PEACE

Neath a green shading tree is a haven cool
That borders the rim of my dreamy pool.
With my back against the bole of the tree
Wraiths of the past wander back to me.
Dreams come and leave a golden web
I scarcely remember the words were said.
Minutes match swiftly through the years
Smiles were many, and there were tears.
My master time ends my reverie
Peace is mine! and He walks with me.
The peace I won is in my soul;
Lifts my spirit and raises my goal.

THE COMING RAINBOW

From this sphere of life is now emanating a golden mist that shall enclose your world even as from this sphere for countless millions of years your world has been enclosed in the golden radiance that has brought it heat and light, which is symbolic of the Father's Divine Love and Divine Wisdom — heat and light to warm man's physical being and to give him the flame of spiritual Life. For it is the affinity between this sphere and yours that makes for life and makes it possible for you to search for Truth.

Now from this sphere are gathering the Golden Helmeted Ones who are now progressing toward your world: from all space the covenant of our Infinite Father, the covenant of the bow in the sky.

Shortly there shall be a bow that has never been seen before in the sky of Earth, a bow of magnificent color from which emanates musical sounds that shall come to the ear of all men, and they shall know a calling; they shall know a love; they shall know a duty. From this bow of beauty, this bow of duty that calls to its own, it shall first appear as a great violet radiance over the entire world: the Golden Helmeted Ones from our sphere who have never come so close to Earth before. Only in ages past have they appeared to Earth in a very few cases on very special errands for the Infinite Father. And they were given the title of Archangels, the spiritual messengers who were above the angels or the messengers, the mentors of the messengers.

Now they come for this final gathering of the chariots of gold when they shall gather to subdue the last remains of the darkness of Earth; for over the entire world a golden glow shall manifest itself, and, when it lifts, those who remain will know truly they are their brother's keeper.

This is our part of the mission, for it will not be long when this sphere itself is no longer of use. And this is always the work of those who live in the very centre of their solar system, and under the golden corona of light. Man always has looked to this great orb for his very life, and rightly so that he should.

O, man of Earth! awaken to these new chords that are not lost chords. Indeed, they have never been lost! Always they have remained — the five-stringed lute that man of Earth would play and yet not understand the music thereof.

Now there is a new chord, a note that is real — not weird — but full of zeal for the men of Earth who would themselves apply feathers and wax to develop wings that they might fly up to the great Sun Body, for in this legend of the youth who would fly to the Sun — and yet his wings were melted — there lies a truth that man wished to fly to this great body which gave him life, for he believed that this body was one of great flames and heat; they saw it as the centre and life of this system.

Now this body is in great age, as celestial bodies do age. It has existed for fifteen hundred billion years. Now it shall die, announcing its end to the far corners of the Universe as a great exploding star. But the end is a beginning, for it has served us well and we march on: Humanity of this System marches on to other portions of the Father's realm.

Yet this orb shall not end until the Millennium has passed, when once again the forces of darkness are released. Then shall the end come and this System disintegrateth in thought. For it is only thought — since all celestial bodies, whether star or world, are only the forms in which our Father's Words are formed. They are His Words that were spoken in the beginning that there should be Light and there should be substance. They are His Words, and some shall disintegrate in thought — that which was only thought in the beginning.

Some day, in the not too distant future, you shall look upon a great purple plain ahead, a golden light that draws you to it by its heat and warmth. Imagine what awaits those of Earth who have proved themselves to be His children! They shall not want for Truth. For many centuries our Father has heard the words of the sincere on Earth: 'Our Father, thy will be done on Earth as it is in heaven.' This prayer is now to be answered.

It shall be on Earth as it is in heaven. Man shall no longer want for anything. He shall shortly take his place as a true son of God, for did not the Master, Jesus the Christ, say: 'Know ye not that ye are gods?' Know this and accept the sceptre and orb of your godhood, not that you would exalt yourselves above your fellow-men, but that you accept the gift that the Father has kept waiting for His children who would see the Light.

Let's look at TWIN SOULS

PART V.

THE NATURE OF THE TIES BETWEEN SOULS

If these forces be rightly understood and employed, however, the highest occult work can be done in safety; it is because the perfect circuit is not always available that the handling of certain potencies becomes a dangerous task; devices of the nature of lightning-conductors have to be employed, and they are not always perfectly satisfactory. It must not be thought that occultists dwell intemperately upon the subject of sex, or that they are more sensual than their fellow-men who follow other lines of study, but, as their researches are into the very foundations of human nature, they must take the sexual forces into their calculations, or else they would run the risk of being caught unawares by the tides they have ignored. Occultists deal with the forces of life itself, and one aspect of life-force is certainly sex-force. As has been shown in a previous chapter, the life-forces run down through all the seven bodies of man as pure force, and are conditioned by the nature of the body, mental, emotional, or physical, as the case may be, through which they take form. Life itself is not thought any more than it is sperm; but if it is used to drive the machinery of the mental body it will produce thought, and if it is turned into the machinery of the reproductive organs it will produce sperm. It will, in fact, go to whatever part of our nature we direct our attention, and if we have not trained ourselves sufficiently in thought-control to be sure of keeping our minds off any particular subject for a certain period, we are running grave risks if we open the channels of our nature to more force than it is normally constructed to deal with. This risky enlargement of receptiveness is effected by certain forms of breathing, meditation, or ritual magic, and the risk lies in the fact that if a sensual thought intrude into consciousness at a time when the channels are open and the forces are flowing, those forces will immediately follow the focus of attention, and the result will be an outbreak of passion and sensuality. It is by concentration of thought that these powers are held to their work, just as the automobile is steered by the driver's hands. If attention waver, the direction of the power will waver with it. To use a big occult potency is like driving a high-powered car at a high speed, all depends on the control; unless you have the nerve for it, you are safer on your feet. Many people experiment in the invocation of forces, but few are aware of their reality until they find themselves out of their depth.

The rightly trained occultist, knowing these facts, will refrain, then, from certain kinds of work if he is unable to obtain a complete circuit for the cosmic force. It was said to the writer once, "Only those who are rightly married can go to the higher degrees." The most important work is done by the pair, not by the solitary worker, who is always more or less unstable, and nothing in occultism is more undesirable than instability. For such work the closest sympathetic rapport of the higher nature is necessary, and such intimacy and propinquity is only sanctioned by our society when it has been regularized by marriage. Union upon the physical plane need not take place, and, in fact, will not take place while the life-forces are being used upon other levels; but when that work is not going on, and few have the stamina to keep it up continuously and without respite, then the forces will tend to follow their natural channel, and if that channel is not open, trouble may ensue. Moreover, should certain of the operations of practical magic not be entirely successful, then it is very advantageous to be able to run the unutilized forces off through the ordinary channels of nature upon the physical plane. It is possible for a man and a woman to work together for a life-time without having recourse to the physical plane, but it is only highly evolved and disciplined natures that are capable of such restraint, and people who undertake a partnership that cannot, if necessary, be placed upon the basis of legal marriage, should realize that they have set themselves no light task.

