Appropriate Answers to Superficial Questions.

BY PHŒNIX.

Delivered at Chicago, Sunday, June 3d, 1888, through the Medial Instrumentality of MRS. CORA L. V. RICHMOND.

When Jesus was asked if they should render tribute unto Casar, he answered according to what would seem to be the greatest wisdom in a worldly sense: "Render under Casar the things that are Casar's, and unto God the things that are Ged's."

In every instance where the Jews, whether Scribes or Pharisees, sought to ask him questions for the purpose of entanglement, he either answered them in parables, or answered in such a way that they could take no exception to what he said. The reason of this was evident: the purpose of the questioners was to make him amenable to the law; and when the final hour came it was absolutely without offense that he stood condemned before them. The truth is always so treated in whatever form it appears, whether in the person of Jesus as a sacred life, or whether in Socrates as a leader in philosophy, who, on being asked by one who was listening: "Why may we not all have demons?" replied: "If you all had dedemon in that instance was the spiritual or prompting power-the communing angel. It is easy to ask why every one may not have an angel, but is it easy, think you, to answer the question? Would you listen to the voice if it was yours?

Spiritualism is no exception to this rule. From the number of questions that are asked by the thoughtless, superficial minds, even by those who seem to have some perception of things, one would think that the only object in presenting Spiritualism to the world was just to answer these idle questions. I call them idle, because the slightest thoughtfulness would make their answers apparent.

Why may not all be mediums? one asks, as though that were an argument against or concerning those who are mediums. I cannot tell you why all may not be mediums, but I know that all are not manifestly so; because all are not, it makes more valuable the gift when it does come: nor is it because any are especially favored, for the gift comes to all classes and conditions. That all are not mediums must be for some wise and just reason that we may not understand; but because all are not mediums shall we dony that any are? As well deny that there are musicians, artists, poets, philosophers. Why are not all successful? Why do not all have the gifts that I have named? If one may sing and another is silent, is that any reason why we shall not listen to the singer? Or if one may paint a picture and thousands of others have no conception of color, is that any reason why we should not look at the picture or recognize its beauty? When there are diversities of those gifts-as they are termedwhen there are different degrees and qualifications of humanity everywhere, if a power aside from man expresses itself through an individual, independently of that individual, it is not the province of men nor spirits to always declare why certain ones have a gift and others have not; the important question before that question is answered is: does the gift exist at all? When found to exist it should be investigated. The true investigator, instead of turning away because he or she has not the gift, seeks more studiously to discover what the gift is intended to bring. Shall we stop our ears and not listen to the nightingale because all birds are not nightingales? Shall we fail to discover beauty in the lily or the rose, because all blossoms are not lilies or roses? Assuredly not. Nor is the gift so rare of spiritual mediumship that one need think that it is a choice treasure bestowed only upon the few; or like the orthodox plan of salvation only for the elect. Certain mediums are chosen; but they are chosen very impartially. Sometimes mediumship is a pathway not of roses, but of thorns. In all instances there are difficulties to overcome; things that beset the way, trials and adversities that ordinarily people would not usually encounter, unless, indeed, they are

I also know, what you must know, that the whole line of human history is filled with evidences of spiritual power; and the very fact of the question, the seeking, the wishing to know, is in itself almost an answer to its question. But if a man be so constituted that he cannot receive the ordinary evidence, then it is no wonder that he is perplexed, be wildered, and rendered dissatisfled. Then he must wait, for time is long, Years are nothing compared to eternity, and the truth that is in the world, that which is as plain as daylight to many people, cannot always remain to you unknown. Have patience; do not force your minds to endeavor to understand, nor even to endeavor to receive the evidence; such evidence as is needed must be somewhere, and, indeed, with patience and growth from within, that evidence will come to you. I claim that if you are so constituted that you can be an impartial investigator, you may be able to investigate and receive this truth at once; but if you are not so constituted, if the mind differs from those who are ready, wait until the message comes, until a great sorrow prepares the way, until, like the rock that was smitten in the wilderness, something has overtaken you that makes the mindmore ready to receive, or until by gradual unfoldment of perception and growth the spiritual power becomes more and more evident to your mind, then this truth will be clear to you. No one sees all the colors in the sky at once. The artist is gradually educated to perceive the tones and tints though he may have seen them before; he has spiritual perception, but is not capable, mentally, of declaring them except with long training, and although there are thousands of different shades he will simplify them and tell you their constituents and arrange them in accordance with their belongings. Not at once do the variations of different sounds greet the ear; the consciousness of the constituent parts of music cannot be attained at once. The child may readily understand the simple melody, but when it comes to the complicated harmony, and vast numbers of the musical scales, only the skilled ear can detest the differences in sound. It is there, the evidence is there, the truth is all around you and the manifestations are upon the earth. It may not rest with the human mind whether the time shall be brief or long; whether it shall seem as years or be but as a day; whether the pathway shall be arduous or simple by which one reaches the height; but so potent and all-powerful is the truth that it not only contains the abswer in itself to all these questionings of the human mind, but it is continually declaring i self and leaving you to adjust it to your daily needs and daily pain, and all the time, like the light of the sun, shining upon you, ready for your acceptance whenever you are ready to receive it.

On Sunday, the 29th of July, our meetings opened with an able and eloquent discourse by Prof. Love land, the President of the society, followed in the afternoon by Warren Chase, who seemed to be known to nearly all of the old campers and Spiritualists, although he had never been here before.

In the evening Moses Hull dissected T. DeWitt Talmage and his sermons, with the Bible for a scalpel, and left him in fragments, as may be supposed.

Moses could do it if any one could. The first three days the weather was intensely warm here, and little could be done, so that I sighed for Onset and its cool breezes, as the heat affected me seriously, but Wednesday brought us a windy thunder shower; we all felt better, and I was glad to he here to meet once more many old-time friends, and see this new location, as I have those of New England .

It is a place of promise, with good prospects of success, especially financially; but I cannot say I like it for a camp-ground, as I do those of New England, located on the beautiful and useful bodies of water that supply bathing and breezes for the campers-as are Onset and Queen City Park and Sunapee, and the two on the Penobscot; even Lake Pleasant is beautiful when compared with one where there is no body of water in sight.

We have excellent meetings here; the best of speak ing, and audiences and earnest souls anxiously seeking for more evidence and knowledge of the spiritlife: but the speakers need no praise, especially from

"EARLY INSPIRATIONS."

BY A. E. NEWTON.

This is the title of an address of more than ordinary interest and significance recently given before the American Institute of Instruction at its annual meeting at Newport, R. I., by Mr. Hezeklah Butterworth, of Boston. Its significance is enhanced by the fact that Mr. Butterworth is editor of the Youth's Companion, probably the oldest and most widely circulated publication of its class in this countryit having attained, according to common report, a weekly issue of upward of four hundred thousand copies. It is, moreover, perhaps the least exceptionable in its moral tone of any cateror to juvenile taste that is before the public, while its general aim evidently is to keep in substantial accord with the popular religious sentiment of the time, as might be expected from the fact that its original founder and conductor for years was the venerable Deacon Willis, of the Orthodox persuasion, and former editor of the "Boston Recorder."

The object of Mr. Butterworth in this address is to set forth the importance of heeding, cultivating and developing the inspirations of youth. The notable thing about it is that, in opposition to the notion of the popular theology that divine inspiration was a miracle of a past age, and wholly ceased eighteen hundred years ago, this address recognizes its perpetual existence as a law of life, and its high value as 'a revelation of heaven to youth." The address furnishes a fresh illustration of the extent to which the ideas of Spiritualism are permeating the general mind of the cultured classes. The definition given by Mr. B. of the nature and method of inspiration, to be sure, . is somewhat defective and confused; but its possibility, its reality, its value, and its need, are strongly portrayed.

'Appiration," he said, " is some Inborn faculty of clear sight, the con-clousness of the son's calling and mission, and is the revel ition of heaven to youth. The world itself, received it, in childhood, when poets and prophets, the creators of palaces and temples and blossoming marbles, beheld the charlot of a goddess ing, the operator in the next room can hear in every diffting cloud. Every youth is conscious of a message and can declare it to you; his ear | special impulses to worthy action, as of the visit of an unknown power to him In his receptive momen's, is accustomed to hear and his mind readily when the soul rises superior to itself. He begins to be haunted by ideals of a better life."

instead of being "some inborn faculty of clear sight," or "the consciousness of the soul's calling and mission," inspiration more properly is, to quote the definition of Worcester, "the infusing of influence or ideas into the mind by a superior power." This definition is evidently correct, from the derivation of the word-in and spirare, meaning literally to breathe in. The faculty or capacity which enables one to be inspired, should not be confounded with either the ideas or truths that are inbreathed, or the "clear sight, the consciousness of the soul's mission," that may result from such inbreathing.

However, the important points presented are, first, the reality of inspiration, as a common human experience, attainable in our day, and accessible to every youth; and secondly, the value of that inspiration as a guide and incentive to noble living, and as "the revelation of heaven to youth "-in other words, its real divineness. Both these are unmistakably recognized by Mr. Butterworth, though counter to the popular theology.

After citing a number of historical examples of youthful inspiration, and its outworking in enterprises and institutions promotive of human good, Mr. Butterworth justly affirms: "The men who have led and enlightened mankind have been those who have seen the value of their placed them above every other consideration in life. The great eras of history have been the creations of such inspired minds, and the great teachers of the world have been those who have taught the youth to follow their early inspirations.

"The mind of youth, like the shepherd on Mount Latmos, is a temple haunted by ideals of a noble life. Coleridge says that 'All men are Shakspeares to their dreams.' Ideals, if followed, are new creations; they are life. Every grand structure of art was once a dream. The Cathedral of Cologne is but a crystallized divine picture of the soul, as we may believe all matter 14 but the thoughts of God in the past. The whole of life is spiritual, and, as Alcott says, the soul contains the body, and not the body the soul. When it is reflected how few of the schools or teachers of the past or the present can be called "inspired"-how in general our schools of both science and religion have repudiated the possibility of modern inspiration in the higher sense—it is easy to understand why the progress of the race has been and is so slow and sluggish. The scientific mind has of late somewhat emancipated itself from this incubus, and hence the marvelous progress in that department within the past century; but the religious or theological student, for the most part, has been taught to feel himself utterly dependent for truth on the inspirations of men of remote times, far less competent, it may be, to be channels of a broad and pure inspiration than himself. When this incubus shall have been completely removed, and men come to feel, with Mr. Butterworth, that the Divine Spirit of Truth is as near and as ready to teach as ever in the past, and when the laws and conditions of a pure and truly divine inspiration shall be taught and supplied in our schools of both science and religion, then may we expect such an advancement in all that grow; if discouraged it may become perverted; sympathy builds men.

"The bly hest inspiration is often found in what the world regards the most unfortunate young lives. Genius is often a compensation for diffects or very hard circumstances; the exaltation of one faculty to the loss of another. 'Dunce you are, and dunce you will ever remain,' was the decision of one of the teach ers of Sir Walter Scott. The hand of leve can alone lead the child of genius and special inspiration.

"Herein lies the teacher's great opportunity. The teacher who truly studies life will never disbelieve the prophecy of any young inspiration, however unlikely it may seem. All history is but a book of the fulfill ment of young inspirations."

Yes! "the hand of love can alone lead the child of genius and special inspiration." Too often such children meet with only ridicule and rebuke, or neglect and inappreciation. Great is the need of teachers who have enough of inspiration themselves to recognize and aid its development in others. Mr. Butterworth young people who were laughed at; I have come to believe that such are gentuses all, and I would rather history, so far as she knew it. She at once telhave the companionship of such young, unappreciated inspiration than any other in the world,

The following stirring passages, near the conlusion of this significant address, are worthy of reproduction entire:

'Inspired men are the need of the nation, men who place their inspiration above every other consideration. And to develop such men society demands in-spired teachers and schools. The voice of the school and college needs to be that, not the pursuit of wealth, fame, or any mere qualification, but to fellow one's Inspiration is the highest good and honor, and that to I don't know. When I was, as I supposed, develop one's early inspiration is the chief concern of (about fifteen years old, a busy old woman in life. Having learned what a pupir's inspiration is, it should be the care of the teacher to make that pupil's environment as much as possible in harmony with his purpose. No work of life can equal this,

"We are standing upon the threshold of a new era in our national life; peneration after generation of inspired men are gone, and there is a tendency in our life toward materialism. We are told the pulpit is losing power, that the political standard is becoming lower, and that the poetic voice is becoming low and silent. The readers of a 'Paracelsus' and a 'John Inglesant' are few, and of 'He,' 'She' and 'It' are many. Wealth is the quest of the multitude, and and sent me to school until I could read and when attained it is often used for mere selfish pur- write. Soon after I learned this sad news I poses. Even the schools teach the art of money making as life's great end.

