The ICC contribution to metaphysics

Just exactly what is metaphysics?

A good number of people spend many years investigating this question without ever finding the answer.

Usually no two individuals go about the quest in the same manner. Some read books, others skip from study to study or attend meetings and talk about metaphysics.

As a general rule these people wind up terribly confused without learning anything of value about metaphysics. Others simply give up the quest entirely.

ICC has changed this picture because it has made a valuable contribution to the world of metaphysics.

ICC offers a system of personal development which permits modern investigators to participate in secret techniques that are never found in print much less talked about. Application of the system allows the individual to develop the latent potential of mind and psyche which gives practical meaning to metaphysics. By so doing ICC has dignified and broadened the world of metaphysics.

NOW AVAILABLE—a new prospectus of great interest to those who are investigating metaphysics which explains how investigators may participate in confidential home study courses.

QUOTE OF THE MONTH

*The prompter's hand is on his bell;
The coming heroes, lovers,
kings,
Are idly lounging in the wings;
Behind the curtain's mystic fold
The glowing future lies unrolled.*

—Francis Bret Harte

Look at the yawning void of the future, and at that other limitless space, the past.

—Marcus Aurelius

IT IS THE fate of men of my generation to span the gap between what was almost a neolithic society and the unimaginable future. In school in the 1930's we were given to understand that the industrial revolution was a thing of the past—that it actually had occurred in the early 19th Century. I was advised against majoring in physics on the grounds that it was a stagnant science and nothing new was being discovered. The biological sciences consisted in great part of merely learning a new language.

As a boy growing up in a small town I played in neighbors' barns from which horses were only just being displaced by automobiles. The highways went unplowed in winter because of the farmers' sleighs. Small town and farm life even 40 years ago was closer to the primitive life of 3,000 B.C. than to the future which is already upon us.

Recently the RAND Corp., which was created by our Defense Department as a "think" agency after World War II, produced a climate study which describes a means by which man can, if he wishes, artificially cause another ice age.

UNRAVELING THE MYSTERY OF MAN

*Do you possess inner powers as yet unused?
Do unseen powers influence your life?
Is your life the success you had hoped for?
Are there other worlds about you?
Can you part the veil to higher worlds?
Can you intuitively tune in to inspiration?
Where did you come from and where will you go from here?
Have you lived before?
Are you afraid to die?
Do the dead ever contact the living?
Is it possible for living man to become immortal?*

With our present technology we could melt the Arctic Ocean ice pack. This would cause warmer winters and cooler summers in the middle latitudes of America and Europe accompanied by severe drought. There would be extremely heavy snowfall in northern Canada and the Arctic basin which would quickly create a continental ice sheet. Soon we would be in another ice age like the one that covered the northern lands 15,000 years ago.

INEXPENSIVE CATAclySM

THE STRANGE thing about this gigantic climate effect is that apparently it could be accomplished by relatively small operations in the Arctic—things like spreading soot over the ice pack surface; inducing microscopic plants to grow over the surface of the ice (they already grow on some pack ice); wide-spread cloud seeding; spreading of a thin film of acetyl alcohol over certain waters entering the Arctic to keep them warmer; detonation of 25 one-megaton nuclear bombs in the Arctic ocean to create huge waves that would cause “puddling” to take place on the ice.

All this would increase the heat the Arctic basin retains from the sun and bring about the cataclysmic changes of a new glacial age.

Could a hostile power bury us? Perhaps, but obviously it won't be the Russians because they would also be burying themselves. The Russians, by the way, have done more research and more worrying about this danger than we have. Much of the data used by the RAND Corp. in making their judgment came from Russian sources.

Perhaps they are concerned about the Chinese who might benefit from such a glaciation.

MODERN REINCARNATION?

PROTEINS discovered in the mummified bodies of ancient Egyptians have made it possible for modern scientists to type their blood.

A breakthrough? Hardly a surface scratch compared with what the future holds, according to Prof. Elof Carlson, a zoologist at the University of California at Los Angeles.

Using the mummified tissues of these ancient bodies, scientists a century or two in the future will be able to reconstitute the living bodies by duplicating their genetic codes, Professor Carlson declares.

Suddenly I Lost My Memory!

A noted publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique for acquiring a powerful memory which can pay you real dividends in both business and social advancement and works like magic to give you added poise, necessary self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by remembering accurately everything they see, hear, or read. Whether in business, at social functions or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can dominate each situation by your ability to remember.

To acquaint the readers of this publication with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in remembering anything you choose to remember, the publishers have printed full details of their self-training method in a new book, "Adventures in Memory," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. No obligation. Simply send your request to: Memory Studies, 835 Diversey Parkway, Dept. 318C, Chicago, Ill. 60614. A postcard will do. Please include your zip code. (Advertisement)

The actual dead will not be brought back to life, according to Carlson, but from their genetic codes actual physical copies of the living human will be grown. These copies, according to the Associated Press report, "will have all of the genius possessed by their predecessors except for their memories and emotions."

Carlson declared that duplication will not be possible for persons who have been cremated or who have been buried in the ground because their cells would have been destroyed.

"We certainly will be able to reconstruct King Tutankhamen from his Egyptian mummy," he declares. He is convinced that nucleic acid crystals necessary to identify the mummy's genetic code will be found. The process would work something like this:

After the gene pattern of the mummy is decoded, an identical cell pattern will be created. This synthetic nucleus will be implanted surgically in a fertilized cell from which the original nucleus has been removed.

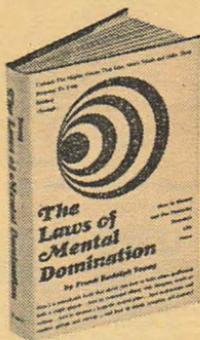

The cell then will be allowed to grow and be born as a baby — or at certain division points, say 64 — the 64 cells could be separated and 64 human beings could be replicated from them. This multiplication of humans, of course, would be done only in the case of persons of proven genius.

"For example, once the genetic code of a great genius is determined, hundreds of thousands of his duplicates can be created for the world's benefit. If Mozart's body had been mummified, thousands of Mozarts could be reconstituted," he said.

Do you find this idea as horrifying as we do?

SECRETS OF THE FIREFLY

THE DRIVE to seek out nature's secrets and copy them extends also to the lovely and mysterious firefly. Dr. David M. Hercules of Massachusetts Institute of Technology foresees the time when man-made self-lighting chemical "fireflies," which duplicate the light of the living insects, may rival the electric light bulb.

Research is under way to probe the firefly's secrets and turn them to practical use. Some varieties of chemiluminescence have been developed for secret use by the armed forces, but we still have not achieved a breakthrough in understanding the basic mechanism by which the firefly creates light, Dr. Hercules says.

ANOTHER SECRET

WHILE SOME outlandish things receive scientific attention, others are neglected, perhaps because most scientists doubt their existence. A common mystery crying for solution is that of falling ice.

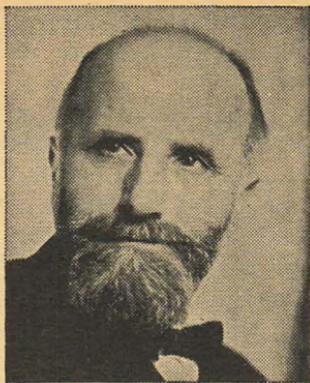

On Friday night, March 25, a huge chunk of ice crashed through the roof of a home in San Mateo, Calif., missing a housewife and her three children by 15 feet.

Mrs. Lorraine Nuckels of 1527 York Street had been watching television with her family when they heard what they thought was a bomb. Police found a hole in the roof and a chunk of ice about a foot square. A 150-foot circle around the house was covered with pieces of ice up to baseball size.

"It was such a terrifying thing, you can't imagine it. It was all quiet and peaceful; then there was this loud explosion. I thought someone threw a bomb through the window. The children were shaking and crying and hanging onto me." Mrs. Nuckels rushed them into the kitchen, then ran next door and called the police.

Where did this ice come from?

In these days of airplanes it is customary to blame them and sure enough police said that the ice probably fell from a commercial airliner arriving at San Francisco International Airport from Honolulu.

Now this, we submit, is nonsense. We never have heard a report of an airliner landing with large chunks of ice hanging from it. Many icefall reports go through our hands each year and there ought to be many reports of ice observed in the airports but there are none.

Modern airliners have anti-icing devices which prevent ice from forming on fuselage surfaces. Even if they weren't working, such ice is thin and hardly capable of punching a one-and-one-half-foot hole in a roof. In addition, the particular airliner blamed was at about 5,000 feet on final approach in the general area where the incident occurred and there were no icing conditions at that altitude.

When you are Magnetized for Money.

Join this new Prosperity Movement! Write today for free information.

Properly magnetized, any human being can summon a Money Miracle. For of all miracles, the Money Miracle is most common. They occur every day. Money is not an artificial, man-made institution, but an abstraction of a basic energy of Nature! Prosperity begets prosperity. When your neighbor makes big money, this does not deprive you, but instead increases your chances of getting rich. The more money YOU make, the more everyone makes. There is no limit to human prosperity, save those limitations placed on it artificially by wrong thinking. An individual — you — may be energized, magnetized and polarized to attract the flow of money, for money is an energy, like electricity, and flows according to set patterns of polarity. The Midas Touch bursts upon you when you are fully magnetized. When enough Americans have learned the principles of the Midas Touch, and the techniques of controlling the energy of Nature that manifests itself through the medium of Money, a new national concept of prosperity is to begin. We are authorized now to find the first few people who will be energized, magnetized and polarized to attract the money flow. By radiant example, these trained, enlightened Money Magnets will launch this move toward Prosperity Unlimited. If you are interested in being a guinea pig for Money Miracles, and believe you can handle larger amounts of money than you have ever seen, write for details about this new Prosperity Movement right now. Such a performance must be seen to be believed and we have not seen Tramp at work. Strangers who come upon this musical dog by accident — such as meter readers and tax assessors — are reported to leave the Wilkerson home in a state of shock. As for Tramp, he loves it

THE WORLD-FAMED AID TO HYPNOTIC INDUCTION

BRAIN WAVE SYNCHRONIZER

PHOTIC STIMULATOR

An Aid to—

- Shorten induction time
- Deepen the hypnotic level
- Lessen resistance in difficult subjects
- Self-hypnosis
- Now in its 8th Year

1966 MODEL WITH BUILT-IN REMOTE CONTROL

USED BY HOSPITALS AND UNIVERSITIES

Until recently the BRAIN WAVE SYNCHRONIZER has been available only for professional use. It is the standard aid to induction in hospitals, universities and government institutions in nations throughout the world.

A detailed report* describes the rapid technic that one hospital uses with the SYNCHRONIZER. Subjects who failed to respond to other methods went into trance states simply by adjusting the instrument and adding the statement, "Look through the light and feel yourself relax."

You may be able to take advantage of this scientific development since the BRAIN WAVE SYNCHRONIZER is now available to qualified students of hypnosis who will advise us of their training in this field.

HOW THIS INSTRUMENT WORKS

The BRAIN WAVE SYNCHRONIZER is a photo-electronic instrument that tunes to the natural frequency of the brain. When the special wave pattern of the light is adjusted to the subject's own frequency, resistance to hypnosis diminishes. Response to induction is then rapid, easy and effective.

EASY AND SAFE TO USE

Four dials are the only operating controls needed. These permit adjustment of the light source through three major natural rhythm ranges—Delta, Alpha, Beta. No other adjustment is required. The key performance factors of amplitude, wave shape and signal duration are built into the instrument. Easily followed instructions explain each step.

No wires or connections of any kind are attached to the subject and there are no rotating discs or parts, making the SYNCHRONIZER the easiest, safest and most rapid scientific aid yet developed for hypnotic induction.

USE FOR GROUP HYPNOSIS

Use the BRAIN WAVE SYNCHRONIZER with a single subject or use it simultaneously with a large group.

The Editor of Hypnosis Quarterly wrote that in a group demonstration he witnessed, five members seated in front of the instrument all went into trance, including one previously given up as non-hypnotizable.*

USE THE BRAIN WAVE SYNCHRONIZER TO REAP THE BENEFITS OF SELF-HYPNOSIS

ALL BRAIN WAVE SYNCHRONIZERS now include new built-in remote controls for use in Self-Hypnosis. These controls allow you to sit in a comfortable chair as you operate the instrument up to 10 feet away.

Tested and Approved by the Committee on Hypno-Aids,
American Institute of Hypnosis.

The Committee on Hypno Aids of the American Institute of Hypnosis has tested approximately 50 different aids. They reported: The Brain Wave Synchronizer is adaptable for use in autohypnosis and is extremely valuable in relaxing difficult subjects without consuming vast amounts of time. Because of its importance, a separate article has been devoted to it.

Journal of American Institute of Hypnosis, Oct. 1965, page 34.

FREE REFERENCE SERVICE

Do you have a problem on hypnotic induction? Need information on a specific project? Synchronizer owners are invited to write. We maintain a file of reports on numerous applications of hypnosis from researchers throughout the world.

The BRAIN WAVE SYNCHRONIZER is intended for use only as an aid to hypnotic induction; no therapeutic claim is made for it.

DOGS ARE learning to type too. We have a dispatch from Alan McElwaine, of the London Sunday Times, from Florence, Italy, on a dog named Arli. Arli is a six-year-old English setter owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Mann Borgese, daughter of the late author Thomas Mann.

Using his nose on special typewriter keys, declares McElwaine, Arli can spell out words of up to four letters. He is not a natural-born genius, however. He was painfully trained by Mrs. Borgese. As she describes the process, it was much like teaching a child to write. For instance, she taught Arli to associate sounds and signs, beginning with the words "dog" and "cat" printed on separate cards. Arli was rewarded whenever he selected the proper one at her command. Later Mrs. Borgese jumbled the letters and Arli learned to assemble them into the words "dog" and "cat". The next step was to hook up two-inch letters to a typewriter keyboard. Arli knows 20 letters but really uses only 17. He enjoys his work and is able to spell out four-letter words such as "bone", "go bed", "good dog", "bad dog" and the like. Mrs. Borgese has no intention of exhibiting Arli; she is Damned By What You Say?

A well-known publisher reports there is a simple technique of everyday conversation which can pay you real dividends in both social and professional advancement and works like magic to give you added poise, self-confidence and greater popularity. The details of this method are described in a fascinating booklet, "Adventures in Conversation," sent free on request.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by what they say and how they say it. Whether in business, at social functions, or even in casual conversation with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can make a good impression every time you talk.

You know, through your own observation, that good talkers always win attention. They command respect! They quickly become not only popular, but often more entertaining—all of which directly helps them to bring more happiness to others while winning for themselves the good things of life.

To acquaint readers of this publication with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in everyday conversation, the publishers have printed full details of their interesting self-training method in a 24-page booklet which will be sent free to anyone who requests it.

Less skilled but possibly more gifted than Arli is a dog named Ginjo Roughneck Sweettooth Chester, owned by Earl W. Chester of Sacramento, Calif. He is a 15-month cocker spaniel and we can understand why they call him "Dog-Dog" for short.

Dog-Dog came to Chester as a puppy and has been treated like a member of the family. He even sits on a chair at the table for meals. He does arithmetic by barking out the numbers—knows that two plus three is five and that five minus two is three, for example. Earl Chester put Dog-Dog through his paces for David Deas of the Sacramento Bee and Deas reports that his arithmetic was perfect.

"It isn't an act," Chester explained to Deas. "It's a psychic phenomenon. How does he understand what I'm saying to him? We haven't been able to figure it out. He knows these things already and it's just a matter of studying it and bringing it out."

Can You Accurately Predict Your Future? . . . based on your personal

"physics" and the abstracts of Changing Nature (. . . and adjust your behavior to make the most of it)? . . .

A STARTLING NEW VANTAGE POINT TO SEE WHAT LIES AHEAD

Modern scholars are fascinated with the rediscovery of the ancient Chinese "book of changes" I CHING as the key to "programming" human intuition and insight and relating them to the ebb and flow of events... Now, within your grasp is an incredible power that bridges the gap between universal science and psychic phenomenon, to bring you great wisdom, love, joy and success.

Dr. C. G. Jung, the psychoanalyst; Wolfgang Pauli, the Nobel Laureate physicist, and other scholars have long analyzed the vital "synchronistic" concept of the universe. This modern day theory says that all things on every level of existence, past, present, and future, are interrelated and changing; and that another kind of "connection" exists in Nature which explains certain remarkable phenomena of the unconscious. Acting within this Law of Connectedness, Change, and Transformation, an occult quality exists through which we are able to use a "time-moment" relationship between events, to draw to the surface mind from deep in the unconscious whatever is necessary for the correct understanding of a problem and its solution. Our insight and instinct is simply a clue to this mystique; and these are the basics of the I CHING. And these are the reasons the I CHING is so valuable a guide in making the important decisions you are faced with.

ANTICIPATE YOUR FUTURE?

Now, a new, simple to understand interpretation of the ancient Chinese I CHING.

by Louis T. Culling permits you to apply these theories to your life. You derive meaning and order from your instinct and grasp your part in the grand design. Many people have already made fascinating discoveries about their future which have been proved by actual happenings.

"YES" OR "NO" ANSWERS

I CHING clearly explains how to figure out your personal equation . . . then how to pose any question in terms of your own "being" for a yes or no answer

- should you change jobs?
- should you invest?
- should you move? . . . etc.

I CHING has withstood the test of time since 1,000 B.C. But only now has it been made so easily usable to the lay person who ponders the unknown. I CHING puts YOU in touch with a mystique which even the skeptic must wonder about in the quiet of the night.

NOW WHAT do you make of this quote from the January, 1966, issue of Soviet Life:

"The steamer Khimik Zelin-sky, headed for Odessa from Kheron, was stopped by a swarm of mosquitoes on the Black Sea. Descending on the vessel in great clouds, they covered the deck with a four-inch layer, invaded all quarters and covered all portholes and windows.

"Visibility was reduced to the point where the captain had to stop the ship. Smoke cartridges were exploded, but to no avail. The fight against the mosquitoes continued for two days and nights. It was only when the temperature dropped and the in-

WATCH FOR the results of the biggest Loch Ness monster hunt of all time this summer. Several expeditions will be on hand attempting to photograph and positively identify the alleged creature about which interest has been increasing since the recent Royal Air Force report on the authenticity of motion pictures of Nessie.

Meanwhile another expedition led by Captain Lionel Leslie, a cousin of Sir Winston Churchill, and Viscount Massereene will be keeping watch on Lough Fadda, Western Ireland, where there have been persistent reports of another Loch Ness-type creature.

The Russians have taken a new tack on the hunt for the monster of Lake Khaiyr in far northern Siberia. Local fishermen are quick to support reports of a monster there but the newspaper Soviet Russia has taken to warning expeditions away. They say they doubt there is a monster there.

SUNKEN CITY?

OFF THE coast of Callao, the port for Lima, Peru, an oceanographic cruise sponsored by the National Science Foundation has discovered what could be the ruins of an ancient city — under 6,000 feet of ocean. The expedition, using the oceanographic research vessel Anton Brunn and led by Dr. Robert J. Menzies of Duke University, was exploring the Milne-Edward Deep, a depression nearly 19,000 feet deep in places.

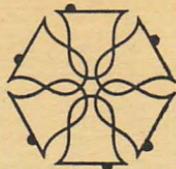

Here the camera of the expedition photographed what appear to be carved rock columns, some of them half-buried in the mud while others stand upright. They seem to have a kind of writing on them.

"We do not find these structures elsewhere," says Dr. Menzies. "Elsewhere the bottom is mud, as would be expected."