It may be deemed unjust that anyone should be delayed in their spiritual progress because circumstances have denied them a suitable partner; this, however, is not the case when envisaged from the point of view of the occultist. If the student has advanced far enough to undertake the operations indicated in the foregoing pages, he will be an initiate of the greater mysteries, and will have shifted the focus of his life from the personality to the individuality; he will have some memory of past incarnations, realize that they are phases of his existence, and his sense of the "I" will stretch beyond both birth and death. He will know that that future is under his control; therefore he does not feel that he must taste or forego any particular experience altogether before death shall overtake him; certain work he may decide to set aside for another incarnation, seeing that the conditions of this one are unsuitable for its execution. The fact that he feels an urge to mate does not necessarily mean that he is ready for the great cosmic mating which we are here contemplating. Such a union requires more than his own decision; but should he have come to the point when he must handle focussed cosmic forces, then for this purpose he will have to effect the cosmic mating, which is a mating, not of personal love, but of capacity for service along the same lines of power. No love may enter into the union at the outset; indeed, it may be a union of complete strangers, although out of the deep harmony necessary for the formation of a circuit, love may grow.

The Cosmic Tie is a union that is entered into by two individuals for the purpose of performing certain occult work that can only be carried out by two units functioning in polarity; it has nothing whatever to do with love or attraction as ordinarily understood. It is motivated by service and nothing else; it is partnership entered into for the sake of the work to be performed. The participants in this union do not choose their partners, they offer themselves for service to the Master on the inner planes, whose pupils they are; and by the Wisdom of a higher plane they are mated with regard to their qualities and capacities for service according to ray-colour.

The essential difference between the Karmic and the Cosmic

Tie lies in the fact that the Karmic Tie begins upon the lowest plane and works upwards as body after body comes into function; whereas the Cosmic Tie begins upon the highest plane and works downwards. The Karmic Tie is part of the normal discipline of evolution; the Cosmic Tie is supernormal in that it belongs to a different code of laws altogether to that which governs the general order of mankind; it is one of the Greater Mysteries, and, as such, is reserved for initiates, and is only referred to here because so many are essaying these mysteries without initiation—are experimenting with great natural forces in entire ignorance of their nature and potency, and therein lies danger.

If the recent space triumph of Apollo VIII has any meaning whatever, outside the considerations of pure science, it is that the estate of man has leaped into a new dimension of becomingness. Every man and woman who has ever lived owns a chunk of stock in that historic achievement, as do every man and woman who shall ever live. Perhaps Apollo VIII will provide the platform for that new reference point from which Man may view himself and his Creator. Perhaps we will find a new humility out there in the vastness of space, a new awe and wonder, a new recognition of who we are and where we are headed. It seems strikingly significant that the crew of Apollo VIII, with all of mankind viewing their historic triumph, found it fitting to broadcast back upon the earth the ancient words of the story of creation from Genesis. This was not a "religious pitch," as many have claimed, but an acknowledgement of awe and wonder by three valiant men who had not lost the capacity for those very human (and very probably Godlike) emotions.

Our Hollow Heroes

Our Western world always has had too much, and with this always has come too little. There has been too much wanting, too much desiring. The other side of this particular coin has not seen enough restraint and discrimination. Desire has made Western life pathetic and disappointing. No restraint has made it exhausting and destructive. It is not surprising that from the credo "Anything goes" should emerge the hollow heroes we now have.

Healing Vibrations

Know that all strength, all healing of every nature is the changing of the vibrations from within – the attuning of the divine within the living tissue of a body to Creative Energies. This alone is healing. Whether it is accomplished by the use of drugs, the knife or what not, it is the attuning of the atomic structure of the living cellular force to its spiritual heritage.

Journeying Within the Soul

All our travelings have a reflexive effect upon us. That is, they all involve a journeying within the soul. But every itinerary of the spirit, said the medieval Bonaventure, is a journey toward God. It is an axiom that we become like whatever we seek. Hence, man's travels in space will transform man into a being with greater spiritual powers, a more god-like being.

What Good is Forgiveness?

It makes no difference what kind of a "bad" or limited good, that has been presented to us, or that we experience, if we can perceive that it is but a reflection of something that we have believed. Forgiveness is realizing that no one meant to make the error and that we didn't mean to make the belief which caused it.

As we note that we have either looked away from God and His Allness, or never really knew it, entirely, but have been making many of our beliefs from the level of appearances, — even though we are so often reminded to "judge not by appearances," — we begin to understand. When we are hurt, or harmed, we see that we have a little more growing to do, and this experience is but a challenge to enlarge our consciousness.

Forgiving others for their faults and shortcomings is a way in which we are also forgiven . . . so how is this? It is a certain kind of thought, or belief, which we have entertained about these others, which we can change. We can see other's errors plainly enough, but seldom note our own, yet the beliefs which we make and often monotonously speak of to others are one of our own biggest mistakes!

Have you ever said, "I wouldn't think of doing what HE did, or act like that" of someone you know? Are you not THINKING OF IT RIGHT THEN? No, you aren't thinking you would do that, but are you not building up a belief with that thought? You are believing it is being done, and that's YOUR thought.

We have all made some mistakes, but we stop as soon as we see they are mistakes, so it is seeing what is a mistake that is required, is it not? God is the Allness of Good. Wouldn't this be a better thought, than a lack of good?

Most of us fail to realize how much we believe about whatever it is we see "with our own eyes" and much of what we hear, or hear about. So, we don't realize this is a mistake. While it is factual that we all make mistakes, at times, in various ways, many of these mistakes we correct as soon as we realize they were mistakes ... and seldom unless we do.

We know fearing is "something I didn't understand," as is allowing our feelings to be hurt. We wouldn't have our feelings "hurt" if we'd understood what it was FOR ... or why something "happened as it did."

This is why, in the Lord's Prayer, we have "Forgive us our debts (or trespasses) AS we forgive our debtors (those who trespass against us). If we would be more quick to forgive others for their mistakes against us, we'd not have our own guilt complexes that we sometimes become quite aware of, and feel ashamed of for one reason or another.

FORGIVENESS

Getting the feeling of the ALLness of God, in every man, woman and child, can only come when we have become aware of the ALLness of God within ourselves. I feel a real thrill when I hear another say, "I only want to do it right" because I know they have the feeling of this ALLness in them. They know that new ideas can come to them, and are coming into them, from the Source, the God-part of them. They know how important EVERY thought is, and so the moment any appearance of a "lack of good" appears, they are to consider the exact opposite of it, or go still higher to realizing GOD (All good) is present, here, now.

In a case of illness, or pain, on the physical-material level, they know that there is a non-material (Spiritual) level of life where the desired condition of Perfection is already a Reality. They think about that . . . not what their eyes see, or ears hear. They can "go higher" . . . for they know what God is.

Once when we were having a terrific storm here, I happened to go down the hall just as a man was telling another "I've never been so scared in my life; that storm blew my car around and I could hardly guide it." I came back in the apartment and sat down and meditated, "God is not in the storm; God's nature is Peace." The storm stopped in seconds; just stopped!

You know the body is equipped to renew all cells and tissues when they are damaged; if someone tells you some disease is incurable, can you not remember NOTHING is impossible to God?

On this non-material (spiritual) level, everything GOOD already is! As you take your mental attention to IT, you accept the good, which is there, and then you just be patient. (If you know you already have it, you don't have to run around hunting for it, do you?) You are literally accepting it, the instant you have the feeling of the Allness. Then, the guidance toward it begins to move you, but you move with an assurance, calmly, not frantically.

Now what is "forgiveness" again? Why must believing others didn't mean to make the mistake they did make, be taken care of? Because we, too, have made errors and mistakes along the way too, and we want to feel that we are forgiven, for them.

How does our forgiving others really help us?

PSYCHIC PERCEPTION

and your child

PART V.

How to Keep God Alive in Your Home

Have regular morning and evening prayers in which the children join. Teach the children to offer grace at mealtime and remind your boys and girls frequently that God created all things — the stars, the sun, the moon, and the whole world, and that when they love each other, they are expressing God's love. Teach them that God is the Infinite Healing Presence that heals a cut on their finger and gives them new skin when they burn themselves.

