CHIMES

WHENCE COME the thoughts which do not originate within our own minds, out of our own experience?

All of us receive thoughts which are silently broadcast by other minds and received by our own.

.. Whenever two or more minds are blended in a spirit of perfect harmony, for the pursuit of a definite purpose, there is born of that alliance a power which is greater than that of all the individual minds combined. This is the MASTER MIND principle.

The great achievements of your life — first built as mind-concepts, then made real — are not limited to the power of your own mind. A myriad of other minds can tune in upon yours and give you their thoughts through ethereal vibration.

Forming a Master Mind group is a good way to begin the process of tuning in, and, when you form your group, you will know you are using a technique which has mightily proved its benefit among many well-known men. All great achievements are the result of a multiplicity of minds working together harmoniously.

LETTERS TO THE EDITORS

• I am re-subscribing to Chimes. Somehow it seems to restore my balance. I also am ordering a book which I intend to share with others. It is often easier, I have found, to lend a book than to explain a point which I want to get over.

Lillie Edmunds, Milwaukee, Wisc.

• Thank you for your prayers. A close friend of mine just finished telling me of some very heavy work she had done. She now feels fine. When I first wrote you and asked for prayers for her, she was ill in bed.

L. Burdette, Sun Valley, Calif.

• I am sending a new subscription for a birthday present for a friend. This may turn out to be a suggestion for other readers as a way-shower for a person who otherwise may never be enlightened.

Karen Todd, Van Wert, Ohio

(Thank you and many other kind readers who have been thoughtful enough to show their feelings by writing to us. We appreciate your letters and need their encouragement. We could not possibly acknowledge each one but we can and do read them all with enjoyment.)

• If I were rich there would be quite a few books I'd order from you. Right now I have to be content with ordering "Pray and Grow Rich" by Catherine Ponder. I am buying this as a birthday present to myself. My birthday is November 25th.

Mrs. Pearl Van Wagner, Minneapolis, Minn.

(Let us KNOW that your prayers are being answered. You Saggiarians are always shooting for the stars. You just might hit one. As you have learned by now, there is more to being rich than having a lot of money.)

• I am stuck out here in the hills working at a mercury mine and the nearest Post Office is 27 miles away. Therefore I enjoy Chimes very much and look forward to each issue. However in your predictions I wish you could give us something of a more recent date, rather than what is going to take place in the next century, as I don't plan to be here then.

Paul Aveline, Ione, Nevada

(We will try to cooperate, but for some reason it is very difficult for prophets to sort out their visions of the future as to EXACTLY WHEN each will be fulfilled.)

• I surely do enjoy Chimes. I am a Spiritualist. I wonder if there are any here in Utah except me. My husband and many dear friends understood Spiritualism very well, but they have all passed over. Bless them all.

Laura Fadel, Price, Utah

(There are people everywhere who, although perhaps not actually affiliated Spiritualists, are aware, sympathetic and interested. A surge of interest in the Spirit world is now occurring in the minds of the people everywhere—perhaps greater than ever before in history. I suggest you write one or all of the organizations on page 31 for the name of a chapter near you, if one is not listed in our Directory.)

• Chimes is an inspiration to all in spite of the conflicts raging in this world. We NEED the encouragement it gives. It is too bad it isn't larger and that the whole world can't receive it. Through Chimes much love and peace could be instilled that would counteract the hatred so many are now generating. May God always help you to continue in your good work.

Walter Sierek, Tampa, Fla.

(We note in another Truth organization's publication that just one dedicated anonymous person helped by its work gave enough shares of stock recently of some large firm which, when sold, paid off the second mortgage and purchased needed new office equipment. Of the thousands who admit to themselves, and by letter, the untold healings received and the light unto their path Chimes has been, what a boon such a gift would be from one of these! But how many are ready for such a spiritual experience while still in the flesh? It could be theirs, however, when passing to Spirit by leaving some part of their substance to carry on the work of Chimes. It only takes ONE PERSON to make such a demonstration that others may follow. Through Chimes, Spirit is planting spiritual seeds that will bear fruit for ages to come. How many seeds will you plant?)

CAN THESE THINGS BE FORESEEN?

TRAGEDY STRUCK the Welch coal-mining town of Aberfan on the morning of Oct. 21st, 1966. A huge coal slag heap slid down on a school and part of the town.

A total of 144 men, women and children died under the rubble. It was one of Britain's worse industrial disasters.

In subsequent weeks British newspapers discovered that many persons had experienced psychic warnings of the tragedy before it hit.

The News of the World, a London paper with a circulation of eight million, checked out more than 200 cases of apparent precognition involving the tragedy. From this total the newspaper selected seven examples of foreknowledge. The London paper, in presenting the results, said two major questions were obvious:

1. Could this appalling tragedy, in which 118 children were among those crushed or buried alive, have been accurately foreseen in sleeping or waking dreams?
2. If such premonitions do occur, could they be harnessed in some way to avert future tragedies?

Some of the warnings came in dreams, some in waking visions, and others during seances in which mediums "saw" clues later associated with Aberfan. For example, a 46 year old telephone operator from Brighton had a vivid dream in which she talked helplessly to a child coming toward her followed by a great billowing cloud of black dust or smoke.

A 47 year old dock worker's wife sat in a seance in which she saw clairvoyantly a great row of coal heaps and at the same time had an overwhelming sense of impending doom. She then saw a miner and a small boy with a look of terror on his face. She and her companions came to the conclusion then that a coal mining disaster was about to happen.

Another authenticated case of precognition involved a 63 year old lay preacher. The night before the disaster he dreamed he saw spelled out in great brilliant letters the word A-B-E-R-F-A-N.

An amateur artist of North Devon felt a disaster was going to happen and that it would not be too far distant. He tried to paint what he felt, but all he could put down on canvas was a head surrounded by a sooty black background.

A young girl, Eryl Mai Jones, apparently had the clearest precognition of anyone. She was described by her mother as a highly perceptive child who never told a lie. She had recurring dreams about which she tried to tell her mother on several occasions, but her mother dismissed them. Then, just before she was killed in the disaster, she told her mother: "I am not afraid to die, mommy. I shall be with Peter and June (two neighbor children who were also killed).

