as a healing monopoly, and any ineffective system will fall of its own weight. That which is true will endure; that which is false must perish. This is the inexorable law of God, and Christian Scientists are more than willing to abide by it. They ask for no special laws in their behalf, and never appear before a law making body except in self-defense. Christian Science is either right or wrong. There is no half way ground, and the ultimate unfailing judgment of the whole people will settle the question purely on the basis of merit.

Why should not the opponents of Christian Science be willing to submit their systems to the same test?

✧ ✧ ✧

[Written for the Sentinel]

Giving

ELFRIEDA S. KRAUSS

So live that when the call doth come
To help some one in need,
Thou'lt answer with a joyous heart,
With open hand and eager feet.
And more: that thou be ready with the gift
Of Spirit's healing touch whene'er 'tis sought,
And ask not who the seeker, what the thought,—
If on the heights or in the shadowed vale,
If in the glamour of the noon
Or in the dead of night, in some forsaken dale,—
Just give! The joy thou hast in giving
Is but the rightful heritage of righteous living;
Just give! 'Tis thou who art receiving
When with a humbled heart and loving life
Thou art found worthy of the grace of giving.

Digitized by Google

Editorial

Spiritual Preparedness

DURING the past two or three years the word "preparedness" has become very familiar to us, and today it is on every tongue. Not only is it used to describe what is regarded as the ideal condition of physical readiness, through military means, to repel aggression and safeguard national rights and personal liberty, but it is also used to express more peaceful and more spiritual forms of readiness in all that promises better conditions in human affairs. In this latter sense the word should be and is of particular significance to Christian Scientists, because they have learned by experience that only through such hungering and thirsting after righteousness as our Master referred to in the fourth beatitude, and such prayer without ceasing as Paul commended to the Thessalonians, can they be prepared to withstand the fiery darts of evil and prove that God, good, is ever present and omnipotent.

Mrs. Eddy writes on page 450 of Science and Health: "The Christian Scientist has enlisted to lessen evil, disease, and death; and he will overcome them by understanding their nothingness and the allness of God, or good. Sickness to him is no less a temptation than is sin, and he heals them both by understanding God's power over them. The Christian Scientist knows that they are errors of belief, which Truth can and will destroy." In this saying Mrs. Eddy has called her followers to a state of spiritual preparedness just as surely as an inherently peaceful and peace loving nation is now called to physical preparedness. Fortunately for Christian Scientists the means for ensuring spiritual preparedness are always at hand through the study of the Bible and Science and Health.

As pointing to the means by which these teachings are to be understood, Mrs. Eddy has written: "Study thoroughly the letter and imbibe the spirit. Adhere to the divine Principle of Christian Science and follow the behests of God, abiding steadfastly in wisdom, Truth, and Love" (Science and Health, p. 495). She has also devoted an entire chapter of Science and Health to the subject of Teaching Christian Science, and ten pages of the Church Manual to the rules under which this teaching shall be carried forward. All these rules have for their basis the importance of this teaching, and in Section 5 of Article XXVII it is said that "no member of this Church shall advise against class instruction." At the same time it is to be noted that none of the by-laws of The Mother Church discriminate against those members who have not had class instruction, it being assumed that all members are earnestly and intelligently using Science and Health and the other writings of our Leader in connection with their study of the Scriptures.

There is one point, however, which we may all well ponder at this time. In admonishing his disciples that they see to their charge, the Master said, "Be ye therefore ready also: for the Son of man cometh at an hour when ye think not." When Peter questioned the application of this teaching, the Master in a further parable declared, "To whom men have committed much, of him they will ask the more." The more one has been privileged to gain in the understanding of Christian Science, whether through his study of its text-book or through instruction in the Primary or Normal classes, the greater is his responsibility for its correct demonstration and that he conduct himself as becomes an exemplary follower of Christ Jesus. As in the parable of the talents, God requires of us an accounting only of that which has been entrusted to our keeping, be it much or little.

It will be remembered that when our Master was approaching the crisis of his ministry, and had prayed alone in the garden of Gethsemane, he returned to those of his disciples whom he had selected to watch with him and found them asleep. Even a second and a third time did this occur, notwithstanding his admonition to Peter, "Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation: the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak." In the present crisis of the world's affairs Christian Scientists should be ready to give of their best, in proportion to their ability, not only in the way of watching and praying, but in doing all those other things which righteousness and humanity demand of them in the name of freedom, equality, and brotherhood. These are essentials of preparedness, and to those who faithfully watch and pray will be given the wisdom and the power to help all mankind.

ARCHIBALD MCLELLAN.

Jerusalem Old and New

IN these days when we read that the allied armies are drawing near to Jerusalem, one is led to recall many things connected with that ancient city. Thought almost involuntarily goes back two thousand years to that day when Jesus of Nazareth, the mightiest conqueror the world has ever known, drew near to the city, surrounded by a multitude who cried, "Blessed be the King that cometh in the name of the Lord: peace in heaven, and glory in the highest." What mattered it that some of the Pharisees said to him, "Master, rebuke thy disciples"? Had he not but a little while before called forth Lazarus from the tomb where he had lain for three days; and need any wonder at the glad acclaim with which the lowly people sounded his praises?

Thought passes swiftly from that day to the siege of Jerusalem under Titus and Vespasian, and then on through the centuries to the time when the Crusaders sought to replace the crescent with the cross in that city. This story needs no recounting; but among the many pilgrims of all faiths and of no faith who have for varying reasons traveled to Jerusalem, mention might be made of a little band of devoted men who in the year 1839 went from the Church of Scotland to inquire into the spiritual condition of the Jewish people in Europe and in Palestine. It seems that as they drew near to Jerusalem and had their first view of it from a gap in the hills surrounding it, one of them rode on in advance of his companions; and when they reached him he was on his knees, beholding for the first time that city which has been the shrine of the world's loftiest ideals and purest faith. The others quickly dismounted and joined him; and their tears fell as their prayers for the restoration of Zion, with all that this implies, rose to God. Perhaps they remembered at that moment the Master's words: "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not!"

In Mrs. Eddy's sermon given at the dedication of the original Mother Church in 1895, we find these words in reference to the Master's tears shed over the city of Jerusalem: "O ye tears! Not in vain did ye flow. Those sacred drops were but enshrined for future use, and God has now unsealed their receptacle with His outstretched arm. Those crystal globes made morals for mankind. They will rise with joy, and with power to wash away, in floods of forgiveness, every crime, even when mistakenly committed in the name of religion" (Pulpit and Press, p. 7). Today with uplifted desire we think of that ancient city, but in Christian Science we have learned that all it ever represented in the way of true greatness and glory is to be found the world over wherever God's name is reverenced and His law obeyed.

Digitized by Google

Long ago Isaiah wrote, "Shall a nation be born at once?" and then he goes on: "Rejoice ye with Jerusalem, and be glad with her, all ye that love her . . . For thus saith the Lord, Behold, I will extend peace to her like a river, and the glory of the Gentiles like a flowing stream." As the student of Christian Science thinks upon Jerusalem, he remembers that Christ Jesus went up to the temple and, after driving out the money changers therefrom, healed within its sacred precincts the blind and the lame who sought his aid. It is true that this brought down upon him the condemnation of the chief priests and elders, who demanded his authority for doing this work, to which he responded: "Did ye never read in the scriptures, The stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner: this is the Lord's doing, and it is marvelous in our eyes?"

Today we may rejoice and be exceeding glad in knowing that old things are indeed quickly passing away; that the new heaven and the new earth of Isaiah's vision, which were seen anew in all their splendor by John in Patmos, are drawing nearer and nearer to the awakening spiritual sense of humanity; and now it is not the Jerusalem of olden time, but the new Jerusalem, toward which our uplifted desire goes out; for it is there, as we are assured in the sacred Word, that God Himself shall be with His people and be their God; that there will be neither sorrow nor crying, neither pain nor death, for all things are made new.

ANNIE M. KNOTT.

✧

"In God we trust"

THE noble motto "In God we trust," found on many coins of the United States of America, is worthy of a free people. These words, repeated also in the national anthem, "The Star Spangled Banner," set forth concisely the fundamental truth of all religion and of successful statecraft as well, implying as they do the parenthood of God and the brotherhood of man. With every advancing step in human history this motto will ring clearer and truer in the ears of humanity and correspond more closely to the actual abiding faith of the nations of the world. Christian Scientists are active citizens, loyal to God and country, ready to uphold Principle in all good works. A land of the free alone can do full justice to the above motto. If the attempt be made to filter trust in God through an autocrat, there is every reason to suspect that the particular autocrat in question will impart to this trust the hue of his own personal sense and so vitiate the direct appeal to God. Therefore a working trust in God on the part of any people implies some measure of self-government.

Writing to the Boston Globe in August, 1905, Mrs. Eddy expressed herself as follows: "I believe strictly in the Monroe doctrine, in our Constitution, and in the laws of God. While I admire the faith and friendship of our chief executive in and for all nations, my hope must still rest in God, and the Scriptural injunction,—'Look unto me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth.' The Douma recently adopted in Russia is no uncertain ray of dawn" (Miscellany, p. 282).

But what of this God who is to be implicitly trusted by a whole people? Is He a national Jehovah, creating good and evil, truth and error, life and death? Here Christian Science intervenes in the affairs of nations, gives the directing signal, and explains the nature of God as trustworthy. It need hardly be insisted that the conventional ecclesiastical concept of God as changeable and capricious can no more enlist the affections or fix the trust of nations than it can of individuals. Christian Science defines God as Principle, immutable in perpetual goodness, operating through law and order, meting out justice, and inspiring righteousness. Such a God invites confidence, and upon Him a righteous nation can lean in the hour of peril.

The attempt to direct national life according to the dictates of self-aggrandizement and self-sufficiency quickly engenders strife with other nations and corrupts the internal economy of the nation itself. Simple trust in good frustrates treachery within and without, turns aside the secret thrust, and establishes a plan of defense which is never aggressive and expects no results from studied frightfulness, since God, all-power, knows no evil. The hour has dawned when the nations of the earth are called upon to declare their allegiance either to Principle or to person, to God or to self, to divine Mind or to mortal mind, to Truth or to error. There is no resting place in any half way position, and the line of demarcation becomes clearer hour by hour. On the one side is human ingenuity pushed to its utmost efforts in order to perpetuate personal or class domination; on the other side is a growing willingness to submit national action to the test question of allegiance to God, who is Truth.

Christian Scientists, trained to turn to God for the solution of every problem, no more hesitate in the moment of national emergency than they do in the case of personal peril. They know from personal observation that the mother who trusts her child to God obtains a better and healthier child and becomes a happier mother. On the ears of those Christian Scientists who were privileged to hear that never to be forgotten address of their Leader at Pleasant View in 1903, there still rings her sacred admonition, "In parting I repeat to these dear members of my church: Trust in Truth, and have no other trusts" (Miscellany, p. 170). The motto "In God we trust," rising beyond merely national lines, is today an international asset belonging to the whole world and declaring that Principle always wins.

WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN.

✧

Funds Still Open

IN the Sentinel of Dec. 2, 1916, The Christian Science Board of Directors invited the field to contribute "both individually and through the church and society organizations," the sum of $526,500, to secure title to property adjacent to The Mother Church and necessary for extensions and betterments; also not less than $600,000 for the purposes of the Christian Science Benevolent Association.

As the notice in the Sentinel of Feb. 24, 1917, of the closing of the Memorial Fund has been construed by some to mean the closing of these funds, it may be well to state that they are still open. Up to noon on Friday, March 23, the amount contributed to the Real Estate Fund was $85,339.82, and to the Benevolent Association Fund $210,577.72. These amounts indicate actual cash received, and do not include sums pledged for future payment.

Contributions to these funds, also to the War Relief Fund, will be promptly acknowledged by Adam H. Dickey, Treasurer, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

✧ ✧ ✧

Among the Churches

Current Notes

COVINA, CAL.—The Christian Science Society expects to erect a church on the corner of Third and Center Streets in the near future.—Covina Citizen.

Digitized by Google

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—The press of the state has maintained a general attitude of respect toward Christian Science. Only four periodicals have published articles that were of an unfriendly nature, and these were very mild in their statements. On the other hand, much of a friendly nature has been printed, and many editorials and articles from the Sentinel and the Monitor have been printed with favorable comment. A number of papers in the state have printed in full lectures on Christian Science. About two years ago the warden of the state prison was asked to accept a year's subscription to The Christian Science Monitor, and he and others in the office were so well pleased with the paper that he brought before the board of trustees the question of allowing it to be sent to the inmates. The subscriptions offered were accepted, and there are now sixteen Monitors going to the prison daily. It has been arranged so that every man has a paper each day. The men have expressed their appreciation of the papers.

Distribution of literature by the assistants and committees in the state to Oct. 31, totals as follows: 7862 Sentinels, 1240 Journals, 56 Herolds, 26,394 Monitors, 768 pamphlets, 9195 papers containing lectures on Christian Science, 32 annual subscriptions to the Monitor, 9 copies of Science and Health.—Committee on Publication.

NEBRASKA.—During the year ended Oct. 31, 117 copies of Mrs. Eddy's works were placed in libraries in the state, and 103 yearly subscriptions to the Sentinel, Journal, Herold, or Monitor. Committees of churches and societies reported the distribution of Christian Science literature as follows: 15,429 Sentinels, 1915 Journals, 509 Herolds, 191,837 Monitors, and 5581 miscellaneous pieces. Including the literature distributed from the office of the committee on publication the total distribution from all sources reported was 219,605 pieces. During the year forty-four articles were written by the committee on publication in reply to criticisms of Christian Science and collateral subjects. These replies were published, including reprints, in 144 newspapers in the state.

Committee on Publication.

Admission to Membership in The Mother Church

The next admission of candidates will be June 1, 1917. Application blanks may be obtained by addressing the Clerk of The Mother Church, and should be returned to him on or before Wednesday, May 9, 1917.

An application sent to the Clerk does not constitute the applicant a member. Notice of election will be sent to those who are admitted to membership.

Those who have made application for membership prior to Nov. 3, 1916, and have not received notice of election, may communicate with the Clerk if they so desire, and are especially requested to do so before sending in a second application.

JOHN V. DITTEMORE, Clerk,
236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

The Lectures

CHICAGO, ILL. (Ninth Church).—William W. Porter, lecturer; introduced by Mrs. Martha Cohn, who said in part:—

Mrs. Eddy points her students to the Bible. Within its sacred pages, she tells us, she found "the recipe for all healing" (Science and Health, p. 406). How shall we be "shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace"? Christian Science reveals the only way, and it is a divine way. Christ Jesus trod it nineteen centuries ago, and did he not say, "Lo, I am with you alway"? Through the revelation of Christian Science this way has again come to the understanding of men.

DETROIT, MICH. (Third Church).—John Randall Dunn, lecturer; introduced by William D. Kilpatrick, who said in part:—

It is being universally asked: What is Christian Science? What does it teach? What are its accomplishments? On what authority does this religious movement within the short span of fifty years command the respectful consideration of the world? Those who are asking these questions with honesty of purpose and are earnestly seeking their answer, are finding satisfaction in their quest; they are finding that Christian Science is not a mere bundle of theories conjured from the realm of speculation, but that its teachings are the embodiment of a divine, ever present, demonstrable Principle, a Principle that may be intelligently called into active operation today as readily as it was centuries ago by the forefathers of old.

Those who are seeking are finding that Christian Science is distinctly and at all points in strict accord with the teachings of the Bible from Genesis to Revelation. They are finding that the coming of Christian Science to this age is indeed the fulfilment of prophecy, the beginning as it were of a new-old dispensation, the restoration of the teachings of primitive Christianity; they are finding further that Christian Science is wholly orthodox in every true sense of the term, and that in its orthodoxy it is proving itself to be the truth by proving the Bible true.

WELLESLEY, MASS. (Society).—John W. Doorly, lecturer; introduced by Carrington Howard, who said in part:—

Jesus said, "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." An increasing number of people are learning through Christian Science the truth of this declaration, and are enjoying more abundant life and health and happiness, because they are learning the true nature of God and His law and His creation. They are almost forced to celebrate Thanksgiving every day in the year.

WASHINGTON, D. C. (First and Second Churches).—William R. Rathvon, lecturer; introduced by John H. Schaefer, who said in part:—

Wherever sorrow seems to hold sway, wherever disaster threatens, wherever sin is throttling its victim, wherever the flickering beam of hope is giving place to dark despair,—aye, where death itself stalks in the shadow,—there comes Christian Science with its harmonious influence, its message of Life and Love, dispelling the Nubian gloom with the light of Truth, which frees from all that is contrary to infinite good.

In no science, however, can laws be unerringly demonstrated unless they are understood, nor can law be fully understood unless there is a willingness to accept it as law. When Jesus was asked by the two who afterward became his disciples, "Where dwellest thou?" he answered, "Come and see;" and Scripture informs us that they went and "abode with him that day." To those who would know more of Christian Science, who desire a deeper and broader conception of the power of the divine Mind in the affairs of men, or who have misgivings as to the healing and regenerating efficacy of this truth, the invitation is lovingly extended, "Come and see,"—investigate for yourselves.

Digitized by Google

BISMARCK, N. DAK. (Society).—Virgil O. Strickler, lecturer; introduced by Judge A. A. Bruce, chief justice of the supreme court of North Dakota, who said in part:—

With all of our wealth and opportunity we are a discontented people. We have learned how to produce and how to acquire, but have not learned how to live. We have hoarded the pebbles but have overlooked the "pearl of great price." We have gained the whole world but have not saved our own souls, have not gained peace. We have forgotten love, we have forgotten trust, we have forgotten reverence; indeed, we have forgotten God.

I am not a Christian Scientist,—perhaps I would be better and happier if I were,—but I have known many Scientists. I think I am safe in saying that I have known no one to whom the belief has not brought serenity and happiness. I think I am safe in saying that the ideal of the Scientist is to bring the kingdom of God upon earth. I think I am safe in saying that he believes as I do in the prayer: "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven." I know that he is one of the few who fully realize the concept of a universal God and of universal Love, and who dare to live in accordance with the faith that is in them.

SAVANNAH, GA. (First Church).—George Shaw Cook, lecturer; introduced by T. H. Gignilliat, who said in part:—

Christian Science is not a new religion, as some believe, but it is a return to primitive Christianity,—the restoration to this age of the healing and harmonizing influences of early Christian times. It is a law by which we can prove our faith. It has its profound, invariable, eternal Principle, God, and the expounding of Principle is one of the great revelations of the world.—Savannah News.

VENICE, CAL. (First Church).—Bicknell Young, lecturer; introduced by Julius C. Barthel, who said in part:—

To understand the Principle of life and to apply it to daily living is the study to which loyal Christian Scientists devote themselves. In our ranks are former members of all denominations and very many of no former religious affiliations or belief. They have joined us because they have investigated, reasoned, and become convinced. We believe that in Christian Science we have found a real panacea and solvent for the disturbances and problems of life.

Lectures to be Delivered

[By Members of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.]

CALIFORNIA—Los Angeles (Second Church): John W. Doorly, Church Edifice, 948 West Adams Street, 8 p.m., April 7, and Shrine Auditorium, 3 p.m., April 8.
Merced: William W. Porter, Elite Theater, 3 p.m., April 8.
San Diego (First Church): John W. Doorly, Church Edifice, Second and Laurel Streets, 8 p.m., April 10, and Spreckels Theater, 12 m., April 11.
South Pasadena: John W. Doorly, Woman's Club House, 8 p.m., April 9.
Venice: John W. Doorly, Church Edifice, Second and Brooks Avenues, 8 p.m., April 12.
Whittier: John W. Doorly, Woman's Club House, Friends and Bailey Streets, 8 p.m., April 13.
DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA—Washington (Second Church): Charles I. Ohrenstein, Ingram Memorial Congregational Church, Tenth and Massachusetts Avenue, N.E., 8 p.m., April 7.
Washington (First and Second Churches): Charles I. Ohrenstein, Poli's Theater, 3 p.m., April 8.
ENGLAND—London (Third Church): John Sidney Braithwaite, 8 p.m., April 3.
IDAHO—Kellogg: Paul Stark Seeley, Princess Theater, 8 p.m., April 12.
ILLINOIS—Batavia: Virgil O. Strickler, High School Auditorium, 8 p.m., April 10.
Chicago (Fourth Church): Virgil O. Strickler, Church Edifice, Harvard Avenue and West Marquette Road, 8 p.m., April 13 and 14.
Chicago (Seventh Church): Bliss Knapp, Church Edifice, 5318 Kenmore Avenue, 8 p.m., April 9 and 10.
Galesburg: John Randall Dunn, Universalist Church, 8 p.m., April 12.
Kankakee: Virgil O. Strickler, Gaiety Theater, 8 p.m., April 12.
INDIANA—Terre Haute: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Church Edifice, Sixth and Cherry Streets, 8:15 p.m., April 12.
Valparaiso: Ezra W. Palmer, Memorial Opera House, 3 p.m., April 8.
IOWA—Grinnell: Bicknell Young, Colonial Theater, 3 p.m., April 8.
Sheldon: Bicknell Young, Opera House, 8:15 p.m., April 9.
KANSAS—Topeka: Willis F. Gross, The Grand Opera House, 3 p.m., April 8.
MARYLAND—Annapolis: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, State House, 3:30 p.m., April 8.
MASSACHUSETTS—Brockton: Virgil O. Strickler, City Theater, 4 p.m., April 8.
Marlboro: Clarence C. Eaton, Universalist Church, Main Street, 8 p.m., April 9.
MICHIGAN—Detroit (joint lectures): Virgil O. Strickler, First Church Edifice, Cass and Hancock Avenues, 4 p.m., April 1; Second Church Edifice, East Grand Boulevard, near Jefferson Avenue, 8 p.m., April 2; Kenilworth Hall, 2120 Woodward Avenue, 8 p.m., April 3; Garrick Theater (noon lectures), 12:15 to 12:45, April 2, 3, and 4.
Detroit (joint lectures): Clarence C. Eaton, First Church Edifice, Cass and Hancock Avenues, 8 p.m., April 5; Kenilworth Hall, 2120 Woodward Avenue, 8 p.m., April 6; Second Church Edifice, East Grand Boulevard, near Jefferson Avenue, 3 p.m., April 7; Garrick Theater (noon lectures), 12:15 to 12:45, April 5, 6, and 7.
Owosso: Frank Bell, Lincoln Theater, 8 p.m., April 13.
MINNESOTA—Austin: Bicknell Young, Church Edifice, 129 West Maple Street, 8:15 p.m., April 12.
MISSOURI—St. Louis (Fourth Church): Frank Bell, Church Edifice, 5569 Page Boulevard, 3 p.m., April 8.
MONTANA—Great Falls: Paul Stark Seeley, Palace Theater, 8:30 p.m., April 10.
NEW JERSEY—Caldwell (auspices Montclair and Orange): Virgil O. Strickler, Essex County Penitentiary, 8 p.m., April 7 (lecture for inmates only).
Elizabeth: William R. Rathvon, Proctor's Theater, East Jersey Street, near Broad Street, 3:30 p.m., April 8.
NEW YORK—Hempstead: John Randall Dunn, Church Edifice, Fulton Avenue and Franklin Street, 7:30 p.m., March 31.
New York (Second Church): Clarence C. Eaton, Church Edifice, Central Park West and Sixty-eighth Street, 3:30 p.m., April 8.
New York (Society of Columbia University): John Randall Dunn, 8 p.m., April 3. (The University public is invited.)
NORTH DAKOTA—Fargo: Clarence W. Chadwick, Orpheum Theater, 3 p.m., April 8.
OHIO—Akron: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Church Edifice, Fir Street and Buchtel Avenue, 8 p.m., April 9 and 10.
Marietta: John Randall Dunn, Auditorium, 8 p.m., April 10.
Youngstown: Virgil O. Strickler, Masonic Temple, 8:15 p.m., April 9.
Zanesville: John Randall Dunn, Memorial Hall, 8 p.m., April 9.
OREGON—Astoria: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Astoria Theater, 8 p.m., April 9.
Seaside (auspices Astoria): Dr. Walton Hubbard, Union High School, 3 p.m., April 8.
PENNSYLVANIA—Greensburg: Bliss Knapp, New Strand Theater, 3 p.m., April 8.
SOUTH DAKOTA—Deadwood: George Shaw Cook, Deadwood Theater, 3 p.m., April 8.
WASHINGTON—Spokane (First Church): Paul Stark Seeley, Auditorium Theater, 3 p.m., April 8.
WEST VIRGINIA—Huntington: Clarence C. Eaton, Carnegie Hall Auditorium, Ninth Street and Fifth Avenue, 8 p.m., April 12.
Wheeling: John Randall Dunn, Court Theater, 3 p.m., April 8.
WISCONSIN—Milwaukee (Second Church): Bliss Knapp, Church Edifice, Highland Boulevard and Twenty-seventh Street, 8:15 p.m., April 12 and 13.

Digitized by Google

Testimonies of Healing

Nearly eight years ago I heard of Christian Science, but being a trained nurse could not believe it was possible to cure diseases without material means. A short time after this I went to live with a friend who had been healed through Christian Science after the doctor had given her but a few months to live. Soon afterward I became very ill, and the physician who examined my throat said it was in a very bad condition; that if it were not better the next day he would have to inject antitoxin. He then wrote out a prescription, but on the way home I became frightened and discouraged and tore it up.

I told my friend what the doctor had said, and she asked me if I had done anything. When I replied that I did not know what to do, she told me I must take my stand either for medicine or for Christian Science. I had no faith in the former and no knowledge of the latter, but decided in favor of Christian Science. My friend helped me to bed, then read to me from Science and Health, and although not understanding a word, I fell asleep. In the morning a Christian Science practitioner came and gave me a treatment. That evening the doctor called, but I was so much better he did not even ask to look at my throat. In four treatments I was healed, and four days after that went on a case.

I did not, however, give Christian Science the credit for my healing until two weeks later, when I began to compare this experience with previous ones, when I had been ill from three to four weeks. Then I began to realize there must be something in Christian Science, so I procured a copy of Science and Health and began to read it. Through the reading of the text-book a bowel trouble from which I had suffered all my life was overcome, arch supports that had been worn for over six years were laid off, headaches disappeared, also muscular rheumatism of six years' standing.

While in training I had injured a kidney, and this necessitated an operation five months later, but I had to wear a support for a year. Shortly after my first healing in Christian Science I was troubled in the same way, but did not think to turn to God for help and went instead to a doctor, who told me that I would have to take a complete rest for six months and again resort to the support; also that if at the expiration of that time my side was no better, an operation would have to be performed. As I had my living to make I could not do as the doctor advised. It became very evident that there was but one source of help, and that the sooner I turned to God the better it would be for me. I began to study Christian Science earnestly and experienced great relief, so that I was able to continue at my profession; but the fear of a complete breakdown never left me, and four years ago it came.

A physician was called, and I was put to bed for three weeks and an operation was advised, although the doctor could give me no guaranty that it would be effective, saying that the nervous system might not be able to withstand the shock. As soon as I was strong enough to travel I went to Cincinnati to consult two cousins who are prominent physicians there, and they advised me to go to the surgeon who had operated on me. Frightened and discouraged, instead of seeing the surgeon I returned to New York and again took up the study of Christian Science. Three years ago I had the last attack of kidney trouble. A Christian Science practitioner was called, and when he arrived I was in a terrible state, both mentally and physically, and could not move without suffering intense pain, but two hours later I was sitting up in bed. The next day I walked down a flight of stairs to telephone to him, and the following morning attended the church service.

Before learning about Christian Science (in 1901) I had severe trouble with my eyes, and for five days could not distinguish between day and night. Seven physicians who examined me agreed that I would have to wear glasses the rest of my life. When my eyes were strong enough to be fitted with glasses, I was told by the oculist that if I left off wearing them I would lose my sight in less than a year. He also told me to use my eyes very little. For over twelve years I carried out these orders; then one morning I forgot to put on my glasses and did not discover the fact until several hours later, after I had studied the Lesson-Sermon and had done my mental work as we are taught to do in Christian Science. Fear seemed to take possession of me instantly, though I tried to realize that God is an ever present help. The following day I called upon a practitioner, and the fear was finally overcome, so that I have never worn glasses since, although in my work as a Christian Science nurse I read a great deal to my patients both day and night.

In September, 1915, I came down with an attack of muscular rheumatism and was unable to walk for several days, but two weeks afterward I was able to attend church and in another week went on a case again. Limitation, worry, fear, envy, resentment, hatred, revenge, ingratitude, have all been overcome to a great extent through Christian Science, and I am trying to know that God is the only power. I am indeed grateful for the physical healings, but words can never express all that I feel for the wonderful spiritual uplift.

ESTHER Y. MILLER, New York, N. Y.

✧

After ten years of practical proof of the healing power of Truth, I wish to give my testimony of love and gratitude. I was in miserable physical condition when I turned to Christian Science. A specialist had been treating me for kidney, bladder, liver, and stomach trouble, but no relief was experienced. Mentally I seemed in an even more helpless condition. I had left the church in which I was brought up and joined another, but though the minister's sermons helped me for a while, they did not satisfy the craving for something, I knew not what.

To please my mother I attended a Christian Science testimony meeting one Wednesday evening, and such a revelation as it was to me! People told of God healing their diseases, whereas I had always been taught that He sent disease in order to make one better. The people seemed to be perfectly normal, and certainly happier as a whole than it seemed possible for a large body of people to be. As a result of this meeting I began to study Science and Health, and in about six months was healed. The tobacco habit of long standing also left me. Many times I had tried to quit smoking through will-power, but had never succeeded.

In ten years one can have any number of experiences that will enable him to get unquestionable proofs of the protecting as well as the supporting power of God's love. The physical healings have always been a cause for rejoicing, but the peace and joy that have crept into my consciousness, illumining and opening up the Bible for me, mean more than words can express.

Continually do I thank God for His infinite love and protection. Each day brings to my consciousness a deeper realization of the debt of love and gratitude I owe that wonderful woman, Mrs. Eddy, for this truth which she has given to us in Science and Health and her other writings. My appreciation of the Christian Science literature grows deeper as I understand it more clearly. I feel especially grateful for the Monitor; each Home Forum article is to me as manna that daily sustains and blesses. Christian Science is the greatest blessing that has ever entered my life.

Digitized by Google

HENRY MORRIS CALDWELL, Youngstown, Ohio.

✧

When I think of all the blessings that have come to me since taking up the study of Christian Science over five years ago, it seems as though neither tongue nor pen could express my gratitude. For eight years a daughter had suffered from an organic trouble caused by an accident. She had undergone an operation which the physician said would restore her to health, but after a year of suffering she was told that another operation was absolutely necessary. She then turned to Christian Science, with the result that after a month's treatment she was healed, and she has been in perfect health ever since. This healing seemed wonderful to me, and wishing to find out how it had been accomplished, I began the study of Science and Health.

For two years I had been under the constant care of a physician on account of extreme nervous trouble. My heart was in a bad condition, so that I was afraid to be alone, and life seemed such a burden that many times I wished for the courage to end it all. Almost immediately after I began to read the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, my health improved. All the discordant conditions which had enslaved me disappeared, and in a short time I was able to attend to my household duties. Among other ailments a chronic throat affection, which a physician told me I would never be rid of in this climate, has disappeared. Two years ago I was healed of acute lung trouble and other complications, when to mortal sense there was no hope of recovery.

I am grateful for the better understanding of the Bible which I am gaining through the study of the Lesson-Sermons wisely provided for us by our Leader, Mrs. Eddy, and deeply thankful to God for all the blessings that have come to me and mine through the understanding of this beautiful truth.

ANNIE E. CRESWELL, Detroit, Mich.

✧

Christian Science was brought to me in the darkest hour of a mother's life,—when I was almost overcome with grief at the passing on of my baby. Turning away from God, or what I had been taught to believe was God, I refused to be comforted. Then a lady, who proved to be a Christian Scientist, told me of a God who is loving and kind, who does not cause death, but who sent His Son into the world to show us the way to overcome sickness, sin, and even the "last enemy," and her loving assurance gave me new courage and strength to bear my burdens. This lady moved away from the small town in which I lived, and nearly fifteen years passed before I had an opportunity to learn more of the teachings of Christian Science, which at the time it was first presented to me was almost unknown to the majority of people.

For years I had suffered from gall-stones, bronchial asthma, heart trouble, and many other ailments caused by these conditions. I finally decided to undergo an operation, as my family physician said the gall-stones would terminate in either blood-poisoning or a malignant growth, but was told that I could not take an anesthetic. The physician advised me to go into the northern pines until my breathing was better, but to do this would necessitate closing my home and putting my two children out to board. Then, in the stillness of the night, when all in the house except myself were asleep, the thought of Christian Science came to me; but while I wanted to try it, there was also the fear that I had waited too long. With the morning came a full determination to give it a trial. I told my husband of my plans, to which he heartily agreed, for he was tired of seeing me suffer and was glad to try anything before having the operation. I called on a practitioner, and was healed with one treatment. Fearing a possible return of the trouble, I insisted on being treated twice after that, but found I was permanently healed. That was fourteen years ago.

Through the faithful study of Science and Health I have been healed of sick headaches and goiter; and every other ailment that has come to me or to my family has been overcome. Truth has been our only physician, and has never failed us. I have mastered many faults which would never have been overcome had not pain and sorrow driven my tired feet into the way that leads to God. In every experience He has given me wisdom and strength to withstand the trial. I have learned to love more, to be a better mother, wife, and friend.

For all these blessings I am thankful to God, and grateful to Mrs. Eddy, who through faithful study of the Scriptures has made it possible for every one to work out his salvation here and now.—ESTHER BLACKBURN, Milwaukee, Wis.

✧

In the spring of 1911 a physical healing through divine power alone was experienced in our home. Our daughter, then not quite eleven years old, was suddenly stricken with what is known as infantile paralysis. So severe was the attack that she could hardly move any portion of her body without assistance. A Christian Science practitioner was called at once, and as a result of her untiring efforts the child was able, at the end of ten days, to dress herself, and without help walked downstairs to have dinner with the family. After that her recovery was rapid, and in two weeks more she was again in school. None of the afflictions which under medical treatment are expected to follow this disease, were ever manifested.

To us this was a convincing proof of the healing power of Christian Science, for the permanency of the healing is assured. My daughter is not only carrying her high school work with a report card bearing the highest mark in almost every course, but is also putting in from three to four hours a day on piano and voice practice. Many other beautiful proofs of God's power have been given us. Spinal meningitis, ptomaine poisoning, bowel trouble of years' standing, rheumatism, and countless minor ailments have all been reduced to their native nothingness.

I am thankful to God for giving us one so pure, so full of understanding, so near to God, as to be able to make plain to us the true relationship which we bear to our Father.

KATHRYN B. WAY, Watertown, S. Dak.

✧

In 1909 a story of healing in Christian Science was related to me by a friend who had been wonderfully blessed, and the manner in which the incident was recounted so impressed me that I could not but think that the robe of righteousness was enveloping her thought. It seemed so pure and helpful that I decided to know more of the fountain whence came all this joy and happiness. The following day I purchased a copy of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, and read it with much interest for some weeks, accepting many of the leading thoughts as true, yet not fully grasping the underlying Principle.

In a few months I again realized the urgent need of something more efficacious than medicine, which had repeatedly failed to give me more than temporary relief, so the study of Science and Health was taken up in earnest. After some months of faithful study I asked a practitioner to assist me in working out my problem, and in three weeks I noted a wonderful improvement in my physical condition. A serious trouble diagnosed as catarrh of the stomach was soon completely healed; nervousness and sleeplessness were overcome, and my hearing, which had been greatly impaired, was much improved. The tobacco habit of thirty-five years' standing left me, and I have had no desire for the weed since.

Digitized by Google

While my brother and I were touring over a very rough strip of country in an automobile, the engine stopped and the car started to back down a steep hill, the brake failing to hold it. I steered the machine against a bank by the side of the road, and a stranger who came along at this time offered his help. I suggested that he steer the car while my brother and I pushed, but when the car was in the center of the road it again commenced backing down the hill. The thought came to me that I could stop it by taking hold of the spoke, and I did so, but my thumb was almost completely severed at the first joint. Realizing, however, that "accidents are unknown to God, or immortal Mind" (Science and Health, p. 424), and that there is no sensation in matter, I did not mention the occurrence until we had reached the top of the hill. The thumb was then bound up in a handkerchief, and I drove the car thirteen miles to the nearest surgeon, who removed the bones in the end of the thumb and sewed it on again. Four days later I drove the car home, a distance of a hundred and twenty miles. I dressed and cared for the thumb myself with perfect ease, there being no swelling and scarcely any pain. We built a cattle shed fourteen by thirty feet, and I did all the framing and sawing, as well as a good deal of the nailing, with this hand, and had the shed completed within four weeks from the time the above incident occurred.

For these demonstrations of the power of Truth, and for the many blessings bestowed in time of need, my heart goes out in thankfulness to God. The healing is a source of joy and gladness, but the consciousness of our unity with Him who is endless Life is sweetest of all. Mrs. Eddy has most beautifully said that "Love is reflected in love" (Science and Health, p. 17), and meditation upon this statement has caused many a resentful thought to fade away. Membership in the local church, also in The Mother Church, and the privilege of class instruction, are among the blessings that I prize very highly. I wish to express my gratitude for all that Christian Science implies, and for its wonderful healing influence in the world today.

Hugh L. McCoy, Hastings, Neb.

✧

I am very grateful for what Christian Science has done for me. For about twenty years I was an invalid, suffering from nearly all the ills to which flesh is heir. Many doctors in this country and in Europe were tried, as well as every remedy known to medical science. After being in bed three months, constantly suffering the most excruciating pain, I went back to the hospital for the thirteenth operation. The doctor had told my husband it would be just another experiment, but I felt that even temporary relief would be a blessing. Four operations had been for chronic bladder trouble, but were rendered more dangerous on account of heart failure, which had caused me to have fainting spells almost daily for over twenty-five years. The doctors pronounced my disease incurable, but it was proved in my case, as it has been in others, that "man's extremity is God's opportunity."

On the night before the thirteenth operation was to be performed, my son advised me to come home and try Christian Science. Although I had read Science and Health without getting any understanding of it, and had no faith in it, I consented to do as he wished. We asked for help, and I was healed of the heart trouble in one treatment. The chronic disease which the doctors had all pronounced incurable, was entirely overcome in two weeks. I had taken so many drugs and had suffered so much that I was a complete nervous wreck, and my husband had been advised by a specialist to put me in a sanitarium.

Thanks be to God that through Christian Science I am well and strong now, able to do all my work and go everywhere. The greatest blessing Christian Science has given me is the spiritual uplift and the understanding of the Bible. The benefits this healing truth has brought into our home and into our lives are countless.

Mrs. J. A. Wellauer, Memphis, Tenn.

My interest in Christian Science was aroused through seeing the results of the first treatment my wife received, and I wish to say that every statement she has made is absolutely correct. For eighteen years I went to my work every morning with the thought that I might be called home any time to find her unconscious, or maybe dead. I am deeply grateful for her healing, also for the inestimable benefit I have myself received from Christian Science. I have been fully and completely healed of chronic bowel disorder, also of a trouble which a surgical operation had only temporarily relieved. The tobacco habit of thirty-five years' standing has been overcome, and Christian Science has changed my mental attitude, so that today I am a different man. I am loved now, whereas before I came into Science I was universally disliked by those who work under me.

For the many blessings I have received through Christian Science I am thankful to God, as well as grateful to Mrs. Eddy and to all who were in any way instrumental in bringing about our changed mental and physical condition, including such friends as tried to bring us into Christian Science many years ago.—J. A. Wellauer.

✧

[Translated from the German]

It is with a joyful heart and a sense of deep gratitude that I testify to the many blessings which have come to me through Christian Science. For years I suffered from rheumatism and often would be bedridden. Medical treatment brought no relief, and frequently other symptoms were added, so that at times I felt death to be near. When in March, 1913, the trouble again manifested itself, I was directed to seek help in Christian Science, and so asked a practitioner for treatment. Within a short time the ailment disappeared, and the pain has never returned since, for what God heals is healed forever. I was also able to discard spectacles, which I had used for eight years.

Many cases of illness in our family have been healed, among them diphtheria, inflammation of the lungs, erysipelas on the face, toothache, and pain in the back, as well as abdominal complaint. I know that I have found the one thing needful, and would most sincerely advise every one who is struggling for help and in search of truth to look into this glorious Christ-teaching. My earnest desire is to assimilate more of the truth which makes free. For all the benefits received through Christian Science I herewith give thanks to God, and am also deeply grateful to Mrs. Eddy, as well as to all who have helped me to find the way of Truth.

Marianne Teuscher, Lütschental, Ct. Bern, Switzerland.

✧

When Christian Science was brought to me I was a helpless invalid and had almost given up the hope of ever walking again. For nearly five years I had been lying on my back, in splints, on account of hip disease. Although I had been in hospitals and had undergone an operation, I did not get any better. Then through a friend a Christian Scientist came to see me. I had never before heard of Christian Science, and it was rather a shock to be told that it was not our Father's will that His children should suffer, as I had always believed I was doing His will by being patient, although it was very hard at times. The practitioner left me a copy of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, and before I had read far I could see it was the truth for which I had been longing. In a fortnight the splints were removed, and in less than three months I was walking about. I have not experienced the slightest pain since, however much I walk or stand.

Digitized by Google

I am indeed grateful for this proof of God's ever present and ever operative power, and thankful to Him for revealing His truth to the world through Mrs. Eddy, our revered Leader. My earnest desire is to go on as she did, "trusting Truth, the strong deliverer" (Science and Health, p. 226), for guidance.—Annie Jones, Liverpool, England.

✧

In Science and Health Mrs. Eddy writes, "Divine Love always has met and always will meet every human need" (p. 494). That this statement is true has been proved to me in many instances. I have been healed of fear, superstition, and discouragement; also of several physical ailments. Before becoming interested in Christian Science I suffered great pain at times from a disease which my physician diagnosed as gravel of the liver, but through the power of Truth I was healed of this in two or three treatments. Glasses have been discarded, although they had been used steadily for two years.

Several years ago I suffered a great deal from toothache. I was young in Science then, and on account of a nervous disposition endured the pain rather than have the dentist examine my teeth. Finally I informed my practitioner about the case and asked him to treat me while the dental work was being done, with the result that I experienced neither fear nor pain. With even a slight understanding of Christian Science I have been able not only to overcome various ills for myself, but to help others defeat error, and for this I am very thankful. Business troubles have also been adjusted most harmoniously through this wonderful truth. Although some conditions seem stubborn, I know that God, good, is ever present and omnipotent, and that divine Love guides our steps and supplies our need, if we but trust in Him.

I am grateful to our Leader, Mrs. Eddy, for the Christian Science periodicals, and also to the friends who have helped me on my journey from sense to Soul. My earnest desire is to know no other Mind but God, good.

Rose Harber, New York, N. Y.

✧

Prior to my coming into Christian Science I was in the wilderness. As a result of dissipation in various forms I was bordering on a nervous breakdown, very despondent, with no object in life and no desire to live. A friend then advised me to see a Christian Science practitioner, and I did so. From the first treatment I experienced great peace of mind, but the healing seemed slow. I have, however, been healed of the drink and cigarette habits, also of other bad habits, and of a bowel trouble dating from boyhood.

Words fail to express my gratitude for the spiritual uplift, the peace, happiness, and contentment I have gained from studying the Lesson-Sermon. I feel completely regenerated, and am indeed thankful to God and grateful to our revered Leader, Mrs. Eddy.

Albert M. Nauer, Chicago, Ill.

From Our Exchanges

[Rev. Henry C. Applegarth, D.D., in Record of Christian Work]

Why did Paul say that the mystery revealed by God to the Gentiles was "Christ in you, the hope of glory"? Why did he not use the name Jesus? The name Jesus is peculiar to the gospels. In them Christ is seldom mentioned. At Cæsarea Philippi Peter says, "Thou art the Christ." But Jesus is the name of this divine one in the gospels. The "angel of the Lord" said to Joseph, "Thou shalt call his name Jesus: for he shall save his people from their sins." It is the emphasis upon his humanity. Jesus is not the same in the beginning, yesterday, today, and forever. He is mutable, changeable, and you must predicate it of him. He was born a baby. He grew "in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man." Evidently he was just such a boy at Nazareth as his neighbor Simon was. He unfolded in the glory of Deity, and by the inner consciousness he gradually came to the knowledge that in him dwelt "all the fulness of the Godhead bodily." That is the mystery of the incarnation. That is the wonderful utterance of Peter in his sermon on the day of Pentecost: "Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ."

Jesus was a being of time, while Christ is forever. Away back in the infinities of God, Christ lay in the bosom of his Father. He came, and he came to expression in Jesus.

[W. Quay Roselle, D.D., in The Homiletic Review]

The ancient prophets had no Bible. We wonder what we should do without our Bible, and yet the Bible itself may actually stand in the way of our hearing the voice of God. We may become so intent upon learning what God said to others that we fail to hear what God is saying to us! When the old prophets stood up before the people and prefaced their message by saying, "Thus saith the Lord," did not they have the consciousness that they had heard the voice from heaven speaking to them? Are we, with all our advantages over them, to be denied their greatest privilege—the privilege of hearing God speaking directly to us? We dare not conclude that God has said to men all He has to say to them.

[Rev. Joseph Fort Newton, D.Litt., in The Christian Commonwealth]

What is the law of victory over sin and its tragedy? Touch the life of Jesus at any point, and we find that a spirit of divine pleasing was its ruling desire. He made the will of God his meat, his milk, his one aim and aspiration, always, everywhere, even in the darkness of death. Obedience to the will of God is the law of victory—the shifting of the center of life from self to God in a passion of divine service, as opposed to the self-centered, self-assertive life which ends in misery. Whether this shifting come slowly or suddenly does not matter; it sacrifices the lower to the higher, and focuses all our energies in a passionate pursuit of the true ends of life. Theologians call it conversion. Name it how you will, it sets life in its true order, releases powers which master the lusts of the flesh, and sets us free from the law of sin. Unguessed latent powers lie dormant within us, potentialities for righteousness little dreamed of.

[Percy Pegler in The Methodist Recorder]

The Lord of the kingdom is going to speak to this tumultuous age of ours. He is going to speak through the churches, if he can. He is in the temple, and he is cleansing it; and we must not be afraid of him. We must allow him to speak, and we must not resist his demands.

Digitized by Google

[The Christian Intelligencer]

Experience teaches that a large part of the burden of life is composed of our fears. If anxiety could be overcome and needless worry eliminated, prolific causes of misery would be wiped out. It is proverbial that many of the troubles we anticipate do not materialize. Yet even the average Christian is subject to many seasons of dread, when dark forebodings of possible evil exact exhausting tribute.

Fear, in the sense of dread, is not in accord with Christian faith. As Christians we are the heirs of exceeding great and precious promises. God has pledged Himself to give us literally "all things." The assurance is ours that God, who has given the unspeakable gift of His Son, will also with him "freely give us all things." This promise certainly includes courage and tranquillity and daily strength for daily need. If we lack these necessary moral and spiritual resources for every-day life, we may attribute our condition to lack of conformity to the will of God.

[Horace T. Houf in The Biblical World]

Religious leaders are, ipso facto, committed to the bringing of all life under "the higher sanctions," the squaring of every intent and act with the will of a God who knows and cares. We need frankly to undertake "the supernaturalizing of all life." Our whole work must have enough organization to maintain an efficient ministering of the vital reality. We shall need vastly more elasticity, more spiritual emphasis, and less turning and whirring of the wheels.

[The Watchman-Examiner]

That building of wood or stone or brick which we call a church is not something that our fathers have taught us to build; it is something that we have built out of our own religious consciousness and as the expression of something that we find within us. It is not merely God's visible reminder and appeal to men; it is man's concrete confession of his belief that there is a God, and that He is a God who may be approached in a very real way by men. It is a corollary to Sabatier's oft quoted saying that "man is incurably religious," declaring that man is incurably worshipful. All history, as well as all experience, goes to show that this is true.

[Western Christian Advocate]

What an encouragement for every devout pastor to feel that men want Christ and his word; that the multitudes are hungering for spiritual food. If we could see it—soul hunger stalking the spiritual world, men eager for the truth, pressing and jostling each other, with appealing eyes turning to their spiritual leaders. . . . This is the apocalypse of present-day Christianity. Those who see it and turn aside from emasculated gospels, denaturized spiritual messages, man-made philosophies, and humanized religion to Scriptural Christianity, will carry the bread of life to the hungry souls of their fellow men.

[Zion's Herald]

"I will come again," said Jesus. In a glad and prophetic sense Jesus is always coming to the devout believer, and the frequency and nearness of his approaches to the soul are largely conditioned on the expectancy and the faith of the professed follower of the Lord.

[The Methodist Times]

Our conception of spiritual power is fatally defective, unless such power is seen to be filled with the spiritual illumination which enables us to apprehend and to strive after a Christian life consistent and complete in every part.

Special Announcements

From the Publisher of Mrs. Eddy's Works

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE TEXT-BOOK, "SCIENCE AND HEALTH WITH KEY TO THE SCRIPTURES."—For styles of bindings and prices see back cover of this periodical.

A NEW CONCORDANCE.—The publication is announced of a Concordance to Mrs. Eddy's published writings other than Science and Health.

The new volume has been compiled with the same comprehensive care and is issued in uniform style with the Concordance to Science and Health. It contains 1103 pages, and is published only in the Oxford India Bible paper edition, with stiff morocco covers. The thumb index will not be used in this Concordance, as it is to be discontinued in future editions of the Concordance to Science and Health. Prices: Single copy, $6.00; in lots of six or more to one address, each $5.50.

Announcement is made of the publication of a German translation of the Manual of The Mother Church. The volume is uniform in size, style, and price with the regular cloth-bound edition, and the publisher is now prepared to fill orders. Single copy $1.00; six or more to one address, each 75 cents.

Orders for the books named above and other works by Mrs. Eddy should be addressed to ALLISON V. STEWART, Falmouth and St. Paul Streets, Boston, Mass.

From the Editor

All manuscripts submitted for publication in the Sentinel, Journal, and Herold, whether articles, poems, or testimonies, and all correspondence relating thereto, should be addressed to the EDITOR, and not to individuals.

From the Publishing Society

The Christian Science Quarterly is published in the Dutch and German languages. These editions are printed with the foreign language and English version on opposite pages. Orders for single copies, quantities, and subscriptions will be filled at the rates as shown on the opposite page.

The pamphlet "Prayer and Confidence" containing four articles reprinted from The Christian Science Journal, has been translated into Dutch.

A lecture by Francis J. Fluno, M.D., entitled "Christian Science: A Reasonable and Rational View of all Things," has also been translated into Dutch.

Both of these pamphlets are printed with the English version opposite the translated page and are on sale at prices as shown on the opposite page under the list of pamphlets.

From the Clerk of The Mother Church

CHURCH TENETS.—The tenets of The First Church of Christ, Scientist,—The Mother Church,—printed on folded sheet for use of the branch Churches of Christ, Scientist, with space for printing their authorized forms of application for membership or extracts from their by-laws, can be had at seventy-five cents a hundred. Orders will not be taken for less than one hundred and postage stamps should not be sent in payment.

Correspondence relative to the tenets or to membership with The Mother Church, should be sent to J. V. DITTEMORE, Clerk, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

From the Church Treasurer

The annual per capita tax of members of The Mother Church is due June 1, but may be paid at any time during the year. The per capita tax of members uniting in November is reckoned from the preceding June, this being the beginning of the church year. Unless otherwise directed by the sender, the full amount of each remittance will be credited for the current year.

Please remit by postal or express money order, bank draft, or check. Currency should be sent by registered letter only.

Please advise promptly of any change in name or address.

Send per capita taxes and contributions to ADAM H. DICKEY, Treasurer, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

Digitized by Google

The Christian Science Journal

Published Monthly

Founded April, 1883, by Mary Baker Eddy, Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, and author of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures."

This monthly magazine is the official organ of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. In addition to articles, editorials, and testimonies not published elsewhere, it contains a complete list of Christian Science practitioners, and a directory of Christian Science Churches, Societies, and Reading Rooms.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $2; six months $1; three months 50 cents. SALE PRICE: Single copy 20 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 15 cents. For Canada add 25 cents for postage. SALE PRICE: Single copy 20 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 17 cents. In all other countries add 65 cents for postage for each annual subscription. SALE PRICE: Single copy 25 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 20 cents.

BOUND VOLUMES: Current and past year, cloth $3.00; half calf or half morocco $3.75. On earlier volumes write for prices.

The Christian Science Quarterly

Published January, April, July, and October

Contains the Lesson-Sermons which are read at the Sunday services throughout the year in all the Christian Science churches. These Lessons, which present citations from the Bible and "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," are valuable for daily study. Also printed in Dutch and German.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION AND SALE: In the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year 50 cents; single copy 15 cents; four copies or more to one address, each 12½ cents. For all other countries one year 60 cents; single copy 18 cents; four copies or more, each 15 cents.

Subscriptions not accepted for less than one year. Subscriptions begin with current quarter unless otherwise designated, and terminate with the last of the month named on wrapper.

The Christian Science Monitor

Published Daily, Except Sundays and Legal Holidays

An international daily newspaper. Adequate news service. The various departments of a modern newspaper. Unique Home Forum page. Entire page of editorials dealing with the vital topics of the day. Contributions to the columns of the MONITOR should be addressed: Editor, THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States (except in the Boston Postal District), Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $5; six months $2.50; three months $1.25; one month 50 cents. In all other countries additional postage at the rate of $3 yearly is required. By carrier, through a local news-dealer, one week 12 cents; one month 50 cents. In the Boston Postal District, by mail, one year $7.25. Quantity rates will be furnished on application.

Der Herold der Christian Science

Published Monthly

A magazine printed in German, which publishes original and translated articles bearing upon Christian Science, also testimonials of healing.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $1; six months 50 cents; three months 25 cents. For other countries, one year $1.25; six months 63 cents; three months 32 cents.

SALE PRICE, DOMESTIC TERRITORY AND CANADA, POSTPAID: Single copy 10 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 8 cents. Foreign rate, single copy 12 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 10 cents.

Bound Volumes in cloth, $2.75 each; half calf or half morocco $3.50 each. Write for list of volumes in stock.

Pamphlets

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS RELIGIOUS PHILOSOPHY. By HON. CLARENCE A. BUSKIRK.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: "THE RESURRECTION AND THE LIFE." By CLARENCE W. CHADWICK.

CAUSATION: VIEWED IN THE LIGHT OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By FREDERICK DIXON. Also printed in Norwegian and Swedish.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING VS. MENTAL SUGGESTION. By FREDERICK DIXON. Reprinted from the Weekly Budget, London, England. Also printed in Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE TRUE CHRISTIANITY. By CLARENCE C. EATON.

"THE SONS OF GOD." By COL. WILLIAM E. FELL.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE VS. FINITE SENSE. By FRANCIS J. FLUNO, M.D.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE GOSPEL OF FREEDOM. By WILLIS F. GROSS.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE SCIENCE OF SALVATION. By HERMANN S. HERING.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING: SPIRITUAL AND SCIENTIFIC. By PROF. HERMANN S. HERING. Also printed in German.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS CONCERNING CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. Also printed in Dutch, German, and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS ADVANTAGE TO MANKIND. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. A London lecture. Also printed in French.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: MAN'S DOMINION OVER EVIL. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. Also printed in modern Greek, Italian, Norwegian, and Russian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS DIVINE AUTHORITY. By BLISS KNAPP.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE EXPLANATION OF THE IDEAL MAN. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS DISCOVERY AND DEVELOPMENT. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: GOD'S LOVINGKINDNESS PROVED TO MEN. By REV. WILLIAM P. MCKENZIE. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS RESULTS. By WILLIAM R. RATHVON. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE RELIGION OF DIVINE LAW. By JACOB S. SHIELD.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM. By JUDGE CLIFFORD P. SMITH. Also printed in French and German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A RELIGION OF LOVE. By VIRGIL O. STRICKLER. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE NEW BIRTH. By BICKNELL YOUNG. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

THE LAW OF KINDNESS. LAW AND WORK.
"WHAT WENT YE OUT FOR TO SEE?" CONFIDENCE AND SUPPLY.
"THEN THE FULL GRAIN IN THE EAR." BIRTHRIGHT AND DOMINION.

UPWARD FOOTSTEPS. Also printed in Dutch.
FULFILLING THE LAW. Also printed in Danish.
PRAYER AND HEALING. Also printed in French and German.
THE DIVINE NATURE. Also printed in Dutch and Norwegian.
ENVIRONMENT AND OPPORTUNITY. Also printed in French.
THE FATHER'S BUSINESS. Also printed in German and Swedish.
SEEKING AND FINDING. Also printed in Dutch, German, and Swedish.
THE PROVIDENCE OF GOOD. Also printed in French, Spanish, and Swedish.

Other Translated Pamphlets

*FAITH AND GENEROSITY. Printed in French.
MAN'S UNITY WITH GOD. Printed in German only.
"PEACE ON EARTH." Printed in German only.
PRAYER AND CONFIDENCE. Printed in *Dutch and German.
MARY BAKER EDDY. By ARTHUR BRISBANE. Printed in German only.
*MARY BAKER EDDY: HER PURPOSE AND ACCOMPLISHMENT. By FREDERICK DIXON. Printed in French and German.
THE FOUNDER OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By B. O. FLOWER. Printed in German only.
*CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A REASONABLE AND RATIONAL VIEW OF ALL THINGS. By FRANCIS J. FLUNO, M.D. Printed in Dutch.
*CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: HUMANITY'S HELPER. By PROF. HERMANN S. HERING. Printed in Dutch.
*CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE COMFORTER OF PROMISE. By FRANK H. LEONARD. Printed in French.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: DEMONSTRABLE RELIGION. By FRANK H. LEONARD. Printed in Norwegian only.
*CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A RELIGION OF PROGRESS. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Printed in French and Swedish.
*CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS PRINCIPLE AND METHOD. By BICKNELL YOUNG. Printed in French and Swedish.

PRICE, POSTPAID: Single copy 5 cents; twelve copies to one address 55 cents; fifty copies $2; one hundred copies $3.50. Orders for above pamphlets may be assorted as desired.

For table of English, German, Swiss, and French money equivalents, see inside front cover page.

*These pamphlets are printed with the English version opposite each page of the translation.

Miscellaneous

A Catalogue of Selected Bibles will be furnished upon application, and quantity rates on other items specified below will be found in the current catalogue in The Christian Science Journal.

BIBLES. 01483 x. Clarendon Brevier, heavy-faced, distinct type; Turkey morocco, corresponding in size and binding to pocket edition of Science and Health, $4.75.

01440 x. Brevier, light-faced type; self-pronouncing, Turkey morocco, corresponding in size and binding to pocket edition of Science and Health, $4.50.

01683 x. Large type Bible, 10¾ x 8 inches, bound in Alaska seal. Specially adapted for use of second readers, $12.50.

Black morocco open case to hold pocket edition of Science and Health, Quarterly, and Bible, $1.40.

Two other sizes of open case listed in the current issue of the Journal.

Black morocco closed case with handle and purse on outside, $3.75; without purse, $3.50.

The improved index will be added to any Bible listed in our catalogue for an additional charge of 35 cents. Catalogue No. 23 of selected Bibles will be mailed free upon application.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS ON THE LIFE AND WORK OF MARY BAKER EDDY. 132 pages with index. Paper covered, 15 cents; cloth binding, 85 cents.

THE LIFE OF MARY BAKER EDDY. By Sibyl Wilbur. 424 pages. Cloth, $2. Edition de luxe, $5.

PERSONAL CONTAGION, ALSO WHAT OUR LEADER SAYS. By Mary Baker Eddy. Special pamphlet. Paper cover, 10 cents.

THE MOTHER CHURCH. By Joseph Armstrong. A history of the building of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. Illustrated, 107 pages. Cloth, $1.50.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS LEGAL STATUS. By Judge Clifford P. Smith. 128 pages, paper covered, 10 cents.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HYMNAL. Cloth, $1.15; half morocco, $1.40; full morocco, $2.50; levant, $3.50; pocket edition, size 4⅝ x 6⅝, $3

SHEET MUSIC. Poems written by Mary Baker Eddy and used by special permission, have been set to music as follows: "The Mother's Evening Prayer," 75 cents; "Christ, My Refuge," 75 cents; "Love," 40 cents; Communion Hymn—"Saw Ye My Saviour?" (Johnson), 50 cents; "Blest Christmas Morn," 27 cents; "O'er Waiting Harpstrings of the Mind," 27 cents; "Shepherd, Show Me How to Go," 27 cents; "Saw Ye My Saviour?" (Root), 27 cents. The first three hymns are arranged for high and low voice in the same copy. The last five hymns are published separately in high and low keys. When ordering state key desired.

PHOTOGRAVURE OF MRS. EDDY, printed in three sizes on India paper and mounted on heavy plate paper ready for framing. 8-inch (mount 12 x 16), $1; 12-inch (mount 15 x 20), $2; 16-inch (mount 21 x 29), $3.50.

PICTURE OF THE FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, IN BOSTON, MASS., AND THE PUBLISHING HOUSE. Artist's proof with remarque on Japanese vellum, size 18 x 24 inches, $5; on India paper without remarque, $3. Smaller reproduction, size 11 x 14 inches, on Japanese vellum, $1. Photogravure post-cards of the Church Edifice and Publishing House, 5 cents.

QUARTERLY COVERS in black morocco, $1.30; with purse, $1.50.

ALUMINUM LESSON MARKERS. Set of thirty, with paper shields, 50 cents. Extra paper shields, one hundred, 15 cents.

PRICE LIST OF BIBLE CONCORDANCES AND DICTIONARIES OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE supplied on request. Express charges collect on delivery.

REPRINTS (not printed in English). Two-page leaflets, 14 subjects in French and Swedish; 18 subjects in German. Ten copies to one address, 10 cents.

Remittances should always accompany orders, and be made by check, money order, or exchange on Boston or New York. Currency or coin should not be sent by mail unless registered. Please send no money or business letters to the Editor or Editorial Department.

Send all orders for the works of Mrs. Eddy, with remittance by New York or Boston draft or money order, direct to Allison V. Stewart
For literature listed above address orders and make remittances payable to

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

FALMOUTH AND ST. PAUL STREETS, BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

Digitized by Google

Works on Christian Science

Written by MARY BAKER EDDY, Discoverer and Founder
of Christian Science and Author of its Text-book

Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures. In one volume, 700 pages. The original, standard, and only text-book on Christian Science Mind-healing. Cloth, one to eleven copies inclusive (cloth only), each $3.00; twelve or more, each $2.75. Full leather, stiff, beveled boards, gilt edges, same paper as in cloth binding, single copy $4.00; twelve or more, each $3.75. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $5.00; twelve or more, each $4.75. Levant, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, round corners, gilt edges, silk sewed, heavy Oxford India Bible paper (wide margins, large-sized book) single copy $6.00; twelve or more, each $5.75.

LARGE TYPE EDITION. Designed especially for the use of first readers. Large type (18-point) on Oxford India Bible paper, bound in leather. Size 10¾ inches long by 8 inches wide. Single copy $7.50, with a discount of 25 cents each when included in an order for twelve or more copies of Science and Health, and in any or all of the different bindings.

GERMAN TRANSLATION. Cloth, one to five copies inclusive, each $3.50; six or more, each $3.25. Pocket edition, printed on Oxford India Bible paper. Morocco, one to five copies inclusive, each $5.50; six or more, each $5.25. Orders for the German translation in lots of six or more may include both bindings.

Orders for Science and Health in lots of twelve or more at quantity prices may include both English and German editions, and different styles of binding.

Miscellaneous Writings. A book of 471 pages, containing articles published in The Christian Science Journal from 1888 to 1896, with revisions and additions. Cloth, single copy $2.25; twelve or more, each $2.00. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $4.00; twelve or more, each $3.75. Levant, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, round corners, gilt edges, silk sewed, Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $5.00; twelve or more, each $4.75. Orders for Miscellaneous Writings in lots of twelve or more may include any or all of the different styles of binding. No discount will be allowed on orders for twelve books which include both Science and Health and Miscellaneous Writings.

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany. A book of 364 pages, containing articles published in The Christian Science Journal and Sentinel, subsequent to the compilation of Miscellaneous Writings, together with historical matter pertaining thereto. Cloth, single copy $2.25; six or more, each $2.00. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $4.00; six or more, each $3.75. Orders for six or more may include the two styles of binding.

Concordance to Science and Health. This work contains about eighty thousand references (more than ten thousand words being indexed), also an index to the Marginal Headings, and a list of the Scriptural Quotations in Science and Health. 611 pages, stiff morocco cover, single copy $5.00; six or more, each $4.50.

Concordance to Mrs. Eddy's Published Writings Other Than Science and Health. It contains 1,103 pages, and is published only in Bible paper edition, with stiff morocco cover. Single copy, $6.00; six or more, each, $5.50.

Christ and Christmas. An illustrated poem. Single copy $3.00; six or more, each $2.50.

Unity of Good and Other Writings. One volume, containing Unity of Good, Rudimental Divine Science, No and Yes, Retrospection and Introspection; uniform in style with the pocket edition of Science and Health. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, heavy Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $3.50; six or more, each $3.25.

Christian Healing and Other Writings. One volume, containing Christian Healing, The People's Idea of God, Pulpit and Press, Christian Science versus Pantheism, Messages of 1900, 1901, 1902; uniform in style with the pocket edition of Science and Health. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, heavy Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $3.50; six or more, each $3.25.

Church Manual. Containing the By-laws of The Mother Church. Cloth, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents. Pocket edition, morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $2.00; six or more, each $1.75.

GERMAN TRANSLATION. Cloth, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Retrospection and Introspection. A biographical sketch of the author; the way she was led to the discovery of Christian Science; its fundamental idea and growth. Library edition, cloth, 95 pages, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Unity of Good. This book lays the axe at the root of error, elucidating and enforcing practical Christian Science, thus affording invaluable directions for all true Scientists. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, 64 pages, single copy 60 cents; six or more, each 45 cents. Pocket edition, leather covers, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Pulpit and Press. A unique work, of importance in the history and to the readers of Christian Science; containing the message or sermon written for the dedicatory service of The Mother Church, January 6, 1895, and scintillations from the press of that occasion. Library edition, cloth, 90 pages, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Rudimental Divine Science. A brief and concise statement of Divine Science, alias Christian Science, in the form of questions and answers. Pebbled cloth covers, gilt top, 17 pages, single copy 32 cents; six or more, each 25 cents. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 35 cents.

PRINTED in the New York point system of type for the use of the blind, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

No and Yes. A brief statement of very important points in Christian Science. Pebbled cloth covers, 46 pages, single copy 32 cents; six or more, each 25 cents. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 55 cents; six or more, each 45 cents.

Messages to The Mother Church. Including in one volume, 94 pages, Christian Science versus Pantheism, and the Messages of 1900, 1901, and 1902. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy $1.50; six or more, each $1.15.

Christian Science versus Pantheism. The Pastor Emeritus' Message delivered at the Communion Season in The Mother Church in Boston, June, 1898. A clear and strong refutation of the charge that Christian Scientists are pantheists. Pebbled cloth covers, 15 pages, single copy 25 cents; six or more, each 20 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1900. Paper covers, deckled edges, 15 pages, single copy 25 cents; six or more, each 20 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1901. Paper covers, deckled edges, 35 pages, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 38 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1902. Paper covers, deckled edges, 20 pages, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 38 cents.

Christian Healing, and The People's Idea of God. Two sermons in one volume, 36 pages. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 55 cents; six or more, each 45 cents.

Christian Healing. A sermon delivered in Boston. Paper covers, 20 pages, single copy 20 cents; six or more, each 17 cents.

The People's Idea of God. A sermon delivered in Boston. Paper covers, 14 pages, single copy 20 cents; six or more, each 17 cents.

Poems. This volume of 79 pages includes all of Mrs. Eddy's hymns, also her earlier poems which appeared in various publications from forty to sixty years ago. Specially bound. Single copy $1.50; six or more, each $1.25.

Feed My Sheep. Solo. Words by Mary Baker Eddy, music by Lyman F. Brackett. Single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

The foregoing prices cover all charges for express or postage on shipments either domestic or foreign.

Quantity prices are on shipments to one address only, but quantity lots at quantity prices cannot be made up of different books or of different styles of binding. Attention is called, however, to the exception to this rule which is made in the cases of Science and Health, and of Miscellaneous Writings, as given under these titles in this price list.

Address all orders for above works, and make remittance by New York or Boston draft or money order, to

ALLISON V. STEWART, FALMOUTH AND ST. PAUL STS., BOSTON, MASS.

Digitized by Google

WISCONSIN
HISTORICAL LIBRARY

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SENTINEL

"What I say unto you I say unto all-WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX No. 32

Boston, April 7, 1917

Contents of This Number

Items of Interest (Brief Mention of Important Events) 622

The Integrity of Christian Science Literature . . Edward A. Kimball 623
Reprinted from Sentinel of Aug. 15, 1903, by request

Pure Religion . . . Duncan Sinclair 623

"Truth is affirmative" Priscilla C. Goodwyn 624

Resurrection Lessons William E. Krupp 625

The Road to Emmaus Joseph G. Alden 625

Christian Science and the Business World Fred B. Kerrick 626

"He that keepeth Israel" (Poem) Agnes F. Chalmers 627

Selected Articles 627

Editorial

Exhortation, and Prayer for Country and Church . Mary Baker Eddy 630
Republished from "Christian Science versus Pantheism"—Message to The Mother Church, June, 1898

Unauthorized Literature . . . 630
Reprinted from Sentinel of Sept. 19, 1903, by request

Law and Gospel 630

Uncoiling the Serpent 631

Among the Churches (Current Notes)

Boston, Mass. 632

The Lectures

Concord, N. H. 632

Testimonies of Healing 634

From Our Exchanges 637

A LADY WITH A LAMP SHALL STAND IN THE GREAT HISTORY OF THE LAND

A NOBLE TYPE OF GOOD HEROIC WOMANHOOD
Longfellow

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY
FALMOUTH AND ST PAUL STREETS BOSTON MASS U S A

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

(THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE WEEKLY)

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY BY

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

Falmouth and St. Paul Sts., Boston, Mass., U.S.A.

ARCHIBALD McLELLAN
Editor

ANNIE M. KNOTT — WILLIAM D. McCRACKAN
Associate Editors

Subscription Price

Payable in advance

Annual subscription price, postpaid, in the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, $2.00; six months, $1.00; three months, 50 cents. For Canada add 45 cents and for all other countries 95 cents annually for postage. For subscriptions in quantities please refer to page four in THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE JOURNAL.

Subscriptions to the SENTINEL will begin with the current issue unless otherwise specified. The delivery of the periodical will indicate that a remittance has been credited and will be our acknowledgment of the subscription.

Bound Volumes: Current year or two years previous, cloth, $3.25; half calf or half morocco, $4.00. On earlier volumes write for prices.

Terms of Sale

	United States, Mexico, and Cuba	Canada	All Other Countries
Single copy	$ .05	$ .06	$ .07
Four or more copies . .	.03½	.04	.05

Equivalents of United States money

		£	s.	d.	Marks	Francs
$ .60	equals	0	2	6	2.52	3.12
1.15	"	0	4	9	4.85	5.98
1.25	"	0	5	2	5.30	6.50
2.33	"	0	9	7	9.83	12.09
2.38	"	0	9	10	10.05	12.35
2.63	"	0	10	9	11.10	13.65
2.65	"	0	10	10	11.20	13.78
2.70	"	0	11	1	11.40	14.04
2.95	"	0	12	2	12.50	15.34
5.00	"	1	0	7	21.15	26.00
7.50	"	1	10	10	31.73	39.00
8.00	"	1	12	11	33.85	41.60

Make all remittances payable to The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Postage required for remailing this copy: 1 cent domestic and Canada; 2 cents other countries.

Entered at Boston, Mass., post-office as second-class matter.

Items of Interest

The railroads of the United States, in spending approximately three hundred million dollars a year for locomotive fuel, are spending one quarter to one third of it "to kindle, prepare, clean, and maintain fires on grates when locomotives are standing still, drifting, or otherwise not actually at work." According to Railway and Locomotive Engineering, one of the shortest and sharpest cuts to the cost of railway transportation is promised by pulverized coal, and "steam locomotives will eventually have to be equipped so as to approximate to electric machines by the use of pulverized fuel, which in turn will eliminate smoke, soot, cinders, sparks, and fire hazards; reduce noise, bring down the time for despatching at terminals, and stand-by losses; and increase the daily mileage by providing for longer runs and more nearly continuous service between general repair periods." Use of the new fuel has already gone beyond the experimental stage, as "over eight million tons of it are now being used annually in the United States for industrial kilns and furnaces." With this fuel, it is said, a locomotive having the boiler filled with cold water may be brought under maximum steam pressure within an hour. It seems to have the three potential virtues of saving time, labor, and money.

The world's gold output a century ago, says The Statist, averaged about $7,300,000 annually, the bulk of which was derived from workings in the Ural Mountains. Gradually other sources of supply came to be added to the Russian production and large increases occurred. Such gains were especially marked in the late forties and early fifties of the last century, consequent on the discoveries made in California and Australia. The greatest discovery so far has been that of the Witwatersrand, South Africa. In 1886 the Rand was proclaimed a gold field, production commenced, and by 1899 the output was at the rate of $97,800,000 a year. For 1916 the production was a record one of $192,200,000, and at the present time the Rand alone produces 41 per cent of the total gold output of the world, while the whole of Africa contributes over 47 per cent. For many years Victoria was the premier producer of gold of the Australian continent, but now it yields comparatively small amounts. In New Zealand and Queensland finds were reported early in the sixties. Some $3,791,000,000 is given as the value of the American output since the first California finds in 1847-48.

The United States Forest Service has announced that the herds of bison and elk for stocking the Pisgah National Forest and Federal Game Preserve of more than 86,000 acres were expected to arrive in Asheville, N. C., about the middle of March. The great fence enclosing 250 acres lying on both sides of the scenic Pisgah motor road, reaching an elevation of 5200 feet, has just been completed and is ready for the reception of the animals. The elks are being shipped from the herds of the Yellowstone Park, while a number of the buffaloes are coming from the Blue Mountain Game Preserve of New Hampshire. The Pisgah forest and game preserve lies mostly on the watersheds of Davidson and Mills Rivers, both of which are tributaries of the French Broad. Mrs. Vanderbilt, wishing to perpetuate this great forest established by her husband, offered it to the Government at a low figure, which was accepted.

Asheville is located ten miles from the eastern boundary of the forest. Leading out from this mountain city, situated on the rolling hills of the beautiful Asheville plateau, "in the heart of the Blue Ridge Mountains," are concrete, asphalt, and macadam roads, coursing the mountain territory in all directions.

The Adamson eight hour railroad law, which was passed by Congress last September, has been held constitutional and valid in all respects by the United States Supreme Court. The decision makes eight hours the standard of a day's work and wages for men in operation of trains, and legalizes the wage increases which went into tentative effect on its passage. The decision was five to four with Justices Day, Pitney, Van Devanter, and McReynolds dissenting. In concurring in the majority opinion, Justice McKenna differed in that he believed the law "an hours of service" statute and only secondarily a wage fixing law, and thus within the power of Congress. Justice Day in his dissenting opinion said the legislation amounted to "deprivation of the railroads' property without due process of law."

Mesopotamia, drained by the rivers Tigris and Euphrates, was once one of the most fertile lands in the world and supported a population reckoned in millions; now there are less than half a dozen persons to the square mile, most of them non-agricultural. Its former prosperity was due to the marvelous system of irrigation. Sir William Willcocks, the famous English engineer, has demonstrated that by the restoration of proper irrigation under modern methods the prosperity of Mesopotamia could be insured. Under his direction some years ago the Hindie barrage was completed, bringing the Euphrates into its proper channel, greatly to the benefit of the cultivators.

Soya bean oil from Japan, worth $2,000,000, has been received at Tacoma, Wash., in two cargoes and forwarded to a soap manufacturer by a special train of thirty tank cars. This oil is growing in favor with soap manufacturers in America. It is used in England as part of a process of manufacturing lard, or is used without being mixed as a lard or cooking oil.

The American consumption of sweetmeats last year amounted to between $175,000,000 and $200,000,000 worth of factory made confectionery. Sixty-five years ago less than 400 establishments were needed to supply the American demand for candy. Their aggregate capital was a little more than $1,000,000, and the value of their products not much over $3,000,000; today the industry embraces over 2500 establishments, represents the investment of $110,000,000 capital, and turns out confections of various sorts having a total value of $185,000,000.

The city of Lowell, Mass., has been selected for the first direct experiment of the Massachusetts Homestead Commission in the erection of moderate priced homes for working people, and plans have been made public for the erection of thirty-two houses, to be sold to wage-earners at cost by a system of deferred payments. The experiment is dependent on the passage of a bill pending in the legislature which would authorize the commission to expend $100,000 for this purpose.

A bill before the Massachusetts House of Representatives to make the Merrimack River navigable from the sea to Lowell, authorizes an expenditure of $3,538,300 on the part of the state, provided the national Government appropriates a similar sum. The river is now navigable from the sea to Haverhill, leaving a distance of eighteen miles from that city to Lowell to be improved.

The specific recommendations of the Special Commission of Ways of Communication in Russia, approved by the Imperial Council of Ministers, provides for the construction during 1917-1922, at a cost of $309,000,000, of 20,779 miles of railway, of which 1326 miles will be branch lines. The objects are to connect trade centers with interior markets and to give convenient access to natural resources.

It is announced that a new German canal league, called the Elbe-Oder-Danube Canal League, has been formed with its headquarters at Dresden. Its members represent the Saxon Government, the senates of Hamburg and Lübeck, the various chambers of commerce in central and northern Germany, the German-Austro-Hungarian Economic League, and other corporations.

The Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation at Quincy, Mass., has, since it was awarded the contract to build one of the battle cruisers, decided to construct an entirely new set of ways and will spend more than one million five hundred thousand dollars on the work. The new ways will be about one thousand feet long and will be fitted with electric cranes and overhead steel work.

The forest wealth of northern Russia constitutes one of the greatest undeveloped assets of the empire. In the governments of Archangel, Vologda, Olonets, Vyatka, and Tobolsk there are some two hundred and forty-three million acres—about four times the area of New England—of almost untouched forests of commercial timber.

There was a large decrease in the shipment of flaxseed from the Rosario district of the Argentine Republic, to the United States during 1916. The exports of this product declined from 5,396,191 bushels, valued at $6,848,508, to nearly one half those figures.

The total foreign commerce of the district of New York during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1916, amounted to $3,805,882,189. The total foreign commerce of the balance of the country in 1916 was $3,432,639,555.

China employs nearly 4000 experts from Europe and America to run her railways and post-offices. There are 1105 British and 174 Americans engaged in the work.

Clover seed amounting to 692,550 pounds, valued at $134,422, was shipped from Italy to the United States during 1916.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

"What I say unto you, I say unto all, WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX April 7, 1917 No. 32

[Reprinted from the Sentinel of Aug. 15, 1903, by request]

The Integrity of Christian Science Literature

EDWARD A. KIMBALL

THE students of Christian Science are learning that whatever is needed in the way of literature for the benefit of themselves and the cause is always supplied in due season. They are learning also that the Leader of our cause is fully competent to discern all needs in this direction, and equally competent to meet those needs.

This conviction has been recently confirmed by the publication of the new Concordance to Science and Health. This work is comprehensive, accurate, and adequate; indeed it may be said that the measure of all desire on the part of Scientists for something of this nature has been greatly surpassed and exceeded by the measure of the response: so ample, satisfying, and valuable is this work.

Our text-book, Science and Health, contains an exposition of the theory and practice of Christian Science which is amply sufficient for the natural, abundant growth and education of its student. For this reason he cannot study it too much nor with too great expectation that it will supply his needs in the way of statements, rules, and helpful amplification. The new Concordance, which will instantly facilitate this study, is therefore of incalculable value, and is destined to add largely to the prosperous growth of the student and the cause.

The continuous endeavor to maintain the integrity of Christian Science literature has been criticized in a mood of careless disregard of the fact that every religious denomination does or should exert the same supervising scrutiny. It is declared by this reckless form of criticism, that there is a disposition to monopolize this particular branch of our religious enterprise. On the contrary, this endeavor is very largely because of deep concern for the good of our own people and of the public. It is because of a paramount necessity for keeping the text of our literature pure, in order that it may be safe for those who do not yet understand how to discriminate between the truth or error of many statements which in various ways are put forth as though they were representative of Christian Science.

If there were several drinking fountains in the public square of a city, one of which was acknowledged to be pure and safe and all the others were either suspected to contain some traces of impurity, or to be at least of doubtful or uncertain character, from which of these fountains should the people drink? If, perchance, some people ignorantly drank from an impure fountain on the plea that it seemed to be a pleasing variety, or even more palatable, would they be wise or foolish? Christian Science is exact, profound,—infinite in range and application. It cannot tolerate or coalesce with any error of premise or conclusion. Only those students of this Science who have a technically correct knowledge thereof are at all qualified to compose, edit, or revise its literature, and no wise student should be willing to jeopardize his own safe progress by reading or giving heed to any literary production on the subject of Christian Science which is for any reason doubtful as to authorship or correctness of statement.

The habit of circulating copies of letters, "notes" of class teaching, of "talks to students" by lecturers, and many other papers of similar import, is in direct violation of the prudent rules which are designed to safeguard our entire educational system. The use and circulation of these fragmentary and unauthorized papers is harmful, because it has the effect of flooding the field with an illegitimate quasi literature, and for the further reason that the alleged authors thereof have generally found them to be so distorted and defective that they repudiate them as being perverted and unsafe. For these reasons our people should know that these things ought to be utterly and promptly discarded as a whole, and this habit abstained from for the sake of every one concerned and the general interest of the cause.

If one yields to the temptation to turn for enlightenment in the direction of unauthorized, irregular, and perhaps faulty literature, he is apt to obscure the fact that Science and Health contains all that he needs for successful practice, and by so doing he is likewise liable to bereave himself of the unspeakable benefit which may be derived from this book by one who turns to it in confident expectation that it will meet his needs.

One of the first things for the beginner in Christian Science to learn is that the newly acquired and constantly increasing understanding of Christian Science is sufficient for him day by day. He should learn that it is equal to the mastery of every error that presents itself. A supreme need is that he should use to the utmost what he already knows (although it seems but little), instead of procrastinating his advancement because of the suggestion that he has not sufficient understanding with which to begin or successfully to proceed. He will gain more by using what he has, and should always resist the temptation to think it unimportant or unavailing.

We believe that Christian Science is Truth's own utterance and revelation, whereby to designate the Christ-way of salvation and the deliverance of humanity through the transforming influence of the divine Mind; but this revelation would be a mockery if it were not immediately available,—if it were not an instant and ever present help.

The entreaty of Christian Science is, Take God at His word,—"My grace is sufficient for thee." "Be not afraid." Fear is neither you nor yours. It is utterly foreign to the naturalness of your being. It has no business with you, and you have no business with it.

Pure Religion

DUNCAN SINCLAIR

FEW Scripture sayings are more frequently quoted than that of James: "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep . . . unspotted from the world." If one were to extract the kernel from this famous dictum he would find pure religion to consist in the spiritual understanding which enables a man to demonstrate good, or the purity of Spirit. Pure religion is another term for true religion; and religion is true only when it is based on absolute truth,—that is, when it is spiritually scientific.

Copyright, 1917, by The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Digitized by Google

Now Christian Science reveals the truth about God, brings to light again the truth which Christ Jesus knew so well and put into practice so constantly when he journeyed throughout the highlands of Palestine. Christian Science teaches that God is Love, that God is Mind, or Spirit, that God is infinite good; and it holds that in proportion as a man is faithful to his understanding of God he is demonstrating pure or true religion. In Science and Health (p. 67) Mrs. Eddy writes: "Systems of religion and medicine treat of physical pains and pleasures, but Jesus rebuked the suffering from any such cause or effect. The epoch approaches when the understanding of the truth of being will be the basis of true religion." Undoubtedly it is as a man knows good that he can demonstrate good, as he knows Love that he can demonstrate love; and Christian Science insists that no subtle form of error shall be confounded with good or with the truth about God's real creation.

It is here that popular beliefs about God clash with spiritual truth. Take, for example, the belief that God sends sickness, suffering, pain, and so forth, and that because He does so these afflictions must be submitted to and borne as if they were inevitable or, indeed, necessary. What a fallacy is here! God, who is Love, infinite good, cannot possibly be the author, the originator, the cause of aught but good. God does not send a single affliction upon His children. This is one of the messages which true religion brings to suffering humanity.

Let us consider how this teaching affects humanity. Some one is perhaps suffering from a belief in bodily sickness. Can the highest consolation, or any real consolation at all, come to him by lamenting with him, commiserating him in his woes and dwelling upon them? Will not such a course inevitably tend to increase the false sense of suffering? Unhesitatingly Christian Science says that it will. And Christian Science also says that to relieve the sufferer, to heal him of the false belief that is apparently showing itself upon his body, there must be brought to him the truth of pure religion. That is what Christ Jesus did as he went about among men. He knew that God never created inharmony in any form, that sickness has no divine authority, and that in the absolute sense disease is unreal. Was his sympathy any the less sincere toward his fellow men in distress because he knew for them the absolute truth? On the contrary, his sympathy was of the most practical nature, for his spiritual understanding healed those who came to him of the false beliefs which held them bound. Christian Science heals the sick as Jesus did. One has but to experience a physical or a moral healing through Truth to comprehend the saying of John, as found in the book of Revelation, "Now is come salvation, and strength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ."

It is interesting to note that Jesus the Christ used the so-called "miracle" to prove the truth of what he taught. He was dealing with men who believed in little else than matter, that is, with the evidence which seemed to come to them through the so-called physical senses. They had to be convinced along that line; and Jesus, for the sake of mankind in general as well as for that of the sick person in particular, had to prove his teachings genuine. What really happened in every case was, that the Master's spiritual understanding of Truth destroyed the error of belief which presented itself to him masquerading as consciousness; and the suffering ceased with the destruction of the false belief. Exactly the same thing happens in each instance of healing which takes place through Christian Science. On page 136 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy says: "Jesus established his church and maintained his mission on a spiritual foundation of Christ-healing. He taught his followers that his religion had a divine Principle, which would cast out error and heal both the sick and the sinning."

In the book of Isaiah there is clearly portrayed the coming of the Christ, Truth, to human consciousness, when "violence shall no more be heard in thy land, wasting nor destruction within thy borders; but thou shalt call thy walls Salvation, and thy gates Praise." Every one who has studied Christian Science understandingly has realized to some extent the truth of these prophetic words, and has become conscious that he is in the possession of pure religion exactly as he is in possession of the Mind of Christ.

At the present day, as in time past, men have divided their allegiance between matter (so called) and Spirit; they have believed that matter is real, although Spirit is infinite and therefore the only reality; and in consequence they have believed that so-called material man is real also, whereas the truth is that man, the spiritual idea of God, the image or likeness of God, alone is real. So long as human beings persist in believing in the reality of matter and material man, forgetful of the spiritual fact that Spirit and spiritual man alone are real, they will continue in the dungeon of pseudo-religion, with blinded eyes and disconsolate hearts. The Science of Mind alone is capable of saving men from their false beliefs. That God, perfect Mind, first created man materially and then allowed him to fall into mortal sin, Christian Science reveals to be but material fiction. God's man as His perfect spiritual idea exists eternally in the divine Mind, and is preserved eternally by the understanding of infinite good.

The basis of pure or true religion is the truth about God. There cannot possibly be any other foundation. A man practises pure religion as he spiritually understands God, good. In the ratio of his understanding of good he is enabled to rise above the sensuous beliefs of the world and to aid in the bringing in of a more uniform justice toward suffering humanity, thus fulfilling the injunction of the apostle "to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world."

✧

"Truth is affirmative"

PRISCILLA C. GOODWYN

"TRUTH is affirmative, and confers harmony," Mrs. Eddy tells us in Science and Health (p. 418); and St. Paul says that "all the promises of God in him [Christ Jesus] are yea, and in him Amen." A negation can have no place then in Truth's kingdom. It cannot be good or real; therefore it is error, to be destroyed by Truth.

Kindness, courtesy, honesty, and the like are spiritual qualities. They are realities, positive in their nature, with power to edify, to strengthen, to bless; their opposites, unkindness, discourtesy, dishonesty, being negations, have no quality of Truth in them, because Truth is always affirmative, and they would undermine, disintegrate. Take the quality of courage in human consciousness,—how fine it is, how inspiring, how full of hope, how ready to meet the foe; while its opposite, discouragement, is a limp, lifeless sort of thing, yielding to every assault. Take courtesy,—how gracious it is when springing from a loving heart, spreading a sweet fragrance of kindliness; while its opposite, discourtesy, condemns and disquiets itself. So it is through the long chapter of negations, which have no permanency in the sunshine of Truth. One finds inspiration and joy in going over in thought the positive qualities that lift consciousness to a sense of security and peace and joy in the everlasting "yea" of Truth, and in knowing with a grateful heart that their opposites, or negations, have no basis in reality.

Digitized by Google

A student of Christian Science and one who was not a student of its teachings were talking about certain mental qualities. The non-Scientist remarked: "The quality I admire most in man or woman is justice. So few people are really just." She spoke with a warmth of conviction, and the one addressed saw that she was burdened by some sense of injustice against which her thought rebelled. In mentally denying this false sense as having any place in the true consciousness of man, a clearer understanding was gained by the student of the truth, for until one knows the nothingness of injustice one can never be truly just. As we have put out of our consciousness the sense of injustice that so persistently tries to assert itself in our relations with others, we can begin to judge the righteous judgment which the Master commended.

How clearly our Leader has shown us the way, and how slow of heart we are to understand! Mortal mind wants its own sense of justice satisfied, because it sees only through the lens of self. All the problems that come to us day by day are lessons to be learned in "earth's preparatory school" (Science and Health, p. 486). As we solve them we find the result in more patience, more love, and a renewed consecration of effort for a more spiritual life. He who is beginning to comprehend the unity of brotherhood knows that justice is swallowed up in Love, divine Principle, and that this is the fulfilling of the law.

✧

Resurrection Lessons

WILLIAM E. KRUPP

Two seasons in the religious life of the world, Christmas and Easter, should bring to us as Christian Scientists a greater appreciation of the privileges we enjoy. As we observe the religious activities of other Christian churches we can but give expression to thoughts of thankfulness to God for the work of Mrs. Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, for the great gift bestowed upon humanity through her teaching, and for our individual awakening to an appreciation of her fearless and unwavering devotion to the cause of Truth.

At the season of the year when the world rejoices over the resurrection of the corporeal Jesus, for whose reappearing in the flesh it waits and watches, we as Christian Scientists rejoice that we have learned to see beyond the human concept and to behold the Christ-idea, the spiritual manifestation of the perfect man, leading mankind out of the bondage of materiality into "the glorious liberty of the children of God." To the enlightened thought the Christ typifies a perfect ray of light emanating from the one great source of light, in whom, St. John declared, "is no darkness at all." Beyond the earthly personality of Jesus we see the perfect concept of the spiritual man, made in the image and after the likeness of God. The Master proved his spiritual identity with the Father by casting out evil and healing the sick, not by reason of any miraculous power peculiar to himself, but in demonstration of the real man's oneness with the Father. To Christian Scientists Christ Jesus is indeed the way, not in the sense of the accepted views of scholastic theology, but because his resurrection demonstrated the continuity of life and pointed the way to salvation, to that knowledge of God which he declared to be life eternal.

The resurrection is indeed the marvel of the ages. It is a proof of man's at-one-ment with God, but not of a vicarious atonement, for we as Christian Scientists have been led to see that mankind cannot be absolved from the consequences of wrong concepts and false beliefs merely through the pure and sinless life of another. We recognize that the goodness, the godliness, the godlikeness of one cannot atone and make amends for the sins of the world, except in the sense that such a life points the true way to salvation. Redemption from sin, release from its consequences, suffering, sickness, and death, according to both right reasoning and revelation, cannot come through the suffering and death of God's anointed. The consequent must follow the antecedent, as effect follows cause. Infinite goodness cannot accept and approve that which "defileth" and "maketh a lie." God cannot change, nor is He changed by reason of the incarnation, nativity, passion, and resurrection of His beloved Son. Death cannot be the threshold and portal to eternal Life, nor can God's plan of salvation be based upon the absence or annihilation of His likeness.

The Christian Scientist, therefore, reasoning logically and to a proper conclusion, sees in the fact of the resurrection the true doctrine of salvation,—that sin brought death and therefore is no part of Life; and that sin—the belief of life and intelligence in matter, the belief in the existence of a selfhood apart from God—is a violation of the first commandment. This having "other gods" brings its own retributive punishment in suffering, sickness, and death, while the right understanding of the nature of God and man, and of His laws governing and controlling the universe, alone can save. This is the great lesson of the resurrection, and in the recognition and realization of this truth we rejoice,—not during a certain week of the year only, but throughout the year, knowing always that God is equally near and equally dear to all His creatures, that the time of salvation is here and now, and that it is within the power and province of all mankind to accept and receive this heritage of the sons of God.

Truly Christian Science "resolves things into thoughts, and replaces the objects of material sense with spiritual ideas" (Science and Health, p. 123). It rests upon one basis, even upon the eternal, unchanging nature of God, who is infinitely good and ever present. It makes the perfection of God and the perfection of His creation, spiritual man and the universe, the basis of true thought and demonstration, thereby elevating and purifying human consciousness, destroying all sense of sin, sickness, and death, and leaving God and His manifestation as the all of being.

✧

The Road to Emmaus

JOSEPH G. ALDEN

In the closing chapter of his wonderful gospel Luke has presented with a historian's genius and a scholar's skill an incident rich in color and hidden meaning. The world has named it "the walk to Emmaus." Leaving minor details to be supplied by the reader's knowledge of preceding incidents, the gospel writer portrays a meeting of the risen Jesus with two of his disciples, their afternoon journey together, and an evening meal which culminated in the veil being removed from the disciples' eyes and the true character of their guest being revealed. In referring to this experience Mrs. Eddy says, "The divine Spirit, which identified Jesus thus centuries ago, has spoken through the inspired Word and will speak through it in every age and clime" (Science and Health, p. 46).

It was the third day after the crucifixion, that fateful day when, like the sudden advent of an unannounced eclipse, the Calvary tragedy had well-nigh blotted out the fading hopes of the Master's followers, and left them without a leader, dejected, forsaken, helpless, and afraid. The two who journeyed to Emmaus doubtless had been among the number that had been drawn to Jerusalem particularly by the presence of Jesus. They had spent those stirring and eventful days preceding the great feast in witnessing the works of healing and listening to the words of wisdom and counsel, comfort and instruction, reproof and condemnation, which fell from the lips of the great Teacher as he discoursed daily in the temple. They had been participants in the common hope that this was "he which should have redeemed Israel," and that in an appointed hour, like Moses of old facing the might of an Egyptian monarch, this Galilean carpenter, endowed with God-given authority, should suddenly transform the chosen people again into a militant force, challenge the might of Cæsar, and with an open show of Jehovah's power strike off at a single blow the Roman shackles which bound them.

Digitized by Google

The supreme hour of their expectation came, and with sickening hearts they had seen him whose triumphant entry into the holy city had aroused their tumultuous expectation, turn away from the acclaim of the people with averted face. His failure to take advantage of so propitious an occasion was a heavy blow to their hopes, and yet there lingered a slumbering expectation that, in a fate appointed hour yet to come, this man who wrought such wondrous works and spoke with such acknowledged authority and power, would suddenly and miraculously change the peaceful host gathered for the feast into a triumphal army of occupation. The last lingering hope had been quenched by the dark scene they had witnessed at Golgotha, and now, dejected and heavy of heart, they journeyed to Emmaus to put behind them the scene of their great disappointment.

As they walked the two disciples were joined by a "stranger," who inquired the cause of their apparent sadness. They recounted the events which had transpired with such appalling swiftness and effect in Jerusalem, and then the Master, upbraiding their ignorance and lack of faith, expounded the Scriptures to prove that all which had so recently happened was but the fulfilment of prophecy. So deep was their dejection that the disciples did not recognize their Master until, seated at the supper table, in the breaking of bread there dawned upon their senses the sudden radiance of a spiritual vision, and they beheld for the first time the presence of the Christ.

In that moment there must have come to those disciples the revelation of the spiritual presence which Jesus had vainly tried to have them see and recognize in the days when he went about healing the sick and teaching the multitudes. No human sense could say, as he had said to them, "I am the way, the truth, and the life." Something above mortal personality had earned the officer's unconscious tribute, "Never man spake like this man." That presence which could still an angry sea, provide a meal for a hungry multitude, raise the dead to life, unmask sin, and bid disease be gone, could not be banished by a sentence of the Sanhedrin, quenched by a felon's fate, nor buried beneath a puppet king's seal in a rock-hewn sepulcher. No hate of a jealous priesthood, no frenzy of a disappointed mob, no weakness of a craven governor could bid that royal presence depart.

At that simple board in the falling twilight there came to the illumined understanding of those two disciples the hitherto hidden vision of the Christ, Truth, as old as creation and as new as their dawning comprehension. They saw that the Christ which had been so wonderfully revealed in the daily life of their beloved Teacher was the same presence which had been revealed to Abraham of old, to Isaac, and to Jacob, that had guided their forefathers safely through the Red Sea, had gone before them in the wilderness a pillar of cloud by day and of fire by night, and had sustained and inspired in every age the human consciousness which had risen through spiritual vision to behold it. Small wonder that in this dawning moment of their awakened understanding the outward form of their bidden guest became transformed into the living presence of the Christ.

What follows in the story is that which always follows the perception of the Christ—joyful wonder, greater hope, new strength, and fresh courage. In the dawning hour of their spiritual perception the dejection of the disciples fled, weariness was gone, fear gave place to exaltation and grief to joy; and the record reads: "They rose up the same hour, and returned to Jerusalem," to carry to their brethren the blessed message of joy and peace and inspiration.

The road to Emmaus is not an unfrequented path. It is a beaten highway of human experience, inevitably encountered somewhere in what Mrs. Eddy has so well termed the "passage from sense to Soul" (Science and Health, p. 566). Along its way at eventide, when twilight falls on unrequited human hopes and fast gathering fears, the footsore, world-weary pilgrim may feel the conscious presence of a fellow traveler, may walk a while in an inspiring companionship. Then if a yearning to dwell longer in his company prompt the request that he tarry through the night, until the coming day shall have dissipated all doubt and gloom, in the benediction which follows that faith born invitation there shall be revealed the wonder of the Christ; and in the glow and beauty of that divine revelation will be imparted to uplifted understanding the full import of the quickening assurance of the divine ever-presence: "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."

✧

Christian Science and the Business World

FRED B. KERRICK

When we recall the words of Jesus, "Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?" the question arises, What is my Father's business? To this it may be answered that any legitimate undertaking is God's business, and should be looked upon as such. Any man who undertakes a business which is not legitimate, though he may win what the world calls success, is sure of ultimate failure, for Mrs. Eddy tells us that "success in error is defeat in Truth" (Science and Health, p. 239); but the man who associates himself with God in his business, and consults the divine Principle in every move that is made, is victorious in Truth. His success is assured before the business starts, for all that really exists belongs to God, and to acknowledge this great fact is to place one's business upon a firm foundation, so that failure is impossible.

When Christian Science came into the writer's life he was superintendent of a large business where many people, both men and women, were employed, all of whom were of the human type generally associated with the name of factory. There was constant strife and turmoil among them, caused by petty jealousies and quarrels, and error frequently seemed to have full control. The president of the concern was making trouble on one side, while the employees were following the same course on the other.

In a dark hour, when he was well-nigh overwhelmed with business cares and the fear of a physical breakdown, the writer suddenly came across the burning bush in his wilderness of despair. The thought came so clearly: Why not try Christian Science? It has helped others and it may help you. He was on his way at the time to see a doctor, but as a new hope in life came to him he turned his steps toward the office of a Christian Science practitioner, where he received his healing. It was the dawn of a new and better life, and words cannot express the joy which followed that glorious experience.

Digitized by Google

After a few months, while thinking very seriously on the condition of affairs at the plant, it came clearly to him that Christian Science teaches there is only one Mind, and that "God creates and governs the universe, including man" (Science and Health, p. 295). This being admitted, he saw that God, divine Mind, must be governing the plant and every employee there. He also saw that all he was called upon to do was to be a channel for divine intelligence, and mentally step aside and let God govern. By manifesting love and kindness toward his fellow men he would be serving God, thus making his business God's business.

It was wonderful to see the transformation which took place in a few weeks. The employees learned to love their work, the writer learned to love his, and all discord vanished into nothingness. After learning this great lesson he was lifted out of this place into higher work, thus proving that as we learn to love our work and to work with God, we go higher. The man or woman who is struggling to make any legitimate business a success, or to get out of it, must learn what that business really means, for this is the first step in the way of true progress. Loving one's work just because it is of God, and because we are permitted to serve God, is transforming it into the Father's business.

When each student of Christian Science learns that he must look upon every honest business as God's business, then it is that he will meet the elevator boy, the newsboy, the clerk, the bootblack, with a cheerful greeting and a pleasant smile, and in this way help them to realize in a measure that they too are serving God and humanity and not merely earning money. Thus does God's kingdom appear, and with this appearing God's business, with its inexhaustible supply of unselfishness, goodness, mercy, justice, health, holiness, love, comes to light; and all greed, selfishness, egotism, and ignorance disappears. The call, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light," will then be answered.

✧

[Written for the Sentinel]

"He that keepeth Israel"

AGNES F. CHALMERS

I ASKED God just to let me watch one night
With love o'er all the world in peaceful prayer.
I saw earth's nations walking in the light
Of liberty and fellowship; and there
Was "no more sea." The night became as day.
I asked God just to let me watch and pray.

I asked God just to let me watch one night
With love o'er all earth's churches everywhere.
I saw Truth's seven candlesticks all bright
With promise; yea, I beheld the care
Of human ownership had passed away.
I asked God just to let me watch and pray.

I asked God just to let me watch one night
With love o'er all earth's children as they slept.
I saw the dawn of morning, pure and white;
And knew that Israel's Father, God, had kept
A faithful vigil. Always let my way
Of service be to waken, watch, and pray.

Selected Articles

[Avery Coonley in The Times-Republican, Savanna, Ill.]

A clergyman declares that the process of the healing work which Jesus insisted was proof that he came from God, is identical with pagan healing, such as that current in India. Christian Science denies this emphatically, declaring, on the contrary, that the processes are more nearly antipodal, one being superstitious in character and the other scientific. Jesus said, "The Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works," and no healing which is not based upon divine power has the same Principle as that underlying Christian healing.

The pastor contends that the passage in the fifth chapter of James, "Is any sick among you? let him call for the elders of the church; and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord: and the prayer of faith shall save the sick," means that the prayer was insufficient without the therapeutic or healing agency supplied by the oil. A consideration of the facts would probably lead most people to conclude that the anointing was a form or rite prevalent in those days, particularly as in all the healing mentioned in the Bible, including countless cases healed by Jesus and his disciples, there are but two or three in which any material thing whatever was done. If the oil and not the prayer or spiritual accompaniment were indeed the essential therapeutic agency, the doctors should give up their study of poisons, vaccines, germs, and disease, and direct their research to oil. Christian Scientists, however, believe that all the healing narrated in the Bible was brought about spiritually, also that healing in the same way is possible today; and they are proving their theories daily in accordance with Jesus' promise, "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also."

The minister admits the possibility of mental healing caused by suggestion, which is but the puny operation of that which St. Paul has termed "the carnal mind." The point at which his faith appears to stop is that God could be the source of healing. Rather than concede this, he attributes the entire healing work which the Bible chronicles, including the raising of the dead, to suggestion. Here again Christian Scientists differ from him absolutely. They find the carnal mind a wholly impossible source of true healing, and can attribute results so great and so beneficent to nothing less than God, "who healeth all thy diseases." A source less than omnipresent and omniscient would neither inspire their faith nor appeal to their reason.

Our critic is again mistaken in his statement that "Christian Science cannot heal consumption or cancerous growth." It has been doing so for years, and hundreds of cases given up by physicians have been cured.

✧

[Arthur E. Jennings in Stanley and Consett (England) Chronicle]

There are two conditions of thought demanded by the Bible which one must fulfil before he can understand Christian Science. First, he must become as a little child,—"Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein." Second, he must become receptive in thought,—"Blessed are the poor in spirit: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven."

After reading carefully what our critic has said, the position is this: He supports the beliefs of matter and the material method of healing. Christian Science supports the spiritual and the spiritual method of healing; therefore no accusation can stand against Christian Science. All his objections are traceable to his theological beliefs.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science is based upon the Scriptural teaching that God is Spirit; also that God made all that was made. The first chapter of Genesis plainly declares that what God made was "very good," from which follow the statements that our critic questions: "Life, God, omnipotent good, deny death, evil, sin, disease.—Disease, sin, evil, death, deny good, omnipotent God, Life" (Science and Health, p. 113). To deny evil is divine wisdom. Jesus said, "Resist the devil [and the word devil in the original means all evil,—sin, sickness, and death], and he will flee from you." We are told, "The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death." An evil is certainly an enemy. If good does not deny evil, why do the Scriptures say, "The Son of God was manifested, that he might destroy the works of the devil"? The first step in destroying error is to deny it in thought. The word deny means to refuse to admit, and to declare to be untrue.

Our text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, teaches that "matter is a human concept" (p. 469). The best thinkers in this age outside of Christian Science are getting very near to this teaching. The schools now teach that matter is made up of thought force. What the human mind terms matter is really an idea or a manifestation of mind. As we progress in Christian Science we understand that "it is the spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing." This critic jocularly declares, "If nothing is matter, then it is no matter what Mr. Jennings says." Just because there is no matter, it does matter what is said, because all is Mind. At present Christian Scientists are striving to understand and demonstrate the statement, "All is infinite Mind and its infinite manifestation, for God is All-in-all" (Science and Health, p. 468).

Our critic seems very much perturbed over this statement in Science and Health: "His disciples believed Jesus to be dead while he was hidden in the sepulcher, whereas he was alive, demonstrating within the narrow tomb the power of Spirit to overrule mortal, material sense" (p. 44). For centuries scholastic theology and creeds have taught that Jesus was dead while in the sepulcher, in spite of the Bible teaching that death is to be overcome. Christian Science proves beyond doubt that Jesus had the understanding to overcome death with Life, and that he used this understanding after he was taken down from the cross.

The apostasy referred to by the critic in his quotations does not apply to Christian Science. Jesus said, "By their fruits ye shall know them." So noted a churchman as the Archbishop of York testified publicly and truly to the lives and characters of Christian Scientists. We know where the apostasy is and the remedy, and we are praying earnestly for wisdom to heal it.

✧

[Peter V. Ross in Emanu-El, San Francisco, Cal.]

The distinguished lecturer whose discourse was published in Emanu-El under the caption "Judaism and Christian Science," can hardly be said to have adequately or accurately presented the subject of Christian Science. One would suppose that with all the suffering in the world and all the desire and effort to alleviate it, there might be found a readiness to investigate the merits of Christian Science and ascertain whether its propositions can be demonstrated, before declaring, as the lecturer has done, that Christian Science violates alike the spirit of religion and the spirit of science. If he would approach Christian Science with the same unbiased open-mindedness with which he approaches other subjects of investigation, he might find, as tens of thousands of others have found, a science more exact and a religion more exalted than he has dreamed of.

Any theology which persists in teaching that the aim of religion, as the lecturer says, is not to relieve one of pain but to make him bear it nobly, will henceforth command less and less attention, for men are coming in ever increasing numbers to demand that their pains be stilled and their sins destroyed, and this not in some future world or in some indefinite manner, but here and now, definitely and scientifically. It is in this attitude of thought that the Jew, along with the Gentile, feels irresistibly drawn toward Christian Science, where he begins to escape the oppression of sickness and sin. This movement is in response to the invitation, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

Christian Science found the great majority of its adherents in poverty or some other form of distress, but by teaching them their birthright and dominion it has raised them out of the slough of wretchedness and made them healthy, normal, and self-respecting men and women. Herein does the vitality and virtue of Christian Science become apparent; and herein is shown forth the tremendous power of Christian Science in improving the social order, not through any wholesale plan and intricate organization, but by bringing individuals, here and there as they are ready to respond, to a realization of health, industry, morality, and an abiding sense that they cannot be made the victims of untoward circumstances, since good has all power and evil is but a pretense.

✧

[H. L. Eddison in Isle of Wight (Ryde) Observer]

A misconception of Christian Science appeared in a paragraph entitled "Pain v. Self-control." "Undoubtedly," says the writer, "some Christian Scientists under the spell of religious zeal are able to efface their sensations." Readers of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy know that "the spell of religious zeal" has no part in the teachings of Christian Science, for this religion is simply the scientific application of the truth that Jesus promised would make men free. Fanaticism may efface one sensation by another, but the carnal mind, whether dominated by pain or "the spell of religious zeal" or any other sensation, never yet brought real and lasting healing to any one. Only the Mind that was in Christ Jesus can do that.

Christian Science is teaching the world to seek and find relief from all sensation, from sin and suffering, by a better understanding of the divine Mind, which is with men in the busy highways of modern life no less than it was on the hills of Galilee long ago, and cannot but heal. The ancient stoicism to which the writer of "Pain v. Self-control" refers, was but a phase of human will which, paying the heavy price of overstrain and reaction, reaches a breaking point. Mrs. Eddy tells us that "the scientific government of the body must be attained through the divine Mind" (Science and Health, p. 167), and all who, accepting that statement, put it to the proof, are experiencing in some degree, here and now, "the glorious liberty of the children of God."

✧

[S. T. Downs in The Kokomo (Ind.) Tribune]

When Christ Jesus went about Palestine healing all manner of sin and sickness, and declaring, "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also," the unbelieving Jews, finding it impossible to deny the marvelous works he was accomplishing, said that he had "a devil," or cast out evils "by Beelzebub." History repeats itself. Today, when those who believe in Christ Jesus are doing the works that he said they should do, those calling themselves orthodox, finding it necessary to acknowledge much of the good Christian Science is accomplishing, attempt to detract from it in the same manner. Thus, in the report of a recent sermon

Digitized by Google

we have the spectacle of a professed follower of the Master, one who makes no effort to follow the command to heal the sick, crying "humbug," "absurdity," and the like, and heaping condemnation and ridicule upon thousands of sincere, earnest Christians, known as Christian Scientists, who are honestly trying to prove their faith by their works.

The great Teacher said that his followers should preach the gospel and heal the sick,—both preach and heal,—and he never commanded the use of material medicine or surgery, nor did he directly or indirectly make a concession to so-called material laws in the work he did. There is nothing in the New Testament to indicate that he intended any other means for bringing forth the fruits of Christianity than this: "If ye continue in my word, . . . ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."

Christian Science is Christianly scientific when it declares that the great Teacher meant exactly what he said, and proves, through the healing of every discord known to mankind, that the laws he revealed are ever available for those who seek "in spirit and in truth." All the evidence that any one can ask is at the command of those who desire to know whether or not Christian Science is doing the works that Christ Jesus said should follow "them that believe." What if Christian Science in its teaching and practice does dishonor scholasticism and so-called material science? In doing so it honors God and His laws as does no other teaching known to mankind. Such a religion, therefore, cannot be other than Christian, scientifically Christian.

From the time Mrs. Eddy discovered Christian Science in 1866 until now, no one who was correctly informed has ever claimed that Christian Science is new, because it is not new. It is primitive Christianity restored to mankind on a scientific basis, and its Principle and rule are subject to demonstration by those who sincerely wish to learn the truth.

✧

[Henry A. Teasdel in The Salt Lake Telegram, Salt Lake City, Utah]

An account of the proceedings of the convention of state health officers reports a physician as saying that Christian Science healers have had insufficient training to enable them to cure diseases. That is a most remarkable statement for a doctor of the present day to make, in view of the well known fact that Christian Science has cured every known disease, including diseases that the medical fraternity have repeatedly pronounced incurable. There are thousands of people today who after unsuccessful treatment for physical ailments by the doctors have turned to Christian Science for help and been cured.

The doctor declares that any one can become a proficient practitioner of Christian Science in twelve lessons, at a cost of three hundred dollars. I desire to correct this statement, as it is not true. Before becoming a Christian Science practitioner it is necessary for one not only to study the teachings of Christian Science but to live up to them, and to lead a life that is acceptable to God, so as to be able to reflect the God-power that heals, as did Jesus of Nazareth. This cannot be done in twelve lessons, but takes many months and oftentimes years. Christian Science healing of sickness as well as of sin is spiritual, and is far more efficacious than material remedies are, in spite of what our friend the doctor believes. Christian Science has hundreds of thousands of followers, a big majority of whom have been healed of some physical ailment through its teachings.

Our friend amused his audience with a quotation from a comic paper to the effect that all a Christian Science healer needs in order to start his activities is a copy of Science and Health and a Prince Albert coat, and further adds, "Thus equipped, he can pray over a virulent case of smallpox until the infection sweeps the neighborhood," all of which is very absurd and unreasonable. There are no more law abiding citizens to be found than the Christian Scientists, and Christian Science practitioners are instructed immediately to notify the local health officers of any case of infectious or contagious disease that comes to their attention, and to obey the quarantine laws. These instructions are followed to the letter.

The statement that Christian Science is neither Christian nor scientific is one that has been repeatedly made; and just as often has it been replied to and refuted. What is Christian if the teachings of Jesus the Christ are not? One of the tenets of the Christian Science religion reads: "And we solemnly promise to watch, and pray for that Mind to be in us which was also in Christ Jesus; to do unto others as we would have them do unto us; and to be merciful, just, and pure" (Science and Health, p. 497). What could be more Christianlike than to be in full spiritual accord with the teachings of the master Christian? In regard to Christian Science being unscientific, all science is based upon truth. Jesus said, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." Christian Science is founded on this truth that makes free from both sickness and sin.

On page 46 of "Miscellaneous Writings" Mrs. Eddy answers the question "Do you teach that you are equal with God?" by saying: "There are no such indications in the premises or conclusions of Christian Science, and such a misconception of Truth is not scientific. Man is not equal with his Maker; that which is formed is not cause, but effect, and has no power underived from its creator."

✧

[Lloyd B. Coate in Urbana (Ohio) Citizen]

For many years before her discovery of Christian Science Mrs. Eddy was a semiinvalid. When about forty-five years old she met with an accident which her physicians thought would prove fatal, but through the power of God she was healed. This led to her discovery of Christian Science. She lived to see the cause of Christian Science permanently established and churches of her denomination in every division of the globe.

Mrs. Eddy never claimed she would not pass through "the valley of the shadow of death." In her work "Unity of Good" she wrote: "The achievement of this ultimatum of Science, complete triumph over death, requires time and immense spiritual growth. I have by no means spoken of myself, I cannot speak of myself as 'sufficient for these things.' I insist only upon the fact, as it exists in divine Science, that man dies not, and on the words of the Master in support of this verity,—words which can never 'pass away till all be fulfilled.' Because of these profound reasons I urge Christians to have more faith in living than in dying. I exhort them to accept Christ's promise, and unite the influence of their own thoughts with the power of his teachings, in the Science of being" (p. 43).

Christ Jesus said to Martha before raising Lazarus from the tomb: "I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live: and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. Believest thou this?" Christ Jesus was the greatest teacher of eternal life the world has ever known. Mrs. Eddy strove to emulate his example, teaching that man can be saved only through Christ,—"through Truth, Life, and Love," she writes on page 497 of Science and Health, "as demonstrated by the Galilean Prophet in healing the sick and overcoming sin and death."

Digitized by Google

Editorial

Republished from "Christian Science versus Pantheism"
Message to The Mother Church, June, 1898

Exhortation, and Prayer for Country and Church

MARY BAKER EDDY

EXHORTATION

BELOVED BRETHREN, the love of our loving Lord was never more manifest than in its stern condemnation of all error, wherever found. I counsel thee, rebuke and exhort one another. Love all Christian churches for the gospel's sake; and be exceedingly glad that the churches are united in purpose, if not in method, to close the war between flesh and Spirit, and to fight the good fight till God's will be witnessed and done on earth as in heaven.

Sooner or later all shall know Him, recognize the great truth that Spirit is infinite, and find life in Him in whom we do "live, and move, and have our being"—life in Life, all in All. Then shall all nations, peoples, and tongues, in the words of St. Paul, have "one God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all" (Ephesians iv. 6).

. . . . . .

Once more I write, Set your affections on things above; love one another; commune at the table of our Lord in one spirit; worship in spirit and in truth; and if daily adoring, imploring, and living the divine Life, Truth, Love, thou shalt partake of the bread that cometh down from heaven, drink of the cup of salvation, and be baptized in Spirit.

PRAYER FOR COUNTRY AND CHURCH

Pray for the prosperity of our country, and for her victory under arms; that justice, mercy, and peace continue to characterize her government, and that they shall rule all nations. Pray that the divine presence may still guide and bless our chief magistrate, those associated with his executive trust, and our national judiciary; give to our congress wisdom, and uphold our nation with the right arm of His righteousness.

In your peaceful homes remember our brave soldiers, whether in camp or in battle.* Oh, may their love of country, and their faithful service thereof, be unto them life-preservers! May the divine Love succor and protect them, as at Manila, where brave men, led by the dauntless Dewey, and shielded by the power that saved them, sailed victoriously through the jaws of death and blotted out the Spanish squadron.

Great occasion have we to rejoice that our nation, which fed her starving foe,—already murdering her peaceful seamen and destroying millions of her money,—will be as formidable in war as she has been compassionate in peace.

May our Father-Mother God, who in times past hath spread for us a table in the wilderness and "in the midst of our enemies," establish us in the most holy faith, plant our feet firmly on Truth, the rock of Christ, the "substance of things hoped for"—and fill us with the life and understanding of God, and good will toward men.

*This refers to the war between the United States and Spain for the liberty of Cuba.

[Reprinted from the Sentinel of Sept. 19, 1903, by request]

Unauthorized Literature

SINCE the publication of the article, "The Integrity of Christian Science Literature," in our issue of Aug. 15 [see page 623 of this present issue], we have been given an opportunity to inspect three papers of the kind referred to. One purports to be notes taken in a class, another is said to be a copy of a letter to a student, and the third is a formula. The alleged notes are utterly repudiated by the teacher, the letter was found to be equally spurious, and the formula is, of course, in direct violation of the by-laws of The Mother Church. All three of the papers are faulty and misleading, and, if considered as attempts to elucidate Christian Science, must prove harmful to young students and inquirers who give heed to them; and yet we regret to say that inquiries which have been received since the publication of the article referred to indicate that in some instances there is a desire to cling to these papers which are "doubtful as to authorship or clearness of statement."

We feel under the necessity of again warning our readers against this class of unauthorized and faulty literature and against the subtle and specious manner in which it is circulated, for it is usually put forth as the production of some well known Christian Scientist, and in some instances the papers even purport to be copies of letters written by Mrs. Eddy.

That these papers are passed from hand to hand without sufficient inquiry as to whether their reputed authors stand sponsor for them, is an evidence of carelessness; but an even greater danger would seem to be that more or less change is inevitably made every time the papers are copied, and what may have been a correct presentation of Christian Science in the original is likely to become a doubtful or absolutely incorrect statement in the copy.

When it is clearly understood that Christian Science is an exact Science, and that any deviation from the true line of its expression must necessarily obscure its teaching, it will be seen why these efforts to adulterate our denominational literature should be frustrated. It is of the utmost importance that no literature should be circulated as Christian Science which has not passed the scrutiny of those capable of pronouncing upon its correctness and authenticity, and it is for this reason that great care is taken to preserve the purity of the authorized publications.

ARCHIBALD MCLELLAN.

Law and Gospel

THROUGHOUT the gospels we find a clear distinction made between law as humanly conceived and expressed, and law as spiritually understood and demonstrated,—law as expressed in Paul's inspired words, "The law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death." However regarded,—whether in relation to human history in the past, or present-day experience,—law is regarded in widely different ways, which on close analysis seem very strange to the spiritual thinker. For instance, it is believed by the majority of people outside of Christian Science that "the law of sin and death" to which Paul refers, has its origin in a divine purpose; and, what is more, it is popularly believed that cataclysms in nature, which destroy human life and cause untold suffering, are the direct expression of divine law, and human codes have exonerated mankind from all responsibility for such occurrences by recording on the statute books the decision that these are due to "the act of God." With strange inconsistency mortal mind has, however, condemned the healing of the sick by the understanding of spiritual law, and insisted that man-made laws may by the consent of the majority rule the divine law of healing, demonstrated by Christ Jesus, out of court.

Digitized by Google

An instance of this kind is to be found in the experience of Paul and Silas at Philippi. They were teaching the power of divine law to overcome evil of every sort, but it appears that a Roman law existed which made punishable any religious innovations that threatened to unsettle the minds of the populace, and on this ground it was very easy to arouse the passions of those whose sense of justice was in no wise even a human expression of divine Principle. Condemned by public sentiment, Paul and Silas were terribly scourged and thrust into "the inner prison," without even being permitted to make any defense at the travesty of a trial which had been gone through.

We however find that their acquaintance with spiritual law met their need even in this great ordeal, and the completeness of this demonstration may well inspire us today to greater effort in our work in Christian Science. We read that all sense of suffering was overcome by the apostles, nor were they faint from the loss of blood which followed their scourging by the Roman lictor. The next step was their complete liberation. Although their feet had been made fast in the stocks, we are told that "every one's bands were loosed;" and we further read that this spiritual liberation reached out to all the surrounding thought, so that even the jailer became their tender ministrant; and what is more, that "he and all his, straightway" accepted the truth.

We next come to the vindication of these men by the authorities of Philippi, who found that they had made a serious mistake in scourging Roman citizens, and so they were willing to let them go; but this was not enough for Paul, who was himself a lawyer. He insisted upon a public vindication, and demanded that the magistrates should themselves come and take them out from the prison, which they did. Here we see that Paul's understanding of spiritual law did not prevent him from being tested to the utmost, but there is abundant evidence to show that he never shrank from any such test. Indeed, he himself tells us that rather did he glory in persecutions when they better enabled him to prove the availability and supremacy of spiritual law.

On page 176 of "Miscellaneous Writings" our revered Leader asks: "But what of ourselves, and our times and obligations? Are we duly aware of our own great opportunities and responsibilities?" Then she asks: "Will you give yourselves wholly and irrevocably to the great work of establishing the truth, the gospel, and the Science which are necessary to the salvation of the world from error, sin, disease, and death?" This means the understanding of divine law as presented in the Scriptures, especially in the gospels, and revealed again in clearest light through the teachings of Christian Science.

ANNIE M. KNOTT.

Uncoiling the Serpent

THE present pretense of evil is that it holds the whole world in its grasp. From time immemorial the serpent has typified evil in religious symbolism; therefore the picture suggested today is that of a serpent coiled around a seemingly defenseless globe, and the task of true religion is that of mentally uncoiling this supposititious serpent by spiritual means. Ever since the serpent deceived Adam and Eve it has been playing traitor to the human race considered individually and collectively. Treachery is its particular trade, and this it combines with subtlety, envy, presumption, malignity, and cruel arrogance. In order to discourage the human race from freeing itself, the mentality typified by the serpent seeks to scandalize spiritual benefactors and to falsify their life motives. It expresses itself in the Pharisees to whom the Master said, "Ye are as graves which appear not, and the men that walk over them are not aware of them." It plays Judas to Jesus, and when found out hangs itself in order that the nothingness of its belief of life in matter may be evident to all men.

Among the twelve tribes of Israel, which may be taken to symbolize all mortal beliefs, Dan stands for treachery. His father Jacob described him as "a serpent by the way, an adder in the path, that biteth the horse heels, so that his rider shall fall backward." Mrs. Eddy interprets Dan in the Glossary of Science and Health as "animal magnetism; so-called mortal mind controlling mortal mind; error, working out the designs of error; one belief preying upon another." In national affairs this serpent mentality acts as a thorn in the side of every honest government, fomenting insurrection and drilling its battalions on the sly, so that it may take an imperiled people by surprise, and then ask the question, What are you going to do about it? It delights to stir up the dregs of international relations in order to fish in troubled waters. But Dan, who makes his appearance in Genesis, fortunately disappears in Revelation, where his place is taken by Manasseh, proving that inspiration guided by Science is equal to the task of driving out animal magnetism, and that there is abundant hope for all men and nations.

The pretended serpent likewise takes every opportunity to argue man's incompleteness, and so creates the ridiculous belief of the male who is a tyrant and the pathetic figure of the woman who is a slave. As it coils itself around the world in the guise of male domination, the serpent adds continually to the already long list of bad habits. It tries to substitute strong drink for the milk of human kindness, and the fumes of mesmerism for the inspiration of right ideas. It offers militarism instead of the protection of spiritual understanding, politics instead of statesmanship, suspicion and withholding instead of fearless giving. In the church, male domination ultimates in hierarchies and burns heretics, leaving woman to pay for its salaries and spires by her work and her faith in God. Through the present world war humanity is learning the hollow pretense of a one-sided humanity, the nations are becoming sobered from their so-called national drink, and the way is opening for woman's inspiration to direct, govern, and save the world.

On page 9 of "Christian Healing" Mrs. Eddy has written: "St. John saw the vision of life in matter; and he saw it pass away,—an illusion. The dragon that was wroth with the woman, and stood ready 'to devour the child as soon as it was born,' was the vision of envy, sensuality, and malice, ready to devour the idea of Truth. But the beast bowed before the Lamb: it was supposed to have fought the manhood of God, that Jesus represented; but it fell before the womanhood of God, that presented the highest ideal of Love."

In an open space of Boston stands a statue of that Wendell Phillips who has been well described as a "prophet of liberty, champion of the slave." Over his head may be read the words, "Whether in chains or in laurels liberty knows nothing but victories." It was this same Wendell Phillips who, catching a glimpse of the uncoiling of the serpent which would mean a yet greater enfranchisement than that of the African slave, said of Mrs. Eddy's work, "Had I young blood in my veins, I would help that woman." Today a great host of men and women are helping the woman, and a serpent uncoiled cannot strike.

WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN.

Digitized by Google

Among the Churches

Current Notes

BOSTON, MASS.—The First Church of Christ, Scientist. Services: 10:45 a.m., 7:30 p.m.; Sunday School, 10:45 a.m.; Wednesday, 7:30 p.m., in the church edifice, Norway, Falmouth, and St. Paul Streets. The church is open to visitors Wednesdays and Fridays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Reading-rooms: Berkeley Building (suite 306-307), 420 Boylston Street; open daily, except Sunday and Wednesday, from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., and on Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. International Trust Company Building (second floor), 45 Milk Street, near Devonshire, opposite post-office; open daily, except Sunday, from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Coolidge Corner Building, 1316 Beacon Street, Brookline; open daily, except Sunday, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

WASHINGTON STATE PENITENTIARY (auspices Walla Walla).—On Feb. 9 we had the pleasure of listening to a lecture on Christian Science by Paul Stark Seeley. The wonderful advancement of the Christian Science movement within the walls, with its attendant accomplishments, should be proof sufficient to even the most critical that, with a heartfelt desire for the better things of life, nowhere is it possible to be shut away from God, good.—Our View Point.

BISHOP, CAL.—During the twelve months ended Nov. 1, the Christian Science Society has distributed through the mail 471 Sentinels, 54 Journals, 386 Monitors, 100 copies of Church Tenets, and 18 copies of lectures. Periodicals as well as pamphlets have also been distributed by hand. A number of Mrs. Eddy's writings have been sold, and the sale of Quarterlies has more than doubled.—Correspondence.

WEST CHESTER, PA.—Members of First Church of Christ, Scientist, North High Street, near Washington, held their dedicatory services yesterday [March 11]. Ground was broken for this building in June, 1909, the corner-stone was laid Aug. 19, and the building was finished the following year, the first service being held March 6, 1910.—Local News.

CHICO, CAL.—The first step toward the erection of a Christian Science church edifice in this city has been taken with the purchase of a site in the Thirteenth Subdivision. The lot is located on Woodlawn Avenue at Pine Street and faces Bidwell Park.—Chico Record.

SANTA PAULA, CAL.—The chapel of the Christian Science Society, Sixth and Pleasant Streets, will be dedicated at three o'clock in the afternoon of April 15.

❖

Admission to Membership in The Mother Church

The next admission of candidates will be June 1, 1917. Application blanks may be obtained by addressing the Clerk of The Mother Church, and should be returned to him on or before Wednesday, May 9, 1917.

An application sent to the Clerk does not constitute the applicant a member. Notice of election will be sent to those who are admitted to membership.

Those who have made application for membership prior to Nov. 3, 1916, and have not received notice of election, may communicate with the Clerk if they so desire, and are especially requested to do so before sending in a second application.

JOHN V. DITTEMORE, Clerk,
236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

The Lectures

CONCORD, N. H. (First Church).—Prof. Hermann S. Hering, lecturer; introduced by the Hon. Arthur P. Morrill, speaker of the state House of Representatives, who said in part:—

It would be difficult to imagine a more appropriate place than this beautiful church in the city of Concord in which to listen to God's Word as interpreted by a follower of Mrs. Eddy. The name of this wonderful woman is known and honored throughout the civilized world, and our beloved city reaps a great and lasting benefit in the reflected glory of the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science.

It is well to pause from time to time and consider certain facts with which we are all familiar; so let us review for a moment some of the events in the life of Mrs. Eddy in connection with our home city. Mrs. Eddy was born in the neighboring town of Bow and spent many of the most fruitful of her mature years within our borders, having established a beautiful and sightly home at Pleasant View, which I hope will ever be a shrine for her loving admirers. How well we remember when, in years gone by, Mrs. Eddy on rare occasions would permit the word to go out that she would greet her friends for a few moments at Pleasant View. Special trains would crowd our railroad yards and the resources of our little city would be taxed almost beyond belief to care for our guests, the Christian Scientists from beyond our borders.

Concord has shared indeed in the world wide fame of this great teacher as well as in her broad public mindedness and generous philanthropy, and I, as a citizen of Concord, though not a member of the Christian Science faith, am proud to stand in this church erected through the munificence of Mrs. Eddy during her life and pay my own bit of tribute to this good and famous woman.—Concord Monitor.

LEXINGTON, MASS. (First Church).—William W. Porter, lecturer; introduced by Oliver Zell Crane, who said in part:—

Jesus the Christ, our divine Exemplar, proved his perfect understanding of Truth by effacing error and discord of every sort, destroying sin, and healing sickness and disease, all of which was in reality the unfoldment to humanity of his consciousness of Truth. In like manner Christian Science, founded upon the same basic, absolute truth as were Jesus' words and deeds, is bringing forth the fruits of the Spirit, the "signs following" of which Jesus spoke, blessing us with health, holiness, happiness, and peace, and declaring to mankind that as God is Truth, and as God is infinite, there is no truth except of God.

WINNEMUCCA, NEV. (Society).—John Randall Dunn, lecturer; introduced by Attorney L. G. Campbell, who said in part:—

I am comparatively little informed on Christian Science, but "by their fruits ye shall know them," and I do know from my observation of those of the faith of the speaker that Christian Science makes for the very opposite of stress, war, and turmoil. I do know from my observation of them that Christian Science makes for peace, rest, and resultant happiness, contentment, and good citizenship. If therefore the precedent malice and mental turmoil can be eradicated by theirs and other beliefs that make for peace, happiness, and good citizenship, war and physical clash will vanish as darkness before the sunrise. There never was a time when the world was so sorely in need of teachings that point to peace and rest.—The Humboldt Star.

Digitized by Google

ST. CHARLES, ILL. (Society).—Charles I. Ohrenstein, lecturer; introduced by Attorney Harry G. Hempstead, who said in part:—

The optimism and faith of Christian Scientists is inspiring, to say the least, even to those who have not adopted this teaching. Their faith that they will be taken care of and guided through the ups and downs of their daily life, leads one to believe that they have found something of practical use and for every-day application. This is also borne out by the rapidity with which their churches are being built and filled, not with people who are willing to accept idle promises, but with intelligent, thinking people, who must be shown the fruits of a faith before adopting it. Christian Scientists tell us this is not a new belief, but the old time religion, with a practical interpretation as found by Mrs. Eddy.

STOCKTON, CAL. (Second Church).—Dr. Walton Hubbard, lecturer; introduced by Mrs. Flora Stinchfield, who said in part:—

A little over fifty years ago there was but one Christian Scientist in the world, and that one its Discoverer and Founder, Mrs. Eddy. The influence of that one woman's work for humanity is being felt throughout the entire world today, and great numbers are depending upon Christian Science for their health and happiness. Now there must be a reason for this remarkable and steadfast growth. There is an old saying that "a grain of proof is worth a pound of argument." It is because Christian Science is reaching and fulfilling the needs of humanity by repeating the works of the Master, Christ Jesus, according to an exact Science founded upon the Bible, that thinking people are pondering its teachings.

Lectures to be Delivered

[By Members of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.]

ARKANSAS—Monticello: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Church Edifice, North Main Street, 8 p.m., April 17.

CALIFORNIA—San Francisco (First Church): William W. Porter, Church Edifice, California and Franklin Streets, 8 p.m., April 19.

San Francisco (Third Church): William W. Porter, Dreamland Rink, Steiner Street, near Sutter Street, 3 p.m., April 15, and Church Edifice, 1250 Haight Street, 8 p.m., April 16.

CANADA—Westmount, Province of Quebec: William R. Rathvon, Victoria Hall, 8:15 p.m., April 9.

ENGLAND—Brighton, Sussex: John Sidney Braithwaite, Hove Town Hall, 3 p.m., April 14.

Darlington, Durham: John Sidney Braithwaite, Mechanics' Hall, 7:30 p.m., May 7.

Letchworth, Herts: John Sidney Braithwaite, Howard Hall, 8 p.m., April 26.

London (Second Church): John Sidney Braithwaite, Hampstead Conservatoire, Eaton Avenue, N.W. 3 (Station, Swiss Cottage), 3:30 p.m., April 16.

IDAHO—Lewiston: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Temple Theater, 8 p.m., April 20.

ILLINOIS—Alton: John Randall Dunn, Temple Theater, 8 p.m., April 15.

Bloomington: John Randall Dunn, Church Edifice, Monroe and Prairie Streets, 8 p.m., April 17.

Chicago (Second Church): Clarence W. Chadwick, Church Edifice, Wrightwood and Pine Grove Avenues, 8 p.m., April 16 and 17.

Danville: John Randall Dunn, Elks' Club, 8 p.m., April 16.

DeKalb: Clarence W. Chadwick, Church Edifice, Third and Oak Streets, 8:15 p.m., April 20.

East St. Louis: Virgil O. Strickler, Church Edifice, Summit Avenue and Washington Place, 8 p.m., April 15.

Elgin: Clarence W. Chadwick, Universalist Church, 8:15 p.m., April 19.

Hoopeston: William R. Rathvon, Church Edifice, Third and Washington Streets, 8 p.m., April 17.

Moline: John Randall Dunn, Moline Theater, 8:15 p.m., April 19.

Olney: George Shaw Cook, Court House, 8 p.m., April 16.

Springfield: George Shaw Cook, Chatterton Opera House, 8:15 p.m., April 17.

Sterling: Clarence C. Eaton, Academy of Music, 8:15 p.m., April 17.

Wilmette: William R. Rathvon, Church Edifice, Central Avenue and Tenth Street, 8 p.m., April 16.

INDIANA—Huntington: William R. Rathvon, Huntington Theater, 3 p.m., April 15.

Indianapolis (First Church): Bliss Knapp, Tomlinson Hall, 3:30 p.m., April 15.

Kokomo: Clarence W. Chadwick, High School Auditorium, 3 p.m., April 15.

Madison: Bliss Knapp, Odd Fellows Hall, 8 p.m., April 20.

Marion: Clarence C. Eaton, Indiana Opera House, 3:30 p.m., April 15.

Muncie: Bliss Knapp, High School Auditorium, 8 p.m., April 16.

Warsaw: Bliss Knapp, Centennial Theater, 8 p.m., April 17.

KANSAS—Parsons: Bicknell Young, Elks Theater, 8 p.m., April 16.

KENTUCKY—Newport: Bliss Knapp, Hippodrome Theater, Monmouth Street, 8:15 p.m., April 19.

MAINE—Auburn and Lewiston: Ezra W. Palmer, Church Edifice, 93 College Street, Lewiston, 8 p.m., April 20.

MICHIGAN—Kalamazoo: George Shaw Cook, Church Edifice, Park and South Streets, 8 p.m., April 19 and 20.

Marquette: William R. Rathvon, Marquette Branch Prison, 6 p.m., and Knights of Pythias Hall, Front Street, 8:15 p.m., April 12.

MINNESOTA—Albert Lea: Bicknell Young, Church Edifice, Adams and Clark, 8 p.m., April 13.

Wells: Bicknell Young, Wells Opera House, 8 p.m., April 10.

MISSOURI—Joplin (Second Church): John Randall Dunn, Club Theater, 8 p.m., April 13.

Kansas City (First Church): Bicknell Young, Church Edifice, Ninth Street and Forest Avenue, 8 p.m., April 20.

Kansas City (Second Church): Bicknell Young, Church Edifice, Thirty-first Street and Troost Avenue, 8 p.m., April 19.

Kirkwood: Virgil O. Strickler, Church Edifice, Washington and Clay Avenues, 3:30 p.m., April 15.

Marshall: Virgil O. Strickler, Key's Auditorium, 8:15 p.m., April 16.

St. Louis (joint lecture): Bicknell Young, Odeon, 8 p.m., April 15.

OHIO—Cleveland (Fourth Church): Ezra W. Palmer, Liberty Theater, 10315 Superior Street, 3 p.m., April 15.

OKLAHOMA—Bartlesville: Bicknell Young, Grand Theater, evening, April 17.

PENNSYLVANIA—Warren: Frank Bell, Library Theater, 8 p.m., April 19.

TENNESSEE—Memphis: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Church Edifice, Dunlap Street and Monroe Avenue, 8 p.m., April 14, and 3 p.m., April 15.

UTAH—Milford: Dr. Francis J. Fluno, Utah Theater, 8 p.m., April 20.

Ogden: Virgil O. Strickler, Church Edifice, Twenty-fourth Street and Monroe Avenue, 8 p.m., April 19.

Salt Lake City (First and Second Churches): Virgil O. Strickler, American Theater, 12 noon (for business people), and The Auditorium, 8 p.m., April 20.

WASHINGTON—Bellingham: Dr. Walton Hubbard, American Theater, 3 p.m., April 15.

Blaine: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Loomis Hall, 8 p.m., April 15.

Brewster: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Smith's Theater, 8 p.m., April 16.

North Yakima: Dr. Walton Hubbard, 8 p.m., April 19.

Wenatchee: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Wenatchee Theater, 8 p.m., April 17.

WISCONSIN—Kenosha: Frank Bell, Carpenter's Hall, 8:15 p.m., April 9.

Neenah: William R. Rathvon, Church Edifice, Wisconsin Avenue, 8:15 p.m., April 18.

Digitized by Google

Testimonies of Healing

Eighteen years ago, Science and Health was brought into my home by a member of the family. For ten years I did not even open the book, but loaned it to many friends who were ill, with the remark that it might help them. During those years I was wrapped up in my own church, taking a leading part in all its activities. I read the Bible faithfully, and prayed reverently as I then understood prayer.

During that time a serious eruption appeared on my face, and in three weeks it had grown to an alarming size. Secretly I held the fear of malignant growth, while neighbors and friends pronounced it the same thing. When my husband, who is a traveling salesman, came home, he said it was a malignant growth and wanted to take me to our doctor immediately; but I remembered that a few years previous a physician during a friendly talk had told us there was no cure for this trouble, so fear kept me from going to the doctor. We became very much depressed, but one day the thought came to me to read Science and Health. I read on and on, for hours at a time, and was surprised and overjoyed at the beauty and holiness of the thought expressed. Needless to say, my face was entirely healed in four weeks, and in eight years the trouble has not returned. This healing came just from reading Science and Health.

Since then I have had many proofs of God's love. A young girl who has lived with me many years was severely burned as she was about to put a pie in the oven. As she opened the gas oven door a sheet of flame shot out, striking her in the face. Her eyebrows and lashes were burned off, as well as the hair around her face, and her face, ears, and neck, also the right hand and arm, were a mass of burns and blisters. I immediately called a Christian Science practitioner, and we clung "steadfastly to God and His idea" (Science and Health, p. 495). This was about eleven o'clock in the morning, and the afternoon of the following day she took a boat ride with friends. No one made any remark about her appearance, as they did not know of the accident, and this proved to us that there was no disfigurement, the healing being complete in twenty-four hours.

I can testify to God's wonderful supply in our financial needs, also to His loving care and protection of my husband while he is away from home for weeks at a time. My heart goes out in love and thanksgiving to God that I was compelled, even though it was through fear and suffering, to read our much loved text-book. There are still some problems to be solved, but God is good, and I know that if I am faithful and do my part, my prayers will be answered. I love the Journal, Sentinel, and Monitor, for they are such a help, and I am grateful to our revered Leader, Mrs. Eddy, for giving to suffering humanity her wonderful book "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures." With the little understanding I have of this great truth, I have been the channel to help others as well as myself, and words are inadequate to express the love and gratitude I feel for Christian Science.—Elizabeth Lee, Cincinnati, Ohio.

✧

It is over ten years since I heard of Christian Science. At that time I was in a miserable state of health and was suffering from a disease of the eyes, said to be ulceration, with which I had been troubled since childhood. Each attack seemed to leave the sight less clear, until I could hardly see at all. Several specialists treated me, but no permanent help was received. The last one said he could do nothing more for me, and that possibly I might become quite blind.

It was then I proved, as so many others have done, that "man's extremity is God's opportunity." I felt that there must be healing somewhere, and prayed earnestly to God to show me the way out of this condition. Some time afterward I heard of Christian Science through a friend, and attended a Wednesday evening meeting. The peace experienced at that service will always be remembered; I felt that I had been led there in answer to my prayer. Through the help of a practitioner and the reading of the literature I realized the truth that makes free. My sight has greatly improved and I have never had an attack of the old complaint.

During the years Christian Science has been in our home we have had many proofs of the healing power of Truth, and it has met all our needs. I am truly grateful for the physical benefits, but more especially for the light, comfort, and spiritual understanding that enable us to go on day by day. I am thankful to God for all the help received, also grateful to our Leader, Mrs. Eddy, for giving us the right understanding of Him.

Elizabeth Tudor, Westmount, Quebec, Canada.

✧

Christian Science came into my experience about five years ago, at a time when I was suffering from an acute attack of appendicitis. I took it up purely for the physical healing, as I cared little for religion. Some eight years prior to this incident I had undergone an operation for the same trouble, and during these years suffered severely from stomach disorder. I tried every available remedy,—dieting, fasting for an entire week, exercise, will-power, and mental science; but in none of these did I receive either physical relief or mental satisfaction.

Not until I was stricken with this last severe attack did I finally determine to try Christian Science. Although both doctors, one of whom was my brother from a distant town, urged me to go at once to the hospital for an immediate operation, I was firm in my refusal. Instead, I tried Christian Science and was perfectly healed. The healing was, however, very slow, which made it necessary for me to study the teachings of this religion. My physical improvement kept pace with my moral or spiritual condition; as I clung to error, so did disease cling to me, and as I let go of error there was a perceptible improvement in my physical condition.

Christian Science brought me health, harmony, and purity, and I am grateful to God that I was so fortunate as to be one of those privileged to receive and to profit by this beautiful religion of Christ, which casts out sins and heals our diseases, and which teaches us humility, meekness, and love.

Ernest T. DePass, Memphis, Tenn.

✧

Christian Science was brought to my notice in 1903. At that time I was a physical wreck, yet felt sure that if medicine could not cure me nothing could. Christian Science might help nervous troubles, I thought, but not an organic trouble. I soon realized, however, that in truth one disease is as readily overcome as another, because the healing is spiritual. My healing, though very slow, was complete and permanent. I was extremely happy when I realized my freedom, and I knew Truth had made me free. Almost at once I began to prove for others that God is an ever present help. I however neglected to work for myself daily, feeling sure that if I was proving the truth for others it would be sufficient.

Then my husband passed on, my home was broken up, friends deserted me, and I was left alone so far as human aid was concerned. The situation overwhelmed me, and I collapsed both mentally and physically. I could not understand why I had to pass through this Red Sea and the wilderness, but one day when everything seemed dark I picked up Science and Health to see if I could find a solution there. I opened to page 266 and read the passage beginning, "Would existence without personal friends be to you a blank?" The scales fell from my eyes, and I saw how necessary this pruning had been, for I had placed human friends on pedestals; but even then I could not quite give up the wrong sense and think rightly.

Digitized by Google

At this time I attended service in The Mother Church, and during the repetition of the Lord's Prayer the word "forgive" stood out like the handwriting on the wall. "Forgive, and you will have peace," kept ringing in my ears. I had pondered that word for many years, not understanding just how to forgive; but I went home feeling sure that God would show me the way. Finally it came to me that to forgive means to change one's false thinking, to give up error for Truth, to see one's friends as God's ideas and not as human personalities. My consciousness was illumined, my thought completely changed. Weeks, however, lapsed into months before I fully realized that I had never been separated from or deprived of one iota of good, for God is Love and is infinite. Then my thought went out in love to all of God's ideas. Truth has obliterated much of the past, and I am confident that before long it will have faded completely from my thought.

I wish to express my gratitude for the friends who ministered to me in my hour of need. Since my healing I have had many discordant conditions to rise above, but have depended absolutely on Christian Science, and the waters have never fai'ed to part. How good God is to have given us an exact rule whereby we can solve every problem, if we will but study and abide by the teachings given us in our text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy; and how we should rejoice that one was found who was able to receive the message of Truth. I am very grateful for every experience through which I have gained a higher understanding, for through it I have learned what Love is.—Eloise Hallenbeck, New York, N. Y.

✧

[Translated from the German]

It is with a grateful heart that I wish to tell of the blessings which I have received through Christian Science. For years I had been afflicted with rheumatism, also with ever recurring attacks of severe cough alternating with bronchitis, to which catarrh, bowel disorder, and asthma were added later on. During that time all kinds of material means were used, including electricity, which seemed to relieve me somewhat for a while, then the troubles would reappear in a more severe form. In recent years, however, I had attacks of illness which seemed to become more and more severe. I did not dare leave the house for fear of contracting a cold, and to go upstairs became impossible on account of the asthma. I again sought a physician, but he frankly informed me that no help could be expected except through a change of climate, which might prolong my life a few years. He advised me to start for California as early as possible, as it might soon be too late. That was over six years ago. When I arrived in California, and during the following few months, I seemed to be rid of nearly all my troubles; but soon disappointment came. Again I turned to physicians and to drugs, but all proved of no avail.

