WHAT ABOUT JOHN L. LEWIS?

Like Abraham Lincoln, John L. Lewis was born on February 12th—Lewis in 1880, in the early afternoon, in Lucas, Iowa. Both men lived in Springfield, Illinois. Both started from scratch: Lincoln as a rail splitter . . . Lewis as a coal miner. Lincoln had as his driving force the furtherance of the interests of the underprivileged . . . as does Lewis. Strength, courage and determination marked the decisions and actions of Lincoln . . . as they do the actions of Lewis.

Lincoln freed the slaves . . . Lewis wants to free labor from what, in his opinion, are insufferable working conditions. Whether or not you agree with Lewis depends on which side of the fence you are sitting.

What is ahead for Lewis, according to astrology?

The horoscope of the U.S.A. plainly indicates that we are in for a period of tremendous economic upheaval between 1944 and 1949—a period of radical changes, both political and social. Add the astrological fact that we are now changing from the waning Piscean Age to the new liberal Aquarian Age. Only a progressive, humanitarian leader can lead us through these trying times . . . anyone who tries to turn the hands of time backwards will fail.

Is Lewis, born with his Sun in Aquarius, fit for this job? He is a humanitarian from the miners' point of view, embracing the cause of the underdog, and seemingly attuned to the incoming age of universalism. But are his principles practical and in accord with the ideals of the Constitution?

Because of the close favorable trine aspect of his ruler (Uranus) in Gemini to his natal Sun in 22° Aquarius, Lewis is in the limelight right now. Uranus is the political progressive planet of the emancipator and all those strongly under its ray cannot help but be inspired by interests of national scope.

Lewis' horoscope indicates great strength of character. There are many major conjunctions, always an indication of leadership and personal power. Most important among these is the almost magical casimi of his Sun and Mercury, respectively in 23° and 22° of Aquarius. This bestows the gift of oratory and shrewd deliberation. It assures the assistance of expert legal advice in cases of controversy or persecution by the powers that be. Should his actions lead him into a major legal scrap winding up adversely, it would only result in additional power to him, making him a martyr to the cause of labor.

The year 1947 begins with the brilliant, supporting high-frequency of Uranus trining Lewis' Sun-Mercury conjunctions. But, in the fall of the year the planetary conditions change: in the Summer, Jupiter's square from Scorpio is likely to lead him to make serious blunders. In November and December, the icy opposition of Saturn in 22° and 23° Leo operates to this major conjunction. It is likely to manifest as a complete fiasco along political avenues and permanently block any aspirations Lewis may have for further power.

However, just as an experienced navigator may steer his ship into port against adverse winds, so John L. Lewis may play his hand cleverly, drawing advantages from adverse situations, and finally come out ahead.

What's ahead for '47

WHILE on tour with my orchestra and flying from city to city where we make appearances, I have occasion to get a bird's eye view of the world and its problems. From a long range perspective, 1947 looks very interesting.

Many people believe we are facing one of the worst depressions this country has ever known. I do not agree. 1947 brings a period of prosperity prior to a slump.

Business and Finance

With regimentation, such as the War Stabilization Board ending, and the lifting of other restrictions, the spirit of gloom manifest in the business world for so long will change to one of optimism. Everyone is now willing to take a chance and to gamble. The stock market will be extremely active and its trading volume will amaze everyone with its new highs. I would like to repeat here my warning stressed in the Fall issue of CURRENT ASTROLOGY: Guard against overestimating financial possibilities. Don't let the spirit of speculative audacity carry you away, but stick to conservative tactics. Buy substantial, gilt-edged stocks.

The week of January 7th is a starter for extreme activities indicated for real estate brokers. Real estate prices will reach their peak around June, with a turning point indicated for July and August. At that time prices of everything will drop.

One of the interesting features of 1947 will be the progress made by innumerable companies featuring prefabricated houses. These will become very popular, from the small one-room cabin up to the bungalow of several rooms. Controls will lift from building materials, which will account for brisk activity and a boom in the building industry. April should be a month when the real estate business flourishes. A trend towards moving to rural areas and buying country property is indicated.

Spring time will be a fine period to go into business for yourself. The small-business man who had been frozen out during the war will now come into his own and many small firms will be organized. But again let me stress this word of caution: be well supplied with capital and establish a solid foundation for your new ventures. November looms as an explosive month when a day of reckoning will be at hand: many bankruptcies are shown for that period for all insecure organizations.

Our international policies will come up for criticism repeatedly during the year. February especially is marked by a shake-down in Washington and an overhauling of our foreign policy. A change in personnel is indicated, and a lot of "firing and hiring" will take place in the nation's capital. The UN members may show dis-sension among themselves, and much wrangling will go on during their conferences. But it is not until November or December, as I see it, that one nation, probably Russia, will drop out of this concert of the Big Four. This will not result in a new war, however.

March is the month the weatherman works overtime. Note March the 17th and after for atmospheric disturbances: Heavy precipitations are presaged for over the Atlantic Ocean, with storms battering the Atlantic seaboard, resulting in loss of property and possibly human lives. Simultaneously, inland-floods will cause damage to homes, especially in the southern sections of the U.S.A. However, weather conditions are favorable for the western coastline.

March brings abolishment of a lot of obsolete ideas and unpractical measures and the breaking up of these old conditions comes as a relief to trade and industry. Rental restrictions already should have begun to be lifted and now will be removed from hotels and apartment houses.

A lot of arguments are indicated at this time, when Mercury is retrograding, but no feasible results are shown to come from any heated discussions. These arguments pertain to educational matters and schooling problems, to socialization of medicine and public health centers. No doubt all these socialistic ideals and principles are prompted by a desire to help the public welfare, yet the time for launching them seems premature.

1947 brings the completion of some new plan, which I believe is the legislation pertaining to compulsory military training. July is probably the month when the first units under this law will begin to operate.

Labor Developments

The struggle between capital and labor reaches a new high in 1947 when legislatures attempt to outlaw strikes. This is indicated after May 22nd and for the month of June. 1947 sees the "beginning of the end" of labor's power, its zenith having been reached. Its might will be curbed from then on. Additional weakness inside the ranks of labor is shown according to the adage: divide and conquer, for labor will become a house divided as the CIO, AFL, and other labor organizations are at loggerheads with each other. This internal schism, more than any restricting legislature, is likely to be responsible for the breaking up of the strength of labor in the body politic.

The stock exchange shows bullish strength the major part of the year. But watch your step in your fiscal transactions after September 22nd. A serious break, if not a panic, is indicated for that period by a wave of selling of stocks by the small fry. October is a very low period and shows the beginning of the economic disillusionment indicated for the winter 1947-1948. We may then really be on the brink of a new great depression.

A new note will be struck this year as regards our relationships with conquered nations. The release of war prisoners, for instance, will come up for discussion, and also the return to their owners of requisitioned homes in occupied areas. Confiscated alien property will be up for decisions. This is indicated for the spring and summer months, and will prove an aid to international commerce and trade.

I cannot see another war for 1947—on the contrary, I predict an earnest attempt to keep the world in peace and prosperity. Only if the Four Horsemen (Greed, Tyranny, Arrogance and Lust) ride this planet will we be hurled into another military conflagration in years to come. This one will annihilate civilization as we know it today.

Along with my hearty New Year's greetings, I wish to give CURRENT ASTROLOGY readers the assurance that 1947 should prove a year of prosperity and plenty to each and everyone willing to march ahead with faith and confidence toward a worthwhile practical goal.

1947 And You

by Irys Vorel

1947 and CAPRICORN

(Those born Dec. 22nd to Jan. 19th inclusive)

"Up and up" is 1947's message for you. The punishing and heart-rending, certainly harassing, Cardinal Cross of 1946 gives way to a gratifying harvest aspect. A realignment among the major planets and a breezy Mars impetus favors you in practically all departments of life. Get busy making worthwhile plans for the coming twelve months.

Opportunities for expansion, public recognition, and for financial returns beckon the careerist up to the end of October. January should present coveted advancement for writers. Influences are creative and original. Contact publishers' and authors' representatives during the late spring months, as well as in September and the first three weeks of October. Marketing of your brain child should be attempted around June, October and November.

The devotees of art, music and the dance are equally favored during the above-mentioned periods. Teamwork and collaboration are especially recommendable during 1947. You are likely to benefit by a partner. Associates of past years, who seemed drags or bores, may suddenly surprise you by a streak of good luck. This is also true for your domestic or matrimonial set-up. The "other half" may meet with good fortune. 1947 should prove a profitable and favorable year for pronouncing that "Yes" before the altar.

There is an old saying it's more important "who" you know than "what" you know. This applies to your social aspirations in 1947. Remember, many who glitter socially and are seen about are merely "Cafe Society"—without any real influence. You should select people of power for your social circle. Befriend bosses who dominate the business world or political sphere in your particular town or community. Don't shun rugged personalities if they possess specialized knowledge and demonstrate leadership. Best periods for social conquests should be February and April, the summer months, and October and December.

If you are interested in science and inventions, March favors important chemical formulas, photography and medicine. Practical forms of mechanics, inventing of gadgets, housing or building devices, architectural blueprints and agricultural activities are to the fore in June. The electricians come in for their share of stellar favor around July, the first half of August, and in October and November. If your line of business ties up with such interests, you are also benefited during these periods. Note the months of November and December for all forms of projection of art through mechanical means, such as radio, television, recordings and motion picture careers.

If you look for financial backing or a silent partner, the last two months of 1947 may bring a worth-while "secret" associate who may switch your business course into profitable channels.

1947 is not a particularly favorable year for light romance or flirtation. Only tried and true friendships and love affairs should be encouraged!

1947 and AQUARIUS

(Those born Jan. 20th to Feb. 19th inclusive)

The universal planets Uranus and Neptune will smile upon you with opportune aspects from your friendly signs Gemini and Libra. The collective influence of this configuration is excessively mental and abstract. Therefore you should strive at all times to be practical and economically sound. Neither a borrower nor a lender be. Apply good sound psychology to all cases of misunderstanding. Keep your feet on the ground and 1947 should prove an outstanding and lucrative year for you.

February is particularly stimulated along financial lines—a good month to try to balance your budget. Deal with bankers and insurance companies, putting your money affairs on a wholesome, practicable basis. The aspects are favorable also for “go-getter” methods and for contact-making with a view of expanding your business or improving your career outlook. Put your best foot forward, but avoid a too aggressive attitude, for logic will talk louder at this time than a cocksure demeanor.

August may present a financial mix-up that may affect someone closely connected in your life though not necessarily a blood relation. An unusual situation, disconcerting at the time, may prove a great blessing in the end. The entire year, in fact, may be marked by sudden peculiar circumstances from which you individually may benefit.

Patience is advised for those who celebrate their birthday late in January or early in February. Your partner in business or private life may give cause for worry because of depleted finances or health. Marriage should be entered into with the truest of affections and with extreme economical circumspection. The aspects do not warrant happiness if unions are built upon the sands of giddy romancing.

All Water Bearers should note the first two weeks of November as critical in your dealings with business associates, marriage partners, or literary, scientific or dramatic collaborators. Only through diplomacy can you steer difficult associations away from the rock of complete estrangement and rupture. Hold your temper if fellow-beings prove unreasonable.

The February-born Uranus men and women may run into gratifying success in their work during the first three quarters of 1947. Benefits are likely to accrue because of patronage. A superior or a personage of influence may be instrumental in furthering your career and business outlook. If you are engaged in public appearances on stage, screen or concert platform, or if the speaker's rostrum holds fascination for you, push your interests at that time. Above all, do not hesitate to solicit favors or to contact superiors.

Export and import, connections with Latin America, and distant journeys favor those born late in January and the first five days of February. Inter-marriage with someone of foreign birth or of a different outlook or upbringing than your own may result in ultimate benefits. You may tie up in business with foreigners, and these contacts should not only prove lucrative, but also enhance your prestige socially and in the business world.

All Aquarius-born must keep their hands on the purse-strings in 1947. You cannot afford to be careless about expenditures either in your home or place of business. Harvest beckons only late in the year—in November and December.

1947 and PISCES

(Those born Feb. 20th to March 20th inclusive)

“Tit for tat” best describes your planetary toss-up for 1947. Saturn, the stabilizer, has moved away from your supporting sign, Cancer, into your neutral sign, Leo, and, Jupiter, the Greater Fortune, has slipped from your neutral Libra into your harmonious, friendly Scorpio. At the same time Uranus in Gemini continues to stir up things in your residential department all throughout 1947.

You may interpret these somewhat conflicting stellar rays in the following manner: Good luck looms in your Mansion of Work. You may sign some coveted agreements improving working conditions, and legal redress may gladden your heart. The stars advise an amicable settlement if differences arise in the family circle—and that includes in-law relatives.

Benefits from foreigners through export and import are indicated and long-distance voyages are favored until the end of October. Put your irons in the fire during the first ten months of 1947!

All Fishes have an encouraging aspect to the boss's department in 1947. This means patronage. Don't hesitate to ask for promotion, increase in salary, or for small, but to you vital, favors from superiors. Official business can be taken care of. Ask for any justifiable reduction of assessments if you are a land owner. Adjust tax grievances. Wrangle with any public institutions if necessary to settle irksome problems.

Neptune men and women are home-lovers; they are fond of kith and kin. But Uranus, now in your Solar Fourth (ruling the home), promises little in the way of continued domestic harmony and peace. Repairs and alterations may appear inevitable if you are a home and property owner. If you are a nomad because of the housing shortages, you may have difficulty finding proper lodgings, for residential aspects are far from permanent. You had better accept these inconveniences with a philosophical mind, and lay plans for future anchorage in a home with a "day-dream" attitude. Uncertainty of your business prospects or in your vocational outlook may make a flexible arrangement of your residence desirable at this time.

Job conditions also present a kaleidoscopic picture if you are a Piscean with a March birth-date. However, improvements of your working terms are quite pronounced. 1947 may bring offers from unexpected quarters to go into business for yourself, with a partner, or as one of a group. Investigate these propositions; they may have good future possibilities.

Unless the individual horoscope contradicts, Pisceans should experience a mysterious, fortunate undercurrent in their solarscopes, that promises unearned money. A welcome yet rather surprising gift or a substantial bequest you did not expect is likely to bring happiness your way. You may benefit by a philanthropic ruling; perhaps the boss may give you a "break" in connection with your job. Such benevolence by the hand of Fate may ultimately bring stability and security into your private life.

Watch your step in August if your birthday falls in the middle of March. Don't rock the boat in matters of legal technicality—stick by your guns on your job. It is not a good time to iron out grievances with authorities. Neptune maidens should keep the home fires burning—not rush to Reno if your man appears unmanageable.

Courtship, friendship, reconciliations—even marriage—all are favorably indicated this year for all Pisceans. Push affairs of the heart, social aspirations and artistic interests in February, April and December. A most opportune time to ring wedding bells—should the occasion arise—is likely to be in July and September, when stars of conjugal felicity shine in your Solar Mansion of marriage.

1947 and ARIES

(Those born March 21st to April 19th inclusive)

The nicest part about a "jinx" is when it changes. Those in the sign of the Ram have every reason to anticipate 1947 with a feeling of relief. The heavy Saturn burdens of 1946 lift, and this grim planet lends support to your affairs from your harmonious sign Leo, introducing stability and security into your life. Lay long-range plans. Steer for the deep waters of substantial gains in business and profession, and profits should be legitimate and reasonable. All your ventures must be based upon the sound economic principle of supply and demand. Slow investments, tangible assets and executive jobs are Saturn-ruled, hence promise to be marked by success during the coming twelve months.

Human relations demand diplomacy and sound psychology on your part. This is especially true for those born late in March or the first five days of April of any year. Your Mansion of Partnership, which includes the conjugal mate, is overshadowed by somewhat misleading planetary influences. Confusion in the affairs of your associates may act as a boomerang on your own business. Here too, cool circumspection may save the day.

All Rams should note the months of April and May as overstimulated along emotional lines. These are not the months in which to adjust lovers' quarrels, to attempt reconciliations, or to voice justified complaints. On the contrary, you should apply the law of avoidance and travel on an even keel in matters of human relations. May especially is apt to bring romantic contacts to a climax. You are warned not to deliver ultimatums in cases of friction, unless you are prepared to see friendships or even business connections of long standing head for the rocks.

A critical period affecting family ties is likely to arise late in August and last throughout September. Residential problems, probably caused by the housing shortage, are indicated. Strife may mar the usual harmonious family setup, or you may run into troubles with your landlord. Repairs and alterations may prove a drain on your pocketbook if you are a property or home owner. Therefore, do not attempt domestic adjustments at this time.

Lots of golden opportunities beckon throughout the entire year to those who celebrate an April birthday. Note particularly the period between the beginning of July and middle of August as favorable for influential contacts and propositions that may lead to some lucrative harvests. The nature in which this good fortune may come about is likely to be unusual, if not startling and unconventional. Equally important for you should be the month of November. However, the vibrations which mark your business and job conditions then are apt to be quite sober and not at all spectacular. Do not let the apparently unpromising outlook mislead you as to the real significance of such opportunities, and do not discard them without careful investigation.

Some startling publicity may boost career aspects if you are engaged in the fine arts, music, drama or the dance. Advertising and journalism, too, are favorably indicated for April-born Rams until the middle of October. November and December are especially propitious for the above-mentioned interests for March-born Ariens.

The Indian Summer weeks, after Labor Day and up to the Harvest Moon, are extremely fortunate for romantic conquests, friendships and important social functions. This is a good time for ringing wedding bells. Public appearances, debuts on stage, screen, or in your social set, are all favorably smiled upon by the gracious star of Love.

1947 and TAURUS

(Those born April 20th to May 20th inclusive)

The Greater Benefic Jupiter in Scorpio is now in the apex of the Zodiac, furthest away from your sign Taurus. This means: concentrate on tie-ups. These could be of a personal, romantic, or of a "strictly business" nature. Whatever the individual aspects of unions may be, they should prove profitable.

1947 definitely is a year for marriage. Even if you belong to the confirmed bachelor or disappointed maiden category, you may encounter the "one and only" who'll cause you to change your mind. If on the other hand you are already basking in wedded bliss you may experience gratifying good fortune through your partner.

1947 is also a propitious year for collaboration or any kind of teamwork. Benefits will emanate from the association and you will enjoy "good luck." If you have an opportunity to go into business, do so by all means. The "other fellow" probably will put up the needed ready cash.

The best period for such partnership ventures should be during the first ten months of 1947. November and December introduce a totally different vibration: unearned money, legacies, bonuses, gifts, and incomes from annuities are then to the fore. You may be gladdened by profitable returns beginning to come in from associations formed earlier in the year.

A small group of Bulls should play safe in matters of speculation. If you saw the light late in April or early in May, watch your step in all risky, hazardous or visionary undertakings. Avoid stepping forward into the dark unknown in business or letting your dollars evaporate in a whiff of smoke. Better seek competent financial and legal advice in regard to investments for untried ventures. Play safe at all times and don't allow yourself to be hoodwinked by someone hungry for your cash. The most critical period is the first half of 1947—through the end of July.

On the other hand, May-born Tau-reans may be surprised by some unex-pected gain which should swell their pocketbooks. Note August as particular-ly stimulated along fiscal lines.

All Taurus-born may find June rather hectic. This is not the time to air family troubles in public, to rush to Reno at the first provocation, or generally give way to impulsive, hateful emotions. Don't carry a chip on your shoulder. Avoid situations that may give your nerves the "third degree" and force you into deplorable tantrums. Since the stellar rays affect your physical self, you must be extra cautious when driving a car or using sharp tools and machin-ery. Keep cool and keep your tongue in your cheek!

Watch the period between November 5th and 15th if you were born between May 6th and 10th. Some deep shadows may fall into your home or private life. This may be entirely due to the pre-vailling housing shortage. Just remem-ber to use patience and good cheer with obstreperous family members.

Since the tenor of 1947 is one of emo-tional contentment and happiness through the affections, it follows logic-ally that periods of Venusian emphasis abound. Probably the best months for matrimony are April, July and Septem-ber. The Indian Summer period of Octo-ber and November introduces influences pointing toward a "newcomer" looming upon the horizon of romance. December is an extra favorable month for social conquests, public appearances and ar-tistic pursuits of an ambitious scope.

However All Taureans should use diplomacy and maintain a gracious at-titude in their place of work during 1947. Confusion may disturb the peace and quiet of relations with co-workers. Blame conditions for harassed nerves.

1947 and GEMINI

(Those born May 21st to June 21st inclusive)

The eclipse on June 3rd in 12° Gemini and the con-tinued presence of Uranus in your sign, stimulated by the roaring transit of Mars in midsummer, largely determine the tenor of your affairs in 1947. This means plenty of excitement.

Those born under this sign are by nature inclined to a high nervous volt-age, so this hectic planet combine may give your nerves the "third degree." Therefore you are warned right at the start of the year to travel on an even keel. Do not bite off more than you can chew—don't attempt to do too much at one time. Take it easy. Self-discipline and serenity of mind are good tactics by which you may keep any trying situa-tion in hand.

1947, however, reveals a rather placid, pleasant countenance for those born in May or very early in June. Your af-fairs may now become static and eco-nomically sound. That fluttering quality of your Mercurial mind, too, promises to settle down to a practical, tranquil at-titude. Some worthwhile benefits arise in your work, probably through the pa-tronage of a superior. Pleasant aspects surround all your activities.

There is a marked improvement in health conditions for most June-born Twins. This may be attributed to "mind over matter"—for your optimistic out-look influences your health. This is true for all unless your individual horoscope grossly contradicts these hopeful indica-tions.

Those seeking a career should find 1947 profitable for "road" activities. You may learn that a lot of perfectly good dollars can be scoured up in the rural sections of our land. The theater shows a trend toward stability in smaller towns. Hence stock companies, barn-storming groups and even old-fashioned minstrel shows may flourish. Twins of a June date gain by out-of-town amuse-ment enterprises and theatrical pro-ductions in rural areas.

Some unusual gain awaits those born the very first few days in June, and may come about through the handling of the estate of a minor. Educational interests also are favorably indicated throughout the entire year. Note the first half of 1947 as profitable for executive jobs in managerial occupations and in the pub-lishing field. Your mind shows circum-spection and the necessary calm re-quired when supervising workers.

All May-born Twins should await November and December with glad anticipation. These are splendid months to establish advantageous contacts, both in business or profession or in private life.

1947 offers various good periods for tie-ups, affairs of the heart, courtships, reconciliations and marriages. The best time to pronounce that fated "yes" before an altar should be either in January or March. The latter month is excellent also for happiness at home, in public appearances, important social functions and in artistic pursuits.

May is extremely activated emotionally. Look out for lovers' quarrels. This is not a good month to air your pet peeves, to show resentment without logical explanation, or to display your injured feelings. After the 15th of June, however, you should be emotionally stimulated in a harmonious way, and October and November are sociable months. December brings neutral rays and the holiday period, consequently, is as jolly as you would like to make it.

1947 and CANCER

(Those born June 22nd to July 22nd inclusive)

Those born under the sign of the Summer Solstice find major planets under the earth in 1947. This is an excellent period for action, for digging deep foundations for future harvests and, generally, for cultivating the vineyards of your most cherished ambitions. The support of Jupiter in Scorpio (your friendly sign) should boost favorable influences. A cheerful outlook on your part and generally improved health also should aid in the fulfillment of your long-awaited successes.

The Money House promises gain through associations. Some Moon-ruled ladies may find "escape" from daily grind and detested drudgery in shop or office via the matrimonial route, for some excellent vibrations for marriage will be in force. Note February as a wonderful month for the ringing of cheerful wedding bells, while April should be good for reconciliations, friendships, and affectional unions with—or without—the ring.

Unfortunately, the second half of April and all of May introduce criss-cross rays for over-stimulation of your feelings. Being by nature sensitive—if not hypersensitive—you may indulge in foolish resentments and grouches.

Another favorable period for romancing, social functions and artistic pursuits should be during June and July. The reverse is the case for September. Then, "let joy be unconfined" during the Harvest and Hunter's Moon. The year rings out with pleasant rays from the gracious planet of Love and Beauty.

1947 is definitely a Jupiter-Venus year for children of the Moon. It behooves you to exercise the affections and to be active in the arts and social graces.

Some slight yet rather tricky shadows may fall into your home or family set-up. The undercurrents are very subtle, difficult to define or even to be noticed by outsiders. Only you and those involved may be cognizant of the undertow that causes unpleasantness, if not outright heartache and troubles. Diplomacy and a gracious bearing alone can mitigate such fallacious tricky currents. While all concerned may feel this tension, those born late in June or during the first five days in July must be on their guard against subterfuges at home.

Many Cancer-born parents benefit through their offspring. 1947 may see one of your children, or a youngster in your family set-up, burst into glory or fame, and you may indirectly benefit by any such advancement of a minor. Befriend youngsters and reap gratifying returns from them when they grow up—you may be surprised how a quirk of Fate may drop a few fat melons into your lap in 1947 as a gift from your Mansion of Offspring.

Scientifically-inclined Moon children may find 1947 a year in which your inventive vein runs high. Laboratory work, chemical research, television, and projection of arts through mechanical means (radio, motion pictures, recordings) head the list of benefits for all of you.

A few words of caution: be even more cautious than usual from the middle of August to the end of September when

by Blanche Broderick

“THE Divine Sarah.” “The Immortal Sarah.” Countless times these adjectives have been used to characterize Sarah Bernhardt. But a close friend for many years gives a more reasonable appraisal of the great actress. She writes, “The divine Sarah was divine only in her inspiration—immortal only in her art. The real Sarah whom her intimates knew and adored, was not so much a divinity as an idol, a woman full of vanity and frailty, dominated by ambition.”

Sarah’s mother and father were not married, though Edouard Bernhardt, a young French law student, recognized her formally as his daughter. He provided for her education, and left her a small income at his death. Sarah’s mother, Julie van Hard, was a milliner’s assistant when she met Bernhardt. She was noted for her beauty, and was seeking an easier way to live, in which she became increasingly successful. She liked to travel, so she sent the infant Sarah with a nurse to the country to live. Later the nurse married a concierge in Paris, and unable to find Julie at the time, she took Sarah with her into somewhat sordid surroundings. Julie finally took her daughter home—only to send her away again, first to school and later to a convent until she was fifteen.

The Duke de Morny, step-brother of Napoleon III, was a close friend of Julie’s. Sarah, back from the convent, was unhappy in the home environment, brilliant as it was, with constant entertaining of people of note in the theatre and the arts. Julie had little understanding of Sarah’s nature, and often called her stupid. To relieve the tension, the Duke used his influence with the Conservatoire, and later with the Comédie Francaise, to accept Sarah as a member.

She worked hard, but did not impress the critics as talented, though they agreed that she had a beautiful voice. She was extremely slender, with a disorderly “mop” of vividly red, curly hair. These characteristics frequently were derided in the press. One cartoonist drew a series that became widely known, picturing her as “a little stick with a sponge on top”. But as one critic has said, “Sarah was the first actress to understand the value of publicity.” Instead of being angry at these caricatures, she accentuated the thinness by her dressing, and made her hair appear wilder than ever.

Sarah was unhappy at the Comédie. She resented the criticisms, and felt that she was unfairly treated in the parts given her. The famous Bernhardt temper functioned actively in scenes that shocked the conservative management until finally she tore up her contract.

Later she took part in a private performance at a reception given by the Emperor, where she met the guest of honor, a Belgian Prince. A genuine love affair followed, continuing until he had to leave on a diplomatic mission. Later, shortly after her twentieth birthday, she gave birth to a son, Maurice Bernhardt. She was a devoted mother, lavishing on her son the love she had been denied by her own mother, and for the rest of her life they were constant companions.

The birth of her child became an important turning point in her life. Her sense of responsibility was aroused, and she determined to succeed on the stage quand meme (the motto she had adopted—"in spite of everything"), so that her son should want for nothing. Securing an engagement at the Odéon, she started in earnest on her career, which was to continue for fifty-six years.

The critics, disparaging at first, finally acknowledged her artistry. Her work was uneven, and frequently was ridiculed, but later on her magnetic emotional power held them enthralled. Always a stormy petrel, she constantly clashed with her managers and associates, and after eight years of a second engagement at the Comédie, she broke her twenty-year contract and started on her touring era. Begun as an economic experiment, it developed into a life-long habit, gratifying an insistent urge of her inner nature for constant change.

Wherever she went, in Europe, Russia or America—she made nine tours here—she was acclaimed and worshipped with a devotion no other actress ever had experienced.

Bernhardt's eccentricities led to fantastic legends about her, some based on fact, some entirely imaginary. Some of her antics bordered on the macabre, such as her whim of having a coffin built to her specifications, which she kept at the foot of her bed. She took it with her everywhere, much to the discomfort of hotel employees. She had her photograph taken in it, and served tea in it occasionally to horrify her friends.

Her love affairs were unconventional, but it must be emphasized that they were never sordid. Bernhardt worshipped beauty, and an aura of beauty had to surround her every affair of the heart—until a serious quarrel would eject the victim from her love life. However, she had the ability to make life-long friends of the outmoded lovers.

Bernhardt was married once. When she was thirty-eight, she met Jacques Damara, an attaché of the Greek Legation. He was a handsome man with a magnificent physique. For the first time Sarah's ego was conquered by another. Thinking it would hold him to her, she married him. Within three weeks, she discovered him to be a drug addict, and utterly depraved. He died seven years later after several years in a sanitarium.

Bernhardt had deep sympathy and kindness for the unfortunate. During the Franco-Prussian war, she had the Odéon Theatre turned into a hospital, took an intensive nurse's training, and worked day and night caring for the wounded, sparing herself none of the hardest and most disagreeable tasks. She gave generously of her time and energy to help young actresses over hard spots. Always receptive to anyone in trouble, she was the subject of many touching stories told by those whom she helped. It was always she who kept up the morale of the companies with which she worked, never complaining of the physical disabilities she was forced constantly to endure.

In 1905, through the carelessness of a stage-hand, Bernhardt had a bad fall, injuring her kneecap severely. From that time on, the leg became increasingly affected, causing periods of great pain, but her indomitable will kept her at work. By 1913 she could not walk without help, and stage sets were arranged so that she never had to take more than two steps.

In 1915, when she was seventy, it was necessary to amputate the leg above the knee. She refused to use an artificial leg, and a chair was made with rods attached so that she could be carried. With characteristic determination, within six months, she was at the front entertaining the soldiers.

In March, 1923, she began making a moving picture, with her own house as the studio. However, after a few appearances before the camera she had a severe attack of uremia, and even her great will-power succumbed at last. She went into a coma on March 25th, and died the following evening without regaining consciousness.

But her superb "Theodora," the Queen in Victor Hugo's "Ruy Blas," her matchless "Phedre," and the unforgettable "L'Aiglon" live on in the annals of the great artists of the theatre.

MANY conflicting stories have been told about the place and date of Sarah Bernhardt's birth, but a carefully documented biography written by a member of her family gives a copy of her baptismal certificate with the date—October 23, 1844, Paris. Also Bernhardt herself refers to this day as her birthday in her Memoirs. Another biographer, a close friend for many years, places the hour of her birth at about eight P.M. Her figure, with its extremely slim, long lines, the expressive arms and hands, and her quick manner of action, were convincing signs of a Gemini Ascendant. Rectification agrees with a birth hour of 7:53 P.M. as given above.

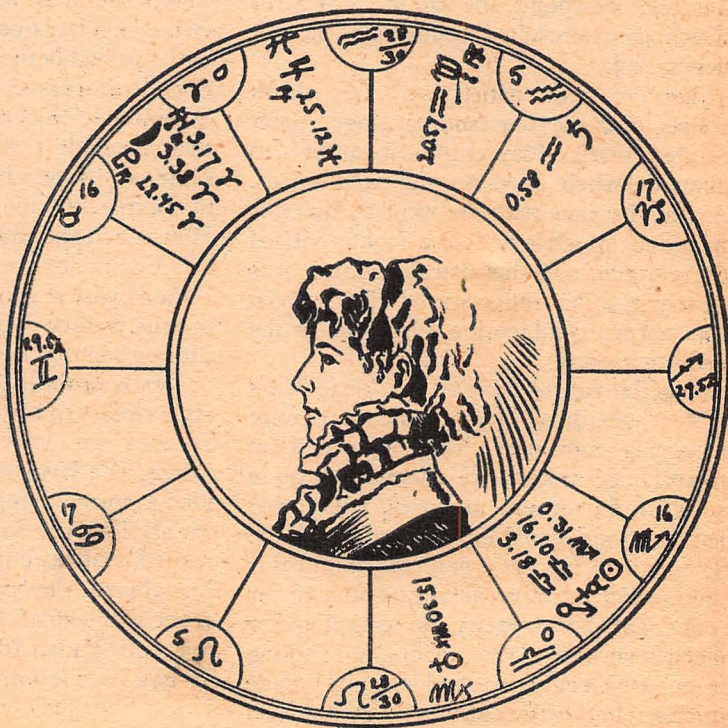

The Chart is a clear-cut portrait of this gay, vibrant, but imperious individual with exhaustless energy. "Little stick with a sponge on top" was an amusingly accurate physical picture, but it was a stick of dynamite, and the sponge was alive with coruscating sparks from myriads of electric ideas.

The Scorpio Sun suggests intensity, power, mastery, as key-words of the inner nature with its inherent drive for the overcoming of obstacles, and the close square from Saturn indicates that there would be plenty of them. The imaginative power of the water signs tends to an inner lack of self-confidence and concern about security. Saturn is well-placed in Aquarius, but its square to the Sun from the Eighth (Scorpio) House is likely to crystallize this self-distrust. Sarah's early years, with no real home life, her changing environment, and physical weaknesses, naturally led to later distortion of her scale of values.

The Moon, the personality, tells a different story. Here are the ultra-dynamics of a high Aries Moon conjunct Uranus which was continually injecting electric sparks into Bernhardt's life pattern from the birth hour to the last. Mme. Berton writes that when Sarah was born, she cried lustily all night long, as not sufficient attention was being paid to her because of the critical condition of her mother.

This conjunction is in close opposition to Mars. Here are the tantrums that even in childhood frightened those about her, seeming more like attacks of madness than mere temper. In her memoirs Bernhardt writes, "I am not placid. I am active, always ready to fight. What I want, I always want immediately. The blood begins to boil in my temples before I have time to control it." A perfect description of Mars opposite Moon and Uranus in Aries.

This Eleventh-Fifth House opposition shows Sarah's determined ambition, her high-strung, willful, even perversely obstinate temperament, but also the brilliance, magnetism and fascination that were hers to a superlative degree. Uranus increased the insistence of the Aries Moon on being "first" to an autocratic assumption that it was her right to be first. She would have had a less turbulent life if this great will-power had been better disciplined. However, she liked a turbulent life, and it was fortunate for her and for the art world that her Scorpio dramatic force could be channeled through the theatre medium.

The exaggerated self-projection, the fantastic antics that brought so much notoriety, would seem to be over-compensation for Bernhardt's deep-seated feeling of insecurity. All through her long career she was subject to stage-fright, and from a critical viewpoint, she had many failures which always resulted in moods of morbid depression.

The supreme artistry of her death scenes was the outstanding single point in her work. Playwrights admitted to planning whole plays around such scenes. A friend writes that she went to funerals whenever possible and occasionally visited the morgue, and this macabre strain was clearly another reflection of the Scorpio Sun-Saturn combination, also seen in the coffin episodes.

But the Saturn trine to the Libra Mars with its sextile to Moon and Uranus were steadying influences. They provided an underlying stratum of common-sense in spite of the erratic impulses, preventing her from going off the deep end entirely. The Saturn-Scorpio organizing ability was seen in her personal arrangements of her tours, and her capacity for carrying her plans to successful conclusions and making them financially profitable. She made millions but was continually in financial trouble. She lived luxuriously and was prodigally generous in impulsive response to appeals to her sympathy. Cancer on the cusp of the second house symbolizes fluctuating conditions over finance, and Uranus with the Moon both gives and takes away.

The chart synthesizes to cardinal-air—Libra, and this sign on the Fifth House indicates that the natural outlet for her creative energies would be through the arts. She could have had a successful career as a sculptor (Mars Libra) or as a painter, the Libra Mercury giving artistic expression through the hands. Her work in both fields was exhibited in the Salons and received much praise from experts. But in their practice, they are essentially lonely arts, and this electric personality required closer personal contacts with an audience to express itself to its best advantage.

Bernhardt's biographers tell us that her love affairs always climaxed in terrific quarrels, and again we see the violent opposition dominating the life pattern. Damala was the only man in her life for whom she was willing to submerge her own ego. They quarreled—of course—but in the period before their marriage, it was Sarah who asked to be forgiven, a new experience for her. It is interesting to see that through this period the transiting Uranus was over her Venus. Neptune was in Taurus in trine, but from the Twelfth House, and the transiting Saturn was with it. Venus responded to the dynamic Uranus with a genuine and unselfish love, but the Saturn-Neptune-Twelfth cloud of illusion blinded her to facts until too late.

Venus in the Fourth shows that the desires closest to her heart were in some way focused on maternal, parental, domestic issues. We have seen that Sarah was denied a normal happy childhood home. She lavished on her son the love she had been denied, and he returned her deep devotion, but always she was seeking some fulfillment that eluded her. Note the quincunx aspect to Venus from Neptune and Pluto. It has been observed by the writer that

Where Is Your Moon?

- IV -

by Irys Vorel

A PLANET travelling along the Ecliptic traverses high-pressure areas magnetized by the collective influence of the constellation it transits. If the planet is harmoniously placed against a group of stars of its own nature, it is said to be in dominion or exaltation. The opposite is the case if the planet and the group of stars exert a hostile influence on each other. Then the "wanderer" is in its debility or fall.

The same principle applies to the luminaries—the Sun and the Moon. Let us illustrate our point with an example. Venus emerges from the constellation of Argos (Leo-Virgo-Libra) and heads for a conjunction with the beautiful Fixed Star of first magnitude, Spica. This star lies very close to the Ecliptic in 22° Libra, and is of a friendly benign nature, in other words, definitely Venusian. The Planet of Beauty and Love therefore comes into its own element when traversing this stretch of the Ecliptic. For this reason Venus is in dominion in Libra.

Now note horoscopes of persons born with this influence, for instance Oscar Wilde. His Sun was in conjunction with Spica. Venus also in Libra, and his Moon in Leo. In his case then, the emphasis of the influence of a fixed star of Venusian nature conjunct natal Sun bestowed his genius along poetic and literary lines.

Right at the beginning of Pisces is another magnificent Fixed Star, Fomalhaut, also called "Royal Star of Persia," and "Watcher in the South." A conjunction of a planet with Fomalhaut grants talent for music, dance and the arts, as is illustrated, for instance, the horoscope of Frederic Chopin.

The Moon, as you now know, rules the personality. It is most fortunately placed against the stars Sirius, Canopus, Castor, Pollux and Procyon. They exert their collective influence on the sign of Cancer in the intellectual Zodiac, and that is why Luna is in dominion of the sign of the Crab. Now when the Moon runs around the Ecliptic and transits a group of stars such as Mira, Almac, Halcyon (Pleiades), it is also harmoniously situated. Luna is happiest when transiting Cancer and Taurus.

But when the Moon reaches the apex of Cancer in the Zodiac, the sign Capricorn, it is most uncomfortably placed. The collective influence of such Fixed Stars as Wega, Aquila and Cygni, possesses Saturnian attributes, cold and measured. Luna, moist and delicate, conflicts in its intrinsic nature with the combined rays of this constellation; hence it is here debilitated. The Fixed Stars Gemma, Unuk and Bungula (Scorpius) also conflict with the lunar warmth and fragility, and so the Moon is in its fall in the constellation composed by them.

We refer here to the "constellations" rather than to the "signs" of the Zodiac, because it is the star groups that actually make up the pattern of the sky. The twelve signs of the Zodiac are but an arbitrary arrangement of the divisions of the Ecliptic belt, which facilitates the computation and calculation of horoscopy.

DO YOU KNOW THE POSITION OF YOUR MOON?

As a special service to our readers, we have prepared reprints of the formula "HOW TO FIND YOUR NATAL MOON" (covering birth years from 1880 to 1949), which appeared in the Spring 1946 issue of CURRENT ASTROLOGY. You may obtain a copy by mailing 10c to cover handling charges to: Service Editor, Current Astrology, 215 Fourth Avenue, New York 3, N. Y.

But when we think of the heaven with all its stars, we must speak of "constellations" and not of the "signs."

Therefore, never neglect to investigate the power of a planet according to its position in the sky, especially when the luminaries are involved. Sol is magnetized by the influences of Praesepes, Acubens, Alphard and Regulus, hence in dominion in Leo. But the stars Deneb, Sirrah and Mirach also intensify the power of the Sun, and that is why Sol has dominion in the stretch of the Ecliptic where these stars lie: Aries. On the other hand, the rays of Venus are in opposition to the fiery attributes of Sol, and so the Sun is in its fall in Libra.

The position of the Moon—whether in dominion, exaltation, debility or fall—is the prime indicator of your personality, and should always be considered along with your Sun-sign.

Moon in Capricorn

The Moon is there in its debility, that is, as far as the ingratiating and affable qualities of the personality are concerned. But here is a proud array of names of illustrious Moon-in-Capricorn personalities, which testifies to the "greatness" this lunar position can produce: George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, and Woodrow Wilson all had their "personality" in this sign. These were noble leadership types, prompted in their decisions by the highest ideals of altruism and patriotism. They were often misunderstood—even by their very closest friends and relatives. Lincoln led a lonely life and the mate of his heart was denied him. All of them met with rebuff and criticism, and enmity followed them into death. But no one could question the nobility of their souls. They served a worthy cause by sacrificing personal happiness. Ambition was at the roots of their aims, but the ultimate accomplishment of their striving was humanitarian.

However, Moon-in-Capricorn can also destroy in its blind lust for power. Adolf Hitler and his right hand, Dr. Goebbels, both had their natal Moons in Capricorn.

Polarity is well expressed by this position, for the natal horoscope of the Reich also had the Moon thus placed. And although this indicated a planetary affinity between the German nation and its late dictators, the ultimate outcome was bound to be one of disaster.

Capricorn is associated with executive leadership, and so naturally many politicians and executives have the Moon in the sign of Saturn. If your natal Moon is in Capricorn, then remember to develop your finer soul's attributes: justice, the ability to apply yourself to a worth-while task, a balanced, measured demeanor, and the tact and diplomacy required when managing others.

Your drawbacks might be arrogance and the display of an air of superiority against which you should guard yourself. Be friendly and kind. Develop tolerance.

If the planet Mercury is also in Capricorn along with the Moon, you may possess talent for writing. J. M. Barrie, the playwright, Samuel Pepys who delighted posterity with his charming diary, and the classical philosopher and poet Horace overcame a Saturnine personality by developing their urge for self-expression. You too may want to shine as the author of a best seller. Why not? The Moon supplies a fertile imagination and Capricorn should give you enough endurance to carry out your plans. The writing of an opus is a painstaking task. Shakespeare was right when he said: "Write till your ink be dry and with your tears moist it again." Did he get rejection slips too? We wonder!

The Moon expresses the color of your aura. This is the astral emanation which streams from yourself in perishable tints visible only to a few. Yet your aura effects every one you contact—unconsciously. It is not very luminous if your natal Moon is in Capricorn. But its effect is soothing and quieting. The color is somber—light brown, russet, with shimmering zones of vivid blue, here and there. Remember these colors are never static. They deepen into shadowy tones, purple, grey, indigo or a mournful saddening brown, when you are angry or allow yourself to become depressed.

Here is a word of warning for all Moon-in-Capricorns: be by yourself when you feel Saturn's cold waves come over you. Your aura, though subdued in color, is nevertheless very powerful. It reaches out for others, and affects them decidedly. When you are feeling "blue" and your aura is dark and somber, you will transmit your mood to others.

However, when you are in a cheerful mood, you are more likely to uplift your fellow beings. So stay alone when you're sad, but mingle with others when you're "in the pink."

Other Moon in Capricorn personalities are: Marshal Foch, Count Zeppelin, Thomas Edison, Charlemagne and Emperor Augustus.

Moon in Aquarius

This is a very enviable position of Luna. Not only are you sparkling, effervescent and contagious with your mental buoyancy, but your mind is pliable and carefree under practically all circumstances. You have few complexes. The inferiority complex "blues" rarely plague you. In cases of emergency you find the way out, and never complain. You lead others from dark alleys of gloom of despondency into rosy vistas of hope and faith. Nay more: you are attuned to invisible realms, and frequently interested in four-dimensional verities. The world isn't just a cage for your existence. It represents the sky with all its stars in it.

