TWELVE GOOD REASONS TO BUY THIS HOROSCOPE

1 This horoscope is about you—your life. That is something to take seriously. The Astral Portrait by Para Research provides an in-depth psychological approach to astrology. Not light reading. It won't provide easy answers to your problems. But it will serve as a guide to a better life.

2 It's the only horoscope to make a 300 word comparison of your Sun and Moon signs: the relationship between your conscious drives and your unconscious feelings.

3 Other horoscopes often omit the ascendent because it requires the exact time of birth. It tells a lot about how you approach life. It is an important part of your Astral Portrait because it includes the position of your first house and the interpretation and placement of the ruling planet.

4 It's the only horoscope to give you a house-by-house analysis. Your outlook on life. Sex. Friends. Relatives. Responsibilities. Attitudes. How to communicate. How you work.

5 It's the only horoscope with 300 words or more on each planetary aspect. Not just favorable or unfavorable ones, but each and every conjunction, sextile, square, trine, inconjunct and opposition. These aspects are character traits determined by the angular relationship between planets at your birth.

6 It's bigger and better than ever. 15,000 words in over 35 pages. Besides the above you get lists of each planet in its sign, each aspect, famous people with the same Sun sign as yourself. Also explanatory text on how to read and understand your horoscope.

7 You get precise calculations that only a computer can provide without error. From exact time, date and place of birth our IBM 370-155 sorts out 24,000,000 bits of astrological information objectively, and without bias.

8 No waiting. No searching for good astrologers. No appointments to make. Processing begins the day we receive your order. It is personally prepared and checked for accuracy. Within ten days it is mailed to you first class.

9 It's not like the simple sun-sign astrology found in newspapers. It's more complex. It's personal. It's one-of-a-kind. As no two people are alike, no two Astral Portraits are alike.

10 All this is yours for only $10. A better value than ever before. New improved, expanded text. Despite increasing production costs it's still the same low price.

11 It's America's foremost computer horoscope. Written by the best professional astrologers. Programmed by expert technicians. Developed by Para Research, the fastest growing company in computer astrology. Recommended and sold by the nation's major astrological associations.

12 Your Astral Portrait comes with a money back guarantee. If not satisfied, just return the horoscope for a full refund.

Who is Bigfoot? Or, better yet, what is Bigfoot? A good many legends have been built up around this strange ape-like creature that has been eluding many researchers, photographers and the curious alike.

Most American sightings have been in the Northwest, although some have been reported throughout the nation.

Besides being connected to the missing link, Bigfoot has been associated with UFOs as well. It seems that UFO researchers have described some UFOnauts as resembling "hairy apes". Others maintain that these ape-like creatures have been left here as experiments, such as the animals that were used by the Russians during their first Space probe.

Whatever it is, Bigfoot has created as many followers as the UFO enigma. In this issue, I've decided to present the case for Bigfoot.

And speaking of UFOs, NASA engineer Josef Blumrich gives a good argument for the possibility that intelligent alien life or UFOnauts, look very much like we do here on Earth. The article has been reproduced with the author's permission from his best selling book "The Spaceships of Ezekiel", a Bantam book.

Prof. Blumrich, using his engineering knowledge, was able to build a working model of the mysterious machine which is mentioned in the Old Testament. (See issue no. 10).

Another book that has been very well received is Brad Steiger's, "Mysteries of Time and Space", which I feel is one of the author's best. This book rates a spot on the book shelf of all readers who are fascinated by the mysteries of life and the universe. A paperback edition is now available at your local bookstore. Get one before theyre sold out.

I was well aware of the interest in UFOs as our staff went about collecting material for UFO Special, but, to our surprise the response to that issue (January, 1976) was overwhelming.

We have been snowed in by mail, both pro and con, (mostly pro), so much so that we will most certainly prepare another UFO Special in the near future. Many UFO organizations have taken an interest in our publication and plan to contribute good, documented material. Watch for it; you'll be glad you did.

In this issue, Bryce Bond, presents one of his last interviews with the late Ivan T. Sanderson. I am sure that most if not all our readers are familiar with Ivan's many books which are so eagerly sought after. He was also the Founder of the Society for Investigating the Unexplained. Two of his last books were Invisible Residents and Investigating the Unexplained. Ivan's books will always occupy a special place in my library.

To my subscribers who have moved, please send us your new address as soon as possible. It becomes a problem for both of us if you move without letting us know, because the post office will only forward magazines to your new address for a limited time.

Dr. Joseph Murphy, D.D., Ph.D., LL.D., Shows You —

HOW TO PRAY AND GROW RICH!

Yes, Dear Friend:

We have been instructed, by Dr. Joseph Murphy, to give you the most exciting news you've ever heard—news of his amazing discovery of: how to pray and grow rich!

Yes, says Dr. Murphy, his revolutionary book is for those who want results, NOT in a year, NOT in a month— NOT in a week—BUT IMMEDIATELY!

In fact, Dr. Murphy goes on, "for those willing, simply to follow the easy instructions, my techniques will bring you immediate results!"

And best of all, there's no need to make any choices between any particular blessings you desire, for, as Dr. Murphy says, "you can be rich beyond limitation, and never have to choose again!"

You say this is too much for you to believe . . . that it's too good to be true? Well then, can you explain the astonishing things that happened after people used Dr. Murphy's prayer techniques?

Can you explain—

1. how numerous people make use of a certain formula for paying bills with marvelous results (p. 37)
2. how a poverty-stricken couple received $10,000 "out of the blue in response to their request (p. 25)
3. how a man was able to triple his income in three months with a certain 28-word prayer that takes only ten seconds to repeat (p. 98)
4. how a boy ten years of age constantly receives gifts of money wherever he goes (p. 7)
5. how L.T. used a one sentence prayer to rise from a job as an office boy to the owner of a 50 million dollar company (p. 178)

. . . or explain any one of the scores of wonderful things that happened to people who used Dr. Murphy's prayer techniques!

But you won't really be able to explain a single one of these mysterious "answered prayer"—you won't that is, until you read Dr. Murphy's thrilling new book: YOUR INFINITE POWER TO BE RICH . . .

Therein lies the answer not only to the cases you've just read but the answer—the golden key—to how the prayers of these people received results! And you will discover—to your utter astonishment and joy exactly why, as Dr. Murphy says:

"Your Request For Riches Can Easily Be Fulfilled When You Use These Prayers!"

The Bible says, "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." (John 10:10.)

"What this means," says Dr. Murphy, is that you are here to lead a full and happy life . . . All the spiritual, mental, and material riches of the universe are the gifts of the great Power . . . and this means that the treasure house of infinite riches is within you and all around you."

Based on this Biblical message, Dr. Murphy goes on to state that—"By learning the laws of mind (as described in this book), you can extract from that infinite storehouse . . . everything you need in order to live gloriously, joyously and abundantly."

"In plain and simple language this means that all of us have within our reach an infinite power to be rich—that the all-prevailing great Power actually wants us to be rich and live a happy, satisfying life—and that if we ask for what we want in a certain prescribed way—it will be granted IMMEDIATELY!"

Read These Case Histories Of Those Who Followed Dr. Murphy's Book . . . And Became Rich!

Here, in Dr. Murphy's own words (which you'll read on page 6), are the results of these prayer techniques—"All of the case histories presented in my book are of men and women who became rich by using the mental and spiritual laws described in it, and, to my personal knowledge, these people belong to all religious denominations. Moreover, they come from every income bracket and from every social level. All of these people have amassed great wealth!" For example:

• On page 24 you'll read about a woman who achieved amazing results almost immediately! She was out of work, with three children to support and bills piling up rapidly. No sooner did she affirm one single phrase given to her by Dr. Murphy, then a relative whom she had not even seen for fifteen years suddenly showed up and gave her $5,000 cash as well as other gifts!

• On page 39 you'll read about the salesman who came to Dr. Murphy and asked him "how can I make $50,000 a year? I am married and have four children and I barely make ends meet. My wife has to work in order for us to break even." After instructing him in the techniques to use, Dr. Murphy received a letter from the salesman reporting that his commissions and salary for the past year had exceeded $50,000!

• On page 36 you'll read the true story of a young boy who wanted to go to college, and his poor father who just didn't have enough money to send him. They came to Dr. Murphy with the problem and he gave them a beautiful and effective prayer to affirm each day. Soon, almost miraculously, the father won a large sum of money from a lucky lottery ticket—and his son is now at the university of his choice, happily studying to become an engineer!

As you can see, Dr. Murphy's Prayer technique works. And it will work just as well for you as it has for the ordinary, everyday, average people you've read about above . . . or every cent of your money back . . . at once!

"Yes," Dr. Murphy counsels, "you can ask for direction and guidance—and receive it."

And when you do, he says, you positively, definitely and absolutely will find the external riches of nature!"

"This book is designed to be a very practical one. It is intended for men and women whose pressing need is for money, and who are seeking to claim the riches life has in store for them. It is for those men and women who want immediate results and who are willing to put into application the simple, down-to-earth techniques outlined in detail in this book."—Dr. Murphy states.

How To Experience The Joy Of An Answered Prayer

Have you ever felt the thrilling response of an "answered prayer"? Those who have are lucky to experience such a wonderful blessing once in an entire lifetime! But now, Dr. Murphy can show you how to make this thrilling experience come true for you!

As soon as you receive your copy of this amazing book, turn right to page 166. There Dr. Murphy shows you "How to Experience The Joy Of The Answered Prayer!"

On page 25 is a perfect example of what this joy is like: It's the amazing true story of an elderly woman to whom Dr. Murphy had given a special prayer. Up until he did, she and her husband were receiving a very small monthly pension and could barely make ends meet. You'll see how she was soon able to exclaim in joy "it was a miracle," when, after affirming the prayer for two weeks—she was given $10,000 "out of the blue!"

Dr. Murphy's exciting new book cites cases like these by the dozen—offering proof after proof that he has truly discovered HOW TO PRAY AND GROW RICH! But you must see for yourself that this is absolutely true! You will believe it and know it will work for you once you actually experience the thrill of having your prayers turn into reality and come true! Order your no-risk copy now!

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

For over a quarter of a century Dr. Murphy has been teaching, writing, counseling, and lecturing to thousands of people all over the world on the scientific approach to prayer. His popular classes on the hidden meaning of the Bible and the laws of mind given frequently in Los Angeles are attended by eight-hundred to a thousand students at each class.

Dr. Murphy, D.D., Ph.D., LL.D., speaks each Sunday morning to overflow audiences that make up one of the largest non-denominational audiences in the world.

In 1948 Dr. Murphy started a daily radio program. Today he has a tremendous following, and his radio broadcasts are immensely popular, reaching thousands of people each day.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor,

I am enclosing an account of direct contact with a spirit artist of the last century, hoping you will find my unusual experience of interest to your readers.

For some years now, I have communicated with the spirit life through automatic writing. I have never however met up with a spirit who could produce a drawing. It was during the last week in May, 1975, that I made contact with such a spirit.

Richard Somers was brought to me via an uncle in the spirit who was killed in the 1914 war (William Richardson, aged 16). From time to time Will has been in contact with me and brought along many friends from the spirit, including my mother and father.

Richard has produced a drawing each day together with comments on the person and certain aspects of life in the spirit, which I have found most interesting. I have taken some photographs of the drawings but regret that the reproduction is not very good.

I would like to add that I can't draw myself, and have never had any inclination to do so. I have typed out the comments just as Richard and Will wrote them, only making the necessary punctuational corrections.

I trust you will believe that I sent this work to you in all sincerity and truth, and I would be interested to hear if any of your readers have had the same experience as myself.

Dear Sir,

I have read four books written by Tuesday Labsang Kamka. He was a Tibetian Lama and these books were his autobiographies. They were very beautiful writings.

I've been looking in bookstores for four others, "THE CAVE OF THE ANCIENTS," "LIVING WITH THE LAMA," "YOU FOREVER," and "WISDOM OF THE ANC—IENTS." I have not been able to find them. I was wondering if you would know where I could buy or send for them.

Dear Editor,

I wish to obtain some general information on the "Hollow World Theory." I am interested that there is the possibility that a subterranean civilization of inner earth may exist. Also there is no doubt that the mysterious flying saucers come from an advanced civilization in the hollow interior of the earth.

My main objective is to furnish enough solid proof to convince our governments or other reliable sources about this theory; maybe there's that possibility to get a grant, or sponsor, or expedition to the inner earth. In view, the nation whose explorers first find the entrance to this area will become the greatest nation in the world since the re-discovery of the Americas by Columbus.

In 1970, there was a published photograph taken by the U.S. Weather Satellite ESSA-7 over the North Pole. It clearly showed a dark, circular area in which was claimed to be free of ice and could be the entrance to the inner earth.

Is it quite possible to locate and obtain an enlarged photocopy or

NOW THERE'S A HOROSCOPE FOR THE TWO OF YOU

It takes more than love to make a relationship work. It takes understanding. And understanding comes from knowing. Do you really know the one you love?

By combining new astrology techniques with humanistic psychology, scientific analysis, and computer accuracy, Para Research has developed a new way of looking at a relationship.

Now there is a horoscope for the two of you. It's the Astral Composite, the world's first computerized composite horoscope. This 10,000-word report takes a look at your relationship by actually casting a horoscope of the relationship itself.

Until now astrologers have compared two people's horoscopes by superimposing one on the other. Such a comparison views the people as individuals who happen to be involved in a relationship. This is helpful to a point, but misleading and incomplete.

The Astral Composite is different from comparison horoscopes. As its name implies, it is a composite of the two natal charts. With this method a third chart is created, a chart of the relationship itself. When two people come together to form a relationship, something new emerges. They are still the same two people, of course, but together they are something else as well. Together they are the relationship. This is what the Astral Composite is all about.

This method of analyzing human relationships was developed about 30 years ago. Today most astrologers still adhere to the old comparison method. One astrologer in particular, Robert Hand, has further developed the composite technique for a new kind of horoscope. The result of his work is the first complete text on composite horoscopes in any language. It is now available to you as the Astral Composite from Para Research, America's leading producer of computer horoscopes.

What does the Astral Composite consist of?

1+1=3. An Astral Composite is three charts in one. First the computer calculates the natal charts of the two people involved. Next these two charts are combined to form a third chart, the chart of the relationship. This is followed by a reading of the chart, describing the potentialities of the relationship. All the factors of love, money, and friendship are taken into account. This helps point out the kind of relationship that works best for the two of you. You may be great together as lovers, but when it comes to a more lasting commitment, you may be heading for trouble. Better to be prepared than to fall into a situation unknowingly.

The Astral Composite not only points out the strengths and weaknesses in your relationship, it also offers astrological advice on how to improve the relationship. Even the most difficult planetary combinations in the composite chart can be turned into positive forces. With your Astral Composite you will be able to enrich your relationship to the fullest degree.

Specifically, this is what you get when you order your Astral Composite at the remarkable introductory price of only $10:

- Three charts: a natal chart of each person plus the composite.
- An introduction describing the meaning of each planet.
- Planets in the houses: divisions of the horoscope describing different areas of the relationship. The positions of the Sun and Moon show the main emphasis of the relationship.
- All major planetary aspects: these are important to understanding the dynamics of the relationship. Conjunctions, sextiles, squares, trines, oppositions are included, as well as aspects to the Ascendant.
- Accurate calculations: an IBM 370-158 computer is used to provide accuracy to the nearest minute of arc. (Our accuracy depends on the accuracy of your birth data. See coupon below.)
- Text by Robert Hand: Mr. Hand is a specialist in the field of astrology for human relationships. He is the first and only astrologer to write an extensive work on composite charts.
- Approximately 10,000 words and 25 pages in an easy-to-read beautifully-bound book format.
- Money-back guarantee: the Astral Composite is unconditionally guaranteed by Para Research. If unsatisfied, simply return the horoscope for a full refund.

We would like to emphasize that this is not just a love horoscope. It is a full-dimensional analysis of a relationship. There is no other horoscope in the world that can compare to the Astral Composite. It represents the most exciting development in astrology since the invention of the computer. It is truly unique.

You are invited to partake in what we feel will be a revealing experience for the two of you... and your relationship.

BOOKS FOR REVIEW

SEXUAL OCCULTISM, by John Mumford, Llewellyn Publications, St. Paul, Minnesota, $10.

The once hidden, and forbidden, practices of magick are here revealed with all the frankness of modern sex manuals. It traces the ancient practices of sex magick through the Egyptian, Greek and Hebrew forms where the sexual act is viewed as symbolic of the highest union, oneness with God, to the highest expression of Western sex magick in the Mass of the Holy Ghost, here reprinted in full from Israel Regardie's The Tree of Life.

Unique and informative, this book doesn't view sex merely as bedroom gymnastics; but ties it to spiritual illumination and communion. Lovemaking becomes a sacrament and lovers are shown how to discover the divinity in themselves and in each other.

SPEAK, SHINING STRANGER: AN OUTSTANDING COLLECTION OF PSYCHIC READINGS, by Ray Stanford, Association for the Understanding of Man, Austin, Texas, $8.95.

Many who have studied the Stanford readings believe they contain clairvoyant information of rare depth, cogency, accuracy, and inspirational value.

This 244-page volume deals with healing, prayer, dream interpretation, the question of hallucinogencic drugs, prayer, meditation, attitudes to be held in studying psychic information, and many others.

QUARTER CENTURY STUDIES OF UFOS IN FLORIDA, NORTH CAROLINA AND TENNESSEE, by George D. Fawcett, Pioneer Printing Company, Mount Airy, N.C., (Illustrated) $5.

The author, an internationally-known Mount Airy civilian UFO investigator and researcher for the past 31 years, has put in the pages of this very informative text many of his fascinating findings concerning unidentified flying objects in three states for over a quarter of a century.

The long look and serious study of the UFO enigma from 1944-1974 contains a review of the large UFO waves, especially of the past few years.

The book, an outstanding contribution to UFOlogy which is brimming with photographs, charts, diagrams and eyewitnesses' sketches, contains a listing of recommended reading, organizations, and statements by worldwide authorities. The foreward is by Mrs. Cora E. Lorenzen of the Aerial Phenomena Research Organization (APRO) of Tuscon, Arizona. The book may either be ordered from the publisher or direct from the author at Post Office Box 557, Maiden, North Carolina, 28650.

LET MY PEOPLE LIVE, BY Dagobert D. Runes, Philosophical Library, Inc., New York, N.Y. $5.

A thorough analysis of anit-Semitism, present and past, the distinguished philosopher-historian-author examines the fundamental causes of anit-Semitic attitude and activity, bringing into focus the literature and the respective movements that have created and ceaselessly renew antagonism towards the Jewish nation.

Dr. Runes is the author of over 30 books in the field of philosophy and social history. The late Albert Einstein said that his "...expressed opinions are closely akin to those I hold..." and he has been saluted by Albert Schweitzer with: "We both travel on the same path to bring to mankind a deeply ethical, deeply spiritual consciousness."

THE MAGIC CAULDRON: WITCHCRAFT FOR GOOD AND EVIL, by Margaret F. O'Connell, S.G.Phillips, Inc., New York, N.Y. (Illustrated) $8.95 .

Witchcraft has long been linked with evil. Even in languages other than English the words for "witch" suggest a connection with evil forces or the powers of darkness. In an attempt to discover why this is so, the author, an editor of the New York Times Book Review, probed behind the familiar tales and came upon archaeological discoveries and other often ignored sources that suggest that much of the good done by witches has been glossed over and forgotten.

A PROCESSIVE WORLD VIEW FOR PRAGMATIC CHRISTIANS, by Joseph T. Culliton, C.S.B., Philosphical Library, Inc. New York, N.Y. $12.50.

According to the Rev., James F. Carroll, Dean, Graduate School, Duquense University, "This book, is, to say the least, all that its editor claims for it. The astounding element about it is its compactness into a handy volume, all-embracing in content, clear in exposition, objective in view-point, and ear-marked by a correctnesss that is inescapable."

North American pragmatism developed as the end-product of a thought process which totally secularized certain trends of Christian thought. It shows, on the one hand, that most altruistic and pragmatic insights and values are not opposed to Christian thought, and on the other, that faith in a transcendent God is made more vital when it is enriched and supported by a natural faith in man and the universe.

The author, a Canadian who holds undergraduate and graduate degrees from various Canadian colleges as well as Fordham University, brings out, in brief: when NATURALISTIC, PRAGMATIC THOUGHT, BOTH ARE RE—VITALIZED AND ENRICHED.

RIDDLE OF THE FUTURE: A MODERN STUDY OF PRECOGNITION, by Andrew MacKenzie, Taplinger Publishing Company, New York, N.Y., $8.50.

Precognition is the extra-sensory perception of future events. And this book is an attempt to present the evidence, for precognition in this book ranges in scale from events in personal life such as fore-knowledge of injury to a child, or the death of a relative, to premonitions of national disaster such as the sinking of the Titanic and the Aberfan tragedy. These cases from an impressive body of evidence that paranormal precognition does occur and call into question the generally held theory of linear time and its strict divisions into past, present, and future.

SPIRITS AND SPIRIT WORLDS, BY Roy Stemman, Doubleday & Company, Garden City, N.Y. $7.95.

By means of elaborate tests and ingenious equipment, investigators have been trying ever since the Hydesville rappings to solve the question: Does the spirit die with our bodies as some believe, or does it live on and, in fact, communicate with the living?

Through stories and anecdotes that seem to provide evidence of contacts with the "beyond," Roy Stemman gives us an exciting but factual account of the evidence we have for and against communications from "the other side."

THE SEARCH FOR BIG FOOT: MONSTER, MYTH OR MAN BY Peter Byrne, Acropolis Books, Washington, D.C. (Illustrated) $8.95.

The search for Bigfoot is on, and leading the trackers searching for the mysterious giant primate of the Pacific Northwest is Peter Byrne, stalker of the Abominable Snowman (the Himalayan Yeti) and a former professional big game hunter in India and Nepal.

Bigfoot, that elusive creature that has left scores of footprints throughout the Northwest for decades, is the subject of Byrne's exciting book.

FEATHERED SERPENT AND SMOKING MIRROR: THE GODS AND CULTURES OF ANCIENT MEXICO, by C.A. Burland and Werner Forman, G.P. Putnam's Sons, New York, N.Y., (Illustrated) $12.95.

This is an engrossing account of the rise and fall of the empires of Mexico as seen through the fundamental dualism of their religion. A dark fatalism pervades the history of this ancient land. Over thousands of years, a succession of highly developed cultures emerged, their cities dominated by massive pyramids dedicated to blood-thirsty gods. Yet, for all their power and sophistication, the final Mexican empire was destroyed by a mere handful of gold-seeking Spanish invaders.

In telling this remarkable story, author and photographer have worked together to evoke the splendor and mystery of the Mexican people and their beliefs.

FAITH HEALING AND RELIGION, by G.M. Mes, Philosophical Library, New York, N.Y. $8.75

The author, a general practitioner and a surgeon, gives a sharply defined diagnosis of the phenomenon of "faith healing" and what it must entail. This then leads to an analysis of religion which he divides into three "modes," i.e., the religions that believe in a "God the Father," those that believe in a "God the King" and those that believe in an unknowable "Eternal Mystery" about the knowing of which the official churches have been built.

———

A ROADMAP OF TIME, by Brad Steiger, Prentice-Hall, Englewood Cliffs, N.J., $7.95.

This book fully documents how Maxwell and Wheeler discovered that wars and prosperity, "Golden Ages" and dictatorships—even styles of music and architecture—occur repeatedly at precise points in a 100-year weather cycle. Combined, their research culminated in a weather/economic forecasting service that made millions for its subscribers, enabling them to forecaste precisely when best to plan a picnic, plant crops, breed healthy livestock (or children)—and when to expect devasting storms, periods of inflation, and stock market collapse.

