Abominable Snowmen: Legend Come to Life

by IVAN T. SANDERSON
F.L.S., F.R.G.S., F.Z.S.

*The Story of Sub-Humans on Five Continents from the Early Ice Age
Until Today*

Illustrated $7.50

Do "Abominable Snowmen" exist? Prepare yourself for a shock. In the opinion of one of the world's leading naturalists, not one, but possibly four kinds, still walk the earth! Do they really live on the fringes of the towering Himalayas and the edge of myth-haunted Tibet? They do, but we are far more likely to catch one in the United States! Northern California and its almost impenetrable Klamath Forests may hide the astonishing answer. From how many areas in the world have factual reports of wild, strange, hairy men emanated? Every continent, except Australia and the Antarctic!

Now at last, Ivan Sanderson, who has been accumulating material for 30 years on this subject, explains in language as plain and clear as a news flash just why no "Snowman" has ever been captured and kept for a zoo or a museum (one was caught during the last century, in Canada).

Has Sir Edmund Hillary said the last word, when he recently denied the existence of the creature he formerly strongly believed in? The whole story of his latest trip to the Himalayas is given to the public within this book.

What has Established Science had to say on the status of the "Snowman"? Why have the scientists played down the story? Why is the press so confused? The author explains the confusion of both, some of it deliberate.

Learn, for what may be the first time, the true story of the continents, and above all, the vegetation which covers them. Learn why many areas thought to be well known are less known today than a hundred years ago. Learn why maps are so deceptive, and frequently entirely useless. Learn what the American Indian knows about this problem and why, until very recently, he "wouldn't talk."

This is a book for those who want to discover the truth. The author, uniquely fitted by both intensive scientific training and his superb writing ability, tells this astonishing story and breaks down the barriers of Time and Space, showing in a bright light both how and why Mother Earth still clings to her ancient mysteries, and that the Age of Discovery has never really ended.

IVAN TERENCE SANDERSON, the author of Abominable Snowmen, is a world-famous zoologist and writer. Animal Treasure, Follow the Whale, and Animal Tales form only a part of his repertoire. He has also published exhaustively in scientific journals, under the auspices of the British Museum, the Chicago Museum of Natural History (formerly the Field Museum) and others. He holds degrees with honors from Cambridge University, England, in botany, zoology, and geology, and he has also read in (formally studied) anatomy and physical anthropology at the same institution.

Starting in the 1920's, Mr. Sanderson has led scientific collecting trips to such remote places as Nigeria, Guatemala, Malaya, and Dutch Guiana, all supported and backed by scientific institutions, such as the Percy Sladen Foundation of the British Museum. He has had his own TV show. The author and his wife (who collaborates on research and writing) currently divide their time between a farm in New Jersey and a New York apartment.

Priest says 'snowmen' are saints

FRANKFURT, Friday.—A Roman Catholic missionary, Father Franz Eichinger, home after 13 years in Tibet, said here today that the "abominable snowmen" are really religious recluses living high in the Himalayas.

They are like Christian saints and devote their lives to prayer and healing the sick.

Reports that they are cannibals are absurd, said the priest.

The so-called "giant footprints" which explorers say they have photographed are the tracks of these saints.

"They walk in the snow bare-footed," added the missionary. "The snow melts around the footprint, making it larger, and people believe they are seeing the tracks of giants."

The recluses wear no clothing in sub-zero temperatures except when they visit villages. Then they wear a thin cloth around the waist.

Father Eichinger said he saw a "snowman" recluse cure a child. He has photographs of others.

"The men have no more hair than normal beings," the missionary went on. "The one I met spoke the native dialect and a little Chinese."

These holy recluses are capable of fasting and not moving for days. They live on plants and do not feel the cold.

Without the blessing of the saints Himalayan peasants believe crops will not grow.

Is Planet Venus Occupied

Manned flights to the planets Mars and Venus are more likely to be in the best interests of the public than a manned flight to the Moon.

This rather startling opinion was made by a top scientist, Dr. Rodney W. Johnson of the General Electric Missile and Space Division.

His exact comment was that he thought conditions on Mars are probably better suited to supporting life than the conditions on the moon.

These views along with others were expressed by many great scientists from all aero-space fields. The views came out at the ninth annual meeting of the American Astronautical Society this year in Los Angeles.

A real smartie, R. W. Gillespie of the Lockheed Missiles and Space Co., Palo Alto, said that the prospects of landing on Mars or Venus are more promising, that is more profitable, than a landing on the old Moon.

Gillespie told his listeners that the present Moon program would have to be reoriented to start the

Some Guys Think so, much more important Venus program.

He said that the best time to go to Mars would be in 1971. Then Mars will be in a position to go to the necessary vicinity of Earth's orbit.

It is a fact, according to the scientists, that the surface temperature on the planet Mars goes up to 60 or 70 degrees Fahrenheit at noon, and down to 40 to 50 degrees below zero at night.

An exploration party to Mars would be made up of 4 to 12 men. Once they reached the planet, they would employ their time making studies of the atmosphere, soil, etc.

crafts in the future will have to be young, said one of the speakers at a history making meeting in Los Angeles. And they will have to plan to live their entire lives on Mars.

One of the scientists speculated that the reason a space traveler would have to remain on

Or Like Hope So?

The latest satellite to go up, the Mariner, went to Venus and observed that planet at close range. Its statistics reported that the temperature on the surface of Venus, which, unlike Mars, has a heavy atmosphere, is about 800 degrees Fahrenheit. Way out and too, too hot!

The guys who will man these the planet Mars is that it's gravitational pull is less than Earth's. So, when he returns to Earth, the attraction might grow to be oppressive he said, referring to the Earth's great force and pull.

The "egg heads" have a master plan going for them, too. They figure they can reach the Moon very soon. But their plans go further than that.

They will first build space stations in orbits around the earth. Following up, these stations would serve as gas stations for the rockets to the planets, providing them with fuel and service.

It all adds up to some really big ideas. This means that in the near future we will witness the colonization of the universe that is also near to us.

The ancients believed that Venus (the perfect woman) would give a man anything he desired. Some moderns believe that the planet Venus is populated by women completely, broads built in the styling of the ancient Venus.

Are they a reality? It won't be long, fellas, to find out.

"I've been offered a lot of money for my three-eyed bull," said Oswald Foriolo (shown here). "But I wouldn't part with him for anything."