A friend then told me of Christian Science, and although I was very reluctant to give it any thought, yet seeing no other way out of my difficulty I applied to a practitioner for help. Among the first questions I asked her was whether I must give up my church, to which the loving answer came that divine Love would lead me and point out the way. This has proved true. As I had long ceased to believe that I would ever be entirely freed from my troubles, the healing was slow, thus necessitating greater diligence on my part with regard to the study of the text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, a German translation of which had been given us. Although I always held the Bible to be a precious book and made much use of it, it did not have the value which it has now that I read it daily with more understanding in connection with Science and Health.

I am entirely well, and am able to read fine print without glasses, as well as to attend to my housework, although I am eighty-three years of age. I considered it impossible to learn the English language during the twenty-three years of my stay in this country, but a few months ago I made a start and have succeeded in learning a few things by heart. Next to God I am very grateful to Mrs. Eddy for having discovered the truth which makes free, and for having left it as a heritage to humanity. I also rejoice in the true happiness, peace, and harmony which Christian Science has brought me, and would like to add that it has been my privilege to become a member of the Christian Science church.

Maria Witte, Pomona, Cal.

✧

Since taking up the study of Christian Science and finding that God is Love, I have learned to rejoice in the understanding of God and His relation to man. From infancy until March, 1913, I experienced few days of perfect health. Many physicians had treated me, and when all hope of restoring my health was gone, the physician who was then attending me said there was nothing left but to try Christian Science. Not knowing anything about this teaching, I wandered blindly on, trying several so-called "cures," only to find myself at last in the very "slough of despond," depending upon opiates as the only means of relief. All this while there was a longing to live a true Christian life, so when I at last realized there was no permanent help in material means, my heart cried out to God and my prayer was answered.

Just after this darkest hour I went to the public library one day, and selected from a shelf "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy. After I had been reading this book for some time, the bowels which had not moved naturally for three years resumed their normal activity. This action without the use of drugs had been declared by several physicians to be impossible without an operation. As a further proof that those who earnestly seek God will find the true way, I was soon led to attend the Christian Science services, and was greatly strengthened each time. Then one morning, when about to take a dose of medicine, these words from Joshua came to me: "Choose you this day whom ye will serve." I chose to serve God, and soon all medicine had disappeared from my possession. With the exception of having once resorted to an opiate, which had but little effect, there has been no desire for drugs of any kind since. I have often been exposed to untoward conditions without any ill effect, and it has indeed been a pleasure to experience many days of healthy activity.

Another healing has meant a great deal to me because it was the result of having overcome resentment. In early childhood I received an injury which, because of a fracture in the knee-joint, left one leg shorter than the other. After studying Science for about eight months, I noticed that love was taking the place of resentment toward the relative whom I had always blamed for having indirectly caused the accident. The error in my thinking having been detected and destroyed, I then found it was possible for me to walk long distances without pain, without limping, and without an extension on my shoe.

Digitized by Google

At times discouragement has seemingly clouded the horizon, but never since I read the first sentence in the Preface of Science and Health has there been any doubt that it teaches the truth. "The Life of Mary Baker Eddy" by Sibyl Wilbur has helped me to appreciate, at least in a degree, the years of toil and sacrifice it cost our Leader to give us this key not only to the Scriptures, but to the very kingdom of heaven, where, as the psalmist has said, we may "abide under the shadow of the Almighty."

Many times, when "persecuted for righteousness' sake," I have retreated from the world and found comfort and strength in the inspired pages of our text-book. I am thankful for membership in The Mother Church, and also in a branch church. It is indeed a privilege to subscribe for and read our periodicals; the Monitor has proved an invaluable companion. I have often found the reading-rooms to be places of refuge, and the lectures are always instructive and helpful. As a small return for my blessings I find it a pleasure to give out each piece of literature received, knowing that where there is need for the healing truth God's word will not return unto Him void, but will accomplish that whereunto it is sent.

GERTRUDE M. KITCHELL, Michigan City, Ind.

✧

Eleven years ago I turned to Christian Science after ten years of medical and surgical treatment for continual colds. Four physicians had attended me, but none afforded anything more than temporary relief. In my work as a teacher I was greatly handicapped, because for days at a time I could scarcely speak with any comfort or with effect. Finally I asked one of the physicians, a specialist just returned from studying in Europe, if there was not some way to effect a permanent cure. His reply was that on account of the chronic inflamed condition of the vocal cords it would take not less than six months in a dry, hot climate to restore them to a normal state.

About this time I had a visit with a college friend who had experienced a remarkable healing of his eyes, supposedly injured by overuse with the microscope. My talk with him induced me to try Christian Science. This was at the beginning of winter and I was seemingly in the throes of the old difficulty, but great improvement was at once manifested. I had always been warned to use the voice as little as possible, but my adviser and helper in Christian Science told me that if I believed I was doing right in my work as a teacher, and if I needed to use my voice in that work, a just God would not hinder me. At this time I was also helping to direct the school athletics, and doing evening work in settlements and boys' clubs. At once I abandoned all the old fears and entered joyfully into my duties with renewed confidence. The resulting sense of freedom is known only to those who have experienced it.

During the years since then I have used my voice extensively in teaching, debating, and public speaking, and my help has not failed me. A change of climate has brought no fears and no ill effects. I cannot say that absolute freedom from colds has been secured, but there has never been a time when the trouble has not yielded in a few days, and without any inconvenience in the use of my voice. Only once in the last three years has there been a manifestation of hoarseness, and there has been constant gain in place of continued difficulty.

My study of Christian Science has uncovered other problems, and I am working with these and making progress. My thankfulness for the many blessings which have come to myself and to those about me reaches out to the fruition of all humanity's hopes, "where fetters fall," as our Leader says on page 227 of Science and Health, "and the rights of man are fully known and acknowledged."

JOHN M. BREWER, Cambridge, Mass.

✧

My gratitude to God for Christian Science is boundless. At the time I investigated this beautiful truth I had a violent temper. Often I tried to govern myself, but without the least avail until I realized the truth stated in Science and Health, that "the divine Mind governs, and . . . in Science man reflects God's government" (p. 393).

One demonstration for which I am particularly grateful stands out as an oasis in my stormy journey from sense to Soul. Until I had this battle with Goliath I did not seem to make much progress. This awakening occurred when I had an attack of yellow jaundice. During the entire time I was about as usual, going wherever I had been accustomed to go and meeting many people. The practitioner told me to hold the thought that God's child is perfect, and this was fully realized, as even my husband did not know I had the problem to meet until I told him. I was practically healed the first week, but all the manifestations had not disappeared, so treatment was continued at the request of my husband. Before the next week elapsed the healing was complete. During this attack I ate everything I desired, knowing that I was subject only to God's law. There were abscesses in both ears, and for a whole day I could not hear with one ear, but these conditions were entirely overcome.

For all these blessings I am indeed grateful. I realize that the only true gratitude is to make one's self a living testimony of what Truth is doing, and so am trying each day to manifest perfection. Many times the road seems rough and I stumble and even fall, but I pick myself up knowing that, if my confidence is in Truth, the next time I will do better.

PEARL FRANK, Chicago, Ill.

✧

For some time we had known that our little girl had nasal growths, but as she was a weak, nervous child we dreaded the shock of an operation for her. As a Christian Science practitioner had been treating her for stomach and bowel trouble with good results, the thought finally came to me that these growths might also yield to the same treatment. I spoke to the practitioner about it one morning, and by the next afternoon the healing was complete. Almost two years have passed, and the child has never shown any sign of this trouble.

Words are inadequate to express our gratification and relief that our little one could be healed in this simple and wholly effective manner.

MRS. ALBERT BRUCKERT, JR., White Sulphur, Springs, Mont.

✧

I came into Christian Science for physical healing. From the first treatment I began to improve, and before long was healed of a nervous breakdown and of a bowel trouble of many years' standing. After having studied Christian Science for about six months, a great shock came to me through the sudden passing on of my husband. At first it seemed as if I would succumb to the overwhelming sense of grief, but with the help of a practitioner and the understanding I had gained through the study of Christian Science, I was able to realize the allness of good and that in divine Mind there can be no separation. When this realization came to me I was healed, and since then my time has been spent in daily trying to get a better understanding of God and of man's relation to Him.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science helps me to work out the great problems of life, as well as the little every-day questions. Home duties, instead of being a daily round of cares, mean opportunities to prove how "all things work together for good to them that love God." When I compare my work as done in the light of Christian Science with the work I used to do under the rules of mortal mind, I feel that I can never be grateful enough for this truth.

We have had many experiences of healing in our family, and I have proven beyond the shadow of a doubt that when the truth is understandingly applied there is no ill that will not yield to Christian Science treatment. I am deeply grateful for the knowledge gained each day from the study of the Lesson-Sermons, also for the fresh inspiration that comes with each number of the periodicals, and I am more than grateful to the Leader who has made all this possible.

ELLA SMITH BRISBIN, Bellingham, Wash.

Prior to becoming interested in Christian Science I had been a sufferer from lung trouble and had been given up by two of the best known specialists in northern Ohio. The first one told my husband there was no possible help for me, that I could not live another winter in this climate. He advised a trip to the West, saying it might prolong my life; but we had a large family and had not the means to take it. Thinking as I did that life was in the air, I was in a pretty bad way. Another specialist was consulted, and he said he could relieve me, but there was no possible cure.

About this time a friend came to visit me, and I told her what the doctor had said. Then with much love she pointed me to the great Physician, and left me a copy of the pamphlet "Prayer and Healing." I read it with much interest, and from the first could say, although it was entirely new to me, "Lord, I believe; help thou mine unbelief." I sought the help of a practitioner, and now old things have passed away. For weeks at a time I had slept only by the use of an opiate, and then had to rest in a rocker, as the heart had become so affected by constant coughing that it was impossible for me to lie down.

On the first day of April, 1915, I was taken with an attack of acute lung trouble, and the family feared I would pass on before help could be obtained; but thanks be to God, through unfaltering faith, true devotion, and firm conviction of the allness of God, even the cry of death was stilled. Much against the will of my family, who are not Scientists, the practitioner was called instead of the family doctor, and she proved the healing power of Truth and Love in my complete recovery.—BESSIE A. BROWN, Cleveland, Ohio.

Having been relieved of many ailments, I am indeed grateful for what Christian Science has done for me. One healing in particular I would like to mention. In August, 1914, the effects of poison ivy were overcome in two days with the help of a practitioner, and at the same time the fear of a recurrence of the trouble disappeared.

Before coming into Science I never attended church, because of what seemed to me unsoundness in the teaching of Jesus, but now I am able to understand his command, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." I feel deep gratitude to our Leader, Mrs. Eddy, for showing us the way to an understanding of Truth.—GUSTAVE A. REHBEIN, New York, N. Y.

From Our Exchanges

[The Christian Work]

Some of us are getting into the gospel of John, even so far as the fourteenth chapter and the four that follow. That was a dark day in the life of the apostles, and in the history of the church, when Jesus was crucified, yet the Master met it with these wonderful words: "Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions." Does our heavenly Father rule? Is Jesus Christ the Saviour of the world? Is he the founder of a kingdom that is to fill the earth as the waters cover the sea, and has he gone to prepare a place for us? Do all things "work together for good to them that love God," and is Jesus alive from the dead and sitting at the right hand of power in heaven? Some of our younger men in the ministry and among the laity are seeing visions, and our old men are dreaming dreams.

[The Congregationalist and Christian World]

If in Matthew, which is the gospel of the kingdom of Christ, we find ourselves in the sphere of every-day experience, in the gospel of John that kingdom outruns its limits in man's present experience and strikes the keynote of the vital life of the whole universe of God. Our Lord himself becomes a universal figure, the expression of what God is toward all His creatures in all possible worlds.

If religion is to be defined, as we think it ultimately must be, as a venturing upon personal relations with the divine personality, this interpretation of Christ's life and thought in terms too large for the mere experience of earth becomes a precious part of our Christian inheritance. It brings us to an atmosphere in which our fields of thought and meditation grow. We are in unfamiliar places, where nevertheless we find ourselves at home, because the Lord of the universe is he who manifested himself within the limits of the earthly life we know.

[The Christian Intelligencer]

The ideal of church union must ever be spiritual and can never be physical. What text has been more tortured and crucified than the sublime high-priestly prayer of the Master, "That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee"? A little assiduous study of the context and of the words themselves will at once teach us that Jesus here never could have referred to the physical unity of believers, but that the reference in this sublime petition was for the spiritual oneness of all those who through the words of the apostles did believe or were to believe in him.

[Dr. Warren A. Rodman in The Christian Register]

Genuine religion is the highest type of knowledge and of feeling which the race is now, or ever will be, capable of attaining. Its natural expression is in service. It is not a theory; it is a life essence. Without it the world stagnates or retrogrades; with it the world blossoms and fruits with the noblest and most helpful of products. It is the only nutriment of the growing and expanding soul.

[The Methodist Recorder]

We are linked to the eternal purpose of the Almighty, and there is nothing commonplace in the outgoings and incomings of our lives. Every man's life is a thought of God, and none of God's thoughts are commonplace. Even as the virtue of the humblest citizen adds to the stability and splendor of the commonwealth, so the influence, the prayers, and the gifts of nameless saints build up the kingdom of God.

Digitized by Google

[Shailer Mathews in The Biblical World]

Christian principles must be put into society, but this is possible only when Christian people leaven society. In our determination to bring about reforms we too often practise a sort of altruism which deals with persons impersonally. Good legislation will be powerless without good people. A man with good purposes always finds some appeal to force crouching at his door, and unless the churches of America reconsecrate themselves to the production of a character that in all departments of life prefers the cross to the sword, and patiently trains men in the principles and attitude of Jesus, religion will not be thoroughly effective in the field of social reconstruction. If the world is to be transformed by the principles of Jesus, it is the business of the churches to prepare the human leaven which can be sent out to function as Christians in all forms of social activity.

[The Methodist Times]

The God to whom we come, the way by which we come to Him, and the life to which we attain in coming to Him, are all unchanging. Man's need is also unchanging. His need is only another word for his capacity. The satisfaction of our need means, above all, the fulfilment of our nature. Our destiny is to be sons of God. All the aspirations and strivings by which men are ennobled, witness to this divine calling. The very perversions of sin, because they are felt to be perversions, bear testimony that men are made for God, and that their heart is restless until it finds rest in Him.

[The Advance]

We need a greater God; not a greater God than hitherto has existed, but a greater God than our theories of Him have discovered. It is not only our duty, but it is our high privilege, to "follow on" that we may "know the Lord." In the midst of a changing world it is a comfort to think of His unchanging goodness, but our knowledge of Him changes and our thought of Him should grow. The God who is, is not greater than the God who was, but God as we know Him must be a greater God than we have ever recognized Him as being.

[The Christian Commonwealth]

There are different ways of approach to reality, and no one has a monopoly of right and truth. The misfortune is that so many think theirs is the only right way and that all the others are wrong. One thing we may say with confidence, —that the long drawn out controversy about Christ is one of the chief evidences of his greatness. He would not have divided men for nearly two thousand years if he had been nobody.

[The Jewish Chronicle]

According to the Scriptural account of creation, there was first a complete darkness, then a period of mist and cloud, when daylight became visible but not the sun, and finally, on the fourth day, the sun beamed forth in a clear, open sky. . . . Darkness first, and light afterward, is the law of science universally. Surely it is also the law of the spirit. The cloud under which we live in things spiritual will finally be lifted, and the splendor of eternal glory will be poured around us. Precisely what is to be the manner and measure of our knowledge in the fuller and more glorious revelation of the future that awaits we cannot say. That is one of the mysteries of our present fate. But that there will be a great clearing away of all the clouds that envelop us now, is certain.

Special Announcements

From the Publisher of Mrs. Eddy's Works

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE TEXT-BOOK, "SCIENCE AND HEALTH WITH KEY TO THE SCRIPTURES."—See back cover of this periodical for styles of bindings and prices.

CONCORDANCE TO SCIENCE AND HEALTH.—A new edition of this volume is announced, printed from new plates and bound in stiff morocco. Single copy, $5.00; six or more, each $4.50.

CONCORDANCE TO MRS. EDDY'S PUBLISHED WRITINGS OTHER THAN SCIENCE AND HEALTH.—Published only in the India Bible paper edition, with stiff morocco covers; uniform in style with the Concordance to Science and Health. Price, $6.00; six or more, each $5.50.

Announcement is made of the publication at an early date of a new edition of the German translation of the Manual of The Mother Church. The volume will be printed with alternate pages of English and German, and will be uniform in binding and price with the regular cloth-bound edition.

Orders for the books named above and other works by Mrs. Eddy should be addressed to ALLISON V. STEWART, Falmouth and St. Paul Streets, Boston, Mass.

✧

From the Editor

All manuscripts submitted for publication in the Sentinel, Journal, and Herold, whether articles, poems, or testimonies, and all correspondence relating thereto, should be addressed to the EDITOR, and not to individuals.

✧

From the Publishing Society

"Christian Science: The Revelation of Christ," a lecture by John W. Doorly, C.S.B., has been printed in pamphlet form, and is now ready for sale.

A new pamphlet entitled, " 'Awake, Thou That Sleepest,' " contains the following eight articles republished from The Christian Science Monitor: "Procrastination," "Lions in the Path," "Could Ye not Watch with Me One Hour?" "The Senses and Sleep," "Sleep," "Night," "Day," and "Narcotics."

Both of these pamphlets are on sale at prices advertised on the opposite page.

Owing to the increased cost of labor and materials the Oxford Press of England has twice found it necessary to advance the prices of Bibles to the Publishing Society during the past year. The Publishing Society now finds it necessary to make a corresponding change in its prices to the field.

The cost of manufacturing Bible Cases and Quarterly Covers has also increased, and the changes in prices for these articles are listed in the new Catalogue No. 23.

✧

From the Clerk of The Mother Church

CHURCH TENETS.—The tenets of The First Church of Christ, Scientist,—The Mother Church,—printed on folded sheet for use of the branch Churches of Christ, Scientist, with space for printing their authorized forms of application for membership or extracts from their by-laws, can be had at seventy-five cents a hundred. Orders will not be taken for less than one hundred and postage stamps should not be sent in payment.

Correspondence relative to the tenets or to membership with The Mother Church, should be sent to J. V. DITTEMORE, Clerk, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

✧

From the Church Treasurer

The annual per capita tax of members of The Mother Church is due June 1, but may be paid at any time during the year. The per capita tax of members uniting in November is reckoned from the preceding June, this being the beginning of the church year. Unless otherwise directed by the sender, the full amount of each remittance will be credited for the current year.

Please remit by postal or express money order, bank draft, or check. Currency should be sent by registered letter only.

Please advise promptly of any change in name or address.

Send per capita taxes and contributions to ADAM H. DICKEY, Treasurer, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

Digitized by Google

The Christian Science Journal

Published Monthly

Founded April, 1883, by Mary Baker Eddy, Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, and author of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures."

This monthly magazine is the official organ of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. In addition to articles, editorials, and testimonies not published elsewhere, it contains a complete list of Christian Science practitioners, and a directory of Christian Science Churches, Societies, and Reading Rooms.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $2; six months $1; three months 50 cents. SALE PRICE: Single copy 20 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 15 cents. For Canada add 25 cents for postage. SALE PRICE: Single copy 20 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 17 cents. In all other countries add 65 cents for postage for each annual subscription. SALE PRICE: Single copy 25 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 20 cents.

BOUND VOLUMES: Current and past year, cloth $3.00; half calf or half morocco $3.75. On earlier volumes write for prices.

The Christian Science Quarterly

Published January, April, July, and October

Contains the Lesson-Sermons which are read at the Sunday services throughout the year in all the Christian Science churches. These Lessons, which present citations from the Bible and "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," are valuable for daily study. Also printed in Dutch and German.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION AND SALE: In the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year 50 cents; single copy 15 cents; four copies or more to one address, each 12½ cents. For all other countries one year 60 cents; single copy 18 cents; four copies or more, each 15 cents.

Subscriptions not accepted for less than one year. Subscriptions begin with current quarter unless otherwise designated, and terminate with the last of the month named on wrapper.

The Christian Science Monitor

Published Daily, Except Sundays and Legal Holidays

An international daily newspaper. Adequate news service. The various departments of a modern newspaper. Unique Home Forum page. Entire page of editorials dealing with the vital topics of the day. Contributions to the columns of the MONITOR should be addressed: Editor, THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States (except in the Boston Postal District), Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $5; six months $2.50; three months $1.25; one month 50 cents. In all other countries additional postage at the rate of $3 yearly is required. By carrier through a local news-dealer; one month 60 cents. In the Boston Postal District, by mail, one year $7.25. Quantity rates will be furnished on application.

Der Herold der Christian Science

Published Monthly

A magazine printed in German, which publishes original and translated articles bearing upon Christian Science, also testimonials of healing.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $1; six months 50 cents; three months 25 cents. For other countries, one year $1.25; six months 63 cents; three months 32 cents.

SALE PRICE, DOMESTIC TERRITORY AND CANADA, POSTPAID: Single copy 10 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 8 cents. Foreign rate, single copy 12 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 10 cents.

Bound Volumes in cloth, $2.75 each; half calf or half morocco $3.50 each. Write for list of volumes in stock.

Pamphlets

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS RELIGIOUS PHILOSOPHY. By HON. CLARENCE A. BUSKIRK.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: "THE RESURRECTION AND THE LIFE." By CLARENCE W. CHADWICK.

CAUSATION: VIEWED IN THE LIGHT OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By FREDERICK DIXON. Also printed in Norwegian and Swedish.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING VS. MENTAL SUGGESTION. By FREDERICK DIXON. Reprinted from the Weekly Budget, London, England. Also printed in Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE TRUE CHRISTIANITY. By CLARENCE C. EATON.

"THE SONS OF GOD." By COL. WILLIAM E. FELL.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE VS. FINITE SENSE. By FRANCIS J. FLYNO, M.D.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE GOSPEL OF FREEDOM. By WILLIS F. GROSS.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE SCIENCE OF SALVATION. By HERMANN S. HERING.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING: SPIRITUAL AND SCIENTIFIC. By PROF. HERMANN S. HERING. Also printed in German.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS CONCERNING CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. Also printed in Dutch, German, and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS ADVANTAGE TO MANKIND. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. A London lecture. Also printed in French.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: MAN'S DOMINION OVER EVIL. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. Also printed in modern Greek, Italian, Norwegian, and Russian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS DIVINE AUTHORITY. By BLISS KNAPP.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE EXPLANATION OF THE IDEAL MAN. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: GOD'S LOVINGKINDNESS PROVED TO MEN. By REV. WILLIAM P. MCKENZIE. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS RESULTS. By WILLIAM R. RATHVON. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE RELIGION OF DIVINE LAW. By JACOB S. SHIELD.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM. By JUDGE CLIFFORD P. SMITH. Also printed in French and German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A RELIGION OF LOVE. By VIRGIL O. STRICKLER. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE NEW BIRTH. By BICKNELL YOUNG. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

THE LAW OF KINDNESS.
"WHAT WENT YE OUT FOR TO SEE?"
"THEN THE FULL GRAIN IN THE EAR."
UPWARD FOOTSTEPS. Also printed in Dutch.
FULFILLING THE LAW. Also printed in Danish.
PRAYER AND HEALING. Also printed in French and German.
THE DIVINE NATURE. Also printed in Dutch and Norwegian.
ENVIRONMENT AND OPPORTUNITY. Also printed in French.
THE FATHER'S BUSINESS. Also printed in German and Swedish.
SEEKING AND FINDING. Also printed in Dutch, German, and Swedish.
THE PROVIDENCE OF GOOD. Also printed in French, Spanish, and Swedish.
LAW AND WORK.
CONFIDENCE AND SUPPLY.
BIRTHRIGHT AND DOMINION.

Other Translated Pamphlets

FAITH AND GENEROSITY. Printed in French-English.
MAN'S UNITY WITH GOD. Printed in German only.
"PEACE ON EARTH." Printed in German only.
PRAYER AND CONFIDENCE. Printed in German. Also in Dutch-English.
MARY BAKER EDDY. By ARTHUR BRISBANE. Printed in German only.
MARY BAKER EDDY: HER PURPOSE AND ACCOMPLISHMENT. By FREDERICK DIXON. Printed in German. Also in French-English.
THE FOUNDER OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By B. O. FLOWER. Printed in German only.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A REASONABLE AND RATIONAL VIEW OF ALL THINGS. By FRANCIS J. FLYNO, M.D. Printed in Dutch-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: HUMANITY'S HELPER. By PROF. HERMANN S. HERING. Printed in Dutch-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE COMFORTER OF PROMISE. By FRANK H. LEONARD. Printed in French-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: DEMONSTRABLE RELIGION. By FRANK H. LEONARD. Printed in Norwegian only.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A RELIGION OF PROGRESS. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Printed in Swedish. Also in French-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS PRINCIPLE AND METHOD. By BICKNELL YOUNG. Printed in Swedish. Also in French-English.

PRICE, POSTPAID: Single copy 5 cents; twelve copies to one address 55 cents; fifty copies $2; one hundred copies $3.50. Orders for above pamphlets may be assorted as desired.

For table of English, German, Swiss, and French money equivalents, see inside front cover page.

Miscellaneous

A Catalogue of Selected Bibles will be furnished upon application, and quantity rates on other items specified below will be found in the current catalogue in The Christian Science Journal.

BIBLES. 01483 x. Clarendon Brevier, heavy-faced, distinct type; Turkey morocco, corresponding in size and binding to pocket edition of Science and Health, $4.75.

01440 x. Brevier, light-faced type; self-pronouncing, Turkey morocco, corresponding in size and binding to pocket edition of Science and Health, $4.50.

01683 x. Large type Bible, 10¾ x 8 inches, bound in Alaska seal. Specially adapted for use of second readers, $12.50.

Black morocco open case to hold pocket edition of Science and Health, Quarterly, and Bible, $1.40.

Two other sizes of open case listed in the current issue of the Journal.

Black morocco closed case with handle and purse on outside, $3.75; without purse, $3.50.

The improved index will be added to any Bible listed in our catalogue for an additional charge of 35 cents. Catalogue No. 23 of selected Bibles will be mailed free upon application.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS ON THE LIFE AND WORK OF MARY BAKER EDDY. 132 pages with index. Paper covered, 15 cents; cloth binding, 85 cents.

THE LIFE OF MARY BAKER EDDY. By Sibyl Wilbur. 424 pages. Cloth, $2. Edition de luxe, $5.

PERSONAL CONTAGION, ALSO WHAT OUR LEADER SAYS. By Mary Baker Eddy. Special pamphlet. Paper cover, 10 cents.

THE MOTHER CHURCH. By Joseph Armstrong. A history of the building of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. Illustrated, 107 pages. Cloth, $1.50.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS LEGAL STATUS. By Judge Clifford P. Smith. 128 pages, paper covered, 10 cents.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HYMNAL. Cloth, $1.15; half morocco, $1.40; full morocco, $2.50; levant, $3.50; pocket edition, size 4⅝ x 6⅝, $3

SHEET MUSIC. Poems written by Mary Baker Eddy and used by special permission, have been set to music as follows: "The Mother's Evening Prayer," 75 cents; "Christ, My Refuge," 75 cents; "Love," 40 cents; Communion Hymn—"Saw Ye My Saviour?" (Johnson), 50 cents; "Blest Christmas Morn," 27 cents; "O'er Waiting Harpstrings of the Mind," 27 cents; "Shepherd, Show Me How to Go," 27 cents; "Saw Ye My Saviour?" (Root), 27 cents. The first three hymns are arranged for high and low voice in the same copy. The last five hymns are published separately in high and low keys. When ordering state key desired.

PHOTOGRAVURE OF MRS. EDDY, printed in three sizes on India paper and mounted on heavy plate paper ready for framing. 8-inch (mount 12 x 16), $1; 12-inch (mount 15 x 20), $2; 16-inch (mount 21 x 29), $3.50.

PICTURE OF THE FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, IN BOSTON, MASS., AND THE PUBLISHING HOUSE. Artist's proof with remarque on Japanese vellum, size 18 x 24 inches, $5; on India paper without remarque, $3. Smaller reproduction, size 11 x 14 inches, on Japanese vellum, $1. Photogravure post-cards of the Church Edifice and Publishing House, 5 cents.

QUARTERLY COVERS in black morocco, $1.30; with purse, $1.50.

ALUMINUM LESSON MARKERS. Set of thirty, with paper shields, 50 cents. Extra paper shields, one hundred, 15 cents.

PRICE LIST OF BIBLE CONCORDANCES AND DICTIONARIES OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE supplied on request. Express charges collect on delivery.

REPRINTS (not printed in English). Two-page leaflets, 14 subjects in French and Swedish; 18 subjects in German. Ten copies to one address, 10 cents.

Remittances should always accompany orders, and be made by check, money order, or exchange on Boston or New York. Currency or coin should not be sent by mail unless registered. Please send no money or business letters to the Editor or Editorial Department.

Send all orders for the works of Mrs. Eddy, with remittance by New York or Boston draft or money order, direct to Allison V. Stewart
For literature listed above address orders and make remittances payable to

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

FALMOUTH AND ST. PAUL STREETS, BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

Digitized by Google

Works on Christian Science

Written by MARY BAKER EDDY, Discoverer and Founder
of Christian Science and Author of its Text-book

Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures. In one volume, 700 pages. The original, standard, and only text-book on Christian Science Mind-healing. Cloth, one to eleven copies inclusive (cloth only), each $3.00; twelve or more, each $2.75. Full leather, stiff, beveled boards, gilt edges, same paper as in cloth binding, single copy $4.00; twelve or more, each $3.75. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $5.00; twelve or more, each $4.75. Levant, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, round corners, gilt edges, silk sewed, heavy Oxford India Bible paper (wide margins, large-sized book) single copy $6.00; twelve or more, each $5.75.

LARGE TYPE EDITION. Designed especially for the use of first readers. Large type (18-point) on Oxford India Bible paper, bound in leather. Size 10¾ inches long by 8 inches wide. Single copy $7.50, with a discount of 25 cents each when included in an order for twelve or more copies of Science and Health, and in any or all of the different bindings.

GERMAN TRANSLATION. Cloth, one to five copies inclusive, each $3.50; six or more, each $3.25. Pocket edition, printed on Oxford India Bible paper. Morocco, one to five copies inclusive, each $5.50; six or more, each $5.25. Orders for the German translation in lots of six or more may include both bindings.

Orders for Science and Health in lots of twelve or more at quantity prices may include both English and German editions, and different styles of binding.

Miscellaneous Writings. A book of 471 pages, containing articles published in The Christian Science Journal from 1883 to 1896, with revisions and additions. Cloth, single copy $2.25; twelve or more, each $2.00. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $4.00; twelve or more, each $3.75. Levant, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, round corners, gilt edges, silk sewed, Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $5.00; twelve or more, each $4.75. Orders for Miscellaneous Writings in lots of twelve or more may include any or all of the different styles of binding. No discount will be allowed on orders for twelve books which include both Science and Health and Miscellaneous Writings.

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany. A book of 364 pages, containing articles published in The Christian Science Journal and Sentinel, subsequent to the compilation of Miscellaneous Writings, together with historical matter pertaining thereto. Cloth, single copy $2.25; six or more, each $2.00. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $4.00; six or more, each $3.75. Orders for six or more may include the two styles of binding.

Concordance to Science and Health. This work contains about eighty thousand references (more than ten thousand words being indexed), also an index to the Marginal Headings, and a list of the Scriptural Quotations in Science and Health. 611 pages, stiff morocco cover, single copy $5.00; six or more, each $4.50.

Concordance to Mrs. Eddy's Published Writings Other Than Science and Health. It contains 1,103 pages, and is published only in Bible paper edition, with stiff morocco cover. Single copy, $6.00; six or more, each, $5.50.

Christ and Christmas. An illustrated poem. Single copy $3.00; six or more, each $2.50.

Unity of Good and Other Writings. One volume, containing Unity of Good, Rudimental Divine Science, No and Yes, Retrospection and Introspection; uniform in style with the pocket edition of Science and Health. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, heavy Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $3.50; six or more, each $3.25.

Christian Healing and Other Writings. One volume, containing Christian Healing, The People's Idea of God, Pulpit and Press, Christian Science versus Pantheism, Messages of 1900, 1901, 1902; uniform in style with the pocket edition of Science and Health. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, heavy Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $3.50; six or more, each $3.25.

Church Manual. Containing the By-laws of The Mother Church. Cloth, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents. Pocket edition, morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $2.00; six or more, each $1.75.

GERMAN TRANSLATION. Cloth, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Retrospection and Introspection. A biographical sketch of the author; the way she was led to the discovery of Christian Science; its fundamental idea and growth. Library edition, cloth, 95 pages, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Unity of Good. This book lays the axe at the root of error, elucidating and enforcing practical Christian Science, thus affording invaluable directions for all true Scientists. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, 64 pages, single copy 60 cents; six or more, each 45 cents. Pocket edition, leather covers, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Pulpit and Press. A unique work, of importance in the history and to the readers of Christian Science; containing the message or sermon written for the dedicatory service of The Mother Church, January 6, 1895, and scintillations from the press of that occasion. Library edition, cloth, 90 pages, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Rudimental Divine Science. A brief and concise statement of Divine Science, alias Christian Science, in the form of questions and answers. Pebbled cloth covers, gilt top, 17 pages, single copy 32 cents; six or more, each 25 cents. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 35 cents.

PRINTED in the New York point system of type for the use of the blind, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

No and Yes. A brief statement of very important points in Christian Science. Pebbled cloth covers, 46 pages, single copy 32 cents; six or more, each 25 cents. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 55 cents; six or more, each 45 cents.

Messages to The Mother Church. Including in one volume, 94 pages, Christian Science versus Pantheism, and the Messages of 1900, 1901, and 1902. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy $1.50; six or more, each $1.15.

Christian Science versus Pantheism. The Pastor Emeritus' Message delivered at the Communion Season in The Mother Church in Boston, June, 1898. A clear and strong refutation of the charge that Christian Scientists are pantheists. Pebbled cloth covers, 15 pages, single copy 25 cents; six or more, each 20 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1900. Paper covers, deckled edges, 15 pages, single copy 25 cents; six or more, each 20 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1901. Paper covers, deckled edges, 35 pages, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 38 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1902. Paper covers, deckled edges, 20 pages, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 38 cents.

Christian Healing, and The People's Idea of God. Two sermons in one volume, 36 pages. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 55 cents; six or more, each 45 cents.

Christian Healing. A sermon delivered in Boston. Paper covers, 20 pages, single copy 20 cents; six or more, each 17 cents.

The People's Idea of God. A sermon delivered in Boston. Paper covers, 14 pages, single copy 20 cents; six or more, each 17 cents.

Poems. This volume of 79 pages includes all of Mrs. Eddy's hymns, also her earlier poems which appeared in various publications from forty to sixty years ago. Specially bound. Single copy $1.50; six or more, each $1.25.

Feed My Sheep. Solo. Words by Mary Baker Eddy, music by Lyman F. Brackett. Single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

The foregoing prices cover all charges for express or postage on shipments either domestic or foreign.

Quantity prices are on shipments to one address only, but quantity lots at quantity prices cannot be made up of different books or of different styles of binding. Attention is called, however, to the exception to this rule which is made in the cases of Science and Health, and of Miscellaneous Writings, as given under these titles in this price list.

Address all orders for above works, and make remittance by New York or Boston draft or money order, to

ALLISON V. STEWART, FALMOUTH AND ST. PAUL STS., BOSTON, MASS.

Digitized by Google

WISCONSIN
HISTORICAL LIBRARY

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SENTINEL

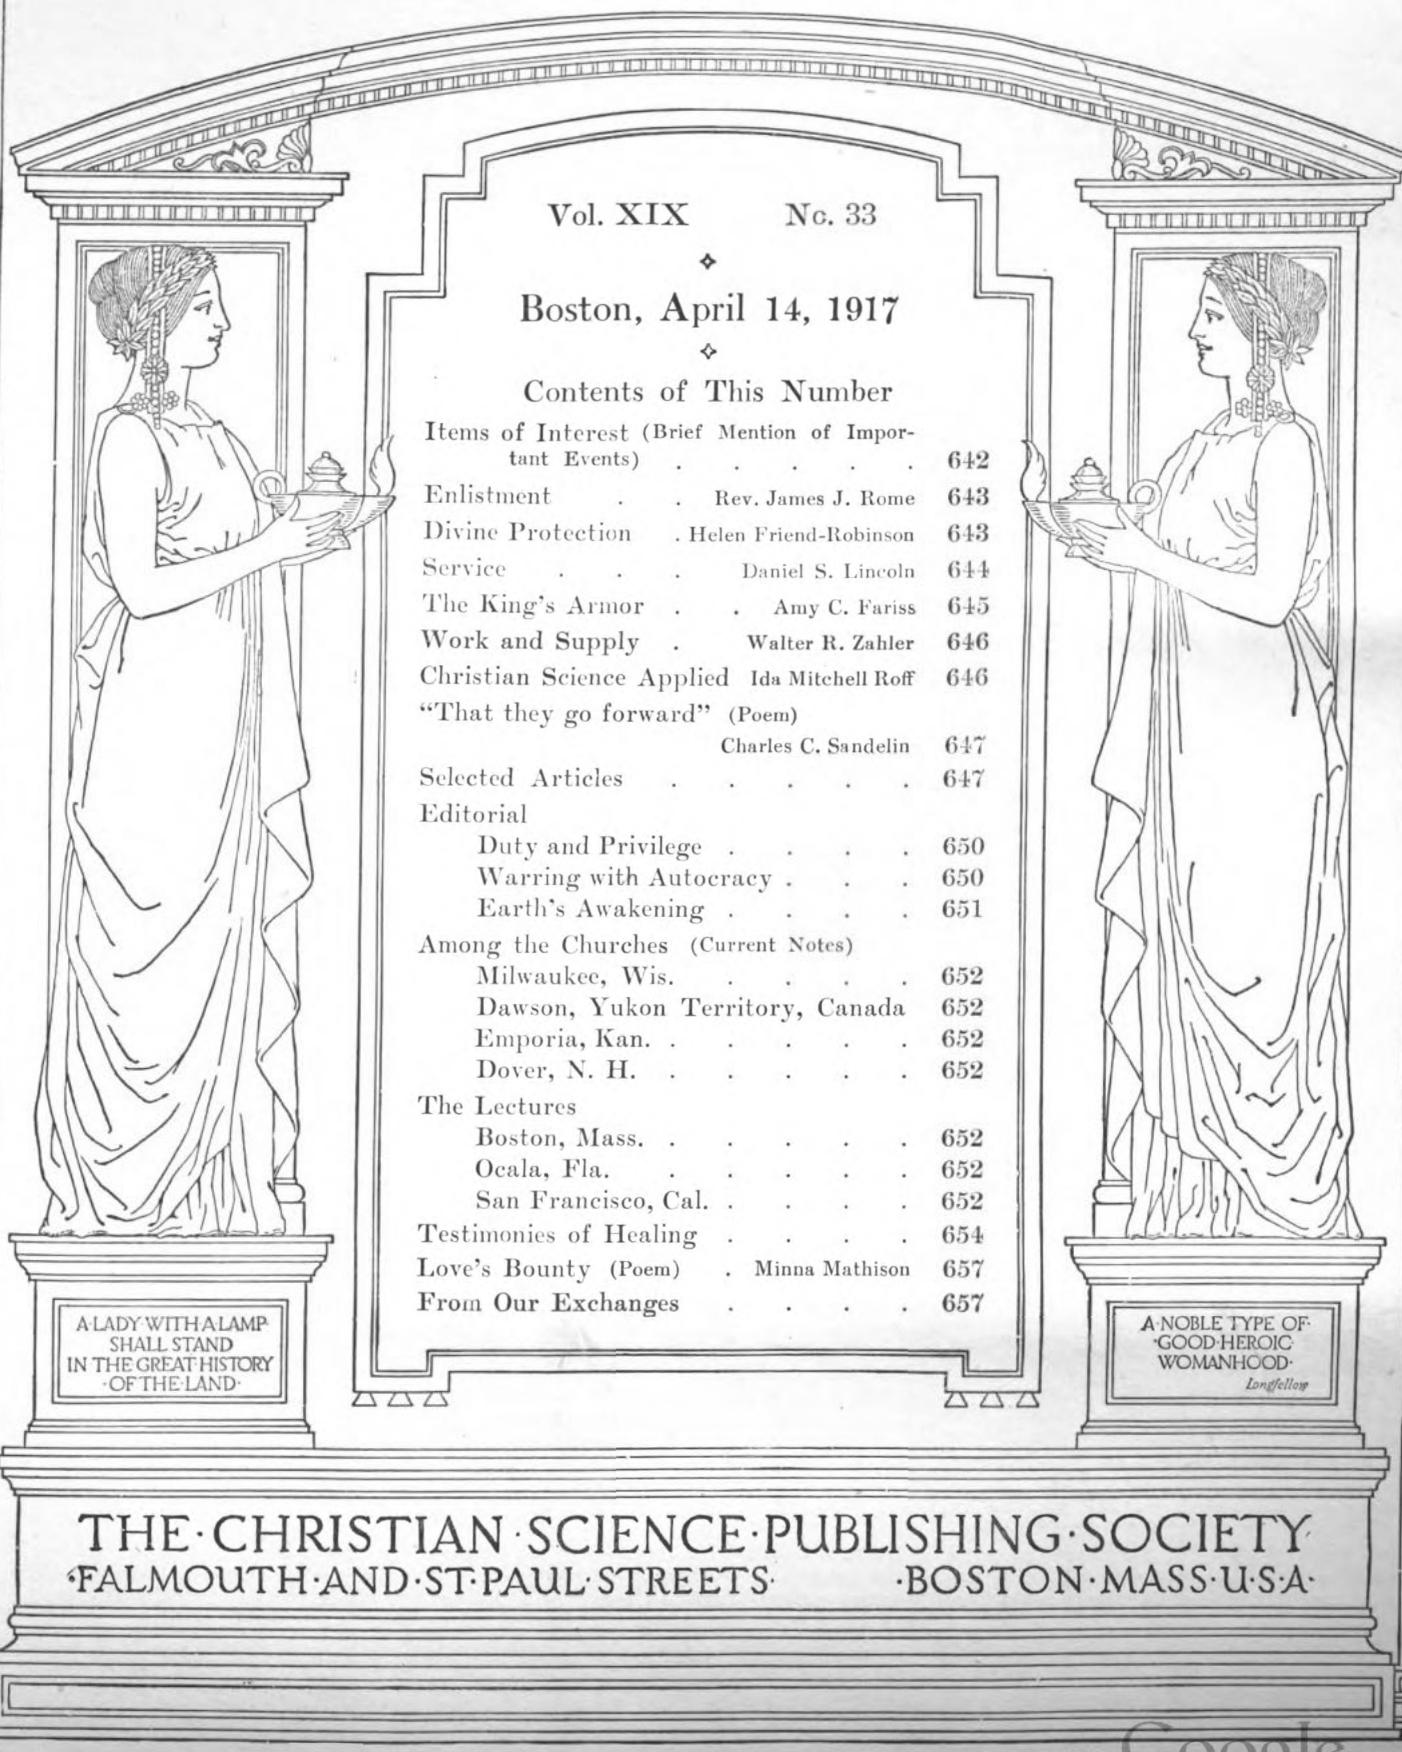
"What I say unto you I say unto all-WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX No. 33

Boston, April 14, 1917

Contents of This Number

Items of Interest (Brief Mention of Important Events)		642
Enlistment	Rev. James J. Rome	643
Divine Protection	Helen Friend-Robinson	643
Service	Daniel S. Lincoln	644
The King's Armor	Amy C. Fariss	645
Work and Supply	Walter R. Zahler	646
Christian Science Applied	Ida Mitchell Roff	646
"That they go forward" (Poem)	Charles C. Sandelin	647
Selected Articles		647
Editorial
Duty and Privilege		650
Warring with Autocracy		650
Earth's Awakening		651
Among the Churches (Current Notes)
Milwaukee, Wis.		652
Dawson, Yukon Territory, Canada		652
Emporia, Kan.		652
Dover, N. H.		652
The Lectures
Boston, Mass.		652
Ocala, Fla.		652
San Francisco, Cal.		652
Testimonies of Healing		654
Love's Bounty (Poem)	Minna Mathison	657
From Our Exchanges		657



THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY
FALMOUTH AND ST PAUL STREETS BOSTON MASS U S A

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

(THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE WEEKLY)

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY BY

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

Falmouth and St. Paul Sts., Boston, Mass., U.S.A.

ARCHIBALD McLELLAN
Editor

ANNIE M. KNOTT — WILLIAM D. McCRACKAN
Associate Editors

Subscription Price

Payable in advance

Annual subscription price, postpaid, in the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, $2.00; six months, $1.00; three months, 50 cents. For Canada add 45 cents and for all other countries 95 cents annually for postage. For subscriptions in quantities please refer to page four in THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE JOURNAL.

Subscriptions to the SENTINEL will begin with the current issue unless otherwise specified. The delivery of the periodical will indicate that a remittance has been credited and will be our acknowledgment of the subscription.

Bound Volumes: Current year or two years previous, cloth, $3.25; half calf or half morocco, $4.00. On earlier volumes write for prices.

Terms of Sale

	United States, Mexico, and Cuba	Canada	All Other Countries
Single copy	$ .05	$ .06	$ .07
Four or more copies	.03½	.04	.05

Equivalents of United States money

		£	s.	d.	Marks	Francs
$ .60	equals	0	2	6	2.52	3.12
1.15	"	0	4	9	4.85	5.98
1.25	"	0	5	2	5.30	6.50
2.33	"	0	9	7	9.83	12.09
2.38	"	0	9	10	10.05	12.35
2.63	"	0	10	9	11.10	13.65
2.65	"	0	10	10	11.20	13.78
2.70	"	0	11	1	11.40	14.04
2.95	"	0	12	2	12.50	15.34
5.00	"	1	0	7	21.15	26.00
7.50	"	1	10	10	31.73	39.00
8.00	"	1	12	11	33.85	41.60

Make all remittances payable to The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Postage required for remailing this copy: 1 cent domestic and Canada; 2 cents other countries.

Entered at Boston, Mass., post-office as second-class matter.

Items of Interest

The progress that Canada is making toward becoming the world's center for the manufacture of pulp and paper is indicated in figures recently published by the Department of Trade and Commerce of Canada. For the year ended July, 1916, the exports of paper amounted to $21,678,868, of which 88 per cent went to the United States and 5.2 per cent to the United Kingdom. This total is an increase of 31 per cent over the figures for the year previous. The first export shipment of paper from Canada was made in 1892, amounting to a total of ninety-one dollars for that year. The total exports of paper, pulp, and pulp wood for the year ended July, 1916, were $40,865,266, of which the United States received 87 per cent and the United Kingdom 6 per cent. The drain involved in this use of the Canadian forests, a source of national wealth, is likely to increase rather than diminish, and it is expected that much more stringent measures than in the past must be taken to prevent destruction by fire and to insure the restocking to valuable species of cut over and burned over areas.

The territory of East Africa comprises British East Africa, Uganda, German East Africa, and Zanzibar, having a total area of over 700,000 square miles and a population of more than 15,000,000. A few wealthy Britishers, having been first attracted to the country by the opportunity for hunting, recognized the agricultural possibilities of the highlands and acquired large holdings of rich land in the interior. It has been estimated that over 14,000,000 acres of land in this territory are at present under cultivation. By far the largest and most important part of this area consists of small native farms receiving crude and inefficient cultivation, but the European settler is becoming an important factor in the agricultural development. The products that seem to possess the greatest present-day value and the greatest promise for the future are cotton, coffee, sisal, rubber, and cattle.

The harbors and public lands committee of the Massachusetts legislature has under consideration the advisability of acquisition by the state of a tract of land which borders the state highway, and which follows the old Mohawk Trail over the Berkshire Hills between North Adams and Greenfield. In his inaugural address Governor McCall said: "A reservation similar to that of Mount Wachusett and Greylock reservations would be of great value upon certain portions of the so-called Mohawk Trail. It would afford a means of protecting the road itself and would safeguard the beauty of views." The taking would consist of a block of land thirteen miles in length, from one fourth to two miles in width, and having a total area of 6261 acres. It is estimated that the cost of this tract would be about one hundred and thirty thousand dollars. The scenic beauty of the road is said to be unsurpassed in Massachusetts.

A most important addition to the potash supply of the United States comes with the development of a new field of production at Searles Marsh, in the extreme northwest section of San Bernardino County, Cal., not far from the famous Death Valley country, where a large modern potash plant has just been completed by the Pacific Coast Borax and the Solvay Process Companies. It is estimated that the output will be about one thousand tons a month of muriate of potash, 80 per cent or more pure potash. A new process for the refinement of the raw product has been solved by the two companies, and is reported to be most successful. The new field is included in about fifteen hundred acres of patented land owned by the interested concerns.

Congress has made an appropriation providing for the preservation and repair of the remains of ancient dwelling places of American aborigines in the Navajo National Monument. The work will be carried out by the United States National Museum. The monument comprises three large ruins located in the northern part of the Navajo Reservation, about one hundred and seventy-five miles by trail north of Flagstaff, Ariz. A road extends for about one third of the way. The traveling from the end of the road is difficult on account of the scarcity of water in the desert to be crossed, the lack of opportunity to purchase supplies, and the steepness of the ascent near the monument. The trip requires five days.

Northeastern College, which has recently been incorporated, now takes in the different professional and technical schools of the Boston Y. M. C. A.,—the School of Liberal Arts, the School of Law, the School of Commerce and Finance, and the School of Engineering, all night schools, and the School of Cooperative Engineering, a day school. It has at present more than seventeen hundred students enrolled. The college will soon have branch colleges in many of the largest cities of New England. The first one will be established at Worcester, and later on branches will be started in Lowell and Springfield, Mass., Providence, R. I., and Manchester, N. H.

The United States Government has filed its brief in the Supreme Court against the Oregon & California Railroad Company in its suit to recover 2,300,000 acres of land in Oregon, valued at more than thirty million dollars. This land was granted in 1866 and 1870 to certain railroads upon condition that they would sell it to settlers at not more than two dollars and a half an acre. The Government claims that the conditions were broken by the railroads, and seeks to have the Supreme Court affirm the decision of the lower court.

A new tract of land, consisting of 457,424 acres in the Uncompahgre district in the southwestern part of Colorado, has been added to the forest reserve as chiefly valuable for forest purposes, being non-agricultural in character. The tract lies along the top of the Uncompahgre plateau, which rises from the valley of that name, and is over eight thousand feet in elevation.

An American syndicate is reported to have offered to purchase the Chaco railways from the Argentine Government for the sum expended for their construction, and to undertake to extend the system into Bolivia. The construction of these railways was undertaken by the Argentine Government to exploit the vast territories of the Chaco and Formosa sections, a large portion of which is still covered with unexplored forests. The lines consist of two penetration railways, starting from the banks of the Rio Parana and running parallel to its larger tributaries.

The United States Supreme Court has sustained injunctions issued by the lower courts ousting Utah hydro-electric power companies from Federal forest reservations. The decision upholds the regulations of the agricultural and interior departments' conservation policy and decrees requiring the Utah companies to remove their property from the public lands unless they secure Federal permits. It maintains the power of Congress to regulate all public lands and denies that its authority is limited to lands actually used for Federal purposes.

The Rhine-Main-Danube canal scheme has taken definite shape, and it is now announced that plans for the construction of a Weser-Werra-Main-Danube waterway have been definitely worked out. The total length of the canal will be about seven hundred and thirty kilometers. The details as to the separate sections are to be dealt with in consultation with the Bavarian Canal League, while the cost will be borne by the various states, communities, and industries concerned.

The production of fuel briquets in the United States in 1916 was 295,155 net tons, valued at $1,145,662, an increase of 83 per cent in quantity, and 40 per cent in value over the production of 1915. During the last two years the product of many of the plants has been so much improved that it gives off less of the heavy tarry smoke that domestic consumers have found so objectionable.

In the first case brought under the Panama Canal act requiring railroads to dispose of their steamship interests, the United States Supreme Court has just decided that the Lehigh Valley Railroad must relinquish its Great Lakes steamship transportation line, operating vessels between Buffalo and Chicago and Milwaukee.

The yearly catch of fish in the oceans, seas, lakes, and rivers of Russia is estimated at 3,500,000,000 pounds, valued at over $40,000,000; that of England is valued at over $60,000,000, and that of the United States nearly $50,000,000.

The Boy Scout movement has been introduced into China. Several patrols have been organized, and about one hundred and forty boys have been examined and accepted for the first scout degree.

It took five years to construct the railway bridge over the Amur River at Khabarovsk, Siberia, which opened to traffic on Nov. 18, 1916. The bridge is 7593 feet long, and cost $9,270,000.

From an area of 3,173,404 acres in Spain devoted to grape culture 3,958,150 metric tons of grapes were gathered in 1916, nearly all being used in making wine.

Hand embroideries to the value of $969,180 were invoiced at the American consular agency at Funchal, Madeira, for the United States during 1916.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

"What I say unto you, I say unto all, WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX April 14, 1917 No. 33

Enlistment

REV. JAMES J. ROME

RECENTLY, after reading a description of the hardships, sufferings, and dangers endured by men engaged in the present strife, the thought occurred to the writer that many of these men had taken a step which is called enlisting into the service. In so doing they had offered themselves to do willingly whatever might seem necessary for their country's welfare, even to the giving up of their human sense of life; so that in enduring these hardships they were only fulfilling their obligations. Perhaps they little dreamed what their decision meant when they took the step, but this did not change the fact that their lives were in a sense no longer their own,—they had devoted them to their country's cause; and no matter what the demand might involve, it was their duty to respond to the call with readiness and good will.

Shortly after reading the article in question, Science and Health was taken up and opened at page 450, where are the words, "The Christian Scientist has enlisted to lessen evil, disease, and death." Here, then, we are told what should be the sole purpose of each one who has received the benefits of Christian Science, who has accepted its teachings, and who is endeavoring to live by its rules; that is, the true Christian Scientist. It is not that he may escape suffering and discord merely, or gain ease and self-gratification, but that he may give his service in gaining a better understanding of God and His law, and in demonstrating Truth's power to destroy error, thus helping to establish the kingdom of heaven on earth.

Generally speaking, the first appeal to Christian Science is made to find relief from some form of physical or mental trouble, with the expectation of following along the usual lines of living; taking no special interest in the Science, but simply calling on it for what help may be needed, as perhaps the physician had formerly been appealed to in times of bodily distress. It is soon discovered, however, that such a course of procedure cannot be kept up, for Christian Science not only unveils to the consciousness new possibilities and opportunities, but also shows the necessity for individual effort to attain them, in accordance with the apostolic injunction: "Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling."

Each forward step reveals still others, and the demand for advancement seems imperative. The desire for progress impels to a recognition of the universal claims of Truth that must be met, and the question is not, Shall I be a Christian Scientist? but, How can I afford to be anything but a Christian Scientist? After some or perhaps much hesitation, the decision is reached to accept and practise, so far as understood, the teachings and rules of Christian Science as found in Mrs. Eddy's writings, in connection with the Scriptures. Then one more loyal soldier has truly enlisted in this grand warfare.

When and where shall the contest begin? It can never begin too soon, or be waged too constantly or earnestly, and lest we waste time in looking for fields of conquest, we had better begin with that which is nearest at hand, namely, self. Self-correction is perhaps the most salutary conflict in which one can be engaged. In order to carry on this warfare with self, and to perceive the necessity for it, one has only to turn to Science and Health (p. 252), and to the article "Taking Offense" on page 223 of "Miscellaneous Writings," to discover that a too keen sense of self is the great obstruction to human peace and progress. Self-correction is the first step in the correction of all error, and this is the work to which the true Christian Scientist is devoted.

Let us not fail to mark the significance of the position assumed. Enlisted—pledged upon one's honor to be loyal to the highest ideals of right, of Truth and Love; to be ready to combat earnestly anything and everything that would cause variation from the plumb line of spiritual rectitude, taking the square and compass of divine Principle by which to measure daily thoughts, words, and actions. This is to commit one's self without recourse or recall to that conflict described by Paul to the church at Corinth as "casting down imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God, and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ," and at every point and opportunity contending with those foes of mankind,—sin, disease, and death.

It is to this earnest strife that Mrs. Eddy refers on page 99 of "Miscellaneous Writings" when she says: "Men and women of the nineteenth century, are you called to voice a higher order of Science? Then obey this call. Go, if you must, to the dungeon or the scaffold, but take not back the words of Truth. How many are there ready to suffer for a righteous cause, to stand a long siege, take the front rank, face the foe, and be in the battle every day?" It is only such as these who can appropriate the gracious promise given in Revelation: "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne."

Divine Protection

HELEN FRIEND-ROBINSON

SINCE the Scriptures are so full of assurances of protection to all who put their trust in God, it seems impossible for an earnest student of the Bible to doubt for long the practical availability of God's power as a "very present help" in every time of need. The psalmist sang, "He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty." Those who are learning and striving to follow the Christ-way as taught in Christian Science, prove beyond all cavil that the Word of God is indeed a covert from the storms of earthly experiences, where they may enter and abide in safety and security forever. As mortals awaken to the fact that it is not the Father's will that any of His "little ones" should perish, but that all may be sheltered today "under his wings," then will the practical import of the Word of God be more and more understood and utilized, until it shall

Copyright, 1917, by The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Digitized by Google

have become universal in its scope of loving helpfulness to all mankind.

We learn from the Bible that "God is no respecter of persons," and also that He is a "shield and buckler" unto all that call upon Him in truth. Christian Scientists are daily proving that no situation or condition can possibly arise in which God is not omnipresent and ever willing to sustain and protect them from every conceivable phase of mortal experience. With every victory over untoward conditions they grow proportionately more grateful for the infinite wisdom which revealed this Science to one who was found ready and willing to make it comprehensible as well as available to a suffering world. The world may not be ready as yet to believe all our report, and some may even say, as did Festus to Paul, "Much learning doth make thee mad;" but as Christian Scientists we can always give the reason of the hope that is within us and answer, as did the apostle, that we "speak forth the words of truth and soberness."

Several years ago I had occasion to take a trip into the country. The sky, which had been cloudless at the start, later began to darken, and a heavy storm seemed imminent. Soon a veritable deluge broke. The lightning was fierce and the thunder terrible to mortal sense, while the rain poured down in torrents; but since it was necessary to reach my destination as soon as possible, I went on my way undismayed by the raging elements.

The storm had however come so suddenly, and it continued with such unabated fury, that it became difficult to realize God's ever-presence in the midst of such chaotic conditions; but suddenly such a sense of impending danger came over me that I turned instinctively and unreservedly to God for help and guidance in this extremity. The light of Truth pierced the gloom, and immediately the answer to this silent appeal for help came in the thought that if we live and move and have our being in God, one place is just as safe as another. As I worked mentally along this line with the understanding given in Christian Science, the "sweet sense and presence of Life and Truth" of which our Leader speaks in Science and Health (p. 304) soon flooded my consciousness, followed by the perfect assurance that safety always is wherever God is. At this moment a most terrific crash of thunder sounded close by, as if the very heavens had fallen, and later it was learned that the lightning had struck an electric wire under which I had been standing but a few seconds before. The wire fell to the ground and caused much havoc, and I felt that I had been almost miraculously protected.

At moments like this, when danger has assailed us and we have proved for ourselves that our extremity was but God's opportunity to deliver us from any and every danger, our hearts go out in humble thankfulness to God, the giver of all good, for the unnumbered blessings which have come to us through the study and daily living of Christian Science. Christ is in very deed here on earth today. In Christian Science as of yore "he is able also to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by him." Many experiences along life's pathway may come and go, but the lessons which were gleaned from this particular experience have been so numerous and far reaching that I feel they will go on forever.

On page 288 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy says: "The lightnings and thunderbolts of error may burst and flash till the cloud is cleared and the tumult dies away in the distance. Then the raindrops of divinity refresh the earth." Every day we see more and more how the sunshine of Truth can be utilized to clear away the impending dangers which beset us in the mental realm as well as in the physical, and as the tumult of our wrestlings with error are reduced to the vanishing point, then will "the raindrops of divinity" comfort and encourage us to press on with renewed activity until we have won our crown of rejoicing.

When a pebble is tossed into the ocean the circle it makes at first is small, but if we watch we shall see it ever broadening and enlarging, until it has passed out of our perspective altogether. Striving to reach the goal of an unselfed love for humanity may seem at first like tossing the pebble into a sea of uncertainty. As, however, we advance in spiritual understanding and realize that in infinite Love we have infinite protection, then will our circle of loving usefulness be perpetually enlarged, until we discern what our Master implied when he said, "Neither pray I for these alone."

The might of omnipotent Mind recognizes neither material time nor space, and with the warring elements so much in evidence on earth today, the world has need of the sincere, consecrated prayer of spiritual understanding, which will avail much toward alleviating human woes. May each and every Christian Scientist realize as never before that the door of opportunity is wide open, and that now is the time to exercise the blessed privilege of including all humanity in our circle of love, else our efforts to bless others may fall far short of their anticipated destination. Universal salvation calls for a love that is higher and broader each day, and if this divine method is patiently and persistently practised, it must eventually cause wars to cease and finally bring about the redemption of the whole human family through the activity of Christ's faithful followers.

Service

DANIEL S. LINCOLN

On page 40 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy writes, "It is sad that the phrase divine service has come so generally to mean public worship instead of daily deeds." Does not the mention of "daily deeds" remind us that our Master was ever about his Father's business, doing good? The Scriptures teach that we should serve God day and night, and in harmony with this injunction Christian Science affirms that one need not grow weary in well doing, since man is never separated from the ever active yet restful Mind.

For service to be efficient there must be a desire to know the will of God and a readiness to do that will with implicit obedience. Understanding is essential, for "if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch," and the great necessity is to get right views of God, to know Him as divine Principle, Life, Truth, and Love. In Weymouth's translation of the New Testament, I Pet. v. 5 is rendered, "All of you must gird yourselves with humility toward one another," and the footnote refers to girding "as with the apron of one who waits upon others." This recalls the washing of the disciples' feet by Jesus, an action indicating the self-immolation of him who was ever ready to render service to his fellow men, thus fulfilling the law of love.

It is encouraging to note that the same praise is given to the good and faithful servant who used his two talents as was given to the one who employed the five. In the service of God there is ample opportunity for the servant with only the one talent, for no service, if faithfully and willingly performed, is small in His sight. St. Paul exhorts us to do good to all men as we have opportunity, and one of the great blessings which Christian Science confers upon its followers is the ability to make the best use of opportunities, however diverse. A word in season, a kindly letter, an article in one of the periodicals passed along to a sufferer, a passage from our text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, or a quotation from the sacred Scriptures, have all been the means of helping to lift burdens which were "grievous to be borne."

Digitized by Google

It is how we serve that merits commendation or calls for condemnation. The psalmist tells us to "serve the Lord with gladness,"—not only gladly, but by being glad. Similarly Paul counsels the Galatians to serve one another "by love;" and we are reminded in one of our hymns that "by serving love will grow" (Hymnal, p. 135), for it is the privilege and duty of all God's children to realize more and more clearly the omnipresence of perfect Love and to reflect love by their every thought, word, and action.

The Scriptures abound with instances of men who had been loyal and trustworthy in the ordinary avocations of life, being called to higher service by God while engaged in their daily round. Moses, Gideon, Samuel, Elisha, David, Peter, James, and John are such examples. It is the universal experience of Christian Scientists that as they grow in the understanding of God as infinite Mind, divine Principle, Love, they gain in capacity, and their dormant abilities and possibilities are developed. Faithful in the little things of life, they receive the reward of the Master, "Enter thou into the joy of thy lord." The call to higher service comes when one has grown in understanding and ability by practising what he knows, and is thereby so conscious of his unity with God that he will be a worthy witness to all the world.

The noblest employment is that universal service which is rendered when the understanding is reached that man as the idea of God is governed only by his divine Principle. Then can be offered the daily prayer, "May Thy Word enrich the affections of all mankind, and govern them" (Manual, Art. VIII, Sect. 4), for the Word of God, which is Truth, has purified the desires of the petitioner and has become to him the law by which he tests all his words and works. As Emerson has said, "He serves all who dare to be true," and the highest service one can render is to know the allness of God, to separate all error from one's thought of man, seeing him only as the image and likeness of the perfect Father. Right thoughts, motives, and desires are the forerunners of those worthy deeds which form our reasonable service.

The King's Armor

AMY C. FARISS

In reading the Scripture account of David's methods of arming to meet the foe, the writer gained great encouragement from the simplicity of this kind of warfare. Fear-filled mortals in looking upon the field of battle instinctively reach out to seize upon anything and everything which they believe has protected others. Too often they are unmindful of the fact that these others have earned and tested their own armor and can with confidence rely upon it.

According to the narrative of David and Goliath, Saul was willing to lend his armor to David,—his helmet of brass, his coat of mail. These had served the king well when he had used them, but when David "assayed to go" they were to him simply so much encumbrance. "I cannot go with these; for I have not proved them," he said, and put them off. Then "he took his staff in his hand, and chose him five smooth stones out of the brook, and put them in a shepherd's bag which he had, even in a scrip; and his sling was in his hand: and he drew near to the Philistine."

In bringing the lesson down to our every day needs, might not many of us find the foe more quickly vanquished if we should put to practical use the little we know of Principle, be it nothing more than a few pebbles gathered from the shore of our spiritual experience, instead of rushing off to borrow the king's armor,—in other words, if we sought to array ourselves in the understanding which others have proved impregnable. In time we shall grow till we can use with effect these protective declarations of Truth, when we understand them and have made them our own; but for one's immediate need they may be of no more use than the king's armor was to David. In Science and Health we read: "Unimproved opportunities will rebuke us when we attempt to claim the benefits of an experience we have not made our own, try to reap the harvest we have not sown, and wish to enter unlawfully into the labors of others" (p. 238).

The writer recalls an occasion when to her sense a very giant of a Philistine stood before her, with sword and spear and shield, and challenged her to combat. Half dumb with fear, she seized upon every word of encouragement she could extract from others, sought ways to learn how they had handled just such an adversary, how this or that law of protection had laid the enemy low. Yet her especial Philistine stood his ground, ready for his final thrust. Sick with fear and doubt, repeating for hours and days the brave words of practitioner and friend, the trembling, timid heart at last unconsciously stooped down and from the brook of Love picked up the merest pebble. In the midst of all the grand sounding phrases that had been for days in her thought, this simple fact came shimmering out of the chaos: Why, unless good were supreme one could not even so much as walk in safety across the street and back!

Here was something which could be easily understood,—a simple fact, yet marvelous in its unfoldment. Where then was the boasted power of evil? If it had the authority to destroy life or cause such an agony of dread, why had it not long ago struck its threatened blow and ended matters? Would not the same guiding hand that had often led one in security along life's path, still hold and keep and preserve? Assuredly so! And thus it was that with this little shaft of truth, launched from the bow of faith, the Philistine was laid low, vanquished, and out stepped a conqueror, strong and triumphant. Beneath her feet lay error, the blade of truth thrust through the phantom foe.

All that David needed to make him victorious was to cling to the fact that he pressed forward "in the name of the Lord of hosts, the God of the armies of Israel." And this is all that a Christian Scientist needs for his victory over evil. With consciousness firmly set on the understanding that God goes with us everywhere, as we walk, as we move, as we go our daily rounds, we have in our scrip the "five smooth stones" that will defeat an army of Philistines. The Bible and the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, furnish these, and unfaltering reliance upon Truth is our staff.

As David took his staff in hand, we may keep ours close and snugly by. The shepherd's bag speaks eloquently for simplicity and humility. There was no pomp or show of force; indeed, nothing could be more lowly or unpretentious. This then we must remember,—to go forth armed with meekness and childlike trust, to put aside the slightest thought of vanity or self-glory, to be willing to use the smallest bit of knowledge that we can truly call our own, and not even to wish for or seek to wear the armor of another, be it ever so bright and shining.

David's sling was in his hand. He went forward alert, ready at a moment's notice to arm for his foe, to anticipate the enemy's move, to send out a swift defensive blow, to strike quickly and tellingly. If we would at all times circumvent our Philistines, we too must carry our sling in our hand,—our knowledge of the truth,—that at a moment's notice we may annihilate the Goliath so ready to rise in our path.

Digitized by Google

And David "drew near to the Philistine." Is not the drawing near to our supposititious enemy the very thing we hesitate to do? If we can keep from directly facing what seems to be a difficult issue, then we may still hope that through some other means than our own efforts, escape or liberation may come. In any case tomorrow has ever been a trysting time for mortal mind. To draw near to our foe—that would seem utterly unnecessary. David saw no need for delay. He had his staff, his five smooth stones, and his sling. He drew near, and in so doing proved that the giant, with all his show of might, with all his boasting, his fear-inspiring appearance, his sword and spear and shield, was impotent against tried and trusted weapons. This cannot fail to be our experience against our Philistine, no matter what form he may assume. Our imperative need is to trust to our simple understanding, to put that to the test. David did not have to face the army of the Philistines till after he had already overcome the lion and the bear.

On page 252 of "The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany," our beloved Leader assures us that "the entire purpose of true education is to make one not only know the truth but live it—to make one enjoy doing right, make one not work in the sunshine and run away in the storm, but work midst clouds of wrong, injustice, envy, hate; and wait on God, the strong deliverer, who will reward righteousness and punish iniquity. 'As thy days, so shall thy strength be.'"

✧

Work and Supply

WALTER R. ZAHLER

We have every reason to be grateful that Christian Science has given us a foundation upon which to work out all our problems, whether mental, moral, or physical. This foundation is demonstrable Truth. Very often, however, when confronted by some problem, we fail to follow the fundamental teaching of Christian Science—the allness of God—to its logical conclusion, with the result that the desired solution is either not attained or is retarded. This applies in a greater or lesser degree to almost all the difficulties which crop up in our quest for happiness; but there is one that by reason of its very nature seems to be general, namely, the realization of adequate supply in relation to our daily work.

The universality of this problem shows the great need of obtaining a more correct concept of both work and supply, and such a revision of our concepts can be brought about only on the basis of the allness of God. If we accept the premise of Christian Science, that "all is infinite Mind and its infinite manifestation," that "God is infinite, all-power, all Life, Truth, Love, over all, and All" (Science and Health, pp. 468, 17), we must also accept the conclusion that man, created in God's image and likeness, necessarily and absolutely reflects all the qualities inherent in his Maker, which, being qualities of Mind, can be manifested only in right consciousness. People may call themselves farmers, engineers, business men, typists, artists, practitioners, and so forth (and such classification is necessary from the human viewpoint), but whatever their calling, office, or profession, in the last analysis and in the sight of God they are all in reality doing the same thing, namely, reflecting Life, Truth, Love, Principle, intelligence, all the attributes of God.

He who in the light of this recognition learns to regard his work not as the means of getting a livelihood, but rather as an opportunity to reflect intelligence, the divine nature, not only will work more intelligently, more consecratedly, and with greater joy, thus raising the standard of the work he turns out, but will find assurance and comfort in the understanding that supply is as inseparable from right mental activity as are peace and health. He will realize that in the realm of divine order and justice one man does not receive a more abundant supply than another, and that he cannot be dependent for the extent of his supply on the kind of activity he expresses. He will know that whatever human sense may say or suggest, it cannot reverse the truth and order of being. He will recognize that the humble laborer is as capable of right mental activity, which alone counts with God, as the man in the highest office; that right mental activity and supply are coordinate and coequal.

Furthermore, Christian Science teaches that this right mental activity is coincident with spiritual understanding, and that spiritual understanding is substance. In mathematics we possess and have command over a truth only as we understand it. This is also true in metaphysics. We make a truth our own only as we understand it, and to understand it is to demonstrate it. On page 323 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy writes, "We must recollect that Truth is demonstrable when understood, and that good is not understood until demonstrated." In urging its adherents to acquire spiritual understanding as the "pearl of great price," and in explaining at the same time that this can be done only by living and practising the knowledge one already possesses, Christian Science is strictly Scriptural. In Proverbs the wise man says: "Happy is the man that . . . getteth understanding. For the merchandise of it is better than the merchandise of silver, and the gain thereof than fine gold. She is more precious than rubies: and all the things thou canst desire are not to be compared unto her. Length of days is in her right hand; and in her left hand riches and honor. Her ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace. She is a tree of life to them that lay hold upon her: and happy is every one that retaineth her."

The most momentous and most practical counsel the world has ever heard, a counsel with which this whole question of work and supply can be summed up, is contained in the statement of the Master, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." To seek the kingdom of God is to endeavor constantly to think in terms of Spirit, in terms of reality, and he who is faithful in his seeking will assuredly not lack that abundance of life which is the rightful heritage of all.

✧

Christian Science Applied

IDA MITCHELL ROFF

A student of Christian Science who for some years had been demonstrating its teachings, was pouring into the ears of a friend the details of a difficulty which to her seemed almost overwhelming. The friend listened for a while, and then asked, "Why do you not try Christian Science on it?"

Overhearing this rebuke, so timely, so pointed, and yet so lovingly given, I wondered if I should ever again permit myself to forget or to neglect the practical application of the teaching which I too was professing to follow. It is indeed surprising to find how easily we are led by the seeming reality of human circumstances to sit helplessly inactive or to abandon the situation to material remedies. A recent occurrence gave me an opportunity to see my own attitude on this point, and illustrated the effect of mental activity. I was riding with my brother and his family in their automobile when a tire gave out on a wheel already bent and uncertain. My brother had scarcely begun to work on repairing the damages when a friendly voice called from a passing machine, "Do you need any help?" "No," was the reply; "I can fix it."

Digitized by Google

For at least an hour we women sat at the side of the road and watched the man, already fatigued from a strenuous journey, working alone. The difficulty seemed to be too much for him, however, and he came to a stopping place. My sister-in-law remarked that she wished she could help, and I replied that women seemed very helpless on such occasions. Scarcely were the words spoken when the thought came, "Am I merely a woman, or am I a Christian Scientist?" The memory of the conversation I had heard recurred to me, and with a guilty blush at my own mental drowsiness I bowed my head, literally and figuratively, and began my work.

Dozens of machines had whirled past us, but the refusal of the first offer of help seemed to have been tacitly accepted by the rest, for no one else appeared to notice us. I knew that we were not without what we needed, and that our heavenly Father knew how to supply the need; that what was known to God was also known to man, and that we could lack no good thing. In a few minutes my thought was lifted into the realm of reality, and as soon as this was done there came its evidence in human experience, for immediately from a passing machine a man got out and came back to us.

I realized that we had not been waiting for this special man, as God could have sent us the needed assistance through any one of the hundred men who had already passed by, but we had been waiting for our own mentality to accept the help which had shown itself to be with us at the first, and which was ready to be manifested just as soon as we were ready to receive it. Then I declared that Truth and Love rest the weary and heavy laden, and that Love's messenger could not in any way seem to irritate one who was fatigued and discouraged. I was indeed glad to see the easy, unobtrusive way with which this special messenger fitted himself and his tools into the operation, and how graciously his kindness was accepted. Five minutes sufficed for the completion of the work, and my brother was immediately and entirely rested by the love expressed in the tact and efficiency of this good Samaritan.

My family are not Christian Scientists, so while I joined in the general rejoicing I said nothing regarding our good fortune being the natural human manifestation of the divine protection which I had scientifically claimed at the Father's hands. I nevertheless promised myself that I would be more alert to the admonition in the Church Manual (Art. VIII, Sect. 6) daily to guard the thought "against aggressive mental suggestion, and not be made to forget nor to neglect" the duty we owe to God,—to the infinite good that never fails when humbly acknowledged and confidently called to the rescue.

✧

[Written for the Sentinel]

"That they go forward"

CHARLES C. SANDELIN

Upon thy journey to the promised land
Of everlasting harmony and joy,
Do the pursuing mortal thoughts annoy,
And dost thou falter at the Red Sea's strand?
Be not dismayed—in faith uplift thy hand,
And, e'en as Mind did falt'ring Moses buoy,
So Truth shall guide and guard thee, but destroy
In their own element the unreal band.

Scorn what the senses say, nor backward turn
From obstacles which they alone have made;
Thou mayst through higher vision Truth discern,
And pierce the darkness of each error's shade:
Press on! Go forward! Joys of Spirit learn.
Evil is naught and Love doth all pervade!

Selected Articles

[Judge Clifford P. Smith in Boston (Mass.) American]

Christian Scientists are sorry to see that the Boston American has repeated an old error about Mrs. Eddy while reviewing a book by Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton. Although this author qualified his story about Mrs. Eddy by saying "if this is believed," and the Boston American did not omit this caution, the story itself ought not to be repeated, for it never was true and its fictitious character has been repeatedly shown. Indeed, the magazine articles from which Doctor Hamilton got the story in question have been often disbelieved by discerning readers. For example, last year D. Dr. Karl Holl, professor of church history in the University of Berlin, wrote an article on Christian Science for a German magazine and examined the magazine articles in question while preparing to write his own; but he dismissed them with the comment that "most of the statements are readily recognized as gossip and slander."

The gist of the story in question is that Mrs. Eddy did not discover Christian Science, but learned it from a magnetist or mesmerist named Doctor Quimby. This story did not originate with Doctor Quimby. It got its start from something said by his son, George A. Quimby; but even the younger Quimby would hardly recognize the story as related with the qualification "if this is believed" by Doctor Hamilton. For instance, George A. Quimby stated his position precisely in a letter dated Aug. 19, 1904, to the Rev. Mr. Savage of Billerica, Mass., as follows: "A word or two about Mrs. Eddy. No one, least of all myself, disputes her claims that she is the 'originator of Christian Science,' as far as the religious aim goes. It is all hers. The facsimile of the author on the label, and her picture blown in the bottle and stamped on the cork! But so far as she claims to have originated the treatment of disease mentally, she lies. I don't never prevaricate nor hedge, nor any of those minor subterfuges—she simply lies. If she had never met P. P. Quimby there never would have been any Christian Science. That is all I claim."

From this quotation it is to be seen that the Quimby canard rests on a mistaken supposition by George A. Quimby. He supposed that Mrs. Eddy claimed to have "originated the treatment of disease mentally," whereas in fact this was not Mrs. Eddy's claim at all. Like other well informed people of her time Mrs. Eddy knew that disease had been treated mentally long before either she or Doctor Quimby dealt with it in any manner. The discovery of Christian Science did not occur until Mrs. Eddy had looked beyond and above the so-called human mind for the power to heal.

Speaking of the theories of mental medicine and mind cure which were in existence before she wrote and published the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," Mrs. Eddy has said on page 185 thereof: "Such theories have no relationship to Christian Science, which rests on the conception of God as the only Life, substance, and intelligence, and excludes the human mind as a spiritual factor in the healing work." From the very first of her writings on Christian Science Mrs. Eddy consistently distinguished between healing by the reflected power of divine Mind and the practices which have since come to be known by the names "personal magnetism," "mesmerism," "hypnotism," and "suggestion." For instance, on page 375 of Science and Health she says, "The Christian Scientist demonstrates that divine Mind heals, while the hypnotist dispossesses the patient of his individuality in order to control him;" and again on page 482 she writes: "Christian Science is the law of Truth, which heals the sick on the basis of the one Mind or God. It can heal in no other way, since the human, mortal mind so called is not a healer, but causes the belief in disease."

Digitized by Google

Whether Mrs. Eddy would have discovered Christian Science if she had never met P. P. Quimby is an entirely different question. Possibly she would never have discovered Christian Science if she had not studied homeopathy. The practice of homeopathy proves that disease is a state of the human mind, which is a proposition as near to Christian Science as anything in Doctor Quimby's practice. Possibly Mrs. Eddy would never have discovered Christian Science if she had not received the injury from which she recovered marvelously at the time of her discovery.

Other speculations could be indulged in, but the simple and conclusive fact would necessarily remain that Christian Science differs from every other teaching and practice, save only that of Christ Jesus and his immediate followers, in its understanding of God, the divine Mind, as the only Principle of real being, and in the divinity or spirituality of its mental practice as based on this Principle.

✧

[Charles W. J. Tennant in Medical Times, London, England]

In speaking of functional nervous disorders, a critic says Christian Scientists treat them by suggestion applied in ignorance. This is not the case. The practice of Christian Science is not the practice of suggestion, but is the application of one's spiritual understanding of the truth which Jesus referred to when he said, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." To have the Mind of Christ is to think as Jesus thought, and to think as Jesus thought will enable one to do the works that he did. He did not heal the lepers, the blind, the lame, dumb, and deaf, nor raise the dead by any means of suggestion. His method is described by Mrs. Eddy on page 476 of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" as follows: "Jesus beheld in Science the perfect man, who appeared to him where sinning mortal man appears to mortals. In this perfect man the Saviour saw God's own likeness, and this correct view of man healed the sick." It is just in proportion as Christian Scientists have the Mind of Christ that they are enabled to emulate the works of our Master.

✧

[W. Stuart Booth in Las Animas (Col.) Leader]

The good people of Las Animas have lately been misinformed about Christian Science through channels narrowed by religious bigotry and material concepts and poisoned by sectarian bias. A large proportion of those who are now Christian Scientists were at one time as greatly opposed to what they imagined Christian Science to be as are these misguided misinformants; but when the understanding of the truth about Christian Science was gained, prejudice gave place to praise and denunciation was silenced by demonstration.

The starting point of Christian Science is given by Mrs. Eddy on page 497 of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," this being the first of the religious tenets of Christian Science: "As adherents of Truth, we take the inspired Word of the Bible as our sufficient guide to eternal Life." Those who understand Christian Science bear witness to the fact that its teachings are in strict accord with Scripture, and no one can claim that its practice is aught else, for through the application of Christian Science the sick are healed, the sorrowing are comforted, sinners are reformed, and unbelievers are reclaimed. These are the works which were wrought by Jesus, and which he promised would attest true discipleship. He too was maligned and stoned by church dignitaries, because he put deeds above creeds and displaced all materiality by his proofs of the omnipotence of Spirit. It is appropriate at this time to repeat his words addressed to his traducers, "For which of those works do ye stone me?"

If the things charged against Christian Science and its Discoverer and Founder were true, there would be no need of voicing them now, for Christian Science would never have spread as it has and found acceptance and approval by great numbers of the highly intelligent people of all civilized countries.

✧

[William D. Kilpatrick in The Record, Alma, Mich.]

It may be observed that the remarks of our critic have a familiar ring,—very familiar indeed. In fact, as a whole, the gentleman's attack is a complete replica of similar attacks which have been made on Christian Science and its Founder, Mrs. Eddy, throughout the last half century, the while Christian Science has proceeded steadily on its way, diffusing its messages of love and healing thousands upon thousands of people throughout the world.

No religious movement has ever been the object of misrepresentation and vilification to the extent that Christian Science has, and no other religious movement has ever experienced the marvelous growth that has attended Christian Science. Reference is made to this latter fact merely as an indication of the "awe" in which Christian Scientists stand of these periodical attacks. The misrepresentation of our critic might temporarily deceive those who have never looked into Christian Science or who have never experienced its beneficial ministrations, but to those who have felt its loving and healing touch, and who have taken the time honestly to investigate its teachings, such an example of religious intolerance amounts to little.

The critic has taken much time in an endeavor to minimize the healing of disease through the application of Christian Science. Aside from the question as to whether or not Christian Science heals, a study of the Bible, especially of the New Testament, will reveal unmistakably the duty of every one of us in this particular. It is very clear that Jesus healed the sick metaphysically, and it is just as clear that these examples of healing given to the world by Jesus were for the guidance of all mankind, and that it is not only the privilege but the duty of us all so to acquaint ourselves with God and God's laws as to be able to follow the Master in the way of his directing and to "heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils." Therefore it is observed that, regardless of whether or not Christian Science is healing the sick, our reverend critic has sadly missed the lesson of Jesus' life-work if he is not endeavoring to heal the sick and the sinful as Jesus directed we should do.

Thousands upon thousands of intelligent men and women are daily relying upon God as their sole physician through the teaching of Christian Science, and the diseases which have been thus healed comprise almost everything known to human experience. A large majority of these diseases have been healed after all other known methods have failed and the patient has been given up to die as incurable. As to whether Christian Science is Christian or "Christlike," depends solely upon its strict adherence to the teachings and example of the Master; and Christian Scientists maintain not only that at every point its teachings are in accord with those of Jesus of Nazareth, but that it proves them to be in accord with his teachings by healing the sick and the sinful in the manner Jesus healed them.

There has probably been no agency since the time of Jesus which has so potently operated against sin and sinful conditions and thoughts as has Christian Science, for it teaches that sin is not of God, and that only through this understanding can it ever be overcome and permanently subdued. If we are to attribute sin to God, then all our efforts at conquering it are a waste of time, for all that God created is as permanent as God Himself. The same may be said of sickness. If God creates sickness, then, as Mrs. Eddy says (Science and Health, p. 229), "we cannot if we would, and should not if we could, annul the decrees of wisdom," either with or without drugs or material remedies.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science teaches, as Jesus taught, that "God is a Spirit." It also teaches, as we read in Genesis, that man is created in the image and likeness of God. Therefore the only logical conclusion which could be drawn is that man is spiritual. Christian Science does not ignore matter or material conditions, but it teaches exactly what matter is. The Bible throughout, when correctly interpreted, teaches the allness of Spirit, as does Christian Science; and it is only through the recognition of the reality of the spiritual universe, including man, and a correct and scientific understanding of what matter is, that the examples of Jesus become practical and the truth which he taught becomes available.

✧

[Nelson D. Frisby in Akron (Ohio) Press]

Regarding the editorial in the Press, concerning the proposed disbarring of Christian Scientists in New York from exercising their rights to heal through prayer, it would be interesting to know just what grounds the medical fraternity of New York have for their proposed action. From this distance it would appear the doctors are chiefly concerned about the large inroads upon their practice which are being made by this new yet old system of healing through the "prayer of faith." We can sympathize with the physicians upon that score, but we are inclined to believe it would be more to their credit if they allowed Christian Science to rise or fall on its merits. All the world loves a good loser, but the resort to such methods as having legislation enacted which creates a monopoly for any particular class of practitioners, cannot fail to array against the doctors the full weight of conscientious public opinion.

Despite efforts to prejudice the public mind against the idea of healing taught by Jesus, we firmly believe this system is outstripping the ordinary curative methods because it is a more excellent way. And as our reasoning is based upon the Bible, our conclusions, while not coordinate with human opinions, honor God, who is preeminently entitled to the utmost homage.

We have no quarrel with the doctors, recognizing that they are simply so many instrumentalities in the great question of demand and supply. We even venture to assert that there is not a single individual who is opposed to Christian Science as it really is. We grant that multitudes are bitterly prejudiced against what they believe it to be; and that is not surprising, for outside of its own denomination Christian Science is little known, less supported, and so the least understood of all the religious movements of the day.

✧

[B. F. Chandler in Bristol (Va.-Tenn.) Herald Courier]

From the time when as a boy of twelve years Jesus astounded the wise men in the temple with his understanding, to the close of his earthly career, he utterly ignored the "evidence of the senses." Would such evidence have enabled Jesus to walk on the water, raise the dead, immediately transport himself from place to place, feed the five thousand, and instantaneously heal "all manner of sickness and all manner of disease"? The Master performed those mighty acts by his complete understanding of the spiritual facts of creation and the utter nothingness of all material evidence. His declaration, "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also," was not intended to extend a privilege, but to require proof that his followers understood his teachings, and were Christians, followers of the Christ.

Christian Scientists are today presenting the proof, with "signs following," of their right to be named Christian, and are undisturbed and undeterred by the criticisms of those who do not understand. Was not even the Master himself accused of casting out devils by Beelzebub? And lest any be deceived he said, "Wherefore by their fruits ye shall know them." One must indeed be blinded by prejudice to write in this day of "the absence of the evidence of the power of Christianity as an active healing agency." Christian Science has spread the proof of that power all over the world, healing all manner of diseases—functional, organic, and so-called incurable. Hundreds of thousands of people in every walk of life are hourly thanking God for the healing and regeneration brought to them by Christian Science, and the only "world" which Christian Science "threatens . . . to ruin" is the one of which the apostle James wrote, "The friendship of the world is enmity with God."

When one feels a desire to denounce what he believes to be the religious faith of another, he might well pause and ponder this Scriptural admonition as found in Acts: "And now I say unto you, Refrain from these men, and let them alone: for if this counsel or this work be of men, it will come to naught: but if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it; lest haply ye be found even to fight against God."

✧

[Robert S. Ross in Auburn (N. Y.) Citizen]

The local pastor who is delivering a series of sermons on healing by mental means is entitled to encouragement for his progressive stand. His references to Christian Science, however, call for a few corrections. Evidently he does not understand that the Christianity taught by Jesus of Nazareth and the Christianity taught in the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, are identical. This is a fact that can be demonstrated by any sincere student, however; and it must be understood before one can arrive at a correct conclusion regarding Christian Science. Believing that Christian Science has a bad side is like believing that Christianity has its bad side; but it is as impossible for good to have an evil side as for light to have a dark side. If one could suffer from relying too implicitly on Christian Science, one could suffer also from relying too implicitly on God, Truth, for Christianity is the Science of God.

The pastor would have his hearers believe that God is omnipotent on some occasions but helpless on others; that it is safe to rely on Him when an ailment is not serious, but dangerous to rely on Him when an ailment is serious. Such reasoning leads to the conclusion that a doctor's prescription or a surgeon's knife is sometimes more to be trusted than God. Christian Science declares that unless God, divine Love, is omnipotent and omnipresent all the time, He is not omnipotent and omnipresent any of the time. If God is omnipotent and omnipresent, it makes no difference whether the illness be in a child or an adult, chronic or acute, it must disappear before the realization that evil can have no place, since all space is filled with goodness.

A student may believe in mathematics, but in order to demonstrate the mathematical rule he must understand it. Likewise, a student may believe in God, but in order to demonstrate the divine law he must understand it. Science and Health gives this understanding, and explains why its students are more willing to rely upon Christian Science under all circumstances than upon material methods.

Digitized by Google

Editorial

[From an editorial in The Christian Science Monitor]

IT need not be said that if the whole world were carrying out the teaching of the Sermon on the Mount, there would be no fighting. But inasmuch as the world is still largely governed by the sword, it is necessary to decide whether it may not be nearer Principle to use the sword in defense of what is relatively nearest Principle, rather than to see evil triumphant through an academic objection to use the sword, unsupported by a spiritual ability to overcome evil.

Duty and Privilege

CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS stand for present and permanent peace. Indeed no one at all conversant with prevailing conditions in the war swept countries of the eastern hemisphere could but shrink from any step which would involve a peaceful and peace seeking nation in strife, against its deepest and most earnest convictions; but on the other hand, they largely realize that, much as they abhor war, there are other and far worse things than war which could happen to humanity in its present state of material belief, not the least of which might well be the loss of that civil and religious liberty which has borne its greatest fruitage within the democracy of the United States, and for the establishment and preservation of which so much has been sacrificed. They believe that the situation which confronts a peace loving people today is not unlike that of nearly a century and a half ago. To quote the words of a patriot of that day: "We have done everything that could be done to avoid the storm which is now coming on. We have petitioned; we have remonstrated . . . Our petitions have been slighted; our remonstrances have produced additional violence and insult . . . In vain, after these things, may we indulge the fond hope of peace and reconciliation . . . An appeal to arms and to the God of Hosts is all that is left us!"

Not for a moment would we be understood as advocating war. War is horrible under any circumstances, but when the question of right or wrong is in the balance, and all peaceful means have failed, there is a vast difference between the declaration of a state of war which arms this country for its own defense against aggression and for the preservation of the rights and liberty of humanity, and war declared by an aggressor for offensive and selfish purposes. In the titanic struggle now going on, Christian Scientists the world over have followed their Leader in basing their hopes and efforts for peace in unwavering reliance upon "the God of Hosts" so eloquently invoked by the patriot statesman of colonial days. Nor are they to be condemned if, when the call of duty came, they remembered that Leader's counsel, "If our nation's rights or honor were seized, every citizen would be a soldier and woman would be armed with power girt for the hour" (Miscellany, p. 277), and felt themselves privileged to obey the call.

That this was no ill-considered declaration on the part of Mrs. Eddy is evidenced by her further statement, given to the field ten years later. After stating that for many years she had "prayed daily that there be no more war, . . . that all the peoples on earth and the islands of the sea have one God, one Mind; love God supremely, and love their neighbor as themselves," she added with that illuminative and wise foresight which so characterized her utterances, "It is unquestionable, however, that at this hour the armament of navies is necessary, for the purpose of preventing war and preserving peace among nations" (Miscellany, p. 286). Not for aggressive warfare, be it noted, shall navies be maintained, but for the preventing of hostilities and the preserving of peace,—a line of action with which the attitude of our nation in the present crisis is in entire consonance, because it has for its purpose the establishing of permanent peace and the preserving of democracy and human rights.

There are men who abhor engaging in war, and rightly too, because everything within them rebels at the thought of shedding the blood of a brother man; but there are other and less repugnant yet equally important ways of serving one's country. A public official recently said: "I believe that war should be the last resort, but that sometimes it is better than the alternative—national extinction or lowering of national respect, for example. The ultimate goal of the world is perpetual peace and disarmament; but we may not reach it for a long time, and meantime we sometimes have to face the possibility of war—as now." To this he added, "Modern warfare is about one part army, one part navy, two parts economics, one or two parts moral forces, and one part finance."

Every man and woman can bear a part in one or another of these fields of endeavor. Already women have proven themselves humanitarians in the best sense of that word, and are demonstrating their willingness and ability as factors in the field of economics. Whatever each one may have to offer in other lines, when it comes to the "one or two parts moral forces" we as Christian Scientists are all on common ground. Even as in another dark hour of the nation's history we may look to divine power for aid, remembering our Leader's words when, in her Message to The Mother Church in 1898 (p. 14) she writes: "Pray for the prosperity of our country, and for her victory under arms; that justice, mercy, and peace continue to characterize her government, and that they shall rule all nations. Pray that the divine presence may still guide and bless our chief magistrate, those associated with his executive trust, and our national judiciary; give to our congress wisdom, and uphold our nation with the right arm of His righteousness." Who can say but that a bloodless victory for Truth may be the answer to "the effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man"?

ARCHIBALD MCLELLAN.

Warring with Autocracy

THE United States of America has declared war against autocracy. This term autocracy is compounded of the significant little Greek word autos, meaning self, and the word kratos, meaning strength. Therefore metaphysically considered the declaration under consideration may be said to mean war against the supposed strength of self, against the pretense of power derived from self, both in national and international relations, both within and without. The chief enemy of mankind is the belief in a material self apart from God, leading to self-aggrandizement, self-sufficiency, self-importance, and self-satisfaction in individuals and nations. Moreover, just as this declaration of war is directed against the supposed strength of material selfhood, so it proclaims inferentially the rule of Spirit, God, Principle, and His divine self-completeness, self-containment, self-existence, and self-government. When Mrs. Eddy proclaimed in Science and Health (p. 468), "There is no life, truth, intelligence, nor substance in matter," she declared war against autocracy.

The Christian Scientist who is awake to the signs of the times can recognize in the momentous statement of the President of the United States that a metaphysical stand has been taken against world wide selfishness, or autocracy, temporarily and more particularly exhibited by a certain type of secular government, but by no means confined to that type. The fight against all forms of selfishness waged by Christian Science from the very moment of its discovery has thus found in the United States government a new champion to "help the woman," and all loyal followers of Mrs. Eddy can rejoice in this fact, no matter of what nationality they may be. Their God is Love, who knows no hate, who shelters and protects all who have learned to abide under the shadow of the Almighty. Whoever holds the living Christ, Truth, in consciousness, also holds the banner of freedom high above the battle of human conflict.

Digitized by Google

In its last analysis the war of the United States of America, whose national emblem is the eagle which typifies keen-sighted spiritual inspiration, is seen to be directed against the occult "rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places." The struggle, therefore, is seen to be against impersonal evil using person as a mask, against intentional ruthlessness using nations as cloaks for the perpetration of its crimes.

It becomes more and more evident, even to the casual observer, that this world war has been waged mentally by the so-called forces of autocracy, which has sent forth mental suggestions prior to its acts and prepared plots and plans years in advance. Democracy was caught napping, that is, in an apathetic, neutral, defenseless state of mind, and its experience in awakening was bitter and humiliating. That time, however, has passed, for the battle is now recognized to be the Lord's. Years ago the Leader of Christian Scientists wrote: "The march of mind and of honest investigation will bring the hour when the people will chain, with fetters of some sort, the growing occultism of this period. The present apathy as to the tendency of certain active yet unseen mental agencies will finally be shocked into another extreme mortal mood,—into human indignation; for one extreme follows another" (Science and Health, p. 570).

In no respect is the abyss which separates democracy from autocracy more strongly marked than in its conduct toward woman. It is the pitiless male domination which the President of the United States has challenged to mortal combat, and in this conflict the Stars and Stripes symbolizes more than mere patriotism. It combines inspiration with demonstration, the spiritual illumination of right ideas with the actual handling of error, after the manner of Jesus when he drove the money changers out of the temple and converted what had become a den of thieves once more into that house of prayer which it was originally intended to be. Thus the Stars and Stripes, leading to the dethronement of secular autocracy in this war, has enlisted also to carry out the ecclesiastical purging which must inevitably follow in due order.

William D. McCrackan.

Earth's Awakening

All thoughtful people are agreed that at this time of the year we have many hints of the dawn of a new day, when all that has seemed to vanish in the dark winter of mortal experience springs up again at the call of the Mind which rules the universe. Too many have unfortunately followed the lines of Job's mournful experience, when the upspringing of tree and flower only told him that while they reappeared, a man once laid in the grave would never again be seen by those who knew and loved him. Job did not stop, however, with this sorrowful belief, which for him at the time was a conviction, for he pressed on, ever seeking to get closer to God, and at length he was able to say, "I know that my redeemer liveth." This he said with the realization, the firm conviction, that it mattered nothing what the material evidence might be,—his immortality as God's idea was assured.

Our revered Leader gently lifts thought above the mortal sense of things when she says in her "Voices of Spring": "Human hope and faith should join in nature's grand harmony, and, if on minor key, make music in the heart. And man, more friendly, should call his race as gently to the springtide of Christ's dear love." To this she adds: "Man's possibilities are infinite, bliss is eternal, and the consciousness thereof is here and now" (Miscellaneous Writings, p. 330). Here it may be asked why this should not be the message of the springtide to each one of us, as the giver of life says through nature, "Behold, I make all things new"?

It has long been the custom for many Christian people to dwell sadly at this season of the year upon the sufferings and crucifixion of Christ Jesus, and there can be no doubt that thereby many lessons have been learned which, if they went deep enough, would lead beyond the sepulcher to the resurrection, and thence to the ascension. Christian Science teaches us ever to keep close to the path marked out by divine Love and wisdom and trod by the Master; and speaking to the Colossians, Paul says: "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above . . . For ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God."

In the greater number of cases the beginner in Christian Science would readily assent that the apostle's words here quoted describe very accurately his own condition when the truth first dawned upon him. In the experience of very many hope was dead, and with it all sense of joy; yet when it is learned in Christian Science that the real Life is eternal, that it knows no death, the whole outlook is changed. Although this true sense of life is unknown to mortal mind, yet it is none the less "hid with Christ in God," and only awaits the discovery of the Christ, who, Paul says, "is our life." This is a very wonderful statement from the standpoint of Christian Science, for it lifts thought above a merely historical sense of Christ, and reveals the divine idea that was before Abraham, and is "the same yesterday, and today, and forever."

The trouble with most of us is that we are not really willing to be dead to materiality, but are tempted to cling to this unreal sense of life and all things, although Paul said of his own experience, "I die daily." With this in view we may well ask ourselves whether we are dying to that which has no life,—if the paradox may be excused,—and thereby laying hold upon the life which is life indeed, the Life which is Spirit, God, Truth, and Love, which is veritably the only life of man. A good many people, past and present, have attempted to die to materiality by painful processes against which their whole nature rebelled; but Christian Science reveals the truer way, and it is the understanding that materiality has no life which we may possess at one time and give up at another. That it seems to offer us life is the great delusion of mortal experience; but when this spell is broken we know what it means to "be risen with Christ" and to "seek those things which are above,"—not haltingly or unwillingly, but with joy and gladness, knowing that we have not only found the source of life, but the true and only source of all joy. The dream of life in matter is at most like the sleep of the butterfly in its winter shroud, but with tree and flower it hears the call of spring and anon finds its wings. Our awakening is a call to rise out of all materiality into spiritual freedom, our affections set upon "those things which are above."

Annie M. Knott.

Digitized by Google

Among the Churches

Current Notes

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—Services were held Sunday [March 4] for the dedication of Second Church of Christ, Scientist, Highland Boulevard and Twenty-seventh Street. This church is the outgrowth or overflow of First Church of Christ, Scientist. It was organized in November, 1909, with two hundred charter members, and services were held in Plankinton Hall for the first four and a half years. A building fund for the erection of a church home was established, and the beautiful lot now occupied by the church edifice was purchased in January, 1912, at a cost of fifteen thousand seven hundred dollars. Ground was broken and building operations were commenced in July, 1913. The corner-stone was laid in November with modest ceremonies, and the edifice was completed and the first services were held June 7, 1914. The seating capacity is fourteen hundred, and the total cost of the completed edifice, including lot, was one hundred and thirty-five thousand dollars.—Milwaukee Leader.

DAWSON, YUKON TERRITORY, CANADA.—The property at the northwest corner of Seventh Avenue and Queen Street, formerly known as the Hershberg warehouse and grounds, consisting of a warm storage house 40 by 80 feet, with five lots of ground, has been purchased by the Christian Scientists. Extensive repairs have been made to make the building comfortable for occupancy at once. Only half of it will be finished now, and this will be used for church services, Sunday school, and reading-room. The Dawson Christian Science Society was organized about four years ago, and in that time has grown to the need of a church.—Dawson News.

EMPORIA, KAN.—Dedicatory services of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Ninth Avenue and Commercial Street, were held yesterday [Jan. 7]. The building, which was started in the autumn of 1911, was finished the following spring at a total cost of $12,304, and the first service was held June 9.

The Emporia Gazette.

DOVER, N. H.—The members of First Church of Christ, Scientist, are rejoicing over the freeing of their church from the debt which has rested upon it since the summer of 1913, when the residential property lying between Central Avenue and Mount Vernon Street was purchased. The mortgage, amounting to thirty-five hundred dollars, was discharged Saturday, Feb. 10.—Foster's Democrat.

Admission to Membership in The Mother Church

The next admission of candidates will be June 1, 1917. Application blanks may be obtained by addressing the Clerk of The Mother Church, and should be returned to him on or before Wednesday, May 9, 1917.

An application sent to the Clerk does not constitute the applicant a member. Notice of election will be sent to those who are admitted to membership.

Those who have made application for membership prior to Nov. 8, 1916, and have not received notice of election, may communicate with the Clerk if they so desire, and are especially requested to do so before sending in a second application.

JOHN V. DITTEMORE, Clerk,
236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

The Lectures

BOSTON, MASS. (The Mother Church).—Virgil O. Strickler, lecturer; introduced by William D. McCrackan, who said in part:—

You are invited this evening into the spacious shelter of The Mother Church, to share with us the illumination shed upon the world by Truth. This light never goes out. It obeys God's command, "Let there be light; and there was light," and sends forth its beneficent rays to guide the stumbling, to cheer the sorrowful, to heal, and to save. This church in its majestic hospitality is like a structure with sides open to the four quarters of the globe. Its foundation is the rock of ages, its roof the protecting power of divine Love, but its four sides are like those of the new Jerusalem, "whose builder and maker is God." In the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, we read: "The four sides of our city are the Word, Christ, Christianity, and divine Science; 'and the gates of it shall not be shut at all by day: for there shall be no night there.' This city is wholly spiritual, as its four sides indicate" (p. 575).

You are welcomed this evening to share with us the supreme happiness which Christian Science imparts to its followers, to experience that inner joy which manifests itself in the smile of youth and beauty, to gain the spiritual satisfaction which comes from the Christian and scientific understanding of God, man, and the universe.

The Christian Science Monitor.

OCALA, FLA. (Society).—George Shaw Cook, lecturer; introduced by Bunyan J. Hunter, who said in part:—

An author has said in substance that not one person in a thousand is intellectually awake, not one in ten thousand is morally awake, and not one in a million is spiritually awake. The spiritual sages in all ages, keeping vigil upon the mount of holy, uplifted thought, have meditated on God in the night watches with no companionship save the stars. Jesus had no human sympathy in the crucial hour in Gethsemane; for the disciples were "heavy with sleep." Mrs. Eddy, the Discoverer of Christian Science, rehearsed the message in her own heart for many years before the world was ready to receive it. The sensuous dream is now being broken, and Christian Science is helping to answer the cry, "Oh that I knew where I might find him [God]!"

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL. (Seventh Church).—Bicknell Young, lecturer; introduced by Peter V. Ross, who said in part:—

Very often the question is asked, Why do people manifest such a vital interest in Christian Science? The answer was once very simply and directly given at a testimony meeting, when a speaker said that Christian Science enabled her to appropriate the Bible promises. And what are the promises contained in the Scriptures? Nothing less than this: that health, harmony, and happiness are the rightful possession of every one who walks uprightly.

We have been too much inclined, however, to hold these good things in distant expectation, and Christian Science is awakening us to see that they are susceptible of present realization and enjoyment. In the past we have thought that we must bear pain and affliction with patience and fortitude, looking to a future world for comfort and compensation. Christian Science has revealed the presence of a law, an ever operative Principle, which can be invoked to overthrow the supposed law of human suffering and thereby establish the kingdom of heaven on earth.

Digitized by Google

ELYRIA, OHIO (First Church).—Charles I. Ohrenstein, lecturer; introduced by Mrs. Mattie Fey Barber, who said in part:—

Christian Science is the same great truth about God and man that was taught and demonstrated by Christ Jesus nineteen centuries ago, and its living ministrations are again manifested in the same way as of old,—in the healing of disease and sin. It is again found proclaiming "liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound" by false human beliefs. It brings a message of comfort to the broken-hearted and the sorrowing, giving them "beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness." It brings a message of peace to a war rent world, repeating again the song of the heavenly host, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

FAYETTEVILLE, ARK. (First Church).—Bliss Knapp, lecturer; introduced by Attorney John W. Grabiel, who said in part:—

I am not a member of that body known as Christian Scientists, and am acquainted with their doctrines only in a general sense; but I do know that they constitute a large part of the good citizenship of this country, that they are identified with and actively engaged in the various works and enterprises that have for their objects the betterment of the conditions of human life and the emphasizing of those things worth while to men. I know that they inculcate an abiding faith, an exalting hope, and a world wide charity.

If we are to employ the criterion of judgment given to us by the lowly Nazarene when he said, "By their fruits ye shall know them,"—a standard that has its basis as firmly fixed in science and philosophy as in the religion of his followers,—we shall give to them and their doctrines a most charitable consideration.

LOS ANGELES, CAL. (Third Church).—Paul Stark Seeley, lecturer; introduced by Henry M. Newmark, who said in part:—

Down the centuries mankind has ever been yearning for deliverance from the fetters of sin, sickness, and sorrow. Yet Christ Jesus plainly said, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free;" and as a result of this knowing he healed all manner of disease and every form of sin. Mrs. Eddy revealed the same truth to this day and age through her discovery of Christian Science, the law of God, and many thousands bear grateful testimony to the benefits received. Christian Science is proving abundantly that true science is Christian, and true Christianity is scientific.

✧

Lectures to be Delivered

[By Members of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.]

CALIFORNIA—Fresno: William W. Porter, Fresno Auditorium, 3 p.m., April 22.
Martinez: Paul Stark Seeley, Novelty Theater, 3 p.m., April 22.
Palo Alto: Paul Stark Seeley, Church Edifice, Bryant Street and Forest Avenue, 8 p.m., April 23.
Sacramento (Second Church): William W. Porter, Tuesday Club House, 2722 L Street, 8 p.m., April 17, and Goddard's J Street Theater, 12:10 p.m., April 18.
San Jose: William W. Porter, Victory Theater, 8 p.m., April 24.
Sawtelle: Paul Stark Seeley, Crown Theater, 8 p.m., April 27.
Selma (auspices Fresno): William W. Porter, Vanderburgh Hall, 8 p.m., April 20.
CANADA—Hamilton, Ontario: John Randall Dunn, I. O. O. F. Hall, 8:15 p.m., April 27.
London, Ontario: John Randall Dunn, Masonic Temple, 8:15 p.m., April 26.
IDAHO—Twin Falls: Virgil O. Strickler, Idaho Theater, 3:30 p.m., April 22.
ILLINOIS—Chicago (Fifth Church): George Shaw Cook, Church Edifice, 4840 Dorchester Avenue, 8 p.m., April 26 and 27.
Chicago (Eighth Church): Clarence W. Chadwick, Church Edifice, Michigan Boulevard and Forty-fourth Street, 3:30 p.m., April 22, and 8 p.m., April 23.
Washington (auspices First and Second Churches, Peoria): John Randall Dunn, Danforth Hall, 8 p.m., April 20.
INDIANA—Attica: Clarence C. Eaton, Messner Theater, 3 p.m., April 22.
Frankfort: George Shaw Cook, Blinn Theater, 3 p.m., April 22.
IOWA—Albia: William R. Rathvon, King Opera House, 3:30 p.m., April 22.
Des Moines: Dr. Francis J. Fluno, Coliseum, 8:15 p.m., April 27.
Marshalltown: Dr. Francis J. Fluno, Church Edifice, Main and Fifth Streets, 8:15 p.m., April 26.
Mt. Vernon: Bicknell Young, City Hall, 8 p.m., April 24.
KANSAS—Arkansas City: Bliss Knapp, Church Edifice, A Street and Chestnut Avenue, 8 p.m., April 24.
Wichita: Bliss Knapp, Church Edifice, 828 North Lawrence Avenue, 8:15 p.m., April 26.
KENTUCKY—Richmond: Clarence W. Chadwick, Court House, 8 p.m., April 24.
MASSACHUSETTS—Concord: Ezra W. Palmer, Church Edifice, Monument Square, 3:15 p.m., April 22.
MINNESOTA—Duluth: William R. Rathvon, Lyceum Theater, 12:15 p.m., April 19.
MISSOURI—Lebanon: Bicknell Young, Opera House, 3:30 p.m., April 22.
Marshall: Virgil O. Strickler, Key's Auditorium, 8 p.m., April 16.
Rich Hill: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Church Edifice, Third and Walnut Streets, 8 p.m., April 27.
St. Louis (joint lecture): Bicknell Young, Odeon, Grand and Finney Avenues, 3 p.m., April 15.
MONTANA—Anaconda: Virgil O. Strickler, Margaret Theater, 8 p.m., April 24.
Butte: Virgil O. Strickler, City Auditorium, 8 p.m., April 23.
Kalispell: Virgil O. Strickler, McIntosh Opera House, 8:15 p.m., April 26.
Libby: Virgil O. Strickler, 8 p.m., April 27.
NEBRASKA—Nebraska City: Dr. Francis J. Fluno, Church Edifice, Twelfth Street and First Avenue, 8 p.m., April 24.
NEW YORK—New York (First Church): Clarence W. Chadwick, Church Edifice, Central Park West and Ninety-sixth Street, 8 p.m., April 27.
OHIO—Cleveland (First Church): John Randall Dunn, Church Edifice, Cedar Avenue and East Forty-sixth Street, 8 p.m., April 21; 3 p.m., April 22, and 8 p.m., April 23.
Dayton (Second Church): Frank Bell, Memorial Hall, 8 p.m., April 26.
Lancaster: John Randall Dunn, Church Edifice, North Broad Street, 8 p.m., April 24.
OKLAHOMA—Chickasha: Ezra W. Palmer, Old Kozy Theater, 8 p.m., April 26.
Perry: Bliss Knapp, Court House, 8:15 p.m., April 23.
TEXAS—Dallas: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Dallas Opera House, 8 p.m., April 20.
El Paso: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Texas Grand Theater, 8 p.m., April 26.
San Antonio: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Beethoven Hall, 3:30 p.m., April 22.
WASHINGTON—Elma: Paul Stark Seeley, Eagles Theater, Third and Anderson Streets, 8 p.m., April 16.
Pasco: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Liberty Theater, 2:30 p.m., April 22.
Walla Walla: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Keylor Grand Theater, 8:15 p.m., April 21.
WISCONSIN—Jefferson: Bicknell Young, Opera House, 8:15 p.m., April 27.

✧

Notice

John W. Doorly is not now available for lectures in the United States and Canada.

Digitized by Google

Testimonies of Healing

I wish to express my gratitude for the healing power of Christian Science. From early childhood I had trouble with my left ear. About twenty-eight years ago I underwent an operation by a well known specialist in Switzerland, and was told that the chances of curing the disease were very small. The ear became more and more painful, and after many years of almost continuous suffering a prominent specialist in London told me I would never get relief without another operation. When asked whether I would be able to hear again, he said that I ought to be very glad if they could even stop the disease, as it had eaten so much into the bones. He added that there are people who can hear without these bones, but the medical profession cannot explain it.

The second operation was performed, but without doing much good, and I was actually under hospital treatment when Christian Science was brought to me. From this time I ceased going to the hospital, as the ear seemed to get better. Fear, however, crept in as to what could be done if the healing did not prove permanent. The condition then seemed worse than before, and I was full of fear; but the next morning I was much calmer and began to work as we are taught to do in Christian Science. I soon realized that Life is constructive, creative, and after working on these lines for a few days, something else took up my attention and the ear was forgotten. A fortnight later when I wanted to clean it, according to prescription, there was no discharge. The ear was quite healed, and it has kept well to this day.

The hearing did not return until almost a year and a half later, when at the close of a Wednesday evening meeting I had a chat with a lady who, on being told that I did not seem able to make the demonstration over my hearing, explained that hearing is spiritual; that it comes from God, and has nothing to do with a material ear. Although I could not grasp this truth there and then, I had hardly left her ten minutes when it came to me quite clearly that hearing is absolutely divorced from any physical condition; that it is intact, complete, indestructible, and cannot be touched by a surgeon's knife. Three days later, for the first time in my life, I could hear the ticking of a watch with my left ear.

When in September, 1914, one of my sons went to a new school, he was medically examined, and a few days later the headmaster wrote me that the boy's heart was very weak and his tonsils were much enlarged. He said the boy was to take no violent exercise, and I was to have him medically attended to. After reading the letter I declared the truth, knowing that in Science man is governed by divine Mind, and that the boy as God's idea could not help reflecting perfect, harmonious conditions.

When a few months later the day for the school sports drew near, my son did not feel inclined to take part in them. Finally he entered two races, and although he came in last, I felt very grateful that he did not have to fall out. A few weeks after this he had to swim for his school in a competition with nineteen other London schools. At the end of the performance he was awarded two medals, one for being first among his team, and the other for gaining the junior championship. He told me afterward that he was not a bit tired and could easily have kept on some time longer had he been called upon to do so. He was reexamined by the school physicians just a year after the first examination, and the doctors were greatly puzzled, as they could not find anything wrong with him. The boy is now doing a great deal of swimming and cycling.

I am more grateful than words can tell, not only for this healing, but for the mental and moral healing that Christian Science has brought to my home. Before I knew anything about this teaching, life seemed to be nothing but a round of worries and disappointments; but now there is peace, happiness, and contentment, and I feel as if I had nothing more to do but to "rejoice."—A. Marie Peter, London, England.

A few years ago I was healed of an acute attack of quinsy in one Christian Science treatment. I was very ill and had been under the care of a prominent physician for two weeks. He was unable to do anything for me, as the abscess was so deeply seated he could not locate it. One tonsil was much swollen, and I had not been able to eat anything for two weeks. Christian Science was recommended and a practitioner called. Treatment was given at seven o'clock in the evening, and relief came quickly, as the abscess broke and discharged that night. I arose in the morning and ate with the family, and that afternoon walked ten blocks. I was absolutely healed, and am indeed grateful for Christian Science.—T. V. White, Minneapolis, Minn.

I gladly verify the testimony of my brother. I was with him during his illness, so know that his suffering was intense and that the case was considered serious. His healing in Christian Science was beautiful, being almost instantaneous.

For eighteen years I suffered from what was pronounced a serious form of ovarian trouble. Several eminent physicians treated me, but I derived no benefit either from their treatment or from the two operations to which I submitted. I was in constant pain, and it was impossible for me to remain on my feet for any length of time. Over three years ago I turned to Christian Science as a last resort, and within a short time was able to be out and around. Now I do all my housework, and know what it is to be free from pain and to enjoy good health. I have also been healed of chronic bowel disorder and a severe case of stomach trouble. I rely entirely on Christian Science, which never fails to meet my needs. My health is better than at any time during the past twenty years.

I am gaining in the understanding of the truth from day to day, and have not words to express my gratitude for what Science has done for me and mine.—Mrs. Harry G. Decker.

I want to testify to the efficacy of Christian Science healing for the most serious cases as well as for the lighter ones. About a year ago my daughter was taken to an emergency hospital in what seemed a dying condition, from inhaling by mistake one of the strongest drugs known. When found in this condition her entire body was almost black. The physicians worked over her for some time, but failed to revive her, even though artificial respiration was tried for about thirty minutes; then they said she was dead.

Christian Science treatment was however begun for my daughter, with the result that in about two hours she was able to sit up and talk to me. The physicians said there always was a very serious after effect when such a large amount of the drug had been inhaled, such as deafness, blindness, or partial paralysis of some parts of the body, and they insisted that she be taken to a hospital and have careful attention, to avoid these conditions if possible. During their treatment they put a large needle through the tongue, and they said the wound would certainly be infected, as there was so much poison in her system. This happened during the night, but the following morning she walked unaided from her ward through a long corridor to the door.

Digitized by Google

Upon arriving home she tripped as lightly up the steps as if nothing unusual had happened, and four days later she returned to her work in a perfectly normal condition. This healing was accomplished by absent treatments. There have been none of the after effects which the physicians predicted, and my daughter is perfectly well and normal in every way.

What a blessing it is to mankind to know there is a divine Principle on which we can depend during these dark hours, and what an endless debt of gratitude we owe Mrs. Eddy for teaching us that the truth is demonstrable! For this demonstration, and for all the help I have had through the application of Christian Science, I am truly grateful.

MARTHA S. MYERS, San Francisco, Cal.

✧

About six years ago my attention was called to the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy. I secured a copy and read it; but finding nothing in it which appealed to me at that time, I laid it aside. Several weeks later, during a lonesome evening something told me to read the book again. I did so, and became interested, and have been studying the Bible and Christian Science literature ever since.

Through this study many erroneous conditions have been overcome. I have not used tobacco in any form since attending a Christian Science lecture in 1912, after having both chewed and smoked for over fifty years, neither have I tasted intoxicating drink since then; but what is still better, I have no desire for either. Above all other blessings is the spiritual uplift that I have received through the study of our literature.

To say that I am thankful for this teaching is to express my feeling very inadequately. I shall endeavor to live so that my life will be a testimony for Christian Science.

F. E. ZERBE, Toledo, Ohio.

✧

It is over twelve years since Christian Science was first presented to me. At that time I was a hopeless sufferer from what the doctors called an incurable stomach disorder. For many years I had tried to find relief through various material remedies, but each in turn seemed to leave me in a more hopeless state, and my constant prayer was that I might die and thus end my suffering. For two years I had lived on milk and dry bran, and the physician said I would never be able to eat as other people do.

Finally, in despair and only as a last resort, I consented to try Christian Science. The healing was wonderful to me, and in three months I had gained greatly in weight; but what was better still, I had become a happy woman and had found a God in whom I could trust. There have been many demonstrations of healing in my home since then, for which my gratitude is boundless; but for the peace that has come into my life, where discord once held sway, I am more than grateful. I have found that physical healing is not to be compared with the spiritual uplift which the understanding of Christian Science brings, and every day I earnestly strive to learn more of this blessed truth.

BELLE H. EDWARDS, Los Angeles, Cal.

✧

For nine years I have found Christian Science a wonderful preventive as well as curative agency. Before turning to it I had undergone two abdominal operations, which left me with backaches and headaches that were both frequent and distressing. I had suffered ten years from chronic bowel trouble, which medicine failed to cure and other forms of treatment relieved only for a time. I went to a Christian Science practitioner with no thought of receiving physical healing, but to learn something of this teaching. Thinking I needed an excuse for visiting her, however, I told her of the bowel condition, so after a few moments' conversation she started to give me a treatment; but I asked her instead to tell me about Christian Science.

For one week I went daily to this practitioner, who wisely said little, but tried faithfully to answer my many questions. During this time I realized that the bowel condition was healed, the headaches and backaches had vanished, and I was well. My whole concept of God, man, and the universe had also changed. I had been brought up in the Jewish faith and had tried to conform to its teachings. The ritualism which I had thought was a part of my very being, dropped from me completely, and for the first time I knew the meaning of the passage, "Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord." Needless to say, the physical ills have never returned.

I am humbly grateful for the many blessings that Christian Science has brought into my life. Among them I might mention the overcoming in a degree of fear, worry, resentment, and self-love. My daily prayer is that I may express more humility and gratitude to the giver of all good, our Father-Mother God, and to His servant, Mrs. Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science and the author of its text-book.—SAIDEE W. PECKERMAN, New York, N. Y.

✧

[Translated from the German]

Neither pen nor paper can possibly convey my sense of gratitude for Christian Science, since all I am I owe to it, and all the joy of living which had departed from me has returned through this blessed religion. I can give only faint expression to the happiness which has come into my life.

In January, 1912, under the stress of hard work and great grief I broke down completely, and for months hovered between life and death. It seemed impossible that I should live, and yet I could not die. The physician under whose care I had put myself said that he could not continue treating me alone, in view of the fact that weeks had gone by without any result worth mentioning. Thereupon we called a specialist from Milwaukee, who after examining me said that I had gall-stones and later would have to be operated on. I was only slightly benefited by the medicines which I had taken since the beginning of my illness, and my stomach caused me almost constant distress, so that I could eat hardly anything.

One day—it was in April, I think—a member of my family brought me a little book dealing with Christian Science. I had barely read a page when I felt that this was what I had been seeking,—a religion which would unite itself with healing, as was the case in Jesus' time, and a church which would welcome every one. I was not over fourteen years old when the thought of such a church first came to me, and now the deepest longing of my heart has been fulfilled.

As my condition kept growing worse and I could retain no medicine, I sought help from a Christian Science practitioner. She told me to read the twenty-second and the ninety-first psalms, and this I did faithfully. I then fell asleep, and when I awoke the pain had gone, thanks be to God, and since then I have been a well woman. Through this truth I have found rest and peace, and the heavenly joy which I had been seeking and for which I had longed more than thirty-eight years. When as a young girl I had to walk through the woods of Wisconsin on lonely paths to go to church and to school, the desire awoke in me to be able some day to do something for my fellow beings, and this wish has been fulfilled.

Digitized by Google

At first several members of my family were antagonistic to Christian Science, but most of them have now joined me in the new way. Since January, 1914, we have had Christian Science services every Sunday in our home, in order to make the country people better acquainted with this truth. I am also starting a Sunday school, that the children—the future workers in the truth—may know Christian Science and be reared in it. I give thanks to God, and am grateful to Mrs. Eddy as well as to all who have helped me gain a better understanding of the truth.

CHRISTINE LOOS-BAST, South Germantown, Wis.

✧

I am glad to express my gratitude for the healing that has come to me through Christian Science. Ten years ago my family, friends, and several doctors said there was no possible chance of my recovery, as I had tuberculosis. For four years I had tried every material remedy heard of, but to no avail.

When Christian Science was brought to my attention by a friend, I told her that I could not get well, and felt it was God's will for me to go; but my friend said that God did not send death, and that I could get well. I therefore asked her to have a practitioner come to see me, and she did so. I had not spoken above a whisper for five weeks, and could not eat solid food; my throat was in a serious condition, much of the tissue being destroyed, and the disease had come through on my nose. Besides all this, my cough was dreadful. I improved from the first treatment, being able to talk the next day, and was soon strong enough to help look after my household duties. In five months I began to do all my work, and am still doing it, with less fatigue than ever before. From childhood I had suffered from headaches and backaches, but since coming into Science have been free from these ailments.

When the practitioner told me Christian Science was the religion taught by Jesus while on earth, I was ready to accept it, for I could not understand why the sick should not be healed today the same as when he was here. Although I had been a church member for twenty-five years, it was no trouble for me to give up my church, for I knew Christian Science was the truth. Neither my children nor I have had a dose of medicine since coming into Science, but we have had many beautiful demonstrations of the power of Truth.

I feel deeply thankful to God for the spiritual understanding I have gained, and grateful to Mrs. Eddy for bringing again to light the truth that will free mankind from sickness and sin, if they will only accept it.

SALLIE LYKES, Temple, Texas.

✧

It is over twelve years since I first heard of Christian Science. Thinking it a kind of faith cure, I paid little attention to it until a friend came to see me who was looking so well and happy that I inquired what had happened, and was told she had become a Christian Scientist. There was no chance to question her, but her appearance made a great impression on me, and I determined to try Christian Science if I ever met a practitioner.

Soon afterward we moved to Boston, and had lived in that city about a year when my landlady fell and hurt her shoulder so badly that she was unable to raise her arm. After trying material remedies, baths, and electrical treatment without getting any relief, she asked for Christian Science treatment, and received so much help she was a changed woman in every respect. I therefore asked the practitioner to treat me, as I was suffering from backache and scarcely ever knew what it was to be without pain. I was helped immediately, and have been healed not only of that trouble but since then of many others.

When taken with a severe case of influenza, I decided to try to work out my own problem and not be so dependent on others. The third day I was looking so badly my family wanted to send for a physician, but I refused to have one. That night I awoke with a very high temperature and the pain was intense. All I could say was that God is good and God is absolute, but after a while I was able to repeat the twenty-third psalm with its spiritual interpretation as given on page 578 of Science and Health. All at once I felt refreshed, and a sense of peace came over me. My mouth became moist and all pain left. The next morning I got up, not entirely well but knowing I soon would be. Ear trouble, which had annoyed me for several weeks, had disappeared, and it has not returned.

I am earnestly reading Science and Health, with a desire to gain a better understanding of divine Love and to learn how to express more gratitude for the blessings bestowed upon me. The way seems dark at times, but I do not get discouraged, for I know the light is there, and that if I am faithful and do my part, divine Love will surely meet every need.—JOSEPHINE GARSIA, Valley Cottage, N. Y.

✧

Although a member of an orthodox church, I was starving for spiritual food, and even when it was close at hand, did not know how to find it. One morning, eight years ago, I awoke praying for the light, and in less than three months it came to me in the healing of my husband through Christian Science, when apparently at death's door.

Previous to this I had suffered for some years with a growth which was eventually removed, but a displacement was left that caused great suffering at times, medical treatment giving me practically no relief. During a particularly bad attack, when I had been in bed for several days, I received instantaneous healing after one Christian Science treatment. Though fear that the trouble might return came up afterward a few times, it was easily overcome by my own understanding of the truth. I have also been healed of chronic bowel disorder of many years' standing, and of other ailments.

These experiences are truly the loaves and fishes, but they are not to be compared with the breaking of bread in the dawn of the new life, the realization of man's oneness with his Maker. In Christian Science I have found that peace which passeth understanding. The Bible when studied in the light of this new-old Science is wonderfully illumined, and no other book is so dear to me or so much read.

I wish here to express my gratitude to our Leader for her devotion to the cause, also to those dear friends who so lovingly and patiently helped me through my first feeble struggles to learn the truth.—ELDA SMITH, Mesa, Ariz.

✧

With a heart full of gratitude to our beloved Leader, Mrs. Eddy, I wish to tell of some of the many blessings which have come to me since I began to study Christian Science. For over two years I suffered from stomach trouble, which at times was so severe as to render me semiconscious. Rheumatism had been a source of suffering from early childhood, and I was confined to a hospital for three months with one attack. Then there were times when I had such hazy vision that everything appeared dark to me. In addition to all this, business conditions were such that I thought God had forsaken me.

Digitized by Google

One day I spoke to an entire stranger about my troubles and was advised to try Christian Science. Being a Jew, I thought at first that as this teaching is based on the words and works of Jesus, it would not be in agreement with my religion; but I have found out since that Jesus by his love was the fulfilling of the law of Moses and the prophets, for he said, "Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfil." Through the understanding of God which I have gained in Christian Science, I have been perfectly healed.

I have now learned what Paul meant when he said, "Love is the fulfilling of the law." Words seem inadequate to express my gratitude for the spiritual enlightenment of the Scriptures as interpreted in Christian Science.

WALTER L. BERLA, Newark, N. J.

✧

I wish to express my gratitude for what Christian Science has done for me. I had been sick for about ten years, during which time medicine was taken faithfully. When at last I realized that the doctor could do no more for me, I turned to Christian Science, and was healed of a nervous condition, stomach disorder, and bladder trouble. An attack of rheumatism which affected my whole body was entirely overcome with a week's treatment, and other ailments too numerous to mention have gone to their native nothingness. My daughter was healed of scarlet fever in three days through Christian Science treatment, and this demonstration in particular proved to me the allness of God. I am not only grateful for the physical benefits received, but even more so for the spiritual uplift which I have gained.

As a family of four we have relied entirely on the Principle and rule of Christian Science for the last five years, and when honestly applied it has met our every need.

KATE FALK, Chicago, Ill.

I can testify to the truth of my wife's statement, and have myself received a great many blessings from Christian Science. The tobacco habit of twenty-eight years' standing was overcome in one treatment, and I have also been freed from the drink habit. For these proofs of the power of Truth, and many more, I am indeed grateful.—AUGUST R. FALK.

✧ ✧ ✧

[Written for the Sentinel]

Love's Bounty

MINNA MATHISON

LOVE maketh all things new,—
Oh, let my heart rejoice;
Let me give thanks in word and song
With glad, uplifted voice.

Love's feast is ever spread;
The lowly may partake.
Lo, we have sought and we have found
The fount our thirst to slake.

Love's way is ever fair,
If we but lift our eyes;
Love giveth bounty by the way
And tender ministries.

There is no shade of gloom
In Love's eternal day,—
This let me know, and Truth shall walk
Beside me all the way.

From Our Exchanges

[The Christian Work]

If in answer to our prayer some self-bestowal of the Highest be vouchsafed us, what would be the signs of the divine coming? Would there not be at once an enhancing of ethical fervor, so that our morality, far from contenting itself in a due compliance with customary codes of conduct, would set itself new and more arduous tasks? That only is a vital morality which considers every temporal problem as in the light of the eternal righteousness.

[Zion's Herald]

When in all humility the professed followers of Jesus Christ rid themselves of their prejudices, their pet views, their awkward alliances, and, in short, their Galilean accent, and talk in the sweet, clear tones of the rabbi who went about doing good, thinking only his thoughts and never running beyond his commands, the world will begin to take notice of the new-found truth, and will yield its allegiance forthwith to a pure and unadulterated Christianity. The kingdom will be advanced when it is the gospel that has its say.

[Rev. J. A. Hutton, D.D., in The Christian World]

Give to no mere human prospect, however dear, the power to lift you to the heavens or the power to cast you into the dust. Give no hope or prospect any intimate place among your motives, if, when it is strongly in your mind, at the same moment Christ and the faith of your people must be far away. Test all your lights, all your joys, all your dreams by this: whether they blend harmoniously with the beautiful light of a holy life. In all your loves, love Christ; for then, if in God's providence some human light in which you trusted should fail, you will not be in darkness; if some prospect to which your heart had gone out should one day be shut off from you forever, you will not be utterly cast down. You may be cast into perplexity, but not into despair. You may for a time doubt man, but you will not doubt God. Make sure of that last retreat.

[The Christian Register]

The multiplication of books on theology and religion is in reality one of the most notable and significant witnesses to the higher element in man. Religion is our most vital and insistent concern. Other interests will let us rest; this will not. It presses for expression; it makes vocal often the most mute and halting. Whatever men may keep silent about, their thoughts about religion will out; and though the individual thoughts of individual men may not always be of supreme worth in themselves, yet is their utterance a service and a contribution, for it keeps the current of religious expression flowing fresh and free, prevents unwholesome stagnation, and makes for progress in the world's nobler thought.

[The Christian Commonwealth]

We have maintained that the essence of Christianity is an attempt to bring about the kingdom of God upon earth by a life of love and service toward God and our neighbor. And we are convinced that this can be done, if Christians are prepared to trust the holy spirit of reason and conscience which God has given them, to free themselves from the obsessions and associations of a world which is fast fading away, and to throw themselves whole-heartedly into the new work, the interpretation and inspiration of the new mind, the building up of the new order of things, the creation of the church of the future.

Digitized by Google

[The Continent]

There is not one of the commonplaces of current social and political organization today—religious freedom, democratic parity of rights among all classes, equal justice in fair courts, common school education, sanctity of lives, morals, and homes—which was not once a visionary conception, considered by most people absurd and by all save the idealists impossible. And all of these things have come to be realities just because a very few men gifted with insight and foresight above their neighbors insisted that abuses and injustices of hoary antiquity could not be impregnable in a world which God had invested with the capacity to grow better.

In every epoch of human story it has been the cry that human nature is a fixed quantity and the way it is now acting is the way it always must act—that it is folly to expect of it anything nobler. And in each succeeding stage of history that false cry has been stultified by human nature forsaking its old evils and taking its stand on higher levels of fairness, justice, and sympathy.

[The Universalist Leader]

"When we are able to see things as God sees them, we see them as they are." That is the way some one puts the solution of many of our mysteries. We look through imperfect eyes, from a wrong standpoint, and with a biased judgment, and things seem pretty generally wrong. But we are not seeing things as they are; we are not seeing things as God sees them; we are not looking from His point of view. There is a great big trouble in our little capacity. We are not big enough; we do not stand high enough to comprehend. We take a partial, a one-sided, distorted view, and generate discontent and unhappiness. We creep through the valleys, through the underbrush; we forget that we are the children of God and belong way up there with Him, where we can see things from His point of view, and say with Him, Behold, it is good.

[American Lutheran Survey]

The open-minded man is tolerant toward the opinion of others on what he regards as open questions. That does not dispose or commit him to a policy of concession and compromise, but is only consistent with his own recognition of the fact that certain questions before him are open questions; and as long as such is the case he knows that his own opinions, which he does not regard as final, may be wrong, and that the opinions held by another, contrary to his own, may be correct.

[The Congregationalist and Christian World]

The thought and purpose of the nation in this time of need should take large room in our prayers. The time of testing is upon us. There may be strains and troubles just ahead of which we have little dreamed. Are the life and character of our people of a temper to endure the strain and to be purified by the suffering?

[The Christian Intelligencer]

The times demand unceasing prayer on the part of all God's people in order that there may be many souls attuned to discern the signs of the times and the whisperings of God's Spirit. Current events have their spiritual significance, and it is wiser to harken to what the Spirit says unto the churches than to indulge personal notions of a partizan nature.

[Pacific Christian Advocate]

The church is not perfect, because it is made up of human beings; but it is our opinion that the church was never more true, more efficient, more deeply interested in the welfare of the masses than today.

Special Announcements

From the Publisher of Mrs. Eddy's Works

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE TEXT-BOOK, "SCIENCE AND HEALTH WITH KEY TO THE SCRIPTURES."—See back cover of this periodical for styles of bindings and prices.

CONCORDANCE TO SCIENCE AND HEALTH.—A new edition of this volume is announced, printed from new plates and bound in stiff morocco. Single copy, $5.00; six or more, each $4.50.

CONCORDANCE TO MRS. EDDY'S PUBLISHED WRITINGS OTHER THAN SCIENCE AND HEALTH.—Published only in the India Bible paper edition, with stiff morocco covers; uniform in style with the Concordance to Science and Health. Price, $6.00; six or more, each $5.50.

Announcement is made of the publication at an early date of a new edition of the German translation of the Manual of The Mother Church. The volume will be printed with alternate pages of English and German, and will be uniform in binding and price with the regular cloth-bound edition.

Announcement is made of the printing of an edition of Rudimental Divine Science in the American Braille system of type for the blind. Single copy, 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

Orders for the books named above and other works by Mrs. Eddy should be addressed to ALLISON V. STEWART, Falmouth and St. Paul Streets, Boston, Mass.

From the Editor

All manuscripts submitted for publication in the Sentinel, Journal, and Herold, whether articles, poems, or testimonies, and all correspondence relating thereto, should be addressed to the EDITOR, and not to individuals.

From the Publishing Society

"Christian Science: The Revelation of Christ," a lecture by John W. Doorly, C.S.B., has been printed in pamphlet form, and is now ready for sale.

A new pamphlet entitled, "'Awake Thou That Sleepest,'" contains the following eight articles republished from The Christian Science Monitor: "Procrastination," "Lions in the Path," "Could Ye not Watch with Me One Hour?" "The Senses and Sleep," "Sleep," "Night," "Day," and "Narcotics."

Both of these pamphlets are on sale at prices advertised on the opposite page.

Owing to the increased cost of labor and materials the Oxford Press of England has twice found it necessary to advance the prices of Bibles to the Publishing Society during the past year. The Publishing Society now finds it necessary to make a corresponding change in its prices to the field.

The cost of manufacturing Bible Cases and Quarterly Covers has also increased, and the changes in prices for these articles are listed in the new Catalogue No. 23.

From the Clerk of The Mother Church

CHURCH TENETS.—The tenets of The First Church of Christ, Scientist,—The Mother Church,—printed on folded sheet for use of the branch Churches of Christ, Scientist, with space for printing their authorized forms of application for membership or extracts from their by-laws, can be had at seventy-five cents a hundred. Orders will not be taken for less than one hundred and postage stamps should not be sent in payment.

Correspondence relative to the tenets or to membership with The Mother Church, should be sent to J. V. DITTEMORE, Clerk, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

From the Church Treasurer

The annual per capita tax of members of The Mother Church is due June 1, but may be paid at any time during the year. The per capita tax of members uniting in November is reckoned from the preceding June, this being the beginning of the church year. Unless otherwise directed by the sender, the full amount of each remittance will be credited for the current year.

Please remit by postal or express money order, bank draft, or check. Currency should be sent by registered letter only.

Please advise promptly of any change in name or address.

Send per capita taxes and contributions to ADAM H. DICKEY, Treasurer, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

Digitized by Google

The Christian Science Journal

Published Monthly

Founded April, 1883, by Mary Baker Eddy, Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, and author of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures."

This monthly magazine is the official organ of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. In addition to articles, editorials, and testimonies not published elsewhere, it contains a complete list of Christian Science practitioners, and a directory of Christian Science Churches, Societies, and Reading Rooms.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $2; six months $1; three months 50 cents. SALE PRICE: Single copy 20 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 15 cents. For Canada add 25 cents for postage. SALE PRICE: Single copy 20 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 17 cents. In all other countries add 65 cents for postage for each annual subscription. SALE PRICE: Single copy 25 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 20 cents.

BOUND VOLUMES: Current and past year, cloth $3.00; half calf or half morocco $3.75. On earlier volumes write for prices.

The Christian Science Quarterly

Published January, April, July, and October

Contains the Lesson-Sermons which are read at the Sunday services throughout the year in all the Christian Science churches. These Lessons, which present citations from the Bible and "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," are valuable for daily study. Also printed in Dutch and German.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION AND SALE: In the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year 50 cents; single copy 15 cents; four copies or more to one address, each 12½ cents. For all other countries one year 60 cents; single copy 18 cents; four copies or more, each 15 cents.

Subscriptions not accepted for less than one year. Subscriptions begin with current quarter unless otherwise designated, and terminate with the last of the month named on wrapper.

The Christian Science Monitor

Published Daily, Except Sundays and Legal Holidays

An international daily newspaper. Adequate news service. The various departments of a modern newspaper. Unique Home Forum page. Entire page of editorials dealing with the vital topics of the day. Contributions to the columns of the MONITOR should be addressed: Editor, THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States (except in the Boston Postal District), Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $5; six months $2.50; three months $1.25; one month 50 cents. In all other countries additional postage at the rate of $5 yearly is required. By carrier through a local news-dealer; one month 60 cents. In the Boston Postal District, by mail, one year $7.25. Quantity rates will be furnished on application.

Der Herold der Christian Science

Published Monthly

A magazine printed in German, which publishes original and translated articles bearing upon Christian Science, also testimonials of healing.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $1; six months 50 cents; three months 25 cents. For other countries, one year $1.25; six months 63 cents; three months 32 cents.

SALE PRICE, DOMESTIC TERRITORY AND CANADA, POSTPAID: Single copy 10 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 8 cents. Foreign rate, single copy 12 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 10 cents.

Bound Volumes in cloth, $2.75 each; half calf or half morocco $3.50 each. Write for list of volumes in stock.

Pamphlets

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS RELIGIOUS PHILOSOPHY. By HON. CLARENCE A. BUSKIRK.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: "THE RESURRECTION AND THE LIFE." By CLARENCE W. CHADWICK.

CAUSATION: VIEWED IN THE LIGHT OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By FREDERICK DIXON. Also printed in Norwegian and Swedish.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING VS. MENTAL SUGGESTION. By FREDERICK DIXON. Reprinted from the Weekly Budget, London, England. Also printed in Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE TRUE CHRISTIANITY. By CLARENCE C. EATON.

"THE SONS OF GOD." By COL. WILLIAM E. FELL.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE VS. FINITE SENSE. By FRANCIS J. FLEGO, M.D.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE GOSPEL OF FREEDOM. By WILLIS F. GROSS.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE SCIENCE OF SALVATION. By HERMANN S. HERING.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING: SPIRITUAL AND SCIENTIFIC. By PROF. HERMANN S. HERING. Also printed in German.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS CONCERNING CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. Also printed in Dutch, German, and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS ADVANTAGE TO MANKIND. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. A London lecture. Also printed in French.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: MAN'S DOMINION OVER EVIL. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. Also printed in modern Greek, Italian, Norwegian, and Russian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS DIVINE AUTHORITY. By BLISS KNAPP.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE EXPLANATION OF THE IDEAL MAN. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS DISCOVERY AND DEVELOPMENT. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: GOD'S LOVINGKINDNESS PROVED TO MEN. By REV. WILLIAM P. MCKENZIE. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS RESULTS. By WILLIAM R. RATHVON. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE RELIGION OF DIVINE LAW. By JACOB S. SHIELD.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM. By JUDGE CLIFFORD P. SMITH. Also printed in French and German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A RELIGION OF LOVE. By VIRGIL O. STRICKLER. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE NEW BIRTH. By BICKNELL YOUNG. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

THE LAW OF KINDNESS.
"WHAT WENT YE OUT FOR TO SEE?"
"THEN THE FULL GRAIN IN THE EAR."
UPWARD FOOTSTEPS. Also printed in Dutch.
FULFILLING THE LAW. Also printed in Danish.
PRAYER AND HEALING. Also printed in French and German.
THE DIVINE NATURE. Also printed in Dutch and Norwegian.
ENVIRONMENT AND OPPORTUNITY. Also printed in French.
THE FATHER'S BUSINESS. Also printed in German and Swedish.
SEEKING AND FINDING. Also printed in Dutch, German, and Swedish.
THE PROVIDENCE OF GOOD. Also printed in French, Spanish, and Swedish.
LAW AND WORK.
CONFIDENCE AND SUPPLY.
BIRTHRIGHT AND DOMINION.

Other Translated Pamphlets

FAITH AND GENEROSITY. Printed in French-English.
MAN'S UNITY WITH GOD. Printed in German only.
"PEACE ON EARTH." Printed in German only.
PRAYER AND CONFIDENCE. Printed in German. Also in Dutch-English.
MARY BAKER EDDY. By ARCHIE BRISBANE. Printed in German only.
MARY BAKER EDDY: HER PURPOSE AND ACCOMPLISHMENT. By FREDERICK DIXON. Printed in German. Also in French-English.
THE FOUNDER OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By B. O. FLOWER. Printed in German only.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A REASONABLE AND RATIONAL VIEW OF ALL THINGS. By FRANCIS J. FLEGO, M.D. Printed in Dutch-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: HUMANITY'S HELPER. By PROF. HERMANN S. HERING. Printed in Dutch-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE COMFORTER OF PROMISE. By FRANK H. LEONARD. Printed in French-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: DEMONSTRABLE RELIGION. By FRANK H. LEONARD. Printed in Norwegian only.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A RELIGION OF PROGRESS. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Printed in Swedish. Also in French-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS PRINCIPLE AND METHOD. By BICKNELL YOUNG. Printed in Swedish. Also in French-English.

PRICE, POSTPAID: Single copy 5 cents; twelve copies to one address 55 cents; fifty copies $2; one hundred copies $3.50. Orders for above pamphlets may be assorted as desired.

For table of English, German, Swiss, and French money equivalents, see inside front cover page.

Miscellaneous

A Catalogue of Selected Bibles will be furnished upon application, and quantity rates on other items specified below will be found in the current catalogue in The Christian Science Journal.

BIBLES. 01483 x. Clarendon Brevier, heavy-faced, distinct type; Turkey morocco, corresponding in size and binding to pocket edition of Science and Health, $4.75.

01440 x. Brevier, light-faced type; self-pronouncing, Turkey morocco, corresponding in size and binding to pocket edition of Science and Health, $4.50.

01683 x. Large type Bible, 10¾ x 8 inches, bound in Alaska seal. Specially adapted for use of second readers, $12.50.

Black morocco open case to hold pocket edition of Science and Health, Quarterly, and Bible, $1.40.

Two other sizes of open case listed in the current issue of the Journal.

Black morocco closed case with handle and purse on outside, $3.75; without purse, $3.50.

The improved index will be added to any Bible listed in our catalogue for an additional charge of 35 cents. Catalogue No. 23 of selected Bibles will be mailed free upon application.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS ON THE LIFE AND WORK OF MARY BAKER EDDY. 132 pages with index. Paper covered, 15 cents; cloth binding, 35 cents.

THE LIFE OF MARY BAKER EDDY. By Sibyl Wilbur. 424 pages. Cloth, $2. Edition de luxe, $5.

PERSONAL CONTAGION, ALSO WHAT OUR LEADER SAYS. By Mary Baker Eddy. Special pamphlet. Paper cover, 10 cents.

THE MOTHER CHURCH. By Joseph Armstrong. A history of the building of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. Illustrated, 107 pages. Cloth, $1.50.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS LEGAL STATUS. By Judge Clifford P. Smith. 128 pages, paper covered, 10 cents.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HYMNAL. Cloth, $1.15; half morocco, $1.40; full morocco, $2.50; levant, $3.50; pocket edition, size 4⅝ x 6⅝, $3

SHEET MUSIC. Poems written by Mary Baker Eddy and used by special permission, have been set to music as follows: "The Mother's Evening Prayer," 75 cents; "Christ, My Refuge," 75 cents; "Love," 40 cents; Communion Hymn—"Saw Ye My Saviour?" (Johnson), 50 cents; "Blest Christmas Morn," 27 cents; "O'er Waiting Harpstrings of the Mind," 27 cents; "Shepherd, Show Me How to Go," 27 cents; "Saw Ye My Saviour?" (Root), 27 cents. The first three hymns are arranged for high and low voice in the same copy. The last five hymns are published separately in high and low keys. When ordering state key desired.