Then she also related that she had had a dream in which she went to school and there was no school there. Something black came down all over it. Two days later she was killed in the school building.

There remains this interesting question. If there had been some way—some central agency—to record and analyze the many premonitions . . . could Aberfan have been avoided? Then its sequel: Could steps be taken to prevent or reduce the impact of future tragedies?

But then one remembers that there are several authenticated instances of persons who had premonitions about President Kennedy's assassination. And some—including Jeanne Dixon and Taylor Caldwell—tried to warn him.

(For more on this see A Gift of Prophecy and A Search for the Truth by Ruth Montgomery, available from Chimes.)

WHAT IS IT LIKE TO DIE

NO MATTER WHO you are, it is probable that you look on the supreme adventure called "DEATH" with strong emotion. If you are not actually afraid, probably you are apprehensive. In your inmost thoughts you are not quite sure. There are questions you never have had answered . . . so much you would like to know.

Would it not be wonderful if you had a kindly, understanding friend to whom you could turn? One who had already "died," who had adapted to the after-life, yet who could converse with you as if he were in the same room? One who would, simply and understandably, tell you what life would be like tomorrow if by chance you were to die today? One who would answer your many questions about life "beyond the veil?"

Many have found such a friend in the person of one who prefers to be known only as "Doctor Navajo" since, prior to his passing over some hundred odd years ago, he was a Navajo indian. Over the years he has been asked and has dealt with many questions on this subject. Some of the questions he has been asked in the past are given here with his simple factual answers:

What are most of us doing here in the astral world? We are active. You ask what we do all day long? Well, we most certainly are not sitting on a cloud singing hymns, as many might think. We are wide-awake and busy, the same as you are. In fact, we are not encumbered like many of you have been. We do not have to deal with things you have to deal with, because there is no necessity for it. For one thing, we do not have to struggle to provide food and clothing as you do.

If we want to seek in the direction of pleasure, we seek in that direction. Nothing is stopping us. It might be music, art, literature. It doesn't make any difference.

But perhaps one who has awakened to the fact that he is in spirit is not interested in literature or music. He is interested in his own environment, particularly the relatives who had preceded him, whom he hasn't seen for a long time. There they are, happy, smiling, and eager to discuss things that happened when they were on the earth plane. Normally this reunion is a grand experience, for they had been waiting for him to come over and join them. Petty irritations of the past are all erased and forgotten.

Is a person immediately conscious of his new environment? Not always. Does everyone meet the astral world in the same manner? No. Suppose, for instance, you were driving down the highway and you met with an accident. Your arrival might be sudden and unexpected. How soon is one freed from the earth body after expiration? In as little as twenty minutes by your earth time. Does one then go into a prolonged state of oblivion? Not necessarily. One can be wide awake and even see the scene of the accident that took him. He might hover over the accident, and might even watch his own body being carried away.

Many people have had experiences like this, especially soldiers on battlefields. There some go right on fighting, just the same as if they were in the physical body. Many ask: Why do they continue? To explain this simply I shall remind you that the astral double becomes temporarily very powerful. It is fortified in the astral plane.

I've seen people on the way to work be freed from the physical body, perhaps by a heart attack. They would go right ahead and actually show up at the bank or the office or wherever it was. Everything would appear the same as always, yet there would be something strange about it. A person might say good morning to someone and receive no answer. Pretty soon he really begins to wonder. He notices the people around him pay no attention to him.

Now he thinks he is dreaming. He says: "Well, I am going to wake up soon." The people with whom he has associated for months, perhaps years, are all around him. Yet there is something strange about it all.

Then from somewhere there comes Uncle Joe. Now he really thinks he is dreaming because Uncle Joe has been gone thirty years. Uncle Joe talks to him quietly, calmly, carrying on a normal conversation. Then he says: "You come with me."

Uncle Joe does not want to shock him, because a sudden shock is painful—mentally, that is. Everything is mental on the astral plane, because it is through your thoughts you create everything.

In reality everything is mental on the earth plane, and so it is in the astral world, even more than it would seem.

Now the individual becomes aware that he has are you guilty of . . .

UNLAWFUL

passed out of the physical body. He has been planning a vacation, and he realizes he will not return to the family he left only a few hours ago. He might even go into a state of temporary hysteria. Uncle Joe, however, manages to calm him and prepare him, and they start away together.

This is an illustration of one type of experience. There are many different and interesting ways in which people depart from the body. Each one finds it a little different when he awakens in the astral world.

Is it possible to be trained so that one will be freed and not have to experience pain? Yes, but not very probable. Why? Pain is given to you by nature as a warning signal that something is wrong.

If you have suffered grievously preceding your departure then you will become stronger in the astral world. Why is this? Because you awake released from the pain and you are so grateful for the release. Does suffering have a reaction on the astral body? No. When you are freed from the physical body it can be cremated and it will have no effect on the astral body whatever. In fact this frees the spirit and destroys any force that might make it linger.

Does one have the same color of hair in the astral world? Yes, probably. You could change it or make it longer if you wished, but there is no reason to do so. If you desire to wear garments of a particular color they can be changed by thought. This is an automatic process through the consciousness of the soul.

When my father was killed I was able to see him at the exact moment he was freed from the physical body. How do you explain this? This was done by a form of astral projection. The soul is the motivating factor. At that split second your father was thinking of you, the fortified astral double was made visible to you.

We now have some idea of how the astral world is a continuation of life in the physical world. So while we are on the earth plane we should do the very best we can to learn in all departments of our lives and so not allow anything to enter the kingdom we take with us to hold us back.

(The Astral Plane by C. W. Leadbeater and The Astral World by Swami Panchadasi will give you many more fascinating details—both Chimes books.)

IN MEDITATION we are refining our bodies, connecting them with higher levels, expanding our consciousness. We are, in fact, approaching the Central Life. When we use consciousness-expanding drugs we induce artificial communication with these higher planes for which our consciousness is not yet ready.

It is as though one suddenly put an untrained child on a wild horse and let them both run wild. The user may indeed enter into a higher consciousness, but he is in such a state that he has lost control of his analytical, reasoning synthesizing instrument. In a way his compass is lost.

