

GOOD-BYE FOREVER-FAREWELL.

W. J COLVILLE.

Good be with ye forever more This is the mean ng of that song. Which o ten breaks forth through the tears Of those who dream that all goes wrong, When friends arrive or friends de part. No distance severs or can bind, Because the soul is far above The dreamings of earth's clouded mit d.

Fare well upon celestial food; Drink ever of life's purest spring; L fe in the consciousness sublime That every seeming change can bring Naught but experience which is best Thus good is found and all fare well Up in the food of faith, hope, love, With satisfaction to ngues ne'er tell.

Astrology in the Light of Reason and Experience.

W. J. COLVILLE.

Whenever we stand face to face with the very ancient science of Astrology, we feel ourselves transported out of modern times into periods of remote antiquity, and away from our accustomed western haunts into the very heart of the deepest Orient. No matter whether the science of philosophy, or religion of olden times is up for investigation, astrology is found inextricably interwoven with all three, and it is safe to affirm that science, religion, and philosophy have always been and still are radically inseparable. Whether we turn our special attention to Egypt, Chaldea, Persia, Hindustan, or any other far-famed historic clime, we are at once introduced to the Astrologer as one of the most important persons in every community, from the highest to the lowest and from the wisest to the most illiterate.

Among the Hindus who have since 1893 made a profound impression upon American audiences, not one has failed to admit that it is still the custom in India and elsewhere in Asia to have a horoscope cast simultaneously with the birth of every child. The Swamis, who have made themselves particularly fascinating to Western society during recent years, have all interwoven some Astrological teaching with their interpretations of the Vedanta Philosophy, and one of the best known among them (Vivekananda) often declared that his career as a preaching itinerating monk was foretold by the astrologer who cast the horoscope and made out the map of his nativity.

We are certainly not ignorant of the frequently attested fact that superstitions are world-wide, and that the long-time prevalence of a belief does not prove its truth; but while we are quite prepared to go as far as that admission may require in questioning the hoary claims to respect of the ancient science of Astrology, we are always equipped with a counter proposition, viz., the neces sity for admitting some foundation in fact for the so-called fictions which have long possessed the intellects of whole races of mankind. A careful and impartial study of mythology and folklore leads every intelligent student to the inevitable conclusion that, underlying all the wild and seemingly ridiculous stories with which the literature of mythology astronomical and astrological element within them, and this element is ineradicable.

Animal worship was never among the learned and the refined in ancient Egypt the degrading superstition which its relentless opponents declare it to have been; but Solar worship was always the higher cultus, and it is quite in vain that some well-meaning but intensely ignorant writers in missionary papers attempt to prove that Solar or even Phallic worship was originally idle or impure. That the various religious systems of antiquity became degraded and corrupted as time went on, and nations fell from their pristine hardihood into foolish effeminacy, gross licentiousness, and oppressive tyranny as did the Roman Empire and Republic within the acknowledged historic period, is a fact which no free-minded student of history will ever attempt to deny, and that as nations and orders became corrupt, religious baliefs and practices were degraded and diverted into false channels, is equally selfevident; but notwithstanding all degradations the original status of Solar worship-of which astronomy and astrology combined formed the keystone of the arch-was as high as the human intellect could possibly attain.

This is a democratic age; we are verging rapidly upon a period of universal enlightenment, unparalleled in the annals of human history; therefore, we are engaged in opening seals and revealing to the masses what was formerly regarded as the exclusive property of the consecrated and gifted few. Knowledge in days to come must be so widely disseminated that no child on earth shall be compelled to remain in ignorance; in this respect the science of the future will differ widely from that of the past, even though no modern information can be proved absolutely novel. But though we frankly and gladly admit the widening enlightenment of this advaucing cycle, we must in honesty declare that there are two kinds of knowledge-theoretical and practical, and while the first is open to all diligent listeners and readers, as it can be communicated in popular style by means of lectures and experiments in college theatres, the other can only be obtained by dint of the same painstaking personal investigation and experimentation which made its possession and accumulation possible to the savants of days of old.

Richard Proctor, whose works on asronomy are deservedly esteemed, though a highly gifted and studious man, shared a popular prejudice against astrology which effectually disqualified him from investigating its claims impartially; therefore, in his otherwise entirely admirable treatises on astronomy he introduced contemptuous slurs at astrology altogether unworthy the dignity of so great a scientist. Camile Flammarion, who is without question one of the very foremost astronomers of the present day, has no such prejudice to overcome, and we search in vain through his many delightful and fascinating volumes to find a single sneer at any of the psychic aspects of interstellar science.

Astronomy and astrology are twin pillars in the temple of science, and though we can study the former apart from the latter, the two are so closely related that every fearless, unprejudiced examiner soon comes to trace something of their logical inseparability. The heliocentric idea, which is certainly correct so far as all universal teachings are concerned, is based upon the theory of the Sun intended for the average man or woman who being the Parent Orb of all the planets in this Solar System, while the Sun itself, instead of being the centre of the Universe. revolves in company with other suns around Alcyone of the Pleiades which the ancient Egyptians regarded as the centre of the Sidereal System and toward which the towering apex of the Great Pyramid at Gizeh was made to point directly at the time of its erection, according to the calculations ofseveral eminent astronomers, including Piazzi Smythe, of Scotland, LeGrange, of Belgium, and others who have visited that stupendous monument which unquestionably contains the key to the mysterious truths of universal Astro-Masonry with which modern free masons may or may not be familiar. The cold, blind, materialistic fallacy which makes this little planet Earth the only inhabited world in space is too ridiculous and presumptuous to deserve attention or respect, yet, despite the testimony of Emannel Swedenborg and all seers and sages before and since his period, many seemingly well-instructed people are still heard to prate stupidly of the other planets in this system as "those material bodies." Certainly all the other planets have a physical, material, or outward side or aspect even as this planet has; but every planet is psychical as well as physical, and while inter-planetary disturbances of atmosphere and much else may be fairly attributed to ostensibly material causes, it is all in vain to strive to overlook the distinctly psychical influence which one orb exerts upon another.

our invariable reply is: First, ground yourselves thoroughly in the root principles of practical Psychology, then when you have thoroughly grasped the necessary fundamentals of a reasonable system of anthropology, you are ready to take up the study of anything and everything that specially attracts or interests you. Volumes could be written profitably with a view to correcting prevailing tallacles concerning every subject which entrenches upon the much-disputed domain of human destiny and fate, and until we have some rational idea of the difference between the former and the latter, we are not ready to profit by so intricate a study as that of Astrology if we seek to apply it not only to public or general, but also to private and particular matters and interests.

Such truly optimistic as well as transcen dental writers as Ralph Waldo Emerson, appear to have outdistanced popular views concerning Astrology when they have told us broadly and boldly that "Man is his own Star." and have laid claim to ownership of the Universe. To the thoughtful reader of Emerson's Essnys they appear for the most part singularly well-balanced, for though the philosopher of Concord has on the one hand emphasized human sovereignty and individual freedom, he has on the other hand given great emphasis to the doctrine of Destiny very much as we understand it. For the sake of unmistakable clearness we pre-sent a few pithy, forcible sentences which may serve to condense elaborate class-teaching for the benefit of those who need a mental outfit before entering upon the wide domain of astrological investigation.

First, Destiny can be well defined as the sum of our capabilities; it is reasonable to teach that Generic Man or The Human Race can fulfil its destiny only by unfolding its infolded capacity, while concerning any individual member of the human family it is equally reasonable to affirm that he can only fulfil destiny by unfolding in its entirety what is infolded in his particular individuality. Second, Fate may be employed as a word to designate the sum of our opportunities to meet and triumph over extraneous conditions, consequently The Mastery of Fate and the Fulfillment of Destiny are equally correct expressions. Though we could easily add a large number of valuable statements in this connection, upon all of which we might wish to drill our students, the foregoing two afford ample food for preliminary thought and study, and the two together will furnish sufficient mental equipment to the average investigator who is wondering how astrology and human freedom can possibly be reconciled or shown to be other than at mental variance.

The third chapter of the Book of Ecclesiastes furnishes a good introduction to the study of astrology, as in strong, concise language the author of that many-sided document has announced his conviction that everything is good and beautiful in its own season, and that success in life depends upon doing things at the right moment as well as in the right way.

Let no gifted seer or highly intuitive person who is safely guided by an interior light imagine for an instant that we are connseling any such to discard satisfactory inward revelations and run off in pursuit of any external lore. Our present words are has no developed consciousness of anything approaching infallible inward guidance, but we are prepared to add that should our highly intuitive friend study astrology with a practical exponent and demonstrator he would before long be marvelously impressed with the perfect agreement shown between the discoveries of the efficient astrologer and the findings of his own deep spiritual intuition. Astrology rightly regarded introduces us to a homogeneous universe, therefore it is not difficult to perceive that a true understanding of this venerable science can direct us to no conclusions in any way at variance with the latest and plainest inof other solar systems as though this earth were of different nature from the multitudes of other orbs which the telescope reveals and the spectroscope minutely analyzes.

Spectrum analysis has already been carried quite sufficiently far to dispel the illusion that other worlds are made of different elements from those which compos the globe on which we are living, and this demonstration made by physical science agrees exactly with our insistent declaration that physically and psychically all systems and planets are closely corelated. Let the student who is now for the first time turning his thoughtful attention to Astrology refuse to employ any such misleading terminology as "under the stars" and all similar expres sions which are radically irreconcilable with all the proofs and deductions of demonstrative science. We are no more under other planets than they are under us; we are a family of worlds and sustain brotherly and sisterly relations to each other. All such terms as malefic and a whole brood of mediaeval scarecrows should find no place in the vocabulary of the intelligent modern student of astrology, because they are without exception misleading and depressing even though susceptible of explanation by trained astrological casuists. Let us first remember that all influences of Sun, Moon and Stars are good though all are different, and the province of beneficent practical astrology is to teach people to "take time by the forelocks," "strike while the iron is hot." and do all our business in an intelligent manner recommended by the wise whose sayings mean far more than the unthinking masses usually suppose.

Such publications as Raphael's and Zadkiel's astrological almanacs, though not devoid of useful information, are very imperfect setters forth of astrological doctrine, because they print annual hieroglyphics depicting all possible disasters unrelieved with predictions of any bright events which can be foreseen and because in their daily directions to readers they give-advice which it is impossible for all to follow. Take as an example, "Buy, but do not sell before 2 p. m." on a certain day. A buyer necessitates a seller and vice versa, therefore simple commonsense suffices to expose the inaccuracy of so impossible a direction. In reading individual horoscopes such recommendations are in place, and it is quite within the bounds of reason to find one person who ought to buy but not to sell, and another who ought to sell but not to buy, between particular hours or at certain seasons. General advice, to be salutary, must be of a character which makes it possible for every one to follow it, though personal private readings may properly supply information adapted only to the individual.

After clearing away the debris it is not very difficult to start out upon a voyage of astrological investigation, rationally resolved to extract from Nature some of those open secrets which she is ever willing to reveal to all who will earnestly and faithfully interrogate her. If any fanatical religionists declare astrology to be impious because no one is permitted to peer behind the curtain which veils the future from our eyes, all we have to say is, let legislators who entertain such narrow views attack the top of the prophetic ladder first and then climb downward; but if they do so the meteorologists in the employ of the government will be the first to be dismissed from their positions, for in common logic no lawyer can possibly prove that, if it is impious to predict a coming event, it can be other than impious to foretell the weather weeks or days ahead. Bigoted fanaticism is the greatest foe to genuine religious progress, and because this foul weed is often cultivated in pietistic gardens, many noble-minded, pure-hearted people are alienated from religion altogether, and prefer to drift into tolerant agnosticism rather than be bound in the relentless shackles of canting, ignorant, religious slavery. If the Bible be searched, the Bible has no word to say against prediction in any of its legitimate phases, but that venerable volume does certainly contain anathemas hurled against black magic and all those phases of sorcery and witchcraft which have for their object the injury of any member of the human race. To feel that we are in the midst of the stars, not beneath them, and that we are all so inter-related that we can by the aid of the starry scriptures of the skies learn something of our destiny and true position in the universe is elevating and sublime, but fatalism with its pernicious and depressing fallacies could exert no other influence than to rob Astrology of all its power to aid the navigator in successfully steering his bark across the agitated waters of terrestrial life. Business men everywhere are turning their attention to astrology today, and many of the most successful heads of firms, managers of theatres, and others in elevated and responsible positions declare that they learn much informed astrologers. This could not be if we were so bound in the iron chain of inexorable fate that we could not take advice, or by increase in wisdom change our attitude to an inevitable environment.

Just here we are ready to ponder well the helpful axiom of mental science. "Though environment be inflexible our attitude toward it is subject to change in accordance with our will." The Talmudists have spoken well when they have handed down the saying "All is regulated by Divine Providence, except the conduct of man," and Alexander Pope spoke truthfully regarding the operation of the Eternal Mind when he wrote those memorable lines:

"Who binding Nature fast in fate Left free the human will."

The metaphysical theory of astrology is that of the wisest among the ancients, all of whom taught that man contains within himself all that corresponds with the solar system without; therefore, when we know how to regulate our own nature we cannot be controlled by any influences from without, though we are of course perpetually in communion with them.

The Sun is always the significator of man's spiritual being, and from the Latin, Sol, we derive the English, soul. The Solar Plexus, which is at the very centre of the human organism, and according to electrical physiology in direct communion with the most vital centre of the brain, is so named because it expands or contracts with spiritual expansion or depression, and as deep, regular breathing is the supreme test of spirituality among the Yogis of India and other distinguished teachers of practical occultism, we may reasonably say that, according to our breathing, must be the evident unfoldment of our highest or most interior selfhood. Sunstroke and all maladies occasioned directly by solar pressure upon the human organism show t' the subject of such afflictions has not attained a state where his own solar life is sufficiently unfolded to enable him to bear the intense action of the exterior solar ray. Sunshine is the best of medicines; sun-baths will cure more distempers than any other external agents or all combined, and we may safely state; that if the science of shromo pathy were studied and practiced as it deserves to be, an immense improvement would oon be obvious in average human conditions, The Moon, which is antithetical to the Sun in signification, is typical of the entire animal nature of mankind, and from its Latin name, Luna, we derive all such words as lunacy and its associates. Lunacy is directly traceable to inordinate regard for material things. The three chief causes for lunacy are inordinate sensual indulgence; grief induced by material losses; and the mad pursuit of external wealth, place, power, or honor, regardless of spiritual or moral consequences; and to the above classification may be added the false and grossly materialistic methods of competitive training substituted for normal education in a vast number of homes and seminaries today. A lunatic being one who has little or no control over his animal impulses and whose intellectual development is seriously impaired, or else abnormally arrested, needs to be treated by a calm, serene, highprincipled and spiritually-minded person abounds, every myth has a traceable origin in some fact of nature or some experience of human consciousness.

Astrology and astronomy are truly two in one, and though it has long been the custom in would-be educated circles to sneer at astrology while lauding astronomy, and many encyclopaedists have fallen into this flippant error, it needs only a very little intelligent consideration of the history of both sciences to so trace their inalienable connection as to find the fortunes of the one identical with those of the other. As there is a heliocentric and also a geocentric system of astrology, so there has been a geocentric as well as a heliocentric theory of astronomy, and only about four hundred years ago in Europe the geocentric view had taken such hold upon the minds of the masses of the population that the declarations of such illustrious men as Copernicus and Galileo were hooted and hissed by the popular rabble.

It is a serious historic blunder to suppose that Ptolemy, with his clumsy idea of cycles and epicycles was the father or founder of astronomy. The ancient Egyptians of more than ten thousand years ago, as plainly instanced by the famous Zodiac of Dendera, enjoyed an elaborate acquaintance with heliocentric astronomy, while the great Chaldean 'Astrologer, Berosus, seems to have known, thousands of years before the birth of Galileo or Copernicus, all that these noble and illustrious Europeans rediscovered and reaffirmed with such admirable boldness and sincerity. It is impossible to say when a study of the starry heavens first attracted the attention of mankind; but of one thing we may rest

As we are often asked whether we advise ferences of modern science. The twelve signs of the Zodiac, through which the Sun passes during the Grand Cycle of nearly twenty-six thousand years, and through which the Earth passes in every common year of a little more than three hundred and sixty-five days, have been not only fancifully but purposefully named to suggest twelve distinct types of humanity and twelve great sections into which human anatomy can be divided. For a popular treatise, "Our Places in the Universal Zodiac." we purposely adopted a title completely consonant with our pronounced views of Destiny as opposed to Fatalism, and we would respectfully request every intelligent reader to bear in mind the suggestive import of that title before proceeding to a more elaborate study of Astrology. We are all included in the unity of the whole and as "members one of another," we properly constitute a harmonic confraternity or co-operative commonwealth. It is entirely erroneous assured, viz, that all religions have a large | students to take up the study of Astrology, to think and speak of other planets or even from their consultations with honest, well-to lunacy. Paracelsus, in his enigmatical work on initiations into occult mysteries, declared that the neophyte who would fain become at length a hierophant, must take his moon out of the sky, give it a bath, and reinstate it in his heavens. This hieroglyphical direction when translated out of cipher into common English, means no more than that perfect mastery must be gained by the candidate for honors over all carnal appetites before the state of the adept or master can possibly be realized.

The various planets, Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune, are all said by astrologers to contribute their especial quota to the influence exerted by the whole. Neptune, the remote orb whose journey around the Sun occupies about one hundred and sixty-five earthly years, is said to be so remote that its influence is well suggested by its universal connection with the ocean; Neptune with his trident in mythology described as well as possible the almost incalculable tendencies of the native who has Neptune for his guiding star. Genius is denoted by a prominent position of this planet in a nativity.

Uranus, the mysterious orb which often bears the name of the great astronomer, Herschel who rediscovered it for the modern world, takes eighty-four earthly years to fulfil one of its own. The influence of this planet is universally described as erratic or peculiar, and the native in whose horoscope it is found rising in the upper hemisphere, shows a distinguishing taste for novelties and is always apt to take his friends by surprise.

(Continued on page 4.)

OF REAT.

In the silent watches of the night, calm night that breedeth thoughts, When the task-weary mind disporteth in the

When the task-weary mind disporteth in the careless play-hours of sleep,
I dreamed; and behold, a valley, green and sunny and well watered.
And thousands moving scross it, thousands and tens of thousands:
And though many scemed faint and toll-worn, and stambled often, and fell.
Yet moved they on unresting, as the ever flowing cataract.
Then I notedadders in the grass, and pitfalls under the flowers.
And thoje and her brother Fear suffered not a foot to lliger;
Bright phantoms of false joys beckoned alluringly forward.
While yelling grisly shapes of dread came hunting on behind:

ingly forward, While yelling grisly shapes of dread came hunting on behind: And ceaselessly, like Lapland swarms, that miserable crowd sped along To the mist-involved banks of a dark and

To the mist-involved banks of a dark and sullen river. There saw I, midway in the water, standing a giant fisher, And he held many lines in his hand, and they called him Iron Destiny. So I tracked those subtle chains, and each held one among the multitude. Then I understood what hindered, that they rested not in their netw.

For the fisher had sport in his fishing, and drew in his lines continually And the new-born babe, and the aged man, were dragged into that dark river?

were dragged into Last duk river? And be pulled all those myriads along, and none might rest by the way. "Il many, for sheer weariness, were eager to plunge into the drowning stream. So I knew that valley was Life, and it sloped to the waters of Death.

So I woke, and I thought upon my dream: for it seemed of wisdom's ministration. What man is he that findeth rest, though he hunt for it year after year? As a child he-had not yet been wearied, and cared not then to court it; As a youth he loved not to be quiet, for ex-citement spurred him into strife; As a man he tracketh rest in vain, toiling mainfully to each it.

As a man he tracketh rest in vain, toiling painfully to catch it, But still is he pulled from the pursuit, by the strong compulsion of his fate. So he hopeth to have peace in his old age, as he cannot rest in manhood, But troubles thicken with his years, till Death hath dogged him to the grave. There remaineth a rest for the spirit on the shadowy side of life; But unto this world's pilgrim no rest for the sole of his feet.

sole of his feet.

By the of his feet. Ever, from stage to stage, he traveleth wearily forward. And though he pluck flowers by the way, he

Mind in though the place bottom of the flowers. Mind is the perpetual motion; for it is a run-ning stream from an unfathomable source, the depth of the divine intelligence: And though it be stopped in its flowing, yet hath it a current within.

hath it a current within, The surface may sleep unruffled, but under-neath are whichpools of contention. Seekest thou rest, O mortal?—seek it no more on certh on earth, destiny will not cease from dragging For

For destiny will not cease from dragging thee through the rough wilderness of life; Seekest thou rest, O immortal?-hope not to find it in Heaven, for sloth yielded not hap-piness; the bliss of a spirit is action. Rest dwelleth only on an island in the midst of the ocean of existence, Where the world-weary soul for a while may fold its tired wings, Until, after short, sufficient slumber, it is quickened unto deathless energy. And speedeth in eagle-flight to the Sun of un-approachable perfection. -Tupper,

-Tupper,

Through the Law of Desire.

LOUISE VESCELIUS SHELDON.

(All rights reserved.)

CHAPTER III.

As Joseph and Amina opened the gate-lead-Ing to the house, a carriage drove up and the light from a lamp flared full in their faces. "Amina, Joseph?" cried a voice from the darkness.

"Amina, Joseph?" cried a voice from the darkness. "Helena!" they both cried. They recog-nized their sister. 'She held out her hands to them and their answering greeting told her that their hearts were responsive. Helena's restless eyes covered the sister and brother over and over again while her statuesque figure towered above the gentle form of Amina. The oval face, sparkling blue eyes, and fun-loving mouth (perhaps a little too wide), with its dimpled smile which continu-ally quivered around it seeming to play pranks with joy were irresistibly fascinating. Her head was crowned with a wealth of burnished brown hair, which fell in ripples Her head was crowned with a wealth of burnished brown hair, which fell in ripples about neck and ear, wherever it could escape the many combs and pins with which she enderward to hid it. The night and white of life over there to come and see you both in the serenity of the old home, and rest

"We are glad that you came," said Amina, "We are glad that you came," said Amina, raressing her sister's hand, "and we intend to keep you with us and not let you go for a long time to come." "You are living as usual under the shadow of this vast cathedral, with its gloomy niches and whispering corners," Helena said as she smiled complacently at Amina's honest admi-ration.