"That bull makes me sort of a celebrity around here. Besides, he's a darned good pet."

"I love that danged bull. He's much smarter than ordinary bulls. And not nearly so ornery."

Foriolo's bull was born on his ranch in La Jolla, Calif., about five years ago. At first, all the ranch hands wanted to kill the little monster to put him out of his misery.

But Foriolo decided against it.

"He wasn't in any misery," Foriolo recalled. "He just happened to have an extra eye."

"I'd think that would make him happier than the other livestock. He can see what's going on from any angle."

"I've tried some experiments, and he really can see out of that third eye."

"He's quite a ladies man too. All the cows seem to prefer him to plain old two-eyed bulls."

Foriolo likes to exhibit his freak bull at agricultural shows in the area. The big, 1,500 pound creature is usually the hit of the show.

"Even though he's mild-mannered, the other bulls usually stay clear of him," said Foriolo.

"He'd be a tough fellow in a fight."

"That's because he not only has three eyes — but he has four horns too."

Noted Jesuit Astronomer Doubts Other Planets Can Support Life

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(RNS)—A Jesuit astronomer who reportedly knows more about conditions on the other planets than any man in history has a discouraging word—he doesn't think there is life on those planets.

This was the observation of Father Francis J. Heyden, S.J., as the Washington Academy of Science announced it will bestow its 1963 annual award on him for scientific achievement in the teaching of science.

Father Heyden, who has been observing the planets for more than 30 years at the Georgetown University observatory here, teaches his students about the mysteries of the universe in a challenging way.

His most notable contribution to research has been photography of the planet through high dispersion spectroscopy. This breaks up the light they emit into a broad spectrum which can be studied for clues as to the elements in their atmosphere and on their surface and for provoking temperatures.

UNSUITABLE

Father Heyden said conditions on Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter, and Saturn are quite unsuitable to life in the higher forms in which it is known on earth. Uranus, Neptune, and Pluto, too distant to measure through this type of photography, are also obviously too cold, he said.

The planets, according to the priest's research, lack water vapor in amounts necessary to sustain earth-like life and also contain deadly amounts of nitric oxide. He expects astronauts to find them "most inhospitable."

NOT LOGICAL

Father Heyden believes that life follows the same biological rules elsewhere in the universe that it does on earth. He does not think it logical to expect space explorers to find some extraordinary new form of life, based on ammonia molecules, for example, or breathing nitric acid instead of oxygen.

Father Heyden likes to challenge his Georgetown students by starting a lecture on Venus with this story. Once upon a time Venus had intelligent beings who developed automobiles. They love to drive so well, they drove themselves to death, he relates, by creating a vast smog cloud of nitric oxide, which is the principal irritant in Washington's summer smogs.

By using such techniques Father Heyden makes astronomy one of the most popular courses at Georgetown and has produced some outstanding graduates in the field. The Academy of Sciences award is the latest of many scientific honors bestowed on the genial priest and scholar for his contributions to the furthering man's knowledge.

FOR RELEASE: Wednesday, July 10, 1963 at 11 a.m., EDT

WASHINGTON, D.C., July 10 --- An actual "fly-model" of the TELSTAR communications satellite was presented today to the Smithsonian Institution by the Bell Telephone System.

The satellite given to the Smithsonian is an exact duplicate and was the standby for TELSTAR I, which was launched one year ago today. Developed by Bell Telephone Laboratories and launched by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, TELSTAR I proved that man can use satellites to transmit television, telephone calls, telegraph messages and data signals between continents. Within 15 hours after its successful launching, TELSTAR I relayed signals across the Atlantic Ocean and sent live television from this continent to Europe. A few hours later, it brought sound and pictures from England and France.

During its six months of successful operation, TELSTAR I carried out all the experiments originally planned. More than 300 technical tests covered every aspect of transmission and over 400 public demonstrations proved its capabilities. These demonstrations included multichannel telephony, telegraphy, data, telephoto and other facsimile transmissions. Transatlantic television was demonstrated 50 times and on five of the occasions the transmission was in color.

Although it is no longer operating, the TELSTAR I satellite is expected to remain in orbit for many years. When radiation silenced TELSTAR I, there remained a need for additional knowledge about satellite communications. For this reason, a second TELSTAR was launched this year on May 7. An important objective of TELSTAR II is to learn more about radiation in space and how to extend a satellite's life by avoiding or overcoming radiation damage. After two months in orbit, TELSTAR II is in excellent condition and is performing its communications tests and other experiments perfectly, AT&T said.

Paul A. Gorman, executive vice president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, made the presentation for the Bell System. The satellite was accepted by Dr. Leonard Carmicheal, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution. Dr. Carmichael announced that TELSTAR would be exhibited in the main rotunda of the Arts and Industries Building during July. Later, it will be installed permanently in the Hall of Electricity in the Museum of History and Technology when that building is completed.

The Sylphs and the Bird-Men

M. H.

PARALDA, the ruler of the Sylphs who dwell on the highest mountain of the Earth, had just received an order from the Masters of Wisdom that the Earth children were about to be given a few more warnings in the form of earthquakes, and perhaps tidal waves. He had notified the Undines through their ruler, King Necksa, who in turn whispered the message through the West Wind, wherein resides their special power, that they, too, should stand in readiness in case rains were needed.

To his army of Sylphs, Paralda carefully pointed out a certain western city built by man, over which these Air Spirits should direct their energies for the next few days. These inhabitants of the third ether (called the Light Ether) were known as the riders of the night, the wind-born, and the storm angels.

As they dashed through space to the place designated by their leader, they swerved a little out of their course to call mischievously to the Undines, who were mobilizing in case they also should be summoned.

These capricious, daring, and eccentric Air Spirits loved excitement and change, and especially did they love this new assignment of work because it brought them in close touch with the thought of living Earth creatures.

For centuries man had ignored all but the most obvious manifestations of laws, natural and spiritual, in his vain search for gold, fame, and power. It was only because a few great souls had learned and applied the Law of Causation, had joined hands to strengthen the power for good, and prayerfully worked for the thoughtless ones, thus preventing the powers of darkness from obtaining complete victory, that a world cataclysm had been avoided. (A "cataclysm" is a terrible happening during which homes are destroyed and people killed, as you may have learned.)