Since his consciousness has not been prepared for this state, he sees and hears a few things, but he interprets his experiences through the understanding of the lower planes. Loss of balance and judgment is usually the result.

Those who have had this forbidden experience usually live an uncertain and unreal life, perhaps one in which they have lost their sense of loyalty, morality or respect for law. This is a sign that they have made an unlawful entry into higher planes, and that they have lost their compass for the physical side of life. Hence they are lost for all planes and must start again from the lowest. A further convincing argument against the irresponsible use of so-called mind-expanders if one is needed.

—The foregoing is adapted from an article appearing in Two Worlds, a British magazine featuring the supernatural.

Self-interest dies when compassion takes over and we are lifted into our true nature. Then can we expect miracles, because we offer no impediment to the perfection of God shining through.

NEW HOME FOR ASPR

Headquarters for the American Society for Psychical Research is now a handsome five-story building at 5 West 73rd Street in downtown New York City. This building is to house one of the most complete libraries on ESP and related fields existing anywhere, plus up-to-date experimental equipment including a soundproof room connected by closed circuit to a TV booth. According to Dr. Gardner Murphy, president of the society, this marks an important step in the history of psychical research. Work during a continuous period of over sixty years of research is represented. The present membership of 2500 represents a gain of three times over a scant five years ago. At present the ASPR is engaged in laboratory tests of telepathy using closed-circuit TV and computer analysis of results achieved, long-distance experiments in ESP, an analysis of the source of creativity among American artists and its relationship to ESP, and a partially published analysis of deathbed visions. Careful studies also include mood in successful ESP demonstrations. Also developed and being demonstrated is an intriguing ESP kit. ASPR deserves congratulations.

PSYCHIC ABILITY TESTS AVAILABLE

Anyone who wishes to test his own ability in the field of extra-sensory perception, and at the same time participate in providing valuable data for scientific analysis, may do so by writing the Paranormal Sciences Institute, P.O. Box 38039, Los Angeles, Ca. 90038. Further information and tests will be returned by mail.

. . . On the . . .

MANY PEOPLE talk about the routine of meditation. Many discussions of meditation fill many books. Many of them are pretty much the same. One thing you must be sure of when you meditate. You must lay on the altar all petty differences with your neighbor. This is such an important rule, and one so often neglected.

One lady begins to meditate, for example, but she cannot become tranquil because she was cheated by the milk man or she felt snubbed at the office. How can one feel tranquillity when one cannot equalize these little emotional differences—ones which are not even full-fledged arguments.

Tranquil people all have an outstanding characteristic in common. They hold no resentments. The serene one cannot be so if he is boiling inside. He must take the first step on the long path that leads to kinship with God by overlooking and forgiving his foreman or his gossipy neighbor.

No wonder men say they cannot learn to be happy. How can anyone be happy and be unforgiving? Or, still worse, how can anyone expect to be happy who has wronged a neighbor and has not yet made amends? I realize this seems to be childish talk, yet how many marriages have been broken, how many families made miserable, how many breakdowns suffered just from this simple little thing! Let's call it unfinished business.

Whenever you sit down to meditate, first total up your unfinished tasks. Work on each of them a little and see if you cannot then begin with an inner peace of mind you did not have. Flush out of your mind all accumulated garbage, and let the fresh clean air of love inside. Make it a freshly cleaned receptacle so that it may hold the inspiration you receive.

Now if you are a conniver or a schemer, or one who makes a living outwitting his fellow man, it may be that you are hopeless. Maybe you could not clean up your mind at all. Maybe it is not possible to right the number of wrongs you have done. In this case do not fool yourself. Go ahead on the path you have chosen. Your development must come later when you are at last willing to come to grips with your life and rectify it. Let us hope this is not too difficult for you, or that it does not carry over into another life with still greater suffering and hardship.

DIVINE

ART OF MEDITATION

This may sound like old-time preaching. It is not. It is merely the first practical step in a very practical approach to metaphysical development. It must be done! Now is the earliest you can begin to do it. Karma is the practical weapon with which you can accomplish it. Do not aspire to be like Buddha, sitting on a silk cushion contemplating and thinking thoughts of unutterable goodness. First, dirty your hands in the sordid world, cleaning up what you can of your life. Then, tired, beaten, but with an inner spark of serenity, begin your contemplation by laying on the altar not petty violences but deeds of honor and good and sacrifice. Only then will your contemplation begin to have significance.

There are many paths to knowing. The simplest is the knowledge of karma. The Golden Rule also will do more than make you happy. It will enlighten you. It is the path to all wisdom. There is also the path of analogy, by which every flower and bush and rock becomes a blue-print for the universe. It too can teach you much if you try it.

The simplest path to knowing is, of course, meditation and gradually it can change your life. Proper meditation, carefully practiced, can be the cause of revelation that will make you self-sufficient in all things. Meditation must not be thought of as negative, or as a void. Man first makes himself empty, yes. Then, consciously, he uses the emptiness to build an inner core of understanding. Meditation elevates, simplifies, educates. It teaches as well as disciplines the mind. When it begins, reverie ceases.

(There is a wonderful message awaiting you on your need for meditation, and what it will bring you, in Mouni Sadhu's Ways to Self-Realization. Order it from the new Chimes Book Catalog.)

PSYCHIC DIGEST

LIFE READINGS VERIFIED

UNITED STATES - Careful analysis of the Edgar Cayce "Life Readings" given for over one hundred sixty infants seems to establish beyond a doubt that there are chosen paths which exist at birth for all. Only now, twenty five years later, is it possible to evaluate these readings. As yet no statistical information is available, yet many of the readings have worked out as they were supposed to have done. One boy whose father wanted him to succeed him in business grew up to be a psychiatrist, just as Cayce foretold. In Cayce's interpretation, a soul entering the body already has decided what life work he will do, carrying out a plan begun in prior incarnations. The truth of this and other theories soon can be shown by study and by statistical analysis.

FAULTY PROPHETS

BRITAIN - Researchers studying the faculty of precognition are struck by the, at least at present, untamed character of premonitions. For every recorded instance of a person being saved from disaster by a premonition there is an instance where the event happened in spite of the fact that no foreknowledge of it was had. A noted psychic foretold an airplane crash yet had no knowledge whatever of a violent rail disaster. That there is such a factor as precognition and that it undoubtedly has saved many lives is beyond a doubt. Whether we shall ever be able to rely on it is another question entirely . . . at least in the foreseeable future.