We love the old cathedral," Joseph replied "We love the old cathedral." Joseph replied with a fathomless look in his eyes. "It casts its benediction over us every day and hour of our lives. I would be lost if I left its shadow, and Amina too, for she receives inspiration in its presence;" and Joseph told her of his success as the organist in Uim, and how his hopes and ambitions were being realized as Variablester. Kapellmeister. Time came and went in the home, and

Helena was a new source of amusement to Joseph and Amina. Her vivacious, active temperament was in such marked contrast to their own quiet and serious dispositions. She assisted Amina in attending to the small details of the household as in her girl-hood days, for it amused her. Then the neighboring country was explored in search of the old retreats and landmarks which they and so often visited together, and Helena earned to love her gentle sister still more had deeply. She seriously considered the plan of having the family united in her home in the New World. It grew to be a serious question, for the spirit of Amina's tender presence became a daily necessity to her. Why should she not have Joseph and Amina with her all the investigation of the second second second second second have been a second second second second second second have Joseph and Amina with her all the

As the days began to shorten and a chill wind killed the warm life giving breezes, an unrest crept into her heart, coupled with the desire to return to her home in America. Her possessions owned her; the intensity of life in New York had fastened its magnetic unrest unce her and it would not lightly life in New York had fastened its magnetic currents upon her, and it would not lightly reliaquish its grip; she grew impatient to return, but she would not go alone. "Why cannot you and Amina come with me to America?" she finally said to Joseph one evening, as they were talking of her departure. He was speechless. He, a simple music lover who delighted in poring over old manuscripts of which but few in America at that time had ever heard, what would he do there?

that time had ever heard, what would he do there? "Tut, tut! Helena, I was not made for the life" was all he could say. "You should see something beyond Ulm, Joseph," she continued. "Why do you not seek to know what there is in the outside world? everything that you have here can be found in America, excepting the old ca-thedral, and then we can all be together." There was a long pause; Joseph sat mo-tionless; a rush of tender memories swept over him. The inspiration of the home, of the cathedral, of a thousand and one things that were life itself! As they sat in the darkened room, the restless movement of Helena's rocker was the only sound that broke the stillness. There was a sad note in Joseph's voice when he finally spoke: "Our wants are few, Sister. We have enough for every need, and I think that Aminn is happy. We could not leave the old house with all its tender memories and asso-intions for northing that the world might offer. It is impossible." "Ah. Brother," cried Helena, shragging her shoulders, "you are not weighing your words. The fact is, you have too many ideals." At this moment Amina came in and lit the lamp, and then as quickly withdrew; Joseph waited until she had gone before replying to Helena's last remark, and on his face there was a flush of resentment. "You are wrong, Sister. We do not have too many ideals, that is impossible, for only as we live in the ideal world do they be-come realities."

Amina is happy. We could not leave the old house with all its tender memories and asso-ciations for anything that the world might offer. It is impossible." "Ah, Brother," cried Helena, shragging her chealder "income net mething rour world"

as we live in the ideal world do they be-come realities." Helena showed plainly that she still re-tained the spirit so well known of old. Only the material world appealed to her. This was why they were in a way so widely separated in their tastes, and why he found himself at times unconsciously shrinking from her, not-withstanding the real affection he bore her. "We have time for everything here, Sister," he said. "You can continue your life in your money-gruthling world if you wish to, but leave us with God's blessing to listen to the voices of the soul, and do what little we can to interpret the music of the great authors of life. Here life's wings linger on the gen-tle breeze, and are not rushing and careering for mad flight. Amina and I are happy; we are content with our lot just as it is, and have no desire for a change." "Amina is no more practical than you are," said Helena, voicing a scarcely conscious jealous affection she had for Amina; affection which she did not even wish to share with Joseph. "I have not much patience with either of

"I have not much patience with either of you. The music of your viola and organ con-stitutes your entire world. Now, Brother," she continued coaxingly, "you can both come with me and continue to labor in your world of music, and at the same time be of great

"Ah, but Helena, it will not be the same. "Ah, but Helena, it will not be the same. To give the best I can to the world, I must have my hours of solitude, for only then can I become receptive and then I can study. No, no," he continued, rising and pacing the No, no," he continued, rising and pacing the floor, "the whirr of your great wheels of com-merce would drown aught else! I must hear the nightingale that sings in these bushes. I would pine for the cathedral and for the Danube flowing by our side." "So you think now," urged Helena, "but you will find other things in the New World which will take their place. We have the woods and the birds, the rivers, in fact, all Ulm possesses we have, excepting as I said hefore, the Cathedral." Joseph had been intently watching his sis-Dim possesses we have, excepting as I shu before, the Cathedral." Joseph had been intently watching his sis-ter's face, and it had suggested a theme, a new motif. Desire and Fear were pictured there. Her restless spirit would not allow her to remain much longer in Ulm, and then there was the fear. He could read it, the fear of loneliness. When she spoke again, he noted an added carnestness in her voice: "I want you to help me, Brother, I need you; I have no one near me upon whom I can rely. If you could give part of your time to the directing of my affairs, only part, of the time, it would be a great assistance to me." Joseph stood facing Helena, and at one grasped the situation. She was asking him to be her servant; to fetch and carry for her to be her servant; to fetch and carry for her; to make secondary the gifts and results of years of study, to throw them aside and take up business? She knew what she was ask-ing, but the artist soul in him shrank from the very throught. Lifting his head he looked at her. The intensity of his varied emotions surprised her. She had never seen Joseph so stirred Lt was his turn new to sound the Amina had found her familiar place on a footstool at Helena's side, and sat regarding her in open admiration, for Helena, was her ideal of womankind. "I suppose that you are wondering how I decided to come to Uim at last," said Helena." The fact is, that when Mr. Bauer died, I was in ignorance of the condition of his affairs, and if has required my undivided attention to become acquainted with them, or I should have been here before. I have wanted to visit Uim, and in my anxiety to return to the old home, I can assure you that the last few months have seemed to drag along. You can well imsigne how tired I maderstand what a relief it was to throw care to the winds and leave the rush and turmoil stirred. It was his turn now to sound the anyway? Composing a few fugitive songs, an orchestral theme, a poem now and then. A leader of an orchestral What did that amount to? It did not count for much in her world of things. What a pity he was not like other men. He would have been useful to her in so many ways. ; (To be continued.)

A Creaking of the Stairs.

All the little things went wrong at the office that day, from the work of the stenographer to a fallure in closing a certain transaction. Perhaps it was because I was wrong some-where myself; and I think I must have been, for I noticed the noise and clatter of the street which had been sounding in my ears daily for so many years that it usually passed without recognition. At any rate, when I got home, through with dinner, and into that haven of comfort, the big willow, armchair, I sigled with relief. I never could tell, afterward, whether on this particular evening it was a peculiar psychic state or the quietness which was especially noticeable after the day's turmoil; but in a few minutes an exquisite sense of satisfaction spread to every faculty, much as the soft, slightly stirring air through an open window touches the face and hands with cool, refreshing ballm in the sultriness of mid-sumer. As I was a moded deal given to letting the refreshing balm in the sultriness of mid-summer. As I was a good deal given to letting the imagination run and concoct vagaries so whimsical that the senses were absolutely engaged, it was only what might be expected when immediately and delightedly my mind took up the thread of a fantastic creation, which some time before had been left incom-plete. Free rein was given, because in this attitude I found a repose that lulled me to rest in a manner ochemist's anodyne might hope to equal.

attitude I found a repose that lulled me to rest in a manner no chemist's anodyne might hope to equal. What this particular fantasy was need not be recited, and just how long the pleasing revel continued I do not know, for time is not reckoned under such conditions; but I was suddenly distracted by a creaking of the stairs. I was annoyed and sought at once to reinstate that feeling of lively interest which had enwrapped and borne me on, as a pas-senger in some easy-riding vehicle which others were driving. It was of, no use. The attention had been diverted; besides, there was the creaking again. A moment more, and I was certain that some one was de-scending the stairway with all possible cau-tion. As I was sitting, it was at my left, winding down past the sleeping room which I faced, and opening into the dining-room of the large, old-fashioned house we all loved so well. Father would never descend in that manner; and it could not be Rob, for he lay nsleep in the room mentioned. I waited, breathless.

manner; and it could not be Rob, for he lay nsleep in the room mentioned. I waited, breathless. A slow but distinct footstep and a louder creak made me spring from the chair and turn toward the door. As I did so, my arm struck the bookense and several china orna-ments fell at my feet with a crash that brought me to a standstill. I was in my own modern home, and there was no winding star opening into the dining-room. I realized that I had fallen asleep and dreamed of the old home in the town some thirty miles away I had fallen asleep and dreamed of the old home in the town some thirty miles away where, very likely indeed, brother Rob, an M. D., was sleeping in the room I had thought so near at hand. While I stood a moment feeling very much

While I stood a moment feeling very much abashed, yet keenly awake, I distinctly heard once more the creaking on the stairway—and it was in the old home, too! I turned quickly to the telephone, for Rob and I often talked over the long-distance wire. His 'phone was in his sleeping-room, so that he could answer the night calls himself, frequently giving ad-vice which would do until a morning visit might be made. Soon a sleepy "Hel-lo" came to my ear.

micht be made. Soon a sleepy "Hel-lo" came to my ear. "Is that you, Roh?" I asked. "Yes. Who's sick, A—?" "Stop! don't call me Al, or anything else. Listen, and then talk to me as if you were giving advice. There's some one making his way down your sthirs into the dining room, in a stealthy way that suggests a burglar." "What are you trying to say? Are you daft? That is-er-how do you know the pain comes from your liver?" I saw that he took in the situation, and continued:

continued:

'Of course he stopped as soon as he heard the bell, and will keep still until things be-come quiet again. Now, you'd better give ne some good advice and get into bed. The same noise which takes you there will cover your stepping out again. Go softly to your your stepping out again. Go softly to your switch, turn on the light and make for the your stepping our again. Go sorry to your switch, turn on the light and make for the stairway." "Well, you're got the worst case of night-mare I have met since I began practice," came over the wire; "and I think it probable that your liver is in a very bad state. You certainly require attention. For the present, put on a hot flaxseed poultice to relieve the congestion until morning, when I can give you an examination. Good-night." If e rang off, but I knew that I should hear from him in a few minutes; so I stood and waited. The old house had been wired for electricity, and in the room next Rob's was a switch that turned on every light, except in others' sleeping apartments. This included the stairway, and I knew it would go hard with any burglar on whom Rob's muscular hand was Iaid. If it had not been for looking at my watch in my dream and after I awoke can be under-

"Yes, when we're shades! Meanwhile-----" But here the central disconnected us.--Mil-ord W. Foshay, in Magazine of Mysteries.-

OPEN WIDE THE DOOR.

In the silence softly falling, Comes aweet augel volces calling To the loved ones here in earth life, "Open wide to us the door." And in harmonies celestial, Speed they to this world terrestial, Bringing truths to souls receptive, Dear ones from the other shore.

And the pressure of their fingers, In our own so loving lingers, While they whisper through the silence, Clothed in love's resplendent light. In soul touch we feel them nearer; And in thought waves hear them clearer Coming to our spirit daily, Quickening sense to sound and sight.

Love and Wisdom! Light all golden! Dispensation new-yet olden, Coming to us through the ages To all hearts thy rays are stealing, Bringing messages to mortals, Teaching lessons pure, sublime.

Five and fifty years have brought us Greater knowledge. It has taught us That the so called dead are with us, Walk beside us day by day. And the truths they bring are beaming On our path of earth in gleaming Scintillations. Bright immortals Jeading to the heavenly way.

And the light we here inherit, And the light we here inherit, Coming from the realm of spirit, Gives its meed of worth and merit, Art, and literature, and science, All inventions from its store. Through each heart and brain there course Strong and mighty unseen forces, Stirring souls to grand, achievements That shall bless us evermore.

Oh, ye true and noble hearted, Ye who in the right have started With an honest, firm endeavor That your light before you shine, Onward! tho' the world should blame you, There are loving hearts that name you, Tho' vile slander shoffd defame you, In the onward march of progress In the onward march of progress Shall the victor's wreath be thine.

Onward, still the right pursuing, Strength and courage e'er renewing, Till the truth in all its splendor Shall illumine every soul. For the mighty in high places In the dust shall bow their faces, and coulty and instige And equality and justice In each heart shall hold control.

Then, with Freedom's banner o'er us, Then, with Freedom's banner o'er us And the angel hosts before us, We shall march in triumph onward To the corner-stone of fame. For a free and happy nation, Blotting out all creeds and station, In one glorious, grand Republic Shall write Honor to our name.

r Hattie E. Carr. Living in the Cause.

Sensitiveness-Its Suffering and Beneficence.

The two most subtle influences or vibra tions that touch the tender chords of the sensitive when thinking ahead or of the mor-row arc fear and dread-the fear of uncer-tainty and the dread of meeting the cerof Cambridge, refused to comply with the order. The M. A. C. V. Society decided to make them test cases. In case of Mr. Pear we made our exceptions chiefly on unconstitu-tionality of the Statute, and in case of Mr. Jacobson whose refusal was based on result of injuries sustained in previous vaccinations of himself and son, we sought to obtain rulings to allow evidence in Jury trial of in-juries and deaths often resulting from vacci-nation. We retained as counsel in these cases, Hon. Henry Ballard of Burlington, Vt., one of the ablest lawyers of that state, and who was appointed by the Governor of Vermont on account of his legal and medical knowledge, member of Tuberculosis Commis-sion of that state, and we also retained J. W. Pickering of Boston, a lawyer who has given much study to this subject. Our choice of these gentlemen was in-fluenced by knowledge of their thorough sym-pathy with our efforts and aims, and hence their work was con amore. The briefs pre-sented to Court were voluminous and ex-haustive. tainty. We never know what is in store for us The arguments before Supreme Court were made March 17, 1903, and decision of Court rendered April 3, 1903, and covers nearly 30 inches of space in the ordinary newspaper columns (so of course do not expect you to print it in full, but we have printed copies which we can furnish to those who desire them and will send us two two-cent stamps). The decision sustains constitutionality of the Statute, and rules out all evidence to show injuries and deaths resulting from its enforcement. We will now briefly comment on a few statements made in this decision:

tainty. We never know what is in store for us among our loved ones that may cause us pain. Misfortune, sickness, accident often come unheralded; and experience finally introduces a feeling of fear into our conscionsness that becomes a fixity, which ever haunts us as something disagreeable in the cause. Such constitutes the dear of uncertainty, and is a bane to sensitive souls. Not that it is an evil, which we should try to overcome; for it cannot be. In fact, it is more of a virtue than an evil, because it shows concern, sympathy and the readiness to suffer with the unfortunate, though in-stinctively hoping not to meet with suffering. That, too, is as natural to the sensitive as it is for the non-sensitive to avoid the blow of a club. One is equally as painful as the other, as the experienced will affirm. It is therefore not a moral to know how to overcome it, but how to prevent suffering or to know when the fear is needless—that is, when there is no foundation for it. Thinking of those near and dear, our mind naturally wafts towards them. If we per-mitted it to rest placidly on them for a time, their momentary state or condition would re-flect itself in this projection, and impress it-self on our soul-mirror in the same instant-space having no dimensions to our causal nature. Thought is ubiquitous, and in that sense length, breadth and thickness fade away. It may not be real in the absolute, but it is equal to reality for the individual op-erator.

He must make himself receptive-negative-with the desire to be calightened. This cre-sties a vacuum in the soul-nature exactly fit-ing the answer to the query propounded. The same principle holds good in casting whead for advice on the duties to be met. "Ask, and thou shalt receive." is a hint, which is not only figurative, but scientific; but one must question with soul-receptivity-that constituting a real condition for the admission of the light wanted. Passivity to catch the influence of the duty ahead, and a desire to know how to overcome it are often rewarded by faith based on facts. Troubles always seem greater when the effect only is considered. Perfect results can only be achieved where the interior conscious-news has an equal share with the exterior in the work to be performed. Misjudgment is are due to it. We overlook the cause of little iritations and condemn when we should sympathize. We pride ourselves on principle, which is often but prejudice in the analysis. A faith is exalted that is bigotry pre- and simple. The inquisition has only changed its nethods. Mental tortures are over prenter than physical because they extend prime the same of the immediate effects. We are ploneering into a higher mortal condition still surrounded by wild forests of discordant ele-ments-a glittering civilization that is iron-cial against true spiritual perception.

surrounded by wild forests of discordant ele-ments—a glittering civilization that is iron-clad against true spiritual perception. Of course, there are notable exceptions, and the world is fill of good people, but the per-centage is small, very small, compared to those who reason on a causal basis—who penetrate to the soul of things; who study the heart; who overlook human weaknesses; who are willing to sacrifice material prosper-ity for spiritual wealth!

ity for spiritual wealth! Are our governments doing anything towards disarmament—peace and harmony among nations? Do they not represent the people? Is this fact not a stricture on the mental passivity of the spiritually inclined and the sensitive? Is it a wonder that they entropy

But they can sympathize with each other-both by giving of their light and extending a helping hand when necessary. The "widow's mite" is still a factor in mortal life; and doing ahead is equal to thinking ahead when conditions are unfavorable for the latter-charity and benevolence being also causal vibrations that attract needed light or com-fort to the benefactor.

Compulsory Vaccination.

The Massachusetts Anti-Compulsory Vacci-nation Society having obtained the first de-cision ever rendered by the Supreme Court of this State, upon the constitutionality of the Compulsory Vaccination Law, I thought it might interest your readers if I made them acquainted with some rulings of the Court upon this important subject, and called at-tention by a few brief comments to its atti-tude regarding our exceptions and claims. A brief resume of the cases should first be given. On Feb. 27, 1902, the board of health of the city of Cambridge, Mass., issued an order that all the inhabitants of the City who had not been successfully vaccinated since March 1, 1897, be vaccinated or re-vaccinated. Mr. Albert M. Pear, assistant City Clerk, and Mr. Henning Jacobson, a clerzyman and both highly respected citizens of Cambridge, refused to comply with the order. The M. A. C. V. Society decided to make suffer?

Arthur F. Milton.

who are willing to sacrif ity for spiritual wealth!

MAY P. 1908.

endeavored to bind it The pink and white complexion so carefully preserved gave her quite a youthful appearance. In every way nature had been very prodigal with her gifts. As Helena entered the dining room and seated herself in a wooden backed chair unseated herself in a wooden backed chair un-der the hanging lamp, her eyes roamed over the familiar apartment and its contents, but always returned to the two whom she had traveled four thousand miles to see. The evening rehearsal had left a strange influence upon Joseph and Amina, and the strains of "Tristan and Isolde" were still in their ears as they sat quietly contemplating the sister who seemed to have come from another plane of existence. The dress of Helena, the bright boxes and trunks, the new things she threw down here and there, made an instantaneous change in the home. To Helena the loved cottage with its inmates was doubly dear; change in the home. To Helena the loved cottage with its immates was doubly dear; there was the same low ceiling and small square windows with draperies of white dim-ity hanging at their sides. The steaming tea-kettle was humming a tune to which the lid was merrily dancing; the house afforded but few luxuries, she knew, but it was as Joseph

"We need so little to make us content." The table was spread with its simple fare early in the evening, before the renearsal in fact: all this, together with the general air of comfort and repose presented a qualit picture. What an old-tashioned cosy little spot it was to be sure. The entire house would about fill one of the rooms in her mansion in New York City.

Amina had found her familiar place on a footstool at Helena's side, and sat regarding her in open admiration, for Helena, was her ideal of womankind.

If it had not been for looking at my watch I could have sworn it was an hour before he called me. It was just nine minutes, how-ever, when the bell of my 'phone tinkled.

ever, when the bell of my 'phone tinkled. "That you, Rob?" "Yes-of-course-it-is." Each word came out with a puff_like a locomotive. Your-liver-is-all_wight, after all." "Yes, yes: but what did you find?" "I-whew!-turned on the light and made a dive for the dining-room. Excuse me, Al, old fellow, but I couldn't help querying while I was dodging about (you know one's thoughts are quicker than his legs) which of us was the bigger fool-you to get me scurry-ing round this way in the night, or myself for, doing it. But when I opened the stair door I took it all back; that is, I do now. I thought of something else just then, for there was a man on the steps scrambling up at a getter the sure that he scales he great rate. "He had a little the start of me, since he

"He had a little the start of me, since he probably jumped the moment the light was turned on. I knew I couldn't catch him be-fore he got out the window and on to the low reof, if I attempted to follow; so I ran for the outer door, and got to him just as he dropped to the ground. I hated to take hold of him for fear he would knife or shoot me. Silly to think that way, but it seemed as if he could do it much more easily because I wasn't dressed. Anyhow, I felt ticklish in nothing but my nightclothes, and let fly from the shoulder, knocking him down. At the same time I called for John. I suppose I was excited and must have hit pretty hard, for he acted weak, and I had no trouble in pinning him down until John bronght me a rope and we tide him up. Now you've got my story, I want yours."

erator.

erator. Now, it is not necessary to be a mind-render, so-called, to solicit information of a sympathetic nature. Feeling betrays this. As we sense a repulsion when unconsciously intruding and may or may not heed it, so we may sense a disturbance or a placidity in the vibration returning from our daily compan-ions--provided we are not out of tune on account of that little morbidity of fear, which baunts so many.

When all Feels screne, there is no cause for concern; and this assurance largely de-stroys that condition of uncertainty. Even the disturbed or agitated vibration can re-move the fear of uncertainty, if we knew the cause. But this belongs to the next advanced step is sensitiveness. Experience may teach the nature of the influences felt; but by hold-ing the vibration as caught—that is, keeping the nature of it firmly fixed in mind or thought—it finally resolves itself as an idea on the brain, which constitutes the truth of the case in question. Feeling is thought budding; and by permitting it time to grow uncertainty and removes fear. The dread of meeting the cartainty consti-tutes the known duties ahead, as meeting a note, for example, a trial or anything for tutes the known duties ahead, as meeting a note, for example, a trial or anything for which we are not yet prepared. We know what is to come, but are not assured of a successful outcome. It generates a dread, which, like the former, may become chronic and inspire doubt, even in that which we are proficient or are enabled to master.

proficient or are enabled to master. Of course, some natures can pass lightly over such matters, but their disappointment is all the greater in the event of failure. Xet it is very disagreeable to possess a tempera-ment that worries in advance. But, as in the first instance, it is an effect of sensitiveness, which is difficult to overcome. The only advice offerable in this case is to cast ahead as in the first. That is, let the mind rest on the duty to be performed, and note the feelings generated. If it leaves the consciousness serene, all is well. If the re-verse, something else beside awaiting the time is necessary. No man ever received light on a new sub-

Ö. Asbury Simpson, Secretary and Treasurer of Mass. Anti-Comp. Vac. Society. We quote, "The right of the Legislature to enact laws founded upon the theory that vac-cination is important as a preventive of small-pox." Here we have the important ad-mission by Supreme Court that vaccination laws are founded upon theory. No mention is made of absolute protection, but only that vaccination is "important as a preventive." . When Compulsory Vaccination laws were first enacted in England, and also America, the claim was brought forward to justify such serious intringements of personal liberty and rights, that vaccination gave absolute and sure protection from small-pox and one vaccination protected for life, and because such foolish claims were urged by what was considered the "hest medical authority," our Legislature was induced to pass the Compul-sary Statute. The present definition would never have secured a Compulsory Statute. The Court says, "The liberty of the indi-vidual may be interfered with, whenever the general welfare requires a course of proceed-ings to which certain persons object, etc." I certainly feel that I am correctly expressing the sentiments of the intelligent opponents of Compulsory Vaccination, when I say that we never argue against the interference with per-vonal liberty in certain cases, and we accept, and urge such restraint as may be found nec-never argue against the interference with per-sonal liberty in certain cases, and we accept, and urge such restraint as may be found nec-essary in carrying out methods of sanitation which have been and can be substituted for vaccination, viz: Isolation and Disinfection.