Merrily the Sylphs dashed to a point above this western city. They had been told to prepare the sky to hide the Sun; this could be easily done as the Moon was just entering the watery sign Cancer. As they scampered hither and thither, arranging the clouds, darkening the sky, one jolly little Air Spirit, looking over the edge of a big black cloud, called to the others: "Hey, there! Stop a minute and come see what this means!"

As they followed her gaze they saw

Spacemen

May Avoid

Earthmen

Because

Something

Lives

Up There!

THE special report prepared for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration by the Brookings Institution expressed the belief that visitors from space might avoid contact with earthmen.

In a five-page section dealing with the possibility of spacemen visiting the earth, the report states that the consequences of such a discovery are unpredictable but could be profound, and suggests the need for further study of the problem.

"It is possible," the NASA report says, "that if the intelligence of these creatures were sufficiently superior to ours they would choose to have little if any contact with us. On the face of it, there is no reason to believe that we might learn a great deal from them, especially if their physiology and psychology were substantially different from ours."

Space Men May Avoid Earthmen Because Something Lives Up There! 73

NEW, physical evidence of outer-space life has been announced by three American scientists, after a laboratory analysis of a meteorite which fell in France nearly a century ago.

"Wherever this meteorite originated, something lived," agreed the three scientists—Drs. Bartholomew Nagy and Douglas J. Hennessy of Fordham University and Dr. Warren G. Meinschein of Esso Research Laboratories Linden, N.J.

The fragments analyzed in the chemical tests came from a meteorite which fell near Orgueil, France, on May 14, 1864. It was provided for the scientists' tests by the American Museum of Natural History. One hydrocarbon analyzed was found to contain a chemical compound related to a sex hormone and another contained a chemical "cousin" of cholesterol, a familiar earth substance believed to cause blocked arteries and some heart attacks. Such materials, the three scientists stated, may well have been remnants of living beings on another planet.

Independent scientific studies, as well as official plans to detect extraterrestrial life, are rapidly increasing as we prepare to journey into space. Scientists' speculation varies from belief in intelligent life similar to our own to denials of this possibility.

In a recent symposium on "Life in Other Worlds," a former White House science advisor, Dr. George B. Kistiakowsky of Harvard, said it is unlikely any space life is like ours in external shape.

"It would be still less probable to find intelligent beings about equal to ourselves if we just at random visit one or two planets," he added. He stated the chance of finding such an evolution in nearby space was very small, but could be expected elsewhere. "If we were to visit all the millions of planets similar to our own," he said, "it's most probable that we would find all stages of evolution here and there, including that of beings endowed with intelligent processes at least as good as ours."

THIS OUTWORN FORM

By DANA HOWARD

There is one big question on the lips of every thinker today. The world over people are asking: "Where do we go from here?" To quote from the jacket of my latest book—OVER THE THRESHOLD: "Many earthlings have come to realize that our planet is entering a new phase—we must be prepared to go along with it."

Since the turn of the century, and before, every seeker after higher truths has felt the stirrings of the New Age. Each decade has brought us greater travail and a new trail of woes. We know that the incoming cycle means a fresh start. But it is one thing to know it—quite another to act. To do so we must uncover some of the major secrets of the Universe.

The time of miracles is here. We can put the new code into practice just about any time we choose. There can be no trial and error methods this time. The pattern of the new dimension must be drawn from the castles of the mind. There must be new depth, breath and thickness to all things earthly. We must develop extra-human extension cords so that we can re-direct the momentum, and bring our mundane troubles to an end.

Here we run into a brick wall. It is difficult to plan, almost impossible to act where there is an overpowering resistance to change. People in the mass do not want to be jolted out of their complacencies. They resent new orientation. They want to cling to their doubts and despairs. They are struggling desperately to hold fast to their little prisons they have made for themselves. As a result, world troubles are sinking deeper and deeper into the mire. They are no longer surface troubles. The usual panaceas will no longer cure our ills. Ambitions are on the wane. Lethargies are bordering on a world sleeping sickness. Day by day we live with the spectre of destruction in our midst. We are losing our security. We have lost our anchorage. This means if we are to survive we must find a way to rejuvenate our sterile earth. We must be overshadowed by something truly magnificent and enduring.

Where are we going to find it?

Perhaps across the borderline of Earth. Few are endowed with the mental equipment necessary to chart and explore new realms. To the few the work of the future must be delegated. While we still reject "flying saucers" as a madman's flight of fancy, wittingly or unwittingly this mad era has opened up a new field of Universalism. Every intelligent individual knows he cannot wholly discount the preponderance of objective evidence. There have been too many sightings for that. They know too, there must be a satisfying answer somewhere. If it is not to be found in the objective realms, then it must be found in the subjective. It means consciousness must be freed of trivial things so that it might assume the larger, universalized service. It means we must be willing to follow those who are sensitive to potentials larger than our present scope. We will then be able to select from life, that which is interesting and pleasant, rather than choosing the bitter, then crying out for the sweet.

First we must let go of our fixations. That we have dubbed fantasy and illusion might turn out to be the genuine reality. It took many long years for the first inhabitants of the eastern coast to muster up courage to go west. In their minds they were totally unable to envision what the other side of the continent might be like. Centuries before that, Christopher Columbus set out upon the stormy seas new worlds to conquer. Out of his courage and intrepidity came the discovery of America.

Every explorer has known the same vicissitudes. Every explorer has been equipped with extra-sensory extension cords. The world doubted. It jeered. It slandered. But something within each of them whispered they would eventually find what they were searching for. They have all been men filled with new-born enthusiasms. Men who were pioneers at heart—adventurers who were ready and willing to risk their lives. It was all in the game of life's mysteries.

Today we have a new type of explorer. The whole world is space-minded. We have conquered virtually every material stronghold—now we are out to embrace the unknown in space. Before we can accomplish this feat in reality—it is necessary to build a solid wall of constructive consciousness. The subjective must precede the objective. Just as there were big rewards awaiting our early pioneers—similar rewards are in store for those who are willing to traverse the great wide universe.

Whether we believe it or not, the coming of strange spacecraft was no mere happenstance. Whether or not, space people have made direct physical contact with any earthling is still a mute question. Not that all have falsified. It is doubtful if earthlings would be able to discern the "invisible in visible form" from the true fleshly being. There is a definite tie between all life—likewise with extra-human extension cords we can reach all orders.

