THE

A WEEKLY RECORD OF MASONIC INTELLIGENCE.

SANCTIONED BY THE GRAND LODGE OF ENGLAND.

Registered at the G.P.O. as a Newspaper.

VOL. X.—No. 235. SATURDAY, 28th JUNE 1879. [Issued to Subscribers only. 13s 6d per annum, post free.

OUR TENTH VOLUME.

THE time has once more come round for us to address a few words to our readers in regard to ourselves. We this day start with the Tenth Volume of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE, and it behoves us to look back on the past, and thank those friends who have so warmly supported us. The misfortunes of Masonic literature have been so often recorded that we feel ourselves the more honoured when we look around and find that we are now stronger than ever, and that the number of our supporters and helpers is daily on the increase. Still we are far short of what we might reasonably expect when we take into consideration the numerical strength of the brotherhood we have ever striven to serve. Our aim has been, zealously to uphold and support the true principles of Freemasonry, and to assist in that great work of charity which has earned for the English craft the admiration of the world. How far we have succeeded, it is not for us to say; we can only reiterate the expressions of every installing master, and hope "that our future conduct will be such as to merit the esteem of the brethren and the gratifying testimony of a clear conscience."

THE CHARITY FESTIVALS OF 1879.

THE meeting of Wednesday brings to a close the customary festivities of our Charities for the year; we are accordingly enabled to compare the results with those of the past. The total amount of subscriptions, as announced at the Festivals of the present year, exceed by upwards of £300 those of 1877, and as during that year there was a larger sum added to the funds of our Institutions than had ever previously been received, we may hope that 1879 will eventually show in advance of that highly satisfactory period. Be this as it may, there can be no question but that the Craft has most faithfully discharged its duty, and by the support of its members shown that, notwithstanding the general depression of the times, the Freemasons of England are able and willing to supply the requisite funds to carry on the noble Charities of which they can boast. The results achieved by Bros. Terry and Hedges, on behalf of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution and Royal Masonic Institution for Girls respectively, led many to believe that the efforts of Bro. Binckes and his Stewards for "Our Boys" would fall short of the totals of previous years, even if other matters did not arise to impede the flow of funds. That such did arise no one will deny, and yet we find that the Secretary of the Boys' School is enabled to announce at this latest Festival of his Institution the grand total of £10,534, a result nearly £400 in excess of that announced last year. We would ask how has this result been achieved? Not, as Bro. Binckes observes, by the extraordinary exertions of any individual Province, but by an "all round" steady support, a support which, in our opinion, is far better than the spasmodic efforts of a section, which for years after may be conspicuous by its absence, and thus leave the work they had created to be carried on and provided for by others. The lists themselves present some peculiar features, embracing as they do more "large" amounts than is usual. There are twenty-six Stewards who can boast of having contributed totals of three figures each, and when we say that some of them exceed, while others nearly approach, the half way to four figures, it will be believed the labours of these energetic workers have been well directed. As regards the number of Stewards for the Boys' School, 1879 is somewhat behind its predecessors; this may, however, in some measure be accounted for from the fact already mentioned, that no Province has this year made special exertions on its behalf. We consider that the Committee, Stewards, and others who have assisted to ensure the success of the Festival of 1879 deserve especial praise for the handsome way they supported the chairman of the day, and we hope that his latest experience of the English Masonic Charities may lead him to renewed efforts towards the foundation of similar institutions for Scotland. We can assure him that in such a task he has the hearty good wishes of the brethren South of the Tweed, and in many cases will receive their tangible support. The particulars of the first two anniversaries of the year are so well known to our readers that it is unnecessary for us to again recount them, suffice it to say that, as with all our Institutions the expenditure for the future is based on the results of the Festivals, it is necessary to keep up to the standard of the past in years to come, even should we only desire to continue the same benefits as at present. But, so long as we are obliged to turn away one deserving case that presents itself, we must keep on increasing our efforts, and until we are able to provide for every candidate that is brought forward, we must continue our appeals for further support. The Committee of the Girls' School are, in consequence of the success of the last Festival of that Charity, already making arrangements for increasing the number to receive the benefits of their Institution, and we should very much like to see them in a position to take a similar step next year, and to be followed by the other Charities,—the Boys' School and the Benevolent Institution. But this we must leave to the liberality of the Craft, never doubting but that the efforts of those who have laboured in the past will serve as an incentive and guide for those who are to follow in so laudable a course.

The brethren of the Metropolitan Lodge No. 1507, and Royal Savoy No. 1744, have combined to hold jointly a Summer Festival, under the presidency of the Worshipful Masters, Bros. J. Douglass and J. Willing. The date fixed is Thursday, 24th July, and the place selected is the Rye House, Hoddesden, Herts. The large grounds facing this popular resort will be reserved for the festival by Bro. R. Teale, the proprietor. There will be a good band for dancing, &c., after the banquet, which will take place at 3.30. The indefatigable exertions of Bro. W. M. Stiles, who is the Secretary to both Lodges and W.M. of the King's Cross, together with the popularity of the W.M.'s, will doubtless render this meeting a very enjoyable one. Special arrangements will be made with the Great Eastern Railway.

The consecration of the Penge Lodge, No. 1815, will take place on Saturday, 5th July, at the Thicket Hotel, Anerley-road. The ceremony, which will commence at 3.30 p.m., will be performed by Bro. H. E. Frances P.M., P.P.S.G.D. Surrey. Bro. Robert Jackson P.M. 104 is the W.M. designate. The banquet is fixed for 6.30.

FESTIVAL OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

THE Eighty-First Anniversary Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys was held on Wednesday, at the Alexandra Palace, under the Presidency of Bro. the Right Hon. the Earl of Rosslyn M.W. Past Grand Master of Scotland. He was ably supported by the Stewards and numerous brethren and ladies. At the conclusion of the banquet, which was served by Bros. Bertram and Roberts in the large Dining Hall of the Palace, grace was sung by the pupils of the Masonic Boys' School, after which the chairman proceeded to give the various toasts. In introducing that of "Her Majesty the Queen Patron of the Institution," he said it was one that occupied the first place, and always met the heartiest reception in every assembly of loyal Englishmen. Her Majesty's reign had been a most prosperous one, and during it she had endeared herself, by her kindness and sympathy, to all classes, but particularly to Freemasons, who ever appreciated charity and kindness of heart. He referred in touching tems to the sympathy of Her Majesty with the Empress Eugenie in her recent bereavement, and felt sure that such sympathy was shared by all there present. This was followed by the National Anthem. Lord Rosslyn next gave the health of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales Most Worshipful Grand Master and President of the Institution, whose interest in the Order was too well known to need any special reference. The speaker had, he said, ever found H.R.H. ready to assist, by his countenance and presence, in any Masonic work that might arise. This he considered a great advantage to Freemasonry. On all such occasions as the present, connected as the meeting was with Charity, H.R.H. had exhibited especial interest, and no one would be more pleased to learn the result of the day's proceedings—which, even thus early, might be termed a complete success—than the Grand Master. The pupils having sung the national song, "God bless the Prince of Wales," Sir Molyneux Nepean rose. He considered himself most unworthily deputed to propose what he considered—after those of the Queen and the Grand Master—the toast of the evening. Himself both an English and a Scotch Mason, he was extremely proud to see his esteemed Brother Earl Rosslyn present as Chairman of an English Charity of the first water. He considered that no man, situated as he was, could have brought together a better assemblage, or one more profitable for the Institution. He could assure the chairman that he was most heartily welcomed by those assembled, whether as an English or a Scotch Mason. The chairman, in reply, assured the company that the very flattering reception that had been accorded him had almost deprived him of the powers of speech. He could attribute it to nothing but their Masonic kindness, for, as he believed, he was unknown to almost every person in the room. It was an old maxim that good wine needed no bush. A bush had been placed before them that evening which he thought must have supplied the keynote for the compliment that had been paid him. He considered it a great honour to be selected to succeed that Prince who so successfully filled the chair he then occupied at the last Festival. He claimed to be almost as much an English Mason as a Scotch one, for he had the honour of being affiliated to an English Lodge at Malta twenty-five years since, and there had the pleasure of initiating nearly every member of a Brigade of the Guards. Some of them departed, to meet a soldier's death, but many were, he was pleased to say, among them, even to the present day. He had also another claim on English Freemasons, for he had the honour to affiliate the late Grand Master the Earl of Zetland to a Scotch Lodge at Edinburgh. He considered, however, it was unnecessary for him to speak of English and Scotch Masons as distinct bodies, they were in reality one, with one common object in view—the happiness of their fellow-creatures. He should ever look back on this evening as one of the proudest of his life, on account of the honour that had been paid him, and the kindness he had met with. The next toast he had to propose was that of the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, the Vice-Presidents of the Institution, the Provincial Grand Masters, and Present and Past Grand Officers. He could but mark the applause which greeted the mention of the name of the Pro G. Master; it was well earned by his Lordship, who had, on several occasions, ably acted for the Grand Master. He had had his acquaintance for many years, having been both at Eton and Oxford with him. He felt that no man had acted a more honourable part than had the Earl of Carnarvon. He felt sure that the health of Lord Skelmersdale and the others united in the toast would be received with almost as great enthusiasm, they having one and all done their duty and earned the gratitude of the Craft. Lord Skelmersdale had desired him to express his regret that his duties in the House of Lords would prevent his being present to take part in the proceedings of the day. He would couple with the toast the name of the Prov. G. Master of Worcestershire, Sir Edmund A. H. Lechmere, Bart., M.P., who in reply to the toast, expressed his approval of the arrangements made by Bro. Binckes, who he said left them in happy ignorance as to who would be called upon to respond to the various toasts, and thereby prevented their being uncomfortable for the whole evening, as was the case when they had a slip of paper placed on their plates announcing that they were expected to perform such duties. He felt that the toast he was called upon to acknowledge was a most important one, inasmuch as he had to reply for those noblemen to whom, as they had just heard, they owed much of the success of Freemasonry, and also for those who had for many years past taken a great interest in the various Charitable Institutions of the Order. The present was the first occasion on which he had been able to attend one of the Festivals since his installation as Prov. G. Master, and he felt great pride in being present. He rejoiced that under present arrangements they were graced by the company of the ladies, this he considered enhanced greatly the enjoyment of those present. He was happy to say that his Province—Worcestershire—was on the present handed, but between them brought up a sum of 522 guineas. This he considered was ample proof that although the country brethren had their shortcomings, they were quite willing to aid their London brethren in the support of our noble Charities. The Chairman next proposed "Prosperity to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys." This he considered might be justly termed the toast of the evening, he felt almost overpowered by the difficulty and magnitude of the task which now presented itself. If he looked to Scotch Masonry he could find no charity of the kind they were met to support, but if he looked to England he saw the most splendid institutions the world could boast of. For twenty years he had taken the model of the English Charities as an example to be followed by the Freemasons of Scotland, and although he had so far toiled in vain, he yet hoped that some day they would have charities in Scotland if not to rival the English, at least to imitate them. He had taken the opportunity of visiting the Boys' School that day, he might say in every department, and had found it not only perfect in its several parts, but reflecting the greatest credit on all engaged in its administration. The good done by the Institution he considered to be incalculable. He could quote largely from the report of the Institution, but would suffice with but a few references thereto. He found that as much as £15,000 a year was devoted to its maintenance, and he could but remark how charitable were the Freemasons of England in supplying that amount. He gave a short account of the results achieved by the pupils at the various examinations in which they had taken part, and he pointed out that their successes were really wonderful. He doubted if any other school or college could rival them. He believed, however, that it was customary to find some little fault, and he must endeavour to do so before he sat down. He had hitherto bestowed so much praise that he questioned whether it would be wholesome. He should point to what he considered a little fault, one he felt sure that only required mentioning to be remedied. He considered it not impossible that at the end of their school career some of the boys might leave the Institution homeless and in need, and it might be that the good seed sown would be allowed to die out, perhaps even through poverty. He would appeal to the Masons of England to form a fund from which they would be able to render some assistance to such as needed it, and thereby remove the only blot he thought could be found in connection with the Institution. He felt somewhat diffident in making the suggestion, but hoped it had fallen on willing ears, and that it would bear fruit. He concluded by announcing that he had received a telegram from the Secretary of the Supreme Grand Council of Scotland, announcing a donation of fifty guineas from that body; this he trusted would go some way towards healing the little misunderstanding that existed between the ruling bodies of the 33rd degree in England and Scotland, it certainly betokened a break in the cloud which hung over them. Bro. G. Plucknett, Vice-President and Treasurer, acknowledged the toast. He felt there could be no doubt but that the objects of the subscribers of their great Institution were fully carried out. Every comfort was afforded the Boys that it was possible to secure. That the brethren would continue the magnificent subscriptions of former times was the wish of Bro. Binckes and those gentlemen who worked for the good of the Institution. He had, on behalf of the "Boys," to thank the brethren for the liberal amounts they had contributed. Bro. Binckes had now the pleasure to announce the result of what he could but term a most successful gathering, but he wished to prepare the company for a gigantic failure. He considered a great compliment had been paid one of the English Charities by so prominent a member of the Scotch craft undertaking to preside on its behalf, and felt that the more the different classes of Freemasons were brought together, under such an able chairman, the better it would be for the Craft at large. He then proceeded to announce the amounts collected by the various Stewards (these are given in detail, with corrections up to time of going to press, in another column). The result being that 105 London Stewards had contributed £5,345 1s 6d, while the Provinces brought up the total to £10,534 3s 0d, with twelve lists still outstanding. They had never had such a number of Stewards who had collected "large" amounts as on the present occasion, there being twelve London and fourteen Provincial brethren with lists each over £100, the maximum being, in the case of London, that of Bro. G. Penn, Honorary Treasurer of the Board of Stewards, representing Lodge No. 1642, with £520, and in that of the Provinces Bro. Bristow the Prov. Grand Secretary of Worcestershire, who had collected £428 5s. The donation from the Grand Lodge of Scotland also deserved their especial applause, containing as it did, among other amounts, a donation of £10 10s from Sir Michael Shaw Stewart, the Grand Master. To the toast of "The Vice-Patrons, Vice-Presidents, Trustees, and Members of Committee," Bro. Winn replied. The toast of the sister Charities was, in the opinion of the chairman, somewhat low on the list, but he hoped would be none the less heartily received. Bro. Terry was called upon to respond. That brother tendered hearty thanks for the support given by the Craft to those of their number who were obliged to make claims on their charity, and pointed out that upwards of £37,000 had already been contributed during the current year to the funds of the three Institutions. This he stated was a great amount to be raised, considering the badness of the times. The health of the Stewards was next given, and was acknowledged by Bro. R. W. H. Giddy D.G.M. South Africa, while to that of the Ladies, proposed from the chair, Lord Ribblesdale replied. The remainder of the evening was enlivened by some excellent music by the band of the Royal Artillery, and the company separated after a most successful meeting.

ADDRESS

Delivered at the Consecration of the Royal Arch Chapter, No. 1019, Wakefield,

By Companion Rev. W. C. Lukis, M.A., F.S.A.,

P.S. Marquess of Ripon Chapter, 837, Ripon.

M.E.Z. and Companions,—It would take up too much of your time, and would be out of place on this occasion, if I were to enter upon the vexed question of the Origin of the Holy Royal Arch. This point is, no doubt, as interesting to the Masonic student as any antiquarian subject, which is veiled in obscurity, is to an Archæological inquirer.

Whether its origin be coeval with that of the Third Degree, or was an extension of it; whether it had any existence in a traditional form in England before the year 1740; who fabricated it, and whence it was derived; who were eligible for it, whether Past Masters only or otherwise; why it should have been formally recognised in 1813 as a part of Speculative Masonry, while the Mark, which was, from the first, an essential constituent of Operative Masonry, was by the same Authority excluded from, or rather not included in, the Symbolical teaching of the Craft:—these are matters of interest to which I have no right to demand your attention here. It is sufficient for my present purpose to remark that, whatever may have been the origin of the Order, there can be no question that its bright and cheerful Ceremonial is replete with significant and impressive scenes, that its Ritual inspires the most exalted ideas of the Presence of the Eternal and Unchangeable God, and leads to profound reverential awe of the Sacred Name, and to the exercise of the most pure and sublime piety.

Such being its speciality and influence, we can estimate at its true value the wisdom of those Brethren who were instrumental in obtaining its recognition as a part of Craft Masonry by the Grand Lodge.

To these general remarks I think you will all give your assent. May I hope that what I shall now add may obtain your approval also, or, at all events, your reasonable indulgence, if I should be in error?

It seems to me that a Royal Arch Chapter should be founded wherever a Craft Lodge exists,—that no Craft Lodge should be considered complete without the adjunct of that which has been described by a well-known, if not infallible, authority (Dr. Oliver) as "the summit and perfection of ancient Masonry." It seems to me that a full and intelligent perception of the doctrines of Speculative Masonry, and of the signification of its Ceremonials, cannot be realised without it.

It is not unusual to hear Masons speak of Craft Masonry and Royal Arch Masonry as though the latter were a distinct Degree, more or less outside the former, which may be entered, or not, at every Master Mason's pleasure. But am I taking a strained view of the question when I say that, when, by the Solemn Act of Union in 1813, it was declared that "pure and ancient Masonry consisted of Three Degrees, viz., Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft, and Master Mason, including the Supreme Order of the Holy Royal Arch," the very words imply that it is as much the bounden duty and privilege of every Master Mason to proceed in due time to the Supreme Order, as it is of the Entered Apprentice and Fellow Craft to gradually perfect himself by taking a higher Degree? The terms "Craft" and "Arch" ought not, I imagine, to be employed in the hearing of those who do not belong to the latter as though they were different and distinct Degrees, or a false impression will be created. The order of the Royal Arch is not, under the English system, a Fourth Degree, but is essentially the perfection of the Third; and it seems to me very desirable that every Master Mason should be given to understand, and made to feel, that his Masonic education will be incomplete,—that he cannot arrive at the full stature of a perfect Mason, until he has been called to this exalted vocation.

I may add, further, that, so viewing the question, no Worshipful Master of a Lodge can possibly comprehend the language and aim of the Third Degree, and that he can scarcely be considered to be duly qualified to occupy that lofty position, unless he has been instructed how what was lost was recovered. Without this knowledge an impenetrable veil conceals from his eyes, as from the eyes of the Brother whom he is Raising, that Light which is so essential to his understanding.

Every Brother, without exception, should consequently, at once on being Raised, be made acquainted with the Test questions peculiar to the Third Degree, because they make known to him the fact that he has not yet arrived at the summit of Masonry, and will have to be instructed for it.

If my position be a sound one, then I cannot agree with those Brethren who consider it as a species of "touting," of an unmasonic character, when Brethren are invited, aye and more, when they are openly recommended, not to stop short in their Masonic career as Master Masons. Nor can I see any force in the opinion which I have heard expressed that such a recommendation and invitation is inconsistent with the question which is put to the candidate for Exaltation whether he freely and voluntarily presents himself. As it is not an improper thing to urge the Entered Apprentice to proceed onwards, neither is it an unjustifiable act to express a recommendation for Exaltation in terms stronger and more definite than a mere hint.

It may possibly cross the mind of some Companion present that exception might be taken to the view I have expressed, on the ground that Royal Arch Chapters are under the Supreme Government of the Grand Chapter and not under that of the Grand Lodge. But virtually this is not so. The terms of its recognition in the Decree of 1813 imply a control over it, and as a matter of fact the control of the Grand Lodge is evidenced in the Established General Regulations for the Government of the Order; for not only is the Order bound by the Constitutions of the Grand Lodge in all cases not provided for in the Laws and Regulations of the Grand Chapter, but it is specially declared that the Grand Master of England, the Pro Grand Master when the Grand Master is a Royal Personage, and the Deputy Grand Master, are ipso facto the Principals of the Grand Chapter, if they are Royal Arch Masons; and similarly, and by virtue of the same qualification, the Grand Secretary, Grand Treasurer, and Grand Registrar of the Craft hold the corresponding offices in the Grand Chapter.

I have attempted, in a very brief and I fear inadequate manner, in what I have said, to show the true and distinguished position which Royal Arch Masonry holds as a recognised part and parcel of Craft Masonry, and have desired to point out, without any approach to dogmatic assertion, the duty which naturally devolves upon Master Masons. With this view, which I trust is shared by the Companions, we must hail with extreme satisfaction the Consecration of Sincerity Chapter, and entertain a hope that our respected Provincial Grand Superintendent and his Officers will be further gratified by other additions to the Roll in the course of this year. At the close of 1878 there were 66 Craft Lodges and only 28 Chapters in this Province. May that number be largely augmented.

"WHICH IS CORRECT?"

To the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle.

Dear Sir and Brother,—I have been greatly interested in the correspondence which has been published by you under the above heading, and am one of those who consider the subject of uniformity and correctness to be of general importance to the members of our Order. It is to be hoped that our worthy Bro. Stevens is likely to be successful in securing the assistance he solicits, by subscriptions, to his proposed work, which I gather from his letters and notices will contain, inter alia, the whole of the correspondence on this subject during many past years. But I should not at all be surprised to hear that such assistance is but partially accorded, and that lack of sympathy may dishearten him in his efforts. In the minds of some his endeavours are doubtless looked upon as Quixotic, and his tilt against the windmill of prejudice and error as likely to result only in difficulty and disappointment to himself. But the many do not, I venture to hope, share in that opinion, and it may be consolatory to him to know that his attempt is applauded in many influential quarters, and will certainly, even if he does not fully gain his object, redound to his credit. He has put his hand to the plough in good earnest, and I trust will not look back or fall away from his expressed intentions. I have no personal knowledge of our Brother, not being a resident in the metropolis, but should say, from the tenor of his writings, that he is sanguine almost to a fault. Still it is by the confident and self-reliant men that most of the good done in this world is effected, and it is surely better to look on the bright side of things than to be nervous and dependent in any attempt to promote good works.

A member of my Lodge, who is conversant with Bro. Stevens' suggestion of some ten years ago, tells me that the principal idea was the formation of a Lodge of Preceptors, under the authority of, and I believe connected with, Grand Lodge. May I suggest that either through your pages now, or in the work he states he is preparing, he should make known the particulars of the "scheme" he then had in view. So much will depend upon the practicability of forming and utilising such a body that unless the arrangement thereof is fully understood, it is almost certain the proposition will not meet with that general approval which is sought for.

I address this letter to you in preference to writing direct to Bro. Stevens, in the hope that my views on the subject may be endorsed by other correspondents, as I think that it behoves all those who earnestly seek the requisite amendments in our ceremonies and ritual should strongly encourage the effort he is making. Be good enough to place my name * on the subscribers' list for half a dozen copies of the proposed work, and believe me to be,

Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours truly and fraternally,

A Provincial Grand Officer.

Plymouth, 23rd June 1879.

Holloway's Pills are the medicine most in repute for curing multifarious maladies which attack humanity, when wet and cold weather gives place to more genial temperatures. In short, these Pills afford relief, if they fail of being an absolute remedy in all the disturbances of circulation, digestion, and nervous energy, which at times oppress a vast portion of the population. Under the wholesome, purifying, and strengthening powers exerted by these excellent Pills, the tongue becomes clean, the appetite improves, digestion is quickened, and assimilation rendered perfect. Holloway's medicine possesses the highly estimable property of cleansing the whole mass of blood, which in its renovated condition, carries purity, strength, and vigour to every tissue of the body.

"IL TEGÀME," OR A MASON'S HOLIDAY.

THOSE who travel do well, those who stay at home do better, since they are certain to avoid much labour and many vexations. Still there are times when the feeling described by Chaucer—steals o'er the senses and all other considerations are given to the winds which waft us away.

"Then longen men to go on pilgrimage,"

Should, however, any good brother desire to travel late in the Autumn, and yet have fine weather, let him not begin his journey on a Friday. Whether another day would have been better, my experience does not tell, there may be no connection between the two circumstances, in which case it would be only what is called a post hoc, or it may be dependent upon it, in which case it is a propter hoc. This is indeed often a knotty doubt to decide, for small as it seems, this question of post hoc and propter hoc has been an object of debate from the beginning of time until now. There are those claiming to be endowed with reasoning faculties, have faith in the Mother Hubbard stories attributed by nescient men to King Solomon, and hence believe their quasi Masonic institutions to be a propter hoc of that epoch. There are also others who, believing Freemasonry to be a most valuable institution long established amongst us (as our now authenticated and published annals abundantly prove), know it to be a post hoc, and regard with indignation those who seek to mislead our younger brethren by idle narrations devoid of truth.

I have in another place spoken of the two French Grand Lodges, also of the private Lodges of Paris, and that work accomplished, still lingered amid its pleasant scenes to enjoy the charming hospitality so peculiar to French home society, and which is not always accessible to strangers. I had also full opportunity for discussing the different economical and other subjects which at that time so occupied their minds, and among other things of visiting at his country house, ten miles from town, a gentleman who had gained a gold medal.

The country house of a French citizen differs much from that of his English brother. This was a large and handsome villa with stabling and suitable offices, surrounded by about three acres of land or four hectares, having one part in wood, to supply the family with fuel, another part in vines vignoble, to afford wine, and a third part in wheat and vegetables, including a vivier or fish pond. We felt the influence of the wood, we drank of the vine, and eat of the goat cheese which this little microcosm afforded; a true epitome of France which claims in all things to suffice for its own modest requirements, in contrast to England, to whom is necessary the aid of the world to support its colossal existence. In this case, however, my friend had not forgotten the outer world, since by his now crowned ingenuity his future labour will be to reap that golden harvest which Europe is already laying at his feet.

Our invitation was to Vendangor, to gather grapes at the harvest home. The ladies dressing in caps something between a Charlotte Corday and a nun's Cornette, sabots on the feet, and aprons, good gracious, which would have done credit to Mother Hubbard, or, save the mark, to any other sham Masonic historian. How we laughed and talked, eat, and worked, danced and played billiards after, I will not describe, surely a merrier day, from dewy morn to night, was never spent since Noah planted his vine and drank of the juice thereof.

Short as was my intercourse with the brethren at Paris, it was sufficient to show the high estimation in which they held the English Craft, and in this there was no difference, the Grand Orient vied with the Rite (de la Maçonnerie) Ecossaise, and the Rite Ecossaise with the Grand Orient. The only object seemed to be to bind still closer those ties which we are taught should symbolically embrace the world, teaching man to have faith in his fellow man, and in that glorious human nature with which God has endowed him.

But, my brethren, these men, our other selves, have, perhaps unfortunately, decided to vary a formula, a formula which varies for every country and for every Masonic system, adopting another which is equally binding on their consciences. For doing this, from England has gone forth the fiat of Anathema. Henceforth the hand offered as a pledge of truth we are forbidden to touch, but must avoid it as polluted. The word of confidence must be whispered in their ears no more. In daily life the look of scorn must declare them degraded beings, we are to turn from them and pass by. Already against all such has been hissed out the word "sceptic," whilst "atheist" seems the favourite term of more sapient scribes.

Where the persecution of freedom of conscience began it would be hard to tell and long to trace, but it has always been considered as abhorrent to Freemasonry. With feelings of deepest respect, I cannot but think it most unfortunate, that without sufficiently debating so important a subject with the Craft at large, our Masonic authorities have been induced to take this I trust not irreparable step. It was such a resolution that formally severed in twain the British empire, and it was such unconstitutional conduct on the part of a minister which caused a statesman to exclaim, that could he "find the adviser of such an unconstitutional act he would drag him even from behind the throne."

There is evidence which goes to prove that the very highest Masonic authorities do not partake of this spirit, and I call upon my brethren, and especially upon that great and independent body below the chairs, to consider this important subject well in all its bearings. Shall or shall not our Masonic bond of union with the Craft of Europe be broken or retained?

"Felices terque felices quos copula irrupta tenet."

"Happy, aye thrice happy they Whom chain ne'er broken binds."

Can it be sustained? A Machiavellian policy has been adopted, but destitute of Machavelli's lofty and godlike aim.

The foreign Masonic press has demanded to be heard, yet in spite of this almost general and grand declaration of the European Craft, our English Masonic press has striven, unfortunately, to throw obscurity rather than enlightenment over the discussion.

It may be said why protest when it can do no good, or only expose you to most harsh remarks. To that I reply it may be so, yet still it is a duty,

"The brother's blood crieth from the ground."
"Seclusque fraternæ necis."

Are recorded protests and will live for ever. We shall resume the subject.

Digressions, however, like halts must come to an end, so let our chat proceed. All that interests mankind may rightly interest Masons whether travelling or otherwise, so after seeing the Masonic Lodges I had the satisfaction of visiting the Lunatic Asylums, institutions most admirably managed and worked, the municipal and clergy schools, the former by permission of the Prefect of the Seine; the hospitals, &c., all of which afford great opportunities of insight into French ideas and character, especially as in all these things Europe at large has more or less followed or perfected the initiative of France.

The present struggle for Jesuitical supremacy in teaching I fear will not be settled now, since for good or ill that order has established an ascendency in the higher class of instruction not easily to be broken down. Under the second Empire the imperial influence was used to support the Civil Lyceums; and the Murats, Neys and other Bonapartists sent their sons there for education, yet the country gentry adhered to the Jesuit colleges, and do so still.

The Benedictines claim during the middle ages to have afforded an asylum to ancient learning in their cloisters and monasteries, and there to have kept burning the sacred lamp. After the Renaissance it was probably the Port Royal influence that first successfully established the new teaching in France and drove out the fifteen sections of that day, the Trivium and Quadrivium. It was then that in rivalry the Jesuits took it up, especially cultivating classical erudition, as our Delphine editions of the classics even now show. Their aim, however, was to advance in literary culture and investigation only so far as compelled to meet the demands of the time, and this influence is evident in all the clergy schools I have visited on the Continent. They are, however, devoted teachers and refined men as a rule, and their refining influence on the minds of their pupils is probably more prized than more strictly educational objects. It has not been difficult in Italy to sequestrate their countless monasteries and scatter the inmates because they fulfilled no admitted requirements; but who, regarding some of their gigantic piles of collegiate buildings, such as those of Bordeaux for example, can find places and trusted teachers for the scattered classes? It is a complicated question of national policy and freedom of conscience that will tax the powers of the wisest men.

The worst of it is that Rome herself practically allows no conscience clause. Well do I recollect the working at a certain hospital in a large city of France (itself built under the influence and largely at the cost of an Englishman), where the management was placed in Ultramontane keeping. I shall ever speak of all connected with it with reverence and esteem, but should never again care to visit another institution subject to Ultramontane influence and an Ultramontane conscience clause.

Yes, Paris is certainly a fine town. "See Paris and live," says the proverb; and if I were asked what is its special endowment, I should say it is a town where the Empire of the Senses is supreme, each of which in turn it claims to have elevated and refined, to have rendered it a more perfect organon more capable of appreciating the stimulus peculiar to each.

This perfection of the organon in certain of the senses contributes to the savant formation of what is called taste or gout. It is probably this exquisite perceptibility, this high capacity for developed and refined sensation, constituting gout, that accounts for much of the characteristic versatility, and renders the long continuance of any one influence, whether political or social, too much for the sensibility of its nerves to sustain.

Die of a rose in aromatic pain may be only a poetical expression, but in this case it would no doubt express a real truth. How deeply soever adored may be the object, the time soon arrives when satiety sets in, when the lover tires,

"Dum plenus languet amator."

The system whether social or human which does best for this work-a-day world, is one whose organisation is not too highly perfected, such a constitution better bears the chain of every day duty, and more accords with that best of companions, a mind conscious of rectitude. Both, however, have excellent qualities, and each may learn from the other.

A social intercourse in its higher forms, which is only a form of sensuous enjoyment, is claimed by the French as not the least of their peculiar sciences, and doubtless it enters into all their social relations, softening where it cannot elevate, and charming even when it stoops to conquer. However that may be, France through Paris has established that social sensuous influence to which we all readily bow, and reigns an Empress—

"Pleased with herself whom all the world can please."

CONSECRATION OF THE CLAPHAM LODGE, No. 1818.

THE inauguration of a new Lodge is at all times a pleasant task to take part in, but when the first night gives evidence of a most promising future, it is one of the most gratifying privileges of the Craft. Such was the case on Tuesday, when several distinguished brethren assembled for the purpose of dedicating and opening the Clapham Lodge, No. 1818, the meetings of which are to be held at the Alexandra Hotel, Clapham Common. Bro. James Terry Prov. J.G.W. Herts was the brother who had been entrusted by the Grand Master with the duties of the day, and he carried them out in his usual faultless style. Bro. the Rev. R. J. Simpson P.G.C. delivered the oration, and otherwise assisted in the business, while Bro. W. Clarke P.G.D.C. Suffolk acted throughout as a most efficient Director of Ceremonies. The consecration having been completed, Bro. Louis Hirsch was placed in the chair as the first Master of the Lodge, and he invested the following brethren to assist him in the conduct of affairs:—Dr. Charles T. Pearce S.W., Archibald Fairlie J.W., Robert F. Fairlie Treas., W. Worrell Sec., Alfred Pocock S.D., W. Carlton Hale J.D., R. Clay Sudlow I.G. The ceremony was continued, and in due course the Master proceeded to close his Lodge. Before doing so he proposed that the hearty thanks of the members and honorary membership of the Lodge be offered to Bros. Terry, Simpson, Buss, Dixon and Clarke, for the assistance they had rendered in the establishment of the Lodge. This was seconded by the S.W. and carried unanimously. Bro. Terry acknowledged the compliment on behalf of himself and the other consecrating Officers. They trusted that the Lodge would be a great success, and that in years to come they might have an opportunity of visiting it, and witnessing a most prosperous assemblage. The names of five gentlemen for initiation, and one brother for joining were handed in, and the Lodge was closed, it being announced that an emergency meeting of the Lodge would be held on Tuesday, the 1st July, at half-past five, for the purpose of taking the ballot for the several candidates proposed at the first meeting, and for initiating those eligible. The brethren adjourned to banquet, which was well served. After grace had been sung by Brothers Henry Ashton, G. T. Carter, F. H. Cozens, and A. Hubbard, to whom the musical arrangements of the day were entrusted. The first toast given by the W.M. was that of the Queen and the Craft. No body of Englishmen welcomed this toast with more loyalty and greater warmth than our ancient and honourable fraternity, and he therefore called upon the brethren to drink to the long life and happiness of Her Majesty in a bumper. This was followed by the National Anthem. In giving "The M.W.G.M. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," Bro. Hirsch alluded to the excellencies of that Brother, and pointed out the benefits derived by Masons in having him at the head of affairs. The period during which H.R.H. had ruled over the Craft had been one of continued progress, and he trusted that such might long continue. With the toast the W.M. coupled the health of the Princess of Wales and the rest of the Royal Family. The toast of the Pro G.M. the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon was always received in Masonic assemblies with great favour. The Earl is well known, as one of the most energetic Freemasons in England. The health of Lord Skelmersdale D.G.M. and the rest of the Grand Officers Present and Past followed. The Freemasons of this country have, the W.M. said, every reason to be thankful to the Grand Officers for the great interest they take in promoting the welfare of the Craft. With this toast was coupled the names of Bros. Simpson and Buss. Bro. Simpson tendered the thanks of the Grand Officers for the honour that had been paid them. For himself, he was extremely gratified at the way in which he had been received. Masonic Lodges owed, as did most other things in this life, much of their prosperity to a good start. He could compliment the brethren on the beginning they had made, and felt sure it could have but one result. He then proceeded to dilate on what he was pleased to term his hobby—the Charities. Our rev. brother's peculiar ideas on this subject are well known, and it is equally well known that they are antagonistic to the views entertained by the Craft at large; it will not therefore be surprising to know that the brethren did not express concurrence therewith. In fact, some disapprobation was evidenced in consequence of our rev. brother advocating the attendance of members at the un-Masonic meeting of the Charity Organisation Society at the very hour that a really Masonic gathering was to take place at the Alexandra Palace in aid of the funds of our Boys' School. Bro. Buss followed, and paid a compliment to the brethren now at the head of Masonic affairs. He expressed the pleasure he felt at having been able to take a part in the consecration of the Lodge, which he hoped would have a most prosperous career. Bro. Terry, in the absence of any Past Master, proposed the health of the W.M., detailing his varied labours on behalf of the Craft and its members, but particularly in the cause of Charity. He had for some time past given a prize to the Girls' School for the best knowledge of the German language, and in other ways supported our institutions. His position as first W.M. of the Lodge was far from easy. It was necessary for him to consolidate the interests of all the brethren who had united with him in the foundation of the Lodge, and generally lay down plans of operation for the future. He felt assured that every duty would be discharged in the most satisfactory manner, and that the heads of our Order would never have occasion to regret having granted a Warrant to Bro. Hirsch and his colleagues. The W.M. having thanked those present for their hearty reception, assured them that no effort on his part should be spared to ensure the proper discharge of the duties entrusted to him. It would ever be his endeavour to promote the happiness and interests of the members, and he trusted that at the expiration of his year of office he might hand over the Warrant of the Lodge to his successor pure and unsullied. He next called upon the brethren to honour the toast of the Consecrating Officers. The members of the Clapham Lodge had, he considered, every reason to be deeply grateful to Bro. Terry and those who had so kindly assisted him in the ceremony of the day. He personally felt greatly indebted to them for their kind advice, generous expressions, and hearty co-operation. Bro. Terry replied: He was pleased to learn that in the discharge of their duties the consecrating officers had given satisfaction. They were amply repaid for the little trouble they had gone to by receiving such hearty thanks as had been accorded both in Lodge and at the banquet table. If at any future time there was anything they could do to further the interests of the Lodge, they would be only too pleased to do it. The toast of the Visitors followed. The Master was pleased to see so many distinguished brethren present, but most sincerely regretted that no members of the Royal Leopold Lodge, which had so kindly recommended the warrant for their own, were among them. He felt he need hardly assure the guests that they were most heartily welcome, nor that it would give the members great pleasure to see them again at one or other of their meetings when they might have an opportunity of judging how the members were able to perform the work of a Lodge. Bro. J. Morrell replied. The W.M. now proposed Prosperity to the Masonic Charities, advising those who had never visited our institutions to go and see for themselves what good was being done. He trusted the Masonic Charitable Institutions would long be considered worthy of the support of the Order, and was sure that the brethren of the Clapham Lodge would make every effort to promote their interests. As a substantial proof of this, he was pleased to announce that it was the wish of the Lodge that he should represent them as a Steward at the next Festival of the Benevolent Institution, on which occasion he hoped to take up a substantial amount. Bro. J. Terry, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, replied. In the course of his speech he referred to the remarks made by Rev. Bro. Simpson. He assured the brethren that very much was required of the Craft, more, in fact, than they had done in the past. He hoped that the exertions of the W.M. would be the means of adding considerably to the funds next year, and that on many occasions the brethren of the Clapham Lodge would show the true Masonic spirit of charity. With great pleasure the W.M. rose to propose the health of the Officers. Not the least part of the satisfaction he felt at the day's proceedings was the knowledge that he was supported by earnest and zealous officers, brethren who had undertaken with himself the arduous duties and great responsibilities of bringing the Lodge into life. He felt assured the Officers would do all in their power to cement the ties of brotherhood by their good working and understanding of our beautiful rites and ceremonies, and thereby promulgate the great truths of Freemasonry, to the glory of God and benefit of our fellow-creatures. For the assistance he had received from each of the founders he desired to tender his best thanks. He specially referred to the way in which Bro. Worrell had fulfilled the duties of Secretary, and hoped the Lodge would have his assistance for many years. Bro. S.W. replied, tendering the thanks of his fellows for the reception that had been accorded them. He was a young Mason, but hoped that he should prove himself efficient in the duties required of him. Bro. J.W. followed. He felt that he could not have done better than join the brethren who had laid the foundation of this Lodge, and hoped he might be spared to prove that he was worthy of the position that had been accorded him. Bro. Worrell assured the brethren that he should endeavour to carry out the business of his office in such a way as would ensure their approval. He complimented the Master and his assistants on the way in which the duties had been performed; he should have thought that all of the officers were Past Masters, or at least brethren who had served their respective offices before; but when it came to be known that all were new to the work, he considered that especial praise was due. He referred to the many previous applications which had been made for a Lodge for the district, all of which he said had been refused, so that he considered the Grand Lodge must have a good opinion of the petitioners to whom they had granted the Warrant under which the meeting of the day had been held. Bro. Sudlow also replied. The W.M. was about to rise and pay the honours, and a special toast to the originator of the Clapham Lodge (Bro. Alfred Pocock), who is highly esteemed by the founders, and greatly valued by the W.M., but the exigencies of the train services precluded the possibility of the visitors remaining, consequently Bro. Reinhardt, the Tyler, was summoned, and he gave the usual closing toast. The visitors present were Bros. H. Massey P.M. 619, J. Morrell P.M. 111 P.P.G. Sup. of Works Durham, A. R. Cranch 1216, F. H. Cozens 1216, A. Hubbard 813, G. J. Wright 1426, W. Clarke 114 P.G.D.C. Suffolk, H. Ashton 1185, R. J. Simpson 10 P.G. Chap., H. Sadler G. Tyler, H. G. Buss Asst. G. Sec., J. Terry P.G.J.W. Herts, F. Mead P.M. Ionic, J. H. Watts P.M. 1201, John Dixon P.M. 73, G. E. Goodinge 171, A. G. Taylor P.M. 1201, L. D. Berry P.M. 179, W. W. Morgan jun. 1385, E. J. Harty P.M. 1201, &c.

The usual Summer Entertainment to the Old Folks at the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons, Croydon, will take place on Tuesday next, the 1st of July. A special second class carriage will be reserved by the 3.28 p.m. train from Charing Cross, or 3.38 from Cannon-street, for East Croydon. These gatherings are always of a pleasant character, and from the arrangements made by our indefatigable Bro. Terry we are convinced this will prove no exception to the rule.

It would hardly be possible to have chosen a more opportune time than the present, when public attention has been thoroughly aroused as to the general state of agriculture, for the publication of a comprehensive work on Dairy Farming. Such a work, written by Prof. Sheldon, and dealing exhaustively with the subject, will, we find, be issued by Messrs. Cassell, Petter and Galpin, contemporaneously with the opening of the great International Show at Kilburn.

After the Lodge was closed, the Festival of St. John was celebrated, and the brethren separated after a pleasant and enjoyable evening.

ABBEY LODGE, No. 1184.

NEVER since the Consecration of this Lodge in 1867 has it had such a meeting as on Thursday, the 19th instant, when Bro. W. Lamborn P.M. P.P.G.P. was installed W.M. The success must be attributed chiefly to the honour paid the Lodge by the visit of the R.W. P.G.M. of Sussex and his Officers. The installation was ably performed, in an impressive manner, by the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, there being upwards of twenty-four installed Masters on the Board. On the readmission of the brethren, the new W.M. was saluted in due form. Bro. Lamborn then invested his Officers, viz.:—C. D. Jones I.P.M., E. R. Clarke S.W., J. B. Sargent J.W., J. H. Wells P.M. Treasurer, C. W. Duke P.M. Sec., C. R. Chandler P.M. D. of C., J. Fielding O., A. D. Womersley S.D., R. H. Keeley J.D., J. Fisher I.G., F. Jesson Tyler. Visitors present were—Sir Walter W. Burrell, M.P., P.G.M. of Sussex, John H. Scott D.P.G.M., V. Freeman P.G. Sec., C. Tomkinson P.G.S. of W., J. M. Kidd P.G.D. of C., J. Farncomb P.G.S.B., A. King P.G.O., W. T. Neel P.G.P., A. Davey P.M. 732, Sanderman W.M. 1636, J. H. Coates P.M. No. 949 P.P.G.P. Durham, and a number of brethren from Hastings and Rye. After the close of the Lodge the brethren, numbering about 60, adjourned to the George Hotel to banquet. The chair was filled by Bro. Lamborn, supported by the Prov. G.M. and his Officers, and a number of Past Masters. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to. Sir Walter W. Burrell, in responding to the toast of the R.W. P.G.M. of Sussex, made a truly Masonic and able speech, referring to the great increase of Masonic professors since the accession of the Prince of Wales to the Grand Mastership. During the evening many kind things were spoken of the W.M., I.P.M., and Past Masters of the Lodge. The Tyler's toast concluded a happy meeting, that will be long remembered by those present.

PERCY LODGE, No. 1427.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge took place on the 17th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Maple Street, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Bro. Bertram P. Ord W.M. in the chair opened the Lodge, supported by the Officers and a large gathering of brethren, amongst whom were P.M.'s J.C. Mowbray, J. H. Bentham, R. L. Armstrong, &c. The minutes of the last Lodge being confirmed, the Treasurer submitted his report, which was most satisfactory. Bro. W. S. Lishman, the W.M. elect, was then presented to the W.M., and received at his hands the benefit of installation. The usual formalities having been gone through, a board of Installed Masters was formed and the ceremony proceeded with. Upon the brethren being re-admitted, the W.M. was proclaimed and saluted. The new W.M. then appointed and invested the following brethren as his Officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. B. P. Ord I.P.M., John Braithwaite S.W., C. A. Bushell J.W., Rev. J. Walker Chaplain, B. J. Thompson P.G.S. Treasurer, G. E. Macarthy Sec., W. Magall S.D., H. Dixon J.D., J. Maclared I.G., R. Ferry Organist, F. Ferrina S.S., R. Braithwaite J.S., G. S. Sims Tyler. Bro. Ord, the Installing Master, then gave the several addresses; his working of the ceremony was most impressive, and rarely have we heard it rendered so well. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Queen's Head Hotel, where they sat down to a capital dinner. Full justice having been done to it, and grace said, the W.M. gave the Loyal toasts, followed by that of His Royal Highness the M.W.G.M. and the Officers of Grand Lodge. The next toast on the list was that of Earl Percy and the Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Northumberland, followed by the P.G.M. and Officers of the P.G.L. of Durham. In replying to this toast, Bro. E. D. Davis P.P.G.S.W. sure the good feeling that existed between the Provinces would be cemented by the organisation of the joint Charity fund. Bro. Ord, the I.P.M., then rose to propose the health of the W.M.; in doing so he assured the brethren that it had given him great pleasure to instal the W.M. that day, and that it was not often a person has the pleasure of knowing that the chair will be better filled by his successor. He wished him a successful year, and he hoped Bro. Lishman might resign the chair with as much regret as he had that day, and also with the pleasure of installing his successor. The W.M., who on rising was received with cheers, expressed the gratification he felt at the compliment paid him, the more so after the wonderful escape he had, with the help of the G.A.O.T.U. passed through, when he was not able to look after himself, and he felt deeply the confidence the Lodge had placed in him. He had only become a Mason late in life, but it was the one wish of his heart that he might be of benefit to the Craft; he could at that moment only thank them sincerely. Bro. Davis, on rising, said he had the honour to propose the next toast. The Percy Lodge was comparatively young, but by the Treasurer's account it was flourishing, but its prosperity was due to the way its concerns were managed. The proceedings that day had gratified him, as well as every brother on the dais. Every Officer had worked well, zealously, and honestly, and it was in consequence of having a Master at their head who was competent. All knew him well, and he was often more inclined to say a word of reproof than of compliment. He would not compliment a man whom he thought was not entitled to it. Under these circumstances he then gave the health of their I.P.M., a Brother worthy of their respect and confidence, and he trusted they would all copy the example he has set them. Bro. Ord thanked them very much. He felt it was gratifying to him that his efforts had been appreciated, and took it as a high compliment that Bro. Davis said he could not find fault with him. He assured the brethren that his efforts would not lax with regard to the Lodge, and if he was spared it would always be his aim to forward the interests of the Lodge. The Past Masters next received their meed of praise, to which Bro. Mowbray replied. Bro. R. Holmes next gave the past and present officers, paying them some well-deserved compliments; to this the S.W. replied in a few well-chosen remarks. The Visitors also received a welcome from the W.M., which was suitably responded to. The Tyler's toast then brought a pleasant evening to a close, which had been enlivened by some capital harmony, rendered by Bros. Ord, Holmes, Ferry, Lishman, and Simons. The Visitors were Bros. E. D. Davis 659 P.P.G.S.W., R. Holmes P.M. 659 P.P.G.J.W., Thomas P.P.G.S.W. Lancashire, Challener P.P.G.S.W., R. Eynon P.M. 481 P.P.G.P., W. Monday P.M. 406 P.P.G.P., R. G. Salmon S.W. 406, J. Wood S.W. 48, R. Simons S.W. 1626, Watson S.W. 481, Duckett S.D. 481, and S. M. Harris Sec. 406.

EVENING STAR LODGE, No. 1719.

A MONTH since we had the pleasure to record a meeting of this new Lodge, when the proceedings were of a most gratifying character. The installation meeting, held on Tuesday last, was equally successful. As we stated when last we wrote, the members of this Lodge belong to a "class," consequently all who join the brotherhood under the glimmer of the Evening Star must bring with them certain credentials. A special feature we heard commented on at the gathering on Tuesday was, that the brethren hold but four meetings in the year, and these are fixed for the months of March, April, May and June. This peculiarity may be explained by the special nature of the engagements of those associated with the Lodge. The members are all connected in some way or other with Gas or its belongings; they do not assemble from any given locality, but from all parts of the country; consequently, the dates selected for the Lodge to hold meetings are days when there is not so much claim on the time of the members. Moreover, with this particular section it is a season when conferences are organised, arrangements made for holding consultation meetings, and lastly, the claims consequent upon required attendances at Parliamentary Committees, &c. These are some of the reasons urged by the promoters for holding their limited gatherings at periods so closely allied. Having thus far wandered from our direct course, in order to explain what appeared to some whom we met anomalous, we now proceed to detail the particulars of what transpired. The Lodge was opened at five o'clock by the W.M. Bro. Thomas N. Kirkham, who was supported by his Officers, a large majority of the members, and the following Visitors:—Bros. John Methven J.D. 452, Chas. M. Ohren I.G. 452, W. R. Jones (Maryhill, Scotland) 510, J. W. Baldwin P.M. 1423 P.G.P. Middlesex, Joseph Aird Britannic, Robert Harris 25, J. Sampson Peirce P.M. 2 P.G.S., H. Garman 657, Edward Wharton 1706, W. W. Morgan Sec. 211, Osman Vincent P.M. 1547, E. E. Phillips 475, W. R. Phillips 475, W. E. Wilkins 140, E. Moss 1706, F. Mead 212, Henri de Solla 1017, H. Massey P.M. 619, and W. H. Bale 87. The minutes of last meeting were read, confirmed and signed. The Treasurer then called on the members to pay over subscriptions and fees due to the Lodge. The resignation of two members was announced, and the same was accepted with regret. The Special Committee then presented their Report, when Bro. Magnus Ohren moved that the same, with the balance-sheet, be received, adopted and entered upon the minutes, and that it be printed and circulated. This was seconded by Bro. Jas. Glaisher, and carried unanimously. Bro. J. W. Sugg P.M. then took the chair as Installing Master, and the W.M. elect, Bro. John Aird, was presented and received the benefits of installation. Bro. Sugg is a competent worker, and on this occasion his rendering of the ceremony was most perfect. The W. Master invested the following as his Officers for the year:—Brothers William Sugg S.W., T. A. Greene J.W., Jas. Glaisher Treasurer, 1st Steward, Edward Hyde 2nd Steward, Charles T. Speight Tyler. The "parts" of Senior Deacon and Junior Deacon were apportioned respectively to the worthy brethren who held the emblems of Treasurer and Secretary, but we question whether this "doubling" is conformable with the Book of Constitutions; perhaps some of our correspondents may feel inclined to give us their views on this point. Doubtless the reason why members of Evening Star adopt this course is, that they desire Officers to go forward in rotation for the Master's chair, but we repeat we scarcely think they are in order. Bro. Sugg then delivered the addresses, and on taking his seat was complimented by the W.M. and visitors for the ability he had displayed. On notice of motion by Bro. J. W. Sugg D.C., a P.M.'s jewel was proposed to be given to Bro. Thos. N. Kirkham on his leaving the chair, as a mark of respect from the members. This was seconded by the W.M. Bro. John Aird, and unanimously agreed to; whereupon the presentation was formally made, and a suitable acknowledgment offered by Bro. Kirkham. Three new members were then proposed, and the Lodge closed, and was adjourned to the fourth Tuesday in March 1880. The brethren and their guests now sat down to a capital banquet, which Bro. Best personally superintended; he was ably seconded by his lieutenant, Bro. Dawkins, and justice was done to the good things provided. The after proceedings were of a highly gratifying character, the W.M. presiding in a hearty and genial spirit; the toasts were ably introduced, and heartily acknowledged. Bro. Filer replied for the Grand Officers, and expressed regret that the ill-health of Bro. John Hervy Grand Secretary had prevented the attendance of that highly esteemed Mason. Bro. Kirkham proposed the health of the W.M., who in his reply modestly remarked that he would strive to uphold the dignity of the Lodge, and respect the wishes of its members. For the Visitors Bro. Peirce acknowledged the indebtedness of those present for the courtesy and hospitality shown them. Bro. Kirkham responded for the Past Masters, and the next toast that called for recognition was the health of the Installing Master. A feature of the evening was the amusing and witty reply of Bro. Sugg, who for the nonce assumed the character of Mrs. Gamp, and introduced into his speech the peculiarities of that estimable lady. We should have liked to reproduce his verses in extenso, but pressure on our space precludes our so doing. The Masonic Charities were not overlooked, and Bro. Winn in reply ably advocated their claims. The worthy Treasurer descanted ably on the duties pertaining to his office, most impressively urging on the members that they should never permit him to allow them to get in arrears with their subscriptions. Bro. W. Sugg acknowledged the honour that had been paid the Officers by the recognition the Worshipful Master made of their services, and then Bro. Speight was called on for the final toast. Through some slight misunderstanding, a double company of musical artistes assembled; however, they were brothers, and in a brotherly spirit joined heart and voice to make the evening pass off pleasantly. It would be useless to ennumerate all the good songs, &c., that were sung, we will therefore specially mention Bro. Edward Wharton's "The Mariners;" Bro. H. De Solla's "Sally in our Alley;" Bro. Edwin Moss's "Only for thee;" Bro. Charles Ohron's "The Gauntlet;" the duet "Albion," by Bros. Moss and Wharton. Miss Jessie Royd was in capital voice, and Miss Belville contributed to the enjoyment of the guests. All were indebted to Bro. H. De Solla, who acted most efficiently as accompanyist.

MARK MASONRY.

MACDONALD MARK MASTERS LODGE, No. 104.

THIS Lodge held its annual Festival and Installation meeting at the Guildhall Tavern, E.C., on Friday, the 20th inst., and although, from a variety of circumstances, the attendance was not so numerous as at former similar meetings, the entire proceedings were of a most satisfactory nature, and fully upheld the well-known reputation and prestige of the Lodge as one of the principal exponents of the working of Mark Masonry. The W. Bro. North Ritherdon W.M. opened his Lodge at the hour appointed, assisted by the V.W. Bro. James Stevens P.G.J.O. P.M. as Senior Warden (in the absence of Bro. E. Moody, now fulfilling a business engagement in America), the V.W. Bro. D. M. Dewar P.G.M.O. and Assistant Grand Secretary J.W., W. P. Collins M.O., F. H. Cozens S.O., N. I. F. Basnett J.O., W. C. Hale S.D., George Yarley R.M., W. Bro. W. Worrell P.G. Organist Secretary, the V.W. Bro. Thomas Meggy P.G.M.O. Treasurer, and other Officers. There were also present the W. Bro. Alfred Williams P.M. P.G.S., W. Johnston, T. de Leliva, J. B. Humphrey, T. W. Simons, &c.; and amongst the Visitors, in addition to Bro. Dewar, Bros. T. Mortlock P.G.O.G., J. Gilby 22, and H. Caston 166, The minutes of the previous regular meeting and emergency having been confirmed, the W. Bro. George Ward Verry was duly presented for installation, and installed in the chair of A. by Bro. Meggy, who was assisted, as D.C., by Bro. Stevens. The Officers for the ensuing year were appointed in the following order:—Bros. W. P. Collins S.W., F. H. Cozens J.W., N. I. F. Basnett M.O., George Yarley S.O., W. C. Hale J.O., J. Pitt R.M., W. Worrell P.M. Secretary, T. Meggy P.M. Treasurer, W. Johnston S.D., T. de Leliva J.D., T. W. Simons I.G., James Stevens P.M. D.C., J. B. Humphrey Steward. The concluding addresses were ably rendered by Bro. Stevens, and the new W.M. then presented to Bro. North Ritherdon a P.M. jewel, in recognition of his services during the past year. Letters of apology and regret for inability to attend were read, and especially one from Bro. Moody, who, but for his important engagement abroad, would have been installed as W.M. on this occasion. Several candidates were proposed for advancement at ensuing meeting, and some ordinary routine business having been disposed of, the Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet, under the presidency of the new W.M., Bro. Verry. In the course of the responses some able addresses were given by Bro. Dewar, on behalf of the Visitors, and by two or three of the Past Masters, and further success and progress for the Lodge foreshadowed by arrangements made for securing its continued efficiency of working and additional strength of membership. There being several talented professional brethren amongst its members, the meetings of the Lodge are always characterised by excellent musical entertainments, under the direction of Bro. Cozens, and on this occasion nothing was wanting to secure the pleasure and gratification of all present, Good order and correct working in the Lodge, under an able W.M., a liberal table, provided by the esteemed Treasurer, Bro. Meggy, and excellent harmony, conducted by a skilled professor, always tend to make an Installation Festival of the Macdonald a treat in Mark Masonry not easily to be found elsewhere.

CONSECRATION OF THE UNITED MANCHESTER LODGE OF ARK MARINERS, NO. 34.

THIS Lodge, founded by several of the leading Mark Masons in Manchester, and intended to unite still more closely in the bonds of friendship the three Mark Lodges of that city, was solemnly consecrated on Saturday the 14th inst., by that well known master of ceremonial our Bro. C. F. Matier 30° P.G.W., &c., who was specially appointed by M.W.G.M.M.M., to officiate. The brethren of the Ark Mariners degree, viz., Bros. C. F. Matier, Thos. Entwisle, G. P. Brockbank, Wm. The founders of the New Lodge were then addressed by the consecrating officer, after which the petition and Warrant having been read by the D. of C. and the brethren present having signified their approval of the Officers nominated, the oration of the degree was most effectively given by Bro. G. P. Brockbank. The procession was then formed, Bro. Hine bearing corn, Bro. Entwisle wine, Bro. Robberds oil, and Bro. Rowe salt, and after the usual proclamation the Lodge was dedicated and consecrated in due form by Bro. Matier, the musical portion of the ceremony being most effectively rendered by Bro. H. T. Robberds P.P.G. Organist. Bro. Wm. Rowe was then presented as W. Com. N. designate, and the brethren below that rank having retired, was formally installed as N. After the readmission of the brethren Bro. Julius Arensberg was unanimously elected as Treasurer, and the newly installed N. appointed and invested his Officers as follow:—Bro. Middleton as J. Bro. Matier, Entwisle and Brockbank were elected honorary members of the Lodge, and a hearty vote of thanks recorded to them for their kind services. Hearty good wishes were expressed from several brethren, and the Lodge was closed in peace and harmony with solemn prayer at 5. p.m. The brethren afterwards adjourned to refreshment, and a pleasant evening was spent, all separating at an early hour.

COMMITTEE MEETING OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

THE General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls was held on Thursday afternoon, at the Freemasons' Hall. There were present—Bros. J. A. Rucker (in the chair), H. A. Dubois, E. Letchworth, Griffiths Smith, R. B. Webster, H. Massey, James Peters, Edward Cox, H. Potter, J. J. Caney, and F. R. W. Hedges Secretary. After the reading and confirmation of the minutes, five petitions were read, and the candidates were placed on the list for October. This list contains forty-eight names, out of which there will be vacancies in the Institution for eleven. A notice of motion, however, was given for Col. Creaton for adding another seven, and thus increase the number of elected children in the Institution 200. The Committee, after some formal business, adjourned.

ROYAL MASONIC BOYS' SCHOOL CRICKET CLUB.

ON Wednesday, May 14th, a match was played on the College House Ground, amid wretched weather, play being stopped several times during the afternoon. The match resulted in a walk over for the Masonic boys, by 137 runs to 29. On Saturday, May 17th, a game was played on the School Ground with the boys of the Grocers' Company's School, victory again resting with the M.C.C. The return match with the latter team was played on the Alexandra Palace Ground, on Friday, 20th inst., when the Grocers were defeated a second time. The return match between the College House team was played on the C.H.C.C. Ground on the 23rd inst., when the Masonic team succeeded in beating their opponents in an innings, with some runs to spare.

and W. Rose 1545. Letters of apology were received from Bros. C. Scorer 297 P.G.S.B., C. A. Kirby 712 P.G.S. of W., J. Mawer W.M. 712, W. Waddingham W.M. 1447, F. R. Sutton W.M. 1282, T. Cleugh 1282, P.G.S., M. Woodall 1447 P.G.S., F. Higgins I.P.M. 1600, and F. R. W. Hedges Sec. R.M.I.G. Every Lodge in the Province, save one, Isle of Axholme 1482, Epworth, was represented, 197 brethren having signed the attendance sheet. The proceedings of the day commenced as early as 9.30 a.m., when the P.G. Charity Committee met for the purpose of selecting the most eligible candidate out of four boys to receive the support of the Province during the ensuing year. A very large majority of the committee were in favour of William Black, of Grimsby, who was vigorously supported by Bros. J. Sutcliffe and Robinson his proposer, who was consequently declared elected to receive the full benefit of the voting power of the Province, and a strong desire was shewn to obtain the admission of two of the other boys by purchase. Some fear having been expressed by the supporters of little Black, that in the event of the other boys obtaining their admission by purchase, their candidate would be in a worse position than he would have been without the voting power of the Province, Bro. Robinson 792 P.P.G.J.D. asked what would be the result if Black were not elected next October? The reply of Bro. Radley 838, the esteemed Secretary of the P.G. Charity Committee, was characteristic of his determination and devotion to Freemasonry, and was acknowledged by the brethren with the warmest applause. He said, "If I say Black goes in next October, he will go in." The Report of the last year shewed that the Province of Lincolnshire had a fair share of the benefits arising out of the three central Charities. The reports from both Boys' and Girls' Schools being very satisfactory, one boy, Wellington, having taken honours last December at the Cambridge Middle Class Examination, while the Committee were glad to say that at the last Election of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, Henry Wardale, Tyler 792, had been successful in gaining admission. The Report was adopted, and ordered to be presented to Prov. Grand Lodge for confirmation. At 10.30 the Committee of Prov. G. Lodge Fund of Benevolence were called together, Bro. W. H. Smyth R.W. P.G.M. in the chair. The minutes of the last meeting, held at Grimsby, 11th July 1878, were then read and confirmed. The Treasurer's accounts showed a sum of £600 now invested in freehold security, and a balance in hand of £166 18s 1d. On the proposition of Bro. E. Loocock W.D.P.G.M., seconded by Bro. H. Watson 297 P.G. Reg., the accounts were adopted. A petition was presented by the Lindsey Lodge, No. 712, on behalf of Bro. Wm. Somerton, who for many years had been in a very weak state of health, and often incapacitated for business. On the proposition of Bro. Radley 838 P.G. Charity Sec., seconded by Bro. C. M. Nesbitt P.G. Treas., the sum of £20 was unanimously awarded. Proposed from the chair, at the instigation of Bro. Robert Thorpe I.P.M. 588, "That in order to extend the operations of Provincial Grand Lodge Fund of Benevolence in a more specific manner than at present particularised, the following words be inserted in Rule 1—after children, "as well as for making grants to assist in the education of their children if considered requisite." The proposition was seconded by Bro. W. H. Radley 838 P.G. Charity Secretary, and supported by Bro. C. M. Nesbitt 712 P.G. Treasurer, and carried unanimously. A proposition that the quarterly fees of the brethren to this fund be increased from threepence to sixpence met with no seconder, and was withdrawn. Bro. H. Watson 297 P.G. Reg. proposed, and Bro. E. Loocock 712 D.P.G.M. seconded, "That a special meeting of this Committee be summoned for the purpose of making the necessary alterations of, or additions to, the present Bye-Laws of the P.G. Lodge Benevolent Fund for the due regulation and distribution of the Oliver Memorial Fund;" carried unanimously. Bro. C. M. Nesbitt P.G. Treas. read the accounts of the Oliver Memorial Fund, showing a sum of £1,050 invested in freehold security, and a balance in hand of £22 0s 5d, with a half year's interest falling due almost immediately. It was proposed by Bro. Jack Sutcliffe that the sum of £100 from the P.G. Lodge Fund of Benevolence, and the accumulated interest of the Oliver Memorial Fund be devoted towards the purchase of a vacancy for one or more of the candidates now on the list for admission into the R.M.I.B., but owing to want of time, after an animated discussion, the matter was referred to the special meeting of this Committee before mentioned. At 11.30 the brethren in full Masonic costume, each Lodge being distinguished by its banner, went in procession to the Parish Church, which had been kindly lent by the Rev. Canon Moore for the occasion. Prayers were read by Bros. the Rev. B. Matthews 683 and the Rev. A. W. G. Moore 114 and 469 P.P.G. Chap. Suffolk, and an excellent sermon preached by Bro. the Rev. G. W. Lowe 272 and 469 P.G. Chaplain, from Luke ii. 14. On the return of the procession to the Corn Exchange, Prov. Grand Lodge was opened in due form by the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master W. H. Smyth, Esq., assisted by his Officers. The Roll of Lodges and P.G. Officers having been called, W. Bro. E. Loocock D.P.G.M. proposed, and W. Bro. Rev. Dr. Ace P.P.G.C. seconded, "that the minutes of the P.G. Lodge, held at Grimsby 11th July 1878, be taken as read;" carried unanimously. Bro. H. Watson P.G. Reg. proposed, and Bro. D. Hansen P.G.S.W. seconded, "that the minutes be confirmed;" carried unanimously. W. Bro. C. M. Nesbitt 712 P.G. Treasurer presented his financial statement, showing a balance in hand of £22 11s 5d. On the proposition of W. Bro. H. Watson P.G. Reg., seconded by Bro. D. Hansen P.G.S.W., the statement was adopted. W. Bro. Watson 297 P.G. Reg. presented the returns of the various Lodges in the Province, showing a total of 879 subscribing members, or an increase of five on the year. The Provincial Grand Secretary read the Report of the Committee of the P.G. Lodge Fund of Benevolence, with abstract of accounts, showing a balance in hand of £166 18s 1d; also the accounts of the Oliver Memorial Fund, which, on the proposition of Bro. C. F. Bonner W.M. 469, seconded by Bro. W. H. Sissons 1447, were accepted, and ordered to be printed. W. Bro. W. H. Radley 838 P.P.G.J.W. read the Report of the P.G. Charity Committee, showing a balance in hand of £22 2s 5d, with £5 due. W. Bro. Robert Thorpe I.P.M. 588 rose to urge the advisability of extending the operations of the P. G. Lodge Fund of Benevolence by assisting in the education of the children of Freemasons in the Province by making grants of money for that purpose, in which he was supported by Bro. the Rev. Dr. Ace P.P.G. Chaplain. The question met with the hearty approval of the brethren, whom the R.W.P.G.M. informed that it had already been discussed in Committee, where it had received unanimous support; the minutes of which Committee having since been confirmed by this P.G. Lodge. On the proposition of W. Bro. E. Loocock D.P.G.M., seconded by W. Bro. J. Fowler P.P.G.S.W., it was resolved that Bro. James Hodgins W.M. 985 and Bro. Jack Sutcliffe P.M. 1294 be appointed joint Stewards for the Province, for the purpose of raising a sufficient sum of money, supplemented by grants from the P.G. Lodge Fund of Benevolence and the Oliver Memorial Fund, to obtain the admission by purchase of one or more of the candidates now on the list of the Province into the R.M.I.B. Proposed by Bro. J. Robinson 792 P.P.G.J.D., and seconded by W. Bro. Rev. Dr. Ace 1232 P.P.G. Chaplain—"That a grant of £50 be made from the P.G. Lodge Fund of Benevolence towards such object. Carried unanimously. Proposed by Bro. H. Watson P.G. Registrar, and seconded by Bro. A. Bates P.P.G.D. of C.,—"That Bro. C. M. Nesbitt 712 be re-elected as P.G. Treasurer." Carried unanimously. Proposed by W. Bro. Loocock D.P.G.M., and seconded by Bro. Rev. G. W. Lowe P.G. Chap., "That Bros. J. Fowler 712 P.P.G.S.W. and W. Griffin 712 P.P.G.D. of C. be elected auditors of the P.G. accounts for the ensuing year." Carried unanimously. A vote of thanks was unanimously accorded to the Rev. Canon Moore for the use of the Parish Church, and also to Bro. the Rev. G. W. Lowe P.G. Chap. for his excellent sermon, with a request that he would have it printed.

The following brethren were then appointed and invested as P.G. Officers for the ensuing year:—

* These six brethren were re-appointed.

Hearty good wishes having been expressed, Prov. Grand Lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to a sumptuous banquet, provided by Bro. Harper, of the White Hart Hotel, Spalding, in a marquee erected in the spacious grounds of Ayscoughfee Hall, which had been kindly thrown open to the brethren on this occasion by W. Bro. C. F. Bonner W.M. 469, the generous proprietor. The chair was taken by the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, supported by Bro. Kingston, the Right Worshipful District Grand Master of Malta, W. Bro. E. Loocock D.P.G.M., Bros. W. H. Radley, T. Fowler, W. Clegg, C. Pocklington, A. Bates, T. Coates, J. A. Thomas, Revs. G. W. Lowe, Cecil Sumner, A. W. G. Moore, B. Matthews, Bros. C. M. Nesbitt, H. Watson, Jack Sutcliffe, &c. The vice-chair was occupied by Bro. C. F. Bonner W.M. 469, who, throughout the day, was most earnest in his endeavours to promote the comfort and happiness of his brethren. The musical arrangements at the banquet were in the hands of Bro. Montem Smith, T. G. Carter, and Seymour Smith, and gave unlimited satisfaction. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and the visiting brethren departed for their homes by special trains, most kindly arranged for their benefit, as this enabled the majority to enjoy this most pleasurable day almost three hours longer than would otherwise have been the case. Indeed too much praise cannot be given to the committee of management (under the able leadership of Bro. G. F. Barrell P.M. and Sec. 469 P.G.A.D. of C.) for their excellent arrangements throughout, which were simply perfect, and well deserving of imitation elsewhere. Vouchers were given to each brother who signed the attendance sheet, and no one was allowed in Lodge or could obtain a ticket for the banquet without producing it. The menu card was a curiosity of the Chaucerian age, and we trust that "ye Manciple" who catered so well for the enjoyment of his guests was well rewarded for his trouble.

The Summer Festival of the High Cross Lodge, No. 754, will be held on Wednesday, 16th July, at the Crown Hotel, Broxbourne. Bro. Henry Stephens W.M. of the Lodge will preside at the banquet, which will take place at two o'clock. Tickets can be obtained of the Secretary or of the Stewards, price 15s each. We wish our brethren and their friends a pleasant meeting.

Lister, for his able working on this the first occasion in this Lodge of Instruction. All Masonic business being ended, the Lodge was closed in perfect harmony, and adjourned to Tuesday 1st July.

Percy Lodge of Instruction, No. 198.—Held its usual meeting at Bro. Fysh's, Jolly Farmers, Southgate-road, on Saturday, the 21st, under the presidency of Bro. F. Brasted, who was supported by Bros. J. Lorkin S.W., Fidler J.W., Fenner Sec., Hallam acting Preceptor, Gibbs S.D., Williams J.D., Little I.G., also Bros. J. A. Powell, McMillan, Parks, Adams, C. Lorkin, Garrod, Davies, and Fysh. Formalities were gone through; Bro. McMillan gave satisfactory proof of his proficiency, and was entrusted. Lodge was opened in the third degree, and the ceremony of raising rehearsed by the W.M., in a very correct manner; the ceremony being completed by the recital of the traditional history. Bro. Hallam worked the first and third sections of the Lecture, assisted by the brethren. Lodge was closed down to the first. Bro. Little of the Guelph Lodge 1685 was elected a member; Bro. J. Lorkin was elected to preside at the next meeting, which will be the last before the summer vacation. Lodge was closed and adjourned.

High Cross Lodge, No. 754.—The regular meeting of this Lodge was held at the Seven Sisters', Tottenham, on Wednesday. Bro. Stephens the W.M. presided, and after the usual routine business proceeded, after the ballot had been taken, to initiate Mr. Harry Cooper into the mysteries of Freemasonry. The Bye-Laws of the Lodge were read, and the name of a gentleman for initiation having been given, the W.M. closed his Lodge. The brethren adjourned to supper, which having been partaken of, the usual toasts were given. In introducing that of the Queen, the W.M. referred to the kind sympathy that Her Majesty had shown the Ex-Empress of France in her recent bereavement. The toast was heartily received, and was followed by that of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales Grand Master, with this the W.M. coupled the healths of the Pro G.M., the Deputy G. Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers Past and Present, paying a just compliment to their exertions on behalf of Freemasonry. Bro. J. Wells P.M. assumed the gavel, and had great pleasure in proposing the health of the W.M., whom he complimented for his kind and affable manner, and his general ability in conducting the affairs of the Lodge. Bro. Stephens was, he observed, very near the end of his term of office, and he hoped that whoever might be appointed as his successor would, if possible, be a better man; but he was afraid few could give greater satisfaction than their present Master. After a song, the W.M. rose to reply. He tendered his heartiest thanks for the kindness at all times extended towards him, and hoped to merit a continuance of the favours of the brethren. He had done his best in the past, and was only too pleased to find that it had met the approval of the members. His next duty was a most pleasing one, and one that he felt would merit the heartiest reception from all assembled. It was a great episode in the career of a Lodge to receive a new member among them, and he trusted that the brother who had been initiated that evening would show that he had been impressed with the ceremony performed on his behalf. He could assure him that the more he looked into Freemasonry the more he would find that the brethren were anxious for the welfare of their fellows. Bro. Cooper, in his reply, thanked the brethren for the reception that had been given him. At present he was not in a position to say much of Freemasonry, but he trusted that the more he saw of it the better he should like it, and finally prove himself worthy of the position that had been accorded him. The next toast the W.M. had to propose was that of the Visitors. He considered this a most pleasing part of his duty, as he felt assured that each member was gratified at seeing the guests who had honoured them with their presence. They were not so numerously supported by visitors as they were at the last meeting, but they somewhat made up for quantity by quality. He referred to the exertions the press were making to advance the cause of Freemasonry by reporting the various meetings that took place, and thereby giving brethren who were unable to be present an idea of what was taking place. Bros. G. C. Young 820, J. B. Reid 946, and W. W. Morgan jun. 1385 (FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE), responded to the toast. The W.M. next called upon the brethren to drink to the health of the P.M.'s, whom he thanked for the assistance they at all times rendered the W.M. in carrying out the duties of the Lodge, and hoped they would be among those present at many future meetings. Bro. Wells returned thanks. He considered it the duty of every Past Master to support the Master, and regretted that the present ruler had not been better supported than he had. The health of the Officers was next drunk. Without them the W.M. felt he should have been unable to carry on the affairs of the Lodge—he hoped that he should always have them to assist him. Bro. S.W. replied, after which the Tyler was called, and he gave the concluing toast of the evening. Among those present were Bros. H. Stephens W.M., J. W. Wells, W. Dance, J. Linzell, C. F. Barham, J. Maller P.M.'s, G. Barford S.W., J. Farrier J.W., T. Cunningham Sec., J. H. Thompson J.D., J. Garrod D.C., J. Verry Tyler, A. G. Fidler, A. Bridgman, W. T. Turner, W. S. Cooper, W. F. Stevenson, A. W. The Lodge was opened in ancient form, and minutes of last Lodge meeting read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Young being candidate. The questions leading to the second degree were answered, and the ceremony of passing rehearsed, Bro. Young again acting as candidate. Bro. Taverner was elected W.M. for next meeting. There being no other Masonic business the Lodge was closed in ancient form.

Lord Warden Lodge, No. 1096.—This Lodge held its usual meeting on Friday, 20th inst. There were present:—Bros. John Laggett W.M., E. Kirby I.P.M. and Treasurer, T. Ayling P.M. P.D.C., F. Leith P.M. Lodge was opened punctually at eight o'clock, and the minutes of last regular meeting were read and confirmed. The ballot was taken for Bro. Charles Cruchley Domatic 177, and found to be unanimous in his favour. Bro. G. Band, being a candidate for the second degree, was duly examined; he answered most satisfactorily, and retired. Lodge was opened in the second degree, and the W.M. in a most impressive manner passed Bro. Band. Bro. J.W. gave the charge, and Bro. S.W. the antient lecture, in finished style. A word of praise is due to the whole of the Officers for the steady and efficient manner in which they performed their several duties. Lodge was closed in the second degree. Bro. Usher P.M. announced that he had accepted the office of Steward at the forthcoming Festival on the 25th inst.; he made an urgent appeal to the brethren to assist him in his efforts. Bro. T. Ayling proposed, and Bro. E. Kirby seconded, that five guineas out of the Lodge funds be placed on Bro. Usher's list;—carried unanimously. Lodge was closed in ancient form, and the brethren spent a most pleasant hour together.

Hunter Secretary pro tem, and other brethren, whose names were duly entered in the attendance book. The Lodge was opened in the first degree, and the minutes of last meeting read and confirmed. Bro. Potter, having offered himself as a candidate for raising, was examined as to his proficiency as a F.C., and entrusted; the ceremony of raising was then rehearsed. Bro. Preceptor worked the first, second, and third sections of the lecture in the third degree. Bro. Preceptor was elected W.M. for the ensuing week.

Friars Lodge of Instruction, No. 1349.—The members met at Bro. Pavitt's, Liverpool Arms, Canning Town, on Tuesday. Bros. Worsley W.M., Smith S.W., Shepherd W.M. 1349 J.W. The Lodge was opened in due form, and minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. This being the fourth Tuesday in the month, sections only were worked; the following brethren taking part:—First Spencer, second Smith, third Barker, fourth Johnson, fifth Mc Donald, sixth Andrews. The Lodge then opened in the second degree, when Bro. Barker worked the first, Pavitt the second, Worsley the third, and Smith the fourth, there being not sufficient time to work the remaining sections. Lodge was resumed, when Bros. Slaiter 804, and Ellis 129, were unanimously elected members. In addition to those previously enumerated, there were present Bros. Dixon, Rawe, Johnson, Wright, Sadler, Spencer, McDonald, Dunsmore, Glasspoole, Watson, Barker, Pavitt, Power, White, and Morgan 245. Bro. Andrews kindly officiated as Preceptor, and, assisted by Bro. McDonald, the questions and answers were ably worked, giving pleasure to every one present. We were sorry that neither Bro. Musto nor Bro. Cundick were present; we trust it was not illness that prevented them. Bro. Johnson will preside on Tuesday next.

Egyptian Lodge of Instruction, No. 27.—At 119 Leadenhall-street, E.C., on Thursday. Bros. Woodward W.M., Beedell S.W., Forss J.W., J. Da Silva S.D., Powell J.D., Alvorsen I.G., L. Norden Hon. Sec., Webb Preceptor, and other brethren. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Maidwell candidate. Bro. Da Silva worked the first, second, third, and fourth sections of the Lecture, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Gimingham 1707 was elected a member. Bro. Beedell was appointed W.M. for Thursday next.

St. Michael's Lodge of Instruction, No. 211.—On Thursday, at the George Tavern, Anstralian Avenue, Barbican, the brethren were presided over by Bro. F. Brasted, who was supported by a very efficient staff of officers. The ceremony of the third degree was rehearsed, the W.M. giving the traditional history and explaining the tracing board. The appointments for this Lodge of Instruction have been presented by the members of the mother Lodge, who are anxious to receive the visits of members of the Craft Universal. On Thursday next the W.M., Bro. Alfred Withers, will preside, when the Officers of 211 will fill their respective posts. Lodge opens at eight o'clock.

Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, No. 860.—On Tuesday last, at Bro. Smyth's, Sisters' Tavern, Pownall-road, Dalston. Present:—Bros. Clark W.M., J. Lorkin S.W., Smyth J.W., Carr S.D., Polak J.D., Greenwood I.G., Dallas Sec., Smyth Treas., P.M. Wallington Preceptor. Bros. Forss, Brasted, Allen, Christian, Wardell, C. Lorkin. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Hand candidate. The Lodge was called off, and on resuming labour Bro. Allen worked the first, second, third, and fourth sections of the lecture, assisted by the brethren. A vote of thanks was accorded the W.M., this being the first time he had occupied the chair. Bro. J. Lorkin was elected W.M. for next Tuesday evening.

Falcon Lodge 1416.—The Annual Excursion took place on the 19th inst., the party consisting of Bros. T. J. Wilkinson W.M., Rev. C. E. Camidge P.P.G. Chaplain, G. Ayre P.M., W. Coltman S.W., W. Hale J.W., &c., and a considerable number of ladies. The arrangements were most successfully carried out by the Secretary, Bro. J. Johnson. Carriages were in readiness at Masham Station to convey the visitors to Swinton Park, where they were conducted by Mr. Featherstone through the beautiful grounds of Mrs. Danby Harcourt. After luncheon they proceeded to Jervaulx Abbey, and the interesting ruins were examined, Mr. Maughan (Marquis of Ailesbury's agent) and Mr. Rennie affording much explanatory information. On their return to Masham a substantial and abundant repast was served by Mr. Stickland, at the King's Head Hotel, and the party afterwards inspected the fine Old Church, the Vicar, the Rev. G. M. Graham, M.A., and Mr. Bowes of the Swaledale Bank, contributing much to the enjoyment of the day by their most obliging and courteous attentions.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

ANALYSIS OF THE SUBSCRIPTION LISTS.

THAT the goddess Fortune is as fickle and capricious as ever is plentifully evidenced by the manner in which the barometer rises and falls when the "days of reckoning" come in connection with our several Masonic Charities. It were perhaps vain to sigh for the time when the tide of benevolence shall flow in one even and unvarying stream, and when the managers of our Institutions shall be able to calculate to a nicety the amount of revenue which, while steadily on the rise, will never fluctuate in an opposite direction. The same principle applies to all things mundane; and it is no doubt this which gives a charm and fascination to all matters in which speculation is involved. There are good crops and bad, rising and falling markets, briskness and depression in trade, and the balances are never allowed to remain for long at dead level. And so we prophecy and speculate on the eve of each of our recurring Festivals upon what kind of a harvest will be reaped, and whether the pulse of charity beats quickly or evinces a tendency in the reverse direction. It has been our pride to notice this year that notwithstanding the tightness of the money market, and the inability to give which has proved so disastrous to many other similar institutions, there has been no falling off in the amounts subscribed to the Charities which we regard as our peculiar care; but that, on the contrary, the Stewards' appeals to the brethren have been more vigorously responded to than ever before. We have had the gratification of raising our editorial hat to Bros. Terry and Hedges, and joining in the universal congratulations they have received from all quarters upon the triumphs which have been achieved in behalf of the objects with which they are so worthily associated. The magnificent sums realised for the Benevolent and Girls' Institutions cheered the heart of every truly good Mason, who has faith in the axiom that charity knows no bounds save that of prudence. Nor do we find that the efforts put forth in aid of the Boys' School furnish us with any very strong grounds for anticipating the "gigantic failure" which was hinted at by one of the speakers at the Festival last week. It is well understood that amongst very many Lodges the feeling prevails that if the efforts of the brethren are concentrated one year upon a certain branch of charitable work, they shall by a process of rotation be varied so as to afford an "all-round" help to all. Yet, although it would appear that this year affection has leaned more especially towards "Our Girls" and the "Old Folks," we do not think the lads at Wood Green have been treated at all in a niggardly spirit. Bro. Binckes, who fights like a valiant soldier in any cause that he may espouse, announced at the Alexandra Palace Festival, the other day, that a total of £10,534 3s had been handed in, notwithstanding that twelve lists remained outstanding. Compared with last year, when the Stewards met under all the éclat that attends a Royal presidency, the sum announced at the close of the day's festivities was £10,169, with twenty lists to come in. So that, allowing for the lists which we may reasonably anticipate will be shortly forthcoming, we may fairly assume that the aggregate will be on a par with, if not slightly in excess of, that of last year. It is quite true that, in comparison with the three preceding years—notably 1877, when no less than £13,160 was realised—the support accorded to the Boys' Institution presents a falling off which becomes all the more serious when we consider the heavy obligations which the executive are under since the extension of the school buildings at Wood Green. We can only hope, however, that those and all other contingencies have been duly weighed and provided against, and that the hands of those who have the responsible work to do in the management of the Institution may be generously and heartily strengthened by the brethren generally. One welcome ray of sunshine broke in upon the meeting of Wednesday week, when it was announced that the Grand Lodge of Scotland, through its Past Grand Steward, the zealous and esteemed Bro. C. F. Matier, had sent in the very substantial donation of £204 15s to the fund. We hail this gift from the "land o' cakes" with genuine pleasure; and we cordially echo the sentiments expressed by the Earl of Rosslyn, when he trusted that the dawning interest then evinced by our Northern brethren might tend to heal certain misunderstandings which have doubtless been equally regretted on both sides of the Tweed.

It is not our duty here, however, to enter even superficially into the matter so delicately hinted at by the noble Earl who presided on the occasion, but to take a bird's eye view of the hard and dry facts which were presented in the statistics which were duly printed in the last issue of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE. Last year, the Metropolis was represented by 123 Stewards, of whom 104 appeared for 103 Lodges, whilst three represented as many Chapters, two figured under the head of A. and A. Rite and Mark, and fourteen were unattached. This year we find 105 Stewards respectively appearing for 91 Lodges, two Chapters, and five unattached. The total of their lists, including we presume fifty guineas from the Grosvenor Mark Lodge 144, per Bro. H. C. Levander, G. Reg. and Vice-President of the Institution, amounts to £5,345 1s 6d, as against £4,944 14s last year. This increase of £400 exemplifies that our Metropolitan brethren have by no means fallen out with their "old love," or relaxed in their efforts on behalf of the young lewises who are so hospitably cared for at the Wood Green academy. The place of honour is assigned to the young but vigorous Earl of Carnarvon Lodge, whose pleasant gatherings in the Ladbroke Hall, Notting-hill, have often proved the subject of gratifying record in our columns. That valiant Past Master Bro. George Penn has most pluckily taken up the running this year, and has won in the commonest of canters, swelling the general fund by the magnificent sum of £525. None of the other Lodges have been able to reach even a moiety of that contribution, which places even Bro. F. Binckes and the other Grand Stewards, with their substantial £249 18s, completely in the shade. Coming next in the order of merit is the aristocratic Friends in Council Lodge 1383, championed by Bro. R. W. H. Giddy D.G.M. South Africa, who appears to have fought with a courage almost Zulu—without, of course any of their other propensities!—to raise the credit of his Lodge by sending in £207 2s, the third highest on the poll. Another Vice-President of the Institution, Bro. R. Clutton, so stimulated the members of St. Peter's Lodge at Westminster, 1537, of which he is the honoured Worshipful Master, as to produce a total of £143 10s; whilst his fellow Vice-President, Bro. C. Lacey P.P.G.D. Herts, is next in the order of rivalry, with £135 from the Sincerity Lodge 174. We congratulate the Robert Burns Lodge 25 upon making an appearance on this year's roll of liberal donors, and Bro. G. R. Shervill P.G.S. upon raising his Lodge to so prominent a position amongst the "honourable mentions," with a total of £128 2s. He is overlapped, however, by a solitary sixpence, by Bro. Thomas Stevens P.M. of the Peckham Lodge 1475, which also we do not discover to have figured in last year's return. From the Kilburn Lodge 1608, Bro. Charles Brewer, as Worshipful Master, had the pleasure of celebrating his year of office by a contribution of £118 12s 6d; and it is infinitely to the credit of Bro. Charles Hubbard, considering the peculiar manner in which the Lily of Richmond Lodge 820 has lately been circumstanced, that he should during the second year of his able Mastership have contrived to raise the very creditable sum of £115 10s. This result fairly bears out the anticipations we formed at the time of Bro. Hubbard's installation, when we predicted a new era of prosperity to set in under his wise and discreet rule. Yet another Vice-President appears amongst the favoured twelve "over a hundred" contributors, and Bro. H. Brooks Marshall, of the Royal Hanover 1777—whose efforts as an Apprentice and Fellow Craft we have had occasion similarly to point out in our Analyses—brings up his hundred guineas as pluckily as he did for the Girls and the Benevolent Institution. Bro. Marshall evidently believes in treating them all alike—and certainly if it serves no other end, it is one way of preventing the jealousy that is often provoked by favouritism. Bro. W. Vaughan Morgan P.M. and also a Vice-President, brings £103 19s from the Burlington Lodge 96, whilst Bro. Geo. T. Brown P.M. and Sec. of the Prosperity 65, just comes within the charmed circle, by presenting exactly a hundred pounds. "Very nearly, but not quite," we see Bro. J. A. Farnfield, Vice-President, with £91 17s 6d on behalf of the Unions Lodge 256, while Bro. Thomas S. Mortlock P.M. of the Industry 186 appears for £87. Bro. James Chapman, of the Canonbury 657, for £84; the Worshipful Master of the Constitutional 55 (Bro. S. Pownceby), and Bro. H. A. Rigg, of the Prince of Wales 259, for £81 18s each. From Stockwell Lodge 1339 our well-known Bro. W. G. Brighten brought up £77 13s; and we are promised another contribution from the same direction when his co-steward's (Bro. J. M. Klenck) list is complete. The Old Concord 172 entrusted Bro. A. J. Dottridge P.M. with £78 15s; and La Tolerance 538 sent, through the hands of Bro. Thomas W. Cooper, its S.W., £73 10s. The Worshipful Master of the Macdonald 1216 (Bro. T. W. Carnell) totalled £76 18s; and Bro. Richard T. Kingham, of the Metropolitan 1507, £75 3s 6d. Bro. R. J. Fennell, from the Bromley St. Leonard 1805, "assisted" with £73 10s; and Bro. F. G. Richardson P.G. Steward and Vice-President £70 7s in favour of Bayard Lodge 1615. The remaining Lodges, whose contributions we have not space to allude to in detail, all behaved liberally; and with the nine Metropolitan lists still to come in, we may fairly reckon upon a substantial addition to the sum total already announced. We must not omit to mention the two London Chapters who have participated in this year's "round robin," viz., the Yarborough 554, who sent forward by Bro. John James Berry Z. £63; and the Macdonald 1216, whose Scribe N., A. C. Bradley, took up £23 2s. There is no memorandum this year from the A. and A. Rite, but Bro. H. C. Levander G. Reg. Vice-President, against whose name twenty guineas were placed in the former list to the credit of the A. and A. rite, now figures for fifty guineas, contributed by the Grosvenor Mark Lodge 144, showing that to whatever plough Bro. Levander puts his hand he never looks back.

We observe the names of no less than 98 Stewards representing the 29 contributing Provinces, whose united total was announced at the Festival as £5,189 1s 6d. Last year there were 31 Provinces assisting to make up a total of £5,152 18s 1d; showing that, although there were two more defaulters on this occasion, the aggregate result was a trifle greater. The absentees were Bristol, Cambridge, Cumberland and Westmorland, Herefordshire, Northampton and Hunts, South Wales E., South Wales W., Wilts, Yorks N. and E., Channel Islands, Jersey, and Isle of Man. We have often had occasion to lament the little interest manifested in Masonic charity by our brethren who dwell in the "islands of the sea," who must have peculiar notions about the moral obligations which rest upon them in common with the rest of the brotherhood. At all events their conspicuity is always marked by their absence from the charity lists, and it would seem that all the eloquence and energy of the Secretaries—usually so potent in other quarters—is powerless to move the compassion of our extend a hearty grip to some Lodges whose faces have been hidden from our ken at the Festivals for many years, but who now, we hope, are going to make up for much lost time. We are not disposed to make invidious allusions however, and we assure our readers that the comparisons which are necessary in giving a statistical outline of the various Provinces are made in the utmost friendliness and good faith. Worcestershire, famous for its plums, has given the Boys a rare good "plum" this year, in the shape of £580 13s towards their Institution, and we are very glad to be able to congratulate that county upon standing prominently forward amongst Provincial fruit-bearers. The movement seems to have been taken in hand by two sturdy-hearted Prov. Grand Officers, who have infused unwonted benevolence into the hearts of their followers there. Bro. William Bristow, Prov. G.W. and Prov. Grand Secretary, on behalf of the Harmonic Lodge 252 (Dudley), presents the noble sum of £428 8s; whilst Bro. George Taylor Prov. Grand Purst., as Treasurer of the Hope and Charity Lodge 377 (Kidderminster), adds £152 5s. No doubt the sympathies of the other Lodges in the Province were enlisted in this grand effort, which, to say the least, is most creditable to the county and gratifying to the Craft. The "Garden of England," ever faithful to its Masonic instincts and alive to its responsibilities, sends, from nine out of its forty-three Lodges, £485 0s 6d, as against £478 last year. Bro. Goldsmith, of Chiselhurst, bears away the Kentish honours with a good round £117 1s; the Immediate Past Master of the Acacia 1314 (Bro. J. Wyer) coming next with £84, and the others ranging between £33 and £55. In addition to these sums the Peace and Harmony Chapter 199, sends up from Dover, per Bro. Edward Lukey, £118 13s, showing that the "Continental" port is as alive as ever in its proverbial interest in charitable work. We have so often alluded to the systematic exertions of the men of Kent in this direction that it would be superfluous here to reiterate the praises they have won; and we therefore pass on to the third upon the list—the ever present West Yorkshire, who again gives us a bumper in the shape of a cheque for £400. This comes from thirteen Lodges, represented by twenty-two Stewards; and although slightly below the average contributed by this liberal Province to all the Charities, is nevertheless a substantial evidence of that continuous benevolence which flows from the Western Division of the premier county. We would that their excellent example were contagious, but we are weary of alluding to the stinginess and apathy of the North and East Ridings, who are as usual merely the spectators of the good deeds of their brethren in the West. Gloucestershire sends up, within a pound, precisely the same amount, as to the former Festival, namely £378 10s. Only two out of its fourteen Lodges are represented by the four Stewards whose names are chronicled, Bro. Henry Godfrey V.P. heading the three emissaries from the Foundation Lodge 82 (Cheltenham) with £236 15s. Bro. the Baron de Ferrieres, whose zeal as a young Mason we have had occasion previously to admire, comes next with £94 10s, as J.W. of the same Lodge, whose Worshipful Master (Bro. W. Analow Sole) adds a subscription of ten guineas. The Worshipful Master of the Royal Lebanon Lodge 493 (Bro. A. V. Hatton) brought up £36 15s, thus sustaining to within an ace the average of former years, and continuing the prestige Gloucestershire has always enjoyed for its charitable inclinations, especially in favour of "Our Boys." Berks and Bucks has made a wonderful and most laudable spurt on this occasion, its quota to the Fund being £305 14s, against £53 16s last year. Bro. Dick Radclyffe, always an earnest worker, headed the list in this Province with £131 16s from the Etonian Lodge 209 (Windsor), and he was followed by Bro. Chas. William Cox as Senior Warden of the Ellington 1566 (Maidenhead) with £67 1s. A handy little £42 was brought up by Bro. E. L. Shepherd Prov. G.S.B. from the Abbey Lodge 945; Bro. R. George Barton, of the Windsor Castle Lodge 771, £32 11s; while Bro. J. Reeve, Prov. G.S.B., on behalf of the Watling-street Lodge 1639 (Stony Stratford), is down for £21 16s, in addition to ten guineas from his co-Steward, Bro. Samuel K. Page. This is "excellently well done," Berks and Bucks, and we rejoice at the improving prospects of unity and liberality in your midst. There is no metaphorical "butter" in our allusion to the fine old county of Dorset, where we know so many staunch, true-hearted Masons dwell, when we compliment our Bro. R. N. Howard upon following so well in the ring the benevolent faculties of his fellow countymen. We can imagine the pride of this active Prov. G. Sec., as with a glow upon his face almost vieing with the rose in his button hole, he handed in the sum of £295 2s to the fund. The thirteen Lodges in the county appear to have sent their contributions through one channel, namely, the Portland Lodge, No. 1037, and although the amount is very short of that last sent in, is nevertheless creditable for so small a Province. Derbyshire has been on the onward march since last we alluded to it in reference to the Boys' School; whereas on that occasion the contribution was only £56 14s, it is now swollen up to £227 2s, a little over the quadruple of the sum subscribed in 1878. Only three out of eighteen Lodges were represented, the great bulk of the proceeds coming from the Royal Sussex Lodge 353 (Winshill), from which Bro. G. T. Wright P.P.J.G.W. brought £161 12s, and the Worshipful Master, Bro. W. J. Booth, fifty guineas. Forty and twenty guineas respectively are set down to the account of Bros. W. L. Ball, of the Repose Lodge 802 (Derby), and Percy Wallis, St. Oswald 508. From Staffordshire also we witness a decided mark of progress, the total being £216 5s, against £35 14s last year. It is our invariable custom to report well of this Province, whose generosity is not confined merely to this or the other deserving object, and although on the present occasion only two out of its twenty-one Lodges appear on the list, yet the result is one upon which our brethren in the Potteries are to be complimented. Bro. W. Bayliss, as the Worshipful Master of the St. Matthew's Lodge 539 (Walsall), who is also a Vice-President of the Institution, brought up £183 15s. Some error appears to have crept into the Steward's list as representing Lodge 637, which is down for £32 11s.* No doubt this trifling mistake, which makes no difference in the amount, will be rectified, and the Brother, who is entitled to his "just due," will receive it in formal manner. Eighth in the order of precedence comes Hants and the Isle of Wight, which also presents a very bulky improvement upon its last year's list. Four Stewards were sent up by the thirty Lodges, Bro. T. Benham Provincial G. Purst. being the bearer of fifty guineas from the Panmure Lodge 723 at Aldershot; Bro. J. E. Le Feuvre, Prov. G. Secretary, of £81 18s from the Southampton Lodge 130; Bro. A. Barfield Worshipful Master of Medina Lodge 35 (Cowes), fifteen guineas; and Bro. John Harrison, Prov G.S.W., £23 2s for the Carnarvon Lodge 804 (Havant). From North Wales and Salop, with its twenty-five Lodges, were sent up five Stewards, who amongst them brought up a total of £150 19s as against £169 1s last year; but the Eastern Division of the Province was not represented at this Festival. The Secretaries invariably look, and never in vain, to Warwickshire for a substantial modicum of aid; and last year, we remember, that of all the twenty-six Lodges in the Province the name of only one was absent. By a singular coincidence this year only one was present, namely, the Temperance, 739, from which Bro. J. C. Biermas brought £147 10s. This is considerably below last year's contribution, but the invariable generosity of our Warwickshire brethren forbids any odious comparison. Oxfordshire comes next, with £141 15s, which is nearly double the sum we had to record in 1878. Of its eight Lodges five put in an appearance, headed as usual by the Apollo University No. 357, which entrusted to Bro. the Rev. H. A. Pickard, one of the newly appointed Grand Chaplains, £28 7s. Bro. James Mace Dormer, of the Alfred Lodge 340 (Oxford), follows, with twenty guineas; Bro. John Potts, of the Cherwell 599 (Banbury), with eighteen guineas; and Bro. T. B. Brown, of the Marlborough 1399 (Woodstock), with ten guineas. There is another list promised, by Bro. Thos. E. Withington, of the Churchill Lodge 478 (Oxford), which will of course go to still further increase this year's contribution from the University county compared with that of 1878. Somersetshire, by two out of its nineteen Lodges, sent up £133 8s, of which sum the Worshipful Master of the Agriculture Lodge 1199, Bro. C. L. F. Edwards, furnished £97 13s, and Bro. T. E. Jelley, of the Royal Clarence 976 (Bruton), £35 15s. This county has always consistently discharged its duty to the Charities, and it is consequently needless to refer at greater length than we have already often done in the past to its various aids to the Masonic Institutions. Durham (twenty-five Lodges) is represented by Bro. Charles Sherriffe Lane, Worshipful Master of the Harbour of Refuge Lodge 764, into whose omnium gatherum the brethren had this year placed £134 4s. Sussex follows next, with £128 1s, an increase of something like ten pounds over last year's instalment, the representative of the Province on this occasion being Bro. Benjamin Bennett, of the Royal Brunswick Lodge 732 (Brighton). Middlesex is behindhand compared with its previous efforts, five Lodges only making up a total of £122 7s, or about £80 less than at the Festival of 1878; and there is also a slight falling off in the amount from Suffolk, which is represented this year by the Right Hon. Lord Henniker, P.G.W., with £112 7s against his name. Essex is the last Province on the list which claims inclusion in the "hundred pound contributors," just exceeding that qualification by £3 7s 6d. Last year it was a great deal more than double that sum, which is remarkable considering the impetus which has lately been given to Masonry in that Province; but perhaps the brethren have had other calls, to which we know they are not slow to respond. Coming to the eleven Provinces whose lists did not run into three figures, the first to receive attention is Surrey, which, after its gallant effort for £205 16s last year, has relapsed into a lower form with only £97 2s 6d. This may appear slothful in comparison with previous exertions, but, as we recently pointed out, there is no reason to complain of what has been done by our brethren south of the Thames. West Lancashire, represented by three of its Lodges, comes next, with £79 16s; and East Lancashire (four Lodges), with two subscriptions of ten guineas each, by Bros. T. Hargreaves, of the Amity Lodge 283 (Haslingden), and J. Chadwick Mather; but there are lists to come in, so far as the Eastern Division is concerned, from the Friendship 41, St. John's 221, and Affability 317; and from the West we are promised a list, per Bro. Sylvester Mattinson, representing the Liverpool Dramatic Lodge 1609. There is no knowing what these brethren can do if they try; and it were vain therefore to make any speculation on so ex parte a case. Last year the Provinces sent up £315 15s and £57 5s respectively; and when we recollect the splendid achievements of West Lancashire in 1876 and 1877, and also that East Lancashire has an Educational Establishment of its own, we must not expect too great things in the present condition of trade, especially in the great manufacturing districts. Devonshire seldom fails to be represented, and this year its "dumpling" consists of £68 5s, entrusted to Bro. J. Edward Curteis, of the Sincerity Lodge 189 (East Stonehouse). This is a long way astern of last year's contribution; and our rosy-cheeked brethren in the South-west must be a little more "dapper" in future if they would maintain their credit as the second largest county. Lincolnshire makes a leap from sixteen guineas to £64 1s, Bro. William Pollitt, Worshipful Master of St. Albans Lodge 1294 (Grimsby) contributing £53 11s, and stalwart Bro. W. H. Roberts, who presides so genially over the Pelham Pillar 792, in the same noted fishing port, stands for a donation of ten guineas. Leicester and Rutland follows in order, with forty guineas, sent through the trusty hands of Bro. George Toller jun., and this must be considered an improvement on last year's blank return. We are glad to see Bedfordshire awaking to a sense of its duty, and we regard the £38 17s brought up by Bro. R. B. Smith, on behalf of the Stuart Lodge 540, as an earnest of better things to come. Monmouth, through Bro. William Watkins, Treasurer of the Albert Edward Prince of Wales Lodge 1429, contributes £37 16s, short of a quarter of its last year's quota; whilst "little Herts," of whose liberality none can find fault, sends £25, through Bro. Stephen Austin, Worshipful Master of the Hertford Lodge 403. Last, and least, comes Cheshire, with a ten guinea donation, presumably from Bro. John J. Cunnah, of the Independence Lodge 721; but it must be recollected that here also there is a Provincial Educational Institution to looked after; so that the smallness of this year's subscription must not be regarded as an index of the charitable sentiments of the brethren of the thirty-six Lodges of which this Province is composed.

Having so recently given a copious analysis of what has been done by the various Lodges in London and the country for the Masonic Institutions, we deem it necessary, with the pressure upon our space this week, to furnish only the above superficial résumé of this year's doings, and to congratulate Bro. Binckes and the Managers of the Boys' School upon the very fair amount of support which has been accorded to the Charity from all quarters. We must not shut our eyes to the fact that the other Institutions have both received very largely increased subscriptions this year; and in the present outlook of trade and commerce we must not anticipate too largely. Compared with many other Institutions which call for a relaxing of the purses of the large-hearted, we have reason to content ourselves with the motto "rest and be thankful."

* We have been informed that the published name of the Steward for Lodge No. 637 is wrong. It was represented at the Festival by Bro. J. W. Thomas P.M. P.G.S.B., and not by Bro. R. N. Howard as therein recorded. The amount of the list, according to a letter we have received from Bro. Thomas, was £33 11s 0d, but as he describes it as incomplete, we may, before the end of the year, look for an additional sum from this source.

INSTALLATION OF LORD TENTERDEN PROV. G.M. FOR ESSEX.

AN important event, and one that marks an epoch in the history of Freemasonry in the Province of Essex, occurred on Wednesday, at Chelmsford, the occasion being the installation of the Right Hon. Lord Tenterden as Provincial Grand Master, a position to which he had been appointed by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales M.W. Grand Master of England. Reviewing the progress of the mystic art in the Province of Essex, we find that as far back as 1735 a Warrant was granted by the Grand Lodge of England (Moderns) for a Lodge to be held at the Three Cups, Colchester. This Lodge, which, according to the list published in 1736, was numbered 141 on the register of the Grand Lodge, and which at, that time bore no distinctive name, had by the various "closings up" that occurred between that year and the time of the "Union" been respectively designated as No. 126, 76, 64, 51 and 47. In 1814 at the Union of the "Ancient" and "Modern" branches of Freemasonry it was again altered, on this occasion to No. 67, while at the change of 1863 it once more assumed its old number, and the one it now bears, viz., 51, it having been classified in the interim (i.e., from 1832 to 1863) as No. 59. As a proof of the tenacity of the Lodge to its native hostelry it may be mentioned that its present meetings are held at the same place as were those at the time of its foundation in 1735, an almost unprecedented event in the career of Freemasonry. Next as regards age among the Lodges at present existing in the Province is that meeting at Rochford (now numbered 160) which traces back its origin to the 4th of December 1766, and was then numbered 380. At its establishment, and for many years subsequent, the meetings of this Lodge were held in London, and later on at Bromley, Middlesex; finally, about the beginning of the present century, it migrated to its present locality, and assumed the name "Lodge of True Friendship," and as such it is now recorded in the Calender of the Grand Lodge. No. 214 Hope and Unity Lodge, now meeting at Brentwood, was warranted by the "Ancients." For many years its meetings were held at Romford, its removal from that town being as recent as 1877. The fourth on the list—and the one which perhaps occupied the most prominent position in the ceremony of Wednesday—is that held at Chelmsford, now bearing the number 276. The early meetings of this Lodge were held under a dispensation from H.R.H. the Duke of Cumberland, who was Grand Master at the time of its establishment (1789). In 1793, however, it was regularly warranted and duly consecrated by the then Provincial Grand Master Bro. Thomas Dunckerley, who may perhaps be regarded as one of the most distinguished Masons that ever graced the Order. He has been justly described by Oliver as the "Oracle of Grand Lodge," and styled by Preston "that truly Masonic luminary." The Consecration took place on the anniversary of the birthday of the then Grand Master, H.R.H. George Prince of Wales, and from the accounts published at the time, the ceremony and general arrangements of the day must have been most interesting. At the time of the "Union" the affairs of the Province were presided over by Bro. William Wix, but under his rule, as well as that of his immediate predecessors and successors, Freemasonry does not appear to have made much advance in the Province; indeed no new Lodges were warranted there during a period of nearly half a century. The remaining Essex Lodges may therefore be looked upon as of comparatively recent establishment, their present numbers, names, places of meeting, and dates of Constitution being as under:—

No.	Name	Held at	Constituted
433	Hope	Brightlingsea	1836
453	Chigwell	Woodford	1838
650	Star in the East	Harwich	1855
697	United	Colchester	1857
1000	Priory	Southend	1864
1024	St. Peter	Maldon	1864
1280	Walden	Saffron Walden	1869
1312	St. Mary	Bocking	1870
1343	St. John	Gray's	1870
1437	Liberty of Havering	Romford	1873
1457	Bagshaw	Buckhurst Hill	1873
1543	Rosslyn	Dunmow	1875
1734	Trinity	Rayleigh	1877
1799	Arnold	Walton-on-the-Naze	1879
1817	St. Andrew	Shoeburyness	1879

The present Provincial Grand Master (Lord Tenterden) was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of R.W. Bro. Robert J. Bagshaw, who had occupied the position for a period of nearly twenty-four years, his presidency of the Province dating from the 5th December 1854, until his death, which occurred on 14th August 1878. He was, like his successor, installed at Chelmsford, the ceremony being performed by the Earl of Yarborough, then Deputy Grand Master of England, on the 17th of May 1855. Under his rule the number of Lodges in Essex increased considerably, no less than from eight to seventeen. Still the increase during the last few years was hardly so great as might have been expected, and from the fact that two warrants have already been granted since his decease, there may be some truth in the statement that he was somewhat averse to the formation of new Lodges. However this may be, the new Prov Grand Master starts with a roll of nineteen Lodges, most of which are in a flourishing condition, while signs are not wanting of still further increase taking place very shortly. The success which has already attended the Arnold Lodge, consecrated by Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master, as recently as the 7th of May, can but act as an incentive to those brethren who contemplate applying for new warrants; and we are therefore the more assured that the Province will create ample work for its new ruler.

Lord Tenterden was first admitted to Masonic light on the 22nd January 1856, in the Lodge of Harmony, held at Richmond, Surrey. At the time of his initiation, and up to 1863 this Lodge was numbered 317 on the books of Grand Lodge. He was elected to preside over the Lodge in 1859, and again in 1864, on both of which occasions he displayed great ability in the duties required of him. In 1872 he was appointed by the Marquess of Ripon, Grand Master, to the position of Senior Warden in the Grand Lodge of England, his contemporary of the year in the chair of Junior Grand Warden being the late Hon. John Cranch Walker Vivian.

The Province has a good reputation as regards the Charities of our Order, and it is to be hoped the new Grand Master will make it his especial care that this feature is never neglected while the Province may remain under his guidance, but rather that increased efforts will be made by its members on behalf of those who are unfortunately obliged to crave the assistance of others. As an idea of what is expected of his lordship's constituency in the future, it may be as well to refer to what the Province has done for the central Masonic Charities during the past few years. The total of its contributions at the various Festivals of the three Institutions during the last five years amounts to about £1,050. Upwards of £626 having been contributed in that period to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, £256 to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and £164 to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. The totals for the various years being as follow:—

1877	8	„	...	...	...	227 18	0
1878	9	„	...	...	...	362 15	4*
						£1,047 0	4

It may thus be imagined that it will be no light task to keep the Province up to its standard as regards this feature of Freemasonry. It is well known that it is only by continued exertions that anything like success can be achieved, still we entertain no doubt but that such exertions as are required will be forthcoming, and that the reign on which Lord Tenterden has just entered will be a prosperous and pleasant one. Such we feel assured is the wish entertained by every Freemason, not only in his own Province of Essex, but throughout the country generally.

The ceremony of Wednesday took place in the Shire Hall, where the brethren assembled at one o'clock. Among those who signed the attendance book were the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon Pro G.M. of England, Lord Tenterden Prov. Grand Master Essex, Lord Ebrington Prov. G.M. designate of Devon, Sir Albert W. Woods P.G.W. and G.D.C., Rev. S. R. Wigram P.G.C., Rev. Charles J. Martyn P.G.C. Deputy Prov. G.M. Suffolk, R. W. H. Giddy D.G.M. Griqualand, South Africa; Ernest Emil Wendt G.S. (G. Corr.), Shadwell H. Clerke P.G.D., T. Fenn P.G.D., Rev. C. W. Arnold P.G.C. and D. Prov. G.M. Surrey, J. Nunn P.G.S.B. Senior Vice President Board of Benevolence, Matthew Clark J.G.D., Gordon W. Clark P.M. 255.

After the Grand Lodge had been formally opened, the Earl of Carnarvon was saluted according to ancient custom. The minutes of the former meeting were read and confirmed, and the roll of the Lodges of the Province was called over. The announcement of the contributions of the Lodges of the Province was made, and the auditors' report was read.

The Earl of Carnarvon then said: I now will inform the Provincial Grand Lodge of the occasion which has called the brethren together. Brethren, you are aware that since the lamented death of your late Provincial Grand Master, this Province has been without its head, and it has pleased his Royal Highness the Grand Master to appoint our brother Lord Tenterden to fill this high office. I am quite satisfied from the way in which his name is received how popular that appointment will be with you. In some respects it is easier to pronounce praise upon a man in his absence than in his presence, but I think for the few remarks which I need make in this Grand Lodge, it will be better that Lord Tenterden himself should be here, and should hear what I have to say after the obligation has been administered to him, and therefore I shall now desire that the deputation, formed in the usual fashion, should proceed to introduce our Bro. Lord Tenterden.

Lord Tenterden was then introduced to the Grand Lodge, and formally installed as Provincial Grand Master.

The Earl of Carnarvon, after having installed Lord Tenterden, said:—Right Worshipful Sir, my noble Brother,—It has been my duty, and a most grateful duty it is to me, to place you in this chair. Very little indeed is needed now for me to add to the ceremony in which we have both taken this part. At the same time, it has always been held, I believe, customary that the Installing Master should at least tender his congratulations and good wishes, first of all to the Provincial Grand Master who henceforth is to rule the Province, and next to the Province that will be under his sway. I can with a most sincere conscience offer alike my congratulations and my good wishes to you and to the Province on this fortunate occasion, and I trust that this bright ray of physical sunshine which is, after the long wet and storms of the last few days, coming in at these windows is an augury—after the depression which this Province has undergone since the death of your late lamented Provincial Grand Master—is a fitting augury of that which is in store for the Province. But, Worshipful Sir, you are no novice in the duties of the Craft, and it would be utterly unnecessary for me to remind you of the duties and the obligations which you have to-day undertaken. You know then, well, and I am satisfied that you will fulfil them with all the conscientiousness and zeal and energy of character which have distinguished the other actions of your public life; and I rejoice to think that under your sway this Province will take as it were a new start in its Masonic life and career, and I hope thrive and grow in the exercise of all those Masonic virtues and duties without which our internal procedure, our forms, our ceremonies, and our symbols are all but naught. Brethren, some of you may have noticed only a few days ago a very remarkable article in one of our leading newspapers upon the present position of the Craft in England. It was a high encomium pronounced upon the Craft, though apparently written by one who had little real knowledge of our internal life and actions, but it was true in this, that it pointed out that under the veil of symbolism, and under the external forms of rites and ceremonies which had descended to us through successive generations, and from a very remote antiquity, that there was a real active life and vigour enshrined, and that the Craft lived—lived indeed in the goodwill of the outside world, lived in the respect of men, lived in the honour and the regard which the people of this country pay it because of the belief that it lived for active good and in the exercise of active virtues. Brethren, that was a tribute offered to the Craft by one who was not familiar with its inner meaning and its inner life; but we may well lay that tribute to heart, and each and all of us, whether we be acting collectively in our several Lodges, or whether we be acting separately and singly as individual Masons, endeavour to make the light of Masonry so shine forth in our whole lives, collectively and individually, that we may reflect honour and credit upon that body to which we all belong. Brethren, I have now only, as I began, so to end, by wishing your new Provincial Grand Master every good fortune in the chair which he fills. I need not wish him ability, I need not wish him tact, and conciliation, and firmness all combined, because I know he possesses those qualities, and I know that he will exercise them for the good of you all. Nor need I, I think, in conclusion, remind you that you have also duties to him, and that it is by obedience to rule, by loyalty to the commands of your Provincial Grand Master, by rendering him every assistance, both in your Lodges and individually as Masons, that you can not only lighten the burden which from time to time will rest upon his shoulders, but also promote the cause of Masonry in this Masonic Province of Essex.

Lord Tenterden then rose and said, after the cheering with which he was greeted had ceased, Brethren, before we proceed with the business of the day, I cannot refrain from saying a few words of very earnest thanks to our Prov. Grand Master for the kind manner in which he has spoken of me to you, and I also thank you, Brethren of the Province of Essex, for the welcome you have been good enough to accord to me.

The Rev. S. R. Wigram Past Grand Chaplain was then appointed by his lordship Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and the following brethren were appointed to the other offices in the Province:—Bros. J. Earle W.M. 214 P.G.S.W., D. M. B. Wheeler W.M. 276 P.G.J.W., Rev. H. F. Heaton 1734 P.G. Chap., Andrew Durrant P.M. 276 P.G. Treas., T. J. Ralling I.P.M. 51 P.G. Sec., G. D. Clapham P.M. 1543 P.G. Reg., S. Leverett P.M. 1280 P.G.S.D., A. Sturgeon P.M. 1343 P.G.S.D., H. J. Sansom W.M. 1024 P.G.J.D., G. W. Patmore W.M. 1437 P.G.J.D., T. Nicholson P.M. 1457 P.G. Supt. of Wrks., Albert Lucking P.M. 1000 P.G.D. of Cer., J. A. Wardell P.M. 1000 P.G. Asst. D. of Cer., J. J. C. Turner J.W. 51 P.G. Org., A. F. Ginn W.M. 276 P.G. Swd. B., T. King W.M. 160 P.G. Purs., C. Blyth P.M. 433 P.G. Asst. Purs., T. S. Sarel 276 P.G. Tyler; J. S. Brown 276, A. Mead 276, F. M. Williams 1543, W. Whitechurch 1280, and G. Harvey 697 P.G. Stewards.

Lord Tenterden afterwards said he thought it would not be fitting or becoming of him if he allowed Grand Lodge to depart without saying a few words to the memory of their departed Bro. Bagshaw. He had had the pleasure of the acquaintance of Bro. Bagshaw, and he knew how zealous he was on behalf of Freemasonry, and when he was racked with the disease of which he died, he attended Grand Lodge regularly rather than that the Province of Essex should not be represented. He therefore moved a vote of the deep regret of the Province at the loss of their late Grand Master.

The vote having been seconded, was put to Grand Lodge and carried unanimously, and Bro. Matthew Clarke P.D.G.M. of the Province was entrusted to convey it to the family of the late Brother Bagshaw.

Lord Tenterden then proposed a vote of thanks to the Earl of Carnarvon for performing the ceremony of installation.

Bro. the Rev. S. R. Wigram D.P.G.M. seconded the motion, which was then put and carried.

The Earl of Carnarvon, in reply, said it would be very wrong if, after having already engaged so much of the time of the Provincial Grand Lodge, he were to make anything of a reply to the words which had fallen from the Chair, and from the excellent brother who had seconded them. He simply said that it had been a double pleasure to be there, from his personal friendship for him, and from his knowledge of him as a Mason.

A vote of thanks was also passed to Bro. Matthew Clarke P.D.P.G.M. for the way in which he conducted the business of the Province during the absence of the late Bro. Bagshaw.

Bro. Ernest Emil Wendt, representative of the Three Grand Lodges of Berlin, presented the congratulations of those Lodges to Lord Tenterden on his installation as Provincial Grand Master for Essex.

On the motion of the Rev. S. R. Wigram, a vote of thanks was passed to the Magistrates of the district for allowing the use of the Shire Hall for the purposes of the Grand Lodge on this installation. Ten guineas was voted to the Local Dispensary and Local Infirmary, and Grand Lodge was closed. The brethren then adjourned to banquet, under the Presidency of the Prov. Grand Master. The usual toasts were afterwards proposed.

In giving that of the Queen and the Craft, Lord Tenterden said:—Brethren, there is an old saying that short reckonings make long friends. I think that expression may be supplemented by a further adage that short speeches make pleasant meetings. The first toast on our list needs no comment; the mere mention of it ensures a hearty welcome in this loyal Province of Essex. Brethren, I give you "The Queen and the Craft."

After the National Anthem, the Provincial Grand Master again rose; he said:—Brethren, when this Provincial Grand Lodge was last communed it was for the purpose of placing on the shore of Essex one of those life-boats that had been launched by the Craft as a thankoffering for the safe return of their Grand Master from his Indian tour. A more fitting memorial could not have been selected than that which was decided on by the Grand Lodge, when we remember that during the time our Craft was left without a head the Prince of Wales was found ready and willing to take the helm of the life-boat and labour for our rescue. I say the helm of the boat, for I am able to say, from having been among the Masonic advisers of H.R.R. for some years past, that H.R.H. does personally administer and govern the Craft to our great advantage. We have in the Prince of Wales no mere gilded figurehead at the top of the Craft, but we have instead the good head of an excellent man of business. The fact of the Prince of Wales being an admirable man of business ability has been testified on several occasions to the world at large, but more especially at the Exhibition last year at Paris when he acted as President of the British Section. The success of the English portion of that Exhibition was almost entirely owing to his exertions and his desire that there should be an adequate representation of the arts, products, and manufactures of the United Kingdom. I feel that I utter an expression gratifying to all of those present when I offer you an opportunity of shewing in Essex your appreciation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. Brethren, I give you the toast of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M. of England.

The Provincial Grand Master then proposed the health of the Installing Master. It was only those, he said, who knew how many and how various were the engagements of a man in Lord Carnarvon's position who could really appreciate how truly fraternal an act this was on his part. When he (Lord Tenterden) first went to the University of Oxford, the name which was the pride of the College as the first classman of his year was that of the Earl of Carnarvon. (Applause). Since then, when maturer years had verified the promise of the schools, they still found the noble Earl in the first class in life—first class as a statesman, as a classical scholar, as an orator and as a Freemason, and he had recently added to his other honours those of poetry. There was one measure which, as it met with universal assent, he might here mention without hesitation, which showed how the Earl of Carnarvon had made his mark on the world—an achievement, indeed, which deserved to be ever emblazoned on the time-honoured escutcheon of the Herberts. He referred to the great work of the Confederation of the Dominion of Canada. The Earl of Carnarvon found the British North American Provinces scattered, weak and disunited across the great breadth of the American continent; he left them a consolidated dominion, the very jewel of our Colonial empire. Many of them were aware how genially, with what courtesy and ability their most distinguished brother presided in Grand Lodge; they had all of them seen to-day how he could preside in a Provincial Grand Lodge, and he was sure that he need say no more to commend the toast of his health to their most hearty welcome.

The Earl of Carnarvon in reply said: He was afraid the Prov. G. Master had very greatly exaggerated his poor merits in every single case to which he had been pleased to allude. He could not accept the flattering compliments that his Lordship had been pleased to pay him in that difficult sphere of politics where men would oftener respect censure and abuse than they did praise, and he doubted how far he could venture to appropriate to himself even those compliments which had been paid him in the quieter, the serener, the more domestic sphere of other matters. But one thing he could say—that it was with infinite satisfaction and pleasure that he was asked to take the part of Installing Master there to-day. He came with the greatest satisfaction to himself to discharge a duty in which his sympathies were so strongly, so personally enlisted; and independently of the satisfaction he felt at having placed Lord Tenterden in the chair, and having offered to him the sincere homage of his good wishes in the task which he was henceforth undertaking in this Province, he also had received with infinite pleasure and satisfaction the kindly, and the more than kindly, welcome which the Province of Essex had been good enough to give him (cheers). It had been his fortune to attend many Provincial meetings in many parts of England, but this at least he would say, he had never attended any where he had been received more kindly and cordially than he had here to-day, and when he left them he should carry away the recollection of the heartiness with which an Essex body of Freemasons could make their brother Mason welcome (loud cheers).

The Provincial Grand Master then proposed "Lord Skelmersdale and the rest of the Grand Officers." He said that it was not a mere idle compliment that they paid this mark of respect, for Lord Skelmersdale was an earnest Mason, and was actually suffering his present illness through having come down to Walton-on-the-Naze to inaugurate a new Lodge. Lord Skelmersdale regretted very much that he was not present this day, but he was compelled to be absent through having Her Majesty's commands to attend upon her on her visit to the Agricultural Show. Lord Kensington and others had also expressed their regret at their absence. The Grand Officers well manned the Craft, and he did not know how the Freemasons would get on without such brethren as Sir Albert Woods, Thomas Fenn, and Bro. Martyn Past Grand Chaplain. He would particularly mention with regard to this toast, Bro. Alston, Past Grand Warden, whose father before him was—as he was—a worthy president over the Craft. Bro. Alston was one of the oldest Grand Officers, and the oldest living Grand Officer in the Province of Essex, and it was his name he would couple with the toast.

Bro. Alston in reply said the Grand Officers present have felt it a pleasure as well as a duty to support the chair on this auspicious occasion. To myself personally I may say that it has been a matter of intense interest to see placed in the chair of this Province a brother whom I have known so long, whose friendship I so value, and whose career I have so much admired, and we one and all of us feel most grateful to you for the hearty welcome which you have accorded us, and for the excellent cheer with which you have provided us. Your Provincial Grand Master has referred in terms which demand my warmest acknowledgments to one inexpressibly dear to me, who once occupied his chair. I will only say that if he could be present to-day he would fully ratify and confirm and approve the choice which his Royal Highness had made. For myself, I will say that I stand before you now as one, I believe, of the oldest members of the Grand Lodge of England, and for some years before that I was a member and a working member of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Essex. In coming before you to-day I have ventured to put on some of the clothing which belonged to me in this Grand Lodge, and I trust you will accept it as a compliment from me that I should have done so. I can truly say that to my Masonic connection with this Province, and it is not my only connection with this county, I owe some of the happiest recollections and experiences of my life; and time, which tries and proves all things, has only added to the halo with which those recollections are surrounded. I know the Province of Essex of old. It is a glorious Masonic Province; Masonic virtues shone always brightly here, and they will continue to do so, and for the comfort of your excellent Prov. Grand Master I will say that in no respect were the Masonic virtues more conspicuous than in the loyalty and the devotion which you were always ready to show to your Provincial Grand Master. In coming among you again to-day I miss many old accustomed faces, but others have taken their place, and are now engaged in spreading the tenets of Masonry throughout the Province; but I rejoice to find many of the old Lodges which I knew of old; I have been glad to see that grand old Lodge, the Angel Lodge at Colchester, so well represented. I rejoice to find that the Lodge at Chelmsford has been deemed worthy of being associated with the interesting ceremony of this day, and many other Lodges which I could name are still working with great advantage to themselves and to the Craft throughout the Province. When I first knew the Province there were but seven Lodges; I believe there are now nineteen. I need not refer to anything as better proving the success of the efforts made by your late most excellent Grand Master to spread Masonry throughout the Province. You have now had placed in your chair a brother who is destined to inaugurate an era of new prosperity. His untiring energy, his zeal for Masonry, and his excellent social qualities will be sure to attract to Masonry many others who have not yet joined you; and I feel certain that under his fostering care a great future is in store for Masonry throughout the Province. Brethren, I will detain you no longer, but assure you that I wish and pray that there may be a bright future for your Provincial Grand Master, and that Masonry under his beneficent presidency may prosper yet more than it ever has done in the Province of Essex.

The Earl of Carnarvon then proposed "The health of the Provincial Grand Master." He said: Brethren,—I have had a toast placed in my hands for which I thank those who have arranged the procedure of to-day. No toast could be more grateful to me to propose, no toast I am satisfied could meet with greater enthusiasm on your part. Brethren, we can none of us forget the cause which has called us together to-day. We can none of us forget who now occupies the chair of this Province. I have already had occasion more than once within the last few hours to offer the expressions of my own hearty good wishes for the success of my noble friend in the new duty that he has undertaken. I am very sanguine as to the mode in which he will discharge those duties. He has the guarantee, so to speak, of his whole past in his favour. My noble friend succeeded to a title and an already distinguished name. He was not a man to rest idle upon hereditary honours. His life has been emphatically, I should say, a life of hard, unsparing, laborious work. The frivolities, even the lighter pleasures in life, which form so large a portion of the existence of other men have passed comparatively by him; he has scorned a life of inglorious ease, and he has devoted time and strength and the energy both of mind and body to the service of the State. This has not been all. Step by step, patiently and by solid work, my noble friend has risen in the profession that he adorns, till at last he has arrived at the highest point of all, the highest post which I conceive any one in that profession can hold in England, the position of permanent under Secretary at the Foreign Office. Brethren, none but those who have had some experience as Ministers in a large department can tell how deeply indebted the country is to the permanent civil officers who practically manage and administer those departments. But if there be one officer in a great department upon whom hinges, so to speak, the whole administration of that department, and all abroad that that administration involves and carries with it, it is the permanent under Secretary. All day, every day, day and night I may say, the State has calls upon him; he is the adviser of his political and parliamentary chief; he is the hinge upon which all of that great office, and with the office that great service, in a great measure turns; and this, I may truly say from experience, that among all that band of highly educated, able, laborious men to carry on the work of our public offices, whose merits receive far less recognition when sometimes contrasted by the showy and the tawdry qualities of those who are so deeply indebted to them—I speak it in all humility, because I have had the benefit of similar advice as my noble friend has given to a succession of foreign secretaries—I say none but those who have served in a great department as a parliamentary head can be aware how deeply indebted the Crown and the country are to those who fill such a situation as my noble friend now fills. And therefore, brethren, I say that a great Masonic Province like this may gratefully and well appreciate when it can command the services of such a Provincial Grand Master. I know how heavy the claims of public business are upon any one in my noble friend's position, but I have always found this in life, that those who are really the busiest find the greatest amount of time to give to other persons. I remember hearing a story of Count Cavour when he was at the head of the Foreign Department in Italy, which was a very stormy time. A friend visited him one morning early, and after talking five minutes proposed to hurry away, apologising for having detained him so long from public business. Count Cavour said, "Why, I have plenty of time; there are twenty-four hours in the day, and they surely are enough for all purposes." And I believe my noble friend here is of the same opinion, when he could take himself away from the despatches of the Foreign Office to devote himself body and mind to such an occasion as the present. I hardly know, when I see such a meeting as this, on what Masonic text to preach. It has been my duty so often to inculcate Masonic principles or duties that I feel almost afraid of repeating what I have said. There are, no doubt, particular duties which are specially applicable to particular times and seasons. The duty of our Masonic Charity is one; the world-wide brotherhood which unites us in so many climates and countries is another great feature; the code of morals, so to speak, which lies enshrined in the old charges of the Order which is concealed veiled in the ritual and symbolism such as that to which I alluded in the Grand Lodge to-day, these are all distinctive features of the Craft; they may all be dwelt upon with advantage at different times and under different circumstances, but the one word that I would take the liberty of saying to-day is perhaps on a somewhat different subject; it is to ask you to bear in mind, as it suggests itself to me to-day, that our Masonic organisation, and the duties of loyal Provincial obedience to those who are placed high in authority, lie at the very root of all our Masonic system in England. Brethren, the administration of a great Masonic Province like this depends first of all upon the tact, the management, and the administrative ability of the Provincial Grand Master. It depends, in the next place, upon the zeal and the intelligence of those Grand Officers whom he appoints; and, lastly, it depends upon the hearty zeal and the loyal obedience of the whole body of Masons scattered throughout the Province; and by that I mean the loyal obedience not merely of individual Masons, but of Lodges acting collectively together, as a part of the Masonic organisation; and let me say that just as this is true of the Provincial Grand Lodge, so also is it true of the organisation of each individual Lodge. The Master there is elected to his high office; he is bound to exercise the functions and duties of that office with the same qualities as the Provincial Grand Master brings to bear; he looks to his Officers to give him their hearty support in the work of the Lodge, and he looks again to the individual members of the Lodge to support him in a way that no written rules and no precise laws can possibly give. But, brethren, this is not perhaps all. It might seem to some that the great powers which are lodged in the hands of the Provincial Grand Master, as they are lodged in the hands of the Grand Master of the Craft, would make our ancient and venerable body despotic and absolute in its character and working. That is not at all the case. Our body seems to me to be happily blended together of the great principles of rule, of obedience, of loyalty, and yet also of great freedom. Freedom of election lies at the very root of the whole matter, and confidence, the offspring of that freedom of choice on the one hand, and of that considerate and temperate rule on the other. In this it has often occurred to me that there is a strong resemblance between Freemasonry—English Freemasonry—and the English Constitution. You have large powers, great authority, great responsibility, great freedom, and, if the whole machine is to work together harmoniously and satisfactorily, great confidence on the part of those who are governed in those who govern. That is, in fact, what I believe the English Constitution gives you, roughly speaking—that is what we look for, and what we have found I believe in our Masonic system. And perhaps this is, among other causes, one of the reasons—and one of the principal reasons—why Freemasonry in England has united itself in such harmonious bonds with all the great institutions of the country. I know, indeed, nothing more remarkable than the contrast which exists now, and which still more existed a few years ago between English Freemasonry and foreign. Here in England the great institutions of the country are more or less connected with Freemasonry. There has never been any jealousy of Freemasonry here. Parliament, even in its most jealous moods, always made exceptions in favour of English Lodges. There was no suspicion, no jealousy, no ill-will, and, as my noble friend I think also pointed out in one of his speeches to-day, it has been our special characteristic and pleasure that in this country we have had a succession of Royal Princes at the head of our Masonic system. Formerly, indeed, Freemasonry abroad was bound up with many of those secret bodies which could certainly not be said to be allied to the State—which were at enmity with the State—and it brought on foreign Freemasonry often much doubt—sometimes discredit. We, I am thankful to say, have ever been spared this, and I trust that through the long course of English Freemasonry which is yet in store we shall always maintain the same even, temperate way which we have maintained in times past—that we shall still feel that with the laws, the institutions, the authorities of this country we are closely allied, that whilst we are Masons we are equally Englishmen—Englishmen in all the spirit of the laws, in all the spirit of the Constitution—and then we shall carry on, I doubt not, Freemasonry if possible even one step higher, and one step further than it has already achieved, we shall be able to hand down to those who come after us quite as great and fine a heritage as we have received from our forefathers (cheers). Brethren, in every Province it is necessary to have a high standard before us. In this Province you have had good traditions, and you now have at your head one who is fully competent to give those traditions practical life and effect. Let me congratulate him upon being placed in this chair; let me congratulate you upon having so good a Provincial Grand Master ruling over you. I beg to propose his health. Let me wish to him long life and success in the devotion of the same qualities to this Province that he has already given to his country, and let me wish for you all the happiness, and all the good fortune, and all the success that can flow from the wise, and temperate, and kindly, and conciliatory rule of your present Provincial Grand Master.

The Provincial Grand Master in reply said: Brethren,—I have to thank our Pro Grand Master for the too flattering and complimentary terms in which he has been good enough to propose my health to your notice, and I have to thank you, brethren of the Province of Essex, for the welcome that you have been good enough to accord to me on this occasion. Our Pro Grand Master has spoken of the organisation of Freemasonry. I am pretty confident that I am not wrong in supposing that in this town of Chelmsford at this very moment there are numbers of people who are asking the question, "What is it that all these gentlemen, wearing white ties and evening coats in the day time, have invaded our quiet neighbourhood for, with their little black bags and their tin boxes?" And, brethren, I do not doubt that to many the question has been put which has on this and other occasions been very frequently addressed to myself. "What is it that all you people are about? If you want to subscribe to schools and to asylums why don't you send your Post Office order and your cheques without all this fuss and paraphernalia?" Now, a lady told me the other day that she had discovered the secret. She said, "The fact is you men are so vain. You love to dress yourselves up; that is why the soldiers all wear red coats, and now the volunteers are going to wear red coats, and as for you people with the blue aprons, why you are no better." Other people say we are mere knife and fork philanthropists. Others again say, "the real fact is, there is nothing in it at all." Now, that reminds me of the story with regard to the Druces on Mount Lebanon. His lordship then proceeded to relate the story of one of a number of peeping busybodies who went into the Temple of the Druces, and finding it empty, returned and reported that there was "nothing in it," whereupon he was told that his story was disbelieved, and was ignominiously kicked out of the village. His lordship proceeded: Now, brethren, it cannot be said that there is nothing in our Lodges, for there is something in our Lodges—something which constitutes the very basis of our Masonic structure, and that is the Volume of the Sacred Law. Although with universal toleration we admit men of all creeds to the Craft, provided they are good men—I have myself initiated Persians, Parsees, Mussulmans, and Hindoos—yet all our work is begun, continued and completed in the name of Him whom we address in the spirit of that universal prayer written by our great poet Pope, a Roman Catholic:—

"Father of all, in every age,
In every clime adored
By saint, by savage, and by sage,
Jehovah, Jove, and Lord.
To Him whose temple is all space,
Whose altar—earth, sea, skies,
One chorus let all beings raise,
All Nature's incense rise."

It is, brethren, this spirit of toleration, this feeling of universal brotherhood under one great Heavenly Father, which constitutes as I deem it, the true object, the true principle of Freemasonry. It was for this object that Freemasonry was founded, and it is for this that it now claims to be maintained. Without going too far into the uncertainties of tradition, we are at all events sure of this—that the original object of Freemasonry was to provide a home, amongst their fellow brethren and Masons, where those skilled craftsmen who wandered in the pursuit of their craft might find in their travels a ready welcome. It was thus, brethren, that Freemasonry in former ages was the first to break down that barrier of distrust and exclusiveness which severed countries and provinces, and even towns. It is now of equal use, for Freemasonry, excluding as it does subjects of political and religious controversy, forms a neutral ground on which men of all classes, countries, and creeds may meet on the level and part upon the square. Brethren, that exclusiveness of which I have spoken has to some extent penetrated even to the present day. Most of you, I dare say, recollect the drawing of poor John Leech's two navvies, one of whom says to the other "Who be that, Bill?" and upon the other replying, "A stranger," he says, "'eave 'alf a brick at him." Well, brethren, that spirit was at one time very common amongst us. The other day I was reading the biography of one of our great naval heroes at the commencement of the present century. His creed was, "Fear God, honour the King, and hate the French." Now, brethren, we do, I hope, the two former, but the days for hatred of the French are happily passed away, and I trust may never come again. How little we now hate the French is shown in the chord of sympathy which has been touched in every English heart, in every English home for that unhappy lady who is now mourning for her gallant son slain in the English cause in South Africa. This spirit of universal brotherhood may perhaps by some be considered no longer of any moment in this country, but this is not so. Although political and religious rancour is happily no longer rife amongst us, there are many subjects upon which all men must differ, and by excluding those questions upon which men too frequently do differ, we are doing that which I am sure is of great good to this country; and I have seen myself a very remarkable instance of that in the United States of America where civil war had done its worst to scathe the land. Yet the brethren from the North could meet the brethren from the South after the war, and clasp the hands of Freemasonry in brotherhood which had so recently been raised to shed each other's blood. I feel with our Pro Grand Master that Freemasonry has a great future before it, a great future, I venture to say, in this feeling of universal toleration and brotherhood, a great future not only in this country, but in all countries, in pacifying hostilities, in creating friendships, in linking together men of all countries, of all classes, of all religions, all races, and all creeds. And, brethren, we cannot do better than take the advice of our Pro Grand Master as to how we should best extend and promote this, which I venture to say is a noble object, of which Freemasons in this Province and all over the world may be justly proud. The way to promote it, brethren, is, to use an expression familiar to all of us, that we should show ourselves to be good Masons and good men, not only in our words and in our emblems, but in our acts—that we should in truth show ourselves to be men to whom the afflicted may pour forth their sorrows and find consolation, to whom the distressed may pour forth their suit and find relief—whose hands are guided by justice, and whose hearts are expanded by benevolence. I once more thank you most cordially for the kind welcome which has been given to me in this Province. I always felt that although I was not known to many amongst you it would be so—that one whose heart was in Freemasonry would never fail a warm welcome at the hands of Freemasons.

The Provincial Grand Master then said:—The Pro Grand Master has desired me to express his extreme regret that he has been obliged to leave before the end of our festivities. I have now devolving on me the very agreeable task of proposing the health of the Deputy Grand Master, Rev. S. R. Wigram P.G.C., and the rest of the Prov. Grand Officers Present and Past. I have for a long time had the pleasure of knowing our Bro. Wigram as distinguished in the Craft, distinguished as one of the Grand Chaplains, and distinguished, as I also know he has been, by his working at the Priory Lodge, at Southend; and it is with extreme gratification to me that he has accepted the position to which he has this day been appointed. You must all know that very much of the success of the Province depends on the Deputy of the Province. As the Pro Grand Master has told you, in the most flattering terms, I am engaged the bulk of my time, and must therefore leave the greater part of my duties to the brother who has this day been appointed my Deputy. We have among us in our Lodge the Past D. Prov. G.M. Bro. Matthew Clark, and I am especially pleased to see him. I feel sure that you also appreciate his services from the satisfaction with which you all agreed to the vote of thanks which has been passed upon him in Lodge. He is, with me, a Past Master of the Lodge of Harmony at Richmond, and has for many years past shared with me the duties of Secretary of that Lodge. I know from my personal experience that he is a good man, and you all know that he is a good Mason. We have to-day also invested several others who are worthy of the position to which they have been appointed. It was at the Lodge of Hope and Unity, at Romford, that I first received my early Masonic instruction. A friend of mine used to belong to that Lodge, and I was frequently present there as a visitor, and have on several occasions acted as one of its Officers, it is therefore with extreme pleasure that I have this day placed the W.M. of that Lodge in the chair of Senior Warden of the Province. The other Prov. Grand Officers are, I believe, equally well known to the Craft of Essex. I have done my best that the honours should be distributed to every point of our Provincial compass, and I hope that the various appointments will give satisfaction. I have pleasure in coupling with the toast the names of Bros. S. R. Wigram Deputy Prov. Grand Master, and Bro. Matthew Clark P.P.D.G.M. Bro. Wigram in reply said: I have to thank you, both on my own behalf and on behalf of the other Prov. Grand Officers. The honour I have received this day has come to me most acceptably. I am an Essex man, son of an Essex man, received the Masonic light in an Essex Lodge, and am a Past Master of two Essex Lodges. If we are spared to meet again at the end of twelve months, I hope you will receive this toast with as great cordiality as it has met to-night. We ask you to be to our virtues very kind, and to our follies ever blind. Bro. Clarke also offered a few remarks.

The Deputy Prov. G. Master stated that the Prov. Grand Master had entrusted to him the proposal of the next toast. He said:—I could at this moment express two wishes, one that the toast had fallen into better hands, and another that it had been placed earlier on the list so that it might have been given before those numerous visitors who have honoured us with their presence had been obliged to leave us. We have to-day been honoured with Masons conversant with the Craft, I may say in every part of the world. We are always proud to see our brethren among us, and tender them a hearty welcome. All we can do now is to honour those brethren who have to-day visited us by drinking heartily to the toast.

Bro. Rev. C. J. Martyn in his reply tendered his thanks for the hearty reception accorded the toast. He hoped that he should have the pleasure of seeing several of the Essex brethren at the meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Suffolk on Monday next. He expressed the regret of the Master of his Province that he was unable to attend the meeting of to-day.

The health of the Officers of the Province, was acknowledged by Bro. Rev. F. Shepherd P.M. 276. Bro. Verey proposed the Masonic Charities, and Bro. J. Terry Sec. Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution replied.

A just compliment was paid by the Prov. Grand Master to the Committee of the Chelmsford Lodge, who had been entrusted with the arrangements of the day, and on the W.M. of that Lodge being called upon to respond, he expressed the thanks of his Lodge to those Prov. Grand Officers who had assisted him, more especially he wished to thank Bro. Ralling the Prov. J. Sec. who, he said, had been present at every meeting of the Committee.

Bro. Speight acted as toastmaster During the evening a selection of music was performed, under the direction of Bro. W. Gaus, by Bros. John Hodges, Faulkner Leigh, C. Beckett, and Thurley Beale.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF BERKSHIRE AND BUCKINGHAMSHIRE.