Arthur Conan Doyle, author of Raymond, and investigator of spiritualism; Katherine Mansfield, the writer; J. B. Priestley, playwright; and Louisa Alcott had their personality expressing through the sign of Uranus, the emancipator of the planets.

Your scientific tendencies are pronounced if you have your Moon in this enviable position. Linnaeus, botanist; Professor Piccard, stratosphere explorer, and David Rittenhouse, astronomer, all had the Moon in Aquarius at birth. And so had Henry Ford and—from one extreme to the other—violinist Yehudi Menuhin.

You should always bear in mind that the "sky's the limit" for you no matter what you attempt. Aquarius is a mental, versatile sign, and your personality reflects the movable, breezy attributes of air. You can inspire others with your optimism, and lead fellow beings, preferably in fields of science, scholarship, and social work.

Vocationally, there are many possibilities for the Uranian personality. You may want to go in for journalism or play the fiddle or pluck flowers apart to find their fundamental diagrammatic pattern. Or you may be a cynic preaching epigrammatic social axioms like Machiavelli. The scope of your vocational versatility is almost unlimited. But one thing is certain: you must be abreast of your time and just a little bit ahead of your contemporaries. You are original and refuse to go the beaten path of Dame Grundy's restricting conventions.

You have a lovely contagious aura, dear reader. It is a luminous, light blue, aquamarine and radiant in its purity. Something hopeful and friendly emanates from your aura. It smiles like the azure of a cloudless sky. You were meant to bring good cheer to the world in times of gloom. Lonely souls cling to you for comfort and encouragement. So give a helping hand to those in need of your buoyant, radiant and scintillating personality!

Moon in Pisces

This is one of the best antidotes against a gloomy, debilitated Sun. Take for example the horoscope of Benjamin Franklin. He had his natal Sun in Capricorn. But Luna was in conjunction with the opalescent, beautiful Fixed Star Fomalhaut in an early degree of Pisces.

The "apostle of thrift" was beloved by all, high and low, because of his fine understanding of human foibles. The humanitarian traits are indeed outspoken in all Moon-in-Pisces personalities. The Duke of Windsor and his mother, Queen Mary, both have this charming expression of Luna.

(The position on the Moon is calculated for Eastern Standard Time.)

Queen Mary, whenever her philanthropic activities are publicized, is invariably shown visiting slums and administering cheer to the lowly. The poor and downtrodden of London's Whitechapel district find her a repeated visitor in their gloomy, squalid tenements.

Pisces represents the Sea, the Navy. The Moon in Pisces logically bestows love for adventurous voyages. Jacques Cartier, explorer of continents, was a Neptune personality. The colorful Harun al-Rashid, too, had his Moon so placed, as well as the explorer of the heavens, William Herschel, who discovered the planet Uranus.

If your Moon was in Pisces at birth, you are no doubt full of sympathy for sorrow-laden humanity and easily moved by the misfortunes of others. Guard against emotionalism. You are good medium material and apt to be easily influenced by more hardy personalities—sometimes against your better judgment.

You are probably very talented; love of music and beautiful things is ingrained in your planetary make-up. Develop a talent, if you discover one, as this will help you on the road to self-expression. It will do much to assist you in overcoming your sometimes painful timidity.

Your aura is exquisite in its coloring. Lovely delicate tints of orchid blue and rose—like the chalice of a magical flower—shimmer and flimmer constantly in a halo of multiple hues. But it depicts—alas—the restlessness of your emotional fragility. Your one great enemy is fear. You are apt to shrink from the stark reality of the daily grind and the struggle for existence, and long for soothing peace and solitude. You seek escape from the world, from yourself and sometimes from your nearest and dearest kith and kin, in day-dreams, and often in drugs. You must practice self-discipline if you find you are tempted by stimulants or the Demon Alcohol.

Other Moon-in-Pisces personalities are: Rimski-Korsakov, Helen Keller, Dr. Dollfuss. The Austrian and Spanish Republics, too, have Luna in Pisces.

YOUR MENTAL TREND. — 1947

A Study of Your Natal Mercury*

by Sydney Omarr

SPEEDY Mercury, fastest moving planet in our Solar system, is often referred to as the "Planet of the Mind". Even non-astrologers are familiar with this aspect of the planet, as, for instance, the popular national magazine which uses Mercury to symbolize the American mind. Astrologers, of course, are well aware of Mercury's influence on temperament, mental trend and general characteristics, as brought out by its sign and house position in the individual horoscope. It is this fleet planet that rules our thinking and reasoning processes, and that is the cause of difference of opinion. Mercury is the sharp-tongued politician who campaigns for policies which are, to his mind, the best kind of policies for the country to follow. Mercury is also the other politician, the man who sees the opposite side of the question, the man who just as vigorously works for what the other fellow is against. Mercury is the mind in all its phases, including: crackpot, genius, intelligence, ignorance and mediocrity.

One of the best examples of Mercury at work can be illustrated by the human eye. The eye is similar to the lens of a camera. So much so that, if we look through a camera lens, we actually see objects upside down. But there is where Mercury goes to work. Our reasoning powers tell us that the things we see can't possibly be as they appear. And thus, through the power of our mind, we see objects and people right side up. This is a natural mind reflex and requires no apparent effort on our part.

Mercury, like the Sun, expresses itself

through the zodiacal sign characteristics. Neutral in influence, Mercury provides the key to the door of the individual's mind. Physical characteristics and outward appearances can be deceiving, but it is obvious that if we are familiar with the native's Mercury position, we know the real mind makeup of the native.

Because it is the representative of thought, Mercury is of a dual nature and very changeable. The third and sixth zodiacal signs, Gemini and Virgo, come under its rule. And so those born under the signs of Gemini and Virgo particularly reflect the Mercury characteristics. Gemini people are noted for their quickness of movement, their sharp wit and their tendency towards nervousness. Virgo people react to Mercury through their penetrating thought, their ability for analyzing and their generally critical nature. But all the signs of the Zodiac respond in some way to Mercury. And it is this planet—according to the sign position it occupies in your horoscope—that reveals YOUR future mental trend.

Your mind, naturally, is more sensitive than your body, especially in reacting to planetary vibration. Mercury therefore, is particularly receptive to the effect of a transiting planet. Through a study of the transiting planets in relation to your natal Mercury, a definite picture of your mental outlook can be obtained and put to use. With his knowledge you are enabled to steer the wheel along the road of your life pattern. If, for instance, there are squares and oppositions to your Mercury, you can turn into a side road and wait for the unpleasant aspects to pass. Or, if you are still determined, you can drive ahead, prepared to face obstacles and overcome them. However, you won't be driving blindly, but you will be keeping a sharp lookout for detours, bumps and ditches.

On the other hand, if there are transiting trines and sextiles to your Mercury, you need not be weighed down with false worry and frustration. You can drive with a sure mental hand, and go straight ahead to success and satisfaction.

If, at the time of your birth, Mercury was in the sign of ARIES, you will experience your most intense mental activity from April 12th to May 20th. At that period transiting Mars conjuncts your natal Mercury. Therefore, you must be cautious and avoid making careless or reckless decisions. Think things out, don't become irritated if everything doesn't go your way immediately. In October Jupiter leaves Scorpio and trines your Mercury. Combined with the Saturn trine, this factor insures steady thinking and well-balanced plans. Other important aspects to your Mercury all through 1947 are the Neptune opposition and the Uranus sextile, warning against self-deception and calling for initiative, respectively. You know yourself and your capabilities. It would be foolhardy to try something obviously over your head, but it would be just as foolish to lie back while opportunities pass you by. By sensibly applying yourself to the task at hand, you will be making the best use of your Mercury influence for the year.

If your natal Mercury is in TAURUS, the square from transiting Saturn is apt to block your view. You must not permit yourself to see only half the situation, but gain a picture of the situation as a whole. Only in this way will your mental trend for 1947 be constructive and beneficial. Jupiter, in opposition to your Mercury for the first ten months of the year, may cause you to be skeptical and to distrust ideas and people. You can, however, use the opposition aspect in a positive instead of negative manner. You can do this by converting skepticism into keen observation, foresight and practicality. Beware of snap judgments between May 21st and June 30th, the period when Mars transits the sign occupied by Mercury at your birth.

Those who were born with Mercury in GEMINI will still be under the long-range influence of the Neptune trine and the Uranus conjunction. Naturally quick to think and act, Mercury-in-Gemini people may have found that lately their impulses have been paying off. If you come under this category, the year 1947 promises an active, healthy outlook—especially from January 25th to March 5th, when you should benefit from a Mars-Mercury trine. Jupiter, after leaving Scorpio in October will also be in trine aspect to your Mercury, and make your state of mind cheerful and expansive. In addition, Saturn, sextile to your Mercury, will strengthen your judgment.

If you were born when Mercury was in the sign of CANCER, you will find that in 1947 much of your mental anguish will be gone. Saturn has left your Mercury, and Jupiter applies a trine to it until October 23rd. Neptune in Libra, squared to your mental planet, has probably taught you not to have stock in trick schemes or ideas without solid foundations. From the 13th of August until September 30th Mars will be in the same sign as your planet of the mind, indicating increased mental action and a bag full of novel ideas. It will be your job to discriminate and put to use only the best of them.

You may have to plow through red tape and mental detail before coming upon usable ideas and a proper outlook if you were born when Mercury was in LEO. With Saturn now passing over your mind planet, it is only natural to expect mental fatigue prior to seeing the light, so to speak, in 1947. Because Jupiter squares your natal Mercury, there is likely to be quite a lot of discouragement in store for you, especially during the Mars opposition between January 25th and March 4th. Being the type of person who wants results quickly, you will have to bear this period and grin. After the Mars opposition passes, you will begin to come into your own and feel the beneficial influences of the Neptune sextile, the Uranus sextile and, in October, the Jupiter trine.

Between March 5th and April 11th, when Mars is in Pisces, those born with Mercury in VIRGO will be introduced to new ideas and to a new thought trend. If you fall in this group, you will probably be doing and thinking a lot of things that you perhaps never comprehended before. In 1947, with Jupiter at a sextile aspect to your Mercury for almost ten months, and with the Uranus square, new principles of thought should become the order of the day. If you are planning to embrace a new philosophy, or to study something you have never undertaken before, the last week of May and the entire month of June would be an excellent time to get down to work, for Mars then forms a trine with your Mercury.

A very good mental year is indicated for you if you were born when Mercury was in the zodiacal sign of LIBRA. Saturn will be in sextile aspect, Uranus in a trine, and after October, Jupiter will be sextile, too. Neptune in conjunction, and Mars trined to your Mercury from January 25th to March 4th, gives promise of a year which should be ideal for you. You will be able to reason things out and get results. Conditions should settle down for you. Once again you will be able to add two and two and come up with four—something you haven't been able to do for some time. One of the best periods of the year for you will be between July 1st and August 12th when Mars, in Gemini, trines your Mercury for the second time in 1947.

Saturn will be squared your natal Mercury if you were born when that planet of the mind was in the sign of SCORPIO. Be prepared, in 1947, to face problems and solve them. Don't run away or put things off. Recognize that ticklish situations must be met head on and resolve to settle affairs that have required straightening out for a long time. In this way you will be making constructive use of a square aspect. Jupiter, in conjunction with your Mercury until October 23rd, will help you in this and will enable you to come through with the right idea at the right time. From May 21st to June 30th Mars will be in Taurus, in opposition to your Mercury, which is the period for buckling down to conquer mental disturbances.

If you have Mercury in SAGITTARIUS, you are naturally frank in your outlook and dislike deception of any sort—especially self-deception. You find it difficult to be happy when, in your mind, you know you have been fooling yourself. With Uranus in opposition to your natal Mercury, you have been able to discover this as your outstanding trait. In 1947, Saturn is trine this mind-ruling planet, and in October, Jupiter comes into conjunction with it, while Mars will also be in trine aspect. Therefore get your viewpoints settled so that during the latter part of the year you can apply your ideas successfully and profitably.

Until October 23rd transiting Jupiter will be in sextile aspect to your natal Mercury if you were born with the mind symbol in CAPRICORN. Thus, in 1947, you will see your way clear to think and act without burdening yourself with detail. Naturally cautious, you often need a push or stimulant to get started. Mars, trine your Mercury from May 21st to June 30th, should provide that push and allow you to unloose yourself and thus put your ideas to work. 1947 brings the opportunity to follow through with action. Don't waste that opportunity. Your thinking will be without value if you fail to act.

Saturn, during 1947, is in opposition to Mercury in AQUARIUS. With the Uranus and Neptune trine to the planet of the mind, the Saturn roadblock shouldn't be difficult to overcome. Between October 1st and November 30th transiting Mars joins Saturn in opposing your Mercury, and so during that period you are apt to experience a mental whirlpool. Keep your thoughts organized and your action will be effective. Avoid throwing caution to the wind. Instead, hold back until you are sure of what is actually happening. The best time for you to act is between July 1st and August 13th, when Mars moves through Gemini, in trine aspect to your Mercury.

CRIME DETECTION Via the Stars

by Marion Drew

THE mystery story—popularly called the “whodunit”—is reaching the top as the form of fiction most in vogue today. Anybody who reads a love story is pretty sure as to its ending, but in the mystery, the solution is the great question. Things are not always what they seem; a hidden factor, an unsuspected enemy or some embittered relative may be present. All the elements of life are paraded before us, and so we can always find a detail here or there to hold our attention.

This is exactly the case with the horoscope. We have fathers, mothers, brothers and sisters, lovers and children. We have wealth, position, foreign journeys or secrets to be discovered. Perhaps we ought to say that in the horoscope lies every crisis which makes the mystery story popular. Both horoscopes and mystery stories reflect unusual conditions in the everyday life, and it would not be surprising to find that the horoscope can show the method by which we can untangle the snarls of existence—and of the mystery story, too.

My first experience with the solution of a crime by means of the horoscope came a number of years ago. A little boy was kidnapped on his way home from school and disappeared—his body was found a few hours later. His parents were people of sufficient influence in their community to bring every possible arm of the law into action to find the monster who had abducted and slain the child. But the crime was never solved. No one knows the motive for the killing of this little boy, nor who, in the space of a few hours, enticed him from home, murdered him and then cast his body into the waters. I still feel that the police could have gained hints from the horoscope at that time, and I am willing to go on record today by saying that any supposedly “perfect crime” can be traced back to its beginnings by a careful reading of its horoscope.

The method to be used does not depend entirely upon the natal chart of the person that was killed, or that was otherwise involved in any great catastrophe or felony. Likewise, the horary method is not exactly the one needed by the astrological criminologists. It is often impossible to determine just when or where a crime took place, this being particularly true of murders or thefts which have been concealed by a later crime, such as burning down the house or hiding the victim's body or the loot, as the case may be.

It is necessary, in astrological work, to begin with an exact time. If we are going to read the birth chart of an individual, we must start at his moment of contact with this world. A crime is best analyzed when we set the horoscope for the moment of its discovery, because this is the time when there is a great question asked by everyone as to who could have been responsible. The emphasis upon that question responds to some as yet unknown factor in our lives which brings about events at the times most suited to them—no one knows why. While it is ordinarily true that most crimes are discovered very shortly after they have been committed there are nevertheless many examples of wrong-doing where this rule does not hold true.

The Lindbergh kidnapping case was an example of a crime which was discovered some time after it had been committed. No one knew the exact hour of the abduction of the child, although the hour of the nursemaid's discovery of its absence was well established. In this particular case, the birth data of the parents, the baby and later of the murderer, were all well known. They all harmonized for such an event, and they all fitted the descriptions of the people involved in the crime chart itself. Since the Lindbergh case has been widely discussed from an astrological point of view, I won't elaborate on it any further here, but will take instead another famous event in American criminal history and show from this almost forgotten deed how it is possible to reconstruct the motives and lives of those concerned.

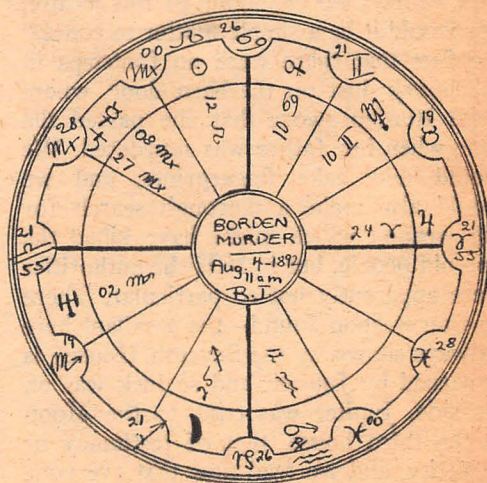

Let us take, for example, one of the most famous murder cases which ever took place in the United States, the Borden murder. A respectable elderly gentleman was killed in his own home under circumstances which have never been fully agreed upon. No one has ever suggested that that gentleman, Mr. Borden, was connected with criminal activity at any time; his life was well known to the people of Fall River, and his family and friends seemed above reproach. Mr. Borden was a man of wealth and position, his estate amounting to several hundred thousand dollars. No one benefited through the loss of his position at the bank where he was an official, and no one had ever expressed any ill-feeling toward him. This then was the ideal setting for a mystery—a quiet, peaceful life filled with worldly success, cut off by a sudden and inexplicable violence.

The exact data of the finding of Mr. Borden's brutally beaten body is known without doubt. He entered his home shortly before eleven in the morning of August 4, 1892, and fifteen minutes later his daughter, Lizzie, ran out crying that her father was dead. Later investigation in the house showed that Mr. Borden's second wife, Lizzie's and her absent sister's stepmother, was also lying battered and lifeless in an upstairs room, having died some two hours before her husband. Both bodies were found within ten minutes of each other; the times of the murder, or rather its discovery, do not vary widely. It is usually given as 11:00 a.m. sharp, but could be shifted to 11:10 a.m. This slight change would make no difference in the horoscope.

In looking over the chart for the crime, the First House shows the condition of the occurrence, whether it was violent or not, and whether committed by strangers or in a distant place. In the horoscope for the Borden murder, the sign Libra was rising—gentle Libra! But Libra is ruled by the planet Venus, as is the sign Taurus, and the sign Taurus is on the Eighth House, that of death, in this figure. Consequently, the occurrence and death are under the same significator. This may seem obvious just now, but in some instances, it is not quite so clear.

The gentleness of Libra is interrupted in this horoscope by the presence of the unpredictable planet Uranus in the First House—consequently the murder took place under unforeseen or exceptional circumstances, and could not be described by the usual rules for the solving of crimes. Uranus was in bad relationship to the planet Mars, and it has been my experience that this unfavorable tie-up between Mars and Uranus is always the indication of violence in either a life or an event. Whenever it is seen, the cause of the turmoil should be determined at once, so that the reaction should not be too disturbing.

In this case, Uranus is tied to the planets Mars, Venus, Mercury and the Sun, Mars being in the Fourth House, that of the home, real estate and the father. Mars has also a strong tie to the planet Neptune, which is placed in the Eighth House (death), and Neptune already shows misrepresentation or misunderstanding of conditions. I consider any aspect between Mars and Neptune the most difficult to overcome in a natal horoscope; in a criminal horoscope it always gives an unsolved mystery. The Fourth House in this type of figure is the end of the matter, and so we see, in the Borden horoscope, that the end of the catastrophe was shrouded in doubt, with a possibility also of false testimony because of the square of Mercury to the planet Neptune.

It is well known that the Borden case was unusual in that major witnesses were not called upon to testify. For example, the druggist from whom Miss Lizzie Borden tried to purchase poison, was not allowed to place his testimony before the jury. Miss Borden's friend who advised her against burning the dress worn upon the day of the crime was another witness who was passed by. Fifty-four years have passed since this crime was committed, and our criminal procedure has changed in many ways. Today, it would not be possible to hush up testimony of this nature, nor would it be a simple matter to conceal the fact that there were no footsteps in the heavy dust on the barn floor, where Miss Borden swore that she passed the time when her father was murdered. We would now take fingerprints, and we would also make a thorough search for the weapon which might have killed the two old people, but in 1892 the authorities were apparently not so particular. There was no weapon found—the assailant here (always shown by the Seventh House) is governed by Jupiter, and so luck was on his side. Jupiter was trine to the Moon in the third house, that of testimony or publicity, and we read now that everyone connected with the prosecution of this case was deluged with threats if anything was said or done to harm the reputation of Miss Borden.

And yet, it is quite evident that this is a figure in which parents and home are essentially concerned, since the Tenth and the Fourth Houses are those of the forbears and the dwelling place. The Sun in the Tenth is directly opposed by Mars in the Fourth, so that the nature of this horror of a generation ago was never a subject for debate. The cause of the murder was undoubtedly financial—Mars rules the Second House. Mars also rules the Seventh House, which is that of the assailant, and Jupiter, the financial planet, adds to this testimony.

In horary astrology, the Moon in relation to Jupiter usually shows changes, and here we find the Moon in the Third House, that of sisters or brothers, trine to Jupiter, but approaching a square to Saturn, which is placed directly on the cusp of the Twelfth House. At the time of the trial of Miss Borden, her elder sister stood by her nobly, but shortly afterward left her and moved to a distant city for some reason which was never disclosed. It seems to me that the placing of the Moon trine to Jupiter and then square to the Twelfth House Saturn is a thousand times better than any verbal explanation which has ever been given to this series of events.

There is no printed description of any method of determining crimes by astrology; one has to formulate one's own rules, basing them upon the cases which may be studied. I am not yet sure what house or what planet shows the instrument of murder, but the motive is usually indicated fairly clearly. Mars and Uranus are not hazy or uncertain forces; they are definite, willful and violent. The instrument in the murders of Mr. and Mrs. Borden must have been a Mars-Uranus weapon, and could not possibly have come under the description of weapons in some other instances, where poison or suffocation was the means of death. These would be Neptunian—but here Neptune was in

Cusp Birthdays

- IV -

by Charlotte R. Timmons

THE cusp birthday presents two Sun-signs for analysis. It is generally thought by students of the occult that possessors of cusp birthdays are advanced souls, capable of spiritual endurance and fortitude. Quite often we find them ready for sacrifices and service to humanity either in a great or small way. To illustrate this point, charts of celebrities have been selected in this article. But the native of a cusp birthday, whether famous or of the great unknown public, always seems to have an extra job to do, as though he felt he had to do someone else's work in addition to his own here on earth. And so very often these "cusps" are actually capable of either crowding the activities of two lives into one, or of doing two seemingly "opposite" things equally well. Whether or not they succeed in life, the dual force is always there, spurring and driving them on and making them busy and restless. If they fail it is because by indiscriminately trying to go after several things at one time, they scatter their energy and concentration.

Sagittarius-Capricorn

THE native of the Sagittarius-Capricorn birthday, born between December 18th and December 27th, combines the qualities of the good sportsman and out-of-door enthusiast with those of the practical, cautious and somewhat aloof Capricornian. Sagittarius wants to be with people, while Capricorn, the politician, wants to help them through law-making and rulership. Sagittarius is very generous; Capricorn can be penurious at times. Naturally, the native of such a birthday would express the characteristics of both signs. He would be generous today and quite the reverse tomorrow. His motives would be altruistic with a genuine desire to be of service and showing little self-thought (Sagittarius), but, on the other hand, the Capricorn influence would raise its head in a desire to be elected to some office or to be at the head of a corporation. Once in that position, he would have no trouble holding his friends through his warm Sagittarius personality, yet his Capricorn executive talent will stand him in good stead in commanding authority and inspiring respect. Generally speaking then, the Sagittarius-Capricorn birthday makes for a success-bound combination. He may, of course, lack the coordination, concentration and self-discipline so essential to the assimilating and blending of the dual influences, and, like many a cuspal, be helplessly torn between the two forces all his life. He may never be able to make up his mind whether he wants to devote himself to the world of sports or religion, or the world of politics or business, and in his battle with indecision, end up in a vacuum between the two. But in a strong chart and character, Capricorn with his unflinching endurance will lead the jovial Sagittarian on to the top.

LOUIS PASTEUR is a good example of the highest type of Sagittarius-Capricorn cusp birthday. He was an idealist, as his rising sign, Libra, trine the Moon (the public) shows. His earlier work was done on farm animals on which he experimented, and he was of inestimable help to the farmer before he made the discovery that was to save untold human lives. Capricorn rules farm lands and Sagittarius rules large animals. Pasteur's natal chart has six planets in Capricorn

—the Sun, Mercury, Neptune, Venus, Mars and Uranus. The first four of these planets are less than five degrees in Capricorn—all cuspal and therefore still retaining some of the Sagittarius influence. The life and work of Louis Pasteur are too well known for any embellishment here. It was the Sagittarius in him that succeeded in proving to a skeptical world the findings of his Capricornian perseverance: the miracle of "pasteurization." It was, in turn, his persistence in the face of ridicule that enabled him to realize his humanitarian dream. Like the mountain goat, Capricorn's symbol, a person born under this sign's sway will climb the mountain untiringly, go down again and climb another, but will reach the top in the end. That is what Pasteur did and the gain was not only his alone but all posterity's.

Capricorn-Aquarius

NO LESS interesting but quite different is the Capricorn-Aquarius combination. The person born on that cusp—between January 17th and 26th specifically—has a definite dash of originality and an unpredictable quality that is often charming but not always understood. Whereas a Sagittarius-Capricorn desires to help the individual, the Capricorn-Aquarius would want to help a cause. The Capricorn cautiousness would hold in leash the Aquarian impulsiveness, and while Capricorn might occasionally yield the right of way, Aquarius will be firm. Right or wrong, the Aquarius is fixed in his ideas and rarely sees the other person's point of view. The Capricorn-Aquarian then wants to lead with his own new ideas, and although he may reserve himself up to a certain point (Capricorn), there is no telling when the Aquarian impulsiveness and desire to win an argument will come forward. Unpredictable and interesting are indeed the keywords for this complex blend.

The chart of LLOYD GEORGE is a fine illustration of a Capricorn-Aquarius combination. Not only was his Sun in 26 degrees of Capricorn on the cusp of Aquarius, but Venus and Mercury as well as the Ascendant were ruled by Aquarius also. He was noted for his brilliancy in debate, as well as for his unyieldingness. He always believed himself to be right and said so. The Moon, ruling the public, is in Sagittarius in his chart, in the Tenth, the House of honor and achievement—the stellar proof of his great popularity. The water-bearer, symbol of Aquarius, helped him keep his balance in this respect: even after his retirement from public life, he never disappeared into public oblivion. Aquarius has a way of popping into notice now and again either through a witty remark, an original opinion or a desire to be of service.

Aquarius-Pisces

PEOPLE born between February 14th and February 24th are Aquarius-Pisces cuspals. Here the love of humanity of Aquarius and the spiritual sensitivity of Pisces combine into a delicate, idealistic blend. The positivity of Aquarius will be tempered by the passivity of Pisces. It must be remembered that Pisces with its symbol of two fishes—one drifting peacefully downstream, the other battling the current upstream, is a complex sign in itself. It likes to be of service on one hand, but is prone to sit back and dream on the other. The influence of Aquarius, fixed, determined and often stubborn will, braving the current, take the struggling fish to the source of the stream, his goal.

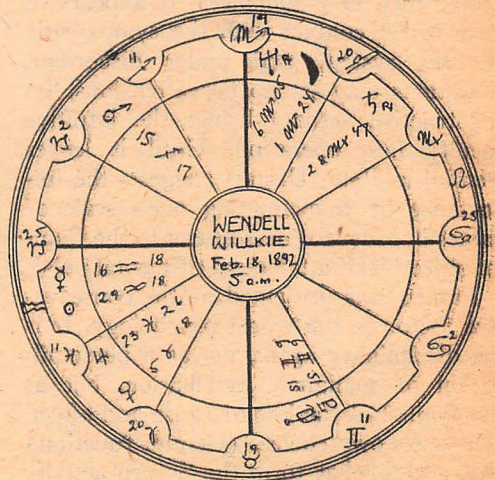

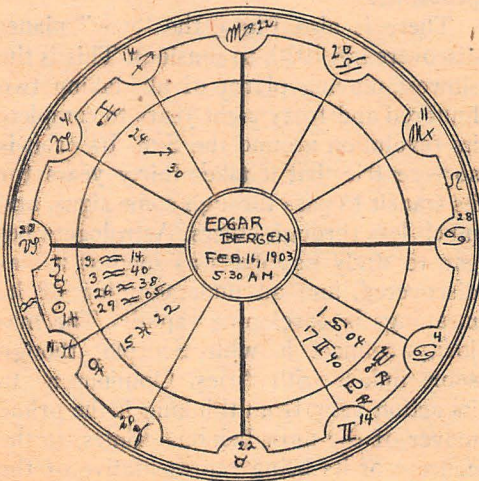

GEORGE WASHINGTON was born on this cusp, on February 22nd. Though his Sun was in 3 degrees of Pisces, the Aquarian characteristics in his nature were strong. He sponsored what seemed to be a lost cause. He was a religious man (Pisces), yet his determination and courage (Aquarius) never gave an inch. He did not give his adversaries the chance to prove him wrong. With Piscean intuition he knew he was right and proved it himself.

Another interesting illustration of an Aquarius-Pisces nativity is the chart of EDGAR BERGEN. Like all Aquarians, he is original, spontaneous, unpredictable and witty. Mercury, the planet ruling speech, is placed in the department of personality, the First House. Mercury rules also ventriloquism, and its location in the unpredictable Aquarius explains why he could do unprecedented work with his art. Although his Sun is still in Aquarius, in 26 degrees, and the Neptunian streak is pronounced in Edgar Bergen's personality, and his great artistry points to Pisces. As the astrological sign for the movies, it is, in addition, one of the mediums for the projection of his art. All through the fun, the satire and the wit of the Charlie McCarthy program, there is an undercurrent of moral spiritual uplift for young and old—and this, too, is Pisces speaking.

We'd hardly do the discussion of interesting Aquarius-Pisces personalities justice without mentioning the late WENDELL WILLKIE. The Sun in his chart is in the last degree of Aquarius, but the Pisces coloring of his character is undeniable. The altruistic idealism that was his is a typical Aquarius-Pisces blend. His sudden rise out of comparative obscurity, the originality of his campaigning and the determination—even after his defeat—to fight for "One World" are innately Aquarian. The humility with which he accepted defeat and the spirit in which he lent himself to the task of helping his country in a time of need were truly Piscean.

The Symphonic Message

by Blanche Broderick

IN PREVIOUS articles of this series, we have discussed the meanings of the major planets as they circle around the Sun in varying orbits. Neptune was shown as a distant, ponderous planet, forming a background of continuous contact, subtle but effective, with the inner levels of consciousness. Transiting through Libra for fourteen years, its message for us at present is mostly concerned with what Libra signifies to us, collectively and individually. Neptune brings its emotional force, its idealism and its faith as a stimulus to the Libra qualities of balance, poise, beauty and harmonious cooperation. But equally important is resistance to the illusory, self-indulgent side of Neptune, leading in Libra to separations, with possible disastrous experiences in all relationships.

Uranus, taking seven years for its transit through a sign, came next with dynamic action the reverse of subtle. It usually manifests itself in sudden changes—new ideas, new likes or dislikes, new people met, new romances. It appears to have direct contact with the sympathetic nervous system, and under discordant conditions may set up nerve tensions. Its constructive activity brings the intuitive faculty into operation. Until it leaves Gemini in 1949, Uranus suggests the importance of re-examining one's scale of values in order to come nearer to the Gemini objective of attainment of mental poise.

Saturn was presented as the conservative factor in the world psychology. It is the disciplinary agent, not as a personification of malignant retribution, but as the symbol of the law of cause and effect. It is one's own choices (Gemini function) that decide what form the Saturn activity must follow. Its two and one-half year stay in Leo is a more favorable time than will come again for thirty years for crystallizing the highest creative desires within the inner self.

Jupiter, representative of the principle of expansion in contrast to the contractive principle of Saturn, has been called for centuries the "greater benefic" because through its activity new vistas of opportunity are opened. And again, not because it is the personification of a beneficent bringer of free gifts, but because the response of one's nature to its vibratory touch—when harmoniously mapped—is in terms of outgoing feeling for others, of the giving of one's self. When this is a spontaneous outpouring in a spirit of joy (a Jupiter characteristic), it draws its inevitable reflection in the reactive impulses of others. These are manifest in opportunities offered, helpful contacts made and a wider understanding of conditions, and they stimulate the more optimistic tendencies that help to solve many problems.

There is also Pluto, the "new" planet discovered in 1930, to consider. This is the slowest moving planet of all, taking two hundred and forty-eight years to complete its revolution around the Sun. Its orbit is so eccentric that it takes thirty years for its transit to pass through some signs, and much less through others. Astrologers began to study its effects as soon as it was discovered, and an understanding of its meanings is developing rapidly. The majority connect it with Scorpio, though some link it with Aries. Opinions as to its action vary from thinking it the prime mover of the most heinous crimes, to the concept of its being representative of the highest spirituality. Both may well be true. Polarity is always a factor in planetary force. Force in itself cannot be harmful or helpful. Pluto definitely has the characteristic of intensity, so at whatever point its effect appears, it tends to extremes. The higher the constructive aspects of philosophy it would reach, the deeper could be its immersion in influence for evil.

It is more difficult to feel the specific action of this planet than its general pressure toward some course indicated by other planets, or the intensifying of whatever it is in contact with by sign, house or aspect. It is plainly connected with mass action, from small social groups up to great masses, as we have seen in the world wars. Its very slow movement suggests that its field is largely in the lower levels of consciousness, and probably holds the memories which form the roots of our instincts.

The major planets—the slow-moving bodies—have been discussed separately as to the principles they represent and the functions of the signs in which they are currently focused. Now it is necessary to study our individual universe, our solar system, as a whole. It is the counter-point, the inter-weaving of the various stimuli that creates the “music of the spheres,” the Celestial Symphony. It is the balance achieved between the different impulses and pressures activated that shows whether our “arrangement” shall produce chords of harmony or dissonance in our lives.

We know that the Sun is the giver of Life. It holds all influences, all elements and all potencies within itself, but all are undifferentiated. The angle in which we view it from the earth separates it into its component parts as it appears to pass through the signs of the Zodiac. As physical light is split into the rainbow colors when passed through a prism, so is the intangible light of the spirit separated into its twelve functional powers as the Sun appears to pass through the twelve signs, and we have what we call the Aries Sun, the Taurus Sun, and so on.

The Sun is life itself. It is the root of the urge to create that is at the heart of each person. It is the atom of divinity within us that seeks self-expression as a means to self-realization. Here is the connection between the Sun and the sign Leo, the sign of creative energy, the will-to-do. So we may think of the Sun as the theme, the motif, of the heavenly symphony. And the birth Sun sign gives the “key” in which the individual may compose his own symphonic pattern.

Down through the ages the Moon has been glorified in song and story, and on all levels, from the “Moonlight Sonata” to the one that shines on the banks of the Wabash. Love and lunacy seem to be the two subjects most often connected with it—it is to be hoped that there is no inevitable relationship between the two. The Moon represents the feminine principle in nature, operating basically through the emotions. The personality as a whole is composed of this emotional base plus the psychological principles represented by the planets. The emotional field includes both the conscious and sub-conscious levels. Memory lies in the sub-conscious and so is linked with the Moon. Here also is the seat of the imaging power which responds to the creative impulses generated by the Sun. The scientifically minded often hold the emotions in some contempt, thinking the intellectual outlook superior. But nothing can be created without desire, without the imaginative power to conceive the idea of the thing to be produced. The mind then provides the technique for bringing it into form. Each side of the nature depends upon the other.

Unless some measure of mental control has been attained, action is most often emotionally based. The increasing realization that emotional disturbance is reflected in physical conditions, causing diseases formerly considered entirely physical, even susceptibility to accidents, is registered in the fast-growing practice of psycho-somatic diagnosis and treatment, a great advance in medical understanding.

We can “hear” the personality of the composer, the painter or the poet, in the inspired expressions of their arts. Some are rapt in ecstasy with pure spiritual concepts (Bach), some gay and lively with the joy of life (Debussy), some imbued with the inexpressible grandeur of nature (Beethoven) and some with tortured souls despairing of reaching the perfection they conceive and ever seeking atonement through some awful sacrifice (Wagner). Surely we may consider the Moon as the soul of the symphony.

Mercury, known in mythology as the "Messenger of the Gods," and Venus, the beautiful Aphrodite as the "Goddess of Love," are interior planets. That is, their orbits lie between earth and the Sun. Also, they represent the interior principles of man. The psychologists have always classified man as composed of thought, feeling and action. This is of interest to the astrologer, as it corresponds to the cardinal, fixed and mutable qualities of astrology.

Mercury is the mental principle, the mechanism of thought, and basically corresponds to the mutable signs. It is what the "I," the inner individual behind the facade of the personality, thinks with. The capacity for thought depends on the caliber of the ego within.

Venus is the principle of feeling, love and harmony. This feeling is distinct from emotion. Sensate feeling does not become emotion until intensified by the Mars energy from without. The Venus force in itself is that "love that makes the world go round," or the law of creation, as so many of the philosophers have realized. It is the essence of the Golden Rule, and its violation results in the chaos that surrounds us today.

These two planets, Mercury and Venus, work in man as the interior foundation of thought and feeling which condition his action. This brings us to Mars, the first planet with an orbit outside that of Earth. Mars is energy, the activating force of the universe. Thought and feeling do not act of themselves. Energy must be generated to produce outer expression. The Sun is the source of energy, but Mars is the distributor as one facet of the Sun, the principle of energy. It is constantly acting on the mind and feelings, either bringing out from one the outer expression of what has been generated within, or bringing to one the experiences which the magnetic organism attracts.

If the major planets in their slow revolution around the Sun are visualized as a cycloramic backdrop, we can see that as the faster moving bodies pass across the screen they come into contact with the slower ones. They stir into activity the reactions and the affairs denoted by the background positions. The picture is alike for all, but the effects are infinitely varied in detail according to the charted rhythm of the individual. But whatever the tempo, it is always the Sun that one studies for the direction in which to seek self-fulfillment. Dr. George Crile in his book The Phenomena of Life presents evidence of his claim that each cell of the human body is a miniature solar system.

With the Sun as the theme and the Moon as the soul of our symphony, perhaps we may "hear" Mercury as the wind instruments, Venus as the strings, Mars as the clarion trumpet call, Jupiter as the French horns and the deeper uplifting notes of the bass viol. Saturn as the drums with their underlying rhythm, Uranus as the counterpoint, Neptune as the overtones, and Pluto perhaps as the mysterious composition as a whole.

The elements of this cosmic symphony are always the same—the age-old contest between good and evil, knowledge and ignorance, love and hate. It is for each one to decide whether his own arrangement shall present harmonious or discordant music.

It is interesting to listen to a symphony from the viewpoint of this analogy. If we focus our attention on the winds and strings (Mercury-Venus, the mind and heart), we can hear the call to courage and action from the trumpets (Mars), followed by the sustaining promise of the French horns (Jupiter) and underlaid with the steady beat of the bass viol and the drums (Jupiter-Saturn), reassuring us of the steadfast purpose underneath as a solid cosmic rock to which we can cling with confidence.

A Comparison Study of a War Marriage

by Pauline Messina

“WHAT do you see in the future for me?” she wrote. “Will I remarry? I just met an extraordinary new fellow. Do you think we’ll get serious?”

Such letters, as this one of Lila’s, are common. Here is a young girl, just past twenty-one, who married Dick who was three years older, at eighteen, had a child at nineteen, and was divorced at twenty. It was one of the many youthful war marriages where excitement, glamour and the pressure of the times quickly brought to a climax in marriage, what in ordinary times might have been at most a romantic interlude, if not just a passing flirtation. As in countless other marriages of this type, it failed; basic incompatibility was not so much the reason as complete lack of preparedness for marriage or for any joint endeavor. For all the compatibility possible will not bring about a lasting union if nothing is brought to the union to make the compatibility a living thing. Broadly speaking, compatibility is but a potential, and only time can prove the strength of that potential. As with Lila, youth, inexperience and lack of willingness or understanding of what makes marriage stable, didn’t allow time to put down roots—the roots of the cooperative give-and-take that is essential to all lasting unions. Further, and as commentary upon the whole situation, Lila asks not how she can prepare for a better marriage through understanding the causes of her first failure, but only about marrying again, and the sooner the better.

What is Lila’s marriage potential? First of all, marriage is a necessity in her emotional pattern. This is clearly indicated by the applications of the Sun, her marriage indicator (Moon in a male chart). The Sun applies, by conjunction, to the Moon, thereafter by conjunction to Venus, then by sextile to Neptune, and last by square to Uranus. Hence, her Sun makes four marriage applications before leaving Gemini, a double-bodied sign associated with multiple marriages. Each Sun application traditionally denotes a different type of attachment which may or may not be legal marriage. Does this mean that she would marry four times? Not necessarily, for the four applications might take place in one lasting union. In this case, since she is already divorced and eager to remarry, it seems that the evidence of many applications is obvious. This is particularly so if we consider the Sun’s application to Moon and Venus since they are all in Gemini (in the Seventh), one of the bicorporal signs. Again, Mercury disposes of the Gemini planets, from the Sixth House of work and adjustment, closely opposite Saturn in the Twelfth. This opposition describes the marriage as upset possibly through bickering, malicious gossip and inability or unwillingness of either partner to make necessary adjustments, particularly over money. Venus in the Seventh, ruler of the Seventh, usually denotes affection. But Venus here, conjunct the Moon, in the airy Gemini, attests to many fluctuations in circumstances surrounding the marital setup.

The testimony of astrology is the more true as each factor concerned corroborates other factors. Note that Mercury, Lila's Sun-sign ruler, disposes of Venus, her Seventh ruler, from the Sixth. The Sixth House is not the show place of the horoscope, but the House of work—services given under the stress of necessity. This testimony suggests that Lila would be inclined to marry a person met either through her work, in a capacity not unlike her own, or perhaps one of humble position. Her partner's money is shown by her Eighth, which is the partner's Second, ruled by Mercury in her Sixth and his twelfth. This further emphasizes the non-spectacular or routine nature of the partner's work. Those facts, taken with the testimony of Mercury opposite Saturn, Lila's money ruler, is not promising for financial opulence through the marriage partner.

But Lila's own earning ability is excellent. Yet thus far, it is doubtful whether Lila realizes that she would be wiser to depend on herself—and understandably so. A mother at twenty-one, attractive, romantic, and with no particular training, she naturally looks for stability and support through marriage. Her personal ruler, Mars, is intercepted in the Eighth, in Cancer, a strong indication that she (Mars) seeks financial strength and protection (Cancer) through others (Eighth). Yet this whole placement is uncertain. However, she is strongly aware and desirous of material well-being—the things money will buy—as indicated by the Second House Jupiter, ruler of the Second, in the practical Capricorn. As Jupiter rises, Lila has the personality and common sense to gain her wants through her own efforts. Saturn, ruler of the Second, in the Twelfth, signifies deep latent resources, probably more than she realizes. She has hidden intensity and drive, aimed at achieving financial strength, for Saturn is in the secretive Twelfth as well as the secretive Scorpio. Jupiter rising, camouflages her purposes. If she uses this excellent money making power, she needs only to direct her aims and concentrate her forces. But if she sits around waiting for a possible husband with substantial means, her life will be a series of marital disappointments.

With the background of Lila's marriage potential, what sort of husband did she actually attract? We haven't Dick's birth hour, but his solar chart is revealing. Like Lila, he has Sun and Moon in air signs (remember that Lila's are conjunct in Gemini). With Jupiter and Saturn in Libra, he has a grand air trine of five planets, which immediately suggests that he is too easy going for his own good. At the same time, the Aquarius Mercury-Sun conjunction, centers a fixed cross with Neptune in Leo and Mars in Scorpio.

Hence, the Aquarius planets are the fulcrum of his chart, the focus of the drifting idealism of the air grand trine as well the center of the fixed cross. All in all, his is a well integrated chart. Because his birth hour is unknown, we cannot be certain just what matrimonial aspects his Moon makes. However, since he did marry—and fairly young at that—it seems safe to assume that the Moon applies to either the Aquarius or Libra planets, or both. If the Moon were more than nineteen degrees Gemini it would make no marriage aspects. Lack of marriage aspects—that is, applications of the Moon or Sun in male and female charts respectively—is one of the factors said to delay marriage.