Notes and Comments on Opinions of Supreme Court of Massachusetts as stated in cases of Commonwealth v. Albert M. Pear and Commonwealth v. Henning Jacobson. By C. Asbury Simpson, Secretary and Treas-urer of Mass. Anti-Comp. Vac. Society.

vaccination, viz: Isolation and Disinfection. All such examples as the Court cites are regative interferences and cannot be classed with active assaults, which we claim is ex-actly what occurs when vaccination is in-flicted upon a person against his desire or wish. In all Court decisions that we have seen, this broad and obvious distinction is lost sight of or purposely ignored as is also the case when upholders of vaccination de-fend compulsion with articles in Public Press. Vaccination is an avowed intent to inflict ment that worries in advance. But, as in the first instance, it is an effect of sensitiveness, which is difficult to overcome. The only advice offerable in this case is to cast ahead as in the first. That is, let the mind rest on the duty to be performed, and note the feelings generated. If it leaves the conscionsness serene, all is well. If the re-verse, something else beside awaiting the time is necessary. No man ever received light on a new sub-ject with preconceived notions concerning it.

It will pay you to look into the investment offer Dr. Peebles is placing before Spiritualists of the country.

A few months ago the doctor incorporated his medical business at Battle Creek, for the purpose of perpetuating the good work he was instrumental in starting and has carried on successfully for many years, and now that the success of his plans is assured, he invites Spiritualists and Liberalists all over the country to share in the success of his company. You do not need to be wealthy to share in the doctor's company; the small investor is just as welcome as the large. The man invest-ing $50 or $100 will use his influence for the company just as will the one investing many thousands, and it is the good wishes and sup port that is desired more than the money.

A small amount properly invested where it will draw good dividends and continually increase in value is worth many times the same amount if allowed to lie idle or put away in a bank where it will draw only 3 or 4 per

It is the careful and wise investor who places his money where it will increase that amasses the fortune. Money invested in Dr. Peebles' Company today

Will Draw Handsome Dividends

(7 Per Cent.) From the First, and in addition thereto, the stock will increase

In value so that at the end of two years at most it will be worth two or three times what you paid for it.

If you have any amount above $10 you can spare for investment, write for full particulars at once. Seven per cent. dividends are guaranteed from the first, and much larger ones can be expected after the first year. Address Dr. J M. Peebles, Chairman, Box tion, the Court rules that the only "compe-tent evidence" that could be presented to the Court was the testimony of experts, giving their opinions. It would not have been com-petent to introduce the medical history of "in-dividual cases."

2421, Battle Creek, MI

dividual cases." Now please note that although the Court admits that such testimony would have been "competent evidence," and that our Counsel stated we were prepared to produce it, yet the Court did not allow our exceptions on this point stated we were prenared to produce it, yet the Court did not allow our exceptions on this point. What follows from such a ruling. Suppose a man is summoned to Court for refusal to submit to vaccination of himself and only child, and in defence the man testifies that he has seen three of his children sieken and die, two of them in the agonies of lockjaw, and the third from blood poisoning, while he himself, nearly lost his arm, and did lose six months' wages, from vaccination forced upon him by the firm who employed him. This man testifies to facts within his personal knowledge and experience. He knows and the Court knows that if those vaccination wounds had not been inflicted, the terrible results would not have followed, and yet his testimony and the testimony of his family physician who attended the cases is ruled out are incompetent and will not be admitted in any, court of Massachusetts as a defence. The right to trial by Jury is denied. In our Jury trial, the Judge simply instructed the Jury to bring in a verdict of guilty, and al-lowed no evidence of injuries to be introduced by defendant. No matter how convincing your reasons might be to a Jury you are not allowed to present them. In other words, the citizen is deprived of his rights without re-dress, and without opportunity to be heard. The Court further says: "The theoretical rossibility of an injury in an individual case, as a result of its enforcement does not show that as a whole it is unreasonable." But it is clearly unreasonable to ask citi-zons to expose themselves to a danger and risk which painful experience and personal knowledge has tught them to dread. Suppose a citizen is suffering from com-sumption or from syphilitic infection or from Bright's disease, or scrofula, any one of which might claim, with backing of expert testimony, was caused from previous vacci-

The Society now contemplates carrying these cases to U. S. Supreme Court, and transitions one. No statute, so unreasonable, arbitrary and transities in any other state so far-as we have knowledge, and hence a case based upon this statute presents the best opportunity to obtain the decision we desire from U. S. Supreme Court. Before deciding on this course we must know what support and encouragement we are likely to obtain from friends of the Cause everywhere, and hence we appeal to your readers for contributions and pledges. We have a great educational work to do aren if no further appeal is made to Courts. We mak every one, who desires to see this form the throats and pockets of the people, to join us and help in the fight. M. A. C. Y. Soclety, 28 School St., Room 34, Boston, Mass.

The Fox Sisters.

Mrs. Ann Leah Underhill spurned the idea Arts. And Dean Ondernin spinled the det advanced by some speakers and writers that Mrs. Kane and Mrs. Jencken were born poor and lowly at Hydesville, similar to the fisherman of Galile. They moved into the Hydesville house only five months before the Hydesrille house only five months before the rapping commenced. Dr. Benjamin Franklin, Du Fay, and other intelligent kindred spirits, after a long, energetic search, found the family of John D. Fox near Bath, Canada, north side of Lake Ontario about 1843. They also found in the Hydesrille house a spirit who had been mur-dered some years before and his body had been buried in the cellar. It was an ener-getic, persistent effort and plot to get this family from Canada into this house on ac-count of the protection they would receive from intelligent people in Rochester, N. Y., and their persistent labor was successful March 51, 1848. I will soon give a full detailed statement why they wero selected to commence this grand work. I also submit to you what J. Clegg Wright said at the funeral of Margaret Fox Kane March 10, 1833, reported and pub-grand work. I also submit to you what J. Clegg Wright said at the funeral of Margaret Fox Kane March 10, 1833, reported and pub-lished in the Broaklyn Citizen: "J. Clegg Wright then went into a trance and delivered an oration in which he said the dead woman had accomplished more than two queens, a literary light and a political entity, by proving to the world the existence of mind without brain. She was greater than Plato, Caesar or George Washington. "The year 1848, when she first manifested the (so called) spirit raps, was greater than the year one of the Christian Era. (Ap-plause). She had done more to wipe from the world the blood of the Lord Jesus Christ than any one in a thousand years by elimi-nuting the supernatural." He disagreed with the other speakers who said her spirit was at rest, "as there is no rest. She has goue where the roses bloom and where there are no more contributions to be wrung from a reluctant public." He concluded a rather Ultra-Spiritualistic harangue saying that Spiritualists want fewer words, more facts, more phenomena, loss moonshine and more mediums like Mrs. Kane.

A Perfect Regulator of the Stomach - and Bowels and Bowels is Vernal Saw Palmetto Berry Wine. It promptly relieves and permanently cures all weaknesses, irritations, inflammations, ob-structions or diseases of the stomach, bowels, kidneys, bladder, liver and prostate gland. It will restore perfect health and vigor to any person afflicted with general debility or ner-vous debility. It cures constipation so that it stays cured by removing the cause of the difficulty. Only one small dose a day will cure any case, no matter how light or of how long, standing. It cures by toning, strengthening and adding new life and vigor to the intestines, so that they move them-selves healthfully and naturally. All such conditions as dyspepsia, catarrh of the stomach, chronic indigestion, constipation, Bright's disease, diabetes, inflammation of the kidneys, catarrh of the bladder, irrita-tion or enlargement of the prostate gland, torpid liver, pain in the back, female weak-ness and female irregularities begin in clogged howels. They are cured by Yernal, Saw Palmetto Berry Wine. Try it. A free sample bottle for the asking. Vernal Rem-edy Co, 120 Seneca Bildg, Buffalo, N. X. For sale by all leading druggists.

Solid Electricity.

In the last February number of Scientific American is an account of the production of Radium in the largest quantity, in one piece, ever yet made. The piece is of the size of a large buck shot. It cost just about twenty thousand dollars. It required the consump-tion of several tons of pitch blend to de-velop this bit of Radium. It was made by chemistic of Paris, a lady and her husband. From the account of it, I am surprised that no one has suspected that Radium bears the same relation to electricity that ice does to some relation to electricity that ice does to steam, compressed air to air, solid oxygen or hydrogen to these elements. A bit of Radium weighing a pound would light and warm a large area for ages with no appreciable loss. It imparts electricity to substances near it by induction In a word it perpetually by induction. In a word, it perpetually evolves electricity. A pound of it, if it can be produced, will not lose over one grain of weight in a million years. In short the reply to "What is it?" can be but "solid elec-tricity," C. Irvine. Oregon, Mo.

inge and the sign of the paint brush is no-ticeable on a dosen others. The chairman of the Board of Health was here yesterday an-alysing the water and declares it to be ex-cellent. We have boasted of the medleinsi properties of Jacob's Well in our circulars and it is a pleasant Hotel has been leased to fullip Yeaton of Boston for a third sea-tor pailip Yeaton of Boston for a third sea-tor pailip Yeaton of Boston for a third sea-non. As usual we shall have with us Mr. John Glickland as proprietor of the boating privilege: Harry Sarage has leased the lee and baggage privileges and L. E. Henry will are the news stand. Since the litigation in frequent has settled up and the prospects for harmony, justice and good financial results for More Courils, has written us that he can dispose of one thousand circulars. Others are writing for lots of from one hundred to five hundred, which will be sent between now and May 20. In writing for circulars kindly send rul address and beston. Mere P. Blinn, clerk.

For Over Sixty Years

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all paia, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for Diar-rhoen. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

New York Annual Convention.

The Sixth Annual Convention of the New York State Association of Spiritualists will be held in Empire Hall, North Salina and West Genessee Streets in the city of Syracuse, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, May 29, 30, 31, 1903. Convention headquarters, Empire Hotel, Good speakers and phenomenal me-diums; choice music under the direction of Syracuse society. Miss Victoria C. Moore of Dryden, N. Y., the talented elocationist, will favor us with readings. All are, cordially in-vited to be present. Annual election of offi-cers Saturday, May 30. Individual member-ship $1.00 per year. A list of speakers and medianus will be published later. For fur-ther information apply to the secretary, Her-her I. Whituey, 65 Howard Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y. N. Y.

When Tired Out

Take Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

It vitalizes the nerves, assists the digestion, refreshes and invigorates the entire body. A Tonic that permanently benefits.

News from the Empire State.

Dear Banner

I am delighted to hear of the improvement of Bro. Barrett and his wife. May nothing interfere with their perfect restoration. I closed my engagement in Buffalo, Sunday,

I closed my engagement in Buffalo, Sunday, April 26, with a good audience, which may be credited to Nellie Mosier, as she is the "drawing card." I spoke in East Aurora, April 24 and May I. H. M. Richardson was master of cere-monies, and is the leading light of that thrifty town. Rev. Dr. Sayles added some interesting comments, at the closing, and an intelligent audience made the meeting a suc-cess.

thrifty town. Rev. Dr. Sayles added some interesting comments, at the closing, and an intelligent audience made the meeting a suc-cess. The best lecture ever delivered, if it fall on dull ents and stupid brains, is a failure. But a very tame discourse often elicits the most enthusinstic commendation because it is adapted to the mental plane of the hearers. I have often heard the most disjointed, illog-ical and superficial discourses lauded as the climax of human possibility; and the most ordinary thought uttered in language of the most ordinary and bungling character, ex-tolled as the most wonderful eloquence ever heard. People who thus judge could not ap-preciate a logical lecture, presented in the choicest language, and most impressive ora-tory. I rather reach one mind that appre-ciates, than a hundred who have to ask some oracle before they can, tell whether the lec-ture was good or not. From East Aurora to Ellicottville, Satur-dar, I met John French and wife in their charming home, and there we held memorial services to the life and death of Lucinda Thatcher Litchfield, wife of the late Beales E. Litchfield, whose writings and lectures are familiar to many. He passed away seven years ago last fall, and she followed him April 23, 1903. The funeral rites were held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. French, in whose care and keeping she has been since Mr. Litchfield seath. The tender, loving devotion of Mrs. French the radopted mother, involving much sacri-fice of physical life and confort, is an earnest of the growing goodness of the human race More and more the inspiration of kindness and devotion to duty, and the happiness of others is manifest in the world. With all the recklessness, crime and cruelty of this fast age, which many interpret as proof that the world is rapidly drifting to the bad, there is yet a rapidly increasing sentiment of altru-istic humanitarianism, exemplified in beauti-ful lessons of personal devotion and heroing deeds in which self abnegation and loving sacrifice for the good of

 General

 Image: Sprittening of the second of the second

Elizabeth Harlow in Worcester.

Elizabeth Harlow in worcester.
Worcester Association of Spiritualists, G. A. R. Hall, 35 Pearl St.—For the months of March and April the young and logical speaker, Miss Elizabeth Harlow of Haydenville, has occupied the platform; she has given a course of philosophical lectures, ably and eloquently presented, that has attracted large and intelligent audiences at all times. She is doing a noble work for humanity, and we should all feel proud of her growing popularity within our ranks. We deeply revret her departure, and look forward to the time when we shall meet again.
Friday evening, April 24, the W: A. of S. gave a reception to Miss Harlow at the home of President Woodbury C. Smith. Mrs. Harriet W. Hildreth made the presentation speech, and in behalf of the friends assembled, presented Miss Harlow with a gold watch as a slight token of their love and appreciation of her services as their speaker for the polset members, Mrc. L. W. Sibley, one of the oldest members, Mrs. Lildreth miss Harlow tifts and mys. Hildreth presented her with the unpublished poems of Fred L. Hildreth. Miss Harlow there appended the abeautiful bouquet of pinks and roses, and Mrs. Hildreth presented her with the group is the other there has the inservices as their speaker for the past two months. Mr. L. W. Sibley, one of the oldest members, presented her a beautiful bouquet of pinks and roses, and Mrs. Hildreth presented her with the group is divergended, thanking the friends for the gift in an impressive manner, also very pleasingly alluded to the gift of flowers and poems responded, thanking the friends for the gift in an impressive manner, also very pleas-ingly alluded to the gift of flowers and poems which she greatly prized. There were vocal and instrumental selec-tions by Mrs. Ida Bond Dow and Miss Emma Atwood, original poem by Miss Florence Nichols and Mrs. Lucy Hall. Ice cream and cake were served. At her closing service Miss Harlow an-nounced as her subject, "Spiritualism in its Broadest and Truest Aspect, the Doorway to a Broader and Truer Brotherhood," and said in part:

in part: "The thought of brotherhood has ever been a Broader and Truer Brotherhood," and said in part: "The thought of brotherhood has ever been uppermost in the minds of men; all down through the ages, from the cave to the twen-tieth century, men have dreamed of it, have hoped for it, and prayed for it, that some-time, some-where, some-how, men might live in peace together; but while men believed in creation, in Heaven and hell, in a God of love and hate, true brotherhood was impos-sible. Man's concept of a God was only the highest and nolest, attributes of his own soul, and men have been at war over their gods in all ages. "Christendom has at last awakened; we hear no more of the vicarious atonement or creedal sermons, but the modern preacher or teacher of today preaches a sermon which touckes the thoughts, the hopes, and the needs of the people, and his church is always well filled. The thought of brotherhood has touched the religious life, and when we real-ize that all life is divine, from the mineral to the human, and that every human soul in whatever condition of life, expresses his soul-poise in accordance with his environment and associations, we shall then cease to criticise and condemn, but will have com-passion for all of earth's children and recog-nize the divinity within. "The thought of brotherhood has not yet en-tered your social and governmental life. We have too many classifications here. All souls are equal. Do not misunderstand me. All men cannot be statesmen, but the statesman, the mechanic, the artist, are all needed, and the men who dig the trenches in your streets, to benefit your sanitary conditions, are just as much needed as your physician; all help to make the perfect whole. But just so long as men meet behind closed doors and seek to increase their profits at the expense of the laboring classes, just so long will others meet and scheme to bring about lock-outs, strikes and riots.

THE REWIET OF REW MO Sa Line / Line and of Line rosusanse g Button's Illustrated Anatomy. Scientific and Popular.

Designed and adapted for college students, libraria mechanics and nome courses of study like over 90 large like traitons and roleved plates, shoring plathly every part and organ of the human body. All Latin and Greek forms in the fact are this providences, so that it is in fact Amstory for shere to the English reader, of the place of the human body. All the fact of the shere the place of the human body. All the fact of the shere of the shere of the shere of the shere of the place of the shere of the shere of the shere of the place of the shere of the shere of the shere of the place of the shere of the shere of the shere of the place of the shere of the place of the shere of the shere of the shere of the shere of the place of the shere of the shere of the shere of the shere of the place of the shere of the shere of the shere of the shere of the place of the shere o

ETIOPATHY WAY OF LIFE,

THERAFEUTICS.

A Religious Science and a Scientific Religion.

BY GEO. DUTION, A. B., M D.

BY GEO. DUTION, A. B., M D. W. J. Ci trille mays in reference to the book: "Etics starthy Physiclogy, Ontology Therapeutics - The above four titles have been applied by Dr. Geo. Duttion of Chicago to his valuable new work on "The Way of Life, the so tic of which is 'Know for Thyself." All persons the most provide in the start in the start of the start when not provide in the start of the start of the scientific discoveries in the closely related to the start collars in this extremely concides and valuable book, which is deeply solvitual in fore and fully abreast of the later scientific discoveries in the closely related reams of mem-tal and physical therapeutics. Dr. Duiton is a ludd, con-cleations and comprehensive tescher, a writer of great-ability and a man of singular freedom from prejudice and miled with ardent love of trath." "40 pages, bound in cloth and gold. Contains a p riraits of the author. Thire difference of the start." For male by BANNER OF LIGHT PUBLIBHING CO.

SPIRITS' BOOK ;

SPIRITS' BOOK; Containing the Principles of Spiritist Doctrine on the Im-mortality of the Soul: the Nature of Spirits and their He-lations with Men; the Moral Law; the Present Life, the Pruture Life, and the Destiny of the Human Bace, accord-ing to the Teachings of Spirits of high degree, transmit-ted through various Mediums, collected and set in order by Alian Kardec. Translator's reface, giving, as it does, a fine and readable aktoth of Rivall's for "Karders" Carpitaneous, and the carplishiet (finished steel-plate portrait of this coll-brated genileman, are of themselves worth almost the em-tire price of He book. Trinited from duplicate English plates, on white paper Baye Imo, pp. 456, toth; price Ficentz. Baye Imo, pp. 456, toth; price Ficents. Baye Imo, pp. 456, toth; price Ficents.

Words That Burn. A SOTH CEN FURY NOVEL.

BY LIDA BRIGGS BROWNE.

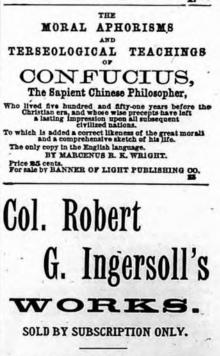

The title gives a clue to the plot, which shows the after frect on the soul, of angry words and wrong deeds done in arth-life. The story is progressive in its tendencies, and embraces he new thought and some of the latest inventions of the

(a). Hany psychic experiences are narrated which are instruc-tive and entertaining. The book can be safely placed in the hands of the young, and recommended to a briend after reading. It is a large lime, of 8% pages; is nearly bound in cicki; is printed on fine paper in large type, and has the portrait and autograph of the writer in as a broutispice. Frice reduced from $1.50 to $1 00. Postage 16. Paper cover 50 cents. Postage 6. Postage Sc. For ale by BANNER OF LIGHT PUBLISHING CO.

NEW EDITION. TRANSCENDENTAL PHYSICS. An Account of Experimental Investigations from the Scientific Treatises of JOHANN CARL FRIEDRICH ZOLLNER.

JUINAIM UARL FAILDRIGH ZULLICH. Professor of Physical Astronomy at the University of Leipsic; Members of the Boyal Saxon Society of Sciences; Foreign Members of the Royal Astronomical Bosiety of London; of the Imperial Academy of Natural Philasephers at Moscow; Henorary Member of the "Scientific Society of Psychological Studies," Paris; and of the "British Milan-al Association of Spiritualists" at London. Transhted from the German, with a Freises and Appendices, by Charles Carleton Massey, of Lincoln's Inn, London, Eng-ind, BarristeratLaw. The book contains Illustrations of various experiments described therein, including etra-string, leather bands, worden rings, etc. Cloth, if mod, 200 Barts. Friee 73 cents. Frice 75 cents. Price 75 cents. ale by BANNER OF LIGHT PUBLISHING CO.

sumption or from syphilitic infection or from Bright's disease, or scrofola, any one of which might claim, with backing of expert testimons, was caused from previous vacci-nation; and he refuses to submit to another vacchation believing, with good reason, that it might result in death, or great suffering, yet the result he fears is a theoretical pos-sibility. Should he be asked to grasp a broken trolley wire, charged with its usual voltage, while standing upon the car rails, certain results which frequently happen would be theoretical possibilities. After he grasps the wire it is no longer theoretical in his case.

his case. Now remember that the Statute we called in anestion makes no exceptions whateyer for any disease or condition, of a citizen over twenty-one years of age and not under guardianship and then consider the mental condition or attitude of those who claim such a statute reasonable, and when conditions we have mentioned apply to quite a large num-ber in a state then certainly as a whole, it is unreasonable. The claim that "naturally there would be regard to temporary could tons," etc., has no bearing on the Statute is unreasonable. The claim that "naturally there would be regard to temporary could tons," etc., has no bearing on the Statute its agents, who are selected to enforce it, would use their own indgment whether to obey its mandates in certain cases, and that they are to be reasonable if the Statute is not. Trinally the Court gives us one ruling which we trust will stop, to some extent, the bull-dozing of Citizens who from ignorance of its forcible vaccination, arrest, imprisonment works of the Court are: "If a person should deem it inportant that vaccination should not be performed in his case, and the authorities should think it otherwise, it is not in their works of the Court are: "If a person should deem it inportant that vaccination should not be performed in his case, and the authorities should think it otherwise, it is not in their works of the Court are: "If a person should deem it inportant that vaccination should not be work that could happen to him under the Statute would be the payment of the penalty of five dollars." Now it is evident if this is the works that could happen to him under the statute would be noted that our claim that the Statute is unconstitutional and void be-Now remember that the Statute we called in fines cannot be inflicted. It should also be noted that our claim that the Statute is unconstitutional and void be-cause in conflict with preamble and also amendments V. and XIV. constitution of United States is not mentioned by the Court. There are other rulings open to criticism, hut we only desire to make a few brief com-ments on what seemed to us the most im-portant.

A Fine Kidney Remedy.

Mr. A. S. Hitchcock, East Hampton, Conn. (The Clothier) says if any sufferer from Kidney and Bladder Disease will write him he will direct them to the perfect home cure he used. He makes no charge whatever for the favor.

