ONE of the most agreeable and successful gatherings we have lately had the pleasure of taking part in was that of the installation meeting of this Lodge, which was held at the Public Hall, Carshalton, on Thursday, the 19th inst. Since the Lodge was consecrated, in the year 1880, it has been presided over by brethren who have striven to inculcate and advance the best interests of Freemasonry, and one of the most ardent and persevering students in this regard with whom we are acquainted is the new W.M., Bro James William Baldwin. The proceedings commenced at 3.30, when Bro. Edward Dickman opened the Lodge, supported by his Past Masters and Officers. The Deputy Provincial Grand Master, the Rev. C. W. Arnold, Past Grand Chaplain, had signified his intention to be present, and had kindly undertaken to perform the ceremony of installation. There were also present the following Visitors:—Bros. H. A. Pocock P.M. 902, T. C. Newsom P.M. 1693, Ransom J.W. 1790, Underwood W.M. 1366, Locke W.M. 1347, Smith P.M. 30, Williams P.M. 162, Gibbs P.M. 1538, Frost P.M. 1347 P.P.G.J.D. Surrey, Vincent P.M. 1823, Everist P.M. 720, Byard 1611, Gore W.M. 1692, Catterson I.P.M. 1981, Grinsted I.P.M. 1692, Davies 1673, Frost P.M. 1347, Kitson P.M. 548, Hill Organist 1347, C. Greenwood jun. P.P.G. Reg. Surrey, Yonge 1216, W. W. Morgan I.P.M. 211. After the minutes of last meeting had been read and confirmed, a notice of motion, by Brother John G. Horsey P.M.—

"That a Past Master's jewel of the value of five guineas be presented by the Lodge to Brother E. Dickman, in recognition of his valuable services during his year of office as Worshipful Master"—was unanimously agreed to, while another notice of motion, that affected the bye-laws, was deferred, in order that a fuller consideration of its merits might be entered into on an occasion more favourable as regards exigencies of time. Brother Arnold now took the chair and nominated Brother Horsey P.M. as S.W. and Brother Gibbs P.M. as J.W. respectively, for the ceremony of the day. Brother Baldwin was presented, and in due course installed in the chair of the Lodge. On the re-entry of the brethren the Officers were appointed, as under:—Bros. Bishop S.W., Carter J.W., Crowe P.M. Treas., Mesronze P.M. Sec., Bassett S.D., Weal J.D., Sawyer P.M. D.C., Filmer I.G., Harwood S., Aslett Org., Rowley Tyler. After the addresses had been delivered, Brother Arnold, who had conducted the ceremony throughout most impressively, was heartily thanked for his services. Brother Dickman was formally presented with the P.M.'s jewel, and then the next feature was to ballot for Mr. John Rewcastle—who was proposed by Brother Bassett and seconded by Brother Aslett—as a candidate for initiation. The result was favourable, and Bro. Baldwin conducted the ceremony in favour of Mr. Rewcastle with the most perfect regard to detail, and by his impressiveness produced a marked effect upon the candidate. Soon afterwards Lodge was closed. The banquet was given at the Greyhound Hotel, Carshalton, and it was served in excellent style by Brother Verdun. On the removal of the cloth the W.M. gave the first toast—Her Majesty the Queen and the Craft—which was most loyally responded to. After the National Anthem, the W.M., in proposing the health of the M.W. the Grand Master, called attention to the fact that the Prince of Wales was essentially a Master in the Craft. This would be readily recognised from the fact that he had taken upon himself the duty of initiating his eldest son into the ranks of Masonry. The Prince was earnest in all he undertook, and he (the W.M.) had great pleasure in offering the toast for the acceptance of the brethren. In speaking of the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Bro. Baldwin drew attention to the zeal these brethren displayed in the fulfilment of their duties. This was especially evidenced by Bro. Arnold, who spared no effort to promote the best interests of Freemasonry. In reply the Deputy Provincial Grand Master thanked the brethren for the way they had received the toast of the Leaders of the Craft. Many of those present had been in Grand Lodge, and could testify to the interest taken by those Leaders in the fulfilment of their duties. In their names he thanked the brethren for the reception they had given the toast. In speaking of the Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master, General Brownrigg, the Worshipful Master only desired he could command words sufficient to recount the praises of the Provincial Grand Master, who was beloved and respected by all in the Province. The next toast was the health of the Very Worshipful Bro. the Rev. W. C. Arnold, M.A., P.G. Chaplain and Deputy Prov. Grand Master for Surrey, and the Officers of Provincial Grand Lodge, Present and Past. In response Bro. Arnold said that when he replied for the Grand Officers he did so in general terms, as Deputy Provincial Grand Master he felt he was getting nearer home. He was proud in being able to state that Freemasonry in Surrey was progressing in every way. He had now had eight years' experience with the brethren, and in that period he only knew one instance of anything unpleasant having arisen, and then the difficulty had been surmounted with the exercise of a few words. It was eminently gratifying to know that there was a uniformity adopted in the working; that proper attention was given to this in the several Lodges of Instruction. The members of the Province were earnest in their efforts on behalf of the Charities of the Order. He urged the brethren to support the Charity organisation that had been established, and to make the most of their voting powers. He forcibly impressed on them the desirability of exercising proper caution in the admission of candidates. He looked back with pleasure to the day of the consecration of the Wallington Lodge, on which occasion he had acted as Principal Officer. He had perhaps not been with them so frequently as he could have wished, but this might be accounted for by the fact that there was a mutual arrangement with the Provincial Grand Master that they should each confine themselves, to some extent, to a district. Bro. Arnold then made happy reference to the way in which he found the Lodge was carrying on its work, and to the ability displayed by the present Master, and concluded a most interesting address by proposing Bro. Baldwin's health. This compliment was modestly replied to by the W.M., who seemed intensely gratified at the reception given by the brethren to the toast. The Initiate, Bro. Rewcastle, acknowledged the toast given in his honour; he trusted he might always appreciate the favour conferred on him by electing him a member of the Order. For the Visitors Bros. Gibbs, Major Williams, Greenwood, Smith, Vincent, and others replied. Several other toasts followed, and when the Tyler was summoned all were agreed a most harmonious meeting had been celebrated. During the evening a capital programme of songs was gone through; Bros. Crowe, Carter, Bishop, Gibbs, Tite, Frayling, and Maspero rendering good service. Bro. Morgan contributed one of his popular recitations.

Fidelity Lodge of Instruction, No. 3.—A meeting was held on Wednesday, the 25th instant, at the Alfred, Roman-road, Barnabury, N. Present—Bros. Solomon P.M. 1732 W.M., Thom S.W., Day J.W., Silvester Treas., Treadwell Sec., Messer J.D., Bleakley I.G. P.M.'s Ferguson, Burgess, Larcom, Cordwell. Visitors—Chinnery, Wheelock, Gregory. Lodge was opened in due form and minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Ferguson, assisted by the brethren, worked the first section of the Lecture. Some discussion then took place with reference to the removal of this Lodge of Instruction from its old quarters. Bros. Larcom, Cordwell, Solomon, Ferguson, and others taking part. It was ultimately proposed and seconded that a letter be written to the Lodge of Fidelity, No. 3, on the matter. A vote of thanks was then recorded on the minutes to Bros. Larcom and Cordwell, of the mother Lodge for their attendance on this occasion. Lodge was opened in the second degree, and Bro. Wheelock was examined and entrusted. Lodge was further advanced, and the ceremony of raising rehearsed. Bro. Thom was elected to preside at the next meeting.

Confidence Lodge of Instruction, No. 193.—A meeting was held on Wednesday, 25th instant, at the Hercules Tavern, Leadenhall-street. Bros. Cubitt W.M., Saint S.W., John Egan J.W., Pitt Secretary, Hewlett J.D., Holland P.M. D.C, Freeman I.G., Webb P.M. Preceptor; Visitors, Bros. Geo. D. Stephenson, E. T. Westwood. After preliminaries the ceremony of raising was rehearsed, Bro. Stephenson candidate. Lodge was closed in the third and second degrees. Bros. Stephenson and Westwood were elected members. Bro. Webb P.M. congratulated the Lodge on the accession to its membership of Bro. Stephenson, who had gained much reputation by his masterly embellishment of our Grand Lodge. Bro. Saint S.W. was elected W.M. for ensuing week. One Guinea was voted to the W.M.'s list for the Girls' School, and a vote of thanks was passed to the W.M. on this his first occupancy of the Chair. All labour ended, Lodge was closed in due form.

Wanderers' Lodge, No. 1604.—A regular meeting of this Military Lodge was held on the 9th inst., at the Freemasons' Hall. Present:—Bros. W. Brindley W.M., J. Gibson S.W., Wray P.M. as J.W., T. Meredith P.M. Treas., R. Scott Sec., Coleman S.D., Minns J.D., Glover I.G., Halpin Chap., P.M.'s Wade, Brooks, and Bolton. Lodge was opened and the minutes were confirmed. Bro. Blackman was raised to the third degree, the ceremony being worked very impressively. Bro. J. Gibson was unanimously elected W.M., T. Meredith P.M. Treas., and Lacklin Tyler. A gold P.M.'s jewel was unanimously voted to the retiring W.M., for the zeal and ability he had displayed in performing the duties during his year of office. Lodge was then closed until the second Tuesday in April.

Kingsland Lodge of Instruction, No. 1693.—On Monday, 16th inst., at Bro. Baker's, Cock Tavern, Highbury, N., Bros. Dixie W.M., Edis S.W., Cooper J.W., Collingridge (Secretary) J.D., Fluck S.D., McMillan, &c. After preliminaries, Brother Snook, as candidate for passing, answered the questions, and the ceremony was rehearsed. Lodge was closed in the second, and the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Brother Giffard candidate. Bro. Coles 1693 was elected a member.

The members celebrated their fifth annual supper on Monday last, and, thanks to the able manner in which Bro. J. Baker catered, the result may be pronounced a great success. 50 Brethren and Visitors sat down. The usual Masonic toasts were briefly given. Bros. Bayne Organist 1897 and Collings Organist 1693 presided at the piano during the evening. Prosperity to the Kingsland Lodge of Instruction, and the health of its Treasurer and Secretary having been duly honoured, Bro. Collingridge responded. He informed the brethren that a successful year had passed; the roll of members showed an increase of 38 above those who joined last year. The receipts also were above those received the previous year. The Lodge had been enabled to award five guineas to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons, and also two guineas to the Christmas Entertainment of the "Old Folks." Bro Forge briefly responded on behalf of the Treasurer, and he, with Bro. Woodman, were later on called on to respond for the Masonic Charities; these brethren work together as Stewards for the Boys' School next Festival. Bro. Binckes P.G.S. was called on to respond for the Visitors; this he did in his usual able manner, and of course incidentally mentioned the Boys' Institution. During the evening Bros. Snook, Woodman, Bayne, Giffard, Atterton, Collings, Mullord, Symon, &c., sang. The health of the Chairman was proposed, and the brethren separated after spending a most enjoyable evening.

There was again a satisfactory attendance at the North London Chapter of Improvement, at the Alwyne Castle Tavern, St. Paul's-road, Canonbury, on Thursday. The chairs were filled by Comps. Phillips M.E Z., Carter H., George J., Sheffield S.E., Strugnell S.N, Radcliffe P.S. The work was performed in an able manner.

JOPPA CHAPTER, No. 188.

THE regular meeting was held on the 23rd inst., at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street. Present :—Comps J. Henochsberg M.E.Z., Lazarus P.Z. Treas., Emanuel S.E., Phillips S.N., Dewsnap P.S., Myers 1st A., Wyman 2nd A. P.Z.'s Lazarus I.P.Z., S. M. Lazarus, Levy, Dickinson, Isaac. Visitors :—Comps. Derry 177, Day 657. The Chapter was opened and the minutes confirmed. Comp. A. J. Gartley, No. 142, I.P.M. 205, was elected a joining member, and Bros. H. Van Stavern 188 and F. D. S. Siemms 241 Liverpool, were duly exalted, the ceremony being perfectly rendered. Comps. Lichtenfeld, Rev. Marcus Haines, Myers, Weil, and Kool were proposed for exaltation at the next Convocation. The resignation of Comp. G. T. Mann was accepted, with regret. Chapter was closed until the fourth Monday in May. The Companions afterwards sat down to a sumptuous banquet, provided by Comp. Swaine, and superintended by Comp. M. Silver. The M.E.Z. proposed the usual Loyal and R.A. toasts. Comp. L. Lazarus I.P.Z., in proposing the health of the M.E.Z., said it was his privilege and pleasure to propose this toast. Comp. Henochsberg was undoubtedly the right man in the right place; he is an able worker, and is assisted by his Officers in a way that the Companions cannot but be pleased at. The M.E.Z., in reply, thanked Comp. Lazarus; in accepting office he had tried to follow in the footsteps of his predecessors, and had endeavoured to do the work properly; he trusted to their satisfaction. The Exaltees were next complimented. The M.E.Z. said that night he had had the pleasure of exalting two Companions, who doubtless would become a credit to the Order. Comps. Van Stavern and Siemms, in appropriate speeches, responded. Both felt proud at having been exalted by the M.E.Z. To the toast of the Visitors Comp. C. May replied. He complimented the M.E.Z. and Companions on their excellent working. Comp. L. Lazarus returned thanks for the Past Z.'s toast. In speaking to the toast of the H. and J., Comp. Henochsberg was fortunate in being supported by such able Companions. The junior Officers, Treasurer, and S.E. were not overlooked, and in due course the Janitor's toast was given. Comps. Phillips, Dickinson, Isaac, Gartley, and Siemms exerted themselves with excellent effect to enliven the evening's proceedings.

ECCLESTON CHAPTER, No. 1624.

THE Companions held the Installation meeting of this excellent Chapter on the 25th inst., at the Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street. Present :—Comps. Fisher M.E.Z., Wyer P.Z. H., Tayler J., Isaacs Treas., Beckham S.E., Coulthard S.N., Wray P.S., Vincent P.Z. Visitors—Comps. Mackie, Stamp, Levy. The Chapter was opened and the minutes were confirmed. The installation of Principals then took place: Comp. Wyer M.E.Z., Tayler H., Bond J. were installed by Comp. Vincent in his usual perfect and impressive manner. The M.E.Z. then invested and appointed the following as Officers—Comps. Fisher I.P.Z., Isaacs Tr., Beckham S.E., Flatteley S.N., Coulthard P.S., Lee 1st As. Soj., Jones 2nd As. Soj., Wray W.S., Shepperd Janitor. The I.P.Z. was presented with an elegant jewel, set with diamonds and other stones: this had been unanimously voted him for the able and efficient manner in which he had conducted the duties of the chair. Comp. Wyer hoped their I.P.Z. might be spared for many years to wear it amongst them. Comp. Fisher in few words, but well to the purpose, returned thanks; his future efforts would be for the interest of the Chapter. The newly-installed M.E.Z. then exalted Bro. W. Weston No. 1624, into Royal Arch Masonry, the newly-installed Principals and Officers performing the ceremony in a very efficient manner. The Chapter was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Holborn Restaurant, where a capital banquet and dessert was provided by Bros. Gordon and Hamp. The M.E.Z., who ably presided, proposed the usual Loyal and Royal Arch toasts. Companion Fisher, in proposing the health of the First Principal, said his merits were so well known that they required no comment from him. Suffice it to say, they had seen his working and his able presidency, and he trusted they would drink the toast with the enthusiasm it merited. The M.E.Z. felt it a great honour to have his health proposed in so eloquent a manner. This was not the first time he had occupied the chair of Z., but he felt an especial pride in presiding over the Eccleston Chapter. He was one of its Founders, and hoped to have a successful year of office. The M.E.Z, in proposing the toast of the Exaltee, said Comp. Weston was highly respected in his Lodge, and they were pleased to have him with them in the Chapter; he had paid deep attention to the ceremony, and would doubtless be a credit to the degree, and eventually occupy the chairs. Comp. Weston, in few but appropriate terms, responded. The M.E.Z. then proposed the toast of the P.Z.'s, Comps. Vincent and Fisher. Comp. Fisher during his year of office had done his duty well, and it was with pleasure he presented him with the P.Z.'s jewel, which he richly deserved. Comp. Fisher thanked the M.E.Z. for his kind expressions, but he felt their thanks were more especially due to Comp. Vincent, who had the interests of the Chapter always at heart. Comp. Vincent said if ever there was a duty to perform he would try to do it. It was always a pleasure to do anything for the Chapter. The Z. in proposing the toast of the H. and J., referred to the satisfaction he felt in being supported by two such excellent Principals; all had witnessed their working, and he was sure they in due course would occupy the chair. After a reply the toast of the Visitors was given, and Comps. Levy P.Z. and Stamp responded. It was gratifying to see such excellent working, and such good feeling and harmony as existed in the Chapter. Several other toasts were given before that given by the Janitor. Comps. Tayler and Isaacs contributed to the harmony, and Comp. Wray was very attentive to the comfort of the Visitors.

Earl of Carnarvon Chapter of Improvement, No. 1642.—A Convocation of this Chapter was held at Ladbroke Hall, Notting Hill, on Tuesday, 24th instant. There was a fair attendance of members, amongst others the following being present: Comps. Captain A. Nicols M.E.Z., P. Monson H., Samuel Smout J. and Scribe E., George Davis P.Z. Preceptor, S. H. Parkhouse P.Z. Treasurer, N. Moss P.Z., Robert Schofield Scribe N., J. H. Wood P.S. and W. R. Hatton. The Treasurer's accounts having been audited and found correct, were adopted and ordered to be entered on the minutes. The ceremony of exaltation was then rehearsed, Companion W. R. Hatton being the candidate. Comps. G. Davis Preceptor, Parkhouse Treasurer, and Smout Scribe E., were unanimously re-elected to the several offices they had so ably filled during the past year, and a cordial vote of thanks was accorded to them by the Chapter. All Royal Arch Masons are heartily invited to attend the fortnightly Convocations of this well-appointed and well-worked Chapter, where instruction and practice may be had under able supervision. The next meeting will be held, as above, on Tuesday 7th April, at eight p.m., and on following alternate Tuesdays.

Lily of Richmond Chapter of Improvement.—Held at the Greyhound Hotel, Richmond, on Saturday, 14th instant. Comps Briggs Z., Austin H., Sapsworth J., Forge P.S., Tucker N., Blasby, &c. &c. The ceremony of exaltation was rehearsed in a very able manner. This young Chapter of Improvement meets every Saturday, as above, at eight p.m.

The Temple Preceptory of Knights Templar will be held at the Bridge House Hotel, London Bridge, on the 10th proximo. After the Preceptory is opened, the Provincial Grand Priory will be opened, when the Officers will enter in procession, and the business of the Priory will be proceeded with, under the presidency of General Brownrigg, C.B., Provincial Grand Prior for Kent and Surrey.

The installation meeting of the Hiram Lodge of Mark Master Masons was held at the Greyhound Hotel, Richmond, on Thursday evening, when Bro. Lister, who is well known in Masonry in connection with the United Service and other Lodges, was installed into the chair, in succession to Brother Nettleship. This Lodge is most successful, a result that may be in a great measure attributed to the exertions of Bro. R. H. Thrupp who has always taken the liveliest interest in its welfare.

THE FIFTEEN SECTIONS

WILL BE WORKED

At the St. Luke's Lodge of Instruction, held at the White Hart Tavern, King's Road, Chelsea, on Good Friday next, 3rd April. Bros. Cleghorn P.M. 1287 W.M., Stuart P.M. 141 S.W., Cox P.M. 144 J.W., John Murch P.M. 27 Secretary.

A SENSITIVE AUTHOR.—A well-dressed man, who stated that he was the author of a pamphlet on "Freemasonry: Traced from Prehistoric Times," applied to Mr. D'Eyncourt, at the Westminster Police-Court, on Friday, for a summons against the writer of an alleged libellous notice of the work which appeared in one of the Masonic papers. He considered the notice more than adverse criticism, for, at the conclusion, the question was asked when the Craft would be rid of incompetent brothers who considered "that a score or two of initials clapped on to their names justified them in writing trash?" As an engineer and surveyor he considered that such reflections on his works were calculated to do him a great deal of injury. He had been a Master Mason 27 years. Mr. D'Eyncourt said it was absurd to ask for a summons for libel on such grounds as were put forward. The comments in the newspaper would do no harm, but probably help the sale of the work. Process was refused.

[In answer to numerous inquiries that have reached us, we beg to state that the notice referred to above appeared in the columns of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE. We had no desire to treat our brother unkindly, but we gave expression to our opinions on his work fairly and conscienciously. To those of our correspondents who have expressed a desire to know what we did say, we can only refer them to the notice itself; it will be found on page 122 of Volume XX., issued 23rd August 1884.—ED. F.C.]

THE THEATRES.

COURT.

FOR months past a persistent atmosphere of adverse fortune seems to have hung over the Court Theatre. In its dual control, and ministers working under its flag, it numbers some of the ablest artists on the English stage, but though French, American, and English drama have been successively mounted, the result may be represented at zero. Mr. Clayton and Mr. Cecil, Miss Marion Terry, Mrs. John Wood, and their clever coadjutors, have made many artistic successes, but "Art for Art" is too cold an abstraction for even a stony-hearted critic to desire. "Reculez pour mieux sauter" is often excellent strategy, and the management of the Court have for a time abandoned romantic drama or higher comedy to seek the aid of that frisky Muse Thalia the eccentric. Last Saturday night the little house was crowded from stalls to ceiling when the curtain rose upon Mr. Pinero's comedy "The Magistrate." The play bill assures us the work is original, and though to a sophisticated old playgoer it may seem to bring a whiff, not of hay, but of Meilhac or Halévy; and a little playhouse nearer the Palais Royal than Sloane-square—still—no matter! The play's the thing, and when it is a thing so good as "The Magistrate" it would be vile ingratitude to inquire as to its pedigree. It is cleverly and closely constructed; the characters all possible men and women, moved by the feelings or follies of humanity. The dialogue runs briskly, the situations follow upon each other with a fatality as of Æschilian tragedy, whilst with them the fun mounts in an ever-rising crescendo till the triumphant close arrives. On Saturday night the laughter of the audience again and again threatened to make the dialogue inaudible; while amongst them none seemed to enjoy the humour of the situation more than our beloved Princess of Wales, who, with the Duchess of Edinburgh and Prince George of Wales, honoured the "first night" with their presence. The management have had to seek recruits for the cast, and have secured the fittest exponents within their reach. Mr. Pinero has indulged in a certain touch of Gilbertian humour, that fits perfectly to his story—which may be thus briefly summarised. A benevolent police magistrate (Mr. Posset) has married a lovely and lively widow, who has declared her age to be five years less than is actually the truth, and too late awakens to the awful dilemma of accounting for her son having reached nineteen years; who, as a consequence, she has to dress and treat as a schoolboy of fourteen. His precocity is a matter of wonder to his father-in-law, as also to the innocent little music mistress who has been engaged to instruct him. This lively youth has plunged into debt at a tavern, and persuades his new father to go with him to settle the account. His maternal parent, in the meantime, finds that Colonel Lukyn, an old friend of her first husband, is coming to London, and that he is staying at this same tavern. She, in terror of her secret being divulged, hastens there, and meets the Colonel. But it is too late. The police find the house open after prohibited hours; they search the rooms, and after a most exciting scene take the Colonel, with a friend of his and the two ladies, into custody. How the Magistrate and his precocious son escape, by the balcony, how they are pursued; how the old gentleman reaches his office dishevelled, splashed with mud and humiliated; how he, in his agitation, afterwards sentences his wife and her sister to seven days' imprisonment, and how a brother magistrate intervenes when domestic wreck and ruin seem imminent; how all this is worked out, doubtless all London will go to see. Mr. Clayton as the Indian Colonel, the soul of honour, maddened with the indignities heaped on him, is a capital portrait, the creation of a master. Mr. Cecil as the meek, painfully conscientious husband, hurried from misery to misery, is no less excellent. Mrs. John Wood—who of late has been almost carried away by her own supreme talent, seemed on this occasion in danger of sinking her individuality in the George Cruickshank style of caricature—played the distracted mother with artistic self-restraint and finish; indeed, when the situations were most extravagantly farcical she kept the tone within the limits of comedy. Miss Marion Terry, as her sister, gave brightness and grace to a small part—indeed we must congratulate this charming young lady on the gracefulness and refinement she imparts to the picture. Mr. F. Kerr gave effective individuality to a languid young comrade of the Colonel, while Mr. Eversfield was the big-collared Eton-jacket boy to the life. Miss Norreys as the music-mistress imparted simplicity and girlishness to a part that would in many hands have proved dangerous. Miss La Coste is a smart soubrette, but we think it would be in the interest of good taste if her business with Mr. Eversfield were cut out. It is the one point in the play where the fun leaves an unpleasant impression. The play must have been rehearsed with great care. Each part was as carefully filled as to detail as the work of the principal artists. We congratulate the management on an assured success.

DRURY LANE.

DRURY LANE on Thursday afternoon, when so many of our most distinguished actors gave their services for the "Theatrical Fund," was filled from floor to ceiling. A crowd besieged the "early door," and when the curtain rose at 1.30 there were but few seats unoccupied. Mr. Wilson Barrett's recitation, "Gone with a handsome man," has never been given with more unstrained force and pathos. He held the house, and went straight to the hearts of his audience. In "Tragedy and Comedy" there was a treat in store. Miss Anderson, carried away, perhaps, by the occasion, seemed to forget the attitudinizing which so materially mars her acting. In the difficult part of Clarisse she was sincere and passionate, losing herself in the emotions which rise in ever-increasing poignancy till the actress is merged into the agonized woman. She fairly carried away her audience. Mr. Terriss played admirably as the noble-hearted gentleman Clarisse's husband. Great interest was felt in Mr. Charles Wyndham's appearance in "Delicate Ground," and warm was the welcome given to our modern Charles Matthews. The quiet, benevolent cynicism of the much-tried Citizen was given with the delicate touch of a master, whilst the earnestness and genuine feeling underlying the raillery made us feel how nearly the highest humour touches on pathos. Miss Rorke played gracefully as the volatile wife, but surely that very clever artist, Mr. Giddens, should have invested her ci-devant admirer with some aristocratic gifts or graces—such an ignoble Alphonse could scarcely have realised the ideal of a waiting-maid, and must have been a subject for ridicule to a high-bred lady. The several other items which make up a long programme were thoroughly appreciated.

AVENUE.

THE Avenue Theatre has passed through some depressing vicissitudes; failure following swiftly on each new venture. However, Miss Violet Melnotte, with the courage of youth, attacks the unsolved problem, and seems determined to deserve success. "Tact," by Messrs. Bellamy and Romer, has plenty of excellent situations, not more new than we may hope for in these days, but they are effectively worked out by a company which, though recruited in haste, evidently works together with thoroughness and spirit. We have a stage Irishman, played "with a difference" by Mr. J. B. Ashley. He it is who is supposed to embody the "Tact" of the title, but the more genial gift of "blarney" would better characterise his aptitude in shuffling the human pack of cards to bring the right suits together. Miss Sophie Larkin finds excellent opportunity for her "specialité" in spinsters. Miss Melnotte, very graceful, with fine stage presence, does all required; she displays archness and spirit. It is to be regretted that Mr. Odell, with his excellent gifts, should indulge in caricature which throws the personage he desires to portray quite out of place in the picture. The play is carefully staged, while the scenery is especially good; indeed, the "glade in the Park" is among the most beautiful effects of the kind we have seen. For those who enjoy a hearty laugh, we prescribe a visit to the Avenue.

OLYMPIC.

THE adventurous Matinéer should be largely endowed with the virtues, especially that of Charity. A very liberal supply would not have been superfluous at the Olympic last Thursday morning, when Miss A. Montague introduced "In Life or Death" to the London stage. The story is taken from Mr. Gibbon's novel, "For the King." It is concerned with the trials of a fair lady whose husband is an officer of King George II., while her father is an adherent of the Pretender. Mr. Elton is answerable for the present dramatization; but to our mind it was an evil moment for him when he determined to abandon the traditions of burlesque and produce this romantic play. He undertakes the rôle of the Jacobite father, whose appearance involves his son-in-law in a charge of treason. Miss Bella Pateman, as the devoted wife, struggled hard to infuse life and interest to the play, but the endless stream of talk, cut up for the most part into duologues, proved a heavy labour. Mr. A. Wood, as a benevolent doctor, was a boon to the audience; he displayed a quiet, unctuous humour, and avoided those accentuated outlines to which he is somewhat prone. We understand that "In Life or Death" is to be taken on tour. We trust it may prove acceptable to the more robust appetites maintained on country air.

CRITERION.

WE are delighted in having to congratulate the Hon. Member for Easthampton on his centenary, which was celebrated last Thursday. Our brilliant friend, as time goes on, loses no jot of his popularity, and will probably retain his seat through Sessions yet to come. Assuredly it is long ere his constituents would suggest that he apply for the Chiltern Hundreds.

ST. JAMES'S HALL.

WE recorded a short time ago the marvels worked by Mons. Verbeck, and now in the pretty drawing-room at St. James's Hall a rival wonder worker invites us, by his wondrous power, to disbelieve the evidence of our senses. Mr. Bertram's "palming" is certainly of the neatest we have ever been puzzled by. The inexhaustible hat, placed within a few feet of the audience, gives out its hundreds of yards of ribbon and paper. A singing canary in its cage is held up by Mr. Bertram, and whilst the audience watches it, it is gone. Cards grow large or small whilst the operator holds them in his hand, and he will play "nap" with any member of the audience with cards that come as though the supposed father of the "paste board" supplied the winning numbers. A very pleasant hour can be spent with Mr. Bertram, while the ferns and flowers of his pleasant "At Home" are alone worthy of inspection. The artist has the benefit of some graceful pianoforte playing by Miss Ruff.

EGYPTIAN HALL.

TRAGEDIES and comedies come and go, but Bros. Maskelyne and Cooke's mysteries defy the instability of earthly things. The crowded audience last Saturday afternoon evidently found no loss of charm in the bewilderments into which they plunge on entering these magicians' charmed circle. A very pleasant interlude is provided by Mr. Verne's musical sketch, "Our Amateur Concert," which was given with excellent dramatic characterisation.

STEINWAY HALL.

THOSE popular entertainers of the olden time, the trouvères and Minnesingers, for a long time have been literally buried and forgotten. Except on the stage of a theatre we could not hope to hear the words of the poet endowed with the life and passion they can only receive in fullest intent from the voice trained to mould thought into emotion. Of late, however, the charming art of the reciter has taken its proper place among the recognised forms of intellectual recreation. Mr. Clifford Harrison is delighting crowded audiences at his Saturday afternoon Recitals. He has the advantage of an agreeable face and figure, and the ease of a man of the world. Mr. Harrison accompanies his recitations with shadowy, quaint music; he touches the piano as the poem proceeds, so that vague chords and cadences form a background to echo the spoken words. This was especially effective in the poem of the "Pied Piper;" the vengeance of the rat charmer, and how he wiled away the little children from the ungrateful town was rendered with force and pathos. Especially fine too were the delicately rendered touches of Thackeray's "Death of the old Squire," the underlying current of tenderness which marks the great humorist's writing being accentuated with artistic touch. We recommend all who would enjoy "poetry" in its perfection, but have neither time nor inclination for the chill satisfaction of home study, to spend a Saturday afternoon at Steinway Hall. Mr. Harrison recites or plays without apparent effort, and sends his audience away delighted.

SATURDAY POPULAR CONCERTS.

THE present season closes to-day (the 28th instant); it has proved a most successful one. Last Saturday's programme was among the most interesting. The second part consisted of compositions by Bach, admirably interpreted by Mons. Joachim, L. Ries, Strauss, Hausmann, and Mdlle. Clotilde Kleeberg. Miss C. Elliott greatly moved her audience by her exquisite interpretation of Bach's songs, "Thine heart, oh give me, dearest!" and "My heart ever faithful."

An Ethiopian entertainment was given by the Carolina (original) Minstrels at the Royal Masonic Girls' School, at Battersea, last Saturday evening, at which many supporters of the Institution were present. The first part of the entertainment consisted of an overture and well-selected programme of choruses, songs, &c. The following gentlemen were enthusiastically encored:—Mr. C. Luke, "Mary is mine;" Mr. T. E. Davis, "Susan will be there;" and Mr. T. H. Davis, "George, tell me if you love me?" The second part commenced with a selection by the band, in which the solos by Mr. F. E. Clark, "Irish Melodies;" Mr. T. Stevens, "Midgè," by Gounod (violin) were excellently rendered, after which a quartette, "The two Roses," sung by Messrs. Penman, Mitchell, T. E. Davis and Sutcliffe, was well received. This was followed by an Ethiopian absurdity, "Photographers' Difficulties," the parts being well sustained by Messrs. H. Kippax, E. Luke, and T. Hopper. The National Anthem, by the company, concluded the entertainment. The pupils evidently enjoyed the performance; their bright, happy, intelligent faces, and the order and gentle bearing showed that Miss Davis's kindness is thoroughly appreciated. The children, after having partaken of refreshment, reassembled in the handsome hall in the Alexandra wing, and hearty thanks were tendered to the "Carolinas" for their entertainment. Mr. R. Jones responded, wishing prosperity and success to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, and expressing how pleased he and his companions were in having been instrumental in adding to the amusement. The Institution is open at all reasonable times for the inspection of visitors, and we trust the Stewards' lists at the forthcoming Festival will benefit by many such visits having been made.

The Evening News has more than once pointed out the value of obtaining all the material that can be got together for the acquisition of a correct history of Freemasonry, and several indications have recently come to hand that for some time past numerous brethren have been exerting themselves in this direction. The following extract from the Newcastle Journal of Tuesday will show the latest contribution to the increasing store of knowledge. The event occurred at the installation of Mr. Adamson Wragg, on Monday, as Master of the Industry Lodge, No. 48, Gateshead. "Bro. R. B. Reed P.M. presented to the Lodge a box, containing, in restored binding (1) the old minute-book of the Lodge of Industry of 1723; (2) a History of Freemasons, 1764; (3) Masonic Constitutions, 1768; (4) the Indenture of Joseph Reed, 1773, who was an operative apprentice in the Lodge of Industry, and grandfather of Bro. R. B. Reed P.M. The box containing the books was made from a portion of an oak tree which was found in the River Tyne near Newcastle, which must have lain in the position in which it was discovered for considerably over a thousand years. The Industry Lodge is the oldest in the province of Durham, in which, too, it is the only Lodge with its minute-books dating back so far. The Industry Lodge joined the Grand Lodge of England in 1735, 130 years ago on Monday. The books Bro. Reed mentioned had been restored and bound in the best possible manner by Bro. Andrew Reid."

Royal Alfred Lodge of Instruction, No. 780.—At the meeting held on 13th instant, at the Star and Garter Hotel, Kew Bridge, there were present:—Bros. C. E. Botley W.M., Norton S.W., Thomas J.W., Sperring S.D., Wing J.D., Sherring I.G, Andrews P.M. Preceptor; also Bros. Cammell, F. Botley, Turner, Maton, Rev. P. G. A. Pickering, Sugg, &c. After preliminaries, Lodge was opened to the third degree, and resumed to the second, when the ceremony of installation was rehearsed, Bro. C. E. Botley acting as Installing Master, Bro. Turner as W.M. elect. Lodge was resumed, and Bro. C. Botley gave the addresses and resumed the chair. Bro. Cammell afterwards answered the questions leading to the third degree, and the ceremony of raising was rehearsed.

Lily of Richmond Lodge of Instruction, No. 820.—A meeting was held on the 17th inst. Present:—Bros. F. Botley W.M., Mouflet S.W., Sapsworth J.W., Houghton S.D., A. Turner J.D., C. Clarke I.G., Morgan I.P.M., Phillips Preceptor, Austin Sec., Forge, Eales, Marjason, Cammell, Trinder, E. Clark, Flack, Abell, Jones, Green, Gowing, Meeres, Rowland, James, Aldin, R. Norton 1818, &c., &c. After preliminaries, the ceremony of passing was rehearsed. Bro. Morgan then delivered his Lecture on the "Masonic Institutions," which was received by all present with rapt attention and every sign of approval. Honorary membership of the Lodge was unanimously conferred on the lecturer, and the compliment having been acknowledged, Lodge was closed and the brethren separated.

Star Lodge of Instruction, No. 1275.—There was again a numerous attendance at this popular Lodge of Instruction at the Five Bells, New Cross, on Saturday evening, when the duties of the chair were most efficiently discharged by Bro. C. L. Tokely, who has acted as Secretary of this Lodge of Instruction during the indisposition of the Preceptor, Bro. G. Andrews. The W.M. was supported by Bros. Needham S.W., Dale J.W., Beavis W.M. 879 acting as Sec., Belchamber S.D., Harvey J.D., Eaton I.G., G. Powell Org., Walter Martin Preceptor, and about forty other brethren. Lodge having been opened in form, and the minutes confirmed, it was advanced to the second degree, when Bro. Tilling answered the necessary questions. Lodge was opened in the third, and the ceremony of raising was rehearsed, with Bro. Tilling as candidate. The whole of the impressive rite was performed in masterly style by Bro. Tokely, who recited the ancient charges and traditional history with much elocutionary effect. Lodge having been called from labour to refreshment, and vice versâ, Bros. Bates, of the Waterloo Lodge, No. 13, and Backhouse, of the Belgrave Lodge, No. 749, were unanimously elected members of this Lodge of Instruction, and suitably returned thanks. Prior to this, however, the first section of the lecture was worked by Bro. Beavis. Bro. Needham, on being elected W.M. for the first Saturday in April, said it was some time since he occupied that position; but he had had a good example set him that night, which he should endeavour to copy. Bro. Martin, Preceptor, reminded the brethren that on the following Friday the ceremonies of installation and exaltation would be rehearsed in the Pythagorean Chapter of Improvement, No. 79, by Comp. E. J. B. Burnstead P.Z. 548, at the Portland Hotel, Greenwich. He assured those who had not heard Bro. Burnstead in these ceremonies they would receive a great treat if they could make it convenient to attend. He also mentioned that the Southwark Lodge of Instruction, 879, was to be removed from the Southwark Park Tavern to Bro. Day's, Sir Garnet Wolseley, Warndon-street, Rotherhithe New-road, and it had been decided to alter the night of meeting from Wednesday to Thursday. He should endeavour to work the Fifteen Sections on 2nd April with the assistance of the co-Preceptor, Bro. Beavis, W.M. of the mother Lodge, and several other eminent and well-known brethren; and he hoped they would be supported by a large attendance. It was announced with regret that Bro. Church, an active and zealous Mason, and once a Secretary of this Lodge of Instruction, had lost his wife; and it was resolved that a letter of condolence be sent to him in his bereavement. Bro. Powell said Bro. Church was Tyler of his Lodge (No. 1185), where he was much respected for the satisfactory manner in which he discharged his duties. Lodge was then closed in harmony. We understand that this (Saturday) evening a very pleasing and gratifying incident will vary the proceedings, the nature of which, for obvious reasons, we are not permitted to disclose. It is certain that there will be a very full muster of the members on this occasion.

THE BOYS' SCHOOL ELECTION.

THE prospects of the candidates seeking admission to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys at the next election, on Monday, the 13th inst., are not so bright as those of the Girls who will compete for the vacancies in the sister Institution on the previous Saturday, for while in the case of the Girls there are twenty-two vacancies to be divided among thirty candidates, in that of the boys there are but twenty-five to be admitted from an approved list of forty-four. Still, the chances of success, even in the candidates for the Boys' School, are very much greater now than was the case with those who competed for the coveted scholarships a few years back. Then it was customary to have a much longer list of candidates, and frequently a smaller number of vacancies; then it was usual for a very large proportion of the candidates to be sent away disappointed, or at least to find themselves shut out from all chance of securing the benefits of the Institution for another six months, but now we are pleased to find that considerably more than half of those eligible can be admitted, while the anxiety imposed on their friends in the collection of votes is considerably lessened by reason of the smaller number required to secure election. On the whole, those who are compelled to seek the benefits of the Educational Institutions of Freemasonry have much to be thankful for just now, for if they can only secure the support of a moderate number of influential brethren, the early admission of a child is certain. We sincerely hope that sufficient funds may always be forthcoming to maintain the Institutions in their present state of usefulness, and to enable them to be extended in proportion to any increase that may occur in the numbers of those needing assistance from them, and found worthy of receiving it. As we have already said, the number of boys seeking admission at this month's election is forty-four, of whom twenty-one are new to the present list, while twenty-three are brought forward from previous ones.

The last applications are three in number. No. 1, James Murray Green, is a candidate who now comes forward for the fifth time, with a total of twenty-three votes to his credit. He is one of two children left to the care of a widowed mother. His father, who died in 1877, was a subscriber to the Craft for ten and a half years, during which time he rose to the position of W.M. of his Mother Lodge—the Royal Clarence, No. 976, Somersetshire—he also filled therein the office of Secretary. This being the only case accredited to this district we hope the brethren there have decided to support the lad in this his last appeal. No. 15, Cuthbert John George Roddam, has not had so severe an experience as a candidate, he having only competed once before, securing 187 votes; he also is one of two children dependent on their mother. His father was initiated in the Euphrates Lodge, No. 212, London, and appears to have remained a member of the Order until his death. The support the lad received in October last, small in itself, is yet indicative of an amount of sympathy which should be capable of carrying him through this time, as it is hardly to be supposed so large a number of votes would be polled for a lad whose age bordered so close on the limit fixed for admission if within six months it was to be proved that they had been thrown away. The friends of the lad have much to do, but the Euphrates Lodge members are capable of much if they only determine on doing it. No. 32, Harold John Walker, the other last application case, now comes forward for the first time. His father, an initiate of Trinity Lodge, No. 254, Warwickshire, is still alive, and has this child and two others dependent on him. In the days of his Masonic membership he rose to the rank of Worshipful Master of his Lodge, and likewise secured the honour of Junior Grand Deacon in his Province, positions which prove he must have secured many friends in the Order; these we trust will now come forward, and practically demonstrate their Masonic fellowship. It may be unkind to this brother, who is compelled to ask for the benefits of the School for one of his family, as well as to those who are supporting the case, yet we must ask our usual question—Why is not the reason stated which renders this case eligible? We think, in fairness to the subscribers, that something should be said on the ballot papers to explain, in face of no particulars, what appears strange.

Both parents being dead always seems to us sufficient to entitle a candidate to especial sympathy. No. 35, William Edward Tappenden is the only lad on the present list so circumstanced. He is the son of an initiate of the Wellington Lodge, No. 548, London, and he and two other children are now dependent on friends for their maintenance. His is a new application, and we hope will be so well supported on the 13th that he will be found among the list of successful when the result of the poll comes to be announced.

All the other candidates have one or both their parents living, and all have other chances of competing provided they are unsuccessful on this occasion. We shall now proceed to briefly review the particulars given in each case, taking first those who have already participated in previous elections, and attending to each of them in the order in which they stand as regards number of votes brought forward. In this respect No. 22, Charles Henry Wurr, heads the list, with 754 votes brought forward from the October election of last year. He is one of seven fatherless children, and is accredited to the Province of Nottingham, his father having been initiated there in the Newton Lodge, No. 1661. Judging from what has already been done for this lad, it will not be long ere he is admitted to the School. No. 9, Frank Perkins, follows very closely, his total of recorded votes being 749, but it has taken him two elections to secure that number. He also is one of seven fatherless children. His father, an initiate of Saint James Lodge, No. 765, London, appears to have been a most energetic brother, for although only a subscribing member of the Order for seven and three quarter years, he had secured the rank of P.M. and Secretary of his Lodge; he had also done good work in the cause of Charity, having served as Steward both for the Boys' and Girls' Schools, these qualifications alone, from their comparative rarity among the fathers of candidates, entitle to special consideration. The lad stands a good chance of succeeding in his next attempt, if his friends only support him as they have done in the past. No. 20, Walter John Richards, has a sister in the Girls' School and may himself be said to be half elected to the Boys' Institution, for he brings forward a total of 687 votes from the one previous election in which he has taken part. He is one of two children now dependent on a widowed mother, who, we imagine, will never regret her husband's initiation into Freemasonry, which took place in the Lewis Lodge, No. 1185, London, less than twelve months prior to his death. 663 votes stand to the credit of No. 10, Lewis John Thomas Harvey, who also has a sister in the Girls' School. This lad, one of three children now dependent on their mother, has taken a part in two previous elections. His father was initiated in Royal Jubilee Lodge, No. 72; he afterwards joined Peckham, No. 1475, and, later on, became one of the founders of Skelmersdale Lodge, No. 1658. He had qualified as Life Governor of the Boys' School previous to his death, which took place in 1878. No. 6, Stanley Claude Dawson, is a candidate now for the third time, and goes to the poll with 594 votes to his credit. He is one of six children left to the care of a widowed mother. His father was an initiate of the Weyside Lodge, No. 1395, Surrey. This being the only case from that district we think the brethren thereof might, by united effort, succeed in securing the lad's admission to the School at the coming Election. No. 4, John Sinclair Barker Allan, has already contested three elections, and has secured 574 votes as the result thereof. He is one of a family of four children dependent on their mother. His father was admitted into Freemasonry in the Friendship Lodge, No. 100, Norfolk, and was a member there until within a short time of his death. No. 12, Percy White Musgrave, one of five fatherless children, appears now for the second time. He has a sister in the Girls' School, and his friends will no doubt soon secure a place for him in the Boys' Institution, they having polled 481 votes on his behalf in October last. His father was a member of two London Lodges that are noted for the way in which they care for any who, through misfortune, are compelled to make appeal for assistance—the Acacia, No. 1309, and the Metropolitan, No. 1507. The members of the latter Lodge alone have before now carried an election in a comparatively short space of time, and doubtless can again; let us see if they will so manage this lad's case during the coming contest. No. 3, Benjamin Meeds Hildred, is another who has a sister in the Girls' School, but even now there are eight children dependent on his widowed mother. The lad comes forward for the fifth time, and brings forward 403 votes, a number which will have to be materially increased ere long, or the age limit will put an end to all efforts on his behalf. His father was an initiate of the Harmony Lodge, No. 272, Lincolnshire, and rose to the dignity of Grand Deacon in that Province. No. 23, Harry Edwards Henshaw, is yet another who has a sister in the Girls'. The present is his second application for admission to the Boys' School, and he goes to the poll with 326 votes to his credit; he and two other children are yet dependent on their mother. His father was an initiate of the Fortitude and Old Cumberland Lodge, No. 12, and died in 1879. No. 11, Samuel William Knight, is next in order. He has already taken part in two elections, and brings forward 311 votes as the result thereof. He and two other children are dependent on their mother, the widow of an old member of the Vitruvian Lodge, No. 87, London. No. 16, Francis Buckland Brocksopp Kent, polled 307 votes in October last, that being the first election in which he took part. He is one of five children left to the care of a widowed mother, whose state of health necessitates some kindly assistance, and which will doubtless be accorded by those who were acquainted with her husband. The late Brother Kent was an initiate of West Kent Lodge, No. 1297, London. No. 13, John Nicol McMillan, one of a family of six, of whom two only are partially provided for, has both parents living; but the father is insane, an affliction which alone should entitle the case to attention from all who have not yet pledged their votes. The boy has a sister in the Girls' School, and has had polled on his behalf 257 votes. His father was initiated in a South American Lodge; afterwards joined Inniskillen and St. Patrick's Lodges in Ireland, where he rose to the dignity of W.M., and finally became a member of the Evening Star Lodge, No. 1719, London. He has qualified as Life Governor of the two Schools, and we trust his family will secure such further assistance from them as they are able to afford. No. 5, Arthur Warner, is one of six dependent children of a late W.M. of the Ranelagh Lodge, No. 834, London. At present he has not secured any very great support, having only polled 230 votes at the last three elections, at each of which he was a candidate. Perhaps his friends are reserving their strength for the October election of the present year, which will be his last chance, but it is doubtful if that occasion will be so favourable as the present one—it is therefore to be hoped that something special may be attempted for him this month. No. 19, Isaac Harold Lester, has the good fortune to be the son of a Kentish Mason, his father having been an initiate of the Peace and Harmony Lodge, No. 199, and afterwards a joining member of the Corinthian Lodge, No. 1208. Not only, therefore, has this lad the benefit of being accredited to a good Province, but the two Lodges with which his father associated himself are amongst the most charitable in that benevolent county. So far this lad has secured 187 votes; he was a candidate for the first time in October last. He and four other children are dependent on their widowed mother. No. 17, Algernon Sackville West, son of an old P.M. of the Great Northern Lodge, No. 1287, London, who has a sister in the Girls' School, now makes a second application for admission to the Boys'. He has 170 votes already polled on his behalf, and doubtless friends at his back capable of recording as many more as may be needed to place him among the pupils of the Institution. He and one other child are dependent on their mother. No. 7, Arthur Moore, has 102 votes to his credit, as the result of two past contests. He is one of five children, of whom two are partially provided for. His father was initiated in the Montague Lodge, No. 665, Dorset, and rose to the honour of Senior Grand Deacon in that Province. No. 8, Alfred Thompson Mushens, has also competed at two elections, but all he has to show for it are 14 votes. He is one of three children dependent on their mother, the widow of an initiate of Williamson Lodge, No. 949, Durham. No. 14, George Cannon, an only child for whom his mother has to provide, secured 11 votes in October last. The case is accredited to Northumberland, his father having been initiated in the St. Peter's Lodge, No. 481. No. 21, Albert Taylor also made a start at the last Election when 7 votes were polled for him. He is one of five fatherless children, from the Province of East Lancashire, and will doubtless secure attention from the brethren of that model Province when his turn comes. For his sake and for the sake of his mother, we hope he has not long to wait. No. 2, Frederick Teilo Davis, has stood four elections and has secured two votes. Such a state of affairs, however, does not imply neglect when we look to the Province to which he is accredited—the Eastern Division of South Wales. So perfect are the arrangements in that district as regards the Elections for the Charities that, as we here see, all votes can be diverted from any particular candidate until his turn comes; when that happens for this lad, as we trust it soon will, he will not have to wait long outside the portals of the School. He is one of five fatherless children. No. 18, Arthur Taylor Richardson, is the only candidate who comes forward without something in the way of recorded votes to his credit. His father was a Devonshire Mason, having been initiated in Jordan Lodge, No. 1402. He is one of two children dependent on their mother, who was left a widow in 1880.

The new cases, other than those already disposed of, are nineteen in number. No. 24, Cecil Taylor Hamerton, is one of six children, whose father was initiated in an Irish Lodge, afterwards joined True and Faithful Lodge, No. 318, Cornwall, which he subscribed to until his death, in 1883. No. 26, William Forrest Morley, is also one of six dependent children. His father was initiated in the Cambrian Lodge, No. 364, Eastern Division South Wales, and died in 1878. No. 42, Edward Bembridge Hickenbotham, is one of six fatherless children, of whom one is partially provided for. His father was initiated in Fletcher Lodge, No. 1031 Warwickshire; was a P.M. and Provincial Grand Junior Warden, and a Founder of the Alma Mater Lodge, No. 1644. No. 27, Alfred Ernest Astrington, is one of five children dependent on their mother. His father was initiated in Old England Lodge, No. 1790, London, and died in June of last year. No. 30, Frederick Hanmer France, and No. 38, Edward Lloyd Reynolds, are each members of families in which five children are dependent on widowed mothers. The father of the former was initiated in the Salopian Lodge, No. 252, North Wales and Salop; and of the latter in the Halsey Lodge, No. 1479, Hertfordshire. No. 36, Ambrose Charles Harold Warren, No. 39, John Stephens Skurray, and No. 44, Frederick William Puttison, are each members of families of four fatherless children, accredited to London, Wiltshire and West Lancashire respectively. Skurray has a sister in the Girls' School. There are five candidates where the number of dependent children are three, and five where the number is only two. The former are No. 31, James Talbot Scarfe (Hertfordshire), No. 37, George James Senior (Malta),

No. 40, James Hall Oscroft (Derbyshire), No. 41, Francis Walford Higgison (Staffordshire), and No. 43, Percy Gibbs (Hants and Isle of Wight); the latter, No. 25, Thomas Robert Foord (Kent), No. 28, Charles Ernest Haxthausen (Hants and Isle of Wight), No. 29, William Percy Cole (London), No. 33, Neville Innes Chamberlain (Bombay), and No. 34, Frank Murley Watkins (London). In each of these ten cases—excepting No. 28, Charles E. Haxthausen, the father is dead. In the case of No. 28, the father is living. No reason is assigned for the appeal now made on behalf of his child, but we suppose there are circumstances which render the lad eligible.

There is one point to which we may refer here in regard to the list of candidates we have just reviewed, and it is one upon which a letter has been addressed to us by a correspondent who, we know, is among those who take a great interest in the Charities. We refer to the number of cases in which the candidates have now, or had, a brother or a sister in the Schools. We are of opinion that when the laws were altered in 1879 it was intended that only one member of a family should be eligible for the Institutions, "unless the number of vacancies is in excess of the number of candidates," but whether this was the case or not it is very certain that the rule is not so construed. We shall be pleased to insert any letter which may be addressed to us on this subject, as we feel it is one which requires ventilation.

THE ANTIQUITY OF FREEMASONRY.

ONE great stumbling-block in the way of rational investigation is caused by extravagant expectations, and an unphilosophical demand for a too exact correspondence between alleged ancient Masonic organizations, and the emblems relating to them, with modern Masonic bodies, their degrees, emblems, verbal rituals, and the modern version of our ancient legends. Many worthy brothers, among whom are some of much learning, seem to entertain the idea that unless we go to the full extent of demonstrating that the ancient Mysteries were identical in all respects with modern Masonry, including not only our present ritual and Lodge-work, but also the division and order of the degrees, that our arguments amount to nothing, and afford no proof of the antiquity of our Fraternity.

Nothing less, I fear, would convince this class of investigators than the discovery of the whole ritual or catechism, beginning at "From whence came you?" &c.—as authorized by the Grand Lodge of their State—sculptured in hieroglyphics, or written in Coptic on a roll of papyrus from an Egyptian tomb. Certainly all such expectations are unreasonable and unphilosophical. Rest assured we shall never find any proof that Lodges exactly like ours, presided over by a Worshipful Master and Wardens, and conferring the Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft, and Master's degree, existed in ancient Egypt. Freemasonry has undergone many modifications since the day of its advent; yet it has preserved its identity, as well as all of its vital principles and most exalted features in all ages.

The antiquity of our Fraternity and its identity are established, not so much by any close correspondence of our present ritual and emblems with those of ancient times (as some investigators illogically look for), as from other considerations. It is quite enough if we are able to discover in ancient times, when polytheism was the dominant state religion in all nations, societies possessed of similar organizations, and, like Freemasonry, teaching the two great doctrines of the unity of God, as One Eternal Spiritual Being, and the immortality of the soul of man—societies like Masonry, secret in their nature, and possessed of words, signs, and other occult modes of recognition, also of similar but not identical form of initiation, the ceremonies of which were founded upon a similar legend, allegory, myth, the same in substance, and only differing as to the name, era, and nationality of its hero—societies which taught the same truths by similar and in many cases the very same emblems, signs, and symbols. These things certainly demonstrate the identity of modern Freemasonry with those ancient organizations, just as conclusively as the identity of modern Christianity, as a system of religion, with that of the first century or any intermediate time, is established by a like train of reasoning and correspondence. If, on the contrary, we confine our attention to the present condition of Freemasonry, as disclosed in the various degrees and "rites" into which it has divided itself, just as Christianity has split into Catholics and Protestants, and the latter again into numerous sects—if we regard nothing but the verbal form of our ritual—it is easy to show that Masonry is not of any very great antiquity. The date and even the authorship of some parts of our verbal ritual can be and have been traced, but neither the Chevalier Ramsey nor yet those who met at the famous "Appletree Tavern," in 1717, were the founders and inventors of Freemasonry, any more than Luther and Wesley were the authors of the Christian religion.

If we view Masonry from a rational standpoint, and contemplate its mystic legends and allegories in their substance, without regard to the modern language in which they are now clothed; if we investigate the meaning of its ceremonies, without regard to the specific words now used in conducting them; if we study the signs, symbols, and emblems, disregarding the erroneous modern explanation given to many of them—the great antiquity of Masonry is at once apparent. It is now admitted on all sides that all the ancient Mysteries were identical, and had a common origin from those of Egypt, a conclusion which has been reached by the same method of reasoning and comparison. The legend of Osiris is the parent stock from which all the others came, but in Greece and Asia Minor the name of Osiris disappeared, and those of Dionysus and Bacchus were substituted, while in the Hebrew-Tyrian temple legend the name of Hiram is found. The claim, however, that the legend of Hiram is an actual history, descriptive of events which really took place about the time of the building of King Solomon's temple, must be abandoned by the few who still blindly cling to it.

Masonry can no longer hope to stand without criticism in this age of inquiry. There is a spirit abroad which does not hesitate to catch Antiquity by its grey beard, stare into its wrinkled face, and demand upon what authority, of right, reason, or authentic history, it founds its pretensions. The Masonic tradition cannot hope to escape examination in its turn; and, when it is examined, it will not stand the test as claiming to be historically true. If, then, we have no explanation to offer, it must be discarded, and take its place among many other exploded legends of the past. By showing, however, that it is not intended as an actual history, but is really a sublime allegory of great antiquity, teaching the profoundest truths of astronomy, and inculcating, by an ancient system of types, symbols, and emblems, an exalted code of morals, we at once reply to and disarm all that kind of criticism. The Masonic Order is thus placed on a loftier plane, and assumes a position which challenges the respect and admiration of both the learned and virtuous; the learned, because they will thus be enabled to recognize it as the depository of an ancient system of scientific knowledge; the virtuous, because the Order also stands revealed to them as having been in past ages the preserver of true worship, and the teacher of morality and brotherly love It has been the boast of Masonry that its ritual contained great scientific as well as moral truths. While this was plainly the fact as to the moral teachings of our Order, to a large number of our most intelligent brothers the key which alone could unlock the Masonic treasury of scientific truth appeared to have been lost. We believe that key is at length restored; for, if the Masonic traditions and legends, with the ritual illustrating them, are regarded as astronomical allegories, the light of scientific truth is at once seen to illuminate and permeate every part. And if this explanation is correct, any person who fully understands the meaning and intention of the legends and ceremonies, symbols and emblems of our Order, is necessarily well informed as to the sciences of astronomy and geometry, which form the foundation of all the others.—Brown's Stellar Theology and Masonic Astronomy.

The ceremony of consecration will be rehearsed on Wednesday, the 22nd inst., at the Wanderers' Lodge of Instruction, Victoria Mansions Restaurant, Victoria-street, Westminster, S.W., by Bro. James Terry P.M., P.P.G.S.W. Norths and Hunts, P.Z., Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. Brethren are cordially invited to attend. Lodge will be opened at 6·30 p.m.

UNFAIR CLAIMS ON THE CHARITIES.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Will you please give me some part of your space for the expression of my opinion on what I deem an error in the system of management of the Masonic Schools. I allude to the admission of more than one member of a family to the benefits of the Institutions, to the exclusion of others equally and perhaps more deserving, though not so fortunate. I had an idea there was a law to prevent more than one child of a family being admitted, but such can hardly be the case, as evidenced by the balloting papers for the next elections. I there find ten instances in which it is sought to secure for a second child of a family admission to our Schools, and that in the face of there being seventeen other candidates beyond the number of vacancies. In the case of the Girls one of the candidates has a brother in the Boys' School, while another has had a sister educated in the Girls' School. In the case of the Boys there are no less than eight of the applicants who have sisters in the other Institution. Is this fair, just, equitable or advisable? I think not. However deserving a case may be, I think that if the Masonic Schools take one of the children they should not be asked to do more until all the other families desiring assistance have received something, and this of course can only be determined when there are not as many candidates as there are vacancies. I shall be very pleased to learn the views of other subscribers on this point, and if you will do me the honour of inserting this letter it may lead to the expression of some opinions.

A SUPPORTER OF THE SCHOOLS.

ABUSE OF THE BALLOT.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—The minds of some brethren just now are much exercised as to the right use of the ballot in Lodges. As to theory there can be no question. Every Lodge regulates the admission of members after its own fashion, the prevailing rule being that three black balls exclude. In some cases one black ball excludes. The principle is a right one, though, like other principles, it is open to abuse. Or, as Scotia's bard, Brother Burns, puts it in his "Poem to a Mouse"—

> The best laid schemes o' mice an' men
> Gang aft a-gley.

The ballot is just one of those dangerous instruments by the use of which vicious men may gratify their feelings of revenge. When used spitefully it is the weapon of the assassin. Its proper use is the safeguard of individuals and protection to the Lodge. I do not see how it is possible to prevent the misuse of the ballot, except it be by extending the number of black balls. If this were done it is hardly likely that a sufficient number of vicious malcontents could be found banded together to gratify their spite. Where, however, disaffection runs high, there is generally some justification for the resort to extreme measures. I do not say that the ruthless exclusion of innocent men can be justified, but that the evil temper that prevails has some foundation, however slight, for its existence. A Master of a Lodge, if he be discreet and generous, can generally regulate these matters. If not, the Secretary and the Past Masters ought to be able to compose differences. To seek to discover the blackballers would be a violation of the principle of the ballot, and all that can be done is by precept and example to enforce the moral obligation which every one accepts when he becomes a Freemason. Whenever it is known that an obnoxious person is to be proposed, it is wise for those who object to quietly lay the facts before the W.M. and the Secretary, and the Lodge must be in a bad way indeed if some satisfactory arrangement cannot be come to. If any overt offensive act is done by any one in authority no surprise need be felt if reprisals are taken. When such is the case it would be better by far to suspend the Lodge Warrant for a time, for morally the Lodge is defunct. A case occurred in my own Lodge, where a candidate was proposed, whose character and social position were objected to by some of the members. The matter was quietly laid before the Secretary. He caused inquiries to be made, and found that the representations of the complaining brethren were well founded. He informed the mover and seconder of the candidate of the position of affairs, and as loyal brethren they at once withdrew the nomination. Mark the sequel. The facts were known to an old Past Master of another Lodge, a Preceptor of a Lodge of Instruction, and a P.Z., and he either nominated or got the rejected candidate nominated in his own Lodge. The action of my Lodge was defied, and another Lodge, without inquiry, accepted the material we thought unworthy. I can positively vouch for the fact that there was no personal feeling with regard to the candidate so far as we were concerned; the Lodge simply acted up to its sense of duty. It was foiled in what I term an unworthy manner, but we had no remedy. There are many things done in this life which the laws of courtesy and kindness alone can regulate, and when this law is absent, and vindictive feelings take its place, the purest institution in the world is powerless to protect itself. The only plan is to avoid cause of offence, for those in authority to be above suspicion, and then when the evil day comes the strength of loyalty will be too much for the disaffected. Masonry to be worth anything should approach its ideal as closely as possible, and no opportunity should be lost of enforcing the moral and spiritual lessons inculcated in the ceremonies. The Lodge is happy and prosperous in proportion to the standard of morality it has attained. When suspicion has no foothold, when the acts of the brethren are accepted without question as to their bona fides, then disaffection cannot rear its head, and laws become mere records, because they are not needed in operation. I accept the ballot as a necessary adjunct to the carrying out of some of the affairs of the Lodge, but I honour and revere the courtesy that is born of chivalry and kindly feeling.

I am, Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

BALLOT.

INTEMPERANCE AND FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—The title of my letter may be somewhat repugnant to the taste of my brother Masons, but I hardly feel myself justified in removing the little prefix "In" from the first word, although, perhaps that would leave almost as good a title as the one I have adopted. Inasmuch, however, as it is my desire to refer to an intemperate, and to my mind unmasonic title, I accept the responsibility of the connection I have associated Freemasonry with and proceed to my subject. Both you and your contemporary have in many cases recently prefixed a "W." to the initial "S." used in your reports to signify the Stewards of our Lodges. What does this mean? I am informed it signifies "Wine Steward," and that the revised title is now becoming general in many Lodges, the brother appointed as "Steward" being formally invested as "Wine Steward" and his duties in the latter capacity being graphically described. Is this a fact? If so, I certainly think those who use the prefix are acting wrongly. Where do our Lodges get their authority from to appoint or retain a Wine Steward? Is such a title calculated to add to our reputation for Temperance? I think not, and I also feel that the use of the, to me, obnoxious prefix should ere this have called forth official denunciation from the rulers of the Craft.

A SENSITIVE ONE.

LODGES OF INSTRUCTION.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Your correspondent "VIA MEDIA" has a somewhat elastic conscience. He admits that he has often thought, with me, that "the practice of drinking and smoking during the progress of business in Lodges of Instruction is not compatible with the "exposition of the most sublime system of morality." But then, he urges, the whole matter has been threshed out, and the happy—I was going to say the naughty, therefore nice—conclusion has been arrived at "that too hard and fast a line cannot be drawn." I do not see that any line is drawn at all by anything advanced by "VIA MEDIA." The whole case, according to his reasoning, is just where it was. Every brother has been and apparently is to remain a "law unto himself," and the enjoyment of social pleasure is to take rank with duty and reverence. I never compared the practices of a Lodge with "a drinking bout in a tap room," and I certainly cannot subscribe to the theory that a brother's indulgence is, as a rule, limited to one glass. If that were so, I do not think publicans would be quite so ready as they appear to be to have Lodges of Instruction at their houses. "VIA MEDIA" says, "the innate consciousness of the brethren causes them naturally to cease from smoking during the more reverent portions of the ceremonies." This admission seems to me to yield the whole case. He must have a very discriminating judgment who can determine between that which is "reverent," "more reverent," and to make comparison complete, "most reverent," in our ceremonies. The spirit of reverence reaches from the beginning to the end; it only takes different forms, and is only more or less beautiful according to the degree that is being rehearsed. There is scarcely a paragraph throughout the three ceremonies that does not breathe religious and moral truths, and these, as a whole, and not in degree, claim our reverence. Smoking and drinking are, logically speaking, as incongruous in a Lodge of Instruction as they would be in a church or chapel. I pass over the welcome myth about the "fragrant weed," and a glass of ale assisting memory. Neither the habit of concentration nor memory needs any such stimulus.

Further on, "VIA MEDIA" quits my company altogether. He says: "To grumble at this one little fault (meaning smoking and drinking), if it can be called a fault at all, is to strain at a gnat and swallow a camel." He forgets that he has already swallowed a very respectable camel in admitting much that I have stated to be true. Then I am rebuked for suggesting that the Lodge should be called off to allow of the brethren taking refreshment, or that the hours of labour should be shortened. No, says "VIA MEDIA," let the brethren who have conscientious scruples as to combining social enjoyment with instruction look elsewhere for what they desire; "for my own part, I thoroughly enjoy my cigar while listening to, and endeavouring to learn, the routine of our interesting ceremonies, and look upon an evening at my Lodge of Instruction as one of the most soothing, agreeable, and edifying of the week." A brother seeking instruction has a right to expect it to be broadly the same everywhere, and it is not competent for any other brother virtually to say that if he does not like what he gets at certain Lodges, he must go elsewhere. The complaining brother knows all that perfectly well, but it is no answer to his complaint, and to tell him he must "lump" what he does not like, and what his conscience tells him is wrong, is very much like tyranny. But then the whole truth leaks out in the closing paragraph. "VIA MEDIA" likes his weed and his beer; they soothe him, and instruction under such conditions is agreeable and edifying. Well, perhaps this is all true. As I said before, it is a condition of things very acceptable to an elastic conscience, but scarcely in agreement with the entire teaching of the Craft.

As Lodges of Instruction are generally conducted, there is great sameness and monotony. The desire for creature comforts under such circumstances is not to be wondered at. Dulness is not a necessary accompaniment, however, to instruction, and it is not essential to always get through a given quantity of work each evening. What is done should be done well and thoroughly, and instead of merely rehearsing the ceremonies it would be better to question the relevancy of phrases and the meaning of terms. By this means a true spirit of inquiry would be evoked, a new interest created, and the desire for beer and smoke would yield to the nobler demand for knowledge. There are many words and phrases in the ritual of Freemasonry which cannot be considered in print; they would come rightly under discussion in a Lodge of Instruction. I am aware that better Preceptors would be required, and no doubt they would be forthcoming were the demand for improved teaching as general as it ought to be. How many there are who lament the lack of interest taken by the mass of the brethren in Masonic literature. How can it be otherwise with the present dull level of Lodges of Instruction? Now and then a battle is fought between "Emulation" and "Stability" working, and sometimes a brother may make a bold innovation upon accepted theories; but as a rule the instruction is confined to the mere repetition of the ceremonies and lectures according to the style followed in each particular school. There is nothing edifying about this; it is a parrot-like training, adapted to the meanest capacity, but not calculated to excite a desire for deeper inquiry, nor to satisfy it when it exists.

I would make our Lodges of Instruction real schools, and as teachers in ordinary schools are bound to understand what they teach, and to prove their power by giving object lessons, so should Preceptors be men learned in Masonic lore and capable of giving an intelligent, if not always correct, explanation of every phrase and symbol. Just as ordinary schools have now become pleasant as well as more instructive places, so would Lodges of Instruction answer their high privileges were they to follow a similar plan.

If beer and smoke still be considered desirable they might be enjoyed either at calling off time or at the close of labour. The latter method I should prefer, because an opportunity would be afforded of discussing many matters of Masonic interest that do not belong to the ceremonies. I once saw this plan adopted on a limited scale, and do not hesitate to say that it was eminently agreeable. An hour devoted to the consideration of questions affecting the Charities, the office of Grand Treasurer, the conduct of Grand Lodge, and various other matters would be most beneficial, and certainly would not lack in interest. Masons would thus come to have a higher view of their duties and responsibilities, would become intelligent judges instead of partial recorders of the opinions of individuals and cliques. Knowledge grows by what it feeds upon, and as there is no limit to the supply, there would be no end to the growth. A never-ceasing interest would ensue, and the demand for Masonic books and papers would necessarily increase. The present almost Cimmerian darkness that prevails in the minds of the majority of the Craft as to the moral and spiritual meaning of the ceremonies would vanish, and light, more light, would illumine the Masonic path.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

WATCHMAN.

LODGES OF INSTRUCTION.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—As rather an old Mason it strikes me that lately there has been an unnecessary amount of criticism written and uttered as to the manner in which Lodges of Instruction are conducted, and for which I fail to see there has been any adequate provocation. It would have given some idea of the necessity of a change in the working and conduct of Lodges of Instruction had any evil been pointed out as injurious to the interests of the Craft, but as such has not been done, I am led to believe that it has not been found to exist. When we consider the growth of Lodges of Instruction year after year in the Metropolitan area, numbering about 130, I think it can be taken as very fair evidence that they are doing their work well, and when we consider the very liberal sums they annually present to the Masonic Institutions there does not appear much to complain of. Under these circumstances I would humbly suggest that it would be as well "to let well alone," and not attempt to enforce any alteration from outside, but leave each Lodge to regulate its business in its own way, when that is compatible with the Constitutions of the Order. As to the recommendation of Bro. Pierpoint, W.M. of the Domatic Lodge, lately expressed, that it is the duty of the Masters and Officers of Lodges to pay occasional visits to Lodges of Instruction established under their banners, with this I entirely concur, but allow me to observe that this is by no means a new recommendation, for as far back as 1864, when I had the honour of filling the chair of the Domatic Lodge, I frequently expressed the same views, not only to the Officers, but to members of the Lodge, and to give an earnest to my advice I often visited the Domatic Lodge of Instruction, which was then held at the Holyrood Palace Hotel, in the Strand, which stood on the site of the New Law Courts. I once took the chair on the occasion of working the Fifteen Sections while occupying the chair of the Mother Lodge. I do not put this forward in any boasting spirit, but mention it merely to show that the necessity of attending Lodges of Instruction was not neglected, but enforced, many years ago.

I remain, yours fraternally,

P.M. 177.

TALKATIVE MASONS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Can nothing be done to put a check on that happily few and far between abomination—the talkative Mason; the brother who will speak under some pretext or other at every meeting he attends? I trust, however, no member of this band will ask you to put a stop to the Mason who will write—taking me as an example—and yet if one does so, it will be a fair case of tit for tat, and may perhaps lead to some good in the end. I have recently, as a Visitor at some of our most popular Lodges, had much of my enjoyment spoilt by being compelled to listen to the twaddle of a talkative brother I have had the misfortune to meet on several occasions. Really it has been a misfortune to meet him, although to say so may not be in strict accordance with the teachings of the Order. He pushes himself forward in the most obtrusive manner, and on one occasion in particular had the bad taste to persist in speaking out of turn in direct opposition to the "call" of the Worshipful Master, much to the disgust of several Past Masters who were present, and some of whom did not fail to express their surprise at the ruler of the Lodge being overruled by a visitor. It was the Worshipful Master's first night in the chair, and from what I have heard, it will not be safe for my talkative friend to try his persevering tactics again in that Lodge. The Master has not forgotten the way in which the occurrence was referred to by some of his friends afterwards, and will I think take care the offence is not repeated. Surely, Sir, your representatives can recognise among the more familiar faces they meet some one or two of the class I refer to, and if when they recognise them they will avoid all reference to what they say something perhaps will be done to put a stop to the "talk" I and others object to, for I believe that the vanity of these effusive members is increased when they see their utterances reported in the journals of the Craft.

AN ADMIRER OF DEEDS RATHER THAN WORDS.

THE MATRON OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I gather from your report of the proceedings at the last General Committee Meeting of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, supplemented by information gathered from other quarters, that our dear old friend Miss Jarwood is suffering from the effects of a long-well-spent life; in other words that she is getting too old to carry out her duties as Matron of our Girls' School, without entailing on her unnecessary trouble and anxiety. I wish to know if there is any necessity for us any longer to impose on her the responsibilities attaching to her office? I believe she has been officially associated with the Institution for upwards of fifty years, and has, I think, fairly earned a full retiring pension. It would not be a grave act of extravagance to offer her retirement on full pay, and I for one should like to hear of her enjoying her remaining days in the peace and quietness she so well deserves. Doubtless she is attached to the School in which she has spent so much of her life, and perhaps would not care to leave it, but like many others similarly circumstanced she would soon find the benefit of relief from the cares and anxieties which must necessarily surround her office, and such a course would no doubt add a few years to her already lengthy life. I will not refer to the course taken by the Committee in creating another officer, an acting Matron, further than to say that I consider such an act impolitic, unbusiness-like, and almost implicative of slight to the dear old lady who has endeared herself to all friends of the School in the past, and who, I hope, has yet many years to spend among us.

I am, &c.

A SUBSCRIBER R.M.I.G.

TRADING ON FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I have recently seen references in Masonic Reports to the trade or profession of the Master, Officers or Brethren of several Lodges. I must say I feel such references are out of place. In the last number of your contemporary a sort of apology is offered for the omission of mention of an initiate's particular branch of business, who we are now told is "an agent for a firm of ink makers." This reference can hardly have been made without a request from the brother more particularly concerned, who being young to the Craft may perhaps be excused for this unmasonic outburst; but what can we say of your contemporary? Surely the Editor ought to know that to blazon forth to the world the business of an initiate is in direct opposition to the teachings of Freemasonry.

Yours fraternally,

TRADITIONAL.

INSTALLATION MEETINGS, &c.

PROSPERITY LODGE, No. 65.

THE title of this Lodge seems to be fully justified, if success may be tested by increasing numbers, a goodly balance in hand, and a liberal support given at all times to the Charities. The members held their installation meeting on the 26th ult., at the Guildhall Tavern, under the presidency of the W.M. Bro. Rich; Hawkins S.W., Walters J.W., Goodwin P.M. Treasurer, Brown P.M. Secretary, Dyson S.D., Haller J.D., Wall I.G.; P.M.'s Chivers (Father of the Lodge), Cornwall, Daniel, Chicken, Arnold, Roberts, Schadler, Leins, and a large number of Visitors, amongst whom we may mention Bros. Galton P.M. 173, Buckland 1338, Vincent P.M. 1963, Brown 975, Wisley 1426, Chivers P.M. late 65, Akehurst 1623, Neale 179, Rubarda 901, Voisey P.M. 1641, Cosworth P.M. 813, Halford P.P.S.G.D. Hertfordshire, Chapman W.M. 1922, Jaquet 1501, Colledge 1693, Glyn 1426, Thompson 1471, Raymond 1716, Cruikshank P.M. 177, Snow 1728, Stokes 1963, Nash 73, Collings 1693, Cooper J.W. 1693, Marsden S.W. 1329, H. M. Levy P.M. 188. After preliminaries had been duly observed as regards opening, the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The Auditors' Report was read and adopted; it showed the Lodge Funds, as well as the Benevolent Fund, were in a prosperous condition. Bro. Bradford No. 669, and J. Waterer No. 765, were elected members. Bros. Hardwick and Wooldridge were raised to the third degree, and Bros. Sparrow and Wormesley were passed. The ceremonies were all well worked. A Board of Installed Masters was now opened, and Bro. J. H. Hawkins P.M. 1693 S.W. and W.M. elect was presented to the Lodge, and was duly installed into the chair by the retiring W. Master Bro. Schadler impressively gave the addresses, Bro. Roberts I.M. acting as D.C. All were perfect in their working. On the readmission of the brethren the customary salutations were given, and the W.M. appropriately appointed and invested his Officers, as follow, Bros. Rich I.P.M., Wall P.M. 1743 S.W., Dyson J.W., Goodwin P.M. Treasurer, G. T. Brown P.M. Secretary, Haller S.D., Stafford J.D., Ruse I.G., Haynes W.M. 27 D.C., Carey A.D.C., Harriss W.C., Speight P.M. Tyler (for the 26th time). Applause followed the investment of each Officer. The question of a Summer Banquet was brought under consideration, and a Committee appointed to make arrangements. The widow of a deceased brother was relieved, with £10 10s. After hearty good wishes had been given by the Visitors, the Lodge was closed, and the brethren, 84 in number, sat down to a récherché banquet and dessert, provided by Bros. Ritter and Clifford, and superintended by Bro. Mills. The cuisine was perfect, and the artistic programmes, designed by Bro. Ferry P.M., were much admired. The W.M. in brief but appropriate terms proposed the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts, the National Anthem and God Bless the Prince of Wales being enthusiastically received. Bro. Rich said he had been entrusted with the gavel to propose the next toast, which was always received with an amount of pleasure—it was the health of the W.M. Bro. Hawkins knew his work thoroughly; he had passed the chair in another Lodge. He would now ask them to give a hearty reception to the toast, and hoped that Bro. Hawkins would have a successful year of office. The W.M. in reply said, during the past year they had had a very good Master; personally he thanked him for his kind expressions; he would strive to follow in the footsteps of the I.P.M., and hoped by the time he should be called upon to leave the chair he should have secured many more friends; he would strive to do all in his power to gain their approval. In speaking to the toast of the I.P.M., the W.M. said Bro. Rich had ably performed the duties of the chair, to the satisfaction of the Lodge, and he had great pleasure in presenting him with the Past Master's jewel. He thought he would have especial pleasure in wearing it, as it had been unanimously voted, and all agreed he well deserved it; he wished him long life and prosperity. With the jewel he had also to present a very elegant clock and two vases, which the brethren desired him to accept. No Master had better earned such gifts; they testified to the respect he was held in by all. Bro. Rich was enthusiastically received. It was with great pleasure he rose to return thanks for their valuable gifts. He was gratified to see the brethren display such unity; he was proud, moreover, that after so many years of his having aspired to the chair that he had attained his wish. He begged to return his grateful thanks; he should ever feel, when wearing the jewel, that it was a further incentive for him to work for them with heart and mind. Again, he took their gifts as a recognition of kindness both to him and his family, who would look upon them as a recognition of appreciation. The W.M. next asked the brethren to drink the health of Bro. Schadler. Those who heard him perform the portion of the ceremony entrusted to him must have appreciated his excellent working, and he would ask the brethren to drink his hearty good health, and would couple with it the name of Bro. Roberts. Bro. Schadler, in responding, said the honours of the day were due to Bro. Rich. As for the portion of the ceremony he had given, he was pleased that his efforts had gained their approval; he sincerely thanked them. Bro. Roberts also responded; he was pleased to know his work in the installation ceremony had been approved of. He thanked Brother Schadler for his assistance. Bros. Chapman, Stokoe, and Ackerman were named to reply for the Visitors. The former Brother said the working of the Lodge of Prosperity was well known; nothing further need be said on that point; its hospitality was also proverbial; he wished the brethren further prosperity. Bros. Stokoe and Ackerman also acknowledged the toast. The Worshipful Master in speaking to the toast of the Treasurer and Secretary said, no one had the interests of the Lodge and the Masonic Charities more at heart than Bro. Brown; for his valuable assistance in the Lodge he could hardly find words to express all he desired to say. The same might be urged in favour of Bro. Goodwin. Bro. Brown in reply said, in the course of 10 years the Lodge had sent up a sum of £1,820 to the Masonic Charities, while from other sources he had received a further sum of £147. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the P.M.'s; there was a goodly array of them; their names were treasured in Freemasonry, and might be written in letters of gold. Incidentally he would mention that the Worshipful Master was a Steward for the Girls' School, and he hoped his list would reach a large amount. With the toast of the Past Masters he would associate the names of Bros. Ferry and Roberts. In response the W.M. was assured the Past Masters would support him. Brothers Wall Senior Warden, Dyson Junior Warden, Haller, Sparrow, Ruse, Haynes, Carey, and Harup each responded for the Officers. Then the Tyler's toast was given. During the evening, a capital selection of music was provided, under the direction of Bro. Chapman. We append the Programme. National Anthem, "God Save the Queen," Bro. A. Thompson; Song, "God Bless the Prince of Wales"—Bro. J. Stock; Song, "The Wanderer"—Bro. B. Neale; Song, "I fear no foe"—Bro. R. J. Voisey; Song, "Oh! hear the wild winds blow"—Bro. An alteration in the bye laws, substituting January as a month for holding meetings in the place of July, was unanimously agreed to. On a ballot Bro. HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Old sores, wounds, and ulcers.—The readiness with which Holloway's Ointment removes all obstructions in the circulation of the vessels and lymphatics, explains their irresistible influence in healing old sores, bad wounds, and indolent ulcers. To insure the desired effect the skin surrounding the diseased part should be fomented, dried, and immediately well rubbed with the Ointment. This will give purity to the foul blood, and strength to the weakened nerves, the only conditions necessary for the cure of all those ulcerations which render life almost intolerable. No sooner is this Ointment's protective power exerted than the destructive process ceases, and the constructive business begins—new healthy growth appears to fill up the lately painful excavated pit.

A VOICE FROM THE "ANTIENTS."

IT is inspiriting to find every now and then brethren devoting time, talents and money to the elucidation of Masonic history. We have a notable instance before us in the case of Bro. W. M. Bywater, who has compiled and published one of the most interesting records in connection with the Craft. The work before us* was suggested at the time Bro. Bywater was searching old books formerly belonging to the Grand Lodge of the "Antient" Masons, for the purpose of getting together material for a brief history of the Royal Athelstan Lodge on the occasion of its Centenary in 1869. He was so struck with the many facts and incidents scattered through the old records that he made full notes, strung them together, and embodied them in a paper which was read before the members of his Lodge in May 1884. This paper now sees the light in a compact and handsome shape. It may be described as a monograph, or even a Masonic autobiography of one of the foremost men in the Fraternity during a period of the history of the Craft of momentous importance. It would be altogether beyond our purpose to enter upon the causes that led to the unhappy Schism that culminated in the formation of a third Grand Lodge in England, in 1738. Masonic students will find material for a judgment elsewhere. Brother Bywater, in briefly introducing his subject says, that Freemasonry was revived in the South of England in the year 1717, "when the four existing Lodges constituted themselves a Grand Lodge, under the title of 'The Grand Lodge of England,' as distinctive from the York Masons, who designated themselves 'The Grand Lodge of all England.'" The seceders from the southern Grand Lodge styled themselves "Antient" Masons, "in accordance with the accepted appellation of the York Grand Lodge." They applied the term "Moderns" to the parent body they had left, in consequence of alleged departures from some of the old plans. This feature of history has been dealt with by William Preston, but as Brother Bywater points out, his authority can hardly be considered impartial. Preston was initiated in an Ancient Lodge, in 1763. That Lodge was reconstituted under the "Moderns" in the following year. But Preston and others, in 1779, were expelled from his adopted Grand Lodge, "for disavowing allegiance to it," averring that his Lodge (Antiquity) "derived its rights from the Grand Lodge of York, and was therefore of more antient descent than that of the Grand Lodge of 1717." It will be seen that this was a repetition of the events of 1738. We shall not follow Preston nor the events that took place during the years involved further. It is a subject of keen interest, but at the present moment our attention is confined to the "Antients" and Laurence Dermott. At first the "Antients" were ruled by a "Grand Committee presided over by a Master, selected in rotation according to the number of his Lodge, a new Chairman being appointed for each meeting." Bro. Bywater says, "it is doubtful whether they preserved any minutes or records of these proceedings before 1751," the period when Dermott comes upon the scene.

We have it recorded that Laurence Dermott was an Irishman, and was born in 1720, but in what part of Ireland it is not stated. He was initiated in 1740, when he was only twenty years of age, an incident that would not be allowed in our day according to our English Constitution. He served all the offices, including that of Secretary, and was installed W.M. of No. 26, Dublin, 24th June 1746. He was a worker from the first, and must have been a man of large capacity. He was fairly well educated, and his character stood out "conspicuous amongst his fellows." Dermott soon found his way to London, where he first joined a Lodge of the "Moderns," and afterwards went over to the "Antients." He worked twelve hours a day, he says, for a master painter, so that apparently he was not rich in time or substance. Yet he soon distinguished himself as a Mason, and in a comparatively short time he was in possession of sufficient means to make liberal contributions to the Craft. Although the record Bro. Bywater has consulted begins in 1751, it is not until February 1752 that Dermott appears in Grand Committee. From that period to 1771 he acted as Grand Secretary, and was hands, eyes, and soul to the "Antient" brethren. He was bard, historian, and philosopher. He composed songs, and sang them with such force that on one occasion it was made a charge against him that he sang the brethren out of their senses. With true Irish readiness he proposed that he should sing the senses in again; and forthwith he proceeded to carry out his suggestion, to the pleasure of the brethren who heard him. We shall have occasion to speak presently of his records, and proceed just now to notice Dermott as a philosopher. In 1756 he produced his "Ahiman Rezon: or, a Help to a Brother," a work that will preserve his name green for ages in the annals of Freemasonry. Speaking of this book Bro. Carson, of Cincinnatti, says, "The 'Ahiman Rezon' is one of the most famous books in connection with Masonic literature. It was the 'law-book' of the 'Antients,' in contradistinction to Anderson's 'Book of Constitutions,' the book of the 'Moderns.' Dermott was the literary man of the 'Antients.'" We should add that Bro. Bywater gives a facsimile of the title-page of the work, and as it is a table of contents as well, and intensely interesting, we quote it in full.

BYE-LAWS OF MASONIC LODGES.

EVERY Masonic Lodge must have a code of bye-laws for its government. Unlike most other organized bodies, however, the power to enact its own bye-laws does not reside primarily in a Lodge, but in the Grand Lodge under which it holds its charter. Some Grand Lodges exercise their full powers by adopting a uniform code of bye-laws for Lodges holding charters under them, while others concede to Lodges in part the right to adopt their own. In the latter case, however, such bye-laws do not become valid until approved by the Grand Lodge, so the enactment of them is really by the Grand Lodge. When thus approved, they become a law for the government of the Lodge, and must be followed strictly in the transaction of business and management of its affairs. They cannot be altered or amended except in the manner provided in them for alterations or amendments, and any change made must be submitted for the approval of the Grand Lodge, as in the first instance.

In many organizations the practice of suspending a bye-law for the time being prevails, in order to meet some emergency that has arisen, in which the body desires to act contrary to its provisions. That such a right exists is very generally conceded where there is no law prohibiting it. In a body thus empowered to adopt its own bye-laws its government is wholly within itself, and if the members by unanimous consent decide to suspend one or more of its bye-laws, for the time being, there is nothing to prevent it, although such action is always of doubtful expediency, and is often productive of bad results. Unless all the members have been duly notified of such proposed action it is not treating the absent ones fairly, as they have the right to expect that the proceedings will be in accordance with existing regulations.

As a Masonic Lodge cannot change one of its bye-laws without the consent of the Grand Lodge, it must necessarily follow that it cannot suspend one for the time being without the same consent. It cannot, of its own volition, set aside what it cannot make. No emergency can arise to justify such action. The Worshipful Master, and every other Officer, before being installed into office is obligated to support and maintain the Constitution and general regulations of the Grand Lodge, and to discharge the duties of his office to the best of his ability. He will not, therefore, knowingly permit any violation of Masonic law, and should be especially careful to see that the bye-laws of his Lodge are strictly enforced.

In noting the proceedings of the various Grand Lodges, as they come to hand, we find in the official reports of Grand Masters many dispensations granted to Lodges to perform some act contrary to the provisions of their bye-laws. We have always supposed that it was the duty of a Grand Master to see that existing laws were enforced, and that, of all others, he should be the last to assist in violating them. Some of these Most Worshipfuls seem to think differently. They appear to be as much of an autocrat as was King Solomon in his palmy days. As dispensators they are a success. If a Lodge wants to spread a ballot in less than the required time a dispensation is granted. We notice one instance of a dispensation to receive the petition and ballot for the candidate at a special meeting. How about the previous notice and due inquiry into his character, that the W.M., obligated himself, should have in every instance? What right has a Grand Master to obligate a Mason not to perform a certain act, and then give him permission to violate his obligation? The right does not exist, and we have no hesitation in saying that the exercise of such power by a Grand Master is outside the line of his duty and authority.—Masonic Advocate.

OLYMPIC.

THE sure grip which a thoroughly dramatic story takes on the public is exemplified at the Olympic, where "In His Power" has reached its sixtieth representation, with even increasing favour. We have not seen it since the first night, on which occasion it startled its audience into an enthusiasm which has long been a stranger to these walls. On our second visit the smoothness and crispness of touch gained by time was very evident. Especially is the improvement of method noticeable in Mr. Cartwright, who now paints his villain Soara with no less force, but with a freedom from the coarseness and violence of colour which made this personage and his earlier connection with the heroine an incredibility. We rejoice so clever an artist has thought fit to accept our suggestions in this matter. Mr. Bellew plays with manly earnestness. He has the gift of implying depth of emotion apparently with an unconscious intonation. We may hope to see him in parts more worthy his great powers, but in none will he act with more sympathetic sincerity. Unhappily Miss Ada Cavendish, who created the part of the sorely tried heroine, is still unwell, but Mrs. Beerbohm Tree is a very graceful and efficient substitute. We could still wish the comic business more toned down; however, it secures laughter, and this is perhaps a justification for any improbability.

EMPIRE.

IT was pleasant to find, on revisiting the Empire last Monday, to find that certain superfluities had disappeared from the text of 'The Lady of the Locket," and though the book even now cannot boast much brilliancy, yet it moves briskly, and leads smartly up to the songs and dances. Mr. Hayden Coffin's drinking song is still as heartily applauded as ever, and the grace of his impersonation tends greatly to the success of the opera. Miss St. John is once more in good voice. At the present time, when the arts of decoration are much more valued than natural gifts, the Venetian costumes, in their lavish richness, might alone secure the run of this piece. The effort to appreciate the fashion and colour of a slashed doublet is pleasant to all persons of taste, and not exhausting to the most attenuated intellect. The two ballets introduced are remarkable, even in these days, for their fantastic beauty.

ROYAL AQUARIUM, WESTMINSTER.

AMONGST the varied attractions which are included in the programme of pleasure by visitors to the metropolis, few places of amusement offer so excellent a diversity as does the Aquarium at Westminster. From "early morn till dewy eve" there is a constant round of gaiety and animation, and the arrangements are such as to suit the various tastes of all who are in search of instruction and wholesome recreation. Throughout the day there is a ripple of soothing and enlivening music, and men of studious minds will find a feast of edification at the meetings of the Balloon Society. Then the feats of natation by the Beckwith family are a standing dish in the bill of fare provided, whilst men of sporting tastes will find means of relaxation in the billiard matches generally provided. If we mention Marchetti's royal marionettes, which are extraordinarily good; the acrobatic feats of the Jackley troupe; the clever dancing and singing of the Michigan coons (Huda and Berlo); Natt Emmett's performing goats; and the goat "Blondin," from Spain; the ariel flights of the Hanlon Voltas; the Matthew's Minstrels; the omnibus sketches by Walter Wardrober; and the high wire evolutions by Miss Emily and Master Walter Delavanti, enough will have been said to indicate what a diversified and admirable menu is presented. Messrs. Pike and Woodward's performing seals are a marvel to all who have witnessed their strange and novel performances. That creatures of so apparently obtuse a nature could have been trained to such perfection may well remain a puzzle. The audience on the occasion of our visit were evidently impressed with the extraordinary evidences of training so well exemplified.

Confidence Lodge of Instruction, No. 193.—On Wednesday, the 1st instant, at the Hercules Tavern, Leadenhall Street, Bros. Saint W.M., Cubitt S W., Clare J.W., Pitt Secretary, Hollands P.M. J.D., John Egan D.C., John Little I.G., Brown, Webb P.M., &c. After preliminaries, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Brown candidate. Bro. Clare offered himself as candidate for passing to the second degree, and was entrusted. Lodge was opened in the second, and Bro. Clare was passed to the degree of F.C. Bro. Brown was elected Worshipful Master for the ensuing week. Lodge was closed in due form and adjourned to Wednesday next, at 7 o'clock.

Star Lodge of Instruction, No. 1275.—There was a goodly attendance at this popular Lodge of Instruction on Saturday evening, when the Preceptor, Bro. George Andrews P.M., was heartily welcomed back to his accustomed post after his long and serious illness. The chair was occupied by Bro. Walter Martin, who has ably and kindly performed the duties of Preceptor during Bro. Andrews's indisposition, and he was supported by Bros. Waterman S.W., Beavis W.M. 879 J.W., Wimble S.D., Needham J.D., Belchamber I G., C. L. Tokely Sec., and others. After preliminaries Bro. McChristie answered the questions leading to second degree, and the ceremony of passing was rehearsed, after which one or two brethren were elected members. The acting W.M. then rose and referred to the circumstance that for some months past Bro. Andrews had been kept away from his duties as Preceptor by illness. They were all sincerely pleased to see him once more amongst them, and to witness that he was being rapidly restored to health and vigour. For himself, it was a source of the utmost satisfaction that Bro. Andrews was about to resume his valuable services as Preceptor, for they had worked side by side together for some years. He now asked Bro. Andrews's acceptance of a beautifully-mounted address on vellum, enclosed in a massive gilt frame, and glazed, and which it was admitted was executed in the highest artistic style. The text of the address ran as follows:—"This Testimonial was presented to Bro. George Andrews P.M. and D.C. 871, on March 28th, 1885, by the members of the Star Lodge of Instruction, No. 1275, of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England, on his recovery from a severe illness, as a token of the esteem in which he is held, and in recognition of the valuable services rendered by him as Preceptor to the above Lodge for many years." The gift was suitably acknowledged by Bro. Andrews, who expressed the pleasure it afforded him that he was once more with his old friends of the Star Lodge of Instruction. He thanked the brethren for their kind expressions of sympathy and esteem, which were as gratifying to him as their gift had been unexpected. He hoped to be among them on many future occasions to enjoy their mutual harmony and advantage. The Secretary said he had much pleasure in reporting that Bro. Lampen, who had been laid aside for some weeks, was a trifle better, although he was afraid it would be some time before he had sufficiently recovered to come amongst them again. A vote of sympathy with Bro. Lampen was passed. It was reported that a reply had been received from Bro. Church, acknowledging the letter of condolence voted to him on the death of his wife. After the transaction of some other business Lodge was closed.

The appeal made by Bro. E. Bradnam, Mayor of Hastings, to the inhabitants of that port in aid of funds for relieving the distress prevalent among the poorer classes, has resulted in a sum of £1260 being contributed for the purpose.

THE WASHINGTON MONUMENT.

THE Washington Monument Association was organised in 1833, and the Corner Stone of their hoped for Obelisk in commemoration of Liberty and the perpetuation of the memories of the worth and virtues of Brother George W. Washington was laid on the 4th July 1848, by the Masonic Fraternity.

This Memorial Obelisk, 555 feet high, outtops all human structures in height from base.

In consequence of the 22nd of February, the Anniversary of Washington's birthday, coming on Sunday, it was concluded by the authorities that the ceremony of celebrating the completion of so grand an undertaking should occur on the preceding day. The themometer recorded close to zero, and a stiff north breeze knew no intermission.

The Press of the day has been so full of comments on the event that we need but record in brief the share assumed by the Masonic Brotherhood in the event that makes every citizen feel the more proud of his country.

As Lafayette and Washington were so intimately interested in the cause of liberty and freedom, and bound as well by the mystic tie in the service of universal humanity, we quote the congratulations of the former to the latter upon the conclusion of the struggle favourable to Liberty. It was written from Cadiz, in 1783: "Were you but such a man as Julius Cæsar or the King of Prussia I should almost be sorry for you at the end of the great tragedy where you are acting such a part; but with you, my dear General, I rejoice at the blessings of a peace in which our noble ends have been secured. * * * As for you, who truly can say you have done all this, what must your virtuous and good heart feel in the happy moment when the revolution you have made is now firmly established?"

The pleasurable duty of the Masons, gathered from every State of the Union, in dedicating this Monument, was marred by the intensity of the weather as the throngs stood shivering at the base of this immense stone pile.

The proper functionaries declared that the square, the level and the plumb had been applied to the Obelisk, that its corners were found to be square, its course level, and its walls skilfully erected, according to plan.

Grand Master Myron M. Parker scattered corn, and poured out wine and oil—emblems of nourishment, refreshment and joy—and in the course of the mystic ceremonies brought into use certain historic relics with which General Washington, as Grand Master pro tem, laid the corner stone of the National Capital, on 18th September 1793. The sacred volume belonging to Fredericksburg Lodge, No. 4, of Virginia, upon which Washington took his first vows of Masonry; that belonging to St. John's Lodge, No. 1, of the city of New York, on which, on the 30th April 1789, he took the oath of office as the first President of the United States; the Great Light, belonging to the Alexandria-Washington Lodge, No. 22, of Alexandria, Va., upon which he, as Worshipful Master, received the vows of initiates; the apron worn by him, which was worked by Mme. Lafayette; a golden urn containing a lock of his hair, belonging to the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts; the Lesser Light; one of the three sperm candles borne in Washington's funeral procession, were exhibited.

The address of the Grand Master concluded as follows:—Know ye, all ye people, that we be Free Masons, loyal and true citizens, obedient to law and order, and can never be concerned in plots and conspiracies against true government. The immortal Washington, himself a Freemason, devoted his hand, his heart, his sacred honour, and, if need be, his life also, to the cause of freedom of conscience, of speech and of action, and from his successful leading has arisen this nation. To him and the memory of his deeds a grateful people have erected this memorial in the capital which he founded, and which will bear his name to remotest ages, a monument towering above other monuments as he towered above other men.

A brief prayer by the Grand Chaplain, asking the blessings of nourishment, refreshment and joy upon all who were assembled, and a response by the brethren, So mote it be, Amen, brought this part of the proceedings to an end.

The first marble block was set in the Shaft on the 7th August 1880, and the last stone was placed in the level 500 feet on the 9th August 1884. The topmost stone of the pyramidion was set on the 6th December 1884.

The procession through Pennsylvania Avenue after the ceremony at the base of the pillar was very imposing, both as a military and civic display. The indoor services then commenced in the Capital. In the evening commemorative pyrotechnics were visible on every side, as the various Masonic organisations took their trains for home.

THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

THIS, the oldest of the three Masonic Charitable Institutions, is now preparing for the celebration of its annual Anniversary Festival, the event being fixed for the 13th May next, when, under the presidency of Sir Walter W. Burrell, Bart., M.P., R.W. Provincial Grand Master of Sussex, the usual banquet will be held, and it is hoped as large, or even a larger sum will be subscribed than has ever been announced in connection with this Institution. We have so recently referred at length to the several candidates who are seeking admission to the School that we do not feel it necessary to say much now in regard to them, but may mention that the number of those who have been passed as eligible is in advance of those who can be admitted to the extent of twenty-five per cent., or, in plain figures, there are thirty candidates going to the poll to-day of whom seven must be sent away unsuccessful. There are many who will say this is a most satisfactory state of affairs; and so it is, were it not the case that the friends of each of these seven children are really in distress—are perhaps brought down by misfortune to such a state that they do not know how they will even feed these seven orphans until another election comes round, and they have another chance of receiving relief from the brethren of the Mystic Tie. Seven candidates out of a list of thirty to be sent away. Is that all? Yes, that is all on this occasion, and light as it may seem to those who have never had to ask for assistance, it means anxiety and sorrowful hearts to most of those who are associated with the seven unfortunate ones. And why is it necessary to send these seven away? Simply because the funds of the Institution they desire to enter are not in such a flourishing condition as would warrant the executive taking them on to the establishment. A very small contribution from each Mason who is in a position to give it would alter this state of affairs, and a very small regular subscription from each would enable the School to be kept up to a similar state of usefulness. May we ask from our readers as much as they can afford in furtherance of the objects of our Girls' School.

So far we have spoken of those who will to-day seek admittance to the School. Thirty girls in all; to twenty-three of whom food, clothing, and education will be guaranteed until they reach the age of sixteen. No small undertaking, as many who have children of their own can testify; but what is this in comparison with the total that is being done by the Institution? We speak of a brother with eight children as having a large family; to-day the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls will take to itself three such large families, and yet they will, so to speak, be lost among the number of children already resident in the Institution at Battersea Rise. When those twenty-three children find their way into the School there will be two hundred and forty-one girls to be cared for, and everything provided for them by the supporters of the Institution. And this work has to be carried on, not for the current year only, but continuously, while the amount of money required for it has—except a comparatively small income arising from invested funds—to be provided year to year by voluntary donations. How much, therefore, depends on the efforts of brethren who undertake the office of Steward it is easy to imagine. The very existence of these two hundred and forty-one girls may be said to depend on what is done, as it would be found impossible even to discharge existing obligations on what the Institution already possesses.

This year the School has the benefit of the advocacy, as Chairman of its Festival, of a Provincial Grand Master who is respected, not only in his own district, but throughout England. One who will do his best personally, and will urge others to do the same. But even if he and every brother in his Province give to the best of their ability it cannot be expected they will provide more than a moiety of what is required. To secure anything like the total we should like to see, exertions will have to be made in every part of the kingdom, and that, too, without any delay. At the present time, the number of brethren who have accepted the office of Steward is below that at the corresponding date last year, and this, notwithstanding the fact that the Festival takes place a week earlier than it did then, thus giving the executive shorter time in which to induce brethren to come forward. Mere numbers, however, are not everything; a small number of Stewards may produce a greater total than a large one, but to do so it is necessary that one or a few of their number should represent one or other of the premier Provinces; Provinces which, if they do make an effort, are as good for their thousands as ordinary ones are for hundreds, but this year we are afraid no such fortune is in store for the Girls' School. It is true that most of the districts into which Masonic England is divided are doing something, but few of them, outside the Chairman's own county of Sussex, can be said to be making a supreme effort. They are doing their work quietly but surely, collecting that regular flow of money which is so useful, but which, in face of the extraordinary calls which are made on the liberality of the Institution, has to be supplemented by occasional extraordinary liberality on the part of brethren, and we almost doubt if this regular method of working will produce such an amount of as will relieve the managers of the Institution from anxiety during the coming twelve months. At present, we believe, the North of England—Durham, Northumberland, Cumberland, and Westmoreland—is unrepresented among the Stewards. Is it too late to secure a brother to represent this large district? To represent it and work it in such a manner as shall call forth a grand total from the Northern Counties. It is certainly not too late for something to be done, and we feel sure that anything would be better than that so large a part of the country as is here referred to should remain quiescent. There are other districts at present unrepresented, but we are not in a position to refer to them other than generally. Any one who thinks he can do something towards raising the funds needed for the work of the Girls' School for the current year should place himself in communication with the Secretary of the Institution, who, we venture to think, will have no difficulty in pointing out a method of exercising such energies.

The Chairman of the year—Sir W. W. Burrell—will, we understand, pay a visit to the Schools on Tuesday, the 21st instant, and we believe most of the Sussex Stewards will be there to meet their chief. Much good may come from this visit if the visitors are pleased with what they see,—and it can hardly be imagined they will not be pleased. But with what additional encouragement Sir Walter would undertake his duties if he knew that the number of brethren who would supplement his exertions was above the average. A little extra enthusiasm on the part of the Craft would enable the Secretary to greet the Chairman with such pleasing news on the occasion of his visit to the Schools, and we trust it may yet be possible for him to do so.

We feel there is little to be added to what we have already said as to the way in which the children are cared for and educated in the School. The result of the Cambridge Local Examination, in December last, is ample testimony as to the latter. Fourteen girls were entered for examination, and all of them passed; while the appearance of the girls themselves amply demonstrates the former. We hope the Craft will give the Institution as much support as is possible, and that this year's Festival may be no exception to the many successes which have occurred in the past.

FREEMASONRY'S INCEPTION.

THE origin of Freemasonry is lost in the unexplored past. The principles, however, upon which it is founded have existed in active exercise ever since the creation of man, and so perfectly is it adapted to the necessities—intellectual moral, and social—of his nature that it must have taken shape and body at an early period in the history of organised society. Of course it is not claimed that Masonry, exactly as we now see it, took its origin in that early period and continued unchanged until the present time. But what is meant is this: Masonry, or something analogous to it, being a necessity of man's nature and of the circumstances of a primeval age, must have originated in the earliest stages of social organisation. And as man's necessities demanded its creation, so it has been kept in existence by his wants, social, moral and intellectual, until it has reached its present perfect and universal character; and, doubtless, it will continue his companion, instructor and purifier as long as time shall last.

Whilst the institutions of antiquity and all history appear to confirm this view, yet it must be acknowledged that even among well informed brethren there are wide differences of opinion as to the origin of our Institution.

Some, seeing only the fact, which all are bound to admit, that the rituals of Masonry, as they now exist, were systematised and crystallised into their present forms by the revival of 1717, in London, will have it that then and there Masonry had its origin, calling that movement not a revival of a living institution by an infusion into it of young blood, and life, and enthusiasm, but a renaissance—a resurrection of a defunct system of pagan antiquity, by breathing into its nostrils the breath of genuine life—the knowledge of the true God and the practice of divine charity. Their position, however, and arguments are generally regarded as untenable, as inconsistent with the well known facts of the 1717 movement, with its consequences, and with, indeed, many antecedent facts.

Others attribute its introduction into western Europe to the returning Crusaders of the middle ages, supposing that they became acquainted with it in Palestine. This theory, whilst many cling to it, adds nothing directly to the solution of the question of origin, but only postpones it and so tends to corroborate another view of the matter.

A third party to the discussion claims that Masonry was known in England as early as the time of Alfred the Great, and suppose it a Christian modification of Druidism or some other pagan initiation, but they do not attempt to locate its origin in time and place.

Others, with great probability, antedate the Christian era, and ascribe, not the origin proper of Masonry, but its purification and consecration, to Solomon, during the erection of the magnificent temple of the true God, in Jerusalem. The drama, the traditions of the Institution, its systems of words, grips, signs, and much of its symbolism, point to this origin, and, what is remarkable, recent discoveries, on the site of the ancient temple go, they claim, to confirm our legends.

Some ascribe it to Noah, some to Enoch, and some to Adam, our great forefather himself, who, in order to perpetuate the knowledge of the true God, to teach good will to men, and to inculcate a horror of all bloody violence, and especially of murder, based the first drama of the world upon its first tragedy and made it the vehicle of moral nstruction for all time.

Such are some of the conflicting views of even well informed brethren. As for myself, having reflected somewhat on this subject, and examined the evidence, both external and internal, I have no hesitation in saying, that to my mind it is clear, either that Masonry antedates the Christian era, or that it is, at least, not Christian in its inception. Were it of Christian origin, then its drama would be based upon the passion of Christ, and the doctrine of the resurrection, now faintly perceived by the general mind would be unequivocally enunciated, inculcated and insisted upon as a cardinal article of belief.

The whole ritual of Masonry—Blue Masonry as we technically call it—in its system of words, grips and signs, as well as its traditions, points to a non-Christian origin, and most unequivocally is Judaistic in its conception. Its hieroglyphic and mnemonic records, its oral transmission, its impressive manner of imparting instruction and fixing valuable lessons, and its thorough consecration to law and order, all go to show that it is not modern in origin and conception. Indeed, it seems to be impossible that Masonry, as we now know it, could have been devised in its general outlines since the era of printing, or in a Christian country, or among any other people than orientals, or in any other age than that of remote antiquity.

To suppose that this broad and comprehensive system, requiring knowledge of the most rare, abstruse and recondite character, could have been devised and put at once into successful operation by a few unknown and illiterate men, in 1717, either is absurd or calls for the direct agency of Deity. But whilst Masons believe that their Supreme Grand Master smiles upon their Institution and blesses their work, and whilst they claim that, like everything else that is good, Freemasonry is an inspiration of the Divine goodness, or an emanation therefrom, they do not feel authorized to claim a miraculous origin.

To suppose, on the other hand, that the most learned men of any particular age or country could, in addition to their learning, have had the necessary practical and minute knowledge of the handicraft interested and of human nature; could, without the largest experience, have conceived the broad philanthropy upon which the Institution is founded; could have imbibed the spirit of antiquity which it breathes; could so have translated themselves into the past as to originate and develop into instant maturity this giant Institution, with all the odour and sanctity of hoary age, is no less impossible, or calls no less for the direct interposition of Deity.

I feel constrained, therefore, to give Masonry an origin in the unknown depths of the misty past, and to ascribe it as we now have it, not to any particular man or set of men, nor to any particular age or country, but to regard it as the result of the combined wisdom and philanthropy of the race working harmoniously together through untold ages, now advancing, now retrograding, now innovating, now pruning. And as it must have its vicissitudes, now in prosperity, now in adversity, courted at one time and persecuted at another, zealously cultivated in one age and country, and neglected if not disavowed in another, we naturally expect to find in its ritual, its work, its traditions, evidence of these fluctuations.

Accordingly we do find upon examining this mysterious structure, proceeding very much as does the geologist whilst exploring the crust of the earth, that the upper story, its roof and battlements, its ornaments, and furniture and general appointments, are largely modern and especially Anglo-Saxon in their character, showing that it is now the heritage of that great branch of the human family; going lower down, everything is of a medieval age; pushing our way still farther toward the foundation, the misty, glimmering light enables us to discover relics of a character undoubtedly Judaical, perhaps of the age of Solomon; groping our way still downward, as far as the fitful light will allow us to go, we come to unquestioned Egyptian remains. Beyond that all is impenetrable gloom, a darkness which can be felt, and we are compelled to give up the farther search, but with a curiosity, a zeal, an interest, all the more whetted as it is impossible to gratify it.

I believe, then, in the antiquity of Masonry; that it was once specially Egyptian in its character; that subsequently it was purified, by Solomon, perhaps, and by him consecrated to the noblest purposes; that becoming then the heritage of the Israelites it assumed its undoubted Hebraic character; that it has been largely modified by successive generations and nations; that in the lapse of ages it became, under the providence of God, the inheritance of the Anglo-Saxon race, who, after perpetuating it for centuries as they received it, finally, under the inspiration of genius, following the example of others, remodelled and reconsecrated it, giving it its Christian character, and yet, in the broadness of its charity and the glory of its philanthropy, not excluding any one who, believing in the true God, has the other necessary qualifications for initiation.

While contending, therefore, that Masonry antedates the Christian era, and clearly is not Christian in its inception, it is further claimed that not only is there nothing anti-Christian about it, but that Christianity is its necessary complement and perfection, engrafting, as it does, upon Masonry the idea of spiritual regeneration and pointing the way, through the Church, to the Lamb of God, the Saviour of the world; yet not requiring a belief in that Saviour, nor an acceptance of Him, as a prerequisite for admission into the mysteries of the Fraternity, but welcoming every sincere believer in the one true God, whether he be our elder brother, the Jew, or our younger brother, the Mahometan, or a purified heathen, led by natural religion through nature up to nature's God and Maker, as well as the enlightened believers and followers of Christ.—Voice of Masonry.

BRO. GEORGE HUGGETT.

WITH extreme regret we have this week to record the death of Bro. George Huggett, P.M. of the Tredegar Lodge, No. 1625, and P.Z. of the Sincerity Chapter, No. 174, which took place on the 3rd inst, in the 42nd year of his age. Bro. Huggett was initiated into Freemasonry in November 1868, in the Lodge of Prosperity, No. 65. He was one of the Founders of the Tredegar Lodge, being nominated in its warrant as Senior Warden, and regularly served that office. He was subsequently elected to the office of W.M., and acted in that capacity in a most satisfactory manner. He remained a subscribing member of the Lodge until his death. He was exalted into Royal Arch Masonry in the Sincerity Chapter, and there attained the honour of the chair of Z. In public life Bro. Huggett filled the appointment of Assistant Clerk of Poplar Union, a post he occupied for a term of twenty-two years, only relinquishing his duties seven days before his death, although in delicate health some time previously. During his long association with the district, he had made many friends in Poplar, and was respected by all the inhabitants by whom he was known. He leaves a widow and three sons—aged seven, nine, and eleven years respectively—to mourn his loss. His funeral took place at Ilford Cemetery on Thursday, and was attended by a large number of his brother Masons, among whom were Bros. Hubbard W.M., Verry P.M., Deason P.M., Anning P.M. Treasurer, Lacey P.M., Kendall P.M., Sly S.W. (all of 1625); also Bros. J. J. Berry, G. Graveley, C. H. Webb, Tippett, Maloney, Stunt, T. B. Daniells Treasurer 781, and several other brethren. The coffin bore a number of handsome wreaths, sent by his brother Officers and other sorrowing friends. A melancholy feature at the grave was the appearance of the three sons of our deceased brother, each with a basket of flowers to scatter over the remains of their parent.

BRO. DR. JOSEPH J. POPE.

ANOTHER old friend, and a well known brother, has passed away in the person of Bro. Dr. Joseph J. Pope, who died of syncope on Monday, the 6th instant. Bro. Pope was initiated in March 1879, in the Lodge of Sincerity, and afterwards became a joining member of No. 946—the Strawberry Hill Lodge, Twickenham. Bro. Pope was a popular member of the medical profession, and a surgeon in the military train and artillery. His geniality secured him many friends in the circle in which he moved. His remains will be interred at Abney Park Cemetery, at 12 o'clock to-day.

The monthly meeting of the General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys took place at Freemasons' Hall on Saturday, the 4th inst., under the presidency of Bro. Edgar Bowyer P.G.Std.B. The minutes having been confirmed, those of the House Committee on the 20th and 24th ult. were read for information. Three petitions on behalf of candidates were submitted, considered, and accepted for the October Election. Grants of £5 each, towards outfit, were voted to four former pupils of the Institution, and it was ordered that £3000 India Four per Cent. Stock should be sold on account of the Preparatory School Building Fund. The handing in of notices of motion for the Quarterly Court of the 13th instant, and a vote of thanks to the Chairman, concluded the proceedings.

The Committee of Management of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution met on Wednesday, the 8th instant, at Freemasons' Hall, under the presidency of Bro. H. B. Marshall, Grand Treasurer. The customary formalities having been disposed of, Bro. Terry, the Secretary, reported the death of four annuitants, three males and one female, and then read a letter from the solicitor to the estate of the late Gilbert C. Harris, of Clifton, announcing that a legacy of £100 had become due to the Institution, the former tenant for life having recently died. Letters were also read from Brother Vassar-Smith, of Gloucester, and Brother G. S. Recknell, acknowledging the compliments paid to them at the last meeting of the Committee. The reports of the Warden and of the Finance Committee were submitted. The latter shows that there is now a balance of £9076 6s 1d in favour of the Institution, made up as follows: Balance brought forward on Male Fund, £486 10s 10d; subsequent receipts, £3985 5s 5d; total, £4471 16s 3d; expenditure, £1921 3s 4d; balance on Male Fund, £2550 12s 11d; balance brought forward on Female Fund, £2075 9s 10d; subsequent receipts, £6224 6s 9d; total, £8299 16s 7d; expenditure, £1872 11s; balance on Female Fund, £6427 5s 7d; and balance on Sustentation Fund, £98 7s 7d. The investment of £2000, from the Widows' Fund balance, in East India Four per Cents., and the depositing of £5000 at the Bank on call was recommended by the Finance Committee, and after formal proposition was agreed to by the Committee of Management. The receipt of a petition from the Fishmongers' Company, to be presented to Parliament, against the Corporate Property Security Bill, was announced, but on Bro. Terry explaining that it did not in any way affect the Benevolent Institution, it was resolved not to take any action upon it. The appointment of Brother James Terry jun. as clerk in the office, in room of Brother Recknell, resigned, was confirmed, the commencing salary being fixed at £130 per annum. The preparation of the annual report of the Institution was entrusted to a Committee, consisting of Bros. Farnfield, Lacey, and Newton, and it was resolved that the Stewards of the late Festival should be invited to visit the Institution at Croydon. The proposition was then brought forward to present to Brother James Terry the sum of one hundred guineas, in recognition of his exertions in connection with the late Festival. The motion stood in the name of Bro. Edgar Bowyer, and was formally moved by him. It was seconded by Brother Hogard, and, after some discussion, was carried. An amendment, proposed by Brother Charles Lacey, and seconded by Brother Henry Moore, that Brother Terry be presented with the Vice Patronship of the Institution, in lieu of the one hundred guineas as proposed, was lost, the original proposition being carried by 17 votes to 9. The proceedings were brought to a conclusion by the passing of a vote of thanks to the Chairman.

We congratulate the brethren of the Tyrian Lodge, No. 253, on the eminent success that attended the celebration of their Centenery, on Thursday. Their arrangements were happily conceived, and were carried out with a liberality that shews that at Derby the true spirit of Freemasonry is prevalent. We feel that our esteemed Bro. Thomas Cox P.M. P.P.S.G.W., P.G. Treasurer, the present Master of this flourishing Lodge, will ever look back on this meeting as one of the most pleasant he has been associated with. We hope to give a full account in our next issue.

UNFAIR CLAIMS ON THE CHARITIES.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I quite endorse the opinions expressed by your correspondent, "A SUPPORTER OF THE SCHOOLS," with respect to the plurality of benefits sought for and obtained at the hands of our Institutions; and it is a question which should be anxiously taken into consideration by the rulers of the Craft. Like yourself, I had always understood that when the laws were altered in 1879, it was fully intended that only one member of a family should be eligible for the Institutions, "unless the number of vacancies is in excess of the number of candidates." This, it appears to me, is nothing more than is fair and reasonable, for, as every brother must have observed who has watched elections in the past, many children whose claims to the bounty of the Craft were admitted to be more deserving have had to stand aside for some time, and probably altogether, because of the interest taken by a section of the brethren in the case of a child whose brother or sister was already in receipt of the benefits of the Schools. I am sceptical enough to think that it is not always the most deserving or necessitous who find their ways upon the lists of successful candidates at Masonic elections. Is not the position lately occupied by the deceased brother—the amount of his subscriptions to the funds of his Lodge and the Charities—and such like often made a primary consideration, before the real necessities of the widow and the fatherless? A man might have been a good and useful member of the Craft, and on his death might leave his family well, if not amply, provided for. Such a case, in my opinion, does not compare with that of the less opulent brother who from "circumstances of unforeseen calamity and misfortune" is unable to leave anything whatever to his unfortunate widow and little ones. In the latter case the hardship is far greater, and should be the first to enlist the sympathies and help of the brethren. That one of these little ones should be elbowed aside for the sake of securing the benefits of education and maintenance for two children of a comparatively independent widow is scarcely fair and reasonable, nor is it, I should say, within the meaning and intentions of those by whom the laws of our Masonic Charities were framed.

I remain, Dear Sir and Brother,

Fraternally yours,

A STEWARD.

LODGES OF INSTRUCTION.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I have read with peculiar interest the correspondence that has recently passed in the columns of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE on various matters of detail in connection with Lodges of Instruction, and if the various opinions expressed and suggestions thrown out by the several writers are taken to heart by those who are the leaders in this useful branch of the Order, no doubt the effect will be most salutary and tend to greatly improved results. I am cordially in favour of "WATCHMAN'S" view with respect to the blending of refreshment with Masonic labour, which has always appeared to me "incongruous," though of course the old saying comes in—"Many men, many minds." The duty, also, of Masters and Officers of Lodges attending as often as they conveniently can the Lodges of Instruction formed under their respective banners, and which has likewise been alluded to by several of your correspondents, seems to me to be an essential point, as tending to stimulate the coming generation in their laudable endeavours to master the ritual and qualify themselves for office, to which it should be the ambition of old and young Masons to attain. But there is yet another matter to which probably the attention of Preceptors may be called with some advantage, and that is the too prevailing custom of "ringing the changes," so to speak, in the selection of Officers at the weekly meetings of Lodges of Instruction. For instance, we see brethren who are enthusiastic in their desire to work up, repeating the round of the chairs, and in many of your reports of these meetings lately I have seen the same names appearing week after week as filling the various offices. I am aware it is the invariable custom to appoint Officers by rotation, but it is frequently found that a brother who has worked up to the chair re-appears on the following week, "after his term of office has expired," contrives to secure a minor position, and in a short time he is again in the chair. Thus the younger or more retiring brethren are shut out from many of the advantages they hoped to gain by attending Lodges of Instruction. It may be said that the old verdict, "serve 'em right" applies to this case, that they should press their suit, and secure for themselves the privileges they covet. But in most instances they are too shy, or too modest, to push themselves forward, and thus they are nowhere in the race. What I wish to suggest is, that there should be no such race—that Preceptors should cast about them for men who have not before taken office, and endeavour to induce them to begin at the lowest rung of the ladder with a view to ascending by degrees to the chair. In many cases, as at present arranged, Lodges of Instruction resolve themselves into a select coterie, the same Officers appearing in kaleidoscopic fashion all the year round, and the natural consequence is that the meetings become somewhat monotonous, and fall short of the object intended, viz., of giving an opportunity of practice, as well as of instruction, to all the members. I trust there will be a continuance of that interchange of thought and opinion you have evoked upon this important subject, and remain,

Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

A YOUNG MASON.