Note the many similarities between the charts. There is one conjunction by sign, though uncertain in orb: Dick's Moon in Gemini, a spiritual tie with her Sun, Moon and Venus. While one and a half-degree conjunctions are considered the most important, the harmonious aspects between the lights is a good sympathetic tie, even if a few degrees apart. They are temperamentally akin, not only because they have Sun and Moon (lights) in air signs, but because both have a fixed cross, though Lila's is weak (Mercury and Saturn are too far from Neptune for strong significance. Nevertheless, they both need some form of emotional expression and/or outlet, one of the characteristics of the fixed cross. Dick's Neptune opposition to Venus conjunct Sun is heightened by similar opposition of Lila's Neptune. This means that innately he has a tendency toward illusionary romance and unrealistic idealism, and in Lila, met a girl who emphasized these Neptunian leanings. This is not uncommonly found in compared charts, because—since an aspect is a type of energy expression—it is natural to attract another who instruments the type of experience sought, constructively or otherwise. Neptune opposite Sun-Venus is a creative and poetic, as well as a fanciful aspect, and in many instances manifests itself constructively, particularly in Neptunian vocations, such as music, the arts, the occult, and so forth. But here, where evidently there was no common Neptunian interest, the tie, in Neptunian fashion, soon dissolved. While the two charts are not joined by outstandingly compulsive aspects such as one degree conjunctions and oppositions, they do have many points of sympathy, as explained above. Judging from the personalities and the circumstances, it is not far-fetched to assume that the marriage fell apart not because they were basically incompatible, but because they were unprepared for marriage.

When Lila and Dick married, she was under extreme emotional stimulation. Uranus in Gemini had just crossed her Moon and was exactly conjunct Venus. This testimony alone is so common in instant attractions and marriage after short acquaintance, that it is considered a classic result of that transit. Not only that, but Mars was in the twelve degrees Gemini, practically conjunct her Venus—again strong impulse as well as heightened sexual urges. Jupiter on Neptune in this case can only be interpreted as adding more glamour and heedlessness. Furthermore, on the marriage day Moon in Taurus emphasized the fixed cross. While the reckless, exciting Uranian influence worked on Dick by conjunction to his Moon, Lila had not only the Uranus to Venus conjunction, but that to Sun and Moon as well. A Uranus-Sun transit is traditionally one of the most explosive forces of a life time. Many people never experience it. It is quite probable that Lila was more swept by surging planetary pressure than Dick, and carried him along with her. This does not mean that the attraction wasn't mutual. But as Mars was in Lila's Sun sign when she married and in the same place two years later, when she was divorced, it seems most likely that hers was the motivating force in both instances. Note that the marriage lasted just one Mars cycle—marriage, motherhood and divorce within two years. Yet in the hectic turbulence of war, this marriage was only one of many.

As in the marriage aspects, the general

DUE to the unforeseen and untimely death of our highly esteemed Mary Adams, the responsibility of continuing this work uninterrupted has fallen upon my shoulders. I am grateful for the opportunity to serve our readers in this capacity and I shall endeavor to maintain the high standard of service set by Miss Adams.

Appropos of the handling of the technique of NUMEROLOGY, let me explain that our deductions are based only upon the material the inquirer can furnish us with, which connects him individually with the scheme of the universe, and that is his FULL CHRISTENED NAME AND BIRTH DATE. The pattern we chart from your name and birth date gives us the clues to your abilities and potentialities, and it is for this reason that I ask you to cooperate and to submit complete data. If you have a problem and want a correct answer, you must furnish the correct material as explained above, in order that your as well as my own time and effort are not wasted.

An Unbending Possessive Mother

"A few years ago I met a man in medical college. We fell in love but decided to wait until he had a practice built up before being married. When things were going nicely he went into the

MARY ADAMS

We deeply regret to announce the passing of Mary Adams, beloved contributor to CURRENT ASTROLOGY and originator of this column. As author, lecturer and magazine writer she was recognized as one of the nation's most brilliant authorities on numerology and astrology. In her we lose not only a great friend but a tireless champion of astrology's cause.

Army. He spent fourteen months overseas and returned in March to his parents in New York. He came here in April and although he seemed to be as much in love with me as ever, he said he couldn't marry me because of his folks. They didn't feel as if I were good enough for him, that anyone who had been a widow as long as I have couldn't possibly be respectable. I asked him if he wasn't a better judge of that than they were, and he said 'yes' but he could not reason with them. I don't know the birthdates of his parents but his is March 8, 1912, and mine December 27th, 1908. I don't know whether to keep on hoping, or try to forget the whole thing. It is hard to forget all the things one plans and hopes for over a period of seven years. P.S.: His mother threatened suicide if he married me."—D.H., Rockford, Ill.

● Though your birthpaths are compatible for marriage (March 8, 1912:  $3+8+4=6$ , and December 27, 1908:  $3+9+9=3$ ) it would seem a thirty-five year old man should be able to weather his mother's selfishly emotional storm with a more decisive attitude. With this chalked up against him, whether, along with his "mothering" desires, he is a good bet for marriage is a question. A mother of an only son takes a great deal upon herself to question the respectability of a girl who has waited seven long years for the fulfillment of her hopes. Ultimately you and he alone must decide this between yourselves. He may not always have his parents to lean upon for decisions, and at such times may regret not having learned to decide for himself regarding his life happiness. Change is imminent for you this year; accept it graciously and be alert. Next year he may have a change of heart.

An Authoritative Wife

"I've been very worried about our marital status. My husband was born March 20th, 1896, and I on September 25th, 1902. We were married only a short time when he went overseas and upon his return he informed me he wanted to be free, but that there is no other woman. I believe it is only 'the dangerous age' that has crept up on him. Do you think we are suited to each other; that he will snap out of this phase and the mental confusion through which he is going, and after completion of his present job in another country, come to me in a contrite, humble manner, make a nice home and be a good husband? Am anxiously awaiting an answer to my problem. Thank you."—Mrs. E.C., Oakland, Calif.

● Your husband's path (March 20, 1896:  $3+2+6=11$ ) and yours September 25, 1902:  $9+7+3=1$ ) are together not an easy setup for marriage, particularly if you have not learned your lesson in cooperation. Such an authoritative attitude as you express expecting "humility" and a "contrite" manner cannot possibly bring out in one who so recently enjoyed freedom and change of scene, the best qualities he possesses. Therefore, the "dangerous age" cannot be blamed for his failure to find warmth and understanding at his journey's end. We feel "humble" before God, not people, and we are "contrite" through compassion and understanding. There is no Santa Claus—our joys in life must be earned—everything has its price. Take inventory and make no demands. Men too have been known to "change their minds." A change around you seems inevitable. Could you perhaps decide to be loving and understanding enough to try again and join him abroad?

Vocational Quandry

"I am having a very difficult time deciding into which field I should venture so far as a career or occupation is concerned. I should like to be either a school teacher or a nurse. In which can I succeed? I was born August 27, 1930."—B.A.A., Washington, D. C.

● You have come pretty close to your own decision through your process of elimination since you could succeed in either of these professions. I would, however, favor the nursing profession in your case. Your desire to look for "restorations" would help those in your care to get well. And too, with a "3" birthpath ( $8+9+4=3$ ), you can be lighthearted yet serious, which is another requisite for nursing, since a happy bedside manner is a tremendous asset to the recovery of the sick.

Mother-In-Law Trouble

"My husband's mother tries to run our home completely, even to arranging my furniture and buying my clothes. Her birthday is April 26th, 1894. My husband is January 5th, 1911, and mine is September 9th, 1921. What is our chance to live our own lives? Wondering."—Meridian, Miss.

● Your chance is practically nil if you remain under the same roof with your mother-in-law. She does not understand that it is not necessary for her to continue to rule "queen supreme" in YOUR home as she did in hers. It is difficult for her to change, therefore it is wisest for you and your husband to live alone where you both will have a much better chance for happiness. You are a woman, not a child, and old enough to run your own household. Seek your husband's confidence and aid.

A Difficult Choice

"I was born June 1st, 1926. Am very fond of a married man born Feb. 22, 1922. He was separated from his crabby, possessive wife when we met. There is a man, born February 26, 1916, who wants to marry me. There is a world of difference in these two Pisces men. In the first there are many lovable traits—in the second, none that I can see. As I have a three-year-old child to support, should I marry number two for security? Would there be a chance for happiness? Please help me."—Mrs. C.L.B., San Francisco, Calif.

● Of the two men, you may have less trouble with February 26th. But are you fair to expect happiness and everything if you do not love him? There seems such a "fine line" between the truth and a half-truth that the man born February 22nd can't always tell! Perhaps his possessive, crabby wife has a side too. Some men like to present the grandiose manner and have a great awareness of their wonderful selves but forget sometimes to remember that God also gave talents to the rest of mankind. Give yourself more time to analyze this situation; this is not a good year for you to marry anyway. Next year will present a different light upon the subject.

Love Will Find a Way

"I was born January 5th, 1918:  $1 + 5 + 1 = 7$ , and am interested in marriage, but somehow something always seems to go against it. Is it possible for me to ever be happily married or have I one of those birthpaths which makes married happiness difficult to attain? I am interested in a person born November 23rd, 1920. Do our birthpaths harmonize?"—P.A.T., New York City.

● Yes, you do have one of "those birthpaths" as you call it, with which wedded happiness is a little more difficult to attain, but this should not distress you too much if you know beforehand that your path is a subjective one and you are not easily understood. And too, with your strong "1's" you could be opinionated without realizing it. Try always to put yourself in a cooperative mood and guard against being too managerial. Knowing these truths can help you harmonize yourself. A "7" path gives you a wonderful opportunity to grow in many ways and it carries much protection if you live to your highest self. November 23rd, 1920, which is a "1" path, is such a path to which you can practice living to your better side. "1" is positive, direct and sometimes impulsive, and since you both have a share of it, to be forewarned is forearmed, and love will always find a way.

A Helpful Attitude

"My husband and I get along pretty good except when he is under the influence of drink. His employer and I have been trying to get him to stop same. Is there a common meeting ground—some hidden pleasure or whim which if cultivated could divert his taste in pleasure? The object: to make a good home for our children. My birthday is June 20, 1913, my husband's, January 28th, 1906." M.E.B., Brockville, Ont.

● Yes, something of a creative nature could very well help your husband to divert his attention. Electrical or mechanical experimentations could do it—perhaps also biochemistry as an avocation. However, he likes the group contacts. Could you not manage some Club life with him or some other group activity? Music should interest him—is there an amateur band or glee club in your vicinity? He is a dreamer and needs to tie to an inspirational pursuit for relaxation. He has a "9" path (Jan. 28, 1906:  $1+1+7=9$ ) which is humanitarian. Books should also interest him. You are to be commended upon your helpful attitude. Good Luck!

Give Him Time—Mrs. W.E.J., Tex.:

Your letter is too lengthy to print. You need to be patient, my dear lady, since your husband does not know the meaning of "cooperation" and is therefore hard to deal with. He expects perfection from you, yet indulges his own imperfections! His birthday, October 16th, 1899:  $1+7+9=8$ , and yours, March 31, 1903:  $3+4+4=11$ , are in reality not too bad a combination. You have been patient and understanding and I believe it would be better to give the matter more time and forget the divorce for now. He is seeking changes and is deceiving himself at this time in thinking you hold him back. Next year he may realize his error. He is ambitious for himself and wants to expand. Be a little more flexible in your opinions, and firm in holding to that which is rightfully yours. His family influences him, but mark time, next year things may differ.

Your Heart Must Decide—F.L.Y.,

Ala.: Of the two boys you mention (September 13, 1914= $1$  path, March 9, 1925= $11$  path) you would surely find Virgo more practical and stable, and you (October 5, 1921= $1$  path) are a practical girl looking for results. Pisces has charm, but many others may think so too—could you take competition? Marriage is not a "guaranteed, on the dotted line" proposition. It is an institution of learning—learning the lessons of give-and-take, of compassion and understanding. Happiness is earned through our application of these principles.

Time Will Tell—Mrs. R.L., Mich.:

You are approaching changes which will prove advantageous to you so do nothing now. Your erring husband finds the "other woman" more attractive because of her less serious attitude toward life—she wants only fun and people, and the more people the more fun. As shown by her birthdate, September 21, 1908:  $9+3+9=3$  path, these qualities in her are closely allied to his own, so that your more stable corn. Likewise, the phases of the Moon also fitted in with the four cardinal points and even the four ages of man—infancy, youth, adulthood and old age. Aries, the East, sunrise and youth were associated with the fire of life and this became the cardinal fire sign. It was the beginning, the start, the New Moon.

As the Sun rose higher in the heavens and noon approached in the day and Summer in the year, man reached adulthood and performed his mission on earth in the Northern cardinal sign, Cancer. Then, as the Sun continued its journey westward to sink toward the horizon at the close of day, the labors came to an end and in the season the harvest was reaped in Libra. Then came the long sleep of night or Winter, when the seed hibernated in the ground to germinate in Capricorn. It was the infant, the babe born in the manger between Capricorn, the goat, and Sagittarius, the horse. It also became active as a youth in another manger between Aries, the Ram, and Taurus, the Bull.

However, as the four cardinal signs were the physical manifestations of celestial phenomena, they were changeable or moveable. For as we move upon earth east and west, north and south are relative. However, if we go north as far as the pole, we find that there is no north, since all directions away from the pole are south. Therefore, in masonry there is no light in the north, for there, one cannot get his bearings. All is south; but in the above are the constellations and directly overhead is the guiding North Star, Polaris. Circling around this are the constellations and from them must we get our bearings.

Thus the Indian viewed the top of the cube as constantly moving or rotating, and associated the four top edges with the signs of Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius and Pisces. These signs circled the heavens each twenty-four hours and were mutable. They brought about changes and were sometimes in the East, then again in the North, later in the West and still later in the South. The Indian saw a difference in the cardinal signs or directions at the base and the mutable directions of the above. On earth, the directions changed or moved according to the movement of man. They were relative to his position on earth and he could regulate this position to bring them into any position he chose. Not so with the directions above. The mutable signs revolved despite his conscious effort and man could not command them. Thus the cardinal signs were those which he could control or regulate, the factors over which he had jurisdiction; while the four signs above denoted the will and power of the Great Spirit.

To complete his symbolism and philosophy, the American Aborigines imagined four pillars rising from the four corners of the earth. These were fixed or stationary and were not changeable by either the will of the Great Spirit or the position of man. They kept things stable. The Mayas called the four cardinal points the Bacabs and the four fixed pillars the Chacs or Troughs. These pillars linked or joined the cardinal and mutable signs and produced a blending. One revolved over the other, pouring its elements and qualities down on the fixed signs or pillars and into the cardinal signs or directions.

Having thus conceived his world as a cube with three distinct influences at work—the will of man on earth or in the below or cardinal signs and directions, the will of the Great Spirit in the above, and the upright pillars at the four corners of the earth—man began to study each of these twelve edges of the cube to see what they produced in the day, month, year, in the ages of life, the seasons and the elements.

In Aries, the East, Spring and youth, he saw the buds open, the seed sprout, the trees commence to bloom and the birds begin to sing. In Cancer he saw the heat of Summer and of noon, the rank growths of herbage, the bright flowers and plentiful rains. Thus he associated Aries with fire and Cancer with water or rain. Cancer brought humidity, stagnation and romantic moonlight nights. It was a time of relaxation and play; a time to be timid and shy from insects and creeping, crawling things.

Libra brought the Fall and harvest, the gathering and storing of things, the clear, cool weather and the bright blue sky. It was associated with the air and the reaping of just rewards, the balancing of things. It was the West where life departed slowly but surely into unknown night. Capricorn produced the Winter, the barren denuded earth, the snow flurries and cold. It was the night of the year. Thus it became an earthy sign.

Down the four pillars flowed the forces of heaven to change, modify and regulate the four cardinal edges. Taurus saw the earth in bloom. It gave flowers to the early Spring and became a symbol of the earth in all its glory. Leo brought the heat of Summer, the humid, uncomfortable days in which man sought the shelter of shaded nooks and bathed in cooling springs. It was the heat that ripened the crops and brought about the glories of nature. Scorpio brought Indian Summer, clear moonlight nights and the fall rains. It gave heavy dews and hoarfrosts and was associated with water, seed and harvest. Aquarius saw the cold, crisp air of midwinter, which necessitated man's moving about to keep up the circulation lest the inert blood become cold and sluggish. Thus it became a symbol of air.

Gemini was the warm air of late Spring which is often hot and dry. Virgo was the earth in late Summer with the ripening corn and pumpkins, the turning leaves and the cool nights and mornings. It was the earth at harvest. Sagittarius was the hunting season, the time when man spent his last hours outdoors gathering the final fruits of earth for storage that he might have a bounteous supply during the long Winter. It was the internal heat within the products of earth. Pisces was the late Winter rains, the thaws which sought to release from captivity the infant seed in the ground. It seemed to nurse and care for it until the warmth of Aries released it and gave it a new start. Thus it was the water of regeneration.

Having provided for the six faces and the twelve edges of the cube, the Indian sought to explain the eight corners. They gave him the eight creative rays inherent in every manifested thing. The corner at the point between Capricorn and Aries, at the base of the pillar assigned to Aquarius, came in mid-Winter when all was inert and still. Down through Aquarius from the upper corner came the cold of January and February.

The corner at the base between Aries and Cancer in which the base of the pillar of Taurus is planted seemed to produce motion and growth and therefore it was called motion. In Taurus the days apparently lengthened, the light became brighter and thus the upper corner was assigned to light.

Between Cancer and Libra, and at the base of the pillar of Leo, things appeared to rotate or repeat themselves, while down this pillar from the corner above came color and all the vivid hues of July and August when flower gardens assumed splendor of bright blossoms. The point or corner between Libra and Capricorn gave a pulsating, throbbing vibration of early Fall when man was anxious to get about and do things. It ushered in the Autumn and Winter activities, while down the pillar of Scorpio between Virgo and Sagittarius descended the welcomed heat of Indian Summer and the glorious Fall days.

Thus the cube represents the horoscope. It is often pictured as two cubes; one, a rough block just as it comes from the quarry; the other, a smooth block, finished and polished by the hand of man. The rough block is the natural horoscope with all the primitive, natural tendencies. This horoscope is the natal chart. It gives us our material substance and natural instincts. It is the structure with which we work. As the years go on, we cut, shape and polish this stone, wisely and with knowledge, or ignorantly and with little thought. As a result, with progressions and intelligence, we have a perfect stone which shall go into the head and corner of that building not made with hands. However, if we are foolish and neglect to use our opportunities as shown by our natal chart, we find we have the stone,

HAND PERSONALITIES

by Ruth Hampton

AFTER having discussed the various facets of hand analysis in detail, we have now reached the point in our lessons where we can study an actual sample of prints and see whether we cannot gain a complete picture of the subject's character, interests, pursuits in life, and her general chances for success. The prints selected and displayed on the opposite page are those of a woman in middle age of French birth, whom we shall call Mademoiselle R.

General Character of the Hand

Upon first glance these prints appear to be without any outstanding features. If this were really the case, the analysis would be very easy to make, but upon closer observation you will find the palms full of complexities. Let us therefore go step by step so as to avoid any snap judgment, which is probably one of the greatest dangers to the analyst.

Again, at first glance, you will agree that the hands are without particular distinction—good or bad; the grain of the skin is neither coarse nor fine; the moderate length of the well-spaced fingers, the freely extended thumb and the well-proportioned palm give us a basic picture of just an "average" person, neither too material nor too ethereal for this world, in fact quite a pleasant individual. But if you will look again you will be able to discover some surprising symbols on the mounts and lines of these hands.

The Mount of Apollo predominates. It is a "bifurcated" mount (meaning strength of attributes from the double mount), reinforced by the swirl on its Saturnian side and by the straight line tracing up through it. These strong Apollonian aspects immediately make us take notice of the subject's predominant talent in the field of commercial art. Why do we say commercial art? Because our subject possesses medium-grained skin and generally good consistency and proportions, indicating sufficient dexterity to realize her original ideas with her own hands. Hence, the creative craftsman.

Our next move is to locate the secondary mount—which we find to be that of Venus.

Love Life

It is wide in expanse and fully developed and its strength is further reinforced by the depth of the mounts lying between the base of the fingers and the Heart Line. Please note this expanse and also how it is cut through by the horizontal line known as the Girdle of Venus.

Mademoiselle R. then is no longer just the "average" person we mistook her to be; rather, she is a highly complicated personality, for obviously her super-sensitive love nature tends to distract her artistic talents. There is no doubt a conflict between her urge for self-expression and that of romance—to what degree remains to be seen.

Fortunately we find the third strongest mount to be that of Mercury. This mount demands special attention here because of the independence of the little finger with its long first phalange and the pronounced marking of the symbol resembling the letter Y. These splendid signs really save the day for Mademoiselle R. because they indicate strong mental intuitive as well as practical faculties. Mercury, in other words, acts here as stabilizer and injects a rational element into a decided Venus-Apollo predominance.

The fact that the rest of the mounts are all well developed explains why we first believed the hand to be nondescript. It actually means that Mademoiselle R is a very talented woman with definite leanings towards commercial art, but a tendency to scatter her forces.

Health and Wealth

These prints do not show any marks indicating physical weakness at any time during life; on the contrary, the lines are particularly strong for one who carries the somewhat disturbing Girdle of Venus in both hands.

There are several suggestions of squares on the Saturn Line which are indicative of financial success, and so we may say without reservations that Mademoiselle R. will enjoy good health all of her life and make considerable monetary gains from her versatility in many fields.

We have already mentioned the decided preponderance of the love mount, Venus, and the conspicuousness of the Girdle of Venus. This mischievous line acts as a barrier in the life of its holder and "reigns supreme until overcome."

The traditional interpretation of the Girdle of Venus is that the subject is in love with love, never learning the lesson of past mistakes when it comes to emotions, but always ready to embark on a new affair with the same idealism that reality had proved wrong again and again. There are, in addition, several lines rising out of the Mount of Venus and traveling across the hand only to dissolve before they reach the Heart Line, and they tell the story of several serious affairs that faded out in disillusionment.

Mademoiselle R.

We will now give you the story of Mademoiselle R's life and you will soon realize how the hand analyst can, if he is accurate and conscientious, "hit the nail on the head."

Mlle. R., who comes from a distinguished family, was born in France in the late nineties. When she was but five years old, her parents were divorced, and the event was to cast a long shadow on her childhood and adolescence, for at that time divorce was considered a major disgrace. As the result of false and incriminating testimony used against her mother, the child was given into the custody of her distinguished father, who, after marrying a second time, placed the child in one convent after another. The stigma of the divorce haunted the child everywhere she went through slights and innuendos from her classmates. (These events can be easily traced in the left hand by the shredded Head and Life Lines accompanied by a broken and displaced Heart Line, and the suffering of this sensitive Venusian child who craved love and attention more than anything in the world is easy to understand.)

JUPITER

In The Twelve Signs

by Leland Lovelace

MOST of us have acquaintances who have what we call "good luck" with everything they touch. Even when they do nothing, luck seems to flow to them. If we were to examine their horoscopes we would be likely to find a prominent and well-aspected Jupiter in their charts.

Jupiter is the symbol of good fortune, success and benefits. It signifies prosperity, luxury and magnificence; whatever is on the grand scale. It is the antithesis of Saturn, planet of contraction, for Jupiter carries the meaning of expansion, excess and over-activity in whatever field it functions. The sign position of Jupiter portrays your idealism and your aspirations; the house position shows in what province of life Jupiter will work for you and what the results will be.

In mythology, Jupiter was king among the gods, ruling them with regal hand; by turns over-indulgent and unreasonably cruel.

Jupiter is the largest of the planets and the Jupiterian vocabulary deals largely in superlatives: the most, the best, biggest, richest, most magnificent, when favorably aspected. The least, the poorest, the most sternly limited, and so forth, when badly afflicted.

A study of Jupiter's placement in the chart will show the time, the place, and the circumstances of the greatest personal and professional success. When, with an afflicted Jupiter, the native fails of success in a career, he may yet make a personal success by development of his character, for Jupiter is concerned with the philosophic mind as well as with the urge to worldly power and glory.

Jupiter inclines toward the concept of law as a philosophy, as distinguished from law as symbolized by Libra, which is concerned with specific cases before the bar. It may bestow a high position in the administration of church affairs or in the supreme courts of justice. Many monarchs of old had Jupiter near the Midheaven or the Ascendant in their charts.

This planet is the great protector against untoward events, and when posited in the Twelfth House, he is said to bring "eleventh hour luck" when all seems lost.

In the body, Jupiter presides over the liver, the circulatory system, including the blood stream, and indicates the insulin supply and the body's ability to assimilate sugar.

Some keywords for Jupiter: growth, reward, confidence, foresight, opportunity, pride, nobility, elegance, lawyers, judges, bankers, high army officers, persons of wealth and power, religion, law, higher education, travel and adventure, magnificence, religion, profits, big business, monarchical government, royalty, large corporations, administration, far distant foreign countries, long journeys, philanthropy.

Jupiter in Aries: Imposes his own will with the greatest of good nature. Overconfident in his own abilities. Boastful, alert, and progressive. High-minded, often in conflict with religious belief and unbelief. Courageous, daring, impulsive. Takes for granted he should have authority and responsibility. I have noticed that when these people are church members, they are active, seldom passive, in church affairs. Their education and physical health are often benefited by long journeys, for they receive spiritual uplift and a broad outlook from meeting aggressive people. Rarely timid or modest, but when afflicted badly, limitations and frustrations are imposed by a faint-hearted ego. When favorably aspected, Jupiter in this sign may lead to prominence and fame. Born with Jupiter here: Queen Wilhelmina, August 30, 1880; Admiral Harold Stark, November 12, 1880; Senator Gerald P. Nye, December 19, 1892.

Jupiter in Taurus: A steady character and purpose. Stubborn and how! Devoted, warm-hearted, self-indulgent. Destined to financial success unless afflicted, and proud of his gains. Slowgoing and lazy. Conservative in expenditure and orthodox in religion. Fond of good food and may be a good cook. Takes pleasure in large operations in real estate, banking, building. Bored by activities that do not contribute to security. Dislikes novelty in financial investments. If an architect, prefers classic designs on a large scale. Has a deep trust that somehow material benefits will flow to him and he is rarely disappointed. But his faith in supply does not deter him from saving and providing for his old age. Born with Jupiter in this sign: Axel Wenner-Gren, June 5, 1881; Admiral Husband E. Kimmell, February 26, 1882; Mahatma Gandhi, October 2, 1869.

Jupiter in Gemini: Not a good position for Jupiter, though may be helpful in travel, salesmanship, and in giving scope and variety to the ideas. Harmony with relatives, but friction with spouse; therefore tends toward more than one marriage. An over-confident mind and manner which is not attractive, unless subdued by personal charm from some other angle. Optimistic, fond of company, novelty, literary pursuits. Unstable in occupation and unlucky in finance, especially in speculation. Travels far from home in short spurts. Buys his library one book at a time, and does not accumulate. Not likely to acquire wealth unless aided from other zones of the star map. If literary, his writings are likely to point a moral. With Jupiter in this sign: General Patrick

J. Hurley, January 8, 1883; Elbert Ben-jamine, December 12, 1882; Faith Baldwin, October 1, 1893.

Jupiter in Cancer: Here Jupiter is exalted and unless aspected by squares and oppositions, this is an exceedingly fortunate position. The native is gifted with imagination, intuition, a jovial disposition, talents in commerce and finance, good judgment in expenditure and in long term investments. Kindly, considerate, peaceful, psychic. Fond of mystery, and if literary, reads or writes mystery stories. Devoted to the parents and ancestral home unless afflicted. An innate trend toward culture and refinement, the arts, literature, and deep study. Patriotic, and (among us) intensely American. Fond of travel by water and trips to the shore. Can make and save money. Contentment often depends on physical comfort. A lover of good food. A collector of antiques. History-minded or devoted to genealogy. Good luck after middle life. A comfortable home in old age. With Jupiter in this sign: Lowell Mellett, February 22, 1884; Jeannette MacDonald, June 16, 1907; Admiral Royal E. Ingersoll, June 20, 1883.

Jupiter in Leo: This native, in even his slightest gesture, is dramatic in a regal manner. He has the will-to-rule, and by some means he will find the way to high honors. Very affectionate and fond of pleasure, theater, children, and risks. This position portrays the exaggerated ego, the dictator complex. When well supported, it indicates tremendous vitality, self-reliance, kindness, mercy and justice, with an attitude that the king can do no wrong. Capable of great self control, these natives demand authority and power over others. Responsibility and command flow to them. Trustworthy, and unless afflicted, innately honest. Strong sexual nature, usually well under control. Their pride is overwhelming and they never lose belief in themselves. An extrovert whose every act is for applause. I have noticed women born with Jupiter in this sign carry themselves with great stateliness. Born with Jupiter here: Eleanor Roosevelt, October 11, 1884; King George VI, December 14, 1895; Major General Leslie R. Groves, August 17, 1896.

Jupiter in Virgo: Never lie to the native whose star map shows Jupiter in this sign; he will find you out as the lie falls from your lips. But if seriously afflicted, he may furnish the untruths. Cautious, discreet, mentally diffuse, critical of everything, he will find the flaws in any creed. Fond of rich food and regal clothing, his illnesses may be due to over-eating and drinking. May work actively in religious enterprises, often behind the scenes. If an employer, his employees regard him with affection and respect, though he demands the most and best in service. A good researcher or detective, thorough and plodding. Tends toward concentration along one line, but a recreation may be a second business. Born with Jupiter here: Drew Pearson, December 13, 1896; Carole Lombard, October 6, 1909; Jane Cowl, December 14, 1884.

Jupiter in Libra: This position of Jupiter often indicates a powerful personality among powerful friends. The native is calm, poised, religious. Overly clean and demands beauty in all things. A tendency to consider every facet of a problem and seldom comes to a decision. Variable, and with such a diversity of tastes and interests that it may hamper the march toward success. Susceptible to the influence of those about him. A generous mate or partner. Popular with the public, but once he makes a slip he never regains public favor. Benevolent and tolerant. Gifted in the arts and may be a collector of fine arts. Happy in marriage. This position is almost certain to bestow high public honors, unless seriously afflicted. Born with Jupiter here: Winston Churchill, November 30, 1874; Senator Harry F. Byrd, June 10, 1887; Senator James Mead, December 27, 1885.

Jupiter in Scorpio: When Jupiter is added to the energy of Scorpio, it portrays a strong feeling of self-importance that is likely to be merited. It bestows an autocratic element to a stubborn nature which may work for good or bad. Generous to those who bow. If the strong sex nature is sublimated, this position may portray a prominent rise in the church, the army, surgery, or politics. The native is aggressive, shrewd, wilful, and penetrating in investigation. He can quickly get at the secrets of others, and his own secrets will be laid bare. A fine judge, policeman or FBI man. Has no fear of death. Easily adaptable to environment and can turn to account whatever is at hand. Powerful intuitions, mysterious, profound, secretive, jealous, greedy, self-assured. Likely to inherit estate. With Jupiter in this sign: Maxim Litvinoff, July 17, 1876; King Peter of Yugoslavia, September 6, 1923; Rep. Andrew J. May, June 24, 1875.

Jupiter in Sagittarius: The home ground of Jupiter, which inclines toward higher education, the study of philosophy, and far distant travel. Even when without formal education, these natives understand by intuition many of the occult and deep philosophies. Egocentric, they quickly discard materials and relationships when they no longer serve the purposes of the moment. Many cases in my files show they soon tire of the mate, often for no good reason, and seek divorce. They love travel to foreign shores, for exploration and adventure, and often receive benefits from foreigners. If they stay at home, their minds explore religions, strange philosophies, and foreign situations. They are generous, rich in spirit if not in purse. Gifted in leadership and authorship, lucky in publishing. They crave and seek place and power. Brilliant possibilities often not put to account. Born with Jupiter in this sign: Henry A. Wallace, October 7, 1888; Stephen Early, August 27, 1889; Dale Carnegie, November 24, 1888.

Jupiter in Capricorn: The career man par excellence. Serious, direct, thoughtful,

Your Personal Problems

by Elizabeth Finn

WITH so many people with interesting problems patiently (we hope) waiting, we are, this time, omitting the usual detailed astrological analysis, in order to make it possible to answer more letters.

"My problem may be an unusual one to you but to me it is the one nearest to my heart: eye troubles. I was born January 6, 1900, at 3 P.M., at 95 West Longitude, and 32 North Latitude.

"In November, 1932, my eyesight left me overnight (November 30th). I had worn glasses since I was twelve, but even that did not put me off from working to be a Certified Public Accountant, but had not finished when this overtook me. The blindness lasted nearly nine months, but gradually improved up to 1940. Since then things have been at a standstill. Do the stars say I will ever be able to resume my studies? Or do they say the worst for my eyes? Be frank with me if it's bad because I am used to disappointments and can take it. The doctors found no organic trouble, pressure or abnormality or kidney disease. I have always been healthy and still am."—L.L., Texas.

No doubt Uranus in Sagittarius 10, opposing your natal Ascendant and Pluto, is the astrological explanation of your trouble, and since only mutable signs are involved, it should be curable. Adverse aspects since 1940 have no doubt retarded this, but the worst of these passed the exact degree late in 1945, and now with progressed Venus nearing a trine to natal Uranus (they are sextile in the natal chart, so this progression should be very powerful) surely much greater progress should be made in curing your illness. Uranus is posited in your natal Sixth and rules the Tenth House—so this aspect should also be splendid for resuming your studies and getting started on your business career.

"I was born June 15, 1921, 2:15 A.M., at 36 North Latitude, 96 West Longitude; my friend March 30, 1920, at midnight, 41 North Latitude, 74 West Longitude.

"Could we have a successful marriage despite his injured back and his addiction to drinking? He says he drinks to stop the pain. He has asked me to marry him but says I will have to keep on working. I love him and would not object to working for awhile, but he also wants a small family, to which I agree.

"Does he have enough favorable qualities to overcome the drinking habit? I would not nag him about it; I would either take him or leave him."—M.L.P., California.

It is never a good idea to expect a person to reform after the ceremony if he failed of accomplishment before marriage. One of the most important rules for girls to learn is, "never marry a man to reform him." This is probably not uppermost in your mind, but nevertheless it is bound to be in your thoughts, because no girl as sensible as you would ever think of tying herself for life to a man who was "addicted" to drinking.

His Mars is in Scorpio afflicting a conjoined Jupiter and Neptune in Leo; the Virgo Moon conjunct Saturn is opposed by Uranus in Pisces, and that does not look promising for breaking the drink habit once it has been started. Your Venus in Taurus is adverse to the Mars-Jupiter-Neptune configuration in his chart, and your Mars is afflicting his Mercury—so it is hardly likely that you would be able to influence him very much. It would be far better to wait until he has proven he can overcome this habit before marrying you and even then be sure to choose a favorable time for the wedding.

"Although I am only sixteen, I have had to care for myself since I was twelve years old, when my mother died. My problem is that I have a tendency to want to be alone all the time. I am at my best when I need not talk to anyone. I wonder if my birth is what is influencing me.

"I have saved my money and I would like to go to Alaska and start on my own. Do you think I can make a go of it? I was born July 30, 1930, at 5:32 P.M. at 43 North Latitude and 88 West Longitude."—T.S.E., New York.

Capricorn on the Ascendant and its ruler Saturn in the Twelfth House in affliction with Jupiter, ruler of that House in your chart, no doubt is one reason for your love of solitude. However, your Leo Sun and Libra Moon should help you keep this from becoming so much of a habit as to be detrimental to your happiness. We all need the association of others to complete our lives.

Venus, ruling your House of long travel, afflicted by Mars, and the Moon posited in that House in opposition to Uranus, are not good auguries for success in a far land. At present your progressed Venus is within orb of an adverse aspect to both Saturn and Jupiter, so it would seem advisable to postpone your trip until a later date. Aside from the astrological indications, it may be doubted whether it would be wise for so young a girl to attempt to make her way alone so far from friends and relatives. Please be advised and wait a few years—you may find that by that time the desire will have left you, and you will be very glad you did not make the trip.

"We were married October 6, 1917, and separated January 3, 1942. We quarreled constantly during those years although he has many good points. He also has a violent temper. On December 31, 1939, I fell downstairs and crushed several vertebrae and had a compound fracture of the spine. Our doctor kept me home for a month but because I knew I was worse, I defied both him and my husband and managed to get to the hospital for an X-ray. Was in three plaster casts for four months and had to wear an 8-pound leather brace day and night for eighteen months. I am proud of my recovery, but my spine and nervous system were injured due to the delay. I seem to be subject to accidents—I have been in four altogether.

"I believe my husband loves me and is proud of me and at times I feel very sorry for him. He would like to come back to me, has suggested it twice. I'm lonely and often wonder if we will live together again—and in peace. Or if I will marry again—and when to both questions. My husband was born March 9, 1896, and I was born April 24, 1899, hour unknown.

"Astrology has been a great help and comfort to me and I thank my 'guiding star' for instigating it in my brain since 1943 when I needed something to cling to and give me courage and hope. I name CURRENT ASTROLOGY my Bible and read it every day, and shall eagerly watch your column for your advice and reply. Thank you very much."—N.M., Canada.

There are some rather adverse contacts from chart to chart between the so-called "malefics," Mars, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune; your marriage chart has Venus in Scorpio afflicted by Uranus in Aquarius and Moon conjoined with its South Node. Not too harmonious a chart in itself and this is made stronger by Saturn, Mars and Neptune in the marriage chart posited in Leo conjoining your natal Mars and afflicting your natal Sun and Jupiter. All in all the wonder is that you lived together as long as you did. Your natal Sun is in Taurus squaring Mars in Leo while Saturn in Sagittarius opposes Neptune in Gemini; and Saturn, Mars, Uranus and Neptune are all in parallel to each other. If any of these are posited in angles in your chart—and it is almost impossible that none of them are—it would certainly be indicative of a liability to accidents.

Venus and four other planets are in double-bodied signs in your chart and would indicate a strong possibility of more than one marriage. However, whether or not such a second marriage would take place—and when—are questions that could only be answered if your exact time of birth were known. The possibility of a return to your former husband also depends on the exact time of birth in both charts. The present contacts between the two charts would hardly be auspicious for any such move this year. Again only accurate birth data will show when these present contacts will be past.

"I just recently became interested in astrology and I have a lot to learn about it—which will be a pleasant task, I can assure you. I got a copy of the Summer Issue of CURRENT ASTROLOGY and was delighted with the article by Charlotte Timmons on Cusp Birthdays. I noticed that this is the second of the series! I would certainly love to get a copy of the previous issue containing the first article, but it is too late now. I also was very interested in the problems in your department and the whole-hearted way in which you tackled them and gave helpful, sensible answers.

"What I want to find out is just how and to what extent a cusp birthday is affected by the preceding sign. You see my birthday is June 23, 1909, at 6 A.M. and I was personally gratified to discover that I possess some of the Gemini characteristics, because I have always felt that I have most of the qualities given to the Cancer native, but there is a part of me (the part I care most about) that is not included in Cancer. I have always wanted to be a writer, and mental qualities in another person always attract me and give me more joy than any physical ones. I love to study and go from one hobby to another, mastering the main facts of each before leaving it.

"I am deeply attached to my home but I detest housework; on the other hand, I spend hours slaving away at my typewriter, am busy with the writing course I am taking, the reading on various subjects and the pursuing of studies and hobbies. All this gives me a deep sense of inner happiness and gratification which the mere taking care of my home and three children could never give me.

"I read the articles and guides for Gemini and they fit me just as well, sometimes more so than those for Cancer. I am unusually sensitive, psychic, moody, understanding, and interested in all people—all the things true Cancerites are; but I am also Mercurial, restless and changeable—many of the Geminian traits.

"What I would like you to tell me is just what parts of the Gemini forecasts I should apply to myself. Would the daily and monthly guides apply to me, or should I stick to the pure Cancer? Thank you."—M.K.H., New Jersey.

It is always pleasant to be told that one's work is appreciated and I am sure Mrs. Timmons will be as gratified as I am that you find our articles helpful and interesting.

It would probably be a good idea for you to read the forecasts and guides for both Gemini and Cancer since you are so close to both signs. It is quite likely you have Cancer rising—without place of birth as well as time this cannot be stated positively—but you have Mercury in Gemini and both Moon and Jupiter in Virgo, so it is not surprising that you have a strong blending of the characteristics of both signs. Virgo, you probably know, is also ruled by Mercury.

"CURRENT ASTROLOGY is the first satisfactory astrology magazine I have come across—satisfactory to the layman, that is.

"Here are our birthdates and if you can answer me, I cannot tell you how much it will mean to me. I was born July 24, 1908, about 10 in the morning, married May 26, 1928, to a man born March 22, 1903. We adopted a boy born October 15, 1937. What are my chances of having a child of my own, or should I adopt another? I feel that this boy needs a brother or sister. Thank you for your time—may I write again?"—M.J.C., West Virginia.

Without accurate birth-time, it is difficult to answer your questions about the possibility of children. However, with Sun in Leo, Moon in Gemini, possibly Virgo rising and Aquarius ruling your Fifth House (children), and with Mercury conjoined with Neptune and both of them opposing Uranus (ruler of the Fifth), the outlook is not too good. Nor is your husband's chart much better since he has Sun in Aries and a Capricorn Moon. Possibly another adopted child would be the best solution for you, and may I suggest that you consider getting one a bit nearer his age than a new baby would be? It is possible that a baby eight or nine years his junior would not be the beneficial influence you desire for him.

"Dear Friend: I say 'friend' as you certainly have been a friend to many as I have been a reader of your department for a long time, but this is my first letter. I would like to know if my daughter and her husband will be happy together. She was born December 20, 1924 at 5 P.M., and he was born May 7, 1925, time unknown. This is just for my own satisfaction for even if they are not happy, I shall be as I am now, far away from them, and shall let them work out their own problems.

"Also will I marry again? I was married—separated now—to a man born July 8, 1874. I was born August 4, 1891, 11 A.M. Thank you."—M.J.S., California.

You are very wise in leaving your daughter and her husband to work out their own problems. However they should not have too many as their charts have many harmonious contacts, among them a lovely trine from her Venus to his Uranus, and a similar good contact from her Mercury to the Sun in his chart.

Your natal chart is not strongly indicative of more than one marriage, but remember there is nothing fatalistic about astrology, and many things can be changed if we only make up our minds to alter them. Unless the chart absolutely indicates only one marriage, there is no reason—astrologically—why you should not marry again if you wish to, but select a favorable time for the wedding.

The Part of Fortune

by Gurthie S. Patch

FORTUNA, or the Part of Fortune, is a point in the horoscope denoted by the symbol  $\oplus$ , indicating the financial fortunes and prosperity in life, according to its position and planetary aspects. Since it is not a planet, Fortuna is very often treated as the stellar step-child. Its importance is not always recognized by astrologers, and it is often either ignored altogether or its significance is minimized. But the really efficient astral scientist carefully calculates this mathematical point, and thereby determines the nature and direction of gains to be received.

A well-aspected Part of Fortune can indicate good income, even in an otherwise weak or afflicted chart; on the other hand, a weak or badly afflicted Fortuna can stand in the way of great riches in spite of well located and well aspected planets.

The degree or place of the Part of Fortune in the horoscope for the individual chart is found by calculating the longitude of the Sun, Moon and Ascendant. Add the degrees of the Moon and Ascendant, and subtract the longitude of the Sun. For instance, if the result of the calculations is  $6^{\circ}21'$ , then the point in the horoscope would be six signs plus 21 degrees from the Ascendant.

In the solarscope, cast for month, day and year only, where the time of day is not known, the Part of Fortune is found by determining the number of degrees separating the Sun and Moon, measuring forward from the Sun. This so-called "natural" Part of Fortune is at the same distance forward from the cusp of Aries as the Moon is distant from the Sun. Both Parts of Fortune should be entered in the individual chart.

A well-balanced horoscope with good aspects to one or both Parts of Fortune is a certain indication of good income. The luminaries, Venus, Mars or Jupiter in good aspect to Fortuna denote financial security, and Jupiter particularly brings a considerable sum of money at some time during the individual's life. In the case of a housewife, Fortuna aspected to Libra, Scorpio, their houses or the ruler of the marriage house promises gains from the marriage partner. Adverse aspects, on the other hand, can be detrimental. For instance, a young man possessed of great literary talent and mechanical abilities was unable to make a living wage because his Part of Fortune was weak and afflicted by malefics; he finally became a thief and landed in prison.

Several aspects to Fortuna may indicate gains from several directions, but its house and sign position should always be noted first.