STRANGE AND UNKNOWN

BY LEE WALSH

Every now and then,something pops up in the news which tends to revive interest in our friend Big Foot, the American Yeti.

A strange looking "thing" resembling something between man and ape has been purchased by New Yorker Michael Miller from an unidentified animal act upstate New York (See Page 27). Miller paid $8,000 for Oliver, the name that the creature answers to.

Oliver has features which are found on no other animal in the ape family. He is hairy all over, stands erect and has pointed ears like Spock of TV Star Trek fame. His age is given as 7 years and his weight is 120 lbs.

Miller plans to put Oliver through various tests to determine whether he is an ape or a man-like creature. "I have promised to protect everyone involved," said the 34 year old Miller in explaining why he's so secretive about where Oliver came from.

Miller said that he doesn't think that Oliver is Big Foot but, if he is, his $8,000 will turn out to be a good investment.

UFO investigators have tried to link the mysterious Big Foot to the UFO enigma. In a series of sightings across the nation, it was found that in many cases, unusual creatures would appear in the same vicinity in which UFOs were making frequent landings.

Dick Bothwell writing in the NATIONAL OBSERVER Told about the mysterious "Skunk Ape" seen in the Everglades.

"There were five of us camped on top of this big shell mound—three in a large tent, two in a pup tent. About 2:30 A.M. one of the two heard a sound like an elephant walking on this shell mound. The vibrations woke him up.

He looked out of the tent flap and saw what appeared to be a big man, standing about eight feet away in the moonlight. He thought it was one of the party. He lay back down, then heard what sounded like a number of people all talking at once.

"So the two of them in the pup tent got up and woke us up—told what he'd seen. We looked around but saw nothing. But in the morning we found these huge tracks.

"Footprints just like a man's, three different sizes. The largest 17½ inches long, 11 inches across. I've got plaster casts of it..."

These quotes come from none other than H.C.Osbon of Miami who is president of the Peninsular Archaeological Society and board member of the Miami Museum of Science. Since 1971 Mr. Osbon and a handful of society members have made various trips down to this remote part of the Everglades known as Big Cypress Swamp.

So far no photographs of the elusive beast have been taken but a collection of fecal matter and eye-witness observations have convinced Osbon that Big Cypress is the home of this creature.

Osbon's sighting was followed quickly by residents of the King's Manor trailer park,about 15 miles west of Ft. Lauderdale along the North River Canal. They informed police that a large creature "having a monkey's face,long arms, small eyes and gray splotches all over" had frightened two youths.

Apparently stories of this "monster" have been told for hundreds of years. The lore of the local Indian tribes tell of a "Skunk Ape" nicknamed because he is said to emit a powerful odor.

Amid all the "Skunk Ape" talk Mr. Osbon has revealed that there are strange structures, perhaps thousands of years old, which have been found in the Everglades. He believes that they may have actually originated as part of the continent of Atlantis.

"There are at least two pyramids and several walls in there," says Osbon. "The one pyramid is about 12 feet high and for the life of you, you can't tell where the rocks were fitted together. It has a tremendous amount of hieroglyphic writing and symbols on it.The wall is 4½ miles northeast of the pyramid and runs six or seven miles. It's made of stone slabs piled atop one another and stands six to eight feet high in places. The second pyramid is in water—12 to 14 feet sticking up out of the swamp."

Speculation is that these pyramids are artifacts

GOOD NEWS FOR THOSE WHO BELIEVE!

HERE ARE OVER 100 READY-TO-USE MYSTIC CHANTS FOR MONEY, POWER AND LOVE!

Simply choose anything you desire, and in a moment you'll find the special Chant for attracting riches... protecting yourself against sickness... securing a new car, beautiful home, your own business... winning happiness and love... reading the thoughts of others ... and much more! For example:

These words could bring you a vast fortune . . more riches than you ever dreamed of:

"D—— J—— W— N- T—— I- M- L—."

It happened to a person in desperate need of cash, who was told there were "powerful forces" working against him. Then he spoke the above Mystic Chant for attracting riches. Within the hour, he was awarded $150,000!

By using the same Chant, you too may attract a fortune, a new car, a house in the country, stylish clothes. You simply take any amount you can believe in, from $10,000 to a million dollars, and say this Mystic Chant!

What are the Mystic words of this Chant? We cannot reveal them in this advertisement but you will clearly find them on page 53 of MIND COSMOLOGY, a remarkable guide with every type of Mystic Chant you'll ever need!

How do they bring riches, luxury, comfort, world travel to your doorstep? How do they solve your money problems? To see for yourself, just fill out and mail the No Risk Coupon.

Your Questions About Mystic Chants Answered

Q. Can I say these Mystic Chants just once, or do they have to be repeated over and over?

A. Many of these Chants can be said once. Others are designed to be repeated a few times as this heightens their effectiveness. However, they are short and it would take you only a few minutes to repeat them.

Q. Must these Chants be memorized?

A. No. All you have to do is read them out. If you don't want to carry the book around, simply copy a few Chants on a card and put it in your pocket.

Q. Are these Chants hard to read?

A. Of course not. They are clearly printed, easy-to-read and do not contain words that are difficult to pronounce.

Q. Are these Chants Black Magic or White Magic?

A. Without a doubt, White Magic. In one case, an evil woman stole Laura M.'s husband using Black Magic. Laura used this chant on page 159: "Y- k— I l— y—." Within a few days her husband pleaded with her to take him back.

Q. If these Mystic Chants are so powerful, why doesn't the author use them himself to become a millionaire?

A. The author has done just that. By saying these Chants, Norvell has become wealthy and a celebrity. Now he devotes his life to making others rich and happy.

Q. Are these Chants dangerous?

A. About as dangerous as combing your hair. You see, they can be used only for good, sincere purposes. If used for an evil purpose, they will have no effect.

Q. Time is running out for me. Can these Mystic Chants find me a husband?

A. On page 24 you'll find the Chant Georgia R. used to attract a rich partner in a law firm. What's more, you can attract a man with the precise character you admire.

Q. I've only an eighth grade education. Will Mystic Chants work for me?

A. Certainly. You need no special education or experience. Anyone can use them.

Q. When is it best to use Mystic Chants?

A. As soon as possible. Mail the No-Risk Coupon. We'll send you your book so you can start us ng Mystic Chants right away!

We'll Rush You A Copy Of This Amazing Book For Thirty Days Examination, At OUR Risk.

When you receive it, quickly open to the Mystic Chant the man used to attract $150,000. You'll find it with all the words filled in! Or perhaps you desire a healthy, strong body with unlimited energy? See the Chant on page 64 for protecting yourself against germs and most forms of sickness.

Are you one of the lonely? If peace of mind, happiness, or love fulfillment is what you want, repeat the Chant on page 33 exactly three times just before the moon rises.

What's more, you'll find another Mystic Chant on page 100 to be used only by those who believe! This Chant may send your soul into the cosmos through amazing astral projection, backwards into history, or forward into the uncharted areas of the future!

Scores of People, Just Like Yourself, Have Relied on Mystic Chants to Get What They Want From Life.

FINDS ENCHANTED LOVE. Take the case of Nora H. who was a complete failure in love and marriage. Desperate, she whispered the Chant: "I n– p—— u—— l—."

Within a short span, she met and happily married a young and handsome attorney. See page 47 of this amazing guide!

CHANTS UNITE HIS FAMILY. After years of misery, Lester M's wife left him and took their infant son. Lester turned to the Chant on page 28: "I n– b—— t– m— o- p— h— p——." In a few days his wife and son returned, and swore that they would live a different life!

CHANTS LESSEN SICKNESS. Dora T. was nearly sixty and the doctors told her she had an incurable ailment. She used two Mystic Chants to overcome age and sickness. In less than a month, her symptoms decreased. See pages 31-33.

CHANTS BRING SUCCESS. A young girl slaved as a lowly clerk. To get out of this rut, she said: "I a o– w— c—— p—— a– c– s— a– p——" ten times a day. Lo and behold, she was given a position designing new fashions, making more money than she had ever dreamed possible! Would you like an exciting well-pay ng job? Use the complete set of Chants on page 51.

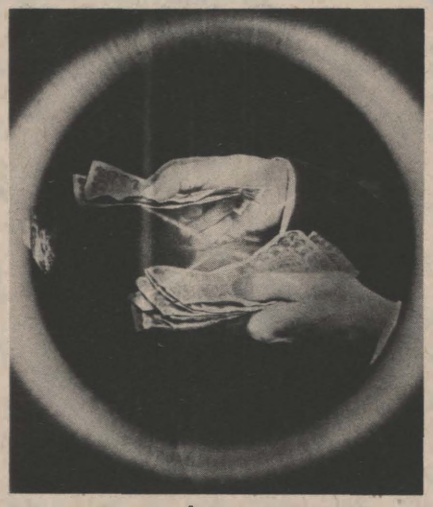
CHANTS FOR PAINS. A woman of 45 (see page 82) suffered from pains each month that were so severe she had to go to bed. A friend told her about this Mystic Chant: "I n– i—— m- m— a– b— c— w— t– p—— p—— o- r—— g— h——" and she showed immediate improvement. Take a few minutes and say the Chant on page 80.

CHANTS FOR HIDDEN TREASURE. An elderly woman had a small home on a plot of ground where she lived after her husband died. Once the insurance money was spent, she had no source of income and used a Mystic Chant to get money. That night, the figure of her husband appeared to her and told her to dig at a certain spot. She found $15,000! You too can use the Chant on page 126.

CHANTS FOR OPERATIONS. A woman needed $1,000 to help her mother get an operation. She kept repeating the Mystic Chant: "I w— t– s– o- o– t—— d—— s- I c– p– t– s——." The next morning a famous surgeon assured her that he would operate for no charge. See on page 144 how the operation was performed!

CHANTS FOR LUCK. One man playing dice at Las Vegas used a special Mystic Chant.

The first roll came up 11. He tried again, and they came up 11 again. The third roll was also successful, and as the man had let his dollar remain on the 11, his small investment brought him a small fortune! See how he did it on page 140.



Try this Chant for Riches (see page 53) without risking a penny. See details below.

These True Histories Describe Only a Small Fraction of The Mystic Chants. In Addition, There Are Chants for:

Finding lost relatives . . . Making a fortune in the stock market . . . Treating migraine headaches . . . Becoming a famous writer . . . Beauty . . . Getting a beautiful wife . . . Projecting your astral self to distant places . . . Achieving success in your own business . . . or anything else!

However, you need the entire word–the entire sentence–the entire Mystic Chant to accomplish your dreams!

That's why we are making available to you this wonderful book called Mind Cosmology, that gives you every Chant, for a 30-day No-Risk Examination.

When you receive the book, start saying the Mystic Chant for what you want in life–be it love, riches, happiness, whatever!

IS SOME ALIEN FORCE TAMPERING WITH THE WEATHER?

BY CURT SUTHERLY

"...Geoffrey stood at the parapet in his gold robe and thought of rain.

"All day the island had slumbered in the sun. It was warm, and above it the warmed air rose, sucking in winds off the western ocean, disturbed winds heavy with wetness, only just holding their moisture over the smooth, tepid sea. And now meeting the land, already cool with night, cooler now, cooler still and the hills reforming the clouds, jostling them together, piling them up, squeezing them till the released rain hisses into the hills' sere grasses. Now trees drip, leaves glisten in faint light, forgotten gullies tinkle. Rain, swathed, drumming...

"...The last rain had gone, and starlight glistened in every puddle and drip. It was very cold already. He thought of frost..."

Excerpt from The Weathermonger by Peter Dickinson (copyright 1968-69 by Peter Dickinson). Published by DAW Books in arrangement with Little Brown & Co., Boston, Mass.

In 1955 the late Morris K. Jessup completed and had released in hard-cover form his now infamous book, The Case For The UFO (Citadel Press, New York). One area which Jessup explored in some detail was the topic of bizarre weather. This included such occurrences as freak storms, columns of water falling from the skies (a phenomenon other than rain), and cloud-like formations which fit no natural meteorological pattern then (or presently) known.

Jessup's basic premise was that mysterious visitors from the stars were causing these various incidents, and he went to some length to back up his belief with vivid examples. Let's examine this more closely...

The person on the street is, as Jessup correctly observed, overly familiar with normal meteorological phenomena. Enough so to be immediately alarmed and astonished if something out of the ordinary appears on the horizon.

On the afternoon of April 26, 1812 in the vicinity of Laigle, Normandy, something odd apparently did present itself. Jessup noted that a "fiery globe of a very brilliant splendor" sped through the air, followed closely by "a violent explosion" which lasted several seconds and was "heard for thirty leagues (about 90 miles) in all directions."

On the heels of this came several "reports like those of cannons," in turn followed by "discharge...resembling musket fire" and a "dreadful rumbling" similar to someone beating a drum. On a whole, this sounds quite like a meteor entering the Earth's atmosphere. But consider what occurred next...

Observers noticed "a small cloud of rectangular form" hovering overhead, and it was from the cloud that the rumbling sounds were issuing. Jessup related that "the vapor of which it (the cloud) was composed" was propelled from the sides of the rectangle by the various explosions.

The end of these goings-on came rather dramatically as, accompanied by "a hissing sound," stones showered onto the land. However, it should also be pointed out that the source of documentation for this report is not given in Jessup's book.

An exceedingly odd occurrence which Jessup described and which was backed up by a documented source is the report of a strange cloud by the crew of the vessel Lady of the Lake. The account was recorded in the ship's log by Captain F.W. Banner, and later recounted in the Journal of the Royal Meteorological Society, from which Jessup, in turn, drew his information.

The incident occurred on March 22, 1870, while the Lady lay at a position of five degrees 47' north latitude, 27 degrees 52' west longitude. Jessup relates that the crew said the cloud was of "circular form" enclosing a "semicircle divided into four parts," with a central dividing line of some sort "starting at the center of the circle," but which reached beyond the limits of the form, then "curving backward, like a hook."

The inference Jessup drew from this description, if accurate, is that the cloud wasn't a cloud at all, but an object of mechanical or organic structure. Jessup's deduction warrants merit, especially if we consider that sailors aren't the fantasy-prone people they're generally believed to be. Moreover, by trade sea-faring men are often exceptional observers of detail.

Another, and in this case deadly, occurrence involving abnormal clouds was also recorded by Jessup, but originally was cited by John P. Bessor in the March 1954 issue of Fate. The event took place over the town of Saw Mill Run, near Pittsburg, Pennsylvania. Basically, this is what happened:

On July 28, 1874, villagers and residents of the area around Saw Mill Run watched as on the northwestern horizon a black cloud appeared. From over the southwest horizon appeared another black cloud. However, neither was of an ordinary appearance inasmuch as they were respectively ringed in what was referred to as "a scarlet belt."

Bessor notes that the clouds drew near one another "like two men-of-war approaching the scene of battle." Lightning discharged from them and the effect was akin to "an eerie sea battle high in the air."

The clouds utlimately collided, causing rain to literally pour from the sky, and in the final analysis one hundred and fifty persons were believed dead or drowned. No one has yet explained the event as per standard meteorologics.

The idea of "controlled" weather (or weather-like) phenomena was obviously of keen interest to Jessup, but it's nevertheless a hard concept to grasp. Humanity has a natural tendency to shy away from such prospects, especially if one considers that, as Jessup believed, an alien intelligence may be involved. The weather, afterall, is a key factor in our daily existence and who or whatever controlled it might conceivably dominate the planet.

While this sounds a bit too much like a thinly-worm science fiction plot, it's still interesting that other investigators of the paranormal have, over the years, also been struck by an eerie feeling which says the weather is not always as unfettered as it appears to be.

In a personal communication to the author dated Sept. 25, 1975, UFO historian/writer Lucius Farish comments on Jessup's interest in such occurrences. He also notes that: "There are some pretty weird reports of anomalous clouds and storms. I've even seen a weather satellite photo of a square (emphasis his) cloud system which spawned numerous tornadoes in Oklahoma and other states several years ago."

On the surface, phenomena such as this might easily be taken for granted. Yet consider the unlikely origin of a square cloud system, let alone the other anomalous meteorological occurrences cited earlier. Are such instances chance alone? Somehow, it seems doubtful...

In 1972 Hurricane Agnes swept up from the South Atlantic, destroying homes and drowning vast areas of land under a deluge of rainfall. When the storm front reached the East Central States meteorologists predicted that its effects would begin to ebb and the storm return to sea. Instead, as if mocking man's best efforts at prediction, the bulk of the front began to reform and eventually settled into a spiral pattern over the Eastern states. Hour after hour water fell on New York, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, and the Virginia's. In due course the storm expired itself and did return to open sea. However, the damage to East Central America was almost without precedent.

Although they occurred three years apart, tropical storms Agnes and Eloise followed in each other's path almost directly. Many seasoned weathermen devoutly maintain the impossibility of such a phenomenon. A host of "natural element" experts are convinced that whoever controls our weather can also control our planet. They are alarmed at the many freak storms, columns of water - other than rain falling from our skies - and an array of cloud-like formations fitting no known pattern.

Experts termed Agnes "the one hundred year flood," and regional governments were directed to establish within their boundaries what is today called The one hundred year flood zone. This, in effect, is any area which received the most severe flood damage during Agnes' onslaught and which is prone to such flooding during the next severe tropical storm conceivably only to arrive after another one hundred years, the average return time for such occurrences.

They were all fooled. During the last week of Sept. 1975, Hurricane Eloise swept northward, following almost directly the path which Agnes had cleared three years prior. Landowners still recovering from the effects of Agnes were forced to watch the flood waters rise once again.

Repetition followed repetition as meteorologists announced that conditions would never duplicate those of 1972. They also cited that the storm would "blow itself out" and return to open sea. Once again the front did the unexpected by beginning a swirling cycle over East Central America. Again, damage was extreme although perhaps not quite as bad in areas as during Hurricane Agnes.

Most readers are already familiar with the details of all this. However, the point is why did two tropical storms follow each other so closely, approximating each other in direction of travel and severity to such an obvious degree?

This question leads to others, none we have any real answers for. Perhaps Peter Dickinson was correct when he described in his novel The Weathermonger, that certain forces may be able and willing to mentally direct or control meteorological phenomena (such as a storm?) But this is merely another question. Let's hope answers are forthcoming before it may be too late. □

A faithfully recorded account reveals that teleportation was a phenomena centuries before the birth of sophisticated science.

A JOURNEY THROUGH TIME AND SPACE

BY RAMONA CORTEZ

To 16th century man, the feat of teleportation was not to be taken lightly. It was regarded, rather, as "the Devil's work." And if today we can entrust these matters to our scientists, it has not always been that way. For there was the day when science knelt at the feet of religion. And any occurrence beyond reality was promptly discharged to the Holy Inquisition. Consider the following account: the actual testimony of which was faithfully recorded by Frair Gaspar de San Augustin.

On October 25, 1593 soldiers arrested one Gil Perez whom they found wandering, dazed, about the main plaza in Mexico City. Perez claimed that, only moments before, he had been guarding the Governor's Royal Palace in Manila—halfway across the world in the Philippines. He was even wearing the uniform of a guard in the Governor's Palace.

"My name is Gil Perez. As to standing sentry here, I am doing as nearly as possible what I was ordered to do. I was ordered this morning to mount guard at the Governor's Palace in Manila."

"I know very well that this is not the Governor's Palace and evidently I am not in Manila. Why or how that may be, I know not. But here I am, and this is a palace of some kind, so I am doing my duty as nearly as possible."

Here not even his remarkable devotion to duty was enough to keep the soldiers from turning Perez over to the Inquisition. Once in their custody he further confided, "Last night the Governor of the Philippines, His Excellency Don Gomez Perez Dasmarinas, had his head cracked with an axe and is dead of it."

The Inquisition suspected this whole affair to be the work of the Devil. Their suspicions were confirmed when nothing, not even the threat of torture or death, could convince Perez to alter his testimony. He was finally thrown into the dungeon.

In November of the same year, a ship from the Philippines arrived, which not only corroborated Perez's story about the Governor, confirming his death by axe blows to the head on October 24—the day before Perez's arrival in Mexico—but there was a man aboard that ship who actually recognized Gil Perez and was well-informed of his sudden disappearance.

Devil's prank? Blasphemy? Or can the Perez affair best be explained as a rupture in the space-time continuum? Today with governments spending more than ever on paranormal research, perhaps we are on the threshold of real insight into the phenomenon of teleportation. □

Space scientists agree: a certain amount of dexterity is needed to operate an interstellar ship. The world's physiologists, those whose job it is to study function processes of an organism or any of its parts-nearly are all in agreement that our visitors from space must look like us. Yet science has been proven wrong before.

Would You Recognize A UFOnaut?

BY JOSEF F. BLUMRICH

Reprinted From "The Spaceships of Ezekiel" with permission from the author.

Intelligent alien life to a great degree may resemble humankind. However, we must allow for certain physical differences needed to cope with obvious environmental conditions appropos to their physical necessities.

Josef F. Blumrich, author of "The Spaceships of Ezekiel" is a major NASA engineer who began his career in aircraft design 42 years ago.

Previous to reading Chariots of the Gods Blumrich, who had worked on spacecraft and large rockets in his career, maintains that such books merely provided "wonderful entertainment" Von Daniken's "Chariots of the Gods" did provide this, he maintains, and nothing more.

"Until I found the passage in which Von Daniken writes about the prophet Ezekiel. Here were technical statements and claims right in the fields of my own professional knowledge."

Becoming profoundly curious, Blumrich read his Bible and sought to prove how wrong Von Daniken was.

"I was wrong," he says. "Hardly ever was a total defeat so rewarding, so fascinating, and so delightful."

We know that biochemistry has made us aware of forms of "life" very different from those we are familiar with. To expound such knowledge into the area of highly developed organisms would necessarily include the idea that their appearance may be entirely different from ours. These doubtlessly justified considerations have, however, had the effect of focusing the thinking on this particular possibility--of an appearance other than ours--thus obscuring the possibility of a resemblance to the outward appearance of man. This is why I feel that this latter possibility merits closer investigation. To accomplish this I shall explore the question of form from the point of view of the mechanical system involved (or from the point of view of a design engineer, which is the same) and briefly define the underlying fundamentals. The legitimacy of such considerations is evident: the overall system which we can describe as the "intelligent being" must not only be chemically, biologically, and mentally self-sustaining and capable of development, but its structure must be such as to ensure the equally important mechanical functions. The invariable basic requirements of the latter are the ability to move and the operation of tools (needed for the intake of food, or the ability to fight, and to shape materials).

No matter how high the level of development of a civilization is, it needs the full industrial spectrum ranging from mining and heavy industry to high-precision processes which may not even be known to us. And, even if for unfathomable reasons it should no longer require all this, it must have had it at the stage of its development comparable to our own today.* The individual beings making up this society must be able to cope with such conditions which again means that they must be able to fulfill functions similar to those of humans.

To be able to study the influence of mechanical requirements on the form, we must consider and treat the latter as a mechanical system. That system must be capable of the following functions:

*Since we are talking about evolution,we automatically rule out the spontaneous creation of a ready-made highly advanced civilization.

Observation, evaluation, command (combined in a control center)
Change of place (movement)
Operations
Conversion of energy

The first and the last of the functions listed above are, it is true, of a non-mechanical nature, yet an advantageous location within the overall system of the structures they require is beyond question a matter of design.