THE Annual Provincial Grand Lodge of Berks and Bucks was held at the County Hall, Abingdon, on Thursday the 26th ult., and was largely attended by the members of the several Lodges in the Province, all but two being very fully represented. The London train calling at Reading conveyed the R.W. Provincial Grand Master Bro. Sir Daniel Gooch, Bart., M.P., and Chairman of the Great Western Railway Company, to Didcot, where a considerable muster of brethren had assembled, and there a "special" was provided for the accommodation of the somewhat large party, enabling them to reach Abingdon in good time prior to the opening of Provincial Grand Lodge. Bro. E. J. Trendell P.M. of the Abbey Lodge at Abingdon, in the most liberal manner received all comers as his guests, and placed his spacious dwelling and noble grounds at their disposal, entertaining them with a cold collation and means for refreshment prior to commencing labour. At the appointed hour the brethren assembled at the County Hall, over which the arms of the borough floated during the day in honour of their presence. The Provincial Grand Lodge was there opened by the R.W. Prov. Grand Master, who was announced and accompanied in procession by the following Present and Past Grand Officers, viz., J. W. The Minutes ovincial Grand Lodge, holden at Windsor on the e confirmed. A financial statement and the report mittee were submitted, and both being of a highly ter were received and adopted. The report of the Secretary in respect to numbers and progress of s gave great satisfaction, the R.W. Prov. Grand asion to offer the representatives of the Lodges tulatious thereon, incidentally remarking, however, odges had not so liberally subscribed to the Charity mary with them in former years. He was, never- isfied with the general progress of the Order in the ed that it should be fully understood how much he dit of success was due to the earnest and inde- of Bro. Biggs, the late Prov. Grand Master handed to that worthy taining a hundred guineas, pointing at the same marble mantel clock, and further requesting his ssive silver snuff-box, from which he hoped the many years to come "take a pinch" and a of the many good friends by whom he was lled upon the Provincial Grand Lodge to salute sonic honours, and this was done in the most . Each article presented bore a suitable inscrip- ok being in the following words:—"Presented to P.M. P.Z. P. Prov. G.S.W. Wilts, &c., by the vince of Berks and Bucks, together with a purse dineas, in recognition of his valuable services as ry from 1869 to 1877. This presentation was made , Bart., M.P., Provincial Grand Master, 26th June, in reply, said that he felt overwhelmed by the courtesy of the Prov. Grand Master, who during so greatly assisted his labours by ever affording necessary occasions, and whom he desired to say That he had left his position as Prov. Grand pproval of so large a body for services rendered ful. His anticipations during the fulfilment of salised in the success which had attended them, icipated such a magnificent return, for which, w to tender his heartiest acknowledgments. to give a somewhat rapid but very lucid account Province during eighty-five years, in the course six Provincial Grand Masters had presided over highly favoured in respect of the occupant of the never more favoured than now in the person who on entering on his Grand Mastership ruled f Freemasons now connected with the Province. a of Prov. He was sincerely ren for their handsome gifts, which while he re for the sake of the memory of glad associa- l be transmitted to his family as a tribute of which they as well as himself might feel justly him as he resumed his seat. The Prov. Grand Officers for the ensuing year were then appointed and invested in the following order, viz.:—S. Blandy Jenkins P.M. 745 W.M. 1770 G.S.W., H. Poynter P.M. 948 G.J.W., Rev. C. E. Honey 1101 G. Chap., Rev. Moses Margoliouth 1410 G. Asst. Chap., C. Stephens 414 G. Treas. re-elected, J. J. Britton W.M. 1566 G. The next Annual Meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge was appointed to be held at Maidenhead, under the banner of the Ellington Lodge, No. 1566. The sum of £78 15s was appropriated from the Charity Fund for distribution amongst sundry Lodges in aid of the Masonic Charities. Bros. R. Roberts W.M. 209, R. Bradley P.M. 414 P.G. Sec., and W. Goddard 771 were severally invested with the Provincial Charity jewel. Letters of apology from absent brethren were read, and no further business being brought forward, the Prov. G. Lodge was closed with solemn prayer. The banquet was given in the Council Chamber, the Prov. Grand Master presiding, and was fully attended, so fully, indeed, that one eminent brother and a magnate in the town, arriving after the brethren were seated, could not be accommodated, greatly to the regret of many there present. The tables were handsomely decorated by the liberal provision, and under the artistic direction of Bro. Dick Radclyffe, whose admirable and appropriate floral Masonic emblems at all times excite the wonder and delight of those who are favoured to witness the general effect produced. On this occasion some of his most valuable and choicest productions were tastefully scattered in profusion before the guests, who at the close of the proceedings were permitted to retain souvenirs from amongst them. Amongst the toasts at a later period of the day our worthy brother received a distinct acknowledgment of his generous addition to the pleasure of his brother Masons. Grace having been sung, the R.W. Prov. Grand Master, referring to the necessity for enabling brethren to return by an early train, decided that both toasts and responses should be briefly given and returned. The Queen, the Grand Master, the Pro Grand Master and Grand Officers were loyally received, and severally followed by appropriate solos and glees by an excellent quartette party, comprising Bros. Clarke, Shepherd, Rowley and Plumridge, whose services throughout the post-prandial proceedings were worthy of the highest praise. To the toast of the Right Worshipful P.G.M., proposed by Bro. E. J. Trendell, Sir Daniel Gooch replied, with thanks for the manner in which he had been at all times received by the members of his Province, and congratulated them on this meeting having been an excellent and very happy gathering. Having determined to be brief in reply, he would make those few remarks suffice, and at once propose the Deputy Provincial Grand Master and Provincial Grand Officers, and couple with the toast the name of Bro. H. H. Hodges P.P.G.S.W., who following his chief's lead likewise made brief response. The Visitors were represented by Bro. Bruton, who returned thanks for the great hospitality and good friendship they had received. For the Masonic Charities, proposed by the Prov. Grand Chaplain Bro. the Rev. C. E. Honey, in excellent terms, Bro. J. Terry, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, responded. After some very complimentary expressions to his entertainers, he said that the previous night had witnessed the completion of what might be called the Masonic year, with reference to the charitable institutions of the Order. At the three Festivals held this year the contributions received for these institutions had been as follows:—Benevolent Institution, £14,300; Girls' Schools, £12,200; Boys' Schools, £10,500; a total in round numbers of £37,000, which was in excess of that contributed in any previous year. He considered this a most satisfactory result, and when connected with the acknowledged adverse state of trade, it almost led one to believe that however others might be affected by such depression, the Order of Freemasons was peculiarly exempt therefrom. He would not infringe upon the decision of the R.W. Prov. Grand Master as to brevity of speech, and therefore would refrain from a lengthened explanation of the good work done by the several Charities, feeling assured that their respective claims were always considered by the Province, as was evinced by the liberal amounts that day granted, and he concluded by an earnest hope that the bread so cast upon the waters would never be lost to them. The remaining toasts were complimentary to Bro. E. J. Trendell, for his hospitality and welcome at Abbey Lodge; Bro. Dick Ratcliffe, for his generous adornment of the banquet table; the Abbey Lodge, for the reception of the Prov. Grand Lodge; the Prov. Grand Treasurer and Prov. Grand Sec., and the Prov. Grand Stewards; each of these were briefly acknowledged, and the Tyler's toast brought the meeting to a conclusion.

It is with pleasure we announce that it has been decided to recognise the past great and invaluable services rendered to the Lodge of Industry, No. 48, Gateshead, and the Craft generally, by our worthy Bro. J. E. Robson P.M. P.P.Sd. B. Durham, by presenting him with a suitable testimonial on his retiring from office and active working. A committee has been appointed to assist in this object, for which purpose subscriptions will be received by any of the following:—Bros. R. Whitfield W.M. 48, 5 Bloomfield-terrace, Gateshead; J. G. Smith J.W. 48, West-street, Gateshead; D. Sinclair P.M. 48, Quayside, Newcastle; Dr. R. F. Cook P.M. and D.C. 48, West-street, Gateshead;

SUMMER FESTIVAL OF THE DOMATIC LODGE, No. 177.

THE brethren of this Lodge held their Annual Summer Festival on Friday, 27th of June, at the Star and Garter Hotel, Richmond, Bro. E. White, the W.M. of the Lodge, ably presided, supported by Past Masters G. Everett, Foulger, Kent, Buscall (I.P.M), H. Elmes, Ferguson, and an efficient body of Stewards, who seemed to devote the whole of their energies to making the meeting worthy of this popular Lodge. There were 121 ladies and brethren present, the splendid banquet saloon of the hotel, commanding a fine view of the river, being devoted to their comfort by Bro. Hunt, who is likewise to be complimented on the way in which the banquet was put on the table. At the conclusion of the dinner, the W.M. gave the various toasts usual on such occasions. He considered that each of them deserved especial praise. He would have liked to debate on them to their fullest extent, but as they were so often and deservedly proposed, and generally met such hearty enthusiasm, he should be very brief on the present occasion, so as to give the company an opportunity of enjoying the amusements which had been provided. Bro. Buscall proposed the health of Bro. White. As far as the Lodge was concerned, he believed that its Worshipful Master was ready to devote the whole of his energies to its welfare. No one more fully had its interests at heart than he. When the question had arisen in Lodge as to the advisability of holding this summer festival, Bro. White had especially distinguished himself, and by his assiduity in promoting the movement had contributed greatly to its success. The fact of the attendance being far in advance of what was expected was, the speaker considered, ample evidence that the meeting had met the approval and support of a large majority of the members. There were none but would admit that the day had been a very pleasant one—it was to the W.M. they were indebted for it—and he felt assured that the arrangements had ensured the enjoyment of all. The W.M., in his reply, said that he felt highly flattered at the kind expressions of Bro. Buscall; he had not expected that he should be honoured with so large an assembly, and was pleased to find that it had proved such a great success. The Worshipful Master then proposed the health of the Visitors. They were, he said, very numerous, and therefore merited especial honour. He was pleased to greet them, and hoped that should the Domatic Lodge hold a summer festival next year, he should again have the pleasure of meeting those present. He coupled with the toast the name of Bro. C. A. Smith, who in due course returned thanks for the hearty reception that had been accorded the guests of the day. The health of the Stewards was next given from the chair. The W.M. said that every credit was due to them for their exertions. He was also pleased to express his thanks to the Officers of the Lodge, who had so effectually rendered him aid, and between them contributed to make the day's gathering a complete success. Brother Spinks S.W. returned thanks, followed by Brother Kent P.M. in a very eloquent and humorous speech. The toast of the ladies was now given from the chair. The W.M. had great pleasure in coupling with the toast the name of a brother who he said would be sure to do justice to the toast, he meant Bro. G. Everett P.M. That brother felt very much flattered and honoured in being called upon to respond to what he considered was the toast of the evening. As a lady, he thanked the W.M. for the many kind things he had said; but he wished them to understand that Bro. White had said no more than the ladies were entitled to. The ladies knew what forlorn objects the men were, and the W.M. knew they were indebted to them for the success of the day. Although the ladies did not know the Masons' secret, they did know that the brethren well supported their three magnificent Charities; and knowing them to be engaged in such good work, they could trust they would always be profitably employed, although sometimes they might be kept out a little late. They might have a very good cause for it—looking to the interests of the noble Order. The room having been cleared, the ladies and brethren enjoyed a very agreeable evening, dancing being kept up with great spirit, Bros. F. Kent P.M. and J. R. Foulger efficiently acted as M.C.'s.

THE OLD FOLKS.

THE Annual Summer Entertainment was given on Tuesday, 1st of July, at the Asylum, Croydon. Notwithstanding the clerk of the weather was in the unamiable state of mind he has been displaying—we scarcely dare say for how long—there was a large attendance of brethren with their ladies, prominent amongst whom we noticed Bros. J. Terry, John Newton, C. J. Perceval, John Constable, C. G. Hill, G. Knill, J. E. Terry, W. Hicks, C. J. Hicks, G. M. Finch, A. Collins, J. J. Berry, E. H. Bowyer, E. G. Legge, F. Breuer, R. H. Halford, Thomas Cubitt, Raynham Stewart, William Stephens, C. Perceval, S. E. Gold, G. Recknell, G. Ward Verry, H. J. Strong, M.D., A. Trewinnard, H. Massey, John Wright, W. W. Morgan, &c. On reaching the Institution, the brethren and ladies were received by the Warden, Bro. Norris, who with his daughter exerted themselves most successfully during the day to render the visit of their guests as agreeable as those many successful ones that have already been participated in by those who look forward to these very pleasant reunions. Bro. Terry, with a strong band of assistants, distributed the customary gifts of tea and tobacco, presented by the Supreme Council, 33rd degree, and then the party, prior to partaking of refreshment, proceeded on the house to house visitation which it has become the custom to indulge in on these occasions. A feature of the day was the inauguration of an elegant flag staff, 60 feet in height, surmounted by a weather cock, and the hoisting of the flag of the Institution, which we trust will spread itself to the breeze on many and many a gala day in time to come. The residents are indebted for these, the latest of their "portables,"—as Mr. Wemmick might have designated these gifts,—to the noted East enders, Bros. J. J. Berry, T. J. Barnes, and J. G. Stevens, and it gladdened our hearts to hear some of our old friends descanting most nautically on the merits of their new acquisition. The duty of providing an entertainment for the Old People had been delegated to the Royal Criterion Glee Singers and Campanologists. This party comprises the following artistes:—Mr. Harry Tipper, Conductor (Baritone), Mr. Frederick James (Tenor), Mr. F. Taylor (Bass), Mr. J. Wise (Elocutionist), Mr. H. T. Allen (Pianist). The entertainment provided was of a most versatile character, and called forth the unanimous approval of the audience, whose applause must to the executants have been gratifying in the extreme. The great dexterity in manipulating their bells was commented on, while the delicacy of tone and perfection of harmony left nothing to be desired. On the completion of the performance, the customary votes of thanks were tendered, and the party returned to town in the saloon carriages that had been provided by the railway company.

THE Annual Festival in aid of this Fund was held on Wednesday, 2nd July, at the Alexandra Palace, Muswell Hill, under the presidency of Lord Arthur Hill (P.M. 164, P.G.S.W. Sussex). In consequence of the heavy demands on our space, we are compelled to hold over our report of the meeting of the Prov. Grand Lodge of Middlesex, which took place on Saturday last, at Great Stanmore. We may, however, here state that the day's proceedings were eminently satisfactory, and must have been gratifying to the Prov. Grand Master Colonel Burdett.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Sores, Wounds and Ulcers.—Every variety of sores, ulcer, eruption, boil, and carbuncle, is safely stopped in its destructive course by the timely application of this healing Ointment. It arrests unhealthy and substitutes healthy action, thus curing the inflamed, irritable, and spreading diseases affecting the skin. Holloway's Ointment has gained an imperishable fame for its facility in healing old inflammatory sores about the shins and ankles, and for bad legs and old wounds it cannot be equalled; nor is it less efficacious in gathered breasts and abscesses. When the complaint has been of long continuance, Holloway's Pills will expedite recovery, if taken in those doses which act as alteratives on the stomach, and tonics on the constitution.

VIEWS ON CHARITY VOTING.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I must respectfully but earnestly demur to the running commentary introduced by your reporter into the few remarks I made at the consecration of the Clapham Lodge in returning thanks for the Officers of Grand Lodge.

In the first place, I hold that it is scarcely becoming in a reporter to take such a self-sufficient line, on whatever side of a question his sympathies may lie.

In the second place I dispute the accuracy of almost every statement he has been pleased to make.

It is in my humble opinion the province of a reporter to report what has been said, or if he thinks it worthless, to omit it altogether, but it is not his function to suppress what has been said, and give instead thereof his own personal commentary, thus taking the place of judge, jury, and witness.

Now, as to his statements.

1. With all due deference to him, I contend my views on charity voting are not peculiar, but held by three men out of every four who have no vested interests to serve, and have not been involved in the haphazard jobbery which the present system so manifestly fosters.

2. I deny that these views are even "antagonistic to the Craft at large;" on the contrary, I assert that if Masons were polled to-morrow, three-fourths would be found on the side of enquiry, justice and mercy, and therefore opposed to the abuses of the present system. To one thing I can speak without hesitation, that I know of dozens of influential Masons, holding high rank in the Craft, who have denounced these abuses in no measured terms, and who will before long speak out (as I have dared to do) their minds upon this subject.

3. Though the brethren present did not express any "concurrence" in the views put forth, I have yet to learn that such silence meant dissent; and as to "disapprobation," I certainly did not catch the faintest sound of it. I may add, that in far the larger proportion of Masonic meetings at which I have named the subject, the views I have ventured to express have been received with loud concurrence and approval.

4. I never even named the "Charity Organization Society," but simply stated that if any of the brethren happened to have opportunity to attend the annual meeting of the "Charity Voting Reform Association," next day, they would hear from Lord Derby some instructive statements on this subject, so deeply interesting to Masons.

The "Alexandra Palace meeting" was not in my mind when I named this, nor shall I stop to show which of the two meetings was likely to confer more dignity and real profit on Masonry. But I think I could do this, and easily too.

And now, Dear Sir and Brother, permit me to say that I shall always feel myself perfectly at liberty to express my opinions in every assembly of Masons, on any subject that is good for Masonry in general, or for the "Lodge in particular" of which I may be a member; and no amount of sneer or perverse comment, either on the part of Secretaries or reporters, shall deter me from having the honesty of my convictions, and expressing them too. Plain truth must be evil-spoken of at least for a time, and reform must ever encounter much opposition and obloquy, but both will and must eventually triumph; as in the case of the Royal Medical Benevolent College it has recently done, wherein 2,770 as against 364 Governors endorsed our views, which were carried by resolution at the annual meeting by 5 to 1, in the face of the Council, the majority of whom were hostile to reform; and so, please God, we shall have it in Freemasonry soon, and while our votes remain, they will be stripped of those unjust, undignified, wasteful, and cruel accompaniments,—voting days, exchanges, trafficking, and wholesale canvassing, which are "spots on our Feasts of Charity," and on our Charity itself.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

R. J. SIMPSON.

"WHICH IS CORRECT?"

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—By a printer's error in my letter of last week you have caused me to use the word dependent instead of despondent, a very different signification to what I had intended. Please correct in your next, and oblige,

Yours truly and fraternally,

A PROVINCIAL GRAND OFFICER.

Plymouth, 30th June 1879.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—"A PROVINCIAL GRAND OFFICER'S" letter in your last impression is evidently so kindly meant that I cannot feel regret that doubts as to the success of my endeavours are expressed, and that in some quarters "difficulty and disappointment to myself" are anticipated. I may be sanguine, as he supposes,—even as faultily so; but I am quite as persistent as I am sanguine; and whilst certain my object and the means adopted to gain it are proper, I shall not spare myself the necessary labour to attain it. The Knight of de la Mancha may be my prototype in some respects, but I aim at the perseverance of another type of man to whom the lesson of the spider's oft-repeated failures and subsequent success was not lost.

Any way, the work I have announced is all but "in the press." It is true that at the present the requisite number of subscribers to cover cost of publication has not been secured, but some two hundred copies are subscribed for, and I have every hope that the remaining three hundred will be forthcoming when it is perfectly understood I "mean business." I scarcely understand your correspondent's expression "nervous and dependent." I certainly am not the former, and as to the latter, I venture to express the hope that beyond seeking the reasonable support of my brother Masons, who will receive "quid pro quo," the publication of the work will be undertaken without obligation (except for grateful co-operation) on my part towards any one.

The suggestion of your correspondent as to what he is pleased to term the "scheme" for the formation of a Lodge of Preceptors shall be carried into effect, as I plainly see—and thank him for pointing it out—that unless the practicability of its establishment can be generally understood approval and support could not expected.

I have yet very many "points" to submit for the consideration of the members of the Craft interested in the subject, but the compilation of the proposed work is sufficient for my present leisure, so I defer their introduction until after the publication of "Uniformity of Masonic Ritual and Observance," which I anticipate will be not later than the last week in July. Meanwhile I shall of course be glad to receive the names of further subscribers for the work.

Yours truly and fraternally,

JAMES STEVENS P.M. P.Z.

"ASSISTANCE" FUND.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Permit me to call attention to a matter which I think will prove of great importance to the Craft generally, viz., the suggestion of the M.W. Bro. the Earl of Rosslyn as to the advisability of establishing a fund for the assistance of Boys and Girls after leaving our institutions.

This is not a new topic, as it has often been discussed by me, and no doubt many brethren; it has at last happily been brought prominently and gracefully before the brethren by the M.W. P.G.M. of Scotland, the Earl of Rosslyn, in his speech at the Boys' Festival. As chairman of the Festival he remarked: "I will tell you a little fault, and I am sure I have only to mention it to find it immediately corrected. It is not impossible that at the end of their schooling career some of these boys may leave the school homeless and in need. It may be that the good seed sown may bear fruit during their scholastic career, but it may also be that the fruit will perish for want of cultivation at a later period. It may be that they leave the institution to fall into evil courses and evil ways, and even to suffer penury and poverty. This is the only blot I can find in your excellent institution." I think another blot his Lordship has overlooked is the desirability of providing a sinking fund for the institutions, that they might be more independent of individual exertions, and not suffer from the vicissitudes of trade, hard times, &c.; however, this is digressing, so I return to the subject of his Lordship's remarks. I think he has struck a happy chord, there can be no doubt the children receive a splendid education, and are thoroughly cared for whilst in the institutions, but is it not proved that the comfort and ease the children experience in their early years makes it doubly hard to bear privations, when they have to face the stern fight of life. How often is it found that they are discouraged to give up, where others, who from childhood have been nursed in the rough school of life and are not so sensitive, plod on and succeed; a little assistance in such critical moments might be the means of laying the foundation of a life's success. I feel I am not competent to plead the children's cause as ably as I should like, and can only hope these remarks may strike the heart of some able writer who will take up the cause. I shall, therefore, content myself by stating a remedy. The M.W. and noble Chairman expressed his willingness to subscribe to such a fund, started for the purpose of assisting the children. I would propose therefore that on the next Stewards' papers a column is left for subscriptions and donations to the "Assistance" Fund. This would save expense of collecting, and as an inducement to brethren and Stewards to collect for the fund, to allow one vote say for every twenty pounds collected for this purpose. There need be no special banquet or festival. Simply let it be recognised as a special fund, and Stewards for the Boys' and Girls' Festivals invited to solicit subscriptions.

As such a fund only wants a start to be a reality, I would propose that one hundred brethren volunteer to raise subscriptions, and guarantee, say within two years, to collect at least one hundred pounds each, and if our M.W. Chairman heads the list, as he has promised, I have no doubt a good round sum would be soon forthcoming. This, invested in the names of trustees in Consols or other good security, would form the nucleus of a great charity fund. As deeds are better than words, I shall have much pleasure in offering my services as a Steward, and I guarantee no less than one hundred pounds within two years.

Having called attention to what I think is a want, may I hope you will give publicity to it, in the hope that the brethren will freely discuss the pros and cons with a view to finding out if the suggestion made by our illustrious chairman will prove as acceptable to the brethren at large as it does to yours,

Faithfully and fraternally,

DICK RADCLYFFE.

P.S. There are say 1600 Lodges, if each W.M. for the year 1880, instead of a jewel, were to propose the cost be placed to this fund no less than say £6,000 would be raised. I mention this to show how easy it would be in small matters to raise a large sum. To forego one banquet in each Lodge would treble this sum. Should we ever regret such privations?

Although this was the first occasion of Bro. Friedeberg occupying the chair, he (Bro. Musto) had seldom seen the work better done, even by old and experienced brethren. This was carried unanimously, and ordered to be recorded on the minutes. Bro. Green was elected to fulfil the Master's duties at the next meeting. Brethren desirous of Instruction will find this Lodge affords excellent opportunities of acquiring Masonic knowledge. The members meet every Friday evening.

Wandsworth Lodge of Instruction, No. 1,044.—On Wednesday, 25th June, several of the members spent a very enjoyable day at Shepperton, whither they resorted for the purpose of enjoying a boating picnic. The morning was not a bright one, and but few had the courage to face the elements by a journey on the road. Amongst those brethren who travelled by rail were Bros. W. A. Morgan W.M. of 1,044, H. R. Jones, J. G. Carter, C. Digby and Mrs. Digby, J. J. Holland, F. W. Wardroper, F. Reed, Mrs. Reed, and Denham. Two boats were chartered, and a pleasant row, amidst delightful sunshine, for the dark clouds and rain had disappeared, was taken as far as Weybridge Ferry, where some slight refreshment was indulged in at a quaint boating hostelry. The return journey was then made,—with the tide in favour of the "Craft"—and the ladies and brethren sat down to a capital banquet, which was provided in a really first-class manner by Bro. R. Stone, of the Ship Hotel, whose savoury edibles were as much appreciated as his excellent wine. At the dinner the chair was taken by Bro. Morgan, while the Vice-chair was ably filled by Bro. Digby. The cloth having been removed, the usual loyal and patriotic toasts were given. The Chairman in feeling terms remarked, the day was one which he trusted would ever be thought of as a memorable one in the annals of local Freemasonry, for they were about to do honour to Bro. J. G. Carter, the worthy Preceptor of the Lodge of Instruction. The brethren owed a debt of gratitude to their painstaking Preceptor for his untiring energy on their behalf. He (the Chairman) had much pleasure in presenting Bro. Carter, with a massive gold ring—a memento from the Lodge of Instruction—to show the respect in which he is held. The Vice-chairman warmly praised the Masonic tact of Bro. Carter, and felt that the brethren, in presenting the ring, were only bestowing honour where honour was due. Other brethren also spoke as to Bro. Carter' kindness. Bro. Carter suitably responded, and after some song from Bros. Digby, Holland, and others, tea was served and the party returned to town.

Lewis Lodge, No. 1185.—A meeting was held on Saturday, the 21st ult., at the King's Arms Hotel, Wood-green. Present—Bros. T. W. Bone W.M., J. W. Berrie S.W., G. D. Hooper J.W., T. H. Turner P.M. Leared, Rowe, Durrant, Turner and Sayer. Visitors—Bros. Groome P.M. Finsbury 861, Harrison Fitzroy 569, &c. Business—The minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, Bros. Doree and Harrison (the latter of the Fitzroy Lodge) were raised to the sublime degree of M.M., and Bros. Richards and Joyce were passed to the degree of F.C. All business being ended, the brethren sat down to a cold collation (this Lodge annually, at this meeting, giving the cost of a banquet to the Masonic Charities), and spent a very enjoyable evening; Bros. Burgess Perry and others adding thereto by some very excellent songs.

Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction, No. 1298.—On Friday, 27th June, at the Alwyne Castle, Canonbury, N. Present—Bros. Cull W.M., Yeomans S.W., Rowley J.W., G. H. Eldridge candidate; the ceremony of passing, Bro. Dickinson candidate; and the ceremony of raising, Bro. Edmonds being candidate. The Lodge was then closed in the third and second degrees. A cordial vote of thanks to the W.M. for his able working of the ceremonies was passed. The Lodge was closed in ancient form with solemn prayer.

Lebanon Lodge, No. 1,326.—The election meeting of this Lodge was held on 21st ult., at the Red Lion Hotel, Hampton. The W.M. Bro. J. C. Woodrow opened the Lodge, assisted by many Officers, Past Masters, and brethren. The resignation of the S.W. Bro. Capt. Williams was accepted with expressions of regret. Ballots, taken separately, were unanimous in favour of Bros. T. W. Adams, P.M. 1,623, and J. T. Burchill 1,656, being elected as joining members. Also for Messrs. William John Smith, and Frederick William Dye as candidates for initiation into Freemasonry. The W.M. Bro. J. C. Woodrow, in an able and impressive manner, passed Bros. H. J. Buckley, W. R. Smith, D. Brown, and J. Cavell to the second degree, initiated Messrs. Wm. John Smith, and Frederick Wm. Dye, each candidate introduced separately, which added to the solemnity of the beautiful working. The Bye-Laws were read. Bro. J. B. Shackleton was elected W.M., S. Wickens P.M., re-elected Treas., J. Gilbert P.G. Tyler Middlesex re-elected Tyler. Twenty guineas were voted to the Girl's School (per Sec., in memory of R. W. Little P.P.D.G.M. Middlesex); the usual Past Master's jewel was voted to Bro. J. C. Woodrow W.M., for services rendered to the Lodge during his year of office. Petitions to the Lodge of Benevolence Fund of Middlesex were unanimously recommended and signed in open Lodge. Business being ended, the Lodge was closed and adjourned to meet on the 19th July, at one o'clock precisely. Banquet followed. The usual toasts were given and responded to. There were present besides those named, Bros. C. W. Fox P.M., E. Gilbert P.M., W. Hammond P.P.S.D. Middlesex P.M., F. Walters P.P.G.D. Middlesex P.M. Sec., J. Hanaman, C. Graham, Knight, W. Pavitt the second, Barker third, and Pavitt the fourth, assisted by the brethren. Bros. Guy and Morgan, of Henley Lodge 1472, were elected members. Bro. Barker was appointed W.M. for the ensuing week. Bro. Musto was in his place as Preceptor; his working was all that could be desired. We hear that several members of the Dalhousie Lodge 860 intend paying a visit to this Lodge of Instruction.

Star Lodge of Instruction, No. 1275. — An ordinary meeting of the members of this Lodge of Instruction took place on Saturday evening, at the Marquis of Granby, New Cross, when the attendance fell rather short of the usual number, in consequence, no doubt, of the many brethren who were drawn away by the attractions presented on Coronation Day to the holiday public, and also by the holding of an important meeting in connection with a neighbouring Lodge at Chiselhurst. However, some excellent work was done, and brethren who are in the habit of attending this very popular Lodge of Instruction will readily understand us when we say the evening afforded a real intellectual treat. Bro. H. Shaw acted as W.M., with Bros. A. Abell S.W., W. W. Medcalf W.M. of 1671 as J.W., S. R. Speight P.M. 147 S.D., R. A. Smith J.D., John H. King I.G.; Bros. W. Andrews P.M. 871 Preceptor, G. Heming, H. W. Fellows, &c. Lodge having been opened in form, and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed by the W.M., Brother W. Heming being the candidate. The manner in which the duties were performed testified to the admirable instruction imparted in this Lodge, and elicited the deserved approbation of the brethren present. Subsequently the explanation of the working tools, and the lecture on the tracing-board, were given by Bro. W. Andrews, whose abilities as a Preceptor are known far and wide. We never heard him in better elocutionary form, and the style in which he delivered himself of a somewhat laborious task drew from the brethren the heartiest expressions of admiration and approval. He was assisted most efficiently by Bro. Abell, and the brethren separated amidst many expressions of pleasure at the treat which had been afforded them.

The Great City Lodge of Instruction, No. 1426.—A meeting was held on Thursday, 26th June, at Masons' Hall Tavern, E.C. Present—Bros. Moss W.M., Staley S.W., Paddle J.W., Saul Preceptor, Blackie Sec., H. Bertram S.D., Bisset J.D., Le Rosignol I.G., Harper, G. Taylor, C. Taylor, &c. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The ceremony of raising was rehearsed, and the third section of the lecture worked. The Lodge was closed to the first degree, and the second section of that lecture worked. Bro. Saul was unanimously elected W.M. for the first Thursday in September, the usual meetings being suspended until that date. The Lodge was then closed in due form.

Royal Military Lodge of Instruction, No. 1449.—A meeting was held on 23rd June, 1879, at the Masonic Hall, Canterbury. Present:—Bros. H. Miskin W.M., J. F. Howarth S.W., T. Blamiers J.W., E. Beer (Treas.) D.C., W. Carter (Secretary) S.D., J. Vautier J.D., J. H. Naylor I.G.; Visitors—Bro. W. Ewell 31. After preliminaries, the questions leading from the first to the second degree were put to Bro. Beer, after which the Lodge was opened in the second degree, and the ceremony of passing rehearsed. The Lodge was opened in the third, and lowered to second and first degrees. Nothing further having been offered, Lodge was closed.

Eboracum Lodge, No. 1611.—An emergency meeting of this Lodge was held on Monday 23rd ult. Present—Bros. J. S. Cumberland W.M., T. B. Whytehead I.P.M., P. H. Rowland P.M., W. Beanland P.M., G. Balmford P.M. (Treas.), C. G. Padel S.W., J. T. Seller J.W., M. Millington S.D., T. D. Smith J.D., G. Simpson M. C., A. T. Turner Assist. M.C., J. Kay Sec., J. Blenkin I.G., and many other brethren. The business consisted of the initiation of Mr. O. Marshall, which was performed by the W.M., the working tools being explained by the J.W., and the charge given by the S.W. It was arranged to hold a Lodge picnic, when Cawood Castle should be visited. During the hour of refreshment the proceedings were much enlivened by the glee singing of Bros. J. S. Cumberland, T. Humphries, J. E. Wilkinson, and O. Marshall.

West Middlesex Lodge of Instruction, No. 1612.—On Thursday, 19th June, at the Feathers Hotel, Ealing, Bros. Rickwood W.M., Acworth S.W., Coop J.W., Tucker Treasurer and Preceptor, Wells S.D., Seward jun. J.D., Yewens I.G.; Bros. Stephens, J. Murch, F. Botley, C. Botley. Visitor—Bro. Woolner, Stability No. 217. After compliance with customary requirements, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Woolner candidate. Bro. Cook then took the chair, and worked the ceremony of passing, Bro. Woolner candidate. Bro. Rickwood re-occupied the chair, and closed the Lodge in the second degree. Bro. Coop gave notice of his intention at the meeting on the 3rd proximo to bring forward the subject of the Lodge of Instruction banquet. The Secretary was requested to communicate with Bro. Beasley, the President of the Benevolent Association, with a view to obtaining approval of the Bye Laws of the Association. Bro. Woolner, Stability Lodge No. 217, was elected a member of this Lodge of Instruction. Bro. Acworth was elected W.M. for next meeting, and the Lodge was closed in due form.

Paxton Lodge, No. 1686.—A meeting of the above was held at the Crystal Palace, Sydenham, on Saturday the 28th June. There were present—Bros. Klenck I.P.M., H. E. Frances P.P.G.D. Surrey Sec., F. J. Sawyer J.W., Woodhams S.D., Basnett P.M. 1339 J.D., Dodd I.G., Goddard W.G.; Bros. Graves, Sharman, Moore, Dr. Pincote F.G.S., Damant, Partridge, Coward P.G.O. Hon. Organist. Visitors—Bros. Webb P.M. 1223, Butt P.M. 770, Pellatt 857. The business of the evening was to pass Bro. Pincote, to raise Bro. Pellatt 857, and to elect a W.M., Treasurer, and Tyler. In the absence of the W.M., the chair was taken by Bro. Frances, who well performed the duties of the evening. After the ceremonies, ballots were severally taken, and the following brethren declared unanimously elected: Bros. F. J. Sawyer S.W. W.M., J. M. Klenck P.M. Treasurer, Radford Tyler; Bros. Heller, Sharman, and James were elected Auditors. Letters were read apologising for the absence of Bros. F. W. Goddard W.M., W. H. Boswell J.W., and the Rev. R. J. Simpson P.G.C. Hon. Chaplain. The meeting of the Lodge occurring on the occasion of the visit of H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught to the Palace, a large influx of visitors was there in consequence, and only a very small room could be procured for the accommodation of the brethren, in which they were necessitated to dine, after the Lodge business was over; but notwithstanding this inconvenience, and in a temperature alternating between the Black Hole and Nova Zembla, the greatest good humour prevailed. The toasts were given, and enthusiastically honoured. The M.W.G.M.'s toast calling up the fact that his royal brother, a distinguished Freemason, was at that moment in the same building, a suggestion was made that a greeting should be sent him. Bro. Klenck P.M., who presided at the banquet, acting on this, pencilled on a Lodge summons the following message:—"Crystal Palace, 28th June 1879. The W.M. and Brethren of the Paxton Lodge, now meeting, send fraternal greeting and duty to H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught G.S.W., &c., and to H.R.H. the Duchess." Means having been found to convey this, in the course of the evening H.R.H. graciously, through Captain Fitzgerald, sent the following pencilled reply:—"His Royal Highness has received with much gratification the fraternal greetings of the Paxton Lodge." Bro. Frances proposed the health of the presiding Master Bro. Klenck, eliciting from him an excellent reply. The health of the W.M. elect, Bro. F. J. Sawyer, was enthusiastically greeted, and in a few eloquent words was ably replied to. Bro. Webb, in replying for the Visitors, spoke highly of the working of Bro. Frances, which, he said, was proverbially good, and always a pleasure to him (Bro. Webb) to hear. Bro. Coward contributed much to the harmony and pleasure of the evening by some excellent pianoforte playing, and despite the inconvenience all had been put to, each brother's opinion was that a delightful evening had been spent.

"TAUGHT TO BE CAUTIOUS."

IT is tacitly understood amongst Freemasons everywhere that there shall be no persuasion applied to induce men to join the ranks of our "ancient and honourable Institution." Indeed, the very principle of proselytism is diametrically at variance with the avowals which the candidate is required to assent to prior to his initiation; and if recognised in the slightest degree it would undermine the very foundation of that spontaneity and free-will which it is held must actuate all who aspire to a participation in the privileges and mysteries of the Order. If it were needed we could enlarge to any extent upon this great guiding motive which must prompt all who wish to enrol themselves under the banner of Freemasonry. But the understanding is so thoroughly grounded in the faith of the brethren that we do not deem it expedient, or at all necessary, to refer to it except that the standpoint shall be admitted and religiously preserved. That he who joins our ranks with the firm intention of studying the sublime precepts inculcated by the art, and of striving to illustrate them in his daily life, never regrets the step thus undertaken, is an axiom the truth of which is amply borne out in every brother's experience. But the causes which lead to this inward satisfaction come under the category of those privileges which are highly prized amongst Masons, and must be guarded with the most scrupulous care. Still, we contend that the persuasion which is forbidden at the outset, and which cannot be honestly applied to "the popular world in general," relates with equal, if not greater, force to the advancing grades through which the brethren, once admitted, are laudably ambitious to pass. And we refer with unfeigned reluctance to the practice, which is far too prevalent, of buttonholing young Masons, and insidiously touting amongst them for candidates for the higher degrees, the Mark and Royal Arch included. In relation to this subject, the question naturally arises, are those connected with the higher degrees sufficiently circumspect in carrying out their original obligation? If so, is it not a matter for surprise that we should be so continuously receiving at our several meetings the notification that certain candidates whose names were set down on the agenda paper for raising or exaltation cannot make it convenient to be present—who occasionally make feeble excuses, and perhaps more frequently none at all? When a man takes so binding and serious an obligation as that which obtains in the initiatory stages of his Masonic career, we have a right to expect that it shall exert its unsullied influence upon all his subsequent acts and movements in connection with the Order. But how often is it tarnished by the overweening anxiety we see so constantly manifested by brethren to "rush" others into degrees for the acceptance of which they are not yet sufficiently educated, or which, to put it plainly, they are not pecuniarily justified in undertaking? We do not believe that in so doing our brethren are guilty of an intentional violation of their obligation; it more frequently arises from an excess of zeal, which gets the advantage of their discretion. Thus, when we hear the unwelcome announcement that certain candidates named in the agenda are unable to fulfil their promised engagements—when their names disappear from the list, and those who have the curiosity to preserve a record look in vain for their recurrence—no other conclusion can possibly be arrived at than that, in a moment of elation and want of thought, brethren have consented to accept responsibilities, the extent and cost of which they had not duly and carefully calculated beforehand. It is by no means an uncommon occurrence that propositions for advancement lapse by reason of the expiration of the time prescribed; and it only proves that in an unguarded moment brethren have yielded to undue pressure, such as should never have been applied, and that, on reconsideration, they have decided to wait till they can better afford the time and money which such a progress in the Science involves. The moral effect upon men's minds of such unwise solicitation, and its failure to be carried to a complete and satisfactory issue, is most painfully apparent. On the one hand, it creates disappointment in the mind of those who have canvassed for the honour and glory of proposing the brethren interested, that their protégés do not feel themselves warranted in fully responding to the call; whilst the candidate, who has unthinkingly assented to his nomination, suffers from the chagrin that is always attendant on a consciousness of having failed to ratify an engagement partially and hastily entered upon. The result is that either side looks askance at the other when next they meet, and not unfrequently a coolness springs up which, however unaccountable to others, is perfectly understood between the parties individually concerned. These are matters upon which we think the Masters and Officers of Lodges might expend a little profitable attention, with a view to checking the undesirable propensity so often betrayed to cozen others into a step beyond their capacities. We are firmly convinced that when a man accepts a position from which he would gladly recede, if he could honourably "eat his own words," and save his pride by pleading just cause for a revoke, he is never at home in the sphere into which he has been enticed; and this feeling of unsettled discontent must generate a laxity of spirit and interest which, if it became contagious, would tend to weaken the stability and destroy the esprit de corps which is essential to the healthy conduct of any Lodge. It will be well that at all convenient times and seasons the brethren should be impressed with the thought that the obligation should be enforced equally in the respect of gaining proselytes to the higher degrees as in the first. We know there is a great deal more touting for joining members to those degrees than there ought to be—especially for the Mark and the Royal Arch; and it is this system that all upright and sensible men will do their utmost to curb. This is best accomplished by the rulers of Lodges expounding to those over whom they are placed in authority the sanctity of that obligation which rests upon us all, and on the principle of "free will and accord" which prompts us to our first step across the threshold, and should guide us in every advance we wish to make along the chequered floor. We often hear the expression that Masonry is so expensive that many hesitate to realise the desire of their hearts by coming amongst us. And it is perfectly true that Masonry is a hobby which might, if one chooses, be "ridden to death." But such aspirations are bloated and flatulent, and too often the baubles melt into thin air in consequence of the too vigorous and indiscreet pressure that is put on. No such extraneous power is needed at all. If a man has gained such an insight into the groundwork of the Order as emboldens him to take fresh ground, knowing that his aims are legitimate and safe, all is well. But to rush in where sober, sensible men fear to tread, often leads to a recklessness that ends in grief, and leaves a lasting sting of regret in the circle which becomes the scene of such catastrophe. After all, it is the old story of the fly and the treacle over again. Men become dazzled by descriptions of the degrees beyond which they have not yet passed; and, lured on by roseate anticipations, they often find themselves saddled with responsibilities that are unexpectedly heavy, and which they are unable to carry comfortably, if at all. Then they discover that they cannot have both the sweet clog and the free flight, and so they relapse into a condition of involuntary backsliding, from which they never recover. A little wisdom and foresight enjoined on young aspirants would check this system, and older Masons should be the very first to take the advice.

THE TIMES ON FREEMASONRY.

THURSDAY, 26th JUNE 1879.

PRINCE Leopold's installation last night, at the Freemasons' Hall, as Master of the Lodge of Antiquity, is an event of greater public interest than the majority of Masonic proceedings. The office which Prince Leopold now fills was worthily filled by his great-uncle, the Duke of Sussex, for thirty-four years. This association with a Royal personage is not, however, the only or the greatest distinction of the Lodge of Antiquity. William III. was initiated into Masonry in this Lodge, which then bore the name of St. Paul's, and in which Sir Christopher Wren officiated as Master for eighteen years. It received from him what is both a treasure and a curiosity—that is, the mallet or gavel used by Charles II. to lay the foundation stone of St. Paul's Cathedral, and formed out of a piece of wood of the original structure. He also gave it a fragment of the stone of the Roman temple which stood on the site of the present cathedral, and which was dug up when the foundations were laid. Some of the Lodge furniture was designed and presented by the great architect, so that the members can boast of possessing many things of almost national value. It is appropriate that a body such as this should have at its head one whose literary and artistic tastes are so much in sympathy with its history, and who is well qualified to perpetuate the traditions of those Masters who have adorned the position to which he has been elected. Even the general public, to whom Masonry may not be a subject of particular concern, cannot but feel gratified that a body so venerable as the Lodge of Antiquity should continue to deserve and maintain its exceptional place among Masonic societies. The pretensions of enthusiasts about the great age of Masonry may not unreasonably excite the scorn of unimaginative critics. The stories which tell how St. Alban introduced the Order into Britain are in keeping with other fables in the legendary annals of this country. Extravagant claims naturally excite scepticism, and almost justify the rejection of any story as pure fiction. While no person competent to form a decision can soberly uphold the statements concerning the ancient, if not prehistoric, character of Freemasonry, yet it is quite as rash to argue, as is frequently done, that the whole system is but a thing of yesterday, and was the invention of some clever men in the eighteenth century. That Freemasonry, substantially the same in kind as that which now exists, was practised in this country as far back as the time of Henry VI. is by no means improbable. It has been surmised that the King himself was a member of the Order, though nothing more is proved in support of this than he left behind him a manuscript containing certain parts of Masonic ritual. In his reign the operative Masons were very unpopular, and an Act was passed forbidding them to hold their "chapiters and congregations." It is possible that, about this time, the change may have begun which eventually transformed the operative into speculative Masonry, substituting for the forms and rules under which buildings were actually constructed the mere theoretic Masonry of the present day, in which a peculiar system of morality is veiled in allegory and illustrated by symbols. The several steps of the process have never been clearly traced. There is no doubt that, however the result may have been achieved, it is a noteworthy one. The existence of such a Lodge as that of Antiquity, working under an immemorial constitution, and over which Sir Christopher Wren presided as Master, carries back the Order in this country to a period sufficiently remote to satisfy any reasonable person, and even to endow it with an archæological status.

However well-founded the doubts may be as to the right of Freemasons to claim an ancient origin for their Order, it is indisputable that the Order itself is widely diffused over the earth and wields an extended power. Not long ago we published some statistics on this subject, and these figures could not fail to produce a strong impression. There is no civilized country in which many Masonic Lodges cannot be found, and the more civilized the country, the greater the number of these Lodges. Russia is the only nation concerning which no Masonic statistics are forthcoming, the reason being that in Russia Freemasons have long shared with Jews the antipathy and condemnation of those in authority. Nowhere do Freemasons abound more than in the United States, and nowhere are they now held in higher honour, yet there was a time when they were the opprobrium of citizens of the North American Republic. When Miss Martineau visited the United States and wrote her "Society in America," she found the Masonic Order the object of general denunciation and antipathy. Commenting on what she heard, she wrote that "a bad institution is overthrown." It is obvious that the Order must subserve some practical end, otherwise it would not have survived the overthrow of forty years since. Across the Alantic it can make no pretensions to a long traditionary past; its introduction on North American soil dates from the middle of the eighteenth century. Washington and Franklin are numbered amongst the earliest as well died at Mount Vernon his funeral was conducted by his Masonic brethren in the Virginian Lodge, of which he had long been a member. It is no unusual thing in the United States to see an important personage take part in a Masonic demonstration; President Johnson, for instance, walked in the procession at the opening of the Temple in Boston, and, simply because he was a Freemason, was heartily welcomed by thousands who detested his politics. In the great cities of the Union, such as Boston, New York, and Philadelphia, the Masonic temples are the most striking architectural structures. Perhaps the love of parade which predominates in the breasts of citizens of the United States causes those of them who are Freemasons to indulge in more public display than is consonant with the principles of a society which professes to have the exclusive custody of important secrets and which conducts its business in strict privacy. But Freemasonry, like many other institutions, has its ranks, its degrees, and also its offshoots, and those parts of it which are least useful are the most demonstrative. One addition to the ordinary degrees is that of the Knight Templars, being an attempt to carry on the tradition of the old foes of the Saracens and conquerors of the Holy Land. This degree is a favourite one in the United States, partly because the clothing is very showy, and partly because all its members cease to be plain Jones, Brown, and Robinson, and become, for the time being, Sir Thomas Jones, Sir John Brown, and Sir Joseph Robinson. It is their custom to have an annual gathering in some city, where they parade in public and march about with a mock military air. When the International Exhibition took place in Philidelphia in 1876, the Knight Templars assembled there to the number of eight thousand, and proved themselves to be the most extraordinary sight which had been provided for the astonishment of the foreign visitors. In this country and in other European countries Freemasons are seldom seen in public, and are not often the subjects of comment, except in a Papal Bull. Yet in Europe, as in America, they are neither few in number nor wanting in influence.

A curious and interesting list might be compiled of the distinguished persons who have been Freemasons. Many men of note have been active members of the Order. The supposition that Cardinal Wolsey presided over a Lodge may be classed among unauthenticated stories. There is evidence in favour of Bacon being a Freemason, which every understanding reader can gather from a perusal of his "New Atlantis." An ingenious attempt has been made to prove that Shakespeare belonged to the Craft; but, then, what is there that Shakespeare has not been credited with having done? Most of our countrymen of note during the last and the present century are known to have been Freemasons. In Prussia the Great Frederick was not only a Freemason, but was the head of the Order; both the present German Emperor and the Crown Prince have followed the example set them by the illustrious consolidator of the Prussian realm. Germany numbers such men as Lessing, Herder, Fichte, and Goethe in the Masonic ranks. The latter, like his brother poet Burns, employed his poetical talents in celebrating the merits of the Order. Late in life Voltaire became a Freemason, and the majority of noteworthy Frenchmen since his day have also been members of the fraternity. It is supposed, not without reason, that the Masonic Lodges were instrumental in fostering the First Revolution in France. Not long ago the Grand Lodges in this country and the United States severed their connexion with that of France on the ground that the latter had expunged from the formula of initiation the expression of belief in a Deity. Indeed, the French have always been disposed to practise Freemasonry after a fashion of their own. They even turn the Lodge meeting to a very practical purpose—that of promoting great engineering enterprises. M. Littre, being recently mentioned among those persons who deserved credit for setting on foot a scheme for piercing the Isthmus of Panama, declared in explanation that the project had really been conceived in the Lodge of Clémente-Amitié, of which he became a member in 1875. Should Freemasons' Lodges add the furtherance of engineering to the practice of charity and good-fellowship, they will assuredly become more important bodies than even their advocates have deemed possible. In dealing with the pretensions of Masonry it is necessary, indeed, to pass judgment in the dark. The general public cannot repose full confidence in a secret society, whether, like that of the Freemasons, its objects are the practise of charity and the recognition of the personal equality and mutual dependence of mankind, or whether, like that of the Jesuits, its aims are the advancement of the Church of Rome. Perhaps, if the Freemasons and the Jesuits disclosed their secrets, they would lose little that was worth keeping, and the world would acquire little that was worth having. So far as has been shown, the five or six million Freemasons who inhabit the earth have never deserved the denunciations which the head of the Roman Catholic Church has often levelled against them. Notwithstanding the condemnation of successive Popes, the Order flourishes in such purely Roman Catholic countries as France, Spain, Portugal, Italy, Belgium, Mexico, and Brazil. In France there are 287 Lodges; in Spain, 300; in Portugal, 22; in Italy, 110; in Belgium, 15; in Mexico, 13; and in Brazil, 256. In the United Kingdom there are nearly two thousand Lodges, while in the United States the number nearly reaches ten thousand. During the worst days in our history, when Parliament in a frenzy of terror passed laws against secret societies, the society of Freemasonry was specially excepted. The Act of 1799 exempts the Lodges of Freemasons from the pains and penalties inflicted upon United Englishmen, Scotsmen, Britons, and Irishmen, doing so on the ground that Masonic meetings are in a great measure directed to charitable purposes. The Act of 1817, which was designed to carry out the intent of that of 1799 more effectually, specifically exempts Freemasons and Quakers from its operation. Indeed, those persons who have seen the palatial establishments for the education of the sons and daughters of Freemasons and the asylums for the old and destitute which are maintained by English Freemasons cannot doubt that the Order amply justifies its existence in this country. When our Royal Princes associate themselves with Freemasonry, they not only follow active functions of Master of the Lodge of Antiquity Prince Leopold will certainly receive the thanks of all the Freemasons who glory in a Lodge which is the centre of many venerable and cherished traditions of the craft.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE Times.

SIR,—Your interesting article in The Times of to-day on the installation of his Royal Highness Prince Leopold as Master of the Lodge of Antiquity might have been forcibly supplemented by a statement made on the best authority at the "Summer Festival" held at the Alexandra Palace yesterday, at which I had the honour to preside.

This statement was that no less a sum than £37,000 has been subscribed in three years in aid of that excellent institution, the Masonic Boys' School. "Bad times" appear to have little influence upon Masonic Charities. The excellent management, the liberal education, and the wise moral discipline taught and enforced in this School have produced admirable results. I believe that in the Cambridge Examination 13 boys out of 14 passed in honours. I know that the Girls' School and the Benevolent Fund can make an equally satisfactory statement, and in a pecuniary sense (for their funded property together would exceed considerably £50,000) their status as charitable institutions is most remarkable. The Shibboleth of Freemasonry, like many ancient landmarks, may in these changing times pass away and be forgotten, but through all ages and all time the earnest endeavours of the Craft to promote practical charity and useful beneficence will be remembered to their honour.

Your obedient servant,

Easton Lodge, Dunmow, 26th June. ROSSLYN.

VIEWS ON CHARITY VOTING.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—With, doubtless, the great majority of your readers, I can easily understand the earnestness with which your reverend correspondent, Bro. R. J. Simpson, demurs to the "running commentary introduced by your reporter into the few remarks" addressed to the brethren assembled at the consecration of the Clapham Lodge.

As the self-appointed champion in Masonic circles of an unpopular scheme of Charity voting, Bro. Simpson has had, and must expect to have, many opportunities for pleading a demurrer to the manner in which his views are received by unsympathetic and disapproving auditors. If, in season and out of season, he will persist in airing his crotchet, he ought not to complain if he successfully provokes comment. If, further, in propounding his views he assumes an aggressive tone, and adopts the language of controversy, he ought not to be surprised at a reception the reverse of favourable.

I do not intend now to discuss the merits of the scheme supported by Bro. Simpson, contenting myself with the expression of an assured belief that no efforts will render it acceptable to the Masonic Fraternity; while I shrink from a contest with one who feels himself justified in conveying his sentiments in terms which, to say the least, are characterised by an entire absence of good taste.

I pass over the sneering sarcasm contained in the allusion to the "two meetings," and their comparative merits, for the purpose of commending to the appreciation of your readers the exquisite delicacy of the allusion to "Secretaries and Reporters." Both are, no doubt, bêtes noirs to your earnest and amiable correspondent, who "respectfully" denounces those who, "having the honesty of their convictions, dare to express them," in opposition to his.

If the letter under notice is to be accepted as evidence of the fairness and discretion of the clique into whose hands it is desired to transfer the privilege of selecting candidates from the large and independent body by which it is now exercised, I can but exclaim,—"The Lord preserve me from Sir Harry Vane!"

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

FREDERICK BINCKES.

7th July 1879.

FREEMASONRY AND ITS CHARITIES.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Although dissenting from some of his conclusions, I certainly consider that the compiler of the analysis of a part of the expenditure on the Girls' School during the past six years, which occupied so large a portion of your space on the 21st ultimo, has earned the warm thanks of subscribers for the information he has given, in a form and to an extent to which they have hitherto been strangers; and I should have been glad to admit, if it were possible to do so, that he had fully met the desire for intelligible accounts. I expected your later issues would have contained a further contribution from the same source, in which the balances of income for the same years would have been accounted for, and I still hope this may be forthcoming, in anticipation of a correct statement of accounts of the Institution. Comparing those figures with the Treasurer's cash statement for 1878, the amount expended in that year (independent of loans from Bankers) appears to have been £6,675 in excess of the sums mentioned in the Analysis, in reference to which it is remarked that new buildings, purchase of land, &c. &c. represent an important increase in capital. Where is the Capital Account?

The suggestion, that a perusal of the figures and calculations will satisfy your readers as to the management of the Schools, I should have preferred to leave for individual consideration, had there not been a direct reference to my previous letters in which I have complained of the want of proper accounts, not of expenditure on the children, but the "herring having been trailed across the scent," perhaps you will allow me to follow for a short distance, first asking your readers to note the object of the Institution as stated in the Laws by which it is governed. Law II. "OBJECT. To receive under its protection, and to maintain, clothe, and educate the daughters of Freemasons of every religious denomination, under the English Constitution, who from alteration of circumstances arising from the death, illness, or misfortune of their fathers, are reduced to a position requiring the benefits of the Institution."

Amongst the items of extra expenditure in 1878 is £163 17s, "solicitor's charges." Can any one seriously contend that this is a legitimate payment out of the funds collected for the charitable purpose set forth in the Law above quoted? Could any Steward be found to canvass for subscriptions on the plea that upwards of one hundred and sixty-three pounds were to be paid to a solicitor? Would any subscriber consider he was practising charity in contributing for such a purpose? I can only conceive replies in the negative; and to any opposite answer should be tempted to respond in the language of one who never erred, "It is not meet to take the children's bread and to cast it unto the dogs." It may be that the recipient of this large sum contemplates returning the amount by making an unprecedented donation, taking high rank and acquiring prestige as a munificent benefactor to the Institution. This might, to some extent, palliate his share in the transaction, but to those who have sanctioned such a misapplication of charity funds, would it be too harsh to say, "Never more be officer of mine"?

Again, take the following items:—

1875.	Stewards' visit	£23 7 0
1876.	Do. do. and gratuities to workmen ...	42 2 9
1876.	Votes of thanks to Stewards, three years ...	71 0 6
1877.	Stewards' visit and gratuities to workmen ...	32 1 0
1877.	Votes of thanks to Stewards	33 2 0
1878.	Do. do. do.	29 15 0
	Total	£231 8 3

And read the following extract from official announcement:—"EXPENSES ATTENDING STEWARDSHIPS. The total amount collected at the Festivals of this Institution being exclusively devoted to the funds of the Charity" (the italics are official) "the Stewards (irrespective of their individual donations to the Institution) are called upon for certain expenses incidental to the Festival." "N.B. All sums received, whether donations or subscriptions, are added to the Funds of the Institution WITHOUT ANY DEDUCTION WHATEVER" (the capitals are official). Is it satisfactory, then, for those who have served the office of Steward, paid their fees for expenses, and agreed to a vote disposing of a surplus after the payment of all charges, to find that amount—much more than sufficient to support and educate an additional inmate—has been charged against the funds of the School? Is this the object for which subscriptions were given? Is this Charity? Is it consistent with the official invitations to subscribe?

Many other charges are, more or less, irregular, but I leave them to return to my original subject—accounts. Public subscriptions have been invited and received for a charitable object; the disbursement of the funds collected is a public question. Feed the children—expensively if you will; clothe them—extravagantly if subscribers desire it; educate them—there is no fear you will do this too well; and liberally reward those to whose care they are entrusted. Money has been, and will be, freely subscribed for the children, to be expended in accordance with the Laws of the Institution; but Committees must fully recognise the fact that they are dealing with trust funds, and that as Trustees they must discharge their duty to the Craft and to the public. This they will not have done until they have put an end to illegal expenditure, and published intelligible accounts and clear balance sheets of the funds entrusted to their keeping.

Yours truly and fraternally,

"A DAY IN THE COUNTRY."

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

SIR,—Last year some of your readers were led generously to help us provide for nearly 500 poor boys and girls who attend the Hackney Juvenile Mission a day's excursion into the country.

This year the manager hopes to be able to take some 300 children for a day in July or August, and I should be glad if your readers will again aid practically by sending donations to either Mr. John Newman, Hon. Manager, 117 Cheapside, E.C.; Mr. H. M. Heath, 4 St. Thomas's-road, Hackney; or to

Yours obediently,

SQUARE v. LEVEL?

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I must take the opposite reading to your correspondent in last week's CHRONICLE. We meet (in accordance with the old and true rendering) on the Square—that is, Masonry is founded on the genuine and perfect principles symbolised by the Square; and none but those who are in perfect accord with such principles should be admitted into the Order. This is the "meeting" contemplated by my text.

We part on the Level, because they are only truly equal whose conduct and principles, whose lives and morals, are in unison.

Distinctions amongst men are necessary, and preserve subordination, says our Ritual, and I accept the doctrine, but they are merely the belongings of our lower sphere.

But principles are eternal, and have their functions in a higher state.

I must, then, give my adhesion to the antient formula in this case. There appears to me, as indeed there does in many a Masonic axiom, a depth of thought, and height of wisdom, a hidden truth, that pays well for research, and should make us pause before we, with profane hands, attempt to alter but not improve.

In seems to me that the weakness of the Masonic Ritual does not lie in much that has been commented upon under this heading, but is yet untouched; re which I may trouble you with further remarks.

Fraternally yours,

H. E. FRANCES, P.P.G.D.

P.S.—I regret that my time only allows me to write thus briefly.

BOYS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—The Kilburn Lodge, 1608, sent through me, their Steward, £210 for the Boys' School, not £118 12s 6d as stated in your report, so that the Lodge is third on the list, not seventh. By kindly inserting this in your next you will oblige,

Yours fraternally,

CHARLES BREWER W.M. 1608.

[We gave the amounts as stated at the time of the Festival. It is always a pleasant duty for us to record any increase that may afterwards be made.—ED. F.C.]

COMMITTEE MEETING OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

THE General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys met last Saturday, at Freemasons' Hall. There were present Bros. H. W. Hunt (in the chair), A. J. D. Filer, Magnus Ohren, James Robins, R. B. Webster, G. T. K. Seddon, D. M. Dewar, James Warner, Joyce Murray, E. Spooner, A. E. Gladwell, J. J. Berry, Charles Lacey, Rev. Torkington, and F. Binckes Secretary. After the minutes had been read and confirmed, the petitions were taken, and eighteen were accepted. The list of candidates for the election on 13th October next was settled. There will be 77 candidates for this election, and 16 vacancies. The Committee increased the Head Master's salary £50 a year, and ordered the transfer of £500 from the General Fund to the Sustentation Fund. This concluded the business of the meeting, and the brethren separated, after paying the usual compliment to the chairman.

COMMITTEE MEETING OF THE BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

THE Committe of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution met on Wednesday. There were present Bros. Colonel J. Creaton (in the chair), S. Rawson, Jno. H. Leggott, Frederick Adlard, Griffiths Smith, Richard Hervé Giraud, Edgar Bowyer, Jas. Brett, Jas. Kench, Louis Stean, Wm. Hilton, Charles Atkins, Charles F. Hogard, Lieut.-Col. H. S. Somerville Burney, George Penn, Charles John Perceval, and James Terry Secretary. The death of three of the Annuitants of the Institution was reported by the Secretary, who also read the Warden's report, and that of the Finance Committee. The chairman was authorised to sign cheques, and Bro. Terry reported that the Supreme Council had presented to the residents in the Institution at Croydon gifts of tea and tobacco. He also reported that Bros. John G. Stevens, J. J. Berry and T. J. Barnes had presented a flagstaff, fittings and flag, inscribed "Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution," for the Asylum. The brethren passed a vote of thanks for these liberal donations, and then placed three petitioners on the list for next election.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all sores, wounds, bad legs, and sprains of any kind this Ointment is the most efficient application. It at once gives ease by allaying inflammation and moderating the flow of blood to the part. Whenever the malady has been of long standing the Ointment should be assisted by Holloway's purifying Pills, which act upon the stomach and liver, guarding digestion from falling into that disorded state which the pain, restlessness, and fever attending these ailments are apt to produce, and which much retards recovery, and sometimes even makes serious the slightest case. No mother or nurse should be without these noble remedies; they are equally

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF MIDDLESEX

THE annual meeting of this Grand Lodge was held at the Memorial Institute, Great Stanmore, on Saturday, 28th June. The R.W. Bro. Col. J. Burdett P.S.G.W. of England Prov. G.M. in the chair, supported by Bros. F. Davison S.W., H. G. Buss Assistant G. Sec. J.W., and a numerous gathering of distinguished Grand and Prov. Grand Lodge Officers and brethren. Prov. Grand Lodge was opened at 1.30. p.m., and after the roll of Officers and Lodges had been called, the minutes of the last Prov. G. Lodge were submitted and confirmed. The Reports of the Audit Committee and the work of the Charity Committee having been also submitted to the brethren, the same were confirmed. The election of Provincial Grand Treasurer resulted in the return of Bro. H. G. Buss the esteemed Assist. Grand Sec. The R.W.P.G.M. then proceeded to appoint his Officers, each investiture being accompanied with appropriate remarks. Bros. Sir Charles Bright Deputy P.G.M., T. J. Sabine P.G.S.W., H. A. Dubois P.G.J.W., Rev. J. Robbins, D.D., P.G. Chaplain, H. G. Buss P.G. Treas., Thos. Keene P.M. P.G. Reg., H. C. Levander P.M. P.G. Sec., F. S. Knyvett P.G.S.D., John Hammond P.G.J.D., John Verity P.G. Sup. of Works, W. Stephens P.M. P.G.D.C., G. H. Mead P.M.P.G.A.D.C., T. C. Walls P.G. Sword Bearer, J. B. Shackleton P.G. Pur., Hurst P.G.A.P., Louis Beck P.G. Org., J. W. Davis P.M., F. W. Levander P.M., E. H. Bright P.M., Tidcombe, W. H. Stevens, J. Tickel Prov. Grand Stewards, J. Gilbert P.G. Tyler. The motion of the R.W.P.G.M. to grant sums of £10 10s to each of the three Masonic Charitable Institutions was then considered, and the amounts stated were duly awarded. Grand Lodge was then closed in due form, and the brethren were marshalled and marched in Masonic clothing to the parish church of Great Stanmore, Middlesex, which had been graciously placed at the service of the brethren by the Rev. L. J. Bernays, the Vicar, who read the abridged form of service, and kindly permitted the newly-appointed Prov. Grand Chaplain, Bro. Rev. J. Robbins, D.D., to occupy the pulpit. The rev. brother selected for his text 1 John iv. 20: "For he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?" The reverend preacher first acknowledged the courtesy of the Vicar in allowing him to occupy that pulpit to make a short address to his brethren, remarking that these kindly acts, so closely resembling the conduct of Masons to each other, would be the best means of determining the future of the Establishment in this country. The rev. brother then proceeded to show that Masonry, which he described as a peculiar system of morality, enjoined upon its followers an adherence to the moral law, and acknowledgement of the Supreme Being who guides and directs all things. Hence a Freemason can never be a stupid atheist nor a religious libertine. Tracing the teaching of our system, he showed how its practice brought us to the words of the text, and that to be a good Freemason was to possess the characteristics of good Christians. In concluding, the Masonic virtue Charity was enjoined, an opportunity of performing which was offered on the present occasion, in aid of the funds of the parish schools. During the singing of the "Old Hundredth" Psalm a collection was made, and at the conclusion of Divine service the brethren reformed in procession, and marched back to the Memorial Institute, which during their temporary absence had been transformed into a banquetting hall. The tables were laid with considerable taste, and the floral decorations, both on the tables and the gas brackets, evinced a highly educated taste, and rendered the scene most charming. Ample justice having been done to the splendid banquet, prepared by Bro. G. Veal, of Great Stanmore, grace was sung by the professional brethren, and the Prov. G. Master rose to propose the health of Her Majesty the Queen, claiming as enthusiastic a response to it as it always receives from the Craft, which he coupled with the toast. "God save the Queen" was sung. The next toast given was H.R.H. the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M., the R.W.P.G.M. said: As heir to the British throne no toast would be received with greater pleasure by the brethren. Masonry under the Prince's rule had been most prosperous, and had attained to over 1800 Lodges. Looking back some years ago, 1300 Lodges was considered a long roll, but the present increase was in a great measure due to the Grand Master. Much credit was due to him for the great interest he displays in the Order; nothing was done without his sanction or supervision. The many calls upon his time for charitable and other purposes should render them grateful for his giving such attention to the interest of the Craft. There are not many, perhaps, who undertake the hard work he does, and we may feel sure no brother in Masonry wishes well to the Craft more than does the Prince of Wales. "God Bless the Prince of Wales" was next given, Bro. Cozens rendering the solo part. The next toast introduced was the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers Past and Present, by whom the whole machinery of Freemasonry was carried on. Lord Carnarvon Pro G.M. was always pleased to be present, even at great inconvenience, to forward the interests of Masonry, and Lord Skelmersdale's zeal was known to all having opportunities of meeting him and witnessing the kind manner in which he performed his Masonic duties. Of the other Grand Officers Past and Present it was well-known; by their endeavours they had brought Masonry to its present position, a position its present Grand Master well sustained. The name of Bro. the Hon. R. W. H. Giddy, D.G.M. Griqualand, South Africa, was coupled with this toast. After a song, "Friends of the Brave," had been sung by Bro. Farquharson, Bro. Giddy thanked the Right Worshipful P.G. Master and brethren for proposing and receiving his name so heartily in connection with so important a toast. He experienced a difficulty, coming from a distance, in replying to so worthy a toast, but quite agreed with all present in their hearty approval of the efforts of the G. Master, Pro G. Master and Deputy G. Master, a recognition they and the other G. Lodge Officers fully deserve. Still, worthy as they may be, it will sung by Bro. G. Fox, Bro. Giddy expressed his appreciation of the high honour he as a guest had in proposing the next toast, one which was sure to be received with much enthusiasm. He would ask to be allowed to give expression to his feelings on attending Prov. Grand Lodge that day, and witnessing how successfully their Prov. G. Master conducts the business before him. You must be proud of having a leader such as your Grand Master, who rules with temperance and exercises mercy and justice in all he does. He is well-known throughout the country as a good man and Mason. In response to a hearty reception of the toast, R.W. Bro. Col. Burdett Prov. G. Master expressed his sense of the enthusiastic reception he had received. He had had the honour to preside over the Province of Middlesex for ten years, and it was gratifying to him and the Prov. G. Officers, indeed, to all present, to see it in its present position. This was due to the united exertions of the Grand Lodge Officers, and Officers who preside over the private members and Lodges in so praiseworthy a manner; while this continues Prov. Grand Lodge of Middlesex will surely hold its own. He might be considered during the ten years to have governed the Lodge with a rod of iron, but however that might be, he must say that there had been no necessity to use the Officers with severity or a rod of iron. The Right Worshipful Brother then read the following letter he had just received from the vicar whose church had been so kindly devoted to their service that day, and for which they were deeply indebted to the reverend gentleman:—

Stanmore Vicarage, 28th June 1879.

My Dear Sir,—I am much flattered by your invitation to join your banquet, especially as I understand it is not your rule to admit other than Masons. It is, unfortunately, not in my power to leave home this evening at all, as I am very especially engaged; otherwise I need not say how gladly I would have expressed to you all the pleasure with which I welcomed so excellent a Craft to my church and parish. I have to thank you for a contribution of £3 17s. in aid of our parish schools. We are sadly in want of two additional desks, with one of which your liberality will provide us, and which shall be called the "Freemasons' Desk." Will you be so good as to say for me that I hope it will not be the last time that you may visit a place, where you will, as long as I am here, always find a hearty welcome.

Yours truly,

L. J. Bernays.

This letter was read amid the cheers of the brethren, and it was decided to supplement the collection, so as to enable the vicar to procure both the desks he required. Bro. Cozens favoured the brethren with the song "The Blue Alsatian Mountains," and the R.W.P.G.M. next proposed the Provincial Grand Officers' toast, one which he said they were all glad to hear and to regard. Having paid all respect due to the Grand Lodge Officers, they should also give their own Grand Officers due honour. They had always been energetic in performing their duties. Unfortunately our Deputy G.M. Bro. Sir Charles Bright had been obliged to leave early, as also had Bro. T. J. Sabine S.W. Bro. Dubois the J.W. is known to you all. He will never be found wanting when any duty is required of him. If we can say all the Officers still do their duty in the very excellent and efficient manner they have for the ten years past we may be sure of the continued prosperity of the Prov. G. Lodge. Bro. H. A. Dubois J.W. said the brethren had been pleased to call upon him for a response to their hearty reception of the toast. Unfortunately, the R.W.P.G.M. had spoken of his endeavours in the past, but he felt the other Officers deserved praise, and while serving them and the Province they were proud to be doing suit and service. He trusted he might still continue to deserve the praise bestowed on him, and that he might be permitted to see a continuance of the admirable rule of the R.W.P.G.M., which all felt so highly the value of. Bro. Farquharson here gave an amusing rendering of the "Little Fat Man," responding to an encore by singing "Tom the Tinker." The toast of the Visitors was next honoured. The R.W.P.G.M. said that among their many toasts was one which was sure to be heartily responded to. They were glad to find their P.G. Lodge honoured by a number of distinguished visitors giving it their presence and sanction, evincing that their Grand Lodge was worth supporting. One was a distinguished brother—in fact at the top of the tree—Bro. Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke, who was an old friend, and had been of great service to him in Masonry, and he was well qualified to perform the highest duties the Craft required. Were he not present, he might probably say much more; however, he was an excellent brother and dear friend, and he hoped they would have the pleasure of seeing him for many years amongs them. "The Village Blacksmith" was here sung by Bro. Fox, after which Bro. Col. Shadwell H. Clerke returned thanks for the kind manner in which they had toasted the Visitors. All fully agreed with what was said by Bro. Giddy, and congratulated the Province upon the grace with which it was ruled. If the R.W.P.G.M. had ruled the Lodge with a rod of iron, as he had said he had certainly concealed it under a silken glove. He (Bro. Clerke) had watched the progress of the Lodge, and seen it fulfil the promise of its youth. He thought the R.W.P.G.M. must have made the acquaintance of the clerk of the weather, and arranged for the beautiful weather of the day, as a Mason, by "squaring" him. He had been there before, and hoped to be there again. In proposing the Masonic Charities, the R.W.P.G.M. alluded to the great success that attended the Festival of the Boys' Institution on the previous Wednesday—a success which did honour to Freemasonry and the world—a success which surprises those who are not acquainted with our Craft, but who, visiting our Institutions, find how excellent are the arrangements. Many brethren do their part to promote the welfare of these Institutions, among whom may be mentioned the names of Bros. Terry and Hedges; both exert themselves nobly for their benefit, their labours resulting in the bringing in of £11,000 or £13,000 respectively to those Institutions; but among all who work for the good of the Masonic Charities they could not have a more able advocate than Bro. Binckes. Bros. H. G. Buss P.G.Tr. Middlesex Asst. G.S. here read letters from Bro. Terry, who regretted being unable to attend in consequence of a previous engagement, and from Bro. Hedges, whose official duties prevented him from coming. A duet by Bros. Cozens and Fox having enlivened the proceedings, Bro. F. Binckes returned thanks for the cordial reception which his name, coupled with the Masonic Charities, had received. It could not be otherwise than gratifying to him to hear what had been said, and that too by brethren conversant with the subject of the Benevolent Institutions. In a long and able speech Bro. Binckes gracefully acknowledged the many services which those around him had rendered to the Institution with which he was connected, and thanked them especially for the splendid return they had assisted in procuring on the occasion of the recent Festival. After some very pleasing music, the Tyler was summoned, and the meeting of Provincial Grand Lodge was closed, the brethren separating at an early hour, to catch their various trains home. Every attention was paid to the comfort of the visiting brethren, and the untiring efforts of those responsible were crowned with success. In addition to those mentioned, the following were present:—Bros. F. W. Lavender P.M. 1415, C. Thompson W.M. 1237, E. H. Bright P.M. 778, J. Hurst P.M. 1512, H. Lovegrove S.W. 1777, H. Mead P.M. 788, T. Verity S.W. 1194, J. W. Davis P.M. 282, W. Grist J.W. 1637, W. Stephens W.M. 1637, W. Radford S.W. 1702, Thomas Keene P.M. 1415, H. C. Finch P.M. 708, J. C. Walls J.W. 1702, J. R. Nichols W.M. 1367, J. M. Lambert P.M. 142, H. Massey P.M. 619, G. H. Stephens 1623, &c., &c.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF SUFFOLK.

THE Provincial Grand Lodge held its annual meeting on Monday, under the banner of the Prudence Lodge 388, at Halesworth. The lodge was held at the Congregational School-room, where upwards of 200 brethren assembled. The room was very nicely decorated with festoons of evergreens and with flowers in pots. The banners of the Provincial Grand Lodge were placed behind the chair, and the following Lodge banners were put round the room:—Doric 81, Unity 71, British Union 114, St. John's 225, Virtue and Silence 382, Prudence 388, Phœnix 516, Fidelity 555, Prince of Wales' 959, Royal St. Edmund's 1008, Stour Valley 1224, Waveney 929, Adair 936, and Perfect Friendship 376. At about 1.30 the brethren received the R.W. P.G.M. Lord Waveney, with the usual Masonic honours, and he was escorted to the chair, and, together with the R.W. D.P.G.M., Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn P.G.C., was saluted in due form. The other Provincial Grand Officers present were:—Bros. W. Page T. Phillips P.S.G.W., W. O. Chambers P.P.J.G.W., F. B. Strathern P.P.J.G.W., P. Allez P.P.G.S.W., C. S. Pedgrift P.P.G.R., Fred. Minter P.G.R., W. C. Randall P.P.G.P., G. Abbott P.G.S.B., W. T. Westgate P.P.D.C., Rev. W. W. Bird P.G.C., C. Schulen P.P.G.D.C., N. Tracy P.P.J.W., T. Newman P.P.G.P., A. Cracknell P.G.S., J. Read P.P.G.S.W. Norfolk, T. Holland P.P.G.D.C., T. Noble P.P.J.D., Rev. M. Menser P.P.G.C. of Norfolk, T. J. Huddleston P.G.Tr., W. H. Lucia P.G. Sec., W. Wilmshurst P.P.G.S.D., C. F. Browne P.G.S. The minutes of the last meeting were taken as read and adopted, as also the report of the General Purposes Committee. The following brethren were then invested by the R.W. P.G.M. as Provincial Grand Officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. E. P. Yonell Gorleston S.G.W., H. C. Casley Ipswich J.G.W., T. J. Wentworth Ipswich S.G.D., R. W. Flick Saxmundham J.G.D., Rev. J. W. Collins Clare Chaplain, W. H. Lucia Bury St. Edmund's G. Sec., T. J. Huddleston Bury St. Edmund's G. Treas., F. Grimwood Hadleigh G. Registrar, W. B. Jeffries Ipswich G. Superintendent of Works, W. Clarke London G. Director of Ceremonies, C. W. Dance Lowestoft G.A.D. of Ceremonies, A. Cracknell Eye G. Sword Bearer, J. M. Harvey Saxmundham G. Pursuivant, B. Syer Ipswich G. Tyler, R. Garrod 555 and J. P. Smyth 929 Grand Stewards. The R.W. P.G.M. adverted to the satisfactory working of the plan adopted of electing the officers yearly, and the brethren then adjourned to the church, where an excellent sermon was preached by the R.W. Prov. Grand Chaplain, Bro. the Rev. J. W. Collins, rector of Clare, from the following texts:—Hebrews xiii. 1, "Let brotherly love continue;" Acts xx. 35, "'Tis more blessed to give than to receive;" and Proverbs xii. 19, "The lips of truth shall be established for ever." The service was rendered especially attractive by the performances of the choir of the Albert Memorial College, Framlingham, who attended at Halesworth to take part in the ceremony. The collection amounted to £9 10s 5½d. At the conclusion of the service the procession was reformed, and the brethren returned to the Lodge. A resolution was passed increasing the collection to £10 10s, to be divided between the Church and Nonconformist schools of the town. Thanks were also passed to the rector of Halesworth for placing the church at the disposal of the Lodge, and to the managers of the school for granting the use of the building. The Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master then delivered an address. He referred, in feeling and appropriate terms, to the loss sustained in the death of Past Provincial Grand Master Bro. Head, bearing testimony to his eminent service to the Province. Having also alluded to the position of the Provinces of Norfolk and Essex, and the cordial feeling existing between the three Provinces, and to the success which has attended the Craft in Suffolk, he went on to speak of the efforts made by the Masons of Ipswich to provide a hall in which the brethren of the Province might meet. The first efforts were not successful—circumstances were stronger than men, and all the industry that was exercised in the building of that hall, and the taste employed in its decoration, and the preparation made to render it a fitting resort for the Masons of the Province, were, from circumstances entirely beyond control, defeated, and the hall had to be consigned to purposes other than those of the Craft. But undaunted by that unfortunate circumstance, the Lodges of Ipswich had revived their efforts, and had now a Masonic Hall which, for arrangement, cheapness, and usefulness of construction, would find no parellel in the Province or in neighbouring Provinces, and he was glad to find that it was likely to fulfil those uses, as the General Purposes Committee met within its walls. The Worshipful Master referred to the difficulty of having a central Lodge for the county on account of the inconvenience of the railway, but expressed a hope that by lateral lines this would be overcome. After some further remarks the Worshipful Master went on to speak of the existing agricultural depression. Notwithstanding the genial sunshine which at that moment was pouring upon the earth, the state of agriculture in this and other districts was very dull. A succession of five bad seasons had placed the agricultural interest in a position of constraint, he would not say of decay, but of constraint. In the honest efforts to derive the full benefit of their industry there had been no lack of zeal. He had been surprised, and being surprised, he had been proud to be a fellow worker with those who had displayed energy and persistent endurance under those circumstances. His Lordship then referred to matters connected with the Craft. The Lodge was then closed in due form, and the brethren proceeded to the Rifle Hall, where the banquet was served. Grace before and after meat was said by the P.G. Chaplain, Bro. the Rev. A. Collins. A telegram was received from Lord Henniker, Senior G.W. of England, expressing his regret at being unable to attend the meeting, and tendering his good wishes to the Prov. G. Master and the brethren of the Grand Lodge. The Provincial Grand Master in proposing the toast of the Queen said: It was one at all times honoured, by all classes. He would simply call upon the brethren to heartily receive it. In giving that of the M.W. the Grand Master, Lord Waveney referred to the zeal shown by H.R.H. in any work he undertook in connection with Freemasonry. Whenever there was a question to decide H.R.H. was ready to answer it, and whenever there was any work to do in Lodge he was ready to perform it. In fact, in all seasons and at all times he was ready to do anything required of him. This toast having met with a most hearty reception, the Prov. Grand Master followed with that of "The Clergy of all Denominations." In proposing it, he said: Before we proceed to do the honours to which the chiefs of our Order are entitled, there is one class in this country who deserve our sympathy—the clergy of all denominations. They were, he considered, at all times ready to take up any good cause that might offer, and to many of their number the Freemasons of England were greatly indebted. He especially thanked the Chaplain on behalf of the Provincial Grand Lodge for his sermon delivered that day. He had therein ably expounded the many forms that Charity might take. Bro. Rev. A. Collins Prov. G. Chaplain replied, He felt, with considerable jealousy, the way in which the toast had been received. He looked upon it, not merely as a compliment paid by the brethren to himself as Prov. G. Chaplain, or to the clergy of all denominations, but more as a reverential sign of their respect for the Almighty ruler of the Universe itself. From the hearty reception the brethren accorded His ministers below, Bro. Collins looked upon it that they were in the habit of giving to Him that respect due to His divine Majesty. As regarded himself he had especially to thank the Prov. G. Master for the kind words he had used in referring to his efforts of the afternoon, and also for the great honour paid him in appointing him to the position of Prov. G. Chaplain. It was quite unexpected and, he feared, quite undeserved, for he could not remember anything that could entitle him to such recognition. The brethren of his town—Clare—were about to start a Lodge, and he considered his appointment should be looked upon as a great compliment paid by the Prov. Grand Master to the new Lodge, and as such he had most willingly accepted it. He tendered a hearty invitation to all who might be able to attend the consecration of the Clarence Lodge, No. 1823, at Clare, to take place on the 23rd inst., if they were there they would have an opportunity of judging of the hospitality of the brethren in that quarter. The Prov. Grand Master next gave the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers Past and Present. All knew, he said, how much Grand Lodge, by its periodical meetings tended to consolidate the operations of Freemasonry throughout the country. It also supplied a model for subordinate Lodges to work to, and ever attended to the requirements of the Colonial and Indian Lodges. With the toast he coupled the name of Bro. Lucia, their Prov. Grand Secretary, who had the honour to occupy the position of Grand Sword Bearer of England. That brother in reply thanked the Prov. Grand Master for associating his name with so distinguished a toast. He felt it a very great honour that he was placed in the position he occupied in Grand Lodge. After a song from Bro. Abbott, Bro. Rev. C. J. Martyn Dep. P.G.M., rose to propose the health of Lord Waveney. Among the very many pleasing duties that devolved on him, none was more gratifying than to ask the brethren to drink to the very good health of the Prov. G.M. It was at all times a very great pleasure to him, as he believed it was to all the brethren of Suffo'k, to welcome the well known, and he might say, well-loved face o: their Prov. Grand Master. Under his presidency, the brethren mi ht be assured all would go well. Whenever they had the pleasur of seeing him at their meetings, they always heard many things vhich were useful and tended to the welfare of the Province. He c nsidered the brethren ought to feel very proud at having so distin, ished a nobleman to preside over them. It was, he said, no easy ask to govern so large a Province as that of Suffolk, and great ca had to be exercised in the various appointments lest any feeling o favouritism might creep in. Bro. Martyn felt assured that all the appointments made by the Prov. G.M. had been offered as a reward for merit and ability. As regarded his attendance to the work of the Province, it was well known that he was always at hand when he might be wanted. On the 23rd he had arranged to consecrate the new Lodge at Clare, and the fact of the Prov. Grand Master himself taking so active a part in its formation should ensure success for the new Lodge. The remarks of Bro. Martyn were frequently interrupted by the cheers of the brethren, and on their being called upon to drink the toast they expressed their approval in the heartiest manner. The R.W. Prov. G. Master in reply said: He sometimes thought that if kindness could have spoilt him he would have been spoilt long ago. The impression made on him by the kindness of the brethren made him, if possible, more careful to deserve a repetition. In the work of his office he fully appreciated the assistance he received from the brethren. He always endeavoured to make himself conversant with what was going on in the Province, and hoped by personal interest in the work to ensure success. With regard to the question of promotion to the purple, it had ever been his desire that genuine merit should receive its just reward. He would especially remind the brethren that in conferring the honour of Provincial rank on any brother it was not merely a compliment for the time being, but for all time, just the same as was any great dignity conferred by England on those who had deserved well of their country. He then referred in complimentary words to the Stewards of the Province, especially mentioning their efforts on behalf of the Charities, and concluded by expressing his idea of the working of each Officer of his Province in the words of one of the homely ballads of our American cousins:—

"Whatever he did, he did it with zest; Whatever he did, he did his level best."

After a song from Bro. Clarke P.G.D. of C., Lord Waveney proposed the health of his Deputy, Bro. C. J. Martyn. Without him, he said, anything he could do would be very trifling; without him any shortcomings on his part would remain unrepaired. He was indebted to Bro. Martyn for the repose he was able to enjoy in the Masonic duties of the Province, and were it not for that brother he feared that the Craft in Suffolk would not continue its prosperous career. He was known and trusted in Suffolk, and known and trusted wherever Freemasonry was known. Bro. Martyn, after the hearty cheers which greeted him had subsided, said,—He hardly knew how to thank the brethren for the reception they had accorded him. If the Provincial Grand Master was in danger of being spoilt by kindness, he wondered how it was that he had not been spoilt long since. One of his first thoughts in Freemasonry was for the welfare of the Province of Suffolk, where, as the Deputy Prov. G.M., he considered it was his duty to attend the Lodges and look after the interests of the members. If he did not fulfil those duties as efficiently as he should do, it was because his time was so much occupied by other duties. He should continue to take a great interest in the various Lodges, and if he saw anything needing amendment should not be slow in mentioning it. He considered it a great pleasure to have to work under such a Prov. G. Master, who on every occasion conscienciously did his duty. Were it otherwise, he would deserve the appellation D.P.G.M., not Deputy Past Grand Master in the sense in which it was applied to him (Brother Martyn), but as Deposed Prov. Grand Master. English Freemasons should, he considered, be thankful that they were enabled to keep clear of political and other discussions in Lodge. He concluded by paying a just compliment to the Prov. G. Chaplain on the merits of the sermon preached by that brother after the meeting of Grand Lodge. Lord Waveney then proposed the health of his Officers, coupling with the toast the name of the Junior Grand Warden of the Province. That brother replied, a song was given by Bro. Greenfield, and the thanks of the brethren were tendered to the entertaining Lodge for the hearty reception they had given the Visitors to their town. Bros. Smyth and Strathern replied. The latter brother, having thanked the Prov. G.M. for coupling his name with the toast, referred to the unity that existed in the Province, which he hoped would long continue, as then they could not fail to prosper. The brethren of Halesworth—a very small town compared with some in the Province—felt it a very great honour that so many members of the Province should assemble at the Grand Lodge when held in their midst. He considered that the plan of holding the meetings of Prov. Grand Lodge from town to town did much to strengthen Lodges and give an impetus to Freemasonry in the particular district. Bro. Pedgrift endorsed the remarks of the last speaker, saying that after the last visit of Prov. Grand Lodge to their town in 1866 fifteen gentlemen had joined the Lodge. The health of Bro. Clarke the Director of Ceremonies was most heartily proposed by Lord Waveney, in connection with "Our Masonic Charities," the only regret of the Prov. G. Master seeming to be that the abilities of Bro. Clarke as D. of C. had not been given to the army, where, he felt sure, he would have made his mark; the way in which he had marshalled the procession of the day particularly calling for approval. The Prov. Grand Master also referred to the scheme proposed by Lord Henniker some two years since, by which the brethren of Suffolk might take a prominent place in the charitable lists of the country, and hoped that before the next meeting of Prov. G. Lodge something definite would be arranged. Bro. Clarke tendered his thanks; he considered it only his duty to do all in his power to enhance the comfort of the brethren. He was especially gratified that his name had been coupled with what might really be considered the toast of the evening. He felt assured that if any brother would only pay a visit to London during the time of election to either of the Charities he would be sure to support the Institutions personally, and do something in the way of inducing his friends to do the same. He felt assured that if the brethren of Suffolk would combine they could make sure of carrying every candidate they brought forward. Some further remarks followed from various speakers, who, although complimenting the Province on what it had done, considered that very much more ought to result from such an influential district. One brother pointed out that more than one-half of the votes to which the Province was entitled had been secured by their Deputy Prov. G. Master, and therefore with such an example they were more to blame for being, as he considered, far from the position they should occupy. The health of the Secretary and Treasurer of the Province was next given and acknowledged by those brethren. The Prov. G. Master then proposed the toast of the Visitors, to which Bro. W. W. Morgan jun. responded. The proceedings were then brought to a close and the brethren separated, after having spent a very enjoyable day, which was greatly enhanced by the admirable arrangements of the Halesworth brethren. We regret to announce that an alarming accident befell the passengers by the up train, still we hope that all will eventually recover from the severe shock and fright they experienced.

ANNUAL SUMMER FESTIVAL OF THE LODGE OF PROSPERITY, No. 65.

IT has for some years been the custom of this Lodge to give the ladies and brethren a summer outing. Last year, under the presidency of Bro. Brown, a very enjoyable day was passed on board the "Maria Wood." On Tuesday, the 8th inst., a numerous attendance of ladies and brethren met at the Star and Garter, Richmond, where they were received by the W.M. Bro. C. Daniel (who now occupies the chair for the second time), and an efficient body of Stewards, at 2 o'clock. The ladies and brethren adjourned to the Pavilion Room, where 116 sat down to banquet, which was provided by Bro. Hunt, and gave great satisfaction, the wines and viands being of first rate quality. The table was beautifully and artistically decorated with flowers. Bro. Daniel, the W.M., on entering, was loudly cheered. There were passing showers, but occasionally a gleam of sunshine broke through the clouds. Among the brethren present were Bros. P.M.'s Brown, Bellerby Leins, Carruthers, Arnold and Davey; and Bros. Pierce, Muggleton, Sim, Braine, Marfleet, Devenish, Rich, Ratcliff, Feltham, Fells, Meade, Billing, Goodall, Roberts, Chickens, Terry, Chadler, Miller, Lawrence, Walker, Birch, H. M. Levy, &c. Grace having been said, the brethren and ladies, after taking a walk on the terrace, enjoying the scenery, returned to the banquet room, where a very excellent dessert was laid out; the W.M. very genially presided, briefly proposing the toasts of the Queen and the Craft, the M.W.G.M. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and the rest of the Grand Officers of the Grand Lodge of England. Bro. Fowler sang the "Village Blacksmith," accompanied by Mr. Marsi on the piano. The W.M. then proposed what he considered the toast of the day—The Ladies—without them the meeting would be an uninteresting one. He was sure the brethren would like to see them oftener among them, but Masonic duties precluded such enjoyment. He called on Bro. Allen to return thanks for the single, and Bro. Billing for the married ladies who had honoured the brethren by their presence. The W.M. stated that Bro. Goodall had composed some very appropriate verses, which were then sung by Mr. Marsi, and were enthusiastically received. Both brethren called upon returned thanks. Bro. Allen very eloquently and humbly returned thanks for the single, and Bro. Billing briefly, but to the purpose, responded for the married ladies. Bro. Braine amused the company by the song of the "Five o'clock 'bus," which excited roars of laughter. Bro. Brown I.P.M. said he had much pleasure in proposing the health of the W.M., who had not only endeavoured, but had succeeded in doing his duty, both in his capacity of W.M. in the Lodge, and as President of the day. The success of the day's proceedings was due to him, and he asked the brethren to drink his health, as well as of that of his amiable wife. Bro. E. W. Miller sang a very excellent song. The W.M., in reply, thanked Bro. Brown for his kind expressions on behalf of himself and his dear wife. He was the representative of the Lodge, and while in that position he would do what was right and just. He hoped to give them the same satisfaction as he did when he was W.M. in 1877. Arrangements had been made to hold the meeting at another hotel, but it was found that they could not meet there, and so had met at the Star and Garter. They had there received every satisfaction. He hoped they would meet there for many years to come. Mrs. Plater sang "Ernani." The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Visitors. Those brethren were very numerous. He called on Bros. Fowler and H. M. Levy to respond. Each having replied, the W.M. proposed the toast of the P.M.'s, who, he said were all worthy brethren. Bro. Brown I.P.M., in reply, said he felt proud to be associated with the toast. It was the duty of the P.M.'s to look after the interest of the Lodge. Bro. Arnold followed. The W.M. in proposing the toast of the Officers, spoke of Bro. A. L. Leins P.M. Whatever duties he undertakes he carries out in every way to their satisfaction. All the Officers know their duties, but the Lodge was especially indebted to its old and indefatigable member, Bro. A. L. Leins. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Masonic Charities; speaking of what had been done for their benefit. He coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Bellerby P.M., who he said was indefatigable in his exertions in the cause of charity. Mrs. Plater again delighted the brethren, and was deservedly encored. Bro. Leins P.M. returned thanks for the toast of the Officers, and Bro. Bellerby for the Charities. He said the Lodge had made itself Vice-President of two Institutions, and V.P. of the R.M.B.I. Bro. Brown at the last Festival took up the sum of £110 for the Boys' School, which they as members of the Lodge of Prosperity were proud of. The W.M. then proposed the health of the Stewards, who had so materially conduced to the day's enjoyment, coupled with the name of Bro. Roberts S.D., who responded. Bro. Speight P.M. acted efficiently as toast-master. The room was then cleared, and after an interval tea and coffee was served, and the ladies and brethren enjoyed the pleasures of dancing, which was kept up with great spirit.

ELEANOR LODGE, No. 1707.

THE Annual Festival of this Lodge took place on Wednesday, 2nd July, at the Angel Hotel, Edmonton, under the presidency of the W.M. Bro. J. H. Thompson P.P.G.S.B. Middlesex, who was assisted by Bros. Lovibond S.W., Garnet J.W., Byers Treasurer, J. Tanner P.M. Secretary, Ramsay as S.D., Leaman J.D., F. Meen Organist, H. G. Buss Asst. Grand Sec. of England, Webb, Gunningham, Perry, Smith, Ford, and others. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes of last regular, as also those of an emergency meeting, were read and confirmed. The brethren appeared in mourning, as a token of respect to the memory of the late I.G., Bro. Oliver. The ballot was taken for the admission of Mr. R. Ford, which being declared unanimous in his favour, that gentleman was duly initiated into the Order. A Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. C. Lovibond, the W.M. elect, was duly presented, and installed into the chair by Bro. Thompson, in a manner that well merited the encomiums passed on him at the conclusion of the ceremony. The W.M. having received the usual salutations, appointed the following brethren to fill the offices for the year:—Bros. Garnett S.W., Ramsay J.W., Byers Treasurer, J. Tanner P.M. P.P.G.S.D. Essex Secretary, Leaman S.D., Symonds J.D., F. Meen Organist and I.G., Frith D.C., and Goddard P.M. Tyler. Applause followed the investiture of each Officer, and the W.M., by his remarks to each on appointment showed his aptitude for the office he had just been called upon to fill. The resignation of a brother was received with regret. Letters from Bro. Col. Burdett, Prov. Grand Master of Middlesex, and other brethren, expressing their inability to attend, were read. A subscription on behalf of the widow of a deceased brother resulted in a good round sum being contributed. A letter of condolence was ordered to be sent to Mrs. Oliver, expressing the sympathy of the members with her in her recent bereavement. Hearty good wishes having been tendered by the Visitors, the Lodge was formally closed until September next. The banquet, which was well served, was universally praised, the catering of Bro. Newall being such as to merit the kind expressions made by the brethren. At the conclusion of the banquet grace was sung by the English Glee Union (Bros. H. Ashton, F. H. Cozens, F. T. Gordon, and A. Hubbard), accompanied by the Organist of the Lodge. The health of Her Majesty the Queen was the first toast given from the chair. This was followed by that of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales Grand Master of England, the W.M. in giving it referred to the many Masonic duties undertaken by His Royal Highness. The toast of the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers was now given. The W.M. considered that English Freemasonry owed a great deal to these brethren to whom was entrusted the management of the Craft. He especially referred to the presence of the Assistant Grand Sec. (Bro. Buss), who was at the time of the W.M.'s initiation the Secretary of the Lodge which received him. He considered that no better representative of Grand Lodge could be found, and he had the greatest pleasure in calling on him to respond. Bro. Buss was extremely pleased to have to return thanks for the kind expressions of the W.M. in giving the last toast, and also for the hearty reception those remarks had met at the hands of the brethren. In his position in the Office of the Grand Lodge he should ever hold himself at the service of the members of the Craft. Bro. Thompson I.P.M. proposed the health of the W.M., whom he said had earned a great reputation by his labours in the Craft. The speaker had had the pleasure of raising him to the third degree, and had watched his progress with pleasure. He felt assured that in his new position he would carry out his duties most efficiently. The W.M. in reply tendered his thanks for the kind reception the brethren accorded him. He should ever consider the prestige of the Lodge, and should endeavour to emulate those brethren who had preceded him. He hoped that during his year of office he should carry out every duty to their satisfaction. He then proposed the health of the newly-initiated brother. He was well introduced, and would command the respect of every member. Bro. Ford, in acknowledging the toast, expressed his indebtedness to the W.M. for the kind way in which he had referred to his qualifications, and hoped that he should by his future conduct prove that the confidence reposed in him had not been misplaced. The W.M. next gave the toast of the Visitors, coupling therewith the names of Bros. Giles, Buscall, Rawlinson and H. M. Levy, each of whom responded. The health of the Past Masters followed. Both Bros. Tanner and Thompson were, the W.M. said, entitled to the heartiest thanks of the Lodge for the way in which they had laboured for its benefit. He had an especially pleasing task before him—to present to Bro. Thompson the P.M.'s jewel which had been voted by the Lodge, and which that brother had so justly merited. Bro. Thompson, after thanking the brethren for the jewel, stated that he should ever feel it a source of great pleasure to do all in his power for the good of the Lodge. Bro. Tanner followed, urging the brethren to attend the Lodge of Instruction held under the sanction of the "Eleanor;" they would then receive able instruction. The W.M. then gave the toast of the Officers of the Lodge, which was acknowledged by the two Wardens. "Success to the Masonic Charities" followed; the W.M. in the course of his remarks strongly urging the brethren to support the noble Institutions connected with our Order. He pointed out that a very small sum, if given by each Freemason, would supply sufficient to enable the Committees to relieve every case of distress that might come under their notice. He called upon Bro. Tanner to respond. that brother had, the W.M. said, laboured earnestly in the cause of charity, as the jewels on his breast would amply testify. Bro. Tanner detailed the results of the several Festivals held during the year in aid of the funds of the Charities. He considered that the total (£37,000) was a wonderful sum to collect, considering the general depression throughout the country. He hoped that he should be able to work further in the cause, and that he should ever have the assistance and co-operation of the brethren around him. After some other remarks, interspersed with songs, the Tyler was summoned and he gave the farewell toast. Among the Visitors present were Bros. Dance I.P.M. 754, I. Buscall P.M. 177, J. Pinder P.M. 15, W. T. Nell 45, W. Giles P.M. 188, Addy 754, R. Silvester 1308, Poore 1337, Palmer late 913, Taverner 1237, W. Praed 1237, Snell 610, Rawlinson late 754, and H. M. Levy P.M. 188.

CONSECRATION OF THE PENGE LODGE, No. 1815.

A considerable amount of pleasurable excitement was occasioned amongst the brethren in the pretty suburban district surrounding the Crystal Palace, on Saturday last, when another addition was made to the roll of Grand Lodge by the consecration of Penge Lodge No. 1815. The weather was fine—indeed almost the only summer day we have experienced this year—and a visit to this picturesque and sequestered spot proved a source of enjoyment to a large number of the brethren and visitors. Moreover, the event had been anticipated with much interest, the opening of a new Lodge having long been desired by brethren who reside in the district, and who often found it inconvenient to be constantly running up to town to attend to their Masonic duties and pleasures. The matter was, therefore, taken up in earnest, and Bro. Robert Jackson P.M. 104 having consented to accept the position of the first W.M., the petition was forwarded to Grand Lodge and signed by the following brethren:

as founders:—Bros. William Cook, Thomas West, H. G. Denbigh, George Bird, A. J. Cox, and George Wright. The Warrant having been obtained, Saturday last was fixed for the consecration, and, as we have said, the ceremony was witnessed by a goodly number of brethren residing in the Metropolitan District. Shortly after half-past three o'clock the brethren assembled at the Thicket Hotel, on the Anerley-road—the comfortable and luxurious quarters of two or three other Lodges—and, having walked in procession to the Lodge-room the chair was taken by Bro. H. E. Frances P.P.S.G.D. of Surrey, who appointed as his Wardens pro tem Bros. F. J. Smith P.P.G.A.D.C. Norfolk, and A. N. Bethune. Amongst those also present we observed:—Bros. Robert Jackson P.M. 104, C. T. Speight P.M. 27, Edward Whitehead 236, S. R. Speight P.M. 147, S. Beattie 17, Dr. Edward A. Basley 548, T. Thexton 1572, M. Hayman 1802, J. M. Klenck 1686, W. Malyon 1613, A. J. Rogers 1356, B. Neale 177, Augustus F. Lay 1364, J. G. Attwood 569, H. J. Amphlett 1511, John Lassam 742, H. W. Lindsey 1269, and the following brethren from the neighbouring Upper Norwood Lodge 1586:—C. Pugsley W.M., G. J. E. Marsh, J. A. Stock, F. Bullock, J. C. Larner, and F. Stafford. The business of the day having been opened in accordance with ancient formality, the presiding Officer addressed the brethren on the nature of their meeting, and the brethren of the new Lodge having been arranged in order, Bro. Cook, as the acting Secretary, read the Petition and Warrant, signed by the above-named founders. These having been approved of, the ceremony of constituting the Lodge was proceeded with in due form, Bro. Frances delivering an interesting and impressive oration, in the course of which he said: On such an occasion as the present it was only wise that they should devote a short period of their evening's ceremony to a review of the antiquity of our Order, and the purposes of its constitution: to our individual responsibilities as Masons, working under the supervision of the world's great Architect and amenable to His laws. It was a tradition amongst them that the origin of Freemasonry was with the building of the Temple at Jerusalem—a statement as difficult to assert with the onus of proof as to deny. The absolute origin of every human institution must of necessity be but obscurely defined. The distant past was almost as removed from our ken as was the far-off future, and as the social wants grew with dawning intellect we could scarcely trace a commencement to any known system of ethics or of religious polity. But, intimately connected as the ancient Jewish systems were with our own—their forms and ceremonies but the prototypes of those we at present use—their very modes of expression the life-blood of our language—it was not improbable that an Order with esoteric teaching should have been founded to commemorate what, in the time of Solomon, must have been regarded as a stupendous event. This society or order would be carried to other climes on the dispersion of the people amongst whom it was nurtured; it would take root in strange lands, grow, progress, and suffer decadence, to be renewed in a succeeding age from record or tradition. It increased the difficulty of fixing with absolute certainty the origin of our own Order, to find in widely severed peoples similar mysteries; but it did not follow that our system was the copy of another because it had a resemblance to it. With the advance of civilisation in all parts of the world, communities had been formed and institutions established, differing in language but alike in design and tendency, the necessities of mankind being everywhere identical. They might be a continuation or an imitation of ancient Hebrew rites; we could not prove either. But when they considered how much our modes of civil and religious polity were indebted to that ancient people they could accept the Masonic tradition cum grano salis. The Temple whose building they commemorated to-night was described in the Book they always had present in their Lodges, with all the minuteness of a modern architect's specification; but we must not judge of its magnificence from our modern standpoint. Among a primitive and nomadic people, from a plan revealed to David, was erected by King Solomon an edifice of, in those days, unparalleled magnificence. No clang of hammers resounded in its construction; in solemn silence and with deep reverence a house was built for the worship of the Most High—every stroke a history, every symbol on its walls a lesson. Modern Freemasonry was understood as a system of morality veiled in allegory and illustrated by symbols. They were governed by their own laws, which were easily defined, and were rarely wilfully broken. In their ranks and under the banner of the Order were to be found men of the highest learning, and the genius and talent of our country might be numbered amongst the brethren of the Craft. The royal prince and humble artisan were the extreme links of a fraternal chain that united men of every social position or religious denomination. The principles of Freemasonry were derived from the Volume of the Sacred Law, which lay open before the Master of every Lodge, culling from its pages neither exclusive creed nor dogmatic teaching. Masons could hail as brethren men of all ranks, creeds, and climes; so that, provided a man believe in the Glorious Architect of Heaven and Earth, and practise morali[ty], he was worthy of being a Mason. These principles taught us o[ur] duty to God, allegiance to our Sovereign, care for our neighbo[ur]s, respect for ourselves. There were amongst them some who saw no[th]ing in the Order but a facile means of sensuous enjoyment. But to [oth]ers and wiser, who are not necessarily averse to the charms of g[ood] fellowship, a duty is understood and a responsibility admitted w[hi]ch could not be shelved. Our duty is, first the perfecting of our o[wn] knowledge. Our responsibility—the conveyance of such knowled[ge] to the minds of the less enlightened of our fellows. The ethics of [Fr]eemasonry being essentially taught by a system of symbolism, eve[ry] implement used in our Lodges has its appropriate lesson, as was [fu]ll and thoroughly explained in the beautiful language of the lect[ure]. And no brother taking office in his Lodge could be excused for i[gn]orance of the moral tenets attached to the symbol he wears. Fr[om] the sword of the Tyler to the Pythagorean problem worn by [the] P.M.—marvellous in its mathematical truth—nothing shoul[d] be misunderstood, or lack due consideration by the wearer. T[he] three degrees were but types and symbols of the birth, culture, a[nd] destiny of man. In the first they had the conception of an idea—the birth or admittance of an initiate—a being coming into the world, in the darkness of ignorance, his steps guided by those who had obtained the light. By culture and education he obtained the rank of a skilled craftsman, and later on he was taught that to the earnest worshipper of the Divine Architect, the diligent student of nature, the fearless follower of truth, was given a knowledge that would enable him to face the principles symbolised by the plumb, level, and setting maul, and to acknowledge that death had no terror equal to the stain of falsehood or dishonour. Humanly speaking, brotherly love was the highest principle taught by our Order. Life is too short for animosities; too solemn a gift to be wasted in promoting discords or cherishing hatreds; and the practice of this virtue would always compel us to be mindful of the failings and necessities of our brethren. In loving charity they should reprove their follies and suffer reproof themselves. In generous benevolence they should relieve their wants and assist the noble Institutions connected with the Order—be mindful of the fatherless, the aged, and the afflicted. In conclusion, let it be the aim of the Lodge now about to be formed so to cultivate and disseminate the principle of brotherly love, that though our teaching is esoteric and the outer world could not penetrate its mysteries, yet it might at least know that it taught men to be more mindful of each other, to practise charity, to maintain harmony, and to live in unity. At the close of the oration, which was listened to with profound attention, the anthem, "Behold how good and joyful a thing it is" (Psalm cxxxiii.) was chanted, and the first portion of the dedication prayer offered. After the sanctus and the invocation, the Presiding Officer read 2 Chron. ii. 1 to 16, the Lodge Board was then uncovered, and the elements of consecration were carried round, amidst solemn music, this portion of the ceremony being most effectively rendered by Bro. D. Basley and the choir. The impressive rite having been duly and most perfectly carried out, with Bro. J. M. Klenck as Director of Ceremonies, the second portion of the dedication prayer was read, and the Lodge was constituted in due form, the proceedings terminating with the anthem, "I have surely built Thee an house to dwell in," and the patriarchal benediction. Lodge having been resumed to the second degree, Bro. Robert Jackson was duly installed as the first Master of the Penge Lodge, and after he had received the customary salutations of the brethren, he invested his Officers for the year as follow:—Bros. Fredk. J. Smith I.P.M., William Cook S.W. and Sec., Thomas West J.W., H. G. Denbigh S.D., Geo. Bird J.D., A. J. Cox I.G., Geo. Wright Treas. The W.M. then proposed a vote of thanks to Bro. Frances for his kindness in consecrating the Lodge, and for the excellent way in which he had conducted the ceremony; and Bro. Frances briefly acknowledged the compliment which the brethren so readily and cordially paid him. Similar compliments were also paid to Bros. Basley, Stock and Marsh, for their valuable services in the musical renderings of the day, and also to Bro. Klenck for the way in which he had officiated as Director of Ceremonies. At the conclusion of business the brethren partook of a récherché banquet, provided in a style for which Bro. Lassam, of the Thicket Hotel, is famous. The tables were decked with magnificent flowers, ferns and fruits, presenting a most luxurious and picturesque aspect, and the repast was served to perfection. Dessert having been partaken of, the customary Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, the W.M. observing that as long as they had such rulers at the head of affairs there need be no fear for the progress and prosperity of the Craft. Bro. Frances, in felicitous terms, proposed the Worshipful Master and prosperity to the Penge Lodge, the toast being received with the utmost acclamation. From the zeal which Bro. Jackson had shown, and from the fact of his being present, although not in robust health, he was sure they had a Master who would do honour to their choice, and upon whom they would look back as upon one who had reflected credit on the Lodge. He trusted that the acquaintance he had made to-day with their W.M. might ripen into a friendship that should last for years. He reminded them that the prosperity of the Lodge was in their own hands to a very great extent. They had about them a very estimable set of men, and all they had to do was to be very careful as to whom they admitted into their midst. The greatest mistake was to take in anybody; they did not want numbers, they wanted men with whom they could mingle with pleasure after the hurry and bustle of business, such friends as they would delight to meet at their own table. He entreated them to be careful and discreet in this matter, and then the prosperity which they all hoped might attend the Lodge would be ensured. The W.M., who was enthusiastically received, thanked the brethren for the cordiality with which the toast had been drunk, and said he felt the great importance of the office he held, and the responsibilities which attached to himself and officers; but what he could do to promote the prosperity of the Craft, and more particularly this Lodge, he should be only too happy to do, and he hoped to hand down the warrant to his successor pure and unsullied. His officers were all good men, and had it not been for their enthusiasm this Lodge would not have been formed. He felt certain they would do their best for the Lodge, and that their efforts would be attended with success. They were all united and harmonious now, and he hoped that no goddess of discord would throw an apple into their midst. Before concluding, he proposed the health of the Consecrating and Installing Master, who had up to this time been a comparative stranger to the members of the Lodge. But, finding there was a Lodge wanting his assistance, Bro. Frances came without hesitation, notwithstanding that his visit involved some little personal inconvenience to himself. They all thanked him for this example of a true Masonic spirit that he had shown them, and hoped Bro. Frances might come amongst them on many future occasions. The toast was received with full honours, and Bro. Frances, in responding, briefly acknowledged the kindness with which he had been met by the brethren to-day, and thanked those who had so kindly assisted in the musical arrangements and the direction of the ceremonies. The health of the Visitors followed, and the hearty welcome extended to the brethren from other Lodges was acknowledged in suitable terms by Bros. F. J. Smith,

Attwood, and others. Bro. F. J. Smith proposed the Officers of the Lodge, in doing which he expressed his belief that the W.M. had the best assistants he possibly could have in the carrying out of his important duties. Bro. W. Cook responded, and said although there had been a great deal of work to do in the formation of this Lodge, yet he had been ably backed up by his fellow Officers. Twelve months ago Bros. Denbigh and Wright mooted the idea of the Lodge for this district, as it often proved inconveniently late before they could get back from Lodges in town. The result of their deliberations on this subject was what they had witnessed to-day, and they had to thank Grand Lodge for the readiness with which it when applied to granted the Warrant. He regretted that their excellent W.M. was not well enough to remain during the whole of the proceedings of the evening, but expressed himself confident of the success of the Lodge. Bro. Denbigh also returned thanks, in doing which he said although it was true, as Bro. Cook had said, that he was one of the instigators in forming the Lodge, to Bro. Cook himself was the credit due of doing all the work. He had carried the whole affair through in the most perfect and business-like manner, and was entitled to the thanks of all the brethren. Bro. Bird also acknowledged the toast, in a few happily-chosen sentences. The toast of the Stanley and Anerley Lodges was next honoured, and the Tyler brought the list to a close, soon after eleven o'clock. During the evening some capital selections of vocal and instrumental music were given, Bro. Dr. Baaley presiding most efficiently at the pianoforte, and the brethren separated amidst hearty expressions of satisfaction with the admirable arrangements which had been made by Bro. Lassam for their "opening day."

THE FESTIVAL OF THE MARK BENEVOLENT FUND.

IN accordance with our promise last week we recur to this interesting event, and it is with infinite pleasure we approach our task. This year has essentially been a red letter one for the Mark Degree. We have had occasion to report several most interesting gatherings, and the most sceptical of the cynics who strove to throw cold water on the hopes of the executive who so bravely put forth a hand to aid in raising what may now emphatically be declared a substantial fabric, are fain to admit that there are some grounds for the self-satisfaction with which that body claim they are entitled to have success recorded as the result of their labours. The Benevolent Fund of the Mark Degree, with which to-day it is our more immediate province to deal, was commenced in 1868 by a grant from Grand Lodge of £50, since that time Annual Festivals have been held:—

In 1869, at the Mitre Hotel, Hampton Court, under the Chairmanship of Bro. the Rev. G. R. Portal, M.A., M.W.G.M.M.M., assisted by the following Board of Stewards—Bros. Thomas Meggy, F. Binckes, T. J. Sabine, Thos. Wescombe, and S. Rosenthal, when an amount of £97 2s 8d was realised.

In 1870, the Festival took place at the Talbot Hotel, Richmond, when the Earl Percy, M.P., R.W.D.G.M. presided, supported by Bros. Thos. Meggy, F. Binckes, S. Rosenthal, H. C. Levander, and R. Spencer, the united result of their Stewardships being £53 4s 10d.

In 1871, R.W. Bro. J. C. Parkinson presided, the locale selected was the Crystal Palace, Sydenham, and the following brethren took part in conducting the duties of the day—Bros. Magnus Ohren, Rev. D. Shaboe, Rev. C. W. S. Stanhope, F. Binckes, S. Rosenthal, Frederic Davison, J. H. Wynne, Rev. L. O. Bigg, T. Y. Strachan, Rev. A. B. Fraser, and the Rev. V. H. Moyle. This Board of Stewards raised £85 8s.

In 1872, the Talbot Hotel, Richmond, was the favoured spot. The Chairman was Colonel Francis Burdett R.W. Prov. G.M.M.M. Middlesex and Surrey, representing the Right Hon. the Earl of Bective, M.P., R.W. Prov. G.M.M.M. for Cumb. and Westmoreland, who was absent through indisposition. And here the Board of Stewards comprised Bros. G. P. Brockbank, Rev. P. H. Newnham, Rev. W. B. Church Rev. T. F. Ravenshaw, Capt. C. J. Burgess, Thomas Hargreaves, George Neall, J. H. Wynne, Alfred Williams, W. O. Walker, Colonel Thomas Birchall, and Captain George Barlow—£177 being the result of their combined exertions.

In 1873, the Festival was held for the first time at the Alexandra Palace, Wood Green; R.W. Bro. Col. J. Whitwell, M.P., G.S.W., presided, and the following formed his Board of Stewards:—Bros. Lieut.-Col. J. Tanner Davy, R.W. Prov. G.M.M.M. Devon, Thomas Entwisle, C. F. Matier, Rev. W. M. Heath, E. T. Inskip, T. W. Coffin, H. R. Trigg, Wm. Sugg, F. A. Philbrick, R. H. Thrupp, S. G. Homfray, Arthur Wolton. On this occasion a sum of £141 15s was realised.

In 1874, the Greyhound Hotel, Richmond, was the rendezvous, and R.W. Bro. Sir Edmund Lechmere, Bart., P.D.G.M.M.M., undertook the duties of President, supported by Bros. H. C. Levander, William Hudson, J. H. Wynne, Clement Stretton, George Page, Wm. Charles Gilles, E. M. Haigh, E. Spencer Stidolph, Charles Lacey, Charles Horsley, Frank Richardson, and Nathaniel J. F. Basnett, who between them raised the sum of £91 19s.

Since 1874 the meetings have been held uninterruptedly at Alexandra Palace, Muswell Hill. In 1875, R.W. Bro. William Romaine Callender, M.P., D.G.M.M.M., was the Chairman, and the following Stewards rendered him assistance:—Bros. Rev. D. J. Drakeford, Thomas Trollope, M.D., T. J. Lancashire, J. Handley, Richd. Chambers, Nathl. Horrocks, Wm. Roebuck, H. T. Robberds, G. W. Verry, Wm. Richards, W. H. Wellsted, John Duffield, Jack Sutcliffe, Fras. Griffiths, M.D., Thos. Collinson, H. H. Bedford, W. White. The amount realised was £176 11s.

In 1876, R.W. Bro. Lieut.-General J. S. Brownrigg, C.B., G.J.W., acted as Chairman, and the Board of Stewards comprised Bros. Rev. Dr. Brette, T. Y. Strachan, F. Binckes, T. S. Mortlock, Robt. Berridge, H. M. Baker, C. W. Duke, J. F. Norris, E. B. Webb, Richd. Newhouse, T. S. Morris, J. R. Wright. The united exertions of this band realised £96 15s.

In 1877, R.W. Bro. Rt. Hon. the Earl of Donoughmore, G.S.W., undertook the duties, supported by Bros. John Wordsworth, Rev. F. W. Thoyts, Major Geo. Barlow, J. D. Moore, M.D., F. Binckes, S. Rosenthal, C. W. Wyndham, J. H. Spencer, J. G. Podevin, Alfred Williams, H. R. Cooper-Smith, Richard Boggett, George Higgins, Arthur Middleton, F. M. Tindall, Robert Arnison, C. H. Perrott. Their united exertions realising £221 9s.

In 1878 M.W. Bro. Rt. Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, G.M.M.M., lent his valuable aid, and the following represented the Board of Stewards on the occasion:—Bros. the Rev. W. K. R. Bedford, John Wordsworth, J. R. Goepel, Rev. H. J. Hatch, Richard Boggett, Capt. A. Thrale Perkins, J. L. Thomas, Thomas Cubitt, J. Cattley Mason, Wm. G. Brighten, James Gardiner, Edward Geo. Tattershall, Rev. Daniel Ace, D.D., G. Ward Verry, Richard Eve, John Barker, Capt. J. Ritchie, Major C. Harding, Henry Bagot, J. T. Robinson, Wm. Nicholl, Alfred Scargill, John Fawcett, Francis Trickett, Charles H. Coates. £371 4s was the amount announced.

We now come to the present year of grace, 1879, when Lord Arthur Hill fulfilled the functions of Chairman. He was supported by a band of Stewards numbering 35, and in our last week's issue will be found detailed their names, and the amount each handed over as the result of his exertions.

Since the establishment of the Mark Benevolent Fund, 36 cases have been relieved, with sums ranging from £1 to £50, and amounting in the aggregate to £433, while with the additional sum that has accrued by way of interest on moneys invested the Executive has been enabled to invest £1,000. Economy in management has been the order of the day, and it is gratifying to know that the total sum expended for printing, advertising, &c., since 1868 is under £40. Since Dec. 1878 one-half of all sums subscribed go to the Education Fund, the object of which is to assist in the education (under the charge of their parents or guardians) of the children of Mark Master Masons, who on application to the Board shall be considered eligible for the Fund. The business is conducted by a General Board, who hold special meetings on the third Thursday in April and October, and at such other times as may be deemed necessary, for the purpose of considering applications, and for fixing the days of election. This Board consists of a Patron or Patrons, President, Vice-Presidents, Trustees, Treasurer, Secretary, and an unlimited number of Life Governors, Life and Annual Subscribers. The mode of election is by means of voting papers. Every donor of five shillings per annum being entitled to one vote at a single election. A donation of five guineas gives five votes for life at every election, and constitutes the donor a life subscriber. A donation of ten guineas, in one or more payments of not less than £5 5s each, gives twelve votes for life at every election, and constitutes the donor a Life Governor. A donation of twenty guineas, in one or more payments of not less than £5 5s each, gives twenty-five votes for life at every election, and constitutes the donor a Vice-President. Similar privileges are acquired by Lodges on payment of double the amounts, in sums of not less than £5 5s each. No applicant shall be eligible for election unless the father has been for at least three years a subscribing member of some Mark Lodge under the English Constitution. No boy shall be admitted to the benefits of the Institution who is under eight or above thirteen years of age, nor continue a recipient after the age of sixteen. No candidate shall be placed on the list until approved of by the Board. Petitioners are required to produce a certificate signed by the Master and Secretary of the Mark Lodge in which the father was advanced, or of which he had been a subscribing member for at least three years, together with a certificate or satisfactory proof of the date of the birth of the applicant. Lists of approved candidates, together with such particulars as the Board may deem necessary, are sent to every Subscriber at least fourteen days before days of election. As a condition of a grant from the Fund, a quarterly report of the progress, conduct, and health of every boy assisted by this Institution shall be required from the head of the educational establishment where the boy is placed, and the General Board shall take such other steps as may be practicable for ascertaining the progress made by the child. These, briefly are the rules by which the fund is governed and are, we consider, ample to warrant the support which has been accorded the Fund in the past and to secure increased aid in the future. At the Annual Festival of the present year held, as we have already stated, on the 2nd inst., under the presidency of Lord Arthur Hill, the sum announced as contributed by the Stewards and their friends was far in advance of any previous year, thus clearly proving the firm foundation on which this especial branch of Masonic Charity stands, and ranking our Mark brethren among the foremost of those who make it a pleasure to give to their less fortunate fellows. We understand that the subscriptions have since been augmented by one and another donation until they now reach the sum of £537 4s. At the conclusion of the banquet, the noble chairman gave the usual toasts, briefly and to the point,—the lateness of the hour precluding, as he said, long speeches. In proposing Prosperity to the Fund, his Lordship referred to the progress which had marked it since its establishment, quoting largely from particulars, the substance of which is given above. Bro. D. M. Dewar then announced the subscriptions, which had been received, and which, as we stated last week, at the time amounted to £528 16s. Bro. Frederick Binckes replied to the toast, referring to the very large amount of support which had been given to the Mark fund and the Masonic Charities generally. He confidently looked forward to a steady increase in the amounts contributed to the Mark Benevolent Fund, and pointed out that but a very few years since the Boys' School Festivals had not realised greater amounts than had that day been announced on behalf of the Mark Fund, he then proceeded to give the toast of the Chairman, whom he characterised as being imbued with an admiration for Freemasonry and an ardent lover of the Mark degree. He trusted his lordship would before long be placed in the foremost ranks of the Craft, but hoped that he would never forget the Mark Benevolent Fund, which, under his presidency, had that day held its most successful meeting. Lord A. Hill, in reply, said that he entertained the greatest regard for the Mark degree. He was very pleased that the result of the Festival had been so far in advance of those that preceded it, and hoped that his efforts, and those of his successors, would lead to increases as great if not greater. Bro. Davison now assumed the chair, and first proposed the health of the Board of Stewards. He considered, from the way in which they had laboured, they were entitled to a great amount of gratitude. He coupled with this toast the name of Bro. Baron de Ferriers, whose efforts on behalf of the various Charities of the Order are so well known as to need no further remarks necessary. He considered it must be gratifying to all Mark Masters to hear the result of the day, and to Masons generally the result of the year as far as the Charities were concerned. He considered that the plan adopted by the Mark Fund, of sending the boys who were elected to its benefits to schools near their own homes, was deserving the attention of the large institutions. There could be no doubt, he said, that beyond a certain point it was not desirable to associate children in one body, and he therefore thought that what was done by this institution might, perhaps, be advantageously adopted by the other Charities. He hardly thought a Steward should be appraised by the amount of his list, as it might be that the brother with a small amount had worked harder than he who in a more favourable district, had secured a larger amount. Bro. Binckes explained the peculiar nature of the Mark Fund, which he said was for the assistance of sons of Mark Masters, who, from having a large family or some other reason required aid in providing for the education of their children. Bro. Capt. Hunter called upon the brethren to drink to the health of the Ladies, to which Bro. Rushworth replied. The chairman in a few complimentary words thanked Bro. Lott, the Grand Organist, for the music which had been provided under his direction.

Perfect Ashlar Lodge, No. 1178.—The summer festival was held at Purfleet, on Thursday, 3rd inst. The weather was unfavourable in the extreme, but those who accompanied the excursionists enjoyed themselves fully. Upon arriving at their destination the company were invited to go on board the training ship "Cornwall," which is anchored in the river, and upon which are 246 boys reclaimed from the streets of London and elsewhere, who having passed through a reformatory are instructed in the duties of a sailor's calling. The discipline and general conduct of the lads produced the most favourable impression upon the minds of those present, whilst the singing of the boys at the service which was held whilst the visitors were present was exceedingly creditable and gave great satisfaction to all. Had the weather been fine the lads would have been put through a short drill. An idea of the good accomplished by the establishment of such training vessels may be gathered from the fact that since the inauguration of the "Cornwall," 1587 lads have received instruction on board, and of those 96 per cent. have become good citizens, and one who had become the captain of a merchant vessel always visits his old home when he returns to England. Of the 244 boys discharged during the years 1875-6-7 219 are doing well, 9 are dead, 5 are doubtful, 6 have been convicted, and 5 are unknown. This is highly satisfactory to the supporters of the institution, which is sustained by voluntary contributions. The ship is commanded by Capt. Morrell, R.N., Mr. Chas. Willis being the schoolmaster. Upon returning ashore the party repaired to the Royal Hotel, Purfleet, where the banquetting table was amply spread with excellent fare. The chair was occupied by Bro. Stock W.M., who upon the cloth being removed gave the usual loyal toast, which was responded to most heartily, and by singing the National Anthem. "The Grand Master of the Order" was given from the chair, and received with the greatest enthusiasm, Bro. Challoner following with a song. "The Ladies" was also given as a toast from the chair, to which Bro. Willett replied in a facetious manner. The "Health of the W.M." was proposed by P.M. Garbutt, to which Bro. Stock suitably responded, observing that the contributions to the various Masonic Charities during the past amounted to a larger sum than in any previous year, £17,000 having been contributed; this should be highly satisfactory to the general body. The company then returned to town, having spent as pleasant a time as the weather would allow.

The Brethren of Eboracum Lodge, No. 1611, have decided to have a pic-nic to Cawood and Naburn Lock by steamer on Monday afternoon, the 21st July inst., leaving the New Walk Ferry at one o'clock. A short time will be allowed to visit Cawood Castle, and the grounds of T. H. Preston, Esq., Moreby Hall, in returning, if convenient and time will permit. The number will be limited, and in order that arrangements may be made for the comfort and convenience of those intending to join the pic-nic early application should be made for tickets,—to Bro. James Kay Secretary, or Bro. Thos. Humphries Asst. Sec., at the Queen's Hotel, York.

Madame Worrell-Duval, a lady favourably known to many of our readers, is now fulfilling a highly successful engagement with Bro. Marriott at the Pier, Hastings. The local paper, in commenting on this talented lady's performance, says:—"Madame Worrell followed with 'What the Birds say' (Roeckel), and so musically did she succeed in interpreting what the feathered songsters say that an encore was exacted. In response she gave Theodore Marzial's 'Twickenham Ferry,' and so archly and effectively, that almost a second encore was asked for. Madame Worrell is an Associate of the Royal Academy of Music, and is the holder of the Westmoreland Scholarship."

NEW ZEALAND.

Provincial Grand Lodge of Ireland.—The quarterly Grand Lodge meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of New Zealand, I.C., was held on Monday, 5th May, at the Masonic Hotel, Bro. G. P. Pierce R.W.P.G.M. presided. The other officers present were: Bros. J. Doull P.G.S.W., W. L. Mitchell P.G. Treasurer, G. Rees P.G. Secretary, W. M. Ball P.G.J.D., C. Porter Tyler. The other members present were: Bros. C. Goodacre W.M. Lodge United Service, Holmes J.W. London United Service, E. W. Page W.M. Lodge Ara, Crothers S.W. Lodge Ara, Holmes J.W. Lodge Ara, S. E. Hughes P.M. Lodge Ara, J. E. Durance J.D. Lodge Ara, and about 40 visitors. The business was of a routine character. Correspondence was read and various applications were received. The Ara Lodge was opened for the reception of the Grand Lodge, and at the conclusion of the proceedings, closed the Lodge in the usual form.

District Grand Lodge of England.—The regular communication of the District Grand Lodge of England, E.C., was held on Wednesday, 7th May, at the large room of the Insurance Buildings. Bro. Wildman V.G. D.G.M. presided. There was a good attendance of officers and members, and a large attendance of visitors, amongst whom were Bro. A. Whitaker P.G.M. of the Scottish Constitution, and a number of other officers, as well as members of the Grand Lodge holding office by virtue of their positions in minor Lodges. The business transacted was of a routine character. The most interesting feature was the presentation of an address, handsomely engrossed and illuminated, to Brother Wildman, on his retirement from his high position. The text of the address is as follows:—"E. T. Wildman P.D.D.G.M., V.W. Sir and Brother,—We, the officers of the District Grand Lodge of Freemasons, E.C., of Auckland, having heard with sincere regret that circumstances have arisen which compel you to leave the district and resign the office of D.D.G.M., desire to express our unqualified satisfaction with the courteous and dignified manner in which you have discharged the onerous duties appertaining to it, from the consecration of this Grand Lodge to the present time, during the greater portion of which period, owing to the absence of the R.W.D.G.M., you have virtually ruled the district. At the same time, we beg your acceptance of the regalia of your office, as a token of our respect and esteem, and to assure you that wherever you go you will be accompanied by the hearty good wishes of this Lodge."—Bro. Wildman suitably replied. He expressed the sorrow he felt at leaving his Masonic and personal friends in Auckland. He tendered his sincere and heartfelt thanks for the kindness which had been extended to him, not only on this occasion, but on all others. He assured the brethren of his feelings for the welfare of Masonry in New Zealand, and said he would always feel a keen interest in the district. Bro. Wildman having resigned the office of D.D.G.M., the W.G.M., Brother G. S. Graham, sent in his nomination that Brother Lodder should succeed.—Brother Wildman installed Bro. Lodder, and Bro. Moat was installed as successor to the late Bro. W. H. Kissling as Deputy Grand Registrar. The P.G.M. of the S.C., Brother Whitaker, addressed the brethren. Brother Trewheela, in the absence of Brother Hesketh, conducted the musical arrangements. The illuminated address was prepared by Mr. J. Slator, and it is really a handsome and artistic work. The body of the address is in "black letter," red and black. The border is unique and elegant in the style of ornamentation known as the fifteenth century style,—an English foliage pattern of chaste design. The capital W, at the opening of the address, is also of the fifteenth century style, copied from the fac simile of a manuscript now in the British Museum. It is richly ornamented, the letter being in gold on a blue and white ground, with a branch leading off into a rich, elaborate border of crimson lake. In appropriate positions on the address are Masonic emblems of the Grand Lodge—Past Master, Mark Master, and Royal Arch,—in all degrees of which Brother Wildman has sustained distinguished positions in this province. The design and execution of the address are throughout very elegant, and a credit alike to Mr. Slator, Bro. Wildman, and the District Grand Lodge, by whom it has been presented, and we have no doubt it will be cherished by the recipient as a memento of his long connection with the Masonic fraternity of New Zealand.

Rodney Lodge, No. 1711, E.C.—The annual meeting was held at the Masonic Hall, Warkworth, on Thursday, 8th May. Among the visitors were several prominent members of the Craft from Auckland. After the ordinary business of the Lodge had been finished, Brother Munro S.W., on behalf of the brethren of the Lodge, presented the W.M., Brother W. P. Moat, D.G.R., with a very handsome Past Master's jewel. The brethren then proceeded to the large dining-room of the Warkworth Hotel, where a banquet of a most récherché character had been laid out by Mr. Irwin, the room itself having been beautifully decorated with flowers and evergreens by Mrs. Irwin. The W.M. Brother Moat, presided, supported on the right by Bro. Paige W.M., Lodge Ara, 848 I.C., and on the left by Bro. M. M. Irving 83. After full justice had been done to the good things provided and the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts had been drunk and honoured, Bro. Munro S.W. and M.E. proposed, "The Health of the W.M." It was owing to his exertions that the Lodge had been established, and it was solely owing to his zeal and ability that the Lodge was in so successful operation at the present time. He could not adequately express the esteem, love, and affection entertained for Bro. Moat by every member of the Lodge. The W.M. responded. Proceedings were shortly after brought to a close, and the brethren hastened to the Public Hall, to join the friends whom they had invited to the ball.

The members of the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge, No. 1642, held a very successful meeting on Thursday at the Ladbroke Hall, Notting-hill, under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. Samuel Parkhouse. The brethren afterwards repaired to Ealing, to the residence of Bro. George Penn I.P.M., who entertained his guests in a most bounteous fashion. A full report shall appear next week.

To the uncertain state of the weather must be attributed the non-appearance of these "birds of passage." However, as a friend remarked, a change may be expected soon, and then we shall see better attendances, and more interest shown. On Tuesday last, under the presidency of the officers named above, Lodge was opened, and after formalities had been complied with, the ceremony of passing was rehearsed, Bro. Dignam as candidate. The presentation of the Report of the audit Committee was postponed until next meeting. Bro. Pile, the candidate for passing, was then entrusted, and he retired. The Lodge was opened in the 2nd and 3rd degrees, and resumed to the second, when Bro. Pile was passed to the degree of F.C. Bro. John G. The W.M. then invested the following brethren as Officers for the ensuing year, addressing each of them fully with respect to the teaching of their jewels and emblems of office, situation and duty:—Bro. S. Davison S.W., Bro. E. A. Head J.W., Bro. W. Hale P.M. Treasurer, Bro. Chas. Sawyer I.P.M. Secretary, Bro. Rudge S.D., Bro. J. G. Calway J.D., Bro. J. H. Walker I.G., Bro. Jas. E. Woodbridge W.S., Bro. F. Sargeant Tyler, and Bro. C. W. Noehmer P.M as D.C. In investing the latter the W.M. expressed, on behalf of himself and the other brethren of the Lodge, the debt of gratitude they owed him for affording them the benefit of his experience by accepting the position. The Installing Master Bro. Chas. Sawyer then delivered the ancient charges to the W.M., Wardens and Brethren, explaining the respective working tools at length. The greatest credit is due to Bro. Sawyer for the very able, careful and impressive manner in which he rendered the beautiful ceremony of Installation from beginning to end, and many encomiums were afterwards passed upon him by the brethren present. At the second rising the W.M. said that he had now on behalf of the Lodge a very pleasing duty to perform, viz. that of presenting to Bro. Sawyer I.P.M. a handsome Past Master's jewel. As expressed by the inscription thereon, it was given as a token of the regard and esteem in which the brethren of the Lodge held him, and as a slight recognition of the valuable services he had rendered the Lodge, not only during his year of office (which had been a very successful one), but since the formation of the Lodge, of which he (Bro. Sawyer) was one of the founders, and he (the W.M.) prayed that the G.A.O.T.U. would spare him for many years to wear it. The presentation was greeted with great acclamation and approval. Bro. Sawyer returned thanks in a short but impressive speech. Bro. Noehmer then explained to the brethren that their W.M. Bro. John G. Horsey had that evening very kindly presented to the Lodge the handsome gauntlets that he (the W.M.) and the Wardens were now wearing, and moved that a vote of thanks be recorded on the minutes; this being seconded, was carried unanimously. Bro. Davison S.W. having proposed three candidates for initiation, which were duly seconded, and some other business transacted, the Lodge was closed in due form, after which the brethren adjourned to a substantial banquet. After grace had been sung in a very impressive manner the W.M. proposed "The Queen and the Craft," and followed with the other usual loyal toasts, all of which were duly honoured. When giving that of the R.W. the Grand Master of the Province, Sir W. Burrell, Bart., M.P., the V.W. the Prov. G.M. of the Province, Bro. Scott and the rest of the Prov. Grand Officers, the W.M. said that he had received a communication from the Prov. Grand Secretary, stating that a previous engagement unfortunately prevented the Prov. G.M. and Prov. Grand Officers from being present on this occasion, which he as W.M. very much regretted. The I.P.M. proposed The Worshipful Master, and spoke at some length as to the virtues and capabilities of Bro. John G. Horsey, who he felt sure was (as W.M. of the Sackville Lodge) the right man in the right place, and would at the end of his year of office evince to the brethren by his conduct of the affairs of the Lodge that he well deserved the terms of praise he now passed upon him; he knew well the love their W.M. had for Masonry, and the great care and attention he always paid to the proper performance of its rites, and the strict following of the landmarks of the order. The toast was received with much applause. In proposing the toast "The Visitors," the W.M. coupled with it the names of Bro. C. W. Hudson W.M. 315 and Bro. W. C. Banks W.M. 1223, who on behalf of the rest of the visitors and themselves expressed the pleasure they feel at being then present, and their thanks for the entertainment afforded them. In giving the toast "The Past Masters of the Sackville Lodge," the W.M. again spoke very highly of the I.P.M. Bro. Sawyer, and of his unremitting attention to the interests of the Lodge. In that of the officers he could not help observing that whilst one and all were most able and energetic, Bros. Davison S.W., Head J.W., and Bro. Rudge S.D., had done great service. He concluded this toast by again thanking Bro. C. W. Noehmer P.M. for accepting the office of D.C. During the evening Bros. Hook, W. Hamlyn, Chubb, and others sang some songs in excellent style, and Bro. A. Billyeald gave three recitations with great power and feeling. The Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to a close. The London brethren were much indebted to the London, Brighton, and South Coast Railway Company for attaching to the 10.15 a.m. train a Saloon Carriage for their accommodation.

West Smithfield Lodge of Instruction, No. 1623.—The regular meeting was held at Bro. T. Butt's, New Market Hotel, West Smithfield, E.C., on Monday last. Bro. W. B. Pennefather having been called away, kindly acted as Preceptor) to work the first, Bro. D. Moss the second, Bro. H. J. Lardner the third, and Bro. Stephens the fourth sections of the lecture, all of which working was admirably rendered, with the assistance of the brethren. The Lodge may be congratulated upon having so many of the brethren of the mother Lodge who take an active part in its working. Bro. Sec. then read a letter from Bro. Dickinson, Sec. Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction, offering a cordial invitation to the West Smithfield brethren to visit them and work the Fifteen Sections. This was unanimously accepted, and arrangements were made for doing so on the 25th July. Bro.

The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment, where the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts, as also several complimentary ones, were duly given and responded to. Some capital harmony and a magnificent recitation, kindly given by Bro. Charles Harrington, the manager of the Tyne Theatre, enlivened the evening. This will be the first time of his working the third ceremony. It is gratifying to see how young members get on at this Lodge, the Preceptor is most painstaking with every member, every one therefore can take part in the sections. We are pleased to hear that our esteemed friend, Bro. Wallington P.M. 860 and Preceptor of the Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction 860 has consented to rehearse the installation ceremony on Tuesday, 29th July, with Bro. Musto's assistance. A Masonic treat is in store. We shall, if possible, do ourselves the pleasure of paying a visit on that night. We omitted to mention in our last report that it was the members of 860 from the West end that intended paying the Friars Lodge of Instruction a visit shortly.

OUR RULERS.

IN all ages, and wherever communities of men have elected to dwell together, it has been the custom to choose from among the ranks some one with whom might be entrusted the reins of government; one who, either from personal distinction or administrative ability, has been held in high esteem, and to whom the rest gladly pay fealty and homage. It is, therefore, only in the natural order of things that, in an Institution such as Freemasonry, which is supposed to be an exemplification of all the virtues, certain brethren of distinction and of illustrious name should be sent to the forefront, to rule and guide the operations of the Craft. We are treading on delicate ground, we know, when we assert that those who accept the gladly proffered honours should be careful, ere they do so, to remember the grave responsibilities which are inseparably attached to such a position. If it be true that property has its duties as well as its rights, it is still more to be acknowledged that in entering upon the possession of honours and dignities conferred by such an Order as ours, the chosen ones should take care that they wisely wield the power, and manfully discharge the onerous duties which are entrusted to their care. When the Prince of Wales graciously consented to accept the office of Most Worshipful Grand Master, English Freemasons rejoiced that the key-stone of their popularity and prosperity had been fixed, and that our future King had, by his acceptance of the post, won for himself (on a minor scale, it might be, but still one of comparative significance) a sample of that loyalty and affection which will burst forth in its full glory only when he assumes the Sovereignty to which he is Heir Apparent. It was never to be anticipated that his Royal Highness could devote sufficient of his time to secure a practical acquirement of all the technical knowledge necessary to enable him personally to attend and preside over all the assemblages of Grand Lodge at which his illustrious presence might be desired. The attachment of his name was sufficient to give an impetus to Freemasonry, which had just previously recoiled under a series of heavy and embitterd attacks, secessions, and excommunications, such as had never been contemplated; and the rapid strides which Masonry has since made is a solid proof of the benefit which the Order has received from the Prince's assumption of the reins of office. But though it was never intended, nor indeed perhaps desirable, that his Royal Highness should lend his personal aid, except on prominent or State occasions, he is supported by Officers in whose hands the whole interior economy and administration of the Craft are secure, and who have the ability to discern, and judgment to execute, all that is necessary for the safety and progress of the Institution. Coming further down the scale of precedence, the principle may be a little more crucially applied as to whether distinction of birth and social position entitle men to accept unhesitatingly positions of trust and responsibility. We refer, of course, to Grand Masters of Provinces who, without doubt, should be expected to exert themselves personally and industriously in the affairs of their respective Provinces. It is not saying too much when we contend that the Provinces themselves should have some voice in the selection of brethren for the office, for who are better able to judge the qualifications of men nominated for such offices as those who are hereafter to serve under their sway. And if such a participation were allowed there would, as a matter of necessity, be considerably less risk of the duties being incompetently discharged, or shunted over altogether upon the shoulders of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master. This latter is by no means an uncommon event; and we can heartily sympathise with our brethren in some parts of England who know their Prov. Grand Master only by seeing his name upon a banquet menu, now and then, and hearing read from his Secretary a stereotyped letter of apology for non-attendance. Such men ought never to have accepted office; and unless they are prepared to devote a portion of their time and energy to the discharge of departmental duty, for the sake of decency let them retire and allow those more deserving to enjoy the sweets of official honour. Something more than a name is required in a Grand Master for a Province; and it is simply ridiculous for a man to hold such an office whilst he fails to show his face in Lodge and remains in obscurity—so far as the fraternal mingling with his brethren, either for business or amenity, is concerned. We recollect on one occasion the hint being ironically ventilated that the health of the Prov. Grand Master should be associated with the toast of "The Visitors;" and it was painful to hear the derisive laughter with which the joke was received. In such a case as a Grand Master failing systematically to take his due share of responsible duties, he should be reminded that it would be only a piece of good manners to retire from the companionship of those who by his studied avoidance are not congenial to his tastes and inclinations. And if he lacks the necessary courage or honesty, it should be within the power of the Province to depose him, and thus remove the obstacle by which their whole machinery is clogged. It is so managed in other spheres of society, and why not with us? We do not suppose the line of thought we are now pursuing will be universally popular, and we derive consolation from the fact that it does not everywhere apply. We know some of the most zealous, assiduous, and indefatigable men who shed lustre on the office of Prov. Grand Master; who are beloved by all their following, and who by their quiet and genial example infuse such a spirit of fraternal enjoyment into all the meetings they attend, that it is a real pleasure to mingle with those who "in jolliest friendship meet." It requires no extraordinary amount of personal application or intelligence to control the affairs of a Prov. Grand Lodge. There are always plenty of Past Masters and others well versed in the duties to be performed, ready to afford every counsel and assistance; and with the ordinary foresight and acumen of an educated English gentleman, the duties and the honours ought to sit lightly together. Only in a few exceptional cases do we hear of a contumacious disregard of functions which should never have been undertaken, and where the disparagement of Freemasonry is the inevitable result. It is to be hoped that in future appointments a judicious care might be exercised in the selection of men who will work with a will in the important offices they undertake, not merely usurp a position for the sake of the glory it reflects upon them, and who merely unfold their wings occasionally to display the glitter of the jewels with which they are undeservingly ornamented. Every one rejoices, not only in the Province of Essex, but throughout the realm, at the selection of Lord Tenterden as the successor to the Prov. Grand Master's chair in that county, for if his zeal in the past be any criterion of his love for Masonry, then we anticipate that his reign will introduce a new era of prosperity and advancement such as Essex has never before experienced. It is true that some men are born to greatness, others achieve it, whilst some have honours thrust upon them. But we believe honestly that Lord Tenterden's acceptation of the office of Grand Master for the Province of Essex is merited, not merely by the position which the noble lord holds, but for his affection for the Craft and his zeal in the furtherance of its welfare. We would that in every case men so qualified to perpetuate the traditions of the Craft, and so eminently qualified to adorn the profession, were chosen: if it were so, there would be no need for the expression of that regret which has been but superficially alluded to in the lines which we now address to our numerous readers.