But people are tired of alibis. They are asking: "When are we going to drink from this well of enchantment? When are we going to produce this change? In June of 1939 the writer was hurled into a holocaust of living flame, a purification measure preparatory to a teleportive flight to the Planet Venus. I left my earth body at 11:00 o'clock one morning, returning to it at 4:00 o'clock the following afternoon. In the interim I had travelled through oceans of space, arriving at length at my destination. Here I learned much of the Venusian way of life—observed their cultures, their arts and their sciences. I was told this was to be our earth's inheritance when we had learned our lessons of life.

At that time I was led aboard the spaceship by a beautiful woman-being who called herself DIANE. On April 29, 1955, Diane re-appeared teleportively in a Los Angeles church, where she was greeted by twenty-seven amazed persons. After that event, for a time she came regularly, bringing with her profound discourses designed to help us usher in the New Age. These accounts are fully told in my two previous books—MY FLIGHT TO VENUS and DIANE (She Came from Venus).

We know that the virility of life is in its new seeds. We are aware also that things will remain as they are unless we ourselves make some effort to produce a change. All are seeking something tangible to help us gain the larger understanding. Some method that will help us embrace the higher goals. When we find this common bond we will have bridged the gap of centuries. Just as we balance our books at regular intervals—today we must balance the Book of Life. Many will be privileged to stand by and watch the pageantry of the ages pass by. We will see the transfer from a material to a spiritual era. Then we shall know the meaning of the Bible quotation: "Behold all things shall become new."

New knowledge is now being released to be picked up by sensitives everywhere. This new knowledge can help us clean off the canvas of life. It can help us climb to levels previously unknown. We have been taught that tangible matter is locked up in pattern. That direct creation will be our heritage when we gain the realization that objectivity is the fleshly manifestation of subjectivity. To quote again from OVER THE THRESHOLD:

"To be able to command life from direct pattern means concreting the abstract. In the past, earthman has been too sated with selfishness to realize there is an abundance for all. That when he tunes in on source, that which he earnestly desires can be quickly produced."

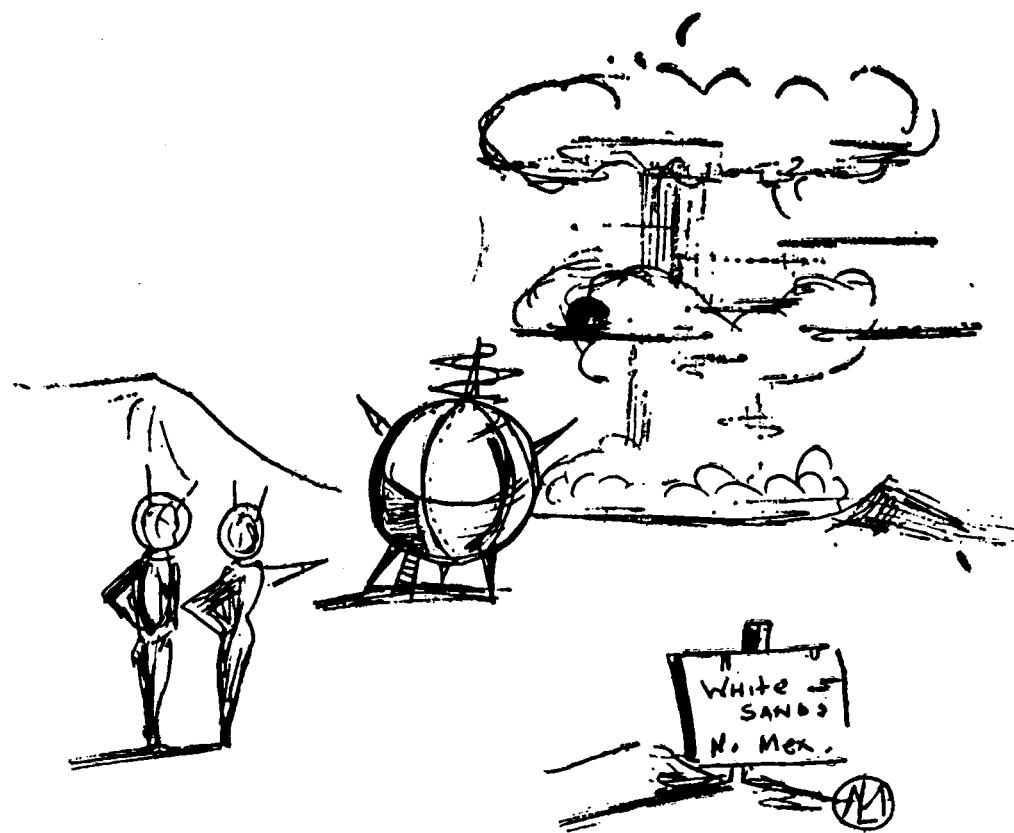

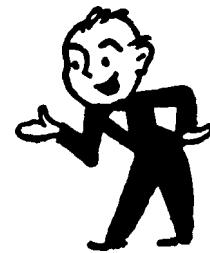

The writer is certain Diane is not a mythical phantom, but a powerful space force entrusted to bringing a profound message to the Planet Earth. She suggests the use of thought, not as an abstract something, producing a hit-and-miss-result. In her discourses she has given techniques showing ways and means of tapping and utilizing divine essence, the true foundation creativity for the making of things of earth. We know that objective forms can be built from the lower ectoplasms. It has been evidenced too many times in so-called "spirit return." It is therefore reasonable to assume that any object of desire can be thusly created from the higher plasmas, for they are far more maleable and tenable than the heavier, denser substances.

Groups are being formed all over the United States to practice these techniques. Already amazing results have been reported. This might be the one sure way we can exchange our outworn form for a new one.

U.S. Plans to Launch Rocket Probe to Investigate...

Huge Space Platform Circling Mars

By DAVID LEVER

U.S. Government scientists are working on a fantastic round-the-clock investigation as you read this — trying to confirm that a huge space platform with living creatures aboard is orbiting the planet Mars.

Consensus of opinion among scientists is that Phobos, one of the moons of the mysterious Red Planet, Mars, probably is a huge space platform, approximately 5 miles in diameter.

The confirmation of their theories would shake our world, because the space platform would not have been made by man — but by living creatures from Mars or some other planet.