There are sufficient reasons to eliminate flying and swimming beings from this investigation, so that it only remains for us to consider a being which moves on solid ground and is surrounded by a gaseous mixture. The guideline for the basic layout of our "structure" may be established as follows: For understandable reasons the "control center" must be arranged as high as possible above the ground. The parts required for the conversion of energy must therefore necessarily be arranged between the control center and the organs of motion which are in contact with the ground. The location of operational organs (tools) does not lend itself to such a direct definition. Yet it may be inferred from the need for multiple utilization of the mechanism that they should be located as far as possible from the organs of locomotion.

With the aid of certain mechanical concepts we can proceed from this general scheme of distribution to the identification of corresponding forms. With the exception of "force," the most essential concept in mechanics is the "moment," which is the product of force and a distance. We owe to the moment the important element in mechanics--the lever. We must acknowledge that these fundamentals have universal validity; just as we do for the inclined plane, friction, and the wheel.

Movements of the system result as a consequence of moments. Since, for structural reasons, the wheel is eliminated as a design element of nature, the use of the lever remains the only way to produce movement, and it necessarily entails structures similar to the leg, the arm, and the hand. The optimum number of legs, arms, and fingers may be a matter of argument and the same applies to the optimum number of joints in all these limbs. In addition, we know the minimum requirements: two legs, two arms, and hands with three fingers each. There are good reasons for concluding that in the case of legs and arms the optimum coincides with the minimum, which therefore explains the existence of these limbs in pairs. But such is not the case for the hands, of which it can only be said that they should probably be equipped with at least four but probably not more than six fingers each (for example, two thumbs, one at each end of the row of fingers). In any case, one can expect more than three fingers to a hand.

As we see, this investigation--which, as we said before, is here merely outlined in its basic essentials--leads to a structure which has all the basic characteristics of a human body. We have recognized that the entity "form - mechanical system" uses particularly one of the basic elements of mechanics; the lever. The mechanical consistency in the structure and the universal validity of the lever and of the law which governs it make this entity operative regardless of its location in the universe and show us that the design of the human body is neither unique, earthbound, nor coincidental, but that it possesses general validity.

I would like to offer a strictly technical example in support of this statement. It concerns the mechanical arms and hands developed over many years for tasks ranging from the servicing of "hot" reactors to underwater operations. The more refined such designs are, the closer their appearance approaches the shapes of human hands and arms. This result is significant because it is certainly not due to preconceived planning. It is in fact the result of the work of groups, which independently were searching objectively for the most appropriate principles and designs.*

The mention of a highly advanced extraterrestrial civilization immediately makes us think of its technology which enables it to make contact with us. But it is self-evident that such a civilization must also have yet another form of expression:its art. A brief discussion of the dependence of art on mechanisms is needed to enable us to proceed with our investigation. We are, of course, not talking about an "essential," but a purely mechanical dependence. We will explain this by an example taken from our own art forms: a string quartet, a Persian miniature, a Chinese jade sculpture would be inconceivable if our hands were shaped like those of a frog, or the paws of a dog, or the hands of an anthropoid ape. Even the writing of a poem or a musical score requires the mechanism we call a hand. From these few remarks two important requirements emerge as prerequisites for any activity in the sphere of arts: articulation and sensitivity.

The self-evident presence of art-related activities within the framework of a highly advanced civilization demands the existence of the same properties in its members. Sensitivity is particularly relevant to our argument because it means that the surface of such beings cannot consist of a shell or calluslike wrapping but must be made of a substance which, broadly speaking, is endowed with the properties of human skin. Proceeding from this premise, we can conclude with a high degree of probability that they must also have a skeleton as a "supporting structure."

Summing up, we can therefore say that—particularly because of the universal validity of the law of the lever—the general appearance of the human form can likewise, and with very high probability, be assumed to be universal. The likely existence of skeleton and skin is deduced from the necessary presence of articulation and sensitivity. Such visitors may therefore be expected with a great degree of certainty to look "like a man."

*For a demonstration of an example in reverse I invite the participation of the reader. Please place your forearm on the table by which you are sitting so that your hand lies in front of your chest. Now raise the hand and the forearm and grasp an object which is a short distance from your hand. Observe purely optically, that is, without thinking of what you feel in your hand or arm, how hand, arm and fingers move exactly as an industrial gripping device does. The close relationship between nature and technology is unmistakable.

It is said that we pass over the "Waters of Lethe" when we are born. This river of forgetfulness at times ebbs shallow and from a very miniscule incident a mechanism is triggered which can force us to remember something of our own past.

WE HAVE LIVED BEFORE

BY FREDA MORRIS, Ph.D

As four year old William wandered into the bedroom where his mother was looking through her jewelry box, he spied a gold watch lying on the bed. It had been locked in the jewelry box since before he was born and the item had never been mentioned in his presence.

"Mama, that's my watch!" he cried. He grabbed the watch and clung to it tenaciously.

He repeated his claim over and over and was only willing to return the watch to the box when his mother convinced him that she would store it there for him.

This occurred in 1954. William is now a young man and still claims the watch for his own. How he came to have this watch is a strange and convincing story.

William's grandfather was a fishing boat captain in Alaska where the family lived, and like many people in that area, he looked favorably on the idea of reincarnation. In 1949 he told his favorite son and daughter-in-law that he intended to be reborn as their son.

"...And you will recognize me because I will have birthmarks like the ones I have now," he said, referring to the round marks on his left shoulder and forearm. A little while later he gave them his gold watch and said, "I'll come back. Keep this watch for me. I will return as your son and claim it."

Shortly after this he was killed in a boating accident, and about nine months after his death, his daughter-in-law gave birth to William. William bore round birth marks on his left shoulder and forearm. In addition, when he learned to walk he manifested a peculiar limp, similar to the limp his grandfather had.

When he was four, William excitedly ran into the house to report that he had seen his "sister" pass by. He was referring to his grandfather's sister, a woman he was not acquainted with. His statement and his excitement were totally unexplainable unless she was his sister whom he had missed since the boating accident five years earlier!

William's understanding of boats and of the bay was uncanny. Without any previous experience he could point out the best places to fish...

This case is typical of hundreds carefully documented by a cautious investigator, Ian Stevenson, M.D., former Chief Psychiatrist at the University of Virginia Medical School and now Head of the Division of Parapsychology.

In some cases of this nature, Dr. Stevenson brings out, the young child is able to remember where he hid something during his past life and to find the object when he has the opportunity to go to the place in question.

Another startling phenomenon that is difficult to explain without the reincarnation hypothesis is the remarkable talents of child prodigies. The incredible accomplishments of the boy Mozart are well known. Less familiar is Carol Gallacher of Glasgow, Scotland. If she was a Frenchman in a previous life it is not so surprising to find her singing the Marseillaise in French at the age of two. If she studied the books in another life her ability to read and understand Gulliver's Travels and Vanity Fair at the age of four or Plato's Republic and More's Utopia at seven would be more understandable.

Reports and research on out-of-the-body experiences aids the reincarnation hypothesis by suggesting there may be a thinking, feeling something that can exist apart from the body. There are innumerable reports of out-of-the-body experiences in which a person discovers things that he should not know, since his body is sleeping somewhere else. In some of these experiences the person is able to create a physical effect to establish his existence apart from his body.

Rev. Louis Gittner, who runs a school on Orcus Island, Washington, has experienced being out of his body regularly since childhood. He would go walking on rooftops at night for fun. One night he met his father there, equally disembodied.

The Youths All Gave The Same Description: The Animal Was Between Eight And Nine Feet Tall, With Black Hair And Human Features. All Agreed It Stood Extremely Upright, And Shied Away From The Light...Had These Boys Stumbled Upon The Mysterious...

BIGFOOT!

BY J. GOSNEY AND D. GROVER

Three shaken Tacoma youths, bear hunting south of Rimrock Lake Wednesday evening believe they saw a creature resembling a Sasquatch.

The youths' report, related to Yakima County sheriff's deputy Larry Gamache hours after the reported sighting, led Gamache to believe they had, indeed, seen "something" similar to the legendary "Bigfoot."

Gamache said the three youths, Tom V. Gerstmar, 17; Earl Thomas, 18; and Jerry Lazzar, 16, were camped at Section 3 Lake on Pinegrass Ridge approximately 20 miles south of Rimrock Lake off the South Fork of the Tieton River.

While bear hunting in the area, the trio heard noises about dusk and began to hike back to their camp. Feeling they were being followed, they shined their flashlight back up the trail but could not see anything.

Upon reaching their camp, about 9 P.M., the youths built a fire. More noises were heard and Thomas shined his flashlight in the general direction of the sounds.

Across a nearby small pond, Thomas spotted greenish-yellow eyes, eyes also seen by Gerstmar. The youths returned to camp and talked the matter over.

Finally, Gerstmar returned to the pond and again turned on the light. This time he saw "what went with the eyes," Gamache's report read. All three boys looked the creature over in the flashlight beam.

The youths all gave the same description:

The animal was between eight and nine feet tall, with black hair and human features. All agreed it stood extremely upright, and shied away from the light.

At that point, the boys decided to fire their rifles to frighten the creature. After they fired seven shots from two large-caliber rifles, the creature moved off a little, but remained close. When the youths shined the flashlight on it, the creature growled, then screamed at them.

Frightened, the boys abandoned their tent and supplies and fled toward Trout Lodge. Gerstmar reported he nearly wrecked his jeep in his haste to get away. They telephoned the sheriff's office from the Lodge.

Gamache interviewed the youths at his home on White Pass shortly afterward and reported he believed the three had definitely "seen something."

Gamache, another deputy and Washington Game Department agent Larry Konen, went to the camp Thursday and searched for what the boys may have seen. The trio found no evidence of "Bigfoot," and the camp was undisturbed.

The search for "Bigfoot," also known as "Sasquatch," has been going on for several years.

The late Roger Patterson, a former Yakima resident, reported a sighting in Northern California in October 1967 and took about 10 feet of 8mm film of a purported "Bigfoot."

Although widely criticized, the film showed a black-haired creature, apparently female, walking away from a creek bank, turning back once to gaze at the camera.

Footprints and other evidence have piqued additional interest since Patterson's film, and several books and research projects have resulted. (SOURCE: Yakima, Washington HERALD—REPUBLIC October 3, 1975).

What follows is the transcript of a taped interview with Earl Thomas, 18, one of three witnesses to an alledged "Bigfoot" sighting on October 1, 1975 at Section 3 Lake on Pinegrass Ridge approximately 20 miles south of Rimrock Lake, Washington. The interview was conducted by Dick Grover on October 15, 1975 at the Thomas's residence in Tacoma. Mr. Grover is the Director of Project Discovery A Washington State based group involved in Bigfoot investigations.

Grover; Could you relive the experience and tell us just what happened?

Thomas; We started up the hill and Tom was on the trail ahead of us. He was about 25 to 50 yards in front of us when something went up these rocks in front of us. It went up so fast that you couldn't even see it. If it was a bear...a bear wouldn't go that fast.

Grover; Was this at night?

Thomas; No, this was during the daytime. We all sat down to rest and smoke a cigarette, then we started back down the trail, near dark. We kept noticing that something was following us. We kept hearing these noises, like twigs breaking and brush cracking. Tom shined the light back and there wasn't a thing back there. We kept walking and walking and I just kept hearing this. I had the feeling that there was something following us and I felt sure there was. So, we got down to camp and got back to the jeep and started to light a fire. When I started to chop some wood we heard a noise and shined the light across the pond and saw those yellowish-green eyes. It was enough to kind of scare a guy.

Grover: How far apart were they?

Thomas: About like ours.

Grover: Were they closer or wider apart than ours?

Thomas: I'm not really too sure for it was a long ways. Like a guy asked us how tall it was. What do they expect us to do? Go up and measure it or something?

So I yelled to Tom and he shined the light again and he seen the same thing, the eyes. He went and sat back down and I put some more wood on the fire. If you go up there you can see where I cut up a bunch of wood off this log. Tom got back up and shined the light and we seen the whole body.

Grover: In the light?

Thomas: Yes. Then we realized what we saw, it turned its head and that was enough to scare us right there. We wouldn't want to say paranoid, yet we started getting our gear and started to take off. Junior (i.e. Jerry Lazzar, 16. Editor) started getting the sleeping bags and lantern and just when junior started back out of the tent the thing just screamed. We just grabbed our things that were close by and took off. Before that Tom fired seven times.

Grover: It screamed when you shined the light on it?

Thomas: No.

Grover: Did it scream when you were in the tent fooling around or when?

Thomas: No. Me and Tom weren't in the tent. Junior was in the tent. We were prepared to shoot if it would have came at us.

Grover: What do you think caused it to scream then?

Thomas: Well we had some meat sitting there on the table. That could have been it. The next day when the sheriff went up there the meat was gone, so something ate off it.

Grover: The bone was in the same place on the table?

Thomas: No, it was down on the ground. Although, it could have been a squirrel...I'm not sure. We didn't go back up that night, we were too scared to go back that night. All I know is I won't sleep out in a tent again.

Moments later Dick Grover asked Earl Thomas to elucidate on the features of the "creature."

Grover: Maybe you can describe to us what it looked like.

Thomas: It was about 8, 9, or 10 feet tall, it was big, it was dark out, this thing was dark and furry.
EDITOR'S NOTE: Apparently, the estimate of size was based on a visual comparison between the "creature" and nearby tree limbs.
Grover: What did the head look like?
Thomas: Like I said, it was like ours.
Grover: Did it have a neck that was stretched out?
Thomas: No, not really.
Grover: Did it have a head that was sitting down on the shoulders or did it look like ours?
Thomas: It was like ours, only bigger, thick.
Grover: Could you see the hands at all?
Thomas: No. They were hanging down at its side...very long arms.
Grover: Did you shine the light up and down the creature as you seen it?
Thomas: When you shined the light it would show up the whole creature in the light.
Grover: It was a real bright light then?
Thomas: Yes, that's why we took it with us.
Grover: What was the head shaped like?
Thomas: Like I said it was like ours.
Grover: Did it have any features about the top that you noticed particularly?
Thomas: I didn't notice too much. (laughter)
Grover: About how far away do you think it was?
Thomas: About 100 yards. Also the day we went up there we found birds all torn up and entrails in the lake like something was feeding there. The Deputy Sherriff that helped investigate said he didn't doubt this story too much, for he seen one too, standing on the side of the road a while back.
Grover: You said the eyes were greenish-yellow?
Thomas: Yes, they were glowing in the light, just like the eyes of a deer or elk would reflect.
EDITORS NOTE: It appears that this "glowing" effect may be attributed to the tapetum membrane as in cats. I make this point to differentiate this case from other reports of "creatures" reported to have eyes that glow internally.
Grover: When you took the light off there was nothing there?
Thomas: Yes, there was nothing there.
Grover: How many times did you shine the light on it?
Thomas: I think it was two or three times. Then later we turned the jeep headlights on and it wasn't there. One thing we noticed when the creature screamed, it sounded like it was all over us. That is when we decided to leave.

The witness, Earl Thomas, also mentioned having smelled a strong odor during certain phases of their "Bigfoot" experience. According to Thomas, just before they 'split the scene of the encounter, they began to smell a very bad odor which Thomas described as smelling like "rotten loggers sox," whatever that is. When they returned the next day with the deputy sheriff, the odor permeated the area.

COMMENTS BY DICK GROVER ON FIELD WORK

As soon as this report reached me, I made arrangements to visit the area where the alledged sighting took place.

Upon arriving at the Rimrock Lake region, we made contact with a deputy sheriff who was not only kind enough to let us interview him about the case but also showed me a a very easy trail into the region.

When I arrived at the area where the boys had camped, I immediately set about to gather data. I found an area that looked like something had been digging in search of roots. I also found the mutilated birds and indentations in the area that looked like tracks. These "indentations" were not catable because of the gooey type of mud, very soft, due to the rains that we had had. Too, there was much disturbance of the general ground area as elk had moved through leaving many of its own tracks besides disturbing the surrounding ground area.

Nothing further was found.

Upon leaving the scene of the "experience" on the night in question, Earl Thomas said they almost lost their jeep over a cliff. I saw the cliff. If the boys had gone over that cliff, it appears unlikely that they would have survived. I estimate the drop at about a hundred and fifty yards to the bottom.

PROJECT DISCOVERY

Project Discovery was formed in January 1973 by Dick Grover. Mr. Grover has had 7 years of experience in the investigation and study of Bigfoot reports. The goals of Project Discovery are:

1. To solve the mystery of the Bigfoot or Sasquatch for the benifit of man.
2. To bring together as a powerful force, investigators and people who wish to specialize in solving the mystery without any thought of monetary gain.
3. To coordinate and deseminate information for the people at large.
4. To develop a mutual trust between active people in the group and those living in Bigfoot regions.

UFO ENCOUNTER IN JAPAN

BY RICHARD DICKSON

Seiichi Kazato, a 28 year old Japanese farmer claims he has been to the moon in a spaceman's flying saucer.

Most of the citizens of this quiet city near the Sea of Okhotsk don't take him very seriously, but mao Hirano, a student of French literature, physics and a long-time UFO fan, says he believes Kazato-san's tale.

"Too many of the things he described check out with previous, substantiated UFO encounters to think that this was something out of his imagination or pure fantasy."

The farmer says that he answered a mysterious knock on his door just before dawn April 6th of this year to find a "spaceman" in a silver suit "that looked like aluminum foil". Kazato went on to explain that, "the being was definitely not human and not from our earth....he had a pointed head with something that looked like an antenna sticking out where his ears should have been, and he just stood there without saying anything, but he was beckoning to me in a friendly gesture. I wasn't afraid, just curious I guess."

The farmer went on to say he was then quickly but gently sucked into a flashing orange disc, some 8 meters in height which was hovering just above his garden.

When he came back to his senses, he found himself in a field some 3 kilometers from his home. It was about 30 minutes later. The experience, the farmer claims, has given him the ability to communicate telepathically with these beings from space which befriended him. He does this by using his left hand as a revolving antenna, something like a revolving radar antenna.

Kazato-san says he was "invited" to the disc twice more....on April 20th and again on May 5th. On his last venture he claims that they "flew" into outer space!

Farming neighbors near the first alleged lift-off site testified they were awakened early in the morning of April 6th by a sun-like glow. When they went out to investigate there was a strange electric-type smell in the air and they saw Mr. Kazato running down the road and shouting wildly as if he were chasing something.

Most local farmers labeled the would-be astronaut a sleep walker, but some of them admitted he has never had any history of mental imbalance and he does not drink more than "a couple of cups of Sake, just to be sociable at times."

Hirano, who says he has actually seen flying saucers twice himself, contends the color and free movement of the disc reported by the farmer fits previous descriptions of such flying objects.

A number of local witnesses interviewed, including a high school girl and a postman, have testified to the local police that they too were awakened on the morning of April 6th and saw a flying saucer, or at least an object resembling a flying saucer just before dawn on the same day.

Mr. Hirano steadfastly maintains that evidence gathered thus far supports the existence of flying discs. He made a special note that Mr. Kazato's finger joints and arms shake when "communicating" with a "spaceman" and that he himself once received something akin to an electric shock when he touched Mr. Kazato's outstretched left hand.

Kazato says he is just a simple farmer, and he has apparently become completely unnerved by the recent publicity as a result of his experience. As a result, he won't talk to anyone other than the police or a government official.

His mother claims, "I believe my son. He has never been anyone to tell tall tales. If he says it happened, then it must have happened as he has told it. Why is everyone so excited about people from space? We are going to the moon these days. Shouldn't some of 'them' come down and visit us?" □

DARWIN'S 'MISSING LINK'?

Man's link with the past may be centered around the Northwestern United States, an area commonly called "Bigfoot Territory," where surviving members of a primate species thought long extinct, may be thriving.

No legend has caused as much interest and excitement as those gigantic creatures with the seventeen inch feet, the Abominable Snowmen (ABSM).

ABSM can be broken into two major types: 1) the true Abominable Snowman or the Yeti, native to snow covered mountains of the Himilayas, Tibet and China; 2) and the Bigfoot or Sasquatch of North America.

The true ABSM, Kung-la or Yeti is about 7 or 8 feet tall, covered with red or white fur, stands semi-erect, and looks, generally, like a huge ape. Casts of the "creature's" foot show a length of about sixteen inches, with semi-opposable toes (which will be discussed later). No authentic evidence, other than footprint casts exist to give us any idea as to the physical appearance of the Yeti.

The North American ABSM, Bigfoot, stands about eight feet tall, is an "orthograde" (walks erect), covered with black or brown hair, and weighs about 400 pounds. Plaster-of-paris casts of Bigfoot's feet are numerous, with one reported to be 15 inches long, 8 inches wide at the ball and 5 inches at the heel. The feet are very human-like in appearance, with a non-opposable great toe. This foot would take a size 21 shoe.

FILM

Roger Patterson's 12 second film is the classic example of Sasquatch. The seven foot creature of Patterson's film walked erect, was covered with thin, black hair (except at the eyes and the soles of the feet), had heavy buttocks, large drooping breasts, a peak of hair at the rear of the head, three feet at the spanned shoulders and 15 inch feet.

Everything in the film fitted the reports of Bigfoot and Sasquatch. The peak on the rear of the creature's head evidences a bony, sagittal crest commonly found on large, male apes. The bony crest allows for the greater attachment of the large jaw muscles needed to chew fibrous plant material. This "crest" continues to confuse the experts, because the "sagittal crest" is indigenous to a male creature, while the large drooping breasts are characteristically female. The experts fail to take into consideration however, that Patterson's 12 second film is too fuzzy to tell whether or not the peak of hair is the outline of a "sagittal crest" or, just a "puff" of hair blowing in the wind.

ICHNOLOGY (footprints)

The footprints made by the Yeti are often distorted by the surrounding snow, which makes it difficult to obtain accurate casts of the ABSM's feet. Yet, a few excellent casts have been made to reveal a foot that is pentidactyl (five-toed) with a semi-opposable great toe. An "opposable toe" is one which is at a right angle to the other toes and the plane of the foot; while a non-opposable toe is in line with the other toes, as is the human foot. It is evident that the true ABSM or Yeti is not a plantigrade (walks on the flat of its feet), but instead walks on the lateral or side portion of its foot. Unfortu-

Illustration (left) depicts the foot design of man (1); gorilla (2); Yeti (3); and Bigfoot (4); Note similarity between man's and Bigfoot's feet. Note similarity between species. Although many Bigfoot photos have been taken, creature remains elusive to countless probes.

This illustration represents comparative height between Yeti (A); Man (B); and Bigfoot (C). Also, included in the drawing is the general body shape and proportions of the three.

BIGFOOT, MISSING LINK OR CHIMPANZEE?

As we went to press, we received this photo of the creature which was discovered by Michael Miller. Zoologists who have examined the creature believe it to be a member of the chimp family of apes. The remarkable features of "Oliver"(as he is called by his owner), is the fact that he can walk very erect, has the ability to understand more than the average chimp and last but perhaps most important, his features are very human-like.

At this writing, tests are being conducted and a full report will be released as soon as it is available.

Michael Miller who purchased the creature from an unidentified person in upstate New York, feels that there is much more to Oliver than meets the eye. He feels that it's possible that the creature may be associated with Bigfoot or that Oliver may be the missing link belonging to Darwin's theory of evolution.

In any event, we will have some answers when tests on Oliver are completed (the editor)

nately, footprint casts are the only form of physical evidence that we have to prove the existence of the Yeti.

This type of foot arrangement (the Yeti) would suggest a creature with a foot similar to that of an ape's. The gorilla's foot has a more opposable toe than the Yeti, but it also walks on the side of its feet.

The Sasquatch's foot is pentidactyl, with a non-opposable great toe. The plantigrade nature of Bigfoot's feet suggest a very human-like foot, though Bigfoot seems to lack a pronounced arch in its feet.