PHOTOGRAVURE OF MRS. EDDY, printed in three sizes on India paper and mounted on heavy plate paper ready for framing. 8-inch (mount 12 x 16), $1; 12-inch (mount 15 x 20), $2; 16-inch (mount 21 x 29), $3.50.

PICTURE OF THE FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, IN BOSTON, MASS., AND THE PUBLISHING HOUSE. Artist's proof with remarque on Japanese vellum, size 18 x 24 inches, $5; on India paper without remarque, $3. Smaller reproduction, size 11 x 14 inches, on Japanese vellum, $1. Photogravure postcards of the Church Edifice and Publishing House, 5 cents.

QUARTERLY COVERS in black morocco, $1.50; with purse, $1.50.

ALUMINUM LESSON MARKERS. Set of thirty, with paper shields, 50 cents. Extra paper shields, one hundred, 15 cents.

PRICE LIST OF BIBLE CONCORDANCES AND DICTIONARIES OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE supplied on request. Express charges collect on delivery.

REPRINTS (not printed in English). Two-page leaflets, 14 subjects in French and Swedish; 18 subjects in German. Ten copies to one address, 10 cents.

Remittances should always accompany orders, and be made by check, money order, or exchange on Boston or New York. Currency or coin should not be sent by mail unless registered. Please send no money or business letters to the Editor or Editorial Department.

Send all orders for the works of Mrs. Eddy, with remittance by New York or Boston draft or money order, direct to Allison V. Stewart
For literature listed above address orders and make remittances payable to

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

FALMOUTH AND ST. PAUL STREETS, BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

Digitized by Google

Works on Christian Science

Written by MARY BAKER EDDY, Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science and Author of its Text-book

Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures. In one volume, 700 pages. The original, standard, and only text-book on Christian Science Mind-healing. Cloth, one to eleven copies inclusive (cloth only), each $3.00; twelve or more, each $2.75. Full leather, stiff, beveled boards, gilt edges, same paper as in cloth binding, single copy $4.00; twelve or more, each $3.75. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $5.00; twelve or more, each $4.75. Levant, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, round corners, gilt edges, silk sewed, heavy Oxford India Bible paper (wide margins, large-sized book) single copy $6.00; twelve or more, each $5.75.

LARGE TYPE EDITION. Designed especially for the use of first readers. Large type (18-point) on Oxford India Bible paper, bound in leather. Size 10¾ inches long by 8 inches wide. Single copy $7.50, with a discount of 25 cents each when included in an order for twelve or more copies of Science and Health, and in any or all of the different bindings.

GERMAN TRANSLATION. Cloth, one to five copies inclusive, each $3.50; six or more, each $3.25. Pocket edition, printed on Oxford India Bible paper. Morocco, one to five copies inclusive, each $5.50; six or more, each $5.25. Orders for the German translation in lots of six or more may include both bindings.

Orders for Science and Health in lots of twelve or more at quantity prices may include both English and German editions, and different styles of binding.

Miscellaneous Writings. A book of 471 pages, containing articles published in The Christian Science Journal from 1883 to 1896, with revisions and additions. Cloth, single copy $2.25; twelve or more, each $2.00. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $4.00; twelve or more, each $3.75. Levant, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, round corners, gilt edges, silk sewed, Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $5.00; twelve or more, each $4.75. Orders for Miscellaneous Writings in lots of twelve or more may include any or all of the different styles of binding. No discount will be allowed on orders for twelve books which include both Science and Health and Miscellaneous Writings.

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany. A book of 364 pages, containing articles published in The Christian Science Journal and Sentinel, subsequent to the compilation of Miscellaneous Writings, together with historical matter pertaining thereto. Cloth, single copy $2.25; six or more, each $2.00. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $4.00; six or more, each $3.75. Orders for six or more may include the two styles of binding.

Concordance to Science and Health. This work contains about eighty thousand references (more than ten thousand words being indexed), also an index to the Marginal Headings, and a list of the Scriptural Quotations in Science and Health. 611 pages, stiff morocco cover, single copy $5.00; six or more, each $4.50.

Concordance to Mrs. Eddy's Published Writings Other Than Science and Health. It contains 1,103 pages, and is published only in Bible paper edition, with stiff morocco cover. Single copy, $6.00; six or more, each, $5.50.

Christ and Christmas. An illustrated poem. Single copy $3.00; six or more, each $2.50.

Unity of Good and Other Writings. One volume, containing Unity of Good, Rudimental Divine Science, No and Yes, Retrospection and Introspection; uniform in style with the pocket edition of Science and Health. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, heavy Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $3.50; six or more, each $3.25.

Christian Healing and Other Writings. One volume, containing Christian Healing, The People's Idea of God, Pulpit and Press, Christian Science versus Pantheism, Messages of 1900, 1901, 1902; uniform in style with the pocket edition of Science and Health. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, heavy Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $3.50; six or more, each $3.25.

Church Manual. Containing the By-laws of The Mother Church. Cloth, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents. Pocket edition, morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $2.00; six or more, each $1.75.

GERMAN TRANSLATION. Cloth, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Retrospection and Introspection. A biographical sketch of the author; the way she was led to the discovery of Christian Science; its fundamental idea and growth. Library edition, cloth, 95 pages, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Unity of Good. This book lays the axe at the root of error, elucidating and enforcing practical Christian Science, thus affording invaluable directions for all true Scientists. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, 64 pages, single copy 60 cents; six or more, each 45 cents. Pocket edition, leather covers, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Pulpit and Press. A unique work, of importance in the history and to the readers of Christian Science; containing the message or sermon written for the dedicatory service of The Mother Church, January 6, 1895, and scintillations from the press of that occasion. Library edition, cloth, 90 pages, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Rudimental Divine Science. A brief and concise statement of Divine Science, alias Christian Science, in the form of questions and answers. Pebbled cloth covers, gilt top, 17 pages, single copy 32 cents; six or more, each 25 cents. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 35 cents.

PRINTED in the New York point system of type for the use of the blind, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

No and Yes. A brief statement of very important points in Christian Science. Pebbled cloth covers, 46 pages, single copy 32 cents; six or more, each 25 cents. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 55 cents; six or more, each 45 cents.

Messages to The Mother Church. Including in one volume, 94 pages, Christian Science versus Pantheism, and the Messages of 1900, 1901, and 1902. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy $1.50; six or more, each $1.15.

Christian Science versus Pantheism. The Pastor Emeritus' Message delivered at the Communion Season in The Mother Church in Boston, June, 1898. A clear and strong refutation of the charge that Christian Scientists are pantheists. Pebbled cloth covers, 15 pages, single copy 25 cents; six or more, each 20 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1900. Paper covers, deckled edges, 15 pages, single copy 25 cents; six or more, each 20 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1901. Paper covers, deckled edges, 35 pages, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 38 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1902. Paper covers, deckled edges, 20 pages, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 38 cents.

Christian Healing, and The People's Idea of God. Two sermons in one volume, 36 pages. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 55 cents; six or more, each 45 cents.

Christian Healing. A sermon delivered in Boston. Paper covers, 20 pages, single copy 20 cents; six or more, each 17 cents.

The People's Idea of God. A sermon delivered in Boston. Paper covers, 14 pages, single copy 20 cents; six or more, each 17 cents.

Poems. This volume of 79 pages includes all of Mrs. Eddy's hymns, also her earlier poems which appeared in various publications from forty to sixty years ago. Specially bound. Single copy $1.50; six or more, each $1.25.

Feed My Sheep. Solo. Words by Mary Baker Eddy, music by Lyman F. Brackett. Single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

The foregoing prices cover all charges for express or postage on shipments either domestic or foreign.

Quantity prices are on shipments to one address only, but quantity lots at quantity prices cannot be made up of different books or of different styles of binding. Attention is called, however, to the exception to this rule which is made in the cases of Science and Health, and of Miscellaneous Writings, as given under those titles in this price list.

Address all orders for above works, and make remittance by New York or Boston draft or money order, to

ALLISON V. STEWART, FALMOUTH AND ST. PAUL STS., BOSTON, MASS.

Digitized by Google

APR 25 1917

WISCONSIN HISTORICAL LIBRARY

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SENTINEL

"What I say unto you I say unto all-WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX No. 34

Boston, April 21, 1917

Contents of This Number

Items of Interest (Brief Mention of Important Events) 662
"Human invention must have its day" Hawley O. Taylor, Ph.D. 663
"Seek ye first the kingdom" Margaret L. Wakeman 664
Divine Increase . . Everetta W. Fay 664
Work . . . . Marion Anderson 665
Immanuel . . . Col. H. G. Kennard 665
Unfailing Supply . Lou-Vee B. Siegfried 666
"He is risen!" (Poem) Lillian Barker Beede 667
Selected Articles 667
Editorial
Talking and Doing 670
Individuality Protected . . . 670
Bread of Life 671
Among the Churches (Current Notes)
Rhode Island 671
Maine 672
Minneapolis, Minn. 672
The Lectures
Tunbridge Wells, Kent, England . 672
Denver, Col. 672
Louisville, Ky. 672
Cleveland, Ohio 672
Testimonies of Healing 674
From Our Exchanges 677

A LADY WITH A LAMP SHALL STAND IN THE GREAT HISTORY OF THE LAND

A NOBLE TYPE OF GOOD HEROIC WOMANHOOD Longfellow

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY
FALMOUTH AND ST PAUL STREETS BOSTON MASS U.S.A.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

(THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE WEEKLY)

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY BY

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

Falmouth and St. Paul Sts., Boston, Mass., U.S.A.

ARCHIBALD McLELLAN
Editor

ANNIE M. KNOTT — WILLIAM D. McCRACKAN
Associate Editors

Subscription Price

Payable in advance

Annual subscription price, postpaid, in the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, $2.00; six months, $1.00; three months, 50 cents. For Canada add 45 cents and for all other countries 95 cents annually for postage. For subscriptions in quantities please refer to page four in THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE JOURNAL.

Subscriptions to the SENTINEL will begin with the current issue unless otherwise specified. The delivery of the periodical will indicate that a remittance has been credited and will be our acknowledgment of the subscription.

Bound Volumes: Current year or two years previous, cloth, $3.25; half calf or half morocco, $4.00. On earlier volumes write for prices.

Terms of Sale

	United States, Mexico, and Cuba	Canada	All Other Countries
Single copy	$ .05	$ .06	$ .07
Four or more copies . .	.03½	.04	.05

Equivalents of United States money

		£	s.	d.	Marks	Francs
$ .60	equals	0	2	6	2.52	3.12
1.15	"	0	4	9	4.85	5.98
1.25	"	0	5	2	5.30	6.50
2.33	"	0	9	7	9.83	12.09
2.38	"	0	9	10	10.05	12.35
2.63	"	0	10	9	11.10	13.65
2.65	"	0	10	10	11.20	13.78
2.70	"	0	11	1	11.40	14.04
2.95	"	0	12	2	12.50	15.34
5.00	"	1	0	7	21.15	26.00
7.50	"	1	10	10	31.73	39.00
8.00	"	1	12	11	33.85	41.60

Make all remittances payable to The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Postage required for remailing this copy: 1 cent domestic and Canada; 2 cents other countries.

Entered at Boston, Mass., post-office as second-class matter.

Items of Interest

The Congress of Costa Rica recently provided for the payment of bounties to the growers of hemp, sisal, and similar plants. This bounty is to be in the form of 6 per cent treasury bonds, at the rate of about $5.65 an acre of land planted to a fiber crop, and on receipt of the bounty the grower will execute a first mortgage on the land. The total amount of bounties is not to exceed $232,500, and about $46,500 more is appropriated for machinery. The bounty will be divided into three parts, the first to be delivered when the fiber is planted, the second part two years later, and the third when the plants are ready to be cut. When the planter has cultivated his fiber crops for ten years after receiving the first bounty, and has marketed his crops during this time, the mortgage will be canceled by the Government.

The Norwegian Government has recently been advised by a committee of the Storthing not to allow foreigners or foreign corporations to acquire waterfalls in Norway, except in special circumstances. The power contained in the waterfalls of Norway and which may be profitably utilized is not known, but has been estimated at from 6,000,000 to 10,000,000 horse-power. Up to the present the development of these falls has been accomplished largely through the aid of foreign capital. The so-called concession act of Sept. 18, 1909, greatly restricted the permission of foreigners to acquire and use such property, and this law was made more stringent by the act of Aug. 4, 1911.

The great hydro-electric dam at Wissota, some fifteen miles northwest of Eau Claire, Wis., and two miles above Chippewa Falls on the Chippewa River, has been set in operation and the current started over the great transmission line to St. Paul and Minneapolis. The dam represents an outlay to date of over $4,000,000, and another $1,000,000 will be necessary to complete it. Work was begun in October, 1915, and since then there has been an average of 1100 men constantly employed. This dam is some 6910 feet long, and two dikes increase its length considerably. From bottom to top of the power plant itself is 120 feet. The backwater behind the dam will cover about 7000 acres.

The Danish West Indies passed into the possession of the United States at 11 o'clock on the morning of March 31, when an official of the Government at Washington delivered into the hands of the Danish minister a treasury warrant for $25,000,000. The secretary of the navy sent the following message to Commander Pollock of the "Olympia" at St. Thomas: "You are authorized to receive the islands in the name of the United States." The message of the Danish minister to the Danish Governor was: "You are authorized to deliver the islands in the name of the King." It was estimated that the entire transaction was completed before noon. The name of the islands is changed to "The Virgin Islands of the United States."

Russia occupies today 8,647,657 square miles, or one seventh of the surface of the globe. Of this vast amount of territory the deposed Czar and his family owned and received the revenue from 984,063,763 acres, which is about 70 per cent of the whole land area of Russia and one tenth that of the world. The Russian nobility number 1,400,000 and own 181,606,519 acres. The Russian nobleman is exempt from taxes. The agricultural classes number 110,000,000 and own 43,423,725 acres. Thus the tillers of the soil and taxpayers own about one third of an acre apiece, while the exempt noblemen average about 128 acres.

A saving to the farmers of the country of nearly $100,000,000 a year is made possible by the decision of the United States Federal Farm Loan Board to have the bonds bear 4½ per cent and to fix the interest rate to the farmers at 5 per cent, or 1 per cent less than the maximum provided by the Federal farm loan act. The present farm mortgage indebtedness of the United States is approximately $4,000,000,000, and the average interest rate is about 7.4 per cent.

Apiculture in Brazil cannot be said to have attracted very serious attention, so far as the exportation of honey is concerned. The business has hardly developed beyond a cottage industry, and practically all the honey produced is consumed on the local market. There are twenty-one species of bees generally known to be indigenous to Brazil, and it is said that some produce a very superior quality of honey.

More than 2000 hectares (4950 acres) of land have been redeemed in the basin of the Fucino near Avezzano in the Abruzzi, Italy, thus offering a large and fertile area for cultivation. The draining of another tract of equal area in the same region is now being considered, together with the regulation of the mountain torrent Foce, which at present periodically causes much devastation.

The Government of Panama has decreed that all places in Panama shall bear Indian or Spanish names. Some of the places now bearing foreign names originally bore Indian or Spanish names, and in such cases the original names will be restored, while new Spanish names will be given to all other places now known under names originating in other countries.

In order to bring the question of decimal coinage definitely before the country, says The Economist of London, the Associated Chambers of Commerce have decided to introduce, if they are permitted to do so, a bill into the House of Commons for the immediate establishment of a decimal system of money in England.

The United States is the world's leading buyer of crude cocoa. During 1916 the Dutch West Indies, Chile, British Guiana, Peru, British West Africa, and French Africa appear for the first time among the important direct shippers of cacao to the United States.

The French Government has appointed a number of officials to report upon a scheme for the transformation of the port of Brest into a great transatlantic commercial port. It is understood that the Government proposes the improvement not only of Brest but also of Calais, St. Nazaire, and Cette.

In the Massachusetts Senate the committee on harbors and public lands has reported a bill providing for the expenditure of $60,000 for the establishment of a reservation along the state road, which follows the old Mohawk Trail over the Berkshire Hills in western Massachusetts.

New acquisitions made to the Harvard University Library during the past year bring the total collections to nearly two million volumes and pamphlets. Contributions amounting to $12,198.12 were received for the purchase of books, and numerous gifts of valuable collections and sets were received.

The report of gifts for foreign missions, presented to the Foreign Missions Conference of North America at its recent session, disclosed the fact that the total amount received in Canada from the home churches for regular work was $1,135,505, and from the United States $19,293,935.

Passenger trains over Hell Gate Bridge, between New York City and Long Island City, which gives direct rail connection between New England and the South, made their first trip Sunday, April 1. The bridge has cost more than twenty-seven million dollars.

A survey of the mineral resources of the far East, including China and Siberia, will be undertaken this spring by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the United States Department of Commerce.

Chile is twice as large as California; Bolivia and Venezuela are each twice as large as Texas; Brazil is larger than the United States and her possessions by more than two hundred thousand square miles.

The official crop report up to the end of December, 1916, gives the total area under rice cultivation for the 1916-17 season, in the six leading provinces of Siam, as 2,772,080 acres.

Approved grazing allowances for the national forests during the coming season provide for the pasturing of 8,400,155 sheep, 2,120,145 cattle and horses, and 54,680 swine.

The exports invoiced at all the American consular offices in Spain to the United States and possessions during 1916 were valued at $35,458,877.

One of the largest users of electric lamps in the world is the United States Government, which buys 1,250,000 annually.

During 1916 British Columbia exported to the United States 57,055,778 pounds of print paper, valued at $1,209,466.

There was a gain of over eight million pounds, or 17 per cent, in the amount of rubber in Ceylon's outward commerce during 1916.

An American Chamber of Commerce has been organized at Tientsin, China.

The total of postal savings for Japan on Dec. 31, 1916, was $147,094,188.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

"What I say unto you, I say unto all, WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX April 21, 1917 No. 34

"Human invention must have its day"

HAWLEY O. TAYLOR, PH.D.

In recent decades the gathering and classification of human knowledge has been pursued with increasing zeal, until now the vastness of the accumulation makes specialization necessary for marked human achievement. We are living in the time when, as we read in Daniel, "many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased," but, as Mrs. Eddy tells us on page 196 of Science and Health, man "has not yet found it true that knowledge can save him from the dire effects of knowledge."

To what does human knowledge lead? In the political world the settlement of human affairs gives rise to tension, which gradually increases until finally in some locality there is a general giving way; diplomatic ingenuity has spent itself and disruption and war follow. In the material world a time is seen approaching when all physical and chemical change will have reached a dead level, so that further transformation, making available useful energy, will be impossible. In all lines it is very plain that reasoning and logic, supported only by the evidence of the material senses and based upon the premise that matter is the substance upon which life depends, lead to only one conclusion, namely, that dissolution awaits all things, the final condition being a universe of dead worlds.

The annals of history, however, record that mankind have on many occasions recognized an intelligence of which the material senses afford no evidence, and which has often intervened, through those men and women who were awake to its presence, to the overthrow of calculations based upon the infallibility of so-called material law. The protests of mankind against conclusions based upon the evidence of the material senses have been hushed in times past by the sensuous majority, but these protests are now gaining in volume, inspired by a clearer perception of the truth that makes free, and can be seen swelling into a mighty wave which will finally sweep away all human confusion. The accumulated strain of material conditions is becoming so unbearable to human beings uninstructed in Science, that their only relief from the impending cataclysm is to awaken from the material dream, aroused by the trumpet call of Truth, and to experience the joy of life immortal under the "perfect law of liberty," to use the words of James.

The reign of law had seldom been recognized in superhuman acts (which seemed to be infractions of law) until the advent of Christian Science, which drew back the curtain of materiality and revealed the Principle underlying all real activity. The sequence of cause and effect founded on human philosophy is perfectly rational to the human mind, which frowns upon deviations from what seems to it the safe and sane course; but if material law were the truth it could not be overcome, just as if were ten the square of three it would forever stand. The evidence, however, in both of these cases has consistently yielded to an understanding of facts which bring about right relations, so both are proved not to be the truth. On the other hand, the harmonious outworking of spiritual law in annulling the confusion springing from activity under so-called material law proves that the dominion promised man can come only through the rejection of the material premise of being.

It cannot be denied that human consciousness is at present more or less material in its nature, and will so continue until matter, or the flesh, is seen as Christ Jesus saw it, having no presence or power. The problem of human beings has ever been to work out of material limitations. This work takes the form of improving material surroundings and conditions. Labor is shifting to a higher material plane—the mental—by the invention of machines to do what once was done by hand. Invention is thus leading to a different concept of ways and means of accomplishment, preparing the human mind for the reception of new truths, until finally glimpses of ultimate truth will make an appeal.

This general improvement in material surroundings may be illustrated by the concept of communication. The transmission of intelligence began by signs made with hands and voice, the latter being codified later into language. This language was reduced to written symbols, which made it possible to communicate by correspondence and to keep records. At length the telegraph removed the inconvenience of delays in written notes and the telephone canceled space as a barrier to conversation. Now thought is reaching forth for means of communication through distance without the necessity of making a transmission line, and the wireless telegraph and telephone are enabling us to send messages across oceans and between ships on the wings of the ether.

A century ago such improvements, if suggested, would have been generally ridiculed; now "the man in the street" looks upon them as mere beginnings. He is growing accustomed to these wonders; he is expecting limitations to be destroyed; his mentality and breadth of vision are enlarging; he is being prepared to receive the truth that cause and effect are both mental and that his present existence is merely a stage of consciousness.

To the degree that achievement is sustained by the material premise of existence it is temporal. Communication as now conceived by mankind is a science of great proportions; but all the material activity, involving much in connection with the literature and records of the ages and the development of language and education, as well as the devices which give accuracy and promptness,—all these means whereby the impartation of information is made possible are simply counterfeits of the spiritual idea wherein communion between God and the real man is constant and untrammeled. Perfection has not been reached in the transmission of thought while material means are required in its use, but such means are being abandoned as unfoldment proceeds, led on by the progressive revelation of the spiritual ideal. Gross material means have been and are being eliminated, then the more ethereal means, until finally Truth will dawn and all material means will be dropped as a child leaves his toy locomotive at the sight of a real one.

Copyright, 1917, by The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Digitized by Google

Human philosophy, science, and invention are striving to bring order out of chaos along all lines. Much labor and patience have been and are being expended, and each triumph has been dearly bought. The unselfish efforts of the devoted workers is commendable, for, as Mrs. Eddy says, "even human invention must have its day" (Science and Health, p. 95); but this day, glorious as it may seem to some, is ever paling before the brightness of the approaching day wherein Love, spiritual consideration and infinite appreciation, rules all activity. When the temporal realm has long been sunk in the obscurity of oblivion, this immortal Science will still be reigning.

The faithful student of Christian Science is being led on to wonderful revelation in the Science which is supreme. His aspiring thought, in seeking to know God, follows the footsteps of the Master, who progressively proved that divine law is final in human affairs to the undoing of seemingly insuperable material conditions, and he earnestly strives for that unfoldment of which Mrs. Eddy says: "Acquaintance with the Science of being enables us to commune more largely with the divine Mind, to foresee and foretell events which concern the universal welfare, to be divinely inspired,—yea, to reach the range of fetterless Mind" (Science and Health, p. 84).

The sublime ideal which we occasionally behold is in truth our continuous experience. Each occasional view removes us a step from the material fable of being and accelerates our progress, until finally, through the apprehension of divine Love, the Science of being is beheld in all its purity. Then one consciousness only will be known,—the consciousness of perfect, harmonious activity.

✧

"Seek ye first the kingdom"

MARGARET L. WAKEMAN

BIBLE students through the ages have found comfort in the statements made by Jesus regarding God's protecting care; but not until Mrs. Eddy gave to the world that wonderful commentary on the Bible, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," has it been generally recognized that those statements or promises are applicable to the daily needs of mankind in this age. To students of Christian Science, however, the light has broken through the clouds of sense by the illumination given in this wonderful book, and physical healing has generally followed this spiritual light.

Much gratitude is felt for a healing that demonstrated the truth of Jesus' statement, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." Some years ago an accident caused injuries which at times brought on intense suffering, and the medical opinion was that the difficulty could be corrected only through surgery. At that time the writer had been studying Christian Science only three years, yet she had perfect faith that "with God all things are possible;" but while she expected her healing to come through Christian Science, she had in some way conceived the opinion that it would require time. Accordingly, a number of years passed and the healing was not manifested.

Then there came into the writer's experience what seemed a great sorrow, with very disturbing conditions, and for a time she felt overwhelmed. A desire to be alone with God until she could find the light and face the problem in the right way, prompted her to go away for a while. Taking her books, she sought a quiet place at the seashore, and there turned earnestly to God, praying constantly for spiritual grace and a clearer understanding of Truth. One day after going over the Lesson-Sermon, she sat looking out over the great ocean, thinking of its grandeur and immensity. She thought of the infinitude of Mind that "stretcheth forth the heavens, and layeth the foundation of the earth," and there came to her such a clear realization of God's ever-presence that she repeated aloud this stanza written by Mrs. Eddy (Poems, p. 12):—

> And o'er earth's troubled, angry sea
> I see Christ walk,
> And come to me, and tenderly,
> Divinely talk.

In that moment she realized the ever-presence of the Christ, Truth, which entirely lifted her out of the troubled mental state, and the next day she returned home with a clear consciousness of answered prayer. During this time she had scarcely thought of the physical inharmony, as the mental anguish had seemed so much greater, but the day following her return she realized that the physical discord had entirely disappeared, and it never returned. Thus it was proved to her that physical healing was one of the things "added" while seeking "first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness,"—right thinking.

There is but one place to seek healing of any kind, whether of sorrow, sickness, or sin, and that is in the kingdom of God. There is but one way to reach this kingdom, and that is through right consciousness, right thinking, which is the result of striving daily to have that Mind in you "which was also in Christ Jesus." Mrs. Eddy says: "Jesus beheld in Science the perfect man, who appeared to him where sinning mortal man appears to mortals. In this perfect man the Saviour saw God's own likeness, and this correct view of man healed the sick" (Science and Health, p. 476). So we have frequently to turn the search-light of divine Love toward our own consciousness, to see if there can be found therein anything to hinder the Christ-mind from being manifested. Sometimes we are surprised to find hidden away under the garment of self-righteousness lurking thoughts of resentment, or of so-called "righteous judgment," or of an unforgotten injury which mortal sense has made us think that we have forgiven; and if we are truly wise we will hasten to pull off this self-righteous covering and let the sunlight of divine Love destroy error's subtlety. We shall then rejoice to find ourselves in the kingdom of God, the kingdom of harmony. Not only are we ourselves healed in this manner, but we are also enabled to heal others, and so yield obedience to the Master's demand that we do the works which he did and taught his followers to do.

✧

Divine Increase

EVERETTA W. FAY

BEING grateful for the many blessings received from the understanding of the Bible, as explained in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, and knowing too the great good which has been brought to mankind through the testimonies to the power of Truth to save and to heal, as given both in our Wednesday evening services and through our periodicals, I should like to add my mite to the latter. Paul says, "I have planted, Apollos watered; but God gave the increase." The truth of this declaration was proven to me in connection with the following testimony, which has been given at one of our Wednesday evening meetings.

Our youngest son had been skating on a street where we supposed there was but little traffic, but it seemed that in avoiding one wagon his foot caught in the wheel of another one, and he was dragged until the driver discovered what was taking place and stopped the horse. He picked up the boy and brought him home, but was very much frightened at his appearance, as the child's clothes were torn and his body bruised, and he was in a semiconscious condition. When the truth was declared for him, as we are taught in Christian Science, he was restored to his normal condition, and we afterward found that we had failed to note the bruises on his head, but they had caused no harm.

Digitized by Google

Some time after the occurrence, when I was passing the place where the accident happened, the thought came to me that this was where our boy was nearly killed; but immediately the angel of His presence whispered, "This is where your boy was saved." Much gratitude was felt for this beautiful message, and in giving the testimony later, this thought was expressed. Months afterward a lady at a Wednesday evening meeting told of having been protected by Christian Science when in an automobile accident, and said that her dread of seeing the place where it occurred was removed after hearing the testimony given about our boy. In turn, because of the testimony she gave of her loss of fear, a lady in the audience that evening was healed of a sense of discord by this same uplifting thought.

This is only one of the many blessings which have come to us through the study and application of our Leader's teachings. I have found that "divine Love always has met and always will meet every human need" (Science and Health, p. 494), whether that need manifests itself in the form of sickness, sin, or sorrow. We are finding true the Bible promise which declares, "Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest."

✧

Work

MARION ANDERSON

FREQUENTLY the necessity of earning a living, a condition which presses upon by far the greater part of humanity, is accompanied by the fear that work cannot always be obtained, no matter how conscientious one's efforts may be; and the so-called "problem of the unemployed" has taxed the ingenuity of thousands of unselfish men and women who have endeavored to find its solution. Christian Science alone affords a never failing remedy for this condition, as it does for every other problem in human experience, and the writer has never ceased to be grateful for the opportunity which came to her to prove this.

During the financial depression of 1914 I found myself out of work, and the prospect of securing another position was not an encouraging one. Although but a young student in Christian Science, I was firmly convinced that in the application of this truth lay the remedy. There was no thought of asking for help, only a desire to gain all of good that the opportunity offered.

The first temptation that came was a desire to analyze the so-called causes which had brought about this condition; but in reading the Lesson-Sermon for that week these words greeted me: "The Christian Scientist finds only effects, where the ordinary physician looks for causes" (Science and Health, p. 379). This showed me the futility of delving into mortal beliefs, and the work was taken up from the standpoint that there is but one cause, and since this cause is God, good, the effect must of necessity be good.

At this point the suggestion was voiced that such a misfortune should not be experienced by a Christian Scientist, as the study of Christian Science should mean immunity from the perplexities of human experience. Instantly the answer to this came, however, as I thought of the parable spoken by Jesus of the two houses, one of which was built on the rock and the other on the sand. The storm came upon both, but it was the house with the firm foundation which stood. I knew that I was building on the rock of Truth, and that no storm of adversity could move this structure.

As these helpful thoughts came to me, fear, resentment, and self-condemnation were eliminated from consciousness, and thus the way was prepared for a higher understanding of the true significance of work. One night while returning from the Wednesday evening meeting I caught a glimpse of this, and saw work as the manifestation of divine activity, the reflection of Truth and Love. I also saw that man as God's idea could never for an instant be deprived of the opportunity to work, since he could not be deprived of the opportunity to reflect the qualities of divine Mind; that such work was not earning a living, but the reflecting of Life; that it was not dependent upon factory, office, or any vocation for expression, but was wholly spiritual.

Gone was the sense of interrupted activity and uncertainty of the previous week, and in its place was a broader, fuller understanding of opportunity. A kindly greeting and a word of cheer to one who seemed downhearted, assumed the same importance as the accomplishment of any difficult task that might be assigned to me in the office. It was also made clear that no matter how brilliant the execution of any task may appear, it "profiteth nothing" unless it is the manifestation of an unselfish desire to serve others and is accompanied by a grateful acknowledgment of the fact that all ability is in Mind, and that man reflects the divine power. Next came the thought of remuneration for work, which also gained a new and higher significance through the realization that Love has already provided for man's needs, since, as the apostle James tells us, "every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning."

In a few days the typewriter agency where I had registered called me to take a position offering greater advancement than heretofore, with better hours and the prospect of an increase in salary, all of which has been fulfilled. I was told by the manager of the agency that I was particularly fortunate in being so well placed, and in fact that it was nothing short of a marvel that such a thing could happen at this particular time. While I was deeply grateful that the human needs were met in such a prompt manner, this really meant little in comparison with the understanding of God's law which was unfolded, revealing man's God-given dominion.

✧

Immanuel

COL. H. G. KENNARD

IMMANUEL, or "God with us,"—what spiritual wealth is here disclosed! Before Christian Science and its infinite possibilities opened out, how little this name could have meant to us! One had become accustomed to reading these words periodically, or hearing them read in church, without attaching much meaning to them or drawing help therefrom; but with the Christian Science text-book as a "Key to the Scriptures," what depths of meaning are revealed!

The synonyms for God given by our Leader in Science and Health (p. 465) are as follows: "infinite Mind, Spirit, Soul, Principle, Life, Truth, Love." Now if we substitute any one of these for the name God, let us see what possibilities of helpful thought are opened up. If the statement were to read "infinite Mind with us," then whatever perplexing problem may seemingly be troubling us,—and possibly there may be no human friend at hand to help with advice,—we can know that infinite Mind is with us, that is, that we have the aid of infinite intelligence—and what mortal problem can be too great for infinite intelligence? On page 103 of "Miscellaneous Writings" Mrs. Eddy refers to Jesus' "spiritual individuality that reflected the Immanuel, or 'God with us.'" She continues: "This God was not outlined. He was too mighty for that. He was eternal Life, infinite Truth and Love. The individuality is embraced in Mind, therefore is forever with the Father. Hence the Scripture, 'I am a God at hand, saith the Lord.'"

Digitized by Google

Now let us consider another synonym, namely, Spirit, and declare Spirit to be with us. Let this truth be realized when we are confronted by the belief of life in matter, with all its earthly woes and evanescent pleasures weighing us down with their apparent reality. The sooner we turn to our new found knowledge of the real man's spirituality, the sooner can we lay hold on the comforting fact that Spirit, God, is never parted from His reflection, the real, spiritual man; and in proportion as this is realized does the anxiety or trouble, or whatever the seeming inharmony may be, assume less and less the appearance of reality.

Again, let us turn to God as Principle with us. We all know the respect one naturally feels for him who is spoken of as a man of high principles. What help, then, to know that the highest concept of this word, even Principle itself, is with us, and that as we act up to our highest concept of the word, so is God with us to help us and hold us to it. Then, let us think of God as Life with us. What comfort is to be gained from the knowledge that God being omnipresent, Life must be ever present also! In these troublous times, when the thought of death seems to be forcing itself on human consciousness more than usual, how necessary it is to meet it, as our Leader says, with the "trumpet-word of Truth, 'There is no death, no inaction, diseased action, overaction, nor reaction'" (Science and Health, p. 427).

Finally, let us think of God as Truth and Love with us. If we were asked to choose our own help in life, could we do better than to have Truth and Love on our side? No error of any kind can get past Truth, though it may attempt by many subterfuges and disguises to do so. Knowing always that God, Truth, is with us, we are safe to find out the error if we mean to do so; then, knowing too that God, Love, is with us, if a false step is made we know that Love is always at hand, glad to welcome us back to the straight path again, with no fear of punishment, for "perfect love casteth out fear." The false step having been retraced, the sin or remembrance of the false step is destroyed likewise. Truly Immanuel, or "God with us," is a very present help in trouble.

Unfailing Supply

LOU-VEE B. SIEGFRIED

TYPICAL of that of thousands today is the experience of the woman who came to Elisha for help, as recounted in the fourth chapter of II Kings. This lesson, metaphysically understood, points out the way in which all the problems of humanity are to be solved, namely, by trusting and obedient appeal to divine law. The woman's pitiful words, "My husband is dead," express the helplessness and defeat of all human calculations. Cruden defines the word dead as having in the Scriptures another meaning than that of mere physical dissolution,—"a state of spiritual death, being void of grace, . . . unable to do anything that is spiritually good." Jesus used the word in that sense when he said to the disciple who sought permission to go first to bury his father before following the Master, "Let the dead bury their dead."

Since time out of mind the word husband, in turn, has implied certain mental elements not at all confined to the male head of a household, but shared in greater or less degree by all mortals according to their beliefs. The word embraces the sense of authority supported by physical strength, initiative; it implies the providing and caretaking of material possessions, and so on. May it not be said of any one, then, who has spent his years dependent on material means or human personality for happiness, supply, strength, health, or livelihood, and who has come to the end of his human hopes, to disappointment and despair, that his condition is analogous to that of the woman who said, "My husband is dead"? Have not his human reliances and theories proven impotent to help him spiritually?

This is the mental state in which so many are when, through a rift in the clouds, there comes the recollection of some benefit which others have been known to experience in Christian Science, which today brings, as did the visions of the prophets of old, the assurance of Immanuel, or "God with us." The woman of the record had doubtless often come in contact with the works of the prophets who understandingly applied God's law to countless problems; hence it was natural that she should take to the man of God the problem which so pressed her. Elisha, with self-immolation and humility such as Jesus demonstrated when he said, "I can of mine own self do nothing," first asked her, "What shall I do for thee?" He did not tell her of a way to evade the debt, or offer to lend her money, but he did so help her, with the light of his understanding of the law of God, to work out her own problem, that there would be no doubt in her thought that God is the all sufficient source of good.

Elisha went about solving the problem in a scientific way, by beginning to draw upon the consciousness of good in the best mental qualities at hand. Christian Science comes to mankind where it is, and does not presuppose any intellectual attainment, prominence, or estate, nor does it require humanity to die before the benefits of the kingdom of heaven are available; but it does show the needy how to open their eyes, their spiritual perception, to the kingdom at hand. The prophet's question, "What hast thou in the house?" is just another way of saying, In what way are you thinking? A pot of oil seems a very small matter when viewed from the standpoint of material belief. On page 592 of Science and Health the metaphysical meaning of oil is given as "consecration; charity; gentleness; prayer; heavenly inspiration;" these all being qualities which can point in but one direction, and that upward, toward spiritual apprehension.

Humanity is prone to forget the oil in remembering the dimensions of the pot; but when the mental qualities which the oil represents, are poured forth even from the boundaries of human virtues, and are perceived to be impartations from divine Love, they will expand and enrich the nature even as the recognition of their abundance and dynamic power healed the fear and distress of this woman of Israel. Before the heavenly revelation comes to heal the problems of humanity, tired of illusions, suitable preparation must be made for its reception in consciousness. "Vessels . . . even empty vessels . . . not a few" must first be provided, because the reception of the divine inspiration must be free from any sense of crowding by human opinion, prejudice, or limitation. When the doors of consciousness are thus closed to the material misconceptions which would pursue the honest seeker for Truth, the thoughts that false belief would hold in bondage to pain, sorrow, lack, or fear become the very channels for healing,—for the ministering angels which tell of God's presence,—and the healing is inevitable. The oil, or inspiration, then pours forth as far as the thought has been prepared to understand and accept it.

On page 14 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy gives us such a clear understanding of the truth, that when the consciousness of God's ever-presence and all-power dawns upon the thought the problem is really solved. She says: "Become conscious for a single moment that Life and intelligence are purely spiritual,—neither in nor of matter,—and the body will then utter no complaints. If suffering from a belief in sickness, you will find yourself suddenly well." Though the patient knows he is healed, unenlightened humanity requires visible proof of the healing of the external, temporal problem in terms it can understand. Spiritual uplift cannot be offered as such in lieu of these visible manifestations, nor can it be forced on the thought not ready to perceive it.

Digitized by Google

So long as any material beliefs remain in the human thought, the operation of God's law will be translated into better belief as the result of spiritual uplift. The woman of the story was not bidden to pay the debt directly with the oil, but to sell the oil and then do so. There are those "poor in spirit," that "hunger and thirst after righteousness," who do not have even the pot of oil, or gospel message, to begin with. These gladly receive the oil and help to render, in turn, the material evidence which pays "the uttermost farthing" demanded by the so-called material law of health, supply, or happiness.

The sharing of the vision of Truth blesses the giver, and all within range of the healing are benefited, even though to some it may seem to be but the material payment of a material debt, or the healing of a sick physical body, which they have observed. And so the leaven of God's law, understood and demonstrated, is constantly working in the mass of human thought through Christian Science, and the cry "My husband is dead" changes from one of distress and hopelessness to a shout of joy, triumph, and dominion, heralding the glad day when all humanity shall, with St. John, see and know "a new heaven and a new earth," even that consciousness wherein "there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away."

✧

[Written for the Sentinel]

"He is risen!"

LILLIAN BARKER BEEDE

WHO shall roll us away the stone?
Asked the three as they walked alone,
At the dawn of a wondrous day,
Hearts enshrouded in sorrow's gloom.
Lo, they found as they reached the tomb,
That the stone had been rolled away.

Who shall roll us away the stone?
Asks the world with a weary moan,
At the dawn of a perfect day.
Seeking man in a fleshly tomb,
Error sealed with a stone of gloom,
Truth, we find, rolls the stone away.

Where have ye laid him? Mary cried,
Seeking him who was crucified.
"They have taken away my Lord!"
Swift she turned, as the Master's voice
Lifted thought to behold, rejoice,
Then sped away with the blessed word.

Where have ye laid him? the sad world cries,
Seeking Truth with its dream-bound eyes.
They have taken away our Lord!
Sweet the sound of the Master's voice,
Awakening thought to behold, rejoice,
In the life of the risen Word.

Selected Articles

[Avery Coonley in Rockford (Ill.) Morning Star]

Christian Science is evidently referred to when in an interesting article the writer says: "Churches sometimes go into the healing business. They think it is Christlike." Christian Scientists make Christian healing a definite part of the business of their church and of its members, and do so because they think it is Christlike. Their reason for so thinking is furnished in part by Jesus' innumerable healing works and partly by his many commands to his followers to heal the sick, coupled with such declarations as, "These signs shall follow them that believe; . . . they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover."

It is true that for nearly fifteen hundred years healing has not been a regular accompaniment of the exercise of the Christian religion; nevertheless, Christian Scientists conceive it to be both the duty and the privilege of Christians to take advantage of this healing method, and in practice they have found it more effective, as well as more uplifting and sustaining, than any other. In addition they regard this healing as important concrete evidence that they are thinking and living their Christianity.

Christian Scientists fully agree with the writer of the article in such vigorous statements as, "Everywhere the positiveness of goodness is underemphasized or ignored;" and, "Bad legislation, bad customs, bad prejudices, all go back to bad thinking." But they cannot agree that "the first principle of life is to be a good animal, the second to be a good thinker," nor with the writer's conclusions that Christianity should place hygiene above healing. There is little doubt that Jesus' understanding of the truth of being and that of those who followed his example was the greatest preventive of sickness of those times, just as it was the greatest means of cure; but the Bible record does not warrant the conclusion that "a church that will inculcate hygienic principles" so that they will be placed above cures by "faith" will prove to be "the church for the times."

Jesus' teaching appears to lead to a very different conclusion, for he said, "Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat; neither for the body, what ye shall put on," and declared eternal life to be not a matter of hygiene, but of knowing or right thinking, in that immortal sentence, "This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent." Christian Scientists have found these declarations of Jesus to be of the utmost practical value in their daily lives, and earnestly commend their careful consideration as a basis of thought and action.

✧

[Virgil H. Clymer in Syracuse (N. Y.) Herald]

It was not your correspondent's correct quotation from Christian Science authorities, but the deductions he made, which constituted his "man of straw," and his second letter only emphasizes his misunderstanding of the subject. He is misinformed about the case of infantile paralysis. Neither parent of the child was a Christian Scientist at the time. The physicians exhausted their resources before the parents turned to Christian Science, and there is no reason to doubt that both physicians and parents deserve praise rather than censure for their sincere efforts. Under the Christian Science treatment the child was greatly benefited.

Christian Science is the opposite of suggestive therapeutics. Two things could not be more unlike. The basis of suggestive therapeutics is a lie, i.e., the giving of an untrue suggestion to the patient. Jesus said the truth—not a lie or false suggestion—made free, and it is through the understanding of the Christ, Truth, that Christian Scientists bring about the healing of the sick and the sinning.

Digitized by Google

Your correspondent again misinterprets Christian Science when he tries to make your readers believe it teaches a world without law. It teaches the contrary. On page xi of the Preface to "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" Mrs. Eddy says: "The physical healing of Christian Science results now, as in Jesus' time, from the operation of divine Principle, before which sin and disease lose their reality in human consciousness and disappear as naturally and as necessarily as darkness gives place to light and sin to reformation. Now, as then, these mighty works are not supernatural, but supremely natural." Also on page 124 she says: "Spirit is the life, substance, and continuity of all things. We tread on forces. Withdraw them, and creation must collapse. Human knowledge calls them forces of matter; but divine Science declares that they belong wholly to divine Mind, are inherent in this Mind, and so restores them to their rightful home and classification."

The Christian Science lecturer was right if he said material laws are unstable, or that our physical senses are not sure guides. Everybody knows that when one looks along two parallel tracks in the distance they seem to meet; that the rising of the sun seems to prove its passage around the earth; that the prestidigitator deceives the senses in a thousand ways, but that knowing the truth about these matters corrects the "seeming," and healing is the result. Fear of the very material law which our critic so strenuously defends is the foundation of all disease—fear that the material laws are supreme and more powerful than spiritual law. In the unsanitary shop he mentions, perhaps greed caused the conditions, and fear of those conditions did the rest. Fear of poverty is the foundation of greed. Right thinking and acting by all connected with the shop would have met and mastered the greed and fear and prevented disease.

The assumption that Christian Scientists do not believe in cleanliness is unwarranted and ridiculous. Our critic knows better. Panama, which he mentions as if it were an argument against Christian Science, was cleaned up as a result of clean thinking preceding the work. The work of Christian Scientists at Panama was such that former President Taft, who was then in office, issued an order permitting the practice of Christian Science in the Canal Zone.

There is a saying that "a grain of proof is worth a pound of argument," and it is pertinent to quote from page 81 of "Miscellaneous Writings" where Mrs. Eddy says, "To prevent all unpleasant and unchristian action—as we drift, by right of God's dear love, into more spiritual lines of life—let each society of practitioners, the matter-physicians and the metaphysicians, agree to disagree, and then patiently wait on God to decide, as surely He will, which is the true system of medicine."

✧

[Carl E. Herring in The Hamilton County Register, Aurora, Neb.]

There exists a tendency to compare Christian Science with various phases of mind cures which may properly be included under the generic term of mental healing, and occasionally, from a superficial study, to regard them as being identical. Nothing could be farther from the fact; for, while conceding to the claimants of mental therapeutics every right to hold their own belief, it must be understood that there is a broader gulf between Christian Science and will-power than there is between Christian Science and the attenuated forms of medical practice. Christian Science stands squarely on the foundation of the allness of God, the supremacy of Spirit, God, and utterly denies the reality of evil, or that it forms any part of God's creation.

There are not two forces in the world contending for mastery,—good and evil,—and any system of healing which is based on the idea that evil is a force to be reckoned with as a reality, finds itself confronted with an entanglement which may be summarized as follows: If evil is a reality, God must have created it, or else God is not omnipotent; if God created evil, it is sacrilegious to oppose it; if we admit a creator other than God, we break the first commandment. This notion of a titanic struggle forever persisting between God and Satan as distinct entities is the creation of Milton and the theologians, not of Jesus and the apostles.

Mental healing does not refer the whole matter back to God, but substitutes will-power for the power of Almighty God. It then joins forces with what it conceives to be the better side, but always with dependence upon the human instead of the divine. When it does reach out after God, it still clutches the material remedies for safety, with the result that it fails to find God, or believes in a God of limited power. Christian Science is a sincere effort to reestablish the religion of Jesus of Nazareth, as practised by him and by the early Christian church. It asserts no claim to support from the public and excites no fears to win converts, but it does demand its right to stand unadulterated for what it claims, and freely grants to every other sect or school of thought the same privilege.

✧

[H. S. Hughes, Jr., in Milwaukee (Wis.) Sentinel]

One marvels at the strange perversity of the human mind in seeking information relative to the spiritual healing of Christian Science from a follower of material medicine. Take the same class of cultured gentlemen,—would they call in a sign painter to pass upon the genuineness of a Corot, or a ragtime composer to pass upon the merits of a classical composition, or a disciple of Buddha to analyze the New Testament? The doctors of divinity and medicine seem to overlook the fact that the followers of Christian Science are largely made up of those who have received through its teachings surcease from pain after material remedies have failed, and a spiritual illumination of the Scriptures which their former religious beliefs failed to give.

One needs a broad and compassionate vision to judge sanely the rapid changes and upheavals in the world today. As the individual demand for human betterment is overthrowing monarchies and revolutionizing nations, so Christian Science, revolutionary in its very name and nature, is causing no small stir in the realm of religion and medicine.

✧

[Charles W. J. Tennant in Dartmouth and South Hams (England) Chronicle]

In the report of an interesting lecture entitled "Is Organized Christianity Failing?" the lecturer refers to Christian Science as one of the various fashionable religious fads, or short cuts to the answer to the riddle of life. It is quite plain that the answer to the riddle of life must be found in gaining a demonstrable knowledge of God. Now Mrs. Eddy discovered that God is divine Principle, and that divine laws are the laws of divine Principle. She also saw that the prophets, Jesus, his disciples, and the early Christians understood and obeyed these laws, with the result that the sick and the sinning were healed.

What are popularly known as miracles are really marvels, or wonderful acts brought about by the spiritual understanding of divine law. When Jesus said that if one had "faith as a grain of mustard seed" one would be able to remove mountains, he certainly meant that if one had ever so little spiritual understanding of divine law one would be able to apply this understanding and bring about results which would be marvelous or seemingly miraculous to those who did not understand the Principle of them. Mrs. Eddy gives a definition of miracle on page 591 of Science and Health as "that which is divinely natural, but must be learned humanly."

Digitized by Google

Christian Science is in no way a short cut to the solution of any problem, but is the Christianly scientific way. There is always one right way, which is God's way. This is the shortest way certainly, but not a short cut. Our critic quotes part of the "scientific statement of being," from page 468 of Science and Health, as follows: "Spirit is the real and eternal; matter is the unreal and temporal. Spirit is God, and man is His image and likeness. Therefore man is not material; he is spiritual," and says, "This is Mrs. Eddy's philosophy in a nutshell." It will repay any one to think over this wonderful statement, for it certainly does put a lot in a nutshell. I do not suppose for a moment our critic would disagree with any part of it.

✧

[Aaron E. Brandt in Coatesville (Pa.) Record]

A sermon against Christian Science, as reported, bases the existence of Christian Science on the want of sanity and competent knowledge of the Scriptures on the part of its adherents. This is far from the truth and most unfortunate for the critic, for it convicts him of ignorance regarding the subject on the one hand, or of misrepresentation on the other.

In proof of this statement it can be said that a priest of an Episcopal church, about three years ago, publicly announced his conviction that "Protestantism must substantially adopt the faith and practice of Christian Science if its churches are to fulfil their mission to the world," and this conviction, he states, "is the result of several years' critical and philosophical investigation of the doctrines and practice of Christian Science." This clergyman gave evidence not only of being perfectly sane, but also of having an intelligence of an unusually high order. After such investigation from an unprejudiced standpoint he said, speaking of critics of Christian Science, "The denunciations by many ministers reveal a lack of thought and of kindness which raises a suspicion that the fear of losing members rather than love of truth may account for their hostility."

If our critic will study his Bible with the aid of the spiritual light which the text-book of Christian Science, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, throws upon it, sufficiently to enable him to heal the sick and practise the golden rule, he will never mention Christian Science except in terms of gratitude, because he will understand what Jesus meant when he said, "If ye continue in my word, . . . ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." The knowledge of this truth makes man free from the desire to criticize. Until our critic has reached the point where he can heal the sick by an understanding of the truth contained in the Bible, he should never attack those who are doing so, and have done so for years, to the lasting relief and gratitude of many thousands of people.

The critic's alleged reason for the existence of many new religions, namely, because "the old gospel is so hard to live," is not well founded. The new have sprung up because of the fact that a religion of faith without works is dead. The critic is not consistent in using the above statement against Christian Scientists, for although they formerly failed to comprehend the truth taught in the Bible, they have finally found by the aid of Christian Science how to live a Christian life more truly and practically, to the extent of overcoming sin, sickness, disease, and much fear and worry, as well as observing the golden rule more fully. They find this rule to be an essential element of Christianity, a fact which our critic seems to have overlooked entirely.

That people are swayed into accepting Christian Science through their emotions, as contended by the reverend critic, is no more true than that they are led by their emotions to use the science of mathematics. It is the truth taught in Christian Science that impresses them with an absolute conviction. Then our critic asserts that Christian Science is "a dangerous 'ism' because it is so optimistic." He might as well say it is dangerous because it is so good. It must be understood, however, that the optimism of Christian Science is not based on the belief that matter or evil is good and a necessary part of the divine plan, but on the understanding that God, Spirit, made all; that His creation is spiritual and "very good," to which nothing can be added and from which nothing can be taken away.

To say that Christian Science is not scientific is to assert that Christ Jesus' teaching is not stable or enduring, but varying and unreliable, for Christian Science has not a single idea in its teaching that is not based on his word and the Scriptures. It is to assert also that his teaching is illogical, undemonstrable, and therefore useless. Such statements do not honor Christ Jesus as the life, the truth, and the way, whose word shall not pass away. Mrs. Eddy says on page 313 of Science and Health that "Jesus of Nazareth was the most scientific man that ever trod the globe." The knowledge of Christ's teaching as scientific truth is daily healing thousands of people of sinful habits, sickness, and all inharmonies of mind and body, and many thousands more would come to Christian Science and be healed except for the prejudice created against it by misrepresentations made by critics, who therefore run the risk of being responsible for the needless prolongation of humanity's suffering. Of those who have repudiated Christ's teaching as scientific Christian truth demonstrable in every age, it must be said in his own words: "Ye have taken away the key of knowledge: ye entered not in yourselves, and them that were entering in ye hindered."

People are becoming more intelligent through a knowledge of Christian Science, and are beginning to ask themselves, "If our bodily ills are not healed by God, what assurance have we that our sins are forgiven, seeing that sin is the cause of such ills?" Or, "If by means of material medicine, which adds nothing to our mental purity and spirituality, we are temporarily relieved of bodily discomfort, what have we gained of true salvation?" They are asking that the "fruit of the Spirit" be taken as a test of true religion.

✧

[Lloyd B. Coate in Pemberville (Ohio) Leader]

Christian Science healing cannot be associated with any form of mesmerism. It is not accomplished through any action of the human mind or the control of one mortal mind over another mortal mind, or by any form of deception, but it is the divine Mind, acting upon the so-called human mind, which heals and saves. Jesus knew that the human mind was not a healer. He bore witness to this fact, saying, "I can of mine own self do nothing." He recognized God, divine Mind, as the only power which heals the sick and reforms the sinner, and this is the teaching of Christian Science.

Mrs. Eddy states in her text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (p. 375): "The Christian Scientist demonstrates that divine Mind heals, while the hypnotist dispossesses the patient of his individuality in order to control him. No person is benefited by yielding his mentality to any mental despotism or malpractice. All unscientific mental practice is erroneous and powerless, and should be understood and so rendered fruitless. The genuine Christian Scientist is adding to his patient's mental and moral power, and is increasing his patient's spirituality while restoring him physically through divine Love."

Digitized by Google

Editorial

Talking and Doing

It has sometimes been said of church people that they talk about their religion more than they practise it. This indictment of many Christians is well put by a writer in The Homiletic Review, who says in part:—

A tendency into which we easily fall is that of making religion consist of "words, words, words." Talking about God, expounding the experiences of them of old time, saying apt and lovely things about religion, occupy us much when we come together, and quite rightly so. But to what purpose do we talk about God if none of us can pause in our onward rush and find Him, actually meet with Him and enter into the joy of the Lord? What have we gained by recounting the experiences of past ages, if nobody now is to have similar experiences?

It is melancholy to hear of Bethels in the dim, far past if we are to conclude that the ladder between the soul and God has been pulled up, or pulled down, and that direct divine intercourse has ceased. The apt and lovely words about religion have place and meaning only if they create in us the passion and the positive intention to go ourselves on the spiritual pilgrimage, the goal of which is this holy of holies, where words about God fall away, since we have entered into the joy of His real presence.

Fortunately for a large proportion of Christian Scientists they are not making this mistake. They are not simply talking about their religion: they are talking it to the advantage of their hearers who wish to know what it is, but what is of greater moment, they are practising it in every incident of daily life and thus making their actions more eloquent than their words could possibly be. The narratives of the healing of the man who was born blind, of the man with the withered hand, of the woman who had "a spirit of infirmity eighteen years," are replete with inspiration; but if these incidents of the Master's work are to be regarded as simply pertaining to a day that is gone, a closed book in the history of mankind, rather than as examples which Christians of today may and should emulate and duplicate, then their usefulness is largely lost and religion descends to the level of the theoretical instead of the practical.

Jesus regarded the healing work which he accomplished from day to day as the guaranty of his spiritual or Messianic status; and that he relied upon it to enable others to estimate rightly the truth and the value of his doctrines was amply proved in the message which he sent to John, and again in his instructions to the twelve and the seventy when he sent them forth with the warning that they would be "as lambs among wolves" because of mortal mind's hatred of what they would offer.

Analogous to the fact that men talk about their religion more than they practise it, is the fact that they talk about human rights in the abstract much more than they practise these rights as they affect all mankind. In these days of world turmoil and stress there is, however, one thing which stands out beyond all others, namely, that the universality of human liberty is more clearly defined and demanded than ever before. The extremes of mass and class are drawing nearer together than heretofore, and the days of the so-called "divine right of kings" are drawing closer to the end. In other words, the universal democracy which grants to all men equal rights and equal opportunities and responsibilities is surely and steadily coming into its own.

The asserted right of men of a self-appointed class to dominate and control the actions and the living conditions of other men, a claim which has so long been blindly submitted to by the governed, perhaps without knowing why, is fast giving way to a more enlightened doctrine, the long delayed fruitage of the primal mandate of creation: "God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them." From this basic statement of equality are deduced the self-evident truths "that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed." This is the clearest statement of human rights that has been made in the founding of any nation, but there has since been made in behalf of all mankind a higher and greater declaration, to the effect that "man is properly self-governed only when he is guided rightly and governed by his Maker, divine Truth and Love" (Science and Health, p. 106).

When this divine right, impartial in its application, is thoroughly understood, and mankind have realized that in truth they are subject to but one lawmaker and but one governor, even God, then the brotherhood of man and the fatherhood of God will be seen to be universal, and the rights of man will be "fully known and acknowledged" (Science and Health, p. 227). It is the duty of those who profess these truths not simply to talk about them, but rather, as the writer first cited has so well said, to "pause in our onward rush and find Him, actually meet with Him and enter into the joy of the Lord."

Archibald McLellan.

✧

Individuality Protected

In the tenth chapter of John's gospel we read that when Jesus sought to warn his disciples of the thieves and robbers which would seek to take from them their spiritual possessions, they did not understand the warning given. He then presented the truth by other figures, speaking of the Christ-idea expressed by him as "the shepherd" and also as "the door." In strong contrast with the mortal beliefs which come but "to steal, and to kill, and to destroy," he declared, "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly."

On another occasion the Master asked his listeners what advantage a man would have if he were to "gain the whole world, and lose himself." Before one could lose himself, however, he must first find himself, which from the viewpoint of Christian Science would mean that he must know himself as God's idea, and this once found could never be lost. On page 6 of "Unity of Good" by Mrs. Eddy is this remarkable passage: "Sooner or later the whole human race will learn that, in proportion as the spotless selfhood of God is understood, human nature will be renovated, and man will receive a higher selfhood, derived from God, and the redemption of mortals from sin, sickness, and death be established on everlasting foundations."

With this glorious prospect before us, we may well press on "toward the mark," as St. Paul said he was ever doing, all the time guarding against the subtle and aggressive mortal beliefs which would rob us of this true selfhood, this divinely bestowed individuality. All along the way of human experience, from childhood to mature age, we have glimpses of the beauty and attractiveness of the true self, the reflection of God's idea; but unless we guard all the avenues of thought and do this consciously and constantly, we are likely to be robbed of this priceless spiritual heritage, and made to manifest that which is neither loving nor lovable.

The work of the robber is very much in evidence in attacks of sickness,—the sufferer having been robbed of courage, that divine bestowal which is of far greater value than any earthly jewel. Nor is this all, for the "good cheer" which Christ

Digitized by Google

Jesus so often called for seems to be absent, to say nothing of the unselfishness, the peace, and the joy which all belong to our true individuality. On page 246 of Science and Health we read: "The measurement of life by solar years robs youth and gives ugliness to age. The radiant sun of virtue and truth coexists with being." Mortal belief, that treacherous robber, comes of course in darkness, and yet there is no night in the presence of God; so that, if we keep ourselves awake and look toward this radiant sun, the thief will never be able to find entrance to our consciousness. The mortal robber has no power to do anything except as we ourselves open the door and give a faint-hearted assent to the entrance of that which would take from us our priceless treasures bestowed by Truth and Love. In the ninety-first psalm we read, "Thou shalt not be afraid for the terror by night; nor for the arrow that flieth by day; nor for the pestilence that walketh in darkness." This protection, be it noted, is for the one who makes God his refuge.

In our work for others it is well to keep this ever before us,—to remind them of what their true selfhood ever is; and if relief is needed from the oppressive sense of mortal woes, the passage already quoted from "Unity of Good" will bring to us a rare remedy for any and every mortal ill. God's man can neither hurt nor be hurt, he can neither rob nor be robbed, of aught that God gives; and with this held constantly in view we should count our possessions ofttimes; and if we seem to have lost any of them, we cannot too soon set about recovering them. All the while we must remember the Master's warning respecting the thief that would steal, kill, and destroy, but we must never forget the life giving promise which accompanies the warning,—that life, and life ever more abundant, is bestowed upon us by our heavenly Father, and brought to us through the ever present Christ.

ANNIE M. KNOTT.

Bread of Life

THE battle cry for bread is heard among the nations. It is sweeping aside class and caste, special privilege and unearned profit, freeing prisoners, and forcing the surrender of organized evil. Overnight as it seemed, in three short days as history records, the largest continental nation in the world won its freedom with the battle cry for bread. Autocracy pinched by war produced an artificial shortage of food. Democracy demanded to be fed; autocracy, thinking to suppress freedom, attacked, and instead forged a new nation, the latest arrival among the republics, founded upon a loaf of bread. The calculated cruelties, mock heroics, and costly spy systems of pretended supermen spell want and famine for the rank and file, and to avert universal desolation the democracies of the earth are now uniting to maintain that of which the loaf of bread is today the symbol.

In this cooperation the peoples are finding each other, and thereby the brotherhood of man. Every loaf is the result of a network of common endeavor crossing continents and spanning the seas, linking one to the other the men and their womenkind, the plowman, the sower of the seed, the harvester, the miller and the baker, the housewife and the kitchen maid, the makers of machinery, the builders of barns, railroads, elevators, and ships, the farmer's wife, the stenographer, and the woman legislator.

Humanity's cry for bread is the outward expression of an inner want, of a spiritual desire. The temporal need may be met by material bread, but the spiritual craving will not be satisfied with anything less than that "bread of heaven" of which if a man eat he shall never hunger again.

In the light of Christian Science what is this bread which alone can still the persistent cry of the nations? Mrs. Eddy has answered on page 35 of Science and Health, "Our bread, 'which cometh down from heaven,' is Truth." The peoples of the world are crying for Truth, for God, for His infinite compassion, His protection, for the satisfying substance which faileth not, for eternal Life, absolute Truth, divine Love. This was the bread with which Jesus fed the multitudes; this the bread which the writer of Ecclesiastes bids us cast "upon the waters" and promises us we shall find again "after many days;" this the bread which Mrs. Eddy, writing of the last supper, tells us the disciples had borne "from house to house, breaking (explaining) it to others, and now it comforted themselves" (p. 33).

In order that the loaf may be fit for food, the wheat seed must be good; at the time of harvest the tares must be separated and burned, and in the winnowing the chaff must be blown away by the free winds of heaven. Then, in order to make the loaf palatable, there must be the leaven "which a woman took, and hid in three measures of meal, till the whole was leavened"—and what is that leaven? Mrs. Eddy says: "The leaven which a woman took and hid in three measures of meal, is Divine Science; the Comforter; the Holy Ghost that leadeth into all Truth; the 'still, small voice' that breathes His presence and power, casting out error and healing the sick. And woman, the spiritual idea, takes of the things of God and showeth them unto the creature, until the whole sense of being is leavened with Spirit" (Miscellaneous Writings, p. 174).

This then is the meaning of your battle cry for bread, O nations of the world! The attempt has been made to starve you into submission. You ask to be fed and your desire seems to be material, but in reality it is spiritual. Christian Science is ready to break bread with you by explaining Truth, and a woman has leavened your loaf so that, as you partake of this heavenly food, you may know God and man and thus find your own real selves in deed and in truth. The wise men of the east have come to the west to celebrate this communion, and they will go home filled with that which alone can truly federate the nations and ensure their lasting peace, establishing the rights of mankind, liberty, equality, and fraternity.

WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN.

Among the Churches

Current Notes

RHODE ISLAND.—On Sunday afternoon, Feb. 18, a Christian Science service was held at the Rhode Island State Prison. This occasion marked an epoch in the growth of Christian Science in this state, and especially in this institution, for it was not so very long ago when even our literature was refused. Now, its library of about six thousand volumes contains all of Mrs. Eddy's works, including six copies of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," and several copies of the Sentinel, Journal, and Monitor are being received regularly,—all donated by the Trustees under the Will of Mary Baker Eddy. For the past year or more a few of the men who have become interested in Christian Science have been reading the Lesson-Sermons together. At their request to the committee on publication for a regular service, and with the permission of the efficient warden, who is justly liberal in his views, two of the former readers of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Providence, filled the need.

Committee on Publication.

Digitized by Google

MAINE.—During the year ended Oct. 31, thirteen replies have been presented to the press in correction of erroneous and misleading articles about Christian Science. These were all printed in the newspapers which had previously printed the false reports. Editors are generally inclined to be fair with Christian Science and have given considerable space to corrections and reports of lectures. Ten lectures delivered in this state were published in full. Then a large number of reprints from the Christian Science periodicals—the Sentinel, the Journal, and the Monitor—have appeared in newspapers, some of these articles, both metaphysical and news items, being selected by the editors themselves. About nineteen thousand pieces of literature have been distributed by this office during the year. Previous to this year, through the kindness of the Trustees under the Will of Mary Baker Eddy, nearly one hundred libraries had been supplied with Mrs. Eddy's writings, the Christian Science periodicals, and other authorized literature. The work has been continued this year, nearly a score of libraries having been supplied, and subscriptions to the periodicals having been renewed in every case where it was desired or advisable.

Committee on Publication.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—Fourth Church of Christ, Scientist, has purchased two lots on the corner of Park Avenue and Thirty-first Street. This location is sightly and attractive, Park Avenue being one of the most beautiful avenues of the city. The church edifice which it is expected will be built on this property in the near future, will serve the large south section of Minneapolis.

Admission to Membership in The Mother Church

The next admission of candidates will be June 1, 1917. Application blanks may be obtained by addressing the Clerk of The Mother Church, and should be returned to him on or before Wednesday, May 9, 1917.

An application sent to the Clerk does not constitute the applicant a member. Notice of election will be sent to those who are admitted to membership.

Those who have made application for membership prior to Nov. 3, 1916, and have not received notice of election, may communicate with the Clerk if they so desire, and are especially requested to do so before sending in a second application.

JOHN V. DITTEMORE, Clerk,
236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

The Lectures

TUNBRIDGE WELLS, KENT, ENGLAND (Society).—John Sydney Braithwaite, lecturer; introduced by Charles W. J. Tennant, who said in part:—

In these crucial times in the world's history, when men and nations are being tested and purified morally, politically, and socially, it is interesting to note that their religions are not exempt from this testing and purifying process. The demand today is for proof rather than profession in religious matters. Primitive Christianity, as taught and practised by Jesus, his disciples, and the early Christians, was a daily demonstration of the power of God in healing the sick, reforming the sinner, raising the dead, and performing many other wonderful works through spiritual understanding. These practical proofs of Christianity gradually died out as the world sank into the dark ages. In her discovery of Christian Science Mrs. Eddy has revealed the divine Principle and rule by which these works of old were performed.

DENVER, COL. (Fourth Church).—Virgil O. Strickler, lecturer; introduced by Fred C. Putcamp, who said in part:—

You who are toiling in the sea of scholastic theology, philosophy, hygiene, and material medicine, and have caught nothing, are you thinking that the only way out of your difficulties is by material means? Have you been taught to believe that spiritual healing is dead, or a thing of the past? Have you been casting your net on the wrong side? The same Christ who spoke to the fishermen two thousand years ago is speaking to you. The same truth is commanding you to cast your net on the right side, and that truth is Christian Science. Christian Science is telling you to give up your wrong thinking; to stop believing that discouragement, fear, sorrow, disease, and death are true. Christian Science is telling you to think rightly, for as a man "thinketh in his heart, so is he."—Denver News.

LOUISVILLE, KY. (Second Church).—Dr. Walton Hubbard, lecturer; introduced by Judge Samuel W. Greene, who said in part:—

Christian Science is a religion of larger appeal than one has been wont to find in the churches of the older denominations. In addition to offering salvation from sin, it also teaches one the way to be saved from sickness, sorrow, want, and every other human woe. Jesus so taught as he walked among men, but his teaching had been narrowed during the centuries succeeding his ministry,—narrowed until it offered only a hope for future salvation, a heaven to be located somewhere beyond the river of death. But Christian Science, as revealed by Mrs. Eddy, teaches that the salvation offered by Christ Jesus is for men now, a practical, workable religion for every-day problems as well as for eternity.

CLEVELAND, OHIO (Third Church).—Ezra W. Palmer, lecturer; introduced by James Dunn, Jr., who said in part:—

It is sometimes said that Christian Science is not Christian; but, speaking from actual experience, I can say most positively that it is. During my earlier years I was a regular attendant at Sunday school, as evidenced by several golden rolls of honor and a merit of reward for perfect attendance; but when entering young manhood I took to material pursuits and drifted away, and for ten or twelve years did not go to church. At no time during that period did I find it an advantage, in order to be relieved from several discords in life, to look within the pages of the Bible. But when Christian Science was demonstrated to me through the healing of several of my physical ills, I began to study the Bible, and found it absolutely necessary to have it as a daily companion. This is the experience of every earnest student of Christian Science, and it proves that this teaching must be Christian, as it is making men, women, and children strive for better things.

BURBANK, CAL. (auspices Glendale, First Church).—Bicknell Young, lecturer; introduced by Dale G. Vaughan, who said in part:—

Many an inquiring mind is asking, What is the cause of the phenomenal growth of Christian Science? It is best answered by the redeemed and regenerated lives of Christian Scientists themselves. When Christian Science comes into a man's life, it makes a better man of him, not better than other men but a better man than he was before, and it does this by giving him a God who is Love, unchanging, all powerful good.

The world has generally acknowledged that God is good, but it has just as generally believed that evil is as real and powerful as good. Christian Science maintains that good alone is real and eternal, and it is proving its position by healing both disease and sin through prayer. The understanding and proof which it brings to its adherents of the reality of good and the unreality of evil accounts for the peace, happiness, and gratitude which every Christian Scientist experiences.—Burbank Review.

Digitized by Google

CAMBRIDGE, MASS. (First Church).—Charles I. Ohrenstein, lecturer; introduced by Robert E. Buffum, who said in part:—

One of the first things that an earnest investigator observes about the teachings of Christian Science is the encouragement that is given for individual spiritual thinking. One may read the writings of Mrs. Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, from beginning to end, and nowhere will he find a word of discouragement or mysticism. Nowhere is it stated or indicated that spiritual truths are to be understood by only a privileged few. On the contrary, one soon perceives that the benefits of Christian Science are for him as well as for others and that it offers a logical, comprehensive, and satisfactory explanation of those questions which may have perplexed and disturbed him for years. Although Christian Science may not be comprehended at first, there is always the comforting assurance that an honest and persistent effort to understand and prove its teachings is abundantly rewarded. All may now, in some degree, understand, live, and demonstrate it. Indeed the great growth of the Christian Science movement is due to the fact that Christian Science is a demonstrable religion.

The Cambridge Tribune.

CHICAGO, ILL. (Fifteenth Church).—John Randall Dunn, lecturer; introduced by Charles H. Hale, who said in part:—

Today as in the days of Jesus the Christ the omnipotence and omnipresence of God is again demonstrated in the healing of the sick and the sinning. The watchword of Christian Science may be truly stated in these words: "To injure no man, but to bless all mankind" (The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany, p. 353). The apostle Paul said, "Love is the fulfilling of the law." Love is unselfish; therefore it cannot exist alone but requires all mankind to share it, and this lecture is given in the hope that we may truly share with you this healing truth.

Lectures to be Delivered

[By Members of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.]

ARKANSAS—Walnut Ridge: John Randall Dunn, Sharum Theater, 8 p.m., May 3.

CALIFORNIA—Antioch: Paul Stark Seeley, Belshaw Theater, 8 p.m., April 29.
Berkeley: William W. Porter, High School Auditorium, 8 p.m., April 23.
Glendale: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Church Edifice, Second and Maryland Avenue, 8 p.m., April 29.
Los Angeles (Third Church): Charles I. Ohrenstein, Church Edifice, 734 South Hope Street, 3 p.m., April 28, and 8 p.m., April 30.
Los Angeles (Ninth Church): Charles I. Ohrenstein, Church Edifice, 430 South New Hampshire Avenue, 8 p.m., May 4.
San Francisco (Fifth Church): Bliss Knapp, Dreamland Rink, 8 p.m., April 30, and Native Sons Hall, 8 p.m., May 1.
Santa Monica: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Santa Monica Bay Woman's Club, 8 p.m., May 1.
Taft: Paul Stark Seeley, I. O. O. F. Hall, 8 p.m., April 28.

CANADA—Toronto, Ontario (First Church): John Randall Dunn, Church Edifice, St. George Street and Lowther Avenue, 8 p.m., April 29, and 8 p.m., April 30.

COLORADO—Gunnison: Ezra W. Palmer, Unique Theater, 8 p.m., May 4.
Telluride: Ezra W. Palmer, Recreation Hall, 8 p.m., May 3.

CONNECTICUT—Hartford (First Church): William R. Rathvon, Parsons Theater, 3:30 p.m., April 29.

ILLINOIS—Quincy: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Church Edifice, Vermont and Eighteenth Streets, 7:45 p.m., April 28 and 29.

INDIANA—Fort Wayne: Dr. Francis J. Fluno, Majestic Theater, 8:15 p.m., May 4.
New Castle: Dr. Francis J. Fluno, Kaler Theater, 3 p.m., April 29.
Peru: Bicknell Young, Wallace Theater, 3 p.m., April 29.

IOWA—Ottumwa: Bicknell Young, Grand Opera House, 8 p.m., April 26.

MAINE—Calais: Clarence W. Chadwick, Church Edifice, Germain Street, 7:30 p.m., May 1.

MARYLAND—Hagerstown: William W. Porter, Court Hall, 8 p.m., May 3.

MASSACHUSETTS—Amesbury: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Crown Theater, 3 p.m., April 29.
Melrose: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Memorial Hall, 8 p.m., April 30.
Reading: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Church Edifice, Lowell and Sanborn Streets, 8 p.m., May 1.
Somerville: Clarence W. Chadwick, Somerville Theater, Davis Square, 3:30 p.m., April 29.

MICHIGAN—Ann Arbor (Society, University of Michigan): John Randall Dunn, University Hall, State Street, near Williams Street, 8 p.m., May 1.
Battle Creek: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Post Theater, McCamly Street, 8 p.m., May 4.
Fremont: William R. Rathvon, Opera House, 8 p.m., April 24.
Lansing: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Prudden Auditorium, 8 p.m., May 3.

NEBRASKA—Lincoln: William W. Porter, Church Edifice, Twelfth and L Streets, 3 p.m., April 29.

NEW JERSEY—Mountain Lakes: Clarence W. Chadwick, Mountain Lakes Club House, 8:30 p.m., April 26.
Ridgefield Park: William R. Rathvon, Auditorium, School No. 4, 8:15 p.m., May 3.
Rutherford: George Shaw Cook, Masonic Hall, Park Avenue, 8:15 p.m., May 4.

NEW MEXICO—Roswell: Paul Stark Seeley, Masonic Temple, Pennsylvania Avenue and Fourth Street, 8 p.m., May 3.

NEW YORK—Brooklyn (Second Church): Clarence W. Chadwick, Masonic Temple, Clarmont and Lafayette Avenues, 8 p.m., May 3.
New York (Second Church): Clarence W. Chadwick, Church Edifice, Central Park West and Sixty-eighth Street, 8 p.m., May 4.

OHIO—Conneaut: George Shaw Cook, City Hall, 8 p.m., April 24.

OKLAHOMA—Enid: Bliss Knapp, Tabernacle, 3 p.m., April 22.

OREGON—Lebanon: Bliss Knapp, Kuhn Theater, 8 p.m., May 3.
Oregon City: Bliss Knapp, Busch's Hall, 8 p.m., May 4.

PENNSYLVANIA—Sewickley: George Shaw Cook, Sewickley Theater, 3 p.m., April 29.

WASHINGTON—Aberdeen: Virgil O. Strickler, Grand Theater, Market Street, 8 p.m., May 1.
Puyallup (Society): Virgil O. Strickler, I. O. O. F. Hall, 8 p.m., May 3.
Snohomish: Virgil O. Strickler, Eagles Hall, 8:30 p.m., April 28.
Spokane (Second Church): Virgil O. Strickler, Auditorium Theater, 8 p.m., May 4.
Tacoma: Virgil O. Strickler, Tacoma Theater, 3 p.m., April 29.
Winlock: Virgil O. Strickler, Mutrie's Hall, 8:15 p.m., April 30.

WISCONSIN—Appleton: Bicknell Young, Congregational Church, 8:15 p.m., April 30.
Fort Atkinson: Bicknell Young, Lyric Opera House, 8:15 p.m., May 4.
Janesville: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Church Edifice, 323 Pleasant Street, 8:15 p.m., April 30.
Marinette: Bicknell Young, Church Edifice, Stephenson and Liberty Streets, 8 p.m., May 3.
Neillsville: Bicknell Young, Church Edifice, 8 p.m., May 1.
Rice Lake: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Lyric Theater, 7:45 p.m., May 1.

Digitized by Google

Testimonies of Healing

Christian Science has done so much for us that I gladly give this testimony, with the hope that it may help some one who is struggling for the truth. I had spent the summer of 1915 in Oregon, and was returning to my home in Nevada with my daughter, a baby of eleven months, when she became ill. On reaching San Francisco we went to a rooming house, and I applied what few restoratives I knew how to administer, but to no good effect. The second day I called a doctor, and the third day telegraphed to my husband, who was in Nevada, to come to us.

We had three doctors in all, two of whom were specialists on babies' diseases. At first they gave us great hope of her recovery, but after about twelve days they told us they could do no more; that the child had tubercular spinal meningitis and could not live more than a day or two. They also said they had no record of a case of this type ever having been healed; that if the patients lived they were blind, deaf, or had some deformity.

We knew nothing of Christian Science, but several days before this a friend had called and left a copy of Science and Health, asking us to read certain parts of it. Very little of it was read, and that little was meaningless to us at the time; but when the doctors said they could do no more, we obtained the name and address of a practitioner from this friend, as we were ready to try anything that held out a hope of saving the baby. That evening we called on the practitioner, and she said she would come to our rooms the following day, after we had dismissed the doctor; so the next morning we told the doctor that since he could do no more for the child we had decided to try Christian Science.

When the practitioner came the baby was indeed very low. It seemed as if she were only living from hour to hour. The practitioner asked to be left alone with her for a short time, and when we returned to the room the baby had been asleep, but awoke as we came in. When water was put into her mouth she swallowed it, and soon was taking milk from a bottle, for the first time in three days. Then followed hours of restful sleep for her, and such a sense of peace came to us,—the "peace of God, which passeth all understanding."

Sometimes it seemed to us that the healing was slow, but every day there was some change for the better, and in a month we were able to go home with a baby who was well in every way, and who did not look as if she had ever been sick. Within four months after the healing took place she had learned to walk, had cut four teeth, and was saying a great many words. She is normal in every way and not a trace of the disease is left.

Since this experience I have laid off glasses that had been worn for eight years. For these blessings, and for many others, I am truly thankful to God, as well as grateful to Mrs. Eddy for showing us the way.

Mrs. J. W. Berg, Round Mountain, Nev.

✧

About twenty years ago my mother called me to see what she thought were four abnormal growths. I immediately called a surgeon, who diagnosed the trouble as hernia. He said it was useless to operate, as the case was incurable, and ordered her to wear a truss, charging her never to step without it, as the slightest slip would mean strangulation of the bowels. He also said that she must take medicine every day for bowel inaction. For fourteen years my mother made the trip to New York every year, in order to have the same physician treat her and make the necessary adjustments in her support.

Six years ago a Christian Science practitioner was asked to treat her for chronic bronchitis. I did not dream that she would think of having treatment for the hernia, but the practitioner treated her not only for the throat affection but for this trouble, and she was absolutely healed. Three years later she was examined by the surgeon, but he could not find even a sore spot. My mother is alive and well, and I gladly give this testimony, as it may help some one who is suffering from the same trouble.—Grace L. Dawson, New York, N. Y.

✧

A few years ago I became interested in Christian Science and since then have had many demonstrations. One of the most beautiful proofs of the protecting power of divine Love was experienced by me in the fall of 1915. In hunting for a golf ball I missed my footing and fell, striking on my wrist. The pain was intense, but I repeated the "scientific statement of being" (Science and Health, p. 468), and declared the allness of God and His perfect creation. I played a while longer but could not control my club, so returned home and called a practitioner by telephone. Treatment was given me, and in about fifteen minutes all pain had gone and I fell asleep.

On awaking, two hours later, I hurried to keep two business engagements, although the hand was hanging by my side and very much swollen. As the pain began again, I went to see the practitioner, telling her that I thought the wrist was broken. Although the pain was intense, in about twenty minutes I was so much relieved that I fell asleep and slept quite an hour. When my husband arrived he wished me to have the wrist set at once. I told him I would do so if he very much desired it, but that divine Love had taken all pain away, and I knew the same power would heal my wrist. I proposed waiting until morning, and when he realized that I was not suffering, he consented.

The next morning I was so much better that I did not go to the doctor, but went on declaring the truth and holding the thought of God's perfect creation. As we were moving into a new house, I was kept very busy and used my hand constantly. In about four weeks I had an X-ray photograph made of the wrist. The doctor telephoned next morning, saying he was sending me the photograph, and that my wrist had been broken all the way across in a double break. When asked what I should do for it, he said nothing needed to be done; that it was a splendid knit and a beautiful set.

It makes me very happy to tell of this demonstration. I have also been healed of what was called valvular heart trouble, of deafness, and of many minor ailments. I am indeed thankful to Mrs. Eddy for bringing us this great truth.—Lily F. Greiner, Baltimore, Md.

✧

In October, 1914, I first heard of Christian Science and of its power to heal, and immediately began the study of all the authorized literature I was able to secure, and to attend the services of the Christian Science Society. For ten years I had been a sufferer from a bad case of stomach trouble. Every fall colds would set in, later developing into more serious afflictions, which sometimes lasted all winter. Through application of the truth I have been entirely freed from both these conditions, and have been able to overcome many other difficulties, both physical and financial; indeed, I am daily proving that divine Love meets every need.

When I first learned of this healing truth my wife had been an invalid for a year and a half, but through constant study and application of the teachings of Christian Science, and the help of a practitioner for a period of three weeks, she was entirely healed, and is now in better health than she has ever been. Last spring I had such a serious attack of ptomaine poisoning that it was thought I could not survive through the night. While both my wife and I had a slight knowledge of Christian Science, we were unable to overcome the trouble, so in the morning my wife telephoned to a practitioner who lived some eighteen miles distant. In a few hours I was much improved, and in a week was completely healed and able to resume my work; whereas a similar attack, occurring about two years prior to this one and before I knew anything of Science, had held me in its grasp for several weeks. At that time I was confined to bed for ten days and unable to work for five weeks, although one of the best physicians in the South attended me.

Digitized by Google

For these blessings, and for many others, I am most grateful, also for the Christian Science literature, which enables us to get a clearer understanding of the truth, thereby giving us renewed strength.

WILBUR E. WHYTE, Meridian, Miss.

The above statements of my husband are true. We had gone to Bowling Green, Ky., in the hope that a change of climate would benefit my health, and were so much impressed with the home life of a young man who was a friend of my husband that we decided to attend his church. There we found the truth, which has freed me from an intestinal abscess that had drained continuously for many months, and from severe intestinal adhesions, for which I had had four surgical operations and had tried all known material remedies, including X-ray and strict adherence to hygiene.

For these and for many other demonstrations of the healing power of divine Truth, I am indeed thankful to God, and also grateful to our Leader, who showed us the way.

MRS. W. E. WHYTE.

✧

[Translated from the French]

In the Psalms we read of those who "cry unto the Lord in their trouble, and he saveth them out of their distresses." We further read, "He sent his word, and healed them, and delivered them from their destructions." My gratitude to Christian Science is great, for through it God has sent His word and made me whole. Five years ago, discouraged by the unsuccessful use of material means for the healing of a disease of the respiratory organs, I turned to Christian Science, without any knowledge as to its nature except that by it the sick were healed. A practitioner gave me a few explanations, which were followed by one treatment. On the next day, which was Sunday, I attended a service, and experienced relief. I felt greatly attracted toward this teaching, and thus the way to my healing was open.

Today I am grateful for having found health, but far more so for the renewing of my mind. Christian Science has met a sincere desire on my part to know something of God. The study of the Bible in connection with Science and Health brought me great joy, for while I had subscribed to no religious faith since childhood days, this study brought with it the realization of an inward desire. I learned that God is Spirit, Life, Love, that He is an ever present help, and that man has no being apart from the divine all-power. This assurance has been given me repeatedly in cases of illness to which our little girl had become subject. She is now in good health and knows that God is the great Physician.

I am very grateful indeed for the French translations of Christian Science literature which have been published of late. Those who are athirst for truth say in the words of the woman of Samaria, "Sir, give me this water, that I thirst not;" and they are satisfied. May all who thirst and are suffering come to this source of living water. Words fail to express my gratitude for the work accomplished by Mrs. Eddy, the Discoverer of Christian Science, and for the labors of all who are engaged in its practice. I feel that I can do no better than to try faithfully to conform to its teachings, remembering all the while, as we read on page 206 of Science and Health, that "whatever blesses one blesses all."—MME. JEANNE PANCHAUD, Geneva, Switzerland.

✧

About three years ago I became interested in Christian Science and was healed of heart disease and nervous exhaustion by reading Science and Health. Some time later I asked for help to gain a better understanding of the truth, and am most grateful for the benefits received. I was healed of anemia, from which I had suffered all my life and for which several physicians had treated me; also of female complaint. My environment was such that I had been associated with the saloon business most of my life, but through the study and application of Christian Science I have been lifted out of it; and for this demonstration words cannot express my gratitude.

I had never professed any religion, and had lived in absolute ignorance of God all my life, so Christian Science has been a revelation to me. My gratitude goes out to God for the spiritual uplift I have received. Christian Science is helping me to overcome temper and resentment, self-condemnation and self-justification. It is gradually lifting the veil of material sense and enabling me to see the light.

I am sincerely grateful for the Christian Science literature, and for the privilege of attending the church services, which have been a great help to me. My heart overflows with gratitude to Mrs. Eddy for that wonderful book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," which has enabled me to gain some understanding of the truth. It is my earnest desire to live to be worthy of the name Christian Scientist, and to be able to help others as I have been helped.

ISABEL KAEHLER, Wiley, Col.

✧

The truth of the statement that "man's extremity is God's opportunity" was exemplified in my case. For six years I had been ill as the result of a general breakdown. I was anemic, and suffered from stomach, liver, and heart trouble. I had been unable to lie on my left side for three years, and was confined to the bed for three months. The physician worked over me faithfully, and I improved sufficiently to move around slowly, but remained very feeble for three months. Another doctor treated me for a few weeks, and then said no medicine could help me, as my blood was poisoned, but that the ocean air might prove beneficial.

My husband advised me to spend the winter with our son in New York City, but thought it best for me to visit his people in Virginia first. In passing through Washington I stopped off to see a friend who was a Christian Science practitioner. When asked to explain Christian Science to me, she gladly did so, and though some of the statements I was reluctant to accept, nevertheless I asked for treatment.

I had not had a full night's sleep for six years, but that night I was asleep ten minutes after retiring, and did not awaken until six o'clock in the morning. More than that, I had been lying on my left side without experiencing any inconvenience whatever, and felt like a new person. The following day I went on to New York, where I secured a copy of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, and soon found that it answered many questions which had puzzled me. The study turned my attention to my thought, and I found much work to be done in overcoming malice, hatred, criticism, and the like.

Digitized by Google

In a month I was able to return home, but I had learned that it was not salt water air I had needed, but the understanding of man's relationship to God. My eyelids became paralyzed, so that I could not close them, then on my way home I took cold, and it seemed to settle in my eyes so that I could not see to read. When I called on a practitioner for help I was wearing colored glasses, as I could not stand the light. She told me that I might take off my glasses if I cared to do so, and then gave me Science and Health to read. I had just told her I could not see to read, but took the book and looked at the truth, as I knew it to be, and soon could see to read perfectly.

The healing was instantaneous. What I was reading so interested me that I forgot the practitioner, until she said, "I see you are reading." I have not worn glasses since that hour four years ago, although I had previously used them for reading and sewing; and as material beliefs were overcome with spiritual understanding, the eyelids and eyeballs were healed. I am now a well woman, and am striving daily to be about my Father's business; but my joy is in the spiritual understanding of the Bible as interpreted by Mrs. Eddy.—Emma S. Ford, Grand Rapids, Mich.

✧

[Translated from the German]

I would like to express my gratitude for the many blessings experienced through Christian Science. For fourteen years I was afflicted with a trouble which manifested itself in all sorts of ways. I had to stay in bed a good deal of the time, and the last five years was able to walk only with a stick, which meant a great effort. Every physician consulted said there was no hope, and that my prospects were either an insane asylum or death; and the latter would, as I thought, alone free me of my suffering, which at times was intense.

Shortly before this I had heard of Christian Science through people with whom I was well acquainted, and who told me of the blessings which have come to mankind through this teaching. In this hour of need I asked an adherent for treatment, and bought the text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, also a copy of the Herold. From then on I, with my husband and child, began to have practical evidence of the power of divine Love, and in three weeks I was completely restored and able to attend to all my household duties. I was freed from all my troubles—of abdominal complaint, displaced kidneys, pain in the stomach, weak heart action, also a supposedly incurable nervous disease, and was able to walk as well and as much as any healthy person. I cannot help telling my fellow beings of this, in order that those who are in need may find comfort, and know that there is help even in cases where the difficulties seem great.

Never before in my life have I felt such a sense of peace and such contentment. I am able to do any kind of work, and I praise God for all these blessings received through Christian Science. I am deeply grateful to our noble Leader, Mrs. Eddy, as well as to all who have helped me find the way of Truth, and also for being able to help others as I have been helped.—Berta Döscher, Plauen i.V., Germany.

✧

For several years I was afflicted with a condition of the kidneys and bladder which at last became very distressing. The thought that all physical manifestations are traceable to unscientific thinking, and that to entertain wrong thoughts is to break the first commandment, awoke me to a realization of the fact that to go on in false thinking was not living up to my highest understanding of the true nature of God, and of His reflection, man. It was evening when this awakening came, and I lost no more valuable time, but at once began to use the arguments of Christian Science, realizing that the trouble was not a physical condition, but only a false mental picture which I was not at all obliged to hold but could discard at once and for good. I asked my wife to help me, then went to bed and slept soundly and peacefully till next morning, when every symptom was gone. Sufficient time has now elapsed for me to know that the healing is permanent.

This experience has added to my already large debt of gratitude to God, that in the fulness of time the truth about Himself, His man, and consequently about the fallacious nature of evil, has been revealed to this age through the spiritual receptivity of our beloved Leader, Mrs. Eddy.

Pietro Tonielli, Seattle, Wash.

✧

It is with the deepest sense of gratitude that I give my testimony of what Christian Science has done for me. Ten years ago I was in very poor health, owing to what was diagnosed by a prominent physician as an abnormal growth. He insisted that an immediate operation was necessary, but I would not consent to have it performed. I was a constant sufferer, hardly able to attend to my household duties, and could not walk a block without great pain, when some years later I was persuaded to take up the study of Christian Science. My healing was slow, but with it came a better understanding of divine Principle as revealed to us in Christian Science. I am indeed thankful to say that I am perfectly well in every respect, finding my every-day duties a pleasure.

We have had many other wonderful experiences of healing in our family. A throat affection was overcome in twenty-four hours. One day at noon I injured my ankle, and by evening could not bear my weight on the foot, which was badly swollen and discolored. I asked a Christian Science practitioner for treatment, and the next morning I put my shoe on with no inconvenience whatever. For all the benefits received we are indeed grateful.

Clara Van Deventer, Chicago, Ill.

✧

About five years ago, while preparing for an operation, I became interested in Christian Science and purchased a copy of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy. After reading about one third of the book I laid aside glasses which had been worn for seventeen years for a structural defect of the eyes, and as I continued to read, the need of an operation disappeared, as did also backache from which I had suffered since childhood. These demonstrations of Truth's power delighted my husband, so he immediately came into the truth. I also had a beautiful experience when our little girl was born in October, 1915; and our elder daughter, now seven and a half years old, has made many demonstrations for herself and others.

We are surely grateful for all these blessings, and for the many smaller ones, which are as important if not more so, for each demonstration, no matter how slight, helps to overcome the larger errors. Greater still than all these is the peace and the spiritual uplift that come with the study of the Bible together with Science and Health. My daily prayer is to have a better understanding of the truth.

Adelene Caton, Bristol, Ind.

✧

Each day I feel more grateful to our Leader for her patient love and work in bringing to mankind the light of divine Truth, which, as it is spiritually discerned and assimilated, heals all sin and disease. Every demonstration over error brought about through the realization of this truth brings with it an increase of joy.

Digitized by Google

An instance of this came to me in the summer of 1915. Returning home late one night, I went upstairs in the dark and turned to go to my room, but missed my footing and fell down the stairs, striking on my head. I must have been rendered unconscious, for afterward I did not know where I was. At first there was no sense of pain, but when I tried to rise there came a rush of great pain to the head and limbs. I managed to get to my room, but could not lie down on account of the suffering. I was alone in the house, but had no fear; on the contrary I felt quiet and happy, and went on with the mental work I had begun before falling, knowing that divine Love had saved me and that all was well. Though a telephone was in the house, no thought of asking for help came to me. I was conscious of a deep sense of safety and of God's presence. That was enough.

At the end of two hours I went to sleep, and awoke at half past seven the next morning perfectly well and free from pain. The swelling which had come on the head had quite gone, and there was little discoloration, though there was a wound on the face and temple. I cycled sixteen miles that morning, doing distribution work, and have never since felt the least pain or any after effects from the fall.

I am indeed grateful for what I know of Christian Science. My one wish is to learn more of the truth about God and man as His image and likeness.

Octavia Potts, Hull, England.

✧

I want to tell something of what Christian Science has meant to our family, and to express our gratitude to those who have helped us gain an understanding of it. I am especially grateful to Mrs. Eddy, through whose devotion this revelation of Truth came to this age, and next to those who by living and teaching it have brought it home to me and mine. Deep gratitude is felt for the light this teaching has thrown on the art of loving, or perhaps I should say on the science of loving,—a light that has made a great difference in the happiness of our family life.

We have found that to know more about love involves learning more about God; and even a little greater knowledge of Him as the Principle of beauty and of harmonious action, the Spirit of love and unity, the substance of all reality, has brought with it the inevitable result of freer and more perfect action of mind and body. We have been interested in Christian Science for many years, and have had more than sufficient proof of the truth and value of this teaching, as regards both health and happiness, to make us wish to express our gratitude for it,—a gratitude which tends more and more to express itself in works as well as in words.

My husband was relieved very quickly and completely by Christian Science treatment some years ago, when mumps had resulted in most painful complications, and I could enumerate other cases of healing, including the arresting of what had been regarded by my mother for seventy years as the inevitable course of a sneezing cold; but these things seem to me unimportant compared to the purifying of the human consciousness. We surely have reason to be grateful for Christian Science.

Elizabeth C. Adams, Cambridge, Mass.

✧ ✧ ✧

God gives us always strength enough and sense enough for what He wants us to do; if we either tire ourselves or puzzle ourselves, it is our own fault. And we may always be sure, whatever we are doing, that we cannot be pleasing Him if we are not happy ourselves.—John Ruskin.

From Our Exchanges

[Unitarian Word and Work]

There were people living in Europe during the Lutheran reformation who did not know that anything unusual was taking place. There were Jews in Palestine at the beginning of the Christian era, and for two hundred years after, who were not aware that the world was being turned upside down. So little was apprehended of the approach of a new order of things when Christianity was entering the Roman Empire, that outside the gospels not more than two writers seem to have ever heard of Jesus of Nazareth. Only the historian who can view great events at long range has, in the past, seemed to be able to realize their significance. Today, however, it is not necessary to be a historian to appreciate the fact that the civilized world is being transformed on a larger scale and with a greater reference to all the details of associated life than ever was experienced in the past.

[Rev. Joseph Fort Newton, D.Litt., in The Christian Commonwealth]

For ages we have called Jesus Lord, Lord! but have not obeyed his principles of life, which are as immutable as the laws of physics and mathematics. Hear now a voice from Germany—Förster, of Munich—telling us the truth so long forgotten:—

"Let him that is without sin cast the first stone. The traditions of all nations are stained with blood and guilt, and the world war is the culmination of the slowly working world judgment on the terrible course of European history in the past. For us here, behind the lines, it is a sacred duty to do all we can to bring about an atmosphere in which passions can be soothed and the voice of reason make itself heard. What matters, is a new spirit; in each nation men must make themselves felt, who will say openly that there is no way out of this hell of madness and obstinacy unless we resolve to give up the old evil spirit that rules the intercourse of nations, confess openly and honestly our share in its sins, and from the bottom of our hearts learn to love and think out a new Europe."

[The Biblical World]

Must not the Christian conscience ultimately be responsible for the existence of poverty? What has the Christian to say about unjust economic privilege, the exploitation of the weak, the maintenance of conditions that breed social disorder, crime, disease? A man can be respectable and be guilty of all these sins. The man who believes that the gospel is a power of salvation rather than mere rescue believes that whatever is injurious is wrong. He believes that his Christian message is prophylactic as well as ameliorative. An ounce of spiritual prevention is worth a pound of any balm of Gilead.

[The Christian Work]

He who waits regularly upon God gets some of God's unruffled calm into his own being. He who kneels often at the feet of God feels His calming touch upon his feverish brow. About God broods the eternal calm. His presence is as the great mountains, or the quiet stars. To dwell with Him is to feel His repose creep into our souls and become ours. We need it greatly today.

[Zion's Herald]

We have our happiness in our own hands. God calls us to larger things, deeper dedications, clearer insights, nobler deeds, greater lives.

Digitized by Google

[Rev. F. H. Larkin in The Homiletic Review]

What are the elements of permanency in life? They are righteousness and wisdom and truth and love. These are the everlasting foundations, the things that are unfading. These are to be honored, to be cherished, to be accepted as standards and ideals,—to be accepted for illumination, for suggestion, for guidance, for government.

Consistency is loyalty to these high, intellectual, ethical, spiritual realities. The truly consistent man is the man of principle, the man of honor, the man with a warm, human heart, who loves the truth supremely, who follows the gleam wherever it may lead him. This man, because of such consistency, will enter into changed interpretations, changed visions, changed relationships, changed tastes and affinities, changed interests and ardors. He may be spurned by the apostles of inertia as weak, vacillating, unreliable, possibly as a freak and weathercock; but all the while he is ascending, and leading others toward the shining heights.

[The Christian Register]

Contemplation, meditation, and introspection are most excellent things, desirable and even indispensable to spiritual growth and efficiency; but all these long words denote phases of the spiritual life which have little value unless they lead up to that which can be described by a much shorter word, namely, work. Spiritual dissipation is one of the common vices of church going people. Religious emotion that leads to nothing and prompts to nothing beyond itself is a vice: it ends in a hardening of the spiritual arteries and a loss of all heroic ideals. Good work—not "good works," but unselfish effort to encourage virtue and increase happiness—stimulates and braces the soul and makes the higher life natural and progressive.

[Western Christian Advocate]

There are times when we find ourselves more favorable for spiritual impressions; when the atmosphere is right; when memory is active with associations that present the rich sentiments of our holy religion; when the church is seeking to accentuate the great experiences of our Lord and bring us into personal realization of them. Then, if we do not stand apart in a listless and indifferent mood, we may find a rich renewal of grace, knowledge, and power.

[The Christian Intelligencer]

Succeeding generations do not profit by the experience of the past nor do they of themselves stand forth in the vigor of spiritual manhood. They learn the terrors of the reign of the beast only by painful individual catastrophe. It is in the furnace of affliction that they are driven to God, and it is by His divine gift that they are enabled to gather the forces of life within the sweep of God's purposes. All things are vanity until God gets hold of a man and makes him a stone in the temple of a redeemed humanity.

[The Advance]

The historic data concerning Jesus of Nazareth has been but little enlarged since the apostles died and is not likely to be greatly enlarged; but the spiritual Christ, of whom the historic Jesus was only a brief and temporary incarnation, reveals himself in a growing gospel increasingly to the passing generations.

[The Record]

Inspiration means the action of the Spirit of God on the spirit of man; it affects feeling, thought, speech, and work; and writing under divine commission is included.

[The Universalist Leader]

The best service we can render to men in this workaday world is sometimes to put a bit of heaven into their hearts.

Special Announcements

From the Publisher of Mrs. Eddy's Works

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE TEXT-BOOK, "SCIENCE AND HEALTH WITH KEY TO THE SCRIPTURES."—See back cover of this periodical for styles of bindings and prices.

CONCORDANCE TO SCIENCE AND HEALTH.—A new edition of this volume is announced, printed from new plates and bound in stiff morocco. Single copy, $5.00; six or more, each $4.50.

CONCORDANCE TO MRS. EDDY'S PUBLISHED WRITINGS OTHER THAN SCIENCE AND HEALTH.—Published only in the India Bible paper edition, with stiff morocco covers; uniform in style with the Concordance to Science and Health. Price, $6.00; six or more, each $5.50.

Announcement is made of the publication at an early date of a new edition of the German translation of the Manual of The Mother Church. The volume will be printed with alternate pages of English and German, and will be uniform in binding and price with the regular cloth-bound edition.

Announcement is made of the printing of an edition of Rudimental Divine Science in the American Braille system of type for the blind. Single copy, 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

Orders for the books named above and other works by Mrs. Eddy should be addressed to ALLISON V. STEWART, Falmouth and St. Paul Streets, Boston, Mass.

From the Editor

All manuscripts submitted for publication in the Sentinel, Journal, and Herold, whether articles, poems, or testimonies, and all correspondence relating thereto, should be addressed to the EDITOR, and not to individuals.

From the Publishing Society

"Christian Science: The Revelation of Christ," a lecture by John W. Doorly, C.S.B., has been printed in pamphlet form, and is now ready for sale.

A new pamphlet entitled, " 'Awake Thou That Sleepest,' " contains the following eight articles republished from The Christian Science Monitor: "Procrastination," "Lions in the Path," "Could Ye not Watch with Me One Hour?" "The Senses and Sleep," "Sleep," "Night," "Day," and "Narcotics."

Both of these pamphlets are on sale at prices advertised on the opposite page.

The Christian Science Quarterly is published in the Dutch and German languages. These editions are printed with the foreign language and English version on opposite pages. Orders for single copies, quantities, and subscriptions will be filled at the rates as shown on the opposite page.

From the Clerk of The Mother Church

CHURCH TENETS.—The tenets of The First Church of Christ, Scientist,—The Mother Church,—printed on folded sheet for use of the branch Churches of Christ, Scientist, with space for printing their authorized forms of application for membership or extracts from their by-laws, can be had at seventy-five cents a hundred. Orders will not be taken for less than one hundred and postage stamps should not be sent in payment.

Correspondence relative to the tenets or to membership with The Mother Church, should be sent to J. V. DITTEMORE, Clerk, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

From the Church Treasurer

The annual per capita tax of members of The Mother Church is due June 1, but may be paid at any time during the year. The per capita tax of members uniting in November is reckoned from the preceding June, this being the beginning of the church year. Unless otherwise directed by the sender, the full amount of each remittance will be credited for the current year.

Please remit by postal or express money order, bank draft, or check. Currency should be sent by registered letter only.

Please advise promptly of any change in name or address.

Send per capita taxes and contributions to ADAM H. DICKEY, Treasurer, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

Digitized by Google

The Christian Science Journal

Published Monthly

Founded April, 1883, by Mary Baker Eddy, Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, and author of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures."

This monthly magazine is the official organ of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. In addition to articles, editorials, and testimonies not published elsewhere, it contains a complete list of Christian Science practitioners, and a directory of Christian Science Churches, Societies, and Reading Rooms.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $2; six months $1; three months 50 cents. SALE PRICE: Single copy 20 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 15 cents. For Canada add 25 cents for postage. SALE PRICE: Single copy 20 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 17 cents. In all other countries add 65 cents for postage for each annual subscription. SALE PRICE: Single copy 25 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 20 cents.

BOUND VOLUMES: Current and past year, cloth $3.00; half calf or half morocco $3.75. On earlier volumes write for prices.

The Christian Science Quarterly

Published January, April, July, and October

Contains the Lesson-Sermons which are read at the Sunday services throughout the year in all the Christian Science churches. These Lessons, which present citations from the Bible and "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," are valuable for daily study. Also printed in Dutch and German.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION AND SALE: In the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year 50 cents; single copy 15 cents; four copies or more to one address, each 12½ cents. For all other countries one year 60 cents; single copy 18 cents; four copies or more, each 15 cents.

Subscriptions not accepted for less than one year. Subscriptions begin with current quarter unless otherwise designated, and terminate with the last of the month named on wrapper.

The Christian Science Monitor

Published Daily, Except Sundays and Legal Holidays

An international daily newspaper. Adequate news service. The various departments of a modern newspaper. Unique Home Forum page. Entire page of editorials dealing with the vital topics of the day. Contributions to the columns of the MONITOR should be addressed: Editor, THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States (except in the Boston Postal District), Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $5; six months $2.50; three months $1.25; one month 50 cents. In all other countries additional postage at the rate of $3 yearly is required. By carrier through a local news-dealer; one month 60 cents. In the Boston Postal District, by mail, one year $7.25. Quantity rates will be furnished on application.

Der Herold der Christian Science

Published Monthly

A magazine printed in German, which publishes original and translated articles bearing upon Christian Science, also testimonials of healing.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $1; six months 50 cents; three months 25 cents. For other countries, one year $1.25; six months 63 cents; three months 32 cents.

SALE PRICE, DOMESTIC TERRITORY AND CANADA; POSTPAID: Single copy 10 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 8 cents. Foreign rate, single copy 12 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 10 cents.

Bound Volumes in cloth, $2.75 each; half calf or half morocco $3.50 each. Write for list of volumes in stock.

Pamphlets

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS RELIGIOUS PHILOSOPHY. By HON. CLARENCE A. BURKIRK.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: "THE RESURRECTION AND THE LIFE." By CLARENCE W. CHADWICK.

CAUSATION: VIEWED IN THE LIGHT OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By FREDERICK DIXON. Also printed in Norwegian and Swedish.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING VS. MENTAL SUGGESTION. By FREDERICK DIXON. Reprinted from the Weekly Budget, London, England. Also printed in Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE TRUE CHRISTIANITY. By CLARENCE C. EATON.

"THE SONS OF GOD." By COL. WILLIAM E. FELL.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE VS. FINITE SENSE. By FRANCIS J. FLUNO, M.D.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE GOSPEL OF FREEDOM. By WILLIS F. GROSS.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE SCIENCE OF SALVATION. By HERMANN S. HERING.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING: SPIRITUAL AND SCIENTIFIC. By PROF. HERMANN S. HERING. Also printed in German.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS CONCERNING CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. Also printed in Dutch, German, and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS ADVANTAGE TO MANKIND. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. A London lecture. Also printed in French.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: MAN'S DOMINION OVER EVIL. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. Also printed in modern Greek, Italian, Norwegian, and Russian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS DIVINE AUTHORITY. By BLISS KNAPP.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE EXPLANATION OF THE IDEAL MAN. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS DISCOVERY AND DEVELOPMENT. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: GOD'S LOVINGKINDNESS PROVED TO MEN. By REV. WILLIAM P. MCKENZIE. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS RESULTS. By WILLIAM R. RATHVON. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE RELIGION OF DIVINE LAW. By JACOB S. SHIELD.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM. By JUDGE CLIFFORD P. SMITH. Also printed in French and German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A RELIGION OF LOVE. By VIRGIL O. STRICKLER. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE NEW BIRTH. By BICKNELL YOUNG. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

THE LAW OF KINDNESS.
"WHAT WENT YE OUT FOR TO SEE?"
"THEN THE FULL GRAIN IN THE EAR."
UPWARD FOOTSTEPS. Also printed in Dutch.
FULFILLING THE LAW. Also printed in Danish.
PRAYER AND HEALING. Also printed in French and German.
THE DIVINE NATURE. Also printed in Dutch and Norwegian.
ENVIRONMENT AND OPPORTUNITY. Also printed in French.
THE FATHER'S BUSINESS. Also printed in German and Swedish.
SEEKING AND FINDING. Also printed in Dutch, German, and Swedish.
THE PROVIDENCE OF GOOD. Also printed in French, Spanish, and Swedish.
LAW AND WORK.
CONFIDENCE AND SUPPLY.
BIRTHRIGHT AND DOMINION.

Other Translated Pamphlets

FAITH AND GENEROSITY. Printed in French-English.
MAN'S UNITY WITH GOD. Printed in German only.
"PEACE ON EARTH." Printed in German only.
PRAYER AND CONFIDENCE. Printed in German. Also in Dutch-English.
MARY BAKER EDDY. By ARTHUR BRISBANE. Printed in German only.
MARY BAKER EDDY: HER PURPOSE AND ACCOMPLISHMENT. By FREDERICK DIXON. Printed in German. Also in French-English.
THE FOUNDER OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By B. O. FLOWER. Printed in German only.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A REASONABLE AND RATIONAL VIEW OF ALL THINGS. By FRANCIS J. FLUNO, M.D. Printed in Dutch-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: HUMANITY'S HELPER. By PROF. HERMANN S. HERING. Printed in Dutch-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE COMFORTER OF PROMISE. By FRANK H. LEONARD. Printed in French-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: DEMONSTRABLE RELIGION. By FRANK H. LEONARD. Printed in Norwegian only.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A RELIGION OF PROGRESS. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Printed in Swedish. Also in French-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS PRINCIPLE AND METHOD. By BICKNELL YOUNG. Printed in Swedish. Also in French-English.

PRICE, POSTPAID: Single copy 5 cents; twelve copies to one address 55 cents; fifty copies $2; one hundred copies $3.50. Orders for above pamphlets may be assorted as desired.

For table of English, German, Swiss, and French money equivalents, see inside front cover page.

Miscellaneous

A Catalogue of Selected Bibles will be furnished upon application, and quantity rates on other items specified below will be found in the current catalogue in The Christian Science Journal.

BIBLES. 01488 x. Clarendon Brevier, heavy-faced, distinct type; Turkey morocco, corresponding in size and binding to pocket edition of Science and Health, $4.75.

01440 x. Brevier, light-faced type; self-pronouncing, Turkey morocco, corresponding in size and binding to pocket edition of Science and Health, $4.50.

01683 x. Large type Bible, 10¾ x 8 inches, bound in Alaskn seal. Specially adapted for use of second readers, $12.50.

Black morocco open case to hold pocket edition of Science and Health, Quarterly, and Bible, $1.40.

Two other sizes of open case listed in the current issue of the Journal.

Black morocco closed case with handle and purse on outside, $3.75; without purse, $3.50.

The improved index will be added to any Bible listed in our catalogue for an additional charge of 35 cents. Catalogue No. 28 of selected Bibles will be mailed free upon application.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS ON THE LIFE AND WORK OF MARY BAKER EDDY. 132 pages with index. Paper covered, 15 cents; cloth binding, 85 cents.

THE LIFE OF MARY BAKER EDDY. By Sibyl Wilbur. 424 pages. Cloth, $2. Edition de luxe, $5.

PERSONAL CONTAGION, ALSO WHAT OUR LEADER SAYS. By Mary Baker Eddy. Special pamphlet. Paper cover, 10 cents.

THE MOTHER CHURCH. By Joseph Armstrong. A history of the building of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. Illustrated, 107 pages. Cloth, $1.50.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS LEGAL STATUS. By Judge Clifford P. Smith. 128 pages, paper covered, 10 cents.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HYMNAL. Cloth, $1.15; half morocco, $1.40; full morocco, $2.50; levant, $3.50; pocket edition, size 4⅝ x 6⅝, $3

SHEET MUSIC. Poems written by Mary Baker Eddy and used by special permission, have been set to music as follows: "The Mother's Evening Prayer," 75 cents; "Christ, My Refuge," 75 cents; "Love," 40 cents; Communion Hymn—"Saw Ye My Saviour?" (Johnson), 50 cents; "Blest Christmas Morn," 27 cents; "O'er Waiting Harpstrings of the Mind," 27 cents; "Shepherd, Show Me How to Go," 27 cents; "Saw Ye My Saviour?" (Root), 27 cents. The first three hymns are arranged for high and low voice in the same copy. The last five hymns are published separately in high and low keys. When ordering state key desired.

PHOTOGRAVURE OF MRS. EDDY, printed in three sizes on India paper and mounted on heavy plate paper ready for framing. 8-inch (mount 12 x 16), $1; 12-inch (mount 15 x 20), $2; 16-inch (mount 21 x 29), $3.50.

PICTURE OF THE FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, IN BOSTON, MASS., AND THE PUBLISHING HOUSE. Artist's proof with remarque on Japanese vellum, size 18 x 24 inches, $5; on India paper without remarque, $3. Smaller reproduction, size 11 x 14 inches, on Japanese vellum, $1. Photogravure post-cards of the Church Edifice and Publishing House, 5 cents.

QUARTERLY COVERS in black morocco, $1.30; with purse, $1.50.

ALUMINUM LESSON MARKERS. Set of thirty, with paper shields, 50 cents. Extra paper shields, one hundred, 15 cents.

PRICE LIST OF BIBLE CONCORDANCES AND DICTIONARIES OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE supplied on request. Express charges collect on delivery.

REPRINTS (not printed in English). Two-page leaflets, 14 subjects in French and Swedish; 18 subjects in German. Ten copies to one address, 10 cents.

Remittances should always accompany orders, and be made by check, money order, or exchange on Boston or New York. Currency or coin should not be sent by mail unless registered. Please send no money or business letters to the Editor or Editorial Department.

Send all orders for the works of Mrs. Eddy, with remittance by New York or Boston draft or money order, direct to Allison V. Stewart
For literature listed above address orders and make remittances payable to

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

FALMOUTH AND ST. PAUL STREETS, BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

Digitized by Google

Works on Christian Science

Written by MARY BAKER EDDY, Discoverer and Founder
of Christian Science and Author of its Text-book

Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures. In one volume, 700 pages. The original, standard, and only text-book on Christian Science Mind-healing. Cloth, one to eleven copies inclusive (cloth only), each $3.00; twelve or more, each $2.75. Full leather, stiff, beveled boards, gilt edges, same paper as in cloth binding, single copy $4.00; twelve or more, each $3.75. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $5.00; twelve or more, each $4.75. Levant, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, round corners, gilt edges, silk sewed, heavy Oxford India Bible paper (wide margins, large-sized book) single copy $6.00; twelve or more, each $5.75.

LARGE TYPE EDITION. Designed especially for the use of first readers. Large type (18-point) on Oxford India Bible paper, bound in leather. Size 10¾ inches long by 8 inches wide. Single copy $7.50, with a discount of 25 cents each when included in an order for twelve or more copies of Science and Health, and in any or all of the different bindings.

GERMAN TRANSLATION. Cloth, one to five copies inclusive, each $3.50; six or more, each $3.25. Pocket edition, printed on Oxford India Bible paper. Morocco, one to five copies inclusive, each $5.50; six or more, each $5.25. Orders for the German translation in lots of six or more may include both bindings.

Orders for Science and Health in lots of twelve or more at quantity prices may include both English and German editions, and different styles of binding.

Miscellaneous Writings. A book of 471 pages, containing articles published in The Christian Science Journal from 1883 to 1896, with revisions and additions. Cloth, single copy $2.25; twelve or more, each $2.00. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $4.00; twelve or more, each $3.75. Levant, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, round corners, gilt edges, silk sewed, Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $5.00; twelve or more, each $4.75. Orders for Miscellaneous Writings in lots of twelve or more may include any or all of the different styles of binding. No discount will be allowed on orders for twelve books which include both Science and Health and Miscellaneous Writings.

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany. A book of 364 pages, containing articles published in The Christian Science Journal and Sentinel, subsequent to the compilation of Miscellaneous Writings, together with historical matter pertaining thereto. Cloth, single copy $2.25; six or more, each $2.00. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $4.00; six or more, each $3.75. Orders for six or more may include the two styles of binding.

Concordance to Science and Health. This work contains about eighty thousand references (more than ten thousand words being indexed), also an index to the Marginal Headings, and a list of the Scriptural Quotations in Science and Health. 611 pages, stiff morocco cover, single copy $5.00; six or more, each $4.50.

Concordance to Mrs. Eddy's Published Writings Other Than Science and Health. It contains 1,103 pages, and is published only in Bible paper edition, with stiff morocco cover. Single copy, $6.00; six or more, each, $5.50.

Christ and Christmas. An illustrated poem. Single copy $3.00; six or more, each $2.50.

Unity of Good and Other Writings. One volume, containing Unity of Good, Rudimental Divine Science, No and Yes, Retrospection and Introspection; uniform in style with the pocket edition of Science and Health. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, heavy Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $3.50; six or more, each $3.25.

Christian Healing and Other Writings. One volume, containing Christian Healing, The People's Idea of God, Pulpit and Press, Christian Science versus Pantheism, Messages of 1900, 1901, 1902; uniform in style with the pocket edition of Science and Health. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, heavy Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $3.50; six or more, each $3.25.

Church Manual. Containing the By-laws of The Mother Church. Cloth, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents. Pocket edition, morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $2.00; six or more, each $1.75.

GERMAN TRANSLATION. Cloth, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Retrospection and Introspection. A biographical sketch of the author; the way she was led to the discovery of Christian Science; its fundamental idea and growth. Library edition, cloth, 95 pages, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Unity of Good. This book lays the axe at the root of error, elucidating and enforcing practical Christian Science, thus affording invaluable directions for all true Scientists. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, 64 pages, single copy 60 cents; six or more, each 45 cents. Pocket edition, leather covers, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Pulpit and Press. A unique work, of importance in the history and to the readers of Christian Science; containing the message or sermon written for the dedicatory service of The Mother Church, January 6, 1895, and scintillations from the press of that occasion. Library edition, cloth, 90 pages, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Rudimental Divine Science. A brief and concise statement of Divine Science, alias Christian Science, in the form of questions and answers. Pebbled cloth covers, gilt top, 17 pages, single copy 32 cents; six or more, each 25 cents. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 35 cents.

PRINTED in the New York point system of type for the use of the blind, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

No and Yes. A brief statement of very important points in Christian Science. Pebbled cloth covers, 46 pages, single copy 32 cents; six or more, each 25 cents. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 55 cents; six or more, each 45 cents.

Messages to The Mother Church Including in one volume, 94 pages, Christian Science versus Pantheism, and the Messages of 1900, 1901, and 1902. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy $1.50; six or more, each $1.15.

Christian Science versus Pantheism. The Pastor Emeritus' Message delivered at the Communion Season in The Mother Church in Boston, June, 1898. A clear and strong refutation of the charge that Christian Scientists are pantheists. Pebbled cloth covers, 15 pages, single copy 25 cents; six or more, each 20 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1900. Paper covers, deckled edges, 15 pages, single copy 25 cents; six or more, each 20 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1901. Paper covers, deckled edges, 35 pages, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 38 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1902. Paper covers, deckled edges, 20 pages, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 38 cents.

Christian Healing, and The People's Idea of God. Two sermons in one volume, 36 pages. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 55 cents; six or more, each 45 cents.

Christian Healing. A sermon delivered in Boston. Paper covers, 20 pages, single copy 20 cents; six or more, each 17 cents.

The People's Idea of God. A sermon delivered in Boston. Paper covers, 14 pages, single copy 20 cents; six or more, each 17 cents.

Poems. This volume of 79 pages includes all of Mrs. Eddy's hymns, also her earlier poems which appeared in various publications from forty to sixty years ago. Specially bound. Single copy $1.50; six or more, each $1.25.

Feed My Sheep. Solo. Words by Mary Baker Eddy, music by Lyman F. Brackett. Single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

The foregoing prices cover all charges for express or postage on shipments either domestic or foreign.

Quantity prices are on shipments to one address only, but quantity lots at quantity prices cannot be made up of different books or of different styles of binding. Attention is called, however, to the exception to this rule which is made in the cases of Science and Health, and of Miscellaneous Writings, as given under these titles in this price list.

Address all orders for above works, and make remittance by New York or Boston draft or money order, to

ALLISON V. STEWART, FALMOUTH AND ST. PAUL STS., BOSTON, MASS.

Digitized by Google

WISCONSIN
HISTORICAL LIBRARY

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SENTINEL

"What I say unto you I say unto all-WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX No. 35

Boston, April 28, 1917

Contents of This Number

Items of Interest (Brief Mention of Important Events) 682
Teaching in the Sunday School
Ezra W. Palmer 683
Daily Food . . Ethel M. McCandless 684
Hospitality . . . . Kate Holt 685
"Let the dead bury their dead"
J. Allen Barris 685
Watchfulness . . Frances M. Gorrell 686
Hymn to Columbia (Poem)
Hon. Clarence A. Buskirk 687
Selected Articles 687
Awakening (Poem) . Mary Victoria Clark 689
Editorial
Why Obedience? 690
Watching a Hole in the Ground . 690
Prayer and Demonstration . . 691
Among the Churches (Current Notes)
Seattle, Wash. 691
Kingston, N. Y. 691
County of Durham, England . . 692
The Lectures
Tallahassee, Fla. 692
Detroit, Mich. 692
Kansas City, Mo. 682
Testimonies of Healing 694
From Our Exchanges 697

THE·CHRISTIAN·SCIENCE·PUBLISHING·SOCIETY
·FALMOUTH·AND·ST·PAUL·STREETS· ·BOSTON·MASS·U·S·A·

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

(THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE WEEKLY)

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY BY

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

Falmouth and St. Paul Sts., Boston, Mass., U.S.A.

ARCHIBALD McLELLAN
Editor

ANNIE M. KNOTT — WILLIAM D. McCRACKAN
Associate Editors

Subscription Price

Payable in advance

Annual subscription price, postpaid, in the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, $2.00; six months, $1.00; three months, 50 cents. For Canada add 45 cents and for all other countries 95 cents annually for postage. For subscriptions in quantities please refer to page four in THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE JOURNAL.

Subscriptions to the SENTINEL will begin with the current issue unless otherwise specified. The delivery of the periodical will indicate that a remittance has been credited and will be our acknowledgment of the subscription.

Bound Volumes: Current year or two years previous, cloth, $3.25; half calf or half morocco, $4.00. On earlier volumes write for prices.

Terms of Sale

	United States, Mexico, and Cuba	Canada	All Other Countries
Single copy	$ .05	$ .06	$ .07
Four or more copies . .	.03½	.04	.05

Equivalents of United States money

		£	s.	d.	Marks	Francs
$ .60	equals	0	2	6	2.52	3.12
1.15	"	0	4	9	4.85	5.98
1.25	"	0	5	2	5.30	6.50
2.33	"	0	9	7	9.83	12.09
2.38	"	0	9	10	10.05	12.35
2.63	"	0	10	9	11.10	13.65
2.65	"	0	10	10	11.20	13.78
2.70	"	0	11	1	11.40	14.04
2.95	"	0	12	2	12.50	15.34
5.00	"	1	0	7	21.15	26.00
7.50	"	1	10	10	31.73	39.00
8.00	"	1	12	11	33.85	41.60

Make all remittances payable to The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Postage required for remailing this copy: 1 cent domestic and Canada; 2 cents other countries.

Entered at Boston, Mass., post-office as second-class matter.

Items of Interest

More attention is to be given by the Provincial Government of Canada to forest protection. Forest fires in 1916 caused a loss of $9,000,000, more than six times as much as has been spent on forest protection work. Most of these fires were preventable. In British Columbia, on account of the efficiency of the forest protection service and somewhat more favorable weather conditions, the number of fires last year was only about one half that of the preceding year. Yet a substantial loss was suffered. The lumbering slash makes such a hot fire that the outlook for another tree crop is very poor. The tree seedlings and the uncut trees are generally destroyed or greatly damaged. A most important part of forest production work is to dispose of this slash as soon as possible after the lumbering operations have been finished. In this slash disposal the lumber companies have been urged to cooperate with the forest service. The railway companies are required to extinguish fires starting within 300 feet of the track, unless a company can show that it did not cause the fire.

The municipality of San Juan, Porto Rico, has just sold refunding and improvement bonds amounting to $915,000. Of the proceeds, approximately $100,000 is for refunding purposes, and the balance is for the following municipal improvements: opening and paving of streets, $412,000; sewers, $300,000; garbage incinerator, $50,000; three public laundries, $15,000. Within a short time the city will offer for sale an additional lot of bonds, having a value of $785,000, the proceeds of which will be applied to building a new water system.

A decree of the President of Venezuela of March 12, 1917, creates an experiment station of agriculture and forestry with a garden of acclimatization. It will be located on lands near the city of Caracas and is intended to serve as a model for other such stations to be established in other parts of the republic. Its purposes are: the study of improved methods of cultivation of the principal agricultural products of the country; introduction, selection, and distribution of seeds; experiments in reforestation; report upon soils suitable to each kind of cultivation and the crops to each region; and practical work for the training of agricultural foremen and forest rangers.

In 1892 the Federal Government decided to use its influence in the establishment of reindeer breeding as a definitely organized industry in Alaska, and in that year a herd was imported from Siberia. For ten years annual importations continued, and during that period 1200 reindeer were brought over. Now 70,000 animals graze the plains and valleys from Nome to the farthest Aleutian island. Of these, 40,000 are owned by the natives, and native herds are acquired through a system of apprenticeship. In his schools the Indian is taught to judge deer, to sell, and to exchange. He is encouraged to train his animals for sled work, and is given mails to carry, and also passengers and freight. Individually he is found to be self-supporting and generally prosperous.

Nearly 2,400,000 miles of the 2,500,000 miles of public roads in the United States are of earth, sand, clay, or gravel, according to recent statistics gathered by the office of public roads and rural engineering of the United States Department of Agriculture. Roads of these materials are, therefore, of predominant importance in most communities of the country, and probably will remain so for many years. For this reason the office of public roads and rural engineering has issued as Department of Agriculture Bulletin No. 463 a comprehensive discussion of the materials, methods of construction, and maintenance for the three types.

Costa Rica ranks fourth in area and fifth in population among the Central American republics, and is one of the most progressive countries in the Americas. School attendance is compulsory, with the result that wide awake communities have been developed, especially in the mountain and plateau regions, which are the main centers of population. Most of the country is healthful to live in, and has excellent sanitary arrangements. The area of the country is 21,500 square miles, and the population in 1915 was 430,700.

A scheme for the utilization of the water of Barren Jack, along the Murrumbidgee River, Australia, to generate electric power, was fully discussed by the New South Wales Parliament some months since, with the result that it has been decided to carry it into effect. The primary purpose of this water storage, that of irrigation, leaves in this instance available for other requirements the equivalent of 165 cubic feet of water a second, discharged under a head of 100 feet.

Rice hulling is, next to rice growing, the leading industry of Cochin China, and the ten large mills at Cholon turn out annually over one million tons of rice of all grades, valued at some thirty million dollars. The product of these mills is entirely for export, and forms in weight and value about 75 per cent of the exports from the port of Saigon. Rice forms a still greater proportion of the diet of the natives.

The Supreme Court of the United States has affirmed the decision of the lower court in an appeal brought by the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company against the United States, holding that payments made by the railroad company to certain freight forwarders, as salary and compensation for freight shipped over the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, are in violation of the law.

The question of the degree of state control to be exercised over the generation of electric power and waterway development was discussed in the Prussian Diet recently, and the statements made by the Prussian minister of railways practically amounted to an announcement that the old plan of establishing an imperial monopoly of electricity had been abandoned, and that instead a number of Federal states were to deal with the matter independently.

The Russian Government is planning a complete reorganization of its inland waterways, to be finished by 1930. The project includes the improvement of existing and the construction of new waterways and ports, the utilization of waterfalls for the production of electrical power, improvement of conditions of navigation, drainage works, and so on. The cost of the works is estimated at $487,000,000.

The Motion Pictures Patents Company cannot dictate what makes of films shall be used on its patented picture machines, according to a decision of the United States Supreme Court. Judge Hand, in the Federal district court, New York, held that the restriction, if enforced, would give the machine company a film monopoly. There was a dissenting opinion in which three justices concurred.

The United States Government has at last come into the ownership of all the famous big tree land in California. Deeds have been given transferring to the Government all the private holdings in the big trees of Giant Forest. This transfer marks the complete acquisition for park purposes of the largest tract of redwood trees of unusual size in the world.

Many companies are voluntarily putting into effect the national electrical safety code, in the preparation of which the United States Bureau of Standards cooperated with leading electrical engineers and representatives of light and power interests, electric railways, telephone and telegraph companies, and manufacturers of electrical goods.

A joint resolution has been introduced in the United States Senate authorizing the secretary of the interior to assign the so-called Rittman process, for improvements in the manufacture of gasoline, to the people of the United States and to issue licenses to make the process immediately available to public use.

Oregon's minimum wage law for women and children has been declared constitutional by the United States Supreme Court. The law gives an Industrial Welfare Commission power to fix minimum wages and prescribe working conditions and hours of labor.

The Kansas legislature of 1917, which closed recently, adopted a state manager plan, by which all the state's institutions are put under one board, with a single man to handle the economic affairs of all the institutions.

Copra, the dried kernel of the coconut, not shredded, desiccated, or prepared, amounting to 23,885,192 pounds, valued at $1,537,011, was shipped from Tahiti, Society Islands, for the United States during 1916.

The Russian provisional Government has repealed all laws actually in force limiting the rights of Russian citizens regarding creeds and religions.

It is estimated that the production of wool this season in Tasmania will total 30,000 bales, which will be in excess of 9,000,000 pounds.

The total exports from the Philippine Islands in 1916 reached a valuation of approximately seventy million dollars.

The world's production of whale oil amounted in 1916 to 634,500 barrels.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

"What I say unto you, I say unto all, WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX April 28, 1917 No. 35

Teaching in the Sunday School

EZRA W. PALMER

TEACHING Christian Science to the children is a highly important work, and a Christian Scientist who undertakes to unfold the budding thoughts of the young cannot be too consecrated or too spiritually minded. That Mrs. Eddy recognized the necessity and importance of this work is shown by the careful provision she has made for the Sunday school in Article XX of the Manual of The Mother Church. In "Pulpit and Press" (p. 9) she says, "Ah, children, you are the bulwarks of freedom, the cement of society, the hope of our race!"

A careful study of the basis of this work as outlined in the Church Manual (Art. XX, Sect. 3) discloses that the teaching in the Sunday school is intended to implant in the minds of the children the absoluteness and supremacy of God, good, the infinite, divine Mind. This is shown by the fact that the first lessons are based on the Ten Commandments, the Lord's Prayer with its spiritual interpretation as given by Mrs. Eddy on page 16 of Science and Health, and the Sermon on the Mount. A study and comparison of these first lessons will show that they are based on the omnipotence, omniscience, and omnipresence of God. We may well ask ourselves why Mrs. Eddy chose these topics for the first lessons. She undoubtedly chose them for this purpose because they furnish a firm and eternal foundation on which the thought of the child can rest. God is the basis of all being, life, and action, and, as St. Paul says, "other foundation can no man lay than that is laid."

From the enduring basis of "Thou shalt have no other gods before me," "Our Father which art in heaven," and "Blessed are the poor in spirit: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven," the lessons unfold. No erroneous thought can enter these fundamental teachings. No subtle mesmerism of dualism or of pantheism can mystify them; and provided the teacher firmly plants these simple yet tremendously profound lessons in the child's thought, he does the child a most vital service, because it is most essential for him to know his creator in the days of his youth. The child should be taught to understand God and to know and rely upon divine protection. Error does not spare even a child, and though young he may have to face the aggressions of evil. He should therefore gain confidence in God, and not only have the assurance but gain the understanding that through divine strength he can vanquish evil.

The importance of clear, scientific teaching in the Sunday school cannot be overemphasized. Provided the foundation is well laid, there will be built in consciousness a structure of scientific character which will weather the storms of mortal ills no matter how severe or from what quarter they blow. To do this is not a difficult matter, because, to use Mrs. Eddy's words on page 240 of "Miscellaneous Writings," "it is easier to incline the early thought rightly, than the biased mind. Children not mistaught, naturally love God; for they are pure-minded, affectionate, and generally brave."

But the teacher must be alert and wise. When he takes the class he should learn the content of each pupil's thought. If erroneous beliefs are obstructing the pupil's thinking the teacher should know what they are. Children are sometimes influenced by current false views of theology. The teacher should not, however, do all the talking. The little folk should be given a chance to express themselves, and then on the basis of the lesson for the day, whether it be the Ten Commandments or a section from The Christian Science Quarterly, any false notions about God which may have been sown in the tender thought should be corrected. On the other hand, if the child is gaining clearer views of God and is striving to express them and to live them, the teacher can lovingly and gently aid his pupil in gaining a clearer grasp of the great verities of being.

To be of service the teacher must of necessity be scientifically minded. The Master said, "First cast out the beam out of thine own eye; and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote out of thy brother's eye." If therefore the teacher has not freed his thought from false theology, he is not prepared to offer the children accurate views about God; nor can he succeed if he is more interested in current topics of the day than he is in the truth, and allows himself to accept them as a basis for reasoning in the class-room. To allow the discussion to wander in the by-paths of human belief is futile. The basis of the work should be the unfoldment of Principle and its application to the need of the pupils. The plea is a specious one that irrelevant discussion should be indulged in order to hold the attention of the class.

Teaching correctly and scientifically the word of God enables one to present to the child the most interesting topics possible. When the chord of righteous thought is struck the children are eager, attentive, and earnest, because they see the divine beauty of holiness and the logic, unity, and glory of spiritual law, to which their fresh, pure minds naturally and spontaneously respond.

Several errors in teaching may be mentioned. One is a proneness on the teacher's part to talk on topics beyond the experience or comprehension of the child; in other words, the teacher may talk over the heads of his pupils. If this be done the children may not be attentive and disorder may creep in. As a consequence the pupils will manifest little or no spiritual growth, and the teacher will probably wonder why his work is so barren of results. Another error is to place the plane of teaching below the apprehension of the pupil. Pupils are eager for that which unfolds new views, new beauties, new truths. The revelator said, "Behold, I make all things new;" and the true teacher is always prepared to lead the children to see new beauties and new unfoldments in God's law. Reiteration of dry husks of thought will not satisfy the children. They quickly discern whether they are being given the golden grain of truth or whether the teacher is merely scattering chaff for their diversion.

Jesus was the model teacher. When he unfolded the Christ-idea to the consciousness of the two disciples on the road to Emmaus, he presented the truth on a basis which they could

Copyright, 1917, by The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Digitized by Google

comprehend. He began at Moses and the prophets. Why did he begin with them? Because the disciples had studied Moses and the prophets and were prepared to accept truth when reasoned from that basis. And what was the result? The words of the great Teacher caused their hearts to burn within them, and their eyes which had been holden were opened so that they beheld the Christ, the spiritual idea of God, transcending the flesh and all corporeality.

A study of Philip's experience in teaching the eunuch, and that of Paul in addressing the Athenians on Mars Hill, also his epistle to the Hebrews, showed that both these disciples followed this same wise course in presenting the truth. They began their work at the point in the experience of their hearers where they could best comprehend the truth, and from that basis thought was lifted to clearer and more enduring views of God. The wise Sunday school teacher will know the thought of his pupils and will present the truth so that the children can grasp it.

We should likewise remember that the children have wrestlings with mortal belief, and the Sunday school work should show them how to resist evil and overcome it. To teach the Principle of divine Science and not make it applicable to the daily needs of the children would be a fruitless task, and would be as illogical as to teach mathematics without ever testing the ability of the pupil to solve a problem. On page 235 of "The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany" Mrs. Eddy says: "The tender mother, guided by love, faithful to her instincts, and adhering to the imperative rules of Science, asks herself: Can I teach my child the correct numeration of numbers and never name a cipher? Knowing that she cannot do this in mathematics, she should know that it cannot be done in metaphysics, and so she should definitely name the error, uncover it, and teach truth scientifically."

The children should also be taught obedience to parents, to teachers, and to all rightful authority. Insubordination and wilfulness on the part of a child shows that he knows but little of spiritual power, and his self-will may be a serious reflection on his home and his Sunday school. When the children learn to know divine Principle and how to apply this knowledge, they will go to their homes, playgrounds, and schools and prove their mastery in overcoming wrong conditions, both within and without. Later, when we hear of their victories, both we and they will rejoice in the benediction, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant: thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy lord."

Daily Food

ETHEL M. MC CANDLESS

Most people are familiar with the history of the children of Israel and their wanderings in the wilderness, and more especially with those portions which are easily applicable to our own experiences. For instance, in the sixteenth chapter of Exodus we find an account of their being abundantly supplied with quail and manna, even though they had repeatedly disobeyed God's commands. An important point in this narrative which is sometimes overlooked is found in the eighteenth verse, where we read, "They gathered every man according to his eating." In "Miscellaneous Writings" Mrs. Eddy has beautifully expressed the same thought in these words: "God gives you His spiritual ideas, and in turn, they give you daily supplies" (p. 307). Jesus said, "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God."

The Christian Science periodicals are channels through which we receive some of this spiritual sustenance, and they are proving themselves valuable allies to the Bible and Science and Health in feeding the multitude with living bread. Very often we hear Christian Scientists express regret because they cannot find time to read all of the articles which appear in these periodicals; or because they cannot understand some article from which others have derived so much benefit. Is not this another version of "they gathered every man according to his eating"?

A Christian Scientist went into a large grocery store one day, and while waiting for her purchase, watched the stream of customers come and go, all intent on having their needs supplied. She observed that it took very little to satisfy some of them, while others went out with their arms filled with bundles. Some bought staples; others desired delicacies; but whatever their need, it was provided from this storehouse of food. The unfoldment which came to her from this incident was of great benefit, for she resolved that henceforth she would let her neighbor choose his own spiritual food.

While some special article may bring light and healing to one consciousness, to another it would be only words. Again, an article presenting straight metaphysical facts might feed one who had been starving on the husks of dogmatic theories, while a poem may be the morsel needed by another who mayhap is heartsick and weary with the world and its nauseous, satiating diet. The apostle James bids us, "Let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing." If we will but heed this admonition in our daily round, we shall be fed regularly with the right kind of food. A prudent housekeeper does not buy more food than she can well use, nor does she fear that the supply will be exhausted; but she wisely replenishes her larder before it becomes empty, for that would mean confusion and discord in the household. So will we be spared much anxiety and worry if we but remember that the great storehouse of Love is full to overflowing and can never be exhausted, and that all we need to do is to "take the manna of today."

On page 230 of Miscellany Mrs. Eddy writes: "Scientific pathology illustrates the digestion of spiritual nutriment as both sweet and bitter,—sweet in expectancy and bitter in experience or during the senses' assimilation thereof, and digested only when Soul silences the dyspepsia of sense." The last clause of the foregoing sentence came to the writer's suffering sense as a bright light, revealing the cause of the diseased condition which seemingly was holding her in bondage. She had been surfeiting self with the letter of Science and was not faithfully practising what she had read; in other words, she was not digesting her food. As she strove to live the truth which she had so diligently preached, the discordant condition disappeared, and the lesson was learned that the right idea of God is always manifested in harmonious activity and not in idleness and apathy.

We all enjoy the privilege of selecting our own food, and we would think a neighbor very presumptuous and meddlesome who insisted on bringing us our meals daily, cooked and served in her way. But is not this what we are sometimes tempted to do when we thrust upon a friend or a patient some article which has meant much to us? More than likely it is not what he needs at all, and very often this intrusion disturbs him and us too. Because we have enjoyed a hearty meal of choice viands, is that any reason for trying to feed them to our neighbor who has eaten a frugal but satisfying meal of milk and bread? Let us watch lest we fall into a snare in trying to solve our neighbor's problem for him, thereby only giving him the more work to do. In the beloved "Shepherd" hymn (Poems, p. 14) our Leader voiced her heart's desire in these words: "Feed the hungry, heal the heart;" and we shall do well to keep this in mind, making sure that one is hungry before we spread our feast before him, for only thus would the heart be healed. It takes but a morsel to satisfy some appetites.

Digitized by Google

If we give away our daily supply of food, it is certain that we cannot eat and assimilate it ourselves. Is it not presumptuous sin to give out to others that which God has given us? To the credit of all of us it may be said that our intentions are good when we do these things, but it is often a mistaken kindness. If we will carefully and prayerfully examine our thoughts, we shall find lurking in the background the teaching of old theology,—that we have something which our brother has not, or the doctrine of the saved and the unsaved. The same fount which supplies us is flowing freely for all. We love our brother most and are serving him best when we see him as a son of God, amply provided for and supplied with "every good gift and every perfect gift." Let us watch and pray for wisdom to give the cup of cold water where it is needed, and be sure that we are offering it in Christ's name and not our own.

Only as the clear stream of unselfed love and humility has cleansed the channel of all desire for personal aggrandizement or homage, can we truly feed those who turn to us for help. Our lives will then be one continuous testimony to the saving power of Truth, and will constantly and silently send forth the loving invitation as given in Isaiah: "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; come ye, buy, and eat; yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price."

Hospitality

KATE HOLT

BELIEF that matter is substance is very noticeable in the average expression of hospitality, but it is presented in a truer light by Peter, who counseled, "Use hospitality one to another without grudging." Another apostle, in advising as to the appointment of an elder or bishop, recommended that such be "a lover of hospitality." By the same writer the phrase "given to hospitality" is one of a series, among which are such favorites as "rejoicing in hope," "patient in tribulation," and "continuing instant in prayer."

The student of Christian Science finds it impossible to evade the injunction, "Be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind," which also applies to the exercise of the virtue of hospitality, for as the individual consciousness becomes spiritualized the outward manifestation is changed. Ostentation, extravagance, pretense, give way to the simple sharing of what we have as occasion presents itself. As the writer was pondering the true meaning of hospitality one day, error began to whisper that here is a virtue inseparable from the possession of individual wealth, hence a virtue to be exercised by the few and not by all, which would imply that God is a respecter of persons.

One cannot declare daily that God is omnipresent Truth, without finding a ready rebuke for insidious error when it talks in this fashion; hence it was quickly seen that God is no respecter of persons in regard to any good thing, and that with the perception of any virtue is given the means and the opportunity to exercise it. God-given thoughts always bear within themselves seed after their kind, and bring forth fruit after their kind. As this truth dawns in consciousness, it becomes clear that good is not diminished by being shared.

Since man exists at the standpoint of opportunity, one has but to be conscious that truth is unfolding, in order to utilize that truth. Soon after this unfoldment came to the writer, three opportunities occurred in quick succession, as if to emphasize the appearing. Looking out of the window of a suburban home I saw a man, a woman, and a child waiting for a belated car. The day was unusually cold, and as cars can be seen for a considerable distance before the station is reached, these strangers were invited to come in to the fire. The invitation was readily accepted, and the comfort of the room was shared without being diminished.

The second opportunity came at the close of a Wednesday evening meeting, when a chance acquaintance who was passing through the city approached and asked if she might spend the night with me, as the hotels were at that time crowded to their utmost capacity. Consent was cordially given, and the visitor resumed her journey the next day. The third opportunity was afforded by a homeless animal, apparently starving, which was given shelter and food and has proven a most serviceable member of the household ever since.

With these simple proofs, following so quickly on the consideration of this quality of good, thought began to expand to a higher sense. When any one comes to our thought, no matter how wide the separation, do we accord this individual the hospitality of the best thought we have to give? Do we always shelter him with the charity that "thinketh no evil"? When many of our fellow men are "weary wanderers, athirst in the desert," to use our Leader's words (Science and Health, p. 570), do we offer them "a cup of cold water" by giving a testimony on Wednesday evening, or by bringing promptly to our distribution committees the Christian Science periodicals we have read, so that they may be placed in the hands of those who may find therein the food they most need? When a thought of truth unfolds to us, do we receive it gladly and cherish it fervently, so that we may manifest its healing power to our fellow men?

When a few Christian Scientists are associated together in a small church or society, it is worth while to watch that the notion does not gain admittance that they are banded together for worship in a way whereby they receive what they want; that they go to church merely to hear the Lesson-Sermon read or to listen to the music for their own benefit. Rather let them attend the services rejoicing that they have the truth, "the bread of life," to give to all who will accept it, and to accord to all who come the welcoming thought given on page 254 of Science and Health, "Stranger, thou art the guest of God."

"Let the dead bury their dead"

J. ALLEN BARRIS

SLOWLY the train was moving out of the station. From their seats in the car some observers could see the party of friends standing on the platform, apparently reluctant to go until the last moment. Good-bys had been said, but it seemed as though the loving friendships which had been established through long association in the work of a common cause were about to be broken, and the woman looking back at the waving hands could no longer restrain the tears which welled up at the thought of parting. The small boy at her side looked at her for a few moments with much concern, and then said earnestly, his thought filled no doubt with the prospects of the future, "Don't look back, mother; look ahead." In a few moments the mother's tears were dried, and thought turned to the far away city where the new home was to be established.

On page 330 of "Miscellaneous Writings" Mrs. Eddy tells us that "human hope and faith should join in nature's grand harmony." One of the beauties of youth is that it so quickly forgets the past; that its field of vision lies before it in the future, where hope and aspiration may have unbounded scope without fear of restriction. Fortunate indeed is he who can retain this characteristic of youth as the years go by; who is able to look forward unmindful of the mistakes and failures of the past, which would rise ghostlike to proclaim with so much assurance that they are the inevitable accompaniment of many of the plans and hopes of men. Unhappily, mortal experience would say that with the thought of age this distinguishing trait of youth is largely reversed; that with the belief of advancing years the line of vision begins to run backward. This is because of the belief of an existence having a beginning and an end, toward the latter of which the individual seems to be approaching.

Digitized by Google

It is one of the peculiarities of mortal thought that when the human mind is stirred to action by the thought of reform, it very often dwells upon those past experiences which would convince it that it is not worthy to share in the blessings of reformation, or that its inability to adjust itself to the new requirements is a punishment for its past transgressions. On page 404 of Science and Health we read that the effects of evil can be removed only "as God's law is fulfilled and reformation cancels the crime." There is no doubt that the time comes to every man when he desires to be better; when he would give up his beliefs in the pains and pleasures of matter. It is at such times that his indulgences of the past persist in occupying thought with all their varied arguments, and with such persistence that any effort to shut them out seems herculean. It is then that memory would whisper, "Be sure your sin will find you out." It is then that self-condemnation and discouragement are found waiting at the door, ready to come in.