Young boys and girls going to school become enthusiastic when I explain to them that if they practice a simple technique every night they will be guided in their studies and pass all their examinations easily and in a relaxed manner. The following is the simple prayer that great numbers of young boys and girls, as well as those going to college, use regularly every night before going to sleep:

I am Divinely guided in my studies, and I have a perfect memory for everything I need to know at every moment of time and point of space. I pass all examinations in Divine order. Whatever my study assignments may be, I will give attention to them, and I know my subconscious will prompt me and reveal to me the answers when I need them. I sleep in peace and I wake in joy.

Pass on this prayer technique to your sons and daughters and explain to them that these simple truths, when repeated regularly for five or six minutes every night, are engraved in their subconscious mind, which is the seat of memory; and whatever is impressed on their subconscious will be expressed. In other words, tell them that they will be compelled to give a good account of themselves at every examination, for the nature of the subconscious is compulsive.

A niece of mine studying in a convent in England wrote me stating that when the sister in charge told her that she could do much better than she was doing, and after reflecting on her studies, she decided to talk to God about it. Her prayer was very simple and practical. Her dialogue was like this:

"God, You are all wise; guide me and show me how to give my best in every way. Thank you, God." She expected an answer and received one and is now getting along famously with the teachers and her schoolmates and in her studies.

A Plan for Parents and Children

Parents should remember that they can give only what they have or possess in their minds; therefore, parents should learn the laws of the mind and the ways of the Infinite Intelligence within all people throughout the world. Let this be your creed:

God is, and all there is is God, in all, over all, through all, and all in all. God is the Living Spirit, the Life-Principle within each one. God loves us and cares for us. God comes first in our lives. As we turn to this Infinite Presence and Power within us and claim harmony, peace, abundance, wisdom, right action, and beauty operating in our lives, wonders happen as we pray this way.

Every morning when we open our eyes, we give thanks to God for the new day and for the marvelous opportunities to release more and more of His light, love, truth, and beauty to all mankind. Every night before we go to sleep, we will say, "We sleep in peace and we wake in joy, and we live in God. God gives his beloved in sleep."

The above prayer, recited regularly, systematically, and persistently by parents in the presence of their children will resurrect and activate these truths lodged in the subconscious of all. Children brought up in this spiritual radiance will grow in wisdom, truth, and beauty, and will prove the age-old dictum that the only reason for our existence is to glorify God and enjoy Him forever.

People Respond Differently to Death

Many people fear death, feeling that death is the annihilation or the end of life. Others fear death because they fear it is not the end; they fear what will happen in the next experience. There are those who fear death because they associate death with sickness or violence, which, in their thinking, is necessary in order for life here to end.

There are those who rejoice in the idea of death because they feel that the next life will be a heavenly experience, completely contrary to their present life which they are able to tolerate, living in the hope of a better future life. Rather than making a heaven on earth, they let hell prevail on earth (in their minds) with the thought that heaven will be their reward, and that those who are having it well in this experience will naturally go to hell. Believe it or not, there are those who rejoice in all kinds of troubles, hardships and even self-inflicted punishments, thinking that the more they are punished in this experience the more they will be extolled and benefited in the next experience.

There is no area of life in which there is so much superstition and ill-conceived thinking as there is in regard to the future life and to the idea of death. The more I think about this the more I come to the conclusion that there is only one set of laws pertaining to all of life, and this pertains to life as we are living it now, and life in the next experience. I am not able to conceive of a Universe in which there are dual laws, one set for the life of man here and one set concerning life after death. When the astronauts went to the moon they found that the same laws applied on the moon as applied on earth. I think the same thing applies to the spiritual side of life. Just as the astronauts had to approach each law in a positive, affirmative way, and use it intelligently and wisely, so must we approach each law regarding the spiritual life.

BOOK TALK

BECAUSE WE ARE particularly concerned with subjects dealing with those things beyond the mortal veil in Chimes, the writings of the widely acclaimed author and journalist, Ruth Montgomery, have become of great interest to many. Her book, "Here and Hereafter," while one of many she has written, does serve to focus attention on particular aspects of these subjects in a manner that is not only quite interesting and provocative, but is well documented.

Using the psychic experiences of many rational, well-educated men and women to illustrate the theme that this is not our first lifetime, nor probably our last, Mrs. Montgomery makes us aware that we can influence our future circumstances by our present conduct and thoughts. The use of these experiences also serves to shed light on some very basic questions of life: the reasons for racial, religious, and economic inequities, for the youth-protest movement, for physical handicaps, for most of the crucial choices we make in our lives, and for many of the seemingly meaningless tragedies we witness every day. These questions she poses are to be found in the lives of people who are living witnesses, people outstanding in their fields of endeavor, as well as others who have had similar insights . . . all of whom believe we have only begun to scratch the surface of the mysteries of man and his inner self.

One of the many examples she gives of enlightening inner experiences bearing on the past is of an eminent psychiatrist who reveals how and why, despite great surgical skill, he chose this field because he suffered from guilt incurred in a previous lifetime as a laboratory assistant to the famed monkey-gland scientist, Serge Voronoff, and subsequently died from a monkey bite in that lifetime.

As in many of her books, Ruth Montgomery depicts dramatic experiences which bring answers to the riddles of life that always have plagued us. "Here and Hereafter" is one book that will hold your attention while it informs, inspires, and reveals one's inner self.

EXPANDING HORIZONS

. . by JAMES A. LONG

A modern presentation of changeless universal truths that are everyman's heritage, regardless of racial or religious background. The discussions, held with individuals and groups of people in various parts of the world, reveal a sweeping panorama of spiritual and metaphysical principles whose greatest value lies in their immense practicality when applied to the problems and responsibilities of life.

There is a wide diversity of subjects: karma, reincarnation, the Divinity of man, prayer, Biblical cosmology, conscience and intuition, the fundamentals of theosophy, etc. Of special import is the careful differentiation made between occultism and the "occult arts."

This inspiring volume offers the sincere searcher an effective and workable philosophy of life, based on his own needs and inner approach to truth.

And you shall set foot on plains of unbelievable grandeur — you and the others of Earth who are the Harvest which the angels now come to reap. This Harvest shall be gathered tenderly and bound together and stacked in the fields awaiting the proper light that has an affinity with their light. And then they shall vanish from the Earth. In a twinkling they shall be gone. Then they shall come into a great natural amphitheatre while all the angels, as it is written in your Holy Scriptures — shall sing before His Throne. It is truly written and this shall be.

And when the singing takes place it is singing that never has been heard on Earth, for it is a mingling of the souls of all those who partake of this fellowship. Animals and birds partake in this vibrational singing of the spheres. And you shall see before your eyes a fantasia of beauty, colour, sound and harmony mingling together in worship to the Light that is the I AM . . .

All the Father's Creation shall respond together for . . . you are not countries or nations or individuals or animals or slaves or free, you are one being, the being that is Earth. You are MAN, a man with many wounds, who shall soon be free and soothed of his wounds.

Even as you go about your mundane activities of the day, search the deepest part of your heart. Realize with joy that this is the time we have been waiting for. Let your fellow-man know the Master soon shall place His foot upon Earth again. This is the time when all men can rejoice. The bells of heaven are ringing! The trumpets are sounding!

(The foregoing is based on excerpts from SECRET OF THE ANDES by Brother Philip — a book much in demand in these times at Chimes. See page ix to order.)