In both cases, the Yeti and Sasquatch, it has been suggested that their footprints are actually those of a bear. This is unlikely, because the bear's largest toe is at the middle of the foot and not on the inner side, as with the creatures in question.

SCATOLOGY (feces)

A few examples of Sasquatch's excrement had been collected in Northern California; usually near the Bigfoot's "bed" which is composed of pine branches and ferns stuck together with urine and feces, and are said to have a potent stench. An analyses of Bigfoot's scat (feces) reveals the remains of California fresh water plants and the eggs of a parasite known to exist only in some North American tribes, pigs of South and South-Western China, and people of South-Western China. No known samples of Yeti feces have been found.

TRICHOLOGY (hair)

There are five different types of hair, based on microscopic structure, and only mammals have true hair. To a good trichnologist a strand of hair can be identified as belonging to a certain animal, based upon its structure and the scientist's knowledge. One such expert is Dr. F. Martin Duncan, who examined some hair found in the bed of a Sasquatch. Dr. Duncan stated that the hairs did not belong to any known species of North American mammals, and could possibly be those of an unknown large primate. No reliable samples of Yeti hair has surfaced.

No known bones or skeletons of any type of ABSM have been found. Bones would provide an excellent source of scientific research. Yet, the fact that no bones have been found is not proof against the existence of the Yeti or Sasquatch, because bones are not readily found in nature. When was the last time you came across a skeleton? Actually, nature does a good job taking care of her own and dead matter is decomposed rather quickly. Also, it is possible, that ABSM bones have been found but not recognized for what they are. WHAT ARE THESE CREATURES?

Before we can talk about what these creatures are and where they might be in the evolution of things, we must first have an understanding of man's evolutionary process.

During the Oligocene, a little over 30 million years ago, one branch of the primate tree split into two directions...one led to the great apes (gorilla, chimp, orangutan) and the other led to modern man. The pongid (apes) branch is as specialized as the Hominid (human) branch; in other words, men and apes evolved from a common ancestor and not; as commonly believed, that man evolved from apes.

The beginning of the Miocene, 25 million years ago, saw a line of creatures (Dyropithecus), developing off the ancestoral stalk, that would lead to Gigantopithecus. Early Gigantopithecus roamed India some 12 million years ago, during the Pliocene, and seemed to have died out some 5 million years ago in China. This ancestoral form, which is believed to have adapted for ground feeding in open areas, is known only from a few jaw bones and teeth. This creature was ape-like and would be placed with the great apes if it still existed.

Somewhere during the late Miocene or early Pliocene two lines branched off of man's ancestoral line. The two end products (both which became extinct during the late Pliocene) were Australopithecus and Paranthropus. Both groups lived as vegetarians in a woodlands-like habitat, and are considered by some experts as being the same species.

Therefore, from our above discussion and the chart, we can see that our choices for the ancestoral role of the Yeti and Sasquatch are Gigantopithecus, Paranthropus (or Australopithecus), Java man (Homo sapiens neanderthalenis). Right off we can eliminate Java man and Neanderthal man from our discussion, because they are both too human in nature to be the ancestors of the ABSM; with the former being only a seperate species of the human genus Homo, and the later is but a "fossil" sub-species of Homo sapien or modern man. Hence, we are left with Gigantopithecus and Paranthropus...and they are not bad choices.

The semi-opposable great toe, slouch stature, and general ape-like appearance of the Yeti would suggest a kinship to Gigantopithecus. Two facts seems to bear this theory out: 1) Giganthopithecus was probably an aberranted ape common to the area of China and India...the very location of many Yeti report. 2) The Giganthopithecus was adapted to feeding in open areas...as the Yeti must be. In other words, the true ABSM or Yeti is probably a giant rock ape unknown to science.

On the other hand, the Sasquatch or Bigfoot is more than just an ape and something less than a man. The non-opposable great toe, heavy buttocks (only found on man), large breasts, and erect walk gives this creature a very human appearance ...almost an aberrant-human appearance. We have a good candidate for Bigfoot's ancestor in Paranthropus, who was very human-like but failed to survive. As with the Sasquatch, Paranthropus inhabited the woodlands. Possibly, Sasquatch reached North America via the Siberian-Alaskan land bridge that provided the passages for the American Indians some one million years ago.

The Sasquatch and Yeti may be surviving members of primate species thought to be extinct for the last 2 to 5 million years, which have undergone little adaptive change. The Sasquatch may be an ideal example of the classic, for lack of a better name, "missing link" in man's evolutionary process. We could learn a lot about man's past from the capture of a Bigfoot-type creature. The future may hold such an event. Man's past may lie in his future. □

Many Scientists Maintain:

Ancient Astronauts Left Us A Legacy

From the Pyramids in Egypt to England's Stonehenge, from ancient temple carvings in British Honduras to the aerial phenomena reported by Alexander's desert army, there is tangible evidence that we were not the first intelligent life to inhabit planet Earth.

Take two aspirin and call me in the morning!" Does this sound familiar? It should if you had ever called your family doctor for an illness during the wee hours of the morning. One wonders why our medical profession places so much confidence in the common aspirin tablet when they have no solid tangible evidence as to how the aspirin relieves your pains and fever.

"Solid tangible evidence" for the Ancient Astronaut hypothesis abounds with so much obvious proof that one cannot fail to recall the cliche.."Too close to the forest to see the trees." It is amusing to note the feeble explanations of the scientific community when amateur-discovered evidence fails to conform to their ivy-covered concepts. Perhaps we should heed the words of William James, one of the foremost scientists in American history, who said, "In scientifically examining an unusual phenomena, all that is necessary is to find ONE WHITE CROW to prove that not all crows are black. We need only find a few "White crows!"

WHITE CROW NUMBER ONE: The methodology of archaeology has determined that the pyramids of Egypt are the results of perfecting the gravesite of the dead for centuries. In his book, "Pyramids of Egypt", I.E.S. Edwards traces the use of rock and stone protection of the tomb from crude shallow pits to the ultimate pyramid of Cheops to prove his point. Our "white crow" in this field would be to prove the pyramids at Giza were not constructed as tombs for the ruling pharaoh. Edwards studied the pyramid of Cheops and the works of Sir Flinders Petrie, whose published work remains the standard on the subject. His conclusions were that the pyramids were constructed by an army of 100,000 slaves over a period of twenty years. He assumes that earth or sand ramps were constructed to roll or slide the stones into position.

Those who subscribe to the Ancient Astronaut hypothesis will be quick to point out the extreme angular and dimensional accuracy exhibited in the construction of the pyramid of Cheops. They would challenge Mr. Edwards on the basis that such accuracy would have been impossible if the stones had been subjected to the abrasion of sand through sliding or rolling up earth or sand ramps. Even if this abrasive action could have been eliminated, there can be no simple explanation as to how 5,000 pound stones, measuring 1 by 2 by 3 meters, could have been lifted more to than 6 feet and placed within 0.001 inch of another stone by sheer manpower. Even if the Egyptians did have ropes with block and tackle capable of handling such weights...how could they remove ropes after precision placement of the 2.5 ton stone?

WHITE CROW NUMBER TWO: Whenever solid tangible evidence is discovered and particularly if that evidence decries the ability of the age of the culture, the scientific establishment will claim fraud. The modern theory claims that no European before Columbus came to America and that any evidence to the contrary must be fraudulent. For an example: During the 1926 Mitchell-Hedges expedition to the Lubaatum temple site in British Honduras, a magnificently carved replica of a human skull was found under the ruins of an ancient altar. What makes this skull so unusual is the fact that it has been carved from a single crystal of water-clear quartz and the extreme fineness of finish shows no tool marks on the polished surfaces. Because quartz cannot be chisel cut or impact carved as were the stone statues of Central American and the fact that no natural formations of carborundum or diamond exist in the area, then this skull has to be either extraterrestrial origin or we must believe the ancient artisan labored continously for 300 years to hand grind the skull with sand. Needless-to-say, the scientific establishment not only refused to accept this artifact as tangible evidence, they went further to suggest that it was "planted" by Mitchell-Hedges after secretly having it made in some European glass works. Perhaps these knowledgeable scientists overlooked the fact that a similar but much less finished skull had been found in Mexico and the comparative dimensional measurements of the two skulls is far too exact to be mere coincidences.

WHITE CROW NUMBER THREE:

Lost knowledge of the past is not just a theory but a fact. History records the burning of books by the Romans, the Turks, the Chinese, and the Church. It would appear that civilization fell under the reign of the "devil" for almost 1,500 years. While science was so thoroughly suppressed during this period, (in his book, "We Are Not The First"). Andrew Tamas lists 26 concepts of science known between 2700 B.C. and 7 A.D. which have been subsequently re-discovered over the past 300 years. Such modern concepts as: the atomic theory, Relativity, Earth as a planet and its orbit around the sun, sunspots; the electric battery, turbojet engine, and space travel. How did ancients know of planets beyond Saturn? Naturally, the explanations of the scientific establishment refer to these as fables and fiction stories not to be relied upon. Our "white crow" here would be to compile sufficient evidence of past knowledge that coincides with our modern re-discovered knowledge that cannot be refuted.

WHITE CROW NUMBER FOUR:

All over the earth there are ancient ruins containing megalithic stone segments that could not have been cut and transported by sheer manpower alone. Matest Agrest wrote about the cyclopean stones used in the construction of the famous

"trilithod" in the acropolis at Baalbek, at the foothills of the Anti-Lebanon Mountains. These stones measure 20 meters long and weigh in the thousands of tons. One such stone was found abundant in its quarry that measured 21 meters long, 4.8 meters wide and 4.2 meters high. It is estimated that 40,000 men would be needed just to move the stone...much less transport it to the acropolis site and lift it as much as 7 meters above the ground (On The Track Of Discovery, Progress Publishers, Moscow). With the structures in Peru, Central America, Europe, and the Orient...not to overlook Easter Island, our "white crow" would be to determine the source of energy by which the stone masons of antiquity were able to cut, transport, and construct with these megalithic blocks of stone.

WHITE CROW NUMBER FIVE:

The public ridicule of those who report their findings or sighting of unusual aerial phenomena must be eliminated. The news media still laughingly refers to "those little green men from Mars" or ignores completely any news item associated with the ancient astronauts or UFOs. We are simply afraid of what we might re-discover and the impact it will have on our lives. Take the example where a UFO was seen by the students at Northwestern University some 20 years ago. Dr. Allen Hynek, professor of astronomy, refused to even take a look at the UFO and called it only "swamp gas". Today, after almost 20 years association with U.S. Air Force project "Bluebook", Dr. Hynek has realized that there is sufficient doubt that all UFO reports and sightings can be logically explained as natural phenomena or weather balloons and so testified at a congressional committee hearing in July of 1968.

To achieve full cooperation with the scientific establishment there must be a concentrated effort to dispel the notion that has existed since the founding of the British Academy of Science in 1620 and continued to be stressed today and that is: "No one can be expected to make a significant contribution to science without the benefit of a college degree!" Isn't it a twist of irony that the records of the U.S. Patent Office reflect that more than 80% of all patents granted have been to inventors without the benefit of a degree. Who is kidding who? □

"It will possibly be a great fire of some type which will leave pockets of men and women who will begin to people the Earth again." This is what the prophets of the Mesquakie prophesied for the future of mankind.

THE GREAT PURIFICATION

BY BRAD STEIGER

As I travel about the country, I am continually met by young men and women who are experiencing a sense of urgency that has caused them to quit good jobs so that they may await... they know not what. Older people seem also to sense an impending, major change which is about to transform society into something other than it presently encompasses.

Some interpret the vibrations, the foreshadowings, of this future event to be the day of Judgment which is promised in the Bible, a day in which there will be violent cataclysms and weeping and gnashing of teeth as the Elect are removed from the Earth and the Condemned are left behind to perish.

As I stated in my Revelation: The Divine Fire (Prentice-Hall, 1973), I do not see this coming event to be the ringing down of the cosmic curtain with a cataclysmic bang, but I do believe that we stand on the very brink of the latest in a series of transitional periods which are necessary to man's spiritual vibration, the raising of his consciousness. The vast majority of contemporary prophecy has nothing to do with a time of terrible judgment, but with a time of transcendence.

I believe that there will be physical cataclysms attendent with this transitional period, but they will be as nothing compared to the psychological cataclysms which will be experienced by those men and women who have not prepared themselves for the coming change in consciousness. Those people who are today ignoring the abundant cultural omens of change, those who will not bend their own methods of thought, those who will not release their hold on material reality, will be literally shattered. I fear mass suicides, incredible epidemics of nervous breakdowns among those men and women who refuse to recognize the ever-expanding, ever-widening cracks on this material dimension of being, and who resist acknowledging their sensate consensus of reality for the flimsy construct that it really is.

I refer to their ancient prophecies which state that a Great Purification will occur when people turn to material rather than spiritual things; when evil ones set out to destroy the land and the life of the Hopi and other Indian brothers; when leaders of men turn to evil instead of the Great Spirit; when man has invented something which can fall upon the ground, boil everything within a great area, and turn the land to ashes where no grass will grow. It would seem that each of these specifications has been fulfilled.

The Hopis are not alone in their anticipation of a Great Purification. Con Wanatee, a spokesman of the Mesquakie tribe, a people who have proudly maintained the old traditions, says that they, too, see a great catastrophe happening soon to "rearrange things":

"It will possibly be a great fire of some type, and it will leave pockets of men and women who will begin to people the Earth again. This is what the prophets of the Mesquakie have maintained. They have prophesied that the many people with their many languages will want to come back to their old religion. These people will want to return to the traditionalists to learn. There are traditional pockets in Mexico and in the United States. People here in Iowa have called us heathens, pagans. We shall see we are all brothers after all.

"I think the end might be very near. I am not speaking as a pessimist, but as one who believes in the prophecies of the Mesquakie. They prophesied great trailways in the sky. They said that the animals would be dying. They said when

SEEKING UNITY IN WORLD TEACHING

[This article is excerpted from the book, PSYCHIC GROWTH: DANGERS AND ECSTASIES. The author, who spent most of his twenties in a mountain-top monastery, has for 17 years averaged three hours of meditation a day and deeply studied the major "truth teachings" of the world, both orthodox and metaphysical. Last year, '74, he spent some months with Hindu yogis and Tibetan Lamas in the Himalayas of northern India.]

For two months beginning a year before I left the monastery, I had a recurring vision of myself working in a nursing home helping old people. In the vision my mind expanded throughout the nursing home and I could see the inner lives of the people working there, could see the administrator in his office and see the plans in his mind for further expansion of the home.

But because I had no intention at the time of leaving the monastery I put the vision out of my mind.

A year later I did leave the Order, and returned to my home in Denver, Colorado. I looked for a few months for a job and finally took one working in a nursing home in south Denver. I did not remember the visions I had had until one day, sitting in the cafeteria with fellow workers, the inner expansion returned exactly as the vision had predicted. I could see the building plans in the mind of the director as he sat in his office several rooms away; could read the lives of my new friends.

I turned to a new worker named Jim who was sitting beside me at the lunch table. It was his first day on the job, but as I sat beside him in the stillness of my mental expansion, I "knew" he was from Kansas. I casually asked him if he was.

"No," he replied. "I came down from Boulder, Colorado, to take this job." He paused a moment, then added, "Of course, I was born and raised in Manhattan, Kansas. But I left there several years ago."

Suppose religion is real and not just a paper moon sailing over a cardboard sky. Then why do the various religions and denominations find it so difficult to see eye to eye on what constitutes religion, or even what defines God?

What is God? One thing religions and mystery schools do seem to agree on is that God is love. Where goes any teaching about God, love follows. . . .

That's what they say. But, assuming it is true, what does it have to do with religions telling each other they're going to sizzle in hell like hog fat on an open fire?

The point is that even the widely accepted truth that God is love is, like all truths, a half truth. Any truth reduced to words is a half truth. That is an important point. Ignorance of it causes self-righteous bigots.

Love is God from the standpoint that perceptions of a higher love (which often bestows intense psychic awareness) is one true fruit of the higher states of consciousness of mystics, sensitives, and saints. But it is not the only result of attaining higher states of consciousness: deep joy, formless wisdom, expansion of mind, peace "that passeth all understanding," are equally true results, and accompany equally intense psychic perceptions.

So we see that the descriptive words used to hint at the Reality behind life which some men call Cosmic Consciousness, or God, or Allah, or Nirvana, etc., are only fragmentations of the real Truth that cannot be known through the limitations of language. Take a beautiful novel and try to describe it in one sentence. God, or Spirit, is a novel without beginning or end, yet we demand a concise definition we can paint on a poster and wave in the sky. And if the other fellow's poster reads differently than ours, woe be to his false God!

This brings us to the first point of unity in world truth teachings. Personal experience. If word descriptions only confuse the issue of what untimate truth is, then the only ones who truly know what their religion or metaphysical teaching is about are those who have developed the intuition of psychic depth to inwardly experience the mystical states they read about.

There are such innumerable facets to the nature of Reality that the only way to know it is through personal, intuitive experience. So how are the organized religions and mystical teachings to deal with this unified variety, for the edification of the average man? Man being what he is, the answer is predictable: subdivide and sell, like a new piece of real estate or a super cherry pie. And how can it be wrong? We funny little creatures have such limited perception without a deeply awakened intuition. And we have to begin trying to understand sometime, somewhere, somehow.

That is why it is important for religions to teach meditation and other means of actual development of intuition; and to concentrate on the similarities among truth teachings rather than their seeming differences.

God, or Truth, is like one white light shining through differently colored windows that are the various religions and metaphysical movements of the world. The religions give that light different names, see it as different colors; but it is always the one white light, no matter what the people at the colored windows say.

One point of unity is that all scriptures and all men and women who have achieved inner illumination say the only way to that state is to withdraw the consciousness from the sense-world and awaken the soul-life within ourselves: some of them even express this withdrawal in the very same similies.

In her book, The Interior Castle, the Catholic, St. Therese of Avila writes: "They become markedly conscious that they are gradually retiring within themselves; anyone who experiences this will discover what I mean: I cannot explain it better. I think I have read that they are like a tortoise withdrawing into itself, and whoever wrote that must have understood it well."

(St. Therese used the Spanish noun encogimiento for the word, retiring. The literal translation is "shrinkage" or "contraction"; but anyone who has experience of this inner state will, I believe, prefer A. Allison Peers' rendering—Doubleday Image Book, 1961—"conscious that they are gradually retiring within themselves. . . . "

And here is what Krishna says in the Bhagavad Gita (Sir Edwin Arnold's translation; Chapter II), five thousand year old Hindu scripture:

He who shall draw
As the wise tortoise draws its four feet safe
Under its shield, his five frail senses back
Under the spirits' buckler from the world
Which else assails them, such an one
Hath wisdom's mark!
If one deals with objects of the sense
Not loving and not hating, making them
Serve his free soul, which rests serenely, lord,
Lo! such a man comes to

tranquillity;
And out of that tranquillity shall rise
The end and healing of his earthly pains.

Another point of unity in world teachings is that little things mean a lot; that we are illumined or destroyed by small things rather than big ones. Many people feel they are too busy to seek inner development through hours of meditation a day; but hours are not needed: minutes will do to begin a knowledge of the inner life.

Buddha said, "By the falling of drops a pot is filled. The wise man becomes good even if he gather it a bit at a time."

The fellow who answered the question, "Can any good thing come from Bethleham?" likewise taught: "He that is faithful in that which is little will be faithful in that which is much. . ." (Luke 16:10—". . .and he that is unjust in the least will be unjust in much").

And the Hindu Bhagavad Gita also avers that little things are exceedingly important since they are only the beginnings of big things; the starting points; the embryos: for there are no small things in a world where a mud crack can become a Grand Canyon, or a speck of light can be the beginning of a new day, an escape from insanity, or a vast spiritual realization:

If one ponders on objects of the sense
There springs attraction;
From attraction grows desire
Desire flames to fierce passion, passion breeds
Recklessness; then the memory —all betrayed—
Lets noble purpose go, and saps the mind
Til purpose, mind, and man are all undone.

Bhagavad Gita, Chapter II (Arnold)

If religion is one, why is there a disparity in use of images, icons, and "idols?"

When Moses and Mohammed eschewed the use of images of any kind for religious purposes, they were speaking to a need of their times. During the time of each of these leaders people had forgotten (or become too lazy) to seek the experience of the formless Spirit behind the statue or image. The images were originally used to remind the people of that Spirit; to give them a concrete form to center their concentration and love (for the Formless Infinite) around.

But the people did not use the objects as focal points of concentration and love, through which to hasten their evolution back to Cosmic Consciousness. They came to believe that bowing before cold stone or a picture on a wall or an image beat in gold (or, in modern churches, a membership card with their name on it) would be adequate substitute for the greater effort needed to learn the truths that rule the universe; truths that effect the evolution of the human soul.

Idolatry can take many forms. Not only can stone images be worshipped instead of the Spirit they symbolize; we also can worship summer cottages and mistresses and boats and public images and personal fame and psychics and bank accounts.

Whatever we give our utmost reverence and respect to, is our God. Whatever object of our desires stirs our hearts with deepest, one-pointed love—here is our priority seen; there is our idol, our object of fullest longing; there is our God.

Mankind is awakening, and the idols of man must topple. Now is the time we must learn to seek divinity within ourselves, and cease to worship it in the world without: in people, places, and things. If we can find no happiness in the vast kingdom of power within, say the united truth teachings of the world, we will never find it without. □

REINCARNATION OR COINCIDENCE?

BY GARY PARSONS

The subject of reincarnation is one which has attracted the mind of man since his beginnings. In today's modern society, researchers have continued this trend rather conspicuously by asserting a great deal of effort and energy towards categorically proving—or disproving—the existence of reincarnation.

One of the many ways in which research in this field is, or can be conducted, is to carefully monitor what appear to be events and occurrences that can hardly be written off as mere "coincidence," thereby bringing into focus the possibility of reincarnation as an explanation. One such possible case occurred earlier this year in London, England, and involved a murder incident that paralleled an event that occurred 150 years earlier.

The duplication in the two events was so exact and precise that even law-enforcement officials are suggesting that reincarnation is a tentative possibility. In the first case, a man named Thornton was accused and arrested for the murder of a 20-year-old girl. Police charged that Thornton strangled his victim and threw her into a pit of water on May 27, 1817. At the trial, however, there was a lack of crucial evidence, and the presiding judge declared that the defendant should be acquitted; thus, he was freed.

The second recent case involved a man named Thornton who was also accused and arrested of murdering a 20-year-old girl. Her body was found in the exact spot as the above-mentioned victim. Likewise, the trial judge decided that the evidence was not categorical enough for a guilty verdict, and a directive of acquittal was announced.

In both cases, the alleged assailant's name was Thornton: each of the victims was a 20-year-old girl; each was found dead in the same spot; each was murdered on a public holiday; each had gone to a friend's house for the purpose of trying on a new dress for the holiday; each had gone to a dance with a new dress on; each had been murdered within a half-hour after leaving the dance; and each had a brother who was an engineer.

The police are well aware of the coincidences involved, and describe them as nothing short of "incredible." Researchers at the Society of Supernatural Phenomena in England are pretty much convinced that this is a case of reincarnation; some go so far as to exclaim that, "It must be a case of reincarnation, because coincidences like that just don't happen." A spokesman for the Society stated that "Thornton was arrested for the first murder, was acquitted, died, and was reincarnated and arrested for the second murder. Here too he was acquitted, and presumably we will not hear about him again."

A parapsychologist from a university in London has looked into the matter in order to check all details for accuracy. He has spent a month going over all the reports, files, comments and other relevant data and information and is convinced that the details of each case are accurate as reported.

