A RENDEZVOUS WITH YOUTH

I have a rendezvous with youth.
My soul is ever young;
I hear no evil with my ears,
Or voice it with my tongue.

I see no evil with my eyes;
No evil thoughts assail.
I have a rendezvous with youth,
And love and joy prevail.

And so with all the changing years
My own shall come to me.
I have a rendezvous with youth;
"The best is yet to be."

LETTERS TO THE EDITORS

- Quite frequently I thank God for your unique and invaluable services. I might yet be wandering in a stupor had you not offered such a wide range of discovery. "Ask and ye shall receive" is more than fact . . . it is a Truth in your case. My best from, — Shirley G. Hiltbrunn, Gig Harbor, Wash.

(When the mind and heart are open, receive we will.)

- Please let me tell you that ours has been a real success story with the Chimes Prosperity Plan and Seed Money. It might be hard for you to understand its full impact and effect on our lives . . . We are still a little stunned at what planting just a little Seed Money can do. Needless to say — we shall stay with the plan and are sending more Seed Money to plant.
— Dr. & Mrs. R. A. Slevin, Pacific Grove, Calif.

(From now on out, anyone who does not put a plan of this nature into operation is certain to feel the excruciating pinch of the economic squeeze we are all in for. There is one sure way to get caught . . . to be indifferent, complacent or ignorant about the Laws that control YOUR ABUNDANCE. So many Chimes friends are now benefiting from this plan, we pray countless others will be guided to investigate it.)

- Just the name "Chimes" is SO wonderful to me for it rings with harmony. May everyone that reads it receive a shock of pleasure, joy and healing. May your every effort make you a big success.
Rev. Lady Esther Redman, Columbus, Ohio

- The check enclosed covering extension of my subscription and a book I ordered deserve a comment at this point. I had seen an excerpt from this book in a recent copy of Chimes. Although I had read something similar earlier in my life, I was not quite ready either to receive or understand its message. Now I do. Recently I also had the opportunity to reread a book I had met up with thirty years ago and I found it AN ENTIRELY NEW BOOK! This was because my mind had grown, and I could see hidden information in it that had been closed to me when I read and studied it that long ago. What a marvelous thing, the mind!

Then about Chimes — a new friend I had made in Los Angeles last Christmas season gave me a subscription to Chimes. Now, and for some time, my poor dear friend has lain bedfast from several strokes. But the love and consideration she extended to me still burns just as brightly as when she lit the flame herself by sending me the magazine. I am sure she must be having much love coming her way from her many generousities to others even though she does not want to live. Sincerely your friend, Theda H. Owen, Colorado Springs, Colo.

(This dear soul is sure to reap the harvest of her many kindnesses in her new life to come. And always remember that every tiny bit of light each of us can bring into this darkened world hastens the day when this shall indeed be the great orb of light for which it is destined in God's Plan.)

- Whenever I go on trips or visit with friends, invariably discussions develop along the lines of the subjects carried in Chimes. So of course Chimes goes with me, and it is my pleasure to give them away. I also like to give your book catalog to Truth seekers. Thank you for the many services you render to spread light to seeking, thinking souls who find Chimes and Chimes finds them.

Verna Winchester, Miami, Fla.

(Wherever we go, we are all ambassadors — examples — of that which we believe. Let your smile, your word of encouragement and good cheer, and speaking the Truth leave its radiance behind as you go about the Father's business each day.)

- I am a Rosicrucian (AMORC), in fact, a natural healer. Much of your literature coincides with much of ours. Even when it differs, I enjoy "the other angle" of your view. Keep up the good work.
Loa G. Winegar, Grand Rapids, Mich.

- Your magazine certainly is well edited, and, indeed, a forerunner for the future.

Mrs. Ray D. Ulrey, Toluca Lake, Calif.

- Am so glad to find in Chimes the truths I have long searched for. Do you know someone in my area of like mind so we can study together and help one another? If not, would like to correspond.

Today's pioneers are exploring the unmapped country of human ability . . . they shall be known as

THE SUPERSANE

*By Shafica Karagulla, M.D.
Neuropsychiatrist specializing in parapsychology*

THE TWENTIETH CENTURY has been designated as the "Age of Breakthroughs". We have broken through the tight structure of the atom, we have broken the sound barrier, we have broken through the Earth's gravitational pull.

All of these breakthroughs in the outer physical world have been an extension of the five senses through the use of technology. However, human society today is faced with the dilemma of a breakdown or a breakthrough within the human being himself. Our breakthroughs in science and technology, coming with unbelievable rapidity, have precipitated a crisis within the consciousness of man himself. Large numbers of people who cannot respond to a rapidly changing environment are retreating into a live-for-the-moment philosophy. As you look around you, it is easy to see how the bored frustration of many others confronted with a complex environment is erupting in brushfires of destructiveness the world over. There must also be a breakthrough in human consciousness to match those of science. As always, such an evolutionary development begins with the few, then extends to the many.

Thus we come to the Supersane . . . those souls who already are making this early breakthrough in human awareness somewhat ahead of the rest of humanity. Not at all supermen or superwomen, the Supersane are normally intelligent human beings who are moving through the five sense barrier into a more expanded area of awareness — into the realm of Higher Sense Perception where many of the so-called miracles or supernormal phenomena of yesterday are found to be demonstrable scientific facts today. Those who exhibit Higher Sense Perception abilities cannot be ignored or bypassed, for already quietly they are making outstanding contributions in our world today, are, in fact, possibly the forerunners of a tremendous evolutionary mutation of the whole human race . . . one which will produce a higher type of humanity.

Higher Sense Perception is something as yet unexplored and unmapped in the realm of human ability. All such abilities have not even been identified, related to each other, or properly studied as yet. Of the greatest importance is to learn how we can train those so gifted to control and use their gifts more effectively. Many times such people are too close to their gifts to observe and analyze them, or they are subject to the ridicule of their families, friends or business associates. This, of course, is a great loss to the individual first, and to society as well. The Supersane in our midst deserve recognition in our society as being useful and valuable individuals, an asset in any walk of life.

We do not know, of course, how many people may have latent abilities in the field of Higher Sense Perception, but is it not possible that such people could be discovered, encouraged and trained? Is genius perhaps not a simple designation for certain types of Higher Sense Perception? We shall never know until we try to find the answer to some of these questions that long have plagued humanity . . . a whole field that presents an adventure into the consciousness of man that can be immensely rewarding.

Just my own discoveries that there are many people with Higher Sense Perception abilities already making outstanding contributions to society in science, medicine,

OUR MONEY FUTURE

Huna soothsayer Max Freedom Long predicts in Huna Vistas that "something would go badly wrong with us financially, and that Russia would in some way help us out." According to him, the aid to be given by Russia is not in terms of money, but of example. Russia went off the gold standard long ago and set an arbitrary value for its currency . . . So far, Russian money has kept a very level value in world markets . . . while the gold standard nations have had their ups and downs, gold manipulation, as well as inflation. With the spot its currency is in, America might do better by emulating Russia.

WHY WOULD SPIRIT INTERVENE?

Several times in the past great civilizations have destroyed themselves. In a few cases the destruction was from natural causes, such as the destruction when the last axis shift of the Earth occurred. This time, since much natural destruction has been prophesied for the Earth before the end of this century, and at the same time, we have the ability to destroy all life on this planet by our own hand.

According to C. A. Honey's Science Publications Newsletter, intervention will take place so that all knowledge and scientific progress will not be lost. The new civilization that will supersede this one will have a head-start, so-to-speak, and those left here on Earth will have learned valuable lessons which will serve as reminders to the succeeding generations coming afterward. Then, truly we can enter into a Golden Age or millennium, as has been predicted in the Bible and by many mystics and psychics of our time.

THE SOURCE OF ALL SUPPLY

THE ONLY THING YOU CANNOT HAVE

THE ONLY THING you cannot have in life is something for nothing. All else you can have, IF in your mind you believe you can have it.

Every thing has its price, however, one you must be willing to pay if you deeply desire something. In doing this, you must be single-minded in recognizing God as the First Cause and All-Powerful, the Source of All manifest creation. The moment you acknowledge any other power, you are divided in your mind — you are no longer single-minded — and your subconscious does not respond to a divided and confused mind. It's like simultaneously pressing the up and down buttons in an elevator. You would not go up or down, but would remain where you are.

Let us see how this all applies to the greater supply of abundance — of wealth — you wish to attract for the well-being of yourself and your loved ones.