The Part of Fortune in Aries or the First House, for instance, denotes gains from or through the individual's personality, appearance or ability; pioneer work, the parents' home, and other Aries subjects.

In Taurus or the Second House, it favors income from the person's own efforts, real estate, property, artistic lines, and all matters related to Taurus and the Mansion of Finances.

In Gemini or the Third House, financial returns may come from relatives, writing, travel, communication systems, intellectual pursuits, and generally Third House affairs.

In Cancer or the Fourth House, it indicates gains from the family, the home environment, or public life. Fortuna here often is a testimony for gain by inheritance.

In Leo or the Fifth House, it promises happiness from children and "good luck" in investments, speculation and courtship.

In Virgo and the Sixth House it denotes gains from work done in others' employ, and also subjects relating to the menage such as food, clothing, servants. It is also favorable to health matters, and medicine as a profession.

In Libra or the Seventh House, gains from marriage or other partnerships, and also the fine arts, are indicated.

In Scorpio or the Eighth House, Fortuna promises gains from the marriage partner and is an indication of possible legacies.

In Sagittarius or the Ninth House, the Part of Fortune brings benefits from such matters as religion, philanthropy, long journeys, philosophical studies, literature, long journeys or foreign affairs.

In Capricorn or the Tenth House, Fortuna denotes high position and honors and gains from government connections, public life, and also mines and all those fields associated with Saturn.

In Aquarius or the Eleventh House, the Part of Fortune stands for financial gains from large corporations, utility companies, the field of science and invention, the airplane industry, cooperative concerns or brotherhoods, and for long and trusted friendships.

In Pisces or the Twelfth House, it brings gains from Twelfth House subjects, such as occult matters, detective, prison or hospital work, and also activities connected with the motion picture industry.

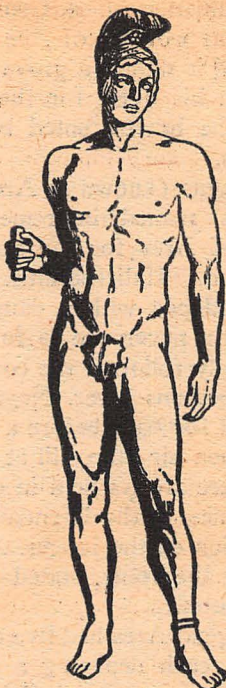

It should of course always be remembered that in most cases only one of the subjects indicated by house and sign applies to the specific chart and that the sign and house influence is fused with, modified or supplemented by the aspecting planets according to their nature, position, and aspects. Thus, trines and sextiles are likely to bring results without obstacles, while squares and oppositions from malefics may mean difficulties, and financially speaking, very often losses. Fortuna, like an arrow, points to the department from which the best financial returns can be expected. For instance, some of the most successful artists and cartoonists have Fortuna in Libra, the art sign. Franklin Delano Roosevelt had Fortuna in Aquarius, in the Fifth House, showing the broad scope of his activities, his high position (the House of the Sun), and his diplomatic talent. Henry Simpson, ex-Secretary of War, has Fortuna in Capricorn, the government sign, in the natural chart, and nothing could be more significant, for the point is aspected to both Mars and Pluto, the war planets. The horoscope of A. F. Pillsbury, head of the great flour milling industry, shows Fortuna in Virgo, the food sign. Charles M. Schwab, the multi-millionaire steel executive, had Fortuna in Scorpio, ruling metals. J. W. Packard, auto manufacturer, had the Part of Fortune in Sagittarius, ruling travel. Barbara Hutton's two Parts of Fortune are in Scorpio and the Eighth House, indicating legacies. Brenda Frazier has Fortuna in the last decanate of Taurus, trined Saturn, showing money from the grandmother. Thomas Fortune Ryan, the famous Stock Exchange speculator, had Fortuna in the third decanate of Sagittarius, which also takes the nature of Leo and rules speculation.

Aspects from the Sun and Mars denote gains by the subject's own efforts in the masculine horoscope, and money from the opposite sex or husband in the feminine chart. Aspect from the Moon and Venus show gains from women; from Saturn they indicate benefits through elderly people, government, mines, etc. Aspects from Mars mean money from or through military matters, men, legacies. In all cases the sign and house that lodges the aspecting planets must be considered.

Transits over the Part of Fortune and the aspecting planets naturally accentuate chances for financial gains. The time of life when such benefits can be expected is determined by Fortuna's position in the natal chart and the location of the aspecting planets. It is also important to note the decanate of the sign in which Fortuna is located. The first decanate of sign or house, for instance, is said to bring gains early in life; the second, in middle life; and the third, late in life.

THE ROMANCE OF MARS

by Eve M. Bacon

THE eccentricity of the orbit of the planet Mars is as interesting a study as the nature of this fiery warlike planet itself. The independence of its movement suggests the aggressive spirit of Mars; the inclination to go its own way despite the laws of nature.

The orbit of Mars lies next to the earth's in our solar system. We have studied Mercury and Venus, the two planets that swing between us and the Sun, and saw how they brought to mankind the traits of reason and love.

Next, Mars symbolizes to mankind the spirit of aggression. He is the warrior; the divine fire or activating principle that spurs humanity upward in its evolution. From Mars we inherit the heat that is manifested in the expression of our ego. And to express that heat, Mars endows us with the iron in our blood (hæmoglobin) that causes oxidation and results in energy.

No matter in what era of history we find the fire principle, it always retains its inherent characteristics. To Rabbinical Angelology the principle was personified in the archangel Uriel. To Luke he was one of the Angels of the Presence and stood to the left of the Throne of God. It was Uriel, according to legend, whom God sent to teach Noah to build the ark. Uriel also presented himself to Esdras to answer his many questions, and it was Uriel who helped Michael in the burial of Adam. Among Hebrew tribes Uriel corresponds to the tribe of Dan, "from which emanated dark sin." In the order of the camp, the standard of Dan stood at the left of the camp to correspond to the archangel Uriel, "the light of God," for God illuminated the darkness of sin by his revelation of the Torah. Milton, in his Paradise Lost refers to Uriel as the "Regent of the Sun, the sharpest sighted spirit of all the Heavens." Longfellow, in his Golden Legend, presents Uriel as the Minister of Mars whose name means "Flame of God."

*I am the minister of Mars,
The strongest star among the stars.
My song of power prelude
The march and battle of man's life.
And for the suffering and the strife
I give him fortitude.*

To the followers of Zoraster the principle of aggression was called Aurai-Al—the splendor or shining forth of Al. He was endowed with the same qualities as Nergal, and was the war-god of the Chaldeans, Babylonians and Canaanites. Many attributes were given to Nergal and among his many titles the most popular were, “the great hero,” “the king of battles,” “the storm ruler,” “the male principle,” and the “strong begetter.” Nergal was undoubtedly of Babylonian origin and some of the earlier inscriptions regarding him are dated as far back as 2700 B.C.

The main seat of worship to Nergal was at Kutha, or Cuthah, where a great and magnificent temple was erected to him and named E-shid-lam. The temple supposedly relates the story of creation, extolling the great feats of Nergal who destroyed the evil spirits of the underworld. In the Second Book of Kings in the Old Testament, Nergal is mentioned as a god of the people of Cuth. Called at times “the raging king,” he was associated with hordes of followers who could slay thousands and tens of thousands through his solar power. In some writings he was featured as the god of the dead, and it was said that wherever he went, violence was predicted to follow. Pestilence was also attributed to Nergal, for pestilence always follows in the wake of war.

The early Phoenicians had a settlement at Piraeus, the port of Athens in Greece, and here they worshiped their god Nergal. But to the Greeks the war-god was Ares. The Greeks attributed his birth place to Thrace, a country particularly noted for its warlike people. The toils and dangers of war were the favorite occupation of Ares and no music was so sweet to him as the din of battle. Greek sculpture presents Ares with a suit of armor, a plumed helmet and a poised spear in his hands, ever alert for battle. The Greeks were the first to give Ares a companion—with him went Bellona, goddess of war, who drove his chariot and watched over him generally. Those two were worshiped together in one temple and legend tells us the Ares-Bellona altars were the only ones ever polluted by human sacrifice. Groves were dedicated to the worship of Ares as well as temples and it was in a grove of Ares that Jason, in his quest for the Golden Fleece, met the brazen-footed bulls and defeated them.

The Areopagus (known as Ares' Hill) in Athens is named in remembrance of the trial of Ares for the slaying of Neptune's son, Halirrhothius. Halirrhothius had eloped with a daughter of Ares, and Ares, never one to forgive an injury, promptly followed the couple and killed the impetuous lover. Neptune demanded a trial for Ares before a tribunal held in the open air on a hill at Athens. Such trials were always held in darkness lest the comeliness of the defendant prejudice the decision of the judges. Ares appeared before the court, stated his case and was acquitted.

In Greek legend Ares had five children, or attendants, each depicting a negative phase of the aggressive principle as we know it today. They were Eris (discord), Phobos (alarm), Metus (fear), Deimos (dread), and Pallor (terror).

The Great Mars

While the Greeks worshiped Ares as a god, it was the Romans who paid him his greatest homage as a hero and god of war, the great Mars. Though he attained his height in worship among the Romans as a war god, Mars had his softer moments. He passionately returned the love of Venus, goddess of love and beauty. He also wooed and won a lovely vestal maiden, Ilia, who forsook her vows as a maiden at Vesta's altar and entered into a clandestine union with the handsome young god. It was to this union that the Romans attribute the birth of the twins Romulus and Remus, who later became the founders of the city of Rome. Mars, greatly pleased with the beautiful city his sons had built, took it under his special protection. Once when a plague raged throughout Rome that threatened to destroy the inhabitants, the Romans, en masse, congregated at the temple of Mars to pray for a token of his favor and protection. As they prayed, the shield Ancile fell from heaven and a loud voice was heard promising that Rome would endure as long as this token of the god's favor was preserved as a sacred memorial. According to the legend the plague was checked immediately and the Ancile was placed as a sacred object in one of their principle temples.

When Roman generals set out to war they entered the temple and touched with their lance the heaven-sent shield and prayed, "Mars, watch over us!" The Roman common soldier believed that Mars marched in person at the head of their armies and led them on to victory. Even the exercising grounds of the army was called Campus Martius, or Field of Mars. When laurel wreaths were won for bravery in battle they were placed at the foot of the statues of Mars as a thank offering for his favors.

The month of March with its usual blustery, uncertain weather was named for the Roman god of war. During this month the Romans held festivals to honor their god. Processions were staged in which the Ancile was carried, preceded by soldiers chanting rude and barbaric war songs. Intricate war dances were enacted by soldiers and citizenry alike. The third day of the week was also associated with Mars and the Romans called it "dies martis," meaning day of Mars.

Our Fiery Planet

Our planet Mars, which is the crystalized form of the fire principle given to man is second only to Mercury in its eccentric orbit. Occultists recognize Mars as the home of the Lucifer spirits who brought to man fire and iron. Mars has two moons, named for two of the sons in Roman mythology. The first is Phobos (alarm) because it travels so fast, and the second is Deimos (dread). We have seen that both Mercury and Venus, the two planets circling between our earth and the Sun have no satellites. Mars, our nearest neighbor on the outer circle of planets, has two. From this we may draw the inference that the Venus and Mercury principles have reached their highest state of evolution in our life cycle. Mars, with two satellites still has some backward spirits who have not been able to keep up with the main life wave of their planet. Thrown off as moons, they prevent the retarding of the pioneer life force developing on the parent planet.

Mars varies in brightness as we see it in the sky. When closest to the earth, it shines with startling brilliancy, perhaps with ten times the intensity of a first magnitude star. Such an exhibition of the fiery planet only occurs about every fifteen years. At other times its light oscillates in brightness—just as its force does in its use by man. For the Mars principle does the world's work. It is the builder, the fire and action of mankind. Used rightly, it is man's most valuable servant, a boon to all creatures. When a man uses the fire forces for constructive purposes only, he will stand forth among his fellow men as powerfully as the planet does at the period of its greatest brilliancy. But used destructively, the servant becomes the master, dimming its beneficial potential into a pale shadow of what it was meant to be. In its destructive power Mars degrades—it becomes the mythological destroyer who lusts for blood, delights in cruelty and revenge, and finally ruins not only the enemy but himself also.

The period of Mars rotation is approximately two years, or to be exact, 687 days. It is smaller than Venus in size with a diameter of 4,230 miles. Its day is about forty minutes longer than our own day, making a year on Mars equal to about 687 of our earth days. The atmosphere on Mars is extremely rare and thin. One of its most outstanding characteristics as seen through a telescope is its two white polar caps.

Every man has the fire principle within himself in some degree. Those who exploit its positive powers are the world leaders for a better civilization, but those who seek to tear down civilization misuse and abuse its aggressive force.

The Place of Mercury in Your Solar Chart

by Newton Batchler

IN the preceding lesson you learned how to set up your solar birth chart, and how to place the Sun in its proper degree position in the First House. Such a chart can give considerable information to the student who earnestly examines it, but it is necessarily a type chart, since anyone born on the same day of the month as yourself, no matter what year, would have an identical Solar-scope.

We are now going to learn how to place each of the planets in your chart, beginning with Mercury, the planet nearest the Sun.

Before starting this phase of our work, let us refresh our memory of Mercury's characteristics. According to the Chart of Key Meanings which appeared in the first lesson in this series, Mercury is "mental, clever, nervous, changeable," and has to do with "teaching, speaking, writing, travelling, skill, use of hands and brain co-ordination." We must remember also that Mercury rules Gemini and Virgo, and is therefore an active expression of the potentialities of these two signs, as well as of their natural houses, the Third and Sixth.

By comparing the meanings of these two signs and their corresponding houses in the Chart of Key Meanings, we see that Mercury is principally an expressor of mental qualities, and that while it would be analytical, orderly, and practical, it would also involve a strong element of change and instability. Mercury does in fact rule the intellect, and when we desire to know what kind of mind a given individual has, we look first at the position of Mercury.

Bearing these facts in mind, let us now discover just where Mercury was at the time of your birth.

Because Mercury is so close to the Sun, it never appears from the standpoint of earth to be more than a few degrees away from the Sun. It will therefore be in the same sign as your Sun, or in the sign immediately preceding or immediately following your Sun. For instance, if you have the Sun in Cancer, then your Mercury must be in Gemini, Cancer, or Leo. This also means that in the solar chart Mercury will always be in your 12th, 1st, or 2nd house.

At the end of this lesson you will find a chart showing the sign position of Mercury from 1880 through 1929. Find the position of your own Mercury for the exact date of your birth, and place it now in the solar birth chart which you began last time.

Now let us consider the interpretation of Mercury's position. Look first at the sign in which Mercury is found. Remembering that Mercury represents your mentality, you must realize that the sign which Mercury occupies will strongly color the quality of your thinking. If Mercury is in Aries, then you will have an Aries type of mind—that is, one with strong initiative, qualities of leadership, great driving power, but you may also be inclined to be headstrong, opinionated, and overly sure of your own ideas. If Mercury is in Cancer, to give another example, your mind will be much more sensitive, conscientious, and perhaps influenced by your emotions; you will also have the type of mentality which responds to other people and understands them perhaps better than they understand themselves.

The above delineations are given only as examples. In order to understand Mercury's position in your own chart and the charts of other people, it will do you little good to memorize interpretations. You must instead learn how to combine the Key Meanings of planets and signs in such a way as to produce an intelligent interpretation in each individual case.

The same principle applies to interpreting Mercury's house position. While Mercury can appear in the Solar Chart only in the twelfth, first, or second houses, you must also take into consideration the houses which Mercury rules in the particular chart you are studying. These will be the houses which are occupied respectively by Gemini and Virgo, since these are the signs ruled by Mercury. As an example, let us look at the sample chart on page 58.

In this chart we find Mercury in Leo in the Second House, ruling the Twelfth House (occupied by Gemini) and the Third House, (occupied by Virgo). Furthermore, Mercury is in its own Third House when we count from Gemini (Mercury's natural First House), and in its own Twelfth House when we count from Virgo (Mercury's other natural First House). We thus find strong emphasis on Second, Third, and Twelfth House influences. We might therefore judge that this person's mind would be on financial matters a good part of the time (Second House)—that he would be "money-minded;" that he would be ambitious for wealth (Leo) and the powers which it confers; at the same time, we would expect a certain amount of introspection and preoccupation with secret worries and fears (Twelfth House); and a strong desire for travel and change (Third House). With Mercury ruling the Third, the natural house of the mind, this person would be definitely intellectual, and since Virgo is in the Third, methodical, orderly, analytical, and practical. The Sun in Cancer would contribute sensitivity and an ability to know what the public likes. Without developing the chart further and noting aspects of other planets to the Sun and Mercury we could not say whether or not this person would be able to acquire wealth, but at least the potentiality would be there.

After studying this example carefully, apply the method to an examination of your own chart and the charts of several people whom you know intimately. Remember, skill in delineation does not come from reading ready-made interpretations, but from grasping fundamental relationships in the charts and interpreting them in the light of your own insight into human nature.

One other factor must be taken into consideration in judging the characteristics conferred by a particular planet in a particular chart, namely, the element of strength or weakness. In certain positions planets are more favorably placed than others. For instance, a planet is strong when in one of the signs which it rules. Conversely, it is said to be in its "detriment"—that is, weakly placed—when it appears in the sign exactly opposite the sign which it rules. In the case of Mercury, which rules Gemini and Virgo, the signs Sagittarius and Pisces represent weak or "detrimental" positions.

In addition to being strong in the signs they rule, planets are also strong or "exalted" in certain other signs with which they show special kinship. Mercury is exalted in Aquarius. By the same token, the sign opposite the sign of exaltation is considered a weak position. Hence Mercury is weak or in its "fall" in Leo.

We may summarize the above facts in the case of Mercury as follows:

	Strong		Exalted in
Ruler of
Gemini
Virgo			Aquarius
	Weak		In Fall in
In Detriment in
Sagittarius			Leo
Pisces

One other cause of weakness or "debility" is the factor known as retrogradation. In reality, no planet ever actually moves backward, but due to the fact that we view the movement of the various planets against the back-drop of the Zodiac, and because the signs of the Zodiac move at a uniform rate, while the irregularities of the orbits of the planets cause them to move at varying speeds in relation to the speed of the earth, it often appears that a planet is slipping backward through a sign. This is simply because the sign is moving faster than the planet when viewed from the standpoint of earth.

When a planet appears to be retrograde, it is weakened for good and accentuated for unfavorable influences. It ordinarily indicates that the phase of life for which the planet stands (the intellectual life, in the case of Mercury) will in some way be interfered with, obstructed, or altogether denied. It often represents something for which the individual has to put up a long struggle, or which he is unable to express freely and openly. In the case of Mercury, we find that persons who have this planet retrograde may have been denied opportunities for formal education, or may have been raised in an environment unfavorable to intellectual pursuits. This does not mean that they will have any the less natural intelligence or desire for learning, but simply that their efforts toward education and intellectual expression may meet with obstructions from time to time.

In interpreting the effects of any planet or sign in the horoscope, it is important to remember that each factor makes up only a part of the whole. No one can be judged entirely by the position of his Sun or his Mercury. If you find in studying your own chart or that of another that the principles so far discussed do not give a correct picture of the personality in question, it is because you have as yet learned how to read only a few of the factors involved.

Nevertheless, it is important that you perfect your grasp of each element in turn. In this way, by the time you have reached the end of this series of lessons you will be an accomplished interpreter of the whole chart. It is only by practice and yet more practice that anyone can become skillful. You would not expect to learn how to play the piano simply by studying the theory of music. Neither can you become a skilled astrologer unless you constantly practice the art by testing your theoretical knowledge on actual charts.

Your Number, Please

— LESSON IV —

Reprinted, by permission, from the book "Your Number, Please" by Helyn Hitchcock

Your Destiny or Expression Number

TOTAL LETTERS OF YOUR FULL ORIGINAL NAME

THE sum of all of the letters of your original full name at birth adding each name separately and reducing this to a single digit is the Destiny or Expression number. It is more important to know your destiny or expression number than any other number as it indicates what vibrations affect you as an individual and how you act or express yourself. This is true regardless of whether or not you ever use your full original name.

The destiny number represents the sum of your natural capacities or talents, and shows the tools with which you have to work in order to succeed or be most comfortable. This is your mental capacity, your method of thinking. Only through your destiny or expression can you attain your goal. It is the WHAT in your life.

In order to illustrate the above let us set up all of the letters of the entire name of Eleanor Irene Underwood, not separating the vowels and consonants.

ELEANOR IRENE UNDERWOOD

The total of these three names equals 7 for Eleanor, 6 for Irene, and 11 for Underwood or  $13+11=4+11=6$ .

Never add the vowel and consonant totals together to determine the destiny or expression number as you are apt to lose an 11 or a 22 destiny, or you may give the individual credit for an 11 or 22 destiny when in reality his destiny number is 2 or 4. Always set up the numbers separately in a straight line.

You will see from the above that the destiny number of Eleanor Irene Underwood is 6. Now turn to the table of Destiny or Expression number to learn the capability of Eleanor Irene Underwood, also what line of endeavor she might successfully follow.

We are all prone to look like what we do. If you are a successful business man you will more than likely look pleased and satisfied (constructive). If your business is a constant worry and struggle you will look harrassed (negative). If you have failed and are in the process of bankruptcy, out of a position, or being sued for debts, you may look pessimistic and discouraged (destructive). Therefore, guard well your actions and impressions by choosing the right expression or destiny. Study your total destiny number and strive to achieve your goal, as only through your Expression or Destiny number can you succeed, since your destiny number indicates the direction you must take. I shall repeat that your destiny number enumerates your talents or capabilities, the tools you have with which to accomplish your work.

Now let us set up the destiny number of Patty Berg, the golf champion who was named Patricia Jane Berg.

PATRICIA	JANE	BERG
71299391	1155	2597	=13=4

The total of Patricia is 5, plus 3 for Jane, and 5 for Berg=13. (1 plus 3=4). The destiny number of Patricia Jane Berg is 4. Turn to the Table of Destiny Number under "4" and study.

Remember that even if you change your name your original name will remain in the background and have considerable effect regardless of your new destiny number, which will also be operating. Therefore, in changing your name bear in mind* your original destiny number which determines your capabilities.

TABLE OF DESTINY OR EXPRESSION NUMBER

NUMBER 1

- Leader, dictator, manager.
- Pioneer, inventor, creator, originator.
- Owner or head of a business.
- Forceful, ambitious, courageous.
- Free and independent thinker, interested in new ideas.
- Salesman, engineer, writer, editor, aviator, electrical specialist, inventor, scientist, teacher.

NUMBER 2

- Statistician, collector, compiler.
- Politician, diplomat, or civil service employee.
- Artist, musician, dancer, singer, sculpturer, decorator.
- Secretary or office worker, librarian.
- World arbitrator or helper, as he is capable of seeing both sides of an issue.
- Organizer, systematizer, cooperater.
- Imitator and follower rather than originator and leader as is a No. 1.
- A sociable, sensitive nature able to make inspirational ideas practical.
- Peacemaker or companion.

NUMBER 3

- Artist in words, either in writing or oratory.
- Entertainer — society, clubs, stage, or writing.
- Humorist, optimist.
- Artist—drawing, designing, or in color combinations such as interior decorating.
- Welfare worker.
- Successful in dealing with foods, drugs, or beauty aids.
- Able to handle children successfully.
- Versatile and good natured.
- Apt to lack the holding qualities of friends and finances.
- Advertiser, musician, lawyer, doctor, real estate broker, hostess, beauty operator, hotel manager, salesmanager.

NUMBER 4

- Efficiency expert or personnel director.
- Office manager, accountant, buyer, banker.
- Belongs before the public.
- Economist, technician, statistician, printer, designer.
- Builder, electrician, draftsman.
- Excels in routine or detail work.
- Systematic, accurate, punctual, logical, analytical, economical.
- Hard worker—busy mentally and physically.
- Seamstress, dressmaker, stenographer, clerk, architect, public work.

NUMBER 5

- World traveller, salesman, promoter.
- Writer, editor, speaker, actor, entertainer, scientist, critic.
- Excellent diagnostician, psychologist, character analyst.
- Interested in occult subjects.
- Generator of pep and enthusiasm, presenting old in a new light.
- Attraction for the opposite sex.

NUMBER 6

- Cosmic parent assuming responsibility.
- Physician, nurse, welfare worker, dietician.

Manager, restaurant, tea room, or hotel.
 Teacher, writer, educator.
 Artist.
 Use voice, i.e. lecture platform, dramatics, singing.
 Community spokesman, real estate dealer.
 Domesticity — needs a home background and family.

Director of international affairs.
 Master builder, buyer, and organizer of large business and utilities.
 Diplomatic executive.
 Can make inspirational things practical.
 Should work with large groups rather than in an individual capacity.

NUMBER 7

Scientific expert or perfectionist.
 Thinker, writer, inventor, astronomer.
 Lawyer, florist, landscape gardener, occultist.
 Clergyman, professor, teacher.
 Authority on antiques and perfumes.
 Positive independent thinker.
 Dislikes orders and commands.
 Works best alone.

Efficiency expert, leader, ruler.
 A 22 who fails to work with the public to the fullest possibilities of this number becomes a 4 and is limited.

Now you are ready to set up a full name consisting of vowels, consonants, and total digits. You learned how to set up the vowels, the consonants, and the total letters of your original full name. As an illustration let us set up the name of Herbert Marshall, actor, whose correct name is Brough Falcon.

NUMBER 8

Good business executive, banker, engineer, corporation lawyer.
 Manufacturer—buying and selling on a large scale.
 Head of a big business corporation.
 Director, organizer, financial advisor.
 Is analytical, cooperative, and tactful.
 Newspaper executive.
 Has good judgment, leadership qualities, and the power to succeed.

THE FIRST three weeks of January are likely to be marked by an emphasis on career and prestige activities. However, during the first ten days of the month, you should be on guard against deception and self-indulgence which could adversely affect partnership matters. The Full Moon of the 7th will probably see a climax of such tendencies in the career and ambition department. From the 11th to the New Moon of the 22nd, however, things should go much more smoothly for you. Indeed, from the 12th to the 18th you should be able to make gains in your profession. During that same interval emotional and romantic affairs should develop pleasantly (13th to 16th particularly) and mental activity, writing and communications will be especially intense and favorable till the New Moon of the 22nd. At that time your New Moon cycle again emphasizes Mercury matters—writing, communications, trips—in connection with your friends and hopes. But you may also have to contend with delays and difficulties due to the Saturn opposition to the conjunction of the New Moon and Mercury. This opposition may slow things up for you until after the 2nd of February, and around the 1st could result in quarrels involving friends and loved ones. From here on there will be an increasing emphasis on your friends. You ought to be very discreet in all romantic matters around January 25th, for sudden and unconventional situations are not impossible. However, a more favorable set of aspects overlaps this difficult period and should enable you to offset it.

To be sure, from the 28th of January to February 17th the Sun, Mercury and Mars form constructive trines to Uranus and Neptune which means that you can greatly improve all of your relationships with others, i.e., partners, friends, relatives and neighbors. This can be a most progressive time during which you should take advantage of the favorable aspects. This period should climax at the Full Moon of the 5th, as Venus then enters your Tenth Solar House and thus makes for social honors. But at the same time, try not to be excessive in what you say or write. Original and aggressive action is supported from the 8th to the 17th along a wide front, but you'll need to curb over-optimism and emotions around the 16th. This tendency will continue until the New Moon of the 21st; therefore don't be over-expansive. Try also to take advantage of the favorable conditions for Mercurial matters at the end of the month before Mercury turns retrograde in motion, which, through most of March, is bound to delay all such activities. There is more of an emphasis on emotional and subjective matters from now on, but don't brood.

This emotional emphasis is very strong as March commences, and while you may be happy in the attainment of some ambition, you should exert self-restraint and avoid going to extremes. A more serious and realistic attitude may be demanded of you around the Full Moon of the 7th when you may tend to rebel at what you face, but be careful for there may be hidden factors in the situation. There is likely to be a tendency for you to be irresponsible and erratic in your thinking; however this can be avoided if you make the effort. You will probably find yourself with a leaning towards intellectual activity through the middle of the month and should be able to surmount any obstacles you meet along such lines. Things may so arrange themselves between the 13th and 20th that you will be able to enjoy your friends in some unusual way. The New Moon of the 22nd brings a more stabilizing force into play and this could favorably affect your love affairs. Then too, Mercury now turns direct in motion and difficulties you may have been having in Mercurial matters should now start to clear up. The last week of the month will call for caution temporarily in all that you do or say, for bad temper, extravagance and even deception may affect your relations with partners and friends.

SPECIAL DATES: Those born March 30th to April 1st should especially guard against deception from others during this three month period. Those who saw the light April 8th or 9th can make unusual friends, while those born between March 23rd and 28th can put independent ventures on a permanent basis.

- Sat., Jan. 4—New interests today seem to be cropping up for many of your sign. This should not prevent regular duties; afternoon shows much in the lines of amusement, and romance.
- Sun., Jan. 5—All in all, you have a good day here, with contacts for pleasure, and to develop your personality. Evening plans should be easy to manage. There's good news too.
- Mon., Jan. 6—Aspects today have a direct application to partnership relations, which means in home as well as business conditions. The necessity for a trip may suddenly arise.
- Tue., Jan. 7—Something outstanding could easily happen under the influence of the Full Moon. You feel a serious interest in your work, and an emotional matter may be near a crisis. Results should be satisfactory.
- Wed., Jan. 8—You have favorable signs, and happiness is ahead for you, if you stick to present enterprises. Try and do your part in plans someone near you is urging you to enter.
- Thu., Jan. 9—Bring any doubts or uncertainties into the open, and you'll clear them up very quickly. Intuition helps today, and aspects are important for achievement.
- Fri., Jan. 10—Don't make the mistake of falling into an easy-going way of regarding obligations to others, for there is no telling when you may look to them for help.
- Sat., Jan. 11—A day when you should be able to work well with others. You should be getting along with new plans, and feel relaxed so you can take advantage of good social aspects.
- Sun., Jan. 12—You should derive satisfaction from regular Sunday associations, and perhaps you will find that some of your dreams are coming true. An old romance revives.
- Mon., Jan. 13—Today should be progressive for those who count on gains from publicity, or through personal contacts; don't be tempted to carry out plans that are not strictly legal.
- Tue., Jan. 14—Keep an eye on domestic and partnership affairs today. A new angle may develop which should be of immediate advantage. Be sure you are undertaking something that you will really enjoy.
- Wed., Jan. 15—You may find a good deal of effort necessary today; the work most likely to go smoothly is along literary rather than artistic lines. Finances slant upward slightly.
- Thu., Jan. 16—Good aspects for changes in employment, especially working for others, or large corporations. Planets are prominent for travel, and general success.
- Fri., Jan. 17—Chances are good for you to continue to work at a job that you like; use this good day to advantage, it is one of your best ones this month under Mercury and Jupiter.
- Sat., Jan. 18—These are good aspects for the one who likes to be kept busy all the time, and who likes something up to date, in the amusement lines. Evening hours are very good.
- Sun., Jan. 19—The day has good aspects for those who like to join others in devotions, study, and sports. If you are quietly inclined, avoid risks of all sorts, spend your time with trusted friends. Enjoy a show.
- Mon., Jan. 20—Get profitable plans to working. Someone in your immediate circle may have good suggestions. Don't turn a deaf ear to anything that is reasonable.
- Tue., Jan. 21—Don't be too ready to lay aside old environments; change is not likely to increase material welfare at this time. Place security first.
- Wed., Jan. 22—There is much lunar emphasis on Eleventh House affairs today; keep to routine business and social matters. Conditions favor financial improvement.
- Thu., Jan. 23—You may not be certain of the career definitely indicated for you, but you can be sure that friends will be true to you. A romantic problem tends to right itself.
- Fri., Jan. 24—Morning aspects help to bring your best side into play, but the afternoon shows dangers of extravagance, and unfavorable influence from friends. Watch your step.
- Sat., Jan. 25—You are in a period when there is some affliction among the planets; this is a time to be cautious in health matters; you should be able to go ahead in business, but use discernment in social relations.
- Sun., Jan. 26—Intimate matters of sympathy and helpfulness where friends are concerned should not be avoided today. Use reasonable care in your own activities. Romance is lucky.
- Mon., Jan. 27—Be constructive, calculating, and you should carry any plans through on this day of bright aspects. Learn to act your true self. Assurance wins the day.
- Tue., Jan. 28—This is a good day to form outstanding contacts, start a new job, or a long journey. For those whose routine is unchanged, influences are powerful and good.
- Wed., Jan. 29—Continued strong aspects, with plenty of luck in the early hours. You should be able to get what you want, but may need advice in financial conditions.
- Thu., Jan. 30—Business ventures show gain, but continue to stick to sound principles, if you would have a good foundation. Keep to good ideals in your social relations.
- Fri., Jan. 31—You may find that things you have been taking for granted are not so steady after all. Test yourself—have you been co-operative? Your welfare may depend on it.

DAILY ADVICE

for Aries

Sat., Feb. 1—Social activities, weddings, and any love affairs, are starred for good results, the first eight days of this month. Letters from relatives and considerable visiting may be expected.

Sun., Feb. 2—Your regular Sunday pattern may be varied by motives of other people, and your interest in them. Give yourself time for personal obligations, rest, relaxation, and some form of interesting reading.

Mon., Feb. 3—Beware of making quick decisions today in shopping. Best moments seem to be in some public place, and due to a meeting with someone you like.

Tue., Feb. 4—Commercial dealings, and legal matters have significance for some, but the general trend of the day shows that regular employment matters are favored, and evening hours can be pleasantly sociable.

Wed., Feb. 5—Your Full Moon is in very good aspect, and you might find yourself fortunate in money matters. This is an aspect for investing, and for personal popularity.

Thu., Feb. 6—Influences are good for unusual social experiences. Be sure these do not make you neglect important duties. You have good rays for creative work, and thinking out workable schemes.

Fri., Feb. 7—Do not let a tempting social engagement take your mind off regular duties. There may be a period of doubt touching you some time today which could interfere with something you very much wish.

Sat., Feb. 8—Take things in your stride today; don't worry over what you can't help. There are many good features in present aspects. A little change in employment conditions will soon show good results.

Sun., Feb. 9—Your interests today hinge on conditions outside your immediate environment. Friendships and church connections can be very bright. Plans for a coming meeting may make you very happy.

Mon., Feb. 10—There is a good deal of action today along employment fronts, and it is especially advisable, in carrying on work, to cooperate with others. Use your judgment in joining evening plans someone else makes.

Tue., Feb. 11—Your greatest danger today seems to come from neglecting an important duty. Aspects are none too good; think over all your plans with great care.

Wed., Feb. 12—There is a good deal of action; the chance of making a serious mistake must not be disregarded. Stick to direct and sure methods. Petty annoyances are a warning to proceed with caution.

Thu., Feb. 13—Sharing responsibilities with another makes it easier for both sides. A new production angle may appear, for two heads are often better than one; push ahead with plans for home entertainment.

Fri., Feb. 14—Long journeys, which may take you to other countries, are in prospect. You have aspects for speculation, which are fairly good, but be watchful nevertheless. Evening aspects better than usual.

Sat., Feb. 15—Choose a type of work today, if possible, where you do not have to confer with others. A serious problem may confront you—be rational and just.

Sun., Feb. 16—There is much good in aspects today, making all relationships pleasant. Valuable aid comes from friends, so mix with people, and enter into social plans. Romantic emotions and hopes should prosper.

Mon., Feb. 17—Keep to your purposes today. All normal affairs should work out well, but it is not a god day to think of making changes. An attraction to the opposite sex may not fit in with your present schemes.

Tue., Feb. 18—A rush of business details may inspire you to put your affairs in order, and get ready for what should be a busy week ahead. You have a fine aspect for public relations, and social club meetings.

Wed., Feb. 19—Don't count your unhatched chickens today, for you, as well as many others before you, may have reason to be disappointed. Business aspects disappointing, but there should be happiness at home.

Thu., Feb. 20—Give yourself a certain leeway today. Your ideas are as good, maybe better, than someone else's. There seems to be a good opening in money channels; give attention to interests that can be productive.

Fri., Feb. 21—The New Moon in your Twelfth House makes for some unfavorable outside circumstances. Keep busy but do the most you can with the least effort.

Sat., Feb. 22—The auspices of the early morning are not very good. Work quietly on some special project, and you should find things smoothing out in the afternoon.

Sun., Feb. 23—There is an active influence for good in all that pertains to your personal affairs. Much interest is centered in a friend.

Mon., Feb. 24—Good conditions today. Certain elements of your success are connected with a newly made acquaintance. But you must remember that love and business are not compatible. Don't plan travel just now.

Tue., Feb. 25—If you have a friend who is in public life, or has legal connections, hold on to him, for such advice may have value some time. Personal affairs are coming to the fore; don't do anything you'll regret.

Wed., Feb. 26—A matter you have been counting on seems to look very good, but don't expect immediate results. Conform with things around you, and be willing to wait.

Thu., Feb. 27—Don't let disagreements and quarreling undo the inducements around you. Your success seems to hinge on what someone else is doing for you. The evening looks fine for following good contacts through.

Fri., Feb. 28—Quiet occupations, such as writing and other desk work, have best aspects this morning. The afternoon and evening can be almost too exciting; don't take chances.

DAILY ADVICE

for Aries

- Sat., Mar. 1—Keep away from uncertain issues today. You will be better off if you keep calm and controlled. Most of your Third House conditions, concerning family affairs, should be good this month. New love affairs taboo.
- Sun., Mar. 2—Letter writing should be avoided today; oral settlement would be better. An unexpected gathering of friends may bring pleasure.
- Mon., Mar. 3—You can find others helpful to you today so meet them with encouragement. Good shopping conditions, at prices to suit you, this afternoon. A meeting of importance and a later surprise likely.
- Tue., Mar. 4—If you are thinking of finishing a strenuous task today, plan only on what you can do alone; aspects not for cooperation. Give a little time to amusement, rest.
- Wed., Mar. 5—Things should not drag at all for you today, and though it is only the middle of the week, social doings are evident.
- Thu., Mar. 6—The average trend today is good for most occupations. During the afternoon, try to care for unfinished business. Some money affairs may be settled before night.
- Fri., Mar. 7—The Full Moon today does not hold good for all your plans. Money or property losses of some kind may trouble you. Keep your eyes open about the value of goods if you are shopping.
- Sat., Mar. 8—Keep plugging away if you want to be satisfied with the way things turn out. Consider the value of little things in making plans for a social weekend.
- Sun., Mar. 9—One thing seems to stand in the way of complete satisfaction today. In some climates weather conditions may interfere; or there may be a screw loose in a personal contact. Proceed with plans nevertheless.
- Mon., Mar. 10—If you can persuade yourself to decide on a definite plan of action, and then stick to it, you should find that the day has definite meaning. Live for the present.
- Tue., Mar. 11—Don't worry too much if things don't turn out just as you want them this morning; aspects for this afternoon are made to your order!
- Wed., Mar. 12—Don't wonder what someone else would do—go ahead and follow your own instincts. Encourage social matters, and the benefits of good company.
- Thu., Mar. 13—You have friendly aspects for personal as well as business affairs. New options may open up; scientific and inventive lines of work seem to be emphasized.
- Fri., Mar. 14—Limit risks this morning and follow the planned routine. Through the afternoon and evening you have beneficial influences; much sociability is likely.
- Sat., Mar. 15—A good many of your interests may depend on outside contacts today. Keep your work in conventional channels, but if you are making pleasure plans, a friend with original ideas may be welcome.
- Sun., Mar. 16—Morning activities should be taken in a leisurely manner, and you will find the afternoon satisfactory. Fresh interests may appear unexpectedly.
- Mon., Mar. 17—You may have to compromise a little bit in carrying out your regular morning plans. It is just as well not to be too active tonight; rest and read.
- Tue., Mar. 18—Things should move along quickly and well today, with good results from shrewd management. If disappointed in your evening engagements, find yourself a hobby.
- Wed., Mar. 19—The Moon going into Aquarius rouses an interest in art matters. It is a day which favors most people in your sign. A new idea or some small changes may raise your status.
- Thu., Mar. 20—This is not the best time to choose for a radical change in your views or routine. Stick to normal plans so you'll not have to explain your actions.
- Fri., Mar. 21—The day should turn out very well, with help from others to develop your ambitions. Pass this on by showing an interest in those you can help.
- Sat., Mar. 22—Lunar aspects today help to wind up those projects that have seemed slow. You have good prospects; keep in force your good rating with others. Don't spoil it by too much haste or tactlessness.
- Sun., Mar. 23—You may not have to look far for points of interest today, for your affairs are merged with family and close friends. Evening seems to be the big time.
- Mon., Mar. 24—Some inner desire may be carried out today. Your luck is holding for good news by mail, and gain through someone you had felt sure was unfriendly.
- Tue., Mar. 25—Conditions may be somewhat disturbed early this morning, but will straighten out in due time. Wait a little while before acting in buying or building plans. Very good social and romantic urges appear.
- Wed., Mar. 26—Things look fair enough in business matters today. You may meet new people, and will have to accommodate yourself to a different point of view. Chin up!
- Thu., Mar. 27—Don't be tempted to rush into new lines of work. Delay plans until the first of next month. Some disturbance appears in personal contacts; avoid censure.
- Fri., Mar. 28—Aspects today may make you over-hasty. Side-step a new cause, until you understand it thoroughly. Serious breaks could happen. Keep contacts rationalized.
- Sat., Mar. 29—You will probably do a great many practical things this morning before turning your mind to recreation. Evening aspects unsettled. Plans may fall through.
- Sun., Mar. 30—The day's aspects look fortunate, and may have a surprise element. The planet Jupiter exerts harmony, and congenial friendships should develop.
- Mon., Mar. 31—Events or occupations seem to center around health conditions today. The coming month should be really worth while. Make the most of it.

THE NEXT three months are part of a very important period in the lives of all natives of Taurus, a period which started last year when Saturn entered Leo in August, and Jupiter, Scorpio—the Sign opposite your birth Sign—in October. During this time all partnership matters are favored (but don't over-expand them), and serious problems involving your home and basic security are to the fore. These friendly aspects will remain until Jupiter leaves Scorpio this October and Saturn leaves Leo in 1948.

You are likely to be concerned with your general outlook during the first three weeks of the month. During the first ten days health matters should be attended to and self-indulgence avoided. After the climax of the Full Moon of the 7th a more favorable set of conditions should ease your path; this new interval lasting from the 11th to the New Moon of the 22nd. Both home and partnership affairs can be improved at this time, and this may involve the aid of an older person. A smooth peak of mental activity should develop between the 17th and the 23rd. After the New Moon there will be an increasing emphasis on your career and ambitions, but you should be prepared for temporary delays which may have their origin at home. Try not to make more difficulties for yourself through quarrels around the 1st. Expect the unconventional around the 25th.

Even though there may be difficult adjustments to be made from the end of January until the 18th of February, circumstances should offer you real opportunities for making progress in career matters and in improving income and working conditions. However, be careful in how you express yourself around the Full Moon of the 5th. During the first half of February press your efforts in dealing with practical matters, but from the 16th to the New Moon of the 21st be careful of over-expansion. The New Moon brings a shift in emphasis from your ambitions to your friendships and aspirations. During the last part of the month trips and communications with friends enjoy unusually favorable aspects, so take advantage of this before Mercury turns retrograde in motion at the month's end, for Mercury continues retrograde through most of March and may slow up progress along such lines.

While you can start March off creatively and with an outlook which promises pleasure, you should be careful of going to extremes where your ambitions are concerned. Your social prestige may receive a set-back around the time of the Full Moon of the 7th, and may involve your home. At the same time you may tend to worry too much and this could hurt your finances. The difficulties are only temporary, and so in spite of a desire to rebel and to go off on mental tangents around the 9th, try not to be so independent where friends and money matters are concerned. At the middle of the month visits to and communications with friends may occupy you but may be slow in tempo. At the same time social advancement can be attained through your own efforts, and, until the 21st, unusual romantic affairs are possible for those who like the unconventional. The New Moon of the 22nd and the advent of Spring indicates a shift in emphasis to the more subjective side of your life. During the next month you should be able to work towards a solution of any problems you have in home and security matters, and you ought to strive for permanence in any arrangements made. However, be extra cautious during the last week of March of any deceptions as to your work, of extravagance where partners are concerned or of quarrels.