"If we assume that events like this can be referred to as coincidence, then there are many areas of science that should be ignored, because very often we are able to arrive at specific conclusions based on what 'appeared' to be coincidence at first glance." He went on to say that "the facts here clearly represent an occasion where the possibility of reincarnation must be taken into consideration—not as a reason for how it happened, but rather as an explanation for why it could have happened. It is obviously too late to do anything about it now."

Other scientists, including a physicist, disagree with the "reincarnation theory," stating that "for two cases like this to happen once every 150 years is coincidence. That's exactly what coincidences are—events that occur occasionally. If they happened every day or at specified times, they would involve a scientific law, but once in so long a span of time means nothing....except that coincidences do occur, and this case is a perfect example of such an occurrence." □

THE MEANING OF THE PYRAMIDS ON MARS!

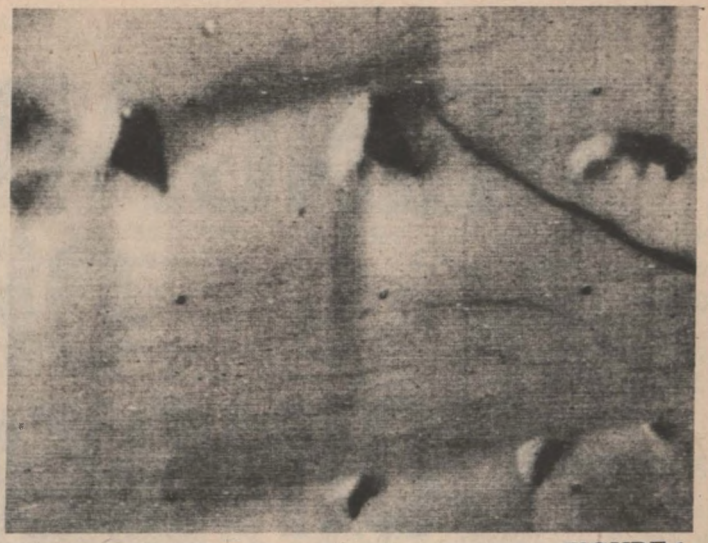

FIGURE 1

On November 13, 1971, spacecraft Mariner 9 reached Mars. Photographic probes of the planet's surface had disclosed a somewhat remarkable phenomena, one which was not at all part of its natural formation.

BY J.J. HURTAK, UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA

The entire history of Man has been occupied with the mystery of the Pyramids in Egypt. Are the pyramids some type of gauge for human history? Was the Great Pyramid built by a superior race of man once upon the planet? Did the Masters of light from other worlds leave the pyramids behind as a model for man, the solar system, the galaxy?

What if pyramids were found on other planets? Would they provide earthman with the answer to life's basic questions: Where do I come from? What am I doing here? Where do I go from here? Would they show that human consciousness has been evolved through a series of extra-solar artifacts?

The historic gap between ancient documents claiming some form of extraterrestrial visitation and our present search for "a viable extraterrestrial model," is now being bridged by the findings of remarkable pyramidal structures on Mars by the Mariner 9 probe(Fig. 1).

The Mariner 9 spacecraft which reached Mars on November 13, 1971 circled the planet 698 times in 349 days, gathering a wealth of science data that has revised all previous concepts of Mars. For more than half a Martian year, the spacecraft maintained an instrumented surveillance of the planet as the seasons changed beneath its cameras.

Besides Mariner 9 photographs from 1033 miles up, showing a sinuous rille 2500 miles long indicating that free-flowing water may have existed in Mars' geological history, a series of tetrahedron pyramids were seen.

These Martian pyramids appear in sets which are centered at approximately 15.258 latitude and 198. 425 longitude, appearing on a somewhat barren plateau. A comparison of two photographs (Fig. 2 and Fig.3) taken from a viewing angle of 6.018 degrees on February 8. 1972 and 37.510 degrees on August 7, 1972 shows near perfect tetrahedrons of two denominations observed from two different time directions when the Sun was well above the horizon. These show remarkably exact pyramidal faces disclosing that these pyramids are not part of a natural phenomena.

It is true that the geological history of Mars shows that half the planet erupted into turmoil as lavas flowed and great volcanos poked into the Martian sky. Sometime during the three and a half billion year old history of Mars, and probably fairly recently, copious quantities of water flowed on the surface of Mars and eroded immense arroyo beds. Yet, in the midst of a planet which is geologically active with volcanic mountains and calderas larger than any on earth the Mariner 9 B frames (MTVS 4205-77 DAS 07794853 and MTVS 4296-24 DAS 12985882), taken in the east central portion of Elysium Quadrangle, showed a perfect set of tetrahedron pyramidal structures too unique to be a result of natural formations.

McCauley et al. (1973) have argued that the origin of these pyramidal structures is probably due to one or several of the following mechanisms:

(1) Wind-faceting of volcanic cones, lava flow ridges and elongated lava morphologies by prevailing storm winds. These winds could be either part of the primary circulation pattern of Mars or dust storms of long duration.

(2) Regolith mantling of erosional remnants of either intersecting resistant dikes, dipping sediments, or other bedrock forms that have pyramidal appearance.

(3) Probably glacial sculpturing producing horns analogous to alpine glacial horns on earth.

(4) Rotation of solidified lava blocks in the underlying molten lava. The tilting of such solidified blocks could expose corners protruding above the lava field.

Additional arguments have been brought forth by Gipson and Ablordeppy (1974). They have argued that the unique mountain formations in the Lasma Peruvian area (Grolier et al., 1973) provide an analog for wind-faceted Martian pyramidal structures. More extensive research, however, reveals non-natural pyramidal sets clustered in Chan-cay, Jequet-epe-que, Viru, etc., in the surrounding Peruvian areas. It has become clear that the many earth mount clusters, so far discovered in Peru, are not to be dismissed as geological anomalies, but with further investigation many have been discovered to be, in reality, astronomical-calendrical complexes built during previous millenniums of time.

How many professional archaeologists have ever heard of the site of Morro Solar? It is within a mile of Las Palmas, on the outskirts of Lima, and reveals acres of scientific buildings virtually unknown to the scientific world. How many know about the twenty-five pyramids at Apurle in northwestern Peru? Jack West (1972), a contemporary archaeologist, has recently brought forth pictures showing scores of small pyramids within Peruvian pyramidal shaped mountains. More and more archaeological evidence has shown that what geologists for centuries have perceived as mountains have, in actuality, turned out to be pyramidal artifacts from previous milleniums.

Compared to the grid network of pyramidal sets in Mars' Elysium Quadrangle, the Peruvian area does not give weight to the arguments that the pyramids are a result of regolithic mantling of erosional remnants of either intersecting resistant dikes, dipping sediments, or other bedrock forms. Nor are there any visible faults that would indicate structural controls relating to the grid formation of the four tetrahedron pyramids. A site of multiple pyramidal structures suggests the need to update the arguments of surface morphology (Sagan, 1973).

Is there some explanation or connection between the pyramids on Mars and the wide variety of pyramids found on Earth? Gigantic tetrahedron pyramids have been found in Shensi Province, China built to possible commemor-

Bryce Bond Interviews:

IVAN T. SANDERSON

Although this great researcher-scientist, and outstanding personality is no longer among us, we feel this, one of his last interviews, should be brought to light. Ivan Sanderson, author of over thirty books, and founder of a foundation with worldwide membership, was also a collector of rare animal specis for the British Museum. UFO's were among his major points of interest in his waning years. This interview is our way of keeping Ivan Sanderson's thoughts and theories alive.

BOND: "Do you think life does exist in our solar system . . .some sort of life?"

SANDERSON: "I think it would be quite likely that a form of life - not our kind of life - but what we call life exists out there."

BOND: "In other words, humanoids?"

SANDERSON: "No, not humanoids. But, we might have funguses and vegetable-type life running on a hydro-carbon base such as all life on this planet runs on Mars, for instance, because Mars is not that different and now we know it does have some atmosphere. Now the larger planets I don't know, but I would suppose you would have a form of life running about on top of Fresnomonia or something. In the absence of oxygen, because we think of life . . .

BOND: "As it is today, as we are right now . . .

SANDERSON: "Yes, and planets and animals on the surface all based on hydro-carbon. But, there could be other forms of life, because you don't even have to have a body to have life."

After all, the material that we are made of is nothing else but energy when you come down to it. It's all made of molecules; the molecules are made of atoms; the atoms are simply made of quanter and the quanter are nothing else than energy. So, you could have things build up without a corporeal body. In our solar system it's very likely, mathematically and statistically, that in our galaxy there are probably a hundred million stars, at the minimum, that have planets going around them at the same distance that we go around our sun, and, those stars are just about the same as our sun. Therefore, it's very likely that there's life just the same as it is on this planet going around our sun, going around the same type planet, the same distance of these other suns in our galaxy."

BOND: "Do you believe in UFO's?"

SANDERSON: "UFO's are enormously complicated. It's like you can run around and say: 'Do you really think that the Loch Ness monster exists?' It's just as if there was one poor wretched animal that had no parents and nothing else. You can't just have the or one thing. You asked me: 'Do you believe in UFOs with an 's' on the end, but most people say, "Oh, I saw the flying saucer' practically as if there was only one kind. Now, there are a number of different types of things seen in our sky which we don't know about. Here again it gets even more hairy because we don't know half the natural things which are in our sky. Don't forget it was only a hundred years ago that we admitted that meteorites ever arrived here . . . science, as a whole, said it was impossible for pieces of iron and stone to fall out of the sky because there were, obviously, no stones in the sky. Now, we have these lumps of ice landing all over the place all the time - great, huge things, up to a couple of tons - so they're obviously natural things. So, we don't know what's going on much. What's natural we might accept. Then we have all these other things which seem to be unnatural to us because we have no idea what they are! And, all of them are classed together - bunched together - as flying saucers or UFOs. But, by golly, some of them may actually be a form of life themselves; some may come from other planets, not in our solar system, I would say, but other universes. Now, the two really come together. If you go to the other side of our galaxy and you have a planet - say it's exactly the same as ours and you've got intelligent people on it - they may have four arms, but, with developed technology. Will you look where we've come in two hundred years, with all our modern equipment and everything? Supposing they were even a thousand years ahead of us, they would've probably stumbled across something which actually we really know nothing about, a thing called teleportation, which means the instant transference of solid matter through other solid matter, just the same as we pick up sound through radio and we pick up two-dimension pictures on TV. This simply means three-dimension projection."

BOND: "May I interrupt one second? Speaking about teleportation, there's some information going around that the United States Navy secretly accomplished the teleportation of a warship from Philadelphia to its home berth in Norfolk by applying Einstein's unified field theory and then it became invisible. How about this? Hogwash or what?"

SANDERSON: Well, yes, I'm afraid to say it, but it is. I know the experimentation at one time on the possibility of bending light in order to create perfect camouflage. If you could bend the light coming at an object - coming to it from outside up to a certain distance around it - you wouldn't be able to see it, you follow me? Now, this great story started from a book by a fellow called Morris Jessup, whom I know very well and a wonderful fellow called Alys Hyanda, called Adam, (he's got a great sense of humor). He was on a naval transport, a commercial ship under naval command during the war in 1943 and it was in a sort of convoy with some naval vessels who were experimenting with what is a form of signalling device, as I understand it, the bending of light and, he mentioned this to Jessup. Jessup was always the mystic although he was trained as an astronomer and he wrote it up in his book. Then a copy of Jessup's book was sent to the office of Naval Research. They were so fascinated that they sent it to a place in Texas and had it all re-done and then they called Jessup in and said, 'Where did you get this story?' and he said, 'I don't know' and they said, 'Look here, the people who annotated the copy of your book are probably gypsies. Have you ever seen anything with this funny phraseology in the way of writing?' and he said, 'Wait a minute, that sounds just like some letters that I've received from a crazy fellow. I've put them in the crackpot file because I thought they were so crazy.' So, he went home and found the letters and they were from this fellow, Carl Allen whom I know personally for many years. He half did it as a joke. It was half a joke and he admits now he should never have done it because even people like the Office of Naval Research took it seriously. Well, that started it all! Then all the screwballs, crackpots, kooks, pseudo-scientists, saucerians, and UFOlogists all got on to it. I suppose, there must be a dozen books published on this subject. The whole of it was a leg-pull on the part of Carl Allen except for the fact that he was in the naval service, and that they were carrying on some experiments. Now this business about being founded on Einstein's unified field theory. Well, naturally, everything is! The moment you get into photoelectrics, photonics, anything. After all, the only thing that Einstein didn't actually do was to prove that gravity had a way of motion and he thought that if that got itself proved (and I believe that we are just in the process of doing it now) then you could probably unify gravitics (gravity . . .being a way of motion) with electro-magnetics which, of course, is linked on the other hand to ordinary material physics, or mechanics as we call it. That's what is called 'the unified theory.' But, anything you did of such a nature would have to be founded on Einstein's principles of relativity - the bending of light, for instance."

BOND: "What about all the strange disappearances, such as the six partrol bombers leaving Florida?

SANDERSON: "Well, that's all that business about the Bermuda Triangle. It's not a triangle and Bermuda's not in it. It turns out to be one of ten, maybe twelve . . .(as of an article published in The Scientific American, we did the preliminary work and found that there wasn't just one of these). They aren't triangles. They're lozenge-shaped things. They're all over water. There was another one known to the Air Force for a long time, south of Japan. The funny effects in these places come and go. Then we did some work - a whole bunch of geologists, geo-physicists, oceanographers - and we found that there were about ten of these things concentrated where there are whirlpools or sort of whirligigs, not whirlpools. The moment I say whirlpool everyone's going to think of a maelstrom or The Sargasso Sea. But, if you look at a map of the surface currents of the oceans, you'll see that there are these ten places where cold water comes jetting from the polar regions into the hot regions and starts turning round and round a lot of hot water. Now, when you get a temperature difference between the outside of a whirligig and a thing going around on the inside, some very curious things happen, which you'd never expect! It concentrates into the center and this is really the explanation of hurricanes, too, and how they get going. How they seem to gather energy rather than dissipate it! Now, funny things do happen from time to time. But, like hurricanes, they only occur sometimes. They whirl and they finally die. But, in some of these ten areas, every now and then, they develop very curious features - something goes wrong with electro-magnetics, for instance, compasses don't work; there's a complete radio blackout; something definitely goes wrong with time (particularly in the one south of Japan) and I have, here, all the documentation from both commercial and military flyers. There are planes that have arrived before they have left and there are those that have taken six hours longer to get somewhere. The only way that could be possible was (they were in touch with the ground all the while, mind you) that they would have to be running into a wind of over 250 miles an hour, 250 knots at about 1,000 ft. And, there is no such wind. If there had been, it would have blown Kwajaleen and Okinawa into the sea! All right now, these areas do have these curious anamolies. What happens when these natural physical forces are sort of tampered with due to the whirling motion? There's a whole science of whirligigs etc. We don't know, but it would seem that things here drop out of our universe - our spaceptime continuum - and it seems to be around these areas that things drop in. I'm back, always back, to what I was saying in the very beginning of our talk, you know. That it's not a question of coming from somewhere else or going somewhere else. It's a question of going out of here and into here, right out of our space-time continuum!"

BOND: "But, what about the disappearance with no trace whatsoever? There's no flotsam or jetsam left behind. And, what about the crews of ships disappearing and the ship is still intact."

SANDERSON: "Ah, wait a minute, now you're coming to another very interesting thing. Of course you wouldn't find any flotsam or jetsam if they drop out. They go right out of our universe so you wouldn't find anything. Let's talk about a boat. There's a boat going through one of these anomalous areas when things begin to go wrong physically. And we think just because it vanished that everything on it will vanish. But it seems to be much more selective than that, especially if there is intelligence behind what is plucked out.

BOND: "How so?"

SANDERSON: "Because sometimes everything alive on board is gone! Other times the human beings are gone, but the canaries and the dogs and pets are left. So, this is . . .

BOND: "Are you saying this is controlled by intelligence?"

SANDERSON: "Yes, intelligence in another space-time continuum! Some of these things are controlled. I've been into this for Good Lord, thirty years now, and I cannot see anything of a purely, or what we would call a 'physical' nature, such as you teach in physics and chemistry in school and our straight-forward materialistic science, which could possibly explain selective snatches such as that. Some of the cases really are most peculiar of where, as I say, the canaries, a parrot, a cat and a couple of dogs are left and every human being has gone off quite large modern ships. The ship's still intact! Other times the whole dang shooting-match disappears. Looks to me as if there is intelligence behind it. Somebody's collecting seamen or . . .And, other times the pets go, and the people are left. If you go to the New York Bureau of Missing Persons, they say supposing 100,000 persons at an average disappear a year and they get back about 70,000 but there are still about . . .12,000 which cannot be accounted for at all. You know, husbands taking powders and people committing suicide, you know, all that sort of thing. Police have an incredible record for getting them and yet there is this tremendous mass which are not accounted for (and a lot of them disappear in the presence of other people). This is what is so very odd, the ones that they don't see! You see, if a husband decides suddenly: "I'm going to Nevada, take a powder, change my name, grow a beard"...that's one thing. You don't see that person go, really. Whereas it's the one who says: "I'll be back in one second"...and vanishes. Now, those are the ones that they never find."

BOND: "Maybe they're the chosen few?"

SANDERSON: "But how the heck do you know who I am, for instance, and how do I know who you are? I mean, you may be from someplace else. You may not know it, but you might still be from someplace else. What about Ted Serios, . . .this fellow takes photographs by pointing a camera . . .Without a lens and without a camera, he still gets photographs and sensitive film about places he has never been to. That's another whole bit."

BOND: "I think that's psychic photography."

SANDERSON: "First of all, I don't think it's any such thing as 'psychic'. It should be called parapsychic, which is like we have been taught to think of as psychic. I don't think there is anything psychic. I am an entire materialist. And, then I would like to go back to what I nearly finished before: about what is the difference about coming here, instantaneously, from the other side of our galaxy in our universe, or dropping out of another universe and coming here instantaneously. This is the point: we are working up to the immediate transmission of solids. See, radio is airborne, but the actual transmission from the transmitter is instantaneous, just the same as our power. People think you manufacture power and then pipe it down from Buffalo and down to New York from Niagara Falls. You don't. You use it at the moment it is being made because it's 100 millionths of a second . . .it travels at the speed of light. Exactly the same with the actual broadcast, what is then reconverted back into sound waves. Television is instantaneous. Instantaneous transference of this ashtray, for instance, from here through these walls to my apartment which is about six blocks down the road . . .THAT is teleportation. But, if you can do that within our universe you can do it instantly from any distance in our universe. And, don't forget, our universe is circular. I mean - to over-simplify - Einstein said if you can go on to infinity in one direction you will eventually hit the back of your head. Because, actually, space is curved . . .our space. There are a lot of other curved spaces mixed up in it. You can go from one side of one universe to the other side of the universe instantaneously because you are really there already! It's where you started from! You can also come from another universe and pop in out here or in there anytime you want once you've got teleportation, or instantaneous projection. I call it ITF - instantaneous transference. This is what we are working up to and this is what scientists - thinking scientists - and all the governments have come to the conclusion is the method by which UFO's appear and disappear and move about and make angular turns and so on.

BOND: "From another dimension, in other words."

SANDERSON: "No, no, not another dimension. This is where everybody makes a mistake. There can only be three dimensions. The mathematical proof of that appeared some time ago in Germany and then, also, in England and it has now come out in a leading scientific journal here. You can't have a fourth dimension. The whole thing would collapse. You can't have any space which is unidimensional, or linear or two-dimensional. It's got to have three dimensions otherwise there will not be a universe. It won't exist in space. Now, there is no fourth dimension, but another set of three dimension or another set and another set and another set, an infinite number of three dimensions, not a fourth dimension."

BOND: "Let's get down to the nitty-gritty. What are the UFOs that people are seeing?"

SANDERSON: "All kinds of things that are coming through from another universe. But, if those which are controlled by intelligence you will see what they want you to see and what you expect to see. But, you certainly won't see something that you couldn't imagine and they wouldn't show you anything that they didn't want to show you. They will only show you what they want to show you. In other words, we are all controlled."

BOND: "What about the reports of the contacts of the so-called 'humanoids' walking the earth and people taking rides in UFO's and people being taken aboard them, like Betty and Barney Hill from Exeter, New Hampshire?"

SANDERSON: "All the same—superior intelligence is coming here and maybe they are collecting us or maybe they are studying us to see how we are getting on. Or maybe they are playing games!"

BOND: "But then you do admit there are some forms of unidentified aerial objects."

SANDERSON: "Of course there are! I'm telling you!"

BOND: "What about space animals?"

SANDERSON: "'Ditto." I mean, after all, they could create a space animal just as much as they could a space machine."

BOND: "Living on the Van Allen belt, or something like that, I suppose?"

SANDERSON:"NO, NO, that would be within OUR universe. They come from Ultra - from another universe. But, we MAY have space animals. We've lots of jelly running around living on space energy. I have always thought that's possible. That's another probability. But you can't say (to talk about UFO's) as if they were flower pots, or houses. It's not so. Look at the number of different things there are in the North Atlantic Ocean, for instance. I believe there are 140,000 species of foreign miniflora alone and 48,000 species of fish, and God knows you can go on forever."

BOND: "What about this theory of a hole in the earth? You know where the interrestrial beings . . ."

SANDERSON: "The Hollow Earth!" Personally, I really do think that's a lot of rubbish. We do know too much about our little planet, now, to believe that there is a hole somewhere. Admiral Byrd would never have got out if there was. He's supposed to have gone down, or some rubbish."

BOND: "But, aren't there holes that penetrate the Van Allen Belt themselves from the poles themselves, the South Pole and North Pole?"

SANDERSON: "Oh yes, through our atmosphere that's supposed to be true, but not through solids or through water or ice. That's pure mechanics. I mean, if you have a hole . . .As a matter of fact there's one very interesting thing about this report which started all this stuff about the hole in the earth. It was made by Admiral Byrd, and it was a matter of pure semantics. What he stated in his report was that when he was flying over the Antarctic both times he said, "we've flown beyond the pole." . . .not over the pole. But, he said "beyond" the pole. It was simply his way of saying that we came from one side . . .you see when we get to the poles there is no geography because it all comes to a point. So, supposing he came from the North America side and went to the Atlantic side, you and I would much more likely say we flew 'over' the pole, but in his dispatches he said, "I flew beyond the pole." And then they reported they began to see vegetation and so on. Well, of course they would because they were in Siberia! People turned that around and said that they'd flown off the earth and hit a sort of reverse earth somewhere else."

BOND: "What about Atlantis re-appearing?"

