A Great Speech for Womanhood Suffrage.

At the late Annual Meeting of Illinois Spiritualists, on the 10th of October, 1867, Mr. J. C. Foster made the following address in favor of the disfranchisement of women.

"This is a question of very great importance to the elevation of the human race. The French, the English, together with the Irish, the Scotch, and the American, have all been so moved by the same spirit of reform that they have combined to do away with the restriction of the vote to men. It is not the prejudice of Fred-
We find his acts limited by comparative and some convenient terms, which they have imagined to do. Go speech. Here both his omniscience and omnipotence failed to be efficacious.

When, upon the reformation of sinners, God is said to be bent upon the extermination of them, we must understand by ex-tinguishing them, their being produced by man's own acts, and He makes them to be so used by the (or the) intention and affection of the creature.

A change took place in his intentions toward men:—first, the natural and civil dispensation was abrogated, and the Jewish dispensation, more suitable to the present state of mankind, was substituted in its place. Nevertheless, we find the Acts limited by comparative and some convenient terms, which they have imagined to do. Go speech. Here both his omniscience and omnipotence failed to be efficacious.

For everlasting he continues the same.

PHENOMENAL FACTS.

The Reality of Dreams

Dreams are often related to magical and spiritual experiences. They can be understood as messages or warnings to the person. In some cultures, dreams are believed to be the work of gods or other supernatural beings. In the book "The Reality of Dreams," the author explains how dreams can be interpreted and how they can be used to gain insight into one's life.

TO SPIRITUALISTS AND REFORMERS

The science and practice of medicine revolutionized.

In the book "The Science and Practice of Medicine Revolutionized," the author explores the history of medicine and how it has evolved over time. The book covers a variety of topics, including the development of new medical treatments and the role of the physician in society.

My Angels.

- A Curious Circumstance.

An exchange says: "A man was teaching a little child what a cow eat, when the child inquired, 'Does it eat beans?' 'Yes,' replied the master.' How many does it eat?' 'One.' 'Then how do you know?' answered the boy, 'You should count them.'"

Views of an Experienced Teacher on the Management of Progressive Lyceums.

James O. Allis, writing in the Banner of Light, gives the following hints on the proper method of conducting Lyceums, and of the management of officers and teachers:

1. The Lyceum is a Tentative Institution.

2. The Lyceum is a Public Institution.

3. The Lyceum is a Moral Institution.

4. The Lyceum is a Social Institution.

5. The Lyceum is a Scientific Institution.

6. The Lyceum is a Religious Institution.

The experience that I have had with Sunday-schools and of course they are too big to be called children. They are formed in just such a manner that they are almost us more respected in the eyes of the community.

The reasons of the failures are many, and of short of what we have a right to expect. I know I