You are likely to experience financial highs at the following times: January 2nd to 4th, 30th and 31st, February 25th to 27th, and March 25th to 27th. The lows in income matters may come at the following times: January 14th to 17th, February 11th to 13th, and March 10th to 13th. The best time to assume the initiative in your actions will be at your highs.

SPECIAL DATES: If born between April 22nd and 28th seek for stability in domestic matters and be conservative. Those who were born during the period from May 11th to May 19th should be less sanguine about partnerships where real expansion can be undertaken as long as it isn't overdone.

DAILY ADVICE

for Taurus

- Wed., Jan. 1—A new piece of work, slated for today, is in no danger of being sidetracked; home and family life have good aspects. Pleasant meetings show, and may be helpful in carrying out your special aims.
- Thu., Jan. 2—Much may be expected of you, as promotion is in sight in some department of your work. Don't let flattery ease off your efforts. Afternoon aspects are for routine, but the evening looks lively.
- Fri., Jan. 3—You should now find that interests are working out just as you wish for good permanent results. You have accommodating vibrations, so do your best.
- Sat., Jan. 4—Forceful lunar aspects bring pleasant contacts. Carry on plans you started yesterday but finish early enough to enjoy recreation.
- Sun., Jan. 5—You have steadying influences today; turn your mind to improvement. You may have a talent to develop, and your faculty for meeting people may open new lines.
- Mon., Jan. 6—Aspects particularly important to business matters. There may be delay in carrying through a family plan, but a lively evening is in prospect socially.
- Tue., Jan. 7—The Full Moon today is in a promising sign for love affairs and harmonious partnership relations. Financial questions may arise—consider the economical side.
- Wed., Jan. 8—There may be some changeful elements today, so keep to tried and true methods of doing things; it will be best to go slowly in the afternoon; devote yourself therefore to studious activities.
- Thu., Jan. 9—Keep to a limited scope, if you are thinking of speculation in any sense, though money aspects are good today. There is much promise in general sales lines. Evening can be made very pleasant.
- Fri., Jan. 10—Whatever you are planning to do today, try to see all possibilities of profit and advantage to you. Children figure in some arrangements.
- Sat., Jan. 11—This day should be easier than those just gone. Conditions are more settled, and seem to reach into the future. Inspirational ideas are reliable.
- Sun., Jan. 12—There seem to be plenty of unimportant, but pleasant, affairs crowding your time today. Make things doubly valuable by caring for the spiritual as well as the material.
- Mon., Jan. 13—Favorable rays today. Keep a careful eye on employment conditions where you are concerned. Partnership relations benefit from an infusion of new ideas; don't take responsibility too hard. Do your best.
- Tue., Jan. 14—A good day for practical affairs, and every-day plans. Take advantage of offers for help; small and intimate matters are favored. Evening slow. Relax.
- Wed., Jan. 15—If you possess the knowledge of how to get along with people, many of your hopes and wishes at home and in business will be realized. Friends should be cultivated, not criticized.
- Thu., Jan. 16—The day is keyed to almost anything that is practical of accomplishment. Your plans may depend somewhat on communications, which should be interesting.
- Fri., Jan. 17—A day when things are in high gear, particularly in finances and personal relations. If ideas of romance come your way, don't expect them to mature at once.
- Sat., Jan. 18—Money matters can be better than usual today, and put you in the mood for a special celebration. Evening has discordant aspects, so be moderate.
- Sun., Jan. 19—Pleasant conditions today for usual religious plans; there is much cheer in social contacts. Arrange for an informal gathering, and welcome friends.
- Mon., Jan. 20—Changes are accented this morning and routine work may be upset. Keep to an efficient attitude, for afternoon aspects make good results possible. There is chance of many contacts tonight.
- Tue., Jan. 21—You have four very good hours this morning; later you may have to work around some obstructions, or decide to abandon all activities; luck will be with you tonight though; go to a party or show.
- Wed., Jan. 22—Those who systematize their affairs have the best chance of getting somewhere today. The main thing is to know what you want, and then go after it.
- Thu., Jan. 23—The outcome today depends on your own understanding of how to overcome difficult details. Under the lunar aspects, there may be slight changes in evening plans.
- Fri., Jan. 24—Vibrations brisk, good for speeding up work with mechanical aid, and doing a good job. In conversation, pay no attention to rumors. Stick to facts.
- Sat., Jan. 25—Business matters that you had thought finished can possibly crop up again. You can easily go wrong in the simplest things, unless you are patient and careful.
- Sun., Jan. 26—Look outside of yourself today. Regard the world around you, and the people for whom you can give small, kindly services. Fulfill church obligations.
- Mon., Jan. 27—Business and money returns promising. Avoid rushing over issues. Give consideration to all you say. Never forget a promise and your stock will go up.
- Tue., Jan. 28—This should be an extra good day for contacts with other people if you don't take yourself too seriously. You have some long-range projects in view; go ahead.
- Wed., Jan. 29—There is a little tension in aspects today. Do your regular tasks, and combine your interests with those nearest to you. Things should move quicker this evening.
- Thu., Jan. 30—Necessity should be your guide today. Don't try to oppose existing tendencies. Prudence and foresight should see you through. Get plenty of sleep.
- Fri., Jan. 31—Early morning hours not encouraging for new plans today, but influences from unexpected sources may help you to plan future business, as well as social doings.

DAILY ADVICE for Taurus

Sat., Feb. 1—Prospects are high for those things that depend on your efforts. You can expect money affairs to pick up soon. Travel, too, is under good indications, possibly in connection with a wedding.

Sun., Feb. 2—Normal church interests, followed by healthful recreation, are favored this morning. Social activities and romance are notably good in the evening aspects.

Mon., Feb. 3—There is quite a lot of hard work in view today and most of the week. A public meeting of exceptional interest may give you a new objective, and an adventurous streak in aspects can cause temporary excitement.

Tue., Feb. 4—You should derive encouragement from today's stars, and concentrate your energies to accomplish as much as possible. The planet Venus, sponsor of romances and amusements, is powerful in your aspects just now.

Wed., Feb. 5—A very good day for personal affairs. Under the influence of the Full Moon speculative gains are possible for the experienced. This date is satisfactory for money gains, sociability.

Thu., Feb. 6—A certain amount of help is noted in your aspects today. Office details, and some buying and selling seem to take time and attention this afternoon.

Fri., Feb. 7—The quality of your work should insure a good output. Headwork will count, and help you to control every condition you are likely to face. Social life follows definitely congenial lines.

Sat., Feb. 8—The best possible day for extra projects you want to put through. Do not overlook nearby opportunities to make extra money; manage also to conserve what you can, over and above legitimate expenses.

Sun., Feb. 9—A close associate may be able to give you some new ideas. You have strongly cooperative aspects, which should bring out the best points in all your contacts. Romantic and social conditions are propitious.

Mon., Feb. 10—An unsuspected slant crops up in a hitherto casual contact; giving and receiving favors works to mutual enjoyment. There is stress on creative efforts. Your own ingenuity may open new earning channels.

Tue., Feb. 11—You may be plagued with uncertainty this morning; don't give way to self-indulgence. You will be more settled in your mind by mid-afternoon and have a better time generally in all your relations.

Wed., Feb. 12—Base all your actions on practical reasons, or your contacts will not turn out any too well. Play safe, and try to keep settled in your mind.

Thu., Feb. 13—An occasion to take part in a public meeting may surprise you if you are not used to the limelight. You may see people who will interest you very much, and perhaps renew an old friendship.

Fri., Feb. 14—It looks as if you have a good day for legal or speculative ventures. You may find yourself attending to a number of unusual affairs. Correspondence is helpful.

Sat., Feb. 15—Govern yourself by reason, not impulse, today. Don't put emphasis on minor work details. Instead, plan for relaxation, or carry out personal plans, such as shopping or visiting, before the day ends.

Sun., Feb. 16—A day filled with prime interests, and good for celebrations, outdoor sports, and neighborhood doings. Judging by lunar aspects, there may be romance too.

Mon., Feb. 17—A good general day, with Jupiter in your Eighth House, making for nice business conditions which are likely to bring quick results. Educational matters go well. Evening promises to be merry.

Tue., Feb. 18—Aspects today fit in with a good practical working scheme, with enough to splash over for making the social contacts so important to many. You should fare favorably in all you do.

Wed., Feb. 19—Keep your plans orderly today. A minor business matter may come up, with the reminder to put all conditions in writing for permanency. A change of scene or a short trip may be advantageous.

Thu., Feb. 20—Be systematic in what you do today. You may be kept pretty busy in furnishing immediate surroundings. Keep out of financial dealings, for there seems to be a good deal of difficulty in speculation.

Fri., Feb. 21—There seems to be a free and easy side to aspects today, making informal contacts work out very satisfactorily. Domestic affairs are on a good footing.

Sat., Feb. 22—Extra planning may be needed to carry out weekend celebrations. Postpone until afternoon, and you will find the going smoother. If you travel, avoid risks.

Sun., Feb. 23—This is a much better day than yesterday for all sorts of sports and festivities. Take care of property and plan recreations. Your Sunday interests and all church work is favored.

Mon., Feb. 24—The days begin to fly toward the end of the month. Cement any connections which should prove valuable in the future, and work up any bright ideas that could benefit you. Keep mentally alert.

Tue., Feb. 25—Aspects of your planets this morning not significant. Normal duties go best. Late afternoon forces become interesting and eventful, showing contacts where you may have a leading part.

Wed., Feb. 26—Your surroundings this morning may not suit you entirely, but some form of worry should have lifted by afternoon, increasing your power to expand work and recreational plans.

Thu., Feb. 27—You may have to combat some contradictory forces, but good judgment will quicken the mind, and develop encouraging prospects for purposes on your program.

Fri., Feb. 28—Your morning aspects are at routine level; hold what you have been able to gain so far this month. Afternoon influences will help you continue to progress.

DAILY ADVICE

for Taurus

Sat., Mar. 1—Those sign members engaged in branches of government work will find extra effort worth while, if they wish to strengthen their positions. Visits through travel, and some changing conditions likely.

Sun., Mar. 2—An interesting day, with eventful family affairs, makes your prospects rather unusual for the day. Church services, and other meetings bring pleasant contacts.

Mon., Mar. 3—Something may be very gratifying to you today—perhaps the purchase of new spring clothes and a gala occasion for airing them may lift your thoughts above the daily grind. You have aspects for expansion.

Tue., Mar. 4—Not all forms of speculation are connected with money; you take chances in almost everything you do. Mercury should help you by clarifying issues for you just now.

Wed., Mar. 5—Methods or motives seem about to take a spurt ahead. An urge for promotion, or the desire for more money, may be the reason. Evening plans significant.

Thu., Mar. 6—The basis of your life may be business concerns, but part of your day is influenced by home conditions. Be broad-minded in dealing with family members.

Fri., Mar. 7—The Full Moon coming into your Fifth House today has the effect of making you feel despondent. However, this should soon be forgotten, in the press of daily tasks.

Sat., Mar. 8—You have a good day, when contacts, and working relations are cooperative. Since the Moon in Virgo promotes all kinds of collaboration, you should turn this aspect to your advantage.

Sun., Mar. 9—You will have to be aware of the undercurrents and cross-purposes in your aspects today, to really make the most of your contacts. Entertainment and sociability have a god chance to help out, tonight.

Mon., Mar. 10—Your greatest gain today comes from taking a happy attitude in work that you share with someone else. Your tendency for enthusiasm is increased by Mars' rays.

Tue., Mar. 11—Some of your best interests may be slowed up today, messages delayed, or helpers absent, but you should be able to get some results if you are patient.

Wed., Mar. 12—Jupiter's present slant should bring something good to you—maybe through the influence of other people. Be hospitable tonight; show an interest in neighbors.

Thu., Mar. 13—Follow out systematic plans; things seem promising for original aims and artistic work. You may contact people who have very positive ideas—a chance for tact, not dissension, on your part.

Fri., Mar. 14—Aspects insure things connected with comfortable living. Business interests should go well, and there seems to be a chance for good times with others later tonight.

Sat., Mar. 15—Indications are for success from some fortunate move you have made lately. Don't let this cause you to rush into an unknown situation.

Sun., Mar. 16—You doubtless have your own favorite way of spending the day, so concentrate on the things you like, and the people you want to be with.

Mon., Mar. 17—Whatever else your day brings, you may be happiest when you are doing something with your hands. Keep up-to-date in methods. Take some exercise, then rest.

Tue., Mar. 18—In general, you should find this a very good day. Recent information may be the means of helping work conditions. Good influences for romance.

Wed., Mar. 19—You can carry on today under about the same influences as yesterday. Keep in line with public trends of thought. Aspects for the evening seem to be sentimental.

Thu., Mar. 20—A day for results, if you use discrimination in what you do and say. Catch up loose threads; be sure all promises are kept. Make the most of good social ways.

Fri., Mar. 21—You have good vibrations today, and you may hear that a friend will join you in a business or social plan. Put your surroundings in order; it will give you a sense of efficiency and preparedness.

Sat., Mar. 22—Today's rays are very good for promoting new business plans, and something you are doing may show increased money returns. The Moon accents personal affairs.

Sun., Mar. 23—It is better to keep to a regular Sunday program this morning; the afternoon shows varied interests, with promise in the amusement and pastime lines.

Mon., Mar. 24—Carefulness should be your keynote this morning. Your plans may sound all right, but you have some doubtful elements to consider before you can expect results.

Tue., Mar. 25—Count a little more on your own judgment today; you may have been too dependent on someone else. Your intuition has real value, so work out important plans. Make home attractive for evening get-togethers.

Wed., Mar. 26—You may soon find that something you have been working on will have the results you had hoped for. You may have to read and study to keep up this good work.

Thu., Mar. 27—A little variety promised: remember that publicity and advertising are essential to good business. Whatever job you get now should offer prospects of growth.

Fri., Mar. 28—You have Mars elements today which may cause some boisterous moments this morning. Stick to your job.

Sat., Mar. 29—Most of your plans and work are connected with home and its interests, but do not let them interfere with office hours. Keep the evening relaxed and moderate.

Sun., Mar. 30—Beneficial influences today. Feel an interest in all that goes on around you. Enjoy active recreation in the afternoon.

Mon., Mar. 31—A day calling for your best insight, in business and family efforts. Mental work provides added detail this morning. The evening looks good for social life.

YOUR YEAR commences with an accent on hidden and emotional matters through the first three weeks of January. Be careful during the first ten days that you are not misguided in some way. This difficulty should culminate with the Full Moon of the 7th, after which a very favorable period starts around the 11th, lasting until the New Moon of the 22nd. Health matters can be cleared up in that time, whether they be physical or psychological in character. All partnership affairs can be improved and put on a better basis. You can do some concentrated mental work between the 18th and the 23rd. In all of this, hidden and subjective factors are vital. The emphasis shifts away from the emotional and subjective to your outlook on life after the New Moon of the 22nd, but until after February 2nd you may experience temporary set-backs and thus find your outlook somewhat grim. Try to keep your temper in spite of this and be patient over any delays in distant matters with which you are concerned.

But even before the difficulties are over in early February, more promising conditions should commence to form around January 28th which will be in force till the 18th of February. They should make it possible for you personally to attain some of your most cherished aspirations and bring emotional fulfillments, but enterprising action along a broad front is required of you to make this opportunity a reality. Guard your mental health at the time of the February 5th Full Moon which should mark the climax in these developments. Continue to be careful of your health in general from the 16th to the New Moon of the 21st and don't let the roseate outlook mislead you into excesses. A new emphasis now starts to come into play in which career matters are accentuated. Furthermore, they will be given a Mercurial cast until April and this means that any communications, trips or visits will be important to you. This should be very favorable until the end of the month after which time Mercury will be moving retrograde throughout most of March — which may slow up your progress.

Emotional warmth and expansiveness should permeate the first days of March, but don't let this color your outlook so much as to interfere with your judgment. The second week of the month, whose start is marked by the Full Moon of the 7th, calls for a soberer attitude, as career matters are likely to demand your attention. You may be overly independent in such matters and will need to display restraint if your reputation is not to suffer. This temporary condition will be followed by an opportunity for some unusual and satisfying personal fulfillment between the 12th and the New Moon of the 22nd, and the same period should find you mentally stimulated and expressive. The New Moon starts off a cycle in which a lasting adjustment can be made in your relations with your friends, especially those who are older, and emphasizes friendships and your aspirations in general. Furthermore, now that Mercury has turned direct in motion (23rd) the delays and tangles of recent weeks should start to clear up and thus make more rapid progress possible. However, during the last week of the month you ought to practise some self-discipline, so as not to be too independent or over-ambitious, and ought also to consider your health. In addition, you should be careful that you know what you are doing in any love affairs, for you could be easily misled; keep your head.

Your lunar money cycle goes from a high mark between the 4th and 6th of January to a low point between the 17th and 19th. Then it returns to another high on the last day of the month and the first two days of February. After this it declines to a low between February 13th and 15th, but rises again to a high mark the last day of the month and the first day of March. The low in March comes from the 13th to 15th and a second high between the 27th and 29th. The best time to take the initiative is on the highs.

SPECIAL DATES: If born May 23rd to 28th, engage in concentrated mental activity. Those born May 31st to June 2nd can find fulfillment in affairs of the heart, while those who saw the light June 8th to 10th ought to be independent, enterprising and original in thought and deed.

DAILY ADVICE

for Gemini

- Wed., Jan. 1—Talent, and your own self-assurance, seems to fill most needs today. Mental work and devotion to a public cause should yield benefits under present aspects. Join sociable friends in the evening.
- Thu., Jan. 2—Attending to routine work this morning may be a struggle, but don't be discouraged; the worst will be over by evening, and you can follow your own wishes.
- Fri., Jan. 3—A mixed day, filled with usual duties, and satisfaction in doing them well. But there are flaws in the evening aspects; you may have to limit activities and diet.
- Sat., Jan. 4—With reasonable care in deciding plans, you should be able to compromise with slowed down aspects. Finish work you have started, then look for exciting entertainment.
- Sun., Jan. 5—Aspects seem to be shaped to order today. Companionship can be important, and little things may happen, foreshadowing a thrilling friendship, which may lead to romance. Church contacts count.
- Mon., Jan. 6—Creative and industrial interests in original phases should help develop finances. Evening seems to be important in the travel department.
- Tue., Jan. 7—Plan to get the utmost out of the present period. The Full Moon in your First House rules personal affairs, and may make all the difference in the world in matters which have been bothering you.
- Wed., Jan. 8—Your own initiative can start things right today, and friends have much to offer in the way of encouragement and help. An investment, either in a business or a desirable property, has fine aspects.
- Thu., Jan. 9—Efforts worth while today. There is a hint of change—avoid hasty moves unless they tie with present interests. Social and business contacts satisfactory.
- Fri., Jan. 10—You have a constructive aspect; be systematic in home and office work. You will probably have more contacts than usual, and evening seems good for social affairs.
- Sat., Jan. 11—As the week draws to an end, lay aside the things you can't finish, and go in for the social enjoyments of your environment. There is optimism in the air.
- Sun., Jan. 12—You should make out well today. Watch opportunities for pleasant contacts, if you are free from work, arrange for entertainment in your home.
- Mon., Jan. 13—Maybe you are making great plans for work you will do this week; promote yourself or your product, in quarters where it will do most good. Artistic and entertainment pursuits are greatly in favor.
- Tue., Jan. 14—A good time for quick, lively action, and for meeting with people who will be inspiring and helpful. Evening good.
- Wed., Jan. 15—A typical working day; after all, you will not gain much unless you stick to the job. There are good results for mechanical and chemical interests. Be careful with tools, however.
- Thu., Jan. 16—Strive for improvements in whatever you do; personal affairs are promising. Some change of plans may put new pep into getting results this afternoon.
- Fri., Jan. 17—This is the best possible day for new plans, and for financial results. Be enterprising—people that you come in contact with may have suggestions which you can use.
- Sat., Jan. 18—Another day that can be worth while. Make yourself responsive to the good around you. Keep your own thoughts balanced and you should be the gainer.
- Sun., Jan. 19—Most of your troubles today seem to be in your own mind—the results of introspection. Do not let this side track you from enjoyment of your day of rest.
- Mon., Jan. 20—There may be certain changes of plans today. Avoid a feeling of confusion by having everything clear and aboveboard at the start. The aspects are good for business as usual in the afternoon.
- Tue., Jan. 21—The evening seems to be the pleasantest part of this day. Keep up your duties, and deny yourself needless worry. Efficiency can find the way out.
- Wed., Jan. 22—Aspects are somewhat against your best interests today. Avoid controversy with friends and associates. Don't expect success through relying on others. Letters received and written offer cheer.
- Thu., Jan. 23—A realistic view is important today, and will help along your efforts. Do not work too feverishly, but try rather to build up good will. Evening aspects rosy.
- Fri., Jan. 24—Aspects should fill you with energy. Start work by systematizing affairs in hand, and you will be ready for anything new that may come up.
- Sat., Jan. 25—Affairs materially slowed down. Things may not turn out satisfactorily if you disregard need for caution. Social affairs are active, but something may be upsetting. Get the other person's viewpoint.
- Sun., Jan. 26—You have bright and lovely aspects this morning, and the promise of a friendly social evening. But this afternoon you'll have to look for the silver lining.
- Mon., Jan. 27—A day that will call forth your skill, for you can never tell when a bright thought of yours can prove really valuable. The outlook is good for entertainment.
- Tue., Jan. 28—The planets in your Eighth and Ninth Houses are very favorable. Use your best ideas to develop work in hand. Strenuous effort can increase your gains.
- Wed., Jan. 29—Ordinary ideas, skillfully worked out, can turn your liabilities into assets today. If possible, work by yourself.
- Thu., Jan. 30—There is not too much excitement today. Domestic affairs emphasized. After work is finished, take in a show or visit a friend.
- Fri., Jan. 31—Changes on the way, not altogether to your liking, may take some time to develop. Unexpected expense seems certain; stabilize routine work if possible.

Wed., Feb. 5—Active rays of the Full Moon will be largely mental in their effect, stirring your imagination, and helping self-expression. You should have no trouble writing letters or doing literary work.

Thu., Feb. 6—Make a point of getting about amongst friends today; it will keep you from getting into a rut. Contacts formed may improve business routine.

Fri., Feb. 7—You should have a pleasant feeling at the end of this day, for much can be accomplished under its fast-moving aspects, with results above the average. Family life is under good rays.

Sat., Feb. 8—Business and correspondence fill a portion of the day. Keep your thinking clear, and you will get good results quicker. Allow plenty of time if you go shopping, so as not to be hurried in your selections.

Sun., Feb. 9—Vibrations are encouraging today. Family associations, and activity are indicated for the morning. Sociability characterizes the afternoon. Meeting with an old associate may have value for you.

Mon., Feb. 10—The day should be pleasant and profitable, depending more on personal meetings than communications. Evening seems uncomplicated. You may have cheering news.

Tue., Feb. 11—Follow your routine this morning. Be particular about detail. You may be upset by trifling irritations—remember not to magnify them. Something unexpected may show this evening.

Wed., Feb. 12—Lunar signs are not too good today. You may have difficulty through weather or health conditions. Keep in your regular channel. While travel is evident, the conditions are very confused.

Thu., Feb. 13—The morning seems to be an important period, having to do with manual work, and skilled methods. Your Moon is in Scorpio, showing perseverance.

Fri., Feb. 14—Take the utmost care of your family business and social relations today. This is not a day to take chances with your well-being. Kindly understanding will give you insight into the proper course.

Sat., Feb. 15—A day of uncertain aspects. You may not be able to stick at anything long enough to see it finished. Don't take too much for granted this evening. Aspects vague.

Sun., Feb. 16—Do not neglect religious services, nor those home affairs which devolve on you. There is a good trend toward normal social activities. If emotional interests are on the carpet, don't let them control you.

Mon., Feb. 17—Business relations very good. You may be entrusted with shopping or financial errands for someone else. Good vibrations are coming steadily your way, and celebrations may be in order.

Tue., Feb. 18—Mars, working from your Ninth House, helps develop the fundamental requirements of skill, and boosts employment. Avoid physical strain this evening.

Wed., Feb. 19—Everything gets off to a very good start this morning. Watch for a drag in tendencies around noon time, but regardless of setbacks, much can be finished. The evening shows pleasant contacts.

Thu., Feb. 20—Continue your routine work during the day. There is slightly more stimulation than yesterday, but watch your assets. Do not start new business matters until you have looked into them well.

Fri., Feb. 21—Don't waste time today in foolish frittering that will get you nowhere. There are unexpected changes which may cause you to be hopeful and discouraged by turns. Evening aspects are more stable.

Sat., Feb. 22—Progressive influences still lacking where employment is concerned. You need steady control to keep going. Things change for the better by evening.

Sun., Feb. 23—Rest a while this morning, for indications are for a busy day. Happy hours are found with home and family interests. Forget business—relax and be sociable. Afternoon hours are the best.

Mon., Feb. 24—A favorable day. Interesting developments may bring a streak of luck your way. Be alive to new conditions. There is much that you may be able to do to help others; make use of your advantages.

Tue., Feb. 25—This has aspects of a lucky day, if you know what to do about it. Rays are very active—so do not be afraid of a little hard work. You may soon be able to afford little luxuries that you've been wishing for.

Wed., Feb. 26—Keep your opinions to yourself, regarding other people's affairs. Talk about safe, impersonal things, and attend to your own work. There should be plenty at hand to occupy you in essential ways.

Thu., Feb. 27—You have a brisk day promised, with friendly inducements at hand. Make the most of your plans and ideas, and skip controversy. Recreational interests may claim you this evening; join friends.

Fri., Feb. 28—Give a thought to next month's business. The discordant attitude of Mercury may cause some tension. Aspects this morning good for business.

DAILY ADVICE for Gemini

Sat., Mar. 1—It will be vital to your success today to have a cheerful way of viewing things that you cannot help. It is what you do, that really counts. Evening aspects good.

Sun., Mar. 2—You have good rays today. Devote time to church connections; your judgment and good spirit attracts many friends. Don't start too many interests this afternoon, or you will find them boring.

Mon., Mar. 3—Work of a practical nature can bring out your talents; keep details in order, and results will tell how well you have managed. The appeal of romance is favored.

Tue., Mar. 4—Interesting aspects for exact work, particularly if connected with metals, and tools. Children in this sign are usually handy with materials, and good at games.

Wed., Mar. 5—Your individual tendencies count here, to root out things you do not like, and plan for improvements. New ideas, and publicity work are all suited to present conditions. Evening social.

Thu., Mar. 6—A good time to cash in on the detail work you have been doing. There may be extra demands on your time; get help if you need it. Do not wear yourself out.

Fri., Mar. 7—Take note of the fact that the beautiful Full Moon comes to you with adverse tendencies. Business matters look especially unsettled, with money very slow.

Sat., Mar. 8—Lunar changes, coming on today, give you a better grasp of your affairs, and the cooperation of others adds strength. Prospects seem greatly improved over yesterday, and you can relax for a pleasant weekend.

Sun., Mar. 9—Morning vibrations helpful. Sunday schedules should work out well. Good talks with friends clarify the mental and social atmosphere. Correspondence in order.

Mon., Mar. 10—Carry out work as planned. Keep on the right road and really work, and you should see results. The evening will probably be uneventful from a social standpoint; hold to clear-cut issues.

Tue., Mar. 11—Unpleasant tendencies this morning. Don't start out too fast and furiously on mere guesswork; wait until afternoon when aspects are fortunate.

Wed., Mar. 12—The interested efforts of a relative may bring about something very good. With a good start, you have won half the battle. You should find the evening sociable.

Thu., Mar. 13—You may be surprised at the amount of money a little persistent effort can save. The trend of your planets is for slow sure progress, though the active planet Mars comes in for some speculation too.

Fri., Mar. 14—You may think you have an incentive to speak your mind for someone else's good, but you had better be tactful. Aspects show risks this morning; harmony later.

Sat., Mar. 15—The morning hours have routine tasks, which satisfy your feeling of system and security. Partake in recreation and sports in the afternoon, and go to a show tonight.

Sun., Mar. 16—You should be able to see your friends, or fill quiet engagements, but aspects in general point mainly to relaxation and attention to personal matters.

Mon., Mar. 17—While you have very good business aspects, use care in finances; don't let your desires run away with you. Sociality limited tonight. Take what you can get.

Tue., Mar. 18—Be on the lookout for new ideas that can be profitable to you individually. You may have to consider waiting a while for results, but unless you are very young, you should accept delay with patience.

Wed., Mar. 19—Possibilities are bright today. You are linked with very good contacts, some of which will help your aims. Finish each job systematically, and you will be free of nervous tension when night comes.

Thu., Mar. 20—Your day is important in many ways. Build up on a stable basis, so that no trouble will arise if you have a rush of detail work. Pleasant evening contacts indicated.

Fri., Mar. 21—Your day is molded pleasantly, and partners or family members help to push satisfactory plans through. Work conditions seem to be settling into a good routine.

Sat., Mar. 22—You have helpful lunar influences, which put strength into your plans. Interest is aroused in the affairs of others, and your own outlook is broadened thereby.

Sun., Mar. 23—With the spring season underway, outdoor recreation becomes important and necessary. Take time for self-study and improvement, and for your regular devotions.

Mon., Mar. 24—New people show in your horoscope today; you are under generally good auspices. Plan to have a happy evening with friends, but reserve some time for studies.

Tue., Mar. 25—The outlook is pleasant for domestic and business relations offer much to keep you happily occupied. A property condition may concern other people, and bring about very memorable contacts.

Wed., Mar. 26—Interests today will be largely influenced by work you are just beginning. Circumstances seem generally helpful. Signing agreements favored. Be with family.

Thu., Mar. 27—Lively aspects today may make your day almost too exciting. You had better ignore any tendency to take foolish chances. Be direct and sure in method.

Fri., Mar. 28—It will be better to work along routine lines today; if you have worries, keep them to yourself. This is no time to bring up any money discussions.

Sat., Mar. 29—The end of the week is the usual time to do marketing or shopping for personal needs. Sports, and romantic matters, are strong and short trips are in order.

Sun., Mar. 30—Encourage a settled feeling today. Concentrate on your immediate surroundings. Aspects are good for hospitality; and a cheerful frame of mind helps all contacts.

Mon., Mar. 31—There are changes due through aspects today. Hold to moderate action, and make workable plans for the days to come. Be careful in travel. Evening rays good.

DURING THE first three weeks of January partnership matters are stressed, and you should be on guard against self-indulgence, misleading illusions and quarreling during the first ten days. A climax is due at the Full Moon of the 7th and after the 11th a new and more harmonious tide commences running. Matrimonial matters and partnerships should brighten up, and in addition, expansion along independent lines is promising. The middle of the month shows satisfying aspects for marriage and romantic interests. Self-expression and intellectual activity are intensified from the 18th to 23rd, with the New Moon of the 22nd ushering in a cycle of increased productivity. But beware of speculation and unwise spending during the last week of the month, which may be a tense period. And be especially careful of clandestine and sudden romantic developments around the 25th. Be discreet, and until after February 2nd, avoid any disputes over money which might bring about financial losses.

Even before these difficulties end a new train of conditions should start to form, and a much pleasanter and more promising trend should start. This applies to the interval from January 28th to February 18th and you should be able in that time to promote and improve all joint financial endeavors in unusual ways. Be careful not to let your tongue wag too freely around the Full Moon of the 5th, and from the 16th to the New Moon of the 21st you will need to restrain any tendency towards extravagance or overconfidence along independent lines. The New Moon cycle starts an emphasis on your life-outlook which may seem bright; it also commences a period in which Mercurial matters—trips, writing, visits, communications—will be underscored. Be sure to deal with this sort of thing before the month ends for the aspects are unusually favorable, but will not continue to be so once March starts, since through most of March, Mercury will be moving retrograde. Therefore act before things become clogged up.

Don't be too extravagant where joint finances are concerned when March begins, but at the same time, you may find that your relationship with your marriage partner or loved ones is especially gratifying. With the Full Moon of the 7th the atmosphere may cool emotionally and grim realities force their way to your attention. The issue is likely to be over joint finances, and you seem to be anything but dependable. Being too independent, or even a rebel, is merely going to cause trouble so hold yourself in; conditions will soon improve. All of this may take place below the surface but it will be nonetheless real. The improvement, which should affect partnership money matters, ought to get under way around the 12th and should last until the New Moon of the 22nd. During that period try to advance home interests, and don't hesitate to use unusual methods. You are also likely to seek to express yourself, but until Mercury turns direct in motion on the 23rd all such activities will tend to be held up. The New Moon initiates a cycle in which the emphasis is on your career and on practical matters. Start it off by being conservative in reaching some lasting arrangement that strengthens your financial position, all of which is possible now, for this is the opportune time to act. But be careful in the last week of the month concerning excesses or extravagances resulting from social activity. Tempers may be on edge and you must remember not to be dogmatic. Above all be careful of being misled in career and basic security matters.

Your lunar financial cycle reaches its peak January 6th to 8th but then falls to a depth from the 20th to the 22nd. After this it rises to a high from February 2nd to 4th, and again declines to a low between the 16th and 18th. It increases during the latter part of February and is at a peak from the 2nd to the 4th of March. It again subsides from the 15th to the 17th, but from the 29th to 31st is again at a top. Act on the highs.

SPECIAL DATES: If born July 1st to 4th be on guard against false illusions as to your home and domestic matters, and if born July 12th to 21st, you should be able to promote and expand in independent and speculative ventures.

DAILY ADVICE for Cancer

Wed., Jan. 1—The year opens with an element of pleasure in its aspects. Your own setting dictates forms of recreation, and there is a general tendency for visits, and renewals of old ties.

Thu., Jan. 2—The day has fortunate aspects if you go about them in a reasonable way and do not feel overloaded with duties. Strong interests seem to center around writing.

Fri., Jan. 3—Things will not go slowly today, though some restriction may be felt in money matters. Study conditions well, if you consider making any investment, and work out your problems in your own way.

Sat., Jan. 4—A good day for travel, and the last fling before the work of the year starts in. There may be partings, from friends you will not see soon again.

Sun., Jan. 5—This should be an interesting and colorful day. With an inclination on your part to live and plan constructively, it should guide you to spiritual understanding.

Mon., Jan. 6—Try to get a good insight into business matters which concern you, and work will be lightened, benefits increased. One of your best days in a social way.

Tue., Jan. 7—You have the Full Moon in your own sign today—a very good time for things that you desire. It helps to start the New Year with propitious relations in family and employment connections.

Wed., Jan. 8—You will be wise to work with your helpful vibrations today. One of the easiest days to have things right, and to make progress socially.

Thu., Jan. 9—This is a creative day for you, according to aspects. Put original plans through, and you should stand well, no matter how keen the competition is.

Fri., Jan. 10—Personal affairs may give you some unsatisfactory moments today. Get home and working conditions in good order. Aspects favor discussions and agreements with associates.

Sat., Jan. 11—Build up self-assurance if you are undertaking new business schemes. You have a productive day, though benefits may not show at once. Make good evening plans.

Sun., Jan. 12—Family and church contacts will be your standby today. Turn down any plans for sudden trips, as influences are retarding. Avoid health risks.

Mon., Jan. 13—Use your judgment this morning, as well as business ability, for there may be some tense situations. The evening is under the kindly rays of Venus, so you will have little to worry about socially.

Tue., Jan. 14—Though your interests may be mainly in commercial work, there are expansive vibrations which may bring artistic and creative work to your attention.

Wed., Jan. 15—There are friendly aspects for practical ambitions. Domestic and personal interests should not lag. Neptune in the sign of Libra makes you welcome companionship.

Thu., Jan. 16—Your sign planet, the Moon, increases your vitality, and helps you to accomplish things that will do the most good. Be with friends and enjoy the evening.

Fri., Jan. 17—Aspects continue their encouraging trend. A pleasant encounter early this morning gives a forward push to business you are interested in. Heart affairs prosper.

Sat., Jan. 18—Get off to a good start in matters that have to be finished up. Your aspects seesaw between the good, and not so good. Keep to routine in evening.

Sun., Jan. 19—A very good Sunday with planetary influences harmonious. A good many interesting things go on around you, some of which may have a bearing on transportation and family plans.

Mon., Jan. 20—This morning's activities seem charged with uncertainty. If you are facing more work than you had planned on, try to devise short cuts. Avoid discussions.

Tue., Jan. 21—Keep on with what you started yesterday. Things may seem troublesome, but they are to your interests. Show your best side, and the evening will be happy.

Wed., Jan. 22—Lunar aspects bring out confidence in your own efforts, but there is need to avoid overstepping your bonds. Consider the tastes and inclinations of associates.

Thu., Jan. 23—Don't let plans for pleasure take money that was intended for necessities. Although you have very good rays, you will be better off if you look for cooperation from helpful sources.

Fri., Jan. 24—You have splendid rays for scientific and mechanical activities, and money affairs. Excellent rays prevail from 2 p.m. until midnight.

Sat., Jan. 25—Take account of good contacts formed some time ago. Your aspects show inducements, but good sense must prevail, for a sudden impulse may cause quick words and bring about a confusing condition.

Sun., Jan. 26—Early aspects are cheery; be considerate in family matters, but later, avoid much exercise or effort. Carry out good social ideas in the evening.

Mon., Jan. 27—Work with the determination to succeed today, and you should get whatever you want. Career plans favored. An undercurrent of uncertainty may make itself felt, however.

Tue., Jan. 28—Increasingly favorable influences for keeping things moving quickly. A great deal of interest is centered about a friend. Be helpful in everyday affairs.

Wed., Jan. 29—While work conditions are not too good today, make the most of what advantages you have. The Moon in your Tenth House indicates ordinary routine in business.

Thu., Jan. 30—Aspects are steady and show strength in financial matters, if you are not a foolish spender. Take account of good social and family sources.

Fri., Jan. 31—A disappointment early today warns you to follow moderate action. Do not let details annoy you. A quiet evening will be restful. Rely on your common sense.

DAILY ADVICE for Cancer

Sat., Feb. 1—Vibrations show that you generally get what you want, though you may have to go after it. Your interest in a relative may bring up the question of money, and can work out all right if you are careful.

Sun., Feb. 2—A part of this day should be spent in conserving your energies, and in study and reading. The day will not be entirely untroubled; countless details may tire you. Social events pleasant, though.

Mon., Feb. 3—Put business before personal affairs today. Good selling ideas work out. Your own energy is so great that it may leave you tired out by night: relax.

Tue., Feb. 4—Another fine day. Property and home affairs are well supported. Business plans which include trips are in favor. Your special work gains in momentum, and interesting contacts are possible this afternoon.

Wed., Feb. 5—Your Full Moon today is fine for working up improvements in the home; consideration should be given to the economical standpoint. Save money by doing without the unessential.

Thu., Feb. 6—The day may be full of responsibilities and challenges, but its trend is highly in your favor. There is a swing of good social interests, and gain through cooperative endeavors.

Fri., Feb. 7—You have good aspects for work that requires perseverance; employment conditions are promising, but purely mental work will probably be a little harder. There may be a new experience, socially important.

Sat., Feb. 8—Get your general scheme straight, then do good work while your planets are so kind to you. Business and home purchasing, make a busy morning, and afternoon is generally social. Short trips favored.

Sun., Feb. 9—Aspects show a slight slowdown. There seems to be no closed season in romance, however, and the day should be happy and successful for family, friends, and yourself.

Mon., Feb. 10—Affairs are stable today, but don't try to do twice as much as the other person, or you will wear yourself out. Social prospects very bright tonight.

Tue., Feb. 11—Your interests are favorable if they don't concern large business deals. Quick results show through selling, or artistic work in established connections. An extra demand on your time may cause change of plans.

Wed., Feb. 12—Maybe you will have to slow down a little today. There seems to be trouble in deciding on just what you want to do. Indications, especially for the young people, are confused, and rather difficult.

Thu., Feb. 13—Inclinations good today. Use precision in planning and carrying out your ideas. Work along useful lines, and with solid materials, has top rating. The evening period has fairly good offerings.

Fri., Feb. 14—Note the feelings of others around you to be really successful and comfortable under somewhat temperamental aspects. Evening rays are enticing.

Sat., Feb. 15—Consider the practical side of what you do today, and rely on those fitted to help in your aims. You may even have to substitute some other job, or face certain disappointments. All contacts call for wisdom.

Sun., Feb. 16—The Moon in your Sixth House continues to call attention to employment. Health conditions seem uncertain. Routine matters should not be neglected.

Mon., Feb. 17—Your affairs take on fresh impulse today. A feeling of increased confidence will make you want to get busy, and take full advantage of the boost recent contacts have given you.

Tue., Feb. 18—Most planetary aspects stable today, except that lunar rays pose a problem where partners are concerned. Before the end of the day, decisions will be easier.

Wed., Feb. 19—Direct your abilities into familiar paths today. Adverse contacts may outweigh the good during most of the day. Try to keep contented, and avoid doubt and worry.

Thu., Feb. 20—Aspects today may not suit you much better than yesterday. Deceptive tendencies are misleading, and complex situations may be hard to handle. Be wise and discard any notions of easy gain.

Fri., Feb. 21—The New Moon in your Ninth House changes aspects for the better. Work hard, and you should guide matters into your own direction. Social dates work out well.

Sat., Feb. 22—Some unusual happening may start a new train of thought, and bring you into contact with numbers of people. Your associates and family add to the general improvement.

Sun., Feb. 23—You have happy prospects for carrying out plans, whether alone or with others. Inspiration is high, and the evening may be filled with pleasure and contacts with old and new friends.

Mon., Feb. 24—A good deal of encouragement is in today's aspects. A fine day for starting a new enterprise; travel plans are favored. Interests that you share with a friend may work out to a satisfactory conclusion.

Tue., Feb. 25—It will be a great help to you to finish bothersome bits of work early this morning. Business plans in connection with your special job may take you to other sections, and in touch with interesting persons.

Wed., Feb. 26—Plans should be handled with judgment. An about-face in some direction may develop an entirely new plane of action.

Thu., Feb. 27—A somewhat busy day, with prospects that may have to be nursed. Make yourself more useful to superiors. Keep in touch with outside affairs. In the evening there is a noticeable tendency to fun and music.

Fri., Feb. 28—Some of your plans may fall through today, and heavy work is scheduled in what you do accomplish. General prospects strongly mental. A friend's suggestion may give a timely uplift to evening plans.

DAILY ADVICE

Thu., Mar. 27—An intensely active aspect and mature judgment should be called into play. It is important, in any event, to avoid splits with associates, or family.

Fri., Mar. 28—Keep your mind on the practical ends in view, and conform your personal ideas to the time and place where you are working. Venus promotes happy romances.

Sat., Mar. 29—Advantages of cooperation at home or in the office are high today. It is possible that your ideas may meet with opposition; curb any extravagances.

Sun., Mar. 30—Indications are good, though some of your plans may be slow in developing. Devotional interests give a chance for serious thinking. Evening may offer gala event.

Mon., Mar. 31—Not good aspects for the hustler or the go-getter. Where interests are centered in any sort of management, be moderate in all expenses. Protect health.

HEALTH MATTERS and working conditions are in focus during the first three weeks of January. You should be careful during the first ten days in all such matters and avoid all forms of indulgence, mental confusion or distorted values. However, a more favorable set of conditions promises to enter your life from the 11th to the 18th of the month, during which time personal initiative is bound to make for improvements of home matters and general expansion. Just as the difficulties of the early part of the month were climaxed at the Full Moon of the 7th, so you should find a new cycle starting at the New Moon of the 22nd which shifts the emphasis to partnership concerns. This fine aspect is bound to affect your marital set-up. From the 17th to the 24th you may be very active mentally in self-expression and in dealing with others, but obstacles may appear during the last week of the month. Don't be over conservative and thus create difficulties in your relations with others and especially with partners. Be extra friendly in order to sidestep the danger of quarrels around February 1st. Furthermore, near the 25th indiscretions in romance could hurt joint finances.

A splendid series of favorable aspects, which starts January 28th and runs to February 18th, should enable you to solve your problems and make real progress if you act in an original and independent manner. You can benefit particularly in your relationships with friends, relatives, partners and acquaintances, by putting all such matters on an improved basis. Love can be very satisfying under such unusual configurations. The Full Moon of the 5th may provide a climax, but don't talk too much then. You'll need to use your head rather than your heart in order to avoid the risks of over-optimism in dealing with partners or with a marriage mate from the 16th to 21st. The New Moon of the 21st shifts the emphasis to joint finances and emotional matters, while during the last week of the month Mercurial matters—communications, trips and mental activities—are favorably stressed. Both home affairs and work can gain from this, but be sure to act now as Mercury will turn retrograde in motion through most of March. Thus less progress can be made in the month ahead.