Lake Pleasant, Mass.

In answer to the numerous requests for Lake Pleasant circulars received from in-tended visitors to the camp this summer, we will state that all our speakers are not yet engaged and we have been delayed in print-ing on that account. The phenomena will be well presented by such psychics as F. A. Wig-gin, Effie I. Webster, Ira Moore Courlis and May S. Pepper. We have also engaged, as exponents of the philosophy in addition to the mediums mentioned, Hon. A. H. Dailey, Carrie E. S. Twing, Albert P. Blinn, Mrs. Helen. Temple Brigham, J. Clegg Wright, Mrs. Tillie U. Reynolds, and are in hopes of having the boy medium of Brooklyn. Roy Thompson. Mr. J. Clegs, Wright and Rev. Ira Moore Courlis will be with us the entire season. The Schubert quartet has been re-engaged.

Lyman C. Howe.

Briefs.

Briefs. The Ladies' Spiritualistic Industrial So-ciety met Thursday, May 23, at 9 Appleton St. After the usual work was done, busi-ness meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Ida P. Whitlock at 5.30 p. m.; supper served at 6.30 p. m. A very en-joyable dancing party, which occurs the fourth Thursday of every month, was given in the evening. C. M. M., sec. Commercial Hall, 644 Washington St., M. Adeline Wilkinson, conductor. Sunday, May 26 at 11, the "Spiritual Conference"-subject, "Justice:" many able speakers took part. During the day the following were present: Mr. A. F. Hill, Mr. Fred de Bos, Mr. Frank Page, Dr. Brown, Mr. Jackson, Dr. Black-den, Mr. Clough of Lynn, Miss Sears, Mad-ame Linn Mosia, Mrs. Horton, Mr. Brewer, Dr. Adeline Wildes, Mrs. Millen, Mrs. Fox, Mrs. Reed; music by Mr. Matthews, Mr. Dean, Mrs. Grover, organist. Healing circle every Tuesday largely attended with good results. Meetings for spirit messages Thurs-day at 2.30 o'clock. Reporter. - Filchburg, Mass. Mrs. Emma B. Smith of Lawrence was speaker for the First Spiritualist Society, April 28. Large au-diences attended at both services, and gave very Interesting and most ably presented, supplemented by many correct readings and spirit messages. Miss Howe, planist, finely rendered several selections. Dr. O. L. Fox, president.

In Moore Courlis will be with us the endre senson. The Schubert quartet has been re-engaged. A lot of repairing and building is being done. Mr. Fred Haslam has bought the Tice cottage on Lyman St. and is having it raised and enlarged. Ed Putnam has bought the frore House and the James cottage on Mon-tague St. and has entirely changed both so that they present a decidely attractive ap-pearance. Mrs. M. L. Sanger has purchased a lot on Massasolt St. and is erecting a cot-and riots.

and riots. "Every are produces its leaders, and the people will follow a leader at all times, and so, my friends, until these conditions which exist in your industrial world are adjusted, true brotherhood can never be realized. And still the thought comes ringing down through the ages, until we stand at the open-ing of the twentieth century, and as we turn our thoughts to the future, we see as in a vision before us, a group of noble souls 'just out there,' a Payne, a Parker, an Abraham Lincoln, with the word Brotherhood written across their forehead, and we feel that with the closing of the twentieth century, the world's dream of brotherhood will yet be realized." M. Lizzie Beals, Cor. Sec. 329 Park Ave., Worcester, Mass.

A NEW EDITION. PROOF PALPABLE IMMORTALITY

at of Ma of Modern Spiritualian, with Rema on the Sciniton of Facin to Theo ogy, Hornis and Beligion. LATES

BT THE LATE EPES SARGENT.

This work escialus chapters on Materializations o (the Past, Phenomenal Proofs of Immeriality, Materializations at Merevia, N. 7, and Elsewhere. Materializations in England, Scientific Investigations, Perjectio of Antri-American, Phenomena, Materializations Through the May Paulty, The Spirit-Body, Power of Spirit Over May, Tally of Provens and Phenomena, Salations of Spirituations on Baller in God, Die Bivine Faiure Trime, Manisor of Spiritualization to Morelly, The Measure of Spirituations Marker Preed Palpable, if measure The pages. Price american, Pare Palpable, if measure of Spirituations For min by BANNER OF LIGHT PUBLISHING CO.

THE entry antherized and complete edition of Ingersell's works. Published with the authority and supervision of the family, from his edition of the writings of Robert G. Ingereoil justifies its description as complete. Besides including all of the author's famous lectures, addresses and oralions some thousands of pages of matter not hitherto pub-lished.

Dresden Edition of 12 Octave Volumes.

already issued in pamphiet form, the volumes contains some thousands of pages of main ther not intherto pub-lished. The work is beantifully illustrated with photogra-wures, etchings, half-tones and fac-aimlies, consisting of portraits of the author taken as various times, and other matter pertibent to the works. The 12 rolumes on taken over 7,000 pages, printed in large type on the finest of paper. The edition is now ready and will be delivered to purchasers. The cloth edition has paper-label backs or glit back stamp, and subscribters or purchasers or glit back stamp, and subscribters or purchasers price can be paid at ones, or subscribters can have one year to pay the cost in monthly payments. Trice, cloth, $20 of of elther paper-label backs or glit backs at the subscribter's option. Orders for this set must be accompanied with $2.50 the first month's payment. The other eleven payments of $1.50 each month to be made to the publishers or their collec-tors.

Half-levant set, $50.00. Five dollars with the order and five dollars each month to the publishers or their collectors. Descriptive circular, containing full-page portra of Ingersoll, mailed free of charge upon application. Bond orders to

BANNER OF LIGHT BOOKSTORE. SPRCIAL ROTICE

Bernied at See Peristanti Stra Lagrander at See Peristanti Stra Itanit, Fregressiye, References

ters for Books, to be sent by Expre-ed by all or at least half cash; the be paid C. O. D. Orders for Books, to wardhit to D. CASE .-- OT int be p gooting from THE BAYNER care should be taken ush between editorial articles and correspond or columns are open for the expression of imper-tibunght, but we do not endorse all the varied uning the which correspondents may says utiler Nestigation is paid to anonymous communication and address of writer is indispenable as a guara wed faith. We cannot undertake to preserve or refer rticles. wypapers sent to this office containing matter for , should be marked by a line drawn around the articles in question.

Banner of Wight.

BOSTON, SATURDAY, MAY 9, 1903.

ENURD EVERY WEDNENDAY AFTERNOON AT FOR THE WREE ENDING AT DATE.

Entered at the Post-Office, Boston, Mass., us Second-Class Matter.

FUBLICATION OFFICE AND BOOKSTORE No. 204 Dartmouth Street, next door to Pierce Building, Copley Sq.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL AGENTS. THE NEW ENGLAND NEWS COMPANY, 14 Franklin Street, Boston, Mass.

THE AMERICAN NEWS COMPANY, and 41 Chambers Street, New York.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION IN ADVANCE Three Months.....

Issued by BANNER OF LIGHT PUBLISHING COMPANY.

25 cents per Agate Line.

OR 200 lines to be used in one year, 10 per cent. 500 lines to be used in one year, 25 per cent. 1000 lines to be used in one year, 40 per cent. 20 per cent. extra for special position. Special Notices forty cents per line, Minion. Width o columns, farge type, Advortisements to be renewed at continued rates must be left at our Office before 9 A. M on Saturday, a week in advance of the date whereon they are to appear.

The BANTHE OF LIGHT cannot well undertable to rouch for the homenry of its many advertisers. Advertisements which op-pear fair and honorabile upon their face are accepted, and or using our advertising columna, they are at one interdicta-Nerequest pairmas to notify us promptly in case they discover in surveilamas advertisements of parties whom they have preved to be dishonrable or unworthy of confidence.

Editorial Notes.

RECOGNITION OF SPIRITUALISM RVERY-WHERE.

It is impossible to read or travel or to be in any degree abreast of current literature without becoming intensely conscious that Spiritualism, or something very like it, is receiving renewed recognition on every hand all over the civilizing world, for though as yet largely uncivilized the world is certainly showing renewed symptoms of approaching civilization.

The New York World, April 2, gave quite an interesting account of the investigations recently conducted by a member of the distinguished publishing house of Funk & Wagnalls, and though Mr. Funk has not committed himself to any exclusive acceptance of the Spiritualist doctrine, he by no means deems it incredible that Henry Ward Beecher may actually have communicated with him a sensitive whom he has recently through been interviewing. The story of the coin which had been lent to him by Beecher thirty years ago, and which Mr. Funk thought he had long ago returned, is certainly interesting, as every detail of clairvoyant description of its whereabouts was completely verified. As there is no antecedent improbability in the story taken precisely as it stands, it may well be accepted as an excellent additional proof that an honest investigator, following up investigations earnestly, can receive evidences of a startlingly convincing nature. In our two excellent contemporaries "Arena" and "Mind" for April, we find most favorable reviews of Dr. Peebles' splendid In our two excellent book, "Who Are These Spiritualists?" which is creating quite a literary sensation, and the Literary Supplement to the New Literary "Times" has been devoting considerable space to Frederic Myers' great book recently re ferred to in these columns. Dr. Osgood Mason has shown great insight and manifested strict judicial impartiality. Mr. B. O. Flower has written very sympathetically as well as fearlessly. It is quite clear that Spiritualism and its evidences are challenging the attention of the best minds in many communities at pres ent, and though opposition continues from mined materialists on one side and regions bigots on the other, the thought of he age at its best and brightest is distinctly the are at its best and originest is distinctly spiritualistic. We often encounter statements by leading authors taking telepathy for fipiritualism, because while showing only the power of one terrestrially embodied spiritual which, in such cases, usually adheres very entity to communicate with another, it under mines every objection brought against the fuller teachings of a complete spiritual philosophy in the manner indicated by Myers and others who, unwarped by preju-dice, have boldly stated the logical deduc-tions from demonstrated telepathy or mental telegraphy or telephony.

BANNER

THE STATUS OF NEW ZEALAND.

Among many delightful articles in April issue of "Arena," there is one on New Zea-land in colloquial style constructed on the oasis of a recent interview with Dr. J. M. Peebles. Nothing can be more optimistic than the worthy doctor's references to the social, industrial and religious condition and outlook of those lovely, prosperous islands which are known by such explonions titles as "Paradise of the Pacific"; "Workman's Paradise"; "Southern Switzerland"; "Pearls of the Pacific" and others equally romantic.

Though conditions in New Zealand are not absolutely ideal, there is much in that distant country that could well be adopted in America, though it is but fair to admit that the comparative smallness of the population makes reform easier there than in more thickly populated countries. But Australia has an exceedingly small population considering its great size, and poverty is not absent from that island as it is from New Zealand. In Melbourne and Sydney, distressing industrial conditions sometimes obtain though, on the whole, Australia is much more prosperous than some people imagine. In New Zealand beggars or paupers are practically unknown.

Almost everyone seems comfortably well to do. There is little ostentatious display of wealth, but a great deal of solid comfort. Wages are good and work is plentiful, and New Zealanders are an industrious, though not a specially "hustling" community.

Climate has something to do with prosperity, but climate varies immensely between Aukland and Dunedin, and it seems impossible to decide whether the warmth of the North or the cold of the South is most conducive to prosperity, as conditions seem pretty nearly equal through the entire length of both islands/ Political equality works well. Women go to the polls and take part with men in all municipal duties without in the least degree losing their grace of femininity. Many measures of socialistic tendency are in vogue in New Zealand and they work well. There is a great absence of tyrannical legislation, and great freedom of thought and action, but happily no considerable display of lawlessness.

Taking all matters into account, it is scarcely possible to select a place to visit where there are more attractions and fewer drawbacks, and Aukland is only sixteer days voyage from San Francisco, and only ten days from Honolulu. A first-class ticket from San Francisco to Sydney and return costs $300, including stopover privileges at Honolulu and Aukland. Living in New Zealand is very reasonable and very good, and the people are renowned for their hospitality.

Whoever may be in need of rest and rec. reation and can spare six months for-travel and visiting in the Southern Hemisphere will find the Australian trip much more restful and quite as economical as the usual flights to Europe, with additional trips to Egypt or Palestine. There is absolutely no embarrassment of any sort concerning money or baggage, and no wrestling with unknown tongues for the English speaking tourist, and without the slightest disrespect to European Alps and Glaziers, it may be truly stated that New Zealand can equal if it does not surpass in attractiveness, the most beautiful and popular haunts in Europe. There is a charming freshness in a new growing country, which is not felt in places which have been so thoroughly commercialized that Nature seems to have been overtopped with business and with fashion. Dr. Peebles evidently appreciated the beauty of the land below the Equator and he made a very thorough study of its institutions while he lingered there.

THE SYMBOLISM OF COLOR.

At present the topic of Color and its significance is exciting more than superficial interest and wherever one goes some inquiries are sure to be heard concerning both the hygicale and the occult meaning of colors general and of precious stones in particular. In its highest, most beautiful and most abiding form, color is represented stationarily in gems, and it is by means of jewels that we can gather the fullest meaning of how colors influence those who are constantly attended by them. Since the publication of Leadbeater's "Man Visible and Invisible" renewed interest has been evinced in the subject of the varying colors of human auras, and as this topic necessitates a high degree of clairvoyance for its complete elucidation it still remains mysterious to the multitude. That there is a color scheme in Nature, it is impossible to doubt, and nowhere is color more pronounced than in the human body. Healthy blood is red; when we are in health our nails are pink, and we all speak truthfully as well as romantically of the loveliness of a pink and white complexion and of the bronze hue which befits the weather-beaten traveler who has encountered storms and been victorious. In the ample field of the world outside, we notice sea-green and sky-blue, and we observe how true it is that every color is lovely in itself, though it may be perverted to base euds and then its luminosity is lost and its hue becomes dull and murky. It must be an intensely interesting study to contemplate clairvoyantly the colors of the auric envelopes surrounding people with whom we come in contact, and it is quite within the power of unusually sensitive in-dividuals to do this to an astonishing degree. Nothing can be more impressive than to quietly in a dark peaceful room in which there are three or four persons and watch closely to the person and though of a good is rarely of a brilliant hue. Extremely versatile people often generate kaleldoscopic auras and to watch their auric envelope is to study fascinating changes in appearance whenever their quick, active thought flits from one subject to another.

OF LIGHT.

Leadbeater's classification of color significance is certainly suggestive and not at all unreasonable. Under the general caption Red, we see a clear beautiful magenta representing pure affection, a staring orangehued red denoting pride, dark murky red displaying selfish affection, brilliant scarlet marking anger, and a very contaminated blackish red showing forth avarice. Blue has an equal variety of differences ranging from clearest rapphire which betokens pure religious feeling to a most complicated brown and blue mixture, which displays selfish religious feeling. Religious feeling tinged with fear is shown by bluish grey, grey being always the color of fear and blue of aspiration. Love for humanity is described by pink and high unselfish affection by reddish pink. Green is adaptability, but when mixed with brown it portrays deceit. Yellow denotes intellect always; when very clear and bright it stands for a high type of intellect, when of orange hue for strength of intellect, and when intellect is of a low type the blue is murky. Devotion to a noble ideal is pale blue; de votion mingled with affection is purple; high spirituality is pale violet. Sympathy is a yellowish green. Jealousy is brown with red spots. Depression is very dark grey; malice is black.

It is indisputable that color exercises great influence over plants and animals, and human beings cannot afford to ignore its import. The colors we wear have more influence than we know or think upon our own lives and upon those with whom we associate. | Much good could be derived from the practice of intelligently choosing colors both for dress and furniture with a view to symbolizing and suggesting what we most desire.

WHAT COLORS SHOULD WE WEAR IN BEREAVEMENT?

The wearing of black crepe is surely in no way conducive to any expression of faith, hope, spiritual affection, or confidence in Immortality, therefore, as the custom has actually nothing to commend it, it should be dropped without delay and without apology. It is surely the duty of reformers and of all people whose views of life are in advance of the ordinary to set good examples instead of copying bad ones, and in no single respect can Spiritualists live up to their profession more reasonably than by instituting radical changes for the better in funeral customs Some have already set a noble and consistent example, but very many people who confess noble sentiments are still slaves to most objectionable conventions.

A distinctive dress indicative of feeling and right sympathy may well be worn and a better combination of color than violet and white can hardly be imagined. Violet as the seventh and highest color in the spectrum may denote the final note in the scale of a visible terrestrial existence, while white typifying the complete octave may suggest entrance upon a new, and somewhat higher plane of spiritual activity. At any rate, violet and white will not shock tender susceptibilities; it has often been employed on occasion of public mourning and has received the sanction of church and State alike in many centuries and in many countries.

Any color is better than black, because in times of sorrow, we need to be cheered and to have our thoughts uplifted, and black is, of all hues, the most depressing, and if people are seeking retirement from the popular gaze when they are particularly se tive, it must prove the very height of folly to court notoriety by appearing in conspicuous and often ostentatious sable garments. When in churches and synagogues alike we see mourners draped in heavy crepe, we know that such a custom is foreign to the spirit of ancient Judaism and also to that of primitive Christianity. Purple and white are the colors used in many churches on funeral occasions and there can be no re-ligious, as there is no sanitary justification for the hideous customs which depraved fashion exacts from its blind devotees.

mation when he declared that as he hoped his body had been of some use to humanity while he was working through it, he could not bear to think that its final disposition would be a menace to those -who survived him.

The burial problem is becoming a very serious one in connection with all great cities and the time is now fully ripe for the substitution of crematories for burying grounds wherever populations are increasing. There is positively nothing in the act of cremation, the least offensive to the most fastidious susceptibilities and the most beautiful religious services can be conducted in a crematory chapel. This much needed reform canno very long await universal adoption among people who think and reason.

APTRITUALISM AND SOCIALISM

Debates between Spiritualists and Secularists are quite popular at present in some parts of England. Recently a written debate has been published between Will Phillipps (editor of "Two Worlds") and H. Percy Ward who represents the English Secular Federation. The debate does not appeal to us as very strong for various reasons. In first place personalities are intruded which are decidedly out of place, though we grant- it is extremely difficult for people to sink themselves in their subject sufficiently to peither make nor resent personal allusion to which disputants are often driven to hide the poverty of their thought and the weakness of their arguments.

Mr. Phillipps certainly makes out the better case of the two for Mr. Ward is most illogical and inconsistent in many of his utterances. It seems difficult to define a case when its avowed champion wriggles like on cel and drifts from simple secularism and agnosticism into the grossest type of vulgar materialism.

Secularism as a system which devotes its energies entirely to the affairs of this world and professes to know not whether there is or is not any life beyond the present, is a comprehensible and within certain limits, even a commendable system, but a Secularist who suddenly turns rampant atheist or flagrant materialist directly he finds it difficult to answer an opponent is too uncertain a quantity to be taken seriously.

The advertised topic of debate between Phillipps and Ward was "Spiritualism or Secularism-Which Is the Better System? Secularism is not defined at all by Mr. Ward and some definitions of Spiritualism by Mr. Phillipps are rather too elastic. The result is that a pamphlet is filled with unconvincing statements not always coherent.

Do these debates do any real good? Possibly they are useful to the extent of calling popular attention to great issues but further than as a means for arousing public interest they are of comparatively small value. So called Secularists are, as a rule, people who are determined beforehand that Spiritualists are altogether given over to vagaries and foundationless superstitions; their object is not to learn but to deny, and we know quite well how nearly impossible it is to convince anyone whose mind is set against conviction. Great good can grow out of friendly discussions where two persons of about equal intelligence, both thoroughly open-minded, seek to find the good in differ ing systems and incorporate enough of the excellence in a neighbor's platform to enlarge their own.

Secularism has a place and a use, but we want it genuine not adulterated. It is quite possible to concentrate the energies of a ociety of federation upon secular reforms without dogmatizing in the least concerning Spiritualism or anything that has to do with evidences of life hereafter. All reasonable people are agreed that it is desirable to improve conditions in this world here and now whether there he other lives and worlds awaiting us or not, therefore we can all work together if we refrain from stupid dogmatism on the one hand, and even more stupid denials on the other hand.

The silly wriggling of Mr. Ward when he asks Mr. Phillipps if he has never seen or heard of a funeral, is no more than childish buffoonery. Men. like such ignorant debaters should study a few of the best philosophic arguments for immortality put forward by the world's greatest thinkers before they air their nonsensical cajolery in print. For honsticism we can feel p before the great mystery of the universe many great intellects are awed into reverent silence, but for secularist debaters there are no mysteries; such men are cocksure that when the breath leaves their physical frames they are "dead and done for," at least that is what they flippantly advance in lieu of argument in their silly diatribes but if such cinpty speakers could be approached in the silence of their own hearts, even they might occasionally be found doubting their own denials. A singular man once started a controversy with these words "you cannot doubt that you doubt." There is more food for thought in these six words than in many pages of well turned rhetoric. To doubt implies interest as well as uncertainty, and the very presence of doubt or scepticism implies at the outset that there is an undiscovered realm in which we are interested of which we would like to know something, but it is veiled from onr perceptions. The intelligent philanthropic Secularist may feel that he is not called upon to pierce the mystic vell which screens the invisible, but that he is called upon to_devote his ut most energies to improving the lot of his fellows and his own lot also, in the immediate surroundings in which he finds himself. Such mild and useful Secularism is neither pro nor anti-spiritualistic, it simply leaves Spiritualism and its evidences in the hands of others.

MAY 9, 1108.

to weigh evidences and to welcome new yet come.

WORKS OF THE SEER.

We have just from the press and bindery new editions of several volumes in the list of A. J. Davis. Many readers purchase the entire set of his works. It is noticeable that "Nature's Divine Revelations" stands first and prominent among the ever-increasing class of cultivated readers. "Death and After Life," by the Seer, is continually growing in popularity. The complete works form a library.

W. J. Colville

Astrology in the Light of Reason and Experience.

(Continued from page 1.)

Saturn, whose year is nearly thirty times as long as our own, is said to be the adverse planet, and certainly it needs no great stretch of imagination to connect Saturn with Satan. An old tradition has it that there was long ago a bright and beautiful planet where now the cluster of Asteroids is found; that planet was destroyed by some internal catastrophe, and after it was showered into fragments the poise of the Solar System was lost, and the influence of Saturn was too powerfully exerted upon those interior planets which were formerly shielded from its undue influence by the fair lost orb. Whatever truth there may or may not be in that tradition, certain it is that Saturn in astrology like Satan in theology, has long borne an evil reputation; the old Chaldean influence assigned to it is, however, only that of the tempter or the trier, and though it disposes toward taciturnity and to the occult sciences, it is no more evil when rightly understood than is any other planet in the concatenated chain of related worlds, all of which are essential to the completion of the harmonic unity.

Jupiter, always identified with the powerful Zeus of the Greeks and the Roman Jove, is the largest and most imposing of all the planets, for while Saturn is surrounded with dark rings, Jupiter is decorated with gorgeous brilliant belts. Jupiter occupies about twelve earthly years in completing one revo-lution around the Sun. All astrologers agree that the influence exerted by this kingly, radiant sphere is most benefic, as when it 'rules the nativity" it gives to the "native" beauty of person coupled with unusual ability to occupy some exalted state.