Well, say you “hold a grudge” . . . someone played a nasty trick on you . . . inconveniencing you no end. Surely, you are “justified” for being sore about it . . . but look again, do you want to insist monotonously upon maintaining that negative thought? That negative thought is making more of the same kind of happenings! Now, let's think back to some mistake you made which caused someone else some kind of difficulty, and perhaps inconvenienced them . . . and let's say that at the time you made the mistake you really didn't know any better, and are sorry and you'll never do that again, but that person keeps thinking about it, and maybe even tells others how you “messed things up.” Wouldn't you like to have that thought “dissolved,” erased, so that it would never show up anywhere again?

God isn't IN the wrong action, so why do you keep looking at the “wrong action?” Why not get your attention upon the ALLness? Then your attention would be on Divine Love, and you would really be “giving love for” (or instead of) the faulty concept. Knowing a right solution always is present lifts you above the old habits of pointing to others as the cause for your troubles, and sets you free to be successful and happy for you choose to entertain the right thoughts about yourself and others.

Be sure you haven't overlooked

SPIRITUAL MIND TREATMENTS

These handy Spiritual Mind Treatments by Jack and Cornelia Addington are specific Truth for specific needs. Each treatment can open a door of healing for you or someone you know.

Read these Spiritual Mind Treatments over several times slowly. Meditate on them until they are assimilated and you have made them your own. In the Silence that follows the Spirit of Truth will speak to you and bring a healing.

I BLESS MY FOOD AND IT BLESSES ME

"Whether ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the Glory of God." 1 Cor. 10:31

I bless my food and it blesses me. I think of each meal as a spiritual act, an opportunity to glorify God.

In the Bible, the verb "to eat" means to "partake of spiritually, to make one's own." As I contemplate the true meaning of eating, each meal becomes an act of Grace. This is my mealtime blessing:

"Father, I thank Thee for this food which is the outer symbol of the spiritual food, the daily bread of life, by which I truly live. I give thanks for the Word of God which is my spiritual food and joyfully receive its outer manifestation, the physical food which now nourishes my body."

My body is the temple of the living God and His Infinite Intelligence planned it and maintains it perfectly. Both body and food are of one Substance, the only Substance there is. Both are controlled and directed by the Spirit within. I agree with my food and it agrees with me. I bless my food and it blesses me. I give thanks for the Bread of Life and gratefully enjoy its manifestation on my table.

And so it is.

The foregoing are excerpts from Your Needs Met by Jack and Cornelia Addington, a handy little book designed to guide you in resolving problems that confront you every day. You may order it on page ix.

PRACTICAL OCCULTISM

IN DAILY LIFE

"A special attitude and viewpoint is necessary for the satisfactory operation of occult forces: those who wish to use them must be free from emotional bias. A mere knowledge of technicalities is not enough. It is the attitude that is all-important, and this only can be arrived at by self-discipline and purification of character." - - - so says the author, Dion Fortune.

In learning how to put these forces into operation properly, the student will learn how it may control his daily environment, how he may recall past incarnations, how he may work out his karma, what the uses and limits of divination are, how to use and not abuse the power of mind, what etheric magnetism is, and how to deal with the problems of those who are unmated (unpolarized). All very helpful . . . all very topical . . . all very illuminating about the inner life.

Second Book of Acts

discovered and translated by Kenneth Sylvan Guthrie

NEW MODERNIZED VERSION — NOW AVAILABLE!