How does the farmer handle it? He has to deposit seeds in the ground in order to get a harvest. He has to give in order to get. In order for YOU to receive, then, you must first give to your mind. Before you can receive wealth, therefore, you must first impress your subconscious mind with the idea of wealth, and whatever is impressed on it is expressed on the screen of space.

Edison experimented on and meditated upon the principle of electricity. He had an intense desire to light up the world and to serve mankind . . . and electricity yielded its secrets to him. He paid the price by perseverance, stick-to-it-iveness, and confidence that the answer would come. He brought forth countless inventions because he paid the price

Famous newspaper columnist and author, Ruth Montgomery, tells how her "unseen" friends dictated . . .

A BEST-SELLER FROM SPIRIT

*By George Butler, Gadsden, Alabama
Staff Reporter, Gadsden Times*

DID YOU KNOW that a considerable portion of a recent best-selling book was dictated from the Spirit world . . . and the author admits it publicly?

The book, A Search for the Truth, was written by Ruth Montgomery, famous newspaper columnist and author of the runaway best-seller, A Gift of Prophecy, about the Washington, D. C. clairvoyant, Jeane Dixon.

Mrs. Montgomery describes in her book how she took up automatic writing after contacting her deceased father. The first time she tried, she received nothing, but trying again later she said: "Almost immediately the pencil began to race around the page, drawing circles and figure-eights with wild abandon. I could scarcely have stopped the nonsensical motions if I had tried." When she showed the results of her efforts to a psychic friend, she was surprised to learn that automatic writing nearly always starts that way. "The circles and figure-eights are their way of expressing joy that they are, at last, able to establish communication with you," she was told.

After that Mrs. Montgomery tried again, and words began to form, then sentences, and soon a page was filled with messages from deceased relatives. "I had the pencil," she recalls, "yet it seemed to write without me."

It was not long before one of her unseen correspondents introduced himself as a spiritual guide. He drew a lily — by which symbol she would know him each time he was present. He was a somewhat stern fellow, according to Mrs. Montgomery, and refused to tell her anything about himself, except that he had been a writer of great note while on the Earth plane. It wasn't long before he gave her orders to stop smoking and to forego cocktails, apparently to expedite her spiritual progress. He felt she was frittering away too much time with these activities, and they weren't good for her anyway.

Her contact with Spirit through automatic writing was responsible for finding Mrs. Montgomery and her husband just the right house in Georgetown. Before she had ever seen it, her "unseen" friends described the house they had found for her in detail, gave its exact address, and what day the classified "for sale" ad would appear in The Washington Post. She was even told what sum to offer for the house, and that her old home would be sold for a suitable price. Everything turned out just as they had predicted.

Soon after the Montgomerys were settled in their new home, a new guide appeared on the scene, identifying himself by drawing a donkey in one continuous line. This remained his symbol for each message he brought. By this time Mrs. Montgomery was devoting about fifteen minutes each morning to automatic writing, but it began to flow so rapidly that the suggestion came from her guides that she switch from handwriting to the typewriter for greater speed and so that it could be deciphered more easily.

"Each morning thereafter I seated myself at the typewriter and closed my eyes. Then — after silently praying for protection from evil forces — I sought to lift my mind to a higher plateau," Mrs. Montgomery recalls. "Since I have always used the touch system, the typing presented no problem. But I never knew what word was coming next until it began forming itself on the paper . . . The 'unseen' writers ignored man-made rules of punctuation, but their grammar was flawless."

At that time Mrs. Montgomery had just finished a book on the life of Mary McCarran, a Catholic nun for thirty-two years before renouncing her vows to care for her widowed mother and invalid sister. Her guide, Lily, suggested the title, "Once There Was a Nun." Her publishers liked it, and

DIVINE ART OF MEDITATION

THE RUSSIANS ARE "MOVING"

An AP dispatch recently quoted an account from the Soviet newspaper, Moscow Pravda, describing some experiments of "mind over matter."

When Nelya Mikhailova wants something she just stares at it and it starts creeping towards her. Nelya, married and in her 40's, has astounded scientists with her ability to make such things as match sticks or wine glasses move without touching them, to make a one-pound water pitcher slide across a table, or to stop and then restart a pendulum swinging. In one experiment, under scientific supervision, she apparently caused a small aluminum tube to shift positions under a glass cover. In another test, matches and an apple jumped off a table at her "command."

Soviet scientists were quoted as saying they do not know how Nelya does it, but they are sure there is a logical explanation (which is more latitude than many investigators in the USA might give to the credibility of the demonstration of such a phenomenon).

"It's nothing supernatural," said Y. Sitkovsky. "When a person thinks, he radiates energy. The character of physical-chemical reactions is stronger in some people."

SUCH POPULARITY!

Did you know that books on clairvoyance, reincarnation and prophecy are selling over a half million copies, that seances and interviewing mystics have become staple television fare? March Redbook magazine ran an open-minded feature well worth catching.

IF THEY UNDERSTOOD how to do so, many more people would practice meditation than do. The need to know God—to obtain a stronger foothold on reality — becomes a necessity in order to retain one's sanity in a world that sometimes seems to have gone mad . . . that has lost all worthwhile values.

"Meditation is a safe and proven means for lifting the level of our consciousness," Flower A. Newhouse tells us, and, as our proficiency in the art of meditation grows, enables us to live consistently at ever higher levels of awareness each day.

Citing how a somewhat materialistic person relaxes, Rev. Newhouse points out that such a person is apt to drift into the instinctive level of consciousness. The mental type of individual, after a day's work, frequently falls back to the ordinary level of consciousness. Even a spiritual person, when unoccupied with more urgent tasks, may descend to the reasoning level. In all these cases, when freed from their routine work or the inspiration of interesting events, idling the consciousness means a lowering of the state of consciousness.

In entering into higher mental and spiritual frequencies during meditation, however, Rev. Newhouse counsels, we slowly develop more conscious control over our consciousness — our thoughts — and our "descents" into the lower states are checked.

To begin a meditation, here is what the well-known Indian teacher, Yogananda, suggests in his little book, Metaphysical Meditations:

Sit still with a straight spine. Cover up your fidgety eyeballs with the sheets of your eyelids. Hold them still. Then loosen your mind from the consciousness of body-weight. Relax the nerve-strings that are attached to the heavy muscles and bones of your body. Forget the consciousness of carrying a heavy bundle of bones tied in the thick cloth of flesh. Rest. Free your mind from the consciousness of a beast of burden. Do not think of your body-load, but feel your soul untied from the constant material quality of heaviness. Mentally race in your fancy's airplane above, beneath, left, right, in infinity, or wherever you want to go. Feel and meditate on this, your mental freedom from your body. Dream, dwell, and feel this body-aboveness when sitting still; the consciousness of freedom will constantly increase.

Then keep these "preliminaries" in mind, Flower Newhouse suggests:

1. Be prepared for a battle to ensue when you ready yourself for meditation. The usually subconscious forces exert their dragging tendencies. Until you have learned to subdue and control them, they are apt to make every effort to defeat you and prevent you from tuning in to the Eternal. They try to prevent your attunement by persuading you to be lazy . . . to procrastinate because of not being "in the mood" for such inner exercises. At other times, material distractions will intrude, or anxieties over annoying problems will demand attention.

Silence these subterranean energies at the very outset. Tell yourself: "For too long have instinctive forces held me captive. I ask the Spirit of God Indwelling to empower me to meet all their enticements in such a manner that I become their master . . . I require peace, alertness of mind, and receptivity of spirit throughout the total period of this time of attunement. Through Christ's encouraging Spirit, so let it be."

2. To be infilled with fresh, vital energies, it is needful to empty ourselves of any remnants of tension, nervousness, weariness, fretfulness, or boredom. We might express our wishes like this: "Through Thy stirring in me, Indwelling God, I seek to be emptied, released and cleansed from all which obstructs Thy Presence. I let go of the old; I invite the new and strengthened frequencies of Light and Life. Through Christ Indwelling, so it is."

3. Whenever you remember to turn to God Indwelling,

PSYCHIC DIGEST

HOW LITTLE WE KNOW!

"There can be no doubt whatever that our growing knowledge of ESP has brought us to the threshold of a revolution of thought of vast dimensions," writes C. K. Shaw in the English journal, Prediction. Continuing, he writes: "The more we learn about it the more we realize how little we know. To some, it may even appear that we are approaching an age of miracles, because so many things can be seen to happen which appear to be against all known laws of orthodox science."