"It is the highest mission of the school to produce inspired men, and the teacher may well enter upon the hotel where they stopped. He saw and adthis mission with hope. Never was there a nation that opened to its youth such a field for inspired work. When American emigration shall reach the Pacific coast,' said an old writer, 'her period of literature, art and glory will begin.' The march of America has reached the Pacific. To-day we are sixty millions, three years. Then I traveled one year with To-morrow we shall be one hundred pullions, and our art, our voice in music and song, and what we may hope will be greatest in our literature, is yet to come. We may reasonably expect that the poor passion for wealth and material display will pass, and that a period of splendid inspiration in intellectual and spiritual achievements is at hand,

"The age of physical struggle has gone; the age of genius and spiritual things is coming."

I trust these worthy and progressive sentiments will find due expression in the columns of the Youth's Companion; and will venture to suggest that one momentous subject on which the aid of a higher inspiration is urgently need-peuses to New York City. Since then I have ed, is that of the guidance of our nation out of seen in the papers that a third party claime! the competitive and unbrotherly civilization to be the heir." which now prevails, into the reign of brotherhood, justice, equality and peace.

CHAPTER II-CONTINUED.

When Captain G. unlocked the massive hall door and it swung back on its rusty hinges, Mrs. Lindsey gave one scream and fell on the settee. Edith said, "Mother, have you seen a ghost?" An impressive silence brooded over that once magnificent structure. Where splenthought. "I saw grandfather put some papers here in this box the day before he died; yes, it is all plain to me now. That dear, good old man! how often have I sat on his lap while he rocked me in this chair to sleep."

Captain G. looked at Edith and said: "What do you mean? It seems you have been here before this time.'

She replied: "Captain, I will not keep you in ignorance any longer. I am Captain Lindsey's daughter, and my mother, here, is his widow." 'Can it be possible?" he exclaimed.

"It is true," Mrs. Lindsey replied. The Captain clasped one of each of their hands, saying, "How glad I am to know who you are. Why did you not tell me last night that you were the widow and daughter of Captain Lindsev?" "We were not ready to let ourselves be known," replied Edith. "I was impressed to visit this mansion, the home of my early childhood, in a dream, or vision, which I had two nights before we came here, and I have often had similar dreams and heard strange noises which I could not understand; but the last dream or vision I had was so plain to me I felt that we must visit this mansion once more. The will was witnessed by two prominent men of the neighborhood, and one of them appointed Edith's guardian. They had both died a few days previous to grandfather, with an epidemic which was raging in that community; but their signatures were substantiated. Mrs. Lindsey was here deeply agitated by a mysterious influence, which impressed upon her the feeling that she herself was the lost Beulah; and could not repress the impulse to speak of it to her companions. The Captain, naturally excited by these disclosures, said he hoped she would prove to be the lost child. Even if they could prove that they were the widow and daughter of Captain James Lindsey they would be entitled to half expresses a hope that we trust may be realized: of the estate. They returned to the Captain's home, and there Mrs. Lindsey gave him her egraphed to New York City for Lawyer Dean, her husband's friend.

CHAPTER III.

When Captain G. communicated their discovery to his family, Mrs. Lindsey was congratulated upon her prospective good fortune. She then related her history as follows:

"I was raised by a poor but clever family in South Carolina, but where or how they got me our neighborhood told me I was not Mr. and Mrs. Cirtus's child. I did not believe but that was, and telling Mr. and Mrs. C. what Mrs. S, had told me, I asked them if they were not my parents. They were too honest to tell me an adopted child; that they had got me from some poor people who were passing through that part of the country, and that was all they knew about my origin. They were kind to me, went to New York City in the capacity of waiting-maid with a wealthy gentleman and his wife. Captain Lindsey was boarding at mired me, and after an introduction at his request and a brief acquaintance we were married. He placed me in school, and then started on a long sea voyage. I remained in school him; after that I settled down to house-keeping, shortly after which my daughter was born, and two years after her birth Captain Lindsey was lost at sea. Since grandfather's death we have suffered the panzs of poverty in b its most hideous forms. It seems that an unseen hand guided my daughter here. I thought strange that grandfather made no provision for us by will. After diligent search for one, and none being found, there came a man and woman saying they were the legal heirs from So tland. They gave me money to pay my ex-

Mrs. Lindsey closed her narrative by saving she would immediately send for her adopted parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cirtus.

In a short-time Mrs. Lindsey's adopted parents and Lawyer Dean were at Captain G's. The former testified that the two before himknew about Mrs. Lindsey.

Mr. Cirtus said that about thirty-eight years ago a company of gypsies camped near where he lived; he was frequently at their camp. They had with them a beautiful child about two years old, and he determined to rescue her from them. One night when they were all asleep he stole the child and a satchel that he had seen them take some of her clothing from. "Here," said Mr. C., "is a picture I had taken soon after I took the child, and here is the dress and locket that were in the satchel, and which we put on her, thinking it probable that sometime she might be identified by them." He said that the gypsies were gone the next morning after he rescued the child. Then he advertised the child, but no one ever claimed her. He had been married but a short time, and they were devoted to the child, and kept her in ignorance of her origin until she was near grown, when a busy old woman told her she was not their child. She then went to New York City and married Captain James Lindsey, who perished at sea.

Lawyer Dean, while examining the locket. pressed the inside and it opened, revealing the pictures of Sir Robert and Lady Blakemore, with this inscription: "Sir Robert and Delia Blakemore, to their daughter Beulah, on her second birthday."

Captain G. exclaimed: "And this picture is exactly the same, dress and all, that hangs in the gallery at the mansion." He sent for the portrait at the mansion, compared them, and they proved to be the same.

The identity of Mrs. Lindsey was then regarded as sufficiently established; and Captain G. congratulated her on the good fortune, brought about through the inspiration of Edith, and her own.

Mrs. Lindsey's adopted parents wept for joy -embracing her. Lawyer Dean congratulated them, also offering his services to establish them in their rights of the estate. Captain G. Lawyer Dean, Mrs. Lindsey and Edith went the following day and had the will recorded.

Mr. and Mrs. Cirtus, Mrs. Lindsey's adopted parents, returned to South Carolina, sold what little they had, then went to Blakemore Mansion, where they will spend the rest of their days in luxury and ease. Lawyer Dean is Mrs. Lindsev's agent, and has a beautiful retired home in the neighborhood of the mansion. The long neglected park which surrounded the mansion soon resumed its former beauty. The mansion was renovated in modern style and refurnished.

Mrs. Lindsey and Edith settled quietly down in wealth and luxury. Edith had grandfather's chamber handsomely furnished, and no room in the house was so attractive to her as that. She was there one evening, when she heard loud raps on one of the wainscotting panels. She examined it, and by pressing it it flew open and revealed another private press. containing treasures of value. #### Sense and Spiritualism.

The Truth Seeker (New York) for June 16th contains a lengthy essay by "McARTHUR," in which the writer states in advance that he does not propose to attempt any labored defense of the Spiritual Philosophy, but to give his views as based on his earnest study of the subject from a business man's standpoint—an inquiry in which he brought to bear every resource he was capable of, and which ended in his being compelled to accept the spiritual teachings. The following generous extracts will serve to show the outspoken character of this article. which is throughout to the point, and full of interest:

I claim that it is hardly necessary to argue as to the existence of mediums. Physiology teach es the existence of sensitives, and any one who has witnessed a mesmeric entertainment knows how fully the subject is under control of the

So to properly appreciate the operation of the psychological law through and by which the medium is controlled, it is fair to presume that one must understand somewhat the status of the next world, if there be one. Here evolua falsehood, and acknowledged that I was only ition, twin sister to Spiritualism, steps in and

As we have come from the lower, so we ascend to the higher. All nature's laws, as far as we know them, are fixed, unchanging. Our friends, when they leave us, simply advance one round on the ladder of progress. They have become neither gods nor angels, but remain women and men, with the same likes, dislikes and prejudices that they had when here. A murderer may have died even in the arms of Jesus himself, but he is still a murderer in heart, and will remain so till he has availated out of cend to the higher. All nature's laws, as far as and will remain so till he has evoluted out of that condition.

This is the simon-pure teaching of evolution and I doubt if any scientist can successfully dispute it.

Now if this be a fact—and it boks reasonable to me-then this great psychological law has to me-then this great psychological law has opened a way, free alike to saint and sinner, and the great cry about the immorality of mediums is "a tempest in a tempot"; for, he being operated upon by unseen forces, any act of the poor sensitive should be viewed with charity. I do not pretend for one moment to defend immorality, whether in a medium or any other person. That there are moral and immoral mediums, none can deny; but I claim that, as far as my experience goes with that class, the latter are in a very small minority.

Morality and mediumship are no more synonymore. mous than morality and religion, than morality and Infidelity. Most Infidels are moral; none are religious; and the few immoral ones do not detract from the morality of the many.

In viewing these matters, I prefer the optimistic side. With our present surroundings, we are just as good as we can be; and if one man be better than his neighbor, it is due to his opportunities, and to them alone So, if my proposition be true, we must, as a certain phisosopher held commons the advertion of osopher held, commence the education child "a hundred years before its birth"; then we will have more morality.

There is another and very important fact in connection with mediums. Of the many thouwere the widow and daughter of Captain developed alike. So if it be "thaumaturgy," James Lindsey. tainly has demonstrated that fully twenty-five per cent. of humanity are unconscious presti-

But various people have widely different experiences with any given medium, and under circumstances which seemingly tend to the suspicion of fraud. I am now speaking of genuine mediums.

Well, what of it? Are our experiences here always the same? I only not.

A few years ago, in the Crawford House, Boston, I was attracted to a group of gentlemen gathered around an old soldier, who was giving his experience in the battle of Fair Oaks. I followed his recital with great interest, as I was a participant in the same light. Finally he reached a point in his recital where he touched on the fact that a handful of our men, at a critical juncture, seized on a small log house, and from that vantage ground so distressed the enemy that they retired, and thus the battle on that part of the field was gained. After he was through, one of his listeners announced that he had been present at the same battle, and while he admitted that some of the points were correct, yet he held that in the main they were wrong. The argument lasted over an hour. Each was certain of the correctness of his account. Yet I know both were wrong; at least I think I do, for the simple reason that I was the officer in command of the men referred to.

Now let us suppose that mediumship be true, and that these two gentlemen and myself were in turn communicating through a medium, and on the above subject. These gentlemen would each insist on the correctness of his statement —and here I wish to say that I believe each one honestly thought himself correct—and I would give an altogether different version. What would be the position of the medium? How about her character for truth?

Of the teachings of Spiritualism no true Spiritualist need be ashamed. There is nothing in itualist need be ashamed. There is nothing in the Philosophy but of the most ennobling na-ture. There is no savior. Each works and builds for himself. And I will add, it is the only system that grants, nay, insists on woman's occupying that position which nature intended her to fill.

I had the pleasure of many sittings with John Pierpont, who has "passed over" many years. Most Bostoniaus know him by reputation—a Most Bostonians know him by reputation—a sturdy truth-seeker; an honest man. We conversed on many philosophical subjects, and I gained much valuable information from him in the two years I was thus privileged. When the time for my departure arrived, I naturally felt grateful for all his kindness, and so expressed myself, asking, at the same time, what I could do to prove that I was grateful. "My son, live up to your highest aspirations," was the answer. This is the embodiment of the Spiritual Philosophy.

But many are so constituted that a philoso-

But many are so constituted that a philosophy will not commend itself to them. They accept evolution because they have been laughed out of their old theological views. For these there are the various phenomena. Now, I do not mean to claim that all these manidestations are genuine. There are frauds, undoubtedly. All Spiritualists admit it. Just so long as the almighty dollar is more highly valand than truth, just so long fraud will exist. But it should be remembered that most of the frauds are exposed by Spiritualists.

And even if only one manifestation in a million be true, science should investigate that one and demonstrate it to the public. But science says Spiritualism is a humbug. Let us

No one can reasonably doubt the existence of the phenomena. Each one is fully entitled to determine their worth. As you justly remark, Brother Macdonald, "Spiritualism should not be made a religion. If true, it must be in conformity with the laws of nature, and as such must come in the domain of experimental and demonstrable science."

Severance was expected on the seven o'clock evening train, and the campers desired to give her a reception, the President invited all to meet at the grand stand at half-past seven. When Mrs. S. arrived she was taken to the stand by telling her that Moses Hull was to speak, which was true, but his time was not until eight o'clock, so that when the President stepped forward to make a speech of welcome she was taken completely by surprise, and so overcome with emotion it was with difficulty she could reply. A beautiful bouquet was presented to her in a neat little speech by Moses Hull. Fine music was rendered by the choir, assisted by Kreyer's orchestra, making it a very interesting occasion.