"IL TEGAME," OR A MASON'S HOLIDAY.

IT is a trial to take a last look of dear old Paris. Let any one before doing so mount at noon, say an omnibus, and as he descends or ascends the Boulevards, regard carefully around him. He will there nearly always see a lofty firmament, a clear sky, and feel a capability of freely breathing, which he may often try in vain to find in London. Should one who values these happy endowments analyse his feelings he will not fail to exclaim—

"Can I leave thee, Paradise?"

It is the exception, however, which proves a rule; for almost universally as Paris receives the homage of praise and flattery, she has been by no means destitute of severe and caustic censors. Two of the latest being men widely differing from each other—viz., Father Hyacinthe and Louis Veuillot.

Those who think of the Rev. Mr. Loyson, the late meek Swiss pastor, now married to a quiet, lady-like wife, can have but an imperfect idea of his former self, when, as Père Hyacinthe, in friar's grey gown, he denounced with glowing and fiery eloquence the sensuous sins of the Empire in the cathedral of Notre Dame. It was after one of these crusading conferences against the profanation of the fine arts to unchaste statuary that the ink bottle was thrown at the celebrated sculpture of the then new opera house and, to erase which stain, the most celebrated chemists of Europe were consulted.

I had the satisfaction to hear some of these conferences. On one occasion when the Archbishop of Paris occupied in state his cathedral throne, the good Father, bending lowly forward, demanded the apostolic benediction. It was a touching sight, and one I shall never forget, as the now sainted D'Arboy with a look of angelic sweetness, stretching forth his pastoral staff, accorded the sought-for boon.

Such things may be trivial, yet for myself I have always thought the blessing of a good man not to be despised.

How sad has been the fate of the distinguished individuals here allnded to. Where is the now sainted Bishop? where the Father Hyacinthe? where the Empire whose imputed failings these men combined to condemn? victims, alas, are they of misfortune or of sorrow: and of the nil miserantis Orci. What fiction can be more strange than truth?

The other censor, Louis Veuillot, who is editor of the Univers, exceeds all past or existing clerical editors in violence of invective, and copious use of those phrases which among gentlemen and scholars are never applied save to the vilest of the vile.

He wrote first a book entitled the Perfumes of Rome, in which all within the eternal city was painted with those hues which we attribute to the Rose of Sharon and the Lily of the Valley. Soon afterwards he published the Odeurs of Paris. It probably contained some truths, certainly much coarse abuse. One charge, however, was that Paris had become a clean city in contradistinction to ancient Rome, which even at the zenith of its power indulged in the luxury of dirt, for in spite of the cloacus maximus each villa was more or less surrounded by a fermenting cesspool. His theory being that cleanliness, though reckoned next to godliness, tended to the decay of national strength. A new theory of the Odeurs of Sanctity.

The October morning rose brightly on which I left Paris, but a change came on as noon approached, and there was no cessation of rain, sleet, snow or hail, until the train reached the tunnel of Mount Cenis. As we left the plains and turned eastward at Grenoble, for Savoy and the Alps, the snow was seen to cover more and more persistently the nearer hills, and as we advanced, the higher and more distant soon showed their premature winter garb, of which only the month of May could divest them.

Oh, those rugged cloud-capped Alps, where is their beauty now? The poor people in the markets and autumnal fairs seemed miserable, poor little calves looking up so piteously in their faces as if asking to go home again, even pigs, tied by the heel, led their drivers straightly forth; one thought seemed to animate all, and that was homeward, for dreary and desolate was Nature's aspect. No sunny slopes now, no vine-clad coteaux in all these dreary regions. I had formerly been here, even in December, when all was still bright and gay; it was in such a season as this and in the same month, that Hannibal, the great and immortal Carthagenian general, traversed these self-same hills, rendered worse in his case, however, by the half melted snow of the preceding winter forming universal glaciers. On planting the foot of man or beast on the newly descended flakes, no foothold could be had, and elephants, horses, and men tumbled headlong down the vast abysses.

With varied feelings one passes these eternal Alpine barriers. How do they recall to mind incidents fraught with consequences which still influence our destinies, each step being sacred to historical recollection.

Hannibal was the first general known to history who crossed them, and Livy tells us of the fear which even their sight caused to his army, already accustomed to the Pyrenees. "Hills piled on hills, the distant mountains covered with eternal snow, which confused their summits with the clouds, whilst their shades frowned horror. Assemblages of miserable huts, hanging as it were like limpets upon the rocks, cattle, and horses benumbed with the cold, all things stiffened with hoar frost and ice, whilst the peaks bristled with men clad in skins of animals, who rolled stones, ready to fall on and destroy the passers by.

For fifteen long days and nights did this war with man and nature continue; elephants, horses and men hurled down precipices, or dying miserably from hunger, cold, and wounds; such is hill warfare, and should recall to mind the trials of our armies lately fighting gloriously in Afghanistan.

Of the 80,000 men with whom Hannibal crossed the Ebro from Spain scarcely 26,000 arrived on the plains of Lombardy, and in what condition we may judge from the address of the Roman general to his soldiers. "Figure to yourselves," said he, "these phantoms and shadows; their bodies worn with hunger, cold and filth, wounded and bruised by the rocks, their joints diseased, their nerves stiffened by the cold, their weapons useless, their horses lame and unfit for use. It is not an army, it is a mob of broken men."

In this condition after passing the Alps did Hannibal present himself before a Roman general and a Roman army, fresh and unbroken. It was on the borders of the Ticinio, near the River Po, and in a few days more did that Roman army repass the Po in headlong flight. For fifteen years did this man, by lake and river, by mountain and valley, on the plain and by the defile chain victory to his chariot wheels, whilst the frightened eagles of Rome fled, oft trembling and bloody, back to their Tarpeian eyrie.

Had Hannibal been duly succoured from home, the Roman Empire had succumbed, but divided councils ruined all. Carthage, a trading city, made war as though she loved it not; greedy only of gain, she sank in ruin, leaving only wherewith to point a moral or drop a tear, over genius foiled and a world lost.

As I walked along the banks of the Ticino, the scene of his first battle, Lamartine's verses on Thrasymene came forcibly to my mind:—

"Salut, trois fois, Salut, beau lac de Trasimène,
Toi qui vit d'Annibal, les triomphaus drapeaux,
Reflechir leur coleurs sur les crystaux de tes eaux,
Et l'aigle consulaire la proie à l'epouvanté,
Vers son roc Tarpeian s'enfuir tout sanglanté."

Hannibal may be said to have commenced the second Punic war by besieging Saguntum, a city of Spain near the mouth of the Ebro, and a Roman ally. The Romans however had already virtually done so, by hemming in the Punic possessions in such a manner that her existence was gradually becoming impossible. Hannibal's genius told him that Italy was the place to strike a fatal blow, and history tells us how nearly Rome then approached her fall. Thus a Fabian policy and Russian snows have equally accomplished a like end.

After Hannibal's time the passage of the Alps became easy, the inhabitants readily making terms for affording assistance to passing expeditions, since Asdrubal, bringing aid to his brother, soon after passed them with comparative ease. Less fortunate however than his kinsman, he was destroyed with his army on descending into the plain, a fatal blow to Hannibal and the hopes of Carthage.

Cæsar's transit is the next important recorded one (on his being appointed commander of Gaul), in his expedition against the Helvetii, a nation of Switzerland. The war arose in this manner.

The Helvetii, finding the limits of their Switzer home and holdings too narrow, resolved to emigrate into Gaul, with their families, to the number of 360,000. Having destroyed their houses, and burnt all food and stores which could not be carried away (much as did our Caffrés some years since), they set out. There were three passages by which they might pass into Gaul—one by the bridge at Geneva, easy, short, and convenient; secondly, a pass lower down the Rhone, now called the Pas de l'Enclus; and thirdly, a long and difficult détour by the Jura mountain.

The Allobrogi of Geneva, in great alarm, appealed unto Cæsar to protect them. He suddenly left Rome, and rapidly crossing the Alps gained a fortnight's time by pretended negociations, during which he broke down the bridge, and built a dyke fifteen miles long, thus effectually blocking the first and second roads. Having done so, he declared for war. They knew the art of war against half civilized tribes in those days as well as now, this incident also proves the oft-stated fact that the Romans gained more by the spade than the sword. The wondrous remains of their ordinary encampments attest the same thing to the present day. Nothing remained now for the unfortunate Helvetii but the long and terrible Jura tract.

One best understands the Alps by studying, on the spot, their peculiarly whirled and curved extensions, and I well recollect how clear seemed to me the plan of Cæsar's campaign as I looked on the scene of his exploits. Standing on the heights above the Lake of Geneva one day, with my little boy who had recently read his Cæsar, "Ah, Papa," said he, "I see it all now, there is Mount Jura in front which the Helvetii wanted to cross, below is the bridge which Cæsar broke down, to the left is the stretch where Cæsar built his dyke, and behind is the place where Cæsar "conscripsit legiones." In vain did the Helvetii hurry on, Cæsar soon overtook and nearly destroyed them in the defiles. This is one of the earliest examples of that national emigration of barbarians which subsequently overrun and finally destroyed the Roman world after fifteen centuries of carnage. Let us stretch our eyes farther along the blue waters of Lake Leman, and, at least in imagination, we shall see the prison of the Prisoner of Chillon with the dismal oubliettes of its tyrant lord.

Further still is the islet sacred to his memory, which, "fancy free," he loved to contemplate—

"One little isle, I saw no more,
Scarce larger than my dungeon floor,
But on it there were three small trees,
And o'er it blew the mountain breeze."

Nearer also is the spot where Gibbon wrote, and Coligny where Byron sang. We thus see that this range of mountains, stretching in windings and whorls for nearly one hundred miles between the Lake of Geneva and the Gulf of Genoa, has not been without influence on the world's history and progress.

Geneva itself is a place of great interest when we reflect on its history. Originally seized upon by a wandering Celtic tribe, possibly identical with the Lake dwellers, that little isle on which now is erected a statue of J. J. Rousseau served as their fortress and citadel. Those interested may trace its existence through Gaulish and Roman periods to the time of Charlemagne, and thence to the epoch of Calvin. In doing so they will not fail to be struck with the marvellous manner in which it preserved its political and even ecclesiastical independence, and with what wisdom and tenacity its people guarded their privileges. Indeed some may rise from the study with a feeling that for good or for evil it was destined to some providential purpose in the world.

For my own part I shall never regret the time which, when suffering from injured feet, I gave to its study in Calvin's own library, surrounded with the recollections of that marvellous man. I am not a Calvinist, but can recognize genius and believe in truth and providence,—in this case shall I add predestination.

The mountainous space between Geneva and Genoa may be roughly considered as divided into four nearly equal parts, viz., the Penine, the Graian, the Cottian, and the Maritime Alps. The latter range running down to the sea divides into two spurs, between which is situate the martyr city "Nice."

Cæsar most probably passed by the most northernly passage, viz., the Little St. Barnard, Napoleon I. by the Great St. Bernard (his German contingent by the St. Gothard). Hannibal, as Arnold supposes, by the Mount Cenis route, for although Livy says he passed at the conjunction of the Arve and Rhone, which is near Geneva, his other description does not tally, whilst Polybus is still more obscure. Having myself wandered by the Arve on foot, from its union with the Rhone to its source, stood on the summit of Mount Cenis, and seen the plains of Lombardy spread out like a map before me, my own impression agrees with the description in Hannibal's address to the army from the same spot:—"Before you are the plains of Italy, bathed by the Po; we have already climbed the ramparts of Italy and Rome, the rest is easy."

As we have already remarked, the Maritime Alps may be said to approach the Mediterranean by two spurs, between which is the martyr town of Nice. Had Napoleon III. exacted for his services to Italy the western spur as a boundary, leaving Nice to the Italians, few could have blamed him, and but for Lord Russell's egotism, which scorned a transaction, it might have been preserved to them. It is a sore and sorry memory for the Italians, for as the bird yields itself to its captor, so did the Italians yield Nice, and the possession of that large and important town would have saved Italy from much of its financial embarrassment. As it is, the French fleet, stationed in the Bay, is in full possession of the Gulf of Genoa, and rides and rules at its will. I say it with friendly feelings for both nations, but how, after this cruel annexation, the French can complain of Alsace I cannot tell. The Plebiscite vote was a farce.

I was there not very long after, and talked with the people. "Yes, Signora, but you are a Française now," so I must say Madam, to which her blushes gave consent. One and another made excuses, or protested. An old gentleman gave the best reply, "Ah, Monsieur, tout était arrangée, et el fallait dire, oui, par volonté ou par force." "Ah, sir, all was arranged, and we were obliged to yield by good will or by force." We might dwell long on this Alpine range of mountains did time permit, but it fills us with surprise that in modern times an idea of their impracticability should have returned. Thus Napoleon I. was allowed to accumulate, provide, and hide an entire army, and until his uniforms were discovered, descend unknown on the flanks of the Austrian forces without exciting even a suspicion—the avant herald of his own success. Thiers tells us how, whilst planning the campaign, he was heard to say, "Ce pauvre Mons. Mélas (the Austrian general)—I shall cross the Alps and take him—there." Precisely as he indicated he fell on the flank of the Austrian line, fought the battle of Marengo, and in six weeks cleared Italy of the Austrians, and had possession of the Quadrilateral.

Such are some of the thoughts which arise in passing the battle field of Marengo, when the arrival of Massena restored a half lost battle, as did Blucher at Waterloo.

Such are, also, some of the deeds of great generals; but, alas, how wide is the gulf by which genius is often separated from wisdom! Hannibal in the art of war had no equal, yet he failed duly to estimate the Roman character. Napoleon, the grandest military genius of modern times, has been styled by his own chief worshipper, "a fool in politics," and he failed to realise the temper of Europe until he had defied it once too often.

In travelling in Italy one feels what opportunities these countries afford for the display of military genius. Valour is not the only requisite in an army; hills and rocks, nice calculations of time, of effect produced, of influences, may all in turn be pressed into the service, whilst leaving as little as possible to chance. The power to judge accurately of these things is the grand necessity, and when this power is possessed in a high degree, the leader can work out his plans with almost mathematical certainty. So thoroughly did Napoleon possess this power that he had never been known to countermand a regiment when once he had ordered its destination. He rigidly waited for an enemy to move, and divined their object, and then, how simple, how slight, seemed the means by which he attained his object?

The merest corporal can arrange a company, a regiment, perhaps an army; a tyro can paint a portraiture, or mould a statue, but it is the hand of genius alone, guided by knowledge, labour, and forethought, that can animate the statue, give sentiment to the picture, or snatch, under desperate conditions, the impending victory. On the other hand, history abundantly proves that what are called the mischances of war consist often only of that culpable negligence or rashness which permits an enemy to surprise and destroy its prey.

WITH MASONS AT DINSDALE.

By a Master Mason.

TUESDAY, 24th ult., the Nativity of St. John the Baptist, the Freemasons of Restoration Lodge, Darlington, at the suggestion of Bro. Babington Boulton, held High Festival in the beautiful little Church of St. John, Dinsdale, kindly placed at their disposal by the Rev. J. W. Smith, the rector. About two o'clock the brethren mustered in strong force in front of Bro. Bailey's house, and the public not in the secret speculated rather widely upon the phenomenon. The appearance of so many gentleman in sober black suggested a funeral, or perhaps it was "a crowner's inquest, called in to sit upon a body." The festive character of the gathering, however, was speedily revealed as the brethren mounted Mrs. Wetherell's drags and turned their heads in the direction of that fashionable resort, Middleton-one-Row. The drive along the roads was most delightful. The heavy rain had ceased, and the sun shone brilliantly through the patches of fleecy clouds as they scudded across the sky. Vegetation on all sides was fresh and luxuriant, and the deep rich green of the foliage was ever and anon relieved by gleaming masses of laburnum. Alighting by the Tees, the Craft passed the pretty church where formerly an ascetic rector lived on his platter of peas, as he preached the gospel to the natives and wrought miracles for their conversion. An enjoyable walk through the woods brought the pious Masons to within sight of Dinsdale Church. How beautifully its red tower nestled amongst the trees, and how grandly the toll of the bell went ringing through the landscape which stretched mile after mile till terminated by the sharp sides of the Cleveland Hills, standing boldly out in the clear atmosphere. The villagers stood at the Church gate with their worthy rector, and no less worthy churchwarden, Dr. Eastwood, to receive the approaching visitors. The Doctor advanced and bade them welcome to the little village sanctuary. It was a treat, indeed, to have the privilege of worshipping in a building so comely and well cared for. Whether you walked in the churchyard outside or up the aisles within, you found the trace of loving hands that strove to express by the outward the inward beauty of holiness. The restoration has been carried out in a most conservative spirit; at the same time there has been no slavish clinging to the past. Anything that really disfigured has been removed. Over the doorway, as you enter, you perceive an arch formed one-half of a stone seven hundred years old, and the other of a stone removed from the quarry by the Fishlocks only a year or two ago. So on all through the building. How the doctor delights to tell you, forgetting he has made the same statement fifty times before, that in this junction of the old and the new you have a striking illustration of the continuity of the English Church. There are roguish people who believe that if the building were more compressible, he would sleep with it every night. All honour to men who so love the House of God!

After the Craft had taken their seats the service was said. A clerical brother intoned the prayers, Bro. Tovey took the organ; and three brethren from Durham Choir, Messrs. Nutton, Whitehead, and Walker, with Bros. F. and E. J. Martin, Bailey, Swales, &c., did duty for the choir. Purcell's anthem, "I was glad when they said unto me: we will go into the house of the Lord," was sung after the third collect; and Boyce's "I have surely built Thee an house," before the sermon. These were taken entirely by the Durham contingent. Were there ever such strains ringing through Dinsdale Church before? The fine voices of these Wearside brethren made one think of that heavenly choir whose songs, like the voice of the Son of Man, are "as the sound of many waters." The sermon was preached by Bro. Sheppard, vicar of Ingleton, and was a practical address upon the life of the Baptist. The Rev. J. Smith read the first lesson, and Bro. Harris, curate of Staindrop, the second. The rector closed the service by the benediction from the altar. When the "function" was concluded, Dr. Eastwood took the brethren round the building, and gave a short lecture upon the various features of the structure. In a sentence or two it is quite impossible to do justice to the doctor's essay; but it appears that there are in existence traces sufficiently authentic to show that on the site of the present church there once stood a Saxon place of worship, built probably in about the seventh century. Part, however, of the building now remaining is Norman, erected in the year 1196; whilst the main portion—being no doubt a restoration—was built in 1476. A restoration involving an addition has again taken place, and now the church stands almost as a new building. Various other archæological facts and inferences were adduced by Dr. Eastwood, in all of which the brethren, as became their Craft, took an especial interest. The interesting monuments in the churchyard also received a passing description. There was a strong feeling of regret that the arrangements for the day did not allow the visitors to partake of the hospitality so genially offered by the rector. May he and his kindly churchwarden, like Nebuchadnezzar, "live for ever." A grateful feeling will be cherished for a long time by the brethren for the warm reception they met with from Teesside churchmen.

At five o'clock the Craft remounted the drags outside the churchyard, and made post haste for Croft, where a "cold collation" had been ordered. The country could not be seen to greater advantage, the woods of Dinsdale hugging the mansion on the summit of the cliff; the Church of St. Lawrence; the solitary row of houses winding with the Tees, where the good folks from Sunderland and Newcastle come to bring back the roses to their cheeks; the Cleveland range framing the picture to the south; Neasham and Hurworth before us in the west, with the Yorkshire moors towering up against the sky-line; and the whole varied by the ample and many-coloured foliage. So inspiriting was the scene, that Brother Barron nearly got up an impromptu exhibition of his waxworks, exhibited, as he recently declared, with such success before Cetewayo, that that amiable soul was anxious for him to remain in Zululand for ever! Another brother longed to tell the whole story of the organ over again; but the arrival at the Spa Hotel, and the more prosaic business of satisfying the inner man checked these rising inspirations. The feast was truly meet for a Master Mason, and never since the time of the first Grand Master, in the days of Solomon, was a repast eaten with greater zest. Fine-looking salmon were reduced to skeletons as by magic; veal pie left no vestige but the dish; cold lamb, pigeon pie, tongue, delicious salad, &c., all disappeared as if the fellow-craftsmen had been building Dinsdale Church instead of saying their prayers in it. Pipes and glasses succeeded the removal of the cloth, and ginger ale was in large request. The Worshipful Master being a teetotaller, nothing stronger was permitted, under pain of being sawn asunder by the Tyler. Then came songs and glees from the "Durham Three," choicely selected and exquisitely sung. How the table rattled under the influence of song and ginger! "My Pretty Jane;" "Mynheer Van Dunck;" "Home, Sweet Home;" "The Blue Alsatian Mountains;" Sir Henry Bishop's glees—surely old King Cole never listened to such minstrelsy. Local brethren of the Craft also discoursed sweet music, and Bro. Tovey kept them all in tune. P.M. Boulton varied the proceedings by reading an eloquent paper on the advantages of being a Master Mason. From Solomon he traced the descent of the Masonic body through William the Conqueror to the Prince of Wales. Respectable in pedigree, and moral in life, it stood, like the Church, "founded upon a rock," defying the assult of its innumerable foes. How the tones of the reader's voice deepened and rounded as he described the fulminations of the Vatican thundering in vain against its serried ranks. Your humble correspondent thought, as he listened, that it was the grandest thing in the universe to be a Master Mason. Oh, if that stirring paper should inspire the brethren to rush forth, trowel in hand, and complete unfinished churches, out of pure love; it would have a destiny!

Till 9.30 the feast was kept up. Then the approach of train time "sowed the seeds of dissolution," and the assembly dispersed with good wishes for the next merry meeting. A brighter festival had not been celebrated for many a day, and if the arrangements of the North-Eastern and the strict propriety of the brethren had permitted, it would have been impossible to have resisted the influence of the time-honoured strain, "We won't go home till morning—till daylight does appear."

The whole of the proceedings were admirably presided over and conducted by the W.M. Bro. Hobson, who expressed a hope that, as this celebration was the first after what some brother termed a "hiatus" in the history of the Craft, it might now become an annual gathering, and thus increase the good fellowship existing in the Order.—Darlington and Richmond Herald.

In Memoriam.

THE LATE BROTHER THOMAS COOPER.

THE York Masonic world has lately suffered a most severe loss in the death of Bro. Thomas Cooper, who for a number of years had been one of the chief ornaments of the Craft in the ancient capital of the North of England, and who at the time of his death was unquestionably the most popular Mason in York. For more than a year Bro. Cooper had been in failing health, but the end came somewhat suddenly, and he died on the evening of the 7th instant, aged 66 years. Our late Brother's Masonic career may be briefly sketched here. He was initiated in the Londesborough Lodge 734, at Bridlington, in the East Riding of Yorkshire, in 1858, and immediately afterwards joined the Union Lodge 287, at York (now known as the York Lodge 236). Here he soon made his mark, and was elected W.M. in 1865, and also for some time served the office of Secretary. In 1865 (the year of his Mastership), he was appointed Prov. G. Supt. of Works for North and East Yorkshire. In the years 1867, 1869, and 1872 he filled the chair of First Principal of the Zetland R.A. Chapter at York, and was appointed J. of the Prov. Grand Chapter. In 1868 he was elected W.M. of the York Mark Lodge (Time Immemorial), and also subsequently served that Lodge in the offices of Secretary and Treasurer. He was one of the founders of the Ancient Ebor Preceptory of Knight Templars in 1869, and occupied the Preceptor's chair for the two first years of its existence, and in 1875, and at the time of his death was its Treasurer, and was last year elected an honorary member of the Mary Commandery, Philadelphia, U.S. When the Hilda Rose Croix Chapter was removed from Whitby to York in 1878, he was unanimously elected to the chair of M.W.S. He was one of the founders of the Eboracum Conclave 137, of the Red Cross of Constantine at York, and filled the chair of M.P.S. last year. When the Eboracum Lodge was founded in 1876 he was one of the first originators, and was at once unanimously selected as the right man for the office of First Master, the duties of which he filled from the time of the consecration of the Lodge in August 1876 to November 1877, with the greatest success and ability. His popularity amongst the younger initiated brethren was so great that those admitted by him before the close of 1876 subscribed amongst themselves to endow the Master's chair with a charity vote in his honour, and at the close of his year of office the members of the Lodge privately subscribed to present him with a set of Provincial clothing and jewels. He was always regarded as the father and friend of the Lodge, and on Thursday, the 10th inst., the day of his funeral, a "Lodge of Sorrow" was called at the Eboracum Lodge rooms. The Lodge room was draped in black, the chairs, pedestals and candlesticks being covered with crape, tied with white ribbon, whilst in the centre of the room a lofty catafalque was erected, the curtains enclosing the third degree emblems, on which were placed the deceased brother's clothing, jewels and gloves and a large wreath of white flowers, the catafalque being guarded east and west by four stewards with crossed wands festooned with crape, and surmounted by the three large Lodge lights. At three o'clock, the room being darkened, the brethren assembled and took their places under the direction of Bro. T. B. Whytehead P.M., Prov. G.D.C., who conducted the ceremonies throughout, whilst the Organist played the "Dead March," and the Lodge was then opened by the W.M. Bro. J. S. Cumberland, to the third degree. Having briefly stated the objects of the assembly, the W.M. proceeded with the Service, the brethren giving the responses. Then followed a brief opening address on the shortness of life, and the worth of the deceased; after which the Grand Honours were given five times. The Chaplain having offered up prayer, the brethren formed in procession, the youngest first, preceded by the Tyler with his sword drawn, the open Bible on a crape cushion, being carried before the W.M. by Bro. J. Hanly W.M. of the St. Patrick's Military Lodge (4th Dragoon Guards) and marched slowly three times round the catafalque, singing Luther's Hymn:—

"Great God, what do I see and hear?"

As each brother passed the opening of the curtains he deposited upon the emblems white flowers.

The W.M. then took his place at the east of the catafalque, and the I.P.M. Bro. T. B. Whytehead gave an exhortation to the brethren to copy the virtues of their late brother, and to cherish his memory, at the conclusion of which the members joined hands in a circle, and renewed their pledges of fidelity. The W.M. then gave the invocations, which were responded to by the brethren, and the Chaplain (the Rev. R. P. T. Tennent, Vicar of Acomb) again offered up prayer. A charge followed by the I.P.M., and then the brethren once more formed in procession and marched three times round the catafalque, singing the Masonic Funeral Hymn,—

"Softly, sadly, bear him forth."

The catafalque was then closed by the Stewards, and the Lodge was called off by the W.M. Carriages in waiting conveyed the brethren to their late brother's residence, where they joined in the public cortége, which was very large, comprising nearly forty carriages. At the cemetery the pall was carried by the following Masters and Past Masters, the brethren of the York Lodge 236 having also attended in large numbers to pay their last tribute of respect and affection:—Bros. J. S. Cumberland W.M. 1611, J. Hanly W.M. St. Patrick's, Sir James Meek P.M. 236, Wm. Lawton P.M. 236 and 1611, T. B. Whytehead P.M. 1611 and 236, J. Todd P.M. 236, Ald. March P.M. 236, G. Balmford P.M. 236 and Treasurer 1611. At the conclusion of the Church of England service, the brethen, circling the grave, dropped in the sprig of evergreen. The coffin was quite covered with floral wreaths, amongst them being one of white azalias, sent by the Eboracum Lodge. Returning to the Lodge room, the brethren reclothed, the Lodge was resumed, and the "De Profundis" was sung:—

"Out of the deep I call."

The Stewards once more crossed their wands over the closed catafalque, the brethren stood to order, and the senior member of the Lodge, Bro. T. B. Whytehead, gave the final and Farewell Apostrophe. The Lodge was then closed to the first degree, and a large number of letters (as well as a telegram from the D.P.G.M. Dr. J. P. Bell) were read from members of the Lodge and brethren from all parts of the Province and of England, who were unable to be present, all speaking in the highest terms of Bro. Cooper's geniality and goodness. The W.M. of the St. Patrick's Lodge, and the W.M. and I.P.M. of the Eboracum Lodge also spoke of the kindly reminiscences that would always dwell with the memory of Bro. Cooper, and the Lodge was closed, and so ended the most impressive Masonic ceremony that has probably ever been performed in York, at any rate within the memory of the present Masonic generation. The cemetery was crowded during the funeral, Bro. Cooper having been a prominent citizen, for many years a member of the City Council, and an active promoter of all public associations for the public weal.

Amongst the brethren present, besides those already mentioned, we noticed Bros. Alderman Terry 236 and 1611, J. Kay 1611, T. Humphries 1611, M. Millington 1611, T. D. Smith 1611, G. H. Hebblethwaite 1611, G. H. Simpson 236 and 1611, J. Blenkin 1611, Captain Murphy (St. Patrick's), W. T. Gowland 236, W. Battye 236, Lieut. Richey 199, W. H. Gainferth 236, G. Kirby 236, J. Tissiman 236, G. Garbutt 236, W. H. Sampson 236, Councillor Rymer 236, J. Ayre 236, S. Haley 236, J. Sampson 236, W. P. Husband 1611, O. Marshall 1611, W. M. Briggs 1611, W. W. York 1611, J. E. Wilkinson 1611, C. Blackstone 1611, G. C. Lee 1611, Tom Smith 1611, H. Churchill 1611, H. Jackson 1611, J. R. Jackson 1611, T. E. Abbey 1611, G. Irving 1611, J. Marshall 1611, P. Pearson 1611, M. Cooper 1611, T. Tuke 236, J. Keswick 236 and 1611, M. Rooke 236, J. T. Wilson 236, J. Redfare 236, J. Ward 236, W. Flint 236, and other brethren.

THE LATE SIR THOS. MYDDELTON BIDDULPH.—A Massive Brass Tablet, to the memory of General and Brother the Right Honorable Sir Thos. M. Biddulph, K.C.B., Keeper of Her Majesty's Privy Purse, has just been placed in Holy Trinity Church, Windsor. This well merited tribute has been subscribed for by the Officers of the 1st Life Guards, in which regiment the late General served for 26 years. It is mounted on Black Belgian Marble, and measures 6ft. 10 in. by 3ft. 4in. The design has had the approval of Her Majesty, and the entire work has been entrusted to Messrs. Matthews and Sons, of 377 Oxford Street, London. Thus, appropriately, is the illustrious Officer's memory perpetuated as "a character of unimpeachable honour and sterling friendship never to be forgotten in the regiment which he loved, and which warmly responded to his affection."

VIEWS ON CHARITY VOTING.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I have read Bro. Binckes's letter, with regret, but not with surprise. As the "self-constituted champion" of the abuses of our Charity election system, he yet adroitly manages to write a letter which never touches one of these abuses. In fact, his epistle is merely itself a string of polite abuse from beginning to end. I assure my brother that his airy sarcasms and personal irony have no effect on me, unless it be to confirm me in my unalterable opinion that the "abuses" I speak of cannot be defended, and that when any one finds himself short of argument for this purpose he must adopt the well known maxim, "No case,—abuse the plaintiff's attorney."

That the reform which I humbly advocate may be "unpopular" with a certain section of Masons I do not deny, but even if it were so with a majority, I should still persevere in speaking my mind, and in opening my mouth boldly to advocate what I believe to be the truth, and I presume that my profession, my age, my experience, and, I will add, my Masonic standing of nearly thirty years, give me as much right to constitute myself a champion of any truth, especially in connection with Charity, as Bro. Binckes's antecedents, though he be the paid officer of a Charity.

Even Secretaries hold no patent of Charity, and have no right to claim a monopoly of charitable zeal or administration.

On the subject of "good taste," on which Bro. Binckes thinks it becoming to lecture me, I say nothing, save this, that I think it would be more in accordance with the canons of "good taste," good judgment, and good custom, if some Secretaries abstained from dispensing patronage in the shape of hundreds of votes within the Charity to which they are paid officers, and by way of exchange with other Charities!

In conclusion, Dear Sir and Brother, let me say I do not desire that the election of candidates should fall into "the hands" of any "clique," but that it should be taken out of the hands of one or more cliques of wire pullers, whose seat of government is London, whose machinery consists of canvass v. exchange, and whose field-day is the day of polling, and from such "vanes" and travesties of charity I too pray to be "preserved."

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Fraternally yours,

R. J. SIMPSON.

THE MASONIC CHARITIES.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In an analysis of the subscription list of the Boys' School Festival you refer to the "stinginess and apathy of the North and East Ridings, who are, as usual, merely the spectators of the good deeds of their brethren in the West," and I cannot but think you are somewhat too severe in your remarks. I do not intend to urge that this Province has done as much as it might for the Masonic Charities, and that this feeling is shared by the Province generally is proved by the fact that more than one of its Lodges is at this moment considering the expediency of raising the amount of its annual subscription, and appropriating the increase to a Charity Fund, as also that a Provincial Charity Organisation has this year been formed, with Bro. J. P. Bell D.P.G.M. at its head, but I am strongly of opinion that a great deal more has been done by the individual Lodges in the Province for the three Charities than the Province has had credit for. Unless a Lodge sends up a Charity Steward to a Festival, its name does not appear on the list, notwithstanding that it may have sent up monies that year, and I could instance the York Lodge, No. 236, as a case in point, as was stated by its Treasurer, Bro. Todd P.M., in your columns not long since. Moreover, it must not be lost sight of that great difference exists between the wealth of the North and East and West Provinces of Yorkshire. The West Riding is fortunate in numbering amongst its brethren many Masons to whom a cheque for a hundred guineas means a mere trifle unworthy of mention, whereas in the North and East the brethren are almost all men of very limited means, very few of whom could undertake a Stewardship in addition to a subscription. I do not think, therefore, that it is quite fair to pit the one against the other, and just at this time, when the Provincial Grand Master the Earl of Zetland has consented to preside at the next Benevolent Festival, when the Deputy Prov. Grand Master has announced his intention to act as Provincial Steward, when a Charity Association is in course of formation, and when the pressure of the times is severely felt in an agricultural district such as this, no less by landlord than by tenant, I do not think that severe scoldings are calculated to encourage the brethren in making an effort for next year.

I am, yours fraternally,

T. B. WHYTEHEAD P.M. 1611, P.G.D.C.

QUARTERLY COURT OF GIRLS' SCHOOL.

THE July Quarterly Court of Subscribers and Governors of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls was held last Saturday, at Freemasons' Hall, when there were present Bros. Col. Creaton (in the chair), the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, J. G. Stevens, Thomas Meggy, E. Letchworth, James Terry, J. J. Berry and F. R. W. Hedges Secretary. On the motion of the chairman, seconded by Bro. J. G. Stevens, seven additional candidates were ordered to be taken on for election in October, thus increasing the number of elected candidates to 20. Bro. Meggy's motion for a Committee to enquire into the mode of scrutinising the votes at elections was postponed till next meeting. The Court then adjourned.

QUARTERLY MEETING OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

THE July Quarterly meeting of the Subscribers and Governors of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys was held on Monday, at Freemasons' Hall. There were present Bros. Col. Creaton (in the chair), the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, W. H. Perryman, Thomas Meggy, A. E. Gladwell, Richard Tyrrell, S. Rawson, E. C. Massey and F. Binckes Secretary. The Court confirmed the settlement of the list of candidates for the October election, consisting of 77 candidates and 16 vacancies. Bro. Rawson brought forward a case from Hong Kong, in the presentation of which there had been an irregularity through misapprehension, and endeavoured to get it placed on the list. The chairman overruled Bro. Rawson's motion, on the ground that no notice of it had been given. Bro. Meggy postponed his motion "That a Committee be appointed to consider the manner in which the scrutiny of the votes shall be made both for the election of candidates and for other purposes." The Court then adjourned.

Messrs. Groombridge and Sons have lately started the issue of a serial which will be welcomed by every lover of the beauties of nature. Under the title of "Greenhouse Favourites," it is proposed to place in the hands of the public a good Practical Treatise in an attractive form on the management of Greenhouse plants. We have before us Parts I. and II of this work, which for beauty of execution and general appearance promise a most enjoyable volume. Each part has two full page engravings, finely coloured, and the letter press is freely interspersed with wood cuts. The Editor of "The Floral World" is entrusted with the editing of this, the latest of Messrs. Groombridge's works, and he may be relied on for the publication of some useful and practical hints. The work is issued in 1s parts.

THE LATE PRINCESS ALICE.—The cast for the monument to the Princess Alice—commissioned by the Queen of Mr. Bochm for the mausoleum at Frogmore—promises well. The Princess lies as in sleep, her head thrown back on a high pillow, supported on either side by little angels, the lower part of the figure being draped and swathed by the heavy folds of a mantle bordered with ermine. With her left arm the Princess embraces her child, who is placed at her side resting her head on her mother's breast, and extending her left hand to meet the caress of her mother's right. This group, which is to be executed in marble, will be supported on a base enriched by a band of delicate Renaissance arabesque crowning the pedestal, which is divided by fluted pilasters into three compartments. The general effect of this part of the work will be much varied by the employment of coloured marbles.—Academy.

THE EARL OF CARNARVON LODGE, No. 1642.

THE members met for the transaction of the business of their Lodge on Thursday, the 10th inst., at the Ladbroke Hall, Notting Hill. The W.M. Bro. Samuel Parkhouse presided, and he was supported by Bros. E. M. Lander and Samuel Smout his Wardens, W. J. Murlis P.M. Secretary, George Penn P.M. Treasurer, and a large attendance of members and visitors. Lodge was formally opened, and the minutes were read and confirmed. A heavy agenda was presented, and the W.M. lost no time in advancing his Lodge to the third degree. The first ceremonial business was the raising of Bros. Robson, Cowland, and Rusdale. There was a fourth candidate for the third—Bro. Smith—but he was not able to attend on this occasion. So soon as these brethren had taken their seats, the candidates for passing were introduced for examination. Four brethren were ready to sustain their claim for preferment to the second degree, Bros. Burgess, Foskett, Huish and Taylor, and the W.M. worked the degree much to their satisfaction. The ballot was now brought into requisition for Mr. John French, proposed by Bro. S. H. Parkhouse W.M., seconded by Bro. W. H. Buckland; for Mr. Edward Frederick Tanner, proposed by Bro. W. J. Murlis P.M. Sec., seconded by Bro. G. Penn P.M. Treasurer; and for Mr. William Hill Wadham, proposed by Bro. S. H. Parkhouse W.M., seconded by Bro. S. Smout J.W., as candidates for initiation; while the following desired to enter the Lodge as joining members:—Bro. William Richard Hatton (Lodge 358), proposed by Bro. G. Penn P.M. Treas., seconded by Bro. S. H. Parkhouse W.M.; and Bro. Joseph D. Adkins (J.W. of Lodge 990) 733, 1637, proposed by Bro. J. Bartle D.C., seconded by Bro. E. M. Lander S.W. The result in each case was satisfactory, and the two brethren were welcomed as members of the Lodge, while the four gentlemen were introduced and initiated, the W.M. performing his work in this degree, as in the two others, most impressively. The notice of motion to raise the fees for initiation and joining, which stood in the name of the Junior Warden, was then brought on, and, after consideration, received the sanction of the Lodge, which shortly afterwards was closed. The I.P.M. Bro. George Penn had invited the brethren to a Summer Banquet, at his residence, Castlebar, Ealing, and had made arrangements that saloon carriages should be provided for their conveyance. Accordingly, Bro. Murlis, who for the nonce acted as "whip," collected his forces, and the journey was most pleasantly made. On reaching Bro. Penn's residence, we found a large accession made to the party, and every arrangement provided for the entertainment. A substantial marquee had been erected, and tables were spread with an abundance of delicacies that presented a most tempting appearance after the somewhat heavy work of the day. Bro. Parkhouse presided, and he was supported on his left by Bro. Penn, while Bros. Lander and Smout respectively filled the chairs west and south. Amongst the Visitors we recognised Bros. E. G. Man D.G.S.W. Rampore, Burmah, H. L. Gill P.M. 196, H. Manchester 120, W. Grist S.D. 1489, S. Dyer 780, E. Hopwood P.M. 916, E. Arrowsmith J.D. 733, Rajah Rampal Singh (Prince of Rampore), G. H. Stayton P.M. 795, Isaacs P.M. St. John's, J. Deacon 1382, G. N. Watts P.M. 191, G. C. Harding S.D. Gooch 1238, W. Weaver I.G. Gooch 1238, Wm. Boutcher P.M. 558, T. Jones 72, J. Rutter 1585, Goodenham 177, T. Fisher 783, Morgan Sec. 211, H. Tucker Treas. 1612, H. Stephens 78, E. J. Acworth 1612, R. W. Atlee 780, G. H. Parsons 780, T. Brown P.M. 780, A. Beasley P.M. 1612, &c. The post-prandial proceedings were of an exceptionally interesting character. Bro. Parkhouse, in offering his remarks, comes well to the point, and commands the attention of his audience. In speaking of the Pro Grand Master, with whom this Lodge was so closely allied in name, he could but refer with satisfaction to the brilliant gathering Lord Carnarvon had taken part in at Chelmsford,—the installation of Lord Tenterden as Prov. G. Master of Essex. It was a matter for congratulation when we find a nobleman with the enormous demands on his time which Lord Carnarvon undoubtedly has devoting almost an entire day to the duties of Freemasonry. Bro. Penn in proposing the health of the W.M., descanted on the many qualities of Bro. Parkhouse; these all fully recognised, and no better evidence could be offered than that presented by the success that was attending the Lodge. After a graceful reply from Bro. Parkhouse, the Initiates were honoured, and those brethren acknowledged the compliment. For the toast of the Visitors, able replies were made by several of those present. Prince Rajah Rampal Sing made a most effective and telling speech. Our foreign brother commenced his remarks by expressing a hope that his limited knowledge of the English language would not be a bar to his making himself intelligible to his English auditors. This was but the second occasion he had had an opportunity of addressing his Masonic brethren, but he could assure them he felt it a great happiness his being permitted to join the Order. He spoke eloquently of the evil effects of a too hard and fast laying down of the principles of caste, which were, he thought, somewhat too rigidly enforced by men of his own race. He justly appreciated the spirit of freedom and equality engendered by the practice of Freemasonry. He felt, so soon as he entered the precincts of an English Lodge, that he was perfectly at home. The present Lodge meeting was but the second he had attended, but he assured the brethren he had an ardent desire to visit more. A well known Persian proverb says, you may take a handful of corn to test the bulk; this he felt he had done, and he now desired to make better acquaintance with the parcel. Our distinguished visitor closed his discourse by thanking the brethren for the attention they had paid to his somewhat incomplete remarks. Bros. Beasley, Isaacs, Brown, and others briefly addressed the brethren, and the health of the Past Masters was next offered for acceptance. Special mention, of course, was made to the generous hospitality of the I.P.M., Bro. George Penn, who in acknowledgment expressed the great pleasure it gave him to see so many esteemed guests. He trusted that in future years he might experience a repetition of the pleasure he felt at seeing so many kind friends at Castlebar. The charitable proclivities of the members of the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge were referred to during the evening by several of those present, and splendid headway was made with the list of Bro. Parkhouse, who will represent the Lodge at the Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution which will take place in February next. The Lodge has voted fifty guineas, and, in addition, promises to the extent of eighty guineas were made at this meeting. Several other toasts were given, and during the evening some capital songs were sung, and musical selections played. Bro. P. M. Holden contributed two very effective recitations. At a late hour the brethren returned to town in the saloon carriages provided expressly for them.

On Saturday, Bro. Penn extended his hospitality to the sons and daughters of those he had entertained the previous Thursday, and numerous were the young folks who accepted his kind invite. A very pleasant afternoon and evening was spent, but the continued downpour of rain cast a damper on the proceedings which it required the most strenuous efforts of the host and his coadjutors to dispel. Dinner was provided in the marquee, the tables being there very artistically set out, and presenting a most inviting appearance. The heartiness of the reception could but ensure a thorough enjoyment of the repast. After a brief interval, which, but for the "beauties" of our present summer would have afforded an opportunity for a ramble round the grounds of our worthy brother, the guests again assembled in the marquee, where dancing and singing were continued without interruption until the time for dedarture brought the proceedings to a close. Bro. Murlis throughout this part of the day's festivities acted efficiently as Master of Ceremonies, a not very light task we are convinced when indoor amusements have to be provided for a large party who, hoping against hope, had prepared for outdoor festivities. The whole of the guests seemed to thoroughly enjoy themselves, and it certainly was not the fault of Bro. or Mrs. Penn, or any members of their family, if they did not. We had an apportunity of inspecting, with Bro. Murlis, a very curious flagon; we were unable to obtain an exact idea of its antiquity, but doubt not the vessel in question is of great age. The style is unique, and in most respects novel. We feel assured this relic must be treasured by the family in which, doubtless, it has passed from father to son as an heirloom for unknown ages, and we hope on some future occasion to have further opportunity of enjoying with our entertainers a draught from its enticing neck.

HELP TO BEAR THY BROTHER'S BURDEN.

—:o:—

"And now remaineth these three—Faith, Hope, and Charity, but the greatest of these is Charity."

"HELP to bear thy Brother's burden," and Christ's behests fulfil,
He sent not man to live alone—alone, the ground to till,
Nor yet alone to gather in, the fruit His Mercy gives,
'Tis "Union" alone that's blest—through "Unity" man lives.

"Help to bear thy Brother's burden," and lighten thus thine own.
A fault confessed is half atoned,—the burden lighter grown,
And why? Because the heart's wild quest, of sympathetic aid,
Has met with that for which it sought,—on others strength is stayed.

"Help to bear thy Brother's burden," he's weary, sad and lone,
The world has clogged his path with thorns, for "bread" has given a "stone,"—
His heart is faint with hope deferred, his garments soiled and rent, He's lost if none will give him aid—his strength is well nigh spent.

"Help to bear thy Brother's burden," his joys have fled away,
Foll death has robbed his happy home, 'tis night with him, not day;
Be with him in his sore distress,—the words of comfort pour,
Point up to that bleat Land above, where's Life for evermore.

"Help to bear thy Brother's burden," he's wounded in the strife,—
His home is stripped of earthly goods—the savings of a life,
Of anxious worldly struggles, borne, his family to keep From killing care—have closed in nought;—and canst thou see him weep?

"Help to bear thy Brother's burden," his feet have gone astray,— He's wandered from the Shepherd's fold—he's groping far away,
Do thou thy Master's work, and seek, to bring him back again,
Where suffering is, thy Master's there, and thou shouldst be the same.

"Help to bear thy Brother's burden," to him a "neighbour" be,
Thou'lt live, in loving, past all time,—e'en to Eternity.
In doing thus a neighbour's part—God helps both him and thee,
His Blessing on thee's twice conferred,—from sin He sets thee free.

"Help to bear thy Brother's burden." Our Lord bore all for thee,
E'en shelterless became that thou, in His own Home might be.
Forget not then thy Brethren's need,—God's children here who roam—
Turn not from these, lest God should thee, turn from His heavenly Home.

And, after touching many other wound up thus:—

of emblems, it may be added that a heart was ted type of Egypt, and evidently found its way the Disciplina Archana, or secret discipline of tian sects, together with others whose signi- in their original allusions without alteration ime, and still continue as well recognised sym- ls."

Druids, &c., had mysteries, and kept secrets, that those very secrets and mysteries came down to the mediæval Masons; nor do I believe that the Masons were more subject to ecclesiastical discipline in the middle ages, or that they were more religious, or more learned, than the Craftsmen of other guilds were in those days. And with regard to Moses having whispered a mystic word into Pharoah's ear, thus implying, that Moses and Pharoah were brother Masons, I ask, in the name of commonsense, who but a downright credulous fool can believe it? I am astonished that Bro. Fort should profess to believe in the third degree legend, when even Dr. Oliver discarded it as a fiction introduced for the first time into the Masonic ceremony by Anderson, Desaguliers, and their compeers. And I am sure that if Bro. Fort had read Bro. David Murray Lyon's History of the Edinburgh Lodge, especially the 12th chapter, he would never have introduced the Moses cock and bull story into his article.

Bro. Fort lays great stress upon certain emblems used in olden times by religious or philosophical societies. It is generally believed that emblems are older than letters. Indeed, it is said that letters were an outgrowth of emblems, emblems having been used extensively when the masses could not read, and they are still used by our tradespeople. In Larwood and Hotton's "History of Signboards" may be seen the picture of a cow, copied from a signboard of a dairy at Pompeii; and the figure of an angel holding up a shoe, copied from a signboard of a shoemaker's shop at Herculaneum. The London Masons' guild has, on its coat-of-arms, a hand holding up a trowel. The mediæval Freemasons may, in a like manner, have displayed, when marching in public processions, some tool or instrument used in their workshops. But we have no more knowledge that the mediæval Masons were speculative Masons than we have of the Pompeii dairyman, or of the Herculaneum shoemaker having been either a speculative dairyman or a speculative shoemaker. The mere fact then of societies or individuals in olden times having displayed emblems does not necessarily prove that there was any mystic significance attached to those emblems. As an instance, the London Masons' guild, I venture to state, have no lecture, and make no talk about the hand holding up a trowel on their shield. Besides which, I have carefully perused all the printed pre 1717 MSS., including the German Constitution of 1463, printed in Bro. Fort's "History of Freemasonry," and I could nowhere find any indication of speculative Masonry, nor did Bro. D. M. Lyon find mention of speculative Masonry in the old Masons' records in Scotland.

Masons' marks in old buildings Bro. Fort calls emblems. The five pointed star of Pythagoras, he says, was extensively used as a Mason's mark. But first, there is no five pointed star among the 152 Masons' marks in Bro. Lyon's history. Second, there is no evidence that the said star was adopted as a Masonic emblem even as late as 1724. But suppose some Masons did mark stones with a five pointed star, how do we know that they attached more importance to the said mark than they did to other marks? Stone-cutters even to-day mark the stones they operate on, but they attach no mysticisms to those marks, and how do we know that the mediæval masons did attach mystic notions to their marks? Fifty years ago the fur-sewers in London had to put a mark on each article, and some of our luminaries would doubtless rack their brains if they knew that the girls who sew furs in America, one show or other, make very similar marks to what the London girls did fifty years ago; but, nevertheless, neither the London nor the American fur-sewers ever dreamed of symbolising. The Masons' marks therefore furnish no evidence of either symbols or symbolisms.

Bro. Fort imagines that the mystic ladder was handed down to us in a straight line from the Pagan religion through the early Christians; but, in the first place, we have no evidence that the pre 1717 Masons knew anything about a mystic ladder. And secondly, even the modern Masons had no mystic ladder as late as 1762.

I have had my say, and it now remains for Bro. Fort to prove the continuous connection of the thousand and one mysteries which he connected with such assiduity with the mysteries of our own Freemasonry, or even with the mysteries of the mediæval Masons (that is if he knows what their mysteries were). I want him to demonstrate, as all history should be demonstrated, how the mysteries of Sesostris, of Moses, of Pythagoras, of the Essenes and Druids, of the Basilidiens, Gnostics, and so many other distantly located mysteries to which he refers, happened to be the very same and identical mysteries, and to furnish reasonable evidence that all those ancient and wide-spread mysteries have all centred, as it were, in the building guilds of the Middle Ages. If Bro. Fort can do so, he will render most importatant service to the Craft in general and to Masonic students in particular. But should he be unable to prove all the said topics, then his "Transmission of Masonic art and symbolism in the fourth century," must be added to the accumulated heap of useless, worthless, and pernicious rubbish which will hereafter be known among Masons as a mere pile of learned Masonic twaddle.

THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE

67 BARBICAN, E.C.

GRAND LODGE OF IOWA, 1879.

Address of Grand Master Bro. J. W. Wilson.

BRETHREN of the Grand Lodge of Iowa:—We are permitted to assemble, my brethren, under favourable circumstances, at this the thirty-sixth Grand Annual Communication of our Grand Lodge, to transact the business pertaining to our cherished institution in this jurisdiction. General health and returning prosperity seem to prevail, and we may reasonably hope for success to follow our efforts to secure the general good.

Death, during the past year, has been less sparing of our numbers than during former periods of our history. A Past Grand Master, a Past Senior Grand Warden, and two Past Junior Grand Wardens are for ever called from their labours with and among us. These have come with the natural course of human events; while, in some of our sister jurisdictions in the South, the grim tyrant has stricken large numbers from the roll of human existence, and brought sorrow to many a home before happy in the enjoyment of health and life.

Let us, while we invoke the blessing of the Supreme Architect upon our labours, give Him thanks for the manifold favours He has bestowed upon us during the year that is now past; and may harmony pervade all our proceedings, and brotherly feeling and fraternal affection strengthen the cords that bind us together; and, when this communication is closed, may we be able to say that great good has transpired within the last year pertaining to the Craft in this jurisdiction, and notice briefly such matters as have occurred abroad in which we, in common with our state, should feel an interest.

I am pleased to inform you that the fraternal relations existing between our Grand Lodge and her sister Grand Lodges remain unbroken and unchanged.

I regret to have to report that the Grand Lodge of Scotland, with which this Grand Lodge has recently opened up more cordial relations by the interchange of representatives, has again transgressed the cherished American doctrine of Grand Lodge jurisdiction. That Grand Lodge has been creating Lodges within the territorial limits of the Grand Lodge of Quebec, and declared its determination to disregard the law of jurisdiction as observed and practised on this continent. The Grand Lodge of Quebec, of course, resists this encroachment upon its vested rights, and calls upon the American Grand Lodges to sustain her, as they have ever sustained such as have been in like circumstances interfered with. I present the case to the Grand Lodge, and invite such action as may tend to uphold the right of our sister Grand Lodge of Quebec, and, if possible, restore the harmony now unfortunately broken.

The Grand Lodge of Manitoba, recently recognized by this and all the Grand Lodges, has been disturbed by a seditious element within itself, which has resulted in the organisation of a separate Grand Lodge by the rebellious spirits, who seem to have forgotten the great lessons taught and cardinal virtues enforced. With such we can hold no Masonic intercourse.

Duing the year I have ordered several commissions to be issued from the office of the Grand Secretary, appointing Grand Representatives near other Grand Lodges, where vacancies have occurred by death or otherwise. Some commissions have been received through the same office, and will no doubt be presented during the present session. A list of both, with the dates of appointment, will be given in the Grand Secretary's report.

On the 12th day of December 1878, I granted a special dispensation to Antiquity Lodge, No. 252, at Moravia, to dedicate their new hall; and being unable to accept their urgent invitation to be present on that occasion, I appointed W. Brother B. F. Elbert, Worshipful Master of Albia Lodge, No. 76, to officiate in my stead. The official report of Brother Elbert made to me shows that his work was well and faithfully done, and that the Lodge is in a prosperous condition, and has secured a pleasant and comfortable home.

On 27th July 1878, I issued my special dispensation to the Craft at Wapello, authorising Wapello Lodge, No. 5, to appear in public procession and participate in the ceremonies of laying the corner-stone of a public school-house in the city of Wapello; and I authorised W. Brother John Hale, Past Master of Wapello Lodge, No. 5, to act as my special deputy. I have his very full and able report, showing that he discharged his duties with credit to himself and honour to the fraternity.

During the thirty days succeeding the close of the last Communication of the Grand Lodge, my time in a great measure was occupied in granting dispensations to elect and instal officers of Lodges. I am convinced that, in many instances, this was caused by the neglect of the officers of Lodges to hold their elections at the proper time. In order to avoid this necessity, and for the benefit of Lodges that fail to hold their elections at the proper time, I recommend that a resolution be passed by the Grand Lodge to meet such cases.

A great many applications have been made to me during the year for permission to confer degrees at irregular times, and as many reasons given why the rule should be varied as there have been applications made; but, adhering to the rule adopted by my predecessors, I have in but few instances deemed the reasons sufficient and granted such permission; and in no case have I given permission to ballot for a candidate and confer a degree until the applicant was thoroughly posted in the lectures in the preceding degrees, and passed an examination in open Lodge.

During the year I have had the honor to occupy the Grand East, I have granted dispensations for the formation of nine new Lodges in this jurisdiction, and have refused applications for nearly double that number. The location, name, and date of dispensation of the Lodges so formed will be found in the report of the R.W. Grand Secretary.

In exercising the right to grant dispensations for the formation of new Lodges, I have, in some instances, disregarded what is known as the "ten-mile law," and granted dispensation for the formation of Lodges within ten miles of Lodges already established; but in no case have I done this until I was fully satisfied that it was for the general good of the Craft. I felt myself justified in this course by the decisive action the Grand Lodge took at the last Grand Annual Communication in adopting the very able report of the Committee on Jurisprudence.

In obedience to a resolution of this Grand Lodge adopted at its last Grand Annual Communication (see Proceedings 1878, page 255), I have received from Instruction Lodge, No. 157, fifty dollars, the amount expended by the Grand Lodge on account of the late Adams Lodge, and paid the same to the Grand Secretary. I have turned over to Instruction Lodge, No. 157, all the property left by Adams Lodge which the Grand Lodge directed to be delivered to said Lodge.

At the last Communication of this Grand Lodge (see Proceedings, page 292), it was ordered that the Grand Master arrest the charter of Good Will Lodge, No. 246. On the 1st day of July, 1878, I directed my Deputy, R.W. William G. Donnan, to go to Bassett and take up the charter as directed by the Grand Lodge. By reference to his report on file in the Grand Secretary's office, it is shown that on the 8th day of July 1878, he performed that duty and discharged the trust imposed upon him, and his report is submitted for the action of the Grand Lodge.

On the 20th of August 1878, I received a communication signed by sixteen members of Nishnabotany Lodge, No. 153, located at Sidney, informing me that for some time peace and harmony had ceased to prevail in their Lodge; and by reason thereof a resolution had been introduced, and was pending before the Lodge, to surrender their charter, and that action would be taken on it on the 7th day of September, and urging me to be present at that time. At my request, R.W. Brothers W. E. Webster, Senior Grand Warden, and Alfred Wingate, Past Junior Grand Warden, met me at Sidney on the 7th of September. After making inquiry and investigation, we found that the cause of the difficulty and trouble in the Lodge was of long standing, and that there was but little, if any, hopes of restoring harmony among the Craft. We, however, thought it best to submit the question of the surrender of the charter to the Lodge, and upon doing so found seven votes in favour of retaining the charter. No further action was taken at that time, but I was satisfied that the difficulty was not at an end, and, upon consultation with Brothers Webster and Wingate, we deemed it best to give the brothers another trial, and, giving them such counsel and advice as we deemed for their good, we left them. Within a short time after our visit I received bad reports from the Lodge, and these reports continued until I became satisfied that harmony could never be restored, and that it was for the best interest of the Craft in general, and that Lodge in particular, to arrest the charter, and on the 10th day of January 1879 I issued a special dispensation authorising R. W. Brother Alf. Wingate, Past Junior Grand Warden, to arrest the charter of said Lodge, which he did, and the report of his action, with the letters and correspondence in relation to this matter, are on file in the Grand Secretary's office, and are respectfully submitted for the action of the Grand Lodge. I desire to say, in justice to a large majority of the brothers of that Lodge, that, in my judgment, they are not in fault; that while they desired to surrender their charter, it was for the purpose of getting rid of a few members who seemed to be the cause of all the difficulty; and that the lack of harmony was caused by but a few members; and if a petition is presented to the Grand Lodge for a restoration of the charter by a majority of the members, and those included in the report of Brother Wingate, in justice to them it should be restored, and I recommend that it be done.

On the 3rd day of April 1879, I received from Brother J. R. Buffington, Junior Warden of Mt. Carmel Lodge, No. 295, at Derby, a communication charging Brother John E. Carlton, the Worshipful Master of said Lodge, with gross unmasonic conduct, and being convinced that the matter required prompt action, I telegraphed R.W. Brother J. N. McClanahan to go at once to Derby and investigate the charges, and, if true, to arrest the jewel of Brother John E. Carlton and place the Lodge in charge of the Senior Warden. This order was promptly obeyed, and the jewel arrested, and the report of Brother McClanahan, together with the charges and the evidence to sustain the same, are on file in the Grand Secretary's office, and are submitted for the action of the Grand Lodge.

On June 27th 1878, I sanctioned the removal of Unity Lodge, No. 212, from Ottawa to Woodburn. This was done after the question of removal had been submitted to a vote of the Lodge, and the unanimous consent of the members had, under the provision of the law.

In the early part of March 1879, Waterloo Lodge, No. 105, and Victory Lodge, No. 296, both located in the city of Waterloo, were consolidated under my direction and approval, the matter having been submitted to the Lodges and acquiesced in by the consent of the members. The result of the consolidation is that Waterloo Lodge, No. 105, retains its charter and takes the membership of Victory Lodge, and Victory Lodge, No. 296, surrenders its charter to the Grand Lodge.

On the night of 23rd March 1879, Hebron Lodge, No. 374, at Oelwein, lost its furniture, jewels, and charter, by fire. In order that the brethren might continue the work they had on hand, I issued them a special dispensation empowering them to continue their work, this authority to remain in force until the meeting of the Grand Lodge. I recommend that a duplicate charter be issued, to supply the place of the one destroyed.

In several instances, which I deem it not essential to bring before you, disturbing causes, for the time being, destroyed the unity of feeling which ought always to exist among Masons, in some of the Lodges, but in all cases reformations were effected and harmony restored, by correspondence, visitations in person, or by special deputy; and I am pleased to inform you that, at this time, peace and harmony prevail throughout the length and breadth of the entire jurisdiction.

Owing to my business relations, and the time taken in attending to the duties of the office of Grand Master, I have been able to visit but few Lodges. On all occasions where I have had the pleasure of visiting, I am happy to report that I found the Craft ready and willing to obey the instructions and requests of their superior officers, and the authority of the Grand Lodge.

I received, 24th February 1878, a communication from Brother C.W. Jones, who resides at Emmet, Emmet county, in this state. He holds a dimit from Twilight Lodge, No. 329, located at Spirit Lake, and has made application to join Good Faith Lodge, No. 90, at Jackson, Jackson county, under the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of Minnesota, and is informed that, in order to enable him to join that Lodge, or a Lodge under the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of Minnesota, he must first obtain a dispensation from the Grand Master of this state, and asking me for such dispensation. I can find no legislation on this subject, and respectfully refer the letter of Brother Jones to the Grand Lodge, that it may take such action as will govern cases of that character that may hereafter arise.

In response to the calls made upon us for funds for the relief of our brethren in the South who were suffering on account of the yellow fever, I, on the 31st day of August 1878, issued a circular letter to the Lodges asking for contributions in aid of the sufferers. The prompt response and liberal contributions received convinces me that the Craft in this jurisdiction are alive to their duty and obligations, and ever ready and willing to fly to the relief of the destitute, and aid and assist the needy.

There was forwarded to me by the different Lodges, for distribution, dolls. 2,578.72. I have filed in the Grand Secretary's office a report, showing the names and numbers of the Lodges contributing, and the date and amount contributed by each Lodge. Of the amount thus received, I distributed as follows:

After making the remittances above stated, I was notified that no more funds were needed.

The amount remaining in my hands—1,278.72—I recommend be placed in charge of the Grand Lodge as a charity fund.

No request has been made by the Lodges for "Schools of Instruction," and, so far as I have been informed, uniformity of the work prevails. I made an attempt to call the Board of Custodians together, but, owing to circumstances over which I had no control, I failed to secure a meeting.

During the last year I have had the pleasure of visiting the Grand Secretary's office and Grand Lodge Library, and obtaining from among the many valuable treasures there information that I could find in no other place; and I take this opportunity thus publicly to express my entire satisfaction with the condition of the library, and my thanks for the kindness shown me by the Grand Secretary and his efficient deputy while at his office.

The angel of death has been more than usually frequent in visitations the past Masonic year. The Craft abroad and at home have been called to mourn a large number of brethren among the honoured of our numbers, who have been cut off from their active labours among us since we last met in council.

Of those more directly connected with this Grand Lodge, are Thomas Hart Benton, Past Grand Master, 1860-61: William H. Wallace, Past Senior Grand Warden, 1849; Mortimer E. Gillette, Past Junior Grand Warden, 1867; Edward M. Laws, Past Junior Grand Warden, 1873; Ezekiel Robinson, Grand Representative near the Grand Lodge of Maine; George Rex, Grand Representative near the Grand Lodge of Ohio; and Thomas J. Corson, M.D., Grand Representative near the Grand Lodge of New Jersey. Among those the most distinguished abroad, not before named, we mention the names of Past Grand Master Joseph Foster, of Missouri; Past Grand Master Reuben H. Robertson, of Utah; Past Grand Master Frank Welch, of Nebraska; Past Grand Master George E. Lounsberry, of Illinois; Grand Secretary Rev. Charles H. Titus, of Massachusetts; Past Grand Secretary Robert Boyd, of New York; A. J. Wheeler, editor of the Jewel, Memphis, Tennessee; Leon Hyneman, former editor of the Masonic Mirror, of Philadelphia.

Of most of these we shall have to look to others to speak; and, like my predecessors, I shall devolve this duty upon our Grand Secretary, who has not only been a contemporary with, but personally and intimately acquainted with most, if not all, of them. His long associations with the distinguished Masons of the greater part of the past half century, eminently qualifies him to supply the omissions of those of us who have only in late years come to glean in the field where he has reaped.

Of Past Grand Master Benton we have some personal knowledge. It was when he was at his prime, and in the full career of his Grand Mastership, that we made our debut in Masonry, and in the outset of our career we were taught to look to him as one of the wise men of the Grand East.

This Grand Body has before it for its adoption or rejection a Constitution and Statutes, prepared with a great deal of care and research by a committee selected by this body, and consisting of the ablest and wisest jurists in this jurisdiction. A copy of this Constitution and Statutes was distributed to each delegate to the Grand Lodge at the last Communication, in order that the Lodges should have ample time and opportunity to examine the same, and that the delegates coming to this Communication might be fully informed and ready to act.

I am informed that another Constitution and Statutes, within the last thirty days, has been sent, with a circular letter, to the Masters of Lodges in this jurisdiction. This last Constitution and Statutes is unauthorised by the Grand Lodge or its officers. The only one authorised by the Grand Lodge is the one submitted at the last Communication at Cedar Rapids. I mention this fact at this time that the delegates will not be misled by the Constitution and Statutes lately sent to the Lodges by some one without authority or sanction of this body.

I will not assume to make any suggestions to this Grand Body in reference to legislation. If the Constitution and Statutes laid over for action at this session should not be acted upon, perhaps I might consider it within my province respectfully to recommend some measures which my own experience and observation have taught me would be of benefit to the Craft.

While I have answered hundreds of questions on Masonic law, and given construction to rulings made by my predecessors and the Grand Lodge, I have not found it necessary to make any new decisions. I regard it the prerogative of the Grand Master to administer, and not make law. I find that almost every conceivable question has been passed upon by the Grand Lodge in its approval of the decisions made by my predecessors and the adoption of the reports of its Committees on Jurisprudence. This law is contained in the compilation of the decisions of the Grand Lodge made in 1866, and the proceedings of the Grand Lodge for the twelve succeeding years, and is in such condition that it requires a great deal of labour and research to find it. In view of this fact, I respectfully recommend that if the new Constitution and Statutes is not adopted at this Communication, a competent committee be appointed to prepare a "Digest of Masonic Law" as contained in the Proceedings of the Grand Lodge, and that the same be published for the benefit of the Craft.

I have, in as brief and concise a manner as possible, laid before you the result of the work you assigned me one year ago. In the discharge of my duties I have had what was, in my judgment, the good of the Craft always in view. If I have erred, it was under the clear conviction that I was doing that which would most promote the present and future peace, stability, and advancement of our Order.

That your deliberations may conduce to the building up of all the best interests of our institution, and that you may all enjoy a full portion of Masonic and social happiness, is my sincere and earnest wish and desire.

J. W. Wilson, Grand Master.

JAMAICA.

As we stated some time since that on the return of the Right Worshipful Hon. Dr. Hamilton, District Grand Master for Jamaica, to this island, we were quite sure that Freemasonry would again take a start, we have now to state that another new Lodge has been formed, and opened by Dispensation, called "Collegium Falorum," and met on 12th June, at Sussex Hall, having as their Master Worshipful Maynier Rose, a Past Master of the Friendly, Bro. E. Finzi Senior Warden, and Bro. Dr. Cotter Junior Warden. The other Officers were duly installed the same evening.

The "Union et Concordia," which we stated some time ago was in abeyance for many years, and it being the special wish of some of the old members to revive the ashes, the same was formally opened, having the Worshipful H. W. Da Costa, a Past Master of the Phœnix and Glenlyon Lodges. An election took place; the candidates were Wor. A. N. Cardozo Senior Warden, and Bro. W. Andrews Junior Warden, who served in the Royal Lodge. The choice fell on Bro. Cardozo. The usual ordinary meeting was held at Sussex Hall on 16th June, and on account of the absence of Wor. H. W. Da Costa, who was gone on a visit to Europe, Wor. S. Hart, a Past Master of that Lodge, presided, when the minutes with regard to the election of Worshipful Master were non-confirmed. It is stated that some irregularity occurred, which will be submitted to the proper authorities. It is to be pitied that on their first installation of a Master, after having been in abeyance for so many years, that such a feeling should exist, and it is hoped that oil will be thrown on the troubled waters, and everything will work shortly in peace and harmony.

The brethren of the Eastern Counties have a busy time before them next week. On Tuesday the Prov. G. Master of Essex, Lord Tenterden, will consecrate the St. Andrew's Lodge, at Shoeburyness, Bro. Lucking, the Prov. G. Director of Ceremonies, being the Installing Master. On Wednesday, at Clare, the Prov. Grand Master of Suffolk, assisted by his Deputy, Bro. Rev. C. J. Martyn, will perform the inaugural ceremonies in connection with the Royal Clarence Lodge, No. 1823, while at Walton-on-the Naze, it has been found necessary to call emergency meetings of the Arnold Lodge for Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. The W.M. of this latter has, we understand, retained the services of an army of Past Masters, but with such an agenda paper as is presented we think strong reinforcements will be necessary.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Surrey will hold its annual meeting on Tuesday next at the Public Hall, Redhill, at one o'clock. Banquet will follow at four o'clock, tickets for same, 15s each, may be obtained of the Prov. Grand Sec., Bro. C. Greenwood, 61 Nelson-square, Blackfriars-road.

The annual meeting of the Prov. Grand Lodge of Hertfordshire will be held at the Town Hall, Berkhampstead, on Wednesday, the 23rd of July, at 3 o'clock. A banquet will follow, at the King's Arms Hotel, at 5 o'clock. Tickets for same, 21s each, can be had of the Prov. G. Sec. Bro. F. H. Wilson Iles, M.D., Watford. Special arrangements have been made by the London and North-Western Railway Company, who will issue special cheap return tickets from Euston, Willesden, or Broad Street, on production of the Lodge summons or a banquet ticket.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of Middlesex and Surrey will assemble at the Greyhound Hotel, Richmond, at six o'clock on Thursday next, for the transaction of the regular business of the Province. Banquet will follow at seven o'clock p.m. Tickets, 21s each, may be had of the Prov. Grand Sec. Bro. W. G. Brighton, 4 Bishopsgate-street-without, E.C.

We have pleasure in reminding our readers that the Summer Festival of the Metropolitan and Royal Savoy Lodges will take place at the Rye House on Thursday next. The tickets for the banquet are fixed at 7s 6d each, and may be had of Bro. Stiles the Secretary. The Banquet will take place at 3.30.

TORTURED BY DEGREES.

FOUR hundred years ago men were tortured by degrees—but not for the first time, nor for the last. The "good" Queen Isabella was then on the Spanish throne, with Ferdinand of Arragon for her consort, and Torquemanda for Inquisitor-General. Then of all other times in the world, men—aye, and women and children too—were tortured by degrees. The thumb-screw, the rack, and the pulley deprived them slowly of life, and fire, faggot, and stake often ended their torments. An Innocent Popo (the Eighth)—innocent in name only, but thrice guilty in deed—inaugurated the horrors of the Spanish Inquisition, and thus made it possible for such a heart-rending book to be written as "Fox's Book of Martyrs." It is fortunate for us that those days are past. No one finds it a pleasure, even for conscience sake, to enlighten the world at the stake. But ours is a liberal ago—too liberal, perhaps, when, in this country at least, one may say and do pretty much as he pleases. Our liberty reaches license, and hence, although the punishments of the nineteenth century are different from those of the fifteenth, we yet are, in a certain sense, tortured by degrees. Our rules have been changed, but our burdens are still upon us. Thus, the so-called Holy Office is without business, and its inquisitors can no longer enforce their saying, "Believe as I believe, or I'll roast you," yet any man may now be a sort of "Holy office," and still torture us by degrees.

All our troubles flow from the vanity of men who assume to be wiser than Solomon. We are taught in the Craft that King Solomon, in his supreme wisdom, established but three degrees among the Craftsmen of Jerusalem who were builders of the Temple—viz., Entered Apprentices, Fellow Crafts, and Masters. Now according to recently published accounts, there are two hundred and eighty-two degrees that claim to be Masonic! Could Beaumont and Fletcher have had prophetic reference to this mushroom growth, when they wrote:—

"There is a method in man's wickedness—It grows up by degrees."

Surely the world would not suffer if, say two hundred and fifty of these degrees, were to be buried out of sight and hearing! Let us consider this somewhat.

Degrees, when multiplied by hundreds, and costly in money, unduly absorb a man's time from himself and his legitimate business, to say nothing of his family, and fill his head with a lot of verbiage, which likely crowds out knowledge that would be more profitable to him, if not more pleasant.

Jack Kitchener is one of those who is tortured by the numerosity of his degrees. Monday night comes. Supper is just over. Jack jumps up, with the remark,—"Wife, I've a Lodge meeting to attend this evening." "Pray, what Lodge?" she asks. "Oh!" he replies, "the A. B. and C. Rite holds one of its meetings to-night." Tuesday evening arrives. Supper is hurriedly despatched, and Jack is up and going. "And whither to-night?" the wife inquires. "The D. E. F. Rite holds an important Communication to-night." Wednesday comes. The G. and H. Rite meets in high carnival then. Thursday brings with it a Lodge meeting in the "I. J. and K. Rite." Friday is illustrated by a cut from supper to attend a meeting in the "L. and M. Rite," and poor Saturday is crowded also with the "O. P. and Q. Rite." The following week is also full, to the end of the alphabet of rites. And so on from week to week, and month to month, and year to year. Thus, as Dryden says, are—

"Ill habits gathered by unseen degrees."

This multitude of degrees that requires a man with a head for figures to number, is an inverted pyramid, unnaturally based upon a point that is a very diamond for endurance. This pivot-point is composed of the degrees of Ancient Craft Masonry. These all men (who can) may take with benefit to themselves, and without detriment to their families; but the large majority of the degrees beyond them grow—

"Fine by degrees and beautifully less."

The Scriptures appear to be uniform in their testimony on this point. Men of "high degree" are by no means commended, while men of "low degree" are often praised. In Chronicles we read of "brethren of the second degree," who chanted songs of praise when the Ark of the Covenant was carried up to Zion; and St. Luke says: "He hath put down the mighty from their seats, and exalted them of low degree." It is true David wrote, in the Psalms, that "men of low degree are vanity," but then he added, "men of high degree are altogether lighter than vanity!" We do well to be faithful with our first love. Let no one ever

"Look in the clouds, scorning the bare degrees
By which he did ascend."

By base degrees he meant (whatever Shakespeare meant) the foundation degrees of Ancient Craft Masonry, on which all other Masonry, or alleged Masonry is built. There are in Masonry degrees useful and ornamental, and in mis-called Masonry degrees that are neither one or the other. We should class the degrees of the Lodge and Chapter as useful, and those of the Commandery and Ancient and Accepted Rite as ornamental. Some brethren of course will differ from us, but with the majority we are in accord. As to what may be termed the Alphabet Rites, there is no Masonry in them but the name.

What shall we say then of the mills and millers that grind out the multitudinous modern degrees, which promise to outnumber Abraham's seed? The millers are doubtless Masons, ingenious men, ambitious men, presumptuous men, and sometimes successful men; but they cannot make any of their modern rites right. They are not Masonry, and they overlay and tend to obscure Masonry. Think of any one assuming to overtop King Solomon!

"Angels and ministers of grace defend us!"

MADAME TUSSAUD'S EXHIBITION.

TO cater successfully for the million is a heavy task, and when achieved must be gratifying to those who have accomplished it. The conductors of this Exhibition are to be ranked amongst the most successful of caterers, as no matter at what time of the year our readers may be minded to visit Baker-street to inspect the wax work, they will be sure to find a good company of sightseers eager to join them. This happy result is doubtless due to a variety of causes, not the least being the tenacity with which the taste of the day is studied. If a political Conference is sitting, to discuss the affairs of nations, we immediately have portrait models of the distinguished statesmen who compose it, habited as they live. If a gallant naval or military officer distinguishes himself in the cause of his country, the public at large may soon make acquaintance with his lineaments and personal appearance. No expense is spared, no demand for costly dresses and surroundings is left unconsidered, and as a consequence, an air of comfort and prosperity pervades the entire scene. We dropped in casually the other evening, and were immediately accosted by a musical brother who has been associated with this establishment for upwards of twenty years. He took us in tow, and pointed out, with evident pride, that he had some talented confrères, who would be sure to gratify us with a taste of their quality. This indeed they did, as the symphonies and selections they played were executed faultlessly. The principal features of this well known resort have been so frequently described in press notices, that we scarcely deem it necessary here to recount them in extenso. However, we will not omit to mention the successful arrangement of the new group of the Napoleon Family, from the First Napoleon to the late ill-starred Prince Imperial. Those who desire to become better acquainted with notorious characters will here find life-like figures of such individuals as Kate Webster, Peace of Banner Cross, Benson, Kurr, &c. &c.

The Consecration of the Victoria Park Lodge, No. 1816, will take place on Friday, 25th inst., at the Queen's Hotel, Victoria Park-road, South Hackney, at two o'clock. Bro. James Terry, Prov. J.G. Warden Herts, will perform the ceremony. The Officers designate are Bros. Carter W.M., G. Edwards S.W., and W. Snellgrove J.W.

The efforts of Bro. George Smith of Coalville, which resulted, first, in the passing of the Brickyard Children's Act in 1871, and next in the Enactment in 1877 of the Canal Boats Act, having occupied a large part of his energies during the past sixteen years, it has been felt that some recognition, in the shape of a provision for his future needs, should be accorded him, sufficient, if possible, to enable him to devote the remainder of his life to philanthrophic work. Accordingly, a very influential committee has been formed for the purpose of carrying out this object. Subscriptions may be sent to either the Treasurer (F. A. Bevan Esq., 54 Lombard Street, London, E.C.) or the Secretary (P. W. Clayden Esq., 13 Tavistock Square, London, W.C.)

MASONIC ELECTIONS.—I desire to call your attention to one evil that too often enters into the Government of Masonic bodies, both supreme and subordinate, a disposition of well-meaning but ambitious brethren to enter into combinations to secure rank and preferment. It may be pardonable for the citizen to adopt the usual methods of politicians as a means to securing place and emoluments in the government of the State; but such methods are reprehensible in the highest degree in a Masonic Lodge. The highest trust committed to you, as the representatives of our Order in this jurisdiction, is the choice of Grand Officers for the ensuing year. These Officers should be chosen for their meritorious worth, and the fact that a brother wishes the post of honour, or that he resides in some supposed favourable locality, should not influence a single vote. I have been impressed with the conviction that it is always a safe rule, in choosing Officers, to vote against Masonic politicians. The brethren of a Lodge, unembarrassed by the importunities of ambitious candidates, will usually make a wise choice in the selection of Officers. And the brother, who by his industry serves the Craft well and faithfully, will finally secure his reward. The great principles of our Order, and the laws laid down in our ancient Constitutions in regard to these practices, are so well understood by the older and more experienced members of the Craft, that there is need only of calling your attention to them to be appreciated and faithfully practised by our brethren. Our Order is designed for higher and nobler purposes than that of gratifying the ambition of men, and the Mason who would prostitute the Order to promote his business, or gratify his ambition is unworthy the fraternal regard of the Craft.—M.W. JOHN GUTHRIE, G.M. Kansas.

The Freemasons of Portland, Maine, on the 24th ult., indulged in a grand procession through the chief streets of the city, and then in an excursion to "Little Hog Island," in the Bay, where an old-time clam-bake was enjoyed. The celebration was very imposing. Portland Lodge, for 110 years past, has been accustomed to eat a big dinner on St. John's Day. The first dinner was sat down to at Daniel Isley's tavern, Deering, in 1769. The old custom is still joyfully kept up.—Keystone.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—The chief wonder of modern times.—This incomparable medicine increases the appetite, strengthens the stomach, cleanses the liver, corrects biliousness, prevents flatulency, purifies the system, invigorates the nerves, and re-instates sound health. The enormous demand for these Pills throughout the globe astonishes everybody, and a single trial convinces the most sceptical that no medicine equals Holloway's Pills in its ability to remove all complaints incidental to the human race. They are a blessing to the afflicted, and a boon to all that labour under internal or external disease. The purification of the blood, removal of all restraint from the secretive organs, and gentle aperative action are the prolific sources of the extensive curative range of Holloway's Pills.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

York Mark Lodge (T.I.)—The regular meeting of this Lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, York, on Tuesday evening. Present—Bros. the Hon W. T. Orde-Powlett W.M., T. B. Whytehead P.M. and Secretary, G. Balmford P.M. as S.W., J. Hollins J.W., W. P. Husband as M.O., C. G. Padel S.O., G. Garbutt J.O., M. Millington S.D., A. T. B. Turner J.D., T. Humphries as I.G., G. Hodgson Organist, P. Pearson Tyler, with many other brethren. A successful ballot having been taken for Bro. W. M. Briggs of the Eboracum Lodge, No. 1611, he was advanced to the honourable degree of M.M.M. by the W.M., the tools and charge being given by the J.W. The W.M. made some feeling remarks on the loss sustained by the Lodge by the death of their Treasurer, Bro. T. Cooper P.M., and it was determined that the Secretary should address a letter of condolence to the widow and family. At the close of the Lodge the brethren sat down to an excellent supper which had been prepared under the able superintendence of Bro. T. Humphries, the Lodge Steward. Bro. T. B. Whytehead gave the toast of Prosperity to the York Mark Lodge, and in a short address spoke of the history of the Lodge and its progress and present condition, saying that it was his great ambition to see the Lodge in a position to grant votes of money to the Masonic Charities, and he hoped that it would not be long before this would be the case, though there were great difficulties to contend with. He coupled with the toast the name of their W.M., who had shown them that evening, by his good working, that Masonry with him was no nominal thing, and when they considered that he was involved in a journey of nearly eighty miles every time he attended the Lodge, he thought that they really owed him a debt of gratitude. In response, the W.M. said he considered that no Mason had a right to accept office unless he fully intended to perform its duties faithfully, and it was always his pleasure to be amongst them and receive the generous support he had done throughout. Other toasts followed, as well as songs, &c. by Bros. Humphries, Turner and others.

York Lodge of Royal Ark Mariners (attached to the York Mark Lodge T.I.)—A meeting of this Lodge was held at York on Thursday afternoon, when Bro. T. B. Whytehead occupied the chair of N., Bro. the Hon. W. T. Orde-Powlett that of J., and Bro. W. P. Husband that of S., Bro. Millington Scribe and Treasurer, Bro. A. T. B. Turner Conductor, &c. The minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, the Lodge proceeded to elect its W.C.N. for the ensuing year, when the suffrages fell upon Bro. the Hon. W. T. Orde-Powlett. Bro. Millington was re-elected Treasurer. The W.C.N. made some remarks on the lamented death of Bro. Thomas Cooper, who was so worthily occupying the chair of S., and a resolution was passed expressive of the sense of loss the Lodge had sustained. The Lodge was then closed in the usual manner.

St. Michael's Lodge of Instruction, No. 211.—On Thursday Bro. Jaques presided, at the George Hotel, Australian Avenue. The Wardens' chairs were filled respectively by Bros. W. E. Young and W. Radcliffe, W. W. Morgan Sec., and Bros. Brasted and Prince acted as Deacons, Bro. Woodrow I.G., and Alfred Withers as Preceptor After preliminaries, the W.M. rehearsed the ceremony of initiation, Bro. F. Brasted candidate. Bro. Gladwell offered himself as a candidate for the second degree, underwent examination, and was entrusted. Lodge was opened in the second, and the W.M. rehearsed the ceremony. Bro. Lloyd W.M., Pavitt S.W., Glaspoole J.W., Smith S.D., Barker J.D., Spencer I.G., Worsley Secretary, Musto P.M. Preceptor; also Bros. Johnson, Dixon, Dunsmore, Shepherd W.M. 1349, Ellis 124, Ellis 860, Andrews, Rawe, Keable, and Watkins. Lodge was opened with due observance of all ceremonial, and minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Johnson answered the necessary questions, and the Lodge opened in the third degree, when the ceremony of raising was rehearsed, Bro. Johnson candidate. Bro. Worsley worked the first section of the lecture, assisted by the brethren, and the Lodge was closed to the first degree. Bro. Pavitt was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing week. A vote of thanks was ordered to be recorded on the minutes for the excellent way in which the W.M. worked the ceremony, the whole having been done in a pleasing manner, and without any dictation. Nearly all the members in this Lodge are good workers, and enter thoroughly into the spirit of what they undertake; as a consequence, good attendances are the rule, some come a considerable distance. The Lodge room is pleasantly situated, and every attention is paid those who attend. On Tuesday next, in accordance with the bye-laws, sections only will be worked. The Lodge will be presided over by P.M. Musto the Preceptor, P.M. Cundick S.W., and Bro. Shepherd the W.M. of 1349 J.W. United Service Lodge, No. 1428.—The installation of the W.M. elect (Bro. James Johns) took place on Friday afternoon at the Masonic Hall, Highbury-street, Portsmouth, in the presence of a large muster of brethren, including several W.M.'s and P.M.'s. The ceremony of installation was impressively performed by Bro. H. W. Townsend, P.M., to whom a cordial vote of thanks was subsequently awarded. The W.M. invested the Officers as follow:—Bros. Leggatt I.P.M., G. R. Stricks S.W., Woodward J.W., T. Mares Treasurer, Arnold Secretary, Laverty S.D., Walton J.D., Elverston I.G., Wilton Organist, H. Burke and Quinn P.M., Stewards. Nearly a hundred were present at the installation banquet, which was admirably served by Bro. Shepherd, of the United Service Lodge. After the cloth had been cleared the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were honoured, the post-prandial proceedings being interspersed with harmony, and a pleasant evening was passed. This Lodge, which is confined to members of the services, is in a highly satisfactory state. It has 164 subscribing members; during the past year £90 was voted to the Masonic Charities, and it has a balance in hand of £220.

Eboracum Lodge, No. 1611.—A regular meeting of this Lodge was held on Monday evening, at York. Present:—Bros. J. S. Cumberland W.M., T. B. Whytehead I.P.M., George Balmford P.M. and Treasurer, J. Moss P.M. Lion Lodge, Whitby, G. Ayre P.M. Falcon Lodge, Thirsk, C. G. Padel S.W., J. T. Seller J.W., J. Kay Secretary, T. Humphries Asst. Secretary, M. Millington S.D., W. P. Husband as S.D., J. Bleukin I.G., G. H. Simpson Organist, A. T. B. Turner Asst. M.C., with many brethren and other Visitors from the York and St. Patrick's Lodges. The Lodge having been opened, the I.P.M. retired with four Stewards, and having formed a procession, introduced the Deputy Prov. G.M. Bro. J. P. Bell P.G.D. England, who was saluted by the brethren. A successful ballot was then taken for a candidate, and the Lodge was opened in the third degree, and Bro. Dyson was raised to the sublime degree of a Master Mason by the W.M., the traditional history being given by the I.P.M. The Lodge being again lowered, the W.M. addressed a few words to the D.P.G.M., welcoming him, in the name of the members of the Lodge, and expressing the pleasure it gave them to see him amongst them. The D.P.G.M., in replying, said that it had given him the very greatest pleasure to witness the perfect working of the ritual, and he complimented the W.M. and members on the way in which their affairs were managed. He then presented to the Lodge a curious cup, carved out of Dead Sea bitumen, and engraved with a representation of the foundation of Solomon's Temple, and also a photograph of an elaborate drawing of Masonic emblems, by Bro. Dr. Hooper, for both of which gifts the hearty thanks of the Lodge were given. The W.M. then presented to the Lodge, on behalf of Bro. Mason, of the Royal Lodge, Filey, now resident in York, an old snuff box, bearing on its lid a mass of embossed Masonic emblems, which also called forth a vote of thanks. Bro. Husband then presented a curious jug of old Staffordshire ware, bearing on one side the arms of the Ancients and the inscription "Lodge 225, London," and on the other a representation of St. George and the Dragon. In the course of the evening Bro. Husband read a short paper, in which he endeavoured to identify the Lodge to whom the relic had once belonged. The W.M. then alluded to the loss the Lodge had sustained in the death of their late P.M. Bro. T. Cooper, and ended by proposing that a letter of condolence should be prepared and sent to the widow and family, which was seconded by the S.W. and carried in mournful silence. The D.P.G.M. also made some remarks on Bro. Cooper, speaking of him in the highest terms as a man and a Mason. After the singing of a Masonic hymn the Lodge was closed and the brethren adjourned to refreshment. The toast of the Prov. Grand Lodge having been duly honoured, the health of the W.M. was proposed by the D.P.G.M. and that of the I.P.M. by the W.M. "The Visitors" being ably undertaken by the S.W. The I.P.M. in responding said, that in conducting the arrangements for the Lodge of Sorrow the previous week he had experienced a sad kind of pleasure, for he was sure that if anything could have consoled their late dear brother for a separation from his Masonic friends, it would have been the knowledge that his memory would have been so deeply honoured, revered and cherished. The proceedings of the evening were made the more pleasant by the splendid glee singing of the Lodge quartette—Bros. J. S. Cumberland, J. E. Wilkinson, T. Humphries and O. Marshall; and Bro. J. E. Wilkinson elicited great commendation by his beautiful rendering of "Phyllis is my only joy."

West Middlesex Lodge of Instruction, No. 1612—On Thursday, 3rd July, the usual fortnightly meeting of this Lodge of Instruction was held, at the Feathers, Ealing, and proved one of the most successful that has yet been attended. Bros. E. J. Acworth W.M., Seward S.W., Blasby J.W. 780 J.W., J. W. Rickwood S.D., Costelow S.D. 780 J.D., Fisher I.G., H. E. Tucker Preceptor. The following brethren were also present:—Bros. Goss I.P.M. 780, J. C. Roe P.M. 780, Gardiner P.M. 780, Gomm S.W. 780, Sumner I.G. 780, Talbot 780, Botley 780, Kyezor S.W. 820, Jones, Porter, Wright, Yewens, and Coope of 1612; Stephens, Woolmer, &c. Minutes of last Lodge meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. rehearsed the ceremony of initiation, with Bro. Woolmer as candidate, and afterwards delivered the charge. Bro. Yewens answered the questions leading to the second, and the Lodge being opened in that degree, the ceremony of passing was gone through. We are given to understand that this was the first time the W.M. had worked this ceremony, and it is only paying the Royal Alfred Lodge of Instruction (where the W.M. regularly attends) well deserved credit to say that the ritual is evidently rehearsed there and imparted to its members with every care. Lodge was then opened in the third degree, and closed down, when some routine business was discussed. It was decided to hold the usual Lodge of Instruction Banquet on 31st July. Bro. Tucker then drew the attention of the brethren to a very handsome cushion which he stated Bro. Acworth wished the Lodge to accept. He (Bro. Tucker) said that it had been a great eyesore to him for some time past, that the volume of the Sacred Law should have rested where it did, and he was sure the brethren would accept the gift with great pleasure, and accord to Bro. Acworth their appreciation of his kindness. This having been formally done, the W.M. said it was always pleasing for him to render any assistance he could to the Lodge of Instruction, and thanked the brethren for the honour they had conferred on him by accepting the cushion. He also expressed his thanks to the brethren, especially from Lodge 780, for the large support he had received that evening. Bro. Seward was elected W.M. for the next meeting.

Egyptian Lodge of Instruction, No. 27.—This Lodge held its usual weekly meeting at Bro. Maidwell's, the Hercules Tavern, 119 Leadenhall-street, E.C., on Thursday evening 17th July, at 7.30. Present—Bros. Ginningham W.M., Moss S.W., Beedell J.W., Grammer S.D., Maidwell J.D., Caton I.G., and other brethren. The ceremony of the third degree was rehearsed, Bro. Silvestre acting as candidate. The second and third sections of the lecture were worked by Bro. Moss, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Caton 65 and Bro. Silvestre 1381 were elected members of this Lodge of Instruction. After other business, the Lodge was closed.

OUTSIDE IDEAS OF FREEMASONRY.

WE have heard of a cynic who defined truth as "undiscovered falsehood," and we have no doubt that the answer was characteristic of the man. This, however, is not the general acceptation of the term, but rather the narrow view of a class, who, being unaccustomed to describe things as they are, consider themselves representative specimens of humanity in general, and have the impudence to include all others in their category. In the case in point the use of the word "undiscovered," leads us to suppose some pains were taken to give a certain amount of colour to the lie, or that there was some apparent reason for it. Even under such circumstances, however, it is usual with Englishmen to treat with scorn the man who is found to be guilty in this respect; but when a man lies or perjures himself merely for the sake of doing so, he deservedly calls down upon himself the most utter contempt, if not pity, of those to whom he thinks to pander. In this class of individual may be included those who in their greed for gain hope, by sensational articles on the rites and ceremonies of Freemasonry, or of other secret societies, to create a demand for their wares, and perhaps acquire a somewhat unenviable notoriety. This may be, and in our opinion is, in most cases a mere display of the annoyance felt by unworthy candidates at not having received the benefits they anticipated from association with the Order. We believe we are justified in saying that such lucubrations are appreciated only by those who, like the writers, know no sense of honour, and by those who are utterly ignorant of the first principles of morality. Who would accept the word of a man who by his own lips convicts himself as a wilful perjurer? In the majority of the so-called "accounts of our ceremonies" there is a certain amount of truth, but usually nothing more than may be learned by any one taking the trouble to enquire for himself. For instance, most persons know that an obligation not to divulge anything that is communicated is among the first things that a candidate is called upon to undertake, and this is usually made especially prominent by those who make it their pleasure to profess a knowledge of what they do not understand. The next thing this class of writers do is, to make a boast of having broken their promise, and then they ask their readers to believe what follows. We pity the ignorance they thus display, and their utter want of knowledge of gentlemanly behaviour or of the feelings of gentlemen.

A writer in the last week's number of one of the London periodicals has taken upon himself the task of exposing what he is pleased to term the childish mummeries of Freemasons. After quoting the following passage from the Times:—"Perhaps if Freemasons disclosed their secrets they would lose little worth keeping, and the world would acquire little worth acquiring," he says, "This is all the more true, as the Freemasons have no secrets. . . . I am not myself a Freemason, but I have often amused myself by passing for one." What does he mean by this? Does he suppose that the mere exhibition of a token, or the flourish of a supposed sign — more than likely not having anything whatever to do with any of the Masonic signs — constitutes him a member of our Order, or leads others to suppose that he is one? We should say not, unless it be those who themselves are among the uninitiated. After describing what he thinks he knows of the opening of a Lodge, and which we, as Freemasons, politely inform him would immediately gain for him summary expulsion from the Masonic meeting, and that may be, if he happened to get among a party who were warm on the subject, in a rather unseemly manner, he proceeds with the ceremony of initiation, in one part of which he says the candidate "repeats the oath, in which he engages to keep inviolate the secrets of the Order." Just so, and having done that, we ask him on what ground he wishes us to believe the statements he puts forward? If a man can, and does take the oath to which he refers, and then supplies the copy for such an exposé as he would wish us to believe he gives, we hold that the man must be a fool, or expects his readers are fools, to believe one word of his statement. He condescends, later on, to describe "the association as useful as a charitable organisation," and proceeds, "but assuredly it is full time that reasonable human beings should no longer waste their time in the frivolous nonsense that goes on at Lodges, or that secrecy should be affected when there is no necessity for it." We hold that secrecy is necessary if only to keep from our meetings such men as the writer we have referred to. We should like to know his name, in order that we might find out the Lodge which has so justly refused him admission, for we entertain no doubt but that such an event has occurred. We should like to offer our thanks to its members for having so judiciously guarded the character of the Order.

The Annual Convocation of the Provincial Grand Chapter of Middlesex will be held on Saturday, the 2nd of August, under the superintendence of the R.W. Bro. Col. Francis Burdett, Prov. Grand Z., at the Grammar School, Enfield Town. Prov. Grand Chapter will be opened at 4 p.m., and the banquet will take place at 5.30, at the George Inn. Tickets for the latter (21s each) may be obtained of the Prov. G. Scribe E. Comp. H. C. Levander, 30 North Villas, N.W. We wish the Companions a fine day, and feel assured if such is the case they will enjoy their visit to this picturesque part of the county.

The Summer Banquet of the Henley Lodge, No. 1472, will take place on Wednesday, the 30th July, at the Clarendon Hotel, Gravesend. The dinner is announced for five o'clock, and will be presided over by the W.M. Bro. Turner.

The brethren of Dublin are just now making strenuous efforts to increase the accommodation of their Female Orphan School. It having been decided that it would not be safe, consistent with the sanitary comforts of the inmates, to still further enlarge the present building, an eligible site has been secured, comprising nine acres, situate at the junction of Blackrock and Simmon's Court Roads. Plans have been prepared for a new schoolhouse, designed for the reception of seventy girls, and so arranged as to admit of extension in the future. The cost of building and furnishing is estimated at £12,000, of which sum £5,000 has been voted from the invested capital of the Charity on condition that a like sum of £5,000 is contributed by members of the Order to this special fund. Already we understand that promises have been received which reach close on £3000, so that we may confidently look to the scheme being speedily carried out. We wish our Irish brethren every success in their undertaking, which when completed will become another of the splendid monuments which are the boast of our Order and the pride of its members.

MORE PUZZLES ABOUT DUNCKERLEY.

By Bro. Jacob Norton.

In the editor's sketch of Dunckerley, in the Freemason's Magazine, 1793 (p 379), it is stated that Dunckerley had many letters from the first men of the age, that the said letters would fill an octavo volume; that the editor was anxious to enrich his magazine with many of those letters, but the modesty of Bro. Dunckerley precluded the editor from obtaining more than two; one of these letters was from a noble Viscount, now a Marquis, and the other from the late General Adolphus Oughton, K.B., and these two letters were printed in the said magazine.

The said Viscount's letter was incorporated by Bro. "Q." in his article in this paper, 28th December last. The letter contains neither location, name, nor date. We have only the editor's word that a Viscount sent that letter to Bro. Dunckerley. The said letter referred to Dunckerley's good fortune in getting a pension from the King. The writer was, however, puzzled; as the following will show:—He said, "I cannot divine to what channel you owe that piece of good fortune; if in any degree to one person, to whom I mentioned your affair (whose benevolence of heart and public virtues I know are only obscured by public prejudices)," &c. In a footnote, the mysterious person referred to between the parentheses is said to have been the Earl of Bute.

When Bro. Dunckerley furnished the said letter for publication, he must have informed the editor that "a Viscount, now a Marquis," wrote it; and also, that the Earl of Bute was referred to by the Viscount. That the writer of the said letter meant to convey the idea that Lord Bute was the party he hinted it, I believe. But I really cannot believe that a Viscount, and a particular friend and admirer of the Earl of Bute, could possibly have imputed Bro. Dunckerley's success to the Earl of Bute's agency or intercession with the King in his (Dunckerley's) behalf.

To make this clear to the general reader, I must inform him that King George III. imbibed very arbitrary notions from his early associates. His family owed the English crown to a revolution; the descendants of the legitimate dynasty were living when George III. became King; he had no objection to wear a crown of which others were deprived by revolution, but he nevertheless hated the party who made his family Kings of England; the revolution of 1688 was associated with liberty, but King George learned from his mother, and books she put into his possession, to hate all kind of liberty except his own liberty. Accordingly, soon after his accession to the throne, he dismissed the Whig ministry of his grandfather, and appointed a Tory ministry; his great favourite and adviser was the Earl of Bute; who was not only the favourite of King, but also of the King's mother. In 1762 Bute took the the Premiership into his own hands, but he suddenly resigned in 1763. The ex-minister, however, exerted himself in drumming up a new ministry, but from that time, Adolphus, the historian of the reign of George III., dates the loss of Bute's influence with the King, though Lord Brougham dates it about two years later. The new, or what is known as the Granville Ministry, soon got into loggerheads with its royal master; the king wanted to govern as well as reign, but the ministry wanted the King to leave the governing part to them; they were even bold enough to remonstrate against the King's appointments to important offices without their assent. So in 1765 the Granville ministry was ignominously dismissed, and the King ordered his uncle, the Duke of Cumberland, to get him another ministry. The Duke called upon Pitt, but Pitt would have nothing to do with ministries. The Duke next tried other personages, who also declined the honour. In that dilemma the King was willing to restore the Granville ministry, but the Granvillites demanded promises from the King that he should never consult the Earl of Bute; that he should dismiss Bute's brother from an office he held in Scotland; and two or three other promises. The King tried to compromise, but the ministry would not budge an inch. Early in July, the royal uncle was again commissioned to hunt up a ministry, and for the want of a more agreeable one the King was obliged to accept the Rockingham Ministry. We see then that in 1765 the Earl of Bute was evidently excluded from open interference, at least, with state affairs.

Pitt, who was all powerful with the people, though he said he would support the Rockingham Ministry, was nevertheless opposed to them, and in the first Parliament held under the new ministry, in January 1766, Pitt denounced in the House of Commons "the overruling influence" with the King, meaning Lord Bute. But Conway, one of the ministers, warmly denied any kind of overruling influence. The King himself declared in a solemn manner, that at the moment when Pitt was talking of an overruling influence, he had no communication whatever, either on business, on state affairs, or private matters with his ex-minister; that he had reason to be dissatisfied with Lord Bute; that he had pledged his word not to permit his interference, and from that moment upon his word and honour as a gentleman, he had never spoken with him in private, and scarcely ever in public. Again, Lord Bute himself was accustomed "to complain to his intimate friends, both in his travels and at home, that he was neglected by his sovereign." "This avowal," says Adolphus, "from a man so cautious as Lord Bute, outweighs all the vague assertions of those who maintain the existence of his mysterious agency [with the king] and proves that the loss of his influence had sunk deep in his mind." (History of England, by Adolphus, 1822; Vol. i. pp 126-7).

Lord Brougham, as already intimated, placed the downfall of the favourite's influence to the period soon after the appointment of the Rockingham administration, and he attributed it to the King's discovery of Bute's too close intimacy with the Dowager Princess of Wales, and he relates the following curious anecdote:—

Princess Amelia, the King's aunt, formed a plan of bringing once more the King and the Earl of Bute together, and on a day when the King was to pay her a visit at her villa in Gunnersbury, near Brentford, she invited Lord Bute, probably without informing him of her foolish intention, and while Bute was walking in the garden, she took her nephew downstairs, saying, there was no one there but an old friend whom he had not seen for years, and before the King could ask any question, he saw Lord Bute in the garden; the King instantly turned round to avoid him, and reproved the silly old woman sharply, &c. To which the editor of the "Pictorial History of England" (Vol. v. p 44) adds:—"We know ourselves, from a living and indisputable authority, that George III. himself related this anecdote to a confidential friend and servant, omitting, however, the name of the lady."

On the same page (44) I found a letter addressed to a newspaper by Lord Mountard, son of Lord Bute, as follows:—

"He (Lord Bute) does authorise me to say, that he declares upon his solemn word of honour that he has not had the honour of waiting upon His Majesty but at his levée or drawing-room; nor has he presumed to offer any advice or opinion concerning the disposition of offices, or the conduct of any measure, either directly or indirectly, by himself or by any other, from the time when the late Duke of Cumberland was consulted in the arrangement of a ministry in 1765, to the present hour" (viz. 1778). So we see that all parties agree that the disseverance of friendship between the King and Lord Bute took place not later than 1765.

Now, Dunckerley's posthumous MS. in the Freemason's Magazine, 1796, written by himself, states that Dunckerley did not arrive in England before 7th November 1765, that an effort was made in 1766 to interest the Princess Amelia and the King's mother in his behalf, without success. But in April 1767 his misfortune, as he calls it, was laid before the King, and the King granted him £100 a year on the 7th of May following (1767). And now, I cannot help being very much puzzled; after reading the accumulated evidence of Bute's fall from favouritism in 1765, how any one can believe that a Viscount, and a friend of Bute, could have hinted in a letter to Dunckerley after 7th May 1767, that the Earl of Bute interceded with the King in behalf of Dunckerley in the month of April or May 1767?

The second letter to Dunckerley in the Freemason's Magazine was dated Edinburgh, 18th November 1767, and signed by James Adolphus Oughton. After condoling Bro. Dunckerley on the state of ill health of Mrs. Dunckerly, the writer added, "Mrs. Oughton joins me in wishing you all possible happiness," &c. The allusion by an English General and a K.B. too, to his wife as Mrs. Oughton, and not Lady Oughton, naturally puzzled me, and made me anxious to learn something about such an unheard of specimen of English aristocratic humility. After searching through a great many volumes for Gen. Oughton without success, I at last found a clue in the Gentleman's Magazine, 1793, Vol. 63, p 1216. The following is an obituary notice of the General's wife:—

"20th (probably of November), in Norton Street, Lady Oughton, widow of the late Lieutenant General Dickinson Oughton, K.B., who died about twelve years ago. He was the immediate descendant of Sir Adolphus Oughton, Bart., of Fletchbrook, in Warwickshire, M.P. for Coventry, who was created as we have recorded in our Volume VI., p 55," (viz. in 1736).

This is certainly a curious puzzle. The Gentleman's Magazine has it, Dickinson Oughton; the Freemason's Magazine calls him Gen. Adolphus Oughton, and the letter to Dunckerley is signed by James Adolphus Oughton. The puzzle is, were there at that time three Generals Oughton? a Sir Dickinson Oughton? a Sir Adolphus Oughton? and a Sir James Adolphus Oughton? Which is which?

The next puzzle is still more curious. I read the Dunckerley sketch in the Freemason's Magazine, 1793, in 1870. I had to consult the said Magazine since then, but never re-perused the sketch about Dunckerley. My subsequent reading about Dunckerley in Oliver's works and in several Masonic Cyclopædias, served to give me an impression that the increase of Dunckerley's pension from £100 to £800 was mentioned in the Freemason's Magazine in 1793. The Viscount's letter to Dunckerley (which Bro. "Q." reprinted) raised in my mind the Lord Bute Puzzle, which induced me to re-peruse the Dunckerley sketch in the magazine of 1793; and to my surprise I only found there that a "Great personage was graciously pleased to make a provision for him." In a subsequent part of this Dunckerley narrative the writer says, "by the munificence of his sovereign, the Prince of Wales, and Duke of York," Mr. Dunckerley was made comfortable,* but there is no evidence that the King increased Dunckerley's pension, nor is there £800 or any other amount specified in the said narrative.

It is a puzzle that while, according to Dunckerley's biographer in 1793, the Duke of Clarence did then figure as "Most Eminent and Supreme Grand Master of the Knights of Rose Crucius, Templars, and Kadosh," according to Bro. Kenning's Cyclopædia, the Duke of Clarence was not initiated into Masonry before 9th March 1796."

The autobiography of Dunckerley, printed after his death (already referred to), makes no allusion whatever to any subsequent addition to the £100 granted to him in 1767. The first mention of a subsequent increase to £800 in Dunckerley's income was by an anonymous

* The Prince of Wales and Duke of York were respectively born in 1762 and 1763. The former was initiated into Masonry February 1787, and the latter 21st November the same year. It is probable (for even that is a puzzle) that Dunckerley may have then introduced the R.A., Templarism, &c. among the Moderns, which of course led the ignorant to believe that he was an extraordinary Masonic luminary; and he may then have been pointed out to one or both of the royal brothers, as their left handed great grand uncle, whom the King had granted a pension of £100 a-year; and taking the grand uncleship for granted they may have made some addition to his income, or perhaps procured for him some rooms at Hampton Court. It is of course impossible to say as to how much the royal brothers may have contributed to Dunckerley's income; but as to their having increased it to £800 a-year, we must have a better authority for it than that of an anonymous Masonic writer in 1842.

writer in Bro. Crucefix's "Freemason's Quarterly," in 1842. All that is written there about Dunckerley was a re-hash from the Freemasons' Magazines of the last century. Volumes I., III. and VI. of the said publication are referred to by the writer in footnotes, and no other authority whatever is given there. Oliver, in his "Revelations of a Square," the Masonic Cyclopædists, and other Masonic writers, repeated the additions made to Dunckerley's biography in 1842, and these additions are now received as authentic Masonic history. The puzzle, however, here is, how came the writer in 1842 (forty-seven years after Dunckerley died) to know so many more matters about Dunckerley than either Dunckerley himself, his executors, or his eulogising friend and biographer the editor of the Freemason's Magazine of 1723, &c., seemed to know?

All we know of Dunckerley, emanating direct or indirect from himself, is contained in the four first volumes of the Freemason's Magazine of the last century. The first volume has Dunckerley's biography by the editor, to whom Dunckerley doubtless communicated his history, names, dates, &c. The fourth volume contains Dunckerley's autobiography printed from his own MS. by request of his executors; the second and third volumes contain his letters, addresses, &c.; among which there are three letters from Dunckerley to the Earl of Chesterfield, the second of these only has a date, viz., 1st June 1748. In the first volume the editor remarks, "But having no parliamentary interest, nor any friend in power that he (Dunckerley) knew of to assist him, his modest merit was sufficient to procure him a command," meaning the position of gunner.

Now, if Dunckerley had really corresponded with Lord Chesterfield as early as 1748, how could he have said that he had no friends in power that he knew of? Again, with the intimate acquaintance of Chesterfield, Ed. Walpole, and Gen. Oughton, is it not surprising that he did not immediately in 1760 communicate to them (especially to Lord Chesterfield) who had held high offices during the reign of George II., that the king was his father?

In Dunckerley's autobiography, Vol. IV. he stated that "soon after [1761] I was appointed by Lord Anson to be gunner of the Prince, a ship of second rate." Which certainly implies that it was his first appointment as gunner. But further on, in the same article, he says, that "At the siege of Louisburg, Admiral Boscawen granted me a warrant as teacher of the mathematics on board the Vanguard in addition to my being gunner of the same ship." Now, had the siege of Louisburg taken place after 1761, it would have been all right, and there would have been no puzzle. But the fact is, Louisburg was besieged and taken by the English in 1758, or three years before 1761; and if he was then already a gunner, why did he inform us of his appointment after 1761?"

It is wonderful that Dunckerley's history should be immersed and surrounded with so many puzzles; his parentage is a puzzle, his life and history up to the year 1760 is a puzzle, it is a puzzle as to where and when he was initiated into Masonry: it is a puzzle as to where and when he obtained the Royal Arch and other high degrees: it is a puzzle by what legal authority he established Chapters, Commanderies, Kadosh, &c. among the Moderns. The mysterious initials of the names in his letters are all puzzles. It is a puzzle that our professional Masonic writers were never puzzled with those puzzles. But the most bewildering puzzle of all puzzles is, that Masonic writers now should constantly manifest disapprobation and ill-feeling towards brethren who call attention to Masonic puzzles, including the Dunckerley puzzles.

I must here ask,—Why cannot some one ascertain and publish as to when Dunckerley introduced the high degrees? When the Grand Master appointed him to so many Provincial Grand Masterships? And as to when the G.L. made him a P.G.S.W.? Surely these facts ought to be ascertained from records in the Grand Secretary's office.

Westall S.D. 54, J. C. Airs 140, R. J. Turney I.G. 2, R. Sullivan 140, J. Winship I.G. 63, J. Getcliffe 140, G. W. Munt 140, H. Stone 54, and others. The minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, the accounts of the P.G.M. Lodge were produced by the auditors, showing a small balance in hand. The P.G.M. Master having completed a second period of three years' service, the D.P.G.M. Master, Bro. Hickman, proposed that his name should be again submitted to the Grand Mark Master for re-appointment to the office, this was seconded by Gen. Hooper P.P.G.J.W., and received the unanimous assent of the P.G. Lodge, there being a general feeling of satisfaction that the Lodge should be presided over by a Past Grand Master of England who took such an interest in the degree. It being the turn of this Prov. Grand Mark Lodge to nominate a brother as Grand Steward, Bro. Le Feuvre P.G.M. Sec. proposed that the name of Bro. R. L. Loveland, P.P.G.J.W., should be forwarded to the Grand Master for such an appointment. This was seconded by Bro. Parkhouse, and resolved on unanimously. Some alterations in the by-laws relating to the receipt and payment of moneys belonging to P.G.M. Lodge having been made, it became the melancholy duty of the P.G. Lodge to elect a successor to the present P.G.M. Treasurer, Bro. J. Lillywhite of Portsmouth, who since his election last year had been attacked with serious illness, which, under existing circumstances, gave no prospect of recovery. The D.P.G. Master proposed that Bro. R. L. Loveland should be elected Treasurer, and took the opportunity of drawing attention to the interest always taken by Bro. Loveland in the Order, and that the appointment would be peculiarly appropriate considering the connection of that brother with London, Ryde, and the Mainland. Bro. G. F. Lancaster P.P.G.I.W. seconded the proposition, which was very cordially and unanimously carried. The P.G. Secretary read an abstract of the returns of the Lodges of the Province, showing that they were in a fairly satisfactory state. A vote of £5 5s having been made to the Mark Benevolent Fund, and a very sincere expression of sympathy having been ordered to be sent by the P.G. Secretary to Mrs. Lillywhite on her husband's illness, the P.G. Master appointed his Officers as follow:—

The minute books of the Lodges were then examined, giving occasion to a few "admonitions" on the part of the P.G. Master, after which an adjournment was made to the Fountain Hotel, where a very excellent dinner had been provided, and the brethren satisfied the wants of the inner man, whilst indulging in mutual congratulations on the success of the meeting, which the sun had favoured with its presence, making its appearance it was said, for the first time this year.

VIEWS ON CHARITY VOTING.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I shall not waste time in attempting argument with Bro. Simpson. It is utterly futile to do so, as his superb egotism carries everything before it. "I am Sir Oracle, and when I ope my mouth let no dog bark!" So be it!

Neither will I discuss "antecedents," nor reply to vague insinuations.

The odium of being a paid Officer I am content to share with Cabinet Ministers, great Officers of State, Judges, legal and other officials, the Archbishops, Bishops, and Clergy generally, including, as I believe, your reverend correspondent, all of whom receive remuneration for their services, and freely express their views and opinions within the immediate sphere of their respective duties.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

FREDERICK BINCKES.

21st July 1879.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I have read the letters of the Rev. Bro. Simpson and Bro. Binckes, and regret they have not expended their ink and paper on some other question. I am assured Bro. Simpson is sincere in what he undertakes, but I am convinced his views are not palatable to the Craft at large. I am not one to urge that there are not abuses in the present system, but Bro. Simpson has not propounded any scheme, so far as I am aware, that will remedy these abuses. I almost fear that evil effects will result if the antagonistic proclivities of your two correspondents are allowed further to develope themselves.

Yours sincerely,

AMICUS.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—The Great Need.—The blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence. These Pills thoroughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthen and invigorate the whole sytem, healthily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills commends them to the favour of debilitated and nervous constitutions which they soon resuscitate. They dislodge all obstructions, both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF SURREY.

THE members of the Province of Surrey assembled, under the banner of the Royal Albert Edward Lodge, at Redhill, on Tuesday, when the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master General Studholme Brownrigg, C.B., was supported by his Deputy, the V.W. Brother the Rev. C. W. Arnold, M.A., Past G. Chap., and a large number of past and present Grand Officers and brethren of the Province, with a distinguished band of Visitors. On the assembling and opening of Grand Lodge, the first business transacted was the calling over the Lodges in the Province. The roll now includes nineteen, viz.:—

Of these all, with the exception of Nos. 777 and 1591, were represented, a most satisfactory result. The minutes of the last Provincial Grand Lodge meeting held at Dorking, in July last, were read and confirmed. The report of the Finance and Audit Committee showed the monetary condition of the Province was most satisfactory. The Committee recommended that grants of fifteen guineas be made to each of the Charitable Institutions belonging to the Craft—the Girls' School, the Boys' School, and the Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons. It was also recommended that a sum of five guineas be voted to the Redhill and Reigate Cottage Hospital. The brethren were unanimous in their vote for the re-election of Bro. Price as Prov. Grand Treasurer, and the Prov. Grand Master reinvested that worthy brother. The recommendations for the several grants enumerated above were then confirmed by Prov. Grand Lodge, and the R.W. Grand Master reappointed V.W. Bro. Arnold P.G.C. as his Deputy for the ensuing twelve months, gracefully expressing his indebtedness to Bro. Arnold for his services, and his appreciation of the way in which the duties were carried out. The following is a list of those who received the several collars for the year:—

After the appointments, Gen. Brownrigg addressed the members of his Province. He commenced by remarking that he had not much to communicate to them, but he could not omit to tender his thanks for the way in which they had responded to his summons. He was pleased to state that since last they met one new child had been added to their family, and that applications had been made for two other warrants; in one of these cases, however, he had thought it advisable to discountenance the application, on the principle that it might trench somewhat on the ground comprised in the area of a Lodge already working. He professed his regret that other engagements had not left him so much time for visiting the Lodges as he might have desired, but his Deputy in this respect had rendered him invaluable service. He directed the attention of the members of certain Lodges to the irregularity they exhibited in not sending both Bro. Arnold and himself notice when they were about to meet; he desired this might invariably be done. He much preferred dropping in at a Lodge quietly, when they were about to transact their ordinary business, to attending on installation nights or special occasions. Gen. Brownrigg then made passing allusion to some dissensions that had occurred in days gone by, and how gratified he was that on the occasion he referred to his suggestion that he might be allowed to arbitrate on the question at issue had been entertained. He urged on the brethren that when disagreeable matters arose, that they should avoid paying attention to reports, which were often greatly exaggerated, and had a tendency to foster rather than to suppress strife. He announced that he had received letters of regret from Masters of adjoining Provinces—Sir Daniel Gooch, Col. Burdett, Sir W. W. Burrell—at their inability to be present on this occasion, and closed his remarks by again thanking the brethren for their attendance. The general business matters of the Province were then considered, and a notice of motion that had been given by V.W. Bro. the Rev. C. W. Arnold, M.A., Deputy Provincial Grand Master, "That the Charity Jewel shall be given by Provincial Grand Lodge to Masons of the Province who have served as Stewards of the three Charities," was discussed. Some diversity of opinion seemed to arise as to how far this rule, if adopted, should be extended, and Bro. Dr. Strong moved an amendment. Bro. H. E. Frances P.P.G.S.D. also seemed to think that sufficient time had not been allowed for the consideration of the proposal, whereupon he moved that the question stand over till the next meeting of Provincial Grand Lodge. This amendment was put to the meeting and carried, thus disposing of the question at issue for twelve months, by which time, doubtless, the brethren will have considered the proposal in its various bearings, and a unanimity of feeling will be arrived at. Prov. Grand Lodge was then closed. Bro. Henry Brass, M.A., F.G.S., Incumbent of St. Matthias, Red Hill, had, with characteristic courtesy placed his church at the disposal of Prov. Grand Lodge, and personally conducted a short service. The sermon was preached by the Prov. Grand Chaplain the Rev. James Amos, from Jude 20. We have great pleasure in reproducing the discourse of our Rev. Brother.

"But ye, beloved, building up yourselves on your most holy faith."

To be happy is a general design. To communicate happiness is a design good and great The pursuit of happiness is not universally successful. Nothing is more sedulously sought for, but nothing is more constantly eluding the grasp. A form, we fancy to be hers, attracts the step in every period of life; but the ardent follower finds, too often, that he has been chasing a cold, lifeless, cheating, unsatisfying vision. Man is ever seeking some refuge from the cares, the anxieties, the sorrows of life; but it is a constant experience to find all chance of escape, apparently, cut off at every point; blow after blow falling upon a crushed and wounded spirit; and so, faint and bleeding, as it were, he staggers on, to receive the last sad stroke, that lays him lifeless in the tomb. Happiness is so rarely attained to, because it is sought for in a wrong direction. The idea is too fondly cherished, that pleasure, honour, influence, ease and wealth, which seems to command them all, are the accompaniments of happiness: are the potent charms, that summon her to our presence, and compel her to bring her sweetness to our hearts. The qualifications of rank and fortune are but external. And those, truly, are wisely taught, who are instructed to prize them very lightly, in comparison with more solid, more precious, more gratifying acquisitions of honour and virtue. The secret of happiness is found in what we are; not in what we have. In following the straight and undeviating line of conduct, marked out for our pursuits in the volume of the sacred writings, we are ever accompanied by a stream from those rivers of pleasure which are at God's right hand for evermore. There is such an adaptation to our nature and condition, in living according to the unerring standard of truth and justice, which God, in His wisdom, has afforded us; and there is, besides, so great a blessing which God, in His approval, makes to attend upon the steps of that man, whose simple aim is, that his words and actions may ascend, pure and unpolluted, to the throne of grace; that such a course is ever marked, by a serenity unknown to others. That blessed book, which is given as the rule and guide of our faith, is full of illustrations, to win us on to lead this holy, this happy life. Sometimes it is suggested to our mind, as the growth of some beautiful tree, whose verdure betrays that her branches are full of sap; or again, as in the passage before us, it is very frequently likened to the erection of some stately and superb edifice. Dwelling on this latter view, I conceive that each man should be building up himself according to the draft or plan delineated by God. His eye should ever be upon the pattern which has been laid down in direct commands; upon the models exhibited in the recorded lives of the good and great. And, above all, upon the perfect example of Him, in whom dwelt all the fullness of the Godhead bodily. In building up a character approved by God, a great advance has been made, when you have attained to some meekness, and lowliness of heart. When, guided into that most interesting of human studies, the knowledge of yourself, you are affected with such a sense of your own imperfections, that you are ready to believe that others are better than what you are. You will have reached no small eminence in good things, if you are taught to bend, with humility, and resignation, to the will of your Heavenly Father. If you learn to repose with confidence upon the wisdom of the dispensations of divine providence; in the comforting assurance that all things work together for good to those who love God. You have added an imposing height to the structure of your mind, when Charity, when heavenly love, becomes, in very truth, the predominant characteristic of your heart. When you have attained to this virtue, in its fullest sense, you may justly realise that you are planting a summit to the whole edifice. This is that virtue which, enjoying the approbation of heaven as well as earth, enables the possessor to judge with candour, to admonish with friendship, and to reprehend with mercy: which moves him to drop a tear of sympathy on the failings of a brother, and to pour the healing balm of consolation into the bosom of the afflicted. In the estimation of God, he who has this virtue has his grasp upon a most excellent gift; and he who has it not, is poor indeed, is absolutely nothing. As you have it, you already hold communion with the skies; as you fail of it, you are of the earth, and earthy. But when character is regarded as a building, it is not so much this virtue, and that, which you are to introduce, but it is a certain symmetry, an harmonious union of them all, which is looked for. Benevolence, and charity, will shine out with their appropriate lustre; prudence will direct you, temperance chasten you, fortitude support you, and justice will be the guide of all your actions. The whole figure implies that arduous toil should be brought to bear upon the work. And on the other hand, it is not suggested that modest quiet as well as persistent labour is mostly associated with real and satisfactory advance. The gorgeous palace rises amid comparative silence. The materials, mainly brought from a distance and fashioned far away, are placed in their position, without unmeaning noise and obtrusive tumult. This was a special feature in the erection of King Solomon's Temple. The peculiar sacredness of the building, and its evident intention, as an illustration of the suitable development of the powers of man, called for this, in an eminent degree. Each stone was, at a distance, smoothed and rendered fit for the hand of the more experienced workman, and by him the elaboration was carried on so far, that it had only to be brought to the site, and quietly raised, and gently put into its place. Silently, and steadily, the Temple rose, like the quiet opening out of some beauteous flower, and so it was that in the rearing of that structure, whose final magnificence drew out the applause of men, with one simultaneous accord,

"No ponderous axes rung;
Like some tall palm, the wondrous fabric sprung."

In this transitory life, we are never destined to reach to the complete realisation of that sketch of goodness, which has been defined for our instruction. But the whole analogy, which we have been considering, is altogether without meaning, if we are making no progress in the right direction; if there is no growth in goodness, however small. We expect the tower, which is left unfinished and abandoned by the builders, to be soon taken up by ill-omened and destructive birds, to be miserably exposed to the cruel gusts of howling tempests, and speedily to fall into a ruin. In the arduous undertaking of the good man's life, we may be thankful for any assistance we can get. And, herein, I linger for a moment to-day, on the obvious advantage we derive from the companionship of just and upright men—of men, from whose converse we may gather recreation, consolation, sympathy, and instruction; from whose lives we may get the force of example, and the stimulus of emulation. It is possible that the casual observer may imagine that there is some quaintness in the forms and procedure of that ancient institution, in connection with which we meet to day: but so to the mere passer by may appear the helpful but intricate scaffolding, which covers the walls of some stately palace, which by its assistance is rising unseen in all beauty behind. A firm but humble confidence may surely be felt, in the substantial value of our association, inasmuch as it is founded on the purest principles of piety and virtue; as it directs us, as a first duty, to the serious contemplation of the Word of God: as it is ever bidding us to repair to that divine source from which alone grace and help are to be found; and makes it a chief concern that we should be building up ourselves, on our most holy faith. As we are fighting with temptation, grappling with duty, and struggling with sorrow, sweet and friendly, and safe, is the voice that calls us to live in the light and love of God; that teaches us the practice of prayer; that cheers us with the hope of salvation; through Him who was once as a stone, rejected; but who is now, to those who trust Him, a corner stone, a tried stone, a sure foundation; and who, hereafter, will dawn upon the world a morning star, to bring peace, and tranquillity to the faithful and obedient of the human race. In this congregation, there is not one who is not bound by serious obligations to carry on the arduous, but happy work of self-discipline and self-improvement—indeed, with many the calls to it must be so frequent, and so loud, that there is some danger lest they should get habituated to them, and may fail to receive the appropriate effect: and so they may become content, that comparatively few should tread, alone, the high and difficult path of religious virtue—insensible, alike of their own great loss, and to the discouraging effect upon those about them, who are entitled to the invigorating influences of bright, wholesome, and elevating example. But I am persuaded better things of you, beloved. You will strive so to live as to convince the world that you are fired with a holy ambition to excel in what is good, and great. You will I trust make it abundantly clear that your efforts are all tending to enable you to serve God more faithfully, to lead better lives yourselves, and to do more good to others.

The Banquet was served at the Public Hall, under the presidency of Gen. Brownrigg, who, on the removal of the cloth, gave the Loyal and Masonic toasts. He referred to Her Most Gracious Majesty as the daughter of a Mason, the mother of Masons, and urged that, in the order of things, she might be expected to become the grandmother of Masons. In giving the health of the M.W. the Grand Master, Gen. Brownrigg remarked that the social position of the Prince of Wales had unquestionably tended to increase the interest in our Order. Still, he could but think that, without these adventitious aids, Freemasonry would have held its own. In speaking to the toast of the M.W. Pro G.M. the Earl of Carnarvon, the D.G.M. Lord Skelmersdale, and Grand Officers Present and Past, the Prov. Grand Master said all were represented; we have with us to-night Bro. Giddy D.G.M. Griqualand, Bro. Arnold Past Grand Chaplain—but of him more anon; and Lieut.-Col. Shadwell Clerke. He would call on Bro. Giddy to reply. Bro. Giddy could not but consider it a very high compliment paid him in selecting him as respondent for Grand Officers. On their behalf he tendered his sincere thanks. With regard to the Pro Grand Master and the Deputy Grand Master no better men could be found. Personally, he experienced great pleasure in being present that day. In the words of the song with which they were to be favoured with next—"From the desert he came;" Griqualand was a matter of some 8000 miles distant. He would tender his best thanks for the reception given him. After Bro. Lawler had sang the song referred to, Bro. Rev. C. W. Arnold proposed the health of the Provincial Grand Master, and made special mention of the care displayed by Gen. Brownrigg in his consideration of the several claims of those who were deemed eligible for office. The Prov. G.M. in reply said that the toast, as a matter of course, was one that was given with cordiality and drunk with geniality. He was convinced the brethren of his Province thought well of him. Remarks had frequently been made that he was a business man; no man who had been tried as a soldier (and he was sorry to say he had been 47 years one) could help acquiring habits of business. He had had, in his Province, throughout, a support and cordial welcome wherever he went. He had succeeded a brother who in his day was very popular, and he felt that brother's mantle had fallen on him. He would now direct their attention to the next toast he had the honour to propose—The health of the V.W. the D.G.M. of Surrey, and the Prov. Grand Officers Present and Past—in giving this toast he felt particularly fortunate in having so able a Deputy. He had compared notes with other Provincial Grand Masters, and he had come to the conclusion that he was singularly fortunate, and he expressed this conviction openly and freely. As for the Provincial Grand Officers they always ably supported him, and he felt grateful for the kindness at all times shown. Bro. Arnold acknowledged the hearty way in which the toast had been received, and thanked the Prov. Grand Master for the kind things he had said of him. Bro. Arnold then briefly urged on the brethren the advantages to be derived from carrying out a uniform system of working throughout the Province, and advocated the establishment of Lodges of Instruction. He forcibly urged that brethren should not be placed into chairs until they had evidenced that they possessed the qualifications requisite to perform the duties that devolved upon them; and impressed upon the members of the Province the desirability of establishing a Board of Installed Masters who should decide upon the fitness of candidates for office. For the Visitors Bros. Lieut.-Col. Shadwell Clerke and the Rev. Henry Brass, Incumbent of St. Matthew's, Redhill, replied; the Provincial Grand Treasurer and Provincial Grand Secretary's claims for recognition were not overlooked; both these brethren replied, Bro. Greenwood reminding the members of Prov. Grand Lodge that this was the twenty-fifth time Bro. Price and he had been entrusted with the collars of their respective offices. In proposing success to the entertaining Lodge, Genl. Brownrig commented on the admirable way in which the day's proceedings had been conducted, and the compliment paid them was acknowledged by Bros. Major Gant and Officer. In speaking to the toast of the W.M. and Wardens of the other Lodges in the Province, reference was made to the desire Gen. Brownrigg had previously expressed that he desired all the offices should be considered as of equal value; with this toast was associated the name of Bro. Buckland. The proceedings throughout were very agreeable, and eminently satisfactory. The collection made after the service realised £4 12s 6d, and this amount was expended in clearing a debt that had attached itself to the local Ragged Schools. The musical arrangements of the day were entrusted to Bro. John Rhodes, P.P.G. Org., who had secured the services of the veteran Bro. T. Lawler and Bros. Baxter and G. T. Carter. The Tyler gave the final toast of the day, and the brethren separated.

PROV. GRAND LODGE OF HERTFORDSHIRE.

THE brethren of the county of Hertfordshire were fortunate in having selected a fine day for their annual gathering in Prov. Grand Lodge, for Wednesday last brought us indeed almost the first taste of summer that we have this year enjoyed. Although it has been an accident almost to obtain a gleam of sunshine for any event within the past few months, the goddess Fortune smiled most benignantly upon the brethren as they streamed into the old-fashioned but picturesque little town of Berkhampstead, to participate in the festivities which had been marked out for the day. The Castle grounds were merry with the laughter of a host of Sunday School children, who had come from Watford by the same train in which the brethren from the up stations travelled, and it being market day, the principal street presented an unusually lively appearance. Towards three o'clock there was a goodly muster of Prov. Grand Officers and brethren at the Town Hall, which had been secured for the event, and Herts may be congratulated this year upon the very satisfactory attendance, under the banner of the Berkhampstead Lodge 504. Prov. Grand Lodge was opened at three o'clock by a procession of Grand Officers, who were received with the usual acclaim by the brethren assembled. The R.W. Bro. T. F. Halsey, M.P., Prov. The proceedings having been opened in due form, and with prayer, offered by the Prov. Grand Chaplain, the roll of Prov. Grand Officers and of Lodges was called, the responses showing that not one Lodge in the Province was unrepresented. The Prov. Grand Secretary then read the minutes of the last Prov. Grand Lodge, which were confirmed and signed by the Prov. G.M. The election of Prov. Grand Treasurer was next proceeded with, and a letter was read from Bro. Alfred James Copeland, tendering the office he has for some years held as Treasurer, stating that his many engagements prevented him from bestowing that time upon the duties that he wished. It was then resolved, on the motion of Bro. T. S. Carter, seconded by Bro. J. Terry, that Bro. F. Sumner Knyvett be elected to the office. Bro. W. Wilson, Grand Purs. of England, moved a vote of thanks to Bro. Copeland for the very able and satisfactory manner in which he had carried out the duties of Prov. Grand Treasurer, and that the Prov. Grand Secretary be instructed to convey to Bro. Copeland the thanks of Prov. Grand Lodge in the usual way. This was agreed to amidst loud applause. Bro. Knyvett, in acknowledging the compliment paid to him, expressed the hope that he might carry out the duties in such a way as would entitle him to a similar mark of esteem and appreciation as had just been paid to Bro. Copeland. The Provincial Grand Master expressed his cordial concurrence in the vote which had been passed to Bro. Copeland, and was quite sure that although they had secured a worthy successor in the person of Bro. Knyvett, they all regretted very much the loss of Bro. Copeland's services. The Prov. G.M., before investing his Officers, said he was about to appoint Bro. Fredk. H. Wilson Iles, their Prov. Grand Sec. and P.M. of the Watford Lodge 404, as Deputy Prov. G.M. for the ensuing five years. He took this opportunity of expressing his thanks to Bro. J. Sedgwick, his present Deputy, and a well-known Mason in the Province, for the cordial way in which he had supported him during his tenure of office. In accordance with the custom in the Province, the office of Dep. G.M. was held for a certain period, and Bro. Sedgwick's time having expired, he had placed his collar at the disposal of the Prov. G.M., who now bestowed it upon their late Prov. G. Sec. Bro. Iles then took the obligation, and was invested with his collar and jewel amidst the loud cheering of the brethren. The following Prov. Grand Officers were then appointed for the ensuing year:—Bros. W. H. Rowe P.M. 504 Prov. G.S.W., T. S. Carter P.M. 403 Prov. G.J.W., Rev. Oswell Thompson and W. H. W. Casely Prov. G. Chaplains, F. Thomas 504 and T. Wright 403 (re-elected) P.G. Tylers. It was subsequently moved by Bro. T. S. Carter, and seconded by the Prov. G. Sec., that the sum of twenty guineas be voted from the funds of Provincial Grand Lodge to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. This was carried unanimously, and it was also resolved, on the motion of Bro. Terry, seconded by the Deputy Prov. G. Master, that the sum of ten pounds be voted to the Berkhampstead Lodge towards defraying the expenses of entertaining Provincial Grand Lodge. Bro. T. S. Carter moved, and Bro. W. Wilson seconded, that the sum of ten guineas be voted from the funds of Provincial Grand Lodge to the West Herts Infirmary at Hemel Hempstead,—Carried. The Deputy Prov. G. Master next proposed, and the Prov. G. Master seconded, that pursuant to the recommendation from the Board of Finance to Provincial Grand Lodge, the sum of twenty-five pounds be contributed to the fund being raised amongst the Masons of England for the restoration of the West Front of St. Albans Abbey. This was carried by acclamation. It was also agreed, on the motion of the Prov. G. Sec., and seconded by Bro. Terry, that the publication of the Provincial Calendar be continued. After some formal business had been transacted, Prov. Grand Lodge was closed in ample form, and the brethren subsequently repaired to the King's Arms Hotel, where a most recherché banquet was provided by Mrs. Lane. Notwithstanding the presence of a much larger attendance of guests than had been anticipated, the arrangements were carried out in admirable style, and reflected the highest credit on the proprietress of the hotel and her staff of assistants. The dining-hall was handsomely decorated with flags, shields and various devices, whilst the tables were prettily set out with vases and epergnes of exquisite flowers, which emitted a delightful fragrance and imparted a picturesque aspect to the room. At the conclusion of the tempting menu the customary Loyal and Masonic toasts were given from the chair, and were most enthusiastically received.

In proposing the health of the R.W. Prov. Grand Master, Bro. Sedgwick said he was quite sure it was a toast which the brethren would receive with enthusiasm. Speaking for himself, he had reason to be deeply grateful to the Prov. G.M. for the honourable position he had been enabled to fill during the past five years. Their Grand Master had given him an opportunity, as an old Mason, but who had grown rather rusty, of reviving the work which he did forty years ago. He valued and appreciated the manner in which the Prov. Grand Master had performed his duties, and he had great pleasure in asking the brethren to join with him in drinking to his health. He wished the hon. member many years of happiness and prosperity, and he only expressed the sentiments of all present when he hoped that he would long continue to adorn the Order of which he was now so bright an ornament. The toast was received with loud cheers, and in responding the Prov. Grand Master said if it had given the proposer of this toast half as much pleasure to belong to the Craft during the last five years as it had himself to preside over this Province, then he was sure Bro. Sedgwick must be highly satisfied. No Prov. Grand Master, whether under the English Constitution or any other, ever had a pleasanter Grand Lodge to preside over than this. He could only say it gave him very great pleasure to come amongst them, under the banner of one of the Lodges of which he was a subscribing member as well as Grand Master, and in a neighbourhood in which he had passed most of his life. He augured from this very successful gathering that the Province would go on and flourish. Within the last year they had consecrated another Lodge at Hemel Hempstead, one of the last towns in the county of any size in which a Masonic Lodge was wanted. He did hear of a little hostile feeling on the part of some brethren in a neighbouring town, which he would not name, who thought it would somewhat interfere with their Lodge; but he thought there was ample room for both. Both were flourishing, and he did not see why there should not be a good Lodge in both towns. He considered it was a mistake to have too large a Lodge, for though it might come a little cheaper, they ran the risk of having coteries formed, and so on. Therefore, he saw no reason why these two Lodges should not prosper. He sincerely trusted the Province would go on, for it certainly had taken a wonderful stride during the past few years, and he wished it to flourish so long, at all events, as he had the honour of presiding over it. He assured them that nothing should be wanting on his part to make it both harmonious and successful. They knew he had duties in another place, duties which had been of unparalleled hardness of late, which called him away; but he asked them to join with him in drinking the next toast—the Visitors. Hospitality was one of the great virtues of a Freemason's heart, and he should ask them, therefore, to drink the health of the visitors who had honoured them with their company. He associated with the toast the name of his friend Bro. L'Estrange, W.M. of No. 10, who responded. He and the Prov. Grand Master were many years at Eton together, and they went to Oxford about the same time, and therefore it was with great pleasure he was the guest of their Prov. Grand Master that evening. Moreover, they saw the light together in the Apollo University Lodge, and occasionally they met in that London Lodge of which they were both members, the Westminster and Keystone. He thanked the company from his heart for the cordiality with which they had received the mention of his name in connection with the toast. The Prov. G. M. next proposed the V.W. Deputy Prov. G.M. and the rest of the Prov. Grand Officers Present and Past. He trusted that the reception they gave the toast was but an earnest that they had not altogether unappreciated the selection which it had been his endeavour to make that day. He had chosen the best and most leading men, so far as he could understand, in the Lodges of this Province. He coupled with the toast the name of Bro. F. H. Wilson Iles, who had been known to them for many years past as their most efficient Prov. G. Sec., who in that capacity had done a great deal for the Province, and had rendered him assistance such as he should never forget to the close of his existence. He sincerely trusted Bro. Iles might be spared to perform, in his (the speaker's) absence, the duties which would now devolve upon him. But he had another name which he wished also to associate with this toast, and he should be remiss indeed if he did not mention the name of his late Deputy G.M. Bro. Sedgwick. For many years, as the elder brethren knew, he filled the office of Prov. G. Sec. Since he had had the honour of presiding over the Craft in his Province in the position of Deputy, he had gained the esteem and affection of every brother, and he would live long in the hearts of every one in the Province. Bro. Iles said more eloquence than he could command was necessary in responding to this toast. He felt sincerely the honour which had been done him to-day, and assured them it should be his earnest endeavour to carry out the duties of his office efficiently, and to support the Prov. Grand Master in all his undertakings in the Province. The Prov. Grand Officers were not the men he took them to be if they rested on their laurels. They would do their work in their respective Lodges, and he felt sure the brethren were satisfied with the choice which their Prov. Grand Master had made to-day. On his own part, he hoped that during the next five years he should do credit to the choice made in his own appointment, although he felt some regret at relinquishing the Office of Grand Sec.; yet he should look back with satisfaction and pleasure upon the kindness he had invariably received at their hands. He had made many personal friends during that time, and he trusted he had made very few, if any, enemies. He felt it a great honour to succeed to this high office, and again thanked them for the cordiality with which they had received the toast. Bro. J. Sedgwick also suitably replied to the toast. The Deputy Prov. Grand Master then proposed "The Masonic Charities," in doing which he intimated that he proposed next year going up as a Steward for the Boys' School, and he should take it as a great compliment if the brethren of the Province would liberally support him in that undertaking. Bro. Terry, whose name was coupled with the toast, said when they considered that the youngest Lodge in the Province was numbered something like 1750, and that now on the roll of Grand Lodge there were Lodges numbering as high as 1832, they could form some idea of the growth of the Craft during the past nine months, during which time no less than eighty Lodges had been added to the roll. The claims also upon the benevolence of the Craft had correspondingly increased, and he was sorry to say that at the next election of candidates for the Girls' School, in October, they would be in the unfortunate position of having 48 candidates with only 18 vacancies. There would have been only nine had it not been that nine additional admissions had been placed upon the list. With respect to the boys, at the next election there would be 72 candidates and only 16 to be elected. In the Benevolent Institution, which he trusted was not the least important, there would be, he was afraid, a list of something like 80 candidates, and at the present time there was the prospect of only 16 vacancies. During the last five years this Province had taken a position it had never assumed in the Craft, and he attributed it to their being presided over by their present Prov. Grand Master. During that time he had had the honour of seeing two Lodges added to the roll; and this, when they remembered the peculiar position in which Herts was placed, unlike the populous manufacturing districts, was very satisfactory. Thanks to the energy of their Prov. G. Master and the brethren who took the position of Stewards, this Province stood No. 1 in the list of subscriptions this year for the Girls' School. He hoped and trusted this might go on. There were 207 girls being clothed, fed, and educated in their magnificent Institution at Battersea Rise; 217 boys were in like manner being educated at Wood Green; and under the Benevolent Institution there were 303 annuitants. These Institutions needed and deserved a great amount of support, and he was happy to say that notwithstanding the depression in trade, the support accorded to them during the past few years had in no way diminished, but had actually increased. He concluded by urging the brethren to support their Deputy Grand Master in his position as Steward next year. The Lodges of the Province was then given, coupled with the name of the W.M. of Berkhampstead Lodge, who responded, and the official list closed with the Tyler's toast. The speeches of the evening were interspersed with vocal and instrumental selections of music, given in admirable style by Bros. Seymour Smith, Upstone and Lord. This part of the day's arrangements was under the direction of Bro. J. F. Haskins.