THE WORTH OF VICARIOUS KNOWLEDGE

There is much truth in a statement of James E. Kinnear in Gateway, SFF Journal: "If it be true that one picture is worth a thousand words, it is equally true that one demonstration in the realm of ESP and psychism is worth . . . a good many books and lectures." However, it is also true that even if such a demonstration were to take place, so few understand what happened or what it should mean to them. Here is where acquiring additional knowledge can bring much enlightenment and pave the way to deeper experiences and greater understanding. Even those higher intelligences on the Spirit side of life urge us to strive for improvement of our minds, always applying the faculty of discrimination to all knowledge and experience. So let's not by-pass the knowledge others have gained or throw out all the books yet.

A YOGI SCARCITY IN INDIA

For studying the effects of yoga and meditation on brain waves and the involuntary nervous system, The All India Institute of Medical Sciences needs yogis to complete a ten year research project. However, it appears there may not be as many bonafide yogis around as there once were as few have come forward to cooperate in the tests. If science could determine how the heart can be slowed or temporarily stopped to save life or prolong it, how — in a state of rest — man could reduce to half his normal oxygen requirements for space travel, or how — in deep meditation — brain activity could be expanded in an "awake but relaxed state," such research results could bring giant steps forward in man's progression.

A NEW SCIENCE

The recognition of psychic phenomena is only a beginning of the vast future development of psychic science . . . just as the jumping of pith balls or the dancing of frogs by electrical force was the beginning of modern electrical technology.

Pure psychic science may soon develop into an applied science or spiritual technology. Thereby communication between the worlds — physical and psychic — may be rendered much easier and more reliable than it is actually at present . . . just as modern methods of communication are as compared with the primitive ones . . . so says Indian writer, L. J. Yadav in The Astrological Magazine on "Psychic Science and the Problem of Survival."

CHILDREN OF THE NEW AGE SPEAK UP

If you have been listening to the words of much of our popular music lately, you are aware that they reflect an intense interest in the key social and religious issues of our day. Reflecting this interest, the Methodist Television, Radio and Film Commission is developing a radio series, "The Place," to be tested on fifteen stations, for teenagers in which music from the "top forty" will be played and teen-agers will discuss the words for their social, moral, ethical, political and religious implications. Already the New Age children speak forth!

DO ANIMALS HAVE SOULS TOO?

TO A GOOD MANY people the idea that animals — like humans — have a goal in life, a way of growth, and undergo soul evolution is just too far-fetched even to consider.

All the kingdoms of Nature, however, do have their goal and their way of growth, in fact follow the same Law of Unfoldment as takes place in the life of a child. The first thing a baby evidences is intense activity; so do puppies and kittens. Unseen by mortal eyes, even the mineral kingdom, in which Life is most closely "cribbed, cabined and confined," is yet incredibly "alive." In all the universe there is no such thing as "dead matter." After a millennial of ages in the mineral kingdom, the Life-Wave passes on into the vegetable kingdom, and here it begins to feel. It does not know that it feels . . . that is a different thing.

Think of how flowers turn and open to the sun, and sensitive leaves curl up when touched. I once heard Sir Jagadis Chandra Bose, the great Indian scientist, lecture on the "Nervous System in Plants," and describe a machine he had invented which registered a plant's response to the surrounding forces of Nature. He found that a sheltered plant did not produce such an organized nervous system as one exposed to the winds and storms of life — quite a lesson for all of us!

In the animal kingdom, life not only grows and feels, but begins to think. Indeed, some animals in their little way think very clearly and keenly, as all who love and watch animals have observed.

There is a fundamental difference between man and the lower kingdoms, and between man and the animal kingdom. All the lower kingdoms below man are hardly self-conscious. They are conscious after their fashion, but are not self-conscious. They are moved by a hidden corporate intelligence which we may designate as a group psyche or group soul. This is the origin of the animal instinct . . . as the herd instinct, which, when one sheep jumps through a hedge, causes all the others to follow him. The higher animal species seem to possess more individual memory, however. The hidden truth behind this is that all share group souls. After death an animal's individual consciousness and experiences are absorbed by the group soul, tending to add to the instinctive knowledge of the group. Notice, for example, the way the group soul of horses has become accustomed to automobiles, and how certain wild animals are now wary of a gun.

Haven't you wondered what happens to an animal dear to you?

The lower small animals, such as bees and butterflies and ants, share a common group soul in enormous numbers. They are also in contact with the lower orders of Devic intelligences who help them to bring about "protective variation," but the greater the growth and intelligence of the species, the fewer the numbers sharing one group soul, until, among the higher mammals, quite a small number share life together. These group souls are the origin of species, and when a new sub-species arises, it means a cleavage in the group soul brought about by very differing experiences. Thus, life ascends the scale until it reaches what we call the "domestic animals" . . . those brought into contact with man. Why are they brought into contact with man? Here we return to the fundamental difference between the higher animals and man: Man is a trinity, possessing a body, a soul, and an immortal, undying Spirit. The animals possess bodies and souls, or psychic counterparts, which — in the case of the higher animals — live for some time a separate, individual life after death, but are not yet vehicles for the incoming of a Divine Spark of Deity, hereafter to be gradually shaped and redeemed by Him.

So animals do have souls, and some of them live individual lives for quite some time after death. This is even more the case with an animal that has been made a friend by man. It is to be noticed in the rapid growth of intelligence and emotional response in an animal well cared for, loved, and befriended.

Certain animals head the long growth of their species. Horses have behind them a long anterior evolution from the little creature of the prehistoric ages; the domestic dog is at the head of the canine tribe; the cat leads the feline species. These animals are now in constant contact with man for their own sakes, not ours. This can happen only with particularly favored specimens of four animal species: the horse, the dog, the cat, and the monkey. These lead the animal evolutionary life. Contact with man sharpens their individual intelligence. When they are loved and befriended, their emotional response increases. This is more easily observed in the case of a horse or a dog, the particular "friends of man." The continual companionship of the greater and higher life with the smaller,

TWIN SOULS DO MEET!

By Hilda Magnuson
St. Petersburg, Florida

TWIN SOULS! . . . what joy, what ecstasy when they meet . . . be it on Earth or in Heaven.

When first we come into matter we part — souls divided to gain experience before again joining as one. A long road lies in between . . . one of many heartaches and many sorrows, hurts and grievances. Finally, however, our paths do cross as one again, and when it does the jubilation can be felt all over Heaven.

Many on Earth today are living together as twin souls, elevated to a place where they have earned the right to be together. Many who seem to be mismatched are so for a very good purpose, however . . . to glean education in soul growth. All on the path of matter have stumbled and fallen, you can be sure, for this is how mistakes are rectified. When this happens, we find our own.

Did you not know that stumbling blocks to the path of success are actually our own negations . . . our own unwillingness to see the mistakes of the past, to see our own puffed up feeling about being right? How many pray to God, the Heavenly Father, for Light on the pathway, then immediately disobey His Laws and flagrantly do just as they please.

How can we be sure we recognize a twin soul? How do we know there is a God? Inner conviction tells us. There is a peace within us that speaks of oneness . . . of belonging. Until we find our other half there is a desperate yearning — for what we know not. There is a hunger that cannot be satisfied . . . an emptiness that cannot be filled . . . a loneliness that cannot be surmounted. The soul is searching for its own; it craves unity.

Sometimes people meet, fall in love, and part for some reason. This is according to God's plan. Perhaps we can never forget that one love, but we do the best we can with what has been given to us. This is part of the plan, for reasons known only to the soul. While seeking its own, faults of the past must be corrected, the slate cleaned, as it were. After this is done and all karmic tasks have been completed, we will have earned the right to rejoin our true mate.

Some never meet their twin soul while on Earth, and even on Heaven's shore not for a long time. Somewhere in the vast space of eternity, however, we do rejoin our true mate. Then there is no more searching, no more gazing at the stars and wondering why that lonely feeling in the heart, that unfulfilled hunger.

Heaven is filled with souls who have found each other . . . who know a love that has no bounds. It is a tie that never can be broken. When this happens, YOU KNOW it, and no one need ever tell you.

It often happens that while one soul is on the Earth plane its twin soul is on Heaven's side. Perhaps neither knows of the other, and it takes a passing before the truth is recognized. When the one on high knows his or her soul mate is still on Earth, he or she stays very close, scarcely leaving the side of the loved one, filling the bosom of the one still here with an essence of love so powerful that it satiates every nerve of the body and prepares it for the joy of being released from Earth when the two are one. Many souls have known this.