Sonar depth recorders show other irregularities of the ocean floor in the same area which normally would be flat. These irregularities show up as lumps on the bottom.

There are old Inca ruins on the nearby land, and even older civilizations are believed to have existed there. It is known that the seacoast in the area is slowly sinking and that one portion of

THE RIGHT TO PROPHECY

Confusing fortune-telling with prophecy, police seize minister from pulpit, find they hold hornet's nest.

By James Crenshaw

LOS ANGELES Spiritualist mediums say that for many years they have been harassed from time to time by police who charge that they violate the fortune-telling ordinance when they prophesy in their churches.

Mrs. Evelyn Allinger, minister of the Temple of Spiritual Life at 1719 West 50th St. in Los Angeles (affiliated with the Universal Church of the Master, with headquarters in Oakland, Calif.), decided to fight back with her own

4 — Sat., January 29, 1966 Redlands Daily Facts

Fortune telling case appeal heard by judge

Superior Court Judge Carl B. Hilliard took under advisement yesterday an appeal by the district attorney's office to reverse a Yucaipa Justice Court ruling that the county's so-called "fortune-telling" ordinance is unconstitutional.

The appeal was filed after Justice Court Judge William J. Clark Jr. ruled the ordinance "falls flat on its face" from a legal standpoint and arrested solicit business nor ask a charge for the advice she gives to people who visit her.

O'Connor argued that as far as the ordinance was concerned, it was unconstitutional because the language was too broad. The ordinance prohibits 11 specific acts, including fortune-telling, astrology, phrenology, clairvoyance and crystal-gazing, and adds "her 'sim" is no evidence that a woman involved (a state undercover agent) sought any information from Mrs. Kellerman, and judging from the advice she received it seems likely that half the population is sometimes guilty of violating the ordinance.

O'Connor based his on the ordinance other practice legal weapons after she was arrested for fortune-telling. She was particularly incensed, she said in an affidavit, because she was "seized" and taken from the pulpit of her church by the police during a regular religious service and while she was reciting the 23rd Psalm.

When minister takes up legal weapons, her case arouses country-wide interest among attorneys retained by religious groups.

She was, she said, in the midst of the service when the officers interrupted her reading. The police claimed there previously had been "fortune-telling" from the platform and so they had arrested and booked her. She was released on bond.

PROPHECY HAS been part of social and religious customs since the beginning of history. In modern times businesses, governments and even sciences, for proper planning, depend on predictions of happenings likely under given conditions. Nevertheless, prophecies for individuals are another matter. According to the law in many jurisdictions such prophesying is "fortune-telling" and as such is forbidden.

The Los Angeles Municipal Code, in about as comprehensive language as legal minds can dream up, says:

"No person shall advertise by sign, circular, handbill or in any newspaper, periodical or magazine, or other publication or publications, or by any other means, to tell fortunes, to find or restore lost or stolen property, to locate oil wells, gold or silver or other ore or metal or natural products; to restore lost love or friendship or affection, to unite or procure lovers, husbands, wives, lost relatives or friends, for or without pay, by means of occult or psychic powers, faculties or forces, clairvoyance, psychology, psychometry, spirits, mediumship, seership, prophecy, astrology, palmistry, necromancy, or other craft, science, cards, talismans, charms, potions, magnetism, or magnetized articles or substances, oriental mysteries or magic of any kind or nature, or numerology, or to engage in or carry on any business the advertisement of which is prohibited by this section."

An accompanying ordinance exempts ministers who fully conform to the rites and practices prescribed by their church or religious organization.

* * *

BECAUSE OF the accompanying ordinance concerning ministers Mrs. Allinger's case was quickly dismissed in Municipal Court without any kind of hearing or trial.

What happened next was calculated to outrage the Rev. Mrs. Allinger and her followers even more and moved them to take the offensive against the police. This provocation was what they called a threatening letter from the chief of police.

The letter stated that the deputy city attorney who had been assigned to prosecute her case "had sufficient facts for a prima facie case of fortune-telling against you." When the complaint was laid before the judge, continued the letter, "the judge gave you the benefit of the doubt when he dismissed your case, but admonished you to discontinue your activity."

According to Edward B. Stanton, attorney for the church and its minister, there was no such admonishment. However, the "threatening letter" continued:

"This department concurs with the judge's admonishment and would have no alternative but to arrest you if you should engage in such activity in the future."

The document was signed by Deputy Chief of Police R. E. Murdock on behalf of Chief William H. Parker of the Los Angeles Police Department.

Attorney Stanton replied by filing a Superior Court suit on behalf of Mrs. Allinger for declaratory relief and injunction, naming the city of Los Angeles, Parker and Murdock as defendants. A temporary restraining order was immediately obtained, prohibiting the police from:

"Molesting, arresting or in any other manner interfering with the conduct of plaintiff's church services pursuant to the tenets, beliefs and convictions of the Universal Church of the Master as practiced by the Temple of Spiritual Life."

The move was virtually unprecedented in Los Angeles and was watched with interest by other Spiritualist ministers who had the same problem of practicing their religion — including the giving of prophecies — without police interference.

At the outset Mrs. Allinger denied in her court action that she was a "fortune-teller", which her attorney said usually was associated with "fraudulent" predictions of coming events.

In a written declaration filed with Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Harold F. Collins, Mrs. Allinger said:

"The prophecy portion of my service is an act of devotion in my religious faith and such portion of my services enables members of my congregation to enter into communication and contact with departed spirits who are seeking to give them assistance and guidance in the daily problems they face.

"I, as a Spiritualist, believe that the mystic experiences thereby give meaning and fulfillment to my religion.

"I further aver that the prophecy portion of my religious worship is the very essence and root of my religious belief.

"I conduct my services in accordance with the precepts, principles and guidance of the Holy Bible and I deeply and sincerely believe in the teachings contained therein, the power of prophecy and its benefits to our congregation as interpreted through ordained ministers of the faith."

The Superior Court complaint itself was based on two theories:

(1) That the minister was practicing the tenets of her religion by prophesying.

(2) That the ordinance was unconstitutional as applied to her since it purported to regulate religious practices and also was "arbitrary and discriminatory".

The complaint specified:

"The rights and practices which are prescribed by the constitution and by-laws of the Universal Church of the Master, based on that church's interpretation of the Old and New Testaments of the book commonly known as the Holy Bible, include as one of the most solemn rituals of the church prophecy by means of inspirational and spiritual communications from the spirit world, which communications are received as vibrations by the minister of the church and transmitted by the minister to the congregation."

Unlike the average suit in which legal precedents from case law are generously quoted Attorney Stanton in his argument to the court instead quoted extensively from the Bible, calling attention to the heavy emphasis in both the Old and New Testaments on prophecy as a part of the religious history and teachings on which both the Jewish and Christian religions are based.

Among his citations were these verses from I Corinthians XII:

"(1) Now concerning spiritual gifts, brethren, I would not have you ignorant . . .

"(7) But the manifestation of the Spirit is given to every man to profit withal . . .

"(8) For to one is given by the Spirit the word of wisdom; to another the word of knowledge by the same Spirit.

"(9) To another faith by the same Spirit; to another the gifts of healing by the same Spirit;

"(10) To another the working of miracles; to another prophecy; to another discerning of spirits; to another divers kinds of tongues; to another the interpretation of tongues:

“(11) But all these worketh that one and the selfsame Spirit, dividing to every man severally as he will.”

From the book of Joel, Chapter II, Stanton quoted:

“(28) And it shall come to pass afterward that I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions.”

From Samuel, Chapter V, he quoted:

“(6) And the spirits of the Lord will come upon thee, and thou shalt prophesy with them and shalt be turned into another man.

“(7) And when they came thither to the hill, behold, a company of prophets met him; and the Spirit of God came upon him, and he prophesied among them.”

It was also noted that modern research in extrasensory perception and parapsychology has established some firm bases for a belief in prophecy since there now has been accumulated considerable evidence in favor of what researchers call precognition. However, since the validity of the belief was irrelevant to the religious argument, it could not be considered by the court. Only the fact of the belief as part of church practices was important.

Stanton contended that the Bible has numerous references that support Spiritualist beliefs in “independent spirit voices, levitation, trance and many other phenomena which are now and since time immemorial have been a regular part of the services and practices of Spiritualist churches, evangelist ministers and devout members of such churches.”

Stanton declared that simply because a church's doctrines or practices are not accepted by the entire community or even if its practices are not popular, they may not be subject to police interference. He cited a decision of the United States Supreme Court (Murdock vs. Pennsylvania, 319 U.S. at p. 100) in which Associate Justice Douglas said:

“Plainly, a community may not suppress . . . the dissemination of views because they are unpopular, annoying or distasteful. If that device were ever sanctioned, there would have been forged a ready instrument for the suppression of the faith which any minority cherishes but which does not happen to be in favor. That would be a repudiation of the Bill of Rights.”

Justice Douglas further commented:

"Believing, as this nation has, from the first, that the Freedom of Worship and Expression are closely akin to the illimitable privileges of thought itself, any legislation affecting those freedoms is scrutinized to see that the interferences allowed are only those appropriate to the maintenance of a civilized society."

The city countered with another citation (Jones vs. Opelika, 316 U.S. at p. 595) which noted that the First Amendment to the Constitution embraces two concepts: "freedom to believe and freedom to act." The decision stated:

"The first is absolute but, in the nature of things, the second cannot be. Conduct remains subject to regulation for the protection of society."

When religious practices — acts — are inimical to society, argued the attorney for the city, they may be regulated or prohibited. And he cited another case (Reynolds vs. U.S., 98 U.S. at p. 165) :

"Suppose one believed that human sacrifices were a necessary part of religious worship, would it be seriously contended that the civil government under which he lived could not interfere to prevent a sacrifice? Or if a wife religiously believed it was her duty to burn herself upon the funeral pyre of her dead husband, would it be beyond the power of the civil government to prevent her carrying her belief into practice?"

Still another United States high court decision was quoted:

"It is assumed by counsel . . . that because no mode of worship can be established or religious tenets enforced in this country, therefore any form of worship may be followed and any tenets, however destructive of society, may be held and advocated if asserted to be the religious doctrines of those advocating and practicing them. But nothing is further from the truth.

"Whilst legislation for the establishment of a religion is forbidden, and its free exercise permitted, it does not follow that everything which may be so-called can be tolerated. Crime is not the less odious because sanctioned by what any particular sect may designate as religion." (Davis vs. Beason, 133 U.S. at p. 345.)

Another case upholding an Oklahoma statute, which contains restrictions on fortune-telling similar to the Los Angeles ordinance, was also cited. It read in part:

“(Defendant’s seances) sound very secular to this court. It seems very like a gypsy fortune-teller or the reading of the palm by some wrinkled old hag or the interpretation of a crystal gazer in a freak side show. Doubtless it was this species of hypocrisy and legerdemain that the statute was intended to suppress.” (McMasters vs. Oklahoma, 21 Oklahoma Crim. 318.)

In reply Stanton pointed out that the Rev. Mrs. Allinger’s services in no way matched the above description, especially in view of the Bible reading which was interrupted by the arrest. Nor did the city’s other citations fit, he argued.

“Plaintiff (Mrs. Allinger) contends that the act of prophecy is completely removed from the acts and adjectives used in the above cases,” he said. “Prophecy cannot be classed with murder, suicide or bigamy, crimes which the law views as striking at the foundation of western civilization. Prophecy cannot be described as ‘odious’; prophecy is not ‘destructive of society’; the practice of prophecy hardly ‘shocks the moral judgment of the community,’ as the representative of the city would have the court believe.

“Plaintiff submits that the practice of prophecy does not sink to the level of permissible prohibitions, such as those against immorality or acts inimical to the peace, calm and good order and morals of society.”

Stanton and his client estimated that there are more than 1200 Spiritualist churches throughout the United States which operate under various state charters and which incorporate the practice of prophecy in their services. The religion and its practices go back to 1848, it was further stated.

They also estimated that more than a half-million persons in this country believe in the teachings and principles of the Spiritualist faith, including the demonstrations of modern-day prophets who are ministers of the faith.

“I believe that the Holy Bible in the various scriptures sets forth a valid basis for our religion,” Mrs. Allinger stated to the court in her formal declaration.

Stanton contended that the constitutional issue of freedom of religion, as guaranteed by the First Amendment to the Constitution (called the “cornerstone of the Bill of Rights”) was squarely at issue in the case. In effect, he said, the city was attempting to regulate the practice of a religion beyond its police powers to pass laws for the health and safety of the community.

Although the First Amendment, strictly speaking, prevents Congress from abridging religious liberty its effect is extended to the states by virtue of the "due process" clause of the Fourteenth Amendment.

The Rev. Mrs. Allinger's attack on the city ordinance was also partially based on another part of the Fourteenth Amendment:

"No state shall make or enforce any law which shall . . . deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the law."

Her attorney argued that the form of the exemption in the city law was discriminatory and unconstitutional, since it purported to define what ministers are exempt — that is, "any minister performing religious rites in good faith and in accordance with the stated belief of a denomination as disclosed by the Articles of Faith approved by the central or ruling body of the church."

Hypothetically the query was raised: What if a minister takes his authority directly from the Bible and not from some ecclesiastical body? And must he be ordained by an acceptable "denomination" or chartered church?

Although Mrs. Allinger said the authority and precedent for her right to prophesy was to be found in the Bible, she also cited the constitution and by-laws of her parent organization, the Universal Church of the Master, which specifically authorizes its ministers to engage in the practice of prophecy.

However, the fact that the ordinance mentioned religion at all put the matter of constitutionality squarely before the court, Stanton maintained.

While Judge Collins did not rule directly on the constitutional issue he granted a preliminary injunction in substantially the same form as the temporary restraining order — that is, an order prohibiting the city and the police from "molesting, arresting or in any other manner interfering" with the conduct of the church services in accordance with the tenets and beliefs of the church, including the demonstration of prophecy.

The injunction remains in effect until all of the issues are finally adjudicated, including the question of the applicability of the city ordinance to Mrs. Allinger personally and the broader constitutional questions. Because of the far-reaching effect such a final decision will have on religious practices, it well may go to the United States Supreme Court before a formal judgment is entered. It is being followed closely by legal advisers to religious groups all over the country.

The Supreme Court in the past has handed down many decisions interpreting the words of the First Amendment:

"Congress shall make no law prohibiting the free exercise of religion . . ."

It well may come about that modern explorations into the realm of prophecy, such as parapsychological research in the area of precognition, may receive a kind of left-handed recognition from the high court because of the religious aspect. Anti-fortune-telling laws presumably are based on the assumption that prophecy by occult means simply isn't possible, whereas growing evidence and ongoing research tend to indicate it is possible.

Will the next step be an attempt to outlaw such prohibitions against personal prophecy by laymen as well as ministers on the ground that the proscriptions are old-fashioned, unrealistic and in the end unscientific?

In a far-out age something as far-out as this legal concept is not beyond imagination.

CAVE-IN ON A BATMAN STUNT

THE PRODUCERS of the Batman television show asked their advertising agency to find a "memorable address" to which viewers could send cartons from the sponsor's toothpaste in return for autographed pictures of Batman and Robin. The agency consulted the post office registry and came up with Bat Cave, N.C. (population 200) as the logical location.

The initial publicity for this promotion appeared in scores of newspapers, and one reader who saw a New York Times article on the subject was Mrs. Walter Flinch of Cincinnati, O.

Mrs. Flinch, owner of the bat cave from which the town took its name, was horrified at the thought of the many tourists who would visit the cave and risk the rabies carried by the bats which inhabit it.

Mrs. Flinch telephoned the toothpaste firm, Proctor & Gamble, which agreed to change the address of the promotion. It is possible that Mrs. Flinch's argument was made more persuasive as a result of the fact that she is not only a major stockholder in the firm, but her late grandfather, Harley Procter, was one of its founders.

PAT MICHAELS

Clairvoyant Newsman

By Paula Michaels

THERE ARE TIMES I feel I'd like to keep a secret from my husband. But I doubt if it's possible. It's infuriating, this remarkable ability of his. He just knows! Secrets simply don't exist where he's concerned — not mine, not anyone's.

Pat Michaels' uncanny abilities have been demonstrated on the front pages of newspapers time and time again. But he always has kept secret the "how" of his who, what, when, why and where.

We met when Pat was news director at the Orange County News Service headquartered in

Whether it's ESP or some yet unnamed intuition, Michaels often knows details of story before he can document it.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS

Pat Michaels at the age of 18 was the youngest war correspondent in the Pacific theater during World War II. His coverage of Iwo Jima (where he was wounded) accounted for one of his two nominations for the Pulitzer Prize. He again was wounded in the Korean War, covering it for the Mutual Broadcasting System. Further war reportage included two South American revolutions for NBC and the Palestine hostilities in 1948-49 for INS.

He won a Ph.D. degree in 1964 by pursuing his education throughout his world travels, then presenting his credits and thesis to London University.

Michaels twice has been commended in resolutions in the California legislature. Assemblyman (now Congressman) Richard T. Hanna cited him for uncovering California's Trust Deed scandals.

More recently Michaels has been under contract to ABC as a news commentator. An author of note, he has had three books published and more than 300 of his articles have appeared in national publications.

the newsroom of radio station KWIZ in Santa Ana, Calif. I was his reportorial assistant when I first saw him demonstrate his amazing ESP. In 1954 William G. Bonelli was the object of a widespread manhunt. Bonelli had been indicted by three California counties in a political scandal. He had disappeared and every reporter, policeman, district attorney and law enforcement officer in California was looking for him. For nine months without success they hunted — even though Bonelli had been a prominent politician and was familiar to thousands. Los Angeles and San Francisco newspapers frequently ran little stories saying Bonelli had been seen in Denver, in Chicago or in Mexico. One day The Los Angeles Times ran an article saying Bonelli had been seen on the French Riviera.

"Hogwash," said Mr. Michaels. "He's within 300 miles of here."

"How do you know?" I asked.

"I just know," he said. "I feel it."

"Do you have some inside information?"

"No," he said, "I feel it. I can't explain it but I think I could find him if I wanted to."

As a recently-hired assistant I wanted to be polite. But this was too much. Find a man being hunted by thousands! A man who had disappeared off the face of the earth nine months before! "Oh, come on!" I said. "If he could be found, he'd have been found."

"I can find him," said the man who one day was to be my husband, his face reddening in anger.

Our little news service supplied five newspapers by teletype: The Fullerton Daily News Tribune, The Orange Daily News, The Garden Grove News, The Anaheim Daily Bulletin and The Newport Harbor News-Press. It was a two-way teletype and the newspapers could answer our messages. My boss glowered, pointed at the teletype and said, "Tell them I'm going to find Bonelli."

He had stormed out of the newsroom by the time the cutting remarks began coming back from the editors of the newspapers. I can remember some of them: "Tell him to bring back Judge Crater, too." "What's Pat smoking these days?" "Drinking a lot lately?" But Pat was on his way to find Bonelli. It was Friday, January 28, 1955.

And two days later those same newspapers, for their January 31 editions, dug out headline type they hadn't used since the day war was declared in 1941 to proclaim "BONELLI FOUND" and under it, "Copyright by Pat Michaels".

For five days the newspapers ran a continuing interview with the former politician along with pictures of him and his hideout, "The Turkey Track Ranch" in Kingman, Ariz. — exactly 300 miles away! Many newspapers throughout the state bought reprint rights.

The Attorney General (now Governor) Edmund G. (Pat) Brown, who had headed the vast hunt for Bonelli, flew to town February 1 to talk to the reporter who'd found the man who couldn't be found. District attorneys from the three counties that had indicted Bonelli also asked him for more information. However, before extradition warrants could be obtained Bonelli headed for Mexico where he still lives.