In turning to his Bible for help and consolation, the despondent one will read perhaps the words of St. Paul, "This one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, . . . I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Here would seem to be the remedy—to forget. Probably he begins to try, but he finds his efforts fruitless, since his dreams of the past, like the "old man of the sea," refuse to be shaken off, for they are not to be disposed of by human will power. Still there is no occasion for discouragement, for a further examination of Paul's letter to the Philippians reveals an unfailing remedy: "Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus."

It will be found too that this admonition to right thinking precedes the former statement. A study of this passage in the light of Christian Science will show the despondent one that it was the divine Mind which was in Christ Jesus—that Mind which is God, who is "of purer eyes than to behold evil;" who knows no past nor future, but for whom all is the eternal now. This Mind is the divine Principle of man, and man is His spiritual idea, or image and likeness,—pure, perfect, upright, who never has fallen from this state of perfection, and never can.

Here, then, is the key to the whole situation, for recognizing himself as this idea, the awakening thought begins to see events in their true light. The student of Christian Science begins to understand that the past, which persists in presenting itself with so much vigor, was never anything that belonged to the spiritual idea or that was known to the divine Mind. Therefore as he begins to assimilate this truth and to recognize his true selfhood, in that proportion will the past cease to have any reality for him and so finally disappear from consciousness. Then he will begin to understand why Paul, who had much in his past for which to condemn himself, could make with so much assurance the assertion before quoted. He was beginning to comprehend the unreality of human experience, and so could press forward with confidence for the prize, namely, the complete elimination of all sense of life and intelligence as existent in matter.

This thought of the unreality of past misdeeds can be apprehended only by catching a clear glimpse of the divine idea, but there can be no comfort in it for the thought which is satisfied with a degraded condition and has no desire for reformation. Such a thought must continue to suffer until the mesmeric condition is broken and it is awakened to the divine possibilities. As humble disciples of him who said, "Follow me; and let the dead bury their dead," we are striving to attain to the standard he has set before us, and this can be accomplished only by pressing onward. With the past purified by tears of repentance, the sincerity of which is attested by reformation, and the present consecrated to the "Father's business," joyfully and confidently we face the future, knowing that we must reach that state of consciousness where all sickness, sorrow, sin, and death are unknown and the awakening to reality has come.

This goal is the zenith of man's ascension, which begins with the first steps taken in the line of spirituality, lifting him above the material sense of existence and finally unfolding his permanent position as a child of God, the spiritual idea of man's divine Principle, Love. This Love knows no past upon which to reflect, no future to contemplate. There is only the joy and bliss of the eternal present, and "there shall be no night there."

✧

Watchfulness

FRANCES M. GORRELL

One who occupies the position of watchman in any business enterprise is entrusted with duties which may seem small and unimportant of themselves, yet which are absolutely necessary to the protection and success of the whole business of which they are a part, and which need to be carried out with great precision. These duties call for punctuality, alertness, and faithfulness. For instance, the night watchman in a factory must take up his duties promptly, and each hour during the night should find him in his place in the mill, looking after the safety of all for which he is responsible. Such a position demands steadfast obedience to one's highest sense of duty.

The Bible has much to say about watchfulness and is very definite in its statements as to what our mental attitude should be and how we should watch. In Habakkuk we read, "I will stand upon my watch, and set me upon the tower, and will watch to see what he will say unto me, and what I shall answer." To stand upon the watch brings out the thought of activity, a readiness to meet and overcome quickly any foe to peace and progress. Jesus saw the paramount necessity for watchfulness, and constantly reiterated to his students the command to watch. He said, "Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation;" and again, "Watch therefore: for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come." Paul too was awake to the demands of Truth, and in his first epistle to the Thessalonians he wrote, "Therefore let us not sleep, as do others; but let us watch and be sober;" and again in addressing his beloved Timothy he wrote, "Watch thou in all things."

The text-book of Christian Science, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, gives definite instructions as to watchfulness. On page 392 we read: "When the condition is present which you say induces disease, whether it be air, exercise, heredity, contagion, or accident, then perform your office as porter and shut out these unhealthy thoughts and fears. . . . The issues of pain or pleasure must come through mind, and like a watchman forsaking his post, we admit the intruding belief."

Digitized by Google

The Christian Scientist knows that it is necessary to guard thought well, not only against the admitted evils of hate, falsehood, jealousy, and impurity, but also against the less recognized evils of sorrow, discontent, worry, fear, and discouragement. It may be less difficult to stand on the watch against theft, impurity, and vice than it is to guard against worry, fretfulness, and despair, yet the first named originate no more discord than the last mentioned; in fact, many times a life of evil can be traced back to extreme worry or fear. If mankind could only realize that to scold, worry, and fret is not only to acknowledge another power besides God, but also to steal from others their God-given rights, thus breaking both the first and the eighth commandments, this would arouse each one to take a firmer stand on his watch. There is no worse theft than the taking away of joy, peace, and harmony from those around us, and is not this what scolding and fretting tends to do?

In the prophecy of Ezekiel we read, "O son of man, I have set thee a watchman unto the house of Israel." Every Christian Scientist is appointed a watchman, and he should see to it that no thought of inability, anxiety, or discouragement enters his own consciousness to hinder the helpfulness of his life. He is to watch that nothing but kind, loving thoughts go out from him, only such thoughts as will bring health and harmony into other lives. He is to watch for opportunities to make the whole world purer, happier, and holier. He is to watch for the good in mankind, to magnify the good and lose sight of all else. He is to stand constantly on his watch and listen for Truth's voice to direct him, and as he hears and obeys there will come to him the blessed consciousness of having been faithful over the few things entrusted to his keeping, and a happy realization of the promised dominion over many things.

✧

[Written for the Sentinel]

Hymn to Columbia

HON. CLARENCE A. BUSKIRK

O LOVED Columbia! If perchance
  Thy love for peace and right,
Through the fell stress of circumstance
  Shall yield to war and night;
Though on thy gracious face the smile
  Shall for the moment cease,
Yet may thy greatness in brief while
  Compel enduring peace!

Columbia, child of liberty!
  Blest leader of the world
In all that makes men high and free!
  Thy flag is aye unfurled
For freedom, friendship, brotherhood,
  For justice, kindness, right;
Thou sheddest ne'er a brother's blood
  Because thine arm hath might!

Columbia, free-born child of light,
  Thy power for good is great;
For right is mightier far than might,
  And brotherhood than hate!
Then lift to heaven thy starry face,
  So all mankind may see
Thy beauty, majesty, and grace,
  Daughter of liberty!

Selected Articles

[Judge Clifford P. Smith in The Boston (Mass.) Traveler]

It has been considered worth reporting that an evangelist said that a Christian Scientist would only do some talking to a man in search of a satisfying gospel "and leave the poor devil right where he was." Such comment proves too much; it flares backward. The fact is that Christian Science is assailed by its clerical opponents mainly for the reason that it has furnished a satisfying gospel to numerous members of other churches.

The facts here mentioned have been remarked by more than a few observers. For instance, a Congregational minister of Mansfield, Ohio, was reported in the Mansfield News of Jan. 10, 1916, as saying: "Our excellent friends, the Christian Scientists, are frequently made the target of unnecessary attack. Personally I think it is a shame and little short of a great sin that they were driven outside of all the churches. There ought to have been in the beginning enough of toleration and sympathy and intelligence to conserve what was good in the new movement and keep it within the church. First and last the church has lost a good deal by its intolerant attitude. It has condemned offhand a number of things which it ought to have tried to appreciate with sympathy and understand."

Again, the rector of the Episcopal Church at Union, N. J., was reported by the Union Inquirer of April 9, 1916, as saying: "I am friendly to Christian Science for what we commonly call a pragmatic reason. If a thing works, if, to use the vernacular, 'it delivers the goods,' then it is worthy of our commendation, and of course I am familiar with many cases where Christian Science has worked, where it has 'delivered the goods.' Among my acquaintances there are several whose lives have been transformed by Christian Science. Other churches did not succeed in doing anything for them. Christian Science did succeed. So all honor to it. Of course the situation at times is reversed. Christian Science may fail with some individuals where the Episcopal church or the Jewish church would succeed. God in His wisdom chooses many different mediums through which to work."

An editorial in the Los Angeles Times of June 10, 1916, put the case in a few words, as follows: "The attacks upon Christian Science are wrong, and meet with the failure they deserve. Whatever may be said of the religious aspects of the cult, its effects upon the minds of its followers, and upon their bodies, is indisputable, and it is good."

✧

[Lloyd B. Coate in Ohio State Journal, Columbus, Ohio]

A correspondent in speaking of my reply to a former criticism says, "I cannot understand why he and others are not willing that the teachings of Christian Science shall stand on their merits and not be propped up by misinterpretations of the teachings of Christ." This is exactly what Christian Scientists are willing to do.

Professing Christians of all denominations need to exercise that Christian virtue called charity. If the Methodists and Baptists fully agreed on all points there would not be two separate denominations. If the Presbyterians were a unit on all doctrinal points with the Methodists and Baptists we would have one denomination instead of three; and so we might continue. Different denominations imply different points of view regarding the Scriptures. The golden rule practised would certainly mean a charitable consideration of others' views, and Christian Scientists are willing that all people should follow their highest sense of right. Our periodicals never speak unkindly or disrespectfully of other denominations.

Digitized by Google

Our critic says, "A religion is finally estimated by its fundamental principles," and then he adds, "The fundamental principles of Christianity and Christian Science are directly opposed." On page 497 of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, is a brief summary of what Christian Science teaches. These tenets show that Christian Scientists take the Bible as their "sufficient guide to eternal Life," and acknowledge that "man is saved through Christ, through Truth;" also that they acknowledge not only God's forgiveness of sin, but Jesus' atonement and crucifixion, and solemnly promise to practise the golden rule. These tenets embrace the fundamental teachings of Christianity.

Many ministers and religious leaders have had their works copyrighted. "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" has been copyrighted to protect its teachings from being adulterated and plagiarized. A careful study of the writings of Mrs. Eddy will enable any sincere seeker after truth to discern what she teaches on the subject of denial. Christian Science classifies as real all that God created, and as unreal that which seems to have an existence but is altogether unlike His creation. To human sense sin, sickness, war, death, seem very real, and they must be overcome and destroyed in the way pointed out by Christ Jesus. Unless one can prove that he understands Christian Science, by healing the sick in accord with the Principle taught by Mrs. Eddy, he is not in a position to pass righteous judgment as to her interpretation of the Scriptures.

Mrs. Eddy taught her students to have faith in God. She never boasted that she would not pass "through the valley of the shadow of death." Our critic accuses her of deluding others. If teaching mankind to have greater faith in God is a form of delusion, it would be a blessing if all mankind would become so deluded and thus have more faith in good than in evil; in fact, seek to overcome evil with good.

This critic accuses Mrs. Eddy of being in the care of a physician. If he means to say that she was in the care of a medical practitioner and used material remedies after discovering Christian Science, then he has violated the most sacred commandment, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor," for this charge is without a vestige of truth. Mrs. Eddy believed and taught that God is the great Physician. The last words she wrote before passing away were, "God is my life."

✧

[Peter V. Ross in the Willows (Cal.) Journal]

Christian Science arouses its students from their sense of suffering and breaks up their evil desires and pursuits. Health and righteousness then follow. The Christian Scientist does not, as the evangelist declares, "deaden his soul to the reality of matter, evil," and so on; rather does he awaken more and more to the unreality of matter and to the unattractiveness and powerlessness of evil. Thereby his soul is restored, as the psalmist says; that is, his spiritual sense is quickened so that he begins to realize his true selfhood, which is above and beyond sin and disease.

The evangelist critic concludes that Christian Science is not Christian because it "denies the existence of sin or evil," and also because it presents what he believes to be a wrong concept of the atonement. It is true that Christian Scientists do not accept the doctrine of the vicarious atonement. As Mrs. Eddy says, "Christians do not continue to labor and pray, expecting because of another's goodness, suffering, and triumph, that they shall reach his harmony and reward" (Science and Health, p. 21). Each individual must bear the responsibility of his own sins; he cannot shift the responsibility upon Jesus or upon any one else, and it is astonishing that anybody should ever have desired such a thing or supposed it possible. Jesus showed us how to overcome the consequences of our wrong-doing and how to work out our own salvation as the Bible commands, but he did not do these things for us. He "taught and demonstrated man's oneness with the Father" (Science and Health, p. 18). Then he left it for every other person to demonstrate that oneness for himself, and thereby accomplish the destruction of his own sins.

Christian Science, it is true, denies that sin and evil have any real existence. It is admitted, of course, that they seem real to human sense, just as the earth seems flat and the electric light larger than a star of the first magnitude; but this is because human sense takes a perverted or distorted view of all things and does not see them as they are. The Bible says very definitely that God made all that was made, and that He "saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was very good." The Bible also makes it clear that God is everywhere present. Where, then, can there be any place or possibility for evil?

✧

[William G. Westle in Birmingham (England) Mercury]

Manifestly our critic is totally unaware of the fact that in Christian Science physical healing is an incident naturally resulting from the operation in human consciousness of the understanding of divine Mind, or God. It was the truth about man as created in the image and likeness of God, understood by and therefore operative in the consciousness of Jesus, which enabled him to do the "works" which he referred to as carrying out the will of his Father; and Christian Scientists have learned some little of the fact that just in the degree in which they believe on the Christ, or that consciousness which actuated the fleshly Jesus, they will be able to bring into their own experience the "signs" following compliance with the injunctions contained in the closing verses of the last chapter of St. Mark's gospel. This is letting that Mind be in them "which was also in Christ Jesus," whose remedy was always divine Mind.

Because the critics have not understood the operation of divine Mind in all Jesus' teachings and practice, they fail to appreciate the real factor in the case cited by our critic,—the restoration of sight to the blind man, as recorded in the ninth chapter of John. It does not seem to have occurred to them that if Jesus had attributed any healing property to the clay upon which he spat, such a method would have been honored in some degree in his other recorded cases of restoration of sight. Further, they would seem not to have observed the possibility of significance attaching to the fact that he who had been blind "came seeing," after obeying the injunction to wash away the clay which Jesus had spat upon. We can all wash away more of the tendency to make idols of the material, with the consequent happy result that we shall see more of the real purport of Christ Jesus' teachings and practice.

Our critic asks whether it is true that Christian Scientists do not accept the divinity of Christ. A study of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, shows that no people honor the divinity of Christ more than Christian Scientists; they could not very well claim to be imitators of him unless they did. On page 497 of this text-book any one may read the second of six tenets which form the basis of Christian Science teaching: "We acknowledge and adore one supreme and infinite God. We acknowledge His Son, one Christ; the Holy Ghost or divine Comforter; and man in God's image and likeness."

Digitized by Google

A further question reads, "Is it true that they [Christian Scientists] deny the reality of pain?" It is rather to be suspected that what is really meant by this question is, Do Christian Scientists inform a suffering mortal that he has no pain? The only answer to this is the emphatic reply, Certainly not. Christian Science points out the unreality of pain, because man in the image and likeness of God is free from every discordant sense, for, as Paul stated, "in him we live, and move, and have our being." The human self needs to be evangelized through this understanding.

From the foregoing our second critic, who writes under the pen name of "Mod.," will gather that Christian Science is quite in agreement with him when he says, "God helps those who help themselves." Certainly Christ Jesus' method procured the best results in this direction.

✧

[S. T. Downs in Indianapolis (Ind.) Star]

An article dated at New York City and entitled "Medical Magic Still Believed," appeared in your paper recently, and in the discussion was this statement: "What else is all this but another application of the power of a stronger mind over a weaker one, as taught by our Christian Science friends?" The author who made this statement, while probably not unfriendly to Christian Science, is not informed as to the opposite natures of divine metaphysics and ordinary metaphysics.

Metaphysics as taught in the schools, such as suggestion, mesmerism, hypnotism, and the like, is based on the unscriptural hypothesis that man exists apart from God; that man is controlled and governed by conflicting laws; that there is an evil creator opposed to divine Mind; and that the works of this evil one are as powerful, or more powerful, than the works of God. Material metaphysics teaches further that man has a material, mortal mind; that one human mind influences and controls another, and the whole erroneous theory is a "kingdom divided against itself," which according to Scriptural teaching cannot stand. Those informed in the teachings and practice of Christian Science understand that Mrs. Eddy throughout her writings condemned this theory as the total of all evil.

Divine metaphysics as taught in Christian Science sets forth the great Scriptural fact that God, the one and only creator, is Mind, and that man in His image and likeness is governed and can be governed by nothing but the laws emanating from divine Mind—God. Christian Science proves conclusively that man has no entity separate and apart from God, and it is the understanding of this fact that enables mankind to rise above the discords and inharmonies that result from false and unscriptural concepts of God and man's relation to Him.

✧

[George C. Eames in Portland (Maine) Press]

Many of your readers may wonder why one whose profession is to preach the saving power of the Christ, should make the statement that "there never can be a Christian Science church because Christ is not there," notwithstanding the generally recognized fact that Christian Science is not only preaching the gospel and regenerating the sinner, but is also healing the sick—actually exhibiting the "signs" which Jesus declared should "follow them that believe." One would naturally expect that other churches would be the first to welcome these "signs," although we remember that this was not done when Christ Jesus himself presented the proofs of Christianity. It was the common people who "heard him gladly."

Jesus commanded his followers to preach the gospel and to heal the sick. He also said that those who believe in him should do the works that he did. It would seem reasonable, therefore, that the body of Christians which most nearly obeys this command is most worthy to be called a church. Students of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, and the Bible, have become so well acquainted with Christ Jesus and his teachings that they not only rely upon them unreservedly for their own health and happiness, but are able to present them to others with the "signs following" which he declared should distinguish "them that believe."

✧

[W. D. Kilpatrick in Alma (Mich.) Record]

Christian Science is based distinctly on the teachings of the Bible, and if its teachings are honestly investigated and studied they will be found to be in strict accord therewith at all points. It lays special stress on the import of the words of the Master, Jesus the Christ, and no other religion enjoins on its members such strict adherence to the teachings of Jesus.

Christian Science sees no excuse in the Bible for divorcing the injunction of the Master to heal the sick from his further commands to preach the gospel and cast out sin. The success which has attended this religion in its ministry to the sick and the sinning is evidence of the fact that it is reinstating the teachings of primitive Christianity in their full import. There is hardly a known disease which has not been healed through its ministrations, and many a sinful person has been delivered from his bondage through the proper understanding of God and His relation to man as taught in Christian Science.

This religion teaches that there is an immutable law of God which governs the universe, including man, in perfect harmony, and that through the understanding and correct application of this law Jesus was enabled to perform his work. It also teaches that the words and works of Jesus were for the guidance of all mankind throughout all time, and that the healing of the sick and the casting out of sin by Jesus were not merely evidence of his divine sonship, but were examples to all mankind of what must be accomplished by them in the spiritualization of thought through the understanding of God and of His relation to His universe and man.

✧ ✧ ✧

[Written for the Sentinel]

Awakening

MARY VICTORIA CLARK

Sunrise and glowing sky,
My heart at rest;
Beauty and Love divine,—
These are the best!

Ofttimes at eve I dreamed,
With eyes tear-dim;
Nothing seemed worth the pain,—
Till I knew Him!

Since then the world seems new,
Happy and calm.
With joy renewed, each dawn
Brings heavenly balm.

Fear gone, I'm now at peace
Where'er I go;
All that I need is here,—
Mine but to know!

Digitized by Google

Editorial

Why Obedience?

From the beginning of mortal history obedience to divine law seems to have been the determining factor in the welfare both of individuals and of nations. It was disobedience that barred Adam from the garden of Eden, that made Cain a wanderer on the earth, that shut out the Israelites from the promised land; and so on down through the ages the sin of disobedience has brought its own punishment. On the other hand, the blessings promised to those who gave heed to the divine commands were multiplied. No doubt Abraham was puzzled when he believed that he was bidden to take the child of promise, from whom was to spring a great nation, to the mountain of sacrifice and there slay him for an offering to the Lord, but he obeyed even to the drawing of the sacrificial knife; and then his hand was stayed because he had proved his loyalty, had shown himself worthy of the blessings that were to be heaped upon him.

On no one thing does the fulfilment of the mission of Christian Science more closely depend than this same obedience to divine law. Because it is Science it is not only exact but it is exacting. Based on that fundamental law, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me," and the mandate which sums up the Sermon on the Mount, "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them," obedience to its teachings can but procure the same blessing today as when Jesus said to the lawyer who had questioned him, "This do, and thou shalt live." In other words, he who seeks to order his daily walk and conversation by these primary laws of being, thereby ensures to himself that sense of divine protection which knows that, whether waking or sleeping, there is no evil to fear, for Truth, Life, and Love is omnipotent and ever present.

To those who have known no other than material beliefs as a means of succor in times of pain and anguish, it seems incredible that reliance upon God alone is sufficient to heal every sense of human suffering. But the Christian Scientist knows he can put his trust in nó other than the one God; that to temporize with doctors and material remedies is to forfeit the right to protection,—to the blessing which waits on obedience. He knows that whatever the time or circumstance divine Love is available for his every need. All that is necessary is to cling fast to what he knows of the all-power of Truth. As Mrs. Eddy counsels, "Let neither fear nor doubt overshadow your clear sense and calm trust, that the recognition of life harmonious—as Life eternally is—can destroy any painful sense of, or belief in, that which Life is not" (Science and Health, p. 495), and the victory over error of every sort is assured.

The same law of right doing holds good in every field of endeavor. There are other foes besides sickness and disease that threaten one's well-being. The Master said, "Fear not them which kill the body, . . . but rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell." In other words, he who gives over his thinking to the indulgence of malice, envy, covetousness, and kindred evils, is likewise yielding his body to the manifestations of these evils; he is serving "other gods," that will turn upon him and rend him when their own ill purpose has been accomplished. Sorrow and suffering may and do come to the righteous man as trials of his faith in God's goodness, but these are as naught beside the torment, both mental and physical, which is the sequence to violations of the eternal law of right.

It may be safely set down that whatever has been accomplished in the demonstration of Christian Science has been brought about through loyal obedience to its teachings, and that whatever it may have of success in the future is dependent on the same loyalty. To be always obedient to right ofttimes tests endurance to the utmost, but thus only is the victory won. As Mrs. Eddy points out on page 118 of "Miscellaneous Writings," "The guerdon of meritorious faith or trustworthiness rests on being willing to work alone with God and for Him,—willing to suffer patiently for error until all error is destroyed and His rod and His staff comfort you."

Archibald McLellan.

Watching a Hole in the Ground

A hunting dog can be trained to watch a hole in the ground until called away by his master. He may spend hours at a particular hole and in the mean time be oblivious of all that goes on about him. All sorts of tempting indications of the presence of many kinds of feathered or four-footed game may try to lure him from his watch, but he notices nothing except the one particular hole to which he has been assigned. If nothing comes out of that hole, he will secure nothing at all. This educated trait of our friend the dog, when under the influence of human domination, may teach a lesson to humanity itself.

Many a man is mentally watching a hole in the ground, and if nothing issues from it he is destined to be grievously disappointed. He falls under the supposed spell of limitation and is oblivious of the unlimited opportunities which are all around him. Such a one comes to the Christian Science practitioner and laments his lack of success. In his own thought he has narrowed down God's infinite resources to a single hole in the ground. He is engaged in a certain business, trained to a certain profession, or derives his income from a certain investment. If this one avenue should fail, he believes he has lost everything, because he imagines that God is even as helpless and petty as himself. On page 255 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy has written: "Mortal man has made a covenant with his eyes to belittle Deity with human conceptions. In league with material sense, mortals take limited views of all things."

But what a genuine relief comes to this small-minded human being when Christian Science teaches him the boundless abundance of the Principle governing the universe, the unstinting generosity of a loving Father-Mother, the never ending activity of Life eternal, the inexhaustible reservoir of health and happiness complete. This fearful one should know that God has millions of ways of supplying him with everything that he needs, that strictly and scientifically speaking every right desire is already fulfilled. Does he yearn for substance, strength, ability, talent, discernment, beauty, wisdom, love? Then they are his already in reality. Does he envy in another some charm, some grace of speech or bearing, or the marks of intelligence, cleverness, quickness of decision, firmness of resolve? Let him forego his envy, for it strikes beside the mark. All good belongs now to man, who is the manifestation of the infinite source of being, and humanity becomes possessed of these divine qualities by claiming them from God, whose giving is boundless. We read on page 60 of Science and Health, "Soul has infinite resources with which to bless mankind, and happiness would be more readily attained and would be more secure in our keeping, if sought in Soul."

Limitation plays singular tricks with the unwary. Every Christian Science practitioner can remember among the complaints poured into his ears, the familiar one which sounds somewhat as follows: I am reduced to a single piece of property, which gives me a great deal of trouble; I can neither sell it nor let it—nobody seems to want it; and to tell you the truth, I look upon it as a nuisance. Then the Christian Science practitioner may ask a few well aimed questions in order to heal the belief of limitation. How can a stranger be expected to appreciate a piece of property if the owner of it considers it a nuisance? Let us learn to give thanks, to bless instead of curse, to realize that supply proceeds from limitless Principle.

Digitized by Google

The more this habit of watching a hole in the ground is observed, the more thoroughly unsatisfactory it becomes. Scripture tells us that the ground was cursed for the sake of mortal man, and that this same belief of a counterfeit man was formed of the dust of the ground, while Christian Science states, in the words of Mrs. Eddy on page 537 of Science and Health, "Error tills its own barren soil and buries itself in the ground, since ground and dust stand for nothingness." According to the ancient conundrum, a hole in the ground is that which keeps on growing smaller the more you add to it.

WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN.

✧

Prayer and Demonstration

CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS are sometimes asked why they no longer pray audibly or with outward form, as they did in the past. These questions usually imply that the student of Christian Science has given up something which belongs to vital religion, and prayer certainly does if it be of the right sort. The Christian Scientist, however, has learned to take the Sermon on the Mount as his guide in all things, including prayer; and Mrs. Eddy's teachings bring to it such wonderful spiritual illumination that the blessings it has for all mankind are made available, whatever be the human need. It may be said, however, that the method of petitioning God to do something He had overlooked or was unwilling to do, is largely absent from the prayer of Christian Science.

The truer sense of prayer is brought out in that little understood story of the fig tree which was withered at the Master's word because it brought forth no fruit. In reading the twenty-first chapter of Matthew we discover that Jesus recognized with sorrow the same condition in the services of the temple. There were forms enough, but no fruit; and yet it was for this the people hungered, even the little children; and when it was brought forth in the healing of the blind and the lame who came to him in the temple, the joy of the children broke forth in loud praises. As we read on we find that the mental condition which he rebuked in the temple was expressing itself even through what is called nature; and when he came to the fig tree seeking fruit thereon because he was hungry, he found none; and so he pronounced upon it the condemnation of Truth, which ever falls upon that which is not Truth's idea but which is a counterfeit thereof. It is interesting to note that Jesus did not pray that this tree might wither away, but he declared that it could no longer deceive people by its false appearance; and as Christian Science "resolves things into thoughts" (Science and Health, p. 269), the untrue thought, when addressed by the Master, vanished away, as darkness is dispelled by light.

It is of course possible that some one outside of Christian Science might argue here that Jesus did not need to pray to God to bring about this change, because he was one with God; but the account itself does not support this contention, for when the disciples commented upon the withering away of the barren fig tree, Jesus made the demand upon them for demonstration of the same sort when he said, "If ye have faith, and doubt not, ye shall not only do this which is done to the fig tree, but also if ye shall say unto this mountain, Be thou removed, and be thou cast into the sea; it shall be done. And all things, whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive." In this unequivocal statement he identified true prayer with the declaration of truth which destroys all error.

On page 373 of "Miscellaneous Writings" our revered Leader says that Christian Science "presents not words alone, but works,—the daily demonstration of Truth and Love." She goes on to say that this demonstration was scorned by the Pharisees; that "to them it was cant and caricature,—always the opposite of what it was" (p. 374). At the present time many outsiders fail to understand the prayer of Christian Science, and consequently condemn it; but a close study of the subject in the light of Christian Science reveals the fact that it is entirely Scriptural, and that no other kind of prayer is truly in line with the Master's teachings. In other words, true prayer is inseparable from demonstration.

Perhaps the vital lesson for all of us at this point is the fact that the hungry are all around us, and the question rests with us whether we are ready to feed the hungry with the bread which really satisfies, and whether we are daily and hourly bringing forth the fruit of the Spirit, which is needed at this hour more than it ever was in human history. If we are doing so, then it proves that we know how to pray, and that our declarations of truth will lead inevitably to the vanishing away of all error, and the good we ask for, whether it be for ourselves or others, we shall according to the Master's promise receive.

ANNIE M. KNOTT.

✧

Notice

On Saturday, April 21, the reading-room maintained by The Mother Church in the Berkeley Building at 420 Boylston Street was closed, and new reading-rooms will be opened Tuesday morning, May 1, on the fourth floor of the new Little Building, corner of Tremont and Boylston Streets.

✧

Notice

Any one having odd numbers or complete sets of Volumes I, II, III, or IV of The Christian Science Journal (1883-1887) which they wish to exchange or sell, will please communicate with the Clerk of The Mother Church.

✧ ✧ ✧

Among the Churches

Current Notes

SEATTLE, WASH.—The first services were held yesterday [March 4] in the first unit of the new church home of Fourth Church of Christ, Scientist, at Eighth Avenue and Seneca Street. Until the needs of the congregation call for the addition of the last unit, the present portion, just completed, consisting of the Sunday school auditorium, which seats one thousand persons, will be occupied. The auditorium of the finished structure will seat twelve hundred persons.

The Post-Intelligencer.

KINGSTON, N. Y.—The edifice of First Church of Christ, Scientist, was dedicated Sunday, March 18. This organization was established in April, 1896, and incorporated in December of the same year. For twelve years the services were held in a private house, then for more than six years in a small chapel which was provided for the purpose in 1908. In April, 1914, the work of building the new church was begun, and on Dec. 6 of the same year the first Sunday service was held in the new building.

Digitized by Google

County of Durham, England.—The press as a whole is friendly toward Christian Science. There have been four articles to answer, and all replies have been published. One paper accepted two articles favorable to Christian Science. Through the assistance of the Trustees under the Will of Mary Baker Eddy the following periodicals of the Publishing Society and works of Mrs. Eddy have been supplied: One year's subscription to the Sentinel, Journal, and Monitor to Annfield Plain and South Shields, 2 copies of "Miscellaneous Writings," 1 of "Retrospection and Introspection," and 1 of "Rudimental Divine Science." Also the following quantities of literature have been sent to soldiers' camps, hospitals, and public institutions: 576 Sentinels, 79 Journals, 4190 Monitors, 36 pamphlets. The committee entered five subscriptions to the Sentinel, Journal, or Monitor for various organizations, and assistant committees distributed 1453 copies of the periodicals.—Committee on Publication.

Cleveland, Ohio.—The edifice for Second Church of Christ, Scientist, is being erected at the southeast corner of Euclid Avenue and East Seventy-seventh Street, and will cost two hundred and fifty thousand dollars. The building will be 110 by 175 feet, with an auditorium 105 by 110 feet seating more than fifteen hundred, and a Sunday school room accommodating more than six hundred.

The Sunday Leader.

Newburgh, N. Y. —The contract for reconstructing the interior of the home of the late Benjamin B. Odell so as to permit of religious services being conducted by First Church of Christ, Scientist, has been awarded. It is expected that in a short time the present building will be moved back sufficiently to permit of the erection of a church edifice near the sidewalk.—Newburgh Journal.

Rock Island, Ill.—On March 4 First Church of Christ, Scientist, held dedicatory services for its edifice on Twenty-second Street and Seventh Avenue. The site for the building was purchased in May, 1914, the corner-stone was laid in the following November, and the first service was held Nov. 14, 1915.

Forest Grove, Ore.—The new Christian Science church edifice, completed in this city last October, was dedicated last Sunday [March 4]. Ground was broken for this structure July 5, 1916, the corner-stone was laid Aug. 9, and the first service was held in it Oct. 29.—Forest Grove Express.

Admission to Membership in The Mother Church

The next admission of candidates will be June 1, 1917. Application blanks may be obtained by addressing the Clerk of The Mother Church, and should be returned to him on or before Wednesday, May 9, 1917.

An application sent to the Clerk does not constitute the applicant a member. Notice of election will be sent to those who are admitted to membership.

Those who have made application for membership prior to Nov. 8, 1916, and have not received notice of election, may communicate with the Clerk if they so desire, and are especially requested to do so before sending in a second application.

John V. Dittemore, Clerk,
286 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

The Lectures

Tallahassee, Fla. (First Church).—Frank Bell, lecturer; introduced by William A. McRae, commissioner of agriculture, who said in part:—

It is a pleasure to be here tonight,—to be with good people, people seeking to know the truth. Herodotus, the father of history, tells us in his first book that the Persians instructed their children only in three things: to wit, to manage animals, especially the horse, which meant self-control; to shoot accurately with the bow and arrow, which meant clear vision and calmness; and to speak the truth, which in fulness meant all that is true and noble and worthy in life.

The dewdrop at night has a star sleeping in its bosom, and the most insignificant passage of Scripture has in it a shining truth. In all ages good people have been searching and crying for the truth. Fifty years ago Mrs. Eddy, from her point of view, saw the truth, and "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" had a quiet and modest beginning, just as the Saviour began two thousand years ago; and her interpretation of the Master's work and desire is now influencing for good and bringing peace and joy to multiplying numbers on every continent. I am not a Christian Scientist, but I am a searcher after truth in whatever guise it may be presented.

The Florida Record.

Detroit, Mich. (First Church).—Dr. Walton Hubbard, lecturer; introduced by Luzerne Hayden Peck, who said in part:—

The apostle Matthew says, "And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every disease among the people." Jesus later conferred this same power to preach and to heal upon his disciples and the seventy, and wherever the word was preached it was demonstrated by healing the sick and raising the dead. For centuries, however, this spiritual healing power was seemingly lost, and the church has left the healing of disease to medical science and other material so-called curative agencies.

Christian Science insists that there can be no divisional line separating the preaching of the gospel from the healing of the sick. One must always accompany the other, as the Master commanded. The constant cry of mankind is for health, happiness, and progress, and Christian Science is supplying this need. Through its teachings mankind is learning the true nature of God and what constitutes man as His image and likeness.

Kansas City, Mo. (Second Church).—William W. Porter, lecturer; introduced by Andrew G. Bodwell, Jr., who said in part:—

Christian Science is bringing about the one thing necessary to the establishment of a permanent and certain universal peace. That one necessary thing is a universal understanding of the one God. Erroneous and divergent concepts of God in individuals necessarily set nations at variance. Christian Science is gradually replacing these erroneous concepts with a world wide perception of the one God, defined in the Bible as Love. Through the dissemination of its literature around the globe, Christian Science is bringing to men in all departments of life—even to those in the trenches—an understanding of their relation to this God. This understanding, to use the words of Mrs. Eddy in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," the Christian Science text-book (p. 265), "confers upon man enlarged individuality, a wider sphere of thought and action, a more expansive love, a higher and more permanent peace."

Digitized by Google

HARTFORD, CONN. (Second Church).—Virgil O. Strickler, lecturer; introduced by Louis N. Denniston, who said in part:—

Over half a century ago, as men count time, a New England woman of Puritan ancestry announced that the question propounded by Pilate is answered today, even as it was then, by the demonstration that God is an ever present help. Mrs. Eddy made no claim to the discovery of anything new, but that this old, ever new truth, when understood and applied in a scientific manner, will repeat the marvels wrought by Jesus and his true followers of the early Christian era. She was misunderstood, then doubted, maligned; yea, even persecuted. She asked, as did St. Paul in his address before King Agrippa, "Why should it be thought a thing incredible with you, that God should raise the dead?" and submitted proof of her understanding of Truth by healing all manner of diseases.

Lectures to be Delivered

[By Members of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.]

ARKANSAS—Fort Smith: John Randall Dunn, Church Edifice, North Seventh and C Streets, 8 p.m., May 8.
Little Rock: William W. Porter, High School Auditorium, 8 p.m., May 1.

CALIFORNIA—Alhambra: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Alhambra High School, 8 p.m., May 10.
Compton: Charles I. Ohrenstein, I. O. O. F. Hall, 8 p.m., April 28.
Los Angeles (Second Church): Charles I. Ohrenstein, Shrine Auditorium, 3 p.m., April 29, and Church Edifice, 948 West Adams Street, 8 p.m., May 5.
Pasadena: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Church Edifice, Oakland Avenue, near Colorado Street, 8 p.m., May 11.
Pomona: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Belvedere Theater, 8 p.m., May 7.
Redlands: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Contemporary Club House, 8 p.m., May 8.
Riverside: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Orpheum Theater, Tenth and Main Streets, 3 p.m., May 6.

CANADA—Greenwood, British Columbia: Virgil O. Strickler, Star Theater, Upper Street, 8:30 p.m., May 10.
Nelson, British Columbia: Virgil O. Strickler, Church Edifice, 8:30 p.m., May 11.
Vancouver, British Columbia: Bliss Knapp, Orpheum Theater, 765 Granville Street, 3 p.m., May 6.
Victoria, British Columbia: Virgil O. Strickler, Pantages Theater, 3 p.m., May 6.

COLORADO—Alamosa: Ezra W. Palmer, Colorado Hall, 8 p.m., April 30.
Longmont: Ezra W. Palmer, City Auditorium, 8:15 p.m., May 11.
Montrose: Ezra W. Palmer, Armory, 8 p.m., May 7.
Ouray: Ezra W. Palmer, Court House, 8 p.m., May 8.
Pueblo: Ezra W. Palmer, Grand Opera House, 8 p.m., May 10.
Salida: Ezra W. Palmer, Opera House, 2:30 p.m., May 6.

CONNECTICUT—Bridgeport: George Shaw Cook, Lyric Theater, 3 p.m., May 6.

ENGLAND—Sheffield: John Sidney Braithwaite, Empire Theater, 3:15 p.m., May 6.

ILLINOIS—Belleville: George Shaw Cook, Liederkranz Hall, 8:15 p.m., May 10.
Berwyn (auspices Riverside): William R. Rathvon, Auditorium, 8 p.m., May 7.
Champaign (Second Church): Bicknell Young, Orpheum Theater, 3 p.m., May 6.
Chicago (First Church): Bicknell Young, Church Edifice, 4017 Drexel Boulevard, 3 and 8 p.m., May 5.
Chicago (Third Church): John Randall Dunn, Church Edifice, Washington Boulevard and Leavitt Street, 8 p.m., May 10 and 11.
Chicago (Fourteenth Church): Paul Stark Seeley, Constellation Masonic Temple, Byron and North Robey Streets, 8 p.m., May 10 and 11.
Chicago: (joint lectures): Paul Stark Seeley, Majestic Theater, 12 noon, May 10.
Evanston: Bicknell Young, Church Edifice, Chicago Avenue and Grove Street, 8 p.m., May 8.
Macomb: Bicknell Young, Chandler Theater, 8 p.m., May 7.

INDIANA—Evansville: William R. Rathvon, Evans Hall, 8:15 p.m., May 10.
Shelbyville: William R. Rathvon, Strand Theater, 3 p.m., May 6.

IOWA—Dubuque: George Shaw Cook, Church Edifice, Ninth and Bluff Streets, 8 p.m., May 8.
Red Oak: Bicknell Young, Beardsley's Opera House, 8 p.m., May 11.

MASSACHUSETTS—Cambridge (Societies of Harvard and Radcliffe Colleges): Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Phillips Brooks House, 4:30 p.m., May 1.

MICHIGAN—Albion: Clarence W. Chadwick, Eagle Temple, 8 p.m., May 7.
Bay City: William R. Rathvon, Armory, 8 p.m., May 8.
Cadillac: Clarence W. Chadwick, Congregational Church, 8 p.m., May 8.
Detroit (First Church): Paul Stark Seeley, Church Edifice, Cass and Hancock Avenues, 4 p.m., May 6, and 8 p.m., May 7 and 8.
Grand Rapids: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, The Coliseum, 78 Commerce Avenue, S.W., 8 p.m., May 10.
Oxford: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Oxford Opera House, 8 p.m., May 7.
South Haven: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Selkirk Opera House, 8 p.m., May 11.
Ypsilanti: William R. Rathvon, Masonic Temple, 8 p.m., April 26.

MINNESOTA—Kasson: Clarence W. Chadwick, City Hall, 8:15 p.m., May 11.
Winona: Clarence W. Chadwick, Masonic Temple, 8 p.m., May 10.

NEW HAMPSHIRE—Littleton: William R. Rathvon, Masonic Temple, 8 p.m., April 30.

NEW JERSEY—Ridgewood: Clarence W. Chadwick, Play House, 3:30 p.m., May 6.

NEW YORK—Brooklyn (First Church): Willis F. Gross, Brooklyn Academy of Music, 3 p.m., May 6.
Oneonta: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Woman's Club, 8 p.m., May 3.
Watertown: William W. Porter, City Opera House, 3:30 p.m., May 6.

OHIO—Bucyrus: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Hippodrome Theater, 3 p.m., May 6.
Cincinnati (First Church): Willis F. Gross, Music Hall, 8:15 p.m., May 11.
Sandusky: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, High School Auditorium, 3 p.m., May 6.

OKLAHOMA—Guthrie: John Randall Dunn, Guthrie Theater, Harrison Avenue and Vine Street, 8 p.m., May 7.
Oklahoma City: John Randall Dunn, Auditorium, 3 p.m., May 6.

OREGON—Portland (Second Church): Virgil O. Strickler, Church Edifice, East Sixth Street and Holladay Avenue, 8 p.m., May 7 and 8.
Woodburn: Clarence C. Eaton, Church Edifice, Second and Garfield Streets, 2:30 p.m., May 6.

PENNSYLVANIA—Pittsburgh (joint lectures): Dr. Francis J. Fluno, First Church Edifice, Clyde Street, near Fifth Avenue, 8:15 p.m., May 7; Second Church Edifice, North and Galveston Avenues, N.S., 8:15 p.m., May 8; Third Church, Baltimore and Neeld Avenues, Beechview, 8:15 p.m., May 10.
Wilkinsburg: Dr. Francis J. Fluno, Rowland Theater, 3 p.m., May 6.

WASHINGTON—Bothell: Bliss Knapp, High School Gymnasium, 8:30 p.m., May 5.
Pullman: Bliss Knapp, Masonic Hall, 8 p.m., May 8.

WISCONSIN—Delavan: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Opera House, 8:15 p.m., May 11.
Green Bay: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Church Edifice, Cherry Street and Monroe Avenue, 8:15 p.m., May 8.
Manitowoc: Dr. Walton Hubbard, New Opera House, 8 p.m., May 7.
Waupun: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Daveson Theater, 8 p.m., May 10.

Digitized by Google

Testimonies of Healing

After passing through eleven operations, I was wonderfully healed in Christian Science. It seemed as though I had all the ailments that flesh could be heir to,—female trouble, appendicitis, blood-poisoning, and kidney disease, besides an abnormal growth, which had been removed three times only to reappear in a more aggravated form.

After the last operation, which occurred over five years ago, I was taken from the hospital to my sister's home in the same town, to recuperate. The next day I heard of Christian Science through a friend and was loaned a copy of Science and Health. On opening the book I read on page 298, "Angels are pure thoughts from God," something I had longed to understand all my life. Then came the glorious message that God is not the author of sin, sickness, and death, but is Truth, Life, and Love. Such a sense of peace came over me that I felt like a new woman, and the burden that seemed to press upon me was removed, for then and there I was healed. I got out of bed and dressed myself, and in three days was home with my family. No drugs have been taken since that day. I have faithfully studied Science and Health, and through this study have been healed of a rupture which had been very annoying and painful since childhood. My parents had tried many specialists in Switzerland, and since coming to America electric treatment had been given me, but without avail.

A few years ago I had the blessed opportunity of class instruction, and also was found worthy to become a member of First Church of Christ, Scientist, in St. Joseph, Mo. The power of Truth has been proven to me under every circumstance, and now, after several years of Christian Science experience under severe tests, I can truthfully say that it has not failed me in any hour of need. I am thankful to God, and grateful to our dear Leader, Mrs. Eddy, that I was directed to Christian Science, which has brought peace and happiness to our family.

Mrs. Fred Knechtenhofer, Amazonia, Mo.

✧

When help was sought in Christian Science I knew little about this teaching, having heard it mentioned only a few times. My husband's father was healed through the power of Truth after the doctors had said he would have to be operated on for an abscess. He is a hale and hearty man of seventy-two years, and was the first one to advise me to go to a Christian Science practitioner before submitting to an operation.

I had been examined by seven or eight doctors at various times, and all had different advice to give. Finally, to satisfy some of my family, I went to Reno, Nev., and was examined again. This doctor said I had a fibrous tumor and would have to be operated on immediately. Having a fear of operations, I went to see a Christian Science practitioner, and treatment was given me. That evening I bought a copy of Science and Health, and the next morning went home on the train, a distance of about ninety miles. (I was not then living in Reno.) I studied this text-book diligently to get my health, and in two weeks was healed of the growth, also of asthma, lung trouble, and hay fever.

It is seven years since the study of Christian Science was taken up, and I never have had any symptom of illness. My husband has been cured of the tobacco habit, also of several ailments. My son has been healed of a serious throat affection, hay fever, and other troubles. I am indeed thankful that Mrs. Eddy has made clear to us this great truth, so that we can understand God. We are trying to lead others to see the truth, and are thankful to be able to help them in the way they should be helped. I have found health, happiness, and holiness in Christian Science.

Mrs. F. E. Hartson, Reno, Nev.

✧

My first healing in Christian Science was that of a badly shattered arm. The doctors gave me no hope of ever being able to use it to advantage again, and all medicine failed; but with one treatment in Christian Science the arm was completely healed. The doctors also had me lay off from my locomotive work, saying I had kidney trouble; but that was likewise healed. Next came the laying aside of glasses, which I had been using for some eighteen years.

Most wonderful to me, however, was the healing of a broken leg. I knew that divine Mind had healed me of the other troubles, so I said God would be my only physician in this case. A practitioner was telephoned to, and in half an hour I was bearing my full weight on the leg. It was badly swollen, however, so we had the practitioner give me another treatment. I then went to bed, and slept until morning. Crutches were used for about three weeks, but after that they were unnecessary. I believe the leg is as strong as it was before the break, as I am able to take long walks, say from twenty-five to thirty miles, and have no trouble. I have also been healed of neuralgia.

We have had untold blessings and many experiences of healing in our family since coming into Science, for all of which we are thankful to God, and we are also grateful to our beloved Leader, Mrs. Eddy.

John M. Powell, Los Gatos, Cal.

✧

[Translated from the German]

I have been an adherent of Christian Science for four years, and would like to tell of some of the healings and blessings which I have experienced through it. In the first place, I was healed of a nervous trouble and pain in the back and head, also of a throat trouble of years' standing which caused me much distress, as treatment from various physicians had failed to bring about a complete cure. Three years ago I was healed in one treatment of a swelling on the breast and of an abscess. Christian Science has brought us many blessings also in a business way.

I am trying to assimilate more of this wonderful truth, and my endeavor shall be to live in accordance with Christian Science. I am deeply grateful to God, whose ever present love encompasseth us, and very thankful to that noble woman, Mrs. Eddy, for having made it possible for us to walk in the way of Truth. I also think lovingly of those who are helping me along in Christian Science.

Frau Helene Gottschalk, Rosenthal b. Berlin, Germany.

✧

I can no longer delay giving my testimony of healing in Christian Science, and telling of the great blessing and peace which came with it. For years I was a semiinvalid, and although under medical treatment a good deal of the time, my condition grew steadily worse. In consequence, a serious illness set in, and a consultation of doctors did not reveal the cause of the trouble.

About this time my son passed through a critical illness, which was said to have left him with leakage of the heart. Doctors could not relieve him, and we finally persuaded him to try Christian Science. In ten days he was completely healed, and able to return to his home and occupation a well man. This healing led me to begin the study of the text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, and I absorbed the truth and got the understanding in a wonderful way. I had treatment for about two weeks, and awoke one morning perfectly healed. My heart was filled with deep gratitude for the freedom from pain which I experienced, but the unfolding of spiritual understanding transformed my whole being and brought such happiness and peace into my life as I had never known before.

Digitized by Google

Since early girlhood I had been a church member, but was not satisfied with my religion. I had gone through many series of revival services, hoping and praying that God might reveal Himself to me; but not until divine Love, of which I had never known, filled my consciousness and made me "every whit whole," could I truly say, "I am satisfied."

Mrs. E. D. Poronto, Rutland, Vt.

✧

[Translated from the French]

When in 1903 I first heard of Christian Science, I was very much dejected, owing to troubles of all kinds which had come upon my family and which reacted rather severely upon me. As I did not have the material means to allay their suffering, it distressed me greatly to witness it. I had prayed to God fervently, but my prayers had not been answered, and as a result I lapsed into discouragement and lost all faith in God.

I had a sister who had long been stricken with paralysis, and a few years before had entirely lost her speech. Later on she had also become afflicted with nervous attacks of a most serious nature, which made it necessary to have her constantly watched. Some time before this two ladies who practised Christian Science had rented rooms in the house where my sister lived, and one of them became interested in her and gave her treatment. I knew nothing of the method used by this lady, and my sister was incapable of explaining it to me, but I did perceive that she was being benefited mentally. I however thought it was useless for me to try to make the acquaintance of this lady, since everything had failed me in my need.

One day in destroying some old letters I came upon a telegram from my brother-in-law, begging me to come and care for his wife, who had just had a very severe attack,—that was the way I used to be informed every time that calamity came upon us. This telegram was eighteen months old and was the last of its kind. The sight of the telegram reminded me that since then my sister had not had such an attack, as she had been healed after the first few treatments in Christian Science. A light dawned upon me instantly, and I hastened to the practitioner to ask her what means she had employed in curing my sister of one of the most terrible of diseases. She declared herself ready to give the desired explanation, but I was so averse to hearing about God, and the words Christian Science were so novel to me, that I absolutely failed to understand her explanations and did not give them the attention which they deserved. Though ignorant of the marvelous power of Truth, nevertheless I soon had occasion to experience it.

One morning my daughter, then twelve years of age, awoke with a sore throat. She breathed with difficulty, and the trouble increased rapidly, symptoms of a serious ailment manifesting themselves, according to a physician's diagnosis. The same day, early in the afternoon, I received a despatch calling me to the bedside of my mother, who was living in the country. Upon receiving this news I thought I would lose my senses, as I was facing the distressing situation of having to choose between my mother and my daughter. While in this most trying position, light came to me from above. Without losing a minute's time, I hastened for help to the Christian Scientist, whom I looked upon as a benefactress. She gave my daughter the first treatment about five o'clock, and by the middle of the night there was decided improvement. She came early the next morning and remained with the patient a long while. After she left, my daughter insisted upon getting up, assuring me that she no longer had any pain. During the day my daughter took nourishment without experiencing any inconvenience, and within ten days her condition was entirely normal. My daughter's sudden improvement made it possible for me to leave the same evening to go to my dear mother and fulfil my duty toward her. I stayed with her three weeks, and no trouble occurred during my absence; in fact, upon my return home the best of conditions prevailed.

After witnessing this second healing I became an earnest adherent of Christian Science, and since then many have been the blessings which have come to me through the application of the truth. Later on a very serious condition of the kidneys was overcome as a result of Christian Science treatment. The attacks of renal colic have ceased, and I escaped the removal of both kidneys, which to say the least would have left me an invalid. I am happy to be able at last to have a scientific understanding instead of a mere blind faith such as I formerly had, for through it I have found a peace of mind hitherto unknown to me. Blessed be the author of Science and Health!

Mme. R. Renaut, Paris, France.

✧

My heart is filled with gratitude for Christian Science, which has been my only physician for over five years. It has brought a great deal of harmony and happiness into my home, and since the passing on of my dear husband, a few years ago, it has been my only comfort.

Through the help of a practitioner and of Christian Science friends I have been benefited physically, mentally, and financially. I hope some one will be encouraged by my experience to seek the true light and find rest and peace in God, the giver of all good gifts. I am also grateful to Mrs. Eddy for the truth she has made plain to us.

Christine Baron, Phoenix, Ariz.

✧

I came into Christian Science through trying to bring relief to a friend. I had heard a great deal about this teaching, but had never taken it seriously; nevertheless I prevailed on my friend to attend a Wednesday evening meeting. The testimonies were so wonderful that on the way home I decided to try Christian Science for physical, mental, and other discordant conditions, so the following day a practitioner was consulted.

A few days later I awoke in the morning with an acute attack of biliousness. My wife wanted to summon a physician, but I said that I would be all right, and in a few minutes arose and went to work. On reaching town I telephoned the practitioner and by night was entirely well. There has never been a return of the trouble. Bleeding piles, from which I had suffered for two years and for which three physicians said I would have to be operated on, were overcome in one treatment, and glasses that had been used for nine years have been laid aside, although my work requires constant reading of all kinds of writing. I was healed of appendicitis in three treatments, being confined to the bed only two days. To me this experience was a beautiful and wonderful healing.

Digitized by Google

My home life, as well as my business life, has been altogether harmonious since I have been a student of Christian Science, and the wonderful results experienced have brought my wife and daughter into Science. My wife was healed of an attack of acute lung trouble with the aid of a practitioner. On one occasion she was suffering from an abscess caused by a diseased tooth, and her face was badly swollen. Within half an hour after treatment had been given her the abscess broke and the pain entirely disappeared.

Before coming into Science our house resembled a drug store more than a home, but we now rely entirely on Science as our physician. I am indeed thankful to God for all these wonderful demonstrations, as well as for the spiritual understanding we have received, and grateful to Mrs. Eddy for showing me the right way.

W. S. Mohsberg, New Orleans, La.

✧

I wish to tell of my healing in Christian Science after passing through years of ill health. At one time I scarcely left my chair for about three years. Then five years later I came to see, almost suddenly, that there was no recovery for me through anything that could be done in a material way. I had made great efforts for health, but all had failed. I then for the first time heard of Christian Science, but on account of the way it was put before me I thought it was not for me.

In a very short time after this I read a pamphlet from The Christian Science Publishing Society, telling of the healing done in Christian Science. Just before I read this it had dawned upon me, from what I had been told, that I was well, but I did not know how to hold to it. But as I read of another's experience, coming into health from ill health, I held to the truth that was given there, and it stayed with me. I did not sleep for two nights, but each day got up feeling stronger. The third night I rested better, and the next day realized that I was perfectly well. The food that had not seemed sufficient for me was all I needed, for the truth stayed with me. I was so happy that people said I was all new and that they never saw any one so changed.

In all the years since then—over twenty—I have enjoyed good health and strength, though ailments have sometimes come up to be destroyed, either through my own work or the help of a practitioner. I never miss the study of the Bible and Science and Health. The Lesson-Sermon is my daily bread. I also enjoy all of our Leader's writings, as well as the Sentinel, Journal, and Monitor. I thank God for Christian Science.—Isabella Ledman, Detroit, Mich.

✧

About eight years ago I had what the doctor called inflammation of the appendix, and was told another attack would mean an operation. Since studying Christian Science I have had two attacks, the first being overcome in twelve hours and the second in twenty minutes, and without any operation. Bowel trouble, bronchitis, and other ills have been eradicated through this truth which makes free. I was healed in two treatments of a run down condition and severe backaches.

I am indeed grateful for the healing experienced, but even more for the spiritual uplift, and I am thankful to God for that good woman, Mrs. Eddy, who devoted her life to help mankind.—Meta A. Krulish, Astoria, Long Island, N. Y.

I wish to verify my daughter's testimony. The facts are as she has stated. When the last attack of appendicitis occurred my daughter and I were alone. It was in the night, and I was very much frightened, for at first she seemed to be suffering severely. We aroused ourselves to know the truth; then the thought came to me that as Christ Jesus healed centuries ago, the same divine power was with us now; and my daughter was healed.

I am very thankful to God for this blessed truth, and grateful to our Leader for her great work and for our literature, which is carrying the healing message to all the world.—Anna S. K. Meyer, New York, N. Y.

✧

A year and a half ago I was in great distress, suffering from heart, kidney, and stomach trouble, and it became my earnest desire to know how to live so that God would bless me; but there were so many different churches I was unable to decide which one was right. I prayed earnestly that God would show me the way to go, and the thought came to me to investigate Christian Science. This was on a Sunday morning, and I accordingly went to the Christian Science morning service in this city. Being filled with material thoughts and error, I could hardly listen to what was read; but I tried to do so, for my desire was to know God, and during the reading of the "scientific statement of being" (Science and Health, p. 468), I was healed of all the ailments mentioned.

Nothing ever gave me more joy and happiness than the realization that I was healed, and the spiritual uplift which came with it has brought peace and harmony. I have been faithfully studying Christian Science ever since, and find it to be a religion of truth and love, a blessing to the whole world. I am very grateful for what it has done for me, and am trying to live according to its teachings. I thank God daily for leading me into the light.

Menno Hergert, Lawton, Okla.

✧

I had known only a few days that there was a religion called Christian Science, before I heard it explained to my mother by a friend. After listening to this friend for a short time, I seemed to be in a dream, all she was saying sounded so wonderful. For three weeks after that I thought of God as my strength; as divine Love, in whom I lived and moved and had my being. At the end of that time I was perfectly healed of all my sufferings. Then I got the textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, and for six years I have relied on God, as revealed to me through the study of Christian Science, for the overcoming of all discord. I am grateful for the freedom from fear, which formerly seemed to manifest itself so frequently, especially the fear that I would not always have the needed supply.

Three years ago my daughter (aged ten) had a bad attack of acute lung trouble. I telephoned to a Christian Science practitioner for treatment, and when the disease should have been at its worst, according to material law, my child was out on the veranda playing with other children. Words cannot express my thankfulness to God for all the good that has come into my life since I turned to Christian Science, or my gratitude to our Leader, Mrs. Eddy, for having brought the truth to mankind.

Mary A. Blackburrow, Mooi River, Natal, South Africa.

✧

When Christian Science came to my notice in the spring of 1905, it found me laboring under a belief of having been wronged by members of my family. This world seemed to hold a dreary outlook for me, and I mistrusted everybody, believing that truthful, honest people were very scarce.

My first healing through the power of Truth was that of a finger which had been injured a year before, and which kept getting worse, although I had tried three different doctors; indeed it looked as if the finger would have to be amputated. A fellow worker spoke to me of Christian Science, saying it healed all manner of disease as Jesus did when here on earth. He loaned me the text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, and asked me to read the chapter on Prayer first. After doing so, I immediately bought a copy of the book and read it at every opportunity. It was read through not less than six times in succession, and the more I read the more I wanted to read, for its teachings satisfied my needs. As a result of this study the finger was healed; I grew happy, the world became bright, the people I came in touch with were kind to me, and I ceased looking continually for faults in others.

Digitized by Google

Words cannot express my thankfulness to God for the benefits I have received through this teaching; also my gratitude to Mrs. Eddy for giving us the truth in Christian Science. Through absent treatment I have been completely healed of a long standing ailment caused by falls and blows at different times when a boy, which later resulted in a curved spine. I was so crippled one winter that all who knew me gave up hope that I would be able to pull through. My healing in Christian Science was slow but complete.

Later my son, then two years old, was one day knocked down and mangled by a cow. I telephoned to a practitioner in Portland for treatment, and two days later the lad went about his play without any bad effects. When my youngest daughter was three weeks old, a skin disease broke out on the back of her head and from a material standpoint became dangerous as well as offensive. We again applied to a Christian Science practitioner, and absent treatments were given. Now we have a sound, healthy baby, healed of her trouble and with a beautiful thick growth of hair.

Another time I fell out of the haymow, and did not seem to be much the worse for it until about two weeks later, when suddenly my left side became very much swollen and I could not lie down without experiencing pain in the heart. To human sense the danger seemed very real, but with absent treatments from a practitioner all is well again.

Each healing strengthens us spiritually and makes us more firm in the understanding of the truth that makes free. Christian Science teaches us how to know the truth and how to obey Jesus' command to heal the sick.

HERMAN F. KOENIG, Albany, Ore.

✧

When Christian Science dawned upon me its light was so dazzling that I felt I could fall on my knees and cry to every one to come to this truth. More than twenty years ago I stood where doctors said I could live but a short time. I had suffered so much and so long from kidney trouble that every organ of my body seemed to be affected, but I was entirely healed through Christian Science. I am most sincerely thankful for the healing power of God, and for the perseverance of Mrs. Eddy in bringing the truth to humanity.—MATTIE MILLIS, Spokane, Wash.

✧

Thirteen years ago Christian Science found me laid up with rheumatism in a hospital, where I had been for three months without getting any relief. Under Christian Science treatment I was healed in about four weeks. In addition to that, the habit of smoking was overcome. Christian Science has also helped me out of financial troubles.

For all the benefits received, not only by myself but by my family, I am thankful to God, and grateful to our Leader, Mrs. Eddy. It is a great joy to have the privilege of being a member of The Mother Church and of a local church.

CHARLES C. HASHOW, New York, N. Y.

From Our Exchanges

[Rufus M. Jones, D.Litt., in The Homiletic Review]

By worship I mean the act of rising to a personal, experimental consciousness of the real presence of God, which floods the soul with joy and bathes the whole inward spirit with refreshing streams of life. Never to have felt that, never to have opened the life to these incoming divine tides, never to have experienced the joy of personal fellowship with God, is surely to have missed the richest privilege and the highest beatitude of religion. Almost all of our modern forms of Christianity make too little of this central act, and with some truth it has been called "the lost art of worship."

The main reason for the decline of worship is the excessive desire, so common today, to have something always happening, or, as we often say, to have something "doing." Hush, waiting, meditation, concentration of spirit, are just the reverse of our busy, driving, modern temper. The person who meditates, we are apt to think, will lose an opportunity to do something; while he muses, the procession will go on and leave him behind.

[Rev. Joseph Fort Newton, D.Litt., in The Christian Commonwealth]

Full of faults as the church is, forgetful of her august mission, she is yet the hope of the world in its darkest day. Whatever may betide, religion will remain, an instinct, an impulse, an inspiration so deep set in the soul of man that many waters cannot quench it, nor all the woes of life extinguish it. Times of tragedy sweep away the conventions of religion, revealing the primitive fires of faith always burning, the permanent fountains of hope always flowing. If all temples were shattered and all sacred books destroyed, the life of God in the soul of man would build other shrines and write new pages of prophecy. Out of the depths this mighty faith will rise, purified as if by fire, clarified by human tears, and take new forms in days to be. But it will never take higher, truer, or more lovely shape than it did in the life of Jesus, beyond whom we may never hope to go. Even now clear seeing men perceive that the root of our woes lies in a denial of his spirit, his truth, and his law of life.

[Rev. William A. Elliott in The Biblical World]

Great characters cannot be produced by interests that are purely local and selfish. One must have breadth and compass and upreach and outreach if one would be great of heart or strong of soul. It is not where we go or how far we travel that broadens us. It is the open mind, the expansive heart, the uplifting eyes, the retreating sky line, that makes us kin to Christ and gives us that spirit of the universal that characterized his life and spirit. The great need today is the need of men of this spirit—men who have caught the world spirit and who can think in terms of continents. We need men who have come to a world consciousness, big men, sun crowned men.

[Robert E. Speer in Record of Christian Work]

The wonder of our Lord was that he knew how much of his great truth men could not take, and he knew how much they could take and how much he must patiently wait with for a little while. We see him using his simple figures, or using the most direct approach, or taking the incidents of his own personal relationship with them and building upon them that he might bring his truth at last into their lives. And the more one turns back to that picture that the evangelists draw, the more he simply bows his head in wonder before Christ's absolute mastery of truth.

Digitized by Google

[The Watchman-Examiner]

What we see in the multitudes determines what we can do for them. Achievement cannot outrun vision. Only he can play the shepherd to them who sees them with the shepherd's eye. Only he can feed them who feels with them their hunger. To move the multitudes in any way for their real good one must first be moved with compassion for them. But the converse is also true. What we see in the multitudes declares what we are in ourselves. We show ourselves in what we see. Our vision is the revelation and projection of our deepest selfhood, a mirror for the reflection of our essential selves. We are like Jesus in so far as we see what he saw and as he saw it. We are unlike him in the degree in which our seeing parts company with his. "When he saw the multitudes, he was moved with compassion on them, because they fainted, and were scattered abroad, as sheep having no shepherd." There is no other vision of the multitudes that is worth while or that counts for anything.

[George R. Dodson, Ph.D., in The Christian Register]

The great rejuvenator of the spirit is religion,—not something we have willed to believe and therefore always suspect, but an inspiring vision of the moral and spiritual order and a profound sense that we are of God's kindred. The great work to be done in the world is in the minds and hearts of men, and those churches are creators of spiritual wealth which hold up before men and women the ideals which are their natural goals, the spiritual perfection for which they yearn, and which enable them to realize that they are children of the highest, since in their heart of hearts they are lovers only of the best. So taught, men work out their salvation, not in fear and trembling, but with a consciousness that God works in them both to will and to do, and that they are to the infinite Goodness what his own hand is to a man. To be an instrument through which truth, righteousness, and love are increased in the world is felt more as a privilege than as a responsibility. In this spirit a man does his best and leaves the event with God.

[The Advance]

When one goes through the dreary pages of controversial literature and sees how the words of Jesus have been tortured into polemics in all manner of controversies upon which they had no reasonable bearing, he discovers how Jesus has been wounded in the house of his friends, and wonders that the Christ so often crucified should have proved capable of such multiplied resurrection. The particular lesson to be derived from these pathetic exploitations of the Christ in the interests of religious controversy is that all these people have supposed that these controversies were evidence of their knowledge of Christ.

[The Christian Work]

Personally, I believe that one of the great chronic hindrances to religious progress is the social iniquity, the communistic unrighteousness, which prevails within and without the church, and I rejoice in the conviction that the church is designed and ordered not only to promote the glory of God and extol the faith, but also to do these most effectually by serving the social needs of humanity and by offering to every child of toil, of hardship, of oppression, a resting place, a sanctuary and a home of justice first, and then of peace, within her sacred precincts.

[The Christian Register]

The great discovery in prayer is that we pray not to get things done, but to get power to do them; and when we so pray we get switched into divine currents which are their own evidence and demonstration,—the foundation of all fact.

Special Announcements

From the Publisher of Mrs. Eddy's Works

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE TEXT-BOOK, "SCIENCE AND HEALTH WITH KEY TO THE SCRIPTURES."—See back cover of this periodical for styles of bindings and prices.

CONCORDANCE TO SCIENCE AND HEALTH.—A new edition of this volume is announced, printed from new plates and bound in stiff morocco. Single copy, $5.00; six or more, each $4.50.

CONCORDANCE TO MRS. EDDY'S PUBLISHED WRITINGS OTHER THAN SCIENCE AND HEALTH.—Published only in the India Bible paper edition, with stiff morocco covers; uniform in style with the Concordance to Science and Health. Price, $6.00; six or more, each $5.50.

Announcement is made of the publication at an early date of a new edition of the German translation of the Manual of The Mother Church. The volume will be printed with alternate pages of English and German, and will be uniform in binding and price with the regular cloth-bound edition.

Announcement is made of the printing of an edition of Rudimental Divine Science in the American Braille system of type for the blind. Single copy, 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

Orders for the books named above and other works by Mrs. Eddy should be addressed to ALLISON V. STEWART, Falmouth and St. Paul Streets, Boston, Mass.

From the Editor

All manuscripts submitted for publication in the Sentinel, Journal, and Herold, whether articles, poems, or testimonies, and all correspondence relating thereto, should be addressed to the EDITOR, and not to individuals.

From the Publishing Society

The increased cost of leather has necessitated an advance in the prices of the leather bound hymnals, and the following prices will become effective May 1, 1917. Delivery charges prepaid. Morocco, pocket edition, one copy $3.50; six copies to one address $19.50; twelve copies to one address $36.00. Morocco, large size, one copy $3.50; six copies to one address $19.50; twelve copies to one address $36.00. Levant, large size, one copy $4.75; six copies to one address $27.00; twelve copies to one address $51.00.

"Christian Science: The Revelation of Christ," a lecture by John W. Doorly, C.S.B., has been printed in pamphlet form, and is now ready for sale.

A new pamphlet entitled, " 'Awake Thou That Sleepest,' " contains the following eight articles republished from The Christian Science Monitor: "Procrastination," "Lions in the Path," "Could Ye not Watch with Me One Hour?" "The Senses and Sleep," "Sleep," "Night," "Day," and "Narcotics."

Both of these pamphlets are on sale at prices advertised on the opposite page.

From the Clerk of The Mother Church

CHURCH TENETS.—The tenets of The First Church of Christ, Scientist,—The Mother Church,—printed on folded sheet for use of the branch Churches of Christ, Scientist, with space for printing their authorized forms of application for membership or extracts from their by-laws, can be had at seventy-five cents a hundred. Orders will not be taken for less than one hundred and postage stamps should not be sent in payment.

Correspondence relative to the tenets or to membership with The Mother Church, should be sent to J. V. DITTEMORE, Clerk, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

From the Church Treasurer

The annual per capita tax of members of The Mother Church is due June 1, but may be paid at any time during the year. The per capita tax of members uniting in November is reckoned from the preceding June, this being the beginning of the church year. Unless otherwise directed by the sender, the full amount of each remittance will be credited for the current year.

Please remit by postal or express money order, bank draft, or check. Currency should be sent by registered letter only.

Please advise promptly of any change in name or address.

Send per capita taxes and contributions to ADAM H. DICKEY, Treasurer, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

Digitized by Google

The Christian Science Journal

Published Monthly

Founded April, 1883, by Mary Baker Eddy, Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, and author of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures."

This monthly magazine is the official organ of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. In addition to articles, editorials, and testimonies not published elsewhere, it contains a complete list of Christian Science practitioners, and a directory of Christian Science Churches, Societies, and Reading Rooms.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $2; six months $1; three months 50 cents. SALE PRICE: Single copy 20 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 15 cents. For Canada add 25 cents for postage. SALE PRICE: Single copy 20 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 17 cents. In all other countries add 65 cents for postage for each annual subscription. SALE PRICE: Single copy 25 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 20 cents.

BOUND VOLUMES: Current and past year, cloth $3.00; half calf or half morocco $3.75. On earlier volumes write for prices.

The Christian Science Quarterly

Published January, April, July, and October

Contains the Lesson-Sermons which are read at the Sunday services throughout the year in all the Christian Science churches. These Lessons, which present citations from the Bible and "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," are valuable for daily study. Also printed in Dutch and German.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION AND SALE: In the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year 50 cents; single copy 15 cents; four copies or more to one address, each 12½ cents. For all other countries one year 60 cents; single copy 18 cents; four copies or more, each 15 cents.

Subscriptions not accepted for less than one year. Subscriptions begin with current quarter unless otherwise designated, and terminate with the last of the month named on wrapper.

The Christian Science Monitor

Published Daily, Except Sundays and Legal Holidays

An international daily newspaper. Adequate news service. The various departments of a modern newspaper. Unique Home Forum page. Entire page of editorials dealing with the vital topics of the day. Contributions to the columns of the MONITOR should be addressed: EDITOR, THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States (except in the Boston Postal District), Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $5; six months $2.50; three months $1.25; one month 50 cents. In all other countries additional postage at the rate of $3 yearly is required. By carrier through a local news-dealer: one month 60 cents. In the Boston Postal District, by mail, one year $7.25. Quantity rates will be furnished on application.

Der Herold der Christian Science

Published Monthly

A magazine printed in German, which publishes original and translated articles bearing upon Christian Science, also testimonials of healing.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $1; six months 50 cents; three months 25 cents. For other countries, one year $1.25; six months 63 cents; three months 32 cents.

SALE PRICE, DOMESTIC TERRITORY AND CANADA, POSTPAID: Single copy 10 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 8 cents. Foreign rate, single copy 12 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 10 cents.

Bound Volumes in cloth, $2.75 each; half calf or half morocco $3.50 each. Write for list of volumes in stock.

Pamphlets

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS RELIGIOUS PHILOSOPHY. By HON. CLARENCE A. BUSKIRK.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: "THE RESURRECTION AND THE LIFE." By CLARENCE W. CHADWICK.

CAUSATION: VIEWED IN THE LIGHT OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By FREDERICK DIXON. Also printed in Norwegian and Swedish.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING VS. MENTAL SUGGESTION. By FREDERICK DIXON. Reprinted from the Weekly Budget, London, England. Also printed in Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE TRUE CHRISTIANITY. By CLARENCE C. EATON.

"THE SONS OF GOD." By COL. WILLIAM E. FELL.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE VS. FINITE SENSE. By FRANCIS J. FLUNO, M.D.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE GOSPEL OF FREEDOM. By WILLIS F. GROSS.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE SCIENCE OF SALVATION. By HERMANN S. HERING.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING; SPIRITUAL AND SCIENTIFIC. By PROF. HERMANN S. HERING. Also printed in German.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS CONCERNING CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. Also printed in Dutch, German, and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS ADVANTAGE TO MANKIND. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. A London lecture. Also printed in French.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: MAN'S DOMINION OVER EVIL. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. Also printed in modern Greek, Italian, Norwegian, and Russian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS DIVINE AUTHORITY. By BLISS KNAPP.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE EXPLANATION OF THE IDEAL MAN. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS DISCOVERY AND DEVELOPMENT. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: GOD'S LOVINGKINDNESS PROVED TO MEN. By REV. WILLIAM P. MCKENZIE. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS RESULTS. By WILLIAM R. RATHVON. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE RELIGION OF DIVINE LAW. By JACOB S. SHIELD.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM. By JUDGE CLIFFORD P. SMITH. Also printed in French and German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A RELIGION OF LOVE. By VIRGIL O. STRICKLER. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE NEW BIRTH. By BICKNELL YOUNG. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

THE LAW OF KINDNESS.
"WHAT WENT YE OUT FOR TO SEE?"
"THEN THE FULL GRAIN IN THE EAR."
UPWARD FOOTSTEPS. Also printed in Dutch.
FULFILLING THE LAW. Also printed in Danish.
PRAYER AND HEALING. Also printed in French and German.
THE DIVINE NATURE. Also printed in Dutch and Norwegian.
ENVIRONMENT AND OPPORTUNITY. Also printed in French.
THE FATHER'S BUSINESS. Also printed in German and Swedish.
SEEKING AND FINDING. Also printed in Dutch, German, and Swedish.
THE PROVIDENCE OF GOOD. Also printed in French, Spanish, and Swedish.
LAW AND WORK.
CONFIDENCE AND SUPPLY.
BIRTHRIGHT AND DOMINION.

Other Translated Pamphlets

FAITH AND GENEROSITY. Printed in French-English.
MAN'S UNITY WITH GOD. Printed in German only.
"PEACE ON EARTH." Printed in German only.
PRAYER AND CONFIDENCE. Printed in German. Also in Dutch-English.
MARY BAKER EDDY. By ARTHUR BRISBANE. Printed in German only.
MARY BAKER EDDY: HER PURPOSE AND ACCOMPLISHMENT. By FREDERICK DIXON. Printed in German. Also in French-English.
THE FOUNDER OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By B. O. FLOWER. Printed in German only.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A REASONABLE AND RATIONAL VIEW OF ALL THINGS. By FRANCIS J. FLUNO, M.D. Printed in Dutch-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: HUMANITY'S HELPER. By PROF. HERMANN S. HERING. Printed in Dutch-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE COMFORTER OF PROMISE. By FRANK H. LEONARD. Printed in French-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: DEMONSTRABLE RELIGION. By FRANK H. LEONARD. Printed in Norwegian only.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A RELIGION OF PROGRESS. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Printed in Swedish. Also in French-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS PRINCIPLE AND METHOD. By BICKNELL YOUNG. Printed in Swedish. Also in French-English.

PRICE, POSTPAID: Single copy 5 cents; twelve copies to one address 55 cents; fifty copies $2; one hundred copies $3.50. Orders for above pamphlets may be assorted as desired.

For table of English, German, Swiss, and French money equivalents, see inside front cover page.

Miscellaneous

A Catalogue of Selected Bibles will be furnished upon application, and quantity rates on other items specified below will be found in the current catalogue in The Christian Science Journal.

BIBLES. 01483 x. Clarendon Brevier, heavy-faced, distinct type; Turkey morocco, corresponding in size and binding to pocket edition of Science and Health, $4.75.

01440 x. Brevier, light-faced type; self-pronouncing, Turkey morocco, corresponding in size and binding to pocket edition of Science and Health, $4.50.

01683 x. Large type Bible, 10¾ x 8 inches, bound in Alaska seal. Specially adapted for use of second readers, $12.50.

Black morocco open case to hold pocket edition of Science and Health, Quarterly, and Bible, $1.40.

Two other sizes of open case listed in the current issue of the Journal.

Black morocco closed case with handle and purse on outside, $3.75; without purse, $3.50.

The Improved Index will be added to any Bible listed in our catalogue for an additional charge of 35 cents. Catalogue No. 23 of selected Bibles will be mailed free upon application.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS ON THE LIFE AND WORK OF MARY BAKER EDDY. 132 pages with index. Paper covered, 15 cents; cloth binding, 85 cents.

THE LIFE OF MARY BAKER EDDY. By Sibyl Wilbur. 424 pages. Cloth, $2. Edition de luxe, $5.

PERSONAL CONTAGION, ALSO WHAT OUR LEADER SAYS. By Mary Baker Eddy. Special pamphlet. Paper cover, 10 cents.

THE MOTHER CHURCH. By Joseph Armstrong. A history of the building of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. Illustrated, 107 pages. Cloth, $1.50.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS LEGAL STATUS. By Judge Clifford P. Smith. 128 pages, paper covered, 10 cents.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HYMNAL. Cloth, $1.15; half morocco, $1.40;

SHEET MUSIC. Poems written by Mary Baker Eddy and used by special permission, have been set to music as follows: "The Mother's Evening Prayer," 75 cents; "Christ, My Refuge," 75 cents; "Love," 40 cents; Communion Hymn—"Saw Ye My Saviour?" (Johnson), 50 cents; "Blest Christmas Morn," 27 cents; "O'er Waiting Harpstrings of the Mind," 27 cents; "Shepherd, Show Me How to Go," 27 cents; "Saw Ye My Saviour?" (Root), 27 cents. The first three hymns are arranged for high and low voice in the same copy. The last five hymns are published separately in high and low keys. When ordering state key desired.

PHOTOGRAVURE OF MRS. EDDY, printed in three sizes on India paper and mounted on heavy plate paper ready for framing. 8-inch (mount 12 x 16), $1; 12-inch (mount 15 x 20), $2; 16-inch (mount 21 x 29), $3.50.

PICTURE OF THE FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, IN BOSTON, MASS., AND THE PUBLISHING HOUSE. Artist's proof with remarque on Japanese vellum, size 18 x 24 inches, $5; on India paper without remarque, $3. Smaller reproduction, size 11 x 14 inches, on Japanese vellum, $1. Photogravure post-cards of the Church Edifice and Publishing House, 5 cents.

QUARTERLY COVERS in black morocco, $1.30; with purse, $1.50.

ALUMINUM LESSON MARKERS. Set of thirty, with paper shields, 50 cents. Extra paper shields, one hundred, 15 cents.

PRICE LIST OF BIBLE CONCORDANCES AND DICTIONARIES OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE supplied on request. Express charges collect on delivery.

REPRINTS (not printed in English). Two-page leaflets, 14 subjects in French and Swedish; 18 subjects in German. Ten copies to one address, 10 cents.

Remittances should always accompany orders, and be made by check, money order, or exchange on Boston or New York. Currency or coin should not be sent by mail unless registered. Please send no money or business letters to the Editor or Editorial Department.

Send all orders for the works of Mrs. Eddy, with remittance by New York or Boston draft or money order, direct to Allison V. Stewart
For literature listed above address orders and make remittances payable to

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

FALMOUTH AND ST. PAUL STREETS, BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

Digitized by Google

Works on Christian Science

Written by MARY BAKER EDDY, Discoverer and Founder
of Christian Science and Author of its Text-book

Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures. In one volume, 700 pages. The original, standard, and only text-book on Christian Science Mind-healing. Cloth, one to eleven copies inclusive (cloth only), each $3.00; twelve or more, each $2.75. Full leather, stiff, beveled boards, gilt edges, same paper as in cloth binding, single copy $4.00; twelve or more, each $3.75. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $5.00; twelve or more, each $4.75. Levant, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, round corners, gilt edges, silk sewed, heavy Oxford India Bible paper (wide margins, large-sized book) single copy $6.00; twelve or more, each $5.75.

LARGE TYPE EDITION. Designed especially for the use of first readers. Large type (18-point) on Oxford India Bible paper, bound in leather. Size 10¾ inches long by 8 inches wide. Single copy $7.50, with a discount of 25 cents each when included in an order for twelve or more copies of Science and Health, and in any or all of the different bindings.

GERMAN TRANSLATION. Cloth, one to five copies inclusive, each $3.50; six or more, each $3.25. Pocket edition, printed on Oxford India Bible paper. Morocco, one to five copies inclusive, each $5.50; six or more, each $5.25. Orders for the German translation in lots of six or more may include both bindings.

Orders for Science and Health in lots of twelve or more at quantity prices may include both English and German editions, and different styles of binding.

Miscellaneous Writings. A book of 471 pages, containing articles published in The Christian Science Journal from 1883 to 1896, with revisions and additions. Cloth, single copy $2.25; twelve or more, each $2.00. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $4.00; twelve or more, each $3.75. Levant, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, round corners, gilt edges, silk sewed, Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $5.00; twelve or more, each $4.75. Orders for Miscellaneous Writings in lots of twelve or more may include any or all of the different styles of binding. No discount will be allowed on orders for twelve books which include both Science and Health and Miscellaneous Writings.

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany. A book of 364 pages, containing articles published in The Christian Science Journal and Sentinel, subsequent to the compilation of Miscellaneous Writings, together with historical matter pertaining thereto. Cloth, single copy $2.25; six or more, each $2.00. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $4.00; six or more, each $3.75. Orders for six or more may include the two styles of binding.

Concordance to Science and Health. This work contains about eighty thousand references (more than ten thousand words being indexed), also an index to the Marginal Headings, and a list of the Scriptural Quotations in Science and Health. 611 pages, stiff morocco cover, single copy $5.00; six or more, each $4.50.

Concordance to Mrs. Eddy's Published Writings Other Than Science and Health. It contains 1,103 pages, and is published only in Bible paper edition, with stiff morocco cover. Single copy, $6.00; six or more, each, $5.50.

Christ and Christmas. An illustrated poem. Single copy $3.00; six or more, each $2.50.

Unity of Good and Other Writings. One volume, containing Unity of Good, Rudimental Divine Science, No and Yes, Retrospection and Introspection; uniform in style with the pocket edition of Science and Health. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, heavy Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $3.50; six or more, each $3.25.

Christian Healing and Other Writings. One volume, containing Christian Healing, The People's Idea of God, Pulpit and Press, Christian Science versus Pantheism, Messages of 1900, 1901, 1902; uniform in style with the pocket edition of Science and Health. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, heavy Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $3.50; six or more, each $3.25.

Church Manual. Containing the By-laws of The Mother Church. Cloth, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents. Pocket edition, morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $2.00; six or more, each $1.75.

GERMAN TRANSLATION. Cloth, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Retrospection and Introspection. A biographical sketch of the author; the way she was led to the discovery of Christian Science; its fundamental idea and growth. Library edition, cloth, 95 pages, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Unity of Good. This book lays the axe at the root of error, elucidating and enforcing practical Christian Science, thus affording invaluable directions for all true Scientists. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, 64 pages, single copy 60 cents; six or more, each 45 cents. Pocket edition, leather covers, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Pulpit and Press. A unique work, of importance in the history and to the readers of Christian Science; containing the message or sermon written for the dedicatory service of The Mother Church, January 6, 1895, and scintillations from the press of that occasion. Library edition, cloth, 90 pages, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Rudimental Divine Science. A brief and concise statement of Divine Science, alias Christian Science, in the form of questions and answers. Pebbled cloth covers, gilt top, 17 pages, single copy 32 cents; six or more, each 25 cents. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 35 cents.

PRINTED in the New York point system of type for the use of the blind, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

No and Yes. A brief statement of very important points in Christian Science. Pebbled cloth covers, 46 pages, single copy 32 cents; six or more, each 25 cents. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 55 cents; six or more, each 45 cents.

Messages to The Mother Church. Including in one volume, 94 pages, Christian Science versus Pantheism, and the Messages of 1900, 1901, and 1902. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy $1.50; six or more, each $1.15.

Christian Science versus Pantheism. The Pastor Emeritus' Message delivered at the Communion Season in The Mother Church in Boston, June, 1898. A clear and strong refutation of the charge that Christian Scientists are pantheists. Pebbled cloth covers, 15 pages, single copy 25 cents; six or more, each 20 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1900. Paper covers, deckled edges, 15 pages, single copy 25 cents; six or more, each 20 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1901. Paper covers, deckled edges, 35 pages, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 38 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1902. Paper covers, deckled edges, 20 pages, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 38 cents.

Christian Healing, and The People's Idea of God. Two sermons in one volume, 36 pages. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 55 cents; six or more, each 45 cents.

Christian Healing. A sermon delivered in Boston. Paper covers, 20 pages, single copy 20 cents; six or more, each 17 cents.

The People's Idea of God. A sermon delivered in Boston. Paper covers, 14 pages, single copy 20 cents; six or more, each 17 cents.

Poems. This volume of 79 pages includes all of Mrs. Eddy's hymns, also her earlier poems which appeared in various publications from forty to sixty years ago. Specially bound. Single copy $1.50; six or more, each $1.25.

Feed My Sheep. Solo. Words by Mary Baker Eddy, music by Lyman F. Brackett. Single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

The foregoing prices cover all charges for express or postage on shipments either domestic or foreign.

Quantity prices are on shipments to one address only, but quantity lots at quantity prices cannot be made up of different books or of different styles of binding. Attention is called, however, to the exception to this rule which is made in the cases of Science and Health, and of Miscellaneous Writings, as given under these titles in this price list.

Address all orders for above works, and make remittance by New York or Boston draft or money order, to

ALLISON V. STEWART, FALMOUTH AND ST. PAUL STS., BOSTON, MASS.

Digitized by Google

VISCONSIN
ISTORICAL
LIBRARY

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SENTINEL

"What I say unto you I say unto all-WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX No. 36

Boston, May 5, 1917

Contents of This Number

Items of Interest (Brief Mention of Important Events)		702
The Allness of God, Good	Stokes Anthony Bennett	703
Truth Practised	Winifred E. Coward	704
Sabbath School Lessons	Myrtle Holm Smith	705
Our Responsibilities	Henry D. Nunn	705
The Withered Branch	Brenda E. Holtham	706
Reflecting Truth	Catharine M. Tinker	707
Selected Articles		707
"Be still, and know" (Poem)	Mary B. Ross	709
Editorial
Daily Prayer		710
Children and Truth		710
Judas		711
Words of Gratitude		711
Among the Churches (Current Notes)
Boston, Mass.		712
Zanesville, Ohio		712
Medicine Hat, Alta., Canada		712
Marion, Ind.		712
The Lectures
Corpus Christi, Texas		712
Woonsocket, R. I.		713
Testimonies of Healing		714
From Our Exchanges		717

A LADY WITH A LAMP SHALL STAND IN THE GREAT HISTORY OF THE LAND

A NOBLE TYPE OF GOOD HEROIC WOMANHOOD
Longfellow

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY
FALMOUTH AND ST PAUL STREETS BOSTON MASS U S A

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

(THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE WEEKLY)

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY BY

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

Falmouth and St. Paul Sts., Boston, Mass., U.S.A.

ARCHIBALD McLELLAN
Editor

ANNIE M. KNOTT — WILLIAM D. McCRACKAN
Associate Editors

Subscription Price

Payable in advance

Annual subscription price, postpaid, in the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, $2.00; six months, $1.00; three months, 50 cents. For Canada add 45 cents and for all other countries 95 cents annually for postage. For subscriptions in quantities please refer to page four in THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE JOURNAL.

Subscriptions to the SENTINEL will begin with the current issue unless otherwise specified. The delivery of the periodical will indicate that a remittance has been credited and will be our acknowledgment of the subscription.

Bound Volumes: Current year or two years previous, cloth, $3.25; half calf or half morocco, $4.00. On earlier volumes write for prices.

Terms of Sale

	United States, Mexico, and Cuba	Canada	All Other Countries
Single copy	$ .05	$ .06	$ .07
Four or more copies . .	.03½	.04	.05

Equivalents of United States money

		£	s.	d.	Marks	Francs
$ .60	equals	0	2	6	2.52	3.12
1.15	"	0	4	9	4.85	5.98
1.25	"	0	5	2	5.30	6.50
2.33	"	0	9	7	9.83	12.09
2.38	"	0	9	10	10.05	12.35
2.63	"	0	10	9	11.10	13.65
2.65	"	0	10	10	11.20	13.78
2.70	"	0	11	1	11.40	14.04
2.95	"	0	12	2	12.50	15.34
5.00	"	1	0	7	21.15	26.00
7.50	"	1	10	10	31.73	39.00
8.00	"	1	12	11	33.85	41.60

Make all remittances payable to The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Postage required for remailing this copy: 1 cent domestic and Canada; 2 cents other countries.

Entered at Boston, Mass., post-office as second-class matter.

Items of Interest

The engineering problem of constructing a railway through the Hindu Kush Mountains from Turkestan to India, in the opinion of Russian engineers who have made surveys, will find a comparatively easy solution by boring a tunnel under the divide separating the headwaters of the Kundus, flowing toward the Oxus River and Turkestan, from the headwaters of the Kabul River, flowing east to join the Indus River, which drains all northwestern India. Such a tunnel would, it is estimated, be about thirteen miles long and would require excavating through granite rock. Except for the thirteen miles of tunnel, the railway construction would be comparatively easy, as it would follow the valleys on either side of the divide. The cost, it is estimated, from the estuary of the Kundus River at its junction with the Oxus, to Peshawar in India, a distance of about four hundred miles, would be about forty million dollars.

In the event of the construction of this railway through the Hindu Kush, the distance from the Hook of Holland, which could be reached by steamer from England, to the Indian capital at Delhi, would be as follows: Hook of Holland-Berlin-Warsaw-Moscow, 1836 miles; Moscow-Orenburg-Tashkend, 2082 miles; Tashkend-Kagan estuary of Kundus River, 750 miles; estuary of Kundus River-Peshawar, 400 miles; Peshawar-Delhi, 627 miles; total, 5695 miles.

By the middle of June Minneapolis, Minn., with the completion of the Government dam below Minnehaha Falls and the opening of the locks to boats, will become the head of navigation on the Mississippi River. The dam, which has been under construction more than seven years and has cost $1,400,000, is virtually finished now. It will furnish water for the development of 15,200 horse-power. The power project, however, will not be completed for another year. When the flood-gates are closed the water will be backed up to a low water depth of 9½ feet, and a lake 4.86 miles long and varying in width from 800 to 1000 feet will be formed. On this body of water Minneapolis is planning for a water sports carnival from July 2 to 6.

Geologists have long known that the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans were once directly connected by water that extended across the present site of Panama and adjacent areas in Central America, says the United States Geological Survey Bulletin. The separation of the oceans caused profound changes in their inhabitants. Many species were marooned in an unfavorable environment, and thus in time the inhabitants of the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans became so distinct that scarcely a single species is common to the seas on the two sides of the Isthmus of Panama.

This mid-Atlantic land barrier is generally thought to have remained intact from Miocene time down to the present day, but the United States Geological Survey, on critically studying the fossil corals collected on Carrizo Creek, in Imperial County, Cal., has discovered that these corals resemble those of the Atlantic Ocean that inhabited the waters about Florida and the West Indies. This fact seems to mean that after the Atlantic had been separated from the Pacific the two oceans were again united, the interoceanic connection permitting the Atlantic forms to reach points at the head of the Gulf of California, while conditions not yet understood excluded the Pacific fauna from that area. The place at which the oceans were connected is not known, but it is supposed to have been somewhere near the Isthmus of Tehuantepec.

Backed by New York capital and acting under a special concession of the Guatemalan Government, a company incorporated under the laws of the state of New York, with a capital of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, opened its new plant for the manufacture of Portland cement in Guatemala on April 1, and will employ 150 to 200 men. The company in 1914 applied to the Guatemalan Government for a concession for the exclusive privilege of manufacturing Portland cement, but the "exclusive" clause of the franchise aroused opposition and caused a protest to be filed. Later this feature was withdrawn from the application, and the concession was granted in 1914 for a term of ten years.

The New Mexico State Highway Commission, under legislation enacted by the recent state assembly, now comes into direct control not only of all state highway construction and maintenance, but of road building and maintenance in the twenty-eight counties of the state. The commission has adopted a plan which calls for the construction of 3540 miles of intercounty highways. Of this first system 705 miles, including 150 bridges of all types, had been completed on Jan. 1, 1917. The state has accepted the provisions of the Federal road aid act, by which it will receive during the next five years a total of $1,181,067.15 for highway building, and contribute an equal amount.

The twenty national forests in California comprise more than 19,500,000 acres of land and contain approximately 8600 miles of road. There are in addition 9500 miles of trail, which make accessible the more remote regions. Many of these roads penetrate large stretches of wild mountain country. The present roads are to be supplemented by others, made possible by the Federal aid road act, one section of which provides $1,000,000 a year for ten years for the construction of roads in or near the national forests in all the states. The roads are intended primarily for the purpose of developing the resources of the national forests.

Complete returns of the yields of some of the agricultural products of the territory of Hawaii for 1916 show that the cane sugar crop amounted to 598,488 net tons. The gross value of this crop was $68,844,028. The number of cases of canned pineapples packed during the year was 2,590,000. The production of rice has practically disappeared as a factor in the agricultural resources of the territory. Competition from the mainland, a reduction in the number of those who prefer the Hawaiian rice, and difficulty in obtaining labor for its cultivation all contributed to this loss. Large areas, however, are still cultivated by companies operated by the Chinese.

Charged with controlling 55 per cent of the news print paper production of the country and using their power in restraint of trade in violation of the Sherman antitrust law, six paper manufacturers and a banker prominent in financing news print paper companies were indicted by the Federal grand jury. The Federal Trade Commission in its preliminary report to Congress found that while there was no actual shortage in news print paper, a very delicate equilibrium between the available supply and the demand had been brought about artificially in the trade.

A farmer in Alaska has announced a record yield of 17 tons (565 bushels) of potatoes per acre on his farm. His statement is printed in a recently published report of the Alaska agricultural experiment stations. Nine hundred tons of potatoes were produced during the summer of 1915 in the immediate vicinity of Fairbanks. Much of the agricultural soil in Alaska is favored with volcanic ash. Soil containing this ash warms up readily, drains easily, and can be worked with little difficulty.

Stocks of sawn timber in Finland on Dec. 1, 1916, amounted to 1,750,644,720 board feet. It is estimated that stocks will amount to 2,087,777,340 board feet on June 1. Stocks of logs in Finland on Dec. 1, 1916, numbered 17,511,515, and the felling during the 1916-17 winter season is estimated at 7,917,169 logs. The annual cutting is placed at 37,299,000 cubic meters, an excess of 2,000,000 cubic meters over the annual growth.

The coal deposits of Tonkin, French Indo-China, are rich and extensive, but only those claims have been exploited whose surface outcroppings make possible the use of native hand labor in the open air. Shafts and mining machinery are almost unknown in Tonkin, yet in 1915 coal ranked third in value among the products and among the exports of the country, and during 1916 probably exceeded $5,000,000.

Bee-keeping has been given little consideration in Costa Rica, yet the country is rich in blossoming plants and flowers at all seasons and especially suited for bee culture. At present there are estimated to be 3000 hives in the country, with an annual production of 150,000 pounds of honey, which is sold in the local markets and not exported.

The completion of 1000 kilometers of the Russian railroad between Petrosavodsk and Alexandrovsk, a port on the Arctic Ocean open the year round, was accomplished between March, 1915, and November, 1916. A railroad from Petrograd to Petrosavodsk on the western shore of Lake Onega was already in existence before the war.

About 40,180 acres of the Crook National Forest in Arizona will become subject to entry at 9 o'clock, May 23. The lands to be restored are in the southeastern part of the state,—in Gila, Pinal, and Graham counties. They are chiefly unappropriated and over half unsurveyed, but a portion is reported to have some agricultural value.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

"What I say unto you, I say unto all, WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX May 5, 1917 No. 36

The Allness of God, Good

STOKES ANTHONY BENNETT

In the fourth chapter of Deuteronomy it is written, "The Lord he is God; there is none else beside him." This idea is repeated in several other instances in the Old Testament, and in Paul's epistle to the Ephesians we read of "one God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all." It would therefore seem that no well informed Bible student, be he theologian or layman, would ever be led to think or to declare that there is in reality any other power than God, or that he would ever allow himself to criticize or to oppose Christian Science for teaching and demonstrating that "God is infinite, all-power, all Life, Truth, Love, over all, and All" (Science and Health, p. 17).

Every Christian believes God to be good, and also to be Love, as the Scriptures over and over again affirm. Now, since God is omnipotent, omnipresent, and omniscient, it is self-evident that divine goodness and Love is the only power, presence, and intelligence, the only reality and activity in the universe. This means, then, that God is the maker of all that truly and eternally is, and that the entire creation is also good and perfect, even as it is pronounced in the opening chapter of Genesis. We thus arrive at the logical and sound conclusion that, because God is good and is All, evil, the asserted opposite of good, is necessarily unreal and untrue, having neither power, presence, nor entity. This is precisely what Christ Jesus meant to convey when in defining the devil, or personified evil, he said: "He was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own: for he is a liar, and the father of it [the lie]."

Christ Jesus said to the woman of Samaria, "God is a Spirit," and here we see that, because God is Spirit and omnipotent, Spirit is infinite and supreme. It therefore follows that matter, with its every law and condition, is but a deception, an illusion, a nothingness, as was demonstrated by the Master in those important works which were simply the natural results of the perfect spiritual understanding which Christ Jesus had. Because God is omnipotent Spirit, goodness, and Love, He could not by any process of consistent reasoning be the creator, sustainer, or approver of aught that is unspiritual, fleshly, and material,—sin, sickness, sorrow, limitation, lack, inharmony, death,—and scientifically speaking these things do not exist any more than a mistake in mathematics or in music really exists. The mistake only seems to exist to that mentality which does not rightly understand mathematics or music, and is wholly unknown to and unsupported by the basic law of numbers or of harmony. And so it is with Deity, the perfect divine Principle of the Science of true, eternal being: He neither knows, countenances, nor permits so-called error, or evil; to Him there is no error, no evil.

Yet, some one may ask, does not evil exist on every hand, and often seem to have much more power and influence than good? Does it not seem to play a leading part in the affairs of men and of nations, thereby causing unspeakable suffering and woe? Does Christian Science imply, by declaring that evil is unreal and untrue, without legitimate origin or foundation, that we are to overlook or ignore it by simply saying that there is no evil? Are we to infer that evil is not to be recognized as such, opposed, and overcome?

On page 71 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy says: "Evil has no reality. It is neither person, place, nor thing, but is simply a belief, an illusion of material sense." Again, on page 448 we read: "Evil which obtains in the bodily senses, but which the heart condemns, has no foundation; but if evil is uncondemned, it is undenied and nurtured. Under such circumstances, to say that there is no evil, is an evil in itself." In the first quotation Mrs. Eddy gives the scientific definition of evil,—she tells the exact truth about it, namely, that there is in reality no truth in it. In the second one she directs attention to the mortal mind significance of evil, to its seeming power and presence in the experiences of humankind, and at the same time she denounces any attempt to condone, foster, or indulge the belief in and the practice of evil. In other words, she makes it altogether plain that to overlook or ignore evil is dangerous in the extreme, and is bound to ultimate in a greater sense of evil and greater suffering.

Christian Science teaches and proves that evil's imaginary power prevails only to the extent that one believes in it as a reality, just as so-called ghosts seem to have power when one actually believes there are ghosts. The reality of good destroys the illusive and false belief in the power and reality of evil. Christian Science from first to last emphasizes the eternal fact that God, good, is All, and that there is none beside Him. This fact constitutes the perfect rule which its students are enjoined to learn and to practise, to cling to with might and main in working out their salvation,—in detecting, unmasking, overcoming, and destroying the various beliefs in evil which present themselves at every turn. Merely to declare the omnipotence of God, good, and the consequent nothingness of error, or evil, is well-nigh worthless; it is like repeating a rule in arithmetic without understanding it and making a genuine effort to prove its proposition.

In Christian Science, the Science of true, harmonious being, one must, if he would make sure and lasting progress, not only declare but know the truth of what he is declaring; and if he really knows and applies this scientific truth, he will be made free from evil beliefs and their effects, even as the Master promised. For one to say that good is the only power and presence, and yet carelessly or wilfully to indulge any belief in evil, is rank hypocrisy, and it sooner or later brings most disastrous results. The Scriptures warn, "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

The greatest blessing available to the world today is the fundamental and demonstrable teaching of Christian Science which sets forth the absolute goodness and love of Almighty God. This Science is showing mankind how to worship and adore God, good, with all one's heart, mind, and strength,

Copyright, 1917, by The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Digitized by Google

and how to obey faithfully and honestly the divine command, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me." It is showing mankind how, through a correct understanding of God as divine Principle, divine Mind, to overcome so-called evil, matter, and discord, and to give full place to spiritual harmony and reality. In a word, Christian Science is pointing the way out of whatever would appear to be opposed to or apart from infinite good, and it is doing this by demonstrating in countless mighty works the omnipotence, omnipresence, and omniscience of the one God.

In meeting the seeming trials and tests of human experience, what a grand thing it is really to know that God, who made and governs all, is too pure to behold what material sense terms evil and its concomitants! What a grand thing it is to know that God is infinitely higher than the so-called wrong thoughts and ways of mortals, higher than the iniquitous schemes and methods which would appear to dominate human activity in so many instances! Such an understanding proves conclusively the allness of God, good, and gives to the scientific Christian thinker a solid basis on which he can stand and solve his every human problem. Well has the poet Whittier said:—

"All is of God that is, and is to be;
And God is good." Let this suffice us still,
Resting in childlike trust upon His will
Who moves to His great ends unthwarted by the ill.

Truth Practised

WINIFRED E. COWARD

MRS. EDDY says: "Perfection is not expressed through imperfection. Spirit is not made manifest through matter, the antipode of Spirit" (Science and Health, p. 72). A consideration of the modus operandi in any and every case of true metaphysical healing will confirm this statement. So too if we trace the history of many of the discoveries in so-called physical science, we get an interesting parallel.

Every discovery in physical science overcomes in a degree a sense of limitation, and as a result the world records progress. An interesting and instructive fact to be gained from the histories of the world's greatest discoveries, is that the ideas which have led to the discoveries have usually come from a very unexpected direction; they have dawned while the discoverer's thoughts were engaged upon quite different matters. For example, when Watt, watching a kettle of boiling water, perceived the idea of power as manifested through steam, he was not searching for a means to overcome the resistance of wind and waves; yet it was this very thing which made his discovery of such value to the world. Previously navigation had been hazardous, because the world's limited knowledge had made it dependent upon sails and wind for crossing the seas; but with Watt's discovery in quite a different field of thought the liberation came, —not through fighting and overcoming wind, but through the overcoming of ignorance of a so-called motive power which was already existent and at hand.

In a similar way we do not try in Christian Science healing to fight disease materially, but we seek in quite a different field for knowledge of a power which is ever present, at hand,—the knowledge of the truth about God and man. This knowledge makes us free from the limitations of belief in matter, with its effects of sin, disease, and death, so that they have no further power over us, and we are free to sail the seas of life untouched by the winds and waves of discord. One can well imagine that those who did not understand the newly found steam power would regard it with fear or superstition or prejudice, and would remain limited by their ignorance, subject to what they believed to be laws of winds and waves. Many of us were in a similar bondage until the light of spiritual understanding revealed the falsity of our fetters.

In the sixth chapter of St. John's gospel we are told how Jesus overcame a tempest of wind and waves through knowledge of a spiritual law,—very different from the so-called physical law which governs the action of steam. His higher knowledge of God and the universe, including man, placed him out of the reach of the limitations of wind and waves, and enabled him to walk on the sea, still the wind, and transport the ship to shore without delay. Christ Jesus said: "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also," and therefore we may rejoice always that we can each hour learn more of Truth, of reality, of that which always has been true but of which we have been ignorant, and so escape from the bondage of discord of every kind. Mrs. Eddy says, "Working and praying with true motives, your Father will open the way" (Science and Health, p. 326).

We thus realize how truly loving a practitioner is when, instead of listening to a long account of suffering and symptoms, he gently turns our thoughts into quite different channels and seeks to unfold to us the truth about God and man, including the universe. At first the one seeking help may think the practitioner has lost sight of the difficulty in question, be it pain or poverty, and that therefore he is not being healed; but as the good news which the practitioner is able to unfold to the patient opens his hitherto blind eyes, so that he begins to look at everything from a fresh viewpoint, he finds that his former troubles vanish in the light of understanding, for they were but ghosts in the darkness of ignorance.

The wise man said, "Understanding is a wellspring of life unto him that hath it." When discord ceases to have any place in our consciousness, it ceases to exist for us and we learn what it means to be subject only to the law of harmony. We should never believe in the reality of aught that Truth destroys. The belief that discord exists is all there is of the discord—just a false belief. Our business is to turn from it and learn what is real,—perfect Love and perfect spiritual man. Paul asks, "Who did hinder you that ye should not obey the truth?" We are masters of our own consciousness. All we need is with true humility to wait upon divine Love, that we may gain the understanding of reality; and God never fails us, nor does He bestow sparingly. We cannot depend upon another to do this for us.

When we gain the true idea we immediately act upon it, for it is part of us, and also for the reason that Truth is ever active. Because we understand that parallel lines do not meet, though the material senses tell us that they do, we act upon our understanding and build trains to fit rails which always run on parallel lines. In the same way we know that earth and sky do not meet on the horizon, and we act accordingly. These false suppositions of material sense do not enter our consciousness, and do not influence us in the slightest, because we have been delivered from them by knowledge of the truth. With the growing understanding of reality, of God and man, we are influenced less and less by material beliefs; they enter less into our calculations as we enter upon our inheritance and respond to the eternal law of Love and harmony.

In acquiring a knowledge of Truth we need to remember that there is no such thing as "near enough." There are degrees of evil, because evil has no principle; but God's ideas are altogether perfect under all circumstances, for they are of infinite Mind and we know them by their immediate fruits. There may be many mistakes about one truth, but none of them will help us in the slightest. "Near enough," however near, is of no avail. Thus in healing the sick who are in bondage to false beliefs, Christian Scientists do not strive to improve the material body, but to unfold that understanding of the facts of existence which will dispel spurious beliefs and replace them with what is true. In a similar way, death is overcome through the realization of life as eternal. Since the facts of life express absolute harmony, so also will the seeker for truth, as he acquires this knowledge; and this harmony will be manifested in every department of his life,—physical, mental, and moral.

Digitized by Google

We see how useless, nay, what a hindrance it is to outline in thought the material effects we are hoping to see manifested. Such material thought can never produce healing, and meanwhile there is waiting for us that truth about God and man which makes free. Let us never forget the Master's command: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."

✧

Sabbath School Lessons

MYRTLE HOLM SMITH

INCORRECT criticism of Christian Scientists, to the effect that they do not use the Bible, or that they have a special one of their own, emphasizes the necessity that the children in our Sabbath schools be thoroughly taught the Scriptures. As the discovery of Christian Science would have been impossible for one who was not thoroughly acquainted with the Scriptures, so an appreciation and demonstration of their teachings must rest on the same basis. As we consider the teachings of the Bible more pertinent to every problem of life than do the people of any other denomination, so the children in our Sunday schools should have a knowledge of these teachings not only equal to but even greater than that of other children.

A merely literal knowledge of the Bible will never save any one; indeed it was not until the key to its spiritual interpretation was given to the world by Mrs. Eddy, that complete salvation from sin, disease, and death was to be found in the Scriptures. A knowledge of the historical events and an acquaintance with the characters mentioned in the Bible is, however, practically essential for its interpretation.

The wisdom of our Leader provided that "the first lessons of the children should be the Ten Commandments (Exodus 20:3-17), the Lord's Prayer (Matt. 6:9-13), and its Spiritual Interpretation by Mary Baker Eddy, Sermon on the Mount (Matt. 5:3-12)" (Manual, Art. XX, Sect. 3). This may involve teaching the smaller children, and sometimes the larger ones, the exact meaning of the words used in the text, but no teacher should be content to give his pupils a merely verbal knowledge, or to leave with them only a memorized form of words. With the Ten Commandments, the Lord's Prayer, and the Beatitudes, the teaching may include something of the circumstances under which these messages were delivered, also by whom, marking well the difference in the times and the messengers. Thus an opportunity is presented to give the children the main points in the history of the Hebrew people, and to call attention to the stanch character of Moses and of the prophets who followed him, as well as to tell them of Christ Jesus and his mission. These aspects of the teaching should, however, always be kept subservient to the real spiritual message and its application in the lives of the children.

When the more advanced lessons from the Quarterly are reached, an opportunity to cover the whole Bible is offered, so wide is the range of citations from the Scriptures. As the citations in the Lesson-Sermons must necessarily be short, when an incident in the life of a prophet or an apostle is given it is with little background of history. Thus the lesson to be learned from the reference will lose much of its value to the child, because he is usually unfamiliar with the Bible narratives, unless the needed information is supplied.

To keep the spiritual interpretation paramount, the historical passages from the Bible should always be related to the Lesson-Sermon for the day, and their higher meaning brought out. For instance, a reference to Solomon and his wisdom may be found in the Lesson-Sermon. Usually the teacher is so familiar with the story of Solomon that he may be surprised to find a pupil who does not know that divine Mind alone was the source of Solomon's wisdom, or who may be ignorant even of the story of Solomon's choice of wisdom rather than of riches. In all such situations the pupils should be given a sufficient historical background for them to understand the lesson for the day and gain its spiritual import.

As the time at our disposal in the Sabbath school is short, it is desirable to do all in our power to induce the children to study during the week and become familiar by actual use with the Old and New Testaments. Children like stories; they like concrete incidents; they enjoy bits of biography; so they will often find delight in research at home, if the teacher will stimulate this by questions to be answered the following Sunday and a hint of where and how the answers may be found in the Bible. One member of the class may be asked to amplify any incident referred to in the first section of the next week's lesson, or to give a biography of a character mentioned in that section. Another pupil may be asked to take something from the second section, and so on. Or, if the teacher feels it to be wiser, questions may be mailed to the pupils for their study during the week.

Older pupils are generally interested to know something about the authors of the different books of the Bible, how they were compiled and the history of the more important manuscripts. In connection with the writers of the New Testament something may be told of the apostles and the disciples and of their service to the Master and to humanity. Thus a great love for Bible study can be fostered, and the incidents learned in connection with the spiritual interpretation will be lifted above mere material history and made to contribute to the spiritual understanding which is so highly prized in Christian Science.

✧

Our Responsibilities

HENRY D. NUNN

IT is the glory of Christian Science that it is equal to every human need. Our Leader's inspiring proclamation of the law that "one infinite God . . . annihilates pagan and Christian idolatry,—whatever is wrong in social, civil, criminal, political, and religious codes" (Science and Health, p. 340), necessarily implies that Christian Scientists will more and more be called into the arena of public affairs, there to apply this law to social and political problems and to prove its all embracing scope. But as special preparation is essential to the successful prosecution of any important undertaking, so must there be preparation to engage effectively in social and political reform work. Even so slight a share in government as is involved in casting a ballot at election time, especially in communities which permit voters to pass judgment directly upon measures instead of upon men, cannot be creditably borne without thoughtful preparation.

The spiritual awakening which accompanies true healing

Digitized by Google

quickens the sympathy of every Christian Scientist for right and justice in every field, and he lacks not, therefore, the willingness to support the right, though at every step he needs to know what makes for right and how to support it. There are organized movements of every conceivable sort, ranging from national political parties and international peace societies to local charity clubs, and it requires more than casual consideration on the individual's part, and a more trustworthy guidance than ordinary newspapers supply, to enable him to choose even the lesser of two evils.

What part, if any, the Scientist should take in helping to find the line of progress toward the ultimate realization of right and justice in collective affairs, is of course a question for each individual to decide for himself. But every earnest follower of Christ, Truth, will naturally desire to free himself from the bias of mere prejudice or of blind and unthinking partizanship. He will not be satisfied to hold rigid opinions without clear reasons to support them, and he will not wittingly favor or oppose measures or policies merely because his father did.

To be prejudiced is to prejudge; or, as the dictionary puts it, "to judge before hearing, or before full and sufficient examination." In clearing one's thought of prejudice respecting world problems we have an invaluable helper daily at hand,—The Christian Science Monitor. If this paper is faithfully read with an open mind, there will inevitably unfold a broader view. No one should take his opinions ready made from any source, not excepting the Monitor; but surely the Christian Scientist may rely upon it that convictions expressed in the editorial columns of this newspaper are carefully and honestly arrived at and so should be earnestly heeded. Heady, self-satisfied opinions upon public questions often hold their ground with us long after we have yielded up our human opinions upon questions of theology and have opened our minds to the sweet reasonableness of the spiritual interpretation of the Master's life and teachings. It is not uncommon, therefore, to find that significant articles and editorials in the Monitor pass under our eyes unheeded, if not unread, while we persist in adhering to archaic beliefs out of which these same articles and editorials would have instructed us had we read and earnestly applied them.

The preparation and assembling of reading matter for the Monitor, especially of articles bearing directly upon the important problems of international, social, and industrial relations and economic and political evolution, are undoubtedly recognized by those responsible for this work as a profoundly important trust, which they cannot possibly fulfil without constant and sincere prayer. It is not the mission of the Monitor to maintain a genial and inoffensive attitude toward human institutions, but its mission is, in the dedicatory words of our Leader, "to injure no man, but to bless all mankind" (Miscellany, p. 353); and it cannot bless mankind without penetrating the masks and false pretenses of evil in every direction, and pointing out the true line of action, however obscured by popular ignorance and prejudice.

Should not every Christian Scientist ask himself whether he truly recognizes the high mission of the Monitor as a guide in public questions? Should he continue to look for instruction in such important matters to the editorial and news columns of the organ of his political party, an organ so bound, it may be, by financial ties that it is not free to oppose a fact or an argument? Subject as it is to the exigencies of rapid news gathering and the cooperation of great numbers of persons in production, the Monitor may sometimes be mistaken either as to facts or conclusions, but if so, we know that it is honestly mistaken. We know that it is a free paper, for it is consciously placed under control of Principle. Knowing all this, do we give to its instructive columns the thoughtful and earnest attention they merit? If we do not, we are limiting our own progress.

It should be a reasonable practice for every Christian Scientist to test his opinions on public questions by comparing them with the views expressed in the Monitor editorials, and to test unverified alleged facts by comparison with the information he finds in its news columns and special articles. What have we accepted as the facts and what opinions do we hold, for instance, concerning the present world war and international arbitration, the land question, the tariff question, the suffrage question, the temperance question, and the labor question; or concerning such matters as commission government for cities, preferential voting, proportional representation, initiative, referendum, and recall, government ownership of railroads and public utilities, old age pensions, unemployment insurance, and numberless other debatable issues? Some of these questions have to do with matters that are fundamental, some with modes of expressing the popular judgment, and others with expedients for temporary relief. As to each of them there is the greatest confusion of opinion and information in the public press; but there should be no mystery about any of these, or about any other great questions, in the clear light of Christian Science, —and where may we expect this light to shine more clearly than in the intelligently and impartially edited columns of The Christian Science Monitor?

There can be no doubt but that the conscientious study of our Leader's writings, and also of the instructive articles daily appearing in the wholesome columns of the Monitor, will fit the followers of Christian Science the better to serve as instruments of the law of God in annihilating "whatever is wrong in social, civil, criminal, political, and religious codes" (Science and Health, p. 340). Neither can there be any doubt but that our great Leader included social and political regeneration as within the present scope of Christian Science demonstration. Therefore this field cannot be safely overlooked or left to the well meaning but not fully enlightened efforts of those who have not yet shared with us the great blessing of divine guidance.

✧

The Withered Branch

BRENDA E. HOLTHAM

To the student of Christian Science it is a fact that oftentimes some of the greatest of the metaphysical truths which he learns are brought home to him through the small, apparently trivial happenings of his every-day life. This brings to him not only a quiet gladness quite unknown to the unseeing eye and the unhearing ear, but is a demonstration in itself of Truth's activity, as it shows him that in his experience material sense is assuredly giving way to that spiritual sense which Mrs. Eddy has characterized on page 209 of Science and Health as "a conscious, constant capacity to understand God."

In the early spring a branch from a horse chestnut tree was brought into the office in which the writer is employed, and was placed in water upon the window-sill. Day by day the sun shone in and warmed the tender buds, and the soft spring winds blew over them, until gradually each little bud expanded into a tiny pale green ball, which in turn unrolled itself into a cluster of shining dark leaves, the little branch becoming at last a thing of beauty indeed. For a while thereafter, in the stress of business, it was little noticed. Then one day, when all outside was gorgeous foliage, we looked at it again, but a poor little shriveled-up branch met our gaze, its leaves withered and dried. Separated from the tree which gave it life, how short a span was its existence! Some one tossed it carelessly into a waste basket, and then these words of the Master came to mind: "I am the vine, ye are the branches . . . If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered; and men gather them, and cast them into the fire, and they are burned."

Digitized by Google

How typical of mortal life was the poor little faded branch! Then and there I realized what a wonderful object lesson had been mine. I saw plainly, as never before, the oneness of God and man, even as of the vine and its branches. I saw the impotence, the frailty, the incompleteness of the mortal sense of life as existent in matter, that is, as separated from divine Mind. I was also conscious of the limitless powers of development resident in the consciousness deep rooted in the understanding of Spirit, established in Christ, Truth, sustained and nurtured by divine, infinite Love. Without the parent vine how lifeless is the branch! Then I rejoiced in the truth that man, the image and likeness, the expression of God, good, can never do aught but abide in Him; and that any belief in a life apart from God does not, and never can, manifest true being, any more than the leaves of the severed branch could approach in any degree the beauty and maturity of those of the tree itself, although they may have simulated the latter for a day.

To the consciousness that abides in Love is unfolded the limitless, infinite possibilities of being, developing and ripening into "the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ." The understanding of divine Truth is indeed a tree of life, whose "leaf also shall not wither."

✧

Reflecting Truth

CATHARINE M. TINKER

On a clear, crisp day in September a party of climbers ascended one of the highest mountains in their vicinity,—rated to be a mile high. They had made an early start, and the summit was reached about two o'clock in the afternoon, when a glorious and unclouded view rewarded their efforts. One of their first desires was to signal to their friends in the valley far below, and this they did by means of hand mirrors. By holding up the mirror, small though it was, the rays of the sun were caught and sent across the great distance down to the waiting ones, who, looking up toward the summit, saw the bright flash with its message. They could see no figures, no moving objects; the bare, rocky cliffs, dark against the sky, revealed no trace of human life, but the flash, clear and unmistakable, assured the watchers that their friends had gained the top of the mountain.

To one of those in the valley came not only the flash from the little mirror, but a clear illustration of what may be done by each Christian Scientist who is reflecting Truth and Love. Before understanding much of Christian Science, the writer attended several meetings at a Christian Science church in the city where she was located. She was a stranger in that church; she did not know any of the members, nor did she find a familiar face, but the flash of spiritual light came unmistakably to her from those who had gained the height, and the light was reflected to the watchers below.

On page 510 of Science and Health our Leader tells us that "Truth and Love enlighten the understanding, in whose 'light shall we see light;' and this illumination is reflected spiritually by all who walk in the light and turn away from a false material sense." Surely there is hope then for every climber toward Truth.

Selected Articles

[Duncan Sinclair in Glasgow (Scotland) Citizen]

Under "Topics of Today" reference is made to Christian Science, classifying it with hypnotism, telepathy, psychotherapy, and the like. Will you kindly allow me to point out that Christian Science has nothing in common with these. The remark, however, which concludes the quotation given, that Christian Science recognizes "the importance of things that are not material," is perfectly true, because Christian Science, first and last, deals with God and with His spiritual creation. Christian Science is showing to an ever increasing number of people, to whom it has given a faith based not on blind credulity but on spiritual understanding, that spiritual law is as operative and as powerful today as it was when Jesus the Christ demonstrated it nineteen centuries ago.

No better definition of Christian Science can be found than that of Mrs. Eddy on page 1 of "Rudimental Divine Science": "The law of God, the law of good, interpreting and demonstrating the divine Principle and rule of universal harmony."

✧

[Warren O. Evans in The Sunday Tribune, Providence, R. I.]

It is interesting to note that whereas formerly critics of Christian Science denounced this subject as being neither Christian nor scientific, now they are beginning to admit that science and Christianity do combine and are essentially indissoluble. It is but a fair illustration of what Agassiz once said: "Every great scientific truth goes through three stages. First, people say it conflicts with the Bible. Next, they say it has been discovered before. Lastly, they say they have always believed it." Christian Science has passed through these three stages; and the world is now waking up to the fact that Christianity in order to be true Christianity must be scientific.

From the feeling expressed by our friend, it is very evident that he is laboring under what he believes to be some personal grievance, and with a mistaken sense of what the teachings of Mrs. Eddy really are. To call these teachings "Eddyism" is no more reasonable or sensible than it would be to call the knowledge pertaining to the law which Newton discovered "Newtonism." Mrs. Eddy discovered an absolute, fixed law, based on Principle, with definite rules for its demonstration. The results obtained in the practice of these rules are sufficient proof of their divine origin.

To say that this teaching "is guilty, so far as it can be, of deicide," that it "would degrade Christ Jesus," is absurd. Mrs. Eddy's teachings are based absolutely upon the teachings of Jesus, and his Sermon on the Mount is fundamental. No body of people are more faithful students of the Bible, or worship the one true and living God more sincerely, than do Christian Scientists.

✧

[F. Elmo Robinson in Benton County Courier, Corvallis, Ore.]

Recently the Christian Science Society in Corvallis invited an authorized lecturer to deliver a lecture on Christian Science in that city for the benefit of those who desired to learn more of these teachings. A clergyman who read this lecture evidently was not pleased with it. It did not coincide with his particular religious creed. He therefore selected a few quotations from the lecture, put his own erroneous construction upon them, and by the number and character of questions raised in the Courier, clearly indicated that he had completely missed the points the lecturer was setting forth.

Christian Science teaches that there is but one cause and creator, God, Spirit, and therefore but one creation, spiritual, perfect, and harmonious. It does not teach that there are two creations, one spiritual and the other material; that there are two men, one spiritual and the other material; nor does it teach that man is both spiritual and material, but that, being the image and likeness of God, of Spirit, he must forever be wholly spiritual. What appears to human sense as a material universe and a material man, together with the accompanying beliefs in sin, disease, and death, does not constitute a separate creation, nor is it a part of God's creation. Both matter and evil are unreal because not of God. One who had a genuine silver dollar and a counterfeit dollar could not be said to have two dollars. Even so in Christian Science we do not recognize a sinning, suffering, dying material mortal as man at all, since man is God's image and likeness, spiritual and perfect. On page 476 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy says: "Mortals are the counterfeits of immortals. They are the children of the wicked one, or the one evil, which declares that man begins in dust or as a material embryo."

Digitized by Google

Our critic has raised among other questions the following: "If man is 'a thought of God,' and must always abide in the infinite Mind, because Mind and its idea cannot be separated, how in the name of common sense did man get to dying and taking on sickness and having train wrecks then?" The answer to this question, according to the Scriptures and according to the teachings of Christian Science, is to be found in the following statement from the first epistle of John: "Whosoever is born of God doth not commit sin; for his seed remaineth in him: and he cannot sin, because he is born of God." Note here the statement of John concerning man born of God. He says, "He cannot sin." Christian Science is in perfect accord with this statement, and therefore teaches that man, the image and likeness of God, does not "get to dying and taking on sickness and having train wrecks."

Our critic further asks, "If man is 'a thought of God,' must not everything he thinks be right?" The answer to this question is, Yes. The image and likeness of God is not, however, to be confounded with the mortal concept of man or the sinning race of Adam. Christian Scientists are striving daily to put off the old false sense of man and to gain the new, the true spiritual sense of man.

Christian Science teaches that reality is wholly mental, or spiritual, and therefore denies the existence of matter. This denial of matter, however, is not a denial of existence or of body. In brief, Christian Science teaches that material objects are counterfeits of spiritual and indestructible ideas which exist in perpetual perfection in Mind, and that the only real action is the action of this divine Mind, forever governing these ideas and maintaining their harmony and individuality. All so-called evil or destructive action, whether manifested as disease, drouth, a clap of thunder, or an earthquake, is but the seeming activity of the suppositious opposite of the divine Mind. Our critic says, "If you deny the need of food at the same time you deny the existence of a body, will that not place you where you will not need to eat?" On page 461 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy says, "I do not maintain that any one can exist in the flesh without food and raiment; but I do believe that the real man is immortal and that he lives in Spirit, not matter."

That Christian Scientists, striving earnestly to attain the Mind that was in Christ Jesus, find it necessary at this stage of their growth to eat, drink, and be clothed materially, is certainly no occasion for discouragement on their part, or for harsh criticism on the part of other professing Christians. The fact that a larger and ever increasing measure of harmony is being brought about in their human affairs as the result of their more spiritual thinking and living is to them an incentive to keep pressing "toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." The present incompleteness of their demonstration of spiritual being does not cause them to falter or to reject the specific Scriptural promise of the ultimate attainment of the absolute ideal, which is the real.

Our critic asks several questions which grow out of his observation of the fact that Christian Scientists have not destroyed the "last enemy" for themselves and others. Christian Science is scientific Christianity, and must be demonstrated in an orderly way, the lesser problems being solved before the greater. That which in human experience is termed death is, according to the Scriptures, the outcome or culmination of sin, for "the wages of sin is death." Sin is the belief in a power apart from God, the one infinite good. Christian Science does not teach that a mere verbal denial of death is sufficient to destroy it, but teaches that in proportion as sin is overcome, its resultant, death, will disappear from human experience. By healing sin and disease Christian Science has kept thousands from going to the graveyard when that experience seemed imminent. What has already been accomplished indicates clearly that the full realization and demonstration of God's allness will not only completely eradicate sin and disease, but finally the "last enemy," death itself.

✧

[W. D. Kilpatrick in St. Clair (Mich.) Republican]

One does not have to know anything about Christian Science to perceive that the first two chapters of Genesis contain two exactly opposite accounts of creation,—one the spiritual and eternal, the other setting forth belief in the material or temporal. It is clear that the account in the first chapter depicts man as the image and likeness of God, perfect, spiritual, and eternal, while that in the second chapter depicts belief in the creation of the Adam-man, subject to sin, sickness, and death. The Bible says that this second account of creation was the outcome of the "mist" which "watered the whole face of the ground;" in other words, mystification, or materiality.

Jesus said, "Before Abraham was, I am," and he also said, "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world." Christian Science points to these statements as evidence of the truth of its teaching that the Christ, Truth, always has existed and always will exist. It teaches that Jesus came to expound to mankind, by precept and example, this Christ, or Truth. It proclaims the immaculate conception of Jesus and the divinity of the Christ, and its teachings will be found in strict accord with those of the Bible on these as well as on all other points.

The man of God's creating, or the spiritual, perfect man embraced in the account of creation in the first chapter of Genesis, is sinless and deathless. He is coeternal and coexistent with his Maker. Otherwise he could not be God's image. The Adam-man, or the material man, which is merely a wrong concept of the true man, is the man spoken of in the Bible as subject to sin, sickness, and death. Jesus made it very clear that sin, sickness, and death are not parts of God's creation, for he went about waging relentless battle against the three, and he destroyed them all successfully. He also said that we should do the same,—heal the sick as well as save the sinner. There is no equivocation about that in the Bible, and Christian Scientists should certainly not be criticized for endeavoring to follow the teachings of Jesus in every particular, even though other religionists choose to reject those parts of his teaching which, through ignorance of their true import, they are unable to make practical in healing the sick.

Digitized by Google

[Robert S. Ross in Brooklyn (N. Y.) Times]

In an editorial entitled "Science and Health" (a caption inspired no doubt by the famous volume of that name written by Mrs. Eddy), the Times stated that while it would not seem to be within the province of the state police power to compel medical treatment, it would seem to be within the police power to compel medical supervision in order to insure conditions favorable to the recovery of the sick. In reply thereto permit me to state that the world is fast working around to the point where it is willing to admit that every material effect has a mental cause. This applies to the human body and its ills as it does to errors in numbers. Mrs. Eddy saw this fifty years ago, when she discovered Christian Science. Writing of the human body in Science and Health she says, "A mortal man possesses this body, and he makes it harmonious or discordant according to the images of thought impressed upon it" (p. 208).

If disease is the objectification of mortal fears and beliefs, medical diagnosis and treatment, which deal with effects only, leave the cause wholly untouched. Thus the diseases of the human body which appear to be eradicated by powerful drugs or removed by the knife, are never really destroyed, because the fears and beliefs about them are undestroyed and therefore the diseases are liable to reappear at any moment. Christian Science, on the other hand, turns from effect to cause in order to bring about a cure. Instead of applying a drug or cutting away a portion of the body, it brings to the human mind (the seat of bodily discord) the understanding of the truth of being, which quiets fear and acts as a corrective, causing the human mind to think in terms of health instead of sickness. Christian Science teaches that mortals manifest harmony in their bodies in the proportion that they think rightly, and results prove that this teaching is demonstrably sound.

Christian Science and material medicine are opposites in both theory and practice. One is wholly spiritual, the other wholly material. Thus it would be not only unreasonable and impracticable for practitioners of the two systems to work together, but it would be unthinkable for the law to place Christian Science cases under the supervision of medical doctors. This would infringe human rights.

✧

[Lloyd B. Coate in Zanesville (Ohio) Sunday News]

A critic is reported as saying that Mrs. Eddy did not believe in a hell; but on page 588 of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," she defines hell as "mortal belief; error; lust; remorse; hatred; revenge; sin; sickness; death; suffering and self-destruction; self-imposed agony; effects of sin; that which 'worketh abomination or maketh a lie.'"

On page 160 of "The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany," Mrs. Eddy wrote: "I am asked, 'Is there a hell?' Yes, there is a hell for all who persist in breaking the golden rule or in disobeying the commandments of God. Physical science has sometimes argued that the internal fires of our earth will eventually consume this planet. Christian Science shows that hidden unpunished sin is this internal fire,—even the fire of a guilty conscience, waking to a true sense of itself, and burning in torture until the sinner is consumed,—his sins destroyed. This may take millions of cycles, but of the time no man knoweth. The advanced psychist knows that this hell is mental, not material, and that the Christian has no part in it. Only the makers of hell burn in their fire."

Throughout her writings Mrs. Eddy teaches plainly that so long as sin continues, punishment will continue; hell will last as long as the belief of sin lasts. There was need of a Saviour to deliver mortals from the awful deception of sin and awaken them from the delusion of sickness. Jesus came into the world in fulfilment of prophecy, demonstrating that Christ, Truth, could heal the sick, reform the sinner, and destroy every thought unlike God, infinite good.

Through the teachings of Mrs. Eddy thousands of people have been healed of disease, and have gained a demonstrable understanding of God which has transformed their lives, lifting them above sinful habits. Christian Science increases one's faith in God, his love for the Bible, and awakens a greater desire to follow in the footsteps of Christ Jesus. The great Master taught, "By their fruits ye shall know them." If the ministry understood Christian Science they would bid it "all hail," instead of permitting themselves to speak unkindly of it.

✧

[Avery Coonley in Bloomington (Ill.) Pantagraph]

An evangelist speaking locally, as reported, said for the special benefit of Christian Scientists that "any religious system that denies the virgin birth of Jesus is of the devil. Any religious system that makes Jesus less than God is of the devil."

Christian Science does not deny the virgin birth of Jesus, so that shot went wide of the mark, but it does deny that Jesus was God, and does so because of what he himself said. Jesus must have known whether he was God or man, and he said many things which show that he did not consider himself God. If he had so considered himself, he certainly would have said so plainly. But he never said so, and said many things which absolutely exclude the possibility of his having considered himself Deity. Those who contend that he was God, rely upon such statements as "I and my Father are one." These must be considered in connection with such declarations as, "My Father is greater than I." Again, such statements as, "I can of mine own self do nothing," and, "Why callest thou me good? there is none good but one, that is, God," show beyond dispute that he did not consider himself God. On this point the following citations are interesting: John viii. 40; Luke xviii. 19; John iv. 19-26, especially verses 22 and 24; John x. 22-39, especially verses 33 and 36; John xiv. 28; John xvii. 16, 22; Mark xii. 28-34, especially verses 32 and 34.

✧ ✧ ✧

[Written for the Sentinel]

"Be still, and know"

MARY B. ROSS

"Be still, and know" that angels guard
While clouds of sense obstruct the way,
And ever and anon rejoice
And work and watch till dawns the day.

"Be still, and know" that thou, God's child,
Art ever safe from all that harms,
Fore'er enfolded in His love,
Within the all encircling arms.

That what to thee may seem distress,
E'en agony, or woe, or pain,
Is but a trial of thy faith:
In Truth thou wilt find peace again.

So in Love's allness thou canst rest,
And know the truth, that thou art free,
Possessing what thou ne'er canst lose,
Health, holiness, and liberty.

Digitized by Google

Editorial

Daily Prayer

In a letter by Mrs. Eddy, published on page 132 of "Miscellaneous Writings," she gives a hint to her followers which should not be ignored by them at any time, and especially in times of stress such as the present. In this letter she tells in simple words of her own custom and her own faith. She writes: "Three times a day, I retire to seek the divine blessing on the sick and sorrowing, with my face toward the Jerusalem of Love and Truth, in silent prayer to the Father which 'seeth in secret,' and with childlike confidence that he will reward 'openly.' In the midst of depressing care and labor I turn constantly to divine Love for guidance, and find rest."

That our Leader recognized not only the importance but also the efficacy of daily prayer is shown by the request which she made to all Christian Scientists, in her Message to The Mother Church in 1896: "One thing I have greatly desired, and again earnestly request, namely, that Christian Scientists, here and elsewhere, pray daily for themselves; not verbally, nor on bended knee, but mentally, meekly, and importunately. When a hungry heart petitions the divine Father-Mother God for bread, it is not given a stone,—but more grace, obedience, and love" (Miscellaneous Writings, p. 127).

Importunate prayer was sanctioned by the Master in the parable by which he taught that "men ought always to pray, and not to faint," and even when the answer to our prayer seems to be delayed, we must not lose heart and yield to the temptation to give up the struggle. It is not enough to ask; we must bear our own part in the accomplishment of our right desires. On page 13 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy says: "If we are not secretly yearning and openly striving for the accomplishment of all we ask, our prayers are 'vain repetitions,' such as the heathen use. If our petitions are sincere, we labor for what we ask; and our Father, who seeth in secret, will reward us openly." The psalmist said, "I have been young, and now am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread," and we should have equal confidence with him that God is always ready to bless us.

That the disciples were alert to the benefits accruing from the Master's communion with the Father is evidenced by the request of one of them, who asked, "Lord, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples." The Master's quick response to this request was the brief yet all comprehensive petition which is known as the Lord's Prayer, the model for all prayer. Of particular significance in this petition is the phrase, "Give us this day our daily bread," in that it implies beginning each day with prayer to the giver of every good gift, an affirmation of the Father's goodness and willingness in His provision for our every need even before we ourselves have recognized it. Each day brings its own needs, its trials and temptations, often from an unexpected quarter, and it is for today alone that we are to ask supply, strength, and deliverance; the morrow will take thought for itself. Mrs. Eddy wonderfully expresses the Master's meaning in her spiritual interpretation of this phrase, "Give us grace for today; feed the famished affections" (Science and Health, p. 17).

As followers of the great Teacher we cannot be too faithful in praying and living the prayer which expresses our common brotherhood and dependence on God as "our Father." In like manner let us be obedient to the "duty" to which we are called by Sections 4 and 6 of Article VIII of the Church Manual. It is in our consistent performance of this duty, in daily praying, watching, and working for the overcoming of evil, that we shall find our prayers answered, and not only our deliverance accomplished, but that of all mankind. This deliverance will be not only from sickness and sin, but from all sorrow and oppression.

Archibald McLellan.

Children and Truth

St. John's second epistle is very remarkable in that its chief appeal is made in the name of truth, and we have been accustomed to think of him as the great apostle of love. As we look into this message more deeply, however, we discover that without truth there can be no real sense of love; and without love, truth would be practically unknown. While this epistle is addressed to "the elect lady and her children," it vitally concerns all of us, and should be earnestly pondered, not only by parents whose children are being instructed in Christian Science, but by the Sunday school teachers whose duty it is to assist in laying those spiritual foundations which bespeak strong and beautiful characters.

Here it may be said that from the Christian Science viewpoint the truth can never be known or demonstrated in the Christ-way until spiritual reality is apprehended and in some measure demonstrated. Even in their school work children have to learn that the physical senses do not report the truth, and that the evidence presented through these senses needs to be corrected by as much scientific understanding as has been gathered on the human plane. They need to be reminded that although the physical evidence seems to persist and to testify to the opposite, the sun is stationary while the earth is moving with tremendous rapidity through space.

This, however, is merely the starting point for further discoveries along the same line, but as these discoveries have not yet passed the barriers of material belief, it remains for Christian Science to teach the child the difference between truth and error, and to do this in such a way that demonstration will be constantly made, even by the youngest child. The child taught in Christian Science soon learns the truth about life, and knows that life spiritually understood is inseparable from goodness; and, what is more, that in accordance with Jesus' teachings life is unending. A little boy whose parents were only slightly interested in Christian Science was passing through what seemed severe physical suffering; but the child had grasped enough of the truth to say with unshaken firmness, in the very face of this false evidence, "I know that God is my life;" and this clear conviction made the work easy for the practitioner.

Here it must be remembered, however, that while children learn very readily the beautiful and inspiring statements of truth given in our text-book and in Mrs. Eddy's other writings, as well as the sacred sayings of the Master, they need to be taught what it means to live the truth in thought, word, and deed, so that it is built up into the very fiber of their human consciousness, for this means health, happiness, and harmony for the little ones throughout the years. On page 237 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy says, "Children should be taught the Truth-cure, Christian Science, among their first lessons." To this she adds: "To prevent the experience of error and its sufferings, keep out of the minds of your children either sinful or diseased thoughts."

Perhaps the little ones, because of their susceptibility to outside impressions, need to be instructed more than adults against the many guises which untruth or error is apt to assume. For example, the tendency to exaggerate in one's statements is so very prevalent that people forget how misleading it is, and that this tendency really obscures one's sense of the perfect standard of truth which is divine Principle. A child can readily be shown how impossible it would be for one to be an artist if he were to lose sight of exactness and right proportion in all his work, and to know that every student of art claims to have truth as his model. The Christian Scientist, however, cannot rest content with any material model, no matter how symmetrical it may appear, but must look beyond it to the spiritual idea,—the idea of Life, Truth, and Love taught and demonstrated by Christ Jesus.

Digitized by Google

We must never forget that if we lose sight of the truth in what we think, say, and do, our loss will be very great; and St. John evidently had this in mind when he said in his letter to the elect lady, "Look to yourselves, that we lose not those things which we have wrought, but that we receive a full reward."

ANNIE M. KNOTT.

✧

Judas

JUDAS, the disciple who "went and hanged himself," finished his record in the gospels; but Judas, the symbol of that which seeks to betray the Christ, will drag along a fictitious existence as long as the fiction of mortality itself continues. Judas represents that mortal concept of man which so thoroughly identifies itself with evil as to become inseparable from it; which magnifies self to such an extent that it will betray the best friend either for a supposed personal advantage or in order to force that friend into conformity with the letter which killeth. Jesus had his Judas because he manifested the Christ. The Judas type seeks to slay the Lamb of God, to prevent the Saviour from saving the world. When Judas feels Jesus ascending unto the Father and thus slipping out of his grasp, he quickly betrays him lest he escape mortal belief altogether.

It is significant that Jesus did not heal Judas, nor did he put any obstruction in the way of Judas' plan, but suffered him to be. In Scripture we read, "Ephraim is joined to idols: let him alone." The Master once said to his disciples, referring to Judas, "Have not I chosen you twelve, and one of you is a devil?" Yet on the night of his betrayal he addressed him as "Friend." Jesus was spiritually alert to Judas' activities, but we have no record that he attempted to reason with him. The Judas mentality does not understand spiritual logic or divine compassion; knowing no compunction, it misinterprets kindness as fear and so is encouraged to retaliate. It never handles its own false beliefs, for this would un-Judas it. The metaphysical interpretation of Judas' treachery as given by Mrs. Eddy on page 47 of Science and Health should be carefully studied, for every aspiring Christian meets Judas at some time, somewhere, trying to block the path and traduce his motives.

The groundwork of the Judas habit of thought is jealousy. This may manifest itself in every relationship of life, in the household, in business, in civil or religious experience, between employer and employee. Mrs. Eddy has written, "When a man lends a helping hand to some noble woman, struggling alone with adversity, his wife should not say, 'It is never well to interfere with your neighbor's business.' A wife is sometimes debarred by a covetous domestic tyrant from giving the ready aid her sympathy and charity would afford" (Science and Health, p. 64). There is a little member of the bird world which illustrates this human proclivity—the pewee, belonging to the family of tyrant fly-catchers, a peevish, petulant specimen whose note is plaintive and suggests both self-will and sympathetic mesmerism. Disobedience to spiritual inspiration makes human beings traitors to Christ, but when they are found out, they plead that they are the injured ones, whereas their whole endeavor has been to hinder the advancement of the Christ. Judas' self-pity tries to enlist human sympathies and to play upon fears outlined by scholastic theology. He may try to soil the righteous man's coat of many colors, his beauty of holiness, but evil intention inevitably reacts upon itself.

Under the cover of popular agitation Judas strikes at his victim in order to leave the impression that the vox populi calls for a culprit. When Judas goes to sea, the "red dragon" becomes a sea monster conspiring against the freedom of man, endeavoring to infect the pure water and the healing currents with lurking mental torpedoes and explosive mines. The rattlesnakes go to sea and become mental submarines. The majestic superdreadnought may not know of the danger, neither does the good human, but since divine Mind can destroy what the carnal mind has invented, it is a sufficient protection for the righteous man to know that God "covereth the bottom of the sea." The searchlight of truth uncovers the ambuscade of Judas, which may assume many disguises, but as the French say, "the more it changes the more it remains the same thing." Eventually all the Judas ingenuity is expended in vain, for the act of betraying another in order to benefit one's self is equivalent to the act of going and hanging one's self.

WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN.

✧

Words of Gratitude

THAT other than Christian Scientists who have been helped by the Christian Science War Relief Committee are appreciative of the brotherly kindness thus manifested is shown in the letters given below.

"In this existence there are circumstances about which no history can ever give full particulars. The great river of life, in which at the present moment thousands of persons are sacrificing themselves in defense of their liberty—of their rights torn from them by force of arms—will turn us aside from secondary affairs, and the agonies suffered by the Belgian babies, combined with the atrocities committed in Servia, will absorb for the greater part the general attention in the histories of the future.

"It is for these reasons that a populace, clothed with a fatal and historically necessary destiny, not yet understood, flees along the Via Crucis. For these miseries our country has given bread, and its citizens are moved to help their Adriatic and Trentino brothers. But in Florence, far from the war zone, well defended from aerial excursions; where commerce takes advantage of the war conditions; where food has soared in its prices; where the rich, not having suffered the throes of desperation, who have never seen their homes crumble and disappear before their eyes, have closed their hearts, their purses, their doors, forgetting in their own good fortune the agony of others.

"In this state of things, animated by saintly Christian love, came efficacious aid—generous—given fraternally by a committee which I would call the committee of brotherly salvation. In the name then of those who weep alone, far from their homes, who today long for their dear ones, interned in concentration camps; for those whose last moments of suffering have been made sweeter and easier; and for the many little ones to whose pale lips a smile was brought, by a pair of new sandals strapped to tired feet, I thank with the heart of an Italian this kind committee and all the good souls who have helped."

Digitized by Google

"I and the beneficiaries in this church thank you and beg you to express our gratitude to the Christian Science War Relief Committee. I have received your letter and later the money order for 100 lire (about $20 in American money). I delayed writing so as to give more satisfactory answers to some of the questions in your letter: (a) How has this small sum been received? I answer: To great poverty no sum seems small. All those who have received help said with one accord, 'It is God who has inspired these kind people.' This has been a consolation to me, partly because that is my own thought on the subject and partly because by quoting this to the benefactors I shall strengthen them in their firm faith that God works through men. This we see even in the smallest things. If we live in union with God, we are His children. (b) How do they mean to spend the money received? The families who have received the kind gift were at a loss to decide for which of their many needs they should provide. No one certainly thought of buying medicines, because in this place people believe in them less than elsewhere.

"In closing this letter of gratitude, allow me to refer to two blessings that have come to two of the families relieved. In one a little grandson fell ill and the doctor pronounced it a case of typhoid fever. The child is a pupil in the fourth class of the Evangelical school. When I went to see him, I found all the family in the utmost despair, thinking the child as good as dead. I spoke boldly of the power of faith and said how absurd it was to think a young boy should have to die. I called to mind the miracles of Jesus and assured them the child would not die. Thanks be to God, he recovered. In another family the head of the house, a soldier at the front, was wounded in the body by a shell. The sisters had not the courage to tell their old mother, though all the town knew about it. I went to tell her, so that her faith might be awakened before she heard the sad news. We all realized the young man would be saved. God has surely restored him to life. Now he is again at the front and is expected home for the winter leave. The light of faith and life has been lacking in the world—hence war and death. But Life triumphs over death."

"I am writing a few lines with a heart overcharged with the deepest gratitude to you and to every individual American brother and sister, for their noble kindness, coupled with such words that we feel ourselves absolutely overwhelmed in these terrible times we are going through at present. Truly, we see and feel the greatest gift of heaven—charity—which kind and loving hearts have stretched out toward their suffering brethren across the waters. Thank you ever and ever so much for the good meal I was able to have last night (sadly needed). I feel quite a different man today. Our hearts and hands are stretched out to one and all for your noble generosity."

Among the Churches

Current Notes

Boston, Mass.—The First Church of Christ, Scientist. Services: 10:45 a.m., 7:30 p.m.; Sunday School, 10:45 a.m.; Wednesday, 7:30 p.m., in the church edifice, Norway, Falmouth, and St. Paul Streets. The church is open to visitors Wednesdays and Fridays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Reading-rooms: Little Building, corner of Tremont and Boylston Streets (fourth floor); open daily, except Sunday and Wednesday, from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., and on Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. International Trust Company Building (second floor), 45 Milk Street, near Devonshire, opposite post-office; open daily, except Sunday, from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Coolidge Corner Building, 1316 Beacon Street, Brookline; open daily, except Sunday, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Zanesville, Ohio.—Plans have been drawn for a handsome church edifice to be erected by First Church of Christ, Scientist, on the old Schultz property, South Seventh Street. This valuable plot of ground, together with the dwelling house, was acquired by this society a year or so ago. The building will be remodeled and made to fit into the new additions and extension planned, and will have a seating capacity of one hundred and sixty to begin with, which can easily be increased to two hundred. It is hoped that it will be ready for occupancy by June 1.—The Times Recorder.