There are also many on the other side of life who see their twin soul wedded to another on Earth. There is no jealousy, however; in fact, they do all in their power to instill happiness, for it is the duty of both — karmic-wise — to live as serene and happy a life as possible to fulfill their life's destiny. The two are watched over, guided, protected and loved until the curtains of remember to stir up and develop your enthusiasm and reverent anticipation for that of God which you touch. As you do this, it enables you to sense more and to tune in more readily than you would have without it.

4. That we might become aligned completely with our Inmost God Center, let us use an alignment technique such as one like this:

My physical body, unitedly with its invisible etheric body of energy, is the Servant of the Lord God Indwelling.

Try to realize the body and its energies as being obedient and responsive to the Central Will within.

My outer body is attuned to the astral body of emotions which is the Disciple of the Lord God Indwelling.

In so dedicating the emotional body in this way, we can depend upon it to remain constructively motivated and controlled.

My astral body is attuned to the mental body which is the Pupil of the Indwelling Lord.

In this way we try to prepare our mind for the purity, integrity, range, and responsiveness necessary for its use as a channel for the reception of Reality.

My mind is attuned to my causal body, the soul, which is my "Angel Self."

Now we try to lift our thoughts and aspirations to the soul consciousness level — ordinarily the highest consciousness we can achieve, appreciating the beauty, holiness, and pure nature of our soul-being, viewing life from its lofty God-awareness.

Through my soul being, I am aligned with the I-AM-OF-GOD SELF, Holy God Indwelling.

Not through straining, but through reverent and attuned thought, we aspire to know at-one-ment with this perfect and immortal God Spirit. And concluding this preparation for meditation, let us affirm:

The Lord is in His holy temple: let all the Earth keep silence before Him. Glorify thou me with thine own self, O Father, with the glory which I had with thee before the world was.

Thus we enter the silence — that state of inward awareness — to achieve active God-attention, and as our consciousness is occupied with it, all the members of our Being (Spirit, soul, mind, emotions, energies and body) are rested and harmonized by the wave lengths of Divinity.

The foregoing suggestions for developing your own laboratory of meditation you can amplify a great deal by Rev. Newhouse's writings in Meditation: The Way to Attainment and Yogananda's Metaphysical Meditations, to mention a few of the selections awaiting you in the Chimes Book Catalog. See the back flap to order while it is on your mind.

life part and the step is taken to life's other side. Having waited patiently for the other to arrive, the twin soul then gathers the other to his or her loving arms. When God rejoins twin souls who have been parted a long time, perhaps aeons, it is with His blessing. Love knows no bounds, and a perfect union — made in Heaven — culminates in ecstasy such as mortal man never has known. Whenever such a meeting takes place, love and peace of heart is ours forever, and together we work as One for the glory of God.

Sermonette

"TONGUES OF FIRE"

By Dr. Joseph Murphy
Beverly Hills, California

TONGUES OF FIRE symbolize the expansion of consciousness from one state of awareness to another . . . from sickness to health, from poverty to wealth, from darkness to light.

Suppose, for instance, that a man in the hospital, in pain, is complaining or bemoaning his fate; he speaks in the tongue of sickness. Suppose he prays and is healed and made whole. Now he speaks in a new tongue . . . the new language is the mood of health and of peace.

You read in the Bible of "new tongues." These tongues mean mood, tone, vibration, or feeling. The universal tongue, however, is love . . . for God is love. All men understand it, and it is the universal solvent which dissolves all problems.

When you pray, you withdraw from the objective world and the evidence of your five senses. You begin to think of God, and all your attention is on your good, your ideal, the reality of the Spirit within. You feel the response of the Spirit flowing through you, and a pleasant, happy mood steals over you. This peaceful, confident mood is the mighty wind (the movement of Spirit) which fills the whole house (your mind). The cloven "tongues of fire" now descend upon you, symbolic of love, and love means at-one-ment, or one with your ideal. This fire has touched every one of your faculties, and you are spiritually enriched and illumined. In the stillness, the Spirit speaks through you . . . and He doeth the works.

Prayer is the Answer by Dr. Murphy demonstrates this power and how you may claim it — available from Chimes.

DO ANIMALS HAVE SOULS TOO?

the continual play of the more highly evolved aura of the man upon the less evolved soul, the dog, for example, brings about sometimes a remarkable heightening and expansion of the dog's mental and emotional faculties.

It is a very rare happening, demanding such perfect conditions, but it may happen that the dog's mind and heart have so transcended the normal orbit of his kind that the attention of the waiting Deva hosts is attracted and they put a Divine Spark, waiting to commence its great evolutionary journey, into contact with that advancing animal soul, and thus, before he quits his animal body for the last time, he already has become a man, attached to an immortal Spirit. He will not reincarnate as a human being on this planet; that door is closed. However, he will incarnate upon another planet, and that may well be by the time his master will have reached Adeptship — the Superhuman Kingdom. The bond of love and friendship thus formed never can be broken, and what was a bond of friendship between a noble man and a noble animal becomes the precious bond between the Master and His disciple. In the eighteenth century, John Wesley — founder of Methodism — glimpsed this truth and said:

What if it should please the all-wise, the all-gracious Creator, to raise the animals higher in the scale of being? What if it should please Him, when He makes us "equal to the angels" to make them what we are now, capable of God; capable of knowing, and loving, and enjoying the Author of their being?

Such is the wonderful possibility at the apex of the animal evolution. All Life is One, glorious and beautiful in meaning and purpose, and when we glimpse that ever so faintly, we begin to befriend, try to understand, cooperate with all living things, and cease to exploit, destroy, or imprison them ignorantly. The tender heart of William Blake wrote:

A Robin Redbreast in a Cage
Puts all Heaven in a Rage,
A skylark wounded in the wing,
A cherubim does cease to sing.

business, industry, and in many other areas of leadership, surprised and astounded me. However, Higher Sense Perception is just beginning to be respectable, and many people see no reason for discrediting their work by admitting they have these amazing abilities. Whether we admit it exists or not, however, society is benefiting by Higher Sense Perception ability. Even more important — in a society constantly searching for more creative people, better scientists, we cannot afford to ignore this tremendous potential in human capability.

In the field of space medicine alone, new environmental effects are being produced having no parallel in man's experience. Research procedures are long and tedious, as well as dangerous and costly in time, effort and money. Yet certain sensitives can see what is happening inside the body, in the energy fields surrounding it, can immediately distinguish between radio-active and non-radio-active tracers moving in the body, and — unlike a machine — can answer questions and try different types of observations that could spot trouble before occurring, while other sensitives can magnify an object many times to look into its inner structure for defects. What the sensitive with psychometric ability can offer under directed research for the arts and sciences is incalculable. Working with teams of scientists and professionals in all fields, the accelerated progression they could bring about is beyond anything we can now imagine. Indeed — these gifted people are the Supersane among us . . . the forerunners of the Age to come.

so named the book.

In addition to lessons from her guides, Mrs. Montgomery received frequent messages from her father and other deceased relatives and friends, all urging her not to let worldly things interfere with her quest for spiritual development. Lily once said: "These worldly blows (she had just lost a beach house in a storm) are as nothing over the long stretch. The only part that matters is how well you prepare yourself for the next stage of life . . . by making the most of your time while here. We want you to help others through our teachings." Other messages to her, in part, went like this:

"The ones you call the unfortunates may not be unfortunate at all. It may be simply their way of achieving goodness and oneness with God more rapidly than you . . . If they sacrifice more, and live more abundantly for others, they are far more fortunate than those of you with mink coats, chauffeured cars, and the countless temptations that beset your trail through the maze of parties and working hours.

"As each was created out of God's love, he was given certain tools or talents with which to make his path through life, and return at last to God. How those talents are used determines when the journey shall end."

*These two books by Mrs. Montgomery are available from Chimes — see back flap.

"Even as rivers spring from different sources, yet mingle in the ocean, so the many paths, straight or crooked that men follow, all lead to thee, O Lord, the one goal of all."

GLIMPSES OF THE MASTERS . . .

SPEAKING ON THE ART of healing combined with teaching as He did while on Earth, the Master Jesus discusses this in David Anrias' book, *Through the Eyes of the Masters, as the author tunes in to the different thought-currents emanating from Jesus and some of the other great Adept minds.

Speaking on the upsurge of many diseases which presently afflict mankind and are becoming less susceptible to treatment by accepted methods, the Master gave this explanation:

This is due to the fact that many egos in the effort to become free to tread the path have undertaken to absorb and transmute undesirable elementals or thought-forms created by themselves in past lives, and which, in the present life, return to attack them in one or other of their subtler bodies before manifesting as strange and baffling ailments in the physical. When the hour of their deliverance is at hand these brave souls will be brought into contact with healers and physicians able to counteract their maladies with the appropriate treatment. Clairvoyant sight, of course, will be indispensable to determine the origin of the trouble, and the vibrations of color and sound will be utilized increasingly to produce healing effects and to rebuild and strengthen not only the higher bodies but the physical itself.