FROM THE DESK OF PAT MICHAELS

An ability in clairvoyance or ESP might be the dream of every newsman. Back in the days of the tabloids and the "Star Reporter" system it even might have been necessary. But today clamors for conformity and objectivity among journalists and clairvoyant ability can be a heavy burden. It has been for me.

An inner knowledge of any fact leads one toward conclusions that verify that knowledge. It is not easy to push aside these insights and become completely divorced from them in search of acceptable objectivity and balance based only on known factors. On the other side of the coin, I've looked at many of my stories, knowing that the facts they contained were only those that could be revealed and that actual truth was not contained in the article itself. Not being able to reveal what I felt was absolute truth has been emotionally frustrating to me.

While these gifts have blessed me with numerous exclusive stories over the years, I think they also have given me insight into human hearts and minds. Perhaps this has kept me from cynicism — which seems to be the fate of most journalists. But if these gifts maintain my sensitivity, they also contribute to the burden. I remember the wave of emotion I felt when John Calvin Tipton was sentenced to die — I do not believe in the death penalty — because the knife I had found was the primary evidence against him. I somehow felt responsible. My guilt is not easily dismissed by rationalizing his guilt.

In another case I joined police in a hunt for a missing three-year-old girl at Newport Beach. The consensus was that she had been kidnaped. I stood with the missing girl's father on the boat dock in front of his home and looked down into the muddy water. Suddenly the water seemed to clear and I could see the child's body on the bottom. I couldn't bring myself to say anything to the man. Was it better for him to think the child was still alive somewhere? I told myself that it was. For three days I tormented myself with the question of my responsibility. On the third day the body floated to the surface.

These things are not pleasant for a newsman. To a person less involved with life, the decisions, the frustrations, the involvement might be easier to take. For me it has not been easy. Moments of extreme gratification have come as the result of the insights I have had, but there have been many lonely troubled hours, too.

how he found Bonelli Pat merely shrugged.

Several years later, I still was piqued by the way he'd found this fugitive when thousands of others had failed, and my husband confessed to me what happened. He simply had gotten into his car and started driving. He drove until he reached Las Vegas. He didn't know why he drove to Las Vegas, but he did. He spent a night there and he felt close to his quarry.

"I could feel I was near him. I just knew he was somewhere around there."

Not many highways cross the desert out of Las Vegas and he took the one to the south, across Boulder Dam.

"The minute I crossed the dam into Arizona, I knew I was within reach of him. I'd intended to stop at the ranches nearby and show his picture and ask if anybody had seen him. The first ranch I turned into was 'Turkey Track Ranch'. I went up to a woman on the porch and I said, 'I'm looking for a man named William Bonelli.' At first she started to send me away, and then a man came out on the porch and asked me who I was. I recognized Bonelli."

When Pat explained he was a reporter, Bonelli told him he'd give him an interview if he'd guarantee one thing — that what he said would get into print. On that condition, a four-hour interview with the most hunted man in California was concluded on January 30. A few days later, while his front-page stories rocked California Bonelli was in Mexico.

Although the Bonelli story was one I saw Pat get fame for, there were others for which he was criticized, even condemned.

On April 20, 1956, Oleta Camille Johnson, the wife of a Costa Mesa, Calif., soldier, had been stabbed to death in her home in a trailer park. Police had picked up the husband and a friend for questioning and a hunt was on for the murder weapon. The Army volunteered the entire command of the Nike base where the murdered woman's husband was stationed to scour the area for the knife. We were at the murder scene when detectives organized the soldiers to comb the trailer park and the street outside. Pat was exasperated when the soldiers started in an easterly direction down the street, searching every inch of lawns, street and gutters.

"It's not in that direction," he said simply. However, detectives had concluded that a man running away from the scene of the crime could not have scaled the eight-foot-high wall behind the trailer home and could have gone in only one direction — east.

"I think it's behind the wall," Pat said curtly. Alone he went into the backyard of the neighboring house. A few minutes later he returned with a broken butcher knife — a blade and handle.

"This is the knife," he said to the Chief of Detectives of the Costa Mesa Police Department.

Angry reporters who'd been hiking with the 200 soldiers down the street hurried back when they heard a knife had been found. "We don't know that it's the knife," the detective said. "We're going to have it examined by the laboratory."

The next day the Chief of Detectives was quoted in the Los Angeles Examiner: "Preliminary tests indicated the knife found at the scene was not the murder weapon but probably was planted by an overzealous reporter trying to make a headline."

For three months Pat Michaels suffered under that humiliation. His veracity was challenged and the newspapers were doubting every story he wrote. Then, in a Costa Mesa bar, a man broke down and started crying. When the bartender asked what was wrong, the man said he'd killed a soldier's wife. His name was J. C. Tipton.

Later Tipton identified the broken butcher knife as the murder weapon. He said he'd washed it clean in the trailer sink, actually had managed to scale the eight-foot wall, had kicked the weapon into the ground (thus breaking off the handle) and had escaped into a gully to the west! A new laboratory examination — this one a much closer inspection — revealed the caked blood of the murder victim lodged between the handle and the metal part of what was left of the blade.

The Chief of Detectives who had accused Pat of planting the knife shortly left the force and went into the restaurant business.

A good reporter, Pat takes care to be objective and to remain uninfluenced by his premonitions, clairvoyance or ESP. His fear is that the "feeling" he has about something may be completely wrong or misleading in a prejudicial way. Consequently, he painstakingly documents everything he comes across.

In those days we had lunch daily in a little restaurant near the newsroom. One day, about a year before he found the knife that sent Tipton to the gas chamber, we took a booth across the room from a young couple absorbed in conversation. Pat kept looking at the woman, his face a study in preoccupation. "That woman has been through a fantastic experience," he finally said. "I've got to get the story."

I'll admit to pangs of jealousy and inconvenience while Pat got up, walked across the room and introduced himself to the young woman and her husband. When the woman learned that Pat was a reporter, she sent him away rather coldly. Instead of being dejected Pat was elated.

"I knew it," he said. "There's a fantastic story there."

"What's it about?" I asked.

"It's almost unbelievable," he said. "I don't want to talk about it until I have the facts to back it up."

"Have you ever seen her before?" I asked with a touch of suspicion.

"Never in my life. But I know what she's been through."

A few minutes later Lt. Clint Wright of the Orange County Sheriff's Department (now Chief of Police at Huntington Beach, Calif.) stopped at our table to say hello. When he left us he nodded to the woman across the room and went over to talk to her.

"He knows. He's part of it," Pat said. "I'll get some information from Clint."

That afternoon Pat went over to the Sheriff's Department to talk with Lieutenant Wright — but he came back dejected.

"Wright wouldn't say a word. Claimed he barely knew the woman," he reported to me.

"Well, what's so important about that woman?" I asked again. "Why do you think there's a story there?"

Pat looked distant. "It's an amazing story. I don't know why but I could write it without even talking to her. And the story will be an inspiration to hundreds if I can get the facts."

"Maybe you should go ahead and write it, just to prove to yourself —"

"Say, that's it!" Pat exulted. "I'll write it." With that he sat down at his typewriter and wrote several pages of copy. He folded the papers and headed out the newsroom. "I'll be at Lieutenant Wright's office if you need me," he said.

He didn't come back for the rest of the day. My curiosity had me on pins and needles the next morning when I came to the office. Pat was already there, pounding his typewriter.

"You got the story?" I asked.

"Uh-huh," he grunted, without looking up.

"Was it what you expected?"

"Uh-huh," he never stopped typing.

"Do you know who the woman is?"

"Uh-huh."

"Have you seen her again?" I asked with an intuitive twinge.

"Spent most of the night talking to her," he said.

I paced the floor until he finished working his yarn. Then he handed it to me to send over the teletype.

"This is the almost unbelievable story of a young housewife," his story began, "a 24-year-old mother who has spent two years as an unpaid volunteer undercover operative in the narcotics underworld. For two years she risked her life almost daily to get the evidence on the biggest narcotics ring ever to operate in California. Some 37 people are in jail and there is now a price on her head. Her name must never be known and she will never get the credit she deserves for what she has done. Instead, she will spend the rest of her life in hiding, protected by a grateful law enforcement organization, which until now was the only group of persons who knew of her heroism."

That was his lead — the start of five installments running in July, 1955, in all OCNS newspapers and Laguna Beach's South Coast News as well, the start of a cliff-hanger that served shock along with breakfast to southern Californians. It was a story of one woman's heroism — a woman who had wanted to do something about what she felt was a menace. She had volunteered as an unpaid investigator for the Sheriff's office and was turned down, but she kept insisting until she finally was given an assignment. It was an assignment that caused her to lead a double life for two years, one as a mother and housewife and the other as a "gun moll" within the narcotics ring. Numerous times she came close to discovery and on several occasions even had to be "arrested" and jailed to alleviate suspicion.

After I'd finished sending the series of installments over the teletype, I found myself short of breath. "That's the greatest story I've ever read," I said. "But how did you get it?"

"I knew it before I got it," Pat said. "Maybe it was the way she looked or the way she acted."

"Can I see the story you wrote to take to the sheriff's office?" He reached in his pocket and pulled out the papers he'd typed the day before. They now were covered with notes he'd taken from Lieutenant Wright and the woman he called "Lynn Stuart" in the story. I unfolded it to read:

"This is the story of a young woman who has spent the past months, even years, in terror. She's delved into the deepest slime of human degradation. She's lived in fear of her life. Now it's over. At least it's somewhat over. She can breathe clean fresh air again and look at people to recognize their human qualities rather than face the fear they might kill her."

Pat smiled. "It was enough to make Lieutenant Wright think I had the whole story. I just had to show him the first few paragraphs and he figured I knew the whole thing and he was so anxious to protect the woman and make sure her name didn't come out that he offered to fill in the details so long as I agreed to protect her identity. He took me to her house and when he O.K.'d her talking she gave me the whole story."

The series barely had finished in the newspapers when producer Bryan Foy of Columbia Pictures called Pat and asked if he'd be willing to sell the story for a movie. Lieutenant Wright agreed to the use of his name and "Lynn Stuart" was hired as technical director. The movie, titled The True Life of Lynn Stuart, starred Betsy Palmer as the woman and Jack Lord as the narcotics king who eventually went to jail.

Since then Pat has chalked up a series of amazing examples of his strange ability. When Jack "The Enforcer" Whelan was shot to death December 2, 1959, in Rondelli's restaurant in Studio City, police started hunting for two suspects, Sam Locigno and Joseph DiCarlo. Again, although police everywhere were looking for these underworld figures, Pat found them, talked them into surrendering and brought them into police headquarters. In fact, Locigno and DiCarlo surrendered to Pat on December 8, 1959, on a downtown street corner before live television cameras.

Locigno admitted he shot Whelan and absolved DiCarlo of any blame. Locigno twice was tried, twice convicted and twice the convictions were overturned. He finally was convicted of involuntary manslaughter and as recently as January 13, 1966, was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary and ordered to begin serving his term.

A famed television star (Diane McBaine, best-known as the former feminine lead in the Surfside 6 TV series) disappeared on August 2, 1965, from her Los Angeles home. Her parents reported they feared foul play and the police began to look for her. On August 4 Pat found her registered under an assumed name at the Hotel del Coronado, a swank resort hotel near San Diego.

Pat merely walked into the hotel dining room and went right up to her even though her blonde hair had turned red. She readily admitted her identity and denied that she had seen the Los Angeles and San Diego newspapers (on display in the lobby) which had front-paged her disappearance. She claimed she had wanted only to get away from worry about her faltering screen career. Off the record, Pat felt it was a publicity stunt and pointedly asked her if it were. She denied this.

Before the nation suspected any trouble in the Dominican Republic, Pat felt something was happening there. On a hunch he interviewed by telephone rebel chieftain Francisco Caamano the very day in late April, 1965, that American forces were ordered to Santo Domingo.

Pat accurately predicted the outcome of every national election since Harry Truman beat Thomas E. Dewey in 1948. He was one of the few broadcasters who picked Truman in that one, and his prediction was carried on KTKC, Visalia, Calif. On a telecast over WDSU-TV in New Orleans in 1952 he predicted Eisenhower's first election and predicted his second over KWIZ, Santa Ana. He predicted Kennedy's win over Nixon on KABC, Los Angeles.

Pat also has made politicians uncomfortable. For instance, he recently questioned Governor Brown about a telephone call he had received from the President.

Brown gasped, "Nobody knows about that call except the President and myself!"

On September 22, 1959, Pat made headlines (in the Los Angeles Mirror and the Examiner) when it was revealed that he had warned the State Department in advance that Los Angeles' Mayor Norris Poulson was going to make a verbal attack on Soviet Premier Khrushchev during his visit to Los Angeles and that the insult would echo across the nation. It did.

Pat's premonition about Poulson came to him the night of September 17 and he handled it in typical fashion because of his fear of making an error. He called Poulson on the morning of the 18th and asked for an immediate exclusive interview, giving another matter as a pretext. Poulson agreed and Pat took along his cameraman, sound engineer and his partner on the TV newscast. First he held the filmed interview; then he asked Poulson if it were true that he was planning to insult the Russian premier at the dinner meeting the next day. Amazed and caught off guard, Poulson without hesitation disclosed his intention.

That afternoon Pat called the State Department officers who were arranging the Khrushchev visit and told them what Poulson said. They contacted Poulson and tried to discourage him from his effort, but Poulson was adamant.

The rest is history. The attack made world-wide headlines and President Kennedy, who had appealed to the nation to welcome the Soviet leader as a guest, was brought into the controversy. On September 22 the revelation that Pat had warned the State Department made more headlines because the controversy still was raging.

Pat's prowess again was demonstrated in July, 1960, when the destroyers Ammen and Colette collided in dense fog 20 miles off the California coast between Newport Beach and Los Angeles Harbor. The Coast Guard reported it would be impossible to find the vessels until the fog lifted.

Pat just had awakened when he heard the news of the collision. He immediately called a friend who had a boat moored at the Balboa Bay Club at Newport Beach and arranged to borrow it. Then he called the TV station and ordered his cameraman, Ed Clarke, to start driving toward the Bay Club. Pat commanded the company helicopter to fly him there. He and Ed arrived at the same time, boarded the little 25-foot cabin cruiser and headed out the channel. The fog bank waited menacingly outside the harbor and a fleet of rescue vessels stood by, unwilling to enter the fog. Pat recalls, "We just went on by them at full bore (top speed) and we heard their warning shouts as the mist closed in on us."

They were under way for almost an hour when the fog suddenly lifted and there they were in a little circle of sea that was clear, as if illuminated by a spotlight. And there were the crippled destroyers. The little cruiser, without radar or electronic equipment such as the rescue vessels carried, had reached the scene by Pat's intuitive sense, a method of navigation that professional seamen surely would not recommend. Nevertheless it was another hour before the first rescue vessel came alongside.

In relating the experience, Pat says, "When the news first reached me, I just knew I could find them. I could see them in my mind's eye. I felt I could get to them right away and I could even see the bow of one ship with a human body impaled on jagged wreckage inside a gaping hole. And sure enough, when we reached the scene, the first sight I saw was that bow and the human body crushed into the jagged wreckage."

Until recently Pat accepted his abilities as a strange phenomenon which he didn't understand. It frightened him a little because of the necessity of maintaining objectivity in his reportorial work. But lately he's been doing some experimenting, mostly for his own amusement. He amazes people at parties by telling them about experiences they've had or problems they are facing.

At a party on November 21, 1965, in the Sunset Room in San Diego, Pat astounded a group of more than 100 persons when he told a young woman — a complete stranger — that she spoke excellent French. (As part of the entertainment Pat had been scheduled to do a demonstration in hypnosis and the girl who volunteered as his subject was a young navy wife, Cheryl Walker.) The girl, only 22, laughed and said she hadn't finished high school, never had been in the company of persons who spoke French and had flunked Spanish (the only language she'd ever studied).

Pat asked if he might hypnotize her then and there and she agreed. Before more than 100 people, under hypnosis, Cheryl talked of her life as a 14-year-old girl in a small province in France during the 18th Century. She told the story not in English, but in perfect French without a trace of patois!

Things like this send chills up my spine and I wonder if it is dangerous for Pat to tamper with these unknowns which have been so much a part of his life. Maybe he'd be better off if he simply accepted these strange talents as a gift.

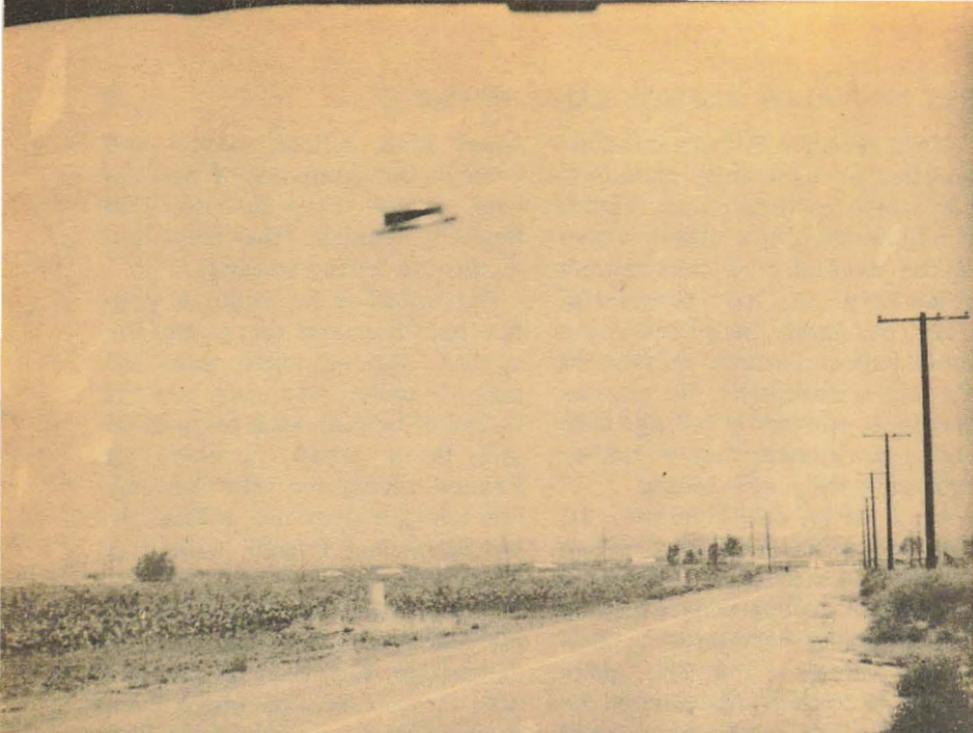

Either way, I don't stand a chance of keeping secrets from him!

RING AROUND THE OCTOPUS

ARING and a name tag belonging to U.S. Navy Ensign Raymond T. Michelini of Allendale, N.J., were dropped accidentally into a wastebasket by stewards who found the items on the deck of the destroyer Joseph P. Kennedy, on which Michelini was serving. The waste basket was emptied into a larger bin and, as was customary, the day's trash was dumped into the sea. But that was not the end of the story.

Three months after the loss the U.S. embassy in Madrid received a note from the Rev. Manuel Aleman of Hulva, Spain, who wrote that Francisco Hernandez, a fisherman, had caught a small octopus off Hulva — and had found Ensign Michelini's missing ring and name tag in its stomach.

THE DISC WITH THE DOMED TOP

By Ralph Rankow

REX HEFLIN never believed those flying saucer stories. Perhaps his four years of active police duty and F.B.I. training conditioned him to a "seeing is believing" attitude. Certainly flying saucers were not on his mind at 11:30 A.M., August 3, 1965, as he sat in his truck trying to get the two-way radio to work.