ROBOT ERA HERE

CANADA - Perhaps the robot-computer age is upon us more rapidly than we thought possible. Canadian telephone operators have developed nervous symptoms requiring treatment after finding themselves involuntarily talking to voices on the wire which they know are tape recordings. Psychologists warn future study of man-machine relationships is needed to prevent unexpected psychological reactions in those whose work is primarily with automation.

SUBSTITUTE FOR COUCH

AFRICA - Modern students of African culture point out the importance of the African witch doctor in tribal life as a psychiatrist. He deals with the fears and anxieties which are brought to him, gains the trust and faith of the patient, and then performs treatment which increases the patient's adjustment to society and his security. Along with unaccounted for powers many of these practitioners display more than a rudimentary knowledge of the processes of the human mind.

GREATER AWARENESS

ENGLAND - A. C. Harwood, Anthroposophical Society President, in a recent lecture pointed out that a Gallup poll revealed that sixty percent of children interviewed said they accepted reincarnation.

LESSONS FOR STUDENTS

Laws of Psychic Attraction

HERE WE ARE going to take up briefly the LAW OF INDIRECT PSYCHIC INFLUENCE and the PSYCHIC LAW OF ATTRACTION. Since they are so similar in their workings, they may be considered together.

The fundamental principle of this phase of psychic influence is that mental and emotional states not only induce similar states in those similarly attuned, but also tend to attract and draw to the person other persons who are vibrating along similar lines, and tend to repel those who are opposite on the psychic scale.

We tend by induction to arouse in others mental and emotional states which are similar to our own. There is a law in effect here which should be understood. Roughly it is this: If a person's habitual thoughts and emotions are like those we are trying to induce in him, we will find it easy to induce the same in him. If they are of an opposing nature, we will find it very difficult to do this.

For instance, if a person is normally calm and quiet, it will be very difficult to arouse in him psychically the vibrations of anger, fight, and excitement. If he is of a violent, combative nature, it will be comparatively easy.

In indirect psychic induction, by which I mean the induction without deliberate attempt to influence any particular person or persons, there is a peculiar psychic law. It operates by attracting to ourselves other persons who, either actively or passively, are in general harmony, and repels those who are in general discord or lack of harmony to ourselves. So, in short, we go through life attracting or repelling psychically those who are harmonious or inharmonious in relation to us. If we understand this law and how it works we can understand many things in our life which we have not understood previously.

We know that we are constantly radiating currents of psychic vibrations, some of which flow to great distances from us and affect others far removed from us in space. We may not know, however, that on the astral plane there is manifesting a similar sequence of cause and effect. A strong desire or will tends to manifest on the astral plane by attracting or repelling others in psychic harmony or disharmony with us. This phenomenon is not as common as the transference of ordinary thought vibrations from brain to brain, but it is far more common than generally supposed. These vibrations awakening response in the minds of those in harmony with them tend to draw to us those other persons whose general character will fit in with our desires or ideas or to repel those who are not harmonious therewith. This explains the phenomenon of strong men in business, politics and other walks of life drawing and attracting to them other men who will fit in with their general plans and aims.

The law works two ways. Not only do we draw such persons to us as will fit in with our purposes and plans, but we are attracted to them by the same law. We find that even things and circumstances, as well as persons, will seem to be molded by our desires and ideas, providing our psychic vibrations are sufficiently strong and clear. To many who do not understand this great law, these things seem to be uncanny and mysterious, but more and more people are coming to understand and use it.

Here in America there are a number of teachers and writers devoting attention to this particular phase of the general subject of psychic influence. Cults and schools have been formed on this general basis, the main idea being that of attracting financial and other success by using this phase of psychic force. Indeed it is astonishing to witness how events, people, circumstances and things seem to move in actual life as if urged to materialize the conditions so imaged in the mind of the man who invokes the law.

Understand, however, there must be mental effort and strong will behind the imaging. Daydreaming merely dissipates energy. Without the rays of the will there will be no picture projected, no matter how imagination-stirring it was. Thoughts pictured in mental images, and then vitalized by the force of nature, will tend to objectify themselves into material being.

One can read various theories and explanations to account for the phenomena of psychic influence. Once he has grasped the basic principles involved, however, he will be able to see them in operation in all the cases cited and will find the fundamental principle fully accounts for all the cases, no matter how puzzling they may seem.

THE BREATH OF LIFE

By Denis Barnes

OUR VERY FIRST ACT, on entering this world is to take a breath. This we continue to do, day and night, year in and year out, until our course here is run and we "take our last breath." Since for the whole of our earthly lives we are breathing, it is surprising that we in the West give so little consideration to this vital aspect of our health.

In the East it has been known for thousands of years that correct and proper breathing is important not only from the physical standpoint, but that as well as breathing in air we are also breathing in actual life force, or prana, to use the Indian word.

The prana, or vital force, is superphysical. Mention of it is found in many ancient writings, an instance of which is the Kahunas of Polynesia who used this force and named it Mana. In the Bible it is said poetically that God, having formed man, "breathed into his nostrils the breath of life." The Tibetan monks also stress breathing disciplines as a way of learning mystical techniques.

These brief references demonstrate the paramount importance of breathing, yet it is sad to say that few people breathe properly. We have, in our chests, a beautifully designed pair of bellows, intended to inflate and deflate fully from fourteen to seventeen times a minute. It is essential, therefore, that we not stoop or get round-shouldered, but keep a straight back, as nature intended we should. Thus we insure that the proper and necessary fresh air is inhaled and that the bad air in the lungs is exhaled.

There is a simple way by which you can sustain the correct and natural position. Imagine that there is some sort of harness about your neck, pulling it directly upwards. Try it now!

As this imaginary harness pulls you up you find your backbone straightening and your lungs expanding. Think of this whenever you can, either when walking, standing, or even while sitting. You will benefit profoundly.

There is a word of warning about deep breathing. Do not labor or force it. That will do no good. The aim is to assist nature by breathing naturally and as she intended us to breathe.