JAMES ANDERSON.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In the first volume of a new English Biographical Dictionary, recently printed in London, I find a biographical sketch of James Anderson, which contains some matter that never appeared in a Masonic publication, and also references to works that may lead to a further extension of the life of Anderson. The writer of the said sketch made some mistakes, which I endeavour to correct.

Fraternally yours,

JACOB NORTON.

"James Anderson, preacher and miscellaneous writer, brother of Adam Anderson, was born about 1680, at Aberdeen, where he was educated, and probably took the degree of M.A. and D.D. In 1710 he was appointed minister of the Presbyterian Church in Swallow-street, London, whence he was transferred, in 1734, to a similar charge in Leslie-street, Leicester Fields. According to the 'Gentleman's Magazine,' he is said to have been well known among the people of that persuasion resident in London as Bishop Anderson, and he is described as a learned but imprudent man, who lost considerable part of his property in the fatal year 1720. Several of his sermons were printed. One of them 'No King Killers,' preached in 1715, on the anniversary of the execution of Charles I., was a zealous defence of the conduct of the Presbyterians during the civil wars, and reached a second edition. Anderson was a Freemason, and when in 1721, [soon after] the revival of Freemasonry in England, the Grand Lodge determined to produce an authoritative digest of the Constitutions of the Fraternity, the task was assigned to him.—(Entick's edition of the Constitutions, p 194, 1747) [probably 1754 or 1767]. It was as Grand Warden of the Grand Lodge that he presented it on completing his task—'The Constitutions of the Free Masons, containing the History, Charges, Regulations, &c. of the Most Ancient and Right Worshipful Fraternity, for the use of the Lodges, London, in the year of Masonry 5723, Anno Domini 1723.' This work, which passed through several editions, was long recognised by English Freemasons to be the standard code on the subject, and was translated into German. An American fac-simile of the first edition of 1723 was issued in New York in 1855, and there are reprints of the same edition in Coxe's 'Old Constitutions' belonging to the Freemasons of England and Ireland (1871), and in the first volume of 'Kenning's Masonic Archæological Library, 1871.' Anderson also contributed to Masonic literature a defence of Masonry, occasioned by a pamphlet, 'Masonry Dissected, 1735,' which was translated into German, and is reprinted in Oliver's 'Golden Remains of the Early Masonic Writers (1847).

In 1732 appeared the work by which Anderson is chiefly remembered, viz., Royal Genealogies of Emperors, Kings, and Princes, from Adam to these times. Professedly based on "Genealogisch Tablen," by Johann Hübner, it was largely supplemented by Anderson's industry. While the earlier sections of the work are of little historical value, the latter are often of use in relation to genealogies of continental dynasties and houses. The volume closes with a synopsis of the English Peerage, and in the preface the author intimated his readiness, if adequately encouraged, to delineate and dispose at full length the genealogies of all the peers and great gentry of the Britannic Isles. Anderson's last work, which he was commissioned to undertake by the first Earl of Egmont and his son, from materials furnished by them, bore the title, "A Genealogical History of the House of Yvery, in its different branches of Yvery, Lovel, Perceval, and Gournay;" but the first volume alone was completed when he died, on 25th May 1739, and a second volume, subsequently published, was due to another pen (see vol. 2). The work was soon withdrawn from circulation, on account of disparaging remarks in it on the condition of the English Peerage, and on the character of the Irish people. It was re-issued, however, without the offensive passages, in 1742. (See Notes and Queries, First Series, iv. 158, and Letters of Horace Walpole (1857) I. vi. and II. 145). Much of the genealogical matter in the book has been pronounced to be mythical. (Drummond's "History of Noble British Families" (1846), Art. Perceval. Another work of Anderson's, viz. "News from the Elysium; or, Dialogues of the Dead, between Leopold, Roman Emperor, and Louis XIV., King of France," was published directly after his death in 1739.

INEQUALITIES OF CHARITY.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—To expect perfection in the administration of Charity is about as reasonable as to fix the date of the millennium. All mundane matters are liable to human error. If the affairs of life could be regulated with the same absolute precision as a mathematical problem, there would be no difficulty in securing perfect justice. But conditions vary in almost every case, and all that can be done is to approximate as nearly as possible to that happy condition of doing to others as we would that they should do unto us. If we would understand the feelings of others we must try and realise their position, and regard matters from their stand-point. Suppose two widows with equal numbers of children, and in a somewhat similar pecuniary condition. Mrs. A. has already a girl in the Masonic School, and desires to get a son in also. Mrs. B. wishes to get her son in the School too, but finds her chance discounted by the double claim of Mrs. A. What naturally would be the feelings of any one placed in the position of Mrs. B.? Why, I have no hesitation in saying it would be a keen sense of injustice. I have supposed perfect equality in necessity, but this rarely exists. It may be, and often is the fact, that the most successful are the least deserving, comparatively speaking. It is a truth which cannot be controverted that many a deserving case is lost for want of means and friends to secure success. To make matters worse, by giving double to some, while others are sent empty away, is the refinement of cruelty. While the demand continues to be what it is, the rule should be one family, one school place; and if there is no law to that effect, the sooner one is made the better. I am ashamed sometimes to witness the way some claims are pushed. I often think that the mark of true charity is missed, and that it is administered upon the principle that "he that hath, to him shall be given; and he that hath not, from him shall be taken away, even that which he hath." This is a selfish age, I am afraid, and in the struggle for gain people forget the rights and claims of others. Perhaps the Committees of the two Schools will take the matter into consideration, and adopt the single plan of election. If they cannot do this, I see no possible means of correcting an injustice, the result of might and the possession of cash and friends.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

JUSTICE.

KENNINGTON CHAPTER, No. 1381.

THE installation meeting of this excellent-working Chapter was held on the 2nd inst., at the Horns Tavern, Kennington. Present:—Comps. W. P. Webb M.E.Z., C. H. Kohler (M.E.Z. elect) H., H. M. Appleton J., G. Everett P.Z. Treas., H. Higgins P.Z. S.E. The Chapter was opened and the minutes were confirmed. A ballot was taken for the admission of Bro. W. A. Dowling, who was duly exalted into R.A. Masonry. The report of the Audit Committee was read and adopted. Later on Comp. Kohler was installed as M.E.Z., H. M. Appleton H., E. Ayling J. The ceremonies were performed by Comp. Jas. Terry P.Z., who as usual gave a faultless and impressive rendering. The M.E.Z. then appointed and invested the following Officers: G. Everett P.Z. Treasurer, H. Higgins P.Z. S.E., G. Gardner P.S., H. J. Lardner P.Z. S.N., H. Cruse 1st Asst. Soj., W. A. Dowling 2nd Asst. Soj. A letter of condolence, to be recorded on the minutes, was unanimously voted to Comp. G. Everett, sympathising with him on his recent sad bereavement. A cordial vote of thanks was also given to Comp. Jas. Terry for the able and efficient manner in which he had performed the ceremony of installation. The Chapter was then closed, and the Companions sat down to a very excellent banquet, provided by Comp. Buxton. After the formal toasts, Comp. Kohler, in eulogistic terms, proposed the health of the M.E.Z. This having been responded to, the M.E.Z. proposed the health of the I.P.Z., and presented him with a very elegant P.Z.'s jewel for the services rendered by him to the Chapter during his year of office. Comp. Kohler having suitably replied, the newly-exalted Companion was complimented; the M.E.Z. was proud of the introduction Comp. Dowling had brought with him, while from the attention he had paid to the ceremony he felt sure he would be a credit to the Chapter. Comp. Dowling said it afforded him great pleasure to be exalted; he and Comp. Gardner had worked side by side in the Craft satisfactorily, and he hoped they would work equally so in the Chapter. Comps. H. Lee P.Z. 795 and H. E. Price 1507 responded for the Visitors. The toasts of the Treasurer, Secretary, and Officers, and that of the Janitor were given in due course. Comps. Webb, Walls and Cruse contributed to the harmony, and Comp. Jas. Terry gave an excellent recitation.

A Convocation of the North London Chapter of Improvement was held on Thursday evening, at the Alwyne Castle Tavern, St. Paul's Road, Canonbury, at o'clock. Comps. W. Radcliffe M.E.Z., J. Strugnell H., G. Gregory J., J. E. Sheffield S.E., R V Davis S.N., E. W. Money P.S., T. C. Edmonds Preceptor. This Chapter of Improvement is always well attended, and on this occasion the respective offices were ably represented. Unfortunately Comp. Captain Nicols, through indisposition, was unable to be present to recite the clauses of the R.A. degree.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Rheumatism and gout.—These purifying and soothing remedies deserve the earnest attention of all persons liable to gout, sciatica, or other painful affections of the muscles, nerves, or joints. The Ointment should be applied after the affected parts have been patiently fomented with warm water, when it should be diligently rubbed upon the adjacent skin, unless the friction causes pain. Holloway's Pills should be simultaneously taken to diminish pain, reduce inflammation, and purify the blood. This treatment abates the violence and lessens the frequency of gout, rheumatism, and all spasmodic diseases, which spring from hereditary predisposition, or from any accidental weakness of constitution. The Ointment checks the local malady, while the Pills restore vital power.

"Chips from a Rough Ashlar 'knocked off' by the Gavel of Common Sense; a Discourse on the Ritual and Ceremonial of Freemasonry. By W. Bro. James Stevens P.M. P.Z., &c. Author of 'Uniformity of Masonic Ritual and Observance,' 'Map of the Masonic Lodges in England and Wales,' &c., &c. London: Bro. Richard Tilling, 55 Warner-street, Great Dover-street, Southwark, S.E. 1885.

AMID some verbiage that might very well be left out, there is a great deal in this capitally got up volume to make Freemasons think. We cannot say of it what Professor Sedgwick once said of a sermon of his that had swollen into a bulky volume, that the discourse looked "like a grain of wheat between two mill stones." On the contrary, the grains of wheat are everywhere in Bro. Stevens' Book, and if now and then there is more of the husk than there should be, we must remember that men differ in style of writing as well as in modes of speech. Bro. Stevens is an earnest reformer, and an enthusiastic Mason. Earnestness and enthusiasm are not quite so much admired in this utilitarian age as they used to be, and we must not be surprised if men discount words as they do time, by crowding as much as possible into a given space. Were it not, however, for such men as Bro. Stevens, Freemasonry would lack a spur that is sadly needed, sincerity would lose some of its force, and example its encouragement. We commend Bro. Stevens for his discretion in dealing with points of ritual that cannot be disclosed to the vulgar world. In this sense his work is a model of propriety; while, in a critical sense it is bold and assertive, it is not offensive nor bigotted. Every Preceptor of a Lodge of Instruction ought to have this book, and no student of the Craft should omit consulting its pages. There is much that is suggestive in it, and a good deal of wholesome truth is told in a manner that cannot offend. We should be glad to learn that the labours of Bro. Stevens have been successful, for two reasons: one is in the interest of Bro. Stevens himself; and the other, the more important reason, is because success would imply progress in Masonic study. It would show that the brethren are desiring more light, and without being hypercritical or iconoclastic, are demanding purity in ritual and a general though liberal uniformity of working. However conservative brethren may be, however desirable it is to avoid alterations, it must be confessed that the diversity of working that now exists is a serious reflection upon the intelligence of Freemasons. And what is true of working is not less true of some of the language of the ceremonies. A pruning hand—firm but tender—is very much needed, and if Bro. Stevens does not in every respect fulfil the conditions of a complete reformer, he goes a long way in meeting existing difficulties. We invite a study of "Chips," therefore, as an earnest though reverent effort to improve Craft Freemasonry in its outward visible form, in order that the inward spiritual meaning may grow and fructify.

THE PORTSMOUTH FREEMASONS' CLUB.

ON Tuesday, 31st ult., the annual meeting of the shareholders of the Borough of Portsmouth Freemasons' Hall and Club Company (Limited) was held at the Club, Commercial-road, Mr. A. W. White in the chair. There was a large attendance, and the utmost satisfaction was expressed at the state of the company. The following report was read by Mr. Main (secretary). The directors submit the balance sheet for the past year, from which it will be seen that the figures allow of the payment of a dividend at 2½ per cent. The alteration and improvements which the shareholders, at the last annual meeting, expressed as desirable, have been carried out in a manner which is believed to have given general satisfaction. An additional mortgage of £600 has been raised upon the property for the purpose of meeting the extra capital expenditure. During the year Messrs. G. T. Cunningham, J. Craven, S. R. Ellis, and T. Marrs have resigned their seats at the board, and they have been succeeded by Messrs. A. W. White, H. J. Leader, W. Miles, and A. H. Hancox, who, with Mr. James Willmott, who retires by rotation, are willing to continue their seats at the board if the shareholders so desire. Messrs. T. P. Wills and T. H. Casey, the retiring auditors, are also willing to be re-elected, but the shareholders will be asked to vote some remuneration for the services they render. A dividend of 2½ per cent. was declared. The retiring directors were unanimously re-appointed, but Mr. F. J. Proctor was nominated in addition to the retiring auditors, and elected to the post hitherto occupied by Mr. Casey. It was resolved that £2 2s a year should be paid as remuneration for services rendered by the auditors. The balance sheet, made up to the 31st December 1884, and audited by Messrs. T. P. Wills and T. H. Casey, was submitted, and showed that the year's receipts on the revenue account amounted to £494 10s 1d, and payments to £223 1s 3d, giving a balance to be carried forward of £201 9s 1d. In the course of his address the Chairman remarked that the affairs of the company would warrant the payment of a higher dividend than that declared, but the directors thought it well to retain a good balance in hand. No doubt next year a dividend at a higher rate could be recommended.

INSTALLATION MEETINGS, &c.

LODGE OF ST. JOHN, No. 1306.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge was held on Wednesday evening, 8th inst., at the Three Nuns, Aldgate, when there was a numerous attendance of brethren and visitors. Bro. Couture, the retiring W.M., was supported by Bros. Clements S.W. and W.M. elect, Holdom J.W., Beck P.M. Treasurer, Swetman Secretary, Twinn S.D., Loftus I.G., Magrath P.M. D.C., Oxley and Sommers Stewards, and other brethren. The other Past Masters present were Bros. Mann, Veal, Tyer, Wooding, Parding; and the Visitors included Bros. Myers P.M. 1445, McClelland W.M. 901, Stephens W.M. 1623, Jennings 1237, Benson 160, Pope 1306, Dale 1278. Lodge having been opened in form, and the minutes of last regular meeting confirmed, the Audit Committee presented their report, which was most satisfactory. Bro. Wooding then took the chair, and Lodge having been advanced to the third degree, Bro. Halcrow was raised, the ceremony being ably performed. Bro. Clements was then presented by Past Masters Mann and Magrath as W.M. elect, and having assented to the responsibilities of office, a Board of Installed Masters was constituted, and the impressive rite of installation performed by Bro. Wooding, who acquitted himself most creditably. On the re-admission of the brethren, the newly-installed W.M. was greeted with the customary honours, and after the delivery of the charges, invested his Officers for the year, as follows:—Bros. Couture I.P.M., Holdom S.W., Twinn J.W., Beck P.M. Treas., Swetman Secretary, Loftus S.D., Oxley J.D., Eldon I.G., Magrath Past Master Director of Ceremonies, J. Sommers, Hurst and Flick Stewards, and Longstaff Tyler. The Worshipful Master then said he had a pleasing duty to perform, namely, to present to his Immediate Past Master a handsome and valuable jewel, which had been unanimously voted to him by the Lodge, as a mark of respect and esteem, and in recognition of the services he had rendered to the Lodge and in appreciation of the satisfactory manner in which he had discharged the duties of his office. He was sure it must be very gratifying to Bro. Couture to receive such an expression of their esteem and appreciation, and he hoped the Grand Architect of the Universe might spare him many years to wear the jewel, and to enjoy that respect which the brethren now one and all entertained for him. The Immediate Past Master said as he should have another opportunity during the evening of thanking the brethren for their kindness he would reserve his observations. After the transaction of some Lodge business, during which the Visitors at their own request withdrew, Lodge was closed with the customary good wishes, and subsequently the brethren partook of a sumptuous banquet, under the presidency of the new Master, who, in giving the loyal toasts, referred appositely to the visit of the Prince and Princess of Wales to Ireland, and rejoiced at the loyal enthusiasm evinced towards our Most Worshipful Grand Master, in whose movements all Freemasons take a lively interest. He also spoke in felicitous terms of the zeal and ability of the Masonic rulers in the discharge of their onerous duties in Grand Lodge. The Immediate Past Master, in proposing the toast of the evening, the health of the newly-installed Worshipful Master, expressed the opinion that Bro. Clements would be equal to the expectations any of the brethren had formed of him. He and their W.M. were both initiated on the same evening, and had passed through the Lodge together, and if they only gave Bro. Clements the opportunity and trial, he thought they would find him worthy of their confidence and the position in which they had placed him that night. They would be proud of their present Master during his term of office, and they would all share the hope that he might have a most successful and prosperous year. The Worshipful Master, in responding, said if one thing more than another could have appealed directly to his feelings of sensitiveness it was the hearty manner in which the toast had been received by the brethren. He was truly grateful for the hearty good wishes that had been made manifest, and for which he sincerely tendered his thanks. It was to him a great consolation to see such a display of kindly feeling around him, and it would be impossible for any man to more appreciate the responsibilities which attached to the high and honourable position to which he had attained than he did at that moment. He felt proud at having attained the summit of his ambition, and he trusted that during his term of office harmony would prevail, and that he might have plenty of work to do; this he pledged them his word he should do all he could to discharge to his own satisfaction as well as to the credit of his Lodge. In conclusion he exhorted the brethren to be strictly careful as to whom they recommended as candidates for introduction into the Lodge. They wanted good men and true—men of honour and uprightness—men worthy of the high and noble Order to which they belonged; ever remembering that it was far easier to keep ineligible applicants outside than to rid the Craft of them when once they were admitted. He then proposed the health of the Visitors, the toast being heartily received. Bro. McClelland, in responding, thanked the brethren exceedingly for the cordial welcome which had been extended to the Visitors. He had not been present at a meeting of this Lodge for two years, but he saw no diminution of the kindly feeling which they always extended to brethren of other Lodges whom they invited as guests. He thanked them for their kind reception and abundant hospitality on this as on former occasions. Bro. Myers P.M. also suitably returned thanks. The W.M. then proposed the health of the P.M.'s, the toast being most heartily received, and responded to by the I.P.M., who said he could hardly find words to express his thanks for the very handsome jewel with which they had presented him, and which he should esteem with fifty times more value than if it had come from any other hands. He was sure one and all of the Past Masters would be always willing to render any assistance that laid in their power. He asked the acceptance by the Lodge of an obligation stool, which he hoped they would receive in the same spirit that he would like to present it. He did not give it because the Lodge was not in a position to secure it for themselves, but as a means of comfort to the candidates in the various degrees. Bro. Mann, as the first Master of the Lodge, said it was gratifying to him to see it in so prosperous a condition; he could not be among them so often as he could wish, as he was passing into the "sere and yellow leaf." He spoke of the progress of Freemasonry since this Lodge was consecrated, fourteen years ago, and alluded in feeling terms to the visit of the Most Worshipful Grand Master and the Princess of Wales to Ireland, and the spontaneous loyalty which had been evinced by the better classes of the people in the sister isle. Referring to the summer banquet, he hoped it would be better supported than hitherto, and in humorous fashion suggested that if more of the brethren would take their ladies, and so have a "jolly good day of it," they would go ever afterwards. Bros. Beck and Veal also suitably responded. The health of the Installing Master was then proposed and heartily received, and in responding Bro. T. Wooding remarked he could assure the brethren that although he feared he had made a poor show that day, he had done his best, and hoped to improve on a future occasion. The Officers of the Lodge were next mentioned from the chair, and severally acknowledged the compliment paid to them. The list was fittingly closed by the Tyler. During the evening some excellent songs were sung, notably "The Midshipmite," by Bro. Veal P.M., Bro. Sherwin rendering efficient aid as accompanyist on the pianoforte.

EBORACUM LODGE, No. 1611.

THIS Lodge, which has, since its consecration by the Earl of Zetland in 1876, been holding its meetings in the Queen's Hotel, has just completed its purchase of buildings, which will at once be converted into a Masonic hall. The Lodge has been fortunate in finding a place eminently suited for the purpose. It will be remembered that in 1883 the Grand Master laid the foundation stone of the new Institute of Science, Literature, and Art, in York, and that there was on that occasion a most brilliant assemblage of the Craft. This building has just been completed, and the old building, which for a number of years has accommodated the members of the Institute, has been purchased by the Eboracum Lodge, for the sum of £1250. That so young a Lodge should have been able to acquire such a building without interference with its work for our Masonic Charities is almost startling, and reflects the utmost credit upon its members, many of whom are amongst the most active and intelligent of our brethren in the north. It is anticipated that a further outlay of about £200 will render the building fit for Masonic purposes, and it is expected that the May meeting of the Lodge will be held in the new premises. The location of the hall is as nearly as possible the exact centre point of the city, and the street (St. Saviourgate) has the advantage of being a very quiet thoroughfare. Entering from the street, by folding doors and through the inner glass doors, we find on the left the smoke room, 29 feet by 12, opening out of which is a small cloak-room and pantry, 14 by 7. On the same side of the entrance is a committee-room, 12 feet by 12, which can be added to the smoke-room when required by means of doors. On the opposite side of the passage is the banquet room, 42 feet by 13. Further on is an excellent lavatory and pantries, whilst at the rear of the building is a comfortable four-roomed Tyler's cottage, with all conveniences, and detached from the main building. Below there is extensive cellarage. A broad flight of stone steps with an iron balustrade leads to the Lodge-room, which measures 42 feet by 31, and is very lofty and well-ventilated, and has an organ recess measuring 10 feet by 10, with unlimited height. At one corner there is a small room, to be utilised as a library and museum, &c., 16 feet by 8. Altogether few more handsome or convenient Masonic halls will be found in that part of the country. The Eboracum Lodge possesses a large collection of Masonic prints and portraits, so that the walls of its new abode will be amply decorated, whilst its library has also swollen to a collection of some 200 volumes. The ceremony of dedication will probably take place at some late period in the summer.

RAYMOND THRUPP LODGE, No. 2024.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge was held on 30th ult., at the Mitre Hotel, Hampton Court, when the brethren were honoured by the presence of Sir Francis Burdett Prov. G.M. Bro. E. Graham P.G.S. performed the ceremony of installing the new Worshipful Master, Bro. Mildred, most creditably. In thanking the brethren for the honour done him, the new Worshipful Master said he would endeavour to imitate the example set by his predecessor. In carrying out the duties of his office he felt sure that he should have the support and goodwill of the brethren. All would, he felt convinced, unite in promoting the interest and harmony of the Lodge. By the bye-laws the membership is limited; the W.M. said they already had two-thirds of its number. The Lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren and their friends adjourned to the drawing-room, where an excellent banquet was served. The Visitors included Bros. Chapman P.M., W. R. Davis W.M. No. 87, W. H. Bale P.M. Several good songs were rendered during the evening, and Bro. Chapman gave his amusing recitation, "Old Mother Hubbard." A most enjoyable evening was spent.

The following Dinners were held at the Freemasons' Tavern during the week ending Saturday, 11th April:—

Tuesday—Caxton Lodge. Wednesday—Cavendish Pupils' Ball, Enoch Lodge, Lodge of Fidelity. Thursday—Polish National Lodge, Pilgrim Lodge, Rosicrucians. Friday—Britannic Chapter, Bedford Lodge, Thistle Lodge. Saturday—Duke of Cornwall Lodge.

THE ROYAL ORDER OF SCOTLAND.

ON Monday last the Earl of Rosslyn was installed as the Most Worshipful Deputy Grand Master and Governor of the Royal Order of Scotland, at a meeting of the Grand Lodge of the Order in the Freemasons' Hall, Edinburgh. Included in a large attendance of the Order were the Earl of Rosslyn, the Earl of Mar and Kellie Grand Sword Bearer, the Earl of Kintore Grand Marischal, the Earl of Haddington, Bros. A. Hay Senior Grand Warden, William Hay Junior Grand Warden, D. Murray Lyon Grand Secretary, George Dickson Grand Treasurer, J. T. S. Elliot Grand Banner Bearer, the Rev. T. N. Wannop Grand Chaplain, A. Mitchell Deputy Grand Marischal, R. S. Brown Instructor and Examiner, W. Edwards Grand Constable of the Tower, H. J. Shields Grand Guarder, W. N. Fraser, J. Webster, and F. E. Villiers Grand Stewards, W. M. Bryce Deputy Grand Guarder, and other gentlemen. The Earl of Rosslyn has been appointed Deputy Grand Master and Governor in room of the late Bro. John Whyte Melville. The Hereditary Grand Master of this Order is the King of Scotland; and, hence, in course of the installation ceremony, the Deputy Governor (Bro. W. Mann S.S.C.), addressed the Earl of Rosslyn to the effect that, in consideration of his ability, in his care for, and interest in, their ancient Order, he had been elected to fill the throne, in absence of the Hereditary Grand Master, the King of Scotland. The Deputy Grand Master and Governor having taken the oath de fideli, he was thereafter installed in the throne of the Grand Lodge, and invested with the badge of office. The Earl of Rosslyn having returned thanks for his election, the Grand Chaplain pronounced the benediction; and thereafter the Deputy Grand Master and Governor closed the Lodge. The ceremony of installation, conducted with full Masonic honours, was throughout of a most picturesque and impressive character. Prior to the installation, the Right Hon. the Earl of Haddington and eight other gentlemen were received into the Order. Dinner was served in the Freemasons' Hall in honour of the installation and investiture of the Earl of Rosslyn as Deputy Grand Master and Governor of the Royal Order of Scotland. About a hundred brethren were present. The Earl of Rosslyn occupied the chair, supported by the Earl of Mar and Kellie, the Earl of Kintore, the Earl of Haddington, Bros. Villiers of Closeburn, Shaw-Stewart, and other brethren. The vice-chairmen were Bros. William Mann Deputy Governor, and Alex. Hay Senior Grand Warden. All the office-bearers above mentioned were present, as were also, among others, Bros. F. A. Barrow, Glasgow, Dr. Winchester, Edinburgh, J. H. Balford, W.S., J. D. Dalrymple Duncan, Glasgow, Captain F. W. Allan, Glasgow, W. Officer S.S.C., James Crichton, Edinburgh, W. Maclaren jun., Glasgow, E. Armitage, Dr. Lilburne, Dr. Lavies, London, James Webster, G. P. Brockbank, Bolton, Fraser of Tornavean, Alexander Mitchell, David Kinnear, Edinburgh, Dr. James Carmichael, Dr. John Falconer, Ex-Provost Christie, Stirling, Lindsay Mackersey, W.S., and others. Apologies for absence were received from the Earl of Breadalbane, Sir Michael R. Shaw-Stewart, Bart., Sir Archibald C. Campbell of Blythswood, Bart., J. T. S Elliot jun. of Wolfelee, Grand Banner Bearer, Captain Russell Colt of Gartsherrie, Sir Molyneux Nepean, Bart., Captain Charles Hunter, North Wales, and other brethren. The Earl of Rosslyn wore the Star and Ribbon of the Grand Commander of the Order of Charles the Third of Spain. Dinner over, the chairman proposed the toasts of the Queen, the Prince and Princess of Wales, and other members of the Royal Family. The toasts were pledged with great cordiality. Bro. F. E. Villiers of Closeburn proposed the Navy, Army, Militia, and Volunteers. Dr. Lilburne, R.N., replied for the Navy, R. F. Shaw-Stewart for the Army, the Earl of Kintore for the Militia, and Captain Allan for the Volunteers. The Earl of Rosslyn, in a sentence, proposed in solemn silence the Memory of Robert Bruce, the hero of Bannockburn, and Restorer of the Royal Order. The toast was pledged in silence, and thereafter the band played "Scots wha hae." The Earl of Mar and Kellie proposed the toast of the Right Hon. the Earl of Rosslyn, Deputy Grand Master and Governor. The Earl of Rosslyn, who was received with loud and prolonged applause, observed that this Order, as a purely Scottish Order, had in it something which was so entirely Scottish, and brought with it something which, if he might be allowed to say it, rang of the old Clanship, that appointment to the head of it might be accepted as a token that the Scotsman who accepted of this purely Scottish office might be regarded as one who would endeavour to do his duty. He paid a compliment to the high and flourishing condition in which the Grand Office Bearers of Scotland, and the present permanent officials had placed the Grand Lodge of Scotland. The pleasantest duties of his life had been spent in connection with Scottish Masonic company. He looked forward still to many happy and pleasant day in connection with that noble body. The Grand Lodge was now in a flourishing condition, socially and financially, and that success was shared in by all the Orders of which the Grand Lodge might be said to be the head. Bro. William Mann S.S.C. proposed the Provincial Grand Lodges. This was acknowledged by Bro. F. A. Barrow for Glasgow, and Bro. G. P. Brockbank for Lancaster. The Earl of Kintore proposed the health of the Countess of Rosslyn, which was pledged with great cordiality. Bro. Mann proposed, and ex-Provost Christie, Stirling, responded to the toast of the youngest members of the Grand Lodge. The other toasts were—the Grand Lodge of Scotland, by Bro. J. H. Balford, W.S., and replied to by the Earl of Mar and Kellie; the Supreme Council, by Bro. F. E. Villiers, and replied to by the Earl of Kintore; the Deputy Governor and the other Grand Officers, by the Chairman, and acknowledged by Bro. William Mann S.S.C.; the Supreme Council Royal Arch Chapter of Scotland, by Captain F. W. Allan, and replied to by the Earl of Kintore; the Croupiers, by Bro. J. Dalrymple Duncan, and acknowledge by Bro. Alexander Hay; and the Memory of Bro. John Whyte Melville, proposed by the Chairman. In the death of Bro. Melville, he said, there was a blank created among Masons, and a void which it was difficult indeed to fill. So long as Masonry existed and flourished in Scotland, so long would this melancholy but just tribute to departed worth be paid throughout the length and breadth of the country. The meeting, which was of an exceedingly pleasant character, separated shortly before eleven o'clock. On leaving, the Earl of Rosslyn, as Deputy Grand Master and Governor of the Order, received three hearty cheers.—The Scotsman.

IT seems surprising how Dermott found time for his Masonic duties, and the composition of such a work as we have shown "Ahiman Rezon" to be. A journeyman painter, working twelve hours a day, as he describes himself, would scarcely be regarded as a likely person to distinguish himself as Dermott undoubtedly did, and yet his career is but another example of what can be accomplished when the heart is in the work. Dermott's life shows what an enthusiast he was, what a worker he proved himself to be, and what intelligence and courage he possessed. It does not appear that he continued his occupation as a painter very long, for in a comparatively short time after his settlement in London we find him liberally contributing to charitable objects. He next figures as a wine merchant in the City of London. From this trade he probably derived his means, as also the gout, with which he was afflicted for many years prior to his death, and which often prevented him from discharging some of his many Masonic duties. In addition to money gifts, he presented Grand Lodge with a throne, and "gave all his interest in the 'Ahiman Rezon' for the benefit of the charity." Dermott succeeded Bro. John Morgan as Grand Secretary, and, as we have stated, he first appeared in office, according to Bro. Bywater, in February 1752. On the 4th March in the same year he commenced these records, which abound in quaintness, terseness, and interest. On this occasion he reminded Grand Committee that complaint had been made against Thomas Phealon and John Mackey, known by the name of "leg of mutton Masons," for having initiated "many persons for the consideration of a leg of mutton for dinner or supper." Dermott describes Mackey as an empiric, and both as impostors in Masonry. Mackey claimed supernatural powers, by which he could teach a Mason how to become invisible. The first mention of the Royal Arch occurs in these minutes, and it refers to the pretensions of the two impostors, of being able to make Royal Arch men. It appears that "the parties had not the least idea of that secret, and that Mackey was incapable of making an apprentice with any degree of propriety." He deceived the people by "a long story about twelve white marble stones, &c., &c., and that the Rain Bow was the Royal Arch, with many Other Absurdities equally foreign and Ridiculous." The Grand Committee had no settled home for long, and the frequent changes that took place sometimes led to unpleasant encounters between the landlords and their friends and the rest of the brethren. In some of these Dermott came in for no little share of abuse. We do not propose to follow these disputes; they only show that human nature is the same in all ages under similar conditions, and that publicans are as human as any other beings.

Dermott was not long in discovering the necessity of having a Grand Master, and accordingly on the 6th October 1752 the following motion was carried: "Resolved, it is the unanimous opinion of Grand Committee that the Craft has flourished most and best when governed by a noble Grand Master. For though a General or Grand Committee have power to form new laws for the Fraternity, yet, to render them binding or render stability, a Grand Master is absolutely necessary to confirm them." Philip, Earl of Chesterfield, was thought to be a very proper person for the Office of Grand Master, and Dermott was appointed to wait upon this accomplished courtier and polite letter-writer. Nothing, however, came of the matter so far as the Earl was concerned, but on the 5th December 1753, a meeting of the Grand Committee was held, at which "Brother Robert Turner, Master of No. 15, was nominated and unanimously chosen its first Grand Master." From this time until the Union in 1813 (when the Duke of Kent, father of the Queen, held the position of Grand Master), the Antients were never without a supreme ruler. On 2nd March 1771 the Duke of Atholl was installed Grand Master, and from that time the Grand Lodge of the Antients was distinguished as the "Atholl" Grand Lodge. Dermott had now ceased to be Grand Secretary, and was installed Deputy Grand Master, the Duke signalising the occasion by giving the brethren a "Grand feast." It would be wearisome to follow the many events that occurred between this period and 1789, when Dermott's visits to Grand Lodge appear to have ceased. He was often the object of attack, and his conduct in the chair was not unfrequently challenged. But he came out of every ordeal with credit, if not always triumphantly. Though quick to resent, he was no less quick to forgive and forget. His position was one of great difficulty, and offered temptations for the exercise of arbitrary power that none but those possessed of superhuman unselfishness could resist. It is to the credit of Dermott that he always placed the Craft generally, and his own Grand Lodge in particular, before all other considerations; and finding that he had accomplished so much, he was content to bear hostile criticism—not without protest, defiance and disproof—with the confidence that his work would live to testify of him.

* Notes on Laurence Dermott, G.S. and His Work. By William Matthew Bywater, P.M. No. 19. London: 1884. [Privately Printed].

A few extracts will give some idea of the customs and manners of the times in which Dermott lived, and will let in a little light on disputed matters. In Grand Committee, 1st July 1752, "Heard complaint, and ordered Bro. Willoughby to refund nine shillings to a brother whom he had wronged, whereupon Bro. Moses Willoughby declared they might expel him, for he would not conform to the rules of any society upon earth by which he should lose nine shillings. Expelled accordingly."

Upon desiring to know whether there were any other books or MSS. more than had been delivered to him, Dermott was assured by some that there were not, and by others "that they knew Mr. Morgan had a Roll of parchment of prodigious length, which contained some Historical matters relative to the Antient Craft, which parchment they did suppose he had taken abroad with him." Next comes a blow and a vindication. "It was further said that many MSS. were lost amongst the Lodges lately 'Modernized,' where a vestige of the Ancient Craft was not suffered to be revived or practised, and it was for this reason so many of them withdrew from Lodges (under the Modern sanction) to support the true Ancient System. That they found the Freemasons from Ireland and Scotland had been initiated in the very same manner as themselves, which confirmed their system and practice as right and just, without which none could be deemed legal, though possessed of all the Books and Papers on Earth." There is no doubt but that the Grand Lodges of both Ireland and Scotland were on friendly terms with the "Antients," but that does not follow that they were unfriendly with the "Moderns." It is not unlikely but that the Craft sustained loss in consequence of the fierce antagonism that existed between the "Antients and Moderns," and that documents were lost or destroyed which would now have a most precious value.

In February 1754 Dermott was presented by Grand Lodge with a jewel, for his great services, to be worn and retained by him as his property. But the unselfish character of the man, where the Craft was concerned, is shown in the fact that when he retired from the office of Grand Secretary he handed over the jewel to his successor, and it was worn by succeeding Grand Secretaries. On the 14th of the same month, on the recommendation of the Grand Secretary, it was resolved "to hold a monthly Committee of Masters at the Crown, St. Paul's Churchyard, under the name of Committee of Inspection, to consider the merits of petitions for charity." In November of this year, "it was resolved to call the Committee of Charity henceforth 'The Stewards' Lodge.'" It was Dermott who proposed, in June 1756, that instead of the small fees usually paid to the Secretary, "One guinea should be levied on every new Warrant for the future." Here we see the basis of that grand superstructure—the Grand Lodge Benevolent Fund.

As exhibiting the angry feeling that prevailed between the rival Grand Lodges, it is recorded that not knowing the difference, one Carroll, a distressed Mason from Ireland, petitioned the "Modern" Masons, when he was met with the following reply from Mr. Spence, then Secretary to the Modern Society: "Your being an Antient Mason, you are not entitled to any of our Charity. The Antient Masons have a Lodge at the Five Bells in the Strand, &c. Our Society is neither Arch, Royal Arch, or Antient, so that you have no right to partake of our Charity."

With instances of how our brethren enjoyed themselves more than a hundred years ago, we shall close our extracts. In March 1766 it was resolved to wait upon the Grand Master, Lord Kelly, when "The Grand Officers and others, in fourteen coaches and chariots, went in Masonical procession to his Lordship the Grand Master's house, near Soho-square, and from thence through Hampstead and Highgate, back to dinner at the Five Bells Tavern, Strand." Again, in June, on St. John's Day, "the Fraternity, by permission of the Grand Officers, met at the Angell, in Whitechapel, and thence walked in procession to Stepney Church, where an excellent sermon was preached. . . . . After the sermon the Fraternity, amounting to a vast number, with three bands of musick, walked in like manner to the Angell aforesaid, where they separated, and each Lodge went to dine at the houses where held." On the occasion of a sermon being preached on St. John's Day, 1767, at St. Clement's in the Strand, it was "Ordered that the ringers of St. Clement's shall be paid one guinea, the poor of the Parish five guineas, and the Beadles ten shillings and sixpence." On St. John's Day, 1768, the Grand Officers and brethren assembled at Deptford, and after listening to a sermon, "walked in Masonical procession to the Assembly Rooms on Blackheath, where they dined in form, but did not think proper to open the Grand Lodge."

At the end of the book, Bro. Bywater gives a copy of Dermott's will. It is a short document, and the whole of its purport is contained in the following: "I bequeath my immortal soul to the immortal Creator of all things, my body to the earth, and all my worldly riches I bequeath to my dearly beloved wife, Elizabeth Dermott." The will was proved by the widow, 15th July 1791, just a month after her husband's death. The document adds that the testator was formerly of St. Botolph, Aldgate, but late of Mile End Old Town, St. Dunstan, Stepney. Bro. Bywater is anxious to find out where Dermott's remains were interred, and solicits help in that direction. He has searched the following registers, without success:—St. Botolph, Aldgate; Christ Church, Spitalfields; St. Mary, Bow; St. Mary, Bromley (Middlesex); St. Anne, Limehouse; St. Dunstan, Stepney; St. Mary, Whitechapel; Bunhill Fields; Bull Lane. It is singular that the burial place cannot be discovered; but as Bro. Bywater has done so much, evidently as a labour of love, he has a few claims upon the brethren to assist him in the completion of his self-imposed, though honourable task.

Brother J. Terry P.P.G.S.W. Norths and Hunts, P.M. P.Z., Secretary R.M.B.I., will rehearse the ceremonies of consecration and installation at the Wanderers' Lodge of Instruction, No. 1604, at Victoria Mansions Restaurant, Victoria Street, S.W., on Wednesday, the 22nd instant. ADELPHI.

THAT kind hearted democrat Bro. George R. Sims—whose "How the Poor Live" lately startled the world west of Aldgate Pump—has once again gone forth and achieved a victory. His melodramas first enabled Mr. Wilson Barrett to drag the Princess's Theatre out of the slough of neglect and despondency it had fallen into; his Merry Duchess brought sunshine to the flagging fortunes of the Royalty; his In the Ranks for some fifteen months crowded the Adelphi with delighted audiences, to be withdrawn in full vigour; and it is succeeded by "His Last Chance." By three o'clock on Saturday afternoon, the 4th instant, the pit entrance was besieged by claimants for seats, and when the curtain drew up on the new drama not a corner from which the administration could allow a glimpse of the stage was unoccupied. "His Last Chance" is a play of the good old fashioned sort, with plenty of situations, each one rising in intensity till the curtain falls on the last act. There are fourteen set scenes, some of them as complicated and ingenious as any this era of the stage carpenter has yet seen. Solid walls and ceiling darken; then revolve, changing as mysteriously as a card in the hands of M. Verbeck. There are thirty-two speaking parts, and each one filled by a fitting exponent. The dramatis personæ constitute a curious congerie. There is a French adventuress (Miss Louise Moodie), her son (Mr. Glenney), formerly a burglar, the avenger Karasof (Mr. D. Beveridge), escaped from Siberia, Squire Darryll a landed proprietor (Mr. G. Warde), Barton (Mr. Fernandez), a nefarious schemer, who has loved the adventuress whom the landed proprietor married, who devotes his energies to the ruin of his former rival. His daughter has secretly wedded young Darryll (Mr. Charles Warner). The French woman has been supposed dead for years, when Barton brings her from South America, to confront her husband, now married a second time. We need not follow the story. Miss Moodie gained a distinct triumph in the leading part; painstaking indeed must have been her study, for not once did the accent or gesture fail to mark the assumed nationality. As the plot thickens, and her scheming involves her in crime, she rose to tragic intensity of passion, and carried the house completely with her. Mr. Glenney surprised many of his friends by his portrait of the cunning, relentless, soft-voiced villain. The honours of the night were, however, divided by Mr. Fernandez, who has perhaps never produced a finer bit of character than this Barton, cruel and reckless until he finds his villainy has involved his daughter in the ruin he planned for the Darrylls. Mr. Charles Warner of course plays the hero, young Darryll, with manliness and feeling, but the part does not give much scope for gradation of tone. Mr. Garden gave a comic lover, in humble life, with excellent effect, avoiding over accentuation. Mr. Beveridge was earnest and picturesque as Karasof. Miss Mary Rorke as Mary Barton was graceful and sympathetic, as she always is. It would be but just to particularise nearly all the characters, but lack of space stays the pen; however, we must draw attention to the delicious vignette of the Irish landlady, given by Mrs. Carter. Loud applause summoned the scenic artists at every act, but the chief triumphs were, perhaps, the lovely "Garden and view of Haddon Hall," the realistic "Dock gates," and the wonderful interior of the Docks, with its multitudinous shipping, warehouses and working cranes. Bruce Smith, Hann and Telbin have evidently received cartes blanche, and have excelled themselves. It was nearly midnight before the green curtain fell, but no one had left the crowded theatre when, in answer to the triumphant thunder of applause, Mr. G. R. Sims appeared to bow and smile,—the most triumphant man in London that Saturday night.

ST. JAMES'S.

LONDON playgoers may well feel grateful for the happy inspiration which suggested to the managers of St. James's the revival of "The Queen's Shilling." It is far from a new play, but with each return to the footlights it seems to gain on our affections. The story is honest and wholesome. There is not a line in it that seems superfluous, while the interest rises through tears and laughter to the brilliant close, where youth and love take the prize of victory but share the glory with the generous foe, the gallant old Colonel, a character which, in the hands of Mr. Hare, gains such distinction and dignity. In fact, it may be described as one of the finest of this gentleman's fine creations. Mrs. Kendal, as the winsome, generous-hearted English girl, is at her best; indeed, where could we find a better? Mr. Kendal as Frank Maitland has a part that exactly suits him; one that makes his limitations seem excellences. Mr. Waring, as Jack Gambier, played brightly and well; while Mr. Hendrie was excellent as the unsophisticated Sam, who does not hesitate at an honest lie in furtherance of a good cause, but will not let his sweetheart indulge in such luxuries. Miss Cowel as Jenny was thoroughly natural, but we regret that the one discordant note should be imposed on this little lady. In the original the peasant girl is foster sister to the young chatelaine, and when she imperils her reputation to save the lady's lover the motive is perhaps sufficient, but in the English version her declaration that the young soldier passed the night at the inn seems somewhat reckless. But who would cavil at a detail amid such excellences? Admirably as the chief exponents acquit themselves the minor characters are most carefully portrayed. Especially good are the rollicking, dashing group of Lancers, with their sergeant (Mr. H. Vernon). The scenery is new and very beautiful; there is an especially lovely renaissance drawing room—white, with foliation in relief and brocade panels—an exquisite architectural study, perhaps not quite in harmony with the fallen fortunes of the house of Greville. "A Quiet Rubber" opened the evening, and Mr. Hare gave his wonderful study of the poor, proud Irish nobleman, Lord Kildare. The house was crammed from floor to ceiling on the first night of the revival, the Duchess of Edinburgh being among the visitors present.

STANDARD.

WE have often regretted that an actress with such emotional powers as Miss Amy Steinberg should so rarely give the public occasion to enjoy them. In Mr. Rose's new romantic play, "Two Women," produced on Easter Monday, at the Standard, this lady has excellent opportunity to display her mastery of dramatic passion. The story is an adaptation of Victor Hugo's "Mary Tudor." In its present form it is, perhaps, somewhat diffuse and episodical; but doubtless the author has exercised the experience gained by the first night to touch up certain roughnesses left here and there. There is a singularly fine scene, in the Fourth Act, where the duchess (Miss Steinberg) with her rival Agatha (Miss Jordan) await the news of an execution, neither knowing whether her or her enemy's lover is the victim. The tension of terror was finely indicated by Miss Steinberg, and the audience (5000 persons) acknowledged her efforts by enthusiastic plaudits. Mr. Daore seemed ill at ease as the romantic lover, Bernardo—perhaps his undoubted ability was marred by first night nervousness. The costumes are in excellent keeping, and some beautiful new scenery has been painted by Mr. Richard Douglass. The spirited management of the Standard assuredly deserves success in this its latest production.

ST. JAMES'S HALL.

ON our more pensive public holidays, Londoners who neither rejoice in the comforts of a club nor the social consolations of drawing rooms may well be grateful to the kindly entrepreneur who offers refuge from the blank dullness of the streets. Like the shadow of a rock in a thirsty land, St. James's Hall welcomed the Good Friday pilgrim, giving him in exchange for his meek thank-offering two hours and a half of delightful music, ably interpreted. The careful drill through which the Moore and Burgess Minstrels pass was well exemplified by the smoothness and finish with which both band and vocalists gave their selections, from Mendelssohn, Haydn, Meyerbeer, and other great composers, with whom in their dark days they have so little to do. Mr. E. Wilson sang "Oh, live, or let me die," by the composer of the Huguenots, in splendid style. Mr. C. A. Wilson gained an enthusiastic encore with "Angels ever bright." Blamphin's "Dreaming of Angels" was very gracefully interpreted by the choir and band, the harp obligato being given with exquisite sweetness. An overflowing house proved how well these Good Friday Concerts are appreciated.

MOHAWK MINSTRELS.

THE sweet discourse of music was liberally bestowed on the dwellers in "Merrie Islington" on Good Friday. The Mohawk Minstrels provided their annual sacred concert, and some four thousand persons assembled within their commodious hall to enjoy it. Mr. Francis, the impresario, has gathered an exceptionally good orchestra around him. His Harpist, Mr. G. Miles, would alone repay a visit to the Hall; the brilliancy and tenderness of his touch is supreme. Mr. Kottaun (cornet) interpreted Rossini's "Cujus Animam" with great dramatic power, and was no less applauded for Handel's "The trumpet shall sound." Master Vernon Douglas charmed his hearers with Rossini's "Inflammatus"—the sweet, bright tones of his young voice went directly to the heart. One of the chief successes of the night was the "Ave Maria" of G. T. Miles. The Latin words of the touching appeal needed no translation but that given by the emotional faculty of the singer, Mr. Ernest Gordon. "The Lost Chord" was very well sung by Mr. Kavanagh. The programme throughout was a most interesting one.

THE CRYSTAL PALACE.

WE have before us the programme of amusements just issued for the Great Handel Festival which is to take place at the above resort in June next, in commemoration of the bi-centenary of Handel's birth—an event which will be looked forward to with more than ordinary interest. As our readers well know, these Festivals are anticipated with peculiar pleasure on each occasion of their triennial recurrence by the musical world, both professional and amateur, who will have certainly no objection to this auxiliary to the ordinary routine; and we opine that the Palace, on the four days appointed, in the last week in June, will attract to itself vast numbers of those who have learnt, both in London and the provinces, to love and admire the magnificent compositions of this great master, whose jubilee will thus be celebrated. In the programme there is an interesting sketch of the life and writings of the eminent composer, his inexhaustible energy, unwearying industry, and marvellous conception. The pre-eminence of the Crystal Palace as the only suitable locale for the commemoration of such gigantic creations as those of Handel has remained unchallenged from the outset, and is now more impregnable than ever. It was chosen as the birth-place, it proved itself the nursery and training-school, and is now by common consent the home, of Handel Festivals. Therefore we anticipate that the attendance on the forthcoming occasion will be more numerous than ever before, and judging from the programme it is doubtful whether the great oratorios of Handel will ever have been heard to such advantage.

THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

THE April Quarterly Court and usual Half-yearly Election of this Institution took place on Saturday last at Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen Street, London. Bro. Horace Brooks Marshall, Grand Treasurer, occupied the chair, and in due course the minutes of the previous Court were put to the meeting and confirmed In accordance with the recommendation of the General Committee, one more vacancy was declared for the day's election, bringing the number of vacancies up to twenty-three, and later on that number of girls were elected. Bro. Horace B. Marshall was re-elected Treasurer of the Institution, and in acknowledging the compliment said he feared he should not be able to devote that time and attention to the duties of the office which had been given by his predecessor—the lamented Bro. Colonel Creaton. His many other engagements rendered the amount of time at his disposal very small. He was willing to devote as much as he could spare to furthering the efforts of the managers of the Institution in their labour of love, efforts which had raised the School to its present state of perfection, and he hoped that what he could do would be of service. From an experience of upwards of a quarter of a century in the working of many orphan establishments he could emphatically state that the pupils of the Masonic School at Battersea were excelled by the girls of no other similar establishment, either in their general bearing, their lady-like deportment, or their scholastic acquirements. To be associated in the management of such an Institution—in virtue of the office to which he had that day been elected—was a great honour, and he thanked the brethren for having elected him to it.

Bro. Henry Smith Prov. G. Sec. W. Yorks, Vice-Patron of the Institution, then submitted the motion standing in his name to the effect that one thousand guineas be accepted from the Province of West Yorkshire, for the purchase of a perpetual presentation of one girl to the School, to be called the "Sir Henry Edwards Presentation." He felt it was quite unnecessary for him to say many words in offering this proposition, as he knew he had the sympathy of the brethren in the matter, and also felt they would readily give their consent to it. The proposition was seconded by Bro. Samuel Rawson P.D.G.M. China, and carried. Bro. Frank Richardson, in the absence of Bro. Robert Grey, moved the proposition standing in the latter brother's name, seeking to confer the rank of Honorary Vice-Patron, with the votes attaching thereto, on Mrs. Howell, wife of the hon. surgeon of the Institution. Few brethren were aware, he said, of the great services rendered by this lady to the School and its inmates. In an Institution such as theirs it was not customary, nor would it be politic, to spend the money of the subscribers in teaching the pupils singing, but Mrs. Howell, who was an accomplished vocalist, attended regularly at the School and did her best to instruct the girls in singing. The great progress made by the pupils must have been manifest to any one who had recently heard them. He accordingly proposed that the honour he had mentioned should be conferred on Mrs. Howell. Bro. Chas. Lacey heartily seconded the proposition. He was pleased to learn how much the lady had done for the Institution. Scrutineers of balloting papers were then appointed, and the election for Girls was proceeded with, the result being that, of thirty candidates, twenty-three—of whom we give a list in another column—were elected, while the following seven were unsuccessful. The votes recorded against each will be carried forward to the next election, when we trust those of the girls then eligible will be more fortunate than they have been this time.

THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

THE Subscribers and Governors of this Institution held their regular Quarterly Court on Monday, the 13th instant, at Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen Street, under the presidency of Bro. Raynham W. Stewart P.G.D. V.P. &c. The usual formalities as regards the minutes of the last court having been observed, the brethren proceeded to the election of a Treasurer for the Institution, Bro. George Plucknett being unanimously re-elected, on the proposition of Bro. W. Roebuck seconded by Bro. J. L. Mather. Bro. E. F. Storr gracefully announced that after consultation with several friends he had come to the conclusion it was better to withdraw his proposition affecting the age of candidates, and this was accordingly done. Bro. A. F. Godson, Vice-Patron of the Institution, proposed that Law LVII.—which stipulates that candidates resident within six miles of Freemasons' Hall shall attend on presentation of their petition, and give evidence to the Committee of their ability to read, whereas those resident beyond the six miles have only to forward a Certificate to the same effect — should be erased. It had now become useless, and it was no longer necessary that children should be brought before the Committee for the purpose of proving their ability to read, as a special rule was in force that a certain standard should be attained previous to the admission of a child's name to the list of approved candidates. Bro. C. F. Hogard seconded the proposition, which was opposed by Bro. C. H. Webb. Law XLI., which fixes the standard to be attained by candidates prior to their being accepted, was of a general character, and he thought that the Committee should personally satisfy themselves that candidates were eligible whenever it was possible for them so to do. As an old attendant at the Committees of the two Schools, he was able to say that children who had reached an age when they should read fluently were frequently referred back to qualify themselves in reading. He thought that the old system should be continued, as when once a child was put on the approved list, it was simply a question of influence to secure election. Bro. J. E. Curtois moved as an amendment that the proposition should be adjourned until the next Court, in order that the question might be fully considered, but the Chairman ruled that the amendment could not be received. Bro. Ratcliffe considered that a law which made so invidious a distinction between candidates resident within six miles, and those outside that limit, should be got rid of as soon as possible. Eventually the proposition was put to the meeting, and it was decided that Law LVII. be erased. Bro. Mather then proposed that the House and Building Committee be empowered to expend a sum not exceeding £750 in providing laundry accommodation for the requirements of the ordinary Institution, in addition to the amount provided for in the estimates for the new buildings, to avoid the expense of two separate establishments, and this proposition was unanimously agreed to. Bro. J. S. Cumberland next drew attention to the case of William Edward Tappenden, No. 35 on the list of candidates, and proposed that the lad's name be removed from the list of approved candidates, stating as his reason that the boy's father had not left him penniless. He urged that the lad was provided for, and that to admit him to the Schools would be to shut out one not so fortunate. The proposition was duly seconded, but after discussion was rejected, the Chairman, among others, pointing out that the School was not intended for the reception of paupers. Brother Bowyer's proposition to increase the number of boys to be elected to twenty-six was carried. Scrutineers having been appointed, the election was proceeded with in due course. In our advertisement columns will be found the names of the successful candidates, while below we give a list of those who did not succeed, together with the number of votes recorded on behalf of each :—

CENTENARY OF THE TYRIAN LODGE, No. 253.

THE celebration of the centenary of a Masonic Lodge is an event of such rarity, that possibly very few brethren, excepting the more prominent members of the Order, have had the opportunity of assisting at even one such Festival, and it will be very many years before such celebrations will become of anything like frequent occurrence. At the present time, there are not more than three or four Lodges in any one year which can claim to have completed their one hundredth birthday, and as these are spread over all parts of the world, the possibility of any particular district having such an event to celebrate is indeed remote. Derbyshire has, however, been called upon within the last few days to do honour to such an occasion; the Tyrian Lodge, No. 253, completed one hundred years of uninterrupted Masonic existence on the 26th March last, it having been founded on the 26th March 1785. This Lodge being the oldest in the Province, and indeed for many years the only one in the district, it follows that the centenary of the Lodge was also the centenary of Derbyshire Freemasonry, which fact made the celebration under notice of even greater interest than it would have been had the centenary been confined to this Lodge only. As we said last week, in briefly recording the meeting, the brethren of the Tyrian Lodge are to be congratulated on the success that attended the celebration.

The Centenary Festival took place on Thursday, the 9th instant, when the proceedings commenced with the opening of a Lodge of emergency at the Masonic Hall, Gower Street, Derby, Bro. Thomas Cox P.M. P.P.S.G.W. P.G. Treas. presiding. Bro. Cox is one of the oldest and most esteemed Masons of the Province, and one of the oldest Past Masters of the Lodge, in which he has twice previously filled the office of Worshipful Master. He was well supported by a numerous assemblage of brethren, among those present we may name J. B. Coulson P.P.S.G.W. I.P.M., F. Campion P.P.S.G.W. S.W., T. Carter Wigg P.P.G.D. Essex J.W., Rev. C. T. Bromwich P.G.C. Chaplain, Wm. Naylor P.P.G.S.W. P.G. Sec. Treas., W. Silver Hall P.M. Sec., R. L. H. Mole S.D., Percy Payne J.D., E. R. Ward P.P.G.R. D.C., W. H. Marsden P.P.G.S.W. Org., J. H. Clarke I.G., J. Wright and M. Attwood Stewards. The other members of the Lodge present were—Past Masters W. Giles, R. Waite, Thomas Hall P.P.J.G.W., A. Grimwood Taylor, F. J. Robinson, T. Horsley sen., W. Welbourn, T. Horsley jun., J. Cutting, Fitz-Herbert Wright P.P.S.G.W., J. O. Manton, Percy Wallis P.G.D.C., John Smith P.P.S.G.W.; Bros. A. J. Flint, H. Davis, H. A. Bemrose, Colonel John Evans, F. E. Taylor, E. Sutton, T. H. Boam, A. Woodiwiss, H. V. Edwards, H. Woodiwiss, E. Molnnes, J. H. Richardson, and Rev. H. Price. The visiting brethren were very numerous and influential. It had been hoped that the Provincial Grand Master, the Marquis of Hartington, would have honoured the proceedings with his presence, but he was unavoidably detained in London by important State business. The Prov. G.M. was, however, worthily represented by the D.P.G.M., Bro. Haughton C. Okeover, of Okeover, whose genial presence is always a source of pleasure to the brethren. He was supported by Bros. Walters P.S.G.W., Maltby P.J.G.W., Rev. C. T. Bromwich P.G. Chaplain, Naylor P.G. Sec., E. Belfield P.G. Reg., James Crossley P.S.G.D., J. Bland P.J.G.D., W. Butterfield P.G.S. of Works, P. Wallis P.G.D.C., T. Parker P.G. Purs., and others. Among the visiting brethren present we noticed Bros. Colonel Le Gendre Starkie Provincial Grand Master of East Lancashire, Major John Woodall Grand Treasurer elect, C. S. Partridge P.P.G.M. Leicestershire, F. Binckes P.G. Steward, W. Roebuck P.G. Steward, H. R. Hatherley P.G.S. Notts, G. Beech P.G.S. Warwick, C. F. Wood P.G.S. Leicestershire, J. Chadwick P.G.S. East Lancashire, H. Smith P.G. Sec. West Yorkshire, James Terry P.P.S.G.W. Northampton and Huntingdon, W. B. Hextall P.P.S.G.W., Wright P.P.J.G.W., W. W. Morgan I.P.M. 211, J. Copestick W.M. 731, A. J. Waller W.M. 802, J. E. Russell W.M. 1085, besides representatives from nearly every Lodge in the Province.

The Officers of Provincial Grand Lodge having been saluted, and a similar honour paid to the representatives of neighbouring Provincial Grand Lodges the hymn, "Hail, Eternal, by whose aid," was sung and then the actual business of the day commenced. The Secretary read the circular convening the meeting, and the Chaplain having offered prayer the Provincial Grand Secretary read the Centenary Warrant from the M.W.G.M., certifying completion by the Tyrian Lodge of a hundred years of Masonic labour, and authorising all subscribing members to wear a centenary jewel in honour of the occasion. This was followed by the delivery of a most interesting history of the Lodge, by Brother Thomas Hall P.M. P.P. Grand Junior Warden, which we have much pleasure in reproducing in full.

An interesting document which had been brought under his notice served to establish the fact that a Masonic Lodge existed in Derby at least twenty years before the date of the Tyrian Warrant. It was a small piece of ancient-looking parchment, on which was plainly written the following:—"This is to certify that the bearer hereof William Sparkes, is a Regular Registered Mason, in our Lodge, No. 104, held at the Royal Oak Inn, in Derby, and has behaved himself as becomes a worthy brother of this Lodge. Given under our hand and the seal of the said Lodge, this 6th day of May, in the year of Lord God, 1766, and in the year of Masonry, 5766. Samuel Brown, Master; Richard Rutland, Senior Warden, and Henry Pratt, Junior Warden; Secretary, Thomas Greasley." The speaker added that this document was in the possession of Bro. John Smith, and was left by a Mr. Sparkes (presumably the son of the person referred to in it), who died some thirty years' ago, at an advanced age. The Warrant which authorised the foundation of this Lodge, a hundred years ago, was issued in the name of the Grand Master H.R.H. Henry Frederick, Duke of Cumberland, brother of George III. He was elected Grand Master in 1782, three years before the warrant of the Tyrian was granted. The Earl of Effingham was appointed acting Grand Master, and his name appeared upon the warrant. Two years after the Tyrian was established, the Prince of Wales, afterwards George IV., and his brother, the Duke of York, were initiated. Their brothers, the Duke of Kent (father of our present Queen) and the Duke of Sussex, afterwards Grand Master, had been received into the Craft shortly before, on the Continent, and on the death of their uncle, the Duke of Cumberland, in 1790, the Prince of Wales was elected Grand Master. He was not installed until two years later, and shortly after that event, in January 1793, the Tyrian Lodge voted an address to his Royal Highness, expressing the loyalty and attachment of the Lodge to his person, his family, and his Constitution. The Tyrian Lodge gave further proofs of its loyalty. In 1798 an address protesting against revolutions and treasonable practices was adopted, and contributions raised in aid of the Government "in the alarming crisis." In 1813, the Tyrian sent to London £42 5s towards the purchase of a jewel for the Earl of Moira (a distinguished Mason), on the occasion of his being appointed Governor General of India, whilst in 1815 no less a sum than £80 was contributed by the Lodge towards the relief of the families of the soldiers who fell at Waterloo, and five years later the death of the Duke of Kent was made the occasion of holding a Lodge of Emergency, when an oration was delivered by the Chaplain, Bro. the Rev. Charles S. Hope. The Tyrian, three years after its consecration, was 468 on the roll of Grand Lodge, but by the dissolution of older Lodges it now ranked as 253. At the time of its foundation the town did not contain more than a tenth of its present population. Reviewing the connection of well-known Derby merchants and public men with the Lodge, the speaker mentioned that the son of the celebrated William Duesbury, the founder of the Derby China Works, was initiated in the Tyrian Lodge in the first year of its existence, whilst his grandson, Henry Duesbury, architect, who designed the Derby Town Hall and the Derby Waterworks, was admitted in 1852. In 1825, William Corden, the artist, was initiated. Joseph Strutt, youngest of the three sons of the famous introducer of the Derby rib-stocking, was admitted to the Lodge in the first year of its existence; and Jedediah Strutt and George Henry, of Belper, in 1810. These were grandsons of the first Jedediah, and the former was the father of Mr. G. H. Strutt, of Bridge Hill. The connection of the Lodge with the industrial development of the town was further illustrated by the initiation in 1794 of John Whitehurst senior, described as "clockmaker," and who placed the chimes in All Saints' Tower. The application for the Tyrian warrant was headed by John Hollis Pigot, physician, who was Master for six years after its foundation. Daniel Parker Coke, M.P. and barrister-at-law, was initiated in 1787, and was W.M.in 1794, and again in 1796. He sat for Derby with the Lord Frederick Cavendish of that time, a few years before he entered the Lodge. In 1813 and 1814 William Spencer, sixth Duke of Devonshire, whose portrait adorned the Derby Town Hall, occupied the chair of the Lodge. His grace had been initiated in 1809. The chair now used by the I.P.M. was his gift, and he also presented his banner to the Lodge. He was for many years Grand Master of this Province, and was succeeded in the title and estates by the present Duke, and as P.G. Master by the heir to the Dukedom, the Marquis of Hartington. Bro. Henry Browne, whose name frequently occurred in the annals of the Lodge, must have been a very zealous and able Mason, as from 1785 to 1817 he was eight times W.M. and seven times acting W.M., when the office was held by brethren of high social position. In 1810, Viscount Tamworth, eldest son of the seventh Earl Ferrers, was received into the Lodge, and two months later, Nathaniel, second Lord Scarsdale, his father-in-law, was initiated. The Hon. Augustus, and the Hon. Edward Curzon, of Kedleston, became members in 1815, and the Hon. Francis Curzon, of Kedleston, joined in 1825, and was elected W.M. in 1826. Earl Howe was initiated in 1815, the Hon. Augustus Stanhope, son of the third Earl of Harrington, in 1815, and Earl Ferrers in 1858. In 1791, Mr. Charles Sedley Burdett, of Foremark, second son of the fourth Baronet was initiated. Of other members, he might name three Poles of Radbourne, and two of the Heathcotes, an old Derbyshire family, formerly of Littleover. The father and grandfather of the present Sir Henry Wilmot were members. Amongst other well-known names were two Gells, of Bopton, W. Pole Thornhill, of Stanton, the present Sir Henry Allsopp, the late Michael Thomas Bass, two members of the old Bainbrigge family, and last, but not least, Bro. C. R. Colvile, formerly M.P. for South Derbyshire and D.P.G. Master for many years. For many years the Tyrian was the only Lodge in Derbyshire. The Royal Sussex was consecrated in 1817, and no other until 1844. There were now in the Province twenty Craft Lodges, six Chapters of the Royal Arch, three Mark Mason Lodges, and a Chapter of the Rose Croix. Bro. Hall, in conclusion, said he would spare his hearers a narrative of the migrations of the Lodge from hostel to hostel, from its first home, at the Bunch of Grapes in the Market Place, until ten years ago it found an abiding place in that handsome hall, of which they were all proud, and for which they were grateful to those brethren to whose untiring perseverance and profuse liberality its erection was due, and particularly to the Provincial Senior Warden of last year, Bro. John Smith, whose name must always be associated with this material evidence of the prosperity of Derbyshire Masonry.

Major Woodall followed with an address, in which, after thanking the brethren for the honour they had assisted in conferring on him by electing him to the office of Grand Treasurer of the Grand Lodge of England, he reviewed the progress of Freemasonry during the past century. Socially, intellectually and in every sense the Craft had made extraordinary strides. The opposition to which the Order had been subjected was due to ignorance, but let it be their duty to answer the baseless charges of their critics by deeds of charity and love, and thus show the world that the aspersions cast upon them had their origin solely in the prejudices of their opponents.

The hymn "Maker and Father of us all" having been sung, Bro. E. R. Ward the Director of Ceremonies proceeded to unveil the Mural Tablet which had been placed in the Hall in commemoration of the event. This Tablet contains the dates of the foundation of the Lodge, the completion of its centenary and of the centenary festival, together with a list of the officers of the Lodge; while in a cavity at its back are deposited a number of Masonic documents. After the reading of a portion of the Volume of the Sacred Law by the Chaplain, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master proceeded to distribute the centenary jewels among the members entitled to wear them, and then address the brethren. He had hoped that the Provincial Grand Master would have been able to attend, and sincerely regretted his absence. The meeting was one in which he felt the utmost pleasure, while the interest of it would never be effaced from his memory. Interesting as the occasion was, however, he could but feel that it suggested many grave thoughts to their minds. There was something solemn in the lapse of one hundred years. It led them to think of all the different phases and experiences the Lodge had gone through, and of the many eminent members it had been instrumental in introducing to the Craft. These men had included representatives of all classes of society, and it was evident that they worked hard, in less favourable times than those in which they then found themselves, to promote the honour and usefulness of the Craft. The interesting record they had listened to could not fail to make them ponder over the work done by those who had gone before them, the zeal and fidelity they had shown, and the useful lives they had led. Then the contemplation of the past led them, as Masons, to think of the future, of the responsibilities which rested upon them. Bro. Okeover concluded by exhorting his brethren to feel that in the discharge of their duties as citizens and as Masons, their best and surest guide was the Great Architect of the Universe.

The Rev. E. A. Hillyard P.P.G.C. was next called upon for an Oration on the Nature and Principles of the Order, and in an address, delivered with much earnestness, he repudiated the right of any body of men, or the right of any potentate, to cast aspersions upon the Masonic body. It was a matter of concern and deep sorrow that an Order to which he was affiliated, and in which he, as a clergyman, had the fullest confidence, should be openly derided as a means for propagating the doctrines of infidelity, and for engaging in acts subversive of all good government. Some of his hearers might be disposed to feel less keenly on this subject than he did, but he reminded them that the most baseless charges, if constantly repeated, were calculated to impress themselves on the minds of some, and be the means of keeping apart from them men eminently calculated to advise the Craft and carry out its principles. The strangest and saddest feature in connection with these aspersions was that no attempt was made to support them with a grain of evidence. Let them, for example, turn to the record of a hundred years work which had been given them that day. Did they find in it the names of any regicides? Did they meet with treasonable plots, or the names of those who had been disturbers of the public peace? On the contrary, they found mention made of those whose aim it had been to cultivate deeds of brotherly kindness and charity, and who had lived in the affection and esteem of their fellow citizens. This was no exceptional experience, but the experience of Masonry generally. It was perhaps the best answer they could give to those who spoke of them as a disloyal and a materialistic body; but, nevertheless, it was wise now and then to protest against the aspersions which were cast upon those who had no knowledge of the Order to guide them. Referring to the spirit of the Order, our reverend brother said it was the principle of uniting all men of all grades in the one idea of a common brotherhood, and the common service of humanity in the name of that brotherhood. If he were asked "What is Masonry," he should say "Brotherhood;" and if he were asked "What is its principle," he should say "Love."

The singing of the hymn "Great Architect of earth and heaven" followed, and during its progress a collection was made in aid of the Masonic Charities, resulting in a goodly amount being raised for the Institutions, and then Lodge was closed.

Shortly afterwards the brethren reassembled at the Midland Railway Station, in the Board Room of which the banquet was served. The repast was placed on the table with every regard to detail, and gave the most unqualified satisfaction. The tables were elaborately decorated with flowers of the choicest description, whilst the service was of a most bountiful character. The customary toast list was done full justice to, and was interspersed with songs, choruses, &c., which were rendered under the direction of Bro. W. L. Dodd P.P.G.O., who was assisted by Bros. Banks, Myers and Bickley.

Bro. Rev. C. J. Martyn P.G.C., Deputy Prov. G.M. Suffolk, has requested us to bring to the notice of our readers the case of Miss Mary Ann Hill, who is a candidate for the benefits of the Governesses' Benevolent Institution Annuity Fund, and whose application is strongly recommended by Bro. Martyn. The case stands No. 64 on the list for the election of 1st May next. Further particulars in reference to this lady's appeal will be found in our advertisement columns. Knowing the large number of supporters this Institution has among the Freemasons of England, we hope a few votes will be forthcoming from them in support of Bro. Martyn's recommendation. While on this theme, we may add that we are in want of a few votes for the Infant Orphan Asylum, Wanstead, the case we desire to support being that of Arthur Robert Garrioch, aged two and a-half years. We shall be very pleased if any of our friends can favour us with votes for either of these cases, or proxies for other Institutions may be serviceable in exchange.

Mr. Charles Du Val's South African Experiences, recently published in popular form by Messrs. Dean and Son, have achieved a remarkable literary success, two editions having been sold out in a few weeks from date of issue. The enterprising publishers in announcing a reprint of the popular shilling issue, announce also a special drawing-room edition in cloth and gold at half a crown. Mr. Charles Du Val has done wisely in publishing a popular edition of "With a Show through Southern Africa." In its pages Mr. Du Val is as entertaining as on the boards, and that is saying no little. More than this, from it we learn much of the Diamond Fields, of the Boers and their policy, and of the idiotic meddling and peddling that hoisted a flag only to pull it down, and annexed a territory only to evacuate it. Mr. Du Val volunteered as a soldier, was besieged in Pretoria, was editor of the "News of the Camp," and an attaché on the staff. He speaks not as a globe trotter, but with an intimate knowledge of his subject, paid for with hard-bought experience, as hard as the biscuits he was condemned to eat. The interest in South Africa is by no means dead, and the public have yet much to learn on the matter. Unfortunately the British public gain their geographical knowledge in the most expensive manner—at the cost of a war. Here they can learn much for a shilling, and Mr. Du Val's brother historians should be amongst the earliest to invest in the latest publication of Messrs. Dean and Son.—Society.

Bro. Frederic Penna is to give a recital of Shakespeare's "Othello" on the 12th of May. It will be remembered with what success he recited "Macbeth" last year. Our brother's claims to the support of the Craft are many, and we doubt not they will be met.

The ceremony of installation will be rehearsed at the Earl of Lathom Lodge of Instruction, No. 1922, Station Hotel, Camberwell New-road, close to the Camberwell New-road Station of the London, Chatham and Dover Railway on Wednesday, 29th inst., by W. Bro. E. S. Bower W.M. 1310. Lodge will be opened at eight o'clock p.m. precisely. Bro. R. J. Paton Secretary.

Messrs. Cassell and Company will shortly commence the issue in monthly parts of "Picturesque Canada," a new fine-art work, uniform with "Picturesque Europe" and "Picturesque America." "Picturesque Canada" is edited by Dr. Grant, Principal of Queen's University, Kingston, Canada, and will contain about six hundred illustrations by leading artists, executed under the supervision of Mr. L. R. O'Brien, President of the Royal Canadian Academy of Arts.

An issue, in sixpenny parts, will be shortly published by Messrs. Cassell and Company of "The Illustrated Book of Pigeons," by R. Fulton, with fifty coloured plates, specially executed for the work.

AN ANCIENT PEOPLE—PAST AND PRESENT.*

IN the work before us the author deals slightly and generally with the very early history of the Parsis. It is well known that they occupied Persia many centuries before the Christian era. Their kings were amongst the most powerful on earth, and the youth, early taught "to ride, to draw the bow, and to speak the truth," formed the backbone of an empire as large as half of modern Europe. Persia is supposed to have been peopled by the children of Shem—the Elamites of the Scripture. But whatever may have been its real history, now obscured or lost in the mist of ages, to Zoroaster, who lived in the reign of Gushtasp, 1300 B.C., is to be credited the Parsi religion, which became the national faith, and which is still held in the highest esteem by the lineal descendants of the ancient empire—the Parsis of India, and the few still remaining in Persia. Time weaves myths in all history, and Persia has shared the fate of other countries whose greatness at one period was unmistakable, but whose records are either lost or exist in romantic traditions. Whatever may have been the history of Persia in other respects, there is a reality about the wars it waged, especially with Greece and Macedonia. Who has not read of Miltiades and Alexander the Great—of Marathon and Arbela? With these, however, the work we are now considering has little or nothing to do; it begins really with the flight of the Persians in the sixth century, and with the present condition of their descendants. Naoshirvan, surnamed "Adal," or the Just, was the "last of those monarchs whose virtues and talents shed a lustre on the pages of Persian history," whose reign began A.D. 531. Enervating peace and luxurious indulgence in the course of years left the people an easy prey to the all-conquering Mahomedans. Their fate was sealed A.D. 641, on the field of Nahavand, under the monarchy of Yardegard. This ruler protracted a wretched and precarious existence for some years after his defeat, and at last fled to Merv, but the city being treacherously surrendered he had to escape on foot for his life. He reached a mill eight miles from Merv, and after having sought for and obtained concealment at the hands of the miller, the latter, in his lust for possession of the rich robes and arms of his guest, beheaded him. So ended ingloriously the last of the Persian Kings of the ancient faith. After the complete conquest of the country, the majority of the Parsis embraced Islamism. An effête people were just the material for apostates, and no surprise need be felt at the facility, if not alacrity, with which they cast off the old garment, and put on the new. If any excuse were acceptable for their apparent too ready submission, it would be found in the fact that wherever Islam ruled, the Mahomedan faith was thrust upon the conquered people with savage brutality, and resistance was threatened with a tyranny worse than death. Some faced the latter extremity, and suffered martyrdom in consequence. Indeed, they became almost extinct; but whether that was owing to other causes than oppression is open to question. Persecution, no doubt, was the chief instrument in the downward course of wretchedness and effacement. Only a hundred and fifty years ago the Parsis in Persia numbered 100,000 souls, and now they have dwindled down to 7000 or 8000. This comparatively modern extinction is hardly accounted for by oppression alone; but as that is a matter that does not affect our present purpose, we leave it to those most interested to solve what appears to be a grave social and political problem. A considerable number of Parsis risked their chance in flight. They "abandoned the rights of dominion sooner than sacrifice their most cherished religious convictions and their independence and self-respect." The faithful band sought protection in the mountainous district of Khorassan, where they led a hunted and chequered existence for a hundred years. At last they were compelled to seek a new home farther afield. Previous intercourse with the Hindus seems to have suggested India as the future settlement. They first went to Diu, and afterwards to Sanjan, where they remained for six hundred years, "in tranquillity and in the full enjoyment of their religious rights." They were prudent enough to conciliate the Hindus by setting forth a brief description of the tenets of their faith, in which they masked some of their views, and in some instances seemed to agree with their hosts. Still the sixteen "schloks," or "distichs" in which they expressed their belief gave a broad outline of their creed. The Parsis found homes in other parts of India, but owing to their dispersion and the loss probably of their religious books, their faith became corrupted. In the fourteenth century an Italian monk, named Oderic, travelled in India, and he thus records his impressions of the Parsis: "The people thereof (Thana) are idolators, for they worship fire and serpents, and trees also, and here they do not bury the dead, but carry them with great pomp to the fields, and cast them to the beasts and birds to be devoured." The latter charge will hardly hold good, for it is an essential element of Parsi faith not to bury their dead, as we shall see when we come to speak of the mode of sepulture. It is singular that during all these centuries nothing of importance is recorded of the Parsis. Their history at this period has no romance. They lived quietly with their neighbours, following agricultural pursuits chiefly, until they came in contact with the English, and then began a life of activity, which if not national, has left, and is still leaving, its mark on the civilisation of India. The Parsis had to leave Sanjan, and after wandering from place to place with the sacred fire, they ultimately deposited it at Udvada on the 28th October 1742, where it now remains, and where it is held in great veneration. A small colony settled at Variav, some distance from Surat, and here an event happened that broke the peaceful tenure of their way. The Raja of Ratanpur attempted to extort extraordinary tribute. He was opposed by the Parsis, and his troops were defeated. He took his revenge, however, in the most barbarous manner. Having invited a large number of Parsis to a marriage festival, he surprised them in the midst of their pleasures, and caused the whole party, including women and children, to be ruthlessly massacred." The anniversary of this cruel outrage is still observed at Surat, and religious ceremonies are performed in honour of those who fell on that disastrous occasion." It is rather remarkable, seeing that the Parsis lived under Hindoo, Mahommedan, and Christian Governments, and were somewhat scattered, and altogether insignificant in number, that they should have escaped the usual penalty of weakness and those vicissitudes which generally mark the career of a conquered people in a strange land. But the Parsis, from disposition as well as from interest, found it desirable to live on good terms with other races. There were little breaks, however, and one of these occurred in the reign of Akbar, about 1556, when a Parsi priest named Merji Rana visited Delhi at the request of the Emperor. He returned armed with privileges which laid the foundation of a great change in Western India and in the career of the Parsis. Akbar seems to have been struck with the Parsi religion, and it is even related of him that he received the "sudra" and the "kusti." Akbar was a wise ruler, and he saw good in most races. Speaking of him the Rajah of Joudpoor said, "He preserved every tribe and men in ease and happiness, whether they were the followers of Jesus, or of Moses, of Brahma, or Mahomed. Of whatever sect or creed they might be, they all equally enjoyed his countenance and favours." Whatever may have been the religious inclinations of the Mogul Sultan, it is quite clear that his favour was highly beneficial to the Parsis, who from that period began to manifest signs of a higher civilisation. The hundred years that elapsed between the mild reign of Akbar and the commencement of the British rule at Bombay in 1668 seems to have been spent in the development of the capacity for trade, for the accumulation of wealth and the noble uses they made of it, which marked their subsequent career, and which still distinguishes them.

Amid the cares of mundane things other matters engaged the minds of the Parsis. The loss of their religious books accounts in some measure for the difference that exists in the computation of time. In the absence of the authority of Zoroaster, the Parsis are divided into two sects, not as to points of faith, but "as to the correct chronological date for the computation of the era of Yazdezard." The sects are called Shehenshais and Kadmis. The former means imperial, or according to custom, and the latter ancient, or according to the practice of their ancestors. When the Parsis pray, they have to recite the names of the month and day on which they offer their petitions. As the Kadmis year begins on the 19th August, and the Shehenshais year a month later, it will easily be seen how important the difference becomes, especially when it is remembered that each day has its influence assigned, for good or evil. A fierce fight was waged between the contending sects, but finally they agreed to differ. The Shehenshais are the more numerous, but not more influential than the Kadmis, to whom belong the Kama family, so well known to commercial England, although here it is spelled Cama. The Parsi month is a uniform thirty days; five days, called Gathas, are added at the end of the year, but the odd hours and seconds, amounting to a month, are only added once in one hundred and twenty years. This is called the "kabisa," and its omission on one occasion has led to the confusion of dates and to the existence of the two sects we have named. There are some points of interest in the description of the merits or demerits of each day in the Zoroaster month, but as the modern Parsi no longer follows either, we pass on to other matters. There are several Parsi festivals, the chief aim of which is to promote social harmony, charity, and philanthropy. The description of these can hardly be summarised, but among them may be named the Pateti, or New Year's Day, and Rapithvan, a ceremony in honour of the archangel Ardibehesht Ameshaspend, who presides over light and fire. The world, according to the Zoroastrian religion, was created in three hundred and sixty-five days, at six unequal intervals; at the end of each was a day of rest. The intervals themselves are called Gahambars, each of which has its especial functions, such as the mixing together of all classes and feasting, the ingathering of harvest, prayers (Jasan) in honour of the sun, the creation of the lower animals, and the creation of man, which took place at the end of the three hundred and sixty days. The five remaining days are termed the period of Gathas—sacred songs—which are recited in honour of the advent of man on the earth. For a description of the other festivals we must refer our readers to the work itself, but there is one that demands attention. It is called the "Jamshedi Naoroz," from King Jamshid. It is also called "Sultani Naoroz," and "goes back for thousands of years. On this day the sun enters the sign of Aries, and it is also the day on which the ancient Persians began their new year, and made great rejoicings. The Parsi new year ought to begin from this date instead of the Pateti day, as it does at present. . . This day is observed by the Parsis as a great holiday. In Bombay the native Freemason Lodges celebrate this festival." One of the chief causes of anxiety among the Parsis was the danger of losing their religion. To avoid this they sent emissaries to Persia, who were successful in bringing back with them much valuable information and works on religion, which enabled them to preserve their identity. They also brought back a sad account of their brethren in their native land. This knowledge and subsequent information stirred up the Indian Parsis, and in the course of years they had the gratification of knowing that they had been instrumental in alleviating, if not in removing entirely, the oppression under which their brethren groaned. This feeling of kinship and sympathy is very marked in the case of the Parsis, and affords another instance of how largely the claims of humanity enter into their creed.

There does not appear to be any record of how the Parsis governed themselves in the early period of their sojourn in India, but in theirs, as in most other cases, men arose who were fitted to be leaders. The Hindus governed by what is termed a Panchayet, and the Parsis adopted the same method after the British had taken possession of the island. The Panchayet of the Parsis was composed of the elders and influential members of the community. It was a court of justice, and armed with the power of excommunication it enforced obedience, and under what may be termed Lynch law offenders were punished by being beaten with a shoe. This practice fell into desuetude from the want of authority to enforce it. In 1778, in reply to the Panchayet of that date, William Hornby, President and Governor of Bombay, writes: "You are hereby empowered to meet and inquire into all matters that are committed by your caste, contrary to what has been agreed to by the majority of the caste, and to punish the offender agreeably to the rules of your caste, so far as not permitting them to come to your feasts, or beat them with shoes, but no other corporal punishment." The history of the Parsi Panchayet is a record of good and bad government, of mildness and tyranny, of honest effort and corruption; but for the last fifty years "it has not possessed the slightest authority over the people." The functions of the Panchayet are now limited to those of trustees of certain charitable funds, a by no means unimportant office. The difficulty of government grew with the increase of the community and their progress in social and civil life, and some of these were of a very important character. The priests ("Mobeds") and the laity ("Behdins") could not agree about the custom of marriage. The priests would take the daughters of the laity and wed them, but they would not give their own daughters to the laity in turn. The Panchayet dissolved this monopoly, but three European Commissioners ultimately intervened, and the "mobeds" were triumphant. The serious and growing evil of bigamy had to be confronted, but the most difficult problems of all were the laws relating to inheritance and to marriage and divorce. These were afterwards solved by two Acts passed in 1865, which are administered by a judge of the High Court, assisted by Parsi Commissioners. Such are the general outlines of the history of the Parsis. We shall next devote attention to the customs observed on the occasions of births, deaths, and marriages, to the religion of Zoroaster and the Parsi creed, Monotheism and fire-reverence, to the question of education, and refer to some distinguished Parsis, and to the progress and present position of the community.

CONSTANTINE LODGE, No. 145.

THE annual festival of this Lodge took place on Thursday evening the 9th inst., when Bro. Thomas Eustace Senior Warden was installed Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, the ceremony being most ably performed by Bro. N. Tracy P.M. 70, P.G. Secretary East Anglia. The Worshipful Master afterwards appointed and invested his Officers for the year, as follows:—Bros. J. P. Lewin Prov. G.J.W. I.P.M., Thos. G. Mills S.W., Richard Clowes J.W., J. T. Bailey M.O., George A. Eustace S.O., William Sowman J.O., Rev. E. H. Crate P.M. P.G. Chap. Eng. Chaplain, Frederick A. Cole Treasurer, Thomas J. Rallings P.M. P.G.D. Eng. P.P.G S.O. Secretary, Thomas Rix P.M. P.P.G.S.B. Reg., J. G. Renshaw S.D., R. D. Poppleton J.D., H. J. Skingley Organist, A. H. Bowles I.G., S. Munson Tyler, F. Quilter and H. C. Welch Stewards. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Bro. Tracy for his kindness in attending, and so ably performing the ceremony of the day; and to Bro. J. P. Lewin, for the able and energetic way he had presided over the Lodge for the last two years. At the close of the Lodge business, between 20 and 30 brethren dined at the George Hotel, Colchester, an excellent repast being, as usual, provided by the Hostess, Mrs. Gniver. On the removal of the cloth, the usual Mark toasts were given and responded to. In returning thank for the Grand Officers, Bro. Matier, Assistant Grand Secretary, said the Mark degree never was in a more flourishing condition than now. And it was a remarkable fact that more certificates had been issued during the first quarter of this year than in any previous three months since the degree was established. He appealed to the brethren to support the Benevolent Fund, as they had just incurred a heavy loss owing to the failure of their bankers. The health of the Installing Master having been heartily drunk, Bro. Tracy returned thanks, and announced that he proposed to represent the Province of East Anglia at the Festival of the Mark Benevolent Fund, on which occasion he hoped to have a good list. He urged upon brethren to support the Fund, which was doing a good work amongst indigent brethren of the Order, and widows and children of Mark Masons. Eventually between seven and eight guineas was subscribed in the room. Several brethren contributed songs, and altogether the whole meeting passed off most successfully. Among the brethren present were:—Bros. C. F. Matier P.G.W. Assistant Grand Secretary, N. Tracy P.M. 70 P.G. Secretary, S. R. Anness I.P.M. 70 P.G.D.C., Charles T. Tyler, H. J. Wright S.D. 70, and J. G. Potton, and the following members of No. 145, in adition to those already mentioned:—Bros. J. E. Wiseman, S. D. Ablitt, J. H. Miller, A. J. Ward, A. F. Ginn, W. Pepper, L. F. Manley, A. F. Hart, and B. Barber.

Many of our readers will be glad to hear that Bro. T. W. Casburn Bush, whose sudden illness three weeks since caused his friends serious anxiety, is now almost recovered. We congratulate the Craft on this fact. Brethren with Bro. Bush's energy are few and far between, and can ill be spared from the duties of active life.

A ballot was taken for the admission of Lieut. Joel Davis, who was duly initiated into the Order by the W.M. whose rendering was perfect. A Board of Installed Masters having been opened, Bro. Jas. Gibson S.W. and W.M. elect was presented and duly installed by the retiring W.M., Bro. Brindley, perfectly and impressively, in the presence of 19 W.M.'s and P.M.'s. The I.P.M. received a well-merited ovation at the conclusion of the ceremony. On the re-admission of the brethren the W.M. was saluted in due form. He then appointed and invested his Officers, as follow: W. Brindley I.P.M., W. Coleman S.W., W. F. Mimms J.W., Meredith P.M. Treasurer, R. J. Scott Secretary, Harvey S.D., Luckhus J.D., Glover I.G., G. C. Young P.M. Org., Rev. R. C. Halpin, M.A., Chaplain, G. Holland D.C., Taylor Steward, Tucker A.S., Lackland Tyler. The W.M. informed Bro. Coleman, on investing him, that Bro. Folson, who was now with the Army in Egypt, should have been the Senior Warden, and he hoped he would return in health to resume his position in the Lodge, and eventually fill the Master's chair. The applause that followed the investment showed the W.M. had made a proper selection. Bro. C. A. Cottebrune P.G.P. acted as Director of the Ceremonies. A reference committee was appointed, and then hearty good wishes were given from the various Visitors. Lodge was closed, and the brethren now adjourned to the Crown room, where an excellent banquet and dessert had been prepared by Messrs. Spiers and Pond; it was personally superintended by Bro. Dawkins, and gave great satisfaction. The W.M., in brief but appropriate terms, proposed the Loyal and Masonic toast; this was followed by the toast of H.R.H. the M.W. the Prince of Wales Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, the R.W. the Earl of Lathom, and the rest of the Grand Officers Present and Past. The W.M. said, we have among us two Grand Officers, Bro. Woodford Past Grand Chaplain, and a dear old friend, Bro. C. A. Cottebrune P.G.P. Bro. Woodford is a great supporter of the Charities, and has rendered goodly service at the Elections this week. He is a zealous Mason, and his services are always at command. Brother Woodford P.G.C. said he was one of the oldest Grand Officers living; he was pleased to be present with them on the present occasion; it was 43 years ago since he received the light, in the Lodge of Friendship at Gibraltar; that he had never forgotten. It always pleased him to see, as they had seen that night, all creeds united in Brotherly Love. This would ever tend to cement a happy feeling, and enforce loyalty to the Queen, obedience to our country, and a sympathetic attachment between brother and brother. Brother Cottebrune also replied. Bro. Brindley I.P.M. said it was with extreme pleasure he rose to propose the health of the Worshipful Master; they could not have a better man or a better Mason; may he have health and a prosperous year of office; he well deserves it. The W.M. in reply thanked Bro. Brindley for his kind expressions; he appreciated the cordial manner in which the brethren had received the toast; he would endeavour to carry out his duties in the Lodge to their satisfaction. The Installing Master, Bro. Brindley I.P.M., was next complimented; his name was received with prolonged cheering. The Worshipful Master felt proud in investing him with the jewel that had been awarded him for his efficient services in the chair; he also referred to the impressive manner in which Brother Brindley had installed him into the chair. Bro. Brindley thanked the brethren for their kind estimation of the services he had rendered; he was proud to say the Lodge was prosperous in every shape, and he appreciated the kind manner in which his services had been recognized. To Bro. C. A. Cottebrune his thanks were especially due; his experience and readiness to instruct had helped him materially; it was a great compliment to receive a meed of praise from so distinguished a brother. In speaking of the Initiate, the W.M. referred to the manner in which Bro. Lieut. Davis had listened to the ceremony. He was sure he would become a credit to the Order, and that they should have reason to be proud of him in the future. Bro. Davis, in reply, thanked the W.M. for what he had said; he did, indeed, feel impressed with the ceremony, and hoped never to disgrace the Craft; he would strive to be an honour to it. The W.M. proposed the toast of the Past Masters. He could not sufficiently thank them for their assistance; they had contributed to the success of the Lodge. Bro. Brookson P.M. was the first to respond. He was followed by Bros. Wray, Bolton, and Wade; each expressed their appreciation of the kind manner in which their health had been proposed. Their aim always had been, and would be, for the success of the Lodge. The toast of the Visitors came next; they were very numerous. The W.M. would call on Bros. W. H. Baker S.W. and W.M. elect of the Abbey Lodge, Rogers, Ascott, and Bramley, who severally responded. The toast of the Treasurer and Secretary was now given by the W.M., who said no better or more worthy brethren could be found in any Lodge. Bros. Meredith and Scott replied. Bro. Meredith then proposed the toast of our absent brethren, viz., Bros. Hornblower P.M., Folson J.W., Holmes and Butterworth, now serving with the Army in Egypt; also Bro. Col. the Honourable P. Methuen, C.B., now serving in Africa; also other members, who are serving their Queen and country in various parts of the world, wishing them health and a safe return to their native country. This toast was received with hearty cheers. The Wardens and other Officers were not forgotten, after which the Tyler's toast was given, and the brethren and their Visitors separated. Bro. Brookson P.M. sang an excellent comic song. Bros. H. Baker and Richard South were deservedly applauded for their exertions to amuse.

MIZPAH LODGE, No. 1671.

THE closing meeting of the season of this very popular Lodge was held at the Albion Tavern on Saturday last, when a large company of Officers, Members, and Visitors assembled to congratulate the retiring W.M. on the successful completion of his year of office, and to greet the W.M. elect on his accession to the chair. At an early hour the business of the meeting was opened by the W.M., Bro. T. O. Warden, who ably initiated Mr. Bolton into the Order, and then proceeded to instal Bro. George Lewis as his successor, in a manner that deservedly elicited hearty expressions of approval. The ceremony throughout was most impressively rendered, Bro. Warden gracefully requesting the senior P.M. Bro. Nelson Reed to deliver the address to the Wardens. The W.M. then invested his Officers for the year, as follows: Bros. H. Warden I.P.M., C. W. Meiter S.W., H. White J.W., R. J. Simpson P.G.C. Chaplain, J. J. Avery P.P.G. Treasurer Devon Treasurer, N. Reed P.M. Secretary, C. G. Hayman S.D., A. G. Darby J.D., P. Keeling I.G., R. A. Morgan P.M. D.C., C. Danoocks S., J. Bergmann P.M. Organist, Church Tyler. After the usual formalities, the Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquetting hall, where an excellent repast was served, and a most enjoyable evening was spent in toasts, songs, and recitations, Bro. Edward Terry especially delighting the company with some of his drolleries in prose and verse. Amongst those present, in addition to the Officers before-named, were Bros. A "regular" Communication of the District Grand Lodge of Northern China was held at the Masonic Hall, Shanghai, on Wednesday, 7th January last. Our brethren in the land of the Celestials seem to have a peculiar idea of time; the District Grand Lodge was not opened until a quarter past nine at night, and the business lasted until within half an hour of what we may term "low" twelve. R.W. Brother C. Thorne, after having held the position for seven years, had previously given notice of his intention to cease to preside as District Grand Master, and was only waiting a letter from Bro. Shadwell H. Clerke, Grand Secretary, notifying the acceptance of his resignation. This had been received and was read. It expressed regret at the retirement of Bro. Thorne, and directed that the Lodges in the District should be summoned for the purpose of selecting a successor, whose name should be submitted without delay to His Royal Highness the Grand Master. The courtesy of leaving unfettered in the hands of the District Grand Lodge the appointment of a new District Grand Master was much appreciated. The R.W. District Grand Master received the expression of the District Grand Lodge for what he had done for Masonry in the District with gratitude, and in reply, said he should always be prepared to give all the advice and assistance in his power to the District Grand Lodge of Northern China. W. Bro. J. I. Miller Deputy D.G.M. was appointed to take charge of the district, but he gracefully handed over the gavel on this occasion to R.W. Bro. Thorne, for probably the last time. Comparing the list of Officers present with the list of those subsequently appointed it appears that some additions were made, about nine altogether. This ought to be a healthy sign. It points to the fact that the candidates for honour are increasing, and that the time has arrived for gratifying the natural and reasonable ambition of the brethren. To show that the brethren were in earnest they not only sanctioned the additional number of Officers, but ordered that the necessary regalia should be obtained from Bro. Spencer, without delay. We are glad to add that the finances seemed to be in a prosperous condition. The most interesting part of the proceedings was the discussion that took place relative to the Masonic School Scheme. The idea first originated in the Tuscan Lodge, No. 1027, and was taken up by the R.W. District Grand Master. At his instance a meeting of representatives of the various Lodges in the District was called, and a sub-Committee appointed, who now brought up a report. The scheme is a hybrid one. The school will not be "entirely Masonic, but it was intended it should be under the patronage and control of Masons." The details are by no means clear. For instance, we do not know whether the school is to be for girls as well as for boys. Some figures are given representing possible cost and conditions, but they are not definite enough, and so thought the District Grand Lodge, for while they were prepared to subscribe 100 taels (somewhere about £30) towards a guarantee fund, they wanted "more information than was supplied in the report. According to this document about 3000 taels will be required for the first outlay, and notwithstanding the figures that follow, it is impossible to say how the scheme is to be worked. There is nothing put down for rent and management, and although it is said that the school "will prove an inestimable boon to the Masonic Fraternity in Northern China, and supply a home for the children of indigent and deceased brethren under the immediate supervision of the respective bodies to whose charge they may be left," there is no machinery provided for carrying this theory into practice, nor are we told how the necessary funds are to be provided. It is supposed that the school will be self-supporting after the first outlay, but how that is to be accomplished is not made known. Are non-Masons to pay for Masons' children, or are the latter, where indigent, to be kept at the expense of the Lodge to which the father belonged? The scheme seems to be in a most inchoate condition. The object is right, and the means may be forthcoming, but assuredly a great deal still remains to be done before the scheme can be ripe for operation.

EMPLOYMENT BUREAU.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I do not like the use of foreign words, but I can find no English equivalent in the present case, and therefore reluctantly borrow from our French neighbours the word "bureau."

There are three noble Charities in connection with Freemasonry—the Institution at Croydon, and the Boys' and Girls' Schools. In addition there is what I may term a "Relief Society" in the Board of Benevolence. All these organisations deal with effects, not causes. Before assistance is given the ordinary sources of income and help must have been dried up, then these agencies step in and do a grand work. They provide for the aged Freemason or his widow a home and income, or the latter without home; they supply the place of parents to the boys and girls, and so far as education is concerned in a superior degree, and they meet the cases of temporary distress in a substantial and generous manner. So far excellent, and no one who loves his kind can do otherwise than wish God speed to the various movements. But there is a serious omission, and with your leave, Sir, I desire to broach it.

Masonic authorities agree that modern Masons owe their Fraternity entirely or in great part to the Ancient Guilds. I am not going to discuss this question; it is not necessary. The fact of the existence of Guilds is enough for my purpose, and one use to which they were put will enforce my argument in a practical way. For the moment I will leave that point, and go to another. Trades Unions were formed to aid members in getting employment, as well as to assist in defining the conditions under which they should labour. There are various other combinations, all directed and carried on in the interests of those who are seeking employment. I have stated these facts in a plain and simple way, and I think the inference I would draw is plain. Taking it for granted that the Ancient Guilds were our progenitors, we have their example as to the value of union for trade purposes. No one can doubt the value of Trades Unions at the present day in the same direction; while the other subsidiary agencies prove their usefulness and necessity by the success they enjoy. Now, why should not our own Fraternity share the advantages of a system that has almost universal recognition? I confess I see no reason against the establishment of an Employment Bureau, but on the contrary there are many arguments in its favour. Perhaps a word as to its necessity is desirable, although to me the whole case is apparent. The tendency always has been, and is now, more marked than ever to make Freemasonry the medium of advancing the trade interests of some of its members, and in order to secure this end various devices are used. They are worn on the person, printed on circulars and cards, and often form a prominent feature on signboards. I do not defend this practice; as a matter of taste it is execrable, and in policy most undesirable. But the practice exists, and it meets with no resistance in high quarters—sometimes it receives direct encouragement. What is permitted to the trader should not be denied to the worker, especially when the claims of the latter are free from any of the objections that necessarily attach to the former. At present a Freemason, who happens to be a skilled mechanic or a member of some profession, unless he belongs to a Trades Union, or is virtually in possession of a monopoly, has no special means of getting employment. His Freemasonry does not take him out of the crowd of struggling men. He puts on a pin or a ring, or a charm to his watch-chain, but these things are regarded as ornaments, and have no practical value. It is considered by many vulgar to wear them, but why, in a moderate sense, I cannot conceive. Some are under the belief that these outward signs may help them through the world, and only experience convinces them that they are useless except as ornaments of the person.

Now without disturbing the prevailing practice, indeed, I would just leave it to take care of itself, I would make the fact of a man being a Freemason a substantial reality. I would establish a central agency, or bureau, in London, under official government, to which Freemasons who are employers and those who seek employment should be invited to come. A register should be kept of wants in both cases, and a small fee should be demanded, so that by these means the interests of all would be served by a movement that should be self-supporting. An employer would be placed in no worse position than he is in at present. He could accept or refuse service, he could exercise the same scrutiny as to character and fitness, and would be under no obligation to depart from any reasonable rule for the conduct of business. But how different would be the case of a brother seeking employment. He would begin with hope, and would have a fair chance of success. At any rate, he would be face to face with those who could serve him, and it would be his own fault if he did not succeed. Of course, I know it is easy to call spirits from the vasty deep, but will they come? It might be doubted whether employers would favour an agency of the kind I have suggested. If self-interest did not determine them, I should say they would be very bad Masons indeed who would not take a little trouble to further a system that would inevitably work good all round. As a medium of sympathy and help, I know of nothing that would equal it; as a bond of union it would be irresistible. This bureau would complete the agencies for practical good in every direction, and many a man who now seeks work in vain, would find himself the richer by employment. The necessity of appealing to the Board of Benevolence would be lessened, and who can tell but that many a brother, now doomed to despair and misery, would be saved from premature death and consequent demands upon the Masonic Charities were such a system as I have named established. In these days of hard struggling, when young men shoulder out their elders, not because they are more competent or useful, but because they are young, every assistance should be given to the brother, especially when he has a family to bring up, and when employing him means no loss to the employer.

I have broadly indicated the mode by which the scheme could be carried out, but I am only pledged to the principle. I should certainly advocate that every want should be advertised in the two Masonic journals, and I have no doubt that special terms could be arranged. I am certain that were the scheme taken up it would succeed, and that the true spirit of Masonry would receive such an illustration as would still further convince its members and the world at large that it is indeed a blessed Institution.

I am, Sir,

Yours fraternally,

WATCHMAN.

Bro. Frederic Penna announces his Benefit Concert at the Steinway Hall on the 1st of May; he will be assisted by several eminent artists, vocal and instrumental, among whom we may mention Madame Osborne Williams, Miss Belval, Miss Pattie Michie, Miss Florence Coltman (first appearance), Herr Pollitzer, Mr. Aquilar, and Bro. Maybrick.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Cure for Indigestion.—Indigestion and Constipation, with torpidity of the liver, are the sources of misery to thousands, who spend each day with accumulated sufferings, all of which may be avoided by taking Holloway's Pills. They strengthen and invigorate all the secretive and nutritive functions. Their action is essentially purifying and strengthening. They may be safely taken without interfering with ordinary pursuits, or requiring much restriction in diet. They quickly remove noise and giddiness in the head, and dispel low spirits and nervous fears. These balsamic Pills work the cure without debilitating or exhausting the system; on the contrary, they conserve and support the vital principle by substituting pure for impure blood.

THE THEATRES.

VAUDEVILLE.

WE are told the gods rejoiced to see a good man struggling against adverse fortune. Was it the satiric influence of the April Festival that made the dwellers on the Vaudeville Olympus receive Mr. Thomas Thorne's efforts as a disinterested Romeo with such scant appreciation. It is not long since another delightful king of comedy fell a victim to a like ambition, and our well-beloved Major Wellington de Boots performed his vanishing trick as a romantic lover "Just in Time." The cleverly-written and ably acted drama of English modern life, "Saints and Sinners," has made way for the new comedy, "Under Fire," by Westland Marston. Much interest was excited at the appearance of a fresh work by an author whose name will ever be associated with Macready's triumphs at Drury Lane. On the ominous 1st the curtain rose on a very pretty set scene, Lady Fareham's house and grounds. A garden party is assembled. Like too many garden parties, the guests suffer from hopeless dulness. But let us introduce the dramatis personæ. A lovely widow, Lady Fareham, who began life on the stage of a Marseilles café chantant; her daughter Caroline, with much sentiment but invertebrate; Guy Morton, chivalrous and magnanimous, of noble simplicity, exemplifying all the rustic virtues as opposed to the wickedness and selfishness of the town representative, embodied in this instance by the political adventurer, Charles Wolverly; a Mrs. Naylor, who has quartered herself on Lady Fareham on the strength of the café chantant secret, and five other characters, represented by Mr. Sugden, whose business it is to stutter and wear an eyeglass; Miss le Thiere, who is strong-minded, and talks of diet tables and wears a billycock; Miss Kate Phillips, who has nothing to do but to flout at her inane admirer (Mr. Yorke Stephens), whose business it is to talk about a mysterious embrocation. Miss Amy Roselle struggled hard to give vitality and interest to Lady Fareham, but the task was a difficult one. At one moment we are expected to regard the fair widow as possessed of all the virtues, including, of course, the most tender maternal affection, and the next we find her willing to sacrifice her daughter's hopes of happiness should her own social status in the county be imperilled. Guy Morton offers his hand to Caroline, on the opening of the play, and is refused; Wolverly then takes his innings, though Mr. Frank Archer seemed ill at ease in this tender situation. Lady Fareham learns that Guy has come in for a baronetcy, and as Mrs. Naylor has indulged in a little forgery known to Guy, her ladyship determines to secure the latter for a son-in-law, and so trump her antagonist's card. The interview between mother and daughter is played by Miss Roselle with so much power that the audience forget the miserable triviality of the motive. The daughter promises assent, but immediately after takes a farewell of Wolverly. Their conversation is overheard by Guy Morton. Here was Mr. Thorne's opportunity. In the agony of his disappointment and humiliation he forgives the girl who has wronged him. But, alas! the pathos and magnanimity recalled memories of "Sainted Maria." The second act gives a magnificent opportunity to Miss Roselle, when she defies her enemy (Mrs. Canninge). The latter, however, rose to the occasion, with scarcely less intensity of dramatic power. Here again the talent of the actress completely disguised the futility of the material. These ladies, by their magic spells, summoned a resplendent mirage to the sandy waste through which their comrades painfully toiled.

OPERA COMIQUE.

WE are to enjoy the boon of "extended suffrage and redistribution" at the hands of Gladstone Semper Augustus. There be some who misdoubt the policy, and now David James is carrying out a benevolent little resolution among the "seats" at his new theatre, the Opera Comique. He spares the sacred fauteuils of the stalls, but, the dress circle is to be offered to the great god Demos, and will give 500 better pit seats than any theatre in London. Matthew Arnold's middle-class Philistine, who of erst claimed the favoured place, may now betake himself to the second boxes. The theatre has been redecorated, and bright and brilliant it looked on Mr. James's opening night. Every seat was occupied, and a very hearty house-warming was provided by the friends of "our Mr. Jenkins." The new piece, "The Excursion Train," was originally produced at that risky little house the Palais Royal, where, as "Le Train de Plaisir," it carried laughter-loving Paris triumphantly for a long run to Monaco, but, alas! in crossing the Channel it has "suffered a sea change," the lightness and brightness, the delicious impertinence of the Parisian touch, is a thing that cannot be "adapted," and even Mr. James, with his clever coadjutors—Mr. Irish, Mr. Gardener, Miss Cicely Richards, and pretty Miss Buckstone—put into these preposterous personages, are evidently conscious of the absurdity of the whole thing, and with all their talent and good will cannot make these fantoccini seem living men and women. Mr. James, a prosperous butcher, as the curtain rises, has just married, and starts with his pretty bride (Miss Buckstone) and three friends to Monaco. Here they lose all their money at the tables, and in desperation for want of funds, offer themselves to a restaurateur as the five servants he is awaiting. The genuine five servants shortly arrive, the friends are charged with imposture and sent to prison, but, as a matter of course, to be set free without a stain on their characters in the last scene. Mr. W. Irish, as the Commissionaire of Police, tried bravely to give individuality to the part, and the station master, "as gruff as they make them" on the Continent, was well sketched by Mr. Corcoran; but on the whole the extra gentlemen who played the gendarmes were the most successful, as they were spared the utterance of any dialogue. The piece is well mounted, and the scenery very true to local character; especially beautiful is the sunlit bay of Monaco.

PRINCESS'S.

THE "Silver King" is once more bringing crowds to welcome back Wilfred Denver to his trials and triumphs. On the first night of its reproduction, though the social and literary illustrissimi who had filled the stalls and dress-circle for Rome and Denmark of late, were not so numerous, all the more popular parts of the house were crowded to their capacity by a crowd as eager as for some first night of a new play. The enthusiasm which greeted the favourite was of the warmest; recalls followed each act, and the plaudits elicited by Mr. Barrett's scene after the death of Ware, and again when telling the murderer's dream, evidently touched the actor's heart. It was pleasant to note how much Miss Eastlake has improved in method and self-control since she last appeared as Nelly Denver. Only for a brief moment did the old "hysterical feebleness" threaten to mar the portrait; doubtless this was due to nervousness. Shrieks and the hoarseness of overstrained utterance may be true to nature, but nature on the stage must submit to the laws of harmony and proportion, and so grow into the harmony of art. We miss our sprightly friend Mr. Coote, the "Duke of New York," but he has a clever successor in Mr. G. Walton, whose portrait of "'Arry" has the right Whitechapel specialité. Mr. Barnege makes a capital bit of character of the parish clerk, and we must give a word of praise to Miss Nellie Steele, who is charming in her simplicity and naturalness. Master Phillips, the newsboy, who gained so much kudos at the Court in "Comrades," is one of the smartest little fellows we have seen on the boards.

PRINCE'S.

THE revival of "Peril" marks the most satisfactory event of Mrs. Langtry's present season. Here she is fitted with a character to which the ease that mark the caste of "Vere de Vere" gives graceful realism. We see the spoilt beauty, fresh from social triumphs, sorely bored by the good natured Philistine her husband; we see how, unconsciously, such a woman, from mere want of occupation, can slide into the fatality of "une grande passion." At the crisis, where the heroine awakes to consciousness of the abyss over which she stands, Mrs. Langtry acts with feeling; she forgets her lovely face, forgets her beautiful dress, and is the true hearted-woman, filled with a righteous anger and an honest shame. Her agitation when her husband entered was very expressive; and from that point she carried the house with her. Mr. Carne was equally successful as Sir George Ormond; he played with sincerity and feeling. Mr. Everill has rarely found a more congenial part than that of the kind-hearted doctor, with its true comedy mingling of irony and tenderness. His contemptuous "jump, cuckoo, jump," seemingly addressed in jest to a stopper, but really intended for the lover hidden on the balcony, was admirably effective. Mr. Grattan was excellent as the naughty boy Percy Grafton, and Miss Rose was a really charming ingénue. Mr. Coghlan has not a congenial part in Captain Bradford, he is too much in earnest for so frivolous a Lothario. The rest of the characters worked smoothly and well. We cannot but think the adaptors of "Nos Intimes" have mistaken M. Sardou's intention when they promoted their personages from a suburban villa to a grand country mansion. The incongruous, ill-mannered guests we meet in the first act are inexplicable at a Sir George Ormond's country seat, though a Paris bourgeois might ask promiscuous acquaintances to the family pot au feu. Nos Intimes in this aspect are simply impossible. Mr. Beerbohm-Tree is admirable in his make-up as Woodbine Grafton, but he should resist temptation to make farcical points. The play is well mounted; "the drawing room" of the second act especially fine in colour and decoration.

TOOLE'S.

HOW gladly London welcomes back to his bright little shrine the humorous divinity of King William Street is seen in the applause which marks the "obligato" to "Upper Crust." Mr. Toole plays the dear old aitch-less Doublechick with the same geniality as of old, and seems to infuse an atmosphere of benevolence around him. Miss Marie Linden is very charming in the part of Kate Vennimore, and the rest of the company play with that ease and smoothness that come of long association with their parts. The theatre has been newly decorated. Very pretty effect is obtained by the shaded backgrounds to the medallions of the renaissance decorations. Mr. Toole promises some novelties shortly, with certain old friends for Saturday afternoons. This is good news for his friends in front, who will certainly be there to give their hearty acknowledgments to the genius of honest laughter.

ROYALTY.

GREAT expectations were excited by "François the Radical;" this, foolishly enough, because a brilliant comedy from the "House of Molière" had been done into English by the same gentleman who translated this trivial operetta from a minor boulevard play house. Miss Kate Santley plays the heroine, and sings her songs with her old verve and brilliancy, but the weight is too much even for her courage and powers. Mr. Henry Ashley makes the very best of an impossible role, the Marquis de Pontcornet. Miss Santley's solo, with chorus, "The Little Sailor," is a very taking trifle; the best number allotted her is "Soldier, I drink your health in wine," this won a deserved encore. Mr. Kelleher scored a success in "Make way for the gallant Schweitzers," and there is a sparkling "Soldier's chorus." But, alas! the work as a whole drags sorely, though it has all the aid that can be given by exquisite costumes and beautiful scenery. The Pont Neuf being especially picturesque.

GLOBE.

ON Thursday next, the 23rd instant, the successful farcical comedy "The Private Secretary" will be portrayed here for the 400th time. All the parts are well represented, although special praise should be awarded to Mr. W. S. Penley, who takes the part of the Rev. Robert Spalding, to Mr. Wilfred Draycott (Douglas Cattermole), and Mr. W. J. Hill (Mr. Cattermole). Morning performances are given on each Wednesday and Saturday afternoons, at 3½ o'clock. We cordially recommend our readers to visit this Theatre.

ST. JAMES'S HALL.

MRS. ANNA LONGSHORE POTTS has benevolently come from America to make our sad London thoroughfares scientifically picturesque with perambulating écorchés, and mural skeletons. We may hear her, at St. James's Hall, discourse on the dire results of eating white bread uncorrected by proper medicine; on the sad custom, prevalent among English girls, of sitting "in boudoirs and drawing-rooms," ignoring constitutionals and tennis," whilst English mothers prohibit out-door exercise to their children! Mrs. A. L. Potts is a very intelligent lady, but surely she has not yet studied English habits.

MR. ALFRED CAPPER.

FROM the calm precincts of Steinway Hall sounds of merriment have been heard on the last Thursday afternoons, when Mr. Alfred Capper has held the platform, and given to the fashionable audience crowding the room an hour or two of unflagging fun and delicious bewilderment. Mr. Capper has a ready wit and good humour. He commences with some illustrations of how we seem to feel what we do not feel, and seem to hear when our ears mislead us; then he gives some capital comic recitations. Especially amusing was "My first and last appearance on the Stage;" this delighted the audience, and left it in congenial mood for the "Pin trick." Mr. Capper laughingly disclaims any pretence to mystic power, or "Irving Bishop" thought reading. He declares his experiments mere jests, having no value. He invites any gentleman from the audience to mount the platform and watch against collusion. He places himself in charge of two volunteers, whilst a third hides the "pin." He is blindfolded, and holding the hand of the hider of the pin starts off with a rush, to pounce presently on the object of search. Among other wonders achieved, bouquets were chosen by three gentlemen. Mr. Capper identified each one selected, and the lady to whom they should be presented. Mr. Capper left the room, and Mr. George Barrett, who was among the assessors on the platform, was requested to assassinate some one in the audience (a dramatic critic was suggested, a pencil representing the lethal weapon). When Mr. Capper returned, he took his way blindfolded to find the victim; dragged him to the "fatal spot," and showed how the death blow was given. But how is all this done? We say, "Go and find out if you can;" in any case you will be none the worse for a merry afternoon's enjoyment.

OLD TIMES AND OUR TIMES.

CROAKERS flourished three thousand years ago who were loud in their praises of the past and complaints of the present. It is one of the commonest things of our day to decry everything of our own generation; glorify the dim past; disparage what is, and magnify what is to be. But history enables us to see whether we are progressing or degenerating. People may say, "We wish we had the old times," but every age must be measured by its own standard, and if we contrast our times with old times, we will find the present age the finest, noblest and best the world has ever seen.

The first pound of tea carried to England was presented to Queen Elizabeth, who boiled it in a pot, and then straining off the water, threw it away, and ate the leaves. Sir Walter Raleigh, the first smoker of tobacco, was well soused by his servant, who thought he was on fire, and was going to put him out. The Elizabethan cottages we hear so much about, had only one room, and the chimney was a simple aperture in the roof. At the royal levées the floors were strewn with straw in lieu of a carpet, and at one time Parliament protested against such extravagance.

Religion has wrought a great change. The Bible has given civilization, fine buildings, colleges—everything. Look at travel and the means of travel as evidence of advancement. Take Syra, with its barbarism, and compare it with England or this country, with their railroads, manufactories, &c. Italy is the same, and had no railroads until within a few years, and then English and Yankee religion placed them there. In Elizabeth's time a stage-coach was no better than is now a Jersey farmer's ox team, and in old times a man would make more fuss to come from Vermont to New York than he would now to go hence to China. In the time of Charles the Second, London was dark and unsafe. There was no police, and a man was in constant danger of robbery or assassination, yet an "insane" fellow was denounced a dangerous innovator because he proposed to light the city by putting a light in every ninth house.

Look at the inventions of the present day, not for kings and nobles, but for the people, to enlighten and make labour pleasant. Now, we can control diseases and plagues, and it is a fact that the average longevity is thirteen years more in civilized countries than it was. Formerly there was no surgeon but the barber, who drew your blood and let you run. Now the dumb are taught to speak, the blind to read, and the insane, who were once deemed incurable, are now successfully treated in our asylums. When vaccine was proposed as a preventive against small-pox the people rose against it, and were afraid of being turned into cattle. The noble barons who wrung the charter from King John, could not write their own names even; but now the poorest child in the city may receive a fair education. Our age is full of liberality, religous tolerance, enlightenment and progress.—Detroit Freemason.

WHEN we come to regard the domestic life of the Parsis, we are struck with the unique character of some of their practices, and the extraordinary variety of incident that marks their progress from the cradle to the "tower of silence." The followers of Zoroaster do not believe in graves. It is difficult to say which is more reverenced by them—the living or the dead Parsi. The interest taken in their progeny begins before birth, for the expectant mother, after a period of gestation of five months, "is presented by her mother-in-law with a new dress, which she puts on, and then goes to the house of her own parents, who also give her a new dress." After another two months, or it may be immediately before confinement, the pregnancy ceremony of "Agharni" is performed. The young lady is decked in new clothes, presents of fish, curds, milk, and sugar are sent to her mother. These are returned with the store increased, and the whole converted into a repast for the family and friends who may be invited for the occasion. A room is afterwards prepared on the ground floor, facing the east, and decorated with devices of birds and animals and variegated flowers. The young lady is then placed on a flat wooden stool, two or three inches high, a new dress is put on her, and her forehead marked with "kimku" (red powder); in the fold of her "sari," near her breast, a cocoa-nut, betel nut leaves, dates, and other descriptions of dry fruit are placed, as symbols of fructification. In this array she visits her mother, accompanied by her relations and friends, who take with them some wheat, and also sweetmeat, "as being emblematical of plenty and happiness." Here she is met "with an ovation of rice and the breaking of a cocoa nut and egg." Placing her right foot foremost, she enters the house, and goes direct to the room where she expects to be confined. With a light in one hand and a cup of water in the other, she goes round the room seven times, besprinkling it with a little water at each turn. The object is said to be "that her children may always enjoy the sunshine of life and be never in want of water, as the vernacular phrase goes." Her mother removes the clothes she is wearing, and replaces them with a new dress, and after having sweetened her mouth with sweetmeat or suger, sends her back to her husband with an added store of the good things she had brought with her. Other presents, such as new clothes, rings, shawls, &c., with sweetmeats wrapped up in silver paper, in the shape of a cone, are sent to her husband by her mother. The ladies—bearers of these gifts—are entertained by the husband, after which they recite songs appropriate to the occasion. When the period of accouchement approaches, the young lady is presented by her mother-in-law with a little money and a cocoa-nut, her forehead is marked with red, and she is then sent to her parents. When in travail the woman is sent to the room already prepared, where an iron cot with a cotton bed is provided for her, and a cradle with an iron framework for the expected child. More feasting and presents follow birth. For forty days afterwards the woman is considered unclean, and "during that period she is not allowed to touch anything besides her own bed and the child's cradle. Nor can any member of the family, not even her own husband, touch her." This system operates very harshly in some cases, and as it is not based on any religious injunction, it seems cruel to carry out what has become a superstitious practice. Our author denounces the custom, but adds: "None dare break through the practice except in case of serious illness, when the doctor may order the mother and child to be removed to some other place." Other mitigations are now permitted, and it is hoped that in time the prejudices connected with child-birth will die out. Another custom is to note the exact time, "even to a second, when the child comes into the world," in order that the "Joshi," or astrologer, may cast its nativity. This is a very grave operation in the eyes of fond and ignorant parents, but is regarded by the educated Parsi much as we regard the fortune-telling powers of the gipsy woman whose palm has been crossed with silver. A still more extraordinary practice is the following: "On the night of the sixth day . . . near the girl's bed is placed a tray containing a sheet of blank paper, ink, pen, a cocoa-nut, and red powder, for the intended service of the goddess who presides over the destiny of the child, and who is supposed to determine its good luck." Of course, no writing is found on the following morning, but faith supplies the omission, and "the anxious parents console themselves with the happy idea that the writing is invisible, and that the book of fate is sealed." When a child, male or female, is six years and three months old, the imposing ceremony of investiture with the "sudra" and "kusti" takes place, according to religious injunction. The candidate is placed before the Parsi priest, who makes it drink three times the sacred "nirangdin," and chew part of a leaf of pomegranate tree. After having been bathed, and dressed in a pair of trousers and cap, with a clean white linen sheet wrapped round the body, the candidate is taken to the hall where the ceremony is to be performed. The "dastur" (chief priest) and other priests, dressed in snow-white robes and turbans, the gentlemen dressed in their best, and the ladies attired in brilliant costumes, are assembled. Strict silence prevails, broken only by the "patet," or prayer of repentance uttered by the "dastur" and another priest. The candidate is seated on a flat wooden stool, and joins in the prayer if able to do so. Holding the "sudra" (the sacred shirt), the child repeats a confession of faith, and is then invested with the "sudra." The "kusti" (a girdle) is passed round the child's waist three times during the recital of the "kusti nirang" by the "dastur," who afterwards delivers the "hosbam," a sort of sermon in praise of honesty, truth, and purity. "This over, he pronounces blessings upon the candidate, throwing over his head the whole of a mixture composed of pieces of cocoa-nut, rice, and almonds." Such is the initiation of a boy or girl into the Zoroastrian religion. Presents follow the ceremony, and if the parents are rich a sumptuous feast brings the proceedings to a close. The "sudra" is always worn next the skin, and is made of fine linen gauze or net. The meaning of the word is "the garment of the good and beneficial way." The "kusti" is a thin woollen cord, or cincture, of seventy-two threads, to "represent the seventy-two 'has,' or chapters of the sacred book of the Parsis, called Yazashne." The "kusti is passed round the waist three times, and tied in four knots, two in front and two behind, during the chanting of a hymn. At the tying of the knot the following confession and exhortation are made, first knot: "There is only one God, and no other is to be compared with Him;" second: "The religion given by Zoroaster is true;" third: "Zoroaster is the true Prophet, who derived his mission from God;" fourth: "Perform good actions, and abstain from evil ones."

Perhaps no event in the life of a Parsi is regarded with more importance than his marriage, and some curious customs used to prevail. For instance, it is said "that less than twenty years ago it was the custom in Bombay, and in some other cities of the Gujarat, to arrange or negotiate for the marriage of children who had not even seen the light of this world; that is to say, if two lady friends were enceinte, they would conclude an arrangement that if one should bear a son and the other a daughter, the infants would be united in marriage." The general practice was in favour of early marriages, but now there is a disposition to follow the example of the Zoroastrians in Persia, where a boy is not married before he is twenty years of age, nor a girl before the age of fifteen. Match-making amounts almost to a science, the professors of which are found amongst priests. These favoured visitors make all necessary inquiries, and if they see a couple likely to suit each other, they recommend the alliance to the parents. The latter satisfy themselves of the respectability in each case, the most important personage, perhaps, being the young man's mother. Sons usually live with their parents even when married, so that the mother-in-law becomes a very important person indeed. When the parties are satisfied of each others character and position, the girl's parents are asked to send her horoscope, cast by the "Joshi," in order "that the astrologer may be consulted as to the eligibility or otherwise of the match." The "Joshi" receives both horoscopes, and upon his report depends the success or failure of the match. If the decision be favourable the astrologer fixes the day for the celebration of the betrothal, the ceremony consisting of an exchange of presents, which renders the "pucka" or contract complete. Certain days of the year are considered propitious for the marriage ceremony, and when the day is fixed, then commence a succession of dinners or "natches" and exchanges of gifts. The rich can afford this kind of thing, but the poor often cripple their resources for years in order to vie with their richer neighbours in the show, glitter and eclât attendant upon the marriage of their offspring. The wedding takes place in the evening, after the custom of the Hindus, and is sometimes witnessed by over a thousand persons. To meet the requirements of those who dwell in small houses, a building known as the "Albless Bag," has been erected, "where many marriages and other festivities are celebrated without payment." Of course, the visitors are dressed in their gayest attire, and the sight is both rich and imposing. Presents of dress, jewellery, &c., are made, and at "about sunset bouquets of roses or other beautiful and fragrant flowers and small triangular packets of 'pan-sopari,' i.e. betel-leaf and nut wrapped in gold leaf, are distributed to each member of the assembly, upon whom also rose water is sprinkled from a gold or silver jar." Then comes the procession to the bride's house, accompanied by a band of music, and after a further distribution of nosegays and "biddas," the nuptial ceremony is proceeded with. It generally takes place in a hall or spacious room on the ground floor, where a "galicha," or carpet is spread. Seated opposite to each other, the happy couple grasp each other's right hand. A piece of cloth divides them, another piece encircles them, tied at the ends by a double knot. Raw twist is wound round the pair seven times by the officiating priests, who during this performance repeat short prayers. On completing the seventh round, the twist is tied seven times over the joined hands of the couple, as well as round the double knot of the end of the cloth previously put about them. Incense is burnt, and the cloth curtain is suddenly dropped, when the bride and bridegroom are seen throwing rice at each other. The first to succeed in aiming the rice is accounted the most earnest lover. Clapping of hands greet the bridal pair within, while without the men take up the applause. Two "dasturs," one before the bride and the other before the bridegroom, recite the "ashirwad," or blessing, and then proceed with the ceremony, which is of a most elaborate character. The senior "dastur" opens with the following blessing: "May the Omniscient Lord bless you with many sons and grandsons, with good livelihood, heart ravishing friendships, long life, and an existence of one hundred and fifty years!" Questions are here put and answered relative to the assent of all parties concerned, followed by an address containing advice of the purest and noblest kind. We are sorry that want of space will not permit of its reproduction here. An earnest supplication is made to the Almighty "to bestow upon the newly-married pair good moral and social qualities. In this prayer are recited the names of the thirty angels after whom the thirty days of a Parsi month are called." As this supplication is instructive as well as interesting, we quote it fully:—

"May Ahura Mazda bestow upon you
Good thoughts through Behman,
Good words through Ardibehesht,
Good actions through Shehrivar,
Perfect thought through Spendarmad,
Sweetness through Khordad,
Fruitfulness through Amerdad.
May God (Depadar) bestow upon you
Increasing lustre through Adar,
Purity through Aban, or Avan,
Exalted position through Khurshed,
Increase through the cow-like Mobor,
Liberality through Tir,
Temperate habits through Gosh.
May God Depmehr bestow upon you
Pure justice through Mehr,
Obedience through Srosh,
Fruitfulness through Rashnu,
Increase of strength through Fravardin,
Victory through Behram,
Constant delight through Ram,
Strong power through Goad.
May God Dipdin bestow upon you
Knowledge through Din,
Collection of wealth through Arshisang,
A number of good talents through Ashtad,
Great activity through Asman,
Firmness of place through Jamyad,
Good sight through Marespand, and Nourishment of body through Aneran."

Blessings in the languages of the Avesta of the Pazand, and Sanscrit follow, the whole ending with the "Tandarusti," a blessing invoking the bestowal of physical strength, energy, and health on the newly-married pair. The marriage certificate having been signed, all invited to the marriage feast sit down to a banquet, consisting "of fish, vegetables, fruits, sweetmeats, preserves, and similar articles." Parsis refrain "from eating meat on the day of marriage to avoid giving offence to the feelings of the Hindus, as a number of sheep would require to be killed for so large a party." Toasts are drank, always including the health of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen of England and Empress of India, and the Royal family. No toast is more heartily received than this, which affords evidence of the thorough spirit of loyalty to this country that pervades the Parsis. A much simpler form of marriage service is observed among the Zoroastrians in Persia, and even in Bombay the tendency is toward greater simplicity in the ceremony. Parsi widows are permitted to marry again, but they seldom avail themselves of this liberty, denied to the Hindus.

THE PROSPERITY OF MASONRY.

WE often speak of the prosperity of Freemasonry, or of the prosperity of this or that Masonic body, but do we always have a clear idea of wherein prosperity consists? Words sometimes misrepresent facts, and that which we term prosperity may be, at times, a delusion and a snare. Indeed, it not infrequently happens that popular notions are wrong—the voice of the people being anything but the voice of God. In what, then, does prosperity consist?

Does it consist in great numbers? If it does, there can be no doubt of the prosperity of Masonry to-day. It never was so popular. The Craft was never so crowded. Both Lodges and Grand Lodges are multiplying, and year by year the number of Freemasons in the world is steadily and largely increasing. But, remember this, in great size there is always great danger. Grossness is disease. It is the thin man that has length of days, while the stout man goes lumbering along, and falls before his time. So, great nations are always unwieldy, and their unmanageable size often is their ruin. We should not expect Freemasonry to be any exception to this often-proved principle. Too great numbers in the Fraternity may naturally promote its disruption and destruction. Do not let us, then, regard the historical growth of the Craft as proof-positive of its prosperity, since, far from being so, it may betoken its decline and fall. There is all the difference in the world between a healthy growth and a rapid one. The black-ball is the safeguard of Freemasonry in this respect, and wherever a section of the Craft "lets down the bars," and requires two or three black-balls to reject, it places a premium upon insufficiency, and introduces into the Brotherhood elements which may work its ruin. Let us not be led astray by the easy belief that a great number of initiates is proof of the Craft's prosperity, for to do so may be to deceive ourselves, and to invite adversity.

Does it consist in great wealth? Excess in wealth, no less than excess in numbers, betokens enervation, and induces destruction. It puffs up, and pride goeth before a fall. Not only are all men and all societies liable to failure from this cause, but no matter what their first principles may have been, great wealth is almost certain to cause them to over-ride those principles. The history of monarchism affords a striking example of this, as also does that of the mediæval Knights Templar. In their origin the monastic orders were pure and of good report, but when they came to own half the country where their domains existed, dividing it practically between themselves and royalty, their wealth caused them to ignore their principles, and exemplify the grossest and most law-defying lives. So the Templars, whose original seal represented two Knights riding upon one horse, by way of testifying to their poverty, in after years became enervated as a consequence of the possession of unlimited wealth. It seems that man in no state of life can assuredly bear what we vainly style great prosperity. Freemasonry cannot expect to stand where all others have fallen. The Craft should not desire to have its coffers lined with silver and gold, for to do so would not be to increase its efficiency, but to invite its decline and fall.

Does it consist in great popularity? Masonry has no right to be popular. It is a secret society. It is for the few, not the many; for the select, not the masses. It wishes not to be evil spoken of: but better that than to be lauded to the skies. Whatever directly tends to bring Masonry before the profane, or to bring the profane into a Masonic Lodge-room during the performance of any of the ceremonies of the Craft, is to seek that prosperity which is utterly hollow, and that popularity which is as fickle as the wind. Neither great wealth, nor great numbers, nor great popularity can serve as the corner-stone or the cap-stone of our ancient and honourable Fraternity. It must continue to exist independent of all these, and avoiding all extremes. In the middle course only is safety.

The true prosperity of Freemasonry consists in the universal prevalence of the germinant and unifying principles which distinguished its origin and prosperity in the past, and these must be maintained if we would ensure its prosperity in the future. We must continue to exemplify kindness, courtesy and unaffected good feeling towards all of our Brethren; genuine charity for the imperfections of our fellows, and for the material relief of the distressed; and we must persevere in an ardent advocacy of Masonic truth, and exhibit it in action in our daily lives. This is real Masonic prosperity, and it may exist without great numbers, without great wealth, without great so-called prosperity, and, indeed, it cannot exist with them. A Masonic persecution is often a blessing in disguise. The company of the Brethren is strengthened by the loss of its selfish and half-hearted members. They are stragglers and deserters, whose natural home is with the enemy. They weaken any cause they espouse. Such a persecution is medicine for the Craft, unpleasant to take, but curative in its results. Let us trust that in the future truth may be so upheld, principle so exemplified in practice, and undue popularity, excessive wealth and great numbers so avoided, that the prosperity of Freemasonry may be assured through all the years of coming time.

A TILT AT THE VICES OF THE AGE.

[COMMUNICATED.]

THERE are many things done in the name and under the cover of Freemasonry that are reprehensible, and not the least of these is the trading spirit that so largely prevails. Were the love of religion, morality and justice really the moving springs of men's actions, instead of being, in the vast majority of cases, the outward covering of a selfish purpose, there would be little need to point so frequently to the abuse of the fundamental principles of the Craft. In dealing with what may be termed conspicuous vices among modern Masons the prevailing vices of the times must always be borne in mind. Glitter and show pass current, while simple worth goes unheeded. Men's desires have become necessities that formerly were accounted luxuries. Deception in trade is looked upon as justifiable, provided it is successful; and what is now viewed as a venial offence, in the days of greater purity was looked upon as dishonourable, if not dishonest. To keep up show requires money; increased indulgence necessitates increased means; and to thrive in trade demands the whole energies of men to the almost utter disregard of moral and spiritual culture. Even the intellect is crammed with a view to trade, and although books and newspapers have multiplied enormously, they tend to satisfy the lower wants of mankind, rather than the higher aspirations. They are often shallow and showy, and like the Yankee's razors, made to sell. It would be wonderful if Masonry escaped from the grovelling vices of the age. The trading spirit is rampant, and many men see in a Masonic jewel or symbol a talisman of fortune. They join the Fraternity, and forthwith their outward person becomes the adorned sepulchre, while within often is found rottenness or stagnation. In some cases shop fronts proclaim the fact that the occupier is a Freemason, while in other instances Masonic symbols figure on cards and circulars, indicating that those who issue them wish to announce to the world that they are members of the Craft. These personal shop front and printed witnesses of a fact are not always dictated by the trading spirit. The love of show is a powerful lever, especially to the men of shoddy. In Masonry they find a means of ready access to society which is denied to them by social conventionalities. They have wealth, but neither by birth nor education are they eligible for polite and refined intercourse. Masonry supplies them, in a modified form, no doubt, with something approaching to their requirements. Hence are found in the Craft a large number of successful traders, who are satisfied with the social advantages they obtain. They observe the outward form of the Fraternity, but they are veritable dead bones to all that is spiritually beautiful. They are charitable even to lavishness, but that involves no sacrifice, while the popularity gained by giving gratifies their pride, and solaces them for inroads upon their purses. These men are neither better nor worse than the average class of the day; they are traders in spirit, and the shop is never absent from their words and actions. Happily a few only have all the vices of their class without their virtues; they are the unwholesome leaven that now and then disfigures the Order, and brings reproach. The Masonic body includes a large number of publicans, and this fact is not regarded with favour by many. But the explanation is simple; sociality is an essential feature of the publican's business; indeed it is its mainspring; and in joining Masonry a publican at once gratifies his social instincts and promotes the interests of his class. As a rule he cares little for ritual and ceremonies; he shines best at the banquet table, where physical enjoyment and his trade are so favourably combined. In fairness it must be admitted that while the publican enjoys the pleasures of the table, as a rule he is no niggard with his money, and some of the most generous supporters of the Charities are to be found in this class. Still the fact remains that the good that is achieved springs from the lower motives of action, and that the esoteric character of the Craft is preserved in virtue of its inherent excellence and the efforts of the educated few. The intellectual life of Masonry is still further circumscribed, and were it not for a devotion worthy of martyrdom, the ritual and ceremonies would lose that exposition which throws light upon disputed points, opens up new views of origin and history, and enlarges and intensifies the spiritual glories of the Order.

It would be vain, perhaps, to hope for any great alteration in the present order of things. There must be a change in the whole body politic before any of its branches can become thoroughly purified. Much may be done by the moral teacher. His functions never cease, and his duties become more onerous and imperative as difficulties increase. It is his privilege to proclaim eternal truths, to insist upon purity of motives, and the absolute necessity of cultivated intelligence as the means of action. He is met at the outset with the money-grubbing spirit, which rules the world as probably it has never ruled it before, and in its sordid nature is absorbed all that is best in the human heart. Wordsworth had a true poet's scorn for the love of wealth. In one of his sonnets he exclaims:

"Great God! I'd rather be A pagan suckled in a creed outworn," than waste powers in "getting and spending." He knew the curse that the race for wealth brings, and like a prophet, he raised his warning voice against an evil that while it destroys it fascinates. There is a remarkable consensus of opinion among poets of the debasing character of money getting, and the pretensions that the possession of wealth too often inspire. The fool with money ranks with the most gifted in the eyes of the world, and the distinctions between real worth and vulgar shams are growing less. Tennyson hits the mark most vigorously when he says:

"Cursed be the gold that gilds the straitened forehead of the fool."

He wars against the crying sin of the age. Another teacher not less gifted, Mrs. Barrett Browning, strikes a different chord, but vibrating to the same purpose. She is not unmindful of the achievements of enterprise, of the results of trade and civilisation, but she has this very suggestive line in "Lady Geraldine's Courtship":

"Little thinking if we work our souls as nobly as our iron."

Do we? While the trophies of trade and commerce are seen everywhere, the practice of the higher virtues is little regarded. That must be the answer to the poetess. The man who sets up a high standard as the rule of life in business, in all other matters is too often regarded as a fool; that is, if he happens to be poor. The wealthy man escapes any test, and success alone covers all offences of omission and commission.

This moralising is peculiarly suitable and applicable to Freemasons. Possessing in common with all mankind the veritable truths of religion and the facilities for its exercise, enjoying all the advantages that are supposed to belong to the present state of civilisation, the Freemason has the additional privilege of belonging to a Fraternity that embodies in its teaching all that is excellent in mind and heart. He is afforded special opportunities of becoming practically acquainted with all the virtues, and his whole training as a Mason is calculated to lead him in the paths of intellectual and spiritual development. The heritage of a Mason is beyond price, and it is sad to see it appraised at so low a value by the many, while the few are powerless to adequately sustain its wisdom, strength, and beauty. Still more might be attempted in the way of mental and moral progress than has hitherto been the case, and a beginning might be made in repressing as far as possible the trading spirit so apt to be manifested by the neophyte, and so offensive in the old Mason. It is of no importance to let the world know that a man is a Freemason, and there are ways of making the fact known to the brethren without artificial aid. It is just this difficulty—the becoming known to, and recognised by, each other outside of the Lodge room, that creates the great stumbling block to real brotherly feeling. The Charities are marvellous monuments of liberality, and reflect honour upon the Masonic body. But there is something more wanted to complete the bond of union, affection, and help. The great want is expressed in the word "sympathy." If a brother is considered worthy to be on a level with princes and nobles in the Lodge room, surely he is entitled to some regard out of it. There would be no sacrifice of social distinction in recognising a brother in the street, while the very difference that separates some would give a peculiar value to the friendly nod of a superior to an inferior in social status. It is not the mere fact of recognition that creates the value, but the assurance that it implies. It means that a brother is not only such within the confines of four walls and surrounded with certain regalia, but that he retains his character in the ordinary relations of life. There need be no fear of undue familiarity; true dignity never lacks defence, while the sham article is not worth preserving. It is impossible to estimate the value of a real band of brotherhood such as is here indicated, but it is easy to understand that were it to exist the circle of Masonic duty would be enlarged, ugly gaps that now disfigure it would be closed up, sympathy would strengthen the weak points, and a boundless charity would embrace the whole.

MASONRY AND WOMAN.

THE "science" of Masonry is the science of morals—teaching us how to rear a spiritual Temple, and how to perfect and adorn it, by the aid of that wisdom and strength which God supplies, for a "habitation of the Spirit," in which God may dwell and reign for ever and ever. Is not this science accessible to woman? It is true it is not earth-born, it is of heaven's own revealment; but it is written on the arched heavens and the green earth; it is recorded on the ample pages of nature; it speaks on every leaf of the great Light of Masonry—the Bible; and the Divine Spirit, like an ever present tutor, is always ready to explain and amplify and lead on from step to step, from one essential principle to another, until the great Truth is reached and comprehended, and the novitiate is enabled to shout his rapturous "Eureka!"

Is woman excluded from the sociabilities of Masonry? From those which belong to the Lodge room she is, but they are not essential to woman's welfare. She is excluded from them as man is excluded from the private interviews, communications, and associations of ladies. Men do not ask to be admitted there, for they have no business there, and it is not suitable and proper they should be there. God has stamped upon the elements of human nature the necessity, and we all may see the propriety of this exclusion. But women are not excluded from Masonic sociabilities outside the Lodge room. And so far as sympathies are concerned a Mason's heart beats first and highest for woman's happiness. Woman is not excluded from the honours of Masonry. To be honoured is to be loved; to be honoured most is to be loved most. And we assert that in the affections of all the worthy Craft woman is the presiding divinity, next to the Deity. Our earliest and latest and purest affections are for her. Our first care is for her, and at her shrine we would offer the fairest and brightest gifts of earth. To wear a Masonic dress of a peculiar shape or colour is not honour. To have suspended from the neck a jewel of peculiar construction is not honour. To sit in the East, and preside over the work, is of itself but little honour. But to be enthroned in the affections; to be the object of first consideration; to be obeyed with promptness and served with pleasure, this is to be honoured. Is not woman honoured by the Craft? Does she not share in the "honours" of Masonry, and largely too?

But she is debarred from our traditions and mysteries. These two words imply almost the same thing, and as such we shall consider them. Women we believe have too much respect for Masonry to wish it destroyed. But were we to reveal its traditions and mysteries to ladies, it would be a violation of its laws and might prove its ruin. Besides, we cannot, without first becoming recreant to every principle of honour and integrity. Would woman be gratified with the knowledge at such a price? We think not. Nay, she would reject the coveted prize and spurn the traitor from her presence. The secrets of Masonry, among brothers of the Craft, are like the secrets of the physician and his patient; the lawyer and his client; the husband and his wife. To reveal them would be to show ourselves unworthy of them, and place on record the evidence of our own infamy. We know that women place too high a value upon the virtues of truth, honour and integrity to desire admission to our mysteries at such a sacrifice. The brow of her honoured father whom we hail as a brother of the Royal Art would darken upon her pathway at such a wish. And, after all, we are satisfied that a lady would decline the honour of becoming a Brother amongst us, if that distinction were freely tendered. Her heart is with her home; and neither our mysteries nor traditions could allure her to the Lodge-room.—Hebrew Leader.

LODGE OF TRANQUILLITY, No. 185.

THE last meeting of the present session of this Lodge took place at the Guildhall Tavern, E.C., on Monday, the 20th instant, and although not numerously attended, proved one of those happy gatherings at which the spirit of enjoyment and content prevail, created by the absence of the more or less noisy exhilaration which characterise large assemblies on grand occasions. Bro. S. Boaz W.M. presided, and in consequence of the absence of some of the minor Officers several of the Past Masters acted for them. The business of the evening consisted of conferring the Master Masons' degree upon Bros. Davis, Fisher, Lazarus, M. Marks, and Van Gelder. As was anticipated, the W.M. had thrown off his hesitating timidity, and approached his task with sufficient confidence to render his work acceptable, thus showing that it was not want of ability which made his performance appear somewhat unfinished on the former and first occasion. At the meetings on these "off" nights many of the more pompous observances are very properly dispensed with, and the toasts and responses given with brevity. Bro. Barnett I.P.M., in proposing the health of the W.M., embraced the opportunity of making some favourable comments upon the ability with which the onerous task of raising five brethren to the third degree had been accomplished. The W.M., in reply, said he did not hesitate to cast some justly deserved blame upon several of the minor Officers, who were conspicuous by their absence. Bros. W. D. Bailey P.M. and Treasurer, Harry Tipper J.W., Thompson W.S., and J. D. Barnett P.M. and Organist, contributed to the harmony of the evening by their vocal and instrumental talents. The Visitors were Bros. Boose P.M. 306, Morling S.W. 948, Oppenheim 1306, Robinson 1328. There were also present Past Masters R. Z. Bloomfield, Harfeld, Staley, F. Croaker, N. Gluckstein, and E. Gottheil.

Lodge was opened in the first degree, the minutes of the last regular meeting (which included the newly adopted Bye-Laws) were read and confirmed. Lodge was opened in the second degree and Bro. William James Maurice having given proof of his proficiency was entrusted. The Lodge was opened in the third, and Bro. Maurice was raised to the sublime degree of M.M. by the W.M., the traditional history being given by Bro. Wheeler I.P.M.; the working tools were presented by the W.M. The Lodge was resumed in the second and third degrees. The Worshipful Master then alluded to the serious illness of their highly esteemed Brother W. W. Moxhay, senior P.M. of the Lodge; he felt certain it was with sincere regret that every brother heard of their dear old friend's illness; he was convinced that they all heartily prayed that his valuable life might be spared. They always welcomed the cheery and happy face of Bro. Moxhay, who had for so many years acted as their installing Master; he was sure they were all anxious for his speedy recovery. He begged to propose—"That the brethren assembled in open Lodge desire to express their sincere sympathy with their esteemed Brother W. W. Moxhay in his illness, and devoutly pray that the Great Architect of the Universe may be pleased to restore him to health and strength." This was cordially seconded by Bro. Wheeler I.P.M., and carried unanimously, and the Secretary was requested to forward a copy of the resolution to Bro. Moxhay. All business being ended the Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to supper at the Great Western Hotel, after which the toasts of the Queen and the Craft, the Visitors (responded to by Bros. Hurley P.M. 1101 and Flanagan W.M. 2043), the W.M., and the newly raised Brother (Maurice) were proposed and received in a hearty manner.

POLISH NATIONAL LODGE, No. 534.

THE annual meeting of this old established and flourishing Lodge took place at the Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, on the 9th inst. Bro. Runtz W.M., supported by Bros. Bieling W.M. elect S.W., Bryant J.W., Tongue S.D., Gordon J.D., Apsey I.G., Turner D.C., Banks Tyler; P.M.'s Smith, Jackson, Jagielski, Rath, &c., Paas Secretary, Nowakowski Treasurer. The business of the evening consisted of raising Bro. O'Neil and passing Bro. Bailey; then followed the ceremony of installation. This was performed by the retiring W.M., in the impressive and able manner which is habitual with him, and the ceremony seemed to afford the highest satisfaction to the fifteen P.M.'s who formed the Board. In due course the new W.M. was saluted in the usual degrees, and the following Officers were appointed:—Bryant S.W., Tongue J.W., Gordon S.D., Apsey J.D., Turner I.G., Runtz D. of C., Banks Tyler. After these brethren had taken their seats the W.M. presented Bro. Runtz with a P.M.'s jewel, which was voted to him at the last Lodge meeting. The W.M. addressed Brother Runtz as follows:—"In the name of the Polish National Lodge I have very great pleasure in investing you with this beautiful P.M.'s jewel, which has been presented to you by the brethren. It is the emblem of a perfect Master, and is suspended from the Polish White Eagle, a combined emblem of purity, swiftness and progress. It is not only the members' jewel of this particular Lodge, but it also represents a noble and chivalrous people—for history tells us how their splendid horsemen turned the tide of battle against the all conquering crescent which at one time threatened to overrun Christendom. May you, Bro. Runtz, live many years to wear it on your breast in our Masonic assemblies, and when that great summons arrives which we all must obey, may your children, and children's children, look upon this jewel as the most precious heirloom in their possession, for their father's sake." This short address was received by the brethren with great applause, and the I.P.M. made suitable reply, thanking the brethren for their kindness. The next business was the reading of the report of the Audit Committee, which showed there was a substantial balance in the hands of the Treasurer; it was unanimously accepted. After a few communications had been read, the W.M. was greeted with hearty good wishes, and a candidate proposed for the next meeting. Lodge was then closed in the usual manner. The brethren now repaired to the banquet room. When the cloth had been removed, the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts received attention. The I.P.M. proposed, in fitting terms, the health of the new W.M., who thanked the brethren for having selected him to the responsible office of Master; he was reminded of the night when, nine years ago, he was initiated in the Polish National Lodge; he had worked hard to perfect himself for the duties of Master, and felt that he had his reward in being elected. He hoped to transmit the warrant to his successor pure and unsullied as he had received it. The next toast was that of the Visitors, and to this Bro. Adlard responded; he had been over fifty years a Mason, and had passed the chair so long ago as 1834; he might therefore be supposed to have had some experience; he had never seen the work performed in a more perfect or abler manner than he had seen it that evening. Bro. Saegart also alluded to the able manner in which the I.P.M. had performed his duties; he was glad to see the brethren had given honour to whom honour was due, in having voted Bro. Runtz the Commander's White Eagle. Bro. Saegart terminated his remarks by wishing the W.M. a happy and prosperous year of office. The I.P.M., in response to the toast in his honour, thanked the brethren for the hearty manner they had received it; it was both painful and pleasant for him to respond to the toast—painful, as he was giving up his position; and pleasant, as he was terminating one of the brightest years of his life. As long as he lived he intended to be a member of the Polish National Lodge, and hoped to retain the good wishes of the brethren. The health of the Past Masters was then proposed. Bro. Jagielski ably responded, alluding especially to the significance of the Polish Eagle. Bro. Jackson thanked the brethren for having included his name; he thought that some allusion should have been made to the visit of the Most Worshipful Grand Master to Ireland. He hoped the Grand Master would visit some of the Irish Lodges, and cement the brotherly good feeling which already existed between English and Irish Lodges. The rest of the Officers were called upon to respond to the toast of their health, and at length the Tyler's toast completed the evening, and the brethren separated, at a somewhat late hour. Amongst the Visitors were Bros. Norman P.M. 125, Newton 90, Underwood W.M. 1366, Adlard P.M. 7, Saegert P.M. 548, Inglis S.D. 946, Taylor 1441, Kelsey 45, Debenham 28, Frost P.P.G.D. Surrey, Alford P.M. 228, Kew P.M. 179, Snowdin W.M. 157, Hughes W.M. 179, Pritchard S.D. 1415, Pink P.M. 1420, Cogan P.M. 1365, Newcomb 569, Busney 569, Potter 1158, Swain 1298, Couzens 907.

RANELAGH LODGE, No. 834.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge was held on Tuesday, the 14th instant, at the Criterion, Piccadilly, when there was a good muster of the brethren present, and they were honoured with the presence of several visitors. The business of the evening consisted of two initiations, two passings, and one raising. This was followed by the installation of Bro. J. Sims, who had been unanimously elected W.M. at the last regular meeting of the Lodge. Bro. H. Purdue, the retiring Master, performed the whole of the ceremonies in the most able manner; while the way he conducted the installation of his successor, called forth the praise of all. Bro. Oliver P.M. was voted a jewel in recognition of his valued and kind services as Organist for the last ten years. Bro. Sims's year of office promises to be a successful one; there will be two candidates for initiation at the next meeting of the Lodge. The banquet was served in the most satisfactory manner, under the able direction of Bro. Bertini, of well-known Criterion fame. A string band was in attendance, and played during the banquet. In due course, the Masonic toasts were honoured, and some good singing was rendered by Bros. Bryett P.M., Oliver P.M., May, Craigs, Cliburn, and others.

CALLENDER LODGE, No. 1052.

THE Festival of St. John and installation of Bro. Roger Walker was celebrated in the Masonic Rooms, 74a King-street, Manchester, on Tuesday, the 21st instant. The Lodge was opened in due form and with solemn prayer by the installing Master, Bro. Daniel Edwards (P.M. 1052 and the first Master of the Wolsey Lodge, No. 1993), in absence of the W.M. Bro. Outram, who was unavoidedly prevented from being present at the opening. Bros. R. Walker S.W., S. Wrigley J.W., R. White I.P.M., D. Edwards Treas., J. Jordrell Sec., Ernest Jones S.D., C. J. Bennett Org., A. Williams I.G., J. Sly Tyler; W. Duncan P.M., P. Barker P.M., S. Warburton P.M., T. Fallows P.M., Jas. Campbell, W. H. Clayton, T. W. K. Start, H. Battersby, Jno. Shaw, W. W. was then opened in the second degree, and the W.M. elect was presented to the installing Master by Bro. Phillip Barber P.M., an old and esteemed member of the Lodge. The ceremony of installation was then proceeded with and completed by Bro. Edwards in a masterly manner, that frequently elicited demonstrations of applause. The following brethren were then invested:—Bros. A. B. Outram I.P.M., Seth Wrigley S.W., Jno. Jordrell J.W., A. B. Outram P.M. Treas., D. Edwards P.M. Secretary, S. Davies D.C., Ernest Jones S.D., C. J. S. Bennett Org., Acton Williams I.G., James Sly Tyler, J. Campbell and W. H. Clayton Stewards. Hearty good wishes were expressed by the following Visiting brethren:—Bros. Hatton P.M. 78 1993, Riley Sec. 815 1993, Harris W.M. elect 1993, Evans 1993, Withington S.W. 78, Burtles W.M. 78, H. West Yorks, Griffith 935 1993, Fletcher 993, Board I.P.M. 1798, Hebden P.M. 1458. Lodge was then closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet room, where the tables were set out in splendid style, and beautifully decorated with fruit and flowers, by the caterer, Mrs. Edwards, of 5 Bury New Road, Manchester, who has already attained great local fame for her efficient catering. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given and received in the most cordial manner. The Visitors spoke most enthusiastically of the Masonic treat afforded them by the delivery of the ceremony of installation, and expressed their gratification at the bountiful liberality displayed at the festive board. Past Masters and Officers spoke hopefully of their newly made Master, Bro. Roger Walker, who seems to be deservedly beloved and respected by all who know him. A bright future is anticipated for this Lodge under his rule; in fact, we believe a more harmonious and friendly Lodge does not exist in the provinces. The menu cards, printed by Bro. Beresford P.M. 104, were neatly got up, and we shall be pleased to place the one sent by our correspondent with the Masonic souvenirs in our collection.

PERSEVERANCE LODGE, No. 1743.

THIS new and flourishing Lodge, consecrated only five years since, has had an uninterrupted career of success, owing to the feeling of unity existing amongst its members. To this is combined good working and proverbial hospitality. A short time since a committee, under the presidency of the Worshipful Master, was formed for the purpose of welcoming the Ladies, and giving them an enjoyable evening. This has resulted in unqualified success. On Saturday, the 11th instant, the elegant suite of rooms of the Imperial Hotel, Holborn Viaduct, the headquarters of the Lodge, were thrown open, and, lighted by the Electric Light, presented a very attractive appearance. The Ladies on their arrival were received by Bros. Lovell and Thompson; but previous to this, at 4 o'clock, the Lodge was opened by the W.M. Bro. Alfred Eade, supported by Bros. Mollindinia S.W., Read J.W., A. L. Leins P.M. Treasurer, C. E. Ferry P.M. Secretary, Mitchell S.D., Smith J.D., Fox I.G.; Bros. Sparrow I.P.M., Kearney and Walls P.M.'s. The minutes having been read and confirmed, Bro. H. C. Lonsdale, No. 205, was unanimously elected a joining member. The Bye-Laws were read. The election of W.M. for the ensuing year next took place, and resulted in Brother Mollindinia S.W. being unanimously chosen. Bro. A. L. Leins P.M. was re-elected Treasurer, and R. W. Goddard P.M. Tyler. Lodge was then closed until the second Saturday in September. The Ladies and Brethren, 82 in number, now sat down to a sumptuous and récherché banquet and dessert, superintended by Bro. A. Begbie. The tables were most artistically decorated. Grace having been said, the Worshipful Master, who very ably presided, proposed the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts briefly and appropriately. Bro. Sparrow I.P.M. then rose; it afforded him great pleasure to propose the health of the W.M. It was the last time he should have that privilege. Bro. Eade had ably filled the chair, and, by his courtesy, able working, and presidency, had endeared himself to all the members, who trusted he would have long life, health, and prosperity. The W.M. in reply said he felt a great amount of diffidence in responding; he was one of the founders of the Lodge; he had held every office in it. It was with intense gratification he could say that every meeting had been one of unity. To those who had assisted him in his duties as Master his thanks were due. It was with especial pride he presided over such an assembly as was present on this, his last night in the chair. The next toast was the health of the W.M. elect. Bro. Mollindinia was also one of the Founders; he had done his work well, and it was pleasing to see that he had been unanimously elected. He would now ask them to drink to his health, and to a prosperous year of office. The W.M. elect said he hoped to follow in the footsteps of his predecessors, and would do all in his power for the comfort of the Lodge. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Ladies; he felt it a great pleasure to preside over such an assembly; he could not find words to express his gratitude for having been honoured by their presence. He hoped this evening would but be the precursor of many more, equally enjoyable. He could not find a better respondent than Brother F. Binckes Past Grand Steward. Bro. Binckes felt gratified at being present in a Lodge where the brethren had elected to have Ladies with them to participate in their pleasures, and he hoped others would follow the example set. He felt it an honour having been called on to respond; but he thought he was in somewhat of an enigmatical situation. However, the Ladies were in a position to judge as to whether Freemasons did their duty, and he would suggest as a fitting motto to the toast they should add the words "Love and Honour." The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Visitors, for which compliment Brothers Johnson, Binckes, H. M. Levy, and W. Smith severally responded. The next toast was the health of those gentlemen present who were not Masons; the W.M., as well as his brethren were pleased to see them. Perhaps eventually they might have to enrol their names amongst those belonging to the Order. After a reply from Mr. Cattell, the W.M. gave the health of the Past Masters. To them his thanks were due. They had rendered the Lodge every assistance. Bro. Sparrow I.P.M. responded. The Treasurer, Secretary, and Officers were not forgotten, and then the Tyler gave the parting toast. The company adjourned, and dancing took place. During the evening Miss Leins, the Misses Lucy Elliott and Agnes Leins sang some excellent songs. Messrs. Packer, Frassini, and Albert Leins also sang. Bro. Tasker gave a capital recitation, while Bro. F. Binckes, by request, gave "Othello's Address to the Senate," in masterly style.

Among the Visitors were Bros. Binckes P.G.S., Packer 1571, Wright 1692, Burgess 2048, Thompson 1299, Soudam 749, Johns 1297, Smith 933, Kemp 1706, Hyams 487, London 1580, Levy P.M. 188; Mesdames Salter, Mentz, Reeve, Smith, Soudam, Fidler, Sparrow, Gasson, Watt, Thompson, Baker, Belhomie, W. Smith, London, Eade, Chamberlain. Misses Young, Rees, Bennett, Fox, Felsen, Packer, Wright, Moldinia.

CITADEL LODGE, No. 1897.

THE election meeting of this Lodge was held at the Railway Hotel, Harrow Station, on Saturday, the 18th instant, under the presidency of Bro. John Osborn the W.M., who was supported by the following Officers and Visitors:—Brothers Edwin Woodman J.W., Lee Secretary, Weston S.D., Osborn J.D., Von Holtorp I.G., Gaskin Steward, P.M.'s Bird, Mayes; also Bros. Davison, Sheffield, Hibberd, Cole, Trotman, Broach, Lee, Mayne, Wright, Hughes, Banks. Visitors—Bros. Thrupp R.W. D.P.G.M. The minutes having been confirmed, Bro. Lee was raised, and then, by the courtesy of the W.M., Bro. Woodman, the J.W. of the Lodge, who is also W.M. of 1950, assumed the chair and proceeded to confer the second degree on Bro. Plant, an initiate of 1950, who is about to leave for America. Bro. Osborn having resumed the charge of his Lodge, and the ballot having been successfully taken, Mr. Banks and Mr. Broach were initiated into the Order. Bro. Jones 1278 was admitted as a joining member, and the following Officers were elected for the ensuing year:—Bro. Lee W.M., Hurran Treasurer, Very Tyler. Other business having been disposed of, Lodge was closed, and was followed by a dinner, where the usual toasts were honoured. Bro. Osborn was congratulated on the success which had attended his presidency of the Lodge, and regrets were expressed that the time had arrived for his retirement from the chair. Bros. Sheffield, Lee jun., Woodman, Collings and others contributed to the harmony of the evening.

EARL OF LATHOM LODGE, No. 1922.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge was held on the 13th inst., at the Greyhound Hotel, Streatham Common, Surrey, and was numerously attended by members and Visitors. Bro. Wentworth T. Chapman, the W.M., was supported by G. W. Evans S.W. and W.M. elect, Runacres P.M. Treas., Witts P.M. 144 Sec., Evans S.D., Clark J.D., Beal as I.G., Sims P.M. D.C., Albert Org., Spencer S., Taylor I.P.M., and the following Visitors—Warren I.P.M. 1348, Barham P.M. 144, Croaker P.M. 185, Taylor P.M. 1558, Evans 177, Dickins P.M. 860, Walker 1348, Voysey P.M. 1641, Bently Haynes W.M. 27, R. Lodge was opened and the minutes of the former regular meeting, and of emergencies of the 9th February and 9th March, having been confirmed, the report of the Audit Committee was adopted. Bros. Cope, Darling, and Edwards were raised. A Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. G. W. Evans was installed in the presence of 22 W.M.'s and P.M.'s, by the retiring W.M. Bro. Chapman. The W.M. was saluted according to antient custom, and appointed and invested as his Officers Bros. Chapman I.P.M., Turle Lee S.W., Evans J.W., Runacres P.M. Treasurer, Witts P.M. Secretary, Clark S.D., Cannon J.D., Sims P.M. I.G., Spencer D.C., Albert Steward, Coates Org., Shipton A.S., Church Tyler. Bro. R. Taylor P.M. acted with his usual ability as D.C. during the proceedings. Two propositions for initiation and one for joining were handed in, while the resignation of a P.M. was received with regret. Hearty good wishes were then given by the Visitors, and the Lodge was closed until the second Monday in May. The brethren afterwards adjourned to the Carlton Hall, Tunstall-road, Brixton, where an excellent banquet and dessert was served by Bro. C. G. Slawson. Grace having been sung, the W.M. proposed the usual toasts. Bro. Chapman I.P.M. said the brethren perhaps thought that they had heard his voice for the last time. It was so as W.M., but not as a Past Master. He had a pleasing duty to perform, to submit an important toast—that of the W.M. That brother had shown his aptitude for the office by the way in which he had invested his Officers, and had since presided over the Lodge. He hoped he might have health and prosperity during his term of office. The W.M. fully recognised the responsibilities of office. It would be a source of pleasure to be of any service to the Lodge. He was sure he should have the assistance of the members to enable him to carry out his duty. He then proposed the toast of the Visitors, of whom there were thirty-four present, twenty-two of them Installed Masters. He felt it an honour to have so many guests around him, his own father being among the number. Bros. Haynes W.M. 27 and Johnson W.M. 1329, with others, responded. The W.M. proposed the toast of the I.P.M., Bro. Chapman. The Lodge was indebted to him for its success during his year of office; he had always looked after their comforts, and it was now with great pleasure he invested him with a jewel, as a token of the regard in which he was held. Bro. Chapman felt honoured in receiving the jewel just presented him. He could not find words to properly thank them. He hoped to obtain higher honours in the Order. He was pleased to say the Lodge was in a prosperous condition, and he was proud that it was free from debt and had funds in hand. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Past Masters, which was acknowledged by Bros. Taylor and Runacres. The toast of the Treasurer, Secretary, Wardens and Officers was given, as also was that of the Musical Brethren who had so ably rendered service. The Tyler's toast followed, a very agreeable and harmonious evening was brought to a conclusion. Bros. Albert and Spencer were assiduous in their exertions for the comfort of the brethren and Visitors. The music was under the direction of Bro. Turle Lee, the S.W. of the Lodge, who was ably supported in his endeavours to amuse by Bros. James Brown, W. Coates, Henry Taylor and Franklin Clive.

All labour ended, Lodge was closed, and adjourned to Wednesday next, 29th April, at seven o'clock.

Botley appointed W.M. for next meeting, when he will rehearse the installation ceremony. Lodge was then closed, and adjourned until 24th, at eight o'clock.

Harper seconded, that a vote of thanks be recorded to the brethren taking part in the working, and also to Bro. Sadler P.M. Grand Tyler for his kindness in coming, and giving the brethren the pleasure of hearing his working. This also was carried. Lodge was then closed.

Hyde Park Lodge of Instruction, No. 1425.—There was a very large gathering of members and visitors at the meeting of this excellent Lodge of Instruction on Monday last, the 20th inst., when the V.W. Bro. A. F. A. Woodford P.G.C., &c., completed the second portion of his lecture on the Early Ritual of Freemasonry. Amongst the brethren present were Bros. G. Read P.M. 511 W.M., W. J. Mason S.W., Jas. Lichtenfeld J.W., Rev. A. F. A. Woodford P.G.C. Chap., H. Dehane P.M. 1543 P.P.G.S.D. Essex Sec., F. Chandler S.D., A. Hardy J.D., C. J. Morse I.G., W. Middlewesk S.; P.M.'s Bros. W. H. Chalfont 1425, Browne Kidder 12, A. E. Gladwell 172, D. Cama 258 P.G.D.C. Middx., Capt. A. Nicols P.M. 1974 P.D.G.S. of W. Punjab, C. Higgins 1381, James Stevens 1216, G. Gregory 1538, C. Andrews 77, also Bros. W. Harris, E. Coleman, R. P. J. Laundy, C. Coleman, A. P. Lake, A. Le Clair, J. Greenway, D. Stroud, H. J. Phillips, W. A. Landey, Laurence, C. Bellerby jun., Cliburn, W. R. Hatton, C. Breitbach, M. D. Cama, N. D. Francis, Rev. M. Haines, C. Craig, C. S. Mote, J. H. Wood, T. C. Edmonds, R. C. Cursons, E. Bessell, A. S. Death, Owen. Visitors—Bros. J. Carter 212, C. P. Langley 2045, E. Lange 141, A. Stong 141, Capt. H. S. Andrews 1974, J. E. Sheffield, A. Cornwall 969, Owen, Hills. Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the previous meeting having been confirmed, it was raised to the third degree, and the W.M. introduced Bro. Woodford to the brethren for the purpose of the meeting. The worthy and rev. lecturer at once took up his address, at the point of termination of the first portion of the lecture given on a former occasion, when the Lodge was in the first degree and carrying his remarks into the following Craft degrees greatly interested his hearers by comparisons of the style of ritual antecedent to the present century with those now adopted in our English Lodges. The lecturer strongly argues for an unbroken connection of antiquated verbiage with that of modern times in the composition of the ritual at the date of the Articles of Union in 1813, and certainly some of his arguments are deserving of considerable attention, although they do not meet with general acceptance. Bro. Woodford should be heard in Lodge by those who desire to receive interesting instruction in respect of former "working," for it is of course impossible to give publicity in these pages to his remarks thereon. It is sufficient to state that a very pleasant hour was spent by a most attentive audience, who, at the close of Bro. Woodford's address, greeted him most cordially. At the request of the W.M. Bro. Stevens P.M. moved "that the thanks of the Lodge be accorded to the V.W. Bro. A. F. A. Woodford P.G.C. for his very instructive lecture, and that the same be recorded on the minutes." In the course of his speech Bro. Stevens, remarking upon the evident desire of Lodges of Instruction to vary the monotony of continued rehearsals of ceremonial, by availing themselves of opportunities such as Bro. Woodford had that evening afforded, maintained that it could not now be said that Masonic Lecturers were not forthcoming, or that the brethren generally could not be interested and instructed in a manner different from that which obtained but a few years since. Bros. Hughan, Whytehead, Cumberland, and others were, equally with Bros. Woodford, W. W. Morgan, and, he hoped he might add, himself, ever ready when called upon to devote what ability they might respectively possess to the advancement of the literature of the Craft. The worthy lecturer on this occasion gave, by his position in the Order, a countenance of no slight importance to these lectures, and therefore such service should be recognised in the manner which his motion indicated. Bro. C. Andrews very eloquently seconded the motion, which was carried with acclamation. Bro. Woodford having thanked the brethren, the Lodge, which had been duly closed down, received several of the Visitors as members, and was subsequently closed in peace and harmony.

CHARITY AND CLAIMANTS.

To the Editor of the Freemason's Chronicle.

Dear Sir and Brother,—It is not easy to discuss the merits of the various claimants to our Charities, without being open to the charge of hostility to a person or of unkindness. Yet cases arise occasionally which demand more than a passing notice, even at the risk of being misunderstood. At the last Quarterly Court of the Masonic Institution for Boys, Bro. J. S. Cumberland called attention to the case of William Edward Tappenden, and proposed that the lad's name should be removed from the list of candidates, on the ground that the boy's father had not left him penniless, but had provided for him. This objection elicited from the Chairman, Bro. Raynham Stewart, and others the remark, "that the School was not intended for the reception of paupers." I had a slight acquaintance with the late Bro. Tappenden, and I know well some of the supporters of his son. The former was very much respected in the Lodge to which he belonged, and I can vouch for the latter that they are men of high character and deep sympathy. In making these admissions, I am not quite sure whether Bro. Cumberland was not right in raising the question of claim, although I do not see how he could expect to succeed in the case of the boy Tappenden, seeing that he is only the type of many. It would be unfair to single out one boy, when there are others in a similar position. The value of Bro. Cumberland's action in this instance consists in the attention he has called to a matter that ere long will have to be considered. The necessity for some alteration is continually occurring, and the remark of the Chairman will tend to hasten the time when the whole system of candidature must be revised.

I recollect being taken seriously to task for calling the Institution at Croydon "Almshouses," but my offence was venial compared with that of Bro. Stewart's. In both cases no harm was meant; at least there was none in mine, and I feel sure that Bro. Stewart would not wilfully hurt the feelings of any brother, much less those of the widow and orphan. But these cases only show how tender are the susceptibilities of the brethren, and how cautious all ought to be in the use of words and phrases. What strikes me forcibly is that Bro. Stewart's remarks point to the assumption that the benefit of the Charities is circumscribed by the financial position of the claimants, and those outside of the charmed circle—the most pitiable and often the most deserving—must look elsewhere for help. Thomas Noel, in his "Pauper's Drive," has the following refrain:—

"Rattle his bones, over the stones, He's only a pauper, whom nobody owns."

Practically, that represents the unhappy condition of the very poor Freemason, although it may shock the sensitive nerves of some to have it so bluntly stated.

Looking at the question in a broad and common-sense light, the whole case presents itself to me in something like the following form. When a man becomes a Freemason, he is accepted as having complied with the financial requirements as well as the moral conditions of the Order. He meets on the level, and is the equal of princes and peers, and he does not lose that equality unless he violates his obligations. His acceptance into the body covers his failings as well as his virtues; the former should be the object of solicitude, independent of any narrow limitation, while the latter should be regarded as the common property of all. A brother's success in life increases his responsibilities to others; his failure demands sympathy and succour. His claim is altogether independent of social status; were it otherwise, class distinctions would be set up, a state of things utterly subversive of the fundamental principles of the Craft. Charity, we are taught, is "the distinguishing characteristic of a Freemason's heart," and I nowhere find that its exercise is limited, except by self-preservation, and the duty that is owing to relatives. I go farther, and say that the ritual points to those "reduced to the lowest state of poverty and distress" as objects of the special regard of the brethren. It may be urged that it is impossible to relieve in every case, and that therefore some rule of choice must be laid down. No doubt this is so, but a rule that shall, in the case of charity, exclude the most wretched cases, while it helps those capable of helping themselves, is a direct violation of the principles and of the teaching of the Fraternity. I deny the right of any body of men to frame laws that are opposed to the constitution, to the spirit of charity, which is the essence of Freemasonry. Their first duty is to the poorest, working upwards, and their object should be to select the most helpless cases for relief. It is not for them to define the social status of candidates, nor even of the inmates of the Schools. In the latter case that is a matter for the pupils themselves. All that the Governors are called upon to do is to afford the best facilities they can for their charge, leaving distinctions to assert themselves, as they always do in any body of human beings.

There is a good deal of social cant among Freemasons. "I am holier than thou," is as clearly expressed in the actions of some as if they wore the phylacteries of their ancient type on their foreheads. They are the Pharisees of the Order, who observe its forms with rigid exactness but reject its spiritual teachings. The time is near, if it has not come, when the word "pauper" shall be unknown among Freemasons, when the principle of equality shall assume its rightful position, and when the exercise of charity shall no longer be limited to class, but be as free as its genius is pure and unbounded.

Yours fraternally,

Watchman.

ONE OF THE UNEMPLOYED.

To the Editor of the Freemason's Chronicle.

Dear Sir and Brother,—Will you kindly grant me space in your columns to make an appeal to the brethren of the Order to solicit their assistance and influence to help me in obtaining some kind of employment whereby I shall be enabled to earn my living. I have tried my utmost to obtain a situation since the first week in January last. I have advertised, answered advertisements, and applied personally, but all to no purpose. I have been told by a great many employers that they require young men, and one gentleman (a partner in a firm to whom I have paid some thousands of pounds when in more prosperous circumstances) told me that there was always a home open to me by applying for admittance to the workhouse. With the above results, after my daily endeavours to obtain an honest living, I think it is sufficient to crush the spirit of the strongest. I am happy to state that I can give good references, and can also refer to Brothers in the Craft to whom I have been known for many years. I shall be pleased to answer any inquiries, either personally or by letter, that might be required of me. Trusting you will excuse me for taking up so much of your valuable space, in making this appeal as my last resource,

I remain,

Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

Master Mason.

WANDERERS' CHAPTER, No. 1604.

THE installation Convocation of this Chapter was held on the 21st inst., at the Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street. Present—Comps. Vincent P.Z. M.E.Z., Wray H., Seale J., Fuller Treas., Baker S.E., Gibson S.N., Coop P.S.; P.Z.'s Boulton, Meredith. The minutes of last meeting having been confirmed, the report of the Audit Committee was read and adopted; it showed a balance in hand of £42 11s 2d. A ballot was taken for Bro. A. Hawksford 1604, who was duly exalted into the Order. The election of J. took place, in consequence of Comp. Capt. Butterworth being with the Army in Egypt, and Comp. Gibson was unanimously chosen. Comp. Coop was elected S.N. A Conclave of Installed Principals was opened, and Comp. E. F. J. Wray was installed M.E.Z., Seale H., Gibson J. The ceremonies were excellently rendered by Comp. Vincent P.Z. On the re-admission of the Companions the newly-installed Z. appointed and invested his Officers: Comps. Vincent I.P.Z., Fuller Treasurer, Baker S.E., Coop S.N., Brindley P.S., Hamilton 1st A.S., Stamp 2nd A.S., Lackland Janitor. The M.E.Z. had a very pleasing duty to perform, to present to Comp. W. Vincent P.Z., and place on his breast, a gold P.Z.'s jewel, not only for having served the chairs of the three Principals, but also for the manner in which he had discharged the duties attached thereto, and for the high respect he was held in by every Companion. Comp. Vincent, in appropriate terms, returned thanks for the valuable gift, and the kind words accompanying it. The resignation of a Companion was accepted with regret. Hearty good wishes were given by the various Visitors. The Chapter was closed until the third Tuesday in September, and the company sat down to banquet. The M.E.Z. proposed the usual Loyal and R.A. toasts. Comp. Vincent I.P.Z. said for the first time he had the honour to propose the toast of the M.E.Z. In selecting Comp. Wray the Companions had not only done honour to him, but also to themselves. The M.E.Z. thanked Comp. Vincent for his kind remarks; his aim had always been to enhance the success of the Craft, and this Chapter in particular. The toast of the Exaltee, Comp. Hawksford, was given, and duly responded to. In a very pertinent speech the M.E.Z. proposed the toast of the P.Z.'s. and regretted that several of them were absent. Comp. Vincent, in reply, said his services were always at their command. Comps. Meredith, Boulton, Ascott, Levy, C. Taylor, Bond, R. Taylor, Graham, Lowe and Cantle responded as Visitors. The M.E.Z. then proposed the toast of the H. and J. Had they not done their duty they would not have been selected to fill those important offices. The toast having been responded to in excellent terms, the M.E.Z. proposed the toast of the Officers of the Chapter, Comps. Fuller Treasurer, whose interests in the Chapter showed such a good balance, and Comp. Baker S.E., who was one that looked after their interests. If they regretted losing his services, in future they hoped to have him in a more prominent position, to enable him to occupy the chair. The same might be applied to those other Companions who had been selected for office. No better working ones could be found. Comp. Fuller, in responding, said they were in a flourishing condition. It was to Comps. Vincent, Meredith, and Boulton they were indebted for the prosperous condition of the Chapter. The toast of the Companions now serving their country in the Soudan was next given, the proposer (Comp. Fuller) hoping they would return to their native country safe and sound. Comp. W. H. Baker S.E. followed, and said how pleased he was to see the Chapter crowned with success. He alluded to Comp. Smith, and said they owed a debt of gratitude to him for the services he had rendered to the Chapter. Comps. Coop and Brindley followed. The M.E.Z. then proposed the toast of absent Companions. This toast was enthusiastically received, with the hearty co-operation of every Companion, and then the Janitor's toast was given. Among the Visitors were Comps. Bond H. 619, Grist 1624, Taylor J. elect 1540, Ascott P.Z. 733, Love 1387, Edwards 65, Garrard 582, Cantle 186, Levy P.Z. 188.

A Convocation of the North London Chapter of Improvement was held at the Alwyne Castle Tavern, St. Paul's Road, Canonbury, on Thursday, 23rd instant. Comps. W. Radcliffe M.E.Z, G. Gregory H., S. George J., J. E. Sheffield S.E., Sheppard S.N., T. C. Edmonds P.S. The respective offices were ably represented, and a very profitable evening was spent.

The monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. Joshua Nunn President, James Brett Senior Vice President, and C. A. Cottebrune Junior Vice President being present, and occupying their respective offices. The recommendations made at the last meeting having been confirmed, the consideration of the forty-eight new cases on the list was proceeded with. Four of these were deferred, one was dismissed, and the remaining forty three were relieved—with a total of £983, made up of one sum of £3, three of £5 each, ten of £10, three of £15, six of £20, two of £25, ten of £30, six of £40, one of £50, and one of £60.

Vaudeville.—The 17th of April 1885 will be a red letter day in the annals of the Thorne administration. Poor Henry J. Byron has gone from us to the land of shadows, but has left us at parting the richest and ripest fruit of a wit that at its best shone with the kindly light that loves, or pities the folly it mocks at. That the "Open House" did not unfold its doors before the author had left us must be regretted. However, on this the first night, when the universal laughter that had flowed like a tidal wave subsided, the happy manager was no longer in doubt of a new triumph. We who had known the gifted writer, to whom English men and women owe many happy hours, felt it might be as well if the memory of the dead had been considered in silence. As for the story of "Open House," it deals with the mistakes and mystifications brought about by an impudent cad, Jack Alabaster, played with almost painful realism by Mr. Thorne. Never before has this clever comedian so completely merged his own individuality in his author's creation; his meanness, impudence, preposterous misquotations from the Latin Grammar, his almost pathetic absence of moral sense, reach the sublime of the unconscious. Mr. W. Farren, as a senile lady-killer, played like the master he is; he would invest almost any part with the charm of highest comedy. Mr. Yorke Stephens is fitted with an excellent opportunity. Mr. Cayley, as the noble-hearted but hot-tempered husband, maddened with jealousy by this "Iago" Alabaster—who establishes himself in Cayley's house, and would marry his niece, on the pretence of having saved his life. Miss Cissy Grahame gives promise of improvement, and has almost given up those Burne Jones attitudes and æsthetic lispings so trying to the sterner sex. Mrs. Canninge is excellent as a strong-minded widow, and Mr. Wheatstone will doubtless tone down his "Joseph." The comedy is prettily mounted, and will provide laughter of the "Regency" flavour. Howard Paul's sparkling little triologue, "The Man Opposite," commences the evening. The author and Miss K. Phillips are at their best in it. Except by the hon. member for East Hampton, Mr. Howard Paul is unapproached in the lightness of touch that gives the charm to this kind of work. Those will miss a treat who go only for the more important play.

Olympic.—We are having a plethora of farcical comedies; we hear, too, of a farcial tragedy; and now the management of the Olympic provides us with what is probably intended as a farcical melodrama. "Heartless," a new play, was presented last Saturday evening. "Adapted" (is this a misprint for "distorted") from Ouida's "Puck." We all know this novelist's mannerism; her fervour, high colouring and passion at fever heat; her lime-light and moon-light effects, glorified with the glamour of her picturesque genius, which lends a charm to her most impossible creations. In the story of "Puck" the pathetic character of the brother gives poetic value to the work, whilst the author throws an advantageous chiar-oscuro round her figures by placing them in an Italian background. The anonymous adapter has dragged all the dramatis personæ over the Channel, and commences his drama in a cottage, where the heroine, Avice Dare, and her brother Ben, are discovered speaking an eclectic dialect, compounded of Whitechapel, Yorkshire and Lowland Scotch. Avice robs her brother, to buy a cotton pocket handkerchief from a pedlar (Mr. Girardot), who speaks the same peculiar tongue; she then sells her brother's dog, and joins a travelling circus. Mr. Alleyne, as Ben, did his best with the part; his devotion to his sister is indicated under his cynical indifference. Miss Wade, in a realistic Scotch peasant's dress, promised also well in the opening. The play is divided into a prologue and four acts. In the first act the fate of the drama seemed hopeless; it however sank into lower depths until unmistakable marks of disapproval were exhibited at the close of the third act. In act 1—"Temptation"—Avice is engaged at the Coronet Theatre, and apparently as bonne amie of the manager, Lord Bethan, played with spirit by Mr. P. Lyndal; she is beloved by Carlos Mirle, a preposterous painter and poet, stage manager of the Theatre; the part was magnificently played by Mr. K. Bellew. Avice fools him; she is furiously jealous of the leading lady, lately in the street "button hole" trade, but introduced to the manager by a virtuous but very slangy young person, a member of his ballet. Avice tries to kill her rival, by tampering with the stage machinery. In the second act we are in the green room, where a young lady is discovered trying to sing, for what purpose does not appear. Then Carlos goes mad, the leading lady marries Lord Bethan; then Ben appears; he is in search of Avice; accompanied by the repentant pedlar, she enters, and renounces her brother; adopting for the nonce the eclectic dialect of her youth; whereat the house giggles. In the last scene Avice, in terror, seeks safety from her insulted lover, who has escaped from an asylum. He enters, and here occurs the one thrilling scene of the play. The portrayal of madness may not be legitimate art, but Mr. Bellew so steeps himself and his audience in the passion and wild horror of the madman's thirst for vengeance, with his doubts and agony of misgiving, that we felt completely carried away by the magic of his art. Miss Wade also realised the terror of her doom with excellent effect. It recalled the last act of Fedora. But the great love underlying this fury was most subtly indicated by Mr. Bellew, where M. Berton only showed the rage of outraged confidence. A woman with no moral sense, a manager with no common sense, and a lover with no sense at all—these are the factors. Surely laughter and hisses should reward their inventor.

Opera Comique.—Alas far our poor dramatic muse that she must have recourse to those ancient rites, and set her Mr. Merryman to grin through horse collars, jump in sacks, and seek for laughter in a hospital for incurables. Mr. David James has surely been ill-advised to revive "The Guv'nor," a story improbable even for a farcical comedy, and relying for its effect on the miserable affliction of deafness in an old man, and the no less miserable affliction of stammering in a young one. Mr. James is too good an actor to waste his talents thus, and we look forward to his next production with the hope of finding a worthy successor to "Our Mr. Jenkins." Then may old Macclesfield retire to his Deaf Asylum, and cease to find wit in calling his wife "you fool!" and his daughter "you simpering idiot!" Mr. F. W. Irish was excellent as Butterscotch—his jealousy was a fine bit of comedy acting. Mr. Lestocq gives a capital sketch of a smart Yorkshire groom. This artist shows a great improvement in finish. The MacToddy of Mr. Dobson had a true North British flavour, and Mr. E. W. Gardiner, by his simplicity and sincerity, managed to rescue the tedious jeune premier, with his perpetual stutter, from being utterly exasperating. Mr. James has a capable company, one of the prettiest theatres in London, with delicious memories of "Pinafore" haunting its stage, and London will rejoice when its old favourite claims his proper position in the world of light and wholesome comedy.

Gaiety.—Miss Santry's second Matinée at the Gaiety proved that she has the gifts required for modern comedy. In "Promised in Pique" she played with grace and sprightliness, and the hardness of method which marred her "Constance" disappeared. Miss Sophie Larkin had one of her favourite parts; in these she is unapproachable. Miss Norris was agreeable in the "juvenile lead."

Grand.—For the man who would once more see a melodrama such as thrilled his sires with terror and delight in the days of large collars and short jackets there is a very pleasant evening offered at the pretty Islington Theatre, where the luxury of electric lights and comfortable arm chairs rivals the glories of Western houses. Sir Randal Roberts takes the leading part in his new play "A Dangerous Game." His Alcibiade Pignet, a French travelling showman, is drawn with delicious brightness and lightness of touch. His French patter is admirable, reminding us of the Maurice Barnett of our earlier days. When a baronet assumes the comic masque, he should have exceptional talent, and certainly Sir R. Roberts has this justification. J. H. Clynds as the dear old British tar, ready for any odds in the cause of "England, home, and beauty," played with thorough go. We hope to see him one day in "Black eyed Susan." Miss Alice Raynor is winsome and touching as the heroine. There is some good scenery with an especially effective set—"A Bastion, and the harbour of Marseilles."

The Royal, High Holborn.—This place of entertainment is just now the scene of special attractions. Bro. Purkiss, the proprietor and manager, always provides a good bill of fare for his patrons, but in the present instance he seems to have combined variety with excellence in a superior degree. There are the usual sentimental and comic performers, including Mdlle. Bleiken, described as a "Continental Songstress," and that popular favourite Bessie Bonehill. Cheevers and Kennedy, exponents of American peculiarities in song and dance, are clever, and the Brothers Griffiths are in reality "comical clowns," and show to great advantage in their bar and hat throwing exhibition. Hettie Keeble, transformation dancer, has the true dramatic instinct. Her gestures and action convey to the mind at once what language would almost fail to do; they are picture representations of character, further illustrated by dresses, the changes of which are effected with great rapidity and skill. One of the chief features of attraction is a spectacular entertainment, entitled "Shadows of Fate; or, Heroes of the Soudan." Scenes, war songs, and music combine in producing a result, solemn in some aspects, but which is most instructive and interesting. Taking the entertainment as a whole, it shows an advance, both in taste and character, to that usually witnessed at music halls, and is indeed worthy of the support that is nightly accorded it. Brother Purkiss is not less charitable than he is clever as a caterer, and we are glad to be able to record the fact that he has received a letter of thanks from Bro. Col. Henderson, C.B., for having handed over a sum of £350, being the proceeds of a benefit at the Royal in aid of the City and Metropolitan Police Orphanage.

Agricultural Hall.—Mr. Hamilton comes back to London with a very interesting and timely change of programme. His scenes in the Soudan give a vivid reflection of our soldiers' experiences—the pitiless desert and burning sky. Our pleasant showman of course takes the picturesque side, and enlivens his pictures with some capital songs. It is a capital place for the youngsters, who will find here an Appendix to School Geography.

MASONIC BALL.

ON Wednesday, the 15th inst., the annual ball of the United Masonic "At Home" and St. George's Quadrille Party was held at Cawte's Assembly Rooms, Southsea, and proved a success, both from a numerical and terpsichorean point of view. The company numbered about 250, and dancing was indulged in with much zest from 8.30 until after two the next morning, to the enlivening strains of a band under the direction of Mr. T. F. Wilton. There were twenty-two dances on the card. The catering of Mr. H. Cawte gave great satisfaction, and the general arrangements, which were admirably carried out, were entrusted to a Committee consisting of Messrs. J. Arnold Chairman M.C., S. Gardner Secretary M.C., W. J. Boyce, F. Green, A. Proctor, W. Smart, J. Taylor, H. G. Tuck, J. Vincent, and R. Watson.

A meeting of the members of the Metropolitan Council, T.I. will be holden at the Masonic Hall, Red Lion Square, on Friday, the 1st May, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, on which occasion duly qualified brethren will be received into the Allied Masonic Degrees, and then the W.M. elect will be installed and the new Officers invested.

THE OLD WORK.

THE generation of Masons of which the writer forms a part, are, in the course of natural events, gathering up their working tools to part upon the Square and be succeeded by younger Brethren, in whose veins the blood has not yet been chilled, either by age or long-continued work.

During our more than forty years' service, there has been a constant tendency to add to the ritual, with the idea that it is thereby improved, or else that some Brethren, with more push than wisdom, may flatter themselves that they have made a personal mark on the Craft, all of which is certainly taking ground in the wrong direction, by giving encouragement to alterations and innovations diametrically opposed to the spirit and instructions of our institution.

The true aim of every Brother is to set his face resolutely against alterations of the old forms and customs of any kind whatever, and especially of the frippery dragged in head and shoulders by quotations from authors not Masons, and therefore not capable of that knowledge of our Adytum.

A striking instance of this idea occurs in the selections from Shakespeare, Oliver Goldsmith and others, whose expressions, vigorous or tender, as the case may be, never formed any part of the esoteric ritual, and therefore never can, legitimately. So of Cross's "Monument."

Without any original invention of his own, he appropriated a design in Trinity Church yard in New York city and had it engraved for his monitor. Since then tens of thousands have been taught to believe this fictitious symbol to be a part of the traditions of Freemasonry, and young Masters, knowing no better, roll the story as a sweet morsel under their tongues, and look around for a verse or two of poetry to make the thing look and sound more harmoniously when a glib tongue pours out its sentences.

Halt, Brethren! No more improvements, modern or otherwise. Stand on the old ways and then make progression. Discountenance, as you would sacrilege, the trumpery that tries to improve on the old, and thus fit yourselves to direct the Masonic Ship of State, that when you, too, become old men, your example and your lessons may increase the devotion of your descendants, and perpetuate our glorious Craft to the end of time unchanged and faithful unto death.—N. Y. Dispatch.

On Thursday, the 16th instant, the Gallery Lodge lost a highly respected member by the death of Mr. Oswald Willson. The previous Thursday he was fulfilling his parliamentary duties for the Standard, although not feeling well. After that day he never returned to his duties, being confined to his bed the next day through increased illness, caused by an attack of smallpox. The disease was running its usual course for a day or two, when he suddenly caught a chill, in the momentary absence of an attendant, and congestion of the lungs supervening he became unconscious, and, continuing in that state, passed quietly away on Thursday afternoon. Among his colleagues the shock produced was very great. The event was entirely unexpected. Though never of a robust constitution, he kept uniformly well, and was foremost among the members of his profession. There were none of the projects which the Reporters' Gallery started that Mr. Willson did not support; and the Gallery Lodge, its balls and picnics, the Press Club, and any little excursion intended for the general good of the profession, found in him an instant, an ardent, and a firm advocate. If at any time he could conduce to the pleasure of an evening by a vocal performance, the Master of the Lodge had never to put any pressure upon him, the subject had only to be mentioned and the request was immediately complied with. Sensitive to the last degree himself, he had the finest appreciation of the sensitiveness of others, and for amiability, courtesy, charity, and comradeship, he leaves behind him one of the fairest names that any man or Mason could hope to secure. His remains were laid to rest on Monday, in the family grave at Finchley, and in addition to his immediate relatives, including his mother as chief mourner, the members of the Gallery who followed, including those of the Gallery Lodge, numbered over thirty. The Master of the Lodge (Bro. W. M. Duckworth), and the Secretary (Bro. R. J. Albery), and the Past Masters were present. Several members of the Standard corps were also in the cortège. The Reporters' Gallery and the Gallery Lodge, as well as private individuals, sent wreaths.—Evening News.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Rheumatism and Neuralgia.—Though the former disease remorselessly attacks persons of all ages, and the latter ruthlessly selects its victims from the weak and delicate, the persevering use of these remedies will infallibly cure both complaints. After the affected parts have been diligently fomented with hot brine, and the skin thoroughly dried, Holloway's Ointment must be rubbed in firmly and evenly for a few minutes twice a day, and his Pills taken according to the printed directions wrapped round each box of his medicine. Both Ointment and Pills are accompanied by instructions designed for the public at large, and no invalid who attentively reads them can now be at any loss how to doctor himself successfully.

On Sunday, the 19th instant, about 200 brethren assembled at Freemasons' Hall, Oldham, and went in procession to the parish church, where a sermon was preached, in which the Craft of Masonry was highly spoken of. A collection was afterwards made in aid of the funds of the East Lancashire Systematic Masonic Educational and Benevolent Association, amounting to just on £30.

THE ORIGINAL SOCIETY OF COOKS AND CONFECTIONERS.

ON Monday evening the fifty-ninth annual dinner in aid of the funds of this institution was held at the Holborn Restaurant, under the presidency of Sir John Bennett. Upwards of a hundred guests sat down to an excellent repast, worthy of the Cooks and Confectioners. After the removal of the cloth the chairman proposed the usual loyal and patriotic toasts, which were duly honoured. Mr. Brooke proposed the Corporation of London, in a capital speech, in the course of which he feelingly alluded to the death of Bro. Alderman Nottage. Mr. Dowling, C.C., responded. He stated that the Corporation of London had especial reason to be grateful to the Cooks, to whom they were so much indebted for the comforts of life. The Chairman next proposed the toast of the evening, "The Original Society of Cooks and Confectioners." He said that a few days since he visited a shop in the City, where for a penny he was served with a cup of tea with bread and butter, all being very good. As regarded the Society, he hoped it would undergo a complete resuscitation. After an existence of sixty years but little had been accomplished. There were but few members, subscribers, or donors. This should not be, and he hoped that more life, energy, and co-operation would be manifested, so that during the ensuing year better results might accrue. The toast was enthusiastically received. Then followed the toasts of the chairman, the donors and subscribers, and the Press. The chairman warmly eulogised the latter in an attractive speech. Bro. J. J. Brinton responded, and then the chairman proposed the Ladies. The stewards were Messrs. G. Heywood, E. Bunting. T. Wallace, C. Slawson, R. Duncan, J. Ansdell, and H. Goddard, the Secretary being Mr. W. A. Rawson. It is well known that most of those who are connected with the Society are brethren, the above names being familiar to the Craft. There is a wide field open for the operations of the Society, and no doubt steps will be taken whereby its usefulness may be extended. During the evening Bros. Cross and F. H. Cozens, together with other artists, gave a selection of excellent music. Upwards of £80 was subscribed during the evening, and an accession of members was announced.

THE CANDIDATES FOR THE BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

A FEW weeks since, in writing on the approaching Elections of the two Educational Institutions of English Freemasonry, we had occasion to point out that one-third of the candidates eligible to compete at those Elections would have to be sent away, in consequence of the Committees being unable to admit twenty-seven out of the seventy-four candidates, for want of room to accommodate them, or funds wherewith to maintain them. Since then the Elections have taken place, and although in each case the number of candidates to be admitted was increased on the day of Election—to twenty-three instead of twenty-two in the case of the Girls' School, and to twenty-six instead of twenty-five in that of the Boys'—it was still necessary to disappoint twenty-five of the candidates who took part in the contests. Thus a number of children were sent away, some of them deprived of all further right of competing—by reason of their age being beyond the limit—while the others will in all probability come forward at the Election to be held in October next. The majority of these twenty-five unsuccessful ones will have this opportunity of competing again within the next six months, so that the disappointment which their friends naturally felt in the announcement of the result which proclaimed their position on the last poll may be changed to rejoicing within that period, or when the result of the October ballots is announced; but how different all this to what is in store for the Old People who, from unforeseen calamity or misfortune, are compelled to seek assistance from their brother Masons, or from the brethren of their departed husbands. The election of annuitants of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons will take place on Friday, the 15th instant, and the contest will not only be very severe, but must of necessity end in disappointment to a very large number of those who will take part in it. There are one hundred and eighteen approved candidates on the balloting papers, and only thirty-five declared vacancies to be divided among them; six of these vacancies, three of each Fund, being Deferred Annuities, not available until death has removed those who have prior claims on the Funds of the Institution. Eighty-three old people to be sent away from the Institution, unassisted and unbefriended by their Masonic brethren; not because they are unworthy of receiving assistance—far from that—but because the funds of the Institution are not in a condition to warrant the number of annuitants being increased so as to include them. The ballot paper of the Male Fund has the names of forty-two candidates, of whom twenty are to be elected as annuitants—seventeen immediate, and three deferred—while that of the Female branch has particulars of seventy-six approved applicants, for whom there is at present only accommodation for fifteen—three of whom will, as in the case of the Male Fund, be Deferred Annuitants. Can nothing be done to alter this distressing state of affairs? Yes, but only by supplying such funds as shall warrant the Governors and Subscribers pledging the Institution to a still greater amount of annual outlay in the form of annuities than it at present stands committed to. It is true that the Anniversary Festival of this Institution for the current year has been held, and that therefore it is hardly to be expected any very large amount will be subscribed by the Craft to further swell this year's receipts, but it must not be supposed that such a course is impossible. Although the Festival has been held—a grand success it proved; and although the probable income of the Institution for the year has been estimated, it is not too late to collect subscriptions, or to make donations, to be credited to the current year's income, while it might be possible to secure votes for this year's Election on account of sums to be included in next year's Festival returns, provided the amounts were deposited with the Institution. Extra votes may be acquired in this way—votes which will be available for this month's Election at a time when, by reason of the great competition, every vote will be of service. Those, therefore, who have decided to support the Old People at next year's Festival, and who wish to get an extra year's votes for their money, should seriously consider the advisability of paying in their subscriptions at once.

This year's Festival of the Benevolent Institution was undoubtedly a grand success, and a sufficient amount was then subscribed to warrant the Committee taking on a large majority,—even if not the whole of those now seeking admission to the benefits of the Charity,—provided the liability of doing so ceased with the current year, but such is not the case. As we have before said, it is the wish of every subscriber of the Institution that when once an aged brother or widow is elected he or she may live for years to enjoy the comforts the Institution is able to afford them in the closing days of their lives, and so long as they live the Institution stands morally committed to pay them their annuities—£40 each in the case of the old men, and £32 each in the case of widows. It will therefore be understood that the declaration of an additional vacancy does not mean the expenditure of £40 or £32 only, but that amount year by year, so long as the recipient may live, and fifteen or twenty years would not be too long to make calculation for in this respect. Thus, it would not be justifiable—from a purely business point of view—to largely increase the number of annuitants simply because one year's income was exceptionally good, nor would it be expedient—from a charitable point of view—to take on such a number as would cripple the Institution in years to come, or place it in a position such as to render the continuance of its operations a source of anxiety and trouble to those who, in the future, will be called upon to complete the work being carried on. What is wanted is, a more general practical recognition, on the part of Lodges and Brethren, of the annual needs of the Institutions. This is more particularly the case in regard to the Royal Masonic Benevolent, which may be said to have a stronger claim on Lodges and Chapters for annual subscriptions than the other Institutions, from the fact that the Worshipful Master of each Lodge and the first Principal of each Chapter annually receives votes direct from that Institution in recognition of its grants from Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter. Special votes or donations must of course always be looked upon as the main support of such a Charity, but promises of annual subscriptions greatly assist in removing that uncertainty which must always attend an Institution which, to a large extent, relies for its income on spasmodic efforts. We do not think we shall be guilty of egotism if we assume to ourselves the credit of having made propositions which have ultimately proved beneficial to the Institution. One we particularise;—that of altering the Life Governorship, Life Subscribership, and other qualifications, from pounds to guineas. This, although small in itself, is shown to be of material assistance. We now submit another scheme, which we trust will be as readily adopted and as heartily supported. It is, that the Chairman of the year, or some other prominent official at the Festival, should endeavour to secure each Steward becoming an annual subscriber to the Institution. We venture to think that if the Chairman would make such an appeal to his co-workers at the Festival itself, he would receive unanimous support from those around him, and he might thus have the gratification of being able to refer back to the introduction of some two or three hundred or more annual subscribers as a memento of the work he undertook on behalf of the Institution at the Festival for which he presided. This would be putting the Festivals to a good use, and as it would not be encroaching on the liberality of those present for the year, we do not think it could be considered as evidence of "never being satisfied." The great need of our Institutions is, an increase of regular income, and such a proposal as that mentioned would go far to secure it. The Benevolent Institution would be the best with which to make the experiment, because for it an annual subscription of five shillings could be accepted, while the lowest recognised donation to either of the Schools is one guinea. Surely five shillings a year is not much to promise after having so far recognised the merits of an Institution as to undertake a Stewardship on its behalf. Shall the experiment ere long be tried?

Referring to the eligibility or needs of the candidates themselves, we think no better evidence of their worthiness to receive assistance can be adduced than the particulars concerning them given on the balloting papers, where we find details as to the age and circumstances of each applicant, while coupled with this are the restrictive laws of the Institution, which provide that no male candidate shall be eligible until he has reached the age of 60 years, and no widow until she has arrived at the age of 55, or has been overtaken by such illness or misfortune as renders them incapable of earning a livelihood; while those in the annual receipt of £40 in the case of men, or £30 in that of widows, from any source, are likewise prohibited from seeking relief from the funds of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution.

In conclusion, we again urge on our readers, and on the Craft at large, the necessity for giving all the help that can be afforded in aid of the Funds established to relieve the aged of both sexes, and we trust that such support may yet be forthcoming as will enable the Governors and Subscribers at the meeting on Friday, the 15th inst., to still further increase the number of vacancies to be filled that day, while we sincerely trust that our suggested method of increasing the number of annual subscribers to our Charities may meet the approval and support we venture to think it deserves.

AN ANCIENT PEOPLE—PAST AND PRESENT.*

FROM birth to marriage is the period of hope, strength, and pleasure. Then follow worldly struggles, and finally death. To the ceremonies observed by the Parsis in the last extremity we purpose devoting some space. When the patient is moribund, and all hope of life has fled, the "dastur," or the "mobed," with other priests, perform religious service, in which the dying man joins if he is able; if not, then his son or nearest relative does this duty for him. When dead the body is wrapped in clean clothes and placed on an oblong piece of polished stone, which is laid on the floor. The hands are laid crosswise, and joined upon the chest, and the feet are crossed and tied, or are kept straight, according to the wish of the head of the family. The female members of the family and relations sit down together on a carpet in the room where the dead body is placed, the men sitting on chairs or benches in the verandah. When death occurs at night, the corpse is kept until the following morning; but if it occurs in the daytime, the body is removed to its final resting-place in the afternoon. All the time the body is lying in the house a priest is continually reciting prayers and burning sandalwood over a fire. Upon the removal of the corpse, on an iron bier, two priests facing it recite the seven "has" called "Ahunavaiti Gatha." It is singular that these "has" contain no reference to the dead, and are intended chiefly "as a sermon upon our transient life in this world." It is also noticeable that the "has" are recited before the dead body, and not in the presence of mourners, a proceeding the author says he cannot understand. "Nasesalars" carry the bier on their shoulders to the "dokhma," or tomb of silence, amid the lamentations of relatives and friends. Immediately the bier is out of the house, the strange custom is observed of throwing cow's urine over the spot where the corpse has laid, and along the path taken by its bearers. A last look is permitted to be taken of the face of the deceased, and then the body is deposited inside the tower, and there left exposed to the vultures, who speedily denude it of flesh. Before dealing with some peculiar facts in connection with the Parsi dead, we may just describe the "dokhma." Our author likens it to a great gasometer with the top off, only the walls are built of the hardest stone, faced with white "chunam," or lime plaster. Inside the tower is a circular platform about three hundred feet in circumference, and entirely paved with large stone slabs, and divided into three rows or exposed receptacles, called "pavis" for the bodies of the dead. As there are the same number of "pavis" in each concentric row, they diminish in size from the outer to the inner ring; that by the side of the wall is used for the bodies of males, the next for those of females, and the third for those of children. These receptacles, or "pavis" are separated from each other by ridges called "dandas," which are about an inch in height above the level of the "pavis," and channels are cut into the "pavis" for the purpose of conveying the liquid matter flowing from the corpses, and rain water, into a "chandar," or a deep hollow in the form of a pit, the bottom of which is paved with stone steps. This pit forms the centre of the tower. When the corpse has been completely stripped of its flesh by the vultures, which is generally accomplished within one hour, at the outside, and when the bones of the denuded skeleton are perfectly dried up by the powerful heat of a tropical sun, with other atmospheric influences, they are thrown into this pit, where they crumble into dust, the rich and poor thus meeting together after death on one common level of equality. Four drains are constructed, leading from the body of the pit. They commence from the surrounding wall of the "chandar" and pass beyond the outside of the tower down into four wells sunk in the ground, thus observing one of the tenets of the Zoroastrian religion, that "the mother earth shall not be defiled." The wells have a permeable bottom, which is covered to a height of five or seven feet. The laying of the foundation of a new "dokhma" and its consecration are attended with great and solemn ceremony, to attend which is considered an act of piety. Before consecration, the "dokhma" is open to public view; afterwards it becomes the holy of the holies, and any attempt to look inside is regarded as an act of gross sacrilege. The mode of disposing of the dead we have just described may seem revolting to those not used to the practice, but the Parsis regard it as less so even than our own method of committing bodies to the earth as food for worms. Perhaps the defence of the Parsi system had best be given in the language of a distinguished native. Replying to Professor Morrice Williams, Mr. Nasarvanji Beramji said: "Our prophet, Zoroaster, who lived three thousand years ago, taught us to regard the elements as symbols of the Deity. Earth, fire, water, he said, ought never, under any circumstances, to be defiled by contact with putrefying flesh. Naked we came into the world, and naked we ought to leave it. But the decaying particles of our bodies should be dissipated as rapidly as possible, and in such a way that neither Mother Earth, nor the things she supports, should be contaminated in the slightest degree. In fact, our Prophet was the greatest of health officers, and following his sanitary laws we build our towers on the tops of the hills, above all human habitations. We spare no expense in constructing them of the hardest materials, and we expose our putrescent bodies in open stone receptacles, resting on fourteen feet of solid granite, not necessarily to be consumed by vultures, but to be dissipated in the speediest possible manner, and without the possibility of polluting the earth or contaminating a single living being dwelling thereon. God, indeed, sends the vultures, and, as a matter of fact, these birds do their appointed work much more expeditiously than millions of insects would do if we committed our bodies to the ground. In a sanitary point of view, nothing can be more perfect than our plan. Even the rain water which washes our skeletons is conducted by channels into purifying charcoal. Here in these five towers rest the bones of all the Parsis that have lived in Bombay for the last two hundred years. We form a united body in life, and we are united in death." His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, when in India, visited one of these "dokhmas," on Malabar Hill, and expressed "his approbation of the sanitary precautions adopted in the mode of Parsi sepulture." Returning to the presence of the dead before being taken into the "dokhma," some very interesting incidents are noticeable. There is no truth in the theory that a dog is made to lick or eat a portion of the flesh of the corpse before its removal from the house, but the custom prevails of exposing the face of a dead Zoroastrian "to the gaze of a dog three or four times during the recitation of the funeral sermon or oration." The exact object is not known, but as dogs are considered sacred animals, they are supposed to guide the souls of the dead toward heaven, and to ward off on their way the bad influence of evil spirits, to which they may be exposed. Our author says, "This belief is not generally shared in by the educated Parsis of the present day." Certain dogs, too, are supposed to "possess peculiar magnetic power in annihilating impurities surrounding a dead body." This fact is as doubtful as the other, and may be taken for just what it is worth. A more important and relevant belief is that contained in the Parsi Scriptures, which declare that the soul does not leave this world for three days, therefore "a priest prays constantly during that period before a burning fire fed with sandal-wood." On the morning of the fourth day, when the soul is believed to enter the other world, a religious ceremony called "Uthamna" is performed, either in the house of the deceased, or at a fire-temple, during which the bequests left in his will are announced. Contributions are made to the Parsi charitable funds, the lame, halt, and blind are fed, "as an act of charity intended to benefit the soul of the deceased." The chief acts of mourning consist of washing faces and offering up prayer. It should be stated that deceased's relations are the object of solicitude to the Parsis, who perform ceremonies "on every day during the first year, and on every anniversary of the melancholy event." Fruit and flowers form a most essential part of the Parsi ceremonies for either the dead or living, and prayers for the dead are always insisted upon.

It is claimed for the Parsi religion that it is one of the most ancient in the world. For a period of three thousand years it has undergone many fluctuations and vicissitudes. It flourished most during the thousand years between the reign of Gushtasp and the conquest of Persia by Alexander the Great. For nearly six hundred years afterwards the religion declined, but it was revived by Ardeshir Babekan. For over four hundred years this revival was more or less maintained, until the monarchy was overthrown by the Arabs, when the Khalif Omar destroyed many of the Parsi religious books. Several philosophers of the name of Zoroaster lived at different times and places, but the one recognised by the Parsis was born at Rae, in Media, about a thousand years before Christ, and flourished in Bactria. Kharshedji Rastamji Kama, a well known Oriental scholar, puts the birth of Zoroaster three hundred years earlier. The name, he says, means "Old Camel-keeper," but this has been disputed. Zoroaster was a member of the Spitami family, and descended from King Ferdun of the Peshdedian dynasty of Persia. A miraculous conception is claimed for him. In one of the later books of the Parsis it is said "that an angel presented Pourushaspa [Zoroaster's father] with a glass of wine, soon after drinking which his wife Doghdo conceived and bore a son destined to create a new era in Eastern history." The life of the infant was often in jeopardy, but the attempts of the enemy were "arrested by divine agency." His youth was spent in divine meditations and in the study of philosophy, and ultimately he left Rae for Balkh, the capital of Gushtasp, then King of Iran. In the thirtieth year of the reign of this monarch, Zoroaster appeared before him bearing the sacred fire called "Adar Burzin Mehr," and a cypress tree. At first the religious reformer was persecuted, but he performed miracles and was taken into favour. Nothing more is said of him except that when engaged in prayer Zoroaster was "killed by a sharp instrument thrown at him by a Turbaratur, a general of King Arjasp, who hated the new monotheistic religion." In return Zoroaster flung his rosary at his enemy, which killed him on the spot. The prophet left three sons and three daughters, but whether they ever distinguished themselves, or were objects of honour, pity, or enmity, we have no means of knowing. The more important part of the Parsi scriptures now remaining are written in the Gatha dialect of the Avesta language, five of the Gathas—chapters 27 to 54 of the Zasna—being by the Prophet himself. A few other pieces are in the same dialect, but the rest are in the ordinary Avesta language, which is the same as that of the Gatha, only written at a different period. "Zend," or "zan," "to know," applies to that portion of the Avesta which is explanatory of the original text. Originally, the Zend Avesta consisted of twenty-one volumes, or "nusks." It is stated that the religious words of the Parsis were destroyed by Alexander or Omar, but a description of their contents has been retained, and the spirit of the whole, we presume, preserved. The Vendidad is the only book or chapter that is complete, and contains "the code of the religious, civil, and criminal laws of the ancient Iranians." The Zasna, that forms one of the three books of the Vendidad Sade, includes "prayers that are to be offered with certain rites and ceremonies." It is now recited by two priests before a sacred fire, accompanied by consecrated water, consecrated bread, with "glu," or butter spread over it, goat's milk, twigs of the homa plant, and of the pomegranate tree, hair of a purely white ox, and a bundle of metallic wires known as "Barsom." The Vispared, the third book, contains "an invocation to all lords, i.e., to the chiefs of the spiritual and terrestrial creation." The Khordeh-Avesta, or small Avesta, contains all the remaining portions of the Zend Avesta. The whole has been given in a German version, which was translated into English, and circulated gratuitously among the Parsis by Mr. Mancherji Harmosji Kama. Some other religious books are in the Pehlevi language, to which the Parsis look for most of the details relating to the traditions, ceremonies, and customs of the ancient faith. One of these books criticises the Jewish and Christian doctrines. There are other writings of minor importance, to which we need not allude.

COPIES OF "ANCIENT" WARRANTS.

ON 27th May 1876 we began the publication of Transcripts of Warrants of the "Atholl," or "Ancient" Lodges, and by dint of perseverance, the kindness of friends, and more especially the energy and determination of Bro. John Constable, we succeeded in obtaining copies of nearly the whole of these valuable documents, many of which are exceedingly curious and interesting, and some of which were utilised by Bro. Gould in his "Atholl Lodges." We are now desirous of completing the series, and therefore solicit the services of our readers to obtain copies of the following charters for publication, when our object will be achieved:—

INSTALLATION OF THE PROVINCIAL GRAND MASTER.

THE installation of Bro. Thomas W. Tew, of Carleton Grange, Pontefract, as Provincial Grand Master of West Yorkshire, was the most successful Masonic function which has taken place in Leeds since the installation of the Marquess of Ripon. An event of such importance and interest drew to the town on Friday, the 24th ult., Masons from every part of the Province. No better proof of the esteem in which Bro. Tew is held could have been given than by the crowded assembly which witnessed the imposing ceremony in which he was the chief figure. As soon as Sir Henry Edwards, of Halifax, was compelled to resign this exalted and honourable position, on account of ill-health, the Masons throughout West Yorkshire felt that in the hands of Bro. Tew the interests of the Craft would be as safe as they had been under the care of his respected predecessor, and the announcement that His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, as Grand Master of England, had nominated Bro. Tew to this position was therefore received with gratification by the Craft generally. The ceremony of installation, which was performed by the Earl of Lathom, Deputy Grand Master of England, took place in the Albert Hall, which had been suitably furnished from the Philanthropic Lodge. The brethren began to assemble before eleven o'clock, and at the opening there could not have been fewer than 1800 Masons present. The effect was very beautiful, as the Provincial Grand Lodge, in their gorgeous insignia of purple and gold, marched up the Hall to the dais at the eastern end of the Hall. The arrival of the procession was announced by a flourish of bugles, and as they took places Bro. Dr. Spark P.P.G.O. performed suitable music. Among the distinguished brethren assembled to do honour to the occasion were:—Bros. the Very Rev. A. P. Purey-Cust Dean of York and Provincial Grand Chaplain, Baron de Ferrieres, M.P., Cheltenham, G.S.D., J. W. Woodall Grand Treasurer, Scarborough, Colonel Le Gendre Starkie P.G.M. East Lancashire, John P. Bell D.G.P.M. of the North and East Ridings, Hull, the Rev. C. W. Spencer-Stanhope Past Grand Chaplain of England, Croston House, Cheshire, T. Mount Humphries P.P.G. Superintendent of Works, Walsall, John Holme R.W. P.P.G. Warden, Cumberland and Westmoreland, J. G. McKay P.P.G.S.W., Leeds, J. N. Hartley P.P.G.J.W., Shadwell H. Clarke G.S., London, Charles J. Bannister P.P.G.S.D., Durham. There were also present:—Bros. W. H. Brittain, Mayor of Sheffield, Lieutenant-Colonel J. E. Bingham, Master Cutler, Sheffield, J. Rhodes, Mayor of Pontefract, T. Bateman Fox, Mayor of Dewsbury, T. Hill, Lieutenant-Colonel Albany H. Charlesworth, A. F. McGill, C. Scriven, W. H. Thompson, E. Woodhouse, R. P. Brindley, E. Crosby, E. Woodcock, W. L. Jackson, M.P. Every town in the Province sent a contingent of Masons to do honour to the occasion, and as soon as the Grand Lodge had taken up its position the scene was a most animated and beautiful one. The rich clothing worn by many of the brethren contrasted pleasingly with the prevailing light blue; whilst the red upholstery of the Hall seemed to bring out into still greater relief the beautiful blending of the colours. The Earl of Lathom took his seat, and Lodge was opened in due form. After prayer from the Rev. Canon Bullock, P.G.C., and a reading from the Scriptures by the Rev. W. T. M. Sylvester P.G.C., the Deputy Grand Master and the Provincial Grand Master were saluted in ancient form, this ceremony being most imposing. The roll was called, and it was shown that all the 69 Lodges in the Province were represented.

The Provincial Grand Registrar then read the following address:—

To the Right Hon. the Earl of Lathom, R.W. Deputy Grand Master of England and R.W. Provincial Grand Master of West Lancashire.—The congratulatory, dutiful, and affectionate address of welcome of the 69 Lodges of Ancient, Free, and Accepted Masons of the Province of West Yorkshire, assembled in the Albert Hall, Leeds, on Friday, April 24th, 5885, at the installation of R.W. Brother T. W. Tew, J.P., P. Grand Deacon of England, and P. Deputy Provincial Grand Master, offer to you a most cordial welcome and the assurance of their loyal devotion to the Grand Lodge of England, which sentiment has ever animated the Masons in this Province. They also offer to you their warmest thanks for the compliment you have paid them in coming to perform this important Masonic ceremony, affording them an opportunity of acknowledging their appreciation of your devoted and distinguished services to the Craft for a long series of years. They desire to express their satisfaction that the ceremony has also been graced by the presence of your excellent neighbour and friend Colonel Le Gendre N. Starkie, D.L., P. Grand Warden of England, R.W. Provincial Grand Master of East Lancashire, who will take part in the proceedings of the day. Their pleasure is further augmented by the presence of W. Brother Dr. J. Pearson Bell Deputy Provincial Grand Master, who, in the name of the Right Hon. the Earl of Zetland, represents the Province of North and East Yorkshire, Colonel Shadwell Clerke Grand Secretary, and many other distinguished brethren. In conclusion, they again tender their obligations for your kindness in coming among them on this auspicious occasion, and they pray that the Great Architect of the Universe may prolong your useful life.

Lord Lathom briefly acknowledged the compliment that had been paid him, and assured the brethren that it gave him great pleasure to visit Leeds on so auspicious an occasion. On such an interesting occasion he was proud to be the representative of his Royal Highness the Grand Master, and to have the honour of installing Bro. Tew.

Escorted by Bro. W. L. Jackson, M.P. (W.M. Fidelity, 289), and Bro. Alderman E. Woodhouse (W.M. Prudence, 2069), Bro. Tew was led to his place in front of the Master's chair, and various formalities were gone through, ending in the investiture, in accordance with ancient practice. At the conclusion of the ceremony, impressively rendered, the R.W. Deputy Grand Master said: I congratulate you, Bro. Tew, on having been called upon to assume the high position of ruler over this important Province. I understand that the choice has fallen upon you unanimously, and this unanimity on the part of your brethren will no doubt be a great help to you in performing the responsible and onerous duties of your position. Allow me to express the sincere hope that you may enjoy health and strength long to enjoy the position which you are now about to occupy.

Bro. Tew having been obligated and conducted into the Grand Master's chair, the applause was loud and long continued.

Brethren,—By command of the Right Honourable the Earl of Lathom, Installing Master, the Right Worshipful Deputy Grand Master of England and the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master of West Lancashire—and with the sanction and approbation of the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master of East Lancashire, Colonel Le Gendre Nicholas Starkie, D.L., investigating Officers—I do now, according to ancient usage and established custom from time immemorial, proclaim and make known that Brother William Tew, one of Her Majesty's Justices of Peace for the West Riding of the County of York, of The Grange, Carleton, in the said Riding, and of the Manor of Rawcliffe, in the North-West Riding of the County of York, Past Grand Deacon of England, and by patent of the Most Worshipful Grand Master His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, K.G., dated the 10th day of January, A.L. 5885, the Provincial Grand Master Designate of the Province of West Yorkshire, who was initiated into Masonry on the 2nd day of October, A.L. 5856, in the Scarsdale Lodge, No. 981, now 681, at Chesterfield, in the County of Derby, and on the 7th of April, A.L. 5862, became Worshipful Master of the St. Oswald's Lodge, Pontefract, No. 1212, now 910 on the Master Roll of the Grand Lodge of England, of which Lodge he was three times Worshipful Master, Provincial Grand Senior Warden of this Province, April 5th, A.L. 5865, Deputy Provincial Grand Master on the 21st of A.L. 5875, has been duly installed and now is the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master of the Ancient, Free, and Accepted Masons of the Province of West Yorkshire in succession to Colonel Sir Henry Edwards, Bart., C.B. and D.L., the last Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master.

I, therefore, by virtue of my office as the Provincial Grand Director of Ceremonies in this Provincial Grand Lodge, and in accordance with the ancient usage and established custom, do call upon all the brethren here present in this Albert Hall, in this town of Leeds, to salute the Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master, according to ancient form; and may the Great Architect of the Universe guide, direct, and prosper him in all His ways.

The requisite salute was then given with much heartiness and effect.

Colonel Starkie, on behalf of East Lancashire, congratulated the newly installed Provincial Grand Master upon the exalted position he had attained in the Masonic body. The manner in which Brother Tew had hitherto discharged the duties which had devolved upon him were sufficient to prove that the larger duties would be equally well performed, and West Yorkshire had reason to be congratulated upon the appointment just made. He expressed the hope of the Freemasons of Lancashire when he wished the Provincial Grand Master might have a long and prosperous rule. His reign was sure to be distinguished by courteous acts and judicious principles, by which the prosperity and stability of the Order would be maintained. Might that great Province of West Yorkshire, under his genial rule, flourish, and prosper! Bro. Tew was sure to maintain with ability and zeal the traditions of the Order, and so gain the respect of all. Might the white rose of Yorkshire, as emblematical of Freemasonry, shed its fragrance and rival the red rose of Lancashire, that both might be united in the garden of Freemasonry to spread abroad the fragrance of that flower to the benefit of Freemasonry in general!

Dr. Bell also conveyed the felicitations of North and East Yorkshire, and presented an address signed by the Earl of Zetland.

Dr. Taylor, of Scarborough, presented an address from the Freemasons of Scarborough and Filey, and Sir Frederick Milner, Bart, M.P., presented an address from York. These various marks of distinction were suitably acknowledged by Bro. Tew, and the brethren present cheered again and again.

Bro. Tew then rose to address the meeting, being received with cheering loud and long continued. He said they had met together on no ordinary occasion to the Craft, and for no ordinary Masonic purpose, which was fraught with interest to the Freemasons of the Province of West Yorkshire. The circumstances which had assembled together so numerous and so influential a body of the Brotherhood from all parts of England must be regarded as of the utmost significance to the Order of which they were all proud to belong. In obedience to the laws of the Craft, with the sanction of the Most Worshipful the Grand Master and the acquiescence of the Grand Lodge of England, their duty was to place a Provincial Grand Master in the chair of the Provincial Grand Lodge vacated by their beloved and late gallant commander-in-chief, Colonel Sir Henry Edwards, C.B. Their first duty was to render a tribute of respect to that honoured Baronet, who had done so much for the County of York, and who had retired from active service in the Craft only through inadequate health. Might the Almighty grant him perfect recovery from his indisposition, and that some day they might again greet him in that Provincial Grand Lodge was the sincere hope of all. He then went on cordially to acknowledge the presence of the Earl of Lathom, Dr. Bell, the D.P.G.M. of North and East Yorkshire, and other distinguished guests whose presence had lent éclat to the scene. In the presence of the Very Rev. the Dean of York, the Provincial Grand Chaplains Present and Past, and the Chaplains of the various Lodges, they were proud that Freemasonry had that opportunity of showing its attachment, not only to their sacred offices, but as the symbolisation of their devotion to the Volume of the Sacred Law which ruled and governed the Craft, and their belief in the principles of the Christian faith, whilst their attendance at the Leeds Parish Church would cement that sentiment of feeling which so fervently pervaded the Craft. The unity of the Province, the harmony prevailing among the brethren in the 42 towns, in which were 69 Lodges, told of the efficiency of the influence of the Provincial Grand Lodge. The policy of the Province in the future, as in the past, would be to work to still further conclusions this unity of purpose, and to cultivate brotherly friendship in every possible direction, to mould the Lodges as component parts of one vast system under one reign of equal law, so that the identical interest of Masonry could be moved by one general impulse throughout the whole body. Such were the aspirations which actuated his feelings, and in obedience to those instincts he acknowledged the salutations of the brethren which had been accorded to his position in the Craft. Might their goodness and cordiality towards the office never be misplaced. He could not but express his regret at vacating the office of Deputy Grand Master, owing to circumstances over which he had little control, and to complying with the pressure of good wishes from many quarters to accept the most honourable position it was in the power of the Grand Master to confer. In 1875 he accepted the Deputyship only for three months, and at the request of Sir Henry Edwards, until he could appoint some more appropriate brother. Little did he think that that probationary term was to extend for ten years, and now perhaps longer, and until that time when all links must be sundered in this world and all engagements terminated. He had tried to win their confidence and merit their esteem. To keep the affection and loyalty of the Province would ever be the work of his proudest efforts. He accepted this higher trust only at their hands with a sense that a great honour had been conferred upon him; yet he must look back upon the Deputyship with lingering regrets of affection for the friendships made and the marvellous forbearance and kindness shown him. Could his wishes have been regarded, he should have wished that a royal prince or some distinguished nobleman had succeeded Sir Henry Edwards. To see in their midst Masonry flourish, whether under the Earl of Mexborough, the Marquess of Ripon, Sir Henry Edwards, or any other Provincial Grand Master whom His Royal Highness the Most Worshipful Grand Master might designate, was the only ambition of every one present, who would delight to show zeal and fidelity to whatever head was appointed. A retrospect of the doings of the Craft in that Province would testify to the sincerity of the character of the Order and its determination to make the principles of Masonry applicable to the good of their fellow creatures. On the 28th of October 1868, when a convalescent home was founded by Charles Brooke, of Meltham, Lord de Grey and Ripon and the Provincial Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire laid the chief corner stone of that magnificent institution. The foundation-stone of East Hardwick Church was laid by a noble Marquess and three other Cabinet Ministers, all members of the Craft. The Right Hon. Hugh C. E. Childers, M.P., then Minister of War, and a brother of the St. Oswald's Lodge, laid the first stone of the Pontefract Dispensary. The late Bro. J. C. D. Charlesworth laid the great stone of the Clayton Hospital, and Sir H. Edwards fixed the plinth stone of Dewsbury Infirmary. The generous work of restoring Halifax Church was fostered by the Provincial Grand Master Sir Henry Edwards. The principal stone of the Delph Literary Institute was laid by the Provincial Grand Lodge. Did a royal prince visit Sheffield, Leeds, or Huddersfield, to inaugurate a college, to countenance a musical festival, to open an art exhibition, or what not, the Craft and the Lodges took the most prominant places in the labours of organisation, and were foremost with skilful arrangements to make the visits of royalty successful. In various other ways in this Province Freemasonry was foremost in all that was good and noble. In conclusion, he said it would be their desire in the future to emulate the good deeds of the past. To be permitted to share in that emulation of generous principles was indeed an honour such as the Sovereign on the throne might think not unworthy of participation. To guide the energies of such a philanthropic Order was an aspiration of the loftiest kind. Into that position of responsibility the brethren had that day enthroned him. The chain placed around his neck fettered the links of attachment that had bound him to them for the past 25 years in cordiality and friendship more indissoluble than ever. The collar would be the symbol to remind him of another's wants, and the apron to labour for the welfare of the Craft without distinction of office, or without asperity of opinion, only to be laid aside when by the mutability of time those things were cast aside, and when the tomb of transgression was burst at the Resurrection dawn, and by the mercies of the Son of Righteousness we were permitted in the Grand Lodge above "to shine as the stars for ever and ever."

Brother Henry Smith was then duly installed Deputy Provincial Grand Master, amid great cheering. He was then proclaimed as follows:—

Brethren,—By command of the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master of West Yorkshire, I now proclaim Brother Henry Smith, of St. John's, Wakefield, who has been obligated by the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master of East Lancashire, and in the presence of the Right Worshipful Deputy Grand Master of England, and of the Ancient, Free, and Accepted Masons of this Province, to be the Deputy Provincial Grand Master of the Province of West Yorkshire, in succession to the late Deputy Provincial Grand Master Brother Thomas William Tew, exalted to the office of Provincial Grand Master. Furthermore be it known unto all whom it may concern, that Brother Henry Smith was initiated into Masonry in the Lodge of Hope, Bradford, No. 374, now 302, on 3rd May, A.L. 5852, and raised on the 2nd day of August following, and subscribed 33 years to this date. Joined the Airedale Lodge, Baildon (now at Shipley), No. 543, now 387, June A.L. 5854, Installed Worshipful Master A.L. 5857, and subscribed 31 years to this date. The Earl of Mexborough, the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, appointed him Provincial Grand Deacon, A.L. 5859; Brother Dr. Fearnley being then the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Earl de Grey, now Marquess of Ripon, appointed him Provincial Grand Secretary on the death of Brother Nelson, in March, 5870, and during the succeeding Deputyship of Brother Bentley Shaw, Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Henry Edwards, Bart., C.B. and D.L., reappointed him in April, A.L. 5875, under the Deputyship of Brother Thomas William Tew, and he has discharged the duties conscientiously, with zeal and fidelity, and with the esteem and respect of every Lodge and Brother, until this day, the 24th day of April 5885. He was one of the founders of the West Yorkshire Charity Committee in 5859, is a Vice-Patron of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, to which he has served nine times Steward at the Anniversary Festival, contributing £127 10s. He is a Vice-Patron to the Girls' Institution, to which he has served seven times the office of Steward, contributing £105, and he is also a Vice-Patron of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, to which, at the Anniversary Festivals, he has six times served the office of Steward, contributing £102 10s. For these services he deserves well at the hands of the Craft, and I therefore, by virtue of my office as the Grand Director of Ceremonies of this Provincial Grand Lodge, do call upon all the brethren present to salute our Worshipful Deputy Provincial Grand Master five times, according to ancient form and established custom.

Bro. Smith having been saluted in due form, expressed his gratification at having been appointed to the high office of D.P.G.M. He yielded to no one in his desire to help the P.G.M. in all his plans for the promotion of the interests of the Craft in his Province, and to share the burden of his responsibilities as far as possible. He hoped that the experience he had acquired would inspire confidence in the brethren that the duties attached to the office would be discharged to their entire satisfaction. If they would forgive him for being slightly egotistical for a moment, he would state that he had been Provincial Grand Secretary for the last fifteen years, and for several years previously he had assisted the late Bro. Nelson, with whom he was associated in the formation of the Charity Committee, in 1859. Since 1870, fifty-eight Provincial Grand Lodge meetings had been held, all of which, with only one exception, he had been able to attend. During the same period the Charity Committee had had forty-five meetings, the whole of which he had attended. Of the fifty-nine Elections in London during the same time he had been absent but once, so that he might fairly say that he did not enter upon his new duties without some little experience, gained in all these years. It would be his earnest endeavour to maintain this great Province in its present state of efficiency, and to accomplish this he hoped he might rely upon the sympathy and support of every brother, which had hitherto been freely accorded to him. Again he tendered his sincere thanks.

The following Officers were then appointed and invested:—

Bro. W. L. Jackson, M.P.	Prov. G. Senior Warden
Lieut.-Col. A. H. Charlesworth ...	Prov. G. Junior Warden

The brethren were then marshalled in procession, and, headed by the police band, marched to the Leeds Parish Church. As might be expected the whole route was crowded, and the regalia and dress of the brethren attracted great attention and regard. At the Parish Church there was a large gathering of ladies, who had been admitted by ticket, to take part in the service. Special music had been arranged, and this part of the ceremony was most enjoyable.

The Rev. Canon Bullock, Provincial Grand Chaplain, and Vicar of Holy Trinity, Leeds, preached, from the words "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, to visit the fatherless and the widow in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world." He said that outside the Craft very few would admit the claims, which Masons made, for an historic past, running back into pre-historic times. The very constitution of Freemasonry, as well as the objects it had in view, forbade the possibility of a military origin. So, too, they would decline to accept the position of a secondary order in chivalry. Least of all, could a Free and Accepted Mason suppose that he would find the source of his Order in an attempt by secret and far-reaching organisation to upset duly-constituted authority, or to destroy those obligations of true religion and morality so essential to our happiness here and hereafter. The science of Masonry could only be second in time to that of agriculture. Although Hiram was the first Master, it must not be forgotten that he was sent for as one already specially trained. Having pointed out the high moral code inculcated by Masonry, the preacher added that there was some danger of their good fellowship injuring souls for whom Christ died. The true line of safety lay in the observance of those principles which were at once Masonic and Christian prudence, temperance, and fortitude. Having alluded to the splendid charity which was a distinguishing badge of all Masons, the Rev. gentleman concluded by stating that that was a red letter day in the history of Masonry in West Yorkshire, and he hoped the gifts presented to the medical charities would be worthy of the occasion. There was much sickness and suffering, which their alms would alleviate.

After the sermon a collection was taken on behalf of the medical charities, which realised the handsome sum of £82 16s. The procession was then re-formed, and on arrival at the Albert Hall Lodge was closed. Afterwards a collation was served in the Victoria Hall. Bro. Tew presided, and was supported by a large number of brethren who had taken part in the earlier proceedings. The gallery of the hall was occupied by the Leeds Constabulary Band, and the orchestra by lady visitors. On the entrance of the Prov. Grand Master, Bro. Dr. Spark played on the organ the "Masonic Festival March." Bro. Tew, the loyal toasts over, gave the health of the M.W. the Pro Grand Master the Earl of Carnarvon, the R.W. the D.G.M. the Earl of Lathom, and the Grand Officers Present and Past. Not only Lord Lathom, but Colonel Starkie and Colonel Shadwell Clerke, had put West Yorkshire under an obligation by their presence. The Grand Lodge of England deserved well at the hands of the Provincial Lodges. It was composed of a body of noblemen and gentlemen, of the highest political, literary, and scientific attainments, of the most benevolent and unselfish aspirations, and of unbounded liberality, generosity, and charity. The R.W. Deputy Grand Master the Earl of Lathom responded. Although a member of the Grand Lodge of England, he was not an active working member, and could therefore say without egotism that the Officers of that Lodge did their work thoroughly. No ceremony in which he had ever taken a part had been better performed than that which had called them together that day. It was by far the largest gathering that they had had, and included representatives from many districts. East and West Lancashire were there—two Provinces which—with West Yorkshire, were the largest in England, and which combined would be able to stand against the world. The Earl afterwards proposed the toast of the evening—the Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master of West Yorkshire. Bro. Tew was far better known to them than to himself; yet rumour had brought to him something of the good works in which their newly-appointed Provincial Grand Master had been engaged. There could be no doubt that the choice of the Grand Master was the choice of the brethren, and he would have great satisfaction in informing His Royal Highness of that fact.

Bro. Tew, who was received with loud cheers, responded. He had no hesitation in at once assuring himself that the Officers and brethren of the Provinces would give to him every sympathy and support in his new circumstances of office.

Bro. W. L. Jackson, M.P., proposed the Visitors. It was gratifying to learn that all the Lodges in the Province were represented on that occasion. He trusted that the arrangements made for their reception had proved adequate.

The Dean of York, in response, thanked the brethren of Leeds for their hospitality. During the thirty-seven or thirty-eight years in which he had belonged to the Craft he had always found Freemasonry to be of benefit. In these days, when men were so apt to become estranged from one another, the advantages of Masonic fraternity could not be exaggerated.

Bro. Woodall Grand Treasurer also responded.

The toast of the Masonic Charities, given by the Worshipful the Mayor of Sheffield (Bro. W. H. Brittain), brought the proceedings to a close.

Bro. Powolny provided the banquet in a very satisfactory manner.

Brethren of the "mystic tie" have not infrequently had to face objections raised against the Order because of their supposed leanings towards an excess of conviviality. If there ever was any substantial ground for this complaint it certainly is fast disappearing, and it is a source of congratulation, as adding to the influence of Freemasonry all over the land, that so many Lodges are now being opened on strictly temperance principles. One of these—Lodge St. George—was started in the Three Towns about twelve months ago, and has proved a success beyond anticipation. Recognising the value of the principle, and anxious to help forward the object in view, alike in the interests of Freemasonry and of temperance, moderate drinkers, as well as total abstainers, have given the movement their cordial support, and have done their best to make the experiment the success it has so far proved to be. Bro. G. R. Barrett, who was the first elected Master of the Lodge, and the Mayor of Devonport, who so worthily succeeds him, are to be congratulated not only on being associated with so commendable a feature in Freemasonry, but on the result of their efforts to make Masonic total abstinence popular. Bros. Barrett and Brickwood Hutchings, and those who were associated with them in starting this Lodge, have shown how easy it is to live down prejudice by example, and the example is one worthy of being largely imitated by the Masonic body throughout the country.

Obituary.

We regret to announce the death of Bro. Charles Tayler, a member of the Trinity College Lodge, No. 1765, which event occurred after a very short illness. He was a member of the Council of the College, and an active man on the Committee. A choral funeral service was held at South Hackney Church, and the funeral took place at the Tower Hamlets Cemetery. The Bursar of the College, Bros. J. Stedman P.M. Treas. and J. A. Hammond P.M. Sec., with several members of the deceased's Lodge, attended. Bro Tayler's death will be deeply lamented by a numerous circle of Masonic and other friends.

EMPLOYMENT BUREAU.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In your issue of the 18th ult. you were pleased to insert a letter of mine under the title of "Employment Bureau." In that letter I pointed out the high value of the existing Masonic Charities, and suggested a means by which the circle of charity might be completed. The widow and the orphan, the worn-out and distressed brother, are provided for by well-known agencies, but a link is wanting to make the unity of charitable work complete. Unless a brother frequents other Lodges than his own, he stands little chance of enlarging his acquaintance among the Fraternity; even when he does visit frequently he is forbidden to mention business matters in the Lodge room, and they are scarcely appropriate at the banquet table. Apart from these reasons it may be assumed that a brother who is often present at a strange Lodge, and a frequent guest at the festive board, is not likely to want the assistance of either money or employment. It is not the distressed brother who is the honoured guest, but he who can reciprocate invitations. For the out-of-work Mason the visiting offers but a poor chance of help. Were there a trade directory of Freemasons the needy brother would get the information he desired. Such a guide, however, is almost impossible, and it might be undesirable. There is another difficulty. The wearing of Masonic emblems is not considered good taste by many who hold high position in the Craft, and to use them as a means of recognition, especially for help, is strongly discountenanced. For those Masons who want employment the machinery of the Craft affords no help in bringing their needs before the brethren who might be in a position to give it. I proposed, therefore, that an Employment Bureau should be established at headquarters, under special supervision, where wants and vacancies should be registered. These should be advertised in the Masonic journals, the whole expense to be covered by fees received from the employers and the employed. As an institution it would be self-supporting; as a means of real help it would not be inferior to any of the existing Charities. It is hardly necessary to dwell upon the sorrows and hardships that too frequently follow the lack of employment. I think if the members of the Board of Benevolence were to analyse the causes that have led many of the applicants for relief to appeal to them, they would find enforced idleness among the chief. Doctors and visitors know too well that a scanty supply of food and the mental depression caused by disappointment lead to ill-health and premature decay. These effects operate among Masons as well as among others, and I cannot conceive a worthier object than that of bringing the unemployed and the employers among the Craft together. Each would be perfectly free to accept or refuse, but the grand end—opportunity—would be gained. Many a brother's heart is sad because of his isolation, because of the lack of sympathy. There are hundreds of brethren who are not eligible now for the Benevolent Fund, but who may shortly become so, owing to the evils resulting from lack of employment. It is a duty, therefore, to see if something cannot be done to lessen the existing distress, and to obviate the probability of distress in the near future. It would be economical to do so. Apart from this low estimate of motive, there would be the soothed conscience which would approve a good work done, and there would be the happy satisfaction of knowing on the part of the receiver of favours that the sympathy of the brethren was a living, helpful reality, and not a mere empty profession. Let any one read the letter of "A MASTER MASON," in your last week's issue, and try and realise that brother's position. Willing to work, but unable to get employment. Even his age, though it does not, perhaps, impair his ability, is urged against him. I cannot describe the painful picture "MASTER MASON" could depict. He discloses quite sufficient to show me that every effort ought to be made to cultivate mutual help. I have suggested a way in which it could be done. I am not wedded to it if any other plan can be framed. That something should be done is my importunate cry, and my hope and prayer is that the matter may be taken up by those who can give effect to their views. I can but aid with my feeble pen, and were I a Briareus all my hands and heads should be employed in forwarding the good work of helping distressed brother Masons to help themselves.

Yours fraternally,

WATCHMAN.

PRINTING AND PUBLISHING.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Will you please give your valuable opinion as to the following, as general Rule 205 in new code of Constitutions is silent thereon. Whether, as W.M. of a Lodge I am entitled to print a brother's name on the Lodge Summons after notice of motion has been given for his exclusion, and whether it would be considered a Masonic offence and a libel, after receiving a notice of protest from the said brother against such action, and whether you would not consider it wiser, and more in accordance with the spirit of the Rule, to be done in the usual manner, as when members are excluded for non payment of dues. Of course such Summons must inevitably fall into the hands of non-Masons—from the Reader, Compositor, and Printer downwards—and in due course, probably be seen by hundreds who are strangers to our art, as is usual with all printed, published, and circulated matter?

I beg to enclose my card, and remain,

Fraternally yours,

A W.M.

[No good purpose can follow the publication of the name in such a case; in addition, we are of opinion that an action for libel might stand.—ED. F.C.]

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

HENRY LEVANDER LODGE, No. 2048.

THE election meeting of this Lodge was held at the Railway Hotel, Harrow Station, on Saturday last, the 25th ult., and was well attended. Amongst the brethren present were Bros. Henry Lovegrove P.M. P.P.G.S.W. Middx. W.M., C. J. Axford S.W., W. A. Scurrah J.W., C. P. McKay P.M. Sec., P. Cheek S.D., John Johnson J.D., R. M. Surridge I.G., W. H. Burgess D.C., Harry Webb S., James Very Tyler; also Bros. R. Wilkins, T. E. Worrall, T. Reece, T. Barfoot, W. W. Smith, A. W. Wace, E. R. Chinn, &c., &c. The Visitors were Bros. George Edwards W.M. 1507, James Stevens P.M. 720, &c., H. Dickey Sec. 1745, R. Ross D.C. 1745, W. Hunt Old Concord Lodge, C. Everett 1507. The Lodge was opened with commendable punctuality at 4.30 p.m., and the minutes of the previous meeting having been confirmed, the F.C. degree was conferred upon Bro. Robert Wilkin, initiated at a former meeting, and, at the request, and in the presence of the W.M. of the Metropolitan Lodge, Bro. Edwards, on Bro. Charles Everett, of that Lodge. The Lodge was closed to the first degree, and Messrs. Edgar Robert Clunn and S. Reece were duly initiated into the Order, the W.M. (Bro. Lovegrove) and his Officers very efficiently rendering the ceremonies in both degrees. Bro. John Read P.M. 720, and of the Friends in Council Lodge, No. 1383, was elected a member of the Lodge, and invested with the collar of Organist. The election of Worshipful Master, Treasurer, and Tyler for the ensuing year then took place. In regard to the former office a practical exemplification of true Masonic feeling and brotherly love was given by the retirement from candidature of the S.W., Bro. C. J. Axford, who, though in every respect qualified for the chair of K.S., and certain of election to that high office if the ballot had taken the ordinary course, solicited the brethren to mark their high appreciation of the zealous services to Freemasonry, more especially in respect of recent strenuous efforts on behalf of the Masonic Institutions, of the J.W. Bro. Scurrah, by his unanimous election as W.M. for the ensuing year. It need hardly be said that Bro. Axford's single-minded desire to do honour to a truly deserving brother met with the acceptance he solicited, and he received at the hands of the brethren a cordial acknowledgment of his self-sacrifice on their behalf. Bro. Scurrah was consequently unanimously elected W.M. The retiring Master was elected Treasurer, and Bro. Very Tyler. Bros. Harry Webb, T. E. Worrall, and W. A. Wace were appointed Auditors. The elections having concluded, Bro. Scurrah addressed the brethren, thanking them for his election as W.M., and in the very fullest possible manner acknowledging his personal obligation to Bro. Axford, and the sense which the members of the Lodge entertained of his desire to promote their best interests. We feel compelled to say that a more pleasing incident, whether in the evidence it gave of a strong personal friendship between two worthy brethren, or of the preference of the welfare of Freemasonry to self-aggrandisement, we have never before met with in any of our Lodges, and the circumstance is all the more worthy of record as an example which might doubtless be advantageously followed elsewhere when the surrounding circumstances are of a similar nature. Five gentlemen were proposed for initiation, probably at an emergency meeting, as the next regular meeting being for installation, and the W.M. elect an exceedingly popular brother, the business of that day in placing him in the chair of K.S. will probably be considered sufficient. A few matters of ordinary arrangement having been attended to, the W.M. received the hearty good wishes of the Visitors, and the Lodge was closed in harmony. Refreshments followed labour, and after the cloth had been cleared the customary Loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and duly honoured. The W.M. finding it necessary to leave at an early hour, a practice of some W.M.'s "more honour'd in the breach, than the observance," the chair was taken by Bro. C. P. McKay P.M., the genial Secretary of the Lodge, under whose presidency the remaining complimentary toasts were given and received response. In replying to the toast of the Visitors Bro. James Stevens referred to the ceremonial work, and the thorough Masonic principles which had characterised the meeting, admitting the former to have been more than usually perfect, and the incident which had resulted in the election of Bro. Scurrah as W.M., consequently on Bro. Axford's retirement, as worthy of brethren connected with a Lodge bearing the revered name of that strict upholder of true Freemasonry in all its sublime principles, the late Brother Henry C. Levander. Bros. Dickey and Ross endorsed these remarks, and expressed the great gratification which they and all the Visitors had experienced from the cordial reception which had been accorded them. A very pleasant evening was spent by all present, the proceedings being enlivened by songs and recitations, and shortly before ten o'clock the brethren separated.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Sleeplessness, flatulency, acidity, nausea, and all dyspeptic indications may be speedily relieved by these famous Pills, of which large quantities are shipped to all parts of the world. The constantly increasing demands for Holloway's medicine proves its power over disease, and its estimation by the public. In weakness of the stomach, in diseases of the liver, and in disorders of the system caused by cold or sluggish circulation, no medicine is so efficacious, no remedy so rapid, as these Pills, which are altogether incapable of doing mischief. By quickening digestion they give refreshing sleep, sharpen the appetite, impart tone to the digestive organs, purify and enrich the blood, regulate the secretions, and strengthen the whole physical frame.

UNITED LODGE, No. 697.

THE annual meeting for the election of W.M. of this Lodge took place on Wednesday evening, when on a ballot being taken there were eighteen votes for the S.W., Bro. Ellis; and twenty-five for the J.W., Bro. J. T. Bailey. The latter was consequently declared elected. At the same meeting Bro. Richard Clowes was unanimously re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Munson Tyler.

Royal Alfred Lodge of Instruction, No. 780.—On Friday, 24th ult., at the Star and Garter Hotel, Kew Bridge. Bros. C. E. Botley W.M., Turner S.W., Sperring J.W., Thomas S.D., Bailey J.D., Cammill I.G., Andrews Preceptor; also Bros. Gillett, Morison, Norton, F. Botley, Hughes S.W. 869. After preliminaries, Bro. Norton, as candidate for raising, answered the questions leading to the third degree, and was entrusted. Lodge was opened in the third, and the ceremony was rehearsed. Lodge was resumed to the second degree. The ceremony of installation was rehearsed, Bro. Turner acting as W.M. elect. Bro. Hughes was elected a member of this Lodge of Instruction. Bro. Turner was elected W.M. for next Friday. Lodge was closed in due form.

Kingsland Lodge of Instruction, No. 1693.—A meeting was held on Monday, 27th ultimo, at Brother Baker's, Cock Tavern, Highbury, N. Bros. Cooper W.M., Turner S.W., Rhodes J.W., Collingridge Secretary, Jennings S.D., McMillan J.D., Hasell I.G., Western Acting Preceptor; also Bros. Jordan, Mallord, and other brethren. The minutes of last meeting having been read and confirmed, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Brother Brett candidate. The W.M. then vacated the chair in favour of Brother Western, who rehearsed the ceremony of passing, Bro. Stretch acting as candidate. Lodge was resumed and closed by Brother Cooper. Bro. Turner will occupy the chair on Monday, 4th instant.

FREEMASONS' HALL, LONDON, W.C.
15th April 1885.

Election of the Committee of General Purposes for the ensuing twelve months.

POLISH NATIONAL CHAPTER.

THE installation meeting of this Chapter was held at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, W.C., on the 23rd ult. Comps. Palmer M.E.Z., Lowden H., and Dr. Corrie Jackson J. After some business matters had been considered, Comp. Lowden, who had been unanimously elected, was installed M.E.Z., Dr. Jackson H., and Dr. Jagielski J. Comp. Paas was invested S.E., Nowakowski Treasurer, Bryant S.N., Bieling P.S., Reed and Kelsey Assistants. The ballot was taken for Brothers J. Tolley, Dr. Charles Renner and Fauser. It proving to be unanimous in their favour, they were entrusted and exalted to the Supreme Degree by Comp. J. Palmer, who performed all the duties in the most able and impressive manner. The Treasurer's accounts, having been audited, were passed, and the Chapter was duly closed, it being nearly nine o'clock when the Companions retired to the dining room. In consequence of the lateness of the evening, the Companions restricted their remarks, but the usual Loyal and Royal Arch toasts received attention.

Since the members of the Camden Chapter of Improvement have taken up their quarters at the Moorgate, Finsbury Pavement, good attendances have been the rule. On Tuesday last Comp. Knight filled the chair of Z., with Comps. Bolton H., Carter P.Z. J., H. Slyman P.Z. S.E., Roach N., and Sheppard P.S. There were also present Comps. Jacobs P.Z., King, Sheffield, Morgan, Gregory P.Z. The rehearsal of the ceremony of exaltation was creditably performed, Comp. Sheffield acting as candidate. Comps. Jacobs and Morgan were elected members. The Chapter room is well appointed, and Comps. Hammond and Bolton use every effort in their power to make their patrons comfortable during their stay.

At the North London Chapter of Improvement, on Thursday, at the Alwyne Castle Tavern, St. Paul's-road, Canonbury, at the hour of 8. Comps. T. T. Phillips M.E.Z., G. W. Knight H., G. Gregory J., J. E. Sheffield S.E., J. Collinson P.S., S. George S.N., T. C. Edmonds Preceptor. The Officers went through their work most creditably. Companions seeking instruction should visit this Chapter of Improvement.

An exhibition of French cookery was held on the 22nd and 23rd ult., at Willis's Rooms, St. James's, under distinguished patronage. This was the first display of the kind in this country, and well merited the patronage it received. The artistic and marvellous specimens of the culinary art were thoroughly appreciated, over 4000 persons visiting the rooms. Amongst those who displayed their skill were Messrs. Lecomte, Cossart, Benoist, Rope, Jeannin, and Victor Mandin. The latter exhibited an "Easter egg box," carved out of the cuttle fish bone, with medallions cut on eggs, in various colours. The Exhibition was a success. In the evening a ball was held, when over 400 guests were present. As a matter of course, the supper was of a most récherché kind, while marvellous specimens of decorations were on view. The President, M. Ponard, Messrs. Penet, De Vien, Lecomte, Bohers, Benoist and Cabuzet acted as Stewards. Bro. Charles Godfrey's band discoursed the music, and Bros. Jarvis and Bareham were the M.C.'s.

At the regular meeting of the Isaac Newton University Lodge, at Cambridge, on Monday, 27th April, His Royal Highness Prince Edward of Wales, Royal Alpha Lodge, was elected a joining member.

Bro James Stevens P.M. P.Z. has accepted the invitation of the Priory Lodge, No. 1000, Southend on Sea, to deliver his lecture on Freemasonry, explanatory of the Ritual and Ceremonial of the First Degree, at the Lodge meeting on Friday, 5th June, at the Middleton Hotel, Southend, at 7 p.m.

FESTIVAL OF THE UNITED GRAND LODGE OF ENGLAND.

THE annual Installation Meeting and Festival of Grand Lodge was held on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Hall, London, and was presided over by the Earl of Lathom Deputy Grand Master. His Lordship was supported by Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P., Prov. G.M. Hants and Isle of Wight as Deputy Grand Master; and Sir Francis Burdett, Bart., Prov. G.M. Middlesex as Past Grand Master. The other Grand Officers present were Lord Cremorne S.W., the Lord Mayor of London J.W., Horace Brooks Marshall, C.C., Treasurer, F. A. Philbrick, Q.C., Registrar, T. Fenn President Board of General Purposes, Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke Secretary, Ernest E. Wendt, D.C.L., Secretary for German Correspondence, Baron De Ferrieres, M.P., S.D., James Smith Eastes and E. Letchworth J.D.'s, Horace Jones Supt. of Works, Sir Albert W. Woods (Garter) D.C., Griffiths Smith Assistant D.C., Major Edward Loocok Sword Bearer, Lieut.-Col. Taylor Standard Bearer, Professor Lott Organist, and Henry Garrod Assistant Pursuivant. Grand Lodge having been opened with the customary formalities, Bro. Sir J. B. Monckton P.G.W. rose. Before the business of the evening was commenced, he desired the permission of the Grand Master to say a few words on an exceptional subject, but one which he felt should be referred to at that moment. Two years ago the Hall in which they were assembled was damaged by fire, and the work of restoring and redecorating it was shortly afterwards delegated to a Committee, consisting of himself and other brethren. The Committee had completed their labours, and on their behalf he now desired to hand back to Grand Lodge and its Board of General Purposes, who usually took charge of the building, the trust which had temporarily been confided to the Building Committee. In doing so he desired to express the warmest thanks of the Committee to the Grand Secretary and to the Grand Superintendent of Works for the able assistance they had rendered. He should not be right if he did not also refer to the services of those artistic brethren who had thrown their heart and soul, as well as their brushes and time, into the work of reproducing the pictures which surrounded the Temple. He hoped that the Committee to whom had been entrusted the work had completed it with some amount of credit to themselves and to the satisfaction of Grand Lodge. Bro. W. W. B. Beach said he desired to propose a resolution which he felt sure would meet the approval of every member of Grand Lodge—a vote of thanks to Sir John Monckton and the other members of the Building Committee on the successful completion of their labours. Much anxiety prevailed after the fire as to what was the best course to pursue, but it was ultimately settled by the appointment of the Building Committee. He was certain they had had an arduous and anxious task to perform; how they had performed it the brethren could themselves judge. He was quite sure the efforts of the Committee, and the success which had attended their exertions were appreciated. It was no light matter to restore a building which had been built and decorated many years ago, and which was worthy of those who had then decorated it. Still he felt the Committee who had had charge of the work were to be congratulated both on the skill and the taste they had displayed. He accordingly moved "That the best thanks of Grand Lodge be given to Bro. Sir John Monckton, and the other members of the Building Committee, and also to Bro. Horace Jones, Grand Superintendent of Works, for the skill and ability with which they had carried out the trust imposed on them of restoring and redecorating the Hall after its destruction by fire two years ago." Bro. Baron de Ferrieres seconded the proposition. The very appropriate yet modest terms in which Sir John Monckton, on behalf of the Building Committee, had presented the restored Temple must, he was sure, commend itself to all present. The work had been completed in a very short space of time. Even at the last Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge, it would be remembered, the walls were not painted, and the Hall was far from complete; but now all was perfect—an illustration of what Masonry could accomplish. When considered in connection with the time it took to complete other buildings, it was astonishing how short a time had been occupied. The acting Grand Master, before submitting the resolution to Grand Lodge, desired to offer his congratulations to Sir John Monckton and the Building Committee on the success which had attended their labours. He also congratulated the brethren on being again in their old home—not a new one—but one looking as fresh as if from the builder's hands, while he desired to particularly compliment the Building Committee, and especially the Grand Superintendent of Works, on the ability they had displayed in increasing the accommodation of the Temple. This was a much-needed improvement, and the additional accommodation afforded for one hundred brethren would doubtless be appreciated, especially as want of space had been felt at many of the past meetings of Grand Lodge. The proposition was then submitted, carried unanimously, and acknowledged by Sir John Monckton. The Earl of Lathom proposed that the votes of thanks be engrossed on vellum, signed by the Grand Master, and presented to Sir J. B. Monckton and the Grand Superintendent of Works. This was seconded by Sir Francis Burdett and carried.

The Grand Director of Ceremonies then proclaimed His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as Grand Master for the year, after which the Earl of Lathom announced that the Grand Master had appointed the Earl of Carnarvon Pro Grand Master, and himself (the Earl of Lathom) Deputy Grand Master. The following were then appointed and invested as the other Grand Officers for the year:—

The following were appointed Grand Stewards:—Bros. George Hughes, Charles Baxter Cousens, A. Taylor Day, George Ratcliff Steel, John Armytage Batley, William James Ford, Baldomerode Bertodano Lopes, Frederick Thomas Rushton, Edgar Figgis, Robert C. Grant, T. W. Chard Lenty, J. W. Robinson, Edward Terry, George Pitt Lewis, Arthur Josling, Thomas A. Logan, Henry Sutherland, M.D., and Charles Barry. This concluding the business, Grand Lodge was closed.

The Grand Festival followed, at Freemasons' Tavern, and was presided over by the Deputy Grand Master. The Stewards of the year sustained the time-honoured reputation of their Board for hospitality, and the efforts they made were ably seconded by Messrs. Spiers and Pond, the caterers. At the conclusion of the banquet the usual toasts were honoured. That of the Queen was followed by the National Anthem, and then the Chairman proposed the Princess of Wales and the other members of the Royal Family. The mere mention of the name of the Princess of Wales evoked a cheer among Englishmen, and invariably was this the case when it was mentioned at an English Masonic meeting. Her Royal Highness was to be congratulated on her safe return from her visit to Ireland. The toast of the Royal Family was at times considered as somewhat outside the province of Freemasonry, but it was hardly so; inasmuch as the Duke of Connaught was one of their most prominent members, while more recently H.R.H. Prince Albert Victor had been admitted as an Entered Apprentice in the Order. The Order was largely indebted to the Royal Family for the part they took in upholding the Craft, and in their doing so lay a great portion of its strength for the future. This toast having been honoured, was followed by what the Chairman designated the toast of the evening. They were celebrating the Festival of Grand Lodge, but he felt it might more properly be called the Festival of the re-election of the Grand Master. It was impossible for any one who watched the events of His Royal Highness's life not to notice with what difficulty to himself the Grand Master contrived to attend Masonic meetings in one part of the country or another, and it was also impossible for any Mason to imagine that it would be otherwise. The Grand Master was thoroughly interested in the Order, and although his avocations were so numerous and the calls on his time so frequent, he gave to Freemasonry its fair share of attention. His Royal Highness had had the intention of being present at that evening's meeting, but his recent return—his happy return—from Ireland, and the quantity of business he had found waiting for him on his arrival had prevented his being among them. There was not the slightest doubt that, although he was not personally present, he was with them in heart. The toast of the Pro G.M. followed from the chair, and then the Provincial Grand Master of Hants and the Isle of Wight submitted the health of the Earl of Lathom D.G.M., the Chairman of the evening. The acclamation which had greeted the announcement of the re-appointment of the Earl of Lathom as Deputy Grand Master was sufficient to show his popularity in the Craft. It was enough to say that whatever duty was assigned to him in Freemasonry he performed it, with courtesy and ability. The Earl of Lathom responded. He was flattered by the kind words of Brother Beach, and only hoped he thoroughly deserved them. As far as lay in his power he should do his duty as Deputy Grand Master. It was not often he appeared among the brethren on such occasions as the present, in fact, it was about a triennial arrangement. The Grand Master occasionally honoured them, Lord Carnarvon occasionally honoured them, and he came in third. Whenever he did come he was pleased to meet his brethren. He next proposed the toast of the Provincial Grand Masters. Looking round the country, and looking at the brethren on whom the choice of the Grand Master had fallen, he could but think that most excellent Provincial Grand Masters had been appointed. Col. Starkie (East Lancashire) responded. The Provincial Grand Masters took a great interest in their work, and would endeavour to discharge their duties in such a manner as to merit honour, and the esteem of the members of the Order. He was deeply indebted for the trust reposed in him. The Grand Wardens and the other Grand Officers Present and Past were next toasted. This toast signified more than generally appeared to the public eye. It meant that the Grand Master had collected from the whole body of Masons those he thought most capable and fit for promotion. The occasion was especially interesting to him, because among the Grand Officers appointed that day he noticed several old friends of his own. The Marquis of Hertford responded. The Grand Officers fully appreciated the honour done them by the Grand Master in appointing them to office. If anything could make them still further appreciate the honour, it was the way in which the toast had been proposed by the Deputy Grand Master, who had said, if he could quote the words correctly, that the Grand Officers were picked out on account of their being efficient members of the Craft. They ought to be very proud of that remark. The Rev. Canon Portal proposed "The Masonic Charities"—a toast more essentially Masonic than any other that could be introduced to the brethren's notice. It was well known there was no country more distinguished for its charities than England was, and in England there was no body of men more distinguished for their charity than the Freemasons. Our reverend brother then referred to some of the past doings in connection with the Charity Festivals, and urged that even more general support was deserved by the Institutions. Bro. Hedges acknowledged the toast. The Charities owed a deep debt of gratitude to the Craft. The Benevolent Institution had celebrated, at the beginning of the year, a Festival second to none in its annals, and now the Girls' and Boys' Schools stood before the brethren, hat in hand, waiting for their verdict. The Girls would hold their Ninety-seventh Anniversary Festival that day fortnight, when the Provincial Grand Master of Sussex would preside; he (Bro. Hedges) hoped he should then have to announce a result second to none in the annals of the Institution he had the honour to represent. The toast of the Grand Stewards was duly honoured, and was acknowledged by Bro. Alderman Sir Reginald Hanson. The Grand Stewards followed in the wake of many great men in the Craft who had had the honour of serving the office in the past, and he hoped they would vie successfully with those who had preceded them. The toast list having been brought to a conclusion the company again repaired to the Temple where a concert was given, under the direction of the Grand Organist, Bro. Edwin M. Lott.

The Temple with its approaches presents a most elegant appearance, but as so many of our readers have opportunities of personally inspecting it we do not, in our present notice, deem it necessary to furnish a detailed description of the improvements and decorations, we give, however, the following—

THE THEATRES.

Drury Lane.—All lovers of music—as an art, not as a fashion—will heartily rejoice in the triumph achieved by our young English composer Mr. Goring Thomas. Delighted and overflowing houses greet Nadeshda with growing enthusiasm. Mr. Thomas belongs essentially to the newer school of musicians, though, unlike his predecessors Balfe and Wallace, he declines to make the musical drama a medium for the introduction of detached songs, often episodical in purpose, yet never, in his exquisitely classical instrumentation, is their absence felt as a want of effective interest; and never does he sacrifice, after the manner of the great Master of the modern school, the emotional interest of the language he speaks to the temptation of scientific display or the vanity of fantastic orchestration. He has had the good fortune to secure an interesting story, ably versified by Mr. Sturgis, whilst scarcely on the operatic stage could he have found a lady more fitted for the part of the high-souled Nadeshda than Madame Valeria. Not only does she sing exquisitely, but the soul of tenderness and self sacrifice vibrates in the tones of her voice. It is Nadeshda's passion, despair or joy, that pervades her, not the triumph of the prima donna. Nadeshda's song, "Oh river, dear river," will doubtless become a favourite, and perhaps still more so the exquisite ballad, "As when the snow drifts." The ballet of the Second Act is delightful in its freshness. Mlle. Luna, as premiere danseuse, achieves well merited honours, so sparkling and full of colour is her assumption of the Russian village maiden. Mr. McGuckin has gained much in dramatic power since last season, and as the generous Voldemar sings with great taste and feeling. His "Now is the Hour" scored a marked success. Mr. Crotty, a thorough artist, has excellent opportunity as the wicked brother Ivan. "Our sires were stout and brave" was sung by him with splendid effect. Miss Yorke, who assumes the part of the Princess, possesses the valuable gift of clear utterance. Mr. Burgon, in the small part of Ostap, proved himself a true artist. The chorus is admirably drilled, while the orchestra, under Mr. Randegger, has the true perception of musical perspective, leaving the foreground to the voices. Very picturesque scenery forms the setting of this charming work; especially beautiful is "The Pine Forest" of Act III., with a red sunset through the lowering clouds.

Haymarket.—As Mr. and Mrs. Bancroft's last season foreshortens and the end approaches, we look jealously to each change in their programme, and with anxious hope that one of our especial favourites may once more be associated with the Bancroft name. "Ours" has been given us, but notwithstanding a certain fictitious interest due to the present Russian complications, and the old charm of the acting of Mr. and Mrs. Bancroft, the play seemed to lack vitality. The crude improbability of the plot would assert itself, and the humour of making jam puddings amid the tragic surroundings of a Crimean hut in that awful harvest of death had something irritatingly unnatural in it. Miss M. A. Victor, a clever actress in eccentric comedy, is but ill suited with the part of Lady Shendryn, and Mr. Kemble, though he plays with commendable earnestness and freedom from exaggeration, is certainly too meek and reasonable a "common Christian" for the preposterous deception the author imposes on him. Mr. Barrymore, one of our best emotional "heroes," seemed ill at ease on the first night as MacAlister, but we give praise to Mr. Brookfield for his well drawn and well thought out picture of the high-handed Russian. The audience gave the play but a lukewarm reception. Mr. and Mrs. Bancroft's friends are hoping they may yet enjoy the delightful little drama "Sweethearts," decidedly one of Gilbert's best. "Money," too, with the inimitable Lady Franklyn of the Manageress.

Toole's.—Those who love John Toole—and surely he must be "full of treasons, stratagems and spoils," who loves him not—have rejoiced to welcome back their old friend Paul Pry, and take a lesson in French before breakfast in King William-street. "Old Harry," we confess, we find somewhat disappointing, though the company with their chief do their best with it. It is in fact a fossil melodrama, and is at best interesting historically. A new play by Byron is shortly to be produced, and we trust may bring no less good fortune to Toole's than that kindly author's "Open House" has secured for the Vaudeville.

Surrey.—"Till Death do us Part" has been delighting large audiences over the water. It is a melodrama of the "old crusted" sort—daggers and revolvers; a wrongful heir of the intensest demoniacal pattern; a rightful heir with all the trials and virtues that belong to his kind. The clever company give vitality to the author's rather second-hand personages. Mr. Conquest jun., as a disreputable swindling Rev. H. Spriggins, trading on the secrets he possesses, might be a Fleet parson out of Hogarth. That accomplished villain Mr. Nye, first cousin to the "Spider," thrills his audience with the graceful audacity of his impersonation. Mr. Cruickshank gives a life-like presentment of a kindly old Preston mill hand. Miss Amy MacNeil plays with all her winsomeness the much persecuted heroine. We think, however, she somewhat misses her opportunity when she exhibits so little terror on finding herself a prisoner in "The Southwark den." We look forward with no little interest to her appearance next week in Mdlle. Beatrice's great part, "A Woman of the People." She will be supported by Mr. George Conquest, who may be termed our modern Robson.

TEMPERANCE FREEMASONRY IN THE THREE TOWNS.

THE first annual Convocation of the new Masonic Temperance Lodge of St. George, No. 2025, was held at St. George's Hall, Stonehouse, on Tuesday evening. Bro. A. Brickwood Hutchings, Mayor of Devonport, P.M. 893, of St. George's Lodge, was the Master elect. There was a large attendance, and the unprecedented occurrence of the presence of fifty-five installed Masters on the floor of a private Lodge at the same time took place. Business commenced with the raising of a candidate. At the conclusion of the ceremony the W.M. elect was installed by the retiring P.M., Bro. G. R. Barrett Prov. S.G.D., assisted by Bros. C. Croydon, James Gifford, L. D. Westcott, James Griffin, John Lynn 2025, J. B. Gover 70. At the close of the installation the following brethren were invested as the Officers:—Bros. G. R. Barrett I.P.M., J. S. Sloggett S.W., J. T. Bond J.W., J. Austin Treasurer, J. Giffard Secretary, W. Cann S.D., C. G. Withell J.D., F. Crouch I.G., James Griffin D.C., S. H. Dawe A.D.C., T. Hele Organist, W. G. Hodge, W. J. Pengelley, H. Reynolds and W. H. Dillon Stewards, James Gidley Tyler, J. Griffin Charity Steward, A. B. Hutchings Representative at the Committee of Petitions. A dinner on a liberal scale was provided at the Temperance Hall, Devonport, by Bro. Bosworthick. After dinner the usual Masonic toasts were drunk. The principal feature among them was the health of the Immediate Past Master, Bro. G. R. Barrett, and the presentation to him of a handsome portrait of himself, in recognition of his valuable services in connection with the institution of the Lodge. The portrait was an enlarged photograph in enamel, furnished by Bro. Hawke. The presentation was made by Bro. E. Aitken-Davies on behalf of the subscribers and Lodge. Bro. Davies said that from a prejudice in the minds of many persons who knew nothing of Freemasonry, that drink was too intimately connected with the Order, it had become important to show that the Lodges could be conducted entirely free from liquor. Hence the recent institution of Lodges in which one of their bye-laws involved the entire exclusion of liquor from any of their adjournments for refreshment or banquets. The St. George Lodge was founded upon that principle. At the institution of such Lodges there was generally much indirect opposition, and it required considerable zeal and labour to secure their institution. Such members as worked with that object were therefore entitled to much credit. Bro. Barrett, although not the original suggester of the St. George Lodge, had certainly been its most zealous and active promoter. Bro. Barrett had been its first W.M., and though from illness and other causes he had not been able to carry out all the work of that office, had certainly done much to further the interests of the Lodge. What he had done was held in very high appreciation among the members, and it had been determined, by the presentation of a testimonial in some form to mark that appreciation. The presentation of a portrait of himself was ultimately determined upon, and a very handsome enlarged photograph in the first style of art had been furnished by Bro. Hawke. In the name of the Lodge he (Bro. Davies) asked Bro. Barrett to accept that mark of the Lodge's gratitude. With the gift of the picture he proposed Bro. Barrett's health. The toast was drunk with enthusiasm. Bro. Barrett, in replying, said he felt very much the kindness shewn him. He could not express all he wished. What he had done in assisting to establish the Lodge was of itself fully rewarded in the great success of the Lodge. At its institution there were others who had rendered much assistance. Bro. Sloggett S.W. was the original designer of the Lodge; Bro. Gifford, the Secretary, had done a great quantity of necessary clerical work; and Bro. Davies had travelled with him (Bro. Barrett) far and near in assisting at its organization. During the evening a very pleasing entertainment of melodies and recitations was furnished between the toasts by Bros. J. Kinton Bond, E. G. Dyke, the Rev. T. W. Lemon, J. Gifford, and others. A liberal supply of the recently-introduced temperance drinks and hot coffee was furnished by Bro. Bosworthick.—Western Morning News.

THE mission of Zoroaster was to suppress polytheism and establish monotheism. Dr. Haug, who is an authority and is often quoted by Dosabhai, says the leading idea of Zoroaster's theology was Monotheism, the principle of his speculative philosophy was Dualism—the supposition of two primeval causes of the real world and of the intellectual, while his moral philosophy was moving in the triad of thought, word, and deed. That Zoroaster proclaimed one God—Ahura Mazda, creator, ruler, and preserver of the universe, without form, and invisible—is incontestable, and Haug says that the Parsi conception of the supreme being is identical with the notion of Elohim or Jehovah of the Old Testament. Under one Almighty, two principles or spirits, called Mainyush-Spento Mainyush, meaning the creative spirit, and the Angro Mainyush, the destructive spirit—have been working day and night, and have been creating and destroying ever since the universe began. These are not to be regarded as a separate authority, but two spirits inherent in the nature of, and guided by, the Ahura Mazda. There are six Archangels, or guardian spirits, presiding over distinct gifts, but the great head of all is the one God. In speculative philosophy Zoroaster recognises two intellects—Asno Khratu (born wisdom), and Gaoshosruto-Khratu (acquired wisdom.) The first is innate from birth, and the second the result of teaching on earth. Zoroaster's idea of heaven (Garodemana) "house of hymns," is said to harmonise with our own Scriptural views. Here Ahura Mazda resides. Hell (Drujodemana) is the "house of destruction." "Between heaven and hell," says Dr. Haug, "is Chinvat Peretu (Chinvadpul) 'the bridge of the gatherer,' or 'the bridge of the Judge,' which the soul of the pious alone can pass, while the wicked fall from it down into hell." The Prophet taught the doctrine of the resurrection of the body. "The whole moral foundation of the sacred works of the Parsis," we are told, "is, as it were, built upon three important injunctions, which pervade the Parsi scriptures, and are fittingly expressed by three significant terms used in the Avesta, viz., Humata, Hukhta, and Hvarshta, which mean purity of thought, purity of speech, and purity of action. These represent the teaching of the Parsi religion, and on them the whole structure of the Zend Avesta is raised." Besides the books we have spoken of, a code of morals was drawn up, at the instance of King Ardeshur Barbekan, by Arda Viraf, called "revelations." It professed to be a description of a vision by Arda, wherein he was transported to the other world. His account of hell, says Dr. Haug, bears "a striking resemblance to the accounts to be found in Dante's Inferno." In some points it may be said to resemble the vision of the prophet Isaiah. Zoroaster contended that men are saved alone by their good deeds. A list of sins and crimes is given, twenty-two in number, some of which are curious, for instance, carrying a dead body alone, lest the person is overtaken by a danger he is helpless to withstand; the destruction of a bridge over a rapid river, disobedience of a wife to her husband, beautifying of faces and wearing the hair of others, walking without shoes. Broadly, what is intended to be impressed is "observance of sanitation, kindness to animals, hospitality to strangers and travellers, respect to superiors, and help to the poor and needy." Prayer is regarded as a very important duty, and regulations are made for its exercise. God, we are informed, "is the emblem of glory, refulgence, and light, and in this view, a Parsi, while engaged in prayer, is directed to stand before the fire, or to turn his face toward the sun." In order to meet this demand upon the faithful, fire temples abound in India, and are open day and night. The popular idea is that Parsis worship fire. This, it is urged, is a great error. A Parsi regards fire as "the most perfect symbol of the Deity on account of its purity, brightness, activity, subtility, fecundity, and incorruptibility." Hence the Parsis do not smoke, "from their religious instinct forbidding them to bring fire, which is pure, into contact with their mouth, which is deemed impure." The sacredness of fire is increased by the religious ceremonies and prayers that accompany its installation "in its proper place, in a vase on an exalted stand in a chamber set apart." Fire obtained by lightning is regarded as the best, but as this can only be got on very rare occasions, fires are secured from various places of manufacture and kept in different vases. Great care is observed in refining the sacred fire, which will be perceived by the order of procedure in establishing fire temples. "Over one of these fires a perforated metallic flat tray, with a handle attached, is held. On this tray are placed small chips and dust of fragrant sandal-wood. These chips and dust are ignited by the heat of the fire below, care being taken that the perforated tray does not touch the fire. Then from this new fire another one is created, by the same process. From this new fire another is again produced, and so on until the process is repeated nine times." This fire reverence has come down from time immemorial, and the lesson to be learned from the purification of fire is that it is necessary for the Parsi to be purified. Corruptions naturally grow up in all creeds, and the intercourse of the Parsis with the Hindus has led to innovations, but a Religious Reform Association was formed in 1852, "which has for its object the regeneration of the social condition of the Parsis and the restoration of the Zoroastrian religion to its pristine purity." Although the Parsi religion does not recognise the hereditary office of the priesthood, custom has ordered it that priests are born, not made. The son of a priest may follow any other profession if he pleases, but a "layman cannot be a priest." There are two orders of priesthood, both of which demand ordination ceremonies of a preparatory character, but which it is not necessary to describe.

We might quote a long list of Parsi worthies, extending over a period of two hundred years; but two or three instances must suffice, and these are given chiefly because of the associations that marked their career. Sorabji Kavasji, a native of Surat, displayed considerable mechanical skill, and a lucky circumstance laid the foundation of his fortune. The Emperor of Delhi had been presented with a clock by the Sultan of Turkey. By some means the clock got out of order, and no one could be found to repair it. At last Sorabji was sent for, who proved himself equal to the occasion, and who set the clock going again. He was kept at Court some time, teaching the subjects of the Emperor the art of repairing watches. He was the recipient of many favours, and on his return to Surat was promoted to offices of trust and importance. A grandson of Sorabji, named Dhanjisha Beheremandkhan who, in gallantly assisting to put down a false Mahdi, lost his life. His services were recognised, and his widow was rewarded with a pension. In 1692 a plague broke out in Bombay, and taking advantage of what was considered an opportunity the Sidis of Janjira, a powerful and independent people, organised a band of pirates along the Malabar coast. There were few English left to cope with the enemy, but Rastamji Dorabji came to the rescue. He formed a militia of the fishermen of the coast, and succeeded in repelling the enemy. Kamaji Kuvarji was the pioneer of ship-building at Bombay, and the founder of the Kama family. His two sons Mancherji and Edalji opened up trade with China, which their descendants continue to maintain to this day. The family honour is well upheld, and by no one better than by Bro. D. P. Cama, so long resident amongst us. We may here say that the Parsis in Bombay take kindly to Freemasonry. Then there was Jamshedji Jijibhai, born of poor parents, who became wealthy, and never wearied in well-doing. He was knighted for his charitable acts in 1842, he received the freedom of the City of London in 1855, and just before his death, which took place in 1859, he was made a baronet. He was open-handed, and gave without reference to "caste, colour, or creed." We might go on multiplying instances of enterprise, loyalty, and generosity, but we have said enough to show the character of the Parsi people in India. They were first in trade and commerce. Their ship-building achievements, both at Surat and at Bombay, were highly appreciated by the Government. In the English rulers and people the Parsis found a race they could esteem and serve, and Her Majesty has no more loyal and devoted subjects in the whole of her dominions. Their charity is almost unbounded, and is not confined to their own people. In this respect they show their confidence in the teaching of their prophet. "Good deeds" are the watchwords of the Parsi faith, and truly do the followers of Zoroaster honour them.

In one respect the Parsis seemed to fail. Up to within the last fifty years little attention was paid to the subject of education. Once alive, however, to the necessity, they set to work with a will, and now schools and colleges do for the mind what their numerous charitable institutions do for the body. Female education has made great strides, and no one is accounted educated who does not possess a practical knowledge of English. Indeed, it may be said that the Parsis are more English than the English themselves. They readily learn our language, and speak it with singular fluency. They follow us in our love for athletic sports, and a Parsi Eleven in the cricket field cannot be despised with impunity. This remarkable people seem to have recovered much of their ancient character before it became corrupted by the spoils of war and enervated by luxurious indulgence. For centuries the Parsis in India were content to live a peaceful, semi-nomadic kind of life. It is true that every now and then they displayed courage and resource in times of difficulty; they even indicated their peculiar fitness for handicraft trades and for enterprising commerce. But whether the field of operations was too limited, or whether the Parsis were not inspired by the people by whom they were surrounded, or whether they felt that in mind and body they were a superior race, but so vastly inferior in numbers as to be unable to cope with the other castes in India: whatever may have been the governing cause, it is certain that the Parsis did not put forth their strength until the English established themselves in Bombay, and continued to make the progress that showed that they were the dominant race. Then the Parsis seized their opportunity. They had confidence in the English, and they put out their strength. The result is seen in Parsi superiority over every other caste. They have been successful in every department of commerce; they have assisted in government, and enjoy the respect and esteem of the rulers of India because of their loyalty, their enterprise, and their benevolence. The contact between the English and the Parsis was like the appearance of the sun after a dreary winter. Life and light stirred up the latent powers, and once more the Parsis, emerging from the rust of ages, displayed their native genius. What they have accomplished is written on every page of Indian history during the last two hundred years. When we consider their number the result is astounding. According to the census of 1881 the Parsis in India numbered about 100,000—43,598 males, and 41,799 females. There were 6,618 male and 2,966 female mendicants in Bombay, and out of that number five and one respectively were Parsis. We have already alluded to their ideas of sanitation and purity of the body, and it says much for their system that they have the lowest death rate in the city where they most do congregate. But another fact is even of more importance, as illustrating their theory of morals. There is not a single Parsi woman living in shame in the whole of the city of Bombay. This is a welcome truth, and once more illustrates the force of the moral teaching of the faith of Zoroaster. Perhaps the singular equality in number of the sexes may have something to do with the absence of the social evil among the Parsis. It is not often that the males predominate in a community, but in this case they do so. The contrast is generally so great the other way that it is pointed at as an explanation of much of the social corruption that prevails in nearly all civilised countries. Still, when every allowance is made, the Parsi stands out with a bright record, and if his religion falls short of the genius of Christianity in its spiritual sense, it at least holds its own as it affects the conduct of life on earth. We take leave of these volumes with regret. They are something more than a history. The writer is proud of his race, and while he rejoices in their material achievements, he is not unmindful of the moral claims the religion of Zoroaster has upon his brethren. He has no word of disparagement for other castes, while he cheerfully recognises the good that his people have derived from all. We should add that the volumes are handsomely printed and illustrated, and form a fitting memento of a people who claim descent from kings who flourished thousands of years ago, and who are now living again the life of activity and progress that marked their ancestors in the golden days.

FIRST EVENTS IN MASONRY IN AMERICA.

THE first Charter, or Deputation, granted by the Grand Lodge of England for America (duly and cotemporaneously registered in London) was that of June 5, 1730, to Bro. Daniel Coxe, Provincial Grand Master of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania.

The first Masonic Lodge in America was St. John's Lodge, Philadelphia, organized in 1730, which met at "The Hoop Water street, first Monday." This Lodge appeared on the printed register of 1735, Dublin ("Freemasons' Pocket Companion") as Lodge No. 116 (or No. 79, English Register).

The first W.M. of a Masonic Lodge in America was Bro. William Button, W.M. of St. John's, Philadelphia, from St. John's Day, December 27, 1730, to St. John's Day, June 24, 1731.

The first Provincial Grand Master of any single English province in America was Bro. William Allen (afterwards Chief Justice), Provincial Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania in 1731.

The oldest original Masonic record in America is the Secretary's Ledger (Liber B) of St. John's Lodge, Philadelphia, containing the records of this Lodge from February 1731 to June 1738, complete, giving the Masonic records of fifty Freemasons of that era, members of St. John's Lodge, including Brothers William Allen, William Button, Benjamin Franklin, Henry Pratt, James Bingham, Thos. Hopkinson, Joseph Shippen, Thomas Bond, Philip Syng, Dr. Thos. Cadwallader, Henry Lewis, and other menbers of what were then, and are still, the "first families of Philadelphia." This earliest original Masonic record (part of which is in the handwriting of Bro. Benjamin Franklin, Secretary in 1736-8) is now in the archives of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia.

The first reference to Freemasonry in any American newspaper, was that contained in Benjamin Franklin's Pennsylvania Gazette, of December 23, 1730, of which the following is the opening paragraph:—As there are several Lodges of Freemasons erected in this province, and people have lately been much amused with conjectures concerning them, we think the following account of Freemasonry from London will not be unacceptable to our readers.

This was followed, in the issue of May 6, 1731, by another article, consisting of a "Description of the Society of Free and Accepted Masons," taken from Chambers' "Universal Dictionary of all Arts and Sciences," issued in 1728. The third earliest newspaper reference was that of the same paper, of date June 26, 1732, announcing the election of the Grand Officers of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania for 1732.

The first Masonic letter written in America, of which any trace remains, was that from Bro. Benjamin Franklin, dated Philadelphia, November 28, 1734, signed "W. Franklin, G.M. Pennsylvania," and addressed to Bro. Henry Price, of Boston.

The first Masonic book issued in America was printed in 1734, by Benjamin Franklin, being a reprint of the A.D. 1723 edition of Anderson's "Book of Constitutions." On the title page are these words:—"Reprinted in Philadelphia by special order, for the use of the Brethren in North America."

The first Masonic Hall erected in America was on Lodge alley, west of Second street, Philadelphia, built in 1754 by the "Grand and First Lodges," and called "The Freemasons' Lodge." When sold, in 1793 the proceeds were given to the city of Philadelphia, to purchase fuel for the poor, and the funds are now under the control of the City Trust.

The first Royal Arch Chapter in America was Jerusalem R.A. Chapter, No. 3, of Philadelphia (still flourishing) whose minutes are in existence back to the year 1767, while these refer to prior minutes.

The first Provincial Grand Master and Grand Lodge warranted by the "Ancients" or Atholl Masons, in America, was the Provincial Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania, Bro. William Ball, of Philadelphia, being Provincial Grand Master; the warrant bearing date June 7th, 1758, for Lodge No. 69, and duly registered in London. Thus the earliest warrants granted both by the "Ancients" and the "Moderns" for America, were for Lodges in Pennsylvania.

The first Grand Holy Royal Arch Chapter in America was the Grand Chapter of Pennsylvania, organized November 23rd, 1795.

The first subordinate Commandery of Knights Templar in America was Philadelphia Encampment, No. 1, of Philadelphia, chartered February 14th, 1794.

The first Grand Commandery of Knights Templar in America was the Grand Commandery of Pennsylvania, organized May 12th, 1797.

The first Masonic periodical published in America was the Freemason's Magazine, issued in Philadelphia, commencing in 1811.

The first American reprint of Dermott's "Ahiman Rezon," was that revised by Bro. William Smith, D.D., Grand Secretary of Pennsylvania, issued by authority of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia, in 1782-3, and dedicated to Bro. George Washington.

In addition to this, the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania chartered Lodges in the territory of the following States of the American Union, before independent Grand Lodges were organized therein:—New Jersey, Delawar, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Ohio, Indiana, Louisiana and the North-west Territory.

Who will venture to deny, after reading the foregoing record of facts, that Philadelphia is richly entitled to be styled the Mother-City of Masonry in America?—Keystone.

ATTENDANCE AT LODGE MEETINGS.

IF there is anything that will discourage a zealous officer, it is non-attendance on the part of the members of his Lodge. An officer that performs his whole duty, is early at his post. The faithful Master delights in opening his Lodge, performing the work to be done, and closing it, in due season, but, if the brethren do not second his efforts, and loiter by the way, early means late.

The degrees, to be properly worked, require more than the constitutional number to be present. Empty seats speak no words of encouragement to the faithful officer, therefore, my brethren, if you would encourage your officers in the faithful performance of their duties, come early, and stay; do not simply step in for a moment, plead business (?) engagements, and then spend the evening with convivial associates; but come to stay, and perform your share of the work that is to be done.

Every Mason has a duty to perform, which, upon no account, must be neglected, if they would sustain the position held by our Lodges, or individual Masons.

It is your duty, my duty, and every brother's duty, to closely examine the material that is being offered. It is not the welfare of any one individual that must occupy our attention, but that of the whole Craft.

We must have perfect men; not as much in a physical as in a moral sense. We must have good material, or none at all; better, by far, have a few genuine Masons, than scores of imitation ones; therefore, if he who asks for admission, does not conform, literally, to the tests of true manhood, reject him, as you would a viper: better, by far, have a man that is not quite perfect physically, than one that is perfect physically, yet imperfect in mind, taste, habits, character, or morality.

Committees, to whom petitions are referred, do not always perform their whole duty. In by far too many instances, petitions are reported favourably upon without that due inquiry that there should be; occasionally, there will be found committees that know their duty, and do not hesitate to perform it. On the supposition that the examining committee are derelect in the performance of their duty, let each brother appoint himself a committee of one; let him examine closely into the character, habits, and associates of the petitioner; and, if he does not conform to the true standard, use the negative ballot, without fear or favour, and consequently benefit the Craft more than any one act that can be performed. If the petititioner is found worthy, then accept him; but do not stop there. He has much to learn; he is commencing a new life; then take him by the hand, and teach him true Masonry.—Canadian Craftsman.

BRO. SAMUEL DAVIES.

WE regret to announce the death which took place on the 1st instant of Brother Samuel Davies, Past Master of the Callender Lodge, No. 1052, Manchester, after a prolonged illness, at the age of 57. Our late Brother was initiated in the Callender Lodge, in 1872, and was installed Master in 1877. He occupied the chair with credit to himself and honour to the Lodge. In private, and as a Mason, Bro. Davies was held in high estimation by all who knew him. About 20 of the brethren of his Lodge attended his funeral, and marched in advance of the coffin, four of the oldest P.M.'s officiating as pall bearers. The deceased was a member of the choir of St. Paul's Church, Withington, at which place he was interred, on Monday last, the 4th instant, the members of the choir rendering a full choral funeral service with great effect. The coffin was covered with magnificent wreaths of flowers, furnished by the members of his Lodge, by the choir of St. Paul's, and by many sorrowing and sympathising friends.

H.R.H. the Prince of Wales the M.W. the Grand Master has been pleased to grant a warrant—on the recommendation of the R.W. Bro. Sir Francis Burdett, Bart., P.G.M. of Middlesex—for a new Lodge, to be called the "Cama," to meet at the Mitre, Hampton Court. Our highly esteemed Bro. Dorabjee Pestonjee Cama is the W.M. designate, Bro. John Read S.W. designate, and Bro. Henry Baldwin J.W. designate. The consecration will take place at an early date.

The installation meeting of the Abbey Lodge, No. 2030, will be held on Monday next, at the Town Hall, Westminster. The first W.M., Bro. Burdett Coutts, will instal as his successor Bro. W. H. Baker, who hitherto has served the office of Senior Warden in the Abbey Lodge. On this occasion the W.M. and Officers of the City of Westminster Lodge, No. 1563, will return the visit paid by the W.M. and Officers of the Abbey Lodge, a short time back.

OUR NOBLE INSTITUTIONS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—We never seem to tire of proclaiming the grandeur of our Charitable Institutions, and if there was not a really solid reason for all this pride we should be justly accused of being the worst of modern Pharisees. As it is there is rather more boasting than the results of our Charities warrant. It is admitted that the Craft has grown enormously during the last twenty years, and it may be that many have been admitted who were not eligible in a pecuniary sense, and who early become claimants for help rather than supporters. Still the increase of contributions at the Festivals roll round testify to the elasticity of the wealth possessed by the Craft at large, and the prevalence of the desire to meet the demands that are made upon the benevolence of the Fraternity. It would be folly to say that this elasticity should excuse all thought of prudence. On the other hand, it should bear a liberal construction. I believe the experience of most people connected with charitable institutions leads to the conclusion that generosity in spending generally leads to liberality in contributing. The want of funds to meet existing engagements has always been a powerful agent by which to work upon the feelings of the benevolent, and although I should deprecate the practice being carried to an unlimited extent, I think the Governors of our Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution might very fairly enlarge their charity. They are the custodians of an Institution that appeals with wonderful power to the brethren. They hold the premier place in the affections of the Craft, and I believe that they may rely upon being supported in any effort they may make in enlarging the scope of their work.

I read with pain the remarks you made in your last issue. Out of 118 applicants to be able only to relieve 35—really only 28, for six cases must be deferred—is a sad condition of things. It is not creditable to the Order, and calls for immediate action. I quite agree with you that it would be desirable to secure each Steward as an annual subscriber to the Institution, and as this need not involve more than the contribution of 5s per year I think the chairman of each Festival would not find it difficult to persuade his colleagues to agree to so reasonable a proposition. But I would go further, and say that a great effort should be made to induce every brother to become a yearly subscriber. Of course, many would refuse, but if a united attempt were made I am convinced that a goodly number would respond to the call, that the future of the old men and widows might be made brighter. If all were to do their duty there would be no need to send any claimant empty away. With this fact staring the brethren in the face, and seeing that the minimum contribution ranges as low as 5s, I do hope that a grand effort will be made, so that the Benevolent Institution shall become to the full worthy of its grand purpose.

I am,

Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

OBSERVER.

PROFESSIONS AND PRACTICE.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—It is our pride and boast that, in connection with the Craft of which we are members, no deserving case is allowed to pass in which the benevolent principles of Freemasonry should not be exercised. It is enjoined upon us, moreover, that we should cast about us to ascertain whether there are not cases which demand our sympathy, even though unsolicited, and in which a cheering word spoken, or simple act of kindness done, may be gratefully welcomed by the sufferer. There is no doubt much is done in this way to assuage the sorrows of the distressed and afflicted, but whether the maxims so strongly insisted on in Freemasonry, and so ostentatiously professed amongst certain classes of Masons, are practically applied at all times is very much open to question. Not many months ago I happened to be at an installation banquet, and on leaving the hall temporarily I was accosted by a wan-looking individual in the corridor, whom I afterwards found to be a brother in distress. He told me in words which bore the impress of truth, that misfortune had suddenly overtaken him, and that having failed in business, he had tried in vain to obtain employment, so that he and his family were now literally on the verge of starvation. He pleaded that nothing but sheer destitution would have impelled him to seek a little assistance at the hands of the brethren. I mentioned the circumstance to the Secretary and Almoner of the Lodge, who went outside and interviewed the "poor fellow," but on being asked whether he had granted him any relief; reply was in the negative, although the "poor fellow's" credentials were such as that no fault could be found with them. In the next breath fresh bottles of champagne were ordered, and toast and song prevailed in the gaily-illuminated hall as the "poor fellow" silently wandered away in the cold and wet, on that chilly winter night. Immediately I heard the poor brother could not—or was not—relieved from the Lodge funds, I and others who had heard his story went immediately in search of him, being convinced of the veracity of his statements and the deserving nature of his appeal. But he had gone—gone with sad thoughts, no doubt, upon the mockery of the so-called charitableness of the Craft, and of the fallability of all mundane institutions. It is all very well to preach benevolence, and to guard against imposture; but it would be better far to curtail the luxuries of the fourth degree in such a case as I have mentioned than to allow a burdened heart to bear away its silent sorrow, intensified by the indifferent coldness with which its urgent appeal had been received. I knew of another case in which a brother who, when in health, was as active and popular as any of the rest, and who at times was the "merriest man in the company." But he was overtaken with affliction, and just at the moment when a kindly visit would have cheered the heart and rendered less bitter the sting of adversity, where was the comfort and solace he had heard so much about in the Lodge-room. It is all very well to send good wishes and exhortations to "bear up" under trial; but without practical and personal sympathy, it is on all fours with the Christian minister who leaves a tract and nothing else with a starving family. The brother to whom I refer expressed himself sorrowfully, though in no complaining mood, of the apathy and indifference of those whom he had known as professedly so ardent in their advocacy of Brotherly Love, Relief and Truth; and I fear many more such instances could be cited if one only took the trouble to look for them. It should not be so; let us each and all try to promote that active and personal interest in the welfare of our distressed and afflicted brother which is enjoined upon us by the principles we espouse on being admitted to a participation in the mysteries and privileges of Freemasonry.

I remain, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

HARRY.

STATISTICS IN REFERENCE TO THE LATE ELECTIONS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Once more I venture to trouble you with some statistics of the late Elections. By the result sheets I regret to see that two last application cases have been unsuccessful. The one among the Girls was a first and last appeal, and as the father appears to have done good service, I am surprised at the feeble effort made on his child's behalf, though this may in some measure be accounted for by the fact that both parents are living. It appears also there are only two children in the family, and the parents are thought to have sufficient means to support them. If so, why did the Officers of the Lodge of Tranquillity put the child forward?—or why did the Committee sanction the application? If it is a case of desertion, or worse, all the more reason for lending a helping hand. The unsuccessful boy, from East Lancashire, after no less than five applications, can only show 192 votes in his favour. There must have been something radically wrong for such a Province to have shut the lad out of the School. The number of votes issued for the Girls was 36,515; there were polled on Saturday the 11th April 32,674, leaving 3,861 unaccounted for. A very unsatisfactory waste of strength, but in the case of the Boys it is worse. The number of votes issued was 49,890; there were polled on the 13th April 42,933; leaving a balance of 6,957 lost. Thus, between the two, nearly 11,000 were thrown away. The votes carried forward by each Institution are nearly equal, i.e., Girls 5,701, Boys 5,934. A peculiar feature of the successful numbers of the Boys is the hiatus between the last but two, and one of 503 and the last but one, and last of 303. Now as to the candidates: 30 Girls, average age was 9 years 1 month; fathers' average subscription 8 years 7 months. Only six of these are recorded as having assisted one or more of the Institutions. The average number in each family is within a fraction of 5; 23 of the candidates are dependent upon the mother alone, 2 have both parents living, and 5 neither. 44 Boys, average age is 9 years 2 months, fathers' subscription 8 years 8½ months; of these 11 are recorded as having assisted the Institutions; average family nearly 4; 39 are dependent on mothers, 2 on fathers, 1 on mother-in-law, 1 on both parents, and 1 without either parent. There is one successful candidate among the Girls, "Myrtle Speed," who by reason of her age will not be eligible to be taken into the School until August twelvemonth, and a boy, "F. Watkins," from the same cause, until February next. Now this should not be. It smacks of the "dog in the manger" policy. If children are allowed to come forward at such an early age for election, and are successful, the highest on the unsuccessful list should meanwhile fill up the vacancy, and at the election previous to the applicant reaching the proper age less vacancies should be declared; this, of course, would not apply when the Preparatory School is ready, and the laws altered as to age of admission; but at present it is unfair to those who are eligible. Unless a first and last case or cases should be presented before October there will be only one last chance among the Girls at the next Election, and as the child in question carries forward over 1,400 votes, there will be little or no doubt as to her success. Among the Boys, however, there are already four in that category, first "F. T. Davis," (a sixth application), and only 7!!! votes to his credit. Whose fault is this? Surely not that of the lad, who perhaps is led on by false hopes. Is it the mother's? She has four other children to provide for. Surely that fact alone gives her a sufficient claim. Is it on account of her character? If this be so, take the child from her. It is not for us to visit the sins of the parents on the children. Or again, is it because she has ample means to support her children? If so, withdraw the name, that it may no longer disgrace the paper.

The other three are London cases; "Warner," Ranelagh Lodge, No. 834; this will be a fifth application, with 238 votes, eight of which were polled the other day (is not this a poor prospect?); "Henshaw," third application, Fortitude and Old Cumberland, No. 12, with 719 votes; and "Astington," second application, Old England Lodge, 1790, with 275 votes. Now, what a pleasure it would be if the supporters of these cases were to put their shoulders to the wheel and hunt up some of the lost votes, and let the subscribers have the satisfaction of seeing a clean sheet as regards last application cases. There never should be any, and if the principles of the Order were properly attended to there never would be. All claimants should be equally worthy of support after the ordeal they undergo, or ought to undergo, before being presented to the Craft at large for admission. First, there is the Lodge to which the father subscribed. It should primarily be responsible for the merits of the case; and lastly, the Committee who decide upon the applicants' eligibility. Before now I have suggested that all last chances should be accepted, but have been met with the objection that children would be kept back for a last chance. I trow not, for those seeking the benefits of the Institutions would still be anxious to obtain them at the earliest possible moment, so as to relieve themselves of the expense. The great thing to be desired is that more care should be taken in sifting the merits of each particular case; very often where the family consists of two or three children the need is as urgent as when there are eight or nine. I have heard it stated there have been cases where some of the children have been visited by immediate relations in carriages; if this be so, it evidently shows such children were usurping the places of the necessitous; lately, however, I am glad to see much greater care has been taken in the selection of candidates than was the case formerly. I now finish my long letter with tables, showing how London and the Provinces are numerically represented in our Schools.

I remian, yours fraternally,

A VAGRANT.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—On Wednesday, the 29th ult., there called on me an individual, who I at once "spotted" as a professional; and subsequent inquiry proved my surmise to be correct. This individual was at Basingstoke and Petersfield a few days before and turned up at Portsmouth the same evening, so he is probably by this time in the Western Counties.

Description—Height close on six feet, of military appearance; has a thick light brown moustache, no whiskers or beard; carries left arm in a sling. Gives the name of Hezekiah Ellison and Charles Johnson, and professes to hail from No. 553, Morning Star Lodge, Lucknow. He has no certificate.

SECRETARY 804.

Havant, 4th May.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Old Sores, Wounds, and Ulcers.—The readiness with which Holloway's Ointment removes all obstructions in the circulation of the vessels and lymphatics, explains their irresistible influence in healing old sores, bad wounds, and indolent ulcers. To insure the desired effect, the skin surrounding the diseased part should be fomented dried, and immediately well rubbed with the Ointment. This will give purity to the foul blood, and strength to the weakened nerves, the only conditions necessary for the cure of those ulcerations which render life almost intolerable. No sooner is this Ointment's protective powers exerted, than the destructive process ceases, and the constructive business begins—new healthy growth appears to fill up the lately painful excavated pit.

INSTALLATION MEETINGS, &c.

AMHERST LODGE, No. 1223.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge was held on the 2nd inst., at the Amherst Arms Hotel, Riverhead, under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. C. E. Birch, who was supported by Bros. C. J. Craig S.W., E. T. Strange J.W., Durtnell P.M. Treasurer, J. H. Jewell P.P.G.O. Kent Secretary, J. Birch S.D., Sparrowhawk J.D., Hanmer I.G.; T. J. Baker I.P.M., P.M.'s Duret, C. J. Dodd, E. J. Dodd, &c., and a numerous assemblage of members and visitors, including several distinguished Provincial Grand Officers. Lodge was opened, and the minutes of the regular and emergency meetings were read and confirmed. The report as to the Treasurer's accounts was read, and the W.M. informed the brethren the funds were in a flourishing condition. A Board of Installed Masters was in course opened, and Bro. C. J. Craig S.W. and W.M. elect was presented and duly installed into the chair by Bro. Duret, who conducted the ceremony in a perfect and impressive manner, warranting the encomiums passed upon him at its conclusion. There were twenty-three W.M.'s and P.M.'s present. On the readmission of the brethren the newly-installed W.M. appointed and invested his Officers:—Bros. C. E. Birch I.P.M., Strange S.W., J. Birch J.W., Durtnell P.G.S. of W. Kent Treasurer, J. H. Jewell P.P.G.O. Secretary, Sparrowhawk S.D., Hanmer J.D., A. H. Lee I.G., Hamlen D.C., M. Williams A.D.C., Gascoigne W.S., Lee A.W.S., Ross Organist, South Tyler. Applause followed the investiture of each Officer; this showed the W.M. had made a good selection. Bro. Dodd P.M. proposed, and Bro. Jewell P.M. seconded, that the sum of £5 5s be placed on the list of Bro. Durtnell, who will act as Steward at the Anniversary Festival for the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. Bro. Duret was unanimously elected a member of the Charity Committee of the Province. Hearty good wishes were then tendered by the Visitors, and the Lodge was closed and adjourned until June. The brethren sat down to a very excellent dinner and dessert provided by Bro. Waller. The W.M. genially presided, and proposed in eloquent terms the Loyal and Masonic toasts, which were enthusiastically received. The W.M. in speaking to the toast of the Provincial Grand Master, said Viscount Holmesdale was one whom all respected and honoured; his good qualities and the interest he takes in the doings of the Order in his Province of Kent were fully recognised. The members of the Amherst Lodge had the honour of his presence at their last installation. On this occasion they had hoped the D.P.G.M. Bro. Eastes would have been present, but his engagements did not permit. However, he would couple with the toast the name of a Mason well known, and that was Bro. Durtnell P.M. and Treasurer P.G.S. of W. Bro. Durtnell in reply said he felt it an honour, as a member of the Amherst Lodge, to respond to the toast of the Provincial Grand Master Bro. Viscount Holmesdale and the rest of the Grand Officers. It was an honour to serve under so distinguished a chief. His (Bro. Durtnell's) tenure of office as Grand Superintendent of Works would soon be at an end; he thanked them for the hearty reception the toast had met with. Bro. Birch I.P.M. then rose; it was with great pleasure he did so, to propose the health of the W.M., who was one of his oldest friends. He had watched Bro. Craig's progress in Freemasonry; he had filled every office with credit, and as Master he would be sure to give them satisfaction. He (Bro. Birch) had had a successful year of office, but he trusted the next would excel it. The W.M. thanked the I.P.M. for his kind remarks; if in the past he had given satisfaction he hoped now to continue to do so. It would be his aim that the brethren should not have reason to regret the selection they had made. In speaking to the toast of the P.M.'s, the W.M. thanked Bro. Birch for introducing him into the Order. He had ever been an esteemed member of the Lodge; while as W.M. he had always given them satisfaction. The members all appreciated his zeal, and they felt he was one if known to be respected. He had now to present Brother Birch with a jewel; one they felt worthy his acceptance; of this he was assured, it never could be presented to one more worthy to receive it. The members of the Lodge hoped he might be spared for many years to wear it, in health and prosperity. The jewel is of very elegant design, and bears a suitable inscription, with the arms of Baron Amherst worked on it, in enamel. Bro. Birch in reply said it was pleasing to hear the remarks made by the W.M. He was intensely proud when he was placed in the chair, but on leaving it he felt he had a worthy successor. Judging by the jewel presented to him he knew he had gained their approbation; he should never forget their kindness. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Installing Master Bro. Duret P.M., whose rendering of the ceremony had rarely been excelled. It was a pleasure to listen to him. Not only in that capacity, however, was he a capable worker; in every ceremony he was equally perfect. To Bros. Graham P.M. 874, and Shaw W.M. 709, who had rendered special service that evening, the thanks of the Lodge were due. Bro. Duret P.M. in responding as the Installing Master said he had never felt greater pleasure than in installing the W.M. Bro. Craig had done everything in his power for the benefit of the Lodge, and he was sure he would continue to do so. Personally he felt it an honour to be elected a member of the Charity Committee of the Province; he was sure no Charities could cope with those of Freemasonry. The Institutions,—for the support of the Aged, for the Boys and for the Girls stood pre-eminent. He was pleased to see a member of the Lodge a Steward on the next occasion of the Girls' Festival. Bros. Graham and Shaw followed. Both thanked the W.M. for his kind remarks. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Visitors. There were 24 present, and the Lodge was proud to see them. He would couple with the toast the names of Bros. Collins, Andrews, Dunn, Ballard, Hale, Clarke, and Hodges. These brethren, in responding, paid just compliments to the excellent working of the Installing Master, and expressed satisfaction at the hospitality they had received. Bro. Birch I.P.M., with the permission of the W.M., had now great pleasure in proposing the toast of the P.M.'s. He had to thank them for much valuable assistance during his year of office; they were always ready and willing to render assistance, not only to the W.M., but to every member. Bro. E. J. Dodd responded to this toast, and then said he had the permission of the W.M. to propose the next toast. That was the Masonic Press. There were but two Masonic journals in this country—the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE and the Freemason. Both gave Masonic information from all parts of the world. He, and numerous friends read the articles and reports in the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE with great pleasure. The conductors gave faithful and unbiassed reports. They had Bro. Levy, one of its representatives, present. They were all pleased to see him, and he (Bro. Dodd) had great pleasure in associating his name with the toast. Bro. Levy in responding, thanked Bro. Dodd for his kind remarks, and for the eulogiums passed on the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE. It was a source of pleasure to listen to them. He knew the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE would continue in the same course;—he hoped to their satisfaction. The toasts of the Treasurer, Secretary, Wardens, and Officers were consecutively given and responses made. The Tyler's toast closed the proceedings, and the brethren separated, after spending a very agreeable and harmonious evening. Amongst those present as Visitors we may mention:—Bros. Kipps P.G.O. Kent, Ballard W.M. 1414, Cleave 874, Wing 1678, Graham W.M. 874, Airey 1678, Clifford W.M. 1826 and 1706, Hodges P.M. 1706, Hale P.M. 1414, Bolton 1314, Harvey W.M. 1314, Clarke P.M. 706, Vine P.M. 173, Buller, Church 317, Dunn, Emblin 147, Hoole 1475, Willson 861, Collens P.M. 766, H. M. Levy P.M. 188, &c. Bros. Hodges, Wing, Lloyd, and Katt contributed to the harmony.

LODGE OF JOPPA, No. 188.

THE regular meeting of this Lodge was held on the 4th instant, at the Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street. A. J. Martin W.M., J. W. Dewsnap S.W., L. Wall J.W., J. S. Lyon Treasurer, L. Lazarus P.M. Secretary, G. Lion S.D., I. Botibol J.D., L. Davis I.G.. A. G. Dodson P.M. D.C., P. E. Van Noorden Organist, Lanzberg Steward, Hart A.D.C.; P.M.'s H. M. Levy, L. M. Myers. Messrs. I. Israel and J. Van Praagh were balloted for and afterwards initiated into the Order by the W.M., the Officers being perfect in their work. Bros. Bulford, Jacobs and Thomas were passed to the second degree. Two propositions for initiation were handed in, and Lodge was closed until October; the brethren then adjourned to the Crown Room to banquet. At its conclusion the W.M. proposed the usual toasts. That of the Benevolent Fund attached to the Lodge was responded to by Bro. H. M. Levy, as senior Vice President. He stated the Fund of Benevolence had formerly £1400 in hand, but now, in consequence of many liberal grants, it stood at only £700. He hoped the brethren would by their donations increase it to its maximum, and that appeals for its help might be less frequent. In the absence of the I.P.M. (Bro. Bean), who was unfortunately indisposed, Bro. Levy proposed the health of the W.M. He had that evening ably presided over them, showing his capability of performing the ceremony of initiation and passing. His experience as P.M. of another influential Lodge had better qualified him to fill the position of W.M. in the Joppa. The W.M. thanked Bro. Levy for his remarks. He had been suffering from a severe illness, but had carried out his duties to the best of his ability. His greatest endeavour would be to cement good feeling in the Lodge. He had a pleasing duty to perform—to propose the toast of the Initiates. He had initiated many brethren in another Lodge, but never gentlemen of greater promise than those he had admitted that night. They had paid such attention to the ceremony he was sure they would be a credit to the Order, and be raised to high position in it. Bro. Israel, in responding, hoped to become one of whom the Order and the Lodge would be proud. Bro. Van Praagh followed, in an excellent speech. The toast of the Visitors was given, and Bros. Stunt and Rawlings responded. Bros. Dodson and Lazarus responded as Past Masters, and then the W.M. proposed the Officers of the Lodge. Bro. J. W. Dewsnap acknowledged the toast, and the Tyler gave the parting toast. The Visitors were Bros. Stunt 1320, Rawlins 166, and Weston 1929. The W.M. had secured the services of several talented artistes for the entertainment of the brethren, and under the direction of the Organist, Bro. P. E. Van Noorden, they ably fulfilled their part. The artistes were Miss Pauline Featherby, Miss Edith Desmond, and Bro. Weston. Dr. Armand Semple also favoured the brethren with some capital songs.

ROSSLYN LODGE, No. 1548.

A MEETING was held at the Saracen's Head Hotel, Dunmow, Essex, on Wednesday, 29th April. Present:—Bros. A. Rattray W.M., J. P. Lewin P.P.G.S. of W. P M. 276 S.W., W. Rowe J.W., W. de Vine Wade Secretary, H. Dehane acting S.D., E. F. Ferris J.D., G. Clapham acting D.C., J. I. Franklin I.G., Frederick Warne Tyler, H. Dehane I.P.M. P.P.G.S.D., G. D. Clapham P.M. P.P.G.R., C. Bint, R. Brazier, R. T. Scurr. Lodge was opened in due form with solemn prayer, and the minutes were read and confirmed. After the usual preliminaries Bros. Brazier and Scurr were raised to the third degree. A vote of condolence with the late Bro. Rogers was adopted, as also one of congratulation to Bro. Dr. Lyle on his marriage with the daughter of the founder of the Lodge, Bro. the Rev. F. Sheppard P.M. P.P.G.C. The Lodge was then closed. After dinner the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. Bro. Dehane in proposing the health of the W.M. congratulated him on his excellent working, and on the fact of his having good Officers. Bro. Rattray was pleased and gratified that his work was appreciated; he hoped to see those brethren of the Lodge who lived at a distance attend Instruction Lodge at the George Hotel, Bishops Stortford, as being central and convenient. The Tyler's toast concluded the proceedings. The W.M., Bros. Lewin and Brazier, by songs, added to the harmony of the evening.

EBORACUM LODGE, No. 1611.

ON Friday, the 1st inst., there was an emergency meeting of this Lodge at the Queen's Hotel, York, for the purpose of passing a formal resolution to remove the place of meeting of the Lodge to the Eboracum Masonic Hall, St. Saviourgate. Brother J. Blenkin I.P.M. was in the chair, and there was a good muster of the brethren for the last time in the house which has sheltered them since their formation in 1876. The formal business was soon completed, and the Lodge closed, and the whole party then adjourned to supper in the old Lodge-room. In proposing success to the Eboracum Lodge, Bro. T. B. Whytehead P.M. reviewed the history of the Lodge from its opening in that room by the Earl of Zetland nearly nine years previously; the work it had achieved, the losses it had sustained, and the prospects which were now before it. The toast was drunk with the greatest enthusiasm, and the utmost cordiality prevailed round the table. Bros. G. Simpson P.M., G. Balmford P.M., J. T. Seller P.M., and most of the Officers were of the party, but several were absent, through indisposition and other causes. Amongst the visitors was Bro. G. Kirby P.M. 236.

PRIORY LODGE OF ACTON, No. 1996.

THIS Lodge,—consecrated two years since, during which time its career has been one of marked success,—entered on its third year on Monday, the 4th inst., when Brother George Wright was installed as W.M. for the ensuing year. Brother C. E. Botley W.M. presided, and was supported by his Immediate Past Master Brother W. Roebuck P.G.S. and the Officers of the Lodge. The minutes of the last meeting having been confirmed, the business of the evening was proceeded with; this embraced the reception of the report of the Standing Committee; the raising of Bro A. Louis Sacré, C.E., of the Royal Sussex Lodge, No. 53, Bath, the passing of Bro. Russell, the installation of the Worshipful Master, the appointment and investiture of Officers, and the balloting of Bro. Sacré as a joining member. All of this business was carried out in due order. A special feature of the installation was the formal opening of the Board of Installed Masters, which was carried out in detail. The following brethren were appointed to office:—Bros. F. Botley S.W., Monson J.W., Earl Treasurer, Sugg P.M. Secretary, Cammell S.D., Turner J.D., Gunner P.M. I.G., Toynbee D.C., Harrison Tyler. Bro. Botley deserves great praise for the way in which he carried out his duties, his rendering of the installation ceremony being especially satisfactory, and it fully realised the expectations—and these were high—which had been previously entertained by brethren who knew him. Lodge was formally closed, and the brethren proceeded to the Lyric Hall, Ealing, to partake of banquet. Here Bro. Stephens had made every provision for the enjoyment of his patrons. The tables were bountifully supplied and were set out in artistic style. The menu was a most liberal one, and the service was in keeping with the surroundings. On the removal of the cloth, the usual toasts were done honour to, the Queen and the Craft, the M.W. the Grand Master H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers Present and Past, having each been proposed and heartily received, the I.P.M. submitted the toast of the W.M., and in a neat speech referred to Bro. Wright's Masonic career and ability. Bro. Wright in due course responded, and continued with the proposition of the toast of the Past Masters. He presented to his predecessor a handsome Past Master's jewel, accompanying the presentation with some well-chosen remarks. The jewel bore the following inscription: "Presented to Bro. Charles Edward Botley by the Brethren of the Priory Lodge of Acton, No. 1996, in appreciation of his efficient services as W.M. during the year 1884-1885." Speaking of Bro. Roebuck, the first Master, the W.M. said the Lodge was greatly indebted to him for much of the success which had attended it. His position in the Craft had no doubt influenced those in authority in favourably considering the petition for the Warrant, while his ability and experience had stood them in good stead in their earlier days. He trusted the Lodge might long enjoy the benefit of the services, advice, and co-operation of its present Past Masters. Bros. Botley and Roebuck each responded, the former thanking the Lodge for the jewel they had been pleased to bestow on him, and the latter expressing his satisfaction at the progress of the Lodge, and assuring the members that the interest he had taken in the Lodge would be sustained, if not strengthened, in the future. He referred to the support already given by the Lodge to the Masonic Charities, the Boys' School having had the benefit of the services of one of its members as Steward, while the Girls School would find a representative from among their members in the person of their present Worshipful Master. The interest Brother Roebuck takes in the Institutions is fully recognised, and his advocacy of their claim on this occasion will doubtless bear good fruit. The toast of the Visitors was given from the chair, the W.M. according to each a most cordial reception. The toast was acknowledged by Bros. P. A. Latham, Pickering, Andrews and others. Other toasts were given and full response was made. In due course the Tyler closed the proceedings. Amongst the Visitors were Bros. Jarvis P.M. 14 P.G.P., Houghton 2032, Andrews P M. 77, Michad 1593, Gardner S.W. 2012, Pickering I.P.M. 35 P.P.G.D.C. Hants, Ward W.M. 1612, Martin 1811, Latham W.M. 2022 P.P.G. Reg. Oxon, Blackman S.W. 23, Morgan I.P.M. 211, Sharp 2022, Fenu 1823. Some good singing interspersed the several toasts, the following programme being rendered during the evening:—The National Anthem, Dr. John Bull; "God bless the Prince of Wales," B. Richards, Bro. E. Monson; Song, "Thy Sentinel am I," Watson, Bro. C. E. Botley; Glee, "Since first I saw your face"; Song, "Leaving yet Loving," Marzials, Bro. F. Botley; Song, "The Flying Dutchman," J. Parry, Bro. J. J. Gunner; Song, "The Runaway Musketeer," Bro. W. Jarvis; Song, "Will-o'-the-Wisp," Wiess, Bro. E. Monson. Bro. Sugg presided at the pianoforte. We must give especial praise to

Bro. W. Jarvis, whose efforts to amuse elicited the warmest approval. We heartily congratulate the Priory Lodge of Acton on its prospects.

Confidence Lodge of Instruction, No. 193.—The usual meeting was held at Bro. Lashbrooke's, Hercules Tavern, Leadenhall-street, on Wednesday. The Lodge was opened at 7 o'clock, when there were present Bros. Saint W.M., Biddle S.W., Cubitt J.W., Gildersleve D., Egan I.G. P.M. Webb Preceptor, Pitt Secretary, Lashbrooke, Fernley, Simmonds, &c. After preliminaries, the ceremony of passing was rehearsed, Bro. Fernley candidate. Lodge was then opened in the third degree, and the ceremony of raising rehearsed, Bro. Simmonds candidate. Bro. Cubitt informed the Lodge that he had an invitation to attend Lodge Friendship, No. 100. at Great Yarmouth, under the presidency of Lord Suffield, K.C.B., R.W.P.G.M. Suffolk, for the 7th inst., when Prince Albert Victor, of Royal Alpha Lodge, No. 16, would be passed to the degree of Fellow Craft. Bro. Simmonds was elected a member, and Bro. Biddle was elected W.M. for ensuing week.

Royal Alfred Lodge of Instruction, No. 780.—On Friday, 1st instant, at the Star and Garter, Kew Bridge, Bros Arthur Turner W.M., Sperring S.W., Thomas J.W., Strong S.D., Cammell J.D., Norton I.G.; Visitor, Bro. Furze I.G. 2012; also Bros. C. E. Botley, Gillett, Monson, Bailey, F. Botley, Wing, Gardner, Maton, &c. The ceremonial work comprised the rehearsal of the ceremony of initiation, Bro. Bailey candidate. Bro. Monson answered the questions leading to the second degree and was entrusted. Lodge opened in the second degree, the ceremony was rehearsed, Bro. Furze answered the questions leading to the third degree and was entrusted. Bro. C. E. Botley gave the Lecture on the second Tracing Board. Bro. Furze I.G. Chiswick Lodge, No. 2012, was elected a member. Bro. Sperring was elected W.M. for next meeting. Lodge was closed and adjourned till Friday, 8th May, at 8 p.m.

Lyceum.—Among the theatrical fasti of the year, Saturday the 2nd May will assuredly hold a place. It was when London welcomed back its well-loved favourite, Henry Irving, from the artistic "Tom Tiddler's ground" across the Atlantic. A good many simple-minded persons were found awaiting the opening of the box-office, and it was amusing to see the smile of pitying courtesy with which Mr. Hurst assured them every seat had been booked weeks ago. Many visitors went early to see how Mr. Irving's plan of booked pit and gallery seats would work, remembering the wild confusion of the first night of booked places in the Gaiety amphitheatre for the Comedie Française. However, perfect order and good temper prevailed, and alike in pit and gallery there was no less sweet reasonableness than we may expect in the nirvana of the stalls. Mr. Irving's appearance was greeted with cheers unheard in the Lyceum since he bade farewell to his friends, and these so prolonged that it was minutes before the play could proceed. During the first act a most marked improvement in clearness of pronunciation and avoidance of that peculiar slurring method of running up to a point had evidently been gained by our actor, whose mannerisms have been a grief to his friends and much occasion for scorn to his detractors, but as the play proceeded, perhaps from the nervous excitement of the occasion, or the exhaustion of fatigue, those strange, almost Japanese, tricks of bearing grew painfully frequent. The gallant young prince, the "soldier-courtier, the glass of fashion, and the mould of form," had surely no representative in this strange creation, which, picturesque and refined as it is, so wants force and variety. Some happily-imagined business has been introduced, especially effective, in the grave-yard scene, where Hamlet falls on his mother's neck, exclaiming, "I loved Ophelia!" We cannot think it true or in good taste that in the play scene Hamlet should lean against Ophelia's knees and rest his head upon her lap, nor that he should crawl across the stage whilst the King trembles and starts up in guilty terror. Mr. Irving was, perhaps, at his best in his interview with the ghost; awe and love, horror and tenderness, were expressed as no other actor probably could express them. Miss Ellen Terry played Ophelia with her own unapproachable charm; the mad scene with greater power than of old, but never passing that delicate line which should divide the idealism of art from the realism of imitation. Of Mr. Wenman as the King it is best to say nothing. He has been doomed for a certain term to walk the night in a sort of King of Clubs' costume, and he struggles with indigestible blank verse. To us it seems he has more murders on his conscience than of the two Hamlets. Mr. Tyers makes a robust vyking of Horatio—enforcing the maxim that "silence is golden." Mrs. Pauncefort had a moment of inspiration in the closet scene, when she falls with agonized sobs into Hamlet's arms. The gravediggers, Mr. Johnstone and Mr. Gurney, are dull and ineffective, the grim cynicism which should mark the first, and which makes so weird an echo to the tragedy of the dominant motive, trickles away into the feeble meanderings of an old dotard. Of the second gravedigger our memory declines to furnish any report. Mr. Alexander showed considerable improvement of method as Laertes. Of the rest it is needless to speak. They constituted the dim gray background to which we have been accustomed in Mr. Irving's portraitures. Surely the gifted manager, who has done so much for art, and in days, too, when its friends did not sit in high places, will ere long awake to the fact that he is entrusting important parts without reference to the capacity of their exponents. In Mr. Mead he has a supremely good Ghost, dignified, pathetic, thoroughly grasping the demands of a difficult part; and in Mr. Howe the certainty of a thoroughly genial artist, always sincere, and merging himself in the personage he embodies. His clear elocution is a delight to the ear, as it is to the judgment. We, however, look forward to a second visit, and though the Court at Elsinore be as depressing as it may, we trust to find our Hamlet playing with his earlier force and fervour. We shall then willingly forget the misdeeds of Claudius and his companions.

Drury Lane.—The cause of the higher music drama, like that of its illegitimate sister of the Quatier Bréda Opera Bouffe, has of late seemed almost desperate. An opera season has usually been synonymous with insolvency for the unhappy impresario. We rejoice to find all this is changed under the spirited management of Messrs. Augustus Harris and Carl Rosa at Drury Lane. Last week we had to record the triumphant success of Goring Thomas's picturesque work "Nadeshda," which came to the musical world as a revelation amid the trivialities and pedantries of modern productions. The management last Saturday gave Mr. Thomas's admirers an opportunity of applauding his delightful work "Esmeralda," which, if wanting in the force and the sustained power of the Russian music drama, possesses the charm of exquisite vocal numbers, and an orchestration that proves its composer not only possesses true imagination, but is a master of musical science. The enthusiasm which greeted the work will doubtless induce the management to let the public hear it again this season. It has the advantage of a dramatic story, well interpreted by artists who for the most part assume not only the voice, but the actual personages assigned them, as though Richard Wagner had stage-managed the rehearsals. Miss Burns made a charming and spirited Esmeralda, Mr. MacGuckin a chivalrous Phœbus. He was in splendid voice and thoroughly entered into the realism of his work. Mr. Crotty was heard to the best advantage as the weird monster Quasimodo; his "What shall I do for my Queen?" had an agony of pathos in it, and it was with difficulty he withstood the demand for an encore. Herr Ludwig gained much applause as Frollo; this gentleman has rarely appeared to better advantage, while the music fits his voice and method. The chorus has been admirably drilled, and not only sang but acted with intelligence. The mise en scène was picturesque, and the costumes good; if not wholly correct, they had the greater merit artistically of picturesque harmony. All lovers of English music owe a debt of gratitude for the treat so liberally provided at our "national theatre."

Grand Master addressed them on the nature of the meeting, and congratulated the new Lodge on having started under such favourable auspices. The ceremony of constitution was then proceeded with, the proceedings being conducted throughout by the P.G.M. in a most impressive manner. The Rev. A. C. Hervey, as P.G. Chaplain delivered an able and impressing oration on the nature and design of the Institution of Freemasonry, which was, he said, at once the most ancient and the most progressive; the most local, by virtue of the association of every brother with his own Lodge, and, at the same time, the most cosmopolitan throughout the campass of the whole world. A Mason might everywhere find a brother, and receive that help and fraternal sympathy of which he stood in need. With regard to the ancient character of Freemasonry, institutions which were really Masonic, whatever their Egyptian or Greek or Phœnician names might be, existed more than 3000 years ago. A writer of authority stated that without entertaining any extravagant opinions respecting the antiquity of the Order, it must be universally acknowledged that there is a striking resemblance between the Institution of Freemasonry and the Dionysian Mysteries, as well as between the more recent institutions of the Pythagorean. The Dionysians of Asia Minor, 1500 years B.C., possessed the exclusive right of building all temples and other stately edifices. They had attained considerable reputation, and were known to each other throughout all Asia, and as far as India, by appropriate signs; they were, moreover, formed into Lodges, and it was their regular practice to assist and relieve their poorer brethren. Flourishing as they did in the immediate neighbourhood of Judea, it was not at all unlikely that they would labour with the Jewish nations in the construction of a temple at Jerusalem. As to the nature and design of Freemasonry, they were taught that it was a perfect system of morality. It was more than this—it was a society of men bound together for the purpose of carrying out that system of morality, and for practising charity in its widest sense. Their signs and symbols were not frivolous and vain, but were calculated to teach important lessons to the thoughtful mind. They reminded them of their morality, and taught them how to conduct themselves. It was objected by some against Masonry that it was a secret society. But they did not keep their object secret; they only concealed their forms and ceremonies. The efforts of the society were patent to every man in the existence of their noble institutions for the relief of the aged and the education of the young. He was sure that that occasion must be a source of gratification to the P.G.M., as showing that the noble principles of their Order were so spreading themselves, and the W.M. and Officers of the St. Clair Lodge must be gratified at the large attendance on that occasion, but while it was a source of gratification it was also one of anxiety. Under certain conditions Masonry refused no man, but he feared many crowded into it under the belief that it partook of the nature of a benefit society, and it was therefore their duty to use caution in the selection of members. At the conclusion of the ceremony of constitution the P.G.M. installed Captain St. Clair as Master of the new Lodge and the Officers were appointed for the following year, as under:—Bros. W. Dart acting I.P.M., J. Brickwood S.W., C. V. Birch J.W., H. Kimber Treasurer, G. P. Arnold Secretary, Woodrow S.D., Wickens J.D., Jones Organist, Otway C. Cox I.G., Gordon Miller D.C., Gurden and Donnellan Stewards, Excell Tyler. A vote of thanks was accorded to the Prov. Grand Master for his kindness in attending, and for the able manner in which he conducted the ceremony, and the Lodge was closed in due form. The musical portions of the ceremony were ably conducted by Bro. G. Sylvester. The brethren subsequently adjourned to the dining room of the club, and sat down to a banquet. Captain St. Clair presided, supported by Bro. LeFeuvre, Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and a large number of brethren from different parts of the Province. The P.G.M. was compelled to leave immediately after the Lodge business was over, to keep an important engagement in London.

"Freemasonry from the Great Pyramid of Ancient Times. Historically Illustrated and Compiled from Researches, Ancient and Modern, Biblical, Astronomical, Mathematical, Geometrical, and Geographical. The whole forming a concise sequence, coequal, parallel and working smoothly in the one groove, side by side, without so much as a damaged link in the chain of Masonic rite, and in surprising unison with our Fifteen Lectures. To which is added the Practical Working, Construction, and Probable Geometrical Draft or Plan of the Pyramid: showing the parts, by illustrations, capable and intended to be removed without disfigurement or abrasion, and disclosing other Chambers and Hidden Mysteries now obscured from our view." Printed for Bro. Thos. Holland P.M. 1224 and 172, Sec. 1891 and P.P.G.D.C. Suffolk, and published by the Author, 2 Charles-street, Rutland Gate, London, S.W. 1885.

THIS is an extraordinary book. It abounds in startling assertions and speculations. Unfortunately, it is marred by many crudities of style, is very uneven in diction, as if it were the production of more than one mind. The author says he is indebted to other writers for much that appears in his work, and it may happen that he has unconsciously used their language instead of his own in some instances. Bro. Holland is not altogether unmindful of his position. In his preface he asks that he "may be criticised with gentleness and forbearance," and as he thus restrains, if he does not quite disarm, criticism, it will be enough to say that the work would be benefited by a careful revision by some skilful hand. Not only would unity of style have been secured, but the educated taste of those most likely to understand and appreciate the writer's views would have been satisfied. Brother Holland knows more of the science of building than he does of bookmaking. He is so earnest however, so full of faith, and has spent so much labour upon his work, that to deny him a hearing would be to shatter one of the most cherished hopes of his life. Some of his assumptions will be considered Quixotic, while many of them partake more of the character of a wish than of a conviction, yet there is something in his faith and simplicity that cannot be put aside with contempt. His theory is built up step by step. Bro. Holland is historian, philosopher, and prophet, and in his three-fold character it would be strange if he did not offer something worthy of contemplation. His great idea is to show a connection between the Scriptures and Freemasonry, and he takes the great Pyramid of Gizeh for his object lesson. This huge structure, one of thirty-eight, stands alone in its majesty and purpose. The other buildings, having the same outlines, have no interest for Bro. Holland. It is the monarch of Gizeh, that monument of science and labour, resting on and covering something like thirteen acres of a levelled rocky platform, that contains the grand lessons of life. The outward form and positions, the inward recesses and measurements, all teach universal truths in mathematics and astronomy specifically, and in all the sciences generally. The building was erected over four thousands years ago by Shem, the eldest son of Noah, and his wise followers. Bro. Holland says there was only one life, that of Methuseleh, between Shem and Adam, and that he had shaken hands with Methuseleh, who had shaken hands with Adam. Shem was the great-great grandfather of Abraham, whom he survived. Noah's Ark was built according to Divine instructions, and as its measurements find an exact illustration of the same principles in the great Pyramid, it is argued that the latter was erected under supreme guidance. Moreover, the structure shows such manifest signs of science, not possible to the human mind in that age, and not even known now, that the great Pyramid looks more like the work of the T.G.A.O.T.U. than of human hands. There were secrets of building, of science and of prophecy, which were made known to Shem. Some of those secrets have been revealed by measurement of the great Pyramid, and others are still hidden, awaiting the time when prophesy shall be further fulfilled. The knowledge of the secrets was entrusted to what Bro. Holland would call the fathers of the Craft, and they have been handed down from one generation to another; that their complete fulfilment is within the grasp of the time of the living, and that it will be accomplished by the chosen of God, the Freemasons, who are the inheritors of Shem, the trusted descendants of the Israelites.

We have already referred to the magnitude of the Great Pyramid, taking into account the ground it covers; but a few other facts will best illustrate its stupendous proportions and the lessons its position and character disclose. It is four hundred and eighty-six feet high, and at one time its four sides presented polished surfaces, which have been removed by the destroying hands of men. It is estimated to contain 5,000,000 tons of masonry, and to take seven hours to climb up to the top from the outside. Pliny and Diodorus say that 360,000 men were engaged for twenty years in building it. The base is "a true square, perfectly oriented, that is set due N.E., S.W., or parallel with the equatorial line." This result has never been accomplished since "without a variation of some points." We have already referred to the rocky platform on which the Great Pyramid stands. Bro. Holland says that the rock has been perfectly hewn, and that the surface has been levelled to the earth's curvature of eight inches to the mile—a wonderful fact—"for the vast weight and surface it covers gravitates to the earth's centre keeping it from convulsive damage as time rolls on." It is said to be built on the centre of the land surface of the whole earth, central to clime, where rust does not come nor moss grow, where frost destroys not, nor earthquakes overthrow. The slope from either of the corners of the Pyramid to the apex is the same as the slope of the earth from the pole to the equinox. The sun twice a year is vertical to its base, and shines on all four sides at the same time. Taking the slope already referred to, the true angle of the sun's altitude is obtained. Multiply the height of the Pyramid by ten to the ninth power, then by the feet to a mile, and the result would be the distance from the earth to the sun. The measurements of the Pyramid correspond to British inches, and to no other known standard in the world. Bro. Holland lays great stress upon this fact, for he says it contains other theories, to which he afterwards refers. He says, "the squaring of the circle" was practically illustrated at the building of the Great Pyramid, and that its proportions and cube measures are decimally the same as in Noah's Ark, the Tabernacle in the Wilderness, the Ark of the Covenant, King Solomon's Temple, and the stone chest within the Pyramid. Mr. John Taylor, quoted by the author, believes that the "Great Pyramid is the one necessarily material centre from which those practical things, weights and measures (in a primeval age, somewhere between the time of Noah and Abraham, take whatever chronology you will), were divinely distributed to certain peoples and tongues, and carried with the utmost care from land to land, for special purposes of some grand future manifestation which is yet to make its appearance on the stage of human history." As there are no signs, carvings, engravings, or delineations of any kind, either outside or inside of the great Pyramid, Brother Holland concludes that "a school or college was formed to instruct the uninitiated." That a brotherhood existed before the building of the Temple is proved, he says, by 1 Kings xx. 28-34, and that the part played in the economy of human events that occurred shortly after the flood has been handed down to us through Freemasonry. The lectures treat even from the Creation to Exodus, to the building of King Solomon's Temple, and to the Christian dispensation. But all this knowledge is supplemented by the discoveries in the Great Pyramid, which has been passed by in extolling the Temple. The former eclipses the latter, however, in interest, in that it is the first stone-masonry building on record, and shows in its construction mathematical precision and exquisite workmanship. It also tells a sublime story, and although the volume of Sacred Law is the foundation of Freemasonry, its prophets proclaimed the fact that the Great Pyramid is a sign and a witness in the midst of the land of Egypt.

We have seen to some extent to what the Great Pyramid bears witness. Bro. Holland says there are chambers within it, still to be revealed, in which may be found the Ark of the Covenant and the Tabernacle, which Jeremiah took with him into Egypt, whose whereabouts is at present a secret. We shall not follow the author through the history of the tribes of Israel and the speculations connected with their settlements. It will be sufficient if we take up the story of Jeremiah. It is a remarkable one, according to the narrative of Brother Holland. Nothing is absolutely told in Scripture of the death of Jeremiah, or of what became of the Ark of the Covenant and the Tabernacle. The author's theory is, that Jeremiah's mission was not only "to root out and to pull down, and to destroy and throw down," but also "to build and to plant." The first part of the mission had been accomplished, the second part then awaited fulfilment. The remnant of the Jews, together with the King's daughters, after the conquest of Jerusalem, contrary to the advice of Jeremiah, went into Egypt. Jeremiah and his scribe Baruch went with them. They had possession of "all the secret signs and hieroglyphics of their forefathers, also the Ark of the Covenant, and things therein contained, the pot of manna, Moses and Aaron's rod, the Urim and Thummim, the breastplate of the High Priest, the title deeds of the field of Anathoth, with the scroll and other evidences to be retained, and passed on." Taking with him Tea Tephi, one of Zedekiah's daughters, and Barnch, Jeremiah went to the north of Ireland. He is supposed to have either concealed the above articles in the Great Pyramid—a part of them at least, or to have taken them, or a part of them, with him, together with the earthen vessel, which Scripture says was to be sealed up and its contents to be opened in the latter days; "also the two tables of the law, the Stone of Destiny, or Lia Phail (the stone now in Westminster Abbey, in the Coronation Chair), on which mysterious stone all our kings and queens have been crowned, from Tea Tephi to Queen Victoria. This stone is said to be the same on which Jacob pillowed his head when he saw the vision of the ladder. Bro. Holland contends that the inhabitants of the North of Ireland were Israelitish settlers of the tribe of Dan, that Eochaid married the young princess, changed the name of his capital to Tara, and founded a "Mur Ollamham," or "school of the prophets." It is just possible that the sacred relics and emblems of antiquity previously referred to were deposited in the vaulted chamber said to have been constructed within the walls of Tara for that purpose. "When," says Bro. Holland, "we think of Jeremiah's disappearance, with his commission unfulfilled, of the independent grounds for believing that there was a colony from Israel in the north of Ireland, and of the events recorded as immediately following the arrival of the mysterious visitors, can we fail to see that Simon Brug and Baruch are the same; that the prophet is Jeremiah, and that Tea Tephi is one of the daughters of Zedekiah, and so a branch of the house of David? One thing is certain, that the line of sovereigns descended from Eochaid and Tephi has continued to the present day." It should be stated that Bro. Holland claims the British people as the lost Ten Tribes; if that is so, it is right that we should have a descendant of the house of David to rule over us. He says that all the Jews are Israelites, but all Israelites are not Jews; and in proof of his contention as to the British people he refers to the dream of Nebuchadnezzar, which was interpreted by Daniel. The king saw a figure with a head of gold (the Babylonians), the breast and arms of silver (Medes and Persians), belly and thighs of brass (Grecians), legs and feet of iron and part iron and clay (Roman Empire). There was a stone, which grew into a mountain, and is still growing, representing a fifth kingdom, "which shall never be destroyed, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever." "This fifth kingdom," says Bro. Holland, "is Great Britain," and he adds "that we have blindly acknowledged ourselves the Khasdim, or Freemasons, conducting the lost Ten Tribes throughout their career to the present day. This supremacy is typified and proved by our noble works, by our emblematical signs, by our secret arts and hidden mysteries; by our language, by our traditions, by our symbologies, by our allegories, by our moral and Biblical teaching, by our phraseologies in our ritual and lectures, our illustrations of the patriarchal age, by the loss of our genuine secrets, by the untimely death of our Master Hiram Abiff, of the tribe of Dan, by the illustration of Jacob's ladder, and his taking a stone for a pillow, and afterwards anointing and setting it up as a pillar of witness, and the stone being now in Westminster Abbey."

Having settled that the British nation represents the lost Ten Tribes, and that the Freemasons are the chosen body to carry out prophecy unfulfilled, it remains to see where the relics of antiquity once in possession of Jeremiah are deposited, and when the time will arrive when the Jews shall be once again and for ever established at Jerusalem. Bro. Holland is quite certain that there are chambers still to be discovered in the Great Pyramid, but what they contain is beyond even his imagination to tell. He advocates that the hill of Tara should be excavated, and either there or in the Pyramid will be discovered all the lost treasures. This is a work he enjoins upon Freemasons. As to time, he considers that the end is approaching—not of the end of the world—but when prophecy shall be fulfilled, and when the Jews shall be restored.

We have passed over many details, but we have shown pretty fully what the work is. It will be regarded with amusement by some, others will ridicule it, a few may see in it much that is worth treasuring. As a study the subject is not without attraction and merit. The philosophical history of Freemasonry is one vast field of speculation, and no theory that has hitherto been launched has met with entire acceptance. The reasonableness of Bro. Holland's theory must be judged on its merits. There is a great deal in it that seems wild and chimerical, much that is sound and true. The sifting of the wheat from the chaff we must leave to our readers, promising them that the labour will not be altogether without pleasure and profit.

Ayling, in returning thanks, remarked this was the first time the Fifteen Sections had been worked in this Lodge of Instruction, which had not yet completed its first year. This was the first time he had undertaken the duties of W.M. on such an occasion. He could but express his gratification at the admirable manner in which the brethren, one and all, had assisted him; he hoped they would have many such enjoyable evenings. He then proposed, and Bro. Gardner seconded, a proposition that a hearty vote of thanks be recorded to each of the brethren who had assisted in working the sections. This was carried. Bros. Farze, Tilbury and Brown were appointed to audit the accounts for the past year. Hearty good wishes were now given and Lodge was closed. A ballot will be taken on the third Saturday in May by the brethren who have attended the requisite number of times. This will be the second five guineas given to the Charities from the funds during the Lodge's existence. This result is due to the untiring energy of the worthy Treasurer.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

WHAT are termed "weeks" are well known in the cricket and racing world, and who knows but that at some time in the near future we may have a "Masonic "week" or two. The nearest approach to this condition of things is the arrangement made at this time of the year in connection with the oldest of our triple Charities—the Girls' School. A field day generally precedes the annual Festival, and the usual course was followed on Saturday last. It is now a well-established custom that the Stewards of the Institution shall have a special visiting day, when prizes, most generously subscribed by brethren and friends, shall be awarded to the successful students. The opportunity is seized to secure the attendance of some notable lady to present the prizes. Last year the Baroness Burdett-Coutts officiated, and this year Miss Fowler, daughter of Bro. R. N. Fowler, M.P., and Lady Mayoress, was the dispensing patron. Although the Lady Mayoress had another engagement, possessing special claims upon her, she had put it aside to keep her promise to the Institution. As will be seen the list of prizes is a long one, but the ceremony of presenting them was made additionally interesting by the remarks occasionally introduced by the lady president. Her pleasing, affable manner, was welcome to the assembled girls, and gave a charm to what some might call monotonous proceedings. The gathering took place in the large hall of the Institution, but it was altogether inadequate to hold all who sought to be present. So far as we could observe, the arrangements of the Stewards were complete and effective, but unfortunately the invitations exceeded by far the capacity of the building. The result was inconvenient crowding and excessive heat inside; there was disappointment and a chilly atmosphere without. It is very difficult to lay down a hard and fast rule to meet the requirements of Festivals, but we are well within the bounds of reason and of common sense when we say that boys and girls might very well be left at home on such occasions. Four or five in one group were rather too many under the circumstances, and their presence did not add to the usefulness or dignity of the gathering, while it was the cause of excluding many, who judging from their age and appearance might be supposed to take a warm interest in the School. As it happened, the wind offered an icy welcome, otherwise the pleasant grounds would have afforded an agreeable retreat for the disappointed visitors. As it was, the time for refreshments was welcomed the more eagerly because it brought the much-needed warmth in the shape of tea and coffee. It would be very easy to prevent overcrowding, but we confess that were we a Steward we should be so proud of the Institution as to wish all our friends and acquaintances to be present when it put on its holiday garb and exhibited its strength and beauty. The proceedings, it is fair to state, were carried out very successfully, and those who were fortunate enough to get a seat within the Hall were gratified with a sight that was both pleasing and satisfactory. The walls were decorated with pictures, the productions of the skilled and trained hands of the pupils, while the children themselves, clothed in blue and white, were disposed in such a manner as to present a very striking tableau. They looked the picture of health and contentment, and if any one doubted the liveliness, of at least the younger girls, should have witnessed their gambols on the green to the left of the refreshment tent. The presence of strangers seemed in no way to restrain their innocent enjoyment, and we were doubly glad to witness their displays of fun and agility, for it showed on the one hand that the children were well cared for and happy, and it helped to amuse those who could not get admission into the hall where the prizes were being distributed. We cannot afford space to give a list of all those who were present, and to make a selection of names would be an invidious task we are not prepared to enter upon. When the prizes had been presented Bro. Sir John Monckton proposed a vote of thanks to the Lady Mayoress, and in the course of his remarks held out encouragement to the unsuccessful scholars who at any rate had the pleasures of hope to console them. The following is the official programme :—

Criticism on such occasions as this is not only unnecessary but undesirable, and the only remark we have to make is that the pianoforte exhibitions were rather overdone. As will be seen by the above list the prizes were varied and numerous. The subjects taught in the School range from the simple domestic offices to refined culture. Practical lessons of life are taught in the work-room, and in the kitchen—in needlework and cookery. The graces of life are inculcated by instruction in music and elocution, while the intellect is cultivated by a liberal English education and study of the French tongue. The health of the pupils is secured as far as it is possible for fresh air, cleanliness, and picturesque surroundings to secure it, and physical development is aided by calisthenics and swimming, in addition to the usual games girls delight in. We were particularly pleased with the swimming bath, and were somewhat disappointed that no prize was down on the programme for success in the healthful and delightful accomplishment of swimming. Perhaps on another occasion we may have the pleasure of recording the natatory doings of the girls, and of seeing prizes awarded for success in an art that is as useful as it is graceful. Notwithstanding the coldness of the outside air, the company remained, after partaking of refreshment, to witness the display of calisthenic exercises and marching, and at the close joined in the National Anthem. The whole of the proceedings were well carried out. There was no hurry or confusion, and we can only hope that among the many who were present a goodly number will be found as additional patrons of an Institution admirably managed and well adapted to meet the requirements and necessities of the inmates.

Bro. J. Tickle P.P.G.R. Middlesex, P.M. 1196, 1702, P.Z. 1196, &c.; has been unanimously elected first principal of the Eastern Star Chapter, No. 95, which meets at the Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-street, E.C. He will be duly installed on the 5th day of June next.

Obituary.

BRO. SIR WATKIN WILLIAMS-WYNN, BART., M.P.

It is always a mournful duty to chronicle the death of a brother, but it is rendered doubly mournful when that brother held a welcome and abiding place in the hearts of all who knew him. The late Sir Watkin Williams-Wynn was the fourth baronet of that name, and the sixth of the boronetcy created under the name of Williams. The family, according to Sir Bernard Burke, "deduces descent from their immediate ancestor, the Lord of Anglesey, youngest son of Owen Gwynedd, Prince of North Wales, and from Anarawd, King of North Wales, eldest son of Rhodri Mawr, King of Wales. This last monarch, the descendant of a long line of regal ancestors, succeeded to the crown of Powys, and by inheritance and marriage acquired the kingdoms of North and South Wales. He was slain A.D. 876." Such a brilliant pedigree harmonised well with the vast estates possessed by the deceased baronet, and although he and his father refused—the one a peerage and the other an earldom—both were recognised by royalty and were regarded as being worthy to be called kings and princes. The third baronet, Sir Watkin's father, entertained Geo. IV. when Prince of Wales at Wynnstay. It is recorded that he welcomed his royal guest somewhat after the following manner: "How proud he felt to receive the Prince of Wales in his own Principality." To which His Royal Highness replied: "Ah, Sir Watkin, I know I am Prince of Wales, but you are a Prince in Wales." In 1832 the Queen (then Princess Victoria) was a guest at Wynnstay. Our deceased brother has been called the King of North Wales, and truly he was a king to his people. He was born in London in May 1820, and was therefore nearly sixty-five years of age. He died on Saturday last, and was buried yesterday at Llangedwyn, where the remains of his second and youngest daughter were interred some two years ago. Sir Watkin was educated at Westminster and Christ Church, Oxford, and succeeded to the title and estates in 1840. He was gazetted a Lieutenant in the First Life Guards in 1842, but he soon left the Army and devoted his attention to hunting. As a Master of Fox Hounds he had no superior; he was a devoted sportsman, and although a member of the Jockey Club, he took little practical interest in horse-racing. He encouraged the Chester meeting, however, and kept open house on each recurring event for his friends, at Wynnstay, most of whom preceded him to the grave. Sir Watkin, in 1852, married his cousin Marie Emily, youngest daughter of the Right Hon. Henry Watkin Williams Wynn, G.C.H., K.C.B., Her Majesty's Minister at the Court of Denmark. They had issue two daughters, one, Marie Nesta, as we have already stated, died two years ago; the other, the eldest daughter, was married to her cousin, Mr. Herbert Lloyd Watkin Williams Wynn. She was named Louise Alexandra, and the Queen of Denmark and our own Princess of Wales were her godmothers. Her husband now takes the title and the property—a goodly inheritance indeed. There is the shooting seat at Glan-y-Llyn, near to the Bala lake and mountains, where Tennyson wrote his "Idylls of the King," and where it is fair to suppose he gained much of his inspiration. Then there is the estate at Llangedwyn, and the princely domain of Wynnstay. The grounds at the latter place are eight miles in circumference, and there is a carriage drive of nearly a mile in length, underneath rows of stately oaks and elms. One oak is especially named "Sir John Wynn," and measures 36 feet in circumference. The whole domain is grand and beautiful, passing description. The old mansion was burned down in 1858, and the present building was erected somewhat later.

Our deceased brother was initiated in the Province of Cheshire, and in 1851 was installed W.M. of the Cestrian Lodge, on which occasion he invited the brethren to a banquet at Wynnstay. In 1852 he was appointed P.G.M. for North Wales and Shropshire, a position he held up to his death. The ceremony of installation was performed at Shrewsbury, by the late Lord Combermere, the hero of Bhurtpore, who was then Provincial Grand Master of Cheshire, and Sir Watkin was presented by Colonel Burlton, C.B., District Grand Master of Bengal. The late Lord Dungannon was also present. The Rev. E. H. Dymock, of Penley, was appointed by Sir Watkin as his Deputy, in which capacity he acted until 1874, when he was succeeded by the late Lord Harlech. The late

W. Bulkeley Hughes followed Lord Harlech, to be in turn succeeded, in November 1882, by Sir O. Wakeman, Bart., as Deputy Provincial Grand Master. Of all the Officers appointed when Sir Watkin was installed, the only survivor is Brother J. P. White, of Shrewsbury, who has continued to act as Provincial Grand Treasurer. The late Brother Charles Wigan was at the same time appointed Provincial Grand Secretary. Brother W. H. Spaull succeeded him. There were but four Lodges in the Province when Sir Watkin was installed, now there are twenty-eight, and he was present at the consecration of twenty-three of them. In addition to this Masonic work, the deceased laid the corner-stone of Trinity Church, Llandudno, in 1864, opened the Masonic Hall in the same town in 1867, and laid the foundation stone of the Oswestry Cottage Hospital in 1869. When he had completed the twenty-fifth year of his office as Provincial Grand Master, a subscription was raised for the foundation of a Sir Watkin Presentation at the Masonic School for Boys. In 1853 Sir Watkin took the Royal Arch degree, and in 1859 he was appointed "Most Excellent Superintendent of the Province," in which capacity he presided over the Grand Chapters of Shropshire and North Wales. His loss will be felt in the Province and by the poor especially. He was a good man, and the memory of his deeds will be his best monument. We have already seen that he did not covet titles, and the following extract from an address Sir Watkin made to his constituents the electors of Denbighshire in 1868, whom he represented in the House of Commons for forty-four years, best indicate his views on the matter. He said, "It is a position which for more than a century and a half has been the most prized distinction of my family; it was preferred by my great grandfather to an earldom, by my father to an earldom, and by myself to a peerage." The highest honour he coveted was the goodwill and love of his neighbours. He gained both to a remarkable degree.

THE THEATRES.

Drury Lane.—Carl Rosa has scored an undoubted success with his latest production, Ambrose Thomas's "Manon." On each occasion the theatre has been crowded from floor to ceiling in honour of the French composer's work. To those who go to the opera expecting to bring away airs that will haunt them for days afterwards, the new work may produce disappointment; it is essentially tuneful, but in no way so in the Verdi sense. It is of the modern school of music drama—not the lyrical. For this school a more adequate libretto is demanded than for its predecessor, and "Manon" somewhat suffers from the baldness of the dialogue. The very force and fervour of the artiste uttering it accentuates its shortcomings. To enjoy it we should let the music speak only in the accents the composer gives, and it is then full of tenderness, gaiety, passion or despair, as the story is developed by him. Madame Marie Roze is at her best as Manon; full of gaiety and simplicity at the opening, changing to the vanity of the insatiate courtezan, and then awaking to a late remorse, she fixes the agony of the last scenes with tragic intensity. Her brilliant voice renders the music with the fluency and grace of a bird. Mr. Maas's gifts suit the requirements of de Grieux, though perhaps this talented artist looks somewhat too cherubic for a sentimental young Frenchman. Mr. Ludwig is excellent as Lescat, singing and acting with equal spirit. The scenery is good, especially beautiful the opening view of the City of Amiens, from an inn yard, with a diligence of the period. The costumes are accurate and handsome, and with Mr. Harris to direct the mise en scene we may be sure no pains or expense is spared to make the work an artistic success. We regret Mons. Massenet has left some of the dialogue to be spoken, though happily the orchestral accompaniment is a consolation, but this arrangement always has a jarring effect, and to our mind militates against the feeling of homogeneity.

Lyceum.—From the first hour that Mr. Irving, with his keen, sad eyes, looked at London across the footlights, his Shylock has been acknowledged one of his chief triumphs. Ideal in its tragic intensity, and yet touching reality; in its many toned presentments of human weakness, rage, and despair, some critics say this is not Shakespeare's Jew, with its embodiment of centuries of the vileness bred of scorn; for whom mercy itself fitly takes the form of new insult. With Mr. Irving the very relentlessness of Shylock seems to be but the wild justice of tardy vengeance for the sufferings of the race of Israel. The Pharisaical Antonio, the frivolous Gratiano, the reckless dandy Bassanio, and the scampish adventurer Lorenzo—how they shrink and dwindle in presence of this heir of contumely and injustice. Of the present rendering we would say, "custom hath not staled its infinite variety," whilst in the passages of greatest passion he no longer yields to uncontrolled rage; thus his grief gains doubly in pathos and dignity. That difficult point of "the wilderness of monkeys" was given with such heart-broken misery, the sob of the outraged father seemed echoed by every breast in the house. The Portia of Miss Ellen Terry has its own unapproachable charm, with something of more chastened dignity in her gay sprightliness than of old. The sweetest, the brightest creature; Shakespeare himself could have dreamed of no more exquisite interpreter of the Lady of Belmont. For the first act the scene has been changed from the actual Piazzo di San Marco to a street on the right, showing the San Giorgio over the water. A much greater air of reality is gained by the change, for the great Piazzo, with only half-a-dozen occupants, would not suggest Venice at midday in the cinque cento. Mr. Alexander plays with refinement and sincerity, especially in the sentimental passages. The Doge of Mr. Howe is of course stately and impressive. Miss Emery is a tender and graceful Norissa, making us almost forget her heartlessness; while Miss Payne is a bright and pleasant Jessica. The democracy of the pit demands the restoration of the old privilege of the crush at the door. Mr. Irving yields, and will find himself the richer by the salaries of the sixteen employés the new arrangement had called into requisition. If a humble appeal from us to Mr. Ball would induce him to restrain the vigour of his band it would be a boon to those who sit out the entractes.

Opera Comique.—The merits of "The Guv'nor" have so often been discussed, and the play criticised on so many occasions, that every one is by this time familiar with its details; we have therefore nothing to do but to criticise the actors and actresses engaged on its revival under the management of Mr. David James at the Opera Comique. Mr. James, as Old Macclesfield, portrays the character of the deaf boat-builder with his well-known vigour and humour, causing roars of laughter by his quaint manners and funny speeches. Mr. Irish as Mr. Butterscotch, and Mr. Gardiner in the part of his son Freddy, give clever and natural renderings of their respective characters, while the ladies' parts are well sustained. Miss Cicely Richards as Mrs. Butterscotch, Miss Lucy Buckstone as Carrie, the boat-builder's pretty daughter; Miss Erskine as Mrs. Macclesfield, and Miss Forsyth as Kate Butterscotch. "The Guv'nor" is followed by a farce called "Chiselling"; this is a humorous little sketch, in which the interest is sustained to the end.

Surrey.—"The Woman of the People," made famous by that delightful actress Mlle. Beatrice, has been produced at the Surrey, chiefly, we suppose, to offer Miss MacNeill the opportunity for appearing in the leading part. For so young an actress the risk was great, but Mr. Conquest's faith in the emotional power of this painstaking young lady has proved well founded. In the scene where Marie, agonised by the necessities of her ailing child, appeals to the better feelings of her ne'er-do-well husband, she rose to the intensity of the situation, and held her robust, nut-cracking audience in hushed expectancy. We are assured this lady will rise to high position as an exponent of her art if she continues the earnest student she now proves herself. Mr. George Conquest, who, if fame were less capricious, should stand in the foremost rank in his profession, is perfect as the workman who objects to work, though the character of Rémy gives no opportunity for his weird powers. Mr. Gurney, whose name will doubtless soon become better known, plays with careful truth to nature as the weak-minded husband, Bertrand. The way he depicted the gradual decline in position attributable to self-indulgence, and his sudden awakening to remorse was ably conceived. We, however, think he missed a fine effect when, finding his wife prostrate in the snow, he calls her by name before lifting her from the ground. The situation would gain greatly if the recognition came after he had seen her face. The piece throughout is carefully staged, and we fully endorse a remark made to us that if the same effects were produced at a West End house all London would go to see the snow scene.

Olympic.—Sir Randal Roberts has courageously taken "A Dangerous Game" to the Olympic Theatre. The play made a marked success in the North, due to the brilliant and facile style of the baronet actor, and scarcely less to Mr. Clynds, whose presentment of the British tar brings back pleasant memories of Davenport at the Haymarket, when a pit was there to weep and applaud.

FREEMASONRY IN HAMPSHIRE.

THE following details as to the progress of Freemasonry may prove of interest. In the Province of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight there are 79 Lodges, of which 36 are in the Isle of Wight. Portsmouth heads the list with 12, Southampton has 5, Aldershot 3, and Gosport, Winchester, Havant and Ryde, two each; and Alton, Andover, Basingstoke, Bournemouth, Fareham, Lymington, Petersfield, Ringwood, Shirley, Woolston, Cowes, Newport, Sandown, Shanklin, and Ventnor, one each. There are 20 Chapters, 18 in Hampshire, and two in the Isle of Wight, Portsmouth having 5, Southampton 4, Aldershot 2, Basingstoke, Fareham, Gosport, Havant, Lymington, Winchester, Woolston, Newport, and Ryde, one each.

—Portsmouth Times.

The following dinners were held at the Freemasons' Tavern during the week ending Saturday, 16th May:—

Monday—Leigh Lodge, St. George and Cornerstone Lodge. Tuesday—Italian Ball. Wednesday—Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, New England Company, Lodge of Fidelity. Thursday—Lodge of Regularity, University of London Lodge. Friday—University Lodge.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are admirably adapted for the cure of diseases incidental to females. Many from delicacy bear in secret, for women are subjected to complaints which require special remedies, and it is now an indisputable fact that there is none so suitable for such complaints as Holloway's Pills. They are invaluable to females of all ages, young or old, married or single. They purify the blood, regulate the secretions, correct all suspended or altered functions, clear the complexion, and brighten the countenance. The first approach of disordered action should be met with appropriate doses of these Pills; whilst taking them no restrictions need be placed on the patient. They contain nothing which can possibly prove injurious to the system. They act by purifying the blood and regulating every organ.

The usual toasts followed, and high encomiums were passed by the Visitors; all thanking the W.M. for the great treat afforded them in the Lodge, and the hospitality displayed at the social board. After the Lodge had been opened, and the minutes of former regular Lodge and emergency meetings read and confirmed, Bros. Baradell and Wyndow were raised, and Bro. Chappell was passed, the ceremonies being conducted in a perfect manner. The report of the Audit Committee was received and adopted. A Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. Stephens W.M. elect was presented, and duly installed into the chair by the retiring W.M., in a manner that warranted the praises accorded him. There were twenty-two members and Past Masters present at the Board of Installed Masters. The I.P.M. efficiently acted as D.C., assisted by Bro. Mickleberg. The newly-installed Master having been saluted according to ancient custom, appointed and invested his Officers:—Brothers Hunt I.P.M., Powell S.W., Whitehead J.W., Langridge Treasurer, G. Read P.M. Secretary, Hayes S.D., Payne J.D., Bond I.G., Mickleberg P.M. D.C., Rev. W. E. Heaton Chap., A. Stephens A.D.C., Vear S., Curtis A.S., Culloch Tyler. The applause that followed the investment showed the W.M. had made a good selection. Hearty good wishes were now tendered by the Visitors, and Lodge was closed until October. The brethren then sat down to a sumptuous banquet and dessert, provided by Bros. Browning and Wesley. A very elegant menu card was provided by the W.M. It contained his photograph, and was essentially a work of art. The list of toasts was printed in "ye olde Englishe stylle." Grace having been said, the W.M. proceeded with the Loyal and Masonic toasts; he suggested that the programme was a long one, but he would abbreviate his remarks; he would, however, strive to honour those who so well deserved it. In speaking of the Worshipful Master Bro. Hunt I.P.M. said he had known Bro. Stephens for many years; in fact, he had the honour of introducing him into the Lodge. He was indeed proud that night to propose his health, and instal him as W. Master. He was one who would carry out every duty required of him, and would fill the chair of the Lodge with credit to himself and satisfaction to the brethren. It was with great pleasure the W.M. rose to respond to the toast so kindly proposed by the Installing Master. He should never forget the ceremony. It was flattering to him to see 22 W.M.'s and P.M.'s at his installation. Such a gathering was unprecedented in their Lodge; he hoped to follow in the footsteps of his predecessors, and thanked one and all heartily for the reception they had given the toast. The next toast was the health of the I.P.M. and Installing Master. The Lodge had always been proud of its workers, and what the brethren had seen that evening was eminently satisfactory. During Bro. Hunt's year of office he had initiated ten candidates, and had been complimented over and over again for his work. The brethren had combined to present him with a Past Master's collar and jewel, and he (the W.M.) had now great pleasure, in the name of the Lodge, to present him with a gold Past Master's jewel, which all hoped he might live long to wear among them. In addition, he had to present him with an elegant illuminated testimonial on vellum. This was the work of Bro. Bailey, who requested Bro. Hunt to accept it as a gift from him. It, however, required a frame, and this he (the W.M.) had great pleasure in presenting. These gifts may be said to testify to the respect Bro. Hunt is held in. In the course of his reply, Bro. Hunt said he could scarcely find words to thank the brethren for the Past Master's jewel and the collar and jewel; while as to the testimonial on vellum, so artistically executed by Bro. Bailey, he felt he could not satisfy himself by anything he could express. However, he never should forget their kindness; it would make a lasting impression on him. The toast of the Past Masters came next on the list; their ability had been seen and appreciated in the past; no better could be found in any Lodge. He would call on Bros. Longhurst and Chalfont to respond. The former brother, in acknowledging the compliment, said it was a great pleasure so see the Lodge in so flourishing a condition, and to see the present W.M. occupying the chair. He regretted not being able to be more frequently with them. Bro. Chalfont followed. He said Bro. Longhurst was the first Master, and now the Father of the Lodge. He hoped to see many junior Officers eventually occupy the chair. The Worshipful Master then proposed the toast of the Visitors. He had been honoured with a distinguished company; among them was one he would especially refer to,—Bro. Seager-Hunt S.W. of the Abbey Lodge. Brother Hunt is known and respected, and they could indeed feel it an honour his being present. He would associate with the toast the name of Bros. Andrews P.G.D. Berks and Bucks, Baker P.M., Woolley W.M. 15, S. Phillips P.M. 173, and Davie W.M. elect 173. Bro. Hunt said he felt a pleasure in rising to respond to the toast, although he thought another brother should have preceded him. It was essentially a pleasure to listen to our grand ritual when it was eloquently rendered, and this had been especially the case that evening. What the new Worshipful Master had already done showed he was likely to prove a credit to the Lodge, and to add lustre to its reputation. He trusted he might be present on a future occasion, when he felt assured what he prognosticated now would be fully realised. The other brethren whose names were mentioned also bore testimony to the ability that had been displayed by those who were entrusted with the government of the Lodge. Other toasts comprised the health of the Treasurer and Secretary, the Wardens and Officers. To each satisfactory response was made, and then the Tyler's toast concluded one of the most agreeable evenings ever passed in Freemasonry. The W.M. provided an artistic concert. Miss Meredith Elliot, Miss Minnie Laurie, and Nita Reba sang most exquisitely. Bros. Toy, Wickens, and Edgar also contributed to the harmony.

ROYAL COMMEMORATION LODGE, No. 1585.

THIS Lodge held its Installation meeting on Wednesday, the 5th of May, at the Fox and Hounds, Putney. There were present Bros. Whitley P.M. W.M., Pardoe S.W., Collick J.W., Robinson P.M. Secretary, Watkins Treasurer, Williams S.D., Strong J.D., Collings P.M. D.C., Stacey P.M. Organist, Wing acting I.G., Walkley Tyler, Boehr P.M. Visitors—Pardoe, Gryce, Smeed, Game, Jonseffe, Turner, Foan, Williams, Nightingale, Dunlop, Botibol, Cox, Wilkinson, and Heath. The business comprised the reading and confirmation of the minutes. Brother Stephens was raised. Bro. Pardoe was then installed as W.M.; the ceremony being ably conducted by Brother Whitley and a Board of nine Installed Masters. The newly appointed W.M. invested the following as Officers for the year:—Whitley I.P.M., Collick S.W., Williams J.W., Watkins Treas., Robinson P.M. Secretary, Strong S.D., Wing J.D., Collings P.M. D.C., Stacey P.M. Organist, Blunderfield S., Walkley P.M. Tyler. A ballot was next taken for Mr. William Windsor, who was duly initiated. The report of the Audit Committee was presented and confirmed. Hearty good wishes having been given, Lodge was closed in due form. At the banquet, which subsequently followed, the I.P.M., Brother Whitley, was presented with the Lodge jewel, and later on the Secretary, Brother Robinson, was presented with a gold watch, subscribed for by the brethren as a mark of esteem. The usual Masonic toasts were given and in due course a very pleasant afternoon and evening was brought to a close.

SAMSON LODGE, No. 1668.

THE members of this Lodge celebrated their installation on Tuesday, the 12th instant, at the Café Royal, Regent-street, W. The Lodge was opened by Bro. Isaac Quincey W.M., who was supported by Henry W. Casperd S.W., R. A. Kingsbury J.W., M. D. Loewenstark P.M. Treas., Baron D. Barnett P.M. Sec., C. Ochse P.M., W. T. Lover P.M., W. H. G. Rudderforth P.M., B. Field S.D., John S. Miller J.D., S. Lancaster D.C., and Isaac Levy Steward. The minutes of the last regular meeting, and of a Lodge of emergency having been confirmed, Lodge was advanced and Bro. Godard was examined, entrusted and raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason. Bro. Casperd was next presented, as W.M. elect, for the benefit of installation, and in due course was placed in the chair of K.S., Bro. Lover P.M. performing the ceremony in a most gratifying manner. The new W.M. having been saluted appointed the following as his Officers for the year:—Quincey I.P.M., Kingsbury S.W., B. Fuld J.W., Loewenstark P.M. Treas., Barnett P.M. Sec., Miller (S.C. 93) S.D., Lancaster J.D., Levy I.G., H. Moss Steward, and Oberdoerffer Tyler. A vote of thanks to the installing Master having been proposed and unanimously carried, the Lodge was closed and the brethren adjourned to the banquet, which was presided over by the new W.M. At the conclusion of the repast and after grace the customary toasts were honoured. Speaking of Her Majesty the Queen, the W.M. referred to the kindly sympathy and interest shown by Her Majesty in all that concerned the welfare of her subjects. The longer she lived the more she showed her womanly sympathy, whether it was towards her soldiers, the upper classes, or the peasantry her sympathies were drawn, the same feelings were manifest and such sentiments expressed as could only be found in one of England's truest daughters. The toast having been honoured, was followed by that of the Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. The Grand Master was one of whom all Englishmen might well be proud. If there was one thing more than another they liked to see in a man it was true British pluck, and that the Prince of Wales exhibited to the fullest extent. As ruler of the Craft he was beloved by every Mason, and as heir to the throne respected throughout the Empire. The toast of the Grand Officers of England followed from the chair, and then Brother Quincey proposed the health of the Worshipful Master. In brief terms Brother Quincey congratulated Bro. Casperd on his accession to the chair, and the Lodge on having elected so worthy a Mason to preside over its destinies for the coming year. He hoped the Lodge would be prosperous during the future, and that Brother Casperd might enjoy a pleasant term of office. The W.M. tendered his sincerest thanks. It was a very proud moment to him to stand in the position of Worshipful Master. He well remembered his admission to the Craft, how he had considered the ceremony of his initiation a most impressive one, how he had looked upon his raising as far grander, but the ceremony which he had gone through that night was even grander still. He took a great interest in Freemasonry, and now that he had been appointed to the high office of Worshipful Master should endeavour to do all that lay in his power to advance the interests of the Order, and more especially of the Samson Lodge. His aim would be to maintain the high standard which had been acquired by the Lodge, and to endeavour to advance it. He appealed to the Officers for their support and assistance, feeling assured that with their help the Lodge might become even a greater success in the future than it had been in the past. In conclusion, he again thanked the brethren, and hoped he should not prove unworthy of the grand and honourable position which had been conferred on him. The Worshipful Master next proposed the toast of the Initiate, or rather of the brother who had that day been raised. This was the first opportunity that had arisen of proposing his health in the Lodge, and it was with delight the Master submitted the toast. Bro. Casperd remembered the remark of the Master on the night of his initiation; when proposing this toast he said he never wanted to initiate a man into Masonry whose legs he should be ashamed to see under his own table. That was perhaps a strange way of expressing the matter, but it was a principle which, if generally followed, would maintain the high standard of the Order. The brother whose health he had the pleasure of proposing was one of whose company they could never be ashamed. On the contrary, he was an acquisition to the Lodge and a member of whom they might well be proud. Bro. Godard returned his warmest thanks. He was very proud in having been admitted among them, and hoped to please every one by the way in which he acted as a Freemason. The toast of the Visitors followed. The Worshipful Master, in proposing it, specially referring to the attendance of the Masters of the other Jewish Lodges of London—Bros. Martin W.M. of the Joppa, Norden W.M. of the Israel, and Vallentin W.M. of the Montefiore. They regretted the absence of Bro. Boas, the W.M. of the Tranquillity, but he had written expressing his inability to attend. The Samson Lodge was strong in itself, but owed much to the support and encouragement of its sister Hebrew Lodges—the representatives of which were always welcome. The other Visitors they were equally gratified to see, and he hoped they had all enjoyed themselves. Bro. Vallentin was the first to respond. One of the greatest privileges which could fall to a Mason was to respond to the toast proposed in honour of the Visitors. They sometimes heard the festive board—as the fourth degree of Freemasonry—spoken of with contempt and in ridicule. He thought this fourth degree a really important adjunct of Freemasonry. It was at the festive board that the teachings of Freemasonry were practised and its principles advanced. It was there that the claims of the Charities were urged, and the large amounts collected with which they were enabled to carry on the work of which they were all so proud. Bro. Clark followed. He was second to none in his sense of pleasure and satisfaction at being present. It was always gratifying to see a brother installed into the chair of a Lodge, but more especially so when the brother so honoured had shown by past work his ability to perform the work likely to be required of him—such was the case with the new Master of the Salmon Lodge. He was sure he was but echoing the wish of every visitor when he hoped that Bro. Casperd might have a happy and prosperous term of office. Bro. Martin was very proud, as a Christian, to respond on behalf of the Joppa Lodge, one of the best known Hebrew Lodges in Freemasonry. It had taken him just over twenty years to reach the chair of that Lodge, but he was amply repaid for waiting in the honour which was attached to the post. Bros. Norden, Marsh, Williamson, Dorme, Fisk, and others responded. The Master proposed the toast of the Past Masters, and in connection with it had much pleasure in performing a duty which fell to his lot—that of presenting to Bro. Quincey the Past Master's jewel, voted by the Lodge, in recognition of his services during the past year. The jewel bore the following inscription:—

The members of the SAMSON LODGE, No. 1668,
To BRO. ISAAC QUINCEY P.M.,
As a mark of their respect and esteem, and in recognition of his valuable services as W.M. May 12th 1885.

Bros. Loewenstark and Quincey having responded, the Worshipful Master submitted the toast of the Installing Master, Bro. Lover. The W.M. had felt especial pleasure in being installed into the chair by Bro. Lover, as he had been initiated by that brother years since in another Lodge. It must also have been a source of gratification to the members to listen to the ceremony—so well carried out as it had been that night. Bro. Lover briefly acknowledged the compliment. It had afforded him great pleasure to instal one of his former initiates. The toast of the Officers followed, and was ably responded to by Bro. Lancaster S.W. He sincerely hoped he should have the gratification of finding he had set an example worthy of being copied by his brethren. His desire would be to carry out his duties in such a way as to satisfy every member, and he hoped that at the end of his year of office as S.W. he might have gained such esteem as should place him at the head of the Lodge for the following term. The Tyler was next summoned and the proceedings brought to a conclusion. Among the Visitors were Bros. George Williamson 1178, J. G. Marsh P.M. 284, 192, &c., George Fisk S.D. 209, G. A. Dorme 35, W. S. Frith 1005, L. S. Martin W.M. 188, T. Clark 1178, N. P. Vallentin W.M. 1017, E. H. Norden W.M. 205, and F. C. Hatfield 1585.

SAXE-WEIMAR LODGE, No. 1903.

ON Wednesday, 6th inst., the Lodge was opened by the undermentioned Officers and brethren:—Bros. Cox W.M., Page P.G.S.D. I.P.M., Long S.W., Knowles J.W., Good Chaplain, Haldane P.M. acting Treasurer, Emanuel P.M. Secretary, Pike S.D., Nelder acting J.D., Knight D.C., Livesay I.G., Sylvester Organist, Johns P.M. P.P.G.S.B., Townsend P.M., Gieve P.M.; also Bros. Charpentier, Backler, F. Bevis, G. Bevis, Austin, Truscott, R.N., Giles, R.N., Ford, Davis, Dale, Crowder, Maybour, Long. The Visitors included Bros. Lind, Dempsey, Barden, Attrell, Cunningham, T.C., Hill, Naylor, Miles, Powell, Larkins, Loader, Holley, Cook, Brickwood, Thackara, Long, Gunnell, Dobbyn, R.N., Batchelor, Gieve, Wallingford, Westaway, Williams, Joliffe, and Jones. After the ordinary business had been disposed of, the Treasurer's account was read, showing a balance of £116 17s 7d. Bro. Townsend then installed Bro. Long as W.M. for the ensuing year, after which the W.M. appointed and invested the following Officers:—Bros. Cox I.P.M., Knowles, R.N., S.W., Pike J.W., Good Chaplain, Backler Treasurer, Emanuel P.M. Secretary, Livesay S.D., Maybour J.D., Gieve P.M. D. of C., Sylvester Organist, Charpentier I.G., Long and Ford Stewards, Mansell and Carter Tylers. A vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Townsend for the impressive manner in which he had performed the ceremony of installation, after which the W.M. presented Bro. Cox with a very handsome Past Master's jewel, of 18-carat gold, bearing the following inscription:—

Presented by the members of the
PRINCE EDWARD OF SAXE-WEIMAR LODGE, No. 1903,
To Bro. W. LATHOM COX,
As a token of their sense of his Masonic attainments, genial character, and able conduct in presiding over them. 1884-85.

Bro. Cox, he remarked, had made himself beloved and respected by all the brethren, and he trusted he might live long to wear the jewel. In reply, Bro. Cox said that looking back on the past year he felt that he was not entitled to the esteem in which he was held, but he thanked them most heartily for that token of regard, and assured them that he would do all in his power to further the prosperity of the Lodge, which was very dear to him. Votes of thanks were accorded to Bro. Captain Haldane, who has acted as Treasurer since the death of Bro. Threadingham, and to the Auditors for their services. At the installation banquet, which followed, under the presidency of the W.M., the company numbered about sixty.

WOLSELEY LODGE, No. 1993.

THIS Lodge, which commenced its career about two years ago so hopefully, and with the determination to exclude all alcoholic beverages from its social board, held its second installation meeting in the Masonic Rooms, King-street, Manchester, on the 5th inst, when the really elegant Lodge room was filled with members and Visitors, amongst the latter being several Provincial Officers, the presence of Bro. William Knights I.P.M. of Lodge 570 I.C., 5th Dragoon Guards, in Masonic and Military full dress, lent an additional charm to the scene. The Lodge being duly opened by Bro. Hunt W.M., Bro. William Harris, the W.M. elect, who was initiated in Lodge Fortitude, No. 105, Plymouth, in 1873, was presented for installation by Bro. Edwards, the first Master of the Lodge, and duly installed into the Chair of King Solomon according to antient custom, Bro. Hunt performing the ceremony in the style for which he is held in such repute in this Province. The elaborate musical arrangements, which might advantageously be adopted by other and older Lodges, added greatly to the beauty of the ceremony. The newly-installed Master having been regularly proclaimed and saluted, invested his Officers, as follow: Bros. Thomason S.W., Beresford J.W., Iliff Treasurer, Hatton P.M. Secretary, Griffiths S.D., Brabner J.D., Rattray I.G., Darbyshire P.M. D.C., Farquharson Organist, Holyoak Asst. Organist; Crowther McCallum, Barton, Evans, Rose, and Wilcock Stewards; Sharp Tyler; Bro. Hunt W.M. delivering to each an appropriate charge. There is a fair prospect of the new W.M. having plenty of work during the year, two candidates being proposed for initiation and one for joining. Although the expenses connected with the formation and furnishing of this Lodge, and the charges for alteration of the premises have had to be defrayed—these have been heavy—the members have been able to subscribe to the local Masonic Charity, and to forward 20 guineas to the Girls' School during the past year, thus endeavouring to fulfil the desire of the Founders, that economical working would better enable the members to carry on the true functions of Freemasonry. After the Lodge was closed the brethren adjourned to the adjoining room, where a sumptuous repast, provided by Mr. Edwards, awaited them, and to which they did ample justice. The toast of the Queen, with the National Anthem, sung by Bro. Brabner the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M., the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family, with "God bless the Prince of Wales" from Bro. Walker W.M. 1052; the Grand Officers, with a flute fantasia from Bro Thomason S.W. The W.M. proposed the R.W. P.G.M. Bro. Starkie, and the rest of the P.G. Officers, to which Bro. Roberts

P.P.G.D.C. responded, assuring the brethren of 1993 that the R.W. P.G.M. had the interests of Freemasonry, and particularly of the Lodges in East Lancashire, at heart, and that he, as well as all the Provincial Officers, would do whatever they could at any time to promote the welfare of such a promising Lodge as the Wolseley. Bro. Roberts concluded by regretting he had not visited the Lodge since its consecration, but assured the brethren that it had been his loss and misfortune—not his fault—and that he would make amends to himself and the Lodge by visiting them more frequently in the future. The toast of the Worshipful Master was next proposed by the I.P.M., Bro. Hunt, in terms of high commendation. He said that the high standard assumed by Bro. Harris in the duties he had already performed was a guarantee that the honour and dignity of 1993 were secure in his hands, and that his reign would be marked by a steady progress. The unanimity of the election was an augury of the esteem in which he was held, and of the undivided and loyal support which all would accord to him during the ensuing year. The toast having been drank with enthusiasm unbounded, Bro. McCallum sang, with powerful effect, "Here's to his health," the chorus being repeated by sixty to seventy stentorian voices, each vieing with the other in honouring the universally popular Master. Bro. Harris rose to respond, and at length, silence being restored, said, in tones evidently heartfelt, and with his customary oratorical ability: Worshipful Bro. Hunt, Past Masters, Officers and Brethren,—I trust you will believe me when I say that the handsome, magnificent and altogether too flattering reception which you have been so graciously pleased to accord to the toast of my health renders it very difficult indeed for me to respond in any adequate measure. But high as the eulogium passed upon me undoubtedly has been, and great as is the position to which by your votes and confidence you have placed me, I can assure you, without any mental reservation, that they are not higher, nor greater, than my best wishes and aspirations are for the prosperity and success of the Wolseley Lodge. I am deeply sensible of, and highly appreciate, the great distinction you have conferred upon me, and no one can be more conscious than myself that, in your generosity, you have far too highly estimated my poor abilities; my principal apprehension now is that, in the performance of the great, important and onerous duties appertaining to the Mastership I may be found unequal to them. Still, however this may prove, you will give me credit for having at heart the promotion of the best interests of this important Lodge. I think you will agree with me that the position of Worshipful Master in any Lodge is not a bed of roses, nor does it occur to me that a strong, healthy and sane man wants very often to lie on such a bed, but there are times of difficulty, of query as to the right thing to do or the right way to go; but I sincerely trust—indeed, I feel sanguine—that, should difficulties, complexities or trials cross my path, even in my case they will not prove insuperable, because I am assured that I shall have the fraternal aid of the Past Masters of the Lodge. They will give me the benefit of their ripe experience, wisdom, counsel and judgment, to enable me to discharge aright the high functions of my exalted office. But, Brethren, having a vivid remembrance of the high example, calibre, ability, and Masonic culture of the two tried Craftsmen who have so ably preceded me, I think you will at once concede the point with me that humility rather than self-assertion and arrogance becomes one who has so very recently received such a high command into his hands. And the Officers of the Lodge—my Officers—of whom any Master might well be proud, will, I am convinced, do their utmost to keep the Wolseley craft sailing well before a favourable wind, and, if possible, in smooth waters. Let us all pledge ourselves to have a good time and a great record. Above all, let us neither cherish nor foster any piques, factions, or dissensions, but work amicably in the spirit of love, harmony, and charity; let us encourage each other in what is good and great; united under the mystic tie of the badge of innocence and the bond of friendship, seek to exemplify, in our lives, character and conduct, those great Masonic principles of Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth. For the high honour and the great compliment which you have paid me, and the very cordial reception of the toast, allow me once again to thank you most sincerely. The Past Masters, Installing Master, Officers, Visitors, and Charities followed, and were ably responded to by Bros. Thomason, Rattray, R. Walker W.M., J. C. Cornish, E. Barton, Beresford, &c. During the evening telegrams kept arriving from different parts, and many letters were received conveying expressions of congratulation to the W.M. and good wishes to the Lodge, amongst them being communications from Bros. Hughan, Browning, Jew, Twose, Westcott, Pengelly, Cawsey, Gifford, E. Pillar, Major Baldrey, W. J Stanbury, A. E. Leans. The brethren separated at a late hour, having enjoyed one of the most pleasant evenings possible, even for a Masonic assembly, and many a lovely bouquet was culled from the well-covered banquet board to gladden the hearts of Masons' wives and sweethearts. Truly this may be said to have been a red letter day for 1993.

HAMPSHIRE LODGE OF EMULATION, No. 1990.

THE annual meeting of this Lodge, for the installation of the Worshipful Master and appointment of Officers, was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Landport, on Saturday, the 9th inst. The Lodge is composed only of Past Masters of the Order in different districts in the Province. The members present on Saturday were Bros. G. Felton Lancaster (the retiring W.M.), Loveland Loveland, Rastrick Provincial Grand Treasurer, Edmonds, Ellis, Newman, Barfield, Francis, Main, Dr. O'Connor, Brickwood, Williams, Gale, Giere, Beale, Cawte, and Holbrook. Among the Visitors were Bros. Le Feuvre Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Edgar Goble Provincial Grand Secretary, Jellicoe, Sharpe, Tilling, Wheeler, Pack, J. W. Giere, Willmott, Good, Bond, Dampier, Child, Nayler, Miles, Niven, Bowyer, Westaway, Arlidge. Bro. Hayman, the first W.M. of the Lodge, was elected an honorary member, and the proposed bye laws of the Benevolent Institution about to be established in connection with the Province were discussed. Bro. Loveland Loveland was installed W.M. for the year ensuing, the ceremony being skilfully conducted by Bro. Felton Lancaster. Bro. Loveland appointed his Officers, as follow: Bros. Rastrick S.W., Newman J.W., Rev. A. C. Hervey Chaplain, Edmonds Treasurer, Ellis Secretary, Barfield S.D., Green J.D., Francis D.C., Eve I.G., Beale and Brickwood Stewards, Carter Tyler. A banquet was served in the dining-room, and subsequently a smoking concert was held in the commodious smoking-room of the club. The usual Masonic toasts were honoured. Bros. Le Feuvre, Goble and Rastrick responded to the toast of the Provincial Officers, and Bro. Arlidge acknowledged the compliment paid to the Visitors. The concert was of a very enjoyable character, an excellent programme having been arranged by Mr. Lancaster. The flute solos by Mr. Arlidge were highly appreciated. It is not bestowing too much praise to say that Mr. Arlidge proved himself a complete master of the instrument, and the variations with which he favoured his listeners were executed with rare facility. Vocal contributions to the programme were given by Messrs. Lancaster, Jellicoe, Miles, Bowyer, Holbrook, Tilling, and Beale, and recitations were rendered in good style by Messrs. Westaway and Brickwood. The accompaniments were efficiently played by Mr. R. Sharpe.

ABBEY LODGE, No. 2030.

THE installation meeting of this new, flourishing, and rapidly increasing Lodge was held on the 11th instant, at the Town Hall, Westminster. There was a large assemblage of visitors, and a numerous attendance of the members. A special invitation to the W.M. and Officers of the City of Westminster Lodge, No. 1563, had been sent for them to return the visit paid by the Officers of this Lodge some time since. At the opening of the Lodge, in the unavoidable absence of the Worshipful Master, Bro. Burdett-Coutts, Bro. H. B. Spink P.M. commenced the proceedings, with Brothers Baker S.W., Bull P.M. 145 as J.W., Rogers P.M. Treasurer, Shand P.M. 1563 Secretary, Sugg P.M. S., Montague J.D., H. Baker I.G., Schartau Organist, Goffin Steward, Rev. R. J. Simpson P.G.C. Chaplain. Amongst the Visitors and others present were Bros. Unite P.M. and Treas. 144, After the minutes of last meeting had been read and confirmed, ballots were taken for the admission of Messrs. J. A. Richards, Y. Todman, and Thomas Flory. These gentlemen, with Mr. G. A. Cookson (already balloted for), were initiated by Bro. Spink I.P.M., with his usual ability. Bros. Bridgeman, Hodges, Hellier and White were next raised. Bro. Manley 1618 was unanimously elected a joining member. A Board of Installed Masters was opened, Bros. Spink I.P.M. and Bro. T. Bull P.M. 145 occupying the Wardens chairs, and Bro. W. H. Baker S.W. and W.M. elect was presented to the Lodge, and in the presence of 68 W.M.'s and P.M.'s was duly installed into the chair by the retiring W.M., Bro. Burdett Coutts, who rendered the ceremony perfectly and impressively; he was listened to with rapt attention. Bro. Frank Richardson P.G.D. with his usual courtesy acted as D.C. The newly-installed W.M. then appointed and invested his Officers, as follow: Bros. Burdett-Coutts I.P.M., Seager-Hunt S.W., Sugg P.M. J.W., Rogers P.M. Treasurer, Shand P.M. Secretary, Montague S.D., Baker J.D., Gibson P.M. I.G., Goffin D.C., Simpson P.G.C. Chaplain, Duncan A.D.C., Schartau Organist, Piper and Wheeler Stewards, Walkley Tyler. A letter of apology was read from Sir Albert Woods (Garter). Bro. Hodges, who had been raised that evening, stated he would with great pleasure paint the portrait of the first W.M. Bro. Burdett-Coutts, speaking of Bro. Spink P.M., said that their first I.P.M. had rendered great service to the Lodge, and he thought it but just that the Lodge should present him with a jewel of a special design, in recognition of his valuable services. This was carried unanimously. Bro. Burdett-Coutts next stated that the Rev. Bro. Simpson on a former occasion had presented the Lodge with a very elegant album. The Lodge appreciated his valuable services; he now on behalf of the Lodge thanked their worthy Chaplain for his kindness. Three candidates were proposed for initiation, and the name of Bro. Burt, P.P.G.J.W. Dorset, was submitted as desiring to become a joining member. Hearty good wishes from the Visitors having been tendered, Lodge was closed until October. The brethren now, to the number of 170, sat down to a sumptuous and récherché banquet and dessert, provided by Bros. Bertram and Roberts, and superintended by Bro. Woods. The tables were beautifully decorated, while some magnificent flowers were presented to the Lodge by the Baroness Burdett-Coutts, which were the theme of general admiration. Grace having been sung, the W.M. said he did not intend to occupy the time of the brethren with speeches, but those in Freemasonry all over the world receive with pleasure the toast of Her Majesty the Queen; he would couple with it Prosperity to the Craft. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M. was the next toast, and this was followed by the health of the R.W. the Earl of Carnarvon Pro G.M., the Earl of Lathom D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers, Present and Past. On this occasion the Abbey Lodge was honoured by the attendance of Col. Sir Francis Burdett, Prov. G. Master Middlesex, the Rev. R. J. Simpson P.G. Chaplain, J. Derby Allcroft P.G. Treasurer, Frank Richardson P.G. Deacon; the latter brother had rendered most effective service, not only at the consecration of the Lodge, but on that evening. He (the W.M.) would have much pleasure in associating with the toast the name of Sir Francis Burdett, Bart., Past Grand Warden. Col. Sir Francis Burdett, in responding, thanked the W.M. for his kind remarks. In reference to the Immediate Past Master, he was sure all would agree he had set a bright example; he felt that all who were present had felt gratified to see how well the duties of the chair had been performed. The Lodge had now entered upon its second year of existence; it did so under very favourable auspices; the out-going Master had performed the ceremony of installing his successor most excellently; in fact he (Sir Francis) had never heard it done better, and moreover he could speak with pride of one who had striven so successfully to sustain and support the Order. He was also essentially gratified to mark the sustained interest that noble-minded lady the Baroness Burdett-Coutts took in the progress of the Abbey Lodge; this was evidenced by the display of the bright flowers she had forwarded from Holly Lodge. Long may she live to continue her good and noble works. On behalf of the Grand Officers whose names had been associated with his in connection with the toast, he tendered the brethren his sincere thanks. Bros. J. Derby Allcroft P.G. Treas. and Frank Richardson also responded. Bro. Burdett-Coutts I.P.M. had great pleasure in proposing the health of the W.M. Bro. Baker, to whom the successful inauguration of the Lodge was mainly due. He was respected and esteemed by every member of the Lodge, as well as by those outside of it with whom he came in contact. So long as he had the management of the affairs of the Lodge there was little doubt of its prosperity. The toast was heartily received and acknowledged by the Worshipful Master. He would endeavour to fulfil the duties which appertained to his office to the satisfaction of them all. He hoped to follow in the footsteps of his predecessor in the chair, whose health he would now ask the brethren to drink. They had seen with what ability Bro. Burdett-Coutts had carried out the duties of the first Master of the Lodge. He had the greatest pride and pleasure in presenting to him the Past Master's jewel of the Lodge—it was richly deserved, in recognition of valuable services rendered. The words engraved on it were the true sentiments of the brethren. He hoped the Immediate Past Master would never wear it without thinking that the brethren had the remembrance of what his well-directed efforts had done for the benefit of the Lodge. Bro. Burdett-Coutts expressed the pleasure with which he had spoken to them when occupying the chair of the Lodge. Now, on leaving it to his successor, he had to thank them for the elegant jewel they had presented to him, and which he should wear with the greatest pride and pleasure. He hoped the good which had been done in the past would be continued in the future. The toast of the Initiates was next given. The Master hoped that the brethren who had just been received among them, and who came with such good introductions, would become a credit to the Order, and brethren of whom the Lodge might be proud. Bros. Richards and Todman responded in excellent speeches. The W.M. had great pleasure in proposing the toast of the Visitors, who were very strong in numbers, and called on two brethren to respond—the W.M. of the City of Westminster Lodge, Bro. Jones, and the W.M. of the Kent Lodge, No. 15. Those brethren spoke in brief but appropriate terms of the pleasure they had experienced in witnessing the excellent working of the ceremonies by the I.P.M. The genial presidency of the W.M., and the hospitality afforded them. The toast of the Masonic Charities was given, and the W.M. in advocating their claims said they were proud of the presence of Bro. F. Binckes P.G.S. Secretary Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. He hoped the next Anniversary Festival of that Institution, in June, would be the most successful of the present year. Bro. Binckes responded in one of those eloquent speeches for which he is celebrated. Twenty years ago, he said, the Baroness Burdett-Coutts had honoured them with her presence, and had written to him a letter which he should ever prize. He was pleased to say that the I.P.M. had given his name as a Steward for the next Boys' Festival, which would be held under the presidency of the Marquis of Hartington. It was a source of pride to him to respond to this toast in the Abbey Lodge, which he was sure would become one of the bulwarks of the Order. The W.M. proposed the health of the Treasurer, Bro. Rogers, and the Secretary, Bro. Shand, speaking of their qualifications and their zeal to promote the prosperity of the Lodge. This toast having been responded to, the W.M. proposed that of the Wardens and Officers, regretting the absence of the Senior Warden Bro. F. Seager-Hunt. Those who know him know what an acquisition such a brother was to a Lodge. In his absence a good working brother, well known in the Order, Bro. T. Bull P.M. 145, had taken his place, and had filled the chair of Warden to their entire satisfaction. Similar praise might be given to the J.W. and other Officers. He had been pleased to appoint them, knowing that the duties would be in every respect conducted to their satisfaction. This toast having been responded to, the Tyler's was given and the brethren separated. Some good singing interspersed the several toasts, the following programme being rendered during the evening:—Grace "Deum Laudate," Dr. J. Smith; National Anthem, Dr. John Bull; "God bless the Prince of Wales," B. Richards, Bro. J. Ion Cantle; Part Song: "Summer Eve," Hatton; Song: "The Sands of Dee," Clay, Bro. Arthur Thompson; Song: The Raft," Pinsuti, Bro. Henry Baker; The Initiate's Song; Song: "The meeting of the waters," Moore, Bro. Arthur Thompson; Duet: "Excelsior," Balfe, Bros. A. Weston and Henry Baker; Song: "The Old Brigade," Barri, Bro. Thos. Nettleship; Part Song: "Good night, beloved," Hatton.

RICHMOND LODGE, No. 2032.

Lodge was opened in due form and the W.M. raised Bros. Meers, James, Cook and Trinder to the degree of M.M., and passed Bro. Hester, working the ceremonies in his usual able manner. The W.M. then proceeded to instal his successor, Bro. Digby, S.W. of the Lode as W.M. for the ensuing year. This ceremony was most ably and impressively performed, and proved to the brethren present that the late Worshipful Master of the Lodge had spared no pains to make this, the last public act of his Mastership, as perfect and pleasing as all that had previously occurred during his year of office. The newly-installed Worshipful Master then proceeded to invest his Officers, as follow: Bros. Phillips S.W., Houghton J.W., Reynolds Treasurer, Rowland Secretary, Dare S.D., Sapsworth J.D., Marjason I.G., Crew Organist, Ireland D.C., Maton and Mossum Stewards, Banks Tyler. The newly-installed Master, after receiving the hearty congratulations of the brethren, proceeded to initiate Messrs. Rainbow and Clifford into the mysteries of the Craft, in the performance of which ceremony he and the other Officers thoroughly upheld the character hitherto enjoyed by this Lodge for the excellence of its working. The Lodge then adjourned to a banquet, provided by host Bro. Munro, which was served in his usual satisfactory manner. The toasts, which were most ably given and enthusiastically received, were responded to by R.W. Bro. Sir Francis Burdett Bart., and Bro. Nunn for the Grand Officers. Bro. Digby received the hearty congratulations of all present on his elevation to the post of Worshipful Master, and when responding, in a few well-chosen sentences, presented to Bro. Blasby a handsome jewel, which had been unanimously voted to him by the brethren. Thus was inaugurated the second year of this young, flourishing and most successful Lodge.

Royal Alfred Lodge of Instruction, No. 780.—On Friday, the 8th inst., at the Star and Garter Hotel, Kew Bridge. Bros. Sperring W.M., Thomas S.W., Bailey J.W., F. Botley Secretary, Cammell S.D., Norton J.D., Monson I.G.; also Bros. Andrews, Sherrin, Turner, &c. Lodge was opened and the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Lodge was opened in the second and third degrees, and resumed to the second. The W.M. vacated the chair in favour of Bro. Andrews, and Bro. Sherrin answered the questions leading to the third, and the ceremony was rehearsed. Lodge was closed to the first degree, when Bro. Botley, with the assistance of the brethren, worked the second section of the lecture. A vote of thanks was unanimously accorded to Bro. Sperring on his occupying the chair for the first time. Bro. Thomas was elected W.M. for the next meeting. Lodge was closed in due form, and adjourned.

THE GIRLS' SCHOOL FESTIVAL.

THE Ninety-seventh Anniversary Festival of the Girls' School took place on Wednesday, 13th inst., at Freemasons' Tavern, Lodon, under the presidency of Sir Walter W. Burrell, Bart., M.P., Prov. Grand Master Sussex, and proved a grand success. The Chairman was supported by upwards of two hundred and seventy Stewards, and the amounts realised exceeded fourteen thousand pounds, being considerably in excess of any total previously announced in connection with this Institution. The usual banquet was served by Messrs. Spiers and Pond, and at its conclusion the toasts were honoured. The Chairman proposed that of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen, chief Patroness of the Institution. The toast, he said, was always drunk with the greatest enthusiasm among Masons. Long might Her Majesty live to reign over us, and long might we have the honour and privilege of drinking her health as the Patroness of Freemasonry. The next toast was His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, Most Worshipful Grand Master, Grand Patron and President of the Institution; the Princess of Wales, Grand Patroness; and the other members of the Royal Family. The chairman was sure all had felt pleasure in reading of the welcome given to the Prince and Princess of Wales during their tour in Ireland; had rejoiced at the loyal reception accorded them, and were thankful they had returned in safety. He was sure all appreciated the exertions of the Grand Master; whatever he undertook he carried out with heart and soul. He seemed determined to do his best for Freemasonry. The toast of the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, M.W. Pro Grand Master; the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Lathom, R.W. D.G.M.; and the rest of the Grand Officers present and past, followed, the Chairman curtailing his remarks as, he said, there was a great deal of good music to be heard in the Temple, to which every brother would like to give ear, especially as ladies were waiting there for them. The Grand Officers were well known and their efforts appreciated. Col. Sir Francis Burdett, Bart, Prov. G.M. Middlesex responded. After such an enthusiastic reception as had been given to the toast he felt considerable difficulty in responding as he should like to do. The Grand Officers performed their duty in such a Masonic and thorough manner that the was sure every one had pleasure in drinking their health. Although anxious to follow the example of the Chairman and make the speeches short, he could not help saying how happy he was to be supported by a representative of the Grand Lodge of Ireland in the person of Bro. Dr. Galbraith, Grand Chaplain of Ireland. He had another duty to perform, to say something of the Chairman. Sir Walter Burrell had, at considerable inconvenience to himself, come up and attended the meeting that day. The brethren knew he had the interests of the Institution at heart as much as any other brother who was present. He had been to the Institution, had seen it, and had admired it—as every visitor must admire it—as one of the grandest Institutions of Freemasonry. Sir Walter Burrell was esteemed by the brethren of his own Province, and by all others beyond his Province who had the pleasure of his acquaintance. He was one of those genial, kind-hearted brethren who, whenever they had the opportunity of doing any good or assisting any brother who could do any good for Masonry would be always quite ready to do it, supporting any good work that was to be done. He concluded by formally proposing the health of Sir Walter W. Burrell, Bart, M.P., the Chairman of the day. In reply, Sir Walter Burrell thanked the brethren for the very cordial manner in which they had received him that evening. He was unacquainted with most of those present but was extremely gratified with the reception given him—it had taken him rather by surprise. He knew, however, that when any one did their duty as regarded Masonry, they were generally respected among Masons. He had endeavoured to do his duty, and if he had failed he hoped they would excuse his shortcomings. When he was first asked to give his consent to occupy the chair that evening he hesitated, because he thought he was not really sufficiently worthy; but when he was pressed by some of the brethren of his Province, and told that if he would consent to take the chair his Province would produce for the benefit of the Girls' School a sum of not less than £1,000, he felt he should not be doing his duty if he said no. He therefore consented, and then believed that when the lists were read out it would be found that, owing to the Sussex Stewards doing their very utmost in supporting him, the £1,000 had been considerably increased. His Province was neither large nor wealthy, and in addition it was a very inconvenient one for getting about. He would not weary the brethren with statistics, but would refer them to the papers that had been handed to them during the dinner. They would then be able to understand the working of the Masonic Institution for Girls. The tuition at the School was something marvellous. He recently visited the Institution, and was never so much struck in his life as he was on seeing the happy and healthy faces of the pupils, and the extraordinary manner in which their tuition had brought them forward. One thing in particular he noticed. There were six pianos, and two girls at each piano, playing at the same time, yet he could not catch one of them out a single note, they all played so beautifully together. Their drilling and gymnastic exercises was the most beautiful sight he had ever witnessed. He would prefer, as he had said on his visit to the School, to see those girls manœuvre as they did, rather than go to any opera or any other amusement. It was a satisfaction to Masons to know they were educating and maintaining something like two hundred and forty-two girls in the Institution, and that since the foundation of the Charity it had educated 1,389 girls. They were met to celebrate the Ninety-Seventh Anniversary of the Institution, an Anniversary which he hoped and trusted would be an honour to Masons, a credit to the School, and an encouragement to that excellent Mason and Secretary, Bro. Hedges; he knew that Bro. Hedges worked hard, and that the Stewards of Sussex had worked very hard; but what the result might be he could not at present tell, he did not actually know; but he did know they were all bent on the support of the School, which he hoped and trusted, with the blessing of the Great Architect of the Universe, might last for many hundreds of years, long after all now present had passed away and gone to their rest. He also trusted that in those days Masons would be able to support the Institution in the same manner, and even to a greater extent than the brethren of the present day were supporting it. He had simply to thank those present for the kind manner in which they had drunk his health, and to call upon them to honour the toast of "Success to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls," coupling with it the health of the Treasurer, Brother Horace Brooks Marshall, C.C., Past Grand Treasurer. Brother Horace B. Marshall returned thanks. He assured the subscribers to the Institution that the Board of Management were united in the earnestness of their desire to judiciously and wisely expend the funds which were so generously placed at their disposal, feeling sure they were carrying out the desires and intentions of the subscribers in determining to spare no effort, no careful personal supervision of the details of management, so that the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls should rank in the future, as it had done in the past, second to no Institution of a similar nature in the United Kingdom. The Board were amply rewarded for their labour of love by the practical sympathy of the Craft, and the continuance of the generous support that had hitherto been afforded to the Institution.

The Secretary (Bro. F. R. W. Hedges) then announced the totals of the various Stewards' lists (particulars of which, amended to the time of going to press) will be found elsewhere. Bro. S. Pope gave "The other Masonic Charities, and success to them, viz., The Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution." Very early in his Masonic education he had been taught that obedience and charity were the two cardinal Masonic virtues. He obeyed the call of the chair, and invited the brethren to wish success—equal success—to the other Charities. Charity was a noble virtue, but individual charity was powerless. Organisation of charity was essential to its utility. It must have touched the heart of every Freemason present to find that the affectionate attachment to his Province of the Chairman of the day had resulted in so magnificent a contribution to the funds of the Institution as had been announced from Sussex. The members of the Craft had already done what they could for the Girls' School, but must not forget that in a short time the Institution for Boys and the Benevolent Institution would equally claim their support and enthusiasm. He believed that as soon as he became entitled to investigate the proceedings of the Masonic Charities he was convinced that there were no Institutions throughout the length and breadth of the kingdom deserving better of the support of those who sympathised with their objects than the Masonic Institutions. The Craft, held together perhaps by a somewhat slender thread, yet binds together in one bond an amount of charity and good will which must make it permanent and respected. It is because the Institutions are administered with a due regard to the interests of those for whom they are established that it is possible to induce such liberal support as had been heard of that night. He hoped it might be his privilege to attend at the Festivals of the other Masonic Institutions, and to hear they had subscription lists as large, as enthusiastic, and as heartily given as that announced that night. Bro. Binckes was exceedingly pleased to have the opportunity of being present that evening to respond to the toast of the other Masonic Institutions, which had been so admirably, so energetically, and so warmly proposed by their distinguished brother, Samuel Pope. It was only one of the practices congenial to Freemasonry that while they were establishing or celebrating a success in one direction, they had the largest hearts in wishing success to others of a kindred nature. The ceremonies told us that while we were happy ourselves, one of the highest duties devolving on us—and one which was thoroughly realised—was to communicate happiness to others. With reference to the other Institutions, the Benevolent Festival was celebrated in February last, with an enormous amount of success. The Institution under whose auspices they were met that evening had had a glorious success. They all congratulated each one who was bound together in promoting this good work on the great achievements of these Institutions. He came before them as the representative of the neglected Institution—coming last, obliged to be content with the crumbs that fall from the table of the rich. Their enthusiastic friend, in proposing the toast, had asked them to do what they could to promote the success of the Boys' School. What had they done in the past—and he could look back on his career when the School was in its infancy—what had they done? Brought it up from 50 boys to something like 215, and in obedience to the call of the Craft they were then laying out something like £15,000 to accommodate some 50 sons of Freemasons. Were they going to allow sentiment to operate—whether on the part of the aged or the more attractive children the Girls—to militate against whatever success there should be of what he had called, and should continue to call, the cause of muscular Freemasonry? Were they to meet with something like the success which had been achieved by the Festivals of the other two Institutions? He did not hesitate to state that he was then labouring under an enormous amount of anxiety—justifiable anxiety; with a much smaller number of Stewards than they had yet had, he positively shook and quivered with anxiety as to what would be the result of the Festival. Was it a matter of joke, or was it serious? He told them it was serious; and, as they were insisting on the Institution enlarging its borders, so he must insist that they should their liberality. Congratulating those who were connected with the other Institutions on their success—the Benevolent Institution in February last and the Girls' that night—might he hope that his Festival, to be presided over by the Marquis of Hartington, Prov. Grand Master of Derbyshire, should not only not be neglected, but should be supported as liberally as the other Institutions? He appreciated the kindness which his poor efforts had invariably received, and, while thanking them heartily for what they had done, he asked them to support him largely in his present efforts. Bro. Terry followed. After the exhaustive appeal of his colleague of the Boys' School, he desired, in a few words, to express his gratitude for the favours which had been conferred upon the Institution with which he was most intimately associated, and to congratulate the executive of the Girls School upon the splendid result achieved that evening. He thanked the brethren for the compliment they had paid him, and Brother Samuel Pope for the kindly way in which he had wished success to the Institutions. With the toast of the Stewards was coupled the name of Brother Lieut.-General C. W. Randolph G.S.W. of Sussex, the President of the Board. That brother felt very proud of being the President of the Stewards by whose exertions upwards of £14,000 had been raised for the Institution. Though his speech might not be one of eloquence he would tell the brethren something practical—the Stewards of Sussex were not satisfied with having brought up £1800, and therefore had had a "whip" that evening which had resulted in increasing their total to £2000. Having made these remarks he would conclude by saying he thought Sussex had done its duty that night. The Rev. Dr. Galbraith followed. He thanked the brethren very heartily for conferring the honour of response on him; but calling upon him to address a few words to such a distinguished company as he saw around him, and particularly that his humble name should be associated with the Stewards of the English Constitution; men whose duties had been performed—not this year only, but in former years—in such a manner that their praise had resounded, not only through their country, but through others, as he could testify. All he could regret was that in Ireland they had not established in their system such a body of men as these admirable Stewards, for he fairly believed that if they succeeded in doing so—and that night's experience encouraged him to hope that they could—they would greatly augment their resources in Ireland in practical and active benevolence. Benevolence, as the word was, merely meant to wish well; but to wish well required action to be worth anything. Benevolence might be shown in many ways, as Masons knew, but he did not know any more agreeable, any more amiable, any more noble way, in which they could display benevolence than in succouring the children of the Masons who had departed and left them dependent on the liberality of the living brethren. In Ireland certainly, they had a Masonic Girls' School, as some of the brethren who had travelled could testify. It was a very fine Institution, and though they had not in it as many girls as the English Institution had, it must be remembered that Masons were not so numerous a body in Ireland as they were in England. It had, nevertheless, sixty girls, or a quarter of what the English School had; the sixty girls were well maintained, and well educated; while the two principal teachers had been taken from the English School. Brother the Rev. R. J. Simpson P.G.C. proposed "The Ladies," coupling with the toast the name of Brother J. H. Matthews.

The brethren then repaired to the Temple, where the customary concert was given. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Brother T. Lawler jun., who was supported by Miss José Sherrington, Miss Jessie Royd, Miss Frances Hipwell, Miss Mary McClean, Bros. E. Dalzell, Sidney Tower, Robert Hilton, T. Lawler jun.; Miss Nettie Carpenter (Violin), and Brother F. Meen (Piano).

REVIEWS.

All Books intended for Review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, Belvidere Works, Hermes Hill, Pentonville, London, N.

"Bye-Laws of the Jamaica Masonic Library." Kingston, Jamaica: H. Clark Duncker, Printer, 117 Water-lane.

The example set by the city of Kingston might well be followed in this country, certainly in every large centre of Masonry. A few earnest brethren in Jamaica met together to consider if it was not possible to form a library in connection with the Province. They formed themselves into a body, and put forth that their object "is the diffusion of Masonic information with regard to the History, Principles and Practice of Freemasonry, in times past and present throughout the world, and to enable this to be done an Association is organised . . . to provide the means of accomplishing its object." The proposed scheme took at once. The Governors of the Jamaica Institute furnished the necessary accommodation, liberal brethren contributed books and MSS., Lodges in the Province subscribed, and in November last the bye-laws now before us were sanctioned. The Library is established, and a very excellent beginning has been made. The contributions of the members have been numerous, and with the books ordered from London, stores of knowledge are furnished to the members which cannot but prove both interesting and instructive. We congratulate our brethren of the Province of Jamaica; they have set an example to the Mother country which it will do well to follow. We trust that the management will be as comprehensive as the enterprise is bold and worthy, and that no narrow prejudice or mean parsimony will prevent the fugitive literature of the Craft from finding a place on the Library table. There are many excellent periodicals connected with Freemasonry, both in England and America, and amongst them the Freemason's Chronicle, which has a status of its own, and without which no Masonic Library can be said to be complete.

"Masonic Calendar for the Province of Hampshire and Isle of Wight." Southampton: "Hampshire Advertiser" Office. Printed by Henry King. 1885-6.

There is necessarily much that is common to all Masonic Calendars, features that cannot be dispensed with, and variety can only be obtained by a change of arrangement. The information in the Calendar before us is of the usual type, clearly arranged, but in addition there is a record of past officers in connection with the several bodies that exist in the Province. The value of the work as a reference book is, in consequence, very much enhanced to those more immediately concerned, and those who take an interest in the growth of the Craft cannot fail to welcome such a means as this Calendar offers for satisfying their curiosity and desire for knowledge. Hampshire appears to be a flourishing Province, and Masonry in its various branches grows and thrives there to a greater extent, comparing its size and population, than in any other county or combination of counties. All branches of the Craft find a home in the Province, including the Swedenborgian Rite, Esoteric Orders, and Cryptic Degrees. No doubt three such important places as Portsmouth, Southampton, and Aldershot, have done much to encourage the growth and development of the mystic Orders, but the same spirit seems to prevail throughout the county, and in that beautiful spot the Isle of Wight. It is right that the various bodies in those places should have a worthy record, and they have it in the Calendar before us.

"The Little One's Own Coloured Picture Paper." Edited by Mrs. Elizabeth Day. London: 160A Fleet-street.

This new venture is published by Messrs. Dean and Son, who are so well known for the production of coloured toy books, and who seem to distance all others in this particular line. The publication now claiming attention is issued weekly at one penny, and in monthly parts. From the prospectus we learn that it "aims to be a second mother to all little ones, and its greatest privilege is to promote goodness, truth, and kindness, and to convey motherly lessons of simple gentle piety." The first number was issued on Saturday last, and it fully bears out the claims put forward in the prospectus. It is just the kind of paper that was wanted. It fills up a gap in the supply of periodical literature, and is so well done that success is certain. There are four full page illustrations in the first issue, all inculcating useful lessons in a most attractive form, and in a style suitable to infantile minds. We should not be surprised if this gaily-coloured and lively-written periodical does not find favour with many who are in the sere and yellow leaf, but who live their childish days over again in their grand-children. At any rate, no one who loves little children can fail to appreciate this coloured picture paper, which is so well adapted to their wants and so well calculated to teach purity of thought and action.

Mr. Alfred J. Eyre, the talented Organist of the Crystal Palace, was initiated into Freemasonry on Monday last, in the Quadratic Lodge, No. 1691, at the Mitre Hotel, Hampton Court. The ceremony of initiation was very ably performed by Bro. R. H. Thrupp P.A.G.D.C., and Deputy Prov. Grand Master Middlesex.

THE BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION—A YEAR'S WORK.

AFTER the urgent appeals on behalf of the Masonic Charitable Institutions which are made throughout the country day by day, and week by week, from year's end to year's end, it is but fair the Craft should occasionally be told the result of the solicitations which are so pertinaciously continued, and what has been done with the money subscribed. English Freemasons are doubtless accustomed to hear that the Charities of the Order are doing a good work, that they are dependent on the liberality of the Craft for their support, that the claims on their resources are heavy, and that generally there is much to do, and perhaps little to do it with; but how many of them are really conversant with the facts of the case; know to what extent the Institutions do rely on the sympathy of the brethren of England, or what would happen if the flow of subscriptions should be stopped, or even materially lessened? Of course there are some who have taken the trouble to think the matter out, but the majority have given little or no serious attention to the subject. They may perhaps have heard one of the Secretaries of the Institutions make an appeal on behalf of the cause with which they are associated, and which they are so ably qualified to plead for. They have been struck with the argumentative or persuasive eloquence of the speaker, and have there and then determined to do something in support of so deserving a cause; but on reflection they have perhaps been led to look upon the forcible language which at the time impressed them as but the natural utterance of a man whose sole aim is to awaken the spirit of benevolence in his hearers, or in other words that the address was nothing more than the introductory remarks of a good man of business, whose desire it was to secure support for the Institution he represented. There are doubtless many who look upon the appeals of the Secretaries in this light, and not a few who do not subscribe to the Institutions because of the change which takes place in their feelings. But if they do so withhold their donations they do an injustice to a worthy cause. No matter how the Secretaries may appeal; how they paint the horrors of old age and poverty, youth with blighted prospects, together with the utter helplessness of the Institutions to cope with the many calls which are made upon them, we do not think they can exaggerate the claims of the Charities, even if they can plead for them as forcibly as they deserve. Nothing that can be said as to the worthiness of our Institutions is too strong, and no language is too forcible to make use of when advocating their support.

The Annual Report of the Committee of Management of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, which was presented to the Governors and Subscribers at their annual meeting on Friday, the 15th instant,—taken in connection with the election of annuitants which took place the same day,—affords us ample material on which to prove the truth of our remarks. Before going fully into details of the case, however, we will attempt to defend our views by one observation:—The Benevolent Institution has at the present time three hundred and seventy-five annuitants on its funds, receiving among them thirteen thousand eight hundred and four pounds per annum in annuities alone. If this was all we had to show as the outcome of this Masonic Charity, of which we are so proud, we think we should yet have good reason to boast, but as is known to our readers it is but the work of one Institution out of three, and is a fair example of what is being done by each. Let us, however, look at the Report, as presented by the Committee; it may briefly be described as a continuous round of congratulation, and when we consider what has been done during the past year it may well be so. In the first case, there is reference to the Anniversary Festival, which was held on Wednesday, 25th February, under the presidency of Sir Michael E. Hicks Beach, Bart., M.P., Provincial Grand Master for Gloucestershire. Last year, we are told, the Committee pointed out, with reference to the Festival of the year, that the total raised (£14,665 13s) was the largest amount ever contributed on a similar occasion in aid of the funds of the Institution, and therefore we can imagine with what pleasure they have to announce—and with what pleasure the news has been received—that this year's total is upwards of three thousand pounds in excess of last year, the actual figures being £17,770 6s 2d. This is indeed a grand total, and reflects the greatest credit on the Chairman and the 352 brethren who constituted the Board of Stewards at the Festival of 1885. Well may the Committee say, "It is impossible the Craft could have furnished a grander illustration than this of the loyalty with which it fulfils its most solemn obligations," and that "it is at a loss for words to sufficiently express its gratitude to the Right Worshipful Chairman and those who laboured so zealously and so successfully in securing this splendid result." Not only is this the opinion of the Committee; it must also be the verdict of every brother associated with the Institution which has been so nobly supported. We are very pleased to see that the Committee have recognised how much of this success is due to the exertions of Bro. Terry, the Secretary of the Institution, and have shown the sincerity of their recognition by presenting to that brother the sum of one hundred guineas, "in recognition of his great exertions to secure the success, and of the additional heavy duties which will devolve upon him in the future." There may be—indeed we believe there are—brethren who question the policy of this expenditure, but we ask them to look at the result and answer for themselves the question—how much of the success was due to the exertions of Bro. Terry? We are convinced that a large proportion of it has been the result of his untiring exertions; and if even the £3000 which this year's Festival realised in excess of last year's is all that has come to the Institution in consequence of the special work he has imposed upon himself, and we should be inclined to say that even more is due to his persistent appeals—day and night be it remembered—no one would begrudge the special recognition he has been the recipient of. It is one thing to attend a Masonic meeting once in a way, on pleasure bent, but quite another—as we can testify—to go to two, three, four or even more each week with a set purpose in view, which really amounts to business. An ordinary member of a Lodge can refrain from attending a meeting if he may feel indisposed, if he have other calls on his time, or if indeed he may be inclined so to do, but this is not the case with brethren who have public duties to perform; they must accept and attend to every invitation they receive, no matter when or where the meeting is to be held, and sacrifice all personal calls for the good of the cause they champion. Is it then too much to specially reward them when they have made special efforts—efforts, too, which have had the most satisfactory results?

The next section of the Report deals with the number of annuitants on the Funds of the Institution, the number seeking admission to its benefits, and the vacancies which were available for them. After the Election of 1884 the Institution had upon its Funds 352 annuitants (170 men and 182 widows), of whom 21 (18 men and 3 widows) died during the twelve months to the day of election of 1885. For this year's contest there were 118 approved candidates, for whom the twenty-one vacancies caused by the death of former annuitants were the only natural ones open. The Committee, however, in face of so formidable a list of applicants, decided, at their meeting in February, to increase the number of vacancies, by placing three more men and ten more widows upon the Fund, and later on the Governors and Subscribers, at the Annual Meeting on the day of Election, declared vacancies for ten more widows, so that the number of annuitants was raised to 375—173 men and 202 widows—to which number it was that day increased and now stands. The amount required for these 375 annuitants is £13,384 per annum, in addition to which it must be borne in mind that a further annual sum of £420 will be needed to provide the half of late husbands' annuities assigned to 21 widows, and payable during the first three years of their widowhood. This very considerable increase in the number of annuitants will of course necessitate even more strenuous exertions in the future, as any falling off in income must naturally be followed by a corresponding decrease in the number of recipients; but such an event we trust it will never be our task to record.

There are several other items of interest in the Report, but inasmuch as we give it in full in another column, it is not necessary to refer to them here. We may, however, again congratulate the Committee on the pleasurable task they have had to perform, and express a hope that their future annual statements may always be as satisfactory.

Referring now to the statement of the receipts and expenditure of the Institution, we find that the totals for the year under all heads have been: Receipts £19,822 0s 4d, and Expenditure £16,168 6s 7d, showing a surplus of £3,653 13s 9d, of which latter sum £2,077 10s has been expended in the purchase of Government Stock, the total The year's work, therefore, has resulted in an increase in the funded property of the Institution, at a cost of upwards of two thousand pounds, and an increase of £1,576 3s 9d in balances carried forward, in addition to the payment of the annuities and the current expenses of the twelve months. The Male Fund started the year (reckoned from 1st April 1884) with a balance of £3,445 12s 9d, and received, during the term under notice, a total of £8,397 19s 7d. Of the receipts, £2,017 10s 8d comes under the head of permanent income, comprising annual grants from Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter £900, and dividends on Stock in Government Funds £1,117 10s 8d. The balance of £6,380 8s 11d is made up of special grants from Grand Chapter, donations from Lodges, Chapters and individuals, annual subscriptions, legacies, and sundries. The expenditure during the same term was £8,254 4s 5d (exclusive of the amount spent in the purchase of stock), and may be divided under three heads, as follows: annuities £6,700, expenses in connection with the inmates of the Asylum at Croydon (medicine, warden, pension to late gardener, gardener's salary, rates and taxes, entertainment of Stewards and annuitants, rent of field, &c.) £227 18s 5d, and expenses of management, postages, election, salaries, commission, &c. £1,326 6s. The Female Fund had a balance brought forward at the commencement of the year of £3,981 3s, and received £11,394 15s 9d during the twelve months. In this case the receipts under the head of permanent income amounted to £1,575 10s 4d, made up of grants from Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter £850, and dividends on stock in Government Funds £725 10s 4d; while the donations from Lodges, Chapters, special grant from Grand Chapter, and individuals, annual subscriptions, legacy, &c. total up to £9,819 5s 5d. The disbursements (exclusive of the sum invested) amounted to £7,909 18s 2d, and, divided as in the case of the Male Fund, shows the following totals: annuities £6,297, expenses in connection with the inmates of the Asylum at Croydon £243 18s 8d, and expenses of management, &c. £1,368 19s 6d. The sustentation of Building Fund had a balance on 31st of March 1884 of £73 6s 7d, received during the year £29 5s (from dividends on stock in Government Funds), and expended £4 4s on repairs, so that it stood £21 5s better off at the end of the year than at the commencement. Summarising the totals of the three funds we have the following as the statement of the year: Balances brought forward £7,500 2s 4d, Receipts £19,822 0s 4d (£3,622 6s on Permanent income account, and £16,199 14s 4d donations, &c.), expenditure £16,168 6s 7d, Purchase of Stock £2,077 10s, and balances carried forward £9,076 6s 1d. The expenditure summarised under the three heads given above totals up as follows: Annuities £12,997, Expenses at Croydon £476 1s 1d, and Expenses of Management, &c., £2,695 5s 6d. This latter item is one which brethren are sometimes heard to refer to as being very heavy: but a brief examination of it will, we think, go far to correct this opinion, or at all events to considerably modify it. The totals for the year show an expenditure of £2,695 5s 6d, under what we have termed expenses of management, &c.; but this title is somewhat misleading, as the details of the several items comprised in it will prove. No less a sum than £1,313 10s 9d has to be deducted under the head of Postages, &c., including expenses of election (£472 1s); Stationery, Printing, &c. (£356 0s 4d); Provincial, &c. Expenses (£132 8s); Repairs, Painting, &c., and goods supplied (£119 8s 6d); Rent of Office and hire of Hall for election (£95 5s); Advertisements (£47 13s 9d); Votes of thanks to Stewards (£42 12s 6d); Messenger and Petty Expenses (£48 1s 8d). This leaves us a total of £1,381 14s 9d expended in management expenses proper, and even of this sum £496 6s 9d has to be deducted as the amount of the Collector's commission (£488 16s 9d), and premium on his guarantee policy (£7 10s), giving a final balance of £885 8s, as the expenses entailed in the Secretarial and Clerical duties necessary in connection with the receipt and expenditure of close on twenty thousand pounds. We do not think those who complain of this so-called extravagance can have given any attention to the subject; they have known that a large amount was being annually expended on matters outside actual annuities, without taking into consideration that a very large portion of this outside expenditure was represented by postages, printing, stationery, rent, &c., or they would never have imagined that the management of the Institution was an expensive one. The actual cost—exclusive of collector's commission, which we consider should be considered separately from management expenses—is less than four and a half per cent on the total raised! If we may judge of the value of services by the result which follows, and of the cost of management in comparison with what it realises, we may hold up the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution as a pattern of excellence, rather than, as some would have us believe, an expensive and extravagantly managed Institution.

In conclusion, a few words as to this year's election. We have already seen that there were forty-four vacancies to be filled, and one hundred and eighteen approved candidates to compete for them. Of this latter number 5 died previous to the contest, so there were 113 left to go to the poll. Of these, forty-four were elected as immediate annuitants, six as deferred annuitants, and the remainder were sent away unsuccessful;—with the exception of the four (two male and two female) highest on the poll, who are entitled to receive the sums of money granted by the Committee of the John Hervey Fund. We offer our congratulations with those of the two former classes, and our sympathy with those of the latter. All we can hope for them is, that they may be more fortunate next year, when we trust it may be possible to give as gratifying a record as this has been of the year's work of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution.

Last week we published the names of the successful candidates, with the number of votes polled; in another part of this issue we publish a list of the unsuccessful, with the number of votes standing to their credit, all of which will, as usual, be carried forward for their benefit next year.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—As Spring advances a most favourable opportunity offers for rectifying irregularities, removing impurities, and erasing blemishes, which have arisen from the presence of matters forbad by winter from being transpired through the pores. This searching Ointment, well rubbed upon the skin, penetrates to the deeply-seated organs, upon which it exerts a most wholesome and beneficial influence. Well nigh all the indigestions give way to this simple treatment, aided by purifying and aperitive doses of Holloway's Pills, round each box of which plain "instructions" are folded. Bilious disorders, loss of appetite, fullness after eating, lassitude, gout and rheumatism may be effectually checked in their painful progress, and the seeds of long suffering eradicated by these remedies.

Princess's.—The present brief but most successful run of the "Silver King" closed on Wednesday, when a crowded and enthusiastic audience gave the occasion almost the excitement of a "première." Mr. Wilson Barrett, Mr. Willard, and Miss Eastlake were recalled after each act, and when the curtain finally fell the manager was thrice summoned. As the audience would not depart without a speech, Mr. Wilson Barrett modestly thanked them for the reception given to the "Silver King," and announced the re-appearance of another old friend on Saturday. We trust ere long Mr. Barrett will present us with another Shakespearian revival. Personally we feel so classic an actor is unwise if he buries himself too much in the slums of "Horrible London."

Toole's.—The comic muse of King William-street, with sprightly impertinence, has seized upon the prevalent Japanomania, and offers us his delightfully preposterous "Japananza." Here Bro. J. Toole, as the "Great Tay-Kin," is almost unrecognisable when, like the dawn in Eastern "mantle clad," he appears in the gorgeous costume of old Japan. This merry little skit was written before the Japanese village met with such sudden disaster, but though the shops, the lanterns, the flags, the inhabitants with shaven heads, queer wooden clogs, foliated garments, with features and complexions to match, are introduced as matter for laughter, the laughter is of the kindliest sort. Mr. Toole is once more a henpecked spouse; he is indulging in the meekest little flirtation at the Village, whilst the villagers with native simplicity dance and sing with excruciating realism. To escape his angry wife, he assumes the dress of a native conjuror, and is under the necessity of dissembling his incapacity. But he is happily helped out of his difficulty by the charming native lady, Miss Osaker, who delighted every one with her pretty rendering of some capital palming and pass-pass tricks. There is a very clever duet in the true Gilbertian vein, introduced in praise of the great Tay-Kin family, with its cheap wines and cheap science, its poker for travellers, copper mines, co-operative companies, invention shows, with unlimited flirtation privileges, and all the newest productions of the gifted fraternity. The song is nightly encored, whilst a duet between Mr. Toole and Mr. Ward is equally fetching. Every one engaged entered with zest into the fun; especially amusing were Mr. Cheesman, Mr. Shelton, and Miss Emily Thorne. We must not omit to mention delightful Netty Grey, the three-year-old jap baby.

Mr. William Bull's Orchid Exhibition. — A short journey on the Metropolitan Railway and fifteen minutes in a Chelsea omnibus and we reach the enchanted palace of the queen of flowers, Orchidis—so devotedly served by her devoted liegeman William Bull. At Mr. Bull's nursery, 136 Queen's-road, Chelsea, we pass through a greenhouse where tall tree ferns spread their fans in happy disregard of London smoke, thence through a second door and we are amidst the loveliest, most brilliant and most fantastic wonders, whose forbears make the glory of the forests of Mexico, Peru, Ceylon, Java or the Indies. All colours that are fair, save blue—is it not strange that the hue of heaven should be denied these children of the air? There are multiform varieties of the slipper orchid, so quaintly graceful, but with its death-trap for prying insects. The saffron-toned octopus bloom, with its long groping arms. That merry conceit of a flower the bird on a rock, a loving mimicry. The graceful cluster of the cymbidium, with its delicate peach lines touched with deep red. The graceful calanthi, which condescends to grow on the earth. The pure white orchid from Borneo, the butterfly spreading its petal wings and waving its delicate stamen antennæ. A hundred varieties, all beautiful and all growing with luxuriance; one might imagine the scene a dream of the far East. Mr. Bull shows us some that will grow in an unwarmed conservatory, while there are many that can be purchased for a few shillings. Here is to be seen the divine Chelsiniensis, of which Mr. Bull asserts that he possesses the only plant that has ever bloomed in Europe. We advise those of our readers who may be depressed by the assertive character of the north winds to invoke Mr. Bull's kindly aid, we can assure them he can introduce them to a paradise of perennial bloom.

The Oxford.—Those who, like ourselves, find enjoyment in an abundant and refined entertainment can scarcely hope to secure any more congenial means of passing an evening than at this pre-eminently successful music-hall. By the exercise of that tact in management and judicious selection of materiel for which he has become proverbial, Bro. J. H. Jennings has made the Oxford par excellence the resort of those who admire talent in this particular line, and who love gay and sparkling humour as distinguished from boisterous buffoonery. On the occasion of our visit, after the usual prefatory incidents, we watched with interest the spirited and clever exploits of the Avolo Boys, "pine-stick marvels and musical wonders," whose performances justly entitle them to their self-assumed appellation. Then came the American speciality artistes, Rowe and Athol, who were well received, but one of the most notable features of the entertainment was the astounding pantomimic act of the Boisset Troupe, whose evolutions on the stage were of the most marvellous and interesting character. The troupe, six in number, were made up after the most picturesque fashion, French in every characteristic, and their "knock-about" work was of a novel and, to our thinking, hazardous character, for shoulders, shins, and other excrescences of the human frame. They received assistance from some cleverly contrived properties, in the shape of a cabinet, pianoforte, and other appliances. The musical ability of the troupe is also of a high order, and when the audience perceived that their instruments were capable of receiving the bodies of the performers, who dived or were literally thrown into them, their wonder may be better imagined than described. We think Bro. Jennings has done wisely in retaining the services of this truly clever troupe for the Whitsuntide entertainments, and we cordially recommend all who are in want of a thoroughly enjoyable means of amusement and relaxation to pay a visit to the Oxford. The tariff has recently been revised, and refreshments are now purveyed at the ordinary out-door prices, so that the public need not fear the tax which is often found at places of amusement, and of which complaint is so justly made. To those of our friends who are total abstainers it will be gratifying to know that a cup of tea, coffee, or chocolate, "eminently drinkable," can be obtained at the modest charge of threepence.

Alhambra.—Those of our readers who delight in ballets and a strong variety company should pay the Alhambra a visit. The Swans and Melusine ballets, with Mdlle Sampietro and Mdlle Palladino respectively as premières, give a chance of seeing some graceful dancing. Miss Vesta Tilley and Miss Jenny Hill are clever, though the songs of the latter lack refinement. Pierce and Monaghan sing and dance well; while Dutch Daly proves himself a master of the instrument he introduces. Mons. Trewey, performs some clever juggling tricks, while his balancing is exceptionally good. The Chiesi troupe go through some extraordinary acrobatic feats, while the hat throwing and catching of the men is effected with marvellous accuracy. Charles Coborn received the usual reception given to those artists who lay themselves out for political songs. In conclusion the band, which is under the direction of M. Jacobi, during the evening plays several popular selections in an admirable manner.

PARSIS AND FIRE WORSHIP.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In looking over the British Critic for the half year ending December 1803, I notice a review of "Letters upon the Atlantis of Plato, and the Ancient History of Asia," by M. Bailly. The author fixes upon "the bleak and frozen regions of Siberia," as "the primitive seat of science, the abode of the first race of men, the famed Atlantides, who descending in latter ages from the overflowing plains of Scythia, and down the steeps of Caucasus, brought with them into Southern Asia the rudiments of the arts and sciences, and the worship of the sun and fire, which, he asserts, could only have originated in a climate, and in the cheerless empire of polar darkness." So writes the reviewer. M. Bailly was a Frenchman of great reputation as an astronomer, and it is said of him that he achieved notoriety not only for the views he held on the above subject, but also for his ingratitude. He is accused of having received a private pension from the King, and of having insulted and betrayed him. Whatever may have been the truth in this matter, M. Bailly gained favour with the revolutionary party, but the connection proved his Nemesis. He advanced too far for his reputation, but not far enough for his new friends, and from patriot to traitor was but a short step. He was guillotined in 1793. Like Voltaire, whom he so much admired and flattered, he was the enemy of all religion, and his views relating thereto must be received with caution, if not with grave suspicion.

M. Bailly's hostility to religion warped his judgment, and it may be influenced his estimation and statements of facts. Therefore the following must be taken with the limitations I have mentioned. He says the Persian nation, "in point of antiquity is at least equal to the Chinese." Popular opinion assigns to the latter nation a fabulous age, but if M. Bailly is to be relied upon the origin of the Chinese empire can be held within the grasp of time. He adds that the Persian empire and the foundation of Persepolis ascend to "three thousand two hundred and nine years before Jesus Christ." Whatever may be the value of this estimate, there can be no doubt of the antiquity of Persia, a claim urged by the author of the history of the Parsis, and confirmed by others well able to judge. With equal confidence M. Bailly says the Persians were "worshippers of the fire of the sun." Here he parts company with Dosabhai Framji Karaka, and falls into what appears to be a common error. That some Persians might have confounded substance with symbol, a physical fact with a spiritual type, as did the Egyptians of old, and as many do now, is quite possible, but the question arises—did the Persians really worship fire and the sun as material entities? M. Bailly assumes that they did, apparently upon the authority of tradition, and not upon facts duly weighed. There is good evidence against his assumption, for the learned Thos. Hyde, D.D., a century before M. Bailly's time, very clearly describes the theory of fire and sun worship. The reviewer in the Critic, on the authority of Dr. Hyde, says, that the Persians "paid not their worship to the simple element of fire, but adored it as the symbol of the Supreme Being, who pervades, animates and cherishes the universe. The sun was still a brighter symbol, and still purer image, the august temple in which the Deity was thought to have placed his throne, and was honoured with most fervent devotion, but still as a secondary object."

In "the Pillar of Fire: or Israel in Bondage," by the Rev. J. H. Ingraham, LL.D., one of the principal characters is made to say "This meaning . . . removes . . . the impression . . . that you and the queen and your whole court [Egyptian] worshipped the sun as the Persic and Parthian natives do." The following is put into the mouth of another important character: "We are not idolators like the Persian and Barbara Kings." These statements, coming from such a source, are rather staggering. While viewing with suspicion the authority of M. Bailly, that of Dr. Ingraham on the other hand claims respect. I do not pretend to decide between the rival statements, I quote them to show that the belief in the idolatry of the Persians is wide-spread, and is not confined to the uneducated. The Parsis of India seem particularly jealous of their religion, as is shown by the work of their latest historian. The idea of idolatry is repugnant to them, and yet it confronts them in the estimation of many at least who would not wilfully misinterpret their views, and who are entitled to speak with authority. The difficulty is for experts to settle, my part in the matter ends with calling attention to a very serious divergence of opinion. Whatever may have been the practice of the ancient Persians, I do not think it can be maintained that their descendants—the Parsis of India—worship either fire or the sun, or that they are open in any sense to the charge of idolatry.

I am, Sir,

Yours fraternally,

YOUR REVIEWER.

WHICH IS RIGHT?

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—You know Pope's query,—"When doctors disagree, who shall decide?" "W.M.," who wrote to you three weeks ago, and to your contemporary a fortnight since, is evidently between two stools. His question is a simple and natural one. Notice of motion for the exclusion of a brother had been given, and as Master of the Lodge he wished to know whether he should be acting Masonically and within the rules of the Constitutions and Civil law if he placed the name of the threatened brother on the Lodge summons, especially as the accused had written protesting against such action. As a key-note to "W.M.'s" sentiments, which were creditable to him, it may be mentioned that he asked also whether it would not be wiser to treat the case in the same manner as that of a brother in arrears.

Your answer is,—and it is worth repeating,—"No good purpose can follow the publication of the name in such a case; in addition, we are of opinion that an action for libel might stand."

Your contemporary says that not only would it be in accordance with Masonic authority "to give the name of the brother proposed to be excluded," but "that it constitutes no libel to do so. Such also appears to have been the opinion of Bro. Mr. Justice Field in a well-known case." I must plead ignorance of the "well-known case." Were I conversant with it, perhaps I might find that it was not on all fours with the case "W.M." mentions. Putting aside the question of precedent—for at present it is an unknown quantity in the argument—I propose to deal with the matter from a common sense view. First of all it is doubtful whether your contemporary has not volunteered its authority—that is, has inserted a letter from your issue of the previous week for the sake of airing its knowledge and of playing the scarcely friendly part of censor upon yourself. That this view is not altogether without warrant may be seen by an advertisement of the candidate for assistance from a Benevolent Institution. The election took place on 1st May, and it is stated in the advertisement that it would take place on that day, and yet the advertisement is repeated on the 9th. It is a clear case of copying, and not of order. The advertisement I refer to is that of a candidate for the Governesses' Benevolent Annuity Fund. I know of one or two cases in which you have inserted charitable advertisements gratuitously, when you have felt there were special claims, and I should not be surprised to hear that you had been solicited to assist in this instance. If that be so, it is rather singular that your contemporary should wait a fortnight before complying with a similar request, presuming, of course, such request to have been made. I am strengthened in this view by observing that in your contemporary's issue of the 16th inst. not only is this same advertisement repeated, but there is another one referring to the anniversary of the Ragged School Union, which actually took place on the 11th inst. I pass by other advertisements which have appeared from time to time, because your contemporary although dated Saturday is published on Friday morning, so that announcements referring to matters to take place on that day cannot fairly be claimed as anachronisms. The other cases I refer to are stupid blunders. They imply that what we in the country call "bucks" are largely used by your contemporary. There are other advertisements and matters of a suspicious character which indicate to me some of the tricks of the trade. And while I am in the censorious mood, I may as well say that I hold the editor responsible for the proper reading of his own matter at least. Your contemporary is often disfigured by typographical blunders, which show not only negligence but incompetence. The word "outline" for "outlive" is unpardonable in a leader in a paper that boasts in the very next sentence that it is "really and truly one of the leading Masonic journals in Masonry." Truly! how modest! Now I like the Freemason, and am sorry to notice, as I do from time to time, its many shortcomings. Its egotism, I admit, is occasionally too strong. The flavour is always present, but the element of self-praise now and then chokes one. I like a little Latin or French sometimes, not that I understand much of either, but it looks so learned to be able to use foreign words and phrases. It is true English would be equally, if not more effective, but then it would not look so nice nor please the "gods" nearly so well. Forgive me for trespassing thus far. And now let me say a few words about the two answers referred to above.

I do not think many will hesitate to say on which side lies the higher claim to morality and Masonic generosity. To the possible parading of a brother's Masonic delinquencies I have the strongest objection. It is contrary to the spirit of the Craft. If the offence were of a more serious character, then the publication of it would not only be immoral on the part of the brother who caused it to be done, but decidedly libellous in a legal sense. I should like to know where the Masonic authority is to be found for your contemporary's opinion. "W.M." cannot find a rule in the Book of Constitutions that applies to the case, and I do not remember any rule that can be appealed to. Surely your contemporary might have pointed out the authority, especially as "W.M." distinctly asks for it. But it does nothing of the kind; it speaks ex cathedra, and expects to be received as Sir Oracle.

Freemasonry, if it is anything, is a secret society. The law of the land sanctions its existence, but it in no way exonerates it from legal responsibility. Apart from the un-Masonic act of publishing anything that reflects on the character of of a brother, there remains the rights of citizenship, and no privilege ought to protect a man against Masonic unbrotherly feeling and the infraction of legal rights. I do not believe that the law would sanction such a violation as your contemporary suggests, and I am certain that every Masonic feeling is against such a proceeding. We are bound to uphold a Mason's honour, to deal generously with his faults, to protect him even against himself. To say then that it is lawful to publish a statement that might injure him, that would certainly leave a stain upon his character, is contrary to every right I ever heard of, and repugnant to that charity which hopeth all things, and covereth a multitude of sins. You have common sense, honour, morality and charity on your side;—I leave your contemporary to find out what virtue it can claim.

I am, Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

FAIR PLAY.

Obituary.

THE LATE BRO. SIR W. W. WYNN, BART., M.P.

IT is difficult to understand how it is that the death of one man should cause such an extraordinary display of emotion as was witnessed in North Wales last week, except upon the supposition that Sir Watkin Williams Wynn, the object of the people's mourning, really reigned in their hearts. His birth was the signal for an outburst of enthusiasm, his marriage created great excitement, and his death is mourned as if a father in Israel had departed. In his life Sir Watkin displayed all the qualities of a prince, and although a strictly party man in politics, his generosity was never bounded by the narrowness of parties or of creeds. The representatives of the two political bodies vied with each other in bearing testimony to our deceased brother's excellent qualities, the Liberal organ just showing its party teeth, but not sufficiently to spoil the praise it was impelled to bestow. We are told by the Shropshire Post, the organ of the party to which Sir Watkin belonged, that it "would require the compendium of an extraordinary catalogue of kind and beneficent acts . . . to show the good that had been brought about with his co-operation and at his instigation." "Within the family circle Sir Watkin was regarded with the love and affection of all; outside he was looked upon as a public benefactor, and such he was. Few people in North Wales escaped the reach of his beneficence. His tenantry knew and appreciated his word as a landlord; the rich appreciated his genial presence and sound sense; the poor appreciated his kind-hearted and liberal generosity." All the circumstances bear witness to the truth of this picture. Mansion and cottage, church and chapel, in singular unanimity, felt the blow when Sir Watkin died. Those who know how extreme and bitter are the political dissenters of Wales, will estimate their testimony as to the worth of the deceased. Their better nature was touched, and with all the generosity and pride of the native Cymri, they yielded full and unstinted praise. If anything were wanted to show the depth of feeling that had been aroused it was shown at the funeral, which took place at Llangedwyn on Friday last. As early as five o'clock in the morning two thousand people assembled in Wynnstay Park, and the number was considerably increased by six o'clock, when the hearse was sent on its journey through the long avenue of stately trees, the branches and leaves of which formed a grand canopy. The sides of the road were lined with members of the Volunteer Batt. Royal Welsh Fusiliers, and by people of all classes. Throughout the whole route there was the same manifestation of interest and mourning. The hearse was literally covered with beautiful wreaths, and among those who contributed these emblems of respect and immortality were the Lodges Fitzalan, 1432, Oswestry, and Square and Compasses, 1336, Wrexham. There was a very large gathering of the brethren at the funeral to pay a tribute of respect to their deceased Grand Master of the Provincial Grand Lodge of North Wales and Shropshire, among whom were Bros. Sir Offley Wakeman, Bart, D.P.G.C., Rowland G. Venables 611, P.G.S.W., Rees Buckly Williames 991, P.G.J.W., Rev. Robert Jackson 1896 P.G.C., Rev. John Lewis 1509, P.G.C., J. P. White 262 P.G.T., W. H. Spaull 1124 P.G. Secretary, Dr. E. Robinson 998 P.A.G.S., John Kitto 1582 P.G.S.D., W. Putman 611 P.G.J.D., W. J. Lovegrove 1988, 1509 P.G.S. of Works, W. H. Foulkes 1674 P.G.D. of C., Dr. F. H. V. Grosholz 1583 P.G.A.D. of C., A. T. Akeroyd 1432 P.G.O., W. Simms 1621 P.G.P., C. K. Benson 1336 P.A.G.P., V. C. L. Crump 117, Treasurer to the Charity Association, P.G. Steward, T. A. Forster 1594 P.G Stew., J. Maclardy 1432 P.G. Stew., R. Lewis 117 Auditor. The following Masters were present:—Bros. T. C. Royle 117, R. A. Craig 262, W. Morton 611, John Owen 998, G. P. Rayner 1113, L. E. Woolston 1120, G. J. Morgan 1124, J. Perry-Jones 1143, J. F. Edisbury 1336, Samuel Morris 1369, J. H. Parsons 1432, T. L. Evans 1488, John Ginders 1575, J. Jones 1584, H. A. Steer 1674. Each Mason carried a sprig of acacia, which he dropped on the grave as he passed. The scene at the little church and at the grave was most solemn and affecting. Mixed with the relatives of the deceased were peers and peasants, members of the House of Commons and ministers of many faiths. No fewer than a hundred vehicles found their way to Llangedwyn on the occasion of the funeral, and certainly the present generation have never witnessed such a sight as they saw in the village on Friday last. The occasion was a sad one, but the experience was a grand and noble one. The best side of human nature was presented; the simple faith of the people found exemplification in the breasts of the highest, and all combined to pay tribute to honest worth.

Wynnstay has had some rather remarkable inhabitants, of whom we do not desire to speak until we come to the time when the present family became its masters. The direct ancestors of the deceased's family bore the name of Williams, and the father of the first baronet of that name was Canon of Bangor. His son was a barrister, and while on his Welsh circuit is said to have danced with the daughter of Walter Kyffin, Esq., of Glasgoed, Llansilin, whose heart he captivated, and to whose hand he aspired. When he approached the father of the maiden he asked his would-be son-in-law, "What have you?" The ready reply was, "I have, sir, a tongue and a gown." Williams got his bride, and prospered amazingly. He was Speaker in the House of Commons in the time of Charles II., and Solicitor General under James II., when he was made a knight, and afterwards a baronet. While Speaker he incurred a heavy money fine for performing what was little more than an executive act, and as one of the leading counsel for the King against the Seven Bishops, he incurred no little public odium. Sir Thomas Powys was Attorney General, but the brunt of the great forensic fight rested on the shoulders of Sir William Williams, who displayed some fine qualities of mind, and a good deal of temper. The second Sir William married into the Wynn family of Gwydyr, of ancient and kingly descent, and his son became the first Sir Watkin Williams Wynn, of Wynnstay. This baronet was the type of his successor. Smollett said he was "brave, open, and hospitable," and his career proved it. The second Sir Watkin married a daughter of the Duke of Beaufort, but early become a widower. When he came of age a banquet took place in Wynnstay Park, at which were 15,000 guests. "Three coaches full of cooks were sent from London for the occasion," says the Annual Register Sir Watkin married a second time, the daughter of the Right Hon. George Grenville, Prime Minister, and his subsequent life was devoted to the encouragement of art, music, and the drama. He was fond of masquerades, and on one occasion Lelie says, "The jolly Sir Watkin produced great effect at a masquerade in the Pantheon, by riding in as St. David, mounted on a Welsh goat." It is said that he "established a Freemasons' Lodge at Wynnstay, and some of the furniture then used in it is now possessed by St. Oswald's Lodge of Odd Fellows, Oswestry." This "Jolly Sir Watkin," died in 1789 at the early age of forty-one, much beloved. The third Sir Watkin "doted on the military." He founded a regiment of yeomen, called the "Ancient British Fencibles," who did good service in quelling the rebellion in Ireland. They were called "Sir Watkin's Lambs" and "Bloody Britons," and when the strains of the Welsh air, "Sir Watkin's Delight," caught the Irish ear it roused them to fury. This baronet encouraged the Lancastrian method of teaching, and gave a building at Wexham "sufficiently large enough to educate 500 poor children . . . . besides subscribing very handsomely towards the support of the Institutions." In 1814 he equipped another regiment for foreign service, but was too late for the battle of Toulouse. His reception on his return was enthusiastic, and he was presented with a silver vase "weighing 1,500 oz., costing 19s 6d per oz., measuring 3 ft. 2 in. by 2 ft. 4 in. across, and containing 14 gallons." In 1817 Sir Watkin married Lady Henrietta Clive, who became the mother of the late baronet. His father died in 1840, when a demonstration similar to that of Friday week took place. The late Bro. Sir W. W. Wynn's successor is his nephew, who is only twenty-four years of age. He is said to have "a very genial disposition," and to have "won the hearts of all with whom he has come in contact." He has a rich inheritance, and richer than that the record of the good deeds of his noble-hearted predecessor.

BRO. W. W. MOXHAY.

On the 13th instant, at Reading, Bro. William Watkinson Moxhay, P.M. 414, P.P.G.S.W. Berks and Bucks. Bro. Moxhay, who entered the Lodge of Union, 414, on 13th February 1854, was well known and highly esteemed in the Craft. For many years he installed the Masters of the Reading Lodges, his correct ritual and impressive manner in so doing being always much admired. The respect and esteem in which he was held by the Craft was testified by the large attendance at his funeral, which took place in Reading Cemetery, on the 16th instant. The Provincial Grand Secretary, with the Masters and Secretaries of the three Reading Lodges, and the S.W. of the Union Lodge, acted as pall bearers.

BRO. J. E. CARPENTER, M.A., PH. D., P.M. 284, 1196.

THE unexpected and somewhat sudden death of the "Father" of the Urban Lodge, Bro. Joseph Edwardes Carpenter P.M. P.Z., has not only deprived it of its indefatigable and much-esteemed Secretary, but the music-loving public of the most eminent song and ballad writer since the ever-celebrated Tom Moore. Many of the late Bro. Carpenter's productions were set to music by well-known composers, amongst whom Charles Stephen Glover. Vincent Wallace, Macfarren, and Wrighton may be mentioned, and his works attained a universal popularity which has indeed made his name a household word. Wherever the English language is spoken, his "Beautiful Venice," "What are the wild waves saying," "Happy be thy dreams," "Her bright smile haunts me still," and other lyric gems are sure to be found. In addition to his reputation as a song writer, he will be remembered in connection with one of the most popular works of modern times—"Carpenter's Penny Readings," published by F. Warne and Co., the aggregate sale of which may be counted by hundreds of thousands. "Carpenter's celebrated Song Books," published in 8 volumes, containing some 6000 songs, with the names of the authors and composers correctly given, forms the most complete collection of national songs ever published. These and other works, which space will not permit us to enumerate, edited and compiled or composed by Dr. Carpenter, form a lasting memorial of our departed brother. "By their works ye shall know know them." The funeral, which took place on Tuesday, the 12th inst., at Highgate Cemetery, was attended by several of his literary and musical friends, many of whom are members of the Urban Lodge or Chapter, or the Urban Club, from which the former sprang. The Worshipful Master, Bro. C. Butler, and a strong muster of the Past Masters and members were present at the grave, amongst whom we noticed Bros. C. Hawksley I.P.M., J. R. Ware P.M., Jonathan Pearson P.M., J. Tickle P.M., J. Simpson P.M., R. W. Blatchford P.M., F. Eckstein P.M., G. E. Fairchild P.M., J. F. Beck S.W., J. W. Taan J.W., and the following brethren:—A. E. Jones, Francis Radford, R. W. Cheadle, J. Morison, W. E. Haycock P.M. 901, J. T. Plomer, E. Barge P.M. 167, J. J. Smith, R. H. Smith, Dr. R. Walford, G. Watts, Donald King, B. Jeffreys P.M.; also Dr. Lempriere, H. Church, and other members of "light and learning." The coffin, of polished oak, with massive brass mounts, was conveyed from deceased's residence in Norland-square to St. James's Church, Notting Hill, where the first portion of the Burial Service was performed. The procession then moved to the Cemetery, where it was joined by the majority of the before-named brethren and gentlemen, who had assembled at the grave to pay their last sad tribute of respect to departed merit. The sprig of acacia was duly placed at the head of the grave by a thoughtful brother, and the mourners separated. The deceased was seventy-two years of age at the date of his death.

MRS. SPEIGHT.

It is with deep regret that we have to announce the death, on Tuesday morning last, of Mrs. Mary Ann Speight, beloved wife of Bro. C. T. Speight, so well known in the Craft as Provincial Grand Tyler for Surrey, and Tyler of many private Lodges both in the City and suburbs. The lamented deceased, who was in the sixty-eighth year of her age, had long been afflicted with a cancer on the liver, for which she had been attended by Bro. Dr. Cock, of Peckham. Her malady, however, took a more serious turn about three weeks ago, when she was compelled to take to her bed, and after much suffering she expired shortly before nine o'clock on Tuesday morning, at her residence, No. 9 Mona-road, Peckham. The mournful intelligence will be received with profound regret amongst the very wide circle of Freemasons with whom Bro. Speight is held in high and deserved respect, for his unvarying attention and courtesy in the performance of arduous duties. We understand that the funeral will take place on Tuesday afternoon next, at Brockley Cemetery, the cortège leaving Mona-road at three o'clock.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

KENT LODGE, No. 15.

A MEETING of this ancient and excellent working Lodge was held on the 13th inst., at Freemasons' Hall, which was numerously attended by members and visitors. This was the last meeting previous to the vacation, and many took advantage of the occasion to testify their regard for the genial and popular W.M. Bro. Woolley. Bro. James S.W., Cannell J.W., Sleeman P.M. Treasurer, Dukes P.M. Secretary, Pritchard S.D., Towers J.D., Burton I.G., Saunders Organist, Stimson I.P.M., P.M.'s Wells, Ginman, Hirst, Ball. Visitors—Nicholl P.M. 107, Woodruffe 87, Harrington 1563, Legg S.W. 1227, Dove 45, Balchin 2030, Skelton P.M. 1056, Tilling 765, Weeden S.W. 813, Levett 1982, Judd 1960, Roberts 1260, Weston 98, H. M. Levy P.M. 188. After preliminaries, Bro. Williams and Hood Barrs answered the necessary questions satisfactorily, and were raised to the third degree, the W.M. perfectly and impressively reciting the Traditional History, and thus rendering the beautiful ceremony complete. Each of the Officers was perfect in his duties. In due course, routine business was completed, hearty good wishes were tendered, and Lodge was closed until October. The brethren, fifty-two in number, adjourned to the Holborn Restaurant, where a récherché banquet and dessert was supplied by Bros. Gordon and Hamp, in the Duke's Room. The W.M., who presided, proposed the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts. Bro. Stimson, on rising to propose the health of the W.M. said it was a pleasure to have to propose this toast, which he knew would be received with satisfaction by every one. On the evening of Br Woolley's election he (Bro. Stimson) had ventured to predict he would prove himself a credit to the Lodge. The members trusted he might have many candidates, and they felt assured that under his presidency the present would be one of the most successful years in the annals of the Lodge. The W.M. thanked Bro. Stimson for his kind remarks; if he had done his duty to their satisfaction he was amply repaid. The W.M. next proposed the toast of the Past Masters; those present were admirably qualified to do their work. The I.P.M. Bro. Stimson was one who in many respects had rendered the Lodge service; while personally he (the W.M.) felt how great was his indebtedness to him; he would associate his name with the toast. Bro. Stimson was pleased to respond; he was always ready to give assistance to the W.M. for the time being, but their esteemed Bro. Woolley did not require help from any Officer; he was fully competent to carry out his duties. Still, he could assure the younger members who were aspiring to the chair that he as well as the other Past Masters would be pleased to render them any assistance in their power. The toast of the Visitors was next submitted; the Lodge was pleased to see them. Bro. H. M. Levy responded to the toast. The Treasurer and Secretary were next complimented. The W.M. said no more competent brethren could have been selected. Bros. Sleeman and Dukes having made suitable response, the toasts of the Wardens, the Officers, and that of the Tyler followed, and the proceedings were brought to a close. Bros. Stimson, Little, Collins, and Weston contributed some excellent songs and glees. Bros. S. Wells P.M. and Plummer looked after the comfort of the Visitors.

FRIENDSHIP LODGE, No 100.

HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS Prince Edward of Wales, or as he is popularly known, Prince Albert Victor, who was initiated into Freemasonry in the Alpha Lodge by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales Grand Master of England a short time since, was passed to the second degree at the Town Hall, Yarmouth, on Thursday evening, the 7th inst. This was a Lodge of emergency, convened specially for the purpose. The ceremony was admirably performed by Bro. J. W. French W.M. P.G.S. Norfolk, the Royal candidate going through the ceremony in a manner which showed his appreciation of it, and he quite won the respect and goodwill of all present by his ready acquiescence and good-natured but dignified bearing. At the close, Lord Suffield, K.C.B., Prov. G.M. Norfolk, said that he could not let the occasion pass without conveying to the brethren the feelings of gratitude and pleasure he experienced at the most excellent manner in which all the Officers had performed their work. He presumed that the brethren had duly appreciated the honour that had been conferred upon them, and right well had they risen to the occasion. He paid a well-deserved compliment to Bro. French, the W.M., remarking that he performed his duties in a manner he had never seen equalled—a remark which every one present agreed with, for a more decided success could not have been possible. The assembly room presented a most charming appearance. The large body of Masons in full regalia, the presence of more than 30 Officers of Prov. Grand Lodge, and the lovely display of hot-house flowers, forming a bank behind the dais, presented a picture never to be forgotten, and which must have made the ceremony more than usually impressive to a candidate. The brethren of the Lodge present were Bros. Owles I.P.M. P.G.S.B. Norfolk, Beeching S.W., A. E. Welch Junior Warden, Rev. E. Whitehead Chaplain, O. Diver P.M. Treasurer, Bond P.P.G.P. Norfolk P.M. Secretary, Southey S.D., Cubitt J.D., Boufellow P.M. P.P.G.D.C. D.C., Sill I.G., Pyemont Organist, Blagg Steward, Knights Tyler; Past Masters Martin,

After the ceremony H.R.H. left the hall, and on departing was loudly cheered by many persons who had assembled at the grand entrance. The visiting brethren were invited by their brothers of Friendship Lodge to join them at a collation at the Crown and Anchor Hotel later in the evening. The invitation was very generally accepted, and splendid provision made for them by Bro. Franklin P.M. Of course the Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly proposed and honoured, and throughout the proceedings were most hearty and enjoyable. The thanks of the Lodge are due to Bros. Major Dods, Martin, Johnson, Etheridge, Diver, Bonfellow, and Chipperfield, who assisted the Officers in their various duties and in carrying out the arrangements for the day; to Bro. Pyemont for his excellent rendering of the musical portion of the ceremony, and to Bro. Bond P.M. for the efficient manner in which his Secretarial duties were carried out. In consequence of the admirable arrangements made for carrying out the ceremony the Prov. G.M. has since informed the brethren that the next Provincial Grand Lodge will be held at Yarmouth at an early date. We may add that Bro. French W.M. 100 went through the whole of the degree quite unassisted, including the working tools and tracing board, the latter of which our Royal brother appeared to be particularly interested in.

GREY FRIARS LODGE, No. 1101.

Ravenscroft J.W., Stransom Treas., J. Greenaway Sec., H. Creed S.D., T. R. Vowles J.D., W. Rhind acting I.G., W. Hickie Organist, W. Hemmings Tyler; P.M.'s Bros. W. G. Flanagan, and E. The Lodge was opened and the minutes of last regular meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Stewart, a candidate for passing, satisfactorily answered the questions and was entrusted. The Lodge was opened in the second degree, Bro. Stewart who had retired was readmitted and passed to the degree of F.C. by the acting W.M. Lodge was resumed and a ballot was taken for a candidate for initiation; the gentleman was approved. Bro. Stransom was nominated by the acting W.M. on behalf of the W.M. as Treasurer for the ensuing year, the S.W. seconded the nomination. Bro. E. Margrett P.M. proposed a resolution "That the brethren of this Lodge have heard with deep regret of the decease of Bro. W. W. Moxhay P.M. P.P.G.S.W. Berks and Bucks, and Hon. member of 1101, and that it be recorded on the minutes the deep sense of the loss which Masonry has sustained. That to show their respect they attend his funeral, and join the two other Lodges in placing a wreath on the coffin," it was also resolved that a letter of condolence be sent to the widow and family of our late esteemed brother. Bro. R. Dowsett P.M. gave notice of motion "That the sum of ten guineas from the funds of the Lodge be applied to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, and that the same be added to the list of the W.M. who represented the Lodge." All business being ended, Lodge was closed and adjourned to the second Wednesday in October.

United Mariners Lodge of Instruction, No. 30.—The weekly meeting of this popular Lodge of Instruction was held on Wednesday evening, at the Lugard Tavern, Peckham, when Bro. Webster, as Worshipful Master, was supported by Bros. Wilkinson S.W., Harvey J.W., Wimble S.D., Monico J.D., J. G. Garland I.G., Walter Martin Preceptor, Best, Seaman, Lardent, Amphlett, Andrews, Tinney, and others. Lodge having been opened, and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed, was advanced to the second and third, when the ceremony of raising was rehearsed by the W.M., with Bro. Seaman as candidate. The traditional history was admirably rendered by Bro. Wimble. Lodge was then closed to the first degree, and the first section of the lecture was worked by Bro. Wimble. Bro. Lardner, of the Southwark Lodge, No. 879, was elected a member of this Lodge of Instruction, and suitably returned thanks. Bro. Wilkinson was unanimously elected W.M. for the first Wednesday in the ensuing month. The Preceptor announced that on next Wednesday evening Bro. Beavis W.M. of the Southwark Lodge, 879, would rehearse the ceremony of installation, when it was hoped there would be a large attendance of the brethren. Hearty good wishes having been expressed, the Lodge was closed in form and perfect harmony.

After preliminaries, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Turner candidate. Bro. Stretch answered the usual questions. Lodge was opened in the second degree, and the ceremony of passing rehearsed. Lodge was then closed in due form.

The regular meeting of the General Committee of Grand Lodge and Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday, the 20th instant, at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, London. The President of the Lodge of Benevolence (Bro. Joshua Nunn P.G.S.B.) and the two Vice Presidents (Bros. James Brett P.G.P. and C. A. Cottebrune P.G.P.) occupied their respective offices. A large number of brethren were present. The Board of Masters having been first opened, and the agenda paper for the Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge of the 3rd of June having been settled, the Lodge of Benevolence proceeded with the business of the day. Having confirmed the recommendations of the last meeting, they considered the new cases—of which there were thirty-one. Two were dismissed, one deferred, and the remaining twenty-seven relieved with a total of £620. The grants comprised two sums of £5 each, five of £10, eleven of £20, four of £30, three of £40, and two of £50.

A Masonic gathering of peculiar interest to Derbyshire was held on 11th May. Mark Masonry has recently made remarkable strides within our borders, and the Provincial Grand Mark Master has just given substantial proof of his appreciation of the fact. Bro. William Kelly, of Leicester, the dignitary in question, is one of the oldest and most distinguished of English Freemasons; of the Mark degree, he is undoubtedly one of the greatest living ornaments. He has been for seven-and-twenty years the venerated head of the united Province of Leicester, Northampton, and Derby, and is known and honoured throughout England. Holding the Provincial Grand Lodge under the banner of the Derby Lodge, No. 302, Bro. Kelly took the opportunity of distributing honours to the brethren of Derby and Derbyshire with a lavish hand. That he should have decided this course, was, as he pointed out, most natural. Since the establishment, in 1879, of the first Mark Lodge in this county (the Duke of Connaught, which formerly met in various towns on alternate Lodge nights, but which now has its permanent headquarters at Buxton), the degree has developed by leaps and bounds. It is less than three years ago that the Derby Lodge was consecrated, and it now numbers sixty members, whilst last summer a third Lodge, designated the William Kelly, was successfully launched, and is now being prosperously conducted at Winshill. Nor does the stream of progress stop here. A warrant has been granted for the immediate consecration of a fourth Lodge, the Dove Valley, to be held at Ashbourne, and steps are being taken to establish a fifth at Ilkeston. Bro. Kelly may well regard such results as exceptional. We doubt if he could point to a corresponding example of activity. Foremost in the prosecution of this good work has been Bro. Percy Wallis, who has already won Provincial and Grand honours, and who is now W.M. of the Derby Lodge and Master Designate of the Dove Valley—which latter Lodge, indeed, will, in a great measure, owe its existence to his praiseworthy labours. In selecting Bro. Wallis as his Senior Grand Warden, the Provincial Grand Master made an appointment which will be received with the utmost pleasure. Provincial honours were also bestowed upon the following members of the Derby Lodge: Bros. the Rev. Thomas Orrell P.G. Chaplain, William Whittaker P.J.G. Deacon, and J. Bland P.G. Steward. Three members of the Duke of Connaught were singled out for distinction, viz., Bros. G. T. Wright P.J.G. Overseer, J. H. Lawson P. Registrar of Marks, and James O. Manton P.G.S. of Works. Nor was the youngest of the Derbyshire Lodges, the "William Kelly," overlooked, Bro. W. L. Ball being appointed P.G. Master Overseer, and Bro. J. R. Cain P.G. Standard Bearer. Thus it will be seen that amongst the Provincial Grand Mark Officers for the current year there are no fewer than nine Derbyshire Masons.—Derby Reporter.

MARK MASONRY.

PROVINCIAL G. LODGE OF LEICESTERSHIRE, NORTHAMPTONSHIRE, AND DERBYSHIRE.

THE annual meeting of this Provincial Grand Lodge and General Communication of Mark Master Masons in the Province was held at Freemasons' Hall, Derby, on Monday, the 11th inst. The Derby Lodge, No. 302, having been opened, the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Mark Master, Bro. William Kelly, F.S.A., F.R.S., accompanied by the Provincial Grand Officers, entered the Lodge-room, the Prov. G.M. being received with customary honours. Amongst those present we noticed Bros. E. C. Milligan as D.P.G.M., Thomas Worthington P.S.G.W., Thomas Cox P.J.G.W., S. Cleaver P.G. Treasurer, Clement E. Stretton (G. Steward England) P.G. Secretary, R Taylor P.G.S.D, W. L. Ball P.G.D.C., J. H. Lawson P.G. Standard Bearer, W. H. Barrow, F.C.O., P.G. Org., H. Brown P.G. Steward, M. J. Walker P.P.J.G.W., G. T. Wright P.M. 246, Percy Wallis W.M. 302, Rev. T. Orrell P.P.G. Chaplain, John Walker, T. Coltman, R. L. H. Mole Secretary 302, G. Small 302, W. Silver-Hall, J. H. Clarke, J. O. Manton, W. Whittaker, J. Bland, John Dove Harris, J. J. Hart, W. J. Curtis, James Tanser P.G. Tyler, and many others. The minutes of the last annual meeting were duly confirmed, and the rolls of Lodges and Provincial Grand Officers were called over and met with a general response. The Worshipful Masters of Lodges presented their reports, which together with the Registrar's summary of returns, and the report of the Committee of General Purposes, showed that every Lodge in the Province is working efficiently, and that Mark Masonry is making highly satisfactory progress, as evidenced by the fact that during the past year a new Lodge, No. 339, has been established at Winshill, Burton-on-Trent (bearing the name of the esteemed Provincial Grand Master), and a warrant has recently been granted for the constitution of another new Lodge in Derbyshire, to be held at Ashbourne, and named the Dove Valley No. 353. [This Lodge was consecrated on the 18th inst.] The Treasurer's accounts for the past year, showing a balance in hand of £43 0s 1d, were received; a vote of thanks was passed to Bro. S. Cleaver for his past services, and he was unanimously re-elected P.G. Treasurer. The R.W.P.G.M. delivered a very interesting address relating to the prosperity of Mark Masonry in his Province, specially referring to the progress made by the Derbyshire brethren. At the conclusion of the address the Prov. Grand Master appointed and invested the following brethren as P.G. Officers for the ensuing year:—

Bro. Rev. S. J. W. Sandars	Dep. Prov. Grand Master
Percy Wallis P.G. St. Eng.	Prov. Senior Grand Warden

James D. Bennett	Prov. G. Inner Guard
Edward Watson, W. J. Curtis, Joseph Bland	Prov. G. Stewards
Thomas Dunn, James Tanser	Prov. G. Tylers

A letter was read and ordered to be entered upon the minutes, thanking the Lodge for the address of sympathy forwarded to Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Albany on the death of His Royal Highness the Duke of Albany Provincial Grand Master. The sum of £10 10s was voted to the Mark Benevolent Fund, to be placed upon Brother Walker's list as Steward. The recommendation of the Committee of General Purposes that the Transactions of this Prov. Grand Lodge should be annually printed and circulated amongst the members, and that a state sword be purchased, were adopted. The invitation to hold the next annual meeting at Leicester, under the banner of the Fowke Lodge, No. 19, having been accepted by the P.G.M., the P.G. Lodge was closed in ample form. The annual banquet then took place, after which the usual Loyal and Mark toasts were duly proposed and acknowledged, and a highly successful meeting terminated.

CONSECRATION OF THE DOVE VALLEY MARK LODGE.

MAINLY as the result of the efforts of Bro. Percy Wallis, a Mark Masons' Lodge, bearing the above distinctive title, has just been consecrated in the town of Ashbourne. A great deal of interest was manifested in the proceedings, brethren (many of them distinguished in Mark Masonry) attending in considerable numbers from London, Derby, Leicester, Manchester, Buxton, Nottingham and other neighbouring towns. The important ceremony of consecration was performed by R.W. Bro. Charles F. Matier Past Grand Warden England, assisted by V.W. Bro. Robert Berridge, G.D. of C. (England), Bros. Roebuck P.G. Overseer (England), Chas. Lane P.G. Overseer (England), and Bro. Arthur Middleton P.G.S.B. (England). There were also present—the Provincial Grand Master of the United Province of Leicester, Northampton, and Derby, R.W. Bro. William Kelly, F.S.A., and Bros. Haughton C. Okeover P.M., E. C. Milligan P.M., J. H. Lawson W.M. 246, and the following members from the Derby Lodge: Bros. Thomas Horsley, F. Campion, A. Woodiwiss, R. L. H. Mole, W. J. Piper, F. Sale, T. Smith, the Rev. C. T. Bromwich, E. Horne, C. Webster, A. Frazer, and J. Walker. In the course of the consecration ceremony, which was performed most ably and impressively by Bros. Matier and Berridge, Bro. the Rev. C. T. Bromwich, acting on behalf of the P.G. Chaplain, Bro the Rev. T. Orrell, delivered a short but singularly happy and effective oration. Having referred to the recent remarkable development of Mark Masonry in Derbyshire, the Chaplain went on to express a fervent hope that the members of the newly-formed Lodge might learn a lesson from that peaceful valley after which it was named. There they saw how all nature was subservient to the will of the great Overseer of the Universe. Everything had been begun in order, everything was conducted in peace, and everything in that beauteous world of nature was free from strife and discord. But if these results were to be attained, the brethren must live up to the principles of their Order. If they did this, the outside world, who were curious to know the characteristics of Masonry, would be heard to say:—"We do not know, we cannot tell, but we know those who are Masons are religious men, are law-abiding citizens, men who are always willing to join in any good cause, and ready to help in time of need." The Consecrating Officer subsequently installed Bro. Percy Wallis as first Worshipful Master of the new Lodge, and Bros. John Howell and Arthur Stubbs were invested as Senior and Junior Wardens respectively. The other Officers appointed were Bros. G. M. Bond M.O., Prince S.O., Littleton J.O., J. H. Cooke Treasurer, Rigby Secretary, W. H. Tutt S.D., McLean Junior Deacon, and Brown Tyler. At the conclusion of the ceremony (which was conducted at the Town Hall) the brethren dined together at the Green Man Hotel. The post prandial proceedings were of the most agreeable character, it being intimated by more than one speaker that the creation of a Derbyshire Mark Province might be looked for at no distant date, although the brethren are loth to sever themselves from the genial rule of the R.W. Bro. Kelly, whose great service in the cause of Mark Masonry are so well known. Letters of apology were read from, amongst others—Bros. Binckes P.G.W. Grand Secretary, F. Richardson Grand Registrar, H. Hatherley P.G.M.O., John L. Mather Old Kent, John Toplis W.M. 344, Whittaker S.W. 303, Bland J.W. 302, George Small, Fletcher, C. Fendelow 33, C. E. Stretton G.S. Prov. Grand Secretary, W. L. Ball Prov. G.M.O.

THE ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

THE annual meeting of the Governors and Subscribers of this Institution was held on Friday, the 15th instant, at Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, under the presidency of Bro Raynham W. Stewart P.G.D. The Report of the Committee of Management and the Statement of the Receipts and Expenditure (both of which we append) were adopted, and ordered to be entered on the minutes. Bro. C. H. Webb desired to call attention to that portion of the Report which had reference to the candidates seeking admittance to the Institution, and to three of them whose ages exceed eighty-two years each. Many brethren would no doubt like to see these old people admitted as annuitants at once. They had been on the list so many times that he felt something should be done for them—the chances were they would not be elected. If the report could be amended in this respect he was sure the meeting would adopt it, as the increase in the expenditure by such a course would be small. Bro. Terry read the rule applicable to the case, and said that taking candidates off the list and making them annuitants could only be effected at the meeting of the Committee in June. They could not override the laws of the Institution, however much they might desire to aid these poor candidates. Brother Webb said he was sorry the privelege had not been made use of since the year 1876. He found it was adopted then. Bro. Terry said that any vacancies which occurred through death, and report of which reached the office up to the morning of the election were filled up that day. The power Bro. Webb sought had not been exercised before the meeting in June. The Committee had fully considered the question, and had found they could not do what Bro. Webb desired. In reply to Bro. Webb Bro. Terry said the three cases to which attention had been called had not been particularly considered. The following brethren were then elected as the Committee of Management for the year:—Frederick Adlard P.M. 7, Raynham W. Stewart P.M. 12, Stephen Barton Wilson P.M. 59, A. Forsyth, M.D. W.M. 140, W. Hilton P.M. 1351, Louis Stean P.M. 292, J. Balmer P.M. 174, C. H. Driver P.M. 905, Charles E. Soppet P.M. 60, Thomas Griffiths P.M. 907. Bros. A. H. Tattersball, J. Berry, and J. Newton were re-appointed as Auditors, and Bro. Bowyer elected as Treasurer of the Sustentation Fund. This concluded the special business of the meeting, the poll was declared open, and the election was proceeded with.

The Committee of Management has much pleasure in submitting a report of its proceedings, during the past year, to the Governors and Subscribers of the Institution.

The Annual Festival was held by direction of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, K.G., &c., Grand Patron and President, on Wednesday, the 25th of February last. The Right Hon. Sir Michael E. Hicks Beach, Bart., M.P., R.W. Prov. G.M. of Gloucestershire, occupied the chair. A Board of Stewards, 352 strong, supported him, and the result was an aggregate of donations and subscriptions amounting to £17,770 6s 2d. It is impossible the Craft could have furnished a grander illustration than this of the loyalty with which it fulfils its most solemn obligations. The Committee, in its Report of last year, pointed out, with reference to the sum (£14,665 13s) raised at the Festival in February 1884, that it was "the largest amount ever contributed on a similar occasion," in aid of the funds of the Institution. Yet the total subscribed under the auspices of R.W. Bro. Sir Michael Hicks Beach, with the cordial assistance of the Board of Stewards (especially of those hailing from his own Province), and the generous co-operation of the brethren generally, was in excess of the total for 1884 by upwards of £3,000. In such circumstances it will be easily understood that the Committee is at a loss for words to sufficiently express its gratitude to the R.W. Chairman and those who laboured so zealously and so successfully in securing this splendid result.

The Committee has also to report that in consequence of the success attendant upon the Festival, the sum of 100 guineas was presented to Bro. James Terry, in recognition of his great exertions to secure it, and of the additional heavy duties which will devolve upon him in the future.

At the Election in May 1884, there were upon the Funds of the Institution 352 annuitants, namely, 170 men and 182 widows, while to-day there are 118 candidates—42 men and 76 widows—whose respective claims to be received into the Institution have been most carefully investigated and approved. In the face of a list so formidable in point of numbers, and having regard to the fact that only 16 vacancies, namely, 14 men and two widows, had occurred since the last Election, the Committee decided at its meeting in February last upon increasing the number of annuitants still further by placing 3 more men and 10 more widows upon the Fund, thus raising the aggregate of the two classes from 352 to 365. Since then there have died four men and one widow, so that the numbers to be elected to-day on the respective Funds, exclusive of the three deferred annuitants on each, would be 21 men and 13 widows. Having regard to the brilliant success of the Festival, and in the exercise of what it conscientiously believes will be found a sound discretion, the Committee consider themselves justified in recommending to the Governors and Subscribers in Annual General Meeting assembled to elect 10 more widows, so that in the event of this recommendation being adopted, the full number to be elected will be 24 men and 26 widows, the aggregate on the two Funds being thus increased from 352 to 375, and the amount annually required towards their support from £12,624 to £13,384. It must also be borne in mind that a further annual sum of £420 will be needed in order to provide the half annuities assigned by law to 21 widows, and payable during the first three years of their widowhood. Thus the total sum to be expended for annuities alone will be £13,804.

The Committee, however, in taking upon itself the responsibility of recommending this increase, is desirous of impressing upon the Governors and Subscribers, as well as upon the Craft generally, that the continuance of so large an expenditure for Annuities will only be possible in the event of the Institution continuing to receive that generous measure of support which has been extended to it as heretofore. The Committee nevertheless expresses its confident hope that upon these facts becoming generally known to the Craft the necessary assistance will be forthcoming to enable it to extend the good work for which the Institution was established.

The Committe take this opportunity of expressing its thanks to the United Grand Lodge for its renewed vote of £70 towards providing the residents of the Institution at Croydon with Coal during the Winter months.

It is desirous also of conveying its most cordial thanks to the Honorary Surgeons of the Institution, Henry J. Strong, Esq., M.D., and R. Percy Middlemist, Esq., for their great kindness and unremitting attention to those among the Annuitants who have had occasion to seek medical advice and assistance.

They are likewise pleased at being in a position to report that the building at Croydon is in a complete state of repair, subject to those ordinary cleansings which are periodically necessary in all such buildings, and that the recent introduction of gas and other improvements has had the effect of increasing the comfort and convenience of the Residents.

The Committee considers it would not be properly discharging its duty if it did not take this opportunity of placing on record its deep sense of regret at the death of Lieut.-Colonel Creaton (J.P.), Past Grand Treasurer of England, and a Patron and one of the Trustees of the Institution. During a connection with the Charity extending over very many years, Lieut.-Colonel Creaton always showed himself most assidnous and earnest in his endeavours to promote its welfare, and it feels it is only an act of justice that it should offer this heartfelt tribute of respect to his memory.

The Committee also wishes to express its sorrow at the death of Bro. James Norris, Warden of the Institution at Croydon. Bro. Norris faithfully and efficiently discharged the duties of his office during a period of 16 years, and is succeeded by his daughter, Miss Norris, who, as Matron, had shared with him the responsibilities of regulating and directing the interior arrangements of the Asylum at Croydon.

In submitting the audited statement of accounts for the past year, the Committee is satisfied it will be found to disclose a wise and economical administration of the funds of the Institution, and it appeals, as well to the Craft generally as to the Governors and Subscribers in particular, for a continuance of their support and encouragement, thereby enabling the Committee to discharge its arduous and responsible duties with satisfaction to the Subscribers, and with benefit to the Annuitants.

The Committee is desirous of expressing, in conclusion, the earnest hope that these increasingly urgent appeals for aid in carrying out the benevolent intentions of the founders and supporters of the Institution will be as generously listened to in the future as they have been in the past. Notwithstanding the great increase which has been made of late years in the number of Annuitants there has been concurrently, at the close of each successive annual election, a very large number of unsuccessful candidates, the alleviation of whose sad necessities has inevitably been deferred for at least a further twelvemonths, a circumstance which the Committee most deeply deplores.

Subjoined is a statement of the Receipts and Expenditure during the year ended the 31st March 1885, together with the usual particulars of the permanent income of the Institution.

REVIEWS.

All Books intended for Review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, Belvidere Works, Hermes Hill, Pentonville, London, N.

—:o:—

"Summer Tours in Scotland, Glasgow to the Highlands. 'Royal Route,' (vid Crinan and Caledonian Canals), with Time Tables and Lists of Fares, by David MacBrayne's Royal Mail Steamers." David MacBrayne, 119 Hope-street, Glasgow.

THOSE who have read Mr. William Black's novels and Dr. Johnson's "Visit to the Hebrides," can form some idea of the Western Highlands of Scotland, situate in the Atlantic, and extending from the southern point of the Mull of Kintyre to the northern extremity of Lewis, a distance little short of two hundred miles. In a pleasure-seeking sense, a much better idea of these romantic islands and the Highlands east of them may be gathered from the little work before us. It is all a guide-book should be, and something more. Issued by the owner of a line of steamers that have for a quarter of a century afforded the public easy access to spots that before then were seldom visited by strangers, it has the fullness and completeness that experience gives. The trips are varied and numerous, branching in every conceivable direction, embraced in a large scheme. Times, fares, routes, and accommodation are all set forth with clearness. 18 photo lithographs illustrate the text, which is written with a faithfulness and a real desire to instruct and amuse not always to be found in guide books. There is no striving after effect, and yet the descriptions have a charm in themselves which produces the natural desire to go and see the originals, so simply yet naturally depicted. A map accompanies the book, with the various routes of the steamers traced in red. The text explains all about the journeys, and what there is to be seen in a manner as pleasant as it is effective. We have no hesitation in saying that any one taking the map and the description together will get a better idea of that part of Scotland to the west of Thurso in the north, and Glasgow in the south, than in any single work that has ever come under our notice. The book only costs sixpence, and is really worth having for its own sake. It may be had at the various book stalls, and at the Glasgow address. Mr. MacBrayne has adopted the title of the "Royal Route," and has now added another new paddle-steamer, called the "Grenadier," to his fleet. This vessel has made her trial trip, and for the present has taken the place of the Iona on the Glasgow and Ardrishaig station, to be relieved by the Columba, when she will proceed to the north. This latter vessel is fitted up in the style of Pullman's cars, and the windows being carried round at the stern afford a pleasant look-out for the passengers. Separate circular tables are fitted up in the breakfast and dining saloon, and meals are served to suit the convenience of visitors. The cabins are fitted up with every convenience; a shampooing and hair-dressing establishment, with every toilet requisite, is provided, and there is a commodious bath-room, supplied with salt water, for the weary traveller, besides a cloak-room, where hand-bags and small articles may be left in security. Add to all this a post-office, "where letters, telegrams, &c., are received, stamped, sorted, and distributed at every calling place along the route, for transmission to all parts," and we think our readers will agree with us that nothing but money and time are wanted to make a trip in the "Columba" one of the pleasurable events of life. No doubt the "Grenadier" has been fitted up with the same regard to comfort, and that all that engineering skill and capital can do have been done to make the fleet swift, pleasant, and effective carriers.

OPENING OF THE HOTEL METROPOLE.

THIS enormous building, forming one of the stately edifices that have been and are still being built in Northumberland Avenue, Charing Cross, is just about receiving its finishing touches. We shall not attempt to describe the architecture of the hotel, but some conception of its size may be gathered from the fact that it contains six hundred bedrooms, and that the several rooms set apart for dining will accommodate a thousand persons. The furnishing has been entrusted to Messrs. Maple and Co., of Tottenham Court-road, and apparently all that modern art and money could command has been requisitioned. Beauty and utility have been combined in such a way as to please the eye and satisfy the demands of comfort. A formal, or, more strictly speaking, a complimentary opening of this public palace took place on Monday last, on which occasion there was a grand military concert at half-past eight in the evening, supported by the bands of the Royal Artillery, the Coldstream Guards, and the Portsmouth Division of the Royal Marines. Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales were present at the concert, and we are told that the "long list of patrons and patronesses includes nearly all the members of the Royal Family, the great ducal houses, and many recognised leaders of aristocratic and fashionable society." Tickets for the concert were a guinea each, and were supplied by Lady Bective, 10 Stratford-place, W. We cheerfully give these particulars because the whole of the money received for tickets is to be handed to the Egyptian War Fund, thus charity was combined with pleasure. This is the reason why Lady Bective took so active a part in the concert. Visitors had an opportunity of inspecting the arrangements and appointments of the hotel, which formed no small attraction, we can assure our readers. The hotel will open for business on the 1st June.

THE APPROACHING FESTIVAL OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

THE very success which has attended the two Festivals of the Masonic Charitable Institutions held during the current year affords cause for increased anxiety as to what may be the result of the one that is yet to take place—the Festival in aid of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, which is to be held on Wednesday, the 24th of June next, at the Crystal Palace, Sydenham. The Freemasons of England have been most liberal in the support they have this year given to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls; and we do not for one moment doubt there is any less desire to stand nobly by the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, in its turn. We do not question the desire to do equally well, nor do we care to entertain the idea that the desire cannot be as readily carried out as was the case with the other two Institutions, yet it is reasonable to suppose there is a limit to the means, if not the will, of the Masons of England. How long or short a time we shall have to wait for practical demonstration of this surmise we cannot of course say, all we can hope is, that it may not be soon, indeed that it may be postponed indefinitely; but at the same time we fear, even for the immediate future. The Royal Masonic Institution for Boys stands in many respects in an unenviable position among the Charitable Institutions of English Freemasonry. Its Annual Festival is always the last of the three, and falls too at a time when a very large majority of the Lodges are closed for the summer recess. The brethren who undertake the duties of Steward on its behalf have often to make their appeals at the same time as others in the Lodges are canvassing for the Benevolent Institution or the Girls' School, otherwise they find their turn does not come until the Lodge is closed for the summer, thus shutting them out from all participation in the benefits which are usually supposed to be associated with the banquet table as a field of operation in securing promises of support and assistance. Not only is this the case, but the closing of the Lodge months before the holding of the Festival, often deprives a Steward of all chance of personally soliciting the co-operation of his fellow members, and we all know the value of personal interviews in such matters Coming last of the three, and at a time when Masonry is, so to speak, slumbering, the Festival of the Boys' School must then be naturally shorn of many of the benefits which are associated with activity and its consequent enthusiasm, but it is not only in this respect that it compares somewhat unfavourably with the other Institutions. The Girls' School is its senior in the matter of age, and for this reason is supposed in some quarters to have a prior claim on the Order, but there is a far stronger feeling which works for the benefit of the Girls' School as compared with that of the Boys'—the sympathy which always surrounds the weaker sex; the feeling that girls are so much more helpless than boys to battle with the world, when calamity or misfortune has deprived them of their natural protectors, or the means of securing a fair start in life. This opinion that boys are better able to rough it, to fight their own way in the world, and to help themselves far more than girls can do, is a very old one, and it must be admitted its influence is strong in regulating the amount of support given to distinct Institutions, founded for the relief and support of the opposite sexes. Then again the Benevolent Institution undoubtedly receives at the present time more sympathy than the Boys' School, and it is not perhaps strange that such should be the case; Englishmen are proverbially respectful to old age. It appears to be part of an Englishman's nature to show respect to those in the decline of life, and more particularly so when misfortune accompanies the old age of those of one's own class. The Girls on the one hand, and the Aged on the other, it must then be admitted, receive more sympathy than is accorded to the Boys'. Should this be the case? Are the boys better able to take care of themselves than the girls, or are they less deserving of support than the aged? The only answer it is consistent for the Craft to give is, to afford assistance to the Institution which provides for the Boys equal to that given to the other two during the current year, thereby demonstrating to the world at large that in the eyes of Freemasons at least, all are equally deserving of support. We could give many and strong reasons why the Boys' School should receive the first attention, but we refrain from doing so because we think that the best appeal we can at present make is that all should be treated alike, feeling that if the Boys' Festival is as great a success this year as the two which have preceded it have been, there will be no cause for regret, much less grumbling. We must, however, point to one feature which should specially enlist support for the Boys—they will be the men of the future; it is on them will depend the maintenance in years to come, not only of the Charitable Institutions of Freemasonry, but of the Order itself. We should therefore render all the aid possible to those lads who from causes beyond their own control are compelled to look for aid outside their own family circle, as it is only by giving them the means of earning that we can reasonably expect them to subscribe.

As a charitable Institution, pure and simple, the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys presents all that can be required by the most exacting. It has done good work in the past, is doing good work now, and, above all, is making preparation to do even more in the future. As regards the past, we can look back on eighty-seven years working of the Institution, and may reasonably feel proud of what has been done under its auspices. Since its foundation SIXTEEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-SEVEN sons of Freemasons have received its benefits, while at the present time two hundred and fifteen are being clothed, fed and educated in the buildings at Wood Green. Who shall estimate the amount of benefit to the world generally, and to the recipients particularly, which has resulted from the assistance rendered by the Institution to these 1657 lads? Is it too much to say that the world at large has been benefited by the Institution? We think not, for however small a proportion of the total number of helpless children these 1657 may be, it is but fair to suppose that their removal from the paths of ignorance and want to the ranks of knowledge and comfort must have had some beneficial results. It can at least be said the Institution has in the past brought, and now brings up, the lads in such a manner, educating them with such care, and training them with such efficiency, as to fit them for any position they may be called upon to fill, and all this has been and is now being done by the liberality of the Freemasons of England. At the present time, as we have already said, there are two hundred and fifteen lads on the establishment at Wood Green, of whom nine are admitted by virtue of purchased permanent presentations. Our readers know sufficient of the wor'd to be aware that the care of these two hundred and fifteen lads is no light undertaking, and will not be surprised when we say that the lowest amount which will suffice to meet the establishment expenses is between £9,000 and £10,000 per annum, the whole of which sum, exclusive of some £700 per annum permanent income, has to be raised by the voluntary donations of the Craft; while as regards the future even larger totals are contemplated, nay, demanded, if the Craft is desirous of keeping up its reputation, or is not disposed to turn back from work to which it has already put its hand. Within a short time the Masons of England will have to face a special claim in connection with this Institution, which they cannot in fairness ignore or lightly pass over even as easily as they might have agreed to reduce the number of lads now in the Institution, had necessity compelled them to do so. For some time past extra efforts have been made to increase the accommodation of the Institution, and so successful have these efforts been that an addition—in the form of a Preparatory School—is now in course of erection, and it is expected it will be so far finished during the next few months as to allow the Committee to recommend the election of a proportion of the number of Boys for whom the additional accommodation is provided not later than at the Quarterly Court in October next. This addition, be it remembered, has been provided on the demand of the Craft. In providing the funds necessary for its erection liability does not cease! It is no use unless its accommodation can be made available, and that can only be done at an expense of some £1000 or £1200 a year. Here, then, is an additional tax on the benevolent for the future, and we cannot believe it will be disregarded, although the present aspect of affairs in connection with the Festival leads us to wonder where the extra amount is this year coming from.

The number of Stewards who are working for this year's Festival is exceptionally small, and although the Chairman of the day, the Most Hon. the Marquis of Hartington, M.P., and the brethren of the Province of Derbyshire, of which he is the Master, are working hard to ensure success, their sphere of operations is comparatively small. Derbyshire possesses one or two fine Lodges, but can hardly lay claim to anything like premier rank in point of numbers. Therefore, it cannot be expected the total it will be able to send up will be exceptionally large. No doubt for the number of Masons it embraces, and the number of Lodges which work under the rule of the respected chairman, its total will favourably compare with others, but more than that would seem to be needed this year for our Boys. At the present time the Board of Stewards contains the names of two hundred and forty seven only—a number which compares unfavourably with the past, and that too at a time when, as we have already pointed out, larger totals are needed. It therefore behoves every Steward to do his utmost during the next few weeks, not only on behalf of his individual list, but also in the way of inducing other brethren to undertake the work and assume the responsibilities of Steward.

The Festival of the Boys' School presents such a change from those of the other Charities that we often wonder the Institution does not receive additional support on that basis alone. It is the only one which ladies are admitted to take an equal share in, and if they will excuse us for saying so, they have not shown that they appreciate the distinction. Where are the Lady Stewards, who should vie with each other in proving how they can work in the cause of charity? Very many of the ladies who attend the Annual Festival of the Boys' School could do something in support of the Institution, and taken as a whole they might materially lessen the anxiety of those who have the management of the Funds. Would it be possible for them to take the Preparatory School under their special care? Ladies would be far more capable of managing lads of such tender age as its inmates will be than are members of the sterner sex, and they would then have something to refer to year by year, which would be a graceful acknowledgment of the pleasure most of them receive when attending the annual gatherings in connection with the Boys' School. In closing our remarks, we must again urge our readers to do what lies in their power on behalf of the coming Festival in aid of the Boys' School, and in doing so we confidently assure them, that while others may be equally deserving, there is none which has stronger claims, or which is more entitled to receive encouragement, than the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, for the future of which we wish every success.

The distribution of prizes and annual entertainment of the Stewards will take place at the School at Wood Green on Saturday, the 20th June, under the presidency of the Rt. Hon. the Lord Mayor of London, Bro. Alderman Fowler, M.P., P.G. Warden. A favourable opportunity will then be afforded for an inspection of the School and its inmates by any brethren who may desire to become better acquainted with the internal arrangements, and if there are any of our readers who are wavering in their decision to support this deserving Institution a visit of inspection on that occasion would immediately settle the question with them. We are convinced they could not do better.

MASONIC RIGHTS.

EVERY Craftsman knows that he is entitled to certain rights and benefits, by reason of his becoming a Mason. Very likely, however, he would find it difficult to name these rights, and to classify them according to their true import. We propose, therefore, in this paper to consider the question, what are some of the inherent rights of a Mason?

1. First of all, there is the right of membership in a Lodge. When a candidate has received the third degree in a regular body of Masons, he is justly entitled to membership therein. The fact that he has been initiated, passed and raised, by a Lodge, gives him a claim for membership in that Lodge. This right to membership is now generally conceded. There are localities, however, where it is still held that conferring the degrees does not carry with it any claim to membership, and that a clear ballot after raising is required to admit the candidate to Lodge membership. This doctrine finds but few defenders in these days. It does not accord with the equities involved in the case.

2. A Master Mason in good and regular standing has the right of meeting with his own Lodge whenever and for whatever cause it may be convened. There is no barring out of a member from any Lodge communication. It makes no difference what the business to be considered is, or what may be the peculiar conditions under which a Lodge is called together, every member has a right to be present,—a right to sit with his Brethen whenever the Lodge to which they alike belong is open.

3. Every member has a right to participate in the transaction of the business of his Lodge—a right to vote and to hold office. In one sense there is perfect equality among Masons. The vote of one Brother counts the same as another, and all are alike privileged to seek the places of honour and preferment. Whatever rules and restrictions may be accepted, and whatever distinctions may be accorded, the great primal law which governs in the Lodge is that of equality. Each member has precisely the same rights as every other—no more and no less.

4. Membership in a Lodge carries with it the right to vote on the reception of all applicants, and by the casting of an adverse secret ballot, to bar the entrance of any undesired candidate. This is an inherent, absolute right, of which no member can be dispossessed so long as he remains in good standing in his Lodge. Its importance can hardly be over-estimated. It means in this country, where the rule of a unanimous ballot prevails, that each member of a Lodge is privileged to keep out any applicant whom he chooses. And it is his right to exercise this adverse power without being known in the transaction, for under the Masonic system it is not intended that a Brother should suffer by his opposition to an applicant. Thus the secrecy of the ballot is carefully provided for, and it is held to be a Masonic offence to reveal how another has voted, or to make known one's own vote. To maintain the right of casting a free ballot for or against any candidate, it is essential that ample safeguards should be thrown around the ballot to ensure its absolute secrecy. It ought never to be taken in such a manner as to allow one member to observe the vote of another. In balloting on applications, the best method is for the Secretary to slowly call the roll of the Lodge, the members going one by one to the box placed in the centre of the room, and there depositing their votes without being exposed to the scrutiny of each other, or of any of the officers of the Lodge. Then let all conversation as to the manner of voting be prohibited; and if an adverse ballot is cast, let it be considered an un-Masonic act to attempt to fix the responsibility for such a vote upon any member or members of the Lodge. Under such conditions the right of exercising a secret ballot will stand for its real worth, and will accord with what the Fathers intended by the provision made fundamental in the Masonic system.

5. A member of a Lodge in good standing is entitled to a diploma, certifying to his connection with the Craft, and also, if desired, to a dimit, setting forth his honourable retirement from the body with which he has been associated. Concerning the first-named right under this head, there is no difference of opinion, but there is not quite the same agreement on the second point. And yet, we think the one right is the natural outgrowth of the other. If a member may claim a certificate of membership, may he not also claim a clearance certificate when he chooses to resign that membership? Practically, a dimit is only the certified acceptance of a Brother's resignation But the right of resignation does not exist, say some. It is only a qualified privilege—something that may be asked, and which the Lodge may grant or refuse in its discretion. The Old Regulations, 1722, did indeed declare that no Brother should withdraw without a dispensation; but ten years later this restriction was struck out and withdrawal was made easy. Now, both in England and in this country, it is generally held that a Mason in good standing, free from all charges, has the right to withdraw from his Lodge and to receive a certificate, or dimit, to the effect that his membership has honourably terminated by his own request.

6. Every affiliated Mason has the "right to visit." The old rule on this subject is as follows: "Every Mason in good standing, having membership in a lawful Lodge, has a right to visit any other Lodge, wherever it may be, as may suit his pleasure or convenience." This right rests on the supposed identity and homogeneousness of the Masonic Institution. In theory, Freemasonry is of one quality everywhere. It is one great family, Lodges being only certain divisions made for the sake of convenience. In this view, membership in a Masonic Lodge is taken to mean membership in the Fraternity, and a Brother may expect a cordial welcome whenever he presents himself in any place where Masons are congregated. He has the right to visit in any jurisdiction, and he has the ability to make himself known in any assembly of the Craft. But under the modern expression of Freemasonry, the right to visit has become considerably abridged, and it can now be regarded only as a conditional right. Some Lodges transact business in private session, and receive no visitors on such occasions; other Lodges are occasionally obliged to decline to receive the visiting Brother, and so too much must not be claimed in the exercise of this prerogative. It must also be kept in mind that the "right to visit" may be set aside by the exercise of another right, which belongs to every Brother, when sitting with his own Lodge, viz., the "right of objection."

7. Any member of a Lodge has the right to keep out an unwelcome visitor. It has long been held that the harmony of a Lodge ought not to be impaired by admitting a Brother as visitor, when objection is made against his admission by a member present at the time of the proposed visit. This right of objection is in no sense a landmark, however, but only a provision that has properly come into force under the modern administration of the Craft. The right to object to an unwelcome visitor is now generally recognised, and though it is within the power of the Master of a Lodge to overrule such an objection, he would probably not do so except on rare occasions, where there were special considerations to influence such action.

8. Lodge membership carries with it the right of Masonic burial. The right to be buried with the ceremonies of the Craft is one that, under certain restrictions, belongs to every affiliated Mason. In discussing this right, it should be borne in mind that the Old Constitutions do not declare any law on the subject. Masonic burial was probably observed sometimes in the case of prominent or zealous Craftsmen, but not until 1754 was there any official regulation bearing upon such a matter. Preston put the rule into words generally accepted as defining the law governing in the case of Masonic burials. He states the law in this wise: "No Mason can be buried with the ceremonies of the Craft, unless it be by his special request, communicated to the Master of the Lodge of which he died a member,—foreigners and sojourners excepted,—and he must have been advanced to the third degree." From this last restriction, there could be no exception. A personal request for a Masonic burial, then and now, was requisite to the calling out of a Lodge to enact a solemn ceremony and to commit the remains of a departed Brother to earth. It was—it is—the right of every affiliated Mason to prefer such a request, and the obligation rests upon a Lodge and its Master to see the request complied with.

9. Every worthy Mason in need has a right to claim assistance from his Brethren. He may not demand a specific amount of money, nor help at specified times, as if a contract had been entered into between himself and his Lodge, or the Fraternity at large, to this effect. The Masonic Institution was not organized as a beneficial society. It does not administer help according to any formal demands laid upon it; but it does pledge itself to care for and aid distressed Brethren, and they have a claim upon its bounty. A worthy Brother on whom rests any burden of sorrow or need has the right to appeal for help to his Lodge, or to members of the Craft. If his case is one that will bear examination—that presents good grounds for sympathy and help—he may expect to be aided according to what is his need, and according to what is the ability of those Brethren to whom he properly makes appeal. It is the glory of Masonry that it endows its members with this right, and that it acknowledges and responds to its exercise whenever and wherever put forth.

These are but some of the rights that belong to Masonic membership; there are others, less direct, perhaps, but hardly less important, The thoughtful and intelligent Craftsman will appreciate what thus comes to him of privilege by his connection with the Order, and he will not need to be reminded of the fact that to all Masonic rights and benefits there are corresponding duties.

WOMEN AS MASONS.

[COMMUNICATED.]

THE part taken by Brother Horace Brooks Marshall, C.C., D.L., in works of philanthropy and benevolence, in the Craft as well as out of it, has become so proverbial, and has been so frequently commented upon, that to make further reference to it seems almost like an attempt to gild refined gold. But sometimes one is tempted to stray a little out of the beaten track when any special feature appears deserving of especial comment; and such an occasion came to my notice a few days since, when the memorial stones of a new Institute in connection with the Theatrical Mission were laid, on the site of the intended structure, in Henrietta-street, Covent Garden. It is taken for granted that ladies shall not be permitted to participate in the mysteries and privileges of Speculative Masonry, but that they may, and do most usefully, figure as Operative Masons we have frequent and abundant illustration. Aiding in the beneficent work of endeavouring to promote the movement for the spiritual and temporal welfare of theatrical employés of every grade—and we have before us the astounding fact that there are no fewer than twenty-eight thousand men, women and children engaged in the profession in London!—the Countess of Aberdeen, the Lady Mayoress, Mrs. Bond-Cabbell and Mrs. Horace Brooks Marshall gracefully participated in a ceremony which was brimful of interest and animation throughout. At the conclusion of the business, when the perfect ashlars rested securely on their pedestals, and the strain upon the lewises was eased, it was only natural that hearty cheers should be given for the ladies who had given such proof of their excellent handiwork, and had entitled themselves to such further marks of favour. Upon Bro. Marshall fell the pleasant duty of acknowledging the cordial vote of thanks which had so ungrudgingly been accorded, and he rose to the occasion like a trout will rise to a May fly. His acknowledgment was terse and pithy, and would not probably extend over more than half-a-dozen lines in the ordinary column of a newspaper. But it contained matter enough for a homily, if one had the inclination and ability to pen one, which may well be taken to heart by the Craft in general. With a vein of quiet humour he referred to his wife as having that day played the part of an "operative Mason," in allusion, of course, to the laying of the memorial stone, and followed up the little feu jesprit by adding that she had had "considerable experience with the trowel." Upon the ears of an audience that was composed almost entirely of non-Masons the remark fell merely as a little piece of pleasantry, but to some who were present, and who have watched Bro. Marshall's career in Freemasonry, there was a twofold significance in the remark. It would be difficult to enumerate all the works of a similar nature which our Past Grand Treasurer and Mrs. Marshall have performed in aid of benevolent and philanthropic institutions, both in connection with the Craft of which he is so distinguished an ornament, and outside its pale as well; but we know enough to endorse most fully the sentiments that their "experience with the trowel" has been of the most extensive and useful kind, in the laying of foundation stones upon which are to be raised superstructures that shall be perfect in their parts, and honourable to the builders. But the little speech in reply to the vote of thanks did not end in sentiment merely,—Bro. Marshall does not do things by halves. After expressing his heartiest sympathy with the object of the mission, and raising a ripple of pleasant laughter by alluding to his estimable wife as an "operative Mason," there came the practical exemplification of that charity which is so distinguishing a characteristic of a Freemason's heart, and sympathy was backed up with a substantial gift of one hundred pounds towards the building fund. This, given on behalf of Mrs. Marshall towards so laudable an object fully entitled her to a Past Master's—or Past Mistress's degree—in operative Masonry, and is only another example of the happy blending of practical sympathy with practical help which we have so often seen practised of late. There was something eminently Masonic in the manner in which the whole matter was put before the audience, and so gracefully was the speech delivered that it made the gift of especial value. The thought aroused by this episode in the career of our Past Grand Treasurer is that although the gentler sex are of necessity excluded from the inner life of speculative Masonry, yet they can make themselves most useful in the operative part of a work which their husbands and relatives are called upon to perform. By kindly encouragement and co-operation in deeds of philanthropy and benevolence many a brother has been stimulated to activities that might otherwise have lain dormant; and I draw this unique and charming little picture of "mutual help and support" which came under my observation on Saturday last, as a means of suggesting to other ladies attached to the ranks of Freemasonry how they may well play their part in the social system by aiding, in kindly and gentle manner, those who are engaged in works of benevolence and charity. In that sense woman appears in her proper sphere, and let us hope there are many who, emulating the excellent example of the wife of Bro. Marshall, are doing good work in the cause of charity, and thus making themselves more extensively useful to their fellow-creatures. On the following Tuesday, Brother and Mrs. Marshall were following up their accustomed avocation at Brixton, when the foundation-stone was laid of the new School-room, dormitories and other buildings in connection with the Brixton Orphanage for Fatherless Girls, which took place in the presence of a large concourse of sympathising spectators. Although the events to which we refer are outside the pale of the Craft, we think allusion to them in our columns is by no means inappropriate, inasmuch as they testify to the Catholicity of the chief actors in them, and point a moral which should adorn the tale of doing good in whatever shape the opportunity may be presented. When the ceremony of laying the foundation-stone, "in the name of the Great Architect of the Universe," was completed, the response was an audible "So mote it be," significantly indicating the Masonic composition of the male portion of the audience; and we could not fail to recognise amongst the many ladies present the wives and sisters of well-known members of the Craft, who had thrown in their lot with those who were "doing good" in a manner thoroughly consonant and in harmony with the truest principles of Freemasonry. The feeding, clothing, and educating of a couple of hundred poor orphan girls is a gigantic undertaking for one individual to undertake, although there may be prospects of plenty of support behind; and the utmost credit is due to Mr. and Mrs. Montague for their self-denying and humane exertions in behalf of a peculiarly helpless and deserving class. It is not a Masonic Institution, pure and simple, but the principle is the same, and if we are not mistaken the chief promoter is not unknown in the ranks of the Fraternity. Anyhow, there was a very strong Masonic tinge upon the whole of the interesting proceedings, and Bro. Marshall, in his address to those assembled was eminently in keeping with the spirit of the Craft in which he has so distinguished himself. As a "working Mason," he spoke of the value of such Institutions as these, whose object was to care for the helpless and the indigent, and referring generally to the subject of charity he unhesitatingly pronounced his "horror and detestation" of allowing any buildings that were erected for religious or philanthropic purposes being in debt. He pointed out that "the silver and gold is the Lord's," and observed that he could prove in a minute that there was plenty of money in the treasury of the Great Architect of the Universe at the present moment. With pardonable pride he referred to the privilege he had enjoyed only a few days before, as Treasurer of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, situated not far from the spot on which he then stood—at Battersea Rise—when he received as a free will offering of the brethren of Freemasonry the magnificent sum of £14,187 11s 7d, an amount exceeding the annual requirements of that charity, and gathered from the brethren without any effort, certainly without any appeal to the outside public. "Now," said he, "if the Masonic fraternity, which labours at the present time under the direct excommunication of, and assailed by the fiercest anathemas from the head of the Church of Rome, could flourish—and it does flourish, particularly in respect of its Charities—if it can flourish under the direct antagonism of a certain section of the Christian Church, surely an Institution like this, which has the direct sanction and support of every Christian denomination, with scarcely an exception, ought to flourish still more." And then, after expressing the joy it afforded him in taking part in this labour of love. Bro. Marshall wound up in his accustomed munificent style by contributing a couple of hundred pounds to the fund required for the new enterprise. Such acts as these are most cheering to all whose hearts are touched with the tenets and principles of our Craft, and it is a part of Masonry in which women may exercise their enormous powers of usefulness and expend their peculiarly potent sympathies. I congratulate our Past Grand Treasurer upon several additions during the last week or two to the "silver trowels" with which he and his estimable wife have had so much "experience," every one of which is a jewel of far greater price than any that could be bestowed upon him for "valuable services rendered" in the ordinary acceptation of the term, inasmuch as it denotes the beginning of good work the influence of which is widely spread over a great and truly beneficent cause.

Obituary.

BRO. C. W. THOMPSON.

WE regret to record the death of Bro. C. W. Thompson, the Officer for letting vacant City lands, which occurred at his residence, Clock House, Catford Bridge, on Monday morning. His death was by no means sudden or unexpected, for during the past two or three years Bro. Thompson has been suffering greatly from illness, yet he fulfilled the duties of his office with skill and energy until within a few days of his death. Since his appointment in 1871 Bro. Thompson had gradually won his way in civic and other circles by the able and intelligent conduct of his duties, by the untiring energy which he displayed in all matters in which he was interested, and perhaps more than all, by the unvarying affability by which he was characterised. In works of charity and benevolence Bro. Thompson always played a leading part. His connection with the Dramatic Fund and other institutions having a similar object, will be long remembered and valued. By his death the City has lost a hard-working and conscientious officer, Freemasonry a prominent member, and the officers of the Corporation a valued friend. Brother Thompson was a member of the Court of the Loriners, Pattenmakers, and Fanmakers' Companies, and a liveryman of the Upholders' Company. He had served the office of Master of the Pattenmakers' Company, and was next in rotation for that dignity in the Fanmakers' Company. In Freemasonry he was equally distinguished. He was a founder of the Ravensbourne Lodge, a founder and Past Master of the Maybury Lodge, and a member of the Emulation Chapter. He was 42 years of age, and leaves two daughters and one son. The funeral took place on Thursday last, at Lewisham cemetery.—City Press.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

NEW CONCORD LODGE, No. 813.

THE closing of the session in connection with this sound and prosperous Lodge was marked by a very gratifying incident, on the evening of the 21st inst., when substantial recognition was made of the valuable services rendered for many years by Bro. R R. Harper, as Past Master and Secretary. The meeting took place at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, where there was a numerous attendance of brethren and visitors. The W.M., Bro. Alfred J. Potter, was supported by Bros. C. Weeden S.W., A. Perl J.W., Rev. C. Stevens Chaplain, R. R. Harper P.M. and Secretary, F. Perl D.C., J. J. Pilley I.G.; P.M.'s T. Bartlett, T. J. Cusworth, Sampson George, and L. C. Haslip, C. T. Speight Tyler, and many other brethren. The Visitors included Bros. Walter George P.M. 101, R. Pierpoint W.M. 177, Arthur Grace 177, F. A. Tinkley 1772, H. H. Whale 172, and others. After the transaction of some routine business, the W.M. called upon Bro. T. Bartlett, as the senior Past Master of the Lodge, and Treasurer of the testimonial fund, to make the presentation, which had been unanimously subscribed for, to Bro. Harper. In doing this Bro. Bartlett said he esteemed it a great honour and privilege to have been entrusted with the pleasant duty, inasmuch as Bro. Harper's connection with the New Concord Lodge was through his introduction. He had always made himself a useful member, from his initiation to the present time, and was ever ready to fill the office of any absent brother. Soon after his initiation he became permanent Steward of the Lodge, and he then passed through all the offices leading up to S.W., with credit to himself and satisfaction to the Lodge. By an arrangement with the then Master and himself, Bro. Harper filled the S.W. chair two years, until in 1879 he was elected to the chair, the duties of which he discharged in admirable and efficient manner. In that year he was also the custodian of the Lodge books, which, from circumstances which need not be reverted to, had become somewhat disorganised. Through his zeal and assiduity, assisted by Bro. Haslip, he made the books so that they could be understood and followed by his successor, Bro. S. George; and they all admitted that he performed a very difficult task most admirably. At the expiration of his term of office as Master, the Lodge elected him as Secretary, the duties of which post he had faithfully and zealously discharged up to the present time. That the brethren were satisfied with his efforts in that direction could be vouched for by the proceedings of that evening. At a meeting a short time ago, an opinion was expressed that such valuable services as Bro. Harper had rendered to the Lodge should be somewhat substantially acknowledged, and the suggestion was most readily and unanimously responded to. The result had been the purchase of a handsome Secretary's jewel or locket, together with a massive gold albert chain, in case, in the selection of which Bro. Harper's choice had been consulted. He had very much pleasure in presenting the testimonial, in the name of the Lodge, and hoped the recipient might live many years to wear it, and to enjoy the esteem in which he was now held by the the brethren generally. It was but a slight token of their appreciation of his services of Secretary during the past six years; but he hoped whoever might come into possession of it in the future would always be reminded of the motives which had prompted the gift. He then read the inscription on the reverse side of the jewel, as follows:—

Presented to
Bro. R. R. Harper, P.M. and Secretary,
by the brethren of the
New Concord Lodge, No. 813,
In appreciation of his valuable services, and as a token of their esteem and regard.
21st May 1885.

Accompanying the gift was an address, engraved on vellum, and beautifully illuminated in gold and colours, the whole being surmounted by a capital portrait of Bro. Harper. The address was enclosed in a neat frame and glazed, and the text ran as follows:—

This Testimonial,
Together with a gold chain and jewel, was Presented to
Bro. R. R. Harper, P.M. and Secretary,
By the brethren of the
New Concord Lodge, No. 813,
In appreciation of his valuable services, and as a mark of their sincere regard and esteem,
21st May 1885.
[Signed by the present and past Masters, the Officers and many of the brethren].

The applause which followed the presentation having subsided, Bro. Bartlett proceeded to say that as there was a surplus of the fund remaining in hand, it was thought that no better or more graceful use could be made of it than by asking Bro. Harper to accept, for his wife, the present of a diamond ring, and concluded by expressing the hope that Mrs. Harper also might live long to share in the good feeling and kindly wishes which had been expressed towards her husband. Bro. Harper, who was evidently moved by the profuse expressions of regard which were showered upon him from all sides, said he was sure the brethren would pardon him if he failed adequately to express in words the feelings of gratitude within him for the kindness they had shown him. He asked them, therefore, to take the will for the deed; and as these splendid tokens had been given for services he had rendered to the Lodge he hoped not one of the brethren would regret having subscribed to them. He should endeavour in the future, as he had done in the past, all he possibly could to promote and sustain the interests of the New Concord Lodge. To him this was simply a labour of love; in fact he admired the New Concord Lodge and all its surroundings. What he did he did freely and willingly, and purely for the benefit of the Lodge. Perhaps he might have displeased one or two members at various times, but they must take the will for the deed; it was all done for their good. He again thanked the brethren for their handsome gifts, and resumed his seat amidst loud applause. On the motion of Bro. A. Perl J.W., seconded by Bro. Mustoe, a vote of thanks was ordered to be recorded on the minutes to the Committee, Treasurer and Secretary of the Harper Testimonial Fund, for the efficient manner in which they had carried out their duties. P.M.'s T. Bartlett and S. George briefly acknowledged the compliment paid them and their coadjutors. A grant of £10 from the Benevolent Fund of the Lodge was made to a distressed brother; after which Bro. F. Perl S.D. said he had heard with deep regret, on entering the Lodge-room, of the death of Mrs. Speight, the wife of their respected Tyler. They had been associated with Bro. Speight many years, and they could not do less than testify their respect for him and their sincere sorrow at his bereavement, after forty-six years of happy married life. He therefore moved that the regret of the brethren be recorded on the minutes, and that the Secretary be requested to send a letter of condolence to Bro. Speight. In seconding the proposition Bro. Bartlett P.M. observed that Bro. Speight had been Tyler of this Lodge ever since its formation, twenty-five years ago. He was deservedly respected by all with whom he came in contact, and it was only due that the condolence of the brethren should be duly expressed. The motion was carried unanimously At the conclusion of the business the brethren and visitors repaired to the Throne-room, where an elegant banquet was served, under the personal superintendence of Bro. Marchant. The prefatory toasts having been duly honoured, the health of the W.M. was proposed in complimentary terms by Bro. Bartlett P.M. and suitably acknowledged. For the Visitors Bro. R. Pierpoint, in responding, said he was a very old visitor to the New Concord Lodge. He remembered the brethren when they held their meetings at the Rosemary Branch, at Hoxton, and he had always received from them the greatest kindness and hospitality. The W.M. being a personal friend of his it gave him the utmost pleasure to be present this evening, and to witness the presentation of a testimonial to another very old friend. If ever a man deserved the name of "a brother Mason" it was Brother Harper; beneath his waistcoat was the true throb of a Mason's heart. He had received from Bro. Harper the greatest kindness, and he knew the brethren of the Lodge had also, Masonically. But he could speak of him outside Masonic circles, for he was brought in contact with Bro. Harper in business matters connected with the railway system, and he knew that after leaving the festive board he would be puzzling his brain, trying to adopt and improve appliances for the safety of the British public. Sooner or later he ventured to predict Bro. Harper would make his mark as a practical mechanical electrician. He had now an instrument under his charge which was calculated to reduce to a minimum the liability to accident to the British public, and for that alone he deserved thanks. He had always found Bro. Harper a true Mason, and it gave him the utmost pleasure to be present that evening and to see how the brethren appreciated him in the Lodge. He hoped he might live many years to wear the chain and jewel which had been presented to him, and felt sure it would it would be gratifying to take home to his wife that little token which was included in the testimonial, to show that she also was not forgotten amidst the expressions of recognition of the services her husband had rendered to the new Concord Lodge. Bros. Tinley, Whale, and Grace also responded, the latter observing that it had given him great pleasure to witness the presentation to his old and valued friend. Bro. W. George followed, in the same direction, and thanked the brethren for the right royal welcome they had extended to the Visitors. In responding for the Past Masters Bro. Bartlett referred to Bro. Harper as one of his children in the Lodge, and said that fact gave additional pleasure to him in making the presentation. During his six years secretaryship he had completely resuscitated the Lodge, and brought it back to its original new Concord form, which it had somewhat lost when he took office. Bro. Cusworth, in the course of his reply, said although a young Lodge comparatively, of only 25 years' standing, the New Concord was Vice-President of the three Masonic Institutions, which could not be said even of some older Lodges. As regarded the Charities, they had a Lodge Benevolent Fund, which was always at the disposal of the W.M. and the brethren. He hoped Bro. Potter would have a pleasant and happy year of office; he saw no reason why he should not, as he was supported by efficient and able Officers. Bro. Harper also responded, and in the course of his remarks said that from their Benevolent Fund they had recently confirmed a grant of £20 to the widow of a deceased brother, and to-night they had granted £10 to a distressed member of the Lodge. Still, they had a fund in the bank amounting to over £100, and he believed there was no other Lodge of 25 years' standing that had given so much to the Masonic Charities. Bro. S. George, in his reply, said nothing would be wanting on his part and that of the other Past Masters to forward the interests of the Lodge. If any Officer or brother anxious for office required assistance at any time, he had only to mention the matter to any of the Past Masters, who would advise him to the best of their ability, and make him fit for any office to which he might aspire. The utmost harmony and concord prevailed in the Lodge, and every member seemed to have its interest really at heart, which was most gratifying. Bro. Haslip also briefly responded, and the W.M. then proposed the Treasurer and Secretary, in doing which he regretted the absence of Bro. Stilwell P.M. through indisposition. The toast having been acknowledged, the Officers of the Lodge was proposed, and severally responded to, the list being brought to a fitting close by the Tyler's toast. The proceedings were interspersed by some excellent songs, and an unusually harmonious and agreeable evening was passed.

UNITED LODGE, No. 697.

ON Wednesday, the 27th instant, the V.W. Deputy Provincial Grand Master of the Province of Essex (Bro. F. A. Philbrick, Q.C., Recorder of Colchester) visited Colchester for the purpose of installing Bro. John T. Bailey as W.M. of this Lodge. There was a large gathering of members of the Lodge and visitors, and the proceedings passed off most successfully. The installation ceremony was performed in the most perfect and impressive manner by the D.P.G.M., and at its close the following were appointed as Officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. Robert Smith I.P.M., the Rev. Morgan Jones S.W., Gosling P.M. J.W., the Rev. E H. Crate P.M. P.P.G.C. Chaplain, Richard Clowes P.M. P.P.G.S.W. Treas., Thos. Rix P.M. P.P.G.S.B. Sec., John G. At the close of the Lodge business, a letter was read from Bro. Col. H. S. Somerville Burney P.G.D., one of the Founders of the Lodge, presenting to the Lodge a photograph of its first Officers. In the absence of Bro. Colonel Burney, the presentation was made by Bro. the Rev. E. H. Crate, who, in a few well chosen words, spoke of the interest attaching to the photograph, and congratulated the Lodge upon the possession of so interesting a memento. On the motion of Bro. Thos. Eustace P.M., one of the oldest members of the Lodge, seconded by the W.M., a vote of thanks was unanimously passed to Bro. Colonel Burney for his present. A cordial vote of thanks was also passed to Bro. Fred. A. Philbrick D.P.G.M., Grand Registrar, for his kindness in attending and performing the ceremony of the day. Between 40 and 50 brethren afterwards dined together, at the George Hotel, an excellent repast being provided by the hostess, Mrs. Guiver. The usual Masonic toasts were proposed and drunk, and the post prandial proceedings were much enlivened by some vocal music by Bros. C. Osmond, J. J. C. Turner, R. O. Coombs, Rev. W. Morgan Jones, and Masters Barton and Nunn. Among those present in addition to those already mentioned, were Bros. Thos. J. Ralling P.M. 51 P.G. ROYAL ALFRED LODGE, No. 780.

THE regular meeting of this Lodge, on Friday the 22nd inst., was well attended, both by members and visitors. The W.M., Bro. William D. Becket was supported by his Wardens, Bros. F. and C.E. Botley, and other Officers, with Past Masters Blasby Treasurer, Hilton Secretary, Gardiner, Littlewood, Walter Goss, Potter, and J. J. Gunner I.P.M. The business, other than that of the usual character, consisted of the raising of Bro. J. Fay to the degree of M.M. The ceremony was performed in excellent style by the W.M. A capital banquet followed, and at its conclusion the usual toast list was done justice to. The name of Bro. H. G. Buss was associated with the toast of the Grand Officers. In reply, the esteemed Assistant Grand Secretary referred to his long association with the Royal Alfred Lodge, in which he had filled the office of Secretary for a period of twelve or fourteen years. It was very gratifying to him to again attend the Lodge and see it prospering as of old. All appeared to be working harmoniously together, and he trusted the same spirit might always continue. Bro. Gunner proposed the health of the Worshipful Master, the toast he considered the principal one of the evening. He spoke of the ability displayed by Bro. Becket in the work of the Lodge, more particularly referring to the way in which he had worked the ceremony of raising that day. In replying, the W.M. said he had approached the work of Master with considerable diffidence. He had been a member of the Lodge some eight or nine years, and during that time had only been absent from one of its meetings. He had worked up step by step to the highest in the Lodge, and assured the members he should strive to carry out the duties of the chair to their satisfaction and to the best of his ability. The toast of the Past Masters followed. Bro. Gunner replied. He had experienced great pleasure throughout the period during which he had held the reins of office. Bro. Littlewood followed. He was ever ready to assist the Wor. Master for the time being. Bros. Gardiner, Goss, Blasby and Hilton also replied. The latter said he had the honour of being appointed Secretary of the Lodge on the retirement of Bro. Buss, which position he had held for nearly twenty years. Several other toasts followed, and during the evening some good songs were contributed.

LEWIS LODGE, No. 1185.

THE first meeting, after the usual vacation, was held at the King's Arms Hotel, Wood Green, on Saturday, 16th inst. Present—Bros. Powell W.M., Tollis I.P.M., Shipwright S.W., Hildreth J.W., Field S.D., Goodfellow J.D., Richards I.G., Durrant P.M. Treasurer, Lloyd P.M. Secretary, Chatterton Organist, Knight W.S., Sayer P.M. D.C., Church Tyler; also Bros. Row P.M., Harrison P.M., Conolly, Mackney, Stiffen, Murray, Gomm, Nash, Usherwood, Prentice, Greenslade, Buehl, Carter, Humphreys, Smith, Keddell. Visitors—Bros. Rickwood P.M. 192, Williams J.D. 1539, Walsham 55, North 473, Hulett 569, Sexton 1321, Calmady, Richardson 1641. After confirmation of the minutes of meeting held in October last, the W.M. passed Bro. Keddell. The ballot was then taken for Messrs. Osterstock, Hewett, Passmore, and Goldsmith, and proved unanimous. Mr. Passmore was unavoidably absent, but the rest were duly initiated in an impressive manner by the W.M. Bro. Hildreth, having previously given notice, asked the Lodge to vote him the sum of five guineas on his list as Steward for the Boys' School. This was seconded by Bro. Tollis I.P.M., and carried unanimously. Lodge then adjourned to a banquet, provided by host Greenslade, and served in a manner which reflected great credit upon him. Having such musical talent present no more time than was absolutely necessary was spent by the W.M. in giving the various toasts. Our esteemed Bro. Mackney was in his usual form, and responded most willingly to the numerous calls made upon him; it is quite unnecessary to say that the risible faculties of the brethren were strung to the highest pitch. Bro. Sexton's singing was also thoroughly appreciated, and Bros. Keddell, Smith and Richardson also gave some excellent songs. In giving the Charities, the W.M. congratulated the Lodge upon the fact that all the Institutions would be represented by them this year. He thanked the brethren for so heartily supporting him at the recent Festival for the "Old Folks," when he took up the handsome sum of £150. Bro. Knight raised £80 for the Girls, and he hoped Bro. Hildreth would be equally successful for the Boys. The Worshipful Master advised all the brethren to join Charitable Associations, which were now very general, and attached to most Lodges of Instruction. To one in particular he referred, viz., that attached to the Star Lodge of Instruction, held at the Five Bells, New Cross, to which he felt greatly indebted, as over £100 had been placed on his list from that source. Bro. Hildreth responded for the Charities. The only other toasts calling for special mention were the Initiates and the Visitors. To the former very able responses were received from the newly-made brethren, and Bros. Rickwood, Williams and Richardson responded to the latter, congratulating the W.M. upon the able manner in which he had done his work, and the Lodge generally upon the very harmonious and friendly feeling which prevailed. The Tyler's toast brought to an end a most enjoyable evening.

H. Lee P.M., Everitt, Dearing, Hiscock, Dresden, Garner, Brown, Warner, Field, Keogh, Southwell, &c. Amongst the numerous Visitors were Bros. Bird P.M. 1897 and P.P.G.S.B. Middlesex, Woodman W.M. 1950 J.W. 1897, Cave 127, Thomas 179, Snook S.D. 1693, Weeden S.W. 813, Wigley W.M. 1348, Martin 382, Brett 1471, Kew P.M. 179, Lee 1897, James I.G. 1441, Forge P.M. 1950 S.W. 1693, Hammond 1471, Wetenhall 201, Hughes 1897, Spiller P.M. 49, Potter 1693, Rennie 1891, Western W.M. 1693, Collings Organist 1693, Bayne Organist 1897, Probert 340. Lodge having been opened, and the minutes read and confirmed, Bros. Everitt and Banks, 1897, were passed to the second degree, after which the chair was taken by Bro. Weston P.M., who in a very efficient manner installed Bro. Edwin Payne W.M. elect. The following were appointed Officers:—Brothers Greenfield I.P.M., Larter S.W., Heyse J.W., Weston P.M. Treasurer, Osborn P.M. Secretary, Homan S.D., Dearing J.D., Brown I.G., Warner D.C., Wright Organist, Garner Steward, Thomas Tyler. The usual addresses were then delivered in an impressive manner by Bros. Weston and Osborn. The newly-installed W.M. commenced his tenure of office by initiating Messrs. Keogh and Southwell, the ceremony being rendered in a style that convinced the brethren that Bro. Payne would prove himself a very able and efficient occupant of the Master's chair. A P.M.'s jewel was presented to Bro. Greenfield, in recognition of his services during the past year. Several propositions were then received for the next meeting, after which the brethren adjourned to banquet. After the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts had been disposed of, Bro. Greenfield I.P.M. proposed the health of the Worshipful Master, and congratulated him on the excellent and impressive manner in which he had performed the ceremony of initiation that evening. He was glad to see five candidates and one joining brother proposed for the next meeting, and predicted a flourishing year for the W.M. Bro. Payne was initiated in that Lodge the same evening as himself, and he was pleased to see him attain the honourable position he now held, and earnestly wished him health and prosperity during his tenure of office. Bro. Payne W.M., in reply, heartily thanked Bro. Greenfield for the flattering terms in which he had spoken of him, and also the brethren for the cordial reception they had accorded the toast of his health. He would use his earnest endeavours to promote the welfare of the Lodge and the comfort and happiness of the brethren. The W.M., in proposing the toast of the I.P.M., Bro. Greenfield, alluded to the efficient manner in which he had conducted the Lodge during the past year, and hoped he might long be spared to assist them with his counsel and advice. Bro. Greenfield I.P.M., in response, after thanking the brethren for the jewel that had been presented to him, and for the hearty manner in which they had received the toast, said that he considered it was the duty of every Mason to practise the precepts that were inculcated in the Lodge. The health of the Initiates was proposed by the W.M., who said he was proud of having initiated two brethren that evening, and trusted they would be Masons in heart as well as in name. He was glad to see such a large number of initiates coming into the Lodge. Bro. Keogh, in reply, thanked the brethren for the hearty reception the initiates had received; he had had the pleasure of being acquainted with the W.M. for the last twenty-five years, and was pleased to be initiated by so old and valued a friend. The W.M. next proposed the Visitors, and said he was delighted to see such a large number present. In the name of the Lodge he gave them a hearty welcome, and trusted they had spent a pleasant even ing. In response, Bro. Woodman, W.M. 1950, said he appreciated the honour done him by coupling his name with the toast. He had had the privilege of visiting the Lodge frequently during the last few years, and was glad to see the progress that had been made. It had afforded him much pleasure to see the W.M. invest his Officers in so able a manner, and he was sure he would perform his duties to the entire satisfaction of the brethren. In conclusion, he heartily thanked the W.M. for his hospitality, and in the name of the Visitors wished him every success during the coming year. Brother Bird P.M. 1897 also testified to the excellent working and profuse hospitality. The W.M. then proposed the health of the Past Masters, which was responded to by Bros. P.M.'s Weston and Osborn. The toast of the Officers followed, which was suitably responded to. The Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to a close, when the brethren separated, after having spent a very enjoyable evening. We must give a meed of praise to Bro. J. Baker, for the excellent manner in which the banquet was served. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. Wright Organist, assisted by Miss Edith Phillips, Miss Coyte Turner, Bros. Probert and Bayne. The selection of vocal music rendered gave great satisfaction and deservedly gained applause.

EBORACUM LODGE, No. 1611.

THIS Lodge held its first meeting in the new Masonic Hall, St. Saviourgate, York, on Monday, the 11th inst. The brethren attended in full force, and the Lodge room was comfortably filled. The fittings of the hall were far from completed, but sufficient had been accomplished to give a good idea of what the effect would be when all was finished, and very general satisfaction was expressed at the handsome, comfortable, and well furnished appearance of the place. In the absence of the W.M., Sir F. Milner, Bart., M.P., and the I.P.M., Bro. John Blenkin (through indisposition), Bro. T. B. Whytehead, senior P.M., took the chair. After the usual formalities and successful ballots for a candidate and a joining member, Bro. Whytehead addressed the brethren on the occasion of their meeting for the first time under their own roof. He congratulated them on their efforts having been crowned with success, reviewing the progress of the Lodge since its commencement, and pointing out the result of harmonious working. He said that the spirit evinced by the members of the Lodge was of the true Masonic kind. Not only had they been able to purchase and pay for the handsome building in which they were then assembled, but members of the Lodge had come forward in the most handsome manner and offered to present various articles of furniture. Chairs, pedestals, and other important properties would be presented by individual brethren, and, indeed, no sooner was it known that anything was required for the Lodge than some brother at once came forward and offered to give it. He was proud to be a member of a Lodge containing so many good and true men, and he looked forward to a future both prosperous and happy. After the close of the Lodge the party met at the refreshment table, and passed a most harmonious evening, every one expressing the utmost pleasure at the accommodation experienced in the new building. Amongst those present were Bros. Balmford P.M. as S.W., Brown J.W., Chapman S.D., Dalton J.D., Kay Sec., Lackenby I.G., Stephenson S.; P.M.'s Millington, Padel, Seller, Simpson; Polkinghorne W.M. 1991, Major McGachen P.M. and S.W. 1991, Foster, Abbey, Mills, Ware, Pearson, Storry, Irving, Thorpe, Cooper, Wrigglesworth, Stubbs, Lamb, Taff, Thackray, White 1991, Kersopp 1991, Take 236, and two visiting brethren from the Leonox Lodge, No. 123, Richmond. A candidate for initiation and a joining member were proposed.

EWELL LODGE No. 1851.

ON Saturday, 23rd inst., this Lodge met at the Sun Hotel, Kingston-on-Thames, and was opened by Bro. George Joseph Dunkley (G. S. Graham) Worshipful Master, and Bro. Parker was duly installed W.M. for the ensuing year. After the ceremony, the W.M. was presented with a very handsome Past Master's jewel, of 18-carat gold, bearing the following inscription:—

Presented by the Brethren of the
EWELL LODGE, No. 1851,
To BRO. GEORGE JOSEPH DUNKLEY P.P. Grand Org. Mddx.
And fourth Master. 23rd May 1885.

—:o:—

The Strand.—A great authority has declared that every possible combination on the dramatic chess board has been long ago exhausted, and that though we may give our plays new names, we must needs put them through some ancient opening to close in a denouement of no less ancient invention. Will Mr. Sidney Grundy's new comedy "The Silver Shield," so successfully given lately at a Strand matinée, disprove this pessimist view? The dialogue is brilliantly written, but not made too prickly with smart things; they seem appropriate to the speaker and the situation, not a mere firework show by the author. The play may take its stand, for its literary merit, a rare quality in these days, when the horse-collar school of wit is in the ascendant, but the merit is perhaps in the manner of the story rather than in the story itself. We have our lion raging in the forest of Arden, an animal as fierce and unaccountable as that which made sweet Rosalind tremble and turn pale. Mr. Grundy's lion is green-eyed, and this is the havoc it creates: Alma Blake, a charming actress and charming wife, when the curtain rises, is visiting at the house of Sir Humphrey Chetwynd. She is separated from her devoted husband. The lion of Arden has made Tom read a letter of scornful dismissal to an impertinent admirer, but so worded it that Tom thinks his wife faithless. She, instead of setting the misunderstanding right, as so clever and sensible a lady should have done, has allowed her husband to depart, and then advertised her own death. Tom, when the curtain rises, is embittered, but now seeks consolation from Lucy Preston, the ward of Sir Humphrey, a fair but illegitimate maiden, who is secretly married to her guardian's son Ned. When the fact of this marriage is intimated to the father, that amiable and genial old gentleman is suddenly transformed into the irascible father of "legitimate" days, and turns the son he adores and the girl he has loved out of doors, because of the misfortune of her birth. Then Sir Humphrey seeks consolation from Alma, and offers her his hand, only to learn that she too is married. Ned Chetwynd and his bride are in London in the second act—he a successful play writer, and engaged on a comedy in which Alma is to take a leading part. Now reappears our lion, with eyes greener than ever. A letter the actress has to read is found by Lucy on her husband's desk; she supposes it is an actual love letter. Here Miss Mary Rorke, as Lucy, showed a degree of emotional power that fairly carried away her audience. Those who have only seen this lady in the charmed circle of the Criterion, where displays of passion and grief are perhaps unknown, would scarcely be prepared for such ability as she displays. The lion has roared to such purpose that Lucy, like Alma, resolves to separate from the spouse she adores. We next find her, after three months, the leading actress at Alma's theatre. This achievement, for a country-bred girl, new to London and unknown to the photographers, surely demands too much strain on our faith. However, we now come to a magnificent scene between the ladies. Lucy charges Alma with the intrigue, and offers to prove the charge by producing the letter; when Alma, with half pity, half contemptuous good humour, shows a copy of the words in the part she is studying. Both ladies are reunited to their "loving husbands, waiting outside." The story, told in the grey air of the morning, seems crude and improbable; but probability is not a stage virtue. Mr. Beauchamp was excellent as the country gentleman, mingling the modern man of the world with a survival of Squire Western. Mr. Groves, as a very "shoppy" theatre manager, played with gusto—perhaps a little too much. Mr. Herbert, as Ned, was a pleasant jeune première. Mr. R. Barrington was a dignified Rev. Dr. Dozey; Mr. Arthur Dacre, always refined and earnest in style, suffered from nervousness. To our mind he spoke his words too slowly, The honour of the occasion, however, fell on Miss Amy Roselle. It is long since this charming artress has had a part so worthy her powers. The brilliancy and playful wit of the artist Alma, the tenderness and pride of the insulted wife, were all delicately rendered, and with the touch of a master hand. This lady commands, with equal readiness, tears and laughter. Only less important was the Lucy of Miss Kate Rorke, while Mrs. Leigh Murray was delightful as the fussy, good-natured clergywoman. There were, at the end of the second act, loud calls for the author, but he wisely deferred his acknowledgments till the end of the piece, when he had to appear twice. On the second occasion he was brought on by the tutelary genius of the occasion, Miss Amy Roselle.

The Avenue.—The sparkling comic opera "Les Manteaux Noirs" again sees the footlights at the Avenue, and will, we trust, bring back fortune's favours to the pretty house by the river. It is not long since Mr. Willing first adorned our hoardings with the mysterious triumvirate, suggesting the three avengers from the "Prophète," and we gladly welcome these gay dissemblers once again. Full houses give plenty of laughter and applause to the revival. Though the cast is not so strong—from a musical point of view—as the original one, the story, with its picturesque Spanish setting, and endless complications, has quite enough dramatic force to stand alone. However, Miss Hood deserves unqualified praise for her singing as the heroine, and very pretty she looks in her coquettish peasant dress. Mr. Walsham plays the hero, Don Louis, with spirit, and the right touch of cavalier gaiety. Mr. Wyatt is at his best as the Grand Chamberlain. The sincerity of his eccentricities have an irresistible charm, and whether he sings or declaims he is delightfully amusing. The piece is well mounted, and the costumes costly and tasteful. Whether comic opera can hold its own for any length of time is now doubtful, but M. Bucalossi's work, by its graceful songs and clever orchestration, well deserves the success its revival promises.

CONSECRATION OF THE GEORGE PRICE LODGE, No. 2096.

ONE of the last matters which are arranged in connection with a new Lodge, and yet one of the most important in regard to its future, is that of its name. Every detail may be settled to a nicety, every arrangement made for the petition to be regularly presented, and reasonable hopes entertained of the ultimate granting of the warrant, without serious thought being given to the naming of the Lodge. When the subject does come on for consideration among the founders, how many divergencies of opinion often arise, and how difficult it becomes to satisfy all the requirements which seem to be needed in connection with the name. For our part we are averse, as a rule, to the naming of Lodges after well known brethren, and we are of opinion that much may be said in opposition to such a course, but on the other hand there is much to be advanced in its favour. The Province of Surrey is particularly strong in this respect, it having several Lodges named in honour of its prominent Masons, notably the Brownrigg, the Arnold, and the Greenwood, and has just added another to its roll, having for its title the name of one of the most distinguished members of its Provincial Grand Lodge. No one will question the policy of the founders in selecting for their title the name of so distinguished a Mason as Bro. George Price, who has been intimately associated with the Masonic work of the district for over thirty years, during a considerable portion of which period he has filled the important post of Provincial Grand Treasurer.

The George Price Lodge was formally consecrated on Wednesday last, at the Greyhound Hotel, Croydon. Bro. the Rev. C. W. Arnold P.G.C. Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Surrey acted as consecrating Officer, in the regretted absence of the chief of the Province, Gen. Studholme Brownrigg, C.B., who was prevented from being present, as he had intended, in consequence of indisposition. Bro. Arnold nominated for his Officers Bro. George Price S.W., Dr. Strong J.W. John G. Horsey officiated as Director of Ceremonies and Charles Greenwood jun. as Inner Guard. Lodge was opened in the three degrees, and the opening hymn "Hail, Eternal, by whose aid," was sung. In his preliminary address Bro. Arnold said the brethren had met that day to consecrate a Lodge. He understood that the brother who was designated to preside over it had been initiated into Freemasonry at a very early age. He felt sure, from a study of the names of the brethren who were the founders of the Lodge that they would do their best to maintain its efficiency, and to admit only good men and true into the Craft. He hoped the Lodge would become a good and useful one in the Province. The Acting Secretary (Bro. Charles Greenwood P.G. Sw.B. Prov. G. Sec.) having addressed the Consecrating Officer and received directions, the brethren of the new Lodge were arranged in order, and the Warrant was read. Approval of the Officers named in the Warrant having been given, the Chaplain was called upon. Bro. the Rev. G. P. Merrick, the Provincial Grand Chaplain, said that although on such occasions an oration was customary, he felt there was nothing new to say, neither were any lengthened remarks necessary, inasmuch as the precepts and principles of Freemasonry were so frequently being inculcated in the general working of its rites and ceremonies. Moreover, the ritual of the Order was a sermon in itself, and it was only necessary for the brethren to look around them to realise an oration in their Temple, their ritual, and the precepts taught thereby. The Temple of Freemasonry pointed to the Great Architect of the Universe, the ritual to the worship of the soul and its adoration and service to the honour of the Most High, while its precepts point to the love which commends our behaviour to the world generally and to the Brotherhood in particular. Our Order is established on the three pillars of Brotherly Love, Relief and Truth, and tells of our attitude in relation to the three parts of our being—body, soul, and spirit. Is a sermon wanted with this text always before us? Practise devotion to the Most High, a pure faith, a universal charity, a blameless life. Masons have a noble profession, and should so act that their lives should illustrate their principles, thus letting the world know them as Masons, whose only impulses are Brotherly Love, Relief and Truth. The ceremony of consecration and dedication having been completed, Bro. Joseph David Langton was installed as Worshipful Master, and he in due course appointed and invested the following as his Officers:—Hugh Marcus Hobbs S.W., Francis T. Ridpath J.W., Joseph Langton (elected) Treas., J. S. Fraser Sec., Ernest Samuel S.D., M. L. Levèy J.D., W. G. Goode I.G., C. Shepperd Tyler. Several propositions from gentlemen seeking initiation and from brethren desiring to join the Lodge were handed in, and the thanks of the Lodge was voted to the Consecrating Officer and those brethren who had assisted him in the ceremony. Honorary membership of the Lodge was conferred on these brethren, and also on the Rt. Hon. the Lord Mayor of London and Bro. Col. Shadwell H Clerke G. Sec. Bro. the Rev. C. W. Arnold acknowledged the compliment which had been conferred by their election as honorary members, and was followed by the Lord Mayor and Bro. Clerke. Lodge was shortly afterwards closed and the brethren proceeded to banquet. At its conclusion, the usual toasts were honoured. The Worshipful Master was pleased the cordial reception of the toast of the Queen and the Craft did not depend on any words of his. It was a sentiment at all times sure of a cordial reception among Englishmen generally, but particularly so among members of the Masonic Order. Speaking to the next toast, the Most Worshipful the Grand Master, the W.M. felt that Freemasons might congratulate themselves on having the Prince of Wales as their ruler. Ever since his election as Grand Master he had seemed determined not to let any long period pass without showing his interest in the business of the Craft. The initiation of his eldest son, Prince Albert Victor, into Freemasonry was a striking illustration of the interest taken in the Order by His Royal Highness, and the brethren might look forward with confidence to the time when the young Prince would fill some high office in the Order. The W.M. concluded by referring to the recent visit of the Prince and Princess of Wales and Prince Albert Victor to Ireland, expressing the pleasure he felt at the success which had attended their tour in the sister Isle, and his gratification that it had passed off without any display of disloyalty to the Royal visitors. The toast of the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers was next given. The Worshipful Master spoke of the honour conferred on the Lodge by the presence of the Lord Mayor of London, Past Grand Warden, at its consecration. They were indeed thankful to him for having found time, amidst his thousand and one engagements, to attend their meeting. The W.M. had the honour of belonging to No. 1 Lodge, the one over which the Lord Mayor had presided during the past year; he had there had the opportunity of seeing him in the position of W.M., and witnessing how well he performed the duties of that office. His proficiency in the work enhanced the character of the famous Grand Masters' Lodge, while personally he had endeared himself to each of its members. The George Price Lodge had also the honour of having among its guests several other Officers of Grand Lodge, notably the Rev. C. W. Arnold P.G.C., who had so ably officiated as the Consecrating Officer, Colonel Shadwell Clerke the Grand Secretary, Charles Greenwood P.G.Sw.B., the Provincial Grand Secretary; Bros. Dumas, Rucker, Dr. Ralph Gooding, and Bro. A. Lucking. The Lord Mayor was the first to reply. The toast, he said, would also be replied to by one who was a permanent Grand Officer, or permanent so far as any such appointment could be, and to that brother who would so respond—Colonel Shadwell Clerke—he and Masons generally were very deeply indebted. It was undoubtedly true that the brethren owed very much to the Grand Master and other distinguished members of the Order, but to Bro. Colonel Shadwell Clerke they looked, as the right hand man, for advice. They could always depend on getting it. He imagined that the Grand Master, previous to authorising the foundation of this Lodge, had had the advice of Bro. Clerke, and had doubtless acted on it. Speaking for himself, the Lord Mayor warmly thanked the brethren for coupling his name with the toast, and more particularly for having invited him to the Lodge and conferring on him the honour of membership. He knew he was an indifferent Mason, and felt he ought to do more for Freemasonry. When accepting the invitation to be with them that day he had known he should be received with that kindness which was ever displayed under such circumstances. It had afforded him great pleasure to visit the Lodge, which he hoped would flourish. Bro. Shadwell Clerke, Grand Secretary, followed. Being a person of unquestionable modesty, he said, he had felt entirely taken aback in having to respond to the toast properly assigned to the Lord Mayor. His Lordship had been good enough to say very kind things of him, and coming from such a generous hearted brother they were very acceptable. He did not, however, thank his lordship for having brought him to his feet, although he was at all times pleased to say a word on behalf of the Grand Officers who, in their various capacities, well filled the responsible positions given to them. They were brethren who had all done good suit and service to the Order, and the Grand Master, in appointing them, had rewarded merit. It was to them a pleasure to receive the kind and hearty reception they experienced at Masonic meetings, and they appreciated it. He was sure the time would never come when they would not receive it. They always took interest in the purposes of Masonry, and were delighted to find a Lodge started under such favourable auspices as the George Price Lodge. They considered it a most graceful tribute to the worth of a very old member of the Province, and they congratulated him on the honour done him. They also congratulated the Lodge on being presided over by such excellent Officers. With such brethren at the head of affairs it could but prosper. He felt sure it would be a most successful Lodge and a credit to the Province of Surrey.

The W.M. next gave the toast of the R.W. Provincial Grand Master, General Studholme Brownrigg, C.B., reading a letter from that brother, regretting his inability to be present owing to a severe cold, and congratulating the Lodge on its having taken so loved and honoured a name as that of Bro. George Price. The W.M. was sure the brethren one and all deeply regretted the absence, and the cause of the absence, of General Brownrigg, but they might congratulate themselves on having his Deputy with them. They thanked Bro. Arnold most sincerely for coming amongst them and performing the ceremony of consecration and installation. The other Provincial Grand Officers they were also delighted to see, and they trusted that during the years the Lodge existed it would never do anything which would cause the Provincial Grand Officers to regret for a moment that the Lodge came into this Province. He hoped rather that they would look back with pleasure to the day when it was brought into existence.

Bro. Arnold in responding, said it was a source of great regret to Gen. Brownrigg that he was not able to be present that day. He was with him at Caterham on Saturday last, which was, unfortunately, a wet day, and the Prov. G. Master was not well at the time.

Gen. Brownrigg was afraid he would not be able to attend this consecration, and had asked him to prepare for taking his place. He was pleased at having the opportunity of performing the ceremony, in which he always took a very great interest. It had given him great pleasure to instal the W.M., and he was certain that the Lodge would become a thoroughly Surrey one. He trusted the brethren would join with the Surrey Masons in all that they did in the Province, and especially in promoting the great Charities, which they all had so dearly at heart. They wanted, if they could, in Surrey to work most heartily for those Charities, so as to meet together and join and bring in their different candidates, because all the brethren must agree that there was nothing so trying to the candidates for the Charities as to be kept in suspense for some time. If they could at once carry in their candidate so much the better. They would excuse him for saying it, but he had the Charities very much at heart, and the brethren would agree with him that it was right to bring the subject before a Lodge at its induction. He had had great pleasure in bringing a new Lodge into the Province, presided over by such a Mason as Bro. Langton, who was a thorough worker, not only in the Lodge of Emulation, but in another Lodge, which had done good work in Masonry. He trusted this Lodge would do the same, and make its mark. He then proposed the health of the W.M., wishing he might have plenty of work. Bro. Langton was deeply grateful to the founders of the George Price Lodge for having selected him as its first W.M. He was very proud of the position, and would do everything in his power to prevent the brethren regretting they had placed him there. He trusted that during his year of office he should have, as Bro. Arnold hoped, plenty of work, and he thought that in proposing eight initiates that evening there was a good prospect of work, both for regular and emergency meetings. With the toast of the Provincial Grand Officers was associated the name of Bro. C. Greenwood, who was sure the Lodge would be a success. He had been for nearly thirty years associated with Bro. George Price, and was glad the brethren had so honoured that Lodge by naming it after him. The W.M. next proposed the health of Bro. George Price, and reminded the brethren of the letter of the Provincial Grand Master, which spoke of the loved name of George Price. That was echoed by every Mason in the Province. Bro. Price had consented to let his name be associated with this Lodge. He (the W.M.) trusted he would never look back with regret to having given that permission, but rather that he might look with a certain amount of pride to the fact. All the brethren would strive to their utmost to make the Lodge one of the first in the Province. Bro. Price thanked the W.M. for the many kind words he had uttered with regard to himself, and the brethren for the very warm manner in which they had received the toast. He considered it a very great honour indeed to have his name associated with the Lodge. When the proposal was made he considered it was a great compliment, and he felt certain the Lodge would be a success. In a meeting of the promoters and founders of the Lodge which he attended, he found them to be brethren well skilled, energetic and determined Masons. He felt assured they were the men to establish a Lodge and to work it successfully. The proceedings of the day had fully justified this view. He trusted the Lodge would promote and strengthen Freemasonry in the Province, and more especially in the good town of Croydon. It was a large town now, with something like 100,000 inhabitants; it was a corporate town, with at least two Lodges—the East Surrey Lodge of Concord and the Addiscombe Lodge. He thought three Lodges would be none too many for a town of such importance. In conclusion he thanked the Provincial Grand Master for his very kind and flattering remarks in the letter which had been read. The W.M. next gave the Officers who had assisted; the beautiful ceremony of consecration could not have been more perfectly performed, and he, and all the brethren, thanked the Consecrating Officer most sincerely for so kindly officiating. They were deeply indebted to the Provincial Grand Chaplain, Brother Merrick, for the duties he had performed, and for his oration. Dr. Strong acknowledged the compliment; so far as the part he was called upon to perform was concerned, it was very slight. It was a long time since he took part in a consecration, and consequently was a little rusty; but should there be another consecration in Surrey he should perform his part better. It had been a great source of pleasure to him to be present, more especially as, with Brother Greenwood, he had been associated in the Grand Lodge of Surrey twenty-five years with Bro. Price. It had always been a matter of congratulation to him that his initiation took place in the hotel in which they were now assembled. He had never regretted it, because it had enabled him to make the friendship of Bros. Greenwood and Price. Brother Saxelby P.M. 463 replied to the toast of his health, proposed in connection with the "Recommending Lodge." He was not now Master of the East Surrey Lodge of Concord, No. 463, but was so at the time the petition came to be signed. When they found the Lodge was to be named after so highly respected a member of the Province there was no hesitation at all with the members in recommending that the petition be signed. They felt it an honour due to him who had held such a high position amongst them for a great number of years. Personally, he knew all the founders of the Lodge; he knew they had Masonry at heart, and desired to do good to Masonry. With such founders, and knowing to some extent the men who would guide the new Lodge, they had very much pleasure in signing the petition. This was a summer Lodge; the East Surrey was a winter one, and there was no reason why brethren wishing to do good to Masonry should not belong to both. The East Surrey desired to do good in the Province, and they thought the establishment of the George Price Lodge was a step in the right direction. In speaking of his Officers the Worshipful Master said the Senior Warden, Bro. Hugh Marcus Hobbs, was known to every one associated in the formation of the Lodge. He had not been very long a Mason but had taken a foremost place as a worker, both in the matter of ritual and on behalf of the Charities. He had already acquired a reputation as Preceptor of a Lodge of Instruction in Croydon. Moreover, Bro. Hobbs possessed the happy knack of being able to impart instruction. Bro. Ridpath, the J.W., had also distinguished himself as a worker. After modest reference to the qualities of the Treasurer, the W.M. eulogised the capacity for business displayed by the Secretary, while he spoke of the Senior and Junior Deacons as earnest members of the Craft, who would not be found wanting in the proper discharge of their duties. The thanks of the Lodge were due to Bro. Garland, who, although not formally appointed, had ably fulfilled the duties of Steward during the evening. Before offering the toast for the acceptance of the brethren he had pleasure in intimating that Bro. Merritt had consented to act as Immediate Past Master. Bro. Hobbs, in reply, felt he expressed the opinion of his brother Officers when he said they were fully cognisant of the responsibilities of their respective positions. All they could do they would strive to carry out to the advantage of the Lodge. Brother Langton, Treasurer, could add but little. He also assured them he would strive to do the best he could to advance the interests of the George Price Lodge. The Tyler was now summoned, and he gave the concluding toast of the evening. The musical arrangements gave the greatest satisfaction; the singing of Bros. Franklin Clive, J. A. Brown and Henry Taylor being all that could be desired. We append a list of those brethren who were present:—The Right Hon. the Lord Mayor P.M. No. 1, Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke Grand Secretary, Ralph Gooding, M.D., G.D. G.M. Lodge, A. Lucking A.G.P., H. Star Lodge of Instruction, No. 1275.—Notwithstanding that Saturday last was an "off night," and many brethren had gone away for their Whitsuntide holidays, there was a numerous attendance at this popular Lodge of Instruction, and some excellent study was pursued under the direction of the worthy Preceptor, Bro. Andrews. Bro. Tullett was Worshipful Master for the evening, and was supported by Bros. Finch S.W., Eaton J.W., Harvey S.D., Nightingale J.D., Medcalfe P.M. I.G., Tokely Secretary, Powell Organist, Olding P.M., Waterman P.M., Bear P.M., Good P.M., Captain F. Wilkinson, Amphlett, and many other brethren. Lodge having been opened in the three degrees, was resumed in the second, and Bro. Arlage, the candidate, having answered the questions satisfactorily, was entrusted. The ceremony of raising was then rehearsed, the working of Bro. Tullett, who gave the whole of the tradititional history, being much admired. At the conclusion of the ceremony the W.M. was saluted by the brethren in rotation; and the brethren having been called from labour to refreshment, and vice versa, Lodge was closed in form, and the usual harmony followed. Bro. Medcalfe P.M. will act as Worshipful Master this (Saturday) evening, when a goodly master is expected.

Emblematic Lodge of Instruction, No. 1321.—At a meeting of this Lodge of Instruction, held at the Red Lion, York-street, St. James's-square, on Tuesday, 19th inst., the Fifteen Sections were most ably worked by Bros. Jas. Hemming J.D. 1287 as W.M., J. C. Smith J.W. 1744 as S.W., J. Thom 957 as J.W., assisted by the following, viz., Bros. Kirk 1681, Hunter W.M. 1321, Thom 957, Greenway W.S. 1260, Farwig P.M. 180, Davies 72, J. C. Smith J.W. 1744, Kirkaldy S.W. 1321 Treasurer, Corby J.W. 957, D. Davies 72, Paul D.C. 1287, W. C. Smith J.W. 1563 Preceptor, W. H. Holroyd W.M. 9, Brindley P.M. 1604, Swan P.M. Sec. 1321. At frequent intervals warm expressions of approval greeted the workers, who, with the W.M., conducted their respective sections in the most praiseworthy manner, and afforded intense gratification to those who attended to receive instruction. Amongst those present we noticed Bros. Wetherilt W.M. 1681, Fendick I.P.M. 1321, S. Holroyd J.W. 9, Price Treasurer 1321, Gammell 2012, Fort 25, Barrow D.C. 1321, Taylor 1791, Holmes 1608, Ashenden 1677, Ludwig 179, Pfeifer 1507, Woolstein 1604, Rayner 1681, Brand 25, Holland 1681, Arduino 1559. A vote of thanks was unanimously ordered to be recorded on the minutes to Bro. Jas. Hemming, and that he be made an honorary member, for the correct and ready way he had asked the questions. Another vote of thanks was also accorded to the brethren who had assisted. The whole working was such as cannot be too warmly praised, and it reflects great credit on the indefatigable Preceptor and others who regularly attend this Lodge of Instruction. A word of praise is due also to Bro. J. Holmes who with his wife always strive their utmost to contribute to the comfort of the brethren.

A warrant has been granted for the Elthorne and Middlesex Lodge, No. 2094, to meet at the Town Hall, Hounslow, Middlesex.

The Dean of Canterbury will write the paper on the Revised Bible, which is to appear in the forthcoming issue of the Quiver. It will be remembered that the Dean was a member of the Old Testament Revision Company.

The new serial story which, under the title of "My Namesake Marjorie," will be commenced in Cassell's Magazine for June, is from the pen of the author of "Who is Sylvia?" The scene is laid partly in England and partly abroad.

In connection with the coming Handel Festival, the Editor of The Magazine of Art has arranged for the publication of an article, by Mr. R. A. M. Stevenson, on "Handel and His Portraits." Its purpose is partly musical and biographical, and partly one of art criticism. It will be illustrated with engravings of the "Chandos Portrait," painted by Thornhill, from the Fitzwilliam Museum; of the fine Grafoni, in the same collection; of Mr. Henry Littleton's famous Roubillac, the "Vauxhall Statue," as it is called; of Zincke's graphic and interesting miniature, now the property of Mr. H. B. Lennard; of the engravings by Schmidt, which Hawkins thought the best likeness of all; and (by permission of Earl Howe) of the full length, painted by Hudson, for Charles Jennens, the librettist of "Messiah," and from the first an ornament of the "Messiah Room" at Gopsall.

PRINTING AND PUBLISHING.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—It is an "open secret" that at the ensuing Quarterly Communication a question of very grave importance will be submitted to Grand Lodge on an appeal against the exclusion of a member from a private Lodge, and the confirmation of such exclusion by the Right Worshipful Grand Master of the Province in which such Lodge is holden.

With the merits of the case, in so far as the vote of exclusion is concerned, it would be most improper to interfere until after our respected Grand Registrar shall have given his opinion to the members of Grand Lodge assembled. But the "question of grave importance" which will arise out of certain proceedings connected therewith is already known to a large number of Masons; and is, so far, public information, in no wise affecting a matter which is "sub judice," and can therefore be discussed without impropriety.

There has already appeared in the pages of both Masonic journals correspondence which leads up to the question, which not I alone, but many others, desire to have answered, viz., "Can any Masonic authority whatever sanction that which in the ordinary course of legal practice would be deemed libellous, and claim privilege?" The printing and publishing a man's name without his consent, and to his certain prejudice is, without doubt, and notwithstanding the dictum which has been referred to, a libel or slander for which the law of the land provides a remedy. This remedy is more or less forcible according to the nature of circumstances which constitute privilege, and therefore it is most important to ascertain in what manner any and what privilege not given by "lawfully constituted authority" to any individual "peaceable subject" can be claimed by Freemasons as a body. I cannot believe that any privilege is accorded to Freemasons to the exclusion of all other men, or societies of men, nor that the protecting "ægis" of the Masonic Order can be thrown over direct violation of the "laws of the country in which we reside."

In the instance which will come before Grand Lodge (I write advisedly) a brother's name and full Masonic rank has been printed in connection with a motion for exclusion in an ordinary Lodge summons which has circulated beyond the "limits" of the Lodge. The W.M. had been cautioned that such publication would be considered objectionable, and if persisted in would be resented. Whether or not the brother named had committed a Masonic offence meriting exclusion, or capable of explanation, has nothing to do with the present question. He may be "white as snow," or "black as soot," that has yet to be determined; but even if proved the latter in respect of "Masonic line and rule" there is, to my mind, no justification whatever for doing that which, known to the outer world, would most emphatically injure his repute. If a justification or privilege—call it which you please—exists, then let it be known under what rule or regulation of our Constitutions, setting aside, for the present, the "ordinances of the realm," it is expressed. I can find no such thing.

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

JAMES STEVENS P.M. P.Z.

Clapham, Whit Monday 1885.

Freemason's Chronicle;

A WEEKLY RECORD OF MASONIC INTELLIGENCE.

Registered at the G.P.O. as a Newspaper.

Reports of United Grand Lodge are published with the Special Sanction of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Most Worshipful the Grand Master of England.

VOL. XXI.—No. 543. SATURDAY, 6th JUNE 1885. [PRICE THREEPENCE, 13s 6d per annum, post free.

PROVINCIAL CHARITY FUNDS—CHESHIRE.

FEW Masons, we imagine, outside the Province of Cheshire know much, if anything, of the Cheshire Educational Masonic Institution, and yet it can boast an existence of upwards of twenty years, as evidenced by our now having before us the twenty-second annual report of the Committee, with details of the work done, and the manner in which the necessary funds have been raised, for the past year. Its record is a most satisfactory one—a record of which Cheshire Freemasons may pride themselves, and on which other districts may look not only with envy, but in many cases with shame, for what is accomplished in one Province is equally possible in others, although the actual state of affairs might induce the opposite belief; with but very few exceptions Cheshire stands alone in its efforts to afford local relief to cases of Masonic distress. English Freemasons, and more particularly London brethren, are very apt to refer to the three Central Masonic Institutions as the sole representatives of Masonic Charity, unmindful of other organizations for the relief of the poor and distressed of the Craft, sometimes even to the exclusion of the Lodge of Benevolence itself. These brethren speak of the work done by the three Institutions as representing the sum total of Masonic benevolence for the year, but in reality they form but a portion only of what is done. Here in Cheshire alone we have a local fund paying for the education of twenty-four children, and the advancement of one other, at an expense, last year, of £176 9s 4d, or a trifle over £7 each.

This total of £7 per head does not appear much, but it is the practical working of a system we should very much like to see considerably extended among Freemasons. It is impossible for any district, we may almost say for any Lodge, to secure places in the two central Schools for all the cases of distress among the children of their brother Masons which occur around them, and which they would, were they in a position to do so, unhesitatingly relieve. This being the case, it behoves them to take such steps as shall enable them to afford partial relief, where actual education and maintenance is impossible, and in doing so they cannot do better than look to the Province of Cheshire as an example. Every Lodge in that district—excepting only one which has been too recently established for its members to have done anything—appears in the list of voters of this local charity, while many of the Chapters, Mark Lodges and other Masonic bodies also figure among its supporters. During the year the Cheshire Institution received a total of £650 12s 5d, and expended £221 3s 10d, so that its working for the twelve months showed a surplus of £429 8s 7d. It started the year with balances in hand of £285 15s 10d; received, donations from Lodges, Chapters and brethren, £249 17s 6d; subscriptions from Lodges, Chapters and brethren, £104 13s; fees from Lodges and Chapters, £26; proceeds of concert at Birkenhead (February 1885), by brethren of Lodge No. 605, £42; collection at Halton Church (Nov. 1884), per Bro. Lockwood, Vicar, £6 11s 10d; and interest on investments, £221 10s 1d. The expenditure consisted of the £176 9s 4d already referred to as the amount paid for the education and advancement of the twenty-five children on the foundation; and £44 14s 6d the working expenses of the year. The invested Funds were increased at a cost of £275 2s 10d, and balances of £440 1s 7d were carried forward. With such details before them the Committee may well "have pleasure in making their twenty-second report, as it gives evidence that the brethren of the Province are taking greater interest in the welfare of the Institution." At the close of the year the Invested Funds amounted to £5,060 10s 8d, the interest on which is alone sufficient to provide for all claims on the Institution, as now carried on, thus leaving the amounts received in the form of donations, subscriptions, fees, &c., to be added to the Invested Capital. Six of the children on the Education list and the one on the advancement list, went off at the close of the year, while there were six new candidates seeking educational grants, so that it would appear that in Cheshire at least the Freemasons are able to keep pace with the calls made upon them, or at least such of the calls as are deemed worthy of recognition.

Notwithstanding the success which has attended the working of this Charity in the past, even greater efforts are apparently being made to extend it. Prominently among those who have exerted themselves during the year 1884, and who are especially thanked in the Report, are the brethren of the King's Friends', the Combermere and the Ellesmere Lodges, while the Committee are informed that further efforts are being made in Birkenhead and Hyde. Another step in this direction, and we think a wise one, has been the decision of the Committee to hold the annual meetings at various centres in the Province, it being hoped that by the adoption of this course individual brethren will be induced to subscribe more regularly and generously.

We append a summary of the totals contributed during 1884 by the members of the several Lodges, &c., together with other receipts, and also show those Lodges which received assistance from the funds of the Institution:—

It may be thought that the contribution of this sum of £650 12s 5d during 1884 to a local Institution by the brethren of Cheshire acted detrimentally to the Masonic Institutions in London, but a moment's consideration of what Cheshire has done during the past twenty-two years for the central Charities will at once dismiss the idea that its local Institution has been maintained at the expense of the London ones. Looking to what has been accomplished by Cheshire it may well be said that the more Masonic benevo'ence is preached and practised in any district the stronger the sympathy of the brethren becomes. There is little fear that so long as the London Institutions can show such merit as they do at present they will be ignored by the brethren of Cheshire, while as regards the local Charity we can only hope, as we have every reason to believe will be the case, it will prosper and flourish in the future as it has done in the past. We sincerely wish that the example it sets may be followed ere long by other districts, in which we are convinced equally satisfactory results might be achieved.

John Anthony Rucker (President), Major George Haldane (Vice-President), H. D. Sandeman and Brackstone Baker for the Colonial Board, while the brethren nominated by Grand Lodge (of which we gave a list last week), not exceeding the number required, were declared duly elected. Bro. Stanley Harding was proposed as Grand Lodge Auditor, and unanimously elected. The following brethren were chosen to serve on the Committee of Management for the Royal Masonic Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons; Bros. C. A. Cottebrune, T. W. C. Bush, A. H. Tattershall, J. Willing jun., C. E. Dawson, Capt. A. Durrant, J. Boulton, W. J. Murlis, J. Dairy, and T. M. Humphries. The Report of the Board of Benevolence was received, and the recommendations contained therein were confirmed. The report of the Board of General Purposes was also adopted, while the Annual Report of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution was laid before Grand Lodge.

The application of the Grand Lodge of South Australia for recognition by the Grand Lodge of England was next considered, and on the proposition of Bro. F. A. Philbrick, Q.C., it was unanimously agreed to enter into fraternal relations with the Grand Lodge of South Australia, a result which we are particularly pleased to record, and to which we shall devote attention in our next issue.

The two appeals submitted to Grand Lodge were dismissed, and then Bro. Raynham Stewart's notices of motion were formally submitted, and both were agreed to, after which Grand Lodge was closed.

MARK MASONRY.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF MIDDLESEX AND SURREY.

THE members of this Province held their annual meeting on Monday, under the auspices of the Kintore Lodge, No. 333, at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell New Road. The Right Worshipful Bro. Colonel Sir Francis Burdett, Bart., Provincial Grand Master, presided, and Provincial Grand Lodge was honoured by the attendance of the Right Hon. the Earl of Kintore Most Worshipful Grand Master, whilst amongst others who were present we may mention the following:—Bros. Davison D.P.G.M., Henry Faija S.W., J. Proffitt J.W., Revs. Viscount Molesworth and T. M. Gorman Chaplains, C. Hammerton Treasurer, W. G. Brighten Secretary, D. P. Cama M.O., W. Vincent S.O., S. E. Taylor J.D., H. Goodall Supt. of Works, Pargeter D.C., John Stedman Sword Bearer, James Halliday Standard Bearer, Horace White, J. F. Rumball, J. Smith Stewards, G. Harrison Tyler, H. D. Cama, N. D. Francis, James Lovelock, G. Graveley P.G.S.B., E. Whittaker, C. W. R. Harrington, J. R. Hubbard. C. H. Roberts, E. West, John Aillard, C. Quennell, W. Fisher, Thomas Clark, W. E. Williams, J. Shilcock, P. McCarthy, C. J. Axford, E. N. Sumner, J. H. Clutton, James Linzell, J. Lavies, M.D., J. Terry, G. Gardner, John Rhodes, W. A. Scurrah, F. T. Bennett, W. W. Morgan, &c.

After Provincial Grand Mark Lodge had been formally opened, and the minutes of the last meeting, held 10th July 1884, had been confirmed, the roll of Lodges of the Province was called over, and report made as to the position of each; this showed there were twenty-eight Lodges, embracing a total membership of 585, apportioned as follows:—Lodge No. 3 17, 4 13, 5 9, 7 59, 13 32, 104 24, 114 6, 139 39, 144 23, 173 25, 176 20, 181 15, 197 39, 198 8, 199 15, 211 22, 223 17, 224 19, 234 30, 236 13, 238 17, 239 17, 244 19, 251 22, 284 20, 315 14, 331 14, 333 17. This gives evidence of a considerable increase over last year's returns, and is a proof of the prosperity of the Degree in the Province, which is yet further illustrated by the fact that four new Lodges have been warranted during the past few months, one of which—the Temperance in the East Lodge, No. 350—has already been consecrated and has enrolled on its list the names of no less than twenty-three members. The Treasurer's accounts were next submitted. They show a balance in hand, on account of the General Fund of £69 15s, while there stands to the credit of the Benevolent Fund £10 14s 8d. The balance-sheet was unanimously adopted. Sir Francis Burdett, Bart., was formally nominated and appointed as Provincial Grand Mark Master for a further term of three years, and in acknowledging the compliment he said he was much obliged for the honour done him. He had been associated with the Province since its formation—now fifteen years since. He was intensely gratified at the progress it had made since he had had the pleasure of presiding over its destinies. At the time he was referring to there were but five Lodges in the district; they now numbered thirty-two, with every prospect of still further increasing at an early date.

Bro. Thomas Clark, 173, was appointed Steward for the Mark Benevolent Fund Festival, and a contribution of £10 10s was voted from the funds of Provincial Grand Lodge in support of his Stewardship. Bro. C. Hammerton P.G.D.C. was re-elected to the office of Provincial Grand Treasurer, which compliment he briefly acknowledged; it was satisfactory to know they had a balance in hand, which was due, in a very great measure, to the exertions of their esteemed Provincial Grand Secretary, Bro. W. G. Brighten. The following were then appointed and invested as Officers for the year.

F. Davison	7 ...	... Deputy Grand Master
Hector Helsham, M.D.	5 ...	... Senior Warden
G. H. N. Bridges	333 ...	... Junior Warden
W. E. Williams	3 ...	... Master Overseer

Bros. Lambert, Hogard, Lardner, and Klenck, in addition to the recognised officials, were appointed the Committee for General Purposes, while the following brethren were recommended for appointment as Grand Stewards: Bro. J. Boulton, from the Temple Lodge; Bro. J. Edwards, from the Prince of Wales Lodge; Bro. James Terry, from the Henniker Lodge; and the W.M. elect from the High Cross Lodge.

The next business was to consider the best mode of recognising the past services of the Provincial Grand Secretary. Bro. Davison, in bringing the matter before Provincial Grand Lodge, referred to the zeal Bro. Brighten had always displayed. He felt the time had now arrived when a Committee should be formed to arrange for the expression in some tangible form of the sentiments of the brethren. It was then proposed that a sum of fifteen guineas should be voted from the Lodge funds, and that the General Purposes Committee should decide what form the proposed testimonial should take and arrange for its presentation. This proposition was seconded, and supported by the Provincial Grand Master, who readily bore testimony to the good will with which Bro. Brighten entered upon the performance of his duties, Bro. J. M. Klenck also spoke in support. He had had some experience of the duties attached to the office of Secretary, and he could bear testimony to the energy Bro. Brighten brought to bear upon their fulfilment. The vote proposed was unanimously agreed to, and the sum of five guineas set aside for clerical assistance during the year. Provincial Grand Lodge having been closed, the brethren partook of a banquet, after which the usual toasts were done full justice to.

"International Inventions Exhibition (South Kensington), London. 1885. Railway Guide and Route Book."

THIS work has been compiled by Mr. J. R. Somers Vine, a brother well known in the Craft; and is printed and published, under the authority of the Executive Council, by Messrs. Clowes and Sons. Perhaps no one is so well qualified to edit and compile a work like that before us as is Mr. Vine. His City work for years past, and his connection with previous Exhibitions, have given him excellent experience, and the result is a first-rate general book of reference. Attached to the work is a plan of the building and its contents, showing the approaches and entrances thereto, a scheme of the Inner Circle Railway connections, and a railway map of the lines running into London from a radius of twenty-five miles. Official advertisements indicate the general as well as special musical arrangements, and Messrs. Spiers and Pond, the refreshment contractors, tell of the good things they have always ready for the hungry visitor, on a scale large and varied enough to meet every want and all pockets. A general summary of the objects of the Exhibition is given, and then follow "Useful and Interesting Notes," which our readers must peruse for themselves. There is a well-digested scheme of railway, omnibus, road-car, and tram-car service, also an admirably compiled table of cab fares and distances. The "Railway Guide and Route Tables" are the most complete we have seen. Taking in the radius already mentioned, every station is given; the lines they are on, and the fares (inclusive for the whole journey, passage through South Kensington subway and admission to the Exhibition); how often trains run is shown, duration of journey, where to change for the South Kensington trains, what time to leave the building, and times when the last trains leave for home. No visitor should be without this Guide; it virtually makes him independent of railway and other officials, and is so plain in its directions that none can mistake the instructions given.

At present we can do little more than announce the fact that Mr. H. M. Stanley, the African explorer, has written, and that Messrs. Sampson Low, Marston, Searle, and Rivington, have just published a new work, entitled "The Congo and the Founding of its Free States." As the contemporary of and successor to the great Livingstone, Mr. Stanley has special claims to be heard. His work "How I found Livingstone," apart from the value of his own distinct labours, was sufficient to warrant a warm welcome from Englishmen. His other book, "Through the Dark Continent," consolidated his claims. His present issue, while in some measure proceeding on the same lines as his former books, records other labours and struggles, which, if successful, will result in blessings that can scarcely be imagined, much less described. The Congo is the King of Rivers, and runs a course of over three thousand miles. Trading stations have been established for hundreds of miles, through a country "rich and fertile almost beyond the dreams of avarice," comprising "vast areas covered with the finest timber in the world, teeming millions ready and anxious to barter their produce for European manufactures." The population is estimated to be fifty millions, inhabiting a country the richest and most fertile in Africa. "The International Congo State," says the prospectus, "was established by the Berlin West African Conference, the final act being signed by nineteen plenipotentiaries representing nineteen European powers; of these Great Britain, undoubtedly, has the greatest interest in the new State, as offering her merchants and manufacturers new and almost unlimited markets for their goods." As a record of work done, methods employed, results and discoveries, this latest production of Mr. Stanley ought to be received with favour. It affords hope at a time of deep depression, and promises relief when most needed. The work is in two volumes, both of which contain maps and illustrations.

PROFESSIONS AND PRACTICE.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—It is to be hoped there are not many cases such as that pointed out by "HARRY" in one of your late issues. I certainly never came across a similar case, but then my visiting experience has been of the most limited character, and such an incident would have been impossible in my Mother Lodge. Nevertheless, I do not for a moment doubt the veracity of "HARRY," nor do I envy the feelings of the "Secretary and Almoner" he refers to. When a brother seeks relief, and his credentials are unimpeachable, it is a violation of the fundamental principles of the Order to send him empty away. But when an appeal is made during the time brethren are revelling in comfort and luxury, surely it is little less than brutal to refuse assistance. The case mentioned by "HARRY." is the more heartless because it appears that special attention was directed by himself to the applicant for relief. He saw him, wan and seedy, outside of the banquetting-room; he listened to his story of success and disappointment, of trouble and want, even to the verge of starvation of himself and family, of his failure to obtain employment. Struck with the man's truthfulness, and filled with pity for his distress, "HARRY" made known the case in the proper quarter. The poor, needy brother was questioned; he proved his poverty and he pleaded necessity, but a deaf ear was turned to his entreaty, and whilst feasting and merriment reigned within the room, coldness met the wanderer as he emerged into the street. Sick at heart, stunned with the cruelty of a so-called brother, I can imagine his feelings. If the facts be true as stated, and I have no reason to doubt them, then no words I can command would do justice to the disgust I feel for the man who could be so false to his duty, so recreant to the true spirit of Freemasonry. It is true, that "man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn." It is such as this "Secretary and Almoner"—Almoner!—heaven save the mark!—who brings discredit upon the Craft, who represents the corruption that festers like a wound and poisons the life-blood of the Order. It is such as he who gives opportunity to our enemies, many of whom reproach us with extravagance at the table, with luxurious indulgence, and all the evils that follow upon the gratification of selfishness and lustful desires. I hope that such men, wherever they may be found, will be purged of their offences, and stripped of their office. A Lodge should not suffer for the faults of one man, and such a man, who could listen unmoved to a true and pitiful story, and deny relief that laid within his grasp. Help in this case, if only in the shape of a good meal, would have been welcome, but this heartless Secretary did not even invite his poor brother to eat or drink. I blush for such a man, I repudiate his brotherhood. He is outside of the pale of humanity, much more is he outside of the circle of Freemasonry.

Now, Sir, I would just say a word or two in favour of a proposition made by "WATCHMAN" two or three weeks ago. If I remember rightly he advocated the establishment of what I should call a trade agency. I believe that if the authorities were to take up the matter, that another valuable Institution would be added to our existing relief organisations. It would be a good thing to bring employés and employers, who are Masons, together. I feel sure that were that done, many a heart would be made glad, and an opportunity would be afforded to give help in the best and most practical form. I cannot see any objection to the plan, especially as it might be established and carried on at little or no cost to the executive. Anything that will prevent the recurrence of such a case as "HARRY" describes would be welcome. A scheme, however, that leads to self-help commends itself so strongly that I wonder something has not been done long ago. Perhaps a few more instances such as I have referred to may lead to something of the kind being done.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

WILLIAM.

THE ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION ELECTION.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Once again the Election for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution has come and gone, and through the munificence of the brethren the Committee have felt themselves justified in increasing the number of the annuitants by four additional brethren and eleven more widows. 24 of the former and 26 of the latter, making in all fifty (three in each class being deferred until vacancies occur), who have thus been relieved from pecuniary anxiety for the remainder of their days; but great as this number is, how much more is required to be done. There are fourteen brethren and no less than fifty widows left out in the cold. One case especially seems hard, that of Mrs. Elliot, who has already been a candidate for twelve years, and is still unsuccessful. Her husband was a member of Lodge No. 124, in the Province of Durham, and subscribed from the time he became a Mason till his death, yet the Province has evidently deserted the cause of this widow, inasmuch as it appears the Province has been successful in securing the return of other candidates since; doubtless there is some good reason for this, but primâ facie it appears very hard. Warwickshire and Devonshire have two seventh applications in perhaps a still worse plight. Of fifth applications Lincolnshire has one, as well as a fourth, and second, with 17, 20, and 15 votes respectively. But as the Province has so many annuitants—boys and girls, on the respective Institutions—for which she is indebted to the kind assistance of other Provinces, I am afraid she cannot help the above candidates much, consequently their ultimate success appears far off. Kent likewise has a fifth application case, which the Province does not appear to favour, as the applicant has only 366 votes to her credit. Surrey is leaving her fifth application case with but 16 votes. Hants and Devon combined, and Lodge of Friendship, London, with their fifth applications, should have no difficulty next year. Of third applications London has two; one from Mount Lebanon Lodge, with 30 votes polled, and one from the Vitruvian; the latter Lodge is somewhat in the same category as the Province of Lincoln, in the cases it already has, and candidates are still coming forward for the benefits of the various Institutions. Hants has a candidate to whom apparently the cold shoulder has been shown, inasmuch as only 64 votes have been polled. Kent has two cases, with 671 and 225 respectively. These applicants are evidently out of favour, as Kent is a Province which can always command the return of one, if not two candidates, and here are three left to shift for themselves, while a second application case is returned successfully. East Lancashire and Suffolk have one candidate each, with 8 (!) votes a piece; something is evidently wrong here, as both these Provinces returned first applications. There remains one more in the category of third applications, viz., from Berks and Bucks, but as she carries 1215 votes forward, she may look with tolerable certainty for success at the next election. As for the second and first applications, with so many candidates and so few vacancies it is only exceptionally strong Provinces or combinations of Provinces, or if in London, of Lodges, that applicants can count upon any reasonable hope of success. It is a curious fact how closely the average number of years that the late husbands of the whole of the candidates and of those who were successful have subscribed agree. The aggregate of the former is 1675, with an average of $22\frac{3}{7}$ years, and of the latter 569, with an average of 22 years $3\frac{2}{5}$ months. The same coincidence occurs among the male applicants, viz., Total aggregate, 996 years 3 months, average 23 years $9\frac{1}{12}$ months; successful 573, average $23\frac{1}{2}$; and yet one of the unsuccessful ones accumulates 90 years' subscription himself. The election of the male annuitants is a much easier matter, as there are never so many candidates, and as a rule more vacancies. The reasons for this are first, that the applicants are not eligible for five years after the time allowed for widows; secondly, that they shrink from the painful necessity as long as they can; and lastly, the obitnary list is far higher in their case, as for instance no less than four deaths occurred between the time of making up the lists and the Election. I am sorry to observe how few of the candidates are recorded as having done anything when in their power towards the Institutions one of which they are now reaping or seeking benefits from.

Out of the 42 male annuitants only 3, or 1 in 14, viz., Bros. Dearsley, Adkins, and Prattent, all of whom happily are successful; even the brother who accumulates 90 years subscriptions seems to have forgotten the principles of our Order, another unfortunate brother who has subscribed 29 years, and in or about 1880 lost £12,000, seems to have been equally oblivious; while others again who have obtained Provincial Grand Honours have ignored the claims on them. Among the late husbands of the 76 widows, 7, or 1 in 11, appear to have contributed to one or more of the Institutions, and only 3 have been successful. The seven contributors were Bros. Timms, Cooley, Redman, Shury, Feaviour, Searle, and Bellerby, the three last successful. There were also 13 with Grand or Provincial honours, only one of whom remembered the Institutions, viz., Bro. Bellerby P.G. Steward. I must now make a few observations as to the result list of the male candidates. The highest on the list is a sixth attempt; in it the applicant succeeded, though his annuity is one of the deferred; it is a case from Warwick, with 718 votes. There are two fourth applications, and both are far behind; one is from Hants, with only 75 votes polled; the other from London, formerly a member of St. James's Union Lodge, and latterly of the Westbourne, this candidate has polled 441. Of third application cases all three have been left out in the cold. The first has been a member of two London Lodges, for altogether 22¾ years—the St. Michael's and Royal Union—yet has only polled 241. The second of these candidates hails from Scarborough, and has only subscribed 5½ years, yet being permanently paralysed, which affliction, together with blindness, or other visitation, brings him under the exception to the rule, requiring a candidate to be 15 years a M.M., and a subscribing member for 10. It is to be hoped North and East Yorkshire will put forth its strength and add a sufficient number of votes to this applicant's present 8. The last case comes from Worcester, and by the number polled this time 485 and brought forward, 15, making a total of 500, I presume the members of this Province mean to return their applicant next year. This brother is likewise afflicted with paralysis, and has only subscribed 7 years. The claims of the second and first application cases I shall not attempt to analyse, but will merely remark that out of the 24 successful applicants one came up for the sixth time, one for the second, and the remaining 22 for the first. Now, as to the number of votes used, unrecorded, or spoilt, and those carried forward. Males—Total polled, including 1047 brought forward, 37,175; spoilt or not recorded 10,047; carried forward 2065. Widows—Total polled, including 13,386 brought forward, 57,538; spoilt or not recorded 5,876; carried forward 13,000. Average number of votes required to succeed: for males 1506½; for widows 1674.

Yours fraternally,

P.M. 1607.

THE THEATRES.

Lyceum.—Deep was the interest created in artistic circles, and great the misgivings, when the manager of the Lyceum announced his intention to appear as Dr. Primrose in "Olivia." The very gifts, the cynic scorn, the bitter irony, the mighty depths of passion which paint for us in a touch a Richard the Third or a Shylock would threaten wreck to so tender and gentle a creature as the Vicar; so pathetic in his foibles, so noble in his very weaknesses. A house crammed in every corner, a representative pit, for the foremost seats of which only two or three ladies had withstood the "Sturm und Drang" of the long hours outside; familar faces we are wont to see at every great dramatic event, awaited the rising of the curtain. The Vicarage garden is the scene of the festivities in honour of the Vicar's silver wedding. A lovely landscape in golden sunlight fills the distance, while the Vicarage, with its bright climbing roses, glittering casements, and quaint gables, is the very realisation of a lovely English rustic home. A crowd of merry children rush in, and, climbing the tempting ladder, threaten destruction to the king pippins hanging ripe and red on the big apple tree shading the lawn; the villagers come to wish joy to their beloved parson, and a pretty vision of the days when George III. was King is made by these groups. Sophia, pretty and sensible; Moses, the discreet young scholar; Farmer Flamborough, an admirably bluff and sturdy ancient Briton; Mr. Burchell, very tedious in his superior virtue; the young Squire, looking superbly handsome; comely Mrs. Primrose, the quintessence of matronly discretion; Olivia, the very type and realization of happy innocent girlhood. But now, claiming attention, the subject of loud and universal cheers, here is the Vicar. Surely Mr. Irving, but as surely bearing no trace of all those weird creations he has given life to on the stage. Like every worker in art Mr. Irving has his limitations, and perhaps the vividness of his imagination tends to conceal these limits from his judgment, and we have regretfully witnessed failure for want of the physical means to realize intention. In the first gesture, however, the first words uttered by Dr. Primrose, all the house felt that not only Mr. Will's, but Oliver Goldsmith's Vicar was before them. When farmer Flamborough indignantly reproaches the parson's wife for her fine lady airs, the smile of gentle superiority in which the doctor excuses "those foibles of the weaker sex" was a comedy in itself. When the sunny morning clouds over, news comes of the ruined fortunes of the family. Here Mr. Irving's treatment is singularly fine. He accepts the blow, not as the result of human wickedness, but as a divine decree. He is crushed at the thought of the sufferings that threaten his loved ones, but he and they are in the hands of God. No more pathetic or noble picture has been seen on the stage than where the Vicar sits in patient despair, his wife behind him gazing into space in a condition of dazed misery. Sophia pitiful and bewildered, and his beloved Olivia weeping at his feet. The various members of the family are to be scattered abroad, while a place as a companion is found for Olivia at York by Mr. Burchell. Beautiful and poignantly pathetic is her leave-taking, for she has promised to fly with the "false squire." Tears were falling all through the house, and in Olivia's eyes were real tears as she bade good-bye to her old father, in an agony of remorseful love. We next find her, after three months, at the Dragon Inn. She is full of the happiness of her wedded love; no misgiving of the squire's intention has reached her; she is longing with all her soul to again see and comfort her aged father, and tell him all is well with her. The squire has, however, grown weary of his fancy, though he realizes the infamy of his conduct; he forces himself to tell her they must part; the marriage was a false one. Olivia stands bewildered; for some minutes she cannot grasp the meaning of his words; she is stunned with the horror of his wickedness and her misery; and when he would offer excuse she thrusts him back from her, and the house was electrified by the realism of the agony which thus transforms this brightest and gentlest of English maidens into a wild creature, defiant and at bay. Mr. Terriss, who in the earlier scenes was somewhat wanting in the lightness and pleasantness which should mark a Don Juan of the period, and moreover had rather the air of an antique Roman than the pretty fellow and particular friend of the demireps and madames of Ranelagh. But Mr. Terriss cannot help being in earnest, and when his opportunity came—the quarrel with Burchell, who had tracked him and Olivia to the inn—the rage of the insulted fine gentleman had a splendid ring of reality in it. The part is a disagreeable one, and though Mr. Terriss fails to give it any extraneous charm, he always displays refinement of bearing that leads us to hope he is not quite beyond reclamation. The Vicar was at his very best in the splendid scene where the broken-hearted father finds his Olivia crushed by her wrongs. The feminine gentleness of his caresses, broken for an instant by an endeavour to assert the severe dignity of the outraged parent; but at the sight of his child's forlorn contrition, there is nothing but pitying love left in his full heart. The home-coming was very touching in the cold light of the winter night—snow on the trees and housetops; still, beautiful and poetic as the background is, we prefer the original and more simple arrangement, where the first act takes place in the Vicarage parlour. Now the garden is slowly turned into the parlour, and though the pathos of the way-worn, heart-sore wanderer is felt acutely, surely it is not well conceived for the old Vicar to compose himself to sleep on the sofa whilst Olivia lights the fire, before his anxious wife and Sophia have learned the news. When at length they appear, the reconciliation between the poor outcast Olivia and her mother is exquisitely brought about; the gentle Vicar seems clothed for a moment with apostolic dignity, when he bids his wife remember the duty of forgiveness. Mr. Burchell, who has contrived that the supposed false marriage shall be a valid one, now appears in his true character of the elder Thornhill, and brings the tardy penitent to beg forgiveness from his outraged wife. Olivia's shudder and cry of horror at the proposal was terribly eloquent, but Christmas morning breaks, and once more the scene changes to the garden, lighted by the kindly sun. We feel the squire's remorse will be met with tender commiseration; the church bells ring out, and the curtain falls upon the promise of a happy future. We predict a happy future for the play at its present home. On the first night the waits were very long, and this trial of patience was aggravated by the unnecessary loudness of Mr. Meredith Ball's musicians.

Her Majesty's.—We are glad once more to see at "Her Majesty's" the pensive façade lighted up for festive intent, and still better pleased that the much-talked-of spectacular ballet "Excelsior" merits the success it enjoyed in Paris. It goes with a spirit, humour and dashing dramatic effect, and one can scarcely realize it has no spoken dialogue. It is the fashion to declare male dancing a thing hateful and effeminate, but surely virility is not the quality lacking in a Highland fling or Hungarian sword dance, and in "Excelsior" the men dance with such fun, as it were possessed by the very demon of the art, that the feminine graces of the ladies are enhanced, and the dramatic intention of dancing seems to find expression. The much-vaunted scenery is good, while the troupe in its entirety is far and away the best we have ever seen on the English boards. The story of the ballet lies in the efforts of the spirit of Light and Progress to circumvent the Demon of Darkness, the latter splendidly impersonated by Sig. Montanara; his pantomime is wonderful for its force and fury; by the way he wears blonde hair and moustache, while every one else has black or dark brown. It is rather refreshing to see two or three hundred coryphées and not one yellow-haired wig among them. The prima ballerina, Adelina Rossi, is the impersonation of grace and harmony, a symphony without sound. Each of her dances was loudly applauded, but especially enthusiastic became the house over her exquisite bayadere dance, with Indian tarabock accompaniment; lovely she looked as the brown-tinted daughter of the sun, while quaint and delightful were the little black boys, with their native instruments. Recalls occurred again and again, during and after each act. It is long since such resonant plaudits have been heard within these walls. At the same time it is to be regretted the management has not more effectually advertised their season. We think also that in so large a theatre popular prices would have proved more successful. The music is of no little merit, and is admirably rendered by an orchestra of some sixty performers.

St. James's.—It is consoling for the feeble and superannuated minority still finding delight in a play neither studied from 'Arry nor from Fagin, to find "The Queen's Shilling" still flourishing at St. James's. It has reached its 50th night with unwaning popularity. Mrs. Kendal is still delightful as the wilful heroine, while Mr. Hare and Mr. Kendal are at their best in their respective parts. If only Mrs. Murray would tone her treatment of the strong-minded lady militant, the cast would be one of the most perfect we have seen for a long time.

Haymarket.—The announcement of the last change of programme at the "little house in the market" rather startled its habitués. "Robinson est mort. Vive Shakespear!" It was not, however, Shakespear of the last folio or first quarto, but the Garrick version—"Taming the Shrew," reduced to the dimensions of a one-act farce. Let us be thankful for Shakespear,—even so! Mrs. Bernard Beere, as Kate, looks her loveliest, and plays with the spirit and distinction which ever characterize her. We cannot quite believe this queenly dame is to be broken to harness by mere whip-cracking, plate-smashing, and the general rowdyism of a ragamuffin Petruchio. It may be the fault of the scrambling version used, which gives so little scope for detail of characterization; but we remember when Edwin Booth played Petruchio it was with such high-bred humour, such gallant deference, that in the taming process one could believe the fair patient was not so much subdued by the masterful violence of her spouse as by the fascination of the true lover sparkling through the carnival masquerade. Mr. Forbes Robertson usually plays with refinement; we cannot but believe he will perceive how greatly his present impersonation will gain by elimination of needless bluster and violence. Petruchio is a gentleman of birth and fortune, and an Italian gentleman; in his wildest pranks the gallantuomo should be evident. Mr. Kemble might, perhaps, be complimented as an eager aspirant to the honours of farcical comedy. That a soldier and man of the world should have such a henchman as Mr. Kemble's Grumio is even beyond a Garrick gospel. Of the rest of the cast it is needless to speak. The costumes are in excellent taste. "Sweethearts" is the second item on the bill. Mrs. Bancroft plays with all the pretty coquetry of her earliest impersonation at the Prince of Wales Theatre, in the first act; whilst in the "thirty years later" of the second, her art is still more tender, more delicate, and as full of pathos as in her younger day. Mr. Bancroft, as the egotistical old Indian, to our mind realises perfection. For this, one of Gilbert's brightest and least cynical gifts, playgoers will be grateful; the treat here awaiting them should alone be sufficient to ensure full houses; but "Sweethearts" is followed by Buckstone's "Good for Nothing," and here Mrs. Bancroft once more commands our tears and laughter. She has the taste to keep her poor little "Nan" out of the sordid rags and dirt some actresses delight to disguise her in, and the transformation at the end seems all the more probable. Mr. Brookfield plays with self-restraint and realism as Charley. Mr. Kemble, as Tom Dibbles, might have been excellent had he left out half his business and two-thirds of his rhetoric.

Grand.—Mr. Edward Terry and a strong company from the Gaiety have been drawing full houses during the week. In "The Rocket" Mr. Terry with his usual briskness plays the part of Chevalier Walkenshaw, while Miss Broughton distinguishes herself as Florence. Mr. Royce (Lord Leadenhall), Mr. Tyndal (Joslyn Hammersmith), Mr. Stephenson (John Mable), Miss Maria Jones (Lady Hammersmith), all score well. "The Rocket" is followed by the burlesque, "Robbing Roy." Mr. Terry as Roy, Miss Clara Jecks Francis Osbaldistone, Mr. Royce the Dougal Creature, Miss P. Broughton Diana Vernon. Islingtonians will doubtless embrace the opportunity of supporting these popular favourites.

The Picture Galleries.—To those who seek abstraction from the perversity of nature in the sweet calm realms of art, those we counsel to pay a visit to that most pleasant of realms of enchantment opened by the "Sesame" shilling, the French Gallery, Pall Mall. The present exhibition has a magnificent work, No. 52, it is by a young Servian painter, his third exhibited picture. For brilliancy of colour and intense dramatic characterisation it would hold a place of honour in any gallery. It shows us a blind old minstrel, surrounded by the picturesque wild Servian peasants, who listen with rapt attention to the "words of gold." There is an exquisite bit of sunshine and colour in No. 46, three fair damsels discussing the merits of a canvas in the absence of the artist. No. 10, a Meissonier, shews exquisite finish and dramatic feeling. No. 9, a delightful episode of cynic humour. A Knight, bearing important despatches, has sought shelter within a Dominican cloister. He has received such hospitable entertainment that he has fallen asleep, and now the good monks are busy reading his papers. The short-sighted brother greedily devours their contents, while the air of triumphant virtue in the abbot, who sits at the table with the empty wine flask, tells the story with wonderful force. The picture has the quiet harmony of Meine's colouring, well known to his admirers. Heffner has a delicious Italian moonlight, recalling that exquisite picture we used to enjoy at the Lyceum in the earlier Belmont. Works by Professor Müller, Windmaier, Gérome, Israels, Kleginsky, Andriotti, Schachinger, and a dozen more names of European fame are gathered within Mr. Wallis's hospitable walls. The Exhibits may be described as an epitome of European Art. Some of the best of each important nationality are there.

Crystal Palace.—The Saturday evening Illuminated Fêtes, which proved so delightful a feature of the Crystal Palace summer attractions last year, will be recommenced to-day, the 6th instant. It need hardly be remarked how naturally the beautiful grounds, with their charmingly grouped trees and shrubs, their grassy lawns and slopes, their terraces, statuary, lakes and fountains, lend themselves to the purposes of illumination; and these features have been well treated by Messrs. C. T. Brock and Co., who contract with the Company for the lighting up of the various spots in the grounds deemed most picturesque and suitable for pleasing effects of light and shade. To the thousands of gracefully festooned Venetian lamps and Chinese lanterns, as employed last summer, will be added this year a new feature, in the shape of electric light, which will illuminate the walks and terraces by means of many large arc lamps at carefully studied elevations. The band of the Scot Guards, the London Vocal Union, and the Company's Military Band will supply appropriate promenade music; and nothing but fine weather will be needed to make these fêtes the most enjoyable al fresco entertainments of the season. It may be added that the price of admission on Saturdays being now reduced to one shilling (with but one exception at present), these fêtes will be within the reach of all classes.

With the assent of Mr. Irving, his dinner committee, who had a surplus of £55 15s in their hands, have given £40 to the Actors' Benevolent Fund and fifteen guineas to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Though good health is preferable to high honour, how regardless people often are of the former, how covetous of the latter! Many suffer their strength to drain away ere maturity is reached, through ignorance of the facility afforded by these incomparable pills of checking the first untoward symptoms of derangement, and restoring order without interfering in the least with their pleasure or pursuits. To the young especially it is important to maintain the highest digestive efficiency, without which the growth is stunted, the muscles become lax, the frame feeble, and the mind slothful. The removal of indigestion by these Pills is so easy that none save the most thoughtless would permit it to sap the springs of life.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

LODGE OF ISRAEL, No. 205.

AN emergency meeting was held on the 27th inst., at the Cannon-street Hotel. Present—Bros. E. H. Norden W.M., A. J. Henochsberg S.W., A. Bassington P.M. as J.W., A. M. Cohen P.M. Treas., C. F. Hogard P.M. Sec., Rev. M. Haines Chaplain, J. Lichtenfeld S.D., J. Mosquito I.G.; P.M.'s J. A. Gartley I.P.M., W. Littaur, M. J. Emanuel, H. J. Phillips, J. Da Silva, and Bros. E. J. Dansiger and Harris were raised. The ceremonies were excellently worked by the W.M. and Officers. Lodge was then closed, and the brethren separated.

GROVE LODGE, No. 410.

THE installation meeting of this flourishing Lodge, with one exception the oldest in the Province of Surrey, was held at the Sun Hotel, Kingston, on Saturday last, the 30th ultimo. The attendance of the members and Visitors though large and satisfactory was limited, and affected by the fact that the Provincial Grand Chapter of Surrey was being held at the same time, under the auspices of General Brownrigg the Provincial Grand Superintendant, at Chertsey, where many members of the Grove Lodge in office were necessarily compelled to be present. Some members of the Lodge were, however, enabled to leave Chertsey in time to arrive at Kingston for the installation ceremony, previous to which the W.M. Bro. H. C. Tepps had vacated the chair in order to allow Bro. H. P. Dumas P.M., Past Grand Deacon of England, to initiate his son Mr. H. F. Dumas, after which Bro. Tepps proceeded with the business which included the passing of Bro. Porter, and the installation of his successor in the chair of the Lodge, Bro. Thomas Moreton. The working was up to the usual excellent standard of the Grove Lodge, the Deacons proving themselves especially competent. A P.M.'s jewel was voted to Bro. H. C. Tepps for his exceptionally brilliant services in the chair as W.M. All business being ended, the brethren and Visitors adjourned to an excellent banquet, after which the newly initiated brother was duly honoured, and the E.A. song was capitally rendered.

FINSBURY LODGE, No. 861.

THE installation meeting was held on the 28th ult., at St. Botolph's Chambers, Bishopsgate-street-without. Bro. F. Hallows W.M., J. R. Edwards S.W., Byat J.W., Legg P.M. Treasurer, G. W. Preston P.M. Secretary, J. Millington S.D., D. Job J.D., Salter I.G.; P.M.'s G. Leach, W. G. Hallows, W. Mackey, W. Groom, R. W. Parkes, Finch and Hart. Visitors—Bros. Roberts P.M. 188, Harvey W.M. 1314, Paterson 1662 P.P.G.O. Herts, Inman 1662, Bathard W.M. 1287, Braine P.M. 66, Allone 609, Hemming 1662, Solomon P.M. 1732, Devin 862, Harvey 1314, H. M. Levy P.M. 188. Lodge was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. Bros. Stenner, Cobb and Powell were raised. Bros. French and Allkins were passed to the second degree. The report of the Audit Committee was read and adopted; it showed the Lodge and Benevolent Funds were in a prosperous condition. A Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. J. Benjamin Edwards S.W. and W.M. elect was presented and duly installed in the chair by the retiring W.M., who was warmly congratulated at the conclusion of the ceremony. There were 17 W.M.'s and P.M.'s present. Bro. W. Groom P.M. acted as D.C. The W.M. having been formally saluted, in appropriate terms appointed and invested his Officers:—F. Hallows I.P.M., Byat S.W., Millington J.W., Legg P.M. Treasurer, Preston P.M. Secretary, D. Job S.D., Salter J.D., Hallem I.G., Groom P.M. D.C., W. G. Hallows P.M. Stwd., Thomas Tyler. The reception accorded the new Officers evidenced the fact that the W.M. had made a good selection. Hearty good wishes were now given by the Visitors, and Lodge was closed until the fourth Thursday in October. The brethren, 57 in number, adjourned to the Great Eastern Hotel, where a sumptuous and récherché banquet was provided by Bro. Bolton. The tables were beautifully decorated, button-holes being provided for all. The W.M., who genially presided, proposed in appropriate terms the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts. He would not indulge in long speeches, and he hoped every toast would meet with a warm response. Bro. Hallows rose; he had to propose the toast of the evening—the health of the Worshipful Master. They were fortunate in having a brother to preside over them who could do all the work; he had had the pleasure of installing Bro. Edwards in the chair; he was one who would carry out every duty required of him. The W.M., in reply, thanked Bro. Hallows for his kind remarks. Nothing should be wanting on his part to give them satisfaction. The Lodge was in a state of prosperity, and long might it so continue. In speaking to the toast of the I.P.M., the W.M. said that no better worker than Bro. Hallows could be found. All present could not but notice the able manner in which he had conducted the installation ceremony. Their I.P.M. had not only gained the esteem of all in the Lodge, but also of those with whom he was associated in private life. He (the W.M.) had now with great pleasure to present him, in the name of the Lodge, with a gold Past Master's jewel; and in placing it on his breast he hoped he might live long to wear it. In addition the brethren had subscribed to present Bro. Hallows with an elegant clock, in token of the respect they all entertained for him. Bro. Hallows said it was with feelings of pride he listened to the encomiums passed on him by the W.M. This was his mother Lodge, and it was gratifying to hear he had carried out the duties of the chair to the satisfaction of the members. It would always be with pride that he should wear the P.M.'s jewel voted to him so unanimously. He also thanked the brethren for presenting him with such an elegant clock. It would ever be recognised as a token of brotherly love from the members of his Lodge. To the toast of the Visitors Bros. Roberts, Bathard, Solomon, and Paterson replied. In proposing the toast of the Past Masters, the W.M. mentioned their names seriatim, and said how proud he felt to be so well supported. They were all pleased to see Bro. Parkes again among them, after his severe accident, and he trusted when they met again to see him entirely recovered. Bros. Leach and Hart, in very excellent terms, responded to the toast. The Treasurer and Secretary were next complimented, the W.M. giving them a just meed of praise. The toast was responded to by Bros. Legg Treasurer and Preston Secretary. The toast of the Wardens and Officers was next given and responded to, and the Tyler concluded a very agreeable and harmonious evening. The W.M. provided a very excellent programme of music, under the direction of Bro. H. Schartau, who was assisted by Bros. E. Dalzell, E. Moss, and R. De Lacy.

ARNOLD LODGE, No. 1799.

THE installation and annual festival of the Arnold Lodge, No. 1799, took place on Wednesday evening, the 27th May, in the Public Hall, Walton-on-the-Naze, which had been specially engaged and prepared, and a goodly number of the brethren attended, including several P.P.G. Officers, P.M.'s, and other distinguished visitors. Amongst them were Bro. Alfred Welch P.M. 51 P.P.G.J.W. Essex (who impressively performed the ceremony of installation), Walter J. Nunn P.M. 2063 1592 1008, W. M. Foxcroft I.P.M. 177 2063, J. M. Wheler 1495, W. Roston Bowrke 794, W. Cattermole 1663 2963, W. R. Bloom P.M. 1799, C. Hempson P.M. 1799 P.P.G.A.D.C., A. G. Rickarby W.M. 1799, R. H. Scott W.M. elect, &c. The ceremony of installation having been duly performed, the W.M. Bro. Scott proceeded to invest his Officers, as follow:—Bros. Henry Finer S.W., W. Finer J.W., T. W. Taylor S.D., Womack J.D., A. G. Rickarby Secretary, R. Welham Treasurer, W. R. Bloom P.M. D.C., C. Woodroffe Organist, Rugg I.G., J. James Tyler, C. Randall Steward, &c. Bro. Charles Hempson was unanimously appointed to represent the Lodge upon the Essex Provincial Charity Committee. A banquet was afterwards partaken of, at the Portobello Hotel, and the remainder of the evening was passed in a very pleasant manner.

Angel Lodge, No. 51.—At the monthly meeting of this Lodge on Thursday, 28th ult, Bro. Joseph Grimes S.W. was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year. At the same meeting Bro. Lewis P.M. P.P.G.D. was re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Munson Tyler.

Royal Alfred Lodge of Instruction, No. 780.—A meeting was held on Friday, the 29th ult., at the Star and Garter Kew Bridge. Bros. Bailey W.M., Norton S.W., Turner J.W., Andrews (Preceptor) S.D., C. E. Botley J.D., Thomas Inner Guard, F. Botley, &c. After preliminaries, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. F. Botley candidate. Bro. C. E. Botley answered the questions leading to the second degree, and was entrusted. Lodge was opened in the second, and the ceremony rehearsed. Lodge was opened in the third, and closed in the third and second degrees. Bro. Norton was elected W.M. for next meeting.

It is worthy of record that during the Healtheries Exhibition, when so many thousands visited the building at South Kensington, there was not a single complaint recorded against the police. The courtesy they have always displayed is fully recognised; we hear this is mainly due to Bro. Superintendent Hamblin, of the Abbey Lodge, who brings to bear on his duties a calm deliberation that produces the most satisfactory results.

An Emergency Meeting of the Maybury Lodge will be held on the 11th instant, at the Inns of Court Hotel, at half-past five, to pass a vote of condolence to the sorrowing widow and children of the late respected Bro. C. W. Thompson P.M. Bro. Thompson was initiated in this Lodge, and was Master for two successive years; he fulfilled his duties with great credit and ability.

THE FREEMASON'S HOLY BIBLE CHRONICLE

GRAND LODGE OF MARK MASTERS.

THE Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of England and Wales, and the Colonies and Dependencies of the British Crown, held its half-yearly communication on Tuesday, at Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, London. The M.W. Grand Mark Master the Right Hon. the Earl of Kintore presided, and was supported by Lord Henniker Past Grand Master, Rev. Canon Portal Past Grand Master, the Marquis of Hertford, and the following among other Grand Officers:—Lord Egerton of Tatton Deputy Grand Master, Lord J. Taylour S.W., G. P. Brockbank J.W., H. Venn M.O., J. S. Cumberland J.O., Rev. Dean Currie and Rev. F. H. Richardson Chaplains, F. Davison Treas., F. Richardson Registrar, F. Binckes Secretary, C. W. Duke S D., E. L. Shepherd J.D., R. Berridge D. of C., Bryant Std. Br., W. Ganz Organist, W. Morris I.G., E. H. Thiellay, C. F. Hogard, H. Stephens, W. E. Stewart, and F. W. Driver Stewards.

Grand Lodge having been formally opened, and the minutes confirmed, the following report of the General Board was submitted. It was eventually adopted and its recommendations agreed to.

REPORT OF THE GENERAL BOARD.

The number of certificates issued in the half-year, ending 31st of March last, was 809, the largest number as yet granted in a similar period—the total of registered advancements being now 20,196. During the same period ten warrants for new Lodges were granted, viz.:—

No. 346	Tristram	Newcastle-on-Tyne.
347	Albert Edward	St. Thomas, Danish W.I.
348	Fidelity and Unanimity ...	Taunton.
349	Aldershot Army and Navy ...	Aldershot.
350	Temperance in the East ...	Poplar, E.
351	St. Anne's	East Looe, Cornwall.
352	Prince Leopold	Ripon.
353	Dove Valley	Ashbourne.
354	Rose and Lily	Waltham Cross.
355	Royal Savoy	London.

In the degree of Mark Mariner, the number of certificates issued was 127, bringing the total registered elevations to 1797.

Warrants for new Ark Mariner Lodges have been granted to Noah Lodge attached to Ramsay Lodge 180 Marree, Panjab; Byron Lodge attached to Newstead Lodge 71 I. Nottingham; Stella Lodge attached to Star of Burmah Lodge 88, Rangoon, B.B.

The M.W. Grand Master has been pleased to appoint the R.W. Bro. Rev. John Fairclough Provincial Grand Mark Master of British Burmah.

The R.W. Bro. J. Woodall Woodall, J.P., has been re-appointed Provincial Grand Mark Master of North and East Yorkshire for a further term of three years.

The Board has the melancholy duty of recording its deep regret at the loss of V.W. Bro. H. C. Levander, who for upwards of ten years discharged the duties of Grand Registrar in a manner highly advantageous to the best interests of Grand Lodge.

It having been reported to the Board that a brother had been installed in the chair of W.M. who had not served the office of W.M. in a Craft Lodge, and who had not procured the necessary dispensation (article 64, page 13, Book of Constitutions), the Board recommended the M.W. Grand Master to issue a special dispensation to cover this irregularity, and inflicted a fine of two guineas on the Lodge.

A petition has been presented from Derwent Lodge 282, supported by the R.W. Provincial Grand Master of Cumberland and Westmoreland, praying that the Board would recommend Grand Lodge to condone certain irregularities in the installations of Bros. Coverdale and Salkeld, who, by unintentional error and inadvertence, had only filled the chair of W.M. for ten months each. The Board having carefully considered the whole of the circumstances connected with the case, has pleasure in recommending Grand Lodge to confirm Bros. Coverdale and Salkeld in the rank and privileges of Past Master on payment of a fine of two guineas each.

A Petition has been presented by the Leopold Lodge 235, stating that the Installation in 1884 was unavoidable postponed, and that in consequence of inadvertence and forgetfulness, the then installed W.M., Rev. R. P. Bent, P.G. Chap., only served eleven months in the chair of W.M., and praying Grand Lodge to confirm Bro. Bent in the rank and privileges of P.M. The Board has carefully considered the reasons for this course, and begs to recommend it to Grand Lodge, on payment by the Lodge of a fine of Two Guineas.

The Board regrets exceedingly to announce that by the failure of the Bankers of Grand Lodge, Messrs. Ridgway and Sons, a severe loss will fall upon the various funds. The balances in Messrs. Ridgway's hands were:—

Benevolent Fund	298 2 1
Educational Fund	62 9 0
Dewar Fund	253 16 0
Festival Fund	11 5 7
Duke of Albany Fund (Balance of)	5 10 9
	£718 17 5

No statement has yet been received from the Official Receiver in Bankruptcy, but the Board recommends that the last three amounts mentioned be made good from the General Fund of Grand Lodge.

An account has been opened at the London and Westminster Bank Limited, Bloomsbury Branch, and the Board requests that all cheques, &c., may be crossed thereto.

The Board has to acknowledge with thanks the receipt of Proceedings of the following Grand Chapters:—Michigan, Maine, Maryland, Ohio, Illinois, Missouri, Colorado.

Several of these deal with the question of exclusive jurisdiction with reference to the Grand Chapter of Quebec, and all of them support the action of that Grand Chapter, as was to be anticipated, though the manner in which the question is treated varies considerably, and the Board begs to express its appreciation of the Masonic courtesy which distinguishes some of the reports on the subject. No fresh step has been taken by the Executive of Grand Lodge since the last half-yearly communication, owing to the action of the Grand Lodge of Quebec in severing all intercourse with the United Grand Lodge of England and the Lodges under its jurisdiction. As all Mark Masters in Quebec holding under this jurisdiction are Master Masons under the United Grand Lodge, this action of the Grand Lodge of Quebec, to be followed no doubt by the Grand Chapter, would render useless all attempts at an arrangement for the present. This Grand Lodge can only continue to reassert the principles which have always guided the Grand Lodges of Great Britain and Ireland, viz.: That a minority of Lodges cannot be coerced by a majority into joining a new organisation. That a Grand Lodge to be a lawful body must be constituted in accordance with the laws of the States, and as regard the Mark Degree, that Mark Lodges have a right to a separate charter or warrant, should they desire it, and ought not to be compulsorily merged in the more modern degree of Royal Arch Mason.

The Seventeenth Anniversary Festival in aid of the "Mark Benevolent Fund" is appointed for Wednesday, 22nd July, and the R.W. Bro. the Lord Egerton of Tatton, Deputy Grand Master, Prov. Grand M.M.M. of Cheshire, has most kindly consented to preside—with every prospect of success, which, it is hoped may be assured by the sympathy and support of the members of the Mark Degree.

There are now twelve Boys and five Girls receiving the advantages of the Educational Branch. The reports of progress are in all cases highly satisfactory. The Board has presented the Silver Medal to David William Russell Symon, now being educated at King Edward VI. Grammar School, Southampton, of whose progress an exceptionally favourable report has been presented by the Head Master.

The Board recommends that the Grand Director of Ceremonies, for the time being, should, for the future, be an ex officio Member of the General Board.

The Board has relieved the following cases:—

Bro. J. L., 65	£5 0 0
„ M. E. 118	£5 0 0
„ W. P., 176	£10 0 0

And recommends the following grants for confirmation by Grand Lodge:—

£50 to C. R., daughter of Bro. S. R., Old Kent.
£25 to Bro. J. A., 34.
£25 to Bro. J. C. G., 59.
£20 to Bro. M. E., 8.

(Signed) G. R. PORTAL,
Past G.M.M.M., President.

The Invested Funds are as follows:—

General Fund	£2,900 0 0
Educational Fund	1,400 0 0

The Grand Treasurer's Accounts for the six months ending 31st March 1885 show the following results:—

. Audited and approved this 1st day of May 1885.

(Signed) CHARLES E. SOPPET, Auditor.

Regrets having been expressed at that portion of the report which had reference to the loss which would be occasioned by the failure of the bankers, it was suggested that any loss which might fall on the Benevolent and Educational Funds should also be made good out of the General Fund of Grand Lodge; the other deficiencies having already been made chargeable thereto, by the adoption of the report of the General Board. This proposition was ultimately agreed to. The M.W. Grand Mark Master Mason then addressed the brethren. Before closing his first year of office he had great pleasure in asking his predecessor in the chair, Lord Henniker, to allow him to confer on him the jewel of a Past Master of Grand Lodge, in recognition of the eminent services which he had rendered during his presidency. The brethren well knew that Lord Henniker's aspirations were always of the highest, and that the interests of their Grand Lodge were at all times a most powerful attraction to him; it had consequently been most difficult, almost impossible, for him (the Earl of Kintore) to follow the example set by his predecessor. The jewel was then presented and in acknowledgment Lord Henniker expressed his deep gratitude for the kind reception which had been accorded him, and also for the jewel which he had that day received. He assured the brethren he should keep it and value it as a lasting remembrance of three very happy years of his life, when he had the honour to rule over the Mark degree. He was sorry—indeed it was a matter of very deep regret to him—that he had not been able to be present at either of the last half-yearly communications. That time last year he met with a very serious accident, which made it necessary for him to remain in a dark room for some days, while in December other engagements had made it impossible for him to be present. He would tell the brethren why he regretted not being able to be with them—because he could not thank them for the kind support they had given him, and the indulgence they had shown him during his term of office, and also because he could not tell them with what pleasure he looked back upon the three years when he ruled over the Order. He believed he made a great many friends during those three years, and he hoped the friendships then made might be lasting ones. He hoped, too, that during that term he had made no enemies among Mark Masons. He was pleased to say he still ruled over a Province of Mark Masonry, and so was yet able to take an active part in the business of the degree, in which he had tried to prove he felt the warmest interest. He hoped to be allowed, whether he ruled over a Province or not, to take some part in the future in promoting the welfare of Mark Masonry, and added that any service of his which could promote the interests of the Order or make it more flourishing than it was, would be most willingly rendered. Lord Henniker continued; he had already told them it was with great sorrow he had been obliged to stay away from their meeting last year, and one of the causes of his sorrow was that he had not been able to place the Grand Master in the chair, as it was his duty to do. It took away, however, some of his regret in being now able to perform that very pleasing task. He was sensible of the great services of the Grand Mark Master to the Mark Degree, and of the help he had given him during his three years tenure of office. He congratulated the Order on having secured the Earl of Kintore as its head. Not only did he bring them, by his high office in Scotland, nearer to the Scottish brethren, but he believed that, although there were many members of the Mark who had done much for the Degree, there was none better fitted to fill the high position of Grand Mark Master. It was unnecessary for him to say more, because a few sincere words—and his were purely sincere—were worth a hundred which were not sincere. He hoped the Most Worshipful Grand Mark Master during the rest of his term of office might be blessed with prosperity and health, and that the Lodge might prosper under his rule. The Grand Mark Master Mason was then formally invested and saluted. In acknowledgment the Earl of Kintore said, The kind language of Lord Henniker when investing him as Grand Master for a second year, and the enthusiastic reception given by the brethren to that investiture demanded words of hearty and grateful thanks. He was no speechmaker. There was nothing he found more difficult than to open his mouth in the presence of more than two or three people, but he could not allow the opportunity to pass without assuring them how warmly he felt their kindness. If there was any alloy to the regret which he had felt that time last year at the absence of Lord Henniker, it was that by his absence they were not only able to condole with him on the accident which had prevented his attendance, but he had also had a fair opportunity of framing language in which he had tried to express gratitude for his services, a task rendered perhaps more easy by his not being present at the time. He knew, as he had already said, that his example was difficult to follow, but the brethren having been good enough to place him in the office a second time, he believed that such as he did was considered for the benefit of the Grand Lodge. He hoped when the time came for his term of office to close, he might have as many friends and leave behind him as few enemies as his predecessor had done.

Bro. James Moon was next elected to the office of Grand Treasurer, he being proposed for that post by Bro. F. Davison, the former Grand Treasurer, and seconded by Bro. A. F. Godson Prov. G.M.M.M. of Worcestershire. The Grand Master expressed the thanks of Grand Lodge to Bro. F. Davison for his past services, a compliment which that brother suitably acknowleged. The following were then appointed and invested Grand Officers for the year:—

Bro. Lord Egerton of Tatton	Deputy Master
Marquis of Hertford	Senior Warden

The following brethren were nominated by the Grand Master to serve on the General Board:—Bros. Rev. Canon Portal President, Frederic Davison, A. Williams, C. H. P arson, W. Roebuck, R. P. Spice, and T. Cubitt; while the following were elected by Grand Lodge:—Bros. George Cooper, Charles H. Driver, A. F. Godson, R. Loveland Loveland, and John L. Mather.

Votes of regret at the death of Bros. H. C. Levander and Dr. Hopkins having been passed, Grand Lodge was closed and the brethren adjourned to the Holborn Restaurant to banquet, which was presided over by the Grand Mark Master. The toasts of the Queen and Mark Masonry having been honoured P.G.M. Canon Portal proposed the Grand Mark Master. The toast was one which came naturally after that of the Queen, as the Grand Master was their Masonic sovereign. They had ample illustration of the geniality of their Grand Master. All his life he had been engaged in upholding the flag of Freemasonry, and was now almost at the highest office both in Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter of Scotland. He was sure the brethren rejoiced that in the person of the Earl of Kintore the bonds of union between English and Scottish Freemasons were so closely drawn together. It rejoiced him very much, after more years than he cared to look back upon, to find that all degrees of Masonry were pulling together, without any of that jealousy and uncomfortable feeling which undoubtedly did exist in days gone by. Although it might perhaps be invidious to point to any one that had taken the lead in abolishing this feeling of jealousy, he could honestly say, looking back to the history of their Degree, that it was owing to the liberality and Masonic spirit of the thirty-third that that result had been achieved. The Earl of Kintore, in reply, said of all races of men who, in his short life, he had been privileged to meet, he thought Freemasons were the most long suffering. For no other reason could he account for the brethren's kind reception of him. The best he could do he had honestly done. He had tried to hold his office creditably, and with the assistance of the Grand Officers hoped still to do so. Among these he would like to mention the services of the Grand Secretary, and the President of the General Board. During his year of office charters had been granted for 16 new Lodges, while 657 certificates had been issued; and they had £6,300 invested. Grand Lodge had that day resolved to make up what had been lost to different funds by the failure of their bankers. He looked forward with interest to the result of the Festival of the Mark Benevolent Fund, which would be held, under the presidency of the Deputy Grand Master, at the Crystal Palace next month, and he felt sure that next year he should find further opportunity of forwarding the interests of Mark Masonry. Bro. Kelly proposed the Past Grand Masters, coupling with the toast the name of Canon Portal, whose immense services to the Order every Mark Master would readily acknowledge. Canon Portal replied; all the Past G. Masters, from the time of Lord Leigh to the I.P.M. had endeavoured to do their best. To none were they more indebted than to Lord Henniker, in whose reign the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Albany became important additions to the Order. He was delighted to be able to state, on behalf of the Grand Master, that there was every reason to believe that Prince Edward of Wales would be admitted under the banner of this Order, in the Isaac Newton Lodge at Cambridge. Sir F. Burdett proposed the Deputy Grand Master and the Grand Officers, and said that under Lord Egerton of Tatton the interests and success of the Order were quite safe. After a response from Colonel Somerville Burney, Bro. Col. Shadwell H. Clerke proposed the toast of Success to the Mark Benevolent Fund. It was gratifying to see what was being done through the agency of this Fund, which was firmly established on a substantial basis. This was evidenced by the number of children who were being assisted in their education from it; moreover, the grants made in the Grand Lodge that day were further illustration of the good work that was being carried on. In conclusion, Col. Clerke advocated the establishment of a Fund for the special relief of aged and decayed members of the Mark Degree and their widows. Bro. F. Binckes replied. He commenced by expressing his gratification that the proposition of this toast had been entrusted to a brother holding a similar position in Craft Masonry to that he himself filled in the Mark. The interest manifested in the Mark Degree was greatly on the increase. He then sketched the history of the Festivals in connection with the Mark Benevolent Fund, and showed how the interest taken in its working had steadily progressed. It was the desire of those associated with the Fund to anticipate calamity, and struggle to avert it rather than to wait until those who sought relief were literally crushed by misfortune. Lord John Taylour proposed the health of the Visitors, with which toast was associated the name of Bro. D. P. Cama, who, in reply, thanked the company for the kind reception given to the toast. He regretted his command of English precluded him from expressing himself so adequately as he could desire, but if he fell back on his own language he was fully aware he should be equally unintelligible. What he desired to convey was, that he fully recognised the cosmopolitanism of Freemasonry. With respect to what had been said as to his contributions on behalf of the Charities of the Order, he had simply subscribed according to his means, and as a humble representative of the two hundred millions of Eastern subjects, whom he felt justified in proclaiming among the most faithful adherents of the Empress of India. The musical arrangements were entrusted to Bro. Edward J. Hoare G.O., who was assisted by Bros. John Probert, Egbert Roberts, and Thomas Tremere. The latter brother, however, was compelled to leave early, to fulfil an engagement at Buckingham Palace, but Bros. Probert and Roberts ably compensated for the absence of their confrère.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Northamptonshire and Huntingdonshire will be held on Thursday next, the 11th inst., at Northampton, the R.W. Prov. Grand Master His Grace the Duke of Manchester having accepted the invitation of the Eleanor Cross Lodge, No. 1764, to hold the meeting under the banner of that Lodge. The members of the Eleanor Cross being exceedingly anxious the visit of the brethren shall be a pleasant one, are making exceptional efforts to entertain those who may attend the meeting. At 12.30 the Eleanor Cross Lodge will be opened at the Town Hall, and at 12.45 Provincial Grand Lodge will be opened, and the business of the year transacted. The brethren will attend Divine Service at all Saints' Church, at 3 o'clock, when a sermon will be preached by Bro. the Rev. S. J. W. Sanders, M.A. and LL.M., Prov. Grand Chaplain, and a collection made in aid of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls and the Peterborough Cathedral Restoration Fund. A banquet will be served at the Peacock Hotel, at 5 o'clock, and at 8 a Conversazione will be held in the Town Hall, including performances of vocal and instrumental music and a reading, illustrated by Sepia sketches (by the late Mr. G. J. De Wilde). Dissolving Views will also be exhibited by Bro. T. P. Dorman P.P.G S., while an efficient band will be in attendance for dancing. Dispensations have been granted by the authorities of the Craft, Royal Arch, Mark, Royal Ark Mariners, Rose Croix, Knights of the Temple, and other Masonic bodies, to wear the clothing of their respective degrees at the Conversazione, while by arrangement with the Committee of the Northampton Fine Art Exhibition the corridors and gallery, containing their loan collection of pictures, will be open to the brethren during the evening. Tickets for the banquet (which also admit to the Conversazione) are 6s 6d each, and those for the Conversazione (for Masons and their friends 2s 6d each). These latter are not transferable, and as the circular announcing the meeting states they "must" be applied for before the 5th inst., we fear it is too late for those who have not already applied to obtain any. We cordially wish the Eleanor Cross brethren success in their efforts.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Middlesex will take place to-day, at the Town Hall, Uxbridge, at 3 p.m. It is expected that the Provincial Grand Master, Col. Sir Francis Burdett, Bart., will preside in person, and there is every prospect of a large attendance of brethren.

The consecration of the Chiswick Mark Lodge, which was announced for the 20th inst., has been deferred till the 27th, the former date being the day appointed for the annual entertainment at the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, thereby preventing the attendance of Brother F. Binckes, who is to be consecrating Officer. The meetings of the "Chiswick" are to be held at the Star and Garter Hotel, Kew Bridge.

"Odd Volumes."—The City Press states that at the request of the President of the "Sette of Odd Volumes," Bro. J. R. Brown, the eminent librarian of the "Sette," Bro. Bernard Quaritch, has consented to exhibit some of his choicest treasures in early printed books and MSS. at the Freemasons' Tavern during the evening of Friday, 5th inst., on which occasion ladies have been invited. The celebrated "Psalter" (1454) will be among the books shown.

MASONIC FEMALE ORPHAN SCHOOL.

THE general half-yearly meeting of the Board of Governors was held at the School House, Balls' Bridge, Dublin, on Tuesday, 2nd instant. The result of the ballot for the election of seven pupils was announced as follows:—

C. M. Rankin	2530
M. Fisher	2297
K. E. Haughton	2256
M. A. Lloyd	2190
L. F. Delandre	1924
H. Creighton	1787
S. J. Johnston	1523
E. K. Bronte	1440
M. Tait	1338
L. Layng	909
J. Prescott	868
F. H. Milligan	646
A. R. Hare	484
K. Tizard	265

The first seven candidates were accordingly declared elected.

The arrangements for the fete (this day) at the Masonic Female Orphan School are in active progress. The programme, illustrated with a view of the building, has been published, and promises a most agreeable series of entertainments. At their four o'clock concert, besides instrumental selections, the pupils will sing Handel's chorus, "O Lovely Peace," Smart's part-song, "The Water Nymphs," and two other choral pieces. Haydn's well-known "Toy Symphony," never so pleasingly rendered as by a band of children, and Farmer's amusing arrangement of Nursery Rhymes as a choral quadrille, will appropriately close this part of the programme, to be followed at half-past four by the calisthenics and school drill. At five o'clock the concert, which some of our most distinguished artists have so kindly promised, to assure the success of the Orphan's Annual Festival, will commence. Mr. Grandison will conduct a most attractive programme. Among the items we notice that Miss Mullen pays a graceful compliment to one of the best friends of the Institution by singing Richard J. Moncton's delightful song, "Awakening;" Mrs. Harte, who never fails to show her lasting interest in the School, which is proud to remember her as a pupil, will join Messrs. Beaumont and Oldham in Bishop's trio, "Maiden Fair," and will also sing "Waiting." Mr. Oldham and Mr. Beaumont will each give a solo, and the concert will end with J. O'Rorke's arrangement of "No, not more welcome," as a quartette, to be rendered by Mr. and Miss Mullen, Mr. Oldham, and Mr. Beaumont. At six o'clock the distribution of prizes to the pupils of both Schools will take place, introduced by the usual procession and Masonic salute, and the girls will afterwards repeat their picturesque "school drill." The performances will close with a pleasant selection of music by the bands of the 18th Hussars and King's Own Borderers. These attractions, and above all the object of helping and encouraging these most deserving and admirably managed Charities, cannot fail to bring together a large assemblage.—Irish Times.

A FRENCHMAN FALLS AMONGST "FREEMASONS(?)"

AT the Oswestry Borough Police Court, on Monday, 2nd inst., before E. Shaw and T. P. Parry, Esqs., Ovine Portisina, a Frenchman, was charged by P.C. Calcott with being drunk and disorderly, in Bailey-street, on Saturday night. The constable stated that the defendant was creating a great disturbance, shouting in French, and when he (the defendant) was placed in the lock-up he began saying his prayers. In his defence, the defendant said, "Me fifty years of age to-day. Me never before magistrate before, and me never in lock-up before. Me come here Saturday, and me meet gentlemen, who said dey was Freemasons, and dat dey see me in Paris. Me had £5 Saturday, but me gave de gentlemen champagne, and now all gone; me have no money now. Me no customed drink English beer; it flew to my head. Me never drunk before: me now sign de pledge, and me never get drunk again. Mr. Shaw: Will you leave the town if we let you off? Defendant: Yes, monsieur; me leave de town for Swansea, and me never get drunk no more. Mr. Shaw: Be off, then.—Defendant: Tank 'u, gentlemen; bon jour, messieurs. It transpired that the "Freemasons" were gipsies, who had encamped on the horse market for the night, and they evidently succeeded in completely fleecing the unwary foreigner.—Shrewsbury Journal.

EXCLUSION AND ITS CONSEQUENCES.

THE brother whose appeal to Grand Lodge against the sentence of exclusion passed on him by his own Lodge was dismissed at the last Quarterly Communication, seems to have a very faint idea of the pains and penalties he has incurred by his un-Masonic behaviour, and there also appears to be a diversity of opinion among brethren generally as to the full effect of the sentence passed upon him. There is little doubt but that Grand Lodge will ere long be appealed to for an official decision on the matter, but in the meantime, certainly before the next regular Communication, questions of grave importance may arise, even if the work of Freemasonry in one Lodge at least is not delayed, through the action of the brother implicated. It is not our intention to devote any consideration to the actual facts of the case which led to the sentence of exclusion; suffice it to say that for most un-Masonic behaviour a brother has been excluded from his Lodge, the Master of the Province in which the Lodge is held has sustained the sentence, and Grand Lodge has unanimously refused to entertain an appeal to set the sentence aside.

Before coming to any decision as to the full effect of this sentence, we must discover the Masonic significance of the term "exclusion." The note to Rule 210 of the Constitutions, to which we are referred by the Index for "the meaning of the term," defines it as being used "upon the removal of a brother from a private Lodge," while "expelled is used only when a brother is removed from the Craft by the Grand Lodge, or a district Grand Lodge." This note then defines when it is to be used, rather than "the meaning of the term," and we must look elsewhere for a more reliable definition, before we can proceed further. This we are unable to find in the Constitutions, except by implication; but by tracing the several Rules applicable to the subject, and taking them in connection with a resolution of Grand Lodge specially made to meet such decisions, we feel we can make out a case. The Report of the Board of General Purposes submitted to Grand Lodge at the Communication of March last, and which was formally adopted, contained among other matters, a resolution to the effect that "the suspension of any particular brother involves an entire incapacity on his part to exercise any right or duties as a Mason, or to participate in any Masonic privileges during the period such suspension remains in force," thereby putting a stop once for all to the idea that a brother might be suspended from one Lodge, and laugh at the sentence by appearing in another of which he was a member. In other words, suspension from a Lodge means suspension from Freemasonry, and by the same argument exclusion from a Lodge must equally mean exclusion from the Craft. We have already shown the connection between expulsion and exclusion—the one being used (Note to Rule 210) "when a brother is removed from the Craft by the Grand Lodge," and the other "upon the removal of a brother from a private Lodge"—and therefore we may look to Rule 273 for further assistance in defining the meaning of the term used. Rule 273 provides that—"The Board [of General Purposes] may proceed to admonition, fine or suspension, according to the laws . . . . but should any case be of so flagrant a nature as to require . . . . . the expulsion of a brother, the Board shall make a special report thereon to the Grand Lodge." This Rule then clearly shows that expulsion by Grand Lodge is a much more severe penalty than suspension, and the same must equally apply to the case of a private Lodge as regards its sentences of exclusion and suspension. Being then a more severe punishment than suspension it naturally follows that "exclusion" is not less severe in its application, and thus we find that the sentence of exclusion passed on this brother "involves an entire incapacity on his part to exercise any rights or duties as a Mason, or to participate in any Masonic privileges during the period such . . . . . remains in force."

There are other points in connection with the case which confirm our ruling, even if what we have adduced is not sufficient. Grand Lodge has been appealed to to upset the decision of the private Lodge, which was duly sustained by the Provincial Grand Master, and has unanimously refused to interfere. Grand Lodge has accordingly confirmed the sentence, and by so doing we think has brought it within the scope of Rule 5 of the Constitutions, which states that "the Grand Lodge alone has the power of . . . expelling brethren from the Craft, a power which it does not delegate to any subordinate authority in England." This might perhaps have been a point for argument previous to the passing of the resolution as to the effect of a sentence of suspension (already referred to), but now we do not think there is any necessity to touch upon it, as the Rule and the resolution taken together imply that although Grand Lodge does not delegate its power of expelling brethren from the Craft to any subordinate authority, it does so far delegate this authority as to uphold a sentence of suspension (which is now virtually the same as expulsion or exclusion) unless appealed against, and decided in opposition to the verdict given by the private Lodge.

So far we have considered the sentence as affected by the laws of the Order alone, and it is of course on that basis the case must be decided, but there is also the spirit of Freemasonry to be taken into consideration, and this would surely never tolerate the presence in our midst of a brother who has behaved in such a manner as to bring down the condemnation of the members of his own Lodge, of his Provincial Grand Master, and of Grand Lodge also, much less allow him to force his presence among the brethren he has personally insulted. But the brother who in this instance is the one implicated is, we believe, one of the principal Officers designate of a new Lodge, which is to be consecrated by the Provincial Grand Master who sustained the sentence of exclusion, while some of the founders are so circumstanced in connection with the case that they can hardly truthfully say, when called upon at the consecration, that they approve of the whole of the officers named in the warrant, and here arises a point of considerable difficulty, unless the special sanction of the Grand Master is sought and obtained previous to the consecration. Rule 121 of the Constitutions is to the effect that "No Brother shall be . . . . invested as a Warden of a new Lodge, except the Brother named in the warrant for such office, unless by special sanction of the Grand Master." This, taken in conjunction with Rule 120, which provides that "every new Lodge shall be solemnly constituted," and Rule 129, which stipulates that "the regular Officers of a Lodge consist of the Master and his two Wardens, &c." would seem to imply that the Lodge cannot be properly consecrated unless some special steps are taken, or the Consecrating Officer and Founders are prepared to associate with the excluded brother, and that to at the risk of disregarding a sentence which in our opinion precludes the offending brother from all his rights or duties as a Mason. Under all the circumstances we feel convinced an appeal to Grand Lodge must be made, when we shall have an official definition of the sentence. This will, we think, convince our "excluded" brother that his behaviour at the last Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge was neither becoming nor consistent with his present position in the Craft.

THE GRAND LODGE OF SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

IT was with extreme pleasure we last week announced that the prayer of the brethren of South Australia for recognition as an Independent Grand Lodge had been granted by the United Grand Lodge of England, it having been unanimously resolved at the last Quarterly Communication of the latter body "to enter into fraternal relations with the Grand Lodge of South Australia." This recognition by our own Grand Lodge will no doubt be followed by similar action on the part of the Grand Lodges of Scotland and Ireland, each of which has subordinate Lodges working in the district now comprised in the Grand Lodge of South Australia, for in answer to correspondence addressed by our Grand Secretary to the Grand Lodges of Scotland and Ireland we gather that the action of those bodies would, in a great measure, be guided by that of the Grand Lodge of England. Having been formally recognised as an Independent Grand Lodge by the three bodies which origir ally warranted the Lodges and issued the certificates of the brethren who have now formed themselves into an Independent Grand Lodge, recognition from all parts of the world must speedily follow, a result which we again heartily congratulate our South Australia brethren upon having achieved in a truly Masonic manner.

As we said at the time we reported the inauguration of this Grand Lodge of South Australia the whole of the proceedings which culminated in the establishment of the Independent Grand Lodge appeared to have been conducted with becoming gravity and decorum, while a more important fact still was, that a vast and overwhelming majority of the members of the Lodges there holding under the three Constitutions of England, Scotland and Ireland were in favour of the new order of things. At that time thirty-two of the thirty-three Lodges working in South Australia approved of the formation of the Independent Grand Lodge, but even this has been improved upon since the application for the official recognition was formally presented to the Grand Lodge of England, for now all the Lodges, and almost all the Masons in the Colony have given their adhesion to the project of self government. Was there any ground then for refusing the prayer of the South Australian brethren? Certainly not, and however much we may regret the loss of the twenty Lodges of South Australia which have hitherto recognised the Grand Lodge of England as their Masonic head, we can but wish them continued success under their new government.

The action of South Australia, now that it has met with fraternal recognition, will no doubt serve as an incentive to other brethren to adopt a similar course, and we may expect, ere long, to hear of other of our Colonial Districts setting up Grand Lodges on their own account. If in such cases the same unanimity is shown as has been the case in South Australia, there can be no opposition offered. It is only when a minority strive to impose their views on the majority that opposition is called for, and in such cases there is little doubt but that existing Grand Lodges will combine in upholding the true principles of Freemasonry —to respect the opinion of the minority, however small. Even in the case of South Australia there are some brethren who desire to continue, as they have always been, recognised Masonic subjects of the Grand Lodges of England, Scotland, or Ireland, and the new Grand body has expressed its willingness to preserve and recognise their rights, a course which will no doubt soon result in their enrolment of the registers of South Australia, for individual brethren could hardly desire to ignore such truly Masonic spirit as is here displayed.

The request of the brethren to retain their original warrants from the home Grand Lodges also showed they fully recognised their position, and were yet alive to the benefits attached to their Masonic parentage. No doubt the original warrants will be prized equally with the new ones under which future proceedings will be conducted, while as historical documents they will be treasured and handed down with as much care as though they still formed the most important part of the Lodge furniture. In conclusion, we can but repeat our congratulations, and at the same time hold up the Craftsmen of South Australia as a pattern for any who may desire to create an Independent Grand Lodge for themselves.

The withdrawal of the twenty English Lodges of South Australia from the rule of the Grand Lodge of England has made a still further addition to the vacancies on the English roll, and has served to again stir up the feeling that a renumbering of our Lodges is desirable. We are strongly opposed to such a course, and shall use every legitimate means to prevent it, as we feel that the confusion and annoyance resulting therefrom would more than counterbalance any supposed advantage which might accrue. We may return to a consideration of this subject at an early date.

NATIVE AND AMERICAN FREEMASONRY—A CONTRAST.

YEARLY reports of Institutions, as a rule, are very dry reading. Few care to peruse them, unless personally interested. The loss is not great, except it be to the Institutions themselves. A mere record of work done is not enough to awake dormant interest. An anecdote, an apt illustration, or facts marshalled in graphic and bold array, as if the writer were thoroughly in earnest, are qualities far more likely to be successful than the dryasdust reports that answer well enough to the letter of requirements, but do not breathe an inspiring spirit. Our American brethren seem to have unconsciously fallen into the habit of making the reports of their proceedings attractive. We say unconsciously, because there is no appearance of design. What they say is natural enough. Sometimes their language is magniloquent, and frequently takes a "high falutin'" tone, common to that class of Yankees who believe that England can lick creation, and that they can lick England. Bathos and boasting now and then commingle and disturb the sensitive nerves of the staid Britisher. Beneath it all there is an intense love of Freemasonry—a right gennine human feeling,—"a heart that leaps at every bound" to assert right and help the distressed brother. It should never be forgotten, in estimating the character of American Freemasons, that they have had to fight a long and severe war against opposition and calumny, and that the battle is still going on. We in England have never known such bitter struggles as have marred and damaged the brethren in America. Our path has been smoothed by the patronage and support of the wealthy and powerful—by princes and statesmen—by the very executive of national power. Freemasonry to us has always been fashionable, and with the exception of the Pope and a few of his more ardent disciples, we have hardly known what opposition is. Even the anathemas of the Pope, terrible as they are regarded by some people, have passed over our heads without leaving us one whit the worse, either in reputation or in influence. Our progress has been like the rippling stream, with just enough disturbance on the surface to show that it is moving. Now and then it hastens its progress when bearing royalty on its surface. It rarely, however, loses its dignity, and the only fear is that it may become too cold and impassive. As a counterpoise to this calmness we have our Charities. These keep alive and foster the warmer instincts of the brethren, and are the best correctives of that spirit of selfishness which is too often the offspring of exclusiveness and of unchequered peace. If anything, we are too respectable, too anxious for the proprieties of social life. We perform all our charitable actions in a stately way, after an approved and fashionable model. We cultivate our literature upon absolute methods, and try to convert a speculative into a mathematical science. Because we cannot logically prove our origin, we are continually discounting sentiment; aiming in fact at impossible historical accuracy. We are very Pharisees in striving after form, but not quite so heartless. We are not as dead in practical faith as we are intellectually cold, formal, and unimaginative. Our academic tendencies have not taken all the heart out of us, and our charities remain as the golden links which unite faith and practice. Our Lodge meetings, lifeless as they too frequently are, stimulate obedience and respect for authority; they keep alive the love of ritual and do something towards strengthening the formal ties of brotherhood, while our banquets satisfy the grosser wants of the animal man. The spiritual influence of the teachings of the Craft always makes itself felt in the Lodge-room, but it loses too much of its power when the brethren separate. They then become strangers, except in isolated cases where personal friendships are formed, and which would exist apart from Freemasonry. Were it not for our blessed Charities we fear that the Craft in England would be but a skeleton, a cold and rigid formalism, enlivened occasionally by the social enjoyments of the table.

Fast, and the world goes by;
Succeed and give, and it helps you to live;
But no Companion can help you to die.
There is room in the halls of pleasure
For a large and lordly train,
But one by one we must all file on Through the narrow aisle of pain.

"Rejoice, and Companions will seek you;
Grieve, and they turn and go;
They want full measure of all your pleasures,
But they do not heed your woe.
Be glad, and your friends are many;
Be sad, and you lose them all;
There are none to decline your nectared wine,
But alone you must drink life's gall."

American Freemasonry having passed through the fiery furnace of opposition and persecution, seems to approach nearer to the spirit of equality, one of the principal bases on which the Order rests. Personal liberty, no doubt, sometimes degenerates into license, and public displays too often minister to personal ambition at the cost of dignity. Bro. Leonidus F. Pratt, Grand High Priest of Royal Arch Masons of the State of California, put the matter very clearly in his annual address, delivered to the Companions in April of last year. He said: "We are coming rapidly to make much display and parade of our Masonic standing and handsome apparel. We are gradually drifting away from that simplicity and those practical features of Freemasonry which in our early experience so charmed and delighted us. We compromise our faith and our teachings, and we belittle our profession by too much Masonic display and too little Masonic labour." This love of display, to our mind, is the great danger of American Freemasonry. There is another evil less defensible and still more dangerous, which has the same root in the desire for novelty and show. America is overrun with so-called Masonic offshoots. Their name is legion, and their influence far from good. There are many men in this country who would undertake the command of the Channel Fleet who had never seen a war-ship in their lives, but we have few, if any, who would undertake to paint the Masonic lily, or gild Masonic gold. These pretensions seem to be the special property of our American brethren, who delight in isms, and who are ever hankering after something new. They want a little of our superfluous ballast, a little of our decorous refinement, just to keep them more faithful to their original inheritance. It is easy to condemn, easier still to give advice. We cannot do the former without giving some show of reason, the latter is generally offered without the least sense of responsibility, yet the evils are too glaring to be disregarded, and too perilous to be neglected. It is with pleasure, therefore, that we notice that there is an awakening sense of the danger of running after false gods, of seeking outside the display of that ardour which would be better exercised within the Lodge. American liberty is unlike our own, in its manifestation at least. It came to them ready made; to us it has come through centuries of trials and difficulties, through civil struggles and bloody wars. The Americans are the children of prudent fathers, and not unlike many prodigals they deal lightly with an inheritance that cost them so little to obtain. The same spirit that animates them in their political life has found a partial existence in Freemasonry. All the shows are on a huge scale, and to deprive an American of the gaudy trappings of civic and national life would be to arouse his fears of the loss of liberty. Time alone can eradicate what after all are excrescences. Americans have shown that they are worthy descendants of a giant stock, and if they gallop a little too fast now, they will ultimately settle down into a quiet stride that betokens endurance as well as progress.

No doubt the peculiarities of character incidental to the American people have left their mark upon native Freemasonry. They do not account for all that is strange to us. The explanation must be sought in other directions. The difficulties in the Craft that we have escaped have strengthened their faith. They have fought for it, are still fighting for it, and were it not for their own follies, they would have completely triumphed long ago. To them Masonry is a living reality, which embodies the fruits of their own labours and sufferings. They cherish it accordingly, and try to make out of it something more than it really is. Their success has made them forget the beauty and reality of the substance, and they run after false shadows. They have had no such controlling forces as exist in this country. The principles of their national constitution are opposed to the spirit of patronage, and while they have gained in independence, they have lost in soberness and stolidity. They are more earnest than we are, more zealous in the cultivation of Masonic literature. Their zeal is not always tempered with discretion, nor does their charity partake of the same fixed character as with the Craft in England. Their writing abounds in sentiment, is sometimes marred by wild speculations, and too much outspokenness. Still, with it all there is the true spirit of inquiry, the strong desire to know more of the esoteric meaning of the Order, and that manly will to defend it against all comers. If they have few fixed charitable organisations, there is no lack of charity among the brethren. They rise to occasions, and give with a liberality we do not exceed. Their welcome to strangers is unbounded, and we believe we are justified in saying that they give a much wider interpretation to the word brother than we do in this country. With all their faults we cannot help loving them. Their impulsiveness, their love of show, their defiance of what we deem etiquette, lose much of their significance when we realise their good qualities. We may truly say of them, "Be to their faults a little blind, and to their virtues very kind."

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Norths and Hunts was held at Northampton, on Thursday. His Grace the Duke of Manchester, Provincial Grand Master, presided, and there was an excellent attendance of Masons of the district. Bro. Butler Wilkins Deputy Provincial Grand Master presided at the banquet, which took place after the Provincial Grand Lodge meeting, and the conversazione and soirée which we announced last week was to follow proved most enjoyable. Indeed, the brethren of the Eleanor Cross Lodge, who made the arrangements for the meeting, achieved a grand success. We shall give fuller particulars in our next issue.

The General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys held its regular meeting on Saturday, the 6th inst., at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, London, under the presidency of Bro. Raynham W. Stewart P.G.D. After the confirmation of the minutes and the reading of others for information, an application was considered on behalf of one of the pupils of the Institution for a grant towards his education and clothing out of the establishment, the reason assigned for the departure from the general rule being the delicate health of the lad. The request was granted, and then the new petitions were disposed of. These were thirteen in number, all of which were approved, and the names ordered to be added to the list of candidates for the October election. The election of the House and Audit Committees was then proceeded with. Three of the brethren who had been nominated for the former having withdrawn, no ballot was needed in the case of the House Committee, the following brethren, the same as those chosen in March, being declared elected; E. Bowyer, A. F. Godson, H. W. Hunt, J. L. Mather, James Moon, T. Hastings Miller, J. J. Murray, W. Paas, F. W. Ramsay, M.D., D. Rolls, C. Sanders, M.D., and Henry Venn. A poll was needed in the case of the Audit Committee, and in due course the scrutineers reported the following as having the greatest number of votes: George Cooper, T. Cubitt, C. H. Driver, H. S. Goodall, C. F. Hogard, W. Mann, W. Maple, W. H. Saunders, and C. E. Soppet. The proceedings terminated with the usual vote of thanks to the Chairman.

INTERESTING MASONIC INCIDENTS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Freemasons, I fear, are like many other people in this go-ahead age, who let single events escape them, and only see their important bearing when massed, like flowers, in a rich garland. The method, too, of recording facts, under present circumstances, is not the best that could be devised. It is absolutely imperative that a scientific lecture, a financial statement, or a controversial discourse should be reported by a shorthand writer. It is desirable that Parliamentary proceedings should be dealt with by the same master hand. But for ordinary purposes the narrative form is the best. It permits of description, and provided the writer be honest, not only can a report be correct in all essential points, but it can also be made really interesting. It is the custom for stenographers to look down upon those who attempt to report without knowing shorthand. My own experience leads me to the conclusion that the descriptive reporter, for most purposes, has the advantage over his skilled rival. One is free to colour his matter and make it agreeable as well as true; the other records facts in a dry, mechanical way. Points are thus lost, except to the painstaking reader, or the few directly interested in any special topic. One great reason why Society papers are so popular is, because all matters are condensed into a readable form; the husk is winnowed and the grain remains concentrated and palatable. I purpose dealing with two or three events, and if I do not make them interesting it will be because I lack practical acquaintance with my own theory.

I recollect seeing something about Lewises in connection with the annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Worcestershire as far back as last August. I had heard so little of Lewises in London that the bare record of the incident made an impression upon me. The subject, however, was recently brought under my notice, and I made some inquiries. It appears it is the practice with the Provincial Grand Lodge of Worcestershire, at their annual gatherings, when they proceed to church, to have the volume of the Sacred Law borne in procession by four Lewises. The act itself is reverent and beautiful. It is an open recognition of the sovereignty of the Great Architect of the Universe, and a proclaiming of the Bible as the grand charter of our faith. It is a homage of the creature to the Creator, and an open testimony that Freemasonry is based upon religion. Such a scene must have a good effect upon the spectators, and those who take part in it, like bridesmaids at a wedding, will remember it to the end of their days. No standard bearer should feel prouder than the Lewis selected to bear the Bible in a Freemasons' procession; and it is quite certain that the memory of such an event will long be cherished. It is an honour that is sure to bear fruit. It is calculated to stimulate a desire for intimate connection with the Craft, and to make the humble Lewis a faithful and honoured ruler in the Israel of Freemasonry. No better introduction to the Order could be found than the bearing of the book that rules and governs our faith, the great landmark by which we steer, and the great teacher which inspires charity in word and act. The brethren in Worcestershire not only paid outward homage to the Bible, not only gave a pleasant duty to the four Lewises, but each one was presented with a copy of the volume of the Sacred Law as a memento of the part he took in an interesting ceremony. Invited to partake of the banquet, the Lewises were treated as honoured guests, and having taken a glass of wine with the Right Worshipful Grand Master, and shaken hands with him, they were dismissed with their treasure before the ceremonial business of the table began. I leave it to your readers to imagine what must have been the feelings of those young men, but I think I am right in saying that the proceedings of that day would linger in their minds and stimulate to good actions in the future.

In looking down the list, the glorious list of contributions to the Girls' School at the recent Festival, I noticed under the head of Monmouthshire, "1429, Master Willie Watkins, £61 8s 6d." I learn that this little fellow, just rising five years of age, is the son of a worthy brother, who has thus early initiated his boy into the faith of Masonry. It was, I believe, his Masonic baptism, and the day of his confirmation no doubt is looked forward to with hope and joy. May his father be spared to witness the day when the seed that has now been sown shall be matured first into blossom, and then into the fruits of charity. Here is an example that might well be followed by others. It is all very well to say that the brethren might bestow their gifts in their own name, and that the introduction of so young a child into matters of which he can know nothing nor understand is a mere bit of sentimentality. Granted all that objectors can say, there yet remains the fact that most of the actions of life are governed by sentiment, and that without it there would be less enjoyment than there is. The linking even of a child's name with something noble and good must have its influence in after life, and young as Master Willie Watkins is, he will never forget the figure he made in the list I have referred to. As an example it is worth much in the cause of charity. There are few parents who are not proud of their offspring, and I can imagine no better method of the early inculcation of the spirit of charity in their young minds than that of associating their names practically with a good cause. Both boys and girls can be treated alike, and there is this advantage, that as the object is pure and praiseworthy there is less danger of pride being inculcated. With some people giving is a habit, but it must have its origin in a good heart, and no time is too soon or inappropriate for laying the foundation of a practice that once learned is never forgotten. St. Paul says, "Knowledge puffeth up, but charity edifieth." One of the first and most beautiful lessons an initiate learns is charity. Our ceremony describes it as sister to mercy, and we echo the words of Shakespeare—

It blesseth him that gives, and him that takes."

I fear this letter is getting too long, but I cannot close without saying that I endorse the sentiments contained in your contributed leader last week, entitled "Women as Masons." Those who are intimately associated with our Charities know the value of woman's help; were it more encouraged I should have still more faith, great as it is already, in the future of our Institutions. There are many honoured names associated with the Craft. Her Majesty the Queen, monarch though she be, is a promoter of the art. Her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales cannot fail to share the Masonic enthusiasm of our Royal Grand Master, and the young widow of his brother, another noble Mason, must retain a strong affection for the Order. None afforded her more loyal sympathy at the time of her bereavement than Freemasons, and the high estimation in which the late Duke of Albany was held by the Craft is a source of pride to her still. It is enough if I mention the name of the Baroness Burdett-Coutts. That lady's soul beats in sympathy with every good movement, and the fact that she takes so warm an interest in Freemasonry should stimulate our faith and nerve us to further exertions. Mrs. Horace Brooks Marshall is a worthy coadjutor of her husband, and although her store of silver trowels must be great, I hope she may live long to add to it, and to swell the list of noble deeds done in the name of charity. I might go on adding name to name, but what I want is to see ladies brought more into contact with the spirit of Freemasonry; to see them actively identified with our Charities. They would then forgive the absence of their husbands more freely when engaged in Masonic work and pleasures. Their influence is mighty, and their sympathies are easily secured, but they must share a little in the outward signs of glory. They might be partakers of the banquet occasionally, like the Lewises I have named, without in the least infringing on either decorum or the laws and principles of the Order. Indeed their presence at the banquet table would add to the pleasures of dining, and their intercourse would tend to refine and chasten the more boisterous spirits. I want the ladies to be made real helpers in the blessings of charity, and, as far as possible, partakers of the enjoyments that most Freemasons so much appreciate. I am sure the Craft generally would benefit, and it is equally certain that the Charities would receive a fillip and a sustaining power, which would be a blessing all round.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

WATCHMAN.

LIBEL AND MASONIC PRIVILEGE (?).

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I fully agree with Bro. P.M. Stevens in his surmise that the publication of libellous matter would not be exempt from the action of the law of the realm, by any privilege, or supposed privilege, associated with the Order of Freemasonry; and I am surprised beyond measure that your contemporary should imagine otherwise. I read your answer to the query of "A W.M." in your issue of the 2nd ult. on this point, and I also read the answer to the same question given by the Freemason. I thought the old adage, "when doctors disagree," &c., was most applicable here, but I felt that even if you were wrong you at least erred on the side of consistency. I very much question, however, if you were wrong; indeed, my opinion is that not only "an action for libel might stand," but that it certainly would stand, and I am pleased to find so high an authority as Bro. James Stevens support your and my opinion. I think it would be monstrous to place libels published under the "square and compasses" outside the reach of the remedy provided by law. Such a course would not only be detrimental to Masonry, but would cause such scandals as would fully justify the strongest denunciations of the Order by its greatest enemies. Supposing such a privilege did exist, it would only be necessary to join the ranks of Freemasonry previous to the publication of the grossest libels, and as a defence to any legal proceedings which might be commenced plead Masonic privilege! It need not signify whether or no the person libelled was a Mason, the defence would be, "I only desired to warn Freemasons of him," or "I only desired to show Freemasons what men there are in the world."

Another view of the case which upholds your opinion is, that Freemasonry is not, so far as I am aware, recognized by law. It has no locus standi in a court of law, either collectively or by Lodges or individuals. I believe that in order to attain legal recognition it would be necessary for every Lodge to be registered under the Friendly Societies Act, or some such statute, but on this point I am open to conviction. I only write what I believe to be the facts of the case, and they are based on the result of an action some years since by which a Lodge sought the assistance of the law to recover certain fees from a backward member. This may not be a very creditable event to refer back to, but it illustrates my view. Even if I am wrong in my ideas—in which case you and Bro. Stevens will also be wrong—I hope the day will never arrive when libels will be published, and excused on the plea that they were privileged by Freemasonry.

I am,

Yours fraternally,

LODGE NOMENCLATURE,

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In your report of the consecration of the George Price Lodge, in a late issue, you say you "are averse, as a rule, to the naming of Lodges after well-known brethren," and further that you "are of opinion that much may be said in opposition to such a course." I am at a loss to know what objections there can possibly be to this very popular method of honouring distinguished Craftsmen, and I think your remarks, unless you have very strong grounds for them, should not be allowed to go unchallenged. I consider that to name a new Lodge after some distinguished member of the Order is not only endeavouring to do honour to the individual selected, by trying to perpetuate the memory of his name among Freemasons, but it is also an honour for the Lodge to have the permission, which I suppose is always obtained before using a name, more especially when, as is usually the case, the name is associated with all that is desired in a perfect Freemason. What can be the objection?

Yours fraternally,

SUBURBAN.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Safely and Securely.—When the severities of winter have yielded to the genial spring, invalids should make a determined effort to regain their lost health; when, through confinement indoors, want of appetite, and disturbed sleep, the entire system has been weakened, and the spirits have been broken down, Holloway's remedies are equal to the occasion. The Ointment rubbed over the regions of the stomach and liver, aided by the internal administrations of his Pills will rectify the digestion, regulate the bile, and purify the blood—three sanatory actions which will speedily confer renewed vigour, brace up the falling nerves, confirm the flaccid muscles, and restore to the ailing cheerfulness, that great charm of existence.

J. Henochsberg M.E Z., W. Littaur P.Z. H., J. Da Silva J., M. J. Emanuel P.Z. S.E., J. Lazarus P.Z. Treasurer, J. W. Dewsnap P.S.; P.Z's S. Lazarus, L. Lazarus, H. M. Levy, H. P. Isaac. Visitors—C. T. Hogard P Z. 10, 141, 142, Hart P.Z. West Lancashire, G. Van Volen late 188, W. Hopekirk P.Z. 742, W. George P.Z. 657. After preliminaries, ballots were taken for the admission of Bros. L. Kool 188, Rev. M. Haines Chaplain 205, J. Lichtenfeld 205, and J. Myers 188. All were duly exalted into Royal Arch Masonry. The working of the M.E Z., Principals, and Officers was perfect. Comps. Littaur P.Z. was elected M.E.Z., J. Da Silva H., J. W. Dewsnap J., J. Lazarus P.Z. Treasurer, M. J. Emanuel P.Z. S.E., L. M. Myers S.N., H. J. Phillips P.S., Goddard Janitor. Comp. H. P. Isaac P.Z. proposed, and Comp. H. M. Levy P.Z. seconded, that the sum of two guineas be given from the funds of the Chapter for the purpose of presenting a P.Z. jewel to the retiring M.E.Z., this to form a nucleus for presenting him with a testimonial for the able and efficient manner in which he had conducted the duties of the chair. This was carried unanimously. The Chapter was then closed until November, and the company, thirty-two in number, sat down to a sumptuous and récherché banquet, provided by Comp. Swayne, and superintended by Comp. M. Silver. The M.E.Z. proposed loyalty to the throne and devotion to the best interests of R.A. Masonry. Comp. L. Lazarus rose: It was his privilege for the last time to propose the health of their present M.E.Z. They had seen how ably Comp. Henochsberg had performed his duties; he had given satisfaction to every one in the Chapter. The M.E.Z. thanked Comp. Lazarus for the encomiums he had passed on him; he felt he hardly deserved them; when he was elected he feared he could not do the work; he had had such good examples before him, still he trusted he had done his duties; the manner in which the testimonial had been so unanimously voted to him showed the Companions appreciated his efforts; his services were always at their command. The M.E.Z. proposed the health of the Exaltees, whom he had the pleasure of exalting into R.A. Masonry. Comp. Rev. M. Haines, in an eloquent speech, responded; he was followed by Comps. Litchenfeld, Kool, and Myers. The M.E.Z. next proposed the toast of the Z. elect. This will be the fourth time Comp. Littaur will have occupied the chair; no better worker was known in the Order. This compliment was eloquently acknowledged by Comp. Littaur. Several other toasts followed, and suitable responses were made. The Janitor in due course brought the proceedings to a close.

Prince's.—The general verdict of approval accorded to Mrs. Langtry's Lady Ormond seems the more justified by subsequent representations of "Nos Intimes." Genuine success in the part has inspired her with the quiet self-possession which previously had been marred by a mechanical jerkiness fatal on the stage. Though Mrs. Langtry has not yet acquired command of the lighter and more tender tones of emotion in all the passages where outraged dignity, anger or indignation should be expressed, she rises fully to the author's intention. We have rarely seen the famous "barring out" in the third act achieved with more genuine passion. The husband at the locked door, the lover on the balcony, and the distracted wife speechless on the awful reaction of her escape from the peril over; while terror of the precipice on which she stands, is assuredly one of the most poignant scenes the modern drama offers. M. Coghlan plays with force and ease, but his Lothario is as dull as if he were a mere husband, and he scarcely offers the contrast requisite to good prosaic Sir George. Mrs. Langtry is shortly to appear, under very courageous conditions, in a new play, "The Young Tramp." We trust she may maintain the higher position won for her by Lady Ormond. In our earlier notice we had to regret the exaggeration of Sir Woodbine's peculiarities under Mr. Beerbohm Tree's treatment. This, however, has been greatly reformed, and the portrait is now wonderfully crisp and carefully made out to the mere crooking of a finger. Mr. Ecrill is as pleasant as ever as the benevolent medical fairy, who saves those infatuated people in spite of themselves. In short, the cast generally works with more smoothness than hitherto.

Royalty.—If a cleverly written book, wedded to charmingly bright music, are passports to public favour, "Dr. D.," should have a long and successful career. The principal characters represented are Dr. D., proprietor of a hydropathic establishment at Bollenstein, very humourously played by Mr. Henry Ashley; while as his three daughters, Miss Amy Florence, Miss Ethel Pierson, and Miss Cissy Judge showed a thorough appreciation of the various situations. Miss Amy Florence in the "Spring Legend," displayed a voice of much flexibility, and was compelled to respond to a loudly called for encore; while Miss Ethel Pierson's dramatic rendering of "Tell him, breezes of morning," showed a voice of considerable compass and power, which should be heard more of. Miss Emily Cross as Miss Seraphine Loveridge, an English lady of undecided age, gave much zest to the opera by her intelligent rendering of one of its most important characters. Mr. Lanmare, as Sir Lancelot, displayed a tenor voice of good compass and pleasant quality, and will no doubt make his mark amongst operatic vocalists, but should guard against a tendency to force his voice. Of the orchestra and chorus it is impossible to speak too highly, the whole working zealously together under the able direction of Mr. Andrew Levey, to whom a great deal of the credit belongs for the undoubtedly successful performance.

Highbury Athenæum.—Miss Adelaide Arnold gave her annual harp concert on Tuesday, the 9th inst., before a crowded and fashionable audience; she was assisted by Miss Clara Samuell, Miss Margaret Hoare, Miss Frances Harrison, Mr. John Probert and Mr. Forington (vocalists), Mr John Thomas (harpist), and Mr. Fountain Sheen (pianoforte). Several selections were played by a band of ten harps, under the direction of Miss Arnold, a noteworthy number being Gounod's "Marché Solenelle." Miss Clara Samuell was in splendid voice and gave a beautiful and sympathetic rendering of Handel's ever welcome, "Angels, ever bright and fair." Miss Margaret Hoare rendered Meyerbeer's "Roberto, Oh! tu che adore" in a most finished and artistic manner. A new song, "Tell her," was introduced by Mr. John Probert and was favourably received. Miss Arnold, in her solo, "Mosé in Egitto" gave evidence of a thorough mastery over her instrument, and there is no doubt she deserves, and will attain, high rank among contemporary harpists. She is to be congratulated on a most enjoyable, and in every way successful concert.

Albert Palace.—This new palace of art and amusement, situate close to Battersea Park, was formally opened on Saturday last by the Lord Mayor (Bro. R. N. Fowler, M.P.), in the presence of the Lady Mayoress (Miss Fowler), the Sheriffs of London and Middlesex, and a numerous assembly. Sir Robert Carden, M.P., is the chairman of the company, which has transferred the building that served for the purposes of the National Exhibition in Dublin in 1872 to its present site. A fine organ, said to be the largest and most perfect in the world, has been erected; there are a picture gallery and workshops where handicrafts are carried on. Musical and other entertainments will be given, and once a year there will be a distribution of works of art. A grand concert was given at the opening, and Bro. Pain, despite the rain, succeeded in pleasing the visitors with a fine display of fireworks. Battersea Park is a great attraction of itself, but now that this Exhibition has been built, the number of visitors ought to increase tenfold. The palace is meant for the people, and we hope they will appreciate the boon that has been provided for them.

CONSECRATION OF THE BRAMSTON BEACH LODGE, No. 2101.

THIS Lodge was consecrated on Friday, the 5th instant, at the Public Hall, Bridge-street, Godalming. Bro. the Rev. C. W. Arnold, M.A., P.G.C., Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Surrey (in the absence through indisposition of Gen. J. Studholme Brownrigg, C.B., the Provincial Grand Master) acted as consecrating Officer, assisted by the Rev. G. P. Merrick the Provincial Grand Chaplain, and Bro. Pulley Prov. G. Director of Ceremonies. Bro. Chas. Greenwood was unable to attend, and in his absence Bro. John G. Horsey P.P.G.D.C. acted as Provincial Grand Secretary. The ceremony commenced at 2·30, and was followed by that of the installation of W.M. designate, Bro. J. Payne P.P.G.P., the first S.W. being Bro Jas. Gould and the first J.W. Bro. T. Dodd. Among the brethren were the R.W. Bro. W. W. Bramston Beach, M.P., Prov. G.M. Hants and Isle of Wight, Bro. J. LeFeuvre D.P.G.M. of the same Province, and Bro. Frederick Binckes P.G. Stwd. A banquet was afterwards held at the Angel Hotel.

YORK COLLEGE.

THE quarterly meeting of this body was held on the 30th ult., at the Masonic Hall of the Harrogate and Claro Lodge, No. 1001, Victoria-avenue, Harrogate, which had been fraternally lent for the purpose. At four o'clock p.m. the M.C. was formed as follows: Fras. J. W. Meek V. Suffragan, Tudor Trevor III. Celebrant, C. L. Mason V. as Deputy, Dr. B. L. Mills I. Sec., C. Fendelow IV. P.A., Col. J. Monks II. S.A., W. F. Tomlinson I. as T.A., J. J. Wilkes II. Q.A., J. L. Atherton II. C. of N., Major McGachen I. T.B., J. W. Monckman I. Herald, R. W. Moore IV., G. Locking, Rev. W. C. Lukis VII., J. R. Dore I., and C. Palliser I. Amongst the apologies read for unavoidable absence were letters from Fras. T. B. Whytehead Ch. Ad., W. H. Cowper Prov. Sec., W. B. Williamson, W. Brown, W. Fraser, W. Logan, W. Marshall, G. Althorpe, E. H. Drury, and others. Successful ballots then took place for four brethren, who were all accepted, as aspirants, and two of them being present, were duly received into the M.C. Some formal business was then discharged, and the Celebrant proceeded to read a paper he had given notice of, whose title was "Jachin and Boaz." In the course of it he went in detail into the history and construction of those two remarkable features of the Temple at Jerusalem, their moral signification, &c. Some conversational discussion took place, and a hearty vote of thanks was passed to the Celebrant for his able essay, which it was decided should not be published, but placed in the College archives. Two brethren were proposed as candidates, and it was resolved to hold the next meeting on Wednesday, the 19th August, at Pontefract. A vote of thanks was passed to the Harrogate brethren for the use of their Hall, and the members then adjourned to the White Hart Hotel to tea, where they were joined by the Chief Adept, who had been unexpectedly detained by business in York.

We regret to hear that Bro. Horace Jones, City Architect, Grand Superintendent of Works, has latterly been in somewhat indifferent health, though this has not prevented him from attending to his official duties.

HOW SHALL WE ATTAIN UNIFORMITY IN THE WORK.

ACCURACY, uniformity and impressiveness in the rendition of the "work" throughout the Lodges are all-desirable in every Masonic jurisdiction; always sought after, but very rarely if ever attained. This is not surprising. To successfully accomplish all of these would be to work almost a miracle. But a degree of perfection may be attained in each of these respects; and how best to do this is to day exercising the minds of the most thoughtful and active members of the Craft. Among the agencies employed are, Grand Lecturers, Grand Instructors, District Deputy Grand Masters, documentary instruction in exoteric matters by Grand Secretaries, and Grand Visitations by Grand Masters. Each and all of these are more or less valuable, but still the desired work is not anywhere accomplished. We propose to examine somewhat into this subject, and endeavour so to elucidate it that advantage may result to the Fraternity.

We take the easiest and simplest matter first, and yet the one which is practically most neglected. The procedure and minutes of all of the Lodges in a jurisdiction should be uniform. To ensure this, each Lodge should be furnished with a blank "Form of Minutes," and a copy of the Constitutions of the Craft—in Pennsylvania styled the "Ahiman Rezon." Every Lodge in this jurisdiction has been supplied with these, and yet if the book of minutes of a Lodge in A— should be compared with another in B—, only a hundred miles distant, the two might be found to be as dissimilar as two books can well be, written in the same language. This is the fault, primarily, of the Secretaries, and secondarily of the Worshipful Masters presiding over them. Neither will take the pains to follow a plain precedent. This is inexcusable. It does not require any extraordinary exercise of brains to avoid this error, but only such ordinary care as any intelligent, or even semi-intelligent, man should exhibit. All lapses in this matter must be attributed only to sheer carelessness, and the only way to remedy them is by persistently and repeatedly calling the attention of Secretaries and Masters of Lodges to the importance of uniformity of Lodge procedure, under the plain directions of the "Ahiman Rezon," and uniformity in the recording of Lodge minutes, following strictly the official form furnished for their guidance.

If we cannot easily attain uniformity in the written forms of Masonry, how much more difficult must it be to accomplish correctness in the unwritten work of the Craft. Here there cannot be any but oral instruction—how shall this best be given? This is the conundrum that puzzles Grand Masters and Grand Lodges. The trouble is, that instruction goes in at one ear and out at the other It has sometimes seemed to us unfortunate that man has two ears. Men presume upon their wealth of ears. Not everything that flaps is an ear—not everything that stares is an eye. "O foolish people, and without understanding; which have eyes and see not; which have ears and hear not." We sometimes think that committees of inquiry do not inquire sufficiently about the seeing and hearing of candidates for Masonry, for surely if these senses were both as acute as they ought to be we should have fewer (practically) deaf and dumb Masons.

Of course it is impossible for a Grand Master to personally visit a tithe of the Lodges in his jurisdiction—hence he must largely do this work by Deputy—by District Deputy Grand Masters, or other authorized instructors. The plan is an excellent one, but it does not work, because so often the Deputy is either careless or uninstructed. To be able to teach he must first learn. Learn what? To do the work, all the work—and to do it accurately, as officially authorized by the Grand Lodge and Grand Master, and efficiently, so that it is not words, mere words. Words must be made things in Masonry; they must be permeated with ideas, and expressed impressively and forcibly. How many Masons are marred in the making! If the W.M., or S.W., or J.W.—whoever it is that occupies the Master's station—were presenting a material stone for a material edifice, such a stone as is symbolized by the half-made piece of work that sometimes is sent out of a Lodge Room, only fit to be cast out among the rubbish, he would get his discharge forthwith. Not a few Masonic officers merit such a discharge. Those who will occupy official station, and won't learn to properly perform the necessary duties thereof, should be placed where they belong, on the floor.

The duty of every Grand Master is (1) to learn all the work; (2) to visit every Lodge in his district, several times a year if possible, and once if possible or not; have the officers perform the work before him, correct their errors, then perform it correctly himself; and call the Officers together subsequently in the Lodge Room for personal instruction. Any Brother who is not willing to do this should not be willing to assume to be a District Deputy.

A Grand Visitation by a Grand Master, accompanied by his Grand Officers, is an important means towards the end of accuracy, uniformity and impressiveness of Lodge work, but it cannot supply the place of the labours of a District Deputy. At most it can only supplement those labours. If there has been gross carelessness and neglect, all that the Grand Master can do is to expose to the Brethren their ignorance, which is pleasant to neither party. If there be a fair amount of accuracy in the work, a Grand Visitation is most salutary. It inspires the Brethren, excites their enthusiasm, wakes up the forgetful, brings out the indifferent, enhances the interest taken by all in Masonic matters, strengthens the "Mystic Tie" which unites Freemasons in a common brotherhood, diffuses light in the Craft, and promotes those strong social feelings which should be inseparable from Freemasonry. That Grand Master is to be envied who has a conscientious, industrious, intelligent and efficient staff of Grand Officers and District Deputy Grand Masters. Brethren, of whatever station, let us all do our duty, wherever we stand, and then it will be well with Masonry as a whole in the jurisdiction, well with the subordinate Lodges, and well with ourselves as individual Masons. Then the work will be "improved" not by adding to it, or taking from it, but by giving it just as it authoritatively is, correct in form, and as a result unvarying in the several Lodges, and impressive in manner, thereby forcibly teaching all that the words express.—Keystone.

THE LATE DR. HOPKINS.

THE funeral of this worthy brother took place at Locksbrook, on Friday, the 5th instant, the service being conducted by the Rev. Prebendary Anderson. The body was interred in the same grave as his wife. Wreaths were sent by the following Lodges of Freemasons, as well as a vast number of individual Masons and friends of the deceased:—Royal Cumberland Lodge, Royal Cumberland Chapter, the Cumberland Mark Lodge (T.I.), and the Royal Albert Edward Lodge (906). Among the friends present were a large number of Masons from the Royal Cumberland Lodge (41), of which deceased was a Past Master.

Dr. Henry Hopkins, Ph.D. and M.A., of the University, Giessen, was a Fellow of the Royal College of Preceptors, one of its Founders, and was for nine years a member of the Council. He was formerly principal of the Hazelwood School, and afterwards of Summer Hill School, Birmingham, from Midsummer 1833, till Christmas 1857. Then owing to bad health he retired and settled in Jersey. In 1866 the late Dr. Hopkins removed to Guernsey, in 1867 to Totnes, and to Bath in August, 1874. He was born at Kidderminster on the 27th June, married on the 12th July 1833, his wife dying 23rd April 1880. The late Dr. Hopkins was a prominent Freemason, being P.P.G.S.W. Warwickshire, P.M. 41 and 43, Founder and P.M. 958, hon. member 43, 301, 377, 379, 590, 958, 1443; P.Z. of R.A. Chapters 328, 587, 710; member of 41; hon. member 328, 377, 379, 590; Past Grand Junior Warden of Grand Mark Lodge of England; P.M. 26; Founder, P.M. and hon. member 74; Chaplain of the Royal Cumberland Lodge (T.I.); hon. member of the Union of German Freemasons, Leipzig; Life Governor of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, and the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons. Dr. Hopkins has by his will, under which his sister and Mr. William Peach are executors, left considerable sums of money to the Masonic Charities.

Sir H. W. Williams-Wynn, Bart., M.P., has expressed his intention of erecting a cottage hospital at Ruabon as a memorial to his late uncle, R.W. Bro. Sir W. Williams-Wynn, Bart., M.P., Prov. G.M. North Wales and Salop.

Bro. E. Palmer S.W. of the Pattison Lodge, No. 913, held at the high School for Boys, Plumstead, Kent, was on Thursday, the 4th inst., unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing twelve months. Brother Coupland P.M was re-elected Treasurer, and Brother W. Lander Tyler. A Committee was formed to take into consideration the advisability of building a Masonic Temple in connection with the Lodge.

Grand Officers and of Lodges had been called, the minutes of the last Provincial Grand Lodge were read; also the Reports of the Audit and Charity Committees. All of these were unanimously confirmed.

A recommendation that the sum of £10, from the funds, be voted to a distressed brother was agreed to, and then the Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master announced that after many years association with the Province Bro. H. G. Buss had intimated a wish to resign the Provincial Grand Treasurership. Sir Francis said that all the members of Provincial Grand Lodge would regret that ill-health was the cause that made it incumbent on Bro. Buss to adopt this course; they all hoped that Bro. Buss might be spared for many years to visit Provincial Grand Lodge in the capacity of a Past Provincial Grand Treasurer. He (the Provincial Grand Master) had looked round with a view of proposing a brother possessing the necessary qualifications for the post, and he had now much pleasure in proposing Bro. Archer, Past Provincial Grand Warden, as Provincial Grand Treasurer. This proposal was seconded, and carried unanimously. At the same time some discussion ensued as to the advisability in the future of making a change in the representative of this office at each recurring Festival.

The following brethren were then formally invested as the Officers for the next twelve months:—

Bro. Dr. W. A. Rogers	Prov. G. Senior Warden
William Taylor	Prov. G. Junior Warden
Rev. S. Saunders, Spencer R. Buller	Prov. G. Chaplains
F. B. Archer (elected)	Prov. G. Treasurer
John Proffitt	Prov. G. Registrar
J. F. H. Woodward	Prov. G. Secretary
W. Coombes, Chas. Graham	Prov. G. Senior Deacons
C. A. Walter, J. W. Baldwin	Prov. G. Junior Deacons
W. T. Buck	Prov. G. S. of W.
S. Larcomb	Prov. G. D. of C.
C. J. Axford	Prov. G. Deputy D. of C.
J. Lonsdale	Prov. G. Assist. D. of C.
J. C. Jessett	Prov. G. Sword Bearer.
J. Osborne, C. W. Pridmore	Prov. G. Standard Bearers
C. Stevens	Prov. G. Organist
W. H. Lee	Prov. G. Assist. Secretary
J. Featherstone	Prov. G. Pursuivant
Edwin Gilbert	Prov. G. Assist. Pursuivant
R. H. Williams, 865, J. G. Fisher, 1194, Dr. J. B. Ryley, 1423, John Ferguson, 1691, Thomas Goodchild, 1793, K. R. Montgomery, 1871	Prov. G. Stewards
John Gilbert	Prov. G. Tyler

The Prov. G.M. when investing the Officers expressed great dissatisfaction that the Prov. Senior Grand Warden had not been present last year to be invested, and was also absent that day. He sincerely thanked the Prov. Grand Secretary for the great assistance he had rendered him the last five months, which he did not hesitate to say was the most trying period he had experienced since he had been Prov. G.M.; the Province owed Bro. Woodward a debt of gratitude for having brought its affairs into perfect working order. He pointed out that eight of the Lodges had lost their appointments to Provincial office this year because the Secretaries had not sent in the returns of Officers as required by the Book of Constitutions. Some had not sent them in for five years, consequently he was quite ignorant who the Masters and Past Masters were. In future he should not appoint any brother to Provincial office unless the returns were sent in immediately the W.M. was installed, and the other requirements of the Book of Constitutions in every respect complied with. He therefore strongly recommended the Worshipful Masters, and Past Masters of Lodges to keep a sharp lookout after the Secretaries, if they wished to obtain Provincial honours.

The following grants were made from the Provincial Benevolent Fund:—To the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls £15 15s, to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys £15 15s, and to the Benevolent Institution £15 15s. Provincial Grand Lodge next voted twenty guineas towards the fund being raised to place a tombstone over the grave, in West Hampstead Cemetery, of the late P.G. Secretary, Bro. H. C. Levander. It was agreed that the sum of £100 should be transferred from the Benevolent Fund of the Province to the General Fund. It was arranged, on the motion of Bro. Japheth Tickle, that a committee be appointed to consider the best means of recognising the services of Bro. Buss, and it was also arranged that a revision of the Bye Laws governing Provincial Grand Lodge be forthwith entered upon. Shortly afterwards Provincial Grand Lodge was closed.

The banquet was supplied by Bro. Phillips, at the Chequers Hotel, and notwithstanding that nearly double the number sat down over those who had previously intimated their intention so to do, Brother Phillips's arrangements seemed to give general satisfaction. At the same time, in future we think it would be well if tables were spread in a second room for those who are behind time in applying for banquet tickets. This would remedy the overcrowding so general on these occasions.

The Provincial Grand Master after dinner proposed the health of the Queen, and of the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M., whose efforts on behalf of the Order of which he is the head Sir Francis highly commended, and referred with satisfaction to the initiation of Prince Albert Victor by the Grand Master as a proof of the interest he took in the Craft. The toast of the Grand Officers was responded to by Bro. H. G. Buss Past Assistant Grand Secretary, and Past Provincial Grand Treasurer Middlesex, who said that the toast should really have found a respondent in Bro. Thrupp, who was of higher rank in the Craft than himself. But as the Master could do no wrong, and as the Provincial Grand Master had called upon him (Bro. Buss) to reply, he felt bound to do so. Sir F. Burdett having referred to his (Bro. Buss's) services to the Province of Middlesex, he thanked him much for his kind observations. The brethren had so fully exhausted the subject of the qualifications of those who held office in the Craft that any words of commendation from him in responding for the Grand Officers would not be necessary. The Provincial Grand Master had spoken of the Earl of Carnarvon and the Earl of Lathom in terms which every member of the Craft would know they were entitled to; both were most excellent Masons and Grand Officers, and were always willing to do everything they could for the service of the noble Craft. On their behalf he therefore thanked the Provincial Grand Master and brethren, but he regretted his name had been coupled with the toast, because if Bro. Thrupp had had to respond the brethren would have been favoured with a speech worth listening to. Bro. Raymond H. Thrupp P.G.D., who was loudly called for, said the brethren had already had a very good reply from an old and experienced Mason, but as they required a few more words he would add that all the Grand Officers appreciated the encomiums passed on them at the banquets wherever they went, as well as the high estimate they experienced of the efforts they made for the Order. Bro. E. M. Lott Grand Organist also replied, in answer to repeated calls. Bro. Raymond H. Thrupp, D.P.G.M., proposed the R.W. Prov. G.M. All Provincial Masons had known Sir Francis Burdett for a good many years, but no brother however humble in the Lodge, even if he had been only a year in the Craft, could say that he did not receive a hearty greeting from the Prov. Grand Master. That was one of the distinguished characteristics of the Prov. Grand Master of Middlesex. He had always a kind word for every brother in the Province, and that was the reason there was such a large gathering at the table that evening, even though they met in such a remote part of the Province. The Prov. G.M. in reply to the toast, which was most warmly received, thanked the brethren for their hearty reception of him, and also thanked the Deputy Prov. Grand Master for his kind words. He felt he did not deserve them, though he could confirm the statement that he was always ready to receive every brother that came before him, whether he was a junior or a senior member of the Order. He was also glad on all occasions to see brethren of the higher grades and the older members of the Province. As long as he could see the brethren rally round him as they had on that occasion, he should do all he could for the Province and the brethren. He was now an old member of the Province, and he must say it had gratified him very much to see the advance it had made, in the last six or eight years especially. They were now out in a far district of the Province, and he could not be expected to see so large a number of brethren assemble at such an inconvenient place, but as they had come, and so readily too, he must thank them most sincerely. He had believed there would be a very indifferent attendance, in consequence of the difficulty of getting there, but it might yet be better when other railways came down to Uxbridge. The Prov. Grand Chapter will be held at the Mitre, Hampton Court, on the 22nd of this month, and he would be very glad to see Royal Arch Masons there. He then proposed the health of the Deputy Prov. G. Master, a genial, kind-hearted Mason, who if anything was wanted to be done was ever ready to do it, not only the ordinary working of Masonry, but in all degrees he was perfectly up in any work he might be asked to perform. He did not think there was a brother in the Province so efficient, and he (the Prov. G.M.) felt very small indeed by the side of him. Bro. Raymond H. Thrupp D.P.G.M. of Middlesex responding said, there was a very strong body of Provincial Grand Officers, and they all endeavoured to keep up the prestige of the Province. They were only too proud and pleased to work for the good of the Order. Every one of them did all he could to promote the welfare of the Craft in the Province of Middlesex, and so long as they had Sir Francis Burdett to preside over them they would continue to do everything they could to promote its interests. The Prov. Grand Master next proposed the Visitors, and apologised for cutting the toasts so short, accounting for it by the circumstance that the brethren were anxious to leave by the 8.20 p.m. train. They were much gratified to see the Visitors, and should be ready to see them again. When these banquets took place the brethren of the Province were not more gratified with them than they were to see Visitors enjoy them. He hoped on the next occasion there would be even more Visitors than there were at present. He called upon Bro. H. Massey to respond. Bro. H. Massey P.M. 619 and 1928, in reply said, that though he was there as a humble member on the roll of Visitors, he believed there was no one present more competent to acknowledge the hospitality of the Grand Lodge of Middlesex, as no Visitor had experienced more of it. On all occasions he had been received in the Province with the most unbounded hospitality, and though he was never fond of replying to toasts, he was glad on this occasion to have the opportunity afforded him of, even though inadequately, acknowledging so much past kindness. The Prov. Grand Tyler, Bro. Gilbert, then gave the Tyler's toast, and the brethren separated. An excellent programme of music was performed, under the direction of Bro. Edwin M. Lott, Past Prov. G. Organist, by Bros. Collins, Arthur Weston, Colson Philips, and Franklin Clive.

PROVINCIAL G.L. OF LINCOLNSHIRE.

THE annual Provincial Grand Lodge and commemoration of the different Lodges (now numbering 22) in the Province of Lincoln was held on Thursday, the 4th instant., at Boston, under the presidency of the Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master Bro. W. H. Smith, of Elkington Hall, near Louth. There was a large gathering of the brethren from all parts of the county, over 200 being present. Every accommodation had been provided by the two Boston Lodges, the "Harmony" and "Franklin," the former being the oldest Lodge in Lincolnshire, its charter dating back to 1719. An interesting feature of the day was a vote of thanks to Bro. Dr. Badley for his services to the Province in connection with the Central Charity Organisation, of which he was appointed the first Secretary, in 1868. The report of the Charity Committee showed that since the last annual meeting two Lincolnshire boys had been elected into the Royal Masonic Institution, and that they had now in the Central Institution and enjoying its advantages seven boys, three girls, three aged Freemasons, and two widows of Freemasons. On the proposition of Bro. H. Clark, W.M. of the Pelham Pillar Lodge, No. 792, Grimsby, it was unanimously resolved to raise a sum of 1,000 guineas for the relief of necessitous Freemasons and their widows, and that as a slight testimony to the great Masonic services rendered to the Charities and the Craft generally by the late Bro. John Sutcliffe, of Stallingborough, near Grimsby, such fund should "for all time" be known as the Sutcliffe Memorial Fund. At the conclusion of the Lodge, the brethren dined together in Shodfriars' Hall.

PREPARATORY MEETING OF THE PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF KENT.

THE annual preparatory meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Kent was held on Friday, 5th inst., at the Pavilion Hotel, Folkstone, the Most Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master Viscount Holmesdale occupying the chair. He was supported by the Deputy Provincial Grand Master Bro. Eastes and Bro. R. T. Tatham Senior Grand Warden, and by the Provincial Grand Treasurer Bro. Thorpe, and the Provincial Grand Secretary Bro. Alfred Spencer, the Grand Chaplain the Rev. V. S. Vickers; also Bros. Emerson, Warde, Green, Lovett, W. Wimble, A. Wimble, T. P. Franklyn, George Friend, S. W. Shaw, F. Hughes-Hallett, George Baker, Thornhill, C. S. A. Atkinson, and Sears, the W.M. Bro. Joseph and the following brethren of the Temple Lodge, Folkestone—J. Kennett, G. L. Hart, J. English, A. J. Crane, A. Petts, F. Klatt, G. Spurgen, H. Waite, A. H. Holbein, H. Samson, and others. The usual routine business of the Lodge was transacted, and resolutions adopted for the disposal of the funds of the Provincial Grand Lodge in support of the various Charitable Institutions in connection with the Craft. It was also decided to hold the annual Provincial meeting this year at Gravesend, on Wednesday, 1st July next. At the conclusion of the meeting the brethren adjourned to partake of a réchorché banquet, provided at the hotel by the proprietors, Messrs. Spurgen and Waite. We understand the South Eastern Railway will make special arrangements for the conveyance of the brethren to and from Gravesend at the annual meeting.

REVIEWS.

All Books intended for Review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, Belvidere Works, Hermes Hill, Pentonville, London, N.

—:o:—

"Proceedings of the Most Excellent Grand Holy Royal Arch Chapter of Pennsylvania, and Masonic Jurisdiction thereunto belonging, for the year ending 27th December 1884." Philadelphia, J. Spencer Smith, 501 Chestnut-street. 1885.

AMID the dry bones of formal reports there is not a little in these pages that is instructive and interesting. We learn that a "Dr. W." could not be recognised as a Royal Arch Mason because he had been made by a Chapter under the Grand Chapter of Scotland, and therefore did not possess the necessary qualifications. The M.E. Grand High Priest, Companion A. R. Hall, wished the Charity Committee to be better organised, but the Committee, feeling that the R.W. Grand Lodge, insubordinate Lodges, and Royal Arch Chapters under the jurisdiction of Pennsylvania were well provided with funds and that they did the charitable work so well, it was not desirable to offer any new proposition. There is thus no permanent charitable fund in connection with Grand Chapter, but there seemed to be no fear as to the means when necessities arose. The welcome fact is announced that the "Home for Free and Accepted Masons of Pennsylvania would be formally opened on the 1st January, at a house rented for the purpose 3337 North Broad-street." No doubt it is now in full operation. Companion Hall, the M.E. High Priest, in his annual address, alluded to the satisfactory financial position of Grand Chapter and of the Mark Lodges under the same jurisdiction. He lamented, however, the decay in usefulness that had set in among the latter. He said that when the Grand Chapter established them they permitted the Mark Degree to be conferred upon Masons who had not passed the chair in a Lodge of Craft Masons. That privilege had since been rescinded, with the result that the Mark Lodges had declined, and they were now living upon their means. Companion Hall approved of the principle of life membership in Chapters. It keeps good brethren in the Fraternity, but he objected to the amount as being too low. The money too, he said, was spent instead of being invested. He recommended that Grand Chapter should fix the sum for life membership and annual dues, and make them uniform, as they did in the case of admissions. The whole tone of the report is excellent; business-like, bold, and manly. Companion Hall knows how to hold office with dignity and effect; for instance, the M.E. Grand High Priest has power to confer the Capitular degree without report from an investigating Committee and a ballot, but he held that it was only right to act upon that power in extreme cases, and not then until the unanimous consent of the brethren present had been obtained by ballot. Companion Hall having retired from office, Companion Geo. W. Kendrick jun. was appointed M.E. Grand High Priest, and in his address he exhorted his hearers to take a deep interest in the Chapters, and to be regular in their attendance. An Appendix contains reports from other Grand Chapters, and from the address of the M.E. Grand Z. of the Grand Chapter of Canada, Companion Henry Macpherson, we learn that at the establishment of the Grand Chapter in 1857 there were only three Chapters held under the English jurisdiction. In nine years the number had increased to 24, in eighteen years to 67, and in twenty-seven years to 80, notwithstanding that during the latter nine years "a daughter had been born," under the title of the Grand Chapter of Quebec. The thirtieth Annual Convocation of the Grand Chapter of California was held on the 18th April 1884, when the Grand High Priest, Companion Leonidas Pratt, delivered an address, admirable in tone, though somewhat inflated in style. We quote two extracts, with which we shall take our leave of this excellent record. He said:—

"It can scarcely be denied that the world, that humanity is growing colder and more selfishly practical. The nobler impulses, the holier aspirations, and the loftier purposes of life are smothered and lost sight of in the wild and reckless wrestle for fortune, fame, or position. Let us, measurably at least, set our breasts against this demoralising storm, and make Freemasonry once more practically what it has always been in theory, the grandest of all human institutions."

"Exalted sentiment, though wrapped in polished and well-rounded periods, will not clothe the naked, feed the famished, nor heal the sick and suffering. The tears of the desolate will flow in spite of gorgeous moral formulas, and neither prayer nor exhortation will turn back the piercing blast from homeless and defenceless childhood. Let us mingle something more of homely relief with our holy pretensions and saintly invocations."

"Official Directory for the Provincial Grand Lodge of Cornwall." Edited by William James Hughan, Past Senior Grand Deacon of England, Past Provincial Grand Secretary of Cornwall, &c., &c. "Royal Cornwall Gazette" Office, Truro. 1885.

ANYTHING coming from the pen of Bro. Hughan is sure to be welcomed by the Fraternity, and this little book is not unworthy of notice. It is a model of arrangement and clearness, and contains all that the brethren in the Province require to know, and something that is useful to the Craft in general. From a list of the towns where the festivals have been held we find that in 1863 there were fifteen Lodges, in 1884 there were twenty-nine. These are set out according to their towns, with days of meetings, and afterwards in full detail. The roll of Lodges gives the actual places of meeting and the dates of warrants, and "notes" are appended giving useful information to the brethren, brought up to date. An analysis of returns from 1877 to 1884 is instructive. St. Petroc Lodge did not come into existence until 1878, and the Molesworth Lodge not until 1882, but with the returns of these added the number of subscribing members has declined from 1567 in 1877 to 1473 in 1884. During the latter year there were 94 initiations, the highest in any one Lodge being nine. A table of precedency is given, as well as the order of procession as followed in the Province. The laws and regulations are printed in full, there is a statement of accounts and of the Central Masonic Charties in London, setting forth the number of recipients from Cornwall. An official directory for the Provincial Grand Chapter, with returns up to 15th April of the present year is also furnished. The Cornwall Masonic Annuity and Benevolent Fund had £3,740 16s 10d in hand at the end of last year; a list of beneficiaries is recorded, and the whole cost of management is set down at only £18 3s 6d. There is a directory of all the officials in the Province, and a list of the Officers of the United Grand Lodge of England, but this unfortunately is valueless for present reference. Lord Cremorne (not Cremone as printed) is not Grand Senior Warden, but the Marquess of Hertford. Col. Sackville West and not Bro. R. N. Fowler, M.P. (Lord Mayor) is Grand Junior Warden. This is a slight defect, but it mars an otherwise really excellent little book. Either it should be issued earlier or kept back until a later period. In the present instance Bro. Hughan would only have had to wait a little over a fortnight to be able to correct the return to which we have referred. He gives information up to the 13th of April and Grand Lodge met on the 29th. Perhaps Bro. Hughan will consider this matter before another issue of his work appears.

"Report of the Protestant Defence Association of the Church of Ireland for the years ending 5th November 1882, 1883, and 1884, with Lists of Subscriptions, Balance Sheets, &c."

"The Pope and Secret Societies."

BOTH these publications—the one a pamphlet, the other a broad sheet—are issued by the Protestant Defence Association of the Church of Ireland, from their Committee-room, Clare-street, Dublin. This Association is composed of some of the best and most loyal men in Ireland, and have for their objects "the diffusion of Protestant principles, the vindication of Protestant truth, and the promotion of Protestant unity and action." The pamphlet sets forth, in calm and temperate language, how these objects are to be accomplished, and we commend it to all those who desire the welfare of the Church in Ireland. We invite especial attention to an extract from a lecture delivered by Bro. Dr. Magee, Bishop of Peterborough, when at Bath, on the sacerdotal office. Funds are urgently needed, and it says little for the patriotism of Protestants that the association should be so poorly supported. Without for one moment wishing to trench upon political ground, we may with propriety quote the authority of Mr. Gladstone as to the necessity of unity amongst the friends of the Protestant Church of Ireland. Replying to the late Mr. Miall, in the House of Commons, Mr. Gladstone said: "I am not going to recant anything which I have said on the subject of the Irish Church disestablishment, but I am bound to say, in reference to the present condition of the Church, whether there is not more freedom for religious thought in the disestablished Church in Ireland—that she is less free than she was before. . . I must honestly confess that if, as an individual member of the Church of England, more than as a Minister, my honourable friend thinks to lure me out of the condition in which I find myself in the Established Church by pointing out the felicity or tranquillity our brethren in Ireland are at this moment enjoying, I entirely differ from him, and I would rather remain where I am." There is no reason to believe that matters have mended in Ireland since the above memorable words were spoken by Mr. Gladstone. Indeed there are grave fears that the present condition of things is getting worse, and that it will require all the energies of the Irish and English brethren combined to resist the Priest on the one hand and the Home Rulers on the other.

The broad sheet is one of the most effective placards we have seen. The principles of the Orange, Masonic, and Jesuit societies are printed side by side in three columns, in orange, blue, and red ink respectively. At each corner, underneath, are recorded, "some fruits of Romish teaching," and in the centre bottom panel are engravings of the two sides of the "medal struck by order of Pope Gregory XIII. to commemorate the massacre, on Bartholomew's Day, of 60,000 French Protestants, in 1572." Anything more repugnant than the principles of the Jesuits as are here given from their own writers it is impossible to conceive. Our own are well known, and we cordially recommend a perusal of those of the Orange Institution. Apart from their special significance, they are generally, in a high degree, moral, religious, and charitable.

The annual distribution of Prizes to the pupils of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, at Wood Green, will take place on Saturday next, the 20th inst.

At the installation meeting of the Hermes Chapter, No. 77, held at the Clarendon Hotel, Gravesend, on the 10th instant., E. Comp. W. H. Dean P.Z. P. Prov. Grand Reg. Dorset, was presented with a handsome P.Z.'s jewel, for the able and efficient manner in which he had discharged the duties of M.E.Z. during the past year.

A Convocation of the North London Chapter of Improvement was held at the Alwyne Castle Tavern, St. Paul's-road, on Thursday, the 11th inst. Comps. Knight M.E.Z., Radcliffe H., Strugnell J., Sheffield S.E., Edmonds S.N., Sheppard P.S. The respective offices were well sustained.

HOW FREEMASONS SHOULD MEET FREEMASONS.

HOW should they meet; how should they act, and how should they part? Masons should meet their Brother upon the level, if they remember their obligation. If they obey the teachings of Freemasonry they will extend the hand with their heart in it whenever and wherever they meet a brother Mason, no matter what kind of a coat he may wear, or what position in life he may hold, he is a brother.

We should ever be ready to speak a kind word and do all in our power to promote his welfare and advance his interest. We should always and be ever ready and willing to even put ourselves out to do an act of kindness, for we are bound together by the strongest ties—our sacred honour. We should never speak ill of him, or allow another to do so if it lies in our power to prevent it. We should dwell together in unity. We should bear each other's burdens. If he is sick, visit him; if he is poor, help him with our means, for we know not how soon we may be in his place. When we hear a brother speak ill of another we think he has forgotten his obligation, and the teachings of the Lodge has been like sowing seed on poor ground. And when we part with a brother let us part upon the square, by leaving an impression on his mind that we are his friend indeed; that what he tells us is lodged in a faithful breast. But we are sorry to say it, we have met those who are not what they should be to be true Masons; we have heard them speak unkind words against their brother Masons, and in our opinion there is no meaner man on God's green earth than a man taking his petty spites into the Lodge; because he does not like another for some cause, he will try to poison the minds of the brethren of the Lodge against him. He will say mean things about him in a sly mocking way. He will insinuate something, but he will not come out like a man and a true Mason and tell what his grievances are, and give the brother a chance to defend himself. Fie, for shame! Such a person is worse than the midnight assassin who steals behind his innocent victims and thrusts the stiletto in his back, for the assassin has taken no obligations nor has he had the teachings of the Craft. Brethren, let us remember that life is short, there is none of us perfect. If we were weighed in the balance we would be found wanting. Let us act like men and be Freemasons indeed. Let us act well our part, there all the honour lies. Let us forgive as we hope to be forgiven. There is a place where all are equal and we are hurrying there fast. We will meet upon the level when the gates of death are past, we shall stand before the orient; our Master will be there, to try us by his unerring square. So, brethren, let us meet upon the level and part upon the square.—Detroit Freemason.

As it is the hope of reward that sweetens labour so it is the hope of winning a prize which to a very great extent ensures the enjoyment of "Our Boys" on the occasion of their annual athletic sports in the School grounds at Wood Green. But the prizes have to be provided, and their provision costs money, which has to be raised irrespective of the general funds of the Institution. Last year a total of £32 6s was collected, but this sum left a balance "on the wrong side of the sheet," £1 12s, which at present stands as a reminder to the President of "the sweets of office." We hope a better fate is in store for this year's "audit," but in order to ensure such being the case it will be necessary for additional funds to be forthcoming, as it will never do to have to lower the number or value of the prizes, which have doubtless ere now been decided upon and won time after time in the imagination of the youthful competitors. Donations, which last year ranged from one shilling upwards, and which this year may be equally varied, will be received and fraternally acknowledged by ourselves, by Bro. F. Binckes the Secretary, or by Brother Dr. Morris, the Master of the School. We gave last year's balance-sheet in our last issue.

The following dinners have taken place at the Freemasons' Tavern during the week ending Saturday, 13th June:—

Priory Lodge of Instruction, No. 1000.—There was a large attendance of Essex brethren at the annual festival of this Lodge, held at the Middleton Hotel, Southend-on-Sea, on Friday, 5th inst. The close of the session was appropriately marked by the delivery, by Bro. James Stevens, of his highly interesting and instructive lecture on the ceremonial and ritual of the first degree, under the title of "Knobs and Excrescences." Lodge was opened promptly at 6.30 by Bro. F. Dorrell Grayson W.M. of the Mother Lodge, assisted by the following Officers:—Bros. G. R. Dawson S.W., J. F. Harrington P.M. 160 J.W., Rev. H. J. Hatch P.Prov. G. Chap. Chaplain, A. Lucking P.M. 1000 Treasurer, T. F. Barrett P.M. 1000 P. Prov. G. Reg. Secretary, C. Floyd S.D., L. Warren J.D., F. C. Woodman I.G., C. Martin Tyler. Amongst the members present were Bros. Col. the Hon. O. G. Lambert P.M. 1460, W. M. Peacey, W. Waterhouse, W. H. Lackey, H. Kerridge, W. E. Bridgland W.M. 933, A. M. Gernise, R. Dempster, G. F. Innes P.P.G.S.W., A. Cayton, &c.; and on the roll of Visitors were Bros. F. Wood P.P.G.S.W., Bradshaw Brown P.M. Grand Steward's Lodge, H. Harper P.P.G.S.B., M. V. Willson P.P.G.S.B., G. J. Glassock P.M., D. Smith, M. Pearson, G. Thomas, J. W. Lightowlers, &c. The only business before the Lodge being the lecture which Bro. Stevens had been specially invited to deliver, the W.M. at once introduced that worthy brother to the meeting, and for a space of two hours the earnest attention of the brethren was given to his most interesting address. There can be no doubt as to the usefulness of this lecture, for it was evident that the discussion and explanation of the several "points" kept all present absorbed in the subject of discourse, and but for the exigencies of time, the desire for its extension would have been complied with. As it was the brethren were reminded that provision had been made for their entertainment before separating, and the W.M. then, in a very neat and appropriate speech, moved that a hearty vote of thanks be accorded to our distinguished brother, James Stevens P.M., for his admirable lecture, which had afforded much instruction to the brethren, and that the same be recorded on the minutes. This was seconded by Bro. Lucking P.M., and carried unanimously. Bro. Stevens suitably acknowledged the vote and Lodge was closed, and adjourned until September. Refreshment followed labour, and a couple of hour's of social enjoyment, in the course of which some excellent songs were given by talented members of the Lodge, and two admirable Masonic recitations by the guest of the evening, brought to a close a session of Masonic work in connection with the Priory Lodge, of which the Mother Lodge may well be proud.

Sir Hugh Myddelton Lodge of Instruction, No. 1602.—A meeting was held on Thursday, 4th June, at the White Horse, Liverpool-road. Present—Bros. Turner W.M., Ware S.W., Hughes J.W., Brown S.D., Weeden Preceptor, Ashton I.G., Southwell Tyler. After preliminaries the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Southwell candidate, who also answered the questions leading to the second degree. The first section of the first lecture was worked by the Preceptor. The meetings of the Lodge were adjourned from Thursday evening next until the first Thursday in September.

Kingsland Lodge of Instruction, No. 1693.—A meeting was held at the Cock Tavern, Highbury, on Monday, 1st June. Present—Bros. Collingridge W.M., Parker S.W., Marks J.W., Norton S.D., Snook J.D., Brett I.G., Forge Treas., Fenner Acting Preceptor, and several other brethren. Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Edmunds acting as candidate. Lodge was called off and on, and then adjourned.

On Monday, 8th June. Bros. Parkes W.M., Marks S.W., Cooper J.W., Turner S.D., Western I.G., Trewinnard Preceptor. Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Lodge was opened in the second degree, and Bro. Collingridge being a candidate for raising, answered the questions and was entrusted. Lodge was opened in the third, and the ceremony of raising was rehearsed, Bro. Collingridge acting as candidate. Lodge was closed in the three degrees. Bro. Marks was elected W.M. for Monday, 15th June. Lodge was then closed in due form and adjourned. Bro. Western W.M. 1693 will rehearse the ceremony of installation on Monday, 22nd June.

DEMOLISHING THE BIBLE.

THE Bible is a book which has been refuted, demolished, overthrown, and exploded more times than any other book you ever heard of. Every little while somebody starts up and upsets this book; and it is like upsetting a solid cube of granite. It is just as big one way as the other, and when you have upset it, it is right side up still. Every little while somebody blows up the Bible; but when it comes down, it always lights on its feet, and runs faster than ever through the world. They overthrew the Bible a century ago, in Voltaire's time—entirely demolished the whole thing. "In less than a hundred years," said Voltaire, "Christianity will have been swept from existence, and will have passed into history." Infidelity ran riot through France, red-handed and impious. A century has passed away. Voltaire has "passed into history," and not very respectable history either; but his old printing-press, it is said, has been used to print the Word of God; and the very house where he lived is packed with Bibles—a depôt for the Geneva Bible Society. Thomas Paine demolished the Bible, and finished it off finally; but, after he had crawled despairingly into a drunkard's grave, in 1809, the book took such a leap that since that time more than twenty times as many Bibles have been made and scattered through the world as ever were made before, since the creation of man. Up to the year 1800 from four to six million copies of the Scriptures, in some 30 different languages, comprised all that had been produced since the world began. Eighty years later, in 1880, the statistics of eighty different Bible Societies, which are now in existence, with their unnumbered agencies and auxiliaries, report more than 165,000,000 Bibles, Testaments, and portions of Scripture, with 206 new translations, distributed by Bible Societies alone since 1804; to say nothing of the unknown millions of Bibles and Testaments which have been issued and circulated by private publishers throughout the world. For a book that has been exploded so many times, it still shows signs of considerable life. I have heard of a man travelling around the country, exploding this book, and showing up "the mistakes of Moses," at fifty shillings a night. It is easy work to abuse Moses at fifty shillings a night, especially as Moses is dead, and cannot talk back. It would be worth something, after hearing the infidel on "the mistakes of Moses," to hear Moses on "the mistakes of the infidel." When Moses could talk back, he was rather a difficult man to deal with. Pharaoh tried it, and met with poor success. Jannes and Jambres withstood Moses, and it is said found a grave in the Red Sea. Korah, Dathan, and Abiram tried it, and went down so deep that they have not yet got back. But now Moses is dead, and it is easy to abuse him. It does not take a very brave beast to kick a dead lion.—American Paper.

The great west window of St. Paul's Church, Margate, has been filled with painted glass, from the studio of Mr. Taylor, of Berners Street, the gift of the fifteen schools attending the Church. The subjects are "St. Paul preaching at Athens," and "St. Paul and St. Barnabas at Lystra."

WAITING FOR THE VERDICT.

THE suspense of the next few days will be to English Freemasons—or those of them who take an interest in the doings of the Charities—very much like that experienced by litigants while "waiting for the verdict." The Eighty-seventh Anniversary Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys will be held on Wednesday next, and the question of the time is, "What will be the verdict?" what will be the total of subscriptions announced on that occasion? It is beyond our power to even make an estimate, or to publicly state what our estimate is, for while on the one hand we should fear to understate the amount, and cast discredit on the Board of Stewards; on the other we fear to mention too high a sum, lest we may be grievously disappointed. We have had two such grand successes this year that we hope for a continuance of good fortune, and at the same time tremble lest the successes of the other two Institutions have exhausted the stream of liberality. Certain it is that there is need for a grand total—a total even in advance of the most sanguine expectations; but need is not always followed by proportionate relief, and it frequently happens that the more urgent the requirement the less hearty the response. Let us however hope that this is not to be the case in regard to the Boys' School, but rather that a magnificent total may be forthcoming to meet the calls to be paid from it.

The Board of Stewards at the present time contains the names of about 270 brethren, officered by some of the most popular members of English Freemasonry, and if the result depends on the energy with which the claims of the Institution have been brought to the notice of Craftsmen, it should be one of the most satisfactory ever known, for as year by year comes round the experience gained by past Stewards is made of service by the Secretary of the Institution in supporting the efforts of the present ones, who, profiting by his advice, are able to fulfil their duties much easier and better than they could without it. There is yet time for any of our readers who may be disposed to increase the number of Stewards or supporters of the Institution, and if the total of their contributions be only a small one, it will none the less be welcome. In the words of Shakespeare, the latest comer may be, "though last, not least in love," and may prove his devotion to better purpose on some future occasion, but it is not necessary he should wait until then to show he has the love.

As our readers are aware, the Festival will take place at the Crystal Palace, Sydenham, under the presidency of the Most Hon. the Marquis of Hartington, M.P., Provincial Grand Master of Derbyshire, the dinner being fixed for five o'clock precisely. Accommodation has been arranged for close on 700 guests, and as the attractions of the Palace—the day of the Festival being one of the Handel Festival days—will be added to the attractions of the Festival itself, we should not be surprised if the accommodation is tested to its fullest extent. The price of the banquet tickets is—for Ladies, 16s; and for Gentlemen, 22s; in each case admission to the Palace being included. We hope it will be our duty next week to record as a most gratifying result the day's meeting.

THE EDUCATIONAL BRANCH OF THE MARK BENEVOLENT FUND.

"BY the solemn Act of Union between the two Grand Lodges of Free-masons of England in December 1813, it was 'declared and pronounced that pure Antient Masonry consists of three degrees and no more, viz., those of the Entered Apprentice, the Fellow Craft, and the Master Mason, including the Supreme Order of the Holy Royal Arch.'" Such are the words with which the Regulations for the Government of the Craft commence, and such is the constitution of Freemasonry at the present time. While, however, "pure Antient Masonry" does not extend beyond the three degrees specially mentioned, there are other Degrees or Orders which are fully recognised as being purely Masonic, if not a part of pure Masonry, and among these none is more popular than the Mark Degree. Within the past few weeks we have had occasion to devote much of our space to reports of the proceedings of Mark Masons, and whether it has been in connection with the Grand Lodge of England and Wales, and the Colonies and Dependencies of the British Crown the Provincial Grand Lodge of Middlesex and Surrey, or one or other of the subordinate Lodges, our duty has been to record successes in the past, and brilliant prospects for the future. The Report of the General Board, submitted at the last meeting of the Mark Grand Lodge, states that the number of certificates issued in the half-year ending 31st March last was 809—the largest number as yet granted in a similar period—while the total of registered advancements to the same date was 20,196. With such an organisation as this represents, and bearing in mind that the Mark degree, like the three Craft degrees which must precede it, recognises Charity as one of its grandest principles, it is not to be wondered at that special means are provided for the relief of the aged and distressed within its ranks. The foundation of the Educational Branch of the Mark Benevolent Fund and its progress during the past few years are among the most pleasing episodes in the history of the degree, and if the usefulness of this offshoot is continued in the future to the same extent as it has been in the past, it will always shine as a brilliant jewel in the Order of Mark Masonry, while it will afford such assistance to the distressed within its range as will ensure for it a lasting sense of gratitude.

As is the case with the three Institutions usually associated with English Freemasonry in its broadest sense, a Festival is held each year in aid of this branch of the Mark Benevolent Fund. This year's anniversary, the seventeenth, is fixed for Wednesday, the 22nd July next, and will be held at the Crystal Palace, Sydenham, under the presidency of R.W. Bro. the Lord Egerton of Tatton, Deputy Grand Master, Prov. Grand Mark Master Mason of Cheshire. The prospects for the Festival are most gratifying, and we have little doubt but that the total realised from it will be almost, if not quite, double what has ever been reached before. Already the Board of Stewards nearly approaches twice the number of last year, which year was considerably in excess of its predecessors, while strenuous efforts are being made to enrol the names of other Mark Masons willing to take a hand in the work. Last year the Board of Stewards comprised the names of forty-seven brethren, in addition to the Chairman; this year's Board, so far, consists of eighty-eight, so that another half-dozen will be sufficient to score the "double," but then the total will be so close on a three figure list that nothing short of a round hundred will be considered satisfactory. It is ever thus in the cause of Masonic charity; first a list of Stewards is sought for in advance of previous years, and when that is realised, with a good surplus over, nothing short of twice the highest number of the past will do, and when even that appears likely to be accomplished, we want more—and hope to get it, as the cause is a good one and the need great. We have already said the present will be the seventeenth anniversary Festival of the Fund, and a glance at the result of the sixteen which have preceded it will not only be interesting, but will also show what steady, and at the same time rapid, progress has marked the Fund in the past. The first Festival was held in 1869, at the Mitre Hotel, Hampton Court, under the presidency of Bro. the Rev. G. R. Portal, at that time M.W. Grand Mark Master Mason. The Board of Stewards, if small, was an influential one, as any of our readers who remember Mark Masonry in those days can testify, but as some from whom support is now asked may not be able to look so far back, we may say that the Chairman of the first Festival was supported by five Stewards, viz., Bros. Fred. Binckes, Thos. Meggy, T. J. Sabine, Thos. Wescombe, and S. Rosenthal, who, together with the Chairman, collected a total of £97 2s 8d. The sixteen years which have passed since then have seen great changes, none greater than those worked by death, which has lain its hand on no less than four out of this original Board of Stewards. While regretting their loss, we can, however, rejoice that we have still among us such energetic Mark brethren as the chairman of that day (Bro. G. R. Portal) and the much respected Grand Secretary of the Degree (Bro. F. Binckes).

We now append a summary of the sixteen Festivals of the past, as fuller details would occupy too much space, and would perhaps be of little interest to the general body of our readers; moreover, any who desire further particulars will be at once supplied on application at the offices of Mark Grand Lodge.

With such results as have attended the sixteen Festivals above referred to, to guide us, we may confidently expect to hear a sum of £1600 at least announced at the Festival in July next, but as we have already said it is hoped the Board of Stewards may ultimately reach the number of one hundred, and it is also hoped they will make even greater efforts than have their predecessors, so that there is a chance of a much larger total being subscribed than we have referred to. We can only say that no member of the Order will be more delighted than we shall be to find that our estimate is below the actual result. Having thus referred to the amounts which have been raised, we will now devote some attention to a sketch of what has been and is still being done with the monies subscribed.

The object of the Educational Branch of the Mark Benevolent Fund is to assist in the education (under the charge of their parents or guardians) of the children of Mark Master Masons, who on application to the Board shall be considered eligible for the Fund. Under these conditions there are at present twelve boys and five girls receiving the advantages of the Fund, one of the conditions of which is (Bye-law XVIII.) that "a Quarterly Report of the progress, conduct and health of every child assisted shall be required from the head of the educational establishment where the child is placed." From last accounts all the pupils are making highly satisfactory progress.

The children are entitled to receive the benefits of the Fund until they reach the age of sixteen, and looking at the list of pupils we find that the vacancies arising among the existing pupils from retirement on completion of age limit will be very small for some time to come; indeed, the stoppage of claims from this cause will only be two in number till the end of next year inclusive, viz., one boy will be sixteen on the 22nd November of the present year, and another on the 16th January 1886. It will thus be seen that if more than two of the applicants whom it may be expected will present themselves during the next eighteen months are to be relieved, it can only be done by undertaking increased liability, and while the success likely to attend this year's Festival may in a measure warrant this, it will be necessary for the Order to show it fully appreciates the responsibility before undertaking to do more than it is now doing. There is no doubt but that this Mark Educational Fund will ere long, even if it has not already done so, take its place among the most useful associations of Freemasonry, and that its future will be a credit not only to the degree with which it is more particularly associated, but also to the English Brotherhood in general. Under such circumstances we feel we are not asking too much if we urge its claims on the attention of Mark Masons throughout the country, and the Colonies and Dependencies ruled over by our Mark Grand Lodge, while we may even ask brethren who have not yet been advanced, should they be in a charitable mood, to bear its claims in mind. It may fairly be said that relief rendered by the Mark Educational Fund lessens the calls on the General Masonic Educational Institutions, for be it remembered that no child can be relieved from it unless the father has been a subscribing member of a Mark Lodge, and consequently must have previously passed through the three grades of Craft Masonry.

At the last assembly of the Grand Lodge of Mark Masons Col. Shadwell H. Clerke (Grand Secretary Craft Masonry), when proposing "Success to the Mark Benevolent Fund," advocated the establishment of a Fund for the special relief of the aged and decayed members of the Mark degree and their widows. Our distinguished brother will pardon us for saying that his wish is not a new one; nay, he will be gratified to learn that it is the ardent desire of a very large number of Mark Masters, and knowing, as he does, what the brethren of England are capable of if once they set their minds on the completion of a good work, he doubtless expects, with us, that the suggestion will soon assume a more tangible form. That such a fund is needed, and that it is possible, are two facts fully recognised among Mark Masons; it only requires such a public reference to the subject as it received at the hands of the Grand Secretary of English Craft Masonry to rouse these thinkers into activity. Let us hope that the success of the coming Festival may be such as to act as a still stronger incentive to the brethren, and that before another year is passed we may have to plead on behalf of a more extended field of operations, or, should it be thought desirable, for an Aged as well as an Educational Branch of the Mark Benevolent Fund.

* In 1872 Col. Francis Burdett acted as Chairman in the absence (through indisposition) of the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Bective, M.P., Prov. G.M.M.M. Cumberland and Westmoreland.

LET THE CRAFT WAKE UP.

THE matter of "high degrees," as all degrees beside the three degrees of the symbolic Lodge are usually called by those in possession of them, appears at this time as likely to become the most important subject with which the Masonic bodies of the United States will have to deal. So far as this matter may concern the preservation of the simple and sublime system known as Ancient Craft Masonry—the maintaining in full force and effect of that vital principle of the Craft to which every Master and Grand Master must publicly announce his assent, and which he stands bound from the moment he assumes the gavel to support and defend to the end of his official career, "that it is not in the power of any man or body of men to make any change in the body of Masonry;" no question of greater moment can come before the minds of the Craftsmen of this country.

As a question of mere duty on the part of Officers, and Lodges, and Masons, from the Grand Master to the youngest Entered Apprentice, there is nothing more important or obligatory than to maintain this principle at every hazard. This duty devolves with as much weight upon those who are in possession of the greatest number of degrees, as upon those who have remained content with the three degrees of the Masonic Lodge, and more than this, if any danger to the "body of Masonry" should be likely to arise from the effect of multiplying degrees and organizations outside the regular Lodge, it becomes those who enjoy whatever benefit may flow from such supernumerary establishment to be the first to come to the assistance of the Craft, as their own position is claimed to give them greater influence and opportunity for good.

As a question of maintaining Masonry in a state most effective for all the good and great purposes of its institution, the questions which it seems may likely arise are absolutely vital. They involve the complete dissipation of the system of Masonry—the assertion that there is no such thing as the Masonry which our predecessors understood and believed they were maintaining and transmitting to us—the assumption that there is no difference between the Masonic Lodge and the many modern social and benevolent associations, which have imitated our external forms, and terms, on account of their excellent adaptability to such purposes as they have in view.

I say that it seems likely that such questions as involve the above mentioned matters may arise, if they have not already arisen, from official action alleged to have taken place in one of our Grand Lodges. I do not charge that such action has taken place, as I find asserted in the reports of committees of correspondence lately published, for I am unwilling to believe that any Grand Lodge in the United States can be so reckless of its trust, or otherwise so ignorant of the purpose for which it was created, as to do what is alleged against the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts. If what is published be a correct view of what that Grand Lodge has committed itself to there will be time enough after being certain on that point for any Mason to express his opinion of the transaction, and if it should turn out, as I hope, that a misunderstanding exists, there will be no harm in silence.*

But, aside from that particular matter, it is easy to see that there is a tendency toward a state of things which, unless all good Masons exert themselves prudently and fraternally to counteract, augurs of trouble to come.

This tendency has been long noticeable. It is not from any wicked or corrupt design on the part of any, except as may happen in all good institutions in a few individual cases of no great consequence, nor does it arise from the acts of a few, but it is the general drift of habits of thought and action, as well in the Masonic Lodge as among those who cultivate the degrees belonging to the various organisations which have sprung up among Masons.

The lack of attention to the principles of Masonic law—to the import and effect of Masonic principles in general—the want of knowledge of what the system of Masonry is, either as to its organisation, or its symbolic order and mode of representation, and want of a reasonable regard for the preservation of the peculiar characteristics of the whole Masonic system, are the most notable of the causes which now tend to loosen and dissolve the integrity of the Masonic body. They all grow out of negligence, and that negligence is partly the result of so many Masons bestowing all their attention on the outside degrees.

In consequence of such things, a great mass of the Fraternity never think of Masonry as consisting of three degrees, but regard it as embodied in a great number of degrees, of which the "first three" are committed to the Lodge, the next four to the Chapter, and so on; and as the highest degree in the Lodge is supreme, they suppose that every degree which follows is higher in dignity and authority than those which precede. And these notions are all the time gaining ground, both in the Lodges and in all the other bodies, and one consequence is, that all those who intend to "go through" are disinclined to pay much attention to the study of Masonry in the Lodge. They regard that as a very good commencement; quite a good thing to be so low down in the scale. They say if these degrees are "so nice to have" it must be grand when one gets away up in the thirties and fifties; and, in truth, from this point of view they are right, for as they have never learned to esteem Masonry for its realities, but look much to theatricals and display, the "higher up" the degrees the more likely they are to be gratified, as they hasten on from one department to another of the Masonic universal exposition. Consequently, they inquire how long they will have to wait in the Lodge before they can "get in" to the Chapter. A large number would make for the Commandery forthwith, if the Chapter did not stand in the way. Before they have learned more than the alphabet of the Entered Apprentice degree, they are seated as Masters, and before they have an introduction to even the rudiments of what pertains to that degree, they are occupied as Masters of Veils or Captains of the Host, and directly one turns up as an officer in a Grand Commandery, and another as Thrice Illustrious Grand Master of a Royal and Select Council; and so on they go until they have "taken in" the thirty-two degrees of the Ancient and Accepted Rite, and are far gone in the mazes of one of the rites which can furnish ninety-six degrees or upwards already on hand, where the English language has ceased to furnish superlatives adapted to the increasing dignity of titles. This is not an exaggeration as to thousands of cases, and in thousands of others it is about the truth, so far as the money and time at command of the parties will permit. All this time the Masons who stay in the Craft Lodges are kept busy "putting through" more candidates, to follow as far as they can the same course, and hence they are prevented from improving themselves as they might, and so it goes on from year to year.

Now what is to become of Masonic law, or Masonic lore of any description, while matters are carried on in this way? Who wonders that we hear Royal Arch Masons and Templars speaking of the "inferior degrees," and "the first three degrees," or the "Blue Lodge," or "Blue Lodge Masons," and that too as though the Lodge were really an inferior body, once very useful no doubt, and quite satisfactory to those who had nothing better, but which is now "behind the times," and really a hindrance to Masonry?

One thing is certain, that the mere taking of degrees will not inform the mind of any one on the principles of Masonry or the time-honoured laws of the Craft. For if it were so, we should not witness so many lamentable instances of men who have been for years in high official positions in the Chapter, and Commandery, and Council, and other bodies, who do not even know by what right they appear in their regalia as forming part of a Masonic procession. I have heard such knights denouncing Masons of "inferior degrees," as they called the Master Masons of the Lodge, because they assumed to take control of Masonic processions at the laying of corner-stones. And these were good and respectable men; no such persons as I have seen misconducting themselves on certain occasions, while publicly wearing the regalia of degrees. But they were just such persons as might bring about what is alleged against the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts, if they should find themselves and those under their influence with a majority of votes in such a body, for as Masonry with them is turned wrong end up, and they know no better than that the "higher degrees" should rule the "inferior," as in the case of most other societies of modern origin, and have never supposed that their degrees acquired outside the Lodge were anything but superior, they might well deem it right and Masonic to use the opportunity to wage a quarrel about "high degree" jurisdiction on the floor of a Grand Lodge, and prostitute their trust and the power of the Grand Lodge to the purpose of putting down by regulation a rival clan. We must not wonder at such things being done, if they should unfortunately come to pass,—as come to pass they surely will, unless averted by timely action of all parties in all Grand Lodges in states containing a large number of considerable towns and cities where high degree bodies can find localities in which their expensive ceremonies can be carried on, and Masons be found who can afford to devote most of their time to the cultivation of endless rituals.

Two evils out of many may be noticed here, which are constantly growing and are already fraught with danger to the Craft. One is the ignorance and negligence, for they each year grow out of the other and are always together, concerning Masonic law, ethics and usages, which more and more abound in the Lodges as well as all the other organizations, in consequence of which both Lodges and Grand Lodges become more and more incapable of protecting their own rights, and the dignity and integrity of the Masonic institution, against the encroachments of innovation, and the destruction of landmarks, and particularly against the covert designs of those among them who might desire to convert the Lodges to the use of outside associations, and prostitute the powers vested in the Grand Lodges to the advancement of pernicious assumptions.

The danger from this cause is, that little by little the notion that all degrees which are called Masonic are part and parcel of Masonry, and that the higher the number of the degree the greater the authority belonging to its proprietors, will be imposed on the Craft as veritable law, and with this falsity established nothing could prevent the whole swarm of European innovations from making their nests in every department of our Institution.

Then the ancient and noble institution of Craft Masonry, which came to our hands as the most worthy and beneficent which humanity has founded, would be utterly devastated —disputes in every form would end in schisms, which would from time to time be settled by contemptible compromises, each more and more subversive of law and order, and the end would be that of the Master's Lodge degraded into a mere ante-room to receive and prepare business for the hands of higher authorities, and expedite on his way every quidnunc in search of preposterous traditions and ridiculous titles. And even this function must then be shared with like beggarly coadjutors of high degree origin, empowered by exercise of the "reserved right of making Masons, to furnish the same accommodations to those who might apply to "go through" on their line. As to men of capacity and knowledge they would no longer be where they could offer any obstruction, for all such would avoid the whole concern, and it could not be long until Masonry, as understood by the public, would take its place with astrology, fortune-telling, and the like, as a relic of barbarism.

The other evil above alluded to is the inordinate amount of mere temporary legislation, which takes up the time of all grand bodies, and makes it impossible for officers or members of Lodges to keep trace of the tangle of constitutional amendments, regulations, resolutions, edicts, and decisions, with which the Craft are deluged from year to year, the most of which, like the greater part of the work of our State Legislatures, is nothing more than a continual attempt to make up by profusion of laws for the want of observing and enforcing those we already have. The rage for excessive legislation in this country is fast subverting all regard for law whether good or bad, and the same effect is manifest everywhere in Masonry.

Almost all this, like the disputes, negligences and grievances which it is designed to remedy, has grown out of innovations, suffered to continue and grow into precedents in the estimation of the uninformed, and as this state of affairs goes on, it breeds more and more the very evils which produced it, and aggravates, instead of ameliorating the condition, and makes things possible in the action and general conduct of the Craft which would have been scouted by all, only a few years ago.

Now what is to be expected in a few years more, if we cannot effect some change in the general tendency toward innovation and consequent confusion? What remedy or preventive can be applied—by what means can the simplicity and dignity of the Craft be restored? Certainly not by contention and uproar, accusations of dishonesty and recriminations, such as are growing out of the Massachusetts embroglio, and the quarrels about jurisdiction among the assignees of certain so-called patents of authority, or patent inventions for high degrees, in which the Lodges of Masonry are in danger of being embroiled.

The greatest prudence and fraternal sentiment is demanded in dealing with such mischiefs, together with firmness in maintaining the landmarks of the Craft, in the Lodges and Grand Lodges, and also in every association in which Masons see proper to meet for special purposes, whether they be Chapters, Commanderies, Sovereign Councils, or any other.

Every Mason must understand and be prepared to maintain the established rights and dignity of the Ancient Craft in the Lodges of the Craft, and not only there but wherever he goes in other bodies which claim to be in any way allied to Masonry. His allegiance to the institution of Masonry as he found it established in the Master's Lodge, and as he can find it in its most ancient form in the direct line through which it has come down to us, is his first and paramount fealty, wherever he may choose to go, and he can never by his own act, either by himself or in concert with others, change the form or substance of his duty to be on the Lodge floor in defence and maintenance of the dignity and honour of Craft Masonry against any assumptions to the contrary, originating where they may.

A Mason never came from the Chapter, Commandery, or other body, to the Lodge. He came from the Lodge to the Chapter and the others. It was not the Lodge which made it a law that every member of a Chapter or Commandery should be a regular Master Mason. The Chapter and Commandery made this their law, and thereby fixed the status of their own members, and reaffirmed the allegiance they were under to the Lodge; and consequently the Ancient Constitutions and Charges, Grand Lodge Constitutions, regulations, rules and edicts of Ancient Craft Masonry are part of every constitution, obligation, rule or edict of those bodies, and cannot be severed from them.

Seeing that all members of every body claiming to be Masonic are thus affirmed and reaffirmed in allegiance to the Grand Lodges, let what dispute may arise, is it not reasonable to hope that every worthy Mason, a member of any of the Orders, will, as soon as he has notice, govern himself accordingly, and according to his light, and seek more light as quickly as he can? To insure this, it would be well to seek all the light obtainable in advance, that none may be taken unprepared.

A common resolution to study and maintain Masonic principles will shortly settle the greatest difficulty. Faith in those principles can remove mountains.

The Grand Lodges must do something to awaken the attention of the Lodges to the laws and obligations of the Craft, and the duties of all parties toward the supreme and established authority, in order that the Grand Lodge floors may not be filled with members who know not whence they came nor whither they are going.

Good intentions alone will not arrest the evils growing in the Lodges, there must be some proper conception of what is right to be required, and what course is to be pursued.

Let the Craft wake up, and turn their attention for a time to Masonry, and the light that will thence arise will shine for all, and while it tips the "highest hills" with silver, the golden glow of charity will fill the "lowest valleys," and the craftsmen hand in hand go forth in gladness to their labours.—Voice of Masonry.

GRAND LODGE AND THE BOYS' PREPARATORY SCHOOL.

IT was with extreme pleasure we heard of the proposition of Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, that £1000 should be voted by Grand Lodge towards defraying the cost of Fittings and Furniture for the New Buildings being erected for the Preparatory School of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and this pleasure was greatly enhanced when the proposition was unanimously carried by the brethren at the last Communication of Grand Lodge. We think the grant then made was one which is universally approved of, while it illustrates the interest taken by Grand Lodge in the work being carried on outside its actual sphere, and its readiness to help in any cause promoted for the welfare of English Craftsmen or those dependent on them. The Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys takes place next week, and no doubt this grant of £1000 has been looked at as a splendid means of swelling the total of subscriptions then to be announced, but we think it would be unwise if it were included in this year's returns, even if it would not be "counting unhatched chickens" to let it figure among the subscriptions until the vote is confirmed. We do not for one moment wish to imply there is even a possibility of its not receiving confirmation. On the contrary, we have said the vote is one universally approved, but—perhaps because we wish it held over—we are of opinion it would be best not to reckon on it until it is formally settled by Grand Lodge, and then it would make a splendid nucleus with which to start next year's return. Again, it is for another reason we advocate its being held over. It would serve as a pattern for imitation by Provincial and Private Lodges, and we feel sure it would be very generally followed, if all the special grants in aid of the Preparatory School could be announced together, but not so generally adopted, even if at all, if the £1,000 from Grand Lodge were disposed of at once. There are other matters in connection with this Preparatory School, beyond the fittings, for which special grants would be very acceptable, and we venture to suggest this means of encouraging them, ere it is too late. This, from our point of view, it will be if the £1000 voted by Grand Lodge is included in next week's returns.

We would even go so far as to suggest to the Provincial and Private Lodges that they should each take into consideration the advisability of imitating the example of Grand Lodge in giving the Preparatory School a good start. If the project were taken up with anything like spirit a handsome total might be realised, which would not only clear off all charges in connection with the actual starting of the School, but might leave a surplus for investment which should produce an amount that year, by year, would serve to illustrate the benefit of a good example.

RENUMBERING OF LODGES.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I am in entire agreement with your "Editorial" in objecting to any alteration in the numbers of Lodges, simply because of the few Lodges which have so peacefully and Masonically left us to form the Grand Lodge of South Australia, or because of any other reason that has been offered. I am old enough a Mason to remember the dire confusion caused by the last change of numbers, which was in 1863. The previous alteration was in 1832, and the first this century was in 1814. Now, the last mentioned was a necessity, and was separated from the second by a period of 18 years, the lapses even amongst old Lodges being rather many in the interim. The third alteration, however, was not until 1863 or 31 years removed from the previous renumbering. To my mind there should be no more such violent alterations this century, especially as there are but few vacancies in the "Union" Lodges, holding warrants granted in 1813 or back to the earliest on the Roll.

In 1832 the last of these Lodges was moved from 647 to 424, and in 1863 from 424 to 339, whereas in 1885 the number 339 would only be raised to 333, or six higher than now.

But the change would be still less in respect to several of the older Lodges. From 18 to 117 the whole of these 99 Lodges would only be moved one higher. From 119 to 121 inclusive, the numbers would be altered to 117-119, and from 123 to 137 simply three higher. Those ranging from 139 to 160, if altered as desired, would be each moved up four, and 162 to 181 would each be five higher! Now I submit that these differences in numbers, distinguishing the old "Union" Lodges, would be a loss in every sense but one; and that single or solitary advantage, would be as nothing compared with the numerous disadvantages.

I do not allude to much younger Lodges, because the foregoing facts should be enough to prove how needless is the change demanded.

I intend referring at greater length to this subject before long, but could not let your kind notice of my Masonic labours pass without a line in appreciation.

Yours fraternally,

W. J. HUGHAN.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I am pleased to see, from your leader on the Grand Lodge of South Australia, that we may rely on your assistance in opposing the suggested renumbering of our Lodges, a course which would result, as you say, in confusion and annoyance in many quarters. I am, perhaps, differently circumstanced to the majority of brethren, inasmuch as I have to communicate with many of our Lodges in the course of the year, but at the same time there are many others similarly circumstanced with myself, and doubtless they will agree with me that number, name, and locality each and all serve to call to mind the correct address of a Lodge without the necessity of referring to the printed list. To explain my meaning: I can sometimes remember the number of the Lodge meeting in a particular town, but for the moment cannot recollect the name; when, however, I get the number and associate it with the town, a visit in years gone by, or some other of the many "points" which serve to assist one's memory, the whole comes to mind. It frequently happens this knowledge is of service to me, and I certainly think a renumbering would be very inconvenient to me personally, if not to brethren generally.

I am, Dear Sir,

Yours fraternally,

A PROVINCIAL SCRIBE.

REPRESENTATIVE PROVINCIAL STEWARDS AT THE FESTIVALS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I am aware my present remarks may not meet with universal approval; they may even call down on my head a storm of abuse, but with your permission I will make my views public, in the hope that the question on which I address you may be ventilated, and that, in the end, good may result from my humble efforts. For some time past there has been, I think, a growing desire on the part of influential Provincial brethren to monopolise for the year the benevolence of their district for one or other of the Masonic Charities, for which they act as exclusive Steward for the time being. Their efforts are doubtless actuated by good motives, but I question whether the Institutions have reaped any benefit from this system of monopoly.

In many districts where an influential brother undertakes the responsibility of representing the whole Province it is impossible for him personally to canvass all the Lodges comprised in it; the work accordingly falls on deputies, indeed, it is not unusual for the Province Steward to enlist the help of a member of each Lodge, but I very much question if these "representatives" take as much interest in the work as they would if they were personally acting as Steward. I will relate my own experience in connection with this matter. I agreed to serve the office of Steward for one of the Charities, and later on one of the officials of my Province undertook a similar office for the same Institution. Perhaps he did not know I was already acting, and using my endeavours to get a good list together. In any case he became a poacher on my preserves; in other words, he sent circulars to my Lodge, saying he was acting as Steward for the Province, and asking for support. The officials, either frightened of offending the Provincial dignitary, or fearing lest their chance of Provincial honours would be lessened, felt they should support his Stewardship rather than that of their own member, and I know the Institution suffered in consequence, as many amounts were lost to my list on the plea that the other was the "Provincial representative," and lost to him because not properly looked after by this self-constituted monopolist. I decided to serve in the future, if ever I again undertook the duty, as an unattached Steward, and the growing number of this latter class leads me to wonder if any of them have had experiences similar to my own. In any case I fully believe that the system of "representative" Stewardships is open to question, and if once it canbe shown in its true aspect I feel a change will take place, resulting in benefit to the Charities. I hope, Sir, neither you nor any of your readers will imagine I have been actuated by feelings of jealousy in writing this letter to you. I assure you such is not the case. I have long since dismissed the circumstances, except to mention them in illustrating my views on the subject.

I am,

Yours fraternally,

J. M.

CONTEMPT FOR PROVINCIAL HONOURS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—From your report of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Middlesex, I learn that the Provincial Grand Master, when investing his Officers, expressed great dissatisfaction that one of those selected last year had not then been present to be invested, and was also absent from this year's gathering. I was present at the meeting of 1884, and can fully understand the disgust of Sir Francis Burdett that the brother complained of was still treating the appointment with contempt. Surely it would have been much better for him to have declined it rather than to offer insult to one of the most enthusiastic brethren the Craft has ever known. I feel the Provincial Grand Master of Middlesex has done a service to Freemasonry in saying he will not in future appoint any brother to Provincial office unless the requirements of the Order are complied with, as once having been publicly drawn attention to, it is to be expected the rules will be more generally respected.

As W.M. for the usual term of a private Lodge, in which one of the Officers was conspicuous by his absence, I can fully appreciate the feelings of Sir Francis Burdett, and in still further drawing attention to his remarks, I hope I may be the means of saving others from similar annoyance. Such is my excuse for troubling you with this epistle.

I remain, yours fraternally,

P.M.

LODGE NAMES.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—If it were necessary and your space admitted of a full discussion of the subject, it would not be very difficult to show that the practice of naming Lodges after well-known brethren is not a sound one. I may not be able to convince "SUBURBAN," whose letter appeared in your last issue, but I should like to offer a few thoughts for his consideration. I might begin by asking "What's in a name?" A good deal when the record of deeds is one of more than local importance. Then the name associated with such deeds becomes a perpetual example and monument, and is ever honoured by being used. A local reputation, except under very exceptional circumstances, is generally gained by the exercise of qualities which should be common to all Masons, which demands no high social position, and which finds sufficient distinction in the various offices the Craft has to bestow. A name of a Lodge should express one or more of the unities of which it is composed, should express a concrete and not a single idea. With all due respect to the brother especially referred to I venture to say he is scarcely known outside his Province, and if he is it is only among those who take especial interest in Grand Lodge, and who form a small and by no means the better part of the Craft. What has this brother done for Freemasonry that his name should be so conspicuously associated with it? Has he thrown any light upon its esoteric mysteries? Has he left the mark of genius upon its ritual? Is he distinguished for his knowledge of the jurisprudence of the Order? If he cannot claim any of these qualities, he is just in the position of crowds of others who have done much good and honourable work, whose long service is rewarded by promotion where possible, and whose name lingers in the Lodge as long as it can be serviceable. A time does come when names of infinite greater moment than that of the brother in question lose their virtue, and it is hardly to be expected that this latter should escape the general doom. With the decay of a name is often associated the decay of the cause with which the name is associated, and although Masonry is not likely to be seriously affected by any name given or withheld, yet it is possible Lodges bearing special local titles may suffer when the original ceases to exist. An honour like that referred to carries with it the seeds of its own destruction, whereas a general name lives on, and escapes the discredit that attaches to failure.

Local names given to Lodges create jealousy. They stimulate a selfish ambition. They are a temptation to the wealthy brother and a stumbling-block to many of the really worthy.

The foregoing are a few reasons against using names of persons for Lodges. There are others, one of which I commend to "SUBURBAN." True merit vaunteth not itself, nor will it suffer others to play the trumpeter.

Yours fraternally,

CANDOUR.

16th June 1885.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Your correspondent "SUBURBAN," in challenging your views on this subject, has touched on a somewhat delicate point—"the naming of Lodges after well-known brethren," and if you will allow me, I will endeavour to explain one or two matters in connection with it which appear to me to uphold your view of the case, To my mind, the principal objection which can be raised against the naming of Lodges after well-known brethren is that it seldom happens the "well-known brethren" are the only persons of the same name in the district, or even if they are at the time they may not always continue so. Then it sometimes happens that events may occur which rob the name of some of its glory—perhaps even at a distance of two or three generations—and a name once respected and revered in association with a thorough gentleman, may many years after become a reproach in view of its association with some local scamp or criminal.

The naming of Lodges after mere individual members of the Order, no matter how well known or deserving of honour they may be, seems to me to detract from the honour of Freemasonry, by making it, in a measure, subservient to its component members, while at the same time it virtually raises the brethren selected to the rank—may I say it—of a god in the Masonic circle.

You may have other objections to urge in support of your view, and other brethren may be able to argue in opposition to it, but I feel this letter, provided you give it insertion in your pages, will be some answer to your correspondent's query.

Believe me,

Yours fraternally,

ANOTHER SUBURBAN.

NORTHERN COUNTIES LODGE.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Kindly allow me, through the medium of your valued journal, to remind all North Country Masons who may be living in, or passing through London, that the meeting convened by Bro. J. S. Cumberland to further consider and finally arrange the matter, will be held on Thursday next, the 25th inst., at 3 p.m., in the Masonic Rooms, 16a Great Queen-street.

On that occasion it is to be hoped that Bro. Cumberland will be supported by a numerous assemblage of the brethren, and that opinions and advice, which I know he is anxious to obtain, will be freely tendered by those present at the meeting.

Yours faithfully,

W. H. BULLOCK,

LIBEL AND MASONIC PRIVILEGE (?).

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Before reading the letter in your last issue on this subject I was inclined to oppose your view that anything contained in a Masonic communication—even if printed—could be made the subject of an action for libel, but now I must admit I am so far shaken in my opinion as to all but agree with you, I may say to fully coincide with your views. Your correspondent "RIGHT, NOT MIGHT" has, I think, expressed the whole gist of the subject in his signature. Freemasonry may certainly give us "might" of an exceptional nature, but it does not give us "right" to injure another; indeed its teachings are in every way opposed to such a course, and it must be admitted the circulation of anything approaching a libel must be detrimental in some way or other, even though the injury may be deserved or justifiable.

Your correspondent's idea that Masonry would suffer if "Masonic" documents were privileged I now see is quite correct. It would soon become a difficult matter to draw a line between Masonic and non-Masonic papers, and while the squabble was progressing the Order would be open to every insult and abuse that could be poured on it.

I am not so well informed as to the legal standing of Freemasons even as your correspondent is, but I always thought we were fully recognised by law, and that our meetings and proceedings were perfectly legitimate. However, it is useless my discussing subjects of which I admit I have no knowledge, and which I hope it will never be my province to test. All I desire to say is, that I now approve of your view as to the non-existance of Masonic privilege in all cases where the law of the land is violated, and I beg to thank your correspondent for having brought me to my senses.

Iam, yours fraternally,

E. B.

THE BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

THE Committee of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution assembled on the 10th instant, at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, London, under the presidency of Bro. H. B. Marshall, Past Grand Treasurer. The deaths of five annuitants—two male and three female—were reported, and other matters of detail transacted. The Finance Committee for the ensuing year was constituted, as follows:—A. H. Tattershall, W. J. Murlis, T. W. C. Bush, C. F. Hogard, and J. E. Dawson, while the following were re-elected to serve as the House Committee:—Raynham W. Stewart, J. A. Farnfield, C. J. Perceval, Thomas Cubitt, and Edgar Bowyer. Bro. C. H. Webb proposed that three of the widows unsuccessful at the last election, being over eighty years of age, and having competed at two elections, should, in accordance with Law 37, be placed on the list of annuitants without further competition. The proposition was duly seconded, and discussed by the brethren present, who ultimately agreed to place one of the widows on the Fund forthwith. The Secretary announced that that meeting was the twenty-first anniversary of his election as an officer of the Institution, and gave the following statistics of the position of the Institution at that time, and at the present.

Income Male Fund - - - -	£2 999	£8,398
,, Widows' Fund - - -	1,847	11,394

,, 352 ,, ,, - - -		17,770
Number of Annuitants Male Fund - -	80	173
,, ,, Widows' Fund - -	47	202

The above will give an idea of the increase of the work in connection with the Institution, and will also show what immense strides have been made in the cause of Masonic Charity. As Bro. Terry pointed out, the only additional expense incurred in the management of the Institution now, as compared with twenty-one years ago, was that of the clerk; while in the interval the Annuities had been increased from £26 to £40 in the case of the Male Branch, and from £25 to £32 in that of the Female. That the figures were a surprise to the brethren was evidenced from the enthusiastic manner in which they proposed and carried a vote of thanks and congratulation to Bro. Terry, while their hope that his tenure of office might be prolonged for very many years will be universally endorsed throughout the Craft. The customary vote of thanks to the Chairman brought the proceedings to a close.

The Board of Benevolence held its monhtly meeting at Freemasons' Hall, London, on Wednesday, the 17th instant. Bro. James Brett Senior Vice President presided, with Bro. C. A. Cottebrune Junior Vice President in the chair of Senior, and Bro. Driver J.G.D. in that of Junior Vice President. The recommendations made at the May meeting having been confirmed, twenty-nine new cases were taken into consideration. Two of these were deferred, and the remainder relieved with a total of £703, made up of one grant of £3, one of £5, six of £10 each, nine of £20, three of £30, one of £40, five of £50, and one of £75.

MASTERING MASONRY.

A DESTITUTION of genuine Masonic knowledge is the cause of much evil in our Fraternity. Many of the initiated are too easily satisfied with their proficiency. Before they acquire any tolerable degree of skill in the ritual they become satisfied with this advancement. What is the result? An entire ignorance of everything that forms the intrinsic beauty of Masonry. Even brilliancy in the ritual is not Masonry. It is only its outposts and framework. The real excellencies and beauties of the Fraternity lie far beyond. They are ensconced in the highest principles of reason and morality. They cannot be grasped by an ordinary effort of intellect. All the powers of man's intellectual and moral nature must necessarily be brought into vigorous action in order to their full development.

Prejudice and passion must be subdued; brotherly love and charity must be cultivated, and all the social, moral and religious virtues.

In our opinion, greater efforts should be made in every Lodge to inculcate the general principles of Masonry. Instead of considering this as a secondary object, it should be made the first, but probably this may be going a little too far. It may be incorrect to say that either should be made the object of first importance. With great show of reason it may be said that both are equally important. Well, let it be so. Taking the positions, then, that both are equally important, what is the duty of every Lodge? The path is already pointed out. The wayfaring man, though he is not exactly what he ought to be, can perceive and trace it. A great part of the business of the Lodge, according to this view of the subject, should be the inculcation of the great cardinal principles of Masonry. Can anything be more apparent? What is the course pursued in mastering any of the great professions, the legal profession, for instance? Does a through and efficient knowledge of this profession consist in a knowledge of forms, and the general routine of business? Very far from it. These are necessary, and even indispensable in their places. They contribute a part of the lawyer's legal capital. But with these alone, no man can be a lawyer. Before he can establish his title to this appellation, he must investigate, deeply and profoundly, the great principle of law, taken in its most comprehensive sense. The knowledge thus acquired, accompanied by a knowledge of the forms and routine of business, make the complete lawyer. So it is with the master-workman in Masonry. He must be skilled in the ritual, and thoroughly imbued with the spirit and general principles of his profession. In this way alone can he be brought to realize its rich fruits and ample benefits.—Hebrew Leader.

The popular weekly, Choice Chips, will in future be published by Mr. Joseph Hughes, of Ludgate Hill, London. It will be edited by Mr. W. Davenport Adams, who may be trusted to make it a thoroughly readable miscellany.

The brethren of Kent will hold their annual Provincial Grand Lodge at Gravesend on Wednesday, 1st July. Provincial Grand Lodge will be held in the Town Hall, after which the brethren will attend divine service in St. George's Church, while a banquet will follow at the New Falcon Hotel. Especial interest is attached to this year's meeting, from the fact that it is the twenty-fifth during which the Right Hon. Viscount Holmesdale has fulfilled the duties of Provincial Grand Master. We anticipate a very large assembly.

The installation meeting of the Angel Lodge, No. 51, will take place on Thursday next, 25th inst., in the Assembly Room, Town Hall, Colchester, by kind permission of the Mayor (H. J. Gurdon-Rebow, Esq.) Lodge will be opened at half-past four o'clock, and after the appointment of a representative to the Essex Provincial Charity Committee the W.M. of the past year, Bro. R. Haward Ives, P.G. Stwd., will instal his successor, Bro. Joseph Grimes, the present Senior Warden. A banquet will follow at the Cups Hotel, at 6 o'clock, tickets for which (10s 6d each including wine and dessert) may be had at the Hotel. We wish our Colchester brethren a successful gathering.

By command of the Rt. Worshipful Sir Daniel Gooch, Bart., M.P., Provincial Grand Master of Berks and Bucks, the annual meeting of the brethren of the Province will be held at the Town Hall, Reading, on Monday, the 29th inst. Provincial Grand Lodge will be opened at 1·30 p.m. The business to be transacted is of the usual formal character, and after the close of Provincial Grand Lodge a banquet will be served at the Town Hall, at 2·30. Tickets for this may be obtained of the Provincial Stewards, price 6s 6d each.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF NORTHANTS AND HUNTS.

THIS annual gathering took place on Thursday, the 11th inst., at Northampton, under the Banner of the Eleanor Cross Lodge, No. 1764, when his Grace the Duke of Manchester R.W.P.G.M. presided, assisted by Bro. Butler Wilkins D.P.G.M. The business of the day began as early as eleven o'clock, when the Board of Benevolence and Charity Organisation Committee met at the Masonic Hall. A very satisfactory balance sheet was presented, and the proceedings were of a very hopeful character. The Lodge was duly opened at 12·30 p.m. by the W.M. Bro. the Rev. S. Wathen Wigg P.P.G.C., in the Town Hall, which had been beautifully decorated for the occasion by Bros. T. P. Dorman and T. Emery. All the Officers were in their places, and a large number of brethren of the several Lodges ranged under their respective banners. Statuary and plants were gracefully arranged round the room, and on the walls were suspended many handsome banners, some of them being very artistically designed. The corridor was hung with Chinese lanterns, which produced a pleasing effect. The carpet, forming the Lodge floor, was laid in the centre of the room, around which the brethren were seated. The arrangements of the day were made by a committee comprising Bros. the Rev. S. Wathen Wigg W.M., T. Emery, T. P. Dorman, H. Brown, Geo. Ellard and G. Butcher Secretary. Immediately after the opening of the Lodge a deputation, composed of the Masters of all the Lodges in the Province, proceeded, under the guidance of the Director of Ceremonies, to make a presentation to Bro. Butler Wilkins, who has been appointed Grand Standard Bearer of England by the Prince of Wales. The deputation was headed by Bro. the Rev. S. J. W. Sanders, as Master of the Senior Lodge, Bro. Buckle P.G.S., and Bro. G. Osborn, the oldest Past Master of the Province. Bro. Sanders spoke in laudatory terms of the conduct of Bro. Butler Wilkins, and turning to the Deputy Prov. Grand Master, he wished him long life and health to enjoy the honours, and expressed the pleasure the Province felt in his elevation to the dignity. The following address, with specially designed border and frame, and illuminated by Bro. Atkins, of Abington-street, was then read by Bro. Buckle:—"To the Worshipful Bro. Butler Wilkins, P.M. 360, D.P.G.M. Norths and Hunts, P.Z. 360 P.G.H. and Grand Standard Bearer of England. Worshipful Sir and Dear Brother,—We, the Grand Master, Grand Wardens, and Brethren of the Province of Norths and Hunts in Provincial Grand Lodge assembled, desire to express to you our congratulations on your appointment to office in the Grand Lodge of England, and offer for your acceptance the Grand Lodge clothing and other gifts which accompany this address. We rejoice in the tribute of merit thus awarded. Your career in the past, as one of the rulers of the Craft in this Province, the impartiality of your decision, the genuine goodwill at all times exhibited, the energy for the good of Freemasonry unceasingly displayed, the qualifications necessary for a ruler so worthily manifested; these have inspired us, one and all, with feelings of the highest fraternal esteem and affection, and have deservedly earned the distinction which his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, the Most Worshipful Grand Master, has been pleased to bestow on you in appointing you to the office and rank of a Grand Standard Bearer of England. That it may please the Great Architect of the Universe to grant you long life, health, and strength to enjoy your dignity, and a continuance of all the blessings of the past is our earnest and united prayer. Signed, on behalf of the Provincial Grand Lodge, held at Northampton, 11th June, A.L. 5885, MANCHESTER P.G.M., F. G. BUCKLE P.G. Secretary.". A complete suit of the Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter clothing was offered by Bro. Osborn, and Bro. Wilkins proceeded to array himself in the garments. He was then, under the Director of Ceremonies, saluted by the brethren as Grand Standard Bearer of England. It may be stated here that the promotion of Bro. Wilkins to be a Grand Lodge Officer was a general theme of congratulation by the brethren. Another event of the day, which will long be held in remembrance, was the presentation of a superb banner by the Treasurer, Bro. T. Phipps Dorman, to the Eleanor Cross Lodge. The speech that accompanied the gift was marked by good taste, and the wish was heartily expressed that the banner might long wave over the brethren of the Lodge, and in years to come welcome other meetings of the Provincial Grand Lodge. The Rev. Worshipful Master accepted the banner, in the name of the Lodge, and in returning thanks reciprocated all the donor's good wishes. The emblem of the Lodge, the famous Queen's Cross of Northampton, from which the Lodge takes its name, forms the centre of the banner, with the motto "Amor Constantia Fides." After the foregoing ceremonies had been concluded, and the necessary business of the Lodge had been transacted, the business of the Provincial Grand Lodge was proceeded with, the following being the Officers appointed and duly invested by his Grace:—

It was stated that the Grand Lodge would next year be held at Kettering, under the banner of the Perseverance Lodge. A few minutes before three the brethren, carrying banners and wearing the insignia of the Order, left the Town Hall, and went to All Saints' Church for Divine Service. The Provincial Grand Master was, however, compelled to leave Northampton early in the day. The following is a list furnished of the brethren attending either the service or some other portion of the day's proceedings:—Bros. the Right Worshipful Prov. The seats in the central aisle of the church were reserved for the Freemasons, and the general public—many of whom watched the procession as it passed along George-row from the Town Hall to All Saints'—occupied the side seats. Mr. Ebenezer Law was at the organ. Evening Prayer was read by the Rev. R. B. Hull; special psalms, the 122nd and the 145th, were used; the lesson was read by Bro. the Rev. S. Wathen Wigg. The anthem was taken from the 133rd Psalm, "O, how good and joyful a thing it is, brethren, to dwell together in unity." Two hymns were sung, "Lord, Thy Word abideth," and "Through the night of doubt and sorrow." Bro. the Rev. S. J. W. Sanders preached the sermon, from Ezekiel xliii. 10, "Thou, son of man, shew the house to the house of Israel, that they may be ashamed of their iniquities, and let them measure the pattern." No summary would give a fair conception of the eloquent discourse delivered by our Rev. brother, and as it is to be published in a complete form we feel that there is no necessity to do more on the present occasion than to say the sermon ought to be universally perused by brethren, and even by the non-Masonic public. It is a masterly vindication of the principles of the Order, and a reverential recognition of its divine source. The offertory amounted to £20, and was divided between the Girls' Institution and the Peterborough Cathedral Restoration Fund. At the close of the service the members of the Order returned to the Town Hall.

At five o'clock a banquet took place at the Peacock Hotel, the D.P.G.M. Bro. Butler Wilkins presiding; he was supported by Officers of the Grand Lodge and others. Mrs. Forth provided a capital dinner. The toast of the Queen and the Craft having been duly honoured, the P.G.M. gave the Most Wor. Grand Master H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. Bro. the Rev. J. S. Sanders gave the M.W. the Pro G.M. Lord Carnarvon, the D.G.M. Lord Lathom, and Officers of the Grand Lodge, observing that this was the first time for many years that they had had any one present who could respond personally for the Grand Lodge. The D.P.G.M., in reply, was very grateful for the honour which had been conferred not only upon him individually, but on the Province of Norths and Hunts. The Province owed this recognition to the reception given to the Grand Lodge by the St. Peter's Lodge, Peterborough, on the occasion of laying the corner-stone of the centre tower of Peterborough Cathedral. The first thing that struck him on taking his seat in Grand Lodge was the fraternal spirit which prevailed, all the Officers, whatever their relative position, were regarded on a footing of equality, and the brethren were reminded that all could aspire to the purple. Bro. Wilkins gracefully alluded to the honour done him that afternoon, and concluded an excellent speech by some capital remarks as to the admission of candidates. Bro. Buckle P.G.S. gave the health of the R.W. the P.G.M., his Grace the Duke of Manchester, a toast which was duly honoured; and then Bro. Timpson proposed the W. the D.P.G.M. and the Grand Officers of the Province present and past. This was replied to by Bro. W. Jackson P.G.S.W., who referred to the splendid hospitality extended that day, a day which the brethren would bear in their minds for many years to come. Bro. Atkins P.M. 1764 P.P.G.S.W., who showed that he is thoroughly versed in the subject, gave the Royal Masonic Charitable Institutions, remarking with pride the liberality of the Province; and Bro. Terry, whose name was coupled with the toast, said during the time he had been the representative in London the Province had had five cases for election, and with one exception the whole of the candidates were elected on the first application. He referred to the earnest spirit with which Bro. Atkins himself, the D.P.G.M., the P.G. Treasurer Bro. Stanton, and others had acted as Stewards for the Charities and urged their claims. Bro. Campion proposed the Visiting Brethren, for whom Bro. Tyndall, P.M. of St. Peter's Lodge, Market Harborough, responded. Bro. Kingston P.M. 360 proposed the W.M. and Brethren of the Entertaining Lodge, Eleanor Cross, No. 1764, and the other Lodges of the Province, and paid a tribute to the magnificence of the preparations made for the entertainment of the brethren, and the programme which had been so ably devised and carried out. He had an experience of 30 years of the Provincial Grand Lodge, and he had never seen a meeting carried out with so much éclat as on the present occasion. A great debt of gratitude was due to the brethren of the Eleanor Cross, whom he congratulated not only on the success of the present occasion, but on their work as a Lodge. Bro. the Rev. T. C. Beasley S.W. responded, and afterwards proposed the health of the W.M.'s of the Sister Lodges of the Province. Bro. T. M. Oldham W.M. of the Fidelity Lodge replied, and expressed the gratifying surprise with which he witnessed the attendance of brethren that day, and the general success of the admirable arrangements made by the Eleanor Cross Lodge. The sermon of the afternoon he also commended, as giving a correct idea of the principles of Masonry to the outer world. The remaining toasts were the Ladies—proposed by Bro. Bird, and acknowledged by Bro. Preece, both of the Chicheley Lodge—and that of the Tyler.

A conversazione took place in the evening at the Town Hall, which was open to the friends of the brethren, both ladies and gentlemen. Dispensations having been obtained for wearing the clothing of the several degrees, the brethren entitled to honour in that respect, together with the gay dresses of the ladies, presenting a very pretty tout ensemble. Bro. the Rev. S. Wathen Wigg, the W.M., announced the several items on the programme, and opened the proceedings with the following address of welcome to the company:—Worshipful brethren, brethren, ladies and gentlemen,—On behalf of the brethren of the Eleanor Cross Lodge, No. 1764 on the Register of the Grand Lodge of England, I bid you welcome. The brethren are deeply sensible of the honour which his Grace the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master has done them in consenting this year to hold his Grand Lodge under the banner of the Eleanor Cross. We can claim neither the experience nor the antiquity of many Lodges in this Province; we cannot hope to rival them in anything but our zeal for Masonry and our desire to entertain our brethren with hearty good will. We have ventured, notwithstanding our youth and inexperience (for we are only seven years old—the seventh unworthy Master stands before you), in fear and trembling, but with all the audacity of early childhood, to throw open our doors to that part of the population which, certainly since the days of Solomon King of Israel, has been carefully excluded from our gatherings and denied admission to our Fraternity; I mean the ladies. But to-night not only have we invited ladies to be present, to see us arrayed in blue and crimson, in purple and gold, but we are prepared to let them into all our secrets (all, at least, which we think they may be trusted to keep). Before you leave this hall, fair ladies, to adopt the usual words of a professor of legerdemain, we shall inform you "exactly how it's done," and shall trust you to keep these secrets in the same faithful manner as you have kept those which we have already confided to you. Masonry has many great and valued privileges, but none we prize more than the interest our ancient and honourable Fraternity always excites in the breasts of the ladies and the confidence they repose in us. The brethren of the Eleanor Cross Lodge especially claim to be your devoted servants. There is not a single brother in the Lodge—if they are single when they join, we insist on their getting married immediately—and I can offer you no greater proof of our devotion and attachment. Further than that we have placed upon our banner, and bear upon our breasts, the memorial of that noble and gracious lady, Queen Eleanor, as an example of self-devotion and a tribute to her heroic courage. We venture to hope that the simple entertainment which we have provided this evening will be agreeable to you, and, if it is, I am sure the brethren whose speeches we have so mercilessly curtailed at the banquet will forgive us, for

> "No mortal can more the ladies adore
> Than a free and an accepted Mason."

A concert then followed, which afforded considerable pleasure. The card, containing a list of the songs, duets, &c., was tastefully got up, and was studded with appropriate Shakesperian mottoes, selected by Bro. H. Brown. The programme was as follows:—Grand March (on the great organ), Bro. Brooke Sampson; duet, "When the wind blows in from the sea," Bro. and Mrs. Myers; song, "The message," Bro. W. Hart; song "The Mariner," Bro. Myers; song, "O haste, ye birds," Mrs. Myers; song, "The harbour bar," Miss Florence Wilkins; duet, I've wandered in dreams," Bro. and Mrs. Myers; song, "Down deep within the cellar cool," Bro. S. Gough; song, "Bid me discourse," Mrs. Myers; recitation, "At the ringing of the curfew," Miss Hope Wilkins; song, "I fear no foe," Bro. Myers. Bro. T. P. Dorman then gave an exhibition of fine dissolving views, many of them of a local character, with a powerful oxy-hydrogen lantern. The last view was a portrait of the Prince of Wales, and the company sang "God bless the Prince of Wales." The concert, like everything else that had preceded it, was a success, and without wishing to be invidious, we may mention the reading of Miss Hope Wilkins as being specially worthy of commendation. Praise, too, is due to Bro. Myers, of Birmingham, and to his talented wife, both of whom contributed very much to the pleasure of the evening. Bro. Dorman accompanied his views with some happy illustrative remarks, which would have borne amplification, but his modesty and his desire to set his audience free for the dancing that followed constrained him. He nevertheless proved his capacity to amuse, as was shown by the applause he received. Soon after ten o'clock the room was cleared, and the lovers of Terpsichore enjoyed themselves until the early hours of the following morning.

To show how thoroughly the Eleanor Cross Lodge had entered into their duties as hosts and entertainers, it should be mentioned that the managing committee made arrangements with the Committee of the Northampton Fine Art Exhibition to throw open the corridors and gallery, containing their loan collection of pictures, during the evening. This exhibition is well arranged, and contains some fine works of art, among them being several productions of Mr. Harris Brown, son of Bro. Henry Brown. This rising artist is only twenty years of age, and has already distinguished himself. His exhibits include two sets of water colours, one of Barry Sullivan's characters, and the other of the company that accompanied him on two visits to Northampton. There is another work of his, entitled "Eighty Summers;" a painting of Mrs. Holdings; also the head of a local Irishman, with the title "Luck to Ould Ireland." We should say that Mr. Harris Brown has a bright career before him. At any rate, he is honoured in his own town, and has the satisfaction of knowing that his abilities have received a wider, and we may truthfully add, a well-earned recognition. We cannot take leave of our Northampton brethren without expressing our obligations to our confrère the Northampton Mercury, to whom we are indebted for information, and to whom we here make our grateful acknowledgments.

Drury Lane.—Bro. Augustus Harris, ever victorious, challenges envious fate with a Summer season, trusting that the cool corridors and lofty domes of the National Theatre may be able to compete with Strauss and the "ten thousand additional lamps" of culture at Kensington. "The True Story," told by Mr. Galer, will owe little of any success it may achieve to its author. Mr. Harris, however, has done everything in his power to make this venture worthy his other triumphs. The scenery is fine, especially the view of Mont Valerian, with the desperate sortie of the French garrison. Nothing so realistic in the way of stage battles—the thunder of cannon and the flash and flame of flying shells—has ever been achieved on the stage. A most beautiful winter scene is that of the German trenches, with the snow falling in the winter night, whilst dead and dying, tended by sisters of charity, strew the ground. Then there are some clever reproductions of our own slums, with costermongers, roughs and females of the specie, as true to nature as if just caught in Clare Market. Whether such realization serves any art end might be questioned. The great Crummles prophetically beheld the coming glories of the new school when he introduced the real pump and washing tub upon the stage. The story of the play, which is in four acts and a sequel, is rather complicated. In the course of its ramifications several of the wicked or embarrassing personages who are supposed to have died re-appear, as their own children, or have washed their faces, taken the pledge and devoted themselves to a realization of the domestic virtues. In the first act a wicked nobleman Lord Cholmondeley (Mr. Marshall) has two sons, the virtuous heir (Reginald), and the villain (Frederick), a younger brother. Both love the same lady, Edith Vere. She has just accepted the elder son, when his father tells him he is illegitimate. Then the wicked brother offers his hand, which she rejects in defiance of her mamma's commands, and elects to embark in the wide world with her disinherited lover. Ere she goes, however, there is a sudden commotion, and in rushes a distraught Polly Smithers, in humble attire, to sink at the feet of the wicked brother and claim him as her husband. The second act takes us to a wretched garret in a slum, where the deserted wife Polly (Miss Amy McNeill) is living with her drunken father, Jack Smithers (Mr. Harry Jackson), and her costermonger brother Sam (Mr. Harry Nichols). Now appears her husband to demand her marriage certificate, evidently under the impression that a two-and-sixpenny copy constitutes the validity of the marriage. This denotes singular simple-mindedness on the part of a stage villain. A desperate scuffle for "the scrap of paper" ensues; but at the last moment the scoundrel's design is baulked by the arrival of the costermonger, who strips to his striped jersey and gives villainy a dose, straight from the shoulder. Next we are taken to Paris; the disinherited Reginald has enlisted in the French army, and leads the sortie at Mont Valerian, to fall into the hands of the Prussians. The father, the lawyer, and Jack Smithers, are also in Paris; the latter has stolen his daughter's child, just to oblige the wicked husband, and is living upon the blackmail he is thus able to extort. He gets some two hundred pounds from the lawyer, with a full accompaniment of cognac, and in due course falls asleep; now the lawyer re-appropriates the money. At this stage Mr. Harry Jackson had his opportunity; his drunken bewilderment gradually disappears as the certainty of the robbery forces itself on his conviction. The brutal sot rises to almost tragic intensity as he swears vengeance against his confederate. Every one gets back to England, except the wicked younger son, who is incontinently shot, at the request of his injured sister-in-law's landlady. This sister-in-law is discovered in the next Act starving, with her child, outside a workhouse, and is persuaded by the converted costermonger, old Smithers' son, to seek its shelter. Then we have a very realistic picture of a workhouse infirmary. Poor Edith is dying. Here is the doctor, the nurse, the texts on the walls, and an agonized death scene, very well done, and without exaggeration, by Miss Brough. Here young Smithers and his sister, the deserted wife of young Cholmondeley, appear to console the dying woman; they promise to adopt her child. In Act V., or the epilogue, this child has grown into a girl of eighteen. Young Smithers is living in a pretty cottage, and whilst he nails up the roses over the porch his adopted daughter sketches the landscape—his sister looks prettier than ever, though her hair is touched with grey; that sister's unknown son, the future Lord Cholmondeley, the inheritor of all his mother's virtues, is making himself agreeable to his cousin incognita. Mr. Day, once the late Frederick, now personates the virtuous son Walter. Miss Brough, who died in the workhouse, re-appears as the blonde Miss, her orphan child, and from this point the intelligent playgoer will perceive how the curtain will shortly descend on wrongs righted and virtue rewarded. The mysterious certificates turn up at the proper moment, and a faithful retainer, weak in the knees, as all faithful retainers are found to be, produces the evidence of the legal union of Reginald's mother with Lord Cholmondeley, and every body is married who ought to be, and to the proper person. This happy result brings down the curtain. Messrs. Harry Jackson and Harry Nichols both work with a will to win their honours; Mr. Herbert, as Reginald, is manly and unaffected; while Mr. Day, as Frederick, deserves much praise for his clever variations on the masher miscreant motif. Miss F. Brough rose well to the pathos of her part in the difficult dying scene. Miss Amy McNeill, of whom London will assuredly see more, as she must certainly ere long take a high place among emotional heroines, is greatly to be commended. Her absence of self consciousness and wholesome girlishness is delightful; while especially pretty is her bright and tender little scene at the baked potato banquet with brother Sam. Of the stage management, alike as regards the London crowds and French and German soldiery, we cannot speak too highly.

Opera Comique.—The London playgoer demands that Thalia shall wear the cap and bells, or is still better content if she borrow Grimaldi's bismuth and red lead, and stand upon her head to emphasize her humours. This being so, the more a comedy is less a comedy and more a farce, so shall author, manager and public find reason for satisfaction. The Duke of Swindleton, produced at an Opera Comique matinée last Thursday, the 11th inst., fairly fulfils this condition. The plot is as preposterous as can be desired, the characters are no less ridiculous. There is a country mayor, fond of high society and words in four syllables, of the Mrs. Malaprop style; there is a lodging house widow to match; there is the Duke, actually an escaped convict, who makes love to the respective daughters of these "confusers of epitaphs," as he imagines the one or the other the better match; there is his friend, a London burglar, who dissembles as a footman; an Irish maid servant, the one instance of genuine human nature in the piece; the two daughters, about whom nobody cares a jot, though they are adored by their respective lovers, represented by Mr. S. Buist and Mr. S. Herbert; essentially brothers in misfortune, for the feebleness of their actions and the force of their language brought universal condemnation in ironical laughter whenever they opened their mouths. The Mayor's part, which we imagine Mr. David James intends to adorn at some future time, was carefully played by Mr. Ben Greet, who succeeded in giving an air of sincerity and unconsciousness to the lines allotted him. Mr. Lestocq was really excellent as the London rough, and avoided the exaggeration which, at times, we so much regret to see. Miss Cicely Richards was delightful as the Irish servant, and Mr. Smily made his Swindleton Duke have an air of possibility. The actors engaged had evidently worked with a will, and for the time disguised the weakness of the material supplied them. The theatre was crammed, and at the close of the performance there were loud calls for the author; in response, however, it was announced he was not in the house. A friend of ours suggested he had fled from the wrath of the two much injured "young premiers" who had been mocked and derided for his sins. The play, if it is to take a place in the evening bills, must be rewritten in many of the scenes, the twaddle must be eliminated, and the young people rescued from deserved contempt.

The Grand.—Miss Lizzie Coote made her appearance here on Monday last in "Cherry and Fairstar," a musical extravaganza, written expressly for her by the late Mr. Frank Green. Though there is little that is really funny in the dialogue, the principal items of the programme give ample scope for the display of pretty dresses, while the action is sustained by merry jigs, breakdowns, and excerpts from the music halls. The story is not deep in its ramifications. Conrad, the corsair, an extravagant pirate, has carried off the children of King Mopus, and. has been wrecked on an island, where he is compelled to marry a witch, who dominates the isle. Oppressed with a weighty secret as to the paternity of the children, he manages to escape from the island by aid of a sprite, and, accompanied by his young charges, repairs to sea. Followed by the vengeance of the witch, he is again wrecked, and cast upon the shore of King Mopus's kingdom, where, after various vicissitudes, he is enabled to restore to the king his royal progeny, thus defeating the evil machinations of the monarch's brother, who hopes to place his own son on the throne. Mr. E. W. Royce, as the pirate, manages to sustain the thread of interest when it is inclined to flag; while Miss Coote as Cherry, and Miss Fanny Robina as the sprite Papillo, were most indefatigable, both with their songs and dances. Mr. Storey appeared as the King's brother, and Mr. Harry Parker gave force to the witch Hagrimosa. Mr. Fred Walton was good as King Mopus, as also was the Misses Ida Rochester and Frances Weston, as Bright Face and Sunshine respectivela. The extravaganza was preceded by Halliday's "Checkmate," a comedy in two acts. Miss Coote, as Martha Bunn, somewhat overacted her part, while Mr. E. W. Royce gave an amusing impersonation of Sam Winkle. Mr T. F. Nye was the Sir Everton Toffee, and Miss Clitherow Charlotte Russe. Next week "Boccaccio," with a company from the Comedy Theatre, will be the attraction.

St. George's Hall.—Many and painful are the experiences of the devoted stalker of the "matinée;" despondingly he goeth forth, and oftimes sadly and sourly he returneth. Empty benches, or the too well known faces of extra ladies and gentlemen surround him in front; while the voice of the prompter runs an obligato to the Juliet or Julia of the occasion. At St. George's Hall, at Miss Cowen's afternoon, on Friday the 12th, a pleasant surprise awaited the jaded critikeer. Every seat was occupied; the yellow hair and the smooth chin vowed to art was not present, but, instead, row upon row of pretty Oxford and Cambridge girl "juniors" and "seniors," all evidently determined to enjoy the delightful dissipation of a "real performance." Here and there, balancing the harmless necessary chaperon, appeared the countenance of some well known Lord High Executioner (dramatique). But such an one, looking round at those sympathetic and happy faces, felt his cherished capticusness desert him. Though Miss Cowen's dramatic talent may be problematic, she has the grace of excellent elocution, distinct and just emphasis, and if she will modestly forego pretension to "juvenile lead" she may do excellent work yet. Mr. Eric Lewis gave a very pleasant and sprightly support in the bright little duologue, "A Lyrical Lover," to Miss Cowen's "heiress." His subsequent musical sketch, describing the Camden Townley's private theatricals, was one of the brightest things of the kind we have heard for some time, and Brandon Thomas greatly delighted his audience with "Ferdinando and Elvira." Miss Cowen played Jane Dudley in the dramatic fragment by Mr. Bell with excellent intention, and managed her rhymed lines with discretion, but her acting is marred by angularity and too much facial action. As a reciter Miss Cowen has assured success, but on the stage she will perhaps find herself handicapped heavily by the lack of qualities which neither industry nor intelligence can give, nor even compensate for.

BRO. JOHN LIVINGSTON, M.D., P.M. 1385.

A brother with whom we have been intimately associated since our admission to Freemasonry has just passed to his rest, in the person of Bro. John Livingston, P.M. of the Gladsmuir Lodge, No. 1385. He it was who took charge of us as Deacon during our admission to the several degrees, and many are the meetings we have attended with him. Our deceased brother, at the time of his death, which took place on the 10th instant, was in active practice as a medical man, and had for many years past carried on his profession over a very wide area, which entailed an amount of travelling and bodily fatigue which doubtless has had some effect in leading to his comparatively early decease. Brother Livingston, conscious of unusual fatigue on the Friday previous to his death, remained in bed the greater part of the day, but towards evening, in response to what he believed to be an urgent call, rose and went out on a professional visit, almost immediately returning, however, to seek his bed again. Symptoms of apoplexy soon became apparent, and on Sunday, after consultation with a physician—called in by his assistant who had so far attended him—it was decided the patient was suffering from congestion of the brain. The attack was very severe, and the worst symptoms rapidly developed, terminating with our brother's decease at half-past five on Wednesday morning, at the early age of forty-five. Bro. Livingston leaves a widow and four children to mourn his death, and to them we desire to offer our sincere sympathy, feeling assured that in doing so we are but echoing the sentiments of all who were intimate with the deceased. Bro. Dr. Livingston was for many years the surgeon of both the Odd Fellows and the local Court of the Foresters, as also of the Police stationed at Barnet, while as honorary surgeon to the Barnet Volunteers he was invariably found on the occasions of church parade, besides taking a part in most of the public prize meetings and social gatherings of the corps, especially the annual one at Aldershot. The funeral took place on Monday, at the Colney Hatch Cemetery, and was attended by a very large concourse of personal friends of the deceased, prominent among them being the members of the Gladsmuir Lodge and other members of the Masonic Order.

The late Bro. Dr. Henry Hopkins has left one hundred guineas to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, in the name of Lodge 43, Birmingham, of which he was a P.M.; and fifty guineas to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, in the name of the St. Aubin's, Lodge, No. 958, Jersey, of which he was a founder and P.M. His other gifts were paid before he died, save the large one to the Royal College of Preceptors.

The annual Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons for the Province of Hampshire is to be held at Southampton, on Thursday, the 25th instant. The business includes the election of a brother to be recommended to the M.W. Grand Mark Master for appointment to the office of Provincial Grand Mark Master, in succession to the Rev. Canon Portal.

Monday—Asaph Chapter. Tuesday—United Law Clerks' Society, Industry Chapter. Friday—The Buffs, 12th Suffolk Regiment, 98th Regiment.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Glad Tidings.—Some constitutions have a tendency to rheumatism, and are, throughout the year, borne down by its protracted tortures. Let such sufferers bathe the affected parts with warm brine, and afterward rub in this soothing Ointment. They will find it the best means of lessening their agony, and, assisted by Holloway's Pills, the surest way of overcoming their disease. More need not be said than to request a few days' trial of this safe and soothing treatment, by which the disease will ultimately be completely swept away. Pains that would make a giant shudder are assuaged without difficulty by Holloway's easy and inexpensive remedies, which comfort by moderating the throbbing vessels and calming the excited nerves.

PALATINE LODGE, No. 97, SUNDERLAND.

THERE was a large muster of brethren of the town and neighbouring districts on the 23rd ult., to witness the initiation of Mr. Ardasir Cowasji Nusservanji Homji, 23 years of age, engineer, a Parsee, from Bombay, at a Lodge of emergency, Mr. Homji being about to leave England. The Lodge was duly opened by the W.M. Bro. J. R. Pattison, who was supported by Bros. Taylorson Sharp as I.P.M., Robert Singleton S.W., Thos. Atkinson acting J.W., Thomas Millican Watson P.M. The candidate having been duly elected, was introduced, and initiated in accordance with the mode applicable to candidates of the Parsee faith, being obligated upon the Zend Avesta by the W.M., Bro. J. R. Pattison. After the ceremony, the Lodge was closed, and the newly-initiated brother was cordially greeted by the brethren. At the previous regular meeting of the Lodge, the W.M. was honoured with the presence of the Officers of Provincial Grand Lodge. Bro. R. Hudson, P.G. Secretary, complimented the W.M. and Officers on the manner in which the work of the Lodge was performed.

EBORACUM LODGE, No. 1 611.

THE regular monthly meeting of this Lodge t took place on the 8th instant, at the Eboracum Masonic Hal l, St. Saviourgate, York. There was a large muster of the brethren , and the appearance of the Hall was improved by the addition of new seats in the dais of massive mahogany, upholstered in crimson plush. The Lodge was opened by the I.P.M., Brother J. Bleukin, who apologised for the absence of Bro. Sir F. Milner, Bart., M.P., he W.M., who was compelled to attend to his parliamentary duties in London. After the confirmation of the minutes, successful ballots were taken for Bros. J. W. Woodall Grand Treasurer of Engl and as an honorary member R. After the Lodge was closed the t ables in the refreshment room were filled, and a most harmonious evening was spent. The candidate's health was proposed, and it w as mentioned as a curious coincidence that Bro. J. Amongst the brethren present were Bros. Bleukin I.P.M., Whytehead P.M., Cumberland P.M., Balmford P.M., Selle r P.M., Millington P.M. FESTIVAL OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

THE third of the Masonic Charity Festivals of 1885 has been celebrated, and the total contributions of the Craft for the year show a result which reflects the greatest credit on the Order, and those who are enrolled under its banner. The three Festivals which have been held during the last six months have produced a total of £45,000, which sum represents the free offerings of the Craftsmen of England, on behalf of the three Institutions founded for the relief of the aged and the young of both sexes who, through calamity or misfortune, are compelled to seek assistance from their brother Masons, or from the brothers of their deceased parents. It is not our present intention, however, to devote any lengthened remarks to the whole of this year's Masonic Charity work, that we reserve for a more convenient occasion; we have more particularly to speak of the result of this week's Festival, held on Wednesday, at the Crystal Palace, Sydenham, under the presidency of the Most Hon. the Marquis of Hartington, M.P., Provincial Grand Master Derbyshire, on behalf of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys.

Speaking generally, the Festival was a grand success; but the result—in the form of the total contributions announced—was somewhat disappointing, although in many quarters it was expected that a falling-off would be shown in this year's returns, as compared with those of the last. We have had occasion in recent issues to refer to the causes which it was expected would affect the total of the Boys' School, and it is almost universally admitted that the success of the other two Institutions is the main, if not the sole cause of the falling-off experienced this week:—in other words, that there is "a limit to the means, if not the will, of the Masons of England," in regard to the amounts they subscribe for the Masonic Charities.

It must, as a matter of course, happen that one of the Institutions is each year lowest as regards total subscriptions—this year the turn has fallen to the Boys, next year it may be the Girls or the Benevolent; we do not know of the existence of any preference in the minds of Craftsmen generally which should accord to one of the Institutions either a run of undue prosperity or the reverse. Certain it is that no real prejudice exists in the minds of English Freemasons; while it is also certain that the Boys' School has lost none of that prestige which has played so important a part in raising it to its present high position. The lull of this year in the enthusiasm which has been shown on behalf of the Boys' School is, we trust, but the calm which precedes the storm; the storm which, if it does not come next year, will at least prove to us ere long that the sympathy of the Craft is still strong on behalf of the lads who look to English Freemasons for assistance in their hour of need.

The total of this year's contributions was announced at the Festival as £11,746 10s, as compared with £14,060 subscribed last year, a falling off of some £2,300 odd, which can ill be spared at the present time, when a large addition to the accommodation of the School is all but completed and, as a consequence, an increased amount is needed to render the resources of the Institution available to their fullest extent. We are afraid that under the circumstances it will not be possible for the Preparatory School to be opened as early as was anticipated, so that the falling off will almost immediately make itself felt throughout the country, thus leading to the hope that it will be more than counterbalanced at the corresponding Festival of 1886.

This year's Board of Stewards comprised the names of 275 brethren, of whom 87 represented London Lodges, 30 were unattached, 156 acted on behalf of Provincial Lodges, one represented the Royal Order of Scotland, and one the Foreign Stations. Small as these numbers are in comparison with what we have been accustomed to in the past; the number of small lists among them is even more conspicuous, but small as many of the individual totals undoubtedly are, they are not to be despised. Certain it is each Steward has done his best, and all we can ask them to do is to serve again,—and do better. We would, however, respectfully point out to those Stewards whose lists consist of their own donations only that it ought to be comparatively easy to secure at least a similar donation to their own with which to swell their totals. If this had been accomplished in each case where a Steward's own donation stands alone on the record this year's result would have been a different one. We heartily approve the principle which induces a brother who decides to qualify as a Life Governor also undertaking the duties of a Stewardship, but hope it will never come to be recognised that those duties cease as soon as a personal donation is entered on the list. Let every Freemason qualify as Life Governor, or otherwise, of each of the Masonic Institutions, and let as many of them as choose give their names as Stewards for the Anniversary Festivals, but in doing so let it be remembered there are responsibilities attached to a Stewardship which have been recognised by the Institutions, each of which gives votes in return for "services rendered," for it must be distinctly understood that the Stewardship votes are in no way associated with the Stewardship fee, which is in every way distinct from the Institution itself, being appropriated solely to the actual expenses of the Annual Festival.

There are, however, a large number of lists which give evidence of wide and persistent efforts, and we may briefly refer to the highest of these. Among the London Lists there are thirteen of three figure totals; Mrs. Cama (1642) £220 10s, Wm. Roebuck (Committee Dinner Club) £210, James Willing jun. (1987) £169 17s, W. A. Scurrah (167) £157 10s, G. A. Barclay (1608) £136 10s, Robert Pierpoint (177) £133 1s, W. Burdett-Coutts (2030) £126 5s, Adolphus Steng (141) £110 10s, W. Williams (1791) £110 5s, C. H. Phillips (1986) £106 11s, James Chapman (194) £105, Horace B. Marshall, C.C., £105, Millner Jutsum (95) £101 17s. The Provinces show 16 three figure lists; among them Geo. Rice Bolton (1314, Kent) £432 12s, A G Prince and W. H. Bailey (Province of Staffordshire) £388 2s, J. E. Curteis (Devonshire) £257 10s, Percy Wallis (850, Derbyshire) £250, D. C. Jones (Province of South Wales, East) £200, Joseph Pym (787, Derbyshire) £170, T. Young Strachan (Province of Northumberland) £162 15s, H. W. H. Elwes (1452, Suffolk) £143 17s, W. J. Nosworthy (Province of Somersetshire) £136 10s, Fitzherbert Wright and J. Allen (1324, Derbyshire) £182 2s, J. MacLeod (1661, Nottinghamshire) £120, John H. Lawson (1235, Derbyshire) £119 5s. The Steward of the Royal Order of Scotland also figures for a three-figure total, in a round £100. We give elsewhere a full list of the Stewards, and the amounts collected by each, while below will be found an account of the proceedings at the Festival itself.

The Festival at the Crystal Palace, was attended by a large and distinguished company of ladies and brethren. The banquet was one of the best ever provided in connection with the Boys' Festivals, which, considering the season of the year at which they are held possess advantages entirely their own, as compared with the anniversaries of the other Institutions. The banquet was not only well supplied, but was also efficiently served, a most important feature in connection with the most elaborate menu, and we heartily add our congratulations to the many accorded to Bros. Bertram and Roberts on the success which attended their efforts.

At the conclusion of the banquet grace was sung by the musical quartette—Miss Margaret Hoare, Madame Raymond, Bro. Arthur Thompson and Bro. Franklin Clive—and then the Chairman proceeded with the toasts. The first, Her Majesty the Queen, was one, he was sure, would be received in the way which, according to his experience, it always was received amongst Freemasons. There might be other nations in which Freemasonry was under some suspicion, or where its secrecy was liable to some misapprehension, but it was not the case in England. He ventured to say the Queen had no more loyal subjects than the Freemasons of this country. He felt all were tolerably well satisfied with the monarchial institution under which they lived. It was only on such occasions as the crisis just passed through that they could fully realise how much they owed to the personal influence of the Sovereign, and he had no doubt that when the history of the recent transactions came to be laid fully before them, they, with the whole country, would have reason to be satisfied, as they had been before, with the great constitutional knowledge and judgment displayed by her Majesty. The toast, having met a hearty response, was followed by the National Anthem.

The Chairman next proposed H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, K.G., &c., M.W.G.M., the President of the Institution whose Festival they were that day celebrating. For many reasons it was not necessary he should waste time in stating why the toast should be heartily received. They should drink it as loyal citizens, and not only should they honour it as the health of one who would one day sit on the throne of this country, but also as the head of the Order—one who had at all times taken a great interest in all that related to Freemasonry. He was sure there were many present who could say much more on this subject than he; who could tell them how much the Charity whose Festival they were that day celebrating, and the other Masonic Charities, owed to the exertions of the Prince of Wales, ably assisted as he had been by other members of the Royal Family. His Royal Highness had recently shown his interest in the Craft by personally initiating his eldest son into Freemasonry.

Bro. Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke next proposed the health of the Chairman. He was privileged in submitting a toast which he was confident would be received by every person in the room with the greatest enthusiasm. He was quite sure his brother Masons would agree with him, and that the ladies would believe him, when he said it was a very great advantage, and certainly a very great pleasure, that among the earnest and good men enrolled among us were a very large number of noblemen and gentlemen of the highest stations in the country. These noblemen and gentlemen occupied themselves in furthering the interests and welfare of their Sovereign and their country, and still found time to act as true and earnest Masons, coming among the brethren to advance the interests of the Order, and the Institutions associated with it. In fact, he might describe them as true specimens of the English working man. Of this truism the noble Chairman of the day was an excellent example; he belonged to one of those exalted houses which had provided old and tried statesmen in the past, who had contributed to the great success of the country, and was himself a statesman who had for many years given his services for the benefit of his country and his Queen. Yet among his multifarious duties he had found time to be Grand Master of the Province of Derbyshire for upwards of a quarter of a century, and had presided over that Province with the greatest skill and ability. The Marquis of Hartington had that day been good enough to come among them to preside over the Festival of the Boys' School, and Bro. Clerke felt he might, on behalf of the Institution, offer him the heartiest thanks of all associated with it. He was sure Lord Hartington's presence that night would be productive of much good to the Institution, and trusted that at future Festivals they might always have such a distinguished nobleman to preside over the meeting.

The Marquis of Hartington replying said, he need scarcely say he felt much indebted to Bro. Shadwell Clerke for the way in which he had proposed the toast, and to the brethren for the way in which they had received it. He admitted he felt he could hardly take credit for what had been said about the way in which he had discharged his Masonic duties. It was true he had had the honour of being Provincial Grand Master of Derbyshire for more than a quarter of a century, and if the affairs of that Province were—as he honestly hoped and trusted they were—in a satisfactory state, the credit was entirely due to the distinguished brethren who had successively occupied the position of Deputy Provincial G. Master, and who had relieved him entirely, or almost entirely, of the duties which ought more properly to have devolved on him. He had, as had been said by Bro. Clerke, made excuses, some of them good excuses, for his neglect of his Masonic duties. He blamed himself that he had so long resisted the frequent applications which had so kindly been made to him to take the chair on such an interesting occasion as the present, and it seemed that in overcoming his diffidence in this respect with regard to the present Festival, he had shown something approaching to the gift of prophesy. He had always excused himself on the plea that his official engagements in Parliament were very severe, and that his time was so constantly occupied that it was impossible for him to undertake other than absolutely necessary duties. For reasons which he felt he need not then trouble them with, he had, some months before, acceded to the request of the distinguished and most energetic Secretary of their Institution, Bro. Binckes, that he would take the chair; trusting that Providence would, in some way or other, enable him to fulfil the responsibilities which he thus undertook. Providence had helped him, and he was enabled to carry out his promise at the commencement of what he hoped would be to him a substantial and satisfactory holiday. He had to apologise for having kept them waiting that day. He was late only because he had just returned from Windsor after performing his final duties in connection with the formal resignation of his political post. He proposed to depart somewhat from the order in which the toasts had been arranged, and to take the opportunity of at once bringing to their notice the most important one of the day. Not having attended, as he had explained, on any similar occasion in the past, he did not know what had been said in proposing this toast, or what sort of speech it was customary to make. He could but feel that those who had attended on many of these occasions, must have found a very considerable similarity in the topics brought before them, while he was afraid that anything he might be able to say would be even more well worn than what they were accustomed to hear. He could not omit the consideration that they were in the midst of a very extraordinary and sudden change in our somewhat variable country, or that the temperature of the room in which they were seated, and likely to be seated for some time, was somewhat high, while the grounds outside the beautiful Palace appeared to be more inviting than listening to speeches, whether new or stale; he did not, therefore, propose to detain them very long with observations on what was really the toast of the evening. There were difficulties in the way of his dilating at any length upon purely Masonic subjects. All the world knew they possessed recondite and innumerable secrets, but the presence of the numerous ladies whom he was pleased to see around him prevented his entering into a discussion of any of them as to which they would be so glad to obtain information. He could therefore only speak upon those topics connected with the Craft which were known to the world at large. He had already said, in proposing the first toast, there were countries in which Freemasonry, on account of the secresy of its proceedings, laboured under some suspicion, and was connected in the minds of the governments and ruling powers of those countries with the proceedings of other secret societies, but enough was known of English Freemasons to satisfy everybody that their secrets were in no degree antagonistic to any of the fundamental principles on which society rested, or that they were antagonistic to any of the principles either of morality or of religion. It was known to all the world that some of the first principles of the Craft were contained in the words "Brotherhood" and "Benevolence," and it was in furtherance of and in endeavouring to carry into execution those principles they were met that evening. There may have been times—now long past, when society and the world was not so large, and when Freemasonry was not so large—when it was not necessary that the charity they inculcated should be organised as it was necessary it should be organised now. In those times it might have been possible for Brother to appeal to Brother, or, at all events, for one in distress to obtain the assistance and sympathy he needed from his own Lodge; but everything was so large now, and their own body was so large, that some organisation of the benevolence and the charity which is an essential principle of the Order was absolutely required. They all knew that indiscriminate charity and indiscriminate benevolence practised by individuals was likely to do more harm than good, and he could but feel that but for the organisation which had been introduced into the Masonic Charities, Masonic benevolence might have tended to have had the same effect. Therefore he felt they owed a deep debt of gratitude to those brethren who in times gone by, and still more so at the present, devoted themselves to the work of organising Masonic charity. As a consequence of their exertions they had three splendid Masonic Institutions, of which that whose Festival they were then celebrating was, if not the leading one, at all events in the very first rank. He would not detain them with any history of the Institution, as no doubt very many of those present were better acquainted with such details than he was; but there were one or two facts which would be of interest to those who were perhaps not fully acquainted with them. The present was the Eighty-seventh Festival of the Charity. During the eighty-six years the Institution had been in existence the number of boys who had received its benefits was 1,657, that was to say, 1,657 sons of Freemasons had received the education given by the Institution. When first founded there were only twenty-five boys, who, in a somewhat irregular and unsettled manner were receiving education at various schools throughout the country. There were now 215 lads in the School of the Institution at Wood Green, while arrangements had been made, by providing fresh buildings and other accommodation, for the reception of fifty additional boys. It was hoped that in October of the present year a number of additional candidates would be elected for admission in January 1886, and he need scarcely say that for the completion of these buildings funds were most urgently needed. The ceremony of laying the copestone of this increase to the buildings of the Institution was to be performed by a lady well known for her benevolence, and for the lead which she had taken in works of public utility of every description—the Baroness Burdett-Coutts. The Institution was, he believed, essentially and completely a Masonic Institution—a few outside benefactors they might have had, but he believed only to a very small extent. They asked for no assistance from the State; they asked for no assistance from any other Institution; they asked for assistance only from the Masonic body. All they had asked from outside bodies had been that they might take advantage of the liberal and generous procedure of the Universities, and had availed themselves—that was to say the Institution had availed itself—of the facilities which had been given by the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge for examining and inquiring into the educational results achieved by the Institution. Since 1867 two hundred and thirty boys had passed the University Local Examination, of whom 148 had obtained honours, while 82 others had earned certificates. Results such as these he had endeavoured to bring before them were not accomplished without a considerable expenditure of money. He was informed that the ordinary expenditure of the Institution during the past year was £9,793, in addition to which there was a special outlay of £1,000. To meet that expenditure the Institution had only got some £17,000 invested, the dividends upon which—really the only reliable income—amounted to £732 per annum. He had been struck, when he first read these figures, with the boldness of a Committee which could carry on operations involving so large an expenditure upon an income so precarious as one all but relying on annual subscriptions. But when he looked at the result of past Festivals, when he saw the vast amount, and, on the whole, the steady and continuing amount, which each had brought into the coffers of the Institution, he no longer wondered; he only admired the confidence with which the Committee of the Institution relied upon the benevolent and fraternal principles uniting the whole Masonic body, and believed that they would receive in the future, as they had in the past, a generous support for this most deserving and most useful Institution. He formally proposed Prosperity to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and coupled with the toast the name of Bro. George Plucknett its Treasurer.

Bro. Plucknett having responded, the Chairman followed. He proposed to give the next toast, and after that would ask those in charge of the Festival to request some other brethren to propose the remaining ones, so as not to make it necessary for him to inflict any more speeches on them. He should be sorry, however, to entrust the toast he now had to propose to any other hands: it was to the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the Provincial Grand Masters and Present and Past Grand Officers. Two of the high officials he had just described by their Masonic titles were the Earl of Carnarvon and the Earl of Lathom. He should have been extremely sorry if it could have been supposed for a moment that any such trifle as a difference in political opinion would have prevented him from proposing the health of these two esteemed friends of his own, whose conduct in the discharge of the important Masonic duties which they fulfilled had commended them to the universal approval of the Craft. He must say he thought it a singular coincidence but at the same time extremely probable that the train which he met on leaving Windsor that afternoon contained the Grand Officers whose health he was then proposing—the Earl of Carnarvon and the Earl of Lathom. It might be that the country could not do without Masons. If the House turned out of office any members of the Craft they had to replace them with other members of the Craft, and perhaps they might even have to say of themselves they were something like the great families in the time of the civil wars of the Stuarts, who used to keep one branch acting on behalf of the Stuarts, the other on behalf of the Hanoverians, in order that they might be certain of being on the right side, whichever might prove victorious. He was not sure whether this was a very wise proceeding or a very excellent political manœuvre, but he appealed to them, as a non-political body, whether they did not do well to receive and cherish in their midst members, and as far as they were able the most distinguished members, on both political sides, and to honour their names, whatever might be the party to which they belonged, as they had honoured the names of Lord Carnarvon and Lord Lathom that day. He coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Horace B. Marshall P.G. Treasurer.

Bro. Marshall replying, tendered his thanks for the very kind and fraternal way in which the health of the Grand Officers had been proposed and received. The brethren had often heard from the Grand Secretary that the Grand Master invariably exercised the soundest discretion, judgment, and wisdom in selecting the rulers of the Craft. It would have been highly improper for him, placed in his position by the generosity and magnanimity of his brethren, to say they had displayed the same great discretion, judgment and wisdom, but he could say with propriety, and did assert from his heart as well as from his lips, that he would try to be as worthy of the position in which he had been placed as any Grand Officer selected by the Grand Master.

Bro. Frederick Binckes then rose to read the lists of donations. He had hoped the year would have proved a bright exception to some which had preceded it, but when he saw the totals subscribed for the Aged in February, and for the Girls in May, he began to despair of the success of the Boys' School. The only hope he had of being able to render a good account to the brethren that day was the fact that he had the good fortune to enlist the support of the Province of Derby and the presidency of the Marquis of Hartington. He had no hesitation in saying that his success in that direction had been the salvation of the Festival. He was sure the brethren would be disappointed with the day's result, but whether they had succeeded or whether they had failed, they had done the best in their power, and he hoped the result would be considered in that light. Bro. Binckes then proceeded to give the several totals, remarking in doing so that the Metropolis had signally failed in according that sympathy he felt the Institution deserved. He also mentioned that the list from the Lodge of Antiquity included among other amounts, the thirty-third annual donation from Her Majesty the Queen. Derbyshire, with twenty-five Stewards, had most nobly supported their Provincial Grand Master, the Chairman of the day (who had personally completed his qualification as a Vice-Patron), with a total of subscriptions amounting to £1,467 odd.

Bro. Samuel Pope, Q.C., gave Success to the other Masonic Institutions, the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. He had had no idea of being called upon to propose this toast, but should be a sorry brother of the Craft and a lame member of his profession if he hesitated to do so upon the request he had received. He had been much impressed that day with the general feeling of brotherhood which prevailed among the Craft. There were some who rejoiced that an enforced illness had enabled their Right Worshipful President to be present and rally them to this Charity. There were others, and he rejoiced to know it, who felt it was an honour to the Craft that if Her Majesty required advisers she found them among the Masons of the country. His duty was to invite them to consider, not only the Institution whose Festival had called them together, but the other Charities of the Order. He did not share the feelings of Bro. Binckes that the subscription lists had given cause for anxiety or despondency. It seemed to him a magnificent display of the benevolence and charity of the Craft that, early in the year and in May, such grand subscriptions could have been made for the Benevolent Institution and for the Girls School and yet a sufficient amount of responsibility left to raise the magnificent sum of £11,700 odd in support of the Boys' School, thus making a sum of more than £44,000 subscribed by Masons in support of their Charities during the present year. Of course, while they desired to see their boys sent out into the world with the advantages of the education which the School could afford to them, they equally desired that the future mothers of Masons should have advantages equal to those of the boys. While they looked to the future and to the youth, they also looked back upon the aged, who had consecrated their lives to the service of the Craft, and felt they were equally deserving of sympathy and support. He urged them, while they had that night celebrated the Festival of the Boys' School, to remember when the year came round that the Charities were one and all the same, and hoped they would do next year, if possible, more than they had done this, in order to support the Charities upon the basis which they had hitherto maintained.

Bro. Hedges replied. He had not anticipated it would fall to his lot to have the honour of responding to this toast, but he was sure all present would share in his deep regret at the very serious indisposition which had compelled Bro. Terry to ask him to speak on his behalf as well as on his own. But for this regret he rose with the very greatest amount of pleasure possible to acknowledge on behalf of the Benevolent Institution and the Girls' School the very hearty reception which had just been accorded to the toast which had been drunk to their prosperity. He desired to express his deep acknowledgments for the share those Institutions had received of the large amount contributed by the Masons during the year, and to tender to the Boys' School congratulation on the sum which had that night been announced. Taking the past into consideration, he did not think Bro. Binckes should be in any way despondent.

Bro. J. Lewis Thomas proposed the Patrons, Vice Patrons, Vice Presidents, Trustees, and Members of the Committees. He was sure they were all deeply indebted to the brethren comprised in this toast for the manner in which they conducted the affairs of the Institution, and for the splendid way in which they had supported it. They had heard from the Chairman that they could not inform all the company present of the secrets of Freemasonry, but they could refer to the outward and visible signs displayed to the world in the Masonic Charities. He was sure the noble way in which the Institution had been supported that evening would cause great rejoicing throughout the length and breadth of the land.

Brother George Lambert responded. He returned, on behalf of the Patrons and others, their most grateful thanks for the manner in which year, after year, the brethren were pleased to refer to their services. He little thought when he first joined Freemasonry that he should ever have the honour of being a Patron of this Institution, and well remembered how he opposed Bro. Binckes in removing the School, or doing anything at Wood Green. He felt they were amply repaid for the trouble, the toil and the anxiety of that time when they saw the magnificent pile of buildings, and, what was more important, the magnificent education which the boys received in them. The best meed of praise that could be meted out to the Officers was to enlarge the education and do the best that possibly could be done to aid the lads in fighting the battle of life which they must face. They were much indebted to Bro. Dr. Morris, the Head Master, for the way in which he conducted the School, and he was proud they had a man of such sterling character, and of such high education, to train such lads. While all would willingly share in the work of the Institution, he could but feel a few members could do it better than a large body, and was thankful the Committee took the labours off their hands.

Bro. Smith P.G.W. Derbyshire proposed the Board of Stewards, to which Bro. Edgar Bowyer responded and then the Chairman gave the Ladies. They had reached the last toast, but not the least important one of the evening. Before separating he knew the brethren would join in drinking the health of those who had contributed so much to the grace and success of the meeting—the Ladies who had been good enough to honour them with their presence. In doing so they would only be doing what was just. The Boy's Institution was the one which had taken the lead in the civilised and civilising habit of admitting ladies to their Festivals, and while he believed their body did not, as a rule, approve of innovations, this was an innovation which they fully, entirely, and completely approved of. He hoped the Ladies who had honoured them with their presence that evening would impress upon all their friends, and all those over whom they exercised so good and beneficent an influence that they should support this and the other Masonic Institutions and that the brethren might rely in future on their cordial support in promoting the success of those most excellent Associations. The toast was honoured and the proceedings brought to a conclusion.

The distribution of prizes and annual entertainment at the Institution took place on Saturday, the 20th instant, but owing to the demands on our space we are compelled to hold over our account of this and some other meetings until next week.

HOLIDAY HAUNTS.

LONDON, TILBURY, AND SOUTHEND.

FENCHURCH Street Station, the London terminus of this railway, is in the centre of one of the busiest districts of the metropolis. Since the line was opened, now over thirty years ago, many changes and improvements have taken place. The station itself is always full of activity, the people who use it represent various nationalities, and it affords an excellent vantage ground for the study of character. The neighbourhood around is a vast artery of commerce, and the streets, despite the alterations that have taken place to meet the development of trade, often present a congested appearance, owing to the mass of human and material freight that mingle together apparently in inextricable confusion. Time, patience and skill successfully combat these difficulties, and when evening comes the ordinary every-day work has been accomplished, if not with ease, at least without more than the usual display of bad temper which is often not very unnaturally provoked. It has often struck us that strangers to London, and, indeed, all who desire to study character, might profitably visit the several railway stations. The time would be well spent also in observing the marvellous capacities of the gigantic railway operations of the metropolis, and nowhere could they observe a more varied—we might almost say a cosmopolitan—illustration than at Fenchurch-street.

From the terminus the London and Tilbury line goes to Stepney, Bromley, Plaistow, Upton Park, East Ham and Barking, thence keeping by the side of the Thames to Rainham, Purfleet, Grays, Tilbury (for Gravesend and Margate by boats), Low Street and Mucking. The main line continues through Stanford-le-Hope to Pitsea, Benfleet, Leigh, and Southend, and is now extended to Shoeburyness. This latter addition is not only of service to those engaged at this great military station, but it affords increased opportunity for visitors to Southend to witness the experiments that are frequently made at Shoeburyness. The station is close to the School of Gunnery, and is therefore exceedingly convenient both for visitors and those engaged in the School. Near the Thames the country is flat and marshy, but as the country recedes from the river it rises to a considerable height, and in many parts presents pretty and diversified scenery.

No doubt the neighbourhood of East and West Ham has an ancient history. Near the former a stone Roman sarcophagus and some Roman coffins of lead were found while excavating for the great service of the North London system. Murray's Handbook for the Eastern Counties says it is probable that a cemetery existed at East Ham in connection with a Roman camp at Uphall, a short distance to the north of Barking. Some large earthworks are still to be observed at Uphall, on the left bank of the Roding, containing an area of forty-eight acres, which afford a topic of interest for the antiquarian, especially as to their origin. The church at West Ham is not without attractions, while the remains of Stratford Abbey in the locality, now built up in the wall of the Adam and Eve public house, suggest the contrast that time and circumstances have wrought. The church at East Ham possesses more decided features. It contains some fine specimens of Norman architecture, curious wall paintings, and monuments. Green Street House, used as a Roman Catholic Reformatory, "is a fine old mansion, with a brick tower," and is said to have been occupied by Henry VIII. and Anne Boleyn. Barking once had a magnificent Abbey, but all that remains is an embattled gatehouse, called Fire Bell Gate, which stands at the entrance of Barking Churchyard, where the curfew bell was formerly rung to warn the people to put out their lights and retire to rest. Like all other Monastic institutions of olden time, Barking Abbey had its miracles and a chequered career. It was founded about 670-5 by St. Erkenwold, Bishop of London, and his sister Ethelburga was the first Abbess. Under her rule, the Abbey prospered and became famous for its wealth of worldly goods, as well as of visions and miracles. St. Eckenwold died here, and it is stated that upon the removal of his body to London for interment, the procession was stopped by the flood at Ilford and Stratford Ferry. By a marvellous interposition of Providence, like that which caused the waters of the Red Sea to divide and let the Israelites pass safely through, the flood ceased, and an easy passage was made for the corpse and its attendants. This Ferry was a terrible nuisance, and it is reported that Queen Matilda or Queen Maud on one occasion got a drenching in crossing it. This accident led to a remedy, and the Queen caused the road to be turned, and a bridge and causeway to be built. This was the origin of the first "Bow Bridge," described as a "rare piece of work, for before that time the like had never been seen in England." What was intended as a free gift, with the addition of manors and a mill to maintain it, was afterwards made an instrument of charge upon the people. One, Pratt, imposed a toll and made the following singular charges: "For every cart carrying corn, wood, coal, &c., one penny; of one carrying tasel [the name for a male hawk] twopence; and of one carrying a dead Jew eightpence." Living or dead the Jews were considered fair spoil, and are still so regarded in some countries. But to return to the Abbey, the dedication day of which is the 11th October, a date memorable in 1883 as being that on which the first sod of the new railway from Barking to Pitsea was turned. St. Alburg's Day, as it used to be called, in honour of the patron saint St. Ethelburga, was set apart for the gathering together of a store of "wheat and milk for Frimité," or "Frummety," or "Furmety," as some call it, or "Thrummety" as it is called in Northamptonshire. It is made of new wheat, boiled in milk, with sugar and plums, thickened with flour and eggs, and is a very dainty dish. We are speaking of what used to be the Lincolnshire custom many years ago, when a Frumety feast betokened the ingathering of the harvest. Clare, in his "Shepherd's Calendar," says Furmety formed part of the fare at sheep-shearing festivities—

> "The high bowl was in the middle set,
> At breakfast time, when clippers yearly met;
> Filled full of furmety, where dainty swum
> The streaking sugar and the spotting plum."

Furmety was also a Christmas dish for breakfast and supper. From these incidents it is quite clear that new corn was not essential to the compound, for in June (sheep-shearing time) it would not be ready, and in December it would be approaching middle age at least. To make the corn serviceable under these circumstances it was "creed," otherwise soaked and rendered soft. Besides "Frimité," much else was provided by the Abbey on the Feast of St. Ethelburga. We read that on that day the cellaress was bound to provide half a goose for each lady, not a bad supply if a goose in those days was like what they are now. With all their piety the nuns loved good fare, and they had it too. The Abbess of Barking Abbey became so important a personage as to take with three others the high rank of baroness. She was often of royal or noble blood, and took precedence of all other Abbesses in England. Thomas à Becket's sister was appointed Abbess of Barking, after her brother's murder; Eleanor, Duchess of Gloucester, died there after the murder of her husband, towards the end of the fourteenth century. Indeed, before and after this period the Abbey of Barking was of great importance. Hainhault Forest was situate in the parish of Barking, and once possessed the celebrated Fairlop Oak, an enormous tree, the shadows of whose boughs it is stated covered an acre of ground. It was truly a monarch of the forest, but time and the depredations of excursionists sadly damaged its dimensions and hastened its decay. A composition was applied to it in order to preserve its remains, and a board was affixed to its limbs, bearing the following inscription: "All good foresters are requested not to hurt this old tree, a plaster having been applied to its wounds." A fire, caused by some incautious cricketers in 1805, further damaged the decrepid oak, and in 1820 a high wind completed its destruction. Part of the remnants were fashioned into a pulpit and reading desk for St. Pancras church. The mighty tree has vanished, Hainhault has been disaforested, Fairlop Fair has gone, and nothing now remains but the pulpit and desk referred to, and memory and imagination to recall the past.

The church is Norman and perpendicular, and contains numerous monuments, one to Sir C. Montagu, brother to the first Earl of Manchester, who is represented in a tent. The church will be best remembered as the place where Captain Cook, the great circumnavigator, was married to Elizabeth Betts. Not far from Barking is Eastbury House, a very fine specimen of the Tudor style of architecture. It is built of brick, the chimney stacks and pinnacles at the corners of the gables being especially noticeable as examples of moulded work. Tradition gives it that the Gunpowder Plot conspirators met in this house, and that the plot was discovered owing to a warning letter intended for Lord Monteagle finding its way by mistake to Eastbury House, occupied at the time by one named Montagne. Some of the rooms at Eastbury are painted in fresco, and in one of them is a coat of arms.

Little of interest marks the line from Barking to Purfleet, the churches at Rainham and Wennington alone being worthy of a visit, and these only by persons who are concerned in architectural and archæological inquiries. Aveley is but a short distance from Purfleet. It occupies an elevated position, and has a church dedicated to St. Michael, the architecture of which is marked by three distinct periods—Norman, Early English and Late Perpendicular. There is a small brass in the chancel, of Flemish workmanship of a peculiar and interesting character. Within a mile further on is Belhus, a family seat built in the time of Henry VIII., now in the possession of Sir Thomas Barret Lennard. It contains some family portraits of the "Dacres of the South," a few works of the old masters, rich old tapestry, and ceilings of carved oak. The house stands in a fine deer park, and speaking of it in 1751 Walpole says: "I never saw a place, for which one did not wish, so totally devoid of faults." In olden times the Bretts occupied a moated house in the same parish, possibly Le Bret, one of the murderers of Thomas à Becket, being one of them. It is now occupied by a farmer and has lost its ancient appearance, but is still of interest to the antiquary. There is a very old church at West Thurrock, along the line from Purfleet. It possesses curious architectural features and effigies. Adjacent is Grays-Thurrock, picturesquely situate, with Belmont Castle standing on a cliff, and overlooking the landscape below and beyond. Grays is the next station. It was a market town as early as 1207, and at one time was a place of considerable importance; even now a large trade is carried on in the lime quarries. Stifford, and South and North Ockendon lie to the north of Grays. The churches at these places are worth a visit, that of South Ockendon being one of seven in Essex having round towers. Many antiquities have been found in the neighbourhood, and amongst items of interest are monumental brasses, mural tablets, and stained glass. North Ockendon was once famous for the healing qualities of the water of seven springs, but they are now quite forgotten. Little Thurrock, about a mile east of Grays, is remarkable for excavations in the chalk known as "Dane-pits," "Dane-holes," or "Cunobeline's Gold-mines." Similar excavations exist at East Tilbury, near the fort, and are supposed to communicate with those of Chadwell, adjoining Little Thurrock. There are many others of the same character on both sides of the Thames, and they have given rise to many speculations as to their origin and uses. A narrow entrance from above leads to spacious chambers some thirty feet below. It is believed that these holes were made for the sake of the chalk itself, which was largely exported in very early times, and many afterwards have been used as hiding places for the Danes. They are evidently very ancient, as British coins and remains of British pottery have been discovered in some of them.

But Tilbury Fort is the great centre of attraction. Around it cling the associations of war and national glory, which time cannot dim nor modern progress obliterate. It will ever be connected in the minds of Englishmen with the defeat of the Spanish Armada, with the gallant deeds, the heroism and patriotism of those famous warriors—Drake, Frobisher, Howard, Raleigh, and indeed the whole nation. It is related that when the news reached Drake of the threatened attack, he was playing a game of bowls on Plymouth Hoe. The grand old sea lion was not at all flustered; he continued to play on, saying "there was plenty of time both to win the game and beat the Spaniards." Never were the hearts of England so stirred as at this period; the people rose to the Spanish challenge with high-strung souls and defiant hearts. Stow says, "It was a pleasant sight to behold the soldiers as they marched towards Tilbury, their cheerful countenances, courageous words and gestures, dancing, and leaping wheresoever they came; and in the camp their most felicity was hope of fight with the enemy; where ofttimes divers rumours rose of their foe's approach, and that present battles would be given them; then were they joyful at such news, as if lusty giants were to run a race." One of the most memorable incidents, and one of the proudest too, was the conduct of Queen Elizabeth. She put on the armour of a warrior, mounted her war house, and with truncheon of command in her hand, was prepared if need be to lead her gallant troops to battle in defence of her authority and kingdom. Her address to her "living people" of Tilbury was one of the most spirited ever delivered to an army, and is worthy of a place among the lessons taught in every school where the English tongue is spoken. We make no apology therefore for quoting it here. She said, "We have been persuaded by some that are careful of our safety to take heed how we commit ourselves to armed multitudes, for fear of treachery; but I assure you I do not live to distrust my faithful and loving people. Let tyrants fear! I have always so behaved myself that, under God, I have placed my choicest strength and safeguard in the loyal hearts and goodwill of my subjects; and, therefore, I am come amongst you as you see at this time, not as for my recreation and disport, but being resolved in the midst and heat of bataile to live or die amongst you all—to lay down, for my God, and for my people, my honour and my blood, even in the dust. I know that I have but the bodie of a weak and feeble woman, but I have the heart of a King, and of a King of England too! and think foul scorn that Parma or Spain, or any Prince of Europe, should dare to invade the borders of my realm! To which, rather than any dishonour shall grow by me, I myself will take up arms—I myself will be your general, judge and recorder of everie of your virtues in the field. I know, alreadie, for your forwardness you have deserved crowns, and we assure you, on the word of a Prince, they shall be duly paid you." We need not attempt to describe the effect produced by such an appeal, nor need we dwell upon the discomfiture of the Armada. They are matters of history. As a topic of interest it may be mentioned that Daniel Defoe, the author of "Robinson Crusoe," had a tile manufactory at Tilbury and lived in a house near the river. He was not as successful in trade, however, as he was in fiction.

From Tilbury the line goes to Low Street, Mucking, and Stanford-le-Hope. The churches in the locality of Stanford-le-Hope and the Manor House, at Hassels, once the seat of the Fetherstonhaughs, are objects of interest, while from Horndon-on-the-Hill some good views can be obtained. In the neighbourhood are Corrington and Fobbing. Both villages possess ancient churches, and Fobbing is noted as the place where Jack Straw's rebellion broke out. Murray's Handbook says: "Jack Straw was a priest who assumed that name; and under his leadership the men of Fobbing killed the collectors of the pole-tax, placed their heads on poles, and set out on their march, gathering strangers as they went, until they joined the main body of the insurgents under Wat Tyler." Near Benfleet station is Canvey Island, evidently an ancient settlement or place of note. Legth is a little fishing town famous for shrimps and winkles. It is prettily situated, part of the houses being built on a wooded acclivity. The church holds a commanding position, it is of ancient foundation, and contains a number of monumental brasses, painted windows, and carved oak stalls. The next station is Southend, a growing popular watering place, directly opposite the river Medway. The old town stretches along the shore, but a new town has been built at the western extremity on a cliff 80 feet above the water, the descent from which has been planted with shrubs and trees, forming a very pleasant walk. Thousands of visitors flock from London in summer by rail and boats. For the accommodation of the latter there is a pier, a mile and a quarter long, which, when the tide is up forms a very agreeable promenade. Little rain falls at Southend, and for children especially it is considered very healthy. Interesting trips can be arranged particularly to villages containing some old churches. As early as the ninth century Shoeburyness, a short journey from Southend, was selected for the construction of military works. There the Danes built up earthworks, the remains of which are to be seen to this day on the farther side of the ness towards Wakering. During the Crimean war Shoeburyness was chosen for camping-out training, and troops were embarked from here. It has since become the headquarters for experiments in Artillery, and is to this branch of war what Shorncliffe is to the infantry and cavalry troops. In a military sense it is the most important place in the Kingdom, for here are tested the monster arms that enter into the lists with distance and defy the old defences that were once thought to be impregnable. Only the privileged few can obtain admission to the main trial ground on field days, but there is always something going on to interest the general visitor. The country to the north of the line is more picturesque than that on the south, and contains many attractive features. At the north-east corner is Burnham, on the River Crouch, noted for its oysters, the culture of which is here carried on with skill and success. Lower down, and on a fork of the River Roach, is Rochford, a small town, of no importance of itself. It had a market as early as the middle of the thirteenth century; it also had the right of wrecks at sea, and a tumbrel, or ducking-stool, for the punishment of scolding wives. This instrument of correction of virago was once in common use, and a Frenchman named Niesson, thus describes one he saw—in his work, entitled "Travels in England"—about the year 1700:—"This method of punishing scolding women is funny enough. They fasten an arm chair to the end of two strong beams, twelve or fifteen feet long, and parallel to each other. The chair hangs upon a sort of axle, on which it plays freely, so as always to remain in the horizontal position. The scold being well fastened in her chair, the two beams are then placed, as near to the centre as possible, across a post on the water side, and being lifted up behind, the chair, of course, drops into the cold element. The ducking is repeated according to the degree of shrewishness possessed by the patient, and generally has the effect of cooling her immoderate heat, at least for a time." The form of the instrument varied in different places, its effects were generally of the same curative efficacy. What is known by the name of the "Lawn" is situate at the entrance of the town from the west. Here once stood Rochford Hall, successively the seats of persons of more or less distinction. On the marriage of Sir William Boleyn, of Blickling, Norfolk, with the co-heiress of the Botelers, Rochford passed to him. His son, Sir Thomas, the father of the unhappy Queen of Henry VIII., inherited the estate, and here no doubt Anne passed some portion of her earlier life. The associations of the place, therefore, are interesting, and the avenue that once led to the Hall, nearly a mile long, affords a pleasant shade for contemplation. Further westward is Rayleigh, near which is what is called the "Castle," but which is a large mound formed to a great extent of made earth. It resembles somewhat a similar hill at Castle Rising, Norfolk, but unlike it in this respect that there are no ruins, nor has any trace of stonework been found. That it was once a stronghold there can be no doubt, but of what material the "Castle" consisted can only be conjectured and not determined. South of Rayleigh is Thundersley, with a church that is worth a visit. At South Benfleet there are signs of Danish work, but the object of surpassing interest in the locality is Hadleigh Castle, the ruins of which have been aptly described as "fragmentary walls and broken towers slumbering in solitude like the remains of a mangled giant of other days, on the brow of a steep hill which rises boldly from the water and impart a peculiar interest to the beauty of the surrounding scene." The Castle was built in 1231 by Hubert de Burgh, and could its walls speak they would tell tales of love and war, and of joy and despair. As it is, they are silent witnesses of a past grandeur, the extent of which requires the aid of imagination to discover. The ruins are grand in their decay, from the beauty of the situation they occupy and from the framework in which they are set. They are a tempting shrine at which all tourists who visit that part of Essex should pay their devotions.

The new line of which we have previously spoken, joins Pitsea with Barking. The route lies through a hilly part of the country, and offers some points of commanding eminence. The first station from Pitsea is among the Langdon Hills. They form the highest ground in the county, except Danebury, and from their summit grand views can be had of London, the sinuous Thames and its ever-moving freight. Morant says, it is "the grandest prospect in England." This statement must be taken cum grano salis. Hornchurch and Upminster, farther on, afford, if possible, views of a still more magnificent landscape. These places are among the principal charms of Essex, and take one back into that rural life of England which is fast departing owing to the facilities for intercourse that railways furnish. Hornchurch was once renowned for its fellmongery, and is "still noted for the annual wrestling match among its residents for a boar's head on Christmas Day." When the custom arose we cannot say, but it would be no great stretch of imagination to fix the time when forests existed and wild boars roamed through them. Hornchurch is a quaint old town of two straggling streets, with church and gabled houses, and old-time ways. Upminster, only about a mile distant, is of a similar character, with very pleasant surroundings. Both places should on no account be missed by the tourist, especially now that the railway has opened them up. A journey of considerable distance would have to be taken to see what is now brought to our very doors by the new line. Near Barking is Dagenham, well known to anglers for the sport a pool yields to lovers of the "gentle art." A large tract of land in the parish lies lower than the bed of the river, and was often inundated. Engineering skill, immense labour, and a large outlay of money ultimately triumphed, and the water was kept from flooding the country round about. The church is not remarkable except that it contains a monument of Sir Richard Allybone. He was advanced to the post of judge, although a Roman Catholic, by James II., and took part in the trial of the Seven Bishops, in which he displayed a strong Court partizanship. Two of his colleagues engaged in this memorable trial—Judges Holloway and Powell—were displaced in consequence of the thoroughly honourable and independent course they adopted on that occasion.

We now leave the London, Tilbury, and Southend Railway, in the hope that what we have said may induce tourists to visit a part of the country but little known, but which in many parts is very picturesque and beautiful, and in some quaint and rare.

According to the summer arrangements of the above line we find that trains at cheap fares run every week-day from Fenchurch-street at 8·23 and 9·13 a.m. (calling at each station to Barking) for Southend and Shoeburyness. Return fares—Southend, 5s first class; 4s second class; 3s third class. To and from Shoeburyness 6d, 4d, and 3d, according to class, extra. Cheap fares by all Sunday trains. Cheap return tickets are issued to and from Gravesend by several trains leaving Fenchurch-street on week-days. Fares—2s 6d first class, 2s second class, 1s 6d third class; including admission to Rosherville Gardens, 2s 9d, 2s 3d, and 1s 9d respectively. Cheap fares by all Sunday trains.

Every Sunday and Monday a special through train runs on the North London line to Southend and Gravesend *vi*à Bow and Bromley, leaving Chalk Farm at 9.10 a.m. Fares to and from Southend—5s first-class, 4s second-class, 3s third-class. To and from Gravesend—2s 6d, 2s, and 1s 6d respectively.

The Margate boat season commences to-day, the 27th inst. A train leaves Fenchurch-street every day at 10·15 a.m. for Tilbury, where steamers belonging to the Steam Navigation Company meet them, and convey passengers to Margate. There is also a return service, the fares for the double journey being 7s first class, 5s 6d third class; children 3s 6d. Add 6d to these fares from stations on the North London line. The single fares are 5s, 4s and 2s 6d from Fenchurch-street, and 6d extra from North London stations.

It should be noted that special provision is made for picnic, white-bait, and other pleasure parties, and every facility is offered for school treats, bean-feasts, or any other small or large gatherings.

The receipts for the year were stated to have been £242 1s 5d, and the expenditure £179 3s 1d, leaving a balance of £82 18s 4d. The statement of accounts had been printed and circulated amongst the members. It was taken as read, and, on the motion of Brother Col. Gough, seconded by Brother F. James, it was adopted.

The Provincial Grand Master said that, with the assistance of his Deputy, who had visited all the Lodges in the Province, he had made out a list of Officers, which he trusted would meet the approval of the brethren. It was impossible to find offices for all who deserved promotion. The announcement that Bro. Bridgeham, No. 726, Stafford, who was unavoidably absent through having to attend a funeral, was willing to continue to act as Treasurer, was received with expressions of satisfaction, and he was unanimously re-elected to

The brethren, on adjourning from the Lodge-room, formed a procession, which was marshalled by Bro. Fowke P.D.C. Between the Chaplains and the Provincial Grand Master and his Deputy were four Lewises—Charles Lomas, George Owens, Henry Barnes, and Harry Edwin Smyrk—carrying the Volume of the Sacred Law. The brethren in procession marched to the Cathedral for Divine Service. The Dean of Lichfield (Dr. Bickersteth) had kindly undertaken to preach on the occasion, and Mr. J. B. Lott, the Cathedral organist, presided at the grand instrument which the Cathedral contains. The service was impressive throughout, and afforded the greatest satisfaction to the brethren. The lessons were read by the Rev. T. Lloyd P.G.C. and Archdeacon Iles P.P.G.C. The Dean, taking as his text the words "God setteth the solitary in families," said—

It was doubtless by a Divine arrangement that mankind associated themselves in communities, whether great or small. Human society was nothing else but a vast system, a network of mutual dependencies which would not tolerate anything like solitariness. He could not, but think that the origin of Freemasonry, lost as it is in a very remote antiquity, was due to that love of association which finds its highest and most perfect expression in the Church of God. Signs were a common feature of most associated bodies; and they were probably used at first to supply the deficiencies of language, and to enable persons of different races, and using different languages, to communicate with one another. It was to the honour of Freemasonry that the principles of kindness and morality, of truth and justice, had always been associated with it. Even so far back as the 8th century before the Christian era we found distinct allusions to the symbolism of the Masons' art—the "square" and the "compass," as representing order, regularity, and propriety. In a famous canonical work of Chinese origin, called the "Great Learning," we read that "a man should abstain from doing to others what he would not that they should do to him;" and this, added the writer, was called the principle of "acting on the square." To the same purpose Mencius (a disciple of Confucius), who lived about 300 B.C., taught that men ought to apply the "square" and "compass" to their lives, and the "level" and the "marking line" besides, if they would walk in the straight and even paths of wisdom, and keep themselves within the bounds of honour and virtue. The Dean proceeded to trace the history of Freemasonry in this country from A.D 304 when St. Alban, Britain's first martyr, was president of a council of Masons, if we may believe the old traditions respecting him, and in the course of this sketch, took the opportunity of expressing his own obligations and those of the Chapter to the Staffordshire Lodge of Freemasons for their generous offering of the beautiful statue of Henry III., as well as to the St. John's Lodge, for their gift of the striking figure of Solomon, both of which figures, the work of the clever sculptor, Mr. Bridgeman, adorn the west front of the Cathedral. In conclusion, the Dean said: In the year A.D. 1717 Freemasonry ceased to exist as an operative brotherhood. But it has never ceased to enjoy the favour and the patronage of the noble, the great, and the good. In more recent times the Duke of Wharton and the Duke of Buccleuch have been its Grand Masters; and at the present moment I need not remind you that its Grand Master is his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, who is never wanting when occasions worthy of his presence and support invite his attendance. It is not saying too much for the society of Freemasons that it tends to promote friendship, mutual assistance, loyalty to our Institutions, in Church and State, and religion and morality. Here are some of the present regulations of Freemasonry: "A Mason is obliged by his tenure to obey the moral law; and if he rightly understands his obligations he can never be a stupid atheist or a godless libertine." He "of all men should best understand that God seeth not as man seeth; for the Lord looketh in the heart." "A Mason must therefore never act against the dictates of his conscience." "Let his religion or his mode of worship be what it may, he is not excluded from the Order provided he believe in the glorious Architect of heaven and earth and practices the sacred duties of morality." Masons are taught "to regard the errors of mankind with compassion, and to strive, by the purity of their own conduct, to demonstrate the superior excellence of the faith which they profess." So that Freemasonry is "a bond of union between good men and true." A Mason is a peaceable subject of the civil power." He pledges himself "to conform to all lawful authority, to uphold the interests of the community, and to promote the prosperity of all ranks and classes in his own country." Hence "kings and princes in every age have been disposed to patronise the craftsmen on account of their peaceableness and loyalty." Permit me my brethren of this ancient and honourable Brotherhood, to remind you once more of that higher and nobler association into which Christianity admits you. Talk of honour, and truth and justice; talk of warm-hearted friendship and generous devotedness; talk of all that is lovely and of good report; where will you find these and other virtues in higher perfection than in him who has accepted Christ and His salvation, and has resolved to live "to Him who died for him and rose again." This Masonic association, good and excellent as it appears to be, is terminated, as far as you individually are concerned, by death. But he who has a place in the family of God is beyond the reach of earthly change or mortal decay. Death, which breaks up earthly alliances, makes this Brotherhood eternal. May God by his Spirit unite us all in this heavenly companionship through Jesus Christ our Lord.

At the close of the service the brethren returned to the Guildhall, and business was resumed. The D.P.G.M. said he was sure they must all have been intensely delighted with the very beautiful service to which they had listened. The sermon was fine, and the service was enhanced by the splendour of the beautiful temple in which it was held. They could not help being struck by the peculiar appropriateness of the service, having reference to the fundamental principles of Freemasonry, embodying as they did the lessons of "brotherly love, relief, and truth." They had been favoured with an exceedingly able discourse, and they were greatly indebted to the Dean. It was a matter of astonishment that the Dean, not being a Freemason, was so skilled in Masonry, and it was a source of regret that he was not a member of the Fraternity. He proposed that the Provincial Grand Master should be specially requested to convey to the Dean of Lichfield the sincere thanks of the brethren for his kindness in opening the Cathedral, arranging for such an admirable service, and especially for his sermon. Bro. James, in seconding the proposition, said the remarks of the Dean made him wonder whether in the earlier period of his life he (the Dean) had been initiated into the Craft. At any rate, the history of Freemasonry was well known to him, and they might feel that at any rate there was one good man outside their ranks who did not hesitate to speak well of Freemasonry. The proposition was carried with applause.

Bro. Cartwright announced that the collection at the Cathedral amounted to £15 13s 10d. Bro. James proposed that £5 5s be given towards the fund for restoring St. Chad's Church and £5 5s to the funds of the Lichfield Nursing Institution. Bro. Dr. Clarke seconded the proposition. He bore personal testimony to the value of the Nursing Institution, which he said had been in existence about three years. The motion was passed unanimously.

After the close of the Lodge, a large number of the brethren proceeded to the George Hotel, where an excellent banquet was provided by Mrs. Owen. The toasts were interspersed with some unusually good vocal music; glees and songs being given by Brothers Harrison, Bickley, Fredericks and Mountford, the accompaniments to the songs being played by Brothers Mountford and Harper. The Provincial Grand Master, who presided, gave the Loyal toasts, remarking with reference to the Prince of Wales that during the time his Royal Highness had held the office of Grand Master of England, a period of ten years, the Masonic Lodges had nearly doubled in this country. Bro. Dr. Clarke, in appropriate terms, proposed the Earl of Carnarvon Pro Grand Master, Earl Lathom Deputy Grand Master, and Officers of the Grand Lodge, Present and Past, coupling with it the name of Bro. Foster Gough G.S.B., who said he did not consider the Province of Stafford had been fairly dealt with in the matter of appointments in the Grand Lodge, and he hoped he should soon have a Staffordshire colleague who would wear what might be termed the imperial purple. Bro. James, alluding to the sermon which the Dean had preached, said they had the history of Freemasonry unfolded to their view by a master hand. They had had Freemasonry introduced into this country, under varying circumstances, since at any rate the fourth century. It had been interdicted and resisted in various forms, but there never was a time when it was so progressive as it was at the present day, and particularly in Staffordshire. Referring to the fact that the Provincial Grand Master was obliged to spend a considerable portion of his time in Wales owing to the delicate state of his health, he (Bro. James) jocularly suggested that in these days of rapid and cheap travelling it might possibly happen that at some future day the Provincial Grand Lodge of Staffordshire might be held on the Great Ormshead to suit Bro. Tudor's convenience. He proposed the health of the Provincial Grand Master, which was very heartily received. Bro. Tudor, in reply, said while he regretted the state of his health had not enabled him to visit the Lodges, they had been visited by his Deputy, who had kept him informed of everything that was going on. During the last ten years the number of Lodges in Staffordshire had increased from 19 to 27, of which he had consecrated six himself. He urged the necessity of exercising caution so as not to admit members who would do discredit to the Craft. He spoke of the great value of the Masonic Charities, of which he said the Fraternity had cause to be proud. He trusted that they would continue to support the Charities and carry out the principles to which the Dean of Lichfield alluded—"brotherly love, relief, and truth." The health of the Deputy Prov. Grand Master was proposed by Bro. W. H. Hales and suitably acknowledged. Bro. Cartwright proposed the Visitors, for whom Bro. W. T. Parkins, No. 468, Birmingham, responded. The toast of the Worshipful Masters and Officers of the Lodges in the Province was proposed by Bro. the Rev. T. Lloyd and acknowledged by Bro. Perkins W.M. 1039. Bro. F. James, in proposing the toast of the Masonic Charities, said they were the outward and visible sign of that true Masonic spirit, which he hoped was always present in the breast of every Freemason. They were substantial outward signs, and conveyed to the world some reason why persons should band together to assist their poor unfortunate brethren and also for that high and noble object of thinking charitably of all men. While describing the Masonic Institutions as extremely valuable, he pointed to the Wolverhampton Orphan Asylum and other Institutions as being efficiently managed at less cost per head than the Masonic Institutions for Boys and Girls, and he expressed a hope that a reform in this direction would be effected. He directed attention to the rapid growth of the Staffordshire Masonic Charitable Institution, and suggested for consideration whether some of the recipients of the Benevolent Fund could not be maintained in the Provinces instead of at Croydon. The list of toasts was shortly afterwards concluded.—Staffordshire Advertiser.

REPRESENTATIVE PROVINCIAL STEWARDS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I do not think that "J. B." need have been apprehensive of being stormed at or abused for his letter on the above subject, although I confess that Masonic correspondents seem frequently to display unnecessary excitement in the tone of their fraternal controversies. He has spoken from experience, and doubtless there is something in his argument. I always thought that the object of any brother in undertaking a Provincial Stewardship was to secure to that Province the benefit of the cumulative vote, which would otherwise be lost. If a number of brethren go up as Stewards from a Province each bringing his own list, the chances are that such lists will be small and will not carry with them any extra votes, whereas if all these lists were added together the result would be a gain in the shape of a number of extra votes. If a brother acts as Provincial Steward it is certainly his duty as well as to his interest to do his best for his list. My own impression is that the increasing number of unattached Stewards is occasioned by these "rovers" finding themselves better able to annex stray subscriptions from all quarters as independent Stewards than if they represented any particular Province or Lodge.

I remain,

Yours fraternally,

T. B. W.

READING ROOM AND MUSEUM.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Every now and then an attempt is made to awaken interest in the intellectual culture of Freemasons, and although efforts in that direction have hitherto remained stillborn, I am not without hope that something will ultimately be done if a few earnest men keep pegging away. It is no use railing against the social habits of the brethren, and it is, to say the least, questionable tactics to talk about the monotony of our ceremonies. Freemasons, like most other people, enjoy the pleasures of the table, and why should they not? Englishmen are, and always have been, what may be termed good livers, and it would be strange indeed if members of the Craft who possess special facilities should be an exception to the general rule. Monotonous, as I admit the proceedings of most Lodges to be, and abused and shamefully shorn of their beauty as the ceremonies often are, it is gratifying to know that so many brethren attend to Lodge business and are therefore compelled to listen to the ceremonies, the good seed of which does not always fall on stony ground.

Lectures have been recommended as a means of varying the proceedings of Lodges. That is an excellent plan provided lecturers can be found competent to fulfil the necessary conditions of office. It should be remembered that there are few brethren so capable as Bro. Woodford and Bro. Stevens to entertain and interest a Lodge. At any rate only one here and there has come forward, and among that honourable number may be mentioned Bro. W. W. Morgan. A lecturer, to be successful, should be well-read in the literature of the Order, should have a cultivated mind, a ready address and pleasing manners. These qualifications are not often found in combination, and where they, or any of them are absent, their efforts are more monotonous than the ceremonies are alleged to be. Still, I would not discourage even the feeble efforts of those who think they have something to say. The chief object at present is to galvanise dead bones, to stir up the dormant energies of the few, and to educate the many.

I am of opinion that much good might be done in Lodges of Instruction were questions put by members to the Preceptors, not only as to the precise words of the ritual, but as to the history of the ceremonies and their relative bearing. Discussion might very fairly be raised on questions of jurisprudence, such, for instance, as to the meaning of suspension and exclusion; also as to the naming and numbering of Lodges, Provincial honours, and many other matters of interest. No doubt it would be discovered that the Preceptors, as a rule, are as ignorant as the brethren generally of all questions outside of their immediate duties. Were they pressed with questions they would either have to seek information, or point out where it could be obtained. By this means a spirit of inquiry would be aroused, and a demand for Masonic literature would be created. Once make ignorance an object of contempt, or even unfashionable, and one great step towards a remedy will have been taken. There would soon be a library worthy of the name at Freemasons' Hall, with a Reading Room where brethren could go and sit and peruse the Masonic literature of the world at their leisure. The same room would do for the brethren who have to attend on matters of business. For example, at elections and on occasions when the Lodge of Benevolence meets. Instead of the brethren having to lounge about in corridors, sometimes for hours, in semi-darkness, kicking their heels, or ruminating over their misfortunes, they might be snugly ensconced in a room well-lighted, with papers and books as companions. The weariness of waiting would be lessened if not removed, and unwholesome and troublous thoughts would be superseded, for the time at least.

Once get the Reading Room, the Library would soon increase, and naturally would follow a Museum. The way to get both is first to awaken a spirit of inquiry, one method of doing which I have pointed out, and then to insist upon Grand Lodge loosing its purse-strings and doing a duty it has too long neglected. "Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise." Masonic bliss has dwelt too long in ignorance, and time is long past for action at improvement. I do not expect that many will stir in the matter, but the earnest ones need not despair. Great things from little causes spring, and who knows how near the future may be when a brother shall be esteemed for his qualities of head as well as of heart, and not, as is too often the case now, because he possesses the one only qualification of being rich.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

WATCHMAN.

THE THEATRES.

Vaudeville.—Much praise and all possible encouragement is due to the plucky little society modestly calling itself "The Dramatic Students." It was constituted by certain scholarly juniors of the dramatic profession, who purpose from time to time to present some play of recognised value from those rarely seen on the stage. By this arrangement there will, from time to time, be offered works tempting to the curiosity of younger spectators, interesting recollections for those of the elders. On Friday afternoon, the 19th inst., at the Vaudeville, a large and very appreciative audience gathered to see our "Students'" interpretation of the "Two Gentlemen of Verona," a play that has not seen the footlights in London for some thirty years. Anticipatory irony lurked in the corner of many a critical eye, and surprise was no less great than pleasure when the audience listened to the refined and manly elocution of both gentlemen—Valentine and Proteus. Proteus is at the best an ungrateful character. He betrays his friend, and is false to the fair Julia; for love's sake sinking to a very cad. Shakespeare, however, makes us forgive him—for this same love's sake. In some hands, Proteus would be simply detestable, but Mr. Charles Fulton, by youthful impulsiveness and gallant bearing, made him sympathetic despite himself. Mr. Bernard Gould, as Valentine, attained great excellence; he spoke his lines with a ring of sincerity, and evidently felt the music of Shakespeare's exquisite verse. It was a fine bit of comedy, touched with pathetic sentiment, where Valentine's plan to escape with Silvia is discovered by her father, who snatches the lover's cloak from his shoulder and discovers the rope ladder. Mr. C. Thorpe played the small part of Eglamour with taste and feeling. Mr. Haydon Coffin won a well-deserved encore in the delightful song, "Who is Sylvia?" He sang as a true artist, and kept well within the scene, gazing at the lady's window, not as though addressing the orchestral stalls. Mr. Ben Greet created pleasant astonishment by the thorough way in which he realised the uncouth drollery of Launce; his scene with the dog delighted the house. Mr. Besley's Speed was a bright and racy vignette. He has the happy faculty of smiling so that the whole face seems illumined with a flush of fun. Miss Norroys was charming as Sylvia—graceful, tender, and dignified. We congratulate her heartily on such evidence of power and earnest study. Miss Webster, as Julia, marred her opening scenes by too much effort and too loud a delivery. Towards the close, however, when nervousness, to which these blemishes undoubtedly were due, had been overcome, her final scene was very pretty. The rest of the cast was efficient, but we would especially praise Mr. Mark Ambiant for his gracefully impertinent Sir Thurio. It was a pretty bit of comedy, in the Osric vein.

The Students next propose giving Charles Lamb's "Mr. H.," and Douglas Jerrold's "Housekeeper." We wish them a full house, and that success intelligence and hard work merits.

Strand.—So popular with playgoers is Mr. J. S. Clarke that a mere mention of the fact that he has increased the interest taken in the comedy of "The Heir at Law" by a double impersonation ought to draw full houses. Mr. Clarke now sustains the rôle of the mistrustful young rustic Zekiel Homespun, in addition to that of the self-satisfied pedant with whom he has so long identified himself. In both characters he demonstrates that his power to provoke laughter has increased rather than diminished. Other artists worthy of special mention are Mr. H. B. Conway as Dick Dowlas, and Miss Lucy Buckstone as Cicely Homespun. The "Heir at Law" is preceded by Mr. Rae's comedietta "The Sunny Side."

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Rheumatism and Rheumatic gout are the most dreaded of all diseases, because their victims know that they are safe at no season, and at no age secure. Holloway's Ointment, after fomentation of the painful parts, gives greater relief than any other application; but it must be diligently used to obtain this desirable result. It has been highly commended by rheumatic subjects of all ages and of both sexes, for rendering their attacks less frequent and less vigorous, and for repressing the sour perspirations and soothing the nerves. In many cases Holloway's Ointment and Pills have proved the greatest blessings in removing rheumatism and rheumatic gout which has assailed persons previously and at the prime of life.

WHICH SHALL IT BE?

SAINT JOHN the Baptist and Saint John the Evangelist have long held a place of special honour among the Craft in Christian lands. Distinct recognition is given them in the Prestonian system, and also in the ritual formulated by Webb, which is so generally adopted in this country. The two Saints John are denominated "eminent patrons of Masonry," and it is provided that Lodges shall be dedicated to the memory of these illustrious Christian worthies. Webb used the singular term, the "Holy Saint John," in announcing his formula for the dedication of Lodges, and some have supposed that he intended to show a preference for John the Baptist who was in some sense identified with the Craft organisations prior to the time of the "Revival," while there is no satisfactory evidence that St. John the Evangelist was so recognised until after 1717. Probably, however, Webb intended to refer to both Saints in the dedicatory sentence, and it was only a want of care that led to the printing of the formula in the manner stated. Elsewhere in his references he brings both names together as representing two eminent patrons of the Craft, and seemingly he would have both the Saints held in equal favour by the Fraternity.

In this country when Masonic Lodges are dedicated there is a recognition of the Saints John in the form observed, but in England the practice is to dedicate Lodges to King Solomon, and there is no reference to the Saints John in the ritual usually followed.

In this country, also, the Saints John are denominated "eminent patrons of Masonry," and their connection with the Order is supposed to be signified by the symbolism of a "point within a circle bordered by two parallel lines." According to the Webb explanation, "the point represents an individual brother, the circle represents the boundary line of his duty to God and man, beyond which he is never to suffer his passions, prejudices or interest to betray him on any occasion. The two perpendicular, parallel lines embordering the Circle represent St. John the Baptist and St. John the Evangelist, who were perfect parallels in Christianity as well as Masonry; and upon the vertex rests the book of Holy Scriptures which points out the whole duty of man. In going round this circle we necessarily touch upon these two lines, as well as upon the Holy Scriptures, and while a Mason keeps himself thus circumscribed it is impossible that he should materially err."

There has been a general use of the foregoing form of words in the rendering of work in American Lodges, and in this manner the symbolism referred to has received its usual explanation. Intelligent Brethren in their use of the formula have not intended to declare their belief that the Saints John were actual members of the Order, or that it is possible to trace a line of historic connection between them and the organisation which bears the Masonic name. The thought has been rather that the two Saints John, so admirably qualified by manifold graces to represent the noblest types of Masonic character, might well be associated in a moral and symbolic way with the Institution. No harm can come from such an identification, we think; yet there is an urgency of feeling on the part of many Brethren that the ritual and work should be so modified as to eliminate all reference to the Saints John. Lodges ought not to be dedicated to their memory, it is said, and there should be a return to first principles by pointing out the astronomical meaning of a "point within a circle bordered by two parallel lines," and teaching the candidate what most likely may have been the ancient significance of such a figure, viz.: its reference to the "annual path of the sun among the constellations of the zodiac," such a path being defined and limited by the parallel lines of the tropics. That the sun, as a symbol, is intimately connected with the Masonic system, cannot be doubted, and a reference of the figure to which attention has been called may well be made to the apparent movements of the sun as marked by the summer and winter Solstices. The sun's orderly course within these appointed limits may remind Masons of their moral duties, and also suggest to them that they will be apt to fall into no grievous error if they hold themselves within the lines that are made evident to the reason as bounding the exercise of man's just responsibility.

Which shall it be? Shall the form that recognises the Saints John be retained, or shall the astronomical reference and suggestion be taken in its place? We incline to the usage in which we were instructed—to an adherence to that form of explanation which brings two eminent types of human excellence into the case, besides allowing for a secondary reference to nature, and to the seeming movements of the sun in its defined and beautiful path. It can do no harm to point Brethren to the noble and heroic John the Baptist—to the saintly and loving John the Evangelist, and in a well-understood use of words, refer to these illustrious men as characteristically the "Patrons of Masonry."—Freemasons' Repository.

AN UNHOLY AMBITION.

THE times, Masonically, are not propitious for the encouragement and advancement to stations of honour and trust of merely ambitious persons, who, in most respects, unworthy of consideration, are selections not fit to be made. Where ambition is so selfish and unholy as to seek to thrive on disintegration, on the alienation of other and true men from interest and sympathy with the general work, making their successes to be built upon their own vanities and the enforced withdrawal of the regard of better and really influential brethren from the active work,—all such ambition should be rebuked, and the persons cherishing and nursing it should be told, with a pronounced emphasis, that they are not of the kind that is wanted.

Not only are the times not propitious for the advancement of such persons, but it will require the best judgment in the brethren of the Exaltation; the nicest discernment of what is proper to be done, and of who is fit to do it; the most generous recognition of the general brotherhood and the absolute silencing of the defaming and maligning tongue—by which unholy ambition seeks to soar; for however much brethren may be assured of and rest happily in the consciousness of their personal integrity and honour, the time comes when the assaults of vicious tongues employing sinister and damning insinuations for the merest selfish ends, are resented with the active, honourable contempt of good men, active in such form, place and influence, as will consign the selfish and the vicious to the punishment they deserve.

It must needs be, however, "that offences come"; it is also said, "wo unto that man by whom the offence cometh." It is also "expedient that one die for the people." It is further said: "Judgment must begin at the house of God."

No judgment can come upon Masonry; for like Divinity, it bears a charmed life, and its soul is truth itself, but Masonic brethren in their "most improved estate" cannot well bear without a sense of indignation, nor successfully resist, the processes of disintegration which may go on until brethren will either cherish hostilities, or lapse into indifference to the Institution, its grandeur of principle and its greatness and majesty of work.—Masonic Review.

The Chiswick Lodge of Mark Master Masons will be consecrated to-day (Saturday), at the Star and Garter Hotel, Kew Bridge. The proceedings will commence at 2·30.

The Dowager Lady Henniker has presented to the Church of Great Thornham, a painted window from the Studio of Mr. Taylor, of Berners-street, in memory of her husband, the fourth Lord, who died on Easter Eve, 1870. The subject of the window appropriately illustrates the "Eve of the Resurrection."

Under the title, "The Roll-Call of the Heroes," the editor of the Quiver will publish in the July number of that magazine an account of the brave deeds in recognition of which the first batch of silver and bronze medals have been awarded, from the fund now being raised by the readers of the Quiver for the institution of medals for heroic conduct in the saving of life by land and sea. Among the first recipients are a college student, a clergyman, a miner, a fisherman, a policeman, and a life-boat coxswain.

Jonas, L. Isaacs, and Rev. Sampson J. Rocco. The result being unanimous in their favour, the candi lates proposed were duly initiated into the Order in the W.M.'s perfect and impressive manner. Lodge was closed, and the brethren sat down to a very excellent cold collation provided by Bro. Dawkins. The W.M. stated he did not intend to make long speeches. In speaking to the toast of the Benevolent Fund, the W.M. said each of the newly-initiated brethren had given 21s. Bro. Isaac Botibol also gave 21s. Bro. L. M. Myers P.M. said he regretted the absence of Bro. Bean the I.P.M. (through illness); all hoped he might speedily recover. In his absence, however, he had pleasure in proposing the health of the W.M. The W.M. responded in a very excellent speech. The W.M., in proposing the toast of the Initiates, said he felt sure they would be a credit and honour to the Lodge; he hoped to see them eventually occupying the chair. Bro. Rev. S. J. Rocco eloqnently and impressively responded; he was followed by Bros. Isaacs, Jonas and Isaacson. For the Visitors Bros. Villing W.M. 534 and D. Woolf 72 responded. Several other toasts followed.

Fenner W.M., Turner S.W., Snook S.D., Kirk J.D., Marks I.G., Forge Installing Master and Treasurer, Trewinnard Preceptor, Collingridge Secretary; also P.M.'s Western, Jordan, Osborn and Hall. After preliminaries, Bro. Fenner, as candidate for installation, answered the questions and took the obligation. Lodge was opened in the third degree, and a Board of Installed Masters formed. The new Master was saluted in the various degrees, and Bro. Forge gave the addresses in his usual able manner. Lodge was closed, and adjourned till 29th inst., when the ceremony of installation will be rehearsed by Bro. Western W.M. 1693. Afterwards the brethren spent a pleasant hour. Bros. Bayne, Collins and Wright at the piano; Bros. Snook, Woodman, Bayne and others singing.

We announced, last week, that Bro. James Terry would rehearse the ceremonies of consecration and installation on Monday next, the 29th inst., at the Queen's Hotel, Victoria Park. We regret to state that owing to an indisposition, which necessitates our energetic brother resting for a few days, Bro. Terry has been compelled to postpone his visit. As, however, several brethren had already promised to attend, arrangements have been made that Bro. W. H. Lee, Prov. G. Assistant Secretary Middlesex, will take Bro. Terry's place as regards the installation ceremony. In addition, Bro. W. W. Morgan, I.P.M. 211, has kindly consented to deliver his lecture on "The Masonic Institutions; their Establishment and Development." Lodge will be opened at 7 o'clock. Brethren to wear Masonic Craft clothing. The Hotel is five minutes walk from Victoria Park Station.

The Robert Burns Lodge of Instruction, No. 25, has removed from the North Pole, Oxford-street, to the Portland Arms Hotel, 40 Great Portland-street, W.C.

We have been requested to state that the Annual Match of the Commercial Travellers' Cricket Club—London v. Country—will be played at Catford Bridge, on Saturday the 4th proximo, the ground being kindly lent by the "Private Banks." An excellent Military band will be in attendance. Bro. H. Baldwin is Captain of this old Club, and of the London team on this occasion, while Bro. E. Bowles, a man of Kent, will guide the destinies of the Country Travellers. The match is for the benefit of the Commercial Travellers' Schools and Benevolent Institutions. During the past few years this enterprising Club has divided between the above-named Institutions the large sum of 940 guineas.

Monday—Staff College. Tuesday—Old Paulines' Club. Wednesday—Smeatonian Society of Civil Engineers, Manchester New College.