Mars, the reputed "god of war," travels around the Sun in six hundred and eightyseven earthly days, or less than two of our years; owing to its fiery aspect it is always said to exert a martial sway in consequence of which a "field of Mars" has come to be a synonym for a place of battle. Impetuosity is always associated by astrologers with this blood-red member of the solar family, and though it is often characterized as the very reverse of amiable in tendency, the higher view of its special influence assigns to it force, boldness and intrepidity of character, but not necessarily belligerence or bloodthirstiness.

Venus, the beautiful morning and evening star, the mythologic goddess of love and poesy, the patroness of all the elegant arts, accomplishes its revolution around the Sun in two hundred and twenty-five earthly days. Sweetness of temper, gentleness and grace in all directious are astrologically ascribed with a predominating influence of this mellow orb in any horoscope.

Mercury, the inmost of all the acknowledged planets (Vulcan being regarded as practically insignificant), quickly runs around the Sun in rather less' than eighty-eight earthly days; its influence is well described by the word mercurial, which suggests quicksilver. Volatility and great love of travel may be fairly associated with this smallest brother in the Sun's interesting family.

All who desire to follow up the study of astrology must bear the above brief definitions well in mind, and if any of our friends are determined to launch out upon the wide, deep sea of astrological investigation we must not seck to deter them from their elected course; but to one and all do we offer the following maxims which may well be used as mental talismans whenever difficulties are encountered and fatalism or pessimism threatens to usurp the throne.

Matter for publication must be addressed to the EDITOR. All basiness letters should be forwarded to the BANNER OF LIGHT FUBLISHING COMPANT. ADVERTISING BATES. DISCOUNTS

While some very orthodox and decidedly belated Christians have opposed cremation by bringing forward certain invalid arguments based on some grossly materialistic view of a fleshly resurrection at the Day of Judgment, some Spiritualists have encouraged a nost uncanny theory concerning the connec tion between the departed spirit and the body to be cremated or interred. While we can most hearfily indorse all precautionary measures taken to prevent premature burial or cremation, we cannot see any cause to sympathize with a morbid and horrible belief that the spirit lingers about the corpse even after its interment, awaiting its slow decay, and even were there any truth in such a supposition, it would be the supremest act of kindness to burn the body as quickly as possible so as to put a speedy end to so unspeakably undesirable an attachment.

Probably the superstition has arisen from the very probable fact that the spirit has often been seen near the discarded body when intimate friends of the departed were there present, but such an appearance would do no more than prove that a bond of union still existed between friends though one of them had laid aside the mortal robes. In such cases it is 'far better to seek communion with the departed in the sanctity of the home, and as far away as possible from the associations of the graveyard. With spirit communion we may be in fullest accord, and at the same time be thoroughly averse to superstitious beliefs which amount to nightmares. Many supposed apparitions in grave-yards are only phosphorescent emanations, enses Haing from burled bodies which in no way indicate the proximity of the spirit to the tenement it has vacated.

There is much saving grace in the good old word agnosed, I do not know. The real agnostic speaks only for himself, thus leavall others perfectly free to discover as much of truth as they may through any avenues which shall open to them, while the agnostic Nothing could be samer than the opinion time is an open to them, while the agnostic of Bishop Phillips Brooks concerning cre- hearted, level headed man or woman ready

All influences and aspects are good though all are different. Let us seek to find the special good of each.

We, like the planets, must agree to differ, but never disagree.

Opinion, belief, fear, prejudice, hypnotic influences, and various subtle forces enter into and color our thought. We misinterpret sensation. We become the prey of our own fancies, and yield to the stronger minds about ns. We are ignorant of the forces that play upon us, and consequently are not adjusted to them. We suffer, and we witness a vast amount of suffering which we seem powerless to prevent. But one law characterizes our conduct both in health and disease. The central thought in consciousness through habit, the direction of mind, shapes our lives, so that we really lead a life of mind. We live in a world partly of our own making, partly the product of all past evolution, both mental and physical, but a world which happily revenis a progressive order to which adjust ourselves in co-operation with the Spirit behind and within it, a world which has a purpose, a meaning, with us and with our individuality, which experience is trying to make plain.—Horatio W. Dresser.

But how can he expect that others should Build for him, sow for him, and at his call Love him, who for himself will take no heed at all?-Wordsworth.

Dream not in the air! Go deep down into thy own soul and be refreshed by its effulgent light and beauty .-- Er.

MAN Ranges Make Cooking Easy. THE GLENWOOD AGENT HAS THEM.

An Explanation.

MAY P, 1908.

All Explanation. Sir:-I see by your issue of April 18, that our good brother Colville has very kindly amounced that Mrs. Wallis would visit America this Summer. It is true that she contemplated doing so, and was planning to arry that purpose into effect, but certain changes have since been made which hare caused her to abandon the proposed trip for therefore write at once to ask you to kindly let this explanation appear in the Banner as any as possible to save disappointment. We hope the trip is only postponed, perhaps for two years, not entirely abandoned, as Mrs. Wallis would be extremely pleased to meet our American friends once more. Mr. Col-ville has our sincere thanks for his fraternal goes out to Mr. and Mrs. Barrett. Heartily yours. E. W. Wallis. 6 Station Road, Church End, Finchler, London, N.

Boston Spiritual Temple.

That an interest has been awakened in the subject of Mr. Wiggin's addresses upon "Some Fallacies of Christian Science," was evinced by the unusually large audience which was in attendance last Sunday morn-ing, to hear his second address upon this subject. The following sentences are taken from his sermon: "The mind's eye should never be closed, for all that it sees excites thought and gener-

"The mind's eye should never be closed, for all that it sees excites thought and gener-ates thinkers, and what the world most needs today is broad-minded, spiritnally intellectual thinkers. He who voluntarily employs an-other to think for him is his own worst enemy. Any institution which forbids inde-pendence of thought is a diabolical foe to hu-man process an enemy of the present as man progress, an energy of the present as well as of future generations and arrogantly holds the brain of man in bondage. Any in-stitution which attempts to do this rests either upon the flimsy foundation of selfishness or ignorance."

ness or ignorance." "The theological features of Christian Sci-ence assume through its pseudo-founder, to be the only true guide for both body and soul. Every mind should be true to itself as a first cardinal principle of life. Christian Science stands at the door of the mind to prevent the free exercise of the divine prerogative of free thought."

"A Moses in the wilderness was never more arbitrary, a pope in the Vatican more dog-matic nor a king on his throne ruled his sub-jects physically in a more cruel manner than Mrs. Eddy dominates the mind of her fol-

"To be a real Christian Scientist is to shut the mind's eye to all true science and expand the swallowing apparatus to its fullest ca-pacity, take in 'Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures,' and then like the sanke which has rorged itself by swallowing a whole rabbit, lie in the sunlight of self-satisfaction, opening the cyces and moving about only when a new edition of 'Science and Health' is put on the market. This diet, in order to be palatable, must receive the salt and pepper of Mrs. Eddy's 'Retrospection and Introspection,' 'Rudimental Divine Sci-ence' and a few other Eddy sanctioned and written publications, which may be obtained if you have the price, otherwise the season-ing flavors may be omitted." "Caristian Science emphasizes the neces-"To be a real Christian Scientist is to shut

"Christian Science emphasizes the neces-sity of unity but denies every privilege to the unit, except that unit known by the euphon-fous name of Mary Baker Glover Patterson Eddy."

"To cure or heal sin, ignorance must be met; Christian Science assumes that all the ignorant are not to be found in the so-called by-ways of life, but rather on avenues and the palaces of the rich as well as in the homes of the poor. This may be the reason why Christian Science has pald so little at-tention to the latter and so much to the for-mer. Christian Science has been more suc-cessful in emphasizing its organic feature by seeking ignorance in avenues rather than ings as led man to believe himself totally de-praved; by the influence of such dogmatic littleness in religion as characterizes much of the proscriptive pseudo science as taught by Mrs. Eddy. Had the religious problems of the ages been left to the individual for so-lution, Bruno, Servetins and Joan d'Are would not have been burned at the stake, the Dark Ages would hare been lighted by the sun of pence and the world would have ad-vanced much further toward a condition of individual freedom and equality. "Tis true, and pity 'tis 'tis true,' that looking back, we may see the world stained with blood, and the best thinkers and noblest men of their time cut off by the hand of the eccles-instical assassin, all because of religious in-tolerance, all because man was deprived from thinking for himself and all this in defiance of the pure, bubbling spring of independent thought within the soul of the individual." "Mrs. Eddy says, that 'All is mind accord-ing to the Scriptures and Christian Science, but that the spiritual senses offer no such evidence, but deny the testimony of the ma-terial senses.' What darkness the world must he groping in, what a strange God we are all governed by'. Strange that the only evidence, but deny the testimony of the ma-terial senses.' What darkness the world must be groping in, what a strange God we are all governed by! Strange that the only senses with which a beneficent Creator has endowed his children, except Mrs. Eddy and her followers, should be only misleading! Christian Science claims that sickness is an unreal thing, that it is not even the shadow from reality. And yet Mrs. Eddy says of sickness that it is the schoolmaster, leading you first to Christ, fixt to believe in God as comportent, and finally to the understanding of God and man in Christian Science. How modest, to say the least! First to Christ and finally to Christian, Science! In mounting the hill of eternal progress, sickness leads first to the base of the hill of Truth where sits Christ and then up its rugged steeps, up and onward, higher and higher until the very apex is reached where in the radiant light of perfect wisdom sits Christian Sci-ence, guarded by the adorable 'Mother' Eddy!"

"Outside of Nature with her ever-heaving bosom of love, exists no God; outside of Na-ture exists nothing. Nature fills every inter-stitial of the universe, and God fills all Na-three exists nothing. Nature his every inter-stitial of the universe, and God fills all Na-ture." "Mrs. Eddy says that 'Mortals should not concern themselves with the chemistry of food.' This statement is no farther removed from -idiocy than would be the statement, "Mortals . should not concern themselves with enting at all.' It is as important what one should eat as is the importance of eat-ing. I am not unmindful that Mrs. Eddy, in order to back up and give added force to her statement quotes from Christ, where-in he says:-Take no thought what ye shall eat.' But without her 'Key to the Scrip-tures' at hand we venture that Christ in-tended to teach the beauty of an unfaltering trust in God's boundless love and power to provide all mankind with food, rather than to abstain from exercising some discriminaprovide all mankind with food, rather than to abstain from exercising some discrimina-tion as to the quality of the food and its chemical adaptability to human needs. If her suggestion were taken we might ere long find man eating hay and the horse finishing his noon repast upon strawberry short-cake. In view of some things taught and evidently believed by Christian Scien-tists I should not be surprised at such a mix-ture of things, if it were not for the in-telligence of which we know the horse is possessed."

telligence of which we know the horse is possessed." "Christian Science would destroy man's last doubt, and with the death of man's last doubt, perishes his best friend. An irrepres-sible conflict is on between brain and bigotry. The man who dares in the face of all de-nunciations of ignorance to stand for the truth and speak a word in defence of indi-vidnal rights as against the dogma of any popular sentiment is beginning to receive less sneers and more smiles. This is because the era of truth is dawning, and when truth rises to its meridian it will change many. phases of life and cover the faces of all hu-manity with a loving smile."

Mr. Cyrus Peabody of Warren, R. I., spent a few days here last week and was busy nearly all the time at work upon his garden. He has had codisiderable new improvements made to his cottage, and has newly painted it. His garden, always the glory of Onset, is looking fine. Mrs. Helen Robinson of Boston has also spent a few days superintending work upon her gardens, Her IIIy pond is always admired by all who visit Onset. Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Fay are at their cot-tage on Plenaant Ave. for the season. Mrs. Fay always has a beautiful garden. Ronalds has put on an addition to his res-turant, as last season it was too small to accommodate the crowds. His restaurant is always popular. "Signs of life are everywhere apparent at the hotels, stores, boarding houses and res-tuurants. Renovation is the order of the day, and the air of Onset is fragrant with the smell of freeh paint. "The Association has had the grounds cleared of leaves and the cottages are being put into order for summer occupancy." Crowds of people come in on the electrics every Sunday and real estate men and women report many sales and rentals. Everything bids fair to be a very prosperous season. H.

report many sales and rentals. Everything bids fair to be a very prosperous season. H.

Announcements.

Cambridge Industrial Society of Spiritual-ists, Mrs. C. M. Hartwell, president, will hold next meeting Friday, May 8, at Cam-bridge Lower Hall, 631 Mass. Ave.—Circle, 3 p. m.; business meeting, 5 p. m.; supper, 6.30, 15 cents; 'evening services, 7.30.—Mrs. S. E. Hall will lecture and give spirit messages. Mabel Merritt, cor. sec., 35 Brookline St. Nellie S. Noyes of Boston, clairroyant and astrologer, will address the First Spiritualist Society, Fitchburg, Mass., Sunday, May 10. Lynn Spiritualist' Association, Cadet Hall, Alex. Caird, M. D., president. Sunday, May 3, Miss Elizabeth Harlow, one of the finest inspirational speakers engaged in the work, will be the speaker. The usual circles, song service and concert will be held. Supper will be served in the hall. Miss Rioda Ward will render vocal solos at the evening service. Frank T. Ripley, speaker and test medium, has a few open dates for camp meetings. Address all letters to 404 E. 4th St., Newport, Ky., during May. The Sunshine Club, Clara E. Strong, sec., will have charge of the services at Mrs. fa Boche's in Somerville on Sunday, May 10.

Will have charge of the services at Mrs. La Roche's in Somerville on Sunday, May 10. Home circles on Tuesday and Friday even-ings at 39 Huntington Ave., Room 202. A. M. Strong, sec.

The Boston Spiritual Lyceum held its clos-The Boston Spiritual Lyccum held its clos-ing session Sunday, May 3, for the senson. It will reopen the first Sunday in October. On Sunday, May 17, the Lyccum will visit the Lynn Lyccum in Cadet Hall, leaving Boston vin R. B. R. R. at 11 a. m. Mem-bers of the school and their friends are in-vited to join with us. J. B. Hatch, Jr., con-ductor B. L. L.

ductor B. L. L. Mr. and Mrs. Hatfield Pettibone have been in Boston since last September. That they made many warm friends was shown by the surprise birthday party given to Mr. Petti-bone, April 1. About eighteen friends gath-ered at his home. He received several ele-gant gifts. They go to Philadelphin to fill a month's engagement and from there to At-lantic City for a much needed rest. They will spend the summer at their cottage at Lily Dale. L. M. P. The Stoneham First Solvitual Ladies' Aid.

The Stoneham First Spiritual Ladies' Aid, April 30 held a medium's social in Mechanic's Hall; entertaining nineteen well known speakers and mediums. Mrs. Townsend Wood, Sarnh A. Byrnes, J. Frank Baxter, C. Fonnie Allyn and many other prominent workers were present. The next social will he May 14. With a kindly greeting to all, hoping to meet again in the same spirit of harmony and sociability. F. A. Bennett,

The Ladies' Spiritualistic Industrial So-ciety. Thursday, May 7, Mr. Frank Gurney is to tell us "What he Knows About Theo-dore Roosevelt and the Rough Riders." He

ARE YOU A FAILURE? Develop your occrit forces. Be suc estimits methy, for business. My booklet, How To Be Cured, and The Secre of Power, free. Distance no bar to successful treatment MAUDE COLE KEATER, 821 Part Ave., New York City, A10-13

MENTAL HEALING for the cure of all diseases. Absent treatment only Improvement immediately. Correspondence with all my patients. Terms, 50 cents weekly. MRS. LOUISE E. FINLAY, Campbells Bants Clars, Oal. Aleil is said to be very entertaining and we may expect a rare treat. A whist party will be given May 14 with four excellent prizes and two "boohies." Let us have a full attendance during this month, as the season closes on May 23. A cordial welcome to all. C. M. Mailard, sec.

N. S. A. Mass Meeting.

l'aine Hall, Appleton St.-Tuesday, April 25, was one of the most glorious days of the spring, and everything that could be de-sired. The N. S. A., through its missionary, Mr. J. S. Scarlett, held its mass meeting, and although the audiences were small, the talent was excellent and the meetings were a success talent was excellent and the meetings were a success. Mr. Scarlett opened the evening meeting with a few well chosen remarks, greeting the triends in the name of the N. S. A. Mrs. Shirley and Mr. Simmons of Haverhill spoke briefly. The mediums, Mrs. Belcher, Mrs. Alex. Caird, Madame Helyett of Lynn did excellent work. Congregational singing was introduced during the session. The afternoon session was opened with singing; invocation by Mr. Simmons. Mrs. C. Fannie Allyn, first speaker, said: "I believe thoroughly in organization. We should organize principles regardless of per-sonalities. I hope Massachusetts will be to the front in this work." Mrs. Allyn closed with a poem. Mrs. Swift of Haverhill gave some excellent tests. Mrs. Noyes said her Spiritualism taught her to speak no evil of any one and to protect all mediums. Mrs. Hattie C. Mason sang a beautiful selection and spoke briefly as fol-lows: "When we place ourselves in an attitude and the second of any one of a nor of protect and mediums. Mrs. Hattie C. Mason sang a beautiful selection and spoke briefly as follows:

"When we place ourselves in an attitude to receive light, then will we get it. I know there is trath enough to keep our grand ship of Spiritualism sailing along with its message of peace to bless mankind."
Mrs. Kate Hann gave many messages that were well received. Mrs. Belcher closed the meeting with tests.
Mr. Kate Han gave many messages that were well received. Mrs. Belcher closed the meeting with tests.
Mrs. Sarah A. Byrnes spoke in her usual earnest manner: "My prayer every day is to be lifted near to the spirit friends. I do not want to bring them down to me, but I aspire to reach them."
Mr. J. R. Hatch, Jr., made a plea for finances for the missionary work. Mrs. M. J. Butler spoke briefly and Mrs. Kate Ham gave communications. Mrs. Minnie M. Soule, controlled by "Bumble Bee," said:
"I am specially interested in missionary work, because a spirit in returning feels like a missionary trying to bring the sweet word of comfort to you who are left in the mortal. Do you know, I think many of the Spiritualists have a wrong idea of the missionary. They think he should have his pockets full of gold and be able to give to the people, instead of going among the people to teach them of the love and goodness of the spirit, and to teach them to try and do good." Mrs. Soule closed by giving many communications which were all recognized.
Mr. J. Frank Baxter delivered an address which is printed in full in another column. Mr. Scarlett thanked each one who had contributed towards making the day a success.

Cess. Mrs. Whitlock sent a letter saying she was unable to be present on account of the ill-ness of her father. Thanks were extended to Mr. J. Hayward for floral decorations. C. L. Hatch.

C. L. Hatch.

Let us be content, in work, To do the thing we can, and not presume To fret because it's little. --Mrs. Browning.

-BY-

CONTENTS.

W. J. COLVILLE.

Mind and Habit.

Mind is a constructive and destructive orce. If the human mind is constantly focused poon a desire, with a positive will to possess or accomplish the desire, success is certain to upon a desire, with a positive will to possess or accomplish the desire, success is certain to follow. I have often met persons of great age, and have always found that they had gone through life with the full conviction of living to be very old. This shows what practical results can be attained by mental persistence. I wish to give a few cases wherein mind has led to queer results. I have already stated that this wonderful force is both constructive and destructive. A soldier in the late American rebellion be-came convinced that he would be shot dead in the approaching Battle of Antietam. Bo much was he impressed with the thought that his conrades tried to disstade him from it. When the battle came this man entered it with great gloom and depression, but to his surprise the battle had ended when he met a comrade who jestingly thrust his finger against the gloomy man's head and ex-claimed. "There, you are not..." But the man fell dead. At the sense of touch the thought 'had flashed-"That's the fatal bul-let." And the thought killed the man who had so stoutly expected death. I once hypnotized a large, strong lady, and convinced here that one end of my cane weighed several tons, and that she could not possibly raise it from the floor. I never saw such physical exertion as the lady put forth, but she failed to raise the cane. I once knew a merchant who simulated the cough of a consumptive; the habit speedily developed into real consumption, of which he died. These facts are written to show that the body is about what the mind makes it. The mind builds the body, and not the body its about what the mind makes it.

The mind builds the body, and not the body the mind, as has always been asserted. A sound mind in a sound body is a flat of na-ture. I shall never cease this alarm-sounding till the world heeds the necessity of observ-ing the value of unind and habit-training. Train your mind and overhaul your habits, if you would be healthy.—Mental Advocate.

SCIENCE AND KEY OF LIFE. Planetary Influences

By ALVIDAS BT AL.

By ALVIDAG BY AL. This contribution to the old but ever interesting question of existence marks a distinct epoch in the treatment of this subject. It is, in fact, much more than a science of ills. It treats broadly of the devel-opment of the universe liself from a condition of demontal matter to its existing state, and coming dwn to our own solar system, it explains in detail the forces and principles which have operated from the beginning and which still operate to develop, and mould the physical, mental and spiritual entitles thoat go to marks up the composite pature of man. The book is well illustrated with charts and horescopal figures, many of the latter being of historical person-and reological data regarding the variable stars, the precession of the equinoxas. The polar revolution of the series and principles which have operated from the beginning. There are the equator, and when con-stantly vertical near the equator, and when out is the series and principles which the best of the series and the target of the phenom-is and formations which have berefore puriled the scientist. "When the sun was vertical to the stantly vertical near the equator, and when bey the the use of the telephone, the X-rays and the wire-less beigraphy have been in operation from the ter of yesterday. In this book are explained the star of other vibratory forces of infinitely grater importance, force which have a vital bears to on the well-being and character of every individ-ual now living or who will bereatter exist on this tis a necessity for very one which haves to utilize for the subscience. The end subscience of the forces to the subscience when when the science as the polar ter of yesterday. In this book are explained the ter of yesterday. In this book are explained the ter of where who well be here the bears of every individ-ual now living or very own who science to utilize for the scensity for every one who science to utilize for the subscience of the reference when who science Wisdom of the Ages. CONTENTS. A Glimpse of Sydney; An Australian Surday; The Prob lem of Mutual Aer ice; Eody, Roel and Spirit; A De ightind Trip to Molbourne; Melbourne in All He Glory A Mystic Order and His Sacred Elites; Dr. Lamoyne, An Up-to-Date Physician; A Drilphtrid Day in Adelaide; Last Glimpses of Australias; The Red Bea, The Cat's Impressions of Australias; The Red Bea, The Suc Star Burgesions of Australias; The Red Bea, The Suc Star Burgesions of Australias; The Berling the Mystic Order; Betwee Colombo and Sucs; His Cat's Impressions of Australias; The Red Bea, The Suce Canal, Explain Pyram ds; A Visit to Port Baid The Genizo of the Slig; A Visit to Formesii, The Bhrine at Herrulaneum; Dr. Lemoyne's Initial Lecture before a London Audience; Mr. Fart 't & Experisone in New Zed. Ind, A Marvilova Instance of Fotent Heiling; Still-Purther Myr eries; A Strange but Glorious Officium; Still-Burther Myr eries; A Strange but Glorious Officium; Mental Ad Trieppilis Disciplican; His Griene; Drotter H, Die in Underg; An Ideal Oircle for Spiritual Communion, Mr. Parroit Beiturn to London; The Mysteries of Palm Istry; Through War to Prace; The Mission of the Sap pilre Slar; The Garde of Edea. Heno. Cloth. 40 parce, Frice SI-OC. Fer alle by BANNEE OF LIGHT FUBLISHING CO.