Medicine Hat, Alta., Canada.—In December, 1913, the local adherents organized as a Christian Science Society, and in February, 1914, they moved from Becker Hall to more commodious quarters in I. O. O. F. Hall. At a recent meeting of the members a resolution changing the name to First Church of Christ, Scientist, Medicine Hat, was unanimously passed.—Daily News.

Marion, Ind.—The edifice of First Church of Christ, Scientist, was dedicated Sunday morning, March 18. Ground was broken for the foundation of this building in the fall of 1915 and the first service was held on Oct. 1, 1916.

Admission to Membership in The Mother Church

The next admission of candidates will be June 1, 1917. Application blanks may be obtained by addressing the Clerk of The Mother Church, and should be returned to him on or before Wednesday, May 9, 1917.

An application sent to the Clerk does not constitute the applicant a member. Notice of election will be sent to those who are admitted to membership.

Those who have made application for membership prior to Nov. 3, 1916, and have not received notice of election, may communicate with the Clerk if they so desire, and are especially requested to do so before sending in a second application.

John V. Dittemore, Clerk,
236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

The Lectures

Corpus Christi, Texas (First Church).—Ezra W. Palmer, lecturer; introduced by Mrs. Sara B. Turner, who said in part:—

Since time immemorial there has been an innate longing in the heart of man for a greater knowledge of good, for a higher understanding of the infinite God. As a result, revelations have come to the world from time to time through its great religious reformers. In the year 1866 a New England woman, who from earliest childhood had led a life of prayer and devout consecration to the omnipotent God, received the revelation of the Science of the Christianity which was taught by Jesus the Christ.

Jesus' command to his disciples, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature," was no more imperative than was this command: "As ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand. Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils: freely ye have received, freely give." Now for nearly fifty years this Science has had strong demands made upon it, and has not been found wanting. By the practical application of the rules given us in the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, the sick have been lifted from beds of invalidism, sinners have been reformed, and the sorrowing comforted.—Corpus Christi Times.

Digitized by Google

WOONSOCKET, R. I. (Society).—John W. Doorly, lecturer; introduced by G. Ervin Thompson, who said in part:—

The test of all true religion is in what it does, and the thousands who have identified themselves with the cause of Christian Science have received abundant proof that this religion makes for the betterment of every condition. Many indeed have already been able through its teachings to escape from the belief of a far away God, and have found that He is an ever present help in time of trouble, even to the healing of so-called incurable diseases.

Lectures to be Delivered

[By Members of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.]

CALIFORNIA—Charles I. Ohrenstein:
Alhambra: Superba Theater (note change), 8 p.m., May 10.
Lodi: Lodi Opera House, West Pine Street, between School and Sacramento, 8 p.m., May 15.
Oakland (Third Church): Auditorium Theater, 3 p.m., May 13.
Oakland (joint lecture for business people): Macdonough Theater, 12:15 p.m., May 17.
Pacific Grove: T. A. Work Hall, 8 p.m., May 14.
Richmond: Lincoln School Auditorium, Tenth Street, near Macdonald Avenue, 8 p.m., May 13.
Stockton: The Auditorium, 8 p.m., May 17.
Templeton: High School Building, 8:15 p.m., May 12.

COLORADO—Boulder: George Shaw Cook, Curran Opera House, 3 p.m., May 13.

CONNECTICUT—Danbury: Dr. Francis J. Fluno, Odd Fellows Building, 18 West Street, 8 p.m., May 15.

ENGLAND—London (First Church): John Sidney Braithwaite, Church Edifice, Sloane Terrace, S.W., 3 p.m., May 13.

ILLINOIS—Belvidere: Bicknell Young, Masonic Hall, 3 p.m., May 13.
Chicago (Eleventh Church): Clarence W. Chadwick, Logan Square Auditorium, 3 p.m., May 13, and 8 p.m., May 14.
Chicago Heights: William R. Rathvon, Masonic Temple, 8:15 p.m., May 15.
Clinton: Paul Stark Seeley, The New K Theater, 3:15 p.m., May 13.
Dixon: Bliss Knapp, People's Church, Second Street and Hennepin Avenue, 8 p.m., May 14.
Highland Park: Paul Stark Seeley, Church Edifice, 8 p.m., May 15.
La Grange: Paul Stark Seeley, Church Edifice, Catherine Avenue and Cossitt Boulevard, 8:15 p.m., May 18.
Ottawa: Frank Bell, Gayety Theater, 8 p.m., May 15.
Park Ridge and Edison Park: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Church Edifice, Park Ridge, 8 p.m., May 12.

INDIANA—Argos: Willis F. Gross, Princess Theater, 3 p.m., May 13.
Columbia City: William R. Rathvon, Commercial Club, 8 p.m., May 14.
East Chicago: Paul Stark Seeley, Congregational Church, 145th Street and Magoun Avenue, 8 p.m., May 14.
Goshen: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Jefferson Theater, 3 p.m., May 13.

IOWA—Davenport: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Church Edifice, Kirkwood Boulevard and Grand Avenue, 8:15 p.m., May 14 and 15.
Waterloo: William R. Rathvon, Waterloo Theater, 8 p.m., May 18.

KANSAS—Independence: Ezra W. Palmer, Church Edifice, Eleventh and West Main Streets, 8 p.m., May 14.
Junction City: Ezra W. Palmer, Church Edifice, Fifth and Jefferson Streets, 8 p.m., May 15.

KENTUCKY—Bowling Green: Bicknell Young, Church Edifice, Eleventh and Center Streets, 8 p.m., May 14.

MAINE—Augusta: John Randall Dunn, Church Edifice, Williams Street, 8 p.m., May 18.

MICHIGAN—Charlotte: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Masonic Temple, 8 p.m., May 8.
Fennville: Bliss Knapp, Dreamland Theater, 8 p.m., May 17.
Greenville: Bliss Knapp, Central School Building, 8 p.m., May 18.

MINNESOTA—Minneapolis and St. Paul (joint community lectures), Prof. Hermann S. Hering:
Minneapolis: First Church Edifice, Nicollet Avenue and Twenty-fourth Street, 8 p.m., May 14; Shubert Theater, 12:15 p.m., May 15; Second Church Edifice, Second Avenue South and Eleventh Street, 8 p.m., May 15; Sixth Church Edifice, Summit and Hennepin Avenues, 8 p.m., May 17; Lake Harriet Com. Club, 2718 West Thirty-fourth Street, 8 p.m., May 19; Odd Fellows Hall, Twenty-seventh Avenue and Lake Street, 8 p.m., May 19.
St. Paul: Woodruff Hall, Prior and St. Anthony, Merriam Park, 8 p.m., May 21; St. Paul Auditorium, 8 p.m., May 22.
Stillwater: Virgil O. Strickler, Auditorium, 8:15 p.m., May 17.

MISSOURI—Hannibal: William R. Rathvon, High School Auditorium, Broadway and Eleventh Street, 8 p.m., May 17.
Independence: Ezra W. Palmer, The Maple Theater, West Maple Avenue and Osage Street, 3 p.m., May 13.
St. Joseph (First Church): Bliss Knapp, Church Edifice, Twelfth and Felix Streets, 3 p.m., May 13.

MONTANA—Virgil O. Strickler:
Billings: Church Edifice, Burlington Avenue and Division Street, 8 p.m., May 15.
Helena: Unitarian Church, 3 p.m., May 13.
Livingston: Strand Theater, 8 p.m., May 14.

NEBRASKA—North Platte: Bicknell Young, Masonic Temple, 8:30 p.m., May 10.

NEW JERSEY—Cranford: William W. Porter, Church Edifice, Springfield Avenue and Miln Street, 8:15 p.m., May 15.
East Orange: John Randall Dunn, Woman's Club, Prospect and William Streets, 8:15 p.m., May 14.
Paterson: John Randall Dunn, Church Edifice, Fair and Auburn Streets, 8:15 p.m., May 15.

NEW YORK—Brooklyn (First and Second Churches): Willis F. Gross, Brooklyn Academy of Music, 3 p.m., May 6.
New Rochelle: William W. Porter, Loew's Theater, Main Street, 3:30 p.m., May 13.
New York (First Church): Dr. Walton Hubbard, Church Edifice, Central Park West and Ninety-sixth Street, 8 p.m., May 18.
Nyack: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Church Edifice, 101 South Broadway, 8:15 p.m., May 17.
Richmond Hill, Long Island: William W. Porter, Masonic Temple, Stoothoff Avenue, near Jamaica Avenue, 8 p.m., May 17 and 18.

OHIO—Toledo (Second Church): William R. Rathvon, Keith's Theater, St. Clair Street, near Madison Avenue, 12 to 12:30 p.m., May 12, and Coliseum Theater, Ashland Avenue and West Bancroft Street, 3:30 p.m., May 13.
Xenia: Willis F. Gross, Xenia Opera House, 8:15 p.m., May 10.

PENNSYLVANIA—Norristown: John Randall Dunn, Opera House, 8 p.m., May 13.
Philadelphia (Third Church): John Randall Dunn, Dixon's Grand Opera House, Broad Street, below Montgomery Avenue, 3:30 p.m., May 13.

TENNESSEE—McKenzie: Bicknell Young, Church Edifice, 8 p.m., May 15.

UTAH—Logan: Bliss Knapp, Nibley Hall, 8 p.m., May 10.

WASHINGTON—Seattle (First Church): Bliss Knapp, Coliseum Theater, Fifth and Pike, 12 noon, and Masonic Auditorium, Pine and Harvard, 8 p.m., May 7.

WISCONSIN—Milwaukee (First Church): Frank Bell, Church Edifice, Prospect Avenue and Keene Street, 8:15 p.m., May 17 and 18.
Oshkosh: Virgil O. Strickler, Grand Opera House, 8:15 p.m., May 18.
Ripon: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Municipal Auditorium, 3 p.m., May 13.

Digitized by Google

Testimonies of Healing

Soon after the introduction of Christian Science into Illinois I learned of its teachings through one of Mrs. Eddy's faithful pupils. I saw its spiritual basis and working, its revelation of divine power, and accepted it as the truth of the kingdom. Afterward I visited a practitioner in Chicago and was healed in one treatment of so-called nervous prostration, but took more treatments because of fear.

I went to my sister's home walking as on air, and astonished them all with the change that had taken place. At that time I had what Christian Scientists sometimes speak of as "chemicalization," which took the form of catarrh, and my sister had a new remedy, a snuff, which she wished me to use. Moved by her kindness, and following an old habit, I took a pinch; but before a great while my newly awakened spiritual sense showed me what I had done, and I felt much ashamed that I could not trust God rather than a bit of snuff. That was, however, the last material remedy taken.

During that summer the Congregational Association met in a suburb of the city, where my husband was then preaching in a church of that denomination. I had no policy or theory, but I had seen a great light and wanted every one else to see it too, so in my zeal I uttered truth without wisdom; but I was blessed, and others were also. I had, however, to come down from the mountain and work up, instead of building tabernacles and staying there. Mrs. Eddy says, "Spirit, God, gathers unformed thoughts into their proper channels" (Science and Health, p. 506), and our periodicals are one of these channels.

I would like to relate an experience which I had recently in regard to dealing with the sense of human personality. During my earlier life I had been surrounded by strong personalities, both intellectually and morally, but since coming into Christian Science I had met many who were not very advanced in their scientific experience. Much of their converse related to personalities, human frailties, what they had done in the past and what would be done in the future. Then it came to me to turn aside this stream of personal reference by substituting God's spiritual idea in the place of personal sense and to see the perfect divine idea rather than the defective mortal concept. This proved very profitable spiritually. It came to me as a great light and helped me in my struggles with my own personality. It quite annihilated this offensive sense of personality, and helped me to drop off past experiences and to cease entertaining curiosity for the future, while striving to know that the "eternal now" of the divine life is the only abiding place for us.

The emancipation which Christian Science brings came to me when our country was unfolding and maturing the idea of emancipation which the immortal Lincoln had spoken. Following close in the wake of that great movement came Christian Science, and "the voice of the herald of this new crusade sounded the keynote of universal freedom" (Science and Health, p. 226). In this truth we find the larger sense of freedom.—Martha J. Fonda, Oak Park, Ill.

I can verify the above testimony, but it is only an infinitesimal part of over twenty years' experience, the greatest part of which is the unfoldment of the powers of the spiritual man instead of the healing of any so-called serious mortal ailment. On page 486 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy says, "Earth's preparatory school must be improved to the utmost." In it are laid lines which lead us on throughout eternity.—Jesse L. Fonda.

I greatly desire to express my gratitude to God for the healing truth taught in Christian Science, which changed my life from almost complete hopelessness to one of health and a growing appreciation of God's love for man. While I was in an institution for the care of epileptics,—having suffered from epilepsy for some twenty-six years,—a friend asked me to read the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy. So I read aloud to him every evening after our duties for the day were over, and as a result gradually awoke to find that I was healed; that from the time I started to read Science and Health I had been free from these attacks. This reading was continued for two years or more, at which time I left the institution.

Fear of a return of the attacks came over me a few times afterward, but it was overcome by striving to hold fast to the thought of God's love and omnipotence. About the time I began to read Science and Health I gave up taking medicine, as there had been indications of a complete loss of intelligence, said to be a result of the strong medicine given in such cases and used by me for about two years. It is now over twelve years since this demonstration of the power of divine Love was made for me, and my healing has been permanent. During this time I have also been healed of blood-poisoning, incipient deafness, and other evils. I am beginning to appreciate somewhat the love and labor of our Leader, Mrs. Eddy, in giving this wonderful and practical interpretation of the Scriptures to mankind, bringing the Christ, Truth, nearer and clearer to our understanding.

R. Bruce Needham, Brooklyn, N. Y.

✧

Many blessings have come to me through the study of Christian Science. From girlhood I had bowel disorder and an organic disarrangement which at times caused me untold agony. My eyes also gave me a great deal of trouble. For three years I read Science and Health and studied the Lesson-Sermons in a desultory manner, and considerable help was received. The organic trouble slowly decreased, but one night I awoke in terrible pain. After reading for perhaps half an hour, the pain stopped, and I have never had a return of it since.

At this time I considered myself a Christian Scientist, though I allowed every material demand upon my time and thought to interfere with my search for the truth, and became more and more negligent in my study. My eyes grew worse, and for over a year I wore glasses, not being able to leave them off for an hour without having a terrible headache. About two years ago problems were presented to me which threatened to overwhelm me, and then I found that I was by no means a Christian Scientist, or even a loyal student, and that my understanding of Truth was entirely insufficient.

A practitioner was asked for help, and it came speedily. After a few treatments I laid off my glasses and could see perfectly; there was no return of the headaches, and the bowel difficulty also was overcome. Treatment was continued for nearly a year, and through the practitioner's patient explanations and encouragement the problems were solved. I gained an understanding of the spiritual light that shines through every page of the Bible and our beloved Leader's writings, which have become such treasures to me, and have learned that to "study thoroughly the letter and imbibe the spirit" (Science and Health, p. 495) is the only way to advance in the understanding of Christian Science.

For the physical healing I am indeed thankful, but to me the spiritual uplift is the "pearl of great price." Words cannot express my thankfulness to God for His goodness, and to Christ Jesus the Wayshower. I am also grateful to Mrs. Eddy for her loving counsel and guidance, through which we may follow in the Master's footsteps.

Digitized by Google

NELLE G. AMSBARY, Seattle, Wash.

✧

[Translated from the German]

Gratitude to God for His great goodness impels me to give this testimony. Two years ago my little three year old girl was taken very ill. Although I had been acquainted with Christian Science for quite a while, I yielded to a temporary sense of excitement, and in order to quiet my relatives called in a physician, who stated that it was a serious case of inflammation of the lungs, and prescribed a medicine which he described as a new and especially good remedy. I did not give the child the medicine, however, as in the mean while I had become more quiet and wished to put my trust solely in God, but requested the services of a Christian Science practitioner, who took up treatment at once. At noon the child experienced relief, asked for nourishment, and ate with a good appetite. When on the following day the physician found her entirely well, he was greatly astonished and hardly knew what to say, but in leaving remarked that the newly discovered drug must have had a good effect. I knew without a doubt that it was the truth newly discerned that effected the healing and brought health, but did not have the courage to acknowledge freely to the doctor that I had not given the medicine and that help had come through Christian Science.

Another daughter, eleven years old, suffered from a disease affecting the bones. I instructed the child in Christian Science so far as I understood the subject, and worked for her, with the result that to our great joy the trouble disappeared in a short time, and it has not returned. I would also like to tell of the healing of headaches and of swollen face. Through holding to the truth of God's omnipotence both these troubles, as well as other minor ailments, disappeared in a very short while. I think of Mrs. Eddy, our beloved Leader, with a deep sense of gratitude for having shown us the way to true liberty and peace.

FRAU SIBYLLE HUDELMAIER, Lorch, Württemberg, Germany.

✧

It is five years since I was healed in Christian Science. I had suffered from stomach trouble for twenty years or more, and after losing my wife, and three years later a daughter, I became a physical wreck, and many nights I could not sleep at all. I had one daughter left, who had married and was living in Milwaukee, and she urged me to come to live with her. Thinking that if I gave up business and lived as much as possible in the open air I could regain my health, I accepted her invitation. For the first year I worked in the garden, but there was not much improvement in my condition. Then I got a position to drive a light wagon, still hoping that outdoor life would benefit me.

One afternoon I told my employer that I did not feel well and would like to go home. I took the car, but after riding a few blocks became worse. A nurse who was acquainted with the family was on the car, and she came to my rescue. I had a hemorrhage of the stomach, and was unconscious when taken from the car and carried into a drug store. The nurse telephoned for an ambulance, and I was brought home. The family physician was called and my case diagnosed as a malignant growth of the stomach. He said I would have another hemorrhage, which would mean the end, so I should be watched closely.

About a month previous to this my daughter and I had bought a copy of Science and Health, as we were looking into Christian Science, and I had attended two services with a neighbor. While I was in bed my daughter used to read to me every day from this book, until I asked her why she read to me and still gave me medicine every hour. I said I was tired of being a hypocrite. We then called a Christian Science practitioner, and in three days I was able to get out of bed and sit in a chair. The fifth day after asking for help in Christian Science, I told my daughter I was healed. I had never felt better in my life; instead of things looking gloomy, as they had done for years, it seemed as if the kingdom of heaven had been opened up to me, and I was very happy.

The next day I came downstairs, to the surprise of the family, and two weeks later had my garden planted. My strength kept increasing, and the first of June I started in business for myself. I have never had a sick day since, and I have learned that it does not make any difference whether one works indoors or out, as long as one thinks right. I am indeed grateful for Christian Science, and for all it has done for me and mine.

S. M. NICHOLS, Milwaukee, Wis.

✧

In the fall of 1913 I came into Christian Science for physical healing, having suffered with my head for more than twenty years, although several physicians had treated me. I had just been under the care of a specialist and had undergone two serious operations, besides having numerous hemorrhages and suffering untold agony. On my way to New Orleans to have my head treated, the thought came to me to try Christian Science; so upon my arrival in that city I immediately telephoned to a practitioner and made an appointment with her. I was healed in one treatment, but not having sufficient faith in God, the giver of all good, I let fear creep into my consciousness and had the practitioner treat me three times. Before I had read Science and Health half through inflammatory rheumatism was overcome.

Mrs. Eddy tells us in Science and Health (p. 410) that "every trial of our faith in God makes us stronger," and this has indeed been proven to me, for I have had many trials, both physical and financial, and each one has been met and overcome through my knowledge of this beautiful truth. I am deeply thankful to God, and also grateful to Mrs. Eddy for the numerous blessings received, but more grateful for the peace and joy and happiness, and for the spiritual uplift that has come into my life through the study of the Bible and the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures."

MAUD R. MCGOWAN, New Orleans, La.

✧

When I began the study of Christian Science I was suffering from defective eyesight, which made it impossible for me to read more than a page or two of a book at a time. Before I had read Science and Health half through I found myself able to use my eyes in reading and studying from eight to ten hours a day without any ill effects. This healing has proved permanent, for my eyes have been put to the most severe tests during the past five years, and I have laid aside heavy glasses, which had been worn since I was twelve years old.

This healing was accomplished simply through reading the text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, and it has proved to me conclusively that Christian Science healing does not come through the operation of one human mind over another, as some have surmised, but that it is the simple action of Truth destroying error. I did not begin the study of Christian Science for physical healing, but through a desire to know the truth, and I attribute my instantaneous healing to this fact. If we seek "first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness,"—which I understand to be a knowledge of the truth,—no thought of disease can remain in our consciousness.

Digitized by Google

CLARA PARK, Los Angeles, Cal.

✧

I wish to express my heartfelt gratitude for Christian Science. About eleven years ago I suffered severely from a stomach disorder, spinal trouble, and other complications. Different doctors were tried, but all to no avail. I had practically given up hope of ever being well again, and was discontented and unhappy. Then herbal treatment was resorted to, but with no better results.

At this time a friend asked me to give Christian Science a trial, so the next day I went to the Science church. On returning home I told my wife that the people I saw at church looked so pleasant, and there seemed to be such peace and happiness expressed, that I had decided to try Christian Science. The following day I called on a practitioner and had my first treatment. When I asked what I should eat, I was told to eat anything I wished. This seemed too good to be true, but I decided to test it. Not having had any meat for nine months, I went to a restaurant and ordered some. I slept well that night for the first time in many months, and next morning the bowels acted naturally. From that day, over eleven years ago, I have never taken a drop of medicine. I was also healed of severe kidney trouble.

Words fail me to express my gratitude to God, and my love to Mrs. Eddy for giving us Christian Science, which has indeed made me a new man, for from despair and darkness it has brought me back to happiness and health. My daily prayer is that I may become a Christian Scientist not only in word, but in truth and in deed.

NIELS. PEDERSEN, Sydney, Australia.

I gladly and thankfully bear witness that the above statement is true in every way. From the "valley of the shadow of death" my husband has been brought back to health and happiness through the healing and saving power of Christian Science.—META PEDERSEN.

✧

I am always glad to tell of the great benefits that have come to me through Christian Science. I was one of the so-called skeptics, and am most grateful to know that there is a God, and that His goodness can be and is being demonstrated to many thousands of people every day. I would be guilty of injustice and ingratitude should I fail to express my appreciation and love for Mrs. Eddy and for her untiring efforts in behalf of mankind.

Christian Science found me deep in the "slough of despond." Having been caught in the financial panic of 1893 with large bills payable, bank failures and other contributing causes made it seem impossible that I would ever be able to pay the claims against me. I was tempted to resort to drink, thinking that it might "speed me up" in a business way, or possibly drown my troubles and sorrow, and I was even tempted to transfer the field of action to what then seemed to me the great unknown.

I refused the help offered by my dear sister, who had been a student of Christian Science for some years, even undertaking to prove to her that Christian Science was a farce; but suddenly a great light appeared,—that blessed light of understanding. I began to read Science and Health, and to my amazement was soon on firmer ground financially, mentally, physically, and morally. Anger, hate, jealousy, and revenge, the fruits of despondency, began to leave me; and I shall always be grateful above all things for the mental relief and spiritual uplift. My financial affairs soon got into better shape, and in due time all my debts were paid without loss to my creditors. Again I was a free man, with opportunity and expectancy in a large degree before me, thanks to Christian Science.

CHARLES H. MEEKER, Denver, Col.

✧

I am deeply grateful for the healing which I have experienced in Christian Science. After many years of suffering from severe headaches and other ailments, I had Christian Science treatment and was healed. I now enjoy perfect health and can hardly realize all that this healing truth has done for me and mine. It has brought about a complete change in my thinking and living. I am deeply thankful for Science and Health, which is indeed a "Key to the Scriptures," because it helps us to understand what the Master meant when he said, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—ANNA S. DOROFF, New Haven, Conn.

✧

For many years I have been the recipient of the priceless benefits that come through Christian Science, to which I turned for physical healing when after much inquiry I found its logic reasonable, in fact inescapable. While a student of medicine I was suddenly afflicted with a dreadful disease. My case was placed in the hands of a reputable physician, but after several weeks' treatment he held out only meager hopes of permanent recovery. I was mentally despondent and had often contemplated self-destruction, when my attention was called to Christian Science. Finally, being convinced that it offered some real hope for me, I dismissed the doctor and engaged a Christian Science practitioner.

From that day my whole experience began to change, and the immediate results were no less than wonderful. I was like a bird out of its cage,—light hearted, joyous, free. My hope was immeasurable, whereas before only darkness, pain, and despair were my lot; also, I was steadily improving physically. For the first time in my life I had an inclination to study the Bible, and for the first time I found its words harmonizing with reason. I read the Bible and Science and Health daily, and soon began to gain an understanding of God as Spirit, Love, infinite Mind, Principle, and of man made in His likeness. After several weeks I was greatly improved in every way, and undertook to complete my healing without the practitioner's help. Then began in earnest the struggle with old challenging beliefs, medical theories, and the like; but one and all of these gave way before the spiritual enlightenment I was gaining.

My final healing was slow, but the time and efforts put forth to obtain it have enriched me spiritually, morally, and physically far beyond my highest hopes. During this period of work and study I was healed of fistula, bowel disorder, kidney and bladder trouble, abscess, corns, bunions, burns, bronchitis, influenza, and other troubles, some of these discords being overcome instantaneously or within a few hours. Morally the benefits are even greater, for from being a wretched, evil thinking man of the world I was lifted to a plane of thought where former things were repellent, obnoxious, and finally passed completely out of my life. During this process I was healed of the tobacco habit and of the social drink habit, although I took no treatment for the error in either case.

Digitized by Google

In common with the great majority of Christian Scientists I can unhesitatingly say that these many and great benefits wane in comparison with the treasure of spiritual enlightenment which Christian Science has brought and continues to bring to my consciousness. To have gained a measure of knowledge of God as He is; to have His abiding presence; to know of His constant care and gentle Mother-love, always available in storm or shine, always guiding and guarding, never forsaking or inflicting; a God "who forgiveth all thine iniquities, who healeth all thy diseases," —this is riches without measure. For having brought me to know such a God Christian Science has my heartfelt gratitude, and its Discoverer and Founder, Mrs. Eddy, my constant loyalty and unstinted praise.

W. M. McCauley, Kansas City, Mo.

✧

[Translated from the French]

I am profoundly grateful to Christian Science for all the physical and moral benefits received through its ministrations. As a result of convulsions at the age of sixteen months, my daughter was left with one leg paralyzed and much shorter than the other. The doctors whom I consulted could do nothing to improve this condition, but rather impressed upon me the fact that it would grow worse, and that there was a danger of meningitis setting in. When the child was five years old I heard of Christian Science, and was told that she could be healed. Treatment was given, and although the healing was slow, my little girl is today completely restored. The leg is of normal length, and she walks with ease. It makes me feel very happy to be able to trust my child to God, knowing that He will lead her into the way of truth.

As for myself, I was in a state of depression and of almost constant fear. When it was explained to me that this condition was not according to God's will, and that through realizing man's divine heritage it would be taken care of, I felt sure that I had come upon the truth. Every day I strive to realize that divine Love is the only cause and the only creator, and a sense of peace and joy has come into my life which formerly was unknown to me. I cannot adequately express my gratitude to Christian Science.

Mme. A. Le Blévennec, Paris, France.

✧

I am indeed most grateful for all that Christian Science has done for me. A few years ago I was suffering from the effects of premature childbirth, which was followed by blood-poisoning, and the physicians said that only an immediate operation could possibly save my life. In desperation and intense suffering I consented to try Christian Science. A practitioner was summoned, and almost at once I fell into a natural sleep, to awaken a few hours later refreshed and greatly improved. The gain was rapid from the first, and at the end of a week every discordant condition had been corrected. In a short time I was entirely healed and about my household duties.

This was such a wonderful proof of the omnipotence and omnipresence of God, that both my husband and I began the earnest study of Christian Science, and we have had so many beautiful demonstrations over error of all sorts that our hearts are full of thankfulness to God for His infinite blessings. We are also grateful to Mrs. Eddy, who has pointed out the way so clearly for us. Every day brings blessings in increasing numbers. One day, during a conversation with the practitioner about some other condition to be overcome, I was healed of inaction of the liver and its resulting inharmonious conditions. My gratitude for Christian Science is boundless.—Lucy M. Rawson, Douglas, Ariz.

From Our Exchanges

[Rev. Neville Figgis, D.Litt., in The Church Times]

The higher goods even of human culture will not persist apart from a spiritual ideal; they will cease to be thought of as goods, and their value will decay. Even education—if material success be all—must undergo a like change. . . . If, however, religion be the foundation of enduring culture, culture is no less needful to the catholic church. The final truth may not be with intellectualism; we are not on that ground to despise the intellect, but rather to develop and direct it. Without God human society becomes barren and decays. That does not mean we are to despise human society, but rather to show its value to the man of God—if he would be perfect and entire. Art, if followed on lines of pure naturalism, will lose its dignity and sweetness. We are not on that ground to turn aside in Puritan contempt, but rather to do all we can to elevate artistic motives. So with all human instincts—none of them but may lead astray if pursued apart from God. But none of them but enriches the Christian if done in the right spirit.

[Rev. S. Carlyle Schaeffer in The Advance]

What are the distinctive characteristics of that institution Jesus called "my church"? In other words, which is the church of Christ? It is the efficient church. It is that church which most effectively reproduces the life of God, the spirit of Jesus, in the souls of men. Jesus said: "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." Here is our criterion. If this was the supreme purpose for which Christ came, then it is very clear that the church, whether Congregational, Methodist, Baptist, Christian, or Roman Catholic, or Presbyterian, in a given situation, a given community, that most efficiently takes the dead and dying souls of the men and women of the community in which it finds itself, and fills them with the spirit of Jesus Christ, is the church of Christ.

This being so, every church today is morally and religiously bound to pause and take an inventory of its assets and liabilities. It must define anew its position, else its position will be defined for it. The primary function of the church is to teach fundamental religion.

[New-Church Messenger]

Is there anything that should be more welcome to us than to cultivate the opportunities that are given to know our Lord better, and to adjust ourselves more readily to his requirements? All our unrest is from putting him to one side, and making other interests supreme. Let him have our attention, and his ways be desired by us, our troubles abate, our misgivings vanish into thin air, for there are new claims upon us ever so much more satisfying; there is a far more precious sense of what is worth while in life received. His love is of greatest value. To be actuated by him brings us to the height of our attainments, when his desires are implanted in our minds and his commandments are embodied in our lives.

[The Christian Work]

It is through the self-givings of rich lives that men have come to understand a grace divine. Unmerited favor,—we are all its beneficiaries, even in respect of the boons that have been bestowed through human channels. And the self-giving which makes the sum of human charm and creates the character that cheers our world,—what is it, in any soul, but a faint reflection of that vast self-giving that has stooped to our weakness, the grace that sought and found us?

Digitized by Google

[Zion's Herald]

The call of the church is for modern apostles. In saying this we do not mean to slur over the undoubtedly important distinction that should be made between the status of the original apostles (who had seen the Lord and who enjoyed a unique and plenary gift of inspiration) and even the best and most "apostolic" of present-day Christians. We do not expect a Paul, a Peter, or a John to be reproduced with complete ambassadorial and indoctrinating powers in the twentieth century church. We do mean that the aims and spirit that dominated the wills and lives of the men who are called apostles par excellence are imitable by believers today, and that only by such consecrated and masterful spirits can the churches be led to moral victory, and, incidentally, to material prosperity.

[Rev. Joseph Fort Newton, D.Litt., in The Christian Commonwealth]

Truly, there are few better proofs of the divinity of the religion of Jesus than the fact that it has lived in spite of the partialisms of the church, its spiritual special privilege, and its sectarian snobbery. Happily the gospel is greater than the church. God does not begin to act when we begin to preach, and does not stop when we stop. Ceaselessly His winds are blowing, and His spirit is moving in the hearts of men where no interpreter is, informing conscience, enlarging the mind, and evoking a loftier faith. Today, in a terrible melting pot of tragedy, He is reshaping the church and the world in behalf of the common salvation.

[Prof. John Reid Shannon, Ph.D., in California Christian Advocate]

If we would know that life is worth living, we must live a life that is worth something, do things that are worth doing, give ourselves to some grand purpose. In some way we must so link ourselves to humanity that we shall feel that others are being helped by our living. Jesus teaches that the keys to the kingdom of God are loving service, and that the greatest in God's kingdom are those who render the greatest service. Could there possibly be any nobler ideal than that for the redemption of the race? That is an ideal as sublime and comprehensive as the horizon, and in the midst of which Christians may progress forever without completing it.

[Carl Holliday in The Hibbert Journal]

There is a vast amount of magnificent spiritual energy lying dormant and practically useless in the great college student body of today. That it is not engaged in definite activity may be laid at the door of sticklers for creeds which to thousands of these young men seem untenable and positively unworthy of belief. Religion is a natural thing; theology an invention of man. If ever this youthful religious thought finds a broad and sympathetic leader, the spiritual world may leap forward as it has never done before.

[The Christian Intelligencer]

As we walk by the Spirit and yield instant obedience to the known will of God, we find ourselves coming into fuller possession of the blessings of the gospel. Every added enrichment of the spiritual life is of God, but it comes to us in the pathway of Christian obedience. When faith expresses itself in works, the issue is more and clearer faith. Along the line of practical obedience lies the realized experience of perpetual communion with Christ and all the attendant blessings arising from our indwelling Lord.

[Robert E. Speer in Record of Christian Work]

We need to bring back into our lives the heart of our Lord's noble sense of righteousness, of the thing that ought to be done because it was the thing that, in the will of God, it was right to do.

Special Announcements

From the Publisher of Mrs. Eddy's Works

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE TEXT-BOOK, "SCIENCE AND HEALTH WITH KEY TO THE SCRIPTURES."—See back cover of this periodical for styles of bindings and prices.

CONCORDANCE TO SCIENCE AND HEALTH.—A new edition of this volume is announced, printed from new plates and bound in stiff morocco. Single copy, $5.00; six or more, each $4.50.

CONCORDANCE TO MRS. EDDY'S PUBLISHED WRITINGS OTHER THAN SCIENCE AND HEALTH.—Published only in the India Bible paper edition, with stiff morocco covers; uniform in style with the Concordance to Science and Health. Price, $6.00; six or more, each $5.50.

Announcement is made of the publication of a new edition of the German translation of the Manual of The Mother Church. This edition is printed with alternate pages of English and German, and is uniform in binding and price with the regular cloth-bound edition. If those who have purchased the Manual in German, but without the English pages, wish to exchange them for new copies with both English and German text, without additional charge, they can do so by sending their German copies to the Publisher, postage paid, marking the name and address of the sender plainly on the wrapper. In exchange for all copies so returned the Publisher will send copies of the new edition without charge, postage paid.

Announcement is made of the printing of an edition of Rudimental Divine Science in the American Braille system of type for the blind. Single copy, 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

Orders for the books named above and other works by Mrs. Eddy should be addressed to ALLISON V. STEWART, Falmouth and St. Paul Streets, Boston, Mass.

From the Editor

All manuscripts submitted for publication in the Sentinel, Journal, and Herold, whether articles, poems, or testimonies, and all correspondence relating thereto, should be addressed to the EDITOR, and not to individuals.

From the Publishing Society

The increased cost of leather has necessitated an advance in the prices of the leather bound hymnals, and the following prices became effective May 1, 1917. Delivery charges prepaid. Morocco, pocket edition, one copy $3.50; six copies to one address $19.50; twelve copies to one address $36.00. Morocco, large size, one copy $3.75; six copies to one address $21.00; twelve copies to one address $39.00. Levant, large size, one copy $4.75; six copies to one address $27.00; twelve copies to one address $51.00.

In the previous announcement the price of the large size morocco hymnal was listed by mistake at $3.50 a copy. The listing in the May Journal was incorrect and correction will appear in the June issue.

From the Clerk of The Mother Church

CHURCH TENETS.—The tenets of The First Church of Christ, Scientist,—The Mother Church,—printed on folded sheet for use of the branch Churches of Christ, Scientist, with space for printing their authorized forms of application for membership or extracts from their by-laws, can be had at seventy-five cents a hundred. Orders will not be taken for less than one hundred and postage stamps should not be sent in payment.

Correspondence relative to the tenets or to membership with The Mother Church, should be sent to J. V. DITTEMORE, Clerk, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

From the Church Treasurer

The annual per capita tax of members of The Mother Church is due June 1, but may be paid at any time during the year. The per capita tax of members uniting in November is reckoned from the preceding June, this being the beginning of the church year. Unless otherwise directed by the sender, the full amount of each remittance will be credited for the current year.

Please remit by postal or express money order, bank draft, or check. Currency should be sent by registered letter only.

Please advise promptly of any change in name or address.

Send per capita taxes and contributions to ADAM H. DICKEY, Treasurer, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

Digitized by Google

The Christian Science Journal

Published Monthly

Founded April, 1883, by Mary Baker Eddy, Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, and author of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures."

This monthly magazine is the official organ of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. In addition to articles, editorials, and testimonies not published elsewhere, it contains a complete list of Christian Science practitioners, and a directory of Christian Science Churches, Societies, and Reading Rooms.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $2; six months $1; three months 50 cents. SALE PRICE: Single copy 20 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 15 cents. For Canada add 25 cents for postage. SALE PRICE: Single copy 20 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 17 cents. In all other countries add 65 cents for postage for each annual subscription. SALE PRICE: Single copy 25 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 20 cents.

BOUND VOLUMES: Current and past year, cloth $3.00; half calf or half morocco $3.75. On earlier volumes write for prices.

The Christian Science Quarterly

Published January, April, July, and October

Contains the Lesson-Sermons which are read at the Sunday services throughout the year in all the Christian Science churches. These Lessons, which present citations from the Bible and "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," are valuable for daily study. Also printed in Dutch and German.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION AND SALE: In the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year 50 cents; single copy 15 cents; four copies or more to one address, each 12½ cents. For all other countries one year 60 cents; single copy 18 cents; four copies or more, each 15 cents.

Subscriptions not accepted for less than one year. Subscriptions begin with current quarter unless otherwise designated, and terminate with the last of the month named on wrapper.

The Christian Science Monitor

Published Daily, Except Sundays and Legal Holidays

An international daily newspaper. Adequate news service. The various departments of a modern newspaper. Unique Home Forum page. Entire page of editorials dealing with the vital topics of the day. Contributions to the columns of the MONITOR should be addressed: Editor, THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States (except in the Boston Postal District), Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $5; six months $2.50; three months $1.25; one month 50 cents. In all other countries additional postage at the rate of $3 yearly is required. By carrier through a local news-dealer; one month 60 cents. In the Boston Postal District, by mail, one year $7.20. Quantity rates will be furnished on application.

Der Herold der Christian Science

Published Monthly

A magazine printed in German, which publishes original and translated articles bearing upon Christian Science, also testimonials of healing.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $1; six months 50 cents; three months 25 cents. For other countries, one year $1.25; six months 63 cents; three months 32 cents.

SALE PRICE, DOMESTIC TERRITORY AND CANADA, POSTPAID: Single copy 10 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 8 cents. Foreign rate, single copy 12 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 10 cents.

Bound Volumes in cloth, $2.75 each; half calf or half morocco $3.50 each. Write for list of volumes in stock.

Pamphlets

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS RELIGIOUS PHILOSOPHY. By HON. CLARENCE A. BUSKIRK.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: "THE RESURRECTION AND THE LIFE." By CLARENCE W. CHADWICK.

CAUSATION: VIEWED IN THE LIGHT OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By FREDERICK DIXON. Also printed in Norwegian and Swedish.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING VS. MENTAL SUGGESTION. By FREDERICK DIXON. Reprinted from the Weekly Budget, London, England. Also printed in Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE TRUE CHRISTIANITY. By CLARENCE C. EATON.

"THE SONS OF GOD." By COL. WILLIAM E. FELL.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE REVELATION OF CHRIST. By JOHN W. DOORLY.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE VS. FINITE SENSE. By FRANCIS J. FLUNO, M.D.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE GOSPEL OF FREEDOM. By WILLIS F. GROSS.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE SCIENCE OF SALVATION. By HERMANN S. HERING.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING: SPIRITUAL AND SCIENTIFIC. By PROF. HERMANN S. HERING. Also printed in German.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS CONCERNING CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. Also printed in Dutch, German, and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS ADVANTAGE TO MANKIND. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. A London lecture. Also printed in French.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: MAN'S DOMINION OVER EVIL. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. Also printed in modern Greek, Italian, Norwegian, and Russian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS DIVINE AUTHORITY. By BLISS KNAPP.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE EXPLANATION OF THE IDEAL MAN. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS DISCOVERY AND DEVELOPMENT. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: GOD'S LOVINGKINDNESS PROVED TO MEN. By REV. WILLIAM P. MCKENZIE. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS RESULTS. By WILLIAM R. RATHVON. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE RELIGION OF DIVINE LAW. By JACOB S. SHIELD.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM. By JUDGE CLIFFORD P. SMITH. Also printed in French and German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A RELIGION OF LOVE. By VIRGIL O. STRICKLER. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE NEW BIRTH. By BICKNELL YOUNG. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

THE LAW OF KINDNESS. LAW AND WORK.
"WHAT WENT YE OUT FOR TO SEE?" CONFIDENCE AND SUPPLY.
"THEN THE FULL GRAIN IN THE EAR." BIRTHRIGHT AND DOMINION.
"AWAKE THOU THAT SLEEPEST"
UPWARD FOOTSTEPS. Also printed in Dutch.
FULFILLING THE LAW. Also printed in Danish.
PRAYER AND HEALING. Also printed in French and German.
THE DIVINE NATURE. Also printed in Dutch and Norwegian.
ENVIRONMENT AND OPPORTUNITY. Also printed in French.
THE FATHER'S BUSINESS. Also printed in German and Swedish.
SEEKING AND FINDING. Also printed in Dutch, German, and Swedish.
THE PROVIDENCE OF GOOD. Also printed in French, Spanish, and Swedish.

Other Translated Pamphlets

FAITH AND GENEROSITY. Printed in French-English.
MAN'S UNITY WITH GOD. Printed in German only.
"PEACE ON EARTH." Printed in German only.
PRAYER AND CONFIDENCE. Printed in German. Also in Dutch-English.
MARY BAKER EDDY. By ARTHUR BRISBANE. Printed in German only.
MARY BAKER EDDY: HER PURPOSE AND ACCOMPLISHMENT. By FREDERICK DIXON. Printed in German. Also in French-English.
THE FOUNDER OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By B. O. FLOWER. Printed in German only.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A REASONABLE AND RATIONAL VIEW OF ALL THINGS. By FRANCIS J. FLUNO, M.D. Printed in Dutch-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: HUMANITY'S HELPER. By PROF. HERMANN S. HERING. Printed in Dutch-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE COMFORTER OF PROMISE. By FRANK H. LEONARD. Printed in French-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: DEMONSTRABLE RELIGION. By FRANK H. LEONARD. Printed in Norwegian only.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A RELIGION OF PROGRESS. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Printed in Swedish. Also in French-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS PRINCIPLE AND METHOD. By BICKNELL YOUNG. Printed in Swedish. Also in French-English.

PRICE, POSTPAID: Single copy 5 cents; twelve copies to one address 55 cents; fifty copies $2; one hundred copies $3.50. Orders for above pamphlets may be assorted as desired.

For table of English, German, Swiss, and French money equivalents, see inside front cover page.

Miscellaneous

A Catalogue of Selected Bibles will be furnished upon application, and quantity rates on other items specified below will be found in the current catalogue in The Christian Science Journal.

BIBLES. 01483 x. Clarendon Brevier, heavy-faced, distinct type; Turkey morocco, corresponding in size and binding to pocket edition of Science and Health, $4.75.

01440 x. Brevier, light-faced type; self-pronouncing, Turkey morocco, corresponding in size and binding to pocket edition of Science and Health, $4.50.

01683 x. Large type Bible, 10¾ x 8 inches, bound in Alaska seal. Specially adapted for use of second readers, $12.50.

Black morocco open case to hold pocket edition of Science and Health, Quarterly, and Bible, $1.40.

Two other sizes of open case listed in the current issue of the Journal.

Black morocco closed case with handle and purse on outside, $3.75; without purse, $3.50.

The improved index will be added to any Bible listed in our catalogue for an additional charge of 35 cents. Catalogue No. 23 of selected Bibles will be mailed free upon application.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS ON THE LIFE AND WORK OF MARY BAKER EDDY. 132 pages with index. Paper covered, 15 cents; cloth binding, 85 cents.

THE LIFE OF MARY BAKER EDDY. By Sibyl Wilbur. 424 pages. Cloth, $2. Edition de luxe, $5.

PERSONAL CONTAGION, ALSO WHAT OUR LEADER SAYS. By Mary Baker Eddy. Special pamphlet. Paper cover, 10 cents.

THE MOTHER CHURCH. By Joseph Armstrong. A history of the building of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. Illustrated, 107 pages. Cloth, $1.50.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS LEGAL STATUS. By Judge Clifford P. Smith. 128 pages, paper covered, 10 cents.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HYMNAL. Cloth, $1.15; half morocco, $1.40; full morocco, $3.75; levant, $4.75; pocket edition, size 4⅝ x 6⅝, $3.50.

SHEET MUSIC. Poems written by Mary Baker Eddy and used by special permission, have been set to music as follows: "The Mother's Evening Prayer," 75 cents; "Christ, My Refuge," 75 cents; "Love," 40 cents; Communion Hymn—"Saw Ye My Saviour?" (Johnson), 50 cents; "Blest Christmas Morn," 27 cents; "O'er Waiting Harpstrings of the Mind," 27 cents; "Shepherd, Show Me How to Go," 27 cents; "Saw Ye My Saviour?" (Root), 27 cents. The first three hymns are arranged for high and low voice in the same copy. The last five hymns are published separately in high and low keys. When ordering state key desired.

PHOTOGRAVURE OF MRS. EDDY, printed in three sizes on India paper and mounted on heavy plate paper ready for framing. 8-inch (mount 12 x 16), $1; 12-inch (mount 15 x 20), $2; 16-inch (mount 21 x 29), $3.50.

PICTURE OF THE FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, IN BOSTON, MASS., AND THE PUBLISHING HOUSE. Artist's proof with remarque on Japanese vellum, size 18 x 24 inches, $5; on India paper without remarque, $3. Smaller reproduction, size 11 x 14 inches, on Japanese vellum, $1. Photogravure post-cards of the Church Edifice and Publishing House, 5 cents.

QUARTERLY COVERS in black morocco, $1.30; with purse, $1.50.

ALUMINUM LESSON MARKERS. Set of thirty, with paper shields, 50 cents. Extra paper shields, one hundred, 15 cents.

PRICE LIST OF BIBLE CONCORDANCES AND DICTIONARIES OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE supplied on request. Express charges collect on delivery.

REPRINTS (not printed in English). Two-page leaflets, 14 subjects in French and Swedish; 18 subjects in German. Ten copies to one address, 10 cents.

Remittances should always accompany orders, and be made by check, money order, or exchange on Boston or New York. Currency or coin should not be sent by mail unless registered. Please send no money or business letters to the Editor or Editorial Department.

Send all orders for the works of Mrs. Eddy, with remittance by New York or Boston draft or money order, direct to Allison V. Stewart
For literature listed above address orders and make remittances payable to

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

FALMOUTH AND ST. PAUL STREETS, BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

Digitized by Google

Works on Christian Science

Written by MARY BAKER EDDY, Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science and Author of its Text-book

Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures. In one volume, 700 pages. The original, standard, and only text-book on Christian Science Mind-healing. Cloth, one to eleven copies inclusive (cloth only), each $3.00; twelve or more, each $2.75. Full leather, stiff, beveled boards, gilt edges, same paper as in cloth binding, single copy $4.00; twelve or more, each $3.75. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $5.00; twelve or more, each $4.75. Levant, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, round corners, gilt edges, silk sewed, heavy Oxford India Bible paper (wide margins, large-sized book) single copy $6.00; twelve or more, each $5.75.

LARGE TYPE EDITION. Designed especially for the use of first readers. Large type (18-point) on Oxford India Bible paper, bound in leather. Size 10¾ inches long by 8 inches wide. Single copy $7.50, with a discount of 25 cents each when included in an order for twelve or more copies of Science and Health, and in any or all of the different bindings.

GERMAN TRANSLATION. Cloth, one to five copies inclusive, each $3.50; six or more, each $3.25. Pocket edition, printed on Oxford India Bible paper. Morocco, one to five copies inclusive, each $5.50; six or more, each $5.25. Orders for the German translation in lots of six or more may include both bindings.

Orders for Science and Health in lots of twelve or more at quantity prices may include both English and German editions, and different styles of binding.

Miscellaneous Writings. A book of 471 pages, containing articles published in The Christian Science Journal from 1883 to 1896, with revisions and additions. Cloth, single copy $2.25; twelve or more, each $2.00. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $4.00; twelve or more, each $3.75. Levant, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, round corners, gilt edges, silk sewed, Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $5.00; twelve or more, each $4.75. Orders for Miscellaneous Writings in lots of twelve or more may include any or all of the different styles of binding. No discount will be allowed on orders for twelve books which include both Science and Health and Miscellaneous Writings.

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany. A book of 364 pages, containing articles published in The Christian Science Journal and Sentinel, subsequent to the compilation of Miscellaneous Writings, together with historical matter pertaining thereto. Cloth, single copy $2.25; six or more, each $2.00. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $4.00; six or more, each $3.75. Orders for six or more may include the two styles of binding.

Concordance to Science and Health. This work contains about eighty thousand references (more than ten thousand words being indexed), also an index to the Marginal Headings, and a list of the Scriptural Quotations in Science and Health. 611 pages, stiff morocco cover, single copy $5.00; six or more, each $4.50.

Concordance to Mrs. Eddy's Published Writings Other Than Science and Health. It contains 1,103 pages, and is published only in Bible paper edition, with stiff morocco cover. Single copy, $6.00; six or more, each, $5.50.

Christ and Christmas. An illustrated poem. Single copy $3.00; six or more, each $2.50.

Unity of Good and Other Writings. One volume, containing Unity of Good, Rudimental Divine Science, No and Yes, Retrospection and Introspection; uniform in style with the pocket edition of Science and Health. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, heavy Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $3.50; six or more, each $3.25.

Christian Healing and Other Writings. One volume, containing Christian Healing, The People's Idea of God, Pulpit and Press, Christian Science versus Pantheism, Messages of 1900, 1901, 1902; uniform in style with the pocket edition of Science and Health. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, heavy Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $3.50; six or more, each $3.25.

Church Manual. Containing the By-laws of The Mother Church. Cloth, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents. Pocket edition, morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $2.00; six or more, each $1.75.

GERMAN TRANSLATION. Cloth, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Retrospection and Introspection. A biographical sketch of the author; the way she was led to the discovery of Christian Science; its fundamental idea and growth. Library edition, cloth, 95 pages, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Unity of Good. This book lays the axe at the root of error, elucidating and enforcing practical Christian Science, thus affording invaluable directions for all true Scientists. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, 64 pages, single copy 60 cents; six or more, each 45 cents. Pocket edition, leather covers, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Pulpit and Press. A unique work, of importance in the history and to the readers of Christian Science; containing the message or sermon written for the dedicatory service of The Mother Church, January 6, 1895, and scintillations from the press of that occasion. Library edition, cloth, 90 pages, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Rudimental Divine Science. A brief and concise statement of Divine Science, alias Christian Science, in the form of questions and answers. Pebbled cloth covers, gilt top, 17 pages, single copy 32 cents; six or more, each 25 cents. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 35 cents.

PRINTED in the New York point system of type for the use of the blind, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

No and Yes. A brief statement of very important points in Christian Science. Pebbled cloth covers, 46 pages, single copy 32 cents; six or more, each 25 cents. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 55 cents; six or more, each 45 cents.

Messages to The Mother Church. Including in one volume, 94 pages, Christian Science versus Pantheism, and the Messages of 1900, 1901, and 1902. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy $1.50; six or more, each $1.15.

Christian Science versus Pantheism. The Pastor Emeritus' Message delivered at the Communion Season in The Mother Church in Boston, June, 1898. A clear and strong refutation of the charge that Christian Scientists are pantheists. Pebbled cloth covers, 15 pages, single copy 25 cents; six or more, each 20 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1900. Paper covers, deckled edges, 15 pages, single copy 25 cents; six or more, each 20 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1901. Paper covers, deckled edges, 35 pages, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 38 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1902. Paper covers, deckled edges, 20 pages, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 38 cents.

Christian Healing, and The People's Idea of God. Two sermons in one volume, 36 pages. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 55 cents; six or more, each 45 cents.

Christian Healing. A sermon delivered in Boston. Paper covers, 20 pages, single copy 20 cents; six or more, each 17 cents.

The People's Idea of God. A sermon delivered in Boston. Paper covers, 14 pages, single copy 20 cents; six or more, each 17 cents.

Poems. This volume of 79 pages includes all of Mrs. Eddy's Hymns, also her earlier poems which appeared in various publications from forty to sixty years ago. Specially bound. Single copy $1.50; six or more, each $1.25.

Feed My Sheep. Solo. Words by Mary Baker Eddy, music by Lyman F. Brackett. Single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

The foregoing prices cover all charges for express or postage on shipments either domestic or foreign.

Quantity prices are on shipments to one address only, but quantity lots at quantity prices cannot be made up of different books or of different styles of binding. Attention is called, however, to the exception to this rule which is made in the cases of Science and Health, and of Miscellaneous Writings, as given under these titles in this price list.

Address all orders for above works, and make remittance by New York or Boston draft or money order, to

ALLISON V. STEWART, FALMOUTH AND ST. PAUL STS., BOSTON, MASS.

Digitized by Google

WISCONSIN
HISTORICAL LIBRARY

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SENTINEL

"What I say unto you I say unto all-WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX No. 37

Boston, May 12, 1917

Contents of This Number

Items of Interest (Brief Mention of Important Events)		722
Human Need Supplied	E. Mary Ramsay	723
Time and Eternity	Thorwald Siegfried	724
The Sabbath	Laura R. Joslin	724
Kinship with Nature	Ethel Munro Goss	725
"Beside all waters"	Frank A. Updegraff	726
An Incident	S. Winifred Wiley	726
Joy Spiritual	Katherine E. Varga	727
Uplifted Desire (Poem)	Aimee Lundgren	727
Selected Articles		727
Light (Poem)	Edith L. Perkins	729
Editorial
The Essence of Democracy		730
Letting God Outline		730
Rules and Their Application		731
Among the Churches (Current Notes)
Great Falls, Mont.		731
Kansas City, Mo.		731
Louisville, Ky.		732
The Lectures
Lakewood, Ohio		732
Mankato, Minn.		732
Harrogate, England		732
Testimonies of Healing		734
From Our Exchanges		737

THE·CHRISTIAN·SCIENCE·PUBLISHING·SOCIETY
·FALMOUTH·AND·ST·PAUL·STREETS· ·BOSTON·MASS·U·S·A·

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

(THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE WEEKLY)

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY BY

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

Falmouth and St. Paul Sts., Boston, Mass., U.S.A.

ARCHIBALD McLELLAN
Editor

ANNIE M. KNOTT, WILLIAM D. McCRACKAN
Associate Editors

Subscription Price

Payable in advance

Annual subscription price, postpaid, in the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, $2.00; six months, $1.00; three months, 50 cents. For Canada add 45 cents and for all other countries 95 cents annually for postage. For subscriptions in quantities please refer to page four in THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE JOURNAL.

Subscriptions to the SENTINEL will begin with the current issue unless otherwise specified. The delivery of the periodical will indicate that a remittance has been credited and will be our acknowledgment of the subscription.

Bound Volumes: Current year or two years previous, cloth, $3.25; half calf or half morocco, $4.00. On earlier volumes write for prices.

Terms of Sale

	United States, Mexico, and Cuba	Canada	All Other Countries
Single copy	$ .05	$ .06	$ .07
Four or more copies . .	.03½	.04	.05

Equivalents of United States money

		£	s.	d.	Marks	Francs
$ .60	equals	0	2	6	2.52	3.12
1.15	"	0	4	9	4.85	5.98
1.25	"	0	5	2	5.30	6.50
2.33	"	0	9	7	9.83	12.09
2.38	"	0	9	10	10.05	12.35
2.63	"	0	10	9	11.10	13.65
2.65	"	0	10	10	11.20	13.78
2.70	"	0	11	1	11.40	14.04
2.95	"	0	12	2	12.50	15.34
5.00	"	1	0	7	21.15	26.00
7.50	"	1	10	10	31.73	39.00
8.00	"	1	12	11	33.85	41.60

Make all remittances payable to The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Postage required for remailing this copy: 1 cent domestic and Canada: 2 cents other countries.

Entered at Boston, Mass., post-office as second-class matter.

Items of Interest

Material from the New York subway excavations may be utilized in the construction of artificial fishing banks a few miles off the coast of Long Island, between Rockaway Point and Far Rockaway. The United States Bureau of Fisheries has conferred with a committee of the United Anglers' League, which suggested the project, and the secretary of commerce has obtained the sanction of the War Department. It is proposed to dump material in a stratum one or two feet deep on the sandy bottom, and thus establish an artificial bank which will offer no obstruction to navigation but will provide a rock or gravel area suitable for the development of marine growths. Experiments have shown that such growths are quickly established, that they in turn give shelter to the invertebrates on which various species of local fishes feed, and that the latter assemble on the fishing banks in large numbers.

Siberia is generally believed to present excellent openings for the investment of capital in industrial undertakings. Practically the only industries already established are those that depend on a plentiful supply of cheap raw material, such as spirit distilling, skin curing, flour milling, match making, etc. There is, however, a great wealth of other resources in western Siberia. The growth of industries there has been retarded by the insufficiency and high cost of capital. Foreign investors in Siberia have hitherto been attracted chiefly to mining ventures; but recently representatives of foreign interests have visited Siberia and have investigated the possibilities for the establishment of paper mills, sawmills, leather factories, meat canning factories, agricultural implement works, brick works, iron works, and other industries.

In the extreme southern part of Bulgaria, along the coast of the Ægean Sea, there are great stretches of olive gardens which under proper cultivation would yield, it is claimed, as fine fruit as is grown in Syria. In this particular district almost the same conditions of climate and soil exist as in Syria, the original home of the olive. The finest trees are to be found between Makri and Maroni, where there are about 9400 acres of olive groves, mainly owned by the Bulgarian Government but leased to private individuals. The trees number about 4,050,000, not including 150,000 growing wild in almost inaccessible places. Although Bulgarian olives are small, they have an excellent flavor.

Moscow capitalists are organizing a stock company to provide electric current for the operation of the coal and other mines and the metallurgical and miscellaneous manufacturing industries of southern Russia. A capital of about $12,850,000 is proposed for the beginning of operations. The plan embraces the erection in the Donets coal basin of three electric power stations of 75,000 horse-power capacity each. It is proposed to transmit power from these stations not only to the mines of this region, but also to the industrial towns and villages and to separate industrial plants in the governments surrounding the Donets district.

In deciding the Oregon-California land case the Supreme Court of the United States affirmed the Oregon Federal court's decree enjoining the Southern Pacific Railroad from disposing of timber and minerals on its lands received by Congressional grant. By the same decision the Government won its suit against the Southern Pacific Railroad to regain nearly 2,300,000 acres of Washington and Oregon land worth $30,000,000. The Chamberlain-Ferris law of 1916, forfeiting and divesting the railroad's title to the land granted by Congress in 1866, and providing for Federal sale of the lands, timber, and minerals, was upheld as constitutional. The decision was unanimous.

Siam's teak forests are mainly located on the hillsides in the northern part of the kingdom, some five hundred or more miles from Bangkok. The teak trees are girdled and allowed to stand for several years before being felled, and the logs are then dragged to the nearest stream and floated down, reaching the sawmills at Bangkok, fully seasoned, in about five years from the time of girdling. Teak logging is regulated by the Government, and only trees of 76.5 inches girth may be girdled. Siam's total exports of cut teak of all sorts for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1916, amounted to 47,870 tons, valued at $1,817,390.

The Yunnan Railway, operated by a French company, was constructed during the years 1904 to 1910 at a total cost of about $35,000,000. The total mileage is 531, of which 289 miles are in China. The gage is one meter. The road has been unfortunate in its operation. It runs through a mountainous country with a loose soil and a very heavy rainfall, and delays in traffic have been numerous. At present, however, it is the only modern means of communication with a large rich section of China, and its ultimate success is regarded as reasonably certain.

The new French counterpart of the Leipsic fair has opened again at Lyons, and its success has surpassed expectations. The number of exhibitors this year is 2563, as compared with 1342 in 1916, and these are of many nationalities, France being represented by 2169, England by 43, America by 25, Italy by 105, Switzerland by 163, Spain by 29, Holland by 8, Russia by 4, Sweden by 1, Belgium by 3, China by 2, Japan by 3, Portugal by 5, and Mexico by 3. The exhibition occupies an area of 33,000 square meters.

Lake traffic from the port of Chicago got under way April 23, when a fleet of freighters carrying about four and a half million bushels of grain, much of it wheat, started north from the port of Chicago for the mills of the East. Although the lakes had been opened formally to navigation for a week, the ships waited until word had been received that the ice was going out of the Straits of Mackinac.

Under the Sherman antitrust law, the Federal grand jury has indicted twenty-one coal corporations and eighteen officials charged with conspiring to raise the price of bunker coal. On approximately two million tons annually for three years a minimum price of $5.10 a ton was fixed, according to Federal attorneys, as compared with $3.80 a ton before that period, the difference totaling $7,800,000.

The annual consumption of all classes of paper and paper products in Peru is valued at approximately $700,000, of which about $625,000 worth is imported and $75,000 worth manufactured in the country. Peru has only one paper mill, located near Lima, which has a daily output of from 2000 to 2400 pounds of rough packing paper, which is sold as fast as it comes from the mill.

Nearly seven thousand men are working on the Government railroad being built by the Alaskan Engineering Commission. The railroad passes through an extensive agricultural country, and more than five hundred homesteaders are now developing that region as it was never possible to develop it before the coming of the railroad.

Figures on the Southern cotton manufacturing industry, compiled by the Manufacturers' Record, show continued progress in its development during the first quarter of 1917. A total of 161,512 spindles and 4382 looms was announced for eighteen different companies, the estimated investment being $4,037,800.

One of the most modern brewery plants of the West, valued at $175,000, operated in Oregon prior to prohibition, is to be used as a huge milk plant and condensery by a company organized through the consolidation of the two largest creameries in Oregon.

That the Victor Talking Machine Company cannot fix prices and refuse actual sale of its patented machines, was decided by the United States Supreme Court, when it refused to grant an injunction against a company alleged by the Victor company to have infringed patent rights.

Interest appears to be growing in the proposal to save the sand dunes of Indiana by making a national park of them. Several meetings have been held recently in connection with a big pageant which it is planned to give this spring.

It is officially estimated that the crude sugar output of the several producing companies of Formosa for the season ending in May, 1917, will be 814,625,000 pounds, nearly twice as much as that of last year.

A statement of egg collections made by the United States Bureau of Fisheries for the present fiscal year up to April 1, 1917, shows a total of 4,760,157,325.

In the authorized savings banks of Norway the deposits at the end of the year 1915 totaled $193,907,000.

The National Agricultural Society of Brazil estimates the Bahia cacao crop at nearly one million bags.

The total exports of Guatemala in 1916 amounted to $10,637,886, and the imports to $8,539,294.

Last year Iowa spent $14,337,056 on roads and bridges.

The crop of rice gathered in Japan in 1916 was 298,466,706 bushels.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

"What I say unto you, I say unto all, WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX May 12, 1917 No. 37

Human Need Supplied

E. MARY RAMSAY

"DIVINE Love always has met and always will meet every human need." On reading and pondering over this beautiful statement of Science and Health (p. 494) the beginner in Christian Science is sometimes puzzled to know how this can be, since he is also told that Spirit can take no cognizance of matter. Both the Old and the New Testaments contain striking stories showing God's nearness to His children and the tender protection with which He surrounds them, but the modus operandi, the way in which divine Love acts, may seem obscure. "How," the beginner asks, "were Elijah and the widow fed, if God knew nothing of the famine? How was Peter delivered from prison and Paul from shipwreck, if their needs and surroundings were unknown?"

Perhaps the following imaginary episode may be useful as an illustration: Bedtime has come, and nurse takes her little charge up to the nursery. She undresses and bathes the boy, tucks him into his comfortable bed, and after setting the room in order, sits down beside the fire with her knitting and croons a little hymn or lullaby. The flickering firelight half reveals her comfortable form, the pictures on the walls, and the other pleasant, familiar objects in the room; everything around the little sleeper speaks of safety, comfort, kindness. But let us suppose that earlier in the day some well meaning person, not realizing the fear she was instilling, had told the child for the first time the story of Red Ridinghood and the wolf. At the moment he eagerly drinks in the tale, giving no indication of the fear he feels, and afterward speaks of the story to no one; but as soon as he falls asleep the tale takes possession of him.

The boy finds himself in a great, dark forest alone. What are those bright, shining things glaring at him through the gloom? "It is the wolf, the dreadful wolf that ate up Red Ridinghood's grandmother! and there is no one to save me!" the child cries in his agony. At this point nurse becomes aware that the little boy is not sleeping comfortably; he is moaning in his sleep, tossing about and uneasy. At once she rises from her chair, and going to his bed smooths the pillow, arranges the bedclothes, places the child in a more comfortable attitude, and gently kisses his forehead. The sense of love and protection enters the dream, and behold the woodcutter of the fairy story with his axe, or father in his motor car!

Now we ask, "Did the nurse send the woodcutter or the child's father?" No and yes. She knew nothing of the dark wood or of the fierce wolf, and yet it was the love which she expressed, her gentle care, her tender kiss, which saved him,—which changed a dream of danger, fear, and death to a better dream of protection and of life.

No parable can be pressed home in every detail. The Father-Mother God knows nothing of matter, sin, and death, for in the boundless ranges of infinity there is still no room for that which the only creator never created. God's universe is like God, and nothing which does not express His nature has reality, presence, or power. Yet though He knows naught of darkness, doubt, or fear, of sin, sorrow, or shame, it is exactly as if He saw them and saved us from them. When man in his misery and agony turns from material remedies, which can bring no permanent cure, and reaches out though but to a half known God, he becomes conscious of a new experience, of the dawn of a new life, of the embrace of Spirit; and this kiss of Love begins to reveal to him the unreal nature of the evils from which he has been suffering, and to provide the remedy.

St. Paul writes that the time will come when "that Wicked" will be revealed, "whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming." What, we ask, can be consumed by the word of Truth but a lie, a false statement, or what can brightness destroy save darkness? Thus a higher perception of God's nature, a more intimate sense of His fatherly love, changes the dream, destroys some of the density of evil belief, shows us that what appear to be evil people, places, things, are no more real than the dark wood and the fierce wolf of the child's dream, and that consequently they are cured not by dealing with them as realities, but by looking away from them to God, in whom "we live, and move, and have our being."

At first many of us find it very hard to get even a slight consciousness of our unity with God, though theoretically we may fully acknowledge it. The great Teacher said, "No man hath ascended up to heaven, but he that came down from heaven, even the Son of man which is in heaven." This saying seems mysterious, and even incomprehensible, so long as we think of the Master and of ourselves as mere bodily personalities; but as we begin to perceive that the individuality of man is wholly spiritual the mystery vanishes. If any additional proof seem needed that our true nature is spiritual, it can surely be found in the simple fact that we feel happiest, most natural, and most at rest when we are reflecting the qualities of Spirit.

The man who manifests courage, stability, justice, joy, purity, and an all embracing kindness, is necessarily linked with God, the source from which these qualities flow. He is manifesting the nature of God, which is also his own true nature. The qualities which he expresses dwell in the atmosphere of heaven and can know nothing of hell; thus in the degree in which he abides in these qualities, and connects his individuality with them, does he perceive that the Son of man "is in heaven," and tastes for himself that peace which the world can neither give nor take away.

All belief in a material, mortal existence is a false belief, a delusion, a dream, but the particular form which the dream assumes changes as the fashions of the time change, and the outward form which the deliverance assumes necessarily changes in like manner. The drowning man of today, still maintaining, in spite of sense-testimony, that Spirit is the only power, may be picked up and rescued by some great ship propelled by steam, lit by electricity, provided with all the latest inventions of the age, constructed from and fur-

Copyright, 1917, by The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Digitized by Google

nished with products collected from the four quarters of the globe. She bears but little resemblance to that "ark of gopher wood" in which Noah and his family rode the flood in the world's childhood, and yet each is a demonstration of "safety," as present in the definition of ark (Science and Health, p. 581), which is also described as "the understanding of Spirit, destroying belief in matter."

Divine Truth knows nothing of time and change, yet because it is also Love, it is so tender in its operations that it makes ample provision "for every human need."

✧

Time and Eternity

THORWALD SIEGFRIED

TIME is a term used by mortals to express their sense of something to be overcome in experiencing the good they are seeking; but so long as good is conceived of in thought as being material, this sense of resistance is inevitable, for our thought of matter involves the time element at every step. This explains in part the progress of the Christian Science movement, the teachings of which exclude the possibility of matter's existence as real, and accord quite definitely with the declaration of the angel of whom we read in the tenth chapter of Revelation, who had "in his hand a little book open," and who said that "there should be time no longer."

Any one can experience some concept of time's unreality by considering the universal inability to conceive of limits before which there was no time and beyond which it will not continue. This inability is responsible for the general belief which considers eternity to be merely time extended indefinitely. The contradiction involved in this belief is seen when it is considered that eternity is inseparable from infinity, and that time can never become infinite; the mortal concept of day and year is a very definitely measurable one, and it remains measurable and finite, however large the aggregation of days or years, like the units of which the aggregation is composed. As Mrs. Eddy writes on page 468 of Science and Health: "Eternity, not time, expresses the thought of Life, and time is no part of eternity. One ceases in proportion as the other is recognized."

The real reason for the inability of mortals to ascribe external limits to time is that its limitations are internal, are part of itself. Limitation is the very essence of time, and therefore it can seem to continue until, and only until, mortal belief gives place to spiritual understanding. To limit limitation is to destroy it, and to destroy it is to prove that its only existence is and was a hypothetical one. This proof consists in the knowledge that all good is present now, not separated from us by any sense of time or space. Health, wisdom, and substance are present, and are known by spiritualized consciousness; and when by means of true prayer in Christian Science this fact is made plain to one suffering from disease, ignorance, or lack of any kind, the time clock, so to speak, which recorded the beginning and progress of evil in human affairs, is turned back until the whole of the false supposition is obliterated.

Formerly the limits imposed upon a person living on the eastern coast of the United States who desired to speak with another living on the western fringe, consisted of weeks of travel by horses; later these limits were reduced to days of travel by train, and still more recently, to the comparatively few moments necessary to make telephonic connection. The limits previously existent were believed to be material, and the means of overcoming them are generally thought of as material achievements, while in truth the problem and its solution are entirely mental, and the progress made marks the application of intelligence, which is a quality of the divine Mind. Here we may consider the completeness with which Christ Jesus overstepped the belief of time limits, as typified in the memorable conversation relating to his coming crucifixion, in which, as we are told in three of the gospels, Moses and Elijah took part. To Jesus time was a factor to be denied power, to be extinguished by the light of Truth, and to him Moses and Elijah must have been as real as they seemed to those of their own day, in order for him to converse with them and to share this privilege with those of his disciples who were, in a measure at least, prepared for it.

The succession of experiences is often referred to as the source of our sense of time; yet it seems obvious that only material experiences can be so separated and limited that their sequence marks time. Indeed, an abundance of evil incidents may make any day seem a long and wearisome one, whereas a flood of even human beneficence tends to hasten the hours. Hence it is the nature of events, rather than the events themselves, which determines the lagging or the flight of time, and it should not be surprising that as we engage in spiritual thinking and doing we should have less of time and more of eternity in which to think and do. Error cannot condition or impede the action of Truth, neither can it aid in any way. Likewise our sense of time, however abundant, cannot contain or even witness spiritual activity; it is in the eternal now that we live and love and know, and in degree as we reflect God's presence in these divine functions we abolish time by establishing eternity in thought.

✧

The Sabbath

LAURA R. JOSLIN

CHILDREN in Christian Science Sunday schools are taught to love and obey the commandments, because every one feels that an obedient child will become a worthy man or woman. Hence Christian Scientists, whether children or adults, endeavor to be obedient to God's law in every smallest way, and so to serve Him as to become themselves more godlike. The fourth commandment begins with this simple statement: "Remember the sabbath day, to keep it holy," yet even well-meaning people are sometimes puzzled to know just what is intended to be conveyed by this command.

Recently a Christian Scientist was asked: "Why do you consider it wrong to go to places of amusement on Sunday, if you consider these places fit to attend on a week-day? Is not every day a Sabbath in the light of the true law?" The answer was that it may be no more right to attend these places on a week-day than on Sunday, when we consider that only as we rise above all worldliness do we advance toward that perfection which Christ Jesus demanded of his followers; but inasmuch as mankind has not yet reached this point, mortals may be helped to reach it more quickly by keeping one day of the seven free from the business or so-called pleasures of the world.

Our endeavor should be to bring each week-day up to a Sabbath standard, rather than to bring the Sabbath down to a week-day level. In so doing we get closer to God, infinite Mind, as it was intended we should do when the day was called "the sabbath of the Lord thy God." On page 517 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy says: "Man is not made to till the soil. His birthright is dominion, not subjection." This seems to imply that man's true activity is not that of mere physical labor, but is mental and spiritual.

It also seemed to the one who endeavored to answer the foregoing question, that the Sabbath is intended as a foretaste of heaven, which would be a state of mind free from worldly cares or worldly amusements, when communion with God would fit man for perfect spiritual activity. The Sabbath gives an opportunity to fill our consciousness, the reservoir of human thought, with a better understanding of God's law, that we may have ample resources from which to draw for the week's demands, for when our days are so filled with material problems our time for Bible study is apt to be limited. When we fail to use the Sabbath for more consecrated thought, we are simply robbing ourselves of precious moments, all of which are needed that we may lay up "treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal."

Digitized by Google

As we more truly obey God's law, we become more humble, more gentle, more tender and loving, and these qualities of Mind bring healing to ourselves and to others. We draw closer to God through more consecrated living, enhanced by Sabbaths devoted to Truth and Love. In the prophecy of Isaiah we read: "If thou turn away thy foot from the sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on my holy day; and call the sabbath a delight, the holy of the Lord, honorable; and shalt honor him, not doing thine own ways, or finding thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words: then shalt thou delight thyself in the Lord; and I will cause thee to ride upon the high places of the earth, and feed thee with the heritage of Jacob thy father: for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it."

The true Christian Scientist looks forward to the Sabbath as a time when he may devote himself to the study of the word of Truth. The Pilgrim Fathers were most devout in their observance of the Sabbath, and who shall say it was not this very devotion which enabled them to cross the sea in safety and to found and maintain that wonderful colony in Massachusetts, the very state chosen by one of their descendants for the location of The Mother Church? These people fled from their native land in order to find a place where they could worship God in freedom. The Mother Church was established in Boston by Mrs. Eddy, under divine guidance, as the source from which should flow the truth which makes men free, thus to perpetuate the purpose of the founders of our nation.

The desire to obtain the blessings of health and holiness induces Christian Scientists at least to endeavor to make every day a Sabbath; that is, to make every day more consecrated, for in this way alone can we realize God's omnipresence and omnipotence. As we set the standard of our Sabbath higher, it follows that the working days will yield higher results, as must always be the result of a "closer walk with God."

Kinship with Nature

ETHEL MUNRO GOSS

We had walked far into the cool green depths of the woods, where all around us rose cathedral pillars of straight dark trees. The ground at our feet was carpeted with ferns exquisite in form and shading; the only sound was the low note of a dove, and over all was the calm serenity of nature's own exceeding peace.

The object of our quest was the pink lady's-slipper, mysterious, shy, not to be approached noisily or picked hastily; and as we left the dim trail and came out to an open swamp there was a clump of these wild flowers, flushing a delicate pink against the vivid green of a low hemlock. Such a wave of gratitude and reverence arose to the giver of all good at their wondrous delicacy, there where no man's hand had planted them, that one wondered at the viewpoint of a friend who had said, "I am afraid to love nature; perhaps I am not loving it in the right way."

A certain aspect of religious thought has always disdained the beauties of nature as being material, and has sternly denied itself the pleasures of form, outline, and color as of the earth and as hindering spiritual growth. But the reverence which is aroused in the human heart by the delicate wildlings of field and wood, by the swaying grass of the meadow, the blue mist of the farther hills, or the wide sweep of the starlit sky, is such an element of our human progress that it cannot be ignored. This beauty all around us satisfies a deep need, and typifies the hunger of the real man for "the beauty of holiness."

Were we satisfied only with the external, we would not be aroused to reverence for the unseen. When we know that "the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal," we glimpse behind the external object which awakens our wonder, awe, and praise, an idea of divine Mind. On page 86 of "Miscellaneous Writings" Mrs. Eddy says, "The pleasant sensations of human belief, of form and color, must be spiritualized, until we gain the glorified sense of substance as in the new heaven and earth, the harmony of body and Mind." On the next page we read: "Let us say of the beauties of the sensuous universe: 'I love your promise; and shall know, some time, the spiritual reality and substance of form, light, and color, of what I now through you discern dimly; and knowing this, I shall be satisfied.'"

Jesus ever drew his followers' attention to the simple outdoor things, the mustard seed, the vine, the sower, the sparrow, and the lilies of the field. In the latter especially he tried to convey to his hearers that behind the color and form of that exquisite eastern lily was law, order, Principle, so that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed as one of them. Human invention may plan many things, but it can only imitate the fragile veins of a lily, behind whose beauty, which is temporal, lies the rhythm of the universe, which is eternal. And how the psalmist lifted up his heart to God in the silence of the hills, and what reverence for God's handiwork he has left us in those songs which have held the hearts of men for centuries! The peace of quiet meadows, the unutterable majesty of the splendid stars, aroused him to such reverence and rejoicing that he could sing, "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament showeth his handiwork."

In the account of creation we read, "And the earth was without form, and void . . . And God said, Let there be light: and there was light." We are then told of Mind's ideas expressing form and identity, showing that form must be mental; but mortal mind has given material names to its own concepts and called them both evil and good. Mrs. Eddy says, "Thought will finally be understood and seen in all form, substance, and color, but without material accompaniments" (Science and Health, p. 310).

One of the human footsteps leading up to this mental state begins by appreciating beauty as an expression of Truth. The straight, slim poplar with slender, golden leaves quivering in the sunlight; the elm with its graceful curves and its showers of velvety green; the comfortable gray apple tree, gnarled and sturdy, but bearing such a wealth of pink loveliness,—each in an individual way expresses the beauty of Mind's ideas. Who can describe the wonder of a summer night when the glittering band of the Milky Way sweeps across the heavens; when, low hung in the south, Scorpio gleams; and when through the starry host the eye travels from tawny Arcturus to the glittering blue of Vega, or to the never changing form of Ursa Major! No wonder Emerson speaks of being in "the perpetual presence of the sublime." Our hearts cry out with unutterable longing to understand beauty aright, to know better the creative Mind and thus find life eternal.

Digitized by Google

So the lover of the sun and wind, who sees God's bounty in the swaying gold of the buttercups as well as in the glory of the stars, must express this love and appreciation in spiritual activity. A noted psychologist has said that the emotion aroused by beautiful music is harmful unless expressed in some form of right action, and we know that unless we put into practice what we learn from reading or study, we lose what we have; so mere emotional ecstasy over the beauties of nature will degenerate into mere sensuous enjoyment of form and color. But he who is enriched by the spiritual experience of appreciating the beauties of the universe must needs express it in the refining of all human relationships by more tenderness, understanding, sympathy, and so can say with the psalmist, "Out of Zion, the perfection of beauty, God hath shined."

✧

"Beside all waters"

FRANK A. UPDEGRAFF

Over two years ago a meeting was held in one of the local branch Christian Science churches of a western city for the purpose of bringing out greater activity in the distribution of Christian Science literature. As the writer, a former railroad employee, heard of the various channels proposed by others present at that meeting, these words of our Leader came to him: "Millions of unprejudiced minds—simple seekers for Truth, weary wanderers, athirst in the desert—are waiting and watching for rest and drink" (Science and Health, p. 570). Then as he thought of the millions of people traveling from place to place seeking rest, a great opportunity for supplying their need presented itself,—that of placing Christian Science literature in the observation library cars which are operated over the various railroads.

This thought was given out to those present at the meeting with the following result, which may be both interesting and helpful to others in the field. A number of men volunteered to serve on a committee which was organized to handle this problem, and the railroads were asked for permission to place The Christian Science Monitor in their observation library cars, the subscriptions for the paper to be furnished free by the joint distribution committee. Some of the railroads accepted the paper without any apparent resistance, while others hesitated, and a few at first declined absolutely, but all lines operating observation library cars out of the city finally agreed, so that today every regular car is being supplied with a copy of the Monitor, making altogether twenty-three copies furnished daily, including the one supplied the Railway Young Men's Christian Association reading-rooms.

In the development of this activity the way has opened to place The Christian Science Monitor on other trains throughout the field. For example, through the cooperation of Christian Scientists in other cities trains returning from those points are being supplied with the paper. The Rock Island and Santa Fé lines, in addition to granting permission to place the Monitor on certain trains out of the city referred to, threw open their entire systems, extending from Chicago to California; and the Union Pacific not only opened its entire system from Omaha and Kansas City to Salt Lake City, but also its connecting lines from Chicago to the Pacific coast. More recently the Wabash and Chicago-Great Western lines have granted permission to have the Monitor placed in all observation library cars in their trains, as has the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern between St. Louis and Cincinnati.

As soon as these lines gave permission to have the Monitor placed in their cars, the joint distribution committee in the above mentioned city communicated the information to the distribution committees at various important points along the lines, and through the cooperation of these committees the way has been opened for more than one hundred copies of the Monitor to be supplied daily to the observation library cars operating throughout the West. Since this activity began, some of the lines have of their own accord and at their own expense supplied their library cars with the Journal and the Sentinel in leather covers.

There is still a great portion of the field east of the Mississippi River that has only just begun to be handled. A recent experience which has been brought to the attention of the writer will serve as a practical illustration of how every Christian Scientist may help to "spread undivided the Science that operates unspent" (The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany, p. 353), and to give, as Mrs. Eddy also says, "a cup of cold water in Christ's name" to many a weary wanderer "athirst in the desert" (Science and Health, p. 570).

Not long ago a Christian Scientist traveling from a western city to Cincinnati, Ohio, failed to find a copy of the Monitor in the library car of either the Wabash or the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern Railroad over which he traveled. He brought this fact to the attention of the general passenger agent of each line by letter, and besides giving some very appropriate information concerning the Monitor, suggested the advisability of having it in their library cars, and told them how it might be obtained. The seed fell into good ground and brought forth much fruit. Eight copies of the Monitor are now being furnished by the distribution committee in Cincinnati for as many Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern trains daily, and the way was opened for a like number to be supplied to library cars operating over the Wabash system. Here we may recall with profit the words in the prophecy of Isaiah: "Blessed are ye that sow beside all waters."

✧

An Incident

S. WINIFRED WILEY

One day as the writer was quietly trying to work out in Christian Science a seemingly difficult problem, her gaze was lifted to a picture of Jesus in the Garden of Gethsemane; but instead of the beautiful and inspiring subject, there stared back at her the reflection of her own face in the glass which covered the picture. Rather impatiently she said, "Oh, I do not want to see you!" and immediately moved her chair a trifle. On again glancing toward the picture, instead of the offending image of the mortal self she saw plainly reflected from the opposite wall the words of our dear Leader, "Beloved Christian Scientists, keep your minds so filled with Truth and Love, that sin, disease, and death cannot enter them" (Miscellany, p. 210).

The lesson was plain. Although she had been sincerely seeking Truth, there yet remained enough of material selfhood, with its hopes and fears, to hide the clear radiance of spiritual vision. Was not that after all the whole of the problem, no matter what its seeming form,—to get rid of self? And with the slight effort in that direction the way was revealed, even the filling of one's thought with Truth and Love. Perhaps we do not always notice the word "filled," and think that if a fair proportion of our time and thought be given to our studies, then all will be well; whereas Mrs. Eddy says: "Divine Mind rightly demands man's entire obedience, affection, and strength. No reservation is made for any lesser loyalty" (Science and Health, p. 183).

The incident, though slight in itself, served to deepen the sense of consecration and to spur the student on to more valiant efforts toward self-abnegation as a practical proof of the gratitude felt for the innumerable blessings which the study of Christian Science has brought into her experience. Truly through this experience was fulfilled the psalmist's realization, expressed in these words: "He sent from above, he took me, he drew me out of many waters."

Digitized by Google

Joy Spiritual

KATHERINE E. VARGA

RECENTLY a student of Christian Science had spent what seemed a very lonely day. From early morning she had felt depressed with a sense of being apart from all the finest and best that was in the world. Because she was living in a rather isolated place, mortal mind argued, was the reason for this feeling; and it further said it was natural that she should feel the need of good music, the best in drama and art, and that she should be unhappy when deprived of this privilege. The following thought, too, held no small place in the unhappy musings: If there were only a Christian Science reading-room near, where she might go and read, what rapid progress would be made in gaining an understanding of Science!

Mortal mind argued so subtly that the young Scientist was lured into forgetting the Father's presence, then her books; also mental work, or prayer, as we come to know it in Christian Science, was neglected almost the entire day. By evening she was thoroughly miserable, and as she returned from a walk,—which had been miserable too, for her thought had been full of bitterness,—her eyes were on the ground, both literally and figuratively, and the beauty of the surrounding country was lost to her. When home was reached and she entered her room, the tears were very near the surface. For a moment she stood still, and then, realizing that she must turn her face to the Father, she began the work which had been so long delayed.

Instantly came this thought, so clearly defined that it almost seemed as if the words were spoken audibly: If you admit that you are lonely, you are virtually denying God, for the Bible says, "In thy presence is fulness of joy," and God is ever present. With this thought came the remembrance of many happy hours spent since coming into Christian Science, when she had been so uplifted in the knowledge of God as all-presence and all-power, that all the material joys she had known seemed as nothing in comparison. Then also came a fuller understanding of the fact that since God is unchanging, the same at all times and under all conditions, our joy can never be wavering if it is founded on the knowledge of divine Truth. Mrs. Eddy has expressed this so truly in these words on page 298 of Science and Health: "When the real is attained, which is announced by Science, joy is no longer a trembler, nor is hope a cheat."

[Written for the Sentinel]

Uplifted Desire

AIMEE LUNDGREN

INFINITE and only One, existing
In eternal harmony,
Grant us grace and strength in lifting
Fainting hearts and hands to Thee;
Catching truer, clearer glimpses
Of Thy pure reality.
May the knowledge that redeems us
Our unfailing refuge be.

Selected Articles

[From the Brighton and Hove Society and Hove (England) Gazette]

In the year 1898, following the formal declaration of war between the United States and Spain, the Daily Chronicle published a poem entitled "Greeting from England." This poem came to Mrs. Eddy's attention and was made the occasion by her for a prophetic utterance in reply to the sentiments therein expressed. Her reply, entitled "The United States to Great Britain," was published in the Boston Herald of May 15, 1898, and with the poem to which it was the reply it appeared in other publications. We are glad to republish both of these poems in a supreme moment in the history of the English-speaking world.

[Robert S. Ross in The Express, Buffalo, N. Y.]

The Express published a letter in which the following statement appeared: "I referred to the so-called Christian Science, which denies that Christ saves any one and reduces his claims to mere ridicule." Such a conclusion could never have been arrived at by studying the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy. On page 497 of this book will be found the following passage: "We acknowledge Jesus' atonement as the evidence of divine, efficacious Love, unfolding man's unity with God through Christ Jesus the Wayshower; and we acknowledge that man is saved through Christ, through Truth, Life, and Love as demonstrated by the Galilean Prophet in healing the sick and overcoming sin and death."

It is probable that this critic, like some other critics, based his conclusions upon the utterances of enemies of Christian Science, instead of himself consulting the text-book, which is of course the authority on the subject.

[W. Stuart Booth in Boulder (Col.) Camera]

While Christian Science most emphatically teaches obedience to the Master's explicit command to heal the sick, voiced in the gospels, it does not omit the injunction regarding baptism, as was inferentially stated recently by a prominent clergyman in your city. The superficial and materialistic tendency of ritualistic worship received many strong rebukes from Christ Jesus, as when he spoke of the Pharisees making clean "the outside of the cup and the platter," while they were still sinful in thought.

Inasmuch as all sin is thought before it is acted, it is plain that baptism unto repentance must be a purification or spiritualization of thought, which is of course not dependent upon any material rite or symbolical ceremony. Hence, on page 35 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy expresses the spiritual idea of baptism in the words, "Our baptism is a purification from all error." She amplifies this somewhat on page 9 of "The People's Idea of God," where we read: "Christian Science has one faith, one Lord, one baptism; and this faith builds on Spirit, not matter; and this baptism is the purification of mind,—not an ablution of the body, but tears of repentance, an overflowing love, washing away the motives for sin; yea, it is love leaving self for God."

It appears somewhat inconsistent for a clergyman to carp at a large body of Christians who are humbly endeavoring to "obey the whole gospel as Christ ordained it," simply because their outward form of worship does not coincide with his scholastic training and belief, when the master Christian said that "the hour cometh, and now is, when the true worshipers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth." At another time he gave the unerring standard by which a man's Christianity may be measured, in the terse statement, "By their fruits ye shall know them." Christian Scientists are willing to be judged by this test, for through the application of the Bible teachings as explained by Christian Science their lives have been made happier, healthier, and holier; they have found that true spiritual baptism brings healing as well as moral and spiritual regeneration.

Digitized by Google

✧

[Rollin E. Smith in Virginia (Minn.) Enterprise]

An evangelist is quoted as saying, "Christian Science denies the deity of Christ and is therefore not Christian." On the contrary, as every one knows who is familiar with the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, Christian Science teaches the divinity of Christ, but differentiates between Jesus the man and the spiritual Christ. On page 332 Mrs. Eddy says: "Jesus was born of Mary. Christ is the true idea voicing good, the divine message from God to men speaking to the human consciousness. The Christ is incorporeal, spiritual,—yea, the divine image and likeness, dispelling the illusions of the senses; the Way, the Truth, and the Life, healing the sick and casting out evils, destroying sin, disease, and death. As Paul says: 'There is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus.' The corporeal man Jesus was human." Then follow these words: "Jesus demonstrated Christ; he proved that Christ is the divine idea of God—the Holy Ghost, or Comforter, revealing the divine Principle, Love, and leading into all truth."

Again the evangelist said, "Christian Science is not a science but a system of mental healing." A better way to put it, perhaps, would be to say that "mental" is part of its system; and whether its opponents regard it as a science or not is of small consequence, in view of the fact that thousands of persons are daily giving evidence of its power to heal. Since Christian Science has as its foundation the teachings of Christ Jesus, it seems a rather difficult task for its opponents to expel it from among the denominations that call themselves Christian. Furthermore, Christian Science is steadily growing, notwithstanding sporadic attacks by evangelists.

✧

[Charles W. J. Tennant in Cambridge (England) Review]

Speaking of Mrs. Eddy, your reviewer says, "She saw some profound truth, though apparently she did not understand it; at any rate, her exposition makes no appeal to reason." If there is one presentation of Christianity which does appeal to reason, it is Christian Science. Nowhere throughout the works of Mrs. Eddy does she deviate one hair's breadth from the premise that God, Spirit, is All-in-all, or, as she states it on page 468 of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," "All is infinite Mind and its infinite manifestation, for God is All-in-all." Every conclusion throughout her writings conforms to this. The truth that Mrs. Eddy perceived through spiritual understanding she was able to demonstrate. She proved her faith by her works. This should silence the suggestion that she did not understand the profound truth she had discovered.

✧

[Avery Coonley in Mount Vernon (Ill.) News]

There are certain respects in which the teachings of Christian Science differ from those of other Christian denominations of the present day, but the most marked difference is in the practice of Christian healing, and in that respect Christian Science follows closely the practice of the followers of Jesus for nearly three centuries. As no two denominations agree in their teachings, however, this difference should not subject Christian Science to attack. Christian Science does not deny the creation of the universe, but it does deny that God created "the world, the flesh, and the devil," since the Bible says that "God saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was very good." This being true, he did not create evil. "The universe" and "matter" are not necessarily synonymous either in or out of the Bible. It may be that Christian Science denies the evangelist's concept of the Holy Spirit, but that is a very different thing from denying the Holy Spirit itself. The beautiful chapter on Marriage in the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, sets forth her teachings on that subject, and the chapters on Creation and Genesis explain God, man, and the universe as understood in Christian Science.

A religion is not harmed by attacks made upon it, particularly when these are based on incorrect statements. No religion is less dependent on what people say about it than Christian Science, for it justifies itself through its practical effects on the lives and health of its adherents; and since it continues to heal sickness and sin, those who know most about it think well of it, whether others approve of their conclusions or not.

✧

[S. T. Downs in Anderson (Ind.) Herald]

In a lecture on "Mind and Faith Cure," the speaker, as reported, coupled Christian Science with other teachings and referred to it as suggestion. This mistake is not uncommon, and with one who has not given time to a careful study of Christian Science teaching, it is not surprising. However, to claim, as did the learned doctor, that Christian Science has not healed organic diseases or produced what he calls "change of tissue," shows that he has not placed himself in a position to be accurately informed in a way that requires but very little investigation. Christian Science has certainly done the very things he said it cannot do.

Christian Science has healed all manner of so-called organic diseases, including heart trouble, cancer, consumption in its last stage, tumor, broken bones, lacerated flesh, and other things of a similar character. In doing these works it has at the same time reformed the sinner, produced a higher standard of citizenship, and supplanted discord and misery with happiness and contentment. In fact, it has done the works the great Wayshower said should "follow them that believe."

The charge that such healing is the practice of suggestion is as old as spiritual healing itself. The unbelieving Jews cried "Beelzebub" at Jesus, and it is interesting that some historians record that the Jews accused him of practising Egyptian magic. They could not comprehend that the works he performed were from the Father, nor that they were the manifestation of fixed spiritual laws which always have been and will be available for those who "believe on him."

Mrs. Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, discerned and gave to the world an understanding of God as Mind. Since God is the only cause and creator, man in His image and likeness is governed only by divine Mind. It is significant, and should be carefully observed, that this government by divine Mind can produce nothing but good,—health and harmony,—and that its laws destroy everything unlike God, good. Suggestion, which is the same as hypnotism and mesmerism, arises from the belief of many minds. It is the belief that man exists separate and apart from God; that man is a separate mental and physical unit, subject to the laws of sin, sickness, and death; that these separate minds influence one another consciously and unconsciously for good or evil. The practice of suggestion can be nothing but the direct opposite of Christian Science, and even the advocates of suggestion acknowledge that its adherents try to use it to produce evil results as well as desirable ones.

Digitized by Google

✧

[W. D. Kilpatrick in Jackson (Mich.) Patriot]

Jesus established Christianity by teaching and preaching love; by healing the sick and casting out sin in proof of his understanding of love. That is what Christian Scientists are today striving to do, and it is what they will continue to do, in an ever increasing degree of perfection, in proportion as their understanding of divine Love increases.

Christian Science, as addressed to humanity, is an emanation of a devout, prayerful, and lifelong study of the Scriptures by its Discoverer and Founder, Mrs. Eddy, and is in strict accord with Bible teachings at all points. It emphasizes more than any other contemporaneous religion the necessity of a knowledge of the Christ. It emphasizes the teachings of the Master to the extent that it finds no excuse in the Bible or elsewhere for an attempt to divorce his command to heal the sick from his command to preach the gospel and cast out sin. It teaches that through the Christ, through the understanding of all that Jesus taught and did, and by following his precepts in our every thought, word, and deed, we shall, as did Jesus, come into a full understanding of our sonship with the Father.

No religion can be Christian that is not scientific, and no religion can be scientific that is not Christian. Every least work of the Master was in exposition of scientific law—of the law of God governing the universe, including man. He completely controverted in everything he said and did the so-called laws of matter, and there is not a known material law that he did not annul and prove not of God. If Christian Science dishonors the so-called laws of matter and the erroneous and fettering beliefs of creed and dogmatic scholasticism, it nevertheless honors the Christ.

✧

[Peter V. Ross in Fresno (Cal.) Republican]

The evangelist whose sermon is reported in the Fresno Republican is quite right in his assertion that healing the sick is not all there is to Christian Science practice. While it is now a matter of common knowledge that Christian Science does heal the various forms of disease, whether classified as functional or organic, curable or incurable, nevertheless the most important function of Christian Science is to regenerate mankind and place them on a right plane of thinking and living.

But the evangelist declares that Mrs. Eddy "strikes a blow at the atonement," and "denies the whole Bible teaching on the subject by claiming that Christ did not die on the cross." It is difficult to understand how any student of the Bible could suppose such an impossibility as that Christ should have died on the cross or anywhere else. The Christ is indestructible and eternal, in accordance with the Scriptural statements: "Before Abraham was, I am;" and "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world." This is precisely what Jesus was demonstrating, and this demonstration constituted his atonement; that is, the proof or exemplification that man is in unity or at-one with God, and hence perfect and immortal. To say that Christ died is in itself a denial of the atonement. Christian Science, however, teaches that Jesus was crucified, but that he overcame death and the grave.

Scholastic theology has taught that God required the sacrifice of Jesus to appease His wrath, and that the suffering of the Master excuses man, if he will only believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, from responsibility for his own sins. Christian Science, it is true, does not accept this idea of the atonement. It recognizes that God's attitude toward man is one of infinite love and compassion, which cannot be changed. It is the attitude of mortal man toward God which must be changed if man would reach harmony and happiness.

This is illustrated by the parable of the prodigal son. There was never a moment when the father was wanting in compassion for his disobedient son, never a time when he was not ready to forgive. Nothing was necessary to a full reconciliation except the awakening of the son from his dream of sensualism and sin and his return to the father's house. No sacrifice by his obedient brother, or by any one else, would have availed anything. The responsibility, the necessity for right action, all rested with the disobedient son himself, the one who was at fault. There was no wrath to be appeased; there was no sacrifice to be offered except a sacrifice or abandonment by the son of his own evil desires and practices.

✧

[Henry Van Arsdale in Huntington Beach (Cal.) News]

In common with all Christian churches the great Methodist church founded by John Wesley and the Christian Science church founded by Mary Baker Eddy hold to the omnipotence, omnipresence, and omniscience of God. In other words, all Christian churches assert the allness of God as part of their doctrine and belief. These churches also teach that God is Spirit. It therefore follows that if God is Spirit and God is All, then Spirit is All. Creation, therefore, including man, is spiritual and not material.

In addition to the word Spirit, Mrs. Eddy in her writings uses a few other words, such as Mind, Life, and Love, as synonyms for God. The use of the word Mind, capitalized, as meaning God, seems not to have been understood by a contributor to your paper, and as a result he is led into making some rather confused statements. The contributor signs himself "Your brother in Christian love," and immediately above this statement he urges you "not to feed your intelligent readers with the falsehoods of Christian Science," merely because you had stated the fact that "Christian Science had been of untold benefit to business men, professional men, and to people in all walks of life."

Jesus himself laid down the rule by which Christian Science is to be judged when he said, "By their fruits ye shall know them." Christian Scientists are entirely willing to be so judged, and the work they undertake "in Christian love" is one of helpfulness and construction.

✧ ✧ ✧

[Written for the Sentinel]

Light

EDITH L. PERKINS

THE morning breaks, athrill with life and light,
The whole creation sings in rhythm right,
While joy exultant cries, in upward flight,
Love is supreme.

Across the west night casts her shadows gray,
Then over all the darkness holds its sway,
Yet, looking up, I see the light and say,
Love is supreme.

So in the test of sorrow's darkest hour,
When joy seems hidden by the clouds that lower,
Still I rejoice,—God is the only power,
Love is supreme.

Digitized by Google

Editorial

The Essence of Democracy

THAT men have held the right of self-government to be more precious than the possession of the sense of life itself, has been recorded in all ages, but not from the time of Jesus until Mrs. Eddy discovered and promulgated the truth of Christian Science was the scientific relation of God and man declared to be the necessary foundation for self-government. This scientific relation is clearly defined on page 106 of Science and Health, where Mrs. Eddy writes, "Man is properly self-governed only when he is guided rightly and governed by his Maker, divine Truth and Love." It needs but little reflection on our part for us to realize that in this short sentence the author has stated the essence of all true democracy.

Our Master rebuked certain of his hearers who were able to read the signs of the sky, but were unable to read the signs of the times. Recent events should make clear to those who can and will read these signs, that the advance of human rights along governmental lines is steady and certain, and that the whole world is on the road to the realization of the hope and desire for democratic government which has shown itself in every civilized country and inspired those who have contended for the ideal of human freedom. That these hopes and desires are no longer regarded as chimerical, and their fulfilment as problematical, even in those countries where autocracy has flourished most dominantly, is a portentous sign of the times.

To Christian Scientists it is especially apparent that the command, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me," is not simply a religious maxim, but that on the contrary it is a fundamental, demonstrable divine truth which applies to all human affairs, and which lays the axe of human progress to the root of all bondage and oppression. As Mrs. Eddy has so ably stated it: "One infinite God, good, unifies men and nations; constitutes the brotherhood of man; ends wars; fulfils the Scripture, 'Love thy neighbor as thyself;' annihilates pagan and Christian idolatry,—whatever is wrong in social, civil, criminal, political, and religious codes" (Science and Health, p. 340). To her followers, therefore, has come the realization that this command is the groundwork and foundation of all human liberty. Indeed it would seem as if some vision of the omnipotence of God, some divine insight, must have buoyed and supported those patriotic men who one hundred and forty years ago pledged their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor to the success of the democracy which they inaugurated at that time.

The pretexts of heredity and tradition have long been the mainstays of autocracy, but the signs of the times point to the flimsy nature of these claims, and to Christian Scientists they no longer deceive with the force of divine law. Because we are learning in Christian Science that the so-called law of heredity with which mortals have so long deceived themselves is not a law at all, but simply "a prolific subject for mortal belief to pin theories upon," we are coming to see that good is the only law, and that when we have demonstrated "that nothing is real but the right, we shall have no dangerous inheritances, and fleshly ills will disappear" (Science and Health, p. 228). Not the least of these fleshly ills are those which affect the body politic. When it is clearly discerned and realized that equality and the brotherhood of man are not compatible with "the divine right of kings," it will also be seen that the divine law—the spiritual idea—which has in times past manifested itself in the abolition of human slavery, is still at work, and will continue to work in human consciousness until goodness, wisdom, mercy, justice, and liberty are no longer regarded as far off abstractions, but rather as the present concomitants of civil government and religion.

ARCHIBALD MCLELLAN.

Letting God Outline

OUTLINING materially robs life of elasticity and hedges it about with limitations. It places every individual and every undertaking in a frame of matter from which escape is difficult; moreover, this habit is scientifically and Christianly unsound, because God, Spirit, really does all the outlining and does it for the best. In the Glossary of Science and Health by Mrs. Eddy, under the heading "Mind" we read, "Deity, which outlines but is not outlined" (p. 591). Yet how persistent is the attempt of mortals to belittle man, thus restricting their friends, their own capabilities, their business enterprises, their sources of income, their spiritual progress, and their careers, by seeking to establish hard and fast material conditions which stifle spiritual spontaneity.

From birth itself the child is subjected to a process of being outlined, both with reference to the past and the future. The color of the eyes and hair, the temperament and special aptitudes, are linked to ancestral conditions; the prospects of success in a profession or a trade are made the subject of prophecy for the future, and so the child encased in this mental frame begins the rôle of living a human life. If the prophecy were strictly scientific, it would place the child in the arms of a heavenly Father-Mother God, and a glorious unfoldment would then be possible, endowing the child with gifts of grace and beauty, talent and power, and out of this would grow a fearless human, not designed for suffering, but for the sunshine of spiritual joy, developing evermore into the likeness of perfection. We read on page 63 of Science and Health: "In Science man is the offspring of Spirit. The beautiful, good, and pure constitute his ancestry." In Science man's future is just as definitely assured as is his divine origin.

Christian Science does not teach that human beings should not make their moves, but that these moves should be in accordance with God's outlining and not with the world's. Christian Scientists can be conscious through inspiration that, as Mrs. Eddy writes on page 506 of Science and Health, "Spirit, God, gathers unformed thoughts into their proper channels, and unfolds these thoughts, even as He opens the petals of a holy purpose in order that the purpose may appear."

Shall, then, the right activities of men be made to fit into imaginary outlines, or shall they be permitted to burst the bounds of mortal thinking under the impulsion of divine inspiration? This question presents the old struggle, so familiar in all that men do, between their ideals and the supposed restrictions of material belief. This shows itself in the contradiction between the writer and the proof room, between art and the box office, between an idea and the attempt to impose conditions upon that which God has made. The business man need not permit fear to outline his business for him and eventually suppress it altogether. Through the understanding of Christian Science he may learn to outdo himself. What are generally called business principles are frequently disastrous because of their tendency to fix fast and bind hand and foot that which needs freedom above everything else. The desire to prearrange and predetermine materially springs from lack of trust in God.

Digitized by Google

A saving movement like that of Christian Science advances upon the wings of revelation and inspiration. The intuitive inspiration of woman is essential to it. No youth can mature, no nation can prosper, no just movement can succeed which disregards woman's particular powers or presses her into the background. The culminating moment in the raising of Lazarus was when Jesus commanded, "Loose him, and let him go." This was the power of God using Jesus to outline the truth for Lazarus. Today Christian Science is repeating this saying in behalf of every child, man, and woman; every nation is hearing this cry of resurrection, of freedom, and of obedience to God. A tremendous undercurrent of spirituality inspired by a woman's discovery is bursting through the crust of human selfishness and conceit, liberating the pent up hopes of the millions, breaking barriers, and wiping away the outlines drawn by the carnal mind, in order that those may prevail which have been determined by Deity, with whom all things are possible.

WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN.

Rules and Their Application

BEGINNERS in the study of Christian Science often ask if they cannot have definite rules given them for working out the problems which they meet in their daily experience. To this it may be answered that these rules are to be found throughout the Scriptures and also in our Leader's writings, but a serious mistake is made when they are regarded in any wise as formulas which can be used without a clear understanding of their relation to divine Principle and spiritual law.

On page 261 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy bids us "look away from the body into Truth and Love," to which she adds the following clearly expressed rule, "Hold thought steadfastly to the enduring, the good, and the true, and you will bring these into your experience proportionably to their occupancy of your thoughts." This rule lacks nothing in the way of definiteness; in fact, it may be compared in its exactness to mathematical statements, which are unvarying in their operation when applied with understanding. The passage quoted leaves no room for uncertainty. It does not say that we may bring the good and the true into our experience, but that we shall do so to the extent that we give them first place in our consciousness. If we seem to experience a large measure of discord, it only goes to show how much room we have made for it in our thoughts, and how earnest must be our effort to displace it in order that the good and the true may hold sway.

This particular rule does not tell us that we shall be able to bring harmony to all around us by our obedience to its requirement, but it most definitely states that in our own experience at least the good realized will be in proportion to our faithfulness. If the problem which most concerns us is the overcoming of physical inharmony, we are bidden to "look away from the body into Truth and Love;" then the rule broadens, as it were, and includes other phases of human experience, and so we are bidden to "hold thought steadfastly to the enduring, the good, and the true." There is not any one on earth today who would not be helped by recalling this rule of divine Science and striving to put it into practice. The temptation comes to every one of us many times a day to do the opposite of this,—to think of the bad and the untrue, which have no permanence in spite of all that mortal mind would say to the contrary; but here is given us the opportunity to grow strong by holding thought steadfastly to that which represents God,—His creation and His government.

The consideration of this topic brings us to another rule, —this one given by the great Teacher,—namely, "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." Let us assume here that we have been faithfully practising the rule found in our text-book and already pointed out, and that we are, through our obedience to it, reflecting the light of Truth and Love. Then we have the command, which is also a rule, to let our light shine,—let those around us see what obedience to divine law is doing for us, how it is transforming our characters so that we are no longer willing to waste time in the discussion of evil—sin or sickness—or to shut out the light of Truth by doing so even for a moment.

The understanding of Christian Science makes it clear that if we are reflecting light by obedience to spiritual law, we shall illumine the deepest darkness of mortal belief in the ratio of our understanding of Truth and Love; and as we do this we ourselves go on to prove that we are fulfilling the law and the prophets, of which our Master spoke when he bade us let our light shine before men. As we do this we take another step forward, for the light itself enables ourselves first and then others to obey all the commandments, from the least to the greatest, and the Master distinctly said that those who did so should be "called great in the kingdom of heaven."

ANNIE M. KNOTT.

Lecture in The Mother Church

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston, Massachusetts, announces a free public lecture on Christian Science by Dr. Francis J. Fluno, C.S.D., a member of the Christian Science board of lectureship, in the church edifice, Falmouth, Norway, and St. Paul Streets, Back Bay, Friday evening, May 18, at eight o'clock. The public is cordially invited.

Among the Churches

Current Notes

GREAT FALLS, MONT.—At the regular Wednesday evening testimony meeting of First Church of Christ, Scientist, last evening [March 28], it was announced that within the last few days that body had acquired a double corner property, the southeast corner of First Avenue North and Thirteenth Street, upon which a church is to be erected. The present edifice is being taxed to capacity, while the attendance is showing a constant growth.

Interesting in connection with the announcement is the history of this church, showing its growth since it was holding public services in rooms 19 and 20 of the Conrad Block in 1905. Outgrowing these quarters, its services were later conducted in Conrad Hall, then in the Carnegie Library lecture room, then in the Valeria Library Building. The need of a church building being imperative, the present structure was erected in 1911 and occupied for the first time on Thanksgiving day of that year. It was dedicated free from debt three years ago.—Great Falls Leader.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—The new edifice of Third Church of Christ, Scientist, at the northeast corner of Fortieth and Walnut Streets, now halted at the basement, will be carried to completion this year. The general contractor will start work about May 1, and is to have the building ready for the interior finish by Sept. 1. The main auditorium will seat eight hundred and seventy-five persons. The present basement quarters will be retained intact as a Sunday school room. The cost of ground and building will be about one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars.

Digitized by Google

The Kansas City Star.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—Sunday [April 1] First Church of Christ, Scientist, began to hold services in the new church building, Third Street and Ormsby Avenue. For a year and a half this church has been using De Molay Commandery Hall as a meeting place, and prior to that occupied a small building on Third Street, between St. Catherine and Oak Streets. Some months after moving to the hall the congregation procured a frontage of 150 feet on Third Street at Ormsby Avenue, and building operations began last autumn, with the result that what the Scientists call their temporary church is ready for use. The auditorium in the temporary building has a seating capacity of about twelve hundred, while the permanent building will seat about fourteen hundred.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

PALO ALTO, CAL.—Dedication services were held yesterday [March 25] by First Church of Christ, Scientist, in their new church home, which was opened about three months ago. In 1897 two students made the small commencement which inaugurated the dawn of Christian Science in Palo Alto. In May, 1900, with an organization formed, came services in a hall. The progress born of experience found an incorporated Church of Christ, Scientist, in 1904, with services being conducted in a larger hall until 1908, when increasing attendance necessitated a further expansion into the old Presbyterian Church Building at the corner of University Avenue and Waverley Street. Here services and meetings were continued until 1911, when they began to be held in the Masonic Temple. In December, 1916, the congregation moved into this, their new church edifice, where the opening services were held on Sunday, Dec. 17, 1916.

Palo Alto Times.

HOPKINTON, IOWA.—The dedicatory service of the Christian Science Society was held in their church edifice on Easter Sunday [April 8].—The Hopkinton Leader.

DEDICATIONS have been reported as follows: First Church of Christ, Scientist, Decatur, Ill., Jan. 21; First Church of Christ, Scientist, Halifax, England, Jan. 14.

✧ ✧ ✧

The Lectures

LAKEWOOD, OHIO (First Church).—Ezra W. Palmer, lecturer; introduced by John B. Coffinberry, a former mayor, who said in part:—

In the old line of thought many of us were led to believe that there existed an enemy for whom we must ever be on guard. We never knew where to locate this enemy, consequently never knew where to make the charge; neither did we know what weapon to use in our defense. Through fear of this one evil, life often became a burden. We were traveling a long, tiresome road, at the end of which we hoped to find heaven. At times this hope became very dim, and we scarcely knew in what direction to look for light.

A research of Mrs. Eddy's works will, I believe, locate this enemy. It is found in the arena of our own mind and consists of wrong thinking. The charge, therefore, is to be made upon one's self; the weapon to be used is the truth about God and our relation to Him. With matters thus simplified, the long road, at the end of which we hoped to find heaven, becomes less tiresome. The study of Christian Science proves that heaven and harmony are at hand, and if we follow this line of thought, we are apparently entering upon a new life. The burdens will gradually fall away; freedom and happiness will take the place of fear as we begin to realize what the Master meant when he said that the kingdom of heaven is within. It is then that we begin to appreciate how much the world is indebted to Mrs. Eddy for the long and wonderful life in which she lived to bless others.

MANKATO, MINN. (First Church).—William W. Porter, lecturer; introduced by Jean A. Flittie, who said in part:—

Although I am not a Christian Scientist, I am free to say that there is much in Christian Science that appeals to me. It is essentially a religion of sunshine and good cheer. Its adherents are uniformly cheerful, contented, and care free. Even its most eminent and unsparing critic admits this. And why is this so? It is so because Christian Science teaches the unreality of evil and the reality of good. Its God is good, wholly good, not one of mingled good and evil. To be at-one with Truth is to be whole in mind and body; hence he who so lives as to be in harmony with the universal Mind is without sickness, without fear, and without worry of any kind. Such a one lives in a transforming atmosphere of boundless love, and the calm assurance that no evil can come to him.

Apart from their loyalty to their Leader and their devotion to their religion, there are certain other traits about the Christian Scientists that are admirable: they never gossip; they speak evil of no one; they practise what they preach, finding their religion sufficient to meet and solve the simplest as well as the most complex problems of life; they are also very sincere, for to practise untruth or to deceive is to fail, utterly to fail, in Christian Science, which exacts from its followers absolute honesty in thought and deed. These are fine qualities indeed, making of life a song of joy, a hymn of praise.

HARROGATE, ENGLAND (First Church).—John Sidney Braithwaite, lecturer; introduced by Major Nash of Ripon, who said in part:—

If that which is called religion cannot help me in my daily life, if it cannot take away fear, discord, poverty, discomfort, and pain here and now, then it is of no use to me. If it can only offer me happiness in a problematical future, I do not want it. If it is dependent on ceremonies and fixed places of worship, and cannot follow me into the trenches, the lumber camp, the jungle, and the desert, where no white men are, and cannot help and heal me day by day, it is of little use. If Christian Science had not been able to fill all these needs, I should not be standing here today; but it can do more than that. It enables me not only to say, "I wish the sun would shine on all men's fruit and flowers as well as on mine," but to say it with a certainty that the wish will be fulfilled.

CENTRALIA, WASH. (First Church).—John Randall Dunn, lecturer; introduced by W. B. Keir, who said in part:—

The daily walk of the Christian Scientist is more closely noted than perhaps you may think. As you pass in and out among your fellow beings, the peace and harmony among yourselves, your justice in the treatment of others, is visible evidence of the faith that is within you. A happy, smiling face is loved by every one, while a cheerful, uncomplaining nature makes the pathway of life smoother to all mankind. Your church appears to cultivate these virtues to the utmost, and in doing so undoubtedly draws your membership closer together. This also brings upon you the admiration and respect of those without the church.

Those who have lived during the past forty or fifty years

Digitized by Google

remember somewhat of the trials and tribulations of this church. Your estimable Leader, Mrs. Eddy, being for years misunderstood by the people, was maligned, ridiculed, and even persecuted. However, the dark clouds of misunderstanding are rapidly rolling away, revealing her in her true character,—that of a good and great woman, striving to do good and point the way to all the peoples of the earth; a fervent disciple of the great healer. It is quite evident, even to those who do not take special interest in church work, that the Christian Science church is growing rapidly.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS. (First Church).—Virgil O. Strickler, lecturer; introduced by Mrs. Alice B. Taber, who said in part:—

These lectures everywhere speak a message of inspiration and hope to all who hear them, convincing as they are of the fact that these words of Jesus are as true today as when uttered by him nineteen centuries ago: "And these signs shall follow them that believe; In my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover." This promise is being fulfilled through the ministry of Christian Science, and many in the audience tonight can testify to the truth of this statement. Worldly wisdom, however, is of no avail in the learning of spiritual truth; to become as a little child is the requirement.

New Bedford Times.

NORTHAMPTON, MASS. (First Church).—Bicknell Young, lecturer; introduced by Marlin D. Farnum, who said in part:—

Never in the world's history has there been so great need of a knowledge of God as there is today, and man never realized this need more than he does today. The world's universal need is for peace and health, but how to obtain it is the great question. Never in the world's history has it been so possible for man to gain an understanding of God and to have peace and health as it is today; for throughout the world thousands are proving Christian Science to be the truth that makes man free, and are daily understanding more about this practical religion which is available for everybody.

✧

Lectures to be Delivered

[By Members of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.]

CALIFORNIA—Berkeley (Third Church): Charles I. Ohrenstein, Twentieth Century Club House, 2716 Derby Street, 8 p.m., May 19.
Burlingame: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Burlingame Masonic Temple, 3 p.m., May 20.
CANADA—Chatham, Ontario: Paul Stark Seeley, I. O. O. F. Auditorium, King Street, 8:15 p.m., May 21.
ILLINOIS—Chicago (Sixth Church): Virgil O. Strickler, Church Edifice, 11321 Prairie Avenue, 8 p.m., May 19.
Chicago (Thirteenth Church): Bliss Knapp, Church Edifice, 10317 Longwood Drive, 8 p.m., May 21.
Joliet: Virgil O. Strickler, Auditorium, 8:15 p.m., May 21.
Morrison: Paul Stark Seeley, Church Edifice, 8 p.m., May 17.
Oak Park: Frank Bell, Church Edifice, Oak Park Avenue and Ontario Street, 8 p.m., May 24.
Pontiac: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Folk's Opera House, 8 p.m., May 25.
Waukegan: John Randall Dunn, Church Edifice, 329 West Street, 8 p.m., May 25.
INDIANA—Anderson: Virgil O. Strickler, Grand Opera House, 3 p.m., May 20.
Logansport: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Church Edifice, North and Ninth Streets, 8:15 p.m., May 24.
IOWA—Muscatine: Frank Bell, Church Edifice, Sixth and Walnut Streets, 8 p.m., May 21.
Oskaloosa: Frank Bell, Church Edifice, 406 East High Avenue, 8 p.m., May 22.
Perry: Frank Bell, Grand Opera House, 3:30 p.m., May 20.
KANSAS—Dodge City: George Shaw Cook, Beeson Theater, 3 p.m., May 20.
Olathe: William R. Rathvon, Gem Theater, 3:30 p.m., May 20.
MAINE—Freeport: John Randall Dunn, Nordica Theater, 8 p.m., May 17.
MASSACHUSETTS—Boston (The Mother Church): Dr. Francis J. Fluno, Church Edifice, Norway, Falmouth, and St. Paul Streets, 8 p.m., May 18.
Salem: Dr. Francis J. Fluno, Empire Theater, 285 Essex Street, 3:15 p.m., May 20.
Woburn: Dr. Francis J. Fluno, Lyceum Hall, 8 p.m., May 21.
Worcester (Second Church): Dr. Walton Hubbard, Horticultural Hall, 44 Front Street, 8 p.m., May 19.
MICHIGAN—Muskegon: Frank Bell, Woman's Club House, Webster Avenue and Second Street, 8 p.m., May 25.
Port Huron: Bliss Knapp, Masonic Temple, 8 p.m., May 22.
MINNESOTA—Minneapolis and St. Paul (joint community lectures), Prof. Hermann S. Hering:
Minneapolis: First Church Edifice, Nicollet Avenue and Twenty-fourth Street, 8 p.m., May 14; Shubert Theater, 12:15 p.m., May 15; Second Church Edifice, Second Avenue South and Eleventh Street, 8 p.m., May 15; Sixth Church Edifice, Summit and Hennepin Avenues, 8 p.m., May 17; Lake Harriet Commercial Club, 2718 West Forty-third Street, 8 p.m., May 19; Odd Fellows Hall, Twenty-seventh Avenue and Lake Streets, 8 p.m., May 19.
St. Paul: Woodruff Hall, Prior and St. Anthony, Merriam Park, 8 p.m., May 21; St. Paul Auditorium, 8 p.m., May 22.
MISSOURI—Kansas City (community lectures): William R. Rathvon, Second Church Edifice, Thirty-first Street and Troost Avenue, 8 p.m., May 21; Gladstone Theater (for Fourth Church), St. John and Elmwood Avenues, 8 p.m., May 22; Globe Theater (joint lecture for business people), Thirteenth and Walnut Streets, 12:15 to 1 p.m., May 23; Third Church Edifice, Fortieth and Walnut Streets, 8 p.m., May 24; Prospect Hall (for Fifth Church), Twenty-second Street and Prospect Avenue, 8 p.m., May 25; First Church Edifice, Ninth Street and Forest Avenue, 8 p.m., May 26.
NEW HAMPSHIRE—Manchester: John Randall Dunn, Palace Theater, Hanover Street, 3:30 p.m., May 20.
NEW JERSEY—Camden: Dr. Francis J. Fluno, Towers Theater, Broadway and Pine Street, 3:30 p.m., May 13.
NEW YORK—Gloversville: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Glove Theater, 3:30 p.m., May 20.
New York (Fourth Church): Dr. Walton Hubbard, Church Edifice, Fort Washington Avenue at 178th Street, 8 p.m., May 21 and 22.
Staten Island: William W. Porter, Curtis Lyceum, Wall Street and Stuyvesant Place, New Brighton, 3:15 p.m., May 20.
White Plains: Bicknell Young, Assembly Hall, White Plains Club, 8:15 p.m., May 24.
OHIO—Ashtabula: Virgil O. Strickler, High School Auditorium, 7:45 p.m. (standard time), May 24.
Bellevue: Bliss Knapp, New Church Edifice, 295 West Main Street, 3 p.m. (central time), May 20.
Coshocton: John Randall Dunn, Central High School, 8 p.m., May 22.
Geneva: Frank Bell, Church Edifice, Forest Street and Maiden Lane, 8:15 p.m. (eastern time), May 14.
Mt. Vernon: Paul Stark Seeley, Court House, 3 p.m., May 20.
Salem: Bicknell Young, High School Auditorium, 3:15 p.m., May 20.
Toledo (First Church): Virgil O. Strickler, Coliseum, 8:15 p.m., May 22.
PENNSYLVANIA—Erie: Paul Stark Seeley, Masonic Temple, Eighth and Peach Streets, 8 p.m., May 22.
Harrisburg: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Orpheum Theater, 8:15 p.m., May 24.
TEXAS—Canyon: Ezra W. Palmer, Olympic Theater, 8 p.m., May 20.
WISCONSIN—Baraboo: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Al Ringling Theater, 2:45 p.m., May 20.
Oconomowoc: Bliss Knapp, Auditorium, 8 p.m., May 15.

Digitized by Google

Testimonies of Healing

About two years ago I came to Christian Science and was cured of chronic bowel trouble in two days with the help of a practitioner. Glasses had been worn for thirteen years, but after reading Science and Health for six weeks they were laid aside, although I had been told they would always be needed. I can read all day now, where before I could read very little. Headaches from which I had suffered for years are disappearing as I learn more of Christian Science. Once in a while there is a slight attack lasting but a few hours, where before I had to go to bed and suffered a great deal. Every day is a thanksgiving day for me since I came to this great truth.

I have two children, and both of them have been helped wonderfully. My ten year old girl was unconscious with fever, but in an hour after I telephoned to a practitioner for help she regained consciousness and asked me to read Science and Health to her. When my husband came home we decided to have the practitioner come to the house, and after she had been there for half an hour the child was healed. She slept all night and the next morning ate a hearty breakfast and went to Sunday school.

Christian Science has helped me not only physically but spiritually. I am indeed thankful to God, and grateful to Mrs. Eddy for showing us the way.

LINA BRADEN, San Antonio, Texas.

✧

Many times seemingly difficult problems have been entirely solved for me through reading some article in the Sentinel or Journal, and I feel that each number I read leaves my thought higher than before. Every day brings added proof of the efficacy of Christian Science to destroy discord of all kinds, and my whole being swells with gratitude as I see this wonderful religion spreading to all parts of the earth.

For many years I was a church member, and often desired to enter active work in religious life, but the way did not open until I came to Christian Science, which I knew from the first was the answer to my sincere desire to be led into all truth. There have been many experiences of healing in our home. Our little son, now over four years of age, has never had medicine, and is in perfect health, robust and lively. When he was about two years of age he was attacked by what appeared to be infantile paralysis. He was suddenly stricken with a very high fever, and though for about twenty-four hours I tried to realize God's presence, I felt no progress was being made. At the end of that time convulsions set in. Before a Christian Science practitioner in Portland, Ore., could be reached by telephone,—a distance of about one hundred and fifty miles,—he had a second convulsion, much more severe than the first; but when the practitioner started treatment, almost instantly the fever left and he regained consciousness. He improved steadily, and in less than two weeks was able to walk again. In a remarkably short time he was manifesting perfect health. My husband, not being a Scientist, called in a physician, but no medicine was given the child. This experience led me to a higher understanding of God's omnipotent care and loving protection, and I have been aroused to a greater spiritual activity and awakening, for which I am unceasingly grateful.

My desire is to grow in the understanding of this glorious truth, so as to be able to help others as I have been helped. As a proof of how readily Truth will cure every ill, I mention a few of my own demonstrations. One morning I awakened with every symptom of influenza, but immediately began to apply the truth. As I allowed nothing else to occupy my thought, every symptom of the disease was gone and harmony was again dominant long ere the morning was spent. About a week later I awoke in the same discordant condition, but this time the symptoms were overcome almost instantaneously. Throat trouble and colds have been immediately overcome through the realization that God is Love, and that man as made in His image and likeness expresses Him and moves in accord with His government.

In the spring of 1915, when many children in town were suffering from whooping-cough, our little boy manifested symptoms of it; but in a few days the cough was gone, whereas other children I knew of coughed for many weeks and some for months after this. He was also freed from an attack of chicken-pox after one small blister had appeared on his body.

The greatest blessings I have received have not been visible to the outside world. Christian Science is indeed a refiner and purifier, and if one is diligent in its study and application it will rid that one of all such harassing evils as envy, hate, jealousy, malice, and kindred manifestations. I am deeply grateful to our Leader, who endured so much to give this great truth to our age. It seems impossible to express my gratitude in words, and I realize that I must endeavor more earnestly to let it be expressed by my life.

EVA S. CROOKS, Prineville, Ore.

✧

My heart is filled with thankfulness to God, and with gratitude to Mrs. Eddy for all the blessings that Christian Science has brought into my life. Through it I have been healed of several ailments, also of the effects of a serious injury to my head some years ago. I had hired a studio in Scotland for a time, and owing to the wet weather the door was difficult to open. When I forced it open a long iron gutter on the roof became detached and fell on my head with full force. I suffered very much from the blow, and had to apply to a practitioner in Edinburgh for absent treatment. At the time I was young in Science, and the fear was great, especially as I knew that a woman in the town near by had had a similar accident, which proved fatal. In consequence of this fear my healing was slow, but after a time it was complete, and there have been no bad effects from the accident in any way since.

Discords, such as worry, anxiety about the future, depression, and many other inharmonies have been overcome, and I know there is no need to be troubled if I can but realize that God will direct my path if I seek His guidance and am obedient to Him. I am truly grateful to Mrs. Eddy for having given to the world that wonderful book "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures." It is indeed a key to the Bible and a daily help for every need. Through reading this book I am gaining a better understanding of God and of man's relation to Him. I am most grateful for all the Christian Science literature which our revered Leader has so lovingly given us, and I thank God most earnestly for Christian Science.—ELISE THOMPSON, London, England.

✧

It is with loving gratitude that I offer the following testimony as another proof of the healing power of Christian Science. Early one morning in November, 1915, our little daughter fell and broke her collar bone. On discovering the nature of the injury my wife and I had to overcome a great sense of fear, but this was soon done by the application of our knowledge of God's allness. A Christian Science practitioner was called immediately, and in a very short time the sense of intense pain which followed the injury was overcome. The child could not lift the arm until perhaps over an hour later, when the practitioner arrived and after talking to her a few moments about God, as she had learned of Him in the Christian Science Sunday school, asked her to hand him a bottle of perfume that was on the window-sill by the couch; whereupon she arose, reached for the bottle with the injured arm, handed it to him, and then quietly lay down again. She did not however use the arm any more for three days, but there was little pain and she lay cheerfully on her bed until the fourth morning, when she got up alone and remained up most all day. She used the arm lightly and it gradually increased to normal activity within a week.

Digitized by Google

For this glorious manifestation of the healing power of divine Truth as taught in Christian Science I am very thankful to God, and grateful to Mrs. Eddy, whose untiring labor has given us this understanding of divine Principle. My own aim and desire is continually to be about my Father's business and to recognize no power but God.

E. N. Hamilton, Chicago, Ill.

I gladly bear witness to my husband's testimony as being true. Tears of joy filled our eyes when we saw this manifestation of God's power; it was so beautiful and plain to us. I cannot begin to tell of all that Christian Science has done for me and mine, but consider it the greatest blessing that ever came into my life. To say that I am grateful for some understanding of this wonderful truth but faintly expresses my gratitude. My daily prayer is for that Mind to be in me "which was also in Christ Jesus."

Addie A. Hamilton.

✧

[Translated from the German]

It is with a heart full of gratitude that I testify to the blessings received through Christian Science. For twelve years I was under medical care, and during that time never had an hour free from pain. Following the birth of our youngest son, high fever and blood poisoning set in, and after I had recovered somewhat, I became afflicted with a serious nerve and abdominal trouble said to be incurable. Treatment from various professors and nature-cure physicians brought me only temporary relief, and finally I was taken to an institute for nervous troubles. I failed to experience help, however, and came to stay with relatives in Schorndorf, where I heard of Christian Science and the results achieved through it. Earnest prayer that I might know of this glorious truth, caused me to be led to a Christian Science practitioner, who explained the subject to me in the most loving way. When the practitioner began to treat me, light immediately shone into my gloomy life, and after a short period of treatment I was healed in mind and body and became a different woman.

Another great proof of the omnipotence of good was given me when on one occasion I seemed unable to take a single step. The left kneecap had been injured, and according to medical opinion my leg would never be normal again; at any rate, it would be a long time before I would be able to walk. The practitioner took up treatment, however, and on the following day to my great joy I was able to attend to all my household duties.

Our youngest boy was taken with appendicitis, and despite violent reproaches from my parents and relatives, who were emphatic in their belief that an operation should be performed, I remained firm in the conviction that the child was safe in God's love. When in the evening the trouble became aggravated, I telephoned to the practitioner for treatment, and soon afterward the child fell into a sound sleep. In the morning he awoke with the cry: "Mama, I am well. Give me something to eat right away." Five days later the little fellow went back to school, well and bright.

For all the benefits received I am profoundly grateful to God. I am also thankful to our dear Leader, Mrs. Eddy, and my sincere desire is that I may gain more and more in the understanding of Christian Science.

Frau Wilhelmine Schmidt, Tuttlingen, Württemberg, Germany.

✧

Having found Christian Science a present help in time of need, I wish to express my gratitude for what it has done for me. In November, 1914, I was taken very sick. I worked all day for myself, and was able to attend a Christian Science lecture that evening, but the next morning every symptom of a severe case of erysipelas had developed. I at once called up a practitioner, and in a few days all trace of the disease had disappeared. To me this was a convincing demonstration of the all-power of God.

I am deeply thankful to God that I have been led to the truth, and grateful to Jesus, the master Christian, as well as to Mrs. Eddy, who was so true and faithful to Jesus' teachings that she was able to give us a rule to live by that we can apply to every problem of life.

Mary Amelia Harvey, Baltimore, Md.

✧

I should like to testify to a healing experienced through Christian Science. In January, 1912, I fell from the top rung of a fourteen foot ladder, breaking one arm and throwing the shoulder out of place. My wife, hearing the fall, came out and told me to hold steadfastly to the truth that God is Life; but I did not seem to realize what she was saying until she got me into the house. Then I told her to get help, and she had a neighbor telephone for a practitioner, who came in about thirty minutes. She asked if I would like to have a surgeon set the bone, but I said that what God could not do for me man need not attempt, so she gave me treatment. In a few minutes the shoulder went back into place, and from that time on there was scarcely any pain. No material remedies were used, but the practitioner gave me absent treatment for about two weeks. In three weeks I attended church, and have never had any trouble with the arm since. It is in as normal a condition as before.

For this healing, and for other benefits received, as well as for the spiritual uplift, I am thankful to God, and grateful to our Leader, Mrs. Eddy.

Elliott B. Bratt, Kalispell, Mont.

The above testimony written by my husband is true, and I am grateful for the healing, also for all the good I have received from Christian Science, both mentally and physically.—Nellie M. Bratt.

✧

Words cannot express my thankfulness to God for Christian Science, and my earnest desire in giving this testimony is to help others to seek and find the healing, as I have done. I was healed of what was pronounced a structural defect of the eyes, after having worn glasses for twelve years. Twice I had been obliged to remain for two weeks in a darkened room, with my eyes bandaged and with fear of blindness. I was finally told that my eyes were in a very serious condition, which could not be remedied by glasses.

In great fear I went to a friend, who advised me to try Christian Science. I attended a Wednesday evening meeting, and after hearing the testimonies felt greatly encouraged. I could hardly wait until next day to get "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," for I knew I would be healed. My eyes got stronger each day as I read the book, and the healing was complete, all pain and headaches having been overcome. I did not leave off my glasses for about a year after that, but have not worn them since 1911.

Digitized by Google

While studying the Christian Science text-book and the Bible, heart trouble vanished into its native nothingness. Jesus said, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free," and I have indeed had abundant proof that through the study of the Bible and Science and Health the truth does make free. Not alone for the physical healing am I grateful, but for the spiritual uplift.

I am indeed thankful to our Leader, Mrs. Eddy, for this blessed truth, and very grateful to all those who have so lovingly shown me the way. Much gratitude is also felt for our periodicals and our reading-rooms.

FLORENCE NICHOLSON, Oakland, Cal.

✧

In the spring of 1915 I suffered incessantly for ten weeks from an illness said to be due to stoppage of the gall duct, for which an operation was recommended, though I determined not to submit to it. The best of care was given me, as I was in a hospital most of the time and always had a nurse in attendance; nevertheless at the end of the ten weeks I was little more than a frame and my suffering was almost unbearable. It became necessary to use hot applications almost constantly to keep up the circulation, as I was losing the use of my legs. Sleep was almost gone from me, and death seemed inevitable; indeed I longed for it to come.

At this stage my father read a Christian Science lecture in our daily paper. He read part of it to me, and just listening to it made me feel stronger; so, although we knew practically nothing of Christian Science, we sent for a practitioner. I remember how refreshing were the first truths of life and health which were revealed to me when the practitioner read of God's love and of God's allness from the Bible and from the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy. I had been believing that a power apart from God could make me suffer, to the extent that my whole consciousness was cognizant of suffering only; and what a joy came with the assurance that divine Love is the only power! I could hardly grasp what this meant, at first, but knew that it was good and that it was of God.

After the first treatment I fell asleep and slept peacefully for five hours. When I awakened, the practitioner read to me again for about an hour, after which I spent the night in sound and natural sleep. Late the next morning I awakened happy, and for the first time enjoyed the songs of the birds, which before had been a source of annoyance. Since then I have not had a sleepless or restless night. While the practitioner was reading to me that morning, I suddenly felt that I could walk; so I arose and walked about the room, although I had not been able even to stand alone for a long time. At noon I went to the dining room and ate with the family, and have since eaten ordinary food.

My complete recovery was accomplished in a remarkably short time, for six weeks later I was able to work all day without fatigue, and was stronger than I had ever been in my life. A relapse was predicted by some, but at no time did I suffer from a return of the old trouble. Stomach and bowel disorder, backache, poor circulation, acute throat trouble, falling hair, and ivy poisoning have all been overcome, and I have gained in weight. Daily and hourly help has been evidenced in increased mental and physical harmony, and I have not taken a drop of medicine since turning to Science.

Previous to my healing I was an evangelistic worker, and when taken ill was in the university preparing to become a teacher of the Bible. I am now so thankful that a halt was called to my outlined course, for I was led into a better way. During the first few hours that the Christian Science practitioner was with me, explaining and demonstrating the mighty teachings of the Bible, I grasped a clearer understanding of man's relation to God, and of the fundamental rules of divine law, than during all my years of preparation for Christian work.

I have no words adequate to express my gratitude for the understanding of God's abiding and unfailing love, neither can I express a fitting appreciation of Mrs. Eddy, whose patient endeavor in searching the Scriptures has revealed the demonstrable Science of divine Mind. I can show my gratitude best in a life which admits no power but God, thus bringing forth fruits of peace, joy, and health. The blessings we have received are so many and so great that I cannot withhold this message of testimony from others who feel themselves in need of divine help.

INEZ E. WAYMAN, Princeton, Mo.

✧

[Translated from the French]

I am happy to be able to testify to a marvelous healing which has restored harmony within myself and in my home. For twenty years I had suffered with a stomach disorder in a very severe form, and had been obliged to observe a rigid diet. Many physicians were consulted, all of whom made me feel discouraged, and every one had a different method of cure. In despair I went to a famous member of the Académie de Médecine; but this consultation left me with the conviction that I would never be cured.

One day Christian Science was mentioned to me. The wonderful ideas presented filled me with joy, and I marveled at the clearness of the teachings. The possibility of being healed then dawned upon me, and I went to see a Christian Science practitioner. I had three or four treatments, and can truthfully say that I was healed instantly. Seventeen months have elapsed since this miracle took place, and I enjoy splendid health. I am a soldier at present, and the food of the barracks, which cannot be called dainty, does not seem to have any detrimental effect upon my system.

It seems difficult for me to express in words the gratitude I feel for Christian Science, and for that admirable woman, Mrs. Eddy, who by her labors and her understanding of Truth was able to furnish humanity with an unfailing support.—CHARLES BISCHOFF, Paris, France.

✧

During the nine years that I have been a student of Christian Science each hour has unfolded its blessings and glory. My first experiences of healing came through the study of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures." I was enabled to lay off glasses which had been worn constantly for twelve years owing to a structural defect of the eyes and a muscular trouble accompanied by chronic neuralgia of the head. A brace had been prescribed by a specialist to relieve a severe condition which was not given a name, but which was said to be difficult to cure, and this brace also was discarded, the healing coming through my study of the text-book.

With the help of a practitioner I have been freed from nervous exhaustion and chronic stomach and intestinal troubles, also from a return of incipient pulmonary tuberculosis, from which I had suffered during my girlhood. These healings have all been permanent. Several of the ailments yielded instantaneously, but others slowly. When I stopped trying to throw off physical diseases, and was "willing rather to be absent from the body, and to be present with the Lord," seeking diligently the Christ-idea, these conditions yielded more rapidly to the healing truth. I rejoice in the overcoming of a habit of worry and diffidence, and especially in the healing of the sense of sorrow and separation at the time my father passed on.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science found me sinking deeper and deeper into a state of despairing invalidism, but it has brought me out into a happy, useful life. I am grateful for the understanding of divine Principle that has come to me, and especially for the sense of the Father's impartial love.

ALICE PATTOU BAKER, New York, N. Y.

✧

I wish to express my deep gratitude for the many benefits received since taking up the study of Christian Science. Four years I suffered from spinal trouble, and at one time was bedfast for sixteen months. After being up a few months I submitted to a painful surgical operation, but was afterward in bed twenty-two months and became greatly discouraged. We finally sent for a Christian Science practitioner, with the result that after taking one treatment I was able to leave my bed, and in a few months was doing most of the housework.

I am thankful to God for my healing, and grateful to Mrs. Eddy, who has revealed the truth to every sufferer. I am also grateful for the spiritual uplift and for the literature that has been given me by friends. My desire is to be worthy of being called a Christian Scientist.

MAUDE A. WILLIAMS, Gunnison, Col.

✧

It is with the deepest gratitude for Christian Science that I tell of my healing. I was in ill health for many years, during which time I had treatment by physicians of different schools and followed rules of health, but without being benefited. It was not until I was in extreme mental suffering that Christian Science was resorted to, and then within a short time there was a great change in me. I was given a sense of the nearness, goodness, and protection of God, saw beauty where I had not seen it before, and felt a deeper friendliness toward people. The physical healing followed, some of the discordant conditions yielding quickly and some slowly.

I have been healed of chronic weakness and nervous trouble, of sleeplessness, hemorrhages of the nose, and pain in the back which was supposed to be the result of a spinal injury; also my eyesight improved, so that I no longer needed to wear glasses when reading. Other ills too were overcome. I am grateful for the physical healing, but much more so for the spiritual enlightenment, for the knowledge of the truth about God and man as revealed through the study of the Bible in the light of Mrs. Eddy's writings. This truth is a practical help in daily life. Fear is being destroyed through the understanding of God as infinite Mind, or intelligence, and of man as the reflection of the Mind "which was also in Christ Jesus."

I cannot express in words my thankfulness to God, and my gratitude to our loved Leader, Mrs. Eddy, for Christian Science.—MARY V. STOY, Lafayette, Ind.

✧ ✧ ✧

Yes, there is tribulation, but Thy power
Can blend it with rejoicing. There are thorns,
But they have kept us in the narrow way,
The King's highway of holiness and peace.
And there is chastening, but the Father's love
Flows through it; and would any trusting heart
Forego the chastening and forego the love?

FRANCES RIDLEY HAVERGAL.

From Our Exchanges

[Western Christian Advocate]

The day is near at hand in this country when Protestantism will find itself in a new world consciousness. For over one hundred years the process of dissection, analysis, and division has been working mightily with the ever growing body of Protestantism. It has been the wonder of men. How has it survived in the midst of the multiplication of sects? It has, and we are now beginning to see there was a divine providence in it all. However, at the present time there are increasing evidences that there is to be a synthesizing period, when the forces, processes, and different types of Protestantism are to come together and form one corporate whole in some expression of solidarity that shall make for the interests of the kingdom of Christ.

Confronted by this prophetic situation there are two needs of Protestantism that must be recognized, and to which all leaders and laymen must become speedily reconciled. First, there is a growing demand to restore the unity and authority of the church of God. In order to accomplish this, members of reformed churches must find and occupy a common ground of faith and practice. The churches must no longer disagree as to fundamentals of faith. . . . The second demand Protestantism makes, as a guaranty of her future, is that we reconstitute the conscience of Christendom. The necessity for this is seen in the fact that at the present time it is savaged and wrecked by tribal ferocities and godless strifes. The kingdom of Christ must prevail. It is appearing more and more as a moving force in this modern world.

[The Congregationalist and Christian World]

The question for every one of us in this day of strain and trial is whether our hearts, by the power of the Lord within us, are fireproof. Can our faith stand the strain? Is the presence of God—the Father whom we know in Jesus Christ the martyr—a deeper experience in us than the experience of grief, of doubt, of perplexity? It was a saint of the old covenant—one who had been made to dwell "in dark places, as those that have been long dead," who yet was able to declare, "It is good that a man should hope and quietly wait for the salvation of the Lord." Is such a reaction of faith and hope under strain and sorrow impossible to us new covenant disciples?

[Unitarian Word and Work]

It makes little difference what may be the inscription over the entrance of a church, or what its creedal basis or its denominational affiliations; it is essentially Christian only in so far as the right spirit enters into it. There is an individuality to a church as there is to a person; and the name by which it is known may be no indication whatever of the character of the soul that animates it. It may be "orthodox" or it may be "liberal" as it is superficially judged, but it is essentially Christian only as it is controlled by the genius of the Christian life.

[Rev. Joseph Fort Newton, D.Litt., in The Christian Commonwealth]

Life nobly lived, on high tasks intent, obedient to the moral law, following the way of the Spirit, passes out of the tyranny of time into an eternal fellowship in which there is security and peace. So interpreted, our mortal life, with all its discipline of frailty and tragedy, is a school in which, if we number our days aright, we learn the wisdom that is immortal—the discovery of our citizenship in "a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God."

Digitized by Google

[The Sunday School Times]

One of the most common phenomena of our day is the man who has done what he set out to do, and won the prizes he has striven for, and now lives on in the midst of his achievement without interest or zest. Mr. Chesterton has well said that the most amazing contradiction of our time is the failure of the successful man. Those who are struggling on cannot understand why life should become so flat and tasteless with those who have been successful. It is certain that all the worst pessimism comes from those who have gotten pretty much all they started to win, and not from those who are still struggling. There seems to come a change over the nature of the man who has, as we say, "arrived," which we cannot account for. There is something illogical about it, that just when he ought to be most happy and satisfied he seems so often restless, displeased, and bored. And we are apt to say to ourselves that were we ourselves fortunate enough to reach his position we should never know an unhappy hour.

The greatest victory we achieve is not in things or successes or achievements, but in the power to go on loving life to the very last. The world passes away and the desire for it, "but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever." There is a way out. The long years went by and the apostle John saw the fatigued souls all around him who could take no more pleasure in life, but every day he and those who knew Jesus Christ found new reason for living. And around us still we see men and women with whom life has gone hard, and who have had no definite material triumphs, but in whom life still burns strong and clear. They have resisted the satiety which is the Nemesis of worldly life.

[The Christian Intelligencer]

The very sublimity of the Christian ideal accentuates the severity of the struggle necessary to its attainment. When we hear its supreme requirement of holy love and catch a mental glimpse of the sinless Christ, it seems an inaccessible thing. It seems so far away as to render all attempt to reach it sheer folly, and there is danger of despair. And this is the feeling that must be conquered. What if we cannot ever stand where Christ stands upon the mountain top; it is grand to be climbing nearer and nearer up its difficult slopes, and to see larger and larger views widening to our vision, and to breathe purer and more exhilarating air.

[W. Quay Rosselle, D.D., in The Homiletic Review]

Some way we poor humans are so limited in our spiritual vision that we can see God from the depths when we cannot see Him from the heights of happiness. You cannot see the stars in daytime, just because the heavens are so luminous, but from the bottom of a well you can see them as well as at night. So from the depths of trial millions have seen the God who was so invisible to them in the daylight of pleasant circumstance.