Heflin works for the Orange County Highway Department in California as a highway inspector. He was attempting to make radio contact with Road Maintenance Superintendent Ashcraft to report some tree limbs which were obstructing a railway crossing sign. But the radio suddenly had gone completely dead.

Then Heflin caught a glimpse of an aerial object from the corner of his eye; however, he says he thought it was a conventional aircraft, possibly from the nearby Marine air base. The object was moving slowly from his left toward the road in front of him. Only when the flying object stopped momentarily and hovered did Heflin look more closely. Then he saw a disc with a domed top! The sunlight which was filtering through some haze reflected from its surface. No sound reached him from the strange-looking vehicle.

At this point Heflin noticed a rotating beam of light coming from the center of the object's underside. On a very light copy print this beam of light is faintly discernible. He then snapped the third photograph, through the same side window.

Heflin reported that the object maintained a relatively level altitude of about 150 feet in relation to the flat terrain; however, he noted that its motion resembled that of a gyroscope losing its stability. This same "wobbling effect" often has been reported in UFO sightings. As the object increased its speed and altitude it also seemed to gain stability. A smoke-like ring of vapor remained in the air after the object was gone. Heflin drove quickly to where the smoke ring still hung in the sky and, jumping out of his truck, photographed it. He described the smoke as blue-black.

After the strange air vehicle left the area Heflin found his two-way radio working perfectly and he had no trouble contacting his Santa Ana base radio station.

NICAP, The National Investigations Committee on Aerial Phenomena, is a private, non-profit organization which checks UFO reports. As soon as this story broke on the wire services NICAP sent two investigators, Ed Evers, of Anaheim, Calif., and John Grey, of Huntington Beach, Calif., to see Rex Heflin. These men both are engineers working on the Apollo moon project at North American Aviation Company.

After talking with Rex Heflin and getting his signature on a four-page statement Evers and Grey started to check out some points in the story. What about that radio interference? Was the radio faulty?

The NICAP investigators got in touch with the superintendent of traffic control in Santa Ana, a Mr. Kimmel. Kimmel explained that since radio messages come through his office, he himself had heard the transmission difficulties. He said that later he told Heflin to take the truck over to the shop and have the radio checked. This was done and they found nothing wrong with it. Kimmel further said, "It has been perfectly O.K. ever since."

Probably the pieces of evidence most important to the sighting are the photographs. Some of the questions Evers and Grey wanted answered about these were: Did Heflin rush to the local newspaper with his pictures? Was he anxious to tell his story and possibly make a few dollars and/or get some notoriety?

They found there had been a lapse of about a month between the time Heflin saw the object and the day the story and photos first appeared in The Santa Ana Register. Heflin told Ed Evers he had thought the strange craft was some kind of experimental plane sent up from the Marine base nearby and for this reason didn't show the pictures around.

A few days later Mr. C. H. Hoiles, co-publisher of The Register, came into the drugstore which is owned by a friend of his and saw copies of the Polaroid prints. Hoiles asked for copies for his newspaper.

In a signed statement the chief photographer of The Register, Clay Miller, says, "After many telephone calls and several days we ran down Heflin and encouraged him to bring the original photos into the office. When Heflin brought the photos to The Register office they caused much interest. Everyone crowded around to look at them. To me the photos looked clear, with all parts of the picture in focus — from the window and mirror to the UFO and then farther on down the road to the cars.”

Four minutes after photo on preceding page was taken, UFO has disappeared but Heflin sees smoke-like ring of vapor where it had been. He drives as near as he can get, jumps from truck to take this shot. He says smoke was blue-black.

Photographer Miller explained that the pictures were small and in order to show up well in the newspaper they had to be enlarged. The enlargements show some grain and are less sharp than the originals.

Miller concluded his statement by saying, “Under much questioning Heflin gave the same answers and said he really did see the UFO and did take a picture of it. He did not seem to want to dodge any issue that was brought up and had a complete answer for each question. In my opinion he appeared to be a sincere, honest person. As far as I could tell the photos were authentic and had not been altered in any way whatsoever.”

Ed Evers asked Heflin if NICAP might borrow the original Polaroid prints in order to conduct a closer study of the details.

Heflin replied, “If I had the prints NICAP would be welcome to borrow them. Unfortunately, NORAD (North American Air Defense) has them and I’m not sure when they will be returned. I have no idea who the person was that borrowed them so I will have to trust to his honesty to return them. He did state that he was from the North American Defense Command G-2 and he displayed a folder containing various colored credentials.”

Heflin did not ask for a signed receipt for his pictures. Previously he had loaned them to the El Toro Marine Station and had received them back in good condition. He saw no reason why NORAD would not act in a like manner. Now NORAD denies any knowledge of their whereabouts and the original photographs have disappeared.

Rep. James B. Utt wrote to NORAD requesting information about Heflin’s missing prints. In his letter of reply NORAD’s Chief of Staff, Maj. Gen. M. M. Magee, wrote, “For your information NORAD does not have the responsibility for evaluation of UFOs and therefore would not knowingly be in the business of collecting UFO pictures for evaluation. In addition the office of primary interest for UFO matters is the Department of the Air Force.”

Maj General Magee did not explain why, under these circumstances, the El Toro Marine Station had borrowed the pictures and why it would be impossible for NORAD also to have borrowed them.

Nearly two months after the sighting the Air Force contacted Heflin and arranged to interview him at his office. On September 23, 1965, Capt. C. F. Reichmuth of the Space Systems Division in Los Angeles questioned Heflin for three and one-half hours.

Eventually the Air Force Office of Information in Washington, D.C., released their official evaluation of Heflin's photos: "The camera was probably focused on a set distance and not on infinity as the terrain background was blurred in all three photographs. The center white stripe on the road and the object appeared to have the same sharp image. Therefore, it is believed that the object was on the same plane as the center white stripe (or closer) to the camera and could not possibly be the size reported. Using the width of the road as a factor, the size of the object was estimated to be approximately one to three feet in diameter and 15 to 20 feet above the ground."

It is immediately apparent that there is a difference of opinion regarding the sharpness of the pictures. Chief Photographer Miller of The Register, who examined the original prints, stated that the photos looked clear with all parts of the picture in focus. The Air Force, who prefaced its evaluation by saying it was based on enlargements made from copies of the original prints, tells us the background is blurred.

I also am a professional photographer and I also made enlargements from copies of the original prints and found them sharp throughout. In fact, the power lines which are parallel to the freeway and which were some 1500 feet from the camera in the background are finely resolved.

It should be pointed out that the camera which Heflin used — Model 101, Polaroid — makes it very difficult to take pictures in which the background is out of focus. The camera, with a 114 mm lens, has an effective aperture of f:42 in black and white operation. This extremely tiny lens opening insures a tremendous depth of field. (This is the zone of sharpness from closest to farthest points "in focus".) According to Polaroid's calculations even if the camera had been focused as close as 8.5 feet the background would be sharp.

Another statement in the Air Force "evaluation" makes one wonder at their reasoning. They compare the sharpness of the object with the center white line and conclude that the object is "on the same plane as the center white stripe (or closer) to the camera." However, since this white stripe runs diagonally from the foreground of the photograph to far off into the distance how can they use this line as a gauge of nearness to the camera? In reality, there are no two points on that white stripe which are equally distant from the camera!

Finally, the Air Force's conclusion that the object was estimated to be approximately one to three feet in diameter is disputed by NICAP's investigators, Ed Evers and John Grey, both aerospace engineers. They point out that based on an angular size of two degrees 33 minutes the following sizes and distances would compare:

A one-foot object would have been 22.5 feet from the camera; a two-foot object would have been 45 feet from the camera; and a three-foot object would have been 67 feet from the camera.

In a recently published statement NICAP pointed out, "It is interesting to note that when the pictures first were publicized and before the Air Force had anything but a newspaper print of the pictures to examine a quick statement was issued by the chief investigator at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio, claiming the object was small and at close range. It appears the Air Force now is trying to bolster this hasty conclusion with a pseudo-scientific analysis."

NICAP has been trying to interest some of the Congressional representatives in Heflin's area to push for a Congressional hearing on this matter. Representative Utt said he would not seek a Congressional hearing unless Heflin requested it. The publicity-shy Heflin said he was undecided and at the time of this writing still had not made up his mind.

Another lawmaker, Representative Hanna, Democrat of Anaheim, Calif., said, "If this NICAP is as responsible as their membership would indicate I feel they should be heard out on their request for Congressional appraisal of the situation."

Hanna added, "I also want strongly to state that I feel every citizen should be accorded courteous treatment when dealing with a public agency, whether that be my office or the Air Force. To be insulting to persons whose actions are well-meaning is something that should not be condoned."

Ed Evers, who got to know Heflin quite well during the investigation, said that the longer he knows Rex the more he trusts and respects him.

Heflin does not enjoy publicity and does not want to write about the experience. He seems to take a minimum interest in UFOs and was extremely careless with the original Polaroid prints. He has resented very much the Air Force inference that he is a liar but now all he wants is to be left alone.

VICTIMS OF THE "DEATH GENE"

HOW A strange "death gene" stalked eight generations of one family, striking down 21 victims unexpectedly and mysteriously, was reported by a team of Florida physicians at a meeting of the American College of Physicians in Miami Beach, Fla., in October, 1965.

The medical mystery began with the sudden deaths of a boy, 16, and his sister, 14. Why they should have died so suddenly, with no apparent cause, was investigated by Drs. J. Russell Green, Jr., L. Jerome Krovetz, Douglas R. Shanklin and W. Jape Taylor, all of the University of Florida College of Medicine in Gainesville, and Dr. James J. DeVito, of St. Augustine, Fla.

Tracing back the youngsters' family tree through eight generations and obtaining histories of 127 members, the physicians found that 21 of them had died under similar circumstances since the early 1800's. Examination of 20 living members of the family, who lived in St. Augustine, showed no consistent abnormalities, the physicians said. However, during autopsies of the 16-year-old boy and the 14-year-old girl microscopic examination showed that they had malformations in the electrical or pacemaker systems of their hearts.

The defects were inherited and appeared to stem from one gene which showed up in the family from time to time, affecting both males and females. It is capable of producing uncontrolled heartbeats and in conditions of sudden stress can cause death. Genes determine a person's inherited characteristics, and thus far the "death gene" influence appears to be extremely rare.

Storms and Little Fishes

"Lightning-man" famed for his storm photos (LIFE published one in early 'Fifties) catches something new this time.

By Fred H. Koch

ON MAY 3, 1952, during the hot afternoon I was out taking pictures of a storm that was moving in near the town of Bingham, N. Mex. A black cloud had appeared from the north and ahead of it there was a strong wind which seemed to move and roll the dirt from the ground high into the sky.

I was interested because of the lightning. Most everyone within a 150-mile radius of my home in North Hollywood, Calif., called me the lightning-man because if a storm was forecast by the weather bureau I was there with my camera. I was a freelance photographer and newspaper man for many years and I always had orders for lightning pictures. I could supply any kind of lightning photograph you wanted. I have seen lightning come from white rainless clouds when the sun was shining bright and hot.

If you want to see lightning a yard wide snapping and cracking like gunfire just be in the region between Amarillo, Tex., and Texico, N. Mex., before a storm. I have traveled with my camera in every state in the Union and in many foreign countries but I never have seen lightning that could compare to it in force and power.

On this particular day 14 years ago I sat in my car watching the dirt storm as it moved toward me. It was hard to breathe in the dusty haze that had penetrated even my tightly closed automobile. After the dirt the rains came. Usually it doesn't rain in that area in the spring and summer and things were pretty dry. But now water poured down like a cloudburst for almost two hours. Then the sun came back out as bright and hot as before.

I walked out into the desert and watched the sand suck up the rain water. Almost within minutes the whole area was dry and beginning to drift again. Only the dry-bed arroyos still held small pools of water.

Some persons call this region, not far from Alamogordo, Black Water Draw and parts of it have been excavated by archaeologists who have found huge dinosaur and dinotherium bones here.

I always look around for Indian arrowheads after a wind-storm because the shifting, drifting sand sometimes leaves artifacts uncovered. But this day as I moved along I found instead hundreds of tiny dead fish. They all appeared to be about the same size — one inch long — and they were scattered all over the area. In the arroyo where the small pools of water remained I saw a few fish still alive and swimming — but not for long because the sun soon drank up these pools too. I picked up one of the fish and it was very soft — the slightest pressure mashed it. Soon the air began to smell of fish; it was as if I were standing at the seashore.

Of course I took pictures of the fish, some of them at close range, and these were published in the local newspapers.

A biology group from Lubbock, Tex., came and picked up a great many of the fish and put them in jars of alcohol. They reported that the fish had prominent eyes and one scientist said this indicated they were not of several species known to inhabit underground pools. The reason underground pools were mentioned is that one of the ranchers thought maybe the fish were pumped out of a 150-foot well nearby. It was the only well in the entire area and it couldn't have accounted for fish scattered over miles of desert as these were anyway, but the State Fish and Game Department stated that there were no traces of fish on the screen over the discharge pipe of the well, in the catch basin or in the irrigation ditch into which the water from the well flowed. There were no lakes, rivers or ponds anywhere near either.

Entomologists, biologists, ornithologists, botanists and archaeologists from nearby colleges and universities converged on the area. Many questions were asked and many theories advanced but no real explanation was found. Perhaps most logical was the claim that the sun had drawn water — and fish — up into the sky from some large body of water hundreds of miles to the north — which would mean Colorado — and when the storm moved south because of the low pressure over the hot arid desert the clouds had emptied water and tiny fishes together onto a rain belt about two miles wide. This theory often is advanced to explain falls of fish and frogs but there never has been any evidence to back it up. In this case, after checking, I found the rain belt was more or less two miles wide where I had been and became wider farther south; but the tiny fish had fallen only within a mile square area, in the location of the dry sandy bed of the arroyo.

Where did the fish come from?

I cannot answer this; but I can tell you they didn't grow out of the waterless sand.

THE PRESENCE OF EVIL

By Joy Burnett

SOME YEARS AGO a widow, Mrs. Emil Biry, came to live at the small hotel where I reside. She was a woman of frail physique with a very quiet, "breathy" voice, for she suffered from asthma. In her pale face two black eyes burned like bits of bright coal — the only indication that there was another Mrs. Biry in that frail frame.

Before one's eyes she often would change from a quiet, "mousey" person into a foul-mouthed devil — embittered, revengeful, and insanely jealous. She soon had a bad reputation with the other residents and the staff avoided contact with her. Yet, when her "good self" was on show she could be a most kind and generous person. If she felt in the mood she would invite me to her room for coffee and so I learned something of her life before she was "forced to live like this."

She had difficulty adjusting to her changed circumstances and could not forget the time she had lived in affluence. I gathered her married life must have been a hell — the husband drinking hard but giving in to her every whim for the sake of peace. There was one daughter — the apple of his eye and consequently a source of great jealousy on the mother's part, though she would have denied it.

No doubt to escape this unhappy home environment, the daughter married young and in doing so, gave Mrs. Biry another object for hate and jealousy, namely the girl's husband. No wonder that the marriage failed, and when Mrs. Biry came to us the daughter had instigated divorce proceedings.

Shortly after the divorce decree the unhappy daughter committed suicide. Like everyone, I was horrified and offered to help in any way I could.

I found Mrs. Biry had few friends but I managed to contact one woman who promised to come and see her through the official procedure, for which I was thankful as it excused me.

The night before the funeral this friend had to return home to fetch something for the morrow, which left Mrs. Biry to go alone to the memorial chapel to see her daughter. I met her returning. She was dry-eyed and composed — the Dr. Jekyll side very prominent. She wished to return to the chapel and asked if I'd go with her.

I had been several times before and always found it a place of comfort in trying circumstances; therefore, I did not decline to accompany Mrs. Biry if it would help. She seemed grateful.

So, on August 6, 1959, I saw the daughter for the first time; she looked very peaceful. Mrs. Biry knelt by the coffin and commenced to admonish the girl for doing such a terrible thing and causing her, the mother, such sorrow. As I stood on the other side I thought, "Poor, wretched girl, you have peace at last."

But at that moment I became conscious of the most dreadful feeling. I stood transfixed, as there arose from the floor or coffin a grey cloud. As the cloud grew larger and larger and approached me, I became aware of the most ghastly smell — like that of a charnel house.

Mrs. Biry was still on her knees, but I could not hear what she was saying. The hair literally rose on my head and I knew I was in the presence of evil. I thought, "It's going to smother me!" Yet I was powerless to do anything as the cloud came nearer.

Just as it was about to touch me, some words which my mother was fond of quoting flashed through my mind: "God above the devil!" At that instant "it" stopped — rapidly diminishing and sinking back through or into the coffin. The smell vanished as the cloud disappeared.

I found I was able to move and turned my eyes to Mrs. Biry who, at that moment, looked at me. Then, quickly rising from her knees, she left the room without further ado.

We both were silent going into the street; then she said, "Back there you looked as if you had seen a ghost!" I did not reply. — London, England.

EVERYDAY TELEPATHY?

By Nelle Portrey Davis

THE EFFICACY OF telepathy no longer seems debatable but many persons know little of its practical uses. They may have read books and articles that whet both interest and belief but they do not know how to put this faculty into everyday use.

I do not remember when I first learned that thoughts can be sent to persons far away and that these thoughts can be received and comprehended. In my childhood home in Sidney, Nebr., telepathy was an accepted and much-used means of communication.

One afternoon a neighbor called at our ranch — obviously for some express purpose — and after several false starts he managed to tell Father what he wanted.

"Neighbors say you folks can do some mighty funny things — things most of them don't understand. I need some help and if what people say is true, maybe you can give it to me."

When Father said he'd help if he could, Henry continued, "I have a sister Rose — if she's still living. I haven't heard from her for 19 years and I have no idea where she is. I can't write to her but if she wanted to contact me she could, because she would know I'm right here on the home place where I've always lived.

"We're both getting up in years and we have no other relatives. If Rose is still living I sure would like to hear from her. If you can do the queer things folks say you can, maybe you can help me."

I remember Father's slow grin. "No, I can't help you," he said, "except to tell you how to help yourself. You can persuade your sister to write by using thoughts."

"Try this: for the next three nights go to bed at the same hour. When you are quiet and relaxed turn your thoughts to your sister. Think back over shared experiences. Remember the good times you had together as children. Then, after a few minutes of reminiscing, tap three times on the headboard of your bed while you think, 'Rose, this is for you, wherever you are, that you may think of your brother and write to me.' If you don't hear from her within a reasonable time we'll try another method."

"I'll try it," Henry agreed dubiously. "But what's the rapping for? That sounds spooky."

Father laughed. "That simply is a means of focusing your own attention and thoughts."

Six days later Henry came hurrying across the pasture waving a letter. "She wrote me on the second night of the experiment," he declared jubilantly. "Said she had been thinking of me and just had to write."

Another example that was even more interesting to me happened when we were living in Eads, Colo., and I was a young girl. I was practicing my typing one day when my brother John came in. "If you need practice why don't you type a long letter to Frank Jackson? I haven't heard from him for six years and he doesn't even know we moved west."

Frank was my brother's boyhood chum and for years his closest friend.

"No," I objected, "I won't write to him. I was only 10 years old when I last saw him and if he gets a letter from me he'll think I am being bold, maybe trying to start a romance. Write your own letter."

"I haven't time," John said. "You know we're haying. But I do want to get in touch with Frank. It would take a dozen pages to write all the news and I'm too busy to do it."

"All right," I compromised. "I'll write the letter but I'll write it in your name and you can sign it."