Moses Hull was then introduced and gave, by re quest, a non-partisan lecture on 'Free Trade.' It was listened to very attentively by a large audience, and judging by the applause, must have been well re

Dr. Lyon has arrived in camp, and is, I believe, one of the first lecturers on the spiritual rostrum. Sunday, August 5th, was a beautiful day, and a large number of people began to arrive early and continued to come through the day, giving us grand audiences at the meetings.

At nine o'clock in the morning, all met at the Hall to form a Lyceum; great interest was taken in it, es pecially by the children.

Half-past ten o'clock Warren Chase gave us one of his solid, argumentative lectures. At one o'clock a mediums' meeting, in which several took part. This meeting was held in the Hall, and an admission of ten cents charged, the receipts to be given to the medlums. It was a great success; many strangers and skeptics received good tests.

At three o'clock Moses Hull gave us a good lecture on 'Science versus Christianity.' A large audience listened to him with marked attention.

In the evening, Dr. Juliet H. Severance gave a lecture on 'Practical Spiritualism,' in which she laid out a large field of work for the Spiritualists. Dr. Monson runs the eating house to the satisfaction of all. He has a large patronage.

Our sweet singers, Mrs. Frankle Cole and Mrs. Hulser, give universal satisfaction to all. Prof. Krever and his family of boys furnish the music for the dancing, and on other occasions. They are favorites in the camp, having been here many

Because we do not see a thing is no proof of its non-existence. Because we do not hear a thing is no proof that it may not be heard. Because we do not feel a thing is no proof that it may not be felt. Because we do not understand a thing is no proof that it is beyond the grasp and comprehension of others more spirually refined or more strangely gifted. But these strange and unusual things are said by some to be against the laws of nature. Who, then, assumes to determine what the laws of nature do or do not permit? Does any individual presume to know it all? Or has God revealed to any cold, ungifted materialist the whole range of mental and spiritual powers and possibilities? What mean those occasional instincts, intuitions and flashes of wonderful capabilities, unless to show that the soul and spirit now are only in their budding infancy? There may be sounds, sights, existences all around us, which, for want of power to see or hear or feel, may go unseen and undiscovered by our ordinary senses. The mere fact that conditions are such that we do not see or feel a thing does not militate against its reality or existence. A change in atmospheric conditions enables us to see what was totally obscured from our sight an hour before. So all through the material world, invisibility does

FF Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Rowley of Cleveland, O, who made us a flying visit last week on their way to Onset Bay, have been taking quite an extensive trip from Cleveland to Niagara Falls, Toronto, Canada, through the Thousand Islands and the rapids of the St. Lawrence to the city of Montreal, Canada, from thence via the White Mountains to Portland, Me., and Old Orchard Beach. They spent a few days in Boston, seeing the sights at the "Hub," and are now, we understand, at Lake Pleasant. Mon. Richard S. Spofford has passed to spirit-life. He was a genial as well as a very intellectual man, and, like his wife, Mrs. Harriet Prescott Spofford, a writer of note, though in a different field. He had been ailing for a long time. At heart he was a Spiritualist. Whenever we met him of late years his first inquiry was in regard to the progress of Spiritualism, saying that many of his warmest friends were Spiritualists, and that he took a great interest in the subject: "I am fully satisfied," said he, "that there is something in it, and I wish I knew more about it."

A high-flavored bigotry has recently exhibited itself In what The Harbinger records of Mrs. Attenborrow a Spiritualist, who having advertised in the Hawkes Bay paper that "Divine Service" would be conducted by her at the Athenæum on Sunday, a correspondent, signing himself "Consistency," takes exception to the use of the word "Divine," and another suggests phemy, which, to his mind, "should be regarded as at least as great a crime as robbery."

The New South Wales Association of Spiritualists entering upon a new year will hopefully continue its work. During the one just closed a number of circles have been successfully conducted under its auspices.

The editor of the Harbinger of Light has been shown some spirit drawings and etchings obtained recently at a private circle in South Melbourne, in the following manner, viz: A small sheet of paper, after being carefully examined, is placed upon the table and covered with the investigator's hat; he then rests his hands upon it to keep it from being disturbed; the light is turned down, and the medium rapidly touches the crown of the hat with a lead penell for about a minute. ## We still live in an anti-Christian age, Mrs. Richmond at Lake Cassadaga, Is the subject of a lengthy article in the Cleveland

Plaindealer of August 6th, from a correspondent at that popular camping ground, who met her at a re ception tendered by her to a select company, at which, under the influence of her spirit guides, she replied to questions propounded by her auditors. "There were." says the writer, "several scholarly gentlemen present, well versed in the philosophies of the schools and familiar with the different phases of modern scientific thought. The questions related to the profoundest themes of life and thought. The nature of the soul, its relations to matter and organized forms of life, the relation of individuality and immortality, were discussed in a manner that struck amazement to the hearts of the company."

Mrs. Richmond's personal appearance while thus engaged is described as of one who "stood erect, well polsed, and with the diguity of a queen. Her face shone with an unusual light of intelligence, and one could almost imagine a stream of celestial fire descending upon her head."

Next came "Oulna," who gave a brief sketch of her life on earth, and delineated in verse the characteristics of various persons. Of what she accomplished, the correspondent of the Plaindealer-which.

The Wildwood Messenger, Lake Pleasant, Mass. Issued every Saturday by the New England Spiritual 1st Camp Meeting Association, J. Milton Young, edit tor, is a nice little paper. The number before us gives an account of a complimentary reception to sixty-seventh anniversary of his birth. Mrs. Maud Lord Drake was the first speaker; Mrs. Sue B. Fales gave a poem; Mrs. Clara A. Field spoke briefly; We had the pleasure of meeting and Mr. W. R. Tice, Dr. E. A. Smith and other speakers made appropriate remarks-to all which President Beals responded in a very feeling manner.

> He said he did not consider that the alone had man aged the affilrs of the Association. There had been grand, good business men upon the board of directors, and upon the various committees, and in other efficial capacities. Fourteen years ago a few earnest souls came to Lake Pieasant to spy out the land and to establish a camp meeting. Miss Moody had predicted a grand success, and the years had proved the prophecy more than true. The movement had extended far and wide all over the earth, and its influence would never die. The spiritualistic press had extended a mighty power, and should be widely circulated. He would express his thanks for the gifts of to-night, assuring the friends present that their kind words would long remain in memory. It was a red-letter day for him, and an occasion of solid satisfaction. His efforts would ever be for the cause, and he felt like renewing his interest. The speaker closed with wishing the assembly a pleasant stay at the Lake, and again emphatically expressed his thanks.

The Southern Association. The annual business meeting of the Southern Asso-

Colby read a report of what had been accomplished by him the past year as an agent of the Association. It was attentively ilstened to and gave much satisfaction. Light on the Way, now published at Dover, Mass., by Geo. A. Fuller, was adopted as the official organ of the Assoclation; its office of publication will be on Lookout Mountain after this year. An election of officers for the ensuing term of twelve months resulted as follows: President, Dr. Samuel Watson, Memphis: vicepresident, Jerry Robinson, Charleston, Miss.; recording secretary, Dr. George A. Fuller, Dover, Mass.; corresponding secretary, G. W. Lewton, Crescent City, Florida; treasurer, J. Seeman, Chattanooga, Tenn. The old board of trustees was redlected, except in the case of Jerry Robinson, who, having been elected to the vice-presidency, caused a vacancy, which was filled by electing G. W. Kates, of Atlanta, Georgia.

GOD EVERYWHERE. The air is Zeus, Zeus earth and heaven, Zeus is all that is, transcends them all. - .Fichylus, B. C. 500.

Upon the arrival of the funeral cortége of General Sheridan at Arlington on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 11th, eight sergeants of artillery bore the casket to the open grave, around which the troops formed in hollow, square. After a moment of reverent stlence the clear voice of the bishop-elect was heard uttering the words of blessing, "Deus Cujus Misera ione," etc. With a sprig of fir plucked from a neighboring branch, holy water was sprinkled over the grave, and the casket was lowered by the sergeants. The regular burial service brought the religious features of the obscanles to an end.

A proposition to have the Lick telescope beaten by making one with a lens three times as powerful, has brought out certain facts tending to show the project to be an impossibility.

Letter from W. J. Colville.

To the Editor of the Banner of Light :

It seems a very long time since I last wrote to THE BANNER. I have been so busy I have really had no leisure; but now that I am again in the Eastern States I feel I must let my numerous friends in Boston and elsewhere who read your excellent paper. know that I have not forgotten them. My experi ences in California, on the whole, have been so pleasant that I am hoping to repeat them at no distant date. San Francisco, Oakland, Alameda, Los Angeles, San Diego and San José have been my six principal centres of work during eleven months (from September 34, 1887, till August 24, 1888) and I can say with deep sincerity that I was genuinely sorry to say good-bye to so many kind friends on the occasion of my departure for Portland, Oregon, on the latter date. I think the Oakland Camp-Meeting this year was a great success; many breaches were healed and friendships established. The president, Hon R. I. Steele, was a most excellent, and harmonious chalrman. The attendance at all the meetings was very large; great general interest prevailed, the after effects of which were abundantly seen in the greatly augmented attendance at all spiritual gatherings in the vicinity; after the camp closed, and in the large sale of spiritnal literature.

In San Francisco I lectured in Metropolitan Temple the last three Sundays mornings of my stay, to large audiences. Mr. John Slater, the test medium, occupled the hall afternoon and evening. The grand organ in that building is a superb instrument, and the talented organist, Mr. O. A. Eckman, played it gloriously. In Oakland my most recent lectures were | Movements of Mediums & Lecturers. given in the Synagogue, which was so crowded at last that extra seats had to be brought in on Sunday after

The Spiritual Science College at 106 MacAllister street, Ban Francisco, was the scene of many very two Sundays of August. pleasant and successful gatherings. The work there is now being efficiently carried on by Mrs. Sara Harris, Mrs. Josephine Wilson and others, whose names appear frequently in the Golden Gate.

On Wednesday, Aug. 1st, at 8 P. M., a grand concert was given in the spacious lecture-room, when the attendance was so large it positively overflowed into the street. Madame Marie Bishop (formerly of Boston) and other celebrated artists took part, including Mr. R. H. Whiting, a highly cultivated young gentleman of great talent and promise, whose exquisite performance on the cornet renders him a prize to all concert-givers wherever his services can be secured. Another interesting feature was the violin performance of four little girls, whose ages varied from four to eleven years. They are known as "The Beasey Babies," and for such very youthful artists their skill is really remarkable.

I could easily write long articles of considerable general interest concerning California, but in this brief note I must hastly pass on to Portland, Oregon, where I spent delightfully Aug. 4th, 5th and 6th. Friends there were very hospitable, and the seven meetings which I addressed were all largely attended by very fine people; though it was the off season, the influential citizens and their families being out of town, my audiences could hardly have been larger at any time, unless another hall had been secured. Extra chairs were needed in a large Grand Army Hall on the Sunday evening, and the financial results were highly satisfactory, though the expenses were considerable and the terms of admission small. Some of the scenery on the Northern Pacific Railroad, between San Francisco and Portland, and between Portland and the Yellowstone District, is extremely fine; much bolder and more imposing than any I have passed through further south, though I hear the Canadian Pacific passes through still more romantic regions.

On Saturday, August 11th, I reached Chicago, and was entertained by Dr. and Mrs. Congar, who are warm friends of Mrs. Richmond. On Sunday, August 12th, I had three excellent meetings in Martine's Ada street Hall, which is now undergoing renovation and enlargement. Though the hall was in an unfinished state the large audiences were comfortably accommodated : the hall will present quite a beautiful appearance on Sunday, September 1st, when the First Society of Spiritualists will assume regular meetings. As Mrs. Richmond will then be in Cincinnati I am engaged for the month, and expect to enjoy a great deal with old and new friends in this large and enterprising metropolis of what was formerly the West.

Monday, August 13th, I left for Cassadaga, N. Y. where I now am, and I shall hope to continue this letter next week with items from this charming summer resort. I trust I may be able to snatch the time to pay Boston a flying visit in October, and with kindest regards to all friends, believe me as ever your sin-W. J. COLVILLE. cere friend and co-worker, buried to a depth of from seven to twenty feet. Up to the 17th the number of bodies recovered is four hun-Intelligence.