[The Christian Register]

The great fact about imagination is not that it is a power to see things unworldly and dreamlike, but to see things before they come to pass, and to feel the deep vitalities of the best things that are. The highest idealisms are not with those who talk best of them, but with those whose doing, whatever it is, shows their sustenance and their quality.

[Rev. James I. Vance in Record of Christian Work]

The new Jerusalem is not a residential center for departed spirits. It is the holy city "coming down from God out of heaven." It is a state of society in which the common average life is developed along the measures of Jesus, and where life is related in harmony with his teachings.

Special Announcements

From the Publisher of Mrs. Eddy's Works

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE TEXT-BOOK, "SCIENCE AND HEALTH WITH KEY TO THE SCRIPTURES."—See back cover of this periodical for styles of bindings and prices.

CONCORDANCE TO SCIENCE AND HEALTH.—A new edition of this volume is announced, printed from new plates and bound in stiff morocco. Single copy, $5.00; six or more, each $4.50.

CONCORDANCE TO MRS. EDDY'S PUBLISHED WRITINGS OTHER THAN SCIENCE AND HEALTH.—Published only in the India Bible paper edition, with stiff morocco covers; uniform in style with the Concordance to Science and Health. Price, $6.00; six or more, each $5.50.

Announcement is made of the publication of a new edition of the German translation of the Manual of The Mother Church. This edition is printed with alternate pages of English and German, and is uniform in binding and price with the regular cloth-bound edition. If those who have purchased the Manual in German, but without the English pages, wish to exchange them for new copies with both English and German text, without additional charge, they can do so by sending their German copies to the Publisher, postage paid, marking the name and address of the sender plainly on the wrapper. In exchange for all copies so returned the Publisher will send copies of the new edition without charge, postage paid.

Announcement is made of the printing of an edition of Rudimental Divine Science in the American Braille system of type for the blind. Single copy, 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

Orders for the books named above and other works by Mrs. Eddy should be addressed to ALLISON V. STEWART, Falmouth and St. Paul Streets, Boston, Mass.

❖

From the Editor

All manuscripts submitted for publication in the Sentinel, Journal, and Herold, whether articles, poems, or testimonies, and all correspondence relating thereto, should be addressed to the EDITOR, and not to individuals.

❖

From the Publishing Society

The increased cost of leather has necessitated an advance in the prices of the leather bound hymnals, and the following prices became effective May 1, 1917. Delivery charges prepaid. Morocco, pocket edition, one copy $3.50; six copies to one address $19.50; twelve copies to one address $36.00. Morocco, large size, one copy $3.75; six copies to one address $21.00; twelve copies to one address $39.00. Levant, large size, one copy $4.75; six copies to one address $27.00; twelve copies to one address $51.00.

In the announcement of April 28, the price of the large size morocco hymnal was listed by mistake at $3.50 a copy. The listing in the May Journal was incorrect and correction will appear in the June issue.

❖

From the Clerk of The Mother Church

CHURCH TENETS.—The tenets of The First Church of Christ, Scientist,—The Mother Church,—printed on folded sheet for use of the branch Churches of Christ, Scientist, with space for printing their authorized forms of application for membership or extracts from their by-laws, can be had at seventy-five cents a hundred. Orders will not be taken for less than one hundred and postage stamps should not be sent in payment.

Correspondence relative to the tenets or to membership with The Mother Church, should be sent to J. V. DITTEMORE, Clerk, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

❖

From the Church Treasurer

The annual per capita tax of members of The Mother Church is due June 1, but may be paid at any time during the year. The per capita tax of members uniting in November is reckoned from the preceding June, this being the beginning of the church year. Unless otherwise directed by the sender, the full amount of each remittance will be credited for the current year.

Please remit by postal or express money order, bank draft, or check. Currency should be sent by registered letter only.

Please advise promptly of any change in name or address.

Send per capita taxes and contributions to ADAM H. DICKEY, Treasurer, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

Digitized by Google

The Christian Science Journal

Published Monthly

Founded April, 1883, by Mary Baker Eddy, Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, and author of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures."

This monthly magazine is the official organ of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. In addition to articles, editorials, and testimonies not published elsewhere, it contains a complete list of Christian Science practitioners, and a directory of Christian Science Churches, Societies, and Reading Rooms.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $2; six months $1; three months 50 cents. SALE PRICE: Single copy 20 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 15 cents. For Canada add 25 cents for postage. SALE PRICE: Single copy 20 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 17 cents. In all other countries add 65 cents for postage for each annual subscription. SALE PRICE: Single copy 25 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 20 cents.

BOUND VOLUMES: Current and past year, cloth $3.00; half calf or half morocco $3.75. On earlier volumes write for prices.

The Christian Science Quarterly

Published January, April, July, and October

Contains the Lesson-Sermons which are read at the Sunday services throughout the year in all the Christian Science churches. These Lessons, which present citations from the Bible and "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," are valuable for daily study. Also printed in Dutch and German.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION AND SALE: In the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year 50 cents; single copy 15 cents; four copies or more to one address, each 12½ cents. For all other countries one year 60 cents; single copy 18 cents; four copies or more, each 15 cents.

Subscriptions not accepted for less than one year. Subscriptions begin with current quarter unless otherwise designated, and terminate with the last of the month named on wrapper.

The Christian Science Monitor

Published Daily, Except Sundays and Legal Holidays

An international daily newspaper. Adequate news service. The various departments of a modern newspaper. Unique Home Forum page. Entire page of editorials dealing with the vital topics of the day. Contributions to the columns of the MONITOR should be addressed: Editor, THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States (except in the Boston Postal District), Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $5; six months $2.50; three months $1.25; one month 50 cents. In all other countries additional postage at the rate of $3 yearly is required. By carrier through a local newsdealer: one month 60 cents. In the Boston Postal District, by mail, one year $7.20. Quantity rates will be furnished on application.

Der Herold der Christian Science

Published Monthly

A magazine printed in German, which publishes original and translated articles bearing upon Christian Science, also testimonials of healing.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $1; six months 50 cents; three months 25 cents. For other countries, one year $1.25; six months 63 cents; three months 32 cents.

SALE PRICE, DOMESTIC TERRITORY AND CANADA, POSTPAID: Single copy 10 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 8 cents. Foreign rate, single copy 12 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 10 cents.

Bound Volumes in cloth, $2.75 each; half calf or half morocco $3.50 each. Write for list of volumes in stock.

Pamphlets

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS RELIGIOUS PHILOSOPHY. By HON. CLARENCE A. BUSKIRK.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: "THE RESURRECTION AND THE LIFE." By CLARENCE W. CHADWICK.

CAUSATION: VIEWED IN THE LIGHT OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By FREDERICK DIXON. Also printed in Norwegian and Swedish.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING VS. MENTAL SUGGESTION. By FREDERICK DIXON. Reprinted from the Weekly Budget, London, England. Also printed in Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE TRUE CHRISTIANITY. By CLARENCE C. EATON.

"THE SONS OF GOD." By COL. WILLIAM E. FELL.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE REVELATION OF CHRIST. By JOHN W. DOOBLY.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE VS. FINITE SENSE. By FRANCIS J. FLEMO, M.D.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE GOSPEL OF FREEDOM. By WILLIS F. GROSS.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE SCIENCE OF SALVATION. By HERMANN S. HERING.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING: SPIRITUAL AND SCIENTIFIC. By PROF. HERMANN S. HERING. Also printed in German.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS CONCERNING CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. Also printed in Dutch, German, and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS ADVANTAGE TO MANKIND. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. A London lecture. Also printed in French.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: MAN'S DOMINION OVER EVIL. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. Also printed in modern Greek, Italian, Norwegian, and Russian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS DIVINE AUTHORITY. By BLISS KNAPP.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE EXPLANATION OF THE IDEAL MAN. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS DISCOVERY AND DEVELOPMENT. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: GOD'S LOVINGKINDNESS PROVED TO MEN. By REV. WILLIAM P. MCKENZIE. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS RESULTS. By WILLIAM R. RATHVON. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE RELIGION OF DIVINE LAW. By JACOB S. SHIELD.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM. By JUDGE CLIFFORD P. SMITH. Also printed in French and German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A RELIGION OF LOVE. By VIRGIL O. STRICKLER. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE NEW BIRTH. By BICKNELL YOUNG. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

THE LAW OF KINDNESS.
"WHAT WENT YE OUT FOR TO SEE?"
"THEN THE FULL GRAIN IN THE EAR."
"AWAKE THOU THAT SLEEPEST"
LAW AND WORK.
CONFIDENCE AND SUPPLY.
BIRTHRIGHT AND DOMINION.
UPWARD FOOTSTEPS. Also printed in Dutch.
FULFILLING THE LAW. Also printed in Danish.
PRAYER AND HEALING. Also printed in French and German.
THE DIVINE NATURE. Also printed in Dutch and Norwegian.
ENVIRONMENT AND OPPORTUNITY. Also printed in French.
THE FATHER'S BUSINESS. Also printed in German and Swedish.
SEEKING AND FINDING. Also printed in Dutch, German, and Swedish.
THE PROVIDENCE OF GOOD. Also printed in French, Spanish, and Swedish.

Other Translated Pamphlets

FAITH AND GENEROSITY. Printed in French-English.
MAN'S UNITY WITH GOD. Printed in German only.
"PEACE ON EARTH." Printed in German only.
PRAYER AND CONFIDENCE. Printed in German. Also in Dutch-English.
MARY BAKER EDDY. By ARTHUR BRISBANE. Printed in German only.
MARY BAKER EDDY: HER PURPOSE AND ACCOMPLISHMENT. By FREDERICK DIXON. Printed in German. Also in French-English.
THE FOUNDER OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By B. O. FLOWER. Printed in German only.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A REASONABLE AND RATIONAL VIEW OF ALL THINGS. By FRANCIS J. FLEMO, M.D. Printed in Dutch-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: HUMANITY'S HELPER. By PROF. HERMANN S. HERING. Printed in Dutch-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE COMFORTER OF PROMISE. By FRANK H. LEONARD. Printed in French-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: DEMONSTRABLE RELIGION. By FRANK H. LEONARD. Printed in Norwegian only.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A RELIGION OF PROGRESS. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Printed in Swedish. Also in French-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS PRINCIPLE AND METHOD. By BICKNELL YOUNG. Printed in Swedish. Also in French-English.

PRICE, POSTPAID: Single copy 5 cents; twelve copies to one address 55 cents; fifty copies $2; one hundred copies $3.50. Orders for above pamphlets may be assorted as desired.

For table of English, German, Swiss, and French money equivalents, see inside front cover page.

Miscellaneous

A Catalogue of Selected Bibles will be furnished upon application, and quantity rates on other items specified below will be found in the current catalogue in The Christian Science Journal.

BIBLES. 01483 x. Chrendon Brevier, heavy faced, distinct type; Turkey morocco, corresponding in size and binding to pocket edition of Science and Health, $4.75.

01440 x. Brevier, light faced type; self-pronouncing, Turkey morocco, corresponding in size and binding to pocket edition of Science and Health, $4.50.

01683 x. Large type Bible, 10¾ x 8 inches, bound in Alaska seal. Specially adapted for use of second readers, $12.50.

Black morocco open case to hold pocket edition of Science and Health, Quarterly, and Bible, $1.40.

Two other sizes of open case listed in the current issue of the Journal.

Black morocco closed case with handle and purse on outside, $3.75; without purse, $3.50.

The improved index will be added to any Bible listed in our catalogue for an additional charge of 35 cents. Catalogue No. 23 of selected Bibles will be mailed free upon application.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS ON THE LIFE AND WORK OF MARY BAKER EDDY. 132 pages with index. Paper covered, 15 cents; cloth binding, 85 cents.

THE LIFE OF MARY BAKER EDDY. By Sibyl Wilbur. 424 pages. Cloth, $2. Edition de luxe, $5.

PERSONAL CONTAGION, ALSO WHAT OUR LEADER SAYS. By Mary Baker Eddy. Special pamphlet. Paper cover, 10 cents.

THE MOTHER CHURCH. By Joseph Armstrong. A history of the building of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. Illustrated, 107 pages. Cloth, $1.50.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS LEGAL STATUS. By Judge Clifford P. Smith. 128 pages, paper covered, 10 cents.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HYMNAL. Cloth, $1.15; half morocco, $1.40; full morocco, $3.75; levant, $4.75; pocket edition, size 4⅝ x 6⅝, $3.50.

SHEET MUSIC. Poems written by Mary Baker Eddy and used by special permission, have been set to music as follows: "The Mother's Evening Prayer," 75 cents; "Christ, My Refuge," 75 cents; "Love," 40 cents; Communion Hymn—"Saw Ye My Saviour?" (Johnson), 50 cents; "Blest Christmas Morn," 27 cents; "O'er Waiting Harpstrings of the Mind," 27 cents; "Shepherd, Show Me How to Go," 27 cents; "Saw Ye My Saviour?" (Root), 27 cents. The first three hymns are arranged for high and low voice in the same copy. The last five hymns are published separately in high and low keys. When ordering state key desired.

PHOTOGRAVURE OF MRS. EDDY, printed in three sizes on India paper and mounted on heavy plate paper ready for framing. 8 inch (mount 12 x 16), $1; 12-inch (mount 15 x 20), $2; 16-inch (mount 21 x 29), $3.50.

PICTURE OF THE FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, IN BOSTON, MASS., AND THE PUBLISHING HOUSE. Artist's proof with remarque on Japanese vellum, size 18 x 24 inches, $5; on India paper without remarque, $3. Smaller reproduction, size 11 x 14 inches, on Japanese vellum, $1. Photogravure postcards of the Church Edifice and Publishing House, 5 cents.

QUARTERLY COVERS in black morocco, $1.80; with purse, $1.50.

ALUMINUM LESSON MARKERS. Set of thirty, with paper shields, 50 cents. Extra paper shields, one hundred, 15 cents.

PRICE LIST OF BIBLE CONCORDANCES AND DICTIONARIES OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE supplied on request. Express charges collect on delivery.

REPRINTS (not printed in English). Two-page leaflets, 14 subjects in French and Swedish; 18 subjects in German. Ten copies to one address, 10 cents.

Remittances should always accompany orders, and be made by check, money order, or exchange on Boston or New York. Currency or coin should not be sent by mail unless registered. Please send no money or business letters to the Editor or Editorial Department.

Send all orders for the works of Mrs. Eddy, with remittance by New York or Boston draft or money order, direct to Allison V. Stewart
For literature listed above address orders and make remittances payable to

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

FALMOUTH AND ST. PAUL STREETS, BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

Digitized by Google

Works on Christian Science

Written by MARY BAKER EDDY, Discoverer and Founder
of Christian Science and Author of its Text-book

Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures. In one volume, 700 pages. The original, standard, and only text-book on Christian Science Mind-healing. Cloth, one to eleven copies inclusive (cloth only), each $3.00; twelve or more, each $2.75. Full leather, stiff, beveled boards, gilt edges, same paper as in cloth binding, single copy $4.00; twelve or more, each $3.75. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $5.00; twelve or more, each $4.75. Levant, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, round corners, gilt edges, silk sewed, heavy Oxford India Bible paper (wide margins, large-sized book), single copy $6.00; twelve or more, each $5.75.

LARGE TYPE EDITION. Designed especially for the use of First Readers. Large type (18-point) on Oxford India Bible paper, bound in leather. Size 10¾ inches long by 8 inches wide. Single copy $7.50, with a discount of 25 cents each when included in an order for twelve or more copies of Science and Health, and in any or all of the different bindings.

GERMAN TRANSLATION. Alternate pages of English and German. Cloth, one to five copies inclusive, each $3.50; six or more, each $3.25. Pocket edition, printed on Oxford India Bible paper. Morocco, one to five copies inclusive, each $5.50; six or more, each $5.25. Orders for the German translation in lots of six or more may include both bindings.

Orders for Science and Health in lots of twelve or more at quantity prices may include both English and German editions, and different styles of binding.

Miscellaneous Writings. A book of 471 pages, containing articles published in The Christian Science Journal from 1883 to 1896, with revisions and additions. Cloth, single copy $2.25; twelve or more, each $2.00. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $4.00; twelve or more, each $3.75. Levant, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, round corners, gilt edges, silk sewed, Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $5.00; twelve or more, each $4.75. Orders for Miscellaneous Writings in lots of twelve or more may include any or all of the different styles of binding. No discount will be allowed on orders for twelve books which include both Science and Health and Miscellaneous Writings.

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany. A book of 366 pages, containing articles published in The Christian Science Journal and Sentinel, subsequent to the compilation of Miscellaneous Writings, together with historical matter pertaining thereto. Cloth, single copy $2.25; six or more, each $2.00. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $4.00; six or more, each $3.75. Orders for six or more may include the two styles of binding.

Concordance to Science and Health. This work contains about eighty thousand references (more than ten thousand words being indexed), also an index to the Marginal Headings, and a list of the Scriptural Quotations in Science and Health. 641 pages, stiff morocco cover, single copy $5.00; six or more, each $4.50.

Concordance to Mrs. Eddy's Published Writings Other Than Science and Health. It contains 1,103 pages, and is published only in Bible paper edition, with stiff morocco cover. Single copy, $6.00; six or more, each, $5.50.

Christ and Christmas. An illustrated poem. Single copy $3.00; six or more, each $2.50.

Unity of Good and Other Writings. One volume, containing Unity of Good, Rudimental Divine Science, No and Yes, Retrospection and Introspection; uniform in style with the pocket edition of Science and Health. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, heavy Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $3.50; six or more, each $3.25.

Christian Healing and Other Writings. One volume, containing Christian Healing, The People's Idea of God, Pulpit and Press, Christian Science versus Pantheism, Messages of 1900, 1901, 1902; uniform in style with the pocket edition of Science and Health. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, heavy Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $3.50; six or more, each $3.25.

Church Manual. Containing the By-laws of The Mother Church. Cloth, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents. Pocket edition, morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $2.00; six or more, each $1.75.

GERMAN TRANSLATION. Alternate pages of English and German. Cloth, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Retrospection and Introspection. A biographical sketch of the author; the way she was led to the discovery of Christian Science; its fundamental idea and growth. Library edition, cloth, 95 pages, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Unity of Good. This book lays the axe at the root of error, elucidating and enforcing practical Christian Science, thus affording invaluable directions for all true Scientists. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, 64 pages, single copy 60 cents; six or more, each 45 cents. Pocket edition, leather covers, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Pulpit and Press. A unique work, of importance in the history and to the readers of Christian Science; containing the message or sermon written for the dedicatory service of The Mother Church, January 6, 1895, and scintillations from the press of that occasion. Library edition, cloth, 90 pages, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Rudimental Divine Science. A brief and concise statement of Divine Science, alias Christian Science, in the form of questions and answers. Pebbled cloth covers, gilt top, 17 pages, single copy 32 cents; six or more, each 25 cents. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 35 cents.

PRINTED in the New York point and American Braille systems of type for the use of the blind, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

No and Yes. A brief statement of very important points in Christian Science. Pebbled cloth covers, 46 pages, single copy 32 cents; six or more, each 25 cents. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 55 cents; six or more, each 45 cents.

Messages to The Mother Church. Including in one volume, 94 pages, Christian Science versus Pantheism, and the Messages of 1900, 1901, and 1902. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy $1.50; six or more, each $1.15.

Christian Science versus Pantheism. The Pastor Emeritus' Message delivered at the Communion Season in The Mother Church in Boston, June, 1898. A clear and strong refutation of the charge that Christian Scientists are pantheists. Pebbled cloth covers, 15 pages, single copy 25 cents; six or more, each 20 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1900. Paper covers, deckled edges, 15 pages, single copy 25 cents; six or more, each 20 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1901. Paper covers, deckled edges, 35 pages, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 38 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1902. Paper covers, deckled edges, 20 pages, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 38 cents.

Christian Healing, and The People's Idea of God. Two sermons in one volume, 36 pages. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 55 cents; six or more, each 45 cents.

Christian Healing. A sermon delivered in Boston. Paper covers, 20 pages, single copy 20 cents; six or more, each 17 cents.

The People's Idea of God. A sermon delivered in Boston. Paper covers, 14 pages, single copy 20 cents; six or more, each 17 cents.

Poems. This volume of 79 pages includes all of Mrs. Eddy's hymns, also her earlier poems which appeared in various publications from forty to sixty years ago. Specially bound. Single copy $1.50; six or more, each $1.25.

Feed My Sheep. Solo. Words by Mary Baker Eddy, music by Lyman F. Brackett. Single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

The foregoing prices cover all charges for express or postage on shipments either domestic or foreign.

Quantity prices are on shipments to one address only, but quantity lots at quantity prices cannot be made up of different books or of different styles of binding. Attention is called, however, to the exception to this rule which is made in the cases of Science and Health, and of Miscellaneous Writings, as given under these titles in this price list.

Address all orders for above works, and make remittance by New York or Boston draft or money order, to

ALLISON V. STEWART, FALMOUTH AND ST. PAUL STS., BOSTON, MASS.

Digitized by Google

MAY 19 1917

WISCONSIN HISTORICAL LIBRARY

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SENTINEL

"What I say unto you I say unto all-WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX No. 38

Boston, May 19, 1917

Contents of This Number

Items of Interest (Brief Mention of Important Events) 742
Organization . Judge Septimus J. Hanna 743
Fulfilment . . . . Myra Emmons 744
"All that I have is thine" John Murray Burriss 744
Gratitude . . . Anna M. Grafelman 745
Greater Blessings . Horace W. Hebbard 746
Obeying and Giving (Poem) Samuel Johnstone Macdonald 747
Selected Articles 747
Editorial
Good Omnipotent and Eternal . 750
Filibustering 750
"An holy priesthood" . . . 751
Infringement of Copyright Claim . 751
Among the Churches (Current Notes)
Sydney, Australia 751
Galveston, Texas 752
Michigan City, Ind. 752
The Lectures
Santa Cruz, Cal. 752
Minneapolis, Minn. 752
Ithaca, N. Y. 752
Mill Valley, Cal. 752
Testimonies of Healing 754
From Our Exchanges 757

A LADY WITH A LAMP SHALL STAND IN THE GREAT HISTORY OF THE LAND

A NOBLE TYPE OF GOOD HEROIC WOMANHOOD
Longfellow

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY
FALMOUTH AND ST PAUL STREETS BOSTON MASS U.S.A.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

(THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE WEEKLY)

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY BY

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

Falmouth and St. Paul Sts., Boston, Mass., U.S.A.

ARCHIBALD McLELLAN
Editor

ANNIE M. KNOTT — WILLIAM D. McCRACKAN
Associate Editors

Subscription Price

Payable in advance

Annual subscription price, postpaid, in the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, $2.50; six months, $1.00; three months, 50 cents. For Canada add 45 cents and for all other countries 85 cents annually for postage. For subscriptions in quantities please refer to page four in THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE JOURNAL.

Subscriptions to the SENTINEL will begin with the current issue unless otherwise specified. The delivery of the periodical will indicate that a remittance has been credited and will be our acknowledgment of the subscription.

Bound Volumes: Current year or two years previous, cloth, $3.25; half calf or half morocco, $4.00. On earlier volumes write for prices.

Terms of Sale

	United States, Mexico, and Cuba	Canada	All Other Countries
Single copy	$ .05	$ .06	$ .07
Four or more copies . .	.03½	.04	.05

Equivalents of United States money

		£	s.	d.	Marks	Francs
$ .60	equals	0	2	6	2.52	3.12
1.15	"	0	4	9	4.85	5.98
1.25	"	0	5	2	5.30	6.50
2.33	"	0	9	7	9.83	12.09
2.38	"	0	9	10	10.05	12.35
2.63	"	0	10	9	11.10	13.65
2.65	"	0	10	10	11.20	13.78
2.70	"	0	11	1	11.40	14.04
2.95	"	0	12	2	12.50	15.34
5.00	"	1	0	7	21.15	26.00
7.50	"	1	10	10	31.73	39.00
8.00	"	1	12	11	33.85	41.60

Make all remittances payable to The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Postage required for remailing this copy: 1 cent domestic and Canada; 2 cents other countries.

Entered at Boston, Mass., post-office as second-class matter.

Items of Interest

The New York State Barge Canal, which will be opened to navigation between Buffalo and Albany this month, is one of the world's great engineering feats. It is about ten times as long as the Panama Canal and has many more engineering works; it also has some of the most notable locks in the world. It is costing the people of the state $150,000,000. This canal consists of four branches: the Erie, 339 miles in length, running across the state from Waterford on the Hudson River to Tonawanda, where the Niagara River is entered and followed to Lake Erie; the Champlain, 61 miles long, running northward along the easterly boundary of the state from Waterford to Whitehall at the southern end of Lake Champlain; the Oswego, 23 miles, branching from the Erie Canal north of Syracuse and running northward to Oswego on Lake Ontario; and the Cayuga-Seneca Canal, 23 miles, leaving the Erie west of the Oswego junction and running southward, connecting with the large lakes from which it takes its name. The system utilizes wherever practicable all the rivers and lakes, canalizing them by the building of dams, locks, and other engineering works, and attaining what is known as "slack water" navigation. Less than 30 per cent of the canal is restricted to "land line."

The canal has a minimum depth of 12 feet throughout. It is 75 feet wide, with earth sections of the "land line" 94 feet wide in rock cuts, and has a minimum width of 209 feet in the beds of canalized rivers and lakes. The five locks at Waterford, the eastern entrance to the Erie, have the distinction of being the greatest series of high lift locks in existence, having a combined lift of 169 feet, which is one foot less than the total lift of every lock in the Panama Canal.

Four animals closely related to the camel of Africa and Asia inhabit the Andean highlands. Of these, the vicugna and guanaco are wild and hold no important position as a source of wealth. The alpaca and the llama are domesticated. The llama, the pack animal in universal use, withstands the rigors of the climate, is able to subsist on the sparse nourishment available, and endures the atmospheric conditions at great altitudes far better than the horse, the mule, or the burro. The alpaca is closely related to the llama, but is smaller, rarely attaining a height of three feet. It has been found impossible to acclimate this animal outside of its regular haunts in the Andes, even under the most favorable conditions and with the best care possible. It is customary to shear the alpaca every second year. The present yield of wool averages about ten to fifteen pounds an animal every second year. In 1914, the latest year for which complete statistics are available, the production of alpaca wool in Peru and Bolivia was valued at $1,548,543, and of llama wool at $90,137.

Two countries of South America have no seacoast. Of these, Paraguay has its great river system that traverses its territory, but Bolivia has no water communication to the sea. When the Peruvian Government undertook the construction of the Southern Railway of Peru in 1868, it was acting upon the advice of an American engineer, who overcame the barriers that the Andes opposed to the successful development of the rich resources of that region. Bolivia, as well as the fertile agricultural region about the shores of Lake Titicaca and the headwaters of the Madre de Dios River, was the objective when the Southern Railway was planned. Its successful completion opened for development a region of great mineral and agricultural importance, and gave Bolivia a port on the Pacific at Mollendo. Two other railways have since been constructed, connecting Bolivia with the ports of Antofagasta and Arica in Chile.

At the annual meeting of the Institute of Chemical Engineers at the Chemists Club, New York City, Prof. John E. Bucher of Brown University talked on the means of getting nitrogen from the air into chemical combination. He had discovered that mixing soda ash and powdered iron, or iron ore, and powdered coke together, and heating them in an ordinary furnace, then running air through the furnace, would produce at very low cost cyanide of soda with the iron uncombined. The great thing, said the speaker, is that here appears to be a way of doing what chemists have been after for forty years, without any other raw materials than coal, iron, soda, and air, and without the need of water power.

Study of the results of an investigation of the heat insulating efficiency of various materials has been made by the United States Bureau of Standards, and although absolute statements would not be warranted at the present stage, certain preliminary conclusions have been stated. In general it appears that gypsum shows a greater efficiency as a fire insulating material. Concrete and clay vary somewhat, depending upon their porosity. The denser clays conduct the heat a little more rapidly than concrete. The more porous clays, however, conduct heat somewhat less rapidly than the concrete.

That Canada's timber resources are the third largest in the world is suggested in a report on Canadian woods prepared by the forest products laboratories. It is estimated that the present supply of commercial timber is perhaps 800,000,000,000 feet board measure, covering an area of approximately 250,000,000 acres. This estimate, which is about half of the forested area of the Dominion, refers only to saw timber. Material suitable for pulp wood, firewood, poles, and the like, is not included.

Passage of remedial legislation by Congress to relieve the United States from the grasp of the "oil trust" was advocated by members of the Senate and the House of Representatives with the publication of the long delayed gasoline report of the Federal Trade Commission. The commission's recommendation, among others, that a law be passed preventing common stock ownership in corporations supposedly dissolved by the proceedings against the Standard Oil Company under the Sherman antitrust act, met with approval at the capitol.

That a way to end the old warfare between the smelters and the farmers has been found is claimed by the University of California. That the solid wastes from smelters are harmless to crops has now been proved by the university, and it has been discovered that the smelter fumes, which are unquestionably injurious to crops, can readily be used up in the making of sulphuric acid, and this by-product sold, preferably to the farmers to be used for the reclamation of alkali lands.

In order to increase the economy and efficiency of operation of the Postal Department, a dead letter office was established in San Francisco May 1. This office will have jurisdiction over the states of California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Nevada, Arizona, Utah, New Mexico, and Alaska, and all so-called "dead" mail matter originating in this territory will be sent to San Francisco instead of to Washington.

A report has been made of the proposed conservancy work in the middle and lower portions of the West River Valley in Kwangtung Province, South China. The delta around and below the city of Canton is a network of streams which are bank high much of the time. Farther up, the embankments have been eroded by flood and rain for many years, and in some parts demolished or given makeshift repairs.

The question of coal supply has been one of extreme importance to Spain during the present war, and at last she intends to become a shipper of coal. The Spanish minister of works states that he has received from a producing company an offer to increase its production from 700,000 tons annually, at which it stands at present, to 1,700,000, if the Government will guarantee the means of transport.

At a recent sitting of the congress of the council of workmen's and soldiers' delegates, held at Petrograd, Russia, resolutions were passed favoring the suppression of classes and titles and the confiscation of all lands belonging to the Crown, the church, and also the monasteries. Provision is made for the transfer of the lands to the use of the peasants.

Representatives from the Carnegie Institution have been making investigations of climatic conditions in Peru, with a view to establishing an observatory in that country. This is the second scientific expedition to investigate the atmospheric advantages offered for astronomical observations in Peru.

Tin has been the principal item of Bolivian export for many years, the bulk of the production having been shipped to Great Britain. Bolivia holds second place among the tin producing centers of the world, and many good mines and prospects are still open to development.

Special efforts have been made in Mexico to restore and improve the facilities of transportation and communication which in many places were damaged or allowed to fall into disrepair during the revolution.

The total production of minerals in New Zealand from Jan. 1, 1858, to Dec. 31, 1915, was valued at $510,162,461.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

"What I say unto you, I say unto all, WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX May 19, 1917 No. 38

Organization

JUDGE SEPTIMUS J. HANNA

SOMETIMES we hear of opposition to the Christian Science "organization," as some are pleased to call it, and when we do we are led to wonder if those who object to organization have deeply considered the question, or whether they have been carried along by a mesmeric wave of aggressive suggestion. Organization has a broad lexicographical definition. It is defined as the process of arranging and getting into proper working order. Its purpose is to arrange or dispose of business systematically; it means the putting together of the parts of an aggregate body for work or action. It is also intended to bring out unity of action and purpose, cooperation, the carrying out of a common purpose, adhesion and cohesion rather than disjointed and irregular effort.

Viewed in the light of such definitions the divine plan is the very height of organization. The stellar universe is a striking example of cooperation. Each planet, while acting within its own orbit and having its individual functions to perform, is nevertheless dependent upon its fellow planets for its full expression and must move in cooperation with them. If it were possible for a planet to separate itself from the whole, it would at once fly off at a tangent and be brought to speedy destruction. The stellar system is both unitary and complex. Without the individual planet there could be no aggregation of planets.

As with the stellar universe, so in degree with mankind. Each individual is a unit, but it requires individuals to make a grand total; hence the unity and cooperation, both of which are necessary. God is one. Yet God without His ideas, that is, His manifestation, would not be. As Mrs. Eddy says: "Man is the expression of God's being. If there ever was a moment when man did not express the divine perfection, then there was a moment when man did not express God, and consequently a time when Deity was unexpressed—that is, without entity" (Science and Health, p. 470).

Without the coactivity of God and man, Principle and idea, there could be no brotherhood of man, and Jesus' teaching would be of no effect, for he distinctly taught that love of the neighbor was the essence of Christianity. Love of the neighbor necessarily implies cooperation, or mutuality of thought and purpose. This mutuality in religious affairs by common usage and necessity takes the form of church organization. Jesus recognized this when he said to Simon, "Thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church." This passage of Scripture is quoted and commented upon on page 137 of Science and Health, while on the preceding page Mrs. Eddy says, "Jesus established his church and maintained his mission on a spiritual foundation of Christ-healing."

In accord with what Jesus taught is the definition of church on page 583 of Science and Health. This spiritual church has its type on the human plane in the material organization which is necessary to the cooperation and cohesion of those who are working to a common end in establishing the kingdom of God upon earth. Were this kingdom already established, there would of course be no need of human methods; but until then the need must be met as are other human needs,—by reasonable concessions to the law of demand and supply.

One of the great events in connection with the Christian Science movement was the organization of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., the record of which is so touchingly set forth in the introduction to the Church Manual. As the outgrowth of that small beginning there is the present great Mother Church in Boston, with branches in almost all parts of the world. As the further outgrowth of this church the following adjuncts to it have been brought into being:—

The Lesson-Sermons, which are sounding the word of Life from thousands of pulpits all over the globe.

The board of education, which is providing teachers of Christian Science to meet the needs of Christian Scientists in all parts of the world.

The board of lectureship, which is proclaiming to millions of listening ears the glad tidings of great joy.

The Christian Science literature, which through monthly, weekly, and daily publications is enlightening thought and elevating purpose in every land.

The establishment of reading-rooms wherever there is a branch church or society, where all the literature of the movement may be read "without money and without price" by all desiring to become acquainted with Christian Science.

These are among the more public means and methods of organized effort. In addition to these, and basing them all, is an army of Christian Science practitioners, who are healing the multitudes everywhere and in no small measure doing the works which the great Physician commanded his followers to do. All these activities are the outgrowth of that organization effected by the Leader of the Christian Science movement and the "little band of earnest seekers after Truth" (Manual, p. 17) who met together in Boston in the spring of 1879.

In the face of all this,—and much more that might be mentioned,—who having the right conception of the meaning of organization would wish to dispense with it? Who thus seeing would desire the disorganization of The Mother Church and her branches? Who having a true conception of the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man would have such useful and efficient expressions of that fatherhood and that brotherhood annulled? Who is there in this world sufficient unto himself to meet unaided all the fiery darts of the adversary? What manner of egotism would that be which would lead any person to believe himself capable of working out his salvation without the brotherly cooperation of his fellow men?

A conception that would hold such a salvation possible would ignore the need of a Bible, of the prophets, of the apostles, and even of the great Wayshower himself. All these provisions of the all-loving Father would be useless and unnecessary if such a conception had any place whatever.

Jesus illustrated the power of organization—of brotherly

Copyright, 1917, by The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Digitized by Google

cooperation—in his thrice repeated admonition to Peter to feed his sheep. Jesus represented the great shepherd constantly watching over his flock. This word flock, implying the body or aggregation of his followers, was one of his favorite expressions, and this body comprised his church, or those who were taught of him. To the best of their understanding these followers were acting together, and in that sense were an organization; or to use Paul's words in the twelfth chapter of his epistle to the Romans, we are "many members in one body," and we are, as he continues, "one body in Christ, and every one members one of another."

✧

Fulfilment

MYRA EMMONS

As the divine Mind necessarily contains the complete fulfilment of its purpose respecting the divine ideas, it is essential for the appearing of God's kingdom on earth that this fulfilment should come to each individual consciousness. Then, as Paul has said, each shall have "rejoicing in himself alone, and not in another." The glorious message of Christian Science to the world is that this individual at-one-ment with God can in no way interfere with that of any other idea of God. How different from the world's cruel dictum that some must be crushed to make way for others! Christian Science also teaches that nothing can prevent the fulfilment of man's true destiny, for, as Mrs. Eddy tells us, "divine Love cannot be deprived of its manifestation, or object" (Science and Health, p. 304).

The demand for this fulfilment is already in the divine Mind, and the supply is there. This demand forces us on, though sometimes to the human sense with mighty struggles. A series of pictures recently shown on a moving picture film appealed to a Christian Scientist as illustrating the thought of growth. The series showed processes of plant life from the sowing of the seed to the blooming of the flower. When a tiny seed which was to produce a dainty flower was put into the earth, the ground soon became agitated. Then the seed began to quiver and expand, and gently pushing the earth aside, its delicate shoots forced their way upward. Not so, however, with the acorn, whose struggles were curiously interesting to watch. It had to become an oak, and all the energy of its great future seemed to be concentrated in the embryo. With mighty heaving it fairly tore the earth asunder and struggled stupendously for the light. The outcome was to be in proportion to the effort.

In the human sense of life the yearning for the expression of man's identity, for recognition and fulfilment, causes the seeming struggle between the spiritual idea and the flesh. In ancient days this desire was typified by the prayer of the Hebrew women that they might bring forth sons, for thus did they interpret the divine command to multiply and replenish the earth. Christian Science beautifully translates this into a spiritual aspiration to reflect God, thus interpreting God's law that no idea of the divine Mind is or can be barren or fruitless. This interpretation makes plain the command voiced by Isaiah: "Sing, O barren, thou that didst not bear; break forth into singing, and cry aloud, thou that didst not travail with child: for more are the children of the desolate than the children of the married wife, saith the Lord."

The recognition of man's individual identity as the expression of Soul, establishes in man his uprightness and his indestructibility. In the beautiful story of the Shunammite woman we discern that it was her faith in Elisha which enabled her to answer, "It is well," though she had shut the door upon what seemed her dead son, the child of promise, and in anguish of heart lay with her face to the ground, clinging to the feet of the man of God. Had she been deceived and mocked? Had she brought forth in vain? No, she had not, nor had she trusted in vain, for soon she was to hear the prophet's ringing words, "Take up thy son," and it was a glad awakening for both child and mother.

When the Shunammite's faith endured the supreme test of turning from idolatry to the only true God, she was rewarded by the proof that in Him is life eternal; and because the only real life of her son was always and forever in this one God, she was not separated either from God or from His reflection. How often does a sorrowing cry go up from the human heart, and how inevitably it is answered in Christian Science! The Master said, "Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing? and one of them shall not fall on the ground without your Father;" and we read in Isaiah, "They shall not build, and another inhabit . . . They shall not labor in vain, nor bring forth for trouble."

The understanding in Christian Science that man is idea, never a manifestation of matter, like the knowledge that he is governed through the Science of Mind, "lifts man above the sod, above earth and its environments, to conscious spiritual harmony and eternal being" (Science and Health, p. 521). In this understanding Christian Scientists learn to say, "It is well," and to await the inevitable manifestation of Mind, though the world may not understand and may look with wonder on what appears at times to be the opposite of "well." The Scientist knows that the senses do not testify truly concerning man; that he is in reality always at-one with his Father-Mother God, and that the proof of this spiritual fact—its fulfilment—cannot be forever obscured by material belief. In Deuteronomy we read these words of Moses to the children of Israel: "All the commandments which I command thee this day shall ye observe to do, that ye may live, and multiply, and go in and possess the land which the Lord sware unto your fathers."

✧

"All that I have is thine"

JOHN MURRAY BURRISS

PERHAPS no parable spoken by the Master is of such universal appeal, and therefore the subject of more frequent reference, than that of the prodigal son. It sets forth a phase of human character with which all are more or less familiar,—a weakness in human nature which for the most part arouses our pity rather than our censure, our compassion rather than our condemnation; for waywardness does not necessarily exhibit an unloving disposition or a condition of thought involving malice or hatred. A literal interpretation of this parable, however, does not raise it above the level of an ordinary story about a young man who had squandered his money on worldly pleasures; but when its metaphysical meaning is discerned it has, at least for Christian Scientists, a far deeper significance. On page 91 of "Retrospection and Introspection" Mrs. Eddy says, "The parable of 'the prodigal son' is rightly called 'the pearl of parables,'" and from it we can surely gather deep spiritual lessons.

We read that the return of the young man to his father's house was made the occasion for much rejoicing and festivity, following the affectionate welcome which the father had given him. In the midst of the joyful celebration the elder son, who had been in the field and heard the sound of music and dancing as he approached the house, inquired of one of the servants what the merriment was all about. On being told that it was on account of the return of his younger brother, he became angry and refused to go in; the house or to join in the festivities. A great deal has been said in support of the contention that the faithfulness of the elder son had not been fully appreciated nor appropriately rewarded, and that he was therefore justified in resenting the treatment accorded the younger son, who had spent all his substance in riotous living. Was not this treatment placing a premium upon sin, while virtue went unrewarded?

Digitized by Google

It will be seen, however, that this is not a true interpretation of the father's attitude. That he deeply appreciated the faithfulness of his elder son, and that this appreciation had been at all times lovingly manifested, is shown in his response to the son's murmurings: "Son, thou art ever with me, and all that I have is thine." It is as if the father had said: Son, all the years of your life you have shared with me everything that I possess; you have never felt the disappointment and remorse arising from a life of dissipation; so come and rejoice with me that your younger brother, who has tasted the bitterness and woe of a misspent life, has seen the folly of it, forsaken it, and come home.

What would be said or thought of the ninety and nine sheep, so comfortably sheltered from the storm and protected from danger, if they had murmured because the shepherd had gone up on the mountain to find the one that was lost; and yet this is substantially the attitude of the elder brother. Ingratitude, self-pity, and resentment were preventing him from enjoying the blessings of his father's house, which were and had been freely his.

But if we turn from the elder to the younger son, it will be noted that the latter did not determine to arise and go to his father until he had "spent all;" and the same is true of present-day prodigals. In most cases they have to run the entire gamut of mortal beliefs of pleasure and satisfaction in material things before they are willing to part with them; they have to "suffer many things of many physicians," and come to a realization that they were thereby "nothing bettered, but rather grew worse,"—that they have literally spent all,—before they will arise and go to their Father. So in his dire extremity, when the material beliefs in which he had been reveling were bringing upon him the inevitable result of transgression, then, but not until then, did the young man determine to open his heart to Truth and begin to acquire the consciousness of good, putting behind him the false material beliefs by which he had been so deluded.

It is related that the father saw him while he was yet a great way off, which bears out the scientific truth that God, the divine Mind, is omnipresent and in constant conscious unity with each one of His ideas; and this same truth is implied in the words of the father to the elder son, when he said, "Son, thou art ever with me." It should also be noted that the younger son manifested a great sense of humility, as indicated in his words, "Father, I have sinned against heaven, and in thy sight, and am no more worthy to be called thy son." This is a condition of thought we all must attain if we would win our complete deliverance from the bondage of evil. It is not recorded that the father made any response to or comment on the son's outburst of contrition; and most glorious of all, he did not condemn him. In the prophecy of Habakkuk we read that God is "of purer eyes than to behold evil," and cannot "look on iniquity." God sees all of His ideas as pure and perfect; and so spiritual sense, looking beyond the mortal seeming, beholds through the lens of spiritual understanding God's image and likeness. The command to "bring forth the best robe, and put it on him," expresses not only the father's realization of the perfection and sinlessness of man as God's idea, but was also a warning to those of the household not to regard the repentant one in any other light.

We are all of the "household of faith," and the command to us likewise is to put the "best robe" on our brother. If we heed this command we shall never bear false witness against our brother, never think of him as fallen, sick, or sinful; but we shall at all times and under all circumstances know the truth about him: that he is in reality the image and likeness of God, an idea of the one infinite Mind, and that as such he is not and can not be made a channel for the expression of discord of any kind, but that in truth he reflects health, harmony, and immortality.

Reverting to the elder son, we find it stated that he was "in the field." His consciousness had not yet risen above the mortal concept of creation as material and of man as sinful, consequently he believed that evil was a part of human personality and that his younger brother was the sinner he had confessed himself to be. Here we find the great temptation to which elder brothers of this day are prone to yield, the temptation to regard evil as a part of man's personality and to try to combat it upon this basis. The most powerful weapon which evil wields is its seeming ability to beguile humanity into believing that sin or disease is a part of the man or woman; but, as repeatedly pointed out throughout Mrs. Eddy's writings, it is impossible to destroy evil when regarded in this light. We must see our brother apart from evil, for since there is no evil in divine Mind, God, there can be no evil in that which reflects divine Mind. So the father in Jesus' parable, knowing that evil is no part of God's creation, knew also that it was no part of his son, and the realization of this truth healed the wayward boy,—"For this my son was dead, and is alive again; he was lost, and is found,"—a demonstration which we may be sure was complete and final.

This familiar Bible story, simple yet wonderfully accurate in its portrayal of human nature, points out with remarkable clearness the way in which each one must walk in achieving his ultimate redemption from sin and mortality; and more glorious than this, it proves that when Truth, the Word of God, is understood and faithfully applied, salvation is sure, the healing is inevitable. Through every channel of its activity Christian Science is bringing to human consciousness the great truth that man as God's idea is spiritual, pure, perfect, and immortal; and as this thought takes root in consciousness, one begins to discern, with eyes that see reality, the magnitude and grandeur of that loving assurance, "Son, thou art ever with me, and all that I have is thine."

Gratitude

ANNA M. GRAFELMAN

On page 3 of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," Mrs. Eddy says: "Are we really grateful for the good already received? Then we shall avail ourselves of the blessings we have, and thus be fitted to receive more." Do we remember this when some desired object or plan seems so long in being realized, or a case of healing is long delayed? Perhaps we become impatient, and murmur just a little because others seem to receive their healing very quickly and numerous blessings come to them, while with us everything apparently is at a standstill. Then is the time for us to look within, to examine the thoughts we are entertaining. Perhaps it will be found that we have not been grateful enough for the smaller blessings,—have taken them as a matter of course instead of realizing and expressing our gratitude to the giver of all good. In other words, we have not availed ourselves of the good which has already been bestowed upon us, and are not, therefore, "fitted to receive more."

Digitized by Google

Before Christian Science was brought to the attention of the writer, it seemed to her she could find very little for which to be grateful, since she was deprived of many things which she felt rightfully belonged to every child of God, and compelled by circumstances to go out into the world and meet its problems, many of which seemed exceedingly large to her. Later, when ill health ensued, life became a burden and there seemed to be very little joy. At this time she was lovingly led to Christian Science, and the physical healing came in a remarkably short time, for which she was grateful. There were, however, so many other problems encountered that at times the great blessing of physical healing was almost lost sight of, until one day the above quoted words from Science and Health came very forcibly to her, and she realized as never before the necessity for gratitude.

She began by being grateful for every blessing which came to her, no matter how small. Perhaps it was only a little kindness or manifestation of love shown to her by a friend, or some recognition of good in another, but she was grateful for each one,—grateful to the friend through whom it came, yet still more grateful to divine Love, the source of all good. When she thanked the one who had been the channel for this manifestation of love, she did not fail to send up a little song of thankfulness to our heavenly Father for His love and kindness to His own. As she became conscious of the blessings which were already hers, she soon found them increasing, until one by one the vexed problems faded away as the mist before the shining light of the sun, and she could truly say with the psalmist, "My cup runneth over."

It is so easy to forget the blessings when some large problem looms up before us. It looks different from any that has ever before presented itself. We forget, perhaps, that in the past other problems have arisen which looked just as dark and forbidding; but as we look back we can recall times without number where Truth so beautifully solved the problem for us,—sometimes very quickly and in ways that we little dreamed of. Divine Love is unchanging, is "no respecter of persons," is ever ready to help, comfort, and heal, if we will but avail ourselves of the Master's loving invitation, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

Mere words do not express gratitude; it must be expressed in action. As we often sing,—

'Tis in deeds we serve the Master,—
Words are idle, empty prayer.

Many of us no doubt had been taught from early childhood to pray to the Father and to thank Him for blessings received; but perhaps our gratitude was expressed only in words. In the new light that has come to us, each day affords numerous opportunities to express gratitude in love for our fellow man. It may be no more than an encouraging word or a kindly smile, but even this means much to one who is struggling with a sense of discouragement. If our hearts are filled with love and gratitude to God, we shall find countless opportunities to express this in loving deeds for others,—not always large deeds, perhaps, in fact sometimes so small that we almost overlook them; but if they are done lovingly, if we make use of the one talent which we possess, we shall receive the benediction, "Thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things."

There is nothing that more quickly dispels a host of erroneous thoughts which would seek entrance to our mental home, than a proper sense of love and gratitude. If we are struggling with some problem and the path which leads upward seems very rough, let us but look back and note the distance we have come since we caught the first gleam of Truth in Christian Science, and count the blessings already received. We will soon find the path growing smoother, until by and by we reach a higher altitude, far above the mists of the valley, and come out into the sunlight of Truth, where our problem fades away into nothingness.

Our Master taught us a beautiful lesson in gratitude when he raised Lazarus from the dead. He did not wait until to human sense the demonstration had been completed, but while Lazarus still lay in the tomb and those who were with Jesus believed their loved one to be dead, Jesus said: "Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me. And I knew that thou hearest me always." He knew that divine Love does not turn a deaf ear to a righteous prayer, and he no doubt knew the truth expressed by Isaiah: "Before they call, I will answer; and while they are yet speaking, I will hear." Because he knew and understood the truth about God and man, he could express his gratitude before the demonstration was manifested to those about him, and could declare with assurance, "I knew that thou hearest me always."

We too may call God our Father; we too are recipients of His blessings and bounty and can trustingly seek His aid in every hour of need. God's will is always good; it brings naught but happiness and joy, because an all-loving, all-good God can bestow only good. When we are letting the Mind which was manifested in Christ Jesus find expression in our own daily living, and are keeping a song of gratitude in our hearts, surely we shall be able to prove, as our Leader tells us on page vii of the Preface to Science and Health, that each day is "big with blessings."

Greater Blessings

HORACE W. HEBBARD

THERE is no doubt that the great majority of those who now call themselves Christian Scientists were first attracted to this truth by the hope that they might through its ministrations be relieved of physical suffering, and very few ever expected to get any other benefit. Later on, however, it will be found that nearly all who have received the help for which they were looking, testify that the physical relief is the very smallest part of the blessings which have come to them, and that the spiritual uplift incident thereto far outweighs any other benefits.

This spiritual uplift is not often clearly described, because it seems difficult to find language which will accurately convey an apprehension of this condition to those who have not themselves experienced it. The writer well remembers, when he first took up the study of Christian Science, how this awakening came to him. A deep sense of peace and joy and contentment, love for God and love for his fellow men, seemed to take possession of him. Wherever he found himself, at work, on the street, or in the home, at all hours and under all circumstances, these words, so often quoted from the Bible, were constantly recurring to thought: "On earth peace, good will toward men."

At that time I was not familiar enough with the Bible to know that these were the identical words uttered by the heavenly hosts at the birth of Christ Jesus, as recorded in the second chapter of Luke; but I have since believed that at that time I had my part, as did the patriarchs of old, in the recognition of the divine idea, and that the eternal Christ, the living Truth, did come in some measure to my consciousness. It is interesting to note that at the time of Jesus' advent in the flesh, only the wakeful shepherds heard the angelic call. The world was full of people who needed this message, but they were so engrossed with beliefs in materiality that their ears were deaf and their eyes blind to spiritual things.

Digitized by Google

So is it today. The "still small voice" of Truth is constantly uttering itself, and those who have turned their thought heavenward get the message. Mrs. Eddy says, "We are either turning away from this utterance, or we are listening to it and going up higher" (Science and Health, p. 323). When this experience came to me, I became so intent in the contemplation of spiritual things that I quite forgot to practise many of the evil habits to which I had been addicted. I forgot to hate my enemies. The false sense that the world had used me badly, and that I should resent it, faded away. It was not long before I found myself much more in harmony with my surroundings, and existence assumed a different aspect.

Turning from my former doubt of even the existence of a God, I suddenly found within myself a deep and lasting conviction that God is, and that He is Love. Mrs. Eddy well described this condition of the awakened thought when she wrote that "the real Christian Scientist is constantly accentuating harmony in word and deed, mentally and orally, perpetually repeating this diapason of heaven: 'Good is my God, and my God is good. Love is my God, and my God is Love'" (Miscellaneous Writings, p. 206). I did remember, however, some mistakes I had made, some instances of wrongdoing and injustice of which I had been guilty, and my first efforts were to get rid of these fetters that had manacled me to my misery.

Then I was ready to be completely healed; and I was healed. Gradually many of my physical troubles vanished, until I found myself in better health than I had enjoyed for many years. In fact these physical troubles have been almost forgotten; sometimes it seems as though they had never been. But the abiding consciousness of the spiritual regeneration is with me always, causing a deep sense of gratitude to God that there was one person in the world who was pure enough to discover the healing truth in this age, and make it available to mankind.

✧

[Written for the Sentinel]

Obeying and Giving

SAMUEL JOHNSTONE MACDONALD

When first he saw made manifest
That by obedience man is blest,
Yussuf Ben Orem also saw
One more requirement in God's law:
Obedience lights the altar fires,
Yet sacrifice the law requires.
Giving is sacrifice, and they
Must also give who would obey.

In Truth, by giving we obey,
For when aspiring day by day
That through our lives the light divine,
Life, Truth, and Love, may freely shine,
'Tis then completely we fulfil
In grateful love the Father's will,
And know that only thus we live
When we obey and when we give.

But giving not in human sense,
By doling out unneeded pence,—
Such giving is of lack the seed,
Whose harvest is a greater need.
Giving is radiating good,
And proving man's true brotherhood;
Reflecting lucently each day
Love's unobscured, unfailing ray.

Selected Articles

[From China Advertiser, Tientsin, China]

Sharp criticisms that appeared in local papers on the lecture delivered on the subject of Christian Science supply a somewhat amusing topic of conversation to those who are not interested in religious matters. To him who does not profess to be a follower of Christ's doctrine, Christian Science appears to be but a new religious sect. The theory propounded by Christian Science, especially that of divine healing, is perhaps a novelty; but we see nothing wrong in it, because healing is admitted to have been performed by Christ himself. Fair-minded and unprejudiced outsiders fail to understand why a certain denomination which preaches the uplifting of manhood to the level of godly holiness should be assailed as a heresy.

The trouble is no doubt due to the singular newness of the creed, which if accepted by the world will cause the services of medical practitioners to be dispensed with. The public invariably receives a new idea with ridicule and contempt. The steam engine, electricity, the airship, the submarine,—in fact all startling inventions,—were scoffed at on their first announcement. Methodists, Presbyterians, Baptists, and other denominations were subjected to persecution at their advent; yea, Jesus himself was mobbed and crucified.

It seems to us not a wise course for a man to pursue to denounce anything because it happens to be unfamiliar or strange to him. We have many, many things to learn, advanced as we are in knowledge and science. The best thing for us to do, therefore, whenever we are confronted with a seemingly preposterous problem, is not to turn it down as mere nonsense at the first encounter, but to delve into the thing in an impartial spirit before we arrive at the final judgment. As to Christian Science, if it is founded on truth the propaganda will spread despite all malicious attacks, just as the teaching of Christ is ubiquitous, because truth can never be stamped out by force or argument.

✧

[Henry Van Arsdale in Norwalk (Cal.) Call]

Jesus said, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also." It is therefore important to all believers that their right to prove this statement be preserved to them.

If Christian Scientists seem to be at the moment the only believers to whom this verse applies, it is not by accident that such is the case; it is because Christian Science is in truth what its name implies,—a rational system dealing with what is comprised under the term Christian and based on knowledge gained or verified by exact observation and correct thinking as to God, the Bible, and the Christ of the Bible. The Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, Mrs. Eddy, has methodically formulated and arranged this exact knowledge or Science of Christianity in her book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures." This book, studied in connection with the Bible, will acquaint any student with the unfailing law which operates through prayer.

✧

[F. Elmo Robinson in Klamath Record, Klamath Falls, Ore.]

Our critic contends that because Christian Scientists have not demonstrated the ultimate possibilities of their religion, Christian Science is thereby proved false. It should be remembered that everything taught in Christian Science was demonstrated by Christ Jesus nineteen hundred years ago, and it is upon his teachings and demonstrations that Christian Science is founded. He overcame sin, disease, and death, proving them to be as unreal as the mirage of the desert. Where sin and disease seemed very real to mortal sense, he was able to make holiness and health appear. Where death seemed to have swallowed up life in victory, there he revealed the ever present Life. He demonstrated the supremacy of spiritual law and the nothingness of material law when he turned the water into wine, multiplied the loaves and fishes, and walked on the water; and he is our ensample in Christian Science.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science, in proclaiming the allness of God and the perfection and immutability of His creation, is setting forth what must ultimately be recognized and acknowledged by all. In the mean time, Christian Scientists, well aware of the present incompleteness of their demonstration of the spiritual ultimate, are not ignoring the fact that to erring, finite sense matter, sin, disease, and death seem very real. They are earnestly striving, however, to uplift thought to the discernment of the spiritual reality, to the end that the kingdom of heaven, harmony, may be established among men.

When all people fully realize and demonstrate the allness of God; when He is acknowledged as the only presence, power, and influence in their lives; when evil in all its subtlety is uncovered; when its claim to give pleasure and satisfaction is seen to be absolutely false,—because God, and God alone, satisfies,—they will cease to love sin or indulge it, and it will disappear out of their experiences. Christian Science teaches that sin comes to the human consciousness first in the form of suggestion,—a suggestion that a certain course of thought or action will give pleasure or satisfaction. Now, if the individual instantly recognized this suggestion merely as such, knowing that it had no inherent power to give what it promised, he would not invest it with the power by believing it and acting in accord with it. Only that individual, however, who has come to understand in some degree the allness of God, is prepared to defend himself from this aggressive suggestion. So Christian Science is teaching us to acknowledge God in all our ways, to glorify Him in our thinking, and to lift up His Christ.

✧

[William G. Westle in Birmingham (England) Mercury]

A communication from a critic states that from his point of view Christian Scientists are "in the dark" concerning how mind acts upon matter, and that he considers the word Science in the term "Christian Science" not a good word to use. He implies that the basis of this Science is suggestion by classifying it with "hypnotic feats, mesmerism, and the production of artificial cataleptic trances." He arrives at these conclusions because he finds that Christian Scientists have no use for herbs in their method of healing the sick.

Now in all humility Christian Scientists lay claim to some knowledge of the real meaning of the Scripture which reads, "Be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind." They have proved that the Mind which transforms is the Mind "which was also in Christ Jesus;" in other words, the divine or immortal Mind, God. As Christian Scientists purpose following Christ Jesus in the measure of their highest comprehension of his methods, this should indicate that they rely for healing solely on the operation in human consciousness of that Mind, or God; and as the records of Jesus' works fail to include any indication of the use of herbs as aiding the healing power of divine Mind, it should not be a matter for surprise or concern that Christian Scientists also do not find any use for herbs in that direction.

Christian Science practice is based on the understanding of immortal Mind, and not on the so-called human, "carnal," or (as it is commonly referred to by Christian Scientists) mortal mind, on which hypnotism, mesmerism, and the other varied forms of suggestion are based. With these latter Christian Science has nothing in common. It would seem to appear, therefore, that it is our critic himself who is "in the dark" on the subject, for Christian Scientists are fully alive to the necessity of constantly observing the injunction which reads, "Take heed therefore that the light which is in thee be not darkness."

Regarding our critic's objection to the use of the word Science, if he consulted any standard dictionary he would ascertain that it is frequently interpreted as meaning "exact knowledge." Christ Jesus possessed exact knowledge of God, and this enabled him to demonstrate the Principle of the Science of being. His method, therefore, was scientific; and his commands, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel," "Heal the sick," and his saying, "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also," involve the necessity of understanding the method by which he accomplished the "works;" hence the term "Christian Science."

Christian Science is the restoration to this age of the Science of primitive Christian healing as taught and so successfully practised by Jesus, whose preaching of the Word was with power and with "signs following." Our critic seems a little perturbed by the activity of Christian Science, but it might be well for him to view it in the light of the following quotation: "If this counsel or this work be of men, it will come to naught: but if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it."

✧

[Avery Coomley in Peoria (Ill.) Star]

When it is said that "the minister spoke on Christian Science from a Bible standpoint," what is doubtless meant is that he spoke from the standpoint of his own personal interpretation of the Bible. That his interpretation was more nearly correct than that of Christian Science was the very point he was endeavoring to prove.

In considering what constitutes true Christianity and a proper interpretation of the Bible, the ultimate standard is of course furnished by Jesus himself, and he made it clear in a number of instances that it was works rather than words on which Truth must rest. His statement, "Ye shall know them by their fruits," is one of these, but perhaps the most convincing is what he said to the followers of John when they asked for evidence that he was indeed the Christ: "Go your way, and tell John what things ye have seen and heard: how that the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, to the poor the gospel is preached."

In this connection it should be noted that healing constituted a large part of the recorded works of Jesus, and that he commanded his followers to heal the sick. This they consistently did as a part of the practice of their religion for nearly three centuries immediately following the crucifixion. The fact that the Christian Science church is notably restoring Christian healing in this age furnishes important evidence that it is founded, and correctly founded, upon the teachings of the Bible.

✧

[Robert S. Ross in Catskill (N. Y.) Enterprise]

A local preacher asks in effect how Christian Scientists arrive at the conclusion that God knows nothing about sin. In reply thereto permit me to state that Christian Scientists arrive at this conclusion through the study of the Scriptures. For example, in Genesis we read, "And God saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was very good;" in Deuteronomy, "He [God] is the Rock, his work is perfect . . .

Digitized by Google

God of truth and without iniquity, just and right is he;" while Habakkuk says of God, "Thou art of purer eyes than to behold evil, and canst not look on iniquity;" and finally, although many more passages could be cited, in the first epistle of John we read, "God is love."

If one admits that God, the only cause and creator of the universe, including man, is good, he cannot reasonably avoid concluding that God's creation must also be good. On page 207 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy writes: "There is but one primal cause. Therefore there can be no effect from any other cause, and there can be no reality in aught which does not proceed from this great and only cause." In other words whatever is, must be good. If it is not good, God never created it; and if God did not create it, it has no basis in fact; hence the conclusion that sin, disease, and death—despite their seeming reality—are illusory and unreal. Christian Science declares that when human belief gives place to spiritual understanding, matter and all things material will be as unreal to enlightened thought as the experiences of night dreams are unreal to the so-called waking existence.

Christian Scientists are not content with mere theory, however. They know that a true proposition can be demonstrated, and that unless a proposition can be demonstrated it is not true. If God is good and God is infinite, God is conscious only of His own allness, in which case He does not know sin, disease, and death. To the rule of mathematics error is unknown. Apply this rule to an error in numbers and the error disappears. Likewise to God, good, the divine Principle of being, evil is unknown. Apply this understanding of Principle to human belief in sin and disease and these errors of belief disappear.

It should be plain to the critic that sin is forgiven only when it is forsaken, and that the only way it can be forsaken is to understand that evil has no power of attraction because good is the only real attraction. The Scripture implies that we must do more than merely believe the truth; we must know it in order to be free. The critic will find warrant for the teaching of Christian Science in the Scriptural record of the lives of the prophets, of Christ Jesus, and of the apostles.

✧

[W. D. Kilpatrick in Grand Haven (Mich.) Tribune]

The account of creation depicted in the second and third chapters of Genesis undoubtedly is not a history of the true creation or of the creation of God, Spirit, outlined in the first chapter. It is a history of the so-called material creation, or the appearing of the so-called race of Adam. Our critic must admit that the first chapter of Genesis and the first five verses of the second chapter contain as complete an account of creation as one could wish for. This account includes heaven and earth and man, the fowls of the air, the beasts of the field, the fish of the sea, the fruits and herbs of the field; in fact, it states that God created everything, and that He pronounced good everything He created. In this account, as understood in Christian Science, there is no element of materiality, and all things are spiritual and perfect.

Then comes the account in the second chapter of Genesis, which was the result, as we perceive from the sixth verse thereof, of a "mist" which "watered the whole face of the ground." No one at all familiar with Bible teachings can doubt that this mist spoken of is the veil or covering of materiality which has been blinding mankind throughout the centuries. From that point on the Bible is devoted to the history of mankind, to their struggles because of their condition resulting from the mist, and to an explanation of the truth, through the application of which mankind may eventually put off the fetters of materiality and rise to that state vouchsafed in the first chapter of Genesis, where God gave man dominion over all.

The statement of the critic that "any one who confesses that God is Love cannot help admitting the reality of sin and its origin," is so anomalous in its nature as scarcely to require attention or explanation. To assume that a God of love would afflict His children with sin without giving them the understanding and power wherewith to overcome sin, misses the very essence of the teachings of the Bible and the supreme import of an omnipotent Godhead. The Bible says very clearly that God is "of purer eyes than to behold evil," and cannot "look on iniquity," and Jesus taught, and proved by casting it out, that sin was not of God. He could not have done this if sin had been God created. One of the greatest obstacles mankind have had to meet in combating sin is the false teaching that sin is real, a part of God's creation, and the same with respect to sickness. Jesus proved that sickness was not sent of God, and he also proved that it was sinful to believe that mankind are purified through sickness. The teachings of dogmatic scholasticism along this line have done more to hinder the salvation of humanity than any other one thing.

✧

[W. Stuart Booth in Englewood (Col.) Enterprise]

Christian Scientists are always pleased when the need of a more practical application of Christian teaching is noted, as was done by a recent contributor. The advice offered by him to make the Bible the rule of life is most commendable; but unfortunately for your readers most of the article was devoted to condemnation of one detached sentence from Mrs. Eddy's standard work on Christian Science, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures."

It is, to say the least, inconsistent for a person who wishes to have the Bible made practical to criticize the one teaching which has so thoroughly proven itself to be a religion of fulfilment as well as of promise; for there are thousands in our very midst who have been healed physically, regenerated morally, and awakened spiritually through the ministrations of Christian Science. These results have been obtained solely through the spiritual, scientific understanding of the Bible, which has thus been demonstrated to be most practical, for the message of the Bible is essentially a message of life.

When Mrs. Eddy repudiated the scholastic doctrine of "God's own vicarious suffering Saviour for the sinner," to quote our critic, she took nothing away from the Bible; for vicarious salvation is not taught therein. At no time did our Master say that he was doing our work for us, but contrariwise he continually called for a repentance to be attested by deeds, not by creeds, by proof rather than profession.

The following sentence from page 25 of Science and Health, quoted by this critic, will stand by itself, for it is reasonable and true: "The material blood of Jesus was no more efficacious to cleanse from sin when it was shed upon 'the accursed tree,' than when it was flowing in his veins as he went daily about his Father's business." However, to be fair and to give the positive statement on this subject, the next sentence should also be quoted: "His true flesh and blood were his Life; and they truly eat his flesh and drink his blood, who partake of that divine Life." Here we may see that Christian Science shows that Christ Jesus became our Way-shower that we might become way-goers. It is only as we follow him by sacrificing our material sense of good and life, as was prefigured in the killing of the passover in Egypt, only as we turn wholly to God, infinite Love, as our guardian and guide, and endeavor to have that Mind in us "which was also in Christ Jesus," that the blood of Jesus finds saving expression for us.

Digitized by Google

Editorial

Good Omnipotent and Eternal

EVIL'S persistent effort at this particular time seems to be so to engross Christian Scientists in war news and war preparations as to render them perfunctory in their scientific study and work. Needless to say, most Christian Scientists are alert to this subtle effort, and they have better prepared themselves to understand the meaning and value of war news, and are better able to do whatever falls to them to do in the way of material preparation for meeting the conditions consequent upon war, by bringing to bear upon the situation a clear sense of that divine Science which, "rising above physical theories, excludes matter, resolves things into thoughts, and replaces the objects of material sense with spiritual ideas" (Science and Health, p. 123). Following this course, the line of demarcation between seeming and being is sharply drawn, and thus Christian Scientists have become able to differentiate between those things which are tending toward the perpetuation of self-will, bondage, and fear and those things which, though in a crude way, are working toward the accomplishment of the better beliefs of human good and human liberty.

In dealing with many of these conditions the choice which Christian Scientists will be compelled to make will call for the more careful consideration because it is along new and different lines. "Of two evils choose the lesser," runs the adage, and in this instance the choice will not be between good and evil, but between a lesser and a greater evil; in other words, between that which though inherently wrong has an ennobling purpose—the freedom and uplift of all peoples—and that which while likewise inherently wrong has for its ultimate purpose the subservience of the masses to the self-appointed few, domination not by right but by might, the unlicensed rule of autocracy against the democracy which, reared on liberty, raises itself to undreamed of heights of achievement and attainment.

"Where there is no vision, the people perish," said the wise man, and those who have the vision to see the good of the mass as above that of the individual will be able to make this choice intelligently and understandingly and with a due recognition of the necessity which confronts them. Not only this, but they will also be mindful of the fact that even though the world's progress has ever been along slow and unsatisfactory lines because of its unbelief, yet it is progressing Spiritward. "This leaven of Truth is ever at work," Mrs. Eddy writes on page 118 of Science and Health; and she says further that this will continue "until the leaven of Spirit changes the whole of mortal thought, as yeast changes the chemical properties of meal." Christian Scientists have as their duty, therefore, the leavening of the most material beliefs of mankind with those which are in some measure at least more spiritual. To do this effectively they must make it their supreme endeavor to understand God.

One who has been healed through Christian Science of a very serious physical condition writes, "I found out through bitter experiences that mere repetition of the words of Christian Science does not heal; but that the Principle for which those words stand can and does heal; and when I made an honest effort to understand that Principle, my healing came." This experience proves that the mere repeating of a formula is not the practice of Christian Science, and that the work of a genuine Christian Scientist is not simply the perfunctory going over of a set of stock phrases, but rather the realization of the spiritual and the real in contradistinction to the asserted beliefs of the unreal and untrue. The healing of disease and the reform of the sinful, as Mrs. Eddy has explained on page 10 of "Christian Science versus Pantheism," "is accomplished by the grace of God,—the effect of God understood." With the grace of God in our hearts, and the welfare of mankind always before us, we shall strive for an understanding of Truth which will lift us above the perfunctory repetition of words into that clear sense of the omnipotence and eternality of good which destroys every last vestige of inharmony and leaves Truth triumphant.

ARCHIBALD MCLELLAN.

Filibustering

OUT of that strange masterful time when the Dutch, the Spanish, and the English were contending for the riches of the newly discovered Western Hemisphere, there arose the word filibuster. It bears the marks of all three languages. Starting as a Dutch word compounded of vrij, meaning free, and buit, meaning booty (thus akin to our freebooter), it was changed by the Spanish into flibustero to suit their tongues, and then passed into the English language as filibuster. The word was used to describe the particular type of pirate who on plunder bent infested the Spanish American coasts and knew no law.

The time came when the word filibuster went into politics, and slightly changed its methods though not its nature. It remained a freebooter but became more subtle in its workmanship. Instead of antagonizing the law it learned to operate under the protection of the law. Webster has defined the political filibuster as "a member of a legislative or deliberative body who obstructs or prevents action by the extreme use of dilatory tactics, such as speaking merely to consume time." To delay the advance of men and nations by breaking the spirit of the law and destroying its life while claiming its protection, this is to be a master filibuster.

Christian Science offers mankind metaphysical answers to all its questions. Mrs. Eddy writes on page 19 of "Christian Healing," "Tireless Being, patient of man's procrastination, affords him fresh opportunities every hour; but if Science makes a more spiritual demand, bidding man go up higher, he is impatient perhaps, or doubts the feasibility of the demand." When hard pressed by God, urging an advance Spiritward, mortals are tempted to resort to filibustering. Then their dilatory tactics are truly wonderful, as often taking the form of obstinate silence as of talking against time. When a certain man in the parable bade his guests to the spiritual supper he had prepared, "all with one consent began to make excuse." While the unready hung back, the master of the house gathered in the poor, the maimed, the halt, and the blind, and even searched the highways and hedges for those ready to partake of the feast.

When an individual, a nation, or a movement is called by God to take forward steps, then selfishness and conceit stand ready to provide excuses. If the call to spiritual obedience becomes doubly imperative, mortals are sometimes induced to descend to the subtlest forms of disobedience; and if these fail, even to throw all pretense to the winds,—to run up the black flag of piracy to the masthead and boldly proclaim themselves adventurers cruising the Spanish Main for pelf.

This obstruction to obedience is clearly indicated in Mrs. Eddy's writings as the belief of a man separated from God. On page 338 of Science and Health we read: "Divide the name Adam into two syllables, and it reads, a dam, or obstruction. . . . Here a dam is not a mere play upon words; it stands for obstruction, error, even the supposed separation of man from God, and the obstacle which the serpent, sin, would impose between man and his creator." Here then is that which tries to turn man into a rebel against God and an outlaw against divine law, the belief in material existence interposing a pretended barrier between Spirit and Spirit's manifestation.

Digitized by Google

This mortal belief is the foe of all progress; this it is which delays action in the hour of crisis, gives comfort to the enemy, causes quarrels among friends, misunderstandings among allies, and sends forth hastily raised levies too late upon the battle field of progress. This it is which organizes hostile expeditions in times of peace in a futile attempt to postpone the day of reckoning. In "Miscellaneous Writings" we read: "The disobedient make their moves before God makes His, or make them too late to follow Him. Be sure that God directs your way; then, hasten to follow under every circumstance" (p. 117). The cure for filibustering is instant obedience to inspiration and revelation. Guided by the illumination of Christian Science no one need fear to act, and to act promptly.

WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN.

✧

"An holy priesthood"

CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS are sometimes asked whether there is any ordained ministry in their church corresponding to that of other churches. To this it may be answered that the readers in Christian Science churches conduct the services, and, as our Manual states, "they must keep themselves unspotted from the world,—uncontaminated with evil" (Art. III, Sect. 1). Furthermore, all Christian Scientists cling to the promise that those who are faithful shall be "priests unto God," as we read in Revelation. This view is also borne out by Peter's words in his first epistle, where he speaks of those who serve the truth as "an holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to God by Jesus Christ." The work of the Christian Science practitioner calls for the utmost consecration; hence it may be likened to that of priests, for it means the offering up of spiritual sacrifices at all times, and thus to be worthy of the high and holy purpose of our Leader, who under divine guidance provided for it.

We are told that at the consecration of the priests in the time of Aaron and his sons, the tip of the ear, of one finger, and of the great toe was touched with blood to indicate that all their service should be sacred, that they would listen only to that which concerned their high office, and be ready to go upon errands of love and mercy at all times. We also read much about the oil used in consecration; and in Christian Science oil is defined as "consecration; charity; gentleness; prayer; heavenly inspiration" (Science and Health, p. 592). If we were to apply this to the work of the practitioner it would mean that eye, ear, tongue, hand, and foot—every thought, indeed—should be consecrated, and that it is little less than sacrilege to devote time or words to the discussion of worldly things, much less of error, when a patient comes to ask for healing. Here it is well to recall the words of the Master, "Every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment."

It is doubtless true that as time advances greater and greater demands will be made upon the Christian Science practitioner to deal with the more hidden phases of mortal belief, whether manifested as sin or suffering; hence the need of greater consecration in all that is attempted. The Christian Scientist knows that Truth never fails, and should know with equal clearness that if he is at-one with divine Truth and Love in all his efforts, these efforts cannot fail; but he must also know that he cannot for a moment forget what consecration to his high office demands.

On page 141 of Science and Health our revered Leader lifts thought above mere ecclesiasticism up to the high demands made upon those who would heal the sick and the sinning. Respecting the divine Principle of Christian Science she says, "Its only priest is the spiritualized man;" and every loyal student of her teachings would gladly assent that none other than this sort of man is ready for the sacred ministry of overcoming sin and sickness in the Christ-way. On page 88 of the Christian Science Hymnal we find these words respecting the true church:—

> Her priests are all God's faithful sons,
> To serve the world raised up;
> The pure in heart her baptized ones;
> Love, her communion cup.

As we ponder the example of the Master, his untiring service and his absolute consecration to the things of Spirit, and then note how willing his disciples were, after they had gained a higher sense of his teachings, to follow in the way where he led, we surely cannot shrink from any demand which may be made upon us. As we read of Paul's experiences,—the trials, persecutions, and privations which seemed inseparable from his ministry,—we find no word of complaint, but rather do we find him glorying in these things as proofs of his ministry. This may well inspire us with noble ambition to live above the material tendencies of this age, and to be worthy followers of those who gave their lives to establish the kingdom of God on earth at the dawn of Christianity. Very often may we ponder with profit the divine command to Moses, as quoted in Hebrews: "See, saith he, that thou make all things according to the pattern showed to thee in the mount."

ANNIE M. KNOTT.

✧

[From The Christian Science Monitor]

Infringement of Copyright Claim

CHICAGO, ILL.—The Christian Science Publishing Society, on May 3, 1917, filed in the United States district court for the northern district of Illinois, eastern division, a bill in equity against Art Masters Society, known also as Art Masters Reproducing Company, and others, in Chicago, alleging infringement of copyrights owned by the Publishing Society, upon the picture of Mary Baker Eddy, seeking an injunction restraining the Art Masters Society and others from publishing and selling pictures of Mrs. Eddy which are claimed by the complainants to be an infringement of copyrights owned by The Christian Science Publishing Society. The bill also alleges that the pictures published by the defendants purport to be imitations of an oil painting of Mrs. Eddy, and that they closely resemble the pictures copyrighted and sold by The Christian Science Publishing Society, on all of which pictures sold by the Publishing Society appear the words "Copyrighted 1911 by The Christian Science Publishing Society."

✧ ✧ ✧

Among the Churches

Current Notes

SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA.—The literature distribution committee during 1915-16 supplied literature to sixty steamers, twenty-one lighthouses, eighteen pilot stations, thirteen police stations, twenty-five literary institutes, the Commercial Travelers' Club, fifteen fire stations, two prisons, two sailors' homes, four asylums, the Federal Capital Works, Irrigation Works, Parliament House, Cabmen's Shelter, tramway sheds, Sydney Hospital, six military camps and hospitals.

The committee sent out in all thirteen copies of Science and Health in English and two in German, six copies each of "Miscellaneous Writings" and Miscellany, three of "Christian Healing," two copies each of "Rudimental Divine Science" and "Christian Science versus Pantheism," one of "The People's Idea of God," and two of "Personal Contagion." In addition to our Leader's works five copies of "The Life of Mary Baker Eddy" were given out, besides twenty-four of "Christian Science: Its Legal Status," and three hundred and seven pamphlets. The following periodicals were distributed: 6841 Sentinels, 1016 Journals, 53 Heralds, 14,878 Monitors, 4 Quarterlies.

Digitized by Google

GALVESTON, TEXAS.—Work on the Christian Science church at Twenty-seventh Street and Avenue O is again under way, a contract having been made for its completion on or about June 10. The building permit calls for an expenditure of twenty-five thousand dollars, which is in addition to the cost of that portion of the building already completed.—The Galveston News.

MICHIGAN CITY, IND.—During the calendar year of 1916 there were mailed and placed in boxes at hotels, depot, and fire stations, 1072 Sentinels, 115 Journals, 123 Heralds, 3843 Monitors, and 14 pamphlets. One each of the works on Christian Science by Mrs. Eddy, "The Life of Mary Baker Eddy" by Sibyl Wilbur, and the pamphlet "Law and Work" were placed in the library at the Northern Indiana State Prison, together with two yearly subscriptions to each of the periodicals.

TRINIDAD, COL.—The first Sunday service in the new edifice of the Christian Science church which is being erected on Pine Street, was held Feb. 4. The main auditorium of the church building when completed will seat two hundred people.—Trinidad Chronicle.

✧ ✧ ✧

The Lectures

SANTA CRUZ, CAL. (First Church).—Clarence W. Chadwick, lecturer; introduced by Miss Augusta M. Cole, who said in part:—

All the world today is crying out for peace. The governments at war, even while putting forth gigantic efforts for more war, are longing for peace. The heart's desire of the men in the trenches and the women and children in the factories and fields is peace. All the world wants peace,—peace not merely from war, but peace from the evil passions that make for war; peace from sin, from disease, from poverty, from sorrow; peace from discord of every kind.

And yet twenty centuries ago the gentle Nazarene said: "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." Wherein has humanity stumbled and lost its way that it has failed to realize the blessing? What can dispel the darkness, out of the depths of which mankind still cries "Peace, peace; when there is no peace"?

For hundreds of thousands of us Christian Science is dispelling the darkness. It has proved the darkness to be ignorance,—ignorance on the most important subject there is; viz., what God is and what is man's relation to Him. Christian Science, or the Science of Christianity, is teaching us what God is, and what man's relation to Him is, and as we glimpse this understanding, lo, we glimpse peace!

Santa Cruz Sentinel.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN. (Society, University of Minn.).—William W. Porter, lecturer; introduced by Prof. E. G. Lorenzen, who said in part:—

The subject of the lecture this afternoon is of supreme importance to us all. The matters ordinarily discussed in these halls deal with relative truth at best, with knowledge that is accepted as correct today and rejected as false tomorrow, resting, as it necessarily must, upon the unstable foundation of human opinion. Christian Science, on the other hand, deals with absolute truth, which remains unaffected by human doctrines, for it is the Science which gives us an understanding of God.

Surely nobody who ever lived on this globe had so perfect an understanding of God as did Jesus. He proved his knowledge by demonstration. It was his understanding of God as divine Principle, Love, which enabled him to do those mighty works recorded in the New Testament, and which gave him dominion over all material conditions. But the word of God is the same yesterday, today, and forever; it is as powerful today as it was in the time of Jesus and of the prophets of old, and it is as available to each one of us. "Behold, the Lord's hand is not shortened, that it cannot save; neither his ear heavy, that it cannot hear."

ITHACA, N. Y. (Society, Cornell University).—Virgil O. Strickler, lecturer; introduced by Prof. Elmer O. Fippin, who said in part:—

Each one of us desires to follow that course of action which leads to the most good. That we so frequently fail in its realization may be assigned to our lack of an adequate rule of action. Nearly two thousand years ago there lived in an eastern country a man who taught a rule of action, of personal conduct, and of one's relationship to God, that presumed to attain that highest good,—a good that he claimed to be continually present and available to all persons. He illustrated the operation of that rule by the healing of sickness, sin, and unhappiness with such certainty and effectiveness that in spite of the fact that he left no printed record and did not write down a single word, so far as we know, yet his teaching is still ringing in the ears of half the people of the world. Many sects and groups of people have offered their interpretation of those teachings of Jesus, but without seeming to attain the results in practical experience which he said should follow the application of the Principle and rule he taught.

Christian Science has come with its interpretation of the teachings of Jesus. Like him, its disciples are illustrating their understanding of Principle by their works. So effectively have they been healing disease, eliminating discomfort, and relieving unhappiness and sin, that their interpretation is challenging the attention of all thoughtful men and women.

MILL VALLEY, CAL. (First Church).—John Randall Dunn, lecturer; introduced by Arthur F. Thomas, who said in part:—

Throughout all time mankind have held differing views on nearly every subject, but there are at least two things on which we can all agree, and they are our desire for health and our longing for happiness. It is true that we do not all agree as to what constitutes happiness, but nevertheless we all want to be happy. Christian Scientists have found that a knowledge of the truth about God and man as taught by Jesus brings health, happiness, and a satisfying peace of mind. This great truth is made clear to them by a study of the Bible in connection with the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy.

Digitized by Google

CARTHAGE, Mo. (First Church).—George Shaw Cook, lecturer; introduced by Walter C. Lanyon, who said in part:—

For ages man has searched far and wide for happiness,—in climate, in health, in wealth, and in people,—only at last to drop by the road weary and disheartened, unmindful of the fact that within himself lay the kingdom of heaven, harmony, happiness. And it fell to the lot of a pure, noble woman, Mrs. Eddy, to turn the steps of tired humanity toward the kingdom. It remained her duty to unlock the treasure chest of the Scriptures, and to place before a soul starved people spiritual food that satisfied and made happy. It was through her pure insight that man came into possession of the fact that God is Love here and now, in its true sense, and it is the knowledge of God as Love, infinite and eternal, which neutralizes all the ills of humanity and puts them to flight. Christian Science is the open door to life eternal. It is a religion of Love.

LEYTONSTONE, ENGLAND (First Church).—John Sidney Braithwaite, lecturer; introduced by Mrs. Charles Horncastle, who said in part:—

One of the objects of these lectures is to do away with various erroneous statements regarding Christian Science. Christian Science is the truth which Christ Jesus taught and demonstrated, and which has been made practical to this age through the understanding and application of its teaching. This Science not only heals the sick, gives peace and comfort to the sorrowing, courage and confidence to those struggling with difficulties, but it is of daily value in the office, the factory, and the home. The study of our text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, is as a ray of light shining in the darkness and is an inspiration to all mankind.

ABERDEEN, S. DAK. (First Church).—Prof. Hermann S. Hering, lecturer; introduced by E. A. Patrick, who said in part:—

I am an admirer of Christian Science. It is not the speculative philosophy that I thought it was; it does not require assent to an outworn creed, and its adherents, instead of taking their pleasure in making themselves peculiar and every one around them uncomfortable, are, while serious and high minded, also companionable, efficient, and practical. While they believe that God, divine Principle, governs this world, they do not believe that they work with Him by reproving joy and ignoring beauty. I admire Christian Science because of the simple, quiet dignity of its services; the open, hearty friendliness of its handshakes, and for the efficient, practical usefulness of its machinery, particularly for its publications and its board of lectureship.

Daily American.

✧

Lectures to be Delivered

[By Members of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.]

IDAHO—Boise: George Shaw Cook, Pinney Theater, 3 p.m., May 27.

ILLINOIS—Chicago (Seventh Church): William W. Porter, Church Edifice, 5318 Kenmore Avenue, 8 p.m., June 1 and 2.
Chicago (Sixteenth Church): Dr. Walton Hubbard, Rogers Park Woman's Club, 7077 North Ashland Boulevard, 8 p.m., May 25 and 26.
Peoria (First Church): Charles I. Ohrenstein, Mohammed Temple, 207 North Monroe Street, 8 p.m., May 31.

INDIANA—Indianapolis (Second Church): John Randall Dunn, Tomlinson Hall, 3:30 p.m., May 27; Church Edifice, Delaware and Twelfth Streets, 8 p.m., May 28.
Winchester: John Randall Dunn, Irvin Theater, 3 p.m., May 27.

IOWA—Cedar Rapids: Clarence W. Chadwick, Church Edifice, 1242 Second Avenue, 8 p.m., May 31.
Clinton: Clarence C. Eaton, The Clinton, 3 p.m., May 27.

KENTUCKY—Lexington (First Church): Clarence C. Eaton, Auditorium, Woodland Park, 8 p.m., May 29.

MAINE—Waterville: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Unitarian Church, 8 p.m., May 31.

MASSACHUSETTS—Boston (Second Church): Virgil O. Strickler, Church Edifice, Elm Hill Avenue and Howland Street, Roxbury, 8 p.m., June 1.
Malden: John Randall Dunn, Mystic Theater, 8 p.m., June 3.
Newton: Clarence C. Eaton, Players Hall, Washington Street, West Newton, 8 p.m., June 1.
Provincetown: Bicknell Young, Town Hall, 7:30 p.m., June 1.

MICHIGAN—Adrian: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Croswell Opera House, 8:15 p.m., June 1.
Alpena: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Trinity Parish House, 8 p.m., May 29.
Flint: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Church Edifice, East Court and Harrison Streets, 3 p.m., May 27, and 8 p.m., May 28.

NEBRASKA—Exeter: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Auditorium, 3 p.m., May 27.
Grand Island: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Liederkranz Auditorium, 8:15 p.m., May 28.

NEVADA—Reno: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Majestic Theater, 8 p.m., May 21.

NEW JERSEY—Hackensack: Bicknell Young, Oritani Hall, 8:15 p.m., May 29.
Nutley: Virgil O. Strickler, Masonic Hall, 559 Franklin Avenue, 8:30 p.m., May 31.

NEW YORK—Amsterdam: Bicknell Young, Elks Club, Division Street, 8:15 p.m., May 25.
Fulton: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Fulton Public Library, 8 p.m., May 29.
Hornell (First Church): Frank Bell, Majestic Theater, 2:30 p.m., May 27.
Lockport (Second Church): Frank Bell, Universalist Church, 8:15 p.m., May 29.
New York (First Church): Ezra W. Palmer, Church Edifice, Central Park West and Ninety-sixth Street, 8 p.m., June 1.
Niagara Falls: John Randall Dunn, Cataract Hotel, 8:15 p.m., May 31.
Oswego: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Y. M. C. A., 8 p.m., May 28.
Salamanca: Bicknell Young, Congregational Church, 8 p.m., May 28.
Yonkers: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Yonkers Public Library Hall, 8:15 p.m., May 31.

OHIO—Hamilton: Virgil O. Strickler, High School Auditorium, 3 p.m., May 27.
Lakewood: John Randall Dunn, Church Edifice, Detroit and Arthur Avenues, 8 p.m., May 21.
Lima: Clarence W. Chadwick, Lyric Theater, 8 p.m., June 1.
Mechanicsburg: William W. Porter, Main Street Theater, 8 p.m., May 28.
Newark: Virgil O. Strickler, Taylor Hall, Y. M. C. A., 8:15 p.m., May 28.
Piqua: Virgil O. Strickler, High School Auditorium, Ash and College Streets, 8 p.m., May 25.
Springfield: William W. Porter, Memorial Hall, West Main Street, 8 p.m., May 29.
Urbana: William W. Porter, Clifford Theater, May 27.

PENNSYLVANIA—Bradford: Virgil O. Strickler, Women's Club, 8 p.m., May 29.
Philadelphia (First Church): Paul Stark Seeley, Church Edifice, Walnut Street, west of Fortieth Street, 3:30 p.m., May 27, and 8 p.m., May 28.
Scranton: Bliss Knapp, Church Edifice, 520 Vine Street, 3:30 p.m., May 27, and 8:15 p.m., May 28.
West Chester: William R. Rathvon, Church Edifice, North High Street, 8:15 p.m., May 29.

VERMONT—Barre: William W. Porter, Howland Hall, 8 p.m., May 24.

WISCONSIN—Eau Claire: Paul Stark Seeley, Eau Claire Club, 8:15 p.m., May 24.

WYOMING—Sheridan: Ezra W. Palmer, Orpheum Theater, 8 p.m., May 28.

Digitized by Google

Testimonies of Healing

That "man's extremity is God's opportunity" was proven to me several years ago, when, in despair of ever regaining my health, I began to read Science and Health, and was healed almost instantaneously of serious rectal trouble of six years' standing. With that healing came a spiritual illumination and a realization of the nearness and availability of divine Truth, such as I had never before experienced. From that hour I began to study Christian Science, and the more I studied and was able to perceive the truth, the deeper grew my interest and the more harmony was manifested in my life.

Over two years ago I was healed, in one week's treatment, of eye trouble which had compelled me to wear glasses for sixteen years, and I had been told they would always have to be worn. Many other demonstrations of the healing power of Truth have been experienced. Previous to coming into Science I had no knowledge of the Bible, but with the help of the key which Mrs. Eddy has given us, the Bible has been opened up to me as a storehouse of truth, and it is my daily companion together with Science and Health. Each day I am striving to live more and more in obedience to God's laws, as revealed to me through Christian Science.

Words fail me in expressing my gratitude to our revered Leader for this great revelation, which has opened up a new and better world to me, as it will to every earnest seeker after Truth.—Lillian H. Tutt, Chicago, Ill.

✧

On both sides of my family tubercular disease was said to be hereditary, and so embedded in my thought was the fear of this trouble that, in the words of Job, "the thing which I greatly feared" came upon me. I also suffered from another so-called incurable trouble, namely, organic heart disease. Some of the well known specialists of this country treated me, and my husband traveled with me in the hope of finding some climate in which I could live.

When physicians had done all they could for me and I was without hope, a friend said that Christian Science would heal me, and gave me a copy of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, which I read as one famished. I had Christian Science treatment for a year without any seeming results physically, but so steadfastly was my thought turned from person to Principle, that I was then able to take up the work for myself. After five years I was healed; the sunlight of Truth had vanquished every symptom of the disease.

Does five years seem long to labor and to wait, dear reader? Discouragement would have us so believe, but there were many things of which I needed to be healed, for I loved the world and the things therein. I do not now regret that my healing was slow, for it made me search the Bible and Science and Health more diligently for the Principle and law of spiritual being; and I am glad to say that it has been permanent. My prayer is that I may ever keep in consciousness the Christ-way, and prove by daily living this truth that frees mankind.—Carrie Lee Poole, Chicago, Ill.

The foregoing testimony is a statement of absolute facts, and I too desire to express my gratitude for this wonderful healing, and for the many blessings that have been received personally through the knowledge of this great healing truth, Christian Science. I have been healed of piles, stomach trouble, headaches, colds, and also of fear. Christian Science has been my rod and staff, physically, mentally, and in all my business affairs, and it has never failed me when properly applied.

I am thankful for the privilege of being a worker in our church, and for the growth in understanding since becoming an active worker, as well as for the peace and harmony which this understanding has brought to me and mine.

Thomas B. Poole.

✧

In May, 1914, our little boy, then three years old, was quite suddenly taken ill with what seemed a very serious ailment. We called a physician who had been recommended to us as successful in children's diseases, and he treated the child for about a week; but the little fellow was steadily getting worse. When the doctor called the last time, the child was unconscious and had a high fever. His right side was apparently paralyzed, the head and face were in an alarming condition, and the bowels had not moved for over three days.

The doctor made it plain that he could do nothing to help the boy, so I immediately called a Christian Science practitioner, of whom I had heard some time previously. After the first treatment the bowels moved and the boy immediately began to improve. The next day the practitioner, after treating the child, gave him a package of milk chocolates, much to the astonishment of my wife and myself, as the doctor had instructed us several days previously that if the child improved he should have nothing to eat for several weeks except weak broth, gruel, and the like.

The case had been pronounced infantile paralysis, but when the health officer called to make his examination, about ten days after the practitioner's first visit, the boy was so much better the officer said that, although it had been one of the most serious cases he had come in contact with, the danger was past and there was no need to quarantine us. At that time the child had not recovered the use of his right arm or leg, and the doctor said we should train him to use his left hand and arm for everything, as he would never be able to move a finger on the right hand and the whole limb would shrink and never grow with the rest of the body. The boy is now healthy and strong, however, and not only can use his right hand and arm the same as other children do, but can run and play like them also.

None of our family, including my wife, four children, and myself, have taken medicine in any form since turning to Christian Science. Up to the time we became interested in this teaching I had suffered with chronic bowel disorder and stomach troubles as far back as I can remember, but I have been free from them for over three years.

Words cannot express our gratitude for these and many other benefits received through the study of Christian Science; but more than all, we are thankful for the understanding we have gained of reality.

C. E. Dunn, San Jose, Cal.

✧

It is over five years since I became interested in Christian Science, and in that time so many discordant conditions have been overcome that my heart is filled with thankfulness to God, and with gratitude to our revered Leader, Mrs. Eddy, whom I am learning each day to reverence more, as new unfoldments are opened to me and divine possibilities are realized. I am most grateful for the spiritual uplift which Christian Science has given me, although I have been healed of many things which to mortal sense made me very unhappy.

My first physical healing was that of bowel trouble. This healing was brought about simply by the earnest perusal of Science and Health, and seemed quite wonderful to me, as I had suffered from this disorder since early childhood. Then came the overcoming of some warts, which were unpleasant to look at. A practitioner treated me, and in a short time they were gone, and have never returned.

Digitized by Google

Before our little one came I suffered very much from varicose veins, which had caused me a great deal of pain for several years and were supposed to be inherited. At this time they became greatly enlarged, until I could not do my housework without resting several times during the day. Although I studied Science faithfully the trouble grew worse; so a practitioner was asked to treat me, with the result that in a few days the pain completely disappeared and in less than two weeks I was healed—all through absent treatments. There has been no return of the trouble and I am able to do all the work that needs to be done. Through the study of Science and Health and the Bible I am now able to solve the problems that are presented each day.

Words fail to express the love I feel for Christian Science; I can only say in the words of the psalmist, "Bless the Lord, O my soul, . . . who healeth all thy diseases."

Mabel E. Vogt, Grinnell, Iowa.

✧

[Translated from the German]

In March, 1913, my feet began to swell and severe heart trouble set in, so that I suffered greatly after the slightest effort. I had been acquainted with Christian Science for about a year and a half, and realized that God alone could help me in my extremity. I treated myself to the best of my knowledge, but feeling that my understanding of the truth was still too small, I asked a Christian Science practitioner for treatment. My body was so swollen that I could hardly move, but I clung to the truth, while the practitioner helped me on and worked for me. When I saw that it was not my body but my whole thinking which was in need of healing, improvement began and continued every day. In a short time I was well and able to take care of my household.

The trouble has never manifested itself since, and I cannot be too grateful to God for this glorious proof of His help in times of great need. I am also greatly indebted to Mrs. Eddy, for without her discovery we would not know that such healing is possible nowadays. My desire is that this testimony may induce others who are in trouble to seek the help which never faileth.

Frau Marie Pfister, Heubach, Württemberg, Germany.

✧

When Christian Science came to me, I had been ill for over a year. Four different physicians had treated me during that time, but no permanent relief was received; instead I slowly and surely got worse. Though seemingly my healing in Christian Science was slow, I received help from the very first, for after having three treatments I arose, dressed myself, and walked three quarters of a mile. From that time on I have been able to do my own housework. I had very little faith in Christian Science, but tried it as a last resort.

I am grateful for the understanding of Life, Truth, and Love as revealed in Mrs. Eddy's writings, which came to me through the overcoming of this illness.

Annie Jobson, St. Louis, Mo.

✧

It is a pleasure to tell of the blessings which have come to me through Christian Science. When a small child I fell on the foot of a bed and was hurt severely; but the pain in the stomach caused thereby was overcome with Christian Science treatment. Then I fell from a step ladder, and sustained an injury which resulted in curvature of the spine. The left side stopped growing, and one leg was shorter than the other. Later I experienced a nervous breakdown and suffered intensely, but through Christian Science it was proved that God's love never fails. The hip has grown normal, and the flesh on that side has developed so that I no longer need to wear pads as formerly, while the leg is as long as the other. The healing was slow, for there were many erroneous beliefs to be overcome.

For all the blessings which have come to me I am thankful to God, and to Christ Jesus the Wayshower. Words cannot express my gratitude to our Leader, Mrs. Eddy.

Gertrude Owen, Oxford Junction, Iowa.

I gladly verify my daughter's testimony. The physical conditions were most serious, but they have all been entirely overcome through Christian Science treatment. I am grateful for the blessings we have received through the power of Truth. Twenty-four years ago my husband was healed of Bright's disease, and I was healed of a serious case of cataract, although I was almost blind in both eyes. Nervousness, kidney and stomach troubles, as well as many other ailments, have been overcome. Seven years ago another breakdown came, at the passing on of my husband, but divine Love did not fail me.

My heart goes out in gratitude to the dear ones who have helped me on the right way in all these years. One daughter was raised almost from the grave on two different occasions, —once from an attack of measles accompanied by heart trouble, and at another time from a nervous breakdown and an abnormal growth. Through the realization that God is the only Life, she was restored to health and strength. My heart is filled with gratitude to our Leader, Mrs. Eddy, for her gift to suffering humanity, and my thankfulness to God for His wonderful love and power is beyond words to express.—Mary J. Pegorek.

✧

It was in August, 1909, that I first heard of Christian Science. For eight years I had suffered from acute stomach trouble, colitis, hemorrhage, adhesions, also a displacement which caused great pain. I was unable to eat any solid food and sometimes was kept up artificially. I was sent to three different hospitals and one nursing home, underwent three operations, and had the advice of nine doctors, but was told that no more could be done for me. My mother was warned to be very careful with me, lest I lose my reason. At times I would be in bed as long as four months, and when able to go out had to be taken in an invalid chair.

When all hope had apparently vanished I was told about Christian Science, and after getting the text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, I applied for treatment. My healing was slow, but with constant study and the help of the practitioner one ailment after another left me. The discharge I had been troubled with for years ceased, and I could eat anything. After some time I was able to return to business, much to the surprise of all my friends. The displacement did not yield for three years, when after a very severe attack I realized the ever-presence of God so clearly that I knew the healing had come, and from that time there has been no further trouble.

One day I was suddenly taken with a paralytic stroke, which affected my head and one side of my face, and I could not hear a sound. This condition was considered hereditary. I was unable to work for myself in Science, so I asked for treatment. For three days I remained very ill, but the fourth day there came a clear realization that God was my life, and I was healed instantaneously. An abnormal condition of the kidneys has been overcome, and I am better than ever before.

Digitized by Google

Not only does Christian Science heal physically, but it can be applied to one's every-day affairs. My sister and I are in business together, she also being a student of Christian Science, and since we have learned what substance is, and that the only real business is God's business, which never fluctuates but is unlimited in its scope, ours has changed from a failing to a flourishing condition. Every day I am more thankful for the knowledge of the truth which Christian Science reveals, and am striving to learn more, so as to be a light to others.

Words but poorly express my thankfulness to God, and my gratitude to our dear Leader, Mrs. Eddy, for giving to the world Science and Health, which makes plain to human understanding the truth that Jesus said should make men free.—Elizabeth Kate Baker, Plymouth, England.

I gladly bear witness to my daughter's testimony, the whole statement being perfectly true. I did not take up Christian Science for healing, but my daughter's healing was so complete and so wonderful that it gave me absolute confidence in God's power to cure all ills of the human body. Every day I see countless ways in which I am preserved from accidents and unpleasant experiences. I was healed of acute inflammation of the lungs in one week. Glasses had been worn for many years, but they were discarded some time ago, and my sight is perfectly good. I am enjoying the best of health, and for all the blessings we have received I wish to express real gratitude. It is my desire to reflect this teaching in my life.—Elizabeth Baker.

✧

This testimony is given with the hope that it will brighten the outlook for some suffering heart, as testimonies of a similar nature have brightened mine. After having lived a very material life for many years, I became a nervous wreck. Five doctors treated me, but to no avail. One specialist said I was organically perfect; that I would have to "grin and bear it," and in time would work out of it. However, this was not an easy task, as I was literally afraid of my own shadow.

Finally I decided to try Christian Science, but told the practitioner I thought it a joke. To my surprise, instead of getting angry at my frankness he patiently explained what this Science is. As a result of Christian Science treatment I have laid aside glasses, which had been used since I was seven years of age, and have been freed from the liquor and tobacco habits, as well as healed of the terrible nervous condition. I am now a picture of health and never felt so well in my life. Our baby, three months old, has been healed of whooping-cough, and scarlet fever and other ailments too numerous to mention have been overcome. I have also been helped financially.

It has been my privilege to help many with the slight understanding I have gained of this accurate Science, and I am most grateful to Mrs. Eddy for her untiring efforts to give the world this wonder of wonders. My desire is that my thankfulness to God may be shown by living the life He would have me live.—Josef Le Maire, New York, N. Y.

Christian Science came to me through my husband's healing, though I took up its study reluctantly. Having been a trained nurse, I could not see how the reading of a book could help any one out of a physical or material trouble; it seemed almost ridiculous to me. I was however awakened to its value, for with the help of my husband, who then had only a very slight understanding of Christian Science, I was completely healed of chronic bowel trouble of many years' standing. In the three years that we have been interested in this wonderful teaching I have been healed of numerous ills, among them postnasal catarrh and biliousness. I am gradually overcoming impatience and irritability, including all discord that occurs where there are children, and with the help of a practitioner I have been able to abandon all material remedies and rely entirely on God.

The study of Christian Science has also changed my views of God. Passing two years in a hospital, with its suffering and misery, I used to wonder if God were responsible for it all; if so, I did not care to know anything about Him. While I am grateful for the physical help we have received, it does not compare with the moral and spiritual light which has come to me. My daily prayer is that I may become more fit to serve Him who gave His "only begotten Son" to show us the way. My deepest gratitude goes out to Mrs. Eddy for her untiring and unselfish work to make clear this wonderful truth.—Frida Le Maire.

✧

It is because I have many times been benefited physically and spiritually by reading the testimonies of healing in the Sentinel and Journal, that I send my offering with the hope that it may help some one. Through studying the text-book of Christian Science, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, and substituting the concept of God as Love for that of a personal God, and man as God's image for person or physique, I was healed of a structural defect of the eyes and found myself reading and sewing without glasses after having worn them for years. That was seven years ago, and I have had no need of glasses since. I have also been healed of what was pronounced a fibroid tumor. This healing was slow, covering a period of two years or more, but the growth eventually disappeared into its native nothingness.

To God I give all glory. I am grateful to Mrs. Eddy for the spiritual interpretation of the Bible by which we may gain heaven, harmony, here and now.

Kate B. Hanlin, Denver, Col.

✧

It is with a heart full of gratitude that I send this testimony of God's loving-kindness to me. A Christian Science practitioner was asked to treat me only when other means had failed to relieve my mental distress in the darkest hour of my life. Discord, turmoil, and limitation seemed to rule in my home, and I had become so wearied with it all that finally self-destruction was contemplated; but what I had read in some Christian Science literature seemed to hold me back from such a fate, and I finally asked for help.

After three or four treatments there came into our home boundless peace, joy, and love. No book ever made such an impression upon me spiritually as did Science and Health, which the practitioner told me to get at my earliest opportunity. Through the reading of it my eyes were healed, although they were in such a condition that an oculist had advised treatment for my nerves before he would fit my eyes with glasses.

I began early to apply my understanding of God in numerous ways, with gratifying results, and sometimes the healing was instantaneous. Croup, fevers, stomach troubles, cuts, bruises, and other ills have been overcome. My year old baby fell on a hot stove and was severely burned on the face and one hand, but the pain ceased in half an hour after treatment was asked for, and the burns healed without leaving a scar. An attack of ptomaine poisoning was overcome even when death was thought to be near, and I was enabled to do all my work the next day. At the time my last child was born there were sores on my legs that the physician said were liable to infection, but they caused no trouble and were healed with Christian Science treatment.

Digitized by Google

I have indeed much for which to be grateful, and am more thankful to God than words can express; also to Mrs. Eddy, who has shown us the way.

MARTHA STEGING, Redondo Beach, Cal.

✧

Christian Science was brought to my notice when I was just recovering from a serious operation. A lady told me I did not need to suffer, and the reason why. Having endured suffering all my life, I yearned for anything that would set me free from it. As a child my trouble was diagnosed as consumption of the bowels and pronounced incurable, and at a later time I was said to have ovarian trouble. I had all kinds of treatment, but physicians declared that only an operation would help me. I had a dread of operations, but being considered very anemic and having all the ills that go with this condition, the time came when it seemed as if I would rather die than live, and so I consented to submit to the ordeal. For a time I was much better, and thinking that the operation had helped me, I dismissed all thought of Christian Science. In about eight months my condition was worse than ever, for in addition to the physical suffering and weakness my hands were covered with a skin disease. One morning I even prayed earnestly to die, believing that this was the only way out of suffering.

I finally purchased a copy of Science and Health, but laid it aside. I would however read testimonies of the wonderful healings which had been brought about by the reading of this book, and would pray that if there was any truth in it, I would be guided to know it. Surely my prayer was answered, for the very day I asked for Christian Science treatment the healing came. On the way home the words of our Leader's hymn, "Shepherd, show me how to go" (Hymnal, p. 237), illumined my thoughts. I turned at once to Science and Health, and this time every line had a message for me. My healing was so marked that it swept away all opposition on the part of my family; they knew that nothing could have brought this about but the truth taught in this book.

That was more than nine years ago, and today I am a strong, happy woman, for this glorious truth has brought to me the peace "which passeth all understanding." At one time I thought mine was such a useless existence, but now I am proving that man as God's image is capable of all things. It would take pages to tell of the many other blessings I have received.—ANNIE M. HOLLOWAY, Seattle, Wash.

✧

About five years ago I suffered severely for over seven weeks from the effects of poison oak. A few weeks later I had another attack, and the doctor said this trouble would occur every year at the same season for a period of seven years. This belief has been overcome in Christian Science, for I have never had a recurrence of the trouble, although I go into the woods and country more than ever before. While I was splitting wood one day, a splinter flew into my eye. As I realized instantly that "accidents are unknown to God" (Science and Health, p. 424), there was no sense of pain at all and the splinter was proved harmless.

For these healings—these evidences of God's goodness, mercy, and protection—I am truly grateful. I appreciate the great privilege of going to Sunday school, as it gives one a firm foundation in the understanding of this great truth.

ADOLPH E. ASHER, Portland, Ore.

From Our Exchanges

[Rev. William A. Elliott in The Biblical World]

No one will question that good has come from those early "battles of the creeds," but every student of church history can only lament that so much of the thought and time and energy of Christianity should have been expended in the warfare of words while the great world program of Jesus was lost sight of. It is my profound conviction that the policy of controversy has not carried us so far along in the work of kingdom extension as conquest would have done. We are better grounded in the faith, perhaps, but our going has been pitifully slow and pathetically indifferent. We are more orthodox but less invincible. We are sectarian in spirit and split in hopeless confusion, while otherwise we might have been united. The early churches had the faith and the religious experience and the passion for conquest and were divinely commissioned, and thus panoplied they went forth with mighty power and success; but they stopped to define, and their ecclesiastical definitions brought divisions. It is ever thus. We divide when we stop to define. Definition is important. Let us not decry it. But theological definition serves as a check to spiritual conquest.

[Rev. Joseph Fort Newton, D.Litt., in The Christian Commonwealth]

What guarantees the purity and power of the faith of the saints is not trust deeds or even creeds, but lives of sweet saintliness, in which its reality is revealed and its beauty comes to bloom. They best keep the faith who incarnate it in heroic character in the name of him in whom the Word of God became flesh, who is King of saints and Saviour of sinners by the power of the endless life. There is no need that we go back to him, because he is not behind us, but with us, before us, beckoning us on to the city of God.

[The Christian Intelligencer]

In presenting the claims of Christ to men, it is to be emphasized that the call to men is not to follow insipid Christians, but Christ. However far off many professing believers may be following Christ, the ideal of Jesus is none the less shining, and men are to look at him and to be imitators of him. The soul's relation to God is a personal relation, and the word of Christ to those who hide behind excuses is, "What is that to thee? follow thou me."

[Rev. Herbert E. Benton in The Universalist Leader]

Our capacities are a trust. Often a man who would administer a trust fund with scrupulous honesty and regard for the expressed terms, in administering this trust which is in himself, which really is himself, pays little heed to the terms of the contract as given by the party of the first part (i.e., God), but invests and trades and risks and uses with no thought except his own advantage.

[The Christian Work]

Easter stands for a spiritual miracle which can erect and resurrect out of the hatreds, strifes, and insane follies and crimes of the present international war, empires of unity and brotherly love. No human expedients are of avail in such a task as this. The risen Christ alone can accomplish this mighty miracle of renewal and change.

[Rev. Emile S. Harper in The Homiletic Review]

Any man with vision, with an ideal of some true and rugged purpose, does not think of success. His search is for truth. We should be warriors in the world's battle, and success in war means self-sacrifice.

Digitized by Google

[Rev. E. Shillito, M.A., in The Christian World]

Theology, when it is living, is in the closest relation with the data of religious experience. It has, indeed, for one of its functions the task of setting in order for the satisfaction of the intellect all that is involved in religious experience. True theology does more than record, but it does seek to understand and to think together all the data of the life lived by faith in the immediate present. If the theologian deals with the unclosed questions which are asked in many fashions, in many ages, he takes the fashion that he knows best in his immediate setting for his dealing. If he deals today with the doctrine of the person of Christ, he will not use the terminology more familiar in Alexandria in the fourth century than in the London of the twentieth. He will not discuss Providence as though he were back in the eighteenth century among its deists and skeptics. He will deal with the problems of his science, knowing at the same time that the heart and mind and conscience of man are seeking the same things always, and that they seek them in many ways. The theologian must be above his age, yet within it.

[The Sunday School Times]

It is not humble to be always thinking of how worthless we are. For it is easy to pass from that consciousness of our worthlessness to pride that we are so conscious of our worthlessness; and pride in our humility is as bad as any other kind of pride. The recipe for real humility is not looking at what we are not, but looking at what God is, and seeing this by "looking unto Jesus." So it has been well said that "it is better to be thinking of what God is than what we are. . . . True humility does not so much consist in thinking badly of ourselves as in not thinking of ourselves at all." Self dies when we yield all to Christ and trust him for all. Then he fills our vision and keeps it filled with himself. That is as much better than trying to be humble as the living Christ is better than the dead self.

[The Continent]

The constant challenge of the Christian faith is to give the things that count the first chance in life. It casts no disparagement on the lesser things; it merely insists that they be kept where they belong. When the things of this passing life and those of the kingdom of God are set side by side, it does not minimize the former, but it does insist that the kingdom shall be sought first—the other things being counted an addition to life, not life itself. The things that count have certain marks. For one thing, they are lasting things, and they can be known by their promise of endurance.

[The Guardian]

The world's hope is a vision of permanent peace based on international righteousness, and the only hope of the fulfilment of any such vision lies in a mighty extension of the kingdom of Christ undertaken by a church chastened, repentant, and adventurous. It is the spirit of the nations which needs a change. If that is accomplished, the political and economic aspects of international relationships will adjust themselves accordingly.

[Unitarian Word and Work]

If the gospels could be taken for just what they claim to be,—not treatises or systems or logically developed theses, but just good news, illustrations of right conduct, plain and simple statements about right living,—there would be no excuse for the fences and sectarian divisions that thwart and hamper the religious spirit.

Special Announcements

From the Publisher of Mrs. Eddy's Works

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE TEXT-BOOK, "SCIENCE AND HEALTH WITH KEY TO THE SCRIPTURES."—See back cover of this periodical for styles of bindings and prices.

CONCORDANCE TO SCIENCE AND HEALTH.—A new edition of this volume is announced, printed from new plates and bound in stiff morocco. Single copy, $5.00; six or more, each $4.50.

CONCORDANCE TO MRS. EDDY'S PUBLISHED WRITINGS OTHER THAN SCIENCE AND HEALTH.—Published only in the India Bible paper edition, with stiff morocco covers; uniform in style with the Concordance to Science and Health. Price, $6.00; six or more, each $5.50.

Announcement is made of the publication of a new edition of the German translation of the Manual of The Mother Church. This edition is printed with alternate pages of English and German, and is uniform in binding and price with the regular cloth-bound edition. If those who have purchased the Manual in German, but without the English pages, wish to exchange them for new copies with both English and German text, without additional charge, they can do so by sending their German copies to the Publisher, postage paid, marking the name and address of the sender plainly on the wrapper. In exchange for all copies so returned the Publisher will send copies of the new edition without charge, postage paid.

Announcement is made of the printing of an edition of Rudimental Divine Science in the American Braille system of type for the blind. Single copy, 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

Orders for the books named above and other works by Mrs. Eddy should be addressed to ALLISON V. STEWART, Falmouth and St. Paul Streets, Boston, Mass.

From the Editor

All manuscripts submitted for publication in the Sentinel, Journal, and Herold, whether articles, poems, or testimonies, and all correspondence relating thereto, should be addressed to the EDITOR, and not to individuals.

From the Publishing Society

The increased cost of leather has necessitated an advance in the prices of the leather bound hymnals, and the following prices became effective May 1, 1917. Delivery charges prepaid. Morocco, pocket edition, one copy $3.50; six copies to one address $19.50; twelve copies to one address $36.00. Morocco, large size, one copy $3.75; six copies to one address $21.00; twelve copies to one address $39.00. Levant, large size, one copy $4.75; six copies to one address $27.00; twelve copies to one address $51.00.

In the announcement of April 28, the price of the large size morocco hymnal was listed by mistake at $3.50 a copy. The listing in the May Journal was incorrect and correction will appear in the June issue.

From the Clerk of The Mother Church

CHURCH TENETS.—The tenets of The First Church of Christ, Scientist,—The Mother Church,—printed on folded sheet for use of the branch Churches of Christ, Scientist, with space for printing their authorized forms of application for membership or extracts from their by-laws, can be had at seventy-five cents a hundred. Orders will not be taken for less than one hundred and postage stamps should not be sent in payment.

Correspondence relative to the tenets or to membership with The Mother Church, should be sent to J. V. DITTEMORE, Clerk, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

From the Church Treasurer

The annual per capita tax of members of The Mother Church is due June 1, but may be paid at any time during the year. The per capita tax of members uniting in November is reckoned from the preceding June, this being the beginning of the church year. Unless otherwise directed by the sender, the full amount of each remittance will be credited for the current year.

Please remit by postal or express money order, bank draft, or check. Currency should be sent by registered letter only.

Please advise promptly of any change in name or address.

Send per capita taxes and contributions to ADAM H. DICKEY, Treasurer, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

Digitized by Google

The Christian Science Journal

Published Monthly

Founded April, 1883, by Mary Baker Eddy, Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, and author of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures."

This monthly magazine is the official organ of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. In addition to articles, editorials, and testimonies not published elsewhere, it contains a complete list of Christian Science practitioners, and a directory of Christian Science Churches, Societies, and Reading Rooms.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $2; six months $1; three months 50 cents. SALE PRICE: Single copy 20 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 15 cents. For Canada add 25 cents for postage. SALE PRICE: Single copy 20 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 17 cents. In all other countries add 65 cents for postage for each annual subscription. SALE PRICE: Single copy 25 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 20 cents.

BOUND VOLUMES: Current and past year, cloth $3.00; half calf or half morocco $3.75. On earlier volumes write for prices.

The Christian Science Quarterly

Published January, April, July, and October

Contains the Lesson-Sermons which are read at the Sunday services throughout the year in all the Christian Science churches. These Lessons, which present citations from the Bible and "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," are valuable for daily study. Also printed in Dutch and German.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION AND SALE: In the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year 50 cents; single copy 15 cents; four copies or more to one address, each 12½ cents. For all other countries one year 60 cents; single copy 18 cents; four copies or more, each 15 cents.

Subscriptions not accepted for less than one year. Subscriptions begin with current quarter unless otherwise designated, and terminate with the last of the month named on wrapper.

The Christian Science Monitor

Published Daily, Except Sundays and Legal Holidays

An international daily newspaper. Adequate news service. The various departments of a modern newspaper. Unique Home Forum page. Entire page of editorials dealing with the vital topics of the day. Contributions to the columns of the MONITOR should be addressed: Editor, THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States (except in the Boston Postal District), Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $5; six months $2.50; three months $1.25; one month 50 cents. In all other countries additional postage at the rate of $3 yearly is required. By carrier through a local news-dealer; one month 60 cents. In the Boston Postal District, by mail, one year $7.20. Quantity rates will be furnished on application.

Der Herold der Christian Science

Published Monthly

A magazine printed in German, which publishes original and translated articles bearing upon Christian Science, also testimonials of healing.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $1; six months 50 cents; three months 25 cents. For other countries, one year $1.25; six months 63 cents; three months 32 cents.

SALE PRICE, DOMESTIC TERRITORY AND CANADA, POSTPAID: Single copy 10 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 8 cents. Foreign rate, single copy 12 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 10 cents.

Bound Volumes in cloth, $2.75 each; half calf or half morocco $3.50 each. Write for list of volumes in stock.

Pamphlets

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS RELIGIOUS PHILOSOPHY. By HON. CLARENCE A. BUSKIRK.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: "THE RESURRECTION AND THE LIFE." By CLARENCE W. CHADWICK.

CAUSATION: VIEWED IN THE LIGHT OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By FREDERICK DIXON. Also printed in Norwegian and Swedish.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING VS. MENTAL SUGGESTION. By FREDERICK DIXON. Reprinted from the Weekly Budget, London, England. Also printed in Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE TRUE CHRISTIANITY. By CLARENCE C. EATON.

"THE SONS OF GOD." By COL. WILLIAM E. FELL.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE REVELATION OF CHRIST. By JOHN W. DOORLY.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE VS. FINITE SENSE. By FRANCIS J. FLUNO, M.D.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE GOSPEL OF FREEDOM. By WILLIS F. GROSS.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE SCIENCE OF SALVATION. By HERMANN S. HERING.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING: SPIRITUAL AND SCIENTIFIC. By PROF. HERMANN S. HERING. Also printed in German.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS CONCERNING CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. Also printed in Dutch, German, and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS ADVANTAGE TO MANKIND. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. A London lecture. Also printed in French.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: MAN'S DOMINION OVER EVIL. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. Also printed in modern Greek, Italian, Norwegian, and Russian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS DIVINE AUTHORITY. By BLISS KNAPP.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE EXPLANATION OF THE IDEAL MAN. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS DISCOVERY AND DEVELOPMENT. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: GOD'S LOVINGKINDNESS PROVED TO MEN. By REV. WILLIAM P. MCKENZIE. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS RESULTS. By WILLIAM R. RATHVON. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE RELIGION OF DIVINE LAW. By JACOB S. SHIELD.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM. By JUDGE CLIFFORD P. SMITH. Also printed in French and German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A RELIGION OF LOVE. By VIRGIL O. STRICKLER. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE NEW BIRTH. By BICKNELL YOUNG. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

THE LAW OF KINDNESS.
"WHAT WENT YE OUT FOR TO SEE?"
"THEN THE FULL GRAIN IN THE EAR."
"AWAKE THOU THAT SLEEPEST"
UPWARD FOOTSTEPS. Also printed in Dutch.
FULFILLING THE LAW. Also printed in Danish.
PRAYER AND HEALING. Also printed in French and German.
THE DIVINE NATURE. Also printed in Dutch and Norwegian.
ENVIRONMENT AND OPPORTUNITY. Also printed in French.
THE FATHER'S BUSINESS. Also printed in German and Swedish.
SEEKING AND FINDING. Also printed in Dutch, German, and Swedish.
THE PROVIDENCE OF GOOD. Also printed in French, Spanish, and Swedish.
LAW AND WORK.
CONFIDENCE AND SUPPLY.
BIRTHRIGHT AND DOMINION.

Other Translated Pamphlets

FAITH AND GENEROSITY. Printed in French-English.
MAN'S UNITY WITH GOD. Printed in German only.
"PEACE ON EARTH." Printed in German only.
PRAYER AND CONFIDENCE. Printed in German. Also in Dutch-English.
MARY BAKER EDDY. By ARTHUR BRISBANE. Printed in German only.
MARY BAKER EDDY: HER PURPOSE AND ACCOMPLISHMENT. By FREDERICK DIXON. Printed in German. Also in French-English.
THE FOUNDER OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By B. O. FLOWER. Printed in German only.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A REASONABLE AND RATIONAL VIEW OF ALL THINGS. By FRANCIS J. FLUNO, M.D. Printed in Dutch-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: HUMANITY'S HELPER. By PROF. HERMANN S. HERING. Printed in Dutch-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE COMFORTER OF PROMISE. By FRANK H. LEONARD. Printed in French-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: DEMONSTRABLE RELIGION. By FRANK H. LEONARD. Printed in Norwegian only.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A RELIGION OF PROGRESS. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Printed in Swedish. Also in French-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS PRINCIPLE AND METHOD. By BICKNELL YOUNG. Printed in Swedish. Also in French-English.

PRICE, POSTPAID: Single copy 5 cents; twelve copies to one address 55 cents; fifty copies $2; one hundred copies $3.50. Orders for above pamphlets may be assorted as desired.

For table of English, German, Swiss, and French money equivalents, see inside front cover page.

Miscellaneous

A Catalogue of Selected Bibles will be furnished upon application, and quantity rates on other items specified below will be found in the current catalogue in The Christian Science Journal.

BIBLES. 01483 x. Clarendon Brevier, heavy-faced, distinct type; Turkey morocco, corresponding in size and binding to pocket edition of Science and Health, $4.75.

01440 x. Brevier, light-faced type; self-pronouncing, Turkey morocco, corresponding in size and binding to pocket edition of Science and Health, $4.50.

01683 x. Large type Bible, 10¾ x 8 inches, bound in Alaska seal. Specially adapted for use of second readers, $12.50.

Black morocco open case to hold pocket edition of Science and Health, Quarterly, and Bible, $1.40.

Two other sizes of open case listed in the current issue of the Journal.

Black morocco closed case with handle and purse on outside, $3.75; without purse, $3.50.

The improved index will be added to any Bible listed in our catalogue for an additional charge of 35 cents. Catalogue No. 23 of selected Bibles will be mailed free upon application.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS ON THE LIFE AND WORK OF MARY BAKER EDDY. 132 pages with index. Paper covered, 15 cents; cloth binding, 85 cents.

THE LIFE OF MARY BAKER EDDY. By Sibyl Wilbur. 424 pages. Cloth, $2. Edition de luxe, $5.

PERSONAL CONTAGION, ALSO WHAT OUR LEADER SAYS. By Mary Baker Eddy. Special pamphlet. Paper cover, 10 cents.

THE MOTHER CHURCH. By Joseph Armstrong. A history of the building of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. Illustrated, 107 pages. Cloth, $1.50.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS LEGAL STATUS. By Judge Clifford P. Smith. 128 pages, paper covered, 10 cents.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HYMNAL. Cloth, $1.15; half morocco, $1.40; full morocco, $3.75; levant, $4.75; pocket edition, size 4⅝ x 6⅝, $3.50.

SHEET MUSIC. Poems written by Mary Baker Eddy and used by special permission, have been set to music as follows: "The Mother's Evening Prayer," 75 cents; "Christ, My Refuge," 75 cents; "Love," 40 cents; Communion Hymn—"Saw Ye My Saviour?" (Johnson), 50 cents; "Blest Christmas Morn," 27 cents; "O'er Waiting Harpstrings of the Mind," 27 cents; "Shepherd, Show Me How to Go," 27 cents; "Saw Ye My Saviour?" (Root), 27 cents. The first three hymns are arranged for high and low voice in the same copy. The last five hymns are published separately in high and low keys. When ordering state key desired.

PHOTOGRAVURE OF MRS. EDDY, printed in three sizes on India paper and mounted on heavy plate paper ready for framing. 8-inch (mount 12 x 10), $1; 12-inch (mount 15 x 20), $2; 16-inch (mount 21 x 20), $3.50.

PICTURE OF THE FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, IN BOSTON, MASS., AND THE PUBLISHING HOUSE. Artist's proof with remarque on Japanese vellum, size 18 x 24 inches, $5; on India paper without remarque, $3. Smaller reproduction, size 11 x 14 inches, on Japanese vellum, $1. Photogravure post-cards of the Church Edifice and Publishing House, 5 cents.

QUARTERLY COVERS in black morocco, $1.30; with purse, $1.50.

ALUMINUM LESSON MARKERS. Set of thirty, with paper shields, 50 cents. Extra paper shields, one hundred, 15 cents.

PRICE LIST OF BIBLE CONCORDANCES AND DICTIONARIES OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE supplied on request. Express charges collect on delivery.

REPRINTS (not printed in English). Two-page leaflets, 14 subjects in French and Swedish; 18 subjects in German. Ten copies to one address, 10 cents.

Remittances should always accompany orders, and be made by check, money order, or exchange on Boston or New York. Currency or coin should not be sent by mail unless registered. Please send no money or business letters to the Editor or Editorial Department.

Send all orders for the works of Mrs. Eddy, with remittance by New York or Boston draft or money order, direct to Allison V. Stewart
For literature listed above address orders and make remittances payable to

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

FALMOUTH AND ST. PAUL STREETS, BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

Digitized by Google

Works on Christian Science

Written by MARY BAKER EDDY, Discoverer and Founder
of Christian Science and Author of its Text-book

Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures. In one volume, 700 pages. The original, standard, and only text-book on Christian Science Mind-healing. Cloth, one to eleven copies inclusive (cloth only), each $3.00; twelve or more, each $2.75. Full leather, stiff, beveled boards, gilt edges, same paper as in cloth binding, single copy $4.00; twelve or more, each $3.75. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $5.00; twelve or more, each $4.75. Levant, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, round corners, gilt edges, silk sewed, heavy Oxford India Bible paper (wide margins, large-sized book), single copy $6.00; twelve or more, each $5.75.

LARGE TYPE EDITION. Designed especially for the use of First Readers. Large type (18-point) on Oxford India Bible paper, bound in leather. Size 10¾ inches long by 8 inches wide. Single copy $7.50, with a discount of 25 cents each when included in an order for twelve or more copies of Science and Health, and in any or all of the different bindings.

GERMAN TRANSLATION. Alternate pages of English and German. Cloth, one to five copies inclusive, each $3.50; six or more, each $3.25. Pocket edition, printed on Oxford India Bible paper. Morocco, one to five copies inclusive, each $5.50; six or more, each $5.25. Orders for the German translation in lots of six or more may include both bindings.

Orders for Science and Health in lots of twelve or more at quantity prices may include both English and German editions, and different styles of binding.

Miscellaneous Writings. A book of 471 pages, containing articles published in The Christian Science Journal from 1883 to 1896, with revisions and additions. Cloth, single copy $2.25; twelve or more, each $2.00. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $4.00; twelve or more, each $3.75. Levant, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, round corners, gilt edges, silk sewed, Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $5.00; twelve or more, each $4.75. Orders for Miscellaneous Writings in lots of twelve or more may include any or all of the different styles of binding. No discount will be allowed on orders for twelve books which include both Science and Health and Miscellaneous Writings.

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany. A book of 366 pages, containing articles published in The Christian Science Journal and Sentinel, subsequent to the compilation of Miscellaneous Writings, together with historical matter pertaining thereto. Cloth, single copy $2.25; six or more, each $2.00. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $4.00; six or more, each $3.75. Orders for six or more may include the two styles of binding.

Concordance to Science and Health. This work contains about eighty thousand references (more than ten thousand words being indexed), also an index to the Marginal Headings, and a list of the Scriptural Quotations in Science and Health. 611 pages, stiff morocco cover, single copy $5.00; six or more, each $4.50.

Concordance to Mrs. Eddy's Published Writings Other Than Science and Health. It contains 1,103 pages, and is published only in Bible paper edition, with stiff morocco cover. Single copy, $6.00; six or more, each, $5.50.

Christ and Christmas. An illustrated poem. Single copy $3.00; six or more, each $2.50.

Unity of Good and Other Writings. One volume, containing Unity of Good, Rudimental Divine Science, No and Yes, Retrospection and Introspection; uniform in style with the pocket edition of Science and Health. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, heavy Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $3.50; six or more, each $3.25.

Christian Healing and Other Writings. One volume, containing Christian Healing, The People's Idea of God, Pulpit and Press, Christian Science versus Pantheism, Messages of 1900, 1901, 1902; uniform in style with the pocket edition of Science and Health. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, heavy Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $3.50; six or more, each $3.25.

Church Manual. Containing the By-laws of The Mother Church. Cloth, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents. Pocket edition, morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $2.00; six or more, each $1.75.

GERMAN TRANSLATION. Alternate pages of English and German. Cloth, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Retrospection and Introspection. A biographical sketch of the author; the way she was led to the discovery of Christian Science; its fundamental idea and growth. Library edition, cloth, 95 pages, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Unity of Good. This book lays the axe at the root of error, elucidating and enforcing practical Christian Science, thus affording invaluable directions for all true Scientists. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, 64 pages, single copy 60 cents; six or more, each 45 cents. Pocket edition, leather covers, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Pulpit and Press. A unique work, of importance in the history and to the readers of Christian Science; containing the message or sermon written for the dedicatory service of The Mother Church, January 6, 1895, and scintillations from the press of that occasion. Library edition, cloth, 90 pages, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Rudimental Divine Science. A brief and concise statement of Divine Science, alias Christian Science, in the form of questions and answers. Pebbled cloth covers, gilt top, 17 pages, single copy 32 cents; six or more, each 25 cents. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 35 cents.

PRINTED in the New York point and American Braille systems of type for the use of the blind, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

No and Yes. A brief statement of very important points in Christian Science. Pebbled cloth covers, 46 pages, single copy 32 cents; six or more, each 25 cents. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 55 cents; six or more, each 45 cents.

Messages to The Mother Church. Including in one volume, 94 pages, Christian Science versus Pantheism, and the Messages of 1900, 1901, and 1902. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy $1.50; six or more, each $1.15.

Christian Science versus Pantheism. The Pastor Emeritus' Message delivered at the Communion Season in The Mother Church in Boston, June, 1898. A clear and strong refutation of the charge that Christian Scientists are pantheists. Pebbled cloth covers, 15 pages, single copy 25 cents; six or more, each 20 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1900. Paper covers, deckled edges, 15 pages, single copy 25 cents; six or more, each 20 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1901. Paper covers, deckled edges, 35 pages, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 38 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1902. Paper covers, deckled edges, 20 pages, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 38 cents.

Christian Healing, and The People's Idea of God. Two sermons in one volume, 36 pages. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 55 cents; six or more, each 45 cents.

Christian Healing. A sermon delivered in Boston. Paper covers, 20 pages, single copy 20 cents; six or more, each 17 cents.

The People's Idea of God. A sermon delivered in Boston. Paper covers, 14 pages, single copy 20 cents; six or more, each 17 cents.

Poems. This volume of 79 pages includes all of Mrs. Eddy's hymns, also her earlier poems which appeared in various publications from forty to sixty years ago. Specially bound. Single copy $1.50; six or more, each $1.25.

Feed My Sheep. Solo. Words by Mary Baker Eddy, music by Lyman F. Brackett. Single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

The foregoing prices cover all charges for express or postage on shipments either domestic or foreign.

Quantity prices are on shipments to one address only, but quantity lots at quantity prices cannot be made up of different books or of different styles of binding. Attention is called, however, to the exception to this rule which is made in the cases of Science and Health, and of Miscellaneous Writings, as given under these titles in this price list.

Address all orders for above works, and make remittance by New York or Boston draft or money order, to

ALLISON V. STEWART, FALMOUTH AND ST. PAUL STS., BOSTON, MASS.

Digitized by Google

WISCONSIN
HISTORICAL LIBRARY

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SENTINEL

"What I say unto you I say unto all-WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX No. 39

Boston, May 26, 1917

Contents of This Number

Items of Interest (Brief Mention of Important Events)		762
Prayer	Alfred Farlow	763
The New Woman	Hon. Eleanora Money Coutts	763
Direction	Edward E. Daniell	764
Education	Mary F. Mecredy	765
Thought Enlightened	S. King Russell	765
No Lack	Laurene Gardner	766
"Good thoughts"	Nellie R. Craven	766
Mary Baker Eddy (Poem)	Morris Abel Beer	767
Selected Articles		767
Editorial
Neither Law nor Gospel		770
The Call and the Answer		770
Real Ambition		771
Expressions of Gratitude		771
Among the Churches (Current Notes)
South Pasadena, Cal.		772
Lanarkshire, Scotland		772
Colorado Springs, Col.		772
The Lectures
Halifax, England		773
Chicago, Ill.		773
Washington, D. C.		773
Testimonies of Healing		774
Immunity (Poem)	Myrtle Strode Jackson	777
From Our Exchanges		777

A LADY WITH A LAMP SHALL STAND IN THE GREAT HISTORY OF THE LAND

A NOBLE TYPE OF GOOD HEROIC WOMANHOOD
Longfellow

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY
FALMOUTH AND ST PAUL STREETS BOSTON MASS U.S.A.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

(THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE WEEKLY)

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY BY

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

Falmouth and St. Paul Sts., Boston, Mass., U.S.A.

ARCHIBALD McLELLAN
Editor

ANNIE M. KNOTT, WILLIAM D. McCRACKAN
Associate Editors

Subscription Price

Payable in advance

Annual subscription price, postpaid, in the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, $2.00; six months, $1.00; three months, 50 cents. For Canada add 45 cents and for all other countries 95 cents annually for postage. For subscriptions in quantities please refer to page four in THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE JOURNAL.

Subscriptions to the SENTINEL will begin with the current issue unless otherwise specified. The delivery of the periodical will indicate that a remittance has been credited and will be our acknowledgment of the subscription.

Bound Volumes: Current year or two years previous, cloth, $3.25; half calf or half morocco, $4.00. On earlier volumes write for prices.

Terms of Sale

	United States, Mexico, and Cuba	Canada	All Other Countries
Single copy	$ .05	$ .06	$ .07
Four or more copies . .	.03½	.04	.05

Equivalents of United States money

		£	s.	d.	Marks	Francs
$ .60	equals	0	2	6	2.52	3.12
1.15	"	0	4	9	4.85	5.98
1.25	"	0	5	2	5.30	6.50
2.33	"	0	9	7	9.83	12.09
2.38	"	0	9	10	10.05	12.35
2.63	"	0	10	9	11.10	13.65
2.65	"	0	10	10	11.20	13.78
2.70	"	0	11	1	11.40	14.04
2.95	"	0	12	2	12.50	15.34
5.00	"	1	0	7	21.15	26.00
7.50	"	1	10	10	31.73	39.00
8.00	"	1	12	11	33.85	41.60

Make all remittances payable to The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Postage required for remailing this copy: 1 cent domestic and Canada; 2 cents other countries.

Entered at Boston, Mass., post-office as second-class matter.

Items of Interest

Virgin forest land is usually chosen for coffee planting in India, the jungle being felled and burned. The coffee bushes need shelter from high wind, and from the sun in hot, dry weather, so that cultivation is always under shade in India. Three years after planting, the bushes begin to bear, and at five to seven years old they are in full bearing. The age to which a coffee bush can profitably be grown is said to be in the neighborhood of fifty years. The bushes in bloom are masses of starry white flowers, with a syringa-like scent. The crop is picked from October to January. The trees are picked over several times at intervals of a week or so, and the ripe berries taken at each round. The berries brought to the factory by the pickers are pulped to remove the outside jacket. The beans as they come from the pulper are coated with a slimy, sugary substance, which is removed by a certain amount of fermentation. When this is complete, the coffee is washed, and then spread out on tables or mats and constantly turned over in the sun until it is thoroughly and evenly dry. In this stage it is known as parchment coffee. It is then placed in machines which take off the husk, or parchment, and polish the bean.

The Indian Trade Journal says that there is no agricultural college in Burma, and agricultural education is confined to the training, mostly practical, of the subordinate staff of the department. It is proposed to start a school of agricultural research in connection with the projected Burma University, which will train graduates for the higher posts in the agricultural service. The main achievement of the department so far has been the production of improved strains of rice. Promising results have attended the experimental cultivation of cotton. Sugar-cane has been successfully introduced in the area irrigated from the Mon canals in the Minbu district, and its cultivation is now spreading. Much attention has been paid to wheat; the area under this crop has risen to 41,000 acres, and there is reason to believe that it can be cultivated with profit over the greater part of northern Burma. The possibility of the cultivation of jute, which is grown only to a small extent in Burma at present, has been considered. The crop is more valuable than rice, and its substitution for rice over a large part of lower Burma would benefit the cultivators and increase the land revenue.

That a great mistake was made in allowing such large areas of timber land in the public domain, "beyond all needs of local or industrial development," to pass so rapidly into private ownership, is the conclusion of the United States Forest Service made in a recent report covering some of the more pressing problems in the lumber industry. The report urges that what it describes as "the obvious remedy" be applied, "that of taking part of the western timber lands back" into the hands of the Federal Government. The report continues: "Lumbermen in the West are carrying vast quantities of timber land beyond all possible needs of their present sawmills and logging camps. The business of making lumber has been loaded down with investments in timber land. The productive branch of the industry has been interlocked too largely with speculations in its raw material; and instead of standing on its own feet as a manufacturing business, has tended to be made frequently to serve the exigencies of timber speculation. Pressure from an overload of timber is the first cause of the general instability of the industry."

The negro question has appeared in the affairs of the Federal Farm Loan Bank, says the New Orleans Times-Picayune. A number of negro farmers throughout the district composed of Alabama, Louisiana, and Mississippi are anxious for the benefits of the new cheap money system, and have applied for membership in the local associations through which the loans are asked and made. Officially, the board has ruled that the law does not make any distinction between borrowers, provided that they be on the land and seek to improve it and increase production, and the members have advised their correspondents not to raise any such issue. The white farmers were counseled to treat the matter strictly as a question of business, and not as a race issue.

Yucatan, it is reported, has reached a flourishing state of prosperity since the revolution, especially in connection with the henequin, or sisal, industry. Saloons are forbidden by law in the state. Large and small plantations compose the Reguladora, a cooperative enterprise under Government protection. In Merida, an important city of Yucatan in which the henequin industry to a considerable degree centers, have been established a school of fine arts, a conservatory of music, a school of arts and crafts for men and another for women, a vocational school of domestic sciences, and one or two others. In actual operation at present are 300 primary schools and 1800 rural schools.

Considerable logging and sawmilling machinery will probably be required after the war to exploit the forest resources of Siberia, which are practically untouched. The proposed railway from the Ob River to a point on the Arctic Ocean should render possible the exportation of timber from western Siberia to Europe. The forest area of Asiatic Russia has been estimated at 835,000,000 acres. The consumption of paper in Siberia aggregates two to three million tons a year, and the country is well supplied with spruce and other timbers suitable for the production of wood pulp. Buildings have been constructed for a paper mill at Tomsk to produce 120 tons a day of cheap wrapping and news paper.

Declaring that the holding of land out of use for speculation should be prevented, propagandists of a new means of revenue raising have begun a crusade in Washington. They advocate an annual tax of $1 an acre foot on coal deposits held out of use, $100 an acre on gas and oil lands held out of use, $30 an acre foot on iron and other mineral deposits, and $1 an acre on forest, farming, and grazing lands. In addition, they would have 20 per cent of the annual rentable value of vacant city lots taken as tax. "Such taxes," they declare, "would reach speculators only, and would break up restriction of production."

A contract has been closed with an American firm for a battery of by-product coke ovens of the Roberts type to be installed in Manchuria in connection with a blast furnace to be built for the South Manchuria Railway Company. The plant will be near an iron mine in the An Shan Chan district and is to have an output of at least one hundred and fifty thousand tons a year. The South Manchuria Railway Company owns the Fushum coal mines which will supply the ovens.

Excavations in the forum of the ancient city of Cyrene in northern Africa, have brought to light three bronze amphoræ, one of which still bears the old gilding, and a heating receptacle, a sort of samowar like those used in Pompeii. The portrait bust of a Roman personage of the Antonine age has also been discovered. Excavations are likewise being carried out in the Temple of Apollo, and the large hall of the Roman baths is being restored.

The homestead entries in Canada during the year 1916 amounted to 12,568, representing 27,925 persons. Of these entries, 5700 were made by Canadians, 2543 by settlers from the United Kingdom, and 1825 by settlers from the United States. In 1915 the homestead entries totaled 17,532, nearly 5000 in excess of the settlement in 1916.

Shadow Lawn, the estate near Long Branch, N. J., used as a summer White House by President Wilson last year, has been sold to a syndicate of prominent New York and New Jersey men, who, it is announced, propose to present the property to the Government for use as a permanent residence for the President of the United States.

The War Department has recommended to Congress the improvement of Taunton River in Massachusetts, from its mouth to Weir Village, to a depth of twelve feet and a width of one hundred feet, to cost $534,000. The project requires one half local cooperation.

The area under cotton in Russian Turkestan in 1916 was 1,900,560 acres. The entire crop of Russian cotton is said to have amounted to 1,600,000 bales in 1915 and to 1,230,000 bales in 1916.

In Denmark during 1916 about 369,000,000 bushels of root crops were gathered. Potatoes yielded 19,126,383 bushels, turnips 65,106,321, carrots 4,242,425, beet roots 181,123,563, and kohlrabi 128,612,153 bushels.

Indiana increased its production of petroleum last year for the first time in ten years, the state's output being 1,835,456 barrels.

A total computed lumber cut for the United States in 1916 of 39,807,251,000 board feet is announced by the Forest Service.

The production of beet sugar in Russia in 1915-16 was 1,640,000 short tons.

The Brazilian cacao crop is estimated at over 967,000 bags of 132 pounds each.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

"What I say unto you, I say unto all, WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX May 26, 1917 No. 39

Prayer

ALFRED FARLOW

A RECENT decision of the supreme court of the state of New York regarding the legal status of Christian Science practice, revives many important questions concerning the nature as well as the purpose and effect of prayer. The Scriptures throughout point to a reliance upon God in all times of trouble. His truth is represented as the universal panacea, and no form of sin or disease is excepted from its beneficent operation.

Somehow along the shores of time a belief in exceptions to divine law crept in, and although there seems never to have been a time when Christian people did not rely upon God for a remedy for sin, they had in large measure adopted other means of seeking relief from sickness. While Christendom had not entirely lost faith in the divine power and willingness to heal, it had so far lost sight of the practicality of spiritual healing that quite generally it had adopted the habit of depending upon material remedies for bodily cures. It was left to Mrs. Eddy to revive the practice of turning to God alone as a means of healing sickness. This practice being new and unusual, was naturally questioned by many religious persons, as well as others, for the reason that all new things must run the gantlet of public criticism until they have thoroughly demonstrated their efficiency and their right to claim the interest of humanity.

On page 1 of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," Mrs. Eddy says, "The prayer that reforms the sinner and heals the sick is an absolute faith that all things are possible to God,—a spiritual understanding of Him, an unselfed love." That a final decision, so far as human authority goes, was left to the highest judicial tribunal of New York, simply illustrates the fact that broad, well developed judicial keenness was required to note the righteousness of applying prayer to sickness as well as to sin.

No doubt the departure from primitive Christian healing has been largely due to a loss of the Christ-method. In a measure the world had forgotten how to pray as Jesus taught, but thanks to the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science the way has again been defined in unmistakable terms. We had not forgotten that the Master of Christianity healed the sick, nor had we forgotten that the promise of health as well as freedom from evil was left as a legacy to all his followers, but how to avail ourselves of these greatly to be desired blessings needed the mental clarification which Christian Science affords.

In the Christian Science text-book the significant term "treatment" is applied to the scientific administration of truth in the overcoming of sin and sickness; it is synonymous with the word prayer. A careful study of the method which was employed by Christ Jesus reveals the fact that he healed in the same manner which is practised by Christian Scientists, the word treatment referring to whatever is done in a given case to overcome evil with good, to destroy disease with Truth, in keeping with the Master's declaration, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."

The Scripture declares, "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee." "Perfect peace" could not exist for him who is afflicted physically, mentally, or morally; hence the text must imply that a steadfast consciousness of God, and a realization of what He is and of our relationship to Him, must restore peace and health by overcoming whatever may exist in the individual that could by any possible means interfere with his peace. Since this divinely established peace is forthcoming by keeping one's mind "stayed" on God, the text further implies that the difficulties which are to be overcome are mental and not physical, and that even Isaiah recognized the spiritual or mental modus operandi of healing the sick. His prayer was in strict keeping with that of Christian Science.

In Christian Science parlance we call sickness by the same name which is employed by others, although we differ from them in our understanding of its nature. We call prayer, which is essential to the healing of sickness, by the same name which is employed by others, although the good results which follow our prayer give evidence that we have a new and better understanding of this sacred word than we had without Christian Science.

✧

The New Woman

HON. ELEANORA MONEY COUTTS

IN the twelfth chapter of Revelation we read about "a woman clothed with the sun," a passage which was recalled by the present writer as she was reading in that section of "Pulpit and Press" by Mrs. Eddy devoted to "Clippings from Newspapers." On page 81 of this book there is a short article, reprinted from The New Century, Boston, which is truly a literary gem, its beautiful and inspiring thoughts being put into extremely well chosen and picturesque language.