SANDERSON: "Now, Atlantis. There never was such a thing. There probably were a great number of large islands in the Central Atlantic which were above the surface at the middle late Pleistocene period. That's just before our modern period. More especially, as the sea levels were certainly different and the continental levels were up and down. That there was a great continent out there which had cities on it and civilization started on it and all that, I see no evidence of that, whatsoever. But, that there were large islands which were inhabited by peoples of a pretty advanced state of culture (in some volumes too, about the Stone Age, the late Paleolithic Age) the people who did that beautiful art in Spain, they probably did come out of the sea in the West from these islands which sank. The actual story of Atlantis, itself, is pretty well proved now that it was that volcanic island in the Aegean which was the sort of mode picture before it blew up and caused the end of the Minoan civilization in Crete. That's all now pretty well established by dating the radioactive carbon etc. But, that's where the civilization was and it got transferred in the old Greek stories . . .(They were stories, too. They weren't reports) . . .to something outside the pillars of Athens and Gibraltar. Now, this could happen is proved by the greatest expert on Atlantis, a man called Louis Spence, a Scotchman who spent all his life and he was serious-minded. He didn't go in for the idea of a great continent with pillars made of solid gold. He was trying to find evidence from exploration of the ocean bottom. He was particularly interested in what had been found on the bottom of the ocean, in the Atlantic Ocean; the early German explorers The Dolphin - his ship - was given the name 'Dolphin' by Reich and he found evidence that considerable areas in what we call the Central Atlantic were definitely above the sea not too long ago, just about 9,000 years ago. They got land snails which can't live in the sea... You can tell fresh-water snails from these . . .and they got a certain kind of lava flow which can only form in air. If the volcano is under water that stuff couldn't form because the chemical constitution would be wrong. All right. He then got a report from a friend in America . . . (this is, to me, one of the most fascinating stores that I've ever known) which was a newspaper clipping saying that the main cable between the Island of Santa Domingo and the Cape of Good Hope (which is now the Republic of South Africa) had broken and that the cable ship had gone out and found that the sea bottom had risen a mile and a quarter straight up, thereby stretching the cable and broke it. That came out in Spence's last book and it was final proof that if land could come up a mile and a quarter, straight up in an ocean bottom overnight, land could go down. Well, of course, every scientist pounced on him because, of couurse 'the man's a crackpot anyhow', but they don't mind straight crackpots; you know orthodox scientists. What they DO mind are people who pin on facts and stick by them. in scientific circles. But, Louis Spence had literally, really, taken stuff right out of their mouths, do you see? All right. They went for him and said, "How ridiculous! The sea bottom rises a mile and a quarter? (and this is one of the main cables?) When did it happen? Where? What's the ship? Spence wrote to his friend, who was a professor, as a matter of fact, in one of our universities in the United States, asking "where did you get that clipping?" His friend replied, "I can't remember where and what newspaper I got it from." I heard about this and started digging. I found the original and I traced it to a magazine called ZODIAC, which is the official publication of the British Wireless and Telegraphic Organization. It is government . . .it is their official document. I got the name of the ship. She was named The Brittannia . . .a cable-laying vessel. It did come up a mile and a quarter overnight. I got all the documentation and everything, and sent them to Spence because I knew that this was the one thing that had really destroyed his whole life's work. I got a letter back, about three weeks later from his wife saying, "I'm sorry, my husband passed away two days before your letter arrived." But it does prove what we found out that there could have been large land masses in what is now the Atlantic Ocean up until quite recently. So, therefore, Atlantis as a great continent with a civilization equivalent to ours 9,000 yrs. ago? There is no evidence or proof of that! It is rubbish! That there are large islands inhabited by advanced Stone Age people I think is extremely likely. I think one of these days they are going to dredge up some stone implements and things."

BOND: "Haven't they found some things off . . .ancient Roman columns, I think, off the coast of Bermuda or Bimini? I think some steps that go down, very deep curved steps with some sort of hieroglyphics on the side?"

SANDERSON: "Much worse than that! You've got it, almost. The steps are enormous things. They are about 100 ft. high, I think, and 100 ft. wide, off the coast of Puerto Rico. It is absolutely astonishing! I have seen some of the underwater sonar tracings. Just like a set of perfectly man-made steps except that they are for 1,000 ft. giants. You know what I mean? That's odd! Now these things found off Bimini and round about the Bahamas, there's quite a lot of them, you know and they are, no doubt, buildings. When the first ones were photographed and disclosed, of course, some scientists know where the others are, but they don't want to give the location, otherwise you would have 10,000 ate the visitation of the gods that took place some 12,000 years ago. In Meroe, Sudan, there are 10-foot high pyramids while in Peru one of the largest pyramidal structures at Armatambo is part of a walled compound measuring 2300-2750 feet!

Moreover, the pyramidal tomb of Emperor Shi-huang-ti, who lived in third century B.C. and is known as the founder of the Chinese Empire, measures 1600 by 1700 feet at the base. The noted Japanese scholar, Adachi (1933), considered this to be one of the largest pyramids in China; indeed, its base area is about five times that of the Great Pyramid in Egypt.

The connection between Chinese and Egyptian pyramids belongs to the tradition of the Megalithic centers. The Egyptian and Chinese scholars measured and recorded the motions of the heavens with reference to certain established markers on the earth. They were also thought to be the necessary means for the continuation of man's evolution into the stars after the completion of a given earth cycle. In addition, the pyramids in Babylonia, Peru and Mexico seem to have been the 'time clocks' indicating on a microcosmic scale the evolution of the human race from a point of beginning to a point of planetary departure. They similarly reveal the continuation of man's evolution into the stars on an infinitely expanding scale after the completion of the earth cycle.

It is still a moot question why the pyramids of Egypt and China seemed to have been built primarily for the dead while those of Babylonia, Peru and Mexico served primarily as astronomical-ceremonial centers for the living, yet they were both connected with heavenly progressions.

In the Egyptian Pyramid Texts (Sethe) we read, "Atum-Kheprer, thou was elevated on the height, brilliant as the Stone of the Phoenix (an 'upright stone') in the House of the Phoenix (a symbol of 'rebirth') in Heliopolis," the On of the Bible. When the noted Egyptologist, James Breasted went to Heliopolis, he saw in the obelisk a petrified sunbeam, just as he saw in the triangular sides of a pyramid the spreading and descending rays of the sun. He held that "the pyramid was the chief symbol of the Sun-god" going back to the King of Egypt who was actually buried within the pyramid, because the pyramid, pyramidion, and obelisk are all means of transmitting life-giving life and power from heaven to earth. Other scholars like Moret (1936) have seen in the sides of the pyramid an inclined plane or, originally, a stairway formed by the rays of Atum-Khepri, by which the King mounted up to the sky. Clearly the Egyptian pyramids were associated with events in the heavens connected with the next level of evolution where mythology and higher scientific reality could unite earthman with the stars of Sirius and Orion, once he had completed his organic cycles.

These organic cycles, in a larger sense of millions of years, may be extended to include magnetic reversals–and polar wandering curves for the various continents. Thus, the pyramid could be a gauge to determine cataclysmic events such as the relocation of the poles as inferred from magnetized rock-coupled with knowledge of the polarity existing at a given period.

In studying the pyramids in Egypt, C. J. Bleeker (1965) writes: "A profound symbolism has been incorporated into the architecture of the Pyramids..the mound of the creation" is also "a sign of triumph over death," since it "embodies the idea that the Pharaoh might participate in the resurrection of the sun-god." The mythological teachings of death and deliverance to other planetary worlds of intelligence is illustrated in a very real sense by the high water-mark some 200 feet up on the Great Pyramid. One might note that the geometrical form of the pyramid is the best model to survive catastrophes like the biblical flood. This also suggests the pyramidal grid at Giza may have been part of a vast geomagnetic grid connected with the rise and fall of life forces in our solar system, for within it is mathematically coded the elliptical orbits of the planets around our Sun and the magnetic paradigm controlling the biological rhythms of Man.

The Unusual Pyramid Grid

The Mariner 9 high resolution photographs present a unique case for a table of correspondences with earth analogs where grids are involved, particularly the nine pyramids which form a grid at Giza near Cairo.

The value of this grid can be determined from comparing the distances between the pyramid sets and the mean diameter of the base which is approximately 3.0-6 km, inferred from photometry and the linear measurement of the large pyramids set off from surrounding polygonal forms. The proportions of the grid are ten times the size of the Great Pyramid of Cheops which may well stand as the epitome of all structures of antiquity. Measurement from the Great Pyramid, for example, multiplied to the tenth power totals 91,840,000 miles, the approximate distance of the earth from the Sun (Smyth,

Is it true the amazing secret of TELECULT POWER

AUTOMATICALLY BRINGS YOU ANYTHING YOU DESIRE...

And in 10 seconds starts to draw Riches, Love, Fine Possessions, Friends, Power, Secret Knowledge, and much more into your life? See for yourself!

Yes, a staggering miracle has happened; A brilliant psychic researcher has discovered a secret—so powerful that it is said to bring your desires to you, from the invisible world, like a blazing streak of lightning!

Yes, how would you like to be able to sit in your living room, give the command for love, and instantly have your loved one appear at your side? Or give the command for money, and suddenly find a big, thick roll of dollars in your hand?

Now, a daring new book called TELECULT POWER lays bare this magic secret, and shows how it can bring fortune, love, and happiness. And Reese P. Dubin – the man who discovered it – makes this shocking claim . . .

"Great Wealth And Power Can Be Yours!"

Admittedly, the concept this book proposes is completely opposed and contrary to normal human knowledge and experience. "But at this very moment," says Mr. Dubin, "I have startling proof that I want you to see with your own eyes! I want to show you . . .

- "How diamonds and jewels have appeared, seemingly out of nothingness,, shortly after the use of this strange secret!"
- "How a man used this method for a pocketful of money!"
- "How a woman used it to fill an empty purse!"
- "How a farmer received a pot full of gold!"
- "How another user Teleported a gold jewel box to her, seemingly out of thin air!"
- "How a woman used this method to regain her lost youth!"
- "How a man, growing bald, claims he renewed the growth of his hair with this secret!"
- "How a woman used it to bring her mate to her, without asking!"
- "How another woman summoned a man to her –out of thin air!"
- "How a man heard the unspoken thoughts of others, with this secret!"
- "How a woman saw behind walls and over great distances, with it!"
- "How a man broadcast silent commands that others had to obey!"

Let us now clearly demonstrate to you the scientific basis behind the new wonderworking, Miracle of TELECULT POWER!

"How Telecult Power Brings Any Desire Easily And Automatically!"

For many years, Reese P. Dubin dreamed of a way to call upon the invisible forces at work all around us. He spent a lifetime digging and searching for the secret. These investigations brought him knowledge that goes back to the dim recesses of the past.

One day, to his astonishment, he discovered that he could actually broadcast silent commands, which others instantly obeyed. Using the secret he tells you about in this book, he tried it time after time – commanding others to sleep, get up and come to him, talk or not talk – and act according to his silent wishes. It worked every time!

Working relentlessly from this evidence, Reese P. Dubin succeeded in perfecting a new kind of instrument – called a Tele-Photo Transmitter – that concentrates your thoughts, and sends them like a streaking bullet to their destination!

OTHERS OBEY SILENT COMMANDS! Writing of the success of this method, one user reports the following experience:

"I willed her to pick up and eat a biscuit from a plate in a corner of the room. She did so. I willed her to shake hands with her mother. She rushed to her mother and stroked her hands . . .

"I willed her to nod. She stood still and bent her head, I willed her to clap her hands, play a note on the piano, write her name, all of which she did."

"No one can escape the power of this method," says Mr. Dubin. "Everybody – high or low, ignorant or wise – all are subject to its spell! And unless the person is told what's being done, he will think the thoughts are his own!"

HEARS THE THOUGHTS OF OTHERS! Experimenting further with the Tele-Photo Transmitter, Reese P. Dubin soon found that he could "tune in" and HEAR the unspoken thoughts of others. He says, "At first, these hearing impressions startled me, and I took them for actual speech, until I realized that people don't usually say such things aloud! And their lips remained closed."

SEES BEYOND WALLS,- AND OVER GREAT DISTANCES! Then he discovered he could pick up actual sights, from behind walls and over great distances! And when he "tuned in" he could see actual living scenes before him—as clear as the picture on a television screen!

MAKES WOMAN APPEAR – SEEMINGLY OUT OF THIN AIR! With mounting excitement, Reese P. Dubin launched one of the most exciting experiments in the history of psychic research. He wanted to see if the Tele-Photo Transmitter could bring him an actual material object! He chose, for this experiment, the seemingly impossible: an actual living person!

He simply focused the Tele-Photo Transmitter, by dialing the object of his desire. In a flash the door burst open, and there – standing before him, as real as life – was his long-lost cousin!

He stared and rubbed his eyes, and looked again! There – smiling, with arms outstretched in greeting– stood living proof of the most astounding discovery of the Century!

Dial Any Treasure!

You'll see how to use the Tele-Photo Transmitter, to summon your desires. This special instrument – your mental equipment – requires no wires, and no electricity. "Yet," says Mr. Dubin, "it can teleport desires, swiftly from the invisible world."

When you dial your desire–whether for riches, love, or secret knowledge–you capture its invisible, photoplasmic form, at which point "it starts to materialize!" says Dr. Dubin.

"Telecult Power can work seeming miracles in your life," says Mr. Dubin. "With it, it is possible to dial any desire – called a Photo-Form – then sit back, relax, and watch this powerful secret go to work!"

"Instantly Your Life Is Changed!"

With this secret, the mightiest force in the Universe is at your command! "Simply ask for anything you want," says Mr. Dubin, "whether it be riches, love, fine possessions, power, friends, or secret knowledge!"

Suppose you had dialed Photo-Form #2 for Jewels, for example. That's what Margaret C. did, in an actual example Mr. Dubin tells you about. Rich, glittering diamonds and jewels literally appeared at her feet: a pair of gold earrings, which she found that morning . . . a surprise gift of a pearl necklace, and matching silver bracelets . . . a beautiful platinum ring set with emeralds and diamonds, dropped on her front lawn!

"Almost overnight," says Mr. Dubin, "it can start to multiply riches, bring romance and love . . . draw favors, gifts, new friends . . . or anything else asked for! It isn't necessary for you to understand why. What is important is that it has already worked for many others . . . men and women in all walks of life . . . worked every time . . . and it will work for you, too!"

Brings A Pocket Full Of Money!

You'll see how Jerry D. used this method. He was broke a week before payday. All he did, he says, was to dial Photo-Form #1. Suddenly he felt a bulge in his pocket. Lo and behold! He took out a roll of money . . . fives, tens, twenties . . . and more! Obviously, it had been placed there—but when? And by whom?

A Brand New Car Comes!

Marty C., a taxi driver, reports that he just dialed Photo-Form #4, sat back, relaxed, and waited for things to happen. In a short time, great excitement filled the house. His wife came hurrying in, saying, "We won it! We won a car and a cash prize! They just delivered it!" He got up and went to the window. There, big and beautiful, standing in the driveway, was a brand new Cadillac!

Brings Mate Without Asking!

Mrs. Conrad B. reports that she was tired of "pursuing" her husband, as she called it. She wanted him to voluntarily do the things she longed for, take her places, show affection. But he hadn't looked at her in years. He would fall asleep immediately after supper, or watched the ball games, or read the papers. Secretly Mrs. B. decided to try this method. She dialed Photo-Form #9 for Love! Instantly, her husband's attitude changed from boredom to interest and enthusiasm. And from that day forward, he showered her with kindness and affection! It was like a miracle come true!

The Power Of This Method!

There are so many personal experiences which I could recount, stories of healing, wealth, and happiness with this secret, that I find myself wanting to tell all of them at once. Here are just a few . . .

- REGAINS HAIR GROWTH! Walter C. had a shiny bald head with just a fringe of white hair showing around the edges. He tried this method, and soon his hair began to regrow. The new hair came in thick, dark, and luxurious!
- ROLLS DICE 50 TIMES WITHOUT MISSING ONCE! You'll see how this secret gave Albert J. the power to roll the dice 50 times, without missing once, and–for the first time in the history of Las Vegas–walk away with $500,000!
- DISSOLVES ALL EVIL! You'll see how this amazing secret revealed to Lawrence M. the people who were trying to make him look silly at work–actually revealed their secret thoughts–made them confess and apologize!

If TELECULT POWER can do all this for others, what riches, what rewards, what amazing results can it also bring to you?

1877). It has also been noted (Pietsch, 1973) that by taking the principle standard of measurement in the Great Pyramid (i.e. pyramid feet) and calculating that in terms of one arc second of longitude on the equator we arrive at a total of 101,430555, which can be divided by 10 to equal a pure rotational day of Saturn. Moreover, the Great Pyramid, in addition to the function of "pi," contains many complex orbital inclinations. All this suggests that the Martian pyramid models may be part of an inner-planetary magnetic engine connected with energy coordinates used in planet-forming activities begun some 4-1/2 billion years ago.

Pyramid structures which range in dimensions of 3.0-base to 6.0 km mean diameter have been identified in the "Elysium Quadrangle" of Mars. Geologic processes that could result in such features have not produced a satisfactory scientific explanation for the pyramids. Thus we must keep in mind that what may appear to be a natural hill from an aerial view may be a pyramidal artifact.

The existence of pyramidal structures on Mars and earth tends to substantiate a vast system of communication. These structures could once have connected a worldwide network on this planet with a futurist society that was capable of probing our solar system.

Furthermore, given the considerations that the GREAT Pyramid may be an astrophysical computer indicating the time clock of our solar system, the pyramidal paradigms on earth and Mars may be part of a greater energy grid system in the cosmos. This grid system could have been used by members of an advanced technical civilization to survey the planets through pyramidal transmitters measuring biomes and cycles of planetary change.

The pyramids may be the stepping stones to unlocking the keys to future space bringing us closer to the discovery, recognition, and communication with advanced technical civilizations, civilizations that may have upgraded the human race thousands of years ago.

Several decades ago, the victory of Darwin's evolution by natural selection made it appear that evolution is the ultimate truth. But by means of competition for existence, never could such different forms as human intelligence and an insect with many legs evolve from the same unicellular form, not even in six billion years. Mutations were necessary, and today we know that by cosmic and x-rays, by thermal and chemical means--conditions brought in the catastrophes of the past--massive mutations can be achieved.

Perhaps, instead of preparing for the Viking scan of Martian micro-intelligence, we might prepare ourselves for a closer examination of pyramidal structures as blueprints for bio-magnetic analogs? The Martian and Egyptian pyramidal grids may be models preparing us to meet the "superior architects" in our immediate universe?

Perhaps, the pyramid is a future artifact? □

"Now—In Just 30 Seconds, these METAPHYSICAL COMMANDS Can Start Helping You to...

- ★ Take fantastic astral journeys outside your body into the dimensions of past, present, and future!
- ★ Win astounding control over people and events: attract to yourself money, material things, people and conditions that you wish to have in your life!
- ★ Rejuvenate the cells of your body, enjoy new health, new youth, new vitality, by commanding the very life-forces within you—and that's just the beginning!

Says ANTHONY NORVELL, Famous Psychic Investigator

Dear Friend:

After 25 years of research, I have discovered the key to all Astral and Psychic phenomena, one that has worked time after time for countless men and women—a simple secret that you can use easily to achieve any desired result in life!

For I have discovered that every one of the powers which you possess—(sight, hearing, taste, touch, smell)—has a mental duplicate, an extension of itself in the Fourth Dimension. Grouped together, they form your Astral Body, which you can use, the same as you use your physical body.

But, your Astral Body can do many things that your physical body alone can't, for it is part of the Fourth Dimension—an (invisible) sea of electrons which flows in, through, and around the physical, giving it form and substance. Your Astral Body can flow right through solid matter, materialize in plain sight of others, perform every one of the functions of your physical body—sight, hearing, taste, touch, and smell—all the while being controlled by you!

You can control your Astral Body by giving it certain specific commands—METAPHYSICAL COMMANDS which I spell out for you in plain English in my new book "Meta-physics: New Dimension of the Mind." For instance, you can command your Astral Body to . . .

• MATERIALIZE IN FRONT OF SOMEONE AT A DISTANCE — Your Astral Body is invisible because it is super charged with electrons vibrating at invisible speed. It can, however materialize in plain sight of everyone, as a "thought-form," by vibrating more slowly. In this manner, it is possible to "remind" someone — at a distance — of your presence!

• "BLEND" YOUR THOUGHTS WITH THOSE OF SOMEONE ELSE — Since your Astral Body is an invisible extension of your own — with a mind that is an extension of your own — it is possible to "blend" this mind with the mind of someone else to find out what he or she is thinking, and even implant your own thoughts in the minds of others!

• DUPLICATE ANY OBJECT IN EXISTENCE AND MAKE IT YOUR OWN — Your Astral Body exists and is part of the Fourth Dimension — a sea of tiny electrical particles from which all matter is formed. By giving your Astral Body an Electromagnetic Command to duplicate some object — an expensive piece of furniture, for example — it pulls the particles in the air together to form a solid replica of that which you desire!

• LIFT AND CARRY OBJECTS, TRANSPORT THEM TO YOU FROM A DISTANCE — You can command your Astral Body to lift solid objects, using its own concentrated energy — such as lifting a pair of dice and making them roll the way you want.

• "READ" OTHER PEOPLE'S PAST AND FUTURE — Since, with your Astral Body, you can "tune in" to the thoughts of any person, all memories and future plans of his become an open book to you.

• HEAL THE VERY CELLS OF YOUR BODY — Your Astral Body can help heal you if you are sick, keep you healthy, strong and youthful — add years to your life! If your body is rundown, tired or "old" it can charge and rejuvenate the very cells of your body with its own vibrant electron energy to make you look and feel years younger!

• TALK TO THE COSMIC MIND, RECEIVE HELP IN EVERY MATTER — Your Astral Body is your only true means of communications with the higher Spirit Plane. In this manner, it is possible for you to talk to the Cosmic Mind, just as you would to family or friends, and receive help and guidance in every matter!

MEET THE AUTHOR

Anthony Norvell is a world-famous psychic investigator, known to thousands (through his books and articles) for his amazing discoveries in the realm of the occult. Here, for the first time, he presents the sum total of his investigations in the secrets of ancient India, China, Tibet and Greece.

IF YOU READ NOTHING ELSE, READ THIS:

To begin to gain it's wonder-working benefits in every area of your life, there is absolutely no need to STUDY this revolutionary new volume, or even read it from cover to cover, or expend any more "literary" effort on your part than to browse through it at your leisure for one or two thrilling minutes a day! This is NOT a textbook! Therefore, I do NOT want you to treat this amazing volume as you would an ordinary book! Instead all I ask you to do is this:

Place it on your bedstand and browse through just a few pages every night before you retire. But make absolutely no conscious effort to "study" this book, "work" on it, or even memorize a single one of its thrilling techniques!

Inevitably, simply by browsing through it alone, you will still find yourself with an ever-increasing ability to WIN ASTOUNDING CONTROL over the people and events around you . . . attract to yourself money . . . possessions . . . people . . . virtually ANYTHING you wish to have in your life! All through a few incredibly-simple techniques that you can put to work the very first time you pick up this book! Try it, entirely at my risk, for 30 days.

How To Command Your Astral Body To Bring You Ever Increasing Abundance

Why am I so positive this technique will work for you? Because it has worked for thousands of other men and women in all walks of life — and is working for them right now! People like . . .

June C., a secretary who had been working for the same firm for three years and thought she deserved a raise in salary. But her boss was the grouchy, penny-pinching type. So after learning the Metaphysical Command for projecting her Astral Body, she mentally projected her mind into her boss's mind, and stated: "June deserves a raise. You will give her a raise of ten dollars a week."

A short time later, her boss called her into his office. There was a strange expression on his face and he said: 'I don't know why I'm doing this, but I feel you deserve a ten dollar raise in salary!"

A lady who had a 17-year-old daughter, came to one of my lectures at Carnegie Hall. She was a widow, and though she had worked hard to bring up her daughter, they never had more than just enough to get along. After this lady learned the Metphysical Command for controlling her Astral Body, she bought a sweepstakes ticket. By maintaining an "astral grip" on this ticket, she caused her number to be chosen — and won a grand total of $144,000!

In my files I have hundreds of such instances of men and women who have used this metaphysical principle and who have attracted sums of money ranging from ten thousand dollars to inheritances of a quarter of a million!

How Metaphysical Healing Can Add Years To Your Life—Make You Look And Feel Years Younger!

If you want to remain healthy, vigorous and strong, my book shows you exactly how to draw upon your Astral Body for its wonderful healing energy, through Metaphysical Command!