To the Editor of the Banner of Light i Mr. Henry B. Foulke, real estate agent, 1039 Walnut street, Philadelphia, has been staying at Ouset for a short time. He was anxious to have the "endless rope" test of spirit-power demonstrated to him, and to this end called at the postofile grovery store and obtained a small cord some six feet in length, and tied the ends together with thread, so that it was imto untie them without its being Harold J. Smith, an Obset citizen, sealed the knot with paraffine, heating it so that if removed it would show it had been. In this way prepared the rope was taken to Horatio G. Eddy's scance, and while the manifestations were going on in his dark scance, two solid knots were tied in it in a manner that would be impossible without the aid of spirit force or power-or, at any rate, it seems so to the writer, who has never seen a knot tied as this was, unless there was a loose end to the cord. If any think they can tie a knot in a cord that has no end, let them try the experiment! It is simply a physical impossi-bility without some way being devised to separate the cord for the time being.

This endless cord tying has been accomplished in the presence of Dr. Slade, as Professor Zöllner narrates.

I was called to examine the knots above mentioned after they were tied, and in justice to the cause of Spiritualism and the medium, I will say I could see no possible chance for the practice of deception.

Here is a knot for the Psychical Research Society to untie or explain

College Hall, 34 Essex Street .- The services at College Hall were well attended during the day and evening, on the 12th inst.

Mr. Eben Cobb opened the exercises with an invocation, after which he spoke upon the following questions: "Does it matter very much what we believe?"
"The Soul, is it immortal?" His remarks upon the questions were well received. He took the ground that It did matter much what we believed, but belief was one thing and knowledge was far superior to it.

Mrs. Forrester then gave some fine psychometric readings, after which Mr. Redell spoke in a religious strain of thought of God and personal responsibility. Miss Peabody followed with some fine tests of psychological relations. Mr. McK in the gave some readings. Dr. Edridge closed the exercises by relating a vision of a spirit; he also spoke a good word for Onset. In the afternoon Mr. Cobb spoke briefly on General Sheridan's death, saying that Sheridan, the man, was not dead, for the man is the soul, and the soul never dies. Proofs of immortality are not wanting to those was one thing and knowledge was far superior to it.

not dead, for the man is the soul, and the soul never dies. Proofs of immortality are not wanting to those who look for them, and the fact of spirit-return no longer needs demonstration.

Miss Peabody gave readings which were well spoken of; Dr. Eidridge diagnosed the physical condition of persons in the audience; Mr. Toothacher gave tests of spirit presence, and Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Forcester presented some psychometric readings; Mr. Rose also made remarks, and gave tests under control. tests under control.

Social Meeting .- Friday evening, Aug. 10th, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Whitney, and Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Stansbury and son, were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Whitlock at their residence in Boston. Several prominent Spiritualists were present, and a hearty welcome was given to the friends from the Pacific coast. Mr. W. C. Tallman, Col. W. D. Crockett, Capt. Richard Holmes, Mr. E. W. Smith and others, made apopriate remarks, which were responded to by the California friends. Dr. Stansbury and family, we un-derstand, intend to return to Boston in September.

NEW EDITION.

ISIS UNVEILED: A Master-Key to the Mysteries of Ancient and Modern Science and Religion. By H. P. BLAVATSKY.

This work is divided into two Volumes, one treating exclusively of the relations of modern sciences to ancient theorigic science, and the other of the ancient world-religions and their offshoots in various ages. The theogonies, myths, symbology, rites, emblems and theologies of past and present generations are all passed in review. The analyses of the myths of India, Babylonia, Egypt, Greece, Rome, Phonicia, Mexico, and the Germanic peoples, are extremely interesting. The origin of modern faiths is patiently traced, and the points of resemblance carefully marked.

In the Second Volume the various views of scientists respecting the universal ether, the imponderable known and unknown forces and their correlations, cosmogony, geology, as strology, chomical action, alchemy, &c., are reviewed, criticised and compared. The relations of man to the universe, including his control over its phenomena, are viewed from the side of the ancient Magians. The philosophy of gestation, life and death, is treated after a novel and vigorous fashion, and the mystical domain of psychology is traversed.

Two volumes, royal 8vo, about 1400 pages, handsomely printed, cloth, extra, $7,50.

The Messages published in this Department indicate that spirits carry with them the characteristics of their earth-life to that beyond—whother for good or evil; that those who pass from the cattilly sphere in an undeveloped state, eventually progress to higher conditions. #### QUESTIONS ANSWERED, THROUGH THE MEDIUMSHIP OF

Miss M. T. Sheihamer.

Report of Public Séance held June 12th, 1888. Spirit Invocation.

Oh! thou Eternal Splitt, thou friend and father of all humanity whom men call God, and whom thy children recognize as the spirit of all goodness, love and truth, we turn to thee, seeking light and knowledge of thy tenderness. May we see thee In spirit, as thine angels do, face to face, in thought and aspiration, and within our hearts feel a scise of thy divine presence, and be inspired to press on anew in the pathway of life. We would be drawn into holy communion with angels, and receive from them influences of an elevating power, which will stimulate our lives and make us nearer unto thee. On! may these returning angels, who desire to bless humanity by the instructive word, the sweet, encheering influence, receive the ecoperation and sympathy of hearts on earth; and may we who are seeking to know the truth, and to understand thy word and law, accord to these angels our fender love and the spirit of our divine harmony. May we all be drawn together in sympathy and affection that will bind every heart in one circle, until the whole world shall ring with joy, because of thy goodness and world shall ring with Joy, because of thy goodness and an understanding of thy love. Amen.

Questions and Answers.

CONTROLLING SPIRIT. - Your questions are new in order, Mr. Chairman.

QUES.—"Any one familiar with the history of this city for the last two hundred and fifty years knows that God performs his great works only when, with the materials they possess, men do the best they can."-Rev. Dr. Herrick. What does the revetend doctor mean by that statement? Does he Ignore Bible miraeles, or what?

Ass.—We should judge, from the expression made by the reverend doctor in question, that he is a progressive mind; that is, one who can see the divine in humanity, however much that divinity may be clouded by external circum-stances and conditions. We should presume, from the statement made, that Dr. Herrick can general law.

To our mind, and subtedly it is the will of God that man is not created perfect, since it hody, and that this astral body - or astral seems to be a natural law that whatever devels spirit would be the butter term, communiobs slowly and gradually, evolves finer principles and more evoluting qualities than that which blossoms into beauty and perfection in a day. The race may evolve its finest qualities have the the principles through struggle, contention with adverse forces and external circumstances, such as are, perhaps, to the casual sight, depressing and evil; but as we wa'ch the progress of the race we discover that many is in reality. of the race we discover that man is in reality the of the indwelling spirit, the vital force and throwing off the bonds of error and working to the conditions of evil and growing up the intelligence itself.

So Spiritualism, divested of the vazaries and mysticism which Theosophy or Occultism has shown. Undoubtedly, then, Dr. Herrick only a few adepts may be tracticed in its teachis one who perceives intuitively these truths and breathes them into his soul, and perhaps is inspired by unseen intelligences to utter glorious laws and come into communication ignorance he must suffer the penalty; If he folding it within its heart, bears it on to higher violates law, he must condone for the violates and understanding. It comes to simtion at some future time. Undoubtedly the gentleman realizes this fact, but yet he would, perhaps, call for a larger sympathy, a greater degree of charity from society and from the toward those who are struggling amid the temptations and difficulties of time and matter, so that they may receive these kindly feelings and qualities, and be blessed in conse-

We do not know whether the gentleman ignores the Biblical teachings concerning the production of miracles or not. Perhaps, and we think it true, he is one who accepts the Bible, not as an infallible work to be strictly followed to the letter, but rather as an historical record of the Hebrew people, and of the various nations coming in contact with them, and undoubtedly he finds much inspiration and truth in those old records. Probably the gentleman recognizes the New Testament as a compendium of moral truths and philosophies, which may be taken as the guidance of our spiritual lives to a certain extent, and can thus extract much of truth from its teachings, expunging that which undoubtedly has been brought into the work through the misunderstandings or the unskillful labors of minds not directly connected with its first production. We must only give our own interpretation of the reverend gentleman's mind on this subject; our hearers may take it for what they consider

Q.-Ought a person to sit for spiritual unfoldment who is afflicted with any special

A.-That depends upon circumstances and general surroundings. We should hesitate about advising an invalid to sit for the unfoldment of medial powers, since it might be by so doing the invalid would attract to himself a band of influences who did not understand how to conserve his natural forces through operations upon his system, and might exhaust and prostrate both his physical and mental powers. Yet if one, even, who is an invalid Yet if one, even, who is an invalid—sur-rounded by gentle care and congenial associa-tions on the mortal side, and himself harmonious and sympathetic by nature—should attract to his atmosphere spirits who are tract to his atmosphere spirits who are wise and exalted in character, who understand how to apply their magnetic forces through and upon his organism so as to operate beneficially upon it, it might be that his mediumistic powers would be unfolded to such a degree that he might enter into vital communication with the unseen world of spirits, and voice or send forth messages or manifestations of spiritual power which would be a blessing to his kind. To such a question as this, we cannot give a spe-cific answer, since each case must call for consideration by itself; and what might be highly advisable or beneficial for one, (even bringing to the invalid a certain magnetic power from the unseen world to strengthen his physique and stimulate his mental forces with that which perhaps the material world could not give, might, in another case, prove quite the contrary, and bring to the other person only exhaustion and debility.

Q.—It is often the case that a person, weary with the contentions and trials of daily life, and having some mental problem to solve, retires into seclusion, and finds rest and assistance in what he terms communion with his own thoughts. Is not this, in fact, seeking the companionship and communion of spirits?

A.—Undoubtedly a person who is weary with the struggle of life and sensitive by nature, receptive to external influences, and casily acted upon either by mortals or spirits, will be very likely to withdraw himself at times from the turnoil and din of material ex-thing of intelligent spirit communication; he may not realize that the dear friends who have been called away from him in the mortal have the power of returning to his side to manifest their love and watchfulness over him; nevertheless, his sensitive nature, his receptivity of spirit, will attract to his side friends and helpers from the world beyond, and in such hours of silent communion as your correspondent mentions, these unseen friends will exercise over the forlorn one of earth a spiritual magnetism and influence which he must receive within his being, and which will undoubtedly stimulate and strengthen him for the duties which hey before him. One who is the duties which have before him. One who is thus sensitive is most certainly mediumistic, and can be drawn within the atmosphere of the spiritual world and made to reflect at many times and in many places, even when he has no idea of it, influences and attractions which come to him from the other world.

has no idea of it, influences and attractions which come to him from the other world.

Q.--{By J. H. W.} In the line of progression is Modern Spiritualism to the human race an improvement over Orientalism? If so, of what benefit is so-called theosophy now to the western hemisphere other than historic?

A — To our individual mind Scriptualism is

A .- To our individual mind Spiritualism is far in advance of Orientalism, so-called; inas-much as Spiritualism comes to humanity with a clear and distinct sound, there can be no mis-take concerning its significance and its work, while Orientalism is shrouded in mysticism, that which cannot appeal to the common un-derstanding, but which requires to be studied closely and deeply by studious minds, who must, in their study, take upon themselves much of cloudiness, so that their minds become more or less beforged. We speak thus advisedly, because we have somewhat looked into the subject and come in contact with those who consider themselves adepts in theo-Theosophy or Orientalism were stripped of its vagaries, its mystical terms and meanings, it would stand forth clearly and distinctly only as an exponent of spiritual communion between orientalism may declare to those who understand its terms that the human soul can comenfolded in the mortal form; and Spiritualism teaches the same great truth, that the spirit is itself the man, and that the outside form is merely the covering of the man, for temporary and convenient purposes. Then if man is the spirit, it is that which communicates thought, which exercises intelligence and displays reasoning powers. And Spiritualism affirms that it is possible for man, encased in the mortal flesh, to communicate with his kind, near or at a distance, without the aid of external speech, or any of those material appliances which science affords for your convenience. Thus the-osophy teaches that the thosophist may claim that his belief, or science, is far in advance of Spiritualism. We declare it is not so. Theosophy claims that its adepts and followers—those who have been qualified to practice stances and conditions. We should presume, its tenchings—have the power of making cerfrom the statement made, that Dr. Herrick can tain spirits or certain beings in the universe, come into sympathy with the weak and the fortunation of mortal life so theroughly as to understand something of their experience and the carnated of the desh, who have studied the difficulties which they have to centend with in laws of nature and come in contact with the making progress. He realizes that men do the spiritual laws of life sufficiently to understand best they can, and humanity advances just as them, can gain dominion not only over other far as possible under the conditions and cucums spiritual intelligences, if they so will, but over stances surrounding life; and we believe it is a certain laws and forces of the atmosphere, so truth that God himself, the Great Creator and Overruling Providence of Lite, works with means and through ways in accordance with phy in advance of Spiritualism in that direction.