The battle within man's consciousness shifts its field with every age. Where before the problem was to raise the emotional to the spiritual by means of prayer and aspiration, now it tends to become the effort to conquer desire through analysis. This being so, we who directed the old line of spiritual endeavor must modify to some extent our original methods in order to cooperate with those Adepts and their disciples who are to become associated with the new. The actual transference from one line to the other will cover centuries, for thousands of souls who are not of a self-analytical type still will be in need of that healing power which prayer alone can give. . . The very act of kneeling itself is of great occult significance in that the physical etheric centers become attuned to certain currents encircling the Earth, ever available to those who desire help from the unseen. By associating prayer with kneeling, man is not only aided, but to a certain extent guarded from pernicious influences liable to dominate him in any other position that the body can assume.

In the Middle Ages the average man's mental body being but elementary, it readily became quiescent at times of prayer, and the emotions were free to receive spiritual illumination. Likewise by gathering together to pray, added power was generated enabling a group to experience that expansion of consciousness which individuals, praying alone, frequently fail to achieve. Great expansion of consciousness is generated not only by collective prayer, but also by collective sacrifice, such as that entailed by war. Patriotism is a high ideal, one grossly taken advantage of by powerful and unscrupulous men, manipulated by the dark forces. The result is that the psychic currents inspiring patriotic emotion have become tainted . . . The old expansion of consciousness achieved through sacrifice in battle is now far outweighed by the devastating effects of modern warfare on mind and body alike.

Those who would cast a slur on Christianity for its impotence to stop war should bear in mind that it has failed largely because the teachings have become obscured, misapprehensions have arisen, and because man has not been great enough to rise to the wonderful opportunities afforded him. It is to Christianity that the West owes everything that may be termed civilization: The care of children and animals; the consideration for others; the first faint beginnings of cooperation and brotherhood. In the coming cycle it will be raised to a higher level, made more scientific . . . A new religion will be given out, yet it will be a facet of the old. There is but ONE religion, as there is but ONE GOD. Truth itself is infinitely greater than ever can be mirrored in all the teachings, the philosophies, and the religions of the world. Each of these catch and reflect, as it were, one beam of the Light. Whether the reflection is a true one or not depends upon the purity of the mirror.

Upon those souls who — although mistakenly, perhaps — struggle and suffer for the

THOSE WHO are familiar with the materialization of "spirit-forms" should be aware that in many cases this phenomenon takes place by reason of the unconscious projection of the astral body of the medium.

A projection of the astral body of this nature may take on the appearance of someone who has passed on because of the mental picture of that person in the mind of the medium. Even though this is a person the medium never has seen, it is possible that the minds of the persons present knew that person and tend to influence the appearance of the nebulous spirit form. In many cases the medium is not able to produce this phenomenon without the psychic assistance of the sitters.

The fact that the medium usually is in a trance condition aids materially in the ease with which this phenomenon is produced. With the mind stilled, and the subconscious mind active, such astral phenomena are produced with much less trouble than would be the case if the medium were in the ordinary condition. However, utilizing higher powers, it is possible to accomplish materialization with no one present who knew a particular spirit form while on Earth. Swami Panchadasi explains this phenomenon fully in his book, The Astral World. Here he tells about the cast-off shells of souls which have moved on to higher planes of the great astral world. Many of these astral shells, or shades, or other astral semi-entities may be materialized, and thus mistaken for spirits of departed ones. This would also be true of powerful thought-forms. However, a good clairvoyant, by reading the records of the astral light, is able to give information which comes from the departed soul.

The above book by Swami Panchadasi and The Astral Plane by C. W. Leadbeater can prepare you for what to expect in the astral.

MAN'S FORCE CENTERS

.. THE CHAKRAS

PART V.

DESCRIBING those "vitality" globules — which the Hindus call prana — and how they are drawn into the force centers or chakras of the etheric human body, we learned a little about four of the six radiant color rays that pass through these centers in a previous article.

Looking now at the orange-red ray and the darker reds, including a certain amount of dark purple, we see that they flow to the base of the spine and then to the generative organs. In the normal man this energizes the desires of the flesh, and seems to enter the blood and helps to keep up the heat of the body. However, if one persistently refuses to yield to his lower nature, by long and determined effort this ray can be deflected up toward the brain where all three of its constituents can undergo a remarkable modification. The orange raised into a pure yellow intensifies the powers of the intellect. The dark red becomes crimson and increases the quality of unselfish affection. The dark purple is transmuted into a lovely pale violet and quickens the spiritual part of man's nature. The person who achieves such a transmutation will find that sensual desires no longer trouble him.

VITALITY AND HEALTH

In his book on The Chakras,* C. W. Leadbeater describes how these rays passing through the various force centers of the body regulate the parts of the body with which they are concerned, and how one with clairvoyant sight easily can "see" where a person's weaknesses occur according to the flow of the color stream and if the amount is in the right proportion.

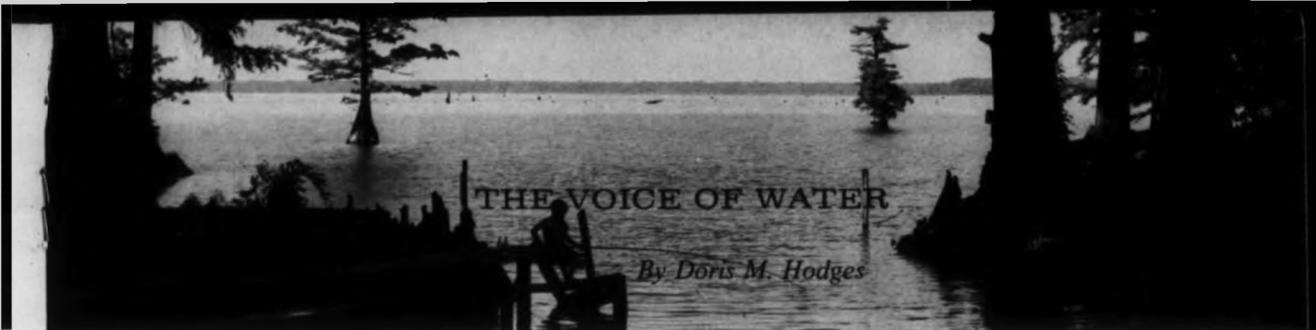

For example, he mentions that "where the yellow current is strong and full, it indicates or produces strength and regularity in the action of the heart; it also penetrates the blood and is sent all over the body . . . with enough left to extend also into the brain where the power of high philosophical and metaphysical thought appears to depend to a great extent upon the volume and activity of this yellow stream, and the corresponding awakening of the force center at the top of the head."

In a further description of the effects of the other color rays, Leadbeater continues: "Thought and emotion of a high spiritual type seem to depend largely upon the violet ray, whereas the power of ordinary thought is stimulated by the action of the blue mingled with the yellow. In some forms of idiocy the flow of vitality to the brain — both yellow and blue-violet — is almost inhibited. Unusual activity or volume of the light blue at the throat center is accompanied by health and strength of the physical organs in that part of the body. It gives strength and elasticity to the vocal cords so that special brilliance and activity are noticeable here in the case of a public speaker or a great singer. Weakness or disease in any part of the body," he concludes, "is accompanied by a deficiency in the flow of vitality to that part."

This flow of vitality into or through any center we are discussing here, however, must not be confused with the entirely different development of a center brought about by the awakening of the higher levels of what is called the "serpent-fire" at a later stage in man's evolution. We all draw in vitality and specialize it, but many of us do not utilize it to the full, because in various ways our lives are not as pure and healthy and reasonable as they should be. Right thought and right feeling react also on the body for increased vitality necessary for its well-being. (to be continued)

THE VOICE OF WATER

By Doris M. Hodges

THE NATURAL WORLD is full of sound. It is a symphony played on many chords, in a variety of cadences, which man has sought to imitate in the harmonies and the discords of music. Not all the sounds of nature, of course, are pleasing to the ear or to the mind. It is, nevertheless, these variations in tone, pitch, and degree which add interest and stimulus to our ears, the organs and translators of hearing.

Perhaps one might not imagine, at first thought, that the discords of natural music could be healing. Yet often they are, because they express a mood, and thus enable the mind, through hearing, to ventilate emotions and thoughts which would otherwise remain mute or frustrated within the mind or soul.