You'll see how a woman who had developed violent attacks of hay fever and asthma was healed. How a man with an ulcer had a miraculous healing. How a woman who suffered from crippling arthritis for twenty years used these Metaphysical Commands — and her arthritis completely disappeared! How a man with sugar diabetes who had to take daily shots of insulin, commanded this Astral power to himself and was healed, so that he could discontinue the injections entirely.

The secret? Metaphysical Healing, the same technique revealed to you now in the pages of my new book.

Win Astounding Control Over Other People!

There is no limit to the things you can do with Metaphysical Command of your Astral Body. For example, a lady who came to one of my lectures complained that her husband nagged and abused her constantly. She could hardly stand being in his presence because of his constant criticism. I showed this woman the Metaphysical Commands for blending her mind with his, to dictate thoughts of love to him — and days later she came back to tell me with joy how her husband had been transformed into a peaceful understanding man!

Impossible? Hardly. For it happens again and again.

All Yours To Prove—For 30 Days—

You owe it to yourself to try it! How can you lose? Why not send in the No-Risk Coupon — TODAY!

Very truly yours, left by a race that inhabited the southern tip of the United States long before even the Indians arrived on our shores.

Meanwhile, Rene Dahinden of Vancouver, Canada spent ten days in Moscow calling on Soviet scientists

Armed with a suitcase full of giant footprint impressions he sought Soviet aid in tracking down the half-man, half-gorilla creatures reportedly seen throughout the world.

"They were skeptical, but very open minded" Dahinden reported upon his return. He said officials of the Soviet Academy of Sciences have arranged for experts to study a film of an alleged "Snowman".

Dahinden says he visited the USSR because there have been some established scientists who have investigated sightings of the Yeti in the mountain regions of Pamir and Caucaus. Soviet evidence includes reports of sightings by shepherds, cattlemen, doctors and teachers. According to one report published in the Soviet press a Snowman was killed in 1925 when he was hit by bullets while caught between Red and White troops during the civil war.

In 1966 the officer commanding the Red units, Maj. Gen. M. Topilsky, told a symposium that he and his men at first thought the dead creature was a "counter-revolutionary dressed up, but the doctor of the unit and I examined him and I became convinced he was some kind of very strange being resembling a human being but all covered with thick wool."

Similar reports were tracked down by the USSR Geographical Society who investigated some 219 observations of the creature over a five year period.

One of the most fascinating incidents involved a creature who had been kept under close guard for a number of years. Residents of the village of Tkhina claim that in the early 1870's a female "Yeti" was captured by the townspeople who were amazed to discover that despite the apparent wildness of the creature it could be trained to do certain chores like carrying water, wood and sacks of grain.

Zana, as she was nicknamed, was of enormous build and her body was covered with thick black hair. She never learned to talk but could only mumble and squeal.

When Zana died in the 1880s the entire village attended her funeral as she was very much liked by those living in the village who considered her the town mascot.

YETI AND UFOS

As we pointed out earlier certain correlations between the appearances of these strange Yeti-like creatures and UFO activity areas have been made.

One of the earliest accounts of this nature was told to author Brad Steiger by a former Army Intelligence officer.

According to this officer, his grandfather's journal dated 1888 tells of an eyewitness, incident which details the interaction of these creatures, certain Indian tribes, and UFOs during the last century.

Is This A Photo Of Bigfoot Or, Is It A Hoax?

States Mr. Steiger: "Grandfather was somewhere along the Hunboldt Line in the "Big Woods Country" where his father and several hands had wintered with a tribe of Indians after delivering some cattle to a fort farther north. Grandfather was fluent in many Indian languages, proficient in sign talk, and partook of most of the tribal activities.

"One day he came upon an Indian carrying a large platter of raw meat. At first the Indian seemed afraid to answer Grandpa's questions concerning his errand, but the redman finally bade Grandpa to follow him."

He was taken to a shallow cave where he was shown a beast whose body was covered with long, shiny black hair. The "man-like" creature made no attempt to attack either party and simply sat cross-legged on the dirty stone floor eating the food that had been provided. Steiger says his informants's grandfather described the creature as being built like "a big, well-developed man, except for its lack of neck and its long shody hair." Its head seemed to lay directly upon its shoulders.

After bribing the Indian guide with several pounds of tobacco a compass and an axe, the officer's grandfather was told of the creature's origin.

"Crazy Bear," as the creature was called by the Indians, had been brought to the Big Woods from the stars. A "small moon" had flown down like a soaring eagle and had landed on a plateau a few miles away from the Indian's encampment. The beast in the cave and two other crazy bears had been flung out of the "moon" before the craft had once again soared off to the stars.

The Indian told Grandfather that other "bears" had been left in the vicinity over the years. The Indian guide and several of his fellow villagers had occasionally seen the "men" who put the crazy bears off the "moons". They did not look like the hairy creatures, but looked like men such as themselves. The "men" from the "small moon" had shorter hair than the Indians though, and they wore shiny clothing. They had waved to the Indians in a friendly manner, closed a door in the side of their ship and flown away."

It was believed among the tribe that the "crazy bears" were put there to bring them luck and they did everything within their power to make certain that one of the "bears" did not wander off or get kidnapped by a rival Indian settlement.

We can only speculate as to what all this means. UFO sightings continue to come in each month and along with them reports of strange hairy humanoids.

Readers who would like to read further on Big Foot will find The Search for Big Foot packed with information regarding sightings and encounters with the American Yeti.

The author, Peter Byrne, is the founder of International Wildlife Conservation Society and has been tracking down Big Foot for many years The book is published by Acropolis Books.

We hope to have an interview with Mr. Byrne in a future issue. □

In Great Britain, There is a group of individuals called "The British Hollow Earth Society" Head of the organization is Mr. Albert McDonald. If you would like, we will forward your name to them.

Dear Editor,

I have been trying to locate your friend Ray Thomas Majors. I am a former resident of Jonestown, and there is no Ray Thomas Majors living in Jonestown. If he does, he gets his mail at another location. My guess is that your Mr. Majors is with the United States Army stationed at Indian Town Gap, now known as Edward Martin. He would then get his mail through the Annville Post Office-- even though he in all probability sends his mail out through the Jonestown Post Office. It's only a few miles from the base.

A check with the Base would find him. He is surely a flyer of sorts. Maybe he isn't using his real name, fear of being laughed at, I suppose. And we are laughing. What I wanted to say to him isn't important, I guess. Only that he doesn't know a good magazine when he buys one. He really seems like an intelligent sort otherwise. Too bad.

Editor's note:

The individual this writer is referring to, had written a rather lengthy letter which we published in the March-April, 1976 issue.

Dear Editor,

I believe that I have the answer to the Bermuda Traingle mystery. The Triangle is I think a gate to another world which is connected by another gate on another world similar to this one.

I think it's quite probable that the gates are inerdimensional in nature;but because these gates are found here on earth then it is more than probable that their openings would be found also on a planet. If this is true the people who have entered this Gate are still alive, and don't know how to return, it is possible that the gates are one way, although the UFOs don't seem to have any trouble going back and forth.

There are, at last count, twelve such areas or "anomalies" on this earth. Unless all of the gates open up on the same world, there could be at least twelve such new worlds for man to explore. It is also probable that each of these other worlds would also have approximately twelve gates, opening up on still another twelve worlds ad almost infinitum.

This may be why no signals have been picked up interstellarly by scientists, because if the transit is instantaneous there would be no reason to send such messages in the first place. Nor would it be economical to maintain such devices, either.

It is possible that the gates are artificial but it is also quite possible that they are natural. And are a part of the structure of this planet. These gates could also have to do with why new species of animals pop up eventually on this planet from time to time without any perceivable forebears, and why for the majority of animals and plants there are no missing links to be found. Including man himself.

It is my opinion that life did not evolve here on earth but was transplanted by extraterrestrials from other worlds. There have been instances in recorded history where entire villages disappeared from the face of the earth, perhaps they were transplanted elsewhere.

Dear Editor,

While I was writing about La Casita Restaurant being the best and only traditional Mexican food restaurant in Anchorage, Alaska, my eyes fell upon a magazine that was laying on top of the table, and what caught my eyes was the headline about mysterious force that shatters glass and, it took me back to 1964 to Merced, California, where we had pretty close to 20 windows.

One night while my husband was at work, and my kids were doing their homework in the dining room, all of a sudden, all of the windows started to shatter all over the house, and there was a very loud humming noise all around the house. I called the police and my husband, but the only thing the police said was "the house was settling down."

I just wondered, the house was over 40 years old. It should have settled a long time ago.

When you've sought for answers to life's mysteries from many sources and still experience only a quagmire of confusion, consider this:

The Only Way Out is IN.

There is a peaceful path, there is an Inner Way to the Eternal Quest. All the sages, saints, gurus and teachers from time immemorial have admonished:

"Go in, Seeker, go in!"

But the Inner Light keeps vanishing and the restless mind refuses the quiet repose of perfect meditation. How do you "go in" to find the hidden "Kingdom of God"? Is there a lost key to the Gateway — a Lost Word to rend the veil to the Inner Temple?

Astara teaches of an inner way — a sure way, a safe way. Perhaps it is your way. Our free booklet "Finding Your Place in the Golden Age" may hold a new approach to an old, old quest. It is yours for the asking. We wait to honor your request for it.

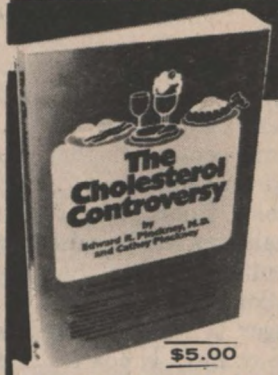
Nearly everything you've been told about CHOLESTEROL is wrong!



The Cholesterol Controversy

by Edward R. Pinckney, M.D. and Cathey Pinckney

A gargantuan "snow job" has been perpetuated against such delicious and nourishing foods: eggs, bacon, steak, lobster—these and dozens of other dishes millions of "cholesterol conscious" people like yourself deliberately avoid.

GET STRAIGHT FACTS ABOUT CHOLESTEROL!

The truth about cholesterol—what it is, what it isn't, what it does—revealed by a respected doctor and medical researcher in a highly praised recent book, THE CHOLESTEROL CONTROVERSY. You might be astonished to learn:

- The anti-fat, anti-cholesterol fad is not just foolish and futile! It also carries some risk! (AMA news release)
- There is no sound evidence anywhere to prove high blood cholesterol causes heart disease—or that lowering cholesterol levels will prevent heart disease.
- Food producers who advertise products as "polyunsaturated" or "low in cholesterol" are guilty of illegal advertising.
- Drugs to lower cholesterol must state with the package that no one knows if the drug really works, that its effect might be harmful and that lowering cholesterol might not do any good anyway.
- Available evidence shows that people on cholesterol-lowering diets develop more illnesses—including tumor—seem to age prematurely and appear older than people on normal diets.

many species were becoming extinct, man would begin to see unusual floods and earthquakes. Things would be as if the Earth were revolting against its inhumane treatment.

"Other Indian tribes throughout the country are beginning to see these things coming. Many are saying in desperation, 'What can we do to revive the old tradition? How can we get back to it?' Well, there is a way for them to return, of course; but time is very short. They had better start returning now!"

Amerindian traditionalists are storing food and water for the coming Great Purification. They have been told that there will be a terrible famine sometime soon—no longer than two or three years in the future. Canned and dehydrated foods, seed, kerosene lamps, bottled water and water purification tablets are being put aside in carefully concealed caches.

Sun Bear, a Chippewa Medicine man, told me for Medicine Talk (Doubleday, 1975) that his Bear tribe is judiciously putting away stores of food and survival materials. "According to one of the ancient prophecies," he said, "the Great Purification will come after the white man has built a house in the sky. We believe that prophecy refers to Skylab."

When I asked Sun Bear if there might be anything that the System might do to stave off the approaching cleansing of the Earth Mother, he shook his head and replied:

"We know that it has already happened in the Spirit World. Soon Spirit Time will become our time, and it will happen here on Earth. There is nothing man can do to stop it. The Earth Mother will shake fleas off her back, just as a dog rids itself of its parasites. When the cleansing has occurred, good people of spiritual awareness will build a better world."

Throughout the world today various men and women are recipients of alleged spiritual communication, which come to them in the form of telepathic messages from "Space Brothers." These New Age channelers for supposed beings from other worlds or other dimensions often relay urgent messages for mankind which have to do with the coming Earth changes and the survival of those Homo sapiens who are of the requisite spiritual awareness. Here are certain pertinent "telethought" relays from Robin McPherson, a Space Brother channeler from Burnaby, British Columbia:

"Never fear total destruction, for it [the terrible series of cataclysms] will only be a temporary thing. It should not be taken lightly, of course, but should be viewed as a series of events which will completely change the world structure."

"Keep away from large cities, because the massive structures will crush your beings."

"You people of Earth must pay attention to geological and geographic changes in the near future. We can no longer hold the force field as firmly as we have in the past."

"Do not live in mid-city centers if you can avoid doing so. All over the world changes are taking place more rapidly, and your cities are becoming more and more erratic with each passing day."

"Italy is in danger of submerging. She is one country that we have tried to keep from sinking into the depths. Italy is a world center, whether you Earthlings understand why or not."

"The ocean floor around the Mediterranean area will be raised. It will be difficult for shipping because of this elevation."

"The danger in Newfoundland is similar: The country is coastal and lies near the borders of the sunken continent of Atlantis. How else could Atlantis rise again without bringing about the sinking of these coastal lands?

"Newfoundland rests on a fault that runs deep, a fault that endangers the entire Eastern seaboard. Unless peace, love, and brotherhood begin to rise to enable us to keep the Light Shield fast, these people should be evacuated as far west as they can.

"The entire Eastern coast will be affected, right down to Virginia. All cities will be inundated which are in the area east of Montreal. The land mass will split south and curve into a line down to West Virginia."

As I carefully detailed in Mysteries of Time and Space (Prentice-Hall, 1974, I believe the coming transition will be one of change for the entire species, an evolutionary leap forward for man on both a biological and spiritual level, a move from what we now understand as humanhood to a higher consciousness in a new mode of being.

Today there are groups of metaphysicians in nearly every community in North America. The majority of them are interested only in concentrating on self-improvement and in promoting a true brotherhood. An entire generation of youth are attempting to structure a new and vital reality for themselves. They will be prepared for the coming period of transition.

Chicago's well-known psychic-sensitive Irene Hughes told me: "The whole world is in a state of transition. I feel that we may be well into a tremendous spiritual awareness which will lead to a period wherein people are going to become revolutionized within and will turn to the mystical approach to living."

John C. Lilly, author of such books as The Mind of the Dolphin and The Center of the Cyclone, believes that man is ready for an evolutionary leap in consciousness, and that it has already begun. Dr. Lilly maintains that "what one believes to be true either is true or becomes true in one's mind within limits to be determined experimentally or experientially. These limits are beliefs to be transcended."

In an interview with Dr. Lilly for Penthouse magazine, Jules Siegel synthesized the mystic-scientists's understanding of the four higher levels of consciousness: "The first level contains creative and objective thought as intelligent beings normally define it. At the second, one acts without thinking, because prior planning is unnecessary. Existing at the third level is a powerful and constant flood of energy that makes man feel like a conduit through which we have heard so much." At this point, Lilly says, "Men become as gods under God."

Jane Roberts, the author who serves as a channel for the multi-dimensional entity who calls himself Seth (Seth Speaks, The Seth Material) told me: "The thing Seth has said that really excites me is that we make our own reality. I think the greatest thing one can do is to help to show other people how their feelings and thoughts do form their world—from their daily, family life to their nation to their world. This is the most liberating knowledge that anyone can possess. It frees people in all other areas of life. Whatever one does on the outside is not going to make a bit of difference unless he has changed his thought pattern. This is the whole idea of the Seth material, to free the individual, to tell him 'Say, look, this is your thing, your world, you can make it what you wish.' "

In his book Uni-Chotometrics, Eugene A. Albright discusses the impending change, the Tomorrow which has been variously described and named throughout history as the New Age, the Advent of the New Man, the Second Coming of Christ, the Millenium, the Great Purification.

"The incapacity of the human organism at this point to directly convert matter into its own structure is one of the factors being changed in nature," Albright writes. "The next evolvement, or the next evolving technique of the human organism, will be the opening up of two specific functions which, up to this stage of development, have been latent.

"One of these is the capacity to control the environment completely; to cause matter in the environment to disintegrate and restructuralize directly on an energy level. The other is to structure the function of the body and replenish it without necessity for food, either plant or animal life."

Albright expresses his opinion that in the past there have been periods in which the vibratory rate was stepped up. "Many who cannot adjust to higher rates of vibration are destroyed," he says. "This may appear to be cruel, but nature and that which is natural, has always prevailed and it will prevail."

Albright says that this coming new infusion of energy into the human organism will cause many structural changes in the organism itself. The things of nature, the plant and animal life, will change, as well.

"Within a relatively short time there will be nothing in nature recognizable, using our current knowledge of physics and matter, chemistry and biology. Changes will bring with them the necessity for mankind to change with them, to relate and be related to the new environment in which man will find himself."

It is my belief that the central purpose of the revelatory process throughout history has been to lead man to the understanding that he can be so much more than a creature of conditioned reflexes, bio-chemical compounds, and glandular responses; and that he is evolving as a spiritual being and progressing out of his old, physical, limitations into a higher consciousness that is his by right of his cosmic inheritance.

In order to structure one's own reality in a positive manner, one must believe that he can reshape the stuff of ordinary reality; he must prepare his mental set by a regimen of self-discipline and meditation; he must learn that it is not enough to pray, to ask, but that he must affirm that the thing he desires has already materialized.

The greatest lesson that all the inspired men and women of history have shared from their perspective of heightened consciousness has been that the world which man agrees through materialistic consensus is the real world is but one of a never-ending choice of possible reality constructs. The sensate stuff of our standard concept of reality is subject to dramatic change by the essential self of each individual, and each man and woman has the latent ability to shape a reality separate from that of the ordinary and the commonly accepted.

When one has absorbed this basic lesson and discovered his own techniques for application, he has truly learned how to survive the coming time of Great Purification and how to hasten his own spiritual evolution. □

Death has always been an ever present factor in any auto race and though drivers seldom really ever worry about it outwardly, many carry religious charms or good luck pieces for various reasons.

STRANGE DEATH ON THE SPEEDWAY

BY BOB DUNHAM

The sky was a pale blue and unusually cloudless for May. The morning sun was bright and clear. There was a slight chill in the air. It gave promise to being a fine spring day. You might even say it was almost the perfect day to die—if you could have a choice.

A small crew in white coveralls huddled together behind a reinforced concrete wall that had often served as the last thin margin between safety and destruction. At first the only sound in the crisp morning silence was the tick, tick, of the stop watches counting off the precious seconds.

Then far off in the distance the high pitched whine of an engine screaming under full acceleration could be heard as if in a power dive, growing in intensity. The long black ribbon of asphalt that stretched in front of the wall was momentarily empty. Suddenly one of the crew leaned out over the concrete barrier, straining his eyes.

Abruptly, almost without warning, the pure white, Austin Healey burst into view with a shattering roar. It thundered by before anyone could even draw a breath. The watches stopped, but the click of their push buttons couldn't be heard over the staccato din of the engine as the sleek sports car #42 disappeared in the opposite direction never to return again—that day anyway.

#42—"shi ni" is a number that all Japanese people shy away from because it means DEATH; all of them, except that is for Tak Asano. He laughed at the people who warned him not to use it. He died in a violent crash on the last turn of the first lap of the first Grand Prix ever held in Japan.

Soon after the race he was forgotten—until the next Grand Prix at Suzuka Circuit the following year. Race organizers had subsequently banned the use of #42 for obvious reasons and since that fatal day in 1963 no one had been allowed to display it. Strange then wasn't it that at the 1964 Grand Prix at Suzuka the computers used for recording lap times and positions of cars, relying on information fed into them by qualified timing officials turned out a time record for eight laps of a car whose number was 42? I guess Asano-san may be having his last laugh after all.

Death has always been an ever present factor in any race and though drivers seldom really ever worry about it outwardly many carry religious charms or good luck pieces for various reasons. Ukiya-san, a young Honda 800 Sports driver always did, that is until he had a fight with his girlfriend before practice one

How to make others secretly DO YOUR BIDDING with the astonishing power of AUTOMATIC MIND COMMAND!

Here's how to get started in just 3 minutes . . .

Dear Friend:

New power is about to leap into your life . . . an astonishing way to control the thoughts and actions of others without their knowing it . . . no matter how much they may not want to follow your instructions, they carry them out to a "T" every time!

With "Automatic Mind-Command" you'll be running the show. Make a wish, turn on The Power, and watch those around you drop everything and do what they're told.

And nobody will even have the faintest idea that you're behind it all. That's the beauty of "Automatic Mind-Command"—you are the only one who knows what's going on—you alone decide when things should start . . . stop . . . change around.

CONTROL YOUR FRIENDS OR STRANGERS!

You can use it to control your friends or strangers, one at a time or in large numbers, at any time, and ANY WAY YOU LIKE.

For example: You go into a bank for a loan. The credit man smiles but says "Sorry. You don't qualify for a loan right now: however, if there's anything else I can do for you, I'd be glad to . . ." Then in a flash, his tune changes when you let loose your "Automatic Mind-Command." He continues, "In fact, we'll be glad to give you $1,000 more than you asked for. And any time you want more, just see me personally! Thank you so much for coming by!"

Impossible? You'll be doing things like that every day without even thinking about it. As soon as you need something done, it's done! The people who do these things for you will remember what they did, but not why!

FUN POWER—TOO!

You can have a lot of fun with this power, too. Look how Evelyn C. used it at work . . . One day, while sorting papers, her boss angrily inquired why she had to make so much noise—and scolded her in front of everybody. Evelyn said nothing, but smiled to herself—for she had just turned on the "Automatic Mind-Command . . ." Suddenly the boss apologized for being a scoundrel. "Please . . . I'm sorry," he said, in front of everybody. "I'd like to make it up to you!" And he told her what a wonderful person she was! When Evelyn turned the power off, the boss just stood there with an open mouth, wondering what made him say all those things.

Think what this power can mean in your life. You need money . . . and it's there! You want some affection . . . you'll be smothered! You want peace and quiet . . . the world stands still!

NO MORE SECRETS WILL BE KEPT FROM YOU!

People who think they can hold back the facts will meet their master in you! You just fire a little "Automatic Mind-Command" at them, and they'll sing like meadowlarks . . . Nona J. was at her wits' end when she tried to find the money she'd put aside to pay the rent—it was gone. A frantic search through the house turned up nothing. There was only one possibility left . . . she asked Billy. A look of surprise crossed his face. No—he hadn't seen any money. But Nona didn't believe him, and started using "Automatic Mind-Command" to find out if he was telling the truth. Suddenly Billy reached into his pocket and took out a roll of money. After giving her the money, he acted as if nothing had happened!

Think how many secrets must be hidden all around you! Things your spouse won't tell . . . your neighbors won't say . . . your boss keeps quiet about . . . ALL BROUGHT INTO THE OPEN JUST FOR YOU!! They'll tell you all their secrets, but they won't know why.

Hold on now, because I haven't told you yet about the best part of "Automatic Mind-Command."

You may have to bolt your door to keep people from overwhelming you with love, gifts, favors, rewards! Perfect strangers will be walking up to you and asking, "How are you? Can I do anything for you?" They will never suspect that "Automatic Mind-Command" is impelling them to like you, please you . . . and automatically want to help you.

INSTANTLY YOUR LIFE IS CHANGED!

At first, I couldn't believe it. And yet I know this to be true from my own personal experience . . . time after time. For example . . .