Your home and your job seem to be clicking very smoothly as March begins, but there could be an emotional upset involving your "other half" or your partners, so control your feelings. At the time of the Full Moon of the 7th and for the days following it until the 10th, you may have to adjust yourself to a difficult situation. Your partnership difficulties are likely to come to a climax with your reaction one of revolt and erratic thinking. However, you can lessen the tension, which could affect your friends also, through being cooperative and patient until this temporary strain passes. Between the 11th and 24th things should take a decided turn for the better. You should be able to fulfill your most romantic aspirations, and your relationships with others in general should be more cordial and smooth. You may be very expressive about partnership finances, and if there have been any real obstacles to progress in this department of your life they may start to clear up as Mercury turns direct in motion on the 22nd. With the New Moon of the 22nd your outlook on life becomes more vital and you should be able to grasp things very realistically and soberly. But during the last week of the month you must be sure that you are not being misled in some way as to your basic view of things; try not to fight with friends over joint finances, but try to adjust romantic matters to the necessities of home life.

Your financial highs come: January 8th to 10th, February 4th to 6th and March 4th to 6th. The lows come: January 22nd to 24th, February 18th to 20th, and March 18th to 21st. Take the initiative on the highs.

SPECIAL DATES: If born July 25th to 30th you may feel burdened under new responsibilities, but this can be a very important fresh start in life. Active sharing in the life of your community is stressed for those born August 1st and 4th, while those who saw the light August 11th or 12th may make unusual friends. If born August 13th to 21st don't overdo expansion in home matters.

DAILY ADVICE

for Leo

Wed., Jan. 1—You begin the New Year under good indications, with the Sun, your ruler sponsoring health and welfare. Plan some recreation through the day.

Thu., Jan. 2—Business outlook is promising, though the year begins at a rather slow tempo. A circumstance this afternoon may be a little unusual, but not more than you can manage. Entertainment plans rate well.

Fri., Jan. 3—Aspects ahead of you show influential features, but today does not offer much in the way of progress. Do what you can in work hours. Keep up quality!

Sat., Jan. 4—Where interests are centered in production of any sort, aspects are good. Mental work favored. Social matters show a good tendency. Don't try innovations.

Sun., Jan. 5—You may have a lucky encounter with someone you have not seen for a while, and an uncertain matter may be cleared up. Take an interest in some hobby.

Mon., Jan. 6—It looks as if you would have a busy time the next two weeks, for your energy planet Mars is in your house of employment. Remember that a little vacation now and then will help you to be more efficient.

Tue., Jan. 7—Today you have the Full Moon. Prevailing influences would be for progress in all interests, except that a certain emotional stress appears which may disrupt the best intentions. Find relief in brief rests.

some one you have long wanted to know better.

Sun., Feb. 16—You have promising aspects for harmony and restfulness, although an agitating influence may develop around noon. Leave the evening open rather than carry out plans you are not interested in.

Mon., Feb. 17—Right now you may be having a little uncertainty and things may not be working out as you wish. Make the best of your conditions; don't be too serious.

Tue., Feb. 18—You will probably find that projects you have been planning on will show signs of working out today. Take advantage of opportunities for friendship.

Wed., Feb. 19—The risks seem to be greater than the possible gains today particularly in buying or in speculating. The best idea should be to keep in normal channels. Friends are true to you.

Thu., Feb. 20—Any disturbance you experience this morning will soon pass over, but the afternoon has a meaning in a personal relationship, so refrain from giving anyone cause to criticize you.

Fri., Feb. 21—Don't be too easily led by what others may say today. Use your own judgment as a guide, and your realizations should prove to be all that you desire.

Sat., Feb. 22—Your response to a question that may come up today may involve an upset of some sort. The answer is up to you. Aspects for the afternoon and evening are good. Be wise, and you should enjoy yourself.

Sun., Feb. 23—No matter where you are living, realities have to be faced. There is always room for experiment and improvement, but avoid arguments this morning. Afternoon aspects responsive to social plans.

Mon., Feb. 24—Lunar aspects give a two-edged effect today. You have a choice of two things, one of which will need quite a little money but the other offers you more freedom. Technical work offers progress.

Tue., Feb. 25—A day when matters concerning general welfare invite attention. Choose something that fits your abilities and you should advance to leadership. Social affairs liven up this evening.

Wed., Feb. 26—This is a good time for buying and selling and any legal attention. There is a doubtful trend for finances in the morning and the afternoon shows concern for travel.

Thu., Feb. 27—You have a good day for lighter forms of handwork and all mental occupations. You may expect to see friends and there are aspects for a new romance.

Fri., Feb. 28—Your chief planets are in conflict this morning. Wait until afternoon before planning business or domestic changes. Social developments good and you may expect practical plans to open out pleasantly.

DAILY ADVICE

for Leo

Sat., Mar. 1—Established conditions are desirable, and this is a day governed by mental interests. There is some social excitement likely this afternoon, maybe meeting new people, but don't form rush intimacies.

Sun., Mar. 2—You have some really friendly aspects. Get your share of the good things, and be considerate of those you know who are losing out in some way.

Mon., Mar. 3—You may realize to the full the practical side that just being alive involves. It is impossible to get something for nothing; you must earn before you spend, and today has good aspects for buying and selling.

Tue., Mar. 4—Something that you are doing shows possibilities for gain and happiness; aspects very favorable for you today, though success may not come all at once.

Wed., Mar. 5—You can either help or hinder your business career today. A knowledge of some hobby or art outside of your means of livelihood is beneficial to growth.

Thu., Mar. 6—Attend to your routine duties, and plan and carry out good ideas in balancing home and business finances. Also be systematic in taking time for study and rest.

Fri., Mar. 7—The Full Moon in your Second House, of finance, is shadowed by discordant elements; call out your foresight, and have a good reason for any expenditure.

Sat., Mar. 8—Uncertain aspects, affecting both work and social plans. There may be a sudden demand for your skill or strength, and additions to your responsibilities.

Sun., Mar. 9—Very dubious aspects. Many adjustments may be necessary. Use your skill in planning. Late in the day, persistent efforts may bring about a more social feeling.

Mon., Mar. 10—You can feel a little more expansive today, with a lot to think about taking care of normal duties, and doing some shopping. There seems much talk and action.

Tue., Mar. 11—Aspects give you sort of a setback early in the morning, but later there seems plenty of opportunity for your talents and ability. Rays good for outdoor occupations, research work, and romance.

Wed., Mar. 12—Signs pointing toward prosperity keep piling congenial work for you. This looks like a good time for a money increase, shopping, and plans for travel.

Thu., Mar. 13—A lot of social action seems edging in on your business hours today, disturbing to housekeeper and office worker alike. Manage right, and this should be one of your big days with fine reactions.

Fri., Mar. 14—So much depends on you this morning, that you will hardly notice delaying aspects; you can really let yourself out in the afternoon, though, and realize ambitions. Aspects good for romance.

Sat., Mar. 15—Settled aspects, with lots of weekend interests, including plans for meeting congenial friends. Give health a new lease by sports and outdoor exercise.

Sun., Mar. 16—The social side of things should suit you today, and you may be asked to take the lead in some special project. Others may be influenced by what you do.

Mon., Mar. 17—It should be easy to keep up useful work today, and the best chances seem to fall to those who have been taking care of financial matters.

Tue., Mar. 18—Money plans seem to have smooth sailing today. You can make it your big day of the month if you guard against carelessness. Don't let details confuse you.

Wed., Mar. 19—Aspects today sponsor friendly contacts, and you will no doubt find them of great importance. There is a chance toward getting a new start in chosen work. Press social interests, and offer hospitality.

Thu., Mar. 20—You have money-making advantages today. Let common-sense rule your activities. Seek gain through cooperation with others, but don't try to run their affairs.

Fri., Mar. 21—You gain nothing by beating about the bush today. Keep everything open and above-board. Ordinary interests will take much of the day. Your business ability may make you helpful to someone near to you.

Sat., Mar. 22—A New Moon today has happiest of influences over your affairs. It helps bring out your good qualities, and increases interest in home affairs.

Sun., Mar. 23—Good vibrations. Time for quiet thought and planning. Business success is not everything, but the striving and endeavor it entails are important.

Mon., Mar. 24—You have remarkably favorable aspects. Gather your resources, for things will move pretty fast. Your evening seems to be excellent for social affairs.

Tue., Mar. 25—A new connection, either in school or business, is under way. The morning aspects are stimulating, but stick to steady methods. Look out for new recreation ideas.

Wed., Mar. 26—You have a good condition for carrying on regular duties; don't impose on others, nor let them over-ride your convictions. The afternoon shows social aspects, and a release from responsibility.

Thu., Mar. 27—There is an adverse undercurrent from some of your planets today. Look out that it does not cause you to lose too much time in work you want to finish.

Fri., Mar. 28—Forget all troubles of yesterday, and start this day constructively. Fine aspects for mental work; an original idea may carry you far along in the day's duties.

Sat., Mar. 29—Conditions for personal affairs very promising. Success lies in routine work. The afternoon shows pleasant home interests, including close friends.

Sun., Mar. 30—Join the activities of congenial people; you will find yourself responsive to new ideas and helpful hints. Romantic interests may show later.

Mon., Mar. 31—Forces not in your favor. Avoid changes in location or business. If you have writing to do, be careful what you say. Guard your peace of mind.

DURING the first three weeks of the month, independent ventures and activities are stressed, but during the first ten days of the year you would do well to avoid speculative enterprises as you could be easily misled by insubstantial dreams. From the 11th to the 22nd a far more favorable set of conditions should make itself felt—your home life is due for a long-range benefit. You may count on all sorts of expansive and enjoyable local activities to bring you happiness and a sense of well-being at this time. Independent self-expression may be aggressively marked around the 18th to the 23rd. Your difficult early period of this month climaxed at the Full Moon of the 7th, and now the New Moon of the 22nd, shifts the emphasis in your life to health matters and particularly your work. There may be added responsibility or complications in that department between the 22nd and the 2nd of February, and during that interval self-expression may be difficult; quarrels are a real possibility and some kind of setback is likely. But if you steer clear of arguments and also avoid indiscreet relations with others which might endanger your standing in some unusual manner, you should have no difficulties.

Even before this somewhat trying period ends, a fine series of trines to Uranus and Neptune starts on January 28th and continues until February 17th. Under this excellent influence you ought to be able to improve your working conditions and employment, and thereby add to your income and standing. Be sure to take advantage of this splendid period! The culmination may come at the Full Moon of the 5th, and it will be wise not to let your success go to your head and to keep your poise at that time. From the 16th to the New Moon of the 21st try to guard against overoptimism and too much expansion in local activities. With the entry of Mercury into your Seventh House of partners and marriage on the 19th, where it will stay into April, you may expect to find an emphasis on visits, trips, communications and expression in connection with that department. Be sure to press such activities aggressively around the end of the month, when conditions will be most favorable, for all during March till the 23rd, Mercury will be moving retrograde which is bound to cause delays in dealing with others, and in general to slow down the progress you are now making.

March opens with an excess of emotion which can, however, be very satisfying to you in connection with independent action and local affairs—possibly social and romantic. But from the 6th till the 11th you are liable to run into some sort of trouble, and relations with friends and loved ones may take a downward turn. There is also a tendency of mental instability in aspects; to overcome this, be sure to curb your temper, avoid abruptness and over-confidence in your own ideas, and try to control this sense of inner rebellion at the general tension that you may experience. A far better period is just ahead! Indeed, diplomacy and your personal magnetism can effect a real change which can have a decisive influence on job, career and standing. Make the most of the days between the 11th and 23rd of March by showing yourself to best advantage, and your efforts won't have to wait long for results! Communications, trips, and all literary efforts are also stressed at this time, and while you should be active along such lines during that time, you had better wait with important signatures, legal documents or the marketing of manuscripts until Mercury turns direct—on the 23rd. The New Moon of the 22nd starts a month's cycle in which joint finances are focussed, and at this, its beginning, you should be able to stabilize economic interests through sound action "behind the scenes." In spite of Mercury's turning direct, there may be an undertone of tension in your department of partnership and marriage during the last week of the month, and it will be well for you to weigh your opinions and emotions carefully before committing yourself.

SPECIAL DATES: If you were born September 11th or 12th, be prepared for sudden changes in your profession or business, and remember not to be over-independent during these three months; if your birthday falls between September 13th and 21st, you may count on good fortune in connection with local and community activities.

DAILY ADVICE

for Virgo

Wed., Jan. 1—You can save a good many mistakes if you keep to well-charted plans today. You may have to adapt yourself to others whether you are happy in their company or not, chiefly in business connections.

Thu., Jan. 2—Avoid acting on impulse this morning. Indications are good for employment and outside activities. The day is not well favored in personal matters and health.

Fri., Jan. 3—Planetary positions sponsor good results from work thoroughly done. If your birthday is from the 10th to the 20th of September, you may be inclined to mental work, or research and conventions.

Sat., Jan. 4—You may be disappointed today over not finishing something as soon as you had hoped; let it wait. A little unexpected change seems very likely.

Sun., Jan. 5—Try to understand the situation about you. Are you keeping to the plans you adopted on January 1st? Much pleasure comes from sociability and sports. Aspects good.

Mon., Jan. 6—A trend to the artistic is favored. Use it wisely, and there will be no doubt of success. Aspects encourage social doings.

Tue., Jan. 7—The Full Moon in your Eleventh House tunes in with your aspirations. You should make good at anything you plan to do. Be reserved if among strangers. Evening aspects delight the romantically inclined.

Wed., Jan. 8—Read and study articles regarding your particular work. Try to advance. Influences incline you to comforts and luxuries which you should enjoy within reason.

Thu., Jan. 9—An important topic is personal relationships—those outside as well as within your home. Take care of health. Sudden changes of plans may make things easier.

Fri., Jan. 10—Vibrations quite intense. Be sure to show your best side in activities which seem good today. Your patience may be tried, but results are worth while.

Sat., Jan. 11—Good conditions today may bring out some need for travel. If you have special projects, don't be too anxious about results. Your efforts will be repaid.

Sun., Jan. 12—Average situations this morning, but the afternoon shows a tendency to be disturbed by an underlying condition of restraint. Get out when possible; enjoy things.

Mon., Jan. 13—A lot of encouragement for personal and business affairs. You should be free from financial worries. An uncertain matter should be settled to your satisfaction, and your work be to your liking.

Tue., Jan. 14—Things that you plan today may not turn out just as you hope, but there is a loop-hole for confidence. Just don't believe all that you hear, and keep busy.

Wed., Jan. 15—Do not expect inspiration from outside events today; aspects neither lively nor exciting. Detail work seems chief interest—a good day for technical workers.

Thu., Jan. 16—Vibrations today advance certain affairs for you. Quick results come from commuting or short journeys to carry on the work you are doing. Evening diverting.

Fri., Jan. 17—Something in the line of aviation is helpful to your interests. An undertaking connected with your family is favored. Business propositions should be well studied.

Sat., Jan. 18—The thought of extra work this morning may bother you, but get everything that depends on you finished early. Evening aspects somewhat disturbed.

Sun., Jan. 19—A good day for things you are planning, if you are careful not to be too abrupt in your methods. With Mars inharmonious, friction would be easy. Keep your eye on main interests. Give time to recreation.

Mon., Jan. 20—Do all you can to increase efficiency, and to help others. Don't get off the track this morning; you can push all your plans if you keep your judgment cool.

Tue., Jan. 21—Failure to keep an engagement may cause regret this morning. Try to avoid risks and misunderstandings. Circumstances this afternoon may test a tried and true friendship, but not necessarily subdue it.

Wed., Jan. 22—The New Moon in your Sixth House may put you literally in the dark about some matter you would like to have cleared up, but help comes from someone you trust.

Thu., Jan. 23—Matters of employment today, and new jobs for some, should go well. Show determination in putting things across.

Fri., Jan. 24—Your work may seem of a general nature but never fear that in due time it will not develop its own usefulness, either through your ambition, or some unexpected contacts.

Sat., Jan. 25—Little happenings could be bothersome this morning if you let them. Expand your own activities, but realize that much depends on your responsiveness to others. Learn to take people as they come.

Sun., Jan. 26—Don't let a super-sensitiveness interfere with understanding the contacts you have made. Avoid strenuous activities this afternoon. Go to a show.

Mon., Jan. 27—You are reaching the end of your month's work. Do a little stock-taking, and see what's best to continue with, and what should be dropped. Money aspects good.

Tue., Jan. 28—Vibrations fortunate for business interviews, and personal contacts. You will usually be happier working with a number of people than by yourself.

Wed., Jan. 29—Work should count today in immediate interests. Keep controlled mentally and emotionally to get fullest results from your endeavors. Evening is social.

Thu., Jan. 30—Carry on usual interests. Work should go better with older persons. You seem to be on the verge of important events. Be careful not to confuse issues.

Fri., Jan. 31—Your day's influences incline you to be definite in all you want to do, but there is an oppositional tendency, maybe in matters of health. Keep steady.

Sat., Feb. 1—Your work today seems to be leading up to something; keep the idea of perseverance uppermost. Through the afternoon your tendencies favor more frivolous affairs and your own personal means of relaxation.

Sun., Feb. 2—The day should be harmonious and afford you many happy contacts. Be moderate in your ideas of recreation, and engage for a while at least in spiritual interests. Settle on plans of the week's work.

Mon., Feb. 3—This is a somewhat routine day, mostly in the line of old friends and family interests. Activities center around buying supplies, and getting ahead with personal shopping. Delay shows in new enterprises.

Tue., Feb. 4—A very interesting money aspect, which can have a bearing on business as well as personal welfare. Your work may put you in touch with large numbers of people with contacts useful to your advancement.

Wed., Feb. 5—Problems smooth out today under the influence of the Full Moon. Try to finish occupational matters while in the mood. Evening centers around family.

Thu., Feb. 6—Aspects steadily good. Try to improve on occupational interests. Be sure all debts are settled. Social dates are promising. Enjoy whatever turns up.

Fri., Feb. 7—Conditions are very bright today with much success for those who are in contact with the public in any way. Prevailing influences show you have many friends, and social events are interesting.

Sat., Feb. 8—Your thoughts center mostly about your job. Luck has a very small part in your affairs; it is chiefly the work you have done in the past that will build future prospects.

Sun., Feb. 9—A favorable day with advantageous contacts, and something worth-while in the social line. Those in the public eye particularly favored.

Mon., Feb. 10—Call up someone today who has been kind to you in the past. You may be able to return the favor. You have a quota of good business rays, though brakes should be put on financial plans.

Tue., Feb. 11—Keep an insight into conditions and things around you, to help in planning your own part in life. Your business seems to be going pretty well, and evening undertakings should please you.

Wed., Feb. 12—You will probably feel that something is wrong this morning, and something is, though it is only a slight lowering in your aspects. Routine work will be safest; overlook causes for irritation.

Thu., Feb. 13—This seems to be a good period for almost any occupation; especially favored is tangible business, with real estate, medicine, or machinery foremost. An emotional phase is evident.

Fri., Feb. 14—The day is not too eventful, though there is a leaning toward change of some kind. You may make high plans, but try to keep your ideas constructive. Communications and visits have interest for you.

Sat., Feb. 15—Follow practical forms of thought and work today. Uranus is unfavorably aspected, causing apprehension; don't think of what has happened, but get things ready for better results tomorrow.

Sun., Feb. 16—Conditions in force today have favor for established matters of sociability and romance, for yourself or those you are in touch with. Rely on facts, not intuition.

Mon., Feb. 17—Be ready for serious work today but be sure it is in the right direction. You'll find plenty to do along the way, with energetic Mars in your Sixth House of labor and employment. Evening good.

Tue., Feb. 18—Aspects are fine today; you should be free to follow your most desired interests. Take good care of health, and cultivate a peace of mind.

Wed., Feb. 19—Aspects are only fair today, and you may find so many extra things to be done, that you can never get around to what you had really planned. Don't let any troublesome illness or cold take you unawares.

Thu., Feb. 20—There's nothing without effort in this world. The best period today for results is in the morning. There is a sense of carelessness or waste. Watch for the little leaks. Evening aspects are unsettled.

Fri., Feb. 21—Rather peculiar aspects; home interests are involved. You may be drawn into a discussion which you will later regret, but nothing will really disturb your good basic family relations.

Sat., Feb. 22—Things may not seem to be going your way this morning, but someone who understands you will brighten you up; if you show ingenuity, the afternoon should go very well.

Sun., Feb. 23—There is still a little strain on your nerves—if possible, plan for some activity, or develop some of your interests; call on your inner resources.

Mon., Feb. 24—Aspects today are fortunate for money matters. You could find an unexpected windfall, or have a chance to make additional income. In a personal matter the outlook may be a little confused.

Tue., Feb. 25—Your aspects are for certain mutual dealings and the combining of your business interests with those of another. This seems to be a temporary tie-up. The evening seems to center about entertainment.

Wed., Feb. 26—Present affairs are sponsored by planets which put you in touch with natives of Leo and Libra. This is a very good time on the whole, but you should beware of doubtful speculations.

Thu., Feb. 27—Unless you have planned right, something today may get out of hand. The opinions of a friend may require some thought; don't expect too much from anyone.

Fri., Feb. 28—Don't overdo in dealings with other people; manage to get a little rest this morning, for you may find the afternoon duties require time and skill.

DAILY ADVICE

for Virgo

Sat., Mar. 1—Don't delay too long in setting down to the work you want to finish this morning; a disappointment in some way is likely. Later aspects are lively for a good turn at your job, and sports this evening.

Sun., Mar. 2—Something a little out of routine may take your interest today; you may decide to take an unusual trip. Evening should be a lazy time—rest and read.

Mon., Mar. 3—Start the day with some little reform, new tools to work with, or new methods for solving a problem. Go light in demands on other people; avoid the romantic implications of a recent friendship.

Tue., Mar. 4—Don't let speculative lures sweep you off your feet today, for the income end of it might be disappointing. Your occupational matters seem steady.

Wed., Mar. 5—Plans you have undertaken respond to steady effort. Work up good ideas; your real gain is through things you think out, and then act upon. Evening good.

Thu., Mar. 6—Various factors today somewhat conflicting. Keep important surface things in running order; domestic affairs uppermost. Be prepared for moderate expansion soon.

Fri., Mar. 7—A sense of disappointment persists through most of the day. Depend on your own training and talents for the work you are doing. Follow career channels.

Sat., Mar. 8—A little carelessness this morning may throw off your calculations. General ideas of results not disturbed. Work hours move swiftly. The evening surrounds you with aspects of beauty, and good times.

Sun., Mar. 9—There is a continued sense of change and pleasure today, but don't get out of step with religious obligations and duty to those who are helping you. Aspects somewhat discordant toward evening.

Mon., Mar. 10—If you know of any way to turn out a better job, your vibrations today should speed it up. Check up on financial possibilities. Family and heart interests good.

Tue., Mar. 11—Show your quality this morning. Aspects not good, but if you handle affairs efficiently, things should run well in the afternoon. Vibrations are for a happy evening.

Wed., Mar. 12—Follow up the business end of work you are planning. A good period to sign contracts. Creative efforts favored. Social life to the fore.

Thu., Mar. 13—Aspects are particularly good for the career man or woman. Something you consider good may be developing. There is progress today for Virgoans in every walk.

Fri., Mar. 14—A good deal depends on your patience this morning. It is not the best time for money dealings. Probably you can get along all right in later hours. New contacts pleasant tonight.

Sat., Mar. 15—A day when serious matters of business seem to bring plenty of hard work. The afternoon shows successful shopping plans; matters of amusement probable.

Sun., Mar. 16—You may note a hint of Spring in the air. Follow up the idea with expanding relationships, seeking old friends and cultivating new.

Mon., Mar. 17—Business affairs relating to various aspects of your life in favor. Note only the practical plans and policies. Some personal matters show confused issues.

Tue., Mar. 18—Things in store for you today may not all be easily handled, though aspects are not too bad in employment matters. Enjoy a pleasant evening with congenial people.

Wed., Mar. 19—Rapid development noticed all around, especially in electrical and mechanical ways and lines that depend on their use. A good time for travel.

Thu., Mar. 20—Quite a good many things necessary to your prosperity seem to be picking up noticeably. Domestic matters, and favorable conditions for a trip may bring about pleasant changes for many very soon.

Fri., Mar. 21—The aspects can make welcome surprises in personal ways possible. Money matters are on the up grade—so do your share of entertaining.

Sat., Mar. 22—The fortunate Virgo gift for the artistic may give you a working advantage today. You ought to be able to do much if you can act on your hunches.

Sun., Mar. 23—A very good outlook for everything connected with personal relations and social activities. There is a strong urge for self expression, artistic or conversational.

Mon., Mar. 24—Your best idea for today is to avoid haste in plans for moving or changing your status in life. Don't take on other people's worries unless you can really help.

Tue., Mar. 25—Good aspects can make this quite a day to discard old ideas, and make headway along new lines. Pay attention to details, for the final outcome may depend on the correctness of little things.

Wed., Mar. 26—Devote time to study and self-improvement and you will soon reach solid ground. Aspects bring a nervous tension; free yourself from strain; relax outdoors.

Thu., Mar. 27—Everyday affairs stressed. You have promise of an active day, in which steady attention to duty will help you get what you want. There is a hint of deception somewhere.

Fri., Mar. 28—Make it a habit to think success, and the outcome of your work will be successful. Contacts between your business and social life can be attractive.

Sat., Mar. 29—You have chances for results that will satisfy yourself and others. Your ability to get along with people will do you a good turn.

Sun., Mar. 30—Pay attention to family interests, and the day should look pretty good to you. Get in touch with church and community activities; plan trips or outdoor sports.

Mon., Mar. 31—You will find limitations this morning. Avoid being too critical and you will find that self-control will be a great aid to personal popularity. Keep cooperative.

YOUR year starts off with a three-week period of emphasis on home and basic security. Guard against any sort of deception during the first ten days of January in this respect, for a tricky undercurrent that may affect you personally is in force then. But the interval from the 11th to the 23rd should be a happy one; make the best of it. Finances may receive a welcome impetus, and, at the same time, your relationship with friends should be especially pleasing. From the 18th to the 23rd, push original ideas and materialize any plans you may have entertained involving trips. The New Moon on the 22nd may usher in a period of slight snags, but since they are apt to be mental in nature, you should be able to sidestep them altogether by your own attitude. The 25th of the month may involve you romantically in what may turn out later to be a thoroughly undesirable affair; if anything along those lines should come your way therefore, ignore it; emotional ties at this time can seriously affect your outlook on life. However, the last few days of January promise to be excellent in all respects, but particularly in personal enterprises along independent lines.

In fact, this very harmonious set of aspects carries over to the 18th of February, and originality, initiative and a certain amount of go-getter spirit on your part should bring you close to the realization of your most cherished ambitions. Just be careful around the 5th, when the Full Moon may tempt you to be too reckless financially or make you talk "a blue streak." Perhaps at this point success has gone to your head and you are indulging in an over-optimistic attitude of taking things for granted. So keep to a sober outlook, particularly between the 16th and 21st of February, and at the same time guard against financial or emotional extravagance. Independent ventures involving communications, writing, mental activities, short trips and visits (all being Mercurial in character) will be excellently supported towards the close of the month. Make the best of the situation before March 1st, at which time Mercury will be turning retrograde and tend to slow up such interests and progress in general. But between February 21st and the end of the month, your mental or literary efforts, as well as conditions in your place of work should take a definite upward turn.

March begins with an emotional splurge which, though no doubt welcome, can prove very expensive. The stress now falls on both domestic matters and independent action in this connection. The Full Moon of the 7th may possibly put a damper on your ardor, and a sudden setback in your emotional life or with friends in general may follow. Perhaps you are also a bit erratic in your thinking; try, at this time, to restrain your independence and to suppress a general feeling of revolt, particularly where your work is concerned. But on the 11th, a far more pleasant set of conditions comes into play which can be personally very gratifying as it may bring you a heady sense of freedom and a broadened philosophy on life. Aspects now favor spade work on literary ventures, particularly creative writing, and after the 23rd, with Mercury turned direct, they'll propel such matters into completion, provided you apply yourself to your tasks. The New Moon of the 22nd may cause a shift in partnership affairs, and there is a powerful indication that you will put one specific relationship—with perhaps an older friend—on a solid and lasting basis. This of course, can mean marriage. During the last week of the month, however, don't let a confused attitude on your part precipitate disputes in connection with your job or social activities run up too big a bill. Above all, be careful of any false illusions in your personal relationships.

Your financial peaks come: January 12th to 14th, February 9th to 11th and March 8th to 10th. The depths come: January 27th to 29th, February 23rd to 25th and March 22nd to 24th. Act on your peaks.

SPECIAL DATES: If your birthday falls between September 25th and 30th, remember to stabilize relations with friends, especially older ones; if you were born between October 2nd and 5th, keep your feet on the ground though your mind may be up in the clouds; if you saw the light on October 11th, 12th, or 13th, you should be able to widen your outlook on life in some original manner.

DAILY ADVICE

Wed., Jan. 1—If there is no compelling need for work this morning, fall in with the social aspects of the day, fine for the gay life, entertaining, and recreation.

Thu., Jan. 2—Business ties claim you again, and you may not find the day free from worry. Doubts about a financial arrangement may assail you, and an immediate answer be lacking.

Fri., Jan. 3—A day to meet people, and perhaps feel the urge for running up the cost of luxuries; but with Jupiter favorably inclined, your excellent judgment should be the guide.

Sat., Jan. 4—Aspects are suitable to mental and artistic efforts, and indicate possibilities for a family business. Everyone seems bent on having a good time this evening—so join in.

Sun., Jan. 5—The whole day is good for companionship, social affairs and romance. Underlying business interests may demand some thought; check up on them to keep things running in the groove you had planned.

Mon., Jan. 6—Not a day for delay, or getting off the track. There is a promising demand for your work; keep sources active. Plan everything that you do, allowing for interruptions.

Tue., Jan. 7—The Full Moon makes this a pleasant day for most people. Your public is responsive, and the more contacts you can make, the better will be your results.

Wed., Jan. 8—Plenty of optimism today, and aspects in accord with your own wishes and desires. Give an unexpected turn to things, and show interest in group activities.

Thu., Jan. 9—If you have a new project ready, now is the time to start on it. Usual forms of business have good openings. You are especially in harmony with natives of Leo, Gemini, and your own sign.

Fri., Jan. 10—Restrain excitable impulses today, and do not plan to do too much on your own. Financial difficulties, or a lowered physical condition should be taken into account.

Sat., Jan. 11—Be very careful about risky ventures; you need cool judgment in what you say and write. A little change and the development of new interests liven up the evening.

Sun., Jan. 12—A feeling of restlessness today brings need of change. Get out and mix with the crowd, and you may gain unsuspected benefits, and expand your view of life.

Mon., Jan. 13—You may get some expansive ideas from a friend and want to try them out. Today's aspects are favorably disposed to you—one of the times when you could probably make extra money.

Tue., Jan. 14—You have an interesting planetary aspect which may mean satisfactory news by mail. This is a good time for your particular arts and skills.

Wed., Jan. 15—The financial end of work you have started might be slow in developing. Why not consider the wisdom of letting it ride for a while and start something else? Much interest centers around children.

Thu., Jan. 16—Certain aspects of your life are linked with those of another in thoughts and feelings. Today has much to offer in co-operative endeavors. Tact is necessary.

Fri., Jan. 17—Aspects are stimulating. Use them so that others as well as yourself will be happier. Travel should be advantageous. Don't be afraid to voice your opinions.

Sat., Jan. 18—Don't wear yourself out with details, and thus lose sight of the finished production. Let others share the responsibility.

Sun., Jan. 19—Take things that someone has said to you at face value only. You should be able to enjoy yourself, and help others to have a good time if you are not too sensitive. Seek the steady influence of church.

Mon., Jan. 20—Business and employment stressed today. Don't let fits of moodiness lower the standard of your work. Circumstances may tend to awaken restlessness. Guard health.

Tue., Feb. 4—If you have made constructive preparations, aspects are generous today, and you should begin to see real gains. Legal and commercial activities favored.

Wed., Feb. 5—You have the Full Moon today under very happy auspices. It increases your influence for good. You may feel it is about time to assert yourself in some matter, and the opportunity may come unexpectedly soon.

Thu., Feb. 6—Prospects are cheering for you today. Whatever you plan to do should turn out well, especially your own definite interests. Bring out your good ideas.

Fri., Feb. 7—The planet Neptune in your sign is a very strong and helpful influence. If you are planning changes in personal or economic arrangements, this is the time to begin. Keep practical in your new ideas.

Sat., Feb. 8—With energies high, you should be able to go far today. Have a clear view of your own position and the ability to adapt yourself to stellar conditions, and you should make a go of work or play.

Sun., Feb. 9—You have good social and romantic interests today, and aspects that should increase the knowledge of your own capacities. Show interest in church and family affairs.

Mon., Feb. 10—Know exactly what to do today and put talents to work with your usual directness. Best interests appear in the afternoon. Depend on your own judgment.

Tue., Feb. 11—Be attentive to details today and don't lose step with associates. A little matter to be settled may be annoying this morning, for old worries have a disturbing way of coming back.

Wed., Feb. 12—Indications are such that a word of caution is timely. Be careful of phony schemes for all is not rosy, and don't fall for the temptation to risk money belonging to another.

Thu., Feb. 13—A taste for technical and scientific matters has constructive value today. Business coming up gives indications of success. Aspects unite you closely with family interests and visits.

Fri., Feb. 14—Be confident of the value of your work; never belittle your means of livelihood. Today's aspects indicate a chance for expansion, and a happy outcome in legal matters or contracts to be signed.

Sat., Feb. 15—Today's aspects are depressive. Keep to a watchful policy. You cannot rely too much on following usual methods; in making new contacts, be careful not to antagonize old ones. Recreational plans favored.

Sun., Feb. 16—Your combination of vibrations offers variety today. You may feel a sense of worry in the morning which will clear if you put the right interpretation on things people say. Afternoon very good.

Mon., Feb. 17—Aspects spotty. A day when work will be the best medicine for you. You may have moments of enthusiasm, but guard against self-deception. Just be practical.

Tue., Feb. 18—You can count on being able to get ahead at a good rate today. Your planetary forces can make you feel on your toes.

Wed., Feb. 19—It might be good business for you to look even a gift horse in the mouth today, for after all you must guard your own interests. You can always do much to help yourself along by understanding others.

Thu., Feb. 20—A special interest in a business matter may be important today. Do not go too fast and furiously on what may be mere guesswork. Be original.

Fri., Feb. 21—The New Moon in your Sixth House gives your plans a chance to develop. Enjoy your home and family, and do all you can to make domestic conditions happy.

Sat., Feb. 22—Work and worries seem on the increase for you today. Remember that a little diplomacy may go far in dealing with unusual conditions. In the afternoon, matters take a pleasanter course; shopping desirable.

Sun., Feb. 23—Clear vision gets results. You know how to meet people and should make this a very satisfactory day. You may find pleasure in contacts at church, and ought to do much in a personal and social way.

Mon., Feb. 24—Get in some original ideas for today's work. You benefit from good vibrations and the keen interest of someone near to you. If health needs special attention, now is the time to consider it.

Tue., Feb. 25—You may have to overcome a definite crisis in your present affairs before you can think of assuming new responsibilities. Routine work and study will be the best preparation for duties coming up soon.

Wed., Feb. 26—Vibrations very good, and property dealings pending may be turned to good account. Some big public event, or a club-meeting, may open up good business or social contacts for you. Be responsive in manner.

Thu., Feb. 27—Best results today come from proceeding along normal lines. Money matters deserve attention. Keep logical values uppermost in your mind. Don't take risky chances.

Fri., Feb. 28—Morning aspects unproductive. If you meet opposition, show restraint. In the afternoon you should be able to go ahead safely in almost anything you are intending to do. Plan progressively for next month.

DAILY ADVICE

for Libra

Sat., Mar. 1—The new month shows real opportunity, barring two short periods when delays and disagreements may cause disappointment. Aspects fine today for business and pleasant contacts with family and neighbors.

Sun., Mar. 2—The morning is constructive and shows usual public contacts; in the evening, call on friends or invite them to your home. Between 2 and 5 p.m., there is a combination of problems to be solved.

Mon., Mar. 3—Business and career matters active. Keep to a regular system in working arrangements. The evening should be interesting.

Tue., Mar. 4—Conditions good for mental aims and hopes. Plans for change may interest you and indicate a steadying of business policies. Social excitement evident.

Wed., Mar. 5—You can urge yourself on with safety today. Interests are showing that you want to be permanent. Cash in on your luck, and take fun that comes your way.

Thu., Mar. 6—Avoid extremes today and keep your mind strictly on the business in hand. Afternoon aspects quiet. Put affairs in order. If you have no dates, study.

Fri., Mar. 7—The Full Moon in Virgo seems to put obstructions in your path. You must take care that dissatisfaction or impatience does not mar your happiness. Don't do anything which will upset your best plans.

Sat., Mar. 8—There seems to be an opportunity linked with luck at your door step this morning. You have much that is strictly business on hand, with results depending on you.

Sun., Mar. 9—Plans falling naturally into shape should spring from aspects today. Tendencies are toward spiritual and romantic phases. You may feel the impulse for self-expression, but don't let it carry you away.

Mon., Mar. 10—You have fine prospects for this day. Put the best of your personality in dealings with family and business. The afternoon strongly favors efforts.

Tue., Mar. 11—Your own affairs assume a routine aspect this morning, but by afternoon your ability to see practical issues may put you in the way of earning extra money.

Wed., Mar. 12—Your chief thought today is to take advantage of good business leads, for you never know what may open up. Lunar aspects are for written matters, arts.

Thu., Mar. 13—Plans may move along pretty fast today and new propositions should go well. Use part of this day for study and research work. There is a marked social tendency this afternoon.

Fri., Mar. 14—There is a change in the air today, which is less fortunate for understanding people; don't be taken unawares by excitable persons. New jobs appear which may require preparation.

Sat., Mar. 15—Affairs in everyday living are most important. Concentrate on domestic matters. Take care of health if you are not feeling up to par.

Sun., Mar. 16—The day opens pleasantly, with settled and usual affairs in the morning. Major interests may concern new acquaintances in the afternoon, with an opportunity for enjoying a public entertainment.

Mon., Mar. 17—Business schemes show much interest today, with chances for good results in fixed channels. Your dealings may take you in a mixed business-social atmosphere. Evening plans may fall through; aspects adverse.

Tue., Mar. 18—Don't overlook a single detail today, and you will find aspects generous to all your plans. This is one of your very good dates for advancing business and romance.

Wed., Mar. 19—Rays are fortunate for many of Libra's personal desires. You may hear of very good results in a business matter, or recreational plans turn out just right.

Thu., Mar. 20—Continue working along the same lines in business and socially. Pressing duties should be attended to if you really want your job to look after you. Avoid spectacular sidelines.

Fri., Mar. 21—Slightly different conditions through the day, in which a branch of artistic work may add value. Enjoy a few hours of sociability later.

Sat., Mar. 22—A good deal of strength is brought to bear on affairs just started, though you may have to overcome some irritating aspects. You work best where it's quiet.

Sun., Mar. 23—Your most congenial hours are after midday. You may be at the beginning of a new stage in your development, fortunate in personal affairs and romance.

Mon., Mar. 24—Your chief interest at this time may not be working out right. Cutting off from an old connection is harder than you think. Avoid self-deception.

Tue., Mar. 25—Responsibilities, professional or domestic, have a strong hold over your day. The afternoon has its ups and downs; don't get excited if too many things seem to happen at once. Keep your perspective.

Wed., Mar. 26—The outlook for home and property matters is very good. Watch your expense account, as solar aspects are expansive. Visits from family and friends likely.

Thu., Mar. 27—Favorable indications for mental and domestic activities. New contacts appear, but planetary discord may mix your pleasures with disappointments. Rest.

Fri., Mar. 28—Make the most of opportunities for meeting new people, for they may provide better business contacts. Be wise in money matters; mistakes are hard to rectify.

Sat., Mar. 29—Your hands may be full most of the day with work for yourself and helping others. Evening aspects develop unrest, but travel or excitement should be avoided.

Sun., Mar. 30—Changes seem to be taking place which concern you. You will really be happiest if you get out and mix with others. Let thoughts of work slide for a few hours.

Mon., Mar. 31—There may be some worry and anxiety today, but don't put too much importance on current problems for tomorrow.

THIS is an extremely vital year for all Scorpions, as expansive and fortunate Jupiter is near your birth Sun, and as grave Saturn in your Solar Tenth House is stimulating your ambitions to a greater place in the Sun and more responsibility. The conflict between these two tendencies is the keynote of your year. The first three weeks should find a stress on local activities; during the first ten days be careful of self-indulgence, deceptions and any mental confusion, all of which may be undercover. However, from the 11th to the 22nd conditions are far more favorable and you should experience personal expansion, especially through participation in neighboring activities, which can boost your career. In connection with this latter trend you are liable to be both particularly active and expressive from the 18th to the 23rd. Just as the Full Moon of the 7th highlighted the difficulties of the early part of the month so the New Moon of the 22nd marks a shift in emphasis to your home and basic security. For the ten days following the New Moon you are liable to experience some sort of tension or opposition, which may involve your career in some way: try to keep out of disputes and be prepared for delays. The 25th of the month may introduce you to someone with an unconventional outlook; try to keep this relationship on a cool-headed level.

But a series of helpful trines to Uranus and Neptune start coming into play as early as January 28th and continue in force till February 18th. During that time the improvement may be in the background but can be real; it may involve your emotions, and should benefit joint finances and your home. Take advantage of the unusual rather than the routine at this time. At the climax of the Full Moon of the 5th be careful of saying too much or being too extravagant. Things may go so well that by the 16th you may assume an over-optimistic attitude. Guard against this tendency and also against wild spending in connection with your home until the New Moon of the 21st. At that time the focus shifts to independent action on your part—along Mercurial lines, such as writing, trips, mental activity and communications, until April. All these interests are strongly favored toward the end of the month—just remember to act before Mercury turns retrograde in the beginning of March (until the 23rd), for the retrograde motion of this planet is liable not only to slow down most matters within its domain, but also delay the general progress of your life. But during the above-mentioned auspicious period, apply as well as enjoy yourself—there may also be a lot of local activity around the end of the month.

March roars in on a high emotional note. Your affections may become intensely involved around that time, and while the experience should be a rich and happy one, you should be careful not to go to extremes. Your immediate neighborhood and your social circle in particular may play a prominent part in launching the "affair." Just remember to keep your head! By the time of the Full Moon, on the 7th, things might cool off somewhat, probably as a result of your preoccupations with financial questions. Be sensible between the 7th and the 11th, and do not embark on untried or over-independent ventures in an effort to alter the general situation. After the 11th, however, aspects once again change for the better. In the emotional, financial and domestic spheres, the sailing should be clear. Around the New Moon of the 22nd, a more sober note is struck when emphasis shifts primarily to working conditions. With Mercury turning direct at the same time, independent action along creative lines, mental efforts and especially writing is bound to make decided progress and serve to stabilize your job on a lasting basis. A slight cloud lingers over the last week of March, when certain undercurrents may make themselves felt in the form of jealousy or rivalry in office, or unjustified gossip. Hold your temper and keep your tongue in check during that week; boldness or impulsiveness can only make a dent in your finances which you may have to regret later.

SPECIAL DATES: If you were born between October 25th and 31st you must be extra-careful of being over-ambitious in career matters; if your birthday falls between November 12th and 20th, this quarter promises to be exceptionally fortunate.

DAILY ADVICE

for Scorpio

- Wed., Jan. 1—You should find affairs running smoothly today, and aspects help you to take responsibilities with little effort. Travel may show worth-while results at this time.