A crazy theory? — No, say such world authorities as physicist Dr. Fred Hoyle, astronomer S. Fred Singer, and the Russian planetary physicist, I.S. Shklovsky.

In the next 18 months the United States Government is going to spend over $55 million to find out if the satellite circling Mars is an artificially created space platform.

"Space probes are now being prepared to determine if Phobos is a huge orbiting space base," said Raymond E. Wilson, Chief of Applied Mathematics for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Last January 23, when Wilson first made this startling statement, The ENQUIRER began an investigation behind the doors of official secrecy to bring the facts about this space project to our readers.

We discovered that the next Mariner space rocket, scheduled for launching late this fall or early next spring, will be aimed to pass close to Mars and will contain special equipment capable of analyzing the light reflected from Phobos.

Scientists say that if the moon reflects light the way aluminum does, it will prove Phobos is a space platform, not a natural moon.

Even if this Mariner probe misses its target — and three in a row have missed it so far — the following rocket will try again, this time with additional instruments designed to detect the existence of life on the planet or its moons.

Why do the scientists believe that Phobos might be an artificial space platform and not a natural moon?

The ENQUIRER interviewed

astronomers and physicists.

Here is what we found out. Phobos and the other moon, Deimos, were discovered by a U.S. astronomer, Asaph Hall, in 1877. For over 80 years, nobody paid too much attention to them, because they were so small — about 5 miles in diameter.

There haven't even been any good photographs taken of Phobos or Deimos. The earth's atmosphere interferes with cameras, and the reflected light of Mars blanks out Phobos.

Then, in 1959, Russia's leading planetary physicist, I.S. Shklovsky, published the results of observations he had made.

He came to the conclusion that Phobos is an artificial satellite, probably made of aluminum.

"We have to assume that Phobos is hollow inside, something like a tin can from which the contents have been removed," he said.

"It is an artificial satellite of Mars."

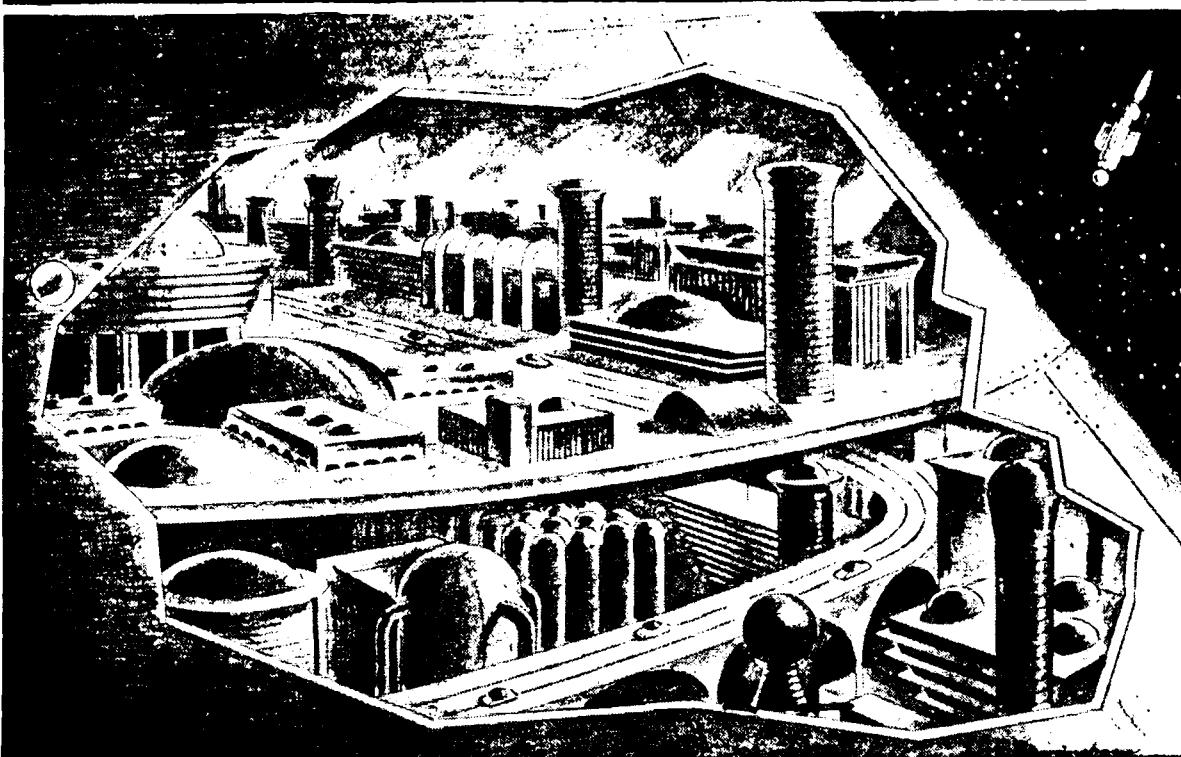

Shklovsky based his statement on four peculiar properties of Phobos:

1. No other planet has moons that are as small as Phobos.
2. Both Martian moons, Phobos and Deimos, are extremely close to the planet, Mars. Phobos is only 5,000 miles from the planet's surface.

3. Unlike all natural moons, Phobos moves in its orbit over three times as fast as Mars.

This is impossible for a natural moon, according to accepted

GRAYNOT RESTORES NATURAL AND YOUTHFUL COLOR TO GRAY AND FADED HAIR, AND IS A REMEDY FOR DANDRUFF AND FALLING HAIR.

GRAYNOT is not a dye or rinse, therefore change comes gradually, nature's way.

GRAYNOT is the same for all hair colors, and always gives the same good results.

GRAYNOT contains no alcohol.

GRAYNOT contains ingredients helpful to scalp and hair roots; a real help against dandruff and falling hair.

GRAYNOT is absolutely safe when used in accordance with directions found on label.

GRAYNOT will not interfere with permanents, but we suggest that you stop using it a few days before and a few days after wave.

GRAYNOT WILL CHANGE HAIR COLOR GRADUALLY, so people will not notice the natural change, but will notice your younger look.

GRAYNOT IS A REAL TONIC TO HAIR AND ITS ROOTS, and restores natural color. You can massage and rub your scalp to your heart's content. This will give good circulation to both scalp and hair roots.