Water is an elemental sound . . . and the world is full of it. Indeed, without the sound of water, the natural symphonies and melodies which come to us on the wave-lengths of nature would be, of themselves, inharmonious and lacking in the same kind of healing balance which would be absent from the organic substances of the Earth were water suddenly no longer part of these.

If one thinks of nature as a vast organ, upon which are played all the sounds which fill the world, this voice of water is one of the most powerful and yet varied in the whole range of natural composition. If we pull out all the organ stops, and listen with our imaginations, we can hear the soft pitter-patter of raindrops, the torrential rush of mighty waterfalls, the slow murmur of rivers, the tinkle of small streams, the lap of lake waters upon quiet shores, or the thunder of the seas as they assault the granite rocks or pebbly shores.

All this is the voice of water . . . one of the most mysterious and yet inspiring and evocative of sounds which can be peaceful, soothing, stimulating, or depressing — even frightening — according to the mood and interpretation of the listener.

In the therapeutic sense, water heals because, when one accepts it as a sound, one comes face to face with this mysterious element, reminding us that it is, indeed, an element, and not anything which man has produced in a test-tube or by any of his own mechanical skills. There is much that man can do with water, of course, especially when he harnesses it to produce light, heat, or power . . . but as an element, he cannot make it . . . it is there — like the wind, and the air, and that other element, fire.

. . . how the vibrations of sound can bring inspiration and healing . . .

In the language of the occult, of course, water is one of the four cardinal elements, of which the other three are earth, fire, and air. So there is a certain primeval magic and mystery about water and, no doubt, it is a subconscious awareness of these qualities held in it which is transmuted to the sound of water, and thereby gives it a hidden therapy of its own. It is both a power and a force, and in the sound of water there seem, at times, to be voices which transmute to us, the listeners, a kind of ancient magic and mystery.

Undoubtedly the sound of water is a therapeutic one because it releases the imaginative powers, as well as acts upon the nervous system in a variety of ways. Not all of these may be soothing or stimulating; they may even be irritating. For instance, one thinks of the slow drip-drip of a leaking tap, or of water upon stone from a cave or enclosed place, which can be torturing to the mind because of its slow, monotonous rhythm. The sound of rain, too, when it descends without ceasing, drumming upon baked Earth after months of drought, or hitting windows or the roof, can be a source of nervous irritation to many temperaments. The long, slow sound of the tide can be equally dreary and monotonous, almost dirge-like, as all water sounds can be under some circumstances.

Thus, since water is an element, and plays upon the surfaces of the planet in this way, through periods of calm and tempest, light and dark, winter and summer, it contributes to the shaping of the planet in this aural sense. It also affects us as human beings, as well as the animals, birds, flowers, and all living things — in fact shapes our lives and our temperaments, because through it, we interpret our own moods and thoughts as we do through the other elements which are, after all, only physical evidence of the Creative Spirit behind all manifested things.

In this creative interpretation of the sound of water, musicians, particularly, have given us sounds of various kinds which contribute to our healing upon the mental and spiritual planes. Handel actually incorporated the sound of water in the title of one of his famous pieces, "Water Music." There are also many other equally noted pieces which are an interpretation, in all its moods, of this natural element which speaks to us through sound.

The most therapeutic way in which this element works is to soothe the mind, because there is in the sound of it, at times, a quality of hypnosis. It is a natural narcotic, more powerful and beneficial than any kind of drug. Most of us have, at some time or another, sat on a bench by the sea, or upon the cliffs above it, or beside a mountain stream, or tinkling rivulet, and succumbed to this spell of water. The sea has a rhythm to it, and a beat, speaking to us of the marvelous order of the moon and the planets as they keep their appointed stations in the element of air.

Water is a mirror in which, at times, we see the Universe reflected, and thus it evokes the psychic qualities in man. The sound of a raindrop falling upon a rosebud — a gentle sound that has to be listened for — can be infinitely healing because it arouses in the mind that sense of mysterious wonder which fills the listening soul with marvelous healing.

In the sound of water — however it comes to us — God speaks. On a visit to Switzerland some years ago I stood by a famous waterfall, watching it cascade down over the rocky ravine below. As I heard the thunder of it all, my senses were filled with awe. Then, up over the tumbling and clamorous waters, a rainbow rose and lighted the spray. Here was water, in sound, emphasizing another interpretive function, giving fuller depth and meaning to vision.

A planet without the sound of water would be a static, silent world. The sound of rain reassures us that the Earth's physical needs will be met, that man and animal will not starve. Floods and tempests may come, frightening with the sound of elemental fury, but it is in this manner that nature restores the terrestrial balance.

No human ear hears the dewdrop form, yet it has a sound as it swings upon its blade of grass or delicate flower moulding. It is a psychic sound . . . assuring us that we are provided for, that behind all this created Universe a Mind plans our way and plots our course.

THE SECRET OF PERFECT LIVING

Seems like it would have been more apropos to have titled this book, "The Mood-Meter — How it Can Make you Rich," for, in fact, used with autoconditioning, that is the point of the whole book.

For fifteen years scientists in three major universities worked to perfect this unusual device, for which they claim the astonishing ability to guide a person straight to great wealth. Not until Dr. Hornell Hart, Ph.D., of Duke University came along and perfected the device did they "strike it rich" with experimental results . . . and only then made it available to the general public. As news of Dr. Hart's breakthrough leaked out, scientists and ordinary people from all over the world began to clamor for it, wanted to see it and use it.

On page 78 of his book Dr. Hart states:

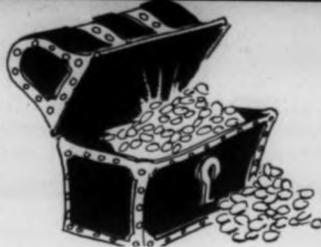

"In the brain of every normal human being there is a built-in receiving set" . . . When used with autoconditioning, the Mood-Meter acts as a guidance system. "Results are usually instantaneous," says Dr. Hart . . . for working through this receiving set it leads you to the wealth you are seeking . . . whatever the form. The important thing is, according to Dr. Hart, you cannot fail to be enriched in some way. Hard to believe, but on every page of this book you will find new ways that the Mood-Meter and autoconditioning can be used to get you exactly the things you want in life.

Maybe this promise of sudden riches is just a little hard to believe, but by the time Dr. Hart gets through with his true-to-life case histories, you might find yourself WANTING to believe it can be done.

Just about everyone would like to know the "secret of perfect living." In these pages James T. Mangan is willing to help you find it. "The secret," he claims, "lies in putting a stop to the endless war within yourself . . . in bringing the opposed conscious and subconscious forces within you into harmony and union . . . so that they work in self-togetherness to bring you the riches of a happy, triumphant and prosperous life."

By the simple technique of using "magic switchwords" that work almost like a push-button science, you will see for yourself how you can unite those opposing forces within you, and how through the use of "switchwords" you can help your "own worst enemy" join forces with your conscious plans, decisions, and objectives to achieve a self-togetherness that makes you invincible.

These key words are semantically "loaded" to trigger a powerful release within your mind and character. Since your subconscious "thinks" in a dream-language of imagery and symbols, these "switch-words" give you conscious control. It is having this control that gives you twice the strength you need to win your goals and twice the energy you need to enjoy life with a zest. Using these "switchwords" also enables you to clear out blocked thought-channels so that your mind acts camera-quick to solve your problems, and your memory works instantly to help you in a thousand powerful ways. For instance, wouldn't it be exciting to say a magic word that could bring a lost item into your hands once more? You'll find out how to do just that, and how using the "magic switchwords" can perform other wonders in your life.

KEEPING UP WITH

THE RHINES

American parapsychology's most respected team of scholarly researchers in extrasensory perception.

WHENEVER PEOPLE are confronted with challenging new ideas — such as those which parapsychology presents — their first reaction is a defensive one, according to long experience by Dr. Louisa E. Rhine. They try to make fun of it. When that wears out, they try to make sense of it. After a certain amount of that, they try to make use of it. In fields like engineering or medicine, this may take a few years — at most, a generation — but in the sciences of mind, history is not very encouraging. Much depends upon how difficult it is to make sense of the new discoveries . . . on how well they fit in.

In parapsychology, practical usage requires a measure of control over the abilities involved. But this is easier said than done — as every researcher knows — for it depends upon more knowledge about them than thus far has been secured. If ESP abilities were more controllable, its acceptance as a science by the other sciences would indeed be accelerated. It would also mean that fantastic new ranges of application could be ushered in as perhaps no other discovery has done. From her own background of research, Dr. Rhine feels reasonably certain that control of psi (ESP) abilities will come . . . with what limitations and qualifications, no one knows yet.