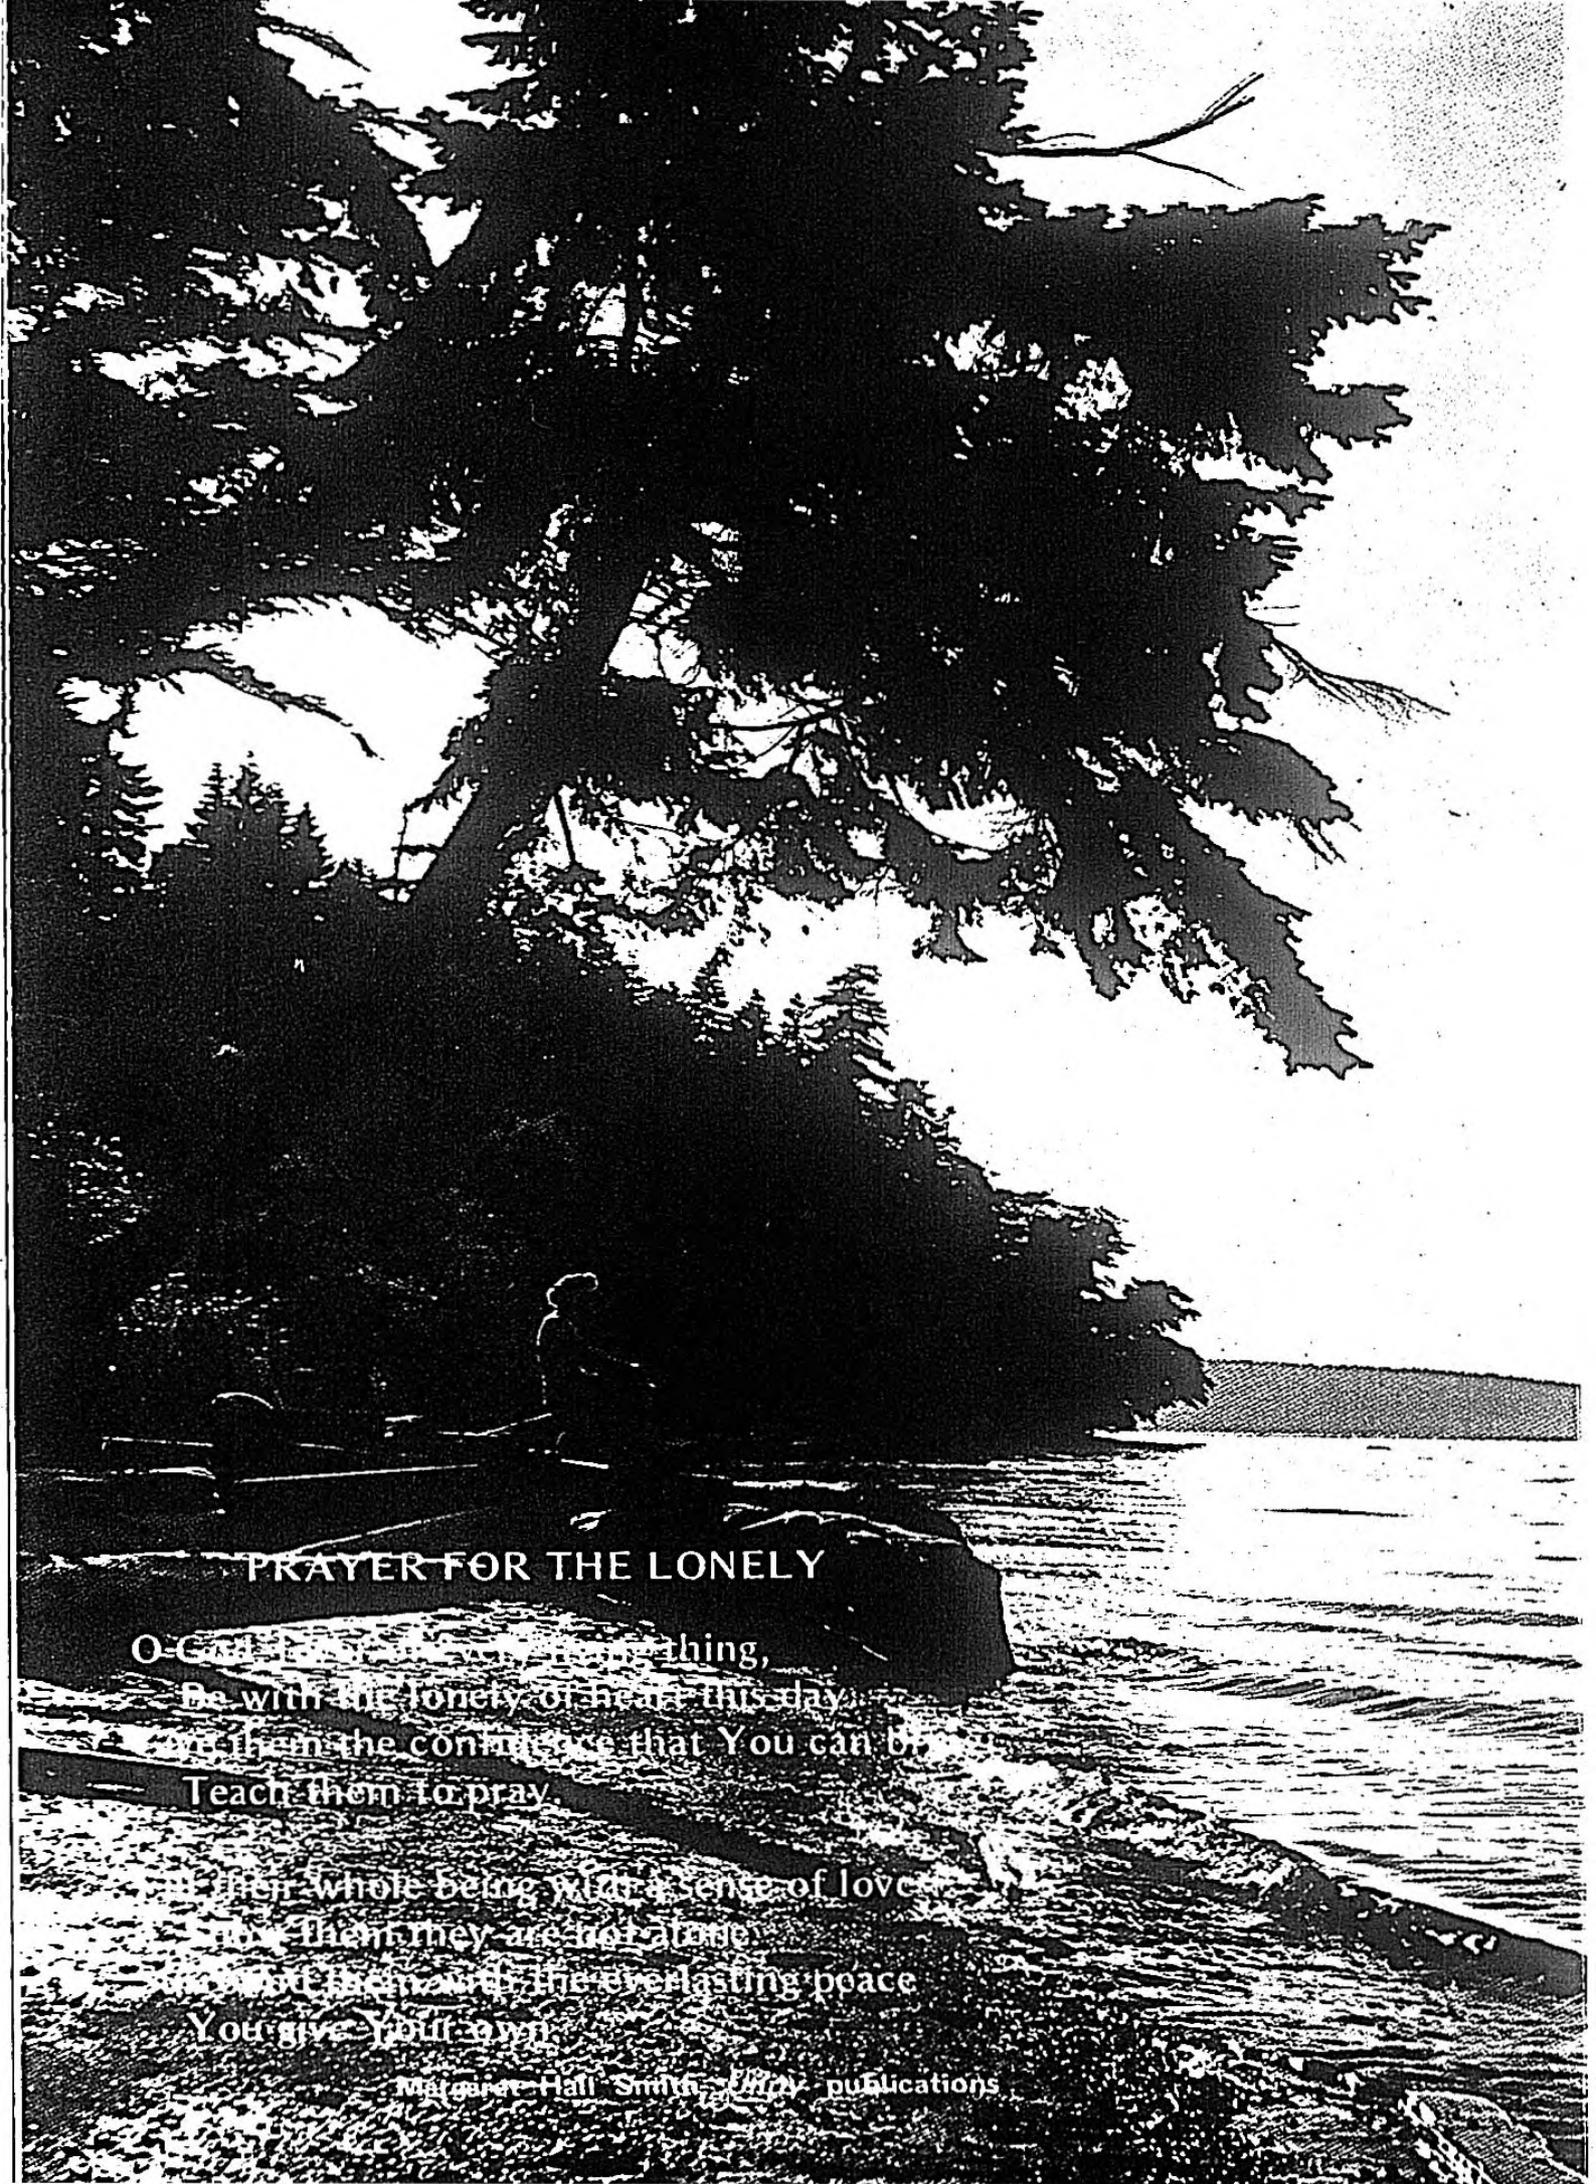

Here you will learn of the six concurrent lives of Mary and Jesus and how they are to lead man on Earth into the federation of planets of this System by the year 2000 A.D.

... Before she made her ascension at 83, are you aware that Mary taught the Disciples that man is to learn who he has been, individually and as a race, what his present status is, and where he can go from this point?

... Have you ever thought of Mary as a medium in that lifetime as Jesus' mother — which she was as she communicated with, traveled to, and saw into the higher dimensions?