The whole of the body requires oxygen, and this is supplied by the blood, all of which passes through the lungs about every three minutes. The blood takes in oxygen through the walls of the lungs by a process called osmosis, and it gives out, by the same method, carbon dioxide, which is exhaled. When we exercise violently we require more oxygen and so we pant. When we are tired more oxygen is required and so we yawn. When we are sitting, not so much oxygen is required and so we breathe more slowly.

From this it will be appreciated that emptying the lungs is just as necessary as filling them. One should do this several times a day, preferably once in the morning upon arising: exhale completely—few people ever do this—breathe in through the nose, filling the lungs completely, hold the breath a couple of seconds, then exhale rapidly through the lips, holding them as though whistling. Do this only a few times to start with. There are very few things you can do which will give you greater reward in the form of refreshment.

If you are a sedentary worker, you should make a special effort to sit upright and, occasionally work the shoulders up and down and back. Those who spend time on their

A FABLE

A LONG TIME AGO in ancient India a group of very rich merchants combined their resources to build a temple to one of their gods. They spared no expense and when the temple was built it was an exceedingly ornate and lavish structure. The night of the first service ever held in it the god himself appeared to one of the builders in a dream.

The merchant was blissfully happy as he fully expected to have won much merit in the eyes of the god. However the god seemed remarkably unimpressed. "I do not see any self-denial here," he answered in response to the builder's petition. "No self-denial?" asked the builder. "Do you not see this fine gold? Let me show you large pillars of the finest marble. Are not these carvings priceless?"

Still the deity remained unimpressed. Finally in despair the builder asked: "If this offering is not acceptable to you what do you ask in the way of self-denial?"

To answer him the god told this story: In a nearby city there was a famine raging. Many were starving for want of food. In a small house the father had obtained a small but precious portion of grain and splitting it four ways prepared to feed himself, his wife, his wife's father and his son. However there came a knock on the door and when it was opened there stood a guest.

Now in India a guest is always considered sacred. This guest pleaded. He had not eaten for several days and was suffering agonies from hunger. So the head of the household gave his own portion of grain to the guest.

It was soon eaten and the guest said he wished he had not eaten it, since it only made him suffer more. So the wife gave her portion to the guest. This too he ate and still complained bitterly. To maintain the dignity of the house the father then gave his portion to the guest. . . This the guest ate but was not satisfied. Then the son's portion was also given him, as of course a son must confirm the action of his father. Then the guest rose, thanked the family, withdrew and went his way. The next day the entire family of four died from starvation. This, said the god, is what I consider an act of true worship and of true self-denial. When you are prepared to emulate these poor peasants, the deity said, "then enter into your marble temple and say your invocations to me, and I will hear them and listen to you." Then the god vanished.

QUESTIONS WE ALL ASK

... with messages for the searching mind in quest of Truth, satisfaction for the perplexed, comfort for the sorrowing heart.

- WHY IS IT that when I want friends so much I am alone and apparently friendless?

YOUR NEED for the benefits of isolation may be greater than your need of friends. Your lesson may be to gain a contented, independent spirit when alone. Do not be unhappy in this situation. Apply yourself to the art of contentment, and lo! when you are free from the desire to depend too much on others, they will be seeking you.

- Sometimes we find those whom we would like to have as FRIENDS but who seem to have a wall built around them. HOW CAN WE MEET THIS?

IT COULD BE that a person extremely aloof requires sympathy and peace. He may have encountered a serious disappointment or loss, or severe soul testing. Respect his reserve with understanding, love, and silent prayers.

- Should one who is trying to live a CHRIST CENTERED LIFE devote time to society, clubs, parties and worldly affairs?

WE LIVE, not for ourselves alone, but for all. Our motives in going to parties, club meetings and other gatherings makes them wrong or right for us. Much service can be rendered, sometimes by just a hint a word, or by sponsoring a cause that requires our support. Jesus served those who were without light more than those who had spiritual realization. Yet he respected the laws of silence and conservation. His way, then, is our pattern—to mingle with crowds when we are strong enough to be a silent helpful influence, and to remain apart at stated intervals for renewal.

- HOW CAN WE best help someone who does not understand and accept TRUTH.

EXAMPLESHIP is the best explanation and proof of these universal teachings. Free yourself from a moralizing attitude. Express modesty and humility.

- How can we overcome temperamental clashes and differences of opinion which threaten our MARRIAGE?

WHEN WE FACE a marriage test we should feel that it requires adaptation on the part of both. We must prove that devotion and appreciation for each other and for marriage blessings are stronger than differences in temperament.

(From Here are Your Answers by Flower A. Newhouse. Available from Chimes.)

DO WE have to die? For centuries man has hoped that death was only an end to life on earth, not an end to life itself. We see this same question repeated year after year at Easter time, and thousands of ministers answer it to thousands of congregations throughout the Christian world . . . THERE IS a life after death.

Other than on that one day, however, how many of us are not tormented by doubts that this really is true? We open our eyes and our hearts and our emotions on that one day, Easter, but we are blind and heartless and mechanical for the rest of the days of our lives. Yet in our very souls we cry out for reassurance; we want to believe but cannot. Many are afraid that if they find their hopes true; that there is more to life than what we can touch, feel, and see, we will be called fanatics. Being accepted in this world means more to us, so we allow ourselves to be bound by its limitations.

One person who decided to put into his own words that which lays aside the insidious suspicion that life is a cheat and a fraud, that without the extension of what we call a hereafter, life indeed is a trick. In his fascinating book, A Life After Death (now available as a Chimes paper book), S. Ralph Harlow voices what countless others also have experienced when saying, "Not only do my mind and my faith tell me that there is more to life than mere conscious existence, but my experience has supplied me with evidence." He does not see such evidence as immovable, of course, but he sees in it the comfort of understanding one does not receive from logic. It is for those who are somewhere in between the discomfort of doubt and wonder, who have not yet closed their minds, that he writes this book.

NEW HORIZONS IN LIVING

become open-minded by studying

LIFE IN THE HEREAFTER

ACROSS THE UNKNOWN $6.20

Stewart Edward White. By the author of "The Betty Book" this is one of the most interesting, compelling writings in the psychic field giving you an actual "formula" for living and high adventure, not only here on Earth, but hereafter as well.