Theosophy claims that min has an astral them and to call the attention of his hearers to with them. Spiritualism claims that it comes to teach the world, and does not despise any one It does not of necessity mean that the tever-lend dector ignores those laws which problaim, and justly too, that if a man errs willfully or in it takes up every child of humanity, and enplity life and law, so that man may understand himself; and learning to understand himself physically and spiritually, he may come to understand his own kind as well as his God. Thus we claim that Spiritualism, when properly advocated and properly comprehended by man, will prove i.self to be far in advance of all the religious theories and assumptions of the past in whatever direction they may turn, and far in advance of mysticism, and all that is called occult, whether found in the Orientor the Occident, it matters not.

SPIRIT MESSAGES. THROUGH THE TRANCE MEDIUMSHIP OF Mrs. B. F. Smith.

Report of Public Scance held May 11th, 1888. Martha Noble.

My home, sir, when in mortal life, was in Paterson, New Jersey. My name is Martha Noble. I would like very much to have my dear ones know that I found the new life more beautiful than I can express it in words. When the "death-angel" came-I change it to an angel-usher, for he beckoned me up higher—there was great sadness and sorrow among the dear ones at home, although they understood the fact of spirit-return, for Spiritnalism was no strange subject in the family. Joseph and I had talked matters over, and we tell that the parting from mortal life would not be long, and that it would only be a parting from the mortal form.

Nearly the last words I said that he could understand were: "I am not afraid to die; the parting will not be long." I felt that they were coming for me, and I was happy in the thought of the change that was so near. I knew how much the dear, darling child, and the three darling grandchildren, would miss me; but I feel that they will understand in time more fully about my coming back into time, more fully, about my coming back into their home. I am happy. I have been cognizant of many changes that have taken place in the home in the short space of four years. I cannot tell the exact day, but it is near four years, as I have tried to count it I would like to come into private converse with the dear ones whenever there is a chan-

Dear mother beckoned me up higher, and how happy we are together! Many of the dear friends! knew in mortal life! I have found; and, oh! how glad they were to receive me. We form acquaintances in spirit life as real as me did in mortal life. I am thunkful that there we did in mortal life. I am thankful that there is a channel open so that we may come and speak with the dear ones left in the mortal.

I thank you, Mr. Chairman, for this privilege

Isaac C. Abbott. Ist makes very little difference where the spirit takes its flight. I will say to you that when I passed out from the mortal form I was in San Francisco, Cal. I am Isaac C. Abbott. I have dear ones left there. I have relatives in Salem, Mass., whom I know will get the letter in due time; but at the period when I passed away they knew very little of spirit return. That was nearly four years ago. I went out of this mortal form through an accident—from firearms in the hands of a dear friend. Oh I firearms in the hands of a dear friend. Oh! how sad all were when they found what had had gone before.

Dear ones, how little you understand the happiness it brings a spirit when you open the door of your own spirit and let us come in and commune with you. Open the doors, and let us come in and commune with you. It has been handed down from age to age, and I flud that Spiritualism is making an inroad that no other ism of the day has been able to make. I am happy and satisfied with the home I now have; and I thank the angel world and you mortals who have been instrumental in providing these channels, that spirits may come and send out a word to the dear ones yet left here.

Elbridge Currier.

Announce me as Elbridge Currier. I passed out of the mortal at Enfield, N. 11. Many long years have since passed. I would like Belle to know! Visit her often. Poor, dear wife, how sad you have been; how many lonely hours have come to you since they said Elbridge was dead-more than one score of years. I know you ask why I do not manifest so you may know when I come. I will try in every way know when I come. I will try in every way possible to make myself known in yoar little room. Dear Belle, I often find Emma and your own angel mother beside you. Horace is here to-day. I would like them all to know we come often to visit them. Emma now asks me to say that she is present. We are often to ship, not blood relatives, but by the coming into the family.

I know you will ask me if I were with you four evenings ago? Yes, dear one, close be-four evenings ago? Yes, dear one, close beside you. I want you to know you are never alone, for so many that have crossed over, of the dear ones, often come to visit you, but not all at the same time. Helle, mother Hill sends greetings to you. Emma asks me to say that she will send a message as soon as possible. We are doing all we can from our side to help you mortals here.

Although a score of years have passed since they said that Elbridge Currier was dead, vet I have found no death, thank God. It is just commencing to live when you throw off the mortal and put on the immortal. I had just stepped into manhood when they called me up higher.

I would like, sir, to give a few your permission. My name was and my hope on the stepped into manhood when they called me up higher. Belle, dear wife, be patient; in God's own good time will you come to join the happy number. I know the many trials that have overtaken you; I know the loneliness you have felt; but, dear wife, look a little higher and a-k the angels to help us to come nearer and nearer still.

I thank you, sir, for granting me this short space of time.

Samuel Colburn.

I would like to send out a letter from this meeting, for I have been here before. may place my earth residence a: In Champlin, Minn. Samuel Colburn. I have been very anxious that these words might have been given out before, for I know Mary has looked the paper over many times, thinking perhaps she might see a few words from me.
I lived long in the mortal form, and it is only some three or four years since I laid off the old mantle and put on new garments. Never have I met a spirit who has told me he wished to come back into the mortal again. I will ask Mary to learn all she can, for I now she is trying to learn a great deal here. I wish to thank the lady for singing the sweet words, for I know it came from the spirit, and music attracts and draws us here. I loved music when in the mortal: I love music to-We have sweet, beautiful music in heaven. day. We have sweet, beautiful.

Thanks to you, Mr. Chairman.

Newton Chandler,

of the trials that have come to each one, and I know also of what has been transpiring in the tew years that have elapsed since I left the mortal form. I am happy now, for I have progressed away from those feelings that held me on first entering spirit-life. In an unguarded mo-ment 1 stepped out of the mortal; but 1 am satisfied with the home I have to day.

I am trying, dear brother and sister, to make some progress, and I will do all I possibly can to help lift the burdens of life. Father says it will come right eventually. I will try and come nearer to each one of you on earth, but I know you will say that I can't get very near to Jane, as she has got the doors locked and the windows pasted; but she can't keep out the spirits. we come so easily that no locks or bolts have any effect upon us.
I bring love to you all, and I will try to help smooth the pathway of you both.

Abbie A. Spinney.

My home was in Boston, and my name is Abbie A. Spinney. I would like Parker to know that I found it more beautiful than I can find words to express. I am happy in my spirit-home, but do not think me selfish and wishing to remain there all the time. Oh! no, dear ones. I often go into the home. I understood the fact of spirit return when in the mortal, but I find on entering spirit life that it was merely the outlines that I knew.

Father is here with me to day, and also many dear friends that I have known. I tried to be patient through my mortal suffering, and when the veil was lifted from my eyes, how beautiful l am trying to help the dear ones in spirit that need help, for it is a part of our work. I often step into the meetings. I have been in College Hall, and I have heard them speaking, one after another. I have also visited the Temple. I feel better for coming in and hearing you mortals speak, but I often feel how few mortals understand how many invisibles are present. We in spirit have a work to do, for we are not idle there, by any means. Our work is as varied as yours on earth, but we are all attracted back to the dear ones for some purse. I am happy, and I send love and greetings to them all.

Annie Beals.

You may place my former home in Great Falls, N. H. Annie Beals. I would like them to know that I often come to earth. The ques-tion has been asked why I don't come. I do come, dear ones, but have not been able to make myself known until to-day.

Poor Maria! In heaven you will see as clearly as we do. Although the beauties of earth have been closed from your eyes, in spirit you will behold the beauties there. How many you will behold the beauties there. How many times have you felt your way along, and wished within your soul that you could see as others do. Be patient; we will help bear you swiftly across, for the boatman will not fail, but will safely row you; then we will be together. Mother often speaks of you. We are happy in our spirit home.

I would like Frances to know I often visit her; and she asks the question: "I wonder if Aunt Annie is here to night?" We hear and feel the question. I know the anxiety and the trials that have come into your home of late. I know how much you have worried over Belle. I know much care has been required for tion is true, but I have nothing more to say about it. I will leave it with mortals to use the reason that God has given them.

I am happy: I am satisfied with the home I have in spirit-life. How many times I have promising myself for a long time that I would visited a medium and talked with my own dear angel mother. I know now it was all true. Often did I hold sweet communion with that dear, angel mother, and other loved ones that had gone before.

I tormorly lived in Soriervale, Maine, My

I formerly lived in Springvale, Maine. My name is Olive Hill. I have often tried to send a message to my dear children. I love them all, and what name to them is dearer than mother! I have thought as I have come into this council-room how good it was that we could send a message through a paper, when we could not come in contact with dear ones and speak through some other channel.

Roena, I understand how much you have and speak through some other channel.

Roena, I understand how much you have suffered in mind, and know you are not physically well, and of all the trials that have overtaken you in the home. Little Belle, as we called her, is with me, but grown to womanhood in spirit. Dear children, try to come into accompany to the company you. hood in spirit. Dear children, try to come into communication with us whenever you can. Your father, Joseph, is here, and says, tell the children we are all here. My dear children, how many times have I asked the Father and the angels to take care of you when trials have overtaken you, and the clouds have come thick and dark around you.

I do wish in my soul, Olive, that you would open the door and let us speak through your organism. I ask you, dear child, to tell mother why you close the door God has given you for mediumistic power. We would gladly speak through that channel, but if you close the door you know not how much you grieve us in am happy dear children, and I would ask each one of you to try to come into communi-cation with us, for it gives us as much happiness as you receive yourselves—yes, I feel even more. Never will you know until you lay aside the mortal and become a spirit how much happiness it gives a spirit to come into communication with you.

Freeman sends greetings, and says that Thomas is not here to-day, but has gone to visit Reuben.

Lucy, go visit Olive and Roena as soon as you can conveniently, for I know it will be well for you to take the rest.

I thank you, sir, for your kindness, and the guides for permitting me to speak to-day.

I would like, sir, to give a few words, with your permission. My name was Sally Emery, and my home was in Methuen, Mass. I have been here a good many times, but I did n't get quite in. Now they tell me I may talk a little

I want to say to Susie that I have been in the home, and I see all the changes that have been made. I was there when your mother was there, and I knew what you said to her, that perhaps sometime grandmother would send a letter; but she looked at you so wise, to think that Grandmother Emery would write a letter, when she was blind in this life! Now I have got eyes that I can see you all with, and I guess

I can write as well as anybody.

I want to say, Sarah, that your eyes are getting a little better, but you were afraid you were getting into the same pew I was in. No, no: I know the medicine you had—but you cidn't have any. I knew it all the time. Now I want to say, Benny is here and Julia. We come often into your bome. Suria, Lam going. come often into your home, Su-ie. I am going to talk more to you. I suppose the girls will say, "A little partiality," but you know, Susie, I always had a different feeling for you, because you stayed with me more. I want to say I love you all, but I guess I may about as well own it up -Syste was my pet.
Levi is here and Sumner is coming. He is Levi is here and Sumner is coming. He is too late, and won't get in to-day.

Ettie, you are coming out all right. Don't bother about William. Now, Susie, I want this letter to reach you. [To the Chairman: How often is this paper printed? every day? [Once a week.] I know I see her looking it over to see if grandma has said anything. I want her to know that I was there when Aport Markey. Newton Chandler.

My name is Newton Chandler. My home was in Oakland, Cal. I went out—I do not like to say it—but I'll lose that feeling in a moment.

Sometimes the skar ones have the ught that my going out in that way was the reason I have never manifested before. No, that was no reason whatever, although when we take what we cannot give—that is, life—we are I ound down in bondage for a period of time until helped by some good spirits to break this bondage.

Father and mother are with me to-day, and a bondage for a period of time and nearest of the same good spirits to break this bondage.

Father and mother are with me to-day, and father and mother are with me to-day, and to doctor, that he could get better and stay with you a while longer. I should be so happy if you a winterlonger. I should be so happy it is could come and sit down and talk with you, just as I used to; but now I must have an instrument. I could not get near enough just now, so I have taken this opportunity to send a few words through this newspaper. [To the Chairman:] Will there be anything to pay?

No. Much oblived to you. I'll do as much No. Much obliged to you. I'll do as much for you. I know they get this paper, because Susie takes it.

James Dickey.