This is a book that will answer such questions

— ORDER FROM CHIMES —

The rise of the drug culture and the widespread and increasing use of drugs among America's youth have served one important sociological and spiritual purpose. This development has made us painfully aware that a large number of people are disillusioned with themselves and confused about their direction in life. The natural tendency of a disillusioned person is to place the blame on the environment and other factors outside of himself. Thus, when an individual finds himself depressed and unhappy, the immediate reaction is to project these feelings on the culture and proclaim that the problem lies with the political, economic, social and educational institutions. Although it is true that these institutions are in constant need of reform, it is psychologically unhealthy for an individual to believe that depression, apathy and unhappiness are outer-controlled. An individual with this attitude is impotent of any constructive effort at needed social or personal reform and can only destroy rather than construct.

Much disillusionment in the last decade has been outer-directed. The first attempt by disillusioned youth was directed towards peaceful protest. The attempt failed. Second, violent disruption was attempted. That attempt failed. The next attempt was at political action. This attempt did not bring about dramatic change. Following the failure of the attempt at political change, we have seen large numbers of individuals withdraw. Either through drugs or through a self-induced state many of the youth today have withdrawn into their own private worlds and have little interest in the world outside.

There are many who take hope in the fact that there has been a widespread interest in the psychic, the occult and in various forms of meditation. A careful examination, however, indicates that in many cases these new trends are being used as an escape from the responsibilities of life. Courses on witchcraft and the occult are being taught in many large high schools and colleges, but the effect has often been to deepen the withdrawal of individuals from useful service. Many of the schools of meditation which have become both popular and financially successful are based on the principles of withdrawal and escapism and generally are lacking in directions of service or the practice of love.

Those who are familiar with the Cayce readings know that unless knowledge is applied, unless spiritual and occult studies develop an individual who is adjusted, and who has a selfless concern for others, that this knowledge is useless. Unless knowledge is applied in practical work and service in a spirit of love, such knowledge becomes a minus rather than a plus.

The first step in the practical application of knowledge is learning to know self.

CHAPTER THREE

“THE COLOR RAYS”

THE LORD JESUS

PART I.

All around the universe are rays of color — beautiful living, heavenly hues. These rays are keyed to the disposition and moods of all creation, and are valuable forces in the relieving and healing of all mortal life, sending forth their powers wherever needed. If one could look out and see the universe, beholding as with eyes of spirit, they would be greeted with a panoramic view of color so magnificent their hearts would tremble with awe at the pure majesty of this creation. Untold beauty, indescribable in its very uniqueness, lies in every direction further than the mind can comprehend!

Each color is a healing force in itself, whether for the body, soul, mind, or spirit — there is nothing left untended in this great universe by The Father!

The earth has its color which float around it as a garment, and other colors which float out from these as an outer garment; then, still even further removed are more, and each works continuously towards the up-building and perfecting of His children. Other planets, other stars, have their own colors, differing basically from those which girdle the earth — just as the life which has been created differs in light.

When one can learn to grasp the understanding of the color rays, using them consciously as with the Bible, and all aids to growth, the rate of progression so increases that it is astounding! For this purpose a closer look at the rays which dominate the world will be profitable as well as nourishing to the soul.

It must be understood that these rays differ from the Seven Rays which govern one's time (progression), from spiritual infancy on to maturity. The difference is simple: the Seven Rays are where one is in relation to nearness to God; and the color rays are the healing forces which aid and influence the state of one's health, both physically and spiritually. To put it even more simply, the Seven Rays show how far along the road to God one has transgressed, and the color rays are a part of the total Light that guides the soul ever upward along this path.

Very basically, these rays can be seen around each individual, that which is called the aura. The color which most nearly surrounds the head shows the state of development, and changes only as they progress, eventually culminating in a total fusion of all: WHITE: White is generally thought of as the absence of color, which in truth it is; the above statement is truth also, for it is by the soul's progression through each of the color rays, and becoming rounded-out in each, that the aura is transformed to white — all of the color rays having been fused into the growth of this particular one. Thus, it is in this sense, the fusion of all). The color, or colors, which are seen above this, show the mood, or state of well-being of that individual at that time, and are therefore changeable from day to day, or hour to hour. These are the colors they are drawing on at that particular time.

Man Must Learn

Through his ESP (Elementary Spiritual Powers), man's most common form of channeling is to send and to receive inspirational and helpful information to all other forms of creation. Native peoples have been doing this since the beginning of known time on Earth. Primitive life has taught man to live in harmony with all other kingdoms on our planet, both for survival and for companionship.

Sensitives who have experienced this communion or channeling with the animal kingdom will enjoy the following excerpts from the writings of David Villasenor, whose book also was quoted in our MAIN AmerIndian issue for February.

Nearly all ritualistic dances require the use of face masks, which tend to develop detachment from self as well as serving the function of psycho-drama by releasing pent-up energy and tensions. The painting of symbols and markings upon the dancer's face represents the most outstanding sense, acute quality, or power, of the creature portrayed. It is the essence, as well as the physical aspects, which is being honored with song, dance and gratitude to the Great Spirit for placing them here on Earth to teach man.

Aside from providing for man's needs, comforts and pleasures, they also share their innate secrets with those who are patient and wise enough to observe them. The Indian has great respect for the refined senses of his younger brothers, such as the sharp vision of the eagle that can see a rabbit hiding from a thousand feet in the air, the ears of the deer that can hear the lightest footfall, or the coyote's keen scent hunting by night.

By acting like and mimicking these creatures in song and dance, the active participants as well as the observers, become more familiar with the mannerisms and habit patterns of each species. Thus a state of symbiosis, or subconscious partnership, unfolds and develops between man and nature.

When the Indian is on the trail searching for game and food, it is therefore natural for him to become empathetic with the deer or rabbit, and enter into the spirit of even the herb or root,

to Live with His Animal Friends

so feeling the movement or location of each.

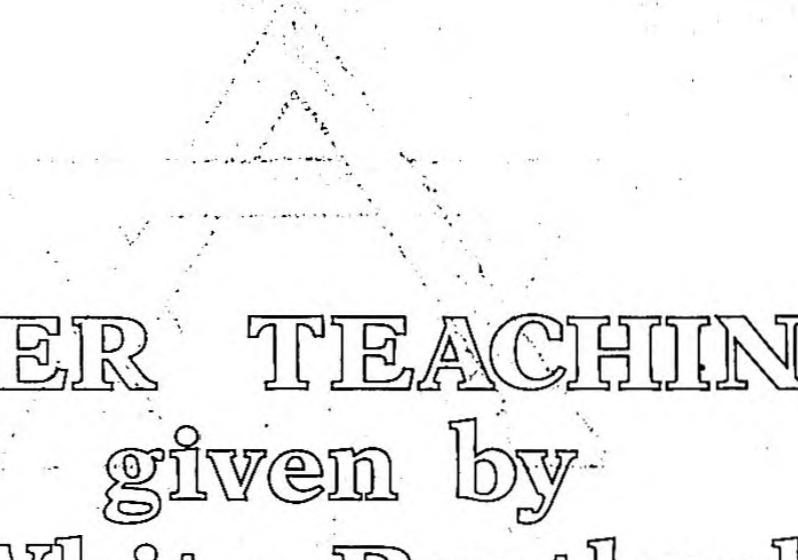

The Indian permits all creatures to teach him on their own terms, in exchange for protective love, patient understanding and an equal respect for them. By so doing he helps establish harmony between the many Earth species and members.

In the primitive world it is imperative to know who's who, for survival depends upon one's knowledge of observation, identification and reverence for all life. Everything that was ever created the Indian believes has a definite purpose and a message for man, whose duty it is to earnestly learn everything about his immediate neighbor and brother of the mineral, vegetable and animal kingdom. Whether it be friend or foe is strictly a matter of relativity, time and space, seasons of the year, or the ultimate motive or goal desired.