THE OTHER SIDE OF DEATH $6.25

C. W. Leadbeater. Death is one subject of deepest interest to everyone, since it is absolutely certain to come to all men, and—except for the very young—nearly everyone has had the experience of losing a loved one. Here you may learn from a great Theosophical writer much of what takes place hereafter.

THROUGH THE GATES OF DEATH $2.75

Dion Fortune. The great gift of the Greek Mysteries is said to be release from the fear of death. What was taught in those secret rites that robbed death of its terrors? It is knowledge guarded in the Mysteries this author reveals to you.

HERE AND HEREAFTER $3.25

Anthony Borgia. Third of a series about Life in the World Unseen revealing what life in the world of Spirit is really like. All three books are most informative of how life in the hereafter is tied in with life here on Earth.

INTRA MUROS (p) $1.50

Rebecca Springer. You will take to your heart this lovely story of a visit to the heavenly state of one who was seriously ill, confirming the retention of the personality hereafter.

A LIFE AFTER DEATH (p) $1.00

S. Ralph Harlow. Just as all of us can do, this prominent Australian religious scholar found through his own ESP experiences evidence of life after death, conclusive proof, in fact, that man holds immortality in his own hands.

THE LIFE BEYOND DEATH $3.75

Yogi Ramacharaka. These are among the most valuable Yoga teachings on the life hereafter and what takes place there, as well as many tales of the journeyings and sights seen by a traveler in that strange, new country.

LOVE IN THE AFTERLIFE $3.75

Wilfred Brandon. Haven't you ever wondered if there is a continuation of Earth love in the etheric? Is there such a thing as perfect love? How long does it endure, and how does it compare with love as we know it on Earth? Find out for yourself from this most rewarding communication from the etheric.

YOU LIVE AFTER DEATH $3.75

Harold Sherman. One of the most prolific writers in the psychic field has assembled for you here many worthwhile instructions on spiritual unfoldment and for carrying on in the life beyond. With undeniable, scientific proof that man continues to live in a place higher than his physical body after 'death,' Sherman's amazing book prepares you mentally and spiritually for the future life and removes any fear of what to expect.

After the Spirit messages . . .

WHERE DO WE GO FROM THERE?

THERE IS an axiom, in Spiritualism at least, that "the establishment" is the exclusive property of greying-templed men and women over forty. This became an exploded myth in England recently, along with the notion of "never trust anyone over thirty," when ten practicing mediums, all under thirty years old, met at a Psychic News sponsored dinner in London to discuss their mutual problems and try to find some solutions.

These were young people who spoke of what was nearest to their hearts, and from their discussions emerged this remarkable composite picture of what they think of the Spirit movement:

TONY ASHENDEN, 26, practicing medium for four years: "We need neutral ground on which we can stand. There are many forms of Spiritualism within the movement, just as there are many forms of Christianity." To put it within a boundary, he feels . . . as many do . . . would only be to kill it.

ROMAN DIAKOW, 22: "I was pushed on to the public platform too soon," this young person avowed, and he soon learned he was expected to entertain instead of care for people and help them. He also observed too many petty jealousies that marred the movement, and more than enough of the egotism that causes dissension.

PETER BARNEY, 29: This young man stated that he had been welcome at most churches, but that comparing those which taught Spirit communication, most could be in a far better position than they are today. Their principal fault, he observed, was "the desire for individual greatness on the part of some mediums."

ROY STENMAN, 26, Psychic News assistant editor, the only non-psyhic member of the group: "We must find a different framework for presenting Spiritualism to people. Receiving Spirit messages is the first stage in a person's psychic quest. But where do we go from there? How do we put Spiritualism into practice?" He was also concerned about presenting demonstrations of psychic phenomena and spiritual philosophy together. He felt this was attempting too much and that they should be separated in their presentation to the public.

DAVID YOUNG, 25, an active medium for three years: "Providing survival is our main task. There should be discussion groups in churches. As it is now, most of them just put on a show. It's like show business."

TINA WALKER, 25: "I don't like to see orthodox trapping and trimmings . . . crosses, altars, candles . . . in Spiritualist churches."

JOHN WALKER (Tina's husband), 24: "I suggest a board of examiners to test mediums before they are permitted on a platform. I have seen many mediums demonstrate, and eighty percent or so are just proving extrasensory perception . . . not survival."

ROBIN STEVENS, 26: "Part of our problem is what we have inherited." Older Spirit mediums, he contends, all believe you have to be forty or more before you can know anything about this subject. "We must educate our public and do away with so much hypocrisy," Stevens believes.

CLIVE HARRIS, 24, a professional healer and medium: This movement, like any other, depends on individuals, according to Mr. Harris. "They can make or break the movement. Mediums and healers are only instruments." To see unity within the movement is his fervent hope.

Summarizing, Maurice Barbanell, Psychic News Editor and master of ceremonies, ended on a constructive more optimistic note. "The Spirit world prefers evolution to revolution. The greatest difficulty of mediums

HYPNOTIZED OR INSPIRED— WHICH ARE YOU?

WHERE DO WE GO FROM THERE?

—young and old—is that they have to cater to people of all different stages of evolution and therefore on different rungs of the ladder of progress. Some want comfort in bereavement. Others want healing. The most important thing is to prove survival; on this they then can build their own philosophy."

Concluding his remarks, Mr. Barbanell said: "Our leaders, thank Heaven, are in the Spirit world and not on earth. They will continue to guide us despite any blindness, mistakes and divisions on our part."

While this may be true, we also know that the evolved Spiritual Beings in charge of this planet do not force man to progress. His own acts bring about consequences which often leave him no choice. This great movement which teaches communication with and the reality of the Spirit side of life is subject to the same dominion. Out of the sore needs of the hearts, minds, and souls of the young people will come the needed changes. They are expressing themselves on this score, and one way or another they will be heard and the new order of things will prevail. Out of chaos, order will come. Out of dissension, unity will prevail. Out of hypocrisy, truth will emerge. Out of the old terminology, a new language will evolve . . . one the young people of the New Age will understand. They must be the ones to create the new world in which they are to live . . . otherwise they may have no world at all. Do you agree?