John was pleased with this solution and for the next four days I kept the letter in the typewriter, adding to it bit by bit as I relived the past six years and thought of interesting family changes and happenings.

On Saturday — go-to-town day — I addressed the bulky envelope to Frank at his old address in a midwestern state. John signed the letter and took it to town to mail.

You can imagine our surprise on the following Saturday when the weekly mail included a letter from Frank addressed to me! He too had moved west and was living only 80 miles from us. He had sent the letter to a cousin in Sidney to be forwarded to me. The letter I had written never reached him; my thoughts did.

"I've been thinking of you the last couple of days," he wrote. "I can't seem to get you out of my mind so thought I would write. If this reaches you, tell John to write."

I was the one who had spent hours of thought on Frank while composing the letter, so thoughts of me reached his mind.

Instances of sending and receiving thoughts over lesser distances were commonplace in our home: an item needed at home that had been omitted from the shopping list, a reminder to a neighbor to return a long overdue borrowed item, a hint to a teen-ager out for an evening that it was time to come home, or a "call" from one of the boys working in a distant field that a certain tool or other help was urgently needed.

As in everything else practice makes for skill. The more one uses telepathy the more proficient one becomes. This is equally true for sender and receiver. Since concentration is needed and concentration is an ability not everyone has developed, writing out a thought, slowly and fully, sometimes is a big help when one is learning or attempting to use telepathy. The act of writing the words enforces concentration.

Experiments are both interesting and educational if the sender and receiver consciously work together. But if one has no other person with whom to carry on experiments messages still may be transmitted to persons near and far. Most of us have evidence of this — for example, the letters to and from the friends and relatives which cross in the mail. — Bonnors Ferry, Idaho.

THE FRIENDLY BARMAN

By Grace McCool

MY HUSBAND Mike Bakarich came from Yugoslavia to the United States as a contract laborer in 1903. His brother Joe had immigrated 12 years earlier but he seldom wrote his family in the old country and he moved around a lot. Thus when Mike arrived in the states he had no idea where his brother might be.

Mike spoke no English — only his native Croatian and a little German. He worked out his contract — a year building a railroad in Massachusetts — then worked another year in British Columbia. His third year he worked in a mine in Alaska but when winter came he was out of work.

He made his way to Denver, Colo., arriving in November almost broke and without a friend in the city. He went into a small saloon for a mug of beer and the free lunch, hoping the bartender would be a German.

But this bartender was not a German; he was an Irishman. He greeted Mike cordially, brushed aside his money, treated him to an ample lunch and made him understand he was to stay. In the meantime he made a telephone call. A little while later Mike's brother Joe walked in.

The astonished and excited brothers, who had not seen each other for 15 years, spent that afternoon and evening together — but it was all the time together they were to have. Mike decided to leave the next day to try his luck in the Montana mines and Joe was killed in an accident shortly thereafter. Many years later a falling timber killed Mike in the Iron King Mine in Arizona.

The two brothers bore hardly any physical resemblance. How did the barman know they were brothers?

The bartender himself explained it by saying he often had peculiar hunches. He said when he saw the lonesome down-and-out immigrant he thought, "Here is Joe Bakarich's brother. I'd best let him know." — Sierra Vista, Ariz.

A FARAWAY CALL

By Dorothy Barwick

I WAKENED with a start. I clearly heard my mother calling me. This was impossible! She lived 600 miles away.

Since my marriage I have lived in or near Chicago while my mother's home is in the foothills of the beautiful Ozarks.

I was terribly alarmed. My husband tried to console me but the apprehension lingered. I heard my mother's faint call several times. I also had a vague feeling that she was going from door to door speaking my name. I could not account for this.

I never have been a superstitious person so I tried to put this all out of my mind. A trick of the subconscious, I called it.

Then the phone rang! It was my father agitatedly saying, "Please come home at once. Your mother has had a nervous breakdown. She doesn't know anyone — but she keeps calling your name."

Clearly I had heard her faint faraway call during the night. — Evanston, Ill.

MIRACLE OF THE LOURDES WATER

By Martha Van Deusen

Acts of goodness send out waves — like the rings that are made by tossing a stone into still water.

FOR MANY YEARS we have had a dear friend, Mr. P., whose wife died 25 years ago. She also was our good friend and after she left us we felt responsible for Mr. P. and in his loneliness we have looked after him. When Mr. P. has been ill he has lived here with my husband and me for months at a time. In more recent years his eyes have failed and Bill, my husband, has driven him wherever he has needed to go and brought him from his beautiful home over to ours for his meals.

The last few years Mr. P. has not been very well and we have taken him to the hospital when it has been necessary. For one entire year we drove back and forth to the Glendale hospital every day until he was well again.

Then in June and July of 1965 my own health became bad. I was hospitalized and confined to bed with a serious lung infection.

Mr. P., who is a highly intelligent and fastidious man, began drinking. It seems one of his neighbors supplied him with wine and vodka by the gallon. He ceased to eat any food and was continually in a stupor of intoxication. This went on for many weeks apparently.

When I was released from the hospital Bill took me to see Mr. P. We found him lying in a soiled bed, unshaven, with a 15-year-old boy in attendance. He barely knew me but started to cry when I entered the filthy room. Still we could not persuade him to make any change and the situation went on and on.

One night when Bill and I visited him Mr. P. sat with this young boy holding his hands and he said, "Toni is going to find a place for me to live. Aren't you, Toni?"

We had been urging him to go into a rest home as this past year I have been unable to do very much for him. We had looked at several homes but they were impossible. We were terribly worried as I knew if we didn't get him away from his home and these wrong people he surely would die.

In the meantime, while all this was transpiring here at home, Curtis and Mary Fuller were at Lourdes in France. From there they wrote they were praying for me and would send me a flask of St. Bernadette's sacred water. A few weeks after their letter the flask and water arrived. And what I have to tell you now is unbelievable but nevertheless true.

I held the flask in my hand after unwrapping it and suddenly a number flashed through my mind. I know I never had heard that number before.

I went to the telephone and dialed, because it obviously was a telephone number and the voice of a lady said, "C. . . Rest Home."

I was so surprised but managed to tell her what we were looking for. She said that if I liked to come over she would show me around, that there was just one room available; a professor was moving out. We were so desperate to find something for Mr. P. that Bill immediately drove me over and left me there, as he had another errand.

The moment the young lady took me into this beautiful home I was enchanted with it. There was a large comfortable living room; in the lovely dining room the table was set. And the room they had for Mr. P. — I can't tell you how I felt — it was like a dream come true. It was a large carpeted room with big easy chairs, a bed with a red silk padded headboard and many cheerful lamps. French doors opened on a patio. The curtains were immaculate and so was the bathroom with shower which adjoins the room. It was made to order for Mr. P.

This rest home takes only four to six patients and they all receive wonderful care. The price is $300 a month, including laundry.

Bill eventually returned with Mr. P.'s attorney and they were as elated as I.

We moved Mr. P. into the home immediately and for four nights that darling nurse never had one moment of sleep. She changed the bed constantly as Mr. P. had no control of his bladder or otherwise. His drinking had done that and now because the liquor was taken away so suddenly he was beside himself. Finally I asked the nurse to give him a small glass at 4:00 P.M. and this seemed to help.

Three months have passed and Mr. P. is once again the fine respected gentleman we have known so long. He never asks for or wants a drink. He enjoys his food thoroughly, looks clean and thinks clearly. It is truly a blessed transformation.

Bill and I put up a Christmas tree in his room at the rest home. I made and decorated gingerbread fairy cookies and a large Santa Claus. We then lit the lights and called Mr. P. to his room to admire it all.

So you see how the number I received, because of the Lourdes water which I held in my hand, has led us to this happy solution.

HOW OLD IS OUR PRESENT EPOCH?

By Hugh Auchincloss Brown

PIECES of a vessel were found on Mt. Judi, Iran, in the 8th Century A.D. They immediately were assumed to have been parts of the Ark and were enshrined in a monastery, which burned to the ground in 776 A.D. If additional pieces of driftwood from other wrecks can be found in that same vicinity we could secure a correct date for the Flood, by means of the radio-carbon dating technique.

It is generally agreed that there was a World Flood that destroyed all but a few people, so any correct calendar of our present epoch of time must begin with the ending of the Flood, although we have evidence that Egypt escaped the Flood and inherited a prehistoric civilization. Its civilization started at its highest peak and ran down for 5,000 years.

No general agreement for our place in the flow of time has been arrived at, but it is something that interests most thinking people. Ancient calendars give different dates for the year in which we are living, varying from 5724 to 7500 years. In the 17th Century Archbishop Ussher of Ireland had bibles printed containing his theory that the earth was created 4004 B.C. Another prelate announced that creation took place on October 23 at 9:00 A.M.

Something under 7,000 years must be assumed for the duration of our present epoch of time, because historical records are found only up to around 5,000 B.C.

AA's 11th Step to SPIRITUAL DEVELOPMENT

By Edward Y. Breese

IN THE LATE summer of 1958 three men and a woman in Miami, Fla., began to talk seriously together of their mutual need for spiritual study and advancement. All four had attained long-time sobriety by the 12 Step Program of Alcoholics Anonymous and, as a result of their talks, a new movement has arisen and now flourishes within the A.A. fellowship.

The 11th of the 12 "Steps" which make up the program of A.A. states that the members "sought through prayer and meditation to improve our conscious contact with God as we understood Him, praying only for knowledge of His will for us, and the power to carry that out." It was the desire to "seek" as enjoined by the first part of this step that motivated the formation of what has come to be called the "11th Step Movement" within the fellowship.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

A man of far-reaching talent, Edward Y. Breese is well-qualified to report this development within the AA fellowship, as he is one of the founders of the new group. His interests range the spectrum — through history, philosophy and psychology to the rare mystic illuminations that come unbidden through AA's 11th Step.

One of the men was a college professor, one a former judge, and the third a skilled automotive mechanic. The woman was a housewife and mother. Their experience with A.A. ranged from five to 17 years.

Two of the men recently had had spiritual experiences of a very high order. Such an experience has a tremendous impact upon the whole being of the person concerned. It was largely a desire to discuss and compare these experiences which brought the two men together and attracted their friends.

The elder of the two men had experienced a tremendous illumination and expansion of consciousness, accompanied by a healing, while at the point of death from pneumonia during Easter Week of 1958. (Details of this experience were published in letter form in the A.A. Grapevine for December, 1958.)

The experience of the younger man was somewhat different, being the familiar "illumination by light" described so well by Maurice Bucke in his book, Cosmic Consciousness. It had taken place late at night on the ocean beach somewhat north of Miami proper.

The third man and the woman member of the four had experienced great spiritual growth through meditation and study.

These four shortly were joined by several other A.A. members — all of them known for long sobriety and marked dedication to the practice of the Steps which comprise the A.A. way of life.

The avowed purpose of the meetings which now began was to study and discuss as many as possible of the roads by which man, down the ages, has sought to grow closer to his God. At the first meetings chapters of James'

Varieties of Religious Experience were read aloud and discussed. Later this reading aloud ceased, though many books were mentioned by the leaders of the meetings.

From the first the "spiritual paths" studied were discussed in great depth in relation to the members' own experiences and development. Precisely because the group members also were A.A.'s and depended upon personal spiritual progress for sobriety, happiness, indeed for life itself, the theoretical path had to be translated into a method of personal application. Thus there was an incentive for every member of the group to speak freely; to question the others; to seek wholeheartedly for answers to those questions which face every human being, whether or not he is aware of it.

And because these meetings were a part of the A.A. movement each person present was accustomed to respect fully the personal views of the others. In accordance with its basic traditions A.A. neither endorses nor condemns any specific religion, creed or dogma. All are held to be good, right and true for their believers and followers and thus there is a common meeting ground for the orthodox and the agnostic. Each was free to express his opinion without fear of dispute or contradiction, without personal embarrassment.

This last tenet probably was one of the major factors in the success of the discussions. It never ceased to astound non-A.A.s who eventually came to the meetings. Its importance cannot be over-emphasized.

So deeply rooted in A.A. practice and policy is the impossibility of founding a creed or dogma that the 11th Step Movement never can become a "church" any more than the A.A. fellowship itself can. Over the years members of all creeds and of none have sat together at the meetings and shared their hopes, beliefs and growth, their questions and the answers they find.

It has been emphasized from the beginning that the movement is intended to supplement the A.A. way of life and not to alter or replace any part of the 12 Step Program. No 11th Step Groups have begun as such; rather 11th Step meetings are held by members of other groups.

The purpose of the meetings is to follow the injunction "to improve our conscious contact with God" by meditation. And under the heading of meditation is included study, discussion, debate, shared thought and experience.

Many of the members attempt "deep" meditation in the mystic tradition. This is a purely personal matter and is not something attempted during the meetings, although it may be discussed there. And although most of the members pray regularly, prayer, too, is considered a personal thing. Like most A.A. meetings these 11th Step Group meetings are ended with the Lord's Prayer but that is all.

Very early it became apparent that, among those attracted to the meetings, are a number of persons with highly developed psychic powers and psychic potential. After considerable debate it was decided to eliminate discussion of the purely psychic as opposed to the spiritual as well as any attempt to practice or demonstrate psychicism. It was felt that, otherwise, some members might be diverted from their primary purpose in attending the meetings — to grow closer to God. Persons with high psychic development continue to attend. Indeed, one of the most famous international psychics (an alcoholic) has been a regular member. But he and others come for spiritual discussion and growth.

The years have proved this to be a wise decision. Among other factors, it has deprived critics of what might have proved very effective ammunition. And from the first, there has been no lack of critics. Charges have ranged from "not pure A.A." to "way out" to "a bunch of nuts."

The persons attracted to these meetings include a substantial proportion of Old-Timers with long, successful records of sobriety and this has tended to discount much of the more violent criticism. Actually criticism of the 11th Step Movement never has died out completely. Too many people still are unwilling or afraid to attempt an honest look at the unveiled face of God as they understand Him.

From the beginning the policy of the 11th Step Meetings, like that of A.A. as a whole, has been to grow "by attraction rather than by promotion." Anyone who wishes to attend, including a surprising number of non-A.A.s, has been welcome but no attempts are made to "recruit." Most particularly no attempt ever is made to promote these in competition with the other, traditional A.A. meetings.

Despite this, news of the meetings spread rapidly. Within months 11th Step Meetings were being held regularly in the South Florida Gold Coast area. By the end of the year visitors who had attended the meetings while in Florida on business or vacation and who liked what they saw and heard, had begun to hold meetings of their own throughout the country. Not long after, they were begun in Canada, Mexico and Europe.

Not all of these are called 11th Step Meetings. Some have other names. Some were founded independently and are only informally (if at all) affiliated with the original A.A. meetings. It is one of the great strengths of A.A. that this sort of thing is possible within the fellowship.

Apparently the time was ripe for the formation and spread of such meetings. Enough members of A.A. had lived and worked with the 12 Step program long enough to have experienced the spiritual awakening which inevitably follows sincere, long-term practice of this way of life.

Although many A.A.s have not realized it, it is evident that the Steps do, in fact, comprise a blueprint for a spiritual way of life. The profound and deep implications of the program are at least partially concealed by the simple wording of the Steps and the ease of practical application. Nonetheless, the practical application of the Steps over a period of time does bring about a spiritual awakening and, for some fortunate persons, a major spiritual illumination. This is one of the major facts the 11th Step discussions have brought to light since their inception.

For most participants the spiritual awakening comes simply, normally and happily. Dramatic illuminations are more rare. Usually the gradual building of faith and belief in God and God's love comes from a long-term, trial and error, testing of the principles of the program and the discovery that these work for the individual no matter how great his need. The individual gradually adopts one of the familiar "paths to God" represented by the creeds, dogmas and churches of our day. He does so, however, with a much stronger faith in the actual, pragmatic value and reality of spiritual principles than is possible for many of his non-A.A. friends and associates.

Still, a large number of persons who dedicate themselves to the practice of the Steps with a total and wholehearted commitment attain a more dramatic illumination.

Until the beginning of the 11th Step movement many who had experienced these expansions of consciousness had hesitated to discuss them. The difficulty of phrasing a glimpse of the Infinite in finite terms, combined with a fear of ridicule and a despair of being believed had kept them silent. Yet the experience had remained pregnant within, yearning to be shared with others who had similar experiences.

There was the man from the north who told us how, in utter despair due to alcoholism, he had decided to kill himself. Taking a gun he had driven up to a lonely hilltop overlooking his native city. When he lifted the gun he suddenly had felt (or heard) "This is not the way!" In that instant he, the car, the hillside, and the whole town below had lit up with a wonderful, unearthly radiance. For the first time in years utter peace permeated his being. He threw the gun away, drove home, and called his local A.A. Never having read or known anything of mystic experiences he had not dared to discuss or describe his own until he attended an 11th Step Meeting far from home.

Another man, well-known in his home state, experienced a major moment of cosmic consciousness when he was at the point of death from a heart attack. Believing himself to be dying, instead of giving way to panic he had murmured the Lord's Prayer and the illumination had followed instantly. To the confusion of the doctors and despite major heart damage this man lived for 10 more years and devoted himself to selfless A.A. service. Until he found the 11th Step Meetings he, too, had not spoken of his experience except to his wife.

Another, a man of action, in a moment of desperate urgency in his search for faith had lifted his hand towards God and had felt it momentarily touched by another hand; in that moment peace and faith had flooded into his whole being.

When people such as these gathered to share their experiences, to read and study similar experiences as recorded down the ages, something wonderful and powerful took place.

It was thought only the Old-Timers would want or be ready for this type of search. And there was a tremendous in-gathering of men and women with long terms of 12 Step sobriety who, having practiced spiritual principles, had found the promised "awakening". Now they were ready to seek further and to learn more. But from the first, greatly to the surprise of the founding members, the meetings attracted large numbers of newcomers to A.A. Many of these people respond with great enthusiasm to an atmosphere where God and the Will of God are freely and openly discussed.

Apparently large numbers are kept away from their churches by feelings of guilt or shame concerning their alcoholism. For many the 11th Step meetings prove a "vestibule" through which they return to their former religious affiliations. Others retain sufficient agnosticism to bar them from adopting a formal creed but still feel the need to seek a spiritual life. For these persons the free and frank discussion of spiritual things proves of tremendous aid in forming their own personal adjustments. In the meetings they are exposed to the many "paths to God" without being required to accept any one of them.

Some remarkable examples of spiritual growth have resulted. A young housewife, long torn by bitter resentment toward a woman relative, as a result of these meetings attempted to see this relative "with the eye of God" and her bitterness was replaced by peace and, in time, by love.

It was never the purpose of these meetings to induce, cause, or bring about an illumination or "experience". The techniques used by mystics from earliest times are known to the members, of course. Some of them may try these techniques as individuals, but they never are tried in the meetings. The consensus is that these things should be studied but that illumination must come, if at all, only by the grace of God. Ascetic and gnostic techniques are of interest but the gates of paradise are not to be stormed nor the locks picked. For this same reason the meetings avoid any experimentation with psychedelics. Those members who have received what they feel to be genuine glimpses of eternity feel these could not have been brought on by such means.

Since there is no central office, no formal head of the 11th Step Movement, accurate statistics on the number of persons involved are nonexistent. However, it is believed that now — eight years after the beginning — about 50 groups are holding regular 11th Step meetings. Leaders or teachers are not needed. The speaker of the moment is both teacher and leader as long as he holds the floor. Nor is there an accurate listing of the number of "experiences" or illuminations but it is definitely known there have been many more of these than previously were suspected.