- Fri., Jan. 17—Fortunate aspects still with you. Keep up enthusiasm in the work you have chosen, and avail yourself of friends who are willing to help you.
- Sat., Jan. 18—Your planets continue strong. Keep up your honest efforts; if you are working with others make the most of contacts.
- Sun., Jan. 19—Use your natural good sense today. Keep in touch with people who have an elevating influence on you. Read and study to help in your work; take an interest in all that goes on in the world around you.
- Mon., Jan. 20—Good aspects this morning, but keep your head clear if incidents arise which could break up a settled condition. Strictly routine actions make the day more effective.
- Tue., Jan. 21—Better to ask advice from someone than to let a slip of judgment destroy this day. Avoid distracting influences, and work you are doing should turn out well.
- Wed., Jan. 22—You may be called on to make an unusual effort this morning; carry on in a way that will appeal to others and results should be satisfactory. Home conditions somewhat upset. Try to understand others.
- Thu., Jan. 23—Efforts rewarded today if you cooperate with other people. Maybe you can help others where practical knowledge is wanted. See friends.
- Fri., Jan. 24—Put your mind on the day's problems and they should be easily cleared up. You are entitled to pleasures this evening; social meetings should be interesting.
- Sat., Jan. 25—Aspects demand wisdom and hard-headed business tactics. Certain hours less favorable than others. You may hear good results of work completed some time ago. Do not make money agreements without study.
- Sun., Jan. 26—Most of the day is given to practical things, though late afternoon brings leisure. The evening is given over to pleasant social matters.
- Mon., Jan. 27—Aspects show the need for tactfulness. You have the chance to get well ahead if you can overcome some erratic tendencies. Enter into social plans.
- Tue., Jan. 28—The moon in your Fifth House may bring forgotten matters to light; do not let this injure present happiness. Business should be good with chance of advancement.
- Wed., Jan. 29—Practical issues today seem shifting to a cooperative style of work. Any occupation that is congenial should be easily handled. Permanent interests are favored.
- Thu., Jan. 30—You probably have a number of employment ideas to carry out. Select the one that is most profitable and stick to it. Present romantic interests seem to be fleeting.
- Fri., Jan. 31—Tendencies you feel today are very unsettled and may bring disappointments. You had better stick to your old job and also take time for social matters.

DAILY ADVICE for Scorpio

Sat., Feb. 1—There seem to be good prospects in money matters today. Before deciding on any action think out the probable results. Aspects are generally good through the day, and lively interests center on the evening.

Sun., Feb. 2—You should be able to make your day worth while, so be on the lookout for opportunities to help in some good work. In the evening read and follow a hobby.

Mon., Feb. 3—Business and professional channels open. You should be able to figure out the best way to continue work now under way. Your ability to make a public appearance may be proved. All personal contacts are good.

Tue., Feb. 4—A fortunate period for friendships and personal understandings. The desire to make money is under generous aspects today. Most activities seem good, and travel should be pleasant and interesting.

Wed., Feb. 5—This should be a fine day for carrying on work you have started. Keep to plans you have laid out. Evening shows a social trend, with caution indicated in heart interests; don't take them too seriously.

Thu., Feb. 6—A proposition of definite interest may come from some friend, but do not neglect projects already on hand. Your various social interests show expansion.

Fri., Feb. 7—There are aspects today which open an active period in investment and speculative matters. Travel and planning for future expansion is favored. You may buy a new home or take up a new line of business.

Sat., Feb. 8—Good vibrations still on. You are favored in many ways. Personal affairs gain, and inclinations seem evenly divided between social good times and business schemes. You may have visitors this evening.

Sun., Feb. 9—A good day to work out several things which you have not had time to tackle. If you have social matters pending, use the afternoon for visiting or extending hospitality. Keep up your correspondence.

Mon., Feb. 10—If you have been neglecting a friend, get in touch with her or him. The moon in Libra increases your interest in other people and their affairs. Artistic interests are favored.

Tue., Feb. 11—The morning aspects make routine advisable. A friend may be able to do you a good turn. Good backing later pushes some favorite concern of yours. Realize that any business you undertake requires assurance.

Wed., Feb. 12—A day for pushing your work through, but not for rashness in any direction. You may hear cheering news which you can put to very good use. Rest in evening.

Thu., Feb. 13—Matters of private business have importance for a few hours this morning. The rest of the day promises to be interesting and may concern something in a scientific way, useful to your home or business.

Fri., Feb. 14—Today has an aspect for serious study and for legal and educational work. Be on the alert regarding travel plans. Plan for entertainment or a show.

Sat., Feb. 15—An upset period with little outside activity or profit. Affairs of other people may take up your time and there are signs of trouble for someone you know. Your evening aspects are social and lively.

Sun., Feb. 16—Aspects are friendly, and chief contacts are with family and community doings. Offer hospitality to friends; you have much to gain through friendships.

Mon., Feb. 17—This can be a highly constructive day, with new interests paramount. Be satisfied with conditions as they are while effects are so good.

Tue., Feb. 18—Put inspirations to immediate use, for Jupiter, in your own sign, is harmonious with other good planets. Be at your best as you are slated for an active day.

Wed., Feb. 19—If plans are laid out for you, you should be able to put in a good day's work. If a problem confronts you, let it wait a day or two, for present lunar aspects cause uncertainty in decisions. Avoid risks.

Thu., Feb. 20—Your numerous interests bring a good share of work today; financial matters should be avoided for there are too many negative influences. Romantic rays are good.

Fri., Feb. 21—The New Moon in your Fifth House may bring romantic matters to a head or settle your mind on a new line of business. Consider well before making a radical change.

Sat., Feb. 22—If you have a proposition to make that has definite interest, wait until afternoon when aspects can be a great help. Adverse morning, with possible disagreement in family policies. The evening is good.

Sun., Feb. 23—Contacts made at church show friendly possibilities. Develop the spiritual part of your nature, and you will acquire greater confidence. There is a good deal of sociability; romance may be intriguing!

Mon., Feb. 24—Very fine influences for those who want to make an original effort. See that you will have some way to be helpful; aspects are good for social welfare work and dealings with children and education.

Tue., Feb. 25—Maybe you will be able to get as far as you want today, but it will take co-operation. Vibrations are fairly good, but interruptions are possible; much depends on how well you handle details.

Wed., Feb. 26—As per indication, a word of caution is necessary. Be careful how you handle money this morning. The afternoon is good for occupational affairs, so be persistent. Social matters interesting.

Thu., Feb. 27—Larger concerns may come up today and an agreement be reached regarding a property matter. Be protective of your assets. Travel aspects good.

Fri., Feb. 28—Aspects have been very good this month. Influences this morning are for routine. Progressive plans are stressed today and can help you continue in the way you have already established yourself.

DAILY ADVICE

for Scorpio

- Sat., Mar. 1—Vibrations very favorable to business affairs. The impulse of spring is in the air, and there is a stirring of activity which may mark a turning point toward better results in the month to come.
- Sun., Mar. 2—You have pleasant aspects for fine relations with friends and family. Outside contacts unlikely in the afternoon when aspects show a restraining influence. Relax.
- Mon., Mar. 3—Today's rays are fine for your sign. You may be lucky enough to earn money in some novel way, and may find a short business trip useful. There are good prospects for active social affairs; avoid extremes.
- Tue., Mar. 4—You have indications of success in a project close to your heart. Keep to your policy of tactful dealings with others. Excellent vibrations for the romantic.
- Wed., Mar. 5—This is a good day for you to make a little venture, experimenting in finances or trying a new sport. Public meetings afford pleasure.
- Thu., Mar. 6—A constructive period. Organize old business methods; you may find benefits through family or partnership connections. Plan for a change in the evening.
- Fri., Mar. 7—Throughout the day many little affairs may seem to go wrong and require constant watchfulness. The Moon in your Fifth House is not a good combination for personal matters and may cause bickering.
- Sat., Mar. 8—You are still under danger of misunderstanding. This may only mean that you are somewhat off balance through poor health conditions. Take things easier.
- Sun., Mar. 9—Be careful not to get on the wrong side of others today, for you may need their help in carrying out plans. Your home life is not under happy vibrations, so make any debatable point taboo.
- Mon., Mar. 10—Jupiter, in a fortunate position, is more helpful to your efforts today. A friendly connection is useful this morning in helping along business plans, sociability.
- Tue., Mar. 11—A good deal of delay, and possible emphasis on a domestic problem this morning, but afternoon aspects put production and money matters in a good light.
- Wed., Mar. 12—A day to do your best, as matters coming up may be a deciding factor in future success. Fifth House affairs, educational and cultural, help your advancement.
- Thu., Mar. 13—Do not make hasty investments or purchases just because someone has recommended them. Jupiter sponsors good fortune, but at the same time you must use judgment. Selling and advertising matters should go well.
- Fri., Mar. 14—Finish current work this morning; don't be taken off balance by unexpected happenings. The afternoon should be profitable in business and pleasant socially.
- Sat., Mar. 15—Take your work systematically this morning, and you will find yourself in line for those familiar contacts which mean the most to your enjoyment.
- Sun., Mar. 16—You'll find benefit from Sunday plans, and should be able to harmonize well with others under the influence of the moon, now in your Third House.
- Mon., Mar. 17—Aspects good for all employment this morning and you may find some extra profits through your business. Afternoon is sociable; evening develops irritations.
- Tue., Mar. 18—Aspects good for a favorable day. A new factor may help you in settling an old worry; something that you decide today may mean much to you.
- Wed., Mar. 19—Aspects have a good influence over practical affairs. You have a day when home, relatives and business are in a good channel. Your well-being is linked with others'; be sincere in all you say and write.
- Thu., Mar. 20—Your own Fifth House, connected with children and family, shows the value of routine, if unexciting, work. Pleasant changes come to you through friends. Evening lively.
- Fri., Mar. 21—You have a good period for your special purposes, and should find good support from interested and profitable sources. A social contact should give you much pleasure this evening.
- Sat., Mar. 22—Circumstances may demand a good deal of you today, so devote yourself to tried activities. You may find a legal matter facing you; satisfaction indicated.
- Sun., Mar. 23—You may find this an important day, bringing about changes in your way of thinking. Family and social aspects fine; join in healthy outdoor recreation.
- Mon., Mar. 24—You have good producing tendencies; follow your present careful lines, and do not let other people have too much to do with methods. Relax this evening.
- Tue., Mar. 25—The morning is advantageous for occupational and business plans. You have indications for writing and written matters. Be considerate in contacts. The afternoon develops a free and easy atmosphere.
- Wed., Mar. 26—Luck seems to be with you today, even though your heart is set on great ideas. Buying new clothes and investing in property seem lucky.
- Thu., Mar. 27—Plans for change are interesting; however, avoid risk. Mental and educational interests are important. Don't rush.
- Fri., Mar. 28—A lot of active interests go very well today. Civic or governmental work, with travel, are indicated, and may help you in getting more out of your work.
- Sat., Mar. 29—You have good possibilities today. Don't let go of gains that you have made. Keep shopping plans budgeted, and avoid over-excitement socially.
- Sun., Mar. 30—Today favorable for finding contentment in mixing with others. The influence of someone near to you may add to your prestige. Respond to others.
- Mon., Mar. 31—Aspects today may bring about strained relations with others. Take it easy, and use the afternoon for personal affairs. Look for relaxation this evening.

THE first three weeks of the new year may pose some financial questions, and the period from the 1st of January to the 10th, particularly, calls for care and caution in this respect, as there is an undercurrent of deception involving friends. Whatever this element of confusion may be, remember to keep a sharp eye on your purse-strings. On the 11th aspects change for the better. Psychologically and philosophically you should reach a point of self-understanding, which is bound to reflect advantageously on your environment. This is indeed an excellent time to take stock of yourself and to resolve to stick to those resolutions you made at New Year's. The New Moon of the 22nd shifts emphasis to the activities of your immediate circle, and it will be well to tread carefully for ten days in the department of human relations if you want to avoid arguments and unnecessary misunderstandings. The 25th of January may bring a somewhat unconventional situation into your life in your relations with the opposite sex, or, also, unexpected changes or sudden break-offs along these lines.

In spite of these minor flaws in your planetary program, the 28th should usher in a series of highly constructive, progressive conditions, which promise to last until February 18th. Under these very fine influences it will be possible for you to improve your relationships with friends, partners, relatives, neighbors, and particularly, the one—so if any adjustments are due, attend to them now. The Full Moon of the 5th calls for an extra dose of tact and diplomacy in this department—and that applies to your conversation as well as to your correspondence. By the 16th, success may have gone to your head and you may be swelled with a feeling of over-confidence. Guard against an attitude of taking things for granted and especially curb over-optimism in community activities, for you may bite off more than you can chew socially. The New Moon of the 21st and Mercury's entrance into your Fourth House on the 19th throws the stress on your home and environment where Mercurial activity—trips, visits, communications, mental and literary efforts—is indicated. All such matters are well favored toward the end of the month at which time they promise to yield lucrative results. It is important, however, to take advantage of these very fine rays before the first of March as Mercury goes retrograde during that month—until the 23rd.

There seems to be an emotional slant to the early part of March. This may be satisfying on a personal plane and, in addition, benefit finances in some way or other. Planetary indications are that a lot of activity in this connection may go on "behind the scenes." Don't let your heart rule your head though during that period, but be sensibly moderate in everything you do! The Full Moon may cool things off somewhat with the result that you will probably put the brakes on your social activities and give some time to a general sobering up of your outlook. Perhaps, too, you are somewhat unstable, restless, independent to the point of revolt and mentally off on a tangent where home matters are concerned. Pull yourself together—a scatter-brained disposition can only get you in trouble with partners, co-workers, associates and the marriage mate. From the 11th to the 23rd, however, a far better set of conditions takes form, which should give you the chance to improve your relationships with others in a broad and, if you like, original manner. From the 23rd on, with the mental planet Mercury turning direct, aspects again invite you to attend to all written and literary interests and to pick up where you left off at the end of February along these lines. Real progress should become possible now, with the New Moon of the 22nd stimulating your independence, originality and initiative and crystallizing your ideas into practical, workable projects. The last week of March, on the other hand, shows an undercurrent of deception of some sort. Watch, therefore, your relations with friends and partners—avoid quarrels and in general go slow. Furthermore you may experience some really important changes—perhaps suddenly.

SPECIAL DATES: If you saw the light between November 24th and 30th you should endeavor to render your general outlook on life more practical and serious during this quarter; if you were born between December 9th and 12th you must be careful of separations and too much "individualism."

DAILY ADVICE for Sagittarius

- Wed., Jan. 1—A good deal of attention today may be devoted to friends. It can be a favorable day. Take everything pleasantly, and you should have a choice how you want to spend the day. Avoid unreasonable demands.
- Thu., Jan. 2—Mars moves along in your sign making you feel capable but with some negative aspects, mostly in dealing with other people. There are advantages in love matters.
- Fri., Jan. 3—Connections good from a financial standpoint. Aspects for the next few days helpful to your purposes. Use your bargaining abilities in buying and selling. Nothing beats watching the cash register.
- Sat., Jan. 4—Size up your present position and the people you are working with. A touch of mentality may raise ambitions; study your subject. Visiting and romance favored.
- Sun., Jan. 5—Friends seem to rally around you; welcome their interest, as slightly dubious spots show at times in the next week or so—could be health. Avoid worry.
- Mon., Jan. 6—A day for system and steady effort. You should be able to gain much by a public contact at lunch or through travel. Family interests are pleasant, entertaining.
- Tue., Jan. 7—The next few days can be leaders for results from work done in the past. Leanings are very sociable too, and show romantic interests. A stroke of luck may bring something you want very much.
- Wed., Jan. 8—Don't waste opportunities today. Keep things moving with all that can increase your development and happiness. Put your ideas where they can be useful.
- Thu., Jan. 9—Keep on the track of things worth while. Give special attention to the employment you are dependent upon. Mental activities, scholastic work, and the printing trades are highly sponsored.
- Fri., Jan. 10—Business contacts and creative work foremost. Bring out the best that is in you. Aspects aid you where tactfulness is needed. Let facts not feelings rule.
- Sat., Jan. 11—You may mark an interesting change in your social life, which will help you to get away from responsibilities this afternoon. Morning shows business strength.
- Sun., Jan. 12—The pleasant trend of the past few days carries over. The day is highly social, with Winter sports and indoor recreation to suit individual tastes.
- Mon., Jan. 13—There is activity in various directions; keep your mind on the one project you want to put ahead. Your relationship with others favored—a big item, depending on your own initiative.
- Tue., Jan. 14—Creative ideas work out well. Third House influences bring trades connected with electricity to the fore. Don't turn down an opportunity for overtime work.
- Wed., Jan. 15—A good business and employment day, though you had best be guarded in relations with others. Admirable influences show this evening. Diversions in line.

- Thu., Jan. 16—With Jupiter harmonious to the Sun, both business and social ways become more important. Keep your eyes open, do whatever interests you, and you need not play second fiddle to anyone.
- Fri., Jan. 17—Ordinary activities are worth effort today, for you are strongly in line for expansion of some sort. Aspects pleasing for legal matters and business trips.
- Sat., Jan. 18—A chance to take a step ahead today. Planetary forces favorable. Work shoulder to shoulder with partners; don't get wild financial ideas. Ask friends in.
- Sun., Jan. 19—Look to the present, and be sure that all your plans are clear; know your needs and discard useless things. If you have social affairs on hand this afternoon keep them uncomplicated.
- Mon., Jan. 20—Morning aspects mostly favorable for routine business. Regulate your affairs and you should be able to show progress in spite of tendency to delays.
- Tue., Jan. 21—Difficulties to be faced this morning, but later you have promise of better aspects, and some special gain in receipts, or expectation of future work.
- Wed., Jan. 22—A day to prove your flexibility. You can act to advantage as shopping go-between or financial agent for another. Some things may seem slower than you expect, and toward evening avoid incautious words.
- Thu., Jan. 23—Someone in your immediate group may have a deep influence over you. You may feel an urge to do worthwhile things or make plans for study. Social interests.
- Fri., Jan. 24—Continue with your good efforts, for work channels are active in spite of a tendency toward involvements with an associate. Sports, social gatherings favored.
- Sat., Jan. 25—Avoid indifference in manner toward others. Your social and business channels seem in a turmoil. Watch the reaction of others before making changes.
- Sun., Jan. 26—Accommodate yourself to conditions; if health is a disturbing factor, do not take risks. Most satisfactory time is evening. See people who give you something new to think about. Rest at intervals.
- Mon., Jan. 27—There are fewer limitations today in health and business matters. Prospects are better than you may have foreseen, with chance of gain if you are level headed.
- Tue., Jan. 28—An Aries moon leads you to clear planning; act on chief social and business interests. You should find it a very quick-moving day.
- Wed., Jan. 29—Your day may be variegated by looking backward, picking up loose ends, and by clarifying aims to partners or superiors. Take time for social obligations.
- Thu., Jan. 30—You have a good day for work you do at home, or for office matters requiring concentration. If necessary take more responsibility. Step in and head matters.
- Fri., Jan. 31—Employment prospects take a step upward. There may be bonuses, extra dividends. Some attention is centered on speculation, but beware of false ideas.

DAILY ADVICE for Sagittarius

Sat., Feb. 1—Your Third House, very important in personal and family welfare, has very good aspects all the month. A problem that has troubled you should soon be worked out. It is to your advantage to be adaptable.

Sun., Feb. 2—Keep up a steady interest in home affairs, and go ahead with work and engagements as planned. Aspects quiet down as evening nears; forget personal desires and enter into recreation pleasing to others.

Mon., Feb. 3—Keep "on the beam" this morning, with close attention to regular duties. Do not tell all your affairs to even close friends, for there may be danger of a break in your intimacy some time.

Tue., Feb. 4—Aspects good. Look for developments this morning along some line not connected with your main interests. This may bring a special skill into play or be an excuse for something pleasant socially.

Wed., Feb. 5—The Full Moon in your Ninth House is very favorable. Where marriages are planned, or change of residence is likely, both should be satisfactory.

Thu., Feb. 6—A strong business and social day. Establish good will. Under a Jupiter influence friends are very favorable to you. Evening is entertaining and stimulating.

Fri., Feb. 7—Keep in line for profits. Indication of opening interests in a speculative matter. Usual social interests lead to some good connections. There is unexpected good news awaiting you in some quarter.

Sat., Feb. 8—A day that should be good for your interests; keep stirring so you can continue to show improvements. Weed out any tendency to impatience. Keep your evening successful by planning recreation.

Sun., Feb. 9—In general this should be a day of good spirits and good health. Be careful not to overdo in any particular. Aspects are suited to entertainments on a large scale and for a number of people.

Mon., Feb. 10—The vibrations are favorable to artistic and educational interests. If you have things to sell, you may be able to work up a good market. Keep in tune with others. Avoid chances of argument.

Tue., Feb. 11—There are aspects for institutional work and are beneficial for those who need, or can give, medical care. Don't try to control circumstances. Adjust yourself. Make use of free time to keep in touch with friends.

Wed., Feb. 12—Tendencies are still somewhat excitable. Those working in large industrial businesses need to be careful. Tidy up your home and work environment.

Thu., Feb. 13—Constructive work and the various industries have good aspects today. Research of any sort is favored. Be individual—express your own opinions, not others'. Social things liven up toward evening.

Fri., Feb. 14—This is a date to overlook minor short-comings. Hold to the good, and the morning is helpful for those who want to get the most out of work and play.

Sat., Feb. 15—Don't be fooled by propositions you might receive this morning. Saturn in Leo fires your ambition and helps you to work things out. Make party plans for afternoon or evening; aspects are social.

Sun., Feb. 16—Start the day with well-made plans for the morning, and always welcome new attractive interests. You have highly social aspects, but need to show some tact to have things work out.

Mon., Feb. 17—Realities today! No one knows better than the Sagittarian how good one can feel with work well done. Don't fall prey to overwork though; get outdoor exercise.

Tue., Feb. 18—Follow your efficiency desires—just now you could materialize almost anything you want. Letters written and received bring pleasure. Step out tonight.

Wed., Feb. 19—Do not take chances today at home or in business. Your greatest trouble may be through an unexpected incident. Don't be thrown off balance or make a hasty decision. Friendly aspects, new interests tonight.

Thu., Feb. 20—Start fresh this morning. The day can be over-full of detail work that no one appreciates. Don't let self-pity spoil results. A good deal of pleasure shows later, and romance is accented.

Fri., Feb. 21—You may have a chance to work in new ideas, and aspects are good for dealing with those in power. The New Moon in your Fourth House brings home matters to the front. Be careful how you express yourself.

Sat., Feb. 22—Aspects are definitely unkind today. Put your affairs on a strictly business basis; during the morning a bit of neighborly chat may disturb you. Clear it up so you can enjoy the fine afternoon vibrations.

Sun., Feb. 23—Sunday interests have favoring rays and should help you to have a good day. Follow your social ideas. A romance may come to a good climax.

Mon., Feb. 24—Good aspects for starting new work, or to realize benefits from what you have already finished. Keep your mind busy with things you like. Artists and writers should be able to carry on smoothly.

Tue., Feb. 25—A day of good promise. A new feature may appear which is bound to have an influence on your ambitions. You may find interest in things a group of people are doing in lines of work you understand.

Wed., Feb. 26—Venus is unkind this morning. Expect nothing from business contacts. In the afternoon much can be accomplished if you cooperate with others.

Thu., Feb. 27—Aspects respond to intelligence, forcefulness. Be able to see where your training will be of use. Insist on value in buying, investing. Make your evening engagements early; leave time for next month's planning.

Fri., Feb. 28—You could easily lower your efficiency by overlooking details or forgetting important correspondence. Give unfailing attention to today's obligations and needs. Be ready for future responsibility.

DAILY ADVICE

for Sagittarius

Sat., Mar. 1—Don't run away from things you do not seem to understand; stay and fight it out or you will hamper yourself for future results. Afternoon aspects good for local travel; romance counts in a big way.

Sun., Mar. 2—A call for slow motion and consideration along the home front. Not a favorable time for health; take care of colds. Deal with business, social matters.

Mon., Mar. 3—If you desire to be among the First Ten in any check-up this period is worthy of effort. Public contacts and personal appearances are under your friendly planets. Love matters are fortunate.

Tue., Mar. 4—Productive day for employment, with certain money advantages. There is a high point in social matters and in a property connection you share with others.

Wed., Mar. 5—New contacts put your job on a better basis. Personal relations could be delightful if kept conventional. Do not expect too many favors from another.

Thu., Mar. 6—A day of much interest opens up, and though you may not be able to get everything you want all at once, make a try; helpful friends are at hand.

Fri., Mar. 7—Don't press your luck too far this morning. The change in the moon may cause confusion in your mind; do not bring a personal note into business affairs. Moodiness may spoil social prospects.

Sat., Mar. 8—A continuing sense of aloofness from others' interests may bother you. Delay advised before taking up new business or entering into recreational plans.

Sun., Mar. 9—Satisfactory phases today particularly favor companionship and lively plans for large gatherings. Keep up your regular church attendance for peace of mind.

Mon., Mar. 10—Domestic and working relations at home and in business should go well today. Influences help in creating good contacts. Travel and club matters important later.

Tue., Mar. 11—A morning to conserve your energies, and to sidestep risks. A matter may come to your attention this afternoon which calls for confidential treatment. A short journey may lead to unexpected benefits.

Wed., Mar. 12—Jupiter's characteristics today put personal values to the fore. You are inclined to be active, and business results as well as romantic interests will count.

Thu., Mar. 13—A day when it will be easy to make money, favorable for professional workers; your insight will help you to understand other people. Cultivate the social side of life. Evening is favorable.

Fri., Mar. 14—If you are engaged in routine business, you will not be disappointed at the poor money aspects of this day. Opposition to your decisions should not trouble you; just show a little patience.

Sat., Mar. 15—Some affair furthest from your mind is likely to be pushed into the front today. So start things going; finance, recreation and romance all stressed at this time.

Sun., Mar. 16—You may find your truest satisfaction today in human interests in the largest sense. Welfare work may be an outlet for that special understanding.

Mon., Mar. 17—Financial interests today, regardless of your occupation, show an upward trend. There is some pressure on social plans; you may have to let something slide.

Tue., Mar. 18—A somewhat important day. Don't leave anything to chance. Interviews, and talks with agents favored. Choose friends.

Wed., Mar. 19—First take up the practical demands of the day. Working conditions are congenial. As affairs pick up speed you should be able to take care of everything. Get outside of your own little group tonight.

Thu., Mar. 20—Attractive prospects today. Prepare your program with an eye to public matters. In business and money dealings you should get along all right. A new social influence may lift restrictions in some way.

Fri., Mar. 21—Aspects favorable to mental activities and artistic interests may lift your performances out of the mediocre zone. Evening contacts have good qualities.

Sat., Mar. 22—The New Moon in your Fourth House actually concerns your home and property; plans made at this time look good and should have permanence.

Sun., Mar. 23—Your associations with others under good auspices today. You can come to a new decision today. Journeys and new contacts bring excitement and entertainment.

Mon., Mar. 24—This is a flush day with promotional interests in evidence. Matrimonial affairs are under good auspices. Use talents in business contacts; results should show.

Tue., Mar. 25—You have very mixed aspects; be on your guard. Money conditions look very slow. Do not stretch your credit. Less emphasis on emotional things may help stabilize a recent social contact.

Wed., Mar. 26—You will benefit in making really serious efforts to keep your work in proper channels and up to date. Social indications strong. Very good hours tonight.

Thu., Mar. 27—Keep to schedule this morning. You should make headway in most of the things you are planning. Through the afternoon aspects get less fortunate. Use care in plans.

Fri., Mar. 28—This is a day when you must not let material matters overwhelm you. A legal decision may clear the way for improved conditions. New plans can be tried.

Sat., Mar. 29—Forces in your favor today can bring you in touch with people you enjoy. Plans concerning a number of people are on the carpet. Avoid impulsive moves.

Sun., Mar. 30—Keep to mutual agreement in your family circle. Your ruling planet Jupiter influences health and religion. There is an impetus for romance.

Mon., Mar. 31—You may feel that your better interests are suffering interference. Meet it with tact rather than temper. A change in the attitude of an associate likely.

YOUR PERSONAL life activities and aims should be stressed in the first three weeks of the year, but during the first ten days you should be careful, for deception and confusion, which could adversely affect your career, are likely. This may culminate at the Full Moon of the 7th, but after the 10th things should get better. Indeed from the 11th to the 23rd your aspects are quite favorable, and this will prove particularly beneficial where friends and those you love are concerned. You should be emotionally in harmony and at peace, and from the middle of the month to the 25th there is likely to be an accent on things Mercurial — expression and communications, writing, trips and so forth—where you are likely to be quite active, perhaps in connection with money and assets. The New Moon of the 22nd shifts the emphasis to your income, but for the ten days following you may be due for losses and setbacks in such matters and in joint finances. Try to keep out of quarrels during that interval, and expect delays. In addition, it will be a good idea to be on guard in your relations with the opposite sex. Unconventional situations may arise that you may have to regret later.

But February should be better and indeed the favorable aspects commence to come into play as early as the 28th of January. You should definitely be able to better your financial position, and for that matter, your job and highest ambitions, and the action should occur along unusual and progressive lines. This may climax with the Full Moon of the 5th, but the rest of the month looks good. You will have to be careful of over optimism from the 16th to the 21st especially where your income and your relations with friends are concerned. The latter part of the month, after Mercury enters your Third House on the 19th—where it will stay until April—and the New Moon of the 21st distinctly place an emphasis on local activities, messages, trips and all matters Mercurial. Near the month's end things should go very well with much contact with friends, so take advantage of this harmonious situation as Mercurial matters are liable to get tied into knots during March until after the planet ceases its retrograde motion.

Very satisfying personal relations with friends and those you love can mark the start of March for you, which seems to be an emotional period, but don't go to extremes as they might be costly for your finances. Things seem to cool off by the Full Moon of the 7th when those same finances may receive a real setback, and you will also need to be careful until after the 10th, for any erratic mental tendencies which might adversely affect your work may be far too independent or rebellious. But from the 11th to the New Moon of the 22nd a far more pleasant period occurs and working conditions and career matters could enhance your income, but it calls for the use of your personal magnetism and diplomacy rather than any aggressive action. At the same time your local activities seem to be stimulated, and any delay that there may have been in such Mercurial matters should start to clear up after the 23rd when Mercury turns direct in motion. The New Moon of the 22nd places extra emphasis on your home and basic security, and it should be possible to put joint finances on a much sounder and more permanent basis. However, the last week of the month is not too promising and you will have to be on guard where deception is concerned and should be careful of any strongheaded insistence on your own part which might cause any explosions in connection with your work.

Your lunar money cycle reaches its bottom from January 6th to 8th, but then it rises to a top between the 20th and 22nd. By February 2nd to 4th it has again fallen to a low only to climb to a peak between the 16th and 18th, after which it again declines. The bottom in March is reached between the 2nd and 4th, and a high between the 15th and 17th. Finally the last two days of the month are another low spot. The best time to take the initiative and to make contacts and start things will be when you're at your highs.

SPECIAL DATES: Those born December 31st to January 1st are cautioned about impractical illusions in career matters. Those born January 10th to 18th should be able to make new friends during this period and these friends should prove beneficial to you for this is the part of your life where expansion may be expected.

DAILY ADVICE

for Capricorn

Wed., Jan. 1—You may be better off not to count too strongly on the permanence of present conditions. There is an element of travel and change in aspects affecting business and home. Social matters pleasant late today.

Thu., Jan. 2—Aspects show an activity in the money and possessions part of your chart; a good day to go shopping. Have an eye for values and expenses. Morning is best. Keep the afternoon routine.

Fri., Jan. 3—Good vibrations noticeable for home interests and property upkeep. In business matters involving partner or family, confer with them before deciding on changes.

Sat., Jan. 4—Parts of the day may seem more interesting than others, but try to make your business hours profitable. Friends play an important part in recreation.

Sun., Jan. 5—A good deal of your day is social, and in keeping with your own viewpoint and established circle. Musical entertainment or a new contact may appear.

Mon., Jan. 6—Excellent aspects which bring out the best in dealings with family and in employment matters. If study will help develop plans this is the time; concentrate.

Tue., Jan. 7—A day that might turn up an unexpected bit of luck under the Full Moon's beaming rays. An entirely new slant on a friendship you have taken for granted may broaden plans. Attend a show.

Wed., Jan. 8—Money plans good. Inspirations can contribute to your welfare, or an association with others can land you in improved lines. Romance can play a big part.

Thu., Jan. 9—Develop possibilities of a new plan. Put in several hours of special work. You may be thinking of a home of your own or of improving the one you have. Aspects in line for new plans; use them.

Fri., Jan. 10—Don't leave any decisions to chance today. Stick to good working plans, and put home, office, in order. This is an opportune time for shopping, technical work.

Sat., Jan. 11—Very fine aspects. Start plans for use the rest of the month. Your main social interests and the possibilities of romance appear to be running smoothly.

Sun., Jan. 12—Join in family plans. Meet others for devotions and in seeking spiritual advancement. Set yourself a good example for growth. Afternoon affairs look lively.

Mon., Jan. 13—Today a novel chance for entertainment may stem from business contacts. Legal matters and close working contacts with others favored. Don't undertake too much through enthusiasm. Take evening quietly.

Tue., Jan. 14—You can enjoy business and personal matters, for you have a clear outlook with everything in aspects above board. Look forward; plan for yourself and loved ones.

Wed., Jan. 15—This is the evening to make that important date. Through the morning you have energetic rays, good for all kinds of work interests, but afternoon aspects do not promise very much except complications.

Thu., Jan. 16—Office business and all work needing skill and training have bright prospects today. You are apt to have unexpected money; special praise for good work done.

Fri., Jan. 17—Aspects for success in special things you want to do. Speculation and financial agreements can be excellent, but know when to stop. In evening, seek quiet.

Sat., Jan. 18—Deal with business affairs this morning. There is need for limiting risks in the afternoon; evening excellent for social affairs. Keep to an impersonal attitude.

Sun., Jan. 19—Slacken your pace a little today. Devote some of your time to sizing up how well your present working plans will fill your needs. Do things that stabilize home interests. Happiness through a romance.

Mon., Jan. 20—A sense of good will can make you feel that everything you do is worth while today. Take an interest in associates. Start the evening cheerfully; keep it so.

Tue., Jan. 21—There are probably a good many things you would like to do this morning, but Saturn is slowing you up temporarily. Work and business aspects well in afternoon.

Wed., Jan. 22—Saturn still influences your prospects under the New Moon in your Second House. Work may be too much for you, or quarrels arise. Be neutral. Slow your pace before discouragement overtakes you.

Thu., Jan. 23—This is a day when much depends on keeping up with plans started. Your money interests must be conserved under these good aspects, also friendly entertainment.

Fri., Jan. 24—Aspects give good support today. Family and friends around you are helpful. There can be a good deal of stimulation for studies and mental work this afternoon.

Sat., Jan. 25—You have very doubtful aspects for harmony in ordinary relations. Don't look to others for help. Work out your own problems. Not the day for social pleasure. Look at things from an impersonal status.

Sun., Jan. 26—Strengthen the bonds of your home life. Follow your usual routine, but take as much time as possible for leisure, study, and systematizing your affairs.

Mon., Jan. 27—Those who have been carrying on steadily with their jobs, may soon begin to find that they have better prospects than they had imagined. Keep on doing your best.

Tue., Jan. 28—Don't seek things just because they are new, but when you do find original ideas be willing to make changes. Public contacts good; advertise, sell.

Wed., Jan. 29—Don't let yourself be talked into a rash venture today. Good management begins with care in finances. You should find pleasant social conditions tonight.

Fri., Mar. 28—There are exciting aspects in the morning hours. Business plans may suffer irregularities. Do what you can to steady conditions. Romance has prominence.

Sat., Mar. 29—Your home and family are the center of attention today. Put your own desires in the background for the time. The evening not friendly for social plans.

Sun., Mar. 30—Kindly aspects, with the Sun in Aries, marking the first days of Spring. Enjoy family and friends, benefit from Sunday church programs and recreational plans.

Mon., Mar. 31—You have uncertain influences all day. Develop what business you can. Watch any doubtful conditions, and don't make any plans until you know your ground.

THIS MAY be a difficult and trying year for you as long as grave Saturn is in your Seventh House of Partners, where the stress now falls in your personal life. On the other hand, with Jupiter in your Tenth House of Career and Ambition you should be able to make real progress in business, and attract social honor to yourself. During the first three weeks of the month you may be occupied with psychological and subjective matters, and there are bound to be some difficulties in the first ten days. You will need to be sure at that time that your outlook on life is not being warped in some misleading manner, and to avoid any inner confusion of mind. This may climax at the Full Moon of the 7th. But from the 11th to New Moon of the 22nd there should be a real and heartening improvement not only in your relations with others, but also in reference to your career or social ambitions and prestige. From the middle of the month to the 25th you may find yourself not only mentally active and expressive but also making many contacts, taking short trips and in general stressing Mercurial activities in your personal life and aims. However, after the New Moon of the 22nd, which puts stress on you personally and your interests, you may find yourself facing real difficulties and tensions in your dealings with others during the following ten days—be especially careful that you don't quarrel with partners. Furthermore, in your relations with friends and loved ones be discreet for around the 25th unconventional and sudden situations might develop.

Cheer up for things will get better in February. Indeed from the 28th of January until the 17th, aspects are very favorable for your personal aims and interests. Originality and independence of enterprise and great breadth of outlook are yours for the asking. From the 16th to 21st you should guard against over-confidence especially in reference to career and ambitions. The New Moon of the 21st places emphasis on your income and assets, in which connection there is likely to be much activity until April. All Mercurial activities (trips, contacts, communications, self-expression) — are much favored at the end of the month when your career can benefit. But act before the period ends for Mercury turns retrograde through March to the 23rd.

It would be well not to allow your emotions to drive you to extremes of aggressive action at the beginning of the month, even though hidden factors are adding in some way to your prestige in social matters. In any case the atmosphere "cools" by the Full Moon of the 7th, when partnership matters and relations with others may receive a real setback—possibly involving the social or romantic side of your life. Furthermore, you should be careful of flighty thinking in any independent line of endeavor that you are following, for too much independence and individuality can only harm your assets. However, from the 11th to the New Moon of the 22nd you ought to be able to enjoy a very free and happy period in which your outlook is more aspiring and romantic fulfillment is possible; during the same interval personal Mercurial activities seem to be stimulated, but will really start to move ahead as does Mercury after the 23rd. The emphasis shifts with the New Moon to local activities where a constructive stabilizing force seems to be at work. But the last week of the month may not be so easy. During that time your social activities and affections seem to be "off-key" and some sudden act of stubbornness could hurt finances, but above all you will need to avoid illusions in your thinking.

Your financial high tides come between the following dates: January 22nd to 24th, February 18th to 20th and March 18th to 21st. For the low tides the dates are: January 8th to 10th, February 4th to 6th and March 4th to 6th. Assume the initiative when you're at your highs, for projects begun then should be lasting.

SPECIAL DATES: Those born January 22nd to 28th should accept any discipline which partnership matters may impose on them, while those born January 29th to 31st should strive to universalize their outlook on life. Those born February 7th to 9th can progress in independent action along highly original lines, and those born February 9th to 17th must guard against over-optimism and over-expansion in connection with career or honor.

- Wed., Mar. 26—Aspects push home-interests to the fore. Take care of the needs of those dependent upon you. Increase technical knowledge. Don't be carried away by impulse.
- Thu., Mar. 27—Pleasant aspects affecting relationship with others. Material benefits and a visit with near relatives may settle a business matter. Rest tonight.
- Fri., Mar. 28—A little of the unexpected may liven the day. There will be times when you will not know just where you stand. Activities are of the best, but in a limited way.
- Sat., Mar. 29—You will find on the whole a trend toward home affairs through the morning, afternoon may be a little extravagant with gay outside contacts high-lighted.
- Sun., Mar. 30—Church interests and fine aspects make pleasant changes and social activity worth while. Affairs of the heart have friendly vibrations.
- Mon., Mar. 31—Unfavorable aspects today. Do not figure on any immediate changes. Wind up the month's affairs; be guarded in business matters and take nothing for granted.

THE focus falls on your House of Friendship during the first three weeks of the year, but difficulties may be experienced during the first ten days. You will need to avoid deception and any mental confusion in connection with finances which involve friends. But from the 11th to the New Moon of the 22nd, following the climax at the Full Moon of the 7th, events should shape up much more favorably for you. Your outlook on life can broaden out in your thinking, and you can feel cheerful about things. Your work and career can benefit also, possibly through the help of an older person. From the middle of the month to the 25th aspects seem to show much activity and many trips, contacts and messages—all Mercurial—in connection with friends and loved ones, but by the 25th these aspects may change, especially where your job is concerned. For the ten days following the New Moon of the 22nd you are bound to meet with problems in connection with your work, which if handled properly, should add to your prestige. Watch your relations with the opposite sex around the end of the month—they may reflect adversely on your career or social prestige. Also be careful during this same period not to argue with co-workers.

But as early as the 28th, and lasting until February 17th very favorable aspects come into play allowing both joint finances and home affairs to progress. It may be that the most beneficial results will be subjective and emotional, i.e., not on the surface. At the Full Moon of the 5th don't over-express yourself, and from the 16th to the 21st beware of over-confidence in your emotional outlook on life. Mercury's entrance into your First House—your birth sign—on the 8th, where it will stay until April, and the Sun's entrance on the 19th followed by the New Moon there on the 21st, indicates a strong emphasis on your personal aims and their expression in the period ahead. Mentally you should be active, with contacts, trips and writing important. All such Mercurial matters are personally favorable to you towards the end of the month, both in pleasant contacts with friends and in your mental outlook on things. But take advantage of these good aspects for Mercury's retrogression from March 1st to 23rd will slow all such matters down, while still emphasizing them, and in general will make progress more difficult.

Emotional fervor may mark the start of March for you and, socially and romantically, this could give your outlook on life a real glow, but to go to extremes would be unwise and might have hidden adverse effects. A far more serious note intrudes by the Full Moon of the 7th at which time your work may suffer some setback in your relations with others. In particular, though the reaction is likely to affect your home and basic security, where you seem to be both mentally unreliable and given to rebellion and pig-headed individualism, be careful at least until the 10th. But again, favorable conditions from the 11th to the New Moon of the 22nd should make you feel much better, and your home and joint finances can be straightened out in a truly progressive manner through your personal charm and tact. At the same time, the Mercurial expression of your personal interests seems to be stimulated. However, this stimulation will not really progress until after the 23rd. The New Moon of the 22nd stresses finances in the period ahead, and indicates that work and income can be placed in a sound and well-adjusted position around the 23rd. However, the last week of the month may prove a trying one for you. Above all don't be misled in any way about joint finances. You may be too emotional and too subjective in your outlook, and must avoid any sudden quarrel which could upset the home.

The alternate low and high tides in your lunar money cycle are as follows: low, January 10th to 12th, high, January 24th to 26th, low, February 6th to 8th, high, February 21st to 23rd, low, March 6th to 8th, and high, March 20th to 22nd. The best time to take the initiative will be when you're at your highs, as matters begun then are likely to be long-lived and favorable in outcome.

SPECIAL DATES: Those born March 8th to 10th should not be surprised at any sudden changes or uprooting of their homes, nor allow themselves to be too critical and rebellious. Those born March 11th to 19th ought to have a very bright and glowing outlook on life.