Automatically transcribed by

GEO. A. FULLER, M. D.

PRESS NOTICES.

It is a book to be not only read, but read and re-read, for it is full from cover to cover of all good things, charminging erms of thought to those in search of Spiritnal principles. It is a book that should be in the hands of the conductors of our Sunday services, for many of its chapters will form no-t excellent readings at the opening of our me etings all over the land. The Spiritual Review, London, Eng.

As a purely literary production it is faultless, while the teaching given, and the force with which it is imparted is god-like. Light of Truth.

This volume will be read by students of the occult and Spiritualists generally with great interest. Philosophical ceastful in emphasizing its organic feature by seeking ignorance in avenues rather than lanes, in palace rather than hovel. "The poor ye have with you alway, and when ye will, ye may do them good." Mrs. Eddy, knowing that the poor will always be with us, and knowing that no such assurance is given con-cerning the rich, doubtless consider? It right to 'make hay while the sun shines,' and at-tend to the poor later on." "In relating year sums of monay with which tend to the poor later on." "In raising vast sums of money with which incidentally to build magnificent churches with plumbing and lighting outfit paved with gold, Mrs. Eddy has certainly been a worthy competitor of the Church of Rome, but, in view of present complaints from the Vatican that Peter's Pence is dwindling to such insignificant proportions, it is to be re-gretted that she is not a partner with the pope, instead of being his most formidable competitor." competitor."

The Throne of Eden A Psychical Romance

cottages on West Central Are. Mrs. Ring is a clairvoyant and test medium. Dr. Huot has bought a lot on the West Boulevard. He has purchased a cottage and moved the same to his lot. He has greatly improved the lot and also the cottage. Mrs. Sarah Nye is putting on a large ad-dition to her cottage on West Central Are. "Mrs. Eddy's statement that mortals love sin or love to sin, is a libel not only upon all mankind, but is a sweeping denunciation against the Author of all life; the statement, if made intelligently, would be nothing short of blasphemy and is proved to be false by, the most casual observer of the chaos of the past and the comparative order of the pres-ent, which change has all been outwrought by man's efforts to escape sin and appro-priate the good. Her statement is against all Nature. Nature never led the mother filled with love to throw her babe to savage beasts or into the Ganges. Nature never led men to fight and murder their brother man be-cause of some difference in beliefs concern-ing religion, but these, and kindred acts of cruelty were the consequence of such teach-"Mrs. Eddy's statement that mortals love manify with a loving smile." Next Sunday morning, in Chickering Hall, at 10.45, Mr. Wiggin will deliver his third and closing address upon the subject of "Some Fallacies of Christian Science." The evening meeting, was, as usual, well at-tended. The Elmwood Male Quartet pleased Onset Notes.

Mrs. M. F. Ring of Providence, R. I., is located for the season in one of the Twin cottages on West Central Ave. Mrs. Ring

Mr. Otis Hood has built an addition nearly as large as his main cottage and put in all modern improvements. Nearly all his rooms are already engaged for the season.

Last year Mr. Gardner bought the cottage corner 8th St. and West Central Ave. He has so completely remodeled and improved the cottage one would never know it. Mr. Geo. Musto and wife have returned from the winter trip to New York City, Washington, Richmond and other southern points, and have opened their cottage on 6th St. for the season.

its audienc

Sunday, May 3, 1963.

St. for the season

N

I was run down from Overwork, Werry and Ex-cesses, cost me a large amount to be Permanently Curred. When you have lost all patience with special-lats, send me 22°, for thesame curs. New Life to the lokiy, Vageor to the well. Mr. K. JAMES, P. O. Box 123, Los Angeles, Cal. Ladies may address Mrs. James.

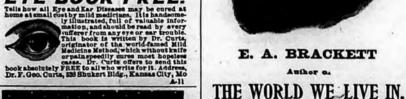

Dr. C. Lester Lane, D. M.

The Eminent Physician and Psychio Healer for the ours of Mental and Physical Ailments. Obsersions Bpecialty. Address 872 Hun ington Ave., Boston, Mass. All

Nicholas Becker

Life Readings by Mall, description and names of spirit friends with messages. Instruction for psychic unfold-ment. Bend own handwriting and $1.40. Dixon, ill. A412

EYE BOOK FREE!

IHE WUKLD WE LIVE IN. THE OTLY SURE GUIDS TO SUCCESS. Ormathy's Simple Systems of the Planets and the Zollac, cost only SIAM. READ Proposition Frome-A book for the year, loss, Specializa, Health Marriage, Washing, co. 81.00. by only SLOB a year. Veluable Lessons in Astronomy, Jatrology, Occultion, etc., Grostions answered. THE ORDERY CORDARY, 18 Andlering, Change, III. DISEASES OF MEN Then as Bernal Debility, Varieo-ocie and Seminal Lesses curd with-ocie a fullers by an External Appli-ention in 60 days. This great remarks in a spirit prescription, and has re-lay other cure known. Send 10 cents for look giving All particulars, with price and avera testimochia. Address Dr. R. P. Feillows, Vineland, N. J. and any what paper you are this advertisement in. DB. FILLOWS is one of our distinguished progressive physiciants when the address their com-tinguished in when the address their com-tinguished in the set of the full particular of the physiciant is when the address their com-

Anther a.

It is a mine of valuable reflections and suggestions. The Progressive Thinker.

A great book on great subjects. Weltmer's Magazine.

The transparent truth in poetic setting, beauty of thought and lottiness of conception, rich imagery and pure Spirit-uul ty render it a book unique, fas-insting and marvelous. There is no lottler work among the impured treasures of the age. The Sermon, Torensic, Comeda.

The inspired Author of the book is held to be one Zer-toulem, the Prophet of Tiaskas sta, where words and maxima are gath-red into 50 energy of elevated and inspir-ing subortation. The book is bound most stiractively and the letter press is admirable. Journal of Magnetime.

It is well worth perusal for its novel features, if a person does not accept any of the Spiritualistic doctrines in-inded in its production and teachings. The Susfever.

The style is apothegmatic; its teachings are beau its philosophy grand. None can read this volume will sensing the sweetness and richness of its spirit. The pit of Bealth.

The style is crisp and strong, the spirit vigorous and uplifting. In it is expressed the laws by which the sou grows out of the unreal into the real. Tolede (Ohio) Blass.

Extracts from Letters of Noted Anthors, Lee furers and Editors.

It will easily take its place among modern eli while its spiritual impress ranks it as a work of tran dental power. HABRIBON D. BARBETT, Editor Be of Light.

It is a work of hish order, and will be appreciated by all lovers of good literature. GRO. DUTTOR, A. B., M. D. author of E.lopathy, also works on Anatomy, Hygiene, etc.

I am immersed in the Wisdom of the Ages." It is a rolume of assuring interest, of fascinating revelation, and revelating rhythm. PACT AVEREL, author of many Essays and Poems of an Occult and Scientific nature.

Your book is rightly named. I have h rein expressed my honset opinion. I read carefully every word and shall find frequent occasion for going to if for what it contains-wisdom. Hav. F. A. Wieoly, lecturer and author of Onbe s and Sphares in Human Life."

I believe your book will have a large circulation. My copy I shall read from at my Sunday meetings. Paor. W. P. Prot, author and locturer.

A masterplece. I wish every one could read it. A.J. MAXHAM, suthor of Maxham's Melodies.

Tour book is certainly a beautiful and crowning inspira-ton. DR. F. S. BIGHLOW, one of Mane's well known Calivorants and Healers.

Cloth. 111 pp. Gilt top.

PRICE $1.00. TOR BALL BT BANNER OF LIGHT PUB. CO., 904 Darmenth SL, - BOSTON, MASS.

SPIRIT Bessage Beyartment. LASES GIVEN TREOVOR THE MEDIVISELF OF MRS. MINNIE M. SOULE.

The following communications are given by Mrs. Soule while under the control of her even guides, or that of the individual spirits weiding to reach their friends on earth. The meanings are reported stenographically by a social representative of the Banner of Light, and are given in the presence of ether mem-bers of The Banner Staff. These circles are not public.

To Our Beaders.

To Our Beaders. We earnestly request our patrons to verify such communications as they know to be based upon fact as soon as they appear in these columns. This is not so much for the benefit of the management of the Banner of Light as it is for the good of the reading public. Truth is truth, and will bear its own weight whenever it is made known to the world. Win the cause of Truth, will you kindly assist us in finding those to whom the follow-ing measures are addressed? Many of them are not Spiritualists, or subscribers of the Banner of Light, hence we ask each of you to become a missionary for your particular locality.

to becou

Report of Seance held April 23, 1903, S. E. 56.

Invection.

Out into the freer expression of spiritual life we would send our souls through aspira-tion and faith this morning. Out into the clear light of spirit we would wander and gather with joy and the fullest understanding all that is best for the soul's growth and unfoldment. Away from all the misunder-standing, the ignorant conditions that con-front and best us, we would go and be so through the interval of the misunder-standing, the ignorant conditions that con-front and beset us, we yould go and be so filled with the spirit of sanctity and truth that we may come back again and be able to walk upright and clean even in the midst of all these conditions. May our effort after knowledge be blessed. May we be so pas-sive, so responsive to the inflowing of truth that we will be filled with mught else; so filled with holiness and love that there will be no room for any other expression of life. We would through our love and hope take joy to all those who are reaching after it. We would give peace to the troubled heart. We would give understanding to those who mourn and suffer; we would have them see through the darkness the bright hand of truth reaching down its message to them and givthrough the darkness the bright hand of truth reaching down its message to them and giv-ing the blessing of all that comes only through understanding. May all the dear ones who have gathered here, those who yearn to ex-press something to those they love, be made strong by our steady thought. May no fear upset the calm of their spirit until they de-feat their own purpose, but steady and clear and true, may the message be spoken, finding its way as swift as an arrow to the heart that sits waiting for it. Amen.

MESSAGES.

Tommy Lee, Kansas City, Mo.

Tommy Loe, Kansas City, Mo. The first spirit that comes to me this morn fig a boy about fourteen. He is quite dark, with round, full face, dark eyes and after the has a bright way; he was always filed with plenty of life and vigor, and he would think of going into the spirit. He are the fact that the second state of the spirit didn's uffer. I was run over; it was all over of quickly there was absolutely no suffering for me. My name is Tommy Lee; I lived in hands the fact the second state of the spirit. He was the second the fact of the second state of the seco delphia. The spirit of a man comes to me. He looks hout thirty-five or forty years old. He is a little above the medium height, has blue eyes, dark hair which is a little wavy, and very strong clear cut features. His name is Charles; he is happy and bright and full of the person I am addressing. He says: "I have been for some time trying to get into onmunication. It is not always easy to give the impression as we want to, but I have been trying to do so. Don't be afraid to keep and the experiments. They will be suc-cessful lafter a little time." There is also an of lady past the middle life. She is slender and about medium height, with blue eyes and gray hair. She is dressed very plainly; she network the will know who I am. Tell him we are all anxious to have him unfold for hinself. We think we can get to him defe-nitely it he makes opportunity for us." nitely if he makes opportunity for us."

To Bey. G. Tabor Thompson, Philadelphis.

lazy people. It was not because I did not try to, but because it was so natural for me to be doing something all the time. I have a sister named Emma and I want her to do something for herself. She is far from well and she is just in that condition where it seems to her it is easier to let it drift than it is to do something. I know she can live and while she may if she wants just as soon die as not it is just as well for people to live just as long as they can. There is no sense in hurrying from one life to another. It is better to stay and finish up the work. There is songh in her life to discourage her, but it is better for her to be there and be able to do something than it is for her to be in spirit life and wishing she had stayed to help all she could. I lived in Warren, Wyo. My father, whose name is Alexander, is with me and he sends love and greetings, too."

James Haskell, Hartford, Conn.

James Haskell, Hartford, Conn. There is a spirit standing beside me of a man about fifty years old. His hair is iron gray; he has a vary strong manner and very clear, expressive eyes. His beard is gray, and he walks over to me with an air of im-portance and says: "My name is James Haskell; I am from Hartford, Conn. I have been over here about ten years; I have tried on various occasions to make myself mani-test, but have never tried to come in this way before. I am desirous of reaching Carrie. I thought if I just gave you the plain statements perhaps you could get what I way before. I am desirous of reaching Carrie. I thought if I just gave you the plain statements perhaps you could get what I wanted to suy. I am not uneasy nor un-happy, but it seems to me rather senseless to sit over here idle when by effort I might con-nect with the one I want. I was always more or less interested in this psychic phe-nomena, never identifying myself with the work, but watching its progress. Grace is more anxious to return than I can express. It seems as though it would be the thing that would bring her peace. Just as many times you people are made strong by the message so she would be made strong if she were only able to give the message. I want to say to my family, God bless you all. It gives me extreme tenderness when I think of you and of what you have tried to do in my memory. God bless you, I look forward to the time when we shall be united."

Louis Marston, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Louie Marsion, Grand Rapids, Mich. The spirit of a woman about twenty-four or twenty-five years old comes to me. She is very fair and delicate and as sweet and pretty as she can be. The first thing she says is: "May I just send a little word to my mother? I am Louie Marston and I used to live in Grand Rapids, Mich. Papa is with me this nornine. We thought it would be so nice to come together and send our love to amma. Her name is Rose; she is much alone and feels the necessity of getting some word from the spirit if possible. I was very weak when I came over here; it didn't seem as though I had any strength left to even breathe, and that is probably why I just slipped away, because I hadn't strength to-hold on to the body. It was very strange those first days when I seemed to be drifting, not knowing where I was or what had hap-pened to me. I remember Bell and Willy and Walter and often go to see them all and wish they could know I see them. It is better as it is, mama, although you can't understand it. I am your girl just the same and I can never go away from you. So much love I send you, and if I could make you feel it, I can assure you you would know you were ynight you live."

Charles Dean, to Mrs. C. P. Dean, Auburndale, Mass.

Charles Dean, to Mrs. C. F. Dean, Auburndale, Mass. A spirit comes now who says: "I am not accuninted with this sort of business, but I thought I would come and say a few things because I can help clear matters up a Httle. My name is Dean, Charles Dean, and I have a wife. I died away from here and I have her understand that I am interested to see right done to her. It is pretty hard to go out the way I did and find conditions not ad-justed the way one would like to have hem. It is too bad, dear. I am sorry I didn't plan things a little better before I came. It was not an intentional slight on my part. Our child is with me and is helping me to send this message to you because you have been so blue and disturbed over things that have happened lately. It is useless for you to expect to have the right thing done. It is not as it should be and I am grieved and it may help you to know that I am. I am not traveling as much now as I did. I am trying to get near to you and the daughter that is alive. Marion is helping me. Please send this message to it will reach Mrs. C. P. Dean of Auburndale."

Cora Bradley, Georgetown, Mass.

Cora Bradley, Georgeiown. Mass. Here is the spirit of a woman of perhaps thirty-eight or forty years of age. She comes rushing over to me as though she was in a hurry and very eager, and says, "Oh, I am Cora Bradley, and I am from Georgetown, Mass. It seems to me nobody could feel worse than I do, but I suppose everybody feels the same when trying to get back. I didn't mean to come to the spirit. It was a mistake. It should not have happened and I didu't do it purposely, and I want my people to understand it. It was dreadful to die and to understand it. It was dreadful to die and be misunderstood and to be unable to write the explanation. I wish I might be able to tell those who were good enough to put the right interpretation on my act that it helped me very much. It was the first light I got. I shall be happier now I have said something about it, because it has been a constant bur-den to me ever since I have been over here." to understand it. It was dreadful to die and attended at the lats home on Tuesday, March 11, Elizabeth Harlow officiating. Brings, N. Y., March 14, 1903, Mrs. Mar-garet Smith Graves. She was born at Wil-lamsville, Erie Co., N. Y., in 1831. The srand principles of Spiritnalism had bright-ened her pathway in life for many years and the "Banner" had long been a never failing source of enjoyment. She was possessed of superior intellect and a charitable disposi-tion. "None knew her but to love her." At her request har remains were taken to Buf-falo for incineration, and the sahes deposited in the grave with her father at Williams-ville. He was laid to rest sixty-seven years ago. Mrs. L. A. Sherman, Munnsville, N. Y. My dear mother, Mrs. II. H. Chase, passed to a higher life on April 11 from the home of my sister in Portland, where she was visit-ing. We brough her remains to her own home in Winterport, Me., where a large number of her old friends and neighbors listened to a very touching discourse by Nellie Chase of Hermon. Mother has been a firm believer in Spiritualism for forty years and it was a great comfort to her through her illness to feel that her loved ones (who were many) were near her and fendy to sever hermon when her and tendy to be and the sender of the startlett.

LIFE HERE AND IN THE OTHERWHERE

Invoration given by Mina Vera Hughes of Brookly N. Y., to First Church of Spiritualists, Phila-delphia, and printed by request.

Our Father, God! The Great Spirit! We know Thon art with us, art here; To be absent would be beyond reason For are we not all in the Here?

And where is the Otherwhere, Father, But in the vague theory thought Which separates Mind from the thinking And God from the work He has wrought? Whi

We come not unto Thy Presence, We beg not for our "Daily Bread"---We nover were hid from Thy Vision We've gathered the "stones" instead.

It only awaited our taking— While Guidance, and knowledge and choice Were waiting before e'en our asking To grant, and make us rejoice.

In the cold, gray dawn of the morning, Our heart all that coldness feels, Till we see thro' receding darkness The light which the shadow conceals.

All day we watch for that guidance, For the Voice of the Angel we list, Whose tones with unquestioning clear Iting thro' the Earth's shadow mist. clearness

Each heart as it waits now before Thee, Each soul who feels its own need, Draws from that Infinite Plenty In thought, act and word and deed.

For why should we tell Thee, Our Father, What already too well is known— Thou hearest us not for much speaking, Thy giving, thro' taking is shown.

We praise Thee for this Life immortal— For knowledge of Infinite Whole, That unites in One Great Eternal Each Spirit, each body, each soul.

To the heart all crushed in its sorrow, To the soul that is tired of strife, We bring the Peace of Thy promise And clothe them with Infinite Life.

Apotheosis of Alexander Aksakof.

ANDREW JACKSON DAVIS.

ANDREW JACKSON DAVIS. The departure of this large and loyal spirit is an event rich with profoundest significance. It means the ascension of one of the noblest and best of living men. He was at all times deeply impressed with the divine de-sire to aid all humanity to participate in the lioon of possessing Truth. He was early a receiver of the great Seer, Swedenborg; but the extraordinary involutions and dis-closures of that master mind, Illuminated as it was, did not overwhelm the analytical thinking faculties of Alexander Aksakof. Referring to the Swedish author, he wrote (1857, see Appendix to "Events in the Life of a Seer"): "Swedenborg had effected his work of intellectual and moral emancipation in me, but to my present convictions the Harmonial philosophy comes nearest to the truth." Prompted by feelings of the pro-for the linuminated Swedenborg. Impressed in like manner with deep thankfulness, he spinge the principal volumes in the "Har-monial" series. As to their teachings, he spinge the principal volumes in the "Har-monial" series. As to their teachings, he spinge the principal volumes in the Germa lan-guesting and speech and actions were under the strictest control of the Gory erus of the publication of the works of Karder; thus, he says, "I must do all my work for truth and humanity on a foreign the more than forty years this magnanimeriand of Heaven. May we all live and work as constantly and faithfully as did Alexander Akaakof-leaving behind us a brilliant path (few thorns, many roses) along which others may journey aloft, devoted to truth for truth's own sake,-From "Light," London, Eng.

The Song of the Cross and the Chant of the Labor of Satan.

JAMES MACBETH.

The book is dedicated to the Catholic broth-erhood and sisterhood of the service of Love, and the name Catholic is not restricted to the Roman, Greek or any other exclusive, self ordained church, but applies to the uni-versal, spiritual church of Christ, and any simple minded disciple of the Great Master, whether of the Greek, Roman, Protestant, Buddhist, Mohammedan, Theosophist or Spiritualist, will find here some word of com-fort, of encouragement in his efforts to de-velop the immortal spirit within until Nir-rana, the Sun of Love, is his blest abode forever.

forever. The Song of the Cross is a beautiful mystic The song of the Cross is a beautiful mystic poem in which we see the evolution through suffering from the animal plane to the psy-chic and to the spiritual plane. One canto is: Songs of Fire and of Love. Oh! fire of the love of God we will sing of thee! O holy wedlock we will chant thy joys. This fire may be painful during the purifying process, but it becomes wonderfully sweet and invig-orating.

but it becomes wonderfully sweet and invig-orating. Then we have The Song of the Gardener. O soul I am He that saveth thee! Thou art my garden, the winds of spring, the frost of winter, the rains of autumn and the sun of summer have been a blessing to thee, thou bearest much fruit, and I rejoice to see many come to thee to find the fruit needed for their refreshment. refreshment.

refreshment. The garden answers: O Mother-God thou hast taught me that it is only by suffering, by the way of the cross that man is made fit to enter the joy of thy life, the ever blessed, the lovely. The cross is called the tree of life that yields the fruit of blessing of which

by the way of the cross that man is made in to enter the joy of thy life, the ever blessed, the lovely. The cross is called the tree of life that yields the fruit of blessing of which all can partake, for plenteons is the fruit of love, borne in the Christ-soul, and it is the life of all that generates. Next is a song to "The Christ-child" de-scribing in beautiful imagery the labors, the humiliation and the sufferings of Christ as the suffering body of humanity, and then the Christ speaks the word of health to the soul of man, saying: By the word of truth I will be your Savior; you die because you hold not the truth, but the power of my word of truth will redeem you from your delusions. Then follows a short song: O, Soil of the Race, telling us that the humus, the soil of the race, is greatly beloved by the Christ-soul, and inviting men to come and accept of Christ's new life and abundant health, so we may be one in him. The last song of the cross is: Behold my flands and my Feet. This teaches that the poor are dear to God. The writer asks: Would you know why I so love you, why your broken, toilworn, uncomely bodies are more dear to me than the delicate bodies of the children of wealth? Because you are Christ's own suffering body, in you all I see the one whom I love. This is the end of the song of the cross, yet must we continue to sing it through life. We have next: A Needed Word of Light. This is a word of warning to all who study the spiritual in its manifestations to distin-guish between the psychical and the spir-itual mind," but ethereal though it be, it cannot create; it is in and of the sphere of manifestations, whereas the essential-spirit-ual is of that which is manifested—the crea-tor-spirit which cannot be seen but through the spirit. He holds that the psyche, soul, may be lost, we have every reason to be-lieve that the wasted robing of the spirit pass eventually into the soil of the spirit will suffer in this process of consuming so long as that soul contains the elements of burning outil t divine desires. Christ says: What will it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his soul? The man may indeed lose his soul, and be the poorer for the loss, but the real man, i. e., the spirit, will not be lost, and you are referred to your Bible for proof. Let the psychical be taken for what it is, 'and used accordingly, but let it remain the ser-vant of the spirit, for such is the holy Will. Let Psyche then serve Pneuma, and their work will be one of power and their union strength. In seeking psychic power as an end in itself, or for any spiritual good for the use of self, there is great danger, while seeking and using it for the good use of our fellowmen, we walk in the way of divine fellowmen, we walk in the way of divine health.