Many thousands of persons have attended 11th Step meetings on a long-term basis and benefited from their participation. The impact upon A.A. members who take this way to practice the injunction of their 11th Step is tremendous. It is no exaggeration to say that hundreds of lives have been changed for the better. Spiritual growth is vital to humanity. Whatever promotes or aids it must be a force for good.

About two years after the founding of the 11th Step Movement one of the nation's leading psychiatrists, a man with a worldwide reputation, attended one of these meetings as an observer. Following the meeting he said to two of the founders, "We can learn a great deal from you people. Instead of trying to isolate neuroses and psychoses and treat them individually you have a program that in effect repolarizes the whole being along spiritual lines. Then the things which we try to treat wither and drop away like last year's dead leaves from a tree."

The 11th Step Movement which seeks "conscious contact with God" is here to stay as part of the fellowship of A.A.

My Dream

Won Against the Odds

THE THOUGHT of turning psychic experiences to profit inevitably occurs to all of us. After all, it is only man's nature to conjecture, "Ah! If I could have the clairvoyance to know next year's Derby winner!"

Occasionally you hear that someone has dreamed of a winner and somewhat less occasionally you hear that his "dream horse" actually won. So you think to yourself, "How lucky! But that couldn't happen to me. I never dream of horses."

Well, I did. Just once.

About seven years ago, living in South Africa, I became interested in psychic matters and I felt increasing powers of intuition. I had been married for a couple of years to a young South African whose family owned and trained racehorses. Naturally the sporting world absorbed my husband and we regularly attended the races. Thus I came to know at least the names of many South African racehorses but there my interest and knowledge ended, and to tell the truth the whole subject often bored me. Needless to say, my attempts at betting usually proved disastrous!

Then one night I awakened abruptly from a vivid dream hearing the sound of a man's deep voice shouting a name: "Turfmaster!" I came wide-awake, knowing I had been dreaming about a race and had seen horses racing toward the finish line. I also knew that in my dream Turfmaster was the winning horse.

My husband, not yet asleep, asked what had startled me. I told him about my dream and that only the head of the winner had appeared to me. The other horses were shadowy. Clearest of all was the impression of sound. The loudness of a man's strong voice shouting the name had awakened me.

My husband reminded me that a horse named "Turfmaster" actually existed.

The dream had left me with the impression that the horse had some connection with the Cape Province, so I asked my husband to find out if it might be entered in a race there.

I never had dreamed about horse racing before. Could it be a prediction? My husband suddenly became very interested. He jumped out of bed, found a newspaper and turned eagerly to a list of runners in the racing column. To our astonishment we found Turfmaster was due to run at our local course in Pietermaritzburg three days hence! We also were intrigued to learn that the horse had been bred in the Cape Province. However, my excitement soon subsided when my husband dryly remarked that the horse hadn't won a race in two years and in fact was regarded as "a bit of an old donkey!"

"If he wins, it will pay a fortune," he said.

I realized he meant the horse hadn't the remotest chance of winning. Nevertheless, the following Saturday found us at Scottsville Racecourse in Piet-ermaritzburg. I was curious to see Turfmaster but alas, the sleepy white horse despondently walking the parade ring destroyed my confidence in the dream. The remarks of friends and relatives were scathing, for Turfmaster was considered one of the farthest-out outsiders in the race. At the last minute, however, my husband placed ten bob ($1.50) on the horse, just to please me.

The starter's gate went up. I waited tensely for the commentator to give the horses' positions. Of course Turfmaster trailed the field. Knowing the odds, I turned away. I spoke to my brother-in-law who was standing on a seat closely following the horses. Seeing my despondent expression, he teased me a little about my dream. As I climbed up beside him, he suddenly grabbed my arm and began to shout "Turfmaster! Turfmaster!" at the very top of his voice.

I couldn't see a thing in the denseness of the excited crowd and I thought he was teasing me — a predilection of his — so I vigorously shook him and told him to stop it. The horse couldn't possibly have made up that much ground!

But Turfmaster had! He was streaking through to a photo-finish! Again, my companion yelled the horse's name in jubilation and suddenly I recognized the sound of his powerful voice as the one that had sounded so deafening in my dream.

I ran to my husband, whom I found confidently waiting at the winner's box for the jockey to return! For the small bet we had placed we took back £18 ($50)!

Of course, now that my dream had become reality, everyone wanted to know why I hadn't placed more money on the horse.

"That sort of dream," they assured me, "comes only once in a lifetime!"

I guess that must be true. Many of my dreams since have accurately predicted events but no more friendly tipsters inspire my nocturnal life.

If you should have such an experience, don't be shy of telling someone about it immediately, and always make a note of the time and date. If you dream of lucky winners, however, I shouldn't tell too many people — for obvious reasons!

MARCH 28, 1956, was a cold, snowy night in Niagara Falls, N.Y. I was there on a business trip that had kept me away from Chicago and home for several weeks. It may have been the weather or it may have been something that had happened in my business; for whatever reason, I had a great yearning to be home. Stumbling along in the snow toward my rooming house it occurred to me that a phone call to Chicago might be just what I needed to dispel my awful loneliness.

At the end of the telephone conversation with my wife I told her my work would keep me in the east for at least another two weeks.

I spent the rest of the evening reading, then went off to bed. But I couldn't go to sleep. The yearning to be home had been increased rather than lessened by the telephone call. I never had experienced such homesickness!

I lit my cigarette lighter and saw my watch said 10:00 P.M. I lay thinking fondly of home, of my wife, of my daughter and son, even of our parakeet that customarily joined me when I ate my meals. When my loneliness persisted I began to visualize mentally a trip back to Chicago and home. I did as the mystics suggest, "go through all the details of the trip, step by step."

"This is fun," I thought. "Here I am in Cleveland on my way back—but how am I to know that I really am here, now? Oh, well, I'll start over again."

Beginning my mental trip again I meticulously went through each sequence: driving out of Buffalo on Route 20, then on to Cleveland; this time I continued westward to Chicago where I became even more exacting in my details! Up the Outer Drive I went, visualizing every landmark, sign, the traffic, even the view of Lake Michigan as seen from the Drive. Everything down to the finest detail existed in my memory, put there by the hundreds of times I had traveled this route. Finally there I was — at the front door of my apartment building on the north side of Chicago!

It was very vivid. I walked to the elevator and paused to decide whether to ride the elevator or run up the short flight of steps. I decided to ride and pushed the button. Getting off the elevator I walked down the short distance of carpeted hallway to my apartment door. I turned the door handle. Why wasn't it locked?

Entering the apartment I had the feeling I was expected. But it was only an hour since I had told my wife my return would be delayed another two weeks!

Going through the front room I glanced at the couch where my son usually slept. He wasn't there! I walked on to the bedroom. The street lights shone into the room from Sheridan Road and I saw clearly the bed where my wife and my daughter were apparently deep asleep. Looking around at the familiar surroundings, the pictures, furniture, etc., I noticed something I seemed to consider unusual—I could see myself in the mirror of the dresser next to the bed! And the lights from Sheridan Road cast my shadow onto the floor and over the bed.

I reached over my daughter Lisa and touched my wife gently on the chest.

She reacted instantly! She sat upright and stared directly into my eyes, only inches from her own.

I sensed a great fear. I was picking up her emotions, however, her thoughts were unknown to me. Possibly the fear content of her thoughts blocked their meaning and my understanding.

At that precise instant I was

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

John Otto started out in life wanting to be a flier. At the age of 14 in 1928 in Janesville, Wis., he became the world's youngest pilot. Leaving home shortly thereafter he barnstormed throughout the U.S. and Canada. Then sea-fever overcame him and in the merchant marine he worked himself up from engine room wiper to Junior Engineer.

While on shore leave in San Francisco, Otto received his first message from a medium. She told him to leave the sea and go to New York City. He says he'll never forgive her because New York stifled his bent for adventure. He completed his education there however and went into business as a patent development engineer.

Then came World War II and after service in the Air Force he settled in Chicago and became associated with the Chicago Rocket Society. He is one of the foremost researchers in the controversial field of UFOs and his particular interest lies in attempting to establish a mechanical communications link with them. Some of his outstanding experiments to this end were made over such powerful radio transmitters as WGN, Chicago (1954), KFI, Los Angeles (1955) and WOR, New York (1957). While his results have not been conclusive, Otto feels a measure of success attaches to the code-like sounds he has received.

filled with a feeling of "not wanting to frighten". At the same time I wanted to know the cause of her fear. Then suddenly I was back in my room in the rooming house in Niagara Falls!

I lay on my bed for hours reflecting on the experience. The feeling of fear was still with me — as I had sensed it when looking into my wife's eyes after touching her. The experience remained vivid and I reasoned that if it had been just as vivid to Mrs. Otto it surely would have frightened her.

It was dawn before I slept.

Eventually I returned home to Chicago from the east. Neither Mrs. Otto nor I mentioned this experience. I felt if my wife had experienced anything in connection with it she surely would speak of it to me. If she had experienced nothing there was nothing to talk about.

Late in May or early in June we attended a party with a group of friends in Elmwood Park. A guest from New York, Irwin Vaxler, had been doing a great deal of research in the field of psychism and spoke about "teleportation." The subject induced a great deal of discussion and argument to which I listened intently. After a while I decided to tell my story.

"Don't knock it, folks," I said. "Let me tell you of an experience I had a few months ago."

After I had described my experience there was a moment of silence, then everyone started to ask questions at once.

Going over the details again I stated that I had no way to validate it.

Suddenly, from behind me, my wife spoke abruptly, "Why didn't you tell me you had done that?"

My surprise at her outburst must have been obvious to everyone. Turning to her I said, "I wasn't sure you had seen me, honey. If you did why didn't you tell me about it?"

Mrs. Otto said, "You scared me half to death. Why did you punch me so hard on the chest?"

"Punch you?" I exclaimed. "I merely touched you lightly, to wake you."

Our friends were excited. This new development was exciting to me too. My first question was about the substance of the figure my wife had seen. Could she consider it a physical figure of me or was it a wispy ghost-like entity or merely an image in her mind?

Mrs. Otto answered, "You were there all right. You leaned across Lisa and poked me real hard on the chest."

"I know that, honey," I said, "but could you see through me or was I solid?"

"As far as I know, you were actually there. I saw you just as I see you now!" she answered.

I asked if there were anything else, any little detail she could remember but she said, "No, nothing."

Not being entirely satisfied I asked her to go over the entire experience.

Mrs. Otto stated she first had heard me at the door but could not recall hearing any keys being used. She had heard me whistling a merry tune as I was accustomed to do when returning home. She then heard me walk across the room, pause for a moment (possibly at the couch), and then proceed into the bedroom. All this while, she said, she felt it couldn't be I because she just had spoken with me on the phone and I was in Niagara Falls. She said she had remained quietly in bed and the next thing she recalled was a hard punch on her chest which caused her to sit upright. In terror she had found herself looking right into my eyes only inches from her own.

I asked her why she was frightened.

She said, "One reads about people seeing a vision of someone. Later they hear that someone has had an accident or something. I thought something had happened to you!"

I asked where our son Jon was that night and after a moment she answered, "He was staying at a friend's home that night."

The talk now became general and our friends asked many pertinent questions about the incident. The main question was about the tangibility of the vision Mrs. Otto had seen. She was firm, however, in claiming that her vision appeared solid indeed since she even could see me reflected in the mirror and that I had cast a shadow which fell across the bed as I leaned over her!

This was extremely interesting to me, of course, because it bore out the details of the trip as I had experienced it. But it leads to an even more important question: could I cast a shadow if I were not there physically?

The reality of such an experience is baffling when one speculates on how a body could be transported 500 miles in an instant — and back in another instant. And, if it is not really a physical transportation, what is it?

I will always wonder what would have happened if I had spoken softly to my wife instead of touching (punching!) her. Would she have been frightened? Could we have conversed?

And last but not least, will I have another opportunity to find answers to these questions?

HYPNOSIS IMPROVES GOLF SCORE

By Bert Groth

EXPERIMENTS being conducted by a psychologist in South Africa indicate that the day may be in sight when routine jobs will be performed more efficiently through hypnosis.

Thirty-two golfers are being used in the experiment at Huddle Park golf course in Johannesburg by the psychologist, Dr. Brian Norgarb. The object is to see if their putting can be improved through hypnosis. Each golfer plays a number of rounds while in a normal state, to establish his regular score on the greens. Then they compete again while hypnotized.

On of the golfers, Lawrie Fouchee, a market researcher, while under hypnosis took 17 putts for nine holes. When he was in a normal state, he needed 23 strokes for the same course.

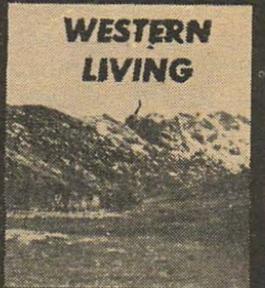

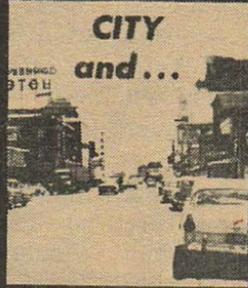

If results for the rest of the subjects turn out similarly well, scientists may begin to look favorably at the thesis that hypnosis can aid in the performance of physical tasks.

"If we can establish that hypnosis can improve a man's golf, one sees limitless vocational applications," said Dr. Norgarb.

PARENTAL COMMAND

By Blanche Weidmuller

THE DIME LAY in the man's palm, its newness glittering in the summer sun. It looked like wealth to my eight-year-old eyes. A penny for running errands was the accepted reward for children at the turn of the century but here a dime was offered just to deliver a note to a lady.

The man, well-dressed and soft-spoken, said he had quarreled with his ladylove. It was all his fault and he wanted to make up, but if he appeared at her door he feared she would refuse to let him explain. A note handed her by a sweet little girl certainly would be read, and she would realize how sorry he was and how much he loved her. She would write an answer on the note and when I brought it back the dime would be mine.

The opportunity to aid the cause of love and earn such a munificent recompense could not be denied. I agreed.

We were standing at the north end of an alley on East 29th Street in Chicago which served residents on the west side of Michigan Avenue. I was staying with my mother in a house on Prairie Avenue, one block east. She had been asked to nurse one of the servants there who was sick. My father, whom I adored, had died shortly before and my mother accepted the position on condition that I could stay there too, since we had no close relatives in Chicago.

"Where does the lady live?" I asked.

"In that second gray stone house, but first I'll peek through the coach house to see if she is home."

He walked to the coach house, opened the door and entered. In a moment he appeared and beckoned me to come. I went toward him. Suddenly and sharply I heard my father's voice commanding, "Run, Blanche! Run!" I spun around and ran and ran until I was out of breath.

When I related the incident to my mother her eyes widened with fright and she burst into tears.

"Oh, Blanche, I've let Papa down. His dying words were, 'Don't let my little girl out of your sight. I'm so afraid some brute will grab her.'" — Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

THE NONBELIEVER

By E. S.

WHEN I WAS a small child, I knew my sister Dollie was something of a mystic. She often foretold things that later happened just the way she said — which surprised friends and family.

It happened that my grandfather and Dollie, who was only 15, died at my father's house on the same night — January 31, 1906. My grandfather's trouble was mostly old age; my sister had typhoid fever and complications. Because she was so young, her death was tragic. She was the favorite of the other seven children and the whole family was broken-hearted.

My mother had been raised to believe in spiritual things and always thought there were ghosts and a chance of our departed ones getting in touch with us, one way or another. My father really was vexed with her views and ridiculed her. He said there was no such thing as a ghost, and if he saw anything mysterious he would shoot through it.

We were poor country farmers and in need of many things, so when my father heard of a job in a western state, he went there to work for a few months. On his return home there was a distance of 25 miles from the railroad station for which he had no conveyance, so he decided to walk.

During the night he was so sleepy he had to stop and sleep awhile by the side of the road. He found a flat rock for his head and was preparing to rest when my dead sister suddenly appeared near him. He spoke her name and asked her what she wanted. He reached for her, but she vanished. He told us his first thought was to take her home, and he stayed there for some time hoping she would reappear, but he did not see her again.

Here is something we often wondered about: Dollie was dressed not in the white she was buried in, but in a white blouse and black skirt and cap, the style in those days. The clothes Father saw her wearing were at home in a trunk.

My mother always said Dollie appeared to show my father that the spirit lives after death. — Hutchinson, Kans.

"I SAW JESUS"

By Sylvia Bacon Averett

MY AUNT Ethel was a Christian lady. She went to church regularly and devoted her life to doing for others. When someone died, she was the first to arrive with food for the family; when anyone was in need, she shared what she had. During her lifetime, I rarely heard her mention God but year after year I witnessed the good deeds she performed.

In late November, 1955, I was home from college for the Thanksgiving holiday. I went to see Aunt Ethel, as was my custom. During our conversation, she said she wanted to discuss something with me.

She began, "About a week ago, I was up early one morning and went to the back porch for the milk. The sun was just coming up and everything seemed cool and beautiful. As I looked across the yard, I saw Jesus standing there. His arms were outstretched and he was smiling as he looked directly at me. I have tried since then to know what his presence could mean. It seems he must be going to be with me or that he is coming for me. How would you interpret such a vision?"

I had no answer to give her but I drove home anxiously trying to understand. On reaching my house I rushed in to tell my mother the story. She said Aunt Ethel had asked all the members of the family to help her interpret the vision.

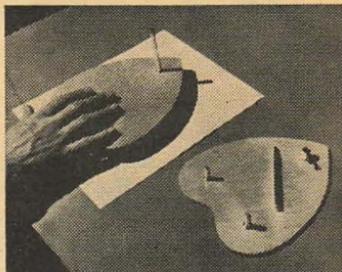

Reluctantly I returned to college. I hoped that God would "be with" Aunt Ethel but that he wouldn't "come for her." She was only 60 years old and had a teen-aged son to care for.

I was home again at Christmas and spent as much time as I could with Aunt Ethel. We didn't refer to her vision but it was surely in her thoughts as it was in mine.

On December 31, 1955, we were waiting for Aunt Ethel, Aunt Gladys and her son John to come to spend New Year's Eve and New Year's Day with us. At 6:00 o'clock, the phone rang. Aunt Ethel had been killed in an automobile accident! Aunt Gladys and John were unhurt.

The shock and grief of losing Aunt

PLANCHETTE!

THE PLANCHETTE IS A MECHANICAL MEANS FOR AUTOMATIC WRITING. IT AIDS PSYCHIC MANIFESTATIONS WHICH HAVE NO OTHER MEANS OF BECOMING CONCRETE.

The result of an exhaustive search, our authentic planchette is hand-made from a special wood — an "alive" wood that magnetizes — and will absorb YOUR vibrations. It measures about 6 inches in length. Smoothly hand-finished, it is polished to a high lustre with a resin polish which, being a wood byproduct, will not interfere with the vibrations which the operator's continued use sets up.

HOW THE PLANCHETTE WORKS:

Specially-fitted pencil forms one leg of planchette, the other two rolling free on ball bearings. These ball bearings permit the slightest indication of movement to take effect, the tiniest wisp of pressure transmitted through your hand. How To Profit By Using The

DYNAMIC POWER

On Yourself—

Some call it Auto-Suggestion; others identify it as Self-Hypnosis; still others think of it as Control of the Subconscious; but the DYNAMIC POWER OF SUGGESTION by any name can be made to work for you when used on yourself or others with whom you come in contact! Learn the Secrets of this fantastic, irresistible power and reap the rich rewards in dollars, health, peace of mind, happiness!

AN IRRESISTIBLE FORCE!