NON-AFFILIATION.

From the "Masonic Newspaper."

PROBABLY no spectre has ever arised which threatens to do so much towards disturbing the harmony, and even endanger the life of the institution, as this one of "non-affiliation for non-payment of dues," and still by a singular exhibition of blindness to its best interests, this evil has its origin, and receives its nourishment, from within "the household of the faithful."

That it was the evident design of the originators to render the institution a blessing, and not a burden to its votaries, no one well read in Masonic history will for an instant question; and how far that amiable purpose has been distorted, we call upon all thinking members of the Order to "Read, Consider and Digest." In the olden time this question of annual dues was an unknown quantity in the great problem of Masonic life, the Lodges being regarded in the light of social and charitable clubs, supported by the voluntary contributions of the brethren, and by small fines imposed for non-attendance or breaches of the bye-laws, which were paid cheerfully. From this fund the debts contracted by the Lodge were paid, leaving a handsome margin from which charity was dispensed, and that, too, with no niggard hand. "Boards of Relief" were unheard of, and Freemasonry made rapid strides upon the highway to success and prosperity.

Freemasonry grew and flourished, until the year 1873 found it in this country and state, and from that time until the present, all who read Masonic journals are familiar with the difficulties which it has been called upon to encounter.

Where, or at what time, the present system of annual dues originated, history does not inform us, so we feel obliged to consider it "an invention of the enemy," for its influence has been evil, and its result promises to be disastrous to the Fraternity in this and every similarly burdened jurisdiction; like "the old man of the mountain," it is tightening a fatal grasp round the neck of one of the grandest institutions ever devised for the benefit of man, and unless, like Sinbad, the Fraternity fling off this incubus, who shall predict its fate?

It is a well-known fact that the great mass of those who make up the Masonic Fraternity in the State of New York are far from being millionaires; they are, on the contrary, hard-working men who, in the main, depend upon their daily labour for support. That this class forms also the most desirable material for our Lodges must be a fact, patent to every observing brother. Since the stagnation of business in 1873, many worthy and deserving brothers have, from causes over which they have no control, been gradually getting into arrears with their Lodges, and perhaps also Chapters, Commanderies, Councils, and Scottish Rite Bodies, until to remove the load proved a task beyond their means. These unfortunate brothers may have occupied positions of honour in the several bodies with which they were connected, performing their tasks with dignity, and in a manner which reflected credit upon the Fraternity; does this fact assist them in the hour of necessity? Not at all; had they been drones, instead of the busy bees which they were, the consequences would have been none the less harsh.

In the midst of domestic misfortune or financial oppression comes additional adversity, and that, too, from an unexpected quarter. Throughout the grand principles of Freemasonry we find the beautiful sentiments of "brotherly love, relief, and truth" held up, not only for the admiration of an unbelieving world, but for the consolation of unfortunate members of the Society. The sentiments in themselves are truly grand, and certainly God-inspired, for they teach lessons derived from the known "Word," the "Great Light" of the Institution. Let us consider, however, the wide difference which exists between profession and practice, as here plainly exemplified, and following out our suppositious case, state that the brother holds membership in Lodge, Chapter, Commandery and Council, and is equally enthusiastic and delighted in his connection with all of these bodies. His dues accrue, and at the same time house rent becomes due, or some little bill for household necessities demands payment, and here comes the difficulty. In the struggle between his Masonic pride and zeal and the home demands, naturally—for the Institution teaches that "a man must be a kind husband and an indulgent father"—he satisfies the cravings of his family, and receives a summons from the Craft to pay his dues or show cause why he should not be stricken from the roll.

His feelings are hurt, and in many cases the warm partizan is transformed into either a cold, careless unaffiliate or an outspoken opponent of the once beloved Order. What should he have done?—gone before the several bodies where he had once served long and faithfully, and humbled still further the little honest pride left within him for an institution which dealt a death-blow to an already wronged and injured brother? We say no—a thousand times no! Better sever at once the connection, and bury the past than ask for that charity which is plainly taught by the institution as belonging to him of right, and which is wrongfully withheld by a perversion of the landmarks of Freemasonry. The brother, to maintain his dignity, suffers himself to be stricken from the roll, the voting being done, perhaps, by brethren fresh from the preparation room, and who are consequently in ignorance of the time, labour and substance which he had expended to give them the privilege which they so wofully misused.

Look at the consequences of this action, and compare the Masonic status of this unfortunate brother with that of the wrongdoer, one who had been expelled from the Order: the one suffers for his poverty equally with he who had violated his solemn engagements. The expelled brother is permitted, according to the laws of New York, to petition for restoration, and can then affiliate with any Lodge upon the payment of a small fee; the un-affiliate can rejoin his Lodge, but must pay all his indebtedness from the time at which he was "dropped" up to his re-affiliation; thus plainly paying for all the time during which he suffered by the denial of "Masonic rites and benefits." That this is unjust, is, in our opinion, to put it very mildly.

The result of this perversion of Masonic doctine is that with every year the institution loses, instead of gaining strength; old war-horses are led out to die in the cold, and desirable material from which to make Masons become frightened off by the exhibition of unkindness so plainly seen upon every side. This is all wrong; it is un-Masonic and uncharitable in the highest degree; it makes poverty not a misfortune, but a crime, for which additional punishment must be heaped upon the offender, and Masonic landmarks perverted in order that he may be made to feel the heinousness of his guilt.

The "Great Light" declares "Woe unto him who shall remove a Landmark," and we add woe unto Freemasonry unless this great wrong is righted, and that speedily.

CONSECRATION OF THE ST. ANDREW'S LODGE, No. 1817, SHOEBURYNESS.

AMONG the first Masonic duties that have fallen to the lot of the newly appointed Grand Master of Essex (Lord Tenterden), is that of the consecration of the St. Andrew's Lodge, which event took place on Tuesday, at the Cambridge Hotel, Shoeburyness. The ceremonies of the day commenced at two o'clock, at which time the R.W. Bro. Lord Tenterden opened the Lodge, having previously appointed Bros. Wood and Shepherd as the Wardens pro tem, with Bro. Pissey as I.G., Wigram D. Prov. G.M. as Chaplain, Harris Secretary. The Prov. Grand Master first announced that he had received a telegram from Bro. Ralling, the Prov. Grand Secretary, announcing that, in consequence of the heavy rains, the train had been delayed, which made it impossible for him to attend the meeting. The ceremony was then proceeded with, and in due course the Prov. Grand Master called upon the Chaplain to deliver the oration. Bro. Wigram, in the course of his address said:—I shall be brief in my remarks, but I trust they will be appropriate. You have, brethren, been already reminded that the event of to-day is one of great importance and solemnity. In my opinion there are two facts which lend themselves to making it so. The first, which points out the progress that Freemasonry is making in every part of the country, and especially in the Province of Essex, as evidenced from the fact that fourteen years ago, at the time of the consecration of the Priory Lodge, at Southend, there were but 1000 on the register of the Grand Lodge of England, while at the present time the number, as taken by this we are now constituting, is 1817, an increase of 817 Lodges throughout the country. Of this number, nine belong to our own district. Both these point to the rapid growth of Freemasonry, which was never more popular than at the present time. This great increase teaches us a must important lesson—that we should be careful how we act as Freemasons. It behoves us to be very careful in our behaviour, for a Mason should act as one in whom the world may repose confidence. We are to-day gathered together to consecrate a Lodge where no Lodge has ever been held before, and this fact alone will cause the inhabitants to watch attentively all whom they know are Freemasons, and therefore I hope you will do your best to keep up the credit of the Craft in the district. Remember the honour of Freemasonry in this part of Essex rests in your hands, and I hope it will remain as pure and unsullied as you will receive it this day from the hands of the Prov. Grand Master. The remaining portion of the consecration ceremony was then completed, and the Lodge resumed to the second degree, when Bro. Charles Eltham was presented as the W.M. elect, for the benefit of installation. This ceremony was performed by Bro. A. Lucking, who, on the readmission of the brethren, called for the usual salutes. The W.M. then appointed the following as Officers for the year:—Bro. George J. Glasscock S.W., James M. Farr J.W., Hall (after being duly proposed and unanimously elected by the Lodge) Treas., J. M. Harris (P.P.A.G.D. of C.) Sec., F. Howell S.D., Rev. H. J. Hatch J.D., S. M. Walker I.G. Bro. Whittingham was unanimously elected as Tyler, and duly installed as such. Bro. Lucking then delivered the addresses from the west and south, and the Prov. Grand Master that from the east. Four propositions for initiation were handed in, as were also the names of two brethren who wish to join the Lodge. Before closing the Lodge, the W.M.

him in the ceremonies of the day will also accept a similar compliment from us. Lord Tenterden, in reply, said—It is a very great pleasure for me to find that one of my first duties as Master of Freemasonry in Essex is to institute a new Lodge, especially in this part of the county with which I am so intimately connected. I accept with pleasure the position of honorary member you have so kindly offered me, and hope I may on some future occasion have the opportunity of visiting you as a regularly constituted and flourishing Lodge. Bro. Wigram then said—On behalf of the other Officers of the Province, I thank you for the reception that has been accorded us. We join in wishing the Lodge every prosperity, and feel especial pleasure in attending, especially as this is the first Lodge which has been consecrated by our new Prov. Grand Master. The W.M. then said—I wish to propose a vote of thanks to Bro. A. Lucking for having come and acted as Director of Ceremonies in the consecration of the Lodge, and also for having installed me in my present position. It is the first opportunity I have had of witnessing the installation ceremony, and I am very much impressed with it. Bro. Lucking, in acknowledgement, said—I did not require any thanks. I feel it a great honour to have to instal the first Master of this, the first Lodge consecrated by our present Prov. Master. Nothing further offering, the W.M. proceeded to close the Lodge. The brethren afterwards adjourned to a spacious marquee, where dinner was served by the host in a creditable manner. The usual toasts followed. The first three were given very briefly, but none the less heartily; with the latter—the Prov. Grand Master and other Officers of Grand Lodge, was coupled the name of Bro. Matthew Clark Grand Deacon, who in reply said, on behalf of the Grand Officers of England, I tender my heartiest thanks. We all believe that they do their best for Masonry; my experience in the Grand Lodge convinces me that Freemasonry could not be under better management. The W.M. now proposed the health of the R.W. Prov. Grand Master Lord Tenterden, the Consecrating Officer of the day. He said, I now come to the fourth toast on the list, it is one which falls upon me as a most pleasing duty. I have most heartily to thank our Grand Master for coming down here to the consecration of our Lodge. I think it a very great honour. Lord Tenterden on rising to respond was received with the most hearty applause. He said: Brethren, I have to thank you—this I do most sincerely—for the cordial reception you have given me. I look upon it not only as a compliment to your Consecrating Officer, but also in my capacity as Master of your Province. It is very assuring to see so many present on this occasion, all of whom wish well for your Lodge, consecrated this day. Let us consider how that happy inauguration may best lead to the results which we hope will follow. If this Lodge is to prosper, and I hope it will do so, and spread its influence all over the world, it will be necessary to have good work and good material. By good work I do not mean mere letter perfection—which although very good in its way, is not all that is necessary—but heart perfection; that alone is the way by which you can impress the reality of our system on those who are initiated into our Order. We have to-day consecrated this Lodge to the glory of God and the welfare of our fellow creatures, and thus do the Officers of to-day and their successors undertake to further in every way in their power the interests of the Order. It is also necessary that you should have good material or it will be labour thrown away. What we want is, not that there should be a number of Lodges or brethren in England, but that we should be able to boast of our solidity, and in order that we should be able to support in the future the Lodges which may arise we should be most careful in building them up; therefore, in choosing your recruits you should choose stalwart men, men who will be able to support the dignity of the Lodge. The Lodge should always strive to be a model in its work, and in the selection of its members, so that when we hear of the Lodge at Shoeburyness we shall hear of one that it is a credit to any to belong to. In constituting a Lodge we should look to the general welfare of mankind, and as we may perchance leave footprints on the sands of time we should do good work in the present, so that those who come after may take it as a model. The other toasts usual on these occasions followed in quick succession, interspersed by songs and glees. The brethren did not leave until a late hour. Among those present were the Right Hon. Lord Tenterden Prov. Grand Master, S. R. Wigram D.P.G.M., S. F. Heaton P.G. Chap., A. Lucking P.G.D. of C., Thos. King P.G.P., Alfred Sturgeon P.G.S.D., E. E. Phillips P.J.G.W. Somersetshire, P.G. VENERABLE ORDER OF ST. LAWRENCE.

Ebor Lodge.—A meeting of this Lodge was held at York, on the evening of Thursday, the 17th inst., the R.W.M. Bro. G. Simpson presiding, Bros. J. S. Cumberland S.W., T. B. Whytehead P.M. as J.W., M. Millington, Husband, Humphries, and others being also present. Bro. S. F. Boustield was made free of the Order, the ceremonies and lecture being given by the R.W.M. with great effect. Allusion was made to the loss by death of the J.W. Bro. T. Cooper, whose interest in everything connected with Masonry was so great.

CONSECRATION OF ROYAL CLARENCE LODGE No. 1823, AT CLARE.

THE brethren of Clare and its vicinity have, during the past few years, added considerably to their number, and as a necessity have fostered a desire for a Lodge of their own, where they might assemble and enjoy those social pleasures which form the basis of Masonic brotherhood; in due course, therefore, a petition was sent in to the Grand Lodge of England praying for a warrant of constitution, which prayer having been granted by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Lodge has now been regularly consecrated, and opened for the purpose of Freemasonry. The ceremony, which took place on Wednesday, at the Half Moon Hotel, was conducted by the R.W. Prov. Grand Master, Lord Waveney, who was supported by the Deputy of the Province, Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, who opened the Lodge in the three degrees. The Prov. Grand Master, Deputy and Wardens of the Province were then saluted in due form, after which the ceremony was proceeded with. The Prov. Grand Master first said that the object of the meeting of the day was to receive into the bosom of the Craft the latest addition to its ranks. He considered it a great satisfaction to be able to be present and assist at the addition to the great Craft to which we belong. It was a great pleasure to him, as Provincial Grand Master, to assist in the consecration of an additional one to the number of the Lodges under his rule. The Provincial Grand Secretary having addressed the Provincial Grand Master, he ordered that the brethren be arranged in order, and then directed that the petition and warrant of the new Lodge be read, which having been done, he enquired of the petitioners if they approved of the officers named in the warrant. The Brethren having signified their approval, the Provincial Grand Master called on the Prov. Grand Chaplain (Bro. Rev. C. J. Martyn), to deliver an oration on the nature and design of Freemasonry. That brother said:—It is customary on such occasions as the present to deliver a short address, but as we are on the present occasion to proceed to church, where I am sure you will hear an oration on the requirements of the Order, I shall content myself with a very few words. We appreciate the many benefits we derive from the practice of Freemasonry. The three grand principles of which—Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth—should guide us in all our undertakings. We now stand on the very threshold of what, let us hope, will prove a most successful Lodge. Let it be said of one and all of you that you practise Freemasonry in your daily lives as well as in the Lodge. Let brotherly love distinguish your conduct not only within but without the precincts of the Lodge. We should ever help a brother in every way that lies in our power, and speak those comforting words which will prove relief to his heart. "May your conduct show that you are Masons in more than name. May a sacred regard for truth be ever in your hearts." I have thought it necessary only to glance at these three virtues which we are taught in Freemasonry, but you are doubtless aware of many others we are taught in the Lodge. I hope the Great Architect of the Universe may give you strength to conduct yourself in such a way that the world will know there is really something in the grand tenets on which the Craft is founded. The brethren then proceeded in procession to the parish church, where service was performed by Bro. the Rev. J. W. Collins, the sermon being preached by Bro. the Rev. B. S. Barnes, from Psalm cxxii. 8. At its conclusion a collection was made, on behalf of the fund for the restoration of the church; this, it was announced later on, amounted to £6 15s 6½d.

The Rev. C. J. Martyn then took the chair, and Bro. Cooke having been duly presented, he was installed as the first Master of the new Lodge, and proceeded to invest the other Officers as follow:—Rev. J. W. Collins S.W., Rev. L. Klamborowski J.W., F. Fitch Treas., Stokoe Sec., Wheeler S.D., Geo I.G., Glazing Tyler. In investing the latter Officer the W.M. referred to the fact of his being one of the representatives of the old Lodge held at Clare. He had great pleasure in investing him in a similar position to that he occupied in the Lodge from the ashes of which, as it were, their Lodge had sprung. Bro. Lucia, the Secretary of the Province, previous to the close of the Lodge, announced that he had received letters of apology from several of the Prov. Grand Officers, regretting that from various reasons they were unable to meet the Prov. Grand Master. The Prov. Grand Master then rose and said—I do not know if what I have to say will come within the limits of a proposition for the good either of this Lodge or of Freemasonry in general, except that I intend to show what I hope will be for the good of the Order. The Prov. Grand Master then proceeded to show the connection between the old and present Masonic Fraternity, and addressed a few words to the brethren on the subject of the restoration of the parish church. The names of ten gentlemen were then handed in as candidates for initiation, but we understand that these are but a moiety of those who have here expressed a desire to join our mysteries. Seven brethren were also mentioned as wishing to join the Lodge. Before closing the Lodge, the W.M. said—I wish to bring before your notice a vote of thanks to those who have not only honoured us by their presence to-day, but have assisted in the formation of the Lodge. These, as you may be aware, are the Prov. Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, Bro. Lucia Prov. Grand Secretary, Bro. B. S. Barnes, who has this day given us such an admirable sermon, and Bro. Clarke, to whom we are indebted for mustering, preparing, and fitting us for what we have gone through this day. Lord Waveney, in reply, said—I speak in the first place for myself, and thank you for the appreciation you have expressed of what I have done. It is but my duty, but it has been a most pleasing one for me, witnessing as I have the way in which the work has been performed. Bro. Martyn said—I thank you for the compliment you have paid us. It is at all times a great pleasure to me to do anything to advance the interests of the Craft in this district. I feel sure your Master will, in the words of our ritual, reflect honour on the choice of the brethren. Bro. Barnes followed. He hoped that the Clare Lodge would pursue a prosperous career, and that none of those present would live to see it anything but prosperous. Bros. Lucia and Clarke also responded. Bro. Stokoe, the Sec., proposed a vote of thanks to Bro. Rev. C. J. Martyn for the way in which he had carried out the ceremony of installation. Bro. Martyn briefly acknowledged the compliment thus paid him, and the W.M. then proceeded to close the Lodge. The brethren adjourned to the "Priory," where a most enjoyable banquet was served and partaken of by the brethren. At the conclusion of the banquet grace was said, and the W.M. proceeded to propose the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts. After that of the Queen and the Craft, the National Anthem was sung. With the toast of the Grand Master of England was coupled the name of the Princess of Wales and the rest of the members of the Royal Family. Freemasonry was, the W.M. said, at the present time in the most promising condition, and much of its success, he considered, due to the Prince of Wales. With the health of the Prov. G. Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers, the W.M. coupled the names of Bros. Martyn and Lucia. We may judge of our rulers as we do of the commander of a campaign. When success attends their efforts we may safely assume that they are what is required of them. Bro. Martyn was the first to reply. He desired to thank the brethren on behalf of the Grand Officers for the reception that had been given the toast. He fully endorsed what the Master had said about the Earl of Carnarvon and Lord Skelmersdale. No better men could have been selected to preside over us. The brethren had hoped that the Earl of Carnarvon would have been able to attend, but his engagements were such as not to admit of his being present. Whenever the rulers of the Craft could be of service they were ever present. Bro. Lucia followed, tendering his thanks for the way in which the toast had been received. The W.M. then rose to propose the toast of the Prov. Grand Master. In doing so he touched on ground nearer home. Not only is our Prov. G. Master welcomed in his position as ruler, but also as the Consecrating Officer of the day. Lord Waveney, in reply, said: It requires no preparation on my part to acknowledge with thankfulness the toast you have just received in the most hearty manner. In the whole course of my Masonic career I have never been received so heartily as I have been to-day. The Prov. Grand Master referred to the remarks which had been made from the chair on the duties of a Prov. Grand Master as set forth in THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE of last week. On behalf of those who had visited the Lodge, and especially for himself, Lord Waveney tendered hearty thanks for the reception that had been accorded them. The next toast was that of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master. In proposing this the Master considered that he ought almost to wish for that brother's absence lest he might be accused of flattery. During his fourteen years connection with the Grand Lodge of England Bro. Martyn had been absent but twice, and on each occasion it was from reasons beyond his control. His duties, whether in connection with either of the many Lodges to which he belonged, or as Deputy Grand Master of the Province, were at all times carried out most efficiently and zealously. Masonry, the W.M. said, was not the first thought of Bro. Martyn, he had a position as parson to keep up, and this he did in the same efficient way as he did that of his various offices in Freemasonry. From his flock comes the same exhibition of hearty good feeling that comes from us. Bro. Martyn made a most appropriate reply. Often as his health had been proposed, it had never been proposed so heartily as on the present occasion. He had been told that, 25 years ago, at the consecration of the Old Clare Lodge Bro. Martyn—no relation of his—had been Deputy P.G.M., had replied in appropriate terms; he hoped that he too should have the credit of replying appropriately. Lord Waveney then assumed the gavel, and proposed the health of the Master, who replied in a few well-chosen words. The other toasts followed in due course, and the brethren parted after a most pleasant day. Among those present were Lord Waveney Prov. Grand Master Suffolk, Charles J. Martyn Deputy Prov. Grand Master, W. H. Lucia P.G.S.B. of England Prov. G. Sec., Henry C. Casley Prov. G.J.W., W. P. Phillips P.P.G.S.W., F. B. Wentworth P.G.S.D., J. M. Harvey P.G.P., Frederick Wheeler P.P.G.R., W. Clarke P.G.D. of C., J. H. Thompson P.P.G.S.B., Middlesex, B. S. Barnes P.G.C., Parker J. Rennie 1,280, J. S. Cumberland W.M. 1,611, W. L. Lewis 1,224, E. O. Cockayne 1,543, A. E. Campbell 859 P.G.A.S., W. Elliot Shaw 78, T. B. Richardson, A. W. Cook 225, R. E. Jones S.W. 1,224, J. Hanly 51, C. Kenby 959, C. H. Vincent 1,224, S. Spurgin J.W. 1,224, H. Welham P.M. 1,224, H. Taverner J.D. 1,237, R. Aprile 1,224, Charles Gomersall I.P.M. 1,224, J. F. Hills P.M. 1,224, G. H. Grimwood P.M. 1,224, W. Watson Organist, E. H. Inman I.G. 1,221. We should observe that a Freemasons' Lodge was formerly held at Clare, the South Suffolk Lodge having been consecrated in the same house in 1823. The Lodge was removed to the Rose and Crown, Sudbury, and eventually ceased meeting.

A party of the brethren who arrived about noon were most hospitably entertained to luncheon at the Priory. We may add that this ancient building, with its massive walls and buttresses, pointed arches, and windows, and even a "piscina" in the garden wall, by the doorway, probably in ancient times forming the "cloisters," preserving still an ecclesiastical character, and still of some extent, was viewed with much interest. The grounds, too, are extensive, with well kept gardens, the whole admirably adapted for the purpose for which it is now used, that of a large academy for boys. We are pleased to add that there is every prospect of the new Lodge flourishing, and holding a distinguished position in the Province. It will probably number in a few weeks some forty members on its books, and its establishment is certainly of advantage to the ancient, picturesque town of Clare.

I think the best things a Freemason can do, are, to honour God, use his time industriously, respect himself, and take the world as it comes.—ROB. MORRIS.

INSTALLATION MEETINGS, &c.

ST. PETER'S LODGE, No. 481.

THE installation meeting and festival of this Lodge took place on Monday, the 14th, at the Masonic Hall, Maple-street, Newcastle-on-Tyne. The Lodge was opened by the W.M. Bro. R. Eynon, supported by the Officers, and a good attendance of brethren. The minutes of the last meeting being confirmed, one brother was passed to the F.C. degree, the ceremony being creditably given by the W.M. Bro. John Usher S.W., W.M. elect, was then presented to the W.M. by Bro. E. D. Davis P.G.D.C., to receive the benefits of installation. All formalities having been gone through, and the brethren below the chair re-admitted to the Lodge, the newly installed G. Master was proclaimed and saluted according to ancient custom. He then appointed and invested the following brethren as Officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. R. Eynon I.P.M., J. Duckett jun. S.W., J. Cook P.M. P.P.G.S.W. J.W., John Spearman P.M. Treasurer, A. Giblin W.M. 541 Sec., T. Printie S.D., G. Ford J.D., R. L. Armstrong P.M. D.C., R. Ferry Org., Stafford I.G., G. S. Sims Tyler; Macdonald and Weldon Stewards. The W.M. received the hearty good wishes of a large number of visiting brethren, and no other business offering itself, the Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Queen's Head Hotel, where they sat down to a capital repast. Full justice having been done to all the good things, and grace said, the W.M. rose to give the first toast, the Queen, which was duly honoured. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M. next received the good wishes of the brethren. The toast of the Pro G.M. and Officers of Grand Lodge followed on the list, after which the W.M. gave the Earl Percy and Officers of the Prov. G. Lodge. In the course of his remarks he said the brethren will all know that the Prov. G. Lodge this year meets under the banner of this Lodge, and he trusted they would not fail to come up in such numbers as would do honour to them, particularly after the reception they had received last year at Alnwick. He was delighted they had that day amongst them the P.G.S.W., who had taken so great an interest in the working of all the Lodges in the Province during his year of office. He should therefore couple with the toast the name of Bro. Adam Robertson Provincial G.S.W., who, on rising, was received with cheers. He expressed the wish that the task had been put on some one else's shoulders, who would have done more justice to the P.G.M. It was useless for him to dilate upon his many virtues, or on the many important services he had rendered to the Province. He was no ornamental Mason—he was a working Mason in every sense of the word. He had served every office in the Lodge, and when he was Master one of his characteristics was punctuality. The moment the Lodge was called, Earl Percy was in the chair; during his Mastership he (Brother Robertson) had the pleasure of serving under him as one of his Wardens. It had afforded the Provincial Grand Officers a deal of pleasure, whilst officially visiting the Lodges, to see the uniform good working, and he trusted these visits would be repeated, as most of the P.G. Officers of this year were W.M.'s of Lodges. This gave them an opportunity of comparing their working with the other Lodges in the Province, and would tend to cement that good-fellowship which is the backbone of Freemasonry. Bro. R. L. Armstrong P.M., in a few well-chosen remarks, proposed the health of the P.G.M. of Durham and the Officers of that Province; with this toast he coupled the name of Bro. E. D. Davis P.P.G.S.W., whom he designated as his father in the Craft, and he prayed he might long be spared to be amongst them; when it should please the G.A.O.T.U. to remove him, he would leave a name behind him that would long be cherished and never be forgotten. Bro. Davis, who on rising was heartily received, said that he had to thank them on behalf of the Provincial Grand Master of Durham, who was the oldest in England, holding that important office since 1817, and since that time he had rendered the Craft much service. The Charity Committees of the two Provinces, he was glad to say, had become united, and much good might be expected from their joint efforts. He now came to a more difficult task—namely, to reply to the kind manner in which Bro. Armstrong had brought his name before them, for which he thanked him, and the brethren for the way in which they had received it. Bro. Armstrong had but lately taken the reins of power, and they all knew how well he used that power; when he (Bro. Davis) shall have passed away, he will still be a shining light in Masonry, and will then be able to remember one that loved him well as a man, and was always anxious for his success as a Mason. Bro. Eynon, in giving the next toast, said it was one that required few words of his to ensure its reception by the brethren; it was the health of the W.M. He was quite certain, from what he knew of the brethren and Officers of the Lodge, that they would give Bro. Usher every support. It gave him particular pleasure to submit this toast, because he had to assist at that brother's initiation, although in an inferior office. He wished him every success and a prosperous year, and called on all to drink his health in a bumper. The W.M. expressed his thanks, and assured the brethren he would endeavour to do his duty. He was much obliged for the support given him, and to the brethren for gathering round him in such numbers. He should say little now, but at the end of the year leave them to judge if he was deserving of all or any of the kind things said of him, and trusted to offer to his successor the Lodge in as prosperous a state as he then found it. Bro. Davis, in some feeling remarks, proposed the health of Bro. Eynon I.P.M., which was suitably replied to. The Past and Present Officers received their meed of praise, and the Visitors received a hearty welcome. Both toasts having been replied to, the Tyler was called, and brought a most enjoyable evening to a close. The Visitors present were:—Bros. E. D. Davis P.P.G.S.W., Adam Robertson P.G.S.W., S. Donkin P.M. P.P.G.D.C., G. I. Dean 541 P.M. P.P.G.J.D.,

George Thompson, who had for so many years laboured for this Lodge, and who had truly brought the Lodge to the position it now holds. All the other Lodges in the town have paid him that respect; we therefore notice the neglect the more in this, his mother Lodge, and the one for which he had done so much.

LEBANON LODGE, No. 1326.

THE installation meeting of this excellent working Provincial Lodge was held on Saturday, the 19th inst., and in spite of the pouring rain was numerously attended by members and visitors. In the unavoidable absence of the W.M. Bro. J. C. Woodrow the Lodge was opened by Bro. John Hammond P.G.D. Middlesex P.M., and the minutes were subsequently confirmed. Bro. Baldwin P.P.G.P. as S.W., J. B. Shackleton P.G.P. J.W., F. Walters P.P.G.D. Hon. Sec., Stone I.G., Lawrence D.C., P.M.'s W. Hammond P.P.G.D., Potts, H. Potter, F. Binckes P.G.S. (Hon. Member), and Bros. Knight, Stanton, Buckley, Rogers, Baker, Brown, J. W. Adams, &c. Bros. J. Smith and F. Dye were passed to the 2nd degree, and Bros. H. J. Buckley, J. Cavell, W. R. Smith and D. Brown were raised to the sublime degree of Master Masons, the acting W.M. performing the ceremonies in a very perfect manner. Bro. Woodrow having now arrived, Messrs. A. Driver and C. T. Tatum, who had previously been ballotted for, were duly initiated into the Order by him. The report of the audit committee was adopted, it showed the Lodge was in a flourishing state. A Board of Installed Masters was opened and Bro. J. B. Shackleton P.G.P. Middlesex P.M. 1524, as W.M. Elect, was duly installed into the chair by Bro. J. Stevens P.M. 1,126, who officiated by special request as Installing Master. The work was performed in a perfect and impressive manner and well merited were the encomiums passed on him at the conclusion. The W.M. having received the customary salutations, appointed and invested his Officers:—J. C. Woodrow I.P.M., J. Hammond P.G.D. Middlesex P.M. S.W., J. W. Baldwin P.M. J.W., Treas., F. Walters P.P.G.D. Middlesex Secretary, H. Gloster P.M. S.D. Stone, J.D., Steinhauer I. G., Marsh Organist, F. Knight D.C., H. Potter P.M. W.S., Vasilla A.W.S., Gilbert P.G.T. Middlesex Tyler. Bro. F. Walters proposed and Bro. J. C. Woodrow seconded that a vote of thanks be recorded on the minutes for the able and impressive manner in which Bro. Stevens had performed the installation ceremony, and that he be elected an honorary member. Bro. J. Hammond in seconding the proposition remarked that the brethren, in electing Bro. J. Stevens, would find him an acquisition to the Lodge, as he was to every Lodge with which he was associated. This was unanimously agreed to. Bro. J. Stevens, in returning thanks for the honour conferred, said his services would be at the command of the brethren, and he hoped that good feeling and harmony would prevail while the Lodge continued. Bro. F. Walters in feeling terms proposed that Bro. W. Hammond P.P.G.D. and Bro. R. Williams P.G.O. be elected honorary members; those brethren had always rendered great service, not only to the Lodge, but also to the Province. This resolution was carried unanimously, and the W.M. in eloquent terms supplemented Bro. Walters' remarks. A widow of a late Brother of the Lodge was relieved from its Funds. The W.M. then said that the brethren had seen and appreciated the services rendered by the I.P.M. Bro. Woodrow. They had thought fit to present him with a jewel of solid gold, set with diamonds—a gift worthy of his acceptance—for the able manner he had discharged the duties of the chair, and in token of the respect in which he is held by each member. In placing the jewel on Bro. Woodrow's breast (he the W.M.) hoped he might live long to wear it. Bro. Woodrow, in brief but appropriate terms, thanked the W.M. for his kind expressions, and the brethren for their valuable gift. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren sat down to a very excellent banquet and dessert, provided by Bro. Ballard, the new host. Grace having been said, the W.M. proposed the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts. He referred to the fact of Her Majesty being the Patroness of our Order; while H.R.H. the Grand Master, by accepting that position, had lent a prestige to the Craft never before accorded it. We are proud to have the Prince of Wales at our head. The toast of the Pro G.M. and D.G.M. was next proposed, and then came the health of the R.W. Bro. Col. Burdett Prov. G.M. It was unnecessary to say how highly he was esteemed throughout the Province. He was constant in his visits to the several Lodges, and made himself conversant with the way in which they were being worked. Every member of the Province looked upon Col. Burdett as a thorough English gentleman. This toast was most enthusiastically received. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the D.P.G.M., Bro. Sir Charles Bright, and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers; he coupled with the toast the names of Bros. W. Hammond and Hurst. The former brother, in responding, said he felt it an honour to reply to the toast. The Province was but nine years old, and during that time it had been satisfactory to see so many Lodges established and flourishing under the auspices of Col. Burdett. He looked around, and saw many brethren belonging to this Lodge who had received Provincial honours. This was a source of pride to them all, and he thanked them for the hearty manner in which they had received the toast. Bro. J. Stevens now rose and said, that the I.P.M. being absent, he felt a great pleasure in proposing the health of the W.M. It was his fixed idea that the W.M. was the right man in the right place; theirs was a large Lodge, and if there should be another formed from it he hoped there would be nothing more result from the expansion than Unity, Peace and Harmony. In the W.M. you have a guide to that haven which every Mason wishes to reach; the haven of unity. He would ask them to drink the toast heartily, and wish the W.M. success in every shape during his year of office. Brother Shackleton hoped, during his term, to be able to give them every satisfaction, and at the expiration of his year trusted he might hear the same expressions. His best endeavours would be for the welfare of the Lebanon Lodge, and he would do all he could to support Freemasonry and the Charities. Last year they had assisted the Girls' School and the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution; they had not as yet done anything for the Boys, but in the future they would. He thanked them for their kind reception. The next toast given was the health of the Installing Master; the W.M. was sure all had listened with great pleasure to Bro. Stevens's working of the ceremony of installation. Bro. Stevens had been elected an honorary member, and he (the W.M.) was pleased to see the unanimity with which the brethren had endorsed that proposition; he could say a great deal in Bro. Stevens's praise, and more of his merits, but in future doubtless they would see somewhat of his capabilities. Bro. J. Stevens, in a very eloquent speech, responded to the toast. He remarked how pleased he was to meet the Brethren and instal his old friend the W.M. into the chair; he spoke of the beauties of Freemasonry, and his remarks were listened to with great attention. He concluded by saying we have the glorious conviction that in spite of the shafts that are levelled against us, we know our strength. Personally his services were always at their command. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the newly-initiated. One brother had been obliged to leave, but the other was then present. However, he is about to leave this country to go to New Zealand; when he arrives there he will find the right hand of fellowship held out to him; Masons are to be found in every part of the globe. Bro. Tatum is but a young man, but he trusted a bright future career was open to him, and he hoped he would never forget their good wishes and the expression of God speed from the members of the Lebanon Lodge. Bro. Tatum in returning thanks for the cordial reception the toast had met with, hoped the good wishes of the brethren would be fully realised. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Visitors. Bros. Hurst P.A.G.P. Middlesex, Cash, Hutching 147, Freeman, and H. M. Levy P.M. 188, severally responded to the toast. Each complimented the W.M. for his genial presidency, and also Bro. Stevens for the excellent manner in which he had performed the ceremony of installation. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Masonic Charities. As Masons they were bound to support the Aged, the Girls, and the Boys, who are dependent on us. If at the expiration of his year of office they desired to give him a jewel, he would rather they should give double the amount to the Charities. The Lodge had liberally supported the Institutions, and he hoped they would continue to do so. Bro. F. Binckes P.G.S. and Secretary to the Boys' School was present, and he (the W.M.) regretted there was not a better attendance of members to meet him; still, those who were present would drink heartily to the toast, coupled with Bro. Binckes's name. This brother in an able speech returned thanks, remarking that the Boys' School was the poorest of the three Institutions; they were losers to the extent of £800 by a recent failure, but he was pleased to hear the Lodge would support his Institution in the future. The toast of the Officers was given, the W.M. hoping that the selection he had made would give satisfaction. The Tyler's toast closed the proceedings. Some excellent harmony was rendered. Among the Visitors were Bros. W. A. Barrett P.M. 1706 P.P.G.O. Oxon, Mus. Doc., James Stevens P.M. 1426, Hutching 147, T. A. Thompson 1614, R. Boley 1201, J. Hurst 1512 P.A.G.P. Middlesex, Cash, and H. H. Levy P.M. 188.

In Memoriam.

It is with sincere regret we have to announce the death of Bro. L. M. Auerhaan, Treasurer of the Lodge of Joppa, No. 188. Bro. Auerhaan was a member of the Joppa Lodge over thirty years. His death will not only be lamented by his sorrowing widow and children, but by a numerous circle of Masonic and private friends. The suffering poor and distressed, of all denominations, will likewise miss a benefactor, who was always ready to listen to their appeals.

STOKES ON MEMORY.—At Mr. Stokes's popular Lectures on Memory at the Polytechnic Institution, some highly attractive methods of teaching are being explained by the author, including a plan of teaching the Multiplication Table by means of pictures. A bird with two wings stands for two, and a four legged animal stands for four, and in this fashion all the numbers are represented, a variety of charming pictures, thus taking the place of the ordinary unattractive numerals. Mr. Stokes commences at 12.30, and various other lectures and entertainments continue till 5 o'clock admission to the whole one shilling. For parents and children the Polytechnic is really the place to spend an instructive and profitable day.

I have always found Freemasonry better than Freemasons, as the model is better than the copy. Not that Freemasonry teaches how to make bad men good, but it certainly tends to make good men better, or at least to keep the good from degenerating. There are many better things in the world than Freemasonry, such as the family, the church, the profession by which we are supported, &c., and the man who puts Freemasonry before them will come to grief. —Masonic Review.

Sir Knight T. B. Whytehead P.S. Int. Gen. unattached, there being also present E. Sir Knight J. S. Cumberland, V.E. and Sir Knights C. G. Padel S. Gen., M. Millington J. Gen., A. T. B. The business of the Conclave was then proceeded with, and Bro. S. F. Bousfield of the Marquis of Granby Lodge, No. 124, Darlington, was duly installed a Knight of the Order by the M.P.S. the Earl of Zetland, who afterwards alluded to the loss the Conclave had sustained by the death of the brother who had preceded him in the chair, their late Soverign E. Sir Knight Thos. Cooper, and ended by proposing that a letter of condolence should be sent to the widow and family, which was carried. After the close of the Conclave, the St. Peter's Sanctuary K.H.S. and Commandery of St. John were successively opened, and those degrees conferred upon Sir Knight Bousfield by E. Sir Knight T. B. Whytehead, who proceeded to bring forward the sad case of the widow of a brother, a late clergyman in the neighbourhood, who had been left destitute with three children, and a sum of £2 10s was collected for her temporary relief. The Commandery and Sanctuary were then sealed.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

Egyptian Lodge of Instruction, No. 27.—At Bro. Maidwell's, Hercules Tavern, 119 Leadenhall-street, E.C., on Thursday evening last. Bros. J. Da Silva W.M., Norden S.W., Woodward J.W., Ellis J.D., Gimingham I.G., Norden Hon. Sec., Webb Preceptor, Hogarth, Maidwell, Kahn, and others. The Lodge was opened in due form, and minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The Lodge was opened in the second degree, and resumed to the first, as an E.A. desired to take part in the proceedings, the W.M. thereupon rehearsed the ceremony of initiation, Bro. Kahn acting as candidate. The first, second and third sections of the Lecture were worked by Bro. Ellis, assisted by the brethren. A vote of thanks was unanimously passed to Bro. Gimingham for the able manner in which he worked the ceremony, it being the first time he had occupied the chair in this Lodge of Instruction. Bro. Kahn answered the questions leading to the second degree. Bro. Norden was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing week. The Lodge was then closed with prayer.

York Lodge, No. 236.—The regular meeting of this Lodge was held on Monday, at York. Present—Bros. A. Buckle W.M., R. W. Hollon P.M., W. Valentine P.M., Geo. Balmford P.M., T. B. Whytehead P.M., G. C. Baskett S.W., W. H. Gainforth J.W., G. Kirby Secretary, and many other brethren. The minutes having been read, several notices of motion for the next meeting were given, and Bro. T. B. Whytehead then brought under notice the case of the widow of their late Bro. the Rev. W. B. Jones, who, by the sudden death of her husband, of virulent diphtheria, had been reduced to a condition of absolute penury. The case was supported by Bro. the Rev. W. Valentine, whose curate Bro. Jones had formerly been, and the Lodge made a temporary grant of relief, which was further supplemented by the gifts of several of the brethren. The W.M., in a very kindly speech, moved that a letter of condolence be sent to the widow of the late Bro. T. Cooper P.M., and that the Lodge do go into mourning for three months, which was unanimously carried, and the Lodge was closed at 9 p.m.

High Cross Lodge, No. 754.—A meeting was held on Wednesday, 23rd July, at the Seven Sisters' Hotel, Tottenham. Present—Bros. H. Stephens W.M., Burford S.W., Farren J.W., Roberts Treas., Cunningham Sec., Clements S.D., Garrod acting J.D., Tegg I.G., Verry Tyler. P.M.'s Bros. The Lodge was opened in ancient form, and the minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed. The first business was to take the ballot for Mr. W. P. Mitchell, which proved unanimous in his favour, and he was admitted and duly initiated into Freemasonry. The Lodge having been advanced to the second degree, the W.M. proceeded to pass Bro. H. Cooper to that degree. On the Lodge being resumed, Bro. Geo. Burford the S.W. was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year. Bro. David Roberts was also elected Treasurer, and Bro. Verry Tyler. A collection was made by the brethren, supplemented by a donation from the Lodge, on behalf of Frederick Smith, an old and much respected waiter of the hotel, who had recently sustaind a most severe domestic affliction. The Lodge was then closed in peace and harmony, and the brethren adjourned for refreshments, after which the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given. Bro. Dance proposed the health of the W.M. Bro. H. Stephens thanked Bro. Dance for the kind expressions he had used in proposing his health. The amount of business that evening had detained them an unusual length of time in the Lodge-room. He should, therefore, be very brief in his remarks, but could not let the evening pass without again thanking the Past Masters, the Officers and Brethren, for the kind manner they had assisted him during his year of office; they had indeed rallied round him, and he trusted his successor would be equally well supported. The toast of the Visitors was responded to by Bro. Colville P.M. The health of the Initiate was given and ably responded to. Bro. Wells P.M. replied for the Past Masters. Other toasts followed, and the evening was enlivened by some excellent songs. Altogether a most enjoyable time was spent. The proceedings concluded with the Tyler's toast.

Lorkin S.D., Greenwood J.D., Christian I.G., Dallas Sec., Smyth Treas.; P.M. Wallington Preceptor; Bros. Hogarth, Brasted, C. Lorkin, Dawes, Quay, Morgan, Polak, Carr, and others. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Wardell answered the necessary questions. Lodge was opened in the second degree, and the ceremony of passing rehearsed, Bro. Wardell as candidate. The Preceptor rehearsed the installation ceremony, placing Bro. Forss in the chair as W.M. Bro. Forss went through the formal investiture of his Officers. Bro. C. Lorkin worked the third and fourth sections of the lecture, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Butt, of Lodge 1623, was elected a member. A unanimous vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Wallington for the efficient manner he had worked the ceremony. Bro. Williams was elected W.M. for Tuesday evening, 7th August. Next Tuesday will be the privilege night for the Secretary to fill the chair.

St. Michael's Lodge of Instruction, No. 211.—A meeting was held on Thursday, 24th inst., at the George Tavern, Australian-avenue, Barbican, E.C. Present—Bros. W. E. Young W.M., W. Radcliffe Treas. S.W., Jaques J.W., A. Withers Preceptor, W. W. Morgan Sec., Peirce S.D., Brasted J.D. Lodge having been formally opened, the minutes were put to the meeting and duly confirmed. The W.M. having expressed his desire to rehearse the ceremony of raising, the Lodge was advanced, and Bro. Brasted offering himself as candidate, the customary test of merit was communicated, and on the Lodge being further advanced, the third ceremony was performed. The Lodge was, in due course, closed to the first degree, and an announcement was made that at the next meeting of the Lodge of Instruction the Officers of the mother Lodge would assume the positions which they there fill. It is to be hoped that they will be well supported. Another feature in connection with the meeting which should call for a large assembly is the fact that the ballot will be brought into requisition to decide who shall be entitled to rank as Life Subscribers to our Charities by means of the Association formed in connection with this Lodge of Instruction. It is expected that three Life Subscriberships will be disposed of in this manner, and as by the rules of the Association it is not necessary to pay up back subscriptions, it will offer a good opportunity for brethren wishing to qualify. The one subscription, payable next Thursday, will entitle to a participation in the ballot. Names of new members, and subscriptions, together with any particulars, may be had of the Hon. Sec. of the Association, Bro. W. W. Morgan jun., 67 Barbican, E.C. Country brethren are solicited to become members.

Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction, No. 1298.—A meeting was held on Friday, 18th July, at the Alwyne Castle, Canonbury. Present—Bros. Byng W.M., Mendelsohn S.W., Chant J.W., G. H. Hunter Secretary pro tem, Beattie S.D., Rowley J.D., Shackell P.M. Preceptor pro tem, Potter I.G.; Sheffield, Young, Ager, Rowe P.M., Eldridge P.M., Pierdon and Field. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes were read and confirmed. The ceremony of raising was rehearsed, Bro. Pierdon candidate. The Lodge was closed in the third degree, and the W.M. worked the first section of the second lecture. The Lodge was closed in the second degree, and the fourth section of the first lecture was worked by the W.M. A letter was read from Bro. Lardner, giving a list of the members of the West Smithfield Lodge of Instruction who will work the Fifteen Sections here next Friday; the Secretary took the opportunity to request the members to muster strongly, and give their Visitors a hearty welcome, and announced that the Lodge would meet at 7, instead of at 8 o'clock, on that occasion.

Friars Lodge of Instruction, No. 1349.—Held at Bro. Pavitt's, Liverpool Arms, Canning Town, Tuesday, July 22nd. Present—Bros. P.M. Musto W.M., P.M. Cundick S.W., Shepherd W.M. 1349 J.W., E. T. Worsley Sec. This being the fourth Tuesday in the month, in accordance with the announcement we made last week, sections only were worked. The Lodge was opened in the three degrees, and closed down to the first, the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The sections were then worked by the following brethren:—Bros. Spencer first, Watkins second, Johnson fourth, Shepherd fifth, Cundick sixth, Andrews seventh; Rawe eighth, Keable ninth, Pavitt tenth, and Smith eleventh. There not being time to work the remainder, the Lodge resumed, when the following brethren were unanimously elected members—Bros. Burleton S.D. 860 and J.W. 1681, J. W. Hunt 1716, Captain Dart 214, Still 860, and Stone 541. In addition to those already named, there were present Bros. Barker, Ellis 860, Ellis, Butler, White, Sadler, &c. One of the visitors from the West End (Bro. Burleton) stated several others had arranged to accompany him, but the weather not being all that was desired they were prevented. He hoped, however, to see them next week, when Bro. P.M. Wallington 860 will work the Installation ceremony, commencing at 7.20. We shall do ourselves the pleasure of attending. Bro. Pavitt will be W.M. for the ensuing week. The Lodge was then closed, after which some friends of the host entertained the brethren with some beautiful music and capital singing. Several of the brethren assisted, and this caused a very pleasant evening to be spent. All departed highly gratified. Tuesday the 29th inst. will be set apart for the rehearsal of the Installation Ceremony.

West Middlesex Lodge of Instruction, No. 1612.—The fortnighly meeting of this Lodge was held at the Feathers, Ealing, on Thursday, the 17th inst., when there was a numerous gathering of the brethren to support Bro. Seward in the chair. The Officers were:—Bros. Seward jun. W.M., Rickwood S.W., Burr J.W., Gunner S.D., Green J.D., Wright I.G., Tucker Preceptor; Bros. Fernee, Wells, Youens, Clark, Porter, Maling, Woolmer, &c., &c. After the opening of the Lodge, and the confirmation of the minutes of the last meeting, the W.M. announced his intention of rehearsing the ceremony of raising, and opened the Lodge in the second degree. Bro. Youens having voluntered as a candidate, was interrogated in the usual questions, and the Lodge having been advanced to the third degree, the ceremony of raising was rehearsed in the usual careful and impressive manner for which Bro. Seward is well known. The Lodge was closed down to the first degree, when after some conversation it was decided to defer the Annual Banquet until the last Thursday in August, instead of holding it on the last Thursday in this month. Bro. Rickwood will be the W.M. at the next meeting, on the 31st inst., when we hope that there will be a good attendance of the brethren to support him.

WIMBLEDON MEETING.—The prize annually given by Messrs. Felton and Sons, proprietors of the "Spécialité" Sherry, has been this year awarded to Major Young, 39th Middlesex Rifles.

VALLEY FORGE.

From the "Keystone."

It gives us pleasure to spread before our readers the following interesting address, which was delivered by Bro. Michael Nisbet, R.W. Grand Master of Masons of Pennsylvania, at Valley Forge, on the day of its dedication as a Public Park, 19th June 1879, being the 101st anniversary of the evacuation of Valley Forge by the army of Bro. Gen. George Washington:—

Brethren,—In the days when Freemasons were few in number, they were confined to distinguished architects and operative masons. But in course of time, as the fame of the Fraternity became more widely extended, the lovers of learning and the friends of humanity were attracted to its ranks; and the noble and wealthy also eagerly seeking to become initiates, the Society became numerous, and ceasing, from these accessions, to be strictly operative, became symbolic.

Though thus changing its character, it still retained its intimate connection with architecture and the mechanic arts, and for this reason it has, from time immemorial, been customary on the part of those who desire the commencement or completion of any great public enterprise or undertaking to be attended with proper pomp and solemnity, to request our honourable and ancient Fraternity to take part in the proceedings.

Such an occasion is the present one. A number of public-spirited citizens have purchased these grounds for the purpose of maintaining them as a public park for ever, and when requested by the proper authorities to lay a corner-stone in this ancient and memorable building, we willingly acceded to the request, as it was not only in keeping with the ancient usages of Freemasonry, but it was also in keeping with another duty of the Craft, that of perpetuating and cherishing the memories of the worthy dead.

We are here, to-day, to perform our duty as Masons, in laying a corner-stone; we are here to assist in the ceremony intended for ever to perpetuate a memorable instance in the history of our country; and we are here to pay by our presence a tribute to the memory of the wise statesman, the brave soldier, the zealous patriot, and the true Mason—George Washington—whom this Grand Lodge delighted to honour while he lived, and to whom it dedicated its first constitution, "In Testimony, as well of his exalted Services to his Country, as of that noble Philanthropy which distinguishes him among Masons."

This spot has been made memorable as the place of encampment of the American army during the winter of 1777 and 1778. On the 11th day of December in the former year, it commenced its march for this place. Worn out by harassing and tiresome marches, and a life of continual hardship and danger during a campaign of four months, they were in the most deplorable condition. Without the commonest necessaries of life, without clothing to protect them from the inclemency of the weather—many of them having nothing but rags to cover them, and numbers of them without shoes to their feet as they marched over the frozen ground—eight long weary days were passed in reaching their destination, the ground over which they passed being marked by the blood from their lacerated feet. It has been said of them that they appeared more like a set of mendicants than the defenders of the liberties of their country. Here, among the snow-clad hills, they lay down in their dreary camp, to contend with hunger, cold and wretchedness in every form. Their hardships and sufferings were sufficient to subdue the spirit of the bravest patriot heart, but, sustained by the immortal Washington—whom they loved and venerated—the existence of the camp was maintained through the gloomiest period of our Revolutionary war, and until he marched them forth to victory. Nothing in the history of the world surpasses the sublime heroism which animated and sustained these men during those trying times; their sufferings and hardships have endeared the spot to every American heart, and its preservation as a public park, for ever, will serve to transmit to posterity an incentive to emulate their patience and endurance, whenever the liberties of our country may be imperilled.

To this place also a Masonic tradition is attached. The early records of our Grand Lodge are lost, so that we cannot ascertain its correctness now, but as it is well known that warrants were granted during the Revolutionary War for Military Lodges, it is probably true. It is, that while our troops were here encamped, a Lodge was held in this building, in which, during that memorable winter, Lafayettte—to whom the gratitude of our people is eminently due for his services to our country, and whom our Grand Lodge, in admiration of his high and various virtues, and for the attachment he had uniformly evinced for our liberties and happiness, honoured by creating him one of its members—was made a Mason by Washington. Here it seems that these two congenial minds, amidst the arduous duties of the camp, found gratification in the exchange of fraternal confidence and in performing the duties of the Lodge. This incident adds to our interest in this place.

When we look upon this fertile valley, and the hills by which it is surrounded, teeming with the industry of a happy, contented and independent people, who owe their present condition to the efforts of these worthy brethren, with what a feeling of overwhelming gratitude we recall the memories of the past!

No soaring monument, no imposing shaft, is necessary, to endear them to us; their services to our country, their devotion to Masonic principles, their practice of every true Masonic virtue, are engraved upon our hearts. We gratefully and affectionately recall them this day.

Masonic jests and stories are too commonly of vulgar character. Our Maker as given us the sense of mirth, and the gift of laughter, but to prostitute good humour to indecency is beastly.

OUR SCHOLARS IN AFTER LIFE.

WHAT is the present condition of the boys and girls who, in years past, were educated in the Masonic Schools? This is a question that may fairly be asked by those who have taken even the smallest part in providing the means for maintaining those Institutions, as well as by those who are solicited for subscriptions to enable them to be continued in their career of usefulness. We wonder that a answer to this interrogation is not more frequently demanded, but we feel assured that were such the case it would surprise many brethren to know how little information could be gathered on the subject. By this we do not mean to infer that our pupils are guilty of ingratitude; indeed, it may be that those who are really in need of assistance shrink from applying to their former benefactors lest they should offend by seeming to ask too much, while those who are more fortunately circumstanced frequently forget their school-days in the pleasures and labours of their every-day life. Then, again, it must not be forgotten that the old pupils are dispersed far and wide, over the length and breadth of the country, and in no few cases have placed a long sea voyage between the land of their childhood and their present abode. We doubt not that it would afford many members of the Craft infinite pleasure to have a few words from each of the old scholars of our schools; in some of whom they would recognise the names of those they had, in years gone by, striven hard to get elected to one or other of the Institutions; but anything like a regular record we fear is impossible, nor would it perhaps be desirable. We might regret to find that he or she, for whom we had worked so hard, had far from fulfilled our expectations; still would not a great part of such regret never be called for if we had taken some interest in the pupils after they left our School, and not have allowed them to be buffetted to and fro in the world—perhaps without a friend from whom to seek advice—at the most critical time of their life. It cannot for one moment be denied that such cases do occur, and that they are in themselves a source of great trouble to very many of our foremost brethren, some of whom, on various occasions, have striven to devise some means to reduce the evil to a minimum, if not to entirely stamp it out. Difficulties, however, present themselves; difficulties which appear all but insurmountable; in fact, they have hitherto proved to be quite so; and thus it is that, as scheme after scheme has been devised, and for a time supported, all have ended in an equally unsatisfactory manner. Their projectors find it impossible to carry them out. This is not wholly to be wondered at, nor should it debar others from trying; for it must be remembered that to found such a fund is in reality the establishment of another English Masonic Charity, and therefore no light undertaking, or a project that should be entered upon without the most serious consideration.

The men to undertake such a task, even if the smallest chance of success is to attend their efforts, must be well known as Masons throughout the country; must hold positions which will secure the respect and support of their fellows, and above all they must secure the services of brethren who are willing to devote time, labour and money to the routine work of the scheme; not merely for a day, or a month, but for two or three years; and we even go so far as to assure these, that they may labour night and day and yet find their task far from complete. Few have any idea of the amount of labour entailed, nor the number of questions that must necessarily arise,—in some cases of such a nature as to require deep deliberation and entail consultations with co-workers, at the same time calling for immediate attention, as in these matters delay will be looked upon as proof of incompetency to deal with the question, and will not unfrequently be used in a spirit of antagonism by those who may be opposed to the scheme. Another labour will be the consolidation of the various interests concerned; every Province which gives its support may be expected to offer suggestions, which for a time at least it will look upon as imperative, but which in the interests of others must be revised and altered so as to be equally beneficial to all; this is one of the greatest tasks we think the founders of a Fund for the assistance of those who leave our Schools will have to cope with, and unless the utmost care and discretion be used, it will prove the rock on which their destruction will be consummated. It must be clearly and distinctly understood that to warrant the smallest hope of ultimate success, the scheme must be started as a universal one, and not the mere effort of an individual Province, or of a section of the Craft. Some special branches of usefulness may, and doubtless will be, supported by various sections, but this idea, if undertaken, must be carried out in connection with the main scheme, and not separately, or in other words in opposition to it. Thus, one class may desire that the whole of their donations be devoted to apprenticing those pupils who it may be deemed expedient so to advance; others will stipulate that their money shall be spent in the purchase of outfits or tools, while others, again, will doubtless find some special object to which they desire the funds they provide shall be devoted, all of these suggestions can, by judicious management, be embodied in one system, and a means may thereby be created whereby assistance may be given to those who desire to further so desirable an object.

Among the latest who have brought this question under the notice of the Craft we may mention the R.W. Bro. Lord Rosslyn, whose remarks, in his capacity of chairman at the last Anniversary Festival of the Boys' School, will doubtless be in the minds of most of our readers. These remarks have since been especially referred to by Bro. Dick Radclyffe as will be apparent by reference to our issue of 5th July. Lord Rosslyn even went so far as to describe the absence of such a fund as the only "blot" he could find on our Institutions, and concluded his remarks thereon by appealing to the brethren to try and amend it, in order, as he put it, that the pupils might derive the full benefit of our bounty and our charity. After such an appeal it is not to be wondered at that his Lordship, finding his idea had taken some root,—and the efforts thus far of Bro. Dick Radclyffe to start the fund affirm such to be the case,—should now be anxious to see his proposed scheme started. We are pleased, therefore, to be in a position to announce that Lord Rosslyn has promised to use every exertion to make this project a reality; nay, he has even gone further, he has personally advocated the advantages of such a fund in a quarter where support means success, and has taken such an interest in the matter as can only emanate from a man hearted in the cause for which he labours. We think English Craftsmen are to be congratulated on having secured so able a brother to study their welfare, and we only hope the response will be as hearty as the appeal has been sincere. We know from his labours for Scotch Freemasonry what Lord Rosslyn's support means, and trust that he will meet with that hearty co-operation he deserves. Surely we cannot do better than aid a good cause under so good a leader.

In our present issue we publish a letter from Bro. Dick

Radclyffe, in which he gives details of what has been done thus far in response to the appeal of Lord Rosslyn. We publish also a letter from Bro. J. Jacobs, P. Prov. G. Reg. Staffordshire, with particulars of a scheme, all but started in that Province. Both of these communications point to the need of such a fund as these worthy brethren individually propose. Both bring forward credentials, which stamp their views as sound, worthy of support, and fairly promising; time alone can show how far these brethren will meet with the response they ask for.

In the case of the Staffordshire Masons, who propose to perpetuate the memory of him whom they justly describe as one of the most generous and popular G. Masters that ever ruled a Province, it is but natural to suppose that a comparatively limited sphere would be open for the display of their generosity. It would be unfair of other Provinces to expect the brethren of Staffordshire to watch over pupils other than their own, nor would it be possible for them so to do except perhaps in a few isolated cases. If it is their intention to ask for the support of the country, we hold they are wrong with their title; however much any man may be respected and esteemed in his own district we must not forget that after the lapse of a few years his name is hardly remembered, even in those parts to which he more particularly devoted his energies, much less in distant counties where it may be he was never seen, and but seldom referred to. Doubtless the promoters of the Shrewsbury Memorial Fund have really but one object in view, that of perpetuating and increasing the work of charity, of which their late Prov. Grand Master was at once the able exponent, and likewise a generous supporter. The question, then, that arises is, How can this desire best be gratified? would it be more advantageous to form a special fund, or to co-operate with others in raising such an amount as shall not only secure the desired results to a district, but will be the means of benefitting the class in every part of the country? This most important point will doubtless be fully discussed at the meeting of the Prov. Grand Lodge at which the subject is to be brought forward. Were the scheme taken up by every Province as heartily as from the letter of Bro. Jacobs we feel sure it has been in his county of Staffordshire, the labour of establishment would virtually be at an end, but the brethren of Staffordshire must know, as we do, that they are somewhat singular, and that they have no light task before them if they wish to secure the assistance of others. At the same time, we emphatically say such assistance must be obtained before anything like a fund worthy of the object contemplated can be raised. We are afraid our brethren are somewhat too sanguine when they reckon that a few years will supply enough capital to realize, in interest, sufficient for their wants. If they are not, they must contemplate, as we have before pointed out, confining their exertions within a very limited sphere. They must not, however, lose sight of the fact that in order to obtain subscriptions they must show immediate results, and these they can only achieve by heavy calls on their capital. With such brethren as those in Staffordshire who have taken this cause in hand, we may safely leave all these matters of detail; we feel assured they will not be above receiving suggestions, and that they will be among the first to support any scheme which may be put forward worthy of the name of our much respected and lamented Brother the Earl of Shrewsbury.

Bro. Radclyffe informs us that details of the scheme of Lord Rosslyn, which is promised the support of some of the most distinguished members of the Fraternity, are so far advanced as to warrant their being immediately laid before the Craft. From his letter we have additional evidence of the personal interest his Lordship takes in the welfare of our pupils. Bro. Radclyffe's arguments as to what means might be adopted to raise funds are generally known; from personal experience we think the reason they are not more universally adopted usually is, that one brother undertakes the work which should be left to a Committee of twelve or twenty, and as a consequence finds these extra duties interfere with his ordinary engagements, and, in not a few cases, he is obliged to relinquish his scheme. Bro. Radclyffe has had experience in this business, and so have many others; if such men would unite, and enlist a few untried brethren in the cause, they might secure a grand success. A result might be achieved that would realise a far greater sum than if such labours were devoted separately. We anxiously await the issue of the circular promised by Bro. Radclyffe, as will likewise many of our readers who have allowed this project to exercise their minds. When details of the scheme are before us, we shall take the opportunity of commenting on its merits.

OLIVER CROMWELL AND THE FREEMASONS.

From the "Voice of Masonry."

THREE fables have been invented to establish a connection between Freemasonry and the dynasty of the Stuarts; one which made it the purpose of the adherents of James II. to use the Institution as the means of restoring that Monarch to the throne; a second, in which the Jesuits were to employ it for the same purpose, as well as for the re-establishment of the Roman Catholic religion in England; the third and most preposterous of these fables is that which attributes the invention of Freemasonry, as a secret society, to Oliver Cromwell, who is supposed to have employed it as a political engine to aid him in the dethronement of Charles I., in the abolition of the monarchy, and in the foundation of a republic on its ruins, with himself for its head.

The theory that Freemasonry was instituted by Oliver Cromwell was not at first received, like the other two, by any large portion of the Fraternity. It was the invention of a simple mind, and was first made public in the year 1846 by the Abbe Larudan, who presented his views in a work entitled Les Franc Macons ecrasses, a book, which Kloss, the bibliographer, says, is the armoury from which all the enemies of Masonry have since derived their weapons of abuse.

The propositions of Larudan are distinguished by their absolute independence of all historical authority, and for the bold assumptions which are presented to the reader, in the place of facts. His strongest argument for the truth of his theory is that the purposes of the Masonic Institution and of the political course of Cromwell are identical, namely to sustain the doctrines of liberty and equality among mankind.

Rejecting all the claims of antiquity that have been urged in behalf of the Order, he thinks it was in England where Freemasonry first saw the light of day, and that it is to Cromwell it owes its origin. And this theory he claims (with what truth we know not) to have received from a certain Grand Master with whose astuteness and sincerity he was well acquainted. But even this authority, he says, would not have been sufficient to secure his belief had it not afterwards been confirmed by his reading of the history of the English Protector and his mature reflections on the morals and the laws of the Order, where he detected at every step the presence of Cromwell. The object of Cromwell, as it has been already said, was by the organisation of a secret society, whose members would be bound by the most solemn vows of fraternity, to reconcile the various religious and political sects which prevailed in England in the reign of Charles I. to the prosecution of his views, which were equally opposed to the supremacy of the King and to the power of the Parliament, and by the distraction of both to the elevation of himself to the headship of affairs.

In the execution of this plan Cromwell proceeded with his usual caution and address. He first submitted the outline to several of his most intimate friends, such as Algernon Sidney, Harrington, Monk, and Fairfax, and he held with them several private meetings. But it was not until the year 1648, that he began to take the necessary steps for bringing it to maturity.

In that year, at a dinner which he gave to a number of his friends, he opened his designs to the company. When his guests, among whom were many members of Parliament, with both Presbyterians and Independents, the two rival religious sects of the day, had been well feasted, the host dexterously led the conversation to the subject of the unhappy condition of England. He showed in a pathetic manner, how the unfortunate nation had suffered distracting conflicts of politics, and he declared that it was a disgrace that men so intelligent as those who then heard him did not make an exertion to put an end to these distracting contests of party.

Scarcely had Cromwell ceased to speak when Ireton, his son-in-law, who had been prepared for the occasion, rose, and seconding the sentiments of his leader, proceeded to show the absolute necessity for the public good of a conciliation and union of many discordant parties that were then dividing the country. He exclaimed with fervour that he would not hesitate to sacrifice his fortune and his life to remedy such calamities, and to show to the people the road they ought to take to relieve themselves from the yoke which was oppressing them and to break the iron sceptre under which they were groaning. But to do this it was first necessary, he insisted, to destroy every power and influence which had betrayed the nation. Then, turning to Cromwell, he conjured him to explain his views on this important matter, and to suggest the cure for these evils.

Cromwell did not hesitate to accept the task which had, apparently without his previous concurrence, been assigned to him. Addressing his guests in that metaphorical style which he was accustomed to use, the object of which was to confuse their intellects and make them more ready to receive his boldest propositions, he explained the obligation of a worship of God, the necessity to repel force by force, and to deliver mankind from oppression and tyranny. He then concluded his speech by piquing the curiosity of his auditors, in telling them he knew a method by which they could succeed in this great enterprise, restore peace to England and rescue it from the depths of misery into which it was plunged. This method, he added, if communicated to the world would win the gratitude of mankind and secure a glorious memory for its authors to the latest posterity. The discourse was well managed and well received. All of his guests earnestly besought him to make this admirable expedient known to them. But Cromwell would not yield at once to their importunities, but modestly replying that so important an enterprise was beyond the strength of any one man to accomplish, and that he would rather continue to endure the evils of a bad government than in seeking to remove them by the efforts of his friends subject them to dangers which they might be unwilling to encounter.

Cromwell well understood the character of every man who sat at the table with him, and he knew that by this artful address he should still further excite their curiosity and awaken their enthusiasm. And so it was that after a repetition of importunities, he finally consented to develop his plan on the condition that all the guests should take a solemn oath to reveal the plan to no one and to consider it after it had been proposed with an absolutely unprejudiced mind. This was unanimously assented to, and the oath of secrecy having been taken, Cromwell threw himself on his knees and, extending his hands towards heaven, called on GOD and all the Celestial Powers to witness the innocence of his heart and the purity of his intentions. All this the Abbe Larudan relates with a minuteness of detail which we could expect only from an eye-witness of the scene. Having thus made a deep impression on the spectators, Cromwell said that the precise moment for disclosing the plan had not arrived and that an inspiration from heaven, which he had just received, instructed him not to divulge the plan until four days had elapsed.

The company, though impatient to receive a knowledge of the important secret, were compelled to restrain their desires, and to agree to meet again at the appointed time and at a place which was designated. On the fourth day all the guests repaired to a house in King's street, where the meeting took place, and Cromwell proceeded to develop his plan. And here the Abbe Larudan becomes fervid and diffuse in the minuteness with which he describes what must have been a wholly imaginary scene.

He commenced by conducting the visitors into a dark room, where he prepared their minds for what was to occur by a long prayer, in the course of which he gave them to understand he was in communion with the spirits of the blessed. After this he told them his design was to found a society whose only object would be to render due worship to GOD and to restore to England the peace for which it so ardently longed. But this project, he added, required consummate prudence and infinite address to secure its success. Then taking a censer in his hands, he filled the apartment with the most subtle fumes so as to produce a favourable disposition in the company to hear what he had further to say. He informed them that at the reception of a new adherent it was necessary he should undergo a certain ceremony, to which all of them would have to submit. He asked them whether they were willing to pass through this ceremony? to which proposition unanimous consent was given. He then chose from the company five assistants to occupy appropriate places and to perform prescribed functions. These assistants were a Master, two Wardens, a Secretary and an Orator.

Having made these preparations, the visitors were removed to another apartment which had been prepared for the purpose, and in which was a picture representing the ruins of King Solomon's Temple. From this apartment they were removed into another, and being blindfolded were finally invested with the secrets of initiation. Cromwell delivered a discourse on religion and politics, the purport of which was to show to the contending sects of Presbyterians and Independents, representatives of both being present, the necessity, for the public good, of abandoning all their frivolous disputes, of becoming reconciled, and of changing the bitter hatred which then inspired them for a tender love and charity towards each other.

The eloquence of their artful leader had the desired effect, and both sects united with the army in the establishment of a secret association, grounded on the professed principles of love of GOD and the maintenance of liberty and equality among men, but whose real design was to advance the projects of Cromwell by the abolition of the monarchy and the establishment of a commonwealth of which he should be the head.

It is unfortunate for the completed symmetry of this rather interesting fable, that the Abbe has refrained from indulging his imagination by giving us the full details of the form of initiation. He has, however, in various parts of his book alluded to so much of it as to enable us to learn that the instructions were of a symbolic character, and that the Temple of Solomon constituted the most prominent symbol.

This Temple had been built by Divine command, to be the sanctuary of religion and as a place peculiarly consecrated to the performance of its august ceremonies. After several years of glory and magnificence, it had been destroyed by a formidable army, and the people who had been there accustomed to worship were loaded with chains and carried in captivity to Babylon. After years of servitude an idolatrous prince, chosen as the instrument of Divine clemency, had permitted the captives to return to Jerusalem and to rebuild the Temple in its primitive splendour.

It was in this allegory, says the Abbe, that the Freemasons of Cromwell found the exact analogy of their society. The Temple in its first splendour is figurative of the primitive state of man. The religion and the ceremonies which were there practised are nothing else than that universal law engraved on every heart whose principles are found in the ideas of equity and charity to which all men are obliged. The destruction of this Temple, and the captivity and slavery of its worshippers, symbolised the pride and ambition which have produced political subjection among men. The unpitying hosts of Assyrians who destroyed the Temple and led the people into captivity are the Kings, Princes and Magistrates whose power has overwhelmed oppressed nations with innumerable evils. And finally the chosen people, charged with the duty of rebuilding the Temple, are the Freemasons, who are to restore men to their original dignity.

Cromwell had divided the Order which he founded into three classes or degrees. The third or Master's degree was of course not without its Hiramic legend, but the interpretation of its symbolism was very different from that which is given at the present day.

The Abbe thus explains it. The disorder of the workman and the confusion at the Temple were intended to make a profound impression upon the mind of the candidate, and to show him that the loss of liberty and equality represented by the death of Hiram is the cause of all the evils which affect mankind. While men lived in tranquillity in the asylum of the Temple of Liberty they enjoyed perpetual happiness. But they have been surprised and attacked by tyrants, who have reduced them to a state of slavery. All this is symbolised by the destruction of the Temple, which it is the duty of the Master Mason to rebuild, that is, to restore that liberty and equality which had been lost.

Cromwell appointed missionaries or emissaries, says Larudan, who propagated the Order, not only over all England but even into Scotland and Ireland, where many Lodges were established.

The members of the Order were first called Freemasons; afterwards the name was repeatedly changed to suit the political circumstances of the times, and they were called Levellers, then Independents, afterwards the Fifth Monarchy Men, and finally resumed their original title, which they have retained to the present day.

Such is the fable of the Cromwellian origin of Freemasonry, which we owe entirely to the inventive genius of the Abbe Larudan. And yet it is not wholly a story of the imagination, but is really founded on an extraordinary distortion of the facts of history.

Edmund Ludlow was an honest and honourable man, who took at first a prominent part in the civil war which ended in the decapitation of Charles I., the dissolution of the monarchy and the establishment of the commonwealth. He was throughout his whole life a consistent and unswerving republican, and was as much opposed to the political schemes of Cromwell for his own advancement to power as he was to the usurpation of unconstitutional power by the king. In the language of the editor of his memoirs: "He was enemy to all arbitrary government though gilded over with the most specious pretences; and not only disappointed the usurpation of Cromwell, but would have opposed him with as much vigour as he had done the king, if all occasions of that nature had not been cut off by the extraordinary jealousy or vigilance of the usurpers." Having unsuccessfully laboured to counteract the influence of Cromwell with the army, he abandoned public affairs and returned to his home in Essex, where he remained in seclusion until the restoration of Charles II., when he fled to Switzerland, where he resided until his death.

During his exile Ludlow occupied his leisure hours in the composition of his Memoirs, a work of great value, as a faithful record of the troublous period in which he lived, and of which he was himself a great part. In these memoirs he has given a copious narrative of the intrigues by which Cromwell secured the alliance of the army and destroyed the influence of the Parliament. The work was published at Vevay, Switzerland, under the title "Memoirs of Edmund Ludlow, Esq., Lieutenant General of the Forces in Ireland, one of the Council of the State and a Member of the Parliament which began November 3rd, 1640." It is in two volumes, with a supplementary one containing copies of important papers. The edition from which I cite bears the date of 1698. There may have been an earlier one. With these Memoirs the Abbe Larudan appears to have been well acquainted. He had undoubtedly read them carefully, for he has made many quotations and has repeatedly referred to Ludlow as his authority.

But, unfortunately for the Abbe's intelligence, or far more probably for his honesty, he has always applied what Ludlow said of the intrigues of Cromwell for the organisation of a new party as if it were meant to describe the formation of a new and secret society.

Neither Ludlow nor any other writer refers to the existence of Freemasonry as we now have it, and as it is described by the Abbe Larudan in the time of the civil wars. Even the Operative Masons were not at that period greatly encouraged, for, says Northouck, "no regard to science and elegance was to be expected from the sour minds of the puritanical masters of the nation, between the fall of Charles I. and the restoration of his son."

The Guild of Freemasons, the only form in which the Order was known until the eighteenth century, was, during the Commonwealth, discouraged and architecture was neglected. In the tumult of war the arts of peace are silent. Cromwell was, it is true, engaged in many political intrigues, but he had other and more effective means to effect his ends than those of Freemasonry, of whose existence at that time, except as a Guild of Workmen, we have no historical evidence, but many facts to contradict its probability.

The theory, therefore, that Freemasonry owes its origin to Oliver Cromwell, who invented it as a means of forwarding his designs toward obtaining the supreme power of the State, is simply a fable, the invention of a clerical adversary of the Institution, and devised by him plainly to give it a political character, by which, like his successors Barruel and Robinson, he sought to injure it.

At the last meeting of the Sphinx Lodge it was proposed—

"That a petition to the Grand Lodge be presented for the purpose of advocating the entire abolition of the oaths at present so freely administered in Craft Masonry, and for the substitution in place thereof of a solemn affirmation, as more consistent with the true objects and best interests of English Freemasonry."

One brother suggested, as the better course, to bring forward the subject at the usual meeting of the Grand Lodge. It was ultimately withdrawn on the understanding that the W.M. would communicate with the Grand Secretary upon the subject.

After nearly two years spent in its preparation, a new work on ferns, written by Mr. James Britten, F.L.S., with fac-simile coloured plates, painted from Nature by Mr. D. Blair, F.L.S., will be published shortly in monthly parts by Messrs. Cassell, Petter, Galpin & Co., under the title of "European Ferns."

"ASSISTANCE" FUND.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Following up my letter in your issue of 5th July, I have much pleasure in informing you that the scheme therein contained will be laid before the Craft almost immediately, and that it is supported by some of the leading and most distinguished members of the Fraternity. R.W. P.G.M. the Earl of Rosslyn has personally undertaken to support the appeal, and the prospectus will be issued shortly, with a long list of influential supporters. In the meantime, I think it desirable to give publicity to the scheme, as possibly there are numbers of your readers who would like to join and have their names on the list as patrons and supporters. I may mention, it is not necessary for a brother to undertake a Stewardship or to have a long pocket. As it is a well known fact that the result of the Steward's appeal who raises, say £50 from 100 subscribers, does infinitely more good for the Charities generally than the rich Steward who simply writes his cheque for 100 guineas, and does no more. I mention this as I know there are many who feel they cannot undertake Stewardships, to work for the Charities, on the ground they feel they are not rich enough. Personally I cannot give the Institutions as much as I desire, still I do not hesitate to undertake a Stewardship, give my mite, and induce others to do the same. By this means I feel I more than compensate the Institution. There are thousands of brethren who could not afford more than a few guineas, but are, at the same time, in a position to induce others to do likewise, and also richer brethren might do the same. (The rich are frequently apathetic, and although they give freely, they do not want the work). There are many in a position to raise £100 in two years. I trust therefore I may induce 99 to join me. This alone would give the nucleus to the fund we are about to start. As an idea of how simple matters lead to big results, I would call your attention to the following:—If every W.M. for the next year were to give up his jewel, £6,000 would be raised. To forego one banquet in every Lodge, at least double this sum. A £5 subscription from every Lodge would realise £6,000. One guinea from every initiation fee would give a good round sum. 5s from every name on Grand Lodge Register over £25,000. Stewards for the Festivals of the Institutions have a very good opportunity to raise subscriptions, and they could easily do so without in any way interfering with the working funds required for the Institutions. If every subscriber would add one guinea to the "Assistance" Fund, what a large sum could be raised. Money could be raised by means of balls, picnics and bazaars, and if every Lodge will put a collecting box in its ante-room, as well as permit a subscription list to lie on the Secretary's table, and Stewards would not let their brethren remain in ignorance of the whereabouts, many small sums would be secured, to grow into a large total. To conclude, I shall be glad to receive the names of any brethren wishing to act as Stewards, or support the scheme as patrons, and a rough proof of the prospectus shall be forwarded for their approval.

Suggestions will be received by,

Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

DICK RADCLYFFE.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—My attention has only just been called to the remarks of Lord Rosslyn at the Boys' Festival, and of a letter in your journal of 5th July, from Bro. Radclyffe, on the proposed scheme for assisting the Boys and Girls on leaving our Schools. May I be permitted to inform these brethren and the Craft generally, through you, that the Province of Stafford will, I hope, in a very few weeks inaugurate a fund which will meet these wants, and I hope the brethren will give it such support that in a few years we may have a fund at our command, the interest of which will suffice for all our wants. A couple of years ago we had the misfortune to lose one of the most generous and popular Pr. G. Masters that ever ruled a Province—the late Earl of Shrewsbury. At our next P.G. meeting I proposed that something should be done to perpetuate his name in our Province, which was carried unanimously, and a Committee appointed to report at our next meeting. I was one of this committee, and consulted Bro. Fredk. Binckes and Bro. Hedges as to what would be the best way of associating Lord Shrewsbury's name with some of those charities he had so nobly assisted, and after feeling quite sure, from personal enquiries, that a fund was urgently needed to assist some of the Boys and Girls on leaving our Schools, I proposed to our Committee, and it was adopted, and will be brought before our next P.G. meeting, that a fund, to be called the "Shrewsbury Memorial Fund," be established, to assist, in after life, deserving Boys and Girls on leaving the Masonic Schools. I may say that, with one or two exceptions, it has received general support in Staffordshire, and some Lodges have voted very handsome sums for its adoption. At our next Grand meeting, which we hope will be soon (but having no P.G. Master appointed yet, it is uncertain when) it will be brought forward, and doubtless adopted. When the "Shrewsbury Fund" is once launched, I trust the liberality of the Staffordshire Masons, and the Craft generally, will be such that will do credit to a name which will long be remembered, not only in this Province but throughout the Craft, for generosity and true Masonic feeling.

I am, yours fraternally,

J. JACOBS P.M. 482,

P.P.G. Reg. Staffordshire.

The Rookery, Handsworth, Birmingham,

The following is a copy of a circular sent out to the brethren of Staffordshire:—

HANDSWORTH,
28th March 1879.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I beg to send you copy of a letter I have received from Bro. Binckes, Secretary of the Masonic School for Boys, from which you will see how necessary it is that we should establish the "Shrewsbury Fund" as early as we possibly can. May I ask you to communicate, at your early convenience, to Bro. Cartrigert P.G. Sec. the amount your Lodge purposes giving, so that at our next P.G. Meeting we can see how much money may be collected in the Province. I may remind you the money can be given in one or more years. With kind regards,

I am, yours fraternally,

J. JACOBS P.M. 482, P.P.G. Reg.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS,
WOOD GREEN, LONDON, N.

Offices—6 Freemasons' Hall, W.C. 14th March 1879.

DEAR BROTHER JACOBS,—I have been, and am, anxiously waiting further tidings of the—as I hope I may term it—success of the movement in providing a Fund for furthering the advancement of Boys and Girls in life after leaving our Institutions, which Fund, as I understand it, is proposed as a Memorial of the Masonic services of the late Prov. G. Master of Staffordshire, the Earl of Shrewsbury.

Two prominent instances of the urgent need of such a Fund are now at this present before me: one—the case of a lad of good connection, but without means, who distinguished himself very highly in an examination for the New Class of Engineer Studentships for H.M. Navy, 6th January, out of 150 successful from a very large number of Candidates. Government requires an allowance of £25 per annum for three years to each successful Candidate as he is elected, and in December 1877 we found the amount for the first year, 1878. I have been called upon to find the amount for 1879, and failing a Fund to assist, was compelled to advance the £25 myself on 1st January last, to secure the young man's retention in his present most eligible position. The kindness of a few friends has recouped me the larger portion of the sum, but I am still out of pocket £10. This should not be; but what is to be done for the third year, 1880? With a Fund such as that under consideration, there would be no anxiety. Take another case: a lad, situated as the former, full of promise and ability, is desirous of entering Sandhurst or Woolwich, to study for a Commission in the Army. His friends can raise but a moderate sum, and this we can supplement from our "General Fund" with £20 only! Now, it is truly a laudable ambition in these youths to serve their country in H.M. Service, and I, for one, should be proud in after years to see two—or more—Officers of distinction who had acquired their position through the means of Masonic Institutions.

Such a Fund of Assistance is our great crying want, and I feel sure would have met with the concurrence of your late excellent Prov. G. Master. Every precaution would be taken to guard its distribution from abuse, and its founders could always have a share in its management under provisions, that of the Trustees; at least two should be appointed by the Province.

I must apologise for the length of this letter, though I have not half exhausted the arguments I could urge in favor of the desirability of the establishment of this "Advancement" Fund. My anxiety must be pleaded in excuse, and that anxiety is based on a large experience of the need of the Fund, and of my knowledge of the services that would be rendered to our Educational Institutions by its successful organisation, and prudently administered distribution.

Believe me,

Very faithfully and fraternally yours,

FREDERICK BINCKES, Sec.

W. BRO. J. JACOBS.

NON-AFFILIATION.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—One of the strongest points I have ever urged in favour of Freemasonry is that it is universal; it is the same in England, America, on the Continent, or indeed anywhere where civilisation is known; and this, too, in the face of opposition, sometimes from without and sometimes from within. By universal, I do not wish to say that Freemasonry in England is an exact counterpart of Freemasonry in a far distant State of America, or any other portion of the world, where it may be the Lodge is formed of brethren as unlike ourselves as it is possible for men to be—the natural differences of society in different countries would not permit such to be the case; but the principles and the main ideas are the same. It is impossible for a good English Mason to teach a strange brother aught wrong in the groundwork of the Order, or for a foreigner to lay down Masonic precepts which would lead an English brother into difficulties. Still there are some very peculiar Masonic laws and usages in various parts of the world which, if they could be more widely known, would supply material for reflection, and I doubt not, in most cases, food for improvement. You, Brother Editor, have done good service in the past, and can still further assist us in this respect by reproducing articles from the various foreign Masonic papers which from time to time reach you. To many it may be thought that articles bearing somewhat a local significance are not interesting to the large body of your readers, but I think this is an error. We all enjoy the perusal of details of our own individual schemes, and hope by widely circulating our ideas to bring others to our way of thinking, or convince us we ourselves are wrong. If no one outside our circle took any notice of our remarks, which to strangers may be of very little importance, we should not know when we were right and when wrong, for as a rule friendly critics too often hope to please by passing over the faults they discover. I look upon the man who warns me if he sees me drifting on to the rocks or quicksands of life as my best friend, and care not for him who, when misfortune occurs, tells me he saw I was wrong but did not like to point out my mistake for fear of displeasing me. By a knowledge of the private life and work of an individual we are often able to avoid errors ourselves, and, in many cases, by friendly advice, remedy failings in others, it may be in time to effect a change, and thereby earn for ourselves a debt of gratitude. So it is with Lodges and bodies of men generally.

I was extremely pleased to have the opportunity of perusing the article on non-affiliation, from the Masonic Newspaper, which appeared in your last issue. The remarks therein, based as they are on the rules of the State of New York, are of course very different to what could be written of English Non-Affiliation, such a penalty, as far as "non-payment of dues" is concerned, being virtually unknown in this country; still they possess a great deal in common with what might be written of the English Craft, which from some cause or other, like its trans-Atlantic sister, annually loses a great number of brethren who joined with the strongest recommendations, and for the few years of their Masonic career showed unmistakable signs of true heartedness and zeal for the brotherhood. Cannot the cause be traced in some measure to "non-affiliation for non-payment of dues," which, although an almost unregarded English law, is none the less binding on those who from misfortune are the very ones least able to bear the brunt. When a brother joins a Lodge it is usually with every prospect of maintaining his then social position, but who can for one moment foresee the troubles and misfortunes which lie in our path. As your American contemporary observes, "in the midst of domestic misfortune or financial oppression comes additional adversity," and then, as he further remarks, the question arises, Which shall be paid first? Lodge dues or demands for household necessities? Of course every right-minded brother will say the latter, but does the individual who thus answers reflect for one moment what this entails. The brother's subscription to his Lodge may be one year in arrear, and he does not like to send in his resignation in consequence of being thus behind; it therefore goes on, and twelve months hence an increased amount is due, with perhaps less chance of its being cleared off, and so it goes on until the brother's name is removed from the Lodge records, and it may be he is returned to Grand Lodge as a defaulter. Surely, as this American writer says, "this is making a crime of poverty, and convicting a brother for having done his duty." In after years the sufferer may desire to return to the Lodge, when the first thing that greets him is the long standing "arrears" and re-joining fees which, although not quite so accumulative as in the case of New York Lodges, may be sufficient to debar him from ever entertaining the possibility of again enjoying his Masonic privileges. And yet this is a debt, not incurred in return for any benefits derived from the Lodge, but due in consequence of a brother's not taking part in its proceedings. It is unjust, and as your contemporary remarks, that is a very mild form of putting it. Could not some law be introduced to enable a brother to rejoin without such payments where it could be shown that the inability to continue in the ordinary course was no fault of the applicant. I am sure it would prove a benefit to the Craft, as we should thereby be enabled to receive into our ranks many of the tried and zealous brethren who have experienced a rather large share of the misfortunes of this life.

Hoping you will excuse the length of this epistle, and wishing you success in your undertaking,

I remain,

Fraternally yours,

AN OLD PAST MASTER.

LAUGHTON CHURCH TOWER RESTORATION FUND.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Would you kindly insert the accompanying Appeal, and urge every brother Mason whose heart is influenced by the impulse of charity to send me a subscription, to resist a cruel impost of nearly £400, for the repairs of my Church Tower? It is most unjustly, if not disgracefully, thrown on me by the withdrawal of those individuals whose duty it was, and on whose fidelity and honour I relied to discharge the debt.

Do, my dear brother, help me, as the case is urgent: and thus I shall obviate the evil design of those who would damage my reputation and means; and to whom I have done no harm, but have acted with fidelity and truth.

Any small subscription will be gladly received, and faithfully acknowledged by,

Yours sincerely,

DANIEL ACE, D.D.,

Vicar of Laughton.

Laughton Vicarage, near Gainsborough.

30th July 1879.

APPEAL.

The Rev. Daniel Ace, D.D., the Vicar of Laughton, in Lincolnshire, is under the necessity of making an appeal to all Members of the Church of England to enable him to defray the expenses incurred for the Restoration of the Tower of the Parish Church of Laughton, for which Dr. Ace, who is the Vicar of the Parish, has been held personally liable.

The income of the Vicarage is but very small, and the amount of the liability now thrown upon Dr. Ace amounts to a very large sum, which he is totally unable to pay, and the enforcement of payment must necessarily lead to his utter ruin.

The repairs of the Tower were such as were absolutely needed to preserve the Tower and fabric of the Church from complete destruction.

As in the present state of the law Church Rates are not in existence, there is no possibility of obtaining any part whatever of the amount by Church Rate.

Dr. Ace feels confident that a Clergyman of the Church of England will not be abandoned in his hour of need, or allowed to suffer utter pecuniary ruin through his having (in his anxiety to preserve the ancient and venerable edifice in which he ministers) incurred a debt, not for anything in any way for his own personal benefit, but wholly for the benefit and preservation of the House of the Lord.

The following gentlemen have consented to receive Donations towards "The Laughton Church Tower Restoration Fund."

The Rev. J. C. K. SAUNDERS, M.A., Fricsthorpe Rectory, Market Rasen.

T. OLDHAM, Churchwarden, Laughton, Gainsborough.
J. HANNAM, Bookseller, Gainsborough.

KNIGHTS AND NYMPHS OF THE ROSE.

THIS was an Order of Adoptive or Androgynous Masonry, invented in France towards the close of the eighteenth century. M. de Chaumont, the Masonic secretary of the Duc de Chartres, was its author. The principal seat of the Order was at Paris. The hall of meeting was called the Temple of Love. It was ornamented with garlands of flowers, and hung around with escutcheons on which were painted various devices and emblems of gallantry. There were two presiding officers, a male and female, who were styled the Hierophant and the High Priestess. The former initiated men, and the latter women. In the initiations the Hierophant was assisted by a conductor or deacon, called Sentiment, and the High Priestess by a conductress or deaconess, called Discretion. The members received the title of Knights and Nymphs. The Knights wore a crown of myrtle, the Nymphs a crown of roses. The Hierophant and High Priestess wore, in addition, a rose-coloured scarf, on which were embroidered two doves within a wreath of myrtle. During the time of initiation, the hall was lit with a single dull taper, but afterwards it was brilliantly illuminated with numerous wax candles.

When a candidate was to be initiated, he or she was taken in charge, according to the sex, by the conductor or conductress, divested of all weapons, jewels or money, hoodwinked, loaded with chains, and in this condition conducted to the door of the Temple of Love, where admission was demanded by two knocks. Bro. Sentiment then introduced the candidate by order of the Hierophant or High Priestess, and he or she was asked his or her name, country, condition of life, and lastly, what he or she was seeking. To this the answer was "Happiness."

The next question proposed was, "What is your age?" The candidate, if a male, replied, "The age to love;" if a female, "The age to please and to be loved."

The candidates were then interrogated concerning their private opinions and conduct in relation to matters of gallantry. The chains were then taken from them, and they were invested with garlands of flowers which were called "the chains of love." In this condition they were made to traverse the apartment from one extremity to another, and then back in a contrary direction, over a path inscribed with love knots. The following obligation was then administered:

"I promise and swear by the Grand Master of the Universe never to reveal the secrets of the Order of the Rose, and should I fail in this my vow, may the mysteries I shall receive add nothing to my pleasures, and instead of the roses of happiness may I find nothing but the thorns of repentance."

The candidates were then conducted to the mysterious groves in the neighbourhood of the Temple of Love, where the Knights received a crown of myrtle, and the Nymphs a simple rose. During this time a soft melodious march was played by the orchestra. After this the candidates were conducted to the alter of mystery, placed at the foot of the Hierophant throne, and there incense was offered up to Venus and her son. If it was a knight who had been initiated, he now exchanged his crown of myrtle for the rose of the last initiated nymph; and if a nymph, she exchanged her rose for the myrtle crown of Brother Sentiment. The Hierophant now read a copy of verses in honour of the God of Mystery, and the bandage was at length taken from the eyes of the candidate. Delicious music and brilliant lights now added to the charms of this enchanting scene, in the midst of which the Hierophant communicated to the candidate the modes of recognition peculiar to the Order.—Mackey's Lexicon.

SUMMER BANQUET OF LODGES Nos. 1507 AND 1744.

THE brethren of the Metropolitan Lodge No. 1507, and of the Royal Savoy Lodge No. 1744, held a joint Summer Festival on the 24th ult., at the Rye House, Hoddesden, under the presidency of the respective W.M.'s, Bros. J. Douglass 1507, and J. Willing jun. 1744. A numerous company assembled at the London station, and on reaching Hoddesden enjoyed a short ramble in the grounds of the famous hostelry there. At four o'clock they proceeded to the banquet-hall, where a most enjoyable repast was provided, and which was heartily enjoyed by those present. At the conclusion thereof a few toasts were proposed by Bro. Willing, who fulfilled his task in a manner deserving of praise. He confined his remarks to a few words complimentary to those whose health he called on the party to drink. Bro. Willing, in hearty terms, proposed success to the Metropolitan Lodge, coupling with the toast the health of its W.M., Bro. Douglass, and that brother, after a brief reply, paid a like compliment to the Royal Savoy Lodge and its Master. With the toast of the Past Masters and Secretary of the two Lodges was coupled the name of Bro. Stiles, who occupies the latter position in each. The health of the ladies was proposed from the chair, and acknowledged by Bros. Everett and Stiles, while various of the Officers acknowledged the remarks Bro. Willing made in their praise. The company spent the remainder of the evening in dancing and other enjoyments, returning to town at an early hour. The thanks of those present are due to the brethren who undertook the various arrangements in connection with this holiday. The proceedings throughout were all that could be desired.

CONSECRATION OF THE VICTORIA PARK LODGE, No. 1816.

THE inaugural ceremonies of this Lodge took place on Friday the 25th ult., at the Queen's Hotel, Victoria Park-road, South Hackney. The ceremonies of Consecration and Installation of Officers were most efficiently and admirably carried out by Bro. James Terry P.P.J.G.W. Herts, assisted by Bro. C. Grey Hill P.M. 1366 as Director of Ceremonies. The programme of the proceedings was fully carried out, with solemn and appropriate effect. The remarkable ability displayed by brother Terry during the proceedings was attended with the most gratifying results, and the highest appreciation was accorded them by all the brethren present.

The following were duly invested as the principal Officers:—Bro. Benjamin Carter W.M., George Edwards S.W., William Snellgrove J.W. The appointment of the minor Officers, with the reception of propositions for initiation and joining members, concluded this portion of the proceedings. Preparatory to the partaking of refreshments the various brethren engaged themselves by perambulating the beautiful walks laid out in Victoria Park, the weather being in every sense most auspicious for the occasion. The banquet, which followed, was somewhat delayed through a sad accident occurring to a child of one of the brethren living in the locality, who was suffocated from a cherry accidentally slipping into its throat, which could not be extracted before death took place. This sad incident caused a considerable delay in the holding of the banquet, from the absence of several prominent brethren who had adjourned to the house of sorrow and mourning, to condole with the bereaved parents. The banquet, which proved one of the very best of its kind, was numerously attended, for, besides the Consecrating and Lodge Officers already named, there were about fifty brethren seated around the beautifully decorated tables, amongst whom were the following:—Bros. L. Stean W.M., G. T. Barr S.W., J. A. Jones J.D., of St. Leonard's Lodge 1766; J. Harrison, C. R. Crouch, G. H. Barking and H. Lloyd P.M. of the Burdett Coutts Lodge No. 1278; Stoke P.M. Finsbury Lodge 861, E. M. Adams Guelph Lodge 1685, A. J. Manning P.M. Henley Lodge 1472, A. Angliss Upton Lodge 1227, H. Rogers P.M., C. H. Smith P.M., John Saunders W.M., George Grunday J.D. of Temperance in the East Lodge 898, H. J. Dobbs Beacontree Lodge 1228, J. H. Cambridge Kent Lodge 15, H. Sherwin Organist, &c., &c., &c. The usual Loyal and Craft toasts were given by the W.M. and loyally responded to. Bro. Terry in felicitous terms proposed the health of the W.M., Bro. Benj. Carter; who briefly and appropriately returned thanks, expressing the utmost confidence in the Officers he had appointed to assist him during the coming year in upholding the constitution of their noble Order, and doing their best to further its various institutions. The name of the Consecrating Officer was next submitted to the brethren, Bro. Terry responded in a lengthy and eloquent speech. He said that he had acted as a substitute in the capacity of Consecrating Officer for the Grand Master 118 times, in opening new Lodges, and at the present time he stood second only in that respect to their Grand Secretary. He had won his spurs as a young Mason, being the first W.M. of the Burdett Coutts Lodge. The ceremony in opening this new Lodge that day had been superlatively good. From the fact of there being so many valued brothers of his own Lodge present, he could not help trying to do his best. Freemasonry was not a mere plaything, it embodied great principles, that were not to be treated lightly. The studying of sections, nor the rendering of ceremonies, did not constitute the principles of Masonry, it existed in the brotherly sympathy they evinced towards each other, and in the feeling of brotherly love created in the warm and manly pressure of the hand when they met each other in the street or in the Lodge. In calling a man a brother it signified more than the mere sound of him. Brother Terry also gave wise counsel to the Lodge admission of members. It required great care to consolidat Lodge, and admit only those persons who would do them credit give honour to them with their presence. It was not quantity wanted, but quality, there was a good wholesome rule they observe, that was, rather reject five persons whose character not bear the closest scrutiny than lose one good and valued didate who could not associate with the five persons had they admitted. Bro. Terry resumed his seat amidst a hearty expressi Masonic applause. The health of the S.W. and J.W., Bros. G Edwards and Wm. Snellgrove, were proposed by the W.M., enthusiastically responded to by the company. Bro. George Edw S.W., in replying, expressed some degree of diffidence in thankin brethren for placing him in so distinguished a position as he occupied. He averred that it would be his pride to do his utm promoting the best interests of the Lodge in every conceivable and hoped a similar feeling animated them one and all; if so, it aug well for their future success. He thanked the brethren for the manner they had responded to the toast. Bro. Snellgrove re in somewhat similiar terms. The Visitors were heartily dran Bro. L. Stean, W.M. St. Leonard's Lodge, briefly and in a happy and appropriate manner responded to the toast, concludi wishing every success possible to the new Lodge, and long life health to its founders and its Officers. Several excellent ballads sung at intervals, accompanied very cleverly by Bro. M. H. W. She Organist. The latter proceedings ended at an early hour, the ut satisfaction being expressed with the arrangements of the cat and with the generous hospitality of the members of the new L —Shoreditch Chronicle.

THE KISS OF DEATH.*

THE great Earl stood in his place of power,
And told the tale how a Princess died;
While many a silent tear was shed,
And many a haughty noble sighed.

For she was dear to the English heart,
Who tended her father's dying hours;
Always ready to take her part,
And always welcome as fragrant flowers.

As the gentle nurse, we knew her well,
Who sat by the bed of England's Heir;
In all those grave and terrible days,
When he was saved by her loving care.

When England's prayer of might went up,
To the King of Heaven to save our Prince,
And the throb of sorrow from every heart,
Did our love to the Throne and Him evince.

And the prayer was answered, and he was saved,
To show the power of the mighty God;
And the Princess Alice we loved so well,
Is dead, and buried beneath the sod.

We heard the pitiful tale he told,
To the Peers assembled to hear him speak;
How the weary mother, who nursed her child,
In her warm embrace had kissed his cheek.

In that dreadful passage of fell disease,
"Kiss me, mother," the child had cried;
Though she had been warned of the danger there,
She kissed her boy, and sickened, and died.

She could not resist the pleading voice,
The eloquent glance in the wonderful eyes;
So she had given the kiss of death,
And followed her bright one to the skies.

Was ever a story so sad as this,
Of one who could not her love suppress;
The mother was killed by the young lad's kiss,
And died through giving her soft caress.

The mothers of England all mourn her loss,
And Englishmen ever will sing her praise;
For she was gracious, and good, and sweet,
We loved her all for her winsome ways.

Oh! widowed mother, Oh! gracious Queen,
Who rulest over this Empire vast,
Remember in all thy sorrows now,
As in thy joys that are gone and past.

My children ever will share with thee,
In joy or sorrow, come weal or woe;
For thou hast won thy people's hearts,
And reverent love to thee we show.

DISSAPPOINTED BRETHREN.

OCCASIONALLY we meet with brethren who do not hesitate to own that they are disappointed in their experience of Masonry. It does not realize their expectations. They thought the Institution to be something quite different from what it proves to be. They are disappointed that they have taken membership in a society so little in accord with their thoughts and habits of life. One of the disappointed class became a Mason because he was impressed with the idea that the Fraternity was a sort of free and easy club, whose members devoted themselves to eating and drinking, and having a good time generally. He is wearied by the precise regulations of the Lodge. He is disgusted with so much reiteration of the truths and duties that are bound up in the Masonic system, and by his actions and his words alike he reveals the fact that he is not satisfied with Masonry. He goes elsewhere for the license and free companionship which he fails to find under the auspices of the Craft.

Another is disappointed because he gets no direct returns for the money he has invested in obtaining the degrees and in payment of dues. A brother of this class says, "what has Masonry ever done for me? What benefit have I received from all my outlay of time and money?" Disappointment arises in this case because of the non-realization of the selfish purpose that led to Masonic affiliation. The brother had no proper appreciation of the character of the society which he entered, and it is no cause of wonder that he is disappointed at what he finds to be its purpose and work. Had the complainer been better informed he would never have sought admission. Had the brethren of the Lodge to which he applied read his heart and understood his motives they would never have allowed him admission.

Sometimes the disappointed brother is one who has been checked in his ambitious schemes. He joined the brotherhood that he might be a leader and ruler. He covets high places, and aspires to the honors and distinctions which Masonry confers upon the distinguished few. If he is held back from these places of rank and authority his disappointment shows itself in criticisms and denunciations of his brethren. He loses his interest in Masonry, and sometimes turns his hand against the Institution which once he professed to love and respect.

But there are other types of disappointed brethren; some of them of worthier character than those already sketched. A man of pure thought becomes a Mason, and is instructed in the reverence due to the great and sacred name of Deity. The lessons around the Lodge altar are deeply impressive to the candidate, and he is delighted with the moral elements that are presented in Masonic teachings. How great his disappointment if he finds that those who give these teachings are profane swearers—that they are without any real respect for God. and religion! He is made sad if it shall appear that the theory of Masonry is one thing and the practice quite another.

It is a like kind of disappointment that effects the man who has connected himself with the Craft expecting to find brotherly love illustrated among Masons to an extraordinary degree; but who is forced to acknowledge that there is no such large expression of this virtue as he had anticipated would be the case. He does not see close fellowship, that spirit of willing helpfulness, that manifestation of sympathy and affection among brethren, which he had supposed it was the peculiar office of Masonry to produce in the hearts of its followers. He is disappointed that there is so much of hardness, bitterness and strife all the time coming to the surface even within the lines of the great brotherhood itself. Alas! that there should be a reason for this worst kind of disappointment—a disappointment occasioned by the fact that Masonry only poorly realizes its grand ideals, and that its followers are so imperfectly effected by the sublime principles that are interwoven with the system! Alas for perverse human nature which so often fails to represent in actual performance the truth that has received the assent of the lips! Truly there are spots on all our feasts of charity.—Repository.

West Smithfield Lodge of Instruction, No. 1623.—The members met on Monday, 28th July, at Bro. Butt's, New Market Hotel, West Smithfield, when there were present Bros. W. Stuart (P.M. 141) W.M., R. Greenwood S.W., D. Moss J.W., W. Butt S.D., S. Renaut J.D., W. Smyth I.G., E. Mallett Secretary; Bros. J. King, James Stevens, W. W. Morgan, and Danker. After preliminaries, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. King candidate. The W.M. then worked the first and fourth sections of the lecture, Bro. James Stevens dictating the answers. On the W.M. rising, Bros. James Stevens P.M. 720 and W. W. Morgan were duly elected members of the Lodge, and they thanked the brethren for the honour conferred on them. The W.M. then received the congratulations of the brethren, and afterwards closed his Lodge in due form.

Royal Hanover Lodge, No. 1777, Hounslow.—A meeting of this Lodge was held at the Town Hall, Hounslow, on the 26th July. The W.M. was unable to attend, and several of the Officers likewise were absent. The chair was taken by Bro. M. S. Larlham P.M., supported by Bros. H. Lovegrove S.W., G. Clark J.W., W. Ramsey Hon. I.P.M., H. B. Marshall Treasurer, H. Clark S.D., F. J. Perks D.C., Dunkley Organist, and J. Daly Tyler. After the opening of the Lodge and the confirmation of the minutes, no candidates being in attendance, the business on the summons was proceeded with. The ballot was taken for the election of W.M. for the ensuing year, and was declared unanimous in favour of Bro. H. Lovegrove S.W. Bro. H. B. Marshall (C.C., F.R.G.S.), who has been Steward for the three Charities during the present year, was unanimously re-elected Treasurer. Bro. J. Daly was re-elected Tyler, and Bros. Wood, W. S. Dunkley and Heelis were appointed as Audit Committee. Bro. White, a candidate for passing, now answered the usual questions, and was passed to the second degree. The S.W. announced the appointment of the W.M. as Prov. Grand J.W. Several names of brethren were handed in for joining the Lodge, and after the transaction of some routine business, the Lodge was closed. The brethren assembled at 6.30 p.m., at the Red Lion Hotel, the W.M. elect Bro. H. Lovegrove in the chair, when the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given. In proposing the health of the Prov. G.M. Col. F. Burdett, the S.W. referred to the flourishing condition of the Province under his rule, and remarked that the Royal Hanover had especial reasons for being grateful to the Prov. G.M., as for services in the Province generally the W.M. Bro. Dubois had been appointed to the important position of Prov. Grand Junior Warden, and he himself (the S.W.) had received purple in the Mark Degree. The toast of the W.M. elect and the Officers was proposed by Bro. Larlham, Hon. Member, and responded to by Bros. Lovegrove, G. Clark, H. Clark, Perks and Dunkley. The Tyler's toast was given, and the brethren left for town at 9 o'clock.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Invalids distracted by indigestion and discouraged in their search for its remedy should make the trial of this never-failing medicine. A lady, long a martyr to dyspeptic tortures, writes that Holloway's Pills made her feel as if a burden had been taken off her. Her spirits, formerly low, have greatly improved; her capricious appetite has given place to healthy content; her sleep, which had become disturbed, and practically so, has been restored; a change has been effected, that she is altogether a new creature, and again to enjoy her duties. These Pills may be administered with safety to the most delicate. They are not irritative, nor do they ever induce weakness; they rightly direct overwrought and control excessive action.

PROV. GRAND LODGE OF MARK MASTERS OF MIDDLESEX AND SURREY.

THE annual meeting of this Provincial Grand Mark Lodge was held at the Greyhound Hotel, Richmond, on the 24th ult., and favoured by an almost unanticipated break in the disastrous weather of the previous months, was largely attended, there being representatives present from every Lodge connected with the Province. The Hiram Mark Lodge, No. 13, had, on this occasion, the honour of arranging for the reception of the Prov. Grand Lodge, and carried out the entire proceedings in a manner which reflects great credit on all its members. Pending the arrival of the Rt. Worshipful the Provincial Grand Mark Master Col. Francis Burdett and his Officers, the Hiram Lodge was opened at 5 p.m. by the V.W. Bro. Raymond H. Thrupp in the regretted, but unavoidable, absence of Bro. G. J. Brownlow the W.M., the W. Bro. W. G. Brighten Prov. G. Sec. acting as S.W., the V.W. Dr. A. Clarke S.G.W. J.W., the V.W. Bro. James Stevens P.G.J.O. M.O., O. H. Pearson S.O., O. H. Knaggs J.O., H. A. Cooper Smith S.D., and a large number of members of the Lodge were also present. Bro. John Eustace Anderson of the Old Dundee and Harmony Lodges, having been approved by ballot, was advanced to the Mark degree in most perfect manner. The election of W.M. for the ensuing year was unanimously in favour of Bro. Littor, and Bro. Thrupp was also unanimously elected Treasurer. On his election, that worthy brother announced to the Lodge that after all liabilities discharged there remained in his hands the very substantial balance of £103, and he proposed that nearly the whole amount should now be invested to provide for possible, though hardly probable, contingencies. This proposal met with general approval, and will be carried out on confirmation of the minutes. Bro. Harrison was re-elected Tyler, and after a few matters of routine business had been disposed of, the Lodge was closed in good time to prepare for the reception of the Provincial Grand Lodge. Precisely at the appointed hour, six p.m., the Provincial Grand Master's procession was formed, and entered the Lodge-room in due order, the Prov. Grand Master Col. Francis Burdett being received with much enthusiasm. The Provincial Grand Lodge was then opened by Col. Burdett and his Officers. Amongst the brethren who were present, in addition to those already named, were the V.W. Bro. F. Davison Deputy Provincial Grand Master, W. Bro. A. Clarke Prov. G.S.W., R. P. Spice Prov. G.J.W., Ambrose Hall Prov. Grand Chaplain, C. Hammerton Prov. Grand Treasurer, J. Mason M.O., J. B. Shackleton Prov. D.C., A. W. Hame Prov. Grand Standard Bearer, H. J. Court jun. Prov. Grand Org., E. Passawar Prov. I.G., Edwin Gilbert and R. W. Brown Prov. Grand Stewards, John Gilbert Prov. Grand Tyler; also W. Bro. J. Tomlinson P.G.M.O., C. H. Harrison P.G.W., Charles Palmer P.G.J.O., D. M. Dewar P.G.M.O., Frederick Binckes P.G.W. and Grand Secretary, J. M. Klenck P.G.R., E. B. Bright P.G.S.W., J. B. Baker P.G.S.B., J. H. Knaggs P.G.O. W.M. 181, Dr. Ramsay W.M. 13, D. P. Cama, A. H. Pearson P.M. 7, M. A. Caffe Sec. 211, F. Lawrence M.O. 13, B. H. Paul 13, Rev. H. B. Hunt, K. R. Murchison, C. Goulden, H. Lovegrove, R. T. Hill, Clayton Palmer, H. J. Stark, B. H. Ridge, C. Pulman, W. Stephens, J. de Orrelanda, J. L. Syms, W. H. Smith, G. Harrison, and a considerable number of brethren whose names we were unable to ascertain consequent upon their signatures not being placed in the attendance book until after the Prov. Grand Lodge had been closed. The minutes of the previous Provincial Grand Lodge meeting, held at the Bridge House Hotel, on the 24th March last, having been read and confirmed, the roll of Lodges was called over, and in every instance these were found to be well represented. The Provincial G. Sec. then gave a very favourable report as to the increase of Lodges and the number of brethren advanced into the Order during the past year. A financial statement was circulated, and was approved of and ordered to be recorded on the minutes. This being the period for re-appointment of the Prov. Grand Master, the V.W. Bro. James Stevens P.G.J.O., after referring to the eminent services of the R.W. Bro. Col. Burdett, since his appointment in 1870, and the progress of Mark Masonry in Middlesex and Surrey under his beneficent rule, nominated that distinguished brother for a further period of three years, and no other nomination was made. The appointment and investiture of Officers then took place in the following order:—

The revised Bye Laws of the Prov. G. Lodge which had been distributed to all members were taken as read, and finally adopted. A Committee for General Purposes was elected, and all business being disposed of, the Prov. G. Lodge was closed in ample form, and the brethren adjourned to banquet, which was well served in the large dining hall of the Greyhound Hotel. On the removal of the cloth, and after the usual loyal toasts had been heartily received and responded to, the Prov. G. Master proposed, "The Most Worshipful Grand Mark Master, the R.W. Deputy Grand Mark Master, and the Grand Mark Officers present and past," and referred to the present position of the Order being such as could never have been arrived at but for the extreme devotion to its interests of highly distinguished Masons in the Craft degrees, who seeing its many beauties as an exponent of the sublime principles of Freemasonry, had spared no efforts to promote its strength and prosperity. From the M.W. G.M.M. through all the several Officers in Grand Mark Lodge the same energy and perseverance had been displayed, and he considered this a fitting opportunity to recognise the indefatigable exertions of Bro. Binckes P.G.S.W. and Grand Secretary, who had laboured more than any other man he knew, in securing the distinguished position of the Mark Degree. After a very cordial reception of the toast, Bro. Binckes, first returning thanks on behalf of the M.W. G.M.M. and his past and present Officers, gave a brief but interesting résumé of the progress of the Order, and stated that, looking back, as he could do, over a period of twenty years, he could remember that such unparalleled success was scarcely contemplated, for the increase of Lodges in this degree of late years had even exceeded in proportion that of the Craft, and the Order had been benefited by the influx of a large number of distinguished and influential Masons. A still further increase of prosperity was foreshadowed by the recognition the Order had received from numerous Grand Masonic bodies, and he ventured to make an announcement which, although now for the first time made, would shortly become public, and greatly gratify all connected with Mark Masonry, that he was in official receipt of the fact that the Grand Chapter of Scotland had also accorded their recognition of the English organisation. This was the accomplishment of a long desired bond of union, and he congratulated the members of the Order on the happy result of the endeavours made to that effect. Bro. Binckes concluded a happy and telling speech by expressing his pleasure with all the proceedings of the day, and his desire for the continued growth and prosperity of the Provincial Grand Lodge. The W. Bro. Raymond W. Thrupp, Acting W.M. of the Hiram Lodge, said that as representing the Lodge under whose banner the Provincial Grand Lodge had met, it was his pleasant duty to propose the health of the R.W. Prov. G.M.M. for Middlesex and Surrey, Colonel Francis Burdett, whose name was not only a household word in the Province over which he presided, but was known and recognised far beyond that area as that of a kindly and generously disposed man and a hard-working Mason. Under his benign rule the Lodges of both Craft and Mark Masonry had trebled or quadrupled, and that fact alone was sufficient to prove the great esteem in which he was held by the brethren generally. He therefore had no hesitation in calling on all present to acknowledge the worthy Mason who now presided by receiving the toast with acclamation. The R.W. Prov. G.M.M., having been received in the most enthusiastic manner, expressed his deep sense of the kindness so heartily evinced, and for which he said he felt his inability to thank the brethren so fully and efficiently as he could desire. During all the period he had had the honour to rule over them he had experienced their affectionate regard, and indeed he feared they did more than they should do in their generous reception of his efforts. Some more able brother (cries of No!). Well, he could but express his heartfelt gratitude for their reception, and his pride and gratification in holding the honourable position to which they had again nominated him. He had now to propose the health of the W.M. of the Hiram Lodge, whose absence he greatly regretted, the more so that it was doubtless a great disappointment to that worthy brother that he could not carry out personally the reception his Lodge had given to the Provincial Grand Lodge. He had been, however, ably represented by Bro. Thrupp, whose admirable working in the Lodge and arrangements for subsequent enjoyment reflected the greatest credit on the Lodge generally. The toast was cordially received, and Bro. Thrupp for the W.M. and the members of the Hiram Lodge, returned thanks and expressed a hope that the Prov. Grand Lodge would yet again honour them with another, and he hoped many more, visits. The remaining toasts were "The Advancee," Bro. Anderson, "The Deputy Prov. G. M. Master and Prov. Grand Officers present and past," coupled with the name of Bro. Davison, on whom the Prov. Grand Master bestowed a meed of praise for all the hard work he had done in the interests of the Province, and to which Bro. Davison responded, and "The Tyler's" toast brought to a conclusion one of the most, if not the most, successful gatherings of the Provincial Grand Mark Lodge for Middlesex and Surrey.

In our report of the meeting of Prov. Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight, which appeared in our last issue, we omitted to mention that Bro. G. C. Adames, of Phœnix Lodge, No. 2, was appointed Prov. G. Standard Bearer.

ANONYMOUS MUNIFICENCE.—At the recent meeting of the Governors of the Chelsea Hospital for Women, the Earl of St. Germans (the President) received at the hands of the Rev. Canon Fleming (one of the Board of Management) an anonymous donation of £1,000 towards providing furniture for the new Hospital. In the spirit of true charity it is given on the express condition "That no name is mentioned," it being simply acknowledged as "From a Friend per Rev. Canon Fleming." We know not which to admire the more,—the munificence of the gift, or the manner of bestowment.

Signor Lombardi, of the firm of Lombardi and Co., photographic artists and publishers, of 13 and 14 Pall Mall East, has secured the Egyptian Hall, Piccadilly, for the exhibition of his poikilographic paintings. M. Gustave Doré has written some very complimentary remarks as to the ability displayed in the production of these paintings.

THE MODERN ORDER OF KNIGHTS TEMPLAR.

From the Canadian Craftsman, of July 1878, with some Alterations and Additions.

BY COL. MACLEOD MOORE, GREAT PRIOR OF CANADA.

THE great interest evinced of late years by the Masonic body of the United States and Canada in the Order of Knights Templar induces me to enter into some particulars relative to its origin and modern practices, explicitly pointing out my own long-formed impressions, as also the views entertained by others, and to correct, if possible, errors, which many Masonic writers have fallen into whilst explaining the significance of its ceremonies, but who, evidently, ignorant of the true history and character of the Order, have, by misrepresentations, caused it to be villified by those unacquainted with its objects and origin.

The Order holds the most conspicuous place in the History of the Crusades, where they fought in Palestine to vindicate and further the Christian religion, and regain possession from the Saracens of the holy places of our Faith. Although from their original poverty called "Poor fellow Soldiers of Jesus Christ," they, in course of time, amassed great wealth, and became possessed of extensive estates in Europe, having Preceptory Houses scattered all over Christendom, owing allegiance to but one Supreme Head, and becoming so powerful as to excite the fears of the Popes as an ecclesiastical, and of kings as a military body. At length Philip, King of France, at the commencement of the 14th century, coveting their possessions, and fearing their influence, persuaded the then Pope, Clement V., to join with him in suppressing the Order, and seizing their estates, most of which Philip subsequently appropriated to his own use.

The proceedings taken against the Templars for their suppression, are matters of history. The Order was annihilated, and everywhere deprived of their property, and the members reduced to poverty. A great number were received into the Order of St. John [afterwards called Knights of Malta] on the same footing as they stood in their own Order—strong evidence that the guilt of the Templars was not substantiated. The greater part of them, however, were dispersed over all parts of the world, driven here and there, by persecution and distress, and gradually, as the members died off, or merged into other Orders, the name of Templars fell into oblivion, or was only remembered with pity for their unmerited fate. Some of them are supposed to have found refuge amongst the ancient Society of Freemasons. The Masonic tradition being, that a connection had existed before the suppression, and that when the suppression had taken place, some of the persecuted Knights sought life, liberty, and protection in the silence and secresy of Masonry, and therein propagated the Order, which has been by the Freemasons preserved and handed down to the present day. Such is the record of the rise and fall of this once famous institution, and the popular legend and belief of its connection with Freemasonry.

Much diversity of opinion has been expressed and many conflicting statements advanced in the discussions entered into, as to the origin of the modern Order, which originally formed no part of Freemasonry, but as now constituted, is undoubtedly one of the Masonic degrees, fully recognised at the Union of the English Craft in 1813, as a distinct body, governed by its own laws and constitutions, attached to Craft Lodges and Royal Arch Chapters, having nothing mystical in its ceremonial, its members being strictly confined to Freemasons professing and practising the Christian religion.

The necessity no longer existing for which the Templar Order was originally founded, it now confines itself to inculcate the practices of Christianity, to aid and succour the distressed and destitute in the land, and war against vice, infidelity and superstition, and raise the standard of moral rectitude.

The precise date when, and by whom, it was first introduced and adopted by the English Craft, has not been clearly ascertained, there being no trace, or a very faint one, of its connection with Freemasonry in England prior to the middle of the last century, about the period when "Laurence Dermott" re-organized the York Rite, working out, it is said, the English Royal Arch from a previous system, as the completion of the original second part of the Master's degree. It is not impossible that he may also have introduced from France the Templar system where it formed part of the higher Masonic degrees, as practised in Europe, claiming to be the successors of, and a continuation of the ancient Chivalry of the Crusades, but like many other matters connected with Freemasonry, this connection has been asserted, taught, believed, and handed down from one generation to another, without any very critical examination, for notwithstanding the strong arguments, and circumstantial evidence employed, it has never been satisfactorily shown how the connection was brought about, and, unfortunately, there are no records to show or direct proof, that the present Modern or Masonic Templars are the lineal and actual descendants of the early Chivalric body. Masonic authorities have therefore, now, generally arrived at the conclusion that modern Templary is an adaptation of the mediæval Order, introduced into the Masonic Body after the establishment of the present symbolic system, the object being to complete and cement the moral code of Freemasonry with the pure teachings of Christianity, exemplified by the doctrines of the early knightly fraternity of the Templars. It is well to recollect that up to the Union of the Grand Lodges in 1813, English, or St. John's Masonry was virtually Christian, as not until that date did it avowedly become universal, tolerating the Christian chivalric degrees.

Some Templars, no doubt, might have learned the principles on which Masonry as now existing was founded, but it would seem more practical, that Freemasons on the Continent of Europe, who wished to introduce some novelty into the pure and simple Craft system, revived, and attached the Templar Order to it, because it was not known what the Templars practised in secret, and no one could tell how much or how little of the charges against them were true, but all could see that there was a mystery, and interest about that famous body; the very circumstance of the name "Knights of the Temple of Solomon" may also have led the Masonic body to claim a direct connection.

The origin of all Masonic degrees is enveloped and shrouded in mystery, the fraternity being always averse to publicity, handing down their peculiar secrets viva voce, to future generations, with the same caution that the philosophers of old displayed in perpetuating their symbols and mysteries. The Templars also, like the Jesuits, never communicated their secrets to strangers, and some even were concealed from the greater part of their own members. It is, therefore, not likely the Order ceased to exist after its political suppression, but more probable that small organisations were kept up in many places, and the hope cherished that it would some day be possible to revive it. A great and extensive organisation could not utterly have lost all cohesion and died without a struggle, but it is equally unreasonable to believe that the fragments here and there, entered into any association of working men, such as that of "The Corporation of Builders, or Freemasons," then were, who could not have been expected to devote themselves to the restoration of the Templar Order, in direct opposition to the ban of the Church; even personal safety would not have been secured, and there is no proof that the Knights ever joined the German building sodalities; besides, if it had been seriously intended publicly to restore the Order, there would have been no difficulty in doing so after the Reformation; therefore no valid reason exists why they should conceal their organisation under the mask of Freemasonry. Remnants of the Order, to perpetuate the memory of their glory and wrongs, may, however, have assumed some of the higher degrees,* and formed bodies consisting of themselves alone. The A. and A. S. Rite would appear to throw some light on the matter, and I think I may adduce without any infringement on the esoteric history of the degrees some allusion to this connection.

One of these degrees, in which the numbers eight and one, are indicated by the position of the hands as a mode of recognition, would seem to refer to the eight knights who founded the Order of the Temple, and the ninth who entered with them afterwards, then again the nine Elus may also represent these founders. Another and stronger fact is shown in the degree, where the word "Libertas" occurs, which is the key to its meaning; the letters L. D. P. mean "Liberté de Penser," and the words "Shalal Gratim Abi," literally means "The Pope [Father Papa] shall restore the spoil." The Knights of the "East and West" may mean the Order of the Temple created in the East, and afterwards having Preceptories in Europe. The word Kadosh (holy), indicates a Templar, "Haikal Kadosh," meant holy house of the Temple. In fact, see how the degrees 15th, 16th and 17th, are entitled in succession, Knights of the East or Sword.—Creation and first period of the Temple Order in Palestine, —Prince of Jerusalem,—[Knights of the Haikal Kadosh at Jerusalem] and Knights of the East and West. The re-building of the Temple may have been meant for the re-establishment hoped for of the Templar Order, other examples might be quoted intelligible to the initiated alone, and in one of the highest degrees of the Rite will be found corroborative evidence implying a common origin with Templary.

That some of these degrees bear affinity to the Templar system, and were framed on the history of the Templars is evident, being formerly in England always given under sanction of a Templar warrant, which was considered the guardian of these high degrees, until of late years when they were resigned to the A. and A. S. Rite, but the original connection with Freemasonry as an inherent part of it is a mystery, and likely still to remain so, for the Templar Order has not in its ceremonies any resemblance, even the most remote, to Craft Masonry, and is intensely Trinitarian. The probability is, that the connection was first entertained and brought about by individual knights joining the fraternity of Masons, and it is quite possible, when the Masonic houses and fraternities were broken up at the Reformation that some of the dispersed members, attaching themselves to the Masonic Body, conduced to perpetuate the ceremonies of the ancient Templars, preserved from the time of the persecution in the monastic establishments, in which many of the unfortunate knights were condemned to do penance and employed in menial offices, but had been treated with consideration and sympathy, for it is difficult to believe that men of probity in the Masonic society of the last century deliberately invented the Templar degree, introducing it as the true Order long secretly attached to Freemasonry, unless they had strong grounds to believe that actual Knights of the Temple had formerly entered it for the purpose of preserving their old Order from utter extinction.

It is a mistake to suppose that the existence of the Order depends on the favour of Pope or Sovereign, or the possession of lands, as in ancient times one private knight could communicate knighthood to another. So one private Templar [after the suppression] could confer the knighthood of the Temple on another as his successor, down to the present time. This is the manner in which, to our contention, justified by our traditions that Templary came into Masonry, and has thus been preserved intact as a true, just, and lawful succession. Taking this view, I am still impressed with the belief that our modern or Masonic Templary has a right to be considered as perpetuating the chivalric Order of the Crusades, and in consequence, I have from time to time in my addresses to the Great Priory of Canada endeavoured to point out inconsistencies and inaccuracies in our forms and practices, but I fear my object and meaning have in many instances been greatly misunderstood, attributing a desire on my part to advocate a total separation from Freemasonry, to admit of its assuming a more exclusive character, in accordance with its presumed chivalric origin and constitution. This is entirely a mistake, for to sever the connection to which it owes its present existence would take away its claim to be considered as legally perpetuating the Order of the Crusades. The attempt was made some years back by the Scottish branch, but utterly failed, and they were obliged to resume the Masonic qualification. My whole object has been to endeavour to point out the anomalies of the present system, and, if possible, prevent the further perpetuation of errors palpable to the historic student. Admitting that the modern or Masonic Templar Order is but an imitation of the old Knightly Fraternity, there surely can be no question that it should be historically correct, and as nearly as possible follow the original in preference to mere fancy ceremonial inventions.

A re-organisation of the Order in England, changing the names and title to that of the original nomenclature of the ancient Templars, with a careful revision of the statutes, took place in 1873, the object being to unite and place all the different sections in the British dominions under the Grand Mastership of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, adopting a common code of laws and ceremonies, dividing the Order into Nationalities, or Great Priories, each being governed by a Great Prior, these Great Priories making their own laws. The affairs of the whole Order being managed and regulated by a body termed the "Convent General," composed of the Great Priories sitting in common, presided over by the Grand Master, who has also a Council especially constituted under statutes, so that he may be advised by a body in which all the nationalities are equally represented. This federal scheme of organisation, following the practice of the early Order, originated with the learned and zealous (then Grand Chancellor) Sir Patrick Colquhoun, M.A., Q.C., LL.D., late Chief Justice of the Ionian Islands, ably supported in skilfully carrying it into effect by the highly esteemed and well-known Masonic authority, the Hon. Judge FitzHenry Townshend, Q.C., LL.D., of the High Court of Admiralty, Dublin—Grand Commander Sup. Grand Council 33° for Ireland, &c., based on the original and existing principle that the Order, having a chivalric origin, was not in itself Masonic, but had a Masonic basis and qualification, requiring that its members could only be taken from the Masonic fraternity. The intention was also to form a cosmopolitan chivalric body, regulated by the customs and usages of the present century, having but one Grand Master, as of old, under whom different nationalities divided into Langues or Tongues could assemble without any interference with their individual political allegiance.

It was confidently hoped and looked forward to, that this admirable organization, clearing away much of the unsatisfactory and incorrect practices of the modern system, would raise the Order to a more conspicuous and independent sphere of usefulness, uniting the different branches into one powerful and influential Christian confraternity, but this desirable result does not seem likely to be attained, and the time and labour bestowed by the erudite framers of the system are thus thrown away.

A majority of the English nationality, principally from Lancashire and West Yorkshire, being dissatisfied with the changes lately introduced, as in their opinion tending to separate the Order from Freemasonry, have ignored the federation and Articles of Convention which they are endeavouring to set aside, and resume their former anomalous position without reference to the wishes or opinions of the sister Great Priories, or to the advantages held out by a uniform system, and have also objected to adopt one of the most important changes contemplated, viz.: the revisal of the ritual in use; for this end a Ritual Commission had been appointed, who, after some years' careful consideration of the subject, submitted their report to Convent General in October 1876 [published in the Proceedings of the Great Priory of Canada last year], which commends itself, being a full exposition of the views taken by the Commissioners. The ritual recommended by them appears to me all that can be desired, and should be adopted intact, even if it is in parts objectionable, or imperfect, it would be unwise for the Order to have one ritual for England and Ireland and another for Canada. It has also the strong recommendation of assimilating with the Scottish ceremony, many years in use, and although Scotland has not joined the Union it would insure uniformity in all the branches under British rule.

The necessity for a revision of the ceremony of a reception may not have been generally entertained; it arose from the changes that have taken place from time to time since the introduction of the Order into English Freemasonry, and we find by reference to Masonic records that it was first conferred as an honorary order, given either before or after the Royal Arch, evidently with a very short ceremony, mention being made of the recipient receiving other degrees at the same meeting.

* The term "high degree" in Masonry simply means those beyond or after the Craft, which is the pre-requisite of all others. Some of them no doubt derive their origin from the "secret fraternities" that existed in the 14th, 15th and 16th centuries, and have thus been perpetuated by grafting on the Masonic system.

COMMITTEE MEETING OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

THE General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls met on Thursday, at Freemasons' Hall. There were present—Bros. Col. Creaton (in the chair), R. B. Webster, A. H. Tattershall, H. A. Dubois, E. Letchworth, Col. James E. Peters, Henry Venn, James Moon, C. F. Matier, Thomas Cubitt, Herbert Dicketts, H. Massey, and F. R. W. Hedges (Secretary). One petition was received. The Committee resolved to invest £1500. The Audit Committee recommended the investment of £2000, but Col. Creaton informed the brethren that it would be necessary to build a boundary wall at the Institution, in place of the present wooden fence, which was now worn out, and it would be prudent to retain sufficient funds to defray the cost. The Committee then adjourned.

Egyptian Lodge of Instruction, No. 27.—This L[illegible] held its usual weekly meeting at Bro. Maidwell's, the Here[illegible] Tavern, 119 Leadenhall-street, E.C., on Thursday, 31st [illegible] date. The Lodge was resumed, and the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Caton acting as candidate. The first and second sections of the first lecture were worked by Bro. Moss, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Fowler 1728 was duly elected a member of this Lodge of Instruction. Bro. Woodward was appointed W.M. for ensuing week. The Lodge was then closed.

St. Michael's Lodge of Instruction, No. 211.—The meeting on Thursday, at the George Tavern, Australian-avenue, Barbican, was presided over by the W.M. of the mother Lodge, Bro. Alfred Withers, who was supported by his Officers and members of the Lodge. After due observance of preliminaries, some sections were worked, and the brethren proceeded to ballot for two Life Subscriberships in the Masonic Charities. The first of these fell to the Lodge of Instruction; and the second, to Bro. Charles Hubbard W.M. of the Lily Lodge of Richmond. A vote of thanks was passed to Bro. P.M. John Laver, who presided over this portion of the evening's proceedings. We regret to say there was but a poor attendance.

Zetland Chapter, No. 236.—A meeting of this Chapter (attached to the York Lodge, No. 236) was held on Wednesday evening. Present—Comps. Sir James Meek Kt. M.E.Z., Hon. W. T. Orde-Powlett H., G. Balmford J., R. W. Hollon P.Z., W. Lawton P.Z., J. Tedd P.Z., Middleton P.Z., A. Buckle P.S., J. G. Turner S.E., J. M. Meek S.N., T. B. Whytehead, T. M. Richey, T. S. Camidge, J. Blenkin, J. Hollins, &c. The business consisted in the exaltation of two candidates, which was performed by the M.E.Z.; the mystical lecture being delivered by Comp. J. Todd P.Z. The members afterwards met at an excellent supper, at the close of which the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. A handsome plate of the Installation of the Prince of Wales as Grand Master, presented to the York Lodge, by Bro. Middleton, was much admired.

Royal Alfred Lodge, No. 780.—The brethren of this Lodge met in goodly numbers on Friday, 25th ult., at the Star and Garter, Kew Bridge. The Lodge was opened at two o'clock by Bro. Charles F. May, supported by Bros. W. Gomm S.W., B. Blasby J.W., Walter Goss P.M. Treasurer, W. Hilton P.M. Secretary, and the other Officers of the Lodge. The following Past Masters likewise were present—W. Hale, J. Chambers Roe, Thomas Brown, W. Gardiner, G. A. Litlewood, H. Potter, &c. Visitors—H. J. Dean J.D. 45, W. E. Haycock P.M., John March D.C. 27, J. Holloway 749, W. W. Morgan Sec. 211, E. Woodbridge 1612, J. H. Lee 1196, James Squires P.M. 3, S. J. Vaughan 193, E. Gladstone Phœnix, Fisher P.M. 834. After preliminaries had been observed, Bros. Alfred T. Secker and George Cumbers were raised, and Bros. George David Jones and Charles Edward Botley were passed. The ballot was taken for three candidates for our mysteries, and was declared favourable in each case. The three gentlemen were Messrs. William Pollok Meaden, Jonas Hole, and John Brill. The two latter were in attendance, and took their introductory step in Freemasonry. The election of Worshipful Master for the ensuing year was the next business that claimed the attention of the members. The result was in favour of the S.W.'s advancement, and Bro. Gomm received the congratulations of the brethren. Bro. Walter Goss P.M. was re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. John Gilbert (Prov. G.T. Middlesex) was re-elected Tyler. A discussion of a somewhat lengthy nature then took place on home matters, and the appointment of auditors was made, after which Lodge was closed. An opportunity was now afforded the new proprietor of the Star and Garter—Bro. John Brill—to display his abilities as caterer, and in justice we are bound to state he fully realised all that had been expected of him. The banquet was capitally served, and unqualified satisfaction was expressed by all who partook of it. On the removal of the cloth, Bro. May proceeded with the toast list; we regret, however, to be compelled to state the members did not extend to their Worshipful Master that obedience and courtesy he has a right to demand. The seeds of dissension so freely scattered during the discussion that had taken place in the Lodge had fallen on prolific soil, and now, in far too many places, seemed ready to burst forth. Consequently, the sound of the gavel calling to order was more frequent than desirable to those who desired that harmony should be maintained. We deeply regret this; it will be acceded by all that Bro. C. F. May has studied the welfare of his Lodge most assiduously, and hitherto his year of office has passed off most pleasantly. We trust ere the members meet again the evils that have caused this dissension will be remedied. During the evening Bro. May announced his intention to serve as Steward at the Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, to be held in 1880, and a respected brother of the Lodge intimated that his name might be placed on Bro. May's list for £10 10s.

Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, No. 860.—At the Sisters' Tavern, Pownall-road, Dalston, on Tuesday, Bros. Dallas W.M., Fores S.W., Clark J.W., C. Lorkin S.D., Moss J.D., Smyth I.G., Christian Sec., Smyth Treas., Brasted acting Preceptor; Bros. Christian, Quay, Greenwood, &c. The Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The W.M. announced that the ceremony of passing would be rehearsed, whereupon Bro. Quay answered the questions and was entrusted. The W.M. opened the Lodge in the second, and Bro. Quay was passed to the degree of Fellow Craft. Bro. Moss worked the first and second sections of the lecture, assisted by the brethren. The Lodge was closed to the first, and nothing further offering for the good of Freemasonry, the Lodge was closed.

Montefiore Lodge, No. 1017. — An emergency meeting was held on Thursday, 24th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Cafe Royal, Air-street, Regent-street. There were present Bros. J. Lazarus W.M., L. J. Solomon S.W., W. H. Brall J.W., L. Jacobs Treas., E. P. Albert P.G.P. Sec., M. Levy J.D., J. Dyer I.G., Mann D.C.; Bros. E. Moses, C. Camoyans, Benjamin, L. A. Lazarus, H. Chandler, Lappert Leverton, Hochfield, &c. Lodge was opened, and the ballot was taken for the admission of Mr. P. Lombery, of Sierra Leone. The result was unanimous in his favour, and he was duly initiated into the Order by the W.M., who performed his duty in a very perfect manner. Bro. L. A. Lazarus (a son of the W.M.) answered the usual questions in a satisfactory manner, and was passed to the degree of Fellow Craft. The Lodge was then closed until October. The brethren adjourned to light refreshments and separated early. The following brethren were visitors:—Bros. M. P. Tench 511, B. Lyons W.M. 1227, A. Davis 188, Burrell 1310, and H. M. Levy P.M. 188.

Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction, No. 1298.—A meeting was held on Friday, 25th July, at the Alwyne Castle, Canonbury. Present—Bros. Pennefather W.M., G. H. Stephens S.W., H. J. Lardner J.W., J. Eldridge Treas., J. G. Chant Sec. pro tem, D. Moss S.D., W. Butt J.D., Beattie I.G. The Fifteen Sections were worked by the brethren of the West Smithfield Lodge, No. 1623, as follows:—1, R. Greenwood 1623; 2, Thos. Butt J.W. 907; 3, Davison P.M. 299; 4, Davis J.D. 879; 5, D. Moss 1275; 6, H. J. Lardner J.W. 1745; 7, G. H. Stephens W.S. 1623; 8, Hallam S.W. 1349; 9, D. Moss 1275; 10, Davison P.M. 299; 11, W. B. Kidder P.M. 12; 12, W. Butt 1623; 13, E. Mallett P.M. 141; 14, T. Mc. Butt I.G. 1623; 15, J. C. Perkins S.W. 795. A cordial vote of thanks was carried unanimously to the W.M. and brethren for their excellent working, and the Lodge was closed in ancient form with solemn prayer.

Friars Lodge of Instruction, No. 1349.—On Tuesday last Bro. W. Wallington P.M. 780, and Preceptor of the Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, in fulfilment of the promise he had made, attended to rehearse the ceremony of installation. Accordingly Bro. Pavitt's cosy little room was well filled, and the attention paid to the ceremony by his old pupils and the other members of this Lodge of Instruction must have been eminently gratifying to Bro. Wallington. The chair was taken at 7.30 by Bro. Pavitt, who was supported by Bros. Smith S.W., Barker J.W., W. Musto P.M. Preceptor, E. T. Worsley Secretary, Spencer S.D., Johnson J.D., Roberts I.G.; Bros. Ellis, Glasspool, Norman, Wyman 1614, Still 1076, Power, Morgan, Ellis 860, Watkins, &c. The Lodge opened in due form, and the minutes were read and confirmed. Bro. Glasspool having answered the questions, the Lodge opened in the second degree, and the ceremony of passing was rehearsed. Bro. Wallington now took the chair, and Bro. Musto, as D. of C., introduced Bro. Worsley as W.M. elect, and Bro. Wallington proceeded with the ceremony. The excellence of Bro. Wallington's delivery of the various ceremonies of Craft Masonry has long been recognised, and on this occasion he well sustained his reputation. Bro. Worsley went through the formal initiation of Officers, and then the Installing Master gave the several addresses. Some of the sections of the second lecture were then worked by Bro. Worsley and the brethren, Bro. Musto dictating the answers. On the motion of Bro. Musto, a cordial vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Wallington for his services, and the degree of hon. membership was conferred upon him. After this mark of recognition had been suitably acknowledged, Bros. Wyman 1614 and Still 1076 were elected members. Bro. Worsley was appointed to preside at next meeting, and Lodge was closed. Several of the brethren remained for half an hour, and spent the time in social converse.

Sir Hugh Myddelton Lodge, No. 1,602.—An ordinary meeting of the brethren of this Lodge was held on Friday last, 25th July, at the Agricultural Hall, Islington, and, despite the words at the tail of the summons, "No Banquet," which were underlined, each officer was at his respective post in time to assist at the opening of the Lodge, as well as a large number of brethren and visitors, among the latter being Hugh Hunter W.M. 776 Antrim, Ireland, R. Pearcy W.M. 288, W. G. Kent J.W. 1297, E. W. Brassie W.M. 1471, W. G. Hunter W.M. 228, and J. Crosbie. The business consisted of initiating F. F. Ernest Heyse, passing Bros. C. Gwyn, P. J. S. Taylor, and G. W. Foster, and raising Bro. T. C. Duncan, each ceremony being performed by Bro. A. F. Rowley the W.M., Bro. Thomas officiated as Organist. The Lodge expressed its gratitude for the safe delivery of Bro. Pearcy, the Preceptor of the Lodge of Instruction, from a severe illness and restoration to health. This was ordered to be inscribed on vellum and presented to that brother.

Eboracum Lodge, No. 1611.—An emergency meeting of this Lodge was held on Monday, at York. In the unavoidable absence of the W.M. Bro. J. S. Cumberland, the I.P.M. Bro. T. B. Whytehead occupied the chair. There were also present Bros. C. G. Padel S.W., W. P. Husband as J.W., T. Humphries assist. Sec., M. Millington S.D., T. D. Smith J.D., G. Simpson M.C., A. T. B. Turner Assist M.C., G. H. Simpson Org., P. Pearson Tyler, T. Hill Steward; Bros. Atkinson, Dyson, York and others. The following Visitors were also present—Bros. Major T. B. Shaw-Hellier P.M., Capt. L. Murphy and H. E. Whytehead. The business consisted in passing Bro. Oldfield to the second degree, which having been accomplished, the Lodge was lowered, and a Lodge of Instruction formed, the chair being occupied by Bro. Padel, who appointed his Officers, and worked the second degree with great excellence. During the after proceedings Bros. O. Marshall, Capt. Murphy, P. Pearson and other brethren enlivened the evening by singing. The S.W. proposed the health of the absent W.M., which was warmly accepted.

MANY of whom this question is asked will say, I can read it and write it, but can't speak it. A neat little volume for the Pocket has just been published by an Ex-Inspector of Public Schools; all the most useful verbs as used in ordinary conversation are therein embodied, alphabetically arranged on an entirely new plan, and printed in large type in French and English, a most rapid system, indispensible to teachers and other persons teaching themselves the language. AUTHORITY.