Unfortunately, in one respect or another, almost everyone is hypnotized by some incorrect idea or common belief which hampers the mind, the energy, the ambition, and eventually, the accomplishment of the individual. Hypnotic influence devitalizes, beclouds the mind and smothers true talents.

INSPIRATION, on the other hand, causes us to be lifted to prodigious heights, making us capable of tremendous energy, radiant vitality, achieving Success, Spiritual Insight, Poise, Charm, Magnetism! ## Sermonette

SOMETHING BETTER THAN I DREAM

THE CELLS OF MY BODY perform their individual labors in order that I, a man, may exist. I doubt if any cell can comprehend what it is like to listen to a symphony or discover a law of nature or look at a star or love one's country. Yet because I am, all the cells of my body have significance, a different order of significance than they could have as cells.

So it is with me. I serve a higher order of being, a higher order of meaning. For life means more than anything anyone has imagined. Because now I am as a child and see in "a glass darkly," I cannot understand the whole meaning. But I know what the sea is like, though I have only stood on the shore and gazed at its expanse. I know what the sky is like, though I have never flown but only yearned upward in my heart.

Now I can only call the meaning God. But that is a wonderful word.

Another word for it is good.

It is more than I am as I am more than my cells. But the meaning is in Eternal Mind, and that Mind is in me. God is the Infinite Fire, but I am a divine spark.

What have I done? It does not matter. It is nothing to what I will do. What have I been? It does not matter. It gives hardly an inkling as to what I will become. Did we not know it to be a fact, which of us could believe that a caterpillar would become a butterfly?

God made me out of His will to good, out of His joy in beauty, out of His love for living. And so I have in me a striving for perfection and a heart of Love. I am good because God is good. God made me in His image.

(From Happiness Can Be a Habit by James Dillet Freeman . . . available from Chimes.)

ANXIETY IS A HANDICAP

SCIENCE AND PSYCHIC ABILITY do mix but at times the mixture is difficult to refine. It is understandable that they might not. Science, after all, is methodical, plodding and prone to eliminate what it can not tag and bottle and repeat. Scientists, however, are more and more frequently trying to pin down the quick-silver like and illusory fragments of intuition that are involved in ESP and clairvoyance and take them apart within the laboratory. In the process precious bits of knowledge are being gleaned.

One example of such a pinning down and classifying came about with the work of two men in the Parapsychology laboratory at Duke University. These men, Mr. Martin Johnson and Mr. James Carpenter, strongly suspected there was a relationship between that elusive factor the Freudians call "anxiety," and ESP ability.

Given the initial question they proceeded to set up conditions by which it could be answered. A hitherto reliable test was applied to the subjects to determine which were at ease within and which were subject to psychological feelings of fear and turmoil which accompany an inner lack of adjustment to conditions.

Having classified the test subjects in this respect the two went on to have them demonstrate ESP ability by tests already found to be effective.

The results were surprising. While other experiments were relatively inconclusive, lending some doubt as to the positiveness of the results, there was no doubt whatever in this area. A high degree of inner anxiety led unmistakably to a low ESP score while an inner calm and lack of fear led to high ability. Here is a lesson everyone can take out of the laboratory and put in use in our own lives today.

PSYCHIC EXPERIENCES

THE WALKING GHOST

By Ruth P. West
Little Rock, Arkansas

ONLY A FEW MONTHS after mother passed away from cancer, my husband, Tom, was afflicted by the same disease and required surgery. Tom wanted to go home, of course, after the surgery was over. We located an old, run-down house near his home and bought it. During the following months we worked hard remodeling it, first the lower floor then the upper.

Soon after this was done we became aware of unusual noises from upstairs. Every evening, about the time we finished dinner, we would hear steps that sounded like those of an old man. They would walk slowly from the front bedroom across the small hall and into the back bedroom. Then they would fade away and disappear.

Our little dog behaved most peculiarly at this time. As the footsteps sounded, he would go to the foot of the stairs and lie quietly with his ears perked up, listening until all was quiet and only the creaking of the old house could be heard.

You couldn't say we were frightened, but we were concerned. I asked some questions about the former residents of the old house. Sure enough my next door neighbor told me her father and mother had lived in the house many years, and that one morning she had found her father dead in the front upstairs bedroom.

For seven years we lived in the house. During all this time our "walking ghost" came regularly every evening. We became adjusted to the noises and never paid much attention to them, however my daughters never liked to be left alone in the house.

One cold night in January, ten years later, my husband passed away. At the time he had been in the large combination bedroom and den at the back of the house upstairs. Left alone, the children and I then moved downstairs as I felt it was not too safe sleeping upstairs.

About a month after my husband's funeral my daughter commented that she hadn't heard our ghost about since daddy's death. For a week we listened each evening, but it seemed the footsteps had gone away. All we could hear were the settling noises made by the old wood timbers of the house. Even our little dog no longer lay at the foot of the stairs. For the next year and a half that we kept the house we never heard the "walking ghost" again. Perhaps, we concluded, he found some company and was content to walk somewhere else.

The all-important thing to remember is this—what we do now builds or destroys for the future and we have come to where we are by choice—God's gift of free will—and by varying roads, so not one has any right or true knowledge whereby to judge another. Jesus never judged others save in defence of God Himself and God judges not.

— The Messenger

ODE TO SPIRIT

THE HAND

Do you ever worry how
You'll cross the stream?
Hold out your hand.

Do you ever wonder how
You'll fulfill your dream?
Hold out your hand.

Do you ever lie at night
And see no way
To face the certain
Problems of the day?
Reach out your hand

And you will feel the hand
Stretched forth to thee.

Do you ever pause
And look to see
If someone now is standing
Where you stood?

And where you still would be
If there'd not been a hand
Held forth for thee.

And seeing someone standing
Where you stood; so filled
With doubt and fear, do you
Reach out your hand?

— Gladys Bryant

Folded hands are ever weary.
Selfish hearts are never gay.
Life for thee hath many duties
Active be then while you may.
Be strong to hope, O heart!
Though day is bright,
The stars can only shine
In the dark night.
Be strong, O heart of mine.
Look toward the light.

— A. Procter

feet will feel far less tired if they keep a straight back—remember that harness about your neck, pulling you up. Nature will do the rest.