GRAYNOT HAS NO COLOR AND DOES NOT STAIN SCALP OR FINGERS, and is easy and pleasant to apply. Black hair takes a little longer to restore natural color than other shades such as red, brown, or blond.

Mars Moon May Be City in Orbit

astronomical theories.

No natural satellite can move faster than the planet it circles, because both planet and satellite were originally made from the same substance, traveling at the same speed.

4. Phobos is slowing down and falling toward Mars.

This duplicates the motions of all man-made satellites put into orbit by the U.S. and Russia.

Scientists all over the world greeted Shklovsky's theories with mixed emotions.

Dr. H.M. Sinton, an astronomer at Yerkes Observatory, Williams Bay, Wis., agreed with Shklovsky, in a statement before the U.S. National Academy of Sciences.

"Phobos may be a huge orbiting city filled with men, women and children," he said. "The other moon, Deimos, might be one, too."

Agreement also came from one of the world's leading astronomical experts, Dr. Fred Hoyle, astrophysicist, a professor of astronomy at Cambridge University, England, and one-time staff member of both the Mt. Wilson and the Palomar observatories in California.

"This is the only theory I have heard that covers the mystery of these two moons," he said.

Dr. S. Fred Singer, professor of astronomy at the University of Maryland, and a key figure in the NASA Mars Probe project, added his agreement.

"If Shklovsky's figures are accurate, then Phobos could be artificial, hollow, and therefore made by living creatures," he said.

Other scientists disagreed with Shklovsky's theories.

Dr. E.C. Slipher, director emeritus of the Lowell Observatory, near Flagstaff, Ariz., thought it would be physically impossible to orbit such a satellite.

Astronomer Clyde W. Tombaugh, associate professor of

DR. FRED HOYLE
British astrophysicist

earth sciences at the Research Center of New Mexico University in Las Cruces, said:

"Putting up such a satellite would severely strain the capabilities of even a world rich in resources.

"The extreme poverty of mineral resources on Mars would have deprived them of the necessary materials."

"That's no argument," retorted Dr. Singer. "That's like saying the Egyptians couldn't have built the pyramids."

Then he added his own opinion as to why the huge satellite was placed in orbit — as a vacuum cleaner for radiation.

"Their purpose naturally would be to sweep up the radiation belts around Mars to enable Martians to operate without radiation hazards in the vicinity of their planet," he said.

Until the scheduled probe rockets are fired from Cape Canaveral and accomplish their missions of investigating Phobos, nobody will know for sure whether the moon is Martian-made.

It could be inhabited by intelligent creatures who have lived inside it for centuries.

The leavening influence of the few can quickly bring about a wide-spread influence on the many.

Diane has said: "Extra-sensory organs are being developed in many sensitives today. Eventually these sensitives will be thoroughly familiar with the world of abstraction. It will then be more real to them than your so-called reality of earth."

Thousands are treading strange paths today. Some have developed the out-reaching consciousness. They not only have found poise, tolerance and understanding . . . but universal freedom. It is from this small band that the "brotherhood nucleus" must be established. It is upon this premise the earth's new civilization must be built.

These are crucial times. The fires of the earth are burning low. In some countries only smouldering embers have been left. This means we must either expand and grow, or we must inevitably go down to destruction. When the arcs of humanity are curved downward—it is then time to seek that just-beyond-realm where all things are made new. Could this be the reason the space people are here?

SILICON SAUCERS

by Dr. B. E. FINCH

SCATTERED in various localised and circumscribed areas on the earth's surface are smooth, glassy lumps of curious shapes. These objects, called tektites, are found strewn in fixed areas called 'tektite strewn fields' covering several miles. The chief ones so far discovered are in Iraq, Lebanon, Dead Sea areas, Libya, Bohemia, Texas, Mexico, Peru, Central Australia and elsewhere. These strange objects have been the subject of sharp scientific controversy for many years.

On examining tektites one is first struck by their smooth aero-dynamic form, suggesting that they have travelled rapidly through the air in a softened state. Again, they are chemically different from meteorites and their appearance in localised fields demands special explanations.

The second striking feature of tektites is their chemical composition; these glass-like substances are found to be composed of silica. Some contain varying quantities of radio-active isotopes of aluminum and beryllium, some are pure silicone, others resemble quartz, glass or flint and contain varying quantities of boron. The interesting thing about these silicone masses is that they are powerful insulators of electro-magnetic forces such as gravity. Therefore, all the evidence associated with tektites, their locations, and properties, points to their extra-terrestrial origin. By examining large quantities of tektites and their distribution on the strewn-field, one is struck by the resemblance to the remains of a burnt-out air-crash or missile. Perhaps the areas where these are found are the locations of parts of a burnt-out disintegrated space-ship, the glass control room, the hull, the drive and so on.

That the tektites are not due to the effect of lightning on sands, as was once thought, is shown by the discovery at various times of a mysterious substance floating on the sea in different parts of the world. This substance was found a few months ago near Pitcairn Island and was described as light honey coloured, soft and of a silky consistency. Examination showed it to be of pure silicone. Hence, here again we have evidence of extra-terrestrial objects reaching the earth.

Finally, recent work has shown that silicone is affected by light waves. When sunlight or the light of stars falls on a wafer of silicone and mica, an electric current flows. If the sunlight is concentrated by a quartz lens, large voltage differences are produced. From all this evidence one can now deduce for the first time that (1) flying saucers are made of silicone and its compounds, (2) the anti-gravity effect is produced and controlled by electric power flowing in the hull and activated by sunlight which is concentrated by a quartz lens on top (the electrical energy may be stored in silicone batteries), (3) the silicone body of the saucer acts as an insulator to gravity and other electro-magnetic waves, (4) an alternating current passed through the hull of silicone or through quartz crystals produces a piezo-electric effect or high-frequency ultra-sonic waves which may be associated with propulsion.

From this point of view it is interesting to note the recent experiments using ultra-sonic waves produced ionisation of the surrounding air which glowed from a dull red at low frequencies to a bluish white at high frequencies throughout the range of the spectrum. The air became ionised acting as a plasma conducting electricity and magnetism.

From these investigations I have endeavoured to demonstrate an entirely new idea concerning the flying saucer and its mode of propulsion. The information offered has been gained from careful observations and satisfies all the known criteria of sightings and contacts.