DAILY ADVICE

for Pisces

- Wed., Jan. 1—Aspects have what you need for social intercourse. Sift out your plans for the coming season. Be with friends and family, and it should be a great day.
- Thu., Jan. 2—Regular business and school hours form a fixed pattern for you. Promote sales. The morning starts out slowly, but aspects warm up toward evening.
- Fri., Jan. 3—Commercial duties, and a share of mental work, favor both the practical worker and those who like to take responsibility. Money matters are of universal concern, and thrift keeps them stable.
- Sat., Jan. 4—The morning sounds a "busy" signal, but in the afternoon be on the spot where you'll find cheerful friends and merry-making. Favorable angle for romances.
- Sun., Jan. 5—Compromise a trifle if you are planning outdoor exercises; avoid the strenuous. The day is favorable in other ways; for study, visiting, and public gatherings.
- Mon., Jan. 6—Jupiter's leanings toward good business and speculative matters may open an unexpected interest for Pisces people. Travel and advertising are favored.
- Tue., Jan. 7—The Full Moon can make this a happy and lucky day if you have a friendly environment. The evening seems taken over by public matters.
- Wed., Jan. 8—You will have to be careful in decisions today. Keep going, for the things you do affect others as well as yourself. Postpone travel and take care of health.
- Thu., Jan. 9—You will not gain much today if you try to mix friendly contacts with business demands. Attend to the ever-important real work necessary to living, and your happiness will be heightened for sociability.
- Fri., Jan. 10—Day's aspects very promising. A matter which has been of serious concern for some time should soon clear up. Your work wins praise from headquarters. The evening is inviting for entertainment.
- Sat., Jan. 11—A good aspect to step right out; marketing, office work, all main duties beckon. Evening spreads a lively atmosphere. Join the crowd for recreation.
- Sun., Jan. 12—You have fine aspects today from Mercury, Venus and Mars, with the Sun in your Eleventh House of Friends. Enjoy social relations. Rely on church benefits.
- Mon., Jan. 13—Promising outlook for matters associated with other people. You have kindly forces; call on your reserve power, for results are of your own making. Social matters and artistic affairs favored.
- Tue., Jan. 14—Make the most of your ability to finish work you have started. A very fine day for all who benefit from written and literary work. Accept invitations; visit friends.
- Wed., Jan. 15—The period is excellent for personal matters, and for forming new con- tacts in life. Planetary rays give strong help in pushing creative work, also in financial and romantic developments.
- Thu., Jan. 16—Influences today are fine; put your best efforts on the subject you are trained for. Possibilities favorable, with a strong influence on the cooperative side.
- Fri., Jan. 17—Work dominates your day and you may reach a new high level. Extra activities are favored in business and professional channels. Romantic interests are evident.
- Sat., Jan. 18—You can make a good deal of advancement this morning. Family ties seem to take on new importance through trips or correspondence.
- Sun., Jan. 19—Keep to a systematic plan of spiritual culture. Review the outstanding points of the past week, and devote the afternoon hours to friends and sociability.
- Mon., Jan. 20—It is not so easy to shake off worries and nagging conditions this morning. Aspects become more encouraging later, good for writing and experimental work. Try to see both sides of any business matter.
- Tue., Jan. 21—Whatever your occupation is, do not forget that some days call for much harder effort than others. Study and organization work this afternoon.
- Wed., Jan. 22—Aspects are really unfriendly; check up on conditions. Pay attention to your own requirements. Be as quiet as possible. Be with people whose affairs are settled.
- Thu., Jan. 23—Something worth while may be indicated for today. Build up good will and popularity to help stabilize your relations toward your business.
- Fri., Jan. 24—Relations should be good with other people, with Neptune favorable to Libra, and the day should be full of interest. Socially, you have a very good period right now, so don't put off that special plan.
- Sat., Jan. 25—The day calls for active tactics, mostly in trying to overcome adverse conditions, or putting to rights work that has been carelessly done. Not a good time for extravagant shopping or entertaining.
- Sun., Jan. 26—Most of your usual Sunday plans should go well, though the afternoon shows some difficulties from an outside source. Evening develops friendships and talents.
- Mon., Jan. 27—Be prudent today. Hold onto gains already made. Agitating vibrations make all work difficult. Think fast if things go wrong. If friends argue, don't join in.
- Tue., Jan. 28—Business and social fronts well disposed. It will pay you to push for all you are worth. Put special training to work. Literary and artistic lines favored.
- Wed., Jan. 29—Rays this morning benefit your special pursuits and interests. Buy and sell; good aspects for making new contacts. An invitation from a friend may result in romance.
- Thu., Jan. 30—If you have any home responsibilities, today's aspects are for catering to material needs and looking out for property maintenance. Open your mind to new ideas.
- Fri., Jan. 31—Good for production and speculative matters, but under a strong impulse from oppositional forces. With results so uncertain, ingenuity and steadiness count.

DAILY ADVICE for Pisces

Sat., Feb. 1—This month looks to be anything but monotonous. Something new shows in your aspects such as travel or change of locality. There is an emotional tendency which can cause nerve strain.

Sun., Feb. 2—Stick to the meaning of this day in spirit and in truth, to add to your reserve power. A contact made today can have a vital bearing on your personal plans.

Mon., Feb. 3—You will find rewards today in commercial matters and in new fields of study. The Sun and Mercury in your Twelfth House help you to gain ground if you only follow through. Keep home arrangements orderly.

Tue., Feb. 4—Morning aspects helpful in a "business before pleasure" way. You may have to let a social matter, like writing a letter, slide temporarily, but do not forget it altogether. Very good influence for romance.

Wed., Feb. 5—This should be an enterprising day, with the Full Moon in your good Sixth House. You should feel a sense of determination which can take you far. It sheds a good influence on social plans and romance.

Thu., Feb. 6—You have a social aspect today which will take you outside of your usual rut and increase contacts with relatives and friends. Do not let envy get the best of your good sense tonight.

Fri., Feb. 7—You find that one day is very much like another, and at present they are, for this month you have settled and kindly aspects. Cultivate sociability, and you'll find cheer.

Sat., Feb. 8—Today favors the people who like to be part of a group undertaking. Teamwork in employment or sports gets you to the goal, and relieves you of sole responsibility. Your social stock soars.

Sun., Feb. 9—There is going to be a good deal of entertaining at home or in public places today. Use good judgment wherever you are. A good time to consider plans for future business, but watch finances.

Mon., Feb. 10—There is nothing to prevent you from advancing; show a cooperative spirit, and be sure that what you want to do is within your powers. Good social aspects.

Tue., Feb. 11—You may gain through getting away from some old manner of thought; get a fresh point of view on a dormant interest. Be practical; you'll find it helpful.

Wed., Feb. 12—A little routine advisable this morning. Let good planning, rather than impulse rule. A few days of uncertain aspects; things will speed up again soon. Lunar forces favor home and family.

Thu., Feb. 13—You have fine influences for work where decisive action counts. Mental effort should be easy, so make your talents count. You have contact with an old friend, perhaps of schoolday period.

Fri., Feb. 14—Your business sources have encouragement. Exercise your personality; do not try to copy other people, but develop distinctive plans. Look for a high level in friends.

Sat., Feb. 15—Aspects poor. Be on your guard; you'll gain nothing by giving way to nerves or crossing a bridge before you come to it. Give special attention to personal contacts.

Sun., Feb. 16—Build your self assurance, for you have an attractive outlook. Jupiter, your ruler, sends harmonious rays from your Ninth House of the higher mind and religion, which should put you at your best.

Mon., Feb. 17—Work of an intellectual type favored by aspects, and new leads in business are profitable if you apply yourself. Evening shows sociability.

Tue., Feb. 18—Your sign enjoys two rulers, and Neptune adds to Jupiter's good effect, by holding out good offers of friendship. All in all, you have fine prospects for a day when things should go just right.

Wed., Feb. 19—Your plans and intentions may be of the best today, but working conditions probably will not be. It may be better to take no action at all; planetary interference shows effect on health and weather.

Thu., Feb. 20—Erratic ideas may be upsetting. Look after home and business equipment. You may find room for improvement; clean and repair where necessary. Go easy in judgment with domestic matters this afternoon.

Fri., Feb. 21—The New Moon is in your First House today, and you should find co-operation on all sides. Concentrate your efforts on developing your talents, and contribute what you can to the pleasure of those around you.

Sat., Feb. 22—A shifting outlook this morning may induce risks and disagreements. Don't get tangled up, for afternoon will give you opportunities for friendliness and good work.

Sun., Feb. 23—You'll have no good excuses for leaving things undone today. Take an interest in home surroundings and property. Important Sunday pursuits are favored, and Venus is on hand to develop romance.

Mon., Feb. 24—If you are planning to adopt a new line, a little systematic advertising at this time might do good. Let people know what you can do, or what you need. You may find the very thing you are looking for.

Tue., Feb. 25—A day to be industrious and busy. There seems to be something in the line of buying and selling for others, as well as your own personal business. Do not scatter your efforts. Evening rays are good.

Wed., Feb. 26—You will need reason and common sense rather than fanciful theories this morning. In the afternoon get started in general home and business occupations. You will find the evening favorable to your own plans.

Thu., Feb. 27—Personal performance mounts today. You will find no easy road, but just do not interfere with good prospects. A professional channel seems favored.

Fri., Feb. 28—Your chart looks rather bad this morning, with involvements and deceptive circumstances which will make way later for favored mental pursuits and romantic drifts.

DAILY ADVICE

for Pisces

Sat., Mar. 1—Aspects not good in relations with other people through the morning. Afternoon shows more benefits, and you may be able to do something that has been in your mind for a long time. Evening unsettled.

Sun., Mar. 2—You will find attractions in contacts at home and in public gatherings; morning and evening very good. Concern over someone else's affairs disturbs afternoon.

Mon., Mar. 3—Details in connection with family and children's needs may bring up health care, shopping, and entertainment. Rather uncertain moments show in the afternoon, but the time is generally well aspected.

Tue., Mar. 4—Attend to practical affairs. A productive day, when a lucky stroke of business may bring worthwhile profits. Social affairs seem lively. Romance is favored.

Wed., Mar. 5—The whole day fine for domestic and partnership relations. Keep your mind alert to see benefits of propositions made. Your House of Friends is under good rays.

Thu., Mar. 6—You have forceful help in merchandising and in technical work. Events work in your favor, but be constructive. Jupiter favors home and working conditions.

Fri., Mar. 7—Watch your moon aspects today; it is at the full, and in your Seventh House. You need to pay special attention to deals you're handling, and don't let the effect of Mars in your sign push you too hard.

Sat., Mar. 8—Work responsibilities fill the morning; be careful in partnership matters. People in your sign have a chance for advancement. You have conditions of doubt this afternoon affecting travel.

Sun., Mar. 9—Not a good day for social or domestic improvement. There is a tendency to belittle other people's efforts. Just remember that to keep human relations good is one of the fine arts; practice it.

Mon., Mar. 10—A sense of good will on the part of associates affords you a chance to make up for lost time. Keep business modernized. Be sure you are legally right.

Tue., Mar. 11—Give attention to workable phases and plans. Put emphasis on money matters and settlements to be made. You may find attractive social prospects.

Wed., Mar. 12—Aspects today are tops for your sign. Money earnings a major item. You have a fine day in most of your affairs, making this the time to join your crowd.

Thu., Mar. 13—Vibrations offer little opposition for those in large corporations. Practical matters and exchanges of opinion are favored. Progressive. Join sports.

Fri., Mar. 14—You have a couple of days of mixed aspects before you. Certain seasonal matters, as buying and selling, may have to be postponed. Evening is the best part of the day for business contacts.

Sat., Mar. 15—Slightly better aspects, but no time to be careless. Routine shopping, home interests. Things work out all right this evening, for sports and parties.

Sun., Mar. 16—Aspects are good factors for individual welfare. Morning develops well for church interests. Afternoon somewhat superficial. Make the most of what comes along.

Mon., Mar. 17—Good results from employment and professional matters. There is liveliness in home details. Evening excitable. Be restrained—relax.

Tue., Mar. 18—Finish current work before starting anything new. Jupiter is in friendly aspect, promising benefit from your exertions. Plan entertainment of some sort.

Wed., Mar. 19—You are under aspects that show headway in plans for change and new surroundings. Work starts with a rush. Take a responsible and serious view to combine all factors to assure good for all.

Thu., Mar. 20—A fortunate day showing steady development of unusual activities. The fine arts are favored, and social channels deserve especial attention. Have a good time.

Fri., Mar. 21—Contacts count in a big way. You may gain through doing a kindly act for another. Aspects good for study in the fine arts, but keep your mind on your work, or you will have to correct mistakes.

Sat., Mar. 22—An auspicious day. A very good time to carry out the part you have planned for yourself. Get results. The afternoon good for trips, sports or romance.

Sun., Mar. 23—Early morning tendencies unfavorable. Avoid excitement. Church contacts desirable and all phases of quiet recreation. New ideas in entertainment.

Mon., Mar. 24—Take good care of money sources, for you are now in a time of low finances, but have constructive aspects ahead. The social slant is interesting.

Tue., Mar. 25—Aspects are helpful. Something that seemed hard yesterday may prove easy today. It is a time to make changes and to buy new clothes. Keep your mind open to new trends in your own line of work.

Wed., Mar. 26—You may find that plans today are largely dependent on others. There is a friendly interest from those who can help in your aims. Your own force and drive help.

Thu., Mar. 27—Weed out all the unnecessary side lines. Your day is over-active, but arrange a definite system and things should work out all right. Don't run health risks.

Fri., Mar. 28—Morning shows a press of duties and some excitement. Later you have good aspects for employment and a social trend; recreation, special romance.

Sat., Mar. 29—Give essential duties first attention. Important news or civic developments may come up; broadening influences. Finish work, get away for recreation.

Sun., Mar. 30—In all ways that count, the day has pleasant aspects. Lay work aside for refreshing contacts with friends and family. Enjoy church and sociability. Get outdoors.

Mon., Mar. 31—A share of profits should come to you at the end of the month. Lay constructive plans. Today unfavorable for personal accomplishment. Care in health matters.

The Miraculous Cube

which should have formed the head and corner, rejected by the builders.

The unwise use of our potentialities, the neglect of our horoscopes or the foolish dabbling with astrology in a half-hearted way is vividly portrayed in the myth of Pandora's box. Pandora opened this box and let escape all the plagues and diseases of humanity, but closed it before hope could escape. No matter what we do, hope always remains in the box, for, as long as we live upon the earth our natural chart, the original cube, shows potentialities and possibilities which can and will bring us out of our difficulties.

When we unfold the cube, we have the cross. Thus the cube represents the eight crucifixions in matter which everything must undergo on the path to perfection. The natal chart, our own cubes, determine the crucifixions and trials which each shall undergo in this life. We each have a cross to bear and that cross represents our initiation into this incarnation. It determines how far along the path of life we have progressed and how near we are to perfection.

Though man, during the course of ages, rejected the cube as a symbol, he unknowingly retained it in a different form. As shown in the illustration, the six-pointed star of Judaism is but an idealized cube, the natal chart and compass of every son and daughter of Israel. The cross of Christianity is the cube unfolded to present the crucifixion in matter. The square and compass of the masons is but an ideograph of the cube.

From the symbolism of the cube we learn that the fixed signs or pillars give man his bearings, and through them he is always able to determine his position on earth and in the scheme of life. The cardinal signs of the below, or earth, show his ability to make natural changes and evolve as do the seasons. They permit him to adjust himself to conditions. The mutable signs denote his unstable and changeable qualities which are regulated from above or outside himself. Thus, in the fixed signs we find man in his natural, primitive state. In the cardinal signs we get indications of the changes and adaptations, his relative position in the world. The mutable signs reveal the outside influences which affect him—his environment, neighbors, friends, brothers and sisters, social conditions and other things which temper, alter and change the natural desires and make adjustments and adaptations necessary.

Hand Personalities

Fortunately the girl soon found some satisfaction in drawing and designing. Soon after she left the convent life she became engaged to marry a young man of her own social set, but a few days before the wedding was to take place malicious gossip that again centered around the divorce of her parents put an end to the romance. The prospective groom's parents threatened him with disinheritance if he married into a family where there had been a divorce. Heart-broken, the girl sought to forget the hurt by returning to her art, and was well on the road to success when World War I called her to the aid of her country in the capacity of a field and hospital nurse. (That she became highly proficient in her new profession can be easily understood from the strong Mount of Mercury and the medical marks it shows.)

Romances that came and went during the war period lead our emotionally high-strung Venusian into fickleness rather than constancy in love (as born out by her Girdle of Venus.)

After the war, from which she emerged with several Medals of Honor, she returned to her rightful place in the field of commercial art where she has since gained a name for herself in originating and designing countless interior decorating items. After extensive travels all over Europe she eventually came to this country and here added more laurels to her name as designer of practical novelties.

World War II made Mademoiselle R. lay down her paint brushes for the second time and return to field nursing, where she proved to be in great demand not only in her medical capacity but also because of her charming personality that knew how to boost many a morale. Mademoiselle R. has since, with typical versatility, switched to playwriting, and there is no doubt in our minds that her plays will be running over with romance, intrigue and fast-moving drama.

The final "verdict," then, for Mademoiselle R's life and individuality as clearly mirrored in the shape, mounts, lines and symbols of her hands, is: a vivid, emotional, versatile and highly talented person with a strong artistic streak in her temperament, an ever-present creative urge, and a super-sensitive restless and idealistic love of nature. In trying to live down an unhappy childhood and to find outlets for her desire for self-expression, she has always sought new experiences and thus has led a life that despite its frustrations has been rich in its rewards.

Jupiter in the Twelve Signs

and practical. Often solitary and brooding, cold and selfish. Large schemes for a career in government, possibly in civil service. Careful and conservative. Organizing ability. Ambitious and independent. Deep-seated fear of poverty. Diplomatic in action, slow in thought. Preoccupied with accumulating the wherewithal to advance him in position and power. May marry for money or high connections. Though fond of money, these people really care more for authority and power, and unless the star map shows serious afflictions, they are almost certain to rise to a high place along the line of their choice. With Jupiter in Capricorn: Adolf Hitler, April 20, 1889; Clark Gable, February 1, 1901.

Jupiter in Aquarius: Here we have the one who craves to engage in gigantic philanthropic enterprises, reforming all and sundry "for their own good." He cannot be interested in one apart, for his interest is in all collectively. If he cannot give a thousand dollars, he is not likely to give a dime. Original, humane, sincere, optimistic, and impersonal. His religion is expressed by deeds. Without strong support from the sign Cancer, or the fourth house, he has no conception of race or class, or of national allegiance, considering himself a citizen of the world, and thus he is out of joint with his time. I am convinced from observation that these persons have an innate trend toward occult studies, especially astrology, though they often disclaim this. Best contented when surrounded by friends. When afflicted, they live aimlessly, or become revolutionary and anarchistic. Born with Jupiter in this sign: Harry Hopkins, August 17, 1890; Edgar Bergen, February 16, 1903; Joseph Medill Patterson, January 6, 1879.

Jupiter in Pisces: Jupiter is at home here, in harmony with his place. This is a spiritual vibration, portraying a sweet disposition, gifted with sympathy, psychic ability, dreams, and visions. Tender and compassionate, the native is kind to the downtrodden and those in trouble. He gives secretly and may not be able to give as much as he would like. Many journeys by water. Fond of music, dancing, poetry, and animals. Wealth may be made in the oil industry. Likely to be well off at the end of life. Afflictions may show laziness, restlessness, indecision, procrastination, alcoholism. In a well managed life, this Jupiter can give much happiness, radiating into far corners. Born with Jupiter here: General Douglas MacArthur, January 26, 1880; Clare Boothe Luce, April 10, 1903; Rex Tugwell, July 16, 1891.

handling sharp tools, machinery or manipulating motor vehicles. Avoid speed and spills and be frugal and deliberate in all you do. Watch your digestion.

1947 and LEO

(Those born July 23rd to August 23rd inclusive)

☉ The 1947 realignment among planets might prove a stumbling block to any impulsive Leonian. Saturn is now in Leo, on your Solar Ascendant. Off and on during the twelve months he will be cheek to jowl with the tricky, sinister Pluto, so watch your step, as all Leos are affected. If your birthday falls late in July or the first five days of August be extra cautious when making drastic decisions.

Saturn is merely a "reaper" of conditions your actions have sown in the past. It represents the principle in manifestation of "our tomorrows are the results of our yesterdays." That explains why Saturn is a donor as well as a denier. You may discover in 1947 that your affairs will come suddenly to fruition after years of unsuccessful endeavor. Saturn is liable to bring harvest to earnest workers—it will positively punish with blighted hopes the foolish antics of any giddy wastrels.

Steer for the deep waters of Saturn-ruled activities. These are executive jobs, slow investments, painstaking tasks, tangible assets, laboratory or research work—and all endeavors that require the sweat of the brow rather than the ingratiating display of your personality.

The best period of 1947 for Saturn commodities and activities are the first seven months for any July-born child of Sol. Put your shoulder to the wheel and await gratifying results in November and December.

August-born Leonians are benefited by Saturn the last five months of the year. However, all financial transactions or speculative manipulations present grave danger, so don't gamble. The most critical period should be the first two weeks of November. Play safe! However, "a fair exchange is no robbery." This same group will experience the glorious stimulus from Uranus, now in the Mansion of Career. This planet is a splendid contact-maker, introducing new and worthwhile opportunities, possibly in an unconventional manner. Any fair daughter of Sol is likely to experience the "grand passion" of her lifetime. This excellent planetary ray is a booster not only in business and profession but in intimacies as well. Married folk may be gladdened by a successful "second honeymoon."

A most effervescent and profitable period for all Leonians should be during July and the first half of August. The vibratory rate is hyperpotential; therefore, be sure of your direction from the start. You may not be able to follow a prearranged plan, so don't try to attempt too much at one time. Beware of financial losses—don't speculate! Mainly affected in this latter respect are those who saw the light on August 9th, 10th, 11th, 12th or 13th of any year.

Romance seems very uncertain and unaccountable for Leonians this year, so snatch Cupid by the forelock if and when he presents himself. July-born Leo men or women are under extremely romantic vibrations, but the ring may not be in the offing just yet because of handicaps arising from economic or general conditions (housing problems, for instance).

August-born Leonians should note February as favorable for all tie-ups, private or business. Joyous ringing of wedding bells, however, should be postponed until March. Adjustments in domestic set-ups also are favorably indicated for the period of the Vernal Equinox.

August is another excellent month for love-making, friendships, reconciliations, social aspirations and artistic pursuits, for Hymen (Muse of Matrimony) smiles upon you at that time.

All Leonians should note that October and November are overstimulated. Keep cool—make haste slowly—avoid accidents and quarrels. December, on the other hand, is a fortunate month for practically all economic and affectional interests.

1947 and VIRGO

(Those born Aug. 24th to Sept. 22nd inclusive)

♁ Criss-cross rays make 1947 an interesting year. The element of change is strongly indicated for those born in September, although ready cash beckons after hectic weeks of adjustment. This is indicated for both office and home, the main point being that you should not take the initiative in making drastic decisions. Let turbulent vortexes of change approach you, then parry with a wise and practical "follow through" policy. Under no circumstances should you rush into hazardous, untried ventures or doubtful financial speculations. "Look before you leap" is the stars' advice.

Splendid good fortune on the material plane is likely to be the result of good judgment applied to job adjustments, career changes, or any quick switches in important situations, even in your private life. Note the first ten months of 1947 as economically favorable. November and December, however, introduce a "loss" aspect unless shrewd economy rules your affairs. This latter bit of advice is issued mainly to those born in August.

Nearly all Virgoans enjoy an aspect that promises gain through partners. Unwed Virgoans may seek escape from the daily grind in your office or shop via the marriage route. The best period for the nuptials should be April or September when the Love Planet Venus stimulates polarity to and from your Partnership Mansion. The weeks of the Hunter's Moon (late October and early November) and all of December are under the bright smile of stimulated affections, friendships, social graces and artistic aspirations.

December, however, brings a warning against over-activity in practical matters, especially when money is involved. Moderation should be your watchword in all you do. Frugality had better rule your dietary regime. August-born should apply the law of avoidance equally in matters of human relations during December.

A vexing situation is likely to call for extreme diplomacy and shrewd application of psychological principles during the first seven months of 1947. This applies to those with August birthdays. The last five months of 1947 are precarious to those who saw the light from the 1st of September up to the 12th inclusive, of any year.

Exactly where the shoe pinches depends a great deal on your individual horoscope. It is advisable that you have a competent astrologer analyze your secret problems. Your solarscope points to romantic, perhaps clandestine, relations and set-ups of a secret nature, such as silent partnerships or secret financial backings. It also involves past transgressions of legal rulings, income tax return inaccuracies, and confidential enterprises not altogether aboveboard. Some ticklish situations may now arise for those who have slipped from the straight and narrow path of business ethics. Explanations will be required of you to fully reveal the nature of your secret business transactions. Remember, offers made to you in 1947 of a rather questionable nature should be shunned unless they can stand the glare of front-page publicity!

1947 and LIBRA

(Those born Sept. 23rd to Oct. 23rd inclusive)

♁ Jupiter, now in your adjoining Scorpio, does not necessarily mean that the tide is out. On the contrary, financial fulfillment from your 1946 efforts may gladden your heart on a lavish scope. All financial and economic activities are encouraged by the presence of the Greater Fortune in your Money Mansion. Do not discard propositions broached to you at this time unless you have given them a fair test and analysis.

Jupiter's influence operates the greater part of the year, but November and December are especially favorable for budgeting and for striving to stabilize your financial security. Legal technicalities and redress in court are also favored at this time, unless your individual horoscope grossly contradicts this solar indication.

Emotionalism, especially of a romantic nature, may mar your balanced judgment in practical matters if you were born in September or the first five days of October. Beware of strange and morbid sentimentalism. All new contacts—business or social—must be carefully analyzed as to their practical value. A word of emphatic warning is here added: do not mix business and pleasure unless you are willing to face unpleasant consequences. Keep personal and business relations separated! Emote at home, if emote you must!

You may feel physically depleted at times, but this is not an alarming symptom according to your solarscope—it may be only the result of chemicalization. Rest, sleep, and mental stimulation will do much to improve your physical condition, but if serious troubles arise, better consult the good old family doctor. This influence operates as a subtle undercurrent throughout the afore-mentioned periods.

Some sudden legal entanglement may clamor for adjustment if you were born between October 10th and 20th of any year. Note particularly the month of July and the first half of August as extremely stimulated for all legal agreements, adjustments and verbal or written contracts. You may be gladdened by very influential new connections of a business nature. These may be encountered while on a journey, on the golf links, or even in the dentist's waiting room, and then should lead to some splendid and remunerative teamwork.

Those desiring a career should put their best foot forward this year. No matter whether you were born in September or celebrate an October birthdate, you will be constantly benefited in 1947. You may gain by an older, seasoned veteran in the industry, or by an eccentric, cranky "somebody." Good luck also can come from pursuits such as radio, television, recordings, and the motion picture industry. Those of a scientific trend are urged to branch out. Do not hesitate to ask for favors from superiors.

Returns may not overwhelm you by their speedy manifestation and you may have to wait a while. But fulfillment of your career hopes and wishes seem definitely assured, even if somewhat delayed.

Affectional matters, marriage and reconciliations should be taken with a grain of Saturn this year. Only tested and worth-while emotional unions should be encouraged. Frivolous flirtations are definately counter-indicated, so steer all romantic affairs on a level keel. It's a good year to eliminate the chaff from the wheat of deep affections, stimulating friendships and profitable teamwork.

All told, 1947 should prove a gratifying year—most planets are working for your material interests!

1947 and SCORPIO

(Those born Oct. 24th to Nov. 22nd inclusive)

A heyday is at hand! Jupiter (the benefic planet which brings expansion) is in your sign, Scorpio, for the first ten months of the year. In November and December the Celestial Jove stimulates your Money Mansion with gain. It behooves you to plan "big," have broad visions, and widen your mental horizons—1947 is a year for big ideas and daring moves.

Should timidity restrain your practical or fiscal initiative, then plan with a long-range perspective in mind. Those born in October may find the first half of 1947 definitely unfavorable for immediate action. But still you can dig deep foundations for future profits. Eliminate flimsy projects and sink all of your energy into undertakings that will prosper throughout the years. 1947 is a year for "big-time" stuff.

The child of arts, music, drama and the dance may experience a boost in career through the beneficence of a patron. You should team up with someone more securely fixed than yourself, even though you may imagine yourself to be a millstone around his, (or her) neck. Soon you will amaze yourself and others by your progress—and became an asset. Refrain from indulging in inferiority complex "blues."

Public appearances, major social functions, artistic pursuits and affectional interests should flourish in 1947 if you celebrate a November birthday, so plan worthwhile activities along such lines. Enhanced magnetism and an ingratiating personality may work wonders in furthering your ambitious plans during the first ten months of the year. Put your best foot forward and "smile, smile, smile."

Romance, reconciliations, even marriage, are best attempted during April, late in May, all of June, and around the time of the Hunters' Moon (middle of October to middle of November). However, publicity, projection of arts from stage or rostrum and philanthropical activities better be planned for September, while midsummer offers excellent vibrations for all domestic improvements, for solving property problems and for home adjustments. The longed-for flat, the cozy love-nest, or the spacious house you've dreamed about may now become a reality. November-born Scorpionians mainly are benefited by these friendly rays.

October-born Mars men or maidens should find 1947 progressively good. It may begin with slow vibrations, seeming frustration and perhaps somewhat depleted health. But acceleration should become obvious in your affairs after midsummer. The second half of August should bring splendid opportunities in business and profession. All of September is good, while December rings out with extremely encouraging indications.

Danger lurks in November (first half) for those born between November 10th and 20th of any year. Almost any department of your life may be affected—check your individual horoscope. Your Solar-scope points to troubles while on a journey, through the mails, or with neighbors or distant relatives. Hold your peace when differences arise.

Some unexpected mysterious gain may be accrued because of the philanthropic gesture of a friend. This only applies to those celebrating their birthdays on one of the first three days of November.

1947 and SAGITTARIUS

(Those born Nov. 23rd to Dec. 21st inclusive)

Glad anticipations mark 1947 although many adjustments are still indicated before you sail into fields of clover. Harvest looms in November and December when your own ruler, Jupiter (the Greater Fortune) will enter your sign Sagittarius. Plan diligently, therefore, all throughout the first ten months of the year. Success is presaged to come through personal efforts, the persuasive charm of your personality, and through an honest presentation of your projects!

Generally it's up to you to put things over big during the coming year.

Gain is indicated for those born in December—through some important perhaps secret tie-ups, and you may benefit through government rulings. Political activities, federal jobs, and advancement through large public organizations and institutions are favorably indicated. If you have an opportunity to join secret societies, do so, for ultimate good is likely to result from these connections. Power, certainly, is shown for you, although the true importance of your sideline endeavors may not make front page news until late in the year, or in 1948.

Archer maidens or matrons may apply this peculiar situation to their romantic affairs and friendships, or may benefit by a secret friend. Unions of a hidden nature, while at the moment doubtful as to their ultimate practical outcome, nevertheless should be encouraged and nursed along.

Otherwise, matters of human relations are unaccountable for those born between December 9th and 19th of any year. Unexpected acquaintances should develop into enduring associations. Tie-ups made unconventionally are likely to result in advantageous if brief unions. On the other hand, partnerships of long standing may terminate this year. This may come about through outer causes, general conditions and the peculiar situations surrounding the association. However, you are cautioned not to take the initiative in severing such partnerships, nor to burn bridges behind yourself.

This refers also to your marriage ties. When friction arises in your home, or your wedded mate appears unaccountable and obstreperous, be reasonable. Keep the home fires burning and let tolerance guide your decisions when breaking up bonds of friendship and affections.

Those with an early December birthdate may find that career aspirations will bring about domestic adjustments, residential changes, or even geographical removals. A new home, however, may offer greater prestige and success than did the old homestead. The tide is coming in strong for Archers. The year generally should be harmonious. Be cautious, however, during July and August. December, too, may be hectic for November-born.

and idealistic characteristics irk him at times. He has a few surprises coming his way, so "sit tight" and try to enjoy life in your own way and through your children. He is very emotional and hard to understand. Turn on the cheer, he likes a "live-wire!"

Plenty of Time—V.M.B., Va.: I don't wonder you are a bit on the "anxious seat" this year. With a "7" personal year and a "7" path, your brow could furrow even at eighteen! But hold everything, next year will bring bigger and better opportunities—and above all think hard before taking on too many heavy burdens. "Walk, do not run" to the nearest altar—there is plenty of time!

Stress Self-Development—W.V.B., Mo.: Yes, dressmaking is a fine creative work for you, but why not include a course in designing as an outlet for that wonderful creative ability you have? In fact you could do two things well; an avocation and a vocation are what you need—how about music? Make constructive use of your fine flow of ideas. The July 31, 1922 birthdate may probably satisfy your own practical outlook, but let your "heart" in on these things.

Jumping to Conclusions—Mrs. S.E. T., Ore.: You seem to jump to conclusions when you ask, "Will our marriage be a happy one?" regarding a man whose interest shows a definite wane where you are concerned. You ask my advice and I would say this man changes his mind often about women, but I don't expect him to change himself! He (December 22, 1890:  $3+4+9=7$  path) will not be frank and tell you so, but your path (October 29, 1886:  $1+2+5=8$  path) must know IMMEDIATELY! It has been truly said "actions speak louder than words"—so draw your own conclusions.

The Other Woman—J.C., Ill.: Your birthpath (March 3, 1889:  $3+3+8=5$  and your friend's (March 12, 1894:  $3+3+4=1$ ) are in general fairly harmonious, but your difficulty came when the "1" birthpath saw a "bigger fish" to angle for. A "1" Path is for the most part out for "self" first and is a good fellow until he sees something with which to pull himself up. He will tow the mark for the newcomer, so can't you feel you have "escaped" something rather than feel a "loss?" Next year may find him finished with his bossy Leo friend as well.

Not a Good Year—B.S., Pa.: (April 28, 1890:  $4+1+9=5$  path). Since my work is based on information your accurate birthname and birthdate furnish me, it would be difficult for me to say with any amount of certainty without this data, exactly what is before you. However, I can tell you that this is not a good year for you to marry nor to make an important move. Next year you will have a clearer understanding of circumstances about yourself, with more activity and opportunity to progress.

Not Too Fast!—E.A.F., Mich.: Yes, you (January 25, 1930:  $1+7+4=3$  path) and your friend (September 28, 1915:  $9+1+7=8$  path) can have many things in common to be happy over, but you are a bit young to choose a life mate, particularly one fifteen years older than yourself. We need to live life a little before we can become a good chooser, and no one could tell you that you will definitely be happy. The best ingredients do not assure perfection. I do think that you know your own mind pretty well and you also love fun, but marriage brings responsibility.

Just Beginning—M.O., Tex.: Your husband has a quiet side to his nature and may not always be in a lovemaking mood, whereas you want his reassuring attention always displayed. Recreational hours spent together in happy comradeship are fine strengtheners of the marriage bond. Your husband is fond of children and when your marriage is longer established, his spasmodic inattentions will no longer worry you. Wear a happier attitude and see if that won't please his "3" birthpath (August 8, 1922:  $8+8+5=3$ ) and temper your driving "8" path (February 26, 1924:  $2+8+7=8$ ) which always seeks results.

Get Started Now!—Anon.: Your birthday of September 1, 1911:  $9+1+3=4$  gives you a "4" birthpath, which provides you with opportunities to get some of your ideas into concrete form for practical purposes. You should be able to earn money with your creative abilities; strengthen your backbone and forget your "wish" bone. GOD HELPS THOSE WHO HELP THEMSELVES! Expand your reading habits into constructive channels in order to help "organize and harness" some of the creative abilities you have. Social welfare or working with underprivileged children may help you to focus your innate abilities with good effect, it is true, but GET STARTED—there is no time like the present!

Watchful Waiting—G.J.R., Fla.: You are both confused this year, so wait a while longer. I think, however, this young man will listen to his parents, as I do not think he wants to displease them seriously. Your "8" path (September 23, 1911:  $9+5+3=8$ ) makes you a bit too ambitious for his blood, and his "6" path (November 30, 1918:  $2+3+1=6$ ) will keep him close to his original fireside under any kind of pressure. Do a stretch of "watchful waiting," but lose no opportunity for new contacts.

You are cordially invited to participate in this department. As many letters will be answered as space allows, but no personal answers can be sent by mail. State your problems BRIEFLY, and include FULL NAME, MONTH, DAY AND YEAR of birth. If more than one person is involved, send data for both persons. Names will not be used—initials only. All answers will be based on NUMEROLOGY, which is founded on factual data. Send your question to: Laranka, c/o Current Astrology, 215 Fourth Ave., New York 3, N. Y.

A POSSIBLE disadvantage of having a cusp birthday is that two courses may seem equally good. Often more than one opportunity may present itself at the same time, and frequently trouble comes not alone. In this respect cusp natives resemble the Geminian in whom the duality is the most pronounced in the Zodiac.

It is the theory of many esoteric astrologers who combine philosophy with a study of astrology that the last three signs are the most important. They feel that the soul, with Pisces, lives its last life on earth, after having been encased in the eleven other bodies corresponding to the eleven other signs. In Aries, they believed, it learns its first lesson, and in the spiritual Pisces it is ready for life on a much higher plane than the earth can give. Although this theory belongs to one school of thought and has no general support, it is comforting to believe that one can correct one's mistakes in a future existence.

ERRATUM

In the Summer, 1946 issue under "Cusp Birthdays," Charles Filmore was erroneously referred to as the "late" editor of Unity. We are happy to correct this mistake by reporting that Mr. Filmore, at 92, is not only enjoying excellent health, but is still actively engaged in spreading the fine principles of Unity.

Your Emotional Pattern

testimony of the divorce aspects was also stronger in Lila's chart than in Dick's. Saturn was in her Eighth, separating from natal Mars and opposing Jupiter in the Second (Eighth and Second, money houses), while transiting Jupiter in the Tenth opposed Uranus in the Fourth. In Dick's chart, transiting Saturn squared natal Jupiter, a circumstantial, rather than a personal aspect of Lila's Saturn-Jupiter opposition, with its Seventh House coloring. It is interesting how the planetary movements, as they acted on Dick, seem to bring out his easy-going tendencies, implicit in his close grand air trine. The evidence strongly points to Lila as the prime mover in the whole affair.

What does the future hold for these two? Lila, with a vocational necessity to make her own way, with a marriage potential that suggests many fluctuations, would be wise to think very carefully before plunging into matrimony again. Considering the present transits in Dick's chart, a reconciliation might work out. Saturn's opposition to Dick's Aquarius planets indicate increased maturity and responsibility on his part, while the strong Gemini influence in Lila's makes her more interested in something new than in an endeavor to patch up the old. She and Dick are temperamentally akin, were once passionately attracted, and have a mutual care, their child. It is quite likely that in their tempestuous courtship and short-lived marriage, they did not have time to get well acquainted. A fresh start at this time might build better foundations. Though Lila's Seventh House indicates varied marital experiences, she nevertheless has fixed signs on her First and Seventh cusps. Her ups and downs could be within the framework of a single marriage, should she and Dick become reconciled. Yes, it is true that the stars reveal possibilities of compatibility between compared charts. But it is also true that it takes both individual and mutual effort to develop and sustain the potential revealed.

The 7 both in the Soul Urge and Personality numbers of his original name would have made him too introspective and too retiring to be a successful motion picture actor. The Soul Urge 3 of his adopted name is a decided improvement over the 7 of his original soul urge, as it gives him the desire to entertain the public, act, and mingle with society rather than be aloof and alone. The 4 Personality number makes him appear efficient, conscientious, reliable, and stable. The 7 as a total destiny number is better than the 5, as the 5 would be too changeable, restless, and unreliable, while the 7 makes him a perfectionist and a finished actor.

You must always bear in mind that each number has a separate or distinct meaning depending on its location in the chart, whether it is found as a Soul Urge, Personality or Destiny total. Therefore, be sure to study the exact chart which applies to the number in a definite location.

Bernhardt

this angle generally makes for frustration, often from subtle hidden causes. Pluto in the Eleventh relates to the desired goals, and career interests usually require compromise with personal matters. Neptune in the Ninth in aspect to Venus imposes the obligation of keeping Venus responses on a high ethical plane, and indulgence of the caprice of the moment would violate this principle in a way to frustrate the real inner longings. These might or might not have been in Bernhardt's objective consciousness. Her external life, exciting and oblivious of generally accepted moral values, was the essence of the unconventional, but there had to be a cause in the depths of her nature for her periods of depression.

The Tenth House Jupiter promised public recognition, and the combination of an Aquarius Meridian (Libra decanate) with Jupiter in Pisces, the sign of the interpreter, is significant of theatrical acclaim. Bernhardt had no real success until the M. C. progressed to this Jupiter, seven years after her first stage appearance. A smash hit at that time definitely established her as an important actress, with the critics at last capitulating to her emotional power.

The following year, 1870, the militant Mars-Uranus opposition had reached Taurus-Scorpio 0° (by radix progression), drawing Bernhardt personally into the vortex of the Franco-Prussian war through her Scorpio Sun. An interesting combination of transits was in force. Her sympathies were aroused (Uranus in Cancer trine the Pisces Jupiter) and focused on self-sacrificing humanitarian (Uranus) avenues of mass service (Neptune conjunct radical Pluto) in a hospital for the wounded (Transit Pluto in Twelfth House).

In 1872, with the M. C. still operating under its progressed conjunction with Jupiter, and several transits to the Meridian as signposts of another great success, Bernhardt had a flattering offer from the Comédie Française to return—a triumph in itself. Because of the prestige it gave, she accepted a twenty-year contract. But the progressed opposition over the Sun was still in force, and changes made under such stimulus are rarely permanent.

Bernhardt had many successes during the next seven years, but she was getting restless. The progressed Sun had been in Sagittarius for a few years prompting a desire for change and travel. In April, 1880, Sarah had the most disastrous failure of her career, and the ensuing severe criticism from the critics so infuriated her that she sent in her resignation. And with the Mercury, Venus and Jupiter transits of the day conjunct the Aries Moon-Uranus, with Mars square them all from Cancer, what could one expect but an explosion? Also Neptune had progressed to Pisces 29° in square to the Ascendant from the Tenth, while the transiting Neptune was conjunct the progressed Moon-Mars opposition in Taurus.

The stage was set for long distance moves. This was the second turning point in Bernhardt's life, and she never gave up the traveling. It satisfied her restless spirit, and she had no one to tell her what parts she must play. Also it was much more remunerative, and it brought her in contact with great masses of people, which the Eleventh House Pluto signifies. Her decisions were always quick and direct. Aries bestowed the tremendous energy for attack on her objectives, but it was the Scorpio Sun that gave the perseverance to carry them through. Her refusal to give up after the amputation of her leg showed her remarkable stamina. At seventy-two, her age when she made her last tour of America, most women, even though physically perfect, would hesitate to go through with the continual travelling plus the constant problems and adjustments that always accompany a theatrical troupe. But Aries does not adjust to conditions—they must adjust to Aries.

Bernhardt was not an intellectual type. She had a quick mind—the Aries Moon would give that. A Libra Mercury loves beauty and the niceties of life, and the trine to an Aquarius Neptune (and it is the Libra decanate) is a source of great charm, but they do not contribute to intellectual interests.

The critics treated her harshly in her early days, but little by little they were forced to bow before her genius, whether it was truly histrionic or was a projection of mysteriously magnetic forces. In a discussion of the comparative abilities of various artists, one critic summed it up, saying, "Sarah is not a genius—she is genius."

Your Mental Trend

You Mercury-in-PISCES people experience a trine from Jupiter for almost ten months in 1947—so it is time you put to an end your tendency toward indecision, and make up your mind to take advantage of the favorable aspect which lasts until October 23rd. If you work things out constructively and apply yourself, your thoughts should take physical form some time in September. All during the ninth month of the year Mars will be in Cancer, trining your Mercury. Your keywords should be "thought plus action equals result." You will indeed be foolish if you let 1947 pass without acting on your many excellent ideas.

good aspect to Mars, not strong enough to show anything except the confusion in the later circumstances.

It is likely that a good many years will pass before astrology is included among police essentials when felonies are analyzed. This gives us plenty of time to gather material so that we may formulate some rules. The newspapers nearly always state the time when an alarm has been received. It is a good habit to set up a figure at once, and see if you can arrive at any opinion upon the matter. It would be the height of folly to broadcast such opinions before knowing much more about criminal astrology than the study of one case alone can give, but after thinking such possibilities over, and then watching later developments in the cases you have calculated, some progress should be made. There are many interesting and well-established events which can be compared with their horoscopes so that you can check upon your degree of skill. Take, for instance, the Heirens case, the theft of the Hesse crown jewels, the murder of Mrs. Titterton some ten years ago, the Lindbergh case and the Hall-Mills murder. These are all more interesting than any fiction written upon the subject is or can ever hope to be; not only is interest present, but progress and eventual helpfulness to humanity as well.

Thoughts... THAT MOVE MOUNTAINS

... IS MIND POWER REAL?

HAVE YOU READ volumes on the power of thought? Perhaps you have listened to lengthy theoretical addresses on the forces of mind. You may have wondered if these same writers and lecturers on mind power know how to use it. How many mountains of personal obstacles—everyday trials and tribulations—have they moved? What are these subtle principles whereby man can skillfully remove the barriers that impede his progress? How can you displace the obstructions and hindrances to your goal... the mountains in your life? Can practical information about inner power be reduced to mere words... words for public dissemination? Or, is there a secret method especially and uniquely preserved for the worthy seeker...practicable only under ideal circumstances? If so, who has the secret method? Where can it be found?

Investigate the Rosicrucians (NOT a religion), the oldest practical philosophical fraternity on earth. See if they cannot show you a method for attainment such as you may not have dreamed. Thousands of men and women today are enjoying mental mastery...realization of ideals...the attainment of their objectives. They know the secret methods for converting mountains of personal problems into green valleys of achievement.