You may place me, sir, in Manchester, N. II. You may place me, sir, in Manchester, N. H. My name was, and is to-day, James Dickey. I think I shall be remembered there. Many long years have clapsed since I passed away; were I to undertake to reckon it, I should say it must be more than forty years, although it seems a short time to me. Mary and Robert are here, and Peter, too. [To the spirits:] Don't haug back, for I shall tell of you all.

am satisfied with the home we have, should have been a pretty poor scholar if I had n't made some progress in all these years. My own dear argel mother reached out her hand to me, and beckoned me up higher, as she called me her own darling James. I never can forget those prayers, never forget those blessings of my mother, but I do see and understand things very differently than I could in the mortal. I find now that creeds, sects, dogmas and isms have nothing to do with us there. It is the life you are living here that builds your home yonder, just back of the veil. I would say to every mortal within hearing patient through my mortal suffering, and when the veil was lifted from my eyes, how beautiful was the vision that came before ever my spirit had taken its flight!

I am trying to help the dear ones in spirit that need belong to help the dear ones in spirit that mead help for it is a part of our work. often others who are no kin, whom we gladly help. Oh! let me say to you all in the mortal, Be ye charitable; be ye charitable; for I know not one in the mortal who is perfect. We in spirit see things so differently as we enter earth than we did when in the mortal form.

I would ask that this might reach Ellen Leland, Derry, N. H. I know if she sees the paper she will have a desire to read it. There is much obstinacy there in regard to these things, but I want her to know it is God's truth, and if grandfather comes, grandmother, father, mother and sisters also can come.

I thank you, sir, for listening to me for a few moments. Although so many years have passed since I left the mortal, I have not been able to manifest before.

Jason Barton.

You may place me (I was just feeling to see if had the other arm) in Fort Schuyler, New York. I was a soldier, and my name was Jason Barton. (No, they did n't forget to put on my other arm.) I also have tried to speak in your meetings, for I have many loved ores in spiritfather, mother, sister, brother—and many dear ones left in the mortal, some in Philadelphia, some in East Hampton, and others scattered in different directions.

Mother, Clara and Lawton are here with me Mother, Clara and Lawton are here with me to-day. I never had any regrets that I gave my life for my country's sake, although the arm was taken, which I suppose had to do with my passing over. But I am happy, and I would like each one of the dear ones to know I often visit them in their homes. Sister Mary, Walter and Worcester say to me this moment to please and Worcester say to me this moment to please announce that they are with you in the home often. I am satisfied with the home I have, and Frank; I have been in your home so much that I have understood it perfectly.

Lucy, take care I This life is not all. Do take care of the physical part, that you may avoid a part of the suffering here.

Our home just beyond the veil is beautiful, dear children. Your mother is often with me, aun, and often has she scanned the pages to see if some dear one had not given out something to her. Elijah, I know you will say I am charitable. I am trying to be, but I can't see it just as some of the others do. I know you will say: Jason, I feel, dear brother, you are not dead, but you are looking forward a little too far, thinking, perhaps, there must be a Judgment Day. The Judgment Day, as I look at it, comes every day. Now, let me say to you, dear brother—let me add, brothers and sisters—I often visit you, and father and mother send greetings to-day. I know that when our dear mother was called up higher the parting was hard; but, oh I how blessed will be the meeting, the reunion there.

I often come to visit some of the boys that wore the blue, and I find some have their trials in this life. As we in blue in spirit-life are permitted to go wherever we will, we come often around you, boys, and try to lift, or help to lift, the burden of life, which is heavy.

Learn all you can in this life, dear ones, for it is but a shadow. I was ready to come but Learn all you can in this life, dear ones, for it is but a shadow. I was ready to come, but still life was sweet to me here. Dear sister Mary, I know how lonely and sad you are; but look a little higher, for the dear ones that come so often to visit you will never leave nor forsake you. Frankie, grown to manhood—not the little hape you placed a way we touched. forsake you. Frankie, grown to manhood— not the little babe you placed away so tenderly—will be given back to you in heaven, where no parting is known.

Jenie Warren.

I would like to send a message, for I have tried three different times. You may place me as from Montreal, Canada. Jenie Warren. I stood so close when the gentleman went out that I came right in. I find that the only way that I came right in. I find that the only way we can do is to take the accepted time. If we wait, somebody else gets it; then we wait until next time, and of that we are not always sure.

Jenie is with me—the granddaughter—(for the name was handed down) John is also with me, and the little babe that was laid away years ago—more than half a century, as you reckon mortal time. I am happy, and satisfied with the change that came to me, although I felt as I threw off the old mortal that there with the change that came to me, although I felt as I threw off the old mortal that there was much that held me to earth. I felt they needed me here, but I find now they can get along without me in the mortal. Hannah is here, too. I want to say, also, that she sends greetings to William. We try so hard to make ourselves known in the home surroundings. There are but very few left in the mortal; the larger part has passed the houndary called larger part has passed the boundary called death, but which is only change-a starting death, but which is only change—a starting out in life, as it were.

I am happy in my spirit-home. Gladly would I come into communication with the dear ones privately, if I could, for there has been some little trouble in some property, which we do not care to speak of publicly. There should not have been any, but I could not help it.

William Seavey.

My name, sir, is William Seavey, Portland, Maine. I have been anxious, very anxious to reach Clara and Nellie. I know Clara does not understand anything of spirit-return, but, Clara, learn a little this side. It is like a school; what you learn here advances you so much further when you cross the boundary. I am happy in my spirit-home. I am only waiting for you to join us there. I know you have said so many times in your soul, "William, why did you leave me?" I had no voice in the matter. They called me up higher, but I am often with you, dear wife. I know you will say, "if I could only see you, I should believe it." Now let me say to you, dear Chra, if you could see me you would say, "William, don't go again." The second parting would be harder than the first. No, it is right that you can't see me with mortal eyes. My name, sir, is William Seavey, Portland, be harder than the first. No, it is right that you can't see me with mortal eyes.

I often visit you in the home, and I want you to listen for some little sounds; for we must speak through sounds now, dear Clara. We cannot make you hear spirit voices just yet, although you have some power, but try to listen for some sound. I promise you in the home I will keep trying to make you feel my presence there. You say, "It is a long time, Willie, since you left me." Long it seems to you, but not to us.

Nellie, it did me a great deal of good just coming into communication with you once.

coming into communication with you once. Now, open the door as often as you can and we will come in and commune with you. I know you are troubled a little about the hearing, but be patient; in spirit you will not be troubled. be pattern; in spirit you will not be troubled.

I know it worries you a great deal for fear your hearing will leave you entirely. No, it does not grow on you. We see plainer and clearer than you can. I ask the angels every day to bless you in your efforts, for you have done so much for Hattie, and I know you are still doing. I am satisfied with what you have done. Do not think for a moment that William leaves you. I often talk with father, mother and Aunt Olive, but we cannot always make you sense our presence.

Charles Rhodes.

Good merning, sir. You may place me in Hyde Park. I have come in to speak a word or two to let mortals know Charles Rhodes is not dead. I deny it emphatically. I am not dead, neither have I seen a dead person since I left the town of Hyde Park. I felt a little disap-pointed, Charles, when I found how things were going. I would not have you think for one moment I am mixed up with the old material affairs, but when we enter earth's atmosphere we feel the mortal as much as you do; we feel of earth, earthy.

It is but a short space of time since they said Charlie Rhodes was dead. No, dear wife, I am alive to day, and gladly would I come into conversation with you if possible, and Charles also, although many miles, as, you term it here in although many miles, as, you term it here in although many miles, as you term it here, in-tervene between you and the dear hoy; but, oh! I can go so easily, so quickly. Let me say, dear ones, I will never leave nor forsake you. I am watching over you all, and I promise, with the help of the angels, that I will be ever watch-

Ollie Scavey.

Grandpa said I could come. I want you to tell mamma I was right close here, and I am Ollie Seavey. I lived right where Uncle William did, Portland. I aint going to talk any more.

Verifications of Spirit-Messages. AARON CILLEY.

In the BANNER OF LIGHT of July 28th 1 find a message from AARON CILLEY, of Andover, N. H., to George. It is thought by some that it was for me; if so, many thanks. It is true that Aaron Cilley lived in the town of Andover many years as his home. I knew him well as a neighbor and friend. He passed away some fifteen years ago or more. I also knew his mother, and Abbie, his own sister, who said she would do her own talking as soon as the channel is opened, which I hope will be in the near future. No, I have not forgotten 'Squire Cilley, and there are many here in Andover who remember him well.

DR. ALFRED MILLER.

In the BANNER OF LIGHT of July 21st the message from DR. ALFRED MILLER, of Fitchburg, I was very glad to read. I knew him for a long time in the towns he spoke of. He was our family physician for several vears. Oscar, he speaks about, was my son, and he attended him the last few days before he passed away, and a few weeks after he went very suddenly, as he says in his message. MRS. R. C. EATON. Ashburnham, Mass., July 27th, 1888.

ALPHEUS B. HOAG.

I desire to recognize a message from ALPHRUS B. HOAG, of Sandwich, N. H., given through the mediumship of Mrs. B. F. Smith, in The Banner of Aug. Very truly yours, FRANK J. PEASE. Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 4th, 1888.

From the Facts Convention. To the Editor of the Banner of Light:

The undersigned, appointed a committee by the Facts' Convention Aug. 4th, to report upon the fact of the production of pictures through the mediumship of Dr. Henry Rogers—upon cards held between closed and sealed slates, which were held by persons upon the platform in the Temple at Onset before a large and intelligent audience on the evening of Aug. 3d, 1888-would respectfully report that they find from the evidence presented that there were pictures in colored oil paints and crayon produced upon cardboards, with writing upon some of the slates, as well as the pictures; and that all were produced without "fraud or collusion," upon the part of the medium or sitters. It was clearly proven that the medium had never (before the picture was shown) seen the inside of or handled some of the slates, or what was therein contained. We also find, and so say, that the pictures thus produced were such in point of excellence and finish that no artist need be ashamed to claim them as his own: and that we not only commend the beauty of the pictures, but their life-like likeness to those whom they purport to be; and that there was a celerity of action in their production impossible for human art to at we each and all believe Dr. Rogers to be a gentleman, and would recommend him to all persons as a medium, the superior of whom, in our judgment, the world has never seen: And we owe him our thanks for thus publicly giving through his instrumentality the proof that friends who have gone before do live and can make their presence known to us.

We also congratulate the people of Onset on having in their midst such gifted mediums as Dr. Henry Rogers and his accomplished wife.

JOHN H. McElroy, Chairman, Pittsburgh, Pa.; REV. E. B. FAIRCHILD, Stoneham, Mass.;

DR. H. W. GOULD, San Diego, Cal.; MRS. THOS. GALES FORSTER, Baltimore, Md.; MR. E. S. WETMORE, New York:

L. L. WHITLOCK, Boston, Mass. At the Pacts Convention held at Oaset, August 6th the following resolutions were unanimously adopted: Resolved. That our hearty thanks are given to Mrs. J. J. Whitney of San Francisco, C.d., as we feel that the success of our meeting has been largely due to the services of herself and spiritual guides—which have been so freely given. We are glad to welcome her to Onset, and heartily commend her to all Spiritualist moders and livestheaters. Inquirers and investigators.

Resolved, That our thanks are returned to Mr. Horatio G. Eddy, who gave such satisfactory physical manifestations on our platform under strictly test conditions. To Mr. Louis F. Jones, through whose mediumship was produced a remarkable crayon portrait, before a large public audience in broad daylight, which was at once recognized, making the demonstration a wonderful evidence of spirit-power.
To Mrs. Carrie E. S. Twing, for her invaluable services, which added so much to the interest of the several meetings of the convention. To Dr. B. M. Lawrence, who gave an exhibition of spirit-pictures by the add of the stereopticon. To Mrs. Lizzle Whittemore for her inspirational singing, which was hear-fly appreclated; and to one and all who have assisted in making this the most successful Fact Convention ever held at Oaset. Resolved. That our thanks are returned to Mr. Hora-held at Oaset.

Resolved, That the thanks of this Convention are also due to our President, Mr. L. L. Whitlock, for the conclusive proofs afforded of the great fact of spirif-return, through the public manifestations obtained and organized by his exertions at the present encamp-

At an adjourned meeting of the Facts Convention, held in the Auditorium at Onset, Aug. 6th, the following committee—Gen. Francis J. Lippitt (Washington, D. C.), Mrs. Thos. Gales Forster (Baltimore, Md.). Mr. William A. Atkins (Provincetown, M 198.), Dr. H. W. Gould (San Diego, Cal.), Rev. E. B. Fairchild (Stonebam, Mass.), Mr. L. L. Whitlock (Boston, Mass.) -appointed at a previous meeting to prepare suitable resolutions in reference to the minifestations through Dr. D. J. Stansbury, made the following report, which was unanimously adopted:

*Resolved. That after a full presentation of the evidence relating to the phenomena of slate writing (including that of the picture of an Indian chief appearing on one of the slates) which occurred at the Temple, before an authence of between three and four leindred, on Aug 24, through the mediumship of Dr. D. J. Stansbury, we deem the genuinteness of these maintestations to be established beyond all possible doubt.

satisfaction with the remarkable maintestations pre-sented on the platform of our convention through the mediumship of Dr. Stansbury, but also our apprecia-tion of the gental and intellectual qualities of the Doc-tor and his estimable lady, who have done so much to add to the enjoyment of such visitors at O. set as have been so fortunate as to make their personal acquaint

August Magazines.