The ability to learn, to know, and to communicate with their wild neighbors on equal terms was noteworthy. To hear an animal call, answer in return, and have the game come curiously to see you, was a mark of achievement. Many a good hunter has thrilled to this experience, but for the Indian the motive was one of deep reverence for his little brother who was readily answering his hungry need. His purpose was not only for survival, but also for communion.

To honor him in song, dance and daily prayers, was to remind himself also that man must ultimately repay his debt to all creatures that sustained his physical body when he partook of their bodies for food. Therefore, he also must be willing after death to leave his flesh and bones as food for the survival of the little ones of the other kingdoms. This "law of diminishing returns" is still a recognized law of Indian life.

This is a law which, for everything you do (on all levels: physical, mental, spiritual), you must compensate, thereby maintaining a perpetual flow. For whatever you take, you replace. Whenever you receive, you give — and vice versa — for one who abuses this higher law, knowingly or unknowingly, pays compound interest.

experiences that lead to Cosmic Consciousness

It is the custom in many countries for the bride to greet her husband veiled. For centuries the Feminine side of God has been veiled; there is a deep symbology in this: Reference was made to it in the 15th Chapter.

Not until the coming of the Diamond Age in its full radiant glory will the mind of Man be "pure" enough to behold with opened eyes the true Bride of the Christ. In the Christian Bible the Church has been thought of as the Bride. The Church, with her teaching ways, has been the symbol on Earth of the Bride, but until RECOGNITION comes of the part that Woman has to play in the emancipation of Mankind, the true Bride of the Christ cannot be revealed: her face can be viewed only at that time when the MARRIAGE of man with his God has taken place; after the Marriage the Veil is removed. The Bride of the Christ is the TRUE COMFORTER whom man awaits.

Those interested in current writings of the White Brotherhood as given in the monthly "RAYS OF WISDOM" may send a self-addressed stamped envelope (or donation) to THE WHITE LODGE, P.O. Box 909, Del Mar, California 92014.

Woman, illumined, is Her symbol on Earth. Only the Man, in whom the WOMAN is awake, is truly a part of the mystical Body of the Bride of the Christ.

In this day and age as yet only a small percentage of the women of the world have come out of their whited sepulchres into the Light of the Day. But daily more are being born into the Light, and so also are the men. Soon it will be possible for great numbers to sense the work of enlightenment that is going on in and through and behind all the outward turmoil of the world. By the side of these Illumined Women (Cells in the Spiritual Body of the CHRIST-BRIDE) walk the men . . . Illumined Men . . . Men who have had the TRUTH revealed to them in bursts of Cosmic Consciousness. Such Men are not ashamed to be Woman-led; they glory in the opportunity . . . for they know the Divine Mother and the Divine Bride have much to teach them.

With the acceptance of the NEW VISION comes your part in its portrayal on Planet Earth. Be alert, therefore, for you know not in what moment THE LIGHT MAY BREAK within you!

THE HIGHEST USE

Love is the highest use of mind, and when a person believes that he is being guided by a loving Presence, he finds that love becomes his ruling thought, and that expressions of Love in his life become the response of life to him. Therefore the one who believes that there is a loving Presence working with him, finds that this is so. When a person prays for another in love, life will respond according to demand. When it is done in love there will be a loving response, and as Jesus showed, a healing response.

PART III.

To those unacquainted with the works of recent authors on the subject, it may be confusing to learn of this mysterious Subliminal Mind. We will, therefore, venture upon a theory which is probably true to fact, and which also helps us form a picture of the mind's two-fold sphere of action. It is this: — in addition to his physical body, man has one which is more or less a duplicate, but formed of so ethereal a substance as to be invisible. The two bodies interpenetrate. Man has, thus, a physical brain and an ethereal brain. When we think consciously we are using the physical brain; but when we use the ethereal brain alone, our waking consciousness, just because it is limited to the physical brain, is unaware of the result.

It would, of course, be easy to picture this hypothesis so grotesquely that the sane mind must reject it. Quite otherwise is it when one considers how modern theories have pushed the formation of matter far into the invisible. Each cell of one's body is an interweaving of invisible atoms, each of which may be likened to a solar system in miniature. The cells are guided to their respective positions by "a directive idea" which thus builds up the body. It scarcely needs saying that this directive idea is a puzzle to physiologists because it is invisible and elusive. We may surmise that ultimately it will be found that this directive idea works through an intermediary, and that the intermediary is none other than the hypothetical invisible body. This discovery would not solve the mystery, but would take us one step nearer its solution.

We may therefore think of the physical body as being formed upon the invisible body which is at once its pattern and its builder. The pattern persists when the material counterpart decays in death.

In this connection the following remarks by the late Dr. Geley are of interest: "This subconscious psychic activity, powerful in itself, is reinforced by a still more limited conscious memory far behind." "Everything happens as though the psychic state which we call a remembrance, registered by the cerebral cells—ephemeral as they and destined soon to disappear with them—were at the same time registered in 'a something' permanent, of which this remembrance will henceforth be an integral and permanent part." "It is not conditioned by the organism; on the contrary everything happens as though the organism and the cerebral functions were conditioned by it." (From The Unconscious to the Conscious, unavailable.)

(Follow this subject a little more closely yourself in The Mental Phenomena of Spiritualism by Rev. C. Drayton Thomas — available to you on page ix.)

It is not a bad thing to have to face total failure. It toughens the spirit and makes one aware that, though all may seem lost, human beings have unquenchable resources within them.

PSYCHOLOGY OF COLOR

The Effect of Colors on Health and Happiness

PART IV.

Each color has a certain inner meaning and a certain message to the beholder. Learn the messages of the colors so you can give out to the world your own particular message by the colors you wear and the colors you attract as you journey through this interesting, full, rich life.

RED

There are two important shades of red, corresponding to the two shades of red in the human body ... war-red, the red of the debris-laden venous blood, and peace-red, the red of the light, health and life laden arterial blood. In the Science of Living, the clean, light-filled, color of yellow-red is known as "Divine Love Red". In the orthodox religions it is known as the symbol for the blood of the lamb of God ... the purified, cleansed blood, made clean of anger, resentment, bitterness, criticism ... the Divine Red Blood of Eternal Life. The dark-red blood of the venous blood-stream signifies the blood of the Old Adam, laden with its hates and intolerances, its debris resulting from encounters with civilization while the mind was yet dark and unformed.

In this New World and in this New Age, mankind will learn to understand and to love Divine Love Red. It is used in our traffic signals in the large cities, and says to the on-coming motorist or pedestrian: "Wait a moment. I, the Voice of Divine Protection, speak to you. Look and listen before you go on".

Every color is good. Even Black is good. For is it not the color of the Night in the Womb wherein we were formed? Is it not the color of the darkness in the womb of Mother Earth out of which the flowers are born into the light of the sun? Each color is good in its proper place, but out of its proper place it is less good. Its "proper place", however, changes with the advance of civilization, as more Divine Intelligence lights up the brain of man.

The Red that will soon leave the consciousness of man is the Red filled with hate, intolerance, sex in its lesser expressions, bull-fights and inflamed passions.

Divine Love Red, with its golden glow, will take its place. Divine Love Red is the red of Divine Courage, Divine Life, Divine Strength, Divine Accomplishment. The Love of man for humanity must lose its baby pink shade and take on the rich, golden red of Divine Love which dares all that it may release the Earth.