WHETHER or not you realize it, the Dynamic power of Suggestion can be responsible for most of your feelings, decisions, and actions, good and bad! Therefore, unless you are as rich as you ever want to be, as happy as you ever hope to be, and as healthy as you ever expect to be, you cannot afford to ignore the effect of the right kind of SUGGESTION on your mind and body!

As revealed by Freud, Jung, Adler, William James, and other world-famous psychologists, psychiatrists, and physicians, and more recently by Gilbert Oakley, D. Psy., when the BODY suffers the MIND suffers, and when the MIND is disturbed the BODY is disturbed! Thus when we are afraid, the heart beats faster, we breathe more rapidly, our throat dries up, we have an empty feeling in the pit of our stomach, we are physically tired. Whether we fear open spaces, thunder and lightning, the dark, heights, crowds, animals, the future or the "unknown," the fear is mental but the reaction and suffering frequently are purely physical. The POWER OF SUGGESTION at work on our conscious mind may cause us to freeze in fear, become temporarily deaf or blind, nauseous, curt, snappy, irritable, inconsiderate, incompetent.

On the other hand when the POWER OF SUGGESTION is properly applied, confidence flows through our subconscious, our judgment is sound, our body is in tune with nature, we are healthy, happy, contented, successful!

How To Make It Work For You!

If the power of SUGGESTION is so important, why not make it work FOR you instead of AGAINST you? Why not let it help you solve your problems, ease your pains, provide the thoughts and ideas that will produce wealth, comfort, happiness, and all things you want out of life? Why not become thoroughly familiar with the principles of Auto-Suggestion—so this great power can come to you automatically?

If you ask, how can you direct the right kind of suggestion to your conscious being, the answer is, through Self-Hypnosis. This is the technical name for the mental process that makes the most of what your brain has stored away! You will understand it more clearly when we call it "Conscious Control of the Sub-Conscious."

As everyone knows, an iceberg floats on the water, but three-fourths of it is submerged and only one-fourth is above the water level. The same may be said of the human mind—three-fourths of it is buried in the sub-conscious and only one-fourth is above the surface during our wide-awake hours. We lose the power of using what is in the "back of our heads" except on rare occasions, as we drop off to sleep, or just before we awaken, or when we are idly day-dreaming.

But there is a way, through Self-Hypnosis, to delve at will deeply into this mighty source of power in order to conquer our fears, illnesses, inhibitions, complexes, phobias, nervousness, bad habits, objectionable traits such as anger, frustration, hopelessness, irritability and other weaknesses which chain us to mediocre lives, limited happiness, constant fatigue, and a perpetual inferiority complex—and replace them with strength of will, super-confidence, greater courage, bristling health, a keener memory, and all the other positive forces that spell S-U-C-C-E-S-S!

of SUGGESTION

And On Others!

IMPORTANT! This is not a textbook, not a correspondence course, not a study manual. Indeed, you will benefit immediately by its very presence, even if you choose not to study the book. As a suggestion, pick up your copy from your night table, and browse through its pages for only a few minutes before you retire. Just glancing at a few selected paragraphs here and there at random will actually provide handsome dividends of inspiration and enlightenment that will go to work on your sub-conscious mind the moment you fall asleep.

You will be surprised and amazed how quickly these valuable facts respond to your command when you put them into practice the very next day!

Why not see for yourself how true this is, especially when you can do so without risking a penny as outlined in the offer described below? Then mail the coupon without delay.

Be Master Of Your Mindpower!

Can anyone hypnotize himself, easily, quickly, harmlessly? The answer is "yes"—emphatically. You can be master of your mind if you know the Secrets of Self-Hypnosis. Indeed, that is the very title of a book written by Gilbert Oakley, D. Psy., author of 17 other books on the topic of personality analysis and development, ardent follower and student of the great psychologists and psychiatrists of the past century or more. In his book, Oakley shows not only how to make Hypnosis work on YOU but how to make it work on OTHERS, to your advantage.

Although results may seem magical and wonderful there is nothing dangerous, illegal, irreligious, anti-scientific, painful or difficult about the method described. The subject, whether yourself or someone else, can easily avoid the influence of hypnosis instantly whenever desired. The author debunks the common superstitions and cites solid endorsements from physicians and others.

Try This Method 10 Days Free!

Seldom has a book held such promise of reward to the intelligent reader. So confident is the publisher of its demonstrable value to you, he offers to send a copy for 10 days reading, subject to return and refund if you are not delighted, inspired, enlightened. Mail coupon now with remittance for $5.95 and a copy of Gilbert Oakley's 243-page book will be sent to you postpaid by return mail, on approval.

From time to time in the past, if you are a normal human being, you have had "flashes of inspiration." Sometimes these have come in your "dreams" or just before you awakened, or while "day-dreaming." These are examples of your subconscious mind coming to the surface.

This remarkable book tells you how to bring this submerged three-fourths of your brain-power to work for you during all your waking hours! It encourages you to trust these revelations and to make the most of them! For your own sake—for the sake of your future, give yourself a chance to do your best for you! Mail the coupon NOW!

A HOMEMAKER RETURNS

By George F. Raines

THIS "VISIT FROM the past" occurred in Clay County, Tennessee, on Pea Ridge near Holly Creek about 1910.

Mr. and Mrs. George Davis and their four children lived in a very old log house (two stories high) on the old Davis homestead that once had belonged to George's paternal grandfather.

In those days, in the hill country of middle Tennessee, people in rural areas let their stock graze nearly anywhere, including the yard. One evening, between sundown and dark, the cow had come up to be fed and milked. Three of the Davis children, Bedford, Myrtie and Ada, were feeding her when a tiny woman came around the corner of the house. Bedford, who now lives at Cumberland Furnace, Tenn., says, "She was smiling but not saying a word."

Since the woman looked a little like their mother, the children momentarily thought that Mrs. Davis had attired herself in some out-of-date clothes as a prank. Bedford says, "She was dressed in white from head to foot and wore a white hat or cap. We had never seen one like it. Well, we thought that Ma had dressed herself like that to scare us. She just stood there saying nothing."

After the woman had stood silent for a little while, Myrtie tried to talk to her. Then, according to Bedford, "She started running around the house toward the kitchen, an ell room in back of the main log building." When she reached the large stone chimney of the main building, she stooped low in the corner of it and after that she was motionless again.

By that time the children suspected that the woman was not their mother, and when they heard Mrs. Davis washing dishes in the kitchen, they were terrified and ran to the front door.

The door was fastened by a bolt on the inside. The panic-stricken children beat on the door so violently that Mr. Davis threatened to thrash them for making so much commotion.

When they calmed down enough to describe the woman and the clothes she wore, their mother told them that their description perfectly fitted their Great-grandmother Davis. She had seen her thus attired many times.—Newton, Miss.

THE BOOK OF THE DEAD

$12.50

THE BOOK OF THE DEAD belongs among the very first books in one's library, whether you call it a library of classics, or of metaphysics, or religion, or occult.

First in a library are those very few very ancient books that still speak in a loud voice to us across the millennia. The most ancient continue to be the most permanent because, to begin with, they caught in their own unique way what is most permanent in the human heart. Homer and the Old and New Testaments will be read a thousand years from now, we can be sure. So, too, THE BOOK OF THE DEAD. Everybody with the slightest pretense to an education has heard or read about it.

The most important of the religious writings of the Egyptians, it goes back, back, before the Egyptian dynasties. Parts of it, at least, were four thousand or five thousand years old when Jesus lived. Its ideas are best understood by first dismissing the everyday idea of the "dead."

THE BOOK OF THE DEAD is a great collection of texts which the ancient Egyptian scribes composed for the benefit of the dead — spells and incantations, hymns and litanies, magical formulae and names, words of power and the 17th and 18th Centuries never have been equaled, and it is every violinist's dream to own one.)

Several years ago I learned I would inherit a valuable old violin that had been in my family for generations. My cousin William Smith, who had it in his possession, lived in California and he often expressed the wish that he personally could put it in my hands so that he could witness my joy.

I was most anxious, of course, for the moment it would be mine, but living in Ohio, I couldn't make the trip to California until last summer. A month before I was to arrive my cousin Bill died suddenly.

The violin was waiting for me, but it was a cheap, toneless, "practice" violin. In my terrible disappointment, I suspected that somehow a switch had been pulled on me. I had no way of investigating my suspicions so I carried my disappointment and the insignificant violin back to Ohio. (I gave the violin to a poor but deserving pupil and she loves it as if it were the instrument I had hoped for.)

Soon after my return to Ohio, I was talking on the phone to a friend about my soul-searing experience when suddenly everything in the room that had anything to do with strings simply cut loose! A dozen violin-playing figurines standing on a shelf fell over. A large heavy wall figurine, a violinist, fell from the wall and smashed to the floor, barely missing my head. From another wall an oil painting let loose, landed on my guitar and broke it beyond repair. I hung up the phone and got out of there fast.

On reflection, I believe my cousin Bill came to show his displeasure at my lack of gratitude.—Columbus, Ohio.

The Mystery of a Vast Underground Subterranean Sub-Oceanic Network of Tunnels Radiating from Antarctica to Rainbow City

NOW! the Vow of Silence Has Been Broken

For the first time in history Dr. Robert Ernst Dickhoff, M.A., D.D., Ph.D., author, lecturer, Philosopher, SUNGMA RED LAMA, Buddhist Adept, Man of dedicated Honesty and Truth has dared reveal the mystery of mysteries.

Shambalah, A City of Mystery??

Dr. Dickhoff in his book, "AGHARTA" the subterranean world reveals the ancient people of Lemuria and Atlantis when their continent sank after a catastrophic atomic chain reaction, took refuge in the bowels of the Earth to escape destruction from radio active fallout. They fled with their great race of super-scientists to the interior of the Earth, a land free of radio activity with tunnel boring machines that we know nothing about. He reveals that there are openings to the tunnels in Tibet, Siberia, Africa, South and North America where they can still enter with their Flying Saucers.

Dr. Dickhoff in "Agharta" reveals who actually dug these tunnels. These super-scientists, who came in space spheres aeons ago.

Dr. Dickhoff in his book claims these tunnel caverns are illuminated by a green luminescence which aids underground plant-life, and lengthens human life. A Shangri-La, a land of Paradise with super-men who live in a land of beauty, in a tropical climate, free of ice and snow, with mountains, forests, lakes, rivers, green vegetables, animals and fish which are all strange to us.

Travel he says, is done in cars running at tremendous speeds through the tunnels, and are operated by a propulsion principle yet unknown to us. He claims they send forth special Lamas to gather knowledge by observation from other Worlds and then return to them.

Truth Is Stranger Than Fiction

Dr. Dickhoff in his book "Agharta" reveals his strange conviction that these tales are based on a truth more fantastic than fiction and that the true purpose of it all, is to preserve mankind.

New Books

YOU ARE ALL SANPAKU, by Sakurazawa Nyoiti. English version by William Duffy. University Books, New Hyde Park, N.Y., 1965. 224 pages, $4.95.

"When the pupil is ready, the guru will appear" is an Eastern saying which may explain the appearance of this book in American book stores. It should also have active sales in the health food stores alongside Gayelord Hauser and Prof. Ehret's Mucusless Diet.

Billed as the first English printing from the 300 works published in Japanese by biochemist Nyoiti, translator-editor Duffy acknowledges that Sanpaku is intended to supplant a number of crudely-printed pidgin English pamphlets available for several years through a few restaurants in London, New York and San Francisco. These have been cases for the students and followers of Dr. Nyoiti, known in the West as George Ohsawa, and have featured menus based on the nutritional dictums of his diet research assembled under the scientific label of macrobiotics. The dictionary defines this term as "the art of prolonging life."

The book itself presents three major premises or credos of the Ohsawan philosophy, only one of which might be expected to impress the average reader.

The title section presents the case for the shortcut diagnosis known as Sanpaku. In Japanese this word means an eye with three whites. White to the left and the right of the iris is satisfactory, but white showing beneath the iris is bad—in fact, it is Sanpaku. With comparison to the reflex action of the eyes at the time of death, Dr. Nyoiti suggests that the person with white showing beneath his iris is beginning to die.

The frontispiece displays photos of many celebrities of past and present who show Sanpaku, including Carole Lombard, N'go Dinh Diem, Tyrone Power, John F. Kennedy, Marilyn Monroe and John Barrymore. If the photos showed normal eye position, then the low white areas are evident. But many of these photos may have been taken when the subjects were watching an airplane or a high fly.

The second major section of the book gets to the meat of a really healthy diet, designed to correct all signs of Sanpaku. And the "meat" of this diet is the absence of meat. In addition to meat, one must eliminate fruits, dairy products, oils, condi-

PAULSEN'S NURSERY is the title 3rd Edition, 100 pages (1966 Edition) presenting theories on electricity and magnetism as applied to elements used in today's and future plant fertilizers, diet and growth. The need of element analysis in soil and plants to attain better food from better soil for longer life is fully detailed. ments and most vegetables that grow underground. All drinks except exotic teas are restricted. The very few exceptions in these categories make this an exciting (and expensive) diet. A meal with high potential to reduce Sanpaku may consist of caviar, pheasant under glass stuffed with chestnut and buckwheat dressing, rice spiced with murdock root, all washed down with ginseng tea.

Reference is made to the efficacy of organic-grown foods in this diet to avoid insecticides and chemical fertilizers, but absent is mention of the air pollution and atomic fallout which visit organic and non-organic gardens indiscriminately. If the above diet restrictions have not already revealed the nutritional secret of this book, then it is because the list is not entirely complete. The perfect food expounded by the Ohsawan philosophy is brown unprocessed rice. This is the foundation of the macrobiotic regimen, and Dr. Nyoiti promises startling results in seven days of eating nothing but brown rice prepared in his special manner.

The third, and unfortunately the shortest, section treats with the Eastern philosophy of Yin-Yang balances. The excessive overload of what the author identifies as Yin-type foods (essentially those high in sugar and/or water content) makes it imperative that corrective diet be excessively weighted in Yang-type foods, at least until a proper balance is reached. Rice, buckwheat and ginseng are said to be heavy with Yang.

The closing chapter is a good philosophical soliloquy. The Yin-Yang parables will stick with most readers — for example, "There are no wise men in a wise nation." "There can be no front without a back." And "Light can only be seen through darkness." This section is designed to evaluate the excesses and lacks of Western living and to offer suggestions on adjusting inherent balances with perhaps a minimum addition of strange or foreign beliefs and practices.

The casual student of Eastern philosophies and mysteries is apt to be disappointed in Sanpaku, for it offers no mantras, no asanas and not even a Yoga exercise. But for the dedicated pilgrim of Ohsawan macrobiotics, whose number we are told includes all from the lowly peasant to the high and mighty in business and intellectual circles, this volume will be like a breath of fresh air, offering at last the opportunity to discard those makeshift little pidgin English pamphlets with which they have been struggling these many years. — Tom C. Lyle.

WHY IS THE EARTH STILL HAUNTED?

Today, as thousands of years ago

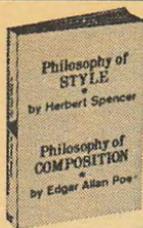

Why quibble and beat about the bush? All thru history there have been countless reports of strange phenomena of apparitions and hauntings, of objects in the sky and of people with miraculous powers. Six thousand years of testimony from all over the world indicate something is going on here that concerns all of us inescapably.

The older the earth becomes, the more evidence accumulates showing that space-dwelling entities, not always invisible, organized and independent, high and low, good, bad, and in-between, haunt, guide, obsess, damn, deceive, inspire, help, torment, and recruit, for power, self-aggrandizement, and selfish glory and adoration, the unsuspecting, half-believing, half-doubting inhabitants of the earth.

Are we a hunting ground? Are we the property of any government, celestial or terrestrial? Were we ever, are we still, a colony of another world? Are we partly descended from other-world beings? Is that why flying saucer occupants resemble us? Is that why there are so many races and religions on the earth? How did any space entities get here originally? Who brought the seed of spirit here, causing the earth to become peopled with such as are capable of immortality? Are our spirits, too, as adapted to life in Space as fish are to the ocean? Is it our cosmic purpose, too, to help raise up life on other worlds?

OAHSPÉ gives highly reasonable replies to such questions. A meaty, instructive book, it offers a wealth of new, advanced ideas, information, and viewpoints. Whether taken as a genuine revelation from another world or not (we think it is), OAHSPÉ will open your eyes, add years to your mental maturity, give you new hope and courage, show you how to really improve your life, and arouse your faith to try. 35 cents, coins or stamps, brings more information plus the first 96 pages of OAHSPÉ, worth $1 toward purchase of complete OAHSPÉ from hidden depths of the mind. In other words, a study of Qabalistic symbolism makes it possible to reach the reality that mystics attempt to describe. It centers around the Tree of Life, a comprehensive symbol that relates other symbol systems, religious beliefs and mythologies and provides a means of interpreting them based on abstract and universal principles.

Author Gareth Knight believes that what Paracelsus claimed for the Qabalah still is valid and that the Qabalah and its basic diagram, the Tree of Life, is a theosophical system that works. He offers Volume One as a practical guide as well as a theoretical treatise to enable the reader to gain his own experience and reach his own conclusions. The book is intended for those who want a psychic quest and spiritual adventure, rather than just knowledge.

Volume One compares Western occultism with the Eastern systems of Yoga, analyzes the Qabalah's Tree of Life in full detail and describes the practical application as well as the theory of Qabalistic symbolism in the Western esoteric tradition.

Volume Two gives what is described as the most comprehensive analysis ever published of the 22 "Paths of Concealed Glory" that join the spheres of the Tree of Life — taking into account Hebrew letters, astrological signs and Tarot trumps.

Much of Volume Two deals exclusively with the Tarot and traces the history of Tarot design and the various systems of correspondences with the Tree of Life. It throws new light on the neglected Lesser Arcana and the little-understood function of the Tarot Aces and the 16 Court Cards. As does Volume One, the book ends with an extensive chapter on "working the Tree."

REVEALED!

The Underground World of Supermen Discovered by Admiral Byrd . . . Under the North Pole . . . and Kept Secret by U. S. Government

Dr. Raymond Bernard, A.B., M.A., Ph.D., noted scholar and author of "THE HOLLOW EARTH," says that the true home of the flying saucers is a huge underground world whose entrance is at the North Polar opening. Dr. Raymond Bernard believes in the hollow interior of the Earth lives a super race which wants nothing to do with man on the surface. They launched their flying saucers only after man threatened the world with A-Bombs.

Admiral Byrd, says sources quoted by Dr. Bernard, led a Navy team into the polar opening and came upon this underground region. It is free of ice and snow, has mountains covered with forests, lakes, rivers, vegetation and strange animals. But the news of his discovery was suppressed by the U.S. government in order to prevent other nations from exploring the inner world and claiming it.

CAN YOU EXPLAIN THE FOLLOWING?

- Why does one find tropical seeds, plants and trees floating in the fresh water of icebergs?
- Why do millions of tropical birds and animals go farther North in the wintertime?
- If it is not hollow and warm inside the Earth at the Poles, then why does colored pollen color the Earth for thousands of miles?
- Why is it warmer at the Poles than 600 to 1000 miles away from them?
- Why does the North Wind in the Arctic get warmer as one sails North beyond 70° latitude?

Now Dr. Bernard in his book "The Hollow Earth" leads you through the subterranean world to meet the civilization which occupies an underground area larger than North America! Beneath the 800 mile crust of the Earth is the greatest discovery in human history inhabited by millions of super intelligent beings. MY OCCULT DIARY, by Cornelius Tabori. Living Books, Inc., New York, N.Y., 1966. 250 pages, $5.75. (Re-issue of 1951 edition.)

"I am with child to see any strange thing." So said Samuel Pepys in his diary entry for May 14, 1660.