The writer of the article, which is entitled "One Point of View—The New Woman," has, perhaps deliberately, challenged comparison with one of the best known and most poetical pieces of prose in English literature, namely, Ruskin's essay on Queen's Gardens, in "Sesame and Lilies," for the subject matter and the sentiments are the same, the gracious purpose of both being to point out the great, the transcendent power for good immanent in true womanhood. The New Century writer is however in no sense a plagiarist; his writing has force and originality, and writing a quarter of a century later he was able to see the partial fulfilment and prophesy the complete achievement of that which Ruskin's sensitive nature foretold, namely, woman's realization of her own inalienable heritage of freedom.

It is legitimate to infer that the writer of the magazine article drew his inspiration from the life and character of the Founder and Leader of the Christian Science cause, Mrs. Eddy, because, although no name is mentioned, the article appeared at the time of the completion and dedication, in

Copyright, 1917, by The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Digitized by Google

1895, of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. Indeed many of the newspaper articles included in this section of "Pulpit and Press" bear sincere testimony to the esteem and interest which Mrs. Eddy's heroic life and work had inspired even in those who had not enrolled themselves as followers of her religion.

This being so, every Christian Scientist who knows that the beloved Leader is a fitting model for the pure ideal here presented, will rejoice at the high appreciation of her worth, but it would be limiting both the scope of the writer's thought and the inspiration of Mrs. Eddy's life not to acknowledge that the term "new woman" means all women—"woman," the sex to which the adjective "weaker" is now so rarely and so doubtingly affixed. There are countless women all over the world who would truthfully declare that if Science and Health had never been written, there is not a single appraising sentence in the article to which allusion has been made, that they could by any stretch of the imagination have declared to be true if applied to themselves. It is indeed probable that the average individual would once have said that this delineation of womanly character was simply an ideal—lovely but unattainable.

It is not too much to affirm that the remarkable transformation of the thought of the world in the last twenty years, with regard to the status and place of women, has been incalculably affected and assisted by the teachings of Christian Science. A passage in the article in question has always particularly struck the present writer, where the author says that the new woman seeks "the brightness of truth not as the moth to be destroyed thereby, but as the lark who soars and sings to the great sun . . . and she realizes that all the harmonies of the universe are in herself."

There are moments in the daily experience of almost every woman when she needs inspiration and refreshment of spirit to enable her to rise from the material sense of things to the spiritual. The insistent pressing in on every side of the details and arrangement of what may be called the machinery of life, however carefully the wheels of the machine may be oiled, at times tends to oppress and irritate even the most joyous woman, unless a definite and scientific stand is taken against this insidious encroachment on her peace and serenity. It is not well for any woman to allow her birthright of soaring and singing in the sunshine of divine Love to be gradually removed by any means whatsoever from her daily experience. Mrs. Eddy says that we must "find wings to reach the glory of supersensible Life; then we shall soar above, as the bird in the clear ether of the blue temporal sky" (Miscellaneous Writings, p. 86).

The ties which seem to hold a woman to earth may be her dear ones, or the task of ministering to the needs of others may appear to demand all her time and strength, so that she begins to think it "selfish" to take quiet time alone for her own spiritual invigoration; but it is just at this point that she needs to awaken to the fact that she is tempted in one of the most subtle ways by which error would rob of their gladness and peace those who are working whole-heartedly in God's service. Christian Scientists should be alert to detect this evil intent, and never allow it to deprive them of their daily bread and the mental freedom, joy, gladness, and grace which go with it. Those who are doing healing work and giving of their very best to the cause of Christian Science, are wise if in spite of the fret of petty detail, or the "much serving" laid on those cast for the Martha parts on this world's stage, they turn ofttimes, deliberately and alone, to the inner sanctuary where they may commune with the Father who "seeth in secret," for there and only there can they find the refreshment which will enable them to soar and sing.

There is no woman who could not soar and sing if inspired by holy thoughts, and if she only knew how ever ready to come to her aid are those angels who whisper of Love's ever-presence, and who banish in an instant all burdens by their refreshing messages of heavenly harmony. Christian Science shows every weary woman the way to peace and happiness; so let her see to it that she neither neglects nor foregoes her spiritual heritage.

Direction

EDWARD E. DANIELL

THIS question was recently asked by a new student of Christian Science: "Can you not repeat aloud the prayer you have said silently, and which has helped me so much? I am at a loss as to what to do, since I learn that a petition to God in the old way is not the effectual prayer." The question was honestly asked, and it reminded the one questioned of his own early experiences, when he was earnestly seeking the light. Because of what had been brought about by the work of a practitioner, he was searching the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, for some formula or specific instruction to guide him. He eventually found an abundance of specific instruction, although no formula.

Directions as specific as one could wish for abound both in the Christian Science text-book and in the Bible. On page 15 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy writes: "In order to pray aright, we must enter into the closet and shut the door. We must close the lips and silence the material senses. In the quiet sanctuary of earnest longings, we must deny sin and plead God's allness." In the practice of law a plea is, strictly speaking, an allegation of fact. Since Christian Science teaches that supplication, or begging God to be good, is neither true nor effective prayer, it is obvious that the legal meaning is intended in this instance; thus we are directed to declare or state "God's allness."

For example, a lawyer is called to defend one who has been unjustly accused of dishonesty. Quite naturally it is to be expected that the first thing the lawyer will do is to deny the guilt of his client. To do this once is sufficient. He then proceeds logically and clearly to prove the innocence of the one charged with stealing. He shows that such an act is foreign to a man of such birth, bringing up, and present condition of abundance as his client is known to be. He further proves an alibi; that is, he shows where his client was at the time of the stealing, and that because he was in his own home, afar from the scene of stealing, it was impossible for this man under any circumstance to have committed the crime. With an appeal to justice to lift the stigma from the name of his client, he closes the case.

In the same way we may "deny sin"—declare we are not sick, sinning, poverty stricken, or dying—and "plead God's allness" in support of this bold denial of sense-testimony. Did not God make man in His image and likeness, and did not He then give man dominion over all He had made? And, whatever the seeming testimony of mortal sense, does not man dwell forever "in the bosom of the Father," "with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning"? Who can deny this irrefutable testimony? Mortals do seem to suffer the penalty for believing in fear, sin, and disease, but not because it is just. It is ignorance of the law which protects that causes suffering.

To answer the question "What shall I think?" we may turn to Paul's words in his epistle to the Philippians: "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things." Again, in the epistle to the Ephesians we are directed to take unto us "the whole armor of God," so that we are without excuse who do not accept the divine protection.

Digitized by Google

In the Christian Science text-book there are simple and clear directions given. On page 391 we read: "Mentally contradict every complaint from the body, and rise to the true consciousness of Life as Love,—as all that is pure, and bearing the fruits of Spirit." Again on page 393 is this admonition: "Rise in the strength of Spirit to resist all that is unlike good. God has made man capable of this, and nothing can vitiate the ability and power divinely bestowed on man. Be firm in your understanding that the divine Mind governs, and that in Science man reflects God's government."

It is not the mere repetition of the words but the obeying of their behest which constitutes the "effectual fervent prayer" of the man who desires rightwiseness, and which truly "availeth much." "Arise, shine; for thy light is come," cried the prophet Isaiah; and later our Master said, "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven."

✧

Education

MARY F. MECREDY

AMONG other subjects upon which Christian Science throws new light is that of education. Although this question looms largest perhaps to those directly interested in school work, or to those who feel that their growth in Science is impeded because of neglected education, yet it is a subject which in some degree affects all. In no phase of human activity is a realization of the truth more imperative, for in no other sphere is the human mind so regally enthroned.

Our schools and colleges, founded for the development of mind in matter, or brains, are apostles of the doctrine of many minds. Also a very prevalent theory, even to the present day, is that education is largely a matter of memory; that a child's mind is empty, and must be packed with facts just as one would fill a basket with eggs. Another theory, evolved to offset the shortcomings of the first, is that human will-power must be used to force in the items which the child does not willingly accept. Fortunately a better view now begins to creep timidly forward; namely, that education means an awakening to mental activity. But as Christian Scientists we can go a step farther, and know that education is the increasing influx of intelligence—that reflection of infinite Mind which follows obedience to the command, "Be still, and know that I am God."

Now the Bible tells us where to turn for real education when Paul declares in his second epistle to Timothy that all inspired Scripture is given of God, and "is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: that the man of God may be perfect, throughly furnished unto all good works." In addition it reveals the true teacher as saying, "They shall be all taught of God," and states in the words of the wise man, "The Lord giveth wisdom." Moreover, it sets forth some concrete examples of the fruits of such education. In Isaiah we find, "The Lord God hath given me the tongue of the learned, that I should know how to speak a word in season to him that is weary." Also, in the case of the Hebrew boys, we read in the first chapter of Daniel, "God gave them knowledge and skill in all learning and wisdom: and Daniel had understanding in all visions and dreams. . . . And in all matters of wisdom and understanding, that the king inquired of them, he found them ten times better than all the magicians and astrologers that were in all his realm."

In the demonstrations of Christ Jesus especially do we catch many glimpses of the heights to which such education can lead. We see him in the temple teaching, and hear the astonished Jews demanding, "How knoweth this man letters, having never learned?" We see him healing the sick, casting out devils, raising the dead, and hear the people marveling, as they ask, "Whence hath this man this wisdom, and these mighty works?" We see him opening the eyes of the one born blind, and hear the object of his compassion paying to the knowledge which made such a miracle possible this splendid tribute: "Since the world began was it not heard that any man opened the eyes of one that was born blind. If this man were not of God, he could do nothing."

Although we can conclude from the above that human knowledge is not necessarily dependent on the usual processes of education, yet with our present sense of material existence a certain amount of academic training is still needed. Mrs. Eddy says in Science and Health (p. 195): "Academics of the right sort are requisite. Observation, invention, study, and original thought are expansive and should promote the growth of mortal mind out of itself, out of all that is mortal." This gives us the necessary clue. If we are not to be like those whom Paul characterizes as "ever learning, and never able to come to the knowledge of the truth," we must realize that human education is not an end in itself but merely a means to an end.

When we consider the heterogeneous mass of barbaric, pagan, agnostic, and doctrinal theories from which human knowledge has developed, it is readily apparent that mere learning is in itself of little value. Then we must free ourselves from the mesmeric belief that we are slaves either to the stores of human learning or to the human mind. A clear realization that God is the only teacher, that there is only one Mind, that all education is spiritual unfoldment, not material accretion, and that all knowledge is ours now, will not only demolish any seeming limitations of age, time, or intellect, but will also bring to pass eventually that "instruction, in spiritual Science, against the material symbolic counterfeit sciences" (Miscellaneous Writings, p. 61), which instruction, Mrs. Eddy tells us, is to be the education of the future.

✧

Thought Enlightened

S. KING RUSSELL

IN a day and age in which the power of thought is becoming more and more universally recognized, it is difficult to realize that it was not always so. In reality the perfection of sinless thought has always existed; but, as Mrs. Eddy tells us, "human capacity is slow to discern and to grasp God's creation and the divine power and presence which go with it" (Science and Health, p. 519). The history of mortal man is the record of human adjustment to conditions, the submission of erring human thought step by step to an improved thought, as the war between the power of good and the so-called forces of evil goes on. That this adjustment is often painful, is shown by the toll of woe and death in the conflict of erring human beliefs.

From the first triumph of thought, when the weaker caveman conceived of a crude weapon as a means of defense against his enemy armed with brute force, the steady unfoldment of human consciousness may be traced in any line of endeavor. The Greek historians tell us that Ulysses, surnamed the crafty, and many other wise men of his time, were looked up to by the populace because "they could accomplish things by thinking." Their superior knowledge put them on a plane above that of their fellow men. The Indian medicine man, holding the position of honor in his tribe because of what was believed to be his superior wisdom, is a more modern example.

Digitized by Google

But this thinking, superior as it seemed, lay in part or wholly on a mortal plane. Tainted by material philosophies and the false education of the carnal mind, it could not transcend the finite sense of existence. Its attempted use as a means of both good and evil necessarily deprived it of the peace and perfection it ever sought to attain. The search for wisdom was fruitless, because men looked not within their own hearts. Pilate's question to the great Nazarene, "What is truth?" was a confession of the utter emptiness of the old faiths, which with all their wealth of ritual could never lead humanity to God. And Jesus' answer to this great question was the life he taught and lived, the irrefutable proof he gave of man's unity with his Maker.

Many successive centuries of doubt and darkness following the Master's ascension again appeared to cloud the light of Truth. God's law, however, is immutable, and today Christian Science is again bearing witness to the life giving power of divine Mind. For Christian Science is not a new or an untried idea; it is Christianity in its purest form, as demonstrated by Christ Jesus "with signs following." By its help humanity is able to grasp vital Christianity; it is learning to admit to consciousness only such conclusions as it would have realized in daily life, for the wise man declares that as a man "thinketh in his heart, so is he." If the chieftain of former times could "accomplish things by thinking," how much more can the man of today, knowing as he does how to lift his consciousness above the material into the spiritual sense of creation, prove his divine sonship.

On page 140 of Science and Health we read, "What is the god of a mortal, but a mortal magnified?" The children of earth aforetime dedicated their worship "To the Unknown God." Their self-created idols whom they ignorantly worshiped reflected their own helplessness. But we live in an age when, thanks to Christian Science, the words of Isaiah the prophet are fulfilled: "The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light: they that dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined." What is enlightenment but the dawn of the light of Mind upon benighted human understanding? May we prove ourselves worthy, and let this light so shine before men that they may see and glorify the Father.

No Lack

LAURENE GARDNER

Some months ago, while the writer was endeavoring to bring out the practical value of the commandments in a Sunday school class, a question that came up was answered in a way which has proven so helpful many times since, that the experience is passed along with the hope that it may aid some other searcher for Truth along the same lines. The commandment under discussion was the tenth, "Thou shalt not covet," and the effort was being made to bring home to the pupils the thought that God's children can never lack any good thing. "But," objected one earnest little girl, "some children do have things I want and cannot have." There was a note of rebellion as well as puzzled questioning in the voice, and it was clearly seen that this must be met with the truth before the lesson for the day would bring the desired result.

For a moment a sense of helplessness seemed to cloud the teacher's thought; then a silent prayer for guidance went out to God, to the Mind that always hears, and never fails to answer when we honestly and whole-heartedly turn to Him. The answer came promptly, and with it a light which has brought peace and joy many times since when the clouds of sense seemed to dim the upward path.

The thought contained in the following passage from page 361 of our inspired text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, brought the needed illumination: "As a drop of water is one with the ocean, a ray of light one with the sun, even so God and man, Father and son, are one in being." The words stood out clear, concise, convincing, casting out all sense of uncertainty as to how to meet the problem at hand. Without fear or hesitation the question was asked, "Can one sunbeam lack anything which another sunbeam has?" Quickly and confidently, in a voice free from all conflict, the reply came from the pupil, "Why, of course not." Then we talked along the lines already referred to, and the lesson ended happily, with the grateful knowledge that good seed had been sown in that vineyard where each finds his rightful work and place, be it great or small to human sense, if we hear and obey each call as it comes from Him who guides the stars in their courses.

"Good thoughts"

NELLIE B. CRAVEN

When the scribes and Pharisees came to Jesus and demanded an explanation as to why he permitted his disciples to transgress their racial traditions by eating without having first washed their hands, he showed them very plainly the great mistake which they were making and which is still being made, namely, that of cleansing merely the outside of the cup and platter. He did not overlook the fact that the outside should be kept clean; but he pointed out the importance of first cleansing the inside, lest we be "like unto whited sepulchers, which indeed appear beautiful outward, but are within full of dead men's bones, and of all uncleanness."

Jesus gave his hearers no chance to misconstrue his meaning when he said, "Out of the heart proceed evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false witness, blasphemies: these are the things which defile a man." Every earnest student of Christian Science soon learns that he must honestly and willingly accept Jesus' rebuke, given so many years ago, and search faithfully his own consciousness. As he begins to exchange each erroneous concept for a thought of Truth, he begins to experience a great change wherever the need may be, whether morally, physically, or financially.

How true it is that as a man "thinketh in his heart, so is he"! Do we always stop to consider, each time we entertain thoughts of selfishness, dishonesty, self-righteousness, jealousy, envy, hatred, revenge, that we are betraying the Christ just as Judas did the Master? Let us also remember that it was Judas who suffered most from the betrayal. On page 210 of Miscellany Mrs. Eddy says: "Keep your minds so filled with Truth and Love, that sin, disease, and death cannot enter them. . . . Good thoughts are an impervious armor; clad therewith you are completely shielded from the attacks of error of every sort. And not only yourselves are safe, but all whom your thoughts rest upon are thereby benefited."

Had Judas kept his thought in harmony with his Master's teachings, he would never have been tempted to betray him; and if we are wide awake Christians, faithfully doing our duty, we shall never be guilty of betraying the Christ. If all mankind realized the necessity and practicality of keeping their minds "filled with Truth and Love," and would live up to their honest convictions, all wickedness, calamity, war, destruction, and discord would gradually disappear, until only harmonious conditions prevailed.

Digitized by Google

While passing through a very trying experience some little time ago, it became evident to the writer that so long as she could keep in thought the perfection of God's creation, she could realize the all-powerfulness of Truth to destroy every erroneous condition; but when she listened, even for a moment, to sense-testimony, the way indeed seemed dark, as though God had forsaken His children. By trusting Truth to restore harmony, the darkness vanished, revealing the light of Mind, whose rays are piercing farther and farther into the darkness of unbelief.

Good thoughts never produce sin, sickness, or death, and likewise evil thoughts never produce one iota of good, for like produces like always. Therefore to think or to admit that sin, sickness, death, or any discordant condition exists for any good purpose, is to admit that God is the creator of evil and thus enter the broad way that "leadeth to destruction." Each evil thought is a suggestion of the one evil; it is not true and has no real existence; while each good thought has its origin in God, and being endowed with divine power is able to destroy the seeming power of evil. When our consciousness is filled with good thoughts, evil is lessened by that much, and we may not measure the amount of good which results from each pure thought entertained.

The question may present itself, How are we to know when a thought is erroneous and when it is true? Jesus gave us a very safe rule to follow when he said, "Ye shall know them by their fruits." If our thought leads to health, joy, happiness, peace, and spiritual exaltation, we may know that it comes from God and is therefore true; but if the entertainment of certain thoughts leads to selfishness, fear, doubt, sin, sickness, and mental turmoil, such thoughts do not proceed from God and should be cast out at once.

As Christian Scientists we have discovered that Truth unceasingly calls for the cleansing, purifying, and spiritualizing of our thoughts, and this is where our work of regeneration begins. As the work of cleansing goes on, each immoral, unhealthy, and debasing thought is cast out, thus making room for pure, uplifting ones, which if entertained will multiply until there is no place for evil thoughts. As thought is purified, each outward manifestation will become an expression of purity and power, revealing man and the universe as the reflection of God. When thought is sufficiently spiritualized, we shall have lost sight of all materiality, sensuality, and wickedness, and shall realize what Jesus meant when he said, "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect."

✧

[Written for the Sentinel]

Mary Baker Eddy

MORRIS ABEL BEER

WHO was this woman of the granite hills,
  Breaking the iron spell of gloom and tears,
Dwelling in joyous harmony that fills
  All earth with blossom through the eternal years?
Who was this woman strong to conquer fears,
  Walking alone in silence, healing ills,
In sweet communion with the Mind that steers
  The spinning worlds and waves unquiet stills?

In old time Jesus came to lead the way,
  And now this woman is the new world's dower,
Teaching that God is Love,—not wrath to slay,—
  That good is all and only good is power.
The lamp she kindled sends its beams afar,
  And shines as did that ancient winter star.

Selected Articles

[Charles W. J. Tennant in Occult Review, London, England]

A recent issue contains an article in which a Christian Scientist is supposed to have said to a friend, "I have asked God not to make you seasick." Why the person was called a Christian Scientist it is hard to imagine, for such a declaration would certainly not be made by any one who had the least knowledge of the subject. Christian Science teaches that God is infinite good, and cannot be the source of sin, disease, or death. To consider divine Principle, God, as capable of producing seasickness, would be as wide of the mark as to consider the principle of mathematics capable of causing a student to make mistakes.

✧

[Judge Clifford P. Smith in Lawrence (Mass.) Tribune]

It was C. G. Montefiore, a prominent adherent of Judaism who could speak fairly of Christianity, that said: "No one must judge any religion by the picture drawn of it by an antagonist." The wisdom of this observation has special application to the assaults of professional antagonists who obtain temporary employment to speak for certain churches against others.

Take, for instance, the comments on Christian Science by one such assailant which the Tribune has just reported. In this report he was quoted as saying, "Christian Science is without atonement." As a matter of fact, atonement is a prominent part of its teachings. Moreover, an unbiased reader of the chapter on Atonement and Eucharist in the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, or of the tenets of Christian Science as found on page 497 of this book, is likely to conclude that Christian Science agrees with the four gospels in a very simple and evident manner. Furthermore, since the first publication of this book there has been a very marked change in the thought of Christendom regarding the atonement, and this change has been in the direction of adopting the view of this subject expressed by Mrs. Eddy. The following sentences are quoted from the beginning of the chapter just mentioned: "Atonement is the exemplification of man's unity with God, whereby man reflects divine Truth, Life, and Love. Jesus of Nazareth taught and demonstrated man's oneness with the Father, and for this we owe him endless homage" (p. 18).

According to the Tribune's report, the same critic also called Mrs. Eddy "a liar" because she said "man is incapable of sin" (Science and Health, p. 475). The propriety of such conduct can be safely left to the intelligence, justice, and decency of the people of Lawrence. I am sure, therefore, that they will be interested in the context of the statement thus quoted. The paragraph in which this sentence occurs plainly and explicitly draws a distinction between "the real man" and "a mortal sinner." The context of this paragraph quotes from the first chapter of Genesis, declaring that the real man "has not a single quality underived from Deity," and concludes (p. 476) that "sin, sickness, and death must disappear to give place to the facts which belong to immortal man."

In this teaching, therefore, Mrs. Eddy simply declared and applied to the present salvation of mankind the truth taught by Jesus when he said: "Call no man your father upon the earth: for one is your Father, which is in heaven;" and the truth taught by John when he said: "Whosoever is born of God sinneth not."

Almost the first form of opposition to Christian Science was an effort to make it conflict with the Bible by disregarding the distinction which it makes between the real man of God's creating and the unreal human concept of man. Now as then, however, such opposition furnishes opportunity for making known a distinction which is of vast importance to all who hope to gain, and would help other people to attain, the more abundant life which Jesus promised as the reward of Christian endeavor.

Digitized by Google

✧

[B. F. Chandler in Norton (Va.) Reporter]

The editor makes the assertion that I "admit that denial is the principle on which Christian Science turns." I wish to correct that assertion; first, because it is not true, and second, because what I did say was, "A Christian Scientist certainly does deny the evidence of the senses whenever such evidence contradicts . . . Scriptural teaching," which is quite another thing. Possibly a daily experience common to all of us may serve as an example to show the difference.

The evidence of the senses informs us that the sun is revolving around the earth, but we know better, and, declining to be deceived by sense-testimony, we deny the evidence. Then, should one say that denial is the principle on which astronomy turns? No reasonable person would say such a thing, but rather that the principle upon which astronomy turns is a correct understanding of the movements of the heavenly bodies and their relation to each other. So it is with Christian Science. That on which it turns is a correct understanding of the nature of God and His creation, including man; and when sense-testimony, human belief, is not in accord with the demonstrable facts of creation, we deny it just as you deny that the sun revolves around the earth.

✧

[Peter V. Ross in Pacific Medical Journal, San Francisco, Cal.]

A contributor goes at some length into a discussion of what he chooses to call "medical heresies," and in so doing gives considerable attention to Christian Science. He predicts that the time will come when this teaching "will take its place in the world as a religion." Christian Science has already taken that place; in fact it has never occupied any other. It has never occurred to those who understand Christian Science to regard it otherwise than as a religion. Even the law of the land, as announced by legislatures and courts, recognizes that Christian Science is religion and that its practice is the practice of religion, not the practice of medicine.

The fact that Christian Science is employed to heal sickness as well as to overcome sin does not deprive it of its character as religion, for did not the Founder of Christianity heal the sick as well as preach the gospel? And did he not command his followers to do the same? Christianity as taught and practised by Jesus, and as understood and observed by Christians generally during the first two or three centuries, embraced healing the sick as well as teaching and preaching. Christian Science is simply restoring the lost element of healing to its original place as an essential part of Christianity.

The physician speaks of Christian Science invading the legitimate domain of medicine. But really it is making no such invasion. In healing the sick as well as reforming the sinner, Christian Science is merely resuming the position occupied by primitive Christianity. Rather it is medicine that has invaded the legitimate domain of Christianity by substituting material for spiritual means of healing. He speaks of the propriety of the "regular physician" referring to Christian Science such cases as are "amenable to suggestion." But Christian Science has nothing in common with suggestion; the two are diametric opposites. Suggestion is another name for mesmerism or hypnotism. Its practice is the bringing of the power of one human mind to bear upon another, the domination of one person's mentality by another person, perhaps of supposedly stronger mind or greater will-power. Christian Science condemns such practice as vicious and dangerous in the extreme.

To the Christian Scientist disease is a state or condition of human consciousness which needs to be corrected in order that health may be established. He brings about this correction, not by the power of his own mind or will, but by the potency of divine Truth, which through his understanding of Christian Science he knows and applies to the belief of sickness. The healing power is in the truth thus understood and applied, and not in the mind or will of the Christian Scientist.

✧

[H. S. Hughes, Jr., in Whitewater (Wis.) Gazette]

A critic, while generously acknowledging the good which he had observed as a resultant of Christian Science, voiced no unusual criticism when he took exception to its teachings as to the unreality of sin and sickness.

"The human mind," writes the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, "has been an idolater from the beginning, having other gods and believing in more than the one Mind" (Science and Health, p. 186). The Founder of Christianity had but one God, Spirit, Life, Truth, Love. His understanding of the spiritual reality of God and His creation embraced man and the universe, and operated to annul the seeming reality of material law in stilling the storm, in walking on the water, in passing through closed doors, and in exchanging the seeming reality of sickness for health, of sin for holiness, of death for life.

While scholastic theology has always taught the allness of God, it also fosters the belief in the reality of sin and sickness, and thus has ever been as a "kingdom divided against itself." Mrs. Eddy goes one step farther in her comprehension of the allness of God. In His omnipotence, omniscience, and omnipresence, like the Master with the spiritual penetration, she saw the only reality of man and the universe, and the consequent unreality of sin and sickness.

There is a great difference between the bald statement that "sin and sickness are unreal" and the same statement when supported by its correlative of the reality of spiritual things. To the uninstructed human sense, sin and sickness are pitiful realities. To the same man instructed in the spiritual realities as taught in Christian Science, sickness gives place to health, and sin to reformation, demonstrating that "sin, disease, whatever seems real to material sense, is unreal in divine Science" (Science and Health, p. 353).

The claim that Christian Science is will-power is refuted by Mrs. Eddy's teachings, and could never be made by one who had carefully read her text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures." Will-power, she teaches, "is capable of all evil" (p. 206), while an understanding of and reliance upon the divine Mind enlarges and develops the human capacity for good along all lines, enabling one to do good, but never to do evil.

✧

[W. Stuart Booth in Englewood (Col.) Enterprise]

A local clergyman has asked for some passage of Scripture to prove that the Bible does not teach a vicarious salvation. In the second chapter of his epistle to the Philippians Paul writes: "Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling. For it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure." Now if Christ Jesus had done their work for them, Paul certainly would not have called upon the Christian believers at Philippi to work out their own salvation. What Paul clearly saw is stated by Mrs. Eddy on page 18 of Science and Health, where in speaking of Jesus she says: "His mission was both individual and collective. He did life's work aright not only in justice to himself, but in mercy to mortals,—to show them how to do theirs, but not to do it for them nor to relieve them of a single responsibility. Jesus acted boldly, against the accredited evidence of the senses, against Pharisaical creeds and practices, and he refuted all opponents with his healing power."

Digitized by Google

Because the world was apparently lost in the belief that evil was more powerful than good, that matter was more real than Spirit, because scholastic theology had nothing more to offer than the husks of material ceremonial and creed, it was necessary that Christ Jesus should come to prove the impotence of evil, pain and sorrow included, by means of his recognition of the omnipotence of good; to prove the utter nothingness of matter and its supposed laws by means of his recognition of the eternal truth expressed in his own words, that "it is the spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing."

Christian Science shows that since God is Love, as the Bible teaches, Jesus' sacrifice of his material selfhood was not to appease or reconcile an angry manlike God, but rather that the omnipotence of Spirit might be demonstrated and man's true spiritual nature be expressed as the present fact. As Science and Health states, "Jesus aided in reconciling man to God by giving man a truer sense of Love, the divine Principle of Jesus' teachings, and this truer sense of Love redeems man from the law of matter, sin, and death by the law of Spirit,—the law of divine Love" (p. 19).

That the Christian Science explanation of Scripture is correct is attested by its fruits, which are those promised by the Master to all who believed on or understood the truth he taught and practised; and all can gain this spiritual understanding and find the Bible to be reasonable and provable. The stand of Christian Scientists is well expressed by James, "Yea, a man may say, Thou hast faith, and I have works: show me thy faith without thy works, and I will show thee my faith by my works."

✧

[H. R. Colborne in The Sunday Times, Sydney, New South Wales, Australia]

In an article on the subject "Worry the Disease of the Age," a reference is made to Christian Science which shows that this religion has met a real need, and all Christian Scientists are thankful for such expressions of good will as are contained therein. It is true that to fear and worry must be attributed the ills to which flesh is heir, and that as fear and worry are states of mortal consciousness, the writer of the article in question really supports the teaching of Christian Science that disease has a mental rather than a physical cause, and recognizes that because Christian Science has done much to eliminate fear and worry from human consciousness it has been successful.

It must be remembered that Christian Science has been successful because it is a teaching that goes to the foundation of things. It shows that there is one God, omnipotent, omnipresent good, infinite Life, Truth, and Love, and because of this infinitude there can in reality be no evil to be afraid of, or to be conscious of. This does not mean that to the human consciousness there is nothing to fear or to worry over, but that it is ignorance and false belief which is the cause; that to be healed of fear and worry it is therefore necessary to remove the cause, even ignorance and the false belief in a power apart from or antagonistic to God. This can only be done by becoming conscious, or having an understanding, of the fact that there is one God, and that He is infinite,—in fact, by knowing the truth about God and His spiritual, perfect creation, which must be like its source,—pure, spiritual, perfect. This is the truth, the knowing of which our Master said should make us free.

The world at large has all down the centuries been believing in a God who loves and hates, sends joy and sorrow, health and disease; and it has suffered in consequence. Christian Science has come teaching the exact opposite, and that is why it has met the real need of a knowledge of the one true and only God, infinite good. Such teaching as this is not the elevation of the human mind to power, but the acknowledgment of God as the only power; not a belief in human will, but the understanding of divine, efficacious Love; not the mere repetition of prayers, but the affirmation and understanding of the truth,—and it is this which heals.

✧

[William C. Kaufman in Helena (Mont.) Independent]

In an editorial the question is raised as to the attitude of Christian Scientists in cases of contagious disease. Whenever there is reason to believe that a child of Christian Scientists manifests symptoms of contagious disease, a health officer is called. If he discovers that the child is suffering from a contagious disease, the Scientists submit to quarantine regulations. This was done by Christian Scientists before the physical examination bill was passed.

The Montana legislature is not the first in the United States to recognize the legal rights of Christian Scientists. Twenty-six legislatures in the United States have definitely stated that they recognize the rights of citizens who may prefer the practice of Christian Science or other religion. The fifteenth session of the Montana legislature was the first to express, through enactment, the right of Christian Scientists to exercise their religious liberty.

✧

[Editorial in Benicia (Cal.) Herald]

Legislation is pending at Sacramento providing for "physical education for both sexes" in the public schools, "daily inspection of all pupils," and the supervision of sanitary matters in the home by means of school nurses. Many parents disagree on the matter of vaccination and prefer to impart the "physical education" to their children themselves. They will resent any monkeying with their children on the part of salaried officials. Further, those who know anything about the law of suggestion will object to physicians and health supervisors frightening children, and suggesting disease to them, by lectures and pictures embellished with horrifying details. It is much better to look on the healthy side of life. There will be one recourse left to parents if this legislation is passed—that is, the children can be sent to a private school. This will be done wherever parents can afford it.

Dr. Lewis P. Crutcher of Long Beach, a practising physician and president of the board of education there, says that when they did away with a high-salaried school physician at Long Beach the attendance immediately increased and there were less absences on account of sickness, the children and parents previously taking no chances of a physical examination and health supervision following every little indisposition. Doctor Crutcher, like most of us, wants to see the health of the children protected, but is opposing the pending legislation which would permit the state to invade the home and usurp the place of the parent in the most sacred relations of life, and writes one sentence that should be printed in type a foot high and placed where every citizen could read it,—It is the school that is public, not the child.

Digitized by Google

Editorial

Neither Law nor Gospel

One of the most subtle beliefs of mortal mind is that which declares that there is a well defined law of heredity to which all mankind is subject, not only in individual matters, but also in family, communal, racial, and national affairs. Because of the prevalence and acceptance of this belief, untold suffering has been experienced. Both Jeremiah and Ezekiel prophesied against the continuance of the saying in Israel that because the fathers had eaten sour grapes the children's teeth should be set on edge, but notwithstanding their definite statements in contravention of this particular conviction, other ridiculous phases of the belief in the so-called law of heredity have continued until the present day.

Perhaps the greatest harm along this line has been done through the belief that certain diseases are hereditary, and that they follow from parent to child as surely as the night follows the day; but when a broader view is taken, it will be found that through the claim of heredity mankind has been as deeply and adversely affected in racial and national affairs as it has been in health. So deeply seated is the belief of transmission of disease from one generation to another, and even "unto the third and fourth generation," that physicians in making a physical examination or diagnosis pay more attention to family history than to almost any other circumstance. To the prominence thus given to the diseases of the fathers and the grandfathers, and to the dwelling upon these as the causes of present suffering, may be attributed much of the fear which enslaves mankind.

Fortunately for humanity Mrs. Eddy has not only definitely denied the supposed power of heredity and exposed the falseness of its claim to lawful power, but in numberless instances she and her followers have proved that this alleged law is not really existent, and certainly no more dangerous to the health and longevity of the human family than are the thousand and one other so-called laws or superstitions which have been lost to memory through enlightenment and the consequent banishment of fear. On page 178 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy writes: "Heredity is not a law. The remote cause or belief of disease is not dangerous because of its priority and the connection of past mortal thoughts with present. The predisposing cause and the exciting cause are mental. . . . In proportion to our understanding of Christian Science, we are freed from the belief of heredity, of mind in matter or animal magnetism; and we disarm sin of its imaginary power in proportion to our spiritual understanding of the status of immortal being." She also writes on page 228, "Heredity is a prolific subject for mortal belief to pin theories upon; but if we learn that nothing is real but the right, we shall have no dangerous inheritances, and fleshly ills will disappear."

Next to its theories about disease, mortal belief has seemed most successful in using its theories about racial and national existence and characteristics as its means of enslaving mankind, and the war which is now convulsing the world is a fair sample of what results from the belief that heredity, and its twin brother, "the divine right of kings," are safe foundations for human liberty. When the First Commandment, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me," has in fact become the guide and ruling passion of mankind, heredity will be relegated to its native nothingness, and the theories of disease, government, pride, human ownership, autocracy, and oppression which have been pinned to it, will also vanish.

In the mean time it will be necessary, even for Christian Scientists, to remember that while neither material health nor democratic government are divine ideas, yet they are improved beliefs—human footprints—which indicate progress toward inevitable realization of God as the one and only power, and man as His full and complete image and reflection. When the necessary human footsteps—the outward expression of divine ideas—have been taken, liberty and peace will be enthroned, and the prophecy written on page 340 of Science and Health will have been fulfilled. Then will again arise the glad hosanna, "Blessed be the kingdom of our father David, that cometh in the name of the Lord."

Archibald McLellan.

The Call and the Answer

In studying in the Bible the subject of prayer, we discover that the appeal which comes from the human side is very insistent. The psalmist says: "Hear my prayer, O Lord . . . Hide not thy face from me in the day when I am in trouble; . . . in the day when I call answer me speedily." This expresses very fully the human attitude toward God. Very few call upon God unless they are in trouble, and there is usually a demand that a response come speedily from the divine side. On the other hand, we have this statement from another psalm, where God is speaking: "Oh that my people had hearkened unto me, and Israel had walked in my ways! I should soon have subdued their enemies."

Too long has the belief been entertained that we may address God whenever we please, but that we may forget the far more important thing, which is to listen continually for the divine voice and then hasten to respond to what God has to say to us. This is made clear in the fiftieth chapter of Isaiah, where God declares: "When I called, was there none to answer? Is my hand shortened at all, that it cannot redeem? or have I no power to deliver?" Christian Science reverses the mortal concept of communion between God and man, and shows that the first and most important consideration is that we answer at once when we are called by God, and that we hasten to obey; for as we do this the seeming difficulties of mortal experience speedily vanish.

In "Retrospection and Introspection" (p. 9) Mrs. Eddy tells us that in her childhood she had a similar experience to that of Samuel, and that she did not at first know who had spoken, until her mother instructed her and bade her reply when she was again called. It seems, however, that fear kept her silent, but in later years, after the truth had come to her, we learn that when God called her "to proclaim His Gospel to this age," also "to plant and water His vineyard" (Science and Health, Pref., p. xi), she responded without hesitation, and unnumbered thousands today rejoice that she was ready to do so.

In the book of Proverbs we find that the divine call comes to men through wisdom and understanding, and the reward to those who hear and heed is indeed boundless. First of all, there is the establishment of righteousness in human consciousness, which wipes out "pride, and arrogancy, and the evil way;" then we find that, as the understanding of divine Truth floods human consciousness, error of every sort is swept away before it, and the abiding result, as stated in the wise man's words, is "riches and honor . . . yea, durable riches and righteousness." Those who seek divine aid through Christian Science in most cases come seeking relief from suffering, in many cases from the fear of death; and unless help reaches them at once they mournfully ask why God does not answer speedily.

The truth is, as we learn from the passages already quoted, that God is offering all good to us all the time, but that we must change our views of things before we are ready to realize this and to appropriate the blessings which divine Love is waiting to bestow upon us. When, however, mortal concepts are given up for divine ideas, we find that Truth does heal the sick, that God does answer speedily when we reach out for His omnipotent aid, whatever be the human problem. As our spiritual education advances, however, we learn the necessity for hastening to respond to the bidding of infinite wisdom and Love, being fully assured that in this way alone can we find all that is really desirable, that which is better than gold, yes, better than the priceless ruby.

Digitized by Google

Christ Jesus more than once reproached the people because they claimed to have eyes, yet did not see reality, and to have ears, yet did not hear; and this should be a constant reminder to us of the supreme need for letting spiritual sense unfold in us the capacity to hear the voice of Truth and understand the divine behest, for the quickness with which we hear and respond will be the measure of fuller impartations from the divine side, which will mean for us a ceaseless outpouring of all the good that God has to bestow upon His children.

ANNIE M. KNOTT.

Real Ambition

DAVID was really ambitious. He volunteered for God and country against Goliath. To King Saul he said, "Thy servant will go and fight with this Philistine," and he challenged the giant "in the name of the Lord of hosts, the God of the armies of Israel." Yet the shepherd boy's experience in volunteering was not unlike that of many another spiritual warrior,—his motive was promptly suspected. His eldest brother was angered and said: "Why camest thou down hither? and with whom hast thou left those few sheep in the wilderness? I know thy pride, and the naughtiness of thine heart." Had Eliab been a dabbler in metaphysics he would doubtless have accused David of mad ambition.

Mrs. Eddy has written on page 58 of Science and Health, "Unselfish ambition, noble life-motives, and purity,—these constituents of thought, mingling, constitute individually and collectively true happiness, strength, and permanence." Real ambition springs from inspiration and so is misunderstood by the carnal mind. Properly conceived and placed ambition is not only legitimate but actually essential to spiritual progress. It is the eager desire to work for God, to be godlike and in obedience to the "still small voice." This ambition is truly insatiable because incapable of being satisfied with the husks of materiality. It leads the Christian Scientist to the bedside of the sick and dying, to volunteer in church work, to be a minute man, to enlist in the warfare against error, to the consecration of time, money, and effort to save mankind. Should this ambition be called mad? In her Message to The Mother Church in 1902 Mrs. Eddy wrote, "It does not follow that power must mature into oppression; indeed, right is the only real potency; and the only true ambition is to serve God and to help the race" (p. 3).

Stagnant minds are critical of individuals who are active in church and state. Such minds try to discourage spiritual alertness because the latter uncovers their own inactivity. They would have condemned Isaiah when the Lord said, "Whom shall I send, and who will go for us?" and he volunteered, "Here am I; send me." Resistance to real ambition would even try to pull down those who are being transfigured on the cross of ascension. It mocked the Master. It plotted and planned, and pointed the finger at him at the very time when the halo of his divine message hovered about him. It likened him to the prince of devils, although a voice from heaven declared, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."

Mad ambition is rarer than is generally supposed. It is not infrequently a false accusation forced upon spiritually minded individuals whose zeal for God is misunderstood. The pressure of spiritual inspiration sometimes makes an individual appear to be impulsive, but to be obedient to the divine impulse is to follow real impulsion. Conscientious practising Christian Scientists, for whom God comes first, are particularly exposed to the innuendo of mad ambition, but if, while laboring under this suspected madness, they establish the Word by their works, who shall find fault with them? Is not this misconception the treacherous conspiracy which the carnal mind hatches against real ambition and Truth itself? Columbus, believing that the world was round and ambitious to find a westward passage to India, was adjudged mad by his contemporaries. Mrs. Eddy, entering into the temple of false beliefs, was obliged literally to turn the tables upon mortal mind by proving its beliefs to be insane.

If a brother seems ambitious, let condemnation wait upon a clearer understanding of his motive, lest thou be found conspiring against one who is powerful for God because ambitious to have that Mind "which was also in Christ Jesus," eager to express spiritual activity, obedience, loyalty, intelligence, meekness, and might. On page 110 of "Miscellaneous Writings" we read, "What grander ambition is there than to maintain in yourselves what Jesus loved, and to know that your example, more than words, makes morals for mankind!"

WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN.

Expressions of Gratitude

"The members of Christian Science Society, Zurich, assembled in business meeting, desire to express to you and to the contributors of the war relief fund of The Mother Church their deep sense of gratitude for the generous donations sent to this country."

"I have duly drawn the 150 Italian lire handed me through your kindness, and for which I am indebted to the liberality of The Mother Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston, Mass., U. S. A. Their inspiration is divine at the hour of great distress—particularly for us needy ones it proves a true godsend! May I ask you to express the heartfelt gratitude to those, God's messengers. And you, who know all my trials and difficulties to make my way at this time of life, accept warmest thanks."

"Your daughter will have told you that we are grateful for the wonderful present of 250 lire, but I feel I must give you my thanks in writing, especially now that I have read your dear, kind letter. To think that you care about our well being will make every bit of good we get out of your help doubly beneficial. This I think you will realize is not a mere mode of speech, but the true feeling of our hearts. It will be an every-day pleasure to be thankful to those who have brought rest into our lives again, and it is almost worth having suffered all we have, experiencing the being lifted out of our difficulties so gently and lovingly."

"I feel I must write again to you and express my deep felt thanks for the help I am receiving through the war relief fund. How I do thank God for the help He has sent me through the love of good people. It has strengthened me in my faith, for it has proved to me that God, divine Love, does care for His children."

Digitized by Google

"Thanks so much for your letter enclosing cheque for £15. These dear people here will indeed be grateful for this further proof of God's loving care and ministration to their needs. The kind friends who have so lovingly subscribed to this fund may rest assured that in so doing they have helped to lift the burden from many a weary heart. It is only those who have had this sacred work in hand who actually know how sorrow has been changed into joy and hearts have been filled with gratitude."

"Words cannot express my gratitude for the help I have received today. I thank you most sincerely for your kindness and consideration; please convey my deep appreciation to those to whom I am indebted for such generosity and kindness. Divine Love does indeed meet our every need."

"I wish to tender my most grateful thanks to you for granting me the much needed help, viz., £12, which I received. Will you please convey my gratitude and thanks to the American Scientists for the love they have manifested. I had no knowledge from what source my very pressing need would be met; to mortal sense there was none."

"I hear from my wife that on behalf of The Mother Church fund you have sent her a further cheque. I feel deeply grateful to you for this valuable help, which means a great deal to us all, I assure you. Personally I cannot help but feel very unworthy of all this kindness, but after all I do realize that it is the working of divine Love. It is just wonderful the way our needs are being met, and in the proofs I have had in recent months of the protecting care of omnipotent Love, I am encouraged and strengthened to go on without flinching and to look ahead with hope and confidence. My heart is really too full to write what I feel. Perhaps you can understand and will accept this poor letter accordingly."

"My husband and I wish to say how very thankful we are for the most liberal gift received this morning of £15, which is indeed far more than we expected. We are also very grateful to the kind American friends who have made this gift possible. Am sure it would cheer them if they only knew how deeply we appreciate their kindness in helping us out of our great trouble."

"I have received the gift of £10 from The Mother Church fund with great pleasure. I am one of the unfortunates who have been very hard hit by the war, as the materials I used in my business (of over twenty-five years' standing) are only manufactured in Bavaria, and therefore directly war broke out I could get no more stock. I am hoping to find some lucrative work that I can do at home, for having a dear mother, aged 82, to provide a home for, you see I cannot go out. I am an artist, but there is no sale now for luxuries. You can understand what a great help this kind gift will be to me."

"I have the desire and also consider it my duty to express my gratitude for the good, financial and moral, which your committee has done for my fellow citizens in general and to my sister in particular. My sister has been a widow for two years and her only son has been fighting bravely at our front for eighteen months. This son was severely wounded and taken prisoner in November last. As through a miracle his life was saved, for the bullet which had passed right through his jaws and had knocked out three molar teeth had left a very dangerous wound which, according to the doctors, could produce death instantly. But the Lord preserved him. His convalescence was comparatively short, and already after a few months he wrote that his health was good and that he hardly remembered his wound. My sister, who was formerly well off, and who found herself in great straits because not only did she receive no more money from her son but also had to provide him with food, received great help from your relief committee, both financially and morally. I say morally because, coming as it did in the hour of need and from good people who comforted her, a greater faith in the good penetrated our hearts, and we thanked God.

"I cannot call myself a Scientist yet, although I have been interested in Science several years; but the moral help which I have received has been great indeed. I have not been inundated by a great unforeseen light, nor have I been healed instantaneously, but there has been a slow but sure change,—a slow disappearing of the old ideas which I had imbibed and a gradual unfoldment of the new ones, which have healed me of pessimism, or I should even say of atheism; a renewed faith, which manifested itself in strength, in life, in goodness; a deeper understanding of the divine law of Love, and a serenity so great that even the persons around me are benefited. Thus is the good I have received from an understanding of this Science truly divine. And I am indeed grateful to my good friends who have led me to this understanding."

Among the Churches

Current Notes

South Pasadena, Cal.—At the beginning of the year First Church of Christ, Scientist, voted to purchase the two lots at the northeast corner of Oak Street and Fremont Avenue for a building site. This church was organized five years ago with seventeen charter members, and the first service was held Sunday, Jan. 21, 1912. A Sunday school was organized, and reading rooms were opened in Jacob's Hall, which had been rented for the church services. This hall was outgrown in two years, and in August, 1914, the church secured the Woman's Club House for its services. The building fund was started soon after organization.

South Pasadena Record.

Lanarkshire, Scotland.—During the year ending Jan. 31, twenty-two letters were written to the press. Four were not inserted. First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Glasgow, distributed 5987 Sentinels, 1603 Journals, 41,301 Monitors, and 1740 miscellaneous. For the Trustees under the Will of Mary Baker Eddy there have been distributed to the troops 7475 copies of the periodicals and pamphlets. The Trustees under the Will also donated to the libraries of Glasgow nineteen subscriptions to the Sentinel, nineteen to the Journal, and nine to the Monitor.—Committee on Publication.

Colorado Springs, Col.—A large addition to the present structure of First Church of Christ, Scientist, is to be erected at a cost of about ten thousand dollars. Tentative plans for such an addition have been under consideration for some time, as the congregation has grown steadily and the seating capacity was fast becoming inadequate.

Colorado Springs Telegraph.

Glendora, Cal.—Prisoners from the Los Angeles County Jail have recently been doing road work in the San Gabriel Cañon. The Christian Science Society of Glendora, Cal., conducted services there twice a month with excellent results. The Sunday school of the Glendora society paid for the hire of an automobile used by the committee who visited the camp.

Digitized by Google

PUEBLO, COL.—A beautiful white marble church building, costing in the neighborhood of twenty-five thousand dollars, will be erected at the corner of Twelfth and Main Streets during the coming year, if plans now under consideration by the building committee of First Church of Christ, Scientist, are carried out. It is expected that work on the building will commence some time during the coming summer.

Pueblo Star-Journal.

FLINT, MICH.—The first services in the beautiful new edifice of First Church of Christ, Scientist, East Court and Harrison Streets, were held yesterday morning.

Flint Journal.

✧ ✧ ✧

The Lectures

HALIFAX, ENGLAND (First Church).—John Sidney Braithwaite, lecturer; introduced by Walter Wilding, who said in part:—

It was my privilege more than sixteen years ago to come into touch with Christian Science, and my experience to see some of the works of Christian Scientists in my then medical practice. Through the prayers of Christian Scientists several cases in my practice were healed. These were serious cases of organic disease, and I knew they were medically incurable. Yet under the ministration of prayer as understood in Christian Science they were healed.

It was these proofs by works which compelled me to study Christian Science, and I saw that it is the truth, that it is the Science of absolute Truth, the exact knowledge of God and real being, and that it was that exact understanding of God and His law which Jesus had and which enabled him to do the works he did and of which he said, "He that believeth on me," i.e., he that has this exact knowledge of God and real being that I have, "the works that I do shall he do also." The more I studied Christian Science the clearer I saw the great gulf fixed between medicine and Christian Science. The former is based wholly on the belief in the substantiality of matter and the reality of evil and disease, whereas Christian Science is founded wholly on the substantiality of Spirit and the reality of good—the consequent utter unreality, the nothingness, of matter and evil. From this position of thought it was not a far step to retire from medical practice. Having done this, it is now my endeavor to try to fit myself for this Christ-method of healing—Christian Science.

Halifax Courier.

CHICAGO, ILL. (Seventh Church).—Bliss Knapp, lecturer; introduced by Miss Edith I. Weeks, who said in part:—

"Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord." This message was given by the angel of the Lord to the shepherds as they watched their flocks by night. Shall we too say, as did the shepherds, "Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass"? Christian Science is indeed the morning star, guiding and lighting the way to this Christ, Truth, which is bringing joy and freedom to multitudes all over the world.

WASHINGTON, D. C. (Second Church).—Charles I. Ohrenstein, lecturer; introduced by Walter W. Hummer, who said in part:—

When John the Baptist sent messengers to Jesus to ask him if he were the Christ or if they should look for another, it is related that in the same hour Jesus healed many people of their infirmities. Then he said to those disciples, "Go your way, and tell John what things ye have seen and heard; how that the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, to the poor the gospel is preached." Jesus did not attempt to convince those messengers by argument that he was the Christ, but pointed to his works as conclusive proof that the Christ was being manifested through him, the eternal manifestation of the Father, to which he referred when he said, "Before Abraham was, I am," and on another occasion, "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."

Today in Christian Science are being fulfilled these words of the Master. It is being proved in the lives of many thousands of men and women today that the Science Jesus taught and lived has lost none of its efficacy, none of its tender compassion, none of its healing, saving, and regenerating power. It is being proved that God is the same unchangeable Love, always available for every human need, awaiting only our awakening, our understanding, and our acceptance.

✧

Lectures to be Delivered

[By Members of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.]

CANADA—Toronto, Ontario (Third Church): Clarence W. Chadwick, Royal Alexandra Theater, 3:15 p.m., June 3.

CONNECTICUT—Stamford: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Church Edifice, Prospect Street, 8 p.m., June 3.

ENGLAND—London (Finsbury Park Society): John Sidney Braithwaite, The Athenæum, Camden Road, London, N., 8 p.m., May 31.

London (First Church): John W. Doorly, Queen's Hall, Langham Place, W., 8 p.m., June 11.

INDIANA—Hagerstown: John Randall Dunn, I. O. O. F. Hall, 8 p.m., May 26.

Indianapolis (Second Church): John Randall Dunn, Tomlinson Hall, 8 p.m., May 28; Church Edifice, Delaware and Twelfth Streets, 8 p.m., May 29 (note change).

MASSACHUSETTS—Lexington: Virgil O. Strickler, Town Hall, 8 p.m., June 5.

Lynn: Virgil O. Strickler, The Strand, 2:45 p.m., June 3.

Newburyport: William R. Rathvon, Church Edifice, State and Prospect Streets, 8 p.m., June 1.

North Attleboro (auspices Franklin): Virgil O. Strickler, Starkey's Theater, 8 p.m., June 3.

Quincy: John Randall Dunn, Music Hall, 3:30 p.m., June 3.

Springfield: Frank Bell, Municipal Auditorium, 3:30 p.m., June 3.

NEW HAMPSHIRE—Berlin: Paul Stark Secley, City Hall, 8 p.m., May 31.

Dover: Virgil O. Strickler, Church Edifice, 604 Central Avenue, 8:15 p.m., June 4.

Lebanon: Virgil O. Strickler, Unitarian Church, 8 p.m., June 2.

Nashua: Dr. Walton Hubbard, City Hall, Main Street, 8 p.m., June 7.

NEW JERSEY—Montclair: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Church Edifice, 8:15 p.m., June 1 and 2.

Riverton: William R. Rathvon, Collins Hall, Main Street above Broad, 8 p.m., May 31.

Woodbridge (auspices Sewaren): Bicknell Young, High School Auditorium, Barron Avenue, 3:30 p.m., May 27.

NEW YORK—Binghamton: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Stone Opera House, 3:30 p.m., June 3.

Buffalo (joint lectures): Frank Bell, First Church Edifice, North Street and Elmwood Avenue, 8:15 p.m., May 31; hall at 1445 Jefferson Street, 8:15 p.m., June 1; Third Church Edifice, Norwood Avenue and West Ferry Street, 8:15 p.m., June 2.

Herkimer: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Richmond Theater, 4 p.m., May 27.

Lynbrook, Long Island: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Arcade Theater, Atlantic Avenue, 3:45 p.m., June 3.

Poughkeepsie: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Church Edifice, 111 Market Street, 8 p.m., June 4.

Rome: Bliss Knapp, Carroll Theater, 4 p.m., June 3.

Schenectady: George Shaw Cook, Van Curler Opera House, 3:30 p.m., June 3.

VERMONT—Springfield: William R. Rathvon, Ideal Theater, 4:30 p.m., June 3.

Digitized by Google

Testimonies of Healing

Having enjoyed and profited by the testimonies in our periodicals for more than a decade, I feel that I should not longer postpone a brief statement of the myriad benefits I have received from Christian Science. Prior to this time physicians were frequent visitors at our home, and although suffering was little lessened thereby, we clung tenaciously to material methods. Finally three sisters in the bloom of young womanhood passed away, two of them from supposedly inherited lung trouble.

My father was an earnest Bible student, and during the illnesses of my sisters he searched the Scriptures to discover how Jesus and his early followers healed the sick, being fully convinced that such healing was taught in the Bible and should be continued by Christians today. When told that Christian Science claimed to heal as did the Master, he purchased an early edition of the text-book. He was, however, warned against its study by ministerial friends; and when a little later he was about to pass on, becoming concerned lest some member of his family might be led astray by this book, one of his last conscious acts was to warn them against its teachings.

As a young man I was afflicted with a variety of physical weaknesses, attributed to overstudy and hard work. I was also a victim of quick temper, frequently in a pitiable mental condition from discouragement, and was greatly in need of a rudder to steer my course in life. Gradually these troubles left me, as I gained an understanding of Christian Science, although much still remains to be corrected. My first physical healing was of an eruption that came each summer, said to have been caused by poison from certain vines. My health steadily improved from the beginning of my study and has been excellent for several years. Two children, aged twelve and eight, have never tasted medicine, and their robust health is frequently remarked. My wife relied entirely on Christian Science during a very violent attack of typhus fever, when she was stricken while far from home. Much kindness was shown her by Scientists, and the understanding of its Principle saved her life and restored her to her loved ones.

In 1903 a brother who was afflicted with the same supposedly inherited lung trouble as my sisters, having been treated by the same physicians, who reported similar conditions, and being informed that he might live longer if he would remove to a dry climate, went from his home in Michigan to Oklahoma, where we were then living, expecting to take up his residence near us. After one week's treatment in Science he returned to his home in Michigan well, and he is living there now with no trace of the dreaded disease.

These statements give only a faint outline of the effect Christian Science has had on my life and the lives of my immediate family. Physically, financially, mentally, the prison doors have been unlocked by the key of truth, and I have slowly but joyously emerged from the dark cell of fear, discouragement, and distress into the glorious sunlight and freedom of spiritual living. God has led me by paths invisible to the human eye and indiscernible to the human sense, onward and forward into broader fields of useful activity. When I was out of employment and my purse was empty, supply and opportunity were beautifully demonstrated. That Christian Science is a worth while asset for a business man I have proved beyond question. That God's ways and God's will are infinitely wiser and better than personal ambition and self-will I know from experience. Only when I have failed to heed the whisperings of heavenly intuitions have I suffered, and then by humble recognition of my mistake and earnest effort to be led aright I have again found the path to harmony and peace.

Through her marvelous writings Mrs. Eddy has converted prophecy into history, restored a long lost Bible to humanity, and unfettered a race aching for freedom. The dust of centuries of accumulated dogma and doctrine, beneath which was buried the mission of the Christ, has been dug away, and that mission now shines as it shone on the hills round Bethlehem and across the plains of Judæa. How can we repay our Leader for her devotion to Truth that made possible this modern revelation, destined to revolutionize a world! How but by striving humbly and earnestly to put the Christ-teachings into daily practice.

WILLIAM B. HARRISON, St. Louis, Mo.

It is over thirty years since I first heard of Christian Science and proved its efficacy. The first case of healing in our family was very wonderful. One of our children was in a serious condition from what was pronounced by two doctors to be diphtheritic croup, and no hope was given us. A Christian Scientist was sent for, although we were strangers to this teaching, and the child was quickly relieved, could breathe easily and swallow; then the voice was perfectly restored, and in a few days the little boy was well.

During all the years since then we have daily received blessings unspeakable, for which we certainly are thankful to God. The healings our family have had are innumerable. Scarlet fever, diphtheria, broken bones, a severe burn, acute lung trouble, blood-poisoning, piles, sprains, and nervous breakdown have all been overcome. The beauty of these experiences is that the healing always took place as soon as we had faith to believe God's word; there was no lingering between health and disease. We have the promise, "The Lord's hand is not shortened, that it cannot save; neither his ear heavy, that it cannot hear;" and in Science and Health (p. 96) we read, "Love will finally mark the hour of harmony, and spiritualization will follow, for Love is Spirit."

I am also thankful for the protection which Christian Science affords us. I appreciate our literature very much, and never feel lonesome any more, because I always have plenty to read. I am also very thankful for class instruction. I wish I could find language appropriate to express my gratitude to the noble woman, Mrs. Eddy, who has given us Science and Health, by which we gain the true interpretation of the Scriptures.—JENNIE D. HARMES, Detroit, Mich.

I feel it is my duty to express my thankfulness for Christian Science, since we have had so many wonderful demonstrations in our family. My daughter was healed of tuberculosis of the knee joints just by reading Science and Health, after wearing a cast on one leg and a brace on both legs for many months, and consulting several doctors. The need of glasses, which she had worn for many years, was also overcome, and many ailments have disappeared. My son has been healed of a severe injury received in an accident, of heart trouble, rheumatism, colds, and burns.

My little grandson, who is eight years old, knows nothing of medicine. He has been cured of toothache, croup, and inflammatory rheumatism. His leg was so swollen that we could hardly get his stocking off, but in two days he was ready for school again. The croup was overcome in one treatment, and he has never had a spell since. I have been healed of a malignant growth in my lip, of bowel trouble, typhoid fever, an abscess, diphtheria, and a throat affection. When my arm was broken I did not have it set by a physician at all, but it is as good as the other arm except for a little stiffness. After the first night it caused me very little pain.

Digitized by Google

All these ailments mentioned were overcome through the application of the truth by a faithful practitioner. I am truly thankful to God, and grateful to Mrs. Eddy for all the good received,—even for my slight understanding. My great desire is to gain more each day by studying the Lesson-Sermon and the Christian Science literature, which helps us to overcome our faults and be more kind to our fellow man.

HELENE VOIGT, Elko, Nev.

✧

I am deeply grateful for the understanding of the Bible which I have gained through the study of Christian Science. I find there is no wrong condition which cannot be made right by the practice of the teachings set forth in Science and Health. In November, 1915, I wanted to take an examination in algebra, and called for help from a Christian Science practitioner. Before attempting to work a problem, I let my thoughts dwell on the power and allness of God, until I felt free from fear: then each problem seemed easy. Before Thanksgiving day, word was received that I had passed the examination.

I am grateful for a religion which when practised solves every problem with a perfect result. I have been healed of chronic appendicitis, congestion of the kidneys, infantile paralysis, influenza, and fainting spells. At the time I was healed of the last ailment I had fainted nine times in nine hours. Fifteen minutes after asking for help in Science, I went to sleep, and on awakening felt no return of the trouble and have not since.

For all these blessings I am grateful. I owe our Leader, Mrs. Eddy, a debt which can be repaid only by putting into practice what I understand, and working for a clearer understanding.—HULDAH J. HOAG, Burlington, Vt.

✧

A number of years ago I became dissatisfied with the church of which I had been an active member for years, because I was not getting the necessary spiritual food. Christian Science had been mentioned to me, but I had taken no interest in it, thinking it was something like mental science, which had been investigated and "found wanting." In 1904, however, I obtained a copy of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, and in reading this book I became assured that this was a true, practical, and satisfying religion.

One day, while reading a testimony in the Sentinel, there came to me the realization that I did not need glasses as a help to sight. I took them off then and there, and have never worn them since, although they had been used for fifteen years, and two specialists had told me I could never leave them off without first having an operation on the eyes. This was a proof to me that even a small understanding of Christian Science corrects wrong conditions, and I was delighted at this evidence of the power of Truth to destroy error. Since then I have identified myself with Christian Science, and have tried truly to help others as I have been helped.

After beginning systematic study of the text-book, I realized that I needed to be healed of many things, among which were sensitiveness, self-consciousness, and discontent. Then too I had suffered for years from severe headaches and spinal trouble, but these have all disappeared through the operation of Truth in consciousness; indeed Truth has been found equal to every emergency. At one time I fell and broke some ribs, but although there was much swelling and discoloration, I was not in bed a day and was able to be around the house and do most of the work. With the help of a practitioner the sharp pain was overcome very quickly.

On another occasion, when my elbow was broken, I immediately went to a practitioner near by, and within an hour the severe pain was so much relieved that I rode across the city to the home of friends I was visiting. No surgeon was called, and no material remedy or appliance was used. The healing was so wonderful that on the sixth day I went to my home in an adjoining town, and from that time used the arm in nearly every way necessary.

I am very grateful for the privilege of class instruction, as it has aided me in being of service to others. Is it any wonder that people all over the world who have been and are being helped through Christian Science should revere the name and memory of one who was true enough to Principle to rise above material obstacles and give to the world this truth of scientific healing! No other since Jesus' time has risen to such an understanding of the Bible and of God and His laws as has Mrs. Eddy.

KATE C. DEVENDORF, Los Angeles, Cal.

✧

I wish to express my gratitude for Christian Science, which healed me after doctors had failed to do so. For thirteen years I was a great sufferer from many physical ailments, and although I sought health under medical treatment, no lasting benefit was received. Bronchial hoarseness disappeared after I had listened to a testimony given at a Christian Science Wednesday evening meeting, and I was healed of severe stomach trouble, neuralgia, and hemorrhoids by reading our Leader's writings and applying the truth. Although I have had treatment from different practitioners, I have always received great benefit from my study of these writings.

Christian Science has been my support through the separation of loved ones, and has never failed in any need. Words are inadequate to express my gratitude for what this truth has done for me and is doing for all mankind. I am grateful to Mrs. Eddy for all she has given to the world.

MRS. E. M. BUCHANAN, Watertown, N. Y.

✧

A few years ago I was suffering from such a severe attack of neuritis that opiates had to be administered constantly to alleviate the pain. The doctor said I would not be able to return to work for at least a year, and it seemed that way to me, as I was almost a cripple.

At this time a friend who was interested in Christian Science advised me to try it. I took treatment from a practitioner for two weeks, but not receiving any benefit decided to try medicine again, as the pain seemed unbearable. Divine Love was, however, protecting me, and I became acquainted with a lady who proved to be a friend in need. She consented to give me treatments at my request, with the result that I was entirely healed of the neuritis in two weeks, and also of a goiter. The doctor had told me that a surgical operation was absolutely necessary for the removal of this growth.

Owing to illness I had been compelled to give up my business position, and at the time of this healing my finances were at a very low ebb. Christian Science help was again asked for, and metaphysical work was done for me along these lines, with the inevitable result that soon a much better position was secured, although the conditions in the establishment where I found employment were very discordant and inharmonious. The practitioner was told of this, and she again took up work for me, with the result that the discord was replaced with harmony, and I was also promoted to a better position and received an increase in salary. Kidney trouble of several years' standing has been overcome, and a throat affection and high fever disappeared in a few hours through the work of the same faithful practitioner.

Digitized by Google

All my time outside of business is devoted to the study of Christian Science, and I am striving each day to let that Mind be in me "which was also in Christ Jesus." I am sincerely grateful to our beloved Leader, Mrs. Eddy, for her teaching as set forth in Science and Health. The physical benefits seem to fade into insignificance when compared to the spiritual uplift and great joy which fills my consciousness,—a perpetual song of praise and thanksgiving to God.

MINNIE L. STILES, Chicago, Ill.

✧

I would like to express my gratitude for the many benefits that have come to me since hearing of Christian Science. I first turned to this teaching on account of family troubles, and although the help received was not what I expected, I now begin to see that an all wise and all loving Father knew what was best for me, as the solution I looked for would not have been lasting or to my best interests.

I would however like to mention that my ankle, which had been badly injured in an accident, and which had been in a plaster cast and bandaged for two years, suddenly ceased to give trouble or pain, except in a few cases when the ground was excessively rough. The tobacco and liquor habits were also overcome in a few days. It is for the spiritual uplift that I am especially thankful, as I am a better man in all ways since studying our Leader's works, which make so much of the Bible plain to me where its meaning always seemed more or less hidden before.

In the summer of 1915 a forest fire raged close to my home. The wind was driving it right in my direction, so I hurriedly removed from the house everything I could and put the different articles in a boat to take across to a government wharf. Bits of burning moss, wood, and bark were dropping all around me, and the bed took fire, but I saw it in time to put it out. When I went back to the house the fire seemed more intense for a short time, and with smoke nearly blinding me I almost gave up hope of saving the building. I had, however, been trying to know that all is possible with God, and that it was not His will for me to be burned out of house and home again (this was the second time in three years), when the wind suddenly veered, so that the house was saved.

I am very grateful to Christian Science for bringing me to that state where in a measure at least I know God, for although brought up by a loving mother to trust divine Love, the ways of Principle were practically a dead letter before I became interested in Christian Science, which our revered Leader made possible by her life of love and study.

HERBERT BENTLEY, Wyatt Bay, B. C., Canada.

✧

About the year 1901 I inquired of a druggist if he knew of anything that would help me overcome nervousness, and he prescribed a drug that he and his wife had used for years. I did not know the nature of the medicine until several years had passed, when I found I had become addicted to the morphine habit. The dose was gradually increased, until I was taking twenty-five times as much a day as when I first began. Many times I tried to give up using it, but grew worse instead of better, and a physician said there was no cure for me. I heard of Christian Science through friends, and felt it was the only way out of my bondage. Through the help of a practitioner I have been perfectly healed, and words cannot express my thankfulness to God and my gratitude to Mrs. Eddy for this deliverance. Only those who have been under such bondage can appreciate my present joy. I am deriving great benefit from the Christian Science literature and from the church services, and am gradually gaining a clearer sense of God's allness and power.

MRS. S. E. SMITH, Utica, N. Y.

✧

It is with a heart full of love and thankfulness to God that I give this testimony. I had been through two serious operations and was ready for the third when Christian Science was recommended to me by a neighbor, who advised me to go to a practitioner. I did so the next day, and was healed of gall-stones and liver trouble, also of kidney trouble in two treatments; and a year after that I was healed of hemorrhoids. Bronchitis was overcome during a Wednesday evening meeting, so I know "the word of God is quick, and powerful," as I have had proof of it in the years that I have been studying Christian Science.

I surely am thankful for the truth in our home and for the wonderful healing that has come to my husband and our boy; also for Science and Health, which teaches us more about Life, Truth, and Love each day. I owe my life to its teachings, as all material remedies had been exhausted before I turned to Science. I never enjoyed such good health and happiness as I do now, and am deeply grateful to our revered Leader, Mrs. Eddy, who labored to bring the truth back to earth again.—MRS. N. J. CHAPIN, Denver, Col.

✧

It is with a heart full of gratitude that I tell how tenderly divine Love sustained me and led me to take up the study of Christian Science. I found out through bitter experiences that mere repetition of the words of Christian Science does not heal; but that the Principle for which those words stand can and does heal; and when I made an honest effort to understand that Principle my healing came.

A few years ago I was stricken with an ailment which finally developed into an asthmatic condition. We were camping at the time, and I had to be brought home and put to bed, where I remained for several weeks under the care of our family physician. All of that winter I was ill, with only enough strength to get about the house. I knew nothing of Christian Science, but becoming discouraged with material remedies thought I would try it. I was benefited enough to get out of doors during the summer, but as fall drew nigh it found me in a worse condition than the previous year. I then returned to material remedies and another physician, but he could do nothing for me, and it was not many weeks before I again turned to Truth. A few words spoken by our Master seemed to be my only hope, and often when I was about to give up the battle they stood before me as letters of fire.

One day a lady who called to see me asked permission to send some one to talk to me about Christian Science. I gave my consent, and in a few days the Scientist came. She found me in a dreadful condition, filled with fear, and a total wreck. (I had not left my room for over three months.) She began to read to me from Science and Health, but I told her I did not think it of much use, for I knew that book was full of beautiful words, just like the Bible, but they did not help me. She then said, "Do you know that those words all have a spiritual meaning and must be spiritually understood?" I said no more, but just listened, and when she left I was thoroughly convinced that Christian Science was the Christ-healing, but that it must be understood and demonstrated.

I immediately made up my mind to get that understanding if it was possible for one in my condition to do so, and started by trying to learn the "scientific statement of being" (Science and Health, p. 468). It took me three weeks to memorize those few words. Then with the prayer, "Father, I thank thee," constantly on my lips, for truly I was grateful for having been shown the way, I took up the study of the Bible Lessons, not allowing one word to pass without striving to get the spiritual sense of it, and putting each day's lesson into practice to the best of my ability. For some time there was apparently little change, but I realized that I was gradually being lifted up into the sunlight of Truth. I do not know when my healing came, but it was a positive proof that "man's extremity is God's opportunity," and I am so glad I did not cease to search.

Digitized by Google

My heart overflows with gratitude to our revered Leader, whose love and purity caused her to be the chosen messenger of divine Truth to a waiting world. For the physical healing I am truly grateful, but when I realize the spiritual uplift which comes to me daily through the earnest study of Science and Health and the Bible in connection with the Quarterly, I can only express my gratitude by striving to live Christian Science more faithfully every day.

LAURA C. HALL, Oakland, Cal.

I did not come into Christian Science for physical healing, but through the healing of my wife, which proved to us that the Principle of Christian Science is God, and that when His laws are understood and practised they bring freedom from bondage, be it sickness or sin. Not once since taking up the study of Christian Science have we been tempted to return to material remedies, for we have found that what God cannot do man need not attempt. We are finding infinite Mind to be the source of supply for all our needs, and I am indeed grateful that this healing power has found its way into our lives and home, where all is now peace and harmony.

CHARLES HALL.

✧

I wish to express my thankfulness to God for the many blessings that have come to me through the reading of Science and Health. Asthma, neuralgia, ulcerated tooth, and bowel disorder have been overcome with the help of a practitioner. My husband has been healed mentally and morally, also of the morphine and cocaine habit, as well as of profanity and gambling. When we took up the study of Christian Science several years ago we were in extreme poverty, but through the understanding of God as our supply we now have plenty for all our needs.

For these blessings I am very grateful to our beloved Leader, Mrs. Eddy.—HILDA ALLEN, Chicago, Ill.

✧ ✧ ✧

[Written for the Sentinel]

Immunity

MYRTLE STRODE JACKSON

HEED not the stones of sense by ignorance flung Against your work and you. Let foes and friends
Condemn, with the dead letter on their tongue;
But ye by Spirit called to nobler ends,
For whom Life's harp is more adroitly strung
With melodies divine, whose thought ascends
To God,—look upward! As St. Stephen's eyes
Gazed on the vision of the Christ above,
Ye too shall see in harmony's pure skies
Ideas of Spirit that we all may prove,— Reality's strong fact, which underlies
This world of dreams wherein men seem to move,—
And your freed sense be held in hushed surprise,
Asleep to violence but awake to Love!

From Our Exchanges

[Rev. H. Maldwyn Hughes, D.D., in The Methodist Recorder]

The church is confronted today by difficult tasks, perhaps more difficult than any that have faced it since the early days when it set out to vanquish the Roman Empire. It is called to Christianize civilization, to bring the great discoveries of the intellect under moral restraints, and to baptize all the complex relationships and activities of modern life into Jesus Christ. And there are many who feel that the church is unequal to this high task. Instead of gaining strength, it seems to be losing power. The word is going forth from all the churches that things are not well with them. It is difficult to diagnose the disease, but I will venture to say that one cause of our weakness is that we are relying, I will not say too much on ourselves, but far too little upon God. Our conception of the calling of the church is too humanistic. We think of the salvation of the world too much as a task which we are to achieve. Our fathers used to teach that salvation was of the grace of God. They did not regard the victories which they won as their own achievements, but as triumphs of grace. They were but the channels and recipients of the divine grace and power. And our fathers were right. It is God who saves, and not man.

[Rev. William A. Elliott in The Biblical World]

I know nothing that argues so convincingly of the divine sonship of Jesus, and his "other world" origin, as the spirit of the universal that characterizes all of his life and teaching. The greatest men of earth, after all these illuminating centuries, have not attained unto it. How can it be explained, how came it, that there was a man raised up out of the exclusiveness and narrowness and prejudice of his time and people, who preached a cosmopolitan gospel and carried with him into all of his acts and ministries the universal spirit? And why has not this Jewish race, or some other favored race, produced another like unto him during these twenty centuries? There is but one explanation: he was the one sent of God, and shared God's thought for the world and God's bigness and broadness and benevolence.

[Zion's Herald]

There are people who have the unfortunate habit of putting off things, often for no other reason than that they rather enjoy toying with a coin before spending it, or trifling with an opportunity before utilizing it. While often no very serious consequences may follow from such postponement of action, there are crises when procrastination is the thief not only of time but also of reputation, safety, or even of life itself. Opportunity is coy and uncertain, and, like the tides, inevitably runs away at last. A proper alertness is therefore to be cultivated, so that the chance may be seized and improved before it evanesces into nothing. Most important of all to use on the moment are the offerings of spiritual opportunity. "Now is the day of salvation," "now is the accepted time"—just here is the place in which to find and to follow Jesus.

[The Congregationalist and Christian World]

Faith ebbs and flows. The soul itself has its morning dawn of peace and vision, its twilight of doubt, its sheer darkness of despair. Now the hope of any kind of strong and glowing life must lie in our power so to utilize this rhythm of the spirit as to gain in our times of slackened force not only strength enough to carry us back to the old levels, but strength enough to carry us beyond them. Our dominant interest is commonly—and naturally—in the rising tide.

Digitized by Google

[Rev. Arthur Pringle in The Christian Commonwealth]

We must remember that before the war—and I do not mention it for our discouragement, but rather for our inspiration to do something better—we were all acquiescing in a state of industrial competitiveness that was often as harsh and unscrupulous as war itself. Again and again even Christian people said, with a hopeless shrug of the shoulders, What else can you have, what else would you have? The weak must go to the wall, and the strong must gain the victory. The adventurous, the capable, must go forward, and the others take care of themselves. Many months ago The Times declared that even the horrors of a modern battle field did not equal the evils of a civilized city in ordinary days of peace. Those were the conditions under which we were living. We all knew that a spirit of self-indulgence and materialism and carelessness about the higher and the nobler things was capturing our nation. And at such a time as this we should remember that the cross may come to us with its cleansing and uplifting power and make us nobler men, more worthy of the sacred time through which we are passing.

[Rev. J. Stuart Holden in Record of Christian Work]

If one thing is clearer than another in divine revelation, it is that life is essentially just, for God is over all, blessed forever. No element of chance interferes with the law of harvest,—"Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." No possibility of anything casual or arbitrary qualifies the doings of Him "with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning." No oversight of any of life's interests is even thinkable, for "the very hairs of your head are all numbered." No hint of changing fortune dims the glory of the evangel that "he that spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, how shall he not with him also freely give us all things?" To the believer there is no such thing as luck. Every will-o'-the-wisp has ceased to glow in the light of the risen Sun. For the irritating uncertainties and debilitating fears of alluring or threatening fate, he has forever substituted "that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God." And his peace nothing can destroy. He has found firm anchorage.

[London Times] -

He who would learn the secrets of God and of his own soul must seek to be alone. For Christians, loneliness is consecrated by him whom they call Master and Lord. It is in the wilderness that they learn his secret. "Come ye yourselves apart into a desert place, and rest a while." The disciples learned more in those prolonged days of solitude than they could have known if they had remained always in the crowds of Galilee, though it was in the cities that they witnessed the power of Christ in his miracles. They saw his works among the people, but they learned who he was only when they were alone with him in a desert place.

[Rev. Charles Brown, D.D., in The Methodist Times]

Paul always proceeded on the assumption that what had happened to himself on the way to Damascus might happen to any other man at any time. He always looked upon a man as a possible Christian, whether that man was a runaway slave, or the soldier to whom he was chained, or Festus, or Felix, or Agrippa.

[The Independent]

Peace, when it comes, must be the peace that has in it the seed and the promise of life; a peace for the healing of the nations, and not another armed truce. It must be the peace of a free and law abiding world.

Special Announcements

From the Publisher of Mrs. Eddy's Works

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE TEXT-BOOK, "SCIENCE AND HEALTH WITH KEY TO THE SCRIPTURES."—See back cover of this periodical for styles of bindings and prices.

CONCORDANCE TO SCIENCE AND HEALTH.—A new edition of this volume is announced, printed from new plates and bound in stiff morocco. Single copy, $5.00; six or more, each $4.50.

CONCORDANCE TO MRS. EDDY'S PUBLISHED WRITINGS OTHER THAN SCIENCE AND HEALTH.—Published only in the India Bible paper edition, with stiff morocco covers; uniform in style with the Concordance to Science and Health. Price, $6.00; six or more, each $5.50.

Announcement is made of the publication of a new edition of the German translation of the Manual of The Mother Church. This edition is printed with alternate pages of English and German, and is uniform in binding and price with the regular cloth-bound edition. If those who have purchased the Manual in German, but without the English pages, wish to exchange them for new copies with both English and German text, without additional charge, they can do so by sending their German copies to the Publisher, postage paid, marking the name and address of the sender plainly on the wrapper. In exchange for all copies so returned the Publisher will send copies of the new edition without charge, postage paid.

Announcement is made of the printing of an edition of Rudimental Divine Science in the American Braille system of type for the blind. Single copy, 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

Orders for the books named above and other works by Mrs. Eddy should be addressed to ALLISON V. STEWART, Falmouth and St. Paul Streets, Boston, Mass.

From the Editor

All manuscripts submitted for publication in the Sentinel, Journal, and Herold, whether articles, poems, or testimonies, and all correspondence relating thereto, should be addressed to the EDITOR, and not to individuals.

From the Publishing Society

The increased cost of leather has necessitated an advance in the prices of the leather bound hymnals, and the following prices became effective May 1, 1917. Delivery charges prepaid. Morocco, pocket edition, one copy $3.50; six copies to one address $19.50; twelve copies to one address $36.00. Morocco, large size, one copy $3.75; six copies to one address $21.00; twelve copies to one address $39.00. Levant, large size, one copy $4.75; six copies to one address $27.00; twelve copies to one address $51.00.

In the announcement of April 28, the price of the large size morocco hymnal was listed by mistake at $3.50 a copy. The listing in the May Journal was incorrect and correction will appear in the June issue.

From the Clerk of The Mother Church

CHURCH TENETS.—The tenets of The First Church of Christ, Scientist,—The Mother Church,—printed on folded sheet for use of the branch Churches of Christ, Scientist, with space for printing their authorized forms of application for membership or extracts from their by-laws, can be had at seventy-five cents a hundred. Orders will not be taken for less than one hundred and postage stamps should not be sent in payment.

Correspondence relative to the tenets or to membership with The Mother Church, should be sent to J. V. DITTEMORE, Clerk, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

From the Church Treasurer

The annual per capita tax of members of The Mother Church is due June 1, but may be paid at any time during the year. The per capita tax of members uniting in November is reckoned from the preceding June, this being the beginning of the church year. Unless otherwise directed by the sender, the full amount of each remittance will be credited for the current year.

Please remit by postal or express money order, bank draft, or check. Currency should be sent by registered letter only.

Please advise promptly of any change in name or address.

Send per capita taxes and contributions to ADAM H. DICKEY, Treasurer, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

Digitized by Google

The Christian Science Journal

Published Monthly

Founded April, 1883, by Mary Baker Eddy, Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, and author of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures."

This monthly magazine is the official organ of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. In addition to articles, editorials, and testimonies not published elsewhere, it contains a complete list of Christian Science practitioners, and a directory of Christian Science Churches, Societies, and Reading Rooms.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $2; six months $1; three months 50 cents. SALE PRICE: Single copy 20 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 15 cents. For Canada add 25 cents for postage. SALE PRICE: Single copy 20 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 17 cents. In all other countries add 65 cents for postage for each annual subscription. SALE PRICE: Single copy 25 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 20 cents.

BOUND VOLUMES: Current and past year, cloth $3.00; half calf or half morocco $3.75. On earlier volumes write for prices.

The Christian Science Quarterly

Published January, April, July, and October

Contains the Lesson-Sermons which are read at the Sunday services throughout the year in all the Christian Science churches. These Lessons, which present citations from the Bible and "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," are valuable for daily study. Also printed in Dutch and German.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION AND SALE: In the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year 50 cents; single copy 15 cents; four copies or more to one address, each 12½ cents. For all other countries one year 60 cents; single copy 18 cents; four copies or more, each 15 cents.

Subscriptions not accepted for less than one year. Subscriptions begin with current quarter unless otherwise designated, and terminate with the last of the month named on wrapper.

The Christian Science Monitor

Published Daily, Except Sundays and Legal Holidays

An international daily newspaper. Adequate news service. The various departments of a modern newspaper. Unique Home Forum page. Entire page of editorials dealing with the vital topics of the day. Contributions to the columns of the MONITOR should be addressed: Editor, THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States (except in the Boston Postal District), Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $5; six months $2.50; three months $1.25; one month 50 cents. In all other countries additional postage at the rate of $3 yearly is required. By carrier through a local newsdealer; one month 60 cents. In the Boston Postal District, by mail, one year $7.20. Quantity rates will be furnished on application.

Der Herold der Christian Science

Published Monthly

A magazine printed in German, which publishes original and translated articles bearing upon Christian Science, also testimonials of healing.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $1; six months 50 cents; three months 25 cents. For other countries, one year $1.25; six months 63 cents; three months 32 cents.

SALE PRICE, DOMESTIC TERRITORY AND CANADA, POSTPAID: Single copy 10 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 8 cents. Foreign rate, single copy 12 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 10 cents.

Bound Volumes in cloth, $2.75 each; half calf or half morocco $3.50 each. Write for list of volumes in stock.

Pamphlets

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS RELIGIOUS PHILOSOPHY. By HON. CLARENCE A. BUSKIRK.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: "THE RESURRECTION AND THE LIFE." By CLARENCE W. CHADWICK.

CAUSATION: VIEWED IN THE LIGHT OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By FREDERICK DIXON. Also printed in Norwegian and Swedish.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING VS. MENTAL SUGGESTION. By FREDERICK DIXON. Reprinted from the Weekly Budget, London, England. Also printed in Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE TRUE CHRISTIANITY. By CLARENCE C. EATON.

"THE SONS OF GOD." By COL. WILLIAM E. FEIL.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE REVELATION OF CHRIST. By JOHN W. DOORLY.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE VS. FINITE SENSE. By FRANCIS J. FLEGO, M.D.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE GOSPEL OF FREEDOM. By WILLIS F. GROSS.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE SCIENCE OF SALVATION. By HERMANN S. HERING.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING: SPIRITUAL AND SCIENTIFIC. By PROF. HERMANN S. HERING. Also printed in German.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS CONCERNING CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. Also printed in Dutch, German, and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS ADVANTAGE TO MANKIND. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. A London lecture. Also printed in French.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: MAN'S DOMINION OVER EVIL. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. Also printed in modern Greek, Italian, Norwegian, and Russian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS DIVINE AUTHORITY. By BLISS KNAPP.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE EXPLANATION OF THE IDEAL MAN. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: GOD'S LOVINGKINDNESS PROVED TO MEN. By REV. WILLIAM P. MCKENZIE. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS RESULTS. By WILLIAM R. RATHVON. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE RELIGION OF DIVINE LAW. By JACOB S. SHIELD.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM. By JUDGE CLIFFORD P. SMITH. Also printed in French and German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A RELIGION OF LOVE. By VIRGIL O. STRICKLER. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE NEW BIRTH. By BICKNELL YOUNG. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

THE LAW OF KINDNESS.
"WHAT WENT YE OUT FOR TO SEE?"
"THEN THE FULL GRAIN IN THE EAR."
"AWAKE THOU THAT SLEEPEST"
LAW AND WORK.
CONFIDENCE AND SUPPLY.
BIRTHRIGHT AND DOMINION.
UPWARD FOOTSTEPS. Also printed in Dutch.
FULFILLING THE LAW. Also printed in Danish.
PRAYER AND HEALING. Also printed in French and German.
THE DIVINE NATURE. Also printed in Dutch and Norwegian.
ENVIRONMENT AND OPPORTUNITY. Also printed in French.
THE FATHER'S BUSINESS. Also printed in German and Swedish.
SEEKING AND FINDING. Also printed in Dutch, German, and Swedish.
THE PROVIDENCE OF GOOD. Also printed in French, Spanish, and Swedish.

Other Translated Pamphlets

FAITH AND GENEROSITY. Printed in French-English.
MAN'S UNITY WITH GOD. Printed in German only.
"PEACE ON EARTH." Printed in German only.
PRAYER AND CONFIDENCE. Printed in German. Also in Dutch-English.
MARY BAKER EDDY. By ARTHUR BRISBANE. Printed in German only.
MARY BAKER EDDY: HER PURPOSE AND ACCOMPLISHMENT. By FREDERICK DIXON. Printed in German. Also in French-English.
THE FOUNDER OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By B. O. FLOWER. Printed in German only.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A REASONABLE AND RATIONAL VIEW OF ALL THINGS. By FRANCIS J. FLEGO, M.D. Printed in Dutch-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: HUMANITY'S HELPER. By PROF. HERMANN S. HERING. Printed in Dutch-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE COMFORTER OF PROMISE. By FRANK H. LEONARD. Printed in French-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: DEMONSTRABLE RELIGION. By FRANK H. LEONARD. Printed in Norwegian only.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A RELIGION OF PROGRESS. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Printed in Swedish. Also in French-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS PRINCIPLE AND METHOD. By BICKNELL YOUNG. Printed in Swedish. Also in French-English.

PRICE, POSTPAID: Single copy 5 cents; twelve copies to one address 55 cents; fifty copies $2; one hundred copies $3.50. Orders for above pamphlets may be assorted as desired.

For table of English, German, Swiss, and French money equivalents, see inside front cover page.

Miscellaneous

A Catalogue of Selected Bibles will be furnished upon application, and quantity rates on other items specified below will be found in the current catalogue in The Christian Science Journal.

BIBLES. 01483 x. Clarendon Brevier, heavy-faced, distinct type; Turkey morocco, corresponding in size and binding to pocket edition of Science and Health, $4.75.

01440 x. Brevier, light-faced type; self-pronouncing. Turkey morocco, corresponding in size and binding to pocket edition of Science and Health, $4.50.

01683 x. Large type Bible, 10¾ x 8 inches, bound in Alaska seal. Specially adapted for use of second readers, $12.50.

Black morocco open case to hold pocket edition of Science and Health, Quarterly, and Bible, $1.40.

Two other sizes of open case listed in the current issue of the Journal.

Black morocco closed case with handle and purse on outside, $3.75; without purse, $3.50.

The improved index will be added to any Bible listed in our catalogue for an additional charge of 35 cents. Catalogue No. 23 of selected Bibles will be mailed free upon application.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS ON THE LIFE AND WORK OF MARY BAKER EDDY. 132 pages with index. Paper covered, 15 cents; cloth binding, 85 cents.

THE LIFE OF MARY BAKER EDDY. By Sibyl Wilbur. 424 pages. Cloth, $2. Edition de luxe, $5.

PERSONAL CONTAGION, ALSO WHAT OUR LEADER SAYS. By Mary Baker Eddy. Special pamphlet. Paper cover, 10 cents.

THE MOTHER CHURCH. By Joseph Armstrong. A history of the building of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. Illustrated, 107 pages. Cloth, $1.50.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS LEGAL STATUS. By Judge Clifford P. Smith. 128 pages, paper covered, 10 cents.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HYMNAL. Cloth, $1.15; half morocco, $1.40; full morocco, $3.75; levant, $4.75; pocket edition, size 4⅝ x 6⅝, $3.50.

SHEET MUSIC. Poems written by Mary Baker Eddy and used by special permission, have been set to music as follows: "The Mother's Evening Prayer," 75 cents; "Christ, My Refuge," 75 cents; "Love," 40 cents; Communion Hymn—"Saw Ye My Saviour?" (Johnson), 50 cents; "Blest Christmas Morn," 27 cents; "O'er Waiting Harpstrings of the Mind," 27 cents; "Shepherd, Show Me How to Go," 27 cents; "Saw Ye My Saviour?" (Root), 27 cents. The first three hymns are arranged for high and low voice in the same copy. The last five hymns are published separately in high and low keys. When ordering state key desired.

PHOTOGRAVURE OF MRS. EDDY, printed in three sizes on India paper and mounted on heavy plate paper ready for framing. 8-inch (mount 12 x 16), $1; 12-inch (mount 15 x 20), $2; 16-inch (mount 21 x 29), $3.50.

PICTURE OF THE FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, IN BOSTON, MASS., AND THE PUBLISHING HOUSE. Artist's proof with remarque on Japanese vellum, size 18 x 24 inches, $5; on India paper without remarque, $3. Smaller reproduction, size 11 x 14 inches, on Japanese vellum, $1. Photogravure postcards of the Church Edifice and Publishing House, 5 cents.

QUARTERLY COVERS in black morocco, $1.30; with purse, $1.50.

ALUMINUM LESSON MARKERS. Set of thirty, with paper shields, 50 cents. Extra paper shields, one hundred, 15 cents.

PRICE LIST OF BIBLE CONCORDANCES AND DICTIONARIES OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE supplied on request. Express charges collect on delivery.

REPRINTS (not printed in English). Two-page leaflets, 14 subjects in French and Swedish; 18 subjects in German. Ten copies to one address, 10 cents.

Remittances should always accompany orders, and be made by check, money order, or exchange on Boston or New York. Currency or coin should not be sent by mail unless registered. Please send no money or business letters to the Editor or Editorial Department.

Send all orders for the works of Mrs. Eddy, with remittance by New York or Boston draft or money order, direct to Allison V. Stewart

For literature listed above address orders and make remittances payable to

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

FALMOUTH AND ST. PAUL STREETS, BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

Digitized by Google

Works on Christian Science

Written by MARY BAKER EDDY, Discoverer and Founder
of Christian Science and Author of its Text-book

Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures. In one volume, 700 pages. The original, standard, and only text-book on Christian Science Mind-healing. Cloth, one to eleven copies inclusive (cloth only), each $3.00; twelve or more, each $2.75. Full leather, stiff, beveled boards, gilt edges, same paper as in cloth binding, single copy $4.00; twelve or more, each $3.75. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $5.00; twelve or more, each $4.75. Levant, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, round corners, gilt edges, silk sewed, heavy Oxford India Bible paper (wide margins, large-sized book), single copy $6.00; twelve or more, each $5.75.

LARGE TYPE EDITION. Designed especially for the use of First Readers. Large type (18-point) on Oxford India Bible paper, bound in leather. Size 10¾ inches long by 8 inches wide. Single copy $7.50, with a discount of 25 cents each when included in an order for twelve or more copies of Science and Health, and in any or all of the different bindings.

GERMAN TRANSLATION. Alternate pages of English and German. Cloth, one to five copies inclusive, each $3.50; six or more, each $3.25. Pocket edition, printed on Oxford India Bible paper. Morocco, one to five copies inclusive, each $5.50; six or more, each $5.25. Orders for the German translation in lots of six or more may include both bindings.

Orders for Science and Health in lots of twelve or more at quantity prices may include both English and German editions, and different styles of binding.

Miscellaneous Writings. A book of 471 pages, containing articles published in The Christian Science Journal from 1883 to 1896, with revisions and additions. Cloth, single copy $2.25; twelve or more, each $2.00. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $4.00; twelve or more, each $3.75. Levant, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, round corners, gilt edges, silk sewed, Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $5.00; twelve or more, each $4.75. Orders for Miscellaneous Writings in lots of twelve or more may include any or all of the different styles of binding. No discount will be allowed on orders for twelve books which include both Science and Health and Miscellaneous Writings.

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany. A book of 366 pages, containing articles published in The Christian Science Journal and Sentinel, subsequent to the compilation of Miscellaneous Writings, together with historical matter pertaining thereto. Cloth, single copy $2.25; six or more, each $2.00. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $4.00; six or more, each $3.75. Orders for six or more may include the two styles of binding.

Concordance to Science and Health. This work contains about eighty thousand references (more than ten thousand words being indexed), also an index to the Marginal Headings, and a list of the Scriptural Quotations in Science and Health. 611 pages, stiff morocco cover, single copy $5.00; six or more, each $4.50.

Concordance to Mrs. Eddy's Published Writings Other Than Science and Health. It contains 1,103 pages, and is published only in Bible paper edition, with stiff morocco cover. Single copy, $6.00; six or more, each, $5.50.

Christ and Christmas. An illustrated poem. Single copy $3.00; six or more, each $2.50.

Unity of Good and Other Writings. One volume, containing Unity of Good, Rudimental Divine Science, No and Yes, Retrospection and Introspection; uniform in style with the pocket edition of Science and Health. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, heavy Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $3.50; six or more, each $3.25.

Christian Healing and Other Writings. One volume, containing Christian Healing, The People's Idea of God, Pulpit and Press, Christian Science versus Pantheism, Messages of 1900, 1901, 1902; uniform in style with the pocket edition of Science and Health. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, heavy Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $3.50; six or more, each $3.25.

Church Manual. Containing the By-laws of The Mother Church. Cloth, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents. Pocket edition, morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $2.00; six or more, each $1.75.

GERMAN TRANSLATION. Alternate pages of English and German. Cloth, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Retrospection and Introspection. A biographical sketch of the author; the way she was led to the discovery of Christian Science; its fundamental idea and growth. Library edition, cloth, 95 pages, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Unity of Good. This book lays the axe at the root of error, elucidating and enforcing practical Christian Science, thus affording invaluable directions for all true Scientists. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, 64 pages, single copy 60 cents; six or more, each 45 cents. Pocket edition, leather covers, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Pulpit and Press. A unique work, of importance in the history and to the readers of Christian Science; containing the message or sermon written for the dedicatory service of The Mother Church, January 6, 1895, and scintillations from the press of that occasion. Library edition, cloth, 90 pages, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Rudimental Divine Science. A brief and concise statement of Divine Science, alias Christian Science, in the form of questions and answers. Pebbled cloth covers, gilt top, 17 pages, single copy 32 cents; six or more, each 25 cents. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 35 cents.

PRINTED in the New York point and American Braille systems of type for the use of the blind, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

No and Yes. A brief statement of very important points in Christian Science. Pebbled cloth covers, 46 pages, single copy 32 cents; six or more, each 25 cents. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 55 cents; six or more, each 45 cents.

Messages to The Mother Church. Including in one volume, 94 pages, Christian Science versus Pantheism, and the Messages of 1900, 1901, and 1902. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy $1.50; six or more, each $1.15.

Christian Science versus Pantheism. The Pastor Emeritus' Message delivered at the Communion Season in The Mother Church in Boston, June, 1898. A clear and strong refutation of the charge that Christian Scientists are pantheists. Pebbled cloth covers, 15 pages, single copy 25 cents; six or more, each 20 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1900. Paper covers, deckled edges, 15 pages, single copy 25 cents; six or more, each 20 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1901. Paper covers, deckled edges, 35 pages, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 38 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1902. Paper covers, deckled edges, 20 pages, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 38 cents.

Christian Healing, and The People's Idea of God. Two sermons in one volume, 36 pages. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 55 cents; six or more, each 45 cents.

Christian Healing. A sermon delivered in Boston. Paper covers, 20 pages, single copy 20 cents; six or more, each 17 cents.

The People's Idea of God. A sermon delivered in Boston. Paper covers, 14 pages, single copy 20 cents; six or more, each 17 cents.

Poems. This volume of 79 pages includes all of Mrs. Eddy's hymns, also her earlier poems which appeared in various publications from forty to sixty years ago. Specially bound. Single copy $1.50; six or more, each $1.25.

Feed My Sheep. Solo. Words by Mary Baker Eddy, music by Lyman F. Brackett. Single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

The foregoing prices cover all charges for express or postage on shipments either domestic or foreign.

Quantity prices are on shipments to one address only, but quantity lots at quantity prices cannot be made up of different books or of different styles of binding. Attention is called, however, to the exception to this rule which is made in the cases of Science and Health, and of Miscellaneous Writings, as given under these titles in this price list.

Address all orders for above works, and make remittance by New York or Boston draft or money order, to

ALLISON V. STEWART, FALMOUTH AND ST. PAUL STS., BOSTON, MASS.

Digitized by Google

WISCONSIN
HISTORICAL LIBRARY
JUN 4 - 1917

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SENTINEL

"What I say unto you I say unto all-WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX No. 40

Boston, June 2, 1917

Contents of This Number

Items of Interest (Brief Mention of Important Events)		782
"Tell no man"	Rev. William P. McKenzie	783
Equilibrium	Percy Phillip Vyle	784
Work and Rest	Palmyre R. Gundelfinger	784
Science Absolute	Jeanie F. Gibb	785
The Golden Thread	Harry E. Cartwright	786
"Every thought"	Caroline A. Baly	786
Hope (Poem)	Warwick James Price	787
Selected Articles		787
Editorial
New Prices for Our Periodicals		790
"Of inestimable value"		790
Application and Interpretation		791
The Lamb of God		791
Among the Churches (Current Notes)
Boston, Mass.		792
Colorado Springs, Col.		792
Charles City, Iowa		792
Hudson, N. Y.		792
The Lectures
Boston, Mass.		792
New York, N. Y.		792
Seattle, Wash.		792
Rockland, Mass.		793
Orange, N. J.		793
Testimonies of Healing		794
To the Children (Poem)	Minnie J. Martin	797
From Our Exchanges		797

A LADY WITH A LAMP SHALL STAND IN THE GREAT HISTORY OF THE LAND

A NOBLE TYPE OF GOOD HEROIC WOMANHOOD
Longfellow

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY
FALMOUTH AND ST PAUL STREETS BOSTON MASS U.S.A.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

(THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE WEEKLY)

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY BY

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

Falmouth and St. Paul Sts., Boston, Mass., U.S.A.

ARCHIBALD McLELLAN
Editor

ANNIE M. KNOTT — WILLIAM D. McCRACKAN
Associate Editors

Subscription Price

Payable in advance

Annual subscription price, postpaid, in the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, $2.00; six months, $1.00; three months, 50 cents. For Canada add 45 cents and for all other countries 95 cents annually for postage. For subscriptions in quantities please refer to page four in THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE JOURNAL.

Subscriptions to the SENTINEL will begin with the current issue unless otherwise specified. The delivery of the periodical will indicate that a remittance has been credited and will be our acknowledgment of the subscription.

Bound Volumes: Current year or two years previous, cloth, $3.25; half calf or half morocco, $4.00. On earlier volumes write for prices.

Terms of Sale

	United States, Mexico, and Cuba	Canada	All Other Countries
Single copy	$ .05	$ .06	$ .07
Four or more copies . .	.03½	.04	.05

Equivalents of United States money

		£	s.	d.	Marks	Francs
$ .60	equals	0	2	6	2.52	3.12
1.15	"	0	4	9	4.85	5.98
1.25	"	0	5	2	5.30	6.50
2.33	"	0	9	7	9.83	12.09
2.38	"	0	9	10	10.05	12.35
2.63	"	0	10	9	11.10	13.65
2.65	"	0	10	10	11.20	13.78
2.70	"	0	11	1	11.40	14.04
2.95	"	0	12	2	12.50	15.34
5.00	"	1	0	7	21.15	26.00
7.50	"	1	10	10	31.73	39.00
8.00	"	1	12	11	33.85	41.60

Make all remittances payable to The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Postage required for remailing this copy: 1 cent domestic and Canada; 2 cents other countries.

Entered at Boston, Mass., post-office as second-class matter.

Items of Interest

The Leather and Paper Laboratory of the United States Department of Agriculture, advising on the care of leather shoes, says: "Shoes should be oiled or greased whenever the leather begins to get hard or dry. They should be brushed thoroughly, and then all the dirt and mud that remains washed off with warm water, the excess water being taken off with a dry cloth. While the shoes are still wet and warm apply the oil or grease with a swab of wool or flannel. It is best to have the oil or grease about as warm as the hand can bear, and it should be rubbed well into the leather, preferably with the palm. If necessary, the oil can be applied to dry leather, but it penetrates better when the latter is wet. After treatment the shoes should be left to dry in a place that is warm—not hot.

"Castor oil is satisfactory for shoes that are to be polished; for plainer footgear neat's-foot, fish oil, or oleine may be substituted. If it is desired to make the shoes and boots more water-proof, beef tallow may be added to any of these substances at the rate of half a pound of tallow to a pint of oil. The edge of the sole and the welt should be greased thoroughly. Too much grease cannot be applied to these parts."

Sugar-cane grows luxuriantly in eastern Bolivia, attaining a great height, and the crop is seldom injured by frost. Its cultivation is conducted in the most primitive manner. Sugar is made by boiling the cane juice in a copper cauldron until it becomes of the proper consistency, when it is transferred to earthenware crocks with a hole in the bottom for the molasses to drain out. The refining is done by the claying process, and the molasses is made into alcohol. Many planters still use the antiquated wooden sugar mills, and most of the iron mills in use are operated by animal power. The native planter has no love for machinery, is in consequence ignorant respecting it, and either can not or will not learn anything about a steam engine. There are only fifteen steam power sugar mills in all eastern Bolivia. The animal power mills are generally worked by means of oxen.

Alterations are under way at the big paper mill plant at Port Mellon, on Howe Sound, British Columbia, to convert the plant into one suitable for the manufacture of the famous Kraft paper, conceded to be the strongest and most economical wrapping paper known. This will be the first mill to manufacture this paper on the Pacific coast, as the manufacture of this brand of paper has heretofore been confined to eastern Canada. Kraft paper is made from pulp obtained by an alkali process from Douglas fir, spruce, hemlock, cypress, cottonwood, and other coniferous woods. The process is particularly adapted to the economical conversion of what would otherwise be waste wood from sawmills into pulp, and eventually into a paper which has about twice the strength of manila paper of equal weight.

As Trinidad, British West Indies, depends for its butter supply chiefly upon foreign sources, the imports mostly coming in tins from Denmark, and as the shipping facilities are limited and freight rates are high, there has been a tendency on the part of local housewives to make their own butter from coconuts, which grow abundantly on the island. Such butter can be made very readily in every home. A considerable saving can thus be effected over imported dairy butter, and the quality is better than much of it. This butter, unless kept too long, is said to be as rich as the best creamery butter, and would be hard to distinguish from dairy butter except that it has a slight coconut flavor, which is quite agreeable to most tastes.

Legislation has been enacted tending toward single tax in North Dakota. In spite of the deadlock in the legislature between the House of Representatives and the Senate, a bill providing for taxation of land values at a higher rate than other property has passed both branches, and become a law. The new law, which goes into effect in 1918, requires land and public utility and bank stocks to be assessed at 30 per cent of their value; tangible personal property and improvements on farms at 5 per cent, and all other property at 20 per cent. Cities are empowered to exempt improvements in the same way if they so desire.

Ten million dollars' worth of new beet sugar factories are under construction in the beet sugar area of the United States, chiefly the section lying west of the Missouri River. The quantity of beet sugar produced in the United States grew from 5,000,000 pounds in 1890 to 1,612,000,000 in 1916. The capital invested increased from $20,142,000 in 1899 to $142,181,000 in 1914, and seems likely to reach the $200,000,000 line in 1917. The total value of the output, which was $7,324,000 in 1899, and $62,605,000 in 1914, seems from the best available statistics to have approximated $100,000,000 in 1916.

The number of whaling companies in operation during 1916 was considerably reduced. A number of fields were abandoned. The capital invested amounts to about six million dollars. The total Norwegian production of whale oil during 1916 amounted to 367,400 barrels, mostly from catches in the South Shetland Islands, and in South Georgia. The fisheries in Australia, Africa, the Faroe Islands, and Alaska yielded only 34,800 barrels. The world's production of whale oil during 1916 amounted to 634,500 barrels.

The output of camphor in Formosa this year is estimated at 11,616,000 pounds, and receipts accruing therefrom at $3,165,475. The demand for it is rapidly increasing with the progress of the war, and all possible measures are being taken to encourage the planting of camphor trees. In recent years many young trees have been planted in various districts of the island, but during the next thirty years it will be impossible to utilize them for industrial purposes. Old trees are gradually diminishing, and some anxiety is manifested as to the welfare of the industry.

Railroad development in Russia and the deepening of inland waterways have proceeded at almost the same speed. During the time it has taken the railroads to treble their mileage, the river and canal systems have increased 195.9 per cent. Navigation likewise has kept pace with the increased facilities, steam navigation having increased one and a half times during a period of six years, and the sail and barge craft having doubled.

Commerce, a Calcutta publication, states that plans are under way for the establishment by Mysore, a native state, of a railway seaport on the west coast of India. Mysore borders on the Madras Presidency, and at present has no facilities for deep-sea trade. The Mysore export trade in timber, coffee, tea, pepper, and other products, would receive such an impetus as could not fail to repay the necessary expenditure.

In normal times Aden, Arabia, exports an average of six million goat and sheep skins a year and an average of five hundred thousand hides. Besides the skins of domestic animals, the average annual export of other skins, mainly gazelle, amounts to approximately one million.

Before the war the prune trade of Bosnia was flourishing, the production being exceeded only by Serbia. During the past two years, however, the trade has suffered. The plum crop of 1916 is estimated at twelve hundred carloads of ten metric tons each, a small crop.

The secret of making optical glass of the sort used in field glasses, range finders, and periscopes, a product for which this country hitherto has been dependent on Germany, has been discovered by the United States Bureau of Standards.

State forests with a total of over 3,600,000 acres have been established in thirteen states. Of these, New York has the largest forests, which comprise 1,826,000 acres; Pennsylvania is second, with 1,008,000 acres; and Wisconsin third, with 400,000 acres.

An appropriation of $1,000,000 for the construction of highways in Massachusetts during the year 1918 is authorized in a bill which the Massachusetts Senate has passed. The measure goes to the House of Representatives for concurrent action.

A wood specimen found in glacial drift and estimated by the Wisconsin state geologist to be approximately half a million years old has been identified by the Forest Products Laboratory of the Forest Service as spruce.

The largest number of sheep grazed on any single national forest is 315,740, finding pasturage on the Humboldt in Nevada, while the largest number of cattle, 75,818 head, is found on the Tonto in Arizona.

Approximately forty thousand acres of land within the former Fort Peck Indian Reservation, Mont., have been opened to homestead entry, the coal deposits in the land to be reserved to the Government.

The total number of pelts secured by the Newfoundland sealing fleet for the past season amounted to 196,228, the estimated value of which is approximately one million dollars.

Balsa wood, found in Central America, is said to be the lightest known wood. It is lighter than cork and has an average specific gravity of only .104.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

"What I say unto you, I say unto all, WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX June 2, 1917 No. 40

"Tell no man"

REV. WILLIAM P. MC KENZIE

THERE are many who look upon the story of Jesus of Nazareth as if the words and acts recorded were like other happenings of history, fortuitous and disconnected. The ordinary recorder contents himself with saying, "Thus it befell," sure that the events were of interest, but indifferent to any meanings lying deeper. The record of those self-named "the Great" is the record of deeds usually incoherent and capricious, serving the moment's desire, passing the hour along, lighting the glory of a day. For those of a later time much of the record has value only as showing what it were well for a wise man to avoid. It is true that in the courts of the great there were men termed "the wise," but in their sententious sayings there was often as much incoherence as in their masters' deeds. In neither the saying nor the doing was there evidence of "the hidden wisdom."

It is being understood in this age what wisdom characterized both the words and the acts of Christ Jesus. When it becomes fully understood how he illustrated the action of ever operative divine Principle, we shall by study of these coherent acts and words of wisdom come to know Principle itself. Consequently we should begin by recognizing that nothing is a chance happen-so in the record; that the story of healing is not for mere hearing "as a tale that is told;" that the words of the Master were not transient like the lute's music, but were rather like the continuing light. Hence in act and word we should seek the reason metaphysical, the meaning mystical, and thereby come to a comprehension of the hidden things and the mystery of the kingdom of heaven.

If we turn to the gospel narratives of the man full of leprosy, we note that one writer observed that the man worshiped, another that he kneeled, another that he fell on his face before Jesus, asserting his faith with his cry for help, "Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean." They all noticed that Jesus "put forth his hand, and touched him," saying, "I will; be thou clean," and that his leprosy departed from him. Also they were emphatic in regard to the counsel given. In Luke it is said that Jesus "charged him to tell no man." In Mark the direction is quoted, "See thou say nothing to any man," and in Matthew it is given more tersely still, "See thou tell no man."

This advice was by no means unfamiliar to the disciples. In the story of the healing of the blind man at Bethsaida we read that Jesus first "took the blind man by the hand, and led him out of the town;" then when he was fully restored and saw everything clearly he sent him away to his house, saying, "Neither go into the town, nor tell it to any in the town." When the little daughter of Jairus had been raised from the dead, and the parents "were astonished with a great astonishment," we find the Master taking compassionate thought both for them and for the child. For the one he commanded that something should be given her to eat; for the welfare of the others he charged them that they should tell no man what had been wrought through the power of God.

Doubtless many Christian Science practitioners have read these words of counsel, thinking them just part of the story and of no special import, but gradually they dawn upon the thought as pregnant with meaning and compassion. How many times a failure to observe their guidance has meant having to climb again to the height that seemed already attained! There is a sewing machine which makes a chain stitch, and if one does not make a fastening at the end of the seam a sudden pull will bring away the binding thread and the sections will fall apart. Sometimes work apparently accomplished in the way of healing will fail in like manner, and will have to be, as the worker declares, "done all over again." These temporary failures often puzzle a worker, but is there not an explanation for this when it is seen that there was a failure to give the glory to God? If Principle be not recognized, how can permanence of good be maintained?

Jesus said, "See thou tell no man." What latent error was he correcting, or what compassionate guidance offering? It is as if he said, Do not glorify yourself before men, but in silence glorify God who has healed you. The tendency of many on being healed is to become wild with joy, and to begin a boastful progress, bidding gay defiance to the cautions and prophecies of their friends, and scorning their own faiths of yesterday. It is as if they were calling for notice, saying to all and sundry, Behold me, the one who has been healed. It seems to be a regular thing for such a spirit of pride to go before a fall, which in turn leads to humility, and since God exalteth the humble, at last that sense of gratitude is gained which should have been first.

When things wonderful and holy came to Mary she "pondered them in her heart." Why should it not be so with one to whom the kingdom of heaven has come nigh? Is not the unfolding of healing like to the treasure hid in the field, about which the finder said nothing until he could sell all that he had, and make the field and the treasure his own sure possession? And how do we make healing a surety? Not by talk and boasting; not by defiance of what others believe; not by strife and outcry and the lifting up of our voices in the streets, but by giving to God the glory, and pondering the wonder that the infinite Love comes nigh to man, dispersing his fear, making his faith find substance, giving to his love reliance, and making him know eternal life.

Compassionate indeed was the Master's word, "See thou tell no man." If heeded it will save both patient and benefactor much trouble. The unwise self-exploitation of the patient arouses the latent skepticism and adverse theory of every unsympathetic listener, and this is like frost to a tender plant. Better to shelter the budding faith and joy until the reason and basis for joy is better understood. Jesus did not believe joy to be transient, for he said, "Your joy no man taketh from you." To him it was the open reward from the Father who saw in secret, and Mrs. Eddy's teaching is in exact elucidation of this: "The Master's injunction is, that we pray in secret and let our lives attest our sincerity. Christians rejoice in secret beauty and bounty, hidden from the world, but known to God" (Science and Health, p. 15).

Copyright, 1917, by The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Digitized by Google

It cannot be argued from this that we are not to give testimony concerning the marvelous works of God. Paul asks concerning those who do not know, "How shall they hear without a preacher?" And the preacher is the predicator, or testifier, who is able to speak out concerning knowledge he has within. The point then is, What is the testifier to declare? If he is at the stage of desiring notice for himself, hoping to show that his case was a worse case than another, still having faith in personal agency, he may well consider the advice given so carefully by Jesus. But if he dwells in humility before the infinite wonder of divine goodness and recognizes healing as the action of divine Principle, so that his testimony reveals to the listener the truth of being and the love of God, then if he speak he is saying to every listener, Change your mind, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand. It is in this way that we hear again the voice clamant in the wilderness of human doubts and fears, "Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight."

Equilibrium

PERCY PHILLIP VYLE

JUDGING the earth and its resources from a material basis and believing matter to be substance, mankind continually frets about the future. It believes that tomorrow is in peril, and that the human race faces extinction through depletion and exhaustion of the earth's resources by reason of utilization and subjection to the uses of mankind.

The senses have established for themselves erroneous laws. Among these laws is one commonly known as negative law. No sooner is a law rediscovered than an opposing or negative law seems to be a necessary accompanying corollary. Thus mortal mind is always halting between two opinions. It believes in two powers and grants the ruling power to the negative. It believes, for instance, that good is mastered by evil and joy by sorrow; that enrichment impoverishes, that life results in death. It believes in flux and reflux of forces rather than in permanence and stability, and that depletion must follow the meeting of human needs; hence that eventually the earth will be an unpeopled, sterile sphere.

In whatever direction human effort is turned it invariably searches for a counterbalance to adjust a seeming disturbance of equilibrium. Law is an attribute of Mind. The law of equilibrium is never disturbed, or it would cease to be a law. In truth, there is no negative law. The ordinary understanding of negative law is merely the supposed absence of law. Equilibrium implies perfect balance. In perfection there can be no imperfection; hence equilibrium is perfect, fixed, immutable, and must forever so remain. As the Preacher wrote, "I know that, whatsoever God doeth, it shall be forever: nothing can be put to it, nor anything taken from it."

How confirmatory of the law of equilibrium, and contradictory of the human supposition and its attendant fears, is the thought gleaned from a retrospect of the earth's physical replenishing. Herein the error of accepting universal opinion, without realizing the premise on which it is based, may be clearly seen. Even the briefest survey shows that as generation succeeds generation, and the needs of an increasing population make greater demands on physical resources, enrichment rather than impoverishment follows right utilization.

Wanton destruction, or spoilage, is a form of the error of greed, an error from which the individual consciousness must eventually free itself by an improved understanding of the infinite All-source, and that in reality mankind can never possess material substance. The human thought scarcely realizes how infinite ideas, as expressed in adaptations and inventions, amply and continuously meet each crisis feared by mortal mind. It callously accepts each unfoldment as part of the world's activities and hugs a fret for another tomorrow. To make the discussion plainer, we submit a physical illustration in our utilization of coal, oil, and electricity. The burning of coal is accompanied by the fear, conscious or unconscious, that some day coal will give out; with oil, that wells will run dry; yet electricity promises to supersede the mineral forms, because it is, as Mrs. Eddy points out on page 293 of Science and Health, "the least material form of illusive consciousness." When mankind is ready for a less material means of producing light and heat, the law will be revealed.

The same unfoldment and progress, as above illustrated, is at work and can be traced in all departments of our activities, being a sufficient answer to so-called laws which allege that the greater the use the more rapid the depletion. "The talent and genius of the centuries have wrongly reckoned," Mrs. Eddy writes. "They have not based upon revelation their arguments and conclusions as to the source and resources of being,—its combinations, phenomena, and outcome,—but have built instead upon the sand of human reason" (Unity of Good, p. 9). This revelation is clearly, logically, and satisfactorily set forth in that remarkable chapter in Science and Health entitled Genesis.

As God's ideas are being increasingly manifest, and equilibrium instead of motion and mutation is established in the great forever, there can be in reality no exhaustion of supply for human needs. It has always been possible to meet every condition and need of mankind instantly, without groping through the slow processes necessitated by the negative laws of belief in matter. It is material sense, the heaviness of mortal mind, which handicaps immediate perception of God's infinite care and instant realization of divine law and the Principle of being. As mankind advances in Christian Science, infinite ideas will become manifested in greater proportion and amplitude. With a diminishing reliance on materiality, the resources of Spirit will unfold to our understanding.

Work and Rest

PALMYRE R. GUNDELFINGER

MODERN sociology's trend is toward salvation from toil. Socialism, labor unions, and governments are devoting themselves to the lessening of the hours of work, and are advocating more leisure, more rest, and more pleasure. So zealously is this cause agitated that unthinking followers might become imbued with the opinion that escape from work would happify existence, and that compensated idleness is the goal toward which mankind must strive. They would set aside the divine law, "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." Community of property is also advocated by many social reformers as a proof of justice and brotherhood, and the divine impartiality is the argument put forth in support of their doctrine.

On page 13 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy says: "Love is impartial and universal in its adaptation and bestowals. It is the open fount which cries, 'Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters.'" "Come ye to the waters." There is a condition required of us if we would have our thirst slaked. We must come! We must exert ourselves if we would be rewarded. The reward reaped from the labor of others is never rightfully ours. It cannot bring satisfaction, it cannot do more than temporary good. Sooner or later we shall learn that real joy is to be found in spiritual work only, and that the fruits of our own efforts alone bring us the rest and contentment which humanity craves.

Digitized by Google

"Come ye to the waters." The waters are free to all. We need but to avail ourselves of them, to make the needed effort at all times, to win our reward. It is sometimes asked why Christian Science practitioners are paid for their services. No doubt the question arises from the assumption that a charge is made for Christian Science. Christian Science is free to all who will avail themselves of it; they need but to study the Bible, with the text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," and practise the precepts therein taught. The practitioner is remunerated simply for his time and work.

If one lived near a spring, the waters of which were for public use, and felt unwilling or unable to draw the water himself, he would expect to pay the man he asked to do it for him, would he not? Such a one would not be paying for the water, but for his helper's time and labor. If he wished to save the pecuniary cost, he would expend the physical cost. There is no getting without giving. There is no reward without labor. This is not an inexorable law of man, but the impartial law of God.

Our Master said, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." To be freed from labor—from human exertion and travail—we are besought to come to Christ, Truth. It is spiritual exercise, then, that is demanded of us. To "come" to Christ, Truth, is what we must learn to do, and this coming must not be the obedience of blind belief, of superstitious fear, of ignorance, nor of mere words, but of works. In rightly coming to Truth there is faith, there is hope, there is seeking, there is striving, there is humility. These mental qualities make the comer, the true worker, receptive to the power of Truth, which frees mortals from their self-imposed burdens. Those that came to Christ Jesus were healed by him. The prodigal did not find peace till he came to his father. When we journey Spiritward we find the harmony which we have sought in vain in the world and in the things that are in the world. It is significant that "travail" and "travel" have the same origin—in the word which means work.

"Come unto me," spake the Master; not, Send unto me, as the majority of his followers would interpret his saying. How much easier it is to send mother or wife or brother to ask for help or to do the work! But this is not entire obedience. We must come ourselves,—we must approach nearer and nearer, till we reach the understanding which brings harmony, the divine idea, Christ, which gives rest. To come to Christ is not a spasmodic effort, but calls for unceasing progress.

The question that should exercise mankind is, What is true work? The answer is, God's work. And what, it may be asked, is God's work? The work of good, of Love, of Truth, which Mrs. Eddy terms "the unlabored motion of the divine energy" (Science and Health, p. 445). Paul, after exhorting the Philippians to work out their salvation from the bondage of sickness, sin, and all error, thereby causing travail on earth and travel toward heaven, describes this operation as God working in us to bring us "to will and to do of his good pleasure." This, then, is true work, in which mankind needs to increase, not diminish. This work can and should be the motive power of our daily life, of every action and transaction which occupies time and thought. If "God rests in action," as we are told in Science and Health (p. 519), the image and likeness of God must do likewise. Were divine Mind to cease to be active it would cease to be. To love is to be at rest; to know is to be at peace.

Thus working, watching, and praying, and with a glad song in our hearts, we shall rejoicingly respond to the gracious invitation: "And the Spirit and the bride say, Come. And let him that heareth say, Come. And let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely."

Science Absolute

JEANIE F. GIBB

"SCIENCE is absolute and final," Mrs. Eddy says on page 99 of "Miscellaneous Writings." To beginners in the study of Christian Science the absolute truth about God and man as taught in Science and Health is apt to seem somewhat cold, and to some people almost repellent. To them it speaks of a God who has no knowledge of human affairs, and the question put by many is, "How can God help us if He knows nothing about us and our troubles?" The belief in a God who "knoweth our frame," and who "pitieth his children," is much more comforting to them than is the understanding of God as one who as the prophet Habakkuk declared is "of purer eyes than to behold evil;" but while they cling to their old belief their progress in the understanding of divine Truth is slow.

The first improved belief which comes through continued study of the text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, is that God is really a God of love, who sends not sometimes good and sometimes its opposite, pain, sorrow, and all sorts of evil,—so-called "blessings in disguise,"—but only good to His children. Yet this improved belief is not absolute Science, for along with it goes the belief in a material universe and a material man, and a God who though Spirit yet has in some mysterious way a knowledge of matter and regulates the affairs of a material universe. Complete and permanent healing cannot be done on any such basis of thought.

But as one goes on studying the text-book and putting into practice the understanding of Truth thus acquired, it gradually becomes clear to him that God, who is Spirit, can have no knowledge of matter, for God can have no material senses by which to cognize it. Step by step, slowly or quickly, according to the tenacity with which he holds on to the material senses, he rises to some knowledge of absolute being,—"Spirit possessing all power, filling all space, constituting all Science" (Science and Health, p. 110); and then he feels like the traveler who after a long and toilsome ascent has reached the mountain top.

There is, however, still much to be done. The student has to learn to hold fast to absolute truth in all that he thinks, says, and does. The less occasion he has to speak from the standpoint of material sense, the better for his growth and his usefulness in the cause of Christian Science. The importance, or rather the necessity of thinking spiritually, becomes every day more apparent; and the necessity, too, of using terms of absolute truth in speaking to one who has asked for help. It may be comforting for one who is yielding to discouragement to be told to look back and be cheered by seeing the progress he has made, but that is not talking from the viewpoint of Principle, of Truth.

The apostle John says, "Now are we the sons of God,"—not some day when we shall have learned more of Truth, but "now." Mrs. Eddy puts the same truth in other words on page 183 in "Miscellaneous Writings" where she says: "Man is free born; he is neither the slave of sense, nor a silly ambler to the so-called pleasures and pains of self-conscious matter. Man is God's image and likeness." To temporize, and talk of being personally a little nearer the understanding of Truth today than one was a year ago, is to lose sight of man's spiritual selfhood as the reflection of God.

Digitized by Google

There may be much seeming contradiction of this by material sense, but Science teaches that the material senses are simply avenues of error. God does not speak through them; then why should we, His children, put any reliance on them? The truth of being found in our Master's teachings, and revealed anew in Christian Science, is as "a refuge from the storm, a shadow from the heat." It is the only weapon with which we can withstand the assaults of error, because it lifts us into that realm of consciousness where evil is unknown and the allness of God is seen to be the rock of ages.

The Golden Thread

HARRY E. CARTWRIGHT

In the weaving of a fabric the practice of repeating a design is one of great antiquity. At one place the design may appear in full and exact detail, at another it is modified, and again it may be but faintly sketched in the material. It may be varied further by changing its size or by weaving it in different colors, and in some cases the various modifications and repetitions of a design are so arranged as to form a harmoniously elaborated group presenting on a larger scale the design which is so often minutely wrought in the piece.

In a certain fabric exemplifying a high order of art there is woven a golden thread. This thread emerges to view, runs a brief distance, and disappears. To the casual observer its appearance and disappearance are abrupt, but if one looks on the other side of the fabric he can see that this brilliant and precious thread is continuous throughout the piece. Where it does not appear on the surface it runs along covered by inferior stuff, to reappear where the design is once more taken up.

In reading the Bible one learns that a spiritual theme, a "pattern of good works," to quote from Paul's epistle to Titus, is carried throughout, repeated again and again in every book from cover to cover. In one passage this theme is dimly portrayed, in another it is sharply set forth. Certain experiences recorded in the Scriptures seem nearly to obliterate it, while others bring it out in all its clearness and grace; but in studying the Bible as a whole the reader sees that the entire work is harmonious. He sees that it forms on a grand scale what is so often brought out by the many-colored word pictures woven into its length and breadth. He learns from its varying stories of life and action how to weave for himself after the pattern shown in the mount.

The crowning glory of the Bible is its one bright golden thread of absolute truth,—the truth about God and man. The material words used in the warp and woof of this great tapestry of life often seem to obscure more of the precious thread of Principle than is disclosed to us. Like the Queen of Sheba we finally decide that "the half was not told." We also begin to appreciate the fact that this thread of Truth or Love is more substantial and noble than the brilliant threads which mark the mortal design but which so frequently hide the true idea. Truth and Love are, however, continuous throughout all being, as they are through all the sacred writings.

In "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," the most effective interpretation of the Bible ever given to mankind, Mrs. Eddy has told us how to trace this golden thread, whether it lie plainly before us or whether it be obscured by material belief. She has shown us how to see both sides of that ancient spiritual fabric, the Holy Scriptures. On page 442 she writes, "The reverse of error is true." By applying this rule we are able to distinguish and follow the thread of indestructible life which may be all but hidden in those Bible stories which depict mortal men, places, and things.

By habitually reversing the material beliefs recorded in the Bible we learn through spiritual understanding to recognize their opposite. Wherever there appear to be minds many we are enabled to see the one Mind, God. If a Scriptural passage tells of the defeat of a right motive, we are able by further searching to find the ultimate establishment of impartial justice. We rejoice to learn by this method that the truth was never destroyed, the right was never crushed, though good may seemingly have disappeared and God's law may apparently have been overridden times without number.

Christian Science healing is as simple as following a single golden thread through a fabric. There is no mystery about it. The only difficulty presented in the understanding and practice of this absolute Science is the shifting pretense of false belief seeking to obscure the truth. Mrs. Eddy writes on page 120 of Science and Health, "Science reverses the false testimony of the physical senses, and by this reversal mortals arrive at the fundamental facts of being." Whenever Christian Scientists find it difficult to see the truth, they learn in the manner indicated by Mrs. Eddy to reverse sense-testimony, and are thus unerringly led to the truth which is ever available and all potent.

"Every thought"

CAROLINE A. BALY

As a language is not mastered until the student learns to think in that language, so it becomes evident to the student of Christian Science that in order to be able to demonstrate Truth he must have good in all his thoughts; he must think spiritually in working faithfully up to this Christ-standard. He thus has the remedy for every ill always at hand, and when the ideal in this line becomes the rule rather than the exception, instantaneous healing will be usual. St. Paul's admonition about "bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ" should often be pondered by Christian Scientists.

Every faithful follower of Mrs. Eddy longs to demonstrate the great truth that Mind is the only medicine which heals,—not only sickness but sin and death; consequently the admonition of our Leader on page 261 of Science and Health to "hold thought steadfastly to the enduring, the good, and the true," becomes an imperative necessity. Through the buoyant, persistent spiritualization of thought he recognizes that to reach even a distant view of the promised "greater works" he needs must have God in all his thoughts, for every act, right or wrong, is but the unfoldment of a thought. How impossible this is from a mortal standpoint at once becomes apparent, if not appalling, and it is right here that the wily serpent lulls to sleep the unwary.

Christian Science has, however, exposed the serpentine ways of mortal mind, and so the armored student is instant with the command, "Get thee hence." Let the serpent do his worst, the student who understands that good is omnipotent knows also that a lie vanishes before the light of Truth, and Truth is omnipresent. The paramount importance of consecrated thinking cannot be too insistently urged upon one's self when we recall that the statement, "Behold, it was very good," was spoken of a world not made with hands. Creation is therefore the ever operative manifestation of Mind, and man is the reflection of that one Mind. In unison with this comes our Leader's inspiring words on page 199 of Science and Health: "The devotion of thought to an honest achievement makes the achievement possible." Surely no devotion could be more honestly expended than in our desire to emulate the psalmist and have God in all our thoughts. To acknowledge God in all our ways becomes in the light of Christian Science a present possibility rather than a far away, indefinite obligation, and as we put that devotion into practice it means the averment that all volition, every activity, is the reflection of omnipotence, the full realization, after the manner of Christ Jesus, that "I can of mine own self do nothing."

Digitized by Google

The absolute elimination of all belief in matter as real is the basis of spiritual growth. Man hears, sees, moves, thinks, because God, in whom he has his being, is the fountain-head of all actuality and activity. Understanding this, Jesus could confidently give thanks before his demonstration was outwardly manifest. It was the Son's perfect faith in his Father's willingness, no less than His power, which made the lame walk, the deaf hear, the blind receive their sight. Jesus' intuitive reliance upon the healing potency of the Word constituted him the Wayshower, and enabled him to finish the work at hand before proceeding to raise Lazarus and his sisters from their belief in the reality and power of death. His inherent perception of the supremacy of Mind gave to humanity the proofs of man's God-given dominion over all the earth, the true birthright, bartered for a "mess of pottage," the pleasures of the senses.

Each one of us can recall how often we have set out upon the daily round with the high resolve to have good in all our thoughts, and how, as the day wanes, we sigh ashamed over our miserable failure to ascend even a short way up the mount of right desire. Here again is error's opportunity, and into the crevice of self-pity the tempter generally insinuates his favorite tool, namely, discouragement. These are the times to stand and remember that Love is nearest when our need is greatest, and to know, as our Master knew, that one does not rise to the full glory of man's inheritance in a circumscribed measure of days. The imperative duty of the hour is to push on loyally, even if wearily, when one day seems a thousand. The recoil will come in God's own time, when verily that thousand shall seem as one day because of the joy we experience over wrong thought vanquished.

To paraphrase: Every thought which our heavenly Father hath not planted shall be rooted up. Tomorrow there may be two, until through devoted effort the entire field is strewn with the dried and sun bleached tentacles of wrong thoughts rooted out, and these are the "fruits meet for repentance." The present obligation is always to go forward, and the plunge once taken, even if it be into the Red Sea, we soon learn right there, amid the turbulent waves of doubt and fear on either side, that the "everlasting arms" are always beneath and around us.

✧

[Written for the Sentinel]

Hope

WARWICK JAMES PRICE

HOPE is not building castles in the air,
  Nor wishing that a something may come true,
Nor turning from the blackness of despair
  With empty heart to gaze at heaven's blue.

Much higher is the knowledge that is ours
  Who read aright the lesson of the past,—
That all the vaunted claims of evil's powers
  To Truth omnipotent must yield at last.

Selected Articles

[Editorial in Corpus Christi (Texas) Times]

The lecture on Christian Science given at the school auditorium in Corpus Christi recently, was heard by a great many people whose idea and conception of what Christian Science really is were no less vague than their knowledge and conception of thousands of other things about which they knew absolutely nothing. It may seem paradoxical, but it is true nevertheless, that there is a class of folks who do most, if not all their arguing, or perhaps it would be more correct to say "talking," on subjects they know the least about. Hence it comes that the most violent opposition to Christian Science comes from people whose ignorance on the subject is equaled only by their argumentative (?) glibness against it.

We hold no brief for Christian Science—the growth of the church throughout the civilized world and the high class people it draws within its comforting and solacing walls speak in words stronger than any we could use in its defense. But the fact that the fundamental principle on which Christian Science rests is the power of God to do what the Bible declares He can do,—which fact is so little understood by those who oppose Christian Science,—prompts us to speak of the subject at this time. It may be stating it too strongly, but it is nevertheless true, that those who oppose Mrs. Eddy's theories must also deny the power of God to do those things which it is claimed He can do.

Are the opponents of Christian Science willing to concede that God cannot do what the Bible says He can do? If so, they are justified in their opposition to Christian Science.

✧

[A. E. Brandt in The Tribune, Johnstown, Pa.]

In classifying Christian Science among "Isms, Wise and Otherwise," in a paper read before a ministerial association, as reported in The Tribune, a clergyman has fallen into some errors regarding Christian Science which need correction.

In the first place, Christian Science is not an ism, nor is it a "faith healing cult" in the sense of the term used, but a science. It would be hard to conceive how demonstrable knowledge of any kind could be termed a faith, or explained on a basis of faith merely. The moment that Christian Science is considered from the standpoint of a faith of some kind or in some thing, apart from an understanding which places it in the category of an exact science, it is misapprehended.

Christian Science is the perception and understanding of spiritual truth,—an understanding which is far above mere faith or belief in the ordinary sense. Spiritual truth is invariably exact, and needs to be apprehended. Jesus said, "Ye shall know the truth," and according to Jeremiah, "They shall all know me, . . . saith the Lord." Christian Science is no more and no less than such knowing. It may be preceded by faith, but it must be understood in order to be properly applied.

This shows that the healing wrought through Christian Science cannot be explained on the basis suggested by the reverend critic, who attributes such healing to the mere rest and meditation of an intemperate or overtaxed neurasthenic person, or dyspeptic, while reading a book, the reader crediting it to the operation of some occult cause expounded therein. Christian Science heals on no such basis.

While a blind faith may temporarily relieve an illness, it does not destroy the cause of the illness, which has its origin in belief,—belief in the reality and power of evil. Christian Science does not heal by means of physical rest and material or mental change, but by a more intelligent activity, a spiritual activity, which mankind needs for its salvation. A demonstrable understanding of such activity is gained by the study of Christian Science, and is found to be efficacious not only in healing so-called nervous and functional diseases, but organic as well. Mrs. Eddy and many of her followers, contrary to the imputation of the critic, have healed the latter as readily as the former.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science has freed many thousands from their religious delusions, and given them an understanding by which such delusions are revealed so nakedly as to give painful evidence of shortcomings to the most saintly and devout. This understanding gives them a desire to improve their opportunities to conform to a more spiritual life, having plenty to do in this direction without attempting to explain some other religion not understood by them.

The reverend gentleman's conjectural conclusions as to the status of Christian Science if it had not claimed to be divine or Christian are contrary to all religious history, and at variance with the experience of Mrs. Eddy and her followers. The principal opposition to Christian Science arose from its claim to be a religion and to heal the sick on a Christian basis. The gentleman is even now opposing it on that ground and corroborating the statement. How could it be otherwise, since clergymen have for centuries taught the people that Christian healing is a lost art?

In the midst of unprecedented popularity, and because of such popularity and its dangerous tendencies in a direction contrary to spirituality, Mrs. Eddy unselfishly closed her metaphysical college at which healing was taught, in order to establish her discovery on its true basis as the Christianity which Christ Jesus taught and practised, and to restore to a needy world primitive Christian healing. In the face of all opposition, that of churches included, she has succeeded.

✧

[Henry Van Arsdale in Monrovia (Cal.) Messenger]

In an interesting communication to your paper a correspondent brings out some points as to the method by which cures of physical ailments are brought about by various systems claiming to heal disease, but he misses the great truth that it is the theology of Christian Science which is accomplishing the works done in its name. From the time of those imitators of "Moses the man of God," the necromancers of Egypt before the court of Pharaoh, down through the attempts of the seven sons of Sceva to pattern the works of Paul, to the present day, those who would substitute man for God have insisted that power has its source outside of the infinite. Christian Science teaches that power belongs to God alone, and that whatever of this power the human mind manifests must be predicated upon some understanding of the divine Mind; that outside of this understanding everything is entirely within the realm of belief, and any seeming results produced are merely the results of the belief.

When Jesus was charged by the Pharisees with casting out devils by "Beelzebub the prince of the devils,"—that is, that his healing works were wrought by means other than recourse to God,—Jesus refuted for all time the arguments of those who believed that it is possible to resort to any other source when he said: "Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation; . . . and if Satan cast out Satan, he is divided against himself; how shall then his kingdom stand? And if I by Beelzebub cast out devils, by whom do your children cast them out? therefore they shall be your judges. But if I cast out devils by the Spirit of God, then the kingdom of God is come unto you." This is the important part of the healing and regenerative work of Christian Science, that it brings the kingdom of God to the individual.

In his extremity Paul cried: "O wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me from the body of this death? I thank God through Jesus Christ our Lord." To Paul, Jesus Christ was the Wayshower to that understanding which must eventually, with every one of us, take the place of belief. Mrs. Eddy writes: "If God were understood instead of being merely believed, this understanding would establish health" (Science and Health, p. 203). The work of Christian Science is to inculcate an understanding of God, the understanding which Jesus possessed and which enabled him to speak "as one having authority." This separated him from the thaumaturgists, ancient and modern.

✧

[George R. Lowe in St. Thomas (Ontario) Journal]

"A violent attack" on Christian Science is reported in the Journal. Violence in dealing with the religious beliefs of one's respectable neighbors, who have the right to enjoy our common civil and religious liberty, is quite out of place in a pulpit. It is not Christian but anti-Christian to attack violently the sincere Christian views of others, and it is a sign of weakness. No one could characterize a Christian Science lecture as "a violent attack on the faith" of any denomination of professed Christians. These lectures are carefully prepared, and both in letter and in spirit are designed to state Christian Science correctly.

Christ Jesus gave this test of a Christian: "By their fruits ye shall know them;" and violence is not mentioned as one of the fruits of the Spirit,—"love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance: against such there is no law." The people who understand Christian Science literature consider it the best value in the world. Why should an outsider quarrel with the price? Christian Science lectures are free to the public,—no collection,—and every Christian Science church maintains a free reading-room and distributes Christian Science literature gladly to inquirers. Mrs. Eddy's books may be found in public libraries, and are also loaned at Christian Science reading-rooms.

✧

[Lloyd B. Coate in Jewish Review, Cleveland, Ohio]

Christian Science reiterates Jesus' statement wherein he claims to be the Son of God but not God. Jesus believed in and worshiped the same God as did Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Moses, and the prophets. He taught all mankind to pray to "our Father which art in heaven," and to "love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind."

There is only one Christian Science, and no one can be a genuine Christian Scientist and not be a Christian. Christian Science is based upon revelation, reason, and demonstration. (See Science and Health, p. 109.) Mrs. Eddy defines Christian Science as "the law of God, the law of good, interpreting and demonstrating the divine Principle and rule of universal harmony" (Rudimental Divine Science, p. 1). It is apparent from this definition that Christian Science is not based upon matter or material laws, but upon God's unerring and unchangeable law. Those who sufficiently understand its teachings to heal the sick and reform the sinner in accord with its divine Principle, testify that it is both Christian and scientific. If one has failed to demonstrate this Science, this does not prove it to be unscientific. Mathematics continues to be a science though the novice may at times fail to apply its rules correctly.

Our critic asks, "What can Christian Science offer that Judaism does not offer in infinitely better and sublimer degree?" Christian Science has not come to the world to destroy the sublime teachings of Judaism. Jesus said he did not come to destroy the law or the prophets, but to fulfil. He proved the beauty and grandeur of what the prophets faintly discerned. We agree with our friend that the Old Testament teaches the omnipotence, omniscience, and omnipresence of God. An understanding of Christian Science enables its students to utilize the power of God in the destruction of both sin and sickness.

Digitized by Google

Our critic says that Judaism recognizes and accepts life just as it is, with all its sin, sickness, suffering, and sorrow. Isaiah the prophet evidently had a glimpse of man beyond what may be apprehended with the five material senses, for he wrote, "Cease ye from man, whose breath is in his nostrils: for wherein is he to be accounted of?" If Isaiah had not been able to look beyond the evidence of the five material senses, with all its sin, sickness, and sorrow, he could not have discerned the Christ, the true idea of God, which would open the eyes of the blind, unstop deaf ears, make "the lame man leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb sing." Through an understanding of the ever operative divine Principle Christian Scientists are proving the practicability of the sublime teachings of Judaism in human affairs. It is this spiritual understanding that enables Christian Scientists to heal the sick, reform the sinner, and comfort the sorrowing.

✧

[W. D. Kilpatrick in Eccentric, Birmingham, Mich.]

Christian Science is preeminently a religion of the Bible, and is in strict accord with Bible teachings, interpreted spiritually, from Genesis to Revelation. There is but one test to apply to any teaching purporting to be based on a scientific foundation, and that is "proof." Christian Science points to its works as evidence of its divine authority, and all the invective and misrepresentation at the command of its would-be critics will never avail to convince an inquiring world that a religious teaching utterly devoid of proof and dependent wholly upon fruitless words is to be desired in its place. On one occasion Jesus, addressing himself to a throng of unbelievers, said, "Believe me that I am in the Father, and the Father in me: or else believe me for the very works' sake." The truths taught in the Bible are susceptible of proof. Jesus proved his teachings by his works, and Christian Science is proving its teachings to be true by proving the Bible true.

Christian Science teaches the necessity of a full and complete salvation, not only from sin but from the myriad conditions which Jesus proved were the results of sin. Jesus healed the sick, and in several instances followed this work with an admonition to the person healed to "sin no more," showing clearly that sickness is the result of sin, or of the "carnal mind," as St. Paul puts it. Jesus also admonished all who believe in him to follow his example by healing the sick. Christian Science finds no excuse in the Bible for separating his command to heal the sick, by spiritual means alone, from his command to heal the sinner, and in its regenerating work of healing both the sick and the sinning Christian Science is furnishing ample proof to the unbiased thought that it is indeed giving to the world the full gospel of Christ.

✧

[Avery Coonley in Chicago Heights (Ill.) Star]

A physician criticized Christian Science for "attempting to practise medicine," and said that "on that ground it was subject to criticism." Criticism by whom? Those who are healed never condemn their healing just because the doctor did not do it. If it is the doctors that are criticizing healing, it can only be because they do not do it, which would hardly be "ethical."

On the subject of medical practice I would like to quote from an editorial which appeared in the Chicago Examiner a little over a year ago under the caption "When Did Prayer Become Medicine?" "It would be interesting to learn when prayer became a drug or a lotion or a plaster. What pharmacies keep it in stock? Is it a decoction, an infusion, or a distillation? Does the druggist sell this 'medicine' in a bottle or neatly done up as a tablet or a pill? If prayer is not a 'medicine,' how can a man practise medicine by praying?"

The doctor has a very clever way of implying that those who "go to religion" to get cured had nothing the matter with them, but the facts will not bear him out. The thousands whom the doctors have pronounced incurable, and whom Christian Science has cured, refuse to have their healings "explained away" by any such device. He also said, "I do not doubt but that God could cure any disease, but I am not talking about what God can do; I am talking about what He does do," implying that God's power to heal is not exercised today. Jesus in his injunctions to heal the sick placed no time limit upon the power to fulfil them. He said such healing "signs" should follow "them that believe," and he placed no limit upon that promise. Not only was divine healing done by his disciples and his immediate followers, but God healed the sick through "them that believe," as embodied in the early Christian church for about three hundred years after the crucifixion,—indeed until the church was materialized under Constantine. Christian Science is the reinstatement of primitive Christianity (see Church Manual, p. 17) and manifests the same healing works.

✧

[Charles W. J. Tennant in Banner of Israel, London, England]

A correspondent declares: "Mrs. Eddy holds that she had a 'revelation,' and this revelation is enshrined in her book Science and Health. She has superseded the Bible with a false revelation of her own." This is not the case. "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy may be said to be an interpretation of the Bible, but it does not in any way supersede it. The light that is thrown on the Bible through the study of the Christian Science text-book is so remarkable that instead of being a sealed book it has become an open book to millions, who have been thereby enabled to understand it sufficiently to prove its teachings by demonstration. One of the tenets of Christian Science, taken from page 497 of Science and Health, is as follows: "As adherents of Truth, we take the inspired Word of the Bible as our sufficient guide to eternal Life."

✧

[Robert S. Ross in The Express, Buffalo, N. Y.]

In reply to a letter in The Express permit me to state that mortals indulge in evil because they are victims of the general belief that evil has the intelligence and attractiveness of good; but Christian Science is teaching that the one and only cause is God, or good, and that good is therefore infinite. Hence the influence of evil in the lives of mortals and their desire to indulge in it diminishes in the proportion that the spiritual fact is understood.

On page 102 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy writes: "Mankind must learn that evil is not power. Its so-called despotism is but a phase of nothingness. Christian Science despoils the kingdom of evil, and preeminently promotes affection and virtue in families and therefore in the community." Christian Science would not wait for evil to manifest itself in sinful acts as a means of warning mortals against sin, but would forestall sin by teaching mortals to meet and master the evil thoughts or suggestions that are the forerunners of sinful acts.

Digitized by Google

Editorial

New Prices for Our Periodicals

DURING the past two years publishers of newspapers and periodicals have been called upon to meet a situation unprecedented in the history of the publishing business, due to the increased price of paper and other expenses of production. According to a recently published statement by the president of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, "most of the newspapers of the country have been compelled to increase the subscription price of their papers as well as their advertising rates, in an attempt to obtain earnings sufficient to carry on their business."