MAGAZINE OF AMERICAN HISTORY, -The leading article treats of "Roscoe Conkling and His Home in Utica." a portrait, as the frontisplece, and views of his home accompanying it. An interesting description of Philadelphia in 1750, is given by the editor, Mrs. Martha Lamb. We are told that then everybody wore wigs, their variety being designated as "tyes, bobsmajors, spencers, foxtails, twists, tôtes, scratches, full-bottomed dress bobs, cues and pérukés," and "walked the streets in bright-colored and highly-decorated coats, three cornered hats, rufiled shirts and wristbands, knee breeches, silk stockings, low shoes and silver buckles." Charles K. Tuckerman contributes "Personal Recollections of General Grant," and Incidents of Border Life in Ohio" are related by Louise Wetzell. A continuation is given of "An Englishman's Pocket Note-Book in 1828, of What He Saw in America." "A Erenchman's Estimate of Washington in 1781" is accompanied by a portrait, the original of which was made at a reception of Washington, on the back of a playing card, which the artist suddenly availed himself of as the only thing at hand adapted to his purpose. 743 Broadway. THE HOMILETIC REVIEW. - Whether political sub jects should be discussed in the pulpit is the theme of a paper in the "Review Section," by Dr. Howard Crosby, his closing words being, "The pulpit should ever be the representative of God's truth (not man's) to the needs of the soul," as though all truth was not God's truth and equally needful "to the needs of the human soul." Dr. C. endeavors to make a distinction where there is no difference. The effect of recent criticism upon Christian Evidences is considered at length by Dr. Warfield. The usual compend of sermonic literature fills the remaining pages. Funk & Wagnalls, New York.

THE AMERICAN MAGAZINE .- The fourth of Dr. Hutchinson's series of illustrated papers descriptive of a launt " Along the Caribbean," leads an interesting variety of contents, prominent among which is C. H. Crandall's sketch of "Where Burgoyne Surrendered," with a detailed account of the monument that marks the spot where it occurred, and portraits of Burgoyne, Gates, Schuyler and others. Trebor Ohl tells of "Six Story-Tellers for Children," and gives pictures of them. Of the remaining articles are " A Summer En-Isode in Washington," "Aristocratic Paris," by Jesse Shepard, "Father-in-law," "The American Arctic Savage," and "The Country in Mid Summer.' American Magazine Publishing Co., New York.

ELECTRICAL ENGINEER .- " Trans-Atlantic Electrical Litigation" and "Overhead Wires in New York," are the subjects of editorial remarks; " Physics in Public Schools" among contributed articles, the "Abstracts and Extracts," "News and Notes," etc., reporting a broad field of inquiry and research. New York : 11 Wall street.

THE FREETHINKER'S MAGAZINE .- James W. Dare makes a weak attempt to discredit the truth of spirit phenomena by bringing in witnesses whose pretensions to duplicate the manifestations have been time after time proven to be of no account, when tested by the conditions the mediums are subjected to. Buffalo. N. Y .: H. L. Green.

VICE'S ILLUSTRATED.-Instructions are given for the treatment of plants in August. Something is said of native orchids and new gerantums, and the departments of "Foreign Notes," "Pleasant Gossip," and 'Our Young People," are well filled. Rochester, N. Y .:

"Glad Tidings of Immortality."

Finely executed lithographs bearing the above title have been received by us. The size is 22\(^2\)x2\(^2\)x2\(^2\). The principal figure is a foundle, evidently designed to represent a materialized spirit, crowned with a wreath of flowers, and bearing a long band of them in her loft hand, while in her right is a serol—inscribed with the words "Message of Love." Over her head are three stars. The drapery on each side appears to be the curtains of a cabinet, between which she stands in an exceedingly graceful position, suggestive of the line, "A thing of beauty is a joy forever." From above a ray of flight radiates over the entire form. Vignette likenesses of Mrs. Brigham, Mrs. Richmond, Mrs. Lillie and Mrs. Britten, and Messis. Howelt and Colville, are given, and excellent ones they are. The artist is Mr. Shole, who, we are informed, has executed many beautiful drawings illustrative of the Spiritual Philosophy.

THE VOICES.

BY WARREN SUMNER BARLOW,

BY WARREN SUMNER BARLOW.

THE VOICE OF NATURE represents God in the light of Reason and Philosophy—in His unchangeable and glorious attributes.

THE VOICE OF A PERBULE delineates the individuality of Matter and Mind, fraternal Charity and Love.

THE VOICE OF SUPERSTITION takes the creeds at their mored, and proves by numerous passages from the Bible that the God of Moses has been defeated by Salan, from the Garden of Eden to Mount Calvary.

THE VOICE OF PRAYER enforces the idea that our prayers must accord with immutable laws, else we pray for effects, independent of cause.

NERVOUS DISEASES AND MAGNETIC THERAPEUTICS, By J. F. BRIGGS, M. D.

Delivered by Mrs. Cora L. V. Hatch in New York April which treatment should be based. Nor are the views here set forth mere hypothetical dogmas or speculative theories, but the result of careful observation, broad experience and familiarity with the best writers. To read them is certain to convince the most skeptical, except he is perversely so, told with so little appearance of it, so destitute is the writer

THE LIFE. The main object of this little THE LIFE. The main object of this little volume is to give to suppostive teaching a recognition and a force (in the domain of religion and morals) greater than dictation has. It announces a system of life. It announces a few primal principles which can hardly be denied by any one, and endeavors to show how, from adherence to those principles, every life will grow into symmetry—luto harmony with itself in this life and the great hereafter. It is sent forth to the world by its author and his associates, as the preface indicates, without the hope or possibility of pecuniary profit to them—small fruit of some of the principles it alms to inculcate. THOUGHTS FROM THE SPIRIT-WORLD ADDRESSED TO THE WORKING CLASSES. Written through the mediumship of MRS, YEATMAN SMITH, of Carondolet, Mo.

These lectures have been dictated by a band of spirits who are deeply interested in the elevation of mankind on the earth-plane, that Orime and its adjunct, Misery, may be banished from among men, and instead of them the loving, helping hand extended to all who need assistance in soul or body.

The Spiritualist Camp-Meetings. Onset Bay.

[Miss Gustie F. Howe is our authorized agent at Onset Bay. She will receive subscriptions for the BANNER OF LIGHT. She also has a full line of our publications for sale at Association Headquarters; and will conduct the corre-spondence for The BANNER from this Camp-Meeting.]

"As tail trees of the forest are the first to be smitten by the storm and shattered by the thunder-bolt, so men of advanced thought are the first assailed by the tempests of popular indignation,"

This Camp-Meeting thus far has been a more brilliant success than any previously held. A vote by the Directors has decided to extend the meeting to Sept. 18t, two more Sundays. Aug. 19th Mrs. Stevens, of California, will lecture in the morning, Mr. E. B. Fairchild in the afternoon. Aug. 26th Mrs. Sarah A. Byrnes in the morning and Mr. E. B. Fairchild in the afternoon, with the regular conference, fact and mediums' meetings week days.

Monday morning a Facts Meeting was held at the Auditorium. On account of the rain the conference in the afternoon was held in the Temple, and was the best meeting yet." so said many on their return. Mrs. E. A. Wells, materializing medium, of New York, arrived on the grounds Monday, and is quartered at Parson Cottage, on W. Central Avenue. Judge John Fitch and wife of Toledo, Ohio, are also with us to investigate the phenomena of Spirit-mallsm.

Mrs. Esther M. Sanborn called Monday to say that she wished to testify to the truth of the spirit message published in The Banner of Aug. 4th, from Daniel Sanborn of New York, she being his cousin by marriage and knowing all the parties mentioned in the

Monday evening your correspondent was one of a Monday evening your correspondent was one of a number who visited Horatio G. Eddy's scance. After some physical manifestations in the light, a form materialized, purporting to be that of Wm. White, formerly connected with the BANNER of Light, who sent greetings to The BANNER, and said he was just as active in its interest as formerly, and doing all he could for the Message Department.

Jennie B. Hagan arrived Tuesday. On that morning an interesting mediums' meeting was held in the Miss Hayan followed with several inspirational poems, the subject of one being "Sheridan"—a grand eulogy to our noble general, so recently passed to spiritife. Mr. Joseph D. Stiles followed with tests many and interesting; all recognized.

Mrs. Carrie E. S. Twing will soon leave us for Lake Pleasant. Her engagements for the fall and winter will take her westward to Pittsburgh. Washington, Cleveland and Detroit.

Monday evening a private séance was held at Mrs. Bliss's cottage with most remarkable results. Mrs. Cox, whose cottages are on the opposite side of the street, was present in the circle, which was composed of but four people. Her daughter Mary materialized, came out of the cabliet, and taking her mother by the hand wasked out on the plazza, and kissing her hand and waving it across the street said: "Mother's home; life is not complete on earth or in beaven without a mother's love." and also many comforting words. Afterward another daughter materialized and walked out on the puazza also, and talked intelligently to her mother. Other manifestations fook place which were remarkable. Mrs. Bliss is truly a wonderful instrument in the bands of the spirits, and to say her circles are well attended, shows she is appreciated.

Wednesday morning conference meeting was held in the grove, at which Mr. Fatrchild finished telling why he became a Spiritualist. It was very interesting. In the afternoon a memorial service was held, Mr. Fatrchild presiding. Mrs. M. S. Wood paid a glowing tribute to the pioneer workers in the cause of Spiritualism and for the advancement and furtherance of all progressive movements. A mong those tenderly referred to were Achsa W. Thursday at 1 o'clock a party of twenty of the most prominent Spiritualists, together with Mr. Whitlock, Mr. W. S. Rowley, the spirit triegraph operator, and Mr. Gidley, a telegraph operator, who was sent from Buzzard's Bay, went out in the yacht "Onset Belle." In to try the power of spirit telegraphy on the water. The box containing the instrument was closed and locked, with no connection with any wires whatever. The operator, Mr. Gidley, read the message by signs, the same as by any ordinary telegraphic machine, the sounds being the same. Mr. Gidley is not a Spiritualist, and knows nothing whatever of the phenomena of Spiritualism. He testifies, however, to the gennine ness of the message, and says there was no collusion with the instrument in any way. The following is the message as it was given:

message as it was given:

"I wish you a good afternoon, and wish to say to you all that we can operate just as well from the sailboat as upon the land. There are many truths connected with spirit return, and this is one of them, the same as Dr. Rogers gets the spirit-writing between slates. I as a doctor come back to do good to humanly and heal the sick. I have the pleasure to be associated with many others who were equally or better posted than myself on these subjects. I wish to introduce Thomas Gales Forster. I have the pleasure to be associated with many others who were equally or better posted than myself on these subjects. The week closes with an increased attendance. It was made to appear in last week's BANNER. in It was made to appear in last week's BANNER, in Mr. Hayward's account of the slate-writing and pictures received at the Convention, that all were given through the mediumship of Dr. Rogers. This is a mistake. The picture of "Grey Eagle" and the message to Gen. Lippitt were given on Thursday evening through the mediumship of Dr. D. J. Stansbury, of San Francisco, Cal.

Thursday evening an exhibition of spirit telegraphing was given in the Temple by Mr. Rowley, of Cleve land.

Friday the steamer "Island Home" took between four and five hundred people on an excursion to Cottage City, and the remark was made by a gentleman that if each one had taken a han ful of sand with him there would have been nothing of Onset left behind; but what was his surprise when the bell rang for a fact meeting to see upward of three hundred people in aftendance. This goes to show something of the regular attendance at Onset, not mentioning the Saturday and Sunday influx of visitors. The season has been a cool one, and we have experienced but few summer days. We hear from other watering places that the hotels have discharged a part of their help, business being dull with them; but we are told the hotels at Onset are doing a fair business. The Washburn House seats not less than one hundred and fifty guests at each dinner hour, and other hotels in proportion. The Scances of the Betry Sisters are well attended.

Provincetown to Onset the 26th.

The scances of the Berry Sisters are well attended, and the manifestations very satisfactory, those who have been present aver.