Those who will do the most to advance a research program in this field, Dr. Rhine feels, will not be from neighboring professional fields, for they are too bound by existing belief systems. Instead, professional groups farthest away from parapsychology are showing the greatest and most uninhibited interest in psi investigation. Among the space sciences, for example, technological people are interested in it as an independent mode of communication. Among the other sciences, however, since no different kind of basic causal principle — beside the physical — has been claimed, finding that man is not wholly physical, nor the processes concerned with him, is revolutionary in the extreme. This is the kind of revolution, however, that should be considered as the highest form of usefulness in a scientific discovery. Time will tell — how long we do not know.

sake of Truth as they see it, rests ever the blessing of those who would turn every pain and every sorrow and every disappointment into glory, into strength, into future beatitude.

Racial development can no more be hurried than can that of a tree; so the changes will be gradual as ever from one dispensation to the next. The sixth ray devotional types, whose era has dominated the world for two thousand years, will by degrees be superseded by more purely mental ones who will inspire the prevailing thought of the future.

According to the Master Jesus, it is His Brother, Hilarion, who — amongst other activities — is guiding this coming Movement of Spirit when the devotional aspiration of former days will be combined with the new desire for scientific proof of survival after death.

QUESTIONS WE ALL ASK

... with messages for the searching mind in quest of Truth, satisfaction for the perplexed, comfort for the sorrowing heart.

• DOES DISCORD between parents and children, or between others closely associated, mean they have karmic debts to be worked out between them?

the present. This is true for every soul. It has been given: "Neither do I condemn them —" Who gave that? LIFE itself! . . . God condemns not those that seek to know His face, and believe. Then it is not karma, but in Him the debt is paid . . . Thy Lord, thy Master, thyself!

• DO WE RETAIN all talents developed in our past experiences?

• WHAT IS the greatest sin?

and faults of every nature. For the only sin of man is selfishness. Being afraid is the first consciousness of the entering of sin into the soul. He that is made afraid has lost the consciousness of his heritage with the son of God, the Father.

• IN PRINCIPLE, is faith healing possible?

• WHAT IS the purpose and value of fasting?

The foregoing are excerpts from the Edgar Cayce Clairvoyant Readings, 123 Questions and Answers. See also the booklet by Mary Ann Woodward, That Ye May Heal — both of which may be ordered from Chimes back flap.

WHETHER IT BE as individual activities to those who have individualized as thy father, thy mother, thy brother or the like, or others; it is merely SELF being met — in relationship to what they themselves are working out—not a karmic debt BETWEEN, but a karmic debt of SELF that may be worked out between the associations that exist in THOSE WHO have been trained in the former experiences in the Earth, though they may not have applied the principles in the immediate present, may have the wisdom of the ages at their disposal . . . if there is the beginning and application of the SELF in those directions.

WHAT IS ever the worst fault of each soul? SELF! What is the meaning of self? That the hurts, the hindrances, are hurts to the self-consciousness . . . and these create what? — disturbing forces. These bring confusions

IN MEDITATION, when one has purified self, healing of every kind and nature may be disseminated on the wings of thought.

FASTING MEANS what the Master gave — laying aside our own concept of how or what should be done at any period and letting the Spirit guide. Get the truth of fasting! To be sure, overindulgence of bodily appetites brings shame to self, as overindulgence in anything. But true fasting is casting out of SELF any thought of what we would have done, and becoming channels for what He would have done in the Earth through us.

GAMBLING AND ESP

By Robert H. Day
Monarch, Montana

ON ONE OCCASION when I was in Las Vegas, I thought it would be interesting to see if I could recognize any evidence of ESP at the gaming tables. I chose the roulette wheel for my experiment, as one could play it without previous knowledge.

Some players were winning and happy, others were losing and unhappy. Here there was no control of the ball by the players—it was just a matter guessing where it would stop. This caused me to wonder what forces had a part in the betting. Did Spirit help?

On the edge of the roulette table were two diamond-shaped places—one red and one black—for those who desired to bet on color. For a try, I thought it would be interesting to do some imaginary betting. First I bet on the red . . . and red was the winner. Then I bet on black . . . and black was the winner. Then I bet on red again, and red was the winner.

I did so well on the imaginary plays that I decided to try it with money. I placed a dollar bill on the red . . . and I lost . . . so I placed one on the black . . . lost again . . . played one more time on the red . . . and lost again.

That was enough for me. Something was working against me when it came to betting with money. When I didn't bet with money, everything was fine.

Nearby was an English speaking Oriental tourist playing the numbers. He didn't seem to be doing so well either. Asking how I played, I told him about betting on the colors, so he stopped playing with the numbers, substituting the colors. In three consecutive plays he won twenty-five dollars. Not letting the thrill of his winnings impair his good judgment, he quickly cashed in his winnings. Was it chance that I lost three dollars and he won twenty-five?

To me it seemed there was some sort of spiritual control that brought it about.

TO MOTHER IN SPIRIT

My thoughts reach out to you beyond the veil
And through the silence of my quiet thought
I feel the light warm airy touch
Of love your presence brought.

There's a million yesterdays between the then and now
When first you cradled me in love within your heart
And life began to stir within my breast
You taught me life and living at its start.

The love you wrapped around my heart
Has warmed my whole life through
And the love I've given others
First came to me from you.

I learned the blessed happiness
That life itself can give
And your love was the balm
That covered wounds as I began to live.

So deep in earnest prayer to God
I thank you both for love through life
That guards and guides and keeps me
While walking this path of strife.

LIFE IN THE WORLD UNSEEN*

based on the writings of Anthony Borgia

PART XIV.

TO HAVE the opportunity to join a gathering that was to welcome a visitation from a Being of the higher realms was something in which our friends in Spirit, Monsignor Robert Benson and his wife, Ruth, took great delight. The great domed building which held the immense assembly of people who gathered there radiated an atmosphere of peace and high purpose. Charged with spiritual force, one felt a unity of mind not possible among those of the same beliefs on the Earth plane.

The temple stood completely isolated, with no other buildings near it, mid a great sea of flowers extending as far as the eye could see. Arising from all this were the most heavenly sounds of music and the most delicate perfumes, the effect on the Bensons being that of pure exaltation of the spirit. The building itself was magnificent — stately, grand, made of the finest crystal, polished until it shone in the sun — indeed, a temple of light. Not only did its surfaces scintillate and reflect the light in the usual way, but gave out a light of their own that could be felt spiritually.

Describing his impressions of what was to him an unforgettable and moving experience, Monsignor Benson tells us:

“The sanctuary, which was of spacious dimensions, was filled with many beings from higher realms — with the exception of a space in the center — which I guessed was reserved for our visitant. We were all of us seated, and conversed quietly among ourselves. Presently we were aware of the presence of a stately figure of a man with jet-black hair who was closely followed by a kindly Egyptian whom we had met earlier. To those who had already witnessed such visitations, their arrival was at once the indication of the coming of the high personage, and we all accordingly rose to our feet. Then, before our eyes appeared first a light — almost dazzling — but we soon became attuned to it and felt no sensation of spiritual discomfort. Later I discovered that the light really attuned to us, toned down to accord with ourselves and our realm. It was a golden hue at its extremities, gradually brightening towards the center. In the center there soon took shape the form of our visitant . . . a man whose appearance was that of a youth — spiritual youth — but we knew he carried with him to an unimaginable degree the three comprehensive and all-sufficing attributes of Wisdom, Knowledge, and Purity. His countenance shone with transcendental beauty; his hair was of gold, while around his head was a lustrous diadem. His raiment was of the most gossamer-like quality — a pure white robe bordered with a deep band of gold, while from his shoulders hung a mantle of richest cerulean blue which was fastened upon his breast with a great pink pearl. His movements were majestic as he raised his arms and sent forth a blessing upon us all. We remained standing and silent while our thoughts ascended to Him

Who sent us such a glorious being.

“It is not possible for me to convey to you one fraction of the exaltation of the spirit I felt while in the presence of this heavenly guest. I do know that not for long

We give thanks for all kindness, graciousness, thoughtfulness, hospitality and Love in the Universe and bless all people who extend these to each other. They are expressing God. All good is God.

ODE TO SPIRIT

THE COURT OF THE UNSEEN

Someday we shall appear
In the Court of the Unseen,
And stand before a Judge
Who knows what we have been.

Every deed is written
In God's Book of Life,
Whether such be good deeds
Or those of unjust strife.