WE cannot help feeling amused when we glance at the different attacks that have from time to time been made against Freemasonry, or when we watch the various ruses that are practised in order to obtain a knowledge of the secrets of the Brotherhood. We are led to reflect that, notwithstanding them all, the Craft continues to add to its numbers, and has the gratification of retaining in its foremost ranks some of the most enlightened men of the day. To the class who plan such attacks these facts must be a sore trouble, as they tend to prove that outside slander and threat do not affect the inner working of the Craft, but rather, it would seem, tend to its popularity, and produce the very opposite effect to that desired. How these persons would like to find a vulnerable point in our system! But in this, so far, they have been unsuccessful, although we think they have called every known device to their aid, and have not shrunk from outraging the laws of truth, morality, or justice, in order to produce the result they aimed at. One day we are startled by an edict of the Romish Church, which recounts the awful consequences which await men if they continue to carry on the iniquitous proceedings of the Lodge; at another, the Craft is accused of being the prime mover in every plot, crime, or conspiracy which may arise; and, finally, after the credit has been awarded it of being the cause of all the ills that trouble the world, the Masonic Brotherhood is held up to ridicule. Thus, after trying every means where argument could decide the question, its calumniators start on a course which will allow of neither sense nor reason being heard. The best answer to these scares—which frighten a few undecided men who have not quite made up their minds whether they shall seek a knowledge of Freemasonry or not—is, perhaps, to treat these arguments with indifference, as nothing will displease the slanderer so much as to find that his personalities are ignored. If that course be adopted, it also shows how little importance is attached to outside attacks, but can the same be said of assaults from within? There it is that danger awaits the Craft, and there it is that continued care must be exercised, and even the slightest sign of abuse wiped out. The established ordinances of the Craft provide safeguards against this danger, but it is necessary that these precautionary measures should be known and supported by individual members of the Order, without whose assistance the efficiency of preliminary measures—however wisely planned—is materially decreased, whereas, with a little friendly co-operation the members of a Lodge themselves form a tower of strength, which powerful opposition cannot hope to destroy.

Taking our personal experience as a guide, we are pleased to think that occasions of actual rupture seldom occur in Masonic Lodges, but the few cases we are cognisant of prove how necessary it is to present a bold front at the outset, when combined action on the part of a few members will serve to stamp out the threatened revolt. The Master should be looked upon as the standard of the Lodge, and those present who do not rally round him when called upon should be treated as foes. There can be no half measures on such occasions, nor should indecision be tolerated for an instant. If a quiet explanation will not suffice to settle a difference, the gavel of authority, backed by influential members, should always secure silence, and then the decision of the Master can be asked for, and must be treated as final. If, however, a Master once allows his call to order to be disregarded, his authority is lost, and then, when the critical moment arrives, the whole fabric of the Lodge is plunged into chaos. One of the earliest signs of loss of authority is exhibited when the Master's voice is disregarded at the banquet table, where it is very difficult to rule without appearing to govern. It is here that the greatest liberality consistent with discipline is necessary, and although the discipline may be so temperate as almost to amount to equality, it is absolutely necessary that it should exist, and that it should be as much recognised as during the working of a ceremony in open Lodge. Very many members seem to disregard this fact, and if the Master finds it necessary to sound the call to order, they leave him to secure it single-handed, as best he can, whereas their assistance, even in the form of silent support, would tend immediately to secure a satisfactory result. Authority is necessary, and in helping to maintain it the brethren are but securing their own comfort; if once authority is lost, confusion and disturbance must follow, and then scenes will occur which if recounted to the outer world would do more harm to the good name of the Craft than all its outside enemies can bring about by so-called exposures, ridicule, or venomous attacks.

OUR SCHOLARS IN AFTER LIFE.

THE few days that have elapsed since the issue of our last number have been made good use of by Bro. Dick Radclyffe, in furthering the cause he has undertaken to support, and we are gratified to learn that his efforts thus far point to a successful issue. By the time these lines are in print all who have expressed a desire to take part in the foundation of the fund will have received a proof copy of the first circular of the proposed scheme, together with a request to make any suggestions that may occur to them, and Bro. Radclyffe informs us that he hopes to send particulars to every Lodge on the English roll within the next week, although of course that will depend on the nature of the replies he receives to his first application.

From Bro. Jacobs, the proposer of the "Shrewsbury Memorial Fund," we likewise have good news. He expresses his desire to co-operate with the brethren who are working out what may be termed Lord Rosslyn's idea, and Bro. Jacobs goes so far as to say that after the next meeting of the Grand Lodge of Staffordshire the "Shrewsbury Fund" will doubtless be an established fact. We hope this will be the case, and that a satisfactory arrangement may be forthcoming to enable the founders of the two schemes to unite in their endeavours. As we pointed out last week, the fund must embrace the whole of the country, and not be split up into sections, or Provincial charities, which could not fail to clash, and would lead to invidious comparisons.

It seems strange that so large a portion of the business transacted at the last meeting of the General Committee of the Boys' School should have reference to the advancement of old pupils. This supplies further evidence that some sort of organised aid is necessary, as by the rules of the School the Committee have no power to expend more than £20 on the advancement of a pupil however deserving he may prove himself to be. This sum, it is well known, is far short of the amount required to start a boy in the higher class of mercantile or government appointments, although if would doubtless serve in some instances as the nucleus of a subscription that would realise sufficient for the object aimed at. This, however, is not a subject that should be left to the chance of some Lodge or brother taking upon themselves to see satisfactorily carried out, it is rather one that should be done systematically, and when done properly will supply ample work for a committee.

Rule XXXVIII. of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, which defines the duties of the House Committee, makes it a part of that Committee's business to "register the names and addresses of the parents or friends to whom the pupils are delivered,—to ascertain as far as practicable their future position,—and record the same on the minutes." We presume these items have not escaped the attention of the House Committee, who should, therefore, be able to render assistance to the founders of the fund by making known the particulars they have recorded on the minutes in consequence of this rule.

In answer to Bro. Radclyffe's question as to whether we will support him or not? we may say that we shall not only support him, but shall be pleased to assist in bringing the proposed Fund as prominently before the Craft as the publicity of our columns will allow.

A LECTURE,

Delivered before the Brethren of the Lodge of Instruction, No. 972, St. Augustine's, Canterbury.

By Bro. T. B. Rosseter.

Brethren,—My business this evening is to introduce to your notice some few facts that may be gleaned from research into the usages and customs of others than what we term ourselves—"Christian Freemasons." The term Christian Freemason is often used, but I fearlessly assert there should be no such term as "Christian Freemason." Such a term, or definition of faith is, or ought to be, left behind on passing the portals of the Lodge. We believe in a Supreme Being;—that is our Faith.

I must first direct your attention to the opening statement of the introduction to the First Lecture of the first or Entered Apprentice degree: "The usages and customs among Freemasons have ever corresponded with, and borne a near affinity to the ancient Egyptians," &c.; and secondly, the question, "What is Freemasonry?" I will answer the last question first;—It is a peculiar system of morality, veiled in allegory, and illustrated by symbols. These are the landmarks of my argument, but I must first give you the meaning of the terms "Free and Accepted, and Operative Mason."

Free and Accepted is based on the Operative, whereby a useful lesson of morality is derived from implements used in the noble art; in other words theoretical Masonry. Operative Masonry is the useful rules of architecture, whereby an edifice receives figure, strength and beauty in equal proportions and due preponderance in all its parts.

Now, if we, as Freemasons, take up these implements of the art and work with them in our own peculiar fashion, it cannot be denied that we are fitting representatives of those "Great Builders" in whatever age they may have flourished. The Christian parallel is drawn from the building of King Solomon's Temple to St. John the Baptist; from thence to St. John the Evangelist; and from thence handed down to our own time. What I propose to show is, that there are other parallels in Freemasonry than the one I have alluded to. We ourselves admit that we have an affinity with the Ancient Egyptians; let us see, as Operative Masons, how we are connected; or rather, how the parallel is drawn. It is admitted that our "rites and ceremonies are founded on the mysteries of the Goddess 'Isis.'" This Isis was the mother or wife of "Osiris." Osiris was celebrated for his success in the perfecting of the art of fortifications and buildings; now it is generally admitted that Osiris is "Nimrod," or the "Ala Mahozim" of the Babylonians, or the "God of Fortifications;" the "God of the walled city. He it was, who in the primeval triad of Egypt was known as "Khons," the "God of hidden counsel."* And here steps in the Egyptian parallel. Now this very name Khons brought into contact with Roman mythology serves us with an explanation.

That which I refer to is the Latin God Consus who, although identified with Neptune and Saturn, was also regarded as the God of "Hidden Counsel," or the "Concealer of Secrets;" in the same way we use the word conscience, to know. The father of Kohns was Khonso, that is, Ausoun or Amun; the spirit of the intellect in conjunction with Kneph the "Spirit of God," which, as Plutarch tells us, means the "Hidden God;" and Father and Son were known in the Egyptian triad as one. The Mother of this Khons was Maut. Ge, the earth goddess, had a child, called in the Phœnician language "Muth." Maut and Muth have the same meaning,—Death. Then this Maut of the Egyptians, or Muth of the Phœnicians, must be Eve, the mother of the human race. This Muth was identified as Rhea by the Chaldeans. The name of Rhea signifies the "gazer." It was as the gazer that the mother of mankind conceived by Satan, and brought forth Maut or Death into the world. It was through her eyes that the fatal connection was formed—for what says the Sacred Law? "And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food and pleasant to the eyes." The sacred symbol of Rhea was an eye encircled by vulture's wings.* The eye is a sacred symbol to us Masons. "His all-seeing eye beholds us." We, as theoretical Masons, here close with the Egyptians, and hence the Chaldee mythology for "Gee" being their earth goddess is figuratively represented in our Lodges by "Clay." There is nothing so zealous as clay, our mother earth, who is ever labouring for our support, and who will again receive us when all our friends forsake us;" and here the Egyptian, the Parsee, and the Brahmin hold out the hand of "brotherly love" and claim the Level. The Chinese knew her as "Shing-Moo" the Holy Mother; "Ma Tsoopo," the Gazing Mother; they point to you their certificates handed down by their ancestors rough and unsightly as the early period is, yet leaving their mark as Masons on the face of the earth; they point to you each succeeding age advancing in style and art, each showing the free thought of the Master Mason's mind, telling you in language plain and intelligible, that he too was conversant with the square, level, and plumb-rule; whether his conduct was square, his steps level, or the integrity of his measures as upright as his plumb-rule, must be left to the decision of the G.A.O.T.U., from whence all goodness emanates, and to whom we must give an undisguised account of our lives and actions. Julian, who was initiated into the Eleusian mysteries A.D. 351 in the twentieth year of his age, quoting Ariosto says—"For all men being equal have the same habitual rights"—alluding to those who had been initiated. Again, in his directions to a Priest of the Mysteries he says—"Consider that tradition of the gods which has been transmitted to us by the most ancient ministers on things sacred, namely, that when Jupiter formed the world some drops of sacred blood were spilled on the earth, from which sprang mankind. Thus we are all relations, all sprung from the same stock, as the gods declare, and we must believe on the testimony of the facts themselves as we all derive our origin from the gods." The invention of the plumb-rule and level is claimed by Theodosius, who died 700 years before the Christian era. Herodotus tells us that Polycrates, who lived 550 years B.C., possessed an emerald signet ring, mounted in gold, the work of this Theodosius. Of what the engraving consisted, Herodotus and Strabo are silent, but both confess it had wonderful powers. Anæagoras 450 B.C., tried to square the circle. I merely quote this to prove to you that they were theoretical as well as operative Masons. But what shall we say of our ancient brethren, the Egyptians, when we find them using the equilateral triangle as a symbol for their triform Divinity—"the Sun, Moon, and Osiris"—the "Father, Mother and Son." It is but fair to conjecture, and that is scarcely a term for it, for their very edifices proclaim to us the fact that they were theoretical as well as operative Masons. Our P.M.'s wear on their clothing the "Triple Tau." It is my purpose to explain to you from whence this is derived and its relative meaning.

Now I have shown to you that this Osiris of the Egyptians is Nimrod the Great Builder; in other words, Kohns. Eusebius, Josephus and Eppiphanius all tell us that "Cush was an Ethiopian, and that Nimrod was his son." But then in the triad father and son were one. Now, if Cush be Nimrod, Cush must be Kohns. This Cush, or Kohns is represented in the hieroglyphics as bearing a stem with five branches, indicative of the five points of the pentangle, or our "five points of fellowship," whilst the head is encircled with a band decorated with "Taus," and the Egyptian monuments abound with them, and bear witness of their more ancient origin. Now, the Assyrians knew this Cush, or Kohns by the name of "Tammuz, or the Lamented One," as we are told in the Volume of the Sacred Law.†

Now, this mystic T was the initial of the name of Tammuz, and Tertullian tells us that this mystic Tau was marked on those who were initiated into the mysteries, and was used as a most "sacred symbol." Layard found it used as a sacred symbol in Nineveh. Wilkinson proves to demonstration that it was worn on the robes of the "Rot-n-no," or "Masters of the Mysteries," 1500 B.C., as the sepulchres in the great oases testify. And to identify Tammur with the sun it was either joined to the circle of the sun or inserted in the circle. We are told by Julian, "that the Gods in council sat together in a circle." But this "Tau" had to the initiated a deeper meaning. This mystic "Tau," as the symbol of the Great Divinity, was the "sign of "Life." It was borne as a token of dignity or divinely conferred authority, signifying one who had reached the summit of the mysteries, or, as we call it, the "Craft." Pythagoras, the Samian, who flourished 400 B.C. made it his boast, and so did his pupils, that those who had been educated in the mysteries of his school, whether "strangers or barbarians" could distinguish each other by "signs and symbols," though at a distance. There is nothing very strange in this when we come to consider the source from whence he derived his knowledge. In his 20th year he visited Egypt and Chaldea, and gained from the priests a knowledge of their mysteries and symbolical writings; this he could not have done unless he "had been found worthy," and initiated into their mysteries; consequently he brought their mystic signs and symbols back to Samos with him. Now Pythagoras must have heard of Theodosius, the artist, as it is said the world is indebted to him for the demonstration of the 47th proposition of the 1st book of Euclid, about the square of the hypothenuse. It is not to Pythagoras, he was but a mere imitator, but to the Egyptians and Chaldeans, that we must look to solve this problem. Firmicus tells us that the initiated underwent what their Gods had undergone. First, after being duly prepared by magic rites and ceremonies they were ushered, in a state of absolute nudity or "nakedness," into the innermost recesses of the Temple. Proclus, after describing the preliminary preparation, says, "But on entering the interior parts of the Temple, unmoved and guarded by the mystic rites, they generally received in their bosoms Divine Illumination; and, 'stripped of their garments,' participated, as they would say, of a 'Divine Nature,' and were then clothed with the 'Sadra,' or 'Sacred Vest,' made of rams' skins; this garment was accounted sacred, and of no less efficacy than to avert evils. It was never cast off 'till completely worn out;' in fact the initiated were buried in it. They argued that, as the initiated needed to be 'stripped naked' to get the full benefit of initiation, so the soul needs to divest itself of everything that may hinder it from rising to the contemplation of things as they really are."

What Mason, when he looks back to his own initiation and his passage to the subsequent degrees, and compares this statement with his previous knowledge, shall say these were not theoretical Masons.

Julian, in his "Allegorical Fable," says:—"The Sun said to him, 'You are young, and have not yet been initiated; return and purify yourself from all impurities.'" Gibbon, in a note on this, says: "Julian was secretly initiated in the twentieth year of his age; he obtained the privilege of a solemn initiation into the mysteries; as these ceremonies were performed in the depths of caverns and in the silence of the night, and as the inviolable secret of the mysteries was preserved by the initiate. I shall not presume to describe those rites and ceremonies which were presented to the senses or imagination of the initiate till the visions of comfort and knowledge broke upon him in a blaze of celestial light." And what is the answer the initiate in Masonry gives when asked the question—What is the predominant wish of your heart? And when his request is granted, who shall describe the feeling of thankfulness he experiences for the blessing which is restored to him? With what pleasure does he behold the "Two Grand Luminaries" and the "Master of the Lodge?" Like Herodotus I must plead silence. I am tempted to quote an extract from the Preface to the works of Julian by the Abbé de la Bleterie: "The Sun is the Eternal production of the Sovereign God, of whom it is the living image; which from all eternity, according to Julian, arraigned the universe; which preserves, and will always preserve it; while holding the same place in the intelligible world that the Sun holds among corporeal beings, is the source, the centre, the light of the subaltern gods, and of all the spirits to which virtuous souls will be reunited after death; which manifests its power and resides in an especial manner in the star whose rays enlighten the material world." And now let us turn to the vital point, this "Mystic Tau," the Sign of Life; let us look at it as Masons; not as the outside or profane world. In what sense was this letter the "Sign of Life?" It was figuratively to represent the lamented death of Tammur, and his restoration to life. I must direct your attention to a statement made by Berosus. Berosus was a Priest of Belus or Nimrod, 268 B.C. "Belus," says Berosus, "commanded one of the gods to cut off his head that by his blood all might live." This Being* is Osiris, Kohns, or Nimrod; in other words, Tammur. The ends of the world were shaken at his death, and rejoiced again at his resurrection or raising. If we look at this Masonically we can well understand their mystic signs of knowledge. Does it not bring to your minds our penal sign. Would we not sooner have . . . . . than reveal that which has been entrusted to our keeping? If this is what Pythagoras learnt from the Egyptians, and what he taught his pupils, the sequence naturally follows, and the Egyptian parallel Masonically is complete.

* Thophilus of Antioch shows Kronos or Kohns, in the East, was worshipped under the name of Bel or Bal.

THE MODERN ORDER OF KNIGHTS TEMPLAR.

From the Canadian Craftsman, of July 1878, with some Alterations and Additions.

By Col. MacLeod Moore, Great Prior of Canada.

UNFORTUNATELY, Masonic teachers and writers of the last century fell into very grave mistakes as to the practices and history of the old knightly fraternities, possibly arising from there being at the time no popular historic knowledge of these Orders disseminated, leading them to invent as their fancy dictated what they supposed were the correct usages, without much regard to historic accuracy. Their idea would seem to have been that the Order of Knights Templar and Knights of Malta were synonymous. No doubt this blunder caused the degree of Malta to be mixed up with that of the Templars, which there is every reason to think was never contemplated when Templary was first attached to the Craft, but as the Union, whether by design or accident, has been so long established, it is now not desirable, nor advisable to dissolve it, the history and doctrines of the Orders being so much alike, and the object of both being to attain the same end.

In the early Encampments, as the combined bodies were called, the ceremonies were not of a very uniform character, and considerable differences existed, referring more to the Hospitallers of St. John wearing the black habit or costume of that Order, whilst others followed the French "Ordre du Temple," representing the Templars of the Crusades, using the white mantle, the true badge, thus giving rise to the discrepancies that have been found to exist in different jurisdictions. The degrees of the "Rose Croix" and "Kadosh" now of the A. and A.S. Rite, as also that known as "Knight Templar Priest," formed part of the system, to which was added a short ceremony for the degree of Malta, this latter being merely intended as a brief historical record, to show that the Knights of St. John, having established themselves in the Island of Malta, assumed that name, the Masonic Malta degree being a mere allusion to, but having no inapt pretensions to a connection with the "Sovereign Order of Malta." Great care appears to have been taken by the Commission to ascertain the ancient ceremonies of the Templars, evidently from researches into the most authentic documents extant on the subject, and in preparing a simple and impressive ritual, going back to first principles, and keeping it as nearly as possible to what it was in the olden time, before Masonic innovation had crept in, which had no place in the early Order. This explanation, it is to be hoped, will prove satisfactory to those interested in the subject, whose time, and class of reading, may not have led them to a knowledge of its true history, but who wish without trouble to be correctly informed. No arguments or explanation will, however, have any weight where there is a determination not to be convinced, and an obstinacy of purpose to attain a selfish end. A dislike of change is characteristic of most of us, and we are naturally in favour of what has been sanctioned by long use, clinging to old associations; but the antiquity to be desired and retained is that which carries us back to the beginning, the working of any new system being most irksome, it is wise to make all radical changes gradually, respecting the prejudices of those who are opposed to extreme measures.

There cannot be a doubt that in modern Templary many customs have been introduced by those ignorant of its history, who, taking vulgar error and fiction for fact, have perpetuated absurdities as genuine evidence, which it is now difficult to eradicate, although shown to be historically incorrect.

In former times there were two separate classes of knighthood, the earliest (now extinct) originated with the Crusades, being independent military fraternities, or bodies of soldier Monks, which the modern Templars represent. The second class or titular knighthood, established long afterwards by Royal authority, still survives, and is a distinction of high honour, resting in the hands of Sovereigns, granted for distinguished services to the State, to which the title "Sir" or "Chevalier" prefixed to the Christian name is alone applicable.

Masonry has no power nor ever had of conferring knighthood; the only authority for so doing is a self-constituted one, in imitation of the early practices of chivalry, long since fallen into desuetude, which authorised one knight to create another by giving the accolade or dubbing any worthy aspirant. It is therefore looked upon as a ridiculous, although harmless assumption, to address modern Templars by the title "Sir" added to their names, and has been long discontinued in the British dominions, unless with the addition of the word "Knight" between it and the name, even this is considered too much in the style of romance to recommend its adoption on all occasions, and the term "grade," when speaking of the divisions or degrees of the Order, is also a very inapplicable innovation.

The ancient Templars were known as the "Brethren of the Temple," and the common mode of address to individual members that of Brother" or "Frater." The latter [Fra.] as a prefix, does not mean a professed Monk, but simply his brotherhood in the Chivalric Order. Officially the members were styled "The Knight" —"Knight Preceptor"—"The Sieur of ——," Frère Chevalier," &c., adding their names, and the designations by which they were commonly known.

Much has been said about the landmarks of the Order. The word itself in this sense appears a misnomer, as it is Craft, not Chivalric bodies, that, properly speaking, have "landmarks."

Templary being in the strictest sense Christian, it may be said that the whole doctrines of the Christian faith are its landmarks. But to particularize:—None can become Templars who do not profess a belief in the Holy and undivided Trinity. This is of a universal and general application, imperative and indispensable, and provided for in the rules of the Order. It may thus be considered the principal landmark, handed down from the Mediæval Monastic Chivalric fraternities. Another is, that the Masonic candidate should be a Royal Arch Mason, this degree being the completion of the Craft, in which a firm belief and trust in the Supreme Ruler of the Universe is peculiarly inculcated, very properly precedes the Templar Christian belief in the Holy Trinity as an addition to that general recognition of the Deity which is absolutely necessary and common to the whole Masonic fraternity, not from any supposed connection between the Royal Arch and Templar ceremony. Rituals, signs, and passwords, can hardly be called landmarks, because they differ in some degree in every jurisdiction, even in the Craft, and as they were introduced by Masonic ritualistic compilers are liable to change as circumstances render it necessary.

With respect to the amalgamation of the Templar Order with Freemasonry, all the evidence that can be collected tends to show that in the middle, if not in the early part, of the last century, the Knights Templar Order was in possession of the English Masonic body, and was practised as an appendage to a higher degree than the Royal Arch, but that the old knightly fraternities were in nowise Masonic.

It appears to have been the custom in the last century to work degrees that were not controlled by any governing grand body, under sanction of a Craft warrant, that is, in the Lodge room of a regularly warranted Craft Lodge, and this would seem to be a very proper custom, the presence of the warrant giving a certain degree of legitimacy to those working in the higher degrees. No doubt this was the case with the Kilwinning High Knights Templar Lodge of Ireland, who obtained their warrant in 1779, from the Mother Kilwinning Craft Lodge of Scotland. The Irish daughter evidently considered that the warrant gave authority to practise the higher degrees, as almost immediately after receiving it the Templar Order and other high degrees were communicated. The name of this Lodge would also imply that Templary was previously known in Ireland, and that the petitioners for the warrant belonged to it, as it cannot for a moment be conceived that they deliberately falsified the powers granted them, the more especially as the warrant itself was open to inspection. In my opinion, a great mistake is made in looking at this old Kilwinning warrant from the point of view of this present day, and in not considering the very different relations that all Masonic matters bore to each other a century ago. Then it was apparently held that the only correct lawful Masonic authority was the Craft warrant, and that that warrant covered every known degree of Masonry.

Digitized by Google

The impetus given of late to the Knights Templar Order in the United States, and the popularity it has acquired there, is to be attributed to the attractive form it has assumed, the aim apparently being, to establish a kind of volunteer militia organisation under strict discipline, distinct from the Masonic portion, by the adoption of a quasi military uniform—knight errant excursions and picnics, stirring orations, parading with bands of music, and intricate formations in imitation of military evolutions, all of which are both enjoyable and harmless recreations, and very pleasing spectacles, but certainly are neither Masonic or chivalric, and do not convey a very accurate idea of the Great Order of the Temple, or what it is intended to represent, viz., the stern, mail-clad warrior Monks of the Crusades—surrounded by their men at arms and numerous retinue of retainers, the Knights distinguished by their flowing white mantles, adorned with the blood-red Cross of Martyrdom, the rest in sombre habits of russet brown or black.

In thus alluding to the customs of the United States Templars, I must not be understood as wishing to interfere with their system or draw invidious comparisons, but merely to point out the totally different views entertained of the Order by the two jurisdictions, and to explain what these are to members of the Order in Canada who, attracted by the magnificence of the display they have witnessed, have expressed a wish to imitate them.

In our Templar costume we follow that of the Ancient Knights, which is intended to symbolize the principles of the Order, but never meant to be paraded before the eyes of the public. Such exhibitions are not the custom of the country, all public Masonic displays being looked upon as most objectionable, and a Templar procession with us would appear as ridiculous to the common observer as if the Knights of the "Garter" and the "Bath," in their state robes, or gentlemen in court dress, were to parade the streets for the admiration of the multitude. Show and parade are sometimes necessary, but in matters connected with Freemasonry, the less so the better; like Christianity, it is more appreciated in its unobtrusive character than by public demonstrations, and the unnecessary expense incurred better applied to promoting the object and aim of all Masonic systems.

I have taken considerable pains to ascertain from the highest Masonic authorities in the United States the origin of the Templar Order there, and find that mention is made of it as an honorary order, practised in a Royal Arch Chapter at Boston, so far back as 1769, where it was given by members of Craft Lodges attached to British regiments quartered there at the time, who were in possession of it and visited the Chapter; but the earliest distinct body or Encampment of Templars was not formed until the middle of the decade of the last century in Pennsylvania, it is said by Irish Craft Masons, but no one seems to know by what authority or where they first obtained the degree—it died out after a short existence—then it started in New England and a ritual wholly made there, which is of itself sufficient proof that the persons who set it on foot never had the correct order at all; if they had it they would have retained the ritual by which they received it, without which they could have no connection with the order elsewhere. The New York Grand Encampment was chartered by the "Joseph Cerneau" spurious Grand Consistory 32°. United States Templary is, therefore, essentially a modern American degree, based on the Kadosh,* the thirtieth or Templar degree of the A. & A. S. Rite, and framed to suit their Masonic system according to their own ideas of the supposed forms and practices of the Ancient Knights as Masons, with but little attention paid to the usages of the old Orders of Chivalry, which we are endeavouring to follow; therefore, how can the Templar Order in the two systems be considered as one, when the rituals and customs in no respect resemble each other. The O.B. are unlike—ours is a Trinitarian Order, whilst the other is decidedly not, and might be wholly Unitarian and be just as much Templary as it is now—without Trinitarianism there is no Templary, and it is necessarily so distinctive a characteristic of the Order that it is difficult to understand how any system without it can be entitled to style itself Templary. This, then, is where the great difference exists between the two systems, and the difficulty in the way of forming a "treaty of alliance" so desirable and so strongly advocated. I would still join in doing much to bring about a union of the English speaking Templars, but let it be done in moderation, fairness and charity to all. The recent assumption of superiority by the Grand Encampment, United States, over the Great Priories of the British Dominions, does not seem the most advisable move to conduce to this end. The analogy drawn between the "Grand Encampment" and "Convent General" is not strictly applicable. The federal alliance of the Great Priories, like that of nations for mutual support and convenience, cannot interfere with the complete independence of each. The "Grand Encampment" is the nationality of the United States Templars, as the Great Priories are to their own nations, and the United States Grand Commanderies similar to the Provincial Priories. Perhaps in a purely technical sense, the "Grand Encampment" and "Convent General" are to some extent nearly alike, but this arises from the incongruous position into which Templary has drifted; in reality no nationality should possess any body higher than a Great Priory, or any officer superior to a Great Prior; there should be only one Grand Master, chosen by the knights of all nationalities, who should preside over the whole Templar Order. There never was, and there cannot be, two Grand Masters of the same Order of Chivalry—it might be well if the Grand Encampment abated somewhat of its pretensions to superiority over the Great Priories, as Convent General, composed of these Great Priories cannot enter into foreign relations without their mutual consent.

Having thus endeavoured to give a general idea of Templary, I would say to all those whose prejudices cause them to vilify and throw obloquy on the memory of the ancient Knights, and who believe that their persecution and downfall was merited, that to judge of the true spirit of the Order we must not look upon those instances where the rude and licentious habits of the time mixed up a portion of evil with its genuine character, but turn our eyes to the splendid examples of noble acts performed by that famous soldiery—whose chivalrous feeling raised to a pitch of enthusiasm, inspired them to such deeds of courage and devotion in defence of the Christian faith and its followers, that they were looked upon with wonder and admiration by the whole world, and whose subsequent fate was as undeserved as it was terrible. The accusations against them were as preposterous and ridiculous as they were false and malicious, only fitted for the gross ignorance and superstition of the age, and meant as a cloak to conceal the real designs of their persecutors, actuated by an intensity of jealous hatred and cupidity, at the haughty pride, ambition, and enormous wealth of the knights, which had corrupted the pure principles on which the Order was originally founded.

The Papal Bull was published in May 1312, and the Order which had fought and bled in the cause of the Cross for two centuries, extinguished by the Pope, although he avowed that the proof had failed so as to carry definite judgment.

The genuine Order of the Temple still exists in unbroken succession in Portugal, now conferred as an honorary distinction by the Sovereign and called "The Order of Christ," also, until the suppression of the Pope's temporal authority, in the Papal States; even yet it may exist there. The Knights of Christ, established by King Dionesius in 1319, were the Old Templars, under a new name in order to avoid any conflict with the Papal power; but the Order, the statutes, the knights, were those of the Order of The Temple, just as the Jesuits existed during the suppression under another name, but continued Jesuits still.

In conclusion, it may not be out of place to add a short list of such historical works, relating to the Order, as are easily attainable, the perusal of which will assist in dispelling the erroneous impressions disseminated by many of the Masonic magazines and monitors, purporting to give its true history and usages:

"Secret Societies of the Middle Age," Article "Templars," published in Library of Entertaining Knowledge, 1837.

"Addison's Knights Templars," English edition, 1842, in preference to the later one of 1853, or to the American edition by "Macoy," in which "Addison's" text has been in many places altered to suit the American Masonic system, and therefore calculated to mislead the Historic Templar Student.

"Anthony O'Neil Hayo's History of the Knights Templars, from their rise, to the third Crusade," as also his "Persecution of the Knights Templars," Edinburgh, 1865.

"Burne's" Sketch of the History of the Knights Templar, Edinburgh, 1837.

"Sketch of the Knights Templar and St. John, with Notes on the Masonic Templars," by Richd. Woof, F.S.A. Worcester, London, 1865.

"Porter's" History of the Knights of Malta, 1858.

These works will be found sufficient to give an accurate idea of the Orders of the Temple and Hospitallers of St. John or Knights of Malta.

NOTE.—Since the above list was printed Sir Patrick Colquhoun, Q.C., LL.D., has published a "Concise History of the Order of the Temple," an interesting historical work with his own deductions on the "legitimate descent theory."—(R. Hill & Co., Bedford, England, 1878).

* The Kadosh may be styled an appendage to Templary, but cannot be considered as true Templary itself from the fact that it takes the death of De Molai as its strong point, and not the establishment of the Order, being designed purely to perpetuate the memory of the Martyrdom of the Great Master and his brother Knights, and to invoke vengeance upon the oppressors, viz., the Papal power and the Throne of France.

THE RE-OPENING OF TEWKESBURY ABBEY.

THE time for the re-opening of the noble Church has been fixed for Tuesday, 23rd September, and in addition to the opening services on that day, it is proposed to hold special services during the seven following days. Among the preachers who have promised their assistance during the octave, are the Bishop of the Diocese (Gloucester and Bristol), the Bishops of Oxford, Ely, and Derry, the Revs. Canon Barry, G. Portal, G. Body, W. J. Knox Little, and W. Foxley Norris. During the week a Masonic gathering has been arranged at Tewkesbury, to commemorate the Restoration by the Freemasons of Gloucestershire of the 13th century chapel, adjoining the north transept of the Abbey, and at the service on that day, the Rev. G. F. Portal, rector of Burghclere, Newbury, will be the preacher. On the last day of the octave, 30th September, a festival of parish choirs from the neighbourhood will terminate the proceedings. The Lord Bishop of Derry will preach on the occasion. The holy communion will be celebrated daily, during the festival, at 8 a.m., and at a later hour, mattins (full choral) will be sung, in addition to the services, for which special preachers are appointed. There will also be a service for children during the week. Arrangements are being entered into with the railway companies, with a view to the convenience of visitors from a distance, and particulars will shortly be published as to hotel accommodation, private lodgings, luncheons, and reading and writing rooms, and other matters, whereby the comfort of those who may be drawn to the old town may be ensured. We are asked to say that funds are urgently needed to complete the restoration work.

PROV. GRAND CHAPTER OF MIDDLESEX.

THE Seventh Convocation of this Prov. Grand Chapter was held at the Grammar School, Enfield Town, on Saturday last, and favoured by propitious weather, was largely attended. Under the auspices of the Enfield Chapter, the members of which had spared no pains to afford a hearty welcome to the Provincial Grand Superintendent and his Officers, the meeting was equally attractive as successful. The spacious and comfortable school-room was rendered bright and cheerful by the elaborate setting out of the admirable appointments of the Enfield Chapter, the principal chairs of which were placed on a dais surrounded by large and valuable plants and exotics, and when the Prov. Grand Chapter had assembled, the general effect was of a most pleasing character, and merited the encomium bestowed on those Companions who had so tastefully provided for the gratification of their guests. Amongst those present during the meeting were the M.E. Comps. Col. Francis Burdett G. Superintendent, Frederic Davison Prov. G.H., C. Horsley P.G. Reg. as Prov. G.J., H. C. Levander Prov. G.S.E., H. G. Buss Prov. G. Treas., G. Letchworth Prov. G.P.S., H. J. Adams Prov. G. Sword Bearer, D. A. Cama Prov. G. Standard Bearer, T. Walls Prov. G. Org., J. Gilbert Prov. G. Janitor; also Comps. H. A. Dubois P.P.G.D.C., D. W. Pearce P.P.G.R., W. F. Laxton, P.P.G.R., Dr. E. Brette P.P.G.A.S., George Kenning P.P.G.D.C., C. R. Shervill P.Z. 382, G. H. Jaffa P.S. 1237, T. Massa J. 1293, W. H. Postans H. 1237, Louis Beck 1326, T. W. Ockenden P.S. 1423, E. Hopwood P.Z. 1326, J. Linzell J. 1237, E. W. Mackney P.Z. 134, R. Mathison 1237, G. Cordwell P.Z. 1326, J. B. Shackleton 1326, &c. Amongst the visitors were—E. Comps. James Stevens P.Z. 720, 771, S. Hill P.Z. 109, A. Durrant Z. 1185, and G. W. Dorn. The Provincial Grand Chapter having been opened with the utmost solemnity, the roll of Chapters in the Province was called, viz., Royal Union 382 Uxbridge, Bard of Avon 778 Hampton Court, Strawberry Hill 946 Twickenham, Royal Middlesex 1194 Hampton Court, Enfield 1237 Enfield Town, Burdett 1293 Hampton Court, Lebanon 1326 Hampton, Era 1423 Hampton Court, and Francis Burdett 1503 Twickenham. These, with the exception of No. 946, were well represented. The minutes of the previous Convocation were verified. The report of the Audit Committee, which was extremely favourable, as notwithstanding a large and necessary outlay for Prov. Grand Chapter appointments during the past year, a satisfactory balance is still left in the hands of the worthy Prov. Grand Treasurer, Comp. Buss, was received and unanimously adopted. The Prov. Grand Superintendent then announced that he had appointed Ex. Comp. H. C. Levander as Prov. G.H., and Ex. Comp. the Rev. Ernest Brette as Prov. G.J., and immediately proceeded to instal those Companions into their respective offices. This ceremony, though brief, was conducted with all the usual careful and impressive observance customary to the Prov. Grand Superintendent when performing Masonic ceremonial, and the newly installed Provincial Grand Officers were greeted and congratulated on their appointments. The election of Prov. Grand Treasurer resulted in the unanimous re-election of Ex. Comp. H. G. Buss, who was re-invested by Col. Burdett amidst acclamation. The remaining appointments to Prov. Grand Office were:—

Companion	H. A. Dubois	Prov. G.S.E.
"	Glover...	" G.S.N.
"	Herbert Dicketts	" G.P.S.
"	G. Cordwell	" G. 1st A.S.
"	John Hammond	" G. 2nd A.S.
"	Keen	" G. Reg.
"	D. P. Cama	" G.S.B.
"	J. B. Shackleton	" G.S.B.
"	T. Walls	" G.D.C.
"	Louis Beck	" G. Org.
"	John Gilbert	" G. Janitor

Ex. Comp. H. G. Buss called the attention of the Prov. Grand Chapter to the death during the past year of Ex. Comp. Wentworth Little, and stated that a subscription was now in course of being raised for a fitting memorial of his great Masonic services, and the worth and esteem in which he was held by all Freemasons, as well in the Craft as in other degrees. He proposed a vote of five guineas from the Prov. Grand Chapter funds towards such memorial. The Prov. Grand Superintendent stated his desire to second that proposition, and spoke in the most unqualified terms of approval of the exertions and energy of the late Comp. Little, to whom he considered the Province of Middlesex had been at all times greatly indebted. The proposal now made gave him pleasure, but it was mingled with grief and sorrow at the loss of one who had in his brief sojourn here been of so much assistance personally to himself, and generally to the Craft throughout the district over which he had the honour to preside. It is almost needless to say the proposal was accepted with the utmost unanimity. Letters of apology from Grand Scribe E., and several other distinguished Companions, regretting their inability to be present, were read, and the Prov. Grand Chapter was solemnly closed, and the meeting adjourned. A large proportion of the Companions remained to banquet, which was admirably served at the George Hotel under the personal supervision of Companion Robert Mathison 1237, the "worthy host," whose liberality, both in respect of viands and wines and perfect service, was greatly and deservedly extolled. "To scatter plenty o'er a smiling land" seemed to be the set purpose of mine host of the "George," and he carried it out to the fullest. On the clearance of the cloth and a deliberate attention to a well-spread dessert, the Prov. Grand Superintendent proposed the first toast, "The Queen and R. A. Masonry," which was received with the usual cordiality. In consequence of the necessity for an early departure there were but two other toasts given, viz., "Grand Chapter," and "Prov. Grand Chapter of Middlesex," the latter being coupled with the health of the Prov. Grand Superintendent. Ex Comp. Levander in proposing this toast spoke in most enthusiastic terms of the privilege which all Middlesex Masons enjoyed in being presided over by Col. Burdett, and, judging from the reception his name met with there could be no two opinions as to the popularity of that distinguished Brother and Companion. In response the Prov. Grand Superintendent expressed his best thanks for all the gratifying words of Ex. Comp Levander and the reception of the toast, and stated that from a Province comprising only some three or four Chapters in 1872 it had how nine prosperous Chapters, and there was reason to expect that at no distant period every Lodge in the Province would have its Chapter. The Order of the Royal Arch was itself generally increasing, and ought to receive the strongest support from all true Masons. He desired to thank his Officers of the past year for all their exertions, as well as those of former years for securing the effectual establishment of the Province itself, and he also thanked his present Officers by anticipation for what he felt assured would be equal energy and zeal on their part towards continued progress. The brief period at the further disposal of returning Companions was agreeably devoted to harmony, Comp. Stevens reciting "Mason's Vows!" and spinning "Jack's Yarn;" Comp. Walls singing, in admirable style, "I don't mean to tell you her name;" and though last, not least, Comp. Jas. Verry, the respected Janitor of the Enfield Chapter, humming "The Three Flies." This brought the meeting to a conclusion, and at nine o'clock the Companions started for the London trains, quite satisfied and delighted with the success attending the Seventh Convocation of the Prov. Grand Chapter of Middlesex.

ASSISTANCE FUND—OUR SCHOLARS IN AFTER LIFE.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I beg to thank you for your kindness in printing my letter last week. I am pleased to see an effort is being made by Bro. Jacobs, and am flattered to think my suggestions, following the Earl of Rosslyn's proposal, have had the effect of producing such an able article. Enclosed, I beg to hand a sketch of the scheme, and hope you will not only be able to give me the benefit of your experience, but that you will also add your name to the list of patrons, and assist to carry out the work. Not a day passes but I receive evidence that the "Assistance Fund" will be enthusiastically received. As, therefore, you have taken up the matter so kindly, I venture to hope you will continue to ventilate it in your columns. The question is such an universal one that it would be arrogance on one man's part to dictate what to do with the Fund, and I am anxious to hear suggestions—

1st. As to how money could be raised.
2nd. How it should be applied.

I propose, now that the scheme is well afloat, calling a meeting, and inviting the brethren to take part in carrying out details. Secretaries of Provincial Grand Lodges and Country Lodges have great opportunities for supporting the scheme, without expense to their Lodges, by simply announcing on their notice papers, "The merits of the scheme will be discussed, and brethren anxious to assist are requested to give in their names." It would hardly be within the limits of reason to hope the large sum required can be raised in a few months; but if every Lodge were to start a subscription list for small monthly payments, how soon the desired total would be obtainable. I agree with you it would hardly be possible for each Province to work separately, nor would it be to its advantage. I do not think any Province would be strong enough to support their nominations entirely, although doubtless some means could be devised to give them a vote for their nominees. But is not this disgressing? Is not our aim now to raise a fund, and invite the whole Craft to consider that it as essential to provide for our scholars in after life as it is to educate them in their youth? The more I think that we have no Assistance Fund attached to our grand Charities, the more inexplicable it seems to me. There is scarcely another Charity to be found that does not assist its scholars with some start in life on their leaving school, and the statistical facts given by some of these Charities, I am assured, are most gratifying. No doubt there are many brethren in a position to take an apprentice, or otherwise offer an opening. What better opportunity could such as these have? Let them apply to the Schools; they will be gainers in many ways. They will be assured of the respectability, and will receive a reliable guarantee of the ability of the scholar. The boy or girl has also the advantage of going amongst kindly disposed people, and will have the satisfaction of knowing that he or she would not be so placed unless proper inquiries had been made, or it was considered he or she was fitted for the vacancy. I simply urge this, en passant, as one way in which the Assistance Committee would be doing good service. Bro. Binckes points out, indeed, two prominent cases, and he is right in stating it is laudable for our boys to wish to serve their country; indeed, what greater profit could we have in return for our "assistance" than to know that not only did our Boys serve their country, but deserved well of their country? Who knows but one of these days we might have to score a second Rorke's Drift by our Boys.

Without passing an opinion on Bro. Jacob's laudable scheme, could you not devise a means by which the two schemes could be amalgamated? I don't think the Craft would have to record an ill-asserted marriage, as we start with one common object in view. Personally, I should be proud to work with Bro. Jacobs. I have mentioned casually various ways of raising money,—bazaars, picnics, balls, &c. As to the former, this appears to have taken root on good soil. A grand bazaar may be one of the successes of next year. Although the ladies are not allowed to become Masons, we might secure their assistance. Indeed, I am convinced many ladies—wives and daughters of Masons—will be tempted to say they will assist; and with the fair sex to support a Charity scheme, failure is not one of the possibilities.

Trusting you will favour me with your able assistance,

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

DICK RADCLYFFE.

129 High Holborn, 7th August.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In your article of last week's number, "Our Scholars in After Life," I am afraid you somewhat mistake the purport of what it is intended doing in this Province for the Boys and Girls who require assistance on leaving the Schools. My letter, which you kindly inserted in your same number, was scarcely explicit enough. What I proposed was, that we should inaugurate a fund in memory of our late Prov. G. Master, not for our Province only, but for the benefit of all and any who might need assistance on leaving the Schools; that ours would be the nucleus of a national fund, but being the originators that we should name it; it might be called the "Shrewsbury Fund," &c., and all Masons could subscribe to it under that, as well as under any other title. The money we get together in Staffordshire will, I hope, be sufficiently large to start the new Charity, and augmented and strengthened by the brethren who now wish such a fund established will, I trust, become in time as useful as our other Charities. After our next Prov. Grand Meeting, the Shrewsbury Fund for the advancement in after life of children leaving the Schools will doubtless be an established fact. I trust we shall be able to co-operate with the brethren who are now working for a similar object, and make all the funds into one. Apologising for again troubling you,

I am, yours fraternally,

J. JACOBS P.M. 482,

P.P.G. Reg. Staffordshire.

The Rookery, Handsworth, Birmingham,

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—The letters in your last issue, as to the advisability of assisting our pupils after they leave the Schools, and your remarks on the same subject require deep consideration, and need to be looked at from several points of view. I hope that every move that may be made will be carefully considered, and that nothing will be done without due deliberation. You, Bro. Editor, seem to think there is no question as to the need of such a fund, and really I cannot see my way to join issue with you on this point, although at present I hardly like the idea of the scheme. It seems to me that it will be very bad to let boys or girls grow up with a feeling that, in whatever position they may find themselves, whether through neglect on their own part or otherwise, they have a fund to which they may appeal, and on which they may rely for a fresh start in life. I quite understand that the Committee may be invested with authority to use discretion, but we are apt to err on the side of leniency, and thus I am afraid we shall get the credit of encouraging idleness by offering a premium to those who are too lazy to make any push for themselves. Still I suppose that there always will be the black side to a question, and that deserving persons will suffer because there are so many undeserving ones in the world. I only hope that this fund will not fail in consequence of the abuse of its well-meant provisions.

Later on, if you will allow me, I may refer to the rules, which I suppose will be made public.

Yours fraternally,

PATER.

UNIFORMITY OF MASONIC RITUAL AND OBSERVANCE.

"PAST MASTERS AS PRECEPTORS" AND "WHICH IS CORRECT?"

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I am happy to announce that the support I have received in response to my proposed publication of the above work is sufficiently assuring to induce me to proceed therewith without further delay, and that consequently the book is in the press. It will be ready for issue by the end of this month, and copies will be forwarded to subscribers immediately. Of the 500 subscribers asked for, I have at the present some 400, and have no doubt that during the month the remaining number will be forthcoming. At any rate, I will now take the risk (if any) of publication. But I shall nevertheless esteem it a favour if some of my brother Masons who take an interest in this matter will use their influence with the Lodges and Lodges of Instruction with which they may be connected to promote its general circulation amongst the Craft. The first supply will be forwarded to subscribers, and I naturally desire that that supply should be as large as possible. Subsequent editions, I have reason to believe, will be required, and these will be obtainable in the ordinary course. The price of the work (2s 6d only) brings it within reach of all who are likely to feel interested in the subject of which it treats. Subscribers' names may be forwarded either to yourself, as the publisher, or to—

Yours very truly and fraternally,

THE UNPLEASANT AFFAIR AT KEW BRIDGE.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Having been present at the last meeting of the Royal Alfred Lodge at Kew Bridge, and sharing in the pain which every true-hearted brother must have experienced at the course which the after-dinner proceedings took, I asked a brother in whose judgment I have the utmost reliance what could be done to prevent such unseemly conduct in the future. He pointed out, in reply, that the course of action was as clear and plain as possible. The Worshipful Master, in the event of any unseemly conduct arising in a meeting over which he presides, has the power—which he is perfectly justified in exercising—of stopping any brother—whether he be the real culprit or not—and of calling upon him to sit down. If he refuses to accede, either to gentle appeal or to more imperative command, it is then in the power of the W.M. to say, "Brother So-and-so, it is my intention, unless you instantly sit down, to leave the chair; and, in such an unfortunate event that order cannot be maintained, it will be my duty to summon you before the Board of General Purposes." Such scenes as that enacted on the 25th ult. are calculated to disorganise, if not break-up, any Lodge; and as a frequent visitor at the Royal Alfred, I anxiously looked forward to see what the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE would say respecting it. The matter was so flagrant that it could not possibly be overlooked; and the brethren have reason to be thankful for the sensibly temperate manner in which it was alluded to in your columns. I heard a remark from one of the P.M.'s present which was simply disgraceful, casting reflection upon a neighbouring Lodge. He said, "Go to the Lily of Richmond;" but I must say I never witnessed such a scene amongst that much-maligned section of our Fraternity. Of their temporary suspension they have nothing to be ashamed, it was because one of their P.M.'s called attention to a point of order. I was present this year at the installation of Bro. Hubbard, and rejoiced at the prospect of the revival of true brotherly amity, which received abundant testimony in the W.M. being able at the last Festival to take up the noble sum of 115 guineas. And certainly, if any reflections were justifiable at all, the banquet-table was not the place to air them, to the annoyance of the well-disposed brethren, and the break-up of the general harmony. It was a mournful and pitiable sight to see the peace and enjoyment of what ought to have been a friendly and harmonious gathering so rudely broken up, and this was the unanimous expression of the Visitors, who on this unfortunate occasion rose from the table and silently "wandered away." No one can blame Bro. —— for the part which he endeavoured to take in throwing oil on the troubled waters, and can only regret that certain of the brethren did not accept in the proper spirit the kindly counsel which was thus proffered to them. However, let us hope that the occasion for reference to such an unpleasant subject will not soon occur again; and, trusting that a better spirit will predominate over the future gatherings of the Royal Alfred, hitherto renowned for the harmonious and hospitable character of its meetings,

I remain, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

A VISITOR.

LIVERPOOL DOCKS.—The Liverpool Docks as they stand at the present day are among the wonders of the world. Since the formation of the first wet dock in 1719 the extension of these inland basins has been continuous. Fifteen years ago they covered an area of water-space to the extent of two hundred and seventy-seven acres, and the quays were nineteen miles in length. Since then there has been no cessation of dock extension. To enumerate or describe them all would fill many pages. There are the Salthouse, Albert, and Canning Docks, the Clarence Half-tide Dock, the Prince's Half-tide Dock, the Manchester Basin, the Wapping Basin, the Coburg, Brunswick Union, Toxteth, and dozens of other docks, with the Goree Piazza at the bottom of St. James-street, a short distance from the Town Hall. Every convenience and facility for the despatch of business surrounds them. A broad open thoroughfare, tapping at right angles many of the principal streets, runs along their whole length; in this roadway is a double line of rails, which branch off also and surround several of the basins and docks; omnibuses and tram cars traverse it perpetually during the day from end to end. The scene is a busy one always. A hurrying polyglot multitude, constantly on the move in and out and about the sheds; great vans and wains laden with produce, cotton bales, ores, Manchester piece goods, cases of every size and description containing cochineal, indigo, flax, jute, guano, mahogany, dressed hides and untanned molasses, raw silk, and the thousand and one articles of home, colonial, and foreign produce needed to carry on the manufacturing processes of the world; the engines snorting and puffing impatiently, as they rattle along with their long line of attendant waggons, en route for the great terminus higher up in the town.—From "Our Own Country" for August.

BURRELL LODGE, No. 1829.

ON Saturday afternoon, the 2nd inst., a new Lodge of Freemasons was consecrated at Shoreham, the Lodge being named after the Provincial Grand Master of Sussex, Sir W. W. Burrell, Bart., M.P., the "Burrell Lodge," and bearing number 1829. The ceremony took place in the Town Hall, in the presence of a large body of the brethren, many of whom are well known as influential members of the Craft. Among those present were Bros. R.W. Sir W. The Lodge was formally opened by the Prov. G.M., who, in a short address, remarked that Masonry had previously flourished in Shoreham, and the then existing Lodge had, doubtless, been visited by Royalty. He was pleased to be present to assist in renovating the Lodge and once more establishing Freemasonry in the ancient borough.

Sir Walter having vacated the chair, Bro. J. H. Scott, Deputy Prov. G.M., proceeded with the ceremony of consecration, which was performed with due solemnity, and in a most impressive manner Bro. Scott embraced the opportunity of addressing the brethren present. He congratulated the founders of the Lodge upon the success they had achieved in securing their charter, remarking that especial thanks were due to Bro. Lord Arthur Hill for coming forward to fill the onerous post of W.M. While, also, congratulating the founders upon the name they had selected for the new Lodge, he assured them that they had placed great responsibilities upon their shoulders, for the name of Burrell had for a line of years been borne by those with whom had been associated all that was noble, generous, and true, and it would be their duty to see that the name was not sullied by any act of those belonging to the new Lodge. He (Bro. Scott) had addressed the brethren at great length at the consecration of the Atlingworth Lodge a few days ago, and would therefore content himself with a few remarks only. He concluded by impressing upon the brethren the cultivation of those principles so dear to Masonry, and heartily wished prosperity to the new Lodge.

Bro. the Rev. E. F. Cave Browne Cave Prov. Grand Chaplain, also gave an address.

The ceremony being concluded, the W.M. elect, Bro. Lord Arthur Hill, was duly installed, while the following, who, with his lordship, were the founders of the Lodge, were appointed to their respective posts, viz., Bros. C. J. Smith W.M. and P.M. 1466 acting I.P.M., Captain R. Burrell P.M. 271 S.W., W. Tunstall Clarke 315 J.W., A. Burrows 186 Treas., E. Bridges J.D. 311 Sec., T. Packham S.W. 315 S.D., R. B. Higham 315 J.D., A. Brazier 851 I.G., Rev. G. Rose-Johnson 487 Chaplain, J. Braithwaite P.M. 869 P.P.G.J.W. Herts D.C., A. R. Brown 697 Steward, and H. H. Hughes Tyler.

The effect of the Consecration ceremony was greatly enhanced by the musical accompaniments given under the direction of Bro. A. King Prov. G. Organist, who was assisted by Bros. J. Large (late of Westminster Abbey), E. Broadbridge, W. Roe, and G. Cole. The efforts of the vocalists were most successful. The ceremony being concluded, the brethren adjourned to the Royal George Hotel, where nearly eighty brethren sat down to an excellent banquet, supplied by Bros. Sayers and Marks, whose catering gave every satisfaction. The chair was taken by the newly-elected W.M., Bro. Lord Arthur Hill, who was supported by Bros. Sir W. W. Burrell, J. H. Scott, and C. J. Smith.

The Chairman gave the usual loyal toasts, "The Queen and the Craft," and "M.W.G.M. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," which were enthusiastically drunk.

The Chairman next gave "The R.W. Pro G.M. the Earl of Carnarvon, the D.G.M. Lord Skelmersdale, and the Officers of Grand Lodge Present and Past."

Bro. Thomas A.G.D.C., in responding, passed a well-deserved eulogy upon Lord Carnarvon for the intense interest he at all times showed in the cause of Masonry. Lord Skelmersdale was a general favourite among Freemasons, and worked hard, not only in his Province, but for the general welfare of the Craft. He was pleased to find that he intended taking the chair at the next meeting of the Boys' School Masonic Charity, and to learn that the worthy W.M., Lord Arthur Hill, would also be present as a Steward representing the new Lodge. He took the opportunity of complimenting Bro. J. H. Scott upon the splendid manner in which he had performed the ceremony of installation.

The W.M. next proposed the R.W. Sir W. W. Burrell, Bart., M.P., Prov. G. Master of Sussex, who had at all times shown great interest in the working of Masonry, and had visited nearly every Lodge in his Province. He trusted he would be long spared to hold his high position.

Sir Walter, who was received with great applause, expressed the pleasure he felt in being present at the opening. Masonry, he said, had indeed made rapid strides. Five years ago the Ockenden Lodge No. 1465 was opened. He had been its first W.M., and now he found the Burrell Lodge bore No. 1829. The great impetus given to Masonry he believed to be in a great measure owing to the active interest taken in the Craft by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. Four new Lodges had been opened during the two years and a half he (Sir Walter) had been in his present office, and a fifth, he believed, would be shortly consecrated. (It was understood as St. Leonard's, Hastings.) The old Lodge founded at Shoreham had flourished, and he believed it had been honoured with a visit from the late Duke of Sussex. He trusted that the new Lodge would regain the prestige of the first and almost forgotten one, and that its business would be carried on in a truly Masonic manner. To the Secretary, who was a young Mason, he would tender a few words of advice. He begged he would take especial care to note every minute of the Lodge proceedings. They had an excellent Prov. Grand Secretary, whose duty it was to examine their books, and he was desirous that no complaints should be made to him of any laxity on the part of the newly appointed Secretary. In issuing notices of meetings he wished him to forward at least two copies to the Prov. Grand Secretary, that the Provincial Officers might know what was taking place. In conclusion, he fervently hoped that the new Lodge would not, like its predecessor, be allowed to collapse.

The W.M. next gave the D.G.M. of Sussex, Wor. Bro. J. H. Scott, and the Officers of the Prov. Grand Lodge Present and Past. He regretted that Bro. Scott had been compelled to leave through indisposition. He (Bro. Scott) had performed the consecration ceremony in a masterly manner, and was at all times ready to assist in the furtherance of Masonry. Bros. Freeman and Dixon responded. The former expressed the pleasure he felt at being present, and was glad to say that the returns which had lately come in from the various Lodges had been of a satisfactory character.

Bro. C. J. Smith proposed the W.M., and success to Burrell Lodge 1829. After some considerable delay, the new Lodge had at last been fairly started, and he was proud to find so able an Officer as their newly-elected W.M. There was also a good first Lieutenant in Captain Raymond Burrell, son of their worthy Prov. G.M. Starting under such auspices, the success of the Burrell Lodge was a foregone conclusion. Their W.M., he was assured, would set them a good example, and take to heart the words that had fallen from their Prov. G.M. and the addenda supplied by the Prov. G. Secretary. For all he would say, "come and welcome," and the Officers would certainly not fear the visits of the "prying Secretary." (Laughter). Great care had been exercised in getting initiates, and not a fourth part of those anxious to join had as yet been considered. Lord Arthur Hill, in responding, feared that his election had been the result of their good feeling towards him, and not of his own merits. He declined at first taking the post, thinking that a local brother would be a more acceptable one. He thanked the brethren for the confidence reposed in him, and would do his utmost to further the interests of the Lodge. Sir W. W. Burrell apologised for the absence of his son, who had had an engagement of six weeks' standing which he found it impossible to put aside.

The W.M., in proposing the W.M.'s of Lodges in the Province, remarked that those present represented more than half the Lodges in the Province. Bros. Sandeman W.M. St. Cecilia 1636, and T. J. Sabine W.M. Atlingworth 1821 responded. Bro. Sabine remarked that Freemasonry in Sussex had received great and encouraging influence from Sir W. W. Burrell, who was a genuine specimen of the "fine old English gentleman." Sir Walter, replying to these observations, felt a great share of the praise was due to Bro. John H. Scott and his brother Officers.

The W.M. then gave "The Masonic Charities."

Bro. Binckes, in responding, stated that the Boys' School contained 217, and the Girls' 200 pupils, and that there were, in addition, aged of both sexes, numbering 360, dependent upon the Charities.

Bro. W. T. Clarke proposed "The Visitors," to which Bro. Cubitt responded.

Bro. Eberall proposed "The Officers of 1829," and Bros. Clarke and Braithwaite responded.

The remaining toasts were "The Ladies" and that of the Tyler.

The third part of Messrs. Groombridge's "Greenhouse Favourites" sustains the high opinion we expressed of the first two numbers. The latest instalment of this new work treats more particularly of the Fuchsia and Passion Flower, and several engravings are given explanatory of the remarks made by the editor. The two coloured plates this month are very chaste, and give promise of a handsome collection emanating from this source.

A "QUIET" WEEK'S HOLIDAY.

By Quiz.

HAVE you, gentle reader—that is the sort of personal appeal, you know, employed by the ordinary story-writer—ever met with a man who was hag-ridden with an idea? I have; and this is how it comes about.

An old friend of mine, named—well that is of no consequence to you, and if you knew it would be of no moment to the story. But as I was going to say, this old friend of mine was eaten to death by a consuming idea of being thoroughly "up" in all matters concerning Freemasonry; and the pains he took to accomplish an impossible feat were certainly praiseworthy, but for the fact that the perpetual worry began to tell upon the little mental stamina the poor old fellow possessed.

Having been, it is whispered, jilted early in life, our hero had expended his time and a tolerable income upon pursuits which completely excluded the possibility of any of the old tender emotions being revived. His house was a perfect paradise to men of the "old curiosity" turn of thought, and his unique collection of old paintings, old china, old autographs and manuscripts, together with spacious rooms crammed with bijouterie, articles of vertu and sacred relics, was sufficient to make the mouth even of a Christie water most profusely. He was a Simon the Cellarer of a most extended type, and a mystery to his Margery of a housekeeper, who wondered, as did everybody else, what were the "secrets" locked up within the sacred casement of his embroidered waistcoat.

Bless you! he was sodden, saturated, with Freemasonry! He could talk of nothing else; and for that reason never associated with anybody but brethren of the mystic tie. He wore Masonic studs, sleeve-links, rings and pins; and every article of attire, down to his magnificent open vest of lavender satin, was figured with Masonic emblems. They were blended exquisitely on his meerschaum pipes, burnt into his billiard cues, embroidered on his smoking cap, engraved on his family plate, etched in pencil and various coloured inks on every spare leaf of every book in his big library! He had Masonry on the brain, poor fellow—the little he could boast of. He never accumulated any solid benefit from it, though he pored over every Masonic book, newspaper and periodical he could lay his hands upon. He attended a Lodge every night, and often on a Sunday when the opportunity presented. He had become so gorged with Masonry in every shape and form that, instead of being nourished by it, he had become bloated and flatulent with it—one eye; and that eye very obliquely cast indeed.

How to get my friend off this hobby which he was riding to death was a puzzle I had long endeavoured to solve; but finding him inexorable, and staving off every suggestion with a phrase of Masonic lore, it seemed almost a hopeless task. There was nothing for it but taking him quite away, out of the reach of everything Masonic; and I secretly planned a little trip by water, so that, being alone, and out of earshot of all fraternal acquaintance, I hoped to wean him, by a week's relaxation, away from that dreamy reverie into which he had been plunged.

How he ahem'd and ha'd, to be sure, when I made the suggestion that we should go—a quiet couple of us—for a week's quiet holiday! "He had been taught to be cautious," he said, and ever since the Princess Alice disaster his little yacht had been snugly moored, down at Erith, while he had resisted every invitation or temptation to resume his old cruising life, of which he had hitherto been so extremely fond. Besides, there was that Eccentric Lodge of Instruction, in which he was a shining light, and for whose "section" night he had been making extraordinary preparations. Every excuse was couched in symbolic language; but at last, "vowing he would never consent—consented!"

At the very moment we had ratified the compact with a grip and solemn obligation, a loud double-knock at the door was heard, and presently old Margery entered, bringing on a salver profusely adorned with Masonic devices, a letter for my friend; and this, on being opened, we discovered to be a tinted circular announcing a river trip from London-bridge to Gravesend.

"Zounds!" he exclaimed, "the very thing, Bob!" [I did not tell him that I had bribed my printer to "set" the circular for the purpose, and that I had posted it with my own hands, having timed its arrival for the very moment when I anticipated the old fossil's capitulation.]

But, having caught the interest of the idea, it was arranged off-hand, and the old fogey was as enthusiastic as a child for whose delectation mamma had arranged a pic-nic in the woods.

A most valuable colleague I found in the venerable housekeeper before alluded to, and who playfully sketched out a series of domestic arrangements—such as cleaning down, and a host of other household necessaries—that should be attended to during our absence. Of course, the process of packing up had already been surreptitiously far advanced.

As we smoked our evening pipes together, still the changes were rung upon the old pet theme; but I indulged the foible with the calm satisfaction of having an entire week before me in which to draw the red-herring across the line of scent, and so to divert the mania which had taken possession of my friend's whole mental energies.

The hurry and bustle at London-bridge the next morning convinced me that there are yet living a great many of the old "Tony Lumpkin" class—one of whose most remarkable traits of character is never to be done out of anything when once they have made up their minds to it. Had it not been so, I fancy the crowds of people who swarmed our saloon steamer in every part must have been slightly deranged, in the presence of such meteorological indications as confronted us. It looked, indeed, as though old Jupiter Pluvius—or, as he is vulgarly called, the clerk at the weather office—had gone off on the spree, leaving his key in the water-butt, and thus giving those two mischievous and facetious chaps, Mercury and Momus, the opportunity of treating us all to a shower-bath just at the time when we did not require one. Oh! had I but—no, not Aladdin's lamp, kind reader, but—the pen of a ready writer, I might describe such pictures by the way as would afford even a Mark Tapley the opportunity of coming out strong, and becoming creditably "jolly." Of the toiling hundreds who had emerged from the hives of industry in our big city to enjoy a day on that crowded steamer, packed as closely as herrings in a barrel, their garments soaked with rain, and with countenances as doleful as that of the man who had raffled for a dinner and lost it! Of the broad river on whose bosom hung the mist like a huge wet blanket, while the few flags carried by the excursion packets, that ought to have flattered gaily in the summer breeze, flagged angrily, like swabs around the smoky masts. And, as the "pleasure" seekers flocked in at the intermediate piers, moist and weary, one could almost picture the disgust and disappointment that thrilled those throbbing breasts. Was it for this they had filled their baskets and satchels overnight, and raked out their best bibs and tuckers, lured by the dazzling attractions of a grand gala day upon the Thames! How the gay feathers and ribbons which adorned those strange faces would have brightened up the decks and saloons of our trusty bark had the weather been at all as we have a right to expect it at the latter end of July.. But it wasn't, and one could only commiserate with our unfortunate fellow voyageurs, who had come out in full fig, and on pleasure bent, only to find it a delusion and a snare. In vain a bright-eyed 'Vitechapel lass warbled to a concertina accompaniment the soothing melody—for the company was by no means in a temper to appreciate or applaud the sentiment so pathetically conveyed in song. But whilst I was all this time making a mental note of passing events, where was my hero whom I had engaged to chaperon during the week? I searched high and low, but found him not! Repenting of my temerity in leaving him but for a moment to his resources, I sought him everywhere—in the saloons, on deck, 'tween deck, "all over the ship," in fact; but not a vestige of him could I discover. At length, after having given up my fruitless search, and praying that he might soon turn up. I ordered a tumbler of refreshing beverage, and was just surrendering myself to reproachful meditation, when in a remote corner of the cabin I espied my hero buried in serious conversation with the steward. I was relieved! Talking to him, no doubt, of yachting, of which he had once been so enchanted, before the Masonic mania set in; recalling incidents and adventures with old Father Neptune, in which they had jointly participated in days gone by. At all events, there was a crumb of comfort in this.

"The maids of merry Hingle-land, 'ow by-yontiful are they?"

"Hullo, Bob! where on earth have you been all this time? Pacing the deck, and getting wet through, like the nincompoop you must be," shouted our hero. "Come here, and let me introduce you to Brother ——!" All my cherished hopes, like Bob Acres' courage, oozed out at my fingers' ends, as I saw at once that the steward's flashing Masonic studs had caught my friend's eye, and with an instinct as catching as a cough before a sermon he had bottled up the steward for a fraternal chat. It was of no use to break in upon it, for they both seemed impregnated by the idea, and the mutual confidences they exchanged, over bottles of "nourishing stout," were something marvellous.

Down past Greenwich and Woolwich, with their once bustling yards and factories filled with the hum and bustle of industry, but now mute and forlorn, in consequence of unfortunate labour disputes, we turned into the broader reaches of the Thames, until Erith was in sight, and here, as glorious Apollo had again asserted his supremacy, and shone forth once more like the genial old fellow that he is, the excursionists shook out their damp and soiled plumage, and basked gratefully in the returning sunshine. A change had come over the spirit of the dream. Our "band" was very liberal in its supply of music, first playing aft and then before the funnel, and giving each section of the company a share of its "inspiriting strains." A party of handbell ringers varied the entertainment, and all this tended to heighten the pleasures of the trip. The professionals, however, had it not all their own way, for a gentleman of decidedly Yankee cut, in the fore part of the vessel, regaled his admirers with a "tall" song, the burthen of which was very touching and pathetic:—

"A grasshopper sat on a sweet potatur vine,
On a sweet potatur vine,
On a sweet potatur vine;
And a big turkey gobbler came a-sneaking up behind,
And nipp'd him off from that sweet potatur vine!"

It was agreed that cousin Jonathan had whipped the British professionals into a cocked hat, and as he didn't carry round the hat after his song he was dubbed "a gen'leman" forthwith. So we continued to drive dull care away until Erith was reached, and as we pulled up at that exceedingly handsome structure called the pier, I suggested to my friend, out of whose head the singing and the music had once more banished his "hobby," that we should land, and look up his little disused yacht.

"Just the very thing," he chimed in, "only let us pay that tribute of brotherly love and esteem which is due to a distinguished member of our Order, to whom I ventured to introduce you just now. W.M. of some Lodge, don't you know? Down Poplar way, somewhere. Decent fellow! Must invite him to my place, and you shall form his closer acquaintanceship."

So saying, he dived off once more amongst the crowd, and the last thing I saw of the couple was the gesticulating of glasses and a profusion of nods as they confessed that happy had they met, happy had they been, and happy might they meet again!

At last, thought I, as we landed on the pier, I have snatched him once more from the vortex; and I'll take good care I don't let him out of my sight again.

He grumbled about paying the sixpence which the enlightened authorities at Erith considerately charge to strangers on holiday occasions for the five minutes travelling over their handsome pier, instead of the penny on ordinary days, and found my friend's little craft, though idle, had by no means been neglected. The "Captain," as the old sailor in charge delighted to be called, rubbed his eyes, stared, and gasped forth, "Well, darn my buttons—the Lord forgive me for swearing—but I never! Here's the guv'nor, come at last!"

"Bless my soul, my Lord High Admiral, who'd 'a thought o' seeing you, of everybody else in this born world? Here Jim—Bill—hurry up now, (in a whisper) see all's right for the Admiral."

It seemed quite unnecessary, however, for any hurrying up, for as the swarthy fellows touched their foreheads, their countenances wore a broad grin of satisfaction, as though they knew all was as trim and tant as the guv'nor could wish.

"We shall want the Gadfly for a short cruise," said the owner; "how long will you be getting her ready?"

"Ready now, Admiral," replied the captain, "and 'as been a great deal too long, sir, axin' yer parding," laughed the honest old tar; and by the time we had enjoyed our comfortable little luncheon at the Pier Hotel, the Gadfly was out amid stream, and the boat ready to take us to her.

In almost less time than it took to think about it, we were scudding merrily along over the dancing wavelets, between heavy barges and lighters, and a cloud of rowing boats, such as may be seen about here on any summer's afternoon; and very speedily we drew up off the Town Pier at Gravesend, where I again ran the risk of losing my friend. With his usual 'cuteness he espied the white ties, evening coats, black bags, and tin boxes which,—according to the worthy Prov. G. Master of Essex,—are among the distinguishing marks of Freemasons. On getting alongside we learned that the bearers had just come by train to attend the installation meeting of the Lodge of Freedom, and had it not been that we had telegraphed to Southend that we should anchor off there that evening, I should have had to attend the meeting of Freedom Lodge with him; as it was, we got away, after pledging our friendship and tendering our good wishes. Nothing of any moment occurred until we ran alongside the long pier which is the boast and delight of the denizens at Southend. Having made all fast for the night, I could see a twinkle in my old friend's eye, as he asked me to take a survey of the little craft, for as yet I had not been invited to view as much as the chief cabin. When at last we had descended the companion, and were fairly inside, I was overtaken with a mingled sense of bewilderment and surprise, in which regret surged up involuntarily. It was fitted up as a Masonic Lodge! Two or three old acquaintances of the owner, who had discerned the Gadfly approaching, were speedily on board, and the suggestion to hold a Lodge of Instruction was hailed with boisterous satisfaction by the "Admiral." There was no getting out of it, so to submit was the only alternative. We went through all the formalities and degrees, with the "Captain" as Senior Warden, the mate as Junior, and the ordinary seaman as Tyler, our other friends ably assisting in the working of the degrees. It was both unique and interesting, but totally opposed to the object of our trip,—so far at least as I was concerned.

The face of our sailor host glowed with marvellous glee at the success of his improvised Lodge which had thus lain in ambush; and as we exchanged congratulations after "labour," our hero grew prodigious over his "reminiscences" of Masonry, and his adoration of all things appertaining to the Craft.

Still resolute in my desire to carry out the object of our trip, I endeavoured to cut the conversation short by proposing that we should go ashore, when once again the cup of satisfaction was dashed rudely from my lips, by the invitation of our stranger friends to "reciprocate," by honouring the old Priory, or as it was jocosely dubbed, the "Round Thousand" Lodge, by accompanying its Master and members to take part in the consecration of its daughter Lodge at Shoeburyness the next day! Nemesis seemed indeed to be following in our wake, but there was no getting out of it, and, with calm resignation, I was obliged to assent.

The gathering was of the jolliest, it is true, for there are true and trusty fellows of the Craft in this corner of Essex, as doubtless you may know. We were feasted and fêted to our hearts' and bodies' content, and the brethren of the new Lodge seemed to devote their whole energies to ensure the enjoyment of their guests; they killed the fatted calf, brought out their best, and laid themselves especially out for our comfort and amusement. Thus our second edition of Masonry ashore eclipsed all that we had seen on board, and when the last hearty grip of the hand had been exchanged the big moon was shining placidly upon the wide expanse of sea on whose bosom our little Gadfly rose and fell with the peaceful waves, our Senior Warden Jack, Junior Warden Tom, and serving Brother Bill watching calmly our arrival, as they smoked their short doodheens in the stern sheets, no doubt weaving many a pleasant dream of the week's quiet cruise which had been cut out for them.

After having given orders to move round for Walton-on-the-Naze with the "earliest beams of the morning sun," we turned in, and I must confess that the snug little bunks of the Gadfly provided us with the ne plus ultra of luxurious repose. The sun was at its meridian ere our slumbers were disturbed by the arrival of glasses of effervescing S. and B., and soon we sighted the pleasant outlines of the Marine, which is the peculiar pride—and profit, let us hope—of that fine specimen of Masonic life and health, Bro. Dorling. Here, of all places, was the spot on which to spend a "happy day"—or week for that matter. And so, with hopes renewed, we made away for that populous seaside resort, to which so many visitors repair for health and relaxation.

But out of the frying-pan into the fire I very speedily found it. I remembered, during the cold and piercing weather which so disgusted everybody last May, attending the consecration meeting of the Arnold Lodge, when the snow drove in angry gusts along the sea, and the "white horses" played about in such fiendish glee far out upon the German Ocean. I recollected the immense number of propositions which had been made at that opening meeting, and wondered how on earth our Bro. Alfred Arnold had got through the mass of work which stared him in the face in the advent of his presidency. I was not long deceived. The work had not been got through, as I saw by a ponderous agenda of the Arnold Lodge, which worthy host Dorling placed in my hands at lunch.

Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings were specially laid out for overtaking the accumulation of business, and wiping off arrears; and in a twinkling we were booked for all the lot!

My friend the "Admiral" was in ecstacies. "Nothing could have been better," quoth he, as he eagerly scanned the summons, and bridled up in the expectation of having a considerable portion of the work allotted to himself. It is of no use mincing matters, so to cut my story short, the remainder of our "quiet" week was spent in alternate rambling over the pretty little beach, sauntering on the piers, varying with perpetual pleasant meetings in the refreshment rooms for which the Marine is deservedly noted, and — Masonic Lodges galore!

To the credit of the Walton brethren their hospitality was unbounded; and the stay proved by no means an unpleasant sojourn, though, of course, the exigencies of the case entirely upset my prearranged course of action, and the "Admiral" was necessarily more rabid than ever on his one idea.

'Tis a long lane that has no turning, and at last the peaceful Sabbath came, when initiations, passings and raisings, with their collateral congratulations at the banquet table, had passed away, to the great acquisition of the Arnold Lodge, and the vast edification of those who had taken part in the ceremonies.

The time of my holiday span had, however, been exhausted, and as my friend had enthusiastically intimated his intention of accepting invitations he had received to attend several approaching Lodge meetings, I packed my disappointment with the soiled linen in my portmanteau, and breathed freely as the Great Eastern railway train whisked me back to town.

Where the Gadfly is now I am at a loss to conceive, for calling at the "Admiral's" house yesterday I heard from Dame Margery that its master had not returned. For all I know, he is cruising about the coast locking up Lodge fixtures, just as Japhet went in search of a father; and I expect when he does return to be bored with incessant "reminiscences" of the glorious outing which so unfortunately sprang out of my proposal for a "Quiet Week's Holiday."

Hervey, the actual Scribe E., was unable to be present. Letters explaining their absence were read from George Mellor Second Assistant Soj., Col. Burdett, and the Rev. C. R. Davey. Charters were granted for the following Chapters:—

William Fenwick resigned, (it being shown that Comp. Fenwick had permanently left the neighbourhood, and consequently could not act in the above capacity) was granted.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

THE General Committee met on Saturday, in Great Queen-street, when there were present Bros. W. F. C. Moutrie (in the chair), Rev. Dr. Morris, Thos. Meggy, C. F. Matier, R. Tyrrell, E. C. Massey, F. Adlard, W. Maple, R. B. Webster, and Bro. Taylor for the Secretary. The last minutes of this Committee were read and confirmed, and the minutes of the General Court and of various Committees were also read for information. The Audit Committee's report was also received and adopted, and the usual vote passed authorising the chairman to sign the cheques for the quarterly accounts. Petitions on behalf of two candidates were received, and the names ordered to be placed on the list of candidates for election in April next. The usual outfit vote of £5 was granted to J. E. Batty, on the occasion of his leaving the School. An application on behalf of Woods, for the second half (£10) of a vote granted in April was ordered to stand over, the six months specified in the previous minutes not having yet expired. A sum of £20 was granted to assist in preparing W. S. Spark for his second examination for a commission in the army, he having passed his first examination with credit. Before the rising of the Committee, Bro. Webster asked the chairman whether it was true that the House Committee had refused to accept Sir Henry Arthur Hunt, C.B., as Arbitrator in the dispute between them and Bro. S. B. Wilson, and if it were true, what was the reason of such refusal? In reply, the chairman said that it did not appear upon the minutes which had been read that any such proposition had been refused.

DEGREE OF PAST MASTER.

Opinions differ as to the origin and worth of this degree. Not a few eminent authorities make assertion that the Past Master's degree is an innovation, that it has no rightful claim to be ranked as a degree, and that the general manner of working this degree is in no sense helpful to the interests of the Craft. Chase, in his Digest, says of this degree:—"It certainly is not older than the last part of the last century." It was at that period, probably about the year 1795, that it found its way into the American Capitular system, being designed to open the way for those not Masters of Lodges to be advanced to the degree of Royal Arch. Thomas Smith Webb is usually credited with the originating and placing of this degree as we now have it in the Chapter curriculum. It was under the inspiration of this distinguished Mason that a Convention was held at Hartford, Conn., on the fourth Wednesday of January, 1798, when and where this degree was accepted and made a part of the Capitular system. The work really done by Webb and his associates was to formulate a degree out of the ceremony connected with the installing of a brother as Master of a Lodge. The "secrets of the Chair" were developed into a degree which has since stood as a part of the American system of Royal Arch Masonry. In England the term Past Master has no other application except that of distinguishing a brother who has served at least one year as Worshipful Master of a regular Lodge. Then he takes the rank of Past Master. The ceremony connected with his installation into the office of Master is not considered as having anything to do with Past Master's rank; nor is there any such thing as a degree under this name—made a prerequisite to the Royal Arch. There was in former days a system of "passing the chair," as preparatory to gaining the secrets and advancement of this sublime degree, but nothing of this kind is now required. The establishment and working of this degree of Past Master is essentially an American idea. It is a part of the Capitular system which must be recognised, yet against which in its present form there is a growing feeling of disfavour among many intelligent Companions. As a degree it does not seem to be needed; or, if wanted, its place seems to be rather in the Blue Lodge than in the Chapter. As has been said: "The Past Master's degree seems apropos of nothing before it or that comes after. Where seriously conferred it has but little interest—generally it has been much abused and becomes a nuisance to an earnest Companion seeking in all ceremonies the high symbolism of the Craft." Masonry is intended for intelligent men—to stimulate the thought and affections—to instruct the mind by a symbolism and teaching which ought to be pruned of all excrescences. As the Institution is held to a high standard—as it eliminates from its work whatever anomalous or frivolous features may have crept in, it will all the more clearly reveal its true genius and fulfil its largest mission.—Freemasons' Repository.

One of the Subordinate Lodges of Ohio, needing assistance to meet obligations incurred in the building of a Masonic Hall, sent out circulars making a general appeal for help. Grand Master Cunningham caused a stop to be put to this action, which was unauthorised alike by the Grand Lodge and the Grand Master.

Providing for the Debt.—The Masons of Massachusetts are possessed of large resources and not the less of a liberal spirit. Although they have been carrying a heavy debt for some years—a debt occasioned by the erection of their Temple in Boston—they have not lost heart nor indulged in useless criticisms. Occasionally some croaker has predicted that the debt was too large to be met, and that sooner or later the Masonic Temple must pass out of the hands of the Fraternity, but this has not been the general feeling. Now, we are glad to state, all occasion for fear in this direction has been dissipated, for the Grand Lodge by a large and almost unanimous vote has taken such steps as will be quite

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

Lodge of Amity, No. 171. — The last meeting for the season of this popular "summer Lodge," whose members so well and worthily exemplify the motto which is incribed on their banner, "Esto Perpetua," was held on Tuesday afternoon, at the famous old Ship Tavern, at Greenwich. About thirty of the brethren assembled soon after four o'clock, many having taken advantage of an agreeable trip by steamer from London, which, on so bright an afternoon, is always enjoyable. At half-past four Lodge was opened in accordance with ancient rites, under the presidency of Bro. Joseph Clever, of Lewisham, who now fills the presidential chair for the second time. It will be recollected that in June last Bro. Clever was installed by his own son, who is now the respected I.P.M. and Sec. of the Lodge, and who at the preceding annual meeting was installed by his father, who was then retiring from his first occupancy of the chair. It is not often such an interesting occurrence is to be noted in connection with any Lodge, and shows the confidence and goodwill which are felt by the brethren generally towards Bros. Clever, who have done so much to carry on the affairs of the Lodge in a satisfactory manner. The Worshipful Master on this occasion was supported by Bros. Edward Phillips S.W., W. H. Marden J.W., C. Harcourt P.M. Treasurer, Joseph W. Clever I.P.M. and Secretary, G. G. Goodinge S.D., E. H. Buck J.D., F. C. W. Fenn I.G., S. P. Smith Tyler. There were also present Bros. Whittley P.M., T. Batty P.M., J. Browne, F. L. Toms, J. R. Tannahill, E. H. Maddick, G. W. Dodd, &c.; and amongst the visitors Bros. B. Hayter P.M. 231, J. Seeley 25, A. T. Treherne 1441, J. L. Whitmarsh 49, H. J. Amphlett 1511, &c. Lodge having been opened in form, and the minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed, the ballot was prepared for Mr. James Richard Tannahill, of 14 Queen Victoria-street, E.C., who had been proposed by Bro. Fenn, and seconded by the Worshipful Master. The votes were unanimously in favour of the candidate, who being present, was initiated into the mysteries and privileges of the Order by the W.M., who worked the whole of the ceremony in creditable manner. Subsequently the Lodge was advanced, Bro. F. L. Toms, who was found to have made sufficient progress, was raised to the sublime degree, the traditional history being admirably rendered by the W.M. A few matters of business were transacted, the principal of which was that relating to country members, but the discussion ended in the matter being deferred till the next meeting, in May 1880. The customary congratulations having been exchanged, Lodge was closed in due form, when the brethren sat down to an elaborate banquet, served in a style for which the old "Ship" has long been celebrated. The dishes were interspersed with epergnes and vases of choice cut flowers, which emitted a delicious fragrance, whilst the dessert was of a récherché description. At the conclusion of an admirably served repast, the customary Loyal toasts were proposed by the Worshipful Master, and received with honours. The W.M. next rose, and said he was about to submit to them a toast which he felt convinced would be received with the heartiest satisfaction, as it was always a welcome one to the brethren of the Lodge of Amity—that was the health of the Initiate to-day. They were all pleased to welcome Bro. Tannahill into their midst, and they trusted his life might be long, happy, and prosperous amongst them. They all knew Bro. Tannahill as one with whom they were delighted to associate, and no doubt he would form an agreeable acquisition to the Lodge of Amity. The toast was most cordially received, and in responding, Bro. J. R. Tannahill thanked the brethren sincerely for the very hearty welcome which had been accorded to him on that occasion. He felt it a great honour to be admitted into the ancient and honourable institution of Freemasonry. It would be his pleasurable duty so to apply himself to a study of the art as should enable him to comprehend fully its value and advantages, and he trusted he might be apt in the acquirement of that progress which all true Masons must desire. The I.P.M. next proposed the health of the Worshipful Master, who had that evening given them another opportunity of seeing the manner in which he had performed the ceremonies in the Lodge, and the geniality with which he did the honours of the table. There was already an initiation and passing on the agenda paper for the opening meeting of next season, which took place next May, when they might hope again to meet a goodly assemblage of brethren in this neighbourhood, which was so full of historical associations. The toast having been most heartily accepted by the company, the Worshipful Master sincerely thanked the brethren for the repeated compliments which they had paid him. They had extended to him a very kind indulgence in what he felt had been shortcomings in his rendering of the ritual on this occasion; but he accounted for the want of his usual confidence by an unexpected and painful circumstance which had happened during the afternoon, just before he came to the Lodge. A friend of his, who had been staying with him, had been taken suddenly ill, and this had greatly alarmed him. He had barely time to rush off, and had been excessively unnerved in consequence of the painful occurrence. He hoped, however, in the future to perform the duties of his office as he he had hitherto done, and he thanked them most heartily for their having been to his faults on this occasion a little blind. In proposing the health of the Visitors, he said this was always a toast proverbially welcome to the brethren of the Lodge of Amity, and he alluded in felicitous terms to each of the Visitors, who had favoured them with their presence on that occasion. P.M. Bro. Hughes and Bro. J. Seeley severally responded, acknowledging the magnificent hospitality which had been extended to the Visitors that day, and expressing the pleasure which had been afforded them by the working of the Lodge and a visit to this grand historical locality, to which allusion had already been made. The Worshipful Master then proposed the health of the Past Masters of the Lodge, Bros. Harcourt, Whittley, Batty, and Clever jun. The toast having been warmly received, Bro. Clever I.P.M. alluded to the fact that the attendance of Past Masters was not quite so numerous as usual; he regretted the absence of Bro. Cooper, who was no doubt with them in spirit, although he had been unavoidably prevented from attending. The Past Masters were always desirous of doing their duty, and of helping forward all measures that were calculated to promote the interests and welfare of the Lodge. The W.M. next proposed the health of the Treasurer and Secretary, the former of whom was the oldest member of the Lodge, and had rendered them great and valuable service. With regard to their Secretary, he was comparatively new to the duties of his office, though he was not new to him (the speaker). These officers deserved well of the brethren, and he asked them therefore to drink most cordially to the toast which he had proposed. P.M. Bro. Harcourt, in responding, observed that no Treasurer of a Lodge could perform his duties satisfactorily without a certain amount of trouble, though it must be admitted such trouble was always very largely seasoned with pleasure in meeting as he did a number of brethren whom he could regard as his friends. Still he had a duty, not always pleasant, of keeping them within bounds and within their income; so that the festivities with which they supplemented their labours did not form a too absorbing feature in these very agreeable meetings. He was pleased to know that the Lodge was in a most satisfactory position, and trusted that in the future it would continue to be so. The Secretary also returned thanks, in a few happily chosen sentences. In proposing the health of the Officers of the Lodge, the Worshipful Master acknowledged the valuable assistance he at all times received from the brethren who supported him in the various chairs, and who were all animated by a desire to do what they could to maintain the prestige of the Lodge. Bro. Phillips S.W., in reply, felt sure every Officer who held a position in the Lodge of Amity must feel pleased with the reception which had been accorded to the toast, and to the appreciation which the brethren always expressed of their efforts to do their duty faithfully. They all endeavoured to the utmost of their ability to support and assist the W.M. in carrying on the duties of the Lodge in a proper and efficient manner; and he trusted that the same good feeling and harmony which had characterised the Lodge in times past might long continue to subsist amongst them. Bro. Marden J.W. also responded, and the list of toasts was brought to a fitting termination by the Tyler, shortly before ten o'clock. In consequence of the rain, which had set in during the evening, the brethren were debarred the usual out-door pleasantries which accompany their meeting, though the river sides were illuminated brilliantly at intervals by other gay and festive assemblies, whilst the steamers returning from pleasure excursions down the river were now and again lit up with coloured fires, and reverberant with the sounds of music and merry voices. Some excellent songs were sung during the evening, and the meeting altogether was of a most agreeable and harmonious description.

Egyptian Lodge of Instruction, No. 27. — At Bro. Maidwell's, the Hercules Tavern, 119 Leadenhall Street, E.C., on Thursday evening. Bros. Woodward W.M., Moss S.W., Da Silva J.W., Valentine S.D., J. Benjamin J.D., Paton I.G., L. Norden Hon. Sec., Webb Preceptor; Bros. Grammer, Hogan, Gimingham, Ford, and Jones. After the usual formalities had been observed, the W.M. worked the ceremony of initiation, Bro. Norden as candidate. Bro. Moss worked the first, Da Silva the second, and Moss the third sections of the Lecture, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Ford 1707 was elected a member of this Lodge of Instruction. Bro. L. Norden was unanimously elected an honorary member, in consideration of his accepting the office of Hon. Secretary.

Merchant Navy Lodge of Instruction.—On 30th July, this Lodge met for one of the most pleasing events of the year. This was to present to Bro. Clement Breden P.M., Secretary of the Lodge, a token of the esteem in which he is held by the brethren. The gift selected was a silver watch, upon the inner case of which was engraved the sentiments of the Lodge as to the way Bro. Breden had carried out his duties as Honorary Secretary for a period of six years. The presentation was made by Bro. J. J. Gavin W.M. of the mother Lodge, in terms suitable to the occasion. The presentation having been duly handed over, Bro. Breden replied, in a few well chosen words, thanking the brethren for their kind thought of him, and for appreciation of his services. Bro. Sherboom held the position of S.W., and Bro. Atkins that of J.W. The Lodge having been closed in due form, the brethren present adjourned to a banquet, well served by Bro. Gregory, the host. At its conclusion, Bro. Turquand (the Preceptor), in replying to the toast of his health, spoke in high praise of the manner in which Bro. Breden had conducted his duties, and speaking modestly of himself, hoped that this Lodge of Instruction would continue to be one of the best attended at the East end. Bro. H. E. T. Reid P.M. and present Secretary of the mother Lodge, in reply to the toast of the Officers, made an eloquent speech, not forgetting to urge the claims of the Charities, with which he has long been identified. Many were present, amongst whom we may mention Bros. Ould, Robinson, Pringle, Keeble, Kennett, Buchan, Rolfe, Hewitt, &c.

Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, No. 860.—At the weekly meeting, on Tuesday evening last, at Bro. Smyth's, Sisters Tavern, Pownall Road, Dalston. Present—Bros. Musto Preceptor. There were also present Bros. Power, Andrews (W.M elect 1227), Butler, Pavitt, White, Sadler, Dixon, Ellis, &c. The Lodge opened in due form with prayer, when the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Butler acting as candidate. Bro. Smith worked the first section of the lecture, Andrews the second, Barker the third, and Worsley the fourth, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Smith was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing week. Arrangements will be made for the summer outing of the members of this Lodge of Instruction on next Tuesday evening, when names of the brethren who desire to attend will be taken. The promoters will be glad if the brethren will make it convenient to meet them for that purpose.

Alexandra Palace Lodge, No. 1541.—This youthful, but exceedingly prosperous Lodge held its usual monthly meeting on Saturday last, the W.M. Bro. John Lee, and the whole of his Officers being present at the opening of the Lodge. The W.M., after the preliminaries of the Lodge had been disposed of, initiated Mr. Emanuel into the mysteries of Freemasonry, in a most masterly manner. Bro. Lee afterwards passed Bro. Ormond to the second degree, but the climax of good working was attained in the raising of Bros. A. Clark and McCulloch, when the W.M. surpassed, if possible, his usual eloquent and impressive working, and in this good work he was well supported by his S.W. Bro. Daniel, and J.W. Bro. Larchin; Bros. Stacey as S.D., Denison J.D., and Gush I.G., while a painstaking P.M. was found in Bro. Haigh. The excellent working of this Lodge was much extolled by many P.M.'s, of various Lodges, who honoured the Master by their attendance. The W.M., in his deep anxiety to enhance not only the good work of Masonry, but to please the brethren, had invited the ladies of the members to banquet after the business of the Lodge had been gone through, and for the pleasures of the evening Bros. Bertram and Roberts had provided a most recherché banquet, which was in every way fully acknowledged. The W.M., amongst his many toasts, paid a tribute to the ladies for their honouring the banquet by their presence, which was felicitously responded to on behalf of the fair sex by Bros. Rubenstein and Brookman. Many songs were sung, with much expression and taste, and pieces performed on the pianoforte, by Misses Daniel, Stacey, Bennett, McCulloch, Ward, Stead and Stacey, as also by Bros. Ward and Stead. The musical arrangements were carefully carried out by Bro. Ward. The W.M., in replying to the good wishes expressed on his behalf, said that so gratified was he with the success of the day's proceedings that he should note it in his memory as one of the reddest of red letter days, and as he had been so ably assisted by his Officers in carrying on the Lodge work, as well as in his endeavours to carry out the programme of the evening, he most heartily thanked them. This was eloquently acknowledged by Bros. Daniel S.W., Dyte P.M. Treasurer, and J. R. Stacey P.M. Secretary.

PORTSMOUTH FREEMASONS' HALL AND CLUB.

A LARGE muster of the shareholders in "The Borough of Portsmouth Freemasons' Hall and Club Company," as well as of other members of the Masonic Craft, is anticipated on Saturday, when the foundation stone of the club building in the Commercial-road, Landport (near the offices of the Portsea Island Gas Company), is to be laid by the Mayor (W. D. King, Esq.), Chairman of the Company. The ceremony, which takes place at a quarter-past one, is to be preceded by an extraordinary meeting of the shareholders, at which the directors will present the following report:—"Gentlemen,—The directors congratulate you on the satisfactory disposal of the 600 shares forming the nominal capital of this company, thus proving that the confidence entertained by the promoters at its commencement is fully shared by a very large number of registered Freemasons in the borough of Portsmouth and its vicinity. On the 5th of last March the first meeting of gentlemen desiring to promote the interests of Freemasonry in Portsmouth, by establishing a commercial company to carry out the objects set forth in the memorandum of association, was held at the Sussex Hotel, Southsea, and on the 10th of March the schools and building in Commercial-road were purchased by Messrs. S. R. Ellis and E. S. Main, joint Secretaries, by the authority of the promoters, on behalf of the proposed company. On the 21st March a specially convened meeting of the promoters elected the following gentlemen as the directors of the company:—His Worship the Mayor (Mr. Alderman William David King, J.P.), Mr. George Thomas Cunningham, T.C., Mr. Thomas Good, T.C., Mr. George Wilkins, T.C., Mr. George Mason, Mr. Joseph Thomas Craven, Mr. Henry Cawte, Mr. Samuel Richard Ellis, and Mr. Cornelius George Adames, C.E. Since this time the directors have strenuously endeavoured to promote its best interests, and have appointed the Capital and Counties Bank, Landport Branch, to be the bankers; Messrs. Besant, Porter, and Wills to be the solicitors; Mr. Emanuel John Smith to be the architect; and Mr. E. S. Main to be the Secretary of the said company. The memorandum and the articles of association have been prepared by the directors, and the company was legally incorporated on the 17th of April, without having recourse to any paid professional assistance. The agreement entered into to purchase the schools and 79 Commercial-road, by the joint Secretaries to the promoters, from Mr. E. J. Pratt, the vendor, was legally stamped, and a sum of £50 paid on deposit. The property was to have been conveyed, and the balance of the purchase money, £1,600, paid on the 10th of June; but as some delay has occurred in the conveyance by the solicitors, the vendor (Mr. E. J. Pratt) formally handed the company full possession of the property on that date; the directors undertaking to pay the vendor five per cent. interest per annum on the balance of the purchase money unpaid; the company to receive £60 per annum rent from the Roman Catholic schools, in which the directors trust Lodges will meet in April next. This course was necessary as the directors were anxious to avail themselves of the summer months to proceed with the building in the Commercial-road, so as to form the club at an early date. The directors have confidence that this equitable arrangement will be endorsed by the shareholders, and they trust that the deeds will shortly be completed, signed, and the balance of the purchase money paid to the vendor.

"Tenders were called for by advertisement for the erection of the building in the Commercial-road, on plans supplied by the Company's architect, assisted by Mr. George Rake and the Borough Engineer. These tenders varied from £1,540 to £1,979, and the directors accepted the lowest tender, that of Mr. David William Lewis, for the sum of £1,540, he providing responsible sureties for the due performance of the contract, which is to be completed in four months from July the 8th. The directors congratulate the shareholders on the possession of a very valuable property, situated in the centre of the borough of Portsmouth, which must necessarily increase in value; and although it would be premature at the present time to discuss the probable income and expenditure of the company, the directors are sanguine that the property will become a first-class commercial investment. The club about to be formed will be conducted in an economical and efficient manner by the directors, thus relieving individual members from any financial responsibility beyond their annual subscription. Every attention will be paid to the comfort of the members, and the directors trust that every shareholder will not only forward his name for enrolment as a member, but will induce all brethren of the Craft to do likewise, thus bringing together at the social table Freemasons belonging to all Lodges who wish to still further cement the cosmopolitan and fraternal union which is characteristic of the Masonic Brotherhood. In consequence of the great success attending the sale of the shares and the popularity of the company amongst the shareholders, the directors feel that it will be most economical to call up the unpaid capital on the shares, by making the first call in September the second in October, and the third and final call in December of this year.

"Signed on behalf of the directors,

"William David King, Chairman.
"George T. Cunningham, Vice-Chairman.
"E. S. Mains, Secretary."

The R. W. Prov. G.M. (W. W. Beach, Esq. M.P.), with his officers, will be present at the laying of the foundation stone, prior to consecrating the Connaught Lodge, at Cawte's Hotel, Southsea Common, at 2.30 p.m. A dinner in celebration of the double event—the laying of the foundation stone of the Masonic Hall and Club and the consecration of the New Lodge—will take place at Cawte's Hotel at 4 p.m.—Portsmouth Times and Naval Gazette.

FORTUNES LOST AND WON OVER WORKS OF ART. — Considerably less than a century has elapsed since Horace Walpole said that Sir Joshua Reynolds in his old age had become avaricious, because he asked 1,000 guineas for the picture of the three Ladies Waldegrave! Formerly his prices had been lower—only 200 guineas for a whole-length portrait, 100 for a half-length, and seventy for a "kit-cat." It is needless to say that no one would part with the portraits for such a figure now. In 1774, for instance, Lord Carysfort gave Sir Joshua fifty guineas for the "Strawberry Girl," which Lord Hertford paid £2,205 for at Samuel Roger's sale in 1856. The great name of Gainsborough reminds us of a still more conspicuous instance of the same kind. The celebrated "Duchess of Devonshire" (we need not for our present purpose enter into the controversy as to whether it was really his) was bought by Wynn Ellis for £65, and was re-sold, as every one knows, to Messrs. Agnew for 10,000 guineas. After this extraordinary illustration of the fortune found in a work of art, which was worth nearly as many pounds as it was originally sold for pennies, others less startling seem to lose something of their point. Yet it ought not to go unmentioned here that Greuze's famous "Broken Pitcher," which must now be worth several thousands of pounds, was painted by the artist (who, by the way, died in poverty) for something like £150—the sum it realised at the Maquis de Verri's sale in 1785; and that the "Chess Players," which Muller sold for seventy-five guineas in 1843 (and did not think his labour of only two days ill-requited), fetched, thirty years later, £4,153. Over the water-colour drawings of David Cox, even those, perhaps, which were rejected from the Academy, comparative fortunes have been lightly won. When Mr. Vokins gave him £50 for "The Hayfield," in 1850, the great artist was so pleased with what he thought a liberal price that he insisted on presenting a second drawing to the purchaser, little dreaming that, at Mr. Quilter's sale in 1875, there would be a spirited contest as to who should take it — as Mr. Agnew did in the event — for £2,950. The profit was not in this case, nor is it many others, made by the first purchaser; for Mr. Vokins sold "The Hayfield" with two other sketches by David Cox for 110 guineas to Mr. Cumming, who re-sold them to Mr. Quilter for 1,250 guineas, and the total sum realised by the three at his sale was no less than £6,017 10s. Of Turner's water-colours the same story could be told; and should the "Vesuvius Calm" and the "Vesuvius Angry," for each of which Turner got fifteen guineas, and which Mr. Ruskin secured some time ago for 550 guineas, ever come into the market, it will be curious to note how enormously their value has been increased.—From "The Magazine of Art" for August.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—COUNSEL AND CHEER. Many impurities enter the human body during the summer from the decomposition of animal and vegetable matter, which often taints the air and renders the water noxious. The grand quality displayed by these excellent Pills, of searching out and expelling all pernicious particles from the system, constitutes them the best medicine, for averting indigestion, bilious attacks, diarrhœa, and English Cholera. Of all the various affections of the alimentary canal constantly recurring in a variable climate Holloway's Pills are the best, cheapest, and safest remedies, since they can never act wrongly, or be taken without benefit, if the accompanying directions receive only moderate attention, and the diet be restricted to plain, wholesome, and digestible food.

INDIVIDUAL EXERTION.

AMONG the greatest events of the world's history there are few that can be disassociated with the memory of an individual, around whom the whole interest seems to concentrate, and who in himself appears to have performed the task, merely using outside means in order the more readily to give effect to his ideas. Whether it be an invention, a discovery, a stratagem, or any other important undertaking, there is always traceable the master mind, which, by the slightest exercise of its power, is able to impede or advance the work in hand. If we inquire into the character of the men who thus rule, we find they are possessed of a quiet, calm disposition, and of a resolute and persistent nature; they are of the class who never allow the prospect of failure to retard them, and if in the course of their proceedings they find themselves stopped by unforeseen difficulties, they are aroused to increased efforts which in most cases overcome the obstacle. It is to these men we owe the majority of the great institutions and improvements that have from time to time grown up in our midst, and to similar individuals we look for further development of the gifts of nature or the advancement of civilization. These remarks apply with equal force to the Masonic brotherhood in its various phases, the rise and development of which can be traced, as it were, to the efforts of a few prominent members—men who devote their minds and energies to the cause, and who are undismayed at any difficulty that may present itself. It may be the foundation of a Lodge, the concentration of a Province, the inauguration or the advancement of a new idea in the cause of charity that calls forth the exertion, but each scheme is entered upon with fixed determination, and most meet the success that is aimed at; indeed, the bulk of the failures that do occur are traceable to the death or withdrawal of the master mind before the work had taken root firmly enough to withstand the blasts of prejudice. On these occasions it frequently occurs that the ideas of the promoters prove so extensive that no one can be found with sufficient courage to continue the work; or the foundation laid may have been so slight that the first heavy pressure of adverse circumstances brings the structure to the ground. The danger of insufficient foundation is so frequently brought under our notice that it may seem somewhat out of place to mention it here, still, warnings cannot be repeated too often, nor can advice ever be too abundant.

Thus we realise that a new undertaking should never be entered upon until its promoters are in possession of a thoroughly firm and sound foundation to build upon, and have an ample supply of material at their command to continue the work when once it has been started. Even with these important accessories it must be borne in mind that it is unwise at any stage to discontinue active exertions; human institutions if left unaided must fall, with a little assistance they will maintain their position, while if any advancement is contemplated, strenuous and continued assistance will be needed. Our exertions, as well as the labours of those who in years to come may undertake the carrying on of the project, may be considerably lessened if precautions are taken at the outset to provide a firm basis for every advance that is made, which in case a misfortune does occur will be found to render material aid in remedying the mishap. Hence it is we devote so much time to the arrangement of what may be considered by some as mere trifles, but which afterwards prove to have been the most important features of the whole superstructure.

Glancing at the more recent advances that have taken place in Freemasonry there are several which stand prominently forward in support of this theory, and perhaps the most successful among the number are those which still enjoy the assistance and counsel of the brethren who played a prominent part in their establishment, and who exhibit with pleasure the pride they feel in the success of their undertaking. It would be invidious for us to award the palm of perfection to any one of these brethren in particular, as it is difficult for us to form any general opinion of the obstacles that had to be surmounted by each, or to learn what amount of outside aid or opposition they experienced. If, however, we confine our remarks to a class or to one section of the brotherhood, it is no very difficult task to point to a brother who, though he may not be the first in the order of merit, may yet prove what can be done by individual exertion, and serve as a pattern to any who may contemplate similar measures to those he has brought to a successful issue. The great addition to the roll of our Lodges during the past few years, and the consequent vast increase in the number of those initiated into Freemasonry is one of the greatest advances we can boast of, and we may therefore take this fact as the basis of our remarks, and inquire how such increases have been brought about? As regards the new Lodges in the home district, or other large centres which have possessed a Lodge for years past, the advance may simply be regarded as the natural effect of the increase of population, but when we hear of a new Lodge being planted in some far off corner of the world, outside the influence of its nearest neighbour, it is there we look for the effect of individual exertion, and there we expect to find that success is, in a great measure, due to the working of a master mind. The present condition of Freemasonry in North Africa will serve as an example. There, we think, the success that has resulted from a very short period of labour is mainly due to the skill of one man, and his ability to direct the exertions of his friends into one channel. The first English official notice of the dawn of Masonic light in the northern part of the Continent of Africa appears in the agenda paper of Grand Lodge for the September meeting of 1877, where it is recorded that a warrant had been granted for the Lodge of Ancient Carthage No. 1717, a number corresponding to that of the year which witnessed the revival of our present Masonic system, and peculiarly appropriate in its connection with this Lodge, which, if not exactly a revival, has certainly proved itself to have been the precursor of great Masonic activity. The warrant was granted in answer to the prayer of nine worthy brethren who were resident in Tunis, among the number being Bro. A. M. Broadley, who was chosen as the first Master, and in due course was installed in that position on the 3rd October 1877. Six months later we recorded the fact that the Lodge had secured a membership of fifty brethren, twenty-eight of whom looked to it as their Masonic mother. Various other particulars of a personal nature were supplied at this time, and we refer the reader to our issue of 25th May 1878 should he care to become better acquainted with the inner working of the Lodge. From its peculiar position, this Lodge may be regarded as a most perfect illustration of the universality of Freemasonry, embracing as it does almost every creed and sect amongst its members. Even at the early date of its history to which we have already referred, we are told that "Moor and Maltese, Frenchman and German, Italian,

Digitized by Google

Spaniard and Greek, were here to be found working together in Masonic unity with the English brethren; whilst Hebrew and Mussulman, Roman Catholic, Protestant and Greek sank all differences of creed, and tried to square and regulate their every action by the implements of the Craft." On the 22nd of the June following an official visit was made by the D.G.M. of Malta, accompanied by several of the District Grand Officers. When it is remembered that this visit entailed a sea voyage of about 500 miles, it may be imagined with what pleasure the members of the new Lodge welcomed their guests. A meeting of the Lodge was held on the 24th June, at which several distinguished visitors were present, all of whom united with the D.G.M. in wishing "Prosperity to the Lodge of Ancient Carthage." The following day witnessed the inauguration of the Kingston Mark Lodge, No. 222, and the next the opening of the Ancient Carthage Royal Arch Chapter, a warrant for which was granted by the English governing body at the May meeting, although the Lodge to which it was attached had only then been in existence six months. We think the authorities have no cause to regret their departure from the usual course in recognising the Tunis Companions thus early. A fraternal visit to the Italian Lodge which had recently been established brought the round of Masonic duties to a close on the Thursday, and the Friday was occupied by the Tunis brethren in accompanying their visitors as far on the homeward journey as travelling arrangements would permit. Thus ended a week of Masonic work, the pleasurable memories of which must remain in the minds of all who took part in them, and there was laid a Masonic foundation which we hope will never be upset. At the September meeting of the Lodge Brother Broadley was re-elected to the post of Master, and thus he had an opportunity of continuing his exertions in the cause of Freemasonry. At his re-installation in October it was stated that the income of the Lodge for the first twelve months of its existence had been nearly £300, and when at the meeting in June of the present year, which was the last of the session, Bro. Broadley had an opportunity of addressing the brethren, he reviewed the work that had been accomplished during his two years of office. He had, he said, initiated 87 candidates, passed 72, and raised 65, while 26 foreign brethren had in the same space of time been enrolled on the list of members. He then proceeded to detail the financial position of the Lodge. It was in possession of a Hall, well furnished and replete with many comforts, they had published their bye-laws both in English and Italian, and had also issued in the latter language a translation of the bulk of the English Book of Constitutions. (This work has proved of great service to the Italian members of the Craft, and is at the present time being reproduced in the official Italian Masonic journal). Considerable progress had likewise been made by a committee appointed with a view to prepare an Arabic translation. But the point that strikes us as the most prominent is the way in which the funds of the Lodge have been dispensed. Relief has been afforded in many instances to needy brethren, and yet the members have been enabled to contribute liberally to the English Charities, while Bro. Broadley expresses a hope that a Masonic School and a Hospital will before long rise to prove that Freemasonry in Tunis is something more than a name. We shall be gratified to hear of such being established, and have no fear but that we shall be called upon to record the fact at no very distant date. For a Lodge to be able to announce, after fifteen months working, that only 15s of its funds had been spent in refreshment, is sufficient to justify a sanguine expectation that anything its members may contemplate will be carried out.

At the usual half-yearly meeting of the District Grand Lodge of Malta, held in April last, the labours of Bro. Broadley were recognised in a substantial manner; he was appointed to the position of Deputy District Grand Master. While on his visit to Malta our brother was installed as M.W.S. of the Rose of Sharon Rose Croix Chapter, and in acknowledging this compliment Bro. Broadley gave further evidence of his zeal in the cause by stating that he should endeavour to attend each of the meetings of the Chapter while it was under his rule, although—as we have before pointed out—a journey of 500 miles was entailed each time. Later on, we hear of Bro. Broadley receiving his appointment as Grand Mark Master of the Province of Tunis and Malta, and among his first acts in this new position is the warranting of the Broadley Lodge No. 248, which it is to be hoped will be the means of handing his name down to posterity. The last item that has to be chronicled in connection with this spread of Freemasonry is that recorded on another page—the consecration of the William Kingston Lodge, at Goletta, which has been formed as an adjunct to the Ancient Carthage Lodge.

Reviewing the position of the Ancient Carthage Lodge at the close of its second session, Bro. Broadley gives us particulars which prove that he had secured ample material before he undertook the work, and the present position of the various Masonic bodies which have followed the establishment of this Lodge point to the solidity of the foundation that was laid.

We trust that this outline of what may be accomplished by individual exertion will stimulate those who may lately have flagged in their labours in the cause of Freemasonry, and that they and others will bear in mind that the secret of the success that has attended the efforts of Brother Broadley and his coadjutors is traceable to the care and attention those brethren have bestowed on minor details. Few men may have such opportunities as has had Bro. Broadley, and fewer still the ability to carry out the work; but all may copy his zeal and emulate his love for what he undertakes.

"IL TEGAME," OR A MASON'S HOLIDAY.

A.—Concerning the Free Masonic Faith.

"THE sun goes round the earth," said the Inquisition, so likewise said Galileo under the tutelage of that august Institution, which would otherwise have pronounced the cabalistic word "Atheist," and then have soothed his erring ears with the well known dirge—

"Sister, let thy sorrows cease;
Erring brother, part in peace."

Certain false things are true things, certain formulæ are the only true formulæ, say the English Freemasons under similar tuition; else in a similar kind and gentle manner against all recreants will this word "Atheist" be pronounced, and with a similar object, viz.: to enforce a dogma. Nay,—tell it not in Gath,—yes, by English Freemasons has the heretics' dirge been sung—

"Erring brother, part in peace."

Thus we see that whilst one Institution lifts up its hand to strike and destroy, the other, animated by the same spirit, lifts . . . but, no matter.

"Poor thing," said my uncle Toby, pityingly, "poor thing, it was all it could."

It also shows that extremes meet, and that English Freemasonry, like ultramontanism, has no conscience clause.

Whilst, however, we know the penalty of official unbelief in Masonic dogma, we are nowhere favoured with definitions of what Masonic belief is, although practically we feel that the greater the charlatan the better the Mason.

Victor Hugo says of his good Bishop, "Poor man, he believed all he could, and the best can do no more." I have full faith, however, and firm belief in the dictum of a well-known and distinguished brother, that "So far as I can observe, Freemasons generally take their Masonic belief as they do an invitation to a good dinner, and swallow all." A paraphrase of the words of Butler—

"That a wide conscience is all one,
And signifies the same as none."

Behold then a "tabula rasa," and let us write.

It may be a loose sylogism, yet the logical inference will hold water, viz.: that English Freemasonry is the door, the adytum, the facile descensus, the knock and it shall be opened, of UNBELIEF.

B.—Concerning the Honourable Historians, and also on the Charlatans of Freemasonry.

Firstly we have to consider the authentic History which our esteemed Bro. Hughan has recently published, giving an account of all the Lodges from their commencement, about the beginning of the last century, clear, true and authentic, undertaken with a definite aim—the research of truth. There is also the work of Bro. R. F. Gould, Barrister at Law, and every Mason should possess the two kindred works of Bros. Hughan and Gould. There are one or two other historical works of value, such as Bro. Findel's, but, as a rule, all such offer evidence that any judge would indignantly order out of court, and consign the witnesses to the perjurer's cell. I have passed my professional life in sifting evidence, and in association with others engaged in the research of truth; I have seen human nature in its higher and holier, as well as in its degraded forms, but never have I seen such charlatanism, such moral degradation both in the teacher and the taught, as Free Masonic teaching, countenanced by our Masonic authorities implies.

It is not, indeed, every Freemason who is responsible for the ill, not the highest and ornamental members, who in general have little sympathy with what the learned and noble translator of Agamemnon satirically calls "old fashion Masonry." It is to the Polyphemi of the Board that we chiefly owe this degradation.

Digitized by Google

"Monstr: horrend: inform: ingens, cui lumen ademptum."

Let me recommend them, should by chance as Ulysses fall under their clutches, to leave their "conscience murdered vomit," and dreading the impending gouge, gobble him at once.

The anatomy of the "Monstrum affords an interesting demonstration in physiology," said Il professore, as he called attention to the specimen exhibited on the dissecting table. "We will just give a few touches of the scalpel, and a few minims of chloroformed curare;" at the sound of a Latin word our clerical friend roused himself in the E . . . . l chair from his slumber and dreams of Araby the blest, and uttered his usual exclamation et hoc genus omne, but which he generally pronounced in a kind of sacro-comic manner, something between a "Benedicite" and an Invocation to Bacchus. "Yes," continued "Il professore," "it is most interesting to observe the action, of this 'heart' which beats in unison with 'untruth;' trace further the current of the fluid as the ventricle contracts, and the black lethean fluid is diffused over the entire system. Regard also the other blood-carrying tube, which in the higher orders of animal life carries the living fluid to the lungs, to be vitalized by the influence of day and the breezes of heaven. "Here," continued Il professore, "the tube expands into gills—the gills of the scorpion, which engender their poison in darkness and dust."

Some one is responsible for that present disgraceful condition of English Freemasonry, which revolts every right thinking man by its jargon of ghastly oaths, blasphemy, and lies. To put down the signs of revolt, the word is passed round, "silence,"* and to enlist for the future only those recruits from whose consciences they may fear no revolt. The public, however, is getting inquiet, the names of many have been misused in behalf of that with which they have shown but little sympathy, and the time may not be far distant when that inquietude may find a voice.

In the reckless historical insertions countenanced by our oath-loving Boards certain names are presented to us, such as King Solomon, St. James, and St. John, but these persons present no critical points of identification with the King Solomon of Holy Writ, nor with the Blessed Apostles St. John and St. James.

Some antiquarians indeed identify the Masonic Solomon with one of the Old King Cole dynasty, so much toasted formerly by our City companies, and

"That 'tis a name some valiant knight
To all his challenges did write."

This probability is also increased by his evident desire to attire all his followers and henchmen in City clothing, and from the fact of this Masonic Solomon having ordered "white aprons and gloves all round."

"For that's the reason so they say
We aprons wear at the present day."

Of all other histories than those above mentioned, we can only say as the lightest sentence, "fancy dipt her pen in dew," and fancy not being the muse of history, what she wrote the muse of history on descending blotted indignantly from her records.

Some years since I myself traced out the history of the ancient Roman trade companies or crafts, (the origin, see Blackstone, of all Corporate Institutions or Lodges), and also of the initiating associations of which we may yet speak more fully. The work I speak of was entitled the "Footsteps of Masonry" (not Freemasonry), "or Masonry in relation to authentic history." It was published in the Freemason, and I believe myself correct in stating that it was translated into different languages, and reprinted in nearly all the States of the American Union. I do not hold to all the inferences I then drew, but it further pointed out the impossibility of any connection of modern Masonry with the ancient Hebrew nation.

But on arriving at the early ages of the Christian era, and seeking honestly for authentic traces which should connect the past with the present, I suddenly found myself in the condition described by the immortal Harvey, who, when he had completed his proofs of the "Circulation of the Blood," essayed to discover the mystery of generation. "Here," said he, "I found myself face to face with an impenetrable and impassable barrier." In his case there was a mystery he could not unfold, in mine there was nothing whatever to unfold.

In this difficulty I wrote a very careful letter, and placed a statement of the subject before the great French historian (and I here call the special attention of any "true" historical brethren to the fact) Guizot, a man whose intimate knowledge of the internal history of municipal and corporate institutions, together with his candid character, render him an arbitrator from whom there can be no appeal. His virtual reply was that, "History knew nothing of any such institution." The letter is at the disposition of my brethren.

C.—Concerning the History of Freemasons.

I will, therefore, now, for the information of my younger brethren, who have been so sadly deluded, give a rational sketch of the most probable history of modern Freemasonry; there is no difficulty, no mystery; it is clear, plain and trustworthy.

The name of Sir Christopher Wren has always been connected, and properly so, with Freemasonry, and if my young friends will turn to Knight's "History of London" they will find an authentic statement which has the appearance of simple truth. It is to the effect that modern Freemasonry had its origin in a prolonged joke of Sir C. Wren; that on the days when Wren visited St. Paul's professionally, himself and some of his professional friends and their associates dined together in a house near the church, and that according to the habit then coming into use they formed a club, into which by degrees they, as a sort of pleasantry, introduced formulæ of initiation, taking trade tools as symbols, such as the Masons of that time and now carried in their trade processions, and inscribe on their trade banners and blazons. From this dates the "Lodge of Antiquity."

The real author of modern Freemasonry, excellent in its principle, was he who first conceived the idea of the affiliation of the clubs or Lodges. Whether this is due to Wren, does not seem clear; Wren, however, was a man of taste and a gentleman; there certainly is no evidence that he ever countenanced degrading charlatanism.

The biographers of Wren mention the attendance of his Club of Freemasonry at the ceremony of placing the highest stone on the lantern, but no mention is made of any club or Lodge at the ceremony of the foundation, a reasonable proof that it did not then exist. Here then is all the history and mystery of Freemasonic origin in a nutshell. As to the Charlatanism it would be a different thing—

"'Twere long to tell, and sad to trace,
The steps from honour to disgrace."

In looking over the History of the Royal College of Physicians of London, I find mention of an association which gave them some trouble about the epoch of Sir C. Wren. "They brag," says the record, "the Hebrew tongue to contain the fundaments of all sciences, and the grand secrets." They often cite certain Rabbis, and quote the Little Key of King Solomon. Date 1684. It is singularly appropriate, and shows the current of belief in those days.

I do not, indeed, propose it as an authentic source; yet when erudite Cyclopædias are written to prove or disprove that Cagliostro and other rogues had, or had not a hand in making the "secrets" of Freemasonry,

"I can't help putting in my claim for praise,"

And suggesting as an addition to that illustrious list the name of ikey Solomon.

It is singular how general is the paltry Freemasonic desire to protect its antiquity, and to the disgrace of its authorities no argument has been too idle to support the claim. Assume a virtue though you have it not, is the motto, but when that false claim is supported by unlimited oaths, what are we to say of the morality? How dignified was the reply of the ennobled Napoleonic general to the herald when asked for his ancestry, "C'est moi même," replied he, "I am my own ancestor."

If we turn to old Stowe we shall find twelve old and recognised City companies, who as such had the right of electing the Lord Mayor. In reading their notices, nothing is said of any impudent claim to antiquity, for no one doubted it; their history, known to all, was stamped, signed, and sealed in their respective charters. Turn the page, and we come upon a series of unprivileged and half acknowledged companies, each claiming a coat of arms, whether registered in the Heralds' College or not, but each one vaunting its antiquity as half conscious of a bend sinister. Thus the whit-bakers claim great antiquity, as also do the tallow-chandlers; the wax-chandlers claim ancient standing, but the shoemakers only long continuance, thus making a more modest claim, as shoes, it is presumed, were not worn in the garden of Eden.

The Masons, otherwise Freemasons, with whom were associated the "marblers" claim "antiquity" like the rest, although limiting it modestly to the time of Henry IV., who chartered so many City companies.

The most ancient of all was the Farriers' Company, which claimed to have derived the name and heritage of Henri de Ferrers, the Conqueror's head farrier, and a Frenchman.

This clearly defines what was meant by "antiquity" in those days, and is moreover still so defined by the City companies; with Freemasons it has merged into the much-abused phrase, "Time immemorial," a term of gross deception.

All these lesser companies, emulating the twelve greater ones, had, or claimed to have, armorial bearings, generally taking the emblems of their crafts, such as hammers, compasses, &c. for their blazons. The carpenters had three compasses, the joiners two compasses and a terrestrial globe, a thing so much vaunted in Masonry, as if they envied their luckier brethren. The marblers, allies of the Freemasons, had a large mallet and two pedestals, whilst the Freemasons emblazoned on a fesse a pair of compasses extended, with three towers or pedestals. Practically the Freemasons retain the same armorial bearings in the Lodges, viz., the compasses and pedestals, or towers, whilst they have even converted the fesse itself into a "square." The fact of the Grand Lodge retaining the coat of arms of the old Freemason City company heraldically and practically proves its origin and identity.

All these City Companies claimed likewise to have their "Secret Mysteries," which it was forbidden to tell to others, meaning of course such secrets as mixing mortar for the masons, or the secrets of hard brazing, &c., for the founders, and so on with the rest. They paid fees or dues to the Tolsey, or Tolbooth, on being "entered as apprentices," and when made "fellow crafts" of their trade also, as it would seem, when, before setting up for themselves, they technically took up their freedom, and became masters. Whoever will look at a deed of apprenticeship of the last century will find it almost identical with, although less verbose than, our own entered apprentice form; in each there is a promise of secrecy.

When they had become Masters, or became further distinguished, they loved "good fellowship;" thus the Joiners are described as a "loving society;" the Girdlers had "good correspondence with all the world;" the Innholders "often meeting and conversing together;" the Curryers "a good community among themselves;" the "Freemasons" had "AFFABLE AND KIND MEETINGS;" the Plasterers "were affable and loving brethren."

We have, then, here the origin and original signification of most of the terms still used in Freemasonry, such as—

Antiquity, defined to be the time of Henry IV.

Mysteries were trade receipts, &c.

Fellowship meant as now, wine and wassail, and little else.

* Even little "Which is correct," hides in his little hole.

One thing further "our ancient brethren" did, viz., that in accordance with the bad, though general, habit of those days (but which modern legists and statesmen have striven so much to diminish) they swore. They swore as Apprentices, they swore as Craftsmen, they swore as Masters; and each time paid fees at the then "Grand Lodge" of the City—to which all City companies were affiliated—viz., the Tolsey.

"Our army swore terribly in Flanders," said my uncle Toby; so they did in the city in those basest of all days which our history records, viz., the early part of the last century, and unfortunately we have in some degree inherited our strange jargon of oaths from our city bodfellow sires, with this difference,—that they swore upon the gospels a Christian oath, we on the moral law the ghastly oaths of devils and of the Mafia.

What Deity, however, the G.A.O.T.U. represents it would puzzle philosophers and theologians to determine. It is most certainly a vital question, whether he can be considered in any way as the God of Revelation and of Providence.

Hence it is under this Supreme doubt that our oaths are valueless, as not being made to a god in whom any of us believe, but rather belonging to that category of gods of whom it is said there are gods many and lords many—that is gods spawned on the Darwinian principle, of which the race began with Saturn, and of which the Freemason God with his Thor club is the latest and most vigorous development.

As a believer in Revelation, I have, in common with our Israelitish brethren, no belief in any god unknown to Revelation, and as a Christian in none other than the Great Triune Deity as taught in the Christian Church, nor has in reality any other brother being a Christian. I repeat that I have no faith in the G.A.O.T.U. since if there be such a god he is unknown to Philosophy and Revelation; he may be a devil, he may be anti-Christ.

It is clear, then, that the obligation as an oath is nothing; it is like food offered to idols.

I speak not only of the Craft here, but I turn my memory to an institution claiming alliance with Freemasonry, of which I lately had question (which commenced this discussion), and to the idea of the false god, I add that of a lying priesthood, and of "THAT" in which "whatever maketh a lie shall have no part therein." Yes, a lying priesthood is the surest diagnosis of a false God.

Therefore, the god being of dubious reputation, there remains only the civil contract of our Italian and other brethren, who decline conscientiously to take oaths, as for them blasphemous and not binding on their consciences.

When last at my own Lodge I heard it remarked, but not during the time of business, "Oh, we don't think anything of these oaths, they are nothing." I dare say the speaker expressed the opinion of many others. Will my friends name any other institution, since the world began, were such principles have been confessed? Yet such is accepted English Masonry.

I know my younger brethren have not time to think out these things; their daily occupations absorb their energies and thought. It is only lately I have myself had time to think the subject through, and I offer them humbly my observations.

I know it will be said, "What of all this? we have the Bible and Testament in our Lodges."

The Mahomedan believes in the Old Testament much as we do, but that does not justify, in our eyes, his religion. The "Mormon" believes in both Old and New Testament, and even exceeds Freemasons in making his own additions to the sacred page.

"That plea, therefore, holds thee no remission."

A conscientious Israelitish brother told me, in moving terms, of the indignity shown him by causing him to swear on the New Testament, but of which he was not aware until long after.

Allow me now to offer the best practical solution. Let us resolve to get rid of these ghastly and blasphemous oaths; the rest will soon follow.

The feeling of brotherhood in the medical profession is perhaps as strong as it is in Freemasonry; yet we have no oaths, and the Royal College of Physicians would indignantly exclude the Fellow or Member who guarded a secret.

The total abolition of the ghastly oaths would be a first step to a higher, a happier—nay, a holier aim.

In my recent visit to Rome, being furnished with credentials from the Neapolitan Lodges, I had the honour of an interview with a distinguished Roman Freemason at the Via della Valle.

I had called the day previous, and finding him from home had written and left a letter explaining my object. On the following day I was so fortunate as to see him; he received me most courteously.

After the usual salutations we entered upon the subject of Masonry, the conversation may be fairly narrated as follows:—

Myself. It is with much pain, "Mio caro fratello," that I see this unfortunate schism in the Craft Masonry of Europe, and I should be happy to be able to explain your views to the English brethren, who as a body are just and honourable.

Il mio caro fratello. I feel equal regret with yourself at this schism, but the fault is not with us.

Myself. Of course you are aware of the allegation in England that you have denied God, and are Atheists, and it is asked,—How are true believers to agree and co-operate with you?

Il mio caro fratello. How can you affirm, my good brother, that I am an Atheist? I was born a Catholic, and hope to be so still; although I do not agree with all papal doctrines, such as the papal infallibility, and certain other points. I can safely affirm this of myself, and so far as I know, of all my Christian brethren. The Israelitish brethren also are certainly not Atheists.

Myself. My dear brother, you quite mistake me; such a thought never entered my mind as to accuse you yourself of such a moral crime. It is only in your collective, your official capacity, that the term Atheist is applied.

Il mio caro fratello. I quite understand, my brother, the difference you establish, especially as it implies that in your own official and collective capacity, you yourself, in common with all English Masons are a Deist. I do not feel just now called upon, or even able to enter on a theological or philosophical discussion, but it seems to me that the Existence or Being you call G.A.O.T.U. is only another name for Nature. Philosophically speaking, he is not even the equivalent of the moral God of Plato. His organisation is not so high. It is rather the Saturn from whom all things are fabled to proceed by the laws of nature. To him (if a him it can be called) there are no human attributes, there is no Providence with him, we are simply as atoms in his sight, and when we die we are as dust.

Talk as you will, such is the Bon Dieu, the Iddio for whom is demanded our allegiance and worship, that we should pray to him and should praise him.

We have great respect in Italy for liberty of conscience, and strive to impress it upon our re-organised institutions, and will, therefore, leave you to define your Masonic Godhead as you please, but such an idea of God does not meet our views, either as religious men, philosophers, or Masons. Further, such an idea of God has no hold upon our consciences, and whilst we desire to respect your belief, leave to us the same privilege. We are earnest Freemasons, and true, and avoiding idle fable believe in truth, and in truth alone.

Thus virtually terminated the interview with Il mio caro fratello. I felt towards him as a friend and brother, and had the doctrine he thus professed doomed him as an Atheist to the stake would have taken my place beside him. As the sound of his voice faded from my ear, it seemed to me that I had listened to the language of earnestness and truth, in terms and echoes differing little from the bella lingua antica, and the reasoning and eloquence of Cicero. His remarks deeply impressed me—

"And I recorded what I heard,
A lesson for mankind."

THE ORDER OF MALTA.

From the Canadian Craftsman, 15th March 1878.

BY COL. MACLEOD MOORE, GREAT PRIOR OF CANADA.

THE letters of an anonymous writer which lately appeared in the columns of the Times under the head "Pretenders," containing most unjustifiable remarks upon our late respected representative at the Great Priory of England, Bro. Richard Woolfe, in his position as Registrar of the Order of St. John in England, and the attack on the legitimacy of the Anglo-Catholic branch of the Order, having attracted the attention of members of the Great Priory of Canada, I have been requested to point out by what authority it exists, and the connection between it and the "United Orders."

I do so the more willingly, being in possession of numerous letters from our late talented Bro. Woolfe and other competent authorities on the subject; and having myself the honour to be an Honorary Associate Chevalier.

The gratuitous and vindictive attacks from time to time, of late years, by the Roman Council of the Order of Malta, upon the English Protestant section, are most unwarrantable. The English, or sixth Langue, was an original division of the Order, and had not been suppressed by English Law, since its revival on the 2nd of April 1567, but always treated as existent at Malta, and when the Government of the Order was finally removed from that Island after its conquest by the French Republic, it was deemed imperative to restore the sixth Langue to a state of activity in its own country, which was effected after the downfall of Napoleon, by the Chapter General of the French Knights assembling at Paris in 1814, under the presidency of the Prince Camille de Rohan, Grand Prior of Aquitaine, who elected a permanent commission to restore the position of the Order. This convention was confirmed by a Pontifical Bull on the 18th August 1814, and was recognised as representative by the whole Order. It is incorrect to suppose that members of the reformed religion were denied the privilege of joining the Order. History shows that such was not the case, and one of the latest acts at Malta was to admit Protestant into the Order as integral members. The Knights of the Convention at Paris were of the Roman faith, and were well aware that the revived Langue of England would be mostly composed of members of the Church of England, and they provided for it accordingly in the Articles of Convention. The present Order in England, of which the Duke of Manchester is Lord Prior, composed of members mostly belonging to the National Church, is a legitimate branch of the genuine Order, revived by the convention entered into with the Three French Langues, the Spanish and Portuguese also concurring, thus forming a majority of five out of the seven then actual divisions of the Order. The deeds of this convention, now in the Chancery of the Order, at St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell, London, are dated 11th June 1826, and 24th August 1827, and have been verified by the signature and seal of the Secretary General of the French Langues in 1841. During a period of 32 years not a syllable was said against the lawful revival of the English Order by the Roman Council, but when all hope of converting it into a Roman Catholic branch had failed, then the Roman Council which had corresponded for years with the French Langues as well as with the Order in England, having thus full opportunity to dispute the legality of the latter branch, if they had thought the action of the Order was not perfectly legal, turned round upon the English

Protestant Brethren and have repudiated the Order on all possible occasions, denying its validity, and calumniating its founders, French and English; although a letter is extant and in possession of the Secretary of the English Langue, written on the 17th August 1843, by the Head of the Roman Knights, offering an alliance if the English Order cease to admit Protestants, the difference in religious faith being the only reason assigned by them for declining recognition. But such alliance is not necessary to the validity of the English Order, or any other lawful branch. The Roman Council derives its only title through the Emperor Paul of Russia, whose election (whilst the lawful Grand Master, "Hompesch," was in life) to preside over the whole Order, by refugee knights who went to Russia after the capitulation of Malta, is well known to have been illegal, not on the ground of his religious faith, but of the informality of his election, and the Roman, or Sacred Council as they call themselves, had no existence until after 1806. All the branches of the genuine Order since the fall of Malta are, and have been independent institutions, not requiring in any country to profess obedience to the Roman Council. The English Order being lawfully revived is in the same position as the Priories of Austria, Russia, Poland, &c., but is not in connection with any foreign body, excepting that of amity with Brandenburg. That the Roman Council have established a separate Roman Catholic branch for England, in London, will account for the jealousy and bitterness shown to the existing Anglican one. The plea set up by the Roman Council that schismatics and heretics (as they designate the members of the Protestant faith) are ineligible to become members of the true Order, is purely an objection of the ultramontane advocates, and it only requires explanation to disprove the assertions willfully made to ignore the true position of the Protestant Order in England, which is one of the two branches devoted to its real purposes. During the Franco-Prussian war, many of its members did most valuable service, both at home and abroad, and their services and the stores furnished were so highly approved of, that several of them were decorated by Prussia, Bohemia, and France; amongst the number our late Bro. Woolfe received from the French War Department the decoration of the bronze cross; and in his diploma, which accompanied the cross, he was recognised as an English Knight of St. John. I may here, I think, with propriety copy an extract from one of Bro. Woolfe's letters to me, of date 12th of October 1874, in which he says:—"I do not know if all the papers relating to the Langue were placed before Sir Bernard Burke, but in one of his Knightages (1842, I think) he refers to the Order as legitimate. The Queen and her Government are well aware of the existence of the Order. We annually have Royal Permission to hold our anniversary services in the Chapel Royal Savoy. The War Office gave us permission to use the illustration of the ambulance litters from the official publication of Surgeon-General Longmore, C.B. (one of our honorary associates). We are in occasional friendly official correspondence with the Prussian Johanniter, and have had their permission to reprint publications of theirs, and they have reprinted ours. When we addressed H.R.H. the Prince of Wales on his recovery from illness, his courteous reply was given to the Prior and Brethren of the Hospitallers of St. John. Years since, when an address was laid before the Queen and Prince Albert, the Order received the same courteous recognition: this is, of course not an official public recognition, but it is a private concurrence in the existence of the Order and private admission of its claims, otherwise it would have been said that Her Majesty was not aware that an association of persons in her dominions made such claim, and that she could only reply to the address as that of a private body of gentlemen and ladies. The works we are endeavouring to carry out, are of high public importance, and in the end may have the effect of inducing a more public acknowledgment of our position. We have a very distinguished list of commoners as well as nobles." In concluding this extract, I may add, that the Order has been lately honoured and graced by H.R.H. the Princess of Wales becoming one of the Dames Chevaliers, and also the reigning Grand Duchess of Baden elected to the honorary rank.

With reference to the Masonic Order of Malta, it must be borne in mind that when the Order of the Temple was first publicly attached to the Masonic body in England, during the last century, it was combined with that of St. John,—for the purpose, it is presumed, of commemorating the amalgamation of the two chivalric orders (after the political suppression of the Templars) which continued in Scotland up to the period of the Reformation. This union of two distinct Orders led to the mistake of Masonic writers in disseminating through magazines and monitors the great historial error, that the two Orders were one and the same—hence arose the confusion of name and title —"Knights Templars of St. John of Jerusalem." For several years before the expulsion of the Sovereign Order of St. John from the Island of Malta, the Masonic combined order was in existence, and if there had been any connection between them, copies of correspondence with allusions to, or observance of statutes, would be forthcoming; but as nothing of the kind has ever been produced, and no reference at any time made to such connection in the Proceedings of Masonic bodies, it is quite evident that none existed, in fact the Order of St. John, whilst it occupied the Island of Malta, was totally unconnected with, and indeed opposed to Freemasonry. The Masonic Order of Malta being at its first introduction entirely combined with the Templar, there was no separate ritual or badge used,—Malta being only the name in latter times for the Order of St. John. This continued for some years, when a brief and simple ritual was added at the conclusion of the authorised Templar ceremony of reception, as an explanation and historical record, consequent on the establishment of the seat of government of the Order of St. John at the Island of Malta, A.D. 1530. The Cross of Malta as a separate badge was also adopted, and this continued until 1853, when both were discontinued and the Order called "Masonic Knights Templar" alone, but in 1862 the Grand Conclave of Knights Templars again revived the Malta degree, but separate and distinct from that of the Templar. the ritual was compiled principally from one, it is said, long used in Scotland, and which was introduced by me into Canada with the Templar Order in 1854. The ritual of 1862 being revised 1st December 1866, is the one now used, but it appears to me that the original simple Masonic Malta ritual is more in accordance with the origin of the degree than the present one, which has no connection or alliance with any of the branches of the old Order of St. John or Malta. In conclusion, I should say to all who seek for information about the Order,—Read the valuable and instructive history of the Knights of Malta, by Col. Whitworth Porter, Royal Engineers, who is himself a Chevalier of the English Order of St. John.

CONSECRATION OF DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE, No. 1834.

THE Consecration of this Lodge, for which a warrant has been granted under the signature of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, Grand Master of England, took place in the handsome Assembly Room at Cawte's Hotel, Southsea, on Saturday afternoon, in the presence of a large number of members of the Craft, including a strong muster of past and present Provincial Officers, W.M.'s and P.M.'s. The ceremony was impressively performed, and the P.G.M. expressed the great pleasure which he experienced in taking part in the constitution of the new Lodge, as it showed the extent to which Freemasonry was spreading in the province, and particularly in that locality. It was by no means satisfactory to found a new Lodge when there were grave doubts as to its success. In this instance, however, they need not entertain any such apprehension, but they might rest perfectly certain that under the auspices of the present Worshipful Master (Bro. Henry Cawte), who had had so much experience in Freemasonry, and others who would assist him, the Lodge would attain a very good position in the Craft. After referring to the impetus which a new Lodge often gave to Freemasonry, the P.G.M. said it was very gratifying to him to see the way in which Freemasonry was thriving. He reminded the W.M. and the brethren of the new Lodge that considerable responsibility rested upon them, and it was for them to show that they were worthy of the confidence which was placed in them, and that they were determined to make the Lodge worthy of the locality, of the province, and of the Craft. No doubt, actuated by these sentiments, they would achieve success, and that when he had the pleasure of attending the Lodge again he should find not only his anticipations realised, but exceeded. The musical portion of the ceremony was ably performed. Bro. F. Wilton presided at the harmonium, and the vocalists consisted of Bros. G. Pearman 487, G. Grant S.W. 1705, J. W. Stroud J.W. 1705, Batchelor 1705 Prov. G. Organist, and G. F. Lancaster Prov. G. Deacon and P.M. 903. An appropriate oration was delivered by the Prov. G. Chaplain (Bro. the Rev. S. Scott). The plate used in the consecration of the Lodge was lent by Bros. H. M. Emanuel and Sons. The W.M. Designate (Bro. H. Cawte) was installed by the P.G.M., who referred to the deep interest which he had for many years taken in Freemasonry. The W.M. appointed his Officers as follows:—Bros. Thomas Good S.W., George Mason J.W., S. R. Ellis Treas., W. D. Parkhouse Sec., G. F. Brown S.D., Geo. Banning J.D., J. W. Willmott Dir. of Cer., T. Larcom I.G., Trivess Steward.

A cold collation was afterwards served in the corridor adjoining the Assembly Room, the Mayor presiding, supported by the P.G.M. and the present and past Provincial Officers. On the conclusion of the repast, the Mayor gave the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts. In proposing "The R.W. the P.G.M. of Hants and the Isle of Wight (Bro. W. W. B. Beach, Constituting and Installing Officer), the V.W. the D.G.P.M. Bro. Hickman, and the Officers of the P.G. Lodge (Present and Past)," the Mayor thanked the P.G.M. for his presence at the laying of the foundation stone of the Hall and Club, thus showing his desire for the success of the undertaking. He spoke in eulogistic terms of the services rendered to Freemasonry by Bros. Hickman and Le Feuvre, and other Officers of the Grand Lodge. The P.G.M., in responding, referred to his devotion to Freemasonry, and to the gratification which he experienced in opening new Lodges, and mentioned that in the ensuing week he should be called upon to instal the Prov. G.M. Elect of Devonshire. He had been asked to attend the laying the foundation stone of a new hall and club. That was a work in which Freemasons must take a warm interest. They were in the present day speculative Freemasons, but they could not be insensible to the fact that their ancestors who laid the foundations of the Order were operative Freemasons, and as such won fame, and handed down that fame to future ages. He could not, therefore, but take the warmest interest in the work of operative Freemasonry, and he was pleased to stand by and see the Mayor perform the work he was called upon to do. It was not surprising that the directors of the new company, which would conduce to the prosperity of Portsmouth, inasmuch as it would afford accommodation for some of its inhabitants, should ask the chief magistrate to lay the foundation stone, and he had pleasure in being present to afford him the sanction which the head of the Freemasons of this Province could afford to the good work. He proposed "The Chairman of the Freemasons' Hall and Club Company (the Worshipful the Mayor of Portsmouth Bro. Alderman W. D. King, J.P.), the Directors, and Success to the Undertaking." The toast was received with great enthusiasm, and the Mayor, in reply, referred to the successful manner in which the preliminaries connected with the Company had been carried out, and predicted that the undertaking would prove remunerative to the shareholders and give an impetus to Freemasonry in the neighbourhood. The other toasts were "The W.M. Bro. Henry Cawte, P.P.G.W.), and Success to the Duke of Connaught Lodge," "The W.M.'s and Representatives of Neighbouring Lodges," "The Visitors," and "The Officers of the Lodge."—Portsmouth Times.

WHICH IS CORRECT?

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR,—Amongst the several "points" which, pending the preparation and publication of my work on "Uniformity of Masonic Ritual and Observance," I had reserved for future discussion is one relating especially to the article "Authority" which appears in your impression of last Saturday. That article has evident reference to a letter in the same number of the CHRONICLE headed, "The Unpleasant Affair at Kew Bridge," the insertion of which—forgive me for so saying—I regret that you have permitted. It is a departure from your usual carefulness to avoid giving offence, or continuing what might cause dissension, and I feel certain "A VISITOR" would better have shown his gratitude to his entertainers, and his appreciation of our Masonic teaching, by adopting "that excellent virtue" silence, than by intruding on your pages, and, as it were, making you a party to a probably only temporary difficulty in the Lodge referred to. It was his duty as a guest to have observed to its fullest extent the motto of our Order, "Audi, vide, tace," and not to have called attention to what after all had nothing to do with Lodge working.

That's it,—Lodge working, not Lodge banqueting! And this brings me to the "point" and the question, "What authority has the Master of a Lodge over his brethren after he has closed his Lodge?" In my opinion none whatever, beyond that which the courtesy and willingness of those present may extend to him in the capacity of chairman. No doubt there may be considerable diversity of opinion on this subject, and that many amongst us would not care to change the existing practice. It is worth while, therefore, to endeavour to ascertain what arguments can be adduced for and against the proposition.

"For aught that ever I could read, could ever hear by tale or history," the invariable practice of our brethren in former years was to "call off" for refreshment in the Lodge, and to "call on" for further labour, and to close the business of Freemasonry; and I know of many W.M.'s who have, as well as myself, on occasions, adopted that practice. The submission of the members of a Lodge to the authority of the Master is to my mind only required and demanded from the moment of opening the Lodge to that of closing. When the Lodge is closed and the members have dispersed, each individual member is "free to" and "free from," and can act perfectly independent of any obligation to the ruling or direction of the W.M. qua W.M. The elements which form the Lodge have resolved themselves into a private gathering of friends, equal, as Masons, the one with the other, and wherein no Masonic rank or title whatever gives precedence to individuals as a right, although it may be extended to them as a courtesy. It may be at once admitted that if this courtesy is extended, and the relative positions held in the Lodge are maintained at the subsequent entertainment, it should be continued by affording the utmost support and deference to the chairman, but that is not, I conceive, a Masonic obligation, although essentially that of a gentleman.