CHILDREN'S DEPARTMENT

directly under them a great crowd of Earth people, hundreds of them congregated in one spot, all with their faces turned skyward with one accord.

As they watched, two Earth men sitting in the midst of a birdlike mechanism, came soaring through the sky. They were chasing each other, darting in and out among the clouds. Oh, it was thrilling! Such speed! The leader of the Sylphs, noticing how delighted her workers were with the exhibition, gave them permission to stop work and watch a few moments. To see men flying in the air, the Sylphs' own element, and to note the multitude of thought forms produced by this exhibition was indeed exciting. How spellbound the Earth folk were! Their thought forms were mostly those of fear, showing quivery lines of anxiety. The daring little Sylphs could not understand this fear, so their leader explained that there was great danger that these two bird-men might lose their lives, since they had not yet learned the perfect law of the air as the Sylphs knew it.

Listening carefully, the leader motioned her workers to be quiet, and listen. What was the Earth woman down there saying? The thought form going out from her stood out in bold relief from all the rest of the thoughts reflected on the mental plane. Now the Sylphs heard her; they received it clearly and distinctly:

"Bob, I bless you in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit. May you be protected, Amen. John, I bless you in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit. May you be protected. Amen."

With authority the leader of the Sylphs began giving orders: "Here you, Sylphine and Sylphida, go ride with those bird-men; grab two small clouds of oxygen and hold one under the nose of each of those men. Stay with them to the finish. The rest of you clear the dome of the sky. Clear it away down to the edge of the horizon and don't you two get lost in the illusions of Earth, when the bird-men land, because we have work to do in connection with the earthquake."

The men in the planes were intoxicated with the spirit of the Sylphs, who had been sent to protect them. They felt like birds, and their daring knew no bounds. The crowd below was astonished, breathless with amazement.

Never had there been such an air exhibition in history! Finally, as the two men landed on Earth safely, and the Air Spirits arose from their grandstand cloud-seats on the horizon to meet the two little Air Spirits, Sylphine and Sylphida, who had been riding with the men, the leader explained that, some day, there would be no need for earthquakes and tidal waves, and other cataclysmic disturbances because in time all the Earth people will become unselfish, will understand the power of the spoken word and prayer, and will be willingly obedient to the Laws of God. Then they will live in peace and harmony all over the world.

T H E T H I N G

Theresa was working in her kitchen. Suddenly she stopped what she was doing and clamped her hand over her mouth. She couldn't hold back her scream. It tore from her throat and it sounded like a fire whistle. The Thing had three grooved circles, each one larger in rotation, from the yellow tipped center.

It was gold color and rose from the floor looming immensely as it came towards Theresa. She fell backwards, avoiding it just as the last scream was able to be uttered, came out in a low whine. She landed with her back arched over the arm of her rocker; no longer being able to catch her breath.

The Thing rose higher into the air and Theresa's eyes seemed to bulge from her head, as she watched it strike the ceiling and then return. Theresa tried to get up, but fell face down, her hand reached out to catch herself. The Thing by this time, developed a loud humming noise and got louder as the Thing got bigger. It gave off a strong vapour and Theresa's breathing became laborious.

"Help, help," she thought she cried out, but it only came out in a thin wail. She realized how futile it was to call for help, as there was no one around.

She turned her head to look up and the edge of it skinned her nose and she felt it burn. It rose towards the ceiling again and Theresa commenced to pull herself towards the door. Her knee struck a sharp thing, and she bent over in pain. The door was pushed open; knocking her unconscious.

The air cleared and Theresa came to.

"You were overcome with smoke since you hadn't shut off the oil before cleaning the carburetor of your oil burner," Lydia, her neighbor lady said. "I came over to borrow a cup of sugar and it is a good thing I did."

Theresa looked to the ceiling for the Thing and then she laughed.

"The gold thing was the float; the roaring noise was the fire getting oil too fast; and by force of habit I flipped the shut off valve, when I fell, thereby preventing an explosion," said Theresa. "What are you talking about?" asked Lydia giving her a quizzical look.. Then they both laughed.

" THE THING "

People off the shores of Lake Erie, according to Dorothy Lefler have seen and heard strange sounds from their shores.

At last "A Thing" got caught in St. Clair River on June 19, 1963...a day to remember...

Mr. Harold Kiss caught the 36 pound (Thing) from the River St. Clair by himself, quite a fete. It took all but 3 hours to tire the creature so that he could haul it aboard. Mr. Kiss said " there is still another one out there to catch. He told reporters that he used a 300 pound test line and a #14 hook

" The Thing " was examined by Prof. A. A. Pilkington a marine biologist who lives near St. Clair. He said he thought it might be a "Skate or Ray" salt water creatures. They have no bones in their bodies BUT--- but listen to this--- he said " It has 90 sets of teeth in its head" he added. THE POINT OF NO RETURN. That's the name of a popular song and holds true with the " Thing " 90 sets of teeth and no fangs either ! This report from Dorothy Lefler from Cincinnati, Ohio to our good friend Mrs. Gladys Fusaro, Huntington, N.Y. who sent it on to us. THANK YOU again Gladys...we are always glad to hear from you.

Letters to the Editor

SUNGMA SEES UFO. Speaking of UFO's, here is a sighting as of April 23, 1962 first published in Sept. issue of Intern. Paranormal Bulletin, Amsterdam, Holland. 1962. Time 10:45 A.M. Place, New York City. UFO seen by Xandra Dickhoff and Robert, low above Medical Center Hospital.

Big, shiny, circular object, stationary for a few moments. My daughter and I saw the object simultaneously when in the ball park near the Hudson River, in the proximity of the hospital. It was not a scout saucer. It made no noise.

Now comes the sequel to the above story, but from a different location, time and country, but kindly note the astounding similarity!

Jan. 7, 1963 this Sungma overheard a shortwave report from England, which went like this: "It seems that no New Year is complete without a report of a UFO sighting and the year 1963 has one for you of a flying object seen over England in the beginning of Jan. 1963, by groups of Englishmen and after much scrutiny, this commentator has come to the conclusion and believes that the object seen was a spacecraft from another World, was not an optical illusion, not a balloon and not an aircraft. The object was LARGE, Brilliant & NOISELESS !