Thus, let us all remember
That every deed we do,
Shall be there before us,
When life on Earth is through.

A PRAYER FOR THE DAY

May someone see the Christ in me
This living day.
May someone hear
His message clear
Through words I say.
May someone know a higher glow
Because I go along His way.
This prayer I pray.

— from the Unity Housebook

TIME OF AWAKENING

Is timidity, then for only the very young,
The limited province of startled
things and faun,
The half-caught breath of shyness,
the faint flush
Hidden soft in the lowered hood,
the concealing veil?
We must walk softly, quietly,
walk with a cautious tread.
The depth and scope of the sky becomes our reach and our height
If we enter lightly with neither the stammer of fear
Nor the brazen shout of defiance, but wait in silence, in reverence
As a child, as a deer, for the Spirit's awaking . . .
Beautiful with timidity.

could I have remained in that temple while he was there without undergoing the almost crushing consciousness that I was low, very low upon the scale of spiritual evolution and progression. Yet I knew that he was sending out to me — as to us all — thoughts of encouragement, of good hope, of kindness in the very highest degree that made me feel I must never despair of attaining to the highest spiritual realm . . . that there was good and useful work for me to do in the service of man . . . that in the doing thereof I would have the whole of the spiritual realms behind me — as they are behind every single soul who works in the service of man.

“With a final benediction upon us, this resplendent and truly regal being was gone from our sight.

“We remained seated for a while . . . as the temple emptied . . . but I had no inclination to move. Then I saw the figure of the Egyptian approaching us. He greeted us warmly, and asked me if I would be good enough to go with him as he wished to introduce me to his ‘master’. To my astonishment he led me into the presence of the man with whom he had entered the sanctuary . . . I had the impression that I was in the presence of a wise man — one with a great sense of fun and humor. He took me by the hand and smiled upon me in such a manner as to take away completely any feelings of diffidence. He diffused assurance in one’s self and placed one perfectly at ease. His words to me filled me with joy, even as they left me filled with wonder: ‘My beloved master,’ he said, ‘whom you have just seen, bids me tell you that your prayer is answered, and that you shall have your desire. Fear not, for promises that are made here are always fulfilled.’ Then he told me that I should be asked to wait for a period before the fulfillment because it was necessary that a chain of events should take place before the right circumstances were brought about in which my desires should find fruition.”

Upon returning home, Robert went straight to his library. Upon one of the shelves was a particular book he had written when upon the Earth plane denying his knowledge of the spiritual life and life hereafter . . . one he wished he had never written. He removed the book next to it leaving room for the new book he was to write — the answer to his prayer — an account of what he had learned since he had arrived in Spirit, the product of his mind when he had seen the Truth . . . and he could hardly wait to share it with those he had left behind.

OVERWEIGHT?

Recently the New York Physician reported that the autonomous nervous system, under the influence of negative thought, causes an excessive flow of certain watery fluids into tissues and membranes. Operations, medicine and diet will take away the excess fluids, but, the article went on to say, the mind usually does a refilling job, and there usually is no permanent cure until the mental and emotional state is changed to one of faith.

There is not a single point in the entire universe that is not indwelt by Mind, therefore there is not a single atom in the body that is at any moment separated from mental action. — From Your Mind Can Heal You by Dr. Frederick W. Bailes, available from Chimes.

1) A MISSION — Do you know why Christ was recognized for His Mission on Earth . . . why you are also?

2) HEALING — What is the one ingredient needed for a spiritual healing to take place?

CHIMES CALL TO PRAYER

It is a great joy and sacred privilege to hear from every friend of Chimes who is in need of prayer. Lovingly we invite you to meet with us each day in God's thoughts for the healing of mind, soul, and body. The faith you demonstrate in the power of Divine Healing to transform your life can light the way for others: the prayer answered for you that is shared with others can be a blessing multiplied many times over. As the Chimes Call to Prayer resounds in your heart, may you know the joy of His perfect peace.

Dear Friends:

About a month ago I had written asking for healing of a condition afflicting my right eye and to be able to breathe better. The shortness of breath, particularly, can be really frightening . . . as if to make one feel what it would be like to die of strangulation.

Now I feel SO much better, and only occasionally does the shortness of breath come — at night — and it soon passes away . . . soon to be gone forever, I am certain.

So my deep thanks to the Chimes Healing Ministry, for I know help came to me from your sanctuary.

I am on Social Security, which, as you know, allows us just so much, but I am sending you my small contribution in the hope it can somehow help others.

May Chimes be blessed for its kindness to all faiths — for the lessons and services available to all. I am so grateful for the knowledge that we are judged for what we are . . . how we live . . . not for what we possess or the religion we may follow. God Love you!

Mrs. Alvina La Bounty, Paris, Ill.

ALL "I-trouble" disappears when the All-Seeing Eye of God is focused on our experiences, and how we treat the people who cross our path each day. Perfect vision is ours when we see things the way God sees them. God requires that we discern Light from the Dark, and that we see all things as spiritually good. "He that hath eyes to see, let him see."

Let us also remember that God "breathes the breath of life" into us, that we are children of God, breathing the atmosphere of Spirit. No thing can take our breath away from us, for it is God, in whose image and likeness we are made . . . immortal creatures of eternity. There can be no shortness of breath — or fear, its mental equivalent — knowing that God is our breath, our life, limitless and eternal. So be it — and it is.

mind is not productive, your labor will be in vain. God's infinite ideas are available to you, if only you will tune in and rejoice that God is revealing to you what you need to know. This is what Dr. Joseph Murphy tells us in his book Your Infinite Power to be Rich: Cast out of your mind all preconceived notions, false beliefs, superstitions, and limitations and realize that "All things be ready if the mind be so." This means that you must order your mind and thoughts to conform to the age-old truth that whatever you are seeking already exists in Infinite Mind. All you have to do is to identify mentally and emotionally with your desire, idea, plan, or purpose, realizing it is just as real this moment as your hand or heart. The mere fact that you desire an answer means that the answer already is present in the mental and spiritual world in which you live, move and have your being. God is the giver and the gift, but man must learn to receive the gift which God already has given him. As you walk the Earth in the assumption that your prayer already is answered, you shall have the joy of experiencing its reality manifest for you.

Change your consciousness, and according to that change it is done unto you. Once you change internally you become an instrument for the riches of life — spiritually, mentally, and in all ways. Will you take that first step on the Path to a Prosperity Consciousness? If you are ready, here it is!

WORLD'S ALL-TIME BEST SELLER (that is seldom read) can now be understood and many paradoxes and missing portions revealed. "The Aquarian Gospel of Jesus the Christ" explains what the Bible does not. Nearly all Americans are Biblical illiterates because they do not read the Bible, and do not understand it when they try. Not meant for the pulsating 20th Century Space Age, the Bible is remote, but "The Aquarian Gospel" is FOR OUR TIME. Order yours from Chimes — $5.20 ppd.

WHITE

IS IT POSSIBLE?

"YES!" SAYS FRANK R. YOUNG who then proceeds to show you HOW TO . . .

- To move objects without touching them!
- To hear a conversation going on anywhere!
- To travel any place with your Astral Body and see close up what's going on!
- To materialize objects out of thin air!
- To "broadcast" messages to someone, in the presence of others, without uttering a sound, and likewise read thoughts!
- To roll back your age and find yourself young again!

In these startling pages you will discover the one true form of WHITE MAGIC . . . CYCLOMANCY:
The Secret of Psychic Power Control

It's true! In these pages you will discover how to "see" the inner truth of things with the strange and wonderful Third Eye . . . How to winback a suitor or vacillating spouse . . . Attract people in your locality who feel as you do about a certain project or idea . . . You will, in fact, become master of the world in which you live, able to find that perfect peace and happiness you have so long sought . . . You will also be able to draw to yourself an abundance of all good things, pressed down and flowing over, riches you may enjoy and share with others.

FRANK R. YOUNG VOWS:
"INSTANTLY YOUR LIFE IS CHANGED!"

"Once you master its simple steps, Cyclomancy can bring fresh meaning to your life," says Mr. Young. "Each new day, which formerly presented another problem will now present another conquest . . . This book gives you tested step-by-step techniques that can skyrocket your ability to do anything and everything you can imagine, with breathless speed and ease."

ABOUT THE AUTHOR — Frank R. Young's granduncle was a long-lived Yogi in far-away India. For 40 years, Mr. Young's father investigated the secrets of psychic power in the West Indies and in Central and South America. Mr. Young himself has spent 30 years investigating the scientific laws behind Cyclomancy and has taught his findings to thousands of followers the world over.