If therefore by the act of closing his Lodge the authority of the W.M. ceases until he shall have again re-opened it, he can have no Masonic power at the banquet table, and the gavel is no more an implement of power to the sound of which the assemblage are bound to give attention as Freemasons. But, as it is quite in the province of the W.M. to extend his period of rule during the entire day of meeting (but for that day only, unless under very exceptional circumstances), the difficulty in respect of presiding at refreshment can easily be obviated. Let him carry out in the Lodge-room all the business of the Lodge up to the final question, and then "call off" in the ordinary manner. Certain furniture, in charge of presiding officers, should be present during refreshment, and at a reasonable hour the "call on" should take place, and the Lodge be closed with the then still more appropriate response to the Tyler's appeal for "poor and distressed brethren."

By such means the authority of the W.M. would remain undisturbed and unchallenged throughout the meeting; whilst, as I have often experienced, the brethren's sense of Masonic propriety would be increased, and an elevated tone given to the proceedings, the beneficial effect of which it would be impossible to exaggerate.

Further argument as to the advisability of adopting this plan (it is no innovation) would perhaps only tend to weaken what it must be apparent to all is strong enough in itself, and I shall therefore refrain from enlarging on the subject for the present. Perhaps some of your readers may be disposed to express their opinion. But I must say that if such a mode of conducting the business (and pleasure) of his Lodge had been adopted by the W.M. of No. 780, with whom I deeply sympathise on the occasion referred to, there would have been no opportunity for the letter of "A VISITOR," which nevertheless I not only cannot excuse, but thoroughly condemn as a needless expose, and detrimental to the general good and welfare of our Order.

I shall have more to say on this subject when I again take up the thread of my correspondence, and repeat the oft-reiterated inquiry, "Which is Correct?"

Yours very truly and fraternally,

JAS. SIEVENS, P.M., P.Z.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Will you kindly allow me space for a few words in reference to "the Unpleasant Affair at Kew Bridge?"

I have read the letter from "A VISITOR," published in your issue of the 9th, and I must thank him for the compliment he has paid the Lily Lodge. Truly, as he says, our Lodge was suspended, in consequence of one of our P.M.'s calling the attention of the Board of General Purposes to an infringement of a "point of order," but of that the members generally have little to be ashamed. This matter, however, occurred some time ago. As the brother to whom the remark in question was made was a member of the Lily Lodge, I think it most unmasonic—not to say unbecoming—to bring this grievance forward, and cast the stone at him. I cannot but think that the brother who made the remark—doubtless in a moment of irritation—must deeply regret it. Moreover, I feel assured he has never visited our Lodge, or he would have seen that the members now work together in a manner not only creditable to themselves, but such as might be an example to many other Lodges. As W.M. of the Lily Lodge, I shall be proud to remember that I presided over a Lodge where the brethren did their utmost to assist me, and strove to promote the comfort and welfare of each other. I sincerely regret any unpleasantness should have occurred at the Royal Alfred Lodge, as I have frequently had much pleasure in meeting some of its members, and I trust this will not be the cause of preventing our meeting again.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

CHARLES HUBBARD,
W.M. Lily Lodge of Richmond.

BRO. S. B. WILSON AND THE GENERAL COMMITTEE OF THE R.M.I.B.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—A more disingenuous answer could scarcely have been made to a plain and simple question than that given by Bro. Moutrie in answer to Bro. R. B. Webster, at the last General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. Bro. Webster asked, "Whether it was true that the House Committee had refused to accept Sir Henry Arthur Hunt, C.B., as Arbitrator in the dispute between them and Bro. S. B. Wilson? and if it was true, what was the reason of such refusal?" Bro. Moutrie replied: "That it did not appear upon the minutes which had been read that any such proposition as that referred to had been refused." Now, it can hardly be conceived that Bro. Moutrie, being a member of the House Committee, could be ignorant of the fact that my proposition to refer the matter to Sir H. A. Hunt had been declined, as the following letter, sent by Bro. Binckes to my Solicitors, clearly shows:—

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS,

Office: 5 Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen Street, W.C.
19th July 1879.

MESSRS. BAYLIS AND PEARCE.

DEAR SIRS, re Mr. S. B. WILSON,—Yours of the 26th June was submitted to, and considered by the House Committee, at their meeting yesterday.

The Committee decline to accept Sir H. A. Hunt as referee.

I am instructed to refer you further in this matter to Mr. J. Stanley, Solicitor, 22A Austin Friars, with whom I hope to communicate personally on Monday next.

I am, Dear Sirs,

Yours faithfully,

FREDK. BINCKES, Secretary.

I am very much mistaken if the great majority of the General Committee will allow the matter to be treated in this hole and corner fashion.

I am at a loss to imagine why the House Committee are acting to me in a spirit of hostility, as I can hardly suppose that my refusal to support the penny wise and pound foolish ideas that some of the members entertain for the sustentation of the buildings and grounds of the Institution can influence them, and it must be apparent to any unprejudiced person who looks over my account against the Institution that the charges I have made are fair and reasonable, in which opinion I am supported by two eminent architects of large practice, who gave me independent valuations of the proper charges for the work that I had done, and who will both give evidence to this effect should the House Committee drive the case to trial.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours faithfully,

S. B. WILSON.

"ASSISTANCE FUND."

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I am pleased to see that the suggestions I have made are so warmly supported by you, and that you have undertaken to work with me. With such valuable assistance I have no doubt my efforts will be simplified. I am glad Bro. Jacobs and the Staffordshire brethren will join our ranks, which now increase daily, as you are aware. I should be glad if you could send "PATER" a circular. I admire his reticence, and cannot but admit he has ground for caution. I agree with him fully; it would be disastrous to allow boys and girls to grow up with the feeling they are sure to be provided for. If I thought this would be the result of my efforts I would relinquish them to-morrow. God forbid any such result. I propose assistance be given only to deserving applicants, and see no reason why scholars should not earn the privilege as a prize—the value of such prizes to be handed to them at the end of their school career. Any scholar applying for the benefits of the Assistance Fund to be denied if his conduct in the school has not been satisfactory. If such a feeling were to come from this fund, I feel sure it would emanate from bad management of the Committee. I do not think "PATER'S" fears will be verified. To save further inquiry will you please publish the enclosed prospectus.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

DICK RADCLYFFE.

P. S.—I hope next week to be able to publish a long list of names, I have already a goodly number, but prefer waiting till the list is more complete.

I should also be glad to publish the names of any brethren willing to join me in undertaking to collect £100 in two years. The names of those also willing to guarantee smaller sums in a given period will be thankfully received.

THE ROYAL MASONIC PUPILS' ASSISTANCE FUND.

The course of training followed by the Masonic Educational Charities, in common with many similar institutions in various parts of the country, is looked upon as more or less successful in proportion to the results that can be shown as emanating from the pupils themselves. It is not only necessary that a Girl or Boy should receive a good education, but it is likewise desirable that they should prove that such education has been of service to them in after life. Indeed, that it has been the means of their securing a position which without such education they could not have attained. With a view to assist in this object the committees of very many of the English Charities make it a part of their duty to interest themselves in the future of the pupils who have been educated under their care. This they do by obtaining for those whom they deem deserving situations in offices presided over or belonging to one of their number, who they are assured will act as parent or guardian to their charge, and by apprenticing or otherwise starting in life those who, being orphans or from other causes, may need more aid than is forthcoming from relatives generally. The practicability and success of such a scheme can be vouched for in numerous instances where it has been in work for years past; and were it necessary the records of some of our largest Charities would give ample evidence of the satisfaction derived from keeping an account of each scholar's proceedings in after life. It has frequently been found that a little advice, counsel or help has proved to be the starting point of success.

With regard to the Masonic Institutions, it has often been regretted that some further surveillance has not been exercised over those who have been so fortunate as to receive therein education and early training; and it is felt that without something be done to watch the future of those who leave the Schools, and, if need be, lend them a helping hand, the work of Masonic Charity is incomplete. This want may perhaps best be expressed in the words of the Right Hon. Bro. the Earl of Rosslyn, K.T., Past Grand Master of Scotland, who, as President at the Eighty-first Anniversary Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, brought the question particularly before the Craft. The Right Worshipful Brother, in proposing prosperity to the Institution, after detailing the advantages and benefits which were derived from the School, said:—

I will tell you a little fault, and I am sure I need only mention it to find it immediately corrected; and the fault that I am going to find is this—that it is not impossible that at the end of their schooling career some of these boys may leave the School homeless and in need. It may be that the good seed sown may bear fruit during their scholastic career, but it may also be that the fruit will perish for want of cultivation at a later period. It may be that having derived all the advantage that they could from their study, and from their religious training in your Institution, they may leave it to fall into evil courses and evil ways, or even to suffer penury and poverty. I would appeal to you once more, as that is the only blot I can find in your excellent Institution, to try and amend it, that the pupils may derive the full benefit of your bounty and your charity.

It is now proposed to raise a fund which shall act as an adjunct to the two Masonic Schools, and be the means of supplying the want set forth above; and for this purpose your support and aid are earnestly solicited.

It is proposed that an early date shall be fixed for a meeting of those who may express approval of the scheme, and thereat the various rules for the government and conduct of affairs shall be discussed, Committees appointed, and general arrangements made.

It is hoped that the fund when once established will grow from year to year, and that the dividends of the subscriptions—which will be invested in approved securities—may in themselves prove sufficient for the various objects aimed at.

Further particulars of the scheme will be announced as they are arranged; but in the meantime we ask you fraternally to lend your aid to the furtherance of the desired object, by making it known to your friends, offering suggestions, or in any other way you may deem desirable.

The main objects of the fund will be—

To provide situations for the pupils on their leaving the Masonic Schools.

To watch their progress and offer aid and advice where needful.

To advance small amounts to aid in the purchase of tools, outfits, and, later in life, goodwills of businesses, &c.

To assist pupils who may have gained scholarships at the Universities, or boys who may desire to enter the Army or Navy, and aid them in obtaining commissions.

And generally to watch over the future of the pupils, and help them in securing success in life.

Should you approve of the scheme, please sign and return the enclosed form, in order that further particulars may be sent you.

Communications may be addressed to either of the Secretaries of the Fund, as under,

MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR THE AGED.

A GENERAL Committee Meeting was held at Freemasons' Hall, on Wednesday last, at three o'clock, when Col. Creaton was voted to the chair. The minutes of last meeting having been read and confirmed, the death of four annuitants were reported by the Secretary. A statement of moneys payable at this date was read by Bro. Terry, and a vote authorising the chairman to sign the necessary cheques was passed. Two widows of deceased annuitants applied for the moiety of their late husband's annuities, which were granted. The petitions of four candidates (one male and three female) were examined and accepted, and the names placed on the list of candidates for next election. Present—Col. Creaton, C. G. Dilley, J. M. Case, W. Clarke, J. H. Leggatt, J. G. Stevens, J. Newton, W. Stephens, E. Bowyer, G. Penn, J. Brett, C. F. Hogard, T. Goode and Wm. Hilton.

Those who watch the progress made in after life by "our boys" will be pleased to hear that C. D. Green, who left the Masonic Boys' School in June 1878, last week passed a most successful Preliminary M.B. Examination, London University. This early success must be intensely gratifying to the friends of this young scholar.

You say a member of your Lodge has black-balled an applicant without sufficient cause for the act, and you ask me if there is not some way to remedy this great wrong done to a worthy man. I reply that you have entirely mistaken the position the applicant occupies. It is no wrong to a man, not a Mason, to refuse him admission into Masonry. No man has a right to become a Mason; the right is vested in the lodge. Were it not so, the whole theory of Freemasonry would be changed. Neither has any one member, or a majority of all the members any right in the premises. It is well known (you must know it yourself) that every member of the Lodge has unlimited power of rejection. Lay aside, then, all notion that the applicant has been unjustly dealt with. Again; your letter is written under the assumption that you know who cast the black ball, and you know the motives which prompted the act. But in fact, you do not, you can not (lawfully) designate the person. For if he acknowledges it, he does it in contravention of his pledge to observe all the lawful rules and regulations of Masonry, and these expressly forbid such declaration. While if he has not confessed it, you certainly do not know that he cast the black ball. In conclusion, accept the inevitable. Give every member of the Lodge the same right of private judgment that you claim for yourself, and whenever an application goes into the Lodge, take it as a matter of course that some brother may cast a black ball.—Rob Morris.

As to paying funeral honors to unworthy Masons, it is a hard thing to do, but often harder to refrain from doing. The trouble is that you let your unworthy brother go on and get hardened in sin, without discipline, and when he died, and was past hope of repentance, you had nothing for it but to extend the honors which were only intended for the worthy dead. It is not fair to the living to praise the dead more than he merited; and it cheapens Masonic honors to bestow them upon the drunkard, the licentious, and the law breaker of any class.—Masonic Review.

Tuesday, the 5th August, being the 100th Night of Mr. George R. Sims' Comedy, "Crutch and Toothpick" at the Royalty Theatre, Mr. Edgar Bruce invited a large number of friends to celebrate the occasion; after referring to the great success of the Comedy, and thanking all concerned for their co-operation, he made Mr. Augustus Harris a handsome presentation, which was followed by Mr. C. Groves presenting Mr. Bruce, on behalf of the Company, with a very handsome Silver Fitted Travelling Bag. Dancing was kept up until 7 a.m. and every thing passed off brilliantly.

AN ENGLISH LODGE ON THE SITE OF ANCIENT CARTHAGE.

THE town of Goletta is situated to the south-west of the most central portions of the ruins of Carthage, and about a mile and a half from the Phœnician and Roman harbours of the once famous city. The town is built on the shores of the Mediterranean, and bears precisely the same relation to the Tunisian capital as the Piræus does to Athens. Commanding as it does the outlet of the canal which unites the open sea and the salt-lake, on the western extremity of which the "white-walled" city of Tunis is placed, it has always been strongly fortified by the rulers of the Regency, and during the middle ages many a stirring conflict has occurred under its walls. These bastions and ramparts are now slowly falling into decay, and the chief danger to them arises from the firing of salutes, which invariably contributes to the destruction of these curious and time-honoured memorials of corsairs and pirates, of barbaric splendour and Christian chivalry. Louis of France landed in the vicinity of Goletta. In 1535 the united forces of Charles V. and the Knights of Malta appeared before it. We know that the latter claimed the honour of leading the attack on the seaward beach. Headed by the Chevalier Copier, with the standard of the Order in hand, they leaped into the waves, and in an hour victory was theirs. Many brave knights perished in the attack, and scarcely one escaped without a wound. The Goletta became a Spanish fortress for half a century. Again in 1640, the Knights of Malta, under the command of the Prince d'Osia, made a second descent on Goletta, now once more in the hands of the Moslem, and succeeded in burning the Tunisian fleet under the shelter of its fortifications. For another century and a half Goletta was destined to protect the corsairs of its rulers; but on the 17th of April 1816, three salvos of its even then formidable artillery announced the moral victory of Lord Exmouth, who had that morning induced the Bey to sign a treaty abolishing slavery for ever throughout his dominions, and releasing several hundred European prisoners undergoing captivity in the Regency. The bristling guns of the Admiral's fleet echoed a response, and Goletta from that day forth has merged its military associations with those of one of the most beautiful and picturesque of watering-places. Its resident population consists of about four thousand souls, almost wholly Europeans. In summer it is the royal residence, and nearly half the upper class of Tunisian society migrates thither to enjoy the cool breezes and unrivalled bathing in the blue waves of the Mediterranean. All vessels load and unload at Goletta, and an English railroad, ten miles in length, places it in almost hourly communication with Tunis.

Several of the residents in Goletta belonged to the Ancient Carthage Lodge, No. 1717 E.C., at Tunis, and when the number of its members exceeded one hundred, they determined to apply for a warrant of their own, and this with the full consent and approbation of the W.M., Officers and brethren of the former Lodge. An application was duly signed and transmitted to Bro. Kingston, the R.W. D.D.G.M. who issued a Provisional Warrant to the brethren, empowering them to work pending the receipt of the charter from Grand Lodge. The brethren received this document on the 1st June, and succeeded in obtaining the lease of the palace of one of the former governors of Goletta, which they expeditiously converted into a Masonic Hall, complete even in the most minute details, and appropriately furnished throughout. On the 21st June 1879, the first meeting of the William Kingston Lodge was held, under the presidency of W. Bro. A. M. Broadley D.D.G.M. Malta. The following P.M.'s assisted at the ceremony:—W. Bros. Funaro, Vais 33°, Sulema, Baron Castellnuovo and Morpurgo, together with the principal officers of No. 1717 E.C. and the founders of the new Lodge. The D.D.G.M. having read the warrant proceeded to instal Bro. John Edmund Lancaster Barker (Past J.W. 1717 E.C.) as W.M., according to ancient form. The W.M. then invested the following Officers:—Bros. W. Broadley (D.D.G.M) Hon. P.M. and Treasurer, Edward Thay S.W., Laurence Curletto J.W., O. Engerer Secretary, B. Padoa D. of C., A. Attard S.D., A. A. Romian J.D., and A. Ronzetti I.G. The other founders are Bros. S. Marana, A. Villareale, and L. Coppi. At the request of the W.M., the D.D.G.M. assumed the gavel, and initiated into Freemasonry Mr. Walter Vaux, Locomotive Superintendent of the Tunisian Railways Company Limited. This ceremony being concluded, W. Bro. Broadley delivered an address. He alluded to the fact that the Lodge was, by the unanimous desire of the brethren, named the William Kingston, as a slight mark of their recognition of the services rendered to English Masonry in Tunis by their deservedly popular D.G.M., Bro. Kingston. He read a letter from that brother, now in England, containing his kindly greetings to the brethren, and informing them he had already despatched the collars and jewels of the Officers as an offering to the new Lodge. The reading of Bro. Kingston's letter produced enthusiastic applause. The D.D.G.M. gave a short sketch of the classical and mediæval associations connected with the site of the Lodge, and after giving some practical advice to the members, returned the gavel to Bro. Barker, who thanked the D.D.M.G. for his remarks. He said it was useless for them to disguise the fact that they owed the existence of the William Kingston to the zeal and energy of Bro. Broadley, who was now residing amongst them, and in whom Bro. Kingston had so active and untiring a Deputy. He would try to do his duty, and he considered it as his best recommendation that he had served for a year under the D.D.G.M. as J.W. of 1717 E.C. He sincerely thanked the brethren for the honour they had done him. W. Bro. Funaro, W.M. of the Italian Lodge Risorgimento, addressed the brethren, and offered the congratulations of the Italian Masons over whom he presided. Bro. Professor Vais (33° Italy) made an elaborate speech on the duties of a Freemason, and ended by paying to the D.D.G.M. a very high compliment, in the name of Italian Masonry. Bro. Professor Souiller (1717 E.C.) having tendered the congratulations of his Lodge, and the charitable collection having been made, the Lodge was closed and adjourned. The work was followed by an elaborate banquet, at which the usual Masonic and Loyal toasts were enthusiastically honoured. Since this date the Lodge has held weekly meetings, both for current business and instruction. On the 3rd July the M.W.G.M. was pleased to grant a Warrant for the Constitution of the William Kingston Lodge, No. 1835, to meet at the Goletta, in the Regency of Tunis, and the Provisional Warrant was forthwith surrendered. The new Lodge now numbers twenty-two members, and the rulers of the Craft in Malta have reason to hope that this last interesting addition to the strength of the District Grand Lodge will prove a great and lasting success.

MARK MASONRY IN MALTA.

Broadley Lodge, No. 248.—This Lodge—which has been recently founded by a number of influential and well-known Mark Masters in this island—held its first meeting on Tuesday, 29th July, at the Masonic Hall, No. 27 Strada Stretta, La Valletta; Bro. C. E. Coffey W.M.—who had been previously installed at a meeting of the Keystone Mark Lodge, under a Provisional Warrant from Bro. A. M. Broadley, P.G.M.M. of the Province of Tunis and Malta—in the chair. After the Warrant of Constitution had been read by the Secretary, a ballot was taken for two joining members and six candidates for advancement, which proved unanimous. The joining members were then admitted, and five of the six candidates being present, were, after due preparation, advanced to the rank of Mark Masters. Lodge having been closed, the brethren adjourned to the refreshment room. After the usual Masonic toasts had been given, "The Success and Prosperity of the new Lodge" was given, and received with enthusiasm. The health of the W.M. and Officers was afterwards proposed, and the joining members congratulated them warmly on the excellent manner in which the ceremony of advancement had been carried out.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF MARK MASTER MASONS OF DEVONSHIRE.

THE annual meeting was held on Tuesday at the Huyshe Masonic Temple, Plymouth. The proceedings commenced by the meeting of the Committee of General Purposes at two p.m. Col. J. Tanner Davy R.W. P.G. The Secretary reported that all the Lodges in the Province, except one, had made the usual returns.

The Treasurer reported that all the Lodges, except one, had paid their contributions, and that all the fees of honour had been paid. He had a satisfactory balance—£44 11s 10d.

The report of the Board of General Purposes having then been read,—which contained the recommendation that forty guineas should be given to the Devon Education Fund,—Bro. Charles Godtschalk rose to ask if it was the intention of the P.G. Master to put that recommendation to the Prov. Grand Lodge and take their opinion upon it, as in that case he intended to move an amendment.

Bro. J. B. Gover hereupon formally moved forty guineas be voted to the Devon Educational Fund.

Bro. Charles Godtschalk, rising to move the amendment, said it was well known that he had taken a deep and sincere interest in founding the Devon Educational Fund, and having well thought out its best interests, had every wish to see it successful in the future. One of the great interests of this local fund was, that it should be self-supporting; in this sense self-supporting,—that the annual subscriptions of individual brethren of 5s, 10s and guineas throughout the Province would produce ample funds for the surplus orphans of the Province. By the word surplus was meant those orphans who could never hope to be elected into the great National Masonic Charities, the Boys' and Girls' Schools. Another interest of this local fund was, that it should never interfere or clash with the interests of those great Charities. Neither should this local fund compete for monies from the governing bodies of Masons in the province—by governing bodies in the province he meant Prov. Grand Lodge,—no matter whether Craft, Arch, or Mark. The monies from these bodies naturally belonged to the great Charities to which we, as a province, stand deeply indebted. He saw many brethren around him who were present when the Devon fund was established early this year; it was then clearly understood, and that by speaker after speaker, that the real element of success for this local fund would be its power of self-support by the individual subscriptions of brethren; also that Provincial Grand Lodge should not be appealed to for funds that should go in another direction. And what do we find? Why, the very first Provincial Grand Lodge held after this local fund is founded two or three brethren coming forward to ask—for what? not a few pounds, but every penny possessed by the Prov. Grand Lodge for this local fund, which are the earnings of two years of the Mark degree of the Province. The Prov. Grand Lodge having voted nothing in 1878, but keeping all in hand, now adds to it the income of 1879, and endeavours to vote all away to a local fund that at least in a great measure should be self-supporting, and to the detriment of the great Charities to which the Province is deeply indebted. He therefore said, if this custom was to be followed up, he, as their representative at the great Charities warned them that their power of electing candidates at the great Charities would be weakened, and if they decided to keep their money at home, so must they keep their poor with it. Trusting the brethren would see, not alone the justice of his remarks, but also the policy of them, he would move the following amendment:—

"That the forty guineas recommended by the Board of General Purposes to be voted to the Devon Educational Fund be reduced to twenty guineas, that sum giving the qualification of a Vice Patron, with 25 votes at each election. The same be presented as a mark of respect and esteem to the Provincial Grand Mark Master, Colonel Tanner Davy."

The amendment of Bro. Godtschalk being seconded by Bro. A. R. Lethbridge P.M. P.P.G.M.O. No. 48, it was put to the Provincial Grand Lodge and lost, the numbers being 21 for, and 27 against.

Bros. T. H. Bayley, C. Godtschalk, R. Loos, and S. Jew were elected the additional members of the Board of General Purposes. Bro. J. Ingle was unanimously elected the Treasurer.

The following brethren were then appointed and invested as the Officers for the ensuing year:—Rev. P. H. Newnham D.P.G.M., Admiral F. H. H. Glasse 66 S.G.W., Rickard 9 J.G.W., John James 50 M.O., George Jackson 35 S.O., Henry Cole 100 J.O., Rev. G. Warner 215 Chaplain, John Ingle 215 Treasurer, Henry G. Beachey 215 Registrar, Vincent Bird 66 Secretary, J. E. Gallifford 9 S.D., William Harris 215 J.D., Henry Miller 91 Sup. Works, John Horswill 15 D.C., F. Littleton 48 A.D.C., John Allen 91 S.B., Samuel D. Nicholls 23 S.B., John D. Barker 50 O., H. R. Langmead 16 P., J. C. Lewarne 76 S.B., Richards 23, George Mitchell 50 Stewards, James Gidley T. The dinner was held at Bro. Walters' Farley Hotel. About forty were present. The health of Bro. Colonel Tanner Davy was received with enthusiasm. In reply, the R.W. Master expressed the pleasure he had always experienced in presiding over the large and important province of Devon, and his gratification that the Order was in a flourishing condition. Bro. Admiral Glasse responded for the P.G. Officers in his usual happy manner.

To the toast of Prosperity to the Fortitude Mark Lodge, No. 66, under whose banner the Provincial Grand Mark Lodge was held, Br. Chas. Godtschalk P.M. P.G.M.O. responded. As Past Master of the Lodge, for his colleagues and himself, he tendered his sincere thanks, adding the honour was to the Lodge, in its being in a position to entertain the Provincial Grand Mark Lodge. Alluding to the business that had taken place that day—he was fully convinced that the amendment proposed by him was for the future welfare of the Devon Educational Fund. He now acquiesced in the result, and with all his heart trusted it would benefit those interested.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are the proper medicine for people whose faculties are jaded, and whose energies are exhausted by excessive heat. A few doses of these pills always prove a simple, safe, and cooling treatment for disordered stomach and liver complaints, a longer course will set right every organ when digestion is impaired, strengthen every structure whose tone is diminished, and regenerate that blood whose purity is tainted. Giddiness, Headache, Nausea, Flatulency, and all other dyspeptic symptoms yield with surprising certainty and celerity to these corrective pills, which lay siege to the seat of those distressing sensations, and carry off, without any pain or other disagreeable drawback, those peccant matters which are disordering the entire human machine.

THE MISSION OF FREEMASONRY.

From "the Masonic Review."

THE mission of Freemasonry is so slightly understood by so many members of the Craft, that we venture, even by appearing presumptuous, to give our views relative to the same. It appears to us that there are thousands of young men, who really ally themselves with the Fraternity, not probably from mercenary motives, but still with very crude ideas of the actual practical mission of Freemasonry. Numbers we repeat have passed our portals, and are daily doing so, who fancy that the social characteristics of the Order are its chief ornaments, and that a parrot-like knowledge of ritual is the acme of Masonic skill. We propose to show that it is not, and that although our Society has spread its branches into every quarter of the habitable globe, still it has not by any means accomplished its true mission.

We take it for granted that Freemasonry is the offspring of those ancient mysteries that were objects of interest in the days of Plato and Socrates; we are inclined to believe that it is more immediately connected with those gangs of workmen, who year after year, and decade after decade, and century after century, toiled at those mighty castles and gigantic edifices that are to be found, in some instances, still standing in all their antiqu grandeur, and in others, still frowning down upon the visitor in huge masses of ruin throughout England and Continental Europe. We repeat, we believe we are the direct descendants of these men, but after our society was transformed in 1717 from a purely operative into a purely speculative institution then the true mission of the Fraternity commenced dimly to dawn upon minds of its members. At first, doubtless its convivial features were its chief attraction amongst a class of men who gloried in strong port and stronger brandy; but with the march of civilization and the gradual development of a purer atmosphere a change took place, and from a convivial club the Lodge became the home of those who sought to do their duty to God and man. Then the true mission of Freemasonry commenced, although even now it is barely understood and will doubtless not be thoroughly developed for many years to come—we fear not within the present century.

Our theory is that although our code of moral ethics is excellent, and our teachings as explained by our mystic symbolism as nearly perfect as any thing human can be, that still we fail in our mission, since we do not render practical that which we so glibly theorize upon in the Lodge-room. It is very easy to talk charity, especially when the phraseology is the same, night after night; but it is a very different thing to go forth and practise it. What a mummery a Lodge teaching the neophyte that charity is one of the principal objects of the Institution yet spending its funds in banquets et hoc omne genus! What a screaming farce it becomes when Grand Lodges give away about ten cents per head, more likely five, to impoverished widows and orphans of their deceased brethren, and pay away thousands of dollars for per diem expenses and Grand Officials' salaries! Still such is the case, and we defy any brother to deny it. The plain unvarnished fact stands forth that the Masonic mind of the day is carried away with the pomp and glitter of Knights Templarism, the gorgeous and imposing ceremonials of the Ancient and Accepted Rite, and a general love and eager desire for degreeism. This we take it, is not the true mission of Freemasonry.

We have recently read, we will not say with disgust, but with a feeling closely akin to it, many of the addresses of Grand Masters, Grand High Priests, and Grand Commanders, all after very properly giving due thanks to the Great I Am for the blessings of the past year, branch off into platitudes as to the greatness and beauty of our Institution. All true enough, but, in the name of Freemasonry, is that the mission of the Craft? Our brethren point with proper pride to the thousands they sent to the South, when grim death stalked through her sunny fields, and robbed us of some of the best and noblest of the Sons of Light; they allude also to the Fires of Chicago and St. John. True, in these cases, and in hundreds of others, Freemasonry has amply fulfilled her mission; but we think her mission lies nearer home; of what class of men should the Fraternity be composed? Is the scoffer at religion a fit man to become a participant in our ceremonies? Is the profane and obscene libertine a proper person to enter our portals? Is the habitual drunkard such an one as the Sons of Light should associate with? In answer to all these questions—"No." Yet what is the true state of the case? In our very midst, we have many revilers at religion; profane and obscene libertines, and habitual drunkards—before the mission of Freemasonry can be accomplished, these rotten limbs of the Giant Oak must be lopped unsparingly off, then the glorious old tree having been properly pruned, will have a fresh lease of life and shoot forth branches green with the freshness of spring and the sweet-smelling flowers of May. The mission of Freemasonry, then, can only be accomplished by first driving from our midst those who are untrue to those principles which we inculcate, and once having accomplished that, we must set to work to guard our portals with a tenfold zealous care. We must not permit our Lodge-rooms to become mere convivial gatherings, or places for ritualistic dramas, but rather let them be the home of the Craftsman, where, after the due observance of our ancient ceremonies, we would have our brethren discuss not only the scientific and philosophic features of our Institution, but also the practical work to be accomplished. Hundreds of Lodges on this Continent do not give anything away in charity for months at a time, and there are few Lodges that give anything worthy of the name. We number about six hundred thousand affiliated members on this Continent; surely we could afford six hundred thousand dollars per annum in aid of our widows, our orphans, our sick and our dying. We receive hundreds of thousands of dollars per annum for degrees, could we not devote one-tenth, yea, one-fourth to worthy objects of charity? The writer in a fund of two hundred thousand dollars as a nucleus for and orphans of Templars, then the Soldiers of the Cross example to their Masonic brethren, which would do much the mission of Freemasonry.

But the mission of Freemasonry is not all dollars though we tell you, brethren, we want to see your purse with a more liberal hand. There are men now in our no State knows it better than Ohio, who are in the sear leaf of old age, and who have fought our battles well, permitted to sink to the grave in poverty and distr masonry, to perform her mission properly, should preven to return to the point: we repeat the mission of Freema all dollars and cents; we want more kindly deeds, mor actions, more brotherly love. We desire to see bre greater confidence in each other. We wish to see a hi tone inculcated, a greater reverence for the Deity exhib accomplish such we must practise the cardinal virtues, course of life prove to the world that the mission of Fre a living, practical thing, humanised by the efforts of man a by the breath of God.

We maintain, therefore, that to fulfil the Mission of F is to practise that we teach; to make our lessons practi emplify by our lives, our belief in the wisdom of the or of the Creator, the beauty of His holiness, and the stre majesty and glory, and in order to do that, we must those in distress by our gold and our silver, but we must houses, we must read to them, we must talk to them cheer and aid them by kindly advice. We must snatch ones from "the path that leadeth to destruction." We the drunkard by the hand, and save him, at every cost, a price; we must waylay the erring sister, and restore home, we must go forth to comfort and to save. We must world that the mission of Freemasonry is a great, a glor noble one, worthy the attention of all good and philanth who believe in the honour of man, the purity of woma goodness of God.

INSTALLATION MEETING OF THE LEWIS CHAPTER, No. 1185.

THE meeting for Installation of Principals of this successful Chapter was held on Saturday, the 9th inst., at the Kings Arms Hotel, Wood Green. Considering that the numerical strength of this Chapter is not large, there was a fair attendance of Companions. The Chapter was opened in due form by the M.E.Z. Comp. A. Durrant, and after observance of preliminaries, Comp. E. Garrod P.Z. 507 proceeded to instal the Principals for the ensuing twelve months:—Comp. G. Newman M.E.Z., J. W. Berrie H., and E. B. Grabham J.; Comp. H. Thompson was appointed S.N., G. J. Row P.Z. S.E., A. Durrant I.P.Z. Treasurer, Crowther P.S., Wm. Sayer 1st Assistant, Bone (who was unavoidably absent) named as 2nd Assistant, and T. C. Speight Janitor. After routine business, Chapter was closed, and the Companions partook of a capital banquet. There were several Visitors, among whom we may notice Comps. H. G. Buss P.G.S.B., C. R. Cutmore 766, H. Garrod P.Z. 507, W. Worrell P.Z. 766, W. W. Morgan 141, Seymour Smith 1269, F. G. Barns 766. After ample justice had been done the good things supplied by Bro. Greenslade, grace was sung, by Madame Worrell, Miss Marion Burton, and Companion Seymour Smith. Comp. Newman is well known to most of our readers, and on this occasion he presided with his wonted geniality. The toasts were introduced with a brevity that all agreed was commendable, as a capital programme was before the guests, and the well-known ability of those engaged rendered the wish that it should be carried out without curtailment very desirable. With the toast of the Pro G.Z., the Grand H., the Grand J., and the Officers of Grand Chapter, the president coupled the name of Comp. Buss, of whom he spoke in highly eulogistic terms. All present regretted to hear of the illness of Comp. John Hervey. Comp. Buss, in reply, said he felt deeply sensible of the honour always conferred upon the Grand Officers at these assemblies. For himself, he especially desired to thank the M.E.Z. and Companions. He trusted the present happy feeling that existed in the Chapter would continue. He referred to the great increase that was being made in the number of Lodges and Chapters. He urged all, as far as possible, to steer clear of the acerbities that arose more or less in all societies, and was much pleased to bear witness to the happy feeling that pervaded the Chapter. Bro. Buss then referred to the illness of Comp. Hervey, and thanked all for the kind sympathy they had expressed. The next toast Comp. Newman offered for the acceptance of those present was the health of the I.P.Z. Comp. A. Durrant, who he stated was exalted in the William Preston Chapter. He spoke of the energy displayed by Comp. Durrant in all matters pertaining both to Craft and Royal Arch Masonry; he was assured he had the best wishes of all assembled round that board, and trusted he might continue to hold the post of Treasurer to the Chapter for many years. Comp. Durrant, in replying, remarked he scarcely knew what he had done to merit the kind things that had been said of him. It was a well recognised fact that all who were appointed to office in the Lewis Chapter must be able competently to fulfil their duties, consequently all who aspired to office felt this an incentive to exert themselves. He had received much advice and instruction from Comp. Newman, and he was much indebted for the consideration the Companions one and all had shown him. He thanked them sincerely for the jewel they had presented him, and trusted his successor might receive the same consideration. After a song by Miss Burton, Comp. Durrant proposed the health of the M.E.Z. All knew the great services he had rendered to the Chapter—services to which its success was mainly due. Comp. Newman was a competent instructor, and had admirably carried out the duties he had undertaken. Comp. Newman briefly replied, assuring all no effort on his part should be wanting to promote their welfare and comfort. To the toast of the Visitors, which was next given, each of those present briefly replied, and then the M.E.Z. proposed the health of the H. and J. Comp. Berrie remarked it was the hope of reward that sweetened labour, and from the time of his entrance to the Lewis Lodge he had been amply rewarded, inasmuch as he had been placed in such a position as warranted the belief that he might, in course of time, attain the summit of his ambition. Comp. Grabham also acknowledged the compliment. The remaining toasts comprised the health of the Scribe E. and the Officers, and replies were made by Comps. Rowe, Thompson, Crowther, Sayer, &c. The summons was then given for the Janitor, who closed the proceedings. The singing of Madame Worrell and Miss Burton was greatly applauded, while the versatile Seymour Smith was as amusing as ever. The musical arrangements of the evening were conducted by Comp. Worrell, and gave unqualified satisfaction. We append the programme:—

National Anthem—"God Save the Queen," Dr. John Bull.
Song—"The worker," Gounod—Madame Worrell.
Musical Sketch—"The Brown's Dinner Party"—Comp. Seymour Smith.
Song—"The Better Land," Cowen—Miss Marion Burton.
Trio—"The Troubadour," G. A. Macfarren—Madame Worrell, Miss Burton and Comp. S. Smith.
Song—"The maiden's rose," Hatton—Madame Worrell.
Humorous Song—"Bill Craven"—Comp. Seymour Smith.
Song—"The old, old story," Blumenthal—Miss Marion Burton.
Duet—"Old love," Marriott—Madame Worrell and Miss Burton.

ASHLARS.

IN the vast quarries of Jerusalem situated near the Damascus gate—where the Masons of King Solomon wrought, and extracted the massive stones, some of them cyclopean in size, which went into the composition of the Temple and its surrounding walls, there still exist Ashlars beyond number. So every mountain and vale in the world, where the freestone lies, is rich in material that yields in the Craftsman's hands, finished forms of architectural beauty. Embellished in the solid mass, and hidden under the earth, it is often long undiscovered. When taken in its rude and natural state from the quarry, it is the Rough Ashlar, not yet having received the impress of man's genius—hewn, but as yet unmarked, unsquared, and unnumbered. The visitor to the Holy City may, to-day, see just such stones in the great Solomonic quarries, stones half-quarried, with the clippings around them—Rough Ashlars, not yet ready for the builder's use. Three thousand years have elapsed since the Masons of Jerusalem laboured there, as we learn from both the teachings of Masonic tradition and the facts of history. The Temple was completed, and no further Ashlars were needed, but all that were, had been wrought and prepared in those vast quarries before being brought to the Temple, so that the sound of axe, hammer or any tool of iron, was not heard among the workmen. The stones were all perfect Ashlars, ready to be adjusted in their places by the skill of the Fellow-crafts.

A perfect Ashlar is a part of the furniture of every Lodge. This Ashlar is a stone that will bear the test of the plumb, the level and the square, a typical stone, full of meaning to the Craftsman. Well did Shakespeare say, there are

> "Tongues in trees, books in the rambling brooks, > Sermons in stones, and good in everything."

Neither is such a sermon a dry discourse; but rather a pithy, earnest and eloquent appeal, ringing, as the stone itself does under the hammer, and emitting the voice of truth—the truth of Freemasonry.

The word Ashlar is itself an ancient one, as ancient in our historical records as the word Freemasonry itself. The earliest present mention of it, in an authentic instrument, is in an Indenture, dated 1389, cited by Poole, in his Ecclesiastical Architecture of England. Ever since then, we know positively, and long before that, we know traditionally, the Craft has been familiar with the use and symbolism of the Ashlar.

An able and brilliant Mason, Bro. Giles F. Yates, once said: "Like the Christians, Freemasons are stones of darkness, dug out of the quarry of mankind, wrought and polished, compact among themselves, fitly joined together, without jar or division, upon the foundation of the Temple, in which they are built up as lively stones, a spiritual house, members of an invisible association, an invisible Lodge." This is suggestive truth. Freemasons are like Christians in that they are all professors; but whether they practise what they profess, their lives must demonstrate. Every Freemason is, or should be a learner. When he joins the Lodge, and for long afterward, he is, in truth, in statu pupillari. He has very much to learn.

He is a student of the mystery of Freemasonry. By too many Masons this mystery is never understood. They, individually, are always, in fact, Rough Ashlars. They are shells without a kernel; ships sailing through the world in ballast; dummies in the library, lettered without, but unlettered within; decoy ducks floating on the sea of life, wooden all through! Such men require to be shaped for the Great Builder's use, to be hewn, marked, squared and numbered, without which they will never find a place in the great Temple not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

What a shame it is for any Freemason to remain for ever a Rough Ashlar! Think of what he in essence is—the masterpiece of Creation, the image of the Great Architect of the Universe, and animated with His breath! For such an one to remain unpolished, undressed by the gavel, and rejected by the unanimous verdict of the plumb, the level and the square, is to be degraded to the level of material things, to be as a part of a mountain of the earth—buried underground, unquarried, or at best a rough and ragged Ashlar.

Satisfactory progress is reported as following the efforts of those brethren who have established the Charities Augmentation Society in connection with this Lodge of Instruction, which offers some special advantages, of which the Hon. Secretary will furnish particulars to any member of the Craft who may desire it. The members of this Lodge of Instruction request the attendance of brethren. The proceedings commence every Thursday evening at eight o'clock. Bro. F. Brasted will preside at the next meeting.

PORTSMOUTH MASONIC HALL AND CLUB.

IN our last week's issue appeared the first report of the directors of "The Borough of Portsmouth Freemasons' Hall and Club Company," of which the Mayor (W. D. King Esq.) is chairman, Mr. Councillor G. T. Cunningham vice-chairman, and Mr. E. S. Main Secretary. The shareholders held an extraordinary meeting at the offices of the Portsea Island Gas Company, Commercial-road, Landport, on Saturday morning, and after the business had been transacted an adjournment was made to the eligible site between the Gas Offices and the Theatre Royal, on which the Freemasons' Hall and Club is to be erected. The directors and a number of shareholders and other Freemasons, with several ladies, were present, and the Provincial Grand Lodge was represented by the Right Worshipful the Prov. G.M. Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P., the V.W. Deputy Prov. G.M. Bro. W. Hickman, the Prov. G. Secretary Bro. J. E. Le Feuvre, &c. The building will be in the plain Italian style of architecture, and the front, which will have a gable, with terra cotta terminals on either side, is to be constructed of red bricks, with Bath and Portland stone dressings with ornamental tile panels. On the upper floor there will be a bay window projecting on an ornamental corbel, and, in a circular panel immediately over the centre plate will be engraved a Masonic emblem. The building will have a frontage of 20ft., with a depth of 63ft., and its height to the extreme point of the gable will be 54ft. The ground floor is to be let off as offices, and the room on the first floor, 30ft. 6in. long by 18 feet wide, will be appropriated to the Chamber of Commerce; while the upper story will have a Masonic club-room of equal dimensions, together with an ante-room 22ft. by 14ft. At the rear of the building are the Roman Catholic schools, which, having been included in the purchase, will be converted into a banqueting room and a Lodge room, with the requisite ante-rooms. The foundation stone was of Portland stone, and bore the following inscription:—"This foundation stone was laid by his Worship the Mayor of Portsmouth (Mr. Alderman W. D. King, J.P.), Chairman of the Company, August 9, 1879. E. J. Smith, architect; W. D. Lewis, contractor." The trowel used for the occasion was of silver, elaborately chased, with an ornamental ivory handle, and had inscribed upon it, "Borough of Portsmouth Freemasons' Hall and Club Company. Presented to his Worship the Mayor (Mr. Alderman W. D. King, J.P.), on his laying the foundation stone of the Club House, Commercial-road. W. D. Lewis, contractor; Emanuel J. Smith, architect. August 9th, 1879." The trowel was supplied by Bro. Abrahams, silversmith and jeweller, of High-street. The Mayor, in declaring the stone well and truly laid, alluded with satisfaction to the presence of the Right Worshipful Prov. Grand Master, and described the negociations which had led to the purchase of the site. A few energetic Masons had recognised the necessity of establishing what had long been wanted in the borough, a central meeting place for the purpose of carrying out the principles of Masonry. They at once set to work, and the brethren generally cordially co-operated with them, with the result that they would shortly have a decent building, in which pleasure and instruction might be advantageously blended. If they were assembled that day merely as speculative Masons, his position could have been more fitly occupied by Mr. Beach; but they were there as operative Masons, and he could not, therefore, refuse to take part in the erection of a building which would be a credit to the borough, and reflect honour upon its designer and the contractor. (Hear, hear.) From his knowledge of the directors he had very little doubt that a few months hence they would again meet to celebrate the opening of the club, and they would then readily accord to one and all who had been associated with the erection of the building that meed of praise to which they were fairly entitled. (Hear, hear.) It was in contemplation to open another Masonic Lodge, and those outside the Craft would be glad to learn that Masonry was fast spreading in the borough, so that its principles were taking a firm hold upon those who came together to help each other not only while they were in health but, what was far more material, when they were in sickness. He was much obliged to the R.W. Prov. G.M. for his presence, and hoped to have the pleasure of again seeing him at no distant day to celebrate the opening of that building and the consecration of an appropriate Lodge room.

The statement of the Provincial Grand Treasurer Bro. M. E. Frost showed a very satisfactory balance, and having been adopted, Bro. Frost was unanimously re-elected Treasurer for the year ensuing. A neat little volume for the Pocket has just been published by an Ex-Inspector of Public Schools; all the most useful verbs as used in ordinary conversation are therein embodied, alphabetically arranged on an entirely new plan, and printed in large type in French and English, a most rapid system, indispensible to teachers and other persons teaching themselves the language. GRAND LODGE OF IOWA.

THE Thirty-Sixth Annual Communication of this Grand Lodge was held at Dubuque on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, the 3rd, 4th, and 5th of June last, under the presidency of Bro. Jeremiah W. Wilson the M.W. Grand Master. Of the 394 Lodges working under this jurisdiction two hundred and eighty-two were represented during the session. The Grand Lodge was opened in the usual manner; Bro. Past G.M. Guibert extending on behalf of the Masons of Dubuque cordial greeting and welcome to the members of Grand Lodge. In doing so he reviewed in extenso the incidents of the sessions of 1841 and 1861, which were also held in Dubuque, and in an interesting and instructive historical sketch contrasted them with the present. He concluded by calling upon the brethren to reflect for a moment on what he deemed some momentous questions;—Whether the Masonic Craft is not governed too much by the supreme legislature; and whether it is not possible that Grand Lodges are slowly arrogating to themselves more power than the few ancient landmarks contemplated the subordinate Lodges should bestow on them. He also referred to the absence in their jurisdiction of an Orphans' Home, pointing out the remedy for this omission was a far higher and holier claim upon the Grand Lodge representatives than those involved in a scramble for Grand Lodge Offices, the prompt collection of mileage dues, or long-drawn out debates upon technicalities. The Grand Master having tendered thanks for the reception that had been accorded the members of Grand Lodge, proceeded to open Grand Lodge in ample form. After some routine business had been transacted, the report of the Committee on Jurisprudence on a question as to whether a Grand Lodge Officer forfeited his title if he ceased to be a member of any Lodge in the jurisdiction was presented. The Committee consider that if a brother remains non-affiliated, or places his membership in another jurisdiction, his title is forfeited. The Grand Master then read the address he had prepared on the general condition of Freemasonry in the district under his rule, and of such matters abroad as he deemed would be of interest to Iowa Masons. In the course of this address the Grand Master referred to various ceremonies which had been performed by the brethren during the past twelve months—among others, the dedication of a Masonic Hall for Antiquity Lodge at Moravia, and the laying of the foundation stone of a public school-house at Wapello. Numerous applications for dispensations to confer degrees at irregular times had reached the Grand Master, but adhering to the rule of his predecessors, he had granted the permission in very few instances, usually deeming the reasons given for such irregularities insufficient. One point of this subject, we think, might with great benefit be generally adopted by the English Craft. The G.M. stated that "in no case had he given permission for a candidate to be advanced until he was thoroughly posted in the lectures in the preceding degrees, and had passed an examination in open Lodge." This is a rule we are taught to believe applies equally in England as in America, but how often do we find this rule is disregarded in English Lodges?

The various accounts of the Grand Lodge for the year were then presented and referred to the Committee on Finance. From these accounts we learn that the sum of dols. 1,300 had been spent, and dols. 1,278·72 remained in hand in connection with the Yellow Fever Fund, the balance being the amount unappropriated at the time the Grand Master was informed that no further funds were necessary to alleviate the sufferings caused by this awful scourge. The "dues" received for the year 1877-8 amounted to dols. 10,056·25, which with a balance of dols. 3,942·45, and sundry receipts made a total of dols. 14,949·78. Of which sum all but dols. 4,147·78 had been disbursed in liquidating the necessary expenses of Grand Lodge. The Bond account showed in favour of Grand Lodge to the extent of dols. 20,286·86, and there is a balance of the Charity Fund of dols. 259·50.

The report of the Grand Secretary was the next item presented for the attention of the brethren. This report of our energetic Brother T. S. Parvin appears to contain a reference to every item of interest that has come officially under his notice during the year. It begins by a reference to the publication of the "Proceedings of 1878," which Bro. Parvin states has been universally commended, both as a literary work and a worthy exponent of printing skill. The fact of the cost being greater than was the case in other States he attributes to the much larger extent of the information that was given by the Iowa brethren, as compared with that of their neighbours. We regret that Brother Parvin should deem it necessary at the end of his report to say a few words in his own defence. We know of no Grand Secretary who more conscientiously and zealously carries out his work, and can quite agree with him in classing his detractors as prejudiced or misinformed. We feel assured that the majority of the brethren of the State of Iowa will show by their conduct to him that they are satisfied at the way in which he has performed his duties during the past thirty-four years, and we hope that in the future he will not have occasion to insert personal explanations, which however undesirable, at times are none the less necessary.

The report of Bro. Parvin, as Librarian, follows. In this the writer refers to his first report, issued one-third of a century since, and mentions the many warm encouragements and true friendships which have cheered him on his way since that time; he also states that many discouragements have beset his path, and remarks that he has sometimes felt as though love's labour would be lost. Still he has persevered, and we hope will continue to do so for many years to come. He details the various editions of the catalogue that have been issued under his rule, and considers that they ought to satisfy the most sceptical that the Grand Lodge of Iowa had not laboured in vain nor spent its money for nought.

The Grand Master having proceeded to the appointment of several standing Committees, as also Bro. C. E. Walker as Grand Marshal pro tem, the introductory report on Finance was submitted. The brethren appointed on this Committee report favourably of the various offices of Grand Lodge, which it was their duty to visit, expressing their satisfaction at the way the work connected with the position of Grand Secretary was carried out; they were pleased to bear testimony to the zeal and efficiency of one of the hardest worked and most faithful of the Grand Lodge officials. They suggested various measures which they hoped would tend to reduce the cost of the issuing of the "Proceedings of Grand Lodge," and referred to the amount paid as mileage allowance, an amount they considered in advance of what should be spent. They also drew attention to the amount voted each year to the Grand Master as recompense for his services. They considered that the honour of the position should be considered full compensation for the labours performed, more especially as Iowa was the only Grand Lodge in America which spent its funds for this purpose.

At the afternoon session the Committees appointed to consider the reports of the Grand Officers already referred to brought forward their recommendations, which were in most cases agreed to.

The first part of the proceedings of the second day's meeting was principally routine, comprising among other matters the report of the Committee on chartered Lodges. It was decided by the vote of Grand Lodge that the next session should be held at Des Moines on the first Tuesday in June 1880. The thanks of Grand Lodge was voted to the entertaining brethen and also to the various railroad companies who had made reductions to members proceeding to the Grand Lodge meeting. The election of Officers was then proceeded with, and on the roll of Lodges being called it was announced that Bro. Albert Cutler Abbott, of Marshalltown, was elected as Grand Master. The ensuing day the elections were proceeded with, the following being the result:—Crom. Bowen Senior Grand Warden, Noah Gillett Brown Junior Grand Warden, Lucien Caleb Blanchard G. Treas., Theodore S. Parvin G. Sec. The report of the Jurisprudence Committee was then laid before Grand Lodge, after which P.G. Master H. W. Rothert was re-elected to the position of Custodian for a further term of six years. The Grand Master having appointed the remaining Officers of Grand Lodge, the brethren were called from labour. On the resumption of business, the installation of Grand Officers was proceeded with; the brethren then marched in procession to the Methodist Episcopal Church. The escort was provided by Siloam Commandery of Knights Templar. Various resolutions of thanks having been passed, the Grand Master proceeded to close the Lodge in ample form, thus bringing to a conclusion the Thirty-sixth Annual Communication, "long to be remembered as one of the most pleasant and happy gatherings of the fraternity."

OUR SCHOLARS IN AFTER LIFE.

THE preliminary prospectus of "The Royal Masonic Pupils' Assistance Fund," which we published in our last issue, will have given our readers some idea of the fund it is proposed shall be started to render assistance to those of the pupils of our Masonic Schools who may deserve it. As Brother Dick Radclyffe has pointed out, it would appear presumptuous on the part of the few who are taking an active part in its establishment if they laid down any hard and fast lines as to the course to be adopted in distributing the benefits that may accrue. It is necessary before any rules can be framed, that a meeting, or it may be several meetings, of brethren interested in the proposed scheme should be held, and matters of detail left to them to decide. Up to the present time we understand that material progress has been made, the brethren, wherever an opinion is asked, giving their approval and expressing their appreciation of the idea; but it must be borne in mind, that unless the question be taken up energetically, the Fund will stand but a poor chance of success; we therefore urge upon brethren who are willing to take an interest in the undertaking to send in their names, even if they do not contribute to the Fund. Before any attempt can be made to start active measures it is necessary a large body of workers should be secured; brethren must be willing to bring the matter before their Lodges, not only once or twice, but until some opinion has been expressed by the majority of the members; we have very little fear what that opinion will be; every one we have spoken with on the project expresses the greatest approval. In order to make the Fund an established fact, and a lasting success, we feel sure publicity is the only element required, and as each of our readers can assist in this respect we fraternally invite them to co-operate with us in completing another link in the chain of Masonic benevolence.

It has been proposed to hold a Bazaar next summer, in aid of the funds of this scheme, and already influential assistance has been promised; this is a matter in which we can all lend a hand, by making contributions of articles for sale thereat, and by inducing our "sisters" to work. We are sure the ladies will aid in so good a cause, and perhaps thereby they may earn the lasting thanks of one or other of the poor orphans the projectors may be enabled to take under their care.

We hope in the course of a month or so to be able to publish a satisfactory report of the real establishment of the fund, and that on many future occasions we may have opportunities of pointing to the good work accomplished. Any information may be obtained of either of the Secretaries, Bro. Dick Radclyffe, 129 High Holborn, London, W.C.; or W. W. Morgan jun., FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE Office, 67 Barbican, London, E.C.

As we go to press, we are gratified to receive intimation that the Deputy Grand Master of England, the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, has expressed his approval of the scheme, and has promised his support to the Royal Masonic Pupils' Assistance Fund.

THE DEGREE OF KNIGHTS TEMPLAR PRIEST.

BY COL. MACLEOD MOORE, GREAT PRIOR OF CANADA.

MY attention having been directed to extracts in the February number of the Craftsman, taken from Masonic publications in the United States, in which my name has been quoted as an authority for the legitimacy of the degree of Knights Templar Priest, I beg to offer a few remarks to correct some erroneous impressions which appear to exist about the degree. In the first place, it is a great mistake to suppose, as stated, that the Templar Priest candidate "is fully instructed in the method of induction into the Templar Order, and the peculiar method of examination," as practised in the British dominions. I much fear that applicants who seek to be admitted with this object, will be greatly disappointed.

The degree is obsolete in England and Ireland, but was at one time well known in both countries, particularly in Lancashire, where it was long worked by Templar Conclaves in conjunction with the "Rose Croix," until the surrender of the latter to the A. & A. S. Rite, and the re-organisation of the Templar Order; but although not now recognised it is still practised in some of the older bodies, and continues to be attached to that of the Scottish Order of the Temple.

The degree is of a highly religious and Christian character, and the ritual most serious and impressive, having several points in common with that of the Knights of the East and West, which precedes the Rose Croix, or 18° of the A. & A. S. Rite, and also with the Priestly Order of the Red Cross of Constantine, as revised a few years back in England.

It usually followed the Templar ceremony without any intermediate degree, and was formerly considered the ne plus ultra of Masonry in the Templar Order. The object of the degree is, however, not obvious, nor by whom or when it was invented, but old certificates date its origin from what is called the year of revival, A.D. 1686, when it is said to have been instituted as a Protestant degree of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, to be used as a test among the knights who had embraced the reformed faith, as, at that period, James II. of England having contemplated the revival of the English Langue of St. John, in his dominions, had procured (A.D. 1687) the nomination of his natural son, Henry Fitz-James, by Bull of the Grand Master of Malta, to be Grand Prior of the English section of the Order. But this account of the degree is evidently but a surmise of the Masonic writers of the last century, who, confusing the Order of St. John with that of the Templars, invented and gave circulation to the most fanciful and erroneous theories in connection with the old Orders of Knighthood. Some supposed it was a degree given to Commanders, or to the Priests or Chaplains of the Order only, the Templar reception being usually considered as a military ceremony, and this degree the religious portion of it; but if the chaplains only received it they must have gone through the military part first, as it is a mere appendix to it. Other writers say that the knights of the old Order, being first admitted as soldiers, were, when they had served with honour, consecrated, and hence this portion of the ceremony, in modern times, has been presided over by a High Priest or Prelate of the Masonic Templar Order. This, perhaps, was the original view taken when forming this degree, known as the Most Holy Order of Knights Templar Priest, Holy Wisdon, or Knights of the Tabernacle.

The place of meeting was called a Tabernacle, and the members a Band, recipients of the degree in the absence of the Knight Templar Commander [Preceptor] filled the chair in preference to any other knight. The office-bearers are called Pillars, and a name is given to each of the seven principal officers, the certificates bore the names of these Pillars in a gradation in the form of seven steps, to which the seal was attached on green and white ribbon (Psalm lii. 9). The jewel of the Order is a silver star of seven points; in the centre, a cross and serpent twined round it, and pendant from the star, a silver Latin cross with serpent, the latter being considered a symbol of priesthood in the ancient mysteries.

Some little difference existed in the working of the degree in Scotland and Ireland from that of England, but of no particular moment. The presiding officer of a Scottish Tabernacle wears, suspended from his collar, a triangular jewel of silver, about three inches on each side, on which is engraved certain letters, their import every companion is required to know, as they may be said to form the test word.

I can speak thus confidently of the degree, being in possession of the Scottish ritual for many years, as also that of the one used in the oldest Tabernacle in England, attached to the Jerusalem Conclave, No. 9, of Knights Templar, Manchester, one of the very few now remaining, and whose bye-laws were drawn up at its revival in 1813, with the names of all admitted from time to time appended to them, these rules, which are termed secret, are very stringent, and were only to be read in full to Templars seeking admission. The duties inculcated being most solemn and binding on the members, are not to be lightly undertaken. An instructive little work on the Orders of the Temple and St. John, &c., published by Bro. John Yarker, of Manchester, in 1869, gives an interesting account of this degree in connection with the Templar Order, and can be read with advantage.

It only remains to say that the high moral and religious teachings of the ritual recommend its not being allowed to drop altogether into oblivion, but as an appendage to the ceremonies and history of the Templar Order, it has but little value, and was wisely discontinued. Rituals stamp the character of degrees; therefore, the more simple they are, and more direct the reference to the history of the degree, the more likely they are to impress the candidate.

ANNUAL DUES.

From the Masonic Newspaper.

THE system of annual dues is, we believe, one of the most pernicious that was ever introduced into the Fraternity. Annual dues are the recruiting sergeants of the army of the Unaffiliated. It is very fine to say that every brother can afford to pay his annual dues, and that if not all he has to do is to state his circumstances to the Lodge and the members will at once remit them? Now, practice is better than theory. We once knew a brother suspended for non payment of dues the very evening he applied for assistance, being at the time very ill and unable to work, and some brethren who read this article will remember the incident. But it is not the annual dues of the Lodge alone that are so troublesome to meet; there are other Masonic bodies besides the Lodge, and the poor man has an equal right with the rich to seek more light in the so-called higher bodies, if his inclinations lead him in that direction.

Are the poorer brethren to be excluded from a knowledge of the work of the Chapter, Council, Asylum, and Consistory, because they cannot afford to pay ten or twenty dollars per annum? The system is wrong. If there is anything beneficial, useful or beautiful in these Hautes Grades, why not give them to every brother that desires to obtain more light from them. Freemasonry was never intended for the rich man alone, and yet by this system of annual dues the poorer brother is literally excluded from his rights. The Dives, who cares naught for the Craft except the regalia and title, can flaunt "Sir Knight" before his name, and place that wondrous number, that seems the acme of ambition to many, 32°, after his name, while the earnest, eager, plodding Lazarus, who delves deep and long in the quarries, finds he must remain there, because, although he might scrape together money enough to pay his fees for the degrees, he cannot afford an annual tax of some fifteen or twenty dollars in order to keep up his position in the Craft.

We don't care how high in reason the fees for degrees may be placed, but once having paid them, let that be an end of it; then a brother can feel free, but so long as he dreads an annual tax, it is a dread and a drawback. Times may become hard, he may lose his situation, there may be sickness and death in his family, and the annual dues that at the time of joining were a mere bagatelle, are now an important item of expenditure. He cannot meet them, and then he is summoned to show cause why he should not be suspended for non-payment of dues. Perchance he has been a regular attendant for years, an officer high in the esteem of the Craft, yet because he is financially embarrassed his brethren (?) disgrace him, and bring obloquy upon his family by suspending him for non-payment of dues, and his Grand Lodge blackens its banners by publishing his name to the profane as a suspended Mason. This is not the Masonry of our forefathers, when the youngest Entered Apprentice had a voice and voted in the annual assemblages of the Craft.

Fancy suspending a brother from his rights and titles, and privileges of the Craft, because he is poor, and this is really the reason. But to add iniquity to the injustice of the proceeding, his Lodge dues go on and accumulate during the period of said suspension the same as if he were still participating in all the pleasures and privileges of the Fraternity. Is this honourable, just, or right? Is it the Freemasonry that our fathers practised in those good old days when works and deeds formed the daily labour of the Order instead of ritual and regalia?

Our theory is that the fees for joining any Masonic body should be large enough to permit that body to put on one side a certain amount for the legitimate expenses of the Lodge, and a larger proportion for a fund to be permanently invested for the benefit of those in distressed circumstances, the sick, the dying, the widow and the orphan. There is no reason why this cannot be done. A man then knows the cost before joining, and he would know that once having received the degrees of any particular Masonic body, he would not be deprived of the privileges pertaining to them should he at any future period find his circumstances in life unfortunately changed for the worse.

We are amongst those, therefore, who believe that the interests of Freemasonry would be advanced by raising the fees of initiation into the Lodge and Membership of the higher bodies, and do away in toto with annual dues. Many a brother cannot afford to pay annually six dollars for his Lodge, four for his Chapter, three for his Council, five for his Commandery, and perhaps ten for other Masonic bodies. Such an amount becomes a heavy tax upon the purse-strings of many an earnest worker, and at last, finding himself unable to keep them up, he is forced, when perhaps his presence is most required in the Craft, to withdraw entirely or rob the home and children of the actual necessaries of life. This is not as it should be, and can only be remedied by the total abolition of the system of annual dues.

MEETING OF THE LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

THE Lodge of Benevolence met on Wednesday evening, at the Freemasons' Hall, when there were present—Bros. J. M. Clabon President, Joshua Nunn Senior Vice-President, James Brett Junior Vice-President, H. G. Buss Assistant G. Secretary, W. Dodd, Neville Green, J. M. Case P.G.D., Erasmus Wilson P.G.D., C. A. Cottebrune P.G.P., J. B. Shackleton, W. Stephens, G. P. Britten, Charles Daisy, H. Garrod, H. Massey, Charles Atkins, Herbert Dicketts, W. Hilton, W. Hill Evans, M.D., A. Lamarque, R. E. K. Wilkinson, T. F. Knight Smith, J. H. Matthew, Alfred Withers, Joshua Holden, W. Brody Date, John Lee, George B. Brodie, J. G. Robinson, W. Foulsham, Henry Speedy, Wm. Hope, M.D., Deputy Master No. 2, E. Farwig, J. I. Cantle, Thomas W. Bond, George S. Elliott, A. Timothy, G. F. Siege, E. Squirrell, W. W. Gray, Robert Harmon, D. W. Belfrage, and S. G. Coope. The brethren first confirmed grants of £410 recommended by last Lodge, and afterwards granted £425 to new cases. There were eighteen of these on the list. Five were dismissed, and two were deferred. Two grants were made of £100 each, three of £40 each, and two of £5 each. There were also granted one of £30, one £20, one £15, and one £10.

The annual gatherings of the various Provincial Grand Lodges frequently tend to produce great Masonic activity in the towns where such take place, and undoubtedly serve to create an interest in the Craft which would not otherwise be aroused. The townsmen who are thus honoured naturally strive to make their hospitality worthy of their guests, and in no few instances to shew by their after actions that what they undertook when they engaged to entertain their rulers was but a fair index of their general zeal. The City of Canterbury bids fair to illustrate this. Freemasonry in that ancient city has progressed most favourably of late; since the visit of P.G. Lodge in 1878 the members of the various Lodges and other Masonic bodies held there have striven to show they are really in earnest. A special building has been secured for the meetings, and other improvements are either in contemplation or in course of completion. We learn that one of its Lodges at its next meeting, has it in contemplation to vote a considerable amount in charity. Besides the Institutions connected with our Order,—which will come in for a large share of the amount,—the claims of local institutions will not be forgotten. We trust our Canterbury brethren will be enabled on this, and future occasions, to prove the reputation of Freemasonry in their city is left in the charge of good and worthy brethren.

There is an anthem of fraternal feeling whose grand and heavenly notes have been pealing since the day King Solomon arranged its matchless harmony. Thousands and tens of thousands, who are making their solemn march toward the boundary of time, know the music, and unite in accord with it. They seize the echo as it rolls back to them from the millions who have gone beyond our straining sight into the shadows of the unknown world. They teach the key-note and the pitch to those who are to follow them, and thus friendship's music is never silent, its secrets never lost; the air will never cease to vibrate with it, until time shall be no longer. Many of those who claim to be Masons may have never learned the pitch of Masons' music. They may get skill to handle the instruments, they may give utterance to some kind of a tune, but the true "Key-note of King Solomon," they receive not. And why? Because there never was a taste for such harmony in their souls. There never was a capacity to appreciate such refined ideas. Their ears had become blunted to the sounds of such celestial notes, and were only delighted by the rude imitations which men without Wisdom, Strength and Beauty, have given forth to the world as fraternal music.

The Master of the Lodge is under more peculiar obligations to show respect and reverence to the Holy Scriptures than a private member. You will discover the reason for this by reading the solemn injunction made you at your Installation. It is with this as with the Junior Warden's Charge concerning temperance: he must practise temperance even more sedulously than private members, because he has accepted the office under those pledges. You (the Master) accepted Installation under all the declarations of the Monitor, and one of these is extremely forcible concerning faith in the Holy Scriptures.—Rob Morris.

The Perfect Ashlar is a symbol of perfection—the quest of the ages—that perfection which man through all time; and in eternity too, will doubtless seek, and at last attain. Here nothing is perfect. Every year there is, in nature, a killing frost. Man himself at last succumbs to the frost of age, if he has not previously fallen before the frost of disease. In Summer there is sickening heat, in Winter there is hail; in youth there is disappointment, in age death. All things return to the quarry of earth—"earth to earth, dust to dust, ashes to ashes." The truly Perfect Ashlar will only be found in the great hereafter, in the Temple above. But here we may find Ashlars at least quasi-perfect. There may be upon them the marks of the Craftsman's tools. They may be found numbered among the brethren, squaring their actions by the Square of virtue, walking uprightly before the All seeing Eye, and their Brother Masons, as admonished by the Plumb, and ever bearing in memory the lesson of the Level, as they hasten over the rugged road of time toward the undiscovered realm of eternity.—Keystone.

A PEEP AT A LOCAL "CURIOSITY SHOP."

By a Peripatetic Brother.

THE devotion of a whole lifetime to the collection and arrangement of objects of art and historical curiosities may be regarded as a dry and aimless pastime by those who have failed to acquire æsthetic tastes; but to the cultured few such efforts are suggestive of the highest possible admiration. For my part, I must own to the possession of but few of the attributes of the connoisseur, and have always regarded collectors of every variety as a species of Dryasdust, with no generous blood in their veins, and therefore a set of old fogies to be avoided. As a rule collectors are a bore. Rate-collectors are seldom received with a grin of welcome satisfaction. There are butterfly collectors, coin collectors, picture collectors, and no end of these "snappers-up of ill-considered trifles," each having a peculiar sphere, and each redolent of a peculiar and distinct odour of mustiness. The poor old naturalist famed in the Ingoldsby Legends was of little practical use or ornament until he fell to (or rather fell in) catching eels, and that occupation did not last him long. The geologist who starts off with his bag and hammer is a morose and reticent fellow, except when you get him astride his favourite theme; and so is the amateur astronomer, who spends his nights star-gazing. Every man, I suppose, has a hobby; and provided that hobby is not ridden to death, or is made irksome to others, very often an advantage arises not merely to the individual immediately interested, but to a wide circle around him of those who are imbued with kindred tastes and ideas.

Now, having given it as my experience that collectors, as a rule, are as crusty and capricious as possible upon all questions not bearing directly on the subject upon which they have grown insane, let me introduce you to one of a totally different stamp—a rare old specimen of English geniality, good humour, and intelligence. How I came across him was in this wise. During the recent barge sailing match from Erith to the Nore, I noticed upon the bridge of our committee steamer, a ruddy-faced, bustling little man, who appeared to me to be doing the work of commodore, secretary, and treasurer, all rolled into one; he was here, there, and everywhere, giving directions, and seeing that everybody was jolly and comfortable, and everybody seemed to appeal to him on every conceivable matter connected with the trip. I dubbed him at once an old Navy man, or a sea-captain who had "weathered many a storm;" and a hearty old soul I thought him, who at the age of seventy-four could trip up and down the saloon stairs as lightly as a boarding-school miss, or laugh as lustily as any of his "fellow seamen" upon the bridge. A chat with this, to my mind, Harry Bluff certainly did not prepossess me with any idea that he was a member of the Dryasdust Order, in the category of which I had been accustomed to enumerate "collectors" of every species before mentioned. My surprise, therefore, was great, when on accepting the invitation of Mr. W. W. Massingham, to smoke a quiet cigar with him at Caroline Villa, Granville Park, Lewisham, I found my sailor friend, who had been as handy at a coil of rope as at the binnacle, surrounded by a perfect museum of exquisite morceaux, in the accumulation of which he had spent more than half a century of his life. Where the dickens my friend lived is a puzzle, now I come to think of it, for the entire house, from basement to roof, was literally crammed with pictures, bijouterie, old china, historical and theatrical curiosities, articles of vertu, and a thousand and one other objects of interest, all of which he had industriously collected and ingeniously displayed in the various apartments into which Caroline Villa is divided.

It would occupy more space than you could afford to allude in detail to the many objects, possessing such a history of its own, which are stored away in Mr. Massingham's bijou museum. But in sauntering through the different departments, I may mention a few, for the information and interest of connoisseurs in such matters. In a cabinet filled with rare and curious old china, was the identical ring presented by Lord Nelson to Lady Hamilton, the miniature portrait on which is in a fine state of preservation, and is set round with pearls. This souvenir of the hero of Trafalgar is highly prized by its owner, as it should be. In this cabinet also were four quaint old butter boats, in the shape of ducks, together with a host of curious little knick-knacks; whilst a similar cabinet on the opposite side contained a complete tea and coffee set in real Chinese porcelain, together with other specimens of china which might well excite the envy of any collector in that particular line. This room is hung around with engravings of great antiquity, and possessing many quaint features of which I have not time to speak in this letter. Passing into an adjoining room, my host, whom I may call Curator, in order to avoid repetition, pointed out a valuable interior by Jan Steen, companion to one sold by Christie in 1872 for the almost fabulous sum of £1071. This picture measures 11½ inches by 10½ inches, and the subject is an old woman picking a man's pocket whilst he is helplessly intoxicated. The other, it will be recollected, which fetched so high a price, is of the same size, and represented a party of courtesans stealing a watch from a youth whilst asleep. It would appear to me that if these two rare works could be brought together, they would be an inseparable pair. Close by this was a splendid painting of Mrs. Siddons, in the character of Calista, in the tragedy of the "Fair Penitent," and above this is a grand profile of the poet Pope. I also saw a fine sketch by Reubens for his grand painting of the "Brazen Serpent"—this was purchased at Lord Osborne's sale at Antigua House, St. John's Wood, some time ago, and is vouched for as genuine. Near this is a perfect little gem, by Newton, representing a "Maid of Damascus being taught Christianity," faced by the famous picture of "The Smoker," by Teniers. In this group also I noticed a fine old painting of Borgia, Pope Alexander VI., painted by Raffaelle, about 1492; near which was a good painting on copper, by Rottenhammer, representing a monk at his devotions. Drummond's effective painting of "Don Juan and Haïdee, surprised by her father," forms a companion object in this collection, as also does a large picture by Guido, "The Suicide of Lucretia," "Tempting Moments," representing a cluster of schoolboys pilfering from the sleepy old appleswoman's stall, is one of Collins's well-known efforts; and here, too, are Albano's "Four Elements," painted in masterly style. A couple of G. Hendrick's river scenes, with the fishing-smacks lying lazily at their moorings, and bathed in all the rich hues of a summer sunset, are hung over Mulready's celebrated painting of "The last in," the authenticity of which, though vaguely doubted, is nevertheless unhesitatingly challenged by its owner. Then there is a very old view of Dover, by Powell, the noted marine painter, showing the old jetty, the castle, and the East Cliff, splendidly executed on panel; a beautiful umbrageous landscape by J. McIntyre; a fine head by Pombo, a disciple of Georgione, whose style of colouring he carefully studied, and imitated with the greatest success. No master of his time (about 1500) displayed greater excellence in this style of the art. Here also is a choice painting, representing the old Dutch schoolmaster dealing with a refractory pupil, the painter of which is unknown; a récherché little piece pourtraying Cattermole in the Fleet Prison, painted by himself; several paintings by Armfield; a large one by old Brueghalt, representing a Village Festival, on panel; and several landscapes and river scenes in water-colours by John Varley. Disposed about the room in every niche and corner are valuable specimens of antique china, including massive Dresden pieces, representing Neptune drawn by his sea-horses, and attended by a tribe of mermaids and his queen, drawn by dolphins, and surrounded by her attendants. Knicknacks of every species of curiosity are crammed into the apartment, making up, as I have said, a museum, the study of which would occupy more time than is at the disposal of a casual visitor. Amongst the many other paintings, however, I should not omit to call attention to a portrait of the late "Iron Duke," painted by Count D'Orsay; the "Miser and his Daughter," by Miéris; a portrait of Titian, in water colour; a moonlit river scene by P. Pether; and a grand painting of St. Peters, at Rome, showing the castle of St. Angelo and the bridge spanning the Tiber, which many visitors to the Crystal Palace would detect as having seen in the picture gallery there a little time ago.

Following my friend to the "upper regions" of his domain, I was shown a fine old river scene, by C. Moreland, which is hung near to "The Farrier," by the same celebrated artist,—a very grand pair of large paintings, which were formerly hung in Greenwich Hospital; a grand landscape, by Hobbema, setting forth the dense labyrinths of a forest, with the river meandering through it. A couple of well-executed paintings, by Course, representing Falstaff bragging of his fight with the men in buckram, and Sir John vindicating Bardolf's nose. Near this is one of Nieman's winter scenes—Colliers off Northfleet; some exquisite enamels, by Tideman; old views of Greenwich and Chelsea Hospitals, by Samuel Scott,—the antiquity of which is indicated by the character of the shipping on the river; together with a host of smaller paintings, all of which possess features of great interest and attraction to the connoisseur. In an adjoining room, also literally packed with works of art, is a large painting, by Quintin Matsys, more than three hundred years old, which, though rather painful in its subject, is treated in masterly style, and the picture is reputed to be of great value. A choice painting, by Renbens, "Susannah and the Elders," also finds a place here; as also does a magnificent painting of Our Saviour in the Agony of the Cross. Amongst the gems of this department I was shown a unique painting on ivory of Jupiter and Antispa; and another recumbent figure, by David; some curious old paintings on slate; a horse-racing sketch in the early reign of George III.; a beautiful allegorical painting of "Tragedy and Comedy," by Loutherbourg, dated 1805; a portrait, by Drummond, of Mr. Moody in the character of Jobson, in the farce of "The Devil to Pay," played at the King's Theatre, Haymarket, 1793; a large painting of "The Storm in Harvest," by Westall; landscape by C. Morland; "Relieving the Poor," by Wheatley; a rough sea scene, by Musin; and a large sketch of the offing outside Ostend harbour, with shipping making for the haven before a portending squall. There is also an original painting, by Snyder, "The Fish Market," engravings from which may be familiar to your readers; a sea scene, by Taylor; a moonlight sketch, painted in the last century, by J. W. Smith; one or two suggestive paintings, by W. Etty; "King Solomon's Judgment," by Reubens; and very many others.

I have only time to glance cursorily at the many objects of interest which, if described in detail, would occupy a huge volume, but may incidentally mention that among the curiosities may be found several boxes made from the timbers of the Old Victory and the Royal George; the infant's cap, shoes, and shirt worn by the Prince of Wales; a slice of the Princess Royal's wedding cake; bread and potato taken from the Queen's table; the stage jewels worn by Mrs. Siddons, the actress; several nuggets of Australian gold; a profuse variety of shells, classified; George III.'s Prayer-book, presented to Mr. Massingham's father, in 1789; almanacs, dated 1750-1, from George III.'s library; a lock of Edmund Kean's hair; model of the old Lyceum Theatre, burnt in Feb. 1830; curious old antique jewels; Indian silks and filagree; medallions of the English and French kings; Garrick's sword, used by the celebrated actor in his last performance in the character of Don Felix in "The Wonder," at Drury Lane, and presented by him to Tom King, who played the part of Lissardo on that occasion; autograph letters from kings, statesmen, and authors of celebrity; and a host of models, relics, and curiosities, as the auctioneers would say, "too numerous to mention."

I hesitate to speak of Mr. Massingham's collection of theatrical relics and mementos, farther than to say it is the most extensive and marvellous in the world. He has a whole library of scrap books and albums containing information, "complimentary orders," playbills, and autographs, portraits &c., of all the eminent actors and actresses, from the time of Garrick, and even of an earlier date; and these are so preserved as to afford the most ready reference required for any information respecting the English stage. In the collection of these Mr. Massingham has displayed most astounding patience, vigilance and research, taking into his omnium gatherum every shred and scrap of interest which should go to make his collection complete. With an ingenuity most enviable Mr. Massingham has contrived to fit up his museum in a style which cannot fail to be of interest to any one who may be as fortunate as I was to be invited to a "private view;" and I must say that I came away after a three hour's inspection highly delighted at having discovered a fertile source of amusement and instruction that I little dreamt had been quietly and industriously got together so near at home. Added to this—

"A merrier man,
Within the limit of becoming mirth,
I never spent an hour's talk withal;"

and, if not trespassing upon your space, which I know is valuable, I may at some future time present, in similar bird's-eye fashion, some other few entertaining features presented by Mr. Massingham's truly wonderful and "home-made" repository of art and curiosity at Granville-Park.

STAFFORDSHIRE KNOT LODGE, No. 726.

From the Staffordshire Advertiser.

THE Earl of Shrewsbury was initiated a member of this Lodge on Tuesday, the 12th instant. The event was regarded as one of great significance by the Masons of the Province, of whom there was a large gathering on the occasion. Every preparation had been made for their accommodation by the brethren of the Staffordshire Knot Lodge, and the business of the day was transacted in the Borough Hall, Stafford. Lodge was opened in due form at three o'clock in the afternoon by Bro. T. E. Fowke W.M., in the presence of about 120 brethren. The following signed the attendance book:—G. S. Tudor R.W. D.P.G.M., J. Batkin, and A. C. Podmore.

The ceremony of initiation was performed in an impressive manner by Bro. Fowke W.M., who was ably assisted by his Officers. The musical arrangements were also well carried out. Letters of apology were received from Mr. A. Staveley Hill, Q.C., M.P., the Rev. Brooke Lambert, and many other brethren of the Province. After Lodge had been closed, the brethren took luncheon together in the hall, Bro. Nutt, of the North-Western Hotel, being an excellent caterer on the occasion. After the repast the loyal toasts were proposed by the W.M., who expressed his belief that Masonry would prosper as long as they had such a man as his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as the Grand Master of England. The Rev. E. C. Perry proposed the toast of the Pro Grand Master (the Earl of Carnarvon), the D.G.M. (the Earl of Skelmersdale), and other officers of Grand Lodge. He said local and provincial Lodges often received a great deal of help from those experienced brethren who were officers of the Grand Lodge, and they knew that a short time ago they were much indebted to them for the assertion of the principles lying at the foundation of Freemasonry which they had all at heart. The W.M. next proposed the R.W. P.G.M. pro tem, Bro. Æneas Macintyre, the R.W. D.P.G.M. and other officers of the P.G. Lodge past and present. He observed that nothing could conduce more to the good working of any large body of men than to have in the chief offices those who took an interest in the institution. He especially complimented the D.P.G.M., from whom he said he and his Lodge had experienced the greatest courtesy, and had received much valuable aid and information with regard to the present meeting. Bro. Tudor briefly acknowledged the toast. Bro. Randall, P.G. Chaplain, also responded. He said in connection with the P.G. Lodge he had learned to esteem Masonry more than ever he did before, and it gave him the greatest possible pleasure to be present on such an auspicious occasion as the initiation into the Craft of a noble son of a noble father. He, who had felt for years that the power of Freemasonry was a great good amongst men, ventured to tell their young brother who had joined them that day that he had now entered within the threshold of that great temple whose every recess as it opened to him would unfold to him more and more the high principles of that glorious institution of which he had become a member. That institution would not interfere in any way with his religious convictions. While it was totally independent, it ran along a parallel line with it, for religion and true Masonry could never be opposed. He had been a Freemason thirty-five years, and the more he knew of Masonry the more did he encourage every man to attach himself to the Craft. They were taught to live respected so that they might die regretted, and if they only looked to the foundation of Freemasonry they would find that it was based on the volume of the sacred law. If they only advanced in the knowledge which they were taught in the different degrees, and acted up to the principles inculcated therein, they would be better men in their hopes for this world and the next. The R.W. D.P.G.M. proposed the health of the W.M., speaking of the satisfactory manner in which he had performed his duties, and congratulating him upon having initiated the son of their late esteemed P.G.M. He was sure it would be a satisfaction to the whole of the brethren of the Province to know that the Earl of Shrewsbury had become a Freemason, and it would be gratifying to them if the P.G.M. should think fit to appoint him to Office in the P.G. Lodge. The W.M. acknowledged the toast, and proposed the health of the Earl of Shrewsbury, expressing a hope that his Lordship would follow in the steps of his revered father, and receive the respect and admiration of the whole of the Craft, and never regret entering the Masonic fraternity. The toast was very heartily drunk. The Earl of Shrewsbury, in responding, thanked them for the kind manner in which his name had been mentioned by several brethren, and received by them all. It was with the greatest pleasure that he had that day been initiated into Freemasonry, and especially that he had become a member of the Lodge at Stafford, because he lived close by, and for very many years his family had been connected in various ways with that town. He looked upon the Staffordshire Knot Lodge as his mother Lodge, and he hoped to look upon it in the same way that a child should look upon its mother. His father took a great interest in Freemasonry, and he trusted that time would show that his son would endeavour to follow in his steps. Bro. S. Scott proposed the Past Masters of the Staffordshire Knot Lodge, on whose behalf Bro. Storer responded. Bro. Chalmers, in proposing "The Masonic Charities," said they were magnificent institutions, which Masons looked upon with pride. While most other charities were dependent partly or wholly on bequests which had descended from past generations, the Masonic Charities depended upon the subscriptions of the present generation of free and accepted Masons. Bro. T. Wood responded. Bro. Capt. Talbot, in proposing the toast of "The Visitors," referred to the initiation of his relative, and said he could endorse the statements which had been made that the father of the initiate was a thoroughly good Mason. He had had a little to do with introducing his cousin to the Staffordshire Knot Lodge, and thought it was the right Lodge for him to join, as it was near the home of himself and his ancestors. He trusted that his cousin would look upon his connection with that Lodge as another affectionate link between himself and the borough of Stafford, as well as the province of Staffordshire. He hoped also that the visitors would feel that the brethren of the Staffordshire Knot Lodge had done their best to make them comfortable that day. The toast was acknowledged by Bros. Vernon, Blackshaw, and Ingamells. Bro. F. Greatrex proposed the toast of "The Officers of the Staffordshire Knot Lodge," which was appropriately acknowledged by Bro. John Baker. The interesting proceedings were shortly afterwards brought to a close. During the evening a glee party contributed some excellent vocal music, Bro. Taylor presiding at the pianoforte.

The 18th half-yearly meeting of the Staffordshire Masonic Charitable Association was held at the Trentham Hotel on Wednesday, under the presidency of the Very Worshipful Bro. Frank James, P.D.P.G.M. Staffordshire. This association was established in 1871, for the purpose of disseminating pure Masonic Charity in aid of orphan boys and girls, and the children of deceased Staffordshire Masons. Since the formation of the association the Masons of the Province have nobly supported the Charities, no candidate for such benefits having failed to obtain the necessary support. The majority of the brethren in Staffordshire are now enrolled as members of the association, and are consistent supporters of what may truly be termed the characteristic objects of Masonry, charity, brotherly love, &c. The meeting at Trentham was of the usual encouraging nature, many Lodges of the Province being represented. A ballot was taken for ten life subscriberships, resulting as follows:—Bros. A. Barlow, 546, T. Wood 726, J. Turner 1039, H. Quinton 1039, W. Vernon 456, R. H. Auty 624, J. Ingamells 460, Dr. Parkes 482, W. T. Beetenson 637, F. Derry 482. The annual report showed a balance in hand of £139 5s; sums since received increasing the available funds to £191. The President strongly urged that those Lodges which had hitherto not come forward in assisting the meritorious efforts of the County Association should be requested to do so. The report was adopted. The next meeting was fixed to be held at Burton, in January, when it is expected that over 60 life subscriberships will be allotted, owing to the alteration in closing the yearly lists of subscriptions. A dinner followed, which was presided over by Bro. F. James. After the Loyal Toast, the President, in appropiate terms, proposed

The Masonic Charities, calling especial attention to the Staffordshire Association, which had been instrumental in securing for eight children the advantages of a superior education at one or other of the great Masonic Institutions. In addition to this, he heartily recommended to the notice of the Lodges the B. Fund for educating those children of Masons in the Province who had not been eligible for the greater Institutions of the Order. Bro. Thomas 637, who had been Steward for the year, and Bros Bodenham and Marsh, the Treasurer and Secretary, severally responded. A few other toasts followed.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF HAMPSHIRE AND ISLE OF WIGHT.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—The Grand Lodge meeting of this Province took place at Ventnor, on Monday, the 11th instant, under the presidency of the R.W. P.G.M. Bro. W. W. B. Beach, assisted by the D.P.G.M. Bro. Hickman. The usual routine business having been disposed of, the P.G.M. proceeded to appoint and invest his Officers for the ensuing year, and it is this part of the proceedings that requires some notice.

The P.G.M. made his usual introductory speech, about the difficulty of distributing ten collars among thirty Lodges, and that the six Stewards' collars which he intended giving to W.M.'s and P.M.'s of Lodges must not be considered as a bar to their future advancement, but, on the contrary, should be regarded as a recommendation for honours in years to come.

Now, a Steward's collar, we all know, is never received as an honour by the Master or Past Master of a Lodge, and but for the dread of creating a scene in P.G. Lodge, they would almost invariably refuse to accept it, as its possession subjects them to continual annoyance from the jests of their brethren.

We all freely acknowledge the difficulty of dividing the honours equally, but fail to see how this desideratum can be obtained by nearly always giving the honours that are worth having to the same set of Lodges, the others getting only Stewardships, or nothing.

I will not presume to say that the fact, of what may be called the permanent officers of P.G. Lodge being members of these Lodges has anything to do with this, but many brethren have this belief, and reference to the accompanying table, showing the distribution of honours since 1868, will show that they have some excuse for their opinion.

There being some twenty-nine working Lodges in the Province, it follows that each Lodge can only expect one Wardenship in about fifteen years, but these fortunate Lodges average about one in three years.

It is abundantly evident that some alteration is necessary, and if the Province is so large that justice cannot be done to the Lodges composing it, let it be divided into two, say the five Isle of Wight Lodges, the nine Lodges of Portsmouth and Gosport, together with Farcham and Havant—in all sixteen—under the title of East Hants, and the remaining fifteen Lodges as West Hants. This, or some similar division, would clear the way for Provincial honours and give satisfaction to all parties.

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

AN OLD P.M.

PAST-MASTERS' PRIVILEGES.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Referring to the Book of Constitutions, "Grand Lodges," section 1, page 18, and "Provincial Grand Lodges," section 2, page 52, I shall be glad to learn whether, in the opinion of our Masonic jurists, the conditions in the former paragraph limiting the right of a Past Master to a seat in Grand Lodge equally apply to his right to a seat in Provincial Grand Lodge. In the former case it is clear enough that a P.M. must have executed the office of Master for a full year, and must not since have ceased to subscribe to a Lodge for the space of twelve months, to secure a right to a seat in Grand Lodge, but in the latter case no such restriction is specially imposed, it merely stating that, amongst others, "Past Masters of all Lodges within the Province are members of Provincial Grand Lodge." Reasoning, I suppose by analogy, it is held by some in this Province, that though no condition, beyond subscription to a Lodge within the Province, is specially laid down affecting a P.M.'s right to a seat in Provincial Grand Lodge, yet the conditions of his membership are precisely the same as those governing his right to a seat in Grand Lodge. That, for instance, should a Master not have executed his office for a full year, through his election and installation not having taken place at the usual time, or through any other circumstance, on leaving the chair he ceases to be a member of his Provincial Grand Lodge. I shall be glad to learn how far this opinion is supported by authority.

Yours faithfully,

W. S. L.

KNOTS AND MILES.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—The period of the year having arrived in which excursions and journeys by water are frequently made, it may perhaps be interesting to some of your readers to be made acquainted with the relative proportions of knots and miles. A mile contains 1760 yards, and a knot 2000, the difference between the two often times creating a stumbling block in the minds of the uninstructed.

As an elucidation, I append a table, which, if cut out and retained, may serve to lighten the tedium of a voyage. It might also be utilised as a reference to settle many questions as to distances, which, experientia docet, are continually arising on board vessels, whether bound to the Nore, to Margate, Boulogne, Scotland, Hull, or more remote ports.

Knots	Miles	Knots	Miles
1 =	1¼ and 20 yards.	13 =	14⅝ and 40 yards.
2 =	2¼ „ 40 „	14 =	15⅞ „ 60 „
3 =	3⅜ „ 60 „	15 =	17 „ 80 „
4 =	4½ „ 80 „	16 =	18⅛ „ 100 „
5 =	5⅝ „ 100 „	17 =	19¼ „ 120 „
6 =	6⅞ „ 120 „	18 =	20⅜ „ 140 „
7 =	7⅞ „ 140 „	19 =	21⅝ „ 160 „
8 =	9 „ 160 „	20 =	22⅝ „ 180 „
9 =	10⅛ „ 180 „	30 =	34 „ 160 „
10 =	11¼ „ 200 „	40 =	45⅜ „ 140 „
11 =	12½ „ „	50 =	56⅞ „ 120 „
12 =	13⅜ „ 20 „	100 =	113⅜ „ 20 „

Yours truly and fraternally,

VIATOR.

WHICH IS CORRECT?

"IL TEGAME, OR A MASON'S HOLIDAY."

To the Editor of THE FREMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In perusing the article contained in the pages of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE of this date, under the heading of "Il Tegame," I was greatly surprised to find a foot-note in the following words:—"Even little 'Which is Correct?' hides in his little hole." As, for the very life of me, I cannot make out the writer's meaning, or imagine for one moment to what he alludes, perhaps you will be good enough to allow me to ask Bro. W. Viner B. Bedolfe, M.D., P.M. 1329, what he really means? Generally, I am not a bad hand at abstruse subjects, but I fear that in this instance the sesquipedalia verba of the Doctor's lucubrations have quite overpowered my reasoning faculties, and rendered me incompetent to search out the mystery. I am bound to take his note as a personal allusion, and therefore have a right to challenge the writer as I now do.

During my life I have carefully avoided personal attacks in my correspondence, and I cannot understand why other writers should not be equally considerate. Never until now have I felt disposed to resent any criticism or remarks, but as I suppose I must consider Bro. Bedolfe a foeman worthy of my steel, and he takes such an initiative, if he wishes to try conclusions, "my soul's in arms, and eager for the fray!"

But no running away! I have a vivid recollection of a retreat by Bro. Bedolfe on a former occasion, and, by-the-bye, that occurred over a letter of his which I shall do myself the honour to insert in my "Uniformity of Masonic Ritual and Observance." Let me refer!—aye, here it is!—FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE, 4th November 1876:—"After due consideration, I have decided not to continue this controversy." Some one, he says, had "accused him of being 'unimaginative.'" How any one could have so designated his "goody twaddle," as another writer terms it, I am at a loss to conceive. However, he certainly did "throw up the sponge" then. I hope he will have more courage in the fair stand up fight I now offer to engage him in.

Respect for his high character, generally genial disposition, and undoubted, though somewhat misapplied, literary qualifications, will always secure for him from me the utmost personal consideration; but in the tournament in respect of which I now throw him the gauntlet, I shall seek every joint in his armour to inflict mortal discomfiture.

I have no patience with mio caro fratello when perusing such charges as he makes against our Order, of which, whilst virulently attacking it, he nevertheless condescends to remain a subscribing member, and to quote his Masonic rank. One need not go further than the very paragraph which contains the reference I so greatly resent, to prove his inconsistency. There is one word in that paragraph descriptive of its entirety, which terminates its first sentence, and which ordinary courtesy prevents my present use of, but as Jack Bunsby says, "The bearing of this observation lays in the application on it."

A somewhat vulgar saying fitly describes the feathered creature that neglects the cleanliness of its abiding place, and Jack Bunsby may be again quoted hereon. It would therefore be, I think, more generous and manly in mio caro fratello if he would graciously retire, and then show himself as an open and avowed enemy, rather than remain in the camp. Although, doubtless we should be prepared to say, "Erring brother, part in peace," he might much more consistently reject the overture, and do battle against us, than act as he is now doing.

Whatever "little hole" W. Viner B. Bedolfe, M.D., P.M. 1329 may allude to in his very enigmatical footnote, I have certainly come out of it now, and mio caro fratello will find it as much as he can do to get me back again if he ventures to break another lance with me. Goliath in learning as he may be, I can sling my stone. Let him watch its flight, it may hurt him.

Doctor, my littleness is at your service! Garde à vous! Fight fair, and let our friends judge—"Which is correct?"

I remain, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours truly and fraternally,

JAMES STEVENS, P.M., P.Z.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF DEVONSHIRE.

VISCOUNT EBRINGTON INSTALLED AS P.G.M.

THE Annual Provincial Grand Lodge and General Communication of the Freemasons of Devonshire was held on 14th August at Exeter, and the unusual occurrence of the installation of a Provincial Grand Master—a circumstance which had occurred only thrice in a century—drew a very large gathering of the brethren. It also added largely to the business of the day, and prevented there being any time to devote to the usual procession and attendance at church.

Business commenced with the assembly of the Committee of Petitions at ten a.m., in the Knight Templar's Preceptory at the Masonic Hall in Gandy-street. The following members of the Committee were present:—R. W. Bro. L. P. Metham, Past G.D. of England P.D.P.G.M. chairman, W. Bros. Chas. Godtschalk, P.P.G.D. Representative of the Committee in London, J. B. Gover P.P.G.A.D.C. Sec., R. P. Twose P.G.Tr., John Way P.P.G.Tr., V. Bird P.P.G.Tr. Auditors, L. D. Westcott P.P.G.S. Works 70, J. T. Browning W.M. 105, W. T. Maynard P.P.G.Tr. 106, S. Jones P.G.J.W. 112, the Rev. W. Whittley P.P.G. Chap. 156, R. Lose P.P.G. Purs. 159, J. E. Curteis P.P.G.S.W. 189, H. Welch P.P.G. Purs. 202, W. Browning P.P.G.D.C. 223, R. Cawsey W.M. 230, John Brewer P.M. 251, F. R. Tomes P.P.G.D.C. 282, C. J. Workman W.M. 303, G. W. Mudge W.M. 372, Lieut.-Col. J. Tanner Davy P.P.G.S.W. 421, J. Heath P.P.G.D. 710, E. Aitken-Davies P.P.G.S. Works 1009, H. Melhuish W.M. 1125, Charles Stevens W.M. 1138, Geo. Evans P.P.G.S.D. 1181, the Hon. W. Hylton-Joliffe P.G.S.W. 1205, W. Powell W.M. 1205, J. R. Lord P.M. and Treas. 1247, W. Pidsley W.M. 1254, S. B. Harvey P.M. 1255, F. Pollard P.M. 1284, James Chapple S.W. 1396, T. Perry P.P.G.T. 1402, Samuel Loram P.G.D.C. 1443, R. G. Bird P.M. 1550, and B. Barber P.G.St. 1753.

The Secretary's report was read, and with the result of the petitions submitted afterwards, adopted in the report presented by the Committee to the P.G. Lodge.

The next business on the agenda was the motion of Bro. Chas. Godtschalk that the sum of one hundred guineas be recommended to be voted by the Prov. Grand Lodge to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for aged Masons and Widows of Freemasons.

Bro. Gotschalk, in bringing this motion before the Prov. Grand Lodge, said that it would be a mere act of justice for him to state, in as few words as possible, what the Royal Benevolent Masonic Institution had for the past few years been doing for the annuitants of Devon. And, on the other hand, what they as a Province had been doing for the Institution during the same period. He showed very clearly, by the figures and amounts quoted, that the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution had been paying to the annuitants of Devon sums largely in excess of the amount subscribed by the Province from all sources during the same time; he vouched for the accuracy of the figures he was using, having taken them from the books of the R.M. Benevolent Institution, with the sanction and assistance of the Secretary, Bro. James Terry. With these undeniable facts before them, he confidently, and as an act of justice, asked for the hundred guineas; and when he told the brethren that at the present moment they were receiving from this Institution through their annuitants no less than £456 per annum,—and even that large sum was much less than what had been received by their annuitants the two preceding years, caused by the deaths of annuitants recently,—that one aged Mason of Devon had already received £453, and still was in receipt of the annuity of £40;—might this ancient brother long enjoy the same;—he was a living example of the good the Institution was doing. Another brother had had £315; another £273. One widow had had over £300, and all were still in receipt of their respective annuities. This result had been brought about by the excellent working of the Committee of Petitions—by an intelligent system of organization of the voting power, and this voting power being judiciously manipulated by their representative in London at the various elections. He was bound candidly to admit, whilst bringing these facts and figures before the Committee, that the Prov. Grand Lodge and the majority of the Lodges throughout the Province had at all times supported the great Charities generously and liberally from the funds at their disposal, and from his experience, whilst acting as Steward, and in that capacity making appeals for the great national charities, had ever found the brethren ready to listen and vote monies when brought to their notice in a proper and legitimate manner, and with the exception of a few Lodges who religiously abstain from giving, acting as though charity or benevolence could not co-exist with Masonry. Happily these Lodges are but few out of our roll of 47. It would be perhaps invidious for him to name or number them, but they were conspicuous by their absence from all charity lists. He would ask them to bear in mind that every pound voted brings votes into the Province, thereby increasing their power. That if to-day we give this hundred guineas, long before the year is out not only will our poor and distressed brethren or their widows have received it back, but the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution (on whose behalf he made this appeal), would have paid to their annuitants the amount fivefold. He therefore formally moved the resolution on agenda, adding he felt confident that an unanimous vote would be the result.

Bro. J. E. Curteis P.G.S.W. cordially seconded the resolution, which was carried unanimously.

It was then proposed and agreed to place the amount on the list of Bro. Charles Godtschalk, who thereupon agreed to divide the amount with Bro. Solomon Jones, who had already announced his intention to act as Steward for the next Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution.

Bro. J. E. Curteis' recommendation of a vote of fifty guineas to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys was also seconded and adopted; of the money thus voted will be placed on the Steward's lists of Bros. Godtschalk, Jones, and Curteis respectively. Bro. J. B. Gover proposed that twenty guineas be recommended to be given to the Masonic Girls' School. Bro. E. Aitken-Davies seconded this proposition. Bro. T. Perry proposed, and Bro. Lieut.-Colonel J. Tanner Davy seconded an amendment that the twenty guineas be given to the Devon Educational Fund.

The V.W. Bro. L. P. Metham, chairman of the Committee, P.P.D.G.M. reminded the brethren that one of the real interests of this local fund was that it should receive support from individual brethren, and also from private Lodges in the Province; that this was clearly laid down on its establishment a few months since, and although funds had come in fairly well, the particular class mentioned had not come forward to the extent they ought. He also deprecated now, as he had at first, asking Prov. Grand Lodge for monies for this local fund, while, as might be observed from the business already transacted, the funds of Prov. Grand Lodge really were required for the National Charities, to whom we, as a Province, were indebted. He trusted, therefore, the amendment would be withdrawn.

Bro. Chas. Godtschalk added that he had taken as earnest a part in the founding the Devon Educational Fund as any one in the Province; that he, having its future welfare still at heart, and having well studied the course for the future welfare of the Devon Educational Fund, he did not hesitate for one moment in saying,—If this local Fund was to be a success in the future it must be self-supporting, in this sense, that the Funds must come from individual brethren; thus annual subscriptions of 5s and 10s would be amply sufficient to provide for the orphans placed on the Devon Fund. That to ask Prov. Grand Lodge for monies for this small local Fund, was to tell the individual brethren there was no occasion for them to give individually. He was utterly opposed to taking the funds, not alone from Prov. Grand Lodge, but from any governing body of Masons in the Province for a local Fund; that to be a success it must be supported by individual subscriptions of very small amounts, so as not in any way to clash with the National Charities.

The amendment of Bro. Perry was then withdrawn.

A vote of thanks was moved to V.W. Bro. Metham for his valuable services on the committee, and a hope expressed that he would be induced to continue his aid. Bro. Metham, while acknowledging the compliment paid him, said that he could not gratify the hope of his remaining with the Committee. He had spent many pleasant meetings with them in carrying out their work, and he should always remember them with pleasure, but circumstances now rendered it positive that he must take his leave as chairman. A vote of thanks was also awarded Bro. Gover for his zealous services as Secretary. The following report was drawn up and approved for submission to the P.G.L. as the result of the Committee's business:—

The Committee of Petitions, in presenting their annual Report, record the continued success of the system adopted by the Province ten years since. During the past year they had succeeded in electing William E. Furze to the Boys' School, and Mrs. Ann Harfoot as an annuitant of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Widows. Mrs. Julia Thompson, another Devon candidate, was also elected on this fund, but principally by votes obtained outside the Province, and by special subscribers. For the Royal British Female Orphan Asylum at Stoke, the votes of this and the sister Province of Cornwall have materially assisted the election of Mercy Truscott, the orphan of a deceased brother, thus reducing the number on our list of candidates. The number of votes received by the committee for the great Charities since August 1878 had been only 828 boys and girls, and 804 men and widows, consequently at least 500 additional votes, known to exist in Devon, had been diverted or lost. Eight Lodges and five chapters had failed to send their votes. It could not be too earnestly impressed upon those brethren whose duty it was to transmit these votes, how much labour, correspondence, and anxiety would be spared, both to the London representative and secretary, if they would forward their votes at the earliest possible time. A more pleasing duty remained,—to sincerely and fraternally thank those Provinces and brethren, who by the loan of votes (without consideration) had enabled the representative to elect candidates, when the Province, unassisted, would have surely left them unsuccessful. The Provinces of Cornwall, Cheshire, East Lancashire, and North and South Wales had lent material aid, and the committee also acknowledge the good services rendered by worthy brethren, coupling with that acknowledgment the names of the V.W. Bro. W. J. Hughan P.S.G.D. England, P.S.G.W. Egypt, and V.W. Bro. J. P. Platt P.P.G.W. Lancashire, the representatives respectively of Cornwall and Cheshire. The thanks of the committee were also due to Bro. C. Godtschalk P.P.G.D., for his zeal, his indefatigable exertions, and his successful management of the various elections for the benefit of the distressed in the Province. At a meeting held at Plymouth, 21st January, the Committee granted the sum of £5 to the widow of a late member of Lodge 39 Exeter; the sum of £5 to the widow of a late member of Lodge 491 Axminster; and the sum of £5 to the widow of a late member of Lodge 156 Plymouth. At a meeting held that day the Committee resolved to recommend the P.G. Lodge to grant a sum of £10 to a widow of a late brother of Lodge 39 Exeter. They granted the sum of £5 to the widow of a brother of Lodge 70 Plymouth, and they recommended a further grant to her of £10 by the P.G. Lodge, a sum of £5 to the widow of a brother of Lodge 39 Exeter, and the further sum of £5 by the P.G. Lodge, and the sum of £5 to the widow of a member of Lodge 223 Plymouth. The Committee recommended that the remaining available balances should be appropriated thus: To the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Masons and Widows of Freemasons, 100 guineas. To the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, the sum of 50 guineas; and to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, the sum of 20 guineas, to be placed on the list of Bro. C. Godtschalk as Steward. Bro. Godtschalk had guaranteed to raise that sum to £50.

While the Committee of Petitions was proceeding with its business a Lodge meeting was held in the Craft Lodge-room of the Masonic Hall, where Viscount Ebrington was installed W.M. of the Lodge.

At noon the Provincial Grand Lodge assembled in the large room of the Victoria Hall, Queen-street. That spacious and handsome apartment was appropriately embellished for the occasion with Masonic emblems erected in good taste, under the superintendence of Messrs. Goff and Gulley, of Exeter. The shields and insignia of the Knights Templars occupied prominent positions, as did also some handsome Masonic banners. An excellent choral party of brethren was provided to render the musical parts of the Ritual, under the superintendence of Bro. E. M. Vinnicombe. Over 800 brethren were present in full insignia. In addition to the officers already mentioned were the following:—R.W. Bro. W. W. B. Beach P.G.M. of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight, R.W. Bro. John Huyshe, M.A., P.P.G.M., R.W. R.W. Bro. the Rev. John Huyshe was the first of the Prov. G. Masters to enter the room, and was very warmly received. R.W. Bro. W. W. B. Beach was entrusted with the duty of installing the new Prov. G.M., and he opened the Lodge with the assistance of W. Bros. the Hon. W. Hylton-Jolliffe P.G.S.W., and S. Jones P.G.J.W. The patent was read by which Viscount Ebrington was appointed the P.G.M., and the W. Master's of the seven oldest Lodges (39, 70, 105, 106, 112, 156, 159) were then sent out to fetch and to introduce the P.G.M. designate. On his lordship reaching the dais Bro. Beach delivered the usual address, coupled with some additional remarks of his own. He congratulated the new P.G.M. on his appointment to rule over the large and important Province of Devon, and pointed out the responsibilties of his office, and the important line of conduct he was expected to follow. He would have the valuable assistance of many old Masons, whose opinions and suggestions would be met with the respect due to them; but at same time he was to be careful to exert his own judgment, and to take care that he governed with the utmost impartiality In reprehension of what he might disapprove, he was also to be guided by mercy. He had something like an hereditary claim to the office, and it was hoped that he would add to the lustre that had been acquired by a previous member of his family, his respected grandfather. The installing D.G.M. concluded with passing a high eulogium upon the official career of the last P.G.M.

His lordship was then installed in ancient form. On arriving at the robing, W. Bro. Rogers stated that the Past P.G.M. had asked him to read the following paper, being himself too feeble to address them, and his sight too imperfect to read it himself. It was as follows:—"I am most anxious that the beautiful and costly chain which was affectionately presented to me on my installation as P.G.M. of Devon, on 24th May 1868, by the Masonic brethren, should become an heirloom in the Province to descend from each retiring P.G.M. to his successor. I have great satisfaction in knowing that the first of these is the grandson of my old and venerable chief and predecessor Earl Fortescue. To Viscount Ebrington's charge I commit this splendid Badge of Office, to be by him worn as P.G.M. of the Freemasons of Devon when and wherever he thinks fit. May the Great Architect of the Universe give him grace, health, and strength to preside over this large Province with benefit to the Craft and satisfaction to himself, winning the esteem and affection of every worthy brother through a long series of years. This is the earnest and heartfelt prayer of, my dear brethren, your aged and affectionate Past P.G.M.,

"JOHN HUYSHE."

At the completion of the installation the new P.G.M. was saluted and assumed the jurisdiction of the Lodge. An anthem, Psalm cxxxiii., by Dr. Clarke Whitfield, was sung by the choir.

The P.G. Reg. read a patent appointing R.W. Bro. W. G. Rogers the D.P.G.M.

R.W. Bro. Metham then read the following address:—

"To the Right Worshipful Hugh Fortescue, Lord Viscount Ebrington, Provincial Grand Master of Freemasons for Devonshire.

"We, the Freemasons of the Province of Devon of every rank and degree, desire to convey to you our most sincere congratulations on your elevation to the august office of Provincial Grand Master. Under any circumstances an address presented to the eminent brother who has been selected to preside over the Province would faithfully reflect the spirit of loyalty and affection which always characterises the tone of Freemasons towards their chief; but in your case these feelings are greatly enhanced for the Province preserves a grateful recollection of the kind and honourable rule of your noble grandfather. We entertain the hope that the Masonic virtues which so distinguished him are inherited by you, and that you may be enabled to maintain for the Province of Devon that prominent position which has been achieved by our two last excellent and beloved Provincial Grand Masters. We shall at all times deem it our duty to co-operate loyally and cheerfully in furthering your efforts to maintain and extend the grand principles of the Craft, and we sincerely trust that the Great Architect of the Universe will be pleased in His infinite wisdom and goodness to grant you a long and prosperous Masonic career to rule and guide with pleasure and profit the brethren of this Province."

The address was signed on behalf of the forty-seven Lodges by the W. Masters of the year in nearly every case. Where the W.M. was not at hand P. Masters of the Lodges signed on behalf of the brethren. At the close of the reading of the address R.W. Bro. Metham said:—"There is not, I am confident, a Freemason present who will not re-echo with acclamation the good wishes this address expresses—that health, happiness, and a prosperous reign may wait upon our newly appointed Grand Master. There is not, I trust, a brother in this room who will not agree that he ought, and that he will, as far as his own conduct goes, and as far as his influence extends among his fellow Masons, resolve that our Grand Master shall never have cause to regret that he has taken on himself the important and onerous office. With the moral and well-regulated efforts of the Craft to sustain him, his onward progress will be smooth and successful. The road he will have to travel has already been distinctly marked out by his illustrious predecessors, and he will have but to tread in their footsteps, keeping his eye steadily fixed on the landmarks of the Order, which they, by their lives and conduct, have so fully and brightly illustrated, to render his rule light and pleasant to himself and advantageous to those over whom he is placed. For myself, Right Worshipful Sir, I am grateful to the Great Architect of the Universe that I, who, more than a generation ago, received my first Provincial honours from your noble grandfather, am permitted to stand here to-day to take part in this ceremony, and to be the mouthpiece of my brethren of this large Province in welcoming as the successor of my beloved and revered friend a scion of the house of Fortescue. The young, who live for what the years to come may bring, and who find their greatest delight in devising ambitious schemes, which they sanguinely believe will crown their future with success, think that the old have no pleasures that can equal theirs. But that is a great mistake, as to-day can testify, for if the past carries in its bosom no sting born of an illspent or useless life, but if on the contrary there are abiding green spots in by-gone memories on which the mind can dwell with satisfaction when life's busy scenes have been well played, and the shades of evening are tranquilly but surely closing round, advanced life must possess many pleasures unknown to those who have as yet realised no expectations, and who are still straggling toward the goal which the old have reached and passed. You will all understand to what and to whom these remarks apply. We have to-day prayed the Great Architect of the Universe to speed on his noble mission our newly-installed Master, and with one mind and one voice cordially welcomed him to that chair to which he has so strong an ancestral claim. But we have one other duty to perform, without which I am quite sure you, Right Worshipful Sir, would be the first to declare that the ceremony of to-day was incomplete. We have to bid farewell to him—happily only in his official capacity—who, for so many years, has not only been our genial Master, but the steadfast counsellor, sincere friend, and affectionate brother of us all. At his installation, now many years ago, it was my pleasing privilege to present to him an address of welcome such as I have been honoured in presenting to you, his successor, to-day. Then I dwelt, as I truthfully could, without flattery or exaggeration, upon his private virtues and excellent public qualities, as well as upon the services he had rendered, not only to the Craft in particular, but to humanity at large, all welded together into one harmonious whole, by the daily practice of "Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth," in their best and widest sense. I prophesied then that when the day came which should close his rule over us, the Freemasons who should live to see that day would be able to say, as we said so long ago, with fervent, sincere, and grateful feelings for all he has done for us and the Craft—"He fed us with a true and faithful heart, and ruled us prudently with all his power." Said I not well then, brethren? Say I not well now? Dear Brother Huyshe, as sincerely as we have to-day welcomed our coming ruler with loyal acclamation, do we, in the face of this great gathering, and in the face of the Masonic world, pray the Great Architect of the Universe to speed you, our parting Ruler, and bless you with mental and bodily health to look back, as I know you will, with kindly feeling and affectionate regard to us, your brethren, who, on our part, shall continue to love and respect, as we have always loved and respected, you.

R.W. Bro. the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe expressed his gratification at being present at the ceremony that had just taken place. From intimate relationship that existed between the Provinces of Devon and Cornwall, the mutual interest they took in each other's welfare, combined with the circumstance of his having taken his earlier offices in the Province of Devon, he should have felt regret at being absent on such an important occasion. He hoped that their new P.G.M. would be privileged to enjoy a long, happy, and useful career, and might be able to look back at its close with the same satisfaction, and enjoy the same respect as his predecessor.

The P.G.M. thanked the brethren for the address presented to them, and the congratulations that had been expressed. It was unusual for so young a man to receive the important appointment he had just entered upon. He could not expect to equal his predesessors, but he should be guided by the standard that they had set before him, and should do his best to walk in their footsteps. The P.G.M. confirmed the existing bye-laws of the Province.

The Secretary's report shewed a satisfactory condition of the Province. The Treasurer's report stated the receipts of the year to have been £543 14s 2d; balance left in hand £228 3s. The report of the Fortescue Annuity Fund shewed a satisfactory progress. The whole of these, together with the report of the Committee of Petitions, were unanimously received and adopted. A Committee, to consist of R.W. Bro. Rogers D.P.G.M., Bro. Pope the Secretary of the Fund; the Provincial G. Secretary and two Auditors, and W. Bro. Twose, with power to add to their number, was appointed to examine the securities of the Fortescue Fund, and consider what new arrangements were desirable. W. Bro. H. G. Beachy was elected Treasurer of the Province; and W. Bros. J. E. Curtois 189 and W. S. Pasmore 444, were appointed the Auditors.

The following brethren were then invested as the Officers:—H. Walrond G.S.W. 303, W. Hine Haycock G.J.W. 104, Rev. R. Swansborough G. Chap. 1181, Rev. C. W. H. Holly G. Chap. 1753, H. G. Beachey G. 1254, E. Furze 421, J. Harris Square 1496, and E. J. Knight 202 G. Stewards, Peter Blanchard P.G. Tyler, and John Rogers P.G.A. Tyler.

Bro. J. E. Curteis withdrew his motion for the founding of a Provincial Educational scheme. The testimonial to W. Bro. Gover (£50 subscribed among the brethren for his services and zeal as the Secretary of the Committee of Petitions) was presented, and suitably acknowledged by Bro. Gover. The D.P.G.M. proposed that R.W. Bro. Metham should continue to be a member of the Committee of Petitions; but Bro. Metham said he must decline the compliment.

In the evening a large party of the brethren dined together at the Royal Public Rooms.

THE BEAR AND THE BEES.

A Baleful Ballad.

"Bears, it is well known, have a great fondness for honey. Brain, on one occasion, found a hive in the hollow of an old tree. In his eagerness to rifle the contents he overturned it, when the insects, exceedingly irritated, stung him about the muzzle and paws so fiercely, that, snorting with the pain of physical inflammation, and the chagrin of mental disappointment, he had, with shame and anguish, woefully to confess that his greed and curiosity had perhaps cost him too dear."—Æsop's Fables.

"But, snug in her hive, the Queen Bee was alive,
And 'buz' was the word in the Island."

Allusion to the defeat of the Spanish Armada in the old ballad of "The tight little Island."

I led a very happy life,
I never wanted cash,
For joint stock schemes were always rife,
And capitalists rash;
"A far cry to Lochiel" when they thought they'd "struck ile,"
A long day 'ere impending smash.

I had a very merry time,
I knew no sense of care,
For the chink of gold was my matin chime,
And cheques formed my vesper fare;
And I found it my lines to live up to the nines
Whether as bull or bear.

One day I spied a vein of gold,
I saw oi polloi derided
The pabulum of news, that old
Respected sheets provided,
So each week to purvey a full flavoured relay
Of "Society" talk I decided.

But in the dreary season, Oh!
Material to obtain
For hebdomadal copy, where to go,
Ah! how I racked my brain!
Lo! So-ci-e-ty had gone off on the spree,
And its small talk—it didn't remain.

A bull, one day, I thought of the bear,
Who, with no need of money,
Desiderated, of course you're aware
A good tuck out of honey;
The Freemason's hive, I reflected 's alive,
And the secrets, some tell me, are funny.

But how to find the hive, and get
At all its hidden store,
Why, book-stalls are extant as yet,
Tomes to be had galore,
And a shilling would buy all I craved to supply
Ample "copy" for Freemasons' lore.

So the hive I found, and planted my paw
(I thought I was cutting a figure)
On what I conceived were the secrets, their law
Guarded with vigilant rigour;
But, "buz," was the shout, and the "varmint" swarmed out,
And they stung me with valour and vigour.

And now I wander by day and by night,
And my pen I'm compelled to shackle,
For my eyes are—both—bunged, and my nose is a sight,
While my tongue is scarce able to cackle;
And that is the plight I'm reduced to—poor wight—
Through Freemasonry trying to tackle!

Holloway's Pills.—The hour of danger.—Disease commonly comes on with slight symptoms, which, when neglected, increase in extent, and gradually grow dangerous—a condition which betrays the grossest remissness—when these Pills, taken in accordance with their accompanying directions, would not only have checked, but conquered the incipient disorder. Patients daily forward details of the most remarkable and instructive cases in which timely attention to Holloway's advice has undoubtedly saved them from severe illness. These Pills act primarily on the digestive organs, which they stimulate when slow and imperfect; and, secondly, upon the blood, which is thoroughly purified by them, whence is derived the general tone they impart, and their power of subjugating hypochondriasism, dyspepsia, and nervous complaints.

Our advertising columns contain an announcement of an intended tour to Paris and Switzerland by a private Masonic party under the personal conductorship of Bro. Oscar Dietrich, for many years conductor for Messrs. Cook and Son, and now acting in that capacity for Mr. O. H. Caygill. From the programme submitted for the consideration of intending tourists, in this instance accompanied by ladies, and the moderate inclusive terms during the period of travel, extending over a fortnight from the 15th September next, we can scarcely imagine a more delightfu' and inexpensive opportunity of making acquaintance with the beautiful scenery of Switzerland and the gaiety of the French metropolis. A personal knowledge of Bro. Dietrich, and of his excellent qualifications for the conductorship of such a genial party as this is certain to be, causes mixed emotions of pleasure and regret. Pleasure to know that those who comprise the limited number of tourists must of necessity experience the most thorough enjoyment under his guiding influence, and regret that the exigencies of our "desk and office" preclude the possibility of our sharing in the gratification which will be their portion. May health and the best of spirits accompany the party during their travel, and may they return with minds and bodies invigorated by the contemplation of exquisite scenery and the inhalation of the purest atmosphere. So mote it be!

The next meeting of the Hilda Rose Croix Chapter (Bro. the Hon. W. T. Orde-Powlett M.W.S.) will be held in the Eboracum Lodge Rooms, Queen's Hotel, York, on Friday evening next.

On Saturday, the 16th inst., a meeting of the Yorkshire College of Rosicrucians was held, by kind permission of the W.M. of the St. Oswald's Lodge, in the Masonic Rooms, Pontefract. Papers were read by Frater T. B. Whytehead, on "Pontefract and its Castle," and by Frater Dr. Thomas, on "Some of the Wonderful Organs and Mechanisms to be found in the Human and other Bodies," and the Fraters were afterwards most hospitably entertained at tea by W. Bro. T. W. Tew D.P.G.M. for West Yorkshire.

In Memoriam.

We record with deep regret the death, at the early age of thirty-two years, of Bro. William George Wingrove, which event occurred at Isleworth on the 20th ult. By many of the brethren Bro. Wingrove will be remembered as the cheery proprietor of the Pier Hotel at Greenhithe, and those who had the good fortune to attend any of the numerous pleasure parties which were wont to assemble at that favourite resort last year will call to mind the genial and courteous young host who exerted himself so assiduously in ministering to their comfort and enjoyment. Last year Bro. Wingrove was elected to the highest position in his Lodge, the Emulation, No. 299, at Dartford, and carried out his duties in a manner that was highly creditable to himself and most satisfactory to the brethren, who at the termination of his year of office presented him with a valuable Past Master's jewel. In the early part of the present year, however, Bro. Wingrove purchased the interest in the Northumberland Arms Hotel at Isleworth, and the improvements he effected in that fine old-fashioned establishment bade fair to win back to it a popularity that had of late years considerably waned. He was, however, not permitted to see the issue of his well-intentioned efforts, for after a brief illness he was taken, leaving a wife and several children to mourn their loss. Deceased was genuinely beloved and respected by all who knew him, and by none have more heartfelt regrets been expressed than by those brethren amongst whom he took so leading and so active a part.

The Masonic symbols and ceremonies point to God. Without God these things are unmeaning. So it is with the principles of Masonry and its history. "The supreme Architect," as He is termed in the prayers and dedications of Masonry, is God. Strike out God, and Freemasonry has no object. It is not a temperance society, it is not a benefit distributing society, it is a society whose principles are emanations from God. Therefore profanity in your members is a shameful vice, and the profane brother is to be disciplined.—Rob Morris.

All business being disposed of, the Lodge was closed in due form.

Hermes Chapter, No. 77.—The last meeting of this Chapter for the season was held on Wednesday, the 13th inst., at the Old Falcon Hotel, Gravesend. The Town Regatta took place on the same day, and Gravesend was consequently en fête. The proceedings connected therewith, together with the opportunity afforded to the Companions to visit the United States frigate Trenton, then lying off the town, made their day's outing most pleasurable. After a pleasant trip by saloon steamer from London and a few hours spent in inspecting the above named vessel and the several incidents of a regatta, the Chapter was opened for business by Companions Woodward Z., Holden H., Swallow P.Z. as J., Cottebrune S.E., Murley

N., Hall P.S., Docker 1st A.S. There were also present Companions Scott P.Z., Kelso P.Z., Skilliter (mine host), &c. and Visitors —Companions from Pentangle Chapter No. 1174 Province of Kent, Penfold P.Z., White Z., Lieut.-Colonel Burton and Bate, Laxton Prov. G. Reg. of Middlesex, and J. G. Shand No. 25. The minutes of the previous convocation having been confirmed, Bro. M. Crook, Covent Garden Lodge, was duly exalted to the supreme degree. Routine business having been disposed of, Chapter was closed and the Companions dined together, mine host supplying a bountiful repast and dessert. The return journey by rail was made in safety, the Companions being thereby undismayed by the unfortunate collision which occurred on the same evening to the City of London, so near the spot which was the scene of the deplorable calamity the loss of the Princess Alice, about this time last year, and which would probably have interfered with their pleasure if they had returned by water.

York Lodge, No. 236.—On Monday last a meeting of this Lodge was held in the Masonic Hall. Present—Bros. A. Buckle W.M., J. Todd P.M. Prov. G. Reg., T. B. Whytehead P.M. Prov. Several notices on the agenda paper were discussed by the brethren, and, amongst other matters, it was decided that the initiation fees, which had been two years since raised to ten guineas, be reduced to the former amount of six guineas. It was also resolved that greater efforts be used in the cause of the Masonic Charities, and that an appeal be issued to the brethren of the Lodge. The Prov. Grand Master having signified his intention of presiding at the next Benevolent Festival, it is fully anticipated that the Lodges in the Province will make a great effort, and that a strong contingent of Stewards will support the Earl of Zetland on the occasion.

Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, No. 860.—On Tuesday evening last, at Bro. Smyth's, Sisters' Tavern, Pownall-road, Dalston. Bros. Forss W.M., Weige S.W., J. The usual toasts were given. Bro. Greenfield Treas. 1602, in replying to the Visitors' toast, called especal attention to the working of the acting W.M., which he stated he had never seen surpassed. Bro. P.M. Smeed is one of those from whom a great deal may be acquired by all who desire instruction. The brethren after passing a very happy evening, during which Bros. Pope, Skinner and Beard sang some excellent songs, separated at the reasonable hour of ten o'clock, in time to enable most of the party to be in town by eleven.

Corinthian Lodge, No. 1208.—A meeting of this Lodge took place at the Royal Hotel, Dover, on Monday, the 18th instant, under the presidency of Bro. Edwin Fenn W.M., assisted by Bros. James Holmes I.P.M. in the absence of the S.W., Bro. T. W. Prescott in the absence of the J.W., Bro. Walter S.D.; Bros. Inglesden J.D., Chamberlain I.G., and W. A. Smeeth P.M. Sec. The minutes of the previous Lodge were read and confirmed. Bro. Captain Clowes, of the 30th Regiment, having answered the usual questions in a satisfactory manner, was raised to the sublime degree of M.M. Bro. Potter was passed to the second degree. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned for refreshment, when a pleasant hour was spent. The Visitors were—Bros. W. I. Spicer P.M. Fitzroy 569, J. W. Terson 199, Reid and Robinson.

Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction, No. 1298.—held at the Alwyne Castle, Canonbury, on the 15th August. Present:—Bros. Cull W.M., Rowe S.W., Buderus J.W., Mendelsohn S.D., Rowley J.D., Boas I.G., P. Dickinson P.M. Acting Preceptor, G. H. Hunter Sec. pro tem, and Bros. Shackell P.M., Pearcy P.M., Eldridge P.M., Yeomans, Field, Pelikan, Williams, Chant, and Frampton. The ceremonies of initiation, passing, and raising, were rehearsed, Bro. Pelikan candidate, the W.M. gave the traditional history and explanation of the third tracing board. The third section of the lecture was worked. Lodge closed in the third and second degrees, and Bro. Row S.W. was elected W.M. for the following week, the officers in rotation. Bro. Pearcy P.M. received the hearty congratulations of the brethren on his recovery from a severe illness. The Lodge was then closed in ancient form, &c.

Lebanon Lodge, No. 1326.—The last regular meeting of this Lodge for the present year was held at the Lion Hotel, Hampton, on Saturday, the 16th inst. Bros. John B. Shackleton P.G.P. Middlesex P.M. 1524 W.M., E. Lucop, in the unavoidable absence of Bro. John Hammond, officiated as S.W., and the remaining offices were filled by the brethren appointed at the previous meeting, viz., J. W. Baldwin Prov. G. Standard Bearer J.W., Frederick Walters P.P.G.D. Middlesex P.M. Secretary, H. Gloster P.M. S.D., Thos. Stone J.D., Steinhauer I.G., F. Knight D.C., and John Gilbert Tyler. Amongst those present during the evening were Bros. James Stevens P.M. P.Z. Hon. Mem., T. W. Adams, John Thompson, C. W. Baker, J. E. Smith, F. Dye, J. McNaughten, W. J. Smith, A. J. Rogers, J. Lawrence, &c., and visitors Bros. W. A. Barrett P.M. 76, T. Butt J.W. 957, J. Hancock 1657, and T. M. Butt 1623. The minutes of the previous meeting were confirmed, and election made of Bro. C. Poulson 1309 as joining member. Bros. J. W. Smith and F. Dye were raised to the degree of M.M. Four propositions for initiation at next meeting were submitted, and it was intimated that probably a Lodge of emergency would be called for an early date. Three brethren were recommended to Prov. Grand Lodge for honours, and there being no further business before the Lodge it was closed with solemn prayer. After a ramble by the river side for about half an hour, the brethren again assembled, for refreshment. A very excellent and substantial "high tea" had been provided, to which all present did justice, and which appeared to afford more satisfaction than an elaborate and expensive banquet could have done. The usual Loyal and Masonic toast were honoured, to the accompaniment of a "grog and cigar," and a very pleasant and harmonious hour or two was passed before the 8.30 train whisked off the Metropolitan brethren to their respective homes. Bros. Barrett, Butt, Marsh and Stevens effectively aided the genial intercourse of the evening, the former producing a fine old song not often heard now-a-days, and the latter reciting in his most able manner his increasingly popular "Masons' Vows." Order, peace, and harmony ruled throughout the entire proceedings, and this meeting of the Lebanon Lodge will long be remembered with satisfaction by all those who had the privilege of being present.

Friars Lodge of Instruction, No. 1349.—Held at Bro. Pavitt's, the Liverpool Arms, Canning-town, E., on Tuesday, 19th August. J. Barker W.M., Andrews S.W., Pavitt J.W., Smith S.D., Johnson J.D., Spencer I.G., Worsley Sec., P.M. Musto Preceptor; Bros. White 408, Richardson, Ellis 124, Sadler, &c. The Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The Lodge was advanced to the second degree, when Bro. Richardson answered the questions leading to the sublime degree, and was entrusted; the Lodge opened in the third, and the ceremony of raising was rehearsed. Bro. Worsley worked the first section of the lecture, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Joshua Andrews then took the chair, and installed the various Officers into their respective seats, in a very effective and pleasing manner. Bro. Andrews is the W.M. elect of the Upton Lodge 1227, the installation meeting of which takes place on Thursday, the 21st instant, when Bro. P.M. Musto will perform the installation ceremony. Lodge was then closed in the first degree, and Bro. White 408 was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing week, when, it being the fourth Tuesday of the month, he will work the sections, assisted by Bros. Musto as S.W., Shepherd W.M. of 1349 as J.W. and P.M., Cundick as I.P.M. The following brethren will take the several sections:—1st Bro. Roberts, 2nd Worsley, 3rd Musto, 4th Barker, 5th Shepherd, 6th Andrews, 7th Pavitt, 8th Spencer, 9th Johnson, 10th Musto, 11th Smith, 12th Worsley, 13th White, 14th Pavitt, 15th Cundick; to commence at seven o'clock precisely. We hope there will be a good attendance, as the working of Bro. Andrews is generally much appreciated. The Summer Banquet of this Lodge of Instruction (ladies to accompany the brethren) will take place at the Crown Hotel, Broxbourne, on Thursday, 4th September. Further particulars will be inserted in this paper next week.

Royal Military Lodge of Instruction, No. 1449.—A Lodge of Instruction was held on the 18th of August at the Masonic Hall, Canterbury. Present:—Bros. Thos. Blamiers W.M., Bro. Hammond S.W., Bro. Price J.W., Bro. Lagden Sec., Bro. Miskin S.D., Bro. Wilson, J.D., Bro. Widgery I.G., also Bros. E. Beer W.M. 1449. Visitors—Bros. Davey 1566, Ellington, &c. Lodge was opened and the minutes of last Lodge of Instruction read and confirmed. The questions leading from the first to the second degree were regularly put and answered. The working tools were explained by Bro. Lagden in the second degree, and the charge delivered by Bro. Blamiers. The lecture on the tracing board was given ably and impressively; Brother Blamiers also explained the working tools of a Fellow Craft. Lodge was lowered, and nothing further having been offered for the benefit of Freemasonry, it was closed in due and ancient form with solemn prayer.

St. Martin's le Grand Lodge, No. 1538.—The installation meeting of this new Lodge was held on Tuesday, the 12th instant, at the London, Fleet-street, and was numerously attended by the brethren. Col. Burdett P.G.M. Middlesex, E. P. Albert P.G.P., F. Walters P.P.G.S.D. Middlesex, Frances P.P.G.J.D. Surrey, Captain Williams P.P.G.S.B. Middlesex, Major Williams P.M., and several other distinguished visitors were present. The W.M., Bro. F. B. Williams P.P.G.S.B. Middlesex, was supported by the Wardens and Officers. The Lodge was opened and the minutes were confirmed. Bro. Lattel was raised to the third degree, the work being performed in an impressive manner by the W.M. A Board of Installed Masters was then formed, and Bro. G. Gregory S.W. and W.M. elect was presented to the Lodge. Bros. Col. Burdett P.G.M. Middlesex, and E. P. Albert P.G.P. occupied the Wardens' chairs. Bro. Green was installed into the W.M.'s chair by Bro. Capt. Williams. The customary salutations were given, and the W.M. invested his Officers:—Bros. F. B. Williams I.P.M., Gibbs S.W., Moffatt J.W., Major Williams P.M. Treasurer, Capt. Williams P.M. Secretary, Dr. Lnish S.D., Roberteon J.D., Parks I.G., Hookey D.C., Stannard Org., Dixon Steward. A sum of ten guineas was voted for the purpose of presenting Bro. Williams with a secretary's jewel, for the eminent services he had rendered to the Lodge. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren sat down to a sumptuous and récherché banquet and dessert. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given, Bro. Colonel Burdett P. Prov. G.M. Middlesex returning thanks for the Grand Officers, and Bro. Frances P.P.G.J.D. Surrey responding for the Visitors. The health of the W.M.; the Installing Master; the Wardens and Officers, were in due course given, and ably responded to. The Tyler's toast concluded an agreeable evening.

Eboracum Lodge, No. 1611.—A meeting of this Lodge was held at York, on Monday, the 14th inst., the W.M. Bro. J. S. Cumberland presiding, supported by Bros. T. B. Whytehead P.M., G. Balmford P.M. and Treas., Bro. J. Hanly W.M. 237 (I.C.), and many other brethren. The attendance was not as large as usual, in consequence of many of the members being absent from home on their holidays. The business consisted in the initiation of Mr. Carter, after which some correspondence was read, and several valuable Masonic works, amongst them being Hughan's History of York Masonry, the property of the late Bro. T. Cooper, were handed over, by the deceased brother's wish, to the Lodge. A copy of Hughan's Provincial Directory for Cornwall was also received from the author, as well as an old plate of Montgomerie, Tyler of Grand Lodge, the gift of Bro. R. W. Hollon P.M. Bro. T. Humphries Assist. Secretary presented to the Lodge a bookcase for the use of the library, and for all these gifts votes of thanks were passed, and the Lodge was closed. On Monday last a committee meeting was held, for the purpose of making arrangements for the reception of the Provincial Grand Lodge, which is fixed for the 17th Sepetmber next at York, under the banner of the Eboracum Lodge. We understand that the programme of the day's proceedings is likely to include the meeting of the P.G. Lodge in the Guildhall, at York, a procession to the Cathedral, special service, and a banquet at the De Grey Rooms. It is anticipated that there will be a very large muster of brethren on this occasion, York being so central and the train facilities so great.

Royal Savoy Lodge, No. 1744.—An emergency meeting was held on Monday, 18th inst., at Ashley's Hotel, Covent-garden. Present:—Bros. James Willing jun. W.M., Smith acting S.W., F. W. Sillis acting J.W., Stiles acting S.D., J. Greenfield acting J.D., Cook I.G., Jacques Organist. There was but a small attendance of the members of the Lodge. Visitors Bros. Heyse and Gwyn 1602, &c. Business: Bros. P. W. Earle and G. R. Carter were raised to the third degree, and Brother Ramsden was passed. A ballot was successfully taken, and Messrs. J. Blundell, G. W. E. Thorn, W. Redstone, and C. H. Holland were initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry. Lodge was then closed in due form, and adjourned until October. Of the working of the W.M. it is unnecessary to say more than it was all that could be desired. It was fortunate the visitors and members had not to undergo the ordeal of a banquet, the want of ventilation being most distressing.

MANY of whom this question is asked will say, I can read it and write it, but can't speak it. A neat little volume for the Pocket has just been published by an Ex-Inspector of Public Schools; all the most useful verbs as used in ordinary conversation are therein embodied, alphabetically arranged on an entirely new plan, and printed in large type in French and English, a most rapid system, indispensible to teachers and other persons teaching themselves the language. THE OPENING OF THE SESSION.

THE Masonic Recess of 1879, which may be said to come to a close this day, has been one of great activity to members of the Craft. Indeed, up to within the last two or three weeks it has been our pleasure to record nearly as many Masonic gatherings as take place in the height of the regular season. The growing custom of holding summer festivals goes far to tide over the lull which occurs in the regular Lodge meetings during the summer months, and the annual gatherings of many of the Provincial Grand Lodges about the same time supplies further employment, and gives us additional opportunities of enjoying the country at the most pleasant part of the year. The work of the past, however, to-day only concerns us in so far as the results that may accrue from it are considered; doubtless care and deliberation have characterised each step that has been taken, and we can only hope that the result may prove satisfactory to those who took active parts, and that the transaction will be beneficial to the Craft in general.

Now, as regards the future. It is necessary ere we enter on a new Session that we should pause awhile, and take a survey of the prospect that lies before us. We start on the Masonic Season of 1879-80 in the midst of a great commercial depression, and however much we may wish to disconnect Freemasonry from the outer world we cannot wholly disassociate from it the general influences which govern the country. The Masonic Brotherhood must be successful in a great measure in proportion to the financial success of the country, and in times of depression members of the Craft cannot fail but to be affected by the same causes as govern every branch of commercial and social enterprise. It behoves us therefore to use greater caution before we undertake any new work, and we should consider most carefully the results which are likely to follow any course contemplated. More especially is this caution necessary in its application to the reception of new members; it is here that the evil effect of bad times will speedily develope itself, as affecting the candidates who apply for admission to the Order. Many worthy men, who may desire to enter the portals of Freemasonry, will be debarred from gratifying their wish when they reckon up the cost attending such a step; while others, less worthy, will take advantage of this fact to seek to obtain a participation in the benefits of the Order. The tendency in many of our Lodges, especially in large towns, is to accept any candidate that may be proposed rather than pass a season without having initiated one or more applicants. This indiscriminate admission, it is sometimes urged, is really a necessity if it be desired that the prestige of the Lodge should be kept up, as regards banquets, jewels, and other expenses which cannot be provided out of the regular subscription fees. In many cases a Worshipful Master does not like to run the risk of becoming unpopular by depriving brethren of the expected banquet after one or more of the regular meetings, which—had he the future prosperity of the Lodge at heart—he could plainly see the finances of the Lodge would not warrant his ordering. This state of things is much to be regretted, and we maintain that until the expense of banquets and other luxuries are kept within the bounds of actual subscriptions, a Masonic Lodge cannot be said to stand on a firm basis. So long as it is known that two or three members introduced into the Lodge will have the effect of changing a quiet supper into a luxurious banquet, we believe there will be brethren ready to propose candidates merely for the sake of eating and drinking up the initiation or joining fees thus unworthily obtained. In times of prosperity this course of proceeding is not so noticeable, but it creates a precedent in times such as the present which will be found very difficult to maintain.

Another item which calls for the exercise of care and discrimination, and which, perhaps, will affect the future of the Lodge in a greater measure than any other question the members may be called to decide upon is the choice of a Master for the following year. We are taught, such is the nature of our Constitution, that some must rule and teach, while others must submit and obey, and, it is added, humility in each is an essential qualification. The power we bestow on the brother who may have been so fortunate as to secure the suffrages of his brethren is so great that it gives him, virtually, supreme authority, and, however much his actions may seem to be controlled by the members of the Lodge, he, in a great measure, has unbounded sway. Thus, should he prove himself unable to use his authority with discretion, or omit that essential qualification we have already quoted, he may lead his Lodge into such a condition as must prove a serious impediment, if not act fatally to its future prosperity. It is not only necessary that he should have the power of mind needful to secure obedience, he should also possess tact sufficient to show him when it is advisable to give way to the wishes of his fellows. The Master should be very careful how he takes part in any discussion; indeed, in our opinion, it is the better course for him entirely to withhold his ideas unless appealed to by the brethren. When a discussion arises in a Lodge those brethren who take one side or the other are very apt to look upon the opposition, at least for the time, as foes; so that when the ruler himself sides with one party or the other it is seldom but that he earns the disapproval of a section of his Lodge. It would be far better had he listened to all that was said, and then, before putting the question to the Lodge, briefly, but uninterestedly, placed the arguments on both sides before the members, much in the same way as a judge would sum up a case prior to calling on a jury for their verdict. For the same reason, we urge that it is very unwise on the part of a Master to allow his name to appear as proposer or seconder of a candidate, or of any motion it may be contemplated to bring before the Lodge; such, in our opinion, amounts to a direct appeal to the brethren, and tends to show that the Master is in doubt whether he still has the support that placed him in the chair. Many brethren under such circumstances prefer to absent themselves rather than appear to oppose the ruler of the Lodge, although their idea on the question at issue may be the correct one. So far as regards the Master; but it is not the Master only that is enjoined to show humility, every member is expected to practise it, and thus alone can be secured that harmony and good feeling so essential to meetings in every branch of society, be it a Freemason's Lodge, a club or any other gathering. As we have already mentioned the power of the Master is all but supreme, and should the members find it desirable at any time to tighten the rein, or offer some check to his career, they should bear this in mind, and use caution before they offer opposition. They must remember that for them to appear at all dictatorial must be hurtful to the feelings of him who, by their own voice, is exalted to the position of ruler, and therefore any suggestion that the course the Master is pursuing is wrong should be made in private and not made to appear as a bomb-shell suddenly before him in open Lodge. Of course we do not wish to imply that open censure is to be abandoned altogether, but that it should be the last course to resort to is certain.

We seem to have digressed somewhat in so far that we have referred to the work the Master will be called upon to perform ere we have considered the important question, Who shall be elected? Doubtless the first answer to this question, or certainly the one that is given in most Lodges is—The Senior Warden. The wisdom of adopting such a course is apparent. Usually the brother who fills the position of principal officer has worked his way up from one or other of the minor positions, and has in the time thus passed learned the peculiarities of the members and the general tendency of their wishes. If he is a man willing to bow to the voice of the majority, and is possessed of a genial disposition, we doubt if any better brother could be elected, for by rote he is entitled to the promotion, and above all has that knowledge of the Lodge, which personal experience alone can secure, but, unfortunately, it is very difficult to decide whether a brother is possessed of the qualities we have referred to. As Senior Warden, or indeed ever since he entered the Lodge, he may have been looked up to as desirous of promoting the comfort of his companions, but he may have cherished ideas of what he will do when in the chair, which no one but himself is aware of, and although he may consider the enforcement of these views necessary for the good of the members, he may contemplate harsh steps to secure their consummation. As it is impossible to form any idea of what may be in store for us, we are compelled in a measure to act in the dark, but we think there should not be much doubt of the general tendency of a brother who has been in office for a term of four or more years. On the other hand, if it be deemed advisable by the Past Masters or others, who in a measure guide the Lodge, to reject the Senior Warden, we think they should take some steps to inform that brother of their decision; it is at least as easy for them to pay a visit to the one chiefly affected, and explain their ideas, as it is for a party to visit each member of the Lodge, and, behind the back of the brother, set forth particulars which, true, or untrue, influence the voting when the night of election arrives. As men, but above all, as Masons, they would deserve greater applause did they act in a straightforward manner and explain to the Senior Warden their reasons for wishing him not to take the office of Master. If their reasons were sound, that brother in most cases would retire from the contest, and save thereby the upset of a rejection on the ballot; but if unsound, how much better it would be to have discovered the error before it was too late to remedy it. Trifling as this question of canvassing and influencing the votes is regarded by some, it is in reality a very serious offence. Every Past Master, ere he took his obligation as W.M. elect, promised in solemn Masonic form to avoid piques and quarrels, and yet how often do we find them quietly allowing, or even taking part in securing the rejection of a certain brother when the time of election approaches. Can a worse clique exist in a Lodge than that which can secure the rejection of any motion that does not exactly coincide with the views of its leaders.