L. N. HALLBERG

P. O. Box 505, Ferndale, California;

When I was located on Whidbey Island, north of Seattle, Wash., I was in correspondence with the motivating force behind the APRG, and sent them several accounts of phenomena I and my family witnessed. I also enjoyed one telephone conversation with this fellow, when we were visiting our daughter in Seattle, one time, but we never met. (They finally discontinued their monthly bulletin.) We see similar sights in the sky here, to those in Washington. Usually it is of the same pattern, that is, four objects whose lights form a diamond pattern, moving in unison-- or one moving out a little and then rejoining the formation. The most unusual thing I ever saw was over the north end of Whidbey Island, after midnight, when it is not normal for humans to do stunt flying. This object carried a normal light, as well as red and green lights. Let us say we have just spotted it: suddenly it slides downward and backward in a sort of slow curve; stops in its fall, then begins a fast climb, and about the top it does a loop-the-loop, climbs a little higher-- then slips back and down, and does it over and over again!

A man, now deceased, who used to live in Tacoma, Wash. Told me with conviction it was the Germans who are doing the Flying Saucer development, with a base in Antarctica. That's where some German scientists were captured by the Russians, and others taken prisoner

Dear Jim:

I am glad you received my Universarion Bulletins. I also sent some to Mrs. Nigl of Sayre, Pa. You are a very busy man, I can tell. Your letters are always helpful and interesting.

Flying Saucer News does have printing errors which should be corrected and some ads are plainly negative, or evil in nature. (I'm sure I could'nt do as well, if I were in your place !) But without these two faults, it would be a fine little magazine.

I hope you will come out with a perfect copy in July 63' with no errors or sex ads. It's out of place in a Flying Saucer magazine. May God help you to carry on your good work, positive that is. Best wishes, Ores Wilson 226 N. 4th St.

Reading, Pa.

Dear Friend Ores:

We appreciate your letter of criticism in regards to sex.. We have tried to avoid these ads but until we can get enough contributions or donations from our readers we will be at their mercy and we mean it!!! This goes for every publication.. Our errors in spelling well take it up with the committee. Please advise all your friends that we appreciate their book purchases and would appreciate their buying more, this is one big way YOU CAN HELP us to keep sex ads out of our magazine (The Editor)

Dear Sir: Please send discription (size) and price list of your crystal Balls.

I'd like to have you answer 2 questions, if possible, regarding the following:

"Dr. V. Ben Meen of Royal Ontario Museum established, in 1951 meteoric origin of a 2 mile. wide Chubb Crater, Northern Quebec."

1- What prompted the National Geographic Society to make an expedition to the Chubb Crater?

2- What was the earliest date that Chubb Crater, as is, was known to exist?

Yours Truly,

F. F. MODRZEJEWSKI

CICERO 50, ILLINOIS

Dear Friend: We would be more than pleased to answer your questions if we knew them. However for my part, I would suggest that you write to the various Museums in Canada. I'm certain that they'll be more than willing to assist you.

Readers who can assist are requested to please write or correspond with our friend. Thank you kindly.

(The Editor)

Dear Sir:

I Am thirteen years of age and go to a Catholic School in out town. Well anyway the reason why I wanted membership in your club is that I and 3 adults have actually seen an unidentified object. When I tell my friends or parents they just laugh. But I have the 3 adults as proof. We saw it over a year ago.. Since then I have been trying to locate a club such as yours.

Three things are against me 1- People laugh at my experience, the 3 adults have moved (no forwarding address given)3- I hope you don't laugh at me. You probably think it's my immagination, well it is'nt!!

How Do I know that it was a Flying Saucer? Well I didn't until I received your June 1963 issus of Flying Saucer News. The object I and my 3 friends saw looked something like that picture on page 18. It was blurry. I think Flying Saucers cause light, well this one did and a lot of it, in fact, it struck a tree, that is, the light, and caused a fire. The light sounds like lightening well it wasJnt because it was a beautiful,clear,sunny day.

Please believe me. You don't have to because most people don't.

Yours Truly,

Jimmy Krasowski

Dear Friend:

We enjoyed reading your letter and want to assure you that you have on your side millions of people who have seen them!!

Dear Sir:

I am 18 years of age and will leave for the army in August. On July 20, 1962 9:30 P.M. Full moon, clear sky. I was with my parents and friend Mr. Patze. As we walked outside our country home, we looked up towards the heavens and noticed 4 stars. They were in a rectangular shape. We looked up again about 5 minutes later and noticed that one was moving, it was speeding rapidly.. I could'nt tell it's colour only saw a light, it was heading towards the moon. I had no field glasses or telescope but it was clear. I lost track of it as the white of the object moved or blended with the light of the moon.

We saw this object at Yaphank, Long Island, N.Y. in an open field.

About 2 years ago--same time and same area- I saw a single light object, I noticed it changed colors. Appeared to be oval shape. Trees were in the way this time. We wanted to chase it but mother prevented us from doing so

Sincerely,

Herbert Hain 1789 First Ave,
New York City 28, N.Y.

Dear Friend: We appreciate your interest and report. For passing on this information to us we have placed you on our FREE subscription list as well as all those who send in their experiences with the Flying Saucers. Please send in your forwarding address at all times, otherwise we can't send it to you. Postal regulations are very strict now. Our very best wish to you. (The Editor)

New York City, N.Y. June 26, 1963

While watching the Macy's Dept. Store fireworks celebration along the Hudson River on the New York side... I noticed (2) two objects moving east to west. They got to a certain point over Manhattan (Central Park) where they hovered for about 15 minutes and then slowly drifted away.. Mr. Joseph Cintron said " without any field glasses they looked to be 45 to 60 feet in diameter. He added that they were dull white, no port holes, no smoke and no sounds were made."

Mr. Cintron lives at 107 West 88th St., New York City 24. He is not ashamed to admit that he believes in Flying Saucers. He has been a subscriber to Flying Saucer News for 8 years.

HOW TO LIVE FOREVER

According to lore.... an eccentric rich old widow, on the advise of a fortune teller spent $5 million on a construction project. She was advised by the Gypsy to keep building additions onto her house if she wanted to live forever.

The building consisted of over 150 rooms, 12,000 windows, 40 stairways (most of which had 13 steps) Many of the chandeliers had 13 lights and about 50 fireplaces.

The widow never allowed visitors. She lived to be 85 years of age. If you drive out Winchester Road, southwest of San Jose, Calif., you can't miss it.