The next chapter is entitled: This is My

 DEAT 0, 1000.

 to define his position. No one can deny that the world, as a whole, is laboring under the poke of Satan. The great mass of mankind is yet in the hell-state spiritually. By the hell-state he means the crude, undeveloped, low, infernal state of the self-centred, self-held, self-encompassed personality. By satur the understands the name not of a personal-ity but of a spiritual potency, who is the understands the name not of a personal-ty but of a spiritual potency, who is the understands the name not of a personal-ty but of a spiritual potency, who is the understands the name not of a personal-ty but of a spiritual potency, who is the working in the hell of negation. He is no dualist, as he believes that God only is; "wil" is but the want of the good, as dark-ness is the want of light, and ignorance the work of knowledge. No two gods context the one, and in Him all that has being, is. What is called satanic will yet cease to be as a place or expression of existence, so that God will be the all in al. "Mile the satanic will af God, yet it is near the set has as add: "He causeth even the work of man to do his will." For it is only by the trying of temptation that we want be brought to our senses, realize our weaking that we become humble, and it is the first step to health, for by a heavy fall we way be brought to our senses, realize our weaking be brought to our senses, realize our weaking be brought to our senses, realize our the first is the divine work of sin in our bins, and thus the labors of satan will ulti. "The the sator of praise, "grudeamus, therator est humanitas." Let us rejolee, hu-many is delivered. Ye priests of God, ye prophets of truth, all ye of the brother-houd is senzice, sing, for the fruit of the divine's anguish is now given unto man-tod."

kind. The third part is all of songs of joy and sorrow, and while I cannot say to what class of poetry they belong, they are all beautiful and they all sing of love, as I was reading them my heart beat in unison with the heart them my heft beat in unison with the heart of the writer. This review might be extended to great length, but enough has been said to whet the appetite of earnest students of the beau-tiful and true, and my hope is that there will be such demand as will justify the printing of an American edition.

Fred de Bos. Order of Banner of Light Publishing Co.

What a Woman of Forty-five Ought to Know.

MRS. EMMA F. ANGELL DRAKE, M. D.

Few books have been written on this sub-ject, and they were written for doctor's use; owing to ignorance on this subject, and to the innate modesty of woman to speak to a physician on such matter, thousands of the innate modesty of woman to speak to a physician on such matter, thousands of women have endured great sufferings, many have died, and many more, instead of enjoy-ing years of good health and of usefulness have remained invalids. So this book ad-dressed to the women themselves fills a long-feit want and the author will receive the thanks of all her sex, and have the conscious-ness that she has done her duty to her sis-ters. The book is to prepare woman for that great change, menopause, which the author

The book is to prepare woman for that great change, menopause, which the author asserts should have no more pronounced ef-fect on a well woman, than the change from childhood to puberty has upon strong, grow-ing children. Most women are conscious that there will come a time in their life when a change will occur, but what this change means, they know not, or they have wrong ideas, so that they view it with fear and trembling and thus are poorly prepared to meet it.

trembling and thus are poorly prepared to meet it. Women at forty-five should be at the high noon of life and not on the down hill side. This time of life in woman was planned by an all wise. Creator, and provision made for her safe passage through it. How many women think that her usefulness is past, and while she may do some little things for the confort of home, yet she may not attempt any great or important work. This is a wrong idea, and if this book can help to dis-abuse the mind of such an idea the author deserves the thanks of all mankind for her effort and we hope that success will crown her work. Right here in Boston we have Mrs. Julia Ward Howe and Mrs., Mary Livermore as notable examples of the good and great work done by women in their old age, and many others might be named.

The doctor explains at length the symp-(The doctor explains at length the symp-toms and various allments which accompany menopause, and gives sound advice to re-move the fear which ignorance might cause and increase and affirms that many of the diseases which have tormented life during the second period disappear after the meno-pages. Shander women become complicat bed-ridden invalids get up and walk, and a radical change of physical conditions is often a consequence of the crisis.

a consequence of the crisis. A chapter is given to single women who, lacking the experiences of married life and maternity, nevertheless need advice, as the same change comes upon all women. They are told that if not called to shine in a home of their own they may and will in the homes of many another. Real beauty does not mean perfection of form or feature, but perfection of character, fixed habits of sweetness, gen-tlences and strength are great beautifiers and

Will Carr, Brockton, Mass.

Will Carr, Brockton, Mass. Now the spirit who comes to me is a man front thirty years old, happy-go-lucky, and the spirit who comes to me is a man for thirty years old, happy-go-lucky, and the spirit of the spirit of the spirit who the spirit be? The spirit of spirit who have them if they could know what per power than if they could who what per power that is an a Brockton boy. Every find for and I am a Brockton boy. Every half dear and boy and the same and a every time b has dear to her it seems as if she crise the has dear and speak to her I can tell her how boy and how yeak is may love. Tell her how boy and how yeak and how and a boy and boy and boy har and boy and and boy and boy and boy and boy and boy har and boy a

Dr. Lewis B insford, Providences B. I.

B. 1. The spirit of a man who says he is Dr. Lewis Italiasford is here. He lived in Provi-dence, R. I.; he didn't know the least thing about spirit return and yet he can see that all his life be was going into some form of manifestation of it. "I want," he says, "to reach Mildred. I find her troubled over some of the numifestations that have been given her and I would like to have her understand there isn't a single thing to be afraid of. She is a medium. The power is hers. It is something entirely new and I, myself, didn't know it was going to happen. There are those about her who see in her a strength to carry forth some of their plans and if she will yield to their influence. I believe it will be hetter for her. Tell her that napa takes her in his arms and gives her his blessing and knows how often she looks at the picture of him and wonders if he ever sees her. Tell her, yes, yes, and loves her just as much as of old."

Transitions.

It will will only get over it and just let ne come and speak to her I can tell her how much and how real is my love. Tell her to be as brave as she can be and I will help her all I can." Darrie Bogers, Warren, Wyc. There is a split here by the name of Carrie Rogers. I think she is a woman as much as forty-five years old. Her hair and are dark and she is as quick as a bird and seems to run from one duty to another as fast as she can, and always was one of those bury, bury, beople. She says: "It is pleasure for me to have something to do. I don't think I ever had much patience with

4

Kardec; thus, he says, "I. must do ail my work for truth and humanity on a foreign Boll." For more than forty years this magnani-mous soul continued his masterly efforts, ever and always for "the truth." "Even in Russia," he said, "I can see no reason why the phenomenal part of Spiritualism should remain unknown." The sensuous demonstra-tious of inmortality cannot but do service to any system of religion. Under this convic-tion, and lifted high by his profound rever-ence for whatever is truth, he devoted his entire noble nature and appropriated very largely his material wealth to the sublime work of opening wider and higher the doors and windows of the temple of Truth. Suffering, day and night for years, ex-quisite pain arising from nervous affections— almost sightless, threatened with the recur-ring symptoms of paralysis—filed with physical agonics; yet, through it all, and with the unselfish devotion of an angel of love and wisdom, he continued to write and dictate, and to publish in books and maga-zines the "facts" in Modern Spiritualism. and to overthrow in all rational minds the sonliess doctrines of materialism. When he commenced his philanthropic efforts in Spiritualism he knew of but one friendly person—the Frofessor of Philosophy of the University of Moscow. But before his upotheosis he could count scores of sympa-thizers among the most scientific and learned men and women of Europe. From 1857 to 1901 (forty-four years!) I had the honor and delight of receiving beautiful men and women of Europe. From 1857 to 1901 (forty-four years!) I had the honor and delight of receiving beautiful and delicately-worded letters from Mr. Ak-sakof, but our correspondence seldom exceed-ed one letter a year. In his last (August, 1901) from Replofkn. Government of Pewza, Russin, he described his failing bodily strength; yet his exalted and unselfash spirit expressed an unchangeable devotion to the hasic realities of Spiritualism, and he said: "In September I hope to return to St. Petersburg, and there to find some words from yon, because I want to know what you are doing and thinking." We are each and all traveling the same are doing and thinking." We are each and all traveling the same road that leads through the solemnifies and vilence of a chemical change (called "death,") away from this shadowy world, up and be-yond into a world of diversified ultimates, from the winterland of Russia to the sum-

The next chapter is entitled: This is My Body. When we realize that all that is manifest to our senses, as well as all that is not manifest, is the body of God, we are filled with love and reverence for all crea-tion. As traly as the race of mankind is the human body of God, so truly is the brute kind the brute body of God, the plant kind the plant body of God; it is all the forth-showing of the creative mind, the manifest-ing of the sustaining Will. So when we eat of the food that nourishes the flesh, if we do so intelligently, we shall feel that we are actually breaking and absorbing in our body of the substance of God. Every meal we partake of will thus be sarcamental. This is the only interpretation of the beau-tiful words and symbolism of the communal part of brotherhood called The Lord's Sup-per. With what grander meaning the real-ization of this truth will invest that too often meaningless word, the brotherhood of man! How much kinder we should be to the brute from rance and the beauty of the body of God? I am lost in wonder and praise.

Imprance and the beauty of the body of God? I am lost in wonder and praise. Skeeping and Awaking is a chapter on death; it is truthfully portrayed not as the last enemy, but as an absolute good in the order of creation, a beautiful work in the Divine economy of nature. The working of the natural affection of love rests on the same principle. He who truly loves dies to self and lives in his mate; so as in this work of true love a sweetness comes from the un-solfing of one's self, a deep peace and rest pass over the soul as the sure fruit of giv-ing of one's self, a deep peace and rest sweetness likely arises in the soul, and the sensation of parting with the selfhood in our body's life may be an exquisite delight. Swe know that death is not a punishment for sin, but a necessary step in the career of the soul, the way to its upward and onward unfoldment.

Veni Creator is a short and beautiful in-vocation and praise to the creating spirit. The Latins have a hymn, "Veni Creator Spiritns," sung only on special occasions, but it sounds tame alongside of the brother's inspired poem.

Refore commencing the chant on The Iabor of Satan, the author has a foreword tlencss and strength are great beautifiers and will be a great help at that critical period. A well preserved old lady gives these rules to preserve the youth:

preserve the youth: Don't worry. Don't hurry. Simplify, SIMPLIFY. Don't overeat. Don't starve. Court the fresh air day and night. Sleep and rest abandantly. Be cheerful. Think only healthful thoughts. Seek peace and pursue it. Work hard, but not to death. Avoid passion: anger may be fatal. Don't carry the world on your shoulder. Never despair, lost hope is a fatal disease. We are treated to a chapter on what hus-hands ought to know and remember not all men know how to fill their place in the home and do their share of the home making. Very few men understand what a woman's home and do their share of the home making. Very few men understand what a woman's work really is in the home. Much good ad-vice is given to the husband not to forget those little kindnesses of the first days, the loving word, the tender look, a few flowers, a word of appreciation will have a wonder-ful effect on the wife who is using her energy in making the home, and who has her share of trials just as you may have in your busi-ness. Control the animal desires which some men (I hope that they are few) will have satisfied in complete disregard of their wife's comfort and even health.

Another chapter is on the care which should be taken of three of the best friends: the teeth, the eyes and the half, showing how important they are not only to health, but to beauty of feature.

but to beauty of.feature. It is much to be desired that this book could be found in every home, and not sim-ply to help to fill a shelf of a book-case, but to be studied carefully until its teachings be-come assimilated, as the grammar was in the school days. We would then see a stronger and happier race, brighter homes and children anxious to come home, instead of seeking distraction elsewhere.

Fred de Bos.

Fred de Bos. Published by the Vir Publishing Co., Phil-adelphia, London, Toronto. Order of the Banner of Light Publishing Co., Boston, Mass.

Take Piso's Cure for Consumption for Coughs, Colds and Consumption. Sold everywhere.

MAY 9, 1908.

REGRETS AND LITTLE FRETS.

Regrets are very little things, But like the been, they have their stings. Those little stings Are wicked things That fill with pain the bearts of men And women, and they come again To rack the sould, but understood Each deep regret brings forth some good.

The bee at work its sting forgets; Not so with busy, small regrets; But small regrets And little frets And sting and work and work and sting, And only good produce at last. As is observed when they are past.

Like corns that form upon the toe And sting and pain, and pinch and grow, E'en deep regrets And greatest frets Bemind us that this world is grand, It only we can understand, And make of little frets a gain, And make of servet world in

And of regrets a sweet refrain. Dr. T. Wilkins.

Magazine Notes.

An Estimate of Emerson

<text><section-header><text><text>

TT The Author of the Irish Land Bill.

<text><section-header><text><text><text><text>

the latest critic of woman's clubs, Dr. Edward Everett Hals. The unwatchful of the growth of the fu-ternational Council may reread the surpris-ing statement that in Berlin will be a roll-child of serenties countries. Aside from the half of serenties countries. Aside from the rational Council of the United States, are those of Canada, Germany, Sweden, Great British and Ireland, Denmark, New South Wales, Holland, New Zealand, Tasmania, Switzerland, Italy, France, Argentina, while Austria, Victoria and South Australia. New reports from these foreign federations abov negatiopportunities notwithstanding, they will take no back seat at this forthcoming perfor-menting the all-important presidential elec-tion, furthermore, the Canadian Council has for forthermore, the Canadian Council has of Arethermore, the Children Who Toll.

Children Who Totl. An encouraging sign of the times is the evil of child labor in this country. Somewhat over a decade ago a brief period of agitation ive to be in the passage of no little prohibi-tive legislation, directed more especially against the factory owners of New England and some of the Middle States, and the evil received a temporary check. The recrudees owner, and several State legislatures have or the mation's prosperity and per-terestree and the evil received a temporary check. The recrudees owner, has again aroused public opinion to attract the factory owners of New England network, the well-being of our future men and owner, has again aroused public opinion to attract the factory owners of the seven the startling to learn from the census more of this particularly vicious form of the startling to learn from the census more a reports that, notwithstanding the more million, seven hundred and fitty thousand filteren between the ages of ten and fifter provider, are subjected to such deploitable trating book. The Woma Who Toils.' The hundr the older hands who have begun when the older hands who have begun when the older hands who have begun when the older hands who have the provider shight, frail bodies toil weights the from the older hands who have the provider and of labor pressed too soon upon the the slight, frail bodies toil weights her from hand of labor pressed too soon upon the facts bed earthword, cheats recede the ron hand of labor pressed too soon upon the heritage as we i og and sorrows, grieg heaving the heritage as we i og and sorrows, grieg heaving the king factories as an osten speci-ter we have not yet done bosting breaction there slight the diet child form gives way to the heritage as we i og and sorrows, grieg heaving the heritage as we i og and sorrows, grieg heaving the heritage as we i og and sorrows, grieg heaving the heritage as we i og and sorrows, grieg heaving the heritage as we i og and sorrows, grieg heaving there. Grief is land!

to An excellent cabinet photo. of "The Poughkeepsie Seer" (A. J. Davis) for sale at this office. Price 35 cents.

BANNER OF LIGHT.

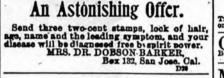

National Spiritualists' Association Terrent Sector MAR. MART T. LONGLEY, Soc'y, Penasylva als Avanue, S. E., Washington, D. O. try Feb. St.

JULIUS LYONS. ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.

Practices in all courts. Special attention given to burines of ab entees, office fills Hallman Building, Second and Breadway, Les Angeles, Cal.

MRS. SEVERANCE'S GOOD HEALTH TABLETS.

CONSTITUTE OF THE STATE OF THE LIFE OF Jesus of Nazareth. BY DEAN DUDLEY.

BY DEAN DUDLEY. Having made an exhaustive study of the first Geomenical Council of Nices, it was but natural, Mr. Dudley says, that he abould sup plement that work with the life of the man concerning whom the Church Fathers dog-matized so much at their first great conclare. This work of Mr. Dudley is written in a hopeful spirit, from the standpoint of a pronounced free thinker, is free from many of the objec-tionable features that usually obtain with works of this kind. It is brief and to the point, and beat of all, will compel the people who have to think and reason for themselves as they peruse it. The plain, unvarished facts are tersely stated by Mr. Dudley, who has combined in a few pages that which one might fail to find in the numerous volumes written upon the same subject. It is a veri-table multum in perco, and should be in the library of every 3Dirtualist. PHECE 35 CENTS.

Mrs. M. E. Williams OLIVER ANES GOOLD while, Ethioremitter, Batteringer, Anne annanchering, Belentite Demonstration, Anne day evenings at 9 velocit. Samerica after at 800001 of Frynic, Steven West Sta wisy evening at 8 velocit. If West Sta ASTROLOGIAN I at work the same, and with prices the same to N are at No. 1 Suffered Street. 7. O. address, Sor [ed. A. Mark, S. S. Same of Side for all ordinary work gates and in the said all officies in this, answering all manages are an are strengthener in the same predictive cluster. A With Arvenit Personant ar weit passant aring all massant realistive lattery A 30 U Miss Margaret Gaule Ias Removed from 155 West 164th St. to the San-Saivadou pt. No. 2, West Sith St. and Central Park, West, New York Beances, Tuesday Eve. at 8 and Thursday at LSS P. M. THAXTER MRS. C. SCO FT, Trance and Business M dina. Sittings is to 5. Sil Vanderbilt Ave, Bree of Light Building, B Mrs. Maggie J. Butler, THE SUNFLOWER Is an 8-page paper, printed on the Cassadage Cas. Ground, and is devoted to Progressive, Religious as Scientific Theoght, Spiritualism, Astro-ery, Falmistry, Theosophy, Psychic Science, Right Ortholasm. Has a Spirit Message Department. Put lished on the first and filteenth of each month at Sci entry of the second second second as a second at Science Scien van's House, 175 Trement St. Roems 43, 44, 44. Tel. cen. setions Take elevator. Office hours is to 4 daily, ex. opt Sundays. Mrs. H. S. Stansbury, Shawmut Ave., between Worcester and Springte treets, Beston. Sunday, 2.30 p. m., Thursday, 8 p. m. Sings for development a specialty. SUNFLOWER PUB. CO., LILY DALE, N. Y. READ "THE TWO WORLDS," edited by will period of the property of the second seco Marshall O. Wilcox. MAGNETIC and Mental Healer, 36 Bartmouth street Roem 5, (two deers from Copley sg.), Bosten. Hears 5A. M. to 5 P. M. Telephone 1113 Sack Bay. D 19 Ella Z. Dalton, Astrologer, THAURER of Astrology and Occult science, 110 Tren street, Stadie Fuliding, Room 26. D7 PSYCHIC POWER Osgeed F. Stiles, through Practical Psychology, a quarter ly magazine devo tod to Personal Masnetism, Hypsotism, and Psycho-Phy sicsi Culivre, Beud loc. for sample copy. WM. I BARNES, 127 Ho + er Ave., Cleveland, O DEVELOPMENT of Mediamship and Treat A1-5 Mrs. Florence White, PSYCHIC WORLD. Trance and Medical Medium. 175 Tremont BL Advic DR. GEORGE W. PAYNE, Editor. C. HENRY HARWOOD Br. Clairwayant Boston. Hours v to v daily, except Sundays. A monthly magazine devoted to the discussion o-New Thought, occ.if and psychic phenomena, from an independent and progressive standpoint, by lead-ing aud famous writers. One dollar per year, Bend for sample copy. Free. 1104 Matket St., Columbian Institute of Sciences, San Francisco, California. MRS. A. FORESTER GRAVES, Trance and Busines Medium, StUnion Parkst., Beston. 18 tes. MY TRANSCENDENTAL EXPERIENCES ance, Clairaudiance, etc. With four illustrations. By HENRY LAGMOIX. In this work will be found new views, progressive aspects which are startling and instructive. MRS. CURTIS 23 Norway Street, Boston. Magnetic healing. Business Modium. Hieumatism specialist. D7-8 DT-8 MRS. STACKPOLE. Business and Test Medium Bittings daily. 135 W. Brookline St. Price 25 cents. For sale by BANNER OF LIGHT PUBLISHING OO A5-8 THE SIXTEEN PRINCIPAL STARS. SPIRIT ECHOES. Their Postisons and Aspects. collection of poems and prose paragraphs by By J. G. DALTON. MRS. MATTIE E. HULL. The author in h. r preface mays: "Spirit Echoes goes to the world with the soul appreciation for all that has come to brighten and make better the life of its author." If mo. cloth. Price 60 cents. For sale by BANNER OF LIGHT PUBLISHING CO.

Boston Advertisements.

Ignestions will

Leto Hork Advertisements

The Berlin Convention.

The Berlin Connention. The International Council of Women, over the International Council of Women, over the International Kins, May Wright Sew of Indianapolis, is to have the honor of the one at Berlin in 1904-was the provide meeting of our National Council of the one at Berlin in 1904-was the provide internation of the one of the the one at Berlin in 1904-was the provide international weeks ago. Though the second of the second of the one of the one at Berlin in 1904-was the provide distinctive leaders of various at the the second of the second of the second the second of the second of the second of the the second of the second of the second of the the second of the second of the second of the the second of the second of the second of the the second of the second of the second of the the second of the second of the second of the the second of the second of the second of the the second of the second of the second of the the second of the second of the second of the the second of the second of the second of the the second of the second of the second of the the second of the second of the second of the the second of the second of the second of the the second of the second of the second of the the second of the second of the second of the the second of the second of the second of the the second of the second of the second of the second of the the second of the second of the second of the second of the the second of the second of the second of the second of the the second of the second of the second of the second of the the second of the second of the second of the second of the the second of the second of the second of the second of the the second of the second of the second of the second of the the second of the second of the second of the second of the the second of the second of the second of the second of the the second of the seco

"Boon after this new and curricus instrument for system pirit measures was made known, lottained one. Having ne its ter its use, I was obliged to wait for the right medium. It say I feend a reliable person, under whose touch on a pretrial the disk wrung to and fro, and the second time was informed to the second in box and sent by mail post-ed. Wall directions saked in box and sent by mail post-ed. Vall directions acknow for GANADA AND THP ROTIDE. TO BEALDENTS OF GANADA AND THP ROTIDE. TO BEALDENTS OF GANADA AND THP ROTIDE. To BEALDENTS of Canada and sent by more the United States and Qanada, FLANCHENTER can-to be sent through the mails, but must be forwarded by spress only at the purchaser's express. For sale by BANNEE OF LIGHT FUBLISHING CO. STARNOS: QUOTATIONS FROM THE INSPIRED WRITINGS ANDREW JACKSON DAVIS, Seer of the Harmonial Philosophy. SELECTED AND EDITED BY DELLA E. DAVIS, M.D. A Compend of the remarkable teachings contained in thirty volumes written by the "Poughkeepile Seer" under the inspirations of the Summer-Land while in the Superior Condition. The world cannot but be grateful to MF, Dr. Davis for her successful compliation. "Starnos" is the whole body of teachings in a beautiful form. " Starnos" is an elegant little volume for a present. It is a bouquet of beautiful thoughts. It contains hundreds of brief sentiments, maxims, mornis, rules for life's guidance, and embodies the teachings of the New Age. It is finally printed and beautifully bound. As a birthdy grift, or for a holiday present, nothing can be more appropriate thas "Starnos". Starnos." Price, in fine cloth, 50 cents; extra fine, gilt edge, 75 cents MAXHAM'S MELODIES. Arranged for Seles, Duets, and Quartets Also Six Poems. Also Six Poems. By the beautiful rate Don't abut the door between us, mother Surely the curtain is lifting The evergreen montains of If all who hate would love us Bilt us beautiful hands The rate of the state with the with the state The tank beautiful hands The stingy man's fate Don't abut the door between Surely the curtain is lifting Surely the curtain is lifting The state with the state The stingy man's fate Don't hour the fate Burley the curtain the state Burley the curtain the state Burley the state Burle An angel life Include contents of the same transmither in the same transmither in the same while the same transmither in the same transmithe For male by BANNER OF LIGHT PUBLISHING CO.