CASTE.

ALMOST everybody has heard of the Irishman who, when twitted with being nowhere in the race, comforted himself with the reflection, "Well, I drove them all before me like a flock of sheep!" Such, it appears to us, is the position of not a few of our brethren who, instead of endeavouring by application and perseverance to rise like Sauls amongst their fellows, are content to allow others the undisputed sway of even their own imperfect acquirement of our system. Paradoxical as it may sound to speak of caste where all "meet upon the level and part upon the square," such a definition is, in a certain sense, admissible, even in Freemasonry. True, the principles of our Order, and the precepts which are bound up with its very existence, tend to level all distinctions; within the Lodge the brethren meet on an equality, the perfection of which is nowhere else to be attained. But, in spite of this grand fraternal axiom, which is tacitly recognised in every well-regulated Lodge, there are different traits in the characters of the brethren with whom we are accustomed to meet, and which publish audibly the truth of the old Shakesperian motto, "the mind's the standard of the man." Apply the subject to any Lodge with whose constituent parts we are, any of us, familiar, and the justice of the remark will be amply borne out in our reader's experience. Given, that all are induced to join the ancient and honourable institution from a good opinion preconceived of its moral and social advantages—who aspire to become the instruments of diffusing a wise and beneficent system with which even the outer world, so far as it has the opportunity of forming an opinion, must cordially agree, it would be contrary to Masonic honesty to believe that any were tempted to enlist under our banner from "mercenary or other unworthy motives;" and we are bound to believe that every initiate is imbued with the most strictly upright and legitimate intentions when he has been admitted to the first glimpses of Masonic light. But how often do we find that these intentions become lax and diluted, even as are the rays of light shining through a focus reversed? The enthusiasm which is kindled by the first acquaintance with the sublime ceremonies, the admiration which is stirred by the early study of the purest principles of piety and virtue, too frequently cool down after the first flush of pleasurable surprise; and how common is the remark from brethren who thus grow lukewarm—that they can "see nothing in it." It is just here that the question of moral and intellectual caste betrays itself. Some, with keen perception of the intrinsic beauties of the Craft, press forward with the laudable ambition of drinking deeper of the well of knowledge, fired with a pardonable ambition in their desire to overreach their fellows in the stretching out after truth. Without blazoning forth to the world their longings to soar into the ranks of dignity and office, we see them plodding industriously on, mastering the successive details of their avocation, until the expertness which is the result of patient study secures for them the inevitable reward of being raised head and shoulders above the rest. Their primary object in becoming Freemasons was not that some day they should be attired in gaudy regalia and glittering jewels, and have the pleasure of affixing the coveted initials of distinction to their names. Theirs is not merely the service of the lip and of show, but of the heart; and here, as in every other grade of life, the race is to the swift, and to the strong. Others who have joined from motives of equal integrity find the process slow and fatiguing,—it may be either from mental weakness, or inability to take a firm grip of the principles and tenets which are embodied in our symbolic ceremonies. They admire, and even appreciate, the grandeur of our Masonic rites; their hearts are stirred by the sublime appeals which are made for the exercise of those attributes of brotherly love, relief and truth, which are the very keystone of the brotherhood. But somehow they lack the intellectual calibre and the steady determination which constitute the motive power in all life's achievements, and the sequel is that apathy and lethargy set in, and instead of carrying on the work so well inaugurated, they fall back into the common ranks, and keep but a feeble hold, if any at all, on the leading strings of progress, which were placed firmly in their hands on the day of initiation. These are but two aspects of the case in which Masonic caste is to be defined. But, let us ask, are there not other, and even more regrettable, evidences of a diversity of intellectual weight in the constitution of our Lodges? Can we not point to individuals who regard conviviality and lavish expenditure as the very ne plus ultra of Masonic enjoyment. There are "cubs" in every stratum of society, and Freemasonry would be something more than a human institution if it escaped the taint. The "cub" revels in the brilliancy of his jewellery, the cut of his coat and collar, the récherché character of his get-up. He eschews the study of the ritual as being too "heavy" and intellectual. He is the mainstay and support of the fourth degree, and is ever ready to obey the welcome call of the Junior Warden. He comes in late from his club, breaks profusely into blandishments and smiles, and his description of anything pleasant as "awfully jolly" forms the staple of his talk. Though a stickler for the equality and fraternity of Masonry as an abstract principle, he avoids as much as possible his brethren who are less favoured as to social position and "appearances," and speaks of his fellow-creatures as "cads," with the exception of a few kindred spirits, whom he designates as "men," or "fellows"—never as brethren or gentlemen. He never "goes in" for any work of charity or Masonic study himself; nor do any of his acquaintances—so he does not care.

Of the thousand elegances and graces of the past this ornamental brother knows nothing. Of old English literature—even of modern writing—he knows nothing. He looks upon Past Masters and Provincial Grand Officers as men who require his patronage, more from the honourable marks of distinction they wear than from the mental labour they have undergone in the process of acquiring them. The picture is severe, but is it not too true? Do we not find in many Lodges men of this languid, dawdling type, who regard position as "an awful bore," and who, if their vanity is not pampered by obsequious attentions, soon cool down, and eventually drop out of the firmament which declines to reflect their glitter and glare? And if, perchance, from reasons that may seem desirable, an attempt is made to elevate this "cub" into a position in which sobered example may be turned to good account, what a task is undertaken by the charitable and voluntary preceptor! As the tutor engaged to coach his pupil, to pull him through an examination, is often regarded with contempt by his "pup" (short for pupil), so very often is the honest and pains-taking preceptor who takes in hand this promising undergraduate. He might contrive, by that wondrous concentration which practice in one peculiar capacity confers upon humanity, to lick his protégé into a kind of education; just as men of low intelligence train dogs, monkeys, mice, and birds to perform tricks at command. He might be crammed sufficiently to pass the chair, assisted over the stony paths of hard work by kindly Past Masters, but his year of office will eventuate in no credit to the Lodge, or benefit to its members. And, after he has handed down the gavel he has scarcely known how to wield, he will relapse into the same listless apathy as that from which he had been temporarily aroused, the only exception being that he will dangle from his button-hole the P.M.'s jewel, which has been given him more out of compliment than appreciation. There are many other phases of Caste to which we may refer—the man who makes Masonry a vehicle for pushing his trade, who flaunts the emblems upon his shop-front, business-card, or sign-board; who employs it as a means of securing "influence" which shall assist him into a position in life; or who regards it as a passport to Society, without which he could not "mix" with those above him. But why enumerate them all? Surely we have said sufficient to illustrate the design of this article, and to prove that its title is not an empty one, even when applied to Masonry. That equality is recognised and acted upon in its truest sense with regard to the Order generally, and that it finds its truest exemplification in our Lodges, it would be affectation on our part to dispute; but that there are exceptions to this, as to every other rule, is abundantly evident to even the most casual observer of our system. It is as impossible to eradicate the presence of caste in any society as it is to change the orbits of the planets, and that being so it may be vain to point to the subject at all. Our only aim is that, by referring to it, we may possibly do some little in the way of reducing to a minimum the sins of omission and commission which every true-hearted and right-thinking Mason must deplore.

SUMMER MASONRY.

FROM THE "KEYSTONE."

THERE is considerable difference between Summer and Winter Masonry, although both are admirable. They have divers fields of action. Winter Masonry is practised chiefly in the Lodges. There we regularly meet our brethren, work up new material, administer charity, and instruct and entertain each other. Although often a month elapses between the meetings, it flies swiftly by, so that the communications appear to occur much more frequently than according to the regulations set down in the bye-laws. The labour and refreshment are so well adjusted to each other, and both are so congenial to the tastes and education of Craftsmen, that a Mason scarcely knows a pleasure superior to that of statedly meeting with his brethren, and aiding his fellows who may be in distress. Winter Masonry, therefore, combines activity with variety, and we trust and believe that the time will never come when the Fraternity shall cease to shower blessings upon the heads of all who engage in its labour of love. But what about Summer Masonry?

During the heated term, and especially during the month of August (upon which we have lately entered), as a rule, the Lodge Rooms are closed. If the brethren meet, it is likely—in the cause of refreshment, pure and simple—to indulge in a Masonic picnic, or excursion; or, it may be, to pay the last fraternal honors to the remains of a departed brother over his grave. The one gathering is as sad as the other is joyous. The one points to immortality, the other to time. The one is the most joyous refreshment, the other the most melancholy labour. But this is not all of Summer Masonry.

What is the very essence of Freemasonry, the soul that animates the body? Is it not the spirit of fraternity prevailing throughout the Craft—that fellow feeling which David Garrick so truly said, "makes one wondrous kind?" And how much of this there is among Masons out of the Lodge! We are often reminded to practise out of the Lodge those virtues we are taught within it, and one of the most signal of these virtues is brotherly love, the very bond and essence of Freemasonry. There is no place that we can go, so long as we do not entirely separate ourselves from our fellows, where we may not exercise, and ourselves receive the benefit of, this spirit of fraternity. It is the greatest of the triune virtues, and the opportunities for its display are manifold.

During the summer season we are apt to form many new acquaintances, whether we are at home or abroad. It does not take one long to discover whether he is introduced to a Brother Mason. The fact may be unintentionally divulged to a wide-awake brother in many ways; and to one who is not so wide awake, a ponderous Masonic jewel worn for ornament may serve as a placard to give notice of the claims of the wearer. However we may discover that he is in truth a brother; once having discovered it, there immediately springs up a cordiality that is born of knowledge, kinship, and is a fountain of pleasure to all who share in it. A man who is a Freemason is never among strangers. Go where he may, within the bounds of civilization, and sometimes, also, without its bounds, and he finds in every land a home, and every where a brother. We have met with brethren, strangers to us at first, but afterwards the closest of friends, on mountain tops, and in mines in the bowels of the earth, on the ocean, and in the wilderness. We have started upon a journey alone, and finished it surrounded by brethren. Such is not a unique experience—all have shared in it who have travelled, whether near or far.

In the Lodge-room we meet with visiting brethren who are certified to us as such, but during the limited time that we are thus together, comparatively few opportunities arise for the enjoyment of prolonged friendship. It is different in the outside world. There we are our own committee of examination. There we are by ourselves, it may be—at all events not in the midst of a throng of brethren as in the Lodge-room, and a Masonic acquaintance is appreciated the more. There we are out of the immediate circle of influence of Masonry, and under these circumstances it is more than gratifying to learn that Freemasonry is a life, and not simply a theory; and that it not only permeates large bodies, but is distributed liberally to each individual member when separated from the parent Lodge, and afloat on the sea of life We do not know how it may have struck others, but it has always seemed to us that Freemasonry in the world was, if possible, more real, more tangible, more enjoyable, than Freemasonry within the tyled precincts of the Lodge.

We feel inclined to invoke blessings upon the dog-days, because they introduce us to Summer Masonry. By the sea-side, and on the sea; on lake, and mountain side; on prairie and in the wilderness, wherever a Mason travels, he surely meets with, and profits by, the spirit of Fraternity. He may not need material aid, but all of us at all times enjoy the ministry of brotherly love. All hail, then, Summer Masonry!

In Memoriam.

It is with deep regret we announce the death, which took place on the 24th inst., of Bro. George Kelly King, well known to many of our readers by his connection with the Alexandra Palace Lodge, No. 1541. From the Sussex Daily Post we extract the following:—

"Deceased was well known in Brighton many years ago as secretary and manager of a local Fire and Life Assurance Company, which afterwards became merged into the Sun Office, and in connection with which the Brighton Mutual Provident Society was first brought forward. A great lover of cricket, he subsequently became attached to Lords Ground and the Oval, as offical scorer, and also became a recognised contributor in all cricketing matters to the principal sporting papers. About two years ago he took over a brewery business at Hurstpierpoint, which unfortunately proved most disastrous, and the trouble of this, attendant on general weak health, must have hastened his decay. As a Freemason he was held in high esteem. He had served the Office of Master of two Lodges, was mainly instramental in forming the Horsham Lodge, and but a few months back (with the assistance of a few friends he established the Southdown Lodge at Hurstpierpoint.)"

The funeral of Bro. King took place on Wednesday, at Croydon, where for the last few months the deceased had been residing. In addition to several old and private friends and relations, there were present the following members of the "Southdown" Lodge, No. 1797, at Hurstpierpoint:—Bro. James Curtis (S.W. and now acting W.M.), Bro. E. Broadbridge (Secretary), and Bro. Dayson (S. John's College), also Bro. Frank Holford ("Yarborough" Lodge), an old friend of the family. The Burial Service, the first part of which was fully choral, was performed at the Church of S. Michael and All Angels; the body was interred in the Croydon Cemetery. Deceased will long be missed and mourned by a numerous circle of friends, to whom his genuine worth had endeared him. He leaves a widow to bewail her loss, which will be equally felt in London, Horsham, Hurstpierpoint, and Brighton.

ORATION,

5TH JUNE 1879.

BY BRO. LUCIEN C. BLANCHARD.

MOST WORSHIPFUL GRAND MASTER AND BRETHREN:

HITHERTO, on these occasions, you have had brethren of distinguished ability speaking to you choice words of wisdom from minds well stored by long experience in high places in our noble Order. To-day it is appointed you to hear the more humble and hurried words of one coming from the busy quarries, so to speak—the active duties of business life—one who, while offering for your consideration such suggestions as seem to him appropriate to the occasion, is yet frank enough to admit that his zeal and devotion to an Order which teaches him to shrink from no duty assigned him has led him to assume a task which, under ordinary circumstances, would seem presumptuous. Before and around me sit the sages of Masonry—gleaners who have passed over the field, and garnered with such frugality that little more is left for me than to pick up a straw here and there and add to their golden sheaves. But individuals are not born sages; the bud and blossom precede the mellow fruit, and knowledge is attained only by weary marches over a toilsome road. If, by persistent effort, I have at length become bold enough to presume to instruct those who need it far less than myself I shall have the soothing consolation of knowing that my weakness is at least common to that large class in every community who seem to have no other avocation than to give advice to those around them.

If it is true that Masonry makes its votaries wiser, better, and consequently happier, then it ought to be received with general favor. Seclusion begets selfishness, and where self is made the common centre, everything is made to revolve around it, like systems around their suns. Self impedes progress, stifles investigation, smothers the moral elements of man's nature, pursues virtue and all goodness, and silences conscience. Thus, the miser and the hermit, seeking to live in little worlds of their own creation, shun society, and with rigid conservatism, apply the brakes to the wheels of progress, and seek the darkness of seclusion by making their abodes in cheerless garrets, and even in caverns and forest jungles.

But consociation cements the elements of the moral and physical world into one compact body, which we denominate society. It produces the unseen and intangible fibres of that cohesive power which forms civil or political government. We seek a common basis for a common fellowship; and in the mystic ties that bind us together, in the felicity of intimate social relations, in the facile avenues which lead to the confidential and inviolable interchange of thought and feeling, in the beautiful forms and ceremonies which cement and unify while they charm and enlighten, in the warm sympathy engendered by kindred feelings, in the broad charity which recognises the universal brotherhood of man, are found those principles of virtue which are binding upon mankind as members of society. Destroy this, and all kindred societies, civilization would be little better than barbarism—the invisible and intangible chords which hold governments together would be severed, chaos would succeed law and order, and communistic fires would soon level the accumulations of centuries. That man needs and must have society, all must agree.

Masonry has defiantly braved the storms of many centuries. Its benignant rays have illuminated the shores of every country where civilization has found a lodgment, and, keeping pace with the onward march of events, it has visited the islands of the seas in its errand of mercy; and in our own fair republic are found to-day more than six hundred thousand who have learned its stern and pure precepts, as they are found written all over the lofty frieze of that venerable temple whose chambers you have entered. Its creed is upright and honorable. The clear and lofty language in which it is expressed needs no argument to elucidate its principles, and no eloquence to enforce its obligations. It seems to possess almost the sacred savor of Divine inspiration, and to enforce with appropriate forms and ceremonies the principles of Sinai's original but broken tablets.

The rights and duties of Masons are not greater or different from the rights and duties of other men. Those rights are the free enjoyment of such privileges as are vouchsafed to mankind by Divine law and such human laws as harmonise with the Divine law. Our duties are the fulfilment of our obligations under such laws, both to God and to our fellow men. But Masonry has for its object the attainment of those rights and the enforcement of such obligations. In the light of these duties, the willing ear receives the friendly admonition when temptations or dangers beset the pathway, and receives, perhaps, from the faltering lips of a revered brother, such counsel as might be sought in vain from the crowded strands of the busy world.

All good men are not Masons, and it may be admitted, frankly, that all Masons are not good men. But this neither proves that Masonry is beneficial or harmful, as the same is also true of all benevolent societies. If we were to apply the square and the plumb to the most charitable of institutions, or even to the orthodox churches, which have been, and still are, doing such a noble work for the advancement of mankind, intellectually, morally, and spiritually, and if, tested by these unyielding and rigid implements, we exclude all imperfections, and require exact measurements, I fear that few members would be left to pay their quarterage. The test of merit is said to be success; and, whatever may be our professions or scheme, however powerfully supported by argument, it must be ever true that Masonry will be judged by the moral character of its votaries; and it is, therefore, a truism which must be universally admitted, that the interests of the Order imperatively demand the highest traits of character in every one who voluntarily assumes to wear its charitable mantle. We are not bold enough to say that there are not those who clothe themselves with its raiment the better to accomplish selfish ends—perchance hoping that it may shield them from some misdeed, or promote some scheme to attain position and power. How sadly they misjudge, they learn when they meet the discomfiture which their folly justly merits. The fair temple of Masonry has no room for such men, and they have but a faint conception of the objects and purposes of the institution who thus seek to debase it to their own level. Every high-minded and cultivated society will demand high-minded and cultivated members, as herein lies the surest bulwark of defence against assaults from within and without. The society that demands less than this—that fails to require a high standard of morality and intelligence—ought to perish from the face of the earth. Could we divest our minds of the vicious thought that Masonry will help us whether we help ourselves—that it is in some way our debtor—that it owes us something grand and noble—power, position, fame—we should be the better prepared to receive its pure precepts and to profit by its sublime principles.

I repeat, that there is no place in the sacred temple for selfish schemes. Their presence saps the foundation of its venerable walls. They belong with the idlers and vagabonds who infest life's highways, and who make night hideous with the robber's cry that the world owes them a living. The Order owes to the one what the world owes to the other—a short rope and a stout limb.

Of all species of slavery, ignorance is the most deplorable. Something more is required than to learn the forms and rituals. If we would be worthy of the age in which we live, we must quicken our steps so as to keep pace with the onward march of progress. Science sits peering into the hidden mysteries of nature, ever evolving and developing some new principle, or unfolding the powers of some new combination which an all-wise Providence has held in reserve for the wants of man as he advances, step by step, toward the ideal—the perfect man. The discoveries within our own age have been no more marvellous to our comprehension than in the changes already wrought in business and commerce, as well as in the habits, and even in the morals, of our people. The possibilities of the future are beyond our comprehension. Nature, in the economy of her benevolence, has hoarded its latent powers, as she has the vast fields of coal and minerals, until man has sufficiently developed for their use. The Great Master demands progress of us all; and that society which relies alone for its stability upon its ancient traditions and ritualistic forms, careless alike of the intelligence and virtue of its members, will find its walls crumbling with the dry rot of ages, and its usefulness at an end. The highest standard of moral philosophy, not less than the economy of political government, requires men of knowledge, of thought, of progress. We do not pass through the rituals of the Order, as one passes through a door—to leave it behind. The great lights are ever shining upon us. The tenets, pure and elevated, guide us through the lights and shadows, circumscribing our actions, and, failing to keep us within due bounds, they will plant thorns far down in the tender depths of an ever-wakeful and troubled conscience.

Problematical as life is, it needs all the aids which an enlightened society can give. The ritualistic forms are the aids, not the ends, of Masonry. Their purposes are pure and simple. The years of early manhood are not given to be wasted, and the energies of zealous natures are too precious to be thrown away. Each one of us needs what is wrought by others. If we walk in the dim light of selfish seclusion, the world will profit little by our lives, and will mourn less at our departure. But combined results are ever leading to new developments and perpetual advancement. The man who tills the soil feeds the miner, the miner supplies the forge, and the forge produces metal which the mechanic wields into ten thousand forms for the use of all. The philosopher discovers the principle, conceives the machine, which his hands are not cunning to execute; but the mechanic, with quick apprehension and deft fingers, grasps the plan which he was unable to devise, and produces the marvel of mechanism, which lessens life's burdens for all, and advances society in physical and moral prosperity.

And thus it is with knowledge or with labor not corporeal. Knowledge in one field advances knowledge in other fields. As the minister acquires knowledge in theology, the physician in medicine, and the lawyer legal knowledge—each one the lore pertaining to his vocation—society receives the information it requires, and profits by their joint labors. By harmonious and united action, we too shall be able to advance, not alone our individual interest, but the welfare of society; and it will be found that the usefulness of our institution will be measured by the extent to which it may be made available in the education and improvement of the human race. The Divine injunction, "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou earn thy bread," is as applicable to the labor of mind as of hands—

> "Evil is wrought
> By want of thought,
> As well as by want of heart."

There were no idlers lounging around King Solomon's temple, and, as we are informed, each one was required to work according to the designs upon the trestle-board. While yet in the vigour of youth, we must draw our designs with care, or our work will not be effective. Robust hands may build ephemeral temples, but it is ours to build for that temple more enduring than earthly temples—eternal in the heavens. All else will pass away—

> "The cloud-capt towers, the gorgeous palaces,
> The solemn temples, the great globe itself—
> Yea, all which it inherits—shall dissolve,
> And like an insubstantial pageant, faded,
> Leave not a rack behind."

Our course in life is laudable in proportion to its general usefulness, and any one who is called upon to exercise any privilege, or fill any station, is bound to qualify himself for its functions by obtaining an understanding of the true character and objects of his work. Only the well-informed and well-disciplined are competent to investigate the science and execute the demands of social economy, and thus solve the problem how we can best employ the vast resources of the universe—physical, mental, and moral—for the use of man. No institution framed by man, and perfected by the wisdom of centuries, can be known by intuition. Capacity, intelligence, and virtue must exist; and where these are wanting, it can never be fully comprehended. The seed, however rich it may be, if planted in a barren soil, will fail to bring forth fruit. It is no disparagement to any one that he has been compelled to enter life with scanty opportunities; but the future lies before him, and he deserves little credit if he fails to make the most of that. The fruit of the grafted tree is as rich as the seedling whence the germ was taken, but the flavor of the crab is not changed by cultivation. The dangers to the prosperity of our venerable Order cannot be overrated, if left to the conceit of ignorance, the madness of prejudice, or the blindness of obstinacy. The ancient landmarks are not to be lost sight of, nor must we ignore the counsels and teachings of our venerable sages. Valuable thoughts on any subject come only from those who have pondered them, and no one is a safe counsellor unless he possesses extensive knowledge or much familiarity with his subject. Our sacred trusts are safe only when left within the capacity of intelligent minds—and even these will need all the prudence which vigilance can guard, all the integrity which enlightened conscience can bestow, all the devotion of self-sacrificing fealty, and all the sympathy which great hearts can give. Speculating visionaries may conjure up doubts as to the merits of our institution, but if the members are taught the knowledge of its principles, and the observance of its duties, then will the public heart be kept sound, and the public head clear, against both well-meaning and unfair criticisms.

"It is the mind that makes the body rich,
And as the sun breaks through the darkest clouds,
So honor peereth in the meanest habit.
What! is the jay more precious than the lark
Because his feathers are more beautiful?
And is the adder better than the eel
Because his painted skin contents the eye?"

When the train has thundered along through the darkness of the night, bearing its human freight in safety over mountains and across the valleys, around rugged cliffs, over dark chasms and streams and floods, as it halts at the station ten minutes for refreshments, the passengers eagerly crowd out to seize a hasty repast, and let us be charitable enough to anticipate that they will return satisfied and refreshed. But in the meantime some cautious individual, with hammer in hand, passes along under the coaches and clinks each wheel to test its soundness. His practised ear detects the slightest defect, but if the sound ring is heard, he passes on with satisfaction. So it may be the wisdom of precaution for us from time to time to clink the ancient walls of our fair temple, and if the sound ring is wanting, if mistaken zeal has introduced unsound material, it must be plucked out and thrown among the rubbish. Vigilance in guarding well the outer gates, as well as fidelity to the trusts committed to our care, will preserve the noble edifice, and prevent its becoming an asylum of ignorance. As virtue is preferable to vice, so is knowledge to be preferred to ignorance. The rays of light are more congenial than the shades of night; none but the depraved in heart choose darkness rather than light. And when life's cares press heavily, when bodily and mental re'axation is sought, it will be found in society; and if not found in a society formed for mutual fellowship, it will be sought in more sinful and depraved circles:

"To view alone
The fairest scenes of land and deep,
With none to listen and reply
To thoughts with which my heart beat high,
Were irksome; for whate'er our mood,
In sooth we love not solitude."

Whatever we may say of Masonry—of its social benefits, its pure principles and elevated moral standard—its distinguishing and grand characteristic is charity. The brethren of this jurisdiction, who, since our last Communication, have responded so liberally to the cry of distress as it came up from the plague-stricken cities of the South, have demonstrated anew that the lessons of the Order have not been taught in vain. Our brethren of the South saw the poisoned cloud of desolation and death settle down in its awful gloom over their fair land. The more timid fled in consternation from the impending gloom. Others, with noble fortitude and manly heroism, remained to care for the sick and bury the dead, until they, too, fell victims to the wrath of pestilence. High and low, rich and poor, succumbed to the merciless sweep of desolation which no human skill could arrest. When their busy streets had been deserted, and the sick or dead filled almost every home, and their land was one vast Ramah of weeping and lamentation, then came the wail of despair and the cry for help—help to care for the living, help to bury the dead. And it came not in vain. Liberally as the charitable citizens of our great commonwealth responded to the call for aid, it will be found that none responded with more alacrity and liberality than the members of our Order. As a citizen of our State, I feel an honest pride in the patriotism and glorious achievements of the seventy-five thousand soldiers who, in the hour of their country's peril, left their peaceful homes and followed the flag of their country through the perils of war, on land and sea, until the last enemy of Freedom had laid down his arms. And I feel almost an equal pride in the manifestations of sympathy and charity by our citizens, and especially by the brethren of this jurisdiction, toward that same people, when the "pestilence that walketh in darkness, and wasteth at noonday," was desolating many a cheerful home, and brooding like an incubus over the land—more deadly than war, more terrible than the wrath of man. We felt the tender throbbing of the mystic chords which bind us together—chords which even a fratricidal war could not sever—and great hearts full of sympathy beat in unison with their brethren in distress. Thus may it ever be. Let us fail not to cultivate the cardinal virtue, charity—"a charity which suffereth long, and is kind; which vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up; doth not behave itself unseemly, and which thinketh no evil."

And now, brethren—

"Our toil is o'er; the time has come
When we must say farewell—
Each one to seek his cherished home,
Where all his loved ones dwell."

In these brief remarks I have not sought to explore unknown fields, or even to present new thoughts. If little of originality is found in them, it must be remembered that Masonry is not new. It reaches its soft hand of love and charity down to us from the centuries of the buried past, whose records are obscured behind the dim twilight of tradition. We clasp the invisible hands of those whose forms and history are covered by the mists of darkness of pre-historic times.

Attention has been directed to some of the dangers that may beset us. We are aware that there are persons of social and moral standing who seek to level the walls of our noble edifice. From them we have little to fear. We have more cause for alarm within the temple.

It is said that there is found in the rugged mountains of the far West a most beautiful lake, whose waters of unfathomable depth are surrounded on every side by perpendicular rocks, rising thousands of feet above the surface below. Storms may come, winds may blow, but they disturb not its rest. The fierce tornado which sweeps across the plain, destroying everything in its course, fails to produce even a ripple upon its ever-calm waters. Thus securely shall our Order be guarded if we observe a strict adherence to the cardinal virtues. If our bond of union is not relaxed; if ignorance and indolence are alike discouraged; if fidelity shall guard the outer gates; if the spirit of brotherly love shall animate each heart, and we teach and practise sound doctrine, these shall be the walls that shall guard us from the criticisms and attacks, from what source soever, as securely and as everlastingly as are the waters of the mountain lake. Then, too, will the mists that hover over us be cleared away, and it may be said, "Peace has been within our walls, and prosperity within our palaces."

PAST MASTERS' PRIVILEGES.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—The inquiry of your correspondent "W. S. L." in last week's CHRONICLE opens up a subject for thoughtful consideration as to the full intent and meaning of the Regulations of Grand Lodge in respect of the qualifications of Past Masters, particularly as regards their position in Grand Lodge and Provincial Grand Lodges. "W. S. L." correctly states the conditions expressed in the Book of Constitutions at section 1, page 18, and section 2, page 52, and the reasoning by analogy that the same requirements as to continued membership apply to both Grand and Provincial Lodges appears to be logical and sound. So far, therefore, I apprehend but one answer could have been given to his inquiry. But he has proceeded to adduce as an instance a circumstance which does not apparently affect the question of membership of a private Lodge, without which membership the privileges of Grand Lodge cannot be enjoyed. In fact the "instance" does not apply in the least to the previous question. It merely raises the point as to whether the Past Master's rank is due to a brother who has not served the Office of Worshipful Master for the full period of one year from date of installation. Now what says the Book of Constitutions as to this? At page 59, section 2, we find "Every Lodge shall annually elect its Master, and at the next meeting after his election, when the minutes are confirmed, he shall be duly installed, &c." That certainly determines the time of election and the period for which the Office is to be held. From the date of the confirmation of the minutes the brother appointed is the Master of the Lodge and is entitled to installation. It cannot be withheld from him, any more than a Lodge can withhold from a F.C. the degree of M.M., which he can claim as a right. At page 74, section 1 of the Book of Constitutions, we read, "No Master elect shall assume the Master's chair until he shall have been regularly installed, though he may in the interim rule the Lodge." Therefore there can be no doubt that although his installation may be deferred, for various reasons, as ill health, absence, or other unforeseen causes, and he cannot occupy the chair of K.S., he is nevertheless virtually the ruler and can appoint his Wardens and Officers for the year in the ordinary manner. His installation at some period of his year of Office is doubtless absolutely necessary to secure him continuing privileges, but is not positively requisite to prevent his ruling during his appointed year. Consequently, he will have executed his Office for the proscribed period, and his Wardens will also have been executive Officers for the term necessary to qualify them for the Master's chair at the next annual period of election within the Lodge.

Yours fraternally,

QUIDNUNC.

A CAUTION.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Through the medium of your paper I am desirous of putting the Almoners of Lodges and other members of the Craft on their guard with respect to one who called on me on the 20th inst., and gave his name as William John Hutchinson, Hiram Lodge, No. 97, Belfast, but whose real or assumed name, I am led to believe, is Thomas Blain, and whose address was, in June last, No. 14 Dock Street, Belfast. On his first application I referred him to the Almoner, but he shortly after returned and informed me that that brother was not at home; he was about half an hour too late for him. (This I have since discovered is untrue, as the Almoner was at home, and was told by this individual that I had sent him, and he was relieved and receipt taken for the same). He thereupon gave me his name and produced a certificate, and very smartly answered the three or four questions I put to him. I relieved him, and as he begged hard for some old clothes—his being shabby and wet through—gave him a coat and vest. He again shortly returned, with some letters he found in the pockets, and inadvertently left his own letters and certificate, which has led me to take further interest in this individual. I immediately wrote off to Chichester and Arundel, and have since learned that he applied for relief the next morning at Chichester, but as he could not answer the questions put to him he soon cleared out. He says "That he is a mechanical draftsman; has lately returned from America, which he much regrets, and hopes soon to return again. Has a son in the R.E., who is on the Ordnance Survey Branch, and has lately been to Aldershot to try and find his whereabouts." One of the letters has been re-addressed to Aldershot.

Description:—About 5ft. 10in. in height, slightly built, of dark complexion and dark moustache, no beard or whiskers, and has a sort of military bearing about him.

The certificate and letters I have forwarded to the G.S. of the G.L. of Ireland.

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

T. F., 804.

P.S. From the number of begging Masons, and some of them worthless fellows, being about, it is time a better system of relief was set on foot. I would suggest that the Almoners of neighbouring Lodges should communicate when necessary, and if they were required to make out a quarterly return of the particulars of those seeking relief, and the same forwarded to the G.S. office, where the lists should be analysed, then published with the G.L. Quarterly Report, it would tend greatly to discover those parasites who make a trade of begging, and would make it much better for the genuine brother in distress.

OFFICES IN PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGES.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I was very pleased to see the letter of an "Old P.M." in your issue of Saturday last, with a "List of Officers appointed since 1868, with the date of appointment, not including, &c., &c.," for the Province of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight. I should be very glad to see a similar return for the Province of West Yorkshire, or even to be able to procure such a list. I perfectly agree that it is very difficult to divide the honours equally in a large Province, at the same time it is a difficulty which may be overcome by proper management, and a careful and equal distribution of the coveted honours, and a strict impartiality by conferring them according to merit and ability. Does that impartiality exist? We very often see brethren appointed to Provincial honours who have not earned them, but obtain them simply by the length of their purse, or by making themselves conspicuous at provincial meetings. How many are appointed to office in Provincial Lodge who, during their term of office as W.M. were unable to perform any of the ceremonies, yea, in some cases, not even open or close the Lodge creditably? I know a few. How many others are there who have toiled long and continuously for our noble Order, and particularly for our noble Charities, by obtaining subscriptions for the endowment of the chairs of their respective Lodges—have taken long journeys at considerable inconvenience to instal, deliver lectures, and further the interests of Freemasonry—who are left out in the cold, and are likely to remain there. I know it for a fact that the honours are distributed in some Provinces according to the amount individually given to the Masonic Charities; quite right that support of the charitable institutions should be recognised; at the same time there are many worthy brethren, who work hard and continually, who cannot afford to subscribe to, or make themselves Life Governors, Stewards, or Vice-Presidents of the Boys', Girls', and Benevolent Institution, who are as worthy of Provincial honours as their more fortunate brethren who are continually giving of their plenty.

I now come to the last paragraph in your correspondent's letter in which he says, "If the Province is so large that justice cannot be done to the Lodges composing it, let it be divided." That large Provinces should be divided, and provincial honours become thereby more easy of attainment by worthy brethren, and the Lodges have their fair share of the honours, is the wish of, and would give satisfaction to, the great majority, and not only be the means of "clearing the way for Provincial honours," but would procure for many who have grown gray in the service of the good cause that recognition they have so nobly striven for and so justly deserve. What are we to do to procure the coveted prize who are members of a Province composed of sixty-six Lodges and three thousand one hundred and forty-one members? We cannot get honours in this particular Province except by opening wide our purse-strings and buying them, by becoming Stewards or Life Governors of the Charities, or by being continually elected on the Charity Committee of our Province. It is on behalf of the deserving, hard-working P.M. that I claim the justice he so richly deserves, and for which many have spent a considerable number of years, but who, for want of a lengthy purse, have not been able to receive from our rulers the just acknowledgment of their labours. We occasionally (I am glad to say it rarely occurs) see the rewards earned by others bestowed on those who gain them by assurance. By all means let us have our large Provinces divided, and a better chance will then be given to the industrious Mason of meeting with a recognition of his services.

Yours respectfully and fraternally,

JUNIOR P.M.

FREEMASONRY AND ITS APPLICABILITY TO THE WANTS OF THE OUTER WORLD.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—This, doubtless, will be a startling heading to a letter sent for insertion in a publication especially devoted to the promulgation of Freemasonry, a society which prides itself on its support, without extraneous aid, of three large charitable institutions, affording maintenance and education to upwards of 400 children of both sexes, and pensions of considerable amounts to more than 300 male and female annuitants; it nevertheless is, in some degree, to my mind, a reproach upon the Craft that something is not attempted by Freemasons to extend their charitable and philanthropical funds to the relief of the numberless distressed persons who from want of means have never joined the Masonic circle, or have been otherwise ineligible.

Would not Freemasonry be more generally recognised as a "band of brethren whose aim is the diffusion of Charity" were a portion of its yearly collections applied to the relief of the sick and suffering of the lower classes of humanity and a Masonic Dispensary added to the existing Charities of the Order. Perhaps the most lasting memorial hitherto raised to the honour of a Freemason was the addition of a wing to the Metropolitan Free Hospital in recognition of the services rendered to the Craft by his late Royal Highness the Duke of Sussex a former Grand Master. I am full well aware that the foundation of such an Institution may, by many, be considered as establishing a competing appeal to the sympathies and coffers of the brethren, but when I note the vast numerical increase in Lodges and Masons, and compare them with the number of Lodges and subscribers maintaining the Boys' School, Girls' School, and the Benevolent Institution when the pupils and annuitants were only half their present number. I am led to hope that a Dispensary would not fail from want of means to continue its usefulness; on the contrary, I am sanguine enough to imagine that could such an adjunct to those now in full working order be floated, the many medical brethren who now grace the Craft by their association with it would be inclined to give, occasionally, their services to the alleviation of the maladies consequent upon supercrowding in ill-ventilated localities and the other minor mischances of life.

The foregoing is a mere sketch of what, I think, might be done by Freemasons, without detriment to those Institutions now so nobly supported by the Craft. As its adoption will not meet with the approbation of all, before enlarging upon my views I should be glad to learn the feelings entertained on the question by your numerous readers, that is, if you deem this letter worthy a location in your columns.

I append my name and address, not for publication, unless you deem it an essential.

Yours fraternally,

A P.M.

KNOTS AND MILES.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Your correspondent "VIATOR" must, I am led to believe, have gained his experience of the relative proportions of a mile and a knot whilst "going to Woolwich by water." In common parlance, a knot is oftentimes taken as consisting of 2000 yards, and for the ordinary purposes of a landsman that computation would suffice, but when a table is constructed ostensibly to enlighten your readers it would have been well had its originator based his calculations upon the more accurate mensuration of a knot, which contains 26 yards and a foot more than the 2000 mentioned by "VIATOR." As your correspondent has departed from the all round definition of a knot's length, and tabularized fractions, I venture to forward herewith an amendment of his calculations, for his benefit and the guidance of those whose water excursions are not limited to the River Thames.

Yours truly and fraternally,

SCRUTATOR.

26th August.

Knots	Miles	Knots	Miles
1 = - -	1¼ and 46⅓ yards.	8 = - -	9¼ and 150⅔ yards.
2 = - -	2⅔ „ 92⅔ „	9 = - -	10¼ „ 197 „
3 = - -	3¾ „ 139 „	10 = - -	11½ „ 23⅓ „
4 = - -	4¾ „ 185⅓ „	20 = - -	23 „ 46⅔ „
5 = - -	5¾ „ 11⅔ „	30 = - -	34½ „ 70 „
6 = - -	6¾ „ 58 „	40 = - -	46 „ 93⅓ „
7 = - -	8 „ 101⅓ „	50 = - -	57½ „ 116⅔ „

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR,—In your issue of the 23rd inst. there is a letter from "VIATOR" purporting to give the relative difference between knots and miles.

For the benefit of your readers allow me to correct the same.

A knot does not contain 2000 yards, but 2026 yards 1 foot, therefore 1 knot = 1¼ miles and 46⅓ yards, and so on.

Trusting you will publish this, as "VIATOR'S" letter may mislead many,

I remain, Dear Sir, yours fraternally,

NAUTICUS.

We have received a copy of the Sermon preached before the Provincial Grand Lodge of Lincolnshire by the Rev. George W. Lowe B.A., P.G. Chap. Lincolnshire, and Lecturer at the parish church, Boston, on the occasion of the last annual meeting of the Prov. Grand Lodge at Spalding on 19th June last. Our Rev. brother took for his text Luke ii. 14, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, goodwill toward men." As the preacher remarked, this text has perhaps formed the subject for contemplation and for the pulpit more times than any other in the sacred volume, still he hoped the brethren may gather from his remarks thoughts and truths not unbefitting the occasion, and most holy place of their utterance. We should have liked to have reproduced the sermon in our pages, but the fact of its having been published by Messrs. Watkinson and Crust of Spalding, by request of Prov. Grand Lodge, precludes our doing so. The price at which it is issued to the public is 6d per copy.

The Crusaders' Lodge of Instruction, No. 1677, will resume its weekly meetings on Thursday next, at nine o'clock, p.m., at the Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell, on which occasion the ceremony of installation will be worked. The attendance of brethren at that and future meetings is respectfully solicited. We may add that this Lodge of Instruction devotes its meetings to ceremonies only.

The Session 1879-1880 of the West Middlesex Lodge of Instruction commences on the 4th proximo, when the weekly meetings will be resumed, until further notice, at the Feathers Hotel, Ealing, at 7.30 p.m., on Thursday evenings. Bro. E. C. Porter will be the W.M. at the first meeting. The annual subscriptions for the new season are now payable.

ORDER OF ELIZABETH THERESA.

By ROBERT MACOY, K.T.

THIS Order, the second military Order of Austria, was founded in 1750, by the Empress Elizabeth Christina, widow of the Emperor Charles VI. of Austria, for the purpose of rewarding with it twenty officers from the rank of colonel to that of general, who had faithfully served their country during a period of thirty years. According to modifications of the statutes made by Maria Theresa, 16th November 1771, the number of members of the Order was fixed at twenty-one.

The Order consists of three classes of Knights. Nominations are now made to fill vacancies, by the War Department, without regard to country, religion, or birth of the candidates. From the list presented the Emperor makes his choice.

The badge is a star of eight points, bordered with gold, enamelled half red and half white; in the middle is an oval, bordered with a gold margin, on which, beneath a gold imperial crown, are the united ciphers E.C. and M.T. (Elizabeth Christiance and Maria Theresa), and around them are the words M. Theresa parentis gratiam perennem voluit: "Maria Theresa wished to give perpetual duration to the gracious favour of her mother." It is worn by all the Knights on a black silk ribbon, which is pressed tight on the cross by a gold imperial crown, on the left side, in the button hole.

INSTALLATION MEETINGS.

HIGH CROSS LODGE, No. 754.

THE annual meeting of this Lodge was held on Wednesday, the 27th inst., at the Seven Sisters, Tottenham. The Lodge was opened by the W.M. Brother Henry Stephens, who was supported by the following Officers and Past Masters:—G. Burford S.W. W.M. elect, J. Farrin J.W., D. Roberts P.M. Treas., J. Cunningham P.M. Sec., P.M.'s John Maller, G. Townsend, W. Dance, W. Steedman, W. Kelly, J. Linzell, J. Jones, H. V. Clements S.D., T. H. Thompson S.D., Wm. Tegg I.G., J. Garrod D.C., J. Very Tyler, J. Hobbs jun. of the Weavers Arms, Stamford Hill, J. Barber, several other members, and the following visitors:—G. C. Young 820, J. E. Brown, J. Driscoll P.M. 30, S. Hill 109, W. W. Morgan jun. 1385, A. J. Manning P.M. 1472, J. H. Thompson 1580, J. Barber 933, H. B. Carter 1435, J. Badkin 1365, J. Pinder, H. Cleverly 1107, J. B. Reid 946, J. E. Pinder 1707. The Lodge was regularly opened and the usual formalities having been observed, the report of the Audit Committee was submitted. The Lodge was advanced, and Bro. Mitchell was passed. Later on Bro. Harry Cooper was raised to the third degree. The W.M. read a letter from the waiter of the hotel, thanking the brethren for their assistance and sympathy in his recent bereavement, he having lost his wife just before the last meeting of the Lodge. P.M. Dance then presented Bro. Burford, the W.M. elect, for the benefit of installation. A Board of Masters being formed, that brother was regularly placed into the chair and in due course appointed the following brethren his Officers:—Bros. Farrin S.W., Clements J.W., Roberts Treas., Cunningham Sec., Thompson S.D., Tegg J.D., Garrod I.G., W. S. Blenkinsop D.C., Stevenson Steward, Lewis Assist. Steward, Very Tyler. The installing Master Bro. Stephens then gave the addresses usual after the installation ceremony. One candidate for initiation having been proposed, the W.M. proceeded to close the Lodge and the brethren adjourned to the banquet-room, where a most enjoyable repast was provided by Bro. Oddy. At the conclusion of the banquet, and grace having been sung, the W.M. gave the first toast, the Queen and the Craft, which was followed by the National Anthem. The health of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales M.W. Grand Master followed, and was most heartily received. The toast of the Pro G. Master and the rest of the Grand Officers past and present was the next honoured. After a song Bro. Stephens proceeded to give the toast of the W.M. He could not speak much of his ability as W.M., as he was new to that position, but as a member of the Lodge and a faithful officer he paid him a great compliment. Their W.M. had, Bro. Stephens remarked, ever been at his post, and was well qualified to fill that position he now occupied. He trusted that at the end of his year of office Bro. Burford would be able to look back upon as successful a year of office as he, Bro. Stephens, had just passed through. The S.W. having favoured the brethren with a song, the W.M. replied, as follows:—Brethren, I have to return my very sincere thanks for the kind manner in which you have replied to the toast proposed by Bro. Stephens. I am sure it is a very great honour to be elected as W.M. of the High Cross Lodge. There are few Metropolitan Lodges that can boast as many members as the High Cross, and if they have as many, they have not so great a number of sincere Masons as we have. I cannot more than thank you for placing me in the chair; whatever I may do I will endeavour to do my duty, and work in unison with you all, and thereby please the members of the Lodge. Should I seem to be averse to some of your wishes, you may rely that I am differing only in the interests of Freemasonry. Ideas are not the same in all brethren, it being natural that we should have different views on different subjects. It will be my endeavour to carry out the duties of my office satisfactorily and I hope that I shall have a successful year, but to secure this I must ask for the aid of the brethren and of my Officers. The next toast the W.M. characterised as a most pleasing one for him to propose, it was that of the I.P.M. Bro. Stephens. He was sure that those brethren who had been in the Lodge during the past six or seven years must agree with him that Bro. Stephens had had one of the most successful years on record in the High Cross Lodge. The brethren must be all agreed that he had endeavoured to do his best for the Lodge, and the result he considered had been proved without a doubt to be a success. More especially was this the case with regard to the handsome surplus he had left in the hands of the Treasurer. The W.M. then proceeded to place on Bro. Stephens' breast the jewel that had been voted to him at the last meeting. In doing so he expressed the great pleasure he felt in presenting this mark of the esteem of the Lodge to so worthy a brother. Bro. Stephens, in reply, after thanking the brethren for the reception that had been accorded him, said, I do not know if I am deserving of the many kind things that have been said of me to-night. I have endeavoured to do my utmost while in the chair for the benefit of the Lodge, and as you are all aware I have in a measure succeeded. If I have pleased you, I am more than amply rewarded for any exertions I have made. I thank you most heartily for the splendid jewel your W.M. has just placed on my breast. I hope it may be handed down to my children and their children as a token of the respect in which their father was held by the High Cross Lodge. I must again thank you for the kind way in which you have supported me during my year of office. The W.M. announced that the collection made on behalf of the Charity fund of the Lodge amounted to 33s. The next toast proposed from the chair was that of the Visitors. The W.M. said this was one always well received by the High Cross Lodge. Scarcely a meeting passed but they had a goodly array of visitors. On the present occasion they did not fall short, but had many guests around them, all of whom were welcome. He considered that the Lodge would hardly be complete without its array of visitors. With the toast the W.M. coupled the name of Bro. Driscoll. That Brother in reply said—It would be my endeavour to do as much justice to the toast as will, I hope, satisfy my brother visitors. If the reception accorded this evening is an indication of the usual welcome given by the members of the High Cross Lodge, we can only hope for another invitation. For myself I am an old hand, having been present at the anniversaries of the Lodge for several years past. One thing I have noticed with pleasure at this Lodge is, the interest taken in its affairs by the Past Masters; on the present occasion I believe there is only one absent—and he, I hear, is far from home, or would be among us. This fact must be a great pleasure to you all, and the way in which the brethren who have passed the chair are honoured should be an incentive to young members to take an interest in the Lodge. He concluded by tendering the heartiest thanks of the Visitors for the toast that had been drunk in their honour. The W.M. in giving the next toast said it was one that would doubtless be new to most of those present. That day happened to be the twenty-first anniversary of the establishment of the High Cross Lodge. Most of those around him could form their own opinion of the position of the Lodge at the present time, but few could remember what was its condition at the time of its formation. They had one brother, however, who could tell them something on the subject, he having been the first initiate. The W.M. hoped that in another twenty-one years the Lodge would number on its roll twice as many brethren as at the present time, and that it would ever remain in a flourishing condition. He then called upon the brethren to drink to the prosperity of the High Cross Lodge, coupling with the toast the name of Bro. Steedman, who was initiated on the night of its consecration twenty-one years since. Bro. Steedman said: Brethren you have thought proper to associate my name with a very peculiar toast, and I feel very peculiar in rising to respond to it. Our Lodge was founded twenty-one years since, next Friday being the anniversary of its consecration. If you will refer to the Warrant you will find that at first the meetings were held every fortnight; this was continued for about three years, at which time the Lodge found itself in debt to the extent of £250. I could record other difficulties that the Lodge has gone through, but will suffice by now referring to its prosperous condition. Bro. Steedman concluded by wishing that the Lodge might be in as good a position twenty-one years hence as it was then, and trusted he might be there to see it. The health of the Past Masters was next given, the W.M. referring to the great interest shown in the Lodge by those who had passed the chair. He stated that he had received a letter from their only absent P.M., explaining that ill health precluded his undertaking a long journey in order to be with them, but hoped that at no distant date he would again be among the members present at the regular assemblies. The W.M. expressed his pleasure at having so large a Board of Masters to assist at his installation, and considered it something for the Lodge to be proud of when eleven of its own Past Masters came to assist in placing a new Master in the chair they each in turn had filled. He felt he could rely on their support during the term of his presidency. Bro. Wells was the first to reply. He tendered the heartiest thanks of the Past Masters for the way in which they were at all times received, and hoped that the newly installed Master would be enabled to conduct the affairs of the Lodge with satisfaction; he could assure the W.M. that he would at all times have the co-operation of those who had preceded him in the chair. Bro. Dance followed to the same purport, specially referring to the indebtedness of the Lodge to Bro. P.M. Cunningham, the Secretary, who had, he said, faithfully discharged his duties for the whole of the time he had filled that position. The toast of the Treasurer and Secretary followed. The W.M. was extremely gratified in having two such worthy brethren to rely on as those who filled these offices were. Bro. Treasurer replied, thanking the company for the way in which the mention of the names of the Treasurer and Secretary had been received. He had, he said, watched the Lodge for a matter of 20 years, and was pleased to see it now in so prosperous a condition. Bro. Secretary followed, adding his tribute. Although it was some time since he had raised his voice to express his thanks for the kindness of the members, it was not that he had not thanked them, he did so at all times, and only hoped he might continue to deserve the respect and esteem of his brethren he now enjoyed. The work of Secretary of their Lodge was no light task, but the thanks which he received from the members from time to time were ample to repay any little trouble he went to in carrying out the duties of his office. The toast of the Press was next given, the W.M. hoping that the transactions of the High Cross Lodge would always be of such a nature as to be deemed worthy of publication to the Masonic World. Bro. W. W. Morgan jun. in response, referred to the great pleasure he experienced in recording the various charitable actions of the Lodge and its members. To the toast of the Officers, the two Wardens respectively replied, each endorsing the opinion the W.M. expressed, in proposing the toast, as to punctuality. The Tyler was now summoned, and gave the usual closing toast, which having been duly honoured, Bro. Very gave a song, and the proceedings terminated.

THE installation was held at the Spotted Dog, Upton, on Thursday, Bro. B. Lyons W.M. opened his Lodge. He was assisted by an efficient staff of officers. It was anticipated that a very strong muster of the members of the Lodge, as well as visitors, would assemble, but owing to the weather (a heavy thunderstorm breaking over the district about an hour before the time fixed for meeting), many of the brethren, doubtless, were deterred from attending. As it was there were about forty present, amongst whom were the following Visitors: T. J. Barnes P.M. 551, Musto P.M., Turquand P.M. 890, 1556, P.G.D.C. Surrey, Medland P.M. 781, Wilson P.M. 1155, W. J. Smith S.D. 860, E. Barker I.G. 860, J. H. Pavitt 860, J. Taylor D.C. 554, G. Hine 190, A. M. Ellingford 834, D. Moss 1275, G. Sussex 893, P.M. Picking, Brown, and others whose names we were unable to obtain. Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the preceding meeting having been read and confirmed, the members who composed the Audit Committee made their report to the Lodge. This showed that the funds were in a satisfactory condition. Bro. Lyons then vacated the chair in favour of Bro. Musto P.M., who opened the Lodge in the second degree, when Bro. Joshua Andrews the W.M. elect was presented by Bro. Lyons for installation, and that ceremony was performed by Bro. Musto in such an excellent manner as to call forth the approbation of the brethren present. Bro. Andrews then proceeded to invest his Officers, as follow:—Bro. A. W. Fenner S.W., Witherston J.W., Wayland Treas., Serjeant Secretary, Lane S.D., Clark J.D., R. W. Pearcy I.G., Gieseke W.S., Lyons I.P.M. as D.C., and Gullick Tyler. The W.M. in investing each of these brethren with their respective collars addressed to them a few instructive remarks on their several duties. We congratulate the Lodge on having a staff of officers who are so energetic in the cause of Freemasonry. We have no doubt the Lodge will flourish. Decidedly this is one of the best Lodges in the district, and from the unanimity which exists amongst its members we predict a brilliant career for it. The business being over the brethren repaired to the banquetting room where ample justice was done to the viands placed before them. The menu was of a more substantial than elaborate character. We append a copy of it as an example for other Lodges:—

FISH.—Salmon, Fried and Filletted Soles, Fried and Stewed Eels.
JOINTS.—Boiled and Roast Lamb, Veal and Ham.
POULTRY.—Boiled and Roast Fowls, Ducklings, Goslings.
Pastry, Dessert, &c.

The customary loyal toasts having been duly proposed and responded to, Bro. Lyons the I.P.M. proposed the health of the W.M.; he was sure that no worthier brother could have been found in the Lodge, or one more fitted for the duties of the chair; he knew that Bro. Andrews would give satisfaction to the brethren, and congratulated the W.M. on his installation. The W.M., in a neat and telling speech, thanked the I.P.M. for proposing his health, also the members for electing him to the proud position he now held; he trusted that during his year of office he would be able to discharge his duties to the satisfaction of the brethren; he would strive to do his duty conscientiously, and endeavour to further the interests of the Lodge, and hoped he should have the same kind co-operation of the officers and brethren which had been received by the Past Masters; he concluded his remarks by presenting a P.M.'s jewel (the gift of the Lodge) to Bro. Lyons the I.P.M., who he sincerely hoped, would live for many years to wear it. In replying to the toast of the P.M.'s Bro. Lyons said he felt that the jewel which the Lodge had so kindly presented him with, was the most welcome gift he could receive, he would treasure it as a memento of what the Upton Lodge had done for him, and it would ever be an incentive to him to render the Lodge any assistance that laid in his power. Bro. Picking P.M. said that although he was second W.M. of the Lodge yet circumstances had occurred which prevented him from attending regularly, but he hoped that in the future he should be more regular. He gave his entire concurrence to the opinion expressed by Bro. Lyons I.P.M., in respect of the choice of the brethren in selecting their present W.M. Bro. Brown P.M. said it gave him great pleasure in being present at the installation of Bro. Andrews; for himself, he had been a regular attendant at the Upton Lodge for a considerable period, and would never neglect its claims. The W.M. next proposed the health of the Installing Master, and took the opportunity of returning him his personal thanks for his services. Bro. Musto said he was proud at the manner in which his health had been proposed by the W.M. Since he left the Lodge, now some years since, he had not entered it until that evening. He attended to-night on the invite of the W.M. to perform the installation ceremony, he felt proud at all times to do anything for the prosperity of the Lodge, and thanked the brethren cordially for the compliment paid him. The Visitors' toast was responded to by Bro. Barnes P.M., who observed that he would like to give way to any other visitor who would respond for all, but as no other visitor did respond, Bro. Barnes was fain to return thanks, which he did by making a very effective speech, in the course of which he observed that among the many Lodges to which a Mason goes, a brother is apt to say something in praise of another brother who may be undeserving, and so cause a feeling to arise in the Lodge which might tend to disturb its harmony, but in the present case he could safely assert that, from the first to the last sound of the gavel, the W.M. gave ample proof of his efficiency; he was moreover ably assisted by a competent staff of Officers. With respect to the installation, it had been done in the presence of those who had gone through the same before; and it was done in a manner that gave satisfaction to all the brethren. Bro. Turquand P.M. said that, living at a distance, he had made an effort; he came at the request of the W.M., who, he was quite sure, would be a credit to the Upton Lodge; he was pleased that he had obtained this high position, and felt sure that the proficiency the W.M. showed was due to his constant attendance at the Lodge of Instruction. He would recommend all brethren who were in office, and desired to go up, to attend Lodges of Instruction and fit themselves for any office they might suddenly be called upon to fill in their Mother Lodges. The Treasurer, Secretary, and retiring Secretary, were next toasted in flattering terms by the W.M., who said that without such Officers as the Upton Lodge had, he scarcely knew what would become of it? Each had performed his respective duties faithfully and well; he warmly eulogised the indefatigable exertions of Bro. Vinicombe the retiring Secretary, who had materially contributed, during his two years of office, to place the Lodge on a firm footing. The several brethren returned thanks in graceful terms. The Officers' toast was next on the list, and it was duly acknowledged by each. The Tyler's toast brought a very enjoyable evening to an end. The following brethren contributed to the evening's amusement by some excellent singing, being accompanied by Bro. Organist (whose name we do not remember) on the piano:—Bros. Lund, Serjeant, W. J. Smith, D. Moss, Ellingford, Patrick; Bro. Wilson P.M. gave a recitation.

A few members of the Vitruvian Lodge, one of the oldest on the south side of the Thames, assembled at the Old White Hart Tavern, College Street, Belvedere Road, Lambeth, on Saturday last, to witness the placing a memorial stone on the new establishment now in course of erection in the Belvedere Road. This building, when completed, will be a great boon to the fraternity in the South of London, there being so few places where the requisite accommodation can be obtained. This establishment, however, will supply all that is needed. There will be a room appropriated to Masonic purposes 32 feet by 19 feet, 16 feet high. A convenient ante room, and a dining-room 34 feet by 26 feet, 12 feet high, suitable for large gatherings, while the approach is away from the tavern business. We wish our spirited Brother Isaac every success in his undertaking, which we trust will receive the support of the Craft.

In America Freemasonry is, unquestionably, popular with some of the ladies, we gather from the Keystone that:—

"Mrs. Mary O'Sullivan, widow of Bro. A. O'Sullivan, former Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Missouri, in her last will and testament, bequeathed to the Grand Lodge of Missouri the sum of three thousand dollars, for the purpose of founding a widow and orphans' fund."

A Lodge of Instruction—which promises to be a very large and popular one—has just been formed at Putney, a spacious room at the Railway Hotel having been set apart for the use of the brethren. Bro. Charles E. Goldring, solicitor, is the Secretary. The time for meeting is eight o'clock on Monday evenings.

A Floating Post Office on the Clyde.—At the commencement of the present season, a Post Office was opened on board the Clyde mail steamer Columba, with the ready permission of Mr. Macbrayne, who is always alive to the interests of the public, and it is gratifying to learn that the result of this novel experiment has, so far, proved most successful. No fewer than 15,775 letters passed through this Post Office during one week last month, of which 3000 were local letters passing between the towns on the route of the steamer. Over 200 telegrams were also handed into the "floating Post Office" in the course of the month, while £26 were taken for postage and telegraph stamps sold during the same period. The accommodation thus afforded to the travelling public, and to the inhabitants of the Clyde towns is well appreciated, and when it is better known, no doubt the business will vastly increase, especially during the tourist season.—Scotsman.

COMMITTEE MEETING OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

The monthly meeting of the General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls was held at the Freemasons' Hall on Thursday. There were present Bros. Col. Creaton Grand Treasurer (in the chair), H. A. Dubois, James E. Peters, H. Massey, Arthur E. Gladwell, Joshua Nunn, S. Rosenthal, and F. R. Hedges Secretary. A petition of a candidate for being placed on the list for election was deferred for better reading, and the Chairman having had authority given him for the signing of cheques, the Committee adjourned.

PRESENTATION TO BRO. JAMES TARLING.

On Tuesday evening last, at a well-attended meeting, held at the Star and Garter Hotel, Kew Bridge, Bro. James Tarling was presented with a handsome testimonial, "In acknowledgment of the efficient and zealous manner he performed his duties during the twenty-seven years he belonged to the police force." The chair was ably occupied by T. Layton, Esq., Chairman of the Brentford Local Board, the vice-chair being filled by T. Cross, Esq. Mr. Layton had on his right the guest of the evening, and on his left Major Clarke, there being also present Dr. Day, Messrs. Alfred Jupp, Smith, Ellis, J. H. Squires, Pittard, Gomm, E. J. Acworth, Briggs, Brunsden, S. Mills, Layton, Parson, Lane, C. Benwell, A. and G. Chambers, Brown, Dale, Newson and White. Bro. John Brill, the proprietor of the hotel, placed the dinner upon the table in an unexceptionable manner, in fact, it was generally remarked by those present that it was one of the best dinners ever served at the Star and Garter. On the removal of the cloth the Chairman submitted the loyal toasts, which were heartily drunk with musical honours. The Chairman then called for "bumpers," preparatory to submitting the toast of the evening, which was "the health of their much-respected friend, Bro. Tarling." He regretted he was not able to do justice to such a toast, but he should endeavour to do his best. All were aware that Bro. Tarling had performed the duties of Chief Inspector of Police for the long period of fifteen years; a long time, indeed, during which he (the chairman) was able to say with absolute truth that they had always found him courteous, civil, and kind, ready and desirous at all times to carry out the duties of his office with strict impartiality and fairness. Their friend had been in the service of the metropolitan police for no less a period than twenty-seven years. The residents of this locality had always considered him to be "the right man in the right place," and had appreciated his honourable and upright conduct towards one and all. There was no duty more onerous or trying to the temper than that of inspector of police, particularly in a district like this, and from all he had heard, Bro. Tarling, had ever discharged the duties of his office with faithfulness, and it must be a satisfaction to him, as it was to them, to know that during the whole time he had been among them not a single complaint had ever been lodged against him. Bro. Tarling was entitled to a first class pension, a recognition his services justly merited. They were but doing what was right in according him their heartfelt thanks for his services, and each and all wished him health, long life and prosperity in his new calling. The worthy chairman now begged Bro. Tarling to accept the gold watch, chain and locket which he held in his hand, together with a purse containing £130, as an acknowledgment of the esteem and respect felt for him by those who had subscribed for its presentation. The following inscription was engraved on the watch:—Presented to Mr. James Tarling, late chief inspector of the T. Division Metropolitan Police, together with a purse of money, in acknowledgment of the efficient and zealous manner he performed his duties during the twenty-seven years he belonged to the police force." The Chairman then read several letters expressing regret at inability to be present. Bro. Tarling, on rising to respond, was evidently much affected. He hoped his friends would forgive his shortcomings; he acknowledged himself fairly beaten. He could only say he was astonished at this great act of kindness; he had been paid for his services, and he had but done his duty. Twenty-seven years of his life had been spent in the police force, and he trusted his conduct had met with approval—indeed he knew it had, or the present event would never have occurred. He must beg they would forgive him saying anything further. With all his heart he thanked them, and more than that it was impossible for him to say. The after proceedings were very interesting; but being purely of a local character, we must be excused detailing them. Several toasts were given and goodly responses were made. The health of, and prosperity to, the new proprietor of the Star and Garter, Bro. John Brill, who had catered for them that evening in a manner which could not well be excelled, was unanimously received. The food was declared to be of the best description, splendidly cooked, and well served up, whilst the wines were of excellent quality. The proceedings were brought to a conclusion a little before eleven o'clock.

In ancient burying grounds, the head of the grave was always placed at the west. Among Masons, this position was urgently insisted upon. It has a fitness. It is consecrated, not only by ancient usage here, but in many parts of the world widely separated. The lesson which the Orientals are said to teach by it is, that on the last day the Angel of Resurrection will stand at the east of the grave, which will be at the foot of the dead. He will reach forward and take the silent one by the right hand, and raise him. As he comes up to the living perpendicular, he looks directly to the divine celestial East where the Omnipotent one is sitting. My advice is that you dig Masons' graves due east and west.—Rob Morris.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

Egyptian Lodge of Instruction, No. 27.—At the Hercules Tavern, 119 Leadenhall-street, E.C., on Thursday. Bros. J. Da Silva W.M., D. Moss S.W., Valentine J.W., Norden S.D., Woodward J.D., Forss I.G., L. Norden Hon. Sec., Webb Preceptor, and other brethren. All preliminaries were observed; the ceremony of the third degree was rehearsed, together with the traditional history, by the W.M. The Lodge was closed in the third degree. Bro. Moss worked the second and third sections of the lecture, assisted by the brethren. The Lodge was closed in the second degree, and Bro. Moss worked the fifth section of the first lecture, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Moss was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing week.

Brecknock Lodge, No. 651.—On Friday, the 15th inst., a Lodge of Emergency was held at the Castle Hotel, Brecon, for the purpose of meeting one of the Past Masters of the Lodge prior to his departure for the Mauritius. Afterwards, supper was served at the Castle Hotel, and was presided over by Bro. Thomas Butcher the W.M., who had on his right the guest of the evening, Brother Hans St. George Caulfeild, and was supported by the following officers and members of the Lodge:—Officers: Brothers T. Jones, Frank Grundy, Rev. W. Howell, J. A. Whittle, W. Webb, John Morgan, T. L. Lewis, H. O. Aveline Maybery, William Games, Rhys Davies, and Past Masters H. C. Rich sen. and E. C. Phillips. Members: Brothers David Thomas, J. A. Jebb, D. W. J. Thomas, A. Orlopp, H. C. Rich jun., T. C. Bargrave Watkins, G. Pratt, L. Williams, T. H. Price, E. T. Edwards, E. H. Seale, and H. W. Davies. After the cloth had been removed, the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given and honoured, at the close of which the Worshipful Master, in proposing the health of the guest of the evening, said that for many reasons he wished the toast had been placed in better hands, as there were many present who had had a greater experience of their guest than he had, and it was one that required ample justice done to it, more especially after the splendid reception which has been given to it. Among the brethren there was a most unanimous feeling that Brother Caulfeild should not leave the country without first asking him to meet them once more before his departure. Brother Caulfeild had held several offices in the Lodge prior to his attaining the responsible one of the Master of the Lodge, and during the whole of that time he had certainly in every way discharged his duties to the satisfaction of the Lodge. No one could have discharged them with more suavity and kindly demeanour than Brother Caulfeild. Although it would be a matter of great regret to lose the services of brother Caulfeild, it was still, however, one worthy of congratulation, seeing that he was leaving the country to fill an excellent and lucrative appointment abroad. He (the speaker) trusted that Brother Caulfeild would carry with him many pleasant recollections of his past connection with the Brecknock Lodge, and the large muster of members on the present occasion was one worthy to be remembered, for it shewed the popularity of and the esteem in which Brother Caulfeild was held. He wished him, on behalf of the Lodge, every success and prosperity, and in time to come a happy return to this country. Brother P.M. Caulfeild on rising to respond was received with prolonged cheering, and, speaking with emotion, said—It is difficult on the present occasion for me to thank you as I ought to do for your great kindness in asking me to be present to-night. For the flattering speech in which our Worshipful Master has introduced the toast of my health I feel perfectly unable to express to him my thanks, and to you for the very kind manner indeed with which you have received it. It is not only in connection with the Brecknock Lodge, but I see around me so many good and kind friends who have in every way assisted me during the time I have been connected with Brecon, that you will perhaps excuse the emotion which I feel on the present occasion. I am really afraid to look around me and see some of the best and kindest friends I ever had in my life, and you will therefore forgive my very few and short remarks in returning you my very sincere thanks for the way in which you have received me to-night. I do not feel competent to express myself in the manner I should like to do. I must express, in conclusion, my very great sorrow in parting with you all, and will simply thank you one and all sincerely and deeply for meeting me on this occasion. The remaining toasts were, the Worshipful Master, proposed by brother Maybery; the Past Masters, proposed by Brother Frank Grundy, and responded to by Brother E. C. Phillips; the Visitors, proposed by Brother David Thomas, and responded to by Brother H. C. Rich; the Master of the Loyal Wye Lodge, Builth, and the Officers of the Lodge, proposed by Brother Games, and responded to by Brother Frank Grundy. Brothers T. L. Lewis and William Howell presided at the American organ.

Crystal Palace Chapter, No. 742.—The Regular Convocation and Installation Meeting of this Chapter was held on Thursday the 21st instant, at the Thicket Hotel, Anerley, Surrey. Comp. W. Smeed, P.Z. 946, P.G.J. Middlesex, occupied the chair in the absence of the Z., through indisposition. H. D. Williams H., W. Carter J., W. Platt P.Z., S. E. Driver P.Z., Long, &c. The Chapter was opened and the minutes of the former Convocation were read and confirmed. The election for Z., H. and J. resulted in the selection of Companions H. D. Williams for Z., Carter H., and Kidman J. They were duly installed into the three chairs by Companion W. Smeed P.Z. 946, who performed his duties in his usual perfect and impressive manner. The newly-installed M.E.Z. then invested his officers:—Comps. W. Platt P.Z. S.E., Ledger S.N., Long P.Z. Treas., Green P.S., W. Speight Janitor. A vote of thanks was unanimously accorded to Comp. W. Smeed for the excellent manner in which he had performed the ceremonies of installation; the same to be recorded on the minutes. A sum of five guineas was voted for the purpose of presenting the retiring Z. with a P.Z.'s jewel, for the able manner he had discharged the duties of the chair during his year of office. The Chapter was then closed, and the company sat down to an excellent banquet, provided by Comp. Lassam, that gave great satisfaction. The M.E.Z., who genially presided, proposed the usual Loyal and R.A. toasts. Comp. Driver P.Z. proposed the health of the M.E.Z., who had most worthily been elected to preside over them. Comp. Williams having suitably replied, the toast of the Visitors was next given. The M.E.Z. said how pleased he, with the Companions, were to receive Visitors. He was indeed gratified at seeing among them a Companion who had so ably installed him and the two principals. Comp. Smeed is thoroughly proficient in Craft as well as in R.A. Masonry, and it was a pleasure to listen to him. Personally he thanked him for the services he had rendered the Chapter. They were also very happy to see Comp. Miller among them. Those Companions having responded, the toasts of the P.Z.'s, H., and J. were given and acknowledged. The Janitor's toast concluded a very agreeable meeting. Comps. Smeed, Burt, and Lassam sang some excellent songs during the evening.

Eboracum Lodge, No. 1611.—An emergency meeting of this Lodge was held on Monday evening, the W.M. Brother J. S. Cumberland presiding, for the purpose of raising Bro. Oldfield Marshall to the sublime degree of a Master Mason. After the conclusion of the ceremony Bro. W. P. Husband presented to the Lodge a very scarce engraving, of great Masonic interest, being a portrait of Sir W. Hawksworth, Bart., Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of All England at York in 1711. A similar portrait is in the possession of the York Lodge, No. 236. Bro. T. Humphries also presented two beautiful framed photographs of views in Vienna. Both brethren received the hearty thanks of the Lodge, which is rapidly acquiring a most valuable collection of Masonic relics, thanks to the hearty spirit of co-operation which exists among its members. A large portion of the evening was taken up by discussions on the arrangements for the Provincial Grand Lodge Meeting. Amongst those present were Bros. T. B. Whytehead P.M. Prov. D.C., G. Balmford P.M. P.P.S., A. T. B. Turner, C. Blackstone, W. York, Girling, Atkinson, Dyson, Abbey, &c.

West Middlesex Lodge of Instruction, No. 1612.—The members held their Anniversary Festival on Thursday, at the Chequers Hotel, Ealing. In the absence of the W.M. of the mother Lodge, Bro. Kingston, the chair was taken by Bro. A. Beasley P.M. 780 1612. The Wardens chairs were occupied by Bros. A. J. Burr S.W. 1612, and W. Seward jun. Bros. E. J. Acworth and J. Wells fulfilled the duties pertaining to the Deacons, and Bro. G. S. Wright was an efficient Inner Guard. Amongst the brethren present were H. E. Tucker Preceptor and Treasurer, E. W. Davis P.M. 95 172, &c. W. Banbery 217, F. Woolmer 217, J. W. Woolmer 217. J. J. Clarke 1612, D. H. Harrison S.D. 1681, H. J. Westbourne J.D. 217, 1612, H. Youens 1612, G. Coop 1612, W. Gomm W.M. elect 780, J. Dorey 1612, E. Gasson 1612, H. Stephens 1612, J. J. Gunner 780, W. W. Morgan Sec. 211. Lodge was formally opened and closed, and then the brethren sat down to the repast which Bro. Stephens had prepared with great care. All the dishes were placed upon the table in homely fashion, and the guests were lavish in their expressions of approval. On the removal of the cloth, Bro. Beasley briefly introduced the toasts usual on these occasions. On Bro. Tucker devolved the pleasing duty of proposing the health of the W.M. In doing so he referred to the eminent qualities displayed by that Brother in all he undertook, and spoke of his deep interest in the welfare of the West Middlesex Lodge and the prosperity of its members. He was assured that Bro. Beasley, amid his numerous engagements, would always find opportunities of meeting the brethren, and trusted the Lodge for many years might have the benefit of his counsel and advice. Bro. Beasley would not lose a minute in replying to the kind remarks of Bro. Tucker. Truly he had striven to do something for the West Middlesex Lodge, and if, at any time, he could render assistance, the members might rely on his doing so readily. He regretted that lately he had not been able to be with them so frequently at their Lodge of Instruction as he could have wished, but of this he might speak with intense gratification, wherever he went he came across brethren who had been initiated by him, and he invariably heard the West Middlesex Lodge and its members spoken well of. After a capital song by Bro. Wells, Bro. Beasley said there was a toast that demanded attention. All Lodges might be said to have to pass through a dormant stage—a stage that was represented by the period during which the outgoing Master and the Master elect were in their relative positions. Our esteemed brother then referred to the happy period of Mastership Bro. Kingston had passed through, and then referred to Bro. Kasner, the W.M. elect, who possessed all the qualities requisite for the important office he has been elected to. Bro. Beasley was sure all regretted their absence, but in proposing "Success to the Mother Lodge," he felt he should be neglecting his duty did he not associate their names with the toast. In proposing the health of Bro. Tucker, the Preceptor and Treasurer of the Lodge of Instruction, the W.M. referred to the great interest that brother took in all Masonic matters. The brethren present would agree with him that Bro. Tucker deserved the heartiest thanks of all for his indefatigable exertions. After a song by Bro. J. J. Clarke, Bro. Tucker rose. He was intensely gratified at the kind way in which the W.M. had referred to him. They had received great assistance from members of neighbouring Lodges, with whom there existed an earnest desire to advance the cause they all had in view. During the year all the ceremonies of Craft Masonry had been carefully rehearsed, and they had had the assistance of competent brethren. He hoped in the future their meetings would pass off with the same happy result, and that he might long be associated in the conduct of the business. One of the most prominent of the remaining toasts was that of the W.M. elect of the Royal Alfred Lodge. Bro. Beasley spoke in eulogistic terms of Bro. Gomm, and felt assured that all concurred in the hope that he might have a happy and prosperous year. The toast of the Visitors was given and duly replied to, and the acting Officers received a due meed of praise. Then the W.M. gave the closing toast. The evening passed off most agreeably; the genial Bro. Gunner gave two or three of his songs, and other of the brethren rendered goodly help, notably we may refer to Bro. Coop's "Familiar Faces." We had almost omitted to mention that the appeal of a distressed brother was brought forward discussed, and relief given—£2 was voted from Lodge funds, and this amount was supplemented by the brethren, who amongst them subscribed an additional £2 2s 6d.

B. Hanna J.W., and other Officers. This being the Annual Festival for the installing of Master and Officers, Bro. Dr. J. Tyndall was duly presented, and a Board of Installed Masters opened, when Bro. J. Tyndall, R.N., surgeon of the Naval Hospital, was duly installed Master by Worshipful G. P. Myers, in a manner that well merited the encomiums passed on him. The Worshipful John Tyndall then invested the following brethren to fill the offices for the year:—Bros. Lieut. M. C. H. Hastings S.W., J. Feesy J.W., E. Anderson Treasurer, A. Duffus Secretary, W. "Royal," Mudon "Sussex," Paine "St. John's," Dias P.G. Secretary of Scotland Glenlyon, Tait Sussex, J. Alvarenga, D. Barned, H. J. Barned, and L. C. Hollar, Phœnix, A. H. Jones P.G.O. This is the first year since the formation of this Lodge that the officers installed are all belonging to the Navy, and the reason assigned is, that a good many of the members belong to that Service. The banquet-room was gaily decorated, the brethren having enjoyed the good things of this life, the usual Masonic and Loyal toasts were proposed and heartily responded to. Deep regret was felt at the absence of the District Grand Master for East Jamaica (Right Worshipful Hon. Dr. Hamilton), caused by indisposition. The brethren retired at the small hours in the morning, when H.M. Dockyard steam launch conveyed the Kingston brethren to their destination.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Surpassing Excellence.—This medicine is composed of the finest balsams obtained from the vegetable kingdom. Unlike mineral or mercurial preparations, Holloway's pills are perfectly innocent, and may be safely taken by children and the most delicate females. The nervous and all who have lost hope and energy through long continued affliction, should have their attention drawn to the many cures of such cases which have been gradually accomplished by these pills, and gratefully acknowledged by the most flattering testimonials. They secure a long, a healthy, and a happy life. In all derangements of the digestion, arising from the stomach, liver, or bowels, the curative power of these purifying pills is especially observable; they stimulate sluggish and regulate disordered functions.

DOES FREEMASONRY BENEFIT THE WORLD AT LARGE?

THE question that heads this article is perhaps one of the most frequent that members of the Craft are called upon to answer. It may not take the exact form in which we have chosen to put it, but in one shape or other it meets us on almost every side, and yet how few of those who range under the banner of Freemasonry are able to give an answer to it, or even say a few words in defence of the brotherhood. It not unfrequently happens that the inquiry is thrown at us as a taunt, and thus it is that the brother to whom the question is addressed is for the moment taken aback and unable to reply to his interrogator, or it may be that he is unacquainted with sufficient facts to enable him to answer in a way likely to stop the flow of opposition, but, however the question may be put, or in whatever form the answer may be given, the reply should unmistakably be in the affirmative. It cannot be denied that Freemasonry is entitled to be ranked as one of the influences that work for the good of mankind in general, and it certainly does not deserve the charge of caring only for those initiated into its mysteries. The benefits offered by the great Charities of the Order, which have been provided, and are still maintained solely by, Freemasons, are certainly limited in their application to members of the Masonic family who may be so unfortunate as to have to make claims on their funds, but the Craft is justified in enforcing this restriction, at least so long as cases of distress among Freemasons or their families remain unalleviated. Were the benefits of our Schools and our Benevolent Institution to be thrown open to the world at large very few of those who, in the days of their prosperity had subscribed towards the funds, would be able to avail themselves of the benefits they offer. Further than in the case of these three institutions our exclusiveness does not go, for, after providing for the requirements of our own Charities we are as ready to lend assistance to strangers, as we are to those who come with vouchers of Masonic relationship. We could refer to numerous instances where local claims have been recognised in preference to the wants of either our Benevolent Institution or the Schools which rely on the Craft for their maintenance, but think that such a course is quite unnecessary. This care for the outer world is especially noticeable in the grants made by Provincial Grand Lodges, a very small proportion of whose disbursements will allow of the charge of selfishness being made against Freemasonry. There we find that by far the greater portion of the benevolent bequests go to local Charities, or objects of need in the immediate neighbourhood, a very small proportion reaching the coffers of the great Masonic institutions; this is also the case in very many private Lodges, more especially Provincial ones, but wherever we go, be it to Grand Lodge or to the most unpretentious Lodge of Instruction, we always find a willingness to contribute to any local or national calamity, or even the most trivial occurrence which may deserve sympathy and is brought under the notice of those assembled.

Were it possible to obtain a list of the amounts spent by English Lodges and brethren in works of charity, it would be found that the annual contribution of some thirty or forty thousand pounds, which is made to our three Institutions, is but a small moiety of the total monies distributed. Under these circumstances, we, in turn, ask to whose benefit is the remainder devoted? In answer, it may be urged that a great portion of it is given to distressed Masons or their families, which we agree is the fact; but in thus distributing its funds is not Freemasonry helping materially the world at large? It is well known that a little help judiciously applied at a critical moment has saved many a poor family from making that appeal to local authorities which by law must be responded to. Unfortunately, when affairs have reached the climax which makes such appeals needful, it is very seldom they improve, unless after a considerable lapse of time. We therefore urge that Freemasons, by making grants to cases of distress immediately they are brought before the notice of the Lodges do really perform work which, under other circumstances, would fall heavily on the various parishes. It is no very rare occurrence when the head of a family dies for the widow and children to be left with little else than the household furniture, and then it is that the benevolence of Freemasonry steps in and stays the distress, often long enough to enable those who are left to look round and make some provision for the future. Without aid at such a time all courage may be lost, and affairs allowed to go pretty much their own way until it is too late to stop the downfall.

The principal cause that the extent to which Masonic benevolence extends is so little known is the fact that no fuss or parade is made when assistance is rendered. We attend a Lodge meeting, a case of distress is reported, regrets are expressed at the calamity which has caused the misfortune, and, after a short discussion, or sometimes without a word beyond the actual proposal and seconding of the grant, a sum of money is placed in the hands of a brother who the next day sees it properly applied. The recipients are generally in too great distress to make known their benefactors, while we, as Masons, justly refrain from publishing the fact more widely than has already been done. It is a part of our duty to give all the aid we can to those in want of it, and as such our efforts to alleviate distress should be kept as private as any portion of our ceremonies. If we look at the accounts of our Lodge of Benevolence, the total of the annual grants from which are perhaps unknown to the outer world, but which, as most of us are aware, amount to some thousands of pounds each year, we find the same kind secrecy observed. In this case the recipients are described merely as "a Brother of No. —," "the widow of a Brother of No. —," and so on, while in all our undertakings in the cause we have so deeply at heart the same true spirit of Charity is observed. Can it then be wondered at that we reply somewhat indignantly when told that Freemasonry exists merely for the sake of providing enjoyment for its members, or that it does nothing for the outer world? According to our estimate no less a sum than £100,000 is annually spent in Masonic Charity in England alone, and if any other class can be found that can show results in any degree approaching this, we will strive to point out evils as great as are said to exist in Freemasonry.

For the reason we have already urged,—that the work we do should be kept quiet,—we object to the proposition made by our correspondent, "A P.M.," in our last issue. Were his proposal to receive sufficient support to warrant its being carried out, we think it would be looked upon as a Masonic advertisement, and justly so. It would really be nothing more nor less than a public display to the world at large of what Freemasonry could do. At the best the good such a dispensary as he proposes would accomplish would be so small as to be unworthy of us, and although we are of opinion that aid should be rendered to relieve cases of real distress, we are averse to the indiscriminate relief afforded by the hospitals of our great towns. Knowing as we do something of the private as well as the Masonic career of our correspondent, we feel assured that he would be among the first to abandon his idea were he to think that it might prove detrimental to the Craft. We think such would be the result, but should like to hear the opinion of any of our readers who may take an interest in the matter. To establish a dispensary on a Masonic basis it would be necessary also to form branches in the principal towns throughout the kingdom, for it must be remembered that Freemasonry is not local to London or any other part of the country, but universal, and therefore that any charity formed in connection with it must be of similar extent, unless it be contemplated to limit the appeals also to the district, in which case the relief afforded would take more the form of a local charity on a Masonic foundation than a Masonic institution.

THE LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

THE constitution and general working of the Lodge of Benevolence always has been, and we imagine must ever continue to be, a difficult subject for the Craft to deal with. It is impossible to please all, especially where the spending of public money is concerned, and, as a consequence, the brethren interested in any particular case are very apt to think their appeal has not been so liberally responded to as they considered it deserved, while others will not refrain from expressing their opinion that a larger grant had been made than the nature of the case warranted. It has even been pointed out to us that the amount of a grant entirely depends on the opinion entertained of the proposer and seconder; some brethren, it is urged, being sure of a large amount for every appeal they endorse, while others less known invariably get smaller grants. This we consider is merely owing to the fact that those who frequently attend the meetings of the Lodge learn points which are likely to tell on their audience, or it may be they are gifted with a readier flow of words, and are able to carry their hearers away to an interest in the case for which they are pleading, while the less experienced brother will fail to put all the facts of the case so forcibly before those assembled.

As at present constituted the Lodge of Benevolence is, in our opinion, in a position sufficiently strong to allow of these remarks being ignored. It cannot be said that the Lodge is unrepresentative of the Craft at large, or that it is the party of any one section of the Order; it is in the power of every Lodge to be represented at each meeting; not, as might have been expected had any idea of private influence been contemplated by one particular member, but by any of the principal members of a Lodge, for, in the event of the Master being unable to attend, any one of the Past Masters may represent him. Surely these provisions should be sufficient to prevent anything like a packed meeting, and should be ample to secure an attendance large enough to form an unbiassed opinion on the merits of each case brought forward.

In times past the Fund of Benevolence, although providing for every worthy case that may have been brought forward, has gradually accumulated, until at the present time the balance reaches the splendid total of £50,000. The way in which this fund is raised is so small a tax on the brethren that few, if any, could wish for the annual contribution to be lowered, but then the question arises, how long is the fund to be allowed to accumulate, and at what sum is the line to be drawn? It is a matter of congratulation to the Craft that the trivial amount devoted to Grand Lodge from each subscription to the cause of Charity should enable them not only to relieve every case that may present itself, but still leave a considerable balance year after year to be added to invested funds. Some time since Bro. Clabon gave notice of a motion in Grand Lodge which, had it been settled, would have supplied an answer to these queries, but for some reason, best known by himself, he withdrew his proposition at the eleventh hour. The fact of the question having once been brought forward naturally gave rise to a feeling somewhat akin to curiosity in many brethren, and thus it is that at the meeting of Grand Lodge, on Wednesday, we find the question again coming under notice, but on this occasion we regret to say, in anything but a satisfactory manner.

It appears that the petition of a brother who has been most creditably associated with the Lodge of Freedom, No. 77, at Gravesend, and other Lodges in Kent, was lately considered by the Board of Benevolence, and, after discussion, a grant of £100 was recommended for the approval of Grand Lodge. There appears to have been a divided opinion at the Lodge of Benevolence at which this question was discussed, and among the minority we presume may be classed Bro. Joshua Nunn, who, on Wednesday, at Grand Lodge—being the elder Vice-President of the Board—had to bring forward the recommendations of the Lodge of Benevolence for confirmation by those present. Among these, of course, was the vote to which he objected. Now, if this vote was as undeserved as Bro. Nunn would wish us to suppose, it may reasonably be imagined there were many members of Grand Lodge who would have drawn attention to it had they been asked, but for Bro. Nunn to officially recommend a grant, and then in his capacity as a private member of Grand Lodge to oppose it, we consider—to put it in a mild form—very bad taste. Had attention been directed to the case it would then have been easy for Bro. Nunn to explain his views, but to do so in what might be taken as a semi-official manner is certainly wrong on his part. From the remarks of some of the speakers we fear that the matter resolved itself into a personal one, and if allowed to serve as a precedent it will do away with all unanimity in Grand Lodge. Once let a difference of opinion such as this be supported by Grand Lodge, and every grant that is made will be open to discussion, when, unless notice be previously given to call evidence, it will be impossible to form anything like a fair judgment.

The course taken by Bro. G. P. Britten and others, who combined to make the vote excessive in order that it should be discussed by Grand Lodge, is certainly open to question. If he or any other brother is desirous of getting the opinion of Grand Lodge on any subject it certainly can be obtained in a straightforward manner, recourse should never be had to side influences, which however worthy in themselves, cannot fail but to lead to confusion, if not to open rupture.

It is quite right that a certain form should be observed in confirming the grants of the Lodge of Benevolence when they exceed a given sum; but as the Craft places the distribution of the charity fund in the hands of the members of that Lodge, it would be very unfair if every action they took was to be open to reversal because it did not happen to be favoured by a minority at a previous meeting.

THE ROYAL MASONIC PUPILS' ASSISTANCE FUND.

THE preliminary arrangements that are being made by the founders of this Fund to start it on a firm basis are rapidly approaching completion. It is wished that every Province may be represented by one or other of its principal members on the first circular that is to be sent out, and with this object in view, strenuous efforts are being made to bring the scheme under the notice of the rulers of the various Masonic sub-divisions of the country. The success that has been met with is far in excess of what was contemplated, but still there are several districts from whence no replies have as yet been received. We hope in our next issue to furnish a list of those who have already given their approval, but meantime we cordially ask our friends to join us in the movement. We may mention that our respected Brother the Rev. C. J. Martyn, Past Grand Chaplain, Deputy Prov. G.M. Suffolk, &c., has kindly consented to act as Treasurer of the Fund pro tem. Any contributions to him (addressed, the Rectory, Long Melford), or to either of the Secretaries, will be thankfully received and duly acknowledged. Cheques may be crossed "Bank of England."

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—If these remedies be taken and used regularly during the summer months, the liver will act regularly, and so the chance of fevers and complaints of that character occurring will be much diminished, and very likely altogether averted. These valuable remedies promote skin action, and thus preserve the delicate internal structures from congestions and inflammation, by carrying from the system in this manner, and also by the bowels, any noxious matters which may have found their way into the blood. This is aiding nature in her efforts, and is consonant with reason and common sense, for if nature's efforts to throw off disease be interfered with by injudicious treatment, mischief instead of good will ensue.

Obituary.

We regret to notice the death of Brother William Runting, P.M. of the Belgrave Lodge, No. 749, and W.M. of the Londesborough Lodge, No. 1681. Bro. Runting was initiated into Freemasonry in the Faith Lodge, No. 141, on the 24th February 1857; he afterwards joined the Belgrave Lodge, and became its W.M.; he was a subscribing member at his death. He was a founder and first S.W. of the Londesborough Lodge, No. 1681, of which Lodge, at the time of his death, he was W.M. Bro. Runting was well-known and deservedly esteemed by many brethren, more especially by those living in the immediate vicinity of his residence, Mount-street, Grosvenor-square. He was interred at Woking Cemetery on Monday last, the funeral being attended by, among others, Bro. Garrod Secretary of the Belgrave Lodge, Bro. A. Barfield Treasurer; and Honeyball, Thomas, Ball, &c., of the Londesborough Lodge.

We have also to record the sudden death of Bro. John Seager, proprietor of the Marquis of Granby, New Cross-road, which sad event occurred about four o'clock on Wednesday morning last. He drove to Chiselhurst on Monday, and up to half-past eleven o'clock on Tuesday night was apparently in his usual health and spirits. He was, however, taken suddenly ill in the night, and although every attention was paid to him, he expired before daybreak on Wednesday. Bro. Seager, at whose house is held the Star Lodge of Instruction, No. 1275, was deservedly esteemed by his neighbours, and especially by the brethren who assembled weekly at his house, and his removal, at the early age of forty-seven, is the subject of very general regret to all who knew him in the locality, and to the Craft. He was known as a liberal contributor to the charities of the trade to which he belonged, and to the benevolent objects of the Craft in which he took so active an interest. In consequence of this sad event the Star Lodge of Instruction will not hold its weekly meeting, as usual, this (Saturday) evening.

The New Zealand papers record the death of a distinguished member of the fraternity, the Rev. Geo. Thomas Nowell Watkins, which event occurred at Greymouth, on 18th June. Bro. Watkins was a Greenwich man, and there he received his early education, finishing his studies at King's College, London. He subsequently undertook the care of private pupils, and acted as the Chaplain to the Greenwich Workhouse; whilst some time later he filled the curacy of St. Paul's, Deptford. Ten years ago he was appointed to the incumbency of Trinity Church, Greymouth, which he held to the time of his death. He exerted himself most assiduously in promoting the interests of Freemasonry in the colony, and his demise cast quite a shade of gloom over the entire fraternity there. The brethren assembled in full force to pay the last tribute of respect to their departed brother, who had done so much to endear himself to all with whom he had been associated. On the arrival at the church the coffin, upon which was placed the insignia of his Masonic office, was borne by the brethren, and on its being deposited on the tressels a chaplet of flowers was placed upon it by the Bishop of Nelson, who conducted the burial service. The choir then sang the appropriate hymn, commencing "Thou art gone to the grave; we will not deplore thee," after which the bishop commenced to read the service for the burial of the dead. This being over the coffin was conveyed to the hearse by six Past Masters—three of English and three of Scotch Lodges—the deceased having belonged to both Constitutions. The day was beautifully fine, and upwards of a thousand persons attended, from all parts of the district. The Bishop having read the appointed service, the coffin was lowered into the grave by the Freemasons, the scene being a grandly impressive one, as the setting sun shone beautifully at the time. The Deputy District Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Freemasons (Bro. Bevan) then came forward, and solemnly and distinctly read the Masonic service, the vast assemblage remaining uncovered till the conclusion of the ceremony. Deceased was a man of high attainments, and laboured hard for the welfare of the community amongst whom his lost was cast, irrespective of creed, for Bro. Watkins was no bigot, but a kind, noble, and liberal Christian, who not only studied, but practised, the teaching of his Great Master. In his sphere he was not only a Christian minister, but a philanthropist, denying himself pleasures and comforts that others might enjoy them. To the poor and afflicted his purse-strings were never tightened, and although on many occasions he had been taken advantage of by the undeserving, yet this did not trouble him half so much as when, his resources becoming exhausted, some one asked him for aid and assistance and he, for the time, was unable to grant it. The shops in the town were closed during the funeral, the shipping in the port hoisted their flags half-mast high, and the expressions of regret at the departure of so eminently useful a man and Christian minister were as universal as they were deserved.

FORBEARANCE.

AMONG the Masonic virtues there is one that we think is deserving of more attention than it sometimes meets with, particularly in India. We allude to forbearance. Of course it may be argued that there is much in this country to try a man's temper and make him less amiable than he should be; but when it is considered that the objects Freemasonry has in view are to eradicate all that is unseemly and displeasing, we must all admit we are under an obligation to fight against any influences of a pernicious tendency. We often hear "How sweet and pleasant it is to dwell together in Unity!" yet this cannot be unless we exercise forbearance towards one another. All do not hold the same views, all are not equally intelligent, nor are all educated up to the same standard, and it behoves those who possess these qualifications in a superior degree to exercise a careful self-restraint, and never forget that with the exercise of prudence it is comparatively easy to live in peace with any body of men. Whenever a community perceive a disposition to use arbitrary measures they will resent it, and some unpleasantness ensues. We have known the Master of a Lodge who was what might be, in the very fullest sense, termed a popular man, but who lost the affection and regard of the brethren by his arbitrary proceedings. When we hear of a number of members dimitting from a Lodge, or of a Lodge being put in abeyance through being unable to do any work, or of a split resulting in the establishment of a second Lodge, and trace the cause for these misfortunes to the root, we not unfrequently find they arise solely from a want of forbearance for the weaknesses of others. This Masonic virtue, like many others, is not cultivated in Indian Lodges as it ought to be. A Lodge may possess officers that are capable of carrying out the duties required of them by our rituals, and the care with which they perform their allotted task may be most commendable' the internal economy of the Lodge may be ably administered, and everything connected with the working be carried out in the most perfect manner possible; the Master may be well up in the ordinary routine of business, and be able to deliver the lectures in an effective and impressive manner: he may be what is generally known as a hearty good fellow, and be well liked by every one in the Lodge. This is all very good and very pleasant, but it is not all that is required, and at best can only be likened to the preparation of the rough stone for the more experienced workman. What is required in Indian Lodges is, that the Masters and Past Masters should devote more time to the delivery of addresses and lectures on the beauties and excellencies to be found in Masonry by those who persevere in searching for them. Lectures need not be either dry or wearisome. It has been our good fortune to sit in Lodges and witness the earnest attention of the brethren, while Masters of the Craft have delivered eloquent addresses. Freemasonry is intended to make a man a more useful member of society, to teach him how to regulate his passions, and fit him for the time when he will be summoned to the Great Grand Lodge above. Should he there be found wanting in the tests, on whose head will the sin lie? If he has had Masonry taught to him and exemplified by the teacher he will not be held guiltless, but if he has unfortunately been a member of a Lodge wherein the menatzchims have failed to honour the trust reposed in them the case will be far, very far, different. The Master's trust is a sacred one, and is not to be taken up lightly. The responsibilities that rest upon him are heavy, hence the reason for entrusting him with the power he holds: should he fail to perform his duties properly, he forgets what is due to the brethren and to the position he occupies in the Craft. Should difficulties arise he should meet them calmly and collectedly, and never permit his anger to gain the ascendancy, and when he observes any member is unable to control that passion he should endeavour to allay it by kind and courteous language, and not add fuel to the fire by arbitrary conduct that is sure almost to create a breach between himself and the Brother. We have known a few injudicious and harshly spoken sentences uttered by a Master cause many members of a Lodge to resign. An instance of this description was quite recently been brought to our notice, where, through the unwise proceedings of a Master who could not control his temper, a number of the members of the Lodge dimitted, and some have, rashly, we think, determined to have nothing more to do with Masonry. This is, we fear, not a singular case in India, where rulers require to exercise greater forbearance than in England. Members also must not forget that the responsibilities of the Master, and the difficulties with which he has to contend, are by no means lightened by the general condition of things in India; they must practise forbearance among themselves, never forgetting that charity sufferoth long and is kind, doth not behave itself unseemly, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil, believeth all things, hopeth all things, and endureth all things. Unless they thus recognise that Masonic virtue which they have solemnly promised to observe, they have become as sounding brass or tinkling cymbals, creating discord, and of but little intrinsic value to any.—Record of Western India.

FREEMASONRY AND ITS APPLICABILITY TO THE WANTS OF THE OUTER WORLD.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—No doubt many of your readers have, with myself, duly weighed the suggestion contained in a letter published in the last number of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE as to the establishment of a Dispensary, as an adjunct to the Masonic Charities. Such a suggestion was evidently prompted by the most laudable motives, and in expressing a few thoughts on the subject, I desire to give your correspondent full credit for the exercise of that most valuable principle of charitable relief which forms so important a feature of the Masonic faith.

But I am reminded that although our Masonic Charity should know no bounds, save that of prudence, yet I am of opinion, and it is an opinion shared by many with whom I have conversed upon this matter that this is a point where prudence steps in. I have had some little experience in the working of hospitals and dispensaries, and I shall be borne out by the experience of others similarly situated when I assert that working men, as a rule, are too fond of running off to a dispensary when overtaken by any trifling ailment.

There are plenty of respectable medical men who would be willing to make up a bottle of medicine (and to give advice to any poor man requiring it), sufficient to last two days, say for one shilling. And in a majority of cases these simple and occasional illnesses, if taken in time by a skilful practitioner, are speedily and effectually cured. In cases when the illness is of a persistent nature, and likely to last for any time, the proper place for such patient would undoubtedly be the hospital; and thither such an invalid would as a matter of course be sent by the medical man to whom the case had been at first submitted.

Employers of labour well know that if a man leaves his work, if only for an hour, it upsets him for the remainder of the day; and that it thus costs him two or three shillings at least for such interval, putting it on the low ground of loss of time, and consequently of wages, alone. Dispensaries are established with the view of their becoming ultimately self-supporting, and to do away with the system of pauperisation which is unfortunately too prevalent amongst the working-classes of the present day. Supposing such an institution were started, and a competent medical man consented to receive patients, say from seven till ten o'clock in the evening, such a practitioner, assisted by a dispenser, and clerk to jot down his instructions, could dispose of thirty or forty patients per hour. When we consider that there are hundreds of medical men who, whilst riding about in their conveyances, and straining every effort to keep up the "appearances" due to their position; find it extremely difficult to make both ends meet, would it not be better to secure the services of such men, who would gladly work at a reasonable remuneration, to attend to these dispensaries and do such work as your correspondent describes?

It is well known to every one of us that medical men give their honorary services to hospitals with a view of obtaining practice and medical instruction, which is part and parcel of their education. It would be a great boon to many such to have the opportunity of gaining that experience at home, and in such manner as would produce a much needed addition to their slender incomes. Besides, is it fair to expect a doctor or a surgeon to give advice gratis? Would any man in legal difficulty apply in like fashion to a lawyer? It is a well-known axiom that advice not paid for is valueless; at all events it is but little appreciated. And so in the case of medical aid. Medicine not paid for is too frequently thrown away; and medical advice obtained without payment is similarly disregarded.

The experience of a medical man brings him into daily contact with the very worst forms of misery and destitution. How often does he find it absolutely necessary that his patient should be supplied with stimulants, such as beef-tea, wine, &c.? The unfortunate family has been improvident perhaps; at all events there has been no laying by for the "rainy day" that was unforeseen, and there is no money in the house even for the common necessaries of life, much less for beef-tea and wine. Yet it is imperative that such shall be forthcoming, and what does the doctor do? Why, in many cases that have come under my knowledge, he puts his hand in his pocket and provides them himself. It is this practice of silent charity—the right hand not knowing what the left does—that forms so noble a trait in the character of very many medical practitioners, and which, to Freemasons especially, must commend itself as the most brilliant example that any man could emulate.

In my opinion, this hospital system is a mistake; at least so far as the indiscriminate administration of medicine is concerned. It forms one of the greatest sources of waste and misuse of public charity, of which such complaints are frequently made in the public prints. In cases of severe illness, when it is found imperative that a man shall lay up, the hospital is the place; but when a man only requires out-door relief, he is, in a majority of instances, in a position to pay for it,—at a moderate rate. There is that difference between temporary and confirmed illness. In the former case a man will often leave his work to "attend the hospital." It costs him two or three hours as a rule, and not unfrequently he adds to the cost of his voluntary idleness a sixpence or so more by a visit to the public-house on his way to and from the hospital. If, on the other hand, the visit to the doctor could be postponed till after working hours, the case would be equally well met, without any loss whatever. What medical man is there who, when interested in a case, ever loses sight of it till the result is known? If stimulants are required, the exercise of silent charity, of which I have spoken, comes into play. If beyond his skill, or likely to last long, the hospital is decided on, and what better or more effectual passport to a hospital than the recommendation of a medical man.

To prove what I have said respecting the little value set upon medical attendance supplied gratis, can it be shown that the working classes contribute in anything like a proportionate degree to the already existing hospitals, which are kept going for their especial behoof? We all of us remember the efforts put forth by Bro. Dr. Jabez Hogg to establish an Eye Hospital and to make it self-supporting. We know too that after thirty years of self-sacrificing interest and energy, as principal surgeon of the Ophthalmic Infirmary at Westminster, he never received such a reward as a vote of thanks from those whom his efforts chiefly benefitted. It is proved beyond question that the free receipt of medicine and aid by those who can afford to pay a reasonable sum for it is demoralising, as it is unappreciated. It fosters a species of mendicancy which should be discountenanced instead of being further encouraged. The working classes are, as a rule, better off than the middle classes, who receive little benefit, if any, from the hospitals of our land, but who very often contribute to the funds of such institutions, directly or indirectly.

With a view of stimulating a spirit of independence amongst the working classes, I would restrict the system of gratuitous medicine and advice; this would not only prevent an unnecessary expenditure of money benevolently subscribed, but it would destroy the pauperising influences which indiscriminate charity always engenders, and it would put into the pockets of many a struggling, conscientious, but yet impecunious medical man, the money that is now squandered, and which is so sadly needed to keep himself and family in a position which the practice of the medical profession should secure.

I remain,
Dear Sir and Brother,
Yours fraternally,
M. M.

"WHICH IS CORRECT?"

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—As an Irish Mason, on a short visit to London, I have been glad of an opportunity to compare working notes by attending some of the Lodges of Instruction mentioned in your journal, and must confess myself fairly puzzled by some things I have heard and seen. In one Lodge the Preceptor repeatedly addressed us as "Brethering," which I suppose is Masonic English for Brethren; the S.W., in the first ceremony, was good enough to strongly "exhaust" the initiate upon the nature of the badge (in Ireland we say "exhort"); whilst the W.M., in the third degree, described one of the signs as being that of "joy and exaltation," the Irish for the latter word being exultation. We try to be as accurate as possible. May I hope for an opinion in the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE as to "Which is correct?"

Fraternally yours,
PADDY FROM CORK.

AN ODD FISH IN THE LODGE.

FROM THE "MASONIC REVIEW."

THE standing joke in the Last Debt Lodge, No. 90, ever since Brother Rochelle was initiated therein, had been the oddities of that quaint and eccentric individual. Being excessively homely, Bro. Rochelle was, of course, made Tyler at the very next election after his "Raising;" and he has been kept, by unanimous suffrage, in that honourable but frigid post ever since; honourable "because tending to make all men honourable" who faithfully perform its multifarious and onerous duties; frigid, because, as all the world knows, there is no stove in the Tyler's room of Last Debt Lodge, and in winter, when the thermometer is taken with a lowness of spirits that registers down to 18 below zero, it requires all the good nature of Bro. Rochelle to keep himself from freezing to death. Twice he has been brought into the Lodge room in a state of suspended animation, and was only restored to life by a spoonful of "Bourbon," cautiously administered, thirty doses per minute, by Bro. Dr. Thurstie, who providentially happens to have a vial full (a quart vial) of that substance in his coat pocket whenever needed. Fourteen times he, Bro. Rochelle, has declared "he will not serve another year unless the Lodge puts a stove into his department," and fourteen times he has deliberately perjured himself by consenting to a re-election. His position in summer does very well—but in winter—don't mention it.

I visited that Lodge in the month of February 1856, and while I was waiting outside (so that the Lodge might practice upon the "private grand honours,") I got chilblains on my left heel, which annoy me to this day. Tyler's rooms are naturally cold places, but the Tyler's room of Last Debt Lodge is a corner apartment, third story, and such a refrigerator that ice remains congealed in the water bucket, it is said, all the year round.

Bro. Laurence Rochelle is by several degree the homeliest Tyler I ever saw. And this is saying a great deal. Ethnologists, who study professional peculiarities, never venture upon staking a Masonic Tyler, as a specimen of humanity, to illustrate either of the grand divisions of Shem, Ham, or Japheth. I once presented a bust of a Tyler to Fowler and Wells, the Broadway phrenologists, and they honestly acknowledged that they could not set it up among their other busts, "as no one would believe it to be a natural specimen," so, by my leave, they gave it to Barnum, who placed it among the simia of his collection, and there it stood until burned in the great conflagration. Did the reader ever see a Tyler's likeness placed among those groups that adorn Masonic Lodge rooms? Never. No photographer will consent to take one. He will invent some excuse or other, "that the sun don't shine to-day," or "his chemicals are impure;" but the truth is, he wont risk his camera glass upon the subject. Did you ever hear of a Grand Lodge ordering a Tyler's portrait painted? Never. And you never will. No artist is so lost to the dignity of his profession as to consent to paint one.

But, as I remarked, Bro. Laurence Rochelle is considerably homelier than other Tylers. The small pox early disfigured him. But that was as nothing to what happened afterwards. He is so excessively "humbly" (as the New England Yankees around Boston pronounce all words spelled in that way,) that "visiting brethren" are apt to forget the proper answers when he is present. One of them, a young minister, was undergoing an examination. "Quarterly meeting" met there that week, and he was invited to visit Last Debt Lodge. All was going on well. He had got safely over the 49th question, whatever that is—I only tell the story as t'was told me—when the Tyler, Bro. Rochelle, looked into the preparation room, and the Reverend Brother caught sight of his face, "Oh," says he, "your members wear masks, do they?" Afterwards in a private confab with me, the ecclesiast acknowledged to me that he had been "reading Morgan," and naturally concluded that Bro. Rochelle was wearing a mask to represent Satan in the ceremonies of the Lodge.

I have been "seriously asked" why the homeliest man in the Lodge always seems pointed out by destiny for the position of Tyler? I am "seriously asked" a great many other hard questions. My uniform answer to this is (and that always stops further inquiry), "it is one of the landmarks." Nobody in the world (except myself) knows what "the Masonic Landmarks" are. The inquirer is bound to admit that answer conclusive. Is it not said that when, in the course of one of our great battles, a cassion exploded, awfully disfiguring twelve men, that the captain of the gun (I am sorry to add a Freemason) instantly shouted, "there is a dozen Tylers made at one pop!' It was an improper remark in him, and I only give it in the way of illustration. For my part I have long ceased to encourage jesting upon Masonic subjects.

One eminent advantage, however, grows out of Bro. Rochelle's position as Tyler of Last Debt Lodge, viz: That it saves the treasury untold sums, that would otherwise go to beggars. "Let me instance," as logicians say.

First—The traditional "widow of a Royal Arch Mason," Mrs. Hennpege, who was in your Lodge last year, and mine the year before, and will come round again as regularly as the seasons do, never called at Last Debt Lodge but once. She climbed up to the third story with difficulty, for the window is a gross feeder, and large. She came puffing and panting into the Tyler's room. Bro. Rochelle was there, "armed with the proper instrument of his office," as he always is when on duty, and as the widow came in, he incautiously turned his full countenance upon her. Now as a general rule, Bro. R. does not do that. When he is good natured he rarely ever shows a man more than his profile. But that night he was angered at something, and he gave the marauding she corsair, as I said, a full face. The effect was tremendous. The widow staggered back, covered her face with both hands, dropped her bundle of "documents," shrieked wildly, Gracious herings! three times, added "it's the devil," and retreated down stairs like a lard barrel, and returned to her hotel. It is reported that she made statements there highly derogatory to the Lodge, but one thing is certain, she never came back after her "documents," and had to get up a new set before she could go to the next town.

Second—The second case is that of the notorious victimizer, Zerubbabel Shanks, who has bought him a nice farm in one of the Western States out of the proceeds of his Masonic depredations. Shanks undertook to try his little game on Last Debt Lodge, and made application accordingly. But being desired to "explain his case" to a committee, of which Bro. Rochelle was chairman, he hesitated, prevaricated, and finally broke down, acknowledging that he could not make his statement "while that wicked left eye" of the Tyler was bearing upon him! When the rascality of Zerubbabel Shanks was finally brought to light, the Lodge gave Bro. Rochelle a vote of thanks for his acuteness in detecting the impostor, and incontinently raised his salary to 75 cents a night.

Third—The third case is that remarkable instance of Major Grohagan. The Major was a most brazen impostor, and succeeded in victimizing all the Lodges round to amounts varying from five to fifty dollars each. He had nearly screwed a twenty out of Bad Debt Dodge; the money in fact was actually "appropriated," and nearly "handed over."

By good luck the Treasurer, being extremely busy, requested Bro. Rochelle to deliver the amount to Major Grohagan, who was waiting for it at the hotel. Bro. Rochelle did call, but upon introducing himself to "the distressed brother," and stating that "he wished to see him for a moment privately," that experienced pirate took him for a Philadelphia detective, and making a temporary excuse slipped out at the back door of the hotel, and disappeared over the fence. The Major is now serving out his twenty years' term in the shoe shops of the State's prison, but says, "he never had any thing to alarm him so much in all his life as when that ——— Tyler called on him to ask for a private conversation." I don't wonder.

It is said, and statistics confirm it, that in no Lodge in Cash county are the dues collected up so punctually as in Last Debt Lodge, No. 90. The reason is obvious. Every quarter, punctually, the bills are made out by the Secretary, Bro. Prophet, and handed to Bro. Rochelle. He announces in open Lodge the fact, that "he has the bills and shall call, of evenings, at the private houses of the members, and collect them." Every brother who is a married man instantly takes the alarm and pays up at once, to avert the impending calamity, for a story is prevalent in that vicinity, at which they well shudder, as the horrid effects of one of those evening calls, and nobody is brave enough to risk it the second time. In fact, I saw the reason for the scare, and it is a good one. Before the month is out, Bro. Rochelle has the cash "all in hand," and so reports it at the very next meeting of the Lodge.

It will be well enough to explain what I mean by my title to this chapter: "An Odd Fish in the Lodge." It is that Brother Rochelle is as witty and pungent as he is homely. Being a cooper by trade he has acquired all the philosophy peculiar to that mechanical art, and brings it to bear with a humour all his own, upon his Masonic brethren. Nobody can tell a good thing like a homely man. Whoever heard of a handsome person being a wit? Nobody. The present writer owes what little celebrity he possesses (a very little), as a retailer of current jests, to a certain hardness of countenance—a kind of crust, as it were—a bronze of expression, that enables him to command the gravity necessary to the utterance of a bon mot. I would as soon look for a wit in an elegant woman as a handsome man. Now our hero, Bro. Rochelle, maintains the analogy alluded to; being the homeliest of Tylers, he is the wittiest of Tylers, and affords to his companions in the Lodge a constant feast of good things. This leads (as the sight of sun-flints rationally suggests the idea of shooting) to a circumstance that the reader would not guess at. Last Debt Lodge, No. 90, is the only Foyer Maconnique in all that district that maintains the ancient practice of "refreshment after labour." Its Junior Warden, Bro. Halibut, sits under a sheaf of wheat suspended from the ceiling above him, as a constant reminder of the fact that "to him is committed the superintendence of the Craft during the hours of refreshment, and it is therefore essentially necessary that he should not only be temperate and discreet in the indulgence of his own inclinations but he should carefully observe that none of the Craft convert the purposes of refreshment into intemperance and excess." Its Senior Warden, Bro. Anastatica, feels that to suffer the country brethren to go home, five and ten miles after midnight, with empty stomachs, comes within the prohibition of "suffering any to go away dissatisfied," and he uses his official influence for "refreshments after labour." The Senior Deacon, Bro. Yoketooth, whose sole purpose in this life (next to the care of his family and salvation of his soul) is "to welcome and accommodate visiting brethren," finds there is no welcome complete, no accommodation perfect, if the visiting brethren are permitted to retire without a taste of No. 90's hospitality.

The Worshipful Master of the present year (Bro. Temanite) is personally a good feeder. He is a bachelor, like our Bro. Noureddin Effendi, and has no one to get him up a nice thing when he goes home cold and empty from the Lodge room. So he favours "refreshments after labor," for the same reason that Paul advised Timothy to imbibe a little of Lebanon's golden wine, viz: for "the stomach's sake." The two stewards, of course, go in for refreshments. How else can they "see that the tables are properly furnished at refreshment, and that every brother is suitably provided for." Impossible.

But after all, although every one of these offices has a valid and constitutional reason for favouring "refreshment after labour," it is more than unlikely that the Lodge, No. 90, would continue that practice were it not for the Tyler whose bon mots, witty sayings, and side-splitting anecdotes are so enjoyable, and I may add so inexhaustible that men come seven miles, even stretching their cable tows, to attend the regular communication of Last Debt Lodge to enjoy them. If that theory is ill-founded, why then does not every Lodge do as No. 90 does? Every Junior Warden has the same catechetical reason for it. So has every Senior Warden and Senior Deacon, and every pair of Stewards. Yet the practice has fallen into almost universal desuetude, and there is a set of Masons who, for the sins of Fraternity, are allowed pen and ink, yea, and the aid of type and paper to promulgate the heresy that "refreshment after labor is a relic of the barbarous days—productive of waste of funds, tending to intemperate habits, making the Institution unpopular," and all sorts of trashy and nonsensical statements besides. Bah! let me wash from my mouth such salt and brimstone with some lines from Montgomery:

> Thus sweetly to surrender,
> The present for the past,
> In sprightly mood, yet tender,
> Life's burden down to cast;
> This is to taste from stage to stage,
> Youth no less refined by age,
> Like wine well kept and long
> Heady, nor harsh, nor strong,
> With every annual cup is quaffed,
> A richer, purer, mellower draught.

Now I can return again to my subject, which is to explain how the excessive homeliness of Bro. Rochelle is promotive of such Lodge festivity, that the Lodge itself is favoured beyond all its neighbours. The cause is obvious: it is the fund of quaint sentiment poured forth by the Tyler, in which all manner of ancient traditions, biblical morals, modern incidents, quips, quirks, and oddities are blended with the soberest counsel, and accompanied with the soberest faces. The present writer in the last forty years has enjoyed more than one of those "feasts of reason and flows of soul," and can truly testify to the profit derived therefrom. Among the evidences of the acuteness and humour of this good homely man, I quote from a memorandum made at one of those gatherings:

"The monitorial instruction of the Third Degree tells, us, my brethren, that the grand edifice styled King Solomon's Temple was attended with two remarkable circumstances. From Josephus, we learn that although seven years were occupied in building it, yet, during the whole time, 'it rained not in the day time, that the workmen might not be obstructed in their labour.' Now no such statements were ever made by Josephus. In his description of the Temple of Herod (not King Solomon's Temple, but the one built on the same spot a thousand years later) he says it was built in one year and six months, and that it 'was reported' that during the time they were building, it did not rain in the day time, but that the showers fell in the night, so that the work was not hindered. And this, he says, 'our fathers delivered to us.' Nor is it incredible, if any have regard to the manifestations of God. And thus was performed the work of the rebuilding of the Second Temple." To this, a note is made by the translator, Whiston, to the effect that the traditions which Josephus here mentions as handed down from fathers to their children of this particular remarkable circumstance, relating to the building of Herod's Temple, is a demonstration that such a building was a known thing in Judea at this time. He was born but forty-six years after it is related to have been finished, and might himself have seen and spoken with some of the builders themselves, and with a great number of those who had seen its builders. (Antiquities, Book 15, chap. ii.)

Such facts, carefully elaborated in daily cogitations in his cooper's shop, are blended by our homely Tyler with words of humour, quips and quirks. It appears odd enough to listen to him, sitting at the foot of the table, his seared and furrowed visage frowning horribly over his plate, while the Worshipful Master, who is the presumed concentration of the wisdom of the Lodge, sits through the hour and says nothing. One can scarcely help thinking the head is where the tail ought to be.

UNITED GRAND LODGE OF ENGLAND.

QUARTERLY COMMUNICATION.

THE Quarterly meeting of United Grand Lodge of England was held on Wednesday evening, in the Temple. In the absence of the Grand Master, the Pro Grand Master, and the Deputy Grand Master, the Grand Master's chair was occupied by General Brownrigg, Provincial Grand Master for Surrey. Bro. William Kingston, District Grand Master of Malta, occupied the chair of Past Grand Master, Bro. Montagne Guest, Provincial Grand Master for Dorset, the chair of Deputy Grand Master, Major-General the Hon. Somerset G. Calthorpe, Junior Grand Warden, the chair of Senior Grand Warden, and Capt. W. Platt, Past Junior Grand Warden, that of Junior Grand Warden. Among the other Grand Officers present were Bros. the Rev. C. J. Martyn P.G.C., the Rev. Sir J. Warren Hayes P.G.C., the Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg P.G.C., the Rev. C. W. Spencer Stanhope G.C., Dr. Jabez Hogg P.G.D., John B. Monckton President of the Board of General Purposes, Sir Albert Woods (Garter) G.D.C., Thomas Fenn P.G.D., J. M. Case P.G.D., Capt. Nathaniel G. Philips P.G.D., C. A. Murton P.G.D., C. W. C. Hutton P.G.D., Thomas Cubitt P.G.P., W. Wilson G.P., James Kench Assist. G.P., E. P. Albert P.G.P., John Wright P.G.P., Peter de L. Long P.G.D., Jas. Glaisher P.G.D., H. G. Buss Assist. G. Sec., and John M. Wike P.G.D. Bro. Buss having read the minutes of the June Communication, they were put and confirmed, and Bro. Buss afterwards informed the acting Grand Master that he had received letters from several of the Grand Officers regretting their inability to attend. He also stated that Grand Secretary was too ill to attend, though he was happy to say he was improving in health. The Rev. C. J. Martyn then asked Grand Lodge to join with him in expressing hearty sympathy with Bro. Hervey in his heavy trial, and their earnest desire that the Great Architect of the Universe would shortly restore him to health and strength. General Brownrigg said Grand Lodge would heartily endorse what had been said by Bro. Martyn, and they all wished to see Bro. Hervey safe among them again. Bro. Buss would be kind enough to convey this expression of feeling to Grand Secretary. The Report of the Lodge of Benevolence for the last quarter was afterwards brought up. In it were recommendations for several large grants, and Bro. Joshua Nunn, in introducing them, said that while it was his duty to submit them to Grand Lodge, he could not join in the recommendation to give the first brother on the list £100. He stated as much at the meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence in June, when the recommendation was made. The brother had only been nine years and a half a Mason. It was true he was a Past Master, and that he had subscribed to one of the Charities; but although Bro. Clabon had, in Grand Lodge, stated that he did not think it was proper to go on increasing the funds the Lodge of Benevolence had got, he (Bro. Joshua Nunn) thought the Lodge ought to be just as well as generous. He would propose, as an amendment, that the grant should be £50. Bro. Brackstone Baker said that the Lodge of Benevolence looked into all the details of the cases that were brought before them. Before Grand Lodge decided to reduce the amount of the recommendation he thought it should be put in possession of something more than the mere statement Bro. Nunn had just made, and he would ask that Bro. Nunn should give some sketch of the motives and grounds on which he based his amendment. Bro. Russell P.M. 77 said, that Grand Lodge was placed in the invidious position of having to pronounce a decision on a case in which it had no evidence, or anything worthy of the name of evidence, to guide it. The Lodge of Benevolence had that evidence, and fully investigated it. He would try to remedy the defect by stating that the brother requiring relief was thirty-seven years of age, and was initiated in 1868. He joined Royal Arch Masonry in 1870, and assisted to found the Erasmus Wilson Lodge in 1874-5. He was W.M. of his mother Lodge, No. 77, in 1874, which entertained the Provincial Grand Lodge that year at Gravesend, when he was rewarded by Lord Holmesdale with the Provincial Junior Grand Warden's collar. He was a Life Subscriber to the Benevolent Institution. He had now a wife and seven children, the eldest only 13½ years, to support. In his prosperity he contributed to the support of his aged father and mother. The brother was afflicted with chronic rheumatism, and permanently lame, and was sometimes unable to leave his bed for days together. He eked out a miserable subsistence by teaching music; he had to dispose of part of his furniture and valuables, and was dependent also on the charity of friends—a source which was nearly exhausted. Bro. Russell concluded by saying he much feared that if the assistance now asked was not granted, Christmas would find the brother without a roof over the heads of himself and family. General Brownrigg thought Grand Lodge would be treading on dangerous ground if it departed from its usual course of adopting the recommendations of the Lodge of Benevolence. Unless some very strong reason was shown why the recommendation should not be followed, he thought Grand Lodge should not refuse it. Bro. G. P. Britten P.M. 183 said, there was something more in this matter than voting £50 or £100 to a brother. When Bro. Clabon brought forward his motion for dealing in a particular manner with the Fund of Benevolence, he withdrew his motion, and so prevented the brethren expressing an opinion upon it. The Fund of Benevolence was established for the relief of distress, and many brethren who had something to say on the subject of Bro. Clabon's motion voted the recommendation of an excessive amount in the case under discussion for the purpose of taking Grand Lodge's opinion whether the Fund of Benevolence should be held sacred to its legitimate object. Bro. Joshua Nunn explained that his reason for proposing £50 was that on the same night that the brother in question was voted £100, other Masons who had been three times longer in Masonry than he were voted £40 only. Bro. Binckes, while voting for the £100, desired the brethren to vote on that question alone, and not on the by-issue raised by Bro. Britten. Grand Lodge then confirmed the recommendation for £100. The other recommendations were also carried, and the brethren then adopted the report of the Board of General Purposes, and closed Grand Lodge.

Henley Lodge, No. 1472.—The first meeting of this Lodge after the summer recess was held on Tuesday, 2nd inst., at the Three Crowns, North Woolwich, under the presidency of the W.M. Bro. W. T. Turner. At the opening of the Lodge the attendance was somewhat meagre, but later on was all that could be desired. The following brethren supported the W.M. in the various offices:—Bros. E. West P.M., Dr. W. Vance S.W., J. Gaskell P.M. as J.W., J. Ives P.M. Sec., Jas. Elder S.D., E. Palmer J.D., W. J. Burgess I.G., V. J. Holloway D.C., Mat. Sherwin Org. The W.M. having opened his Lodge, the ballot was taken for the admission of three gentlemen who were candidates for initiation. In due course two of these gentlemen, viz., Messrs. Thomas Tolhurst and Richard Clark, were initiated, after which Bros. Weaver and Stanley were passed, and Bros. Jennings and Phelps were raised. This completing the ceremonial work of the evening, the W.M. resumed the Lodge to the first degree, when Bro. West announced that the Lodge had just sustained a great loss in the death of one of its Past Masters—Bro. Sisley. That brother, as Bro. West observed, was better known as the first W.M., he had taken an active part in the formation of the Lodge, and had since its first meeting been a constant attendant, ever ready to help in any work that was brought under the notice of the Lodge and its members. Bro. West then explained the situation in which the widow and family of the late brother were placed, and expressed his hope that the brethren would endeavour to place one of the children in the Boys' School, he (Bro. West) had already some promises, and he thought that with the co-operation of the members of the Henley Lodge and the assistance of such friends as would help them, they might succeed in their desire. Bro. Gaskell stated that a brother of one of the neighbouring Lodges had promised his support—which support might realise some two or three hundred votes—and he had no doubt but that the Capper and other Lodges would join in securing the election of one of the orphans of their late brother. It was then proposed that a letter of condolence be sent to the widow, expressing the great regret of the Lodge at the calamity which had befallen her and her children. Bro. Plume then rose and said he believed that the Lodge had a fund, specially formed—as he remembered by the late Bro. Sisley—for the relief of members of the Lodge and their families. At the time of the establishment of this fund it was pointed out that it would be advisable, if possible, that no claim should be made on it for the first four years or so. He was not aware whether that time had expired, but even if it had not, he thought the brethren would be justified in voting something for the relief of the family of Bro. Sisley, who, as he had just mentioned, was the founder of the fund. No doubt could be entertained but that the case was one that was worthy of any aid they could afford, and he, therefore, proposed that the sum of £10 10s be voted and sent to the widow, in order to somewhat alleviate the present distress in which the family were placed. He considered this was the least they could do to show in a tangible way the esteem that was entertained for their departed brother. The motion was seconded, and carried unanimously. No further business being before the brethren, the W.M. proceeded to close the Lodge, the brethren afterwards partaking of supper, and, later on, spending an hour in social enjoyment. The usual toasts were given from the chair, those of the Queen, the Grand Master, and the Grand Officers each receiving due recognition. Bro. P.M. Ives proposed the health of the W.M. It was a toast always well received. The Worshipful Master had gained the respect of the whole Lodge, and was ever considering what he could do to enhance its welfare. Bro. Ives referred to the amount of work the W.M. had performed that evening, and complimented him on his rendering of the three degrees. Bro. Turner assured the brethren that so far from his duties being a task, he considered it a pleasure to come among them. He had not satisfied himself by the way in which he had fulfilled his duties that evening, but hoped that at the next meeting he should prove himself better acquainted with his work. He referred to the prosperity of the Lodge, mentioning that during the six months he had occupied the Chair he had initiated six gentlemen into Freemasonry. In giving the health of the initiates, the W.M. expressed a hope that they would turn out good Masons, and prove themselves a credit to the Lodge which had received them into the Order. Each of the newly-admitted brethren expressed a few words of thanks, hoping they might prove worthy of the W.M.'s remarks. The toast of the P.M.'s followed. Although the attendance was but small, the W.M. said he was greatly indebted to them for the assistance they had rendered him that evening, and also for the aid they, at all times, gave him in any matter on which they were consulted. Bro. West, after tendering his thanks for the way in which he had been received, said he considered it his duty to do all that lay in his power for the Lodge and Freemasonry generally. He referred in a few words to the loss the Lodge had sustained in its roll of Past Masters, and thanked the brethren for the vote they had been pleased to pass in favour of the family. He would during the next day see the money properly applied. Bro. Ives followed, much in the same strain. The health of the Visitors was now proposed, and responded to by Bros. Gaskell and Morgan. In calling on the brethren to toast the Officers, the W.M. alluded to their labours with great satisfaction; he likewise urged on the lay members the advantage of working up, so that they would be in a position to carry out the duties of any office they might be called upon to fill. Bro. S.W. was the first to reply. After thanking the brethren for the way in which they had responded to the call of the Master, he said it would alwas be his desire to perform the work of any office to which he was appointed in such a way as to maintain the credit of the Lodge. He quite agreed with the remarks of the W.M. as to brethren making themselves proficient in the ceremonies, and urged a regular attendance at Lodges of Instruction. After a few words from other of the Officers, the Tyler was summoned, and the meeting terminated. It was referred to as extremely unfortunate that the festivities of the first night of the season should again have to be foregone in consequence of the ravages of death in their midst. Last year, at the corresponding meeting of this Lodge, the news arrived while the brethren were at supper of the foundering of the Princess Alice, when so many human beings met a most awful death, within, as it were, a few yards of the house, and on this occasion the harmony usually enjoyed by the members was dispensed with out of respect for their departed Past Master. We hope it may be years before such events will again occur in connection with our friends at North Woolwich.

Sir Hugh Myddelton Lodge of Instruction, No. 1602.—Held its usual meeting on Tuesday, at Bro. C. J. G. Wood's, Crown and Woolpack, St. John-street-road, Bro. J. A. Powell presiding; he was ably assisted by Bros. Hirst S.W., Kidder J.W., R. Pearcy Preceptor, Osborne Sec., Braine S.D., Mountstephen J.D., Taylor I.G.; also Bros. Fuld, Crosbie, Isaac, Hunter, Wood, Weil, Fenner, Greene, and others. The W.M. rehearsed the ceremony of initiation, Bro. Fuld being the candidate. Bro. Weil answered the questions satisfactorily, was entrusted; Lodge was advanced a degree, and the ceremony of passing rehearsed, Bro. Weil being the candidate. Bro. Fuld then answered the questions leading to the superior degree, and that ceremony was rehearsed. All ceremonies were performed in Bro. Powell's masterly manner. Bro. Hirst was elected Master for next week, after which Lodge was closed and adjourned.

The Installation meeting of the Prince Leopold Lodge, No. 1445, was held on Thursday. Bro. W. H. Myers P.M. acted as installing Master. Bro. S. L. Green is the new W.M. Our report shall appear next week.

In the early part of the season we mentioned that Madame Worrell was fulfilling a highly satisfactory engagement at the Pier Pavilion Concerts at Hastings. We understand this talented lady's exertions were so much appreciated that she has been re-engaged, and will appear at Hastings every evening next week. We take this opportunity of announcing that Madame Worrell's Annual Concert will be given on the 1st October next, at the Angell Town Institution, Brixton.

THE FIRST EDDYSTONE LIGHTHOUSE.—On this rock, visible only at low water, a country gentleman of Essex, Henry Winstanley, conceived the daring project of building a lighthouse. It was not a mere dream, but a downright earnest determination, and no sooner had he obtained the necessary powers than he set to work, and for four years laboured untiringly. The work was as difficult as it was dangerous. Even in calm weather the sea was almost always rough at the Eddystone, and it happened that sometimes in the summer season all the works would be buried beneath the waves for ten or fourteen days at a time. But he persevered, and no sooner had he raised the works high enough than he took up his abode there with the workmen, who caught the contagion of his own enthusiastic confidence. It was a curious building of wood, and, as it turned out, inadequate for the requirements of such a place. But Winstanley was satisfied it was strong enough to defy the fury of the elements—so confident, in fact, that he expressed the wish that he might be in the lighthouse in the midst of the fiercest storm that ever blew. Unhappily his wish was gratified. Five years after the light had first shone out from the summit of the tower, Winstanley was in the lighthouse, superintending some repairs, when a storm of fearful violence occurred, and raged through the night. In the morning many eager eyes were strained to see how the lighthouse had stood the gale, but there was nothing to be seen save the angry sea dashing over the Eddystone rock—the lighthouse, with Winstanley and the lightkeepers, had been swept away!—From "Heroes of Britain in Peace and War" for September.

[COMMUNICATED.]

TO commemorate the fourth anniversary of the initiation of the eminent and venerated Bro. Littré, the Lodge Clémente Amitié gave, on the 8th of July last, in the spacious hall of the Grand Orient, a literary and musical festival. This was attended by a large gathering of the élite of our Masonic and social circles, presided over by the M. Em. Bro. de St. Jean, President of the Council of the Order, who was supported by many members of the Council, and a great muster of Venerables and Foreign and French brethren.

Among the distinguished party were Bro. General Türr, Bro. Wyrouboff, De Hérédia, Antide Martin, Massicault, Dr. Barré, Poulc, Dalsace, Foussier, Blanchon, Senator Valentin, Senator Oudet, &c. Messrs. Ferdinand de Lesseps, Jules de Lesseps, many literary gentlemen and artists, and a good sprinkle of ladies.

The proceedings were opened soon after eight o'clock by some national music, followed by the reception of a deputation from the Lodge Alsace Lorraine, sister Lodge to the Clémente Amitié. That deputation was organised for the purpose of presenting Bro. Littré with the Medal of the Lodge, as a token of fraternal esteem and high veneration. Then another deputation was introduced from the Administrative Committee of the Masonic Orphanage, with the object of publicly thanking the Lodge, and in particular its zealous and devoted W. Master, for their liberality towards that institution.

Bro. Ch. Cousin having announced to the assembly that the hero of the fête was unavoidably absent, unfortunately being compelled to keep his room, through serious illness, proceeded at once to read a letter that Bro. Littré had, notwithstanding his sufferings, addressed to him for the occasion, a few passages of which I beg leave to quote:—

"Dear Brethren,—Three years ago, the Lodge Clémente Amitié awakened my recollection by celebrating, in my honour, an anniversary festival. The exigencies, then, of impaired health, prevented me from venturing upon the fatigue of an evening, even that of a joyful entertainment. However, I resolved to defeat absence, and I told you, in writing, at least what I would have been glad to express to you viva voce. To-day my inability to appear anywhere is greater still than ever.

"Pains, not premature of course, for I am now in extreme old age, but great and continuous, forbid me the activity of existence and the realities of life, I therefore write to you, dear brethren, as I did on the former occasion, and with a dolorous hand, yet in bright spirits, and the heart filled with emotion, I pen these lines, which I send to represent me.

"Among ourselves there are some illustrious old men who enjoy, at the same time, the immunity of glory as well as that of old age, and who can by that precious favour remain still, in spite of years, gallant and untouched by infirmities. I do not envy them, but cannot help admiring them. Under the daily effects of a vitality that decreases and perverts itself, my circle becomes closer, without cease and for ever, and I get but few moments and little strength, at my disposal. What better use can I make of them, on a day like this, than to offer them as a tribute to you.

"In compensation for individual decay, a collective enjoyment has all its price. It is thus that, in the Eneiad old Mezenier says to his old horse, whilst leading him to a last battle:—

"'We have yet lived long, if to mortal beings there is any life that is long.'

"'Rhœbe, diu si qua diu mortalibus ulla est, Viximus.'"

After tendering these excuses and explanations Bro. Littré proceeds to speak of Freemasonry and his Mother Lodge with well deserved praise and true filial attachment. Then, recalling to mind that it was in the Lodge Clémente Amitié that was delivered, in 1876, by one of its members, the first scientific lecture on the question of breaking through the Isthmus of Panama, to create therein a canal, he says, "That it seems that the genius of this age has deliberately taken the task of showing the immense contrast between great wars and great enterprises, and that, like Jupiter in the Iliad, taking his golden scale to weigh the destiny of heroes, the present time undertakes to demonstrate to the nations the value of the conquests of wars and that of the conquests of labour. The learned philosopher dilates on that gigantic scheme which he considers as being simple in its conception, laborious in its execution, and, above all, beneficent for ever in its results." Then he passes on to the question of a plan for establishing a College or Masonic Foundation for the special teaching of positive sciences, a project which was three years ago, at that same time and place, presented and developed to the Lodge by Br. Wyrouboff, and whereby the exclusive teaching of the six fundamental sciences, viz.—Mathematics, Physique, Chemistry, Biology and Sociology, were to compete with the Church's system or the State's programme of University Education. In such a College Bro. Littré contemplated taking a prominent part as one of its first Professors. But that cherished ambition of his must be abandoned owing to his advanced age, and persistent ill-health; he has become the most useless man, and he can no longer place at the service of that College—the foundation of which he still strenuously advocates—but his name, his advice, and his subscription, "And as a disciple of the doctrine Philosophic of Auguste Comte, during about the last forty years, he can to-day, by borrowing without profanation, a Christian verse—for Positivists are full of respect for the Mediæval rôle of Christianity, now say to Positivist Philosophy 'Nunc dimitte servum tuum.'"

After reading Bro. Littré's letter to the assembly Bro. Cousin read the reply that, in the name of the Lodge, he had made to it, whereby he conveys the thanks of the brethren and the expression of their fraternal feelings of regret and devotion to their illustrious sick brother, and that in the most appropriate manner. He then also read a circular which had been addressed by the Clémente Amitié to the Freemasons of the Three Obediences of France, and to the brethren under those jurisdictions abroad; a circular calling for aid and support for the undertaking.

Bro. Wyrouboff, after that, explained the objects in view in the proposed foundation of the College, discussed all the particulars of the scheme, and in a most argumentative speech urged the necessity of carrying it out immediately; then, without further delay, made a warm and sanguine appeal to the audience for contributions.

It was then the turn of our most esteemed and sympathetic G.M. Brother de Saint Jean to address the assembly. He did so with that impressive and direct eloquence so characteristic of his speeches. He thanked, first the Lodge Clémente Amitié, and his friend and Brother Cousin, its Vénérable, for their splendid hospitality of the evening, and at the same time for the honour it reflects upon Masonry. Without dilating upon the subjects already treated by the previous speakers, he threw in at once his powerful support to the Masonic undertakings spoken of, and further remarked, "Men of my time (I mean men of that generation of 1830, which no doubt has some historical worth), all recollect the pleasing face of a certain illustrious citizen, who after having mainly contributed to the independence and freedom of the United States of America, and after having well served his own country in its immortal revolution of 1789, had, after a period of nearly half a century, come back to his birthplace, to put at the service of his country the prestige of a glorious life, surrounded with popular esteem, prestige which has not been without much weight, and influence in the memorable deeds performed by the Revolution of 1830. Well, gentlemen, that great citizen, whose memory will ever be dear to men of liberty: that Brother Mason of ours, by whose name many Lodges on the other Continent are still called, out of veneration for the friend and brother of George Washington, do you recollect how he was greeted? He was called the hero of the two worlds. To ensure the independence of a nation, to render to the children of a people the rights of which they were deprived for centuries, are, no doubt, deeds that give to those who have been able to achieve them a right to eternal gratitude; and the name of Lafayette, who took so large a part in those immense achievements, will live for ever in the memory of a grateful posterity. But we know that Freedom and Liberty, those precious boons, without which all others are fruitless, are not however sufficient to ensure alone the well-being of the peoples. It requires other conditions: and the efforts that, in all countries, ever tend to procure the advantages of those conditions, have certainly their greatness, and the men that make or direct them are certainly worthy of that same recognition and deserving of similar gratitude at the hands of their fellow citizens.

Having thus made a complimentary allusion to M. de Lesseps' works and to his co-workers, Bro. de St Jean concluded his speech, which was often interrupted with great applause, by asking M. de Lesseps' leave, although he is not a Freemason—to give him, in the name of Masonry, the fraternal accolade.

It must be remarked that M. Ferdinand de Lesseps, just as Lincoln was in America, is considered here a brother by deeds and approval of authorities, but not yet by name and obligation. As regards the entertainment that followed, and which was preceded by the recital of some poetry composed for the occasion by Bro. Siebecker, we must say we hardly know when or where everything passed off so much to the satisfaction of an audience. Bro. Boudouresque, M. Sellier, Mdlle. Baux of the Opera, M. Chollet, Mdlle. Duval, &c., all talented artists or instrumentalists, must be congratulated on the ability they displayed, and be thanked for having so kindly lent their assistance to contribute to the success of the brilliant evening.

A choice agape, during the enjoyment of which a collection was made for the Masonic Orphanage, terminated the semi Masonic fete that the Lodge Clémente Amitié gave in honour of one of its most distinguished and venerated members.

Now, Dear Sir and Brother, if your correspondent may beg space in your valuable paper for the insertion of a report of these Masonic proceedings, he must, at the same time, bow to the objection they might meet with from some of our English brethren, who are not familiar with the usages and customs of the French rite, and he must, therefore, try to obtain, if not your endorsement and their approval, at any rate their fraternal toleration.

In the first place, it must be borne in mind that if there be any Lodge wherein Masonry endeavours most specially to maintain the truth of science and general culture, and wherein the study of the seven liberal Arts and Sciences, so recommended by the old Charges, is constantly made part of the working, it is most undoubtedly, and, above all, in a French Lodge. The French Lodge does not confine itself to the mere "giving or recital of the words of the Ceremonies of Initiation, Passing, or Raising," or—to use a common phrase—to the simple task of "Mason making;" but, it tries to break the monotony of these Ceremonies by some lectures upon Masonic and Scientific subjects, in order to make, according to the precept, "a daily advancement in Masonic knowledge."

In fact, as regards the fostering of mental cultivation in the Lodges, the French Rite has, from the remotest time, always made provision for so desirable an object. Foremost among the Officers of the Lodge, we find one whose special duty is not only to be the Guardian of the Law and Constitutions, but to see they are neither misapplied nor violated: who has to expound their spirit, and make clear their meaning, and, accordingly, to give ex-officio his conclusions or opinions to the W. Master, upon all questions and motions whatever, brought before the Lodge; but the Brother Orator's further duty is also to lecture upon Masonic topics, on special occasions; to furnish the Lodge annually with a Review of the works done and the events that have happened, to deliver—Morceaux d'Architecture (Orations) whenever there is a solemn or festive meeting. And as, however able he may happen to be, he cannot possibly fulfil all the duties of his office personally, hence arises the practice of conferences made by any able Mason at nearly every Lodge meeting.

Moreover we find that in order to develope in the new initiate a taste for such studies or Conferences, and to judge of his attainments, it has always been the custom to require from him his impressions or Masonic views, in writing, which he is called upon to read to the Lodge before passing.

That fruitful custom has never been neglected by the Lodge Clémente Amité, which is evidently now the most "successful Lodge in the jurisdiction of the Grand Orient." If it has been said that it requires more than one element to make a Lodge successful, it must be acknowledged that, looking at its prosperous state, the Clémente Amitié has within itself all the necessary elements of permanent success. A worthy and enthusiastic W. Master, able Officers, and well qualified members place it in the full swim of prosperity. Its list of members is the largest on the roll, its meetings the best attended, its Conferences and ceremonies as well as its festivals always the most attractive; finally, its good works and liberality may be equalled, but cannot be surpassed by any other Lodge. Brother Charles Cousin, Vice-President of the Council of the Order and Vénérable of the Lodge Clémente Amitié is surely, by the geniality of his nature and all his personal qualities, a model and competent Mason, well qualified to preside over so model a Lodge.

Though it might be thought that his important daily occupations alone would scarcely leave him time to breathe, yet punctually and faithfully he discharges the duty of his office, and is never unmindful of any call made on him, he is still to be found at the head of anything that may concern the Fraternity, the good or welfare of his brethren; and, without distinction of rite, opinion, or nationality, doing his best to his brother Mason with that peculiar and inimitable heartiness that wins him, as a gentleman, so many friends, and so fraternal an esteem among the brethren, as a Mason.

Now, though I have already taken much of your space, yet I must claim your indulgence for a little more—to allow me to give you the translation of a letter of his, which letter, while conveying some idea of the Masonic and genial qualities of the Vénérable of the Lodge Clémente Amitié, may not be altogether void of interest to your readers. It is taken from the "Bulletin of the Grand Orient," and formed part of the records of the Council of the Order for the 6th of June last. The "Bulletin" says:—Brother Cousin, unable to attend the meeting, sends his excuses in the following words:—

"V. D. President,—I did not attend yesterday, and to-day I regret exceedingly being unable likewise to attend the meeting of the Council of the Order. Here are my excuses:—Yesterday, I was favoured with the visit of an English Brother Mason, of the suite of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, a gentleman, who, like your royal colleague of the other side of the Channel, professes the warmest sympathy for France and our Paris. I thought one hour of conversation with that intelligent and liberal-minded brother (an hour spent mostly in pointing out to him the injustice of that lamentable rupture of official relations—that a misunderstanding only had produced—between the Grand Lodge of England and the Grand Orient of France), would not be, for the good cause, entirely lost.

"Now, to-day at three o'clock I have to attend a meeting of the shareholders of the Concessionary Company of the Canal of Panama, a meeting which is to be presided over by our excellent brother General Türr, to whom the initial right in that Company belongs, and with whom I have had the honour of working to its organisation. It was, you remember, in the Lodge Clémente Amité that the lecture on the works of exploration of our two gallant officers of the Navy, Bro. Lucien Wyse, and, I may venture to say beforehand, Bro. Armand Réclus—(for the latter shall be initiated on Friday, the 20th inst.)—was first made, and the execution of the scheme explained successfully, and whose plan afterwards received the entire approval of the International Congrès that assembled last year in Paris under the presidency of the illustrious founder of the Suez Canal.

"Already, by taking Bro. Gambetta last week to the raout offered at the Continental Hotel by the foreign delegates to the Congrès, to their French colleagues, and by presenting to the President of the Chamber of Deputies, and in the name of our Fraternity, these two brother Masons, whose name will be connected with the grandest works of this age, I have almost contributed to give to our undertaking a Republican baptism. And now I have reason to believe that in the newspaper, the Voltaire, Bro. Littré, in answer to an able article published yesterday, will to-morrow give the Masonic baptism to the Canal of Panama.

"My illustrious friend is now preparing for the anniversary festival which shall be offered, in his honour, to the Parisian Masons, on the evening of the 8th of July, a lecture on a subject which I took the liberty of suggesting, viz., the connection of Freemasonry with the greatest works of our time.

"Allow me, therefore, very dear President, to invite you beforehand, with all our colleagues of the Council of the Order, to this fraternal agape, which I am sure will not be without much profit for the sons of the widow. In the meantime be good enough to ask them to excuse me for my repeated absence from the Council. For the thought that my persistent labour will, after all, reflect some honour upon our dear institution can hardly compensate the regret I feel at not being able, this time again, to be in my place, among my best friends, and to shake hands with them.

"Above all, it must be acknowledged, and I cannot overlook the fact that it is to their kind indulgence for a colleague too often absent from his duty, and also to their confiding, generous and truly fraternal concurrence, that I am indebted for the ability to contribute in a measure to the success of an undertaking conceived, prepared, and brought to a stage of definitive execution by French Masons. Receive, Dear Master and Bro. the expressions of my truly respectful sentiments.—CH. COUSIN."

HONGKONG.

DEPARTURE OF THE DISTRICT GRAND MASTER.

THE following account of Bro. T. G. Linstead's connection with the Masonic fraternity may be of interest to our readers.

Bro. Linstead, who holds the office of District Grand Master of Hongkong, was initiated in the Zetland Lodge (then number 768, now 525) on the 9th August 1861. His first office in his Mother Lodge was that of Inner Guard, with which he was invested in December of the same year. At the election in December 1864, he was elected Treasurer for the ensuing year. In the previous July he had joined the Victoria Lodge, No. 1026, and in January 1865, he was appointed Junior Warden of that Lodge. He received the same office for the year 1867. During the latter part of 1868 he was acting Senior Warden, and in January 1869, was elected Worshipful Master.

In the District Grand Lodge of China he was appointed one of the Grand Stewards in October 1866. In March 1869 he was elected District Grand Treasurer; in 1872 he was appointed Grand Junior Warden, and in 1873 was appointed Deputy District Grand Master ruling the Craft in China. In 1875 the district was divided into two, North and South, the Lodge for the latter being designated the District Grand Lodge of Hongkong and having jurisdiction from the south of Ningpo to Hongkong. The Very Worshipful the Grand Master, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, appointed Wor. Bro. Linstead, by patent, District Grand Master of Hongkong, after receiving an unanimously expressed desire to that effect from all the Masons and Lodges in the district. This office he now holds.

On the 28th January 1865, he was exalted to be a Royal Arch Mason in the now extinct Celestial Chapter, No. 735. He was one of the original members of the Victoria Chapter, No. 525, which was opened on the 9th May 1865. In April 1866, he held the office of Scribe N.; in April 1869, he was elected Third Principal; in 1870, Second Principal; and in 1871, he attained the highest position in the Chapter, that of First Principal.

In May 1866, he entered the order of Masonic Knights Templar in Hongkong, ultimately becoming Eminent Commander thereof, and in 1878, being appointed by the Heads of the Order Prior for the Province of China.

He entered the order of the Rose Croix in 1877, and was elected Most Wise Sovereign for the ensuing year. He has subsequently, as a mark of especial favour, and in honour to the local Craft and Rose Croix, received from the Supreme Council of the 33°, notification of his election to the 30°, with certificate thereof, the ceremonies having to be completed on his arrival in England.

At the beginning of this year he was unanimously elected an honorary member of the Perseverance Lodge, No. 1165.

The high esteem in which Wor. Bro. Linstead is held by Masons in general, but more especially by those in the district he has reigned over for the last few years, with such credit to himself and the Craft, has led them to ask him to have his photograph taken in full Masonic regalia, coloured, to be hung up in their Hall in Zetland-street, to which he has assented, and Mr. Afong is executing the work.

The ruling of the Craft in the district during Wor. Bro. Linstead's absence, which we regret to say the state of his health necessitates, devolves upon the Deputy District Grand Master. The resignation of this office by Wor. Bro. W. S. Adams, who has already left for England, left a gap in the district Grand Lodge of Hongkong, which had to be filled up, and Wor. Bro. C. P. Chater has been appointed by the District Grand Master to fill that vacancy. This appointment has given the greatest satisfaction among the Craft, as Wor. Bro. Chater has proved himself worthy of the mark of confidence which the appointment conveys.

According to the invitation issued by the District Grand Board of General Purposes, a number of the Masonic fraternity met at Peddar's-wharf on Sunday morning, at half-past eight o'clock, for the purpose of escorting the District Grand Master, Very Worshipful Brother T. G. Linstead, on board the P. and O. steamer Malacca, and wishing him good-bye. The Government steam launch, which had been kindly lent for the occasion, left the wharf exactly at the half hour. On the arrival of the party on board the steamer, the Deputy District Grand Master, Very Worshipful Brother C. P. Chater, said—Allow me on behalf of the Board of General Purposes, on behalf of the Brethren present, and of all the other members of the Craft, who have been unable to attend this morning, to return you our most sincere thanks for the very courteous and kind manner in which you have always been pleased to treat us, and for your willingness always to advise us in all Masonic matters, not only whilst you held the office of Deputy District Grand Master, but up to the present time, holding as you do the high and exalted position of District Grand Master. We sincerely regret that the cause of your hurried departure from amongst us is bad health, and we trust and pray to the G.A.O.T.U. that long ere you reach home you may be restored to a perfect state of health. Allow me on behalf of the whole Craft to wish you and Mrs. Linstead a pleasant and prosperous voyage home, and a happy meeting with your friends and relatives. May you enjoy your well-earned holiday at home, and as it is your intention to return amongst us again to renew your labours in Hongkong, we need hardly assure you of a most hearty welcome.

The right Worshipful District Grand Master replied in very appropriate and feeling terms, after which champagne was passed round and the Brethren all joined in wishing the District Grand Master and Mrs. Linstead bon voyage.

Subjoined we give a list of the brethren present, with their respective Offices, past and present, and the Lodges to which they individually belong.

DISTRICT GRAND LODGE OF NEW SOUTH WALES, E.C.

A SPECIAL Communication of this District Grand Lodge was held at Freemasons' Hall, Sydney, on Monday, 17th February 1879. Present—John Williams D.G.M., William George Cassidy as D.S.G.W., A. Gardner as D.J.G.W., Rev. W. Beg, M.D., LL.D., D.G.C., Richard Leworthy D.G.S., Matthew Medway D.S.G.D., William Borlase Stevens as D.J.G.D., Henry John Wager D.G. Purs., James Stainer as D.G. Tyler. Several District Grand Stewards, Past District Grand Lodge Officers, Worshipful Masters, Past Masters, and Wardens of Lodges. Bro. Layard, H.B.M. Consul for New Caledonia, and other brethren. The D.G. Lodge having been opened in due form, the D.G.M. stated he had called the members of District Grand Lodges together to take into consideration whether it would be desirable for them to take part in the procession on the occasion of unveiling the statue of Captain Cook, on the 25th inst. He then read the circular calling the meeting, and called on the brethren for their opinions thereon. He also read a communication from the Provincial Grand Secretary of the Scotch Constitution, stating that their Provincial Grand Lodge had declined to take any part in the proceedings on that occasion. Bro. Thurlow inquired whether any invitation had been received by the Masonic body? The D.G.M. answered in the negative. Bro. Lee P.M. 1169 objected to the D.G. Lodge, and the Lodges under the English Constitution, taking any part in the proceedings, and stated, among other reasons, the existence of the so-called Grand Lodge of New South Wales, who most likely would be there, and with whom they could not join. Bro. Mulholland D.G.S. said he thought it was of importance that the Masonic body should take part in the procession, and if they did not go it would be detrimental to the welfare of the Order. Bro. Charles Solomon W.M. 1552, said that, since he had received his circular to attend the meeting, he had conversed on the subject with several brethren, and they all considered it undesirable that they should, as Masons, take any part in the proceedings. Bro. Wager said, if they could not go in force and make a respectable numerical appearance, they had better stay away, and he thought, under existing circumstances, that would be the wisest course to adopt. Rev. Bro. Beg said, if the attendance of the Masonic Order on the occasion would be meagre, it would do no good, and they had better keep away. The D.G.M. said he was willing at all times to go with the brethren anywhere, when it would be for the good or to promote the welfare of the Order. In the present instance, having in view the surrounding circumstances, he thought they had better not take any part in the procession at the unveiling of the statue of Captain Cook. No good to the Order could be obtained by display on that occasion. He might remark, he could not command the attendance of any brother in Masonic clothing at any ball or on any public occasion. In reference to any brother appearing at the forthcoming fancy ball in Masonic regalia, a dispensation would have first to be obtained, and which, on application, he was willing to grant. He then read from Book of Constitutions, page 94, article 3, in order to show that any Brother attending in Masonic regalia, without such permission, was liable to be suspended from his Masonic functions. The D.G.M. also referred to a communication he had received from the Grand Secretary, enclosing a copy of a letter that had been sent by command of H.R.H. the M.W.G.M. of England, in reply to a brother named Machen, who had written to the Grand Master, seeking recognition of the so-called Grand Lodge of New South Wales, and which request the Grand Master refused to entertain. He had thought it advisable to cause the letter to himself, and also the copy of reply to Bro. Machen, to be published in the Sydney Morning Herald, with a few remarks from himself, cautioning the brethren against having any intercourse with this irregular body of Masons, and also to prevent intending candidates for admission into the Order from being deceived. The D.G. Lodge then closed.

The regular Quarterly Communication was held at Freemasons' Hall, Sydney, on Monday, 19th May. Present—John Williams D.G.M., W. H. Simpson D.D.G.M., Henry Westcott D.S.G.W., W. G. Cassidy D.J.G.W., Nicholas Hopson D.G. Trea., Rev. W. Begg M.D., LL.D., D.G. Chap., Norman Selfe Pres. B.G.P., A. Gardner D.G. Reg., J. Leworthy D.G. Sec., Henry J. Wager as D.G.S.D., R. W. Myers as D.G.J.D., John Booth D.G.S. of W., F. B. Davidson D.G.D. of C., H. Perdrian as D.G. Purs., S. A. DeLissa D.G. Tyler, and numerous other brethren. The D.G.L. having been opened in due form, the minutes of the last Quarterly Communication and of the Special Meeting of the 17th February, were read. Bro. E. O. Smith P.D.D.G.M. protested against that part of the minutes that referred to the Grand Secretary's letter, as forming no part of the business stated in the circular issued to members. The D.G.M. stated that he considered the communication he received from the G. Secretary as to the Grand Master's decision regarding the recognition of the illegal body of Freemasons in New South Wales of great importance; so much so, that he had caused it to be inserted in the Sydney Morning Herald with some remarks of his own, H.R.H. the Grand Master of England had refused to recognise the so-called Grand Lodge of New South Wales, and he therefore considered it his duty to publish that decision, in order to protect the English Lodges, and as a caution to prevent intended candidates from joining this spurious body of Masons, and further he considered it also his duty at the first meeting of District Grand Lodge, to read the correspondence, and there was no law in the Book of Constitutions or law of usage that prohibited him from doing so, it being of material interest for the guidance of the Masonic body throughout the world. The minutes of the Special Meeting were then put and confirmed. The D.G. Sec. read the auditor's report with balance-sheets of D.G. Lodge and Benevolent Fund for the past year, which were in due course received by D.G. Lodge, as was also the auditors' report of the Orphan Society.

A letter was read from Bro. Hopson D.G.Trea., expressing his regret that his business arrangements precluded him from continuing to hold that office, and respectfully resigning the same. The D.G.M. in reply to Bro. E. O. Smith, who said he considered that the members should have had copies of the bye-laws before the meeting, when the bye-laws had been sent for confirmation, he had not written to the Grand Secretary as to the reason and necessity for passing Law XIII., and therefore could not be aware of the injury and disaffection caused by the Grand Secretary and the Colonial Board keeping the late D.D.G.M. in office for so many years. He thought it would be highly beneficial to their interests to prevent a like proceeding at any future time by law: he was happy to inform the brethren that at no time in the colony has Freemasonry under the Constitution of the Grand Lodge of England made such rapid and useful progress as it has done in the past year and a half. It was not necessary that he should advert to the reasons why such a change had taken place, they are obvious, and clear to thinking Freemasons; the cause of progress is apparent—old Freemasons are reforming themselves and returning to the Constitution they formerly belonged to. During the past eighteen months, nine new Lodges had been formed by dispensation and one Lodge resuscitated—who will say this is not a wonderful change in such a short space of time, notwithstanding the difficulties we have had to contend with in the form of schism, by brethren doing their utmost to destroy the heart of Freemasonry—universality of brotherhood—under regular constituted authority; he had met with a great deal of abuse for the part he had taken, but he could afford to regard it as of no importance, as the course he had pursued had the approval of his own conscience, and was conducive to promote the best interests of the Order in the Colony. Bro. Simpson D.D.G.M. said that as Bro. Hopson had resigned the office of Treasurer, the duties of which he had discharged in a satisfactory manner, he now proposed W. Bro. Webster P.D.G.S.D. for that office. Bro. Webster was well known to them all and possessed their confidence, and was fully competent to carry on the duties of the office. This proposition was seconded and carried.

Bro. Webster returned thanks for the honour conferred upon him, and promised to give his best attention to the duties of his office.

The D.G.M. complimented Bro. Webster on his election, and invested him with his Collar and Jewel of office. The investment of the other Officers was then proceeded with, the following being the list of appointments:—

W. H. Simpson P.M.	390	D.D.G.M.

The report of the Committee of General Purposes, stating that a brother of Lodge 1761, had been suspended from all his rights and privileges as a Freemason for twelve calendar months, from the 13th May instant, for circulating a letter amongst the members of the Empress of India Lodge, 1761, of a defamatory nature, against the character of the Worshipful Master of that Lodge was, after a discussion, carried.

The report of the Committee of Benevolence, showing that the amount expended in relief of applicants, during the year up to 15th April, had been £211 11s 6d was also carried.

Bros. Bullard P.M. 556, R. W. Myers P.M. 1552, D. Mitchell P.M.390, H. Westcott P.M. 119, A. Gardner P.M. 1761, John Levison P.M. 655, were elected to serve on the Committtee of General Purposes and Bros. F. Lee P.M. 1169 President, H. A. Wright P.M. 390, G. Gabriel P.M. 1552, Monckton P.M. 937, Hall P.M. 656, H. Perdrian P.M. 868, on that of Benevolence.

It was proposed by Bro. Simpson and seconded that the Secretary's salary be the same as last year, £150. Bro. Monckton said the D.G. Sec. held a very responsible office, the duties of which had been largely increased and had been performed efficiently. He therefore moved as an amendment—"That the salary of the D.G. Sec. be £175 for the ensuing year. Bro. R. W. Myers seconded the motion. Bro. Simpson replied, and said the duties of his office had been satisfactorily performed by Bro. Leworthy, who was a personal friend of his own, but he considered the amount he proposed sufficient remuneration. The amendment was then put and carried.

It was proposed and seconded, "That the salary of District Grand Tyler be the same as last year, namely, £8," which was carried.

Bro. Simpson said he would like to hear the opinion of the brethren as to the best method of carrying out the annual banquet in such a way as would prove most pleasant to the brethren and beneficial to the interests of the Craft. He supposed the D.G. Stewards would be expected to undertake the arrangements, and to do all in their power to make the festival a success. If they required assistance, he was sure they had only to request other member of D.G.L. to help them. One matter for consideration was, whether the banquet should be free to members of D.G.L. In his opinion, this should be the case, the D.G.L. being composed of representatives from all the private Lodges. Every member had, therefore, a just claim to participate in the festival. Bro. Knight stated that the annual festival of Grand Lodge in London was not paid for out of the Grand Lodge Funds, and quoted a paragraph from the Book of Constitutions to that effect. Bro. Simpson said he knew such was the case, still he thought that was only a custom of Grand Lodge, and not binding on them here. He believed they could do what they wished with the funds of D.G.L. if only voted in proper form; and if this, their first festival, was to be a success, it should be made free to every member of D.G.L. After some further discussion, the subject was left in the hands of the District Grand Stewards, and the District Grand Lodge was closed with prayer.

The annual meeting for installation of W.M. and appointment of Officers of the Fitzalan Lodge, No. 1432, Wrexham, will take place on Thursday, the 18th inst., at four o'clock. Bro. J. B. Murless, the present S.W. is the W.M. elect. We tender our hearty wishes to the Lodge and its members, and hope Bro. Murless will have a prosperous year of office.

Part IV. of Messrs. Groombridge and Son's "Greenhouse Favourites" is before us. The illustrations in this part, which fully maintain the high opinion we have expressed on former occasions, are of the "Azalea" and "Ericas," while the descriptive portion of the work is devoted to the treatment of the "Spiræ" and the "Epacris."

The Mayor of Leeds a few days back took a party of about a hundred and fifty ladies and gentlemen who had been his guests at dinner to the Grand Theatre to witness a performance of Gilbert's Charity, with Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Barrett in the chief parts. Mr. Alldyman and his party occupied the whole of the dress circle. Mr. Barrett seems to have converted the severest opponents of the stage at Leeds into patrons of his theatre. There is no doubt that at "Court" also he is going to work in the right manner, he will open the pretty theatre in Sloane-square, on Saturday, 20th Sept., with Victorien Sardou's masterpiece, Fernande. The company is an exceptionally strong one. It includes Mr. Charles Coghlan, Mr. Barrett, Mr. Price, and Mr. Anson. Miss Amy Roselle, Miss Rosa Kenney, Mrs. Leigh Murray and Miss Heath (Mrs. Wilson Barrett). Messrs. Gordon and Harford are painting the scenery, and Mr. Goubert has been entrusted with the appointments. Mr. Robert Stoepel will be the musical director.

DEATH.

RUNTING.—At Mount Street, Grosvenor-square, on Thursday, 28th August, Bro. William Runting, Surgeon Dentist, P.M. of the Belgrave Lodge, No. 749, and W.M. of the Londesborough Lodge, No. 1681, aged 54 years.

Halle was elected W.M. for the ensuing week. Lodge was then closed in due form and adjourned. Next week the subject of the forced removal of the Lodge from its present comfortable quarters, owing to Bro. Spurgin requiring the room for family use, will be considered, when the Secretary hopes the brethren will muster in force to discuss the matter.

Howard Lodge of Brotherly Love, No. 56, Arundel.—An emergency meeting was held at the Town Hall, on Monday, the 1st inst., for the purpose of initiating Mr. A. E. Garwood, Locomotive Superintendent of the Egyptian Railways, who, in consequence of absence from England for thirteen years, has been unable to present himself for admission into the Order through the portals of the Lodge of his native town. The ceremony was ably performed by the W.M., Bro. T. U. Price P.M. P.P.G.D. of Sussex, and the E. A. tracing-board was lucidly explained by the S.W. Bro. E. E. Street. The following brethren were also present:—A. H. Smith J.W., G. T. Eversfield P.M. Secretary, R. Garwood P.M., J. Francis P.M. S.D., — Neame as I.G., and Bros. Downer and Birt.

Isaac Treas., J. G. Bond Sec., C. S. Jolly S.D., Chalkley J.D., H. Field I.G.; Bros. Stuart, Rumbold, Crabtree, and others. The Lodge was opened in due form with solemn prayer, and the minutes of former Lodge were read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Rumbold candidate, after which several of the sections were worked. Bro. Ball will preside next week.

Moss J.D., H. Caton I.G. After preliminaries, the W. Master rehearsed the ceremony of initiation, Bro. Walker acting as candidate. Bro. M'Donald worked the first, second, and third sections of the lecture, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Hunt was elected W.M. for next meeting, and Lodge was closed in due form.

Lebanon Lodge, No. 326.—An emergency meeting was held on Friday, 29th Aug., at the Red Lion Hotel, Thames-street, Hampton. Bro. J. B. Shackleton P.G.P. Middlesex and P.M. 1254 W.M. opened the Lodge. A letter, which had been signed by three Past Masters, addressed to the Secretary, was read. Ballots taken separately were declared to be unanimous in favour of the admission of Messieurs Tristram Frederick Edwin Walters (son of the Secretary), Edwin Charles Percy Stevens (son of Bro. James Stevens P.M. 1426, The Great City Lodge), Lewis Cohen, John Vickers Willis, Robert Follett, John Henry Ewen, William Skirritt. The Secretary (Bro. F. Walters P.P.G.D. Middx. P.M.), in reply to the courteous offer of the W.M. to permit him to initiate his son Tristram, said his son would not be twenty-one years of age until 24th March 1880; that he would prefer waiting until the next regular meeting in May, when he would gladly accept the kind and gracious offer of the Worshipful Master. In the same kind manner the W.M. Bro. J. B. Shackleton offered the chair to Bro. James Stevens P.M., for the purpose of initiating his son, who was present. The W.M., in a sensible speech, expressed the gratification he felt in knowing that two such well-known and highly distinguished Masons should have selected the Lebanon Lodge 1326 to have their sons (one, the Secretary's, being his first born), initiated there, both candidates being under twenty-two years of age. Bro. James Stevens P.M. took the chair. Bro. Col. F. Burdett R.W.P.G.M. having frequently expressed a wish that in all Lodges in his Province the candidates should be introduced separately, this wish is most religiously carried out here. Amidst the most profound silence, Mr. Edwin Charles Percy Stevens was introduced as a candidate for the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. Then, in a way that has never been surpassed, and but very seldom equalled, Bro. James Stevens initiated his son into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. He gave an explanation of the Tracing Board, and the Charge, which he supplemented with choice and beautiful language, so appropriate to the candidate. It must be recorded that (to use some words we heard pass between the veteran Secretary and Bro. Thomas Poore, the subject being the initiation of Bro. Edwin Stevens), the ceremony was beautifully rendered, so correct, impressive, and soul-stirring. It was an intellectual treat, well worth coming up from Leicestershire, or from anywhere else to listen to. It would be an impossibility to encore the initiation of Bro. E. Stevens, or to bring the presiding W.M. before the footlights, but to gratify the desires of those who were present, and at the express desire of the W.M., he initiated Mr. Lewis Cohen (who being an Israelite caused the ceremony to be a little varied). The W.M. Bro. J. B. Shackleton took the chair, and in an admirable manner first initiated Mr. John Vickers Willis, and completed the afternoon's labour by initiating Mr. Robert Follett. The Lodge was closed. It was arranged to hold another emergency meeting in September. Refreshment followed labour. There were present besides those mentioned, Bros. J. W. Baldwin P.P.G.P. Middlesex P.M. J.W., D. Steinhauer I.G., J. J. Marsh Organist, T. W. Adams P.M., B. Meyer P.M., C. Lucop, C. W. Baker, H. Potter P.M. W.S. The Visitors were Bros. W. J. Meek Secretary 199, R. Masters 1656 and others.

S.W., Talbot J.W., Acworth S.D., Tucker (Treas.) J.D., Gomm I.G., Gunner Hon. Sec., Roe Preceptor, Kyezor, &c. Acworth offered himself as a candidate for initiation, whereupon the W.M. very carefully rehearsed the ritual of the degree. Lodge was opened in the second degree, Bro. Kyezor acting candidate, and the W.M. rehearsed the ritual of the degree. The brethren were called to refreshment. Upon resumption of labour, Lodge was lowered, and Bro. The Lodge was closed to the first degree, when two candidates were proposed for initiation. There being no other business, Lodge was closed.

The ceremony of initiation was worked, Bro. Tarling candidate. Lodge was opened up to the third degree, and closed in that degree, when Bro. Hammond had an opportunity of answering the questions necessary for raising. Lodge was lowered and Bro. Musto P.M. worked the first section of the lecture, assisted by the brethren, Bro. Stephens dictating the answers. Bro. Stephens was elected a member of the Lodge, and Bro. Finch to fill the chair at the next meeting. Lodge was closed and adjourned until Wednesday next.

Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction, No. 1298.—This Lodge met Friday, 29th August, at the Alwyne Castle, St. Paul's Road, Canonbury. Present:—Bros. Mendelsohn W.M., Rowley S.W., Boas J.W., G. H. Hunter Sec. pro tem, G. H. Hunter S.D., Field J.D., Pearcy Acting Preceptor, Chant I.G. Past Masters Bros. Forge, Hallam, Eldridge, Yeomans, Greenwood, Shackell, Byng, Johnson, and Quay. After all formalities had been observed, the ceremony of initiation was observed, Bro. Eldridge candidate. Bro. Pearcy worked the first and second sections of the lecture. The Lodge was called from labour to refreshment, and, on resuming, the Lodge was opened and closed in the second and third degrees. Bro. Hallam of Friars Lodge, Bros. Johnson and Quay of the St. Barnabas Lodge were elected members. Bro. Rowley was elected W.M. for the next meeting. Lodge was then closed.

Friars Lodge of Instruction, No. 1349.—Held at Bro. Pavitt's, Liverpool Arms, Canning Town, on Tuesday, 2nd Sept. Present:—Bro. Pavitt W.M., Smith S.W., Johnson J.W., Shepherd W.M. 1349 S.D., M'Donald J.D., Worsley I.G. and Secretary, P.M. Musto Preceptor. There were also present Bros. Keable, Moss, Rawe, Richardson, Barker, Roddam 212, Watkins, Andrews, Sadley, Roberts, White, and P.M. Myers. The Lodge was opened in due form with prayer, and the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was beautifully rehearsed by the W.M., Bro. Rawe as the candidate; the Deaconship of Bro. M'Donald was very perfect; he is one of the best workers we ever met. Bro. Andrews worked the first section of the lecture, Bro. M'Donald the second and third, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Roddam of Euphrates Lodge 212 was unanimously elected a member. Bro. J. W. Smith S.D. 860 was elected W.M. for the ensuing meeting, and appointed his Officers in rotation. The Lodge then closed in due form and adjourned. The remainder of the evening was spent in discussing the summer outing for Thursday, the 4th, receiving the names of those who intimated their intention to attend. The party will be over forty strong. A full report shall appear in our impression next week.

Jordan Lodge, No. 1402.—The annual meeting was held on Friday, in the Masonic Hall, Torquay. Bro. W. A. Goss jun., the W.M. elect, was duly installed into the chair of W.M. by W. Bro. T. Perry P.P.G.T., assisted by W. Bros. Bradnee and Dr. Coulston. The following were invested as Officers for the ensuing year:—W. Bro. J. Dodge I.P.M., Dr. W. B. Dalby S.W., Dr. S. S. Noakes J.W., Thomas Perry P.M. P.P.G.T. Treas., G. H. Halls Hon. Sec., A. T. Blamey S.D., G. Pepprell J.D., J. Lane I.G., B. Knight D.C., R. Perry S.S., J. Lavis J.S., E. Cranch Org., J. E. Newton Tyler. The brethren afterwards dined at the Queen's Hotel.

United Military Lodge, No. 1536.—On Friday evening last there was an emergency meeting of this Lodge at the Lord Raglan Hotel, Plumstead, for the purpose of taking into consideration the advisability of removing the Lodge regalia from the new Masonic Hall, adjoining the Sir Robert Peel, where the meetings have hitherto been held, to the Lord Raglan, with the view to the future meetings of the Lodge being held at the latter place. Bro. Hay Grieve Picken I.P.M. (in the absence, through illness, of Bro. Shaw the W.M.) occupied the chair, supported by Bros. Daniel Deeves S.W. William Wilding J.W., Weston P.M., Murphy Treasurer, George Kennedy Sec., and a strong muster of the brethren. The ordinary business of the Lodge having been disposed of, Bro. Walter Hume, of Lodge 160 Scottish Constitution, and Bro. Daniel Baker of Lodge 190 were duly ballotted for and accepted as joining members. Mr. Thomas Hunt, of the Bengal Ordnance Department, was regularly initiated into the rites and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. Bro. Waldron was passed to the second degree with the usual formalities. The acting W.M. informed the brethren of the circumstances under which it had become necessary to bring the question of removal from the Sir Robert Peel before the Lodge, and left the matter to the decision of the members. A discussion ensued, in the course of which Bros. Weston, McClelland, Kennedy and Watkins took part, when it was ultimately decided to remove the Lodge furniture and regalia to the Lord Raglan, the necessary authority being obtained from Grand Lodge for such removal. Doubts were expressed as to the capability of the Hall at the Lord Raglan for the accommodation of the Lodge, there being over 140 members on its books.

ACCUMULATION OF THE BENEVOLENT FUND.

COULD the honoured founders of this Institution, whose names are ever green in the memories of the Craft, have lived to see the grand results of their sagacity and forethought, there can be no question they would admit that they had more than cause to "rest and be thankful." Whilst at stated periods the chronicler is called upon with pride to record the extension of that charity which permeates through every fibre of the Order, culminating in those noble institutions to which we, as Masons, point as among the chief recommendations of our system to the admiration of the outer world, the Benevolent Fund works on its silent and beneficent course, gathering strength and stimulus as it goes, and scattering its benefits right and left amongst those who are most deservingly entitled to our humane consideration. The aged ones and children whom "unforeseen circumstances of calamity and misfortune" have rendered the objects of our tender solicitude are within our daily ken, and we rejoice, as we mingle with them, ever and anon, to hear their expressions of gratitude for benefits received, spoken in accents of thankful acknowledgment, or amidst rippling laughter and childish contentment. But while we congratulate ourselves and those who subscribe so cheerfully to the funds of the triumvirate of our Masonic Charities, there is yet another which, though farther removed from general notice, is nevertheless mutely speaking in eloquent language as to the boundless charity which forms the distinguishing characteristic of the Freemason's heart. Questions have, however, recently arisen in respect of the disbursement of this Fund, and to which we have taken occasion to allude; and we see no reason why any should shrink from the full ventilation of a subject which lies so close to the heart of all who are interested in the welfare and future management of this branch of our Charities. On the contrary, we hold that by the interchange of ideas, and the free expression of individual opinions on every matter connected with the Order, we are likely to arrive at a more satisfactory conclusion than if we persistently ignore the smoulderings of dissatisfaction which are sure, sooner or later, to burst forth into a flame of opposition. Let us, therefore, take a calm and dispassionate view of the case as it now stands, and in view of the expressions bearing upon it made at the last Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge. By reference to the Book of Constitutions it will be seen that the first great cardinal stipulation in regard to the Benevolent Fund is that it shall be "solely devoted to Charity." This benevolent intention of the founders has, we believe, been religiously adhered to by those who have been entrusted with the management of the Fund ever since it was started. Nothing has ever transpired, to our knowledge, of any deviation from this plainly-expressed aim of those who instituted the Fund, from which many a deserving brother has derived help and solace in the hour of his adversity. Charitable funds, we know, are at all times liable to be drawn upon unworthily, and their objects diverted into channels which were never remotely contemplated by the philanthropists who gave them birth. But we can safely say, for the Masonic Benevolent Fund, the executive has ever been so carefully held in rein by the brethren to whom the duty has been entrusted that attempted abuses, even of the most microscopic description, have been detected and frustrated. Thus the Fund has gone on year by year, meeting with liberality the many legitimate claims made upon it by the indigent members or connections of the Fraternity, whilst at the same time adding increasingly to its reserve, until we find it now with an invested capital of fifty thousand pounds. Unfortunately the Book of Constitutions does not set forth so plainly as many would wish the process by which the accumulated money should be kept within due limits; and thus, whilst we congratulate the executive upon resisting the often-attempted encroachments upon the surplus, for the objects which do not come strictly within legitimate range, the question is now more than ever forcing itself to the front as to the wisdom and policy of maintaining in idleness so large a sum of money as we have just named. This feeling is not merely confined to our "National" Benevolent Fund—if we may use the term advisedly; but we know of cases where similar funds, accumulated by individual Lodges, have formed the subject of like comment, and the inadvisability of keeping intact, or lying idle in the bank, large sums of money which could legitimately be applied to useful works of charity, have formed the subject of frequent discussions amongst the subscribing members. By some it is urged that the accumulated fund having now attained such satisfactory dimensions the time has arrived when the contributions by individual members might with safety be reduced. We fail to see the advantage of such an argument, or the benefit which would accrue were such a suggestion carried into effect. Indeed the amount of contribution is so trifling that its reduction would be as ridiculous as it would be scouted by the brethren to whom the matter was thus seriously submitted. The subscriptions by members of Lodges in the London district is only one shilling a quarter, or less than one penny per week; whilst our country and military brethren contribute just half that amount. We cannot conceive it possible that any London brother would like to give less than one penny per week towards the sustentation of this splendid Fund, or that the members in the Provinces would feel at all relieved by the reduction of their halfpenny weekly contribution. We believe they would vastly prefer doubling the insignificant amount than that the accumulation for benevolent purposes should be retarded by any curtailment of their privilege of giving. Besides, the trouble of altering the Constitutions in this respect would far outweigh any advantage which the advocates of such a reduction could point to as the result of this desire, even if such a wish is cherished at all, which we very much doubt. Seeing, therefore, that it would be undesirable to dam back the channels of generosity by any brake-power being applied to the source whence liberality flows, and also that it is unwise to hoard up, in miserly fashion, a vast sum of money which might be profitably and usefully employed, the question at once arises, "What shall be done with the surplus accruing from the accumulated fund?" There are, undeniably, many works of charity whose wheels drag heavily for want of support, and whose promoters would gladly draw much-needed assistance from this source, if once the flood-gates could be opened. But the utmost care must be exercised, as heretofore, in the admission of claims that are not strictly within the limits intended by the original founders of this Institution. For years it has been foreseen that the time must sooner or later come when the question would arise as to the amount at which this accumulated fund should stop. Some time ago the matter was brought on in Grand Lodge as to the best means of usefully employing this surplus money, when Bro. J. M. Clabon gave notice of a motion, "That, considering the large amount which has been accumulated from the surplus income of the Fund of Benevolence, it is not expedient to continue the accumulation of the whole of that surplus." The brethren were reminded that in the year 1868 the accumulated fund amounted to twenty thousand pounds; and a committee was then appointed to consider the question to which we have alluded in this article. The result of their careful deliberation was a recommendation that one-third of the annual surplus should still be accumulated, and that the other two-thirds should be applied to apprenticing or otherwise advancing in life the sons and daughters of Freemasons on their leaving the Masonic Boys' and Girls' Schools. To our way of thinking a wiser suggestion, or one more identical with the spirit and intention of the founders, could not have emanated from a body of men to whose special consideration the matter had been entrusted. At that time—eleven years ago—Grand Lodge thought the time had not arrived for discontinuing the accumulation of the surplus. In 1873 we find the question again occupying the attention of Grand Lodge, and by this time the Fund had swollen to nearly forty thousand pounds. Still the conservative sentiments of our rulers—with which no one has any reason, under the circumstances, to find fault—went against any limitation of the income flowing in, and Grand Lodge adhered firmly to its former opinion. Six years more have now elapsed, and as a consequence of the continued prosperity of the Craft, the Fund has grown into the satisfactory dimensions of fifty thousand pounds, when we, amongst many more of the brethren, must share in the opinion that the time has at length arrived when the accumulation may with safety and with advantage be terminated. As was not long ago sensibly remarked by Bro. Clabon, "If not stopped at £50,000, it might not stop at £100,000, and the brethren might go on locking it up like a miser." Such a course is in direct opposition to the views of those who would desire to see the Masonic Charities fully employed in their benevolent enterprise; and "even from a commercial standpoint" the maintenance of so large an unemployed capital is unwise and impolitic. There can be no doubt that the subject was considered in all its bearings by the Committee appointed in 1868, and it must be admitted that their recommendation to apply any surplus money that might be at their disposal to the assistance of our "pupils" on leaving school was both laudable and disinterested. The only obstacle in the way then was, that the Fund was not sufficiently large to enable them to bestow any appreciable advantage upon those who might become the worthy recipients of help in after life. This impediment has been removed now by the vast addition to the Fund, which has been more than doubled within the past eleven years; and there can be no reason why the matter should not be again entrusted to the consideration of a similarly appointed committee. Certainly no harm could result from such a course of action; and very probably facts would be elicited which would strengthen the hands of such a committee in forcing home their previous recommendation upon the good sense and judgment of the Craft. The existence of such an enormous fund, lying at the bank, is not merely a drag upon the benevolent stimulus of the brethren; but, as we saw last week, it proves an incentive to bickerings and quarrels in the Board of Benevolence, such as are by no means pleasing to reflect upon. The course adopted by certain members to force on a discussion, by the proposal of "excessive" grants, is an undesirable one, and such as we hope not soon to see repeated. We require no brother to be brought to a certain line of thought by those "slants" which were adopted at the meeting to which we refer; but a calm and dispassionate deliberation of the whole question at issue, by which means only can a safe and judicious conclusion be arrived at. We hardly thought that an officer of Bro. Britten's calibre and position in the Craft would have resorted to such a device in order to elicit the information he desired; it must have been done upon the impulse of the moment, and without the remotest intention of doing anything derogatory to the position he holds in the respect of the brethren. But, seeing that this large sum of money remains in hand, whilst the question is ever recurring, "What shall we do with it?" some steps should be immediately taken with a view of satisfying the spirit of universal inquiry. It is by no means within the range of probability that—except we witness in this country a parallel to the late floods in Hungary, or some gigantic calamity of a like nature—there will be anything like a "run" upon the charity of the Order that shall exhaust this large sum of fifty thousand pounds. And, even were such a catastrophe to happen, the doubling of the nominal sums paid by way of contribution would speedily resuscitate the fund so absorbed. To reduce the whole matter to a focus, we contend that a portion of the income of this Fund might be advantageously set aside for some good and beneficial purpose without running the slightest risk of impeding the progress of the Fund, or encroaching beyond the limits of charity for which that Fund was originally designd. And what better object could the brethren set before them to achieve than to place in the hands of our young students, after they quit our respective Schools, some means whereby they might make a start in life, and which without extraneous aid they are frequently unable to do? We have recently descanted upon this subject rather fully in our columns, and the more we ponder the matter the more firmly are we convinced that this would form the great crowning point of our Masonic charity. It means, in fact, the creation of a new and extended sphere of usefulness, the value of which we are at present totally unable to fathom. It must be borne in mind that the education imparted to our boys and girls is of a character which fits them to assume superior positions in life. Very often the parents of such children—grateful as they may be, and are, for the priceless benefits secured to their offspring through the liberality of the brethren—are unable to provide them with the means of placing themselves in the positions for which, by their education and training, they have become qualified; and in such cases there is reason to fear they relapse into inferior stations, and one great object of our Masonic aim is neutralised. By the establishment of a fund by which these young people could be aided in the race of life, a splendid object would be achieved, and one which is intimately bound up with that for which the Benevolent Fund was at first designed. We are so convinced of the vital importance of this scheme that we commend it to all who take a calm view of the matter under consideration, and who think with us that some more profitable means are to be devised for employing the accumulating surplus of that Fund than by allowing it to idly remain in the bank. At all events, the whole question could again be entrusted to the hands of an intelligent and competent committee, who might, by their verdict, so place the matter before Grand Lodge as to induce them to set it at rest for some time to come. By so doing not only would it inspire satisfaction, and promote a healthy stimulus to increased support on the part of those who subscribe, and who like to know that their money is being usefully employed, but it would also allay that irritation which is so continually cropping up, as we have lately seen, resulting from those who would, if they could, nibble at the tempting bait which is thus offered them, and to touch which, but for the objects originally intended, would be an act of sacrilege never to be tolerated by those who are entrusted with the responsible duty of keeping watch and guard over a fund subscribed, freely and gladly, to be "solely devoted to charity."

INCOMPLETE CEREMONIES.

THE amount of work which arises, month by month, at the regular assemblies of our Lodges precludes the possibility of the Master undertaking, at the stated meetings, any system of instruction in the ritual, or other important points of Freemasonry; his time mainly being taken up in conferring degrees on those eligible, or conducting the routine business of his Lodge. The press of "work" is so great in the Lodges of London, and other large towns, that no time is allowed even for the lecture on the tracing board, or the charge after each degree being given at the time the candidate is advanced. To such an extent have these omissions been carried of late that we question whether one-half of the brethren who have been introduced within the past ten years have ever heard, in a regular Lodge, either the one or the other. This is very much to be regretted, and the frequent repetition of the promise we are all familiar with is now almost treated as a joke. We are aware that a Master has his powers fully taxed when he is called upon to work the three degrees in one evening, and many brethren may urge that it is too much to expect him to give the lecture or the charge after each, but we would remind these that the two Wardens are available for the purpose, and that if they are competent, the recital by them of these portions of the ritual not only adds to the interest of the ceremony, but gives the Master a rest, which is very acceptable to him. If it is worth a brother's while to accept a Warden's collar, it is not too much to ask him to make himself proficient in these small parts of our ritual, which really play an important part in the ceremony, and the omission of which tends to make the conference of a degree incomplete.

The establishment of Lodges of Instruction has, in a great measure, provided the means for obtaining a better knowledge of the ceremonial portion of our proceedings, but the tuition there afforded falls far short of what is required, or what, from the constitution of these Lodges, might fairly be expected. The great aim of the conductors of many of the Lodges of Instruction seems to be to get through as much as possible—we will not say of bodily pain, but certainly, in many cases, of mental infliction—without any regard being paid to the impression made on the audience, or the instruction afforded the members. We have frequently urged that the proper rehearsal of one ceremony, with an explanation, and it may be repetition of a few parts, is far better than crowding the three ceremonies, or a number of the sections into the work of one evening in such a jumbled manner as to be alike uninstructive and uninteresting to those assembled. But even the best of the Lodges of Instruction omit the two points to which we have already referred—the lectures on the tracing boards, and the charges after each degree. Is it the Preceptors themselves are unaware of their existence, or is it that they are beginning to treat these parts of the ritual as unnecessary? The sections are in themselves most instructive, and we are of opinion they should occasionally be rehearsed, but we consider the first thing our brethren should be taught are the ceremonies, and these not in their mutilated, but in their complete form, which result can only be achieved by including the charge and explanation of the tracing board in each degree. We are convinced that if once the subject was taken in hand at the Lodges of Instruction, it would soon become the rule in the regular Lodges, where in a very short time there would be found several members competent to assist the Master in this part of the ceremony should the Wardens be unable or unwilling to perform what we consider a part of their duty to each candidate. If it was found that time would not allow of the charge and explanation of the tracing board being given the same night the degree was conferred, it would be easy to postpone them until the next meeting, when proper allowance could be made; but in no case should another degree be conferred without the ritual of the previous one being completed. By the time a candidate has been passed he begins to see, if these parts are omitted, that the promise made by the Worshipful Master is a farce, and thus receives an unfavourable opinion of the institution from the commencement. It is matters such as these, trivial as they seem, which form the foundation on which a newly-made brother's opinion of the Order rests. If, on his admission, a gentleman is favourably impressed with the solemnity of the ceremony and general deportment of the Master and brethren while the degree is being conferred, his first idea of Freemasonry can but be a credit to the Institution; and when later on he has the symbols further explained, and their moral advantages pointed out, he must respect the society which propounds such principles as are taught in our Lodges. To ensure respect any little item which may cast a slur on the Order should be studiously avoided, and when the ruler of a Lodge makes a promise to a candidate which he never intends to fulfil, we think a very great slur does arise. It is not so much at the time that the brother doubts the fulfilment of the promise—although the tone of voice in which it is made sometimes implies that it is a mere expression without any meaning—as it is afterwards, when he has had time to reflect on the ceremony, or perhaps on the first occasion he is present when a degree is conferred on another; then it is that he remembers the same promise being made to him; if he looks back he may think that no effort has been made to redeem this promise, or to complete the ceremony, although, perhaps, he may consider there has been ample opportunity to have done so.

We shall have pleasure in recording that some of the Lodges of Instruction have acted on this suggestion. We feel assured that were such the case, additional interest would be manifested in the ceremonies, and the candidates who in due course received the benefit of listening to the complete ceremony would become better Masons through having learned more of its symbolical lessons at the time of their introduction into the Order.

MASONICALLY DEAD

THIS expression has often been applied to those who have been expelled from all the rights and privileges of Masonry. We have now to apply it in another sense. A brother is in good standing in the Order, but says he has lost all his interest in Masonry. Why? Not because he is at fault, for he is an excellent man morally, intellectually and socially, but because of the inconsistencies of many who are members of the great Brotherhood. He has seen so much un-Masonic conduct that he has become disheartened and disgusted, and thus lost his interest in Masonry. Is there a remedy? It is human to err, and we are not to expect perfection in any one. Masons are human, and they err. We see their faults and foibles and we are grieved, or discouraged, or disgusted. Often their conduct is wilfully wrong. Admit that they all might be better than they are. What then? Are the principles of Masonry at fault, and should we lose our interest in them because there is a wide difference between theory and practice? Medicine, law, theology, are all good. Shall we ignore them because they are sometimes abused? Shall we have no doctors because quacks are around, and no lawyers because shysters abound, and no ministers because some wolves wear sheep's clothing? Not at all; we must uphold the good and reform the wrong whenever and wherever possible. We must not put our hands to the plough and then turn back, because it occasionally strikes an old corn stub, or a stone, or a stump, but must remember that the greater part of the field is free from such obstructions, and that no tillage no crop, no sowing no reaping. Whatever the errors of others, we are to go forward in the work of rebuilding the temple and house of the Lord. We are to continually exemplify Masonic principles, and so help onward and upward those less strong.—Voice of Masonry.

Obituary.

The funeral of Bro. Seager, of the Marquis of Granby, New Cross-road, whose sudden death we recorded in our last impression, took place on Monday afternoon last, at Nunhead Cemetery. The cortège was joined en route by several of the brethren of the Chislehurst Lodge, of which the late Bro. Seager was a member, and of other Lodges in the neighbourhood, amongst whom we noticed Bros. Gloster W.M. 1531, G. Macdonald P.M. 1158, G. Andrews P.M. 841 and Preceptor of the Star Lodge of Instruction (held at the Marquis of Granby), Waterman P.M. 147, Hutchins J.W. 841, W. Fieldson S.D. 548, Lefevre, Godfrey, Hoskins, Redman, Kedgley, Wright, Pegg, J. A. Smith, and others. Amongst friends were Mr. Hobson late of the Marquis of Granby, and now of the Licensed Victuallers' Asylum, Messrs. Hubbard, Taylor, &c. On arriving at the Mortuary Chapel, the brethren formed in single file, the body and mourners passing through their ranks into the building, where the service was impressively read by the Rev. J. Merriott. At the grave a number of persons had also assembled, and here the burial service was concluded in the presence of a sorrowing concourse of friends. The coffin was of English oak, polished, and on the breast-plate was the inscription, "John Seager, died 3rd September 1879, in his 47th year." On the lid had also been placed, by Bro. Macdonald, on behalf of himself and Bros. Keeble and Andrews, a wreath of white dahlias, garderias, jassamine, and fern, whilst some other sympathising friends had adorned the bier with handsome bouquets of white flowers and ferns. As the mourners were leaving the graveside P.M. Brother Andrews threw his sprig of acacia upon the coffin, reciting the words, "As this evergreen once marked the resting-place of the illustrious dead, so let it mark the resting-place of our departed brother." The remainder of the brethren followed this example, and thus testified their respect for one who had been so long and intimately associated with them in furthering the interests of the Craft. In tribute of respect also, a number of the tradespeople in the locality partially closed their shops during the time of the funeral.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Bowel Complaints, Diarrhœa—When these diseases prevail immediate recourse should be had to this Ointment, which should be well rubbed two or three times a day upon the abdomen, and the intestinal irritation will gradually subside. All inflammation will be subdued and excessive action restrained. This treatment, assisted by judicious doses of Holloway's Pills; is applicable to all forms of diarrhœa and dysentery, attended by heart sickness, griping, flatulence, and other distressing and dangerous symptoms. After rubbing in the Ointment a flannel binder should be worn, and the patient should be restricted to a farinaceous diet for a few days till the urgency of the disease has been diminished by the preserving employment of these remedies.

SUMMER OUTING OF THE FRIARS LODGE OF INSTRUCTION, No. 1349.

THE members of this young and prosperous Lodge having determined to hold a summer outing on the 3rd inst., a committee under the acting superintendence of Bros. Musto Preceptor, Worsley Secretary, and Pavitt Treasurer, selected the Crown Gardens, Broxbourne, as the scene of their operations, and entered into arrangements with Bro. Beningfield, the host, to supply a banquet befitting so important an occasion. A more delightful spot could scarcely be found, and the brethren immediately upon their arrival devoted themselves with zest to the many healthy sports the grounds afforded. How some resorted to aquatic sports, others to archery, some to bowls, and others to lawn billiards, will be readily understood by those who have visited this famous hostelry. But the principal charm of the occasion (for what Mason can fail to be charmed with woman's grace and beauty?) was due to the presence of the ladies, whom the brethren had, according to express arrangements, brought with them to share the venal pleasures with their partners, and certainly the beautiful arrangement of the flowers and lawns was most enjoyable, and reflects much credit on the gardener, Mr. Scott, whose labour has been most successful in spite of the recent bad weather.

At the time appointed an excellent banquet was served, which did Bro. Beningfield great credit. Bro. Past Master Musto, by universal consent, acted as chairman, and Bros. J. Shepherd W.M. 1349 and Andrews W.M. 1227 occupied the S. and J. Warden's positions respectively. There were present the following ladies and brethren:—Bro. P.M. and Mrs. and Miss Musto, Bro. and Mrs. Fowler, Bro. Norman, Bro. and Mrs. Smith, Bro. and Mrs. Cull, Bro. and Mrs. Sadler, Bro. and Mrs. White, Bro. Shepherd, Bro. Barker, Bro. and Mrs. Rodham, Bro. Richardson, Bro. Cooper, Bro. and Miss Kidd, Bro. and Mrs. Andrews, Bro. Worsley, Bro. and Mrs. Taylor, Bro. and Mrs. Ellis, Bro. Stephens, Bro. and Mrs. Roberts, Bro. and Miss Blundell, Bro. and Mrs. Pavitt, Bro. Dunsmore and others, by whom ample justice was done to the good cheer. The scene at table was most charming, and reflected a pleasing variation on the prevailing black coat and white tie aspect of our more austere banquets. The desire, also, to have the pleasure of drinking Sister So and So's health was provocative of much amusement. After grace had been said, Bro. Musto rose and said:—Ladies and Gentlemen—On occasions of this kind it is the custom among gentlemen, and especially among Freemasons, to drink the health of Her Gracious Majesty. I feel sure the ladies will join us in this most pleasurable duty, for they can, like ourselves, fully appreciate the excellent qualities of the Queen, and rejoice at the manner in which she reigns over us. Therefore I invite you, ladies and gentlemen, to drink the health of the Queen.

Bro. Stephens sang "The National Anthem."

The Chairman then said:—The next toast I have the honour to propose is one all Freemasons receive with enthusiasm. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales is justly a great favourite with the Craft. And, I may add, that he is also held in great favour by the ladies. As Freemasons we owe him a double tribute of respect, as our head and chief ruler. During the time he has governed the Craft in England we have been the recipients of many acts of kindness and consideration from our Grand Master, which we feel bound to acknowledge. In proposing the health of the Prince of Wales I ask you to drink a bumper, and with the toast I will include the rest of the Royal Family.

Bro. Stephens sang, "God Bless the Prince of Wales," which was heartily received.

After a humourous song by Bro. Worsley, the chairman said: I may inform you, ladies and gentlemen, that an outing of so delightful a character as the present, which is carried out so successfully, would be altogether impossible unless the arrangement of details were in the hands of able, energetic, and persevering stewards. Among those who have striven to this desirable end, I must name the two officers of the Friars Lodge of Instruction. To their untiring efforts this success is all due. We have, in Lodges of Instruction, but two officers, and it is necessary that they be good ones. The Secretary is the most important officer, and so is—the Treasurer (laughter), the one exerts himself to get the money, the other does his utmost to keep it. In our Bros. Pavitt and Worsley we have all we could wish, and I ask you to drink their health.

Bro. Smith sang the "Four Jolly Smiths," and

Bro. Worsley, in reply, said: Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen—I thank you for drinking my health so heartily, and giving me my first opportunity of speaking of the Friars Lodge of Instruction. Although it has been established but twelve months we have reason to be very proud of it. I am afraid we have of late had a tendency in our Lodge matters to think only of ourselves, and am the more pleased that to-day, in coming here, we have the ladies with us. Bro. Pavitt and I thought we ought to be so honoured, and we hope they will on many occasions favour the brethren of the Friars Lodge at their summer festivals. We have a very successful Lodge, a Lodge of which we are proud. I am pleased to say that under the able supervision of Bro. Musto it has reached such a state of efficiency as to be known throughout London as a thorough working Lodge.

Bro. Pavitt said—After the able and interesting remarks of Bro. Worsley, little need be said by me. I am rather surprised we are honoured in this manner. We, as a Committee, endeavoured to arrange for our comforts, and I am sure we have had a most enjoyable day, a great part of the success being due to the presence of the ladies; and I hope we may all live to enjoy ourselves on similar happy occasions.

Bro. J. Fowler favoured the company with a fine rendering of the old song, "Who deeply drinks of Wine," which was greatly appreciated.

Mrs. Pavitt next obliged the company by singing the "Minstrel Boy." Bro. Musto then said—The next toast I have the privilege of proposing is one I consider to be the toast of the evening. I am sure every gentleman will join with me in drinking to the toast of the Ladies. They are our partners in life, our comforters in distress; they are the sharers of our fortunes, whether it be for weal or for woe. I hope that on many future occasions we shall be similarly honoured with their company, and feel that we have no greater friends to Freemasonry than the ladies. Could we have them with us more frequently, I am sure much good would result from it. There are many of our secrets which could with advantage be shared by the ladies. I trust the success of this, the first summer outing of the Friars Lodge of Instruction, will be the means of introducing such happy occasions to other Lodges. That we may not incur, or deserve the charge of selfishness, I do trust the ladies may be induced to join our numbers on very many happy outings. I name Bro. Barker to respond for the ladies.

Bro. Barker: I am exceedingly surprised I am called upon on such an important occasion to do honour to this toast. I am sure there are others more qualified to speak of the merits of the ladies than I. I can only say we are only pleased to have the ladies here, and hope they are pleased in coming. It has long been a by-word that we, as a body, keep to ourselves. I hope I may in some measure prove such not to be universally the case. We read in sacred history that King Solomon, who, as everybody knows, took such great interest in Masonic labours, was far from being averse to the ladies, and I may assure them that of all men

No mortal can more
The ladies adore
Than a Free and an Accepted Mason.

Bro. J. Shepherd, W.M. of the mother Lodge, next gave the healt h of Bro. Musto, expressing his appreciation of the able manner in which that Bro. had presided; to his genial influence much of the pleasure of the day was due. This was received with musical honours, which were most heartly taken up.

Bro. Musto, having regard to the rapid flight of time, briefly acknowledged the favour done him, and gave as his next toast the Senior and Junior Wardens. They had discharged their duty with great credit. Bro. Shepherd, their W.M., was well known to them all, and appreciated; Bro. Andrews W.M. 1227, Upton Lodge, was also a great favourite. This was cordially received, and thanks returned by the brethren complimented.

The proceedings throughout were interspersed with songs; besides those already noticed must be mentioned a charming rendering of an old ballad by Miss Musto; while "In happy moments day by day,"

Bro. Fowler had another opportunity of displaying the qualities of a fine voice.

After several other songs, the ladies and brethren dispersed to again enjoy the beauties of the gardens. In our rambles around we discovered a brother who had brought a party down to enjoy themselves; he, in a truly fraternal spirit, invited as many of our party as desired to join his in the pleasures of the mazy dance, and we have to thank Bro. Watkins of the Lebanon Lodge for some excellent dancing, to a splendid band. This was so much enjoyed that the company determined to stay till the last train, to avail themselves to the uttermost of the opportunity. Whilst some were dancing, others were enjoying the scenery, which was now lit up by the moon, whose autumnal rays cast their mild and beautiful light over the flower beds and walks, investing them with additional charm.

There must be an end to all things, however agreeable; so, despite the many attractions of the hour, the inexorable necessity of catching the last train to town caused us, most unwillingly, to leave the scene of so much pleasure, seeking some consolation from the thought that "as happy we had met, so happy we would part, and—happy meet again." So mote it be.

PROVINCE OF NORTH AND EAST YORKSHIRE.

We have received a copy of the programe of the proceedings to be observed on Wednesday next at the meeting of this P.G. Lodge, held under the banner of Eboracum Lodge, No. 1611, at York. The Lord Mayor of York has lent the Guildhall and Mansion House for the occasion; the Dean of York has given permission for a special service in the cathedral, and accordingly a procession in full regalia will take place in the afternoon from the Guildhall to the glorious old Minster of York. A banquet is to take place in the evening at the De Grey rooms, and later there will be a conversazione, with music, &c., at which ladies will be present. The entire arrangements seem very perfect, as might have been expected from the brethren of a Lodge so favourably known as the Eboracum.

MARK MASONRY IN PLUMSTEAD.

The "Excelsior" Lodge, No. 226, of Mark Master Masons, held their regular meeting at the "Lord Raglan," Plumstead, on Tuesday evening last. Bro. John G. Holmes P.M., &c., in the chair, supported by the following brethren, viz., Smyth, Weston, Tolbé, Penfold, Keys, Palmer, Sculley, Moulds, Kennedy, Wilson, Tappenden, Deeves, Ovenden, Chamberlin, Hepburn, &c. The routine business having been disposed of, Bro. W. A. Tucker, of Lodge 913, was admitted with the usual formalities to the degree of Mark Master Mason. Several grants for charitable purposes having been made, the Lodge adjourned at an early hour.

The installation meeting of the Lodge of Loyalty, No. 1607, will take place this day (Saturday), at the Alexandra Palace, Wood Green. Bro. C. J. Perceval is the W.M. elect.

THINGS ONE WOULD LIKE TO KNOW.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I notice in your columns an advertisement, headed "London Masonic Charity Association," wherein it is stated that the Committee of that Association have selected six cases of applicants (namely Nos. 15, 30, 16, 73, 77 and 60) for admission into the Boy's School, and six cases, numbered 17, 27, 9, 8, 15 and 23 from the list of applicants desiring to be elected into the Sister Institution at Clapham, as worthy of their support. Is this a sign of the Association's previous success, or is it emblematical of weakness? I am myself strongly inclined to view the announcement under the latter phase, as it seems hardly credible that an Association, however strong its voting capabilities may be, has the power of electing six candidates from each list; unless it should happen that the selection has been made of cases having already high figures carried to their credit, and whose chances of return on the Scrutineers' list of successfuls are rendered almost certain by the previous exertions of friends apart from the Association, a circumstance which I trust for the credit of the executive of the L.M.C.A. has not been, by them, taken into account. It is within my remembrance that in the early days of the Association great stress was laid upon the fact that the cases to be taken up by it were to be those which, to all appearances, had been left out in the cold by friends instrumental in effecting their location on the list of accepted candidates; can it be that so large a number as twelve come at this time under that category?

I have been for some time past anticipating the publication of a report detailing what was done at the last election for boys and girls, with a statement of the Association's action at the election for annuitants in May last, but have hitherto failed to see it in either of the two Masonic weekly issues. It would be interesting to know the position of the Association as regards its liabilities for votes borrowed to secure the return of cases previously advocated, and to read an avowal of the means proposed to be taken to advance the welfare of the twelve cases above referred to: I sincerely hope that the numerical increase of the cases they purpose working for has not been induced by a desire to obtain assistance from the friends of the applicants whose causes they expouse, in order to carry weight before the Craft as a successful body of co-operatives, trusting to the prominence thus freely given of their respective candidature bringing in such a number of votes as will enable the executive to redeem outstanding pledges, and at the same time take to themselves the credit of securing the election of so large a number of applicants. Can you or any of your readers enlighten me herein?

Yours fraternally,

QUERIST.

LONDON MASONIC CHARITY ASSOCIATION.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I have just received a circular, purporting to emanate from a body styling itself the "London Masonic Charity Association," in which I am informed that the Committee of the Association, "having carefully considered the respective claims of the London candidates," have decided upon recommending certain cases, of which a list is given, for the support of the London brethren at the ensuing elections, and my vote and interest are earnestly solicited on their behalf.

May I inquire what is this Association? and what claims it possesses to the confidence of the brethren? The signature of a well-known and highly esteemed brother is appended to the circular, and if I had received from him, as an individual, an application for my votes on behalf of any single candidate in whom he might be interested, I should certainly (unless my votes had been promised beforehand), give them in favour of that candidate, as I should assume, and no doubt rightly, that he was thoroughly conversant with the case, and considered it deserving. But an Association, whatever may be its constitution, sitting in judgment upon a number of cases, of the majority of which the members can have no personal knowledge, is quite another question; and I, for one, object to have "recommended" candidates thrust upon me by a body which must be irresponsible, and, therefore, open to influences likely to render an impartial selection impossible. How can I, for instance, tell whether or not each of the candidates selected is not the nominee of some member of the Committee, or of some friend of a member, who pulls the strings at second-hand?

Now, I have been solicited to support a case which I know to be most deserving—at least as deserving as any of the "recommended" candidates appear to be; and it would be interesting to know what is the process of "careful consideration" to which the claims of the candidates are subjected, when a genuinely deserving case is deliberately passed over and relegated to the list of the not "recommended."

I would advise the brethren not to entrust their votes to this Association until they are informed what process of inquiry was gone through before the twelve candidates were selected, and are moreover satisfied that their votes (if sent open, which I presume is the intention), are not given to one or more especially favoured candidates, instead of being equitably divided amongst those who have already met with the favour of the Committee.

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

A P.M. AND LIFE GOVERNOR.

CURIOUS OLD TAPESTRY.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—During the annual meeting of the Cambrian Archæological Association they visited, on the 30th August, the old timbered residence called "Lymore" formerly belonging to the Lords Herbert of Cherbury, and which, by the courtesy of the present owner, the Earl of Powis, was freely opened for inspection. This old house, amongst other antiquities, boasts of its well preserved tapestry. One room is hung with a magnificent specimen of the art, depicting the "Visit of the Queen of Sheba at the opening of the Temple." The figures are drawn very large, and two of them are illustrative of the five points of fellowship. As this tapestry bears the date 1556, it evidently must have been removed from Montgomery Castle on its destruction in 1649 by order of Oliver Cromwell, the Herberts being stout Royalists.

Does any one know of other tapestry, bearing such evidence of the antiquity of our ritual!

D. P. OWEN, P.M., P.Z. 998.

COMMITTEE MEETING OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

THE monthly meeting of the General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys was held on Saturday last, in the Board Room, Freemasons' Hall. There were present—Bros. Joyce Murray (in the chair), Donald M. Dewar, W. H. Perryman, S. Rosenthal, Arthur E. Gladwell, W. F. C. Moutrie, H. Massey, J. W. M. Dosell, James Winter, Frederick Adlard, Dick Radclyffe, and F. Binckes (Secretary). The minutes of the former meeting having been read and confirmed, two petitions were read, one from Oldham, Lancashire, and the other from Berkeley, Gloucestershire, and the children petitioned for were placed on the list for the election in April next. One outfit was granted to a lad who, since leaving the school, had obtained a situation and conducted himself well. Bro. Binckes read two motions, of which notice had been given for the next Quarterly Court in October. By Bro. C. F. Matier—"That in law 55, line 3, after the word 'seven' the word 'consecutive' be omitted." By Bro. J. A. Birch, proposed alteration of Rule 73, sub-section 2, to read as follows:—"The election and removal of the Secretary shall be vested in the General Committee: the voting to be by balloting paper duly forwarded to each qualified member not less than fourteen days before the date of election: such balloting papers must be signed by the party entitled thereto, and may be presented by a member of the General Committee on his or her behalf at the time of election." Bro. Dick Radclyffe's circular, asking the approval of the members of the Committee, as individuals, to the scheme for forming a 'Royal Masonic Schools' Pupils Assistance Fund,' was explained by Bro. Binckes, and the brethren having stated their approval, and given in their names, the Committee adjourned.

COMMITTEE MEETING OF THE BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

THE Committee of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution held their monthly meeting at Freemasons' Hall, on Wednesday last. There were present—Bros. Col. Creaton Grand Treasurer (in the chair), Col. H. S. Somerville Burney, Capt. N. G. Philips, Dr. Jabez Hogg, S. Rawson, Thomas Cubitt, C. J. Perceval, James Brett, L. Stean, Raynham W. Stewart, C. G. Hill, A. H. Tattershall, Thomas Good, C. G. Dilley, John G. Stevens, F. Adlard, Charles F. Hogard, and James Terry Secretary. After the minutes had been read and confirmed, Bro. Terry announced the death of one of the male candidates for election, who had been twice at the head of the unsuccessful list. The Warden's report announced the departure of some of the inmates of the usylum for a brief period, and their due return. Bro. Terry also read the Committee's report of their visit to the Institution, where they found the inmates in good health, considering their years, and the Institution in a satisfactory condition. They also recommended that a tool-house should be erected, as it would vacate a portion of the Asylum which might be adapted for the residence of one more annuitant. Bro. Terry read an estimate which had been given for the erection of a tool-house for £38. On the motion of Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, it was resolved to build a tool-house, and to accept the tender which had been read. One widow was granted half her late husband's annuity, and one candidate was added to the list for the May 1880 election, after which the Committee adjourned.

The Fifteen sections will be worked at the Corinthian Lodge of Instruction, No. 1382, commencing at 6.30 p.m., by the Members of the Whittington Lodge of Instruction, No. 862, at the George Hotel, Glengal-road, Poplar, on Tuesday, 23rd September. EARL OF CARNARON LODGE, No. 1642.

THE regular meeting was held on Thursday, at the Ladbroke Hall, Notting Hill, W., under the presidency of Bro. S. H. Parkhouse the W.M., supported by Bros. E. M. Lander S.W., Samuel Smout sen. J.W., George Penn I.P.M. Treas., W. J. Murlis P.M. Sec., W. Stephens P.M., Rev. P. M. Holden P.M. Chap., Rev. C. Darby Reade S.D., S. Smout jun. J.D., F. Delevante Organist, J. Woodmason Steward, several brethren, and the following Visitors—Bros. J. Poulter 990. M. A. Maillard 435, W. Matthews 1489, E. P. Albert P.G.P., W. W. Morgan jun. 1385, G. Davis J.W. 167, J. E. Jones 704, W. W. Gray W.M. 704, E. Arrowsmith 733, H. G. Buss Assist. G. Sec., T. B. Linscott S.D. 55, W. R. Lister S.W. 145, J. Fisher 733, &c. The Lodge having been regularly opened, was advanced to the third degree, when Bros. Foskitt, Taylor, Huish, and Burgess were raised. The Lodge being resumed, Bros. Smith, French, Tanner, and Wadham were passed. The ballot was taken during the evening for Mr. Henry Hart as a candidate for initiation, and for Bro. William Binns as a candidate for joining. In each case the result was favourable, and in due course Mr. Henry Hart was admitted to the benefits of Masonic light. The next business before the Lodge was the election of Worshipful Master, Treasurer, Tyler and Auditors. In the first instance, Bro. Lander, the present Senior Warden, was unanimously elected to fill the chair for the coming year. Bro. Penn was re-elected to the office of Treasurer, as was also Bro. Schofield to that of Tyler; and Bros. Dr. Pocock Rogers and Rutherglen were appointed to audit the accounts. Each of the appointments was suitably announced by the W.M., and acknowledged by the respective brethren. Bro. Penn then, in accordance with notice of motion given by him, proposed that the sum of fifty guineas be voted from the funds of the Lodge in aid of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution; he considered it could but be the wish of the members to see their Lodge Vice President of all the Charities, and he considered this grant would be a good step toward attaining such an object. Bro. Murlis seconded the proposition, which was carried unanimously, the amount to be placed on the list of the W.M., who has undertaken the duty of Steward for the next Festival. Bro. Penn next proposed that a jewel of the usual description be presented by the Lodge to the retiring Master, Bro. Parkhouse, who, he said, was to be complimented for the admirable manner in which he had fulfilled the duties of his office. The ability and kindness he had always displayed could but be conducive to the prosperity of the Lodge. Bro. S.W., in putting the vote to the Lodge, added a few words of approval. The vote we need hardly add was most unanimously passed. The W.M. suitably responded. He was exceedingly gratified, and looked upon it as a great honour to serve as Master of such a Lodge as the Earl of Carnarvon. He then proceeded to close the Lodge, the brethren adjourning to banquet. At the conclusion of the repast, and after grace had been said by the Chaplain, the W.M. gave the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts, paying, as is usual in this Lodge, especial compliment to the name of the Earl of Carnarvon Pro Grand Master. In introducing the toast of the Lord Skelmersdale and the other Grand Officers, the W.M. referred to the pleasure he felt in having two Officers of Grand Lodge at the meeting that evening. After paying a compliment to Bro. Buss, who was, he said, most efficient in his duties, the W.M. called upon that brother and Bro. E. P. Albert to respond. Bro. Buss, in the course of his reply, referred to the position that had from the first been taken by the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge. The way in which its members worked in the cause of charity was most creditable, and entitled them to the greatest regard from all parts. Bro. Albert followed in a similar strain, especially mentioning the progress the Lodge had made in point of numbers. Three years since, he said, there were not more than 25 members; now the Lodge could boast of upwards of 100. This and other matters proved unmistakably the great success which had attended the efforts of the founders. The W.M. then proposed the health of the initiate. This was a toast always pleasing to propose and ever cordially received. It was usual at their meetings for them to have two or three gentlemen on whom to confer the privilege of Masonic initiation. On the present occasion, however, only one of those expected had arrived, and they had therefore but one whose health they were called upon to drink. As, however, they had that night received another brother into their Lodge, as a joining member, the W.M. had pleasure in coupling his name with that of Bro. Hart, as he would also do in the case of Bro. Flood, who, although balloted for and received at the last meeting had, by some oversight, been left out of the reckoning at the banquet table. Bro. Hart, after thanking the brethren, detailed his experience of what was usually put forth by "friends" as the Masonic initiation, he had not been quite so awfully treated as he had been led to suppose he should be, but the ceremony had greatly impressed him, and he felt assured would ever remain in his recollection. So long as he was able he felt that he should take a great interest in the brotherhood. Bros. Flood and Binns having replied, Bro. Penn assumed the gavel and proceeded to give the health of the W.M. This was the last opportunity he would have of bringing the toast under the notice of the brethren, and he should very much regret the loss of this pleasurable part of his duty. In responding, for the first time, to the toast of his health, the W.M. had stated that if the Lodge during his year of office was not a success it would not be his fault. The results that had been achieved were the best proofs as to whether the W.M. had kept his word, he (Bro. Penn) thought there was no question of it, and the brethren must admit that, throughout the term, their comfort had been studied, and the interests of the Lodge advanced. The W.M., in reply, assured the brethren that it was with great feelings of gratitude he listened to the marks of approval they expressed. He accepted the office of Master of the Lodge with great nervousness, but having been elected unanimously he was re-assured, and hoped that he might prove himself worthy. He should always look back upon the past year as one of the most enjoyable of his life. Throughout his presidency he had enjoyed the good wishes of his brethren and the assistance of the Past Masters. To the latter he was greatly indebted, more especially to Bro. Penn, who had not only rendered assistance in the Lodge but had taken great pains to see that all were enjoying themselves at the banquets. The three years which had passed since the foundation of the Lodge had been most successful, and a great part of this success was due to the brethren who had preceded him in the ruling of the Lodge. The W.M. expressed the pleasure the members felt in seeing Bro. W. Stephens, who had acted as Past Master during the first year of the Lodge's existence, rewarded by promotion to Provincial rank. He hoped that Bro. Stephens would long be able to enjoy the honours he so richly deserved. Of Bro. Murlis, the first Master, it was quite unnecessary to speak. He was so well known to all the members that the mere mention of his name was as great a compliment as could be paid him. The W.M. concluded by calling on the brethren to drink to the good health of their Past Masters. Bro. Penn briefly returned thanks, and was followed by Bro. Murlis, who said that he had, and ever should, take a great interest in the Lodge. Having been its first Master, he looked upon himself in a great measure as responsible for its good name being kept untarnished. He never saw an addition to the roll of members but he felt proud, and as long as such gentlemen as the one they had received that evening presented themselves, he could rest assured the Lodge would prosper. Bro. Stephens considered it a great satisfaction to be associated with such a Lodge as the Carnarvon, which not only maintained a foremost position in the Craft, but was to the front in the great work of charity. The Lodge had been represented by three or four Stewards at various Festivals, and each had outvied the other in the amount of their lists; this fraternal rivalry could not go on for ever with so successful a result, but he felt assured that their present W.M. would have a list that no one need feel ashamed of, indeed its present total, nearly £150, was a splendid one, but there was ample time for large additions, and he felt sure many amounts would be added before the day arrived for returning the list to the Institution. The W.M. now rose and proposed the health of his Visitors. They were not quite so numerous as they had been on many previous occasions. He assured such as were present that the members were at all times delighted to see them. Bros. Linscott, Davis, Lister, and Morgan replied, after which the Master proposed the Treasurer and Secretary, followed by the W.M. elect. Bro. Parkhouse tendered his regrets to Bro. Lander for having forgotten him until this late period of the evening, but hoped that the reception he felt sure would be accorded, would be none the less appreciated because a little late. For the past three years Bro. Lander had faithfully carried out the duties of the respective offices to which he had been appointed, on every occasion doing his utmost to support the Master and assist in the ruling of the Lodge. He had, likewise, systematically supported the Charities, of each of which he had become a Life Governor since the establishment of the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge. The W.M. trusted that a year of prosperity was in store for his successor, and that when the time came for Bro. Lardner to relinquish the post to which he had been elected, he would be able to look back on as successful a year as that through which the Lodge had just passed. Bro. Lander tendered his thanks for the way in which the W.M. had just proposed his health, and more especially for the kindness of the brethren in having elected him unanimously to the position of Master. He would do his utmost to conduct the duties of Master successfully, and hoped he should maintain the prestige of the Lodge. His predecessors had been so successful in what they had undertaken that he feared it would be a hard task to excel them, still he should endeavour to earn the approval of the members, and hoped that at the corresponding meeting of the Lodge in 1880, the brethren would speak as kindly of him as they had to-night done of Bro. Parkhouse and the others who had filled the chair of the Lodge. The W.M. now proposed the toast of the officers. The brethren who assisted him in the ruling of the Lodge were all deserving the thanks of the members, they one and all seemed to exert themselves to add to the comfort and enjoyment of the brethren and generally assist in maintaining the Lodge in its prosperous career. The J.W. not only attended to his duties in the Lodge, but formed the mainstay in the Lodge of Instruction. He hoped that in twelve months time the brethren would be called upon to drink the health of Bro. Smout as W.M. elect. Each of the other Officers were referred to in turn by the W.M., and the toast having been heartily received, each replied. The W.M. then proposed "Prosperity to the Masonic Charities." This toast he said was one they should always remember, although he hardly thought it needful to remind the members of the Lodge of their duty in this respect. He announced that his list for the Old People then reached a total of 150 guineas (which was afterwards augmented), and referred to the fact that in the course of the three years of the Lodge's existence they had contributed no less than £1000 to the three Charities. Bro. Morgan jun. having replied, the Tyler was summoned, and the brethren separated.

SEASONABLE HINTS.—The vacation season affords an excellent opportunity for Masonic house cleaning. Now is the time to give attention to the halls and apartments, and to see that they are put in proper condition for the meetings of the Craft when the call from refreshment to labor shall be made. The use of broom and brush; a little soap and water rightly applied; a few touches of paint; the addition, perhaps, of some long needed article of furniture or appropriate ornament will impart to the Masonic home a changed and more inviting appearance. Musty, disagreeable and ill kept halls are stumbling blocks in the way of progress. A cleanly and attractive Lodge room ranks among the essentials of Masonic prosperity and comfort.—Repository.

BISHOP CANTILUPE, GRAND MASTER OF TEMPLARS.

From the "Keystone" of 23rd August.

So far as we are aware, there was during the middle ages but a single Bishop of the English Church who was also a Provincial Grand Master of Knights Templar. There were not a few examples of eminent ecclesiastics who were also architects and Freemasons and, as there are analogously now—one distinguished Bishop of this country, Sir and Bro. Rt. Rev. Wm. H. Odenheimer, D.D., D.C.L., having died only last week, and been interred on Monday, August 18th inst.; but we believe that Sir Thomas Cantilupe, Bishop of Hereford, is the only English Bishop who was a leading Templar, and whose shrine in an English Cathedral is conspicuously decorated with Templar emblems.

Sir and Bishop Cantilupe was a famous man in his day, as the interesting details of his biography which we are about to give conclusively prove; and yet, singular to say, you may search in vain in any general biographical dictionary, even the fullest, or any ancient or modern encyclopædia, for even the mention of his name! It is quite time that his memory should be rescued from this comparative oblivion, since it is only in certain special works that you may read of him at all, and we feel assured that all Freemasons, and especially all Knights Templar, will thank us for the accurate information we give below concerning one who played so distinguished a part in the history of Templarism, of the English Church, and of the English State. He was an English Bishop, a Lord Chancellor of England, and after his death was canonized by the Pope. To these distinctions he added the crowning one, to us, of being a Knight Templar, and a Provincial Grand Master of the Templars of England.

Thomas Cantilupe was of noble extraction, being the son of William Baron de Cantilupe, of an illustrious Norman line, whose name was derived from Champ de Loup, or Campus Lupi (field of the wolf). He studied at Oxford University, then went to Paris to the College of Sarbonne, where he was graduated M.A. Thence he went to Orleans, where he studied the civil law, under an eminent professor, and was so quick and able a scholar that in his master's absence he occupied his chair. Returning to Oxford he studied canon law, and received the degree of D.C.L. In 1262, he was elected Chancellor of the University of Oxford, in which position he distinguished himself not only by his learning, but also by his manly courage. A riot having arisen between the southern and northern students, Chancellor Cantilupe promptly suppressed it, but not without injury to both his garments and his person. During the "Barons' War," in February 1265, he was appointed, in the name of King Henry III., Lord Chancellor of England.* He held this high office until August of the same year, when the defeat of the Barons at the battle of Evesham caused the elevation of Edward I. to the throne, by whom he was removed. He then retired to Oxford, where he pursued anew his studies in divinity, and received the degree of Doctor of Divinity. But his connection with the insurgent Barons did not blind king Edward I. to his merits, who appointed him Archdeacon of Stafford, Canon of York, Canon of London, &c., to which he added other and "many fat benefices," being quite a pluralist. He received his chief ecclesiastical dignity in 1275, when he was appointed Bishop of Hereford,† and presided over the See until 1282. During his Episcopacy he had a dispute with Peckham, Archbishop of Canterbury, who went so far as to excommunicate him. The intrepid Cantilupe, fearing nothing, however, and relying upon the justice of his cause, proceeded to Rome, and laid his cause before Pope Martin IV., by whom he was paternally received, and who, espousing his cause, decided the dispute in his favor. On his return journey, and before he had passed out of Italy, the good Bishop was seized with a mortal malady, and died in 1282 at Civita Vecchia.

His remains were strangely treated—probably by his own dying request. The flesh was separated from his bones, by boiling, and interred in a church at Orvieto; his heart was transported to the monastic church of Ashridge, in Buckinghamshire; and his bones were taken to his own Cathedral of Hereford. As the latter were taken into the Cathedral, the Earl of Gloucester approached, and touched the casket containing them, when, the story runs, that they "bled afresh," whereupon the Earl was led to make restitution to the Church of all the lands that Bishop Cantilupe had, in his lifetime, justly, but ineffectually, claimed from him.

Cantilupe was a man of great learning, of humility, and yet of a manly courage and of blameless life. His friend, Archbishop Kilwarby, when Oxford conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Divinity, even went so far as to say that "he was never guilty of any sin which he could judge to be mortal." His succeessors in the Bishopric of Hereford specially honoured Bishop Cantilupe, by taking his family arms as the heraldic bearings of their See.

In the view of many, the crowning honor of his career was his canonization, in 1320, by Pope John XXII. He was the last Englishman canonized before the Reformation. He would have been canonized sooner had he not been a Knight Templar. In this connection, we may mention that Cantilupe's first patron, King Henry III., in the tenth year of his reign (1226), granted a charter to the Templars, confirming them in all their possessions, and granting them many additional privileges.

In 1307 the Templars were arrested throughout England; in 1310 they were condemned, and two years later the Order was formally dissolved by the Council of Vienne. The bones of Bishop Cantilupe were interred at first in the Lady Chapel of Hereford Cathedral, but afterwards, in 1286, they were removed, in the presence of King Edward II., to the north transept, which appears to have been rebuilt expressly for the reception of the magnificent Templar shine which was there erected to his memory, and still exists to excite the admiration of every visitor to the Cathedral. The "brass" that surmounted it is gone, but the shrine remains. We will describe it, since all Templars, and also all Freemasons, will be interested in it. It is a worthy memorial of Provincial Grand Master Cantilupe.

This Templar altar shrine is constructed entirely of Purbeck marble, in the form of a parellogram, with two divisions, the lower solid, the upper of open work. On this once rested the actual shrine, containing the relics of the saint. "Cantilupe was Provincial Grand Master of the Knights Templar of England; and round the lower division of the pedestal are fifteen figures of Templars, in various attitudes, placed in the recesses of a foliated arcade. All are fully armed, in chain-mail, with surcoat, shield and sword."‡

We need not be surprised to learn that it was asserted that miracles were performed at the shrine of this canonized saint; Fuller says, "no fewer than four hundred and twenty-five miracles are registered, reported to have been wrought at his tomb * * yea, it is recorded in his legend that by his prayers were raised from death to life threescore several persons, one-and-twenty lepers healed, and three-and-twenty blind and dumb men received their sight and speech."§ This Knights Templar's bones, if we have faith in this long catalogue, have been quite efficacious in healing the ills of humanity. And it would seem also true that a Lord Chancellor of England, a Bishop of the English Church, a Chancellor of Oxford University, and a canonized saint, to say nothing of a Grand Master of Knights Templar, is worthy of at least a passing mention in the biographical dictionaries of our day.

Cantilupe came of an heroic race. His uncle, Walter Cantilupe (sometimes styled Walter Normanus, or the Norman), was Bishop of Worcester in 1237, and was a brave champion of English liberty as against the Pope. Before the battle of Lewis, he absolved the entire army of the Barons, bidding them fight boldly against the King's forces, and with as much certainty of salvation as if they were fighting in a crusade! He, too, was excommunicated by the Pope, and was only reconciled and absolved on his death bed.

[COMMUNICATED.]

IT is much to be regretted that the dissensions that occurred four months ago within the Symbolic Lodges working under the jurisdiction of the Supreme Council here are far from being adjusted; and that the conflict between the authorities of that rite and some of its subordinate Lodges threatens rather to take the proportions of a revolutionary movement than any thing else. The question at issue is, no less than that of a complete reform of the fundamental basis upon which the government of the rite now rests, and by which it has been able, hitherto, to live.

It is true that question has been raised by only sixteen Lodges out of some seventy-nine or eighty that are under the sway of the Supreme Council. But it remains to be seen how far the cry raised for an autonomous Grand Lodge, independent of the Supreme Council of the 33° degree, is effectively or morally supported by the other Lodges that have up to this moment, for motives of their own, remained either neutral or silent; also, how could the authorities of that body possibly comply with such a demand, in the event of its becoming unanimous or that of a majority, without upsetting their own principles, weakening their own authority, disorganising the whole fabric, and eventually to remain with a name and wondrous title as vain and heterogenous to some as perhaps it would seem already unnecessary and objectionable even to many of their own brethren.

It was in the year 1871 that the General Assembly of the Grand Orient abolished the Grand Mastership. It did so with alacrity, and wisely too; not so much, as it might have been thought, against the institution of the Office itself, for the latter had then very little of the pageant-like left to it, but for obvious and very sound motives bearing upon the independence of the Order. French Masonry had, in 1862, been shamed and mortified, as it were, by the Emperor Napoleon III. stepping profanely into the mystic Temple, and ordering, by a decree of his, the French Masons to accept as Grand Master one of his Marshals, who like himself was a profane. The mortification no doubt was great, and, besides, there was no other alternative than to submit passively to it. So they did, but they seized upon the first opportunity that presented itself at the Grand Orient, to abolish altogether the Office of Grand Master, leaving the functions of the latter to be exercised by a Council of the Order, or virtually by a president. This Board was at that time, as it is now, composed of 33 members, elected by the Lodges at their general assembly. A democratic spectacle in Masonic management was then given to the fraternity, viz:—A Grand Master descending from his throne to occupy the simple chair that was expressely vacated for him by the fraternal courtesy of our much esteemed Brother de Saint Jean, then, as now the President of the Council of the Order.

But the other French power, called the Supreme Council of the 33° of the A. and A. Scottish Rite for France and its dependencies, though then affected by the same Imperial decree, instituted no reform, underwent no change; and is now under the Grand Mastership of the illustrious Brother Cremieux S.G.C. of the Sup. Council, just as it was, in 1862, under that of the academician Bro. Viennet.

There are between that Power and the Grand Orient two great characteristic peculiarities that distinguish the one from the other as Masonic organisations, and most strikingly too. In the former, all authority or power, administrative or executive, is vested in a Supreme Council of the 33°, self-elected, of course, as Supreme Councils generally are. While, in the latter, the General Assembly of all the Lodges is the Supreme power, whence the executive authority of the Council of the Order comes; for the members of that Council are the elected delegates or representatives of that Assembly, to act for it when not in session.

The first gives pre-eminence to the so-called Hauts Grades, and exclusively leaves to them the management of all the rite (Symbolic, Capitular and Cryptic Degrees bound together) in a hierarchical manner. Whereas the second ignores altogether such preeminence and hierarchy, and, like the United Grand Lodge of England and all other Grand Lodges in the Masonic world, altogether confines the whole administrative and legislative power of the Craft to Symbolic Masonry; that is to say—to the mass of the Lodges working the three first Degrees; and that quite independently from any other whatsoever.

These explanations might be considered necessary for the information of those of our English brethren who are not conversant with the constitutional organisation of these two French Masonic bodies, and who, judging from their own, might be led to believe it an erroneous anomaly to ascribe to any Supreme Council whatever the management of the affairs of Blue Masonry, and to have it placed under the sway of the S.G. Principal of the thirty-third degree.

These organic peculiarities being made plain to all, it will not therefore seem very hard to understand the difficulty of the situation, and, perhaps, it will make it comparatively easy to judge of the extent and importance of what is sought to be obtained from, or enforced upon the authorities of the Supreme Council by those sixteen refractory Lodges, and the awkward position into which they have likewise dragged their parent Lodge, and out of which, however, there must be found some satisfactory issue for both parties, without infringing the rights of either, nor hurting the feelings of any. It must here be added, to the particulars above given of the constitution and government practice of the Supreme Council, that there now exists in that rite a kind of Grand Lodge, under the denomination of First Section of the Central Grand Lodge of France. It is composed of the delegates of the Lodges chartered by that jurisdiction, and it is presided over by the Supreme Council, or some of its members, to which Supreme Council must be submitted for ratification or confirmation all resolutions passed, and also to which alone, it would appear, belongs the privilege of determining the nature of the business that may be transacted, and the questions that may be discussed by that Grand Lodge when it is called upon to meet.

This being understood, the facts referring to the present discord can thus be briefly stated :—

In April last some members of the Lodge Justice, holding office as delegates of this and other Lodges to the First Section of the Central Grand Lodge, set down for discussion, at the next meeting of the latter, a proposal for decentralisation of the rite; and, to this effect, addressed a circular to all the Lodges of the obedience, which advocated the immediate creation of a Grand Lodge composed of the Deputies only, and entirely invested with the power of governing all Lodges of symbolic degrees.

Of course the Supreme Council, startled by the action, struck out of the order of the day, by a well-seasoned decree, so obnoxious a subject for discussion, which consequently terminated by some very un-Masonic and reprehensible proceedings. And eventually the Lodge Justice and its five officers, signatories of that circular, were by another Decree of the Supreme Council suspended from all Masonic rights and privileges.

Thus far it might have been thought that the authors of the agitation, having been suspended, and the Lodge from which it had emanated being closed, it would have been easy to wipe out the traces of that character of effervescence assumed at first, and to consider coolly and calmly what was best to be done to avoid similar outbursts of an intemperate cry for reform, by giving at once some satisfaction to reasonable demands. But whether the authorities in the Supreme Council did or not show tact in striking promptly at the agitators, or whether they overrated the offence against Masonic discipline, and failed to show, in the first place, a little forbearance is, perhaps, what no one outside their Standing Committee can positively assert. However, one thing is certain,—the infliction of punishment has not yet produced the effect that might have been looked for in prompt severity: as the sentence does not now appear to hold good against the condemned Masons and the shut up Lodge. Indeed, it seems, on the contrary, that they have derived from that sentence a more countenanced attitude against the Supreme Council, so far as can be judged from the number of protests issued, the publication of pamphlets with narratives more or less reliable, the printing of circulars more or less un-Masonic in their form and tenor, the insertion of articles in one of our contemporaries, to be annotated and reprinted here for circulation in the Lodges, and so on.

Yet, the worst feature of this lamentable conflict is not there, nor is it in the public charge of untruth brought against the Supreme Council by those suspended Masons who—in reply to an official statement declaring them unauthorised as Lodge delegates in their contention against—boldly published fresh confirmation of their powers and ratification of their recent acts, by the Lodges of which they were, and would consider themselves to be, still the lawful delegates. Nor is it again, in the mere act of affixing their names to pamphlets against the Supreme Council, the rank and title which they held in the G.L., just as if they had never been suspended by any regular authority. But surely it is the more apparent, we should say rebellious, countenance given them at the elections in the Grand Lodge Centrale, in July last, by the votes they polled in three successive ballots for the vacant offices, notwithstanding their open hostility against the Supreme Council, and the decree of the latter making known to all that they were suspended from all Masonic rights and privileges for the term of two years, and therefore were, to all intents and purposes, ineligible to any Masonic Office for that period.

Of course the votes so polled were declared to be null and void, for reason of evident ineligibility or informality.

Now, in whatever light one looks at the proceeding of the electors in the Central Grand Lodge, we cannot help declaring it something more than unseemly. One would have thought that, out of simple deference to the authority of the Supreme Council, the Brethren would have refrained from recording their votes for those whom they knew to be regularly suspended for an offence against Masonic discipline, or rather for their hostility against the governing body of the jurisdiction under which they all were, and to whose decrees they were bound to show, in true Masonic spirit, complete submission.

But is there not a warning to be found in so open an opposition, that sets, as it were, at complete defiance the responsible authorities of the rite? At any rate it looks very much like it. For we find almost at the same time of those strange elections sixteen Lodges combining together to issue to all the Lodges a circular, whereby they affirm that any deliberative assembly has a right to make its own order of the day; declare that the mandate of delegate cannot exist, unless it be allowed to be freely exercised; contend that they are fully authorised by the Lodges to vindicate their rights against the Supreme Council; and, protesting against its last decree, give notice "to the authors of the rite" (?) of their determination to bring forward for discussion in the First Section of the Central Grand Lodge,—"the only competent authority" upon the matter,—that very same question—"which is of the greatest importance for the development here of Scottish Masonry, and which, by Supreme Council's decree, had been struck out of the Grand Lodge Centrale's agenda.

As a reply to that hostile circular, the Supreme Council, on the 28th of July last, and through its Great Chancellor, issued a communication to all the Lodges of its jurisdiction, asking pointedly those Lodges whose delegates are signitories of the circular to inform the Supreme Council whether it had been by the express wish or special power of the Lodge that its Deputy had attached his name to a document giving, as it were, to the brethren "the signal of war against the fundamental principles of our association."

What answers have the Lodges made? what support do they thereby afford to the Supreme Council? is what we cannot positively say, as there has not been, since that time, any official publication made by the authorities (save an appeal to Concord), nor any meeting of the first section of the Central Grand Lodge called. But, if we take for truthful the various statements that have been made here and there, and judge from what has transpired, it would seem that the Appeal of the Supreme Council to the Lodges under its jurisdiction has not proved altogether beneficial to its authority; and that many of those Lodges that had remained silent have seized upon the occasion to make replies which are not entirely free from blame, couched in expressions more or less respectful, when they were not strong monitions and protests, expressing at the same time bitter feelings and hostile views. We have before us a copy of the letter sent in by the Venerable of the Lodge "Prévoyance," one of the most flourishing of the rite. In that Lodge sit brethren of distinguished ability and great Masonic zeal and moderation; yet that letter does not refrain from accentuating the principles and asserting strongly the views of the members of the Prévoyance, which are, by no means we should think, at all in harmony with those of the Supreme Council. And as regards those among the sixteen Lodges that have taken the lead in the movement, and which are aimed at in the official communication, it is said that they have all maintained the attitude assumed by their delegates, and have, even by many, been joined in their manifestations and protests against the decrees of the Supreme Council, and their cry for reform—by the immediate formation, with or without the sanction of the authorities, of a Grand Lodge, with sovereign power in the administration and jurisdiction of the three symbolic degrees.

If it is a sign of weakness to show alarm, it is surely a worse sign to disregard timely admonitions around us. Should all that is said above prove true—which we sincerely hope will not—we could not then, with truly Masonic sentiments, escape feeling uneasiness about the outcome of it all. Much as we stand for principles and rights, we must, however, deprecate and strongly too, any means of advocating or pushing them that may tend to produce warfare, discord, disunion, and to end afterwards (let us make use of the word) in SCHISM. For, of all people in the world, Masons should be the last to disagree and fight, and the first to pay respect to just rights and principles as enforced by their own laws.

It must not be overlooked that, to all rank and file in the brotherhood, there are Masonic obligations that must be fulfilled, contracts and ties that cannot be broken without penalty, promises of oath of allegiance to parent Lodge that must be adhered to so long as the Mason wants to be acknowledged everywhere as a brother, so long as he wishes to enjoy all those rights and privileges that are the common stock of the fraternity wherever extant. Unhappily, most of the strifes and troubles in our Order have come precisely from a disregard, either from high or low, of those just rights and principles; and not seldom, too, from a certain tendency to believe that Masonry might be capable of being assimilated to a kind of "state," wherein vanity, according to honours and degrees, could fancy and try with the "selected few," a mode of government upon the old pattern of "royal will and pleasure."

Looking seriously at these matters relating to the Supreme Council and its Lodges, all true Masons, we doubt not, would cordially deprecate any solution that should not conciliate the rights and interests of all concerned, so far as those interests and rights concur with the guiding spirit of the principles of our fraternity. It is useless to speculate upon the possibility of a secession of the subordinate Lodges from the parent power by persistent hostility. No such thing should be contemplated; indeed, as far as we are concerned, we decline to believe in that severance, unless some tangible proof or support be given. The Initiative Committee, composed of the Venerables of the five Lodges that will establish the Grand Lodge, shall meet with insuperable difficulties, even "financial." Besides seceders, if any there should be, would have to labour under the double disadvantage of being branded as illegitimate and rebellious, and deprived of any chance whatever of recognition by Masonic powers by the Grand Orient of France. It is also equally useless to consider, through an improbable rigidity of the Supreme Council, its remaining still unmoved and firm to the purpose of not giving way to the wishes of the Lodges, and to resist, by all means, the demanded forms.

All rights and interests must, of course, be taken into consideration, all privileges and authority must not be ignored. It is through their adjustment alone that we must arrive at a satisfactory settlement of the present lamentable dissension. But then arises this question :—

"Is it possible for the Supreme Council to grant a Charter of Grand Lodge to its subordinate Lodges, or rather permit them the formation of a Grand Lodge, with exclusive and sovereign power over the administration and jurisdiction over the Symbolic Degree, and, if so, could it advisedly do so, or allow such a thing to be done.

We frankly say that, in our humble opinion, we do not think it at all possible for the Supreme Council to charter a Grand Lodge, with the rights and privileges demanded, without committing itself to a suicidal course. And, among various reasons we have for so believing, we will simply state we do not think its Capitular and Cryptic elements, as now extant, at all important enough to allow it to suffer such a loss of members of the rite, and yet maintain itself as Supreme Council alone; unless a great adjunct from without be made at the same time to its present ranks of "Hautes Grades." Besides, a Supreme Council is a Supreme Council, and should remain so, but with all the usual paraphernalia.

If the Supreme Council of England and Wales, though comparatively of recent date—(its definitive formation in London dating from 1845)—now flourishes and works successfully, by the side of the Grand Lodge, its splendour and success are, no doubt, mainly attributable to the English enthusiasm for all Capitular and Chivalric Degrees, and, consequently, their natural leaning towards Orders of distinction. But, in France there no longer exists any such feeling or disposition; and a revival of it, at any time, must at once be considered an impossibility. Moreover, the Supreme Council of England owes a great deal of its present influence to the circumstance of its having exalted in the Offices of the "Hauts Grades" many of the High Dignitaries of Grand Lodge, and thus made with the latter the close connection—now so happily felt—that most of the great offices are filled by officers of Grand Lodge. And it is, then, under such auspicious circumstances that the Supreme Council can best afford to make to its adepts the well-known declaration which we find in our R. Croix Constitutions running as follows:—

"This Council does not interfere with or militate against the authority of the Grand Lodge governing the Three Symbolic Degrees, but distinctly recognises such authority, admitting none to the higher Degrees unless previously raised as Master Mason in some regularly constituted Lodge."

Now, could or would the Supreme Council of France, after the organisation and chartering of a Grand Lodge composed of all the Lodges at present under its rule, make on behalf of the newly created Grand Lodge a similar declaration. The answer to that question goes of itself, without saying—as the French phrase would have it. However, it must be observed that there cannot be any Grand Lodge proper without such exclusive rights and sovereign power as claimed. And it might be objected that the Supreme Council could, in no way, forfeit its rights and privileges, nor alternate the power and prerogative of its M.P. Sov. G. Com. who rejoices also in the title of Grand Master, ad vitam, is, de jure, the head and chief of any Grand Lodge that may be chartered by him, or allowed to be formed with the subordinate Lodges now under his rule.

Under these circumstances there may be some excuse for us to look for a practical solution of the difficulties of the situation. And we think, we may venture here to suggest, without in the least presuming to give counsel, such opinion as history itself seems to point to us, and the conclusion at which the very facts of the case irresistibly bring us. The institution of the Supreme Council, with all its apparent anomalies, has already lived upwards of seventy years, and now, if it does not languish, it is, at least, charged with falling short of fulfilling the just expectations of the brethren under its rule. Exercising co-ordinate jurisdiction with the Grand Orient of France, it seems, despite the zeal and emulation shown at different times, that its progress and development, when compared especially to that of the latter, have been really impeded, its onward march checked. In fact, it has remained a much smaller body, though it may boast of having had, and still possesses at its head brethren of great ability, men of high social position. Well, looking for the cause of that striking difference in the respective progress of these two co-existent French powers, we are inclined to attribute it solely to the question of organisation. The evidence of the present movement, and that of similar agitations for reforms and constitutional changes will fully justify them our thinking so. However, be the cause what it may, we are concerned only about its effect; the glaring and undeniable facts.

Now, why should not an alliance, or amalgamation, embodying the two powers, like that made in 1813, between the two English Grand Lodges, and since by some American Grand Lodges, be made, at once, under auspices as favourable as at the present time, between these two French jurisdictions? Why the Supreme Council, without losing anything of its authority, influence, or credit, would, on the contrary, turn the tables, and put an end to the strifes and intestinal troubles, and, increasing its strength and prestige, by the adjunction to its own of all Chapters and Councils under the Grand Orient's rule, become presently, as it should long be, the acknowleged chief of the "Hauts Grades" of Masonry for France and all its Dependencies. Why, then, settling with true fraternal amity all difficulties, and wiping out of memory all past questions of dissension, should not the Grand Orient, by the free will and accord of the Lodges of the Supreme Council, and with its friendly concurrence, become a Central Power, the Head, as naturally it would be, of all the Lodges, working the Three Symbolic Degrees in France and its Dependencies.

Thus the Supreme Council would indeed have done a good work, and would realise the greatest achievement that might be left for its own furtherance as a French Masonic Institution in the present day, by affording to its brethren, without disparagement to itself, that Grand Lodge and those rights and privileges which they insist upon so sternly, and by procuring them, at the same time, the much coveted advantage of living henceforth under a Masonic constitution adapted to their wants and aspirations, and bearing, in the spirit and conception of its mode of government, the national democratic stamp. Thus fully resolved to "dwell in unity," French Masonry would grow wiser and more powerful, both jurisdictions alike; the term would be universal, and its works and deeds uniform under one banner and one governing authority.

It is surely a matter of special and momentous interest to French Masons as a body, and perhaps also, in some measure, to Freemasonry at large. But it is no novelty; the wish and desire of such a unification has long since been expressed, and great efforts towards this commendable end have, at different epochs, been made. Since 1801 it has been the almost constant aim of the Grand Orient to gather into its midst all the French scattered members of the fraternity, and to give to French Masonry "unity in all." Most French Masons are favourable to that idea, the realisation of which has long been considered only a question of time. We believe that the time has at last come, and the opportunity is now very propitious. But there has been, and we are sorry to say there are still, great influences at work to prevent so pleasing a consummation. The love of power and office which is inherent to all human societies, and which often clothes itself in popular form, and does great homage, and pays all honours to the principles of liberty, equality, and fraternity, if not for it, takes occasion to betray them, at least if by so doing it can serve its own selfish design and interest; those petty jealousies about influence and success; about individualities and names, all these miserable motives have done, for many years, a great deal to engender bitter feelings and create a spirit of dissension between the Supreme Council and the Grand Orient, thus preventing constant harmony and stifling concord and progress. Therefore, what a matter for mutual congratulation it would be if the unpleasant struggle between the Supreme Council and its subordinate Lodges was to resolve itself, and happily end in the delightful consequence of the "reunion" under the same banner of all French "Sons of the Widow!" And for them with double propriety to apply, but feelingly to the occurrence, that verse already borrowed by Masonry:—

Ecce quam bonum, ecce quam jucundunt.

With reference to that great idea of amalgamation or union of the two rites, in order to gather all French Masons under the same government, and thus produce for them a bond of Adamantine qualities with national currency, we may appropriately, we think, copy here an extract from a report made by the Grand Orient in 1865 to its Grand Master, which document we find printed in a pamphlet published by the Grand Secretary. That report, which is also a respectful protest from the Grand Orient, refers to a decree suppressing the Supreme Council as a Masonic body, which decree was then issued by Marshal Magnan in his capacity as Grand Master of French Masonry, so appointed to the office by the Emperor's dictum, as affirmed above. In this historical and authentic writing it is said:—

"The existence of the Supreme Council is not a question of Masonic tenets, but simply one of organisation; not an affair of dogmas, but solely one of individualities. So much so, that no principle different from ours would prevent the Lodges of the Supreme Council coming and taking their place under our obedience in the Masonic family of the Grand Orient, should the course of time and events deprive them of their present central power. And we have no hesitation in saying that they would then find therein (as evidenced by the subjoined historical notice) the real elements that constitute the true Masonic Family:—'An organisation more liberal, under a discipline more fraternal, an application more complete of the principles of brotherly love and equality, together with the exercise of more real and direct rights, left to individual initiative, and all that under the sole obligation of never failing to the binding duties of solidarity, and, therefore, never to compromise by any un-Masonic action the common responsibility. When the opportunity will present itself, it shall be then time (and a meritorious work to do) to put all these incontestable truths under the eyes of all French Masons in order to get them back, but entirely out of their free will and accord, to the parent family, from which they had no cause to be separated, no fundamental reason to live isolated. And, for that moment, we can already point to Peace and Concord coming back to all our temples doubly adorned by Strength and Beauty; our works resumed with Force and Vigour; our minds and hearts filled with Masonic zeal, and our columns guided by true Light. May they soon see also our inheritance reconstituted and secured by the efforts of a wise and firm will; our symbols embellishing temples, the undisturbed possession of which being secured to us.

"Then, the moment will have come, M. Ill. G.M., to make a solemn appeal to our brethren of the Supreme Council, and to cordially open our ranks to them, wherein are beforehand marked out their places. And what a memorable date for French Masonic History; what a red-letter day for its annals, the day in which, setting a great and noble example, by giving up all those pompous titles created after the hour by the vanity of men, added to the simony of powers, the Grand Orient shall then call back the Great Masonic Family to the fraternal simplicity of our former days, and thus finally link the whole fraternity in one and the same bond of union."

In conclusion, we can only repeat, while watching passing events with a careful eye, that in our opinion the moment to carry out the desirable FUSION has definitely come, and very cordially do we hope that it will soon prove most available.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE.

THE Annual Convent of the Grand Order or General Assembly of the delegates of all the Lodges under the Masonic jurisdiction was opened on Monday, the 8th instant, at nine o'clock in the morning, about two hundred Lodges being represented. Grand Lodge was opened in the usual manner, the delegates sworn in, and the assembly divided into nine Bureaux or Committees, for the expedition of business. At the afternoon meeting the assembly proceeded to the election of its President, who, according to article 34 of the Constitution, must be taken from among its members. Bro. Ledlé was elected, by 132 votes, President of the Assembly, owing to the fact of the Excellent and most esteemed Bro. De Saint Jean requesting the brethren to kindly release him from the arduous work of office this session, on account of his present bad health. The compliment it is customary to pay annually to the President of the Council of the Order (or G.M.) was dispensed with, all of them, out of deference for Bro. De Saint Jean having declined to stand as candidate, so that the brother elected as President is simply the Venerable of the Lodge l'Avurn of Paris.

The meeting of Tuesday was exclusively devoted to the reading of reports from several Committees, on various proposals of the Lodges, and to the discussion thereof. This also comprised what was transacted on Wednesday.

To-day (Thursday) among other business on the agenda, we have the election of eleven members of the Council of the Order.

It is known that the Council is composed of thirty-three members, elected by the Assembly of the Grand Order, and chosen from among its own members. They are elected by the majority of votes, virtually for three years, but are renewable by one-third every year; so to-day the Assembly accordingly proceeds to the election of eleven members to fill the vacancy in the office of those eleven displaced by lot.

To-morrow (Friday) the various accounts for this year, and the budget for the next, will be presented; and the reports on, and discussion of which, will doubtless occupy the whole meeting.

Saturday's meetings will be held at ten in the morning and four in the afternoon, and then the Session will be closed, with the usual banquet.

I beg the kind favour of space for particulars in your next issue.

PARIS, 11*th September*.

Royal Leopold Lodge, No. 1445.—The career of our Lodges, should an universal record of their history ever be prepared, will be found a very chequered one. But few will be found who have not, at some time or other, had to meet and overcome the pressure of adversity in some shape or form. In one case it has been brought about by misfortune, in another by reckless extravagance, while not the least responsible of the elements that work disaster is the want of power displayed by so many who have taken on themselves the reins of government. This Lodge, the installation meeting of which we attended on Thursday the 4th inst., has not been without its "bad time," but if we may augur from this successful meeting, the doings of which we are now about to record, we may truly say a happy future lies before it. The Lodge was opened at the Mitford Tavern, Sandringham-road, Dalston, at 4 o'clock by Bro. Joseph Clark W.M., who was assisted by his Officers, a goodly number of the members of the Lodge and visitors, among whom may be mentioned:—Bros. Peter de Lande Long P.G.D., H. G. Buss Assistant Grand Secretary, W. T. Howe P.G.P., J. Miller 22, John Green P.M. 27, W. W. Morgan Secretary 211, B. Cundick P.M. 1421, E. Somers P.M. 1602, Archer 1426, and E. C. Harbery 1670. After the minutes of last meeting had received confirmation, it was announced that an engagement would prevent the candidate for passing, Bro. Henry Seymour Clarke, from attending the Lodge at the time fixed for that ceremony. The report of the Audit Committee was then received and adopted. Bro. Joseph Clark now vacated the chair in favour of Bro. P.M. Myers, who had kindly undertaken to act as Installing Master. The W.M. elect, Bro. Samuel Love Green, was presented and duly obligated. Lodge was advanced, a Board of Installed Masters formed, and the ceremony proceeded with. On the readmission of those below the rank of I.M. the new W.M. was saluted, and he proceeded to invest his officers :—Thos. Goddard S.W., W. D. Partridge J.W., W. H. Myers P.M. Treasurer, G. E. Walters P.M. Secretary, S. Lewis S.D., W. Macdonald J.D., James Robson I.G., G. C. Young Org., Vaillaume D.C., H. J. Rayner W.S., J. J. Marsh Tyler. Bro. Myers then delivered the addresses to the Master, Warden, and brethren, and resumed his seat amidst the congratulations of all assembled. Routine work was then proceeded with, the proposed resignation of two members was considered, and the name of a gentleman as a candidate for initiation at the next meeting of the Lodge was handed in, after which the W.M. received the hearty good wishes of the visitors, and the Lodge was closed. To our excellent Brother William Grist had been entrusted the duty of providing the creature comforts, and, under so able a caterer, the brethren did justice to a capital banquet. On the removal of the cloth, the W.M. gave the customary Loyal and Masonic toasts. With the Grand Officers he associated the names of the three who were present, who, in due course, replied. Bro. De Lande Long was gratified at the way in which mention had been made of the Pro and Deputy Grand Masters. He regretted he had not been present at an earlier stage of the proceedings, but he was much impressed with the way in which Bro. P.M. Myers, the Installing Master, had explained the working tools of the three degrees. He congratulated the Lodge on having so competent a Past Master, and thanked the brethren for the hearty way in which they had received him and his fellow Grand Officers. Bro. Buss followed ; he had attended most of the installation meetings of the Lodge, and was intensely gratified to see the spirit of harmony now prevailing. He congratulated Bro. S. L. Green on attaining his present position, and trusted he would have a prosperous and happy year. Bro. Howe said he had been first W.M. of the Lodge, and Bro. S. L. Green was its first initiate. It was a great pleasure for him to be present at his installation meeting, which had been conducted in so impressive a manner by Bro. Myers, who must be complimented for the ability he displayed. The next toast was the health of the W.M., which duty was gracefully performed by the I.P.M. Bro. Clark, and suitably acknowledged by Bro. Green. The W.M. then proposed the health of the Visitors, and to this responses were made by several of those present. The Past Masters were next honoured, and Bro. Clark was presented, in the name of the Lodge, with a handsome P.M.'s jewel, in recognition of the ability he had displayed in conducting the proceedings during his year of office. Bro. Clark hardly knew how to express his gratitude for this mark of their regard. He had taken office with a certain amount of diffidence ; but, with the assistance of the Past Masters, he had had a very pleasant time. He felt himself an unworthy recipient of their bounty, but assured them he appreciated the many kindnesses he had received at the hands of the members of the Lodge. Bro. Myers, in replying, briefly referred to the past history of the Lodge, and drew a favourable comparison as to its future. He felt the Officers who had that day been appointed would strive most energetically to advance the interests of the brethren, and was much gratified at the honour conferred by the attendance of so many Grand Officers and Visitors. After a few words from Bro. P.M. Wilkinson, Bro. Harbery, who throughout the evening had been most energetic in his exertions for the entertainment of the guests, gave a most forcible reading of "A Tale of the Sea," which was greatly applauded. The W.M. then proposed the health of the Treasurer and Secretary, and paid both these worthy Officers high compliments for the zeal and ability they displayed. Bro. Myers acknowledged the compliment, and then Bro. Walters remarked that this was the fifth time he had been invested with the collar of Secretary ; however, he would take this opportunity of intimating to the brethren that he aspired to the Master's chair of the Lodge, and he trusted that while serving them in his present capacity, they would not overlook his claims. Several other toasts followed ; the olive branch for peace-making was not disregarded during the evening's proceedings, and we hope and trust the happy feeling that was re-established by those who strove to act as peace-makers will bear goodly fruit, and that the Royal Leopold Lodge has now inaugurated a career of happiness and prosperity which may last for many, many years—indeed, for all time.

Metropolitan Chapter, No. 1507.—An emergency meeting of this Chapter will be held by direction of the M.E.Z. Comp. Willing, at the Metropolitan Club, 269 Pentonville-road, Kings Cross, on Thursday, the 18th inst., to take into consideration the necessity of removing the Chapter, as the proprietor has di-posed of the premises. This will no doubt affect the Kings-cross Lodge and the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, which are held at the same place.

West Middlesex Lodge of Instruction, No. 1612.—At the "Feathers" Hotel, Ealing, on Thursday, 4th Sept. Bros. E. C. Porter W.M., Rickwood S.W., Wright J.W., Coop S.D., Hamilton J.D., Yewens I.G., Tucker Treasurer and Preceptor, Burr Secretary; Bros. Fernee, Seward, Stephens, Wells, Tink Brown, H. Kasner, &c. Lodge was opened, and the minutes of meetings on the 14th and 28th August were read, confirmed, and signed. The ceremony of the third degree was rehearsed, Bro. Wells candidate. The Lodge resumed to first degree. Bro. Burr explained the circumstances under which he felt compelled to resign the position of Secretary. It was then proposed that the resignation of Bro. Burr be accepted, with regret, and on the motion of Bro. Burr, seconded by Bro. Coop, Bro. J. Wells was unanimously elected Honorary Secretary of the Lodge of Instruction. A cordial vote of thanks was accorded to Bro. Burr for the many services he had rendered. Bros. Seward, H. Kasner and E. C. Porter were elected to audit the accounts for the past year. On the motion of Bro. Tucker, seconded by Bro. Seward, a sum of 40s was voted to Bro. Mansfield, Belfast Lodge, 88 I.C., founder of Lodge No. 1037 Timaru, affiliated to English Constitution with Lodge No. 1066, whose case was brought forward on the 14th of August by Bro. Yewens. Bro. Rickwood was elected W.M. for the next meeting.

Royal Wye Lodge, No. 1807.—At a meeting held at the Masonic Rooms, Builth, Breconshire, on Thursday, the 4th inst. Present—Bros. H. C. I. Rich W.M., A. Gwynne Vaughan S.W., J. W. Coulthard J.W., B. Davies Treas., J. A. Whittle Sec., H. Carr S.D., Wm. Price I.G. Visitors—Bros. F. H. Price, H. C. Rich jun., Sweeting ; and a large number of members. The Lodge having been opened in due form, the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Two candidates were proposed for initiation, and two brethren as joining members. Three brethren having been passed to the second, and four raised to the sublime degree, the Lodge was lowered and closed in ancient form, and the brethren adjourned from labour to refreshment. This Lodge, which was only consecrated in April last, promises to be one of the most flourishing in the province of the Eastern Division of South Wales—fifteen "good men and true" having already been initiated into the mysteries and privileges of Freemasonry.

PRACTICAL MASONRY.

IN glancing over the pages of our Masonic exchanges, and in wading through the lengthy and learned addresses annually delivered to their flocks by the out-going Grand Masters at Annual Communications throughout the States, we are struck forcibly by the apparent unanimity with which practical subjects are avoided, and attention almost wholly turned toward Utopian flights into the impossible and impracticable. Instead of teaching men and Masons how they should apply their knowledge of Freemasonry to the everyday experiences of their existence, and utilizing their superior wisdom by imparting practical knowledge to those subordinate to them, our "wise men" fall into a beaten track, and with one accord indulge in orations replete with beautiful sentiment, and with an eloquence which would put to shame the veriest Grecian orator, but of no possible utility to those seeking after a method by which to apply Masonry to their lives. In our mind Masonry is practical, or it is nothing; it is a blessing to man because of its adaptability to the wants of his nature, or it is a useless ceremony which takes both his time and attention, giving no adequate returns for the demands which it makes on both. To our thinking, Masonry was designed as a blessing to its professors, and as a means of lightening the load which we have to bear in this life. How shall we avail ourselves of this blessing is a subject which should command the attention of those chosen for great office on account of their superior wisdom. How much better it would be for our orators to confine themselves to practical subjects, avoiding the high-flown style so generally adopted, and taking especial pains to impress upon their auditors the importance of leading Masonic lives.

The want of this age is a proper interpretation of the duties which are incumbent upon those taking the obligations of the Craft; a proper appreciation of the weight and force of those obligations, and a clear perception of the end and aim of the Institution. These subjects are to be understood only by study and close application upon the part of the newly-made Brother, and where books or documents fail to clearly present the subject, it becomes the manifest duty of lecturer and Grand Officer to interpret for the seeker after knowledge. The elevation of a Brother to a high office imposes upon him solemn and important duties ; he assumes something more than honour—responsibility and accountability for the faithful discharge of its obligations, one of which is that of teacher, both by example and precept, to those who wait, in a measure, upon his ministry. We suggest therefore, "to make Masonry more practical" is a question which demands the attention of our Masonic scholars, orators and Grand Officers. We do not excuse the journalist from the proper appreciations of this duty ; they are also teachers, and should be careful, at all times, to faithfully fulfil the obligations of their peculiar vocation.

We desire that the tenets and precepts of the Institution may be applied to our daily work, that by the benign influences of Masonry the journey through life may be rendered a pleasant one, and that we, dying, leave behind us the unspeakable gift of an irreproachable and blameless record.—Masonic Newspaper.

The Keystone is not surprised that the "hard times" should lead brethren, in certain jurisdictions, to consider the per diem and travelling expenses paid to representatives to Grand Lodge as an extravagance that ought to be abolished. The last Masonic Newspaper, with reference to the expense of Grand Lodge Annual Communications in New York, argues in favour of biennial instead of annual sessions, and says :—

"There is no corporation or association, civil or elemosynary (outside of Masonry) whose records will show such gross extravagance, and such wasteful expenditure, with such poor results. Let us consider this well, and while we are solving the problem of how to do it, it may be that we shall see that the abolition of the Annual Communications of the Grand Lodge, and the substitution of fewer sessions, is one step in that direction."

Brethren who desire to assist in establishing this Fund will oblige by forwarding their names to be added to the above List.

THE course of training followed by the Masonic Educational Charities, in common with many similar institutions in various parts of the country, is looked upon as more or less successful in proportion to the results that can be shown as emanating from the pupils themselves. It is not only necessary that a girl or a boy should receive a good education, but it is likewise desirable that they should prove that such education has been of service to them in after life. Indeed, that it has been the means of their securing a position which without such education they could not have attained. With a view to assist in this object the committees of very many of the English Charities make it a part of their duty to interest themselves in the future of the pupils who have been educated under their care. This they do by obtaining for those whom they deem deserving situations in offices presided over or belonging to one of their number, who they are assured will act as parent or guardian to their charge, and by apprenticing or otherwise starting in life those who, being orphans or from other causes, may need more aid than is forthcoming from relatives generally. The practicability and success of such a scheme can be vouched for in numerous instances where it has been in work for years past; and were it necessary the records of some of our largest Charities would give ample evidence of the satisfaction derived from keeping an account of each scholar's proceedings in after life. It has frequently been found that a little advice, counsel or help has proved to be the starting point of success.

With regard to the Masonic Institutions, it has often been regretted that some further surveillance has not been exercised over those who have been so fortunate as to receive therein education and early training; and it is felt that without something be done to watch the future of those who leave the Schools, and, if need be, lend them a helping hand, the work of Masonic Charity is incomplete. This want may perhaps best be expressed in the words of the Right Hon. Bro. the Earl of Rosslyn, K.T., Past Grand Master of Scotland, who, as President at the Eighty-first Anniversary Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, brought the question particularly before the Craft. The Right Worshipful Brother, in proposing prosperity to the Institution, after detailing the advantages and benefits which were derived from the School, said:—

I will tell you a little fault, and I am sure I need only mention it to find it immediately corrected; and the fault that I am going to find is this—that it is not impossible that at the end of their schooling career some of these boys may leave the School homeless and in need. It may be that the good seed sown may bear fruit during their scholastic career, but it may also be that the fruit will perish for want of cultivation at a later period. It may be that having derived all the advantage that they could from their study, and from their religious training in your Institution, they may leave it to fall into evil courses and evil ways, or even to suffer penury and poverty. I would appeal to you once more, as that is the only blot I can find in your excellent Institution to try and amend it, that the pupils may derive the full benefit of your bounty and your charity.

It is now proposed to raise a fund which shall act as an adjunct to the two Masonic Schools, and be the means of supplying the want set forth above; and for this purpose your support and aid are earnestly solicited

It is proposed that an early date shall be fixed for a meeting of those who may express approval of the scheme, and thereat the various rules for the government and conduct of affairs shall be discussed, Committees appointed, and general arrangements made.

It is hoped that the fund when once established will grow from year to year, and that the dividends of the subscriptions—which will be invested in approved securities—may in themselves prove sufficient for the various objects aimed at.

Further particulars of the scheme will be announced as they are arranged; but in the meantime we ask you fraternally to lend your aid to the furtherance of the desired object, by making it known to your friends, offering suggestions, or in any other way you may deem desirable.

The main objects of the fund will be—

To provide situations for the pupils on their leaving the Masonic Schools.

To watch their progress and offer aid and advice where needful.

To advance small amounts to aid in the purchase of tools, outfits, and, later in life, goodwills of businesses, &c.

To assist pupils who may have gained scholarships at the Universities, or boys who may desire to enter the Army or Navy, and aid them in obtaining commissions.

And generally to watch over the future of the pupils, and help them in securing success in life.

Communications may be addressed to either of the Secretaries of the Fund, as under:—

DIGNITY OF PROCEDURE.

THE account of the creation of the universe, as given in the second section of the second lecture is introduced as a part of the Masonic system to serve "as an example to man that things of moment ought to be done with due deliberation," and to teach us that in all our undertakings we should observe due order and regularity. The beautiful language of this section renders it one of the most impressive parts of our ritual, and its delivery cannot fail but to remind the listener of the necessity of observing the great truths it is intended to teach. Having this lesson in view, the founders of modern Freemasonry acted wisely in stipulating that in all matters which concerned the Craft, as a body, timely notice should be given of any intended proposition; this previous notice of contemplated proceedings has, by the laws of the Craft, to be given to each member of a Lodge at such a time prior to the meeting as shall enable him to deliberate on the course proposed, and, if need be, collect materials either in support of, or in opposition to the proposition. Were it not so ordered, we should find men initiated into Freemasonry with whom it would be impossible for us to associate, Lodge funds would be spent in a way objectionable to the majority, and the whole standard of Freemasonry would be lowered; but so long as each individual member of a Lodge is allowed to express his views on every question brought forward, these evils will, in a measure, be obviated, if not wholly prevented. In recognising this principle, however, it must not be forgotten that free discussion is the foundation on which the whole superstructure rests, and unless a brother is allowed to express his views in a reasonable way, the whole system is upset, and the question merely resolves into a trial of strength between two parties.

We are aware matters frequently arise in Lodges, which, from first appearances, may seem to require little or no consideration, but no question should be deemed so insignificant as to be beneath notice. It is the small items which require to be carefully adjusted, and although they may usually be left to the Master, with perhaps the assistance of the Past Masters, to arrange, it is absolutely necessary for the good of a Lodge that they should be carefully considered. For this reason it is better for a Master to bring every item of business before the Lodge by giving it due publicity on the summons, and however paltry some of the questions may appear, such a course will prove of great benefit in years to come. By this means the brethren will learn to take an interest in the working of their Lodge, and by each taking a part in its management, will materially add to its general prosperity; while in the opposite case a feeling of indifference frequently arises which results in the work being settled by the Master or Past Masters in a somewhat dictatorial manner. It is contrary to the teaching of Freemasonry for a section of a Lodge to have the power of deciding questions which affect the whole of the members other than at the regular meetings, when it is expected the majority will decide what is best to be done. Discontent is certain to be engendered when questions are brought forward that are virtually settled outside the Lodge. Of course even when these objectionable circumstances do occur, it should be possible for a brother to express his opinion, but it may happen he is unable to get the ear of the Lodge, or the party who has already laid out the course may be strong enough to prevent his speaking, on the plea either of want of time, or that further discussion is unnecessary, or some other of the many ruses it is in the power of an organised opposition to adopt. Again, it may be urged that if the few brethren who had, so to speak, settled the question before the time of meeting are strong enough, or can enlist support sufficient to carry their point when it is put to the vote, they are representative of the general body, but it must be known that unless the members take personal interest in the work of the Lodge, it is very easy to carry any question, especially if the Master and a few of the Past Masters can be got to lend their support. We are of opinion that far too many vote with the majority, without taking the trouble to form an opinion of their own. This course naturally saves time, a very important matter in some Lodges, where if a brother speaks for more than a minute or so he is reminded on all sides that banquet is ordered for six or for seven o'clock, as the case may be. It is sometimes amusing to notice the interest taken in the flight of time on these occasions were it not for the feeling that everything is made subservient to worship of knife and fork. and that no regard is paid to the maintenance of dignity and deliberation in our proceedings. We are aware that to attempt any reform in this quarter would be to undertake a Herculean task, still we do not despair of making an impression on some of the offending brethren, if not in a quiet and friendly way by pointing out to them how ungentlemanly they make themselves appear. It is true that the pangs of hunger will, in many cases, serve as a sufficient excuse for a man replying somewhat hastily, but is it really the case that the members of a Lodge are so near the verge of starvation that they cannot allow an extra half hour for the proper discussion of any subject that may be brought under their notice? We hope not, but the fact remains that cases have lately been mentioned to us which will admit of no other solution. We think it unnecessary to give our opinion on this subject, we would rather leave it to the judgment of our readers. One course we would suggest to prevent its recurrence is the one we have referred to,—that every item of business be placed on the summons. The brethren would then come prepared for what was to transpire, and if they felt they would be unable to restrain their impatience, might so arrange their attendance as to avoid the discussion, reaching the Lodge just in time to sign their names and proceed to the banquet room. The brother who brought the question forward would likewise benefit by such a course, and it would surely be no trouble to him to inform the Master of what he intended to do, at least long enough before the meeting to allow of its appearing on the summons; if, however, any cause of emergency should arise which would not allow of previous notice, it should be left to the Master to decide whether it should be considered at that or the following meeting.

In matters of this description Grand Lodge could, and should, set an example, but we fear that undue haste may be said to characterise the proceedings at its Quarterly Convocations, while the same lack of dignity is apparent in many of its actions. The ruling body of English Freemasonry, in order to maintain that amount of respect which is due to it, should be so conducted as to earn the esteem and regard of every brother, and this can only be accomplished by assuming a certain amount of command, and by demanding that its edicts are obeyed; and until this is done with a greater amount of regularity than at present is the case we fear that private Lodges will not have so perfect a pattern to work on as Grand Lodge ought to present.

MASONIC TRADE-MARKS.

From the Masonic Newspaper.

THE not infrequent use of Masonic emblems in outward display has rarely met with the approval of right-thinking members of the fraternity, and when an exhibition of this nature presents itself, we are at once led to suspect the good faith, if we might not add the good sense, of the exhibitor.

To such an extent has this weakness progressed, that but recently two applications have been made to the U.S. Patent Office to adopt the symbol of the Square and Compass as a trade-mark to distinguish a certain brand of flour. As this matter must necessarily interest the fraternity, it is deemed not inappropriate to present the exact text of the opinion pronounced by the able Commissioner of Patents in rejecting the application.

In the first the following opinion was delivered:—

"It is proposed to adopt the 'Masonic emblem of the Square and Compass,' and thereby to transform into a legal trade-mark certain words which have hitherto been refused recognition as such mark. Can such an emblem be exclusively appropriated? Can it be applied to the purpose of traffic? Is it calculated to answer the purpose of a mark to be affixed to merchandise, so as to denote origin or ownership? These questions can best be answered after an inquiry into the meaning of the emblem. It is the symbol of a fraternity that is known throughout the world—pervading all classes and conditions of society,—and which claims for itself a continuous existence from pre-historic times. As an ideogram, it virtually proclaims its possessor to be a member of a certain order of men, whether such be true or false. It is an ideographic appeal to fraternal feelings. It has been anathematized by the followers of one religious faith, at least, and has for centuries been regarded as the distinctive badge of a peculiar body. If now placed upon the head of a flower-barrel, as proposed by the applicant, what would the purchaser understand thereby? Would he be apt to associate it with the industrial product of a certain person? No. He would naturally think that the person who had applied it to such a purpose meant it to be taken in its legitimate and ordinary sense."

In the second the following decision on appeal was made:—

"Applicant is a manufacturer and vendor of flour in the city of St. Louis, Mo. He has two establishments upon different streets, and he seeks to register as trade marks to be used upon the barrels containing his flour, the words 'Cherry St. Mills" in one case, and 'Market St. Mills" in the other, combined respectively with a well-known Masonic emblem, the Square and Compass. These combinations of words and symbols, it is strenuously maintained, embrace all the requisites, and come within none of the negative exceptions or limitations of the law defining a legal trade-mark. Applying the comprehensive test laid down by the Commissioner in ex parte Dawes and Fanning, Official Gazette, vol. 1, p 27, it is said that neither of the combinations claimed is the name of a person, firm or occupation, or is calculated to deceive the public as to the true origin or character of the article to which it is applied, or is generic or descriptive of quality; and, finally, it is asserted that each when applied to the commodities for which it is adopted as a trade mark, will distinguish them from others of the same class. The essence of these alleged trade-marks is the Masonic symbol, the Square and Compass. It has already been determined that the words alone do not possess the characteristics of a legal trade-mark, and, in order to make it appear that the addition of the Square and Compass do confer these characteristics, it is also insisted that this Masonic symbol is not used with its ordinary signification. If this emblem were something other than precisely what it is, either less known, less significant, or fully and universally understood, all this might readily be admitted. But considering its peculiar character and relation to the public, an anomalous question is presented. There can be no doubt that this device, so commonly used and employed by Masons, has an established mystic significance universally recognized as existing; whether comprehended by all or not, is not material to this issue. Considering the antiquity, the traditional origin, the profound secresy, the magnitude and extent, the flourishing condition, and the permanent character of the Masonic organisation, I seriously question whether its emblems are not to be regarded as its property, at least in such a sense, that no person can monopolize them as trade-mark devices. It is not proposed, however, to do more than raise the query, without entering upon the discussion here. The ground for this decision lies in another direction, and to my mind is obscured by no cloud of doubt. In view of the universality of Masonry—the mystic tie that binds all nationalities in one common fraternity,—and the unchangeable characteristics of emblems appealing with the same force to the brotherhood in all parts of the earth, it is impossible to divest these symbols, or at least this particular symbol, perhaps the best known of all, of its ordinary signification whenever displayed, either as an arbitrary character or otherwise. It will be universally understood or misunderstood as having a Masonic significance, and therefore as a trade-mark must constantly work deception. Nothing could be more mischievous than to create as a monopoly, and uphold by the power of law, anything so calculated, as applied to purposes of trade, to be misinterpreted, to mislead all classes, and to constantly foster suggestions of mystery in affairs of business. There was a time when the cross and crescent, and the red and white roses of the houses of York and Lancaster, possessed as symbols such a significance, and occupied such a place in the public mind, in portions of the old world, as would affect common affairs, and could not properly be disregarded under whatever circumstances they should appear. If they were now held in the same estimation in this country, who imagines that they could be divested of the general significance so that they could successfully be adopted to constitute trade-marks, and be displayed before the public in that capacity? The case of their use in the manner proposed. I am clearly of that the proposed combinations cannot properly su a trade-mark. Among Masons, with whom this t significance, its use in that capacity would undoub as a base prostitution of it to mercenary purposes, its mystic force would often dissipate its virtues as perhaps in some instances place the article it appe ban. Thus, if these trade-marks could be sanctio tend to defeat the fundamental object of the trade is an offshoot of the ancient "law-merchant," and li to advance trade and manufactures."

We cannot too highly commend the perusal opinions, and trust that the lessons which they tea with those members of the fraternity who think i make public exposition of Masonic jewelry to the that thrift may follow.

MASONIC REFRESHME

West Middlesex Lodge of Instruction.

PRESENTATION DINNER TO BRO. THOMAS AYLING.

ON Friday evening last a very gratifying meeting of the staff and other sergeants of Royal Marines took place in the Mess Room, South Barracks, Walmer, for the purpose of expressing in a substantial and public manner their esteem for their late comrade Bro. Thomas Ayling, on his retirement from the Corps after a lengthened service of twenty-five years. Bro. Ayling has held the responsible post of superintendent of the Commissariat establishment of the Walmer Depot for the last seven years, and has now retired from the Service on his gaining the appointment of master of the Eastry Union. It was thought that the high regard in which he was held could not be better testified than by the presentation of some souvenir from the whole body of sergeants. The idea was not long in assuming a practical form, and this was visible in the shape of a pair of handsome ornaments under glass globules — the one a timepiece and the other an aneroid, each on gilt pedestals, and surmounted with a skilful piece of handiwork in the shape of a golden acorn, with hanging leaves. The presentation took place publicly at 7.30, after which adjournment was made to the dinner table. Among the guests of the evening were Sergeant-Major Rendell, Quarter-Master-Sergeant Park, Schoolmasters Botting, Richardson, Hore, Sergeants Revell, Watkins, Jackson, White, Rust, Laggett, Warren, Barton, Chandler, Burgess, Burns, Jefferies, Wood, Cole, Johnston, Hutchinson, Kernson, Holt, Kirby, Blacker, Marsh, Sparkes, Bush, Haslip, Stewart, Bailes, Lake, Digon, Thompson, Carpenter, &c., as well as several civilian friends. The cloth having been removed, the circulation of the punch bowl was duly observed, and the usual loyal and patriotic toasts given and responded to. The health of the Commanding Officer and Officers of the depot met with an enthusiastic response from all present. Sergeant-Major Rendell then proposed the health of Bro. Ayling, the guest of the evening. He said:—Brother comrades: It is with the greatest pleasure I rise to propose the health of our late comrade in arms, Bro. Ayling. We have this evening testified, by the presentation of a trifling mark of our esteem, to the estimation in which he is held by us all, so that I need not enlarge upon his many good qualities to obtain from you a hearty response to the toast. I, together with every one present, cannot forget the invariable courtesy and urbanity of manner which have characterised our comrade in his dealings with every one with whom he has been brought in contact, and I am certain I am only expressing the wish of all here when I hope he may be long spared to his family and the community in the new sphere into which he has entered. The toast was drunk with great enthusiasm. In thanking the sergeants for the hearty way in which they had drunk his health, Bro. Ayling paid a fitting compliment to the Sergeant-Major and those who had honoured him that day. He had known Sergeant-Major Rendell for many years, and could testify as to his value as a non-commissioned officer. Those who did their duty under him he would assist in every way that laid in his power; but it was no use a man shirking his responsibilities. That, he thought, was as it should be. He had a difficult and peculiar position. A serjeant-major at a division as a rule always had the same non-commissioned officers to deal with, and knew their tempers and peculiarities; but at a depôt it was different—corporals and sergeants came and went, who belonged to all four of the other divisions, and their ways and manners, their fitness or unfitness to deal with young soldiers, had all to be learned over and over again. But, notwithstanding, his experience was, that both Sergeant-Major Rendall and the other staff sergeants had always carried out their duties with much ability and discretion. He concluded by thanking them for the high mark of esteem exhibited for him that day, which he should cherish as long as he lived, and which would, he hoped, be an incentive for his children. (Applause.) Serjeant-Major Rendall suitably responded, and the proceedings were brought to a close at 11 p.m., with the toast of "The Visitors," which was answered by one of the civilian gentlemen present. During the evening some interesting music was discussed, with Mr. Doorne at the piano; and Sergeants Blacker, Johnston, Holt, Chambers Marsh and Arnold ably represented the vocal ability of the gallant corps.

LODGE OF PERSEVERANCE, No. 1743.

THE Installation meeting was held at the Imperial Hotel, Holborn Viaduct, on Saturday, 13th Sept., when Wor. Brother Louis A. Leins W.M. opened the Lodge in due form with solemn prayer. The minutes having been confirmed, the balance-sheet was read and adopted. Bro. Bridgman answered the questions leading from the first to the second degree, was entrusted and he retired. The Lodge was then opened in the second, and Bro. Bridgman was passed to the degree of Fellow Craft. Bro. Tickner answered the questions, and was raised to the sublime degree. The Lodge then resumed, for the purpose of installing the W.M. elect. The Right Worshipful Bro. Wm. Kingston, D.G.M. Malta, was nominated to officiate as S.W., and Bro. Charles Daniels as J.W., while Bro. J. L. Mather acted as D.C. Bro. A. Barker, the W.M. elect, having been presented, was installed by W. Bro. Louis A. Leins in a manner that must have been both interesting and instructive to those present. Afterwards the following brethren were appointed and invested:—Bros. F. Kearney S.W., E. Martel J.W., J. L. Mather P.M. Treas., W. H. Mollindinia P.M. Sec., J. B. D. Wall S.D., L. G. Sparrow J.D., C. Robinson I.G., A. Eade D.C., C. Reid W.S., F. Goodchild A.W.S., R. Goddard Tyler. The Lodge was closed in the usual manner, and adjourned to the second Saturday in October. The brethren then repaired to the banquetting room, and sat down to a substantial banquet, provided by Bro. A. Begbie, of whose catering too much praise cannot be said. After grace had been sung by professional brethren, Bros. Cozens, Ashton, and Hubbard, the usual Masonic toasts were given by the W.M. The R.W. Bro. Wm. Kingston, D.G.M., and Bro. F. Crockford responded for the Visitors, in very appropriate terms, after which Bro. A. Barker proposed the health of the Installing Master, Bro. Louis A. Leins, and presented him with a very récherché Past Master's jewel; and as a further token of the high esteem in which he is held in this Lodge, also handed him a massive gold chain with locket, on the one side of which was the Lodge arms, beautifully enamelled, and on the other a diamond set within the five points. The I.P.M. responded in a very earnest manner, and expressed his surprise and pleasure at receiving so handsome a testimonial. The rest of the toasts followed in due course; they were interspersed with some really good music, and so happily ended this the first anniversary meeting of 1743.

Strawberry Hill Chapter, No. 946.—The regular convocation and installation meeting of this Chapter was held on Wednesday, the 10th inst., at Pope's Grotto Hotel, Cross Deep, Twickenham. Comps. W. Smeed P.Z. as Z., J. Wright H., R. Whitley J., W. Platt P.Z. S.E., and several Companions. The Chapter was opened and the minutes were confirmed. The election of Principals and installation took place. Comp. J. Wright was elected Z. (on account of the death of the late respected W. Barrell), W. Morphew H., F. Holland J.; they were severally installed by Comp. W. Smeed P.Z. in his usual faultless and impressive manner. Comps. W. Platt P.Z. S.E., D. Argyle S.N., J. M. Steadwell P.Z. Treas., Hancock Janitor. Bros. F. Forss 1585, and Weston 1585, were ballotted for and duly exalted into R.A. Masonry. Letters of apology were read from two brethren, expressing inability to attend. The report of the audit committee was read and adopted, and a vote of thanks accorded them. The same compliment was paid Comp. W. Smeed P.Z. for the excellent manner he had performed the ceremony of installation. A very elegant jewel was presented to Comp. Alfred Wright, which he suitably acknowledged. The Chapter was then closed, and the Companions sat down to an excellent banquet, provided by the worthy host. The usual Loyal and R.A. toasts were given with complimentary speeches. Some excellent singing emanated from Comps. J. M. Smeed and D. J. Pope. The two latter Companions were present as visitors. In due course the Janitor's toast was given and the Companions separated.

Tidings reach us of the death, from yellow fever, of Bro. Jones, Chief Engineer of H.M. Steamer Boxer. Bro. Jones was elected a joining member of the Phœnix Lodge, Port Royal, Jamaica, on 5th August last.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of North and East Yorkshire was held on Wednesday, at York. We are compelled to hold over our report of the proceedings in consequence of the pressure on our space.

A Correspondent of the Portsmouth Times, writes:—

It is often said that Freemasonry is a secret society. So possibly it may be, but at all events it has been professed publicly in England by a long line of noble and royal personages. The Prince of Wales is a Mason, so were the late Dukes of Sussex, York, Clarence, and Cumberland, and the Prince Regent; so in the previous generation were the Dukes of York and Gloucester. So, too, were the Emperor of Germany in 1735, and our own King William III. fifty years earlier. And to go back further still, I find that King Henry VI. was instituted a Freemason in 1450, that nearly a hundred years earlier still King Edward III. revised the Constitution on Masonry, and, mounting higher still up the path of history, I learn that Prince Edwin formed a Grand Lodge at York in 926, the very year in which King Athelstan granted to the Freemasons a Royal Charter.

NOT VERY FLOURISHING.—Freemasonry is excellent, and ought to be the very salt of the earth; wherever it exists there decay and rottenness ought to be unknown, and health and growth, and strength and beauty, and peace and harmony, ought to prevail. But do they? Not invariably, for time and again comes the word: "The Lodge here is not in a very flourishing condition," and then follows a recital of why it is not. And ever the story is, "Masonic duty is not performed;" "this or that brother is delinquent," or "the Lodge is at fault." The fallibility of human nature has intervened, marred the work, and vitiated all its qualities, so that it is no longer perfect in symmetry or beautiful with life. Why not change all this? Why not all so act that growth and vigour shall not be retarded or impaired? Why not lay aside selfishness and unholy passion? why not discard all vice and immorality, and practise Freemasonry in all its beauty and perfectness, and thus drive away from it all blight, and make it the most flourishing, most beneficent and loveliest association on earth?

STOKES'S HISTORICAL CHRONOMETER.—Bro. William Stokes, Professor of Memory at the Royal Polytechnic Institution, has designed a simple contrivance for assisting the mind in retaining facts and dates. A circle is divided into twenty black and white spaces representing five years each. The 25th, 50th, 75th, 100th, or any other year being thus easily indicated, and affording the means of attachment for the fact. Time is thus represented by space, and the distance from one fact to another can be carried without effort in the memory. Geography and chronology are truly "the eyes of history," and Professor Stokes's Memory Globe, which we have previously noticed, and his Chronometer now under consideration, will very much sharpen historical sight.

NOTICE OF MOTION AS TO THE ELECTION OF SECRETARY.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I find from your last publication that Bro. J. A. Birch has given notice of motion, to be brought before the next Committee Meeting of the Boys' School, giving, in effect, the privilege of voting by proxy to the duly qualified subscribers of the Institutions.

Now, I should like to know when the right of a member of the General Committee to vote by proxy ceased to exist? for, on reference to my old "Freemason's Magazines," I find a few records, from which I give extracts below, showing undoubtedly that this privilege has existed for a very long period; and for the life of me I cannot see why the power to do so has been abrogated, unless on the occasion of election of the Chief Executive Officer of the Institution some gross abuse has taken place, and the offenders and their successors disfranchised, like some of the rotten boroughs, for their peccadilloes.