Cornelius Tabori, the Hungarian journalist, had this same sense of wonder and delight in the mysterious and bizarre. From 1906 until 1944 when he met death at the hands of the Nazis, Tabori kept an occult diary in which he recorded his personal experiences with mediums, hypnotists, clairvoyants and students of psychic phenomena.

All of Europe in the years following World War I seemed to be preoccupied with the occult. Tabori, in his travels as a crime reporter, had an excellent opportunity to know the charlatans, tricksters and swindlers who sought to exploit this interest and to know also the genuine researchers who desired only to extend man's knowledge of the paranormal.

The diary reveals a man with an inquiring mind who could remain a skeptic without becoming a cynic.

The compelling interest in this journal lies in the great diversity of cases presented. Spiritualism and clairvoyance in criminal investigation particularly interested Tabori. But he would go to the muddiest country village on a peasant's report of a poltergeist.

Thomas Mann, Anatole France and Sigmund Freud opened their minds to him on the subject of psychic phenomena. The humblest of religious sects in the suburbs of Budapest received a visit from Cornelius Tabori.

Any unusual occurrence would bring him to the scene, a calm, dispassionate observer — ready to believe, yet ready to doubt.

The gathering winds of the holocaust that would soon sweep Europe intrude in the entries of the late 1930's. The prophetic last entry of 1944 is a cry of despair in a world without hope.

The diary was translated and edited by Paul Tabori, the famous son of a distinguished father, as a labor of sorrow and love. — William G. Wedlake.

EXTRASENSORY PERCEPTION, edited by G. E. W. Wolstenholme and Elaine C. P. Millar. Citadel Press, New York, N.Y., 1965. 240 pages, $1.95 (paperback).

The contents of this volume, a Ciba Foundation Symposium, first appeared in hard covers in 1956. A combination of lack of publicity and high price prevented the original from becoming well-known, despite the fact that such prominent parapsychologists as J. G. Pratt and S. G. Soal presented papers at the 1955 conference. The volume is noteworthy in two regards: first, it surveys a wider spectrum of psychic interests than nearly every other popular-level introduction; and second, it represents the only popular account of several noteworthy contributions to parapsychology.

The volume opens with three papers on laboratory tests of ESP and it is in this section that the material most obviously shows its age. Then follows the only published account of G. D. Wassermann's field theory to explain psychic phenomena. This reviewer does not pretend to understand the British mathematician's hypotheses but with attempts at comprehensive theories so rare, it is good to have this brief summary available for consideration.

After two papers debating the relevance of statistics to evidence for ESP, the reader moves on to far more stimulating fare: a consideration of ethnological aspects of psychic phenomena and the only available popular account of Langdon-Davies' experiments with Spanish peasant "sensitives". Soal and Dingwall then give useful descriptions of various methods of fraudulently simulating psychic abilities.

The following two papers debate evidence for an extrasensory factor in birds' homing abilities. The concluding two papers deal with the psychiatric aspects of the emergence of ESP. The foregoing summary suggests the breadth of outlook contained in this useful introduction that deserves to be better known. — David Techter.

REPORT NO. 1 of the PARAPHYSICAL LABORATORY, Downton, Wilshire, (England), 1965. 12 Pages, 2/6d. (35c not including postage.)

The Paraphysical Laboratory is the privately-financed venture of a small group of psychic researchers interested in psychokinetic phenomena.
This very brief first report contains two articles. The lesser, by Manfred Cassirer, is an overly-brief comparison of physical phenomena of medi-umship with poltergeists and spontaneous psychokinesis or "PK". The more significant is a report by Benson Herbert on a series of PK experiments with Anne Slowgrove using rather novel techniques. The most successful of these employ a random-flicker device, a bulb which flashes on and off at irregular intervals. Miss Slowgrove attempted, with some measure of success, to influence the bulb to flicker at rates slower or faster than average.

This reviewer hopes that Herbert will next report on the intriguing series of experiments he has been conducting on table-tilting. Even more, let us hope that publication of this report will stimulate other researchers to perform similar experiments and announce their results. — David Techter.

Report from the Readers

AUTOMATIC WRITING

I am not familiar with psychic phenomena but occasionally I have an experience I do not understand. First I should say I was born in Austria and my English is not too good. Many times when I am writing a letter, the moment I stop to rest my hand, I start writing "signs" without knowing what they are. Could this possibly be some kind of language? I have asked people if they think it is shorthand, but everybody says no.

Last night after I had gone to bed something like an inner force made me get up, take a pencil and write:

Handwritten symbols and characters, possibly representing a message or code.

It came fluently and at the end of the fifth line the "force" made me stop.

As I wondered about this before falling asleep, I wished that I might dream of the country to which those signs belong. And oddly enough I dreamed of China. But my husband says what I wrote is not the Chinese language and never in my life have I known a Chinese.

I am hoping that FATE readers may help me find out what this means. — Erna Lang, South Chicago Heights, Ill.

BLACKOUT'S FIREBALL

As an active NICAP member who was involved in obtaining reports, talking with and writing to witnesses of the fireball observed during last November's blackout in the northeast, I would like to stress that few of the many witnesses had any idea of what the thing could have been.

Various "explanations" have been offered by several "experts" but at this time evidence is far from conclusive. The answers presented since the incident range from explosions in dumps to cloud reflections to UFOs. (A select few persons have retained enough perspective to realize that UFOs and UFO reports present a good case for interplanetary space travel.)

As it stands now, the three theories, plus many others that have been advanced, can be neither proven nor disproven — at least until more evidence or information on the sighting develops. Wild speculation is certainly no substitute for investigation. — Robert Barrow, Syracuse, N.Y.

ANY VOLUNTEERS?

A prominent figure in the field of New Thought casually remarked in a lecture that he didn't know what would happen to his extensive library of metaphysical and esoteric books when he passed on. None of his personal relations would care about having them.

Many of us are in his position. We have acquired collections of such books that on our demise will go either to book dealers or the trash heap. Many valuable works have been lost this way.

I am proposing the creation of a library for such books, a library to be available for serious students either in person or by mail, a safe repository for books that might otherwise be lost. The library I propose would have to be comprehensive, excluding no group, teaching or subject in the metaphysical and parapsychological field. Here are a few examples of what should be included: Unity, Theosophy, Atlantis, Mu, Spiritualism, magic, witchcraft, New Thought, exorcism, mythology, Rosicrucianism, flying saucers, etc.

The implementation of this idea first of all involves considerable money for a building, equipment, and the necessary personnel to man such an operation. I repeat, all of this takes MONEY!

I am hoping that this idea will find favor with someone or some organization who will be able to bring it into material manifestation. I send it forth for people to think about. — Winifred Bartlett, New York, N.Y.

OUR CONDOLENCES

I see by a letter in your June issue that you do not know that the great Rev. William Cartheuser has passed from the physical side of life. He died on February 25, 1966, and is buried at Forest Lawn in Hollywood Hills. He had many friends in the Hollywood area and the sittings that I and many of my friends had with him were the most remarkable I ever have experienced. — Christina B. Kalust, North Hollywood, Calif.

QUASAR QUANDARY

Mr. Otto F. Domdey's answer to the quasar quandary (FATE, June, 1966) is intriguing indeed. He just may be correct. His letter brought to mind the words of a friend of mine, spoken a couple of years ago:

"The entire space flight program is engaged in assailing the mechanics of fixed distance. I look at this in an entirely different way. All space flight is a form of travel. Any practical travel is a trip. All trips are an exact mathematical function: $Distance$ (trip) times $Times$ times $Speed$ or $t = d/s$. Beyond the immediate surroundings of our own solar system, d quickly approaches infinity; s doesn't approach infinity but must surpass 25,000 mph in order to overcome escape velocity. Thus the most cursory examination of the simple Autobiography of one of the world's most remarkable water and oil diviners, as well as a diviner of gold and precious stones. Her talents are unique, for although she can, and does, dowse in the normal manner with a twig, her favorite manner is a pendulum and map—an ordinary ordnance survey map—with which she has found oil and water hundreds, and even thousands, of miles away from a given piece of ground. Hence, while in Perth, Australia, she has, by this means, surveyed territory in Texas for oil companies not once but scores of times. Her work has taken her all over the world. It tells the story of how she was almost burnt as a witch at the stake by Red Indians, and of a curse that was put on her with very nearly fatal results. Evelyn Penrose is a remarkable woman. math of the problem shows that future space travel depends on bringing the t term to zero in the equation: $t = dts$. Ridiculous though it may seem, you can predict with mathematical certainty that practical future space travel will consist of the equivalent of instantaneous trips."

His words may seem a little "wild" or "sixth-dimensional" but relativity outside our environment may vary greatly from what we know. Conditions no doubt exist that we are not aware of. NATURAL PHENOMENA OR HOAXES?

Sir Bernard Lovell says, "The UFOs are natural phenomena or hoaxes. The people who see them must be tremendous emotionalists. . . ." and ". . . Besides, does it ever occur to them that we have sent up a lot of things and that some of them—such as nose cones and rockets—might be coming back? Could anyone be seeing those?" He also mentioned that UFOs are "incredible nonsense".

His statement is very sage, very sage indeed. He gives himself lots of leeway. The term "natural phenomena or hoaxes" covers quite a bit of territory. Would he be more specific? Under natural phenomena we might list meteors, raindrops, snowflakes, lightning, earthquakes, whirlwinds, etc. Does it take great emotionalism to think of them or to see them? Yet many persons probably have not seen all of them. Instead of emotional, those who do see them are observant. Those who do not might Sir Bernard evidently has forgotten about the UFOs that were seen before any hardware was tossed aloft.

Some of us would like to know more about the 600 or so unexplained sightings. (The Air Force has been quite explicit in many cases and they intimate that they could explain the 600 if they only knew what they are!)

It seems funny to me that when a saucer is reported the witness is reported as slightly off his onion, but when a hoaxer says he has been hoaxing, his story is accepted without question.

Professor Hynek says one of the Michigan sightings was "swamp gas". Would it be bad taste to request the professor to release some "swamp gas" in that swamp and make it perform in like manner? — C. J. Fortner, Long Beach, Calif.

I never quite believed the stories about UFOs but I believe them now!

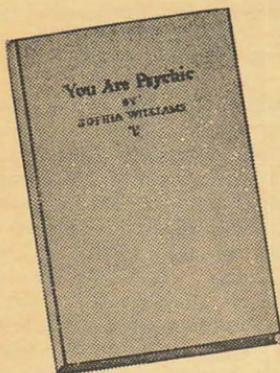

On April 26, 1966, a balmy evening, three of my neighbors and I sat on the steps talking when suddenly one of the women pointed upward and screamed, "Look! Look!"

We all looked skyward — to see a green cone-shaped flying object with fire coming from its tail. The object left a path of smoke like a jet trail or skywriting. We watched it until it was out of sight but the trail of smoke remained for quite a long time.

One of the women, extremely excitable, wailed, "Oh, it's the end of the world!" But we all managed to calm down and someone suggested we call the newspapers. I did — and the switchboard operator asked me if the call was about "something in the sky". They were swamped with calls!

The radio, TV and newspapers called the object a meteor, but I doubted this. The next day I called the Fels Planetarium and the man I reached also insisted that it was a meteor. I asked him if a meteor was green and he said, "No." I asked him if a meteor left a trail of smoke and again he answered, "No." I asked him if this were the case, how could he say the object was a meteor? He replied, "Lady, we don't know what it was." — L. C., Philadelphia, Pa.

SITUATION NORMAL: ALL FOWLED UP

I always thought that my newspaper, the Tombstone Epitaph was well enough known the country over.

You'll be interested in learning that my mail has greatly increased since the March, 1966, issue of FATE carried an item titled "Bird Call" on page 131.

I am afraid that Mr. Cranmer is pulling your leg when he tells of the famed thunderbird. You may be certain that he's doing so as to any connection between such a fowl and the Epitaph.

Although I have not edited this publication that long, I've gone back through our files for the past 65 years and find no mention of this bird or the picture or the actions to publicize it that (Mr. Cranmer) attributes to me.

Please take the heat off my typewriter and tell your readers that I have no pictures available of this critter!

Indeed, I too would like to see a photo of this fowl but I believe that "foul" is more the nature of the yarn. — Wayne Winters, Editor, Tombstone Epitaph, Tombstone, Ariz.

I VISITED A FILIPINO HEALER

My trip to the Orient and the Philippines where I visited the famous healer, Mr. Terte, was a great success.

His young daughter was my constant companion and interpreter during my stay in Baguio. She guided me through all the tourist spots as well as the poor sections.

I filmed in color Mr. Terte's healings and on November 14, 1965, in the Roosevelt Hotel, the largest in Pittsburgh, I lectured and showed the films to 300 people. I discussed the manner in which he removed my own gallstones. He took them out in a matter of a minute right through my skin! He gave them to me to handle and we put them in a small jar of alcohol which I brought back.

Besides working in his home Mr. Terte goes to four different places each week for two hours and heals in "mass production" style. Patients wait for him in a group and it all seems very quick and primitive. He asks them to lie down, says a quick prayer, then moves among them—in seconds pulling out a tumor or a kidney stone or a piece of an affected organ. Whatever he removes goes into its own alcohol jar and remains available for inquisitive researchers or anyone who may be interested.

The people among whom he works live in almost unbelievable circumstances: terribly unkempt slums and the most degrading poverty. Mr. Terte is aware of this and he stays to heal them, advise them and befriend them. He charges nothing, for they are his people and he loves them.

I offered him a sponsorship to come with me to lecture in the U.S. and teach us how to do it but in his broken English he said he could not.

He had previously written me: "Mrs. Hood, you come here and I will show you how, teach you, and you go to your people and help them, as I do here."

I'm afraid I'll never be as good as he is, but I pray that gradually God will honor my honest desire to help others in this way.—Marie Hood, Pittsburgh, Pa.

A CONNECTING LINK

In a letter headed "Two-World Telephone" in your April, 1966, issue, Alfred Gebauer of Jamaica, N.Y., suggests the importance of developing a mechanical (electronic) instrument for two-way communication between this world and the next.

The possibilities of such a device have been under discussion among psychic researchers for over 50 years. I personally have been associated with two projects of this kind supervised by exceptionally qualified engineers. Neither produced any promising results. However, I am convinced such a device is not only possible but surely will be developed sooner or later. In my opinion our failure up to now stems entirely from our inability to develop the sophisticated circuitry and sensitive hardware necessary to make such an instrument workable.

The March, 1966, issue of FATE carried my article, "Spirits Speak for the Record", in which I reported some results of a remarkable "direct voice" seance which was professionally recorded. That article was concerned primarily with the test conditions set up by the recording engineers. However, one of the spirit communicators, an engineer, gave a detailed description of just such a device that interests Alfred Gebauer.

The records of this seance were turned over to the American Society of Psychic Research more than 30 years ago, but one point remains clear in my memory.

The microphone and speaker system with their interlocking amplifiers and circuitry were even then familiar to our earthly engineers and are in common use today. Certain refinements in these instruments and today's metals of course were unfamiliar at that time but now are in general use.

Most important, however, in the explanation of the spirit engineer was the final stage of the two-way sound transmission circuit. It was a very fine beam of light.

At this point our engineers lost their bearings and could not follow the description. They dismissed the whole idea as too esoteric and fanciful for serious interest. To them the idea of using a beam of light to transmit sound came right out of science fiction. Today we know better. Laser beams already are in use for the transmission of sound.

The spirit communicator further said that the device itself would be about the size of a standard table radio. It would have a round copper plate recessed in the top. The human hand placed on the copper plate would provide the power to activate the device during the period of communication.

I know there is no technical help in this but there may be a clue. Often it takes no more than that to set off the mind of an experimenter in the right direction.—J. Gay Stevens, Hollywood, Calif.

FORTIFIED FORTEANA

I was somewhat dismayed by David Techter's favorable review of John Macklin's book Strange Destinies, in the March issue of FATE. Mr. Macklin does not hesitate to juggle dates and places in order, one assumes, to make a more readable tale. As examples of this juggling, consider the following:

(1) He has switched the site of the classic "Devil's Hoofprints" phenomenon from its actual location in Devonshire, England, to Scheveningen, Holland. The date was February 7, 1855, rather than Mr. Macklin's date of January 9, 1913.

(2) Although the famous story of the two green children of "St. Martin's Land" actually occurred in 13th Century England, Mr. Macklin would have us believe it occurred in August, 1887, near the village of Banjos, Spain.

(3) There is now considerable doubt that the disappearance of Oliver Lerch on December 24, 1890, actually occurred. Local newspapers of the South Bend, Ind., area contain no records of any such event. Nevertheless, Mr. Macklin's changing the name to Oliver Thomas, the date to December 24, 1909, and the location to Wales, is not warranted.

Perhaps your reviewer's interests range more into the field of psychic phenomena rather than "Fortean".

— Lucius Farish, Plumerville, Ark.

MORE LEAD SHREDS

I am writing to verify the fact that shredded lead strips have been found elsewhere besides Lapeer, Michigan, as mentioned in the article, "Something Landed in Pennsylvania" in the March, 1966, issue of FATE.

About three years ago I found three wads or piles of shredded lead in my front yard similar to those mentioned in Mr. Sanderson's article. Thinking this might be the "tinsel" used by airplane pilots to jumble radar reception, I had my hired man bury it in the woods. Now, regretfully, I think of the oft-quoted remark, "What fools we mortals be!" — H. J. T. Mead, Dixie, Va.

PRECOGNITION?

While this incident will remain vivid in my memory for a long time to come, I am writing you today (February 1, 1966) within hours of the occurrence of this puzzling experience.

I was on the way to my hairdresser's at noon today and while crossing with the green light at Fifth and Arizona in Santa Monica, an unexpected thought came to me: on this same busy intersection a car accident had taken place one year ago, killing one woman.

Five minutes later I heard a screech of brakes and turned around quickly, as did many other people, to see an elderly woman knocked to the ground while another was being dragged along under a car driven by another elderly woman. What we saw was horrifying enough that I cannot go into greater detail about the scene. The driver of the car had run a red light while the two pedestrians were crossing on the green. (According to the newspaper account, the driver of the car told police she was intending to stop at a "drive-in" mailbox when her foot slipped from the brake to the accelerator.)

I am puzzled as to whether my thought just prior to the accident is what is termed precognition. Who can answer this? I have had occasions in the past of recalling to mind some friend or acquaintance whom I had not seen in many months, only to meet this person on the street soon afterward or receive a telephone call from him. — Lillian J. Cramer, Santa Monica, Calif.

WHAT HAS FATE IN STORE FOR YOU?

... A chance to explore the unknown ... truths you find nowhere else ... articles and stories to fire your imagination—that's what FATE has in store for you. Here is Editor Mary Fuller's report on stories planned for future issues:

∞ Silent lips not only speak—but for a beautiful Latin movie star their prints speak more than words. James Crenshaw tells how she can see your future in your lip prints.

∞ Hulda Stevens tells of a gestalt—a pattern of paranormal phenomena recurring in certain families—that has given a 24-hour warning of death on five known occasions, four of which she witnessed.

∞ Gordon Evans discusses the question of whether the UFO's have given us conclusive proof that they possess and use a paralysis ray. Is it the same beam of light that stops automobile motors?

∞ Harmon Bro. Ph.D., has written for FATE details of eight months he spent observing the amazing clairvoyant, precognitive counseling done by the great psychic, Edgar Cayce.

MARY MARGARET FULLER

Each month FATE publishes more than 40,000 words of true articles on the strange, the unusual, the unknown. You can read such stories only in FATE because FATE is the only magazine of its kind in the world!