We hope the friends and those interested in the doings at Onset will remember our Harvest Moon Festival, a celebration peculiar to Onset, instituted by Dr. I. P. Greenleaf in memory of the Indians who formerly roamed these beautiful grounds, and observed each vear when the harvest moon is at its full. We auticipate the usual celebration this year, due notice of which will be given.

Of which will be given.

One hundred and seventy-three persons have registered at Headquarters Office during the past week.

FROM ANOTHER CORRESPONDENT. Mr. Willard Wood and family and Mr. E. Harlow and wife of Plymouth, Mass., have been at Onset recently. Mrs. Harlow related the following incident: They were holding a private scance about one year ago, when a spirit then supposed to be in the material form announced himself; they had no idea that he had passed over the river of change at the time, but it was soon discovered that he had been in the spirit it was soon discovered that he had been in the spirit life for some days. He resided alone, and no one knew of his exit at the time his spirit informed the members of the scance through their medium; the secular papers printed the circumstances at the time. Mrs. Morse is sadly missed at the morning scances at the Glen Cove House, as her spirit-guides were very interesting and instructive in their elucidation of the subjects under consideration. A vote of thanks Mr. Willard Wood and family and Mr. E. Harlow very interesting and instructive in their elucidation of the subjects under consideration. A vote of thanks was tendered to her and to her guides on her de-parture, for her unselfish work for the cause while at Onset. Mr. Morse added much to the singing at these séances.

The summer home of Spiritualists is made bright by new comers who linger to inhale the clear, invigorating air, and listen to the inspiriting truths from the beyond. Our mediums are, as usual, doing good work for those in the field of investigation. Our talent in lecture department and oratory is not excelled by any camp in the world. Great harmony prevails throughout the beautiful grounds, fast becoming endeared to

In the afternoon, a large audience had gathered in anticipation of a rich treat from J. Clegg Wright, a matter in which they were not disappointed. The service opened with singing by the choir of "Beautiful City." after which Mr. Wright gave an address of an hour upon the subject of "Religion." He said: "In den uncing that which is false, let us cherish that which is good. The Idol is all right until we find that it is stuffed with sawdust. I am a better Christian than I was five years ago, but not so good a theologia." etc. Modern Spiritualism can stand the test of eternity.

On Sunday, Ang. 12th, the morning address was given by J. Clegg Wright, upon the general subject of religion. The lecture was fine, abounding in logical hits and eloquent passages. The best of attention was manifested by the large audience in attendance. The meeting closed with platform descriptions by Mrs. E. C. Kimball, nearly all of which were recognized.

Nine pairs of slates were then placed upon the table, in full view of the audience, upon six of which writing appeared.

At 1:30, **s the rain which had characterized the morning continued, the services were held in the large dining hall, which was for a time converted into a lecture room. The hall was filled with an enthusiastic audience to listen to an eloquent address from Miss M. T. Shelhamer. The subject was: "Spiritualism the Hope of the World." The people were pleased beyond measure with her discourse, and many expressions of great satisfaction have reached me, with the wish that she may again visit them. Prior to the discourse a party of ladies and gentlemen from Winterport favored the audience with musical selections—Mr. George Francis, of Manchester closing the exercises with the rendition of a beautiful poem entitled, "The Ferry Bell."

On Wednesday evening a Social is to be held to interest the young el-ment; a band will be in attendance, and a glorious time is expected. Other evenings of the week will be devoted to séances and entertainments, under the direction of Mr. Francis.

Cassadaga Lake, N. Y. Since my last letter we have had lectures by Charles Dawbarn, Mrs. Colby-Luther, J. Frank Baxter and Mrs. Corn L. V. Richmond. The attendance has been good every day, and on Sunday a very large crowd was on the grounds, the amplitheatre being filled to overflowing.

The morning conferences have been highly interesting, and give opportunity for people to relate experiences with phenomena in the home circle or elsewhere as well as to discuss the principles of the Spiritual ences with phenomena in the home circle or elsewhere, as well as to discuss the principles of the Spiritual Philosophy.

Last Thursday morning Hon. A. B. Richmond occupied the platform, and for nearly two hours held the attention of a large audience while he narrated some of the experiences which have made him a believer in Spiritualism. He showed that he is an expert in the art of magic, by explaining several of the tricks which form the stock-in-trade of the self-styled exposers of Spiritualism. He confessed that when he came to Cassadaga Camp a year ago he firmly believed that all the phenomena were simply clever trickery, but declared that he had not been in the presence of the slate writing medium twenty minutes before he was convinced that he was dealing with some power other than magic or legerdemain. He told his experience with much fervor, and at times, when speaking of the minifestation of dear friends and members of his family, tears started from his eyes, and his voice became husky with emotion. husky with emotion.

We have a telegraph and post-office, and these, with the many daily papers, keep the camp in communication with the outer world.

There are numerous mediums here, and many phases of the phenomena are represented.

The "hops," which are held two evenings every week, are well patronized, and are always characterized by the best of order and deportment.

There are exhibitions on Friday evenings by the Children's Lyceum, which are also well attended.

There are several private classes for physical and psychic culture; and instruction in occult science.

It is pleasing to note the growth of the Spiritualistic movement in the direction of spiritual culture and education. The majority of Spiritualists are coming to consider the phenomena as simply the foundation of the temple, and they are zealously working upon its walls. They perceive that the value of the phenomena is not in their power to amaze or entertain, but in the significance attached to them as revelations of a future life for man, and as illustrations of laws of spiritual unfoldment. It is of no use to teach a person the truth of immortality unless he is ready to make use of that truth by living as worthy of an immortal nature. A revelation of the continuity of those laws of justice and retribution under which we are now living, should come to man as a continual inspiration to live the highest life. The doctrines of Spiritualism contain unlimited possibilities for good, if rightly applied to human life. That they are being so applied, and that they are bearing is thes for good, if rightly applied to human life. That they are being so applied, and that they are bearing their fruit in character, is the inevitable conclusion of one who comes in contact with the people who as-

Let the good work go on until the will of the Father and the laws of life are obeyed on earth as they are in the higher spheres of the spirit-world.

CHARLES DAWBARN sends us the following letter from Cassadaga, under a recent date: "I cannot belo asking myself wherein lies the secret of the delightful experience of every visitor to Casas-daga Camp. I know there are whole-souled, compeof the delightful experience of every visitor to Cassadaga Camp. I know there are whole-souled, competent officers, perpetually awake to every necessity, and unself-shly active in their duty; but almost every camp in the country can say the same. Of course the location is charming; but every camp is selected for its pleasurable surroundings; and Casadaga is simply equal to many others in that respect; yet as a matter of fact it has already gained a national reputation, and has visitors from many States.

We shall gain no knowledge of the secret by comparing it with other camps, so I simply ask invself why I am having such a very good time here. The 'happy family' idea seems to be carried out successfully here—for all are peaceable and purring.

The lovers of phenomena have just what their souls crave. Among the many mediums are three slatewriters, who are kept very busy by investigators.

There are many here who, having gained proof of Spiritualism, are now eager students of its philosophy. For such, first class lecturers are provided, representing many phases of thought; some of their spirit controls.

A handsome building, called Library Hall, has been opened and dedicated this season, as a child of three hundred volumes, with a delightful reading-room for its nursery. Several séance-rooms and a nice lecture hall render the building complete in its usefulness to hall render the building complete in its usefalness to the campers. But the auditorium is the gem of Cassadaga. It is, I believe, the only covered auditorium at any of our camps. When its canvas wings are outspread it shelters an audience of fifteen hundred, most of them sitting on cushioned seats. The speakers find it an easy task to make the crowd hear. I speak from experience, for three times I have been gratified with 'pin-drop' andiences, easily grasping every word without special effort on the part of the lecturer. I believe other speakers have had the same pleasing experience.

When the canvas wings are lowered, this auditorium becomes a theatre for the very interesting Lyceum exhibitions and entertainments with which the campers are prected several times a week, as well as for the Wednesday and Saturday night 'hops.'

I have made the auditorium a special study, for I do not find anything like it at any camp I have yet visited; and I recommend it to the architectural consideration of all summer-land Spiritualists. Still it is only one of the 'points of force' which aggregate into the delightful camp of Cassadaga. Every hour is put to some interesting use, and the genial Dr. Street makes an admirable and impartial chairman at the daily conferences and public meetings. The fine band and the pleasing choir all contribute to the general result. Power is felt everywhere, but it is all of the spirit—for no policeman has ever been seen on

Mrs. Proctor of Saginaw, the oil test medium, is here, and it seems wonderful while entranced and holding up her hands, after washing them thoroughly, to see different kinds of oil collect in them; friends tell me she performs wonderful cures with this oil.

Father Davenport is present, doing all in his power to make the Camp-Meeting a success, kindly greeting all, and doing a good work with his mediumship as well; as he is one of the old pioneers, it affords me great pleasure to form his acquaintance. There seems to be considerable interest manifested by all speakers and mediums to make this camp-meeting interesting and mediums to make this camp meeting interesting and mediums to make this camp-meeting interesting and spiritually profitable.

The auditorium has been fully appreciated, and when completed will add greatly to the comfort of all. There never has been a time when Spiritualism was appreciated as it is to-day, and though in some cases mediums have suffered all manner of persecution for truth's sake, honest mediums are coming to the front stronger than ever.

Mr. Haslett has built a capacious pavilion, and on Suncay, the 4th inst., exercises dedicatory of park and pavilion called together an audience of about two thousand. Hither you havite her disciples of every clime and creed to come and reason of things past, present and to come, and no tenet of philosophy is to limit your field of inquiry, no doctrine of men's faith shall cripple your powers of investigation, no dogma of theology shall blud your consciousness... Appropriately to such a generous scheme you are to blend with intellectual achievements here your earnest, practical effort to amellorate human suffering and minister to human needs. A sanitarium is to be established, beds endowed, homes created, a library founded; and over all, and governing all, a faculty is to be organized, which shall rule with wisdom and ability the varied and expanding interests that shall cluster and fructify here. Could there be presented a broader or more gental field for personal effort and effective cooperation? The field is the world; the elements are faith in good works, hope in labor and in sacrifice, and a broadening love for all mankind. The workers have mostly borne the burden of denominational exactions and the heat of sectarian controversies. The fruits shall be love, gentleness, meekneed conscience, and the smile of an approving Heaven.'"

Atwater's Grove, Mantua Station, O., with its lofty and heavy foliaged maples, is a lovely place for an open air convention, and there every season for twenty-nine years, except when stormy, the Spiritualists of Portage County and vicinity have assembled in relinion. If stormy, and always in the evening, a large hall or rink is used. On the occasion of Stunday, August 5th, the morning being cloudy and the grove wet from Saturday's showers, the convention was held in the forencon in King's Opera House, which was early filled. At it o'clock, after orchestral music, Mr. J. Frank Baxter was introduced and received a perfect ovation. He has done a grand work in this vicinity, and this was his fifth annual visit. He took his well-known course of exercises in verse, song, lecture and mediumship, all of which was grand. His lecture was superior to any he had ever given here, and the applause showed Mr. Baxter gained that day many new laurels.

The sun toward noon came out in effulgence and rapidly the ground was dried, so that the afternoon session was held in the grove, and well, for hundreds came from different directions, and a multitude of people made up a vast audience. It was a glorious session. But the cilmax was in the evening at the Opera House, which was literally packed. Mr. Baxter was in a happy veln, and entertained, as he educated, remarkably well. He gave a marvelously interesting séance of an hour and a half, crowded not only with names and facts, but surprising tests as well. The convention adjourned to meet at the same place one year hence. Mr. Baxter must have felt conscious of the satisfaction he gave and of the friendship gained, for hundreds congratulated him as they individually shook his hands and bade him "God speed!"

OFFICERS OF HARVARD COLLEGE: With Comments by

ALLEN PUTNAM, A.M.,

Author of '' Natty, a Spirit,'' '' Bible Marvel-Workers,''
'' New England Witcheraft Explained by Modern
Spiritualism,'' ''Agassiz and Spiritualism,'' This volume contains several letters written by spirits who, while in mortal, were officers of Harvard College, and now freely write cut confessions that they were wrong in making that far-famed attack upon Modern Spiritualism in 1857 miscalled The Harvard Investigation. These letters are to be so valuable as history in future times that they ment a place in every family library, deserve to be carefully read now, preserved and handed down to posterity. They came forth in response to letters written by a graduate from that edges, who was the personal friend of those officers, and yet their centesiant at the three of the sham Investigation. He supplements the correspondence with his views of the timeliness, alms and operations, present and prospective, of Modern Spiritualism itself. It is a unique and Instructive work, by one thirty-four years a Spiritualist and eighty-four a mortal.