For those who are receiving absent healing, if you feel physically listless you are not in the best condition to receive benefit. However if you breathe properly and correctly you will revitalize the body as far as you are able. Then you will be in a better state to receive the healing.

The best possible advice to give one about breathing is the old advertising slogan: "Fit and Forget." Find and maintain the correct poise and balance. When you have done this, you may forget all about correct breathing. Mother Nature will combine her efforts with yours and you will, without any conscious exertion do so.

As a last, but by no means least, thought, may it be suggested that as you breathe you breathe in Love and as you breathe out you likewise breathe out Love. What changes would be wrought if everyone did this. Then truly they would be breathing the breath of Life.

(See The Healing Intelligence by Harry Edwards. $4.75 at Chimes.)

The most important thing is silence. In the silence Wisdom speaks, and they whose hearts are open understand her. The brave man is at the mercy of cowards, and the honest man at the mercy of thieves, unless he keeps silence. But if he keeps silence he is safe, because they will fail to understand him; and then he may do them good without their knowing it, which is a source of true humor and contentment.

—From the sayings of Tsiang Samdup

FEAR NOT!

WHATEVER HAPPENS, do not be afraid. When the earth shakes it is but birth pains of the New Age. When the earth bears a New Age it comes in trembling. A New Age is being born . . . an age of peace, an age of serenity and beauty. The birth is painful and the birth pangs may be violent, but it is a chosen child of God, this New Age. This is to be an age of no more fear, no more turmoil, no more war . . . an age of love in man, for man, through man, of love of God, of love of all His creatures, and, above all, of love for his fellow man. This is the secret . . . man's love for his fellow man is the measuring stick of his love of God.

WHAT DOES EDGAR CAYCE SAY ?

ABOUT MIRACLES

"MIRACLES were my father's business," Edgar Evans Cayce has said of his father, Edgar Cayce, the famous clairvoyant healer of Virginia Beach . . . something not many in all truth can say of a parent and back it up.

Edgar Cayce was no ordinary parent, however. He did possess a kind of magic, you might say, but what it really amounted to, according to his children, was faith. They knew that just by going to "sleep" for them, he could make them well. Whenever he went to sleep for them, they had the faith, as their father did, that the results always would be good . . . and they were.

This sleeping to which they referred was the trance state, like sleep, in which many wonderful things occurred. One son, Hugh Lynn, was completely healed of face burns from exploding powder; the other son, Edgar Evans was also healed of burns on his body from an exploding pine knot; the mother was healed of tuberculosis; and both parents were healed of appendicitis . . . all the result of readings given while Edgar Cayce slept. It was as though Cayce had some sort of special arrangement with God to bring all these wonderful things to pass, one son remarked, for even though the family at one time lived a rather hand-to-mouth existence . . . no charge being made for readings . . . somehow the things that were needed always were provided.

Edgar Cayce's spiritual gifts were used primarily to help others, however, and—in time—a vast pool of knowledge on many subjects was tapped by means of his unconscious mind. This was the contact Cayce made while he "slept." Man of Miracles by Joseph Millard describes how these contacts were made, the many levels or degrees of the individual unconscious mind, as well as the collective or universal unconscious Cayce conceived as a vast "river" of thought flowing through eternity. This "river," fed by the collective mental activity of mankind since his beginning, he found to be accessible in any day or age to those who develop their psychic faculties sufficiently to draw from this deep flowing source. Far from having any magic about it, Cayce's gift produced information and healing seldom equaled since the time of Christ.

POVERTY HAS NO VIRTUE

THERE IS NO MERIT in poverty. The lack of wealth brings a man no nearer to godliness, nor for that matter, does a fullness of it. The concept of the poor being good and pure, and the rich being bad and corrupt, is untrue. All that poverty can indicate is the absence of positive faith.

Our lives in this world are controlled by natural laws. These are immutable. The most simple to demonstrate is that like attracts like. If you continually think of yourself as a failure, unsuccessful in your job, a financial flop, then that is exactly what you become.

Hold a picture of yourself in your mind as a success, well-off and well-paid, and eventually that is what you will be. A man who is poor, and accepts poverty as his fate, will remain poor. He lacks faith in his ability to channel the force of nature to improve his status. A man who is poor, but who believes his condition temporary and wealth to be his natural lot, will become wealthy.

Optimistic, happy thinking generates the environment of good health. Pessimism and misery have the opposite effect. This is not a theory. There is an enormous fund of clinical proof of this.

It works not only on your bodily processes, however, but on your external condition also. There is around you enormous power of the life force. It is there all the time. It is almost untapped. It is more powerful than anything else in this world. To have this force at your disposal all you have to do is to accept it. The key to this bursting powerhouse is your attitude. It can turn two ways. Pessimism, misery and lack of faith turn it to the left. The switch is locked "off." Optimism, happiness and positive faith turn it to the right.

By M. H. Tester
adapted from Two Worlds,
English monthly

Most of us use only a fraction of the ability that is within us. Most of us use even less of the power that is around us. Yet it has been recognized in all ages by many men. It was Byron who coined the phrase— "The power of thought—the magic of the mind." The words were original, the idea as old as though itself.

Men who have positive faith surround themselves with an aura of confidence. This is described in the English Book of Common Prayer as "An outward and visible sign of an inward and spiritual grace."

As a practising healer I hear many sad histories. Surprisingly, ill health often goes hand in hand with pessimism and other negative feelings, such as frustration and failure. In their wake come business and financial worries.

Like produces like. Think and talk about health and happiness, and you become healthy and happy. Think and talk about misery and disease, and you become miserable and ill. Every bad thought breeds others. Hatred, anger, jealousy, malice, avarice and revenge all have children. They are misery, sickness, ill-health, pessimism, failure and despondency. The health of your body, like the health of your mind, depends on your attitude towards living. Trust God. Have faith. Live today. Leave tomorrow to Him. That is a design for living that provides a complete remedy. It is perhaps a measure of the failure of the Western religions that given this remedy they have been unable to persuade their followers to apply it.

Health, wealth and happiness can be yours. Nobody in his right mind would choose sickness, poverty and misery as alternatives. Why even contemplate them? The choice is yours!