Red is the color of Life; Divine Love Red symbolizes the Color of the New, Vibrant, Joyous Life of the New Age.

GREEN

Green, the color of PEACE and HARMONY, is produced by combining Yellow, with its outward, spreading vibration and Blue, with its inward and upward vibration. The two vibrations cancel each other in Green, resulting in Quiet and Peace.

Green denotes rest, success, peace and progress. It is a good color for high-strung, nervous people. God knew how beneficial green was, therefore we have so much of it in the trees, in the grasses, in shrubbery, and as background and foliage for the glorious and the humble flowers.

There is also another reason for so much green vegetation. The trees, grass and all green, growing things have lungs that breathe in the foul air which we expel. They purify it so that we may rebreathe it.

An excellent cure for headache or nervousness is to lie down in a cool, darkened room. Picture, in your mind the walls of the room as a jade green, and even the sheets of your bed as a soft, cool green. Then picture yourself watching a murmuring waterfall or a brooklet rippling over stones and through banks green lined, on either side. Draw a cool, jade green silken comforter mentally over you. You will find the quietness of the green will relax and soothe the hot nerves which have tied up the ganglion, the pneumogastric nerves near the pit of the stomach causing your head to ache.

If you are inclined to be lazy, do not wear too much bright green, as it may give you a feeling of inertia; wear yellow or red.

Have some green around your living quarters or office. Its quiet restfulness induces thought, which leads to success. People who do not spend enough time in quietly thinking problems through may induce this process by having a green room in which to think.

In the eye of the great Law no country is first or last, new or old, high or low, but each at the right time is appropriate for whatever the work is that must be performed. Each country is bound up with all the others and must assist them.

—William Q. Judge

WORTHY WORDS

Jess Stearn

Not everybody should develop as a psychic channel, only those capable of providing more understanding of the individual's relationship with the creative forces. The potentiality of a gift like Cayce's was endless. Cayce pointed out many times that Christ, performing his wonders, had said that with the aid of God others could do the same. Cayce, in humility, felt that he himself was merely a reflection of the unlimited scope of human potential, in the continuous struggle to get in tune with the universe he lived in – boundless man trying to find himself in a boundless universe.

*from Edgar Cayce – The Sleeping Prophet**

Jeane Dixon

Our acceptance of and action upon guidance is the only way to spiritual harmony, contentment, happiness, and prosperity . . . . .

William James

When an endowed psychologist makes a statement that a person has ten times the capacity he gets command of in a lifetime we realize more fully what Jesus was hammering at when He declared, "The Kingdom of God is within you," but the egotism and complacency of ignorance scoff us out of the necessary prayerful exploration into our own endowed depths.

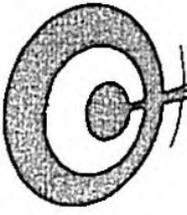

David Seabury

You cannot live well unless you live courageously. Complete safety is only to be had with cowardice. The urge for security can even breed dishonesty. This is why society often has been corrupted by a supine peace, resurrected by a fearful war. But the war need not have been, if enough men had had the energy and wisdom to keep their minds vital.

Maxwell Maltz

No one can fill you with disesteem without your consent. In other words, your dignity depends on you, not on someone else. If you lose it in frustration, you make your image shrink to the size of a microbe. No one can do it but yourself. And when you lose self-respect you lose everything.

NEWSWORTHY NOTES

THE PENTECOSTAL TIDE — A recent issue of Time magazine describes a crowd of 25,000 at Notre Dame stadium singing and murmuring prayers as no evangelical event quite like it in the troubled Roman Catholic Church in recent years. According to the article, the fastest-growing force within the church is that of the Pentecostals, or Charismatics, as they are also known. It is estimated that with the recent growth they have known there probably are more than 200,000 in the U.S. today, organized in more than 1,100 prayer groups. The movement also has taken root in foreign countries and is growing even more rapidly. Now it is felt that Catholic Charismatics form the third major group of Pentecostal believers, all taking their basic inspiration from the first descent of the Holy Spirit to enlighten the Apostles after Jesus; ascension into heaven. Among those "charisms" that St. Paul described in 1 Corinthians are such spiritual gifts as the ability to prophesy, the power to heal, and the ability to speak in tongues (technically known as glossolalia). Catholic Pentecostalism is less emotional than the Protestant form, and there is less reliance on biblical prophecies or the imminence of a Second Coming.

EXECUTIVE BELIEVES IN ESP — "Sure, I believe in ESP. I believe in Spiritualism too — in fact, the whole psychic field. Things have happened that convince me beyond a doubt." The speaker was William W. Keeler, 65, recently retired board chairman of Phillips Petroleum Co. — producers of "Phillips 66" gasoline — also a Cherokee Indian, elected chief of his people, and talking to the National Enquirer. While interviewing him at his home in Bartlesville, Oklahoma, he said, "I think Indians are close to the spiritual side of life because they live close to nature. . . I think we're closer to the Great Spirit than more civilized cultures are. Religion always has been important to us. Often in my career I've had to make difficult, risky decisions and to rely on my hunches. Somehow they've always worked out right, even when more experienced men were sure they wouldn't. Now I'm convinced there was some form of ESP at work." Keeler also mentioned that he has experimented with psychic phenomena as a method of finding oil deposits. Lately Keeler has been practicing techniques for putting his ESP to work. One time it helped when he recovered his driver's license after losing it in a field while on a hunting trip. "I'm convinced," he said, "I know now I've had the ESP gift all my life but I have never sharpened it. I'm sharpening it now."

THE QUIET MIND GETS THINGS DONE

You must come to a decision. The right decision is to focus your attention on eternal truths of life. Your real joy comes from getting acquainted with the spiritual powers within you. Spirit within you is God — the Cause of all. Look upon It as your lord and master. It is Omnipotent and Supreme. Join up with this Power in your thought and realize Divine love flows through you and all your thoughts and mental images, and also goes before you making joyous and happy your way. This attitude stirs up an inner joy in you. It is called worship of God, which means recognizing and devoting your attention to the Supreme Being and the Power and Cause in you and singing the song of triumph. Come to the right decision now, and the joy of the Lord will be your strength.

In quietness and in confidence shall be your strength ... (Isaiah 30:15). Your confidence should not be placed on externals, conditions, and circumstances. All these things pass away. Quiet your mind, relax, let go mentally, and turn your attention to the God-Presence within, which never changes and which is absolutely dependable — the same yesterday, today, and forever. Your real faith should be in God and in all things good and not in the transitory and ephemeral things of life.

Quiet Moments with God by Dr. Murphy really does help to 'quiet the mind to get things done' — as you will see in this inspiring spiritual book on meditation. We can all use assistance of this nature in our everyday living. (Order from Chimes — page ix)

EDGAR CAYCE

Man of A

Edgar Cayce might well be called one of the world's greatest healers. Certainly he was one of the most controversial figures America ever produced. Even today his work of healing continues at the Foundation in Virginia which bears his name as a testimony to his "miraculous" powers.

Cayce recognized from the beginning that the healing and other spiritual powers he possessed came from God, and that this was something he could neither abuse nor disavow. His mission in life was to heal the sick. Over and over he confounded those who scoffed and labeled him a quack and hoaxer. Skeptical medical investigators found in investigating him that of some 30,000 case histories, more than 90% of them were accurate. Along with this record of healing, Cayce also was asked to diagnose patients living thousands of miles away whom Cayce never had seen.

An amazing and inspiring story of how Cayce, mid poverty and derision, kept his faith and proved unquestionably that healing by faith indeed can produce so-called "miracles".