The cost of the paper used for The Christian Science Journal, the Sentinel, Herold, Quarterly, and pamphlets has practically doubled, and the present market price of the paper upon which The Christian Science Monitor is printed shows an increase of about 75 per cent over its cost two years ago. The Christian Science Publishing Society has adopted such legitimate economies as are compatible with the excellence of its periodicals, but cannot of course lower the standard of quality or reduce the size of its publications, as some publishers have felt the necessity of doing to help in meeting the situation.

Therefore, in common with many newspaper and magazine publishers, The Christian Science Publishing Society finds it necessary to increase the price of the Christian Science periodicals, and the following schedule of rates will go into effect on July 1, 1917:—

The Christian Science Journal, now $2.00 per year, increased to $3.00 per year. Single copy 30 cents.

Christian Science Sentinel, now $2.00 per year, increased to $3.00 per year. Single copy 7 cents.

Der Herold der Christian Science, now $1.00 per year, increased to $2.00 per year. Single copy 20 cents.

The Christian Science Quarterly, now 50 cents per year, increased to $1.00 per year. Single copy 25 cents.

The Christian Science Monitor, now $5.00 per year, increased to $9.00 per year. Single copy 3 cents.

Subscriptions for nine months, six months, and three months will be accepted at the annual rates.

The above rates include postage and will be the universal price by mail throughout the world for each periodical.

As Christian Scientists catch a glimpse of Mrs. Eddy's vision of the Church of Christ, Scientist, they commence to understand more clearly the means which her demonstration has provided for the extension and broader usefulness of the present church activities. They then see what lay behind her earnest hope that Christian Scientists would support our literature. The effectiveness of a subscription to the Journal, Sentinel, Herold, Quarterly, or Monitor increases in direct proportion to the understanding of the subscriber as to what is his privilege and therefore his responsibility to the Christian Science literature. The financial returns from the Christian Science publications constitute not only an expression of value received for the contents of the publications, but they also furnish a substantial part of the financial means for supporting and extending all the activities of The Mother Church, the effects of which reach to every part of the earth.

The Christian Scientist whose "eye is single" to the limitless opportunity which today awaits his awakened and selfless activity, will extend an even more hearty and effectual support to our periodicals than heretofore. In this vital hour of the world's history will he especially give his earnest help to enable The Christian Science Monitor, the great "apostle of the Gentiles" in this age, more efficaciously to fulfil its mission as the world's medium of circulation and exchange for truer ideas and ideals of human experience approaching the true substance and vitality of the universe.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY.

"Of inestimable value"

IN her address before the Alumni of the Massachusetts Metaphysical College in 1895, our revered Leader said: "The systematized centers of Christian Science are life-giving fountains of truth. Our churches, The Christian Science Journal, and the Christian Science Quarterly, are prolific sources of spiritual power whose intellectual, moral, and spiritual animus is felt throughout the land. Our Publishing Society, and our Sunday Lessons, are of inestimable value to all seekers after Truth" (Miscellaneous Writings, p. 113). In the twenty-two years that have intervened our Leader has added the Sentinel, Herold, and Monitor to the publications mentioned above, so that it may safely be assumed that they too are "of inestimable value" to every Christian Scientist. Remembering this, the announcement by The Christian Science Publishing Society of certain necessary changes in the prices at which the Sentinel and the other official periodicals of the Christian Science denomination are to be issued after July 1, will be cheerfully accepted by our readers because of the urgency of the reasons which from a material standpoint make these changes necessary.

Compared with the prices at which other religious publications have been sold, the prices of the Journal, Sentinel, Herold, and Quarterly have always been the minimum for such literature. Furthermore, practically every other religious periodical is in part supported by an income derived from the publication of a considerable quantity of general advertising matter. This recourse, however, has not seemed desirable in the case of the four publications named, and it has been a source of much satisfaction to Christian Scientists that these publications could be maintained without the introduction of matter which might divert the thought of the reader to subjects and interests foreign to the presentation of the truth of Christian Science in its purity. Christian Scientists have in fact been thankful to receive periodicals devoted to distinct objects, and they will, we are sure, be willing to bear the additional expense of enabling them to continue along the same lines as heretofore.

As to the Monitor, it goes without saying that a newspaper without advertising matter would be an anomaly, and it was never the intention or the purpose of Mrs. Eddy to make the Monitor abnormal in the slightest degree. It has been from the very start, and is now, a newspaper of the highest class and in the strictest sense, because its news has always been clean, truthful, and of value. Its advertising has been of the same high character as its news, and in fact the care with which it has been selected has made it of news value to every reader, a value which is enhanced by the fact that the advertising columns have been limited to a proper proportion of the total area of each edition.

That even during past years these publications were intrinsically worth the advanced prices which will now be charged for them will, we think, be conceded by our readers. It will be the effort of the editors to continue to maintain the high standard set for the periodicals by our Leader, consequently they are sure that the advance in price which the publishers have called for will be cheerfully met.

ARCHIBALD MCLELLAN.

Digitized by Google

Application and Interpretation

STUDENTS of Christian Science from their earliest experience in its healing work begin to discover new and more spiritual meanings in the Scriptures, and in their gladness at finding these they are apt to venture beyond their depth and to give out statements of truth which they have not proved. Even in the work in the Sunday school the questions of the pupils ofttimes lead the teacher to give interpretations for which the scholars are not ready, and yet the desire on the part of teacher and scholar alike is to gain clearer and broader views of the Scriptures. This in itself is entirely commendable, whether it refers to the work of older or younger students of Christian Science; but there is one very important consideration which should never be lost sight of, namely, the need for a practical application of all the truth which we perceive. It may in fact be said that application of the inspired Word precedes its verbal interpretation.

On page 272 of Science and Health our dear Leader says, "The divine Principle of the universe must interpret the universe." On this basis we may also say that the divine Principle of the Decalogue must interpret each part of it for us; and it rests with us, whether we are old or young, to apply the truth as we recognize it. To illustrate, the eighth commandment says, "Thou shalt not steal." This commandment is really protective rather than prohibitive, and at once gives assurance to the Christian Scientist that mortal mind cannot rob him of health, happiness, or life, cannot take from him anything that God bestows upon His child. A very important consideration at this point is to know that our own obedience to this divine command will fit us for applying it ever more broadly at all times and under all circumstances, and thus realizing the limitlessness of divine law.

All the testimonies given on Wednesday evenings at Christian Science meetings the world over, as well as those published in our periodicals, simply show what the application of divine law can do and is doing for humanity. In many instances those who express their gratitude for Truth's healing power tell in simple and sometimes quaint phrasing of how certain passages of Scripture dawned upon thought and dispelled the sense of darkness which temporarily oppressed them. Mrs. Eddy explains this on page 218 of Science and Health, where she quotes the Scripture, "They that wait upon the Lord . . . shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint." Here she says, "The meaning of that passage is not perverted by applying it literally to moments of fatigue, for the moral and physical are as one in their results." In the same manner we may apply all statements of truth found in the Bible to every phase of error which confronts us; and yet when we attempt to give these out to others we are apt to venture too far in the way of interpretation.

It goes without saying that the Scriptures must be interpreted spiritually, for they were undoubtedly written from a spiritual viewpoint, although in some cases the Old Testament writers presented simply the material belief as contrasted with spiritual reality. Until we gain for ourselves the spiritual sense through growth in grace and daily demonstration of the truth, we are apt to interpret these statements materially, and thus to seek warrant for mortal and material views of all things.

Personal and material interpretation has led to endless and valueless controversies in the past, and should be avoided as much as possible at the present time. The interpretation of the truth which comes to us individually as we are applying it in our own lives, blesses us first of all, and then through its continued loving and faithful application it blesses all with whom we come in contact. We find this illustrated throughout the whole of the Master's teachings and in his marvelous demonstrations; and it is our privilege as his followers to apply the truth as we perceive it and love it, and to give in our uplifted lives the best interpretation of divine law and of the divine ever-presence which are so clearly revealed in Christian Science.

ANNIE M. KNOTT.

✧

The Lamb of God

LOVE is a universal language, and the word lamb has an abiding place therein through inspiration and demonstration. The mother in her tenderest mood whispers it to her child, and divine Love, the white light of Truth, illuming everything, designates the real man, the Christ, as the Lamb of God. The symbol of the lamb stands for purity and light; its gambols set forth freedom, agility, and alertness. The writer of the Song of Solomon exclaims, "The voice of my beloved! behold, he cometh leaping upon the mountains, skipping upon the hills." The lamb is innocent and intact; knowing no guile, no aggression, but perennial freshness, the permanence of bliss. Above all, the lamb knows no hate, and therefore is always victorious.

In Christian history Jesus represents the sacrificial lamb, but the corporeal Jesus crucified brought to view the deathless Christ. Hence the reference in the Apocalypse to "the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world," and the statement of the Son of man, "I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore." This is the root of day that knows no darkness, belonging to the eternal sunrise kingdom of righteousness. On page 334 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy writes concerning the above reference from the Apocalypse, "This is a mystical statement of the eternity of the Christ, and is also a reference to the human sense of Jesus crucified."

The idea of God can only be perceived by spiritual understanding and received and conceived by woman, strong in vision's zeal. Only that quality which powerfully discerns man in the likeness of God can bring forth, nourish, and cherish the divine idea. Individuals of either sex can mother the lamb if they have learned the scientific secret of man's origin; all can exclaim in the words of the prophet Isaiah, "Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given." Then cometh the marriage of the lamb, the union of Principle and idea, the conscious communion of man with God, wherein God is recognized as Father-Mother and man as the Son, a unity illustrated by Jesus when he said, "I and my Father are one."

In the fulfilment of the law of Christian Science the coming to human consciousness of "the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world," must eventually bring to light that humanhood which no longer needs to be sacrificed and which ceases to suffer. The father of the world and the mother of freedom cooperate to bring forth the lamb without blemish. On page 49 of "Unity of Good" Mrs. Eddy writes, "The more I understand true humanhood, the more I see it to be sinless,—as ignorant of sin as is the perfect Maker." The serpent, the dragon, and the wolf cannot find this spotless humanhood to harm it. The prayer of the unrighteous falls to nothing before it. Judas may wish to betray the lamb, but instead he goes and hangs himself. The victory of the lamb is won; its being is intact, its joy complete. It does not suffer, but lives to love, to obey, and to give.

The lamb has no sense of responsibility, no self-righteousness, but trusts all to the Mother God; and She yearns and watches over Her own. There is no black sheep for the

Digitized by Google

Mother Love, who washes white the darkest stains, who trustingly leaves the ninety and nine in the wilderness and goes into the mountains after the one sheep which is lost, who cradles the weak ones in Her arms, soothes their fears, takes off the pressure of Her commands, and "tempers the wind to the shorn lamb." What the world calls a duty Love makes a joy, and so unfolds the divine plan that the obedient may follow. The supreme prayer of today echoes the words of Mrs. Eddy's well beloved hymn (Poems, p. 14):—

Lead Thy lambkins to the fold,
Take them in Thine arms.

A war worn world needs above all else the pure consciousness of the little child, the lambkin, the gift of God, dwelling in perpetual springtide, which does not suffer, because Love has overcome the world.

WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN.

◇ ◇ ◇

Among the Churches

Current Notes

BOSTON, MASS.—The First Church of Christ, Scientist. Services: 10:45 a.m., 7:30 p.m.; Sunday School, 10:45 a.m.; Wednesday, 7:30 p.m., in the church edifice, Norway, Falmouth, and St. Paul Streets. The church is open to visitors Wednesdays and Fridays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Reading rooms: Little Building, corner of Tremont and Boylston Streets (fourth floor); open daily, except Sunday and Wednesday, from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., and on Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. International Trust Company Building (second floor), 45 Milk Street, near Devonshire, opposite post-office; open daily, except Sunday, from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Coolidge Corner Building, 1316 Beacon Street, Brookline; open daily, except Sunday, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

COLORADO SPRINGS, COL.—Work on the ten thousand dollar addition to the edifice of First Church of Christ, Scientist, is being pushed rapidly, and it is expected that the improvements will be completed by June 1. In addition to the two wings being added to the east and west sides, there will be a third on the south to be used for Sunday school rooms and a balcony over the vestibule. When the improvements are completed, the church will have an additional seating capacity of more than three hundred and will be one of the most modern and up-to-date religious edifices in the city.

Colorado Springs Gazette.

CHARLES CITY, IOWA.—Yesterday morning [April 22] the new Christian Science church at the corner of Milwaukee and Hulin Streets was formally dedicated. The ground was broken for the building on Aug. 3, 1916, and on Thanksgiving day [Nov. 30] the first service was held. On Feb. 9, 1917, the entire amount which the church had to supply for the building fund had been raised, and on April 3 a check was received from the Trustees under the Will of Mary Baker Eddy, which enabled a settlement of all bills relating to the building.—Charles City Press and Intelligencer.

HUDSON, N. Y.—The members of the Christian Science Society of this city held their first meeting in their new church on Carroll Street Sunday morning [April 15]. The congregation has been growing steadily since its organization three years ago, and its meetings heretofore have been at the home of a member. Hereafter the services will be held in the former Philip Brabender house on Carroll Street, which has been remodeled and fitted up for Christian Science worship.

Hudson Register.

The Lectures

BOSTON, MASS. (The Mother Church).—Dr. Francis J. Fluno, lecturer; introduced by William D. McCrackan, who said in part:—

Christian Science speaks with power and certitude in the midst of strife. It asks mankind certain pertinent questions in order that there may be salvation from "confusion worse confounded." Is man a material being subject to material law and organization, or is he in reality the creation, hence the reflection, of God, who is Spirit? Christian Science turns our attention first of all to the one and only cause, and presents this cause as infinitely good,—"Mind, Spirit, Soul, Principle, Life, Truth, Love" (Science and Health, p. 465). From this one cause wholly outside of matter, Christian Science derives the real man, equally free from the characteristics of matter, sin, sickness, and death. Therefore the message comes to you direct this evening from a demonstrable and imperishable Science that you have nothing to fear; that no power, on the surface or hidden in the depths of evil intent, can separate you from God, divine Love.

The Christian Science Monitor.

NEW YORK, N. Y. (Society, Columbia University).—John Randall Dunn, lecturer; introduced by Miss Ethel Conner, who said in part:—

Out of his store of wisdom and understanding Solomon said: "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths." As students of one of the largest universities in the world we come here desirous of gaining the understanding—or knowledge, as it is more generally called—which will enable us to work out our various problems as correctly as possible. But many times in this quest for knowledge, while leaning unto his own understanding, mortal man has become imbued with a sense of his own importance, until suddenly he discovers that much which he has termed science or knowledge lacks, after all, a sound foundation, is theoretical and hypothetical, the child of mere supposition. Then follows a period of confusion and doubt.

As students of Christian Science we find that its mission has been to dispel this confusion and doubt, and to reveal to man that spiritual understanding which has for its foundation or Principle God, divine Mind. Its teachings demonstrate the might and power of divine intelligence, which emanates from the source of all true being, God. This spiritual understanding, or absolute knowledge of Truth, never fails in solving man's problems when rightly applied. Reliance upon Truth, or that "trust in the Lord" of which Solomon speaks, guides man's footsteps into the paths of right thinking, right desires, and right doing. For this reason many thousands of people, the world over, rejoice in this opportunity of learning about God and man's relation to Him.

SEATTLE, WASH. (Second Church).—Paul Stark Seeley, lecturer; introduced by Charles A. Griffith, who said in part:—

For ages mankind has sought to improve human conditions. It is not the reformer alone who sees the sorry plight of humanity and strives to save it from itself. From childhood to old age, from schoolboy to philosopher, all are endeavoring to find the way to heaven, and either to lead or drive mankind thither.

For the most part deliverance is looked for in matter, through the immediate gratification of the senses. Some there are, however, who point away from the immediate present to the future, to a material heaven, the gateway of which is death. Jesus the Christ found no good in matter. "The flesh profiteth nothing," he said. Nor did he intimate that heaven could be attained by dying, but declared, "The kingdom of God is within you;" that is, heaven, harmony, is a state of consciousness within the reach of all men now, a present reality, attainable now.

Digitized by Google

Christian Scientists accept Jesus' statement, a statement he did not leave unproved, and this lecture is given for the purpose of pointing mankind heavenward, not through death, but through Life; not in matter, but in spiritual understanding, and in obedience to Jesus' command, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature."

The Seattle News.

ROCKLAND, MASS. (First Church).—William R. Rathvon, lecturer; introduced by William A. Clark, who said in part:—

Christian Science has come to this age with a most holy purpose,—to heal the sick, reform the sinner, uplift and purify thought. The Bible, which is the Christian's guide to eternal life, declares that the pure in heart shall see God. There has been no movement of the Christian church which has so occupied the thoughts of thinking people as has Christian Science, and under this name a new tree of righteousness has grown on the earth. Its roots penetrate deep through the soil of human consciousness; its branches extend out to the ends of the earth; its leaves are "for the healing of the nations." Its history began some fifty years ago, when there was but one Christian Scientist on the earth,—Mrs. Eddy, a pure-minded Christian woman, wonderfully gifted with spiritual intuition and understanding, much in advance of her time. Her thoughts she put into book form, and so became the author of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures." This book has done more to bring about God's kingdom here on earth than any service of recent times. The world is fast awakening to its great need, the need of understanding God and His idea, man.

ORANGE, N. J. (First Church).— Charles I. Ohrenstein, lecturer; introduced by George Matthesen, who said in part:—

Christian Science presents the religion of Christ Jesus as unfolded in the Scriptures; a religion that is based on a certain, demonstrable understanding of God, "whom to know aright is Life eternal" (Science and Health, Pref., p. vii). Because of the many false beliefs concerning God, mankind has suffered from the beginning of mortal history under the bondage of sin, sickness, and the many evils that seem to be inseparable from life; but Christian Scientists have proved that the true understanding of God overcomes all evil,—sickness, sorrow, and poverty, as well as sin. There is no problem of human experience that cannot be solved by it. There is no condition of sickness or sin beyond God's power and willingness to heal, for, as the Bible so truly says, "with God all things are possible," and God is unchanging, ever present Love.

✧

Lectures to be Delivered

[By Members of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.]

COLORADO—Denver (Second Church): Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Church Edifice, South Grant Street and East Bayaud Avenue, 8 p.m., June 14 and 15.

CONNECTICUT—Greenwich: William W. Porter, Havemeyer Auditorium, 8:15 p.m., June 11.
New London: William W. Porter, Masonic Union Lodge Building, 3 p.m., June 10.
Norwalk: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Regent Theater, 3:30 p.m., June 10.

DELAWARE—Wilmington: Bicknell Young, Playhouse, du Pont Building, Tenth and Market Streets, 3:30 p.m., June 3.

IDAHO—Blackfoot: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Christian Science Chapel, 8 p.m., June 14.

ILLINOIS—Chicago (Second Church): William R. Rathvon, Church Edifice, Wrightwood and Pine Grove Avenues, 8 p.m., June 11 and 12.
Chicago (Fourth Church): Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Church Edifice, Harvard Avenue and West Marquette Road, 8 p.m., June 11 and 12.
Chicago (Tenth Church): William R. Rathvon, Rosalie Hall, 5704 Harper Avenue, 8 p.m., June 14 and 15.
Chicago (Twelfth Church): Clarence W. Chadwick, Le Moyne School Auditorium, Waveland Avenue and Rokeby Street, 8 p.m., June 11 and 12.
Downers Grove: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Curtis Theater, 8 p.m., June 11.

KANSAS—John Randall Dunn:
Cherryvale: Cherryvale High School, 8:15 p.m., June 14.
Kansas City: Masonic Temple, Seventh Street and Ann Avenue, 8 p.m., June 15.
Wellington: Isis Theater, 8:15 p.m., June 12.

MASSACHUSETTS—Haverhill (First Church): John Randall Dunn, High School Hall, 8 p.m., June 7.
Holyoke: William R. Rathvon, City Hall, 8 p.m., June 8.
Medford: John Randall Dunn, Pitman Hall, 180 High Street, near Winthrop Square, 8 p.m., June 5.
New Bedford: George Shaw Cook, Church Edifice, County and Mill Streets, 3:30 p.m., June 10.
Pittsfield: Dr. Walton Hubbard, Colonial Theater, 3:30 p.m., June 10.

MICHIGAN—Jackson: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Masonic Temple, 8 p.m., June 14.

MINNESOTA—Excelsior: Ezra W. Palmer, Town Hall, 8 p.m., June 12.

MISSOURI—St. Louis (Fifth Church): Charles I. Ohrenstein, Church Auditorium, Grand Avenue and Olive Street, 8 p.m., June 15.

NEW JERSEY—Atlantic City: William W. Porter, Keith's Theater, Garden Pier, 8:15 p.m., June 14.
Newark (Second Church): William R. Rathvon, Shubert Theater, Broad and Fulton Streets, 3 p.m., June 10.

NEW YORK—Syracuse: Ezra W. Palmer, Empire Theater, 4 p.m., June 10.

OHIO—Columbus (Second Church): George Shaw Cook, Memorial Hall, 8:15 p.m., June 12.
Kent: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Kent Opera House, 3 p.m. (central standard time), June 10.
Lorain: Charles I. Ohrenstein, I. O. O. F. Hall, Ninth Street and Broadway, 8 p.m., June 12.

OREGON—Portland (Fourth Church): Clarence C. Eaton, First Church Edifice, Everett Street, between Eighteenth and Nineteenth Streets, 8 p.m., June 14 and 15.

PANAMA—Paul Stark Seeley:
Ancon, Canal Zone: Church Edifice, 8 p.m., June 21.
Cristobal, Canal Zone: Masonic Temple, 8:15 p.m., June 22.

PENNSYLVANIA—Philadelphia (Second Church): John Randall Dunn, Frankford Theater, 4711 Frankford Avenue, 3:30 p.m., June 10.
Punxsutawney: Charles I. Ohrenstein, High School Auditorium, 8 p.m., June 11.

UTAH—Salt Lake City (Second Church): Dr. Walton Hubbard, Auditorium, Richards Street, 8 p.m., June 15.

VIRGINIA—Roanoke: Frank Bell, Roanoke Theater, 3 p.m., June 10.

✧

Correction

Credit for the lecture reported in the Sentinel of May 5 as given by First Church of Christ, Scientist, Corpus Christi, Texas, belongs to the Christian Science Society of that city, it being their first lecture since organizing.

Digitized by Google

Testimonies of Healing

When Christian Science found me, more than eight years ago, I was miserable, both mentally and physically; but such was my antipathy toward all religions that had this teaching been presented to me by any one other than the friend for whose intellectual and moral character I entertained such high regard, it probably would have been rejected. God lovingly guided me to her, however, though I had not seen her for many years previous to the day she told me of Christian Science. This was a proof that God answers all true prayer, for in my distress and worry over the constantly recurring despondent periods, the very evening before seeing her I had dropped upon my knees and cried aloud to God for help, as my resort to will-power had completely failed.

Almost immediately I purchased a copy of Science and Health and began to study it, together with the other Christian Science literature, in the same strenuous way that I did everything in those days, reading every spare moment, and even staying in town during all the summer months in order to have more time for study and access to the reading-room. I read far more than could be mentally digested, and though a slight understanding of the letter of Christian Science was gained, the spirit of it was sadly lacking, for criticism was ever present with me in some form. However, my propensity for never giving up anything until success was attained, kept me determinedly studying, attending all the services and lectures which were then available in Philadelphia, where I lived at that time; but it was a constant struggle, for the very qualities which had gained for me success in the business world seemed to shut me out of the health and peace for which I was striving.

I knew that what I read was true, but it was hard for me to make those truths my own and to gain any sense of humility and loving obedience, for I had always been undisciplined. I had treatment from many practitioners, and know that they all helped to shorten my journey Spiritward; but there came a time when I saw that I must work out my problem alone with God, for a great amount of adjustment was necessary, and much giving up of the many gods and idols which I had made so real in my life, before harmony could be mine. In these years of striving I have learned to apply the teachings of Christian Science to every detail of my life; that it is just in proportion as we seek first "the kingdom of God, and his righteousness," that all the things which seem necessary to our present happiness are added unto us, and that we can prove God's law to be a law of adjustment to everything unlike good in our lives, when we yield loving obedience to it and eliminate from our thinking and mode of living everything that would impede our progress.

At the time Christian Science came into my life I had not known for many years one day free from pain or discomfort of some sort, and I was a veritable slave to hurry, worry, and fear. I suffered from almost constant headaches, an internal ill which was making life a burden, stomach disorder, and sleeplessness; I was arrogant, domineering, and selfish. I was not quickly healed, and much striving has been required to overcome the "old man with his deeds." I am still striving for more of that Mind "which was also in Christ Jesus."

Through my understanding of the teachings of Christian Science I have learned how to be happy and well; and as I have grown in understanding, the things which used to make for so much discord have disappeared from my life. I used to feel it incumbent upon me to straighten out the snarls for every one with whom I came in close contact, but have learned that I have enough to do to keep my own light shining. I have also learned the unwisdom of trying to force Christian Science upon those who are not yet ready for it, and to accord them the same freedom of thought and action that I exact for myself.

During some of the first years of my study of Christian Science I was in the tropics of Central America, and there I found Christian Science the greatest help and comfort, especially in the matter of loneliness, anxiety regarding my far off home people, fear of insects, reptiles, and so on. Membership in The Mother Church has been a wonderful source of strength against temptation and trial, and class instruction has been most illuminating and helpful. My heart is filled with thankfulness to God, and with gratitude to Mrs. Eddy for the comfort and joy I am daily receiving from Christian Science.

Eve T. Sanford, Los Angeles, Cal.

✧

Realizing that it is a duty as well as a privilege to make known our thankfulness to God and the debt of gratitude we owe to Mrs. Eddy and to Christian Science for the many manifestations of the power of divine Love we have received, I wish to give my testimony of healing.

On Jan. 7, 1916, while working for a gravel company near Greenville, I attempted to board a moving pit engine. In my haste I slipped and fell, and was dragged for some distance before the engine was stopped. On examination by the company's surgeon the bones of the left foot were found to be crushed and the artery in a bad condition; circulation had ceased and amputation was thought necessary. As soon as possible I had word sent to my sister, who lives on a farm only a few miles away. Remembering the many years of her sickness, and that after all other means had failed she was healed in a single Christian Science treatment and had become a well and happy woman, I seemed to be filled with hope and to rise above the discordant physical condition.

When my sister arrived I told her I wanted help in Christian Science, as I was fully convinced that nothing else would save my leg; and her words, so free from fear, soon convinced me of the healing power of Truth. I told her I would like to have her call up a practitioner, but to do as she thought best, as I was very short of funds. A few hours later her husband arrived, and my heart was made glad when told that my every need would be cared for. I saw that this was the work of God, and that all would come out well if only I was obedient. At this time I began to read Science and Health, and that evening when the company's surgeon came he exclaimed, "Why, this is no dead foot; it is looking quite different from the way it did this morning." Before he left I told him I was relying on Christian Science treatment and would care for nothing else.

Application was made to the state for aid under the liability act, whereby I was entitled to receive two thirds of my pay while unable to earn a livelihood for my family, but later on I was told that unless I was under the care of a surgeon I could not receive aid. In my consciousness, however, I had recognized God as my only physician, and to depend upon man meant turning back. When it was seen that I meant to assert my rights at all hazards, another physician came along with the surgeon, and I signed up papers relieving them from further responsibility.

From the moment the Christian Science practitioner took charge of my case I experienced no pain worth mentioning.

Digitized by Google

My wife, baby, and I were taken to the home of my sister, and in two weeks I was walking around on the injured leg. The bones that were mangled and crushed sloughed away and were replaced. The arch assumed its natural position, and in a few weeks I could wear the same size shoe on that foot as on the other. Exactly seven weeks after the accident I again went to work.

I wish to say that not only was I healed of my injuries, but the tobacco chewing and cigarette habits of long standing, also high temper and profanity, were overcome. Christian Science treatment from the very start was the only kind of treatment I had or recognized as a means of effecting a healing. I may say thankfully that the state recognized four weeks of my claim, the letter stating that I could not receive any more as I was not under the care of a physician. For these many manifestations of God's protecting care I feel grateful.

While I am not a member of the Christian Science church, the Bible, and "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, are read in our home every morning before I go to work, and according to our understanding we are trying to put into practice these grand truths of primitive Christianity, which are available now to all mankind, if we but accept them.—WALTER W. BRATSCHI, Alliance, Ohio.

I wish to add a few words to the above testimony by my husband. The demonstrations of the power of Truth in our home are just as related. I am thankful to God for these blessings, and grateful to Mrs. Eddy for bringing to the world these wonderful truths.—EDITH M. E. BRATSCHI.

✧

It is with sincere gratitude for the many blessings received from Christian Science that I send this testimony. I had always tried to lead a consistent Christian life, but when great troubles came I found little comfort in my religion. When the only friend who, as I then thought, could help me, passed on, I felt that God was indeed unjust and unmerciful. I ceased to pray or to read the Bible, for my prayers were not answered, and I could not worship a God who I believed was treating me so cruelly.

Finally, in January, 1914, my health gave way. An attack of influenza was followed by much pain and weakness, and a complete breakdown. I lost all interest in my surroundings, and only wished to die and get away from it all. After spending two months in bed I was able just to get about the house, and occasionally walk a short distance with help, but always in great pain.

In February, 1915, I remarked to a Scientist friend that I should never be well again. When she replied, "You could be well," I did not believe her, but I eagerly read some copies of the Sentinel which she sent me. Soon afterward she loaned me a copy of Science and Health. I read it through once, but although interested, I felt that I could not understand the book, and laid it aside. Soon I felt impelled to read it again, and one Sunday morning as I was thinking over what I had read, also the ninety-first psalm, which my friend had pointed out to me, like a flash of sunlight I realized that it was the truth.

I shall never forget that day and its wonderful joy. All doubts vanished, physical healing was forgotten; I only realized that I had found what I had always needed, and that God was good. The following day I discovered to my great surprise and joy that I could walk, and soon walked quite a long distance. During the week I laid aside glasses which had been worn for about two years, and have not needed them since.

For some years I had suffered severely at intervals as a result of an internal trouble. One morning soon after my first healing every symptom of an attack appeared, but I realized that Love was with me and no evil could come to me, and in a few moments all sense of pain vanished, so that I was able to attend to my work, although on previous occasions I had felt weak and ill for some time after. Throughout the past year I have been able to do more work than I have done for some years, and without pain or fatigue. All the physical healing is however as nothing compared with the spiritual uplift. My whole outlook on life has been changed. The Bible as elucidated by Science and Health is now my greatest treasure. I am learning to pray aright, and I know that as God's child nothing but good is mine.

I am more grateful than I can tell for the many proofs of God's love and care; and also for the Christian Science publications, for the Sunday services, for more harmonious conditions in my home, for the loving help of friends, and for the love and work of our dear Leader, who has made the way so plain to us. My earnest desire and prayer is that I may be worthy to be called a Christian Scientist, and so help those around me to know the truth that makes us free.

LILIAN S. COLEBY, Dereham, England.

✧

I wish to express my gratitude for what Christian Science has done for me. About three years ago I was a very sick woman, and had to go to a hospital and submit to a severe operation. As a result I had internal hemorrhages which the doctors seemed unable to stop, and a slight operation was advised in order to remedy that condition. Both doctors and nurses did all they knew how to do to help me, but without avail. This was my condition when I first became acquainted with Christian Science.

A Christian Scientist came to the hospital twice a week to distribute literature. The afternoon I was to be operated on, she came about two o'clock and saw me, but of course I understood nothing of Christian Science, as I had never heard of it before. However, she talked with me for a while, then silently declared the truth. The result was that at four o'clock, when the doctors were to operate on me, they could find no trace of anything to call for an operation. They asked me what I had been doing with myself, and I replied, "Why, nothing." Then a doctor who had seen this lady at my bedside said, "Oh, one of those Scientists was talking to her today." The other doctors then asked me what she said. My reply was, "Nothing; she just prayed for me;" at which the remark was made in an undertone, "Can't understand it, but it is wonderful."

I did not give Christian Science credit for the healing at the time, for I did not know its teachings. In two or three days I was up, and the third day I was put in a wheel-chair and told not to do anything more than wheel myself around; but I wheeled the chair close to the bed, which I caught hold of, then got up and walked past thirty-two beds and back again to my own bed. I did not use the chair again. In five weeks from that time I went to work, and kept my position for a year, when I came to the lady I am still with. The first night I was in her house I saw a copy of The Christian Science Monitor, and I thought it was like the paper that was given me to read in the hospital, so took it up and began to read. This lady had all the literature, so I began reading it by snatches, and finally she got a copy of Science and Health for me.

I thank God that I now know something of Christian Science. I have had several healings. An elastic bandage has been left off without any ill results, and I have also been healed of colds and catarrh since coming into Science. This testimony is written in gratitude for what Christian Science has done for me, and I am truly grateful to Mrs. Eddy.

Digitized by Google

MARY CATHERINE DOWLING, New York, N. Y.

✧

Many blessings have come to me through the understanding of Christian Science. Before I was healed I never knew the meaning of the passage, "He restoreth my soul." My life seemed a sad and sorrowful one, filled with disappointments, sickness, and sin. After I became interested in Christian Science, an abnormal growth disappeared, and with it bowel and stomach disorder. I was a nervous wreck and so miserable that I hated myself and every one.

As a girl I sang in a church choir and thought myself a Christian; but a sorrow came into my life and I simply wanted to die, thinking that would end it all. I went to Florida for my health, and while there met a lady who advised me to try Christian Science. I did not do so, however, until it seemed as if I should lose my mind; then I sent for her and had two treatments. The healing was complete and almost instantaneous, and a business in which I had invested some money was straightened out at the same time. Another demonstration which proved God's omnipotence was the healing of my little son through absent treatment. The child had mistaken a can of lye for condensed milk and drank from it. In the first treatment the throat and stomach were healed, so that he took nourishment as usual without suffering. In four weeks all disfigurement had disappeared.

I have learned when trials come to go to the Bible and Science and Health, and by earnestly praying and realizing the allness of God, good, as ever present, I have not only solved my problems but have helped others. I know that God supplies our every need. Mrs. Eddy tells us in "Miscellaneous Writings" (p. 307): "God gives you His spiritual ideas, and in turn, they give you daily supplies." I pray daily for wisdom, understanding, and patience to do what my hands find to do, and hope to prove my thankfulness to God and my love and gratitude to Mrs. Eddy. Through the teachings of Christian Science I have learned to separate the free woman from the bondwoman. My little son, now eight years old, attends the Christian Science Sunday school, and we know that "divine Love always has met and always will meet every human need" (Science and Health, p. 494).

ADA MARGARET MORRIS, St. Louis, Mo.

✧

I wish to express my thankfulness to God for the many blessings that have come to me through the study of the Bible in connection with the Christian Science text-book, which has proven to be indeed a "Key to the Scriptures." More than thirteen years ago I turned to this teaching for healing alone, after both medicine and surgery had failed to bring relief. Since that time I have lost but two hours from my regular duties on account of sickness, and the truth as taught in Christian Science has been my only physician. I had been under the care of reputable physicians for more than fifteen years, but instead of regaining my health I grew steadily worse, and twice within a year I was operated on. Then I turned to God for healing, and from the first it was not difficult for me to gain a faint understanding of the truth contained in the statement, "There is no life, truth, intelligence, nor substance in matter" (Science and Health, p. 468).

I have been healed through Christian Science of stomach trouble in a very serious form, of bowel disorder, ptomaine poisoning, acute attacks of inflammation of the bowels, abnormal abdominal growths, heart disease, so-called inherited tubercular trouble, muscular rheumatism, and many other ills both acute and chronic, as well as imperfect sight. I had worn glasses for more than five years and had been told that I would never again be able to do without them.

I have learned that God is Love, as St. John tells us, and that by reason of His unchanging wisdom He sustains and maintains man in perfect harmony and purity here and now. My gratitude for relief from physical suffering is indeed great, but I am more grateful for the peace of mind which comes with an understanding of the truth of being, and for the love for all humanity which follows the liberation of thought. I thank God daily for His beloved Son, Jesus the Christ, also for that noble woman, Mrs. Eddy, who endured the scoffs of the world in order that she might give to us this beautiful truth, which is undoubtedly the Comforter that Jesus promised, and for all the faithful ones in the field who labor lovingly and unselfishly for the uplift of humanity.

MARGARET M. CUNNINGHAM, Marion, Ind.

✧

Such happiness has come to me through Christian Science that I wish to tell how beautiful the growth has been, how perfectly logical every step. My first physical healing through the power of Truth was the cure of a long standing case of gall-stones. The only relief given by my physicians had come from an opiate, and I was in a wretched physical condition. At that time—over ten years ago—I was living in San Francisco, and although my wife had been a student of Christian Science for two years, I knew nothing of its teachings. Long before this I had drifted away from my old church life and was quite without religion. I accepted my cure through Christian Science gratefully and without analysis, yet in my heart was the thought that the old suffering would return some day. I did not attend service, but escorted my wife to the Wednesday evening meetings and passed the intervening hour at a theater. Never once did my wife reproach me, or even advise that I study her religion.

About four years ago we removed to Marysville, and love, and that loyalty which I believe to be the duty of a husband, prompted me to share at her side the comments of many of our townspeople, comments of which in a larger city I had not known. So I attended service regularly; but not until a certain Wednesday evening three years ago did the blessed moment come when I realized what a mere clod I was. The testimony of a visitor had interested me and I spoke to him. He responded cordially, and as he left he asked how long I had been a member of the society. The simple and natural question confused me, and I answered hesitatingly that my wife was a member. I was about to add that I was not, when he interrupted with the remark, "Your wife is a member, eh?" No doubt there was love in his glance and in his tone, but to my sense there was a reproach that scared me. At once I began the study of our text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, and gradually learned in part the truth there revealed. I became a member of the society here and have tried to do my share.

The truth seemed very mysterious to me at first; then I learned that physical healing follows spiritual understanding so naturally that one realizes only with a sudden gleam of joy that the wonderful truth has really come to him. I was soon able to demonstrate for myself, even to help others, finding that to understand the Principle of Christian Science is to gain the power to heal, and each forward step follows as naturally as light dispels darkness.

Digitized by Google

The tobacco habit has been overcome, and in Science I have learned and demonstrated that years do not limit mental or physical capacities. Each day increases the profound reverence with which I regard Mrs. Eddy. It is possible for us but vaguely to comprehend the extraordinary vision which enabled her not only to restore the truth to humanity but to work out the problem of how best to reveal it.

CHRISTOPHER C. V. REEVE, Marysville, Cal.

✧

It was in the year 1908 that I came into Christian Science. I had been under the doctor's care for a long time, and was suffering from a nervous shock which affected my back so that I was prostrated for days at a time. As a result of Christian Science treatment I was lifted from this condition into the peaceful atmosphere of the understanding of Christian Science, and physical health was pretty well established with the first treatments.

My experience in the past had led me to doubt that anything so satisfying as this could be permanent, but it proved to be so. If now and then error appears to obstruct my path, I go forward courageously and conquer it, well knowing that it has no power over me and cannot frighten me, for ever present Love is my help. Acute throat trouble and a very severe case of quinsy have been healed in our home. While passing through a great trial in the loss of my husband three years ago, I was helped in knowing that God is Love. It was not a new thought and it had always been a comfort to me, but in the light of Christian Science it seemed particularly full of meaning, and with this thought of Love I soon became quite calm.

I have had the privilege of class study and feel that it has been a great benefit to me. The way grows clearer every day as the Christ-life is revealed to me, and I am beginning to experience a deeper sense of thankfulness to God and of gratitude to all those who have helped me on this journey from sense to Soul. I realize that I can best express this gratitude by striving earnestly and constantly to live the life of a true Christian Scientist.

Words are inadequate to express my gratitude for the many blessings I have received, especially for Christian Science as revealed to us through our text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, and for the untiring efforts and unfailing love of our Leader in giving to the world through her inspired writings this precious truth that destroys both sin and suffering and brings to our darkened sense the true knowledge of God.

NELLIE BERG, Monroe, Mich.

✧ ✧ ✧

[Written for the Sentinel]

To the Children

MINNIE J. MARTIN

DEAR little spring buds, blossoming
Each into a beautiful flower,
Nurtured and tenderly cared for,
Upheld by Truth's wondrous power,

Oh, may your little feet never
Away from Love's upward path roam,
Looking to Him who is ever
Truly mindful of His own.

And like the lily uplifting
Its pure, sweet face to the sky,
So may your little hearts open
To Him who is ever nigh.

From Our Exchanges

[Rev. W. Blackshaw in The Christian Commonwealth]

Civilization does not consist of material things, however beautiful. It consists of minds and memories. It consists of aspirations and hopes. It consists of faith and love. These cannot fail. New and great memories are enriching our experience. We have a story to tell to our children and to the nations of the world. New ideas are being born, new resolves taking shape in the mind and the will of men. There is a promise of a morning following this evening through which we are passing. May we not speak of it as a new creative day of redemption. In a new and deeper sense Christ will be our light, when the relations between states will be determined,—under his guidance and with his inspiration,—and when the cross will be the symbol not merely of the church, but of the office and the shop and the manufactory. Life must be interpreted by its highest facts. These are the key to the whole.

[Western Christian Advocate]

Gethsemane is not so much a place as something that happens. It has happened in many men's lives since Christ left this world. It was a night scene, and always has been. It was experienced alone, when those pledged to love us and to watch through the weary hours fell fast asleep. We go forth to fight alone, to press the sod with our knees, to bite the dust with our lips, to pray under the silent stars, to drink our bitter cup to the dregs midst agonies of soul that press the life blood from our veins. Yes, Gethsemane is not a place—it is something that happens. Happens? Yes, to every soul who takes up his cross to follow him who bore his cross to Calvary. Do you know nothing about it? Then you have never been able to say with St. Paul, "I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me: and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself for me." For Calvary is also something that happens, and it is always preceded by Gethsemane.

[The Jewish Chronicle]

Prayer is, in the first place, a natural instinctive act of the heart, impelled by its consciousness of God's fatherhood and its own dependence. And because of this no sincere prayer for an honest end is wrong. Therefore also the results of prayer in the material world form no criterion for the judgment of the efficacy of prayer. That is why, despite the great discrepancy between prayer and its material effects, men do still unquestioningly persist in praying. It is part of the social relation between God and man. Yet it results in some definite effects upon man's life, whether it be the prayer which is just communion or that which is more especially the effort to realize God. The effect is most evident in the spiritual and moral realms of life, but through them also on the material circumstances, and more especially on man's attitude toward those circumstances. These results are brought about partly by the human effort in prayer, but also by a response from God which comes not as a special intervention, but through the channels of spiritual laws.

[Rev. Neville Figgis, D.Litt., in The Church Times]

"All things are yours." This passage is the charter of Christian culture. St. Paul lays down the right of the Christian to share in the riches of human experience and the limits within which that right must be exercised. "All things are yours,"—only because we are Christ's, and Christ is God's. The Christian holds the master key to the treasury of life.

Digitized by Google

[The Rev. the Hon. W. E. Bowen in The Church Family Newspaper]

It is not the case—whatever some may pretend—that religious faith is as some cliff which is being gradually eaten into by the waves, whose destructive work nothing can stay or long hinder. It is no pious but irrational fancy that the divine love is ever about us, that it is a possession of which we need never doubt the reality. That love is with us always, if only we will surrender ourselves to it in grateful trust and in earnest cooperation. There is here no question of a contest between reason and faith. If theism falls, reason collapses with it. And what theism can be worth having which does not declare in no uncertain tones that "God is love"? That is the name of God.

[The Biblical World]

True, there is moral danger even in a nation's faith in God; for a nation, like a man, may so unblinkingly believe in the justice of its cause as to identify its motives and methods with divine Providence. But such confidence is not true faith in the God of Jesus. To believe that God is on our side may mean only bescriptured brutality. True Christian faith does not seek to persuade God to work with us; it seeks rather to work with God. And if God is like Jesus, then love and not hate, justice and not physical force, forgiveness rather than injury, are the ultimate bases of national greatness. Has any nation yet given full consent to that sort of faith in God? Can Christian patriots yet pray that God's rather than their government's will shall be done?

[Zion's Herald]

One need not be retrospective overmuch to find in that early scene on the eve of the crucifixion the prototype of individual experiences. Have we not been false to the best, at times lowered the standard because of the fear of others, to be one with the many? Have we not forsaken Jesus when some trying circumstance has caught us unaware? Who has not? Alone he has been left to survey the ruin of our good intentions, the wreck of our high professions.

"All the disciples forsook him, and fled." It is a record as fresh as if it were recorded in the morning press. It tells in graphic words the tale of human weakness. And with particular force it comes to us during the Lenten season, with a world in flames, and hatred, rapine, murder, pillage, falsity, making wreckage of Christian civilization. But the very tragedy of it and its very force call the human spirit to high resolve. The Christ is forsaken, but he himself is left. He is alone, but he is here. He is amid ruin, but he is above it. He is still triumphant.

[The Christian Intelligencer]

Christ's prayer for his people is not that they may be taken out of the world, but that they may be protected from the evil of the world. The world is very much with us all the time, but a robust spiritual health can escape its infection. The presence of temptation is the Christian's opportunity to fight the good fight and to win out. We are to endure hardship as good soldiers of Jesus Christ. It is not to the interest of our souls that fiery trials of faith and endurance should be wanting. Opposition to the spirit of worldliness develops spiritual strength and character.

[The Guardian]

The Christian faith with love and not power as its foundation, the Christian home with affection and not lust as its guiding principle, the Christian state with justice placed where oppression reigns, will break down prejudices and lead those who are facing spiritual bankruptcy to turn with longing eyes to Christ.

Special Announcements

From the Publisher of Mrs. Eddy's Works

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE TEXT-BOOK, "SCIENCE AND HEALTH WITH KEY TO THE SCRIPTURES."—See back cover of this periodical for styles of bindings and prices.

CONCORDANCE TO SCIENCE AND HEALTH.—A new edition of this volume is announced, printed from new plates and bound in stiff morocco. Single copy, $5.00; six or more, each $4.50.

CONCORDANCE TO MRS. EDDY'S PUBLISHED WRITINGS OTHER THAN SCIENCE AND HEALTH.—Published only in the India Bible paper edition, with stiff morocco covers; uniform in style with the Concordance to Science and Health. Price, $6.00; six or more, each $5.50.

Announcement is made of the publication of a new edition of the German translation of the Manual of The Mother Church. This edition is printed with alternate pages of English and German, and is uniform in binding and price with the regular cloth-bound edition. If those who have purchased the Manual in German, but without the English pages, wish to exchange them for new copies with both English and German text, without additional charge, they can do so by sending their German copies to the Publisher, postage paid, marking the name and address of the sender plainly on the wrapper. In exchange for all copies so returned the Publisher will send copies of the new edition without charge, postage paid.

Announcement is made of the printing of an edition of Rudimental Divine Science in the American Braille system of type for the blind. Single copy, 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

Orders for the books named above and other works by Mrs. Eddy should be addressed to ALLISON V. STEWART, Falmouth and St. Paul Streets, Boston, Mass.

From the Editor

All manuscripts submitted for publication in the Sentinel, Journal, and Herold, whether articles, poems, or testimonies, and all correspondence relating thereto, should be addressed to the EDITOR, and not to individuals.

From the Publishing Society

In connection with the new rates for periodicals effective July 1 a regular discount will be allowed to Reading Rooms, Distribution Committees, Committees on Publication, and their assistants, on orders for one or more copies in place of former quantity rates.

The plan of discounts also applies to Bibles, pamphlets, other publications, and articles listed in the Current Catalogue published in The Christian Science Journal.

A special letter will soon be mailed to the Reading Rooms and Committees with new price lists giving discounts, also supplementary slips for Bible Catalogue No. 23.

From the Clerk of The Mother Church

CHURCH TENETS.—The tenets of The First Church of Christ, Scientist,—The Mother Church,—printed on folded sheet for use of the branch Churches of Christ, Scientist, with space for printing their authorized forms of application for membership or extracts from their by-laws, can be had at seventy-five cents a hundred. Orders will not be taken for less than one hundred and postage stamps should not be sent in payment.

Correspondence relative to the tenets or to membership with The Mother Church, should be sent to J. V. DITTEMORE, Clerk, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

From the Church Treasurer

The annual per capita tax of members of The Mother Church is due June 1, but may be paid at any time during the year. The per capita tax of members uniting in November is reckoned from the preceding June, this being the beginning of the church year. Unless otherwise directed by the sender, the full amount of each remittance will be credited for the current year.

Please remit by postal or express money order, bank draft, or check. Currency should be sent by registered letter only.

Please advise promptly of any change in name or address.

Send per capita taxes and contributions to ADAM H. DICKEY, Treasurer, 236 Huntington Avenue, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

Digitized by Google

The Christian Science Journal

Published Monthly

Founded April, 1883, by Mary Baker Eddy, Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, and author of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures."

This monthly magazine is the official organ of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. In addition to articles, editorials, and testimonies not published elsewhere, it contains a complete list of Christian Science practitioners, and a directory of Christian Science Churches, Societies, and Reading Rooms.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $2; six months $1; three months 50 cents. SALE PRICE: Single copy 20 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 15 cents. For Canada add 25 cents for postage. SALE PRICE: Single copy 20 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 17 cents. In all other countries add 65 cents for postage for each annual subscription. SALE PRICE: Single copy 25 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 20 cents.

BOUND VOLUMES: Current and past year, cloth $3.00; half calf or half morocco $3.75. On earlier volumes write for prices.

The Christian Science Quarterly

Published January, April, July, and October

Contains the Lesson-Sermons which are read at the Sunday services throughout the year in all the Christian Science churches. These Lessons, which present citations from the Bible and "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," are valuable for daily study. Also printed in Dutch and German.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION AND SALE: In the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year 50 cents; single copy 15 cents; four copies or more to one address, each 12½ cents. For all other countries one year 60 cents; single copy 18 cents; four copies or more, each 15 cents.

Subscriptions not accepted for less than one year. Subscriptions begin with current quarter unless otherwise designated, and terminate with the last of the month named on wrapper.

The Christian Science Monitor

Published Daily, Except Sundays and Legal Holidays

An international daily newspaper. Adequate news service. The various departments of a modern newspaper. Unique Home Forum page. Entire page of editorials dealing with the vital topics of the day. Contributions to the columns of the MONITOR should be addressed: Editor, THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States (except in the Boston Postal District), Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $5; six months $2.50; three months $1.25; one month 50 cents. In all other countries additional postage at the rate of $3 yearly is required. By carrier through a local newsdealer; one month 60 cents. In the Boston Postal District, by mail, one year $7.20. Quantity rates will be furnished on application.

Der Herold der Christian Science

Published Monthly

A magazine printed in German, which publishes original and translated articles bearing upon Christian Science, also testimonials of healing.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE, POSTPAID: For the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, one year $1; six months 50 cents; three months 25 cents. For other countries, one year $1.25; six months 63 cents; three months 32 cents.

SALE PRICE, DOMESTIC TERRITORY AND CANADA, POSTPAID: Single copy 10 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 8 cents. Foreign rate, single copy 12 cents; four or more copies to one address, each 10 cents.

Round Volumes in cloth, $2.75 each; half calf or half morocco $3.50 each. Write for list of volumes in stock.

Pamphlets

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS RELIGIOUS PHILOSOPHY. By HON. CLARENCE A. BUSKIRK.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: "THE RESURRECTION AND THE LIFE." By CLARENCE W. CHADWICK.

CAUSATION: VIEWED IN THE LIGHT OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By FREDERICK DIXON. Also printed in Norwegian and Swedish.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING VS. MENTAL SUGGESTION. By FREDERICK DIXON. Reprinted from the Weekly Budget, London, England. Also printed in Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE TRUE CHRISTIANITY. By CLARENCE C. EATON.

"THE SONS OF GOD." By COL. WILLIAM E. FELL.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE REVELATION OF CHRIST. By JOHN W. DOORLY.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE GOSPEL OF FREEDOM. By WILLIS F. GROSS.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE SCIENCE OF SALVATION. By HERMANN S. HERING.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING: SPIRITUAL AND SCIENTIFIC. By PROF. HERMANN S. HERING. Also printed in German.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS CONCERNING CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. Also printed in Dutch, German, and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS ADVANTAGE TO MANKIND. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. A London lecture. Also printed in French.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: MAN'S DOMINION OVER EVIL. By EDWARD A. KIMBALL. Also printed in modern Greek, Italian, Norwegian, and Russian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS DIVINE AUTHORITY. By BLISS KNAPP.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE EXPLANATION OF THE IDEAL MAN. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS DISCOVERY AND DEVELOPMENT. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: GOD'S LOVINGKINDNESS PROVED TO MEN. By REV. WILLIAM P. MCKENZIE. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS RESULTS. By WILLIAM R. RATHVON. Also printed in German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE RELIGION OF DIVINE LAW. By JACOB S. SHIELD.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM. By JUDGE CLIFFORD P. SMITH. Also printed in French and German.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A RELIGION OF LOVE. By VIRGIL O. STRICKLER. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE NEW BIRTH. By BICKNELL YOUNG. Also printed in German and Norwegian.

THE LAW OF KINDNESS.
"WHAT WENT YE OUT FOR TO SEE?"
"THEN THE FULL GRAIN IN THE EAR."
"AWAKE THOU THAT SLEEPEST"
UPWARD FOOTSTEPS. Also printed in Dutch.
FULFILLING THE LAW. Also printed in Danish.
PRAYER AND HEALING. Also printed in French and German.
THE DIVINE NATURE. Also printed in Dutch and Norwegian.
ENVIRONMENT AND OPPORTUNITY. Also printed in French.
THE FATHER'S BUSINESS. Also printed in German and Swedish.
SEEKING AND FINDING. Also printed in Dutch, German, and Swedish.
THE PROVIDENCE OF GOOD. Also printed in French, Spanish, and Swedish.
LAW AND WORK.
CONFIDENCE AND SUPPLY.
BIRTHRIGHT AND DOMINION.

Other Translated Pamphlets

FAITH AND GENEROSITY. Printed in French-English.
MAN'S UNITY WITH GOD. Printed in German only.
"PEACE ON EARTH." Printed in German only.
PRAYER AND CONFIDENCE. Printed in German. Also in Dutch-English.
MARY BAKER EDDY. By ARTHUR BRISBANE. Printed in German only.
MARY BAKER EDDY: HER PURPOSE AND ACCOMPLISHMENT. By FREDERICK DIXON. Printed in German. Also in French-English.
THE FOUNDER OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. By B. O. FLOWER. Printed in German only.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A REASONABLE AND RATIONAL VIEW OF ALL THINGS. By FRANCIS J. FLUNO, M.D. Printed in Dutch-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: HUMANITY'S HELPER. By PROF. HERMANN S. HERING. Printed in Dutch-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: THE COMFORTER OF PROMISE. By FRANK H. LEONARD. Printed in French-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: DEMONSTRABLE RELIGION. By FRANK H. LEONARD. Printed in Norwegian only.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: A RELIGION OF PROGRESS. By WILLIAM D. MCCRACKAN, M.A. Printed in Swedish. Also in French-English.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS PRINCIPLE AND METHOD. By BICKNELL YOUNG. Printed in Swedish. Also in French-English.

PRICE, POSTPAID: Single copy 5 cents; twelve copies to one address 55 cents; fifty copies $2; one hundred copies $3.50. Orders for above pamphlets may be assorted as desired.

For table of English, German, Swiss, and French money equivalents, see inside front cover page.

Miscellaneous

A Catalogue of Selected Bibles will be furnished upon application, and quantity rates on other items specified below will be found in the current catalogue in The Christian Science Journal.

BIBLES. 01483 x. Clarendon Brevier, heavy faced, distinct type; Turkey morocco, corresponding in size and binding to pocket edition of Science and Health, $4.75.

01440 x. Brevier, light faced type; self pronouncing, Turkey morocco, corresponding in size and binding to pocket edition of Science and Health, $4.50.

01683 x. Large type Bible, 10¾ x 8 inches, bound in Alaska seal. Specially adapted for use of second readers, $12.50.

Black morocco open case to hold pocket edition of Science and Health, Quarterly, and Bible, $1.40.

Two other sizes of open case listed in the current issue of the Journal.

Black morocco closed case with handle and purse on outside, $3.75; without purse, $3.50.

The improved Index will be added to any Bible listed in our catalogue for an additional charge of 35 cents. Catalogue No. 23 of selected Bibles will be mailed free upon application.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS ON THE LIFE AND WORK OF MARY BAKER EDDY. 132 pages with index. Paper covered, 15 cents; cloth binding, 85 cents.

THE LIFE OF MARY BAKER EDDY. By Sibyl Wilbur. 424 pages. Cloth, $2. Edition de luxe, $5.

PERSONAL CONTAGION, ALSO WHAT OUR LEADER SAYS. By Mary Baker Eddy. Special pamphlet. Paper cover, 10 cents.

THE MOTHER CHURCH. By Joseph Armstrong. A history of the building of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. Illustrated, 107 pages. Cloth, $1.50.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: ITS LEGAL STATUS. By Judge Clifford P. Smith. 128 pages, paper covered, 10 cents.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HYMNAL. Cloth, $1.15; half morocco, $1.40; full morocco, $3.75; levant, $4.75; pocket edition, size 4⅝ x 6⅝, $3.50.

SHEET MUSIC. Poems written by Mary Baker Eddy and used by special permission, have been set to music as follows: "The Mother's Evening Prayer," 75 cents; "Christ, My Refuge," 75 cents; "Love," 40 cents; Communion Hymn—"Saw Ye My Saviour?" (Johnson), 50 cents; "Blest Christmas Morn," 27 cents; "O'er Waiting Harpstrings of the Mind," 27 cents; "Shepherd, Show Me How to Go," 27 cents; "Saw Ye My Saviour?" (Root), 27 cents. The first three hymns are arranged for high and low voice in the same copy. The last five hymns are published separately in high and low keys. When ordering state key desired.

PHOTOGRAVURE OF MRS. EDDY, printed in three sizes on India paper and mounted on heavy plate paper ready for framing. 8-inch (mount 12 x 16), $1; 12-inch (mount 15 x 20), $2; 16-inch (mount 21 x 29), $3.50.

PICTURE OF THE FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, IN BOSTON, MASS., AND THE PUBLISHING HOUSE. Artist's proof with remarque on Japanese vellum, size 18 x 24 inches, $5; on India paper without remarque, $3. Smaller reproduction, size 11 x 14 inches, on Japanese vellum, $1. Photogravure postcards of the Church Edifice and Publishing House, 5 cents.

QUARTERLY COVERS in black morocco, $1.30; with purse, $1.50.

ALUMINUM LESSON MARKERS. Set of thirty, with paper shields, 50 cents. Extra paper shields, one hundred, 15 cents.

PRICE LIST OF BIBLE CONCORDANCES AND DICTIONARIES OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE supplied on request. Express charges collect on delivery.

REPRINTS (not printed in English). Two-page leaflets, 14 subjects in French and Swedish; 18 subjects in German. Ten copies to one address, 10 cents.

Remittances should always accompany orders, and be made by check, money order, or exchange on Boston or New York. Currency or coin should not be sent by mail unless registered. Please send no money or business letters to the Editor or Editorial Department.

Send all orders for the works of Mrs. Eddy, with remittance by New York or Boston draft or money order, direct to Allison V. Stewart

For literature listed above address orders and make remittances payable to

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

FALMOUTH AND ST. PAUL STREETS, BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

Digitized by Google

Works on Christian Science

Written by MARY BAKER EDDY, Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science and Author of its Text-book

Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures. In one volume, 700 pages. The original, standard, and only text-book on Christian Science Mind-healing. Cloth, one to eleven copies inclusive (cloth only), each $3.00; twelve or more, each $2.75. Full leather, stiff, beveled boards, gilt edges, same paper as in cloth binding, single copy $4.00; twelve or more, each $3.75. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $5.00; twelve or more, each $4.75. Levant, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, round corners, gilt edges, silk sewed, heavy Oxford India Bible paper (wide margins, large-sized book), single copy $6.00; twelve or more, each $5.75.

LARGE TYPE EDITION. Designed especially for the use of First Readers. Large type (18-point) on Oxford India Bible paper, bound in leather. Size 10¾ inches long by 8 inches wide. Single copy $7.50, with a discount of 25 cents each when included in an order for twelve or more copies of Science and Health, and in any or all of the different bindings.

GERMAN TRANSLATION. Alternate pages of English and German. Cloth, one to five copies inclusive, each $3.50; six or more, each $3.25. Pocket edition, printed on Oxford India Bible paper. Morocco, one to five copies inclusive, each $5.50; six or more, each $5.25. Orders for the German translation in lots of six or more may include both bindings.

Orders for Science and Health in lots of twelve or more at quantity prices may include both English and German editions, and different styles of binding.

Miscellaneous Writings. A book of 471 pages, containing articles published in The Christian Science Journal from 1883 to 1896, with revisions and additions. Cloth, single copy $2.25; twelve or more, each $2.00. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $4.00; twelve or more, each $3.75. Levant, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, round corners, gilt edges, silk sewed, Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $5.00; twelve or more, each $4.75. Orders for Miscellaneous Writings in lots of twelve or more may include any or all of the different styles of binding. No discount will be allowed on orders for twelve books which include both Science and Health and Miscellaneous Writings.

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany. A book of 366 pages, containing articles published in The Christian Science Journal and Sentinel, subsequent to the compilation of Miscellaneous Writings, together with historical matter pertaining thereto. Cloth, single copy $2.25; six or more, each $2.00. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, convenient for pocket, single copy $4.00; six or more, each $3.75. Orders for six or more may include the two styles of binding.

Concordance to Science and Health. This work contains about eighty thousand references (more than ten thousand words being indexed), also an index to the Marginal Headings, and a list of the Scriptural Quotations in Science and Health. 611 pages, stiff morocco cover, single copy $5.00; six or more, each $4.50.

Concordance to Mrs. Eddy's Published Writings Other Than Science and Health. It contains 1,103 pages, and is published only in Bible paper edition, with stiff morocco cover. Single copy, $6.00; six or more, each, $5.50.

Christ and Christmas. An illustrated poem. Single copy $3.00; six or more, each $2.50.

Unity of Good and Other Writings. One volume, containing Unity of Good, Rudimental Divine Science, No and Yes, Retrospection and Introspection; uniform in style with the pocket edition of Science and Health. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, heavy Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $3.50; six or more, each $3.25.

Christian Healing and Other Writings. One volume, containing Christian Healing, The People's Idea of God, Pulpit and Press, Christian Science versus Pantheism, Messages of 1900, 1901, 1902; uniform in style with the pocket edition of Science and Health. Morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, heavy Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $3.50; six or more, each $3.25.

Church Manual. Containing the By-laws of The Mother Church. Cloth, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents. Pocket edition, morocco, limp, round corners, gilt edges, Oxford India Bible paper, single copy $2.00; six or more, each $1.75.

GERMAN TRANSLATION. Alternate pages of English and German. Cloth, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Retrospection and Introspection. A biographical sketch of the author; the way she was led to the discovery of Christian Science; its fundamental idea and growth. Library edition, cloth, 95 pages, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Unity of Good. This book lays the axe at the root of error, elucidating and enforcing practical Christian Science, thus affording invaluable directions for all true Scientists. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, 64 pages, single copy 60 cents; six or more, each 45 cents. Pocket edition, leather covers, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Pulpit and Press. A unique work, of importance in the history and to the readers of Christian Science; containing the message or sermon written for the dedicatory service of The Mother Church, January 6, 1895, and scintillations from the press of that occasion. Library edition, cloth, 90 pages, single copy $1.00; six or more, each 75 cents.

Rudimental Divine Science. A brief and concise statement of Divine Science, alias Christian Science, in the form of questions and answers. Pebbled cloth covers, gilt top, 17 pages, single copy 32 cents; six or more, each 25 cents. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 35 cents.

PRINTED in the New York point and American Braille systems of type for the use of the blind, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

No and Yes. A brief statement of very important points in Christian Science. Pebbled cloth covers, 46 pages, single copy 32 cents; six or more, each 25 cents. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 55 cents; six or more, each 45 cents.

Messages to The Mother Church. Including in one volume, 94 pages, Christian Science versus Pantheism, and the Messages of 1900, 1901, and 1902. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy $1.50; six or more, each $1.15.

Christian Science versus Pantheism. The Pastor Emeritus' Message delivered at the Communion Season in The Mother Church in Boston, June, 1898. A clear and strong refutation of the charge that Christian Scientists are pantheists. Pebbled cloth covers, 15 pages, single copy 25 cents; six or more, each 20 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1900. Paper covers, deckled edges, 15 pages, single copy 25 cents; six or more, each 20 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1901. Paper covers, deckled edges, 35 pages, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 38 cents.

Message to The Mother Church, June, 1902. Paper covers, deckled edges, 20 pages, single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 38 cents.

Christian Healing, and The People's Idea of God. Two sermons in one volume, 36 pages. Library edition, cloth, marbled edges, single copy 55 cents; six or more, each 45 cents.

Christian Healing. A sermon delivered in Boston. Paper covers, 20 pages, single copy 20 cents; six or more, each 17 cents.

The People's Idea of God. A sermon delivered in Boston. Paper covers, 14 pages, single copy 20 cents; six or more, each 17 cents.

Poems. This volume of 79 pages includes all of Mrs. Eddy's hymns, also her earlier poems which appeared in various publications from forty to sixty years ago. Specially bound. Single copy $1.50; six or more, each $1.25.

Feed My Sheep. Solo. Words by Mary Baker Eddy, music by Lyman F. Brackett. Single copy 50 cents; six or more, each 40 cents.

The foregoing prices cover all charges for express or postage on shipments either domestic or foreign.

Quantity prices are on shipments to one address only, but quantity lots at quantity prices cannot be made up of different books or of different styles of binding. Attention is called, however, to the exception to this rule which is made in the cases of Science and Health, and of Miscellaneous Writings, as given under these titles in this price list.

Address all orders for above works, and make remittance by New York or Boston draft or money order, to

ALLISON V. STEWART, FALMOUTH AND ST. PAUL STS., BOSTON, MASS.

Digitized by Google

JUN 11 1917
WISCONSIN
HISTORICAL LIBRARY

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SENTINEL

"What I say unto you I say unto all-WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX No. 41

Boston, June 9, 1917

Contents of This Number

Items of Interest (Brief Mention of Important Events)		802
Annual Meeting of The Mother Church		803
Report of the Treasurer		804
Report of the Clerk		805
Statement by the Trustees under the Will of Mary Baker Eddy		806
Giving a Lecture	William R. Rathvon	806
Selected Articles		808
God Is Love (Poem)	Henrietta D. Sanger	809
Editorial
The Mother Church		810
Powerful Cooperation		810
Children and Purity		810
Announcement		811
The Readers of The Mother Church		811
Among the Churches (Current Notes)
Bellevue, Ohio		811
Indianapolis, Ind.		812
Hanford, Cal.		812
Salt Lake City, Utah		812
The Lectures
Lecturers Appointed		812
St. Paul, Minn.		812
Weehawken, N. J.		813
Merced, Cal.		813
Testimonies of Healing		814
From Our Exchanges		817

A LADY WITH A LAMP SHALL STAND IN THE GREAT HISTORY OF THE LAND

A NOBLE TYPE OF GOOD HEROIC WOMANHOOD
Longfellow

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY
FALMOUTH AND ST PAUL STREETS BOSTON MASS U.S.A.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

(THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE WEEKLY)

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY BY

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

Falmouth and St. Paul Sts., Boston, Mass., U.S.A.

ARCHIBALD McLELLAN
Editor

ANNIE M. KNOTT — WILLIAM D. McCRACKAN
Associate Editors

Subscription Price

Payable in advance

Annual subscription price, postpaid, in the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, Shanghai, Panama, and the Canal Zone, $2.00; six months, $1.00; three months, 50 cents. For Canada add 45 cents and for all other countries 95 cents annually for postage. For subscriptions in quantities please refer to page four in THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE JOURNAL.

Subscriptions to the SENTINEL will begin with the current issue unless otherwise specified. The delivery of the periodical will indicate that a remittance has been credited and will be our acknowledgment of the subscription.

Bound Volumes: Current year or two years previous, cloth, $3.25; half calf or half morocco, $4.00. On earlier volumes write for prices.

Terms of Sale

	United States, Mexico, and Cuba	Canada	All Other Countries
Single copy	$ .05	$ .06	$ .07
Four or more copies	.03½	.04	.05

Equivalents of United States money

		£	s.	d.	Marks	Francs
$ .60	equals	0	2	6	2.52	3.12
1.15	"	0	4	9	4.85	5.98
1.25	"	0	5	2	5.30	6.50
2.33	"	0	9	7	9.83	12.09
2.38	"	0	9	10	10.05	12.35
2.63	"	0	10	9	11.10	13.65
2.65	"	0	10	10	11.20	13.78
2.70	"	0	11	1	11.40	14.04
2.95	"	0	12	2	12.50	15.34
5.00	"	1	0	7	21.15	26.00
7.50	"	1	10	10	31.73	39.00
8.00	"	1	12	11	33.85	41.60

Make all remittances payable to The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Postage required for remailing this copy: 1 cent domestic and Canada; 2 cents other countries.

Entered at Boston, Mass., post-office as second-class matter.

Items of Interest

With a view to the obtaining of electrical power for the operation of the Swiss Federal railways, the authorities have already acquired a number of waterworks, and are endeavoring to obtain other concessions. Altogether, ten power works have been planned so far, with a maximum capacity of some 500,000 horse-power. The building of all these works would have to be distributed over a considerable period of time, as the electrification of the railways would require immense sums. The administration is therefore arranging to grant subconcessions with regard to waters on which it already holds concessions but which are not needed for the present.

The Dominican Republic, in the eastern part of the island of Haiti, has an area of nearly twenty thousand square miles, being about twice the size of the republic of Haiti, or more than five times that of Porto Rico. The latest estimate of the population is 700,000. The land is fertile virgin soil. Roads, bridges, and other public works are being built, harbors improved, and a general reorganization of all utilities is taking place. The climate is healthful. The blowing of trade winds most of the year makes the nights cool, and only a short part of the day can be called hot. From early December until June there is very little rain.

As the Galapagos Islands have long been economically worthless to Ecuador, there is a growing inclination on the part of the people, it is said, to offer them for sale to the United States. The price paid for the Virgin Islands, formerly Danish West Indies, is said to have made a great impression on them. The islands lie about eight hundred miles southwest of the Panama Canal, close to the road of steamers plying between the canal and New Zealand, Australia, and the rest of Oceania, and the lower East Indies. The population of the group is about four hundred.

A company has been organized for the purpose of building a baseball grand stand in the city of Caracas in Venezuela. Baseball was introduced into Caracas in 1896 by a group of young men who had attended schools in the United States. It has spread all over the republic, and is practically the only open air athletic sport known to the people at large. The language of the game is all in English. With the erection of the grand stand it is suggested that a league of the four best teams of Caracas and two La Guayra clubs may be formed.

A broad avenue lined with trees is to connect the Peruvian cities of Chorillos, Barranca, Miraflores, Magdalena, Callao, and La Punta. An association formed by the proprietors of estates along the proposed highway has been authorized by the Government to begin work on the avenue at once, so that it may be completed by the end of September. It is to be called Avenida Miramar, and will be 15 meters wide, 7 meters to be used exclusively for automobiles, 4 for horses, 2½ for pedestrians, and 1½ for irrigating ditches to keep the trees growing.

Secretary Lane of the United States Department of the Interior announces that during April approximately 615,400 acres were designated under the enlarged homestead act, through which the entryman may acquire a homestead of 320 acres. If the settler has already filed on 160 acres under the original homestead law, under this act he may acquire an additional 160 acres. The lands made available during the month for these larger homesteads have all been classified by the Geological Survey as non-irrigable.

A recent presidential decree authorizes the expenditure of 81,000,000 francs in executing certain public works in the French zone of Morocco. Of this amount over four fifths is for the improvement and construction of roads, and other large sums are provided for telegraph systems, irrigation works, experiment farms, buildings, and the like, and for the establishment of public services in the country. The total length of roads, exclusive of municipal roads, provided for by this and by a previous decree is 1190 miles.

Returns issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission show one of the greatest safety achievements in the history of American railways in their record for the summer of 1916. In the quarter from July to September, when the roads handled the largest passenger movement in their history, the returns show that there were but two passengers fatally injured in train accidents. During the quarter there were approximately 10,684,000,000 passengers carried one mile.

Since the outbreak of war the United Kingdom has taken first place in Europe as a producer of vegetable oils. At Hull in 1916 the total imports of raw materials of all kinds for the production of oils were over 600,000 tons. In 1915 the gross imports of the United Kingdom were valued at $101,666,061, and those of Hull at $36,068,206. These included linseed, rapeseed, cottonseed, palm kernels, castor beans, soya beans, and other materials.

Acting on recommendations of the war and navy departments, the rivers and harbors committee of the House of Representatives has voted to deepen the channel to Hell Gate, New York, from 35 to 40 feet, at a cost of $2,400,000. The increased depth is needed in order that the great dreadnoughts may pass into Long Island Sound from New York.

In the British Protectorates of East Africa and the territory of German East Africa there are estimated to be some 75,000 acres of land devoted to the production of coconuts. This acreage contains approximately 4,000,000 trees and produces yearly about 136,000,000 nuts, while the total value of the annual exports of copra is $1,315,200.

Bolivia, the inland republic of South America, has at present approximately 804 miles of railway. On July 4, 1917, following the establishment of train service to Cochabamba, the approximate mileage will be 840. Final completion of lines under active construction will increase the mileage to about 1100 within the next two or three years; and if the elaborate program of railway construction as projected is carried out, the country will in time have upward of 3000 miles of line.

In accordance with the program of elevator construction prepared by the state bank of Russia, it was proposed to build in various governments a total of 82 elevators, with an aggregate capacity of 1,067,000 short tons. Of these elevators, 40 with a total capacity of 464,000 tons are completed and open for use, and 27 are under construction.

The area of the Madras Presidency, British India, is 142,330 square miles, and the population in 1911, exclusive of states and agencies, was 41,405,404, of whom 14,884 were Europeans. In the native state of Cochin 482 miles of road were maintained in 1914. In Travancore the length of main roads was 2511 miles, and of village roads 1734 miles.

The President of Peru has issued detailed regulations for the national accounting. The text of these regulations deals with the budget, the collection of taxes, the keeping of accounts of the mint, public credit, postal and telegraph services, the army, foreign legations, and the national educational, charitable, and penal institutions.

The necessity of strict economy in the use of fuel has led to a decision to concentrate diamond cutting and polishing in twenty-four of the most important factories in Amsterdam, Holland. Although this will close about eighty smaller establishments, it will not deprive any workmen of employment.

The Essex County (Mass.) Ornithological Club held its second annual bird observing trip down the Ipswich River May 19 and 20. In all a total of ninety-one native birds was identified. This was equal to the record of last year, although lists for the two years were not identical as to individual birds.

Loans to farmers by the Federal land banks have passed the $1,000,000 mark, and are being made at the rate of $150,000 a day. The board estimates that loans during the first year of its operation will exceed $150,000,000.

The fresh meat industry is becoming an important factor in the business and industrial life of New Zealand, it having supplied exports during the past two years to the value of $75,045,532.

Late estimates of the joint crops of the Imperial Valley and the Turlock section of California place the figures at 152,235,000 cantaloups, or close to 10,000 carloads.

The report of the provincial game warden estimates the value of the fur trade of British Columbia for 1916 at $1,200,000. The principal furs are beaver, lynx, and fox.

The salt production of the United States last year was the greatest on record, amounting to 4,872,656 short tons.

In 1916 the total gold output of the Gold Coast Colony, West Africa, was 389,068 ounces, valued at $7,860,079.

Straw braid valued at $1,400,318 was invoiced at Tientsin, China, for the United States during 1916.

Digitized by Google

Christian Science Sentinel

"What I say unto you, I say unto all, WATCH" Jesus

Vol. XIX June 9, 1917 No. 41

Annual Meeting of The Mother Church

ANOTHER year of great growth in the Christian Science movement was reported at the annual business meeting of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, The Mother Church, in Boston, held in the church edifice Monday afternoon, June 4.

Proceedings began with the singing of the 195th hymn, "Shepherd, show me how to go," by Mary Baker Eddy. After this the meeting was opened by the President, William P. McKenzie, who read the following selections from the Bible with correlative passages from the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures":—

Bible: Deut. xxxii. 1-4; Isaiah lii. 1-3, 6, 7, 10; Mark xiii. 1, 2, 7-10; Luke xxii. 35-37; Matt. xxviii. 18-20.

Science and Health: 185, 7; 109, 4; 149, 31-8; 347, 14; 138, 27-2.

After the readings the congregation joined in silent prayer, followed by the audible repetition of the Lord's Prayer. The hymn 173, "Be firm and be faithful," was then sung, and after this the names of the officers for the ensuing year were read by Mr. McKenzie: President, William D. McCrackan, of Boston; Treasurer, Adam H. Dickey, of Brookline; Clerk, John V. Dittemore, of Boston; first reader, Bicknell Young, of Chicago; second reader, Mrs. Mary Bayrd Colby, of Detroit. The retiring President, Mr. McKenzie, then introduced the new President in the following words:—

"Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord?" In ancient times from far distant points representatives of the tribes of Israel used to come to Jerusalem. On the way, as they journeyed, they sang about the city—"Jerusalem is builded as a city that is compact together: whither the tribes go up, the tribes of the Lord, . . . to give thanks unto the name of the Lord." Their journey was made over the visible toilsome way, their worship was through bodily presence in the temple; but today the ascending and the worship is becoming universal, because it is "in spirit and in truth." "Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? or who shall stand in his holy place? He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart; who hath not lifted up his soul unto vanity, nor sworn deceitfully."

We are assembled here in an annual meeting of The Mother Church, and we are conscious of the great multitude of our fellow members who are with us ascending the hill of God. There is a song of joy, inaudible to the senses, rising continuously in the hearts of all of us. We rejoice that material symbols disappear and that reality appears. We rejoice that we are no longer tempted to make descents and stay our progress for the scansion and criticism of errors, or for the finding of faults in our brethren. We rejoice in a unity brought about by faith in Principle, which makes of the members of this great church a cooperative host, loving among themselves and friendly to every one in the world. Who can measure the potency of this united love to bring harmony and health to mankind? If in our own hearts we actually do know that no accuser is there, then we understand how, as our text-book says, "Love sends forth her primal and everlasting strain" (Science and Health, p. 568).

It is now my great privilege to introduce into the office of President of this church universal, a dear friend for whom I had good will and admiration before either of us knew about Christian Science,—when he was a writer of history and I a university instructor. In the years that have intervened, in our occasional meetings and associations his friendship has enriched my life and given me courage, and his friendliness has reached to very many others also, because he has been proving himself a friend of God. We can hardly value enough the support and strength that come to workers in the Christian Science movement because of mutual friendship, whereby they are inspired and encouraged and reminded of God's love. Let us hope and pray for the time when all mankind shall give up that "friendship of the world," that cupidity, materialism, and self-will which the apostle James says "is enmity with God," and accept God as the real source of all good, and man's unfailing friend. Then will be the reaching of our desired haven, whereof Mrs. Eddy wrote (Sentinel, May 19, 1906):—

Come, endless day,—no night, no site,
No climbing and no tire,—
The ascent made, the burden laid,
Nor yoke, nor tear, nor bier.

I now present to you Mr. W. D. McCrackan, already well known to you, who will occupy the position of President of The Mother Church for the coming year.

The new President, Mr. McCrackan, replied as follows:—

The need of the hour is powerful and loving cooperation. The enemy stands at the gates, and those within the protecting shelter of The Mother Church are more than ever under obligations to support each other. How can this be done in the most effective manner? Cooperation means working together for the same end. It certainly involves the rejection of all apathy, indifference, or sluggishness.

There should be no question in our minds that our duty to God involves loyalty to a righteous government and to its constituted authorities. When Mrs. Eddy was asked, "What are your politics?" she replied, "I have none, in reality, other than to help support a righteous government; to love God supremely, and my neighbor as myself" (Miscellany, p. 276). This duty involves a ready response to the call for help from the different departments of that government.

Those who enjoy the protection of a government in times of peace should be willing, by their alertness to duty, to protect that same government in times of war. Christian Scientists—having before them the Christ-idea, hence the highest ideal which can come to mankind—are not confused by the seeming disparity between that ideal and human life and its obligations. Their Science teaches them that mortality can never become immortality, nor matter Spirit, but that both immortality and Spirit, coming to mortality and matter, cause the latter to disappear, and that in the process of disappearance mortal existence improves.

Copyright, 1917, by The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Digitized by Google

Christian Scientists are learning that they can bring to the demands of human life, in a world which is at war, the rays of light which will improve that human life without destroying it. From the standpoint of absolute Science there is of course no war, no turmoil, no hatred, no selfishness, and no occult force trying to take advantage of carnal beliefs to perpetuate themselves. But the Adam-dream does present all of these phases, and their claims to existence must be frustrated by combined work.

Our great Leader deplored the backwardness of Christian Scientists in learning to handle error, as she taught them to do: neither to ignore error, nor to make it real. And it is safe to say that every one of us who is necessarily desirous of progressing in Christian Science is struggling with this very question and seeking to follow the teachings of our Leader on the subject.

It is only natural, therefore, that we find ourselves in various states and stages of solving this procedure, and that at different times in our experience we gain a new light which shows us more clearly how to handle error without making it real. It is evident, therefore, that the greatest charity and patience should be exercised by us with reference to our neighbor, and it is equally important for those who after many years of practice and demonstration have attained the point where all error is apparent to them solely as mesmerism, should not expect the beginner to reach this same result without having earned it, nor try to prevent him from taking the human footsteps requisite for such an attainment.

We find in our Leader's writings much latitude given for the handling of error and but few specific rules. The necessary loving cooperation, therefore, must be based upon the willingness to let each one within the teachings of our Leader work out the handling of error individually. Only in this way can we bring out inspiration and demonstration, unity of purpose, and hold up each other's hands in the hour of crisis with divine compassion. Only in this manner can we prove we have "charity broad enough to cover the whole world's evil" (Miscellaneous Writings, p. 224).

This is the time when we can encourage each other and sink our differences of human opinion out of sight. We are members of a church which has become world wide and is calling under its beneficent shelter the sick and the sinning everywhere. In order to do justice to them we must learn to do justice to each other. We can assume in every instance that the motive which actuates our brother is a good one; time will test it. We need not assume that those who are active in the movement are actuated by questionable motives, for Christian Science does not present sufficient popularity to induce any one to follow it on that score.

The Christian Science movement casts off automatically that which is unworthy of the Christ, and retains only that which is in accordance with the teachings of our Leader. It was a great step from the Ten Commandments of Moses to the Beatitudes of Jesus. In this advance the Ten Commandments were not abrogated, but explained, and obedience to the spirit of them was made possible. Today we have in the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, another great advance by means of which the Bible and all Christian history become transparent through spiritual interpretation, and the foundation is laid for a world wide redemption through which evil of every name and nature is destined to be swept from the earth; all sin, suffering, disease, and death; all hate and aggressive mental suggestion, malicious mental malpractice, all pretense of power in obscurantism and self-styled esoteric magic attempting to manipulate men and nations.

We are an army of Christian Scientists. The United States has called Americans to war for the protection of certain ideals. Let us ask ourselves the question, Are we mentally armed with our work of mental treatment for the world against the red dragon? Are we laggards, or are we filling our places individually, praying daily as well as giving freely of our activities as God outlines for the protection of the free institutions which must spread to all nations of the world? God is infinite. Are we real soldiers, keeping step together, shoulder to shoulder, eyes straight ahead, saluting the commandants in strict attention to the commands of our Leader to love one another, to be fruitful in season and out of season, holding our standard so high that it fills the sky and resounds around the world with its helping and saving power.

Let us promise ourselves today that we will not let our standard trail in the dust. God is capable of all good, and we as Christian Scientists can trust those capabilities, and not push, nor crowd, nor elbow, nor fear, nor criticize, nor condemn, but sing praises of gladness that this army of the Lord is united by the power of Principle; and as there is the reflection of compassionate love which Jesus left as a legacy to mankind, the reflected glory of God will be established "in earth, as it is in heaven."

Gratitude to our beloved Leader, Mary Baker Eddy, Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, and author of our text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," will be the foundation stone of our further progress. Renewing daily our love for her, we will learn to follow where she leads. Let us have a movement free from scholastic theology, fertile in the abundance of spiritual ideas, warmed and mellowed by the light of Life, Truth, and Love.

Report of the Treasurer

The report of the Treasurer, which was in part as follows, was then read by Mr. Adam H. Dickey:—

General Fund.—The Treasurer announced that payments on the park property in front of the church had been completed. This obligation originally amounted to $230,000, contracted in the year 1909 with Mrs. Eddy's consent.

The Memorial Fund.—The Memorial Fund was closed Feb. 24, 1917, with a total amount contributed of $171,971.60. Of this sum $161,171.36 has been expended in the erection of the memorial. Whatever balance is left will be devoted to a maintenance fund.

The Children's Busy Bee Trust Fund.—Three years and a half ago the Treasurer began the disbursement of the Busy Bee Trust Fund, set aside by Mrs. Eddy, to be paid to the children who had contributed toward the furnishing of her room in the original Mother Church. The amount of money in this fund was $6840, and $2.40 has to be paid to each child, 2850 of whom contributed to the fund. The sum of $3420 has been paid to 1425 children. The balance remaining in the fund, on June 1, 1917, was $3435.37.

The War Relief Fund.—The total receipts of this fund to May 31, 1917, amounted to $310,739.40. Of this amount, $264,474.74 has been forwarded to the committees of Christian Scientists intrusted with the distribution. These Christian Scientists have given their services freely for this purpose. The relief work done in countries where The Mother Church has no committees of Christian Scientists, such as Armenia, Belgium, Lithuania, Poland, and Serbia, was carried on through responsible and accredited organizations, through United States consulates, and through the State Department at Washington.

The Christian Science Benevolent Association and the

Digitized by Google

Real Estate Fund.—The report of the contributions to The Christian Science Benevolent Association showed a very favorable activity, which was also apparent in the contributions to the real estate fund. The Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Benevolent Association have been busily engaged working with architects in the preparation of plans for the new institution. They hope to be ready to begin building operations in the early fall, at which time due notice will be given through our periodicals.

In 1903 The Christian Science Publishing Society and the publisher of Mrs. Eddy's works occupied two small dwelling houses at Nos. 93 and 95 Falmouth Street, where they furnished employment for about twenty people. A visit to the Publishing House today, with its tremendous activities, furnishing employment for nearly six hundred people, will readily disclose why the purchase of additional real estate was necessary. Besides, the property so acquired forms a beautiful setting to The Mother Church and the Publishing House.

Mr. Dickey also read the report of Edwin L. Pride & Co., certified public accountants, who had audited the books and accounts of the Treasurer and certified to their correctness.

Report of the Clerk of The Mother Church

By Mr. Dittemore.—On a previous occasion similar to this one, our Leader wrote to the members of The Mother Church as follows: "Brethren, our annual meeting is a grave guardian. It requires you to report progress, to refresh memory, to rejuvenate the branches and to vivify the buds, to bend upward the tendrils and to incline the vine toward the parent trunk. You come from feeding your flocks, big with promise; and you come with the sling of Israel's chosen one to meet the Goliaths" (The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany, p. 125). And so we today bring evidence unmistakable to show that this selfsame "sling of Israel's chosen one" has been meeting and slaying the "Goliaths" of material sense and sustaining the onward march of Truth during the eventful year just closing.

The announcement can again be made that a greater number of new members have been admitted to The Mother Church during the year than in any previous year. The net increase in Christian Science organizations has been 109, which is the greatest of any year in the history of the Christian Science movement. Included in this number are new churches and societies in Great Britain, Canada, Porto Rico, and Argentina.

During the past twelve months 2287 Christian Science lectures have been given, with a total attendance estimated at about 1,600,000 persons, this attendance being an increase of about 40,000 over the estimated attendance of last year. Tours have been made during the year by members of the board of lectureship to South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines, China, Japan, Hawaii, and Alaska, and also to several of the countries of continental Europe. The lectures given in Cordova, Skagway, and Valdez, Alaska; Tien-tsin, China; Yokohama, Japan; Prince Rupert, British Columbia; and Port Elizabeth, South Africa, were the first public presentations of Christian Science in these cities.

The columns of The Christian Science Journal show an increase during the year of 343 practitioners engaged exclusively in the healing work. A gain has been made during the year in the circulation of all of the Christian Science publications. More Christian Scientists have awakened to an understanding of the aims, purposes, and world wide mission of The Christian Science Monitor than ever before, and thereby have they added to it the strength of their intelligent cooperation and support. The appreciation of The Christian Science Monitor outside the Christian Science movement, by men and women of large affairs throughout the English speaking world, is an inspiration and a prophecy of things to come.

In the war stricken countries of Europe assistance has been given during the year to many persons, both Christian Scientists and others, through the effective administration of The Mother Church war relief fund. This fund deserves your continued support. It has brought to many in dire distress a practical application of Christian Science and has proved to thousands the humanity of the teaching and practice of Christian Science.

The officers of The Mother Church feel impelled again urgently to call to the attention of the field the vital necessity for greater care in the approval of applications for membership in The Mother Church, and also in the examination and acceptance of candidates for branch church and society membership. The accumulation of numbers without intelligent loyalty and proven Christianly scientific capacity for the vital duties and responsibility of church membership would weaken any Christian Science organization, and obstruct the accomplishment of the great work for which it has been formed.

The influence for good of a church composed of fifty strong, devoted, and experienced Christian Scientists will be more far reaching and effective than one with several times that number of members, a large proportion of whom are inactive and apathetic. Experience has proven that the ability of applicants reasonably to demonstrate for themselves the maintenance of good bodily health, and to have established and maintained a standard of citizenship consistent with the ideals of Christian Science, are among the essential qualifications for entering upon the larger duties and responsibilities of church membership. When these conditions prevail, and when the applicant has also given evidence of his discernment of his privilege and his obligation as a Christian Scientist by having supported the literature of Christian Science and its other activities, then may he be fairly counted upon to do his part in making the church a "structure of Truth and Love" (Science and Health, p. 583).

Although legitimate exceptions may occur in rare instances, it should be considered the rule that applications for Mother Church membership should come from those who after a reasonable period of branch church membership have proven beyond doubt their consecration to the cause and their intelligent, effective understanding of their responsibilities as progressive Christian Scientists. In Christian Science has come the duty of giving to the world new definitions of "church" and "church membership." Let us remember, as Mrs. Eddy has clearly pointed out, that these definitions can be fulfilled only to the extent that an organization "is found elevating the race, rousing the dormant understanding from material beliefs to the apprehension of spiritual ideas and the demonstration of divine Science, thereby casting out devils, or error, and healing the sick" (Science and Health, p. 583).

In the twenty-fourth chapter of Matthew Jesus describes the conditions which shall precede the end of the world of material belief. His prophetic utterances, as well as the inspired words of Mrs. Eddy, compel the conclusion that the destiny of the world lies in the demonstration of Christian Science. The days of war and tribulation can only be "shortened" (verses 21 and 22) as the elect in the true understanding and demonstration of the Christ shall shape their "course in accordance with divine Science" (Science and Health, p. 96), and hold in check the criminal instinct and actions of individuals, organizations, and nations.

Digitized by Google

If it is for this destiny that your Mother Church and its branches exist, can you do less than guard and support with unfaltering zeal their every need?

STATEMENT BY THE TRUSTEES UNDER THE WILL OF MARY BAKER EDDY

By Mr. Neal, Chairman.—For your information and encouragement the Trustees under the Will of Mary Baker Eddy desire to present a report of their activities for the year ending June 1, 1917, as follows:—

Free Distribution of Literature.—One thousand and sixty churches and societies, with literature distribution committees, have reported on their work for the year ending Oct. 31, 1916. This number shows an increase of 101 reports over the previous year. These reports show that $210,164.25 was spent for literature, postage, and wrappers. On Dec. 31, 1915, the Trustees assisted the churches and societies by paying to them $69,764.25, or 60 per cent of the amount for distribution work during 1915. After deducting this amount from the past year's expenditure of $210,164.25, there remains $140,400, which represents the amount contributed to this work by churches and societies. The Trustees have returned to these churches and societies 50 per cent of the amount contributed by them to this work, or $70,200.

Thirteen thousand and four copies of the Christian Science text-book, and other authorized books, and 2,574,175 Christian Science periodicals and other pieces of authorized literature, have been given to free lending libraries maintained by Christian Science churches, to public libraries, libraries of universities, colleges, and normal schools, to Federal and State prisons and reformatories, and to men in the armies and navies of different countries. Arrangements are being made to furnish Christian Science literature to the men in the Army and Navy of the United States.

Lectures.—Under certain restrictions, assistance has been given in paying the traveling expenses of lecturers who have been called to foreign fields; assistance has been given to new churches and societies in paying the expenses of their first lectures, and to Christian Science organizations at universities and colleges in paying the expenses of annual lectures. The sum of $25,394.60 has been spent for lecture work.

Church Edifices.—During the past year the Trustees have given aid to eighty-eight churches and societies in erecting, purchasing, and remodeling church edifices, which represent a total cost of $1,328,610.86. Grants aggregating $315,513.07 have been paid to these organizations by the Trustees. Thirty-three other applications for assistance in church building have been approved, and the sum of $137,803.56 has been voted and will be paid to the applicants when they have made their financial demonstrations. This means that payment will be made when the churches have raised sufficient funds so that the grant from the Trustees, when applied, will render them free from all indebtedness.

This statement was followed by reports from the field, which were read by John Randall Dunn: First Church, Montreal; Christian Science Society of Radcliffe College, Cambridge; Third Church, Indianapolis; First Church, Kitchener, Ontario; First Church, Wilmington, Del.; the sixteen churches in Chicago; Christian Science Society of Simmons College, Boston; Christian Science Society of the University of California; First Church, Birmingham, Ala.; First Church, Baltimore, Md.; Christian Science Society of Harvard University; First Church, Minneapolis; Second Church, Minneapolis; the six churches in St. Louis; the twelve churches and three societies in Greater New York; First Church, Winnipeg; Christian Science Society of Dawson, Yukon Territory, Canada; Christian Science Society of Pretoria, South Africa; First Church, Berlin, Germany; First Church, St. Paul; First Church, Rock Island, Ill.; First Church, Tampa, Fla.; First Church, New London, Conn. Many other reports were received which could not be read. The meeting terminated with the singing of the Doxology.

Giving a Lecture

WILLIAM R. RATHVON

GIVING a lecture is a partnership affair. The two partners involved are the church and the lecturer, and when the work of both is well done the good results of the lecture are far reaching and lasting. The duties of both partners may be broadly defined as physical and metaphysical. The physical duties of the church are largely preparatory and preliminary to the lecture itself, and are set forth with painstaking detail in the official circular of the board of lectureship, which is revised and issued in June of each year.

This annual circular, while advisory and not mandatory, is of great value to the church, to the public, and to the lecturer, and should be preserved during the year and studied carefully by the officers of the church and by the lecture committees. Yet occasionally there are found instances where church officials and those in charge of a lecture have apparently never read the circular, although it is prepared expressly for their use and contains the fruits of many years of experience. It is not therefore to be wondered at that in such cases discord, limitation, and confusion are in evidence where harmony should prevail.

In Science timeliness is an element of right procedure, and the Christian Scientist who would do the right thing takes pains to do it at the right time. Thus he makes things easier and better not only for himself but also for those who are cooperating with him. This applies to every feature of our lecture work, but particularly to promptness in making engagements for the year's lectures. Experience has shown that the best time to do this is when the annual circular of the board of lectureship is received from Boston.

The lecturer has a certain number of dates during the season which are at the disposal of the churches that may call him, and it is due to them that he should assign these dates with as little delay as possible; but delay as well as disappointment is often unavoidable when calls are deferred until shortly before the lecture is desired. It is well to remember that the farther in advance the notice is given, the greater is the probability of getting what is desired. The assignment of dates by the lecturer requires much patience, thorough acquaintance with railroad schedules, and good judgment in the grouping of calls so as to avoid unnecessarily long journeys from one point to another. All of this preliminary arrangement demands the best physical and metaphysical attention the lecturer can give it, for it is through just such channels that error, if unmolested, would inject confusion, delays, mistakes, misunderstandings, and reversals.

If all the churches and societies were to send in their calls for the ensuing year during the month of July, the lecturers could the more economically and scientifically arrange them in neighborly order, thus reducing error's opportunities. The long detours with their attendant expenses would be largely eliminated, and promptness would aid in the doing of all things "decently and in order." It is gratifying to note that each season an increasing number of churches place their calls early for the ensuing year's lectures, and since the giving of one or more lectures annually is a part of the year's work of every church, there would seem to be no good reason why all should not do this. Such an arrangement calls for individual activity, for promptness in a church is manifested only in the proportion that the members make their individual demonstrations over that lazy thief of time commonly called procrastination.

Digitized by Google

It should be borne in mind that the giving of a Christian Science lecture is something more than merely speaking a lot of carefully prepared words and phrases night after night to different groups of hearers. There is much metaphysical work, known only to the lecturer himself, which is to be done both in the writing of a lecture and in its delivery. No two lectures are given under precisely the same conditions, and each requires mental preparation peculiar to itself. There are occasions when the lecturer could profitably give hours to such work of special preparation, when because of continuous travel from widely separated points he has but minutes to give to it after he has arrived at his destination.

As the benefits of a lecture should reach the many, its responsibility should not be confined to the few. If the lecturer is to be regarded as the hub of the wheel, the church members must certainly be the spokes, and the latter are just as necessary to completeness as the former is. In the earlier days of our church history a lecture was an event of importance in the church life, and each member took a personal interest in making it a success. If not appointed on some committee or assigned some specific duty, he nevertheless felt a degree of responsibility for the success of the lecture, even though he could outwardly do no more than to bring it to the notice of his friends and remind them opportunely of the date. This community of interest, or team work, resulted in many visitors gaining their first introduction to Christian Science by being present at a lecture as companions or guests of a Scientist friend.

It is regrettable that this spirit of general interest and responsibility is not so observable as formerly. Committees of efficient workers capably attend to details, but the rank and file of the membership sometimes seem contented to remember the date and get there on time. Individual interest is still sustained, but individual responsibility has to some degree departed. It used to be "our lecture;" now it is more commonly "a lecture." The mission of a Christian Science lecture is to enlighten, instruct, and heal the multitudes, and both parties—the church and the lecturer—should contribute to this end in time, thought, and endeavor. When every church member feels that the lecture is his lecture, that he has a share in its giving, that upon him rests a share of responsibility for its success, then he will feel a direct personal interest in it and will strive to give to it the best he has.

The lecture that accomplishes the greatest amount of good is not always the one which pleases the greatest number of people. Its function is not merely to please or entertain, but to help and to heal, and in this healing work the local Scientists have a measure of responsibility and opportunity. The lecture is one of God's chosen methods for imparting spiritual enlightenment, and it is for each and every Scientist to do his part unselfishly and scientifically, giving to the lecture the best support and protection of which he is capable.

It is well to declare and to know that the lecture will be productive of lasting good to the community at large and to the individuals who hear it; that it will heal, dispel prejudice, invite confidence, and install Christian Science in its rightful place in public thought; that it will be thoroughly understood and thoughtfully considered. Let us know too that those who need its message will be present to hear it, and that no erroneous beliefs of lack of time, inclination, or opportunity can keep them away. Where the supremacy of Spirit is realized, time, occasion, and opportunity spontaneously adjust themselves to bring about Spirit's manifestation. The "will of the flesh" cannot thwart the will of God.

The metaphysical work for a lecture, like the physical, should begin early. Such matters as the choice of a lecturer, fixing the time and place, the appointment of committees, and the various details of preparation, should be results of demonstration, not of personal determination. Every thought that touches the subject should be one of construction and helpfulness. Every suggestion of doubt, uncertainty, dissatisfaction, or prejudice should be banished before it can find expression. When personal preferences and predetermined courses are cheerfully subordinated to the desires of the majority, then is true church democracy demonstrated.

Should there be a tendency to give undue weight to beliefs about weather affecting a lecture, it is well to remember that when the preparatory work for a lecture is thoroughly and metaphysically done, the weather of itself cannot frustrate or obstruct the dissemination of truth. There are times when rain or snow is greatly needed for the country's material welfare, and if the mission of either is beneficent it cannot interfere with the beneficent mission of the lecture, for every good is concordant with every other good.

It is not rain or snow which interferes with attendance, but the erroneous belief that rain or snow has more power to keep mortals at home than God's appeal has to draw them to a lecture. When this false belief is broken it will be seen that temperature, humidity, precipitation, are discordantly influential only in so far as human thought may so regard them. The correction of wrong beliefs about the effect of weather upon a lecture must begin in the consciousness of Christian Scientists themselves, for if they have a defective concept, they are not qualified to correct the similar misconceptions of others.

It is perhaps unnecessary to say that under ordinary circumstances it is a wholly mistaken sense of kindness on the part of any Scientist to work mentally for a lecturer, either before or during his appearance on the platform, unless he has himself especially requested it. It is a part of the lecturer's work to take care of himself, and to lighten the burdens of others. He who gets much out of Christian Science is he who puts much into it,—much of study, much of application, much of love and consecration. He is ever reciprocal, ever watchful that his giving keeps pace with his getting, ever doing his part in return for what is done for him. This is as true collectively as it is individually. The Scientist who does much for his church, has a church which does much for him.

This is scientific reciprocity, the team work which is necessary to the success of every lecture given, the loving cooperation which calls for helpfulness, service, unselfishness, thoughtfulness, and loyalty. Thereby will fear and failure alike be eliminated and the healing mission of the lecture be fulfilled,—not through "enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power," to quote St. Paul. Or, as Mrs. Eddy so clearly expresses the same thought in Miscellany (p. 247), "It is not a stern but a loving look which brings forth mankind to receive your bestowal,—not so much eloquence as tender persuasion that takes away their fear, for it is Love alone that feeds them."

Digitized by Google

Selected Articles

[News despatch in The Christian Science Monitor]

The legislature of Alaska has passed and the governor has signed a bill to regulate the practice of medicine in the territory, containing a provision, inserted at the request of Christian Scientists, as follows: "This act shall not apply to the practice of the religious tenets of any church." Alaska thus becomes the twenty-ninth American state or territory to adopt such a statute and expressly provide for the practice of Christian Science without medical regulation or interference.

✧

[Boston (Mass.) Advertiser]

In compliance with the request of Governor McCall, William D. McCrackan, first reader of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, The Mother Church, made an announcement at both services yesterday [June 3] on the Liberty Loan. The members of the congregation were requested to support the loan as a patriotic duty and thus to do their part in sustaining and perpetuating the ideals of democracy.

The Mother Church and its allied activities have already subscribed for Liberty Bonds to the amount of $271,000. Circulars giving full information about the Liberty Loan, together with blank forms for subscriptions, have been given to the employees in the church offices and in The Christian Science Publishing Society, numbering over six hundred. Assistance will be given employees in purchasing Liberty Bonds in whatever amount they may desire. Bonds will be purchased and held for employees on a basis which will enable them to make payments weekly or monthly when necessary.

✧

[Editorial in Cascade (Mont.) Courier]

The Montana legislature is one of the first in the United States to recognize the Christian Science belief and to exempt children of Scientists from the medical examination which the board of health may now order in all schools. In a bill which was introduced by Representative Husser and which is now law, this provision is made: "Nothing in this act shall be construed or operate so as to interfere in any way with the exercise of the child's or parent's religious belief as to examination for, or in the treatment of, disease; provided that non-quarantine regulations relating to contagious or infectious diseases are not infringed upon." Thus the children who hold Christian Science belief may be exempted from the physical examination in schools and no medical treatments may be given them. But if the children of Christian Scientists are known to have or "thought to have" contagious diseases by medical examiners, they may be quarantined the same as other children. Scientists have reason to congratulate themselves on securing official recognition in this law.

✧

[Clarence A. Gustlin in Santa Ana (Cal.) Register]

At a meeting of a certain club devoted to educational themes the interesting subject of "Multiple Personality" was discussed. During the evening two members took occasion to make insinuations against and attacks upon Christian Science, its Founder, and its followers. The writer, although not a Christian Scientist, ventures to register objection to this sort of practice. Without intent dogmatically to defend an institution whose creed has received but comparatively superficial personal investigation, the writer is constrained to admit the appeal of its dominating spiritual ideals and to acknowledge certain personal experience and acquaintance with remarkable physical, moral, and spiritual benefits undoubtedly resultant from an understanding and adoption of these ideals.

Furthermore, the writer believes that the subject of personality, single, dual, or multiple, has received greater elucidation in a single page of Mrs. Eddy's writings than by nineteen centuries of erudite discussion by intellectual clubs. She has written Person with a capital, just as she has written Spirit, Mind, Love, Truth, thus intimating the spiritual concept and divine unity of these. She has contended for the one Mind, the divine personality that was in Christ Jesus —the kingdom not divided against itself. For the representation to the world of such a magnificent concept increasing thousands are calling her name blessed, and in measure as they adopt the Christ-idea, the God-personality, good, Truth, God, or whatever term one may prefer, they are experiencing the fruits of the Spirit even unto its mysterious reactions in bodily health.

The conflict between the several personalities of the subjects chosen for illustration at this club meeting offers very clear analogy to the conflict in humanity itself. As discord in these subjects was inevitable so long as their pseudo-personalities existed, so will discord in humanity be inevitable until personality in its loftiest, truest conception shall reign supreme. What is true of the small unit, the individual, is true of that larger one, the nation, and of the whole, namely, humanity itself.

Were nations guided by the spiritual light of universal Truth, instead of the pseudo-light of erring mortal reason, would the hell that is today in Europe be possible? Never! Thank God, the leaven of Love and spiritual understanding is at work! Witness the world wide fermentation! True Christian ideals were never surging deeper in human consciousness than they are today. The age long dream of human brotherhood is bound to become a reality. A true spiritual understanding between all races and creeds, a sense of unity, a harmony of purpose and endeavor, cooperation, brotherhood,—all these ideals shall emerge as gold purified from the fire. Thus will Christ indeed come again in spirit and in truth. Veritas vincit.

✧

[Peter V. Ross in Oakland (Cal.) Post]

In a sermon, excerpts of which appeared in the columns of the Post, a clergyman argues for a composite system of healing made up of Christian Science and material medicine. No doubt the clergyman is actuated by a sincere desire to promote scientific healing, but he is making a plea for an impossible system. Christian Science and medicine can no more blend or unite than can oil and water, for the two are opposites. The one is entirely material, the other is purely spiritual; and spirit and matter do not and can not mingle. If Christian Science should attempt any such partnership, it would lose its vitality and its power to heal. In fact, it would cease to be Christian Science.

For centuries Christianity has been trying just such a system as the clergyman recommends; that is, Christians have been praying to an all powerful and all intelligent God to heal them, but at the same time have been relying on a non-intelligent drug for health and life, placing reliance for the most part on non-intelligence rather than on all-intelligence. This is having "other gods," and consequently it has not been successful.

Christians of the present day, outside of Christian Scientists, are still depending on this composite system of healing, or else relying on material remedies alone. But the results are so obviously unsatisfactory (disease and mortality are now as much in evidence as they have ever been) that Christian Scientists feel no inclination to abandon spiritual methods of healing. They observe, what should be apparent to every reader of the Bible, that Jesus healed all manner of diseases without resorting to drugs. They are unable to find any record of his ever having recommended or used medicine in any form. They notice that he relied solely upon spiritual means of healing. They remember that as he went about his work of destroying the worst forms of human ills, he declared that those who believed on him could accomplish the same results, and that he commanded his followers to heal the sick as well as to preach the gospel.

Digitized by Google

Christian Scientists are trying to understand the method of healing employed by the Master, and are trying to put his instructions into practice. No one who is informed on the subject will deny that they are making substantial progress, and proving in thousands of cases the superiority of a purely spiritual system of healing over material or mixed systems. In the presence of such results it is not surprising that more and more people are coming to realize the truth of Mrs. Eddy's statement (Science and Health, p. 271): "Those, who are willing to leave their nets or to cast them on the right side for Truth, have the opportunity, now as aforetime, to learn and to practise Christian healing. The Scriptures contain it. The spiritual import of the Word imparts this power."

✧

[Charles M. Shaw in Blackpool (England) Gazette-News]

In the correspondence in your column bearing upon Christian Science prayer, two erroneous expressions have been used. They were: "The abuse by Christian Scientists of the privilege of prayer," and "It is superstitious to expect prayer to remove disease." Briefly speaking, there are two theories of prayer held. One is that the human mind by persistent and believing supplication can prevail upon God to suspend or set aside His laws for the benefit of the supplicant, or those for whom he intercedes; the other, that the object of prayer is so to change the mind of the supplicant and bring it into conformity with the divine Mind, that the order of the divine realm is realized in some degree in human experience, which is practically the Christian Science view.

Ground for accepting the latter as true is afforded by the abundant evidence there is of the direct and immediate influence of mental states upon the body. Where Truth is not understood, fear can produce disease; it can even kill. Anxiety, apprehensiveness, anger, hatred, jealousy, and the like, have unmistakably injurious effects upon health. On the other hand, it is equally true that such mental states as calm confidence, courage, joy, kindliness, and honesty have beneficial effects upon health.

It would be, however, a complete misconception of Christian Science to suppose it to be a method of so disciplining the human mind as to secure good health,—an effort, say, to substitute by will-power calm confidence for anxiety. Christian Scientists know too well the futility as well as the spiritual danger of such methods. Based upon the knowledge of God as Mind or Spirit, according to revelation, and of man as His reflection or expression, therefore spiritual, theirs is the Scriptural method of eliminating progressively the human self and will, substituting for them—or at least striving to bring them into oneness with—the divine Mind or will, so that the latter is enthroned in human consciousness, and produces those fruits of the Spirit which tend to health, as well as establishing a constant mental resistance to the claims of the physical senses.

This is the prayer without ceasing. It cannot be abused, because the more it is exercised the more of divine influence it brings into our lives. It is not superstitious, because it is in conformity with the highest reason and with the true law, and proportionately secures definite results. That it does secure such results, and often of a remarkable character, is evidenced by the accumulated experience of fifty years' work. In spite of failures in its application,—and these will compare favorably with any other system,—it is steadily extending its healing and regenerating work in all parts of the world.

✧

[Nina F. Winn in Vashon Island (Wash.) Record]

Outlines of sermons by a denominational clergyman on the "Mistakes of Christian Science" have been appearing now for several weeks. Such a title appears as incongruous to the Christian Scientist as the caption "Mistakes of Mathematics" would appear to most men. One who has never put to test the principle of numbers would be well qualified to speak on the mistakes of arithmetic. On the other hand, the person who has applied the science of numbers to problems in arithmetic and has proved that three times three always make nine, thereby solving his problem correctly, would teach or speak on the exactness of numbers. It is very evident from the printed outlines that our ministerial brother has neither perceived nor applied the rules of Christian Science to his own problems, which, following the above analogy, therefore qualifies him to speak on its mistakes. Dealing with the subject from his viewpoint, which is that of the outsider, and frankly materialistic, it is clear to Christian Scientists why he reaches the conclusions that he does.

Christian Science is not a religion of profession only, but a religion of demonstration, and its adherents are true followers of it in the proportion that they demonstrate its truths, which are the truths that Jesus applied and proved in his ministry on earth. In her writings Mrs. Eddy repeatedly enjoins on her followers the necessity of practice as well as profession, and says on page 37 of Science and Health, "When will Jesus' professed followers learn to emulate him in all his ways and to imitate his mighty works? . . . Hear these imperative commands: 'Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect!' 'Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature!' 'Heal the sick!'" The wonderful thing is that Christian Scientists are accomplishing the very things which Jesus enjoins, having recognized the necessity of complying with his commands through the application of the scientific rule of healing discovered by Mrs. Eddy. The sick and the sinning are being healed every day through the ministrations of this Science, and the world is better because of its presence. It holds out to all who now or in the future accept and practise its teachings, that peace which Christ Jesus said he was leaving with his followers.

✧ ✧ ✧

[Written for the Sentinel]

God Is Love

HENRIETTA D. SANGER

Our God is Love. O wondrous thought
With holy inspiration fraught;
Love infinite, divine, supreme,
The heavenly light, the sage's theme!

Our God is Love, and e'er shall be
The fount of life, yea, full and free;
Nor time, nor space, nor human ken
Shall measure Love, the Life of men.

Our God is Love. Oh, may this truth
Refine the heart of age and youth,
Till all earth's children, far and near,
One God shall know, obey, revere!

Digitized by Google

Editorial

The Mother Church

In reading the report of the annual meeting of The Mother Church one is instinctively reminded of what Mrs. Eddy has written on page 3 of her book "The People's Idea of God," from which we quote as follows: "Let us rejoice that the bow of omnipotence already spans the moral heavens with light, and that the more spiritual idea of good and Truth meets the old material thought like a promise upon the cloud, while it inscribes on the thoughts of men at this period a more metaphysical religion founded upon Christian Science."

The glory of The Mother Church is that it is extending to the remotest ends of the earth this "more metaphysical religion" which heals the sick, reforms the sinful, and binds up the broken-hearted. Upon those who are now members of this church there rests the responsibility of seeing that this religion is preserved pure and unadulterated, and that the means which have been provided by our Leader are used to the utmost for bringing to the world this "pearl of great price." To every member of The Mother Church the Manual is a guide to safety and progress, and its constant study is as requisite to the growth of these members as is the study of the other writings of Mrs. Eddy.

Membership in The Mother Church should not be looked upon as simply a personal distinction, a reward, a goal won. It should be the symbol of a greater consecration to the service of God and man, an avowed intention to seek "first the kingdom of God," as our Master bids us, and thus to let our every thought and act be for the benefit of humanity. With this concept of church membership prevailing, The Mother Church will continue to grow in usefulness, and its members will be blessed and have cause for rejoicing, because of their unselfish seeking for righteousness and the results which will surely follow such seeking.

Archibald McLellan.

✧

Powerful Cooperation

Christian Scientists are learning to cooperate with each other by working with God, Principle, Mind. In divine Mind there is unity, and in so far as men are at-one with that Mind they are bringing out the true brotherhood of man. Powerful cooperation therefore depends upon a clear understanding of God's nature,—His ever-presence, His loving-kindness and mercy.

Amid the glaring inequalities, the sudden reversals, the fleeting memories of daily life, there is little to cheer the searcher for truth until God's presence is recognized to be a fact. Christian Science with its divine logic converts the disheartened and discouraged thinker into a right thinker, and so reveals itself as the veritable Comforter promised by the Master. Did the weary searcher suppose that he could be cut off from God and bereft of His saving grace? Then there must have been some misconception of the nature of God, for the right idea of God presented by Christian Science will destroy the misconception and reveal "a God at hand." In this way the right understanding of God is bringing to humanity salvation and cure, relief from fear and dark foreboding, joy in active work, and the necessary intelligence to foresee and forestall mistakes.

Out upon a world heavy laden and distraught the good news of Christian Science shines resplendent with the rays of loving-kindness. Before the advent of Christian Science who would have supposed that mercy, tenderness, compassion, loving-kindness, could be reduced to scientific terms and made the servants of exact reasoning? This was because humanity had almost forgotten that "God is love," until Mrs. Eddy reemphasized this basic statement of the beloved disciple. The psalmist gloriously described the Christian Science concept of God when he sang, "Who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thy diseases; who redeemeth thy life from destruction; who crowneth thee with loving-kindness and tender mercies." Mrs. Eddy quoted from this psalm in referring to the pledge of a large sum of money for the building of the extension of The Mother Church. Her statement, entitled "Now and Then," is to be found reprinted on page 13 of Miscellany. In view of the present raising of further large sums for the needs of The Mother Church, in accordance with the recent statement of The Christian Science Board of Directors entitled "Looking Forward," Christian Scientists will find a rereading and a careful studying of Mrs. Eddy's words most helpful.

Powerful cooperation is loving compassion. The Christian Scientist does not look for perfection in mortals, but learns to bring immortality to temper mortality until the latter disappears. He does not depend upon the laws of the world, for spiritual understanding is outside the world's law, hence illegitimate to the carnal mind. To strive to range one's self on the side of the world's legitimacy is to invite mortality and death. Mrs. Eddy tells us on page 453 of Science and Health that "hidden sin is spiritual wickedness in high places." Therefore the thief hanging on the cross for his own sins was nearer the kingdom of heaven than the Pharisees who secretly procured the crucifixion of Jesus and then sneered at him in public. There is no human being so pitiless toward the sinner as a religionist gone wrong. If sin is on the surface it is in the act of being destroyed. Hence Jesus' attitude toward the publicans and harlots differed from that toward the Pharisees.

Powerful cooperation demands enduring love and active loyalty. The busy bees going about their business of gathering honey set an example; so does the mayflower trailing its sweetness along the forest ground, the beaver ingeniously damming the streams and building winter huts, and the eagle perching his aerie on the topmost crag of the highest mountain. Christian Scientists can cooperate in meeting their own problems by working for the world, as Jesus did. Then will their forgiveness and alertness, their shining countenances, reveal a heaven at hand. Let gratitude grow with the sunshine of obedience to the Principle of Christian Science.

William D. McCrackan.

✧

Children and Purity

That the right education of children is of supreme importance to humanity there can be no question; and if any were to doubt this they need but turn to the Scriptures, especially the teachings of Christ Jesus, who brought before his disciples the true concept of the child as God's idea. On page 582 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy defines children as "the spiritual thoughts and representatives of Life, Truth, and Love." In distinction to the spiritual idea she uncovers the material sense of childhood, namely, "sensual and mortal beliefs; counterfeits of creation." As this false concept is destroyed by Truth the divine idea appears.

At the present time civilization is making great demands upon parents for physical cleanliness in their homes, and this demand is likewise carried into the schools. Besides this, it is held to be necessary to instruct children in problems relating to sex, in order that moral defilement may be guarded against; all of which is surely commendable if the right methods are employed. To the Christian Scientist, however, the spiritual must always come first, and must give character to everything which is attempted in the way of human betterment. The Master said, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things [including health and purity] shall be added unto you." The Christian Science parent or teacher knows that the mortal is conceived in sin and brought forth in iniquity, and being on the wrong foundation, is therefore subject to sickness, sin, and death. The faithful student of Christian Science soon discovers in his practical work that an error in the premise must result in failure all along the way; and until the child is released from the tendencies of a mortal and material origin, and taught to realize and demonstrate the absolute purity of the divine nature, results will be at best uncertain.

Digitized by Google

We cannot for a moment afford to lose sight of the fact that moral and spiritual purity must be inculcated in the child's consciousness from the start, and it should also be the atmosphere of the home in which the child is brought up. Children are properly very keen in their discernment; and if honesty, truthfulness, and spirituality are lacking in the adult thought of the home, the children will thus be deprived of that which is of far more importance than all the treasures of earth. Just how much can be accomplished by the right training of a child we learn from the story of Joseph. Although he was taken to Egypt as a slave, and placed where the most subtle allurements of sensualism assailed him, yet he stood firm in his God-given purity, willing to surrender even the mortal sense of life rather than to lose his spiritual birthright. The result was that step by step he was led, though at first through terrible trials, up to the highest position in Egypt, until he was prime minister of the greatest nation of antiquity. It is undeniable that his wonderful clearness of vision, his keen mental grasp of things, even on the human plane, were all due to the spirituality which had been bestowed upon him as a priceless gift with the love of his father from his earliest hours.

It is hardly necessary to say to the Christian Scientist that a child does not need to be instructed in evil in order to avoid it; but the teaching as to moral and spiritual purity, with all that this implies, should be fearlessly given. If the work is rightly done, the light of Truth will uncover all lurking error, and the child will learn to turn from it with loathing, in whatever way it may present itself. The child should always be encouraged to go fearlessly to his human parents, and should understand that they are striving to reflect toward him the fatherhood and motherhood of God. If the boy or girl be momentarily overpowered by the sensuous attractions with their claim of worldly pleasures, much patience and love are needed; and the fundamental truth declared in the beatitude, "Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God," must never for a moment be lost sight of. To see God means to see good; it means to experience joy and gladness at every step of the way; and this is surely the rightful heritage of our children.

ANNIE M. KNOTT.

Announcement

ON Sunday, June 3, the following communication to The First Church of Christ, Scientist, from the Governor of Massachusetts was read to the congregation by the first reader of The Mother Church:—

"The churches of the Commonwealth can do no more patriotic service to the country in its struggle for liberty and the preservation of human rights than in aiding the 'Liberty Loan.'

"I know you stand ready patriotically to do everything in your power, and I therefore ask of you that on Sunday, June 3, the 'Liberty Loan' shall be presented in your pulpit as the cause of the country and as a test of real patriotism.

"Very truly yours,

"SAMUEL W. MCCALL,

"Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts."

In this connection Mr. McCrackan also read, in behalf of The Christian Science Board of Directors, the following statement:—

Christian Scientists are good citizens. Their understanding of Principle enables them to read the "signs of the times" from the standpoint of both history and prophecy. Thus they discern the metaphysical significance of the revolution in human thought which now convulses the world. They know that the mighty tide cannot be stayed "until He whose right it is shall reign" (Miscellany, p. 220).

Therefore will Christian Scientists follow the advice of Mrs. Eddy to "help support a righteous government" (Miscellany, p. 276). Thus shall democracy prevail in the earth as a stepping-stone for humanity from the limitations of false political systems to the fulfilment of our Leader's vision when "Christ, God's idea, will eventually rule all nations and peoples—imperatively, absolutely, finally—with divine Science" (Science and Health, p. 565).

The Readers of The Mother Church

As announced at the annual meeting of The Mother Church, the readers elected for the ensuing term of three years are:—

First reader, Bicknell Young, C.S.B., of Chicago.

Second reader, Mrs. Mary Bayrd Colby, of Detroit.

In earlier years Mr. Young was a well known musician, a graduate of the National Training School of Music in London. After practising his profession for a number of years, he became interested in Christian Science and was healed by it in 1890. Some years later he gave up his profession entirely for the practice of Christian Science. For five years he was soloist in First Church of Christ, Scientist, Chicago, and for three years served as first reader in Second Church of Christ, Scientist, Chicago. Mr. Young also acted as publication committee for Illinois for one year, preceding his appointment, in 1903, to the board of lectureship, and he has served as a lecturer since that date. He graduated from the Massachusetts Metaphysical College in 1901 with the degree of C.S.B., and was the teacher in this college in 1910.

Mrs. Colby was born and educated in Woodstock, Ill., and taught school there for a number of years. Her interest in Christian Science dates back to 1899, when she received her healing. She has held membership in First Church of Christ, Scientist, Joliet, Ill., and Fifth Church of Christ, Scientist, Chicago, and has been a member of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Detroit, Mich., for the past eleven years, serving for the past two years as second reader. Mrs. Colby became a member of The Mother Church in 1902. She has been active as a practitioner almost from the beginning of her interest in Christian Science.

Among the Churches

Current Notes

BELLEVUE, OHIO.—The new Christian Science church edifice recently completed was opened for service for the first time Sunday morning [April 29], with a large congregation present. The building occupies the site of the old Hilbish homestead on West Main Street. Work on it was begun Oct. 3, 1916, and the corner stone was laid Nov. 13. The main auditorium has a seating capacity of two hundred. The church has a large attendance and a growing membership. It is to be congratulated upon the completion of this new and beautiful house of worship, which represents an investment of over nine thousand dollars.—Bellevue Gazette.

Digitized by Google

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—Third Church of Christ, Scientist, which was organized a few months ago, has bought a site on the west side of Washington Boulevard, just south of Thirty-fourth Street, and plans to erect a church there. The new organization, which draws most of its members from the territory north of Fall Creek, has been meeting in the hall at Oriental Lodge Temple, Central Avenue and Twenty-second Street. Already, however, it is finding itself at times cramped in these quarters, and the membership is desirous of having its own building as soon as possible. Third Church was the outgrowth from Second Church of Christ, Scientist, which has a handsome structure at Twelfth and Delaware Streets.

Spectator.

HANFORD, CAL.—Our literature distribution committee, through the generous gifts of the Trustees under the Will of Mary Baker Eddy and the donations of the members of the church, has been enabled to send the Christian Science periodicals broadcast over this county. Subscriptions have been sent to the public library, the county jail, and Elks Hall, and weekly literature is placed in the different hotels and reading rooms. The reading room at the county fair was a decided success, and the literature, which was placed on tables, was thus made available for hundreds.

Literature Distribution Committee.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.—The recently completed edifice of Second Church of Christ, Scientist, is another valuable addition to the beautiful buildings of Salt Lake City. It is located on South Temple Street, near Sixth East Street, and was built to accommodate a new congregation of Scientists here, as the congregation of First Church had become too large for its capacity. The approximate cost of the new church is about sixty thousand dollars.

The Herald-Republican.

NEWBURGH, N. Y.—Religious services were conducted yesterday [May 6] for the first time in the new home of First Church of Christ, Scientist, at 188 Grand Street, for many years the home of the late Mayor Odell. In place of the old time partitions, columns and grills support the second story and make the three large rooms and hallway a large auditorium, capable of seating one hundred and seventy-five persons.—Newburgh Journal.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y.—On Sunday, May 6, First Church of Christ, Scientist, began to hold services in the completed portion of the new church edifice at the corner of Maple and Mamaroneck Avenues.

MEMPHIS, TENN.—Mrs. Eddy's "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" has a larger circulation than any other book in the Cossitt Library. The Christian Science church has furnished the library with twenty-five copies of it.—The Memphis Press.

ZANESVILLE, OHIO.—The work of constructing the new home of First Church of Christ, Scientist, on South Seventh Street, was started Monday morning [April 16].

Zanesville Signal.

The Lectures

Lecturers Appointed for the Year Ending June 30, 1918

Frank Bell, C.S., Post Office Box 452, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

John Sidney Braithwaite, C.S., 1 Clarence Terrace, N.W., London, England.
(Open for lectures in the United States and Canada between Sept. 10 and Dec. 10, 1917.)

Clarence W. Chadwick, C.S.B., 2235 Howard Street, Omaha, Nebraska.

George Shaw Cook, C.S.B., 525 Orchestra Building, Chicago, Illinois.

John W. Doorly, C.S.B., 38 Boar Lane, Leeds, England.
(Open for lectures in the United States and Canada between Jan. 15 and July 1, 1918. Address for all correspondence relating to lectures in America and Canada, Box 13, Fenway Post Office, Boston, Massachusetts.)

John Randall Dunn, C.S., 4958 McPherson Avenue, St. Louis, Missouri.

Clarence C. Eaton, C.S.B., 719 South Union Avenue, Tacoma, Washington.

Dr. Francis J. Fluno, C.S.D., 1732 Franklin Street, Oakland, California.

Willis F. Gross, C.S.B., 505 Berkeley Building, Boston, Massachusetts.

Prof. Hermann S. Hering, C.S.B., 42 North State Street, Concord, New Hampshire.

Dr. Walton Hubbard, C.S.B., 324 Hutton Building, Spokane, Washington.

William D. Kilpatrick, C.S., 700 Union Trust Building, Detroit, Michigan.

Bliss Knapp, C.S.B., 11 Hawes Street, Brookline, Massachusetts.

Charles I. Ohrenstein, C.S.B., 722 Ackerman Avenue, Syracuse, New York.

Ezra W. Palmer, C.S.B., 1515 Adams Street, Denver, Colorado.

William W. Porter, C.S.B., 206 West Eighty-sixth Street, New York, New York.

William R. Rathvon, C.S.B., Post Office Box 25, Denver, Colorado.

Paul Stark Seeley, C.S., 144 North Nineteenth Street, Portland, Oregon.

Virgil O. Strickler, C.S.B., 219 West Eighty-first Street, New York, New York.

In making engagements for lectures to be delivered, the work of both churches and lecturers will be greatly facilitated if the churches will make immediate application to the individual lecturers for the date or dates desired during the year ending June 30, 1918. If the engagements for the entire year can be made as soon as possible after July 1, 1917, the lecturers can arrange their routes more satisfactorily to all parties.

Letters and telegrams sent to the addresses given above will be duly forwarded. Use these addresses, unless for a special occasion a different address is given.

ST. PAUL, MINN. (First Church).—Dr. Walton Hubbard, lecturer; introduced by Bent E. Olin, who said in part:—

The question of one God or many gods, of one Mind or many minds, of one power or many powers, has been before this world for thousands of years. Millions of human lives have been sacrificed to settle this great question, which, outside of Christian Science, is still unsettled. At an early date God, through His faithful servant Moses, said: "Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord: and thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might;" also, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Our dear Leader saw the importance of this question and said, "The First Commandment is my favorite text" (Science and Health, p. 340). The reason is plain,—it enforces obedience and love to one God only.

Digitized by Google

WEEHAWKEN, N. J. (Society).—Bicknell Young, lecturer; introduced by Frank A. Hammond, who said in part:—

The great truth about God and man is attracting the attention of the world today as never before, because mankind are realizing that the fight is a losing one when it takes to making a reality out of want, worry and woe, sin and sickness, and envy and hatred, as shown in "man's inhumanity to man," made so visible today by the warring nations of the world. Christian Science is a religion of peace, harmony, and love, and its mission is to teach us how to rise superior to the false claims of the physical senses and to show us our true relationship to our Maker. The religion which does that, and proves it, is essentially the religion of Jesus the Christ, who said, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

MERCED, CAL. (First Church).—William W. Porter, lecturer; introduced by Edward Whale, who said in part:—

When Jesus was here on earth marking out the way for us, he said on one occasion, "If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." Many thousands are rejoicing today in the abundance of life and happiness through having entertained an earnest desire to learn what that truth is, and are receiving through Christian Science the promised reward in deliverance from sickness and sin, together with those discordant conditions which they had believed were a necessary part of their human existence.—Merced Sun.

POTTSVILLE, PA. (First Church).—Willis F. Gross, lecturer; introduced by J. W. Freck, who said in part:—

Mrs. Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, is the Moses of today leading the children of Israel out of bondage. She says in Science and Health (p. 569), "Every mortal at some period, here or hereafter, must grapple with and overcome the mortal belief in a power opposed to God." She has put the spiritual interpretation of the Bible in such concrete form that a child may apply it for himself; indeed, it must be approached in the spirit of a child, for only through revelation can it be understood,—and I may add that this is the reason why its critics fail to understand it.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE, ENGLAND (Society).—John Sidney Braithwaite, lecturer; introduced by Charles W. Bennett, who said in part:—

At an epoch like this, when the whole world is torn asunder with fear, strife, and an overwhelming sense of loss, the tender and comforting influence of Christian Science will surely appeal to hungry hearts. It is to inform the peoples of the world in an authoritative way of something of the redemptive and regenerating power of this teaching, that lectures are given.

NEW YORK, N. Y. (Second Church).—Clarence C. Eaton, lecturer; introduced by Warren C. Klein, who said in part:—

Who among us has not been awed and ennobled when viewing a sunrise and the coming of a new day? We are thrilled by the beauty of the flickerings in the distance. Then of a sudden the glints of splendor break into perpetual light and life. And so it is with our experience in Christian Science. Through its teachings we are learning of the eternal verities of being as they exist in the present time, and not alone in the hereafter. These teachings dawn upon the human consciousness and reveal to it the correct understanding of God, Christ, and the real man. They are bringing healing, courage, and happiness to thousands, and are resurrecting and interpreting to the world the true message of the Master, Christ Jesus.

Lectures to be Delivered

[By Members of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.]

ALASKA—Virgil O. Strickler:
Ketchikan: June 28.
Juneau: July 1 or 2.
Cordova: July 6, 7, or 8.
Valdez: July 9 or 10.
Anchorage: July 17.
Skagway: July 23 or 24.
Fairbanks: Aug. 7.

CALIFORNIA—Dr. Walton Hubbard:
Huntington Park: Women's Improvement Club, 222 South Pacific Boulevard, 8 p.m., June 21.
Los Angeles (First Church): Church Edifice, 1366 South Alvarado Street, 8 p.m., June 22 and 23.
Los Angeles (Third Church): Church Edifice, 734 South Hope Street, 2 and 4 p.m., June 17.
Los Angeles (Sixth Church): Church Edifice, East Forty-second and Wadsworth Streets, 8 p.m., June 19.
Los Angeles (San Pedro): Redman's Hall, Palos Verdes Street, 8 p.m., June 18.

CANADA—Clarence W. Chadwick:
Grenfell, Saskatchewan: Winsor Theater, 8:30 p.m., June 21.
Medicine Hat, Alberta: I. O. O. F. Hall, Third Street, S.E., 8:30 p.m., June 22.
Winnipeg, Manitoba: Walker Theater, 3:15 p.m., June 17.

COLORADO—Leadville: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Elks Opera House, 8 p.m., June 17.

ENGLAND—Liverpool: John W. Doorly, St. Georges Hall, 7:30 p.m., June 25.

ILLINOIS—Charles I. Ohrenstein:
Chicago (joint lecture): George M. Cohan Grand Opera House, 12 noon, June 19.
Chicago (Ninth Church): Church Edifice, Woodlawn Avenue and Sixty-second Street, 8 p.m., June 18 and 19.
Kewanee: Grand Theater, 3 p.m., June 17.
Rockford: Church Edifice, 515 North Main Street, 8:15 p.m., June 21.
Murphysboro (auspices Carbondale): Dr. Francis J. Fluno, Tilford Theater, 2:30 p.m., June 17.

INDIANA—Richmond: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Church Edifice, 1417 North A Street, 8 p.m., June 22.

IOWA—Estherville: William W. Porter, Court House, 8:15 p.m., June 21.
Sioux City (Second Church): John Randall Dunn, New Grand Theater, 8 p.m., June 19.

KANSAS—Emporia: Prof. Hermann S. Hering, Church Edifice, 8 p.m., June 19.
Norton: John Randall Dunn, The Auditorium, 7:30 p.m., June 21.
Seneca: Dr. Francis J. Fluno, Church Edifice, 8 p.m., June 19.

MASSACHUSETTS—New Bedford: George Shaw Cook, Y. M. C. A. Hall (note change), 3:30 p.m., June 10.

MICHIGAN—Saginaw: William R. Rathvon, Masonic Temple, 8:15 p.m., June 18.

NEBRASKA—Central City: Ezra W. Palmer, Auditorium, 8 p.m., June 14.
Hastings: John Randall Dunn, Kerr Opera House, 3:30 p.m., June 17.

NEW YORK—Cortland: William W. Porter, Temple Theater, 3:30 p.m., June 17.

OHIO—Massillon: William R. Rathvon, City Hall Auditorium, 8 p.m., June 19.
Sidney: William R. Rathvon, High School Auditorium, 3 p.m., June 17.

WISCONSIN—Racine: Charles I. Ohrenstein, Orpheum Theater, Main and State Streets, 8:15 p.m., June 22.

Digitized by Google

Testimonies of Healing

About seven years ago I was very weak, emaciated, and distressed concerning my physical condition. Three of our best physicians diagnosed my case, and each one said I had pellagra. In my mind this disease and the grave were inseparable, as every case that had come under my observation had terminated in that way. The last physician I had said that meal was the cause of the disease, and under no circumstances was I to eat any more of it; also I must remain in bed until after the lunch hour every day.

At this time my brother gave me a copy of Science and Health, and said he had heard that its study would heal disease. Although in times past I had thought what queer people the Scientists must be to believe that Christ was still healing disease, the book was gladly received and studied, for I was willing to do anything if I could understand what to do. The mornings were spent in this way, with the result that a great many errors in myself were uncovered. When I really had made the demonstration of overcoming these errors, I felt that I was well, and did not remain in bed any more; but I had to wait till spring to prove that I was healed, as my physician had said the disease would return at that time. No symptom has ever returned, however, and after hate, fear, and grief were destroyed, the meal which was said to have caused the disease proved harmless.

I try to express my gratitude every day by helping some one to see and know the truth, and trust this testimony may encourage those who are seeking the light to study carefully and prayerfully "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy.—Annie L. Thornton, Atlanta, Ga.

✧

Over five years ago, when I began the study of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, I was enabled to lay aside glasses before I had read many pages of the book, and they have not been needed since. Headaches, which had been of frequent occurrence since my earliest recollection, and stomach trouble, from which I could obtain no permanent relief through material remedies, instantly disappeared and have never returned. Also what was called neurosis of the nerve centers, pronounced incurable by several physicians and specialists, was entirely overcome through the power of Truth, and I have enjoyed perfect health ever since.

The study of Christian Science was not taken up for physical healing, but to learn more about God, and it was while thus seeking that I found the light, and with it the healing as well. Words are inadequate to express my gratitude for Christian Science, and for the manifold blessings which it brings, but I am trying to live a life that will testify to my appreciation of its divine Principle, and of our beloved Leader, Mrs. Eddy.

Martha A. Slayton, Lebanon, N. H.

✧

For about two years my earnest prayer and desire has been to become a thorough Christian Scientist. A few years ago I was pronounced incurable owing to heart and kidney conditions, and ever since I can remember I have had gout, rheumatism, and stomach trouble in their severest forms. All these difficulties have disappeared since I have learned of the truth.

When I earnestly investigated Christian Science I had my first real glimpse of God as divine Truth. The most wonderful demonstration of all occurred in May, 1916. After suffering from distress in the lower part of my back and bowels for ten days or more, I remained at home for a couple of days, having to mortal sense severe pains. The second day at home I sat around reading, and eating whatever I desired, and slept splendidly that night until about half past four in the morning, when I called a practitioner, who said he would help me. In fifteen minutes I was fast asleep, and slept for about two hours. Then I went down town and worked at the trade as usual, though there were severe pains now and then. I went to see the practitioner about eight o'clock and he gave me a treatment. In the mean time I became conscious that I was healed. I got in a car and went to the office, and in two minutes after arriving, there passed from my bowels a large gall-stone. I did not miss a meal, was not sick, and no material remedies were administered. I walked home, ate dinner, and returned to work. I was weak for two days afterward, though perfectly well, and was without fear through this ordeal. My health is very good indeed, and I am trying to be a better Scientist every day.

C. H. Eaton, Weatherford, Texas.

✧

In August, 1907, when I turned to Christian Science I was a mental and physical wreck, my only thought being to get out of this world in some way, I cared not how, in order to relieve my family. I had been under the care of physicians almost continually for about eighteen years, and had been told by several of them that I would never be well again, as I had weak lungs, catarrh, liver, kidney, and stomach troubles, an abnormal growth, and had suffered a complete nervous breakdown.

For over a year I cried out to God that I might be shown the way, and finally went to see a Christian Science practitioner. She explained Christian Science as best she could in so short a time, declared that God is Love and does not willingly afflict His children, and then a treatment was given me. I left her home full of love and joy and peace, and with the first gleam of hope in years. A year from that time I accepted a position, and have been constantly employed ever since. The healing has been permanent.

Some time ago I had another proof of the power of Truth as revealed in Christian Science. I was very ill with influenza and had every symptom of acute lung trouble. For days the suffering was almost unbearable; but a practitioner treated me, and I was confined to my bed only one whole day and a few hours daily for about four days, though the weakness was not so readily overcome.

I cannot find words to express my gratitude for the good which has come to me through the power of Truth as revealed in Christian Science, and I am grateful to Mrs. Eddy for revealing this truth to mankind.

Mayme J. Carlton, Chicago, Ill.

As my sister was making her home with me during her healing and is still with me, I can verify every statement made in this testimony. Words cannot express my gratitude for what Christian Science has accomplished in our home. Since 1907 I have relied on God altogether for help for myself and children.

In June, 1915, my twelve year old son was taken to the northern part of Wisconsin by his father for a short vacation. Three days after their arrival the boy became very ill. The father, not being a Scientist, would have called a physician, but the boy declared he was a Christian Scientist and that he wanted to go home, as there were no Scientists near. He was therefore brought home, a practitioner called, and he was found to be suffering from what is known as infantile paralysis.

Digitized by Google

For days the pain was intense, and the boy was not able to put his feet to the floor or to use one hand. In about ten days, however, he began to walk with assistance, though with great difficulty, and in three weeks he walked alone. He played croquet for hours in the hot sun, never tiring as long as he could find others to play with him. The last of September he started to school, and by the end of October there was no trace of the disease to be seen. He is now in perfect health, plays ball, skates, and takes part in all outdoor games.

My son is away from home at school, and each time he returns for a few days we can see much improvement, as this experience has taught him to use his knowledge of Science more. The healing was accomplished through absent treatment. I am very grateful to our revered Leader, Mrs. Eddy, for showing us the way.—Mrs. Lynn F. Carlton.

✧

[Translated from the German]

I would like to give thanks for the blessings which have come to me through Christian Science. For many years I suffered with anemia and pain in the stomach, and often had to stay in bed for weeks at a time. About five years ago hemorrhages set in, and this trouble brought me to the brink of the grave. I already knew of Christian Science through the letters of a friend, but could not understand it, although much of what she said on the subject appealed to me. Having lost faith in medicine, in view of frequent relapses and because the hemorrhages recurred, I applied to a practitioner, who called and lovingly explained the truth to me. Although my healing progressed slowly, I became well, and am now able to manage my household.

We have had many proofs of God's ever-presence and love, and my constant thought is: "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits: who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thy diseases; who redeemeth thy life from destruction; who crowneth thee with loving-kindness and tender mercies." I can now better understand the Bible, especially what it means to have a childlike faith and trust, and I am happy and contented and filled with gratitude for having found Christian Science.

Frau Sofie Hohl, Crailsheim, Germany.

✧

It gives me much joy to add my testimony to the many thousands that have gone before, heralding the good tidings of this healing truth which is filling the world today. I was a sufferer from asthma for about twenty-nine years, having developed it when very young. I was then living in Oakland, Cal., and the physician said a change of climate was the only thing that would cure me. At this time it became necessary for the family to move to Pennsylvania, where we felt sure the cure would take place. For a few years I was free, and then, like Job, the thing I feared came upon me again. I suffered for many years, an opiate being the only thing which would secure me sleep.

After twenty-eight years of absence I was forced to return to the very city in which this ailment first manifested itself. It was there I learned of the truth that makes free, and after a few weeks' treatment in Christian Science I was healed in December, 1912. Words fail me when I try to express the joy I felt on learning that God is Love and that I was heir to all that is good. I have been healed of appendicitis, gallstones, moroseness, fear, and doubt, for now I know that in God "we live, and move, and have our being."

I try daily to show my thankfulness to God for the revelation of the truth which has come to me through the faithful study of the Bible and Mrs. Eddy's works, and know that the more I seek the more I will find. I also appreciate the patient, loving work of the practitioners, and the daily food which is provided for us in the periodicals and other literature issued by The Christian Science Publishing Society, which carry their healing messages throughout the length and breadth of our land.

George Holland Poulterer, Sacramento, Cal.

✧

It is with a sense of gratitude to God for Christian Science that I testify to our little daughter's almost instantaneous healing from scarlet fever. She came home from school on a Thursday afternoon complaining of headache, sore throat, and nausea, and was feeling too ill to eat dinner, so retired at once. I worked for her as we are taught to do in Science, but the next morning she appeared very feverish and we sent for a practitioner, who advised us to call a physician to diagnose the case, in order to comply with the health department laws in so-called contagious diseases. The physician promptly declared it to be a case of scarlet fever, and notified the board of health, who quarantined the patient.

The practitioner treated the child and the family for fear, and left this beautiful thought impressed on all: that there is no law of contagion in divine Mind. No material remedies were used, but in two days the rash entirely disappeared, also the other symptoms. The child had a healthy appetite and wanted to get up and dress. The doctor called the following Sunday and gave her a thorough examination, but could discover nothing the matter.

I am especially grateful for this demonstration, which has added much to my understanding of Christian Science and my confidence in God's law, also for the knowledge that divine Love is an ever present help in time of trouble. I am thankful to our beloved Leader, who has given us this beautiful truth.—Ida Chase Day, Yonkers, N. Y.

✧

I feel that I must express my gratitude for Christian Science. We did not come to it for healing, but because the religion was so wonderfully satisfying. We found we had been worshiping the "outward and visible sign," without the understanding of the "inward and spiritual grace." Christian Science has given us that understanding, and through the comprehension of Mrs. Eddy's writings we have begun to grasp the magnitude of the work and love of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, whereas we used to accept it as a matter of course.

The knowledge of God's loving presence as taught in Christian Science has met every need of our large family during the past four years. A short time ago one of our sons was healed of blood-poisoning in a week. The healings have all been permanent, and our blessings are manifold. Our love and gratitude goes out to Mrs. Eddy.

Jessie Enman Armeson, Longmeadow, Mass.

✧

The testimonies of healing published in the Christian Science periodicals are so helpful to me that I am sending my own expression of gratitude in the hope that it may encourage some one. As far back as I can remember I was guarded very carefully on account of supposedly inherited weak eyes. After entering school it was often a great annoyance not to be allowed to study by lamplight, but instead to have to rise early in the morning to get the benefit of the daylight. When in high school I overdid, with the result that my eyes gave out. A noted Chicago oculist pronounced the trouble a structural defect of the eyes for which glasses should have been worn from earliest childhood, and said that they must be used the rest of my life.

Digitized by Google

Three and a half years later I began attending the Christian Science church. I had always disliked wearing glasses, and a glimpse into Christian Science made me feel I should be able to do without them; but as my closing work in high school was heavy, I decided to use them until vacation time. Accidents kept befalling them, however, and each time they were mended the thought became stronger that they should be dispensed with.

Vacation found me in a small town in the mountains where there were no Scientists, and soon the glasses met with another accident. I wrote to a friend for treatment, and fearful lest I should be tempted to resume wearing the glasses, I broke them into bits. I read almost constantly, and for a few days the old headaches returned, but in about a week I was healed. This healing occurred over fifteen years ago and I have needed no glasses since, although my eyes have been used freely.

Words are inadequate to express my gratitude for Mrs. Eddy's faithfulness in giving Christian Science to the world, and for our periodicals, which are such constant blessings.

ELENOR MONTROSS WHITE, Salida, Col.

✧

I want to acknowledge the many blessings Christian Science has brought into my life. While I fall short in living up to its great and wonderful teachings, yet I know that some things have yielded to the better understanding of God, and that in time a great many more faults will be overcome through divine Love.

In December, 1909, dropsy set in, and for six weeks I was unable to lie down. For several days and nights I could not sleep, while to walk or talk seemed almost impossible. Just below one knee there was a very angry looking spot, and I was cautioned by a nurse to have it attended to right away. All these conditions completely disappeared under Christian Science treatment, although at times I was very impatient and rebellious. I was in bed for five weeks, but the seventh week I was able to travel South. While the swelling did not disappear for about four months, I felt well long before that.

From this experience I date my first earnest study of Christian Science, and for it, as well as for other experiences, I am very grateful, but most of all I am thankful for the better understanding of God and of Christ Jesus as taught in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy. Indeed I cannot express in words my gratitude for the wonderful glimpses of God that have come through the daily study of the Lesson-Sermons, in learning to know myself and in coming into closer fellowship with God.—MRS. C. J. SHOFF, Cadillac, Mich.

✧