A STRANGER HANDS HIM $500—Harry G., a low-paid factory worker, wanted to start a business of his own. All he needed was cash to get started, but no one would give him the money. Finally someone told him how to use "Automatic Mind-Command"—and Harry laughingly tried it. A short time later, a perfect stranger handed him $500—saying he'd heard about Harry's plan, and was eager to help him get started!

Unusual? Not at all . . . things happen every day with "Automatic Mind-Command."

RECEIVES NEEDED CASH QUICKLY!—Mrs. Thelma J. reports, "I needed money badly." Her husband hadn't worked in months, and their savings were running out. Then she discovered "Automatic Mind-Command"—and turned on the power immediately! The next morning she received a package containing several hundred dollars from friends and well-wishers she never knew existed!

In all history, few indeed are the ones who have recognized "Automatic Mind-Command." The rest, who do not use it, pay the penalty in suffering, wishing, hoping, dreaming . . . Now I say to you: Wish no more!

HOW TO GET STARTED IN JUST 3 MINUTES!

Minute #1—Fill out the No-Risk Coupon and mail it to us.

Minute #2—When you receive a package in the mail from us, open it.

Minute #3—Lift the front cover, and let the secret feed itself in to your mind automatically.

After that, sit back, relax—and see how this power can work for you. It's as simple as that! It won't cost you one penny unless it works!

IN THAT INSTANT, YOU WILL ALREADY BE ABLE TO USE "AUTOMATIC MIND-COMMAND" FOR THE FIRST TIME . . . for money, love, healing, protection, and much more!

Imagine the thrill—after a lifetime of "scrimping" and "penny-pinching"—to see a tidal wave of riches rolling into your life from every direction—pay raises, bonuses, gifts, legacies . . . a rising tide of good fortune!

MORE AMAZING CASE HISTORIES!

And it's all just minutes away!

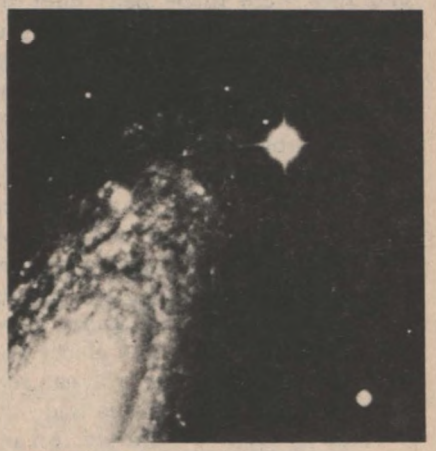
Larry S. wanted to see his girlfriend—although he had no idea where she was—and no way of contacting her by letter or phone. From far away . . . he began using "Automatic Mind-Command!" In that instant, his girlfriend knew what she had to do. She dropped what she was doing, excused herself and hurried to visit him. Arriving in record time—she hugged and kissed him, explaining that "something" told her he wanted and needed her, and what could she do for him!



Now here's a most fantastic use of "Automatic Mind-Command"—one I'm sure you'll agree proves that here is a power which staggers the imagination!

For example, cases of health-symptoms relieved with "Automatic Mind-Command!" John C. reports that his hearing now seems normal again! Warren W.'s blurred eyesight cleared, sharpened, and now seems normal! Lydia E. says her arthritic symptoms of soreness and stiffness in the fingers were relieved when nothing else seemed to help, and Mrs. M. S. was surprised when her leg pain disappeared. Bella S., who complained of "ulcerative colitis" with stomach cramps and diarrhea, obtained fast relief . . . And others report relief from complaints of high blood pressure, heart symptoms, "migraine" headaches, weakness, dizziness, fatigue, and more.

It's simple, easy, and automatic to apply!

YOURS TO PROVE—AT OUR RISK!

So you see, life can be beautiful with "Automatic Mind-Command." To discover its amazing power let it put you on the road to a NEW LIFE . . . filled to the brim with riches, love, pleasure and all the wonderful luxuries of the world . . . and more! You owe it to yourself to try it! Why not send in the No-Risk Coupon—TODAY!

Sincerely yours,

Scott Reed

idiot skin-divers down there tearing them apart or something. When they did disclose the first lot everybody said they were turtle pens built in shallow water, you know, by the Indians to keep the turtles—(or some absolute nonsense). But, they are there and they are definitely buildings. And the whole of that area has sunk within memory of man almost. Well, in the memory of white man here. Now, if you fly off the coast of the Island (that would be the east coast of the Peninsula of Yucatan which I have done God knows how often I've flown over that place) the water is crystal clear and you can see causeways and whole towns laid out in about thirty to a hundred feet of water. The water is so clear you can see it! And some of those things are some ten to fifteen miles out to sea. So, the whole of that coast has sunk since the Manoans were building. But, those pillars—that's the worst of all! They are 4,000 ft. down off the west coast of South America, quite different. Chile, North Chile, Peru . . .they got photographs! They put a TV camera down at the bottom (actually they were looking for giant squid - you know, those giant octopus things) and they got these photographs and they are these buildings and columns and some of the columns appear to have hieroglyphics on them. It is too blurred on the shots you get off the TV. But, they definitely have capitals on the top, you know, like on Roman pillars. And there is no question about them being man-made, or at least some intelligent creatures (and artistic) worked on it. Now, what the dickens are they doing 4,000 ft. down off the coast of South America? behind the Andes now. So, here you they're right opposite where they have been spotted is Lake Titicato which is the highest lake in the world and at one end of it is Tiahuanaco, an ancient city with enormous stone carvings. Well, I have been there and all the pillars have obviously been under water at some time because they have holes drilled into them by certain kinds of shellfish called Pholatemira, which live on the west coast of South America. Now, this is two miles high and it is a fresh water lake. Now this thing must have been on the sea coast at one time so that the water could only come up about six feet. The bottom of the pillars are all drilled with these holes by these pholatemira. You can even see some shells in there. Now the whole thing has gone up two miles high and it is behind the Andes now. S, here you get pillars 4,000 ft. down on one side and two miles up you have got other pillars which were definitely in salt water. Now, explain that? That is more weird to me than any kind of UFO."

BOND: "I am sure that you will explain it eventually."

SANDERSON: "Yes, definitely, the crust will shift. Now the geologists get into it. I don't even know if you have heard of Plateletonics that they are all talking about? In the New York Times? Now they do admit that the continents do drift around and have been doing it. And, that the sea bottoms are light-weight plates and they seem to be moving around. When one of the oceanic plates comes up against a continental mass something's got to give! An irresistible force hitting against an immovable object and the edge of the land crumbles . . .hence, mountain building. And, of course, the whole west coast of South America (you'd better get a look at the map and you'll see) has crumbled literally. The Andes are sticking up and that's why they are getting these terrible earthquakes in Peru. They are shifting all the time you see. And, after all, if a piece of sea bottom can rise straight up a mile and a quarter overnight, then it is really not difficult to see why pillars shouldn't go down 4,000 ft. or go up two miles."

BOND: "Let's go a bit further. Do you think there are any intelligent beings or other human form living at the bottom of the sea?"

SANDERSON: "I really don't know. I think the majority of what we call UFOs actually come from there. I think that is where their bases are."

BOND: "Do you think they are of this planet or some other planet or from this time or universe?"

SANDERSON: "All three, I think."

BOND: "Speaking about ours, of our planet, which I am primarily interested in now."

SANDERSON: "I think we were evolved here. I will send you a free copy of my book, INVISIBLE RESIDENTS, all about this bottom of the sea. We have some pretty good evidence.

BOND: "By looking at the map, the National Geographic came out with about the sea bottom - it was fascinating - because it is amazing!"

SANDERSON: "It is absolutely fantastic! I'll put this in a nutshell for you. Don't forget, I am a biologist, so if I don't simplify sufficiently call me up, will you? Life, as we now know it, you and I, everybody and all the dogs and cats and everything else we know, was evolved on this earth, including all plants and vegetables that live in air, like we do, live on land. In other words, all originally came out of the sea. Now they were pretty advanced animals. They had evolved half way up at least, before they ever came out of the sea. Therefore any animals that didn't come out of the sea have gone on evolving in the sea and they had twice as long to get where we have got because we had to come out and we had to make all kinds of arrangements to live in a gas. We were evolved, originally, to live in a liquid. You follow? So, it put us back. Whereas, those who never had to do that have had another 250,000,000 years minimum (if not 500,000,000) to go on evolving. And, look how quickly we have come out in the air. That's why I think civilization in water has gotten so far beyond us.

BOND: "Is it expanding, to your knowledge?"

SANDERSON: "What do you mean, the? . . .

BOND: "The race itself, whatever they may be?"

SANDERSON: "Well, I would imagine that 100,000,000 years ago they got to the point where they could dispense with their bodies. This is what we are almost getting to now. You see, this is where your parapsychological stuff comes in, you see!

BOND: "An outer intelligence, in other words?"

SANDERSON: "Yes, this is the further evolution of the corporeal body. You see, the mind is beginning to take over. There is no question about it! Mental power does not run on the electro-magnetic band. It's got a separate band just as gravity is on another band. And, although you cannot affect the mental band . . . you can't blank it off, the mental band with electro-magnetics. Yet, the mental band can affect electro-magnetics. So, it seems to come out of corporeal or material evolution. And when you get to a certain point you can do everything by thinking about it. You don't have to put nuts and bolts together!

BOND: "Do the governments of the world or the earth know about this? These life forms under the sea?"

SANDERSON: "Well, I can't speak for the governments so I don't know, but I have a very shrewd suspicion that they have known about this all along."

BOND: "And, they are keeping it hush-hush."

SANDERSON: "They have to, really, I mean. Because I have official Naval reports which state that thirteen ships on submarine maneuvers latched on by their radar to an underwater device traveling at 250 Knots down to 20,000 ft. They had a latch on thirteen ships for four days. Now that's an official Navy document. As a matter of fact, the bare bones of it have been published in several rather cheap magazines over the years. People read it and say, "Well, come onnnnn!"

This is the corollary which I discovered, being a Navy man, that the Air Force has thrown this whole business and Project Blue Book which consists of four people, and they were never intended to chase moonbeams. They're not scientists. But the Navy went quietly along without making any fuss about it. They have been doing it all along and so have all the navies in the world, particularly the Brazilians. And, they seem to be, well they know there is something going on down there. What the dickens it is they're not, of course going to come out and push for it because the public really would go balmy if they thought there was a superior civilization indigenous to this earth." □

First police reviewed one call, and then another. Soon telephone lines were humming: Something was hulking within the city limits. Was it an alien visitation or hallucination?

CINCINNATI'S "WHAT-WAS-IT?" MONSTER

BY GEORGE WAGNER

The early hours of Friday, January 30, 1959, saw a nasty winter night upon the Ohio River at Cincinnati. It was cold, made even chillier by violent winds that combed back and forth across the water. William Sprague, lockman at Dam 37 at Fern bank, Ohio, reported that "the wind....whipped up waves six to eight feet high"—quite a turbulence for an inland river.

If it was not a fit night out for man, it may have been even worse for beast. Southwestern Ohio police departments began receiving telephone communications that "monsters" were climbing out of the river.

Police regarded the original report as the raving of a crank. Then other calls came in, with identical stories. The sighters sounded hysterical, but there was nothing to indicate they had been drinking.

One man said he saw a hulking "something" rise from the river near New Richmond, Ohio, to the east of Cincinnati. The next sighting was in Cincinnati itself. A truck driver on Kellogg Avenue saw a creature emerge from the water.

"I can't describe it," authorities quoted the trucker, "...(because) I have never seen anything like it before. All I want to do is get out of here and get on to Indianapolis."

At four police cruisers were dispatched to investigate these reports. The searchers found nothing. While the cars were out, however, a mysterious power failure killed every street light on Kellogg Avenue. The lights were on two completely different circuits, and the reason for their failure was never satisfactorily explained.

A Cincinnati police spokesman summed up the feelings at the station that night when he said that "it really was a riot here. We kept waiting for someone to say, 'Take me to your leader."

A few hours later, but still before daylight, a similar creature was seen in Covington, Kentucky—on the other side of the Ohio River. A motorist crossing the Licking River, a few hundred feet from the point where it empties into the Ohio, claimed he saw a monster on the bridge.

"It was large, not a dog or a cat," the motorist insisted. "It leaped in front of my car and on two legs was taller than the auto. When I looked back in my mirror, it was moving along the bridge rail. It was three or four times the size of a man and much bulkier. I have an eye and a mind for dimensions, and I know it was huge."

The monster was also spotted near Fort Thomas, Kentucky—also opposite Cincinnati. The young woman who reported it said the creature "was like an octopus. It came up (out of the water) and then went down."

The weird sightings stopped by Saturday. A Hamilton County, Ohio, police dispatcher was sure that "people have quit drinking hair tonic."

A similar encounter with a being in the Ohio River had been reported from neighboring Indiana more than three years before. Mrs. Darwin Johnson of Evansville swam in the river near Dogtown (Evansville area) on the afternoon of August 21, 1955. The 35-year-old woman felt a "clawed....furry palm" close around her left leg. She was pulled beneath the surface of the water.

Mrs. Johnson struggled to the surface and clutched an inflated innertube. The "hand" loosened its hold, and the woman swam quickly to shore. Her leg was covered with scratches. When she rubbed these contusions with alcohol, the back of her knee started to swell.

Interestingly, only four days after the 1959 Cincinnati sightings newspapers carried word that the famous "Nessie" of Scotland's Loch Ness had once again been seen. □ afternoon and gave it back to her. Strange?

He died in her arms that same day after flipping his car over several times on the very same turn Asano was killed two years before. Several of the night guards at the track have often turned in reports of hearing the high pitched sound of a Honda and the lower more guttural roar of a Healey-like engine running around the track during the early morning hours. Who knows, maybe Asano and Ukiya are still running their own race in another dimension of time.

At Fuji International Speedway a few years ago Mr. Nagai, an Isuzu Bellet driver, was turning rather slow practice times so he decided to remain at the track one afternoon and run another hour. His crew and other racing buddies elected to return to their hotel to plan for the next day's racing. Since I had finished practice myself that day and we were all staying at the same hotel I went back with his friends.

It was about 4:30 p.m. as I remember and we all had "retired" to the gigantic men's ofuro to soak away the frustrations of practice. The bath was admittedly choked with steam and one could a barely see the person next to him.

Suddenly the door opened and a figure who we all later swore was Nagai-san said, "Kairimashita, totemo ii time-mu tota desu-yo" (I've returned, I turned a real good lap time). "Mosukoshi hairimasu" (I'll join you soon). He never did join us in the bath. You see he had died at 4:30 p.m. after having crashed through a guard rail on the banked turn and having rolled down a 300 foot embankment.

Frankly, I had another view on the matter of good and bad luck. In a race at Suzuka when I was driving for a factory I figured I'd try and get all the pluses I could going for me, and eliminate all the minuses. As a result I elected to run a car registered with a 777 number and I picked the racing number 14 (a multiple of seven). It was the seventh race of my career and the factory team I was running for had entered seven cars.

I mean was there any better way to be screwed in for a win especially when I had the advantage of starting on the pole? I ran in first place until the seventh turn on the seventh lap. Did you ever try and take a corner on your roof? It doesn't work. I guess some days it doesn't make any difference how much you have going for you. □

The next day at the breakfast table they confirmed the meeting and discussed their mutual interests in out-of-body travel for the first time. Gittner continued his interest as an adult and after many years of effort developed the ability to ring a small bell when out of his body. He has several of his friends keep such a bell by their beds so he can let them know when he has made an out-of-the-body visit.

Because of the conditions of observation and the information retrieved the following case is impressive.

A young woman claimed to have spontaneous out-of-the-body experiences often when she was asleep and to be able to look down on herself from above. She served as a research subject for a week at the dream laboratory at the University of California at Davis. The investigators put a five digit number above her bed and attached short EEG electrodes to her head so she could not climb up to see the numbers without disrupting the continuous recording of her brain waves. Researchers also observed her through a one-way mirror, all night.

Sleeping at the laboratory one night, she had an out-of-the-body experience and was able to see the numbers. The next morning she reported all five digits in correct order. We can only suggest telepathy or clairvoyance to explain these remarkable findings if we are to avoid accepting out-of-the-body travel.

The evidence for communication with people after death, poltergeist phenomena and hauntings all support the idea that we exist in some viable form between times of manifesting in substance. This literature is fascinating and overwhelming but would take us far afield.

Effect of Hypnotic Recall of Past Lives

In one of my patients an apparently permanent cure of a severe asthmatic condition occurred as a result of a past life memory. This middle-aged woman had been bothered by asthma all of her life. An interest in reincarnation prompted her to seek hypnotic help to recapture memories of a past life in an effort to find the cause, and hopefully a cure, for her asthma.

During the hypnotic session she vividly experienced a life in which she was spurned by her lover. A very strong pride prevented her from expressing her hurt, and she never shed a tear over the lost love. But as she re-experienced the pain she cried and sobbed deeply.

Later, after she had returned from the past life experience and still in the hypnotic state, she said that the tears and sobs she had squelched in that life had been expressing themselves in this life in the form of "attacks." She told how she had overcome prideful feelings as a young woman in her current life and pointed out that as a result, she was able to shed the bitter tears she had just released. In piercing together the two lives, she somehow shifted her psychic economy so that astma was no longer necessary. She hasn't had an attack for over five years.

I have worked with many people this way but have had varying degrees of conviction that they were remembering actual past lives. Some were firm believers, others, open-minded, a few, skeptics. It did not seem to matter whether they were ignorant or knowledgeable, sophisticated or naive. I suspect that the emotional impact of vividly experiencing oneself as another person, in another time, having strange experiences and reacting to them in unfamiliar ways, shakes free some psychic energy which can then be used to relate the new material to current problems and ways of coping.

I found this technique especially useful in dealing with emotional blocks. It seems that people are often able to deal with a problem if they can get some distance from it by converting it to a different form, at a different time, and themselves to a different life.

An example of this was a woman who could not deal with nor overcome her own weakness and lack of courage in the face of a domineering husband who was making a nervous wreck of their son with excessive demands, unreasonable punishments and inconsistant rules. In a past life regression she was a boy she focused on the relationship with father and worked it out satisfactorily. She ignored the mother's role except to describe it in detail. The description was an accurate and penetrating analysis of herself in relationship to her husband and son.

The woman came out of the hypnotic state with a full memory of all that had happened but without apparent realization that it was in any way related to her present situation. Instead, she tried to tie it in with her relationship to her own father.

She went home feeling good, "stood up" to her husband, insisted that he take the pressure off the boy, stuck by her guns and solved the problems with her son. Apparently as a result of this new way of dealing with her husband the intensity and quality of their relationship increased and improved their marriage.

presentation of her past life experience, and my feeling was that she had not really lived this life. I did not think she was consciously making it up, and might, herself, have complete faith in its validity. As was shown by later events, any lack of validity did not hinder its effectiveness in helping her with her current problems.

In retrospect, after experiencing past lives of my own, I feel certain that much comes from fantasy rather than memory. Nevertheless the memories, fantasized or not, have contributed to my own self understanding in a helpful way.

With hypnotic regression I had a memory of being a young man who was killed in an accident in which a large rock fell on me. After this memory I completely recovered from a mild anxiety phobia I had when very close to large objects. Whether I actually lived that life and died that death I will likely never know.

I also remembered many details of a life in which I was a newspaper editor somewhere in central California. I had a very vivid impression of having written a book at that time. A few years after having these memories I wrote a book[in this life] and became a full-time writer. I didn't make a connection between these memories and this change. Then one day when I was interviewing a psychic she asked me if I had any knowledge of my past lives. I nodded.

She said,"I pick you up as a newspaper editor in Sacramento."

This I found startling, but not impressive enough to send me to Sacramento in search of myself. The psychic could, of course, have picked up the information from my mind by telepathy. And yet...maybe someday when I'm in Sacramento for something else...

Although the validity of certain past life memories has been established to my satisfaction by Stevenson and others, Stevenson's work also shows that errors occur in the memory of even the most reliable of the children in his case. As a general rule, past life memories fade rapidly in childhood and early adolescence.

Adults struggling to recall, are going to be lucky to have any validity at all. What I suspect is that the psychological aspects of the memories are accurate. Perhaps the location, the time, the events, the description of the persons,is partly, mostly or all fantasy. But the types of problems, the kinds of solutions, the struggles, the feelings and the ways of coping can still reflect the person as he was in a past life.

I have had patients who spent great amounts of time and energy trying to validate some past life memory. With rare exceptions I see this as wasted effort. Real trouble can occur if the person trys to convince others, and becomes upset at not being taken seriously.

Reincarnation is not the standard belief of the Western World and those with an interest in it are bound to meet with rebuff occasionally.In fact, America and Europe have been described as that small portion of the globe where reincarnation is not accepted! But accepted or not, reincarnation is nevertheless a fact.

By becoming alert and sensitive to the feelings we have about others and by the feelings they have about us, by trying to do what is right, by not being adversly affected by externals, and by lulling rather than by exciting our hates, passions and emotions, can we learn to let our past experience come to the forefront of our minds. A closed mind is not a benefit, but a hindrance to knowledge. □

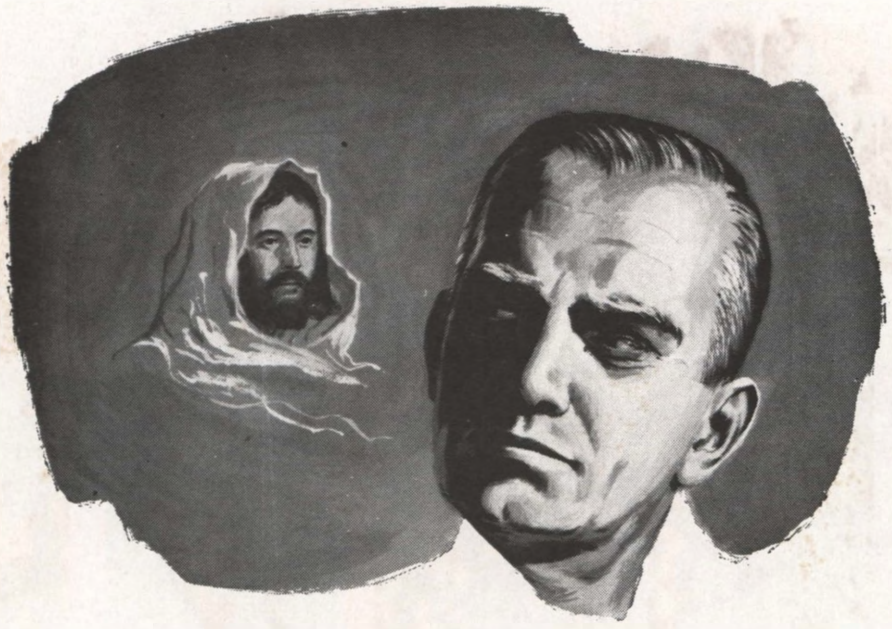
Something Tells Me!



Develop Your Intuition... The Unlearned Knowledge

Whence come the whisperings of self – the still small voice within? Who has not experienced that certain impelling impression that suddenly flashes into consciousness? It conveys that undeniable conviction of truth that neither reason nor persuasion can set aside. The intuition is a source of unlearned knowledge – a reservoir of superior judgment that lies enshrined in the subconscious. It strives to guide and advise you – even against the dictates of will.

There is nothing supernatural or uncanny about intuition. Beneath your surface consciousness exists another mind. It can be a source of inspiration, of new and startling ideas. Intuition is the fountainhead of creative ability. Every person's life can be fuller, richer in achievement, if he learns to awaken and direct intuition. Don't wait for enlightenment. Call it forth.