STIL.

Children's Nook.

Nannie.

 Namie.

 It was nothing but a little lamb, seemingly all legs, weak and wabbling, but it was the centre of attraction for five children. The gentre appealed to them. Poor, homeless, fandshed and papa had gathered it tenderly in his arms and brought it home. Now hi zestire appealed to the ender the tenderly in his arms and brought it home. Now hi zestire appealed to the ender the tenderly in his arms and brought it home. Now hi zestire appealed by the family. Every more the baby lamb, to be fed, petted and grown plump and pretty, her legs strong more to skip and play, and she knows and loves each member of the family. Every main loves each member of the family. Every more to skip and play, and she knows and loves each and the children sive us many a pleasant thought, as well as an occu-tive ery runny inder. Mannie and the children sive us many a pleasant thought, as well as an occu-tive to pare them. There was much calling and crying for hobbiling over of joy near one of our wing hobbiling over of joy near one of our win bst!!!

Nannie has charmed the children, she car-Nannie has charmed the children, she car-ries such love with her that she teaches them not only to love her, but to love all creatures, and to love each other. And now, it is a happy corner,—bright faces, kind deeds, and gentle words—and Nannie did it. Corvallis, Benton Co., Oregon.

Petieboy as a Fisherman.

"What's that you say, young man? I prom-ised you I would tell you about Petieboy's experience as fisher-man? When did I say I would?"

"In your first letter, Uncle John." "I don't remember any such foolish promise."

promise." "Oh, you did, you did, you did." "Why is a second of the sec my throat and can't talk"— "Oh, yes, you can!" "Well, if you really want me to: "Once upon a time. Is that the right way to begin? Once upon a time Petieboy's father told him that some day he would get a boat and take him and Dollybugs all over the pond and they could fish just as much as they wanted to and wherever they wanted to.

"The pond, you know, was about a half a as they wanted to and wherever they wanted to. "The pond, you know, was about a half a mile away from the house where Petieboy and Dollybugs ived. It was a large pond fully a mile long and full of all sorts of fish. There was an island in it large enough to build a big house on and Petieboy, like all the other boys in the village, had great dreams of building a house on the island when he grew to be a man and living there all the time. Every boy in town, too, knew the depest spot in the whole pond. And every boy's deepest spot was in a different place. So you see what a very deep pond it must have been, my demst." "Petieboy at this time was fine years old and had fished in the brook and on the edges of the pond a great many times. So he knew and had fished in the brook and on the edges of the pond a great many times. So he knew and a great many things about the gentle art of angling that his own papa did not. His knowledge was not the sort you find in books but the kind you learn by experience, you see, and so it applied to that pond and the fish in it better than to any others. One of his experiences I think you would like to Mhén Petieboy was seven, his papa took from a boat. Petieboy was so little that he had to use a very light rod and not a very logs one. He wore rubber boots covering his legs way up to his hips and when he wanted to fish in a place farther out than his rod word reach, he waded right into the water and stood fishing with his little short legs so uch under water that he looked almost like a boy sitting on the water. He got way out deep, in this way, once, when suddenly, a his little foot slipped (the bottom was of his head just above water—but he landed his fish." This experience taught him among other thinces that rubber boots are just as code to

"This experience taught him among other things that rubber boots are just as good to keep water in as to keep water out! I presume there are other boys who know sume there are other boys who know the same. Oh, you nod, do you, boys? Well, I guess that is a fact pretty generally known among boys who are boys. "I think Dollybugs would have cried if this happened to her. Petieboy laughed, but there was a shade of grief in his laugh. He did not are because you know hove achieve and did not cry because you know boys can't cry, at least when there is any one around. And what's the use of making yourself wetter by crying when you are just as wet as you can "Well, now, about the boat ride. Petieboy had his rods and two kinds of bait, worms for perch and sait pork for pickerel. He had his long fishing pole with a shorter one for Pollybugs. Papa saw the boat man and hired the boat, a big flat bottomed affair that, if it didn't skim o'er the water blue like a feather, at least had the merit of being difficult to tip over. Dollybugs in the stern, Petieboy at the bow like a lookout to tell how to steer, and papa at the oars as the propelling power, and the expedition is off. When near the island the anchors are thrown overboard and we proceed to fish. Dollybugs gets the first fish and Screaimed bo londly that I think she must have frightened the little fish to deall. Petieboy caught the most fish and papa go the biggest fish. So honors were well divided, you see. "In about an hour the cookies (did I tell you we bronght a bag of cookies along? No? Well, we did, of course) the cookies were puiled out and we ate cookies. Then Dolly-bugs wafted some water. Petieboy leaned over the side of the boat while papa held his legs, until his dear little face touched the water and he drank from the pond but Pollybugs couldn't quite make up her mind to try this method. So papa rowed her ashore and she went home while Petieboy rage of discovery into the far distant parts of the pond. "They went all around the island, along the East shore and then up into the quiet head be any way?

pian Tubes of Mrs. Hollinger was removed without a surgical operation.

"I had an abscess in my side in the fallopian tube (the fallopian tube is a connection of the ovaries). I suffered untold misery and was so weak I could scarcely get around. The sharp burning pains low down in my side were terrible. My physi-cian said there was no help for me unless I would go to the hospital and be operated on. I thought before that I would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which, fortunately, I did, and it has made me a stout, healthy woman. My advice to all women who suffer with any kind of female trouble is to commence taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once." — MRS. INA S. HOLLINGER, Stilvideo, Ohio.-$5000 forfeit if original of bees lefter proving sourced. the fallopian tube (the fallopian at once." — MRS. IRA S. HOLLINGER, Stilvideo, Ohio.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proing genulneness cannot be produced. It would seem by this state-ment that women would save time and much sickness if they would get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and also write to Mrs. Pinkham and also write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for special ad-vice. It is free and always helps. No other person can give such helpful advice as Mrs. Pinkham to women who are sick.

"So[°] papa pushed the boat in the direction of the ripples the fish made, very slowly and quietly. The sun was partly obscured by an passing cloud as Petieboy stood up and cast his line. The fish sprung at the bait and dragged it under. Petieboy let him have it just long enough and then-splash-and Petie-boy pulled in a big pickerel over a foot long. Papa gave a shout of triumph to see the small boy catch so skillfully the big fish. But Petieboy was very quiet, although he looked very proud and at the same time tried to make papa feel that that was nothing for him to do! In a few minutes Petieboy go another one almost as large and then the sport was over. But it was a very proud little Petieboy that exhibited his catch to everybody on the way home and the sweet Petieboy smile would break ont in spite of him every time he showed his fish. "The next morning the family breakfast was fish which Petieboy had caught. But this was no the first time that Petieboy's luck as a fisherman had supplied the family table. Papa said he was quite a little helper. And do you think this didn't make Petieboy happ?".

Little Bob White.

In spite of the tall, sweet grass and broad, blue sky, little Bob White was unhappy. The whistle of a bluebird in Farmer Gray's orchard had filled him with a great longing to be at play among the white and pink blos-soms that hid the peach-trees from view. Little Bob went to his mama with his long-ines.

some that hid the peace-trees from they. Little Bob went to his mama with his long-ings. "O momsey! mayn't I go over in Farmer Gray's orchard for a little while? It's so pretty over there!" The widow White ruffled her- brown feathers in alarm. "No, Isobbie, your poor papa lost his life near that very orchard, and I couldn't think of letting you go over there alone!" Little Bob zuked all of the sunny morning, and then perched on the rail fence that divided the east meadow from the woods lot, and looked across at the orchard with long-ing eyes. The bluebird's whistle came to him louder and clearer than before. Then he began to ask himself questions. "If the bluebird can sing in those blos-soms all day and come to no harm, why may I not hide safely for a little while among them?" And he jumped down in the tall grass and scuttled away from home as fast as he could. as he could. a tiny brook he had to test

"O Monseey!" he cried joyfully. Too happy to wold, the wee brown mother led him home, and with many a loving chirp cuddled him under her wing for the night. But little Bob White had learned a lesson.— Hilton R. Greer in The Sunday School Times.

Self-Control.

Most of the great men of literature have left certain sentences that are condensed expres-sions of great truths, and appeal to men gen-eration after generation because they are found to have a wide application to human affairs.

ing the same motion with unvarying mo

ing the same motor, notony. These things are now so well known they are commonplace. In Shakespeare's time they were mysterles. It is strange that he should be able to hit hy intuition on truths that were not recognized until long after his death of course if the mind alone determines whether anything is good or bad, a man with a mind sufficiently trained would be able to endure almost anything and with entire com-posure. He would recognize the fact that most things that we worry about are not really worth worry. And he might possibly get up to the level where he would look on both sides of apparent disaster and turn it into a benefit.

both sides of apparent disaster and turn it into a benefit. But, anyway, self-control is the most val-uable of all achievements. The man that has himself well in hand is practically certain to make his way. If he can win that he can-win almost anything else. It is by thinking, that a privation doesn't amount to anything in comparison with the end he has in view that he finally gets to that end. It is by schooling himself to think that whatever would carry him out of the course he has chosen is not good enough to attract him that he makes himself succeed.-N. Y. Journal.

How Some of Our Readers Can Make Money.

Having read of the success of some of your readers selling Dish-washers, I have tried the work with wonderful success. I have not made less than $9.00 any day for the last six months. The Mound City Dish-washer gives one atisfaction and every family wants one. A lady can wash and dry the dishes without removing her gloves and can do the work in two minutes. I got my sample ma-chine from the Mound City Dish-Washer Co., of St. Louis, Mo. I used it to take or-ders and sold 12 Dish-washers the first day. The Mound City Dish-Washer Co. will start you. Write them for particulars. Jadies can do as well as men. John F. M.

Spiritualism.

J FRANK BAXTER.

iddress Delivered before the Mass Meeting held under the Auspices of the N.S. A. in Paine Hall, on Tuesday, April 28, 1903.

Opposition and attacks had killed Spirit-valism out long ago. Strife and blows among and by its acceptants had slain it long since and the unscrupulous tricksters who have assumed to espouse its Cause and have donned its mantle to work their nefar-ions business had sunk it into oblivion years agone, were it bot that its inherent power is truth, and its basic work a masonry of solid facta. solid facts. Spiritualism has had many a set back, and rough seas and abreast beating gales. It burst upon as fifty years ago like a flood and seemed as likely to sweep all in its way. Its tide ever has been strong, though fearfully offset; and the current has been ever onward to purpose and position, fearful as the wayes <text><text><text><text><text><text> The C. E. Watkins Medical Co. FIRST PRIVATE SANITARIUM Will be opened April 15th.

All who desire to become patients, shon d write at once, and engage rooms. We shall treat all chi only cases. But, though we treat all chronic d seases success fally. Dr. Watkins still diagnose, and treats diseases by mail. Sond leading symptoms. Terms for treatment will be made known on application to and the Knights of Labor and other industrial unions. And on such, or similar basis, as they are, should the Spiritualists ask for and gain their charter, and then no Spiritualist could feel himself deprived conscientiously from membership in the organization. Were it so, the body politic of Spiritualists were now, as they should be, in most effective associate banding. But the times cry out, surely, for unitary movement and harmonious action, and our own condition require them, and that, too, whether legal organization obtains or not And Spiritualism itself, for "the best good of our Cause progressive," is earnestly and be-seechingly calling to every Spiritualist for conscientions duty. Spiritualism is demanding from each indi-vidual Spiritualist a carrel consideration of the practical bearings of its teachings.

Nervous Diseases and Stomach Troubles Arc Our Specialties,

E. T. GOVE, Gen. Mgr., 66 Highland Avenue, Newtonville, Mass. .

vidual Spiritualist a careful consideration of the practical bearings of its teachings. It is demanding a scrupulous discrimina-tion between what it absolutely teaches, and what any unprincipled, lawless, and thought-less onces may assert that it teaches. It demands the establishment of naturally revealed facts, the exact truth spoken re-garding the facts, and a sacred devotion to true principle. It demands a true manhood or woman, as case may be, on the part of each Spiritual-ist, and, I opine, pre-eminently so if a medium. mediam.

It demands a strict accountability from each for all his deeds done, words spoken, and, possibly, for his thoughts entertained, since an equal responsibility naturally obtains It demands a clean platform; not only ex-emplified in its teachings but in the lives and characters of its teachers, and this, too, whether free-will, inspirational, or even trance instruments, i. e., whether man or spirit is entertained. It demands an intellectual presentation from our rostrum. Alas! that the platform has so degenerated in this respect; not that scholarly and able loctures and mediums has so degenerated in this respect; not that scholarly and able lecturers and mediums are not plentful and available, but that the uncoulds, and illiterate, especially if anywise sensational in their mediumship and man-ners, "calling out the crowd," many a minn-agement seems heedless, other than that the dimes at the door count up dollars.

It demands a just and sure protection of mediumship, an unqualified denunciation and renunciation of all known charlatanry, mountebankism and fraud perpetrated in its

Still With Us.

MAY 9, 1908.

Still With Us. Having been charged with saying that, so far as Spiritualism is concerned, he has run into a "brick wall," Prof. Crookes comes for-ward with denial. We are glad of that. Not a man in the formas but would have felt clagrin had it been proven that all those wonder-tales he told us in the past with regard to Florence Cook and Katle King were merely fabrica-tions put forth on the public for pur-preses of sensation. It is pleasant to know that he is with us still. Spiritualists have reason to be proud when men of his calibre come , under their banner; and it is small wonder that considerable has been done by way o boasting. Men of brain, men of scholarship, men of integrity, every cause whetomes them with joy and is jealous of the shadow of their turning. When they way to boasting. Men of brain, men of scholarship, men of integrity, every cause whetomes them with joy and is jealous of the shadow of their turning. When they way is boasting. Men of brain, men of scholarship, men of integrity, every reason whetomes them with pleased interest to that timid worker in the Pineyard, Savage, as he systen his still, small voice, "And a very re-spectable woman, a connection by marriage with my esteemed great aunt, a person of wiself like a lackey—honor bright. I give the facts as they were told to me. Judge for yourself. I aru not a Spiritualist, remem-ber twish you good afternoon-and better taste." Thank you, brother; we read between the lines, It comforts us to know that a re-taste." Thank you, brother; we read between the lines, It comforts us to know that a re-spectable woman is of the true believers. Whether or not her mental capacity keeps pace with her repute, we will not presume to question, as that would be bad form. And now, having acknowledged our weak-ness for preferring brainy men who have hewn their way to fame and lucky ladies who have escaped calumy, as comrades on our march of investigation, is it not high time that Spiritualists stood forth and said to all the world. "I believe in Spiritualism, because to me, so far as I have gone with it, it scems true"? In our endless quest for backing let us pause a moment and consider. it scems true"? In our endless quest for backing let us pause a moment and consider. If Spiritualism is true, it will live on, though all the world betrays it; if false, the sconer it dies the better. Consequently, if the brave Sir William had really changed his mind with regard to the cause of psychie phenomena, so called, what of it? That would not have changed the fact-if the fact exists—that after death we live—and are much as we are at present, now and then akin to the archangels bott generally con-temptible. Keep off the anxious seat! Meantime, O ye of the faint heart, own up that you love Spiritualism for its own dear sake, regardless of what other people think of it. Mary E. Blanchard. Milltown, Maine.

Milltown, Maine.

The Melody of Life BT SUBLE C. CLARE.

This little volume of valuable lessons and practical suggestions in spiritual truth, is a collection of class lectures given at the 0, set Camp during the seascn of 1902, and published by request. Cloth, for sale by BANNER OF LIGHT PUBLISHING CO

SCIENTIFIC BASIS OF SPIRITUALISM.

SCIENTIFIC BASIS OF SPIRITUALISM. By KFES SARGENT, anthor of "Financheite, er the De-spart of Science," "The Froot Palpable of Immeriality," elc. This is a large lime of STPpages, with an appendix of the state of the subject of the specific of the state relate. The subject takes the ground that lines name clears is concerned with a knowledge of real plenesses, be state. The subject takes the ground that lines and science is concerned with a knowledge of real plenesses, is concerned with a knowledge of real plenesses, be stated by an another the state of the state of the state science is concerned with a single science of the state science is a state of the state of the state of the state science is a state of the state of the state of the state science is the state of the state of the state of the state science is a state of the state of the state of the state science is a state of the state of the state of the state science is a state of the state of the state of the state science is a state of the state of the state of the state science is a state of the state of the state of the state science is a state of the state of the state of the science of the state of the state of the state of the science of the state of the state of the state of the science of the state of the state of the state of the science of the state of the state of the state of the science of the state of the state of the state of the science of the state of the science of the state science of the state of the science of the science of the state of the science of

WHAT ALL THE WORLD'S A-SEEKING Twenty-first Thousand, Price $1.85.

IN TURE WITH THE INFINITE

THE GREATEST THING EVER KNOWN Fifteenth Thousand, Price

rold, pith gilt top.

d. Price $1.35. Thirty-first Thousa The al ove books are beautifully m raised cloth, stamped urshir

The " Life" Beeklets

"They went all around the island, along the East shore and then up into the quiet head waters in and out among the weedy chan-nels and the island thickets. "There, papa. 'See that one break. I'll het he's a lounder,' whispered Petleboy, 'Just row over there. I'll try for him.'

grass and scuttled away from home as fast as he could. Coming to a tiny brook he had to test his winzs for the first time when his mama was not by to watch him. He fluttered across to the other bank in safety, and at last he crept noiselessly through a crack in an old stone wall, and found himself in the cool shadows of Farmer Gray's orchard. Once there, he flew softly up into the dense branches of a peach-tree. How sweet the peach-blooms were! And how bright the sunshine! A mocking-bird sent up a load note from a silver-leaved poplar in Farmer Gray's back yard. Then two noisy jays quarreled over a fat cater-pillar, and a flock of pigeons began a great cooing and fluttered about their roomy house on the root of the barn. All this was so in-teresting to little Bob that he forgot about the swiftness of time. But when the hired girl came out with a pan of wet meal for the young chickens he looked around him with some alarm. The sun was fast sinking, and the shadows of twilight were deepening about him. Hopping down from his perch, he crept through the wall again, and was soon on his way homeward. When he came to the brook it was almost dark, and the deeper shadows in the woods beyond frightened him. He must either spend the night by the brook or yo through the black woods in order to. reach home. With his wee heart thumping with fright he raced through the dark under-brush at his best speed. Passing beneath an oak, a shrill voice stopped him. "Who-who are you?" it asked. Little Bob crouched down at the foot of the tree and looked up in horror at a pair of fley yees. "Who-who are you?" it asked.

"Who-who

"Who-who-who are you?" "Who-who-who are you?" "It's me, Bob White! Little Bob!" His reply was followed by a peal of laughter so shrill and uncanny that he gave himself up for lost. But just when the last hope failed him a clear call came over the dew-wet crasses "Bob White! Bob-Bob White!"

The next time there was an anxious note in it. It was his mama's voice, and he an-swered as loudly as he could, and set out in the direction of the call.

On the rail fence he found a patient little figure waiting for him.

cred name.

It demands the establishment of training-rooms for the children, of enquiry-rooms for the young and mentally-growing, of seance-rooms for the study of phenomena and the communication with spirits, of Lyceum rooms for friendly disputation and debates, of halls or houses its own for lectures and illustrations, and of well-sustained benevo-lent institutions for its needy ones. It demands not only individual effort, but co-operative action, from a harmonious brotherhood and isistérbood, that i shall not alone attract the attention of a part, but command the admiration and respect which are justly due from all.

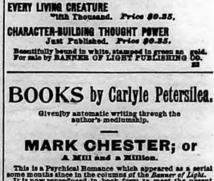

Numerous are the demands of Spiritualism, but I have selected these ten, as, it seems to me, they especially press decidedly forward for our consideration and enactment amid the present prevailing conditions.

With complete organization, doubtless, all of them can easiest and best be met. Yes, through the N. S. A., made what it should be, by such support which Spiritaalists, if they will, can easily render and maintain, without doubt all these, and any other need-ful demands could be sustained fully.

So I commend to you, and to the Spirit-ualists of the land, the N. S. A. as worthy of your utmost support by word, work, vote and money.

money. Now, Tet ms find our needful places, if we have not already, and go to work. Needful, I say, not necessarily the place in the great field of action where we would best like to be, but where we are most needed. Let us look for the place carefully, think carefully as we look, then resolve thoughtfully, and, may I say, solemnly, for then I feel all will act manfully and nobly and in such a way as to accrue to the honor of Spiritualists the triumph of Spiritualism, and to the happi-ness of humanity.

Nature never did betray The beart that loved her; 'tis her privilege Through all the years of this our life, to lead, From joy to joy. -Wordsworth.

This is a Psychical Homance which appeared as a serial ome months lines in the columns of the Barner of Lipht. It is now reproduced in book form to meet the urgent ismands for fi in convenient shape for circulation. In paper covers 40 cm. In cloth covers 60 cm.

THE DISCOVERED COUNTRY.

A narrative of the personal experiences in spirit-life of the author's father, who had been a natural philosopher and a materialist. Clock BLoo.

MARY ANNE CAREW.

Experiences of the author's mother in spirit-life. In paper covers 40 cts. In cloth covers 60 cts.

PHILIP CARLISLIE.

A deep philosophical romance by the band of rul ies, the subject of the tile b iss a scientific young philosopher who is a medium; his chief opponents being a clergyman and a miterialist. Cicth 61.25.

OCEANIDES.

A scientific novel based on the philosophy of life, as seen on the spirit side. Paner Se can For sale by BANNER OF LIGHT PUBLISHING CO.