FREEDOM OF DISCUSSION.

IN introducing the First Number of our Twenty-first Volume to our readers little remains for us to say after the remarks with which we closed our Twentieth. There is, however, one matter to which our attention may well be devoted. We allude to the course we have pursued in the past, of allowing to all sections of the Craft free discussion of their views in our columns. We feel we are best consulting the interests of Freemasonry in England when we afford to the views of all who address us an equal share of publicity. Of course there is a limit beyond which we should not allow a correspondent to go, but we have not found it necessary, except in a few instances, to put our veto on any letters addressed to us. Our conduct in this respect has called forth a word of caution from our esteemed contemporary the Evening News, which remarks that "the opening of a new year is a fitting time to caution the brethren against the perpetration of un-Masonic acts." "It is a curious fact," says our contemporary, "that a difference of opinion is seldom argued out inoffensively, a tendency being constantly shown by the disputants to endeavour to say something hurtful to each other's feelings." In this view we fully coincide; indeed it has often pained us to be called upon to publish in extenso the letters we have received, on account of their occasionally containing sentences which might be looked upon as offensive, and we have, in no few instances, suggested modifications; but bearing in mind our programme—our determination to afford a medium of discussion to all sides—we have felt unable to wholly exclude them. For this reason we cannot allow the expressions of the Evening News to pass unquestioned. "The Masonic Press," it says, "unfortunately exercises scarcely sufficient caution over the correspondence which it admits into its pages with respect to contentious matters, and from time to time hard expressions are allowed to appear which a little reflection must convince the writers had better not have been used." Speaking for ourselves, we consider that caution is used, and from our standpoint sufficient caution. We claim for ourselves freedom of discussion on all points connected with the Craft, and we allow our correspondents the same. The views of one writer can very rarely be the same as those of all who read them, but it is nothing short of presumption for any one individual, because he happens to disagree with the expressions of one side, to argue that they must of necessity be wrong, and that his ideas are the only correct ones. Neither can we agree with our contemporary in saying that "however trivial the subject, it is enough that every one should not be of the same mind on it to rush into print." "Nor do we believe it would be necessary in so doing to say what is supposed to be smart in order to hold up the opponent as an example of folly." Our contemporary must admit it is next to impossible to write on subjects of a personal character without introducing arguments which may be taken as offensive, and the class of correspondence to which our contemporary more particularly refers cannot be described as anything but personal. Under these circumstances we argue that what looks like "smart" writing is nothing more than the necessary emphasis of the writer. Our experience has convinced us that in many of the cases where offence was taken no one was more surprised or pained thereat than the offender himself. To prove more fully what we mean, we may refer to past discussions to which we have devoted editorial attention. In not a few instances we have been blamed by both sides for showing favour to the other, thus proving, to our mind, the fairness of our arguments, and the all but utter impossibility of pleasing everybody. If this is the case with us, how much more likely is it to be so with those who, without experience, avail themselves, perhaps for the first time, of the columns of a newspaper to give publicity to their views. They may be sincere in what they do; they may desire to keep clear of everything likely to give pain or offence, and may write solely in the hope of doing good; yet they are misunderstood; the meanings of their sentences are twisted until they can hardly believe they ever wrote them, and such unworthy motives attributed to them that they feel actually ashamed of themselves. Very much of this abuse arises, we think, from the inability of most writers to keep their temper in the discussions in which they take part; if they would write in defence of the views they take, rather than in opposition to the writer on the other side, they would keep clear of the recriminations which are usually returned to them with interest. It should be possible to write in opposition to a man's views without writing in opposition to the man. The best of friends must occasionally differ in their ideas on particular subjects, but that is no reason for their quarrelling with each other. Indeed, we consider that the man is to be pitied who cannot read the fiercest onslaught of his opponent in a discussion without engendering feelings of personal antagonism to the writer.

The latest circumstances out of which this objectionable writing has arisen, remarks our contemporary, is the recent nomination of three brethren for election to the office of Grand Treasurer, and it will doubtless strike our readers that the letters which have appeared in our last few numbers more particularly account for the "caution" it has been deemed necessary to publish. The Evening News considers the correspondence in our pages is to be deplored and deprecated. If that correspondence was written simply with the object of personally attacking those referred to in it, it is most certainly to be deplored and deprecated, but if, as we believe, it was written without any personal malice, and with the object of drawing attention to a fair matter of discussion, it is neither to be deplored nor deprecated; on the contrary, if the reader can disassociate himself from all feelings of animus to individuals, and read it calmly and dispassionately, it will then, we urge, clearly show itself in its true light,—and will present features which will call for consideration by all who take an interest in the matter.

In saying we intend to follow, in the future, the plan we have adopted in the past, we do not intend it to be understood we ignore the opinions of others. On the contrary, we attach as much importance to those who abuse us as to those who applaud, but we do not yet feel disposed to depart one bit from our programme; we intend to continue to provide—as long as we are able—a field for free discussion.

Her Majesty the Queen has been graciously pleased to present to the funds of the Booksellers' Provident Institution, through Sir Henry Ponsonby, K.C.B., a donation of £20. Her Majesty has been the Patron of the Society since the year 1868.

THE PAST YEAR'S CHARITY WORK.

THE year 1884 has been one of great prosperity to the Masonic Charities, as a cursory glance at the figures we are now able to give, and a comparison with the receipts of past years, will amply prove. It is true that the amounts do not total up to so large a sum as did those of the previous year, but it must be borne in mind that the special efforts then made on behalf of the Boys' Preparatory School Fund raised the total of that Institution far above the average, and it would hardly be fair to compare an ordinary year with one of such a special character. The totals of last year reach the grand amount of £48,823 17s 7d as compared with £55,994 14s 3d for 1883, announced by us in our first number of 1884, so that there is an actual falling off last year of upwards of £7,000; but as the special appeal on behalf of the Boys' School in 1883 realised between £10,000 and £12,000, it follows that last year's total shows an actual increase over that of its predecessor of something like £5,000. The following is a detailed statement of the receipts of the three Institutions as well as of the grants made by the Lodge of Benevolence, during the past year:—

A WORD IN SEASON.

THE circular issued by the zealous and hard-working Secretary of the Boys' School, a copy of which appears in another column, is one which should command at once—as we have no doubt it will—the earnest attention of every Worshipful Master, Treasurer, Secretary, and the brethren also of each Lodge under the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of England. There is no necessity to remind the brethren of the steps which last year led up to the institution of the Preparatory School, the building of which was commenced last September, near the Boys' Institution, Wood-green, and which is expected to be completed by Midsummer this year. That such a supplement to the Wood-green establishment was needful and desirable was sufficiently demonstrated at the time; and it became a subject for general congratulation when at length it was announced that sufficient support had been guaranteed to warrant the executive in commencing operations. Now, however, comes the point to which Bro. Binckes so timely and forcibly draws the attention of the Craft, and we can only hope that the various Lodges will give it that consideration which the importance of the subject demands. With no uncertain sound we are reminded that the executive are "face to face with the anxious question" as to whence are to be derived the additional means necessary for the maintenance of the Subsidiary Establishment, for the advantages of which the Committee will no doubt be prepared to recommend the election of a proportion of the number of boys for whom the additional accommodation is provided not later than at the Quarterly General Court next October. The statistics recently issued with regard to the financial results of the Masonic year—and with which we deal more exhaustively in another article—reveal the fact that the Boys' School was lowest on the list in the amounts secured during the year in aid of the three Great Institutions. This may, of course, be accounted for in a great measure by the fact of the extreme pressure which was put upon the Craft during the preceding year, to make a start for the Preparatory School; and thus all the money which could be raked up, to the end of 1883, was paid in, so as to secure the extra votes which the contributions handed in on or before 31st Dec. in the year carried. We have frequently heard it said that the services of individuals who make special exertions—often at great personal sacrifice—receive no recognition; and the question which may probably yet have to be considered is, whether it would not be to the advantage of the Institution, and a great assistance all round, if a competent Collector were appointed, as in the case of the Benevolent Institution, the result of which has shewn so satisfactorily during the last year or two. However, that is a matter of collateral interest in the face of the present appeal to the extended activities of the Craft. All we have to consider now is: The school has been projected, and is nearing its completion; how is it to be brought to a successful and happy issue? We have more faith in the solid and business-like energies of our brethren everywhere than to believe for one moment they will allow the work, so well begun, to fall through in consequence of any apathy or niggardliness on their part. But we know, on the other hand, that the past year has been exceptionally bad in every department of trade and commerce; and that the balances in the hands of the bankers at the end of the year just closed are small compared with that of former prosperous times. For all that, we hope and believe the brethren generally will ponder over the circumstances of the case brought before them with a frankness and candour that are eminently characteristic of the Secretary of the Boys' School. Bro. Binckes does not beat about the bush. He tells us, straightly, that supposing the experiment he tentatively tried by the admission of twenty-five boys, and the administration based on the most economic system possible, the expenditure cannot be less than from £1000 to £1200 over and above that now required. This is certainly not a very formidable request to make, and Bro. Binckes is fully justified in asserting that the long-contemplated extension of the Schools having been carried out in strict compliance with the wishes of the Craft, "nothing further in the shape of argumentative appeal need be resorted to." The suggestion of organising and maintaining a steady annual subscription in every Lodge within the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of England is equally sensible and sound; and we should hold but a very poor opinion of any Lodge who could or would not "put on the screw," so to speak, and contrive to send its guinea annually to the fund for carrying on the grand scheme which has been so admirably inaugurated. Hitherto, as we have seen, the idea of an annual and steady subscription has not been much favoured by Lodges in this country; although we have heard it dinned into the ears of the brethren over and over again, for years, what wonders could be effected if only the brethren would collectively unite and send a trifling sum, the loss of which they could not possibly feel, to the coffers of our Charities. Thus out of 68 District and Provincial Grand Lodges, there are only half a-dozen annual subscribers; and amongst 2019 private Lodges in England and the Colonies, there are only 135 that have yet adopted the principle urged by Bro. Binckes. In the Royal Arch there is a similar, if not graver, proportion of failure in this respect, for out of 650 Chapters only seven are annual subscribers. We can but echo the expression of assurance contained in the concluding sentences of the circular—"Surely something can be done to remedy this unsatisfactory state of things." And so would add, that whereas every Lodge could, if it so pleased, send its guinea a-year to help the executive in carrying out satisfactorily what they have so well begun; many are able, and will be glad, to send double and treble that amount, "either by donation direct; or through the medium of a Steward as representative of a Lodge;" so that it may not be said there is any diminution of the fervent zeal and sturdy determination we have always seen amongst the members generally of the Craft, in carrying out the great principles of Charity, of the past results of which they are so justly proud.

INTEREST IN LODGE WORK.

ONE of the most difficult questions, and one that has, at all times, presented itself to the Craft, is how to keep up the interest of the members in the Lodge work. The degrees have been so expanded in these latter days that a considerable amount of time is taken up in working them, and when, as it sometimes happens, two or three are given in the course of the evening the business gets very wearisome to the floor members who, when a chance occurs, gradually drop off, leaving the Lodge, perhaps, to be closed by a bare quorum. Many brethren there are who have an affection for their Lodge, but are frightened away by the tedium involved in giving too much work, and we have often heard the remark made that the whole business got wearisome. This plan of crowding too much into an evening can be easily avoided by setting apart a certain night for each degree, and letting same be intimated to the brethren generally. Should work accumulate, an emergency meeting held occasionally would clear all off, and relieve the regular meetings to an extent that would be readily appreciated by the members. By this method also the tax upon the Officers of the Lodge would be considerably less, with advantage to the general work and the proper rendering of the ritual. It may be urged that brethren would be kept back from taking their degrees in the usual monthly style generally adopted now, and, although at first sight this may possibly appear a hardship, yet we think that a closer look into the matter will show that, instead of being such, it would be a positive benefit not only to the candidates but the Craft in general. The present practice of rushing candidates through, night after night, who are really unacquainted with the degree they have just taken, and who, in a great many instances, are quite ignorant of the necessary qualifications for passing or raising, is one greatly to be deplored, and cannot be said to be either beneficial to the recipient of the degree or to the advantage of the Fraternity. With the fixed nights mentioned for the different degrees, these brethren would have time to prepare themselves, and, with the knowledge that at a certain date they must present themselves for advancement or wait a few months more, they would be more anxious to befit themselves for the occasion. With one degree only for each regular Lodge night, the meetings would terminate earlier; and should the Lodge favour the refreshment board, a few more minutes would be made available for that social intercourse that forms so important a part of the Masonic gathering.

We have, however, another side to look at. All Lodges are not overburdened with work, and possibly these Lodges contain some of the bone and sinew of the Craft, who, being more scrupulous and particular who they admit, have not so many brethren knocking at the door of the Lodge. These Lodges suffer from a want of something to do, and perhaps not feeling sufficient interest to play dummy and work a degree for practice only, merely open the Lodge and close it for, as they say, form's sake. Now, it would be ten chances to one but that within these Lodges there are many members extremely anxious to know "more about Masonry" than is given in the degrees and usual lectures, and it would range within the same amount of certainty that there are other members who are in a position to afford light to their inquiring brethren. What an ever ending fund of mutual instruction opens itself here! The Lodge would, indeed, be a source of pleasure and profit, and even the dullest of dullards must be benefitted by a discussion carried on in a fraternal spirit. Subjects there are without number, and all capable of having more light thrown upon them.

The bounden duty of Worshipful Masters is to make their Lodges bright and attractive to the whole of the brethren, and we commend the few lines just penned to their careful consideration.—Victorian Freemason.

Obituary.

BRO. ALFRED CHARLES RAWLINGS.

WE regret to have to announce the decease of Brother Rawlings, the Worshipful Master of St. Luke's Lodge, No. 144, which sad event took place on Sunday evening, the 21st ult. Bro. Rawlings was only installed into the Chair of King Solomon in October last, though it was apparent his state of health was unsatisfactory, but the brethren of his Lodge and many friends were in hopes he would recover. It has, however, pleased the Great Architect to will otherwise, and our lamented brother has died, at the early age of 37; rapid consumption having set in a few weeks back. The funeral took place on Saturday last, at the Great Northern Cemetery, Wood Green. Bros. Unite (Treasurer), Witts (Secretary), Barham, Ball, and Taylor P.M.'s of the Lodge, Coulthard, Hughes, Knight, Wittingham, Brown, Mann sen., and others were present. It is singular that a brother of the deceased, who was also an Officer of the St. Luke's Lodge, died a few years since, also at the age of 37; while, on the last Saturday in 1883 the brethren were called to attend the funeral of their then S.W. (Bro. G. W. Cole).

The obsequies of the late Warden of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution at Croydon, whose demise was briefly mentioned in our last issue, took place on Saturday last, at Croydon Cemetery. The coffin in which our deceased brother was buried was literally covered with floral wreaths and crosses, sent as affectionate tributes of respect, and sorrow at the loss of a venerable and highly-honoured friend. Amongst the chief mourners were Bro. James Creed Norris, son of deceased, and three grandsons; Bros. J. A. Farnfield, Thomas Cubitt P.G.P. and Edgar Bowyer P.G.S.B, members of the House Committee; Bro. James Terry Secretary and Bro. John Mason Collector of the Institution; Dr. Strong and Dr. Adams; and on behalf of the residents in the Asylum Bros. Shoring, Everest, Turner, Beckett, Maxwell, Mobbs, Churchhouse, Hole, Seabrook, and others. The home of the "Old Folks" has naturally been wrapped in gloom during the usual merry season, for the late Bro. Norris, though a rigid disciplinarian, was beloved by all, over whom he exercised a firm but gentle rule. When he died he was within a month of his 95th year, having been a resident in the Institution twenty-two and a-half years. Up to the last, although his hearing was rather defective, he was hale and hearty and enjoyed nothing more than a pleasant and lively chat with the visitors to the Asylum. His idea was that he was the oldest Freemason in England then living; but we are not aware as to the accuracy of our venerable brother's cherished idea, so many having claimed that distinction at various times. Anyhow, he had been a member of the Craft longer than the "allotted span" of human existence, and had he lived to the 10th of March next, he would have completed a Masonic career of seventy-three years. He discharged the duties of his position as Warden of the Institution with a considerable amount of tact and consideration.

THE GRAND TREASURERSHIP.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—It seems to me hardly worth while to enter into a controversy which can neither add to, nor detract from, the great question which may be at the present moment agitating the minds of certain sections of the Craft; but as the surface of Masonic opinion is just now ruffled by the openly-expressed ideas of correspondents, probably it may be opportune to reflect a word or two of that which is current amongst those who are most intimately acquainted with the subject. I have sought for no information in the matter, but it is impossible to move among Masons without being acquainted with the truth that the election of Grand Treasurer is (in the minds of some) one of those events with which the welfare of Freemasonry is inseparably connected. Really, the first question one is inclined to put to oneself is—Why all this fuss? And is the game really worth the candle? When so great a stand was made, "on principle," against the office of Grand Treasurer being a permanent one, and most strenuous efforts were made to vindicate the rights and privileges of the brethren with regard to the chief honour it was in their power to bestow, there was some show for objection to the proverbial anomaly, "once an Alderman always an Alderman." But that having been satisfactorily got over, by the succession of Bro. J. Derby Allcroft and Bro. Horace Brooks Marshall, the Craft had settled down into the belief that the honour was one that should be made a subject of emulation; although, if it be such a sinecure office, as many would have us believe, why all this contention for the bauble which lasts only for a year? Is Freemasonry to descend into the position of a mutual admiration society, and to become more and more limited in its sphere? If so, the grand aims of the Craft have been missed, and the arrow must fall short of its mark. None of us can fail to appreciate the stand which was made two or three years ago, in reference to the appointment of Grand Treasurer; though I am one of those who think that, after all, there is a vast amount of responsibility, as well as honour, attached to it. What honorary Treasurer of any institution—be his duties heavy or light—but is regarded in a proper sense as the safeguard and protector of the funds which are subscribed towards the object for which that institution was designed? And so in our own Order, it cannot be—must not be—supposed that the brother who is considered worthy of being entrusted with the collar of Treasurer of one of the grandest institutions under the sun, should be a mere marionette, to be dressed in his purple and yet be content to gyrate and dance at the bidding of wire-pullers. I contend that the office is not a sinecure, or the person who fills it a nonentity; were it so, the honour would be divested of its worth, and no man of sense would covet such an anomalous position. That it should be conveyed to the outside world, who are astute in all matters of financial integrity, that the coveted honour of Grand Treasurer of English Freemasons is merely to sit clothed upon the dais with twelve months' "blushing honours" thick upon him, but that in reality he is no more nor less than the tool of those who perched him there, is only an idea fitted for a pantomime. Every post has responsibility, and certainly that of Grand Treasurer of England is vested with some responsibility as well as dignity.

Having delivered myself of these sentiments, as the elder Weller would say, let me, by way of personal satisfaction express my opinion as to the centripetal force which is becoming unpleasantly manifest in certain circles of Freemasonry. By this I mean that there is a tendency amongst some Grand Officers Past and Present, and Past Masters of Lodges, to arrogate to themselves great powers, invented by their self importance, so newly acquired, and assume authority which before they passed the chair they thought almost ethereal. In my travels, and they are not "within a hundred miles of London," I have seen men who, aspiring to the "proudest position" they can attain in their Lodges, overwhelmingly grateful for the honour conferred upon them by the brethren and inspired by the warmest enthusiasm for the future benefit of the cause they have hitherto espoused, fall back into the serried ranks of the veterans, and become—what? Ardent supporters of the Craft? Anxious and solicitous to aid by their counsel and experience those who follow them in the chair? Not at all. By industry and perseverance—well-intentioned no doubt—they have achieved the object of what should be to every Mason an ambition; they have been decorated with the coveted honour of a Past Master's jewel; and after all the pretty things which could be said of any man have been said, they fall back into the veteran rank, and so, in military parlance, attach themselves to the "Staff" of Freemasonry. Decorated with the medal of merit—and merit it undoubtedly is to those who have faithfully and zealously won it—they seem to lose their individuality amongst the brethren who have assisted them to rise to the position they have gained, and, perhaps not intentionally, kick away the ladder by whose steps they have climbed to fame. These men who, if genuinely actuated, would form a phalanx of support to those who are travelling along the same path, graduate into the rear-guard, and here it is that a consolidation of presumptuous authority is formed, such as is now assuming to itself dictation to the Craft in the selection of its Treasurer. We should not have any of this "wheel within wheel" business in Masonry. It is antagonistic to the principles of "free will and accord" which are the foundation-stones of the whole fabric of our Order. When men advance in position in the Craft, and earn by fervency and zeal their title to the purple, we must all rejoice unfeignedly at the honour which rewards merit. But what can be said of the brother who, having had his talents recognised and services rewarded, holds himself Saul-like above his fellows, and would dictate amidst personality and self-assumed supremacy what others should do?

Was it not Shylock who, answering Bassanio, in the "Merchant of Venice," exclaimed "I will buy with you, sell with you, talk with you, walk with you, and so following; but I will not eat with you, drink with you, nor pray with you?" And is there not too much of the spirit of the dramatised old Israelite at present actuating some of those who are insisting upon the qualifications for, or rather the personal attributes of, those who are aspiring to the office of Grand Treasurer?

There is one other point to which, now that I have committed myself to the indiscretion of scribbling, I may as well allude, if it does not encroach too much upon your valuable space, and that is the miserable support which is accorded to the Masonic Press. It may, perhaps, be irrelevant to the heading of this letter; but the amateur is permitted to "digress." The observations of a writer in your pages (Bro. Whytehead) have been endorsed by our brethren across the Atlantic, when he says:—"It is a disgrace that with our long roll of Lodges, containing an important proportion of the wealth and intelligence of England on their books, there should be any lack of support to the Masonic Press. Various are the excuses given by Lodges and brethren for not subscribing to the Masonic papers. I am not prepared to admit any excuse from Lodges save that of absolute want of funds; but there really must be very few Lodges indeed unable to afford the very small sum demanded for an annual copy of one or both of the Masonic papers." With our brethren across "the pond" the case appears to be very different. I do not wish, Sir, to harrow up those feelings which must damp the well-intentioned ardour of an English Masonic editor, but it is nevertheless true that in this country Masons do not read. Inquire of Bros. Gould, Hughan, Whytehead, and other of our shining lights who have spent a vast amount of their time in Masonic research, whether their efforts have received appreciation in any shape or form. I would add to this—is there any Lodge or Lodge of Instruction perfect that has not a record of the doings of the Craft on its library shelf, unless the brethren are content to go through in "dummy" form the monotony of "work," which after all often resolves itself into the hands of a coterie, whose ambitions bend is to swell the ranks of those who will ultimately form the centripetal body who arrogate to themselves the governing of all elections, for Treasurer or otherwise?

I fear my remarks have been rather discursive than otherwise, but I intended them to be so, for in all this argument about "qualification" and "attributes" for the office which some of your correspondents dub a "sinecure" there appears to have been as much argument and difference as there is between tweedledum and tweedledee. The brethren know for whom they will vote when the time comes. At any rate let us have a man who will not regard the honour as a shuttlecock, who will recognise the responsibilities as well as the dignity which the brethren seek to confer upon him, and let me say, in accordance with the old axiom, "May the best man win."

I remain, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

QUIZ.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I am quite ready to exchange opinions on this subject with "ONE WHO WILL NOT READILY ACCEPT THE RESULT OF THE BALLOT." Save in the one passage where he suggests I may be actuated by a dog-in-the-manger spirit, there is nothing in his letter to which even the most thin-skinned person could take serious exception. His tone and manner of treating the question are almost irreproachable, and if I saw my way clear to accepting his arguments, I should do so unhesitatingly and with a great deal of pleasure. However, as I cannot do this, I must try my best to meet them, and whether I succeed in the attempt or not, I shall have at least the satisfaction of knowing that, in any reply he may think proper to make, I shall not be rated vulgarly as if I were a pick-pocket.

It was inevitable that your correspondent should consider my first letter was wanting in good taste. I should probably have said the same kind of thing had I been replying to it. I felt that the question of Bro. Willing's candidature was a delicate one to handle, and I knew, when I raised it, that I should have this particular charge of want of delicacy laid at my door. But the choice lay between my sense of taste and my sense of duty. My justification for writing was and is that the principle for which I, in my humble capacity, contend so strongly will be utterly destroyed if a man of no eminence in Masonry is put forward as the champion of that principle. At the same time, I studiously avoided offering any remarks of a personal character. I explained as fully as I could why Bro. Willing's name was introduced into my letter, and in one part of his your latest correspondent has offered a similar plea in extenuation of his having followed my example. Under these circumstances I think I may dismiss the charge of want of taste laid against me as at all events "not proven."

As to the charge of being "ignorant of the ordinary routine of election by the voice of the people," I plead emphatically "not guilty." I said, in effect, as to Bro. Willing, that his being a P.M. and founder of sundry Lodges, a good fellow, and all that, did not confer on him "the slighest shadow of a shade of claim to be placed on an eminence above his brother members of the same standing in Grand Lodge." Here I beg to observe it will be noticed that I use the word "claim"—as underscored for your correspondent's especial behoof—not "right," which he has nevertheless substituted for "claim." I fully agree with your correspondent as to the absurdity of saying "that a man has no right to be placed on an eminence when it is only by right he can be placed there, but as I have not said this, I have been guilty of no absurdity. May I be so so presumptuous as to suggest that when your correspondent with the long designation—I mean nothing offensive by thus describing him—has settled in his own mind the relative meanings of "claim" and "right," he will be in a better position to argue this point? My contention is that the principle of electing annually a new Grand Treasurer was urged chiefly, if not entirely, on the ground that it would give Grand Lodge the opportunity of conferring an exceptional honour on a succession of brethren of exceptional merit, instead of as heretofore on one brother only. On this contention I build up my argument thus. The Grand Treasurership is bestowable on a brother of exceptional merit; Bro. Willing, having done no more than hundreds and thousands of his equals in rank, is not a brother of exceptional merit; Argal, Bro. Willing is not worthy of having the Grand Treasurership bestowed on him. I may not have stated my syllogism quite in the manner of a correct logician, but I have striven to make my meaning clear, and I hope I have done so not unsuccessfully.

I accept all your correspondent says in favour of Bro. Willing personally, short of regarding him as worthy to be Grand Treasurer. I believe him to be a thoroughly good fellow, but, happily for the world in general and the Craft in particular, there are very many others who answer to this description. This qualification, therefore, gives him no preferential claim over others of the same class to the support of the brethren. He is a P.M. and P.Z., so are thousands of others; he is a founder of Lodges and Chapters, so are others; he is a supporter of our Institutions, but of the others who are likewise supporters of them the number is legion. But will some one kindly point out in what lies Bro. Willing's exceptional merit; or, in other words, what he has done that is worthy of honour, which others, possessing the same powers and opportunities, have not done equally well? When I find that A has been selected to champion a particular cause, I look to hear that he has been so selected because he has done something which his equals in point of rank have not done, or has done it better than they; not that he has been chosen because he is a very good fellow, or has done what the others have done. I am afraid I must be repeating myself, but this is my idea of a man who has achieved distinction and merits a quid pro quo in the shape of exceptional honour, and Bro. Willing's picture, as drawn by your correspondents, does not correspond with the idea. It is for this reason, and not because I wish to decry the qualities which Bro. Willing possesses, that I hope his candidature will prove, as I have said in my first letter, a complete and disastrous failure. An honour ceases to be one when it is bestowed without justification.

I will mention one other point on which I think some light may with advantage be thrown. As regards Bro. Willing's candidature, how came it about? I know who proposed and seconded him in Grand Lodge, but who is responsible for his figuring before the Craft as the champion of the principle successfully enunciated last year when Bro. Marshall was elected, and the year before when Bro. Allcroft was elected? The modesty which has characterised all Bro. Willing's actions forbids me suggesting that he elected himself as champion, while if a Committee elected him, by whom and when was it authorised to do so? In other words, has the party supporting the principle of annually electing a fresh Grand Treasurer had anything to do with choosing Bro. Willing as its representative?

Faithfully and fraternally yours,

SYMBOL x.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—We read in the good old Book of a certain personage who, when he went into the Temple to pray, thanked God that he was not as other men—even the poor publican who tremblingly offered up his supplications near him in the common sanctuary. Your correspondent "SYMBOL x" reminds me most grotesquely of that man, for having poured out his vials of disdain upon one of the candidates for the Grand Treasurership, and upon this poor sinner who ventured to point out one or two discrepancies in his most paradoxical effusion, he holds up his hands with Pecksniffian horror, and exclaims, "'AUDAX' is an expert at abusive personality; I am not!" (The italics are mine). A "war of words" with "SYMBOL x"? Not for worlds! "AUDAX" does not wish yet awhile to be annihilated by an avalanche from the vocabulary of Billingsgate. "SYMBOL x" has betrayed the cloven foot when drawn away from the real question at issue, and tried to copy the "expert of abusive personality." I have too sincere a regard for the courtesies of journalism to prolong a correspondence which threatens to descend into regions where those amenities are not recognized or not understood, and wishing your correspondent may learn better manners when next he is troubled with cacoethes scribendi,

I remain, Dear Sir and Brother,

Fraternally yours,

AUDAX.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—As winter advances and the weather becomes more and more inclement and trying the earliest evidences of ill-health must be immediately checked and removed, or a single illness may result in a serious malady. Relaxed sore throat, quinsey, influenza, chronic cough, bronchitis, and most other pulmonary affections will be relieved by rubbing this cooling Ointment into the skin as near as practicable to the seat of mischief. The treatment, simple yet effective, is admirably adapted for the removal of disorders affecting infancy and youth. Old asthmatic invalids will derive speedy relief from the use of Holloway's remedies, which have wonderfully relieved many such sufferers, and re-established health after every other means had signally failed

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

PREPARATORY SCHOOL, 1885.

Memorandum specially addressed to the Worshipful Master, Treasurer, Secretary, &c., of each Lodge under the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of England.

THE Preparatory School Buildings were commenced in September last, and are expected to be completed by Midsummer next; at all events there is little doubt that the Committee will be prepared to recommend the election of a proportion of the number of Boys for whom the additional accommodation is provided not later than at the Quarterly General Court in the ensuing October.

The Executive is thus being rapidly brought face to face with the anxious question—"Whence are to be derived the additional means necessary for the maintenance of the Subsidiary Establishment?" Supposing the experiment be tentatively tried by the admission of twenty-five Boys, and the administration based on the most economical system possible, the expenditure cannot be less than from £1,000 to £1,200 over and above that now required. Having regard to the fact that the Extension so long contemplated, and now in course of completion, has been carried out in strict compliance with the wishes of the Craft, nothing further in the shape of argumentative appeal need be resorted to.

The situation I thus venture to draw your attention to is a serious one—But all anxiety may easily be allayed if only every Lodge will organise and maintain a steady Annual Subscription, from which source an increase ought to be secured of as permanent a nature as that derived from invested Capital. So far from this being the case, I find that during the past year, 1884, the result was as follows:—

		Total.	Annual Subscribers.
of	District, and Prov. Grand Lodges ...	68	6
,,	Private Lodges, including Colonial, &c.	2019	135
,,	R.A. Chapters do ...	650	7

The total amount received being £252 : 5 : 0.

Surely something can be done to remedy this unsatisfactory state of things—One Guinea per Annum, could not, and would not, affect the finances of any Lodge—while many are in a position with equal facility to contribute Two Guineas, and others even a larger amount, by special continuous Resolution operating annually, without affecting in any way the support rendered from time to time, as circumstances arise, either by donation direct, or though the medium of a Steward as representative of a Lodge.

Commending the above to the favourable consideration of the influential Members of the various Lodges,

I am, Brethren,

Your faithful and obliged Servant and Brother,

FREDERICK BINCKES,

Secretary.

Our readers are reminded that the annual North London Masonic Benevolent Ball will take place at the Holborn Town Hall next Wednesday evening, and, from all we hear, the affair promises to be a gratifying success. This is the more cheering from the fact that the proceeds are to be devoted to the funds of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, which, as will be seen by reference to the subject elsewhere in our columns, are in need of special aid just now. Bros. P. Forge and Western, the M.C.'s, are to be assisted by the following Stewards:—Bros. H. Sprake 813, J. Baker 1471, W. G. Akehurst D.C. 1693, H. B. Harding 1471, J. Monkton, J. Potter, G. F. Snook, G. Batten 1693, S. Stretch 1950, R Baker P.M. 188, and C. Dearing 1692. Bro. C. Hammond 829, &c. is acting as Treasurer, and Bro. E. Woodman S.W. 1950 as Secretary. It is interesting to note that on Thursday evening Bro. Woodman, who has lent such active assistance in the arrangements for this ball, was elected, by the unanimous voice of the brethren of the Southgate Lodge, No. 1950, as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, and that his installation will take place on the first Wednesday in March. Reverting, however, to the ball, we may add that the refreshment department has been entrusted to the well-known purveyors, Messrs. Spiers and Pond, and the musical arrangements to Bro. Collings, Organist of the Kingsland Lodge, No. 1693. Under such auspices a numerous company of guests may be confidently expected, and there is little doubt that all the essentials of a happy and enjoyable evening will be present to perfection.

MARRIAGE.

GREENWOOD—WINNIETT.—On 31st December, in the Chapel Royal, Savoy, by the Rev. Henry White, M.A., Chaplain of the Savoy, and Chaplain in Ordinary to the Queen, assisted by the Rev. F. A. A VISIT TO THE ROYAL YORK BATHS.

MEDICAL reading is not precisely congenial, perhaps, to all tastes while the merriment of "ye festive season" is still ringing in our ears; but, after all, it may be that those who value the greatest of all blessings—a sound mind in a healthy body—will find it not unprofitable, especially when the subject is treated in a palatable way, just as we administer homœopathic doses of needful medicine to children in very large spoonfuls of jam. In dealing with the matter from the particular standpoint taken by the writer of an interesting *brochure before us, let all draughts, pills and nostrums—all physic, indeed—be thrown, where the Immortal Bard would consign them, "to the dogs." We want to see no wry faces in these "jolly" times; and would that everybody, ourselves included, should put a pleasant face on matters of the highest hygienic importance—the preservation of health by the prevention of disease. Physicians who are considered "eminent" find that after all their draughts of oil from the liver of the cod—how we shudder when we think of them!—and the mysterious manipulations of materia medica have failed, the next best thing the patient can do, seeing that he must inevitably die, is that he should perform that operation at as great a distance as possible from home—in some puffed-up "resort" for sufferers from all the ills that flesh is heir to.

In the little work before us there is no such dolorous theme propounded, and yet the treatise is, to all intents and purposes, medical. Nor is it in any spirit of satiation with the "creature comforts" which so often belie their name at this time of year—no dyspepsia or bile after "fat living"—that we take a glance over the pages of the interesting publication before us, for it reminds us of much of the surprise and refreshing luxury we experienced after we had taken our first "Turkish Bath," ever so many years ago. Who does not recollect the sensation of buoyancy and light heartedness when, having escaped from the hands of the "manipulator," in the hot room, shampooing-room and the rest, he has lain turban'd like a Turk over his siesta, revelling in the mingled fragrance of a mild Havannah and a cup of choice Mocha? Even in the old days, when the appliances of so-called Turkish Baths were crude in form, when the baths themselves were by no means suggestive of the Oriental, and before medical science had been brought to bear upon the subject of baths as a preservative, as well as a restorative, of health, they were a luxury to those who had the means and leisure to enjoy them; but since science and art have combined to develop the therapeutic practice, and to render it capable of being turned to account in so many ways for the amelioration of disease, the assuaging of pain, and the prevention of ailments which can be arrested by no other means, the study becomes enlarged and vastly more interesting. For those who are impelled to "try" baths by the physical infirmities under which they suffer, we now find, added to the popularly understood Turkish Bath, various forms of electric, medicated, warm and cold shower, douche, spray, needle, hip, plunge, and other baths, each having its peculiar and delicate manipulation and effect; but of these we may speak in more detail later on.

Leaving for a moment a consideration of the little book referred to at the commencement of this article, let us briefly describe a visit we recently paid to the Royal York Baths, 51 York-terrace, York-gate, Regent's Park, N.W., through the courteous invitation of Bro. Dr. Jagielski, the managing director. We had made up our mind to see something récherché in the style and appliances of an establishment which had been carried on for some years by Mr. Adolphus, who did so much to bring electric baths into popular favour; but confess to an agreeable astonishment at the perfection to which every detail of arrangement has been brought under the present management, since the reconstruction of these Baths. The elevation of the building is undoubtedly one of the finest and most attractive of all the baths in the metropolis, and the Moorish style of architecture which pervades the interior is in pleasant keeping with every idea of Oriental luxury, elegance and refinement. The three doors between the columns of the façade are each separately reserved for lady and gentleman bathers and the private residence of the consulting physician. There are separate waiting-rooms for the sexes, with corridors from each leading to what may be described as the most luxurious and perfect set of Turkish, electric and medicated baths to be found anywhere. All the walls of the baths are built of coloured glazed bricks, the seats are of white marble, the floors of Italian mosaic; while all are easily washed and flushed. The ceilings being all beautiful in design and colour, furnish a pleasing diversion to the bather's eye when in a recumbent position. The door lintels are of Sicilian marble, and all the woodwork is of pitch pine; whilst the architectural ornamentation is Moorish, and most beautifully carried out. The well-appointed needle bath, of pure solid nickel, the douches ascending and descending, hot and cold; the shower, spray, hip, needle, &c., are all on a level with the rooms; the shampooer's waiting-room close at hand; the "plunge," beautifully light and airy, its water's surface rippled by the waves created through the fountain from the Turk shampooer statuette squeezing a sponge. This has been executed by Bro. E. Gellowski, the well-known sculptor of Bruton-street, W., in beautifully fine white marble. The cooling-room is not only handsomely designed, but perfectly ventilated, and altogether worthy of the high reputation of the talented architect, Mr. Thomas Durrans, of Upper Baker-street, N.W., as also the vestiary, with the elegant and lofty dressing-room and gallery. The cooling-room is most luxurious, the floor being laid with Moorish carpets, delightful easy couches, mirrors, and every elegant Oriental surrounding; the ventilation is simply unique; whilst here and there are handsome marble tables, and coffee or tea is served to those who may wish it—and who does not, after a luxurious Turkish Bath? The vestibulum is a passage in the pure Moorish architectural style, ending in an alcove.

The greatest and most important feature, however, in the whole of the interior arrangements is the perfect ventilation throughout the entire suite of apartments, so that no bather can leave them without a pleasant feeling, contrasting most favourably with other baths in London which are described by puff advertisements to be well ventilated, but whose proprietors cannot give ocular demonstration, or explain how this is effected, to thoughtful and investigating bathers. We have been into Turkish Baths the atmosphere of which has reminded us more of the sulphuric regions of the underground railway than anything else; where the skin has been shrivelled up with the dry heat, instead of a healthy perspiration being engendered; and where, when the hot rooms have been any way full, the air has been so vitiated by the eliminations from the skin and lungs that the pleasure that had been anticipated from the bath has been turned into nausea, amounting almost to torture. Here, however, all is changed, and the great difficulty hitherto experienced in the construction of Turkish Baths, namely, the maintenance of suitable ventilation consistent with the heat required and the avoidance of draughts, has been triumphantly overcome. Thus, instead of experiencing headache and languor after the Turkish Bath, as many complain of, unsuspecting that this has been produced by the inhalation of foul air, there is perfect purity, with all the essential elements required by the bather. A tunnel, seventy feet long, seven feet high, and five feet wide, has been constructed, by means of which an abundant supply of a constant fresh air current is secured. By introducing the fresh air through such a large channel into the convoluted heating stove a back draught is impossible, as may be seen by holding up the flame of a candle in the direction of the stove. This is assisted on the south-west side by a shaft, which sends down additional fresh air to the other side of the stove, and at last, heated, it penetrates upwards through a huge grate into the Sudatorium or hottest room, and thence diffuses itself into the Calidarium or hot room, the Tepidarium or warm room, the shampooing, and douche rooms. In each of these there are built exhausting shafts from below the seats, close to the ground, so that all vitiated air which, being heaviest, accumulates here, is extracted constantly through patent ventilators. In this way a constant stream of fresh oxygen is established in the Baths, a most decided and pronounced novelty in London Turkish Baths, where usually, from want of such arrangements, the vitiated air of the bath is again sent through the stove at once, whence it returns to be re-breathed, and thus produces unpleasant and unhealthy symptoms in the bathers. The ventilation of the cooling room is also most excellent. In winter, the fresh air running through the down shafts into the grates over the pipes is most successfully heated; whilst in summer the same shafts introduce fresh cooling air into the room when the warming apparatus is not in operation.

Electric Baths are a prominent feature in this establishment, and the most careful study and scientific research have been brought to bear upon them by Dr. Jagielski, who is most assiduous in personally superintending the institution and giving directions for the guidance of bathers when asked to do so. There are 18 separate rooms for these baths, and as they are now so much used in therapeutics, patients can have them here in the most luxurious style.

The command of a large supply of electricity in the warm water baths is extended to, and utilised in, the Royal York Turkish Baths, which is not only novel, but medically and otherwise most important. The previous heating and sweating of the body render it more susceptible to the influence of the all-searching fluid. In its application it can be controlled by the bather or patient to any desirable degree of strength. It can be taken standing, sitting, or reclining, soothing and alleviating pain, and ultimately effecting most remarkable cures. Such are a few of the most salient advantages of the newly and handsomely reconstructed Baths, which are now under the immediate supervision of a resident superintending and consulting physician, who will be able to advise patients as to the kind of medicated baths, &c., best suited to their particular requirements.

A visit of inspection will convince any one that in the construction and equipment of the Royal York Baths no effort has been spared to secure the convenience of bathers, who are specially invited to observe the following, among other salient points:—(1) The various bath-rooms for electric, warm, and other private baths are placed all along and on both sides of a corridor, warmed in the cold season by a hot-water apparatus in connection with a separate saddle boiler. (2) All the rooms of the Turkish Bath are arranged on the same ground floor, the dressing-boxes alone being placed slightly above their level. In this way no trouble is given to the weak and suffering bather unable to move easily about. (3) The light of the whole of the baths is derived from lofty skylights, which can be opened, closed, and ventilated ad libitum. No inconvenience is caused to the eyes, as is the case in most London Turkish Baths, when attempting to read by daylight. (4) The gas in all the Turkish Royal York Baths is disconnected from the rooms, thus preventing the vitiating of the air within by the products of its combustion.

In addition to the recommendations already enumerated, and they are by no means effusive, something must be said on the score of healthiness of situation. Here again the Royal York Baths are peculiarly fortunate. The immediate neighbourhood of the south side of Regent's Park, on the east side of York Gate, which leads from Marylebone Church, along by the bridge of the Regent's Park lake, to the Botanical Gardens, gives the Baths one of the most healthy positions in London. The fresh air in the Park, with the blooming scents exhaled by its trees, shrubs, flowers, meadows and gardens, tends to make patients forget the dark and sombre streets of the city, with their noisy and crowded surroundings. The great elevation of Regent's Park, over Oxford-street, Holborn, Piccadilly, the Strand, Thames Embankment, &c., renders the air purer, and more invigorating. The whole surroundings of Bayswater, Paddington, St. John's Wood, and the neighbourhood, with their widely-scattered population, living in detached and semi-detached villas with gardens, are also most important factors in securing the proverbial good-health of the district, through entire absence of smoke and other unhealthy emanations which prevail in more densely populated parts. The Baths are, moreover, easy of access, being within three minutes' walk from the Baker-street and St. John's Wood Metropolitan stations (near Madame Tussaud's) and but a few yards more from the underground station at Portland-road. The position is not a thoroughfare, but select and private, and very convenient for those whose ailments impede their free locomotion, as is often the case in rheumatism, gout, neuralgia, &c., when patients have at first to be carried into the Electric Bath, but are soon able to leave without assistance. This is an advantage not enjoyed at other London baths, where the entrances are exposed and open to the curious.

Space precludes us from entering more fully into the advantages of this admirable institution, which were so apparent during our visit, or the interesting little brochure in which the details are expanded; but we heartily commend the latter to the attention of our readers, who will be more than satisfied if they follow our example, and "go and see for themselves" what a wonderful improvement and transformation has been effected at the Royal York Baths.

We join heartily in the congratulations which have been profusely expressed to Bro. Nathan B. Headon, of The Great City Lodge, on his election to a seat in the Court of Common Council, on St. Thomas's Day, for the Ward of Farringdon Within. As many of our readers are aware, Bro. Headon is senior partner of the firm of Freeman, Headon and Co., upholsterers' trimming manufacturers and warehousemen, 65 Friday-street and Milton-street, with which establishment he has been associated for upwards of thirty years. He was the originator and founder of The Great City Lodge, and whilst W.M. of the Lodge entertained the Lord Mayor, the Sheriffs of London and Middlesex, and the Officers of the Grand Lodge, at a banquet. This was the first Masonic banquet at which the Lord Mayor was ever known to have attended in state. At the termination of his year of office, Bro. Headon was presented with a handsome testimonial, in the shape of a gold watch, accompanied by an illuminated address, expressing the sincere esteem and affection of The Great City Lodge, and their appreciation of the valuable service he had rendered to it. He was one of the Stewards at the time of the Installation of the Prince of Wales as Grand Master of the Craft at the Albert Hall, in 1875; and all will remember his active efforts in promoting the movement for making the election of Grand Treasurer an annual one, instead of the appointment being considered a permanent one, as heretofore. Bro. Headon is likewise a life subscriber to the three Masonic Charitable Institutions, as well as to the Earlswood Idiot Asylum, the Infant Orphan Asylum; a manager of the Warehousemen and Clerks' Schools; a liveryman of the Needlemakers' Company; and vice-President of the London General Porters' Benevolent Association. Amongst other works of public usefulness, he founded the Provident Association for Warehousemen, Travellers, and Clerks, in 1871, an institution which is doing an incalculable amount of good amongst the classes for which it was designed. It will thus be seen that after a life of unusual activity and usefulness, Bro. Headon, who is still a comparatively young man, has earned his title to a seat in the municipal chamber of the City of London, and we can only hope he may live long enough to ride in the Lord Mayor's carriage.

We have pleasure in tendering our congratulations to Bro. Charles Greenwood jun., on his marriage, which event took place on the 31st ult., at the Chapel Royal, Savoy. Bro. Greenwood is well-known in his official capacity as a Provincial Grand Officer of Surrey, and will no doubt be heartily congratulated by his brethren in that district, as well as by others who have made his acquaintance. After the ceremony, the wedding party met at luncheon at the Charing Cross Hotel, whence the bride and bridegroom started for Dover en route for Paris and Mentone. We trust our brother and his bride will enjoy long life and happiness in their married state.

Bro. J. Stevens has undertaken to deliver his Lecture, "Knobs and Excrescences," in the Lodge of Peace and Harmony, No. 199, at Dover, on Monday next, the 5th inst. The Lodge will be opened at the Royal Oak Hotel, Dover, at 7 p.m. sharp, and brethren from the neighbouring Lodges are invited. Bro. Stevens delivered this Lecture in the Royal Arthur Lodge of Instruction, at Wimbledon, on Thursday in this week.

FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF DERBYSHIRE.

THE annual meeting was held on the 11th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Gower-street, Derby. There was a large gathering of brethren from all parts of the Province. At half-past one o'clock Bro. Smith W.M. and the Officers of the Lodge of Repose, No. 802, opened their Lodge, and at two o'clock the acting Prov. Grand Master and his Officers, Present and Past, entered and constituted the Provincial Grand Lodge. In the absence of Bro. the Marquess of Hartington Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Houghton Charles Okeover, Right Worshipful Deputy Provincial Grand Master, P.G.W. England, officiated as Provincial Grand Master, and there were present the following Provincial Grand Officers:—Bros. Silver Hall, J. Bland, Vernon Greenhough, E. Belfield, T. Horsley jun. The reports of the various Lodges were uniformly satisfactory, indicating a considerable increase of members, and continued activity in the cause of charity. Bro. Smith, Chairman of the Masonic Hall Trustees, presented a favourable report; whilst Bro. Wright, Chairman of the Charity Committee, gave an interesting account of the year's operations in that important department, intimating that two local candidates—a boy and girl—for the Charitable Institutions of the Order had been elected. Bro. Marsden, on behalf of the Auditors, presented a satisfactory report, and the accounts were ordered to be printed and circulated. Bro. Cox was, for the twentieth time, re-elected as Treasurer of the Province, and Bro. Wright was again unanimously re-appointed Chairman of the Charities Committee. Both brethren suitably acknowledged the compliment. The following were appointed Officers for the ensuing year:—

Bro. W. Walters... ...	...	Prov. G. Senior Warden

J. Monck	...	Prov. G. Stewards
R. Slater	...	Prov. G. Stewards

Bro. Hall made a short statement in reference to the approaching centenary of the Tyrian Lodge, which, he pointed out, was also the centenary of Derbyshire Freemasonry. The Committee appointed for carrying out the arrangements were anxious to receive as many suggestions as they could obtain from the Officers and brethren of other Lodges, but at present they contemplated having a Provincial Grand Lodge banquet (at which the Marquess of Hartington would probably be present), and in the evening a ball. These arrangements were, however, subject to improvement or perchance to enlargement. Bro. Smith then presented to the Lodge a set of handsome brass candlesticks, and also produced, encased in a suitable frame (which had been provided), a stone taken from the ruins of the Temple of King Solomon, by Bro. Charles Colvile. Bro. Smith having been thanked for his gifts, the acting Prov. Grand Master delivered a short address, in which he expressed his deep gratification at the substantial progress made by the Order in the Province. After the Lodge had been closed, the brethren partook of a banquet in the Lower Hall.

TWO NEW YEARS' EVES; OR, HOW I BECAME A MASON.

By a Veteran Brother.

Chapter I.

"Tempus Fugit!" Of the veracity of that oft-quoted adage I am more than reminded by the preponderance of grey in my hair and beard, as I gaze into the glass on this calm and, to me, sacred New Year's Eve. Reminded, too, by pictures conjured up, as the glowing firelight glints through the diamond ring upon my finger, recalling days as marked for the happiness they brought as for the void which so suddenly and irreparably fell upon my soul. I am not, at my age, what modern fiction readers would condemn as a gushing or sensational writer; but, as the incidents I am about to relate are substantially true, I will endeavour to avoid being dull or gloomy at this season of the year, which is proverbially "merry," and deliver my round unvarnished tale in my own way, and in my old-fashioned style. So this is how it all came about.

"Terrifically hot, old boy!" exclaimed my friend, Jack Fenton, one abnormally sultry day in June; "how can you possibly stick to the desk so leech-like when the barometer is at boiling-point, and even the cab-horses on the rank outside are sleeping, like so many cats on the hearth? I am almost enervated by this stuffy atmosphere; so come along; let us take one of the cabs hinted at, and go for a drive a little way into the country. It will do us both good, and we shall have the additional credit of waking up poor cabby and his sleepy steed."

"With all my heart," I replied; "it will be a treat exactly to my taste. But where can we find cool and enjoyment on a day like this?"

"I'll tell you. Only by this morning's post I received an invitation for a Masonic summer banquet, down in one of the most sequestered and lovely glades in Bickenham; and, as the ticket says for two—"

"But hold, Jack! I am not a Mason."

"Ah! I forgot; but, without any violation of my Masonic 'secrets'"—here I smiled incredulously—"I ought to explain that these summer banquets are not strictly confined to the brethren of 'ye mystic tie.' They can't be, you know, inasmuch as in all probability the majority of the company will be ladies. So you need have no scruples on that point; and if you do not fall in love with one of the fair 'sisters,' you will do so with Masonry, when you have had a glimpse of one side of the sublime Art."

So, resigning myself to the tender mercies of my old friend and schoolfellow, we were soon beyond the "human bakehouse" of the City, whose very stones seemed like the "hot bricks" of the proverb, and bowling away out on the white, dusty road, with hedges and fields on either side of us, dotted here and there with pretty white cottages, literally embowered with flowers that flung a million sweet odours around them. What a contrast, even in so short a distance! How fresh and invigorating! Even the little birds that twittered amongst the hedgerows seemed to warble a song of praise to my friend Jack for literally tearing himself and me away from the din and heat and bustle of City life under such tropical conditions.

It is unnecessary to relate how, in the twelve or fourteen miles journey down, Jack revealed to me the modus operandi of a "summer banquet"—how it was agreed to by vote in "open Lodge"; how certain "Stewards" were appointed to carry out the arduous, but pleasing, preliminaries; how the brethren, than whom laid themselves out, on that day, more than all the rest in the year, to afford the fair ones an insight into the "mysteries and privileges of Freemasonry" by giving them a day in the country; and how the party went down by road, in coaches and wagonettes, along the very same route we were now taking, to some park-like nook beside the margin of the cool river; and where, under the shade of umbrageous trees, the pic-nic was followed by dancing and all those other agreeable pastimes in which youth delight.

"No mortals can more the ladies adore"

Suffice to say, the vision conjured up by the recital of all these pleasantries gave me a better opinion of Masons than I confess I had erewhile entertained; and the summit of pleasant anticipation was reached when Jack exclaimed, "You know, on our return journey, we shall have dismissed this cab"—there were no hansoms in those days—"and shall ride back with the rest—part and parcel of the happy company."

On, by rich pasture lands, on which cattle were lazily browsing, by smiling orchards, and quaint old thatched cottages, whose inmates came to door and window to catch a glimpse of the unusual carriage coming their way. Past the osier beds, through which the shining river meandered on its serpentine course, and upon whose bosom the fleecy swans rested majestically, hardly caring to move or ruffle a feather at the approach of a boat, though its occupants laughed never so cheerily as they paddled lover-like with the stream.

A couple of hours' easy trot brought us to the market place of Wickmond, before whose principal inn door stood two or three stage coaches and open drags, and it was in these Jack rightly conjectured the Free and Accepted Masons had travelled down.

"Jist in time, gen'lmen," quoth the ostler, as he drew the reins gently away from our driver, who patted his steed affectionately on the neck after we had paid him what he evidently considered a "tidy" fare, and dismissed him to attend to the "personal comforts" of both man and beast.

"You'll find 'em down there—on the Squire's lawn," smiled the old fellow; "sich a lot on 'em, sir; and all of the right sort, to judge of their 'ansome behaviour in the 'otel." And to "judge" from his benign countenance, old Jim the ostler had not been forgotten either.

It needed but a few minutes for us to refresh the inner man, and remove the dust from our apparel, before we were sauntering over the fields that divided the ancient hostelry from the Park, which we were informed the "Squire" had kindly placed at the disposal of his guests.

The whispering of the leaves overhead soon mingled with the cadences of distant music, as we neared the rendezvous; and I could see by the flush upon Jack's cheek that he was evidently stirred by these, to him, familiar strains into the keenest anticipations of pleasure at the treat in store for us. We could discern, here and there between the boughs, moving groups of happy beings, the light toilettes of the ladies giving grace and beauty to the idyllic picture, whilst the air was redolent of flowers and resonant with the ripple of merry laughter and light-hearted conversation.

"Now, Harry, don't be too chivalrous, or flatter yourself you will make a 'conquest'—as the girls call it—to-day," slyly whispered Jack, who could see I was becoming as eager for the pic-nic as he was. But we were nearing the entrance gate now, and there was no time to finish the sentence he had begun.

"Happy to meet you, Brother," exclaimed the keeper of the wicket, as he held out his hand for the 'grip'—and to our Visiting Brother, too. You will find the company just about to dine, and may consider yourselves fortunate you are not late. Of course you vouch for your companion?"

Jack meekly explained to his questioner that I was not a member of the Craft; whereupon the Brother who seemed to be acting in the capacity of "outer guard" became suddenly grave and perplexed, and drawing Jack aside, put some questions to him which I could not overhear.

Presently Jack returned to me, and with a voice more akin to anger than ever I had noticed in him before, he ejaculated, "Something has gone wrong. The invitations are to Masons only, and their female friends, and so there may be a difficulty about you. I hope not, for I never heard of anything so monstrously absurd as the exclusion of non-Masons from an assembly which, though it is graced by the smiles and fascinations of the gentler sex, is absolutely neutralised by their very presence, so far as Freemasonry is concerned."

"Anyhow, the Tyler has gone to ask the Worshipful Master," continued he, though, by the biting of his lip and flushed face, I could easily see Jack was chagrined even by the challenge, and doubtful as to the result.

We had not long to wait; for presently the Tyler returned, overflowing with apologies, but the verdict was as unalterable as the laws of the Medes and Persians; and although Jack was himself profusely welcomed to the festivities, his friend must not be offended if ——"

"Come away, Harry!" he ejaculated, rather testily, "we will enjoy our afternoon together, at all hazards, even if we are shut out from the charmed circle;" and turning to the Tyler, who was equally as discomfited, he said, with an assumed air of jaunty indifference, "It is of no great consequence; give my compliments to Bro. Captain Mayhew, who will no doubt offer some explanation when next we meet in the Lodge-room. Good day, Brother Tyler."

And so we sauntered back again by the way we had come, though with thoughts far different to those which had been stirred within us only a few minutes previously. Indeed, the very sounds we heard grated on the ear, in the first moments of our disappointment. The birds seemed to mock at our misfortune, and the leaves to laugh at our rebuff, as we strode silently from the mirth and the music in which we had been denied a share.

"Confoundedly annoying!" cried Jack, as soon as we were conveniently out of hearing. "It is worse than annoying; and I take it as an insult to me personally. In addition, Harry, if you have been debarred from falling in love with one of those charming damsels yonder, your love for Masonry, which we spoke about coming down, won't be much enhanced by this episode. Eh?"

I could hardly help smiling at Jack's peevishness, though I could quite understand it was more on my account than his own; so I tried to laugh the matter off, and expressed the hope that by going further we might not fare worse.

My companion replied that he knew a very old friend who lived a mile or so further down the river, by the ferry, who would be glad to see us both, "although," he added, sarcastically, "You are not; as they say in certain circles 'one of us.'" Accordingly we decided upon setting out for Peterside instanter, as Jack remarked vigorously, "by way of revenge."

On arriving at the hotel we had quitted so buoyantly only half-an-hour before, the landlady graciously inquired whether we had lost our way across the fields? the tittering maids-in-waiting looked—though they did not say it—at us as though we "didn't belong to their set"; while poor old Jim, the ostler, scratched his head and murmured, "Blow'd if he could make it out, anyhow." Without stopping to answer any of these inquiring looks or gestures, we ordered some light refreshments, and sauntering down through the narrow street of Wickmond, passed over the bridge and selected from among the many trim-built wherries moored alongside one which suited our mutual fancy for the trip. We were soon shoved off by a jolly old waterman, who with a grin which bespoke the honesty of him who grinned it, exclaimed "Safe sir! Safe as any three-decker, sir, I'll warrant her. Keep well mid-stream, gen'lemen, and yer'll be as right as a mail. Pleasant voyage, and safe return, gen'lemen."

The scene was bathed in a flood of golden sunshine, and all around was gladsome, blithe and happy. Our little bark glided swiftly down with the stream, with little exertion required on our parts, and we skimmed past stately mansions whose gardens ran down to the water's edge, and farther on a towing-path where children gambolled in unrestrained freedom while their elders sought shelter from the glare and heat of the sun's rays beneath overhanging clumps of hawthorn, which burdened the air with delicious fragrance. On the lawns on either side of us little garden parties were in the full swing of gaiety here and there, and whispers of music were wafted across the river almost at every bend. All the quiet riverside seemed glad, as it should be, in keeping with such a glorious afternoon.

We had just swept by one of the eyots which intersect the stream at this point, and were in reverie almost, absorbed by that peculiar charm and calm which are always so overpowering on a hot day, upon the river, when we were startled by a piercing shriek, as if from one in distress. A splash in the water, some thirty yards or more distant, and then calm as before; but as we rowed back to the spot whence the sound proceeded, Jack almost shrieked—

"My God! Harry, it's a woman in the water!"

With almost supernatural agility I plunged into the swiftly-running stream, but the current hurled me aside from the white garments of which I had just caught a momentary glimpse as I flung myself over the boat's side. Obviously we were both floating in the same direction, and as a moment more brought us into deep water, the movement become more still, and by a strong stroke or two, I caught the lifeless form in my arms, and brought it to the surface.

Jack had stuck manfully to the boat, for the double reason that he was no swimmer and that he could follow and render more assistance than had we both been in the water. He grasped me with his strong arm as we came up, and in a moment we were drifting along towards the nearest indentation on the banks, which we reached in safety. The old ferryman was just about to paddle across with a party of pleasure seekers, but caught sight of us when we were within a few yards of him, and with the instinct of one who is used to such scenes, he grasped me and my lovely burden in his brawny embrace, and towed us ashore, as he afterwards explained to us, "in a jiffy."

In the few minutes during which the exciting scene had taken to enact, I had caught a brief glimpse of the beautiful features of the maiden whom I thanked God from the bottom of my heart I had been able, with Jack's help, to rescue. She was apparently about nineteen or twenty years of age, with hair flowing in light golden tresses over finely chiselled features; but in the moment of deathly alarm, and to all appearance dead, the countenance was of marble whiteness—as one sees in the gallery of the sculptor, amidst the divinities of the artist's conception.

When we laid her tenderly upon the turf by the old boat-house, there was no evidence whatever of animation, and with the shock and immersion in the water, I too felt sick and giddy, and should have swooned also, but for the joy of having plucked one so young and beautiful from the very jaws of death.

"Why! bless my soul, if it ain't our young Miss Adeline up at the 'All!" I heard the old ferryman ejaculate, in accents of agonised alarm. "Look sharp, lads! for God's sake! Help!"

I was powerless from exhaustion, and it was through a dim vista that I saw them carry the motionless body away, through the little gate, and into the avenue, where I could no longer follow them; and then with a buzzing in my ears, and a sudden rushing as of mighty waters through my brain, I reeled back unconscious into the arms of the bystanders, who had just before been waiting in the ferry boat to cross over.

ROYALTY.

THOSE amongst us who can remember Charles Mathews in the days of his glory, and those who have listened with more or less incredulity to what the fogies say of that delight of their youth, should assuredly not fail to visit the Royalty whilst Colombey is rattling through the wild fun and nonsense of "Le Reveillon" (Ringing in the New Year). The same brilliancy seems to pervade him. Never since our Charles has left us have we seen the like. "Le Reveillon" is to be given until 7th January, and though as a drama it is certainly inferior to most of the plays which the French company have offered us, yet the character so well suits the idiosyncrasies of the actors that it will assuredly be one of the most popular. The story is slight enough. M. Gaillardin, a highly respectable country gentleman (Colombey), is found, when the curtain rises, in great tribulation, having just been condemned to "eight days" as a first-class misdemeanant. An old servant of his has been raised to the dignity of a garde champetre, and M. Gaillardin, forgetting the change, calls him an "imbecile." Summoned for this offence before his old friend the local justice, when called on to declare his name he has laughed at the absurdity of the question, and laughed the more when the assessor and the clerk reiterate the demand, till finally he is condemned to eight days for contumely.

He has to deliver himself up that evening, and begs his wife to look out his old garden coat and worst pair of boots. She departs for the purpose, when to him enters his lawyer (Ricquier), who invites him to "see the old year out" at a jovial party to be given by a certain Russian Prince, staying in the neighbourhood. Gaillardin hesitates, but on hearing there are to be some charming Parisian actresses there, the chance is too tempting. He has never spoken to an actress before! But the old garden coat! He must explain to his wife that, like the aristocrats of old who went to the scaffold in powder and family jewels, he too would adorn for the sacrifice and put on his best dress suit. It was a perfect essay on martyrdom to watch Colombey's face as he declared his intention. He bids his wife farewell for eight days—for of course he intends to surrender next morning in the small hours. The door scarcely closes on him when she is startled, very unpleasantly, by the appearance of a long-haired musical genius, her very lyrical adorer, the leader of the Russian Prince's band. Whilst he is alternately helping himself to the soup prepared for her departed lord, and declaring his devotion, footsteps are heard, and the Director of the Prison (Dalbert) enters, and with the greatest politeness states M. Gaillardin is wanted. Madam, in terror of being compromised, has turned the lamp down, and the irrepressible lyrist has wrapped himself in the dressing gown of the absent master of the house. The Director of course concludes he sees his prisoner before him. The musician would explain, but in vain; the lady faints, and the curtain falls on the first act. With the second we find Gaillardin, having a good time with the young prince and his very sprightly convives, among them the Prison Governor, who assumes the style of Count Indquechose for the occasion. Gaillardin, too, is introduced as Marquis de Val Gougat. The supper party, gathered round the table, is of the liveliest, and the jokes and laughter flying about have an admirable foil in the solemn statuesque dignity of the six servants, who stand behind the chairs as motionless as heraldic supporters, except when they, as it were automatically, fill the guests' glasses. Rose Léon, as the principal lady, catches the tone of mischievous raillery exactly suited to the Parisienne student of rural simplicity. Between her fascinations and the champagne, Gaillardin soon shows the results of so seeing the Old Year out. A quadrille follows the supper, and Gaillardin and the governor distinguish themselves by a brilliant "pastourelle." Then midnight sounds, and both must away, the former to surrender himself to durance, the latter to resume his duties. The governor first reaches his destination, and Dalbert gave a most comic picture of the great official's attempt to maintain his dignity and his equilibrium, whilst conscious of the difficulty, during an interview with the gaoler, who is suffering from that satané cognac. Gaillardin appears, and is bewildered to find his Marquis (the governor) here; the latter no less at the appearance of the Count; but when Gaillardin confesses his real name, he is laughed at by both governor and turnkey, for is not the real delinquent already safe in cell No. 11? When at last the two Gaillardins are confronted, we have a magnificent bit of comedy. Colombey, determined to learn the worst, has borrowed the gown and cap of his advocate, who comes to the prison, and offers to take up the case of the sham Gaillardin. He glories in the martyrdom, and it is not till Colombey has been driven wild by his suspicions and rhapsodical nonsense of the mysterious "other," that the embroglio is cleared up. We may hope he will better appreciate the society of a charming wife, and avoid for the future ringing in the new year in doubtful company. With so excellent a caste we might well praise each exponent; especially good was the turnkey of M. Schey; but why will he so greatly abuse the rouge pot? M. Ricquier gave a finished portrait of the country lawyer. Mdlle. Robert too was an admirable country cuisinière.

At the Covent Garden Lodge of Instruction, No. 1614, held at the Bedford Head Hotel, Maiden Lane, Covent Garden, on Thursday, 8th January, the ceremony of installation will be rehearsed. A ballot will also be taken for a subscribership to one of the Royal Masonic Institutions. Lodge will be opened at 8 p.m.

PRINCE ALBERT VICTOR.

THE coming of age of the eldest son and heir of their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales was an event which on Thursday last stirred the hearts of loyal Englishmen everywhere; and although the festivities at the pleasant country palace of the Heir Apparent were kept as private and quiet as had been desired, there nevertheless poured in congratulations of the most loyal and sincere description from all parts of the country and abroad. Especially to us, as Masons, is the event interesting, seeing that it has brought a period of happiness to our Most Worshipful Grand Master such as is hailed in every domestic circle as an exceptionally important one, more particularly in the homes of the noble and the great, where property, title, and responsibilities follow in the line of succession. In addition to the addresses which poured into Sandringham House, on Thursday, from the City of London and many other corporate, educational and other public bodies, we note that a vast number of presents were sent to the young Prince, congratulating him upon having attained his majority, and perhaps amongst them all none was more pathetic or touching than the graceful gift forwarded by our centenarian brother Sir Moses Montefiore, who was but recently the recipient of many similar expressions of felici tation. The evidences of pride and pleasure which have been manifested in all parts of the realm, from the palaces at Osborne, Windsor and Balmoral, to the lowliest cottage where loyalty finds a home, must have been of a most gratifying character to Her Majesty the Queen and the other members of the Royal Family, who will discern in them the assurance—if, indeed, any such were necessary—of the deep seated affection of a vast majority of Englishmen for the reigning House, and of fidelity to the Throne. In every Masonic Lodge that assembled on Thursday evening we may be sure that these sentiments found the most genuine and fervent expression from Worshipful Masters in submitting the toasts which always take precedence at the banquet-table; and fully remembering the august patronage which Her Majesty has extended to the Craft, over which the Heir Apparent, and father of the illustrious young Prince who on that day attained to years of maturity, we may be sure that the health of our Most Worshipful Grand Master was received with even greater cordiality than is its wont, and that is saying a good deal for a body of men over whom the Prince of Wales exercises supreme rule and sway. No doubt in due course Grand Lodge will formally add its tribute of congratulation to those which have been showered in from all sides; and it might have been considered more graceful and fitting had this been done in time for the communication to have reached our Most Worshipful Grand Master on the auspicious day. However, there are no doubt cogent reasons why this was not so; and when it does come, there can be little question that the felicitations offered by the Grand Lodge of English Freemasons to their illustrious Head will be as cordial and sincere as any that have preceded them. We are reminded that this is the first time in the history of our nation that the eldest son of a Prince of Wales has attained man's estate whilst the grand parent still sat upon the Throne; so that to Her Majesty must have come a sense of deep and glad gratitude towards the Great Architect of the Universe, who has permitted her to see the line of her dynasty thus firmly founded amid the love of her people and the prosperity of her dominions. Our Most Worshipful Grand Master and his illustrious and beloved consort will experience in this event those tender emotions of pleasure which all parents feel when the first-born of the household emerges from boyhood into manhood, and enters upon the duties and responsibilities of maturity. We can but echo the sentiments expressed by one of our daily contemporaries when it says it would be ground enough for general satisfaction merely to recognise and to participate in this domestic happiness of the two Royal Households — happiness understood everywhere by a home-loving people, everywhere appreciated and applauded. The realm itself, however, takes a special and important part in the rejoicings of the day; every household in it, from the proudest to the humblest, participates in the fair omens of this birthday, and derives from its presage promise of good times to come for the continuance of the national greatness and security. Along with the amiable youth who has just attained his majority a whole new generation of British boyhood is ripening into manhood. Prince Albert Victor represents the third generation of the Victorian era, and, under the blessing of Almighty God, no better pledge could be granted for the stability of our ancient institutions than to witness the Queen still happily ruling those who acclaimed her coronation, the Heir-apparent in the second degree strengthening her throne by his well-deserved popularity and admirable fidelity to manifold and difficult duties, and beyond both, just entering upon public life, the Heir Designate to the splendid sceptre of Britannia learning henceforward, day after day, to know the people of his nation and to become known by them. Like a majestic river, springing from far-off sources and flowing down to an unseen and as yet long-distant issue, the stream of English history runs broad, placid and powerful before our eyes. Its noble channel is visible for the next three reaches; the volume of its widening waters pours onward without diminution through a clear and happy landscape. A rock of difficulty may now and then break its current into turmoil; an eddy of receding fortune may produce a backwater here or there; but the river sweeps stedfastly on, fed by fresh tributaries of power and wealth, while its banks widen and become more and more enriched and embellished as it fulfils its vast purpose and proud destiny. So we behold to-day the British Empire, nobler than its children know, stronger than its enemies dream, not yet arrived, nor nearly arrived, please Heaven, at that allotted term when nations, like men, must decay and die, bequeathing their task to greater and later descendants. Never in any age or nation was liberty so assured or perfect as it is now in England; never were individual rights so sacred, or the accepted law so supreme. The coming of age festivities on Thursday, therefore, were no mere palace feast day, but an occasion of thankfulness for the whole nation, which shows us the third generation of our Royal line thus substantially established, and the Queen's grandson arrived at man's estate, and learning from his illustrious father, and from the well-beloved Sovereign, by what qualities a throne is strengthened and perpetuated. The Masonic world, spread over the whole surface of the habitable globe, will re-echo these sentiments of affection for the illustrious Ruler who sways the sceptre of the Craft, as he will, in the Providence of God, some day the sceptre of the Realm; and they will with one acclamation endorse the expressions of loyalty and fealty which have been breathed in every corner of Her Majesty's dominions, in connection with the happy event which has this week evoked such an overflow of love and spontaneous felicitation from one end of the kingdom to the other.

THE APPROACHING FESTIVAL OF THE R.M.B.I.

BEARING in mind the old adage that "Familiarity breeds contempt," we had almost felt constrained at the commencement of what we may designate another term in our existence to depart from a custom which has become a time-honoured one with us—that of making a special appeal on behalf of each Masonic Charity Institution Festival as it approaches. We feel, however, there are many reasons why we should continue to observe the custom, and say a few words concerning each of the succeeding meetings, the success of which so materially depend on the amount of publicity which is given to them. As we have said, the custom has become a time-honoured one with us, and on that account ought not to be discontinued, more especially after what we said last week, when we announced our determination to carry on our work in the future on much the same lines as have guided us in the past, but there are much stronger reasons why we should not omit a passing reference to each of the Masonic Festivals in turn. They come upon us so frequently, however, that it is next to impossible to write anything new concerning them, and for this reason we feared we might cause that contempt for them in our readers' minds which arises from too great a familiarity; but we hope the nature of the cause they are intended to benefit will prevent anything like contempt being engendered. It might, perhaps, be considered that enough has been said concerning our three Institutions and their Festivals to place every brother in possession of full information concerning them; and that for a time, at least, they might be expected to go on prospering on the reputation of the past alone, but what a different state of affairs is really the true one. We venture to think that, even bearing in mind the enormous number of brethren who have made themselves personally acquainted with the Charities, by serving the office of Steward to one or other of them; the enormous number of brethren who must have supported them in the past; and the thousands of printed references to them which have been circulated during the time of their existence; they would all but disappear in the course of a few years if left wholly and solely to themselves, left to live indeed on their reputation of the past. The only way in which it can be hoped to continue them even on their present basis alone, without any thought of extension, is to be continually urging their claims on the Masons of England, by begging of those who have worked in the past to continue to do so in the future, and by entreating others to at once make a start in securing support for them.

There is one great advantage attached to the system under which the funds are collected to carry on our Charities. It seldom happens—indeed, we might say never—that a brother repents having put himself forward as a Steward. We suppose that by far the greater number of those who serve themselves feel it their duty to induce others to do the same; it is not a question of relating personal experiences in order to deter others from a similar course, but usually the reverse. The men who speak strongest in urging others to act as Stewards are those who have tried the work themselves, and not unfrequently have tried it two or three times. They do not then refer to it as a labour, but as a duty, and in that sense consider that every Mason should undertake his share of it. It is on this basis that we now urge our readers to do their best to advance the interests of the Benevolent Institution, the Festival of which takes place on the 25th of next month.

It is true that much has been done for this Institution in the past, and what do we find is the result of this:—briefly, that the Masons of England are pledged to distribute no less a sum than £13,200 per annum as annuities to aged brethren and widows who have been elected from among numerous applicants who have proved themselves worthy of sympathy from their more fortunate brethren. Upwards of 1027 annuitants have received the benefits of the Institution since its foundation in 1842, and there are at present no less than 352 (170 Men and 182 Widows) being paid, quarter by quarter, sums of money which enable them to pass the declining years of their life, if not in luxury, at least in comfort and free from actual want. Is it too much to ask for sufficient support to enable this good work to be continued? Is it too much to ask every reader of these lines to do something for the funds of this Institution? or are our frequent appeals on behalf of it out of place or unnecessary? To each question we answer most emphatically in the negative. Nothing that we can do is too much if it only helps to secure a few pounds on behalf of our Old People, and nothing that our readers may do in response to our request will be too much recompense to us for what we write. Our desire is that the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution should be supported far and wide, that its claims should be urged on every possible occasion, and that its wants, its work and its requirements may become familiar to every Mason, not in order to breed contempt for them, but to secure for them that encouragement they so richly deserve.

AN EXCELLENT LODGE HISTORY.

EVERY one of our old Lodges has, in its series of minute books, information of deep interest and lasting value to the Craft, and every Brother who patiently and critically examines these old records, selecting from them the facts that are most curious and instructive, and composing them into a literary mosaic, merits the thanks of the Fraternity. In a large degree the history of any old Lodge is the history of the Craft in its jurisdiction, for the time covered by the recital. Customs and events are generally uniform, and from one Lodge history you may largely learn that of its contemporaries. We have recently had laid upon our table a volume, in handsome form, entitled, "A Brief History of Washington Lodge, No. 59, F. & A. M., Philadelphia, from 1793 to 1884, compiled from the records, and authenticated sources of information, by P.M. Brother William B. Reed," the present Secretary of the Lodge. Although brief, the material for it has been admirably digested, and bears upon its face the evidence of protracted and intelligent labour. No one who has not undertaken such a work appreciates the drudgery of going over old books of minutes, written in all sorts of chirography, with all kinds of ink, blurred by carelessness, pale with age, and occasionally worn out by time. Hence, those who perform this work, and do it well, are entitled to receive not only fair credit, but unstinted praise. Such we accord to Bro. Reed. We are sure that the only criticism he will receive will be—Your history is too brief; why did you not make it fuller? But brevity is a virtue; it is far better to stimulate than to satiate. The cry for more is praise; the cry, enough, would be censure.

Washington Lodge, No. 59, was chartered by the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania during the Grand Mastership of Bro. Jonathan Bayard Smith, on 3rd June 1793—yellow fever year in Philadelphia, when Bro. Stephen Girard distinguished himself, and glorified Masonry, by remaining in the city to minister in the hospitals, while others fled the scourge. The Lodge then met in what was known as the "Free Quakers' Hall" (now the Apprentices' Library), S.W. corner of Fifth and Arch Streets. Among the first members were a number of the "Free" or "Fighting Quakers." This Lodge was prosperous from the outset. In four years its membership advanced from 9 to 97. It participated in the Washington obsequies in 1799-1800. In after years it was practically the mother of many Lodges. We instance a few which were formed, mainly or entirely, out of its membership: Columbia Lodge, No. 91; St. John's Lodge, No. 115; Orient Lodge, No. 289; Vaux Lodge, No. 393, and Lodge No. 432. While the Lodge occupied the "Pennsylvania Freemasons' Hall" (on the site of modern No. 814 Filbert Street), one of its members—Bro. Chas. S. Stewart, occupied the first floor of the Hall for a school room, and by contract with the Grand Lodge it was agreed that the education of the children of poor Brethren should be in lieu of rent. During the war of 1812 this Masonic pedagogue, in the language of Bro. Reed, "tired of teaching the 'young idea how to shoot,' resolved to do a little shooting on his own account. He returned safe and sound, and was appointed Secretary in 1816." One of the Secretaries of the Lodge was Bro. Bayse Newcomb, afterwards Grand Master of Masons of Pennsylvania. The recorded minutes, during his Secretaryship, are remarkable for their legibility and beauty. On 31st May 1810, the Lodge attended the funeral of P.G.M. Bro. William Ball, who served as Prov. G.M. of Pennsylvania from 1764 to 1787, and in 1794 as Grand Master. As in all of our Philadelphia Lodges, for many years, until 1817, the W.M.'s were elected every six months, dating from St. John the Evangelist's or St. John the Baptist's Day. The first Masonic Hall on Chestnut Street was burned on 9th March 1819, while Washington Lodge was at Labour. The then Secretary, Bro. Nicholas O'Connor, in describing the event said:

"At this moment the Lodge was thrown into the utmost consternation by the heart-appalling cry of "Fire," resounding through the spacious building, which had caught fire and communicated to the roof, and had made such rapid progress before discovery that the W.M. had not time to close the Lodge, without risking the life of the brethren—for in a short time our much-venerated pile was laid in smoking ruins."

No. 69 set up "housekeeping" in 1822, by buying a set of table furniture. Ever since, this Lodge has been furnished with its own appropriately marked and Masonically-decorated ware, the admiration of all Brethren who share in their Labour and Refreshment—which with them are never divorced. Their present set of table furniture is valued at 800 dollars. Up to 1843 all the business of the Lodge had been conducted in an E.A. Lodge, as was customary prior to that time in all of the Subordinate Lodges of this jurisdiction. After that date the Grand Lodge required all business to be performed in a M.M. Lodge. In 1844, the then Secretary of the Lodge, Bro. Wm. H. Adams, was elected Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge, and served in that station for twenty-two years, until his death in 1866. In 1847 a M.M. aged nineteen years petitioned for membership, and the Lodge, by a Dispensation issued by the Grand Master, was authorized to receive his petition. Bro. Wm. H. Adams' case was nearly a parallel one, and both of these Brethren served as W.M. of Lodge No. 59 at the age of twenty-three years. Upon the removal of the remains of Bro. Stephen Girard to Girard College, on 30th September 1851, this Lodge participated in the procession of the Craft and Masonic ceremonies, on which occasion P.G.M. Bro. Joseph R. Chandler delivered an eloquent oration, and thirty Lodges, with two thousand Freemasons, participated in the ceremonies. Always remarkable for its liberality at Refreshment, the annual banquet of December 1869 excelled, perhaps, all former occasions in brilliancy, over eight hundred members and visiting Brethren participating in the "feast of reason and flow of soul." This banquet took place in Horticultural Hall.

Washington Lodge, No. 59, now includes four hundred and seven members. It is always busy, and during its long existence has never ceased to work. During the anti-Masonic era of 1828—1840 it was active, and only during one year, 1840, did it have no initiation. Among the Past Masters we observe the names of the Rev. Henry S. Getz (present Grand Chaplain); Dr. David Jayne; Hon. William B. Hanna, President Judge of the Orphans' Court; Hon. Joseph T. Pratt, of the Court of Common Pleas; Geo. W. Kendrick jun. G. H. Priest-elect of the Grand H.R.A. Chapter of Pennsylvania, and other distinguished Brethren. Bro. Reed has placed at the close of this volume a list of the present members, alphabetically arranged; a complete list of the members from the organization in 1793 to 1884, arranged in order, by years; and an enumeration of the deceased members; concluding with an index to the body of the work. We have only praise for the entire performance. It is illustrated with three engravings—of the first Hall in which the Lodge met, the present Masonic Temple of Philadelphia, with the appropriate caption "Then" and "Now," and a copy of the old illustrated heading used for Lodge notices. This History is issued in very handsome style, on heavy paper, with broad margin, in handsome typography and with elegant binding. It is a model brief history, and does equal credit to the Lodge, and to its compiler, P.M. Bro. Wm. B. Reed.—Keystone.

THE THEATRES.

THE STANDARD.

HAD le Sieur Froissart, revisiting our land, found himself on Christmas Eve between Norton Folgate and Shoreditch Church he would certainly not have withdrawn his opinion as to our amusing ourselves "sadly." The great winter festival found the streets half deserted—and those who had ventured into them went their way as demurely as though it were Sunday morning, and all were bound for the Parish Church. Not an old-fashioned Christmas in any way unless all our traditions are mere picturesque fictions. Thus, nothing Christmas-like being discoverable out of doors, we will seek it in the Eastern home of Pantomime, and so proceed to the Great National Standard Theatre. The doors have been opened about ten minutes, and the smiling box-keeper announces there are still two seats unoccupied in the dress circle. We make our way to them, past the mysterious rat-trap like passages contrived by the Board of Works to ensure speedy suffocation in cases of panic, and presently find ourselves next the manager's box and facing some four or five thousand eager faces, whilst the band plays "Wait till the clouds roll by," and a thousand voices pour forth from the audience in chorus. The chorus stops, and then there is a great buzz of laughter and talk, all good-humoured, and almost as decorous as at a Lyceum first night. The curtain rises to disclose the plotting of the Spirits of Evil, engaged in forging the glass slipper (perhaps a curious process of the contemporary ironmaster). The scene changes to a sylvan glade, an exquisite piece of landscape, with tall waving grass in the middle distance and a lovely pool behind. Here the good spirits appear, in the form of scores of little girls, from five to fifteen, each armed with a golden hearth brush; and very pretty it was to see how thoroughly the young folks felt their responsible position, and how, when a laugh or titter was threatening, the little lips tightened and gravity was restored. A very graceful child (Mdlle. Maroni) was première danseuse and won warm applause. We are next introduced to Cinderella's papa and step sisters. The family is in straitened circumstances, and the neighbouring pawnbroker is called upon to make advances on a flat-iron and the cruet frame. This transaction met with much sympathy from the audience. The invitation to the ball follows, and then, in due course, Cinderella's coach, worthy Queen Anne, and drawn by six lovely ponies. The ball was shown, with endless masqueraders arriving in coaches or donkey carts. Among the guests were Mr. Gladstone, Justice Manisty, Shakespeare's heroes and heroines, and various celebrities. A minuet was danced. We think the audience would prefer a good rattling country dance or jig, say by the Ghost of Hamlet. The abode of the Fire Demons is the next scene, and here Miss Neville, the Demon King, was extremely effective in her incantation scene. The costumes, all red and black, told well, lighted by the blazing torches the demons waved around them. Again to the haunts of the benevolent fairies, and here came another charming dance by the young coryphées. Then presently the magnificent transformation scene, which for beauty of colour and artistic refinement may challenge comparison with anything even in Catherine-street. An especially charming effect is produced by a scenic contrivance by which the centre of the stage seems filled with translucent water, through which the lilies and naiads rise to the upper air. The picture is so beautiful that only the youngest of the audience can see without regret the clown and pantaloon appear to scare away the vision. The harlequinade that follows is good, as the increasing laughter throughout the house proved. Mr. Douglass has spared no pains nor cost to deserve success. The young lady (Miss Minnie Marshall) who takes the part of Cinderella is quite new to the London stage—she has for some time been a favourite at Birmingham. She is very young, pretty, and with a total freedom from the ingenuousness of the stage ingénue, she trips about like some delightful little kitten. Mr. Williams was rather heavily handicapped in the petticoats of the ugly sister, but he worked with unflagging spirit and fun. Mr. Sass showed his versatility by the very effective old man he transformed himself into, while his favourite melodramatic villainy quite disappeared. Miss Nelly L'Estrange made a very fascinating Prince Charming. The audience were somewhat lacking in appreciation; the dulness of the streets had got into the theatre, but this has been remedied since, the actors feeling more confidently the pulse of the public. A few more songs, with chorus for the youngsters in the upper circles, would go far to give life and establish that feeling of good fellowship between the folks before and behind the footlights which makes the very life and soul of a Christmas Pantomime.

In our notice, last week, of the funeral of the late Bro. Norris we omitted to mention that his mother Lodge, the Sincerity, No. 174, was represented by Bros. John Newton P.M. (Secretary) and Samuel Rawley, for many years the Treasurer.

TWO NEW YEARS' EVES; OR, HOW I BECAME A MASON.

BY A VETERAN BROTHER.

CHAPTER II.

I REMEMBERED no more until I awoke and found myself in a dimly-lighted chamber, but in the returning moments of consciousness I could discern that it was more comfortably and richly furnished than my own was in the City. The candle was shaded (this was an age anterior to gas or even "moderator" lamps) and all was wrapped in what appeared to me a death-like hush—for in the City, at whatever hour of day or night, there is always some sound vibrating on the stillness of the air. There was some one stealing gently across my room, as I opened my eyes languidly after what seemed to me a troubled sleep.

"Who is there? And where am I?" I gasped with the first breath I could gather.

"Hush! poor fellow," whispered the faithful Jack; "you have had a narrow escape, but you must not talk more now, there's a dear fellow."

"But she! Is she—— ?"

"Safe," replied Jack, "thank God."

"Thank God" was the only sigh in which I could echo the whispered utterance of my friend, who with the tenderness of a woman moistened my lips with some kind of liquor, and I fell off once more into a profound slumber.

The sunlight was slanting across the meadows and into my chamber window, when I awoke and heard voices speaking in low tones, at the other end of the apartment.

"He'll be rather shaky for a week or two yet," I heard one say; but there is no danger, and he may be safely removed to-day, if necessary. He has sustained a severe shock through being so long under the water.

"I shall not hear of his quitting my roof until he has perfectly recovered," replied another. "To him—whoever he is—I owe the life of the sweetest angel out of heaven, my only daughter, and I must thank him as I ought to do. Poor Adeline! How cruel of me to have left you at home when all your friends were starting off so full of glee for our 'summer banquet.'"

And then the strong voice melted into a sob, as though a heart was breaking.

"Now, Captain," chimed in a voice, which I instantly recognised as Jack's, "you must not give way now that danger is past with them both. We would have gladly sacrificed our lives to save your daughter; but it was not required. The Great Architect of the Universe overrules all things, and we shall all live to bless Him for his interposition in our behalf this day."

"So mote it be," groaned the Captain, who I then of course knew to be the father of her who had so nearly been claimed by death.

He had by this time recovered from his emotion, and went on to relate more of the circumstances of the previous day, of which I was yearning, of course, to hear. So, feigning sleep, when they each by turns came to look upon the "patient," I heard the Captain's explanation, which I quote as nearly as I can recollect.

"Well, you know, Fenton, they did me the honour this year to elect me Master of my mother Lodge, after my return from Abyssinia, and of course I was highly delighted with the favour the brethren conferred upon me, more as a compliment, I thought, than because I deserved it. I determined to make my year a pleasant one all round, and in order to render it especially so I invented what it was my pride and whim to call a 'summer banquet.' By that I mean, we were to transact a little necessary business in Lodge, which meets in the City, and afterwards invite the ladies—sweethearts and wives you know, Fenton—to have a pleasant drive down here to old 'Squire Cotton's park, which he generously placed at our disposal for the day, which is no more than a good and true Brother and Provincial Grand Master should do. We accordingly met, and on leaving home early, in order to meet the rest of my Lodge, I somehow had a strange presentiment that the pic-nic would not be a success. I am not a superstitious man, as you well know, and I have faced death in more forms than one. But in some singular, indescribable way I fancied there would be a mishap of some kind—what I could not tell. My daughter kissed me on the doorstep as I left, and when I asked her if she would not like to join our party, her eyes gleamed with a strange admixture of pleasure and pain. It was a struggle between her own gratification and love for her poor mother, who has long been an invalid and cannot leave the house.

"'You know, Papa, how glad I should be to accompany you on such a delightful day, but you see there is no one at home to look after our dear invalid, so I must stay;' and wishing me an enjoyable trip, I cantered off to join the brethren, who had just assembled when I arrived at the 'Claremont.' A merry party it was, and a glorious drive along the dusty roads to Bickenham; but my heart was not in tune with all the gleeful surroundings. I was ill at ease, and just as the brethren and their friends were mustering for our al fresco, in comes old Jinks, our Tyler, saying a brother was waiting admission, 'properly prepared' with an invite, but that he was accompanied by a friend for whom he could not vouch, and who indeed was not a Mason. I immediately refused the latter, because when the subject was first talked about in Lodge the pic-nic was flatly opposed by some of the more fastidious brethren as an innovation, and I only gained the point by promising that none of the male sex should be invited who were not Masons. However, the two visitors withdrew, in dudgeon, I dare say."

"Well," continued the captain, "in less than two hours, at any rate when the dance was in full swing, and I began to laugh at the foolish fears I had entertained as to the success of my 'innovation,' a messenger arrived in breathless haste, and in a second the whisper flew round the park that the Worshipful Master's only daughter had been drowned!

"I cannot relate to you the scene that followed, for my brain was on the whirl; but I know the music had ceased, and as I drove frantically out of the gates the brethren stood aside with heads uncovered in respectful silence as I was hurried along in my unutterable woe. You remember, Fenton, the scene that followed here—how that joy succeeded to frenzy when I heard that the worst had not been realised, and that both my darling and her deliverer, though not then out of danger, had not succumbed to their fearful peril. The doctor says she will speedily recover now, but a change may be necessary, and your friend there, being of a strong constitution will more speedily pull though. But, hush! he is stirring."

When Jack and the Captain came over to peep in upon me this time, I could grasp each by the hand, though my lips failed for a time to express my gratitude for the deliverance which had been vouchsafed to all of us.

* * * * * * *

It is not necessary to recapitulate the gratitude which broke forth from the Captain, more in action than in speech, when, later in the day, I ventured downstairs. I was anxious to get back to my own abode, to rest and quiet, and away from the hearing of such profuse, though well-intentioned, thankfulness. Moreover, if she were then to appear upon the scene, her acknowledgment of the slight service rendered would have unnerved me. So, proof against all expostulation or coaxing, it was resolved that I was strong enough to bear the exertion of two or three hours' slow journey back to town, and snugly ensconced on pillows in the Captain's own carriage, Jack and I were driven gently away for home.

In the last hearty handshake with me, as the carriage was moving off, I felt the Captain pass upon my finger a ring.

It was hers; and it is through the red, the azure and the gold that sparkle in the firelight now, on this bright, crisp New Year's Eve, 1884, that I see the panorama of my life from that time—forty-two years ago—up to the present moment.

CHAPTER III.

Had it been in these days the invitation would have undoubtedly come by way of delicately scented note paper and envelope, and through the "Penny Post." But in those more prosaic times things were different, and the letter came by messenger, penned on "blue post," and fastened with an enormous seal with crest. It was written in a bold soldierly hand, and ran as follows:—

"Manor House, Bickenham.

MY DEAR HEWLETT,—A few choice friends have promised to join us for Christmas and the New Year, and our company will not be complete without you. I shall reckon upon your old friendship to crown the circle of our enjoyment. I have a secret in store for you—an agreeable surprise. I have written to your old bosom friend, Jack Fenton, and he will accompany you down. We will try to make you both happy.

Yours ever faithfully,

HENRY MAYHEW.

How it snowed, as Jack and I once more travelled along the same road we had done on that broiling Midsummer-day, when earth and sky kissed each other in very rapture of sunshine, colour, and brilliancy. Now, on this bitter Christmas Eve, as the horses' feet crumpled over the frosted roads, and the snow was hurled by the fitful gusts against our carriage windows, the contrast was intense. Yet the journey was not without its pleasantries, for two hearts linked together in the strongest bonds of love, as men only can love each other, were once more in anticipation of a happy réunion, and this time there was not the slightest shadow of a doubt as to the result. No cruel Tyler would be there this time to question the "invitation for two."

We dashed up the broad drive towards the Hall, in whose windows glistened a brilliancy which defied the storm without; and our gallant host was beside himself with joy in bidding us welcome—"fine old English gentleman" as he was. The holly and the mistletoe darkled on the walls, and every apartment wore an air of the most refined and luxurious elegance and comfort.

Shall I say with what warmth we were commanded—not invited only—to be "at home," and how could we be otherwise? The company was small as to number, but great in everything that tends to make life worth the living. There was scarcely a shade of that awkward hesitancy which invariably precedes an introduction, and immediately we were on a friendly footing all round. As we entered the drawing-room there came the soft strain of an old Wallachian melody, which the Captain "picked up," he told me, afterwards, in his travels abroad; and as the notes were touched by tremulous hands, could I not guess whose heart it was that breathed life into that weird yet soothing composition?

As soon as it was ended, our host walked gently to the piano and led the sweet player to the end of the room where we were seated, and in glowing terms—spoken in the brusque honesty of the soldier, who knows not the fawning platitudes of modern compliment—presented me to Adeline as the saviour of her life, and the preserver of his dearest joy.

How vividly come back to me now, even in my old age, the emotions which filled my breast on that eventful night of joy and despair, and hope. How utterly unworthy of the thanks that were spoken with such artless innocence and frankness by the angel whose loveliness and grace no pen can ever be permitted to describe. I would that I had never come to realise the joy which had been in my dreams both day and night ever since the day described in a former chapter, and yet I would not have missed that ecstasy for worlds!

It is no excess of modesty, that I do not possess, to say that I was for a moment awed, and could only reply to the gentle pressure of the hand, which endorsed her father's gratitude, by stammering out, I fear very clumsily,

"Believe me, no thanks are due for the performance of a duty, even towards the humblest of our race; but "—(here I know I bungled most absurdly)—"where youth and beauty are in the case, the reward is ours, and it belongs more assuredly to Fenton here than to me."

Jack, I confess, was more cool under such circumstances than myself, and as Adeline extended to him her left hand, still retaining mine in the other, she spoke I thought even with more enthusiasm to him than she had just previously done to me.

Our first meeting under such joyous circumstances occupied less time even than it has taken to write this hurried outline; but into those rapturous moments were crowded an eternity of joy for me.

Was I in love? Unquestionably, I aver it at the outset; for had not that darling face and form been the guardian angel of my life ever since I first beheld her? Was I jealous? Of Jack? never; for he had often declared to me that he had no matrimonial intentions, and never should, as he had decided to go with his regiment abroad. Yet why that look of eager and passionate appreciation of Jack's prettily-rounded speech, in reply to his word of thanks?

Yes, I was in love, head over ears, and I was jealous, too,—a little!

Yet, as we parted, to mingle with the guests, I saw her glance at the diamond on my finger, and then uplift her beautiful eyes to mine. And as she smiled so graciously upon me, and in a sweet accent innocently inquired, "Have you worn it ever since for my sake?" I knew I had no rival in the field—not even my old friend Jack.

Diamonds and eyes, strings of pearls and laughing rows of teeth vied with each other then for the palm of lustre and purity, and who shall decide which were the winners?

* * * * * *

The days passed too swiftly for the day dream which had found its realisation now. Each brought but an increase of deep, true, passionate and absorbing affection, and though the words had not been spoken yet, it needed none but lover's eyes to see that the affection was reciprocal. Why were we placed side by side at dinner, and why did the Captain improvise so many little artifices by which to leave us so frequently alone?

I see it all now, and from my soul I bless thee, Captain, though thou hast been long since called away to that land where all is love!

But New Year's Eve had dawned, and my kind host's secret had not yet been revealed. Did he mean the uniting of two young hearts whom he knew would love each other? There was something else.

And so Jack told me as we retired to rest on the night preceding the New Year's Eve. We had often spoken of my becoming one of the "Ancient Fraternity;" and although my friend sagaciously promised that if I ever became a Mason it must be of my own free will and accord, and not by any species of persuasion, I had already imbibed a strong desire to join a brotherhood of which, even from the little I could learn as an "outsider," I had formed the most admiring opinion.

"Well," exclaimed he, "it is all arranged. You asked me to propose you, and I have done so. At the last meeting you were duly proposed and accepted, and to-morrow will come the trial of your fortitude."

Surely enough, next afternoon I was duly admitted within the portals of the Ancient and Honourable Institution in which I have since found so much true happiness and solace, and the gallant Captain—I beg pardon, Brother—was never more earnest in his life than when he, with the assistance of the brethren, vouchsafed to me the predominant wish of my heart.

The meeting was made purposely brief, as I afterwards learnt; being an emergency for my special benefit, and we drove back early to the Manor House, where the crowning event of the week's festivities was to take place. The neighbouring gentry, tenants, farmers, all were there to welcome in the glad New Year with royal honours, and as the loving cup was passed around, the windows were flung open so that all might hear the wild bells ringing out to the wild sky—as Tennyson has it—from the ivy-mantled tower of Bickenham church.

* * * * * * *

Those bells rang out a still more joyous peal in the bright June following when, on the anniversary of the Midsummer-day that I snatched dear Adeline from the treacherous river, I proudly led her forth from the old church, amidst a pathway of flowers strewn by the village children along the aisle, and the congratulations of sincere and hearty well-wishers and friends.

Chapter IV.

Twenty-five years had elapsed, during which time more than the share of happiness that usually falls to the lot of man was mine. The same trustful heart that beat in tune to my own on that never-to-be-forgotten New Year's Eve had been unswerving in all the relations of life from our nuptial day in dear old Bickenham church to the celebration of our silver wedding at the Manor House. The three prattling children had grown to maturity, and the two boys are spending this New Year's Eve, I fervently pray, in the homes of their adoption in the colonies, where they have been more successful even than they anticipated in business. Our little daughter Adeline has been not many months a bride, and has gone to India with her husband, a smart young Captain in the —th Regiment.

New Year's Eve had come round again, and "my dear old wife and I"—as the boys used to sing when they were at home, were left to celebrate the birthday of our loves, as we plodded down the gentle incline of a happy and unclouded life. Adeline's mother, always an invalid, had long since passed away; but the poor old Captain, now in his ninetieth year, still survived, and it was often our duty and pleasure to visit him in his old home, surrounded by kind attendants and friends. Especially was this duty and pleasure observed on New Year's Eve, and on the night of which this is the seventeenth anniversary we were on our way, per express train, to pay our vows of filial love at the shrine of the old patriarch who had ever been so loving and true to us.

It was about five o'clock in the evening when we started from the terminus, and as usual the porters and officials were busy with the stream of passengers who were going or arriving at the station—all on a mission similar to our own. The night was black and stormy, with an admixture of rain and sleet, whilst the raw wind blew in gusts against the windows of the train as it rushed onward through the pitchy darkness.

We had proceeded, as far as I can remember—for recollection has been uncertain since that night—about seven miles when our carriages began to oscillate in most vehement fashion. For a moment I could see pallor on every cheek; the wild cry of terror still rings in my ears as the train leaped like a maddened thing of life from the line of rails, and I remember no more! Dear Adeline had clung to me in that supreme moment of danger with the confidence she had always evinced in my presence; but I never saw her again!

* * * * * * *

For several weeks I laid in the ward of a hospital, with only fitful intervals of consciousness and delirium, and not a soul amongst the medical staff ever believed I could be pulled through. I have since learnt that I was extricated from beneath the debris of the train, and sympathetic hands loosened the arms that were entwined around me in that embrace of death. I was terribly shattered and mangled, too, but after months of careful treatment and nursing I became comparatively whole again, and am still able to take part in those pursuits that are congenial to me, and of which, let me say, my Masonic duties form the principal part.

I will not weary my readers with any details of the catastrophe of my life; the columns of a newspaper, and not a simple New Year's story, are the place for these.

But can my readers wonder that ever since that awful night, when in the blackness and din and smoke, the angel spirit of her whom I had so loved was taken, I have held New Year's Eve sacred to the dearest memories of my life—our lives—and sit in my lonely chamber peaceful in the enjoyment of a good conscience and a hopeful resignation, waiting for the bright New Year which shall re-unite two souls who knew of nought but true and pure affection from first to last?

And as the church bells vie with each other all over the City, clanging a pæan of delight at the birth of another, and let us hope a brighter year, the kindly embers in the grate send gleams of recollection crowding through the mind of one who never has yet regretted

"How he became a Mason."

FREEDOM OF DISCUSSION.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I am glad to observe that you did not miss the opportunity of replying to the remarks of the Evening News, in which a writer would endeavour to gag the interchange of opinion on matters of Masonic interest. Of what possible value is a Masonic Press unless it is indeed made and used as the vehicle for the free discussion of such subjects are as inseparably bound up with Freemasonry? I venture to believe that amongst the great body of Masons there are many who are truly indebted to your journal, above all others, for information on many points in Masonry of which they would be otherwise ignorant, and for many suggestions and hints also that have proved an invaluable help to them in their Masonic career. I do not often "rush into print," especially on a trivial subject, but I wish to thank you and your intelligent correspondents who afford us weekly such valuable means of instruction and entertainment. It may be that occasionally the wielders of the pen evince a little more of the heroic and the cantankerous than there is any necessity for; but of course people who "go in" for literary boxing must be prepared to give and take. It is almost always the case that the writer who hits hardest in the way of personality is the first to cry out when he is castigated for his temerity; but so far from the general readers being offended by these pen and ink tournaments, I believe they are rather sources of amusement than otherwise. It is always well that writers—and especially Masonic writers—should remember that forbearance is magnanimous, and that abuse is not argument. If this were borne steadily in mind, I think there would be much less acerbity in the effusions which have called forth the strictures of your evening contemporary. As a rule, I believe correspondents write with the intention of benefitting the Craft in any possible way they can; and personalities, though they do occasionally appear "between the lines," are not intended in any unfriendly spirit. It is with this sentiment that I write to thank you for your expressed determination to continue—in spite of an endeavour to stop it—to afford your readers the best and only means at their disposal of interchanging thoughts and ideas relative to the cause we have all so much at heart.

I remain, Dear Sir and Brother,

Faithfully yours,

THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—The idea propounded by Bro. Binckes, of starting an annual subscription in Lodges and Chapters on behalf of the Boys' Preparatory School, is by no means a new one, but has been urged over and over again in many parts of the country, and more especially in the East Riding of Yorkshire, where I resided some years. I well remember that this was a favourite theme with that active and excellent Mason Dr. John Pearson Bell, the Deputy Grand Master of that Province, who never lost an opportunity of reminding the brethren of how much could be done for the Charities of the Craft provided each would make up his mind to contribute, if even only a shilling per annum, toward some definite object in connection with Freemasonry. But, somehow or other, the idea does not appear to have taken root in anything like a general sense, as was proved by the statistics quoted in Bro. Binckes's circular. These figures certainly do appear rather bald as to any steady and constant effort; but we must not forget that there are many and continual demands upon the purses of individual members of the Craft which do not appear upon the surface, and which, in these exceptionally depressed times, we must endeavour not unnecessarily to increase. There can be no doubt that in every branch of commercial industry there is just now an unusual strain, nor do the appearances of trade at home and abroad afford much hope of immediate improvement. Still there may be, and no doubt is, in most Lodges some department in which "retrenchment and reform" could be put to some practical test; at any rate to the extent of placing at the disposal of the executive of the Boys' School the necessary guinea per annum which Bro. Binckes, with more than his accustomed modesty, asks for for this exceptional purpose. I see it hinted that a Collector might with advantage be appointed for the Boys' Institution, similar to the course which has been so successfully adopted with regard to the Benevolent Institution. This seems to me to be a forcible and sensible course to adopt, for none of us would begrudge the comparatively small coin which would be earned by a zealous and industrious brother who could make it his business to induce others to take an active interest in any of our Charitable Institutions. It is perhaps too much to expect that individual brethren should expend more of their time and labour than they do already in advocating the claims of our respective Charities; if they do so of their own free will and accord some recognition of their extra and exceptional services should, as you have pointed out, be made. As a rule, however, brethren who undertake such duties do so as a labour of love, and to exemplify their interest and solicitude for the welfare of the Craft to which they belong. I would that no such sentiment should be stultified or even infringed upon by the appointment of a Collector; and, in point of fact, I do not believe such an officer would be regarded in that light. Rather would his efforts supplement the private exertions of brethren who may not be able to devote as much time to the work as they might desire; and the attendance of a representative of the Committee at our Lodge meetings would stimulate brethren into increased exertions who could not be approached by those who voluntarily undertake the task of raising funds for any specific purpose. It is a delicate question perhaps to be dealt with in print, especially in the face of the opinions recently expressed, and which have elicited from yourself some sound and sensible views on the matter of "freedom of discussion" on Masonic subjects; but still I see no more direct manner of impressing it upon the attention of the officers and members of Lodges than through the columns of an organ which is both professedly and in reality identified with the Craft, and devoted to the interchange of Masonic views. I shall feel it my duty to bring the subject of annual subscriptions and the appointment of a Collector on behalf of the Boys' School prominently before the members of my own Lodge on the first convenient opportunity, and sincerely trust that other rulers of Lodges will accept the very practical hints and suggestions with which you supplied us in your leading article last week. I write this in the anticipation that your "Word in Season" may be productive of such practical results that Bro. Binckes and his fellow workers on behalf of the Boys' Preparatory School may feel that they have not expended their labour in vain.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Fraternally yours,

MARK MASONRY—INSTRUCTION—GRAND MASTER'S LODGE.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Under this heading I read in the Freemason this morning a startling account of proceedings, affording another instance of the reliability of press communications.

I have no wish to claim any prominence for myself, am quite prepared to be forgotten in due course, but not to submit to be quietly effaced whilst still in the flesh.

Considering that at the meeting of which your contemporary professes to give a report, I was in my place, in pursuance of my promise to attend; that I opened the Lodge, rehearsed the ceremonies of consecration and installation, and afterwards presided at supper, I am utterly lost in amazement at being completely blotted out. Let me assure you, however, that I am still,

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

"STOP MY PAPER!"

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—This is an awful penalty, inflicted by thin-skinned subscribers to a newspaper upon the journalist who has the courage of his opinions, and who tolerates in his columns perfect "freedom of discussion." So long as the Editor is mealy-mouthed and handles his subjects in a gingerly and kid-glove manner, he may expect that nobody will find offence with his mild and insipid platitudes. But immediately in the consciousness of his own intelligent strength he ventures upon views and opinions with which some fastidious reader may not entirely agree, down comes the "awful avalanche" from some indignant subscriber, winding up with the injunction above quoted. It is no doubt very familiar to you, Sir, as it is to most other journalists, and it goes to show what an abject lack there is of moral courage on the part of certain individuals who must have it all their own way, and cannot bear to listen to an expression of view which is ever so little in disagreement with their own. Such people ought to have a paper printed and published for their own especial behoof, and better still, they should try the experiment of starting and conducting such an enterprise on their own account. They would learn that an editor is too wise to perpetuate the folly of the old fable about "the man and his ass," or to dream of his ever succeeding in pleasing everybody.

The impertinence implied by notice to "Stop my Paper" is only equalled by its arrogant grievance and stupidity. Does the irate one think that because he withdraws his poor little subscription from a newspaper that the Press is entirely to collapse and that its occupation, like Othello's, will be "gone?" You may as well expect to see the ocean dry up because some old woman dips a bucket of water out of it. The loss, if any, to the cessation of an individual's support to a newspaper is his own entirely. I say, "if any," because the man who thus peevishly and impetuously casts aside what to others is a means of edification and entertainment can scarcely be expected to profit much by the sources of enjoyment which others find in literature. There is no hard and fast line to be laid down for the guidance of newspaper correspondence, which must of necessity be entirely in the hands and under the control of the editor, who if he be competent and judicious will not allow his columns to be made the vehicle or medium of mere personal quarrels or "vulgar abuse." I am pleased, as a brother journalist, to acknowledge the freedom you have ever granted to Masonic correspondents in the ventilation of subjects of interest to the Craft, and at the same time the wholesome check you have placed upon personalities which have been attempted by amateur writers in your columns. It is only to be expected that novices in journalistic work will at times "rush in where angels fear to tread;" and then it is that discreet and kindly excision is needed at the hands of the experienced journalist. Having been a regular reader of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE since its establishment, I can bear testimony to the careful study which must have been exercised in the publication of such notes and comments as you have deemed necessary for, and conducive to, the interests of Freemasonry; and I am no judge if your waste-paper basket—if it could speak—could not wondrous tales unfold of spiteful little eliminations, and friendly "toning downs" of correspondence ere the effusions appeared in their completed suit of black and white. I am very glad to notice your determination to maintain for your readers "freedom of discussion;" and, as one who may sometimes feel inclined to "trespass on your valuable space," either for inquiry or interchange of opinion, I am personally obliged to you for your able and most sensible leader of last week.

I remain, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

A COUNTRY EDITOR.

THE LATE BROTHER NORRIS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Does it not appear to you rather strange that, considering the high esteem in which Brother James Norris, late Warden of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, was held, there should have been no representative of his own Lodge present at the funeral of our lamented brother? The question is prompted by seeing no mention, in your report of the obsequies, of the attendance of any member of Lodge No. 174.

Yours fraternally,

ENQUIRER.

[Our correspondent will observe that the omission has been rectified in another column.—ED. F.C.]

CHAPTERS OF IMPROVEMENT.

THE Camden Chapter of Improvement has removed from its old abode, the Junction Tavern, Holloway Road, to the Moorgate, Moorgate Street, and the first meeting since the change was held at the latter trysting-place, on Tuesday evening last. Comp. Edmonds acted efficiently as M.E.Z., Comps. Gregory H., Carter J., Slyman S.E., Storr P.S., and Sheffield S.N. This being the opening meeting of the year, there was a large attendance of Companions; the ceremony was conducted in an able manner, and all present realised a most instructive and profitable evening.

A convocation of the North London Chapter of Improvement was held on Thur day evening, at the Alwyne Castle Tavern, St. Paul's Road, Canonbury, when Comp. Dehane acted as M.E.Z, Comps. Radcliffe H., Knight J., Sheffield S.E., Money S.N., Edmonds P.S. This being the first meeting for the New Year, there was a goodly muster of Royal Arch Masons, notwithstanding the inclement weather. The members of this flourishing Chapter intend holding an annual banquet, the arrangements for which will be discussed at the next Convocation, on Thursday, the 15th instant. The hope is expressed that all Companions desirous of participating in that gathering will make a point of attending on the occasion of the next Convocation.

The Metropolitan Chapter of Improvement meets on Tuesday evenings, at 6.30 p.m., at the White Hart, Cannon Street, but as this hour is somewhat inconvenient for many of the brethren, it may be interesting to them to know that the Camden Chapter, not meeting till 8 o'clock, will afford an excellent opportunity to those who are unable to attend earlier, to be present at the Moorgate Tavern, whilst those who are energetic students may find it desirable, as well as convenient, to avail themselves of both means of instruction and edification.

OUR INSTITUTIONS.

ON Saturday last the General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys held their first meeting for the New Year, under the presidency of Bro. Raynham W. Stewart P.G. Deacon. Amongst those also present were Bros. R. Berridge, A. Williams, C. F. Matier, J. L. Mather, W. Maple, F. Adlard, J. Mason, L. Ruf, C. H. Webb, W. Roebuck, A. E. Gladwell, F. Richardson, H. Massey, H. Hacker, Rev. R. Morris Head Master, H. B. Marshall G. Treasurer, G. P. Gillard, W. A. Scurrah, H. Venn, W. H. Saunders, J. M. Stedwell, and F. Binckes Secretary. The salary of the Organist of the School was, on the recommendation of the House Committee, increased from £25 to £30 per annum. Brother W. Roebuck gave notice, on behalf of the House Committee, that at the Quarterly Court on Monday he would move that Law 52 should be altered, making the age of a candidate for admission to the School at which a petition can be presented six years, and the age at which an elected applicant can be admitted seven years, instead of seven and eight years as at present. This recommendation was made in view of the intended opening of the Preparatory School in the autumn of this year. Out of ten boys whose petitions were received, nine were placed on the list of candidates for the April election. The sum of £40 was granted to an ex-pupil who is studying for the Church, and £10 to a pupil who has just left the School. The extra salaries of the Secretary, and Clerk in the Office, voted in consequence of the extra labour entailed by the work of the Preparatory School, were agreed to be continued for another twelve months. To fill the vacant office of Trustee, caused by the death of Col. Creaton P.G. Treasurer, the Secretary (Bro. Binckes) announced that Bros. Parkinson and Roebuck were eligible, and would esteem it an honour if the choice of the brethren fell upon either of them. It was announced that for the 25 vacancies which would have to be filled at the April Election there were 47 candidates. Bro. W. H. Saunders referred to the circular issued by Bro. Binckes—a copy of which, and a leading article referring to it, appeared in the last issue of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE—relative to the need of timely aid to the Preparatory School, by the constant and steady annual subscriptions of Lodges. The suggestion met with his entire approval, and he trusted it would be actively and practically supported by all the Lodges and Chapters under the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of England. This hope was endorsed by the members of the Committee, and the proceedings closed with the customary vote of thanks to the Chairman.

On Monday evening, the annual "Twelfth Night" Entertainment to the pupils who remain in the Girls' School at Battersea-rise during the Christmas vacation took place, under the most successful and happy auspices. Bro. Robert Grey, the Chairman on the rota, presided, and a large number of ladies and gentlemen availed themselves of the opportunity of being present at the festive gathering. At five o'clock the company partook of tea together, Miss Jarwood, Matron of the Institution, gracing the head of the table, supported by Miss Shepherd, as Vice-President. Subsequently, Herr Adalbert Frikell gave some admirable feats of legerdemain, which afforded infinite amusement to young and old; the intervals between the entertainment the pupils employed in dancing, the music being supplied by Mr. Arthur Lock. Twelfth cakes and other refreshments were then liberally dispensed amongst the children, and a variety of amusements were provided by the brethren present. More dancing followed, and the pleasures of the evening were maintained with unabated zest up to a seasonable hour, the entertainment being voted one of the most successful and enjoyable that had ever taken place at the Girls' School. Before separating Herr Frikell made a present to each of the pupils, an act of kindly consideration, which was supplemented by Bro. Alderman Savory, who gave each a new shilling. The little ones entered most heartily into the amusements provided for their delectation, and were loud in their expressions of appreciation at the treat afforded them.

As usual, on the first Wednesday in the New Year, the Benevolent Institution at Croydon was the scene of quiet and happy enjoyment on Wednesday last, on which occasion the annual entertainment was given to the "Old Folks." During the afternoon a goodly company of ladies and brethren proceeded to Croydon from town, and on their arrival at the Institution were heartily welcomed by Bro. Jas. Terry, the genial and indefatigable Secretary, when hearty wishes for a "Happy New Year" were interchanged. With their accustomed liberality Bro. Edgar Bowyer P.G.S.B. and Mrs. Bowyer provided a plentiful supply of tea and tobacco for the annuitants, and it is hardly necessary to say their repeated acts of generosity were most thankfully acknowledged and appreciated. At 2 o'clock the old people were entertained at dinner in the large hall, the menu consisted "of all the luxuries of the season," including turkeys and roast beef, ham, fowls, &c., which had been contributed by many generous friends and well-wishers of the Institution. These gifts had been supplemented by five guineas from East Lancashire, two guineas from the Abbey Lodge, while other presents from various Lodges enabled the House Committee to place a most sumptuous repast upon the board. The hall was, as usual, prettily embellished with seasonable decorations, and when filled by the happy and contented "family" presented an air of cosy luxury and enjoyment. The chair was occupied by Bro. Dr. Strong (Hon. Surgeon of the Institution), who was assisted in ministering to the enjoyment of the party by Bros. Terry, T. Cubitt, Raynham W. Stewart, and other brethren, who acted most assiduously as voluntary waiters. The repast was served in a style which won for Miss Norris, the Matron, the deserved encomiums of all present, and as the day was the eve of the attainment of his majority by Prince Albert Victor, champagne was added to the wine list. After dinner had been agreeably and amply discussed, Dr. Strong said it was not usual to make lengthy set speeches on these occasions, but this was a special one, from the fact that since they last met they had lost their old and respected Warden, Bro. James Norris, who had been a resident in the Institution upwards of twenty-two years. He referred to the late Bro. Norris's loving care and considerate kindness for his fellow annuitants, and the assistance he had ever rendered to the Committee, and requested that the late Warden's memory should be drunk to in solemn silence. After this the loyal toasts were honoured, followed by the "Founders of the Feast," in connection with which Dr. Strong alluded to the kindness of the brethren who had provided the entertainment, and had moreover come down to assist in carrying out the amusements, and to enhance the pleasures of the guests. Amongst so many generous supporters it was almost invidious to select any one in particular to respond to the toast, but he would ask Bro. Edgar Bowyer, who was always ready to lend a helping hand, to say a few words on his own behalf and that of his co-workers, who he hoped would all live long to continue in the excellent and generous work in which they had been so long engaged. The toast having been most cordially received, Bro. E. Bowyer briefly responded, and in the course of his remarks said it was the pleasure and interest, as well as the duty, of all to do what they could to contribute to the enjoyment and happiness of the annuitants whom they had undertaken to protect. During the past year they had, unfortunately, lost some of their patrons, but no doubt their places would be supplied by others equally kind. In giving "Success to the Benevolent Institution," he expressed a hope that the coming Festival might be a success, and that Brother Terry's indefatigable efforts to that end might be brilliantly rewarded.

Bro. Terry, in reply, expressed regret at the absence of Bros. Binckes, Hedges, and others, who had been unavoidably prevented from attending. He referred to the active support which Bro. Edgar Bowyer and others had rendered to the Benevolent Institution—not to the detriment of the other Charities, but in preference to them. They were proud of the success of all three Institutions, but there were some who were peculiarly attached to one or other, to the exclusion of the rest. A considerable portion of success had happily attended this Institution during the past year. The highest amount yet known in its history was announced the other day,—£19,500 was the amount of the gross result of the year's work. This gave him the opportunity of saying that during the last seven years the Benevolent Institution had received in all £121,645, the Boys' School £109,040, and the Girls' School £99,785, which gave the following averages—the Benevolent Institution £17,300 a-year, the Boys' School £15,500, and the Girls' School £14,200 a-year in round numbers. That was a very proud position for the Benevolent Institution to have attained, when they recollected it was at first the most neglected of all, for it was then he might say, as it were, under the ban of the Grand Master, as it was only permitted to have a Festival once in three years. After a great amount of persuasion they were permitted to have a Festival once in two years. When it was found it would not interfere with the Schools they were permitted to have an annual Festival, and since then it had gone on and prospered. What was the result? The Girls School had prospered more than it had ever done. Whenever a Secretary of one Institution visited a Lodge, if the other Secretaries were not there, he spoke for them as well as for himself. But great as had been the success of the Institution he hoped it would be greater. He believed the Benevolent Institution would be the Institution of the future. It was founded on a small beginning. It was an Institution which in the future they must look to for providing a home and a refuge for the aged. The boys and girls of the present day would be, and were educated, and their prosperity was going on at a higher rate than it had hitherto done. But take the other side. When a man came to the decline of life there was very little energy left, and if he was a Mason and wanted a home this Institution afforded it. Let them look at the lists for the coming elections. For the Girls' School there were thirty girls on the list and twenty-two to be elected; for the Boys' School there were forty-five candidates (the smallest number for years), and twenty-five to be elected. For the Benevolent Institution there were something like one hundred and twenty candidates. At the present moment there was but one vacancy for a widow, and twelve vacancies for men. Therefore, unless in February next the Institution achieved as great a result as in 1884, he really did not know what would be the fate of the poor widows, of whom there were seventy-five on the list, with only one vacancy, and forty-four men on the list with only twelve vacancies. If they created only twenty additional vacancies—fifteen being widows—there was still a most appalling prospect. He relied upon the Craft, and looked forward with the same amount of confidence to the liberality of the brethren as in the past; and he ventured to think that in February next such answer would be given to their appeal, under the presidency of Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, whose Province of Gloucester was supporting him most nobly, with forty-seven Stewards, as would show that this confidence was not misplaced. He appealed to those brethren who were not yet Stewards, to make themselves Stewards, and enable the Committee when they met to say that they found themselves in a position to place additional annuitants on their list. They had now 375 men and women on their funds. When he first was connected with the Institution there were 180, who were receiving, the men £26 a year, the women £25. The men were now receiving £40, and the widows £32, and for all that they had, by the liberality of the Craft, more than doubled the number of annuitants. He was certain that these facts need only be brought to the notice of the brethren for them to see that, while not neglecting their duty to the other Institutions, it was their first privilege to think of the aged. While doing that they were taking care of themselves. The children were educated, but what was to become of the aged if it was not for this Institution? There was nothing but the workhouse for them, and surely the Craft would not allow that, when there were so many thousands who had never contributed anything to one of the Charities. In June next he would have been twenty-one years connected with the Institution, and he hoped and trusted that whatever the success of the past twenty-one years had been he would be spared to achieve greater results and triumphs, and to see it placed in the position of first of the three Institutions.

The health of Bro. Shadwell H. Clerke, Grand Secretary, was also proposed and responded to, after which the company partook of tea, followed by an Ethiopian entertainment, by the Carolina (Original) Minstrels, whose performances were evidently much appreciated and enjoyed. During the evening a telegram was read by the Secretary, conveying "Hearty congratulations from the East Lancashire brethren and friends, wishing you all a Happy New Year, ample present enjoyment, and future prosperity to Croydon Institution." Bro. Terry stated that a similar day's entertainment was being given to the Old People at Manchester, and that the brethren of East Lancashire had contributed five guineas to the Croydon Entertainment. An admirable portrait of the late Warden, Bro. Norris, drawn by Bro. John Mason, was handed round for inspection, and was much admired by all present. After the interchange of heartiest good wishes for a "Happy New Year," the visitors returned to town by train, having spent a most enjoyable day amongst the "Old People."

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Dismiss your doubts; let no one be any longer oppressed with the notion that his or her malady is incurable till these purifying Pills have had a fair trial. Where ordinary preparations fail these Pills produce the best results. A course of this admirable medicine cleanses the blood from all impurities, and improves its quality. The whole system is thus benefitted through the usual channels without reduction of strength, shock to the nerves, or any other inconvenience; in fact, health is renewed, by natural means. For curing diseases of the throat, windpipe, and chest these Pills have pre-eminently established a world-wide fame, and in complaints of the stomach, liver, and kidneys they are equally efficacious. They are composed of rare balsams, without a single grain of mercury or any other deleterious substance.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

LA TOLERANCE LODGE, No. 538.

A NUMEROUS assemblage of the brethren of this excellent working Lodge, with a large body of visitors, met on the 1st inst., at the Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen Street. The Lodge was founded in 1848, and was originally worked in the French language, but under the English Constitution; however, it has since adopted the English working. The W.M., Brother S. G. Langdon, presided; Bros. Elvin W.M. elect S.W., Smale J.W., Kench P.G.P. Treasurer, Sly P.M. Secretary, Burt S.D., Bicknell J.D.; also Bros. Skinner, Child, Humphrey, Cooper P.G.J.D. Middlesex, Wolters. After the minutes had been confirmed, a Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. Elvin was presented to the Lodge, and, in the presence of twenty-four W.M.'s and P.M.'s, was duly installed into the chair by Bro. Skinner P.M. Bro. Cooper acted as D.C. At the conclusion of the ceremony Brother Skinner was warmly congratulated by the brethren and visitors on the marked ability he had displayed. On the re-admission of the brethren, the W.M. was saluted, and in very appropriate terms invested as his Officers:—Bros. Langdon I.P.M., Smale S.W., Burt J.W., Kench Treasurer, Sly Secretary, Bicknell S.D., Fenn J.D., Smith I.G., Cooper P.M. D.C., Child P.M. and Andrews Stewards, Church Tyler. A letter was read from Bro. Burmeister P.M. regretting his absence through indisposition. He wished the W.M. and the Lodge every prosperity, and congratulated the members on the continued success of the Lodge. After the customary formalities of closing, the brethren adjourned to a banquet. At the conclusion of the repast, the W.M. proposed the usual toasts, coupling with that of the Grand Officers the name of Bro. Kench. He was one for whom they all had the greatest respect. Whatever he undertook he did well. They were all pleased he had received Grand honours. Bro. Kench spoke of the noble qualities of the brethren at the head of the Order. He was pleased to have his name associated with the toast. Bro. Langdon I.P.M. said it was with great pleasure he had to propose the toast of the W.M., who had done his duty in every particular. He had made his mark in Freemasonry, and knew his duties throughly. They were proud to see him in his present capacity. The toast was heartily received, and the W.M. in reply thanked Bro. Langdon for his kind remarks and the brethren for their reception of the toast. If he had done anything for the advantage of this, his mother Lodge, he felt gratified. It gave him great pleasure to do anything he could for the benefit of the Lodge. He wished the brethren, one and all, a year of health and prosperity. He then proposed the toast of the Visitors. They were numerous and well known and respected; it was only necessary to mention their names seriatim. He called upon Bros. Venn, Dicketts, Levy, Massey, Farwig, Hurdell, Brown, and Sharp to reply, and those brethren severally responded. The W.M. next proposed the toast of the I.P.M., Bro. Langdon. During his year of office he had done his duties well. He had, with great pleasure, to present him with a jewel which he had well earned. He hoped he would be among them for many years to wear it in health and prosperity. Bro. Langdon could hardly find words to express his gratitude. He hoped he had done his work to the best of his ability. He returned his sincere thanks for his kind reception and the valuable jewel presented to him. The W.M. next proposed the health of Bro. Kench Treasurer, and Brother Sly Secretary. These brethren were well known and respected; he might say they were unequalled for the way in which they performed their duties. The W.M. hoped he should have the pleasure of their united support during his occupancy of the chair, as they have hitherto done to his predecessor. The toast of the P.M.'s was coupled with this. The P.M.'s were brethren they were proud to see among them. They regretted the absence of one whom they all respected, and who had a good kind word for all—Bro. Burmeister; they hoped to see him again shortly in renewed health. No better array of P.M.'s could be found than theirs. He hoped they would be among them for many years. Bro. J. Kench P.M. and Treasurer, and Bro. Sly P.M. Secretary, severally responded and said their services were always at the command of the Lodge, and of every Master if spared, they hoped in the future to continue in their respective capacities. Bro. Wolters P.M. said it afforded him great pleasure to be among them after an absence of 12 months. He had had the pleasure of initiating the present Worshipful Master in 1868, and was now proud to see him in the chair. Other Past Masters followed, with very excellent speeches. The toast of the Wardens was given and duly responded to, and then the Tyler's toast concluded the proceedings. The Worshipful Master provided a special musical melange under the direction of Bro. Turle Lee, assisted by Bros. Young, Marner, Wentworth, Lyons, Bevan, and Williams, whose singing, and the genial presidency of the W.M., rendered this one of the most agreeable evenings ever spent in the Lodge. The W.M. announced that there would be a banquet in March, when the ladies would be invited. He hoped to see many brethren and ladies present on that occasion. Among the Visitors present were—Bros. H. Massey 619 and 1928, George 937, Smith 1563, Farwig 180, Scurrah 2078, Turle Lee 1922, Latrielle 1260, Addison 1987, Dupont, Reynolds 1614, Harrison 1185, Cooper 1637, Venn, Brown 174 and 1607, Marx 957, Dicketts, Hartley 740, Green 1687, Lyon 1765, Hurdell 1348, Gunnell 1441, Harrison 1185, Hooke 463, King 180, Jesse 1556, Vickery, Wentworth 101, Blitz 177, Williams 1658, Turner 1328, Barclay 1608, Eastgate 1563, Coward 2012, Marner 1673, Brown 1706, Bellamy 1627, Sharp 1, H. M. Levy 188.

THE RICHMOND LODGE, No. 2032.

A REGULAR meeting of this young, but sound and progressive Lodge, was held on Tuesday evening, at the Station Hotel, Richmond, when there was a goodly attendance of brethren, under the presidency of the W.M. Bro. Benjamin E. Blasby, who was supported by Bros. C. I. Digby P.M. S.W., W. Foster P.M. Treasurer, W. R. Phillips P.M. Secretary, J. P. Houghton S.D., E. Dare J.D., J. Ireland D.C., F. Albert Crew Organist, C. Maton W.S., R. Messum Steward, and many other brethren. Amongst the Visitors were Bros. G. C. Young W.M. 820, G. F. Cook P.P.A.G.D.C. Herts, W. D. Beckett W.M. 780, C. Sims 861, W. W. Morgan W.M. 211, A. Farman 107, &c. Lodge having been opened in form, the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed, and Lodge having been advanced to the third, Bros. Nash and Williamson were raised to the sublime degree by the W.M, who acted most efficiently, assisted by his Officers. Bro. Smith was also notified to have taken this degree, but did not arrive in time to participate in the ceremony at the hour stipulated. Having resumed in the second, Bro. Burrell was passed to F.C., and subsequently the ballot was opened for Mr. Frederick Augustus Meeres, proposed by Bro. Gowing, seconded by Bro. Rowland; Mr. Edwin Peed James, nominated by Bro. Crew, seconded by Bro. the Senior Deacon; Dr. Edmund Alleyne Cook, whose sponsors were Bros. Abell and Phillips; and Mr. George Trinder, proposed by the W.M., and seconded by Bro. Covell. All were unanimously accepted, and were duly initiated by the W.M., in a manner which afforded every satisfaction. After this heavy batch of work had been got through most creditably, Bro. Smith presented himself for the benefit of raising, and although the agenda had proved a formidable tax upon the W.M., he performed the ceremony most readily. It is, however, an undesirable precedent, and considerably mars the after proceedings; candidates should strive to be ready at the time appointed; in this case it was exceptionally vexatious after so arduous an evening's work. It was stated that although the Lodge is yet in the first year of its existence, it is in a very satisfactory condition financially, all its expenses being defrayed, whilst already there is a balance in hand. The sum of five guineas was voted from the funds of the Lodge to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and one guinea to the special fund appealed for by Bro. Binckes towards the Boys' Preparatory School. At the conclusion of some other business, the brethren and visitors sat down to a sumptuous banquet, under the presidency of the W.M., and justice having been done to the repast the customary loyal and Craft toasts were given from the chair and duly honoured. Bro. W. F. Reynolds P.M. in felicitous terms proposed the health of the Worshipful Master, whom he congratulated upon the ability and intelligence he brought to bear in carrying on the work of the Lodge, of which he was the first Master. Reference had been made to the fact that since the installation of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as Grand Master, in the year 1875, upwards of 500 new Lodges had been warranted, showing how the Craft had advanced in popular favour since his accession to office. The Prince fully recognised his duties to the Craft, thus it had made rapid strides onward; and he (the speaker) might be allowed to say that the successful and satisfactory position which the Richmond Lodge had attained was in a great measure to be attributed to the zeal and ability with which it had been ruled by its first Worshipful Master. The toast was received with the utmost cordiality, and Brother Blasby suitably acknowledged the compliment, promising that his efforts should, in the future as in the past, be devoted to the best interests of the Richmond Lodge. The Initiates severally responded to their health, Brother Cook being especially happy and humorous in his reply. The whole of the Visitors also responded to the welcome given, and expressed themselves highly pleased with the hospitality which had been extended to them; after which the Past Master and Officers of the Lodge were complimented on the way in which they discharged their respective duties, and which had so greatly assisted in establishing the Lodge on a sound and solid foundation. During the evening some capital songs were rendered by the brethren, ably assisted by Bro. F. Albert Crew, who presided efficiently at the pianoforte. A very enjoyable evening was passed.

BLACKWATER LODGE, No. 1977.

THE monthly meeting of this Lodge, which was held on Monday, 5th inst., at Maldon, Essex, was availed of for the presentation to Bro. Thomas Eustace, of Colchester, as a mark of the respect in which he is held by the brethren, and of appreciation of his efforts for the prosperity of the Lodge as its first Master. The presentation took the form of a valuable gold watch, which in the unavoidable absence from illness of the present W.M. (Bro. Alfred Richardson), was handed to Bro. Eustace by the S.W. (Bro. Robt. Smith), who in a few well-chosen words, spoke of the hard work Brother Eustace had done for the Lodge; how much its prosperity was due to him, and how much the brethren were indebted to him for, with such regularity, coming sixteen miles every month to fulfil the duties of the chair. Bro. Eustace, who was very much moved, thanked the brethren for their kindness. What he had done had been a labour of love, and his work had been rendered lighter by the hearty support he had always received from his Officers and the brethren generally. He assured them he should always value most highly their handsome present, and it would become an heir-loom in his family. The watch bears the following inscription:—

Bro. T. Eustace P.P.G.S.B.,

By the Blackwater Lodge of Freemasons, No. 1977,

For the valuable services rendered as first Master. 5th Jan. 1885.

THE PROSPECTS OF CANDIDATES AT THE COMING ELECTIONS.

THE three Masonic Charitable Institutions stand at the present time in very peculiar relation to each other, so far as the number of candidates at their next Elections and the number of probable vacancies then to be filled are concerned. The position of one of them, at least, gives cause for considerable anxiety among those who take an interest either in Masonic charity work, or the care of those who, by age and misfortune, are compelled to seek assistance from their fellows, and unless some exceptional piece of good fortune should enable the Committee to extend the number of those receiving the benefits of the Institution, or something else unexpected should occur during the next few weeks, grave difficulties will present themselves when the day of Election arrives. Putting the matter in as brief and concise a form as possible, we may for the present dismiss the two Schools from consideration, not because they are so well off as to be independent of, or that they need no further support, but because, from a comparative point of view, the prospects of their candidates for the April Elections are all that could be desired, as the following figures will prove. The Girls' School is in a position to elect twenty-two, out of a list of thirty approved candidates, or in other words, three out of every four children seeking the benefits of the Institution. The Boys' School cannot show such a favourable programme, but it is sufficiently good to give cause for congratulation, the actual state being, that of forty-five approved candidates twenty-five can be elected. When we turn to the Benevolent Institution, however, a very different state of affairs presents itself. Here we have one hundred and twenty-seven approved candidates, and, so far, only twelve vacancies; but these figures do not clearly show the really critical state of affairs. As is well known, the funds of the Institution are devoted to two sections—the male and the female. Voting, and indeed everything, from the receipt of the money to the expenditure of it, is kept distinct so far as these two sections are concerned, and therefore we have to divide the candidates and vacancies accordingly. We find, then, that forty-six of the applicants are men, and eighty-one widows, and that all the vacancies are in the male section—therefore, unless something unforeseen occurs, not one of the eighty-one widows can be elected. It will not surprise our readers when we say that these facts caused very grave anxiety as soon as the figures were settled, as they were at the Committee meeting on Wednesday, or that the difficulty which appears certain to occur seems all but insurmountable. Will it be possible for the Committee to increase the number of Female Annuitants?—is the all-important question of the moment, and the answer to it must entirely depend on the result of the coming Festival. An increase of funds is the only certain method by which an increase of the number of annuitants can be secured, and, accordingly, the matter rests in the hands of the brethren of England, and on the amount of money they are able to place at the disposal of the Committee. There is really no other method by which the pending disaster—for disaster it would certainly be if the Institution was unable to elect any of the widows—can be diverted than the one we have referred to, except the possibility that some of those already on the funds should die before the day of election, and we feel there is not a brother among us who really wishes for that method of solution. When once our old people are elected, it becomes the universal wish that they should live long to enjoy their annuities. The difficulty which will present itself on the day of election will make itself felt by almost every subscriber of the past, from the fact that the Widows' votes, to which most are entitled, will be practically valueless, and although it may perhaps be a strange way of securing what very many have looked upon as already theirs, we would suggest that each voter exert himself to collect at least a little, in order to place the funds in such a state as to warrant the Committee increasing the number of annuitants, thereby creating vacancies for competition, and rendering the votes of customary value.

BROTHERLY LOVE.

LOVE, as pertaining to humanity, is a benevolent affection, and involves a complex action of the mind, embracing: First, a pleasant emotion in view of the object loved, and, secondly, a desire of good to that object. In the object loved we discern some quality, either some excellence in the form, or in the relations sustained, or in the intellect, or in the moral traits, or possibly in all these combined, which excites our admiration and forms the basis of subsequent desire in us toward that object. Love, therefore, is constituted of admiration and desire.

In our rough and unseemly state, wherein we resemble the rough or imperfect ashlar, we are prone to admire that which will gratify our passions, and to fix our desires on what we fancy will afford these ample gratification, sometimes blindly supposing that to be highest in excellence which is really most unseemly and forbidding. When, however, the "passions" become "subdued," and the intellect becomes enlightened, and the moral sense and affections change in their "sensibilities and aspirations," the attention becomes directed to the inimitable excellencies that dwell in the Grand Architect of the Universe, and constitute the traits of His nature and character which the true Mason ever loves to study, admire, and imitate.

As love in our nature is a benevolent affection, so in the nature of Him who is our Great All Father, it is a moral perfection, hence "the volume of the sacred law" declares "God is love." Toward the holy and the good His love is an infinite parental complacency and affection, and toward the vile and immoral it is an unmeasurable compassion. It is shown in all His works and ways and dictated in the divine law, but Christians and Christian Masons claim that its most transcendent illustration is in "the Gospel," that "in this was manifested the love of God towards us because that God sent His only begotten son into the world that we might live through Him."

In all its revealings this love is unspeakably winsome and supremely commanding. Words cannot express its vastness; finite intellect cannot comprehend its heights and depths and intensity.

> "Could we with ink the ocean fill,
> Were the whole earth of parchment made,
> Were every single stick a quill,
> And every man a scribe by trade:

Digitized by Google

> To write the love of God to man
> Would drain the ocean dry,
> Nor could the scroll contain the whole,
> Though stretched from sky to sky."

He who is thus the fountain of love is, and of necessity must be, supremely loveable. He is "the fairest among ten thousand—the one altogether lovely," hence this benevolent affection of our nature in fixing upon Deity, only aspires to its native source and basks in its native element of bliss. Supreme love, therefore, to our All-Wise Creator and Infinite Benefactor is at once our most reasonable service and our most inviting sphere of immortal gratification. Here we come to a most important point: That at least so far as our capacities can comprehend it, we should understand the service in which we are to employ our immortality, and the question arises: What is implied in that love which God thus claims from His rational creatures? Some have thought of it as merely an intellectual approval of the divine excellencies. Others have regarded it as a mere impassioned admiration and reverence of God. Beside and beyond all these aspects, we submit that it implies a supreme delight in God. The understanding, for instance, may philosophically approve the perfections and works of God, and the sensibilities may be compelled to admire His rectitude and love, and yet because I do not possess these qualities myself, because my traits of character are opposite to these, because, therefore, I deserve the divine displeasure, and cannot in this condition hope for the divine approval, I may feel envious, unfriendly, and hostile even to love itself, but when hostility is given up and God is truly embraced as a Father and Friend, then there is attained, not only reverence and admiration, but a supreme delight in His favour and His love. In its range of mental culture this love employs, elevates and refines all the powers of the human intellect. The penetration of the philosopher, the sagacity of the navigator, the accuracy of the mathematician, the subtlety of the logician, the eloquence of the linguist, the researches of the historian, the conjectures of the geologist, the discoveries of the astronomer, the explorations of the geographer, the investigations of the chemist, the aptitude of the phonographer, the expertness of the operator at the telegraph and the telephone, the industry of the agriculturist, the ingenuity of the mechanic, the discernment of the artist and the sculptor, and the skill of the architect and "wise master builder," with all other developments of human intellect, may be aptly employed to facilitate the deep researches, the lofty aspirations and moral scannings of the diligent student of nature and of morals, in securing the highest possible knowledge of the works, the word and the love or benevolence of Deity. This element of intellectual expanse and improvement is also a mighty agent in the refinement of the sensibilities or feelings. Every kindness of Deity, as the Creator and father of our race, appeals not only to the intellect, but also to the feelings. All the mercy of the Christ as our Master, Elder Brother and Saviour, appeals to the feelings. All the tenderness of the Infinite Spirit in His offers to admit us, His frail creatures, to personal and immortal friendship and communion with Himself appeals to the feelings, to bring, if possible, even the profane from enmity to love, and from alienation and fear to filial assurance and delight. Out of these fraternal relations between Deity and his creatures flows forth as from a fountain the principle which heads our present article, "Brotherly Love." As we are thus allied to the Great Supreme, so should we be fraternally allied to each other, thus demonstrating to all, not only "the Fatherhood of God," but also "the brotherhood of man."

Benevolence towards us from our Superior should always awake benevolence among us as fellow equals in the one common family. Hence as fraters in the great Masonic brotherhood, we place first in the catalogue of the points of our profession, "brotherly love," and it finds beautiful illustration in our varied and impressive lessons of instruction to candidates and fellows, and emphatic demonstration in every kindly feeling of each toward the other; and especially in every act of self-denial for the benefit of a brother, and in every gift of help for the widow or the orphan who may need our liberalities, and in all our acts of charity and benefaction in the vast arena of want around us. These developments of good will, when referred to in "the volume of the sacred law," are fitly designated "brotherly kindness," and emanate from brotherly love as naturally as the sparkling rivulet flows from the mountain spring. It is true that acts brotherly in their appearance and commendable in their kind may sometimes be performed from a selfish motive, with the hope of winning favour in some special circle, or of attracting notice and obtaining public praise, or of awakening responsive feelings in the receiver, and securing even larger gifts in return, but true brotherly love indignantly frowns down all sinister motives and wakens in us that disinterested kindred sympathy,

> "Which makes us feel for others' woe,
> And God-like charity bestow."

One of the most commendable features of Masonic benefaction is the absence of ostentation. While most charitable associations take pains to publish their liberalities to the world, Masons seem to glory in the sentiment of that great Pattern of beneficence who said to almsgivers: "Let not your right hand know what your left hand doeth;" and hence the millions bestowed for the relief of human suffering or want among them attracts so little notice outside of the circles where they warm the cold, feed the hungry, clothe the destitute, heal the sick, bury the dead and make happy the homes of the bereaved, that opponents sometimes tauntingly inquire, "Where are the showings of your so-called brotherly love?" This, however, finds its best rebuke in the improved condition and quiet gratitude of those thus made glad, while the cheer of each seems to retort: "Come and see!"

Mere nominal Masons, like their cousins, nominal Christians, are often sadly defective in brotherly love. They seem to forget that others exist as well as themselves, and drop into a most unsocial ambition for self-preferment. Soon they have not time for even Masonic "communications," unless they have hope of exaltation to office. They cannot post themselves in "the work" of Masonry, unless they are likely to be promoted, nor will they take part in acts of benefaction unless they especially are to have the praise. Others indulge in a very un-Masonic "greed for gain," and incline to disregard the welfare of the Lodge, the study of the art, the toils of the brethren, the reputation of the Craft, the progress of Masonry, and even the sufferings of the unfortunate, unless "it will pay," or in some way assist them to brighten "the almighty dollar." Such seem to us to ignore "the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. They bow only at the shrine of self-supremacy, and appear to worship only the god of this world. But a still more glaring, inexcusable and unbrotherly defect is that of petty ill-will. It is often based entirely on fancy, and indulged towards a brother who, perchance, entertains toward us the kindest feelings and highest respect. Yet, because we fancy otherwise, we indulge first a coldness, then a shyness, later still an unfriendliness, and last of all open dislike. In other instances, perhaps we really find some slight fault occurring with a brother in regard to our preferment, or our views of fraternal business, or possibly of party or business interests, and we become unfraternally severe, and court retaliation rather than reconciliation, "personal pique" instead of brotherly love; forgetting the human injunction, "Be ye kindly affectioned one toward another, with brotherly love;" thus bringing Masonry sadly into disrepute, and humanity into perverseness and disgrace. The true spirit of Masonry, on the other hand, is "to love one another with pure hearts fervently, to have compassion one of another, to love as brethren, to be pitiful and courteous, and above all things, to have fervent charity among ourselves."

Masonry has many enemies and mighty foes, but when ill-will is fully overcome, and genuine brotherly love gains perfect sway, these enemies will gaze in mute astonishment upon a Craft whose work begins in order, is conducted in peace, and closed in harmony, and they will speedily crave to be admitted to the benefits of Masonry, and to share in the profession of brotherly love, relief and truth.—Voice of Masonry.

THE BOYS' SCHOOL RECEIPTS FOR 1884.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—There is no doubt the smallness of the receipts by the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys during the past year is due principally to the unusually heavy call made upon the Craft in 1883 in behalf of the Preparatory School. Yet I confess I had some difficulty in understanding how it is they amount to less than the sum announced at the Festival in June last, which I believe was stated as £14,000 in round figures. I can of course see clearly enough that the Benevolent Institution, which holds its Festival in February, is more likely to gather in its subscriptions in the ten remaining months of the year than the Boys' School, which holds its Festival in June, and has only six months clear for the same purpose, but as one of the Festivals must come first and one last, I do not take much account of this point. It strikes me, however, as helping very materially to explain the remarkable difference between the returns furnished by these two Institutions that Bro. Binckes's office is undermanned, and that it was a "penny wise and pound foolish" kind of economy which induced the Boys' School Executive to abolish the office of Collector. Bro. Terry has the services of Bro. Mason, who not only collects contributions, but assists very ably in the office work generally, and those of Bro. Recknell. Bro. Hedges has two clerks all to himself, but in Bro. Binckes's office there is only one clerk—a very able, attentive and courteous one, I admit—with occasional boy or other assistance at odd times. But every one who has had to do, directly or indirectly, with the collection of money knows how hard it is, and how many calls have to be made, in order to gather in the promised contributions. And if this is the case there can, I think, be little doubt about the unwisdom of leaving it to chance to get in the moneys promised or due and payable. If, however, there are overwhelming reasons against the employment of a Collector for the Boys' School, it strikes me Bro. Binckes should have two clerks as Brother Hedges has, or a clerk and a-half like Bro. Terry—Bro. Mason being as it were one-half clerk and the other half Collector. Just now, with the Preparatory School rapidly approaching completion, there is a greater necessity than ever for additional clerical assistance. The Committee have to a certain extent recognised this fact by voting the continuance for another year of the additional remuneration paid to the Secretary and his clerk in 1884. But additional pay, though it may solace these officials for their additional labours, will not furnish them with additional hands to work with, and what is wanted now and for the future is not more work out of the same men—who, Heaven knows, work hard enough already—but more people to do the work. Then we may hope to see Bro. Binckes's return more nearly level with what it figures as upon paper. Bro. Hedges has succeeded in realising as much as his Festival was announced to yield, and Bro. Terry about £1000 over, but Bro. Binckes is short of that total, and I venture to say the whole of these shortcomings is not to be explained by the payments in advance before the 31st December 1883.

Fraternally yours,

S. P.

THE PREPARATORY SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—It is to be hoped that the appeal set forth so lucidly in your columns, a fortnight since, in supplementing Bro. Binckes's circular anent the Boys' Preparatory School will have received the consideration it deserves, and that your faith in the fervent zeal and sturdy determination of the Craft in the interests of Charity may be abundantly justified. Most of the readers of your excellent journal must be acquainted with the agitation which led up to the establishment of this subsidiary school, and how the movement was applauded by those who take a special interest in "Our Boys." It is, therefore, most important that, having set our hands to the plough, we should not look back, or flinch one iota in the task we have set before us. On the contrary, there is such a prospect of usefulness and real Charity in the sphere which will be opened out by this Preparatory School that all who were interested in at at the outset should feel their zeal increased and their energies stimulated by the "short, sharp, and decisive" intimation we have received from the pen of Bro. Binckes. It seems to me rather a matter for regret that so poor an account should be shown of annual subscribers amongst the Lodges and Chapters at home and in the colonies; and this is a point which should be taken up in serious earnest by the brethren everywhere. The commencement of a new year is a most opportune time to inaugurate a fresh scheme of usefulness and beneficence; and, seeing the very trifling sacrifice which would be involved by a response to Bro. Binckes's appeal for a guinea or two per annum, there should be no difficulty in at once placing the executive of the Preparatory School beyond the pale of anxiety respecting the funds necessary for the completion of the buildings, and the election of a proportion of the number of boys for whom the additional accommodation is to be provided. Masters of Lodges could, I am sure, very readily and easily introduce this matter to their Lodges at the earliest regular meeting; and I venture to believe there is not one but would unanimously authorise the voting of a minimum guinea from the Lodge funds in order to strengthen the hands of the Boys' Preparatory School Committee in their laudable undertaking. This is a matter which should, as Bro. Binckes pointed out, not need any further argumentative appeal; but should at once be taken up by Lodges, who, by acting spontaneously and earnestly, just now, might carry out a work which would redound greatly to their own credit and the welfare of the Craft generally. This is a matter which should not be allowed to lag behind, or to draw its slow length along. To act with promptitude and vigour just now would save a vast amount of labour and anxiety later on, and would show to the world that when the occasion requires the brethren of the Craft are more than desirous of exemplifying the principles which are the pride and glory of their ancient and honourable Institution. Trusting we may hear this question still further elucidated by correspondents in your valuable columns,

I remain, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

AN OLD BOY.

MARVELS IN PHOTOGRAPHY.

THE members of the Craft will be glad to hear that a distinguished member of The Great City Lodge, No. 1426, has lately produced two most extraordinary photographs, on a scale rarely seen, and so nearly resembling a steel plate engraving as to require the skill of an expert to discover the difference. The first picture contains 167 portraits of members of the Royal Thames Yacht Club, and was originally a painting on canvas, 16 ft. by 13 ft., by Henry Brooks, well known as an exhibitor at the Royal Academy. The subject of the second picture is the President and Council of the Royal College of Surgeons, and owing to the fact of having only 26 subjects to deal with, the grouping is more effective than in the other picture, but both are simply marvellous. They are exquisite works of the photographic art, and it is Bro. Snell's wish that all his brethren should see them, and at the same time receive from him a truly fraternal greeting. Prominent in the picture of the Royal Thames Yacht Club are the well known likenesses of H.R.H. Prince of Wales, Commodore, the late Marquis of Londonderry, Lord Alfred Paget, Rear and Vice Commodores; Sir Thomas Brassey, M.P., and a host of other notables in the yachting world, and amongst them 97 yacht owners. In the second picture we discern the well known lineaments of our Bro. Cooper Foster, the President; Sir Spencer Wells, Sir William Mac Cormac, and the rest of the members of the Council. These two great works, however, do not exhaust the contents of Bro. Snell's studio; for besides these completed works he has on hand another of not less importance, which is a picture of the members of the Royal Yacht Squadron. As the senior yacht club of the kingdom it is of special interest, and particularly so as H.R.H. the Prince of Wales is also the Commodore, while the late Marquis of Londonderry was the Vice Commodore, the members being noblemen of high rank. Bro. Snell has succeeded in catching a life-like expression of the Prince of Wales, the Marquis of Londonderry, and the prominent members of the squadron. When this picture is completed it will find a fitting home in the Squadron Club House at Cowes, in company with those of the late Emperor Napoleon and the late Earl of Wilton.

A convocation of the North London Chapter of Improvement was held on Thursday evening, at the Alwyne Castle Tavern, St. Paul's Road, Canonbury, at 8 o'clock. Comps. R. Bird M.E.Z., Wm. Radcliffe H., H. Dehane J., G. Gregory acting S.E., T. C. Edmonds S.N., J. Strugnell P.S. The ceremony of exaltation was conducted in an admirable manner, and a profitable and instructive evening was spent.

We regret to hear that Bro. C. F. Matier has had a serious fall and dislocated his right shoulder. It is feared that this accident will confine our worthy brother to his house for some time.

AN APPEAL FOR HELP FOR THE EAST OF LONDON.—After fourteen years of unremitting toil and anxiety in ministering to the spiritual and temporal necessities of the very poorest of the poor inhabitants of Stepney, Shadwell, Limehouse, &c., the workers in connection with the London Cottage Mission, 67 Salmon's Lane, Limehouse, through its founder and director, Mr. Walter Austin, are, with stores and funds exhausted, now absolutely compelled to beg of the public immediate and substantial help to enable them to pay off a debt of £700 owing by the Mission; for funds to meet the expenses of the children's weekly Irish stew dinners, at which, during the six winter months of each year, nearly a thousand children per week are supplied with a full and substantial meal; for food and medical necessities for the sick, aged and bed-ridden; for the cost of the Maternity Society; and for the maintenance of the Children's Home and Sanitorium, accommodating 100 little patients at Halls Green Farm, Sevenoaks Weald, Kent. It may be added that a month's Mission was inaugurated on New Year's Day, which will be continued daily up to the close of the present month. Subscriptions and donations of clothing will be gratefully received and acknowledged by Miss F. Napton, 304 Bordett-road, Limehouse, the Bankers, the London and South Western Bank, 7 Fenchurch-street, E.C., and by Mr. Walter Austin, Managing Director, 44 Finsbury Pavement, London, E.C.

DOMATIC LODGE, No. 177.

THERE is an idea prevailing in many quarters that a Masonic Lodge cannot be carried on comfortably or harmoniously when the number of its members exceeds some fifty or sixty; indeed there are many brethren who will declare that the only Lodges for true enjoyment are those which are limited to say thirty or forty members. While we are ready to admit that in some cases increase of numerical strength means a decrease in the pleasures of Masonic work, we are yet able to point to instances wherein the direct opposite is the case, and are therefore able to affirm that the rule of small Lodges for the most enjoyment is not a hard and fast one, but is one which, under proper management, is capable of direct contradiction. We cannot do better, in support of our view, than refer to the Domatic Lodge, which is one of the strongest, in point of numbers on the Register of the Grand Lodge of England. Its prominent position is not confined to number of members alone, for in many other ways the Domatic Lodge occupies a proud place in English Freemasonry, and we trust will continue so to do while Freemasonry itself lasts. How is this success secured?—may be the query of those who have found themselves, if we may so term it, in the cold in Lodges only one-third or even one-fourth as numerous, and we answer, without hesitation, by good management, and by good management alone. The Domatic Lodge appears to be particularly fortunate in the brethren who are selected to rule over its destinies, they make good Masters during their respective terms of office, and after that they appear if anything to greater advantage as Past Masters. Then the permanent officials of the Lodge—the Treasurer and Secretary; it is difficult to say how much of the success of the Lodge does not depend on them. It is invidious to make comparisons, but in this case we feel justified in so doing. There may be Lodges which possess Officers of equal ability, but we very much doubt if any can show more capable ones; and those who know anything of the inner working of the Lodge, and at the same time remember its numerical strength, must fully endorse our opinion. This year's installation marks the commencement of the ninety-ninth year of the Lodge's existence and as favourable a start has been made as any one could desire. It is certainly not the case that the Domatic is getting old and stupid, but then perhaps a century or so does not have the same effect on a Lodge as about half that period does on some men. It may, indeed be that a hundred years' life entitles a Lodge to be looked upon as having reached the years of discretion, but the past career of the Domatic will not allow this assumption; it has long since attained the reputation of being a success, and is now but continuing its prosperity. This year's installation took place on Friday, 9th inst., at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, and was numerously attended, the following Officers being amongst those who were present:—Bros. Foxcroft W.M., Pierpoint S.W., Price J.W., Everett P.M. Treas., Morris Sec., Simner S.D., Montague J.D., Chapman I.G., Harvey D.C., Sadler Wood Stewart, Riechelmann Org.; P.M.'s Bros. Herbage, Ferguson, Foulger, McLean, Buscall, Walford, Bowman Spink, and Kent. The business of the day comprised the confirmation of the minutes and the Auditors' report, which items disposed of, the Lodge was advanced, and Bros. W. R. Spindler and J. H. Selby were passed. Next came the installation of Bro. Robert Pierpoint, the W.M. elect, and this ceremony was most ably performed by Bro. W. Herbage P.M. In due course the new W.M. was saluted, and he then invested the following brethren as Officers for the ensuing year:—W. M. Foxcroft Immediate Past Master, Harry Price Senior Warden, A. Simner J.W., Geo. Everett P.M. Treasurer, T. Morris Secretary, Robert Montagne S.D., H. J. Chapman J.D., Richard Harvey I.G., C. Riechelmann Organist, J. Sadler Wood D.C., N. Salmon Steward. The installation ceremony having been completed, the W.M. at once started work by initiating Messrs G. A. Weston, A. Grace, J. Tingley, and J. H. Ellis into the mysteries of the Order. Installation night is looked upon as a bad one for initiates, as there is generally too much other work to be got through, but the four gentlemen initiated on Friday lost nothing by selecting an annual meeting night for their admission to the light of Masonry. Brother John Barnett jun. was elected a joining member of the Lodge, three candidates were proposed for the next meeting, and other business having been transacted, the Lodge was closed. A banquet followed, and in due course the customary toasts were honoured. The Queen and the Craft having been well received, the W.M. gave the health of the M.W. the Grand Master. His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales had done more for English Freemasonry than any one who had previously occupied the position of Grand Master. Wherever he went he commanded respect—not only from his Masonic brethren, but from all classes of the nation, and it was not too much to say that he made friends of all with whom he came into contact. There was no question as to his desire to advance the interests of the country, or of the institutions which were so dear to its people, nor that, in his attempts to do so, he did not work as hard as any man in Europe. The coming of age of their Grand Master's eldest son must be a source of gratification to all true Masons, as it was to all Englishmen throughout the world. After a song, the toast of the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the Grand Officers was proposed, the W.M. paying well deserved compliments both to the noblemen who assist in ruling the destinies of the Order and the Grand Officers who so ably support them. Bro. Hill, Grand Steward, replied to the toast. He believed he might say that all the Grand Officers of England, except perhaps the section to which he had the honour to belong, had earned and thoroughly deserved the distinction conferred on them. No better illustration of the high estimation in which Freemasonry was held by the rulers of the Order could be given than that such patriotic men as the Earl of Carnarvon should spare time to attend to the work of the Craft. His doing so proved that he felt the importance of Freemasonry in the social life of the country. Bro. Foxcroft I.P.M. next proposed the health of the W.M. Their present ruler had been initiated in the Domatic Lodge some ten years since. In a Lodge numbering something like one hundred and fifty members, as the Domatic Lodge did, for any one to attain to the Chair in so short a time proved him to be a man of some esteem among his brethren, and endowed in no small way with the spirit of perseverance. There was no post in the Lodge that Bro. Pierpoint had filled wherein he had not worked to the satisfaction of the members, while the way in which he had performed the initiation ceremony that evening proved he would not be found deficient in the work of his latest appointment. He felt assured that Bro. Pierpoint would become a Master of whom the Domatic Lodge would have reason to be proud. In reply, the W.M. said he should not be telling the truth if he said he was not proud of his position. When he occupied the chair of initiate at the banquet which followed his admission to the Lodge—a position he well remembered—he was told he would never again occupy that place, but he felt it was possible to occupy the next to it, and that chair he had always striven to secure. He now had the honour of occupying it, and felt the great importance of the trust reposed in him. He hoped, during the time he should fill it, he would give satisfaction to every member of the Lodge. He then proposed the health of the I.P.M. During his year of office Bro. Foxcroft had striven to perform the duties of the chair to the best of his ability, and he had succeeded, as was evidenced by the way in which the Lodge had voted him a Past Master's jewel. He richly deserved the gift, and it afforded him (the speaker) much pleasure to place it on his breast. He hoped that Bro. Foxcroft would long enjoy good health, and that he would always be borne in the same esteem by the members of the Domatic Lodge as he was at that moment. In reply the I.P.M. tendered his sincere thanks to the members of the Lodge. If he had failed in anything during the past year, it had been not from any neglect on his part, but from inability or from the more pressing demands of business. The brethren had been most kind to him during the past year, the Past Masters, the Officers, and every member having striven to help him in every possible manner. The next best thing to being installed into the chair was to retire therefrom with honour, and he flattered himself that he had some honour attached to his term of office. The toast of the initiates was next proposed. The W.M. had that night had the gratification of admitting four gentleman into the mysteries of Freemasonry. Three of them were old personal friends, one he might say being an acquaintance of 30 years' standing, while their fourth new member came well and worthily recommended. All would doubtless prove a benefit to Freemasonry in general and the Domatic Lodge in particular. Bro. Tingley expressed the pleasure he felt in being admitted. He could but appreciate the warmth of the reception accorded him and his fellow initiates that night. Bro. Grace followed in similar strains. Bro. Weston considered it a great privilege to be initiated, and an especial pleasure that so old and dear a friend of his as the present W. Master should have performed that duty. He and Bro. Pierpoint were not only personal friends, but so closely associated with each other in their daily avocation as to render the events of the day even more pleasing than they would otherwise have been. The toast of the Visitors next received attention, and to this Bros. Harper, Spiller, Stiles, and others responded. The W.M. in submitting the toast of the Past Masters felt sure it was one which could be heartily received, as it deserved to be. The Domatic Lodge could not get on without its Past Masters. They seemed to vie with each other as to who should do most for the Lodge and its members. They were kind and considerate to all, and had thoroughly earned the respect that was felt for them. After a brief allusion to each of the brethren present who had filled the chair, the W.M. called upon Bro. Herbage to reply, remarking in so doing that the way in which that brother had performed the ceremony of installation was particularly gratifying to them all. Bro. Herbage felt that in joining the ranks of full-fledged Past Masters he had become one of a noble band. He should do all he could to follow in the footsteps of those who had preceded him. Indeed, he had that evening made an attempt to copy his predecessors in the way in which he had worked the ceremony of installation. The ceremonies of Freemasonry were such that a brother might give his very best attention to them, while the interest of the members of the Lodge in its work induced a man to strive his utmost in any work which might fall to his lot. The W.M., before proposing the health of the Treasurer and Secretary, stated he had omitted to mention that one of their most esteemed Past Masters—Bro. J. Willing—who was then at Plymouth, had sent his fraternal greetings and best wishes for the prosperity of the Lodge. The Treasurer of the Lodge, said the W.M., was too well known to the members to need any very lengthened remarks from him when proposing his health. It might truly be said that Bro. Everett had at all times the interest of the Lodge at heart. The way in which he looked after their comforts at the banquet table added not a little to their enjoyment, although it was purchased, perhaps, at the expense of Bro. Everett's personal comfort. It was also a fact that Bro. Morris, their Secretary, deserved all the good things that could be said of him. His was no light duty, but so efficiently did he perform his work that he might truly be termed the walking Encyclopœdia of the Domatic Lodge. Of the 150 or so members it seemed there was not one but Bro. Morris could not give his address at a moment's notice; this alone proved he threw his heart into his work. Bro. Everett thanked the W.M. and brethren most heartily. He had the pleasure of initiating the present W.M., as well as some others of the Officers appointed that evening, and in looking round on them felt quite proud of his boys. As regards Bro. Pierpoint, he had long looked forward to the time when he should be among them in the East, as he felt that although they had had many distinguished brethren in the chair of the Domatic Lodge there was no one who would give more satisfaction than would Bro. Pierpoint. He should be only too happy to continue his office of Treasurer so long as he received such cordial support from the members as had marked his occupancy of it in the past. Bro. Morris referred to the fact of the present being his seventh appointment to the office of Secretary, a post in which he should strive to give as much satisfaction in the future as he appeared to have done in the past. It was a great pleasure to him to be again appointed to act as Secretary of the Lodge, which he trusted would continue to prosper as it had done hitherto. The Officers of the Lodge were next toasted. The W.M. felt that the brethren appointed that night would do their best to support him, give satisfaction to the members, and add to the reputation of the Lodge. This toast having been responded to, was followed by that of "All poor and distressed Masons," after which the brethren separated. Among the visitors were Bros. John Oldis S.W. 1288, S. P. Knight D.C. 1903, C. Arkell P.M. 192, R. B. Harper P.M. 813, Henry Stiles P.M. 1732, H. Fruen 2012, W. Wilkins P.M. 902, E. J. Tabor 1101, J. Westerby W.M. 1613, W. Cable 1638, E. E. JOPPA LODGE, No. 188.

THE annual installation meeting of this old and popular Lodge was held on Monday, 5th inst., at Freemasons' Tavern, under the presidency of Bro. George Bean, the retiring W.M., who was supported by Bros. A. J. Martin S.W., J. W. Dewsnap J.W., P.M.'s M. L. Alexander, H. M. Levy, A. G. Dodson, Obed Roberts, L. M. Myers, Israel Abrahams, Lewis Lazarus Treas.; J. S. Lyon Sec., Lewis Wall S.D., Geo. M. Lion J.D., L. Davis Steward, P. E. Van Noorden Org., and many other brethren and visitors. Lodge having been opened in accordance with ancient rites, Bro. C. Grove Ellis was raised to the third degree; and Lodge having resumed Bro. Alexander John Martin, the zealous S.W. of the past year, was presented for the benefit of installation. A Board of Installed Masters having been duly constituted, Bro. Martin was installed by Bro. M. L. Alexander P.M., in masterly style, and on the re-admission of the brethren the newly-installed W.M. was greeted with the customary honours. He then proceeded to invest his Officers for the year, as follows:—Bros. G. Bean I.P.M., J. W. Dewsnap S.W., Lewis Wall J.W., J. S. Lyon Treas., L. Lazarus P.M. Sec., G. P. Lion S.D., Isaac Botibol J.D., Lewis Davis I.G., A. G. Dodson P.M. D.C., Lensberg and Hart Stewards, P. E. Van Noorden Org., and Goddard Tyler. The addresses having been delivered with good effect, the W.M. immediately proceeded to initiate Mr. Meyer Max Bendit, and Mr. Bulford, the ceremony being performed in a manner which fully satisfied the brethren as to the choice they had made of a ruler for the ensuing year. After the transaction of some other Masonic business, the brethren and visitors sat down to an excellent banquet, provided by Messrs. Spiers and Pond (Limited), and served under the superintendance of Bro. M. Silver. The customary loyal toasts were followed by that of the "Joppa Benevolent Fund," in proposing which the Worshipful Master congratulated the brethren on the fact that there was still a very respectable balance to the credit of that fund, which had done so much good during the past ten or twenty years. He associated with the toast the name of the Senior President, Bro. Israel Abrahams, who responded, and in the course of his remarks said the fund, which had been the source of so much relief to so many of the brethren, widows and orphans, was a thoroughly Masonic fund. It was now reduced to about £700, but it had boasted of having reached £1,100 and upwards. If they had a smaller amount now they would not discontinue lending a helping hand in any case really deserving their assistance. By the aid of the brethren, whom he found ready and pleased to put their hands in their pockets on behalf of a really good cause, he hoped to get the fund up again to £1,000, and he was pleased to-night to announce several new subscriptions. He trusted the Fund and the Joppa Lodge might enjoy a long career of future prosperity. Bro. Lewis Lazarus Secretary announced subscriptions to the amount of thirteen guineas, of which the W.M. contributed two guineas. The I.P.M. in proposing the health of the newly-installed Worshipful Master spoke of him as an old friend, who he was delighted to have seen placed in the chair of the Joppa Lodge. It was not altogether a new honour to Bro. Martin, who had passed the chair of a distinguished Lodge in the south-east of London. At any rate, from what they knew of him, he was entirely worthy of the confidence of the brethren and well qualified to discharge the important duties of the position. The W.M. in acknowledging the compliment paid him, said he was an initiate of Bro. Israel Abrahams, twenty years ago, and he had waited since that time in the hope and expectation of attaining the high position to which he had this evening been chosen by the kindness of the brethren. In every Lodge the initiate should aspire to that promotion, even as every French soldier was taught to believe he carried a marshal's bâton in his knapsack. The brethren had chosen to elect him, and he accepted the office with a great deal of diffidence; but at the same time with a great deal of pleasure—with diffidence lest he should be considered a martinet, but with pleasure because he knew he should be associated with a great number of old Masonic friends. He should insist on order and decorum in the Lodge and he hoped all the brethren would support him. He then proposed the health of the Initiates, suitable replies being given by Bros. Bendit and Bulford. The health of the Installing Master was next given, and in responding Bro. M. L. Alexander said it had been his pleasure to instal many Masters of this Lodge, and he should be ready to assist in that capacity again, although it was preferable that every Master should instal his successor. The Visitors were cordially received, and the welcome accorded to them was acknowledged by Bros. Benjamin W.M. 1017, Barnett W.M. 185, Johnson W.M. 1320, and J. R. Stacey. The health of the Past Masters followed, the name of the I.P.M., Bro. Geo. Bean, being received with especial honour, and the W.M. presented him, on behalf of the Lodge, a handsome P.M.'s jewel and a P.M.'s collar and jewel, as a mark of esteem and in recognition of the services he had rendered to the Lodge. Bro. Bean I.P.M. in returning thanks for the compliment paid him said words failed him to express adequately his sense of gratitude for the kindness he had received at the hands of the brethren. During his year of office he had endeavoured to emulate the working of his predecessors, and to carry on the Lodge on the same lines as the P.M.'s. The handsome gifts he had received that evening would remind him of the happy hours he had spent with the brethren of the Lodge of Joppa, and it would be a pleasure to him always to wear them when he met them in the Lodge. It was a source of satisfaction to himself to know that the same good feeling subsisted between them all on his retiring from office as when he entered upon the duties. Bro. Roberts P.M. also responded, and other toasts followed. The enjoyment of the evening was enhanced by a capital selection of music, under the direction of Bro. P. E. Van Noorden, by Miss Berta Foresta, Miss Rebe, Bros. Arthur Thomas and Henry Prenton. Mr. Walter Van Noorden rendered good service at the pianoforte.

EBORACUM LODGE, No. 1611.

THE regular meeting of this Lodge was held at the Queen's Hotel, York, on the 12th inst., when the chair was occupied by the Worshipful Master, Bro. Sir Frederick Milner, Bart., M.P. There were also present Bros. J. Blenkin I.P.M., T. B. Whytehead P.M., Geo. Balmford P.M., G. Simpson P.M., J. T. Seller P.M., A. T. B. Turner S.W., W. Brown J.W., B. Z. Miles, and a number of other Officers and brethren. Successful ballots were taken for Bros. the Rev. R. Blakeney, Vicar of Bishopthorpe, and Granville Milner, of Bilbrough Hall. Bro. Whittaker was passed to the second degree, and the lecture on the second tracing board was given by Bro. W. B. Dyson. The Secretary announced the death of Brother Isaac F. Taylor, one of the first members initiated in the Lodge. After the close of the Lodge the members met at refreshment, and the usual toasts were duly honoured, the evening being enlivened by harmony, to which many brethren contributed. Letters and messages, conveying hearty good wishes, were received from several absent members, including Bros. J. S. Cumberland P.M., C. G. Padel P.M., &c.

Bussey J.W., A. F. L. Fredericksen S.D., J. W. Miller J.D., John Falconer I.G., Rev. V. S. Vickers I.P.M. Chaplain, James D. Terson P.M. Secretary, H. S. Boyton P.M. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The W.M. stated that as there was no ceremonial work before the Lodge for this occasion it had been thought expedient to use the opportunity, for the purpose of hearing a lecture on the Ritual by Bro. Stevens, of London, who was then present, and whom he had pleasure in introducing to the Lodge. He had no doubt that the members would give him a hearty welcome and an attentive hearing. Bro. James Stevens, who on rising was most cordially received, then occupied the earnest attention of all present; during two and a half hours he discoursed of the "Knobs and Excrescences" which are still to be found in the ritual and ceremonial of the First Degree. His remarks were evidently much appreciated by the several Past Masters present, as well as by the younger portion of his audience, and notwithstanding the length of his address, its conclusion was sought to be deferred for further explanations. The thanks of the Lodge were expressed to Bro. Stevens, in high laudation of his lecture and services, and the same were entered on the minutes. There was no other business, and Lodge was closed in due form. The brethren subsequently partook of supper, and separated at the customary hour.

Jefferis W.M. 1161. Lodge was opened in military Masonic form, and with solemn prayer, at 5·15 by the W.M. Bro. Knights. The minutes of last regular meeting, also of an emergency were read and confirmed. The Wor. Master now invited the Installing Master to take the chair. Bro. East, in doing so, explained that the military brethren would during the ceremony perceive a difference in the working as done by him and what they had probably been accustomed to, the Princess Charlotte of Wales working under the Irish Constitution. One of the instructions necessary to be carried out was that the Installing Master must read the fifteen charges to the W.M. elect, the duty being always done in English Lodges by the Secretary. The Lodge was then advanced to another degree, and the W.M. presented Major Baldrey to the Installing Master to receive at his hands the benefit of installation, which ceremony was done in a most effective manner by Bro. East. In due course Bro. Major Baldrey was installed, and invested the following brethren:—Howard S.W., Kendall J.W., Banks P.M. Hon. Secretary and Treasurer (for the fourth time), Hardisty S.W., Saul J.D., Deacon I.G. The former Tyler, Brother Sly, honourably and well fills again this office. The working tools were presented by the Immediate Past Master. The addresses to the Master and brethren were duly given by the Installing Master, the address to the Wardens by Bro. Joseph Wildgrove P.P.G.J.D. East Lancashire. Hearty good wishes were tendered by the visiting brethren, and then Lodge was closed in due form by Bro. Major Baldrey, who cordially invited the visiting brethren to remain to the banquet, which was prepared in the dining hall, and was ably served by the Masonic Hall manager, aided by numerous polite and attentive assistants. Great credit is due to the manager and his wife for the manner in which they cater for such banquets. The formal toasts having been gone through, the W.M. called upon Past Master Gifford to propose the toast of the Visitors, which was done in a kindly manner. Bro. John Salmon P.M. 163 P.P.G.D.C. East Lanca hire in a suitable speech expressed his delight at the way in which Brother Knights had opened the Lodge; he referred to the difference in the style of working as usually carried out in this Province. However, he could truthfully say it was well done by every Officer, and he should be glad to see such proficiency and discipline more generally displayed. Bro. Salmon concluded by thanking the W.M., on behalf of the Visitors, for the grand treat, and splendid banquet they had all enjoyed. Bro. Batcheldor P.M. 1458, a celebrated author and composer, played one of his popular pieces on the pianoforte in a masterly style, and much to the gratification of the brethren. Bro. Dottie P.M. 1161 gave a humorous reading, entitled "Lubbers Afloat," which created, as it always does, roars of laughter. The W.M., in responding to the toast of his health, made some allusion to the fact of the Princess Charlotte of Wales being an Irish Lodge, yet it had a Welsh name; he supposed they might say it was also a Welsh Lodge; but whether Irish or Welsh he had no hesitation in saying that it was second to none in this or any other Province for its loyalty, its working, and its thorough Masonic character. His only fear, on assuming the proud position of W.M. was, that he might not show the same ability as his predecessors, who had ably performed their duties; he promised, however, to do his best, and was confident of receiving the support of his Officers, and particularly of his I.P.M. Bro. Knights, who was ready and able to work any ceremony. This brother would have performed the installation ceremony, but in deference to his (the W.M.'s) wishes, and out of courtesy to Bro. East, he had been asked to forego the pleasure because Bro. East installed him (the W.M.) into Freemasonry, many years ago, and in the very room where he had just been installed. The W.M. concluded by making some flattering, but well-deserved remarks, about Bro. Knights, and proposed his health. The proposition was received with right hearty cheers, testifying how highly Bro. Knights was respected. The health of the Installing Master was responded to by that distinguished brother, who in a very able speech explained how deeply he felt the honour of having that day been allowed to instal Bro. Major Baldrey, whom he had been the means of initiating into Freemasonry; it was a great pleasure to him to say that the British Army did not possess a finer soldier, and Freemasonry could not boast of a better brother than Major Baldrey. He predicted success to the regiment, and the Craft when it had so noble a man at the head of one of its Lodges. The toast was received with rapturous applause and was suitably acknowledged. The remainder of the evening was spent in harmony, Bro. Salmon sang "Here's to his health." Bro. Howard played in grand style a clarionet solo, accompanied by Bro. Batcheldor. Bro. Gifford was in excellent voice, and sang "In days of Old." Bro. Saul sang the "Sentry Song," from Iolanthe. Bro. Darbyshire recited a popular dialect story. Bro. Senior sang "My sweatheart when a boy." Thus a very happy and most enjoyable evening was brought to a close by hearty good cheers given for Major Baldrey and the members of his family.

WOLSELEY LODGE, No. 1993.

THIS Lodge held its second Annual Ball and Soirée in the Ardwick Town Hall, Manchester, on Tuesday evening, 13th instant. One hundred and four ladies and gentlemen were present. Dancing commenced at eight p.m. to the strains of music from a very efficient band, conducted by Mr. Baxter, Band Master of the Ardwick Industrial Schools. Bro. Harris J.W. Wolseley Lodge, Acting Senior Warden for Bro. Lord Wolseley, was the Master of the Ceremonies, and performed the duties in his well-known courteous manner. The Hall was prettily decorated by Bro. Waite (Tyner and Co.), of Deansgate, Manchester, who was well supplied with Masonic banners, which he placed about in profusion, as he often does for similar occasions in all parts of England. Suppers were provided by Mrs. Edwards, of 5 Bury New-road, Manchester (wife of the first W.M. of this Lodge), in two relays, the first being at 10·30, to which forty-three sat down, and the second at twelve o'clock, to which forty-five more sat down; too much praise cannot be given to this lady for the splendid way she always does her catering, and a word of praise is due to her able assistant, Miss Ada, for the polite and prompt attention she always displays to the guests. Bro. Edwards P.M. presided at the first supper, in the absence of the W.M., who left early in the evening, owing as was stated to family affliction. Bro. Edwards did, as he always does—looked well after his guests, while Bro. Darbyshire undertook the duties of Superintending Steward for the President. The second supper was presided over by Bro. Darbyshire, and Bro. Walker fulfilled the duties actively of Superintending Steward, which gave him pleasure, as it always seems to do—to give comfort and enjoyment to visitors. This brother was in great demand, loud calls being made for him in the ball room whilst he was engaged in the supper room; but he regarded the commands of the President and the welfare of the guests too much to vacate his post for one moment till supper was over. He is a worthy brother, and the Callender Lodge may well be proud of its coming Master, Bro. Walker, who is to be shortly installed, and we hope to be able to report that interesting event. The whole affair passed off without a hitch, and the assembly of delighted brethren, ladies and visitors dispersed at four a.m.

CHISWICK LODGE, No. 2012.

THE first anniversary meeting of this new Lodge, which may be described as one of the most popular in the metropolitan district, was celebrated on Monday last, at the Bolton Hotel, Duke's Road, Chiswick. The W.M., Bro. George Everett, presided, and was supported by the following Officers:—Bros. Charles H. Everett S.W., George Gardner J.W., E. Lawrence P.M. Treas., Harry Price Sec., R. Harvey S.D., W. Gomm J.D. Amongst the visitors were Bros. W. J. Ferguson P.M. 177, G. A. Payne P.M. 933, A. Williams 834, H. Whittick P.M. 511, J. M. Alexander 1563, W. Johnson R.C. 865, E. Ayling P.M. 975, J. M. Chapman W.M. 1922, E. Cox 780, W. T. Buxton 1381, A. Freeman 1614, S. Stretch 1950, E. Gilbert P.P.G. Steward Middlesex, P.M. and Treas. 326, G. L. Everett 177, V. E. Wing 1585, A. L. Chapman 255, J. W. Walden 975, E. A. Tilbury 975, H. Skinner 177, F. Hayes 73, H. A. Stunt 1320, H. Massey P.M. 619 1928, C. Cordingley P.M. 45, J. Haro 1987, N. Defriez P.M. 185, E. Wright S.D. 1612, W. W. Morgan W.M. 211, F. W. Downes 1158, F. Harding 177, John Kent 177, &c. After the Lodge had been formally constituted the minutes of last Lodge meeting and the Auditors' Report were read and unanimously adopted. Bros. C. Packer and J. H. D. Meyer were then raised to the sublime degree. The ballot was taken for Mr. Andrew Francis Morley Gammell, proposed by Bro. C. H. Everett, and seconded by the W.M.; and for Mr. John Rowlings, who was proposed by Bro. W. Gomm D.C., and seconded by the W.M. elect. The result was in favour of both candidates, who were initiated and regularly enlightened in the mysteries of the first degree in Freemasonry. The W.M. elect, Bro. Charles H. Everett, was then introduced and regularly placed in the chair of King Solomon in the presence of a full Board of Installed Masters. On the re-admission of those below the degree of I.M., Bro. C. H. Everett was saluted in the three degrees, and he then appointed and invested his Officers, as follow:—Bros. George Gardner S.W., Richard Harvey J.W., F. Lawrence P.M. P.Z., M.D., Treasurer, Harry Price Secretary, Wm. Gomm S.D., William A. Dowling J.D., Harry Furze I.G., John Brown Director of Ceremonies, A. H. Strong W.S., J. Rowe Tyler. The Treasurer now rose; he thought a vote of thanks should be given to Bro. George Everett for having so admirably performed the very arduous duties he had undertaken during the past year, and he moved a resolution to that effect, which was seconded by the W.M. and carried unanimously. Bro. G. Everett in acknowledging the compliment said it was not the first time the Treasurer had spoken kindly of him, he, however, thought it was more than he deserved; he had tried to do his duty, and as far as health and strength permitted he hoped he had done it. He had begun well, continued well, and ended fairly well; he had installed his successor. Bro. Everett then gracefully alluded to the assistance he had received from Bro. Ferguson, on more than one occasion, and thanked him for having performed the duties of Master when he was too unwell to attend. This day he had acted as Director of Ceremonies, and for these services he now thanked Bro. Ferguson. Another subject he had to mention. Bro. George Gardner S.W. last year stood as Steward of this Lodge for the Girls' School, and took up an excellent list, headed by ten guineas which was voted by the Lodge. This year he was representing the Aged Freemasons, and no doubt he would take up an equally good list. He (Bro. Everett) therefore proposed that the list should be headed by a vote from the Lodge of ten guineas. This motion having been seconded by the Treasurer, was carried unanimously. Shortly afterwards Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet, which was excellently served by the proprietor of the Bolton Hotel, Bro. Thomas Wright. Full justice having been done to the loyal toasts, Bro. George Everett I.P.M., proposed the health of the W.M., who he complimented on the excellent start he had made. The brethren were somewhat nervous before Bro. Charles H. Everett went into the chair, fearing he would be too modest, he having so recently attained to so high a position. He thought they had nothing to fear on that score; the W.M. had shown that he was not modest, and was ready to carry out the work of the Lodge. That was exactly the sort of man they wanted in the chair, and he (Bro. George Everett) found he was bequeathing to the new Worshipful Master a position he knew he would esteem. Taking into consideration that the Lodge was only twelve months old, it was matter for congratulation that it was now 34 strong; it seemed to him extraordinary that so much should have been effected in the course of twelvemonths. It was very gratifying further to know that this result had been brought about mainly by the assistance he (Bro. Everett) had received from his Officers. It was rather curious that an Everett should follow an Everett, considering there was no relationship between them, except the Masonic fellowship which bound them together. There was now an Everett the Second in the chair, and on his behalf he (Bro. George Everett) had to ask that if they saw in the W.M. any shortcomings they would make every allowance for him, and would assist him in every possible way. The W.M., in reply, assured the brethren that so long as he occupied the chair nothing would be wanting on his part to promote the interests of the Chiswick Lodge. The Lodge was but little more than twelve months old, yet it commanded such a large gathering as they had present that evening. It was a great credit to the Lodge, and he should feel it a pride to promote its interest as much as he could. The toast of "The Initiates" came next; both these brethren responded, trusting they might eventually become bright ornaments to the Order. The toast of "The Visitors" was gracefully introduced by the W.M., and Bro. Ferguson, who was the first to respond, said the proposition of the W.M. gave him the opportunity of returning thanks on two grounds—first of congratulating the Chiswick Lodge on the wonderful progress it had made since it was consecrated. He thanked the brethren for the way in which they had received the toast proposed by the W.M., and for his kind recognition of what he had done. He trusted he should always be useful as a Mason. When first he came to the Lodge he was ornamental; the second time, when the W.M. was ill, he was useful; and at the present meeting he had tried to make himself serviceable. He did not like to be a wallflower, he had satisfaction in being able to do something. When the Lodge was a little older it would require no extraneous aid, and those who had assisted would all be wallflowers, but they would admire the way in which the members of the Lodge did its work. That would be admirable. It was an excellent thing that the first W.M. had set the example of installing his successor, this was a duty which every W.M. should perform. With such an example the Chiswick Lodge must succeed. Bro. Chapman said he did not know whether the brethren had seen any picture in which surprise was depicted by open mouths and extended hands, but if they had they might imagine that that was the way in which he ought to be represented on this occasion, for he felt much surprise at the way in which the I.P.M. installed his successor and delivered the addresses. His next surprise was at the way the W.M. had conducted the working. It had been expected that he would hardly have a word to say for himself, but he had invested his Officers as though he had been an old Past Master in the Craft. He had also been surprised at the responses of the Initiates, and likewise with the lavish hospitality with which every one had been entertained. He had been invited to enjoy himself in a quiet way, but he had found unbounded liberality in the banquet. Further, he was surprised that he should have been called upon to respond. The W.M. in offering the next toast, the health of the I.P.M., Brother George Everett, presented that brother with an elegant jewel, surmounted by a beautiful miniature picture of old Chiswick Church. He narrated the circumstances under which Brother Everett yielded to the persuasion put upon him to become the first Master of the Lodge, and said that it was only by strong pressure that he again consented to take a leading part in Masonry. He had, however, done his work well, and had led the Chiswick Lodge to a position of prosperity. Brother George Everett in replying said that Brother Chapman had mentioned surprises which had met him that day; but he (Brother Everett) must say he was surprised, though, at the same time, flattered and pleased at the reception given to this toast. He was very happy to think that the brethren thought him a "jolly good fellow." He was pleased to receive at the hands of the Lodge the handsome jewel pinned on his breast by the Worshipful Master. It had been his good fortune many times during his extended Masonic career to receive tokens of the esteem and regard of his brother Masons, but he did not know that he had ever received a greater compliment than the presentation of this jewel by the Chiswick Lodge. He was taken by surprise when he was asked to be the first Master of the Chiswick Lodge, and he was the more surprised to find himself weak enough to accept the post, because he had previously resolved to take a back seat in Freemasonry. However, he did agree to come again to the fore, and he obtained the warrant for this Lodge. Although he went into it reluctantly at first, he did not regret it, and was highly pleased at the result. The Chiswick Lodge had been a great success, and every one connected with it had been genial good fellows. He was the more pleased and proud because the Lodge was the child of his old age. Several other toasts followed, but the advanced hour of the evening compelled those who had to get home by train to quit the pleasant assembly, and brave the tempestuous weather that prevailed outside.

BRO. JAMES STEVENS' LECTURE: "KNOBS AND EXCRESCENCES."

THIS interesting lecture, which is "explanatory of the Ritual and ceremonials of the First Degree," appears to be growing into considerable favour amongst the provincial Lodges and in metropolitan Lodges of Instruction. It is highly spoken of by all who have had the opportunity of hearing it, as most instructive upon all matters of detail, whether of word or action, in connection with the "work;" and that it is attractive is evidenced by the fact that the lecturer rivets the attention of his hearers throughout an address occupying about from two to two and a-half hours.

Bro. Stevens has lately delivered the lecture, on the 1st inst., at the Royal Arthur Lodge of Instruction, No. 1360 at Wimbledon; and on the 5th in the Peace and Harmony Lodge No. 193 at Dover, on each of which occasions he was greatly complimented on his Masonic labour. The lecture has been given at Portsmouth, Brighton, Dunmow, Lowestoft, Hull, Derby, Kidderminster, and other provincial towns, besides many of the metropolitan Lodges. From these places very gratifying testimonies of satisfaction have been received by Bro. Stevens, whose study walls bear honourable evidence of the opinion of his hearers. During this month it is probable the lecture may be repeated at Upper Norwood, Whitstable, and Margate, and the 6th proximo is appointed for its delivery at the Selwyn Lodge, No. 1901, at Dulwich.

A ball in connection with the Lodge of Prosperity will be held at the Cannon-street Hotel, on Tuesday, 20th January 1885. Tickets (to include supper and light refreshments during the evening): double, to admit lady and gentleman, 21s; single, to admit a gentleman, 15s; single, to admit a lady, 10s 6d.

A very successful meeting of the Lily Lodge of Richmond, No. 820, was held on Wednesday last. Three gentlemen were initiated into the Order by the W.M., Bro. G. C. Young P.M. A full report shall appear next week. Several other reports are unavoidably held over.

The marriage of General Brownrigg, R.W. Provincial Grand Master of Surrey, with Miss Desanges, took place on Saturday last, at St. Luke's, Chelsea. The popularity of the bride was attested by the large number of presents she received. The Duchess of Wellington sent a tea-service, Sir Bruce Seton (for Grand Lodge) some plate, and Bro. and Mrs. Nunn a handsome lamp.

THE MASONIC INSTITUTIONS.

IMPORTANT meetings have been held during the past week, in connection with each of the three Masonic Institutions—Quarterly Courts in the case of the two Schools, and the regular Monthly Committee in that of the Benevolent Institution.

At the Quarterly Court of the Girls' School, held on Saturday, Bro. Frank Richardson P.G.D. occupied the chair, and among other matters formally reported was the death of the late Bro. Col. Creaton, one of the Trustees of the General Fund, and also Trustee of the Sustentation Fund. It was stated that brethren would have to be elected to fill those positions. The list of candidates for the April election was settled—the number of applicants being thirty, and of vacancies twenty-two. Bro. H. B. Marshall, Grand Treasurer, was proposed as Treasurer of the Institution, by Bro. A. H. Tattershall, and seconded by Bro. Raynham W. Stewart. Bro. Sir John B. Monckton P.G.D. was proposed as Treasurer and Trustee of the Institution, by Bro. Robert Grey, and seconded by Bro. Ralph Clutton. Bro. Marshall was eventually elected as Treasurer, by a majority of eight to six. Bro. Marshall was then proposed as Trustee of the general Fund, by Bro. Tattershall, and seconded by Bro. George Brown. Bro. J. A. Rucker P.G.D. was also proposed—by Brothers Robert Grey and Raynham W. Stewart—and, on a division, was declared duly elected, he securing six votes and Brother H. B. Marshall five. Brother Joshua Nunn P.G. Sword Bearer, President of the Lodge of Benevolence, was then proposed as Trustee of the Sustentation Fund. Bro. E. Letchford submitting his name, and Bro. Robert Grey seconding; Bro. Nunn was declared unanimously elected. The chairman said they had next to consider the subject of the transfer of stock, but it was suggested that the Institution should not go to that expense until they were reduced to two Trustees. There had been a difficulty about the dividends, in consequence of Bro. Creaton's illness and subsequent death, and the Institution had not received their January dividends. He thought it would be better that the bankers should have a power of attorney to receive the dividends on all the stocks. A resolution to this effect was accordingly proposed by Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, seconded by Bro. Tattershall, and carried unanimously. The chairman then moved, on behalf of the House Committee, "That a gratuity of £25 be made to Miss A. Barron, an assistant governess, on her retirement from the Institution." Bro. Richardson said that Miss Barron was elected into the Institution in April 1870, and had therefore been there just upon fifteen years. She had well conducted herself during her residence in the Institution, and was most highly recommended by Miss Davis, the head governess. She had now left the School to get married, and as the Institution had stood so many years, as it were, in the position of father, and as a father did not like his daughter to go quite empty-handed to her husband, it was thought the Institution should make her a present, and accordingly the sum of £25 was proposed. The motion was seconded by Bro. Raynham Stewart, and carried. A vote of thanks was then passed to the Chairman, and the proceedings brought to a conclusion.

The Boys' School Quarterly Court was held on Monday at Freemasons' Hall, under the presidency of Bro. W. Roebuck, P.G. Steward. The first business was the settlement of the ballot paper for the April election, and this was passed with a total of forty-five approved candidates, of which number twenty-five are to be elected. A vote of condolence with the widow and relatives of the late Col. Creaton was then proposed by the Chairman. The brethren were aware, he said, of what Bro. Creaton had done for the Institutions; not only had he contributed large sums of money to the Charities, but he had also devoted a large amount of time to the Committees and general working of the Institutions. His desire to do good was very marked. Every member of the Craft who knew him admired his actions, and the brethren would doubtless avail themselves of the opportunity of recognising his services, even in the humble way of passing a vote of regret at his loss, to be recorded on the minutes, with a letter of condolence to be sent to his widow. Bro. J. L. Mather seconded the proposition, which was supported by Bro. J. Sampson Peirce, and carried unanimously. Bro. Raynham W. Stewart was, on the proposition of Bro. Dudley Rolls, seconded by Bro. W. H. Saunders, elected a Trustee in room of Bro. John Wordsworth deceased, and, on the proposition of Bro. J. L. Mather, seconded by Bro. R. W. Stewart, Bro. W. Roebuck was elected to a similar position in room of the late Bro. Col. Creaton. Bro. Roebuck then brought forward the motion standing in his name on behalf of the House Committee, "That, having in view the necessary regulations for admission to the Preparatory School now in course of erection, the age at which petitions on behalf of candidates may be presented be reduced to six years, and the age for the reception of elected candidates be reduced to seven years, and that Law 52 be altered accordingly." This proposition having been seconded, was carried, and a vote of thanks having been accorded to the Chairman the proceedings closed.

The monthly meeting of the Benevolent Institution was held on Wednesday, under the presidency of Bro. Horace B. Marshall G. Trea., at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Terry, the Secretary, having reported the death of two annuitants, one of them being the late Warden of the Institution, Bro. J. A. Farnfield proposed a vote of condolence with Miss Norris, on the death of her father. The proposal was seconded by Bro. Bulmer, and carried. The Warden's report was then read. It recorded, among other matters, the holding of the annual New Year's entertainment to the old people at Croydon, on the 7th inst. On the motion of Bro. Tattershall, seconded by Bro. Murlis, a vote of thanks to those who had contributed to the entertainment was cordially agreed to, as also was a vote of thanks to the Carolina (Original) Minstrels, who performed on that occasion. The Finance Committee's report was read and adopted, and then the new petitions for admission as Annuitants were brought forward. These were 27 in number (15 male and 12 female). Eventually 12 of the former and 9 of the latter were accepted, three male petitions were rejected, two female applications were withdrawn, and one was deferred. The Secretary, Bro. Terry, pointed out that the Benevolent Institution had acquired the very proud position in 1884 of obtaining the largest amount it had ever secured in one year—£19,900. At the same time, the demands on the funds were very heavy. At the May Election there would be forty-two men and eighty-one widow candidates, and for these there were but twelve male vacancies, there not being, at present, a single vacancy for widows. The proceedings were concluded by the customary vote of thanks to the Chairman.

FREEMASONRY IN DEVON AND CORNWALL IN 1884.

THE year which has just passed away has been eventful in many respects, Masonically as well as generally. The Craft has held its own during 1884, and has had a fairly prosperous year in the West. The Prov. Grand Lodge of Devon was held at Exeter on 7th August, Lord Ebrington Prov. G.M. in the chair. The financial condition of the Province was most satisfactory, and the number of subscribing members was stated to be 2,459. Large sums were donated, as usual, to various of the Charities, and an ad interim report was made of the By-laws revision, the final decision being fixed for the 13th inst. at Exeter, when the numerous amendments will be considered and disposed of. A new Lodge was consecrated at St. George's Hall, Stonehouse, on 23rd April, named "St. George," its distinctive feature being the absence of all intoxicating liquors at its banqueting table, as with many other Lodges lately started in England. Later on a lecture was delivered by Brother Hughan, P.G.D. of England, before the members of that and other Lodges in the Three Towns, on the "Four Grand Lodges of England," which will be followed this year by others under the banners of St. John's Lodge, No. 70, and the "Fortitude," No. 105, on "Old Devonshire Lodges," and "Freemasonry before Grand Lodges," collections being made on each occasion on behalf of the Devon Masonic Educational Fund.

The Mark Prov. Grand Lodge, was held at Newton Abbot, under the Prov. Grand Mastership of Lieut. Col. J. Tanner Davy, and under similar auspices the Moveable Mark Grand Lodge of England was held at Exeter, on 6th August, Lord Henniker M.W.G.M. Master presiding, being the first of the kind ever held in the neighbourhood. It need not be added that the meeting was most successful, the arrangements being in the hands of the Mark brethren at Exeter. Bro. J. Tanner Davy is to be the new Prov. Prior for Devon, vice Bro. L. P. Metham resigned, and in consequence it is confidently expected there will be more interest exhibited in the Masonic Knights Templar degree.

The Prov. Grand Lodge of Cornwall assembled at Penzance, on the 11th of August. The Earl of Mount Edgcumbe, as Prov. G.M., being in the chair. All the reports were of a most cheering character, and the membership had increased to 1,509. As the Revised Constitutions are now so strict as to "arrears of contributions," it is not expected that the membership will be much increased for some time to come. The Mark Prov. Grand Lodge was held at Falmouth, under the genial rule of Sir Charles B. Graves Sawle, Bart., who was again nominated as Prov. Grand Master. A new Lodge was consecrated at Fowey on 12th May, named the "Lebanon," No. 335. The old Royal Arch Chapter at Falmouth has been resuscitated, and it is likely now that the "Volubian" will be very prosperous; after a lapse of over twenty-one years. It, however, did good service early this century, and, doubtless, will now take its rightful place again as the oldest chapter in the county.

The Elections of the Central Masonic Charities, which took place in April, May, and October of last year, were, as usual, matters of great interest to the many concerned, and it is gratifying to find that Devon and Cornwall succeeded in carrying all their protégées, under the able management of Bros. Curteis and Truscott respectively. The Lodges, however, must largely increase their donations if they desire such success to be continued, and they have now a special opportunity of so doing, as Bro. John Lane, P.M. 1402, Torquay, is the Devonshire Steward for the "Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution," whose Festival will be held in February, so no time should be lost in forwarding the names of subscribers to him; and Bro. Charles Truscott, P. Prov. J.G.W. Cornwall, of St. Austell, is the Cornish Steward for the same Institution and also for the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, two of the best managed societies in England.

The present résumé of the progress of the Craft in the Two Counties should not be closed without mentioning the presentation made to the well-known Masonic Historian, Brother Hughan, of Torquay. The testimonial, which consisted of a purse of some £365 and a writing table, was presented to that indefatigable brother on 3rd December, by Sir John B. Monckton, Past Grand Warden of England, on behalf of the numerous subscribers at home and abroad, in recognition of Brother Hughan's literary services on behalf of the Universal Craft, and his most successful labours for the Charities of the Order. It will be remembered that a similar gift was made to the same brother on his leaving Cornwall, and his numerous friends will be glad to hear that he is still engaged in serving the Fraternity for which he has worked so energetically in the past.

A MEETING of the Brethren of the Grand Lodge of Masons of the Province of Devon was held on the 13th inst., at the Royal Public Rooms, Exeter, for the purpose of considering the new Bye-laws for the Province. There was a good attendance, but several were obliged to leave early. The R.W. the Viscount Ebrington P.G.M. was supported by R.W. Bros. W. G. Rogers 112 D.P.G.M., W. Rev. W. Whittley P.M. 156 P.P.G.S.W. who officiated as P.S.G.W., R. Brewin P.M. 112 J.G. Warden, Rev. R. B. F. Ebrington 248 G. Chaplain, J. T. Browning P.M. 105 P.G. Treas., E. H. Wilton P.M. 1181 G. Reg., John Brewer P.M. 251 G. Secretary, George R. Barrett P.M. 189 W.M. 2025 S.G. Deacon, Walter Bradnee P.M. 1402 S.G. Deacon, R. Cawsey P.M. 230 J.G. Deacon, George Huxham 1254 G. Superintendent Works, R. P. Morrison 251 G.D. of Ceremonies, C. Philp 1550 Deputy G.D. of Ceremonies, J. A. Kingdon P.G. Purs., P. L. Blanchard 444 G. Tyler, Bro. J. Moysey 223, W. H. Discombe 1443, H. Ford 1181, and W. Burd 1753 G. Stewards.

The brethren discussed at great length the proposed new bye-laws for the province, which have undergone considerable revision. Some important amendments, proposed by Bros. S. Jew, Lane, G. Hawken, J. B. Gover, Russell, Godtschalk, Fulford, and the Prov. G. Master were passed. The rules were made more stringent in order to prevent the entry into the order of any objectionable person. The rules having been passed W. Bro. A. Bodney moved,

"That no publication of the meetings of Freemasons or the business transacted therein shall be permitted without the sanction of the Provincial Grand Master for the time being in writing, and that no publication of the business of a private Lodge be allowed unless with the approval of the majority of the brethren in open Lodge assembled.

The Provincial Grand Master gave the resolution his hearty support, and said he should mark his displeasure of the conduct of any brother who published the report of Masonic proceedings if the proposed rule was passed. The resolution, after discussion, was carried by a narrow majority. The P.G.M. then proposed that the new By-laws as a whole be accepted and presented to the next Provincial Grand Lodge for confirmation. The Grand Lodge then closed in due form.

A meeting of the representatives of the Lodges on the Committee of Petitions was held before the above meeting at the Masonic Hall. Bro. J. E. Curteis P.M. 189 P.P.G. S.W., the representative for the Province at the Committee of Petitions in London, presented the following report:—

"To W. Bro. the Chairman and the Brethren Members of the Committee of Petitions,—It will be within the recollection of the members of the Committee that at its last meeting a question arose as to the relative cases of Reginald Mitchell and William Sharland—it being held that the case of the former having been formally adopted, that of the latter could not be considered, although the circumstances mentioned in my prior report were such as would probably have induced the brethren to have done so. By the kindness, however, of Bro. A. Orchard, who represented Mitchell's case, this difficulty was, after the Committee had separated, overcome, and permission was given that Sharland's case should—if his relative's promises were fulfilled—be taken first in order. The votes received on account of the Province were 227 girls' votes from the Secretary to the Committee, and 188 from persons indebted to the Province (leaving 695 now in hand), and those votes were fortunately exchanged for 500 boys, leaving me with the 386 received from Bro. Gover, and the 1,296 due, as mentioned in the previous report, with 2,182 votes to deal with. Sharland's friends did not poll so many votes as were expected, but seeing it was possible to carry both cases, and an undertaking having been given by a responsible brother on Sharland's behalf to repay 250 votes at the May election, the credit of the Province was pledged for 375 votes, and both candidates were carried. The brethren representing other Provinces with which this Province has been associated will, with regard to the Election of the Boys' and Girls' School in April next, and possibly in October also, require assistance from this Province, and as repayment of the Benevolent votes due in May next will be required, it will be inexpedient in one, and impossible in the other instance, to adopt any candidate to receive the support of the Province. With a view of saving expense (the result of the last Elections having appeared in the public press) this report has not been printed, but will be incorporated in the one to be presented prior to the annual meeting of P.G. Lodge.

Yours truly,

J. EDWARD CURTEIS.

The report was unanimously received, and Bro. J. E. Curteis was accorded a hearty vote of thanks for his services. The sum of £5 was voted for the relief of a child, both parents of whom—the father a member of the Order—were drowned. The following were re-elected:—Bros. W. G. Rogers D.P.G.M. Chairman; J. E. Curteis Representative for the Province on the Committee of Petitions in London, and J. B. Gover Secretary.—Western Daily Mercury.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Indigestion.—How much thought has been bestowed, and what voluminous treatises have been written upon this universal and distressing disease, which is with certainty and safety dispelled without fear of relapse by a course of this purifying, soothing, and tonic medicine! It acts directly on the stomach, liver, and bowels,—then indirectly, though no less effectively, on the brain, nerves, vessels, and glands, introducing such order throughout the entire system that harm may dwells between each organ and its functions. Dyspepsia need no longer be the bugbear of the public, since Holloway's Pills are fully competent to subdue the most chronic and distress ing cases of impaired digestion, and to restore the miserable sufferer to health, strength, and cheerfulness.

THE THEATRES.

COVENT GARDEN.

THOSE who prophesied defeat and speedy collapse for the new impresario of Covent Garden would find their prognostications refuted in the well-packed pit, the crowded boxes, and exuberant gallery gathered nightly at Bro. Holland's invitation. Children's laughter sounds where duchesses exchanged on dits, and the modulated bravas accorded the diva is replaced by rapturous clappings of young hands echoed by the unsophisticated in the dim perspective of upper circles. Youngsters who have the "fearful joy" of a seat next the ring may no longer expect sawdust showers—matting replaces the sawdust of old. The band pours down its strains from mid-air, the house is cool and bright, and brilliant. Since Fate decrees Mr. Merriman shall sit in the throne of Mario, it is well that William Holland shall be his Grand Vizier in this realm of the Houhynheims.

The entertainment he provides is thoroughly entertaining. His horses are magnificent; he has quite a corps of elephants, and one among them, the so-called "Clown," for comicality, gravity, docility, only a leader in "the largest circulation" would do justice to his gifts and graces. He obeys every command at a word, yet surely, with a certain ironical contempt for human futility. The house roars at his antics and queer gymnastic tricks; for ourselves, dyspeptic and not young, there was something pathetic in the good nature of this burly Gulliver thus standing on his head "to oblige" the Lilliputians. The clown elephant has a fine pendant in "the educated monkey." The School Board would have passed him in the sixth standard could he speak English. He is a splendid rough rider, and his cousinship only too apparent. We apologise for speaking of a lady after our four-footed and quadrumane relations, but we must offer our acknowledgments to Madame Oceana for a real æsthetic treat she gives us in her singularly graceful acts. The bare-backed riding of pretty Mdlle. Ernan will probably be fatal to many susceptible mashers. The juvenile ballet forms an agreeable interlude; whilst the multitude of clever things done by the infantry, cavalry, and general zoology, has never been excelled in any ring. Papas and mammas cannot give a better treat to the children than a visit to the Cirqueries; while those who are not parents may spend there a thoroughly enjoyable winter evening.

ROYALTY THEATRE.

WE can heartily congratulate the manager of the Royalty Theatre on the brilliant success of the "Maitre des Forges," now being acted nightly to crowded houses. The character and plot of Ohnet's drama is too well known, both by its Parisian fame and the popularity of the St. James version, that we need tell the story to our readers. For all who have followed the fortunes of the self-willed wife, and no less self-willed husband, as interpreted by Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, this French reading will have a peculiar interest. M. Damala, as the lover and husband in the opening scenes, perhaps, does not intend to give the character any touch of poetic charm. We have the ironmaster of the laboratory and the counting house, and are not surprised that a lovely, passionate girl should resent a union which seems offered by a parvenu's ambition, even though she makes it the means of avenging her outraged love. It was in the interview with his bride after the midnight wedding that Damala gave evidence of very distinct and earnest emotional power, suppressed and held in check until he is maddened by the belief she has but married him to serve her own infatuation for her cousin. There was a poignancy of anguish in his despair that completely carried away the audience, and as the scene closes, he sinks heart-broken on the chair, you see or rather feel that in that moment Claire is awaking to the depth of the great love she is casting from her. Madame Hading invests the heroine with a grace and womanly tenderness so touching and pathetic that she effectually hides in the charm of her own personality the harshness and perversity of the author's creation. With each act her powers seem to rise with the tenser strain of the misery of her false position—a wife who is no wife—till the moment when she learns her husband's love has only been equalled by his generosity, that he has taken her dowerless and saved her family from penury, and in the knowledge sinks cowering in the sense of her unworthiness. During this scene, and each subsequent one, Madame Hading held her audience completely under the spell, the crowded house quite hushed, and this was the greater triumph since probably not a third of those present could follow the story by the spoken words. Madame Hading possesses not only great talent, but great beauty and grace, a lovely Clytie face, and she is free from any trick of attitudinizing. M. Colombey was admirable as the chocolate manufacturer, never sinking to low comedy, a very possible and delightful fabricant en gros. We have seen one that rather suggested the "village grocer." M. Schey, in a very small part, gave a charming vignette study of the kindly, cheery, ouvrier who blushes with delight at the honour of saluting the adored "patronne." Thefer was a manly young lover, Mdlle. Santa a charming Dresden china little schoolgirl, Madame Renard dignified and touching as the Marquise, the tender mother who has shielded Claire from all contact with the rough work-a-day world. We regret Madame Gerfant is too melodramatic as Athenais, the part should have the cat's claws not obtruded. The Duke gains dignity in M. Laugier's hands. We recognise, in spite of his vices, a not wholly unworthy object of Claire's first love. The final scene, which might easily become an anticlimax, is played much more closely in the French than the English version, the Duke but rushes forward to learn that the wound Claire has received to shield her husband's life is not mortal, she sinks into her husband's arms, and the curtain falls. It falls every night at the Royalty amid loud and continuous applause. Recalls had followed the close of each act, all the principal artistes being summoned. We trust a still more prosperous experience is thus inaugurated with the New Year for M. Meyer. English folks' knowledge of French is at the best but vague; to enjoy the French drama they must know the story in an English dress. We believe if M. Meyer will bear this in mind there are easy triumphs awaiting him. By his good offices might not our brilliant friend "The Candidate" of the Criterion shake hands with his cousin the "Deputy of Boulignac," whilst "Dora" might acknowledge her introduction to society by the kindly offices of "Diplomacy?"

THE JAPANESE VILLAGE.

IN these days, when the "nothing new nothing true, and it don't matter" of the American sage seems to sum up so much of our experience, the privilege of an introduction to another planet where shoddy is unknown, and strikes and locks-out undreamed, and an æsthetic golden age still lingers, where every artizan is an artist; to such a planet, at least, to a traveller's sample of it, we are invited by Brother Buhicrosan, who left his native land, Niphon, twenty years ago to live amongst us, his fellow craftsmen of the West. His energy and high character have met fitting reward in the handsome fortune he has won, and will gain him still greater honour in the realisation of long-cherished plans for the amelioration of the social condition of his native land. It is to these projects, seconded as they are by the warm sympathy of his amiable and gifted wife, who is also from the far East, that we are indebted for the sudden creation of an actual Japanese town, with its shops, its tea-houses, its temples, its men, women and children in our midst. Bro. Buhicrosan has found the nineteenth century crystallised in the glass and iron cucumber frame architecture of Humphries Hall, Knightsbridge, and at the spell of the enchanter's wand arise the graceful little bird-cage houses, each niche and angle made delightful with quaint ornament, yet the ornament always subservient to the harmonious effect of the whole, and that again evidently kept subordinate to the tones of the native landscape. On entering at the outer door we find ourselves in a street that might have been brought bodily from one of the suburbs of Yokohama. There is the carpenter's shop, the carpenter busily at work on a loom for the weaver next door. We air our Japanese vocabulary, and ask him to lend his saw, which is remarkable, in being made of tempered steel, the teeth set towards the handle; the tool is drawn towards the worker. Our carpenter hands it over with the ready smile which distinguishes his countrymen. Our first visit was at the private view on Friday, 9th January. Various and almost unanimous had been the prognostications of failure among the publicist prophets. "It was the wrong season," "People had enough of Japan in Regent-street," "People were suffering from too much Exhibition, and had not yet digested their Sanitary house and Chinese Band." These prophecies were proved baseless when the actual bit of enchantment came in view. One of the specials who had visited the land of Niphon, and remembered something of Jap Ollendorf, was shortly found seated on the white, soft mat of the tea-house, asking for "some good tea," from the "good girl," his envious confrères gathering around, and amid much laughter repeating the unknown syllables of the presiding damsel, a little lass of perhaps fourteen; she, evidently thinking these great, brown-bearded barbarians immense fun, smilingly distributed her tiny cups. "Ariato," said the travelled one, and "ariato, ariato," resounded in laughing chorus from Literature and Art. Shall we confess that Brother Buhicrosan offered (Oh! whisper it not to Mrs. Kendal) a pleasant little lunch with those demoralising adjuncts—which shall be nameless. After Brother Buhicrosan, by the mouth of his secretary, had announced the objects of the exhibition, emphatically declaring it should not become a bazaar, but that all surplus from the money taken would be devoted to patriotic objects, his guests adjourned to the Annexe, a large concert-room, where a stage for Japanese performances has been erected. The Matinée-haunted critics, who must too often find life would be tolerable but for its amusements, had now a treat of real fun and laughter such as few of them have enjoyed since Planco consule. A fencing match, the fencers armed with gigantic bamboos, proceeded to thwack and thwack each other whilst mutually shouting and howling defiance, the proceedings being supervised by an umpire, a fellow of infinite dignity, the movements of whose fan gave the signal to begin and desist, or moderate the thwackings. The fencers were masked, but the wrestlers who succeeded them wore only some endless yards of black satin as a belt and fleshings in deference to Western prejudice. They commenced operations squatting down with their finger-tips touching the ground, and gazing with Egyptian solemnity in each other's faces. The grotesque oddity of the two, with their solemn silence, whilst the umpire in long garments held the fateful fan over them till it waved the signal to engage, was irresistibly comic, but still more comic was the effect when, after a tough bout, reminding one but dimly of "Westmoreland form," the fan waved the hugging athletes apart, and still with unchanged countenance each walked solemnly to the bucket of water placed by the footlights, and solemnly quaffed from the little dipper. These intervals for refreshment occur about every three minutes, the umpire standing with stately grace and unsmiling countenance, whilst irreverent Westerns applaud as loud as they laugh. Three dancing-girls execute a choice measure to the tinkle, tinkle of native music. We had hoped the Japanese artists best delighted to caricature the human face divine. Alas! our introduction to these amiable visitors has destroyed the illusion; only we must admit that there is in some of the girl's faces a certain charm that is, if not beauty, a very pleasant substitute. Then they have the advantage of a most becoming and graceful costume, magnificent hair, daintily dressed, and perfect manners, perfect self-possession, without self-consciousness or boldness, and this indeed is a national characteristic. In conclusion, we advise our readers to visit the Japanese Village, and we are sure they will leave it with hearty recognition of the manager's zeal, good taste, and liberality.

RESUMING ACTIVITY.

THE "Seasonable" festivities may now be considered over, and like all other ordinary mortals we settle down once more to work. We are most of us just now engaged in stock-taking—in making up our balance sheets, and calculating whether our credit is likely to be good during the year. These operations have to be conducted, not alone in a commercial, but also in a social and a moral sense, if indeed commercial stock-taking can in any way be dissociated from moral considerations. Unhappily there are people who go in for credit on a fictitious foundation socially as well as commercially, but their discovery and disgrace are only a matter of time, and all the while they are assuming the air of success, and inducing people to believe in their unimpeachable honour and respectability, they are thinking of the true balance-sheet, locked in the private ledger of their own self-consciousness, and marked with symbols of inevitable bankruptcy. Such a life of foreboding, of hypocrisy, of falsehood, is scarcely worth the living; and perhaps but for the hope that some day they may at last attain truly to what they now only pretend, few men could bear it. They would summon all their courage, and with a resolution that shook all their body and soul would throw aside their smug assumption of moral and mercantile solvency, and, proclaiming themselves beggars to the world, would pay the uttermost farthing and begin afresh on the lowest rung of the ladder, where they might even eat the bread and drink the water of affliction with a certain savour of safety and relish of untempted obscurity. Hypocrisy is the homage which vice pays to virtue, and is often accompanied by the feeling that one of these days it may cease to be hypocrisy because of the attainment of the virtue which it simulates. So the trader who goes into reckless speculation, and yet so lays his plans that he obtains a reputation for solid prosperity, may look with eager desire for the time when the prize that he is striving for may be gained, and the appearance of substantial success be no longer fictitious. Even the dishonest dealer who begins by following some immoral custom of the trade, and then goes a little farther into crime on his own account, may wish that he may one day be able to afford to take to fair dealing, and at last crown the edifice of a fortune by a genuine probity. Of course these things do not often happen. For the most part the life is infested by the lie, and if success be the result of fraud, it is a lying success. Whether in a social or moral or commercial sense, the apparent benefits so gained resemble that illusive wealth bestowed by mocking fairies, of which every golden coin turned to a dry and withered leaf directly the owner thought to buy with it that which he most desired. The preacher and the moralist may go on warning the world against the danger of making haste to be rich; but the world has little inclination to stop and listen, for the truth is, that in the tremendous pressure of the crowd that hurry towards the golden goal, preacher and moralist are often carried away also. The deceitfulness of riches may be the subject of a sermon from a pulpit orator who is known to be as eager to make himself friends for the mammon of unrighteousness as any of the worst perverters of Scripture among his congregation. We are all going together, not with unison, or in any high sense with a united purpose, but in a fighting, frantic throng, fiercely seeking an opportunity to supersede each other in the tremendous business of "getting on," which is the name we give to the act of devoting our lives to the acquisition of wealth, which some of the most successful in the struggle have neither time to count nor heart to enjoy, till time is too short for counting, and the heart too worn and battered for much beside regret. It is perhaps a good thing for us that in the past year we have been suffering so generally from the effects of the feverish conditions that have previously affected every department, not only of trade, but of industry. There have been fears lest we should altogether lose our position, both as the workshop of the world, and the centre of the world's commerce. Strikes and trades unions, and the resulting disputes between masters and workmen, sent a vast amount of manufacturing enterprise out of the country, and made us competitors in countries where labour was cheaper and raw material was protected. There seems to be some promise of amendment in all these respects. Business is assuming a more certain basis. Technical and general education is receiving earnest attention—thanks, in a great measure, to the energies of the Craft—and we have yet belief in the ability of the workmen that we shall still hold our own, and that there are still evidences that the elasticity of our enormous trade will keep us in the position of the foremost nation in the world, both in commerce and manufactures, if we are wisely patient and quietly sagacious enough to look well into our balance-sheet of the past year, and manfully determine to expunge every false entry, to investigate every doubtful transaction, and, while honestly endeavouring to do our duty by each other, sternly demand that those whom we employ in our public service shall be held responsible for their acts, or cease to derive any benefit from privileges which they cannot reasonably expect in return for thorough and efficient work. These thoughts are suggested by the fact that the holidays are over, and that the Lodges are once more "settled down to work." There is little doubt that those brethren who have the onerous task of dealing with the financial condition of Lodges have taken their estimates, too, for the coming year, and we can only conclude with the hope that in Masonry, as well as in trade and commerce, the present year may be "better than the last."

THE MASONIC LIBRARY.

"WE want thinkers, we want them," said Coleridge, speaking of the bigotry and superstition of the Church in his day, and there is a sense in which the expression is applicable to Masonry. We want intelligent Masons, we want them. We want Masons who can give a good reason for the faith that is within them. Masonry has a rich and varied literature, much of it as fascinating as romance, yet it is a fact that a very large proportion of its members are groping in darkness so far as a knowledge of its history, symbolism and jurisprudence is concerned. Ask the first man you meet to give you a definition of Masonry that will individualise and distinguish it from all other Orders, and the chances are that he would be nonplussed. It might even puzzle him to explain the meaning of the emblems he wears suspended from his watch chain. Many who pass as "bright Masons," who are proficient and brisk in degreeism, ritualism, and ceremonial, the use of mystic signs and words, would find themselves greatly confused in attempting to give an intelligible account of the traditions of the Fraternity and the doctrinal significance of its imposing symbolism. They have the form, not the substance of Masonry.

And this ignorance is largely owing to the carelessness of our officials and Lodges in providing the means of information. There is no possible excuse for this state of things. In all our large towns and cities it would not be difficult to find Lodge rooms sumptuously furnished and brilliantly lighted, and the officers decorated in costly jewels, that have not the nucleus of a library. The money that is annually spent in banquets, banners, parades and pageantry would be amply sufficient to endow the Lodge with a well-selected collection of Masonic books, magazines, and papers. With a little economy and at a trifling sacrifice, every Lodge, Chapter, Council and Commandery could have a good library and reading room attached to their respective halls.

It is a duty that we owe to the young neophyte we encourage to come among us. He is usually taught that there are immutable signs and phrases that he should learn by heart and be able to repeat readily, and this is well, is indispensible. But, if he is of an inquiring turn of mind, he soon finds that these antique phrases and fixed signs are merely the alphabet of Masonry, the cabala that enshrines an occult science and history. He goes on climbing, through the twilight, the mystic ladder, hoping to find in the strange turretted height and cupola of the ancient temple the hidden glory, but only finds a new vocabulary. He enlists in the army of crusaders, starts with pilgrim staff and scrip to the Holy Land, confident that near the sepulchre and place of crucifixion he may find the grand sun-burst of glory, but everywhere he finds ritual and ceremony, pageantry and drill, of which he soon grows weary. He would penetrate the arcana of mystery, the wondrous symbolism, as explained by Rebold, Folger, Findel and Hughan, or woven into liquid verse by such poets as Rob Morris, but there is no one to show him the way. He has been invited to a feast, but the elegant dishes are empty. He asks for bread, and is given a stone; and this will ever be so as long as we are unable to lead our Brother into a room adjoining the hall, richly supplied with the treasures of Masonic lore, as interpreted and expounded by our great historians, jurisconsults, poets and thinkers.

And now see how this works. Our young neophyte has threaded his way through the curriculum of degreeism. He has a good memory, and can repeat with parrot-like exactness its ritual and ceremonial. He is proficient in the work, is elected to a Warden's chair, and aspires to fill the Oriental seat of King Solomon. But is he really competent to preside and shape the character and destiny of a Lodge, because he can confer the Degrees and open and close the Lodge and not trip for a word? What does he know of the traditions? Can he give a good account of our history? What idea has he of the different rites? Is it not a lamentable fact that in the great majority of instances these questions would have to be answered in the negative? And now, by virtue of his office, he is entitled to a seat in the Grand Lodge. Is it any wonder he is a wallflower there? Is it strange that the business of the Craft falls into the hands of a few men, who at the sessions of the Grand Bodies are overwhelmed with work? Not at all. The hour from which our novitiate passed the gates of the Temple, he has been familiar with nothing but the showy wardrobe of Masonry, and we repeat again, that those who govern the Craft and oversee the workers of the quarries are, in a measure, responsible for this lamentable ignorance, for not encouraging a taste for reading and enforcing it by precept and example. What can we expect of a Fraternity whose members are absorbed in regalia, parades, the glory of Templar uniforms, and who think that proficiency in degreeism and ritual is the acme of Masonic knowledge? who are content to remain in ignorance of its literature, who rarely ever open a Masonic paper or magazine, and are actually ignorant of what is passing in their own jurisdiction, to say nothing of what is transpiring further away from home. This is an evil that should be remedied if we would enlist the appreciation of the talent and intellect of the age, enliven the usual weary monotony of the Lodge meetings, and remove the slur that Masonry is only another form of club life, a pleasant saturnalia, a plausible excuse to stay out late at night.—San Francisco Masonic Record.

THE MASONIC NEW YEAR.

IN FIVE ACTS.

THE year of light 5885 opens auspiciously upon the Craft in Pennsylvania, and generally upon the Craft throughout the Masonic world. Fraternal harmony prevails, the eternal principles of the Brotherhood are upheld, wise and discreet rulers govern the Masonic bodies, the handful of anti-Masons "hide their diminished heads," and the outlook for the future is one of which Freemasons may justly feel proud. We congratulate the readers of THE KEYSTONE upon these facts, and wish them, one and all, a Happy New Year.

Privileges, be it remembered, however, are always accompanied by corresponding responsibilities. If we would maintain the prosperity of the Craft we must be diligent in the performance of our several Masonic duties. Each one of us is an ashlar in the Temple, and if one be weak and crumbling, all will be weak together. Let us review this matter a little. Let us see wherein we can, not merely equal, but even improve the past. Let us not criticise others, but examine ourselves. Each of us owes all that he is in Masonry to the Fraternity that gave him Masonic birth, and as our Alma Mater, the Craft is entitled to receive both our grateful homage and our fraternal affection—an affection that not merely voices itself in words, but makes itself felt in acts, for the continued glory and prosperity of our ancient and honourable institution.

Act I.—Never miss attendance at your lodge meetings, unless compelled to do so by imperative necessity. Avoid the possibility of getting into the habit of non-attendance through thoughtlessness. It is extremely easy to glide into and abide with the large company of absentees. They are a great cloud of witnesses against themselves. They include, sometimes, from fifty to seventy-five per cent. of the membership. Their Masonry is the merest veneering, for they are scarcely ever heard of, while living, although upon death very often the Lodge is expected to take charge of their remains, and inter them with Masonic honour. If the first act resolved upon, for this new year, be to regularly and punctually attend the meetings of your Lodge, and other Masonic bodies, there is promise of a second act, which shall give both pleasure to yourself and profit to the fraternity.

Act II.—Live your Masonry, as well as profess it. Freemasonry is not a cloak, to be put on when you enter the Lodge Room, and taken off again when you return to the outer word. It is to be a constituent part of yourself, wherever you are. Its principles are intended to permeate your life. A surface Mason is but the parody of a Mason, better suited to be a scarecrow to warn off the profane from Masonry than a Brother who by the purity of his life naturally invites others to follow in his footsteps. Every bad Mason—who is in truth no Mason at all—deters good men from connecting themselves with the Fraternity. We may not advertise for candidates, but every faithless Brother is a standing advertisement to warn all the profane against seeking initiation. No verbal eulogy of Freemasonry can cancel the effect of a wasted, wrecked Masonic life.

Act III.—Study Masonry—the entirety of Masonry. First study the work. It requires, and will repay, study. It is not easy of acquisition. Careful, prolonged thought must be given it, so that it shall be embedded in the memory. Once there, it will remain; and it is a possession of which any Brother may be proud. It is the portal to a school of philosophy and a system of morality—the introduction to an intellectual arena which calls forth the noblest powers of the mind. It is the foundation of the Craft, upon which the entire superstructure is raised. But it is not all of Masonry. Springing from it, in airy and beautiful form, are the philosophy, the morality and the jurisprudence of the Fraternity. These are to be studied, as well as, and in connection with, the work. This pursuit leads the earnest Freemason into the company of the literary lights of the Craft—those gifted Brethren who have devoted a large part of their lives to an investigation of the origin, the history, and the philosophy of Freemasonry. Once thoroughly imbued with this spirit of investigation, a new world of pleasure is opened up to the seeker after light. He never looks upon a fine architectural edifice without specially enjoying its symmetry and beauty, and recognising the fact that it was his Craft that in early and mediæval times led the way in the noble science of architecture. The European traveller who is a Freemason derives treble the enjoyment from his tour than one of the profane does, simply from a recognition of this truth, in the enhanced pleasure he receives from a view of the mediæval abbeys, cathedrals and castles.

Act IV.—Impart your Masonry, on request to your Brethren—freely ye have received, freely give. We owe it to our Fraternity to be teachers whenever we have opportunity. Do unto others as others have done unto you. You owe much of your Masonry to the individual communication of your Brethren. We are all learners one of another—let us also be teachers. No Freemason has a right to deny instruction to another—always being sure that that other is entitled to receive instruction; that he himself is capable of giving instruction, and that it is imparted at the proper time and in the proper place.

Act V.—The closing act of all, be faithful to your obligations until death. It is easy to have an appearance of enthusiasm for Masonry for a few months or years, but it is a different thing to have both your head and heart initiated, to be a Mason all over, to have the root of the matter in you so that only death shall separate you from participation in active fellowship with your brethren here below. Think over these suggestions at the beginning of this Masonic New Year. Re-dedicate yourself to Freemasonry, assured that it is a noble Science, a royal Art, worthy of the life-long enthusiasm of every Brother who is connected with the Fraternity.—Keystone.

EXTRAVAGANCE.

IN scanning our exchanges, and they are sent us from all parts, we have frequently found of late many earnest protests against what the protestors consider the extravagant expenditure for Lodge refreshments. Condensed, the arguments are, that the spending of so large a per centage of the Lodge funds upon laid suppers and alcoholic beverages is repugnant to the principles of true Masonry, has a demoralising tendency, and is a thriftless and unwise expenditure, utterly unjustifiable when the Charities of the Order are in a languishing and inoperative condition. No true Mason can gainsay one word of this, and those protests strike home to Australian Lodges in which the expenditure referred to is so absurdly lavish as to cripple the finances of many Lodges, and offer the censurable inducement to convivial brethren to look forward to "refreshment after labour" as the real cause for their attendance. Applying the arguments of these protests to ourselves (and by ourselves we mean the Lodges under the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of New South Wales), we find too much truth in them to be pleasant or flattering. Our Charities are on the most limited scale, for though 3,000 strong we have no refuge for indigent Masons, in which the weary brother can find a soothing substitute for home. The relief afforded by Lodges is limited and unreliable, solely because the funds available for relief are reduced by the expense of the selfish pleasures of the table, thus, when the call is made, the help given is dispiriting to the recipient, and is controlled by the paltry balance in hand to the credit of the Lodge. In some Lodges the expenditure on refreshments is so great that though intrants are numerous and dues are paid promptly, yet the Treasurer has rarely a ten pound note in hand for the relief of unfortunate brethren seeking help or to contribute to the "widow and orphans' fund," so sadly in need of help. We know of one Lodge that exceeds its monthly receipts by the expenses of its elaborate monthly supper, at which a variety and a profusion of intoxicants is provided and freely indulged in. We know of other Lodges in which a debt actually exists solely through the cost of the supper table. This is an undesirable state of affairs, and demands the serious consideration of the Worshipful Masters, with whom mainly lies the remedy. If they were to put the matter clearly before the brethren, and appeal to their pride in the soul-stirring traditions of the Order, to the history of its magnificent Charities, to its elevating moral teachings, its world-wide fame as a haven for the weary and the loyal protector of the widow and the fatherless. If this were loyally done, we are confident that a welcome-all-round reform would soon spread like an epidemic, and that, as a result, the charity funds under the control of the Grand Lodge would show a substantial increase, and soon become sufficient to justify an attempt being made to erect a Masonic almshouse or orphanage, as the tangible outcome of the self-denial of the brethren collectively. The reform we advocate is worthy of the gravest attention of the Grand Lodge with a view to an appeal being made.—Sydney Freemason.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Your readers must have been struck with some surprise at the extraordinary resolution which was submitted to the last meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Devonshire, held at Exeter, to the effect "that no publication of the meetings of Freemasons or the business transacted therein shall be permitted without the sanction of the Provincial Grand Master for the time being in writing, and that no publication of the business of a private Lodge be allowed unless with the approval of the majority of the brethren in open Lodge assembled." The narrow majority by which this motion was carried was sufficient to show that a diversity of opinion certainly exists as to the publication or otherwise of the proceedings which take place within the Lodge room or at the banquet table. For my own part, I consider the day has long since passed away when the popular idea of Freemasonry is that it is a mere huge social club, or something more, and that its doings are such as Masons would be ashamed of the world knowing. We all know the insidious attacks that are even in these enlightened times made upon the actions of the Craft—how that it is condemned and maligned as a secret society, in the same sense as the appellation is applied to the Fenian, Dynamite, and other "brotherhoods," whose aim is to excite evil passions, and to revolutionise society. This tendency to regard the ancient and honourable Order of Freemasonry as hostile to the well-being of the community would be only stimulated and increased if any such resolution as above quoted were made general, and that a gag should be placed on all the records of Masonic gatherings. In my humble opinion Freemasonry has attained its present true reputation, of being a respectable order-loving and benevolent institution, mainly, in the first instance, through the instrumentality of the Masonic Press, and afterwards by the judicious efforts of brethren attached to respectable journals in the provinces, who have discreetly opened their columns to matters of interest to the sections of the Craft in their respective districts. I know that some fossilised brethren stand aghast at even the mention of their Lodge doings finding its way into a newspaper, but the same foolish conservatism existed at one time among Boards of Guardians and other public bodies, who had hitherto transacted their business in solemn conclave. Such obsolete ideas were, however, demolished by the voice of public opinion, and representatives of the Press are now almost invariably admitted at meetings of such institutions.

It may be argued that Freemasonry is not a public institution, and in a sense this is true. But it is positively absurd to imagine that the proceedings of so representative a body should be kept a sealed book. If so, what becomes of the interchange of that opinion amongst Lodges at home and abroad, and in various parts of our own country, which has been of such benefit to the Craft, and which has gone so far to cement and adorn the Order with that spirit of cosmopolitan brotherly love which we now find in its ranks? The only thing which, in my view, is required is, that proper care should be exercised by those who undertake the duty of furnishing Masonic reports to the Press. And if, as is too frequently the case, a member of the Lodge makes the journal with which he is associated the medium of saying spiteful or personal things of a brother Mason, it is a proceeding which should at once draw down upon him such a salutary rebuke that a repetition of the offence is seldom possible.

It is notorious that in many country towns there is considerable friction between those who belong to the Craft and those who do not, and the smaller the place the more bitter the feud becomes. There is an idea that Masons ruin trade, and that the brethren use their connection with the Order to "favour" each other in business. But it is equally certain that the very men who raise such an outcry against this "trading on Masonry," simply because a rival tradesman might display the Masonic emblems on his shop-front or in his trade card, are the very ones who would force their way into the charmed circle if their presence could be tolerated, or if they could do it "on the cheap."

There are very few "gentlemen of the Press," I imagine, who, when they join a Lodge, do so actuated by "mercenary or other unworthy motives," and when they publish the proceedings of their own Lodges they do so in a spirit of loyalty and brotherly love, and would scorn to say anything in their columns which would detract from the interest and welfare of the body into which they have been admitted. Public opinion and "freedom of discussion," which you recently spoke about, are the best means of keeping alive the present enviable prestige of Freemasonry, whereas coercion as to silence would only revive the calumnies which have for so many years rested upon one of the best and most lofty and beneficent of human institutions.

I remain, Dear Sir and Brother,
Yours fraternally,
A COUNTRY EDITOR.

[We fully endorse the opinion expressed by our correspondent, and may have occasion to refer more fully to the matter at some future time. Meanwhile, we shall be pleased to receive the views of others who may have given the subject serious consideration.—ED. F.C.]

INSTALLATION MEETINGS, &c.

UNITED MARINERS' LODGE, No. 30.

THE installation meeting of this old and prosperous Lodge was held on Tuesday evening, at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham Street, where there was a fairly good attendance, under the presidency of the retiring W.M. Bro. Thomas E. Davey. Amongst those present were Bros. J. Shipley I.P.M., L. Steingraber S.W., J. N. Crossley P.M. acting as J.W., J. E. Harling P.M. Treasurer and W.M. elect, J. Driscoll P.M. Sec., A. Couldrey S.D., W. Boyce D.C., S. Lampen I.G., H. Meyer Steward, P.M.'s W. Ansell, Hiram Cosedge, C. Davey, and J. Clark, L. G. Reinhardt Tyler. Amongst the visitors were Bros. J. Terry P.G.J.W. Herts (Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benovolent Institution), W. Manger P.M. 1314, R. Ollendorff P.M. 1017, J. Thompson 1326, E. A. Francis 1658, C. T. Shuttleworth P.M. 190, S. Richardson J.W. 183, J. Hartnoll 1538, J. D. Tarr 1293, C. H. Gray 1703, &c. Lodge was opened, and after reading the minutes the auditors presented their report, which showed the Lodge to be in a very satisfactory condition with regard to its finances. Bro. Murrell was subsequently raised to the third degree, after which Bro. J. E. Harling P.M. was presented for the benefit of installation. As we recently explained, Bro. Harling was requested to accept the chair, for the second time in this Lodge, in consequence of the death of Bro. J. Linscott. But, with a view to maintain the "rotation" of offices, and enable all to pass through the minor chairs, it was agreed that it would be advisable that a P.M. should be asked to officiate for a year, and Bro. Harling readily acceded to the wish of the Lodge. A Board of Installed Masters having been duly constituted, Bro. Harling was installed into the chair of K.S. by his immediate predecessor, the ceremony being performed in masterly style. On the re-admission of the brethren, the newly-installed W.M. was greeted with the customary honours, and he invested his officers for the year, as follows:—Bros. T. E. Davey I.P.M., Louis C. Steingraber S.W., A. Couldrey J.W., W. Ansell P.M. Treas., J. Driscoll P.M. Sec., C. Fassheber S.D., S. Lampen J.D., W. Boyce J.G., H. Meyer D.C., C. Davey P.M. W.S., C. V. Howard A.W.S., and L. G. Reinhardt Tyler. At the conclusion of the business the brethren partook of a sumptuous banquet, provided in Bros. Ritter and Clifford's well-known style, and the customary Loyal and Masonic toasts followed. In reference to the toast of our Most Worshipful Grand Master, Bro. Harling said he was one of those who thought that the great increase in the number of Lodges since the accession of his Royal Highness was not an unmixed benefit to the Craft, but that was no fault of his. The Prince of Wales had done his utmost to promote the good of Freemasonry, and when they found that he intended in due time to bring his eldest son into the Order it was the best proof they possibly could have of his admiration of, and affection for, the Craft. In these days, when Freemasonry was attacked by the outside world as being a disloyal body, it was a convincing sign to the contrary when the Prince of Wales and future King has expressed his intention of allowing his son to join the Institution. In giving the toast of the Grand Officers' the Worshipful Master spoke of them as a body of men who performed their important duties with great ability, smoothing over many difficulties, and conducting the affairs of Grand Lodge to the satisfaction of all interested in the Craft. Bro. T. E. Davey I.P.M. then proposed the health of the newly-installed Worshipful Master, a toast which he knew would be received with the utmost pleasure by all present. He need scarcely remind them that this was the second time Bro. Harling had occupied the chair of the United Mariners' Lodge, and it was agreed on the first occasion that he acquitted himself with the greatest ability. From what they knew of him they might expect that he would equally distinguish himself on this occasion. He need scarcely remind the brethren that he (the speaker) was going up as a Steward for the Benevolent Institution, and he should be glad of the utmost support they could give him. The W.M. in responding said, although it was a pleasant task to speak in praise of others, he found it difficult to speak of himself while acknowledging the cordial manner in which the toast had been received. Especially was this so on the present occasion. Twenty-one years ago he was initiated in this Lodge, and he then made a vow that he would become Master of it. He worked very hard in the various offices, and made himself proficent for the position to which in due time the brethren elected him; but he never expected he should be a Dick Whittington. Circumstances, however, had arisen that the honour was a second time conferred upon him, and it afforded him unusual pleasure. On the first occasion he thought it a great honour to be elected Master of so old a Lodge as the United Mariners; but this was an additional honour, because there had been a great deal of unselfishness shown in placing him in that position. The Lodge had for some years made him their Treasurer, which, he thought, was all he could expect at their hands, and with that he should have been satisfied. There were many worthy P.M.'s who were more entitled than himself to have been elected to the chair, but in their unselfishness they asked him to accept the position, and he thoroughly appreciated their kindness, which he should remember to the end of his days. He trusted that during his year of office he might have a good deal of work to do, and that many worthy brethren might be added to their Lodge; and in doing that work he hoped to be able to sustain the prestige which the United Mariners' Lodge had enjoyed for many years. There was never pleasure without pain, even in being Master of a Lodge. When he filled that position some years ago he initiated fifteen members, but when he looked around him to-night he found there was only one (Bro. Cosedge P.M.) left; and he had stood aside in his unselfishness to help to place him (the speaker) in the position he once more held in the Lodge. If there were any suggestions made by brethren for the advantage of the Lodge they should have his earnest attention; thus he hoped they would work harmoniously and successfully together during the coming year. In proposing the health of the I.P.M. and Installing Master he said it afforded him much pleasure to know that it had become a custom in this Lodge for each retiring W.M. to instal his successor, and he hoped that would be the case for many years to come. When he was previously Master of this Lodge he feared he was rather a lazy Mason, and did not do this, and it had been a source of regret to him ever since. This, however, should not be said of him again, now that he had another opportunity. He then spoke of the excellent manner in which the duties of the chair had been discharged during the past year by Bro. Davey, and said he had that night crowned his former successes by installing him into the chair in excellent manner. This afforded him much pleasure, for he had seen Bro. Davey's father initiated in the Lodge, and then installed; he had seen the son initiated and afterwards installed; and, now, he had himself been installed by the son. Having seen two generations in various positions in the Lodge, it afforded him additional pleasure to bear testimony to the manner in which the duties had been fulfilled by his predecessor. He then, in the name of the Lodge, presented a handsome P.M.'s jewel to Bro. Davey, and, in expressing the gratification it afforded him to do so, hoped that the recipient might live for many years to wear it, and to enjoy the esteem and affection of those by whom he was surrounded. As he had seen both father and son initiated and installed in Freemasonry, might he live to see the son's son likewise initiated and installed in the chair of K.S. The I.P.M., in reply, said he did not know how sufficiently to thank them for the way in which the toast had been received. Success had been pouring in from all sides more than he had anticipated. On going round with his list for the Benevolent Institution he collected £6 5s 6d, bringing his total to £40 17s 6d, and since then one of their visitors (Bro. Terry) had passed a note to his father, "Kindly place on your son's list, in my name, the sum of ten guineas, as a personal compliment." (This was the signal for hearty applause.) Then he had had a jewel presented to him, and, although he could not say that was unexpected, nevertheless he should esteem it with every appreciation and pride, and trusted he should live to wear it amongst them for many years. The Worshipful Master then, in graceful terms, extended a welcome to the Visitors, for whom Bros. Shuttleworth, Ollendorff, and Manger replied; and, in responding for the Past Masters, Bro. Driscoll said he did so with pleasure, mingled with a small degree of sorrow, inasmuch as, though not very aged, he was the oldest member and the oldest P.M. of the Lodge. This told him that his turn must come, and some one else would occupy his place as Senior Past Master. As long as he was amongst them he should be proud of the distinction and of the kind consideration which was paid him by every member of the Lodge. The Past Masters recognised the kindness of the brethren, so much that they gave every question due weight before it was put for the decision of the Lodge, and if they gave a proper reason for the disposal of funds or other matters, he knew the Past Masters would be always supported by the brethren generally. He hoped to live long enough to see all the brethren present pass the chair, and said it afforded him great pleasure to see Bro. Harling there once more, because, fifteen years ago, he had the honour of installing Bro. Harling as his successor. But now "Othello's occupation 's gone," for the brethen would take care to be so well up in their work that he should never have the chance again. The W.M. then proposed the Masonic Charities, and associated with the toast the name of the worthy Secretary of the Benevolent Institution. Bro. Terry, who was cordially received, replied in a long, strong, and eloquent speech, in the course of which he said, with respect to the present position of the Institution, they were in a very peculiar line. The Girls' School was, and he hoped ever would be, pre-eminently successful. Its funds were in such a condition that in April next the Committee would be able to elect 22 girls out of a list of 30. The Boys' School was in a better position than for many years, and they would be able to elect 25 members out of 45 candidates. But the very reverse of the picture took place when they mentioned the Old People. They had 127 candidates—46 men and 81 widows. At the present moment there were twelve vacancies on the male fund, but not one for the widows. Therefore, if the Festival next month was not a greater success than ever before, they would not be able to elect one widow out of the 81 who were seeking admission. He concluded by making an earnest appeal on behalf of the funds of the Institution. The health of the Officers was responded to by Bros. Steingraber S.W., A. Couldrey J.W., and S. Lampen J.D., the latter of whom tendered his heartiest thanks to the Lodge for having given him another step towards the chair. He, as an Officer, would do his best, and try to get the work done as it should be done. In reference to their Lodge of Instruction, when they opened it about twelve months ago there were only ten members, whereas now the Lodge numbered over 70 members, and they had an average attendance of from 18 to 20 every Wednesday evening. It was now a well-established Lodge of Instruction, and much appreciated by brethren resident in the Peckham district. On Wednesday next the Fifteen Sections would be worked, and he should be glad to see the W.M. of the mother Lodge and as many of the brethren as could make it convenient to attend. The proceedings were of a very enjoyable character throughout, and were enlivened by some excellent singing.

SINCERITY LODGE, No. 174.

THE installation meeting of this select and eminently prosperous Lodge was held on Wednesday evening, at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, when there was a gratifying attendance of brethren and visitors. Lodge was opened at four o'clock, under the presidency of the retiring Worshipful Master, Bro. Arthur Haig-Brown, who was supported by Bros. Thos. F. Harvey S.W. and W.M. elect, F. J. Dellow J.W., Charles Lacey P.M. Treasurer, John Newton P.M. Sec., and other officers and brethren. After the confirmation of the minutes of the previous meeting, the auditors' report was submitted, and we may be allowed to congratulate the Lodge upon its steady and solid progress. We have long been aware that the Sincerity Lodge is not prone to nurse its resources, but has ever given with a liberal and unstinted hand to the cause of charity in any form which has presented itself. By the balance-sheet we observe that during the past year the Lodge has made a grant of ten guineas to the funds of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, in addition to placing £28 12s 6d to the credit of the Lodge Benevolent Fund, which now amounts to a total of £105 10s 7d. Of this amount £50 11s 3d is invested in 3 per cent. Consols, and there is remaining in the Treasurer's hands £44 14s 4d. The report was received with unanimous expressions of satisfaction. Bro. T. F. Harvey was then presented as W.M. elect, and a Board of Installed Masters having been formed, the ceremony of installation was most ably performed by the retiring W.M. in a manner which elicited frequent expressions of approbation. Bro. Charles Lacey P.M. acted most efficiently as Director of Ceremonies. After the newly-installed Worshipful Master had received the customary congratulations from the re-admitted brethren, he proceeded to invest his Officers for the year, the collars being thus bestowed:—Bros. Arthur Haig-Brown I.P.M., F. J. Dellow S.W., H. J. Cant J.W., Charles Lacey P.M. Treas., John Newton P.M. Sec., Charles Blain S.D., W. Wiles J.D., G. T. H. Seddon P.M. Organist, J. A. Keable D.C., J. Miller W.S., and J. Very Tyler. During the evening it was announced that the W.M., Bro. Harvey, had undertaken to serve as a Steward at the Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution next month, and the Lodge voted him ten guineas on his list, which gift was supplemented in a manner characteristic of the Sincerity Lodge. Bro. Charles Lacey P.M. Treas. referred to the fact that a most important event had recently taken place in the happy family circle of our Most Worshipful Grand Master, namely, the coming of age of his eldest son, Prince Albert Victor. A feeling of joy and delight had found its way to the heart of every member of the Craft throughout the British Empire. His Royal Highness had at all times identified himself with all that was conducive to the general welfare of mankind, and as it had already been announced that the young Prince contemplated joining the Craft, he (the speaker) ventured to say he would meet a most cordial reception. He therefore moved that a humble address of congratulation from the members of the Sincerity Lodge, No. 174, be transmitted to their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales, in commemoration of the happy and important event—the coming of age of Prince Albert Victor. The resolution having been seconded by Bro. John Newton P.M. Sec., and carried amidst acclamation, it was resolved that the same should be forwarded to Colonel Shadwell Clerke, Grand Secretary, for transmission to the proper quarter. At the conclusion of some other business the brethren partook of a sumptuous banquet, following which the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, the health of the newly-installed Worshipful Master being received with special enthusiasm. Regret was expressed at the absence of Bro. Jones P.M. and Bro. Miller W.S., both of whom had been prevented by indisposition from attending the installation meeting. The Health of the Visitors was most heartily received, the toast being responded to in a few happily-chosen sentences by Bro. Rogers, of Jersey, Bro. T. J. Barnes, and Bro. Huggett P.M. 1625. Bro. James Terry in responding to the toast of the Masonic Institutions, thanked the Lodge for its sustained efforts on behalf of the necessitous brethren and their widows and orphans. The Sincerity Lodge made it a rule that it should be represented at the Benevolent Institution Festival every year, and at one or other of the Festivals for the Scholastic Institutions in addition. This was an example that might be copied with advantage by many other Lodges. The proceedings, which were of the most harmonious and enjoyable description, were enlivened by some excellent selections of vocal and instrumental music, under the direction of Bro. G. T. H. Seddon P.M., assisted by Bro. G. Weige P.M. and other brethren.

A feature of the evening must not be passed over without mention. On the motion of Bro. John Newton, seconded by Bro. John Bulmer, the Senior Past Master of this Lodge, it was unanimously agreed to send a letter of condolence to the family of the late Brother Norris, for many years the Warden of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, at Croydon. As is well known to most of our readers, Bro. Norris was initiated in the Sincerity Lodge, No. 174, in the year 1812. At the present time his son and grandson are connected with the Sincerity Lodge as members, and both speakers to the motion made happy allusion to the sterling qualities of their deceased brother, and expressed a fervent hope that his son and grandson would live equally respected among their fellows.

LODGE OF TRANQUILLITY, No. 185.

EVEN visitors who are the least observant cannot ail to have occasionally noticed—upon entering a Freemasons' Lodge—where order, harmony, and loyalty should prevail, a certain laxity in the proceedings, in respect to scrupulous attention to the laws as provided in the Constitution of the Order; a negligent disregard of the service, and sometimes a transparent cliquoism, which is unlikely to conduce to foster those sentiments of fraternal affection which should form the distinguishing characteristic of every Masonic assembly. Happily, to the vast mass of Lodges such strictures do not apply, and among those deserving praise for strict attention to duty in all its details must be classed the above. The extraordinary prosperity of this Lodge is further sustained by the intelligent zeal and conspicuous ability of the Officers, from the Worshipful Master, Bro. Sol. Barnett, who presided at a meeting held on the 19th inst., at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, EC., to the brother holding the lowest office, and the eagerness with which the Past Masters embrace every opportunity to further the interest and uphold the dignity of the Lodge. The business on the present occasion consisted in admitting three gentlemen into the Order, and electing the W.M. and Treasurer for the ensuing year. The suffrages of the brethren were unanimously in favour of Bro. S.M. Boas, the S.W., to be the W.M. for the coming term. The result was heartily applauded, and, in reply to the congratulatory remarks of the W.M. presiding, the W.M. elect expressed his thanks to the Brethren for the distinguished honour thus conferred upon him, and thought that the confidence placed in him by this election was mainly owing to his endeavour to bring to bear upon his work such diligence and ability as he possessed, and to his constant attendance to his duties. He trusted that his future conduct might always be such as to induce a continuance of the favourable opinion of the brethren towards him. Bro. W. D. Bayley P.M. was re-elected Treasurer, with hearty wishes from all that he might be spared to be re-elected for many years to come. Bro. Potter P.M. was re-elected Tyler. The W.M., who is a most genial chairman at the banquet-table, ever having the comfort of the brethren in view, was obligingly brief in his speeches, so that those to whom the exhalation of fumes is a solace might indulge in their favourite taste, and those who vote after-dinner orations a bore might be satisfied. Bros. Roberts P.M. 392, Harris 177, Williams 728, and Lee 821 were Visitors. They, in response to their health being drank, remarked upon the excellent working of the Lodge, and the deliberate and impressive manner in which the ceremonies were conducted by the W.M. Bros. Bayley, Ross, Tipper, and Thompson, in conjunction with Bro. Barnett, Organist, rendered valuable service by their vocal and instrumental efforts. The Past Masters present were J. R. Staley I.P.M., W. D. Bailey, Harfeld, Bloomfield, Gluckstein, N. Moss, F. Croker, J. D. Barnett, T. W. C. Bush and E. Gottheil.

Beale, had provided an excellent banquet.

The installation ceremony was performed by the I.P.M. (Bro. Irons) in a very effective and efficient manner. After being duly installed the W.M. proceeded to invest his Officers, as follow:—Bros. Irons I.P.M., Thornton S.W., Smith J.W., Rev. Dr. Ring Chaplain, Downing Treasurer, Stretton Secretary, Gibbons S.D., Pearson J.D., Crisp D. of C., Batson I.G., Pawsey and Torle Stewards, Misselbrook Organist, Larkins Assistant Organist, Cauvin Tyler. Gardener 1834, Wallingford, Mitchell, Powell and Branwin. The banquet, which was provided by Bro. Bond, was all that could be desired, and was followed by the usual Masonic toasts, &c., interspersed with songs. Bro. Sylvester accompanied on the piano, and sang in his usual masterly style. A very pleasant and enjoyable evening was brought to a close about 11 p.m., a steam launch being provided for brethren residing at Portsmouth.

PANMURE LODGE, No. 720.

THE first regular meeting for the present year was held at the Balham Hotel, Balham, on Monday, the 19th instant. Bro. W. Laird W.M. opening his Lodge assisted by Bros. G. Treves S.W., J. D. Arnold J.W., C. Everist I.P.M., James Stevens P.M., C. Pulman P.M., T. Poore P.M. and Secretary, G. Allen P.M., G. Lilley P.M., A. Leonard S.D., F. Purkiss J.D., Dr. Lewis Jones I.G., A. C. Wood D.C., J. Ash W.S., C. Thomas Tyler; Sabin, Debenham, Dibbens, and other members; and visitor Bro. Frederick Walters P.M. P.G.D. Middlesex. The Lodge having been opened and minutes read and confirmed, a ballot was taken for two joining members, which was declared unanimous in their favour. Lodge was opened in F.C. and Bro. Sabin proved proficiency, and was duly raised in M.M. to the third degree, the W.M. performing the ceremony, for the first time, in a very careful and effective manner. Lodge having been closed down, Bro Stevens P.M. brought the case of a distressed brother a P.M. of the Mariners Lodge, No. 219, before the Lodge and the brethren voted him two guineas,. A letter was read from Bro. W. MacFarland of the Theatre Royal, Dundee, stating his desire to secure the erection of a memorial stone in the New Cemetery, Aberdeen, to mark the resting place of Bro. N. W. Hodges, a P.M. of this Lodge, and the sum of two guineas was voted towards that purpose, with an intimation that, if needed, further assistance should be given to Bro. MacFarland, whose kindly interest in the matter was greatly appreciated. Notifications from several brethren interested in candidates for the respective Masonic Charitable Institutions were freely responded to, the keynote of the entire proceedings of the evening being, both by word and deed, Charity. As a result the supper partaken of after the closing of the Lodge was more than usually enjoyed by the brethren, who still further exemplified that "greatest of all" the Masonic virtues by practical remembrance of the "poor and distressed." The usual toasts were given, Brother Walters replying to that given in his honour in terms of great gratification with his visit. Songs and recitations were interspersed throughout the remainder of a very pleasant evening, which terminated at a reasonable hour.

Treasurer, Kew P.M. Secretary, Westman S.D., A. J. Hearne I.G.; P.M.'s Benet, Lovett, Dettmar I.P.M. Visitors—Bros. Hatfield 1585, Grunberg 235, Gilbey 1194, Giddings 1446, Mulvey 788, Marx 957, Weston 1602, Marsh 1326, Von Joel 957, Scurrah 2048, Baker, Kauffmann 1732, Nadenitz 1744, Dickey 1744, May, Durant 441, Pratt 957, Smeed 1585, Court 1559, Mason, Montgomery 1475, Child 175, Howard 1708, Kay 63, Woodruff 957, Harrington 160, Woolsey 228, Turner 534, Reid 349, Age 957, Wolsey 228, Lash 1475, Smith 1744, Draper, Berner 130, 1305, Boydon 212, Bisney 1305, H. M. Levy P.M. 188. After all preliminaries had been observed in regard to opening Lodge and confirming the minutes of last meeting, a Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. Hughes S.W. and W.M. elect was presented and duly installed into the chair by the retiring W.M. Bro. Dickeson, who displayed some perfect working, and gave an impressive rendering of the ceremony. He was warmly congratulated on its conclusion. There were nineteen W.M.'s and P.M.'s present. The lay members having been admitted, the W.M. appointed and invested his Officers:—Bros. Dickeson I.P.M., Ellwood S.W., Westman J.W., Hopekirk Treasurer, Kew Secretary, Hughes S.D., Hearne J.D., Brinckman D.C., Kew A.D.C., Baker Musical Director, Taylor A.M.D., Hughes W.S., Koester P.M. Tyler. Bro. Kew efficiently acted as D.C. Applause followed the investment. The newly-installed W.M. at once showed his proficiency by initiating Messrs. Bromley, Thomas, and Smith into the Order. The Officers were equally perfect. The W.M. presented an elegant P.M.'s jewel to the retiring Master, for his valuable and efficient services to the Lodge during his year of office. Brother Dickeson had set a good example to those who might succeed him; the brethren were proud of his working, and gratified at knowing the respect he is held in. Bro. Dickeson in brief but appropriate terms returned thanks; he fully appreciated the valuable gift; his services were always at the command of the brethren. Hearty good wishes were tendered by the Visitors, and Lodge was closed until the third Thursday in February. The brethren, who mustered 80 in number, sat down to a sumptuous banquet and dessert, provided by Brother F. Clemow. The W.M., who ably presided, in appropriate terms proposed the toasts. In speaking of the Most Worshipful the Grand Master, he said we all love and respect the Prince of Wales, and hope at a future date to see his eldest son, who, has just attained his majority, join our Order. The R.W. the Earl of Carnarvon, the Earl of Lathom, and the rest of the Grand Officers of the Grand Lodge of England was the next toast given. It met with a most enthusiastic reception. Bro. Dickeson I.P.M. then rose; it was a pleasure, in his position of I.P.M., that it devolved on him to give the next toast, the health of the Master. He was proud to be the I.P.M. to propose it. Bro. Hughes had shown them how he could work, by his rendering of the ceremony so soon as he was installed. He had initiated three gentlemen, while in the brief time he had already presided he had shown he was capable of fulfilling his duties thoroughly. He (the I.P.M.) felt it an honour and pleasure to have installed one so worthy to fill the chair. The W.M. thanked Bro. Dickeson; he could scarcely find words for what his heart dictated. However, he hoped he might be able to follow in the footsteps of his predecessor. He was gratified to have had the pleasure of initiating his three friends. When he left the chair, at the expiration of his year of office, he hoped to do so with the approbation of the brethren, and with the same amount of credit as had been accorded his predecessor. The toast of the Initiates came next. The W.M. well knew and respected them; he was sure they would be good and true Masons, and in due course become a credit to the Order. Bros. Smith, Bromley, and Thomas, in brief but appropriate terms responded. The toast of the Masonic Charities was next given. The W.M. would serve as Steward at the next anniversary Festival for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. This was one of those Charities we are all bound to support. Brother Terry, the worthy Secretary, was present at his initiation; he was with them also that night, at his installation; he was pleased to see him and to associate his name with the toast. Brother James Terry in a very eloquent speech responded; he advocated the cause of the other Institutions, and detailed the number of candidates to be admitted. He hoped they would support the Benevolent Institution, and help the poor and distressed in their declining years. Bro. Terry paid a just tribute of respect to the late Bro. Hughes P.M., the father of the W.M.; every one who knew him respected him. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Visitors, and coupled with it the names of Bros. H. M. Levy, W. Smeed, May, and Marx, who severally responded. In speaking of the Installing Master, Bro. Dickeson, the W.M. said he could hardly find words to express his appreciation of his working. Throughout his year of office he had done well. He had also ably installed his successor; that he, personally, never could forget. In reply, Bro. Dickeson said if he had performed the duties of the chair satisfactorily he was amply repaid. He felt it was his duty to instal his successor, and was proud he had met with approbation. He took this opportunity to thank the Officers for their support and assistance; they had always attended at the time named, and had thus rendered the ceremonies in a complete form. His thanks were due to the Past Masters; without their co-operation he could not have carried out his duties. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Past Masters, the pillars of the Lodge. Bros. Dickeson, Hopekirk, Dettmar, Benet, Lovett, all indeed, were a credit and an honour to the Lodge. Bros. Kew, Benet, and Dettmar responded. The W.M. proposed the toast of the Wardens and Officers of the Lodge, and said he felt a pride in asking the members to drink their health. He was sure, by their excellent working, they would eventually reach the Chair. The S.W. and J.W. made suitable replies. The Tyler's toast was then given. Bros. Kew P.M. and F. Hughes W.S. looked well after the comfort of the brethren visitors. A musical entertainment was provided, under the direction of Bros. Baker and Cain, while Bro. F. C. Smith proved an able accompanyist. We must not omit to refer to the charming singing of Miss Helen Burnelle; also to an excellent recitation from Miss Annie Burnelle, and to the vocal ability displayed by Messrs C. Richardson, H. Crispin, and Bro. W. Baker.

LODGE OF UNION, No. 414.

THE anniversary festival of this, the senior Lodge of Reading, took place at the Masonic Hall on Tuesday, 20th January. It was one of the most numerous and brilliant assemblages that has ever been witnessed in this model Lodge-room. Among the members present were the High Sheriff of Berks Bro. Charles Stephens P.M., Rev. Canon Garry Chaplain, the Installing Master, W. W. Moxhay P.M., R. Bradley P.M., and F. J. Ferguson P.M., who was chiefly instrumental in the improvement of the Lodge premises during his year of office, and others. Among the visitors were the W.M. of 1101 Bro. J. H. Hawkes, the I.P.M. of 1101 Bro. W. W. Ridley, whose genial hospitality during his Mastership will not soon be forgotten, the venerable late Secretary of 1101 Bro. W. P. Ivey P.M., W. Ferguson P.M. 1101, R. C. Hurley P.M., R. Dowsett P.M. 1101, who has kindly undertaken the office of Almoner for the three Reading Lodges, W. G. Flanagan P.M. 1101, and now W.M. of the Kendrick Lodge, and a number from the various Lodges of the province and neighbourhood. The principal business was the Installation of Bro. M. J. Withers as Master of the Lodge. The ceremony was performed by the I.P.M. Bro. S. Wheeler jun., who conducted it with admirably correct precision, this being the first time that a W.M. here has installed his successor. We congratulate Bro. Wheeler on being the pioneer of a system which was always advocated by the late Bro. J. Gibson P.M., who said he would never give a P.M.'s jewel to a Master who could not instal his successor. Before vacating the Chair Bro. Wheeler asked permission to present the Lodge with three pedestals, for the Master, and Senior and Junior Wardens, for which a cordial vote of thanks was carried with acclamation. They were made of British oak, with an appropriate emblem on each, and were much admired. After the business the brethren retired for refreshment to the Great Western Hotel, where a sumptuous banquet was provided by Bro. Flanagan.

CAMDEN LODGE, No. 704.

A REGULAR meeting of this excellent Lodge was held on the 20th instant, at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street. Bros. Trinder W.M., Bindon S.W., Hehl J.W., Goodchild Treasurer, Osborn S.D. Sayers J.D., Eyers Steward, Coffin as I.G., Schuberth Organist, P.M.'s Bros. Frost, Pocklington, Morrill, and Soper. Visitors—Bros. Lodge was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. Bro. Martin was then passed to the second degree. Ballots were taken for the admission of Messrs. Devine, Robinson, M. H. Whiting, and (by fiat) T. Whiting. The ceremonies were perfectly and impressively delivered. The resignations of two brethren were accepted, with regret. A distressed brother was relieved from the funds of the Lodge. Hearty good wishes were given, and the Lodge was closed until the third Tuesday in March. The brethren sat down to a very excellent dinner, provided by Bro. Clemow. The W.M. ably presided, and proposed the usual toasts. Bro. Frost, in proposing the health of the W.M., said Bro. Trinder was devoted to the interests of the Lodge; he hoped he would leave the chair with the same amount of esteem he is now held in, and that the Lodge might be in a prosperous condition. The W.M. said he felt great pleasure in listening to the remarks of Bro. Frost; his best energies should be devoted to promoting the happiness of the brethren. The toast of the Initiates was next on the list. The W.M. was very pleased to have had the privilege of initiating three brethren into the Order. From the manner they had listened to the ceremony, he augured happy results. The Initiates in brief but appropriate terms responded. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Visitors, and Bros. Coplestone, Bigg, H. M. Levy, Aveling, Underwood, and Count Nydpuck (Amis Philantbropie) severally responded. The Past Masters were next complimented; the W.M. referred to their excellent qualifications; these had sustained the Lodge in its present high position. Bro. Frost, one of the Founders of the Lodge, remarked how pleased he was to see the Lodge in so prosperous a condition; he trusted it would continue so. Bro. Frost was followed by Bros. Morrell, Pocklington, and Goodchild. The W.M., in proposing the toast of the Wardens and Officers, said no better Wardens could be found; both knew their duties thoroughly.

He hoped to see them fill the chair; the same remarks applied to the Officers generally. Bro. Bindon, in response, regretted the absence of the J.W., Bro. Hehl, who, through pressure of business, was unable to stay to respond. Bros. Osborn and Sayers also addressed a few words to the brethren. The Tyler's toast in due course was given, and the proceedings came to a close. A most enjoyable musical entertainment was provided. Bro. Schuberth artistically played on the pianoforte, while Bros. Bindon, Osborn, Robinson, Donelly, Coffin, and the W.M. contributed to the harmony.

W. A. Dowsing No. 2012, and W. Belsham 733 were elected joining members. Bro. A. Bryan was raised to the third degree. Bro. G. H. Foan was passed. These ceremonies were ably and excellently rendered by the W.M. A Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. John Jacobs S.W. and W.M. elect was duly placed in the chair by the I.P.M., in a most creditable manner for so young a Mason. He received the congratulations of the brethren and Visitors at the conclusion of the ceremony; there were 20 W.M.'s and P M.'s present. The newly Installed Master on the re-admission of the brethren received the customary salutes, and then appointed and invested his Officers:—G. Coleman I.P.M., Kedgley S.W., Dickson J.W., E. Jacobs P.M. Treas., Bourne P.M. Secretary, Bower Solomon S.D., Bassett J.D., Reynolds I.G., Rev. P. M. Holden P.P.G.C. Middlesex Chaplain, S. Jacobs P.M. W.S., Stacy Organist, Thorpe D.C., Howard Steward, Potter P.M. Tyler. The Report of the Audit Committee was read and adopted; it showed the Lodge was in a flourishing condition. The W.M. in eloquent terms presented the retiring W.M., Bro. G. Coleman, with a Past Master's jewel, with suitable inscription, which had been unanimously voted him for the able and efficient manner he had in every respect carried out the duties of his office, to the entire satisfaction of the brethren. Bro. G. Coleman in suitable terms returned thanks. Four candidates were proposed for initiation, and after hearty good wishes from the Visitors the Lodge was closed. The brethren now sat down to a sumptuous and récherché banquet and dessert, provided by Bros. Spiers and Pond (Limited), and personally superintended by Bro. Bettini. The tables were artistically decorated, and buttonholes were provided for each guest—there were 88 present. Grace having been said by the Rev. P. M. Holden, the W.M. proposed in appropriate terms the Loyal and Masonic toasts. In speaking to the toast of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M., allusion was made to Prince Albert Victor attaining his majority. The W.M. was sure the brethren wish him every happiness through life, and that he might live to be a source of pleasure to his honoured parents and a credit to the nation. Bro. G. Coleman P.M. proposed the health of the W.M. Bro. Jacobs had fulfilled his duties hitherto with credit to himself and satisfaction to the Lodge. The brethren had seen his working in the minor offices: He (Bro. Coleman) was sure they would have reason to be proud of him. The W.M. in reply thanked Bro. Coleman for his kind remarks, and the brethren for their reception of the toast. So far as the interests of the Lodge were concerned, his services were always at command. He would strive to conduce in every way to its prosperity. In introducing the next toast, the health of the I.P.M., the W. M. said Bro. Coleman was an example to the Lodge. There were few like him, either in this or any other Lodge. He might say he was perfect in his working, punctual in his duties, and well calculated to rank as a Past Master. All were proud of him. He asked them to give a good reception to the toast. Bro. Coleman eloquently responded; he was proud to wear the jewel presented to him; it was with zest he started on a new era; while he had health and strength his energies would be at the service of the Lodge. The W.M., in proposing the toast of the Visitors, said there were forty-six present. The Lodge was proud to receive them. He would call on Bros. Smeed P.P.G.W. Middlesex and Perryman P.M. No. 3 to respond. After these brethren had made suitable reply, the W.M. complimented the P.M.'s; they were our guiding stars; any assistance the Lodge might require of them they were always ready and willing to give it. Bro. E. Jacobs in reply said the Past Masters were always most willing to give the Lodge all the assistance in their power; while in any case of doubt they were glad to advise. He was proud to say that, with one exception, the Past Masters had installed their successors and he hoped the future Masters would do the same. The W.M., in proposing the health of the Treasurer and Secretary, said all knew the interest they took in the Lodge, and how they did their duty; he asked the brethren to drink the toast most heartily. Bros. Jacobs and Bourne responded; they would do all in their power to forward the interests of the Lodge. Bros. Kedgley S.W. and Dickson J.W. responded for the Officers; each assured the Worshipful Master they would do all they could to assist him in the working of the Lodge, and trusted that at the end of his year of office he would report well of them. The Tyler's toast brought to a conclusion a most enjoyable evening. The absence of Brother W. H. Gulliford P.M. was frequently regretted. Bros. S. Jacobs and Howard looked well after the comforts of the Visitors. The harmony of the evening was greatly enhanced by song and recitations, by the following brethren:—Bros. Rev. Holden, C. Ralph Rinaut, E. Jacobs, W. A. Dowling, Rorts, C. Solomons. Bro. S. Mordecai gave some clever display tricks with cards.

THE FIFTEEN SECTIONS

WILL BE WORKED

At the United Mariners Lodge of Instruction, at the Lugard Tavern, Peckham, on Wednesday evening, the 4th February. Bro. Walter Martin, S.W. of the Southwark Lodge, the able Preceptor of this Lodge of Instruction, will preside, and a very enjoyable evening is anticipated. Brethren are cordially invited to attend, and they may be assured of a welcome.

The monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Hall, under the presidency of Bro. Joshua Nunn; Bros. James Brett and C. A. Cottebrune occupying their chairs respectively. The brethren confirmed grants to the extent of £275 recommended at the December meeting. There were 47 cases on the list, including those postponed from the former meeting, the President stated, for the information of brethren, that last year the Board had had to draw upon the invested capital to the amount of £3000, having exceeded their income to that amount. The consideration of the new list was then proceeded with. Out of 47 petitioners, 32 were widows. Three cases were dismissed, and eight were deferred. The remainder were relieved, with a total sum of £750. This was made up with one grant of £80, two of £50 each, one of £40, ten of £30 each, four of £20 each, one of £15, ten of £10 each, and seven of £5 each. There was a full attendance, and the sitting was an exceptionally long one.

His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M. will, it is anticipated, be present at the annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Norfolk, to be held on Monday, at King's Lynn, under the presidency of Lord Suffield, Prov. Grand Master. Provincial Grand Lodge will be opened in the Town Hall at 4 p.m., and a banquet will follow at 6.30. The Great Eastern Railway Company announce that return tickets will be issued to Freemasons attending this meeting, at a fare and a quarter for the double journey, and that a special return train will leave Lynn at 11 p.m. for Yarmouth, via Dereham and Norwich, calling at intermediate stations as required to set down passengers. We anticipate a very large gathering, as the presence of the Grand Master will, no doubt, attract brethren from all parts.

We appear to have been led into an error in describing the present of Sir Bruce Seton to Miss Desanges, on the occasion of her recent marriage with General Brownrigg, as being "for Grand Lodge." The presentation was entirely of a private character, and not on behalf of Grand Lodge, of which, by the way, Sir Seton Bruce is not a member.

We must again ask for indulgence from our subscribers; several important reports, through want of space, are held over.

WESTBOURNE CHAPTER, No. 733.

THE election meeting of this Lodge was held on the 15th inst., when the following Officers were present:—Comp. John Welford Z., Morrill H., Cottebrune J., T. Waller P.Z. S.E., C. Davison P.S., Humfrees First A.S., E. Collins P.Z., Long P.Z., Ascott P.Z., C. Thomas Janitor. Bros. Segger and Belsham, of the Westbourne Lodge, were exalted. Comp. Morrill was elected M.E.Z., Cottebrune H., and Collins P.Z. J.

In noticing "Marvels in Photography," which have recently been produced by a member of The Great City Lodge, we inadvertently gave that Brother's name as Snell, whereas it should have been recorded as Small, he being a member of the well-known firm of Boning and Small, photographers, of 22 Baker-street, London, W.

London, January 1885.

UNION OF MALTA LODGE, No. 407 E.C.

THE regular meeting of the above named Lodge was held at 27 Strada Stretta, Valletta, Malta, on Wednesday, the 7th inst., Bro. J. C. Stanley I.P.M. presiding, for the transaction of general business, and for the especial purpose of installing the W.M. elect, Bro. John F. James S.W., when a large gathering of the brethren were present. Among them were Bros. W. Kingston D.G.M., W. Watson D.D.G.M., Read P.M., Dahn P.M., Glenday P.M., Yeoman P.M., Montgomery W.M. 1926, Cooper P.M., Webster Paulson W.M. 1923, and J. W. Starkey D.G. Secretary. The Lodge was opened in due form and the minutes of the last regular, and of a Permanent Committee meeting, held on the 3rd instant, containing a satisfactory account of the Lodge funds, were read and confirmed. The Lodge was then passed to the second degree, and the W.M. elect presented to the Installing Master for Installation, which ceremony was performed by the D.G.M., Bro. Kingston, in a most able and impressive manner. After Bro. James had been duly installed into the chair of King Solomon the M.M.'s were admitted who saluted their W.M., in the antient manner; subsequently the F.C.'s and E.A.'s were admitted, who saluted the newly Installed Master after the manner of their degrees. The W.M. then proceeded to invest his Officers, as follow:—Bros. Hy. Pearce S.W., R. J. W. Coward J.W., W. Read (elected at a previous meeting) Treasurer, F. J. Coward Hon. Sec., C. F. Easterbrook S.D., A. E. Rose J.D., A. Rowse I.G., J. A. Sperring Org., and R. Beck (unanimously elected by the brethren) Tyler. The W.M. accompanied the investment of his Officers with a suitable address to each, wherein he exhorted them to be zealous workers in the Craft, to stedfastly support him during his term of office, and thus prove that his selection and appointment of them was not undeserved. Bros. Kingston and Watson addressed the W.M. in encouraging terms, and prophesied that under his rule and direction the Union Lodge would still continue to flourish. The W.M. in a few appropriate words thanked the brethren for the great honour conferred upon him, assured them that it would be his earnest endeavour to merit the approval of the brethren, and hoped at the termination of his year of office to hand the Charter of the Lodge to his successor as pure and unsullied as he had received it, and concluded by proposing a hearty vote of thanks to Bro. Kingston and Bro. Watson for their valuable services in connection with the Installation ceremony. This was seconded by Bro. Read, and carried unanimously, with acclamation. Two brethren were proposed on the permanent Committee of the Lodge, and one to represent the Lodge on the Masonic Hall Committee. On the proposition of Bro. Caraco, seconded by Bro. R. J. W. Coward J.W., it was unanimously decided to present the I.P.M., Bro. May, who is now doing good Masonic work in Portsmouth, with a P.M.'s jewel, in recognition of his year of ability as W.M. Several candidates for initiation and joining were proposed, and hearty good wishes received from Lodges, Nos. 349, 515, 1923, 395, 1926, 420, 398, 1321, 1428, 616, 1205, 411 E.C., and 387 I.C., after which the Lodge was closed with the accustomed formalities, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet room, where a récherché repast was prepared by the esteemed Tyler, Bro. R. Beck, to which ample justice was done. The W.M. presided at the social board and gave the usual Loyal and Craft toasts which were received with great enthusiasm, and in proposing the toast of the District G. Lodge of Malta and its Officers dwelt upon the untiring energy, assiduity and great ability displayed by the D.G.M., Bro. Kingston during his long rule over this District, and who was ably supported by his Deputy, Bro. Watson, both of whom had enjoyed a most brilliant Masonic career. The W.M. said that eulogising Bros. Kingston and Watson was like painting the lily, or gilding refined gold, so he asked the brethren, while drinking to the D.G. Lodge of Malta to pledge their D.G.M. and his Deputy in a bumper. This toast was received enthusiastically, in true Masonic style, and responded to in most appropriate terms. Bro. Kingston assured the brethren that though it was now nearly 30 years since he was initiated in this Lodge his zeal for Masonry was unabated; he counselled the brethren to strive to uphold the ancient landmarks of the Order, to continue to work in brotherly love and harmony, and to be guided in their Masonic career by the example of those great and good Masons who had been initiated in the old Union of Malta. Bro. Watson thanked the brethren for so kindly receiving his name, and thanked the W.M. for his flattering mention of him. He felt assured that under the able rule of Bro. James the "Union of Malta" would prosper as well as its most ardent admirers, could wish. Bro. Kingston, in proposing the health of the W.M., spoke in high terms of eulogy of Bro. James, who he was pleased to learn had been elected to so exalted and honourable a position, which, on account of his past services as Secretary and S.W. of the Lodge, was thoroughly well deserved. He felt confident that the Union of Malta Lodge was safe in the hands of the present W.M., and felt assured that under his rule the Lodge would lose none of its former lustre. He concluded by calling upon the brethren to drink to his health. This was most enthusiastically received, and suitably responded to by Bro. James, who in thanking the brethren for so hearty a reception of the toast of his health assured them of his intention of endeavouring to the utmost of his power to promote the prosperity of the Lodge. The toast of the P.M.'s and Visitors having been given and suitably responded to (the P.M.'s by Bro. Stanley, and the Visitors by Bros. Starkey, Montgomery, and Paulson), a most enjoyable evening was terminated with the much respected Tyler's song and toast.

UNITED SERVICE LODGE, No. 1428.

AT the meeting of this Lodge on Friday, the 9th inst., it was decided to send the following telegram to H.R.H. the Grand Master:—

"From the W.M. and brethren of the United Service Lodges No. 1428, Freemasons' Hall, Landport, Portsmouth. To H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, K.G., Sandringham.—At the regular meeting of the above Lodge held this evening, a resolution was unanimously passed that a vote of congratulation be forwarded to your Royal Highness on the coming of age of your eldest son, Prince Albert Victor."

The following telegram was received in reply:—

GREYFRIARS LODGE, No. 1101.

AT a meeting of this Lodge, held at the Masonic Hall, on Wednesday evening, the 21st instant, an interesting presentation was made to Brother W. P. Ivey P.P.G.S.B., Senior Past Master, who has recently retired from the post of Secretary of the Lodge, a position which he has held with the greatest ability and success for the past twelve years. The testimonial, consisting of a purse of gold accompanied by an address, was presented by the Worshipful Master of the Lodge, Bro. Hawkes, who expressed the high estimation in which Bro. Ivey was held amongst the Craft, and how much the present prosperity and high state of proficiency of the Greyfriars Lodge was due to the kind and able assistance at all times rendered by Bro. Ivey to the Officers and Brethren. Brother Ivey in a few well-chosen words acknowledged the presentation.

Brother James Stevens will deliver his lecture "Knobs and Excrescences," at the following places, and on the dates named, viz., Upper Norwood Lodge of Instruction, No. 1534, at the White Hart Hotel, Church Road, Upper Norwood, on Monday, 2nd February, at 7 p.m.; Selwyn Lodge of Instruction, No. 1901, at the East Dulwich Hotel, East Dulwich Green, near Champion Hill Station, on Friday, 6th February, at 7 p.m.; and the Hampshire Lodge of Emulation, No. 1990, (Installed Masters), at the Freemasons' Hall, Commercial Road, Portsmouth, on Saturday, 14th February, at 3 p.m.

Monday—Grand Master's Lodge, Royal Albert Lodge. Tuesday—Cadogan Lodge, Salisbury Lodge. Wednesday—Grand Stewards' Lodge, Oak Lodge. Thursday—St. George's Chapter, Grenadiers' Lodge, Mount Moriah Lodge, Polish Chapter, Vane Chapter. Friday—Caledonian Society, Jerusalem Lodge, Peace and Harmony Lodge.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Sure Relief.—The weak and enervated suffer severely from nervous affections when storms or atmospheric disturbances prevail. Neuralgia, gouty pangs, and rheumatic pains, very distressing to a delicate system, may be readily removed by rubbing this Ointment upon the affected and adjacent parts, after they have been fomented with warm water. The Pills taken occasionally in the doses prescribed by the instructions keep the digestion in order, excite a free flow of healthy bile, and regenerate the impoverished blood with richer materials, resulting from thoroughly assimilated food, wanting which, the strongest must inevitably soon sink into feebleness, and the delicate find it difficult to maintain existence. Holloway's Ointment and Pills are infallible remedies.

He concluded by calling upon the brethren to drink to his health. This was most enthusiastically received, and suitably responded to by Bro. James, who in thanking the brethren for so hearty a reception of the toast of his health assured them of his intention of endeavouring to the utmost of his power to promote the prosperity of the Lodge. The toast of the P.M.'s and Visitors having been given and suitably responded to (the P.M.'s by Bro. Stanley, and the Visitors by Bros. Starkey, Montgomery, and Paulson), a most enjoyable evening was terminated with the much respected Tyler's song and toast.

GREYFRIARS LODGE, No. 1101.

AT a meeting of this Lodge, held at the Masonic Hall, on Wednesday evening, the 21st instant, an interesting presentation was made to Brother W. P. Ivey P.P.G.S.B., Senior Past Master, who has recently retired from the post of Secretary of the Lodge, a position which he has held with the greatest ability and success for the past twelve years. The testimonial, consisting of a purse of gold accompanied by an address, was presented by the Worshipful Master of the Lodge, Bro. Hawkes, who expressed the high estimation in which Bro. Ivey was held amongst the Craft, and how much the present prosperity and high state of proficiency of the Greyfriars Lodge was due to the kind and able assistance at all times rendered by Bro. Ivey to the Officers and Brethren. Brother Ivey in a few well-chosen words acknowledged the presentation.

Brother James Stevens will deliver his lecture "Knobs and Excrescences," at the following places, and on the dates named, viz., Upper Norwood Lodge of Instruction, No. 1534, at the White Hart Hotel, Church Road, Upper Norwood, on Monday, 2nd February, at 7 p.m.; Selwyn Lodge of Instruction, No. 1901, at the East Dulwich Hotel, East Dulwich Green, near Champion Hill Station, on Friday, 6th February, at 7 p.m.; and the Hampshire Lodge of Emulation, No. 1990, (Installed Masters), at the Freemasons' Hall, Commercial Road, Portsmouth, on Saturday, 14th February, at 3 p.m.

Monday—Grand Master's Lodge, Royal Albert Lodge. Tuesday—Cadogan Lodge, Salisbury Lodge. Wednesday—Grand Stewards' Lodge, Oak Lodge. Thursday—St. George's Chapter, Grenadiers' Lodge, Mount Moriah Lodge, Polish Chapter, Vane Chapter. Friday—Caledonian Society, Jerusalem Lodge, Peace and Harmony Lodge.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Sure Relief.—The weak and enervated suffer severely from nervous affections when storms or atmospheric disturbances prevail. Neuralgia, gouty pangs, and rheumatic pains, very distressing to a delicate system, may be readily removed by rubbing this Ointment upon the affected and adjacent parts, after they have been fomented with warm water. The Pills taken occasionally in the doses prescribed by the instructions keep the digestion in order, excite a free flow of healthy bile, and regenerate the impoverished blood with richer materials, resulting from thoroughly assimilated food, wanting which, the strongest must inevitably soon sink into feebleness, and the delicate find it difficult to maintain existence. Holloway's Ointment and Pills are infallible remedies.

THE THEATRES.

PRINCE'S.

AMONG the number of offensive or futile plays which have been offered to a much-enduring London public we may place the "Princess George" in the "bad eminence" of the first rank. When produced in Paris in 1871, with the prestige of a powerful cast, including Desclee and Pearsoer, it was received with questionable favour, though it possessed a fictitious interest as an appeal for the right of divorce—a right which forms the text of many of the younger Dumas' comedies. The story, in its commencement, progress and conclusion is equally feeble and offensive. The Princess, who is of noble family and great wealth, has married a ruined spendthrift, who at the opening of the play has just secured half her fortune in order to elope with his friend Count Terrémonde's wife. However, the Princess has employed her maid to watch her husband, and on the rising of the curtain we find her receiving the report of her confidential agent, who has watched the Prince to an hotel with his paramour. In the following scene she charges her husband with his infidelity, but he contrives to lie well enough to banish her suspicions, and even persuades her to receive the Countess at her entertainment that evening. The Princess, again by the intervention of a servant, her husband's valet (Mr. Smedley), learns she is duped; the man gives her the note with which he had been entrusted by his master for the Countess Sylvanie; then, feeling compromise is no longer possible, in the presence of the guests she commands the Countess to leave the room. The Count entering almost immediately, she declares what she has done, and in reply to his indignant demand for an explanation says, she can receive no woman who comes for a rendezvous with a lover,—but will not give his name. The Count suspects a devoted young friend of his own, who has an idyllic and respectful adoration for the Countess. We presently hear a pistol shot, and for a moment hope our "Leicester-square" Prince has been "provided" for. The Princess has just cried out in wild despair to be saved from the misery of such a union, and her mother tells her nothing but death can set her free, when enter the Count, with a pistol—she, in agony, concludes her prayer for freedom has been answered, and all her old love returns. There seems nothing left for her but death. When the Prince walks in, quite unembarrassed, the Count explains he has shot the youthful De Fondette (Mr. Carne). The Princess falls into her husband's arms, and the curtain descends upon these fantastic marionettes. The play is bad, but there are situations in it which might rise to very poignant interest in the hands of capable artists. Mrs. Langtry is wholly unable to realise for a moment the tender and passionate character of the Princess; a very beautiful and beautifully dressed piece of clever waxwork, which, however, ought to be seen in profile, for the face has no expression; we should not look for expression from the Tussaud handiwork. In the opening scene she attempts, by a great deal of hand wringing and arm waving, to imply that she is in deep distress, but she was quite unable to persuade her audience of this. She is pettish, and shrewish, and angry—as though her work had spoiled a dinner—when she is supposed to be in an agony of outraged love. Again and again a titter ran through the house at the supposed pathetic passages, and in the great scene with her rival the mechanism and unreality of this pretty automaton became so evident that had it not been for the fine impersonation of her rival, by Miss Amy Roselle, the act would probably have closed amid general derision. Mrs. Langtry must have herself felt the danger of the situation, for when, in answer to what she interpreted as a call, the curtain rose, she led on Miss Amy Roselle, and so secured the plaudits of the audience. Although a great part of the Countess's rôle has been eliminated in the version adopted by Mrs. Langtry, it is to its exponent, Miss Rosello, that we are indebted for any interest in this dull and depressing performance, though we must praise the quiet and able style of Victor (Mr. Smedley), the Prince's Valet. As for the guests at the Prince's "at home" we could not but think of > "A party in a parlour drinking tea,

> All silent, and all damned."

Mr. Coghlan had evidently given up all thought of struggling with the general depression. The unhappy De Fondette was so utterly insignificant that "his being provided for" by the Count seemed to interest no one either on or off the stage. A gentleman in the gallery wondered what was to be done with the body. The fashionable world was in full force to do honour to this strange fetish, which would fain possess an improving soul of art, but though she commands all the spells of the great magician Worth, and can conjure with the loveliest of his inspirations, for those who seek the artist behind the fetish there is nothing. The first night crowd was gathered from mere curiosity, or perhaps a good-natured hope that the feeble amateur who had enjoyed a succès de scandale at the Haymarket, had returned after many months, and their experiences, with powers worthy the interest which had been excited. It is not so, and we fear the manager of the Prince's will find that curiosity alone will not long suffice to fill a fashionable playhouse, though with the choicest upholstery behind the footlights. The hisses of the first night might easily grow to hootings as the melancholy iron curtain falls.

THE GRAND.

THE Pantomime of "Puss in Boots," which is now running at this theatre, has one novel feature—the author, Mr. Joseph Tabrar, has invested it with original music. This is of a very lively kind, and suffices to give various comic and sentimental ditties a freshness. Beyond this, Mr. Tabrar has not attempted more than to re-dress a number of time-honoured expedients for creating laughter. This pantomime has the merit of being capitally acted, by a strong company of comedians, all eccentric in their individual walk, and able to dance with facility and sing with spirit. The adventures of Fritz, the Miller's son, played by Miss Lottie Dettmar, who afterwards becomes Marquis of Carrabas, are controlled in this instance by the Fairy Loveliness, who opposes the Demon Revilo, Fritz's enemy. The Fairy endows the young hero's cat with speech, and Puss (Mr. Tom Fancourt), in the legendary pair of boots, helps his master to conquer a terrible ogre. In the development of this idea there occurs one pretty pastoral scene, the Village of Content, with the humours of a rustic school, and a grand spectacular set representing the King's Palace, in which occurs a ballet of jesters. Some magnificent scenery has been painted by Mr. W. T. Hemsley, his Ballet and Transformation Scenes being especially beautiful. The company is a strong one; Mr. Witty Watty Walton, a clever comedian, leads, as a village pedagogue, and contributes a wonderful drunken scene, which brings down the house. He is well supported by Mr. George Vokes, a nimble dancer; Mr. Joe Elvin, Mr. Edward Fawcett, and Mr. Prior. Miss Lottie Dettmar and Miss Nellie Melnotte sing and dance gracefully, as the hero and the princess, while Miss Lillie Lingfield, as Rosie Posie, contributes a skilful skipping-rope dance. Mr. J. M. Jones leads the Harlequinade as Clown, and he is assisted by Mr. Henri Lemaire as Pantaloon, Mr. H. Lewins Policeman, Mr. Alfred Baker Sprite, Mr. R. H. Mercer Harlequin, and Miss Amy Lucille Columbine. The Pantomime, which never flags in spirit and bustle, has scored well, and we congratulate Mr. Charles Willmott on the success he has attained. Mr. Walton announced—in a verse of his popular song, "I'm not asleep"—that his farewell benefit will take place on 3rd of February. Doubtless his admirers will "not be asleep" on that occasion.

HENGLERS'

SHALL we go to Henglers'? is a question doubtless asked at many breakfast-tables every morning, and "Henglers'" is as concise an idea as who should say "Irving's." The Henglers, senior and junior, revolve round a much-applauding Continent, nor fail to return in due season to their London friends. We now find them "at home" every afternoon and evening, in their handsome and commodious hippodrome, the finest building of the kind yet erected in London. That the public appreciate the managerial liberality was evident on our visit by the crowded audience filling pit, boxes, and amphitheatre. The house is bright with gold and white decorations, and a pretty effect is obtained by rose-tinted lamps round the boxes. Messrs. Hengler have a fine stud of trained horses, and there is plenty of dash and daring in the riders. Fraulein Blumenfield is especially remarkable for pluck and grace in her daring leaps. The "school" horses Strathmore and Gazelle went through some very clever tricks, and Herr Blennow, their trainer, was warmly applauded. The young folks were especially enthusiastic for Mr. Merriman Chirgwin, in whom their elders recognised a touch of the dear, delightful clowns when the century was young. Mr. Hengler jun. showed his hereditary gifts with an Irish mare, evidently Celtic of spirit. Then there was some good fun with some low-comedy donkeys, a grand military spectacle with thirteen chargers, then some clever gymnasts and a delicious bit of comic pantomime, Mr. Merriman Walker keeping his audience in convulsions of laughter whilst he in dumb show exhibits how an old gentleman proposes to catch a trout; finds the bait, feels the bite, plays the fish, and also, instead of landing it, tumbles into the water—and only a whip and the sawdust for properties. Then there appeared some trained dogs, who did wonderful things inside and outside some casks. Then the fair Jenny O'Brien gave her great vaulting act over her horse's back, and various other wonders of the haute école. Then a race with ponies and monkeys, the items of the programme following fast on each other, and concluding, to the satisfaction of Mater Familias, at the domestic hour of 10·30.

A change of programme took place at the Alhambra, on Monday last, 19th January, when Mdlle. Garetta, described as "the exquisite Charmeuse de Pigeons;" the celebrated Hanlon Voltas; and Professor Wingfield's troupe of trained dogs appeared. These new features, and other varieties, including the two Grand Ballets, "The Swans" and "Melusine," in which Mdlle. Sampietro and Mdlle. Palladino are engaged, gave great satisfaction to a large and appreciative audience.

ROYAL EAR HOSPITAL, FRITH STREET, SOHO.—This useful charity held its annual general meeting in the rooms of the institution on Tuesday, the 13th inst. It is one of the oldest and most deserving of special hospitals, and during the 69 years it has been established, over 120,000 patients have been treated for various ear diseases within its walls. The report of the surgeons, Dr. Urban Pritchard, F.R.C.S., and Dr. F. Matheson, C.M., was read. From it we learn that during 1884 there were 8,128 out-patient attendances, at which 2,625 separate cases received careful treatment. These numbers greatly exceed any former record. Fifty patients were admitted into the in-patient wards, all serious cases and mostly children. This new department was reported to be a very great success, although it had considerably added to the expenditure. The accounts for 1884 were audited and passed. The financial condition of the hospital was shown to be only fairly satisfactory, as there was a considerable falling off in donations, although the subscriptions had increased. A vote of thanks to surgeons, treasurer, and secretary brought the proceedings to a close.

TEMPLE BAR LODGE, No. 1728.

THE annual meeting of this Lodge was held at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Thursday, the 15th inst., on which occasion Bro. Geo. S. Recknell was installed W.M. for the year. The Lodge having been opened, under the presidency of Bro. T. W. Casburn Bush, and the minutes confirmed, was regularly advanced to the third degree, and Bro. John Webb raised in due form. Mr. Frederick Clark was next initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry, Bro. A. McDowall P.M. 1902, P.P.G.D.C. Berks and Bucks performing the ceremony by request of the W.M., who was suffering from severe indisposition. The initiation completed, Bro. T. Fenn P.G.D. President B.G.P. assumed the chair, and installed the Master for the ensuing year. In due order that brother appointed the following as his officers :—T. W. C. Bush I.P.M. and Sec., Richard Kempton S.W., A. R. Carter J.W., B. Buckworth P.M. Treas., J. Rexworthy S.D., H. J. Rolls J.D., G. J. Garland I.G., A. R. Harris D.C., C. S. Williams Org., W. J. Westmore and A. G. Watkinson Stewards, A. B. Church Tyler. The other business of the meeting having been disposed of, the Lodge was closed and the brethren proceeded to banquet. A most enjoyable repast having been done justice to, the W.M. proposed the usual toasts. Those of the Queen and the Craft and the Grand Master having been honoured, the W.M. proposed that of the Grand Officers. They were singularly favoured that night in having among them two of the most distinguished of the Grand Officers of England, Bro. the Rev. R. J. Simpson and Bro. T. Fenn. The W.M. and members were pleased to see them, and hoped they would favour the Lodge with their presence on many future occasions. The Grand Officers as a body were most assiduous in their attention to the Craft, taking every advantage of performing the duties attached to their respective offices to the best of their ability. Bro. Simpson was the first to respond. He thanked the W.M. and brethren for the kind manner in which they had honoured the constitutional toast of the Grand Officers. Grand Lodge, no doubt, had many virtues, but it also had its failings. The W.M. had proved himself a true Mason, by using language which showed he considered they were called upon charitably to believe all things and endure all things. From the recent meetings of Grand Lodge it was clear they must hope and believe much, while from the awful crush they had experienced it was clear they must endure much. The Grand Officers would continue to do their duty in the state of life to which it had pleased God to call them. It had been a great pleasure to him to attend the consecration of the Temple Bar Lodge, and he had likewise experienced great pleasure in repeating his visit, at what he might now call the Old Temple Bar Lodge. They had that night seen an old and well tried Master retire from the chair, and one who seemed well up to the mark installed in his place. Brother T. Fenn followed. Since his accession to his present office he had had many opportunities of intercourse with the Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, and he was surprised and pleased beyond measure at the great interest he took in all that concerned Freemasonry. He need scarcely have referred to this subject, because many of the brethren were present in Grand Lodge when Lord Carnarvon came down, at great personal inconvenience, and supported, by his observations, the admirable letter written to the Grand Lodge of Quebec by the Grand Master, which showed that, notwithstanding the threats of the Grand Lodge of Quebec, His Royal Highness intended cordially and loyally to sustain those Lodges in their position which maintained their allegiance to the Grand Lodge of England. With regard to the Grand Officers, the majority of them were ready on all occasions to do all in their power to assist and support the interests of the Craft. Many privileges were possessed by Past Grand Officers which Masons in general little conceived; but their duties were many, and they gave up their time and abilities to them without grudging, and they were very pleased when, as on this occasion, their services were appreciated. Bro. Bush next assumed the gavel. It fell to his lot that night to perform a very pleasing duty, and one that for five years he had not had the honour of proposing—the health of the brother installed that night. His doing so recalled to his mind the first meeting of this Lodge, since the brother who had just been installed was a candidate for initiation on that occasion. For this reason, and from the fact that he was the son of a Mason, Bro. Recknell had claimed priority of the other four candidates, and was thus the first initiate in the Lodge. His bearing in the Lodge at that time, and ever since, gave promise that he would eventually rise to the office he then occupied. Bro. Bush felt sure their W.M., during his year of office, would prove himself worthy of his place, and that in his new position, as in his old, he would do his work with credit to himself and satisfaction to the Lodge. Bro. Bush tendered his thanks to Bro. Fenn, who had kindly performed the Installation ceremony for him at a time when ill health prevented his doing so, and then called on the brethren to honour the toast of the W.M. Bro. Recknell said it was with no ordinary sense of weight of responsibility that he returned thanks for the kind sentiments expressed that night. He wished he could apply them all to himself. He well remembered that on the occasion of his initiation he, being the son of a Mason, was selected as the first initiate, and to that circumstance he owed his present position of W.M. in advance of his brother initiates of that night. He was deeply indebted to the I.P.M. and the brethren for many things, but particularly for the way in which they had elected him to fill the Chair of the Lodge. He should endeavour to solve the difficulties attached to his office with all the ability at his command, devoting care and attention to the business required of him. It had been truly said that he who did his best did well. He did not say he should do well, but he assured the brethren that he should do his best, and hoped that he might succeed. He had very much to thank the brethren for in the past, and felt that with the confidence he had secured from them he should be in a position to carry out the duties of the Chair. He hoped that during his term of office the duties of the Lodge would be performed as well as they had been in the past, and that the Lodge would continue its prosperous career. He next proposed the toast of the Installing Officer, saying how extremely grateful they all were to Bro. Fenn for the way in which he had performed the ceremony that night, at very short notice, owing to the ill-health of Brother Bush. Bro. Fenn replied. It afforded him great satisfaction to be of any use to the Temple Bar Lodge. The W.M. was quite right in saying he was animated with the best of spirit towards the Lodge. Very particular interest attached to their present W.M., inasmuch as he had been educated at the Masonic Boys' School. He (Bro. Fenn) had often wondered why it was he did not see boys educated at the Masonic School coming to the fore in Freemasonry. He had often been surprised, he might say pained, at the lack of interest manifested by old pupils, but now he was pleased to meet with an exception, and it had afforded him additional pleasure to have had the opportunity of installing their brother into the chair of his mother Lodge. The W.M. next gave the health of the I.P.M. Bro. Bush. This was a toast it afforded him great pleasure to propose. It was a very important one, made more important from the fact that the brethren intended to mark the retirement of Bro. Bush by the presentation to him of a valuable testimonial. The W.M. felt there were many present who, knowing more of the ability of Bro. Bush, could have made the presentation in much more suitable terms, but none could make it with better will than he did. The Lodge was consecrated in 1878, and at that time Bro. Bush was J.W. Since that time he had, in addition to other duties, filled the office of Secretary for a period of four years. During the whole of that time he had studied the requirements of the Lodge to the best of his ability, and had ably succeeded in what he had undertaken. As Steward to the Charities, on behalf of the Lodge, he had collected upwards of £1,000, which from so young a Lodge reflected the greatest credit on him. They could but regret the cause which had prevented his performing the ceremonies of initiation and installation that night, and hoped he might soon be restored to the blessing of health. The W.M. then presented to Bro. Bush the testimonial of the brethren, which consisted of a handsome tea and coffee service, together with a portrait in oil of the recipient himself (painted by Bro. Cyril Stanley Williams, Organist of the Lodge). Bro. Bush tendered his hearty thanks. He felt unable to express his appreciation of the kindness he had received at their hands that night and in the past. The present was a very proud moment in his life—a moment when he felt he possessed the good opinion and esteem of every brother in the Lodge. Whatever services he had been able to render had been performed as true labours of love. As a founder of this Lodge, he had felt that those associated with him were of a class who would always cause the Lodge to be looked up to, and it had been his endeavour also to add to its reputation. He felt that the presentation of so splendid a testimonial as he had that night received was a sure sign he was not considered the worst man in the universe. He hoped to be spared to be associated with the Lodge for many years to come. The toast of the Visitors was next honoured, and to this Bros. McDowell and Bailey responded. The initiate was toasted, and suitably replied to the toast proposed in his honour, after which the health of the Past Masters was given, Bro. Butcher replying. The toast of the Masonic Institutions was forcibly given by the W.M., and as forcibly responded to by Bro. Terry, after which the proceedings were brought to a conclusion.

HONOR OAK LODGE, No. 1986.

A REGULAR meeting of this Lodge was held at the Moore Park Hotel, Honor Oak, on Wednesday, 14th January. Being an "off-night," with but little work on the agenda, there was not the customary large attendance. Among those present were Bros. Phillips W.M., Hopekirk I.P.M. and Treasurer, Maunder Williams S.W., Henry Stokes J.W., Langley acting Secretary, Rev. Wilson Haffenden Chaplain, Hartley S.D., Hooper J.D., Knight I.G., Augustus Darel Director of Ceremonies, France W.S., and Thomas Tyler; also Bros. Jas. Worstencroft, Wootten, Bartlett, Pearson, Alfred Pitman, Bye, &c. The Visitors were Bros. James Stevens P.M. 720, 1216, 1426, &c., and E. A. Francis 1658. The minutes were read and confirmed. Lodge was raised to the third degree and closed down. The attendance of a candidate accepted at a previous meeting was confidently expected, but at the last moment intimation of inability to attend was handed to the W.M. The election of W.M. and Treasurer for the ensuing year was therefore at once proceeded with, and Bro. H. Maunder Williams, one of the Founders of the Lodge, and a highly esteemed brother amongst the members, was unanimously elected to the former position, and Bro. Hopekirk P.M. was re-elected Treasurer. Both brethren returned thanks in very appropriate terms. Bro. Thomas was re-elected Tyler, after proposition in terms of earnest appreciation of his attention and courtesy as Outer Guard. A Past Master's jewel of the Lodge pattern was voted by acclamation to Bro. Phillips W.M., for presentation at ensuing meeting. On the recommendation of one of the Visitors, a money vote in aid of a distressed brother of the Mariners Lodge, No. 249, Liverpool, was granted, and the Lodge was then closed. The installation of Bro. Williams, the W.M. elect, will take place on the second Wednesday in February.

THE FORCE OF EXAMPLE.

IT is not necessary to seek far, to trace the benefits arising from a good example. In every phase of life we find instances of success following success, and failure following failure, in such a manner as clearly proves that a man's course in life very materially depends on the groove in which he happens to be placed, or the ruling power he is called upon to obey. So it is with our Lodges. Slovenly members will make a slovenly Lodge, persevering brethren a prosperous one, and enthusiastic Masons a model one. If it is the custom for the rulers of a Lodge to pursue a certain line of Masonic conduct, those who join it will fall into that course, whether it be for good or the reverse; and if it be the rule for the Lodge to be conducted on a sort of "come what may" principle, its initiates will speedily show that they have no particular interest in Freemasonry. It is almost unreasonable to expect they should have, for they have never been properly educated. The Master and other principal Officers, too, what is it they cannot do or undo for a Lodge? By good example they may raise it to the highest position and prosperity; by evil example they may not only ruin the Lodge with which they are associated, but may also cause discredit to the whole body of Freemasons.

Looking to the source from which the large sums annually contributed to the Masonic Institutions is derived, we find this principle strongly illustrated. Lodges which support the Charities once, do so, in most instances, again and again, and the example thus set, is followed by the members individually. In most of the Lodges which make a feature of supporting the Institutions, we find a very large per centage of the members have personally qualified either as Life subscribers or Life Governors of one or more of the Institutions, irrespective of the share they take in voting and providing the Lodge grant, while, on the other hand, we find that the members of a Lodge which seldom or ever votes a donation to the Charities, seldom emerge from among the non-subscribing portion of the fraternity. In illustration of our views as to what can be done, we may point to the Kilburn Lodge, No. 1608, which has now existed about nine years. During that time it had won for itself and its members a reputation for Charity which any Lodge would be proud of; and how has this reputation been acquired? Firstly and mainly, by the force of good example. The Lodge has made an annual grant of twenty-five guineas to the Institutions, taking each in turn, and the brethren have supported that grant in a truly praiseworthy manner. During a period of seven years of the Lodge's existence, no less a sum than £1,040 was subscribed by it and its members to the Charities, thus clearly proving that the good example set in the Lodge, of voting a good round sum each year, has been an incentive to its members to adopt a similarly liberal course. The sum we have referred to represents an average of close upon £150 per annum, and that sum, from a young and comparatively small Lodge, is a stronger demonstration than any other we can give, of what it is possible to accomplish, if only the desire is shown to do so, and a proper example is set by those at the head of affairs. It is not desirable that we should attempt to discover a representative body for the opposite view of the case; those of our readers who know of a Lodge which shows little or no interest in its work, can judge for themselves whether the neglect is due to the want of a good example or otherwise.

CANVASSING FOR MASONIC HONOURS.

THE competition which is this year taking place for the Grand Treasurership, has already imparted into English Freemasonry more than one objectionable feature, and it yet remains to be seen how much of the trickery and underhand practices of ordinary elections will not be taken advantage of, before a decision is arrived at. We think it is contrary to all the principles of Freemasonry that its prizes should be publicly sought after and systematically canvassed for. As we understand it, the honours of Freemasonry are intended for those who deserve them; and although we shall not—for the present at least—even suggest it would be better to abolish the "elective" character of the Grand Treasurership, we cannot agree with the idea—prevalent in the minds of many—that might constitutes right, deciding who shall enjoy it. It is, of course, impossible, when it comes to selection by numbers, to wholly prevent the idea that it is not always the most deserving who succeeds, but it is at least possible to prevent the result being influenced by other considerations than personal merit. We look upon public advertising and the distribution of printed circulars, as most undignified in connection with the acquirement of such an honorary distinction as that of Grand Treasurer should be. That office should be conferred by the elective voice of the Craft for merit alone. It may be urged that without the publication of a candidate's career, both in civil and Masonic life, the electors would be ignorant of his acquirements, but such an argument is bad. Those who frequent Grand Lodge, or in other ways take an active interest in the welfare of the Craft, and have to decide the question, are sufficiently well acquainted with the career of the few brethren likely to be nominated for the appointment, to be able to judge for themselves as to who is the most worthy of the honour, even if it were not the custom to allow the proposer and seconder to parade, as it were, the merits of their individual candidates. Until public canvassing is prohibited, we feel that the office of Grand Treasurer will be shorn of much of the honour which should be attached to it.

DEVELOPMENT OF THE ROYAL ARCH DEGREE.

BY BRO. JACOB NORTON.

IN 1832, Count de Laurent brought from Hayti, to New York, a Masonic Ritual of the Royal Arch, said to have been sent by the Grand Chapter of England to Hayti, in 1802. Bro. Marconnay copied that Ritual in 1833. In 1882, Bro. John Barker, the well-known New York Masonic publisher, kindly allowed me to take to Boston the Marconnay copy. As the ritual was in the French language, Bro. de la Granja translated it for me into English. I was at first somewhat staggered at the change which the Royal Arch Degree had undergone. But, as all the old rituals differ from the present one, I supposed the Royal Arch Ritual was also changed. And again, I could not exactly understand how the English Degree of the Royal Arch found its way into Hayti, where the French language is spoken. But, finding in one of Bro. Gould's English Lodge Lists that in 1809 the Grand Lodge of England had chartered a Lodge in Port au Prince, and another in Cayes, both located in Hayti, I therefore came to the conclusion that the Grand Chapter of England may have sent there a charter for a R.A. Chapter too; and that the transcriber of the Ritual may have changed the date, making it 1802 instead of 1812. Up to the Union of the Ancients and Moderns the R.A. was called the "Fourth Degree," but since the Union the said Degree is, in England, neither fourth nor third, but something betwixt and between; thus, the articles of the Union declare that ancient and pure Masonry consists "of three degrees, and no more, including the Supreme Order of the Holy Royal Arch." In America, however, the Royal Arch is called the Seventh Degree of the York Rite, and in the preface to the said Ritual Marconnay designates it the seventh of the York Rite. Take it all in all, I was satisfied that I had an early Ritual of the English R.A. before me.

The following were the titles of the Officers, and I also give the history of the Degree from the Ritual, so that the reader may compare the past with the present.

History of the Grade.

Recited by the G.O.

"I am not going to relate to you, My Dear Brother, the history of the grade of the Royal Arch in full. You will find that in the history of the Grand Patriarchs, Masons whom Solomon appointed to be the Twelve Chiefs of the Temple, giving to each the government of a Province or Tribe, to conduct and distribute the works; giving to the Grand Hiram the inspection of all. I will limit myself to recite the principal facts of that time.

"The Brethren of the Royal Arch were all sons and descendants of the race of Joshua, a line which was always distinguished in the wars of the Israelites to conquer for the twelve promised tribes by the Supreme Architect to the descendants of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob.

"Solomon being prepared to build that edifice to the honour and glory of the Supreme Architect, made a close alliance with Hiram King of Tyre, with whom the King Prophet [David] had been also allied as his near neighbour, and who was a great lover of the sciences; greatly protecting them in his kingdom, so as to develope the talents of the celebrated architect expert in the knowledge of metals and the construction of edifices.

"It is well to dwell here upon this prosperous event, so much more interesting as it had transmitted to us those mysteries by excelling of the Royal art, in which chance ever seems to have produced the discovery, in the same way that some of the greatest things have been discovered by the smallest means.

"To the understanding of those facts it is also necessary to say that, independently of the mysteries of each different Masonic grade, which must never be lost sight of, there was the grand secret which the wise Inspector of the art never confided to any others than Hiram, surnamed Abif, and to Mahaban, another chief whom he also cherished in accordance with their talents and their antiquity in the Royal Arch.

"Certain historians pretend, notwithstanding, that Soloman entrusted this grand work to Hiram the King, but our history does not say anything of this subject. Besides, Hiram the King, not professing the Judaic religion, would not be initiated into the mysterious secrets of the Temple. It is true, nevertheless, that they were united by a sincere friendship in regard to that which he had had for King Prophet, father of Solomon.

"The respectable Hiram Abif was assassinated by the three ruffians, who, to obtain the grand word, conspired, although in vain, against him. The elect and the history of the Patriarchs introduced us in regard to his sad end.

"When the Temple and the ornaments were finished, Solomon confided this grand secret to Jakin and to Boas, exacting from them the promise of secrecy and never to divulge it to any one under the penalty of the most terrible excommunication of the tomb of the wise adepts.

"Notwithstanding this, great many other distinguished Masters made supplication to Solomon to announce to them their admission to this sublime grade; but that wise Prince, faithful to his oath, gave them recompenses in keeping with their talents and their labours, telling them, 'Go, my friends, work, persevere; some day the Sub. Arch. will give it to you;" and this promise was fulfilled, as will be seen by what follows.

"Solomon and the allied Masons, wishing to preserve to posterity this profound mystery, constructed, with their own hands, an underground Lodge or laboratory, where they laboured in a dignified manner, with that profound knowledge with which the dispenser of all things had adorned them, and deposited the secret therein.

"Although this place had not a visible issue, considered almost impenetrable, it was discovered by chance by a supernatural inspiration.

"At the return of the captives from Babylon, the Grand Zorobabel made an arch in the walls of the Temple, and discovered on the first tabernacle, supported by three pillars, an immense amount of ingots of the purest gold, and the inextinguishable fire which enclosed the sacred Word.

"After the destruction of the Temple, Zorobabel abandoned the search of the edifice.

"Some time after the death of Jesus Christ, and during the reign of Titus, son of the Emperor Vespatian, some zealous Masons assembled, and, for reasons unknown, began to search in the ruins of that famous Temple. One of them, named Gibulum, descendant of the old race of the first Masons, during the search, observed that his pickaxe had stuck in a large ring. Calling his companions to him, and carefully examining the place, they found that the ring was attached to a trap-door of the same metal, which they could not even shake, but by the use of a lever they succeeded in raising it, but could not see anything but a very dark tunnel or shaft. Gibulum, full of Masonic zeal, offered to descend, and, for safety, tied a cord around him, and indicated the signal at which his companions should pull him out.

"Scarcely had he penetrated into the subterranean when he perceived that it was mined, and that its arched roof was supported by grand arcades, built one upon another. This wondrous place, and its damp, cold air, suspended first the ardour of Gibulum to such a point that, arrived to the third arcade, he made the signal agreed upon, and was taken out. Questioned by the Brethren about his discoveries, he told them that he had found a frightful vault, enough to frighten even the most brave; but, nevertheless, if any one among them was willing to accompany him, he would descend again; but no one offering it, he pursued alone the enterprise, penetrating into the subterranean a great deal further than he did the first time. The profundity of the vault again frightened him, and feeling that his senses were leaving him, he pulled the cord, and was again taken out; and he did not regain his senses so as to follow his enterprise with more ardour. Notwithstanding the obstacles, and even the danger, he provided himself with a lighted torch, a pencil and paper, made a prayer to the Supreme Being, and trusted himself again to his dangerous work. It was then that the prophesy of Solomon was fulfilled. After descending for the third time, Gibulum arrived at the last arch, and gave a blow with the hammer upon the wall, which was responded to by an echo, intimating that the wall was covering another wall; he struck blow after blow with intense ardour and energy, that, although with an indescribable arduous work, he succeeded in piercing the wall, making a breach large enough to admit his body. The light of his torch reflecting upon something extremely brilliant, he became almost blind for an instant, but perceiving that this light was the reverberation of his torch upon a magnificent Sun and a gold triangular altar, on the front of which were initial letters announcing an alliance of Solomon with Hiram and Hiram Abif. The inscription had the following characters: S. R. H. R., H. A. and higher still, S. R. H. A. M. B., which signify Solomon Rex, Hiram Rex, Hiram Abif and Mahabon.

"These three illustrious architects had had this place constructed for the celebration of their most secret and grand mysteries, which they had written in gold letters upon a white marble table.

"The first movement of Gibulum, in view of this luminous place, was to bend his knee, and, with the right hand extended before the eyes, to make a sign of astonishment, respect and admiration. He approached the altar and acquired the knowledge of the grand mysteries and read the oaths and obligations prescribed under the greatest penalties, written by those three illustrious and ancient wise depositories of the sciences.

"Gibulum, astonished at his discovery, gave praise to the Almighty, and pulling the chord for the third time was taken out of the vault. Once out in the light of day all the brethren surrounded him, and seeing the satisfaction depicted in his eyes, fraternally embraced him, shouting, Hurrah! Gibulum is a good Mason. He told them all that he had seen, but carefully kept to himself what he had learned.

"It is thus that from this line came out the Scotch, those illustrious who after this epoch have so well distinguished themselves in the wars of the crusades, although the Grand Architect of the Universe did not grant to their arms all the success they hoped for. With increased ardour and zeal they returned to Europe with the Knights of the West, where they acquired the greatest celebrity, not only by their valorous deeds but for their riches and powers. From them descended the ancient Templars, the history of whom terminated with the defeat of the Grand Molay."

The last paragraph, about the Crusaders, is awkwardly tacked on to the history of the period of Emperor Titus. I shall call attention to it again. But I must here add, that the above Ritual is minus of the ceremony of the veils. The Grand Orator, who seems to act as Master of Ceremonies, conducts the candidate to four apartments in succession; at each door a word is demanded, but, instead of uttering the word, the Master of the Ceremony shows a medal on which the desired word is engraved. One of those words was "MERIT."—Masonic Truth.

THE LEGEND OF THE LOST WORD.

THIS legend, as briefly stated by Dr. Mackey, is as follows:—"The mystical history of Freemasonry informs us that there once existed a WORD of surpassing value, and claiming a profound veneration; that this word was known to the few, and that it was at length lost, and that a temporary substitute for it was adopted."

This idea of a mystic, all-powerful "word" was an ancient and widely-diffused superstition. Just how this notion originated has not been handed down to us, either by tradition or otherwise. It, however, probably came to be entertained in the following manner:—It was generally known to the profane—i.e., the uninitiated—that those who were admitted to the "Mysteries" were entrusted with a certain sacred word, under a most solemn pledge not to reveal it to the world; and as the scientific knowledge, also secretly imparted to those who were initiated, gave those who took the higher degrees the power to work apparent miracles, the ignorant and superstitious multitude naturally thought, and were perhaps taught to believe, that it was by the use of this "word," so sacredly concealed, that the priests were able to perform all their wonderful works. This word was, however, nothing but the "password," which went with the "sign," by which the initiated could make themselves known to one another. This idea of an all-powerful word was very prevalent among the Jews, no doubt derived from their long stay in Egypt. The notion was that this "word" consisted of the true name of God, together with a knowledge of its proper pronunciation, and that the fortunate possessor of this knowledge became thereby clothed with supernatural power—that by the speaking of this word he could perform all sorts of miracles, and even raise the dead. According to the Cabalists, "the very heavens shook, and the angels themselves were filled with terror and astonishment when this tremendous word was pronounced."

Jewish tradition states that God himself taught Moses his true name and its correct pronunciation at the "burning bush." And they believed that Moses, being thus possessed of the "Word," used it to perform all his miracles, and to confound and overthrow Pharaoh and his hosts. The Jews of a later date, seeking to account for the wonderful works of Christ, asserted that he unlawfully entered the "holy of holies," and clandestinely obtained the word used by Moses, which was engraved upon the stone upon which the ark rested. The superstition in relation to a wonder-working word also prevailed among the Arabians, who said that King Solomon was in possession of this "grand omnific word," and by its use subdued the genii who rebelled against God, many of whom Solomon imprisoned by the use of his magical seal, upon which the word, contained in a pentacle, was engraved.

It was from these, and other similar legends thus widely diffused among the ancient Oriental nations, that the veneration for a particular word arose, together with an earnest desire to obtain it, and a laborious search for it, by ambitious believers in its power. All the magicians, enchanters, and wonder-workers of the East, and the adepts of the West, were supposed to have, in some mysterious way, become possessed of this "word," and were known to the aspirants and students of the occult sciences (not yet so fortunate) by the name of "masters," and the "word" was called by them the "master's word." This ancient superstition seems to have left its impress on our ritual, for the word," of which we hear so often therein is assumed to be, omething more than a mere "password," although we, as, Masons, now use the phrase "master's word" in a very different sense from that of the adepts of former times.

In former and less enlightened times the possession of the true name of God and its proper pronunciation, or some substitute for it, authorized by divine command, were even supposed requisite in order to worship him aright; for it was ignorantly thought that if God was not addressed by his own proper name he would not attend to the call, nor even know that the prayers of his worshipper were really addressed to him, and not to Baal, Osiris, or Jupiter; or, if knowing, would indignantly reject them. In the East, to address even an earthly potentate by any other than his own proper, high and ceremonious title, was considered both irreverent and insulting. Among the Jews, however, the pronunciation of the true name was supposed to be followed by such tremendous effects that a substitute, for which they believed they had the divine sanction, was enjoined. Accordingly, we find in the Old Testament that whenever the name of God occurs, the substitute is used instead of the true name. The word substituted is generally "Adonai," or Lord, unless the name follows that word, and then "Elohim" is used; as "Adonai Elohim," meaning Lord God. From this long-continued use of a substitute for the real word, the latter, or at least its correct pronunciation, was thought to be lost. A trace of all this is found in our ritual, and perhaps furnishes the true reason why a substitute (as Dr. Mackey informs us in the extract we have quoted above from his "Symbolism") was adopted.

Mr. Percy Farquhar Sladen was balloted for and initiated into Freemasonry. Bro. A. C. Lester was passed to the second degree. The W.M., Bro. Fendick, in a masterly manner then installed Bro. H. S. Hunter S.W. and W.M. elect into the chair of K.S., who invested Bro. Fendick as the I.P.M. The ceremony of installation having been concluded and the brethren readmitted to the Lodge, Bro. The Lodge being closed, the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet prepared by the worthy host, Bro. W. T. Buxton. The W.M. in proposing the Loyal toasts gracefully alluded to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales and his eldest son, and the recent reports relative to them, which were received with considerable satisfaction. The toast being duly honoured, the I.P.M. proposed the health of the W.M. in brief but appropriate remarks. The W.M. in a neat speech in reply said that it was his great desire to justify the choice the brethren had made in unanimously electing him for their W.M. He thanked them and Bro. Fendick for his kind remarks, and in conclusion he said he hoped the brethren would part with him at the end of his year of office in the same kind way they had received him. The toasts of the Initiate and Visitors having been given and very ably responded to, the W.M. proposed the health of the I.P.M. Brother Fendick, who had so impressively installed him into the Chair that evening, and who had during his year of office as W.M. discharged his duties efficiently and satisfactorily, the Lodge having been by his energy and perseverance greatly benefited. The I.P.M. having responded, the remaining toasts were given and replied to, and the brethren separated at a late hour, apparently thoroughly satisfied with the result of the evening's work and entertainment.

A Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. T. E. Bathard S.W. and W.M. elect, who had been unanimously elected at the previous meeting, was duly installed into the chair by the I.P.M. Bro. C. Kempton, who performed the ceremony in a very perfect manner. The newly-installed Master having been saluted according to ancient custom, appropriately appointed and invested his Officers :—Bros. C. Kempton I.P.M., Cain S.W., Lancaster J.W., S. Webb P.M. Treas, Staton P.M. Sec., Edgar S.D., J. Hemming J.D., Brooks I.G., Rose Chaplain, Paul D.C., Rawles Tyler. Ballots were taken for the admission of Messrs. Chapman, Barter, Elliott, and James Jackson, which were unanimously in their favour; they are to be initiated at the next regular meeting. The Lodge was then closed until the third Thursday in February.

METROPOLITAN LODGE, No. 1507.

THE above numerous and flourishing Lodge met on the 21st inst. at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet Street, under the presidency of the W.M., Brother G. Edwards, H. Lovegrove P.P.G.S.W. Middx. S.W., G. W. Knight J.W., Jas. Willing junior P.M. Treas., Perks Sec., T. C. Edmonds S.D., W. J. Bates I.G., G. F. Bruce Organist, J. H. McEwan A.D.C., Fraser W.S., C. J. Scales P.M. Visitors :—Bros. Walter Smith I.G 1319, W. Scurrah J.W. 2048, W. Simpson W.M. 201, Smyth 1974, R. Taylor P.M. 144, J. Stevens P.M. 1426, Chapman W.M. 1922, Murch W.M. 27, McLeod P.M. 884, H. M. Levy P.M. 188. The Lodge was opened and the minutes were confirmed. Bros. J. Hunt and J. Cuthbertson were raised to the third degree. Bro. F. Ball and J. W. Baggi were passed. Ballots were taken for the admission of Bros. O. L. Coles and Jules Pfeifer, which were unanimously in their favour, and both gentlemen were duly initiated into the Order in a very able and impressive manner. A letter of apology was read from the Bros. Stiles, who were unable to be present owing to the serious indisposition of their younger brother. The W.M. announced his intention to act as Steward for the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. Hearty good wishes were given, and Lodge was closed until February. The brethren sat down to a very excellent supper, prepared by Bro. Clemow. The W.M. in eloquent terms proposed the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts. Bro. Scales P.M. said he regretted the absence of the I.P.M., but he had great pleasure in proposing the health of the W.M., who all would agree was entitled to their respect. They had seen Bro. Edwards' excellent working, and they had experienced his genial presidency; he hoped the brethren would give the toast a hearty reception. The W.M. in reply thanked Bro. Scales for his kind remarks, and also the brethren for their reception of the toast. His services were always at their command, and he felt a great pleasure to think his efforts were appreciated. The toast of the initiates came next. The W.M. said that they had introduced two gentlemen into the Order who he thought would be a credit to it, if he might judge by the manner they had paid attention to the ceremony. Bros. Coles and Pfeifer in brief but appropriate terms responded, and then the W.M. proposed the toast of the Past Masters. He regretted the absence of the I.P.M. and Bros. Stiles, but they had two brethren well-known in the Craft, Bros. Scales and Jas. Willing, who were a honour and a credit to the Lodge. Bro. James Willing P.M. said he regretted being late in attendance, but he had been detained at the Lodge of Benevolence. The services of the P.M.'s were not usually in request here, as the W.M.'s in general, and the present Master in particular, needed no assistance. Bro. Scales P.M. followed with a few sensible remarks. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Visitors, coupled with the names of Bros. Simpson W.M. 201, Jas. Stevens P.M. 1426, and McLeod, who severally acknowledged the compliment. After a few more toasts the Tyler was summoned, and he brought the proceedings to a close.

ECCLESTON LODGE AND CHAPTER, No. 1624.

THE seventh Annual Ball in connection with the above Lodge was held on the 23rd inst., at the Westminster Town Hall, Caxton-street, under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. Bottle, and an efficient body of Stewards, Bro. A. A. Johnston fulfilling the office of Secretary. An excellent band was provided by Bro. Seaton, and there were about 130 guests present, most of whom wore Masonic clothing. During the interval a very excellent supper was served in the large hall, provided by Bros. Bertram and Roberts, and superintended by Bro. Wood. The chair was occupied by the W.M., Bro. Bottle, who proposed the usual Loyal toasts. Bro. Vincent P.M. rose to propose a toast. He said they had met to enjoy themselves, and they had an excellent Master to preside over them. As long speeches were not the order of the evening, he would merely ask them to drink his health. The W.M., in an appropriate speech, responded; he thanked Bro. Vincent for proposing his health, and hoped all present would spend a pleasant evening. The W.M., in proposing the toast of the Ladies, said he had much pleasure in calling on his esteemed friend Bro. Charles Taylor to respond for them. He was the last Master, moreover, a bachelor. After a suitable reply had been made, dancing was resumed, and continued until an early hour. Bro. Chilcott ably performed the duties of M.C. Altogether the ball was a great success.

COBORN LODGE, No. 1804.

A MEETING was held at the Bow Vestry Hall, on Thursday evening, the 22nd inst., Bro. Robert Logan P.M. presiding, supported by Bros. Robey S.W., C. J. Tijon J.W., Edinger Treas., Sorick S.D., Johnson J.D., Ellerton Org., Wheatley I.G., Earlam Steward, and several members of the Lodge. Amongst the visitors were Bros. Hancock W.M., Kennett P.M., L. Potts P.M., of the All Saints Lodge 1716, and T. Tyer P.M. 1306. Bros. Osborne and Thompson were raised to the degree of Master Mason, by Bro. Potts, who afterwards initiated Mr. T. H. Smith into the mysteries of ancient Freemasonry. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned for refreshment, when the usual toasts were duly honoured, and the W.M. specially remarked upon the loss sustained by the country and Masonry generally by the death of Bro. Colonel Burnaby, who had been known and respected as a brave soldier, an energetic Mason, an indefatigable explorer, and a clever writer. The W.M. called upon the brethren to receive in silence "The Memory of our deceased Brother," which was duly honoured. As an instance of Colonel Burnaby's interest in Masonry, Bro. Potts related that, a few months since, being with Colonel Burnaby at a City Company's dinner, the gallant Colonel was called upon to respond for the Army, whereupon he rose and said, "Worshipful Master and Brethren." This caused a laugh, when he immediately corrected himself and said, "Worshipful Master, Gentlemen, and Brethren," which was received with many cheers.

Justice Lodge of Instruction, No. 147.—On Thursday, 29th January, at the Brown Bear, High-street, Deptford. Present: Bros. Stringer W.M., J. J. Pitt S.W., W. E. Dilley J.W., Banks, P.M. Treas., S. A. Speight P.M. Sec., C. Bolton P.M. S.D., Prior J.D., Penrose I.G.; P.M.'s Hutchings (Preceptor), Ingram, J. W. Freeman, also Bros. Enticott, H. C. Freeman, Greener, Dale, and Emblin. After preliminaries the Ceremony of Initiation was rehearsed. The questions leading to the Second Degree were then put from the chair and answered by the members. The Lodge was advanced, and the Ceremony of Raising rehearsed. The Lodge was resumed to the First Degree, and, after some formal business had been transacted, was closed in due form and adjourned.

ISRAEL LODGE, No. 205.

THE installation meeting of this old and vigorous Lodge was held on Tuesday evening, at the Cannon-street Hotel, where there was a large and distinguished company of brethren and visitors, under the presidency of the retiring Worshipful Master, J. A. Gartley, who was supported by Bros. E. H. Norden S.W. and W.M. elect, A. J. Henochsberg J.W., A. M. Cohen P.M. Treasurer, C. F. Hogard P.M. Secretary, S. Jacobs S.D., F. Paton J.D., Hamis Organist, &c.; P.M.'s H. J. Phillips, H. M. Harris, E. J. Ehrenberg, J. Da Silva, L. Norden, A. Bassington, S. Harris, I. P. Cohen, M. J. Emanuel, W. Littaur, S. Hyman, H. Hart, T. Wallace, A. Abrahams, J. Jacobs, &c. Amongst the Visitors were Bros. Terry and Binckes (Secretaries of the Benevolent and Boys' Institutions), Rev. Dr. Maguire, J. L. Mather P.G.S.D. Herts, E. Bowyer P.G.S.B., C. E. Tinney W.M. 1319, W. H. Hopegood 1044, H. Palmer 1044, Johnson W.M. elect 1320, J. Roper 879, C. Chaffiona 1201, C. H. Webb P.M. 1607, N. P. Valentine S.W. 1017, W. J. Mann 1328, Davis 1017, A. J. Martin W.M. 188, G. H. Graham 1777 P.P.G.O. Middlesex, Benjamin W.M. 1017, Barnett W.M. 185, McKenzie, G. Kenning P.P.G.S.D. Middlesex, J. Lodge having been opened and the minutes confirmed, the Auditors' Report was read and adopted, showing a balance in the hands of the Treasurer of £94 9s 6d, and a balance in the hands of the Treasurer of the Benevolent Fund of £850 5s 1d. A board of Installed Masters having been constituted Bro. E. H. Norden S.W. and W.M. elect was presented for the benefit of installation, and he was duly installed into the chair by Bro. J. A. Gartley, the retiring W.M., in the presence of 24 W.M.'s and Past Master's, and in a manner that reflected the highest credit on him, and elicited the warmest encomiums of the brethren present. On the readmission of the brethren, the W.M. in appropriate terms invested for the ensuing year:—Bros. J. H. Gartley I.P.M., A. J. Henoschberg S.W., S. Jacobs J.W., A. M. Cohen P.M. Treasurer, C. Hogard P.M. Sec., J. R. Haines Organist, Paton S.D., J. Jacobs J.D., Mesquita I.G., Rev. John Leedham Org., Hunter and Hart Stewards, L. Norden P.M. D.C., Rawles Tyler. At the conclusion of the Installation ceremony the W.M. presented to Bro. Gartley a handsome Past Master's jewel, which had been specially designed by Bro. Rev. M. Haines. The jewel figuratively represents the most essential points connected with Israel's faith. In the centre is a shield on which is the word "Israel" in Hebrew characters, and the number of the Lodge, 205. Supporting the shield on one side is Moses with the sacred rod, and on the other Aaron, with breast-plate and censer, both robed in official dress. On the top of the shield is a crown, over which are the words, "The Crown of the Law," also in Hebrew. A curious coincidence is that the last letters in these two words (which are marked in the jewel) numerically represent 205, the number of the Lodge. There is also a facsimile of the two tablets of stone. In presenting it, Bro. Norden hoped his predecessor would accept it as a mark of the esteem and high approbation in which he was held by the Lodge, and wear it as a reminder of the great affection evinced by the brethren towards him. This was supplemented by an eloquent speech from the Rev. Bro. Haines, Chaplain, and also a very elegantly bound Bible, the gift of the brethren invested during Bro. Gartley's year of office. The collar and silver jewel with which the I.P.M. was invested were presented by the wife of Bro. H. J. Phillips P.M., as a free gift to one whom her husband had spoken of in terms of such great respect. Bro. Gartley appropriately returned thanks for the valuable gifts which had been presented to him, and called attention to the fact that a dispensation to wear Craft and R.A. clothing at the ball to be held on 5th February, at Cannon-street Hotel had been granted by the M.W. Grand Master. Bro. Cohen P.M. proposed, and Bro. Hogard P.M. and Sec. seconded, that two guineas be given annually to the Boys' School, two guineas to the Girls' School, 25s to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution and 25s to the Widows Fund, in the name of the Secretary for the time being. Bro. J. Da Silva proposed that a banner, valued at ten guineas, be painted, with the appropriate design on the jewel, to be hung over the W.M.'s chair. This was seconded and carried unanimously. Three gentlemen were proposed for initiation, and letters of apology were read from Bros. Sir Albert Woods, Sir John Monckton, Horace Brooks Marshall, C.C., Grand Treasurer; the Lord Mayor, T. Fenn, Frank Richardson, Long, and others. Lodge was then closed. Subsequently the brethren sat down to banquet. The W.M. expressed regret that there were not more Grand Officers present, as he had fully expected several. However, he was pleased to see two amongst them that evening, Brothers Lewis Thomas, and Edgar Bowyer, and these he associated with the toast of the Grand Officers. Brother Lewis Thomas felt deeply sensible of the manner in which the toast of the Grand Officers had been received. He only wished some who held high positions in the Craft could have been present to acknowledge the toast, and see the enthusiasm with which the names had been mentioned. He also wished they had been present to witness the excellent working of this old Lodge, and to have seen Bro. Gartley instal his successor into the chair. They heard some little in the Lodge about the feeling of friendship and cordiality which existed between Masons in various nations, and he quite shared in and reciprocated that feeling in every possible way. He entertained the greatest respect for the Lodge of Israel, and when he had the pleasure of visiting it that feeling was greatly enhanced. Bro. Edgar Bowyer thanked the brethren heartily for the manner in which they had coupled his name with the toast. The I.P.M. then proposed the health of the newly installed Worshipful Master, in doing which he said there had been that evening installed into the chair of the Lodge of Israel one well worthy of that high and honourable position. He was quite sure, from what he had seen of Bro. Norden—and he had known him for many years—that when his term of office had expired they would have every reason to be satisfied with the manner in which he had discharged his duties. The W.M., who was cordially received on rising to respond, said it afforded him great pleasure to acknowledge the toast which had just been given in such an enthusiastic manner. When he first joined Freemasonry he had no idea he should be called upon to be Master of the Lodge of Israel in so short a time; indeed, it seemed to him only two or three years since he was initiated by the brother who had so ably done the work of installation that evening. It had been said that he must endeavour to excel even Bro. Gartley in his working, but that would be an impossibility, though to equal it would be his ambition. He hoped at the expiration of his year of office they would have no reason to regret having placed him in the chair of the Lodge. He then proposed the Masonic Charities, and the Lodge of Israel Benevolent Fund, with which he associated the names of Bros. F. Binckes, J. Terry, and A. M. Cohen. Bro. Binckes, in responding, said he felt that any one rising to reply to this toast would meet with a sympathetic audience in the Lodge of Israel. He was glad to see Bro. Cohen looking so well and flourishing, and to hear that the Benevolent Fund over which he presided was flourishing also. In connection with the forthcoming Festival of the Boys' School, he hoped their I.P.M. would meet with a considerable amount of support. They had kindly voted an annual subscription of two guineas, and had extended their benevolence to the same extent to the other Institutions. Whatever they might do in extending their alms towards the Masonic Charities, no one here or elsewhere could ever regret. He did not know he had any need to make any urgent appeal to the brethren of the Lodge of Israel in the cause of Charity, for the liberality of this Lodge from year to year was tolerably well known in support of all the Masonic Institutions. If he (Bro. Binckes) were to dilate upon that subject he should be only speaking of that which the brethren of this Lodge well knew, but as one of those whose duty it was to attend these meetings on behalf of the Charities—and he did enjoy to a very great extent the society of his brother Masons, cementing old friendships and endeavouring to make new ones—he should be glad in the future if, instead of having to make appeals on occasions such as the present, they could find a spontaneous recognition on the part of the brethren of their duty to support the Institutions. It was many years since he had the pleasure of visiting this Lodge, and he called to mind what enormous strides Masonry had made during that time, and the consequent demand there was upon the Charities of the Craft. It was of no use his trying to pit one Institution against another on its particular merits. They had all their special claims and necessities. He felt perfectly certain no egotistical appeal was necessary on behalf of any one Institution when addressing brethren on occasions of this sort. They all knew the Committee of the Boys' School were erecting a Preparatory School for the admission of boys, and this would entail an additional annual expenditure. It was merely in connection with that project that he ventured to issue an appeal recently, which appeal, he was glad to say, had been favourably received, and by none more readily than by the members of the Lodge of Israel, whom he had now the pleasure of seeing around him. Bro. J. Terry was also most cordially received on rising to acknowledge the toast. He felt it necessary to say only a few ords in response, merely to briefly speak in support of the list which their excellent I.P.M., Brother Gartley, intended to take up at the approaching Festival of the Masonic Benevolent Institution. He asked for their support of Bro. Gartley's list when he made an appeal to them in view of the coming Festival. Unless they got a considerable amount in aid of the Widows' fund, it would be impossible for the Committee to enlarge their borders. Last year they placed twenty additional annuitants on the fund; the year before fifteen, and the year before that twelve; yet with all their increase they had now reached the culminating point in the history of the Institution. There were eighty-one candidates on the Widows' side, and not a single vacancy. Such a thing had never before occurred in the history of the Institution, and he hoped it would never occur again. He left it in their hands to relieve the enormous amount of distress by supplementing to the utmost of their power Brother Gartley's list, all the more as they had a widow of a member of their Lodge on the funds of the Institution. Bro. Cohen P.M. responded on behalf of the Lodge Benevolent Fund, and announced that a sum of £16 19s 6d had been collected in the room that evening. The Worshipful Master in proposing the health of the Immediate Past Master, remarked that the manner in which he had discharged the duties of his office during the past year, and the way in which he had performed the installation ceremony that day, left nothing for him to say in proposing this toast. He therefore, without any preface, asked the brethren to receive the toast as it deserved. The I.P.M. was warmly cheered on rising to respond, and in the course of his observations in reply he said he sincerely thanked them for the hearty manner in which the toast had been proposed and accepted. He was rather late in the field, perhaps, with regard to the Charities, but he hoped to be well supported, as he invariably was in the Lodge of Israel. He congratulated Bro. Cohen upon the success of the Benevolent Fund, and expressed the hope that Bro. Cohen's desire to see it reach four figures might be realised. At the same time he wished them to think of him on behalf of the Old People when he went up as Steward in the coming month. Visitors were not allowed to subscribe to the Lodge Benevolent Fund, nor could they derive any benefit from it; but if they would contribute to his list for the R.M.B.I. he would swallow all qualms of conscience and accept what they might be pleased to give. The Visitors were heartily welcomed, and the other toasts were the Past Masters, the Officers of the Lodge, and the Tyler's toast. The proceedings were enlivened by some excellent vocal and instrumental music and recitations, a notable feature in which were Bro. Graham's whistled selections from Il Travatore and his ever favourite song "The Speaker's Eye." The réunion was one of through harmony and enjoyment.

OLYMPIC.

CERTAIN theatres, like certain countries, become as it were a mere typographical expression. The Olympic, like Byzantium of the Lower Empire, has had so many phantom rulers, that it might rather belong to Myth than to History. It was once illumined with the genius of Robson, it enjoyed an interval of prosperity with Henry Neville; but for a long time talent and energy have seemed powerless to bring the public to Wych-street. To those who were present on the first night of Mark Quinton's new play, "In His Power," it seemed that a magic martingale had been discovered, and Mr. Bruce found a new success as great as that of "Called Back" or the "Private Secretary."

The action of the new play lies in Paris, at the time of the siege. The hero, Captain Graham, an Englishman, in the French Hussars, is married to a lady he supposes to be a widow. She had been, tricked into a false marriage, had left her betrayer, and six years ago received news of his death. The scene opens on the first anniversary of her marriage with Graham. She has promised to tell the story of her life to her husband, but he, seeing how much she is distressed, refuses to hear it. He leaves her, and as she sits in happy meditation, Scara, her betrayer, now a spy of the Germans, makes his way into the room. She looks up, horror stricken at the sight; he demands money as the price of his silence, and when she refuses and defies him, makes her believe her husband's life is in his power, and, to save it, she at last consents to get a copy of the despatch with which he is to be entrusted for General Schenzy. He gives her a sleeping draught to effect this object. The Captain unexpectedly returns. Scara hides, and then follows a powerful scene, in which the wife, agonised by fear for her husband, humiliated by the treachery she is guilty of, endeavours to obtain sight of the paper. We heartily congratulate Mr. Kyrle Bellew on the thoroughly manly and unaffected portrait he gives us of Graham, the tender husband and brave soldier. His kindly unwillingness to refuse his wife, gradually changing to indignant impatience at her persistence, could not have been more delicately rendered; it was a study by Meissonnier. He is the simple-hearted hussar, free from any of those airs and graces which at one time Mr. Kyrle Bellew's friends greatly objected to. He enters so completely into the character that some of his most effective touches are gained by the silent eloquence of facial expression and attitude. Miss Ada Cavendish, as Marie, acted throughout this trying scene with poignant intensity. When Graham finally turns from his wife's cajolements with vexation, and sits down to study the despatch he is ordered to deliver verbally, Scara emerges from his hiding place, and signs to Marie she must obey. Coffee is brought, and she, with white face and shaking hands, drugs her husband's cup. He falls asleep, and Scara copies the paper now fallen from the captain's hand, and hastens away, taking by mistake Graham's overcoat instead of his own. Marie leaves the room. Dr. Cameron (Mr. J. G. Grahame), a friend of the family, enters, finds the captain in heavy sleep, suspects foul play, and finds trace of chloral in the coffee cup. Suspicion seems inevitably to point to Marie, and here Kyrle Bellew's fine touch was apparent in the undercurrent of agonised suspense, showing through the self-possession befitting a soldier. Scara's cost is discovered, and his address on a letter.

The first act lasted an hour and forty minutes, but the interest so gathers and accumulates as it proceeds that probably not one of the audience had realised the flight of time. When the act drop fell the artists were recalled again and again, Miss Ada Cavendish and Mr. Kyrle Bellew dividing the chief honours, though liberal applause was given to Mr. Cartwright and Mr. J. G. Grahame, both summoned by name, and doubtless there was as much pleasure behind the curtain as "in front." The next scene opens in Scara's lodgings, and here we find a latent Nemesis in the boy René, whom Scara has steeped in vice in order to secure a ready tool. René asks for money, and is refused, with mockery, by his master, who no longer needs him. Mr. Mark Quinton plays the boy, and though but a small part it gains great tragic force in his hands. René leaves, swearing vengeance, and presently Marie steals in to learn on what terms she can be rid of her persecutor. The interview is interrupted by the arrival of her husband and Dr. Cameron, and her attempted concealment, flight, and final discovery. Here, through the crowded house every breath was hushed, and Marie's helpless, hopeless despair, and Graham's speechless horror at her seeming falseness held the audience spellbound.

In the third act, thanks to the kindly doctor, Marie is reconciled to her husband. Scara, who has been unmasked by René, and is flying for his life, seeks protection from Grahame, and begs a safe conduct as the price of silence. Graham, for his wife's good name, is about to give it, when René, who is leading the pursuit, springs from the balcony into the room and demands justice on the traitor. Scara attempts to stab him, when a wild shout is heard without, a body of soldiers hurriedly enter, and seize their prisoner. Marie, from the window sees Scara dragged off by the mob. She turns away in horror, when the sharp sound of rifle bullets pierce the tumult; there is a shout of fierce triumph, and we know justice has been done. As the curtain fell on the last act the applause that had greeted each preceding one broke forth with still greater enthusiasm. Miss A. Cavendish and Mr. Bellew were summoned again and again, Mr. Cartwright and Mr. J. H. Grahame received their full meed of honour, and then came loud calls for the author, who had to appear four times; on the last occasion the young hero of the night being led on by his happy manager, Mr. Bruce. For so youthful an author the play is a great success, and though after the glamour of the brilliant interpretation we seek to judge the work on its merits, it may be easy to find weak points in construction, and well-worn melodramatic tricks, yet the story sweeps onward with such vigour and life that the spectator has no moment for critical carping if only he ignore the inartistic and quite useless "comic relief" which has been pitchforked into the story. This is represented by Mr. and Mrs. Walker, an impossible pair of Cook's tourists, who are staying in Paris during the siege, how one cannot guess why. They have no connection with the plot. Mrs. Walker is a severe matron, and to escape her wrath her husband enlists in a line regiment, and then, to oblige her, discharges himself without further formality. Mr. Elsworthy and Miss Lizzie Claremont had a very ungrateful task in their efforts to amuse the gods. They did all that was possible with such material.

Mr. Mark Quinton tells us the play is original, else we should have imagined there were symptoms of its French origin, though no French author would have entrusted despatches for General Chanzy to an English volunteer, nor have made a tourist from Camberwell play at soldiers in Paris during that awful time of hardship and starvation. The Scara of Mr. Cartwright is very powerfully and carefully thought out, except here the artist forgets that this man has been able to win the love of a pure and lovely girl; he should therefore surely cloak his villainy in some outward show of grace and plausibility.

We can congratulate all concerned in the production of "In his power," and especially the playgoers who have for some months to come true artistic enjoyment before them.

HER MAJESTY'S.

HER Majesty's ill-fated Opera House in the Haymarket is at last escaping from the frosts which have blighted the hopes of successive managers, whether they have produced there live bloodhounds, black minstrels, or internasional tragedies. M. La Fargue has secured Odoardo Barri to conduct the orchestra; his name is an assurance of the care and finish we shall find in his work. On Saturday an immense crowd gathered in the auditorium, and had evidently come to enjoy the music. The multitudinous shilling behaved with the decorum of a "Musical at Home." The violin performances of Mdlle. Lang and the delightful singing of Mdlle. Segur created enthusiastic applause. Among so much that is good we cannot but regret the introduction of the short-skirted chorus ladies to sing a vocal waltz (the Fan). Their hair powder and patches seemed in questionable taste outside a music hall, but the limelight effects, blue, red, and yellow, are quite beyond justification. Mr. King's patriotic songs were much applauded, and "Jack's Reward" especially delighted the audience.

VAUDEVILLE.

THE doubts and misgivings that existed on the first appearance of "Saints and Sinners," lest Mawworm's susceptibilities should prove fatal to Mr. Jones's latest production, have not been realised. The poignant and touching story, and the admirable interpreters it has found in Mr. Thorne's company, find full and appreciative audiences. Mr. Thorne's rendering of the gentle old pastor has the pathos and finish of a picture by Faed. Mr. Macintosh, as Samuel Haggard, has gained still more trenchant individualty in his striking portrait, whilst certain touches suggesting exaggeration have disappeared. "Saints and Sinners" will probably run for some months to come.

CANTERBURY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.

THE historic Canterbury, the first founded and still facile princeps among music halls, offers to its patrons a very interesting programme. Among the various items we would mention the very quaint and clever tricks Mdlle. Scherazade puts her trained elephants through. They obey their delicate little mistress with quite touching docility. The Eugenes, in their correct evening dress, do wonderful things in mid-air, and Colonel Boone and Miss Carlotta, in their den of lions, supply sensation enough for an antique "Roman Holiday." The management deserves all praise for proving that fun and amusement at a music hall need have no element of vulgarity in it.

PROV. GRAND LODGE OF NORFOLK.

THE annual meeting was held on Monday, the 26th inst., at the Town Hall, King's Lynn, under the presidency of the Right Hon. Lord Suffield, K.C.B., Rt. Worshipful Prov. Grand Master, who was supported by Major Penrice P.G.D., Worshipful Deputy Prov. Grand Master, and a very large number of Present and Past Provincial Grand Officers. At four o'clock the members of the different Lodges assembled, and shortly afterwards the Prov. Grand Master, preceded by his Grand Officers, entered the Lodge room, when Prov. Grand Lodge was opened in due form. After the Prov. G.M. had been saluted according to ancient custom, and due recognition given to the Deputy Prov. Grand Master, the Provincial Grand Secretary suggested that the Regulations for the Government of Grand Lodge during the time of public business should be taken as read. This having been agreed to, the Roll of Lodges of the Province was called, and representatives of each responded. The Minutes of the Annual and Special Provincial Grand Lodges held at Norwich on 13th December 1883, and 22nd April 1884, were then read, put for confirmation, and sanctioned.

At this stage of the proceedings it was announced that the Most Worshipful the Grand Master desired admission, and, attended by Stewards specially appointed, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales entered the Lodge. His Royal Highness having been saluted, the Charities Committee presented their Report. This embraced a proposed scheme for an Education Fund which had been suggested by the Special Committee appointed for the purpose at the Provincial Grand Lodge held on Thursday, 13th December 1883. The proposed scheme was as follows:—

1. That a Provincial Education Fund be established; that the means of ensuring a permanent and sound source of income be discussed, and decided at the next Provincial Grand Lodge.
2. That annual subscriptions as well as donations to this Fund be solicited throughout the Province.
3. That a list of subscribers and donors be published annually, and circulated throughout the Province.
4. That all donations to the Fund be invested in the name of Prov. Grand Secretary, as Treasurer to this Fund, and that of the Secretary to Charities Committee, and the interest thereof be only expended.
5. That the Lodges be solicited to become annual subscribers as well as donors to the Fund.
6. That the selection of the children to be educated be left entirely with the Charities Committee.
7. That in order to start the Fund with the least possible delay, the Provincial Grand Lodge should be appealed to through the Board of Finance, to make an immediate grant of fifty pounds.

In the course of the discussion that ensued the Prov. Grand Master referred to the difficulties attending the election of candidates into the Central Scholastic Institutions. Hitherto the proposed scheme for the district had not perhaps been so fully considered as it might have been, but he was of opinion something might be achieved by the brethren of his Province. It was very desirable the brethren should give expression to their sentiments. The M.W. the Grand Master was present, and he (Lord Suffield) knew His Royal Highness, who had selected their county for residential purposes, personally felt an interest in, and would give attention to, any remarks that might be elicited. After several brethren had given expression to their sentiments, the first six clauses, as above, were agreed to, en bloc, and a suggestion was made that each Lodge in the Province should contribute, say £2 2s from its funds. This arrangement was tacitly agreed to, and then the seventh clause as above was formally submitted for consideration and agreed to. The Fund may therefore be said to be fairly started. Contributions from individual members of the Province were invited, and one brother at once intimated his intention to contribute £5. The Provincial Grand Master then declared the offices held in Provincial Grand Lodge vacant, and requested the jewels and clothing appertaining to such offices to be delivered up. Brother Major Penrice was requested to again serve as Deputy Provincial Grand Master and Brother Hamon le Strange was re-elected Grand Treasurer. The other appointments were then made, as follow:—

Bro. H. G. Barwell P.P.G. Sec. 52 ...	Prov. G. Senior Warden
C. A. B. Bignold P.M. 52 ...	Prov. G. Junior Warden
Rev. J. R. Slight W.M. 107 ...	Prov. G. Chaplain
G. W. G. Barnard P.M. 933 ...	Prov. G. Registrar
J. B. Aldis P.M. 52	Prov. G. Secretary
W. T. Coy W.M. 102	Prov. G. Senior Deacon
T. C. R King P.M. 213 ..	Prov. G. Junior Deacon
W. W. Lake P.M. 93 ...	Prov. G. Supt. of Works
S. J. Carman P.M. 1500 ...	Prov. G. Director of Cers.
A. R. T. Woolbright P.M. 1808	Prov. G. A. D. of Ceremonies
F. A. Crisp P.M. 85 ...	Prov. G. Sword Bearer
E. C. Chapman P.M. 1114 ..	Prov. Sen. G. Standard Bearer
Hy. Owles W.M. 100 ...	Prov. Jun. G. Standard Bearer
A. H. Cross 107	Prov. Grand Organist
Hy. Blomfield 52	Prov. G. Assistant Secretary
H. Rosling W.M. 807 ...	Prov. G. Pursuivant
John Reeve P.M. 1741 ...	Prov. G. Asst. Pursuivant
Robert Gunn P.M. 93 ...	Prov. G. Tyler
J. G. Churchman 107, S. B. Ffolkes 107, J. W. French 100, D. R. Gaul 1808, A. Massingham 996, W. H. Moss 943 ...	Prov. G. Stewards

The routine work of Provincial Grand Lodge was then proceeded with. His Royal Highness the Grand Master expressed his satisfaction that the members of the Province were considering the best means to relieve the distress of their less fortunate brethren and their orphans. The proposed Educational Scheme had his best wishes. He was gratified to know that a brother had already tendered a donation, and doubtless many other brethren would follow so praiseworthy an example. For his own part he (the Grand Master) would be happy to subscribe, and he trusted their efforts would have a satisfactory result. Provincial Grand Lodge was then closed. It was matter of general regret that the arrangements for this meeting had not been better conceived; there was a much larger attendance than it seems was anticipated. Hence arose many disappointments, especially where brethren had travelled, as was the case in two or three instances—some considerable distance to attend the meeting. A banquet followed, of which some 230 guests partook.

"YE ANTIENTE FRATERNITIE OF YE RAHERE ALMONERS."

A VERY attractive Smoking Concert was given by the "Rahere Almoners" at the Champion Hotel, Aldersgate-street, on Monday, the 26th inst. Admission was by invitation tickets, and these were sought for so freely that many friends of the Society were unfortunately disappointed. Bro. A. C. Morton, C.C., as Prior for the present year, occupied the chair. Bro. James Stevens Chancellor, and Mr. Thomas Sangster, C.C., Recorder, the two gentlemen who are the modern founders of the "Fraternitie," were present, the former in the capacity of Vice Chairman, and the latter generally attending to the comforts of the numerous guests. Bro. G. S. Graham undertook the arrangement of the Concert, and was assisted by several well-known vocalists, who are also Freemasons. The musical services of these brethren were given most effectively, and without the slightest delay, over a period of three hours, with the result that the utmost satisfaction was expressed by all present. A contribution to the alms chest of the Fraternitie was made voluntarily by the audience, and produced a sum total which will, it was said, add welcome funds to the balance in hand for the relief of the distressed. We noticed several prominent Freemasons in full enjoyment of an entertainment which reflected much credit upon all concerned in its management. It was announced that probably the "Fraternitie" will repeat this Concert, with additional support from talented artists, at the Cannon-street Hotel, prior to the close of the season.

It is with pleasure we announce that the Third City Masonic Charitable Association, held in connection with the Sincerity Lodge of Instruction, No. 174, at Bro. Seaton's, Railway Tavern, London-street, is in an eminently flourishing condition. It now numbers 120 subscribers, and four ballots took place at its ninth meeting on Monday last. This makes nineteen of ten guineas each since its formation. We congratulate its able and energetic Secretary, Bro. Hugh Hobbs, to whom this success is largely due. The successful ballots were secured by Bros. Marsh, Wise, Duffin, and W. Fraser.

LODGES OF INSTRUCTION.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—At an installation meeting I recently attended, the subject of Lodges of Instruction was incidentally referred to, the Worshipful Master observing that frequently when those useful "Nurseries" were established in connection with their Lodges the members were expected to attend, and that if they did not a certain slight was imparted to them. But, as he pointed out, many Lodges whose meetings are held in the City are made up of brethren resident in outlying districts, and it was difficult as well as expensive for them to attend frequently, as they might desire. There is no doubt considerable truth in this, and no better instance could be given of it than in the Lodge referred to (United Mariners, No. 30) whose regular meetings are held at the Guildhall Tavern, City. The brethren composing this excellent Lodge are drawn from East, North, and South of London, and even beyond the area of the metropolis, and the Lodge of Instruction being held at Peckham it would be extremely inconvenient for the brethren to attend the weekly meetings of the latter, although it is one of the best worked Lodges of Instruction South of the Thames. The Worshipful Master, in his speech on the subject, said it was advisable for all Masonic students to attach themselves to Lodges of Instruction near to their own homes, and in this I heartily agree, providing they can find that instruction which is beneficial and the surroundings are congenial to their tastes. But at any rate there should be a little practical support and assistance given to Lodges of Instruction by mother Lodges, and as a rule I believe such is the case. In other respects Lodges of Instruction are useful in bringing together members of various sections of the Craft who, but for such means of intercourse, might probably have remained strangers to each other, and this is a most desirable feature of the "schools," so to speak, in which intelligent and earnest Masons seek to graduate.

Yours faithfully,

MARINER.

THE BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Your remarks recently on the prospects of candidates at the coming elections were elaborated in eloquent terms by Bro. Terry, the active Secretary of the above Institution, at a Lodge banquet I attended the other night, and his statements fully bore out your observations that "the all-important question of the moment" is whether it will be possible for the committee to increase the number of female annuitants. There is very little time now left in which to answer this question, seeing that the Festival is so near at hand, and if anything is to be done to avert the ugly crisis which threatens the Institution, the effort must be "short, sharp, and decisive." I am not one of those who are always lamenting the inability to meet all the demands of charity, for in every benevolent institution—and their name is legion—we hear the same old story, that the hands of the executive are cramped for want of the necessary funds to assist all the cases which are presented to them as deserving of assistance. But in the case of our Old Folks' Asylum at Croydon, the circumstances are exceptional, and it seems to me that Brother Terry, taking the "tip," if I may be allowed to use such an expression, from your leading article last week, struck the right nail on the head when, whilst rejoicing at the prosperity of the other two Institutions, he said "the very reverse of the picture presents itself when you mention the Old People." It is undoubtedly a matter to be deplored that there should be no less than 127 applicants for the bounty of the Craft, and that of these no fewer than 81 are widows, for whom not a single vacancy is yet open. On the male side there are 46 candidates, for whom there are only a dozen vacancies, which is bad enough in all conscience; but when we consider the greater number of poor helpless widows standing on the threshold of our charity, without the slightest ray of hope of obtaining the aid of which they stand in such urgent need, the "picture" is a very gloomy one indeed.

Of course there is no knowing beforehand what the result of the forthcoming Festival may be, but Brother Terry tells us straightly that unless a greater success is achieved next month than has ever been known before, the committee will not be able to elect one widow out of the list of 81 who are seeking admission. Such a crisis in the history of the Institution has never taken place. It will be recollected that last year there was a large list of candidates, and the committee decided to place 15 extra candidates on the funds. The year before that eight additional vacancies were created, and in the year next preceding there were ten. Yet although the executive have striven to cope with the increasing difficulties that have presented themselves, the cry is "still they come." It is often urged that the constantly growing demands upon the various Charities of the Craft are in a great measure the result of the vast increase in the number of Lodges since the accession to office of our illustrious Grand Master. But this argument scarcely tells, so far as the Benevolent Institution is concerned, because those who are seeking to participate in the advantages of this Charity must have been initiated years previous to that event, otherwise they would not be eligible for admission on the Old Folks' List. A man might be initiated to-day, and die to-morrow, and his child would be eligible to apply for the benefits of the Craft, though of course his chances would be infinitesimal; but the advantages of the Benevolent Institution are not so cheaply purchased. If it were so Freemasonry would speedily degenerate into a friendly society, which we must all hope and trust it never will become. It must not be thought that any man who can command sufficient money to defray his initiation expenses is eligible for admission into Freemasonry. He must be known to his proposer and seconder as a man of sound judgment and strict integrity—one whom he would not hesitate to admit to his own family circle; and Lodges which act up to this rule need never fear what their ultimate success may be. Men actuated by such principles are bound together by one tie of brotherhood, and when distress overtakes any of them the rest should hasten with largeness of heart to alleviate the misfortune of the bereaved widow and orphans. Bro. Terry has often pointed out in my hearing, that the boys and girls of the future must be, and will be, educated; but it becomes a different matter with the aged of both sexes when they are going down the hill of life more rapidly than they ascended it. It may be that when these aged and indigent ones appeal to the bounty of the Craft they are unknown to those who are not old enough to remember their early connection with the Order. They are too proud to seek the help of the poor-house, and it may be that the widow suddenly remembers her husband was a Mason. She applies to the Institution, which does its best to step in and enable her to close her days in calmful peace and repose. The Craft has enabled many a poor man and widow to bless the Great Architect of the Universe that they ever belonged to Freemasonry; and this thought should stimulate all the brethren to do what they can to support the three Institutions of which we are so justly proud. One remark of Bro. Terry's always "tells," and that is when he points out that whereas children may be, and often are, taken care of and educated by relatives, it is a rare occurence indeed to hear of an old man or widow being adopted. I remember the same earnest advocate of this Institution once exclaiming facetiously "who ever heard of a man adopting his mother-in-law?" It is therefore necessary that the most strenuous efforts should be made to strengthen the hands of the Committee at the coming Festival, so that some at least of the deserving ones now under notice may be enabled to close their lives in calm repose and in brotherly love with all mankind.

It has been pointed out that there is no time to lose if such a desirable object is to be effected; and I hope that all who may read these lines may be stirred into increased activity by the urgency of the case which is presented, and which is without precedent in the annals of the Benevolent Institution.

I remain,

Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

ECHO.

MASONS ATTENDING CHURCH.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I was present recently at the meeting of a young Lodge, at which the subject was mentioned of the desirableness or otherwise of Masonic Lodges attending divine service at stated intervals, and especially on the days of installation meetings. Now, whilst in no way wishing to say anything disrespectful towards the clergy or ministers of religion, or those whose conscientious scruples might suggest such a parade, I question the advisability of copying the example of certain friendly societies and rural clubs of inaugurating their festivities by attending the parish church. I am not sure that such demonstrations would be legal under the Book of Constitutions, or whether it would not require a special dispensation for the purpose. Perhaps some of your correspondents can enlighten me on these points.

I looked to your report recently to see if any reference was made to the suggestion, made no doubt with good intentions by a worthy brother, but I suppose you did not consider it of sufficient public interest. But if you will allow me to point out one matter which appears to me rather ludicrous, you may perhaps recollect that the brother who suggested that Masons should attend church in a body, said he had spoken to the vicar with that view, and that the reverend gentleman was "quite willing" that they should do so. No doubt; but without any disparagement of the vicar, I fail to see any magnanimity in his "willingness" to do so. In all probability he would be more pleased than "willing," inasmuch as, besides the well-known liberality of Freemasons on such occasions, the display would draw a large congregation to the church, and thus a very convenient opportunity would be afforded of securing a substantial offertory for some object outside the Craft. I would not object to that either, but in many instances which I recollect of Masons attending church it has been at the request and not the sanction of the clergyman, who sought aid from the Masonic body to some charitable object and that aid, in such cases, is always most cheerfully and liberally responded to.

You will see the analogy between the two cases. It is no favour that Masons should attend divine service at any church, because they could do so without the sanction—I presume—of the officiating minister. But, on the other hand, when the brethren respond to an appeal from the minister to attend church, and thus excite additional outside sympathy with the cause of charity, it is a different matter, and quite within the bounds of those grand principles which are the foundation of Freemasonry.

Thanking you to insert this letter, believe me to remain,

Yours fraternally,

CHISWICK.

THE OFFICE OF GRAND TREASURER.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR BROTHER,—I shall feel obliged if you can find room for the following in your next issue:—I have heard for some time past that brethren who are going about canvassing votes for the office of G.Treasurer are reporting that my nominee, Bro. Cama, had withdrawn his name; this is corroborated by your contemporary, who says that he hears, on what appears to be good authority, that my nominee, Bro. Cama, intends to retire from the contest. Will you allow me to contradict these reports? which are circulated for the purpose of inducing the brethren to promise their votes to the other candidates; and who, but for these reports, would perhaps have shown their appreciation of the good works of Bro. Cama by endeavouring to secure him the honourable position to which he aspires. Having given this denial to the reports, the matter must be left in the hands of the brethren, as neither Bro. Cama nor I shall canvass the voters. But as an extract from the Freemason has been printed and sent to the Masters of Lodges by the Provincial brethren who are assisting Bro. Woodall, showing his support of the Craft, I may shortly recapitulate some of the good deeds of Bro. Cama. He is Patron of our three Institutions—the Old People, the Boys, and the Girls; one out the only three Vice-Patrons of the Mark Benevolent Institution, whilst Mrs. Cama is the only Patroness. She will also, during the approaching Festival, be a Patroness of all the three above named Institutions, of which the Secretaries were aware before the candidates for the Grand Treasurership were announced.

I am, Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

THOS. CLARK, W.M. 1178.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Your correspondent "A COUNTRY EDITOR" has accurately expressed the feeling of surprise which will pervade the minds of many brethren by the arbitrary resolution which was carried by a small majority at the recent Provincial Grand Lodge held at Exeter, "that no publication of the meetings of Freemasons or the business transacted therein shall be permitted without the sanction of the P.G.M. for the time being, in writing, and that no publication of the business of a private Lodge be allowed unless with the approval of the majority of the brethren in open Lodge assembled.

Speaking from a wide experience, would you permit me to state that probably in no part of Great Britain does Masonry flourish more than in the West of England, and whilst paying due deference to the R.W.P.G. Masters, Lord Ebrington and Lord Mount Edgcumbe, for their zeal and ability, the proud position of Freemasonry in the West is attributable not only to the great number of distinguished men of the Army, Navy, learned societies, professions, and the leading men of commerce, found enrolled among the "free and accepted," but to the fact that the Press of the West are "one and all" ever faithful to the Craft, and give generally such excellent and studiously cautious reports of its meetings. And what Craftsman, seeing the names of these good and true men from time to time engaged in deeds of charity, brotherly love, relief, and truth, does not feel an impulse of pride in having a kinship with them? And, in a somewhat similar fashion, to the many excellent men yet outside our portals these names must ever prove a most powerful incentive to seek admission to "ye Mystic Tie."

Nothing, in my opinion, gives a good Mason more pleasure, when unable to be present himself, than to get a fair copy of the reportable business of the Lodge he is interested in; and as the years roll on how many Lodges do we not get an interest in! Besides, Masonry being a moral Institution, aiming at self-architecture, self-completion, removing the knobs and excrescences from our conduct and life. I utterly fail to see how any brother whose conduct is square can reasonably object to his name figuring in print in connection with any Masonic gathering.

Our grand Order will live, and has already spread its benign influence over the globe, despite the proverbial black sheep which is found in every flock.

Suppression of the reports of our festivals, installations, &c., would tend to deprecate our Order, whilst, on the contrary, a fair report of the proceedings must conduce to a wholesome and salutary result, and in no conceivable way injure our ancient, loyal, and lawful community, but confer great pleasure to a vast number of the brethren. Let us earnestly hope that the extraordinary resolution in question may be speedily rescinded.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

WM. HARRIS, J.W. 1993,

Acting S.W. for Bro. Lord Wolseley.

PAST MASTERS' JEWELS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Permit me to convey to you a sentiment which prevailed amongst a company of brethren the other night in conversation upon the above subject. As you are aware, it is the custom now-a-days, when a Master has completed his term of office "with credit to himself and satisfaction to others," that he be presented with a Past Master's jewel, "as a mark of esteem and in recognition of the services he has rendered during his year of office," and so forth. There is nothing much to grumble at in this, so far as I can see; but it is suggested that, instead of making such a distinction and variety in these marks of esteem, they should be uniform in design and value, thus preventing any "comparisons," which are at all times odious. Why, for instance, should one Past Master have his jewel bedecked with diamonds or other precious stones, whilst another has only the plain gold? It is not that the work has been done better by the former than by the latter, but simply that those who can give the more valuable jewel are better able to afford it. And in some cases I have known Past Masters vain enough to add the brilliants themselves. It was suggested in conversation that either all Past Masters' jewels should be of one uniform size and value, or that a permanent jewel should be obtained for each Lodge, and emblematical of it, which should be handed down to successive Masters as they pass the chair, in the same manner as the Lord Mayor's chain and such like insignia. I see in your report of the Chiswick Lodge recently, a brother was presented with a jewel, "surmounted by a beautiful miniature picture of old Chiswick Church." Every Lodge has its history, from which an emblematical design of that character might be formed, and the permanent jewel could, as I have hinted, be worn by each successive I.P.M. That would give a distinctive value and honour to the decoration, and prevent the absurd variety we now see on the breasts of our Past Masters, some of whom are bespangled with precious stones, whilst those who cannot afford such luxuries have to content themselves with the modest plain gold. I expect I shall draw down upon my devoted head the execrations of many Worshipful Masters who are looking forward to "the happiest moment of their lives" when they shall receive the coveted reward of their year's labours; but, as I have said, the suggestion is not mine; it only came out in conversation. It was, moreover, hinted, in opposition to the elaboration now being attempted in Founders' jewels, that such decorations are illegal, and cannot be worn in Grand Lodge. It is not a Masonic jewel, and I question whether it is consonant with the Constitutions to wear it. Can you convince me if I am wrong in this assumption?

Yours fraternally,

QUIZ.

JOPPA CHAPTER, No. 188.

THE regular Convocation was held on the 26th inst., at the Albion, Aldersgate-street. Present:—Comps. A. J. Henochsberg Z., W. Littaur M., J. Da Silva J., M. Emanuel P.Z. S.E., H. Phillips S.N., J. Lazarus P.Z. Treas., J. W. Dewsnap P.S. P.Z.'s S. M. Lazarus, H. M. Levy, L. Lazarus I.P.Z., P. Dickinson H. P. Isaac. Amongst the visitors were Comps. J. A. Gartley 142, Nerwich 158, G. Hobenstock late 188. The Chapter was opened and the minutes were confirmed. Ballots were taken for the admission of Bros. J. Jacobs 205, S. Schmerl 205, M. Bromet, and E. J. Ehrenberg, who were unanimously elected, and duly exalted into R.A. Masonry. The working of the M.E.Z., Principals, and Officers was perfect. A sum of two guineas was placed on the list of Comp. L. Lazarus P.Z., who will serve as Steward for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and the Widows of Freemasons. Two brethren were proposed for exaltation, and Comp. Gartley 142 as a joining member. Hearty good wishes were given, and the Chapter was closed until March. The Company now sat down to a sumptuous banquet, provided by Bro. Swayne, and superintended by Comp. M. Silver, after which the M.E.Z. proposed the usual Loyal and R.A. toasts. Comp. L. Lazarus P.Z. had great pleasure in proposing the health of the M.E.Z. Those who had seen Comp. Henochsberg work must have felt a pleasure in hearing him. He had fulfilled the duties of the chair that evening most perfectly. He could recommend all who aspired to the chair to try and emulate him. The M.E.Z. said he could hardly find words to thank Comp. Lazarus for his kind expressions. Those who had preceded him had done the work well, and he would try and emulate them. He trusted at the expiration of his year of office they would say he had done his duty. The toast of the exaltees was next on the list. The M.E.Z. felt they would be a credit to the Order; they were all personally known to him, and he felt sure they would eventually strive to become occupants of the chair. Comps. Schmerl, Jacobs, Bromet, and Ehrenberg, in appropriate terms, severally responded. For the toast of the Visitors Comps. J. A. Gartley, Nerwich and Hobenstock replied, and the M.E.Z. then announced that Comp. Gartley had signified his intention to become a joining member. In speaking to the toast of the P.Z.'s, the M.E.Z. said their working was famed. It was to them the success of the Chapter was due. They had all done their duties well. Comps. H. M. Levy and L. Lazarus responded. The H., J., and Junior Officers were complimented. In due course the Janitor's toast was given, and the company separated, after passing a very agreeable and harmonious evening.

At the North London Chapter of Improvement, at the Alwyne Castle Tavern, St. Paul's Road, Canonbury, on Thursday, the 29th instant, at 8 o'clock. Comp. D. P. Holness M.E.Z., G. Gregory H., M. Money J., J. E. Sheffield S.E., W. Radcliffe S.N., J. Lister P.S. The respective offices were ably filled by the Companions. A very profitable and enjoyable evening was spent.

FRESH DISCOVERIES AT THE FISH RIVER CAVES.—These natural subterranean wonders, which more than rival the famous Kentucky Caves, have had their name altered by the New South Wales Government, and will henceforth be known as the Jenolan Caves. The keeper reports that he has made another interesting discovery, having found the entrances to several new caves, the existence of which has hitherto been unknown. Having proceeded a short distance into one of them he was lowered down over a precipice, at the bottom of which he found a number of fossil bones. Some of the remains are stated to be those of an animal of the tiger species, and the others are at present unknown. The exploration of the interior of the caves was, however, retarded for the time being, owing to their being flooded, by reason of heavy rains.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Coughs, Influenza.—The soothing properties of these medicaments render them well worthy of trial in all diseases of the respiratory organs. In common colds and influenza the Pills, taken internally, and the Ointment rubbed over the chest and throat, are exceedingly efficacious. When influenza is epidemic, this treatment is the easiest, safest, and surest. Holloway's Pills purify the blood, remove all obstacles to its free circulation through the lungs, relieve the over gorged air tubes, and render respiration free, without reducing the strength, irritating the nerves, or depressing the spirits; such are the ready means of saving suffering when any one is afflicted with colds, coughs, bronchitis, and other chest complaints, by which so many persons are seriously and permanently afflicted in most countries.

OBJECTIONS TO FREEMASONRY.

FIRST, its secrecy consists in nothing more than methods by which the members are enabled to recognise each other; and in certain doctrines, symbols, or instructions, which can be obtained only after a process of initiation, and under a promise that they shall be made known to none who have not submitted to the same initiation, but which, with the exception of these particulars, have no reservations from the public; and secondly, of those societies which, in addition to their secret modes of recognition and secret doctrines, add an entire secrecy as to the object of their association, the time of their meetings and even the very names of their members. To the first of these classes belong all those moral or religious secret societies which have existed from the earliest times. Such are the Ancient Mysteries, whose object was by their initiation to cultivate a purer worship than the popular one; such, too, the schools of the old philosophers like Pythagoras and Plato, who in their exoteric instructions taught a higher doctrine than that which they communicated to their exoteric scholars. Such, too, are, the modern secret societies which have adopted an exclusive form, only that they may restrict the social enjoyment which it is their object to cultivate, or the system of benevolence for which they are organised to the persons who are united with them by the tie of a common covenant and the possession of a common knowledge. Such, lastly, is Freemasonry, which is a secret society only as respects its signs, a few of its legends and traditions, and its method of inculcating its mystical philosophy, but which, as to everything else—its design, its objects, its moral and religious tenets, and the great doctrine which it teaches—is as open a society as if it met on the highways beneath the sun of day and not within the well-guarded portals of a Lodge. The great error of writers who have attacked Freemasonry on the ground of its being a secret society, is that they confounded Freemasonry with political societies of revolutionary times whose object was the overthrow of governments. Masonry does nothing of the kind.—Detroit Freemason.

THE LEGEND OF THE LOST WORD.

IT will be of no use to trace any further the numerous superstitions and legends in relation to this fabled "grand omnific word." Dr. Mackey very justly says, in the work before mentioned, that it is "no matter what this word was, or how it was lost," for we now know that no word can be at present of any use to a Mason, except to serve as a "password," to prove his right to the honours and benefits of some particular Masonic body or degree; and for that purpose (apart from considerations of a purely archæological and historical nature) one word is just as good as another, so long as it is appropriate to the time and place, and has been established for that purpose either by ancient usages or some competent authority. Much learning, however, as might be expected, together with persistent search, laborious study, and even the practice of magical arts, have been employed in past ages, and even down to a few years, to discover the ancient wonder-working word by those who believed in its fabled power, or from a motive of historical curiosity desired to obtain it. According to some, the sacred Tetragrammaton, or four-lettered name of God in Hebrew, incorrectly pronounced Jehovah, was the true word. Others thought that the Hebrew word was Jah, the Chaldic Rul or Bell, or the Egyptian On or Om, the Hindoo Aum, together with various combinations of them all, constituted the "grand omnific word." But as the possession of no one of them, nor any possible combination of them, seems to confer any miraculous powers on the possessor, neither of them can be the correct one according to ancient traditions. If there ever was actually any such thing as a "grand omnific word" (that is, all-powerful word, from omnificus, all-creating), it certainly remains lost to this day, and "I fear it is for ever lost," for certainly none of the words disclosed with so much solemn ceremony in certain Masonic degrees confer any supernatural powers on those to whom they are communicated.

As the Masonic legend of the deposit of the "word" in a secure and secret place, and its consequent loss, has been already quite fully stated by Masonic writers, in works sanctioned by the highest Masonic authority, there can be no sort of impropriety in relating it here, for the purpose of showing its primitive astronomical significance. The legend substantially is as follows:

"Enoch, under the inspiration of the Most High, built a secret temple under ground, consisting of nine vaults, or arches, situated perpendicularly under each other. A triangular plate of gold, each side of which was a cubit long, and enriched with precious stones, was fixed to a stone of agate of the same form. On this plate was engraved the 'word,' or true name of God; and this was placed on a cubical stone, and deposited in the ninth or lowest arch. In consequence of the deluge, all knowledge of this secret temple was lost, together with the sacred and ineffable or unutterable name, for ages. The lost word was subsequently found in this long forgotten subterranean temple by David, when digging the foundations for the temple, afterwards built by Solomon, his son."

Other versions of this legend ascribe the building of the underground temple, and the deposit therein of the "word," to Solomon, and its discovery to those "who dug the foundations of the second temple on the same spot, and connect it with the 'substitute ark' deposited in the same place."

Both legends, however, agree in stating that the "word" was buried deep under ground, and in the ninth arch, or lowest one of them all; that it was there lost, and remained "buried in darkness" until it was subsequently found and brought to light.

In ancient times, and according to the mystical theology of those days, God and the sacred name of God were supposed to be one and the same. The "word" was itself considered to be, in some sense, a living, creative power. Thus Plato taught that the divine logos, or word, was God. But, as we have shown, the sun was by the ancients universally adopted as the symbol of God, and subsequently confounded with God so that the various names of God became also solar names. The loss of the solar name, therefore, became but another expression of the loss of the sun, or sun-god, in the lower hemisphere. Now let us see how this will harmonize with the legend just related. The sun having reached the summit of the zodiacal arch at the summer solstice, begins to descend toward the region of darkness. From Cancer he descends to Leo, from Leo to Virgo, from Virgo to Libra, and so on until Capricorn is reached, which is the ninth sign from the vernal equinox, and the undermost one of the zodiac, corresponding to the ninth or lowest arch of the secret vault, and there, on the 21st of December, at his lowest declination to the winter solstice, he is lost, and "lies buried in darkness, until reviving, he commences his ascent toward the vernal equinox, and begins by his more potent rays to rebuild that glorious temple of light and beauty, adorned by flowers and fruits, which the rude assaults of winter have destroyed.

Another allegorical correspondence is found in the fact that the discovery of the word is made, according to the Masonic legend, by "three," which agrees perfectly with the number of signs, Aquarius, Pisces, and Aries, and the months January, February, and March, which separate the winter solstice from the vernal equinox, where, according to the legend of Hiram, the sun is found, as before explained. The sacred name was engraved on a triangular plate of gold, which, according to astrology, is the solar metal. This triangular plate, according to the Royal Arch legend, was surrounded by a circle. This triangle within a circle would therefore correctly represent the diagram of the Egyptian year. But, again, the legend informs us that this triangular plate of gold was fixed to a stone of agate of the same form. Now, each month, the ancient astrologers taught, had its appropriate gem:

MARCH,	the Bloodstone.	SEPT.,	the Sapphire.
JAN.,	the Garnet.	JULY,	the Ruby.
FEB.,	the Amethyst.	AUG.,	the Sardonyx.
APRIL,	the Diamond.	OCT.,	the Opal.
MAY,	the Emerald.	NOV.,	the Topaz.
JUNE,	the Agate.	DEC.,	the Turquoise.

The agate, therefore, is emblematic of the month of June, the summer solstice, and the resurrection and exaltation of the sun. The whole was placed on a cubical stone, but the cube was sacred to Apollo, who was identical with Helios, the sun-god. The altar of Apollo at Delos was in the form of a cube. The symbolism of this legend is therefore perfect in all its details—the emblematic correspondence is too absolute to be accidental. The legend of the lost word is but another form of the solar allegory of the death and resurrection of Hiram, and teaches the same lesson.—Freemasons' Repository.

THE MYSTERIES OF OSIRIS.

FREEMASONRY, with its lesser and greater mysteries analogous to those of Egypt, Asia Minor and Greece, is the only representative of the famous Mysteries of primitive times. The original of all were the Mysteries of Osiris, exemplified in Egypt at Philæ, Sais, Busiris and other places. Of these we know all too little, and yet we know enough to satisfy us of their general character. As Bro. Gould has happly phrased it, "they contained the germs of great moral truths."* They were the most profound and curious, established in all the ages. Mr. Birch says they contained "Masonic mysteries." The account of the death and resurrection of Osiris reads not only like a Masonic legend but also like a foreshadowing of the truth of Divine Revelation, as though it were based upon some early prophecy, information of which had reached Egypt.

The Mysteries of Osiris had their Great Light, as we have ours. It was what we now style "The Ritual of the Dead." On the monuments and on papyrus were many of its fragments, which have been preserved and deciphered. The oldest copy on any monument is of the Eleventh Dynasty (B.C. 2400—Lepsius), while the oldest on papyrus, now in the Turin Museum, is of the Eighteenth Dynasty (B.C. 1600). The latter is on strips, twelve inches wide, and some three hundred feet in length, covering one side of a wall in the Museum. Fragments of the Ritual differing two thousand years in age, have been found to be similar in thought and language. A copy of the Seventeenth Chapter of this Ritual of the Dead was found on the coffin of Queen Mentuhept, whose era was fifteen hundred years before Moses lived. Near the ruined city of Ibreem, on a tomb, a part of it remains to this day, in colours as bright as when first engraved and painted by the artist, forty centuries ago. Such is the antiquity of what Mr. Bonwick has termed the "Egyptian Bible," the Great Light of the Mysteries of Osiris.

The greatest men among the ancients were initiates in the Ancient Mysteries of Egypt, or Greece. To name them would be to give a list of the most celebrated of the early philosophers and writers. We instance but a few: Herodotus, Sophocles, Plutarch, Isocrates, Diodorus, Macrobius, Plato, Aristotle, Epictetust, Cicero, Sallust, Proclus and Strabo.* Herodotus says: "Though I am well acquainted with the Mysteries I will not reveal them." Sir J. Gardner Wilkinson tells us: "Of the Mysteries, and of the festivals in honour of Osiris, we can obtain little or no information from ancient authors. The former were too sacred to be divulged; and few of the Greeks and other strangers were admitted even into those of the lesser order. They were divided into the greater and lesser mysteries and before admission into the former, it was necessary that the intiated should have passed through all the gradations of the latter. But to merit this great honour, much was expected of the candidate, and many even of the priesthood were unable to obtain it. Besides the proofs of a virtuous life, other recommendations were required; and to be admitted to all the grades of the higher mysteries was the greatest honour to which any one could aspire. It was from these that the Mysteries of Eleusis were borrowed."†

In Greece the comic poets of the time were not slow to avail themselves of opportunities to refer sportively to the Mysteries. For example, Aristophanes, in the "Frogs," thus burlesques the chants of the Eleusinian Mysteries:

> "Keep silence, keep silence; let all the profane
> From our holy solemnity duly refrain;
> Whose souls unenlightened by taste are obscure;
> Whose poetical notions are dark and impure;
> Whose theatrical conscience
> Is sullied by nonsense;
> Who never were trained by the mighty Cratinus,
> In mystical orgies poetic and vinous;
> Who delight in buffooning and jests out of reason,
> Who promote the designs of oppression and treason;
> Who foster sedition, and strife, and debate—
> Are traitors, in short, to the stage and the State."‡

In like manner Apuleius in the "Golden Ass," makes Lucius to be initiated into the Mysteries of Isis. The initiate finds he is also expected to be familiar with the Mysteries "of the great God, and supreme father of the gods, the invincible Osiris." Of one of the initiates he says: "He also walked gently, with a limping step, the ankle-bone of his left foot being a little bent, in order that he might afford me some sign by which I might know him." So in the "Apologia," the author of the "Metamorphosis," says: "If any happens to be present who has been initiated in the same rites as myself, if he will give me the sign, he shall then be at liberty to hear what it is that I keep with so much care." Plautus, in his play of "Miles Gloriosus," also says: Give me the sign, if you are one of these votaries."§

Osiris was not the earliest god worshipped in Egypt—Khem, Amen and Ptah having preceded him, but he became the most popular, and was known as the national god of the Egyptians. On the monuments he is styled the "Nameless One," "Light of the World," "King of Gods," the "Eternal One." The 147th chapter of the Ritual of the Dead gives him a hundred names. His name is rare before the sixth dynasty (B.C. 2744); while in the twelth dynasty (B.C. 2380) he was generally acknowledged. The secret of his popularity lay in the apprehension that he had lived on the earth as man's benefactor, died for his advantage, and lives again as his judge. "Amen," we are told by the monuments, committed all judgment to his once suffering, but now triumphant Son! Wonderful language, in the light of Revelation. Nay, more than this: The one only true and living God, whom the initiate in the Mysteries of Osiris was taught to worship, was identical with the God of the Hebrews, for the initiate carried with him to his grave the name of his God, inscribed on a scroll, and it was "Nuk pu Nuk" signifying, literally, "I am that I am."‖ What light does the knowledge of this fact shed on the mission of Moses to Pharoah—Moses who was skilled in all the learning of the Egyptians, himself in every probability an initiate in their mysteries. When Moses proclaimed to Pharoah the true God by his title, "I am that I am," this title proved to all initiates that the God of the highest Egyptian theology, to wit, that of the Mysteries of Osiris, was identical with the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob!

Ra represented the sun in the daytime, Osiris the sun at night. The latter was the "soul of the sun"—dying only to live again, going down in the evening and rising again in the morning, thereby teaching the wondrous theological truths of the Mysteries of Osiris—Death, Resurrection, Immortality. The Egyptian priests of Osiris were a brotherhood of secret-keepers. All mythologies are founded upon secrets, but the symbology of the sun in none of the Mysteries more clearly elucidated their theological truths than does the sun in Freemasonry ours. The very name of Solomon is the name of the sun, in three languages—Sol-om-on. Even the religious word, chapel, signifies the college of El—the solar divinity. With all of these striking analogies between the ancient Mysteries of Osiris and the Mystery of Freemasonry—with regard to the truth taught, as well as to the manner in which this truth is conveyed—who will deny that there is an intimate relationship between Freemasonry and the Ancient Mysteries, the primitive cults, of which the earliest and chiefest were the Mysteries of Osiris?—Keystone.

PAST MASTERS' JEWELS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—"QUIZ'S" idea as to Past Masters' jewels being of one uniform design and value—I presume, at least, he intends the latter to be included—is a good one, and deserves general attention. The Charity jewel, which is certainly an equally honourable decoration, is of the character he recommends, though it is differently displayed by contributors of different grades. If that be the case, why should not each Lodge have the P.M.'s jewels it presents to successive outgoing W.M.'s, in recognition of their valuable services to the Craft generally and itself in particular, all precisely of the same uniform character, so that no feeling of jealousy, because the jewel of one P.M. is more showy than another's, will be possible? As to Founders' jewels, there is, perhaps, a pardonable feeling of pride in wearing them, as they serve to indicate that those who are entitled to sport them have had a hand in establishing a new home or homes of Masonry. As to their legality, that is another point altogether. I question very much if jewels not enumerated in the Book of Constitutions may legally be worn by brethren, unless, indeed, it be those jewels the wearing of which has been, as it were, consecrated by immemorial usage, such as the special jewels of Antiquity and the Royal Somerset House and Inverness Lodges, and others of a similar character, but unknown to me. For myself, I should never think of raising any objection to a Founder's jewel being worn, for the reason I have just stated, that it indicates a certain feeling of just pride on the part of the wearer. I would even allow the Master Mason's jewel to pass unquestioned, but I am decidedly opposed to brethren wearing, as I have seen them wear, other than Craft and Arch jewels in Craft Lodges.

Faithfully and fraternally yours,

E. S. L.

MASONS ATTENDING CHURCH.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—The brother who writes on the above subject does not tell us whether he was awake during his recent visit to this young Lodge. I imagine he must have been asleep by the description he endeavours to give of what was merely a suggestion made by me (to which I have no doubt he refers), and before he uses the nom de plume "CHISWICK" again I should recommend him to make himself better acquainted with the facts of any case rather than rush into print with such a misleading letter as he has written for your last impression.

I am, yours faithfully and fraternally,

GEORGE GARDNER S.W. 2012.

HOLIDAY HAUNTS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—You were kind enough last spring to insert in your paper a letter which I wrote, offering to send particulars to intending tourists of the very many pleasant routes in South Wales (Pembrokeshire, Carmarthenshire, and Cardiganshire), out of the way places, but yet of great beauty and interest, easily accessible, and where the usual expenses are extremely moderate compared with the cost of living at the more frequented summer resorts, but containing all the elements and amusements which a summer tour or short residence is supposed to supply, and yet possessing all facilities for recruiting the health even of the most delicate subject. As an indication of the extreme mildness of the climate I enclose you some violets and primroses just gathered from the hedges and wood, and I am told a few primroses were blooming here on Christmas Day.

I shall be glad to supply the same information this year as last to any of your readers who may have a few days to spare in search of the beautiful in the early spring or summer months, if they will only notify to me their wants.

I beg to remain,

Dear Sir and Brother,

Fraternally yours,

HENRY BARHAM.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Some occupations tend to the development of certain diseases, and those who toil as miners are peculiarly liable to rheumatism, lumbago, and other allied complaints. In the gold fields and copper mines Holloway's remedies have been largely patronized by the workers, to their very great advantage, and they can be confidently recommended as invaluable remedies for inward congestions, spasms, and cramps in the bowels, and all those conditions of the lungs and liver to which those who work underground or in impure atmospheres are so peculiarly liable. For cuts, bruises, sprains, and stiffened joints, the action of Holloway's Ointment is eminently healing and soothing, and a supply should always be at hand in case of need.

VAUDEVILLE.

FOR any of our readers who may need a little bracing after the rather lowering treatment they may have experienced at Dr. Wingfield's sanatorium at St. James's, we could recommend nothing more likely to restore "tone" than a visit to the Vaudeville. "Saints and Sinners," with the sharp contrasts of the virtues and vices of pitiless real life, retire from the stage and make room for their successors, creatures so amusing, so full of vigorous, delightful absurdity, that we accept as perfectly natural phenomena their wildest proceedings. The new play "Loose Tiles" is, perhaps, not very new in the matter of plot. We have heard of one produced at the Adelphi a good many years ago, in which the action is made to pivot on the mistaking a private house for a lunatic asylum. Terence, two thousand years gone by, found all the best plots anticipated, so what can moderns do? Let us have the old plots, if only they come decked with fresh fancies and alive with the life we breathe, as of old they were animated by contemporary vitality. No matter where Mr. Hurst has gathered the stones, so that he has the architect's skill to raise, if not a high art temple, at least a pleasant wayside altar, to kindly old Momus.

"Story? Lord bless you! There is none to tell, sir."

Only the volatile young hero, Charlie Heathcote (Mr. H. Neville), happens to be the son of worthy Dr. Heathcote, director of a private asylum for lunatics. Charlie has been to seek his fortune in Australia, and has just returned, as the curtain rises, accompanied by his amiable and diffident Cockney friend, Bob Twitters (Mr. T. Thorne). They intend a pleasant surprise to the doctor, and arrive at his house not knowing he has made it over to a Mr. Crumbley, who has set up a select boarding establishment there. Charlie and his friend interview Mrs. Crumbley (Miss Giffard), and arouse her suspicions by their demand for the doctor and the matron, whilst they regard her as one of the lunatic patients, and consider her brusque replies proof of her mental condition. "We must humour them," says Charlie. "Oh, we'll humour them," says Bob, beginning to shake in every limb. Presently enters Maria Snatters (Miss Sophie Larkin) a susceptible elderly spinster. Charlie introduces his friend, the lady evinces a suddenly intense interest in him, with that almost pathetic earnestness which makes the most preposterous caricature become a portrait from life when interpreted by Miss Larkin. The house shook with laughter as the scene proceeded, through a crescendo of misunderstandings to the moment when Maria, who has sent to Truefitts for a coiffeur, is deluded by the mischievous Charlie into the belief that Bob is an ardent admirer, disguised as the hairdresser's assistant. He, in abject fright of the supposed lunatic, allows himself to be dragged away by her. In the second act there is an equally effective scene for Mr. Thorne, when, in his great game of écarte with an irascible old boarder (Mr. Lestocq), Bob feels his very life may be sacrificed to the chances of the game. Quite speechless, but with an eloquence beyond words, he makes the horror of the situation almost tragic. The sentimental interest is provided by Laura Myrtle (Miss C. Grahame), with whom Charlie falls in love, whilst in sore distress, believing the "poor thing" is out of her mind. The reader will see that the play must owe its value to the actors, but the motif is a capital one in such capable hands. Mr. Thorne, Mr. Neville, and Miss Larkin have rarely found better material for the vis comica, and the minor characters are harmoniously completed by their clever coadjutors. We must, however, protest against Mr. Lestocq's coarse sketch of Tozer. It is completely out of drawing. Mr. Lestocq has plenty of talent, if he would but discipline it. We congratulate Mr. Thorne on this newest success, and the public for the enjoyment it has in store. The curtain fell on the last act amid enthusiastic plaudits and calls for the author.

COURT.

WE can scarcely congratulate the management of the Court Theatre on the happiness of their choice, exemplified in the "light piece," played for the first time on a Wednesday afternoon, and now appearing in the evening bill. "The Opal Ring," by G. W. Godfrey, is the second appearance in an English form of Octave Feuillet's "Peril en la Dèmeure." The earlier version, by Tom Taylor, which appeared 26 years ago, was interpreted by Alfred Wigan, as the husband, John Billington, who in those days made a graceful Lothario, Miss Simms the femme incomprise, and Mrs. A. Wigan, to whom the honours of the evening chiefly fell. With such a cast a very weak play would have its weak points effectually disguised for the time, and now, in the new version, by our clever dramatist, Mr. Godfrey, the fictitious sentiment and morbid sentimentality of the story gains vigour and reality by the admirable acting of its exponents. The story is simple enough. There is Monsieur, the husband (John Clayton), Madame, la femme incomprise (Miss Terry), the "third person" (Mr. Conway). The husband, though much attached to his wife, devotes his chief time and thought to his profession, and in his constant occupations never dreams of the dangers to which the wife may be exposed from the fascinations of a mashing attaché, and want of interest in anything but her own nerves and sentimental yearnings. Miss Marion Terry contrives to make this exasperating simpleton interesting by the sincerity and grace of her acting. Mr. Conway has a still harder task with the objectionable attaché, Harold Rivers, who, notwithstanding Sir George's friendship for himself and his mother, Mrs. Rivers, makes love to Sir George's wife, with an ardent belief in the generous disinterestedness of the proceeding. Mrs. Rivers (Miss Lydia Foote) has discovered he is in love where he ought not to be, but unsuspicious of the actual object, confides her trouble to Sir George, and to prevent a rendezvous begs Sir George to take charge of the young gentleman till a certain hour. Sir George, busy with a despatch, finds the presence of a nervous young gentleman fidgeting the furniture and pictures very trying, and takes him off to Lady Carteret's boudoir, charging her to keep the prisoner in safe custody. Here was a fine opportunity, and it was well employed by Mr. Conway and Miss Terry. Her nervous anger at her admirer's intrusion, with the underlying fear of her own weakness, was rendered with much delicacy, whilst the lover's embarrassment at the interview being thus obtained, the evident complete and kindly trust shown by his chief, wakes compunction for a moment even in the soul of a masher. But the better feeling does not last long. The old refrain, "Je t'adore" is about to have its usual result when the gods intervene in the person of Mrs. Rivers. Exit the masher, unseen, as he fondly supposes, by mamma. She, however, has seen him, and has learnt the secret. He had confessed an opal ring was to be a signal, though worn by an unconscious agent. She has noticed one on the hand of Sir George, and thinking to forestal mischief, begs him to lend it her. Lady Carteret's emotion at seeing the opal on her friend's finger explains the mystery to the anxious mother. Here Miss Lydia Foote was able to hold the sympathy of the audience in wrapt attention till the end. As she stands forward to shield these reckless simpletons Sir George enters, with a letter unaddressed and unsigned, but actually written by the attaché, and entrusted to Lady Carteret's maid for her mistress, but intercepted by Toler, a meddling old gentleman, and in perfect good faith and simplicity handed to Sir George. The mother and the wife stand aghast at the probable consequences of the discovery. In the original the mother foresees the inevitable duel. In the English version the dishonour and disgrace of an unmasked intrigue; and though the poignancy of the former result is wanting, we forget it in the moral anguish of this pure and gentle woman. At first almost crushed by the impending misery, suddenly, to save the poor, repentant wife, her son, and his generous friend, finds a heroic falsehood to explain the letter. The curtain falls so soon that Sir George has no time to sift the questionable evidence, and we hope the young folks may be wiser in future. Mr. Clayton has rarely played with greater delicacy and finish. The gentle irony, the kindliness and manly dignity of the diplomatist find perfect expression in every touch and intonation. Mr. Cecil, in a quite episodical character (Lord Toler), is Major Pendennis to the life; a delightful etching after Thackeray. Miss Lydia Foote, as Mrs. Rivers, shows the sweetness and refinement so eminently her own; but why should she disguise her pretty hair under that conventional yellow wig, and her own charming features beneath an unnecessary "make-up?"

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.

THESE graceful little dramatic aquarelle sketches at the St. George's Hall show no falling-off, either in merit or in the public appreciation. "Old Knockles" gives capital opportunity for Mr. A. Reed's quaint humour; his make-up as an old fisherman is eminently real. Miss Fanny Holland creates no little enthusiasm by her graceful and artistic rendering of "There is a rare and radiant land," and Mr. A. Reed scores no less well with the salt water ditty, "Jack Bunt, he was a sailor." Mr. Corney Grain's new musical sketch, "Backsheesh," is in his most brilliant vein. He rattles through all the delights and tribulations awaiting the pilgrim between London and Cairo; the experiences of "Three in a state-room," the confidences of the intellectual spinster, whilst the lyric, "It is not so in Angleterre," commanded an irresistible encore. The hall was crowded in every part on the night of our visit, and for those to whom the theatre is tabooed here is a delightful ombre du vrai.

NEW UNIVERSITY MEDICAL SCHOOL AT SYDNEY.—With the assistance of the New South Wales Government, a Medical School is to be established in connection with Sydney University, and plans for a suitable building, in the Gothic style, have been prepared by the Colonial Architect. The length will be over 200 feet, with a depth of 115 feet, and walls 60 feet high. Through the centre of the building there runs a large hall 13 feet wide, and out of it the tower rises to an altitude of 80 feet. In the main portion of the ground-floor are rooms for lecturers on pathology and medicine, an anatomical museum, medical class museum, and pathological, histological, and private physiological laboratories. The right wing is set apart as a class-room for practical pathology, with smaller rooms for a materia medica museum, laboratory, and lecturer's room. In the left wing are provided rooms for chemical physiology, physiological class museum, instrument and balance-room, experimental physiology, physiological workshop, and a large room for the practical histological class. The upper floor is reached by staircases from either wing of the ground-floor, and by a lift from the basement. The dissecting-room is situate on the upper floor, to which the lift will bring the bodies as they are wanted for experiments. A large theatre of anatomy, also one of surgery, and museum, each measuring 36 feet by 44 feet, surgical class room, surgical lecturer's room, midwifery class museum, midwifery lecturer's room, anatomy professor's room, anatomical laboratory, demonstrator of anatomy room, small theatre of anatomy, and prosectory, occupying the main portion of this floor. In the right wing there is a theatre of pathology and materia medica, and one of midwifery and medical jurisprudence, each 36 feet by 45 feet in measurement. The dissecting-room and theatre of physiology, measuring 51 feet by 41 feet each, are in the other wing. The basement floor is set aside for quarters, students' reading-room, coffee-room, injecting-room, medical jurisprudence lecturer's room, experimental physiology and pathology, large minto-tiled corridors, ten feet wide, running the whole length of the building. The estimated cost is £50,000.

JOPPA LODGE, No. 188.

THE regular meeting was held on the 2nd instant, at the Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street. Bros. A. J. Martin W.M., J. W. Dewsnap S.W., L. Wall J.W., L. Lazarus P.M. Secretary, J. S. Lyon Treasurer, G. M. Lion S.D., J. Botibol J.D., L. Davis I.G., A. G. Dodson P.M. D.C., P. E. Van Noorden Organist; P.M.'s H. M. Levy, M. Spiegel, G. Bean I.P.M., L. M. Myers, O. Roberts, &c. Visitors—Bros. Hentsch I.P.M. 211, Laundy 1611, Taff 917, S. Slack P.P.G.D.C. West Yorkshire, W. Masters P.M. 1339, &c. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Bendit was passed to the second degree. In accordance with notice of motion given, Bro. Lazarus proposed that, in future, instead of the Lodge meetings being held eight times during the year, they be altered to six, namely, January, March, May, October, November, and December. This proposition was carried unanimously. The resignation of a brother was accepted, with regret. A proposition for initiation was given, and then Lodge was closed. The brethren sat down to an excellent supper, provided by Messrs. Spiers and Pond, and superintended by Bros. E. Dawkins and M. Silver. The W.M. in appropriate terms proposed the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts. Bro. H. M. Levy P.M. and Senior Vice President responded for the toast of the Benevolent Fund. It stood now at over £700, but in the last two and a half years they had given the sum of £450. He hoped the members would liberally augment the fund. Bro. Bean said it was with great pleasure he rose to propose the health of the W.M. Bro. Martin was one who was highly esteemed by all who knew him; it might be said his charity knew no bounds; he was ever a true friend and a good Mason. His working, not only in this Lodge, but also in another, showed they had selected the right man for the right place; he would ask the brethren to give the toast the reception it merited. The W.M., in reply, thanked Bro. Bean for his kind remarks. Four weeks ago his health was proposed and kindly received. Anything brought before the Lodge should receive his attention, his desire would ever be to see the Lodge a harmonious one. He hoped to carry out his duties to their satisfaction. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Visitors, whom all were pleased to see—they had distinguished brethren among them, and he hoped they had passed a pleasant evening. Bro. Slack P.P.G.D.C. West Yorkshire in a very eloquent speech responded. He had heard that the working of this Lodge was perfect. In the Provinces Freemasons tried to promote harmony in every particular, especially so in encouraging the visiting at Lodges. He was proud to hear the statement as to the Joppa Benevolent Fund, and then spoke of the noble charity of West Yorkshire. Bro. Hentsch I.P.M. 211 said he was much pleased at receiving so hearty a welcome from the Lodge. The W.M. was his brother-in-law, and he could speak of him as a good Mason. He (Bro. Hentsch) might say he had passed a very agreeable evening. Bro. Laundy followed. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Past Masters. All knew their duties thoroughly, and the success of the Lodge was due to them. They were the standing Council. He would call on his esteemed friend Bro. L. M. Myers P.M. to respond. This brother said the services of the P.M.'s were always at the command of the Lodge. It would ever be their desire to assist the W.M. for the time being. Bro. Martin, however, happily did not require assistance; he knew his duties thoroughly. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Wardens and Junior Officers; also he would refer to Bro. Dodson D.C.—all were thoroughly conversant with their duties. Bro. J. W. Dewsnap S.W. briefly and happily responded. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Secretary and Treasurer, two important Officers of the Lodge. The Secretary is one that has carried out his duties in a very satisfactory manner. The same might be said of their Worthy Treasurer. Bro. J. S. Lyons Treas. appreciated the kind words of the W.M. He knew they came from his heart. Bro. L. Lazarus P.M. and Sec. followed. His sole aim was to support the W.M., and he felt a mutual feeling existed to forward the interests of the Lodge. The Tyler's toast was then given and the brethren separated.

YORK LODGE, No. 236.

PRESENTATION TO BRO. SIR JAMES MEEK.

ON Friday evening, the 23rd ult., at York, the brethren of the above Lodge presented to Bro. Sir James Meek an illuminated address, on the occasion of his departure from the city of York. The brethren assembled at seven p.m., and after auditing the accounts of the Lodge, the ceremony of presentation commenced. All the Officers were present, viz., Bros. Dr. William Draper W.M., Henry Foster S.W., T. G. Hodgson J.W., Joseph Todd P.M. P.P.G.R. Treasurer, William Smith Secretary, S. Border S.D., Arthur Sample Organist, C. N. Foster I.G., C. Anderson D.C., H. S. Hopton and S. G. Crummack Stewards, and W. G. Calvert Tyler; amongst the other brethren in attendance were Bros. G. Garbutt I.P.M. G. Kirby P.M., M. Rooke P.P.G.D., G. Balmford P.P.G.O., A. Buckle P.P.G.D., W. H. Gainforth P.P.G.D.C., J. E. McKay P.M., A. H. McGachen P.M., and many other Past Masters and brethren. The W.M., Brother William Draper, occupied the chair, and the presentation was made by Bro. Todd, who said that he esteemed it an honour to present the address to so distinguished a brother, who had been identified with all the public institutions of York longer than most living citizens. Sir James Meek had during the last thirty years supported every movement that had for its object the benefit of the community, and it was felt universally that his departure would be a great public loss. For a quarter of a century their brother had been an honoured member of the York Lodge, and in all matters he had promoted its welfare. As a Freemason, their brother had been an exemplary pattern of what a member of the Order should be. He had supported the Charities, and had in his own life carried out the tenets of the Order. It was twenty-one years since Sir James Meek had occupied the chair of the Lodge; but he (Bro. Todd) well remembered the able way in which he had discharged the duties of that office; and since that period he could testify to the able manner in which he had aided and assisted in all matters appertaining to Lodge work. In the Provincial Grand Lodge also, and in other organisations, he had always shown an anxiety to promote Freemasonry, and he believed that his long association with the York Lodge and the Province would not soon be forgotten by the brethren. Bro. Todd then presented the address, which was enclosed in a handsome frame. The illumination was executed by Bro. H. C. Camidge, and displayed considerable artistic taste and ability. The scroll work on the border, which is worked in various Masonic colours, includes numerous devices appropriate to the Craft, and a water-colour sketch of the crypt of York Minster, in which in olden times the Freemasons were accustomed to assemble. The arms of Sir James Meek, those of the ancient city of York, and also those of Prince Edwin, the York Patron of Freemasons, are amongst the devices. The following is a copy of the address:

"To the Worshipful Bro. Sir James Meek, Knight, Past Master of the York Lodge, No. 236, and Past Senior Provincial Grand Warden, and Provincial Grand Treasurer of the North and East Ridings of Yorkshire.

"We, the Worshipful Master, Past Masters, Officers and brethren of the York Lodge, No. 236, of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, have heard with sincere regret of your contemplated departure from the ancient city of York, and, consequent thereupon, of your retirement from the active duties of Masonry in your mother Lodge, of which you have been a member upwards of twenty-four years. We desire to acknowledge with feelings of profound regard and attachment the many services rendered by you to this Lodge and to Masonry in the city of York, as well as to the Provincial Grand Lodge, of which for so many years you have been a prominent member, and to the Charities' Association in connection with the Province, of which you have been the Chairman since its formation. We cannot but feel that your departure from amongst us will create a void in our Masonic ranks that will be most difficult to fill, and in the city of York, where you have thrice sustained the high dignity of Lord Mayor, and to which ancient city you have rendered most valuable services, your loss will be no less sincerely and heartily felt. In wishing you farewell, we desire to assure you of the fraternal esteem and regard entertained for you, not only by the brethren of York, but throughout the Province of North and East Yorkshire, and we entertain the hope that the Great Architect of the Universe will preserve you in health and strength, and may grant you many years of happiness and prosperity. Signed on behalf of the York Lodge.

"Masonic Hall, York, 2nd January 1885."

Bro. J. S. Rymer Provincial Grand Registrar thoroughly endorsed the remarks of Bro. Todd. It had been his pleasure, he said, to meet Sir James at other places besides that hall, and he was assured that a gap and a blank would be made in the management of many institutions in the city by the departure of their good brother. But the "farewell" was only the farewell of brethren departing at the close of a Lodge; it was earnestly hoped that the Great Architect of the Universe would spare both Sir James and the members of the Lodge to meet on many Masonic occasions in the future. Bro. T. B. Whytehead P.M. P.P.G.W. spoke not only as a member of the Lodge, but as representing other Masonic Lodges and bodies. He spoke with a recollection of association with Sir James in other halls, and other degrees, referred to his good and fair work and painstaking carefulness, and expressed, what must have been the general satisfaction, that the Craft had been able to confer on the distinguished brother before his departure the honour of election as P.G.T. This would form a link between York and Cheltenham, and at the latter place no doubt Sir James would be welcomed with as much heartiness as the York brethren regretted his removal. In testifying to the excellence of Sir James's character, Bro. Whytehead alluded to his unfailing courtesy, and in conclusion echoed the hopes uttered by the brethren who had already spoken. Brother A. Buckle P.P.G.D. and Brother W. Smith Secretary 236, referred to the great services rendered by Sir James to local Institutions, more especially to the School for the Blind, and the Boys' Industrial School, of which the speakers are respectively the Superintendents. Bro. Ald. Terry bore evidence that the career of Sir James Meek had been characterised by the virtues which gave Freemasons such pleasure to contemplate. His urbanity had been as constant as his attempts to benefit every philanthropic institution. Although Sir James was now leaving the city, it was ardently to be desired that he would again mingle with the citizens on many occasions. Bro. Sir James Meek on rising was received with prolonged applause. He said that his feelings on the occasion would not permit him to say what he would have wished, but he could assure the brethren present that as long as memory held her seat so long would he remember that evening and the kind expressions of his brother Masons. He should often think of York and the kind hearts he would leave behind him, and he indulged in a hope that he might have future opportunities of meeting them at Masonic gatherings. After the close of the Lodge the brethren met at supper, where the Worshipful Master presided. The health of Sir James Meek was drank with great enthusiasm.

FRIENDSHIP LODGE, No. 928.

AT the Masonic Hall, Petersfield, on Monday, 2nd inst., this Lodge was opened, at four o'clock, by Bro. Swan W.M., and after the usual business Bro. Naylor, of Portsmouth, was presented for installation as W.M. for the ensuing year, in the presence of the following visitors and members :—Bros. Smith, Rastrick, Frost, Croucher, Ellis, Willmott, Beale, Edgeler, Woodhouse, Elverstone, Laverty, Gole, Creedon, Burley, Swan, Miles, Collings, Gieve, Gunnell, Holly, Westaway, Sanders, Cunningham, Bascombe, Deane 457, Baker, Mares, 1423, Ceccoui 342, Spriggins 884, Shanks, Bence, Pearson, Oakly, Fowler, Haines, Hyde, Underdown, Grist, Marshallsay, Pocock, Smoker, Duddy, Well, Jacks, 291. The W.M. afterwards invested his Officers, as follow :—Swan I.P.M., Smoker S.W., Marshallsay J.W., Edgeler P.M. Treas., Fowler Sec., Woodhouse P.M. D.C., Pocock S.D., Well J.D., Pearson I.G., Oakley Org., Duddy and Haines Stewards, Knight Tyler. Lodge having been closed, the Officers and members proceeded to the banquet, at the Red Lion Hotel, when the customary toasts were duly honoured.

GLADSMUIR LODGE, No. 1385.

THE Installation meeting was held at the Red Lion Hotel, Barnet, on Friday, the 30th ult. The brethren assembled at three o'clock, when the Lodge was formally opened by the W.M. Bro. George Askew, P.P.S.G.D. After the minutes of the last Lodge meeting had been read and confirmed, it was proposed by Bro. Schmidt S.D. that a sum of money should be voted from the funds of the Lodge for a Treasurer's jewel, to be presented to Bro. Lowthin P.M. on his retirement from the office of Treasurer, as a token of the great esteem and regard in which he is held by the members of the Lodge. This proposition, being duly seconded, was unanimously agreed to, and then Bro. Young P.M. Sec. proposed that the sum of £5 5s be voted from the funds of the Lodge for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and this amount to be placed on the list of Bro. Brittain S.W. and W.M. elect, who had undertaken the duties of Steward for the approaching Festival. The vote was unanimously agreed to. The W.M. elect, Bro. John Brittain, was then presented, and Bro. Askew installed him into the chair; the ceremony being performed in a perfect and careful manner. The following brethren were invested with the respective collars :—W. K. Hopkin S.W., D. Schmidt J.W., H. Edwards P.M. Treas., R. Fisher Young P.M. Sec., W. Lewis S.D., F. W. Durham J.D., T. H. Martin I.G., B. Gotto D.C., G. F. Kempson and W. Barrett Stewards, R. W. Goddard Tyler. One of the first duties of the newly installed Master was to present to his predecessor in the chair a P.M.'s jewel, voted to him by the members of the Lodge, in recognition of his many services in the past. Bro. Cutbush was appointed representative to serve on Provincial Audit Committee, and then a ballot for a Life Governorship, in accordance with Rule IX. of the Gladsmuir Benevolent Fund, was carried out. Amongst other business Trustees and Officers were elected, in accordance with Rule VI. of the Gladsmuir Benevolent Fund, and then the visiting brethren tendered their congratulations. The banquet was served, but we regret to say it was not placed on the table with that attention to detail which for so many years has characterised the Red Lion. This establishment had secured for itself a deservedly high reputation for catering for such entertainments, and the present proprietors will doubtless pardon us if we say their efforts on this occasion did not reach the standard we have been in the habit of realizing. On the removal of the cloth Bro. Brittain gave the Loyal toasts, which were done full justice to. Bro. Brittain alluded to two important events which at the present time were exercising the opinions of society at large. These were the betrothal of the Princess Beatrice and the coming of age of the eldest son of the Prince and Princess of Wales. This latter event was especially interesting to Freemasons, from the fact that it had been publicly announced that the M.W. the Grand Master had intimated his wish that Prince Albert Victor should join our ranks. After the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the Grand Officers of England had been toasted, the Provincial Grand Master's sterling qualities were descanted on; and then the Provincial Grand Officers present and past were referred to. After suitable replies had been made, Bro. George Askew P.M. proposed the health of the Worshipful Master. He had had the privilege of being present in the Lodge when their present Worshipful Master was initiated. Bro. Brittain had since proved himself a Mason in every sense of the word. He had striven for the advancement of his Lodge, and that most successfully; he had served the office of Steward for the Charities, and would again this year exercise himself in that capacity. He (Bro. Askew) had great pleasure in calling on the brethren to do honour to the toast. Bro. Brittain tendered his hearty thanks for the kind reception accorded to him by the members of the Gladsmuir Lodge. The way in which they had responded to the toast just proposed by Bro. Askew had placed him in a peculiar position—he could not find words in which to express his feelings. Suffice it to say he thanked them from the bottom of his heart. He felt somewhat in a difficulty in having to follow so zealous a Mason as Bro. Askew, who, moreover, in discharging the duties of the chair, had brought to bear the experience he had gained while filling the office of Master in another Lodge. He next proposed the toast of the I.P.M., making a further eulogy on the qualifications displayed by Bro. Askew in his conduct of the Lodge work. Bro. Askew, in the course of his reply, expressed regret that more work had not devolved on him. True, at the beginning of his year he had had four initiates, and should have been pleased of further opportunities of displaying what capabilities he was told he possessed. However, if he had given the members satisfaction it was gratifying to him to know it. With respect to the installation ceremony, he was indebted to Bro. Terry for the valuable help he had rendered him in his capacity of Director of Ceremonies. In conclusion he returned thanks to all, and assured them he should ever prize the jewel with which he had been presented. The toast of the Visitors followed, Bro. Brittain extending to all a cordial greeting, and coupling with the toast the name of Bro. Matier, who responded in due course. To Brother James Cutbush was entrusted the duty of proposing the toast of the Masonic Charities. Our esteemed brother spoke most eloquently of what was being done by each in their respective spheres, and urged how worthy of support they collectively were. During Brother Cutbush's remarks, which were prolonged so as to allow a fair and full perambulation of the room to be made in support of the Stewardship of the Worshipful Master, it was incidentally announced that Brother H. T. Lamb, who was unable to be present, had sent a donation of five guineas. This announcement was received with hearty applause, and the hope expressed that Bro. Lamb might long be spared, and continue to evidence the interest he took in the charitable proclivities of the Lodge and its members. In order of the course Bro. Terry had an opportunity of responding, but, to use a hackneyed expression, the wind had somewhat been taken out of his sails by Brother Cutbush; however, the Secretary of the Benevolent Institution made an earnest appeal for support, at the same time thanking the members of the Gladsmuir Lodge for what they had done in the past, both for his and the other Institutions. The health of the Past Masters was given, and the opportunity was taken to present to Bro. John Lowthin P.M., and for the last eight years Treasurer of the Lodge, the jewel which had been unanimously voted to him in recognition of the interest he had taken in the Gladsmuir Lodge. Bro. Lowthin and other of the Past Masters responded, after which the toast of the Officers was given, and then the Tyler gave the concluding toast, and the proceedings were brought to a conclusion. The following Past Masters of the Lodge were present :—Bros. John Lowthin P.P.G.S.W. Herts, Hayward Edwards, Charles Gray, and Charles Allen; among the visitors were Bros. Matier P.G.W. Greece P.G. St. Scotland P.M. 1910, Baxter 194, Clarke 1950, Hay 1708, Roberts 1185, Hudson 1708, Purrott 1479, Knyvett 404, Dickenson 149, Lake 404, Morgan 211, Trunie 1642, Hunt 194.

ROYAL SAVOY LODGE, No. 1744.

THE annual meeting of this Lodge took place on Tuesday, 27th ult., at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen Street, W.C., and was, as usual, attended by a very large number of brethren. Lodge having been opened under the presidency of the W.M. Bro. W. M. Stiles, the report of the Audit Committee was received, and then Bro. J. W. Smith was presented, as W.M. elect, for the benefits of installation. In due course he was placed in the chair and saluted. He then appointed his Officers :—Bros. Sillis Senior Warden, Smith J.W., J. Willing jun. P.M. Treasurer, Dickey Secretary, Jaques S.D., Burling J.D., Holland I.G., Ross and Holt Directors of Ceremonies, Perry and Verdin Stewards, Mordey Organist, Scurrah Assistant Secretary, and Koester P.M. Tyler. The ceremony of installation was then completed; after which Messrs. William Wagstaff, James Wagstaff, and George May were initiated; Bro. Stiles I.P.M. performing the ceremony in consequence of the ill-health of the Worshipful Master. A vote of thanks to Brother Stiles, for the way in which he had performed the ceremony of installation, was proposed by Brother Willing, and carried unanimously, as also was another proposition by Brother Willing that a sum of ten guineas be voted from the funds of the Lodge to a member who had fallen into distress. The W.M. next presented to his predecessor a Past Master's jewel, which had been unanimously voted to him, in recognition of his services during the past year. The W.M. said that Brother Stiles already wore a number of such decorations, still he hoped that when in years to come he might be engaged in looking over his Masonic mementoes, the jewel of the Royal Savoy Lodge might remind him of many happy evenings spent with its members. Bro. Stiles having acknowledged the gift, it was announced that he had consented to served as Steward representing the Lodge at the coming Festival of the Benevolent Institution. Bro. Willing thereupon proposed a vote of ten guineas from the Lodge funds, to be placed on Brother Stiles' list, and the proposition was carried. Other formal business having been disposed of the W.M. closed the Lodge and the brethren repaired to the large hall of Freemasons' Tavern to banquet. At its conclusion the W.M. proposed the toast of the Queen, a name honoured in every assemblage of Englishmen, but more particularly so in the Masonic assemblages of the country. With this toast was coupled success to the Craft. The next toast—H.R.H. the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M.—was sure to meet the approval of the members of the Royal Savoy Lodge, who were at all times most loyal in their attachment to the Grand Master. The toast of the Pro Grand Master and the Grand Officers was next given, and with it was coupled the name of Bro. Charles Greenwood P.G.S.B. That brother tendered his hearty thanks, on behalf of the Grand Officers of England, for the very kind manner in which the toast had been submitted and received. From an intimate knowledge of the Grand Officers he could say they had at heart the welfare of the Craft and its members. Speaking of the Pro Grand Master and the Deputy Grand Master, he could but say how proud Masons were of the noblemen who occupied those prominent positions, who, it was well known, took the deepest interest in all that appertained to the Order. Personally, he thanked the W.M. for his kind invite and the brethren for their hospitable entertainment. He had had the privilege of meeting their W.M. for many years past in another sphere of life, and did not know he was a Mason until kindly invited to his installation. Wherever Bro. Smith was known he was respected; he was a brother any one might be proud to number among his friends. Referring more particularly to the work in the Lodge, Bro. Greenwood paid a high compliment to the I.P.M., Bro. W. M. Stiles, for the manner in which he performed his part in the day's proceedings. The beautiful ceremonies of the Order were spoilt or otherwise by the way in which they were rendered. Mere parrot-like repetition of the words did not create that impression which the Ritual should create. Not only a knowledge of the words was needed, but also the heart of the speaker should be thrown into his work. Bro. Stiles had gone through his work most praiseworthily; had thrown heart and soul into the task before him; and had succeeded in a manner seldom, if ever, equalled. He must have made a deep impression on all who had listened to him. The I.P.M. then proposed the toast of the Worshipful Master. The Worshipful Master had been a Mason for many years, and had looked forward to the night of his installation as Master of a Lodge, and the initiation of any candidates who might then come forward, for some time past. It had, therefore, been a great disappointment to him, and a matter of regret to all present, that ill-health had prevented him undertaking the work he was so anxious to perform, and which he was so ably fitted to carry out. Those who knew the present Worshipful Master must know full well that he was quite capable of undertaking any work which he might be called upon to perform, and his present inability to display his powers was therefore all the more to be regretted. Bro. Stiles felt that the brother it had been his pleasure to instal that day would make a good ruler for their Lodge, and would gain even greater distinction in his present office than he had done in those he had hitherto filled. He concluded by asking the brethren to drink to the health, happiness, and prosperity of the Worshipful Master of the Royal Savoy Lodge. The toast was most heartily honoured, and then the Worshipful Master returned thanks. It had given him a considerable amount of sorrow not being able to perform the whole of his duties as Worshipful Master of the Lodge. Still he felt that the initiation ceremony was far too important a matter to be spoilt through his ill-health, and so he had asked Bro. Stiles to take his place. It was within a couple of months of twenty years since he had been initiated, and he still remembered the impression made on him by the ceremony of that day. He considered the event one of the most important of his life, and therefore felt all the more that his ill-health should not mar its impressiveness for their initiates that night. He heartily thanked the brethren for their kind reception of that toast, and hoped he might carry out the work required of him in a satisfactory manner to all of them. He then proposed the health of the Installing Master, coupling with it the name of the other Past Master then present, Bro. J. Willing. Bro. Stiles was very grateful for the kind way in which he was at all times received. His position as W.M. during the past year had been one of great pleasure to him. He was always pleased to be able to do anything for the Lodge, and hoped the members would never find the Past Masters of the Royal Savoy lacking in their interest in the Lodge. Bro. Willing followed. As the first W.M. of the Lodge he could but feel highly gratified at the progress it had made and the prospects it presented for the future. The toast of the Visitors was next given by the W.M. The Royal Savoy Lodge was particularly strong in the number of its visitors. On all occasions they were honoured with several, and he was pleased to find that the night of his installation was no exception to the rule. Bro. Charles Greenwood P.G.S.B. replied. The visitors had been much pleased to attend the Lodge, which, although one of the latest on the register of the Grand Lodge of England, had yet won for itself the reputation of being one of the finest. Its present membership, of something like 120 brethren, was a sign of its prosperity. He hoped the W.M. would speedily be restored to health, and that he would be able, as he had no doubt he could, to conduct the Lodge as successfully as it had been managed in the past. Bro. Secker followed. He had been a constant visitor to various Lodges for many years past, but had certainly had his eyes opened that night in the Royal Savoy as to what it was possible to do by good management. He hoped the Lodge would continue its prosperous career. Bro. George Everett next replied. He felt much indebted for the pleasure he had enjoyed that evening, and that pleasure had been much enhanced from the fact that the brother who had been installed into the chair was a dear old friend of his, and an initiate of a Lodge in which he took considerable interest--the Domatic. He heartily congratulated the W.M. on rising to the position he had attained. He knew there was nothing he undertook but what he performed satisfactorily; so it would be with the ruling of the Royal Savoy Lodge. He could but help feeling, when he heard such good reports of what had been done, and what was being done, by the Royal Savoy Lodge, that great credit was due to the Domatic Lodge, in which many of the heads of the Savoy had been initiated and trained. Bros. McLeod, Chapman, Scales, and others also replied to the toast, after which that of the Initiates was given from the chair. Bro. William Wagstaff having tendered his thanks, said he should do all that lay in his power to promote the welfare of the Craft, and more particularly of the Lodge which had so kindly received him that night. Brother James Wagstaff was highly delighted at the welcome he had received; this far exceeded his expectations. He trusted he might benefit from having joined Freemasonry early in life and that he should eventually rise to the position of Worshipful Master of his Lodge. Brother May followed, and then the Worshipful Master proposed the toast of the Masonic Charities, to which Bro. Mason, Collector of the Benevolent Institution, responded. The Treasurer, Secretary, and Officers were toasted in due course, and they having replied, the Tyler was summoned and the proceedings were brought to a conclusion. Among the visitors were Bros. Hosens 742, Aillard W.M. 615, Mason 360 P.P.S.G.D. Middx., Robinson P.M. 87, Worrall 2048, Chapman W.M. 1922, Scales P.M. 1507, Kauffmann S.D. 1732, Lea 1901, Allard, Smith, Dunsford 1950, Buckhurst 157, Wright 1305, Bolding 91, Ager 957, Spencer W.M. 73, Storr W.M. 167, Harvey W.M. 1314, Mencock 742, Fountain 879, Luker 435, Hammond 569, Garrod P.M. 751, Everett P.M. 177, Bathard W.M. 1287, Jacobs W.M. 1732, Hall 193, Newby 1604, Solomon I.P.M. 1732, Passingham 193, Davis 72, Peacock 201, Axford 2048, McLeod I.P.M. 884, Greenwood P.G.S.B. GALLERY LODGE, No. 1928.

THE Gallery Lodge Ball was held on Friday, the 30th ult., at Brixton Hall, and was a great success. The large number of ladies and gentlemen who attended was a testimony to the great popularity of the new Master of the Lodge, Bro. W. M. Duckworth, who acquitted himself as host with the same determination to make every one comfortable as he did at the Lodge on the day of his installation. Coote and Tinney's band, under the direction of Bro. James Weaver, was all that could be desired, and the Brixton Hall, with its alterations, additions, and improvements, which have been carried out during the last seven months, established itself as a special hall in the South London district for all large entertainments. The arrangements made by the Ball Committee led to a most enjoyable evening being spent.

Royal Alfred Lodge of Instruction, No. 780.—A meeting was held on Friday, 30th ult., at the Star and Garter Hotel, Kew Bridge. Bros. A. Turner W.M., G. Thomas S.W., F. Botley J.W., Andrews Preceptor and Treasurer, C. E. Botley Secretary, Bailey S.D., Sperring J.D. Sherring I.G.; also Bros. Norton, Gunner, Cammell. Lodge having been opened with due observance of ancient form, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. The ceremony of initiation was then rehearsed, Bro. Norton candidate. Bro. Sperring answered the questions leading to the second degree, Bro. Cammell acting as Deacon. Lodge was advanced, and the ceremony of passing rehearsed, Bro. Sperring candidate. Bro. C. E. Botley gave the lecture on the tracing board. Bro. Thomas was elected W.M. for 6th inst. After hearty good wishes to the W.M., Lodge was closed and adjourned.

Upper Norwood Lodge of Instruction, No. 1586.—Under the auspices of this Lodge of Instruction a large gathering of brethren assembled at the White Hart Hotel, Church-street, Upper Norwood, on Monday last, when Bro. James Stevens had undertaken to deliver his popular Masonic lecture, explanatory of the Ritual and ceremonies of the first degree. Amongst others present were Bros. J. A. Stock W.M., J. Miller, J. Lillico, W. Hopekirk P.M., E. J. Kidman P.M., C. A. Wood, J. Arnold, J. Bowyer, J. Lerner, J. A. Smith, Brignall, C. Jones, T. Seymour, 1586; H. W. Mitten W.M. 765, J. Brunker, J. Easy 681, Breary P.M. 1321, Hunter 1321, Braun, Pike, Chamberlain, Sly, Sibley; G. Tilling P.M., W. H. Tilling, J. E. Costello 765; Dunkley, Treves 720; Greenslade, Harris, Baker, Diblete, Cuthbert, and others. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. introduced Bro. Stevens, with a few appropriate remarks on the importance of the subject of the lecture. For more than two hours the lecturer rivetted the attention of his audience, whilst he set before them the history of the present ritual, and the causes of divergencies and errors which had of late years crept into the "working" of Lodges. Point by point he considered the details and minutiæ of the duties of the Officers, his instructive remarks being frequently received with applause from his hearers. On this occasion, Bro. Stevens appears to have been greatly encouraged by the sympathy evinced towards his views, and was even more earnest than is his wont. As the hour grew late, and progress had not been made beyond "investiture," the lecturer proposed to stop at that point, and complete the lecture at another opportunity. To this the brethren readily assented, and the 9th March was appointed for that purpose. Bro. Stevens resumed his seat amidst hearty plaudits, and the thanks of the Lodge and the compliment of honorary membership were voted with unanimity. Bro. Jones, the worthy host of the White Hart, had made preparation for refreshments, but the interval between the closing of the Lodge and the closing of the house left but little time for its enjoyment: nevertheless, when the brethren separated, there was but one expression among them, of gratification with the entire evening's proceedings. The Lodge added several new members to its roll, and is greatly strengthened for the continuance of good and earnest work in the cause of Masonic instruction. We are asked to state that it meets at the White Hart Hotel, every Monday, at eight p.m.

Kingsland Lodge of Instruction, No. 1693.—At the meeting held on Monday last, at Bro. Baker's, Cock Tavern, Highbury, N., there were present Bros. LeGrand W.M., Western S.W., Rhodes J.W., Forge Treasurer, Collingridge Secretary, Turner S.D., Dixie J.D., Ware I.G., Trewinnard Preceptor, and several other brethren. Lodge was opened in due form and the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Lodge was advanced, and Bro. Jennings as candidate for raising answered the questions and was entrusted. The Lodge was opened in the third degree and the ceremony rehearsed. Lodge was closed in the three degrees, and adjourned till Monday, 9th February.

The following Dinners were held at the Freemasons' Tavern during the week ending 7th February:—

Monday—Caxton Lodge, Urban Chapter, Lodge of Unions. Tuesday—Albion Lodge, Royal York Lodge, Old Concord. Wednesday—Nobody's Friends Club, Grand Chapter Club. PROVINCIAL GRAND CHAPTER OF HAMPSHIRE AND THE ISLE OF WIGHT.

THE annual meeting was held on Friday, 30th ult., at the Town Hall, Ryde. The Provincial Grand Superintendent (M.E. Comp. W. W. B. Beach, M.P.) presided, and was supported by a large number of the Companions of the various Chapters in the Province, including Comps. J. E. LeFeuve, G. F. Lancaster, J. Powell, G. J. Tilling, W. Bowyer, T. P. Payne, F. Newman, W. Menzies, Lord John Taylour, J. W. Gieve, W. H. Jacob, G. A. Mursell, J. C. Arlidge, T. P. Palsgrave, J. Laverty, James Gieve, Rev. A. A. Headley, W. C. Powell, W. Brunwin, C. G. Adames, G. Bond, G. Peck, M. E. Frost, J. Conner, S. Wheeler, Rev. E. W. Watts, A. Barfield, G. H. Curtis, J. Hall, J. Westaway, A. Greenham, E. Goble, S. R. Ellis, J. E. Buck, E. Goldsmith, R. W. Mitchell, T. Francis, Gordon Miller, G. B. Irons, W. Smith, Marshallsay, W. Miles, G. Wilkins, W. Mayhour, R. W. Beale, J. Woodhouse, E. Nayler, W. M. Outridge, W. T. Dupree, &c. The Prov. Grand Superintendent said that since they had last met they had experienced a great loss by the death of Comp. W. Hickman, who had filled the post of Second Principal since the year 1876. They had expressed recently on several occasions what they had felt on this loss, but in that Prov. Grand Chapter they had not before had an opportunity of doing so. He was sure they would not be behind the rest of the Province in the extreme regret that they felt at the loss of such an excellent Companion. With regard to the position of Royal Arch Masonry in the Province, he must congratulate them on the progress it had made. One new Chapter had been opened, and the Newport Chapter had been revived. Companion R. Loveland Loveland was unanimously re-elected P.G. Treasurer, and the Audit Committee was appointed. The Prov. Grand Superintendent then appointed the following as the Provincial Grand Officers for the ensuing year:—

Comp. J. E. LeFeuvre	P.G.H.
F. Newman	P.G.J.
Edgar Goble	P.G.S.E.
R. J. Rastrick	P.G.S.N.
Major Walsh	P.G.S.
Bowyer	P.G. 1st A.S.
F. Powell	P.G. 2nd A.S.
R. L. Loveland	P.G. Treas.
Mursell	P.G. Registrar.
J. Hall	P.G. Sword Bearer.
J. Murray	P.G. Standard Bearer.
Arlidge	P.G.D.C.
W. Miles	P.G. Organist.
J. Exell	P.G. Janitor.

A special Provincial Grand Lodge was held at the close of the Prov. Grand Chapter, when Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P., Prov. Grand Master, presided. The first business was the consideration of the report of the Prov. Grand Lodge Committee on the scheme for establishing a charitable fund for the Province, to be supported by voluntary contributions, having for its object the education and maintenance, in the vicinity of their own homes, and under the care of parents and guardians, of the children of indigent or deceased Freemasons of the Province, either entirely or pending the election of such children to the Central Schools. A set of by-laws was presented, with a report, which was introduced by the Prov. Grand Master. Bro. Wallingford P.M. suggested that the consideration of the report should be deferred until the annual meeting. The Prov. Grand Master said that there was so much business for consideration at the annual meeting that there would not then be time to consider the scheme fully, and he thought it a better plan to hold a special Lodge for the purpose. Many brethren had not had an opportunity of reading the proposed by-laws, and he thought that the various Lodges should be given an opportunity of considering the question and making a report before they came to any decision on the matter. Bro. G. F. Lancaster P.M. was in favour of passing the report immediately. He mentioned that in East and West Lancashire similar funds had been established; in one division for 30 and in the other division for 20 years, they having large vested funds available. The Prov. Grand Master said Lancashire was a very rich Province, and could scarcely be compared with Hampshire. Bro. Lancashire said that in Devonshire also, which was a similar county to our own, a like scheme had met with great success. Eventually it was decided that a special meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge should be called to consider the question; Bro. LeFeuvre suggested that copies of the by-laws should be printed meanwhile and distributed among the brethren of the different Lodges in the Province. Bro. J. E. LeFeuvre was then installed as the Deputy Provincial Grand Master in succession to the late Bro. W. Hickman. The Provincial Grand Master, who performed the ceremony, with much impressiveness, highly eulogised the Masonic services of Bro. LeFeuvre, who had filled the office of Provincial Grand Secretary for 14 or 15 years. The next business was to appoint and invest a Prov. Grand Secretary to succeed Bro. LeFeuvre. The Prov. Grand Master said that in selecting a brother to fill the important office of Secretary of the Province he had taken into consideration, not only the personal qualifications but also the convenient place of residence of the brother he had selected. Fareham was situated in the centre of the whole Province, and in appointing Bro. Edgar Goble he felt sure that he should be consulting the convenience of the whole of the brethren. Bro. Goble was then duly invested, and briefly acknowledged the honour conferred upon him. The usual banquet was held at the close of the business.—Portsmouth Times.

POLISH NATIONAL CHAPTER.

THE ordinary convocation was held at the Freemasons' Tavern, on Thursday, 22nd ult., under the presidency of Comps. Palmer Z., Warner H., Dr. Corri Jackson J., Dr. Jagielski S.N., Oliver Bryant P.S., Bieling 1st Assistant, Wm. Paas P.Z. S.E., Nowakowski P.Z. Treasurer, Hyde Clarke P.Z. As there was no candidate for exaltation the business was of a formal nature. During the evening Comps. Shand M.E.Z. and Land S.E., of Robert Burns Chapter, attended, and stated that the Polish National Chapter had been using the furniture of their Chapter for the last thirty-six years, and, as it required renewing, they suggested either a contribution towards its restoration or a hiring fee for its use. Notice of motion was given for considering the matter at the next Chapter meeting. Nothing else offering, Chapter was closed in the usual manner.

The Lodge having been formally constituted, was opened to the third degree. In his opening address Bro. Philbrick explained the absence of the Prov. Grand Master, and expressed the pleasure he felt, in Lord Brooke's absence, in undertaking the duties of Consecrating Officer. He urged it had been fairly shown a need existed for the establishment of this new Lodge, and he felt that the founders were men to whom might be safely entrusted the destinies of a Lodge of Freemasons. In due course the Chaplain was called upon, and he delivered the following Oration.

V.W. DEPUTY PROV. GRAND MASTER, OFFICERS AND BRETHREN,—The consecration of a new Lodge must be to every thoughtful Mason a most solemn time, and one which should be accompanied by very earnest and serious prayer. As our Deputy Provincial Grand Master has so justly observed, the ritual and ceremonial is most impressive, may it so affect our hearts. Freemasonry is in its ritual and observance either a most holy and pious institution or else a mere form of words and obligations which are valueless and semi-blasphemous. Without divulging to the uninitiated any of our secrets we are at liberty to tell them that the Bible is always open in our Lodges, and all our meetings are commenced and concluded with prayer to Almighty God, for where His Name is invoked we believe the subsequent actions will be blessed, and whoso putteth his trust in Him need have no fear of danger. Our great and glorious institution is founded upon and rests upon the Volume of the Sacred Law, its Light of Purity and Truth is derived from God Himself. With the consecration of this new Lodge to-day I would remind my brethren that our Lodges are dedicated to the Most High, and our conduct therein should at all times be fit and seemly; and especially would I recommend this fact to the serious attention of those who are to be entrusted with the government of this new Lodge, so that either with candidates for the rites and privileges of Freemasonry, or with joining members, there may be the knowledge felt that in Lodge they are in a building solemnly consecrated and dedicated to God. The more we feel in ourselves the solemnity of our ritual and ceremonial so much the more will it influence all our brethren for good. All the symbolism of Masonry is as perfect as it is beautiful, and to two of our working tools I would direct your attention—the 24 inch gauge and the pencil. May we carefully remember the 24 hours of the day, and as we spend part in labour and refreshment, and a part in serving a friend or brother in time of need, so let us not forget the part to be spent in prayer to Almighty God; for

> "Prayer ardent opens Heaven,
> Sends down a shower of consecrated light upon the hour
> Of man in communion with the Deity."

If all our purposes are thus sanctified with prayer, we need have no fear of meeting death cheerfully, for our actions, noted in the Book of Life, though imperfect have yet been to the best of our ability; we shall have marked well, and received the commendation of God and be permitted to dwell "in that Temple not made with hands, eternal in the Heavens."

The ceremony was then completed, with every regard to due solemnity. Brother A. Lucking now took the chair and installed the W.M. designate, Bro. E. G. Lowis. After the regular salutation had been given the following brethren were invested as Officers:—Bros. E. J. Acworth I.P.M., James Salmon S.W., T. J. Woodrow J.W., W. Dance Secretary, J. Fletcher J.D., Parkinson (elected) Tyler. The election of a Treasurer was deferred till the first regular meeting, on which occasion the remaining Officers will be invested. The first item of interest to be recorded is, that it was resolved to send a letter of congratulation to H.R.H. the Grand Master on the happy event of Prince Albert Victor having attained his majority. A cordial vote of thanks was then tendered to the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and those brethren who had assisted him in the ceremony of the day, special reference being made to the indefatigable zeal displayed both by Bro. Albert Lucking P.G.D.C. and Bro. T. J. Ralling Prov. G. Sec. The compliment was gracefully acknowledged by Bro. Philbrick. Honorary membership was then voted to the Prov. G. Master, Lord Brooke, and to the brethren who had carried out the consecration. For this Bro. Clowes responded. The proposition for candidates for initiation and joining having been formally handed in, Lodge was closed.

A banquet followed the consecration of the Lodge, and, in due course, the usual toasts were submitted and honoured. The W.M. reviewed the work that had been done by those who had assisted him in the establishment of the Lodge, and referred to some of the more particular points it was their intention to study in the future. The Deputy Provincial Grand Master, in responding to the toast of his health, congratulated the Founders upon the happy auspices under which their Lodge had been started, and wished for them a long and successful career of usefulness. He warned them to be very careful in admitting new members; these, he said, should be men who would reflect honour on the Lodge, it being far easier to keep out any element of discord than to get rid of it afterwards. Remarking that the Lodge they had solemnly consecrated that day brought the number of the roll of the Lodges of Essex to twenty-four, Bro. Philbrick said that while it was always a pleasure to the authorities in the Province to welcome a new Lodge where, like this one, there was shown to be a genuine need for it, and it was likely to have a good local support, they must bear in mind that where those elements were wanting new Lodges could not be sanctioned, as they would prove a source of weakness rather than strength. The musical arrangements for the day, which were admirably carried out, were under the direction of Bro. Robert De Lacy, Vicar Choral of St. Paul's Cathedral, assisted by Bro. Schartau, of Westminster Abbey, Bro. Chas. Beckett, of H.M. Chapel Royal, Bro. Fryer, St. Paul's, and Bro. Latter Organist. A due meed of praise must be given to Bro. Edward Lawrence, the genial host. The resources of his establishment—a most comfortable one by the way—were taxed to the uttermost, but every one seemed satisfied with his efforts. It is not often, we opine, he is called upon to entertain so large a gathering. We look forward to spend an evening with the brethren when the strain will not be so great.

ZETLAND CHAPTER, No. 236.

ON the 28th ult. the regular meeting of this Chapter, attached to the York Lodge, No. 236, was held at the Masonic Hall, York. The Chapter was opened by Companion the Rev. W. Valentine Z., Comp. The election of Principals and Officers then took place, with the following result:—Comps. T. B. Whytehead P.Z. Z., M. Rooke H., J. S. Rymer J., J. Todd P.Z. Treasurer, G. Garbutt S.E., H. Foster S.N., and G. Kirby P.S. Comp. W. G. Calvert was re-elected Janitor. On motion of the Treasurer the sum of £10 10s was voted to the Masonic Benevolent Institution, and ordered to be added to the list of the Dean of York, who will represent the York Lodge, No. 236, at the next Festival. After the close of the Chapter, the Companions met at supper and passed an exceedingly enjoyable evening, the toasts alternating with songs, to which Bros. Todd, Kirby, Rymer, and others contributed.

Justice Lodge of Instruction, No. 147.—At a meeting, held at the Brown Bear, High-street, Deptford, on Thursday, 5th inst. There were present Bros. Lodge was opened in the first degree, and the minutes of previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Cooper candidate. Lodge was called off, and on resuming the questions leading to the degree of F.C. were put, and answered by the members. Lodge was then advanced, and the ceremony of passing rehearsed, Bro. Stringer being the candidate. Lodge was closed in the second degree, and Bro. Williams S.W. was elected W.M. for the ensuing Thursday. Lodge was then closed in due form.

Obituary.

BRO. FRANK SILLIS.

IT is with deep regret we announce the death of Brother Frank Sillis S.W. 1744, which sad event took place on Thursday, the 29th ult., after a brief illness, the immediate cause of death being erysipelas. Bro. Sillis was initiated in the Domatic Lodge 177; he was one of the founders of the Royal Savoy Lodge 1744, and went through all offices herein up to Senior Warden. Brother Sillis was likewise a founder of the Metropolitan Chapter 1507, of which at the time of his decease he was Principal Sojourner. The funeral took place at Nunhead Cemetery, on Wednesday last, when a large assemblage of Craftsmen attended to pay the last tribute of respect to a worthy brother.

The General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls met at Freemasons' Hall on Thursday, the 29th ult. Bro. Robert Grey P.G.D. Patron presided, and among those present were Bros. Frank Richardson P.G.D., C. H. Webb, Herbert Dicketts, Ralph Clutton, T. Francis, Peter de Lande Long P.G.D., J. J. Caney, Edgar Bowyer P.G. Standard Bearer, E. M. Money, and F. R. W. Hedges Secretary. After confirming the minutes of the previous meeting, two vacancies on the House Committee, arising out of the election of Bro. J. A. Rucker P.G.D. and Joshua Nunn Past G. Sword Bearer as Trustees, were reported, and Bros. H. A. Hunt and James Moon were nominated by Brother Herbert Dicketts Provincial Grand Steward. Two petitions were submitted in respect of candidates for the election, of which one was accepted, and the other approved, but subject to the amendment of one of the certificates in its support. It was resolved that the Government Standard Reading Books should be used in the examination of candidates, as in the case of the Boys' School examinations. Notice of motion was given on behalf of Bro. Henry Smith Prov. Grand Secretary of West Yorkshire, for the next Quarterly Court, to the effect that the said Quarterly Court accept the sum of 1000 guineas from the Province of West Yorkshire, for the purchase of a perpetual presentation, to be called the "Sir Henry Edward's Presentation," which will be vested in Sir Henry for his life, Lady Edwards in the event of her surviving her husband for her life, and will then revert to the Province in perpetuity. A vote of thanks to the Chairman brought the proceedings to a close.

Judging from a Christmas Day menu we have just received from that most energetic of Freemasons—Bro. John Constable—we should imagine that the Transvaal Hotel, Kimberley, of which establishment he is the manager, would be very good quarters for fourth degree Masons, or others blessed with good digestive powers. As the menu in question will give some idea of what can be provided in the "depth of winter" outside our "miserable island," we give it in full, merely remarking, in passing, that we should think the entrées would serve as a sufficient excuse for "headache, biliousness," or any other of the ills of life which might be experienced next day, and perhaps, like many other questionable dishes—for we look upon pork cutlets for a start as very questionable—they are put there for the purpose of accounting for a "morning's reflections." It will be seen that the "joints" in Bro. Constable's menu are of a somewhat varied character, indeed it is a piece of information to us that sucking pig, turkey, or chicken are recognised "joints." We have often realised the fact that some of their species appear to have existed without joints, or at least to have outgrown them just previous to being prepared for table; in any case they have offered stout resistance to being disjointed. Themenu in question is as follows:—

TRANSVAAL HOTEL, KIMBERLEY.

MENU. DECEMBER 25, 1884.

SOUP.—Mock Turtle.

ENTREES.—Giblet Pie. Pork Cutlets and Green Peas.

JOINTS.—Roast Sirloin of Beef. Roast Lamb and Mint Sauce. Roast Leg of Mutton. Roast Veal and Tomato Sauce. Roast Sucking Pig and Apple Sauce. Roast Chicken and Ham. Roast Stuffed Turkey. Boiled Turkey and Oyster Sauce. Boiled Chicken and Bechamel Sauce. Corned Beef. Boiled Tongue, Piquante Sauce.

VEGETABLES.—Mashed Potatoes and Green Peas.

PASTRY.—Plum Pudding and Brandy Sauce. Gooseberry Tart. Fruit Pie. Blanc Mange and Jelly.

Cheese; Dessert.

We learn that it is Bro. Constable's intention to visit his native land during the approaching summer.

At the North London Chapter of Improvement, on Thursday evening, Comps. Gregory, Strugnell, Brasted, Sheffield, Knight and George filled the respective offices, and acquitted themselves in an able and masterly manner.

Bro. Frank Venning, Temple Lodge, No. 101, requests us to intimate that the firm in which he is a partner—Messrs. Venning and Venning, auctioneers, valuers, and land agents—have removed their Business Transfer Offices, &c., to 46 Southampton Buildings (two doors from Holborn, E.C.) We trust that this Firm, which boasts of City of London connections of over a century's growth, may continue to prosper in its new quarters.

RAGS AND THEIR REMEDIES.—The Committee of the Ragged School Union have just issued a paper by Prof. Leone Levi, and a Sermon by the Rev. Dr. Dykes, both of which give interesting information respecting the work of the affiliated Ragged School Missions in the Metropolis, and the urgent need for its continuance and extension. It is hoped these effective pleas will be widely circulated, and succeed in enlisting both teachers and funds for this noble work amongst the poorest of our City poor.

Fidelity Lodge of Instruction, No. 3.—A meeting was held on Wednesday, the 28th ult., at the Alfred, Roman Road, Barnsbury, N. Present:—Bros. Silvester J.W. 193 W.M., Treadwell 1076 S.W., Messer 25 J.W., Wheelock 151 S.D., Putland J.W. 1732 J.D., Vincent 1564 I.G., and Bro. Burgess, of the Henley Lodge, who acted as Preceptor, Bros. Yates and Deighton 1732, Windmill 1598, and others. The Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The W.M., assisted by the brethren, worked the first section of the lectures. Bro. Windmill kindly volunteered as candidate for initiation, and that ceremony was rehearsed most ably by the W.M. Bros. Yates, Deighton, Windmill, and Vincent were elected members of this Lodge of Instruction. Bro. Treadwell was duly elected to the chair for the next meeting. All Masonic business being ended the Lodge was closed in due form in perfect harmony.

Brixton Lodge of Instruction, No. 1949.—The annual festival of this prosperous Lodge of Instruction was held at Bro. Monk's, the Prince Regent, Dulwich-road, S.E., on Tuesday, the 27th ult. The accommodation being somewhat limited, numerous brethren were unavoidably disappointed in obtaining tickets. Bro. H. Maunder Williams, W.M. elect of the Honor Oak Lodge, 1986, presided, Bro. Henry Baldwin, W.M. elect of the Brixton Mother Lodge, occupying the vice-chair. Amongst the brethren present were the Preceptor, Bro. C. A. Francis, Bros. C. H. Phillips W.M. 1986 Treas., Bro. D. Richardson Sec., Bro. H. Hooper J.D. 1986, Bro. Rev. I. Wilson Haffenden Chaplain 1986, James Stevens P.M. 720, 1216, 1426, Thomas Poore P.M. 720, W. H. Williams P.M. 104, Joseph Harling P.M. W.M. 30, J. A. Danks, J. M. Buckley, Henry Stokes 1699, J. M. Mayer and A. E. Albert 1949, J. Letchford and G. R. Langley 1986, R. B. Johnston 1777, Hodgson, Monk and others. Amongst the many who were prevented from attending, and for whom apologies were read were, Bros. W. Hopekirk P.M. 1936, John Hammond P. Prov. J.D. Middx., J. R. Johnson W.M. 1320, G. W. Knight 1507, C. M. Money, C. Longhurst, S. Scott Young, F. Wootten, and other brethren of 1986. A substantial and well-served repast having been partaken of, the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given, the President proving his capacity for the duties of the office about to devolve upon him. By a courteous request to the W.M. elect of the Brixton Lodge, and to others about to be promoted in office in one or other of the Lodges, opportunities were given them for introducing the toasts which followed that of the W.M., and consequently much variety was given to both the toasts and the responses which followed. The compliment paid to the worthy Preceptor, Bro. Francis, was earnestly expressed and as heartily responded to. None who had done good service to the Lodge during the past year were forgotten. The charitable association connected with the Lodge, which had contributed over £300 to the several Institutions, came in for a fair share of recognition, and its executive were duly honoured. A most agreeable evening was spent by all present, Bros. Stevens, Poore, Monk, Phillips, and others maintaining harmony by songs and recitations, and Bro. Haffenden, who is an excellent musician, adding thereto by his performances on the host's combined harmonium and piano. Separation was not easy, but was effected at a reasonable hour.

AGE, WORTH, AND THE CRAFT.

ANY one reading the correspondence that has appeared of late in the Masonic journals would imagine that the "great gooseberry" season had arrived before its time, or had outlasted the period usually assigned to it. The writers referred to seem to enter into keen rivalry in their attempts to produce living specimens of antique Freemasons—brethren who were quite juvenile at "three score years and ten," who have been modest and silent as to their status in the Craft, but who have been suddenly elevated into patriarchs. Perhaps it would be unkind to suppose that those brethren who manifest such an ardent zeal in searching out nonagenarians and centenarians are feeble imitators of the notorious Baron Munchausen, but they certainly have a sharp eye for the marvellous. No doubt they believe what they write. It may even be true that there are brethren still alive who were Freemasons when "George the Third was King." Supposing this to be so, cui bono? Is the contest worth the labour? Old age should be respected, but good deeds should be reverenced. If increase of age were always synonymous with growth in virtue, the attempts made to canonize elders in the Craft should be welcomed. They should be put in the place of honour—made Masonic Gamaliels—at whose feet younger members should kneel and learn of their wisdom and experience. All that seems to be done, however, is simply to record the fact that Brother So-and-So was made a Freemason in such a year, that he is of such an age, and therefore he is the oldest living member of the Craft. If some of the writers would just search out and record a few facts relative to the Masonic career of their heroes, perhaps some useful lessons would be learned.

It would be profitable to know, for instance, what the venerable patriarchs have done for the Craft, whether during their long lives they continued to be subscribing members. It would be interesting to learn what offices they have filled, what instruction they have afforded to their juniors, and what support they have given to the Charities. A case came before our notice of a brother who claimed to have been initiated forty years ago, but who suffered a very long interregnum to elapse without taking the least interest in Freemasonry. This brother resumed communication. Like the Prodigal of old, he returned to his parent, and he speedily rose to a post of honour. There were some who felt that the Craft had been rather too lavish in its favours upon one who, whatever might be his position in social life, had for many years neglected the claims of the Brotherhood. Not a few felt hurt at the implied slight inflicted upon merit and long service, and there is reason to believe that much of the spirit of agitation that now prevails has arisen out of the manifest desire there is to worship the golden calf. There are other cases, no doubt, of a similar character, where new-born zeal and obtrusive generosity have outweighed life-long devotion.

Some brethren have been seized with a mania for founding Lodges and Chapters, and base their claims to honour upon the large number of members they have been instrumental in introducing. The credit lies more in the motive than in the act. It is difficult to determine where patriotism and selfishness meet in such cases, but it is beyond dispute that the popularising of Freemasonry is the greatest of modern dangers. It is a cardinal creed of the Craft that no pressure shall be brought to bear upon cowans, that those who wish to enter the mystic circle shall come of their own free will and accord. Yet who does not know that this charter of our body has been violated over and over again, and no protest made? The temptation to some to make members has been too great for their prudence, they have regarded numbers before fitness. Upon their success claims, it is feared, have been admitted, and contests for supremacy have been waged upon grounds which find no warrant in the genius of the Craft. The Order has grown in numbers and increased in wealth beyond all precedent, and yet never was their more urgent demand for help than now exists. It would be well for the brethren to consider how it is that so many are now seeking the aid of the various Charities, and why there is such an eager—almost painful—struggle for increased subscriptions and donations. Is not the reason to be found in the fact that among the rush of members many have entered who should have been excluded; or rather, who should never have been tempted to join? This truth will come home with greater force as the years roll on, and the evil will only cease when the Craft return to first principles. It may be that some will see in this reasoning a spirit of exclusiveness unworthy of the age in which we live, a Cassandra-like croaking that regards only the dark side of the picture. That would be an easy method of getting rid of awkward facts for the moment, but they would return with increased force and would compel attention. If Freemasonry were merely a benefit society, subject to rules as to age and subscriptions, then those who had succeeded in bringing in the most members would be entitled to honour. Membership in that case means capital and partnership. It is a mutual confederation based upon co-operation and equal rights. The distinctions are such as naturally arise among all mixed bodies, and, as a rule, the intelligent few rule the many. The ceremonies are comparatively feeble, they have no esoteric value. Such as they are, no doubt they serve a good purpose, but they are merely the outward trappings of an organisation that has its life in a provident combination for help in time of sickness and death. Freemasonry, on the other hand, is full of symbols, and its Charities are the national outcome of its spiritual teachings. No right to assistance is created by membership, and it exists only in the exercise of that spirit of Charity which is the principal chaplet in the crown of the Order.

Based upon divine truth, Freemasonry recognises neither age nor social standing unless associated with good deeds. It is a pure Republic, and only misses its high purpose when the source of its inspiration is forgotten and neglected. The Order is rich in literature, and its origin is enveloped in a cloud of mystery, which to attempt to pierce demands the exercise of the highest intellect and the noblest genius. With so grand a patrimony, it seems almost ignoble to talk about the oldest living Freemason as if beauty and grace lie concealed in the shrivelled forms of automatons of the Craft, as if knowledge and progress were forwarded by their moribund professors, who bear the name of the body to which they nominally belong, but who have not earned the reward of the good steward who had been faithful to the few things committed to his charge. Were the true spirit of Freemasonry more cultivated, were more regard paid to fitness than to numbers, there would be more charity. The loud tongue would cease to chatter, and the wise find a hearing. The pettiness of discord would cease before the undisputed claims of real worth, and the frivolities about age would yield to an honourable recognition of merit regardless of wealth or social station.

RIGHT OF VISIT.

RIGHT OF VISIT is sometimes called right of visitation; but visitation is a very different thing, and includes examination, supervision, calling to account, &c. The question, What are the rights of a Mason as to being present at a communication of a Lodge, of which he is not a member, has occasioned a great deal of controversy, and at times contention, among the Craft, and it seems to have become a common opinion in many quarters that any member of a Lodge has the right to peremptorily object to the presence of any Mason, not a member of the Lodge. When a reason for this is assigned, it is generally this: that harmony in the Lodge must be maintained; and if any member feels that he cannot tolerate the presence of a certain visitor, his feelings must be accommodated by keeping such visitor out, and so preserving harmony.

There are three assumptions in this view of the case, which seem to have been adopted without sufficient reflection. The first is, that a member's right is inherent in him, not as a Mason, but as a member of the particular Lodge, and that it extends to all matters whatever. The second is that because harmony is a great lesson of the work, and must as to some matters be preserved, and ought to be cultivated at all times, a member of a particular lodge is vested with a right, by virtue of his membership alone, to clear the floor of all acknowledged Masons, not members, with whom he is not well pleased. The third assumption is that the warrant is granted, the Lodge instituted, and the same opened and closed, and the entire work therein carried on, for the sole use and benefit of the persons who may be admitted members thereof. From all this, those who hold to the right of peremptory objection believe that it is a matter of pure grace on the part of each member of a Lodge opened for Masonic work, to permit the Craft, or any member of it, even though entered, passed and raised on that very floor, to take part in, or even witness, the work of the Craft, on that same floor to be performed.

But it is ventured here to suggest that all such opinions fall to the ground upon a little examination of what the Masonic Lodge is, and why it is such as it is, and for what purpose instituted, and for what the warrant of its constitution is granted, and why, and for whom it is opened at all.

It is true that harmony is one of the undoubted teachings of the Lodge, not only in its lectures, but in its work throughout. All well informed Masons understand that Ancient Craft Masonry not only inculcates harmony among the brethren in all matters, but that harmony, as a principle of the divine order, is one of the fundamentals of both the science and the art which makes Masonry to be a "craft," and is represented as one of the three great pillars which support the Lodge.

But harmony among whom? and as to what? Must the members be in the same harmony among themselves as is required between each one of them and a visitor? Doubtless they must, or the reason assigned for excluding the visitor would be false and sinister. There must be the same harmony remaining in the Lodge after he is excluded, as there must be if he should remain without objection. But this clearly shows that whatever would be tolerated between any two members present, without interfering with the work, would not interfere, if it should exist between one member and a visitor. This leads to the question, What harmony is required between two, or more, members of the Lodge? Not harmony as to religion, for it is a cardinal doctrine of the Lodge that men of all religious persuasions are equally acceptable. Not harmony as to politics, for as to that the same rules prevail. Neither harmony as to business affairs or family disputes, for men much incensed against each other take part in the work, and yet it is never surposed that for that cause the work is not lawfully done. Nor yet must there be harmony as to matters pending in the Lodge or Grand Lodge, for though heated strife may be prevailing as to pending measures, if all present join in the work, the harmony required is not deemed to be infringed by the feelings of antagonists as to such measures. It seems, therefore, that as to all the matters last mentioned (and many more might be spoken of) want of harmony among those present does not affect the sublime lesson of the Lodge; so that as to such matters there is no reason for excluding anybody.

What harmony then is required? The only answer seems to be, harmony as to proceeding with the work, and that each one present be satisfied that every other is a Mason of the proper degree. When this harmony is attained, all is attained which can be practically secured; and more than this, all which is called for in order to represent and conform to the order of the universe, for nature exhibits everywhere elements which are in continual strife in some respects, but which all concur as to the grand results, in all their amazing complex, as a Lodge may be at times composed of contentious members, who nevertheless are in harmony as to energy and concord in the work.

The right to peremptorily object depends on a prior question, that is, Who have a right to be present? for if any one has a right to be present, manifestly no one can object to his being there. But the right to be present depends on still prior questions, What is the Lodge, and why is it opened, and where, and for whom? This again depends on the degree. If the first degree is opened, it is the symbolic opening of the Terrestrial Lodge—the material world—the world of sense—that which is perceptible to the senses. If opened in the second degree, it is the opening of the intellectual world; the world cognizable by the intellect—all sciences, knowledges, and all intellectual philosophy, which is the unification of these; together with all their arts. If the third or sublime degree be opened, the moral world is opened, that cognizable by the moral powers and faculties—all moral science and philosophy—and as each higher degree includes the inferior, when that degree is opened, all are opened.

This is why the Lodge is opened, first on the level, secondly on the square, and thirdly and lastly on the centre. On the level, because then all are on the Ground Floor, which is level; on the square because the square is the representative of all natural science, which is the degree of a Fellow Craft; on the centre, because when opened on the centre the universe is opened; for the centre is perfection, and is the "East," and the circumference is from the centre, and not the centre from the circumference, and the circle is the most comprehensive figure possible in geometry, in which all others are contained, as the triangle is the simplest, of which all other forms are composed.

There is, in contemplation of Masonry, but one Lodge (three in one), and it is opened for all the worthy wheresoever dispersed about the globe. True it is opened in divers places; but this only of necessity and for convenience, that in every part of the earth Masons may meet and work, and not be prevented either by distance or their own multitude. But when opened, every particular Lodge is, in the Masonic idea, the same Lodge. If all Masons could assemble and work in one place, the Lodge would be opened in that place only. It matters not that many particular Lodges may be open at the same time—indeed anciently they were so opened, as nearly as the rotation of the Ground Floor (which is the earth) would permit, for they were opened on the full of the moon—then by neglect of Masonic order, on some particular day of the week, regulated by the full moon, and lately, by still further negligence, they are mostly opened on set days of the week, as clubs and societies meet.

When any Lodge is opened or closed, or stands open for Masonic work, every Mason of the proper degree has the inherent right to be present, for three reasons at least, and each unquestionable. First, that he may receive a portion of his wages—Masonic light, and his wages are to be received wherever the Lodge is open. Secondly, that he may prove the work of those there engaged, who claim to be Masons; and thirdly, because he is under a duty to attend and aid in the work when he can do so with reasonable convenience to himself and others; and no man can be rejected in any institution, who has an appointed duty there, merely to please somebody else.

What Master ever received a warrant to hold a Lodge, except for all the Craft? The very mention of such a case shows its absurdity. What charter of any particular Lodge lawfully granted, since "Grand Lodge Masonry," as it is called, has existed, ever contained any restriction of its benefits to the members of the Lodge chartered, or any limitation of the right and duty of a regular Mason to aid in the universal work of the Craft? Every one can see that in a Lodge held under a warrant to a Master to make Masons, or pass them, as was common in former times, there could be no visitors at all; and when Master Masons were raised, whether in such a Lodge or in a Grand Lodge, the case must have been the same; and so also when the Grand Master made Masons at sight. But because Lodges are now chartered to work at a particular place, and are for many purposes business corporations, and for such purposes have particular members, united under bye-laws, all other Masons who come to such a Lodge are called visitors, which in truth they are, as to the business character and affairs of such Lodge, and have no right to vote there on any matter falling under the bye-laws; but as to the work, that is a matter which pertains to the universal Lodge; that is, to the whole Craft; hence all can see that their right to be present at any work is altogether paramount to any right of objection which a Lodge member might claim. The visitor's right to see and assist at the work, in the way in which all present are required to assist, cannot be denied by the Worshipful Master, for he opens his Lodge from East to West, and between the North and South, and not at all as a local institution; and he does so standing in place of the Grand Master, who is necessarily Master of every particular Lodge, and when present sits in the East with the Worshipful Master on his right hand.

This is why the Lodge receives the Grand Master with the Grand Honours; for that is the Masonic recognition that he is rightfully in the chair of Solomon, as the Oriental chair is called; and no honours are to be given to any other officer; and if any are given to a proxy of the Grand Master they are not intended for him, but for the authority of the Master who sent him. Least of all should Grand Honours be given to a Deputy Grand Master in his own right, for he is not a Masonic officer at all, but only an innovation.—Voice of Masonry.

DEVELOPMENT OF THE ROYAL ARCH DEGREE.

By Bro. Jacob Norton.

UP to within a month I believed that the ritual translated in 1882 was the bona fide English Royal Arch Ritual of about 1812. The translator, as well as a very eminent English Brother and 33 degreer, intimated that some portions of that ritual were taken out of the A. and A. rite; but a recent find of another Royal Arch ritual convinced me that those portions were not taken out of the A. and A. Rite, but that the Charleston manufacturers of the A. and A. Rite copied those notions from this very ritual.

It is a well-known fact that the G.L. of England chartered a Lodge held in Paris in 1724. Of course, the ritual then consisted of only three degrees, and a very crude ritual it was. The English brethren since then made successive additions to their original ritual. Here, in America, Thos. Smith Webb made additions to the English ritual, and, as a matter of course, the French brethren also made successive additions to their ritual. The origin of Masonry was a mystery; Anderson's history of Masonry did not satisfy Chevalier Ramsay (a Scotchman by birth, who was in the service of the Pretender, lived in Paris, and was one of the earliest Masons initiated in Paris). In 1735 the Lodge in Paris conferred the new title of "Masonic Orator" on Ramsay, and in his oration he asserted that Masonry descended from the Crusaders. This notion took root, and Ramsay and others set to work in inventing a series of degrees with legends of all nations and ages. Some of those legends and degrees were said to have been preserved in Scotland, hence they talk about "Scottish Rite." Somewhere between 1745 and 1758 they had in Paris no less than twenty-five degrees, and they seem to have thought that they had quite enough, and those degrees were styled the "Rite of Perfection." The Royal Arch was evidently one of the earliest of their new degrees, and it seems to have been the seventh degree of the new Rite. In 1762 Stephen Morin brought the Rites of Perfection to the West Indies, and from thence they were imported into Charleston, S.C. The Charleston luminaries did not consider the "Rite of Perfection quite perfect, so they went to work and pretended to have received a charter from Frederick the Great, rehashed the twenty-five degrees into thirty-three degrees, and in 1801 they proclaimed themselves S.C. of the "Ancient and Accepted Rite," or A. and A. Rite.

This "A. and A. Rite" was conferred in Charleston upon Count De Grasse, a refugee from Hayti; he carried the new Rite to Paris. The French Orient, who had never heard that Frederick the Great was a high degreer, would not listen to De Grasse, and treated his pretensions with contempt. The Count thereupon set up a concern of his own, and began to manufacture thirty-thirds. At last, for the sake of peace, the French Orient yielded, and from Perfection Riters they became A. and A. Riters.

Marconnay, who transcribed the Royal Arch Ritual which was brought to New York from Hayti in 1833, knowing it was not one of the A. and A. degrees, it being headed the "seventh degree," &c., and as the Royal Arch is called here the "seventh degree of the York Rite," he headed the ritual accordingly, and added that it was sent from England to Port au Prince, in Hayti, in 1802, and as there was no evidence to contradict Marconnay's statement, we all took it for granted that it was an old English R.A. ritual.

Bro. Albert Pike, however, also found a ritual of the R.A. in New Orleans, which is headed "the seventh degree of the Ancient Rite." This ritual was also brought from Hayti (somewhere between 1797 and 1809). Bro. Pike furnishes conclusive evidence that the said ritual was used in a R.A. Chapter chartered by the Grand Orient of France (between 1784 and 1796) for Port-au-Prince, in Hayti, and on carefully comparing the ritual translated by De la Granja with that of Pike, I found them both alike. Paragraph after paragraph begin and end alike. This fact left no doubt on my mind that the ritual in question was not an English R.A. ritual, but it was unquestionably the parent of the English R.A. degree. The Charlestonian A. and A. Riters, however, seem to have rehashed the legend of the old seventh degree, and developed it in the thirteenth and fourteenth, &c. degrees of the A. and A. Rite into the following cock and bull story:

"Enoch, the son of Jared . . the sixth in descent from Adam . . In a vision the Deity appeared to him . . and said to him, 'Enoch, thou hast longed to know my true name; arise, and follow me and thou shalt know it.'

"Enoch, accepting his vision as an inspiration, journeyed in search of the mountain he had seen in his dream, until weary of the search; he stopped in the land of Canaan, then already populous with the descendants of Adam, and there employed workmen; and with the help of his own son, Methuselah, he excavated nine apartments one above another, and each roofed with an arch, as he had seen in his dream, the lowest being hewn out of the solid rock. In the crown of each arch he left a narrow aperture, closed with a square stone, and over the upper one he built a modest temple, roofless, and of huge unhewn stones, to the Grand Architect of the Universe. Upon a triangular plate of gold, inlaid with many precious gems, he engraved the ineffable name of God, and sank a plate into one face of a cube of agate.

"None knew of the deposit of the precious treasure; and that it might remain undiscovered, and survive the Flood, which it was known to Enoch would soon overwhelm the world in one vast sea of mire, he covered the aperture, and the stone that closed it and the great ring of iron used to raise the stone, with the granite pavement of his primitive temple.

"Then fearing that all knowledge of the arts and sciences would be lost in the universal flood he built two great columns upon a high hill—one of brass to resist the water, and one of granite to resist fire. On the granite column was written in hieroglyphics a description of the subterranean apartments; on the one of brass, the rudiments of the arts and sciences.

"The granite column was overturned and swept away and worn to a shapeless mass by the Deluge, but that of brass stood firm and was found by Noah. Thenceforward the true name of God remained unknown until He said unto Moses in Egypt, when He ordered him to go to Pharaoh, and cause him to send forth the children of Israel out of Egypt, 'I am that which I was and shall be, I am the God of thy fathers, the God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob. Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, He who is hath sent me unto you, I am the Lord that appeared to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, by My name, Al shedi; but My name—I did not show them.'

"Moses engraved the ineffable name upon a plate of gold and deposited it in the ark of the covenant. Moses made the name known to Aaron and Joshua, and afterwards it was made known to the chief priests. The word being composed of consonants only its true pronunciation was soon lost, but the word still remained in the ark; and in the time of Otheniel, in a battle against the King of Syria, those who bore the ark were slain, and the ark fell to the ground. After the battle the men of Israel searching for it were led to it by the roaring of a lion, which, crouching by it, had guarded it, holding the golden key in its mouth. Upon the approach of the High Priest and the Levites he laid down the key and withdrew. Hence upon the golden key worn by the Treasurer you see the initials of these words, 'In arc leonis verbum inveni.' 'In the lion's mouth I found the word.' This plate of gold was melted down, made into an image of Dagon by the Philistines who took it in battle.

"David intended to build a temple to God, but bequeathed the enterprise to Solomon, his son, and Solomon selected a place near Jerusalem; but finding overthrown columns of Enoch's temple, and supposing them to be the ruins of a heathen temple, and not wishing to select a desecrated spot, selected Mount Moriah for the site of his temple to the true God. Under this temple he built a secret vault, the approach to which was through eight other vaults, all under the ground, and to which a long and narrow passage led under the king's palace. In the ninth apartment was placed a twisted column of white marble, on which it was intended to place the ark, and in this apartment he held his private conferences with King Hiram of Tyre, and H.A., they only knowing the way by which it was approached. Solomon proposed to erect a temple of Justice, and selected as a site the spot where Enoch's temple had stood, and to that end directed that the fallen columns and rubbish should be removed. Gibulum, Joabert and Stolkin were selected to survey the ground and lay off the foundation."

THE HISTORY CONTINUED IN THE FOURTEENTH DEGREE.

"My brother, you were informed in the degree of the Royal Arch that King Solomon builded a secret vault, the approach to which was through eight other vaults, all under the ground, and to which a long and narrow passage led from the palace. The ninth arch or vault was immediately under the Holy of Holies of the Temple. In that apartment Solomon held private conferences with King Hiram and Hiram Abiff. After the death of Hiram Abiff the two kings ceased to visit it, resolving not to do so until that time they should select one to fill his place, and that until that time they would make known the sacred name to no one. After Adomoram, Joabert and Stolkin had discovered the cube of agate and the mysterious name, and had delivered it to King Solomon, the two kings determined to deposit it in the secret vault, permit the three Masters who discovered it to be present, make known to them the true pronunciation of the ineffable word, constitute the last degree of ancient Craft Masonry. [Query: Will there ever be a last to ancient Craft Masonry?] and term it Grand Elect, Perfect and Sublime Masons. The cube of agate was so deposited.

"After the twelve Princes of Ameth, the nine Elect and the Chief Architect were admitted to this degree. The secret vault was thereafter called Sacred Vault and was originally built by Hiram Abiff, and none but Grand, Elect, Perfect and Sublime Masons knew of its existence, or knew other than the substitute word.

"The Temple was completed in the year 3000—six years, six months and ten days after King Solomon had laid the first corner stone, and its completion was celebrated with great pomp and splendid magnificence.

"Subsequently, while the Temple was being dedicated, King Solomon conferred this sublime degree on the twenty-five brethren we have mentioned, and in the form you have but now witnessed.

* * * * *

"On the second day [after the Temple was dedicated] an audience was given to all Masons, from the degree of Master to the Royal Arch, and all vacancies were filled. On the third day King Solomon devoted his time to advancing and raising Fellow Crafts and Entered Apprentices.

THE DESTRUCTION OF THE TEMPLE BY NEBUCHADNEZZAR.

"This happened four hundred and seventy years, six months and ten days after the dedication. After the city was taken, and the King's palace and the Temple demolished, some of the Grand Elect Masons bethought themselves of the Sacred Vault and the inestimable treasure it contained. Repairing to the ruins of the temple at night they found that the way which led down to the vault had not been discovered, nor the slab of marble which covered it disturbed, but upon it they found the dead body of Galaad, an eminent brother and Chief of the Levites. He had been entrusted with the custody of the Sacred Vault and the care of the lamps that burned continually."

Removing the body and descending into the vault they erased the sacred letters from the plate of gold, broke the plate to pieces, placed the cube of agate in a corner of the vault, covered it with rubbish, extinguished the lamp and overturned the pedestal; then they buried Bro. Galaad in the vault (giving him a Masonic funeral of course); they then ascended and covered the place, &c.

It was then determined never again to write the name, but hand it down by tradition in syllables without ever pronouncing the entire word. . . . Once in each year the word was repeated by syllables in the Temple, the brethren forming a circle, the High Priest repeating the syllables to a brother on the right, who repeated them to the one next to him, and so they passed round the circle and returned to the High Priest. . . .

"Finally, when the time arrived that the Christian Princes entered into a league to free the Holy Land from the oppression of the Infidels, the good and virtuous Masons . . . offered their services to the confederates, upon condition that they should have a chief of their own election, and whose name was only made known in the hour of battle, which being granted, they accepted their standard and departed."

The last paragraph informs us that the Princes and the Knights were so delighted with the Masons that all the best of the Crusaders were Masonized, and so it "spread far and wide through a succession of ages to the present day."

"Consistency" is called a "jewel," but it is certainly not a Masonic jewel. Here we have three rituals of the Royal Arch. According to the English Ritual the great secret was discovered at the building of the second Temple. According to the old French ritual the secret was not discovered until after the destruction of the last Temple. And according to the A. and A. ritual the secret from the days of Solomon to the present time was never lost at all. Again, the old French ritual informs us that Brothers Mahabon, Jachin and Boaz were Solomon's confidential friends; but those three old worthies were discarded from the Royal Arch degree both by the English and the A. and A. ritual tinkers. Still again, according to the old French ritual, Brothers Gibulum, Joabert and Stolkin (Joabert and Stolkin were the brethren who on that occasion pulled Bro. Gibulum with the rope out of the vault) were contemporaries of the Emperor Titus; the A. and A. luminaries make those worthies contemporaries of King Solomon while the tinkers of the English R.A. ritual have expelled Joabert and Stolkin from all connection with the Masonic fraternity. There are also other discrepancies which I shall call attention to at some future time. But in one part of the story the old French ritual and the A. and A. ritual most singularly coincide, viz., their sudden transition in their narratives from the days of Zerubbabel, or of Titus, down to the Crusaders and Templarism.

ANOTHER DINNER.—Such was the shout on Wednesday outside the Hall of the London Cottage Mission at Salmon's-lane, Limehouse, from the hundreds of hungry children who, with their clatter of spoons and basons, were waiting to see whether or no there was to be any Irish stew this week, and, happily for them, there was; but they little knew how nearly it had been a case of an empty copper, for Mr. Austin, the indefatigable Director, assures us that it was only with the greatest difficulty that he saved his starving crowd from what would have been to them a bitter disappointment. Now, the question is, What is to be done next week?—for without immediate help from those able to assist in this good work, dinner party there will be none, and the great hall will be empty. Let us earnestly hope this will not be so. Surely there are kind and charitable hearts who will see that timely aid is given, and forward their contributions as soon as they read these lines to Mr. Austin, 44 Finsbury-pavement, E.C., who will most gladly and gratefully receive them.

PRINCE'S.

"WORTH makes the man," sang Alexander Pope; but Worth fails to make an artist, even with so pretty a lay figure as Mrs. Langtry offers the great man milliner. "The School for Scandal," produced on Tuesday night at the Prince's, dragged its slow length along from eight o'clock till midnight. Sumptuous interiors, Chippendale furniture, and splendid costumes, changed at every opportunity, showed lavish outlay in mounting the play, but though stalls and dress circle felt a feeble enthusiasm for these things, they poorly compensated the tedium of the dreary waits entailed. Mrs. Langtry as Lady Teazle is pleasing in the light comedy scenes; she is the graceful lady of fashion without aid from histrionic art; but she does not indicate beneath the acquired social veneer the high-spirited, true-hearted country girl, who never really belongs to the clique of the Candours and Backbites. Then, in the great screen scene, where Miss Litton or Miss Ada Cavendish showed us, not the rage of the humiliated lady of fashion, but the heart agony of a true woman, degraded in her own eyes, Mrs. Langtry sorely fails to grasp the situation. She hides her face when we should read on it the story of the awakening from a dream of folly; and when, abashed and self-convicted, we should see how this honest-hearted country girl will emerge out of the desperate entanglement to win back happiness and her husband's love, Mrs. Langtry makes a heavy tragedy exit, and fails to awaken sympathy in the audience for the personage she represents. Much expectation had been excited by the cast, but though Mr. Farren gave us Sir Peter with all the delicate refinement and finish of which, perhaps, he alone possesses, at the present day, the secret, and Mr. Coghlan made an excellent Charles, dashing and volatile, there was much disappointment in store as regards the Joseph Surface of Mr. Beerbohm Tree. The plausible, high-bred, fascinating man of the world, who hoodwinks alike clear witted Lady Teazle and his cynical associates, is certainly not realised. A Sunday-school teacher could not be taken in by such an embryonic scoundrel; still we will hazard no final judgment. A very finished and effective Joseph is quite within this clever actor's grasp. Mrs. Arthur Stirling played carefully, but without the breadth and unction which should make Mrs. Candour one of the most delightful figures on the stage. We trust the play, after the first night, will run closer, and that on a second visit the charms of the deep fauteuils will not be so tempting for an occasional nap.

ST. JAMES'S.

IT is not a wholly pleasant duty to record this latest version of "As you like it." The management of the St. James's have assuredly spared neither thought, toil, nor cost to make the production a success, but we fear, unless more vigorous life and good brisk out of door spirit be imparted, there must be disappointment for all concerned. St. James's boasts one of the best companies in London, and in Mrs. Kendal surely one of the fairest, as she is undoubtedly among the most gifted artists who honour the stage. The park and the forest scenery is exquisite. Surely such grass, such mossy stems and umbrageous boughs have never been lighted by artificial sunlight before, nor the sweet lyrics of Shakspeare sung to such sylvan accompaniment of babbling brooklet. The costumes are careful studies of the fantastic period chosen. We seem to see a dozen pictures by Mabuse or Schwartz made living men and women. The Meiningen management would have nothing to teach this St. James' crowd as to naturalness of action. The scene at the wrestling match is one of the most brilliant and effective we have ever witnessed. Groups form and reform under the spreading boughs of grand old cedars on one side of the stage,—though it is difficult to believe this is a stage and not a stately sun-lighted park. On the other rises the massive carved stone front of the ancient chateau. A pretty quaint group is produced by the steeple capped nurse and her young charges, who come into the balcony to enjoy the festival. Mr. Kendal in this scene—as in the preceding one with his "wicked brother" Oliver—was at his best, manly and self-possessed. He looked Orlando to the life; handsome, graceful and young, as Orlando should be; but where the idyllic and ideal lover should be shown us Mr. Kendal evidently felt ill at ease. With the intention of giving dignity to the part, he abdicates those pleasant gifts of true comedy he possesses, and instead of the fascinating brilliant youth who should justify Rosalind's sudden passion we have a most staid and serious—might we not say, tedious—young man. We hope, however, with the greater ease that will come, will follow more familiarity. Mr. Kendal has yet to do his best, and assuredly it will then be a very pleasant interpretation. For the Rosalind of Mrs. Kendal, the stage has rarely seen a brighter, a more refined, or one more charming in every way. The Madge Robertson of earlier days has come back to us, with all the girlish charm and sweetness of old, and with the added power of years of study. The archness and pretty petulance of the scene where Rosalind would make Orlando woo her under her feigned name was simply charming, whilst her singing of the cuckoo song awoke the house to enthusiasm. Mrs. Kendal has undoubtedly achieved an artistic triumph, and if she could inspire her coadjutors with her own spirit the revival would be a delight for months to come. There is, however, a generally subdued tone—all seems set in a minor key—a weight of melancholy weighs on all the dramatis personæ, except in the case of the fair Celia, admirably portrayed by Miss Linda Dietz, who shines forth with a sprightliness and winsomeness quite charming. The débutante, Miss Lea, also makes the meek Audrey one of the chief successes of the night. She is "enough" Audrey, rustic and awkward, with a pleasant bright wit under her rusticity. Mr. Hare as Touchstone:—To this representation we all looked forward as an opportunity for this gifted actor, and we are sure Mr. Hare is as little satisfied as those who would so willingly praise him. Mr. Vezin lends his high-bred manner and perfect elocution to Jacques once more, but the noble melancholy of the "Seven Ages" seemed to lack something, spoken as it was among those well-dressed, banished lords, who evidently were not enjoying their forest pic-nic. Mr. Cellier's music for the songs is doubtless graceful, but how can we praise that which has robbed us of those sweet old tunes we older folks must ever associate with the sweetest lyrics Shakespear has given us?

THE PRINCESS'S.

"HAMLET" at the Princess's has attained and passed its hundredth night, with the popularity its first representation evoked in no degree lessened. The fifth act closed on the 5th February for the hundredth time, amid plaudits even more enthusiastic than those that generally greet the gifted actor and generous manager, who was evidently compelled, in spite of himself, to respond to the demand for a speech. Happily custom and warning experience has taught Mr. Barrett that though the critical audience with whom one almost seems to clasp hands in the excitement of those great waves of emotion and applause may be warmly sympathetic, the hand-clasp and the responsive pulse must be wanting in the "morning paper," and therefore, in Mr. Barrett's own words, "it is canny to say nowt." At the same time he gracefully acknowledged the favour that had rewarded the work done by him and his company; he also pronounced the good augury that in two other theatres Shakespear had found welcome. Doubtless never has "Hamlet" excited higher interest or given occasion for more controversy. Mr. Barrett can show good justification for his reading, in the essentially living, suffering, sympathetic embodiment he has given us. There is this charm in the play, that each actor may give us a new Hamlet, and yet each be true. The character, like a faceted diamond, shows this or that colour as the light falls on it. One of the great charms of the present revival has been the restoration of the king to his proper importance in the play. The voluptuous "smiling villain," whose crimes are as much due to passion for the Queen as for greed of power, has in Mr. Willard a fine embodiment, and time has much refined and given finish to the portraiture. Miss Eastlake, who plays Ophelia with much care, is in danger of greatly elaborating the final scene, and making the very realism of her madness destructive to the grace and dignity which should ever distinguish tragedy from melodrama. The stately beauty of Miss Leighton is of great value in her presentment of the queen; we see a woman of whom Claudius declares, Gertrude "lives but in his (Hamlet's) looks"—and, as the queen, we scarcely feel the mother. There is a grim earnestness in Mr. George Barrett's gravedigger, which keeps the part well within the prevailing minor key; it is exceedingly fine, and with true touch of comedy in its rendering. Though lovers of Shakespeare must regret they bid farewell to Macready's "Sweet Prince," we believe Mr. Barrett's judgment will again secure a great success in the new "Brutus," for which theatregoers are now impatiently looking forward. Not at the Princesses need the manager fear "there is no money bid for argument, unless the poet and the player went to cuffs on the question."

A special meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Leicestershire and Rutland will be held on Monday next, 16th inst., at the Freemasons' Hall, Halford Street, Leicester, when the Lodge of the Golden Fleece, No. 2081, will be constituted and dedicated in ancient form. The Provincial Grand Lodge will be opened at 3·15 p.m., and after the calling over of the Provincial roll and the transaction of other formal business the new Lodge will be consecrated. The W.M. designate having been installed, he will proceed to invest his Officers, invite propositions, and then close the Lodge. The Deputy Provincial Grand Master—Bro. S. S. Partridge—will then call attention to the forthcoming election of Grand Treasurer of England, and will move "That the Provincial Grand Lodge heartily approves the candidature of a Provincial Brother for the office, and recommends W. Bro. John Woodall Woodall P.M., P P.S.G.W. North and East Yorkshire, to the support of the brethren of the Province." Any other business regularly brought before the Provincial Grand Lodge will be transacted, and then Prov. Grand Lodge will be closed. A banquet will be served at the Hall at half past five, and as a large attendance is expected, an early notification is requested from any brother intending to be present. The price of the tickets for dinner and dessert are 5s 6d each. The attendance of brethren of other Provinces is invited by the Provincial Grand Lodge.

We are asked to state that the ballots for Life Governors in the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons, in which Bro. Simpson J. Byng, 424 S.C. and P.M. 902 is Steward, will take place at Bro. Meekham's, Alwyne Castle, St. Paul's-road, Highbury, on Friday evening, 20th February, at nine o'clock.

REPORTING MASONIC MEETINGS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I have often wondered why it is that certain brethren object to a fair, simple, and legitimate report of the proceedings of Lodge meetings, and although I have asked for reasons I have never been able to get convincing answers. I know that in a certain Lodge with which I am acquainted there are two or three members who fill situations, the duties of which seem to clash with the offices they hold in the Lodge, and therefore object to the publication of their names. It is not the mere record they object to, but the inference that is likely to be drawn from the fact that the Lodge meets at five or half-past, a period of the day when perhaps their duties as employés are not ended. The brethren I refer to do not attend at the opening of the Lodge, except on special occasions. From my personal knowledge of them I am sure they would not forfeit their good names as worthy brethren by neglecting their duties as citizens, yet the fact remains that they would be liable to a false construction being put upon their actions by a due record, without the addition of an interpreting clause, and this cannot be given without recording the time of arrival at the Lodge of each member, a thing impossible and absurd.

Then there is the case of the brother who may happen to be Secretary, whose employers might object to his filling other offices which might detain him late at night, and so unfit him for work on the following day. How far the cases I have named influence the brethren I do not know, they are the only practical answers I have ever met with against the reporting of Lodge meetings. The objections referred to were overcome by leaving out the names of the brethren concerned, a very easy and simple remedy. Those, however, who are against all publication, except by authority, are either martinets or the victims of unnecessary fear. Set a beggar on horseback and he will ride to the devil; put some soldiers in a Masonic office and they will excommunicate all who dare to do anything that has not received license from or through them. Like the Pharisees of old, they are sticklers for discipline, but wants is in spirit. They are jealous of their office, and construe actions into offences in the spirit of tyrants. I have known two instances in my own Masonic career where a choleric and pedantic soldier, aided by a servile follower, exhibited all the narrow-mindedness of bigots. These brethren were enemies to Lodge reports being published, except under circumstances they could either command or influence. I may add that the Province to which they belong is not noted either for its charity or courtesy.

In the foregoing I have merely referred to what has come under my own notice, the larger question I leave to other and abler hands.

Yours fraternally,

QUEX.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF NORFOLK.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Hitherto Norfolk has not figured prominently in the charitable movements connected with the Craft. I was pleased, therefore, to find that a scheme was set on foot at the recent annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge held at Lynn, for methodically organising subscriptions in aid of the Schools in connection with the Order. Without entering into the merits of the proposed plan I may say that if carried out with anything like spirit it cannot fail to improve the charitable status of the Province and the Institutions concerned. What I fear is that petty jealousies may retard the operation of the scheme, and that a litigious spirit—the curse of Norfolk—may mar the hopes that may be raised. Time will tell. I hope it will be on the side of charity, and not in favour of that egotism and selfish clannishness which disfigures so much that is good amongst Norfolk Masons.

In referring to what is recorded with regard to the doings of the Prov. G. Lodge, I am reminded of the omissions. I presume a banquet followed labour; indeed you say so in nine words, and that is all we know about it. Nothing is said about service at church. I interpret your silence to mean that on this occasion the practice adopted when the Grand Lodge met at Norwich had been departed from. If that were so, I am sorry for it, for I believe the service did much good in ways that cannot be discussed here, but which most of the Norfolk brethren well understand.

Now, Sir, although you are silent about the banquet, I have reason to believe that you and others were treated with scant courtesy on that occasion. I hear from good authority that the management of the whole affair was not a success, that brethren who came from a long distance, who had taken every precaution, were unable to be present at the banquet. It was only with difficulty that they could obtain admission to the proceedings of Grand Lodge. Under these circumstances I can well understand why you gave no account of the banquet. I know when Grand Lodge met at Norwich there was no difficulty about banquet tickets. Why change the tactics at Lynn I am unable to discover, unless the reason is to be sought in the presence of the Most Worshipful Grand Master his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. It may be, as you say, that a larger number was present than was expected. I can hardly accept such an explanation. The Province may be large in extent, but the number of Lodges is not great—something like sixteen or seventeen I believe. There is only one Lodge in the town in which the annual meeting of Prov. G. Lodge was held, and as only two hundred and thirty guests sat down to the banquet, I am at a loss to conceive how it was that any failure occurred. No doubt the announcement that the Most Worshipful Grand Master would be present attracted a good many brethren, but that was all the more reason why ample provision should have been made. I fear much soreness will arise out of this break-down; I am sure some of the brethren will have formed a very bad opinion of the Norfolk Masons, and will not trust to their courtesy a second time. The whole mischief is to be attributed to a narrow clique, who monopolise all power, and whose estimate of themselves is above the appraisement of ordinary mortals. I am sure the Norfolk brethren would disclaim all desire to be discourteous, but others, in their name, have, I fear, done some damage to their fair fame.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

WATCHMAN.

THE CLIFTONVILLE HOTEL, MARGATE.

THERE is, or used to be, a general opinion abroad that Margate, by reason of the loud and pretentious people who frequent it, is not among the most desirable of our pleasure resorts, and that, for some vague reason we have never clearly been able to understand, its climate is not so favourable to health as we should wish it to be. That owing to its easy access from London a very mixed class of visitors should find their way thither is very natural; but of late years, at all events, the town has grown considerably, and with Cliftonville on one side, and Westgate on the other, there is now ample accommodation for the quietest and most exigent of holiday seekers. Then the very fact of a large and important infirmary for scrofulous patients having been established for years in close proximity to the harbour is undeniable evidence in favour of its being a healthful place, even had it not been again and again shown by the most acceptable medical authority that, so far from its being unhealthy, there are few spots where hard-working people whose system needs renovating from time to time, or those who are constitutionally feeble, are more likely to regain or acquire tone or strength than Margate. Even the opinion which has found favour with many people that Margate is cold and windy during the winter months is known to be based on erroneous calculations, the effect of the cold winds to which it is open from the north and east being very materially lessened by the sea, the temperature of which is considerably higher than that of the land. In fact, Margate stands high in favour with the medical profession, and is yearly becoming more and more the resort of invalids. In these circumstances we may be excused for drawing attention to the great improvements which have latterly been effected in the Cliftonville Hotel, which is now under new proprietorship and new management. This hotel, which is admirably situated in extensive grounds of its own, of about three acres, and some 150 feet above the sea-level, has always stood well in public estimation, but under the personal control of Mr. Lewis Jefferies, the resident managing director, the Cliftonville must be looked upon as one of the lions of the place, to say nothing of its position being outside the limits frequented by the less attractive class of excursionists. Everything has been done to bring the hotel into admirable trim. Not only has it been enlarged and improved, but it has also been almost entirely refurnished and redecorated, so that it is no exaggeration to suggest that, as regards size, comfort, and appearance it, will compare favourably with other houses of the same class at our seaside resorts. But in order to render it available to persons of more modest means the management have adopted the excellent plan of making, where desired, a fixed charge per person for the accommodation usually required. That is to say, a customer pays half a-guinea per day—from the 1st of October to the 30th of June, that is, for nine months out of the twelve—and in return he receives full board and attendance, is assigned a bedroom for which the ordinary charge is 3s a night, and is permitted free access to all the public rooms in the hotel, namely, the splendid dining-room—90 feet by 40 feet—the coffee, drawing, reading and writing, smoking and billiard rooms, &c., all of which face the sea and are luxuriously furnished as well as most comfortably appointed. The adoption of this plan deserves to be made generally known. It reflects great credit on the managerial qualities of the new proprietary body, and, having regard to the admirable and healty situation of the hotel, deserves a liberal return of patronage on the part of the public. The Cliftonville, under its present management, and with the character it has already secured for comfort, and even the luxury of its appointments, may confidently be recommended to all classes of visitors.

Mr. J. H. Cobbe (the obliging acting Manager) announces that his First Annual Benefit will take place at the Princess's Theatre on Saturday morning, 21st February, at 1 30, when "Hamlet" will be performed.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS combine both sanitive and sanative powers in a high degree—by the former term is understood their ability to preserve health, by the latter their capability to restore health. With these remedies at hand, no invalid need be at fault to guide himself or herself safely through the many trials to which every one is subjected during our long and oftimes inclement winters. Coughs, colds, ulcerated throats, quinsies, whooping-cough, can be successfully treated by well rubbing this Ointment upon the chest, and by taking the Pills. During damp, foggy weather asthmatical sufferers will experience the utmost possible relief from the inunction of the Ointment, and all tender-chested persons will save endless misery by adopting this treatment.

The General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys held their regular monthly meeting at Freemasons' Hall, London, on Saturday, 7th instant, under the presidency of Bro. Raynham W. Stewart P.G.D. The usual formalities in reference to the minutes of the last meeting having been observed, the minutes of the last Quarterly Court, and of the House Committee, were read for information, as also was a letter from the solicitors of Mrs. Creaton, thanking the Institution for the resolution of sympathy with her on the death of Colonel Creaton. The Report of the Audit Committee was next submitted, and then two petitions on behalf of condidates seeking admission to the School were considered; one of these was accepted, the other rejected. Two vacancies on the House Committee were reported, and the following brethren were nominated to fill them:—Charles Belton, T. Hastings Miller, Henry Venn, and W. H. Saunders. Other formal business, including a vote of thanks to the Chairman, having been attended to, the proceedings were brought to a conclusion.

The Committee of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution met on Wednesday, the 11th instant, at Freemasons' Hall, London, under the presidency of Bro. Raynham W. Stewart P.G.D. The minutes having been confirmed, the death of three annuitants and of one approved candidate was announced. A letter was read from the solicitors of Mrs. Creaton, thanking the Institution for their sympathy with her on the death of Colonel Creaton; and another from Miss Norris, acknowledging the vote of condolence with her on the death of Brother James Norris the late Warden of the Institution. Both were ordered to be entered on the minutes. A letter from Bro. G. B. Abbott, thanking the Committee for the compliment paid him in connection with his History of the Institution, was also received. The report of the Institution to be presented to Sir Michael Hicks Beach, Bart., M.P. was then passed, as also were the thanks of the Committee for his promised presidency at the coming Festival. The question of the number of vacancies to be filled at the next election was then considered. Brother Terry reported that there would be 43 male candidates and 14 vacancies at the next election, and 75 widows and 2 vacancies. The state of the finances was as follows: He did not expect the Festival would be as successful as the last by £2000; the last year's was the most successful the Institution ever had. On the 1st January 1884 there was a balance on the male fund of £875 13s 11d. On the 1st January 1885 the balance was £486 10s 10d, so that the income had been exceeded by £389 3s 1d. £1000 had been invested, and the total invested funds on the male branch was £39,450. It was thereupon proposed by Bro. Charles Lacey, and seconded by Bro. George Bolton, that twenty males be elected on to the funds of the Institution at the May Election. Speaking in reference to this matter Dr. Jabez Hogg opposed the principle of investing money, which he considered ought to be spent year by year as received. They had more applicants before them than ever, and he thought the whole of the money subscribed should be expended in relief, to the best of their ability. He thought that those who came after should provide for the wants of their times, feeling sure that the liberality of the Craft might be relied on to meet every contingency. Whatever sum was placed in the hands of the Committee by the Craft at large, the Committee were justified in spending it in relief of distress, but he did not think they were equally justified in saving it up. He hoped it would be decided to increase the number of vacancies. Brother Edward F. Storr P.M. and Treasurer No. 22 followed, supporting Bro. Hogg's arguments, and urging that the Institution had no right to accumulate a large reserve fund. Bro. Raynham Stewart pointed out it must be remembered the annuitants were elected for life, and asked what was to be done if in the future they had not sufficient funds to pay the annuities with? Bro. C. H. Webb adopted a similar course of argument, and thought the Committee would be justified in adhering to the original proposition—to elect 14 male annuitants. Ultimately a vote was taken, when it was found that the amendment—to increase the number to twenty—had been carried by a majority of one. Bro. Terry then explained the position of the Widows' Fund, as follows:—On the 1st January 1884 there was a balance of £742 2s 6d, and on the 1st January 1885 £2072 9s 10d, or a balance of £1333 7s 4d, besides £1000 which had been invested. The total capital invested in this fund was £26,000. The candidates were 77 and the vacancies two. Ultimately it was resolved to elect fifteen widows at the May ballot, twelve to be entitled to immediate annuities, and three to be deferred. A vote of thanks to the Chairman concluded the proceedings.

GROVE CHAPTER, No. 410.

A CONVOCATION of this old and flourishing Chapter was held at the Swan Hotel, Leatherhead, Surrey, on Saturday, the 31st January. Comps. G. D. Lister M.E.Z., C. B. Foster P.Z. as H., C. Greenwood jun. J., P.Z.'s H. J. Dumas, Charles Greenwood, G. H. Haydon, C. Litchfield, Rhys Williams, J. Dyer, and others. Comp. John Charlton M.E.Z. elect was unfortunately unable to attend in consequence of illness. Comps. C. Greenwood jun. and T. Dyer were respectively installed in the chairs of H. and J., with great impressiveness and solemnity. A ballot took place for Bro. Henry Harris 1361 as a candidate for exaltation, which resulted unanimously in his favour. A P.Z.'s jewel was presented to Comp. Lister in recognition of his services to the Chapter as M.E.Z. during the past year. The P.Z.'s jewel, which was voted to Ex. Comp. Rhys Williams, M.D., for his services as M.E.Z., was duly presented to him in open Chapter. We much regret to state that since the last meeting of this Chapter, the highly-esteemed and beloved M.E.Z. elect, Comp. John Charlton, has been called to the Grand Lodge above. Little did his Companions think when meeting that their friend and Companion was so near his end. He had only recently returned from the East, and his illness was thought only to be of a temporary nature.

EBORACUM CHAPTER, No. 1611.

THE annual meeting of this Chapter was held at York, on the 3rd instant, when there were present Comps. J. P. Seller M.E.Z., George Simpson H., J. Todd P.Z. as J., J. Kay S.E., T. B. Whytehead P.Z. as S.N., A. T. B. Turner as P.S., W. Lockenby and S. J. Dalton Asst. Sojs., and several other Companions. The installation of Principals took place, and Comp. George Simpson was placed in the chair of Z., by T. B. Whytehead P.Z. Comp. Millington H. elect being absent through illness, his chair was filled pro tem by Comp. Seller P.Z., and Comp. T. B Whytehead P.Z. was placed in the chair of J. by Comp. J. Todd P.Z. Successful ballots were taken for Bros. W. Stephenson, E. Thackray, and C. L. Foster, and these brethren were duly exalted by Comp. Seller P.Z., the mystical lecture being given by Comp. Whytehead P.Z. The rest of the Officers elect were invested, as follows:—Comps. Jas. Kay S.E., J. Blenkin S.N., W. Brown P.S., G. Chapman and S. J. Dalton Asst. Sojs., G. Lamb and W. Stephenson Stewards. Letters of apology were read from Comp. J. S. Cumberland P.Z., and other Companions, and after "hearty good wishes" the Chapter was closed, the members afterwards supping together at the Queen's Hotel.

Metropolitan Chapter of Improvement.—This Chapter, which since its removal to the White Hart, at the corner of Abchurch Lane, in Cannon Street, has considerably increased in numbers, held its usual weekly meeting on Tuesday, 10th inst., when there were present Comps. Lilley Z., Child H., Roberts J., Levy S.N., Dewsnap P.S., and many other companions. The ever-courteous Comp. Brown occupied his usual position as S.E. and Preceptor of the Chapter. The ceremony of exaltation was efficiently and carefully rendered, Comp. Wells being the candidate, and under such able tuition it is almost needless to say that the Supreme Degree was gone through in a manner which in any Chapter would justify the high reputation which this school of instruction has secured. At the conclusion of the ceremony Comp. Martin, of the St. Thomas's Chapter, No. 112, and Comp. Stokes, of the Stockwell Chapter, No. 1839, were unanimously elected members. It is intended to work the ceremonies of Installation of Principals on the second Tuesday in the months of March, April, and May. That of March will be worked by the Preceptor Comp. Brown, whilst those of April and May will be worked by the Past and Present Principals who are members. To those Royal Arch Masons who are aspiring to official honours, the Metropolitan Chapter of Improvement offers advantages which are rarely to be met with, inasmuch that, unlike Lodges of Instruction, the Chapters of Improvement are "few and far between." Independently of this, at all times the true spirit of Freemasonry prevails, for when once a brother is admitted into this conclave he is kindly received, and he feels that brotherly love here reigns supreme.

Monday—St. George's and Corner Stone Lodge, Leigh Lodge. Tuesday—National Peristeranic Society, Jerusalem Chapter, Urban Lodge, Waldeck Lodge. Wednesday—Lodge of Fidelity. Thursday—Caledonian Society, Lodge of Regularity, Polish National Lodge, Pilgrim Lodge. Friday—Britannic Lodge, Bedford Lodge, Eclectic Lodge. Saturday—Duke of Cornwall Lodge, Phœnix Lodge.

Norths and Hunts, Lee P.A.G.S. Middx., Chapman P.M. 1922, Graham P.G.S. Middx., Ross P.M. 1216, Gillespie 1685, Webb P.M. 179, Gunn 1706, Jackson 860, Herold 65, Schartau, Hanson, Taylor P.M. 144, Levy P.M. 188, &c. After Lodge had been formally constituted, the minutes were confirmed, and Bros. Davis and Burt were passed to the second degree, in a perfect manner. The report of the Audit Committee was read and adopted; it showed the General and Benevolent Funds were in a prosperous condition. A Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. E. B. Haynes S.W. and W.M. elect was presented, and, in the presence of 34 W.M.'s and P.M.'s, duly installed into the chair, the ceremony being conducted by Bro. T. J. Maidwell P.M., who was deservedly complimented on the conclusion of the ceremony. The lay brethren having been readmitted, the W.M. was saluted according to ancient custom. He then in appropriate terms appointed and invested his Officers:—J. March I.P.M., M. Hale S.W., Webster J.W., H. G. Buss A.G.S. Treas., who received a perfect ovation on his re-investment; J. B. Poole P.M. Sec., Dixon S.D., C. B. Todd J.D., Easton I.G., D. H. Jacobs P.M. W.S., Robinson D.C., Dixon A.W.S., Potter P.M. Tyler. Bro. March I.P.M. acted as D.C. Applause followed the investment of the Officers. Routine work followed, four gentlemen were proposed for initiation; hearty good wishes were given by the Visitors, and the Lodge was closed until March. The brethren, 80 in number, sat down to a sumptuous banquet and dessert. The tables were florally decorated, and button-holes were provided for each guest. The menu card, artistically designed by the W.M., represented the March in the Desert of Egypt, and was much admired. Grace having been sung, the W.M. gave the toast of the Queen and the Craft, the health of the M.W.G.M. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Pro Grand Master the Earl of Carnarvon, the Earl of Lathom the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers Present and Past. He spoke of the qualifications of the noble and distinguished brethren who were at the head of the Order. On the present occasion they were honoured by the presence of four Grand Officers; he would call on Bro. Jabez Hogg P.G.D. to respond. Bro. Hogg, in reply, said it was a pleasing duty to respond to the toast. There was no Lodge in London better able to show their qualifications than the Egyptian, and they had among their members a brother respected by every one throughout the Craft. Personally he (Bro. Hogg) had known Bro. Buss over half a century; all will miss him when he vacates his accustomed place in Grand Lodge, and in the office, where he has ever been kind and genial, and had brought to bear so thorough a knowledge of his duties. The Craft at large regretted his health precluded him from continuing his official duties, but all hoped he might be spared for many years. A few words more; it was a great privilege enjoyed by the Grand Officers, that of visiting Lodges; for his part he never regretted the day he was initiated into the Order. He was very pleased to see the working of the Lodge, and to note the way his esteemed Brother Maidwell had installed the W.M.; he was also gratified at the admirable manner in which the W.M. had invested his Officers, and had presided. Bro. Haynes was one who he was sure would carry out the duties required of him. Bro. March next rose; he was proud for the first time to propose the health of the W.M., who was noted for the respect he was held in by the brethren, who had thoroughly tested his ability. He was sure that at the expiration of his year of office, Bro. Haynes would have the same good wishes, and that he would deserve them; all the members trusted that prosperity in every shape would attend him. It was with great pleasure the W.M, who was enthusiastically received, responded to the toast. As regarded the very strong words uttered by the I.P.M., he might say he hoped to have a year of prosperity and happiness. It was gratifying to have so many friends around him, and to note the cordial manner in which the toast had been received. He had only been five years in the Lodge, but he had filled every office on the rungs of the ladder; he hoped he had done the duties to their satisfaction, and he thanked them sincerely for putting him forward, and thus enabling him to occupy the chair; his best services would always be at their command. In speaking to the toast of the Visitors, the W.M. said they were so distinguished and numerous that he could hardly find words to enumerate their many qualifications. He would call on Bros. Cottebrune P.G.P., James Willing W.M. 1987, and the Master of the Lodge of Prosperity, No. 65, Bro. Rich, to respond. Bro. Cottebrune P.G.P. remarked how pleased he was to see Bro. Buss present; he hoped he would retain his health for many years. Bro. J. Willing followed; 20 years ago he took his second degree in this Lodge, when Bro. D. H. Jacobs, still a respected P.M., was in the chair. He might state he had never heard working done better, and he was sure the W.M. would have the co-operation of the brethren, as all would acknowledge he deserved. Bro. Rich said he was proud to have an opportunity to return thanks on behalf of the Visitors. The W.M. was also an officer of the Prosperity Lodge. At the close of his year of office in No. 27, he was sure they would say Bro. Haynes had conducted the business with credit. The next toast was the health of the Immediate Past Master Bro. March; in acknowledgment of his distinguished services the Lodge had voted him a jewel. He (the W.M.) had great pleasure in placing it on his breast; he felt a pride in doing so, as the wearer was worthy of it. The Past Master's jewel of this Lodge is always looked on with respect. It has for its motto the appropriate words, "Palmam qui Meruit Ferat." This jewel the immediate Past Master has fully deserved. Bro. March, in reply, said he could hardly find words to express his pleasure at the kind and feeling remarks of the W.M. The Lodge had voted him a jewel, which he should always prize. He was initiated in the Lodge eleven years since, and hoped he should never repent being a Past Master of it. He hoped to be a useful member in the future; his services would always be at the command of the members. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Installing Master, Bro. T. J. Maidwell. Those who had passed the chair could not have heard without pleasure his delivery of the beautiful ritual. The members had also to thank him for the courtesy he had displayed during his Mastership, and would ever remember his excellent working. It must have entailed on him a great amount of labour and study to enable him to perfect himself as he had done. He (the W.M.) hoped the brethren would drink health and prosperity to Bro. Maidwell. The Installing Master, in reply, said if the brethren thought the ceremony had been rendered to their satisfaction, he was content. If his services were required at any time they were always at command. The toast of the P.M.'s was next given. The W.M. said they could boast of a grand array; to them the W.M. for the time looked for assistance; they were in every way qualified to render it. Bro. H. G. Buss P.M. and Treasurer responded. He thanked the W.M. for the kind words he had spoken, also he thanked the brethren most heartily; he trusted he had done his duty to the best of his ability; he did the same for the Grand Lodge. He knew he had gained many friends in the Craft, and boasted he had made no enemies. He had been a member of the Lodge 40 years, and his sole aim was to promote its welfare and interest. In speaking on behalf of the Masonic Charities the W.M. hoped to serve as Steward next year. Bro. Terry, the worthy representative of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, was present. He was sure he would do justice in responding to the toast. Bro. Terry made an eloquent reply. This Lodge will bear comparison with any other in the Craft as regards its charitable proclivities. After referring to the fact that the Election to the Schools took place every six months, as against an annual election in the case of the Benevolent Institution, Bro. Terry stated that inasmuch as there were 30 Candidates for the Girls' School, out of whom 22 were to be elected, and in the case of the Boys 25 were to be elected out of 45 candidates; with the Benevolent Institution there were 43 male candidates and but 14 vacancies; while as regards the women, at that time there were 81 candidates, and not a single vacancy. However, Bro. Harrison P.M. is a Steward, and he (Bro. Terry) hoped the Egyptian Lodge would support him, and produce one of the most successful lists that this Lodge had ever taken up. Bro. Harrison P.M. also made a most eloquent appeal for the Charities. The Treasurer and Secretary of the Lodge were then complimented: also the Wardens and Officers, the W.M. warmly expatiating on their qualifications. He hoped they would support him. The Wardens and Bro. C. B. Todd severally responded. The Tyler's toast brought to a conclusion a very agreeable and harmonious evening. Bros. H. Schartau, T. W. Hanson, R. J. Taylor P.M., Wakefield Reed, and J. W. T. Chapman contributed to the harmony, and Bro. F. Herold gave special satisfaction to the brethren by his artistic playing on the zither.

LODGE OF UNION, No. 38.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge was held on Thursday, the 5th inst. About fifty of the brethren were present, amongst whom were the Provincial Grand Wardens for Sussex, Bros. General Randolph and Major Dalbiac, the Provincial Grand Secretary Bro. Freeman, and representatives from many of the Lodges in the Province of Sussex, together with some from Hants and the Isle of Wight. The W.M. Bro. Oliver Lloyd presided, and in the most impressive manner installed Lieut.-Col. Lord Algernon Gordon Lennox as his successor in the chair for the ensuing year. Lord Algernon subsequently appointed and invested his Officers, as follow:—Bros. Lloyd I.P.M., Barrett S.W., Branch J.W., Davey Chaplain, Hawes Secretary, Inkpen S.D., Doman J.D., Buquet I.G., Smith D.C., Budden and Fielden Stewards. Bro. St. Clair, who had at a previous meeting been re-elected to the Office of Treasurer, was prevented from attending by a severe bereavement. Bro. Dean, who had accepted the collar of Organist, was kept away by the state of his health. At the close of the business of the Lodge, the brethren sat down to a banquet served in the Assembly Room by Mr. Purchase, Globe Hotel, who placed an excellent repast on the tables. The room was decorated with choice plants, kindly lent by Mr. Moore. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, that of the W.M. being given in eloquent terms by the Mayor of Chichester (Bro. Raper P.P.J.G.W.), who made reference to the distinguished services which the Lennox family have rendered to Masonry, not only in the Lodge of Union and Promise, of Sussex, but in the position of Grand Master of England, which was formally held by a Duke of Richmond. A most enjoyable evening was spent, the speeches being interspersed with songs by Bro. R. Raynham, of the choir of St. Paul's Cathedral. Bro. Miles (a visitor from Portsmouth), Brokincey (of Basingstoke), and several of the brethren of the Lodge.

LODGE OF ISRAEL, No. 205.

THE Ball, which was held on the 4th instant, at the Cannon-street Hotel, in aid of the Benevolent Fund attached to this Lodge, produced a very good result. Nearly 400 guests were present. The Grand Master His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales had granted a dispensation for the brethren to wear Masonic clothing, and the effect produced was very telling. The new banner of the Lodge, specially designed by the Rev. Marcus Haines, Chaplain, was deservedly admired. An excellent supper was provided by Bro. Rand, and served under the superintendence of Mr. Lipman. Bro. Henochsberg S.W., P.M. 1502, Chairman of the Ball Committee, said it was not intended to give many toasts. The Committee, however, had been congratulated on the great success of the Ball, but that success was due to the presence of the Ladies. What would the brethren have done without the ladies on such an occasion. He would therefore with all sincerity ask them to drink to the health of the Ladies. This toast was heartily received. The company then adjourned to the ball room, where dancing was resumed to the inspiriting music of Bros. Coote and Tinney's band, under the direction of Bro. Thaddeus Wells. The efficient services of Bro. Jarvis M.C. had been secured. It is anticipated a good round sum will accrue to the Benevolent Fund of the Lodge.

ST. MICHAEL'S LODGE, No. 211.

THE installation meeting of this compact little Lodge took place on Tuesday, the 10th instant, at the Albion, Aldersgate-street, London, E.C. The Lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. W. W. Morgan, who was supported by his Officers and the following Past Masters:—Bros. Charles Greenwood Past G. Sword Bearer (Treasurer), W. Radcliffe (Secretary), F. J. Hentsch, Dr. Walters, Usher Back, Thos. E. Lavers, John Laver, &c. Amongst the Visitors present were:—Fredk. Binckes P.G. Steward, Charles Lacey P.M. 174, G. King P.M. 172, C. E. Birch W.M. 1223, J. T. Pilditch P.M. 1420, H. M. Levy P.M. 188, W. G. Jennings 1580, J. R. Rickman W.M. 890, R. J. Taylor P.M. 144, J. B. Stevens P.M. 1627, C. J. Craig S.W. 1223, W. Jones 511, J. A. Collings 1693, J. H. Kempster P.M. 1420, D. D. Robinson W.M. 975. After Lodge had been formally constituted the minutes of last meeting were read, confirmed and signed. Lodge was advanced to the third degree, and resumed, when Bro. P.M. Lavers presented the W.M. elect Bro. T. H. Pierce for the benefits of installation. In due course the Board of Installed Masters was opened and the new Master placed in the chair. The brethren who had not yet donned the levels were re-admitted, the Master was saluted in the three degrees, and he appointed and invested his Officers, as follow:—Bros. Henry Martin S.W., Edward Thring J.W., C. Greenwood P.G.S.B. Treasurer, W. Radcliffe P.M. Secretary, Thomas Crapper S.D., A. Dickson (named for) J.D., F. T. Bennett I.G., A. Green P.M. W.S., A. Withers P.M. D.C., and C. T. Speight Past Master Tyler. The address to the Master was delivered by Bro. A. Withers P.M., that to the Wardens by Bro. Radcliffe P.M., and the final one to the brethren by Bro. Morgan. The Auditors then made their report. The accounts had been duly examined on the previous Wednesday; a Balance Sheet had been printed and distributed amongst the members, and it was proposed, seconded, and carried unanimously, that the same be adopted and entered on the minutes. We may say here that the new Master enters upon his duties with a substantial balance to the credit of the Lodge, and with every prospect of a successful year of office. The W.M. now rose to present the retiring Master with the Lodge jewel, so unanimously voted him at the last meeting. Bro. Peirce gracefully alluded to the zeal Brother Morgan had always shown in the welfare of the Lodge, and expressed the sincere pleasure it gave him to place on his breast this souvenir of the brethren's respect and esteem. After a brief but fervent acknowledgment had been made, Bro. Withers, the indefatigable Master of the Ceremonies of the Lodge, directed the attention of the brethren to the fact that he had undertaken the office of Steward for the next Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and forcibly urged the claims of that Institution on the members of the Lodge. Bro. Greenwood then moved a resolution to the effect that a vote of ten guineas be made from the Lodge Funds to head Bro. Withers's list. This was immediately seconded, and carried without a dissentient voice. Some other items of business were then considered, hearty good wishes were tendered, and Lodge was closed. The banquet, as is usual at this establishment, was capitally served. On the removal of the cloth the W.M. Bro. Peirce gave in sequence the toasts of the Queen and Craft, the health of the M.W. the Grand Master, and the Pro G. Master, the Deputy G. Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Present and Past, coupled with the name of Bro. Charles Greenwood, who replied. Bro. Morgan, in proposing the toast of the Worshipful Master, referred to the esteem in which Bro. Peirce was held by all the members. Bro. Peirce had shown some little hesitation in taking upon himself the duties of the chair, but he (Bro. Morgan) could assure him he would have the undivided co-operation and support of all the members. Bro. Peirce was an initiate of St. Michael's Lodge, had served all the offices upward, and would bring to bear upon his work a sincere desire to sustain its prestige. With every confidence for a successful year he called on the brethren to do honour to the toast. After a song Bro. Peirce replied. He fully appreciated the honour that had been conferred on him by the brethren elevating him to his present position. He was not a young man, and had hardly looked forward to ever taking the foremost position in his Lodge, but he felt much encouraged by the way in which he had been invited to take command, and he trusted the Lodge would lose none of its lustre while under his guidance. In replying to the toast given in his honour, Bro. Morgan tendered his thanks to Bro. Withers for the ready and valuable help he had given him during the evening. He regretted to say he was far from well, but he knew the members would overlook his shortcomings. He had passed a very pleasant year of office. It was true there had been no initiates during the year, but it was an accepted fact that the members of the Saint Michael's Lodge did not desire a large addition to their number. It was an open question whether the vast accession lately made to its ranks was beneficial to Freemasonry. In any case it was now fully recognised that though there was no absolute restriction as to the number of members that might be elected, there was no desire to make this a large Lodge. However, should good and true men present themselves, they would be sure to receive a cordial greeting. At the present time the Lodge was a united happy family, and it was the sincere wish of one and all it might long continue so. Bro. Morgan concluded by thanking the brethren for the way they had honoured him in drinking to the toast. The toast of the Visitors was entrusted to Bro. Morgan, who on behalf of the Lodge tendered a hearty greeting. Bros. Charles Lacey, Pilditch, Rickman, and others replied. Bro. Greenwood proposed the next toast—Success to the Masonic Charities, with which he associated the name of Bro. Binckes, Secretary of the Boys' School, who, in acknowledging the compliment, made one of the most eloquent and effective speeches we have ever listened to, even from this Prince of Orators. The Past Masters briefly replied for the compliment paid them by the Worshipful Master, and several of the Officers acknowledged the reference made to their services. A goodly sum was contributed towards the Stewardship of Brother Past Master Withers, and a wish that he might take up a substantial list seemed but to be father to the thought, as the support given was universal. Some capital singing varied the proceedings, and when the Tyler was summoned, all were agreed a most enjoyable evening had been spent. Bro. Collings rendered excellent service as accompanyist during the evening.

STAR IN THE EAST, No. 650.

A SPECIAL interest attached to the monthly meeting of this Lodge, at Harwich, Essex, on Tuesday evening from the fact that part of the business was the initiation of the Mayor of the Borough, who is said to be the most youthful Mayor in the kingdom, having only attained his 25th year. The ballot having been unanimously declared in his favour, his Worship duly presented himself and was initiated in a most impressive manner by Bro. F. R. Hales the W.M. At the dinner which followed the Lodge, the W.M. proposed the health of the initiate, remarking how gratified he was that it had fallen to his lot to be the medium of introducing his Worship into Freemasonry. He was sure from what he knew of Bro. Ward that he would become an active Freemason, and he trusted that some day his Worship would attain to the chair of his mother Lodge. The Mayor, in responding, thanked the brethren for the heartiness of their reception of him. It had long been his earnest wish to join the Order of Freemasonry. He had always understood that to be a good Mason was to be a good man, and he therefore trusted, as time went on, he should prove himself to be both.

BRECKNOCK LODGE, No. 651.

R. Davies W.M. No. 1573, Thos. Sandbrook W.M. elect 1573, and G. E. Mackie 1204. The principal business of the evening was the installation of Bro. Thos. Howell Price S.W. into the chair of W.M. for the ensuing year. Bro. Price, by his unremitting attention to the Craft in general and to this Lodge in particular, has deservedly earned the honour which has been conferred on him. The Deputy Prov. Grand Master performed the ceremony of installation in his usual impressive style. The Officers appointed and invested for the following year were:—Bros. H. O. A. Maybery I.P.M., E. A. Wright S.W., Robert Owen J.W., Rev. M. P. Williams Chaplain, David Evans Treas., J. A. Whittle P.M. Sec., Rees T. Heins S.D., John Tudor J.D., John Meredith D.C., H. W. Webb and John Morgan were appointed the Finance Committee for the ensuing twelve months. At the close of the Lodge the brethren adjourned to the Castle Hotel, where the customary banquet was served.

PRINCE OF WALES' LODGE, No. 1003.

THE regular meeting of this Lodge was held in the Masonic Temple, Stopford Road, St. Helier, Jersey, on Wednesday evening, 4th February. In the absence of the W.M. the chair was occupied by Bro. Newman I.P.M., and the following Officers were present:—Bros. Vincent S.W., Bandains J.W., Renouf P.M. Treas., Bois P.M. Secretary, Manger S.D., Goldsmith acting J.D. for W. Carcaud (absent), Simon I.G., Rogers Tyler, ably assisted by his son, an energetic member of the Lodge. The minutes of the last regular meeting having been read and confirmed, Lodge was advanced to second and third degrees, when Bro. Neil was raised to the sublime degree of a Master Mason by the acting W.M., who, in a most efficient and eloquent manner, conducted the ceremony. The Lodge was lowered to the first degree, and the ballot taken for Messrs. W. Gosling and Henry J. P. Wakeman; in each case it proved unanimous, and these gentlemen were prepared and initiated in due form and excellent style by Bro. Newman, the working tools in the degree were presented by Bro. Vincent S.W., who explained their uses at length and in a most impressive manner. Several propositions were then made, and a report from a Committee appointed to consider alteration of Bye-Laws was read by Bro. Bois, an indefatigable Past Master of this Lodge, and for several years its efficient Secretary. Hearty good wishes were then expressed from a number of visiting brethren from sister Lodges of Jersey, and from a visiting brother from the Province of East Lancashire. The Lodge was then closed in due form, and with solemn prayer by Brother H. M. Bartlett P.M., who very cordially invited the visiting brethren to refreshment. This was served in the large dining-hall of the Temple, and ably catered for by Bro. G. Rogers P.M., Tyler of this Lodge, with a good staff of assistants. The formal Loyal and Masonic Toasts having been proposed and enthusiastically accepted, Bro. H. M. Bartlett P.M., acting W.M. at the festive board, proposed, in a few well-chosen words, the toast of the Visitors, and called upon the brother from England to respond. Bro. Darbyshire, in reply, said:—W.M. and Brethren,—Landing in Jersey at noon to-day, I discovered that the steward (who had taken so much care of me during the passage) was a Mason, that he belonged to a Lodge bearing the name of our Grand Master, and that the members assembled that night. To that meeting he very kindly invited me, and I can assure you the visit has given me great pleasure. Your working has been excellent; every Officer deserves praise, and your W.M. should be, and no doubt is, proud of such a staff. It has been my good fortune and privilege to visit many Lodges, in all parts of England, but I have rarely ever met with such a large and efficient Lodge as this, the Prince of Wales. Now that you have so many visitors from sister Lodges, it speaks volumes in your favour to see such harmonious gatherings, and it will be a pleasing recollection in my Masonic career that I visited this island of Jersey and made the acquaintance of so many efficient and kindly brethren as I see before me to-night. I thank you sincerely for the great Masonic treat, and for the kindly manner in which you, Sir, have mentioned my name. I shall not fail on future occasions to refer to the visit with great delight, and I wish all good things to Prince of Wales Lodge, No. 1003. During the evening songs were given in good style, and a most enjoyable meeting was brought to a close at 11 o'clock.

Dr. Whalley D.C., in his usual finished style. His fame as an elocutionist and dramatic reader is a great attraction, and amply repays a visit to this prosperous Lodge.

United Mariners' Lodge of Instruction, No. 30.—The prosperity of this Lodge of Instruction, which was founded a little over a year ago, is evidenced by the increasing numbers who attend the weekly meetings held at the Lugard Tavern, Peckham. On Wednesday evening there was a most satisfactory attendance, when Bro. Garland occupied the chair, and was supported by Bros. Dutton 960 as S.W., Webster J.W., Lampen Treasurer, Tokely Secretary, Wimble S.D., Belchamber J.D., Nomico I.G., and many other members and visitors. Garland, this being the first time in which he had essayed the duties of W.M. Whilst in the second degree the first section of the lecture was worked by Bro. Belchamber, and the second by Bro. Tokely, and at the conclusion Bro. W. Dutton was unanimously chosen as W.M. for the next meeting. A cordial vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Garland for the manner in which he had sustained the duties of the chair on his début in that capacity, and as the worthy Preceptor, Bro. Martin, observed, he had given such satisfaction to the Lodge of Instruction that greater things might be expected of him as he should make progress in the Craft. On the Wednesday preceding the meeting above referred to, the Fifteen Sections were worked at this Lodge of Instruction, when there was a literally crowded attendance of members and visitors, under the presidency of Bro. Martin S.W. 879, and the esteemed Preceptor of the United Mariners Lodge of Instruction. By the way we understand that Bro. Martin has been appointed Preceptor of the Star Lodge of Instruction, held on Saturday evening, at the Five Bells, New Cross. No better successor to our esteemed Bro. Andrews could have been found. On the occasion to which we refer, the first section was worked by Bro. Giddens, the second by Brother Wimble, the third by Bro. Bevis W.M. 879, the fourth by Bro. Belchamber, the fifth and sixth by Bro. Milbourn, and the seventh by Bro. Beavis. Lodge having been opened in the second degree, the first section was worked by Bro. Giddens, the second by Bro. BROTHER JAMES FORBES.

It is our painful duty to record the death of our much esteemed Brother James Forbes P.M. of the Great Northern Lodge, which took place on the 6th instant, at 116 High-street, Notting-hill, W. The funeral took place at Kensal Green Cemetery on Thursday, when several members of the Great Northern and other Lodges attended to pay their last respects to a worthy Mason. Bro. Forbes at the time of his decease was in his fifty-sixth year. We tender to his family our best sympathies with them in this the hour of their affliction.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE BRO. FRANK SILLIS.

THE funeral left the deceased's residence, George-street, Euston-road, on Wednesday, 4th February, at eleven o'clock a.m., the body being borne on an open hearse, and the coffin covered with wreaths of flowers. There were three mourning coaches for relatives and intimate friends, the W.M. of the Savoy Lodge being in one. There were also ten private carriages containing members of Royal Savoy and other Lodges. The body was first taken to St. Pancras Church, Euston-road, where Dr. Oliver, the senior curate, read the first part of the funeral service, about 500 persons being present. The coffin was again placed on the hearse, and the cortège proceeded to Nunhead Cemetery, by way of Great Queen-street, Lincoln's-inn-fields, halting at Freemasons' Hall for a short time; thence over Waterloo Bridge. On arriving at the Cemetery there were a great number of brethren and friends who had gone by rail. At the grave Dr. Oliver concluded the Burial Service, which throughout he rendered in a very impressive and effective manner. Bro. Sillis had been a regular attendant at St. Pancras Church for a number of years. After the coffin had been lowered into the grave, the brethren threw in their sprigs of acacia. Our deceased brother was thirty-three years of age, and unmarried. He had been Secretary of the Fidelity Lodge of Instruction for some years, and at the time of his decease was Secretary of the Royal Savoy Lodge of Instruction. We append the names of the brethren who were present—Bros. J. W. Smith W.M., Stiles I.P.M., J. C. Smith J.W., J. Willing jun. P.M. Treasurer, Dickey Secretary, Barling J.D., Holland I.G., Ross D.C., Holt A.D.C., Perry W.S., Verdin A.W.S., Mordey Organist, Koester Tyler, Scurrah Assistant Secretary, Field, Price, Bowen, Perugin, Jagels, Ramsden, Callaghan, Barham, Nodenik, Wheeler, Bryan, Knightley, Fox, Haynes, Crane (all of 1744); Challen P.M. 3, Davis 72, Robinson P.M. 87, Leavers 141, Emblin 147, Storr W.M. 167, Turnham 177, W. To celebrate the first anniversary of the Topical Times, on Saturday, that journal will give away a full-page burlesque caricature (after Frith's well-known picture, "The Railway Station," called "On the Line," drawn by Mr. Alfred Bryan. It will, like its predecessor, "Epsom Downs," be full of telling hits, and contain 48 portraits of celebrities of the day. Mr. Bryan has been well-styled by Mr. Edmund Yates, in the World, the Prince of Caricaturists. The price of the paper will not be raised, but intending purchasers should remember that "Epsom Downs" was sold out six hours after publication. Only a limited number of "On the Line" will be issued.

THE APPROACHING FESTIVAL.

THE Anniversary Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, which takes place on Wednesday next, is looked forward to with considerable anxiety. On its result depends the welfare of a very large number of aged Freemasons and widows of Freemasons, who, in the closing years of their life, find themselves obliged to appeal to their fellows for assistance. It is not only the numerous candidates who are at present outside the benefits of the Institution who will hail with delight a good result—or lament a poor one—but also they who have the distribution of the Funds amongst those who have been elected as annuitants. In the case of the latter, a very grave responsibility attaches to the Craft. It is one thing to regret the inability of the Institution to take on more of the candidates than there are vacancies for; to urge the Committee to increase the number of recipients, and to talk of the future taking care of itself; but it is not exactly the future which calls for immediate attention, but rather the present time—the requirements of the current year—and these are sufficient to cause all the anxiety which is felt as to the result of next Wednesday's meeting. A Festival such as a very few year's back would have been looked upon as a grand one, would now be absolutely below actual requirements, and while we do not approve of continually looking on the black side of affairs, it is yet necessary we should point out that more energy is needed in furtherance of the cause of Charity now than ever was the case. Large annual receipts have led to large increases in the number of recipients, while a strong reserve fund and frequent investments have created an impression in some quarters that sufficient funds are forthcoming year by year to meet the requirements of the Institution, without any extra efforts on the part of the Craft. We need hardly say that such a happy state of affairs has not yet arrived. The Festival of Wednesday next will require every effort on the part of the English Craft, and we sincerely hope that sufficient support will be given it to enable the Committee to carry on the work of the Institution during the current year, not only on the basis already agreed upon, but with even a still more extended number of annuitants. At the recent meeting of the Stewards the final arrangements for the Festival were completed. They comprised the appointment of the Ladies' Stewards, the Dinner Stewards, and the Reception Stewards, the balloting for places, &c. It was announced that in addition to the usual concert (this year under the management of Bro. Professor Lott G.O.), Lieutenant Cole would be present, and give his celebrated ventriloquial entertainment.

FREEMASONRY AND THE PRESS.

THAT so many newspapers and magazines almost exclusively devoted to Freemasonry and its branches should exist, and apparently succeed in America, while so few are demanded in this country, strikes the mind as a curious and unpleasant fact. When the truth is realised, it comes home with startling force and opens up issues pregnant with grave purposes. What may be the reasons for so great a disparity is a matter that ought to lead to some heart-searching, and which should most certainly engage the consideration of the Nestors of the Craft in England. The contrast at the present moment is too striking not to command attention, too painfully apparent not to awaken feelings of deep and serious disappointment. The causes that have led to this disparity need close scrutiny. They are problems of moment; and the Fathers of the English-speaking Fraternity are bound to try and solve them. It is a general law of Nature that offshoots show more life and elasticity than the source from which they spring. Their growth is mostly vigorous, sometimes wild and tangled. They live or die in proportion as the sap is sound and well nourished. The parent tree rarely suffers by the loss of its young shoots; as a rule it increases in dignity and massive strength, and only decays by violent means, or not until the worthiest branch of the parent stem has sufficiently matured its strength to take its place.

The American offshoots of English Freemasonry are not unlike the offshoots of the tree. Some are sturdy members of the old trunk; others are as wild and as hurtful as the thorny briar. These abound in the shape of prophets—professors of new systems—empirics, who use the weapon of personal criticism untempered by a sense of responsibility. We in England are content to accept Craft Freemasonry as the Mother of all that bears her name, and we deck her in Blue, as pure and as beautiful as the celestial sky itself. The Chapter, wedded to her, assumes a deeper hue. While admitting their origin and their indebtedness to the Craft, the Companions seek to amplify and complete the knowledge they gained in the Lodge; and the Mark degree, though it is not an officially recognised Order, stands at the present day as a living and growing scion of a venerable and noble family. Beyond these three Orders there are other degrees, diving deeper into mysteries, and traversing ground that philosophers have trod. These are sufficient to employ the minds of the most astute, and to satisfy the cravings of all honourable ambition. America departs from the old-world practices, and has become the nursing-ground of new shibboleths and singular inventions. With a zeal worthy of a better object men have arisen who have propounded extraordinary theories, who have found followers as enthusiastic as themselves, and who have started papers or magazines to back their pretensions. They are the wild briars, the unhealthy growths, the sapless branches, that flourish for a time, and either linger on in semi-obscurity, or wither altogether. These spurious Orders have doubtlessly stimulated the development of a certain kind of literature, but they do not account for the disparity that exists between the Masonic Press of England and America. They are the fungi, the unwholesome products of ambitious minds, and too often the work of unscrupulous adventurers. Apart from the organs of new Orders, America provides a mass of healthy Masonic literature, beside which our own products dwarf into comparative insignificance. Sometimes even in the genuine exponents of the Craft, theories of a bold and questionable character are broached. A freedom is exhibited that appears to border on license. Still the bulk is sound, often original, and always interesting. We in this country have rich mines of treasures which are hidden from the large majority of the brethren, chiefly because it does not pay to work them, and patriotism is not strong enough to induce the continuance of undertakings that result in pecuniary loss. We have volumes enough to testify to the genius and devotedness of our forefathers, but few consult them. We have many able Masonic scholars among us still, but like the prophets of old they are not honoured in their own country. Those who have ventured upon the expense of printing the results of their learning and study have good reason to repent them of their temerity, and have realised the unwelcome and dishonouring fact that we are not readers and students of Masonic books.

We sadly need a new birth, in spirit if not in form, a fresh baptism of intelligence, and a warmer zeal for the intellectual and spiritual lessons that lie concealed in the arcana of Freemasonry. We have no quarrel with the social ceremonies of the Order, we are not Mawworms. Between asceticism and the luxury of the table there is a wide division, large enough for the development of other growths. We are bound by the spirit and letter of the ceremonies to study the material, intellectual and moral order of the universe, we are taught to practise all the virtues; and to neglect the sources where they are the most perfectly examplified is to violate the principal canons of the Order. Newspapers and magazines may not be the best instructors, they are not equal in value to the works of deep thinkers and philosophers, but they are excellent substitutes. Very often they are the best mediums of instruction, because they are more general and varied in the treatment of subjects, and have the additional advantage of conveying news and moral lessons in a popular form. If we cannot have the solid pabulum, let us have the lighter food. When the taste has been cultivated, the digestion strengthened, then perhaps will come the desire for more substantial aliment. We are not jealous of our American brethren, we do not wish to disparage their work. We could not follow in their footsteps altogether. Our sober methods are unsuited to their notions of enterprise, but we might fairly emulate their zeal in the acquisition of knowledge, and at any rate not quite ignore the sources of instruction which lie ready to our hands. We owe it to the position we hold in the Craft to maintain an interest in its literature, we are bound by strong moral obligations to seek knowledge and to diffuse it, and unless we are more faithful in the future than we have been in the past, we shall be false to our traditions and unworthy of the great inheritance we possess.

A PLAYFUL CRITIC OF MASONRY.

ONE of the most amusing men who ever made sport of Freemasonry was Thomas De Quincey, the English opium eater. He did not single out Masonry alone as the target for his literary arrows, feathered with wit and sarcasm, which he kept shooting as long as he lived, but he made sport of almost everything. He liked to say odd things, to take new views, and to overturn old ones. We may instance his paper in which he whitewashed Judas Iscariot; and another in which he discussed "Murder considered as one of the Fine Arts." We have always enjoyed his writings, because they are so original—in fact, we know scarcely any recent writer who excels him in this respect. De Quincey is a perfect dare-devil in originality. Perhaps none of his essays is more enjoyable, especially to Freemasons, than that upon Secret Societies. In it he is in his best vein, not caring what he says, only caring to be bizarre, brilliant and incisive. At an early age he says he became interested in secret societies, from his desire to know, (1) What they do, and (2) What they do it for? His was no peculiar experience. Many a man has become a Mason instigated by this same curiosity; but curiosity, while the lowest form of intellectual motive, in Freemasonry always leads up to something higher. De Quincey's curiosity, however, only led him to view our Fraternity from the outside, and always simply with the view of burlesquing it. Here is the first result of his sportive lucubrations:

> The two best known of all Secret Societies that ever have been are the two most extensive monuments of humbug on the one side, and credulity on the other. They divide themselves between the ancient world and the modern. The great and illustrious humbug of ancient history was the Eleusinian Mysteries. The great and illustrious humbug of modern history, of the history which boasts a present and a future, as well as a past, is Freemasonry, let me take a few liberties with both.

And then he does take liberties with both, poking all the fun at each of them that his overflowing mirth could devise. Referring to the Eleusinian Mysteries he says:

> The goddess, and her establishment of hoaxers at Eleusis, did a vast "stroke of business" for more than six centuries, without any "unpleasantries" occurring. * * * "Misfortune acquaints a man with strange bed-fellows;" and the common misfortune of having been hoaxed lowers the proudest and the humblest into a strange unanimity, for once, of pocketing their wrongs in silence. Eleusis, with her fine bronzed face, may say, proudly and laughingly—"Expose me, indeed!—Why, I hoaxed this man's great-grandfather, and I trust to hoax his great-grandson; all generations of his house have been or shall be hoaxed." And the satirist adds, "There was an endless file of heroes, philosophers, statesmen, all hoaxed, all, of course, incensed at being hoaxed, and yet not one of them is known to have blabbed.

De Quincey said he had a very bad opinion of the ancient world, but it would grieve him if he thought such a world could beat ours, even in the quality of its hoaxes! Here we must again quote his exact language, for it is brimful of humour:

> I have, also, not a very favourable opinion of the modern world. Put I dare say that in fifty thousand years it will be considerably improved; and, in the meantime, if we are not quite so good or so clever as we ought to be, yet still we are a trifle better than our ancestors; I hope we are up to a hoax any day. A man must be a poor creature that can't invent a hoax. For two centuries we have had a first-rate one; and its name is Freemasonry."

Mr. Gilfillan once called Mr. De Quincey paradoxical. But that did not offend him, for he replied, "Paradox is a very charming thing, and since leaving off opium I have taken a great deal too much of it for my health." But, most amusing of all, was De Quincey's statement of how he exploded Freemasonry, as it were by a dynamite cartridge, at one blast. We quote again:

> Seriously, however, the whole bubble of Freemasonry was shattered in a paper which I myself once threw into a London journal, about the year 1823 or '4. It was a paper in this sense mine, that from me it had received form and arrangement; but the materials belonged to a learned German, viz.: Buhle, the same that edited the "Bipont Aristotle," and wrote a history of the Philosophy. No German has any conception of style; I therefore did him the favour to wash his dirty face, and make him presentable among Christians; but the substance was drawn entirely from this German book. It was there established that the whole hoax of Masonry had been invented in the year 1629, by one Andrea.

We wish all anti-Masons were as good-natured as De Quincey, for then we could laugh with them, as well as at them, and we only regret that the "Opium Eater" did not take the opportunity, through initiation, to have an inside view of Freemasonry. With his love for the humorous, he would have greatly enjoyed the Craft when at refreshment. He would have discovered that Masonry is not a hoax, after all; that its philosophy is of the highest order, its company of the best, its opportunities for intellectual culture of the rarest, and all of its surroundings just such as a man of his complex nature—with scholarly acquirements and an inexhaustible fund of humour—would have greatly enjoyed. Instead of his exploding Freemasonry, he would have found that it exploded all of his satirical views, and left him a wiser, better, and even, if possible, a wittier man.—Keystone.

IS MASONRY RELIGION?

TO answer, we must clearly define the word religion. Webster says that it is "the recognition of God as an object of worship, love and obedience."

Masonry teaches that from the youngest apprentice to the Master presiding, all should "with reverence most humbly bow" in worship. We, as Masons, are admonished, "to have faith in God, hope of immortality and love to all mankind." To have "a faithful reliance upon divine providence" and are given rules by which we may be better enabled to discern "the power, the wisdom and the goodness of the Grand Artificer of the Universe."

As Masons we are taught to devote one-third of our time to "the service of God" and the distressed. That He "whom the Sun, Moon and Stars obey, and under whose watchful care comets perform their stupendous revolutions, pervades the inmost recesses of the human heart, and will reward us according to our merits."

Masonry is full of such teachings. Webster says that religion is "any system of faith and worship."

But THE BIBLE, that Great Light and Guide defines "True religion and undefiled. To visit the widow and fatherless in their affliction and keep yourselves unspotted from the world."

Masonry gives it as an imperative duty to have a care for the widow and orphan, defend them from harm and want. It teaches us "to regard the whole human species as one family . . . . created by one Almighty Parent," and whom we are "to aid, protect and support." We are to soothe the unhappy, to sympathize with their misfortunes, and to restore peace," &c. "To be good and true is the first lesson we are taught in Masonry."

These are but the faint outlines of the religious teachings in Masonry. Is it not, then, religion? If it is not, it is not anything.

It is not intended to take the place of the church—it cannot—to Christian or Jew. A man who faithfully lives up to Masonic teachings—worships God; devotes time to His service and to relieve distress; loves his fellow—will not fail to be a church member. A case of the contrary cannot be shown. But, nevertheless, Masonry is religion.—Masonic Home Journal.

THE GRAND TREASURERSHIP.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

SIR AND BROTHER,—The time is near at hand when Grand Lodge will once more have to elect a Treasurer. Considering the event is so close the controversial air is remarkably still; scarcely a sign is made. This lull may precede a storm, or it may indicate indifference, a condition that leads to stagnation and death. Whatever it portends, the duty of all is made clear, who desire to vindicate a principle that has been solemnly ratified. These must take care that coldness and selfishness and the Pharisaical pride of the few do not kill the spirit while observing the letter; nor that what should be a high honour should become the sport and monopoly of blatant and vulgar agitators.

When the late esteemed and worthy brother Colonel Creaton was relieved of the office of Treasurer, and the honour of succeeding him was conferred upon Bro. Allcroft, most brethren believed that the principle of annual election had been established, and henceforth the only collar the Grand Lodge had to bestow would become the object of the ambition of men of commanding influence in the Craft. It is difficult to determine the precise character of this condition. No hard and fast line can be drawn, but no doubt a brother worthy of the suffrages of Grand Lodge should give proof of earnestness by service; he should be well versed in the ceremonies and courtesies of the Craft; his character should be charitable according to his means, and should be above reproach, and he should have leisure, to figure as an adjunct, if not as an ornament, at all gatherings where his office should be represented. There is little merit in being P.M. of several Lodges. The breast may be covered with jewels, and yet one but scantily adorned with such ornaments may be by far the worthier brother. It is not the number of members brought into the Fraternity that constitutes a brother's claim to honour, but the prudence and wisdom that guides him in the selection of suitable candidates. It is the quiet worker, the generous member, who gives unobtrusively, who believes in and acts upon the principle that if a brother applies to him, or if he knows of a brother who needs help, that it is his bounden duty to render it to the utmost of his power. He is not to act the Levite, but the good Samaritan; not to render lip service, but the ready uplifting hand. How many are there now regarded with honour who never think of Freemasonry outside of the Lodge or the banquet room, who pass a poor brother in the street as if he were only worthy of being known when surrounded by emblems of the Order? Personal worth to many is a matter of less moment than personal wealth, and he who has the longest purse, the closest connection with fashionable life, and assumes airs that are supposed to characterise the aristocracy—but do not really—these are the men who crave honours to the neglect of the more deserving. It is the first duty therefore of the electorate to see that the broad lines of justice are observed in their choice of a Grand Treasurer. They should discountenance the clap-trap arts of the demagogue, and equally repel the extravagant pretensions of the favoured few who had formed themselves into a charmed circle, the entrance to which is only to be gained by a talisman, pretty and fascinating no doubt, but not necessarily pure and strong.

Returning to the thought mentioned in the early portion of this letter, it must be borne in mind that the principle of the annual election of Grand Treasurer was clearly established by the appointment of Brother Allcroft, that principle was confirmed when his successor, Brother Horace Brooks Marshall, was elected. There is danger, however, to this principle threatened, on two sides. There is reason to infer that when Brother Creaton was superseded the belief prevailed that the office of Grand Treasurer would be kept in hands of the clique who were parties to the appointment of Brother Allcroft. These would-be dictators did not take into account the voting power of the representatives in Grand Lodge, and if they did, they were under the impression that they would be able to control it. Having failed in that direction, it now appears that another method is to be adopted. Ostracism is the weapon now in use. Any one elected without the brand of this self-constituted body is virtually sent to Coventry. He must be tolerated, for the sake of propriety, but he is not welcomed or accepted as an equal, where it is possible to act otherwise. This course, it is stated, has already been put into operation, with the result that the contests for the appointment of Grand Treasurer have become embittered. The office has lost some of its dignity in consequence, and possibly it is hoped by some that it will sink so low that it will not be worth contending for, or that the appointment may come back into their autocratic hands.

Now, the duty of the members of Grand Lodge is clear. They should first secure a candidate who fulfils all the requisite conditions, in a broad and liberal sense; elect him, and then protect him from indignity. No select body of men, under any pretence of privacy, can withstand the honest and determined expression of the mass of the brethren. It will not do for a narrow clique to say—"We have a right to choose the friends with whom we shall dine when we pay for what we have ourselves; we will not be fettered in the choice of company we shall keep. As citizens, no one will deny them this right; as Freemasons, they stand on a totally different footing. They are bound, for instance, to recognise the popular vote, and, what is of more importance, they must yield allegiance to the teachings of the Craft, which forbid the pride of office and proclaim aloud the doctrine of equality. There is a moral obligation which none can shirk with impunity, and although it may be difficult to punish offenders holding high office, it is possible to utter a protest that shall not be altogether in vain. At any rate, the elect of the majority, be he who he may, must be saved from indignity, must be honoured throughout his term of office as well as at the time of election, and if it is seen that the brethren are in earnest, opposition to their views will soon cease. There must, however, be prudence on the part of the electors. They must choose candidates worthy of support. If they do not do this, the office will fade, and become the prey of mere demagogues, or lapse into the sinecure of a small clique, who value money more than brains, who count social privilege before honest worth, and who admire equality only when it exists merely in name.

Yours fraternally,

PORCHESTER LODGE, No. 27.

AT the banquet which followed the installation of Worshipful Master of this Lodge, at Newbury, on Friday evening, 13th instant, Bro. Margrett, Past Grand Deacon of England, referred in feeling terms to our brethren and countrymen engaged in the Soudan, and proposed the health of the Past Senior Grand Warden, General Lord Wolseley, and the brave Masons engaged with him in Egypt. The toast was drunk with the utmost enthusiasm, and with full Masonic honours.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—The Hour of Danger.—Disease commonly comes on with slight symptoms, which, if neglected, increase in severity, and thus become dangerous—a condition which betrays the grossest remissness—when these Pills, taken in accordance with their accompanying directions, would not only have checked, but conquered the incipient disorder. Patients daily forward details of the most remarkable and instructive cases in which timely attention to Holloway's advice has undoubtedly saved them from severe illness. These Pills act primarily on the digestive organs, which they stimulate when slow and imperfect, and secondly, upon the blood, which is thoroughly purified by them, whence is derived the general tone they impart, and their power of subjugating hypochondriacism, dyspepsia, and nervous complaints.

INSTALLATION MEETINGS, &c.

VITRUVIAN LODGE, No. 87.

AFTER having met for over a quarter of a century at the White Hart, Belvedere-road, Lambeth, this old-established Lodge has at length changed its place of meeting, and on Wednesday evening assembled for the first time, under a special dispensation for the gathering, at the Bridge House Hotel, where it has been decided by the brethren the Lodge shall in future hold its meetings. Bro. W. H. Bale, the Worshipful Master, presided, and there were present an unusually large attendance of members. Bro. Davis occupied the Senior Warden's chair, and Bro. Minstrell that of the Junior Warden. The Past Masters present were:—Bros. Janaway, Thurkell Treas., W. Stuart Sec., Harnor, Whiting, Skirving, and Timothy. Bros. J. Terry, W. Englisb, W. W. Chilton, Heming and Mildred were amongst the Visitors, and the members of the Lodge present included Bros. A. E. Birch, W. Watson, E. Chamberlain, R. Lambourne, John Irving, E. Woods, Henry Wright, R. Payne, G. Isaacs, and Z. Huntley. The Lodge was opened in due form. Mr. George Baley was balloted for and initiated. Afterwards the bye-laws of the Lodge were read, and Bro. Davis Senior Warden was unanimously elected Worshipful Master for the year ensuing, and was very warmly congratulated upon the honour which had been conferred on him. Bro. Thurkell, who now for very many years has filled the position of Treasurer, was re-elected to that post. Auditors were appointed, and on the motion of Bro. Thurkell it was determined that in future the Lodge meetings should be held each alternate month. Some further additional subscriptions were made to the list of the Worshipful Master, who is Steward for the Benevolent Institution, and to whose list the Lodge has voted out of its funds £26 5s, making a total of £420 contributed to the funds of the Institutions. The Lodge, by the way, meets under a warrant dated 1762, but the books for a few years are missing, and unfortunately the centenary certificate is withheld. It is one of the old Athole Lodges, many of which seem to be in the same unfortunate position. Grand Lodge recognises the warrant under which this Lodge meets, and it would be a very graceful act if the rulers of the Craft would in this instance, as they have done in some others, not press the members quite to the strict proof they might be perfectly justified in doing if the Lodge had always met under the same constitution. As matters stand, the Lodge has been informed that it will not be entitled to its centenary certificate until the centenary of the Union. After the business of the Lodge had been transacted, the brethren adjourned for refreshment, which was well served at the adjoining banquet hall. In proposing the loyal toasts the Worshipful Master expressed the great regret with which he read in that day's papers that a price had been set upon the head of their esteemed Grand Master. Bro. Mildred replied for the Visitors, the W.M. remarked, in giving the toast to the brethren, that the Vitruvian Lodge was never more happy than when dispensing the bounties of hospitality and the blessings of charity. On proposing the Masonic Charities the W.M. alluded to the liberality of the Lodge to the Benevolent Institutions. They were subscribers, many of them, to all their splendid Institutions, or to one or other of them; it behoved them to do all they possibly could for them. Bro. Terry, who replied, said that there was scarcely any other educational institutions which the country supported by charity that could vie with those of the Masonic body. Their Girls' School was maintaining, clothing, and educating 230 girls at that moment, fitting them to become good women in the world. Their Boys' School was doing an equally good work. In the recent Cambridge examinations, out of 16 girls sent up 14 passed with honours and two with very great distinction; and out of 19 boys 15 passed with honours and four with great distinction. The value of the Benevolent Institution was shown by the number of candidates they had for admission. For the election in May they had no less than 127 candidates, viz., 46 men and 81 widows, although they had only vacancies for 12 men and two widows. The Committee had, however, decided to increase the number of both men and widows to be elected, depending upon the generosity of the brethren to support them. Masonry was frequently charged with being only a social institution, but three such splendid Institutions as they possessed were a sufficient answer to such a charge, especially when they considered that last year no less than £49,000 was raised by the brethren for the purposes of those Charities. Other toasts followed, including the health of the W.M., proposed by Bro. Janaway, and that of the W.M. elect, given in eulogistic terms by the W.M. and greeted with full Masonic honours by the brethren. The usual valuable jewel, in token of the esteem of the brethren, and their admiration of the manner he has discharged his duties, will be presented to the retiring W.M.

DOMATIC LODGE, No. 177.

THERE was an exceptionally numerous gathering of the members of this Lodge on Friday evening, the 13th instant, at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, this being the first meeting since the installation of Bro. Pierpoint. Lodge was opened in form soon after four o'clock, when the W.M. was supported by Bros. Price S.W., Simner J.W., Everett P.M. Treasurer, Morris Secretary, Montague S.D., Chapman J.D., Harvey I.G., Wood D.C., Salmon W.S., Riechelman Organist, and about fifty other brethren. Amongst the Past Masters were Bros. Foxcroft I.P.M., McLean, Herbage, Ferguson, Foulger, Bow, Buscall, Willing jun., and F. Kent. There was quite a galaxy of visitors, even for this proverbially hospitable Lodge, and amongst them we observed Bro. Binckes Secretary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, Goodinge P.M. 171, Venner P.M. 1693, Tremere W.M. 1929, Smith 1348, Wardgrove 1609, Da Costa 1349, Digges 1531, Vogt 55, Morrett 1987, Cohen 1017, Carnell 1216, Saunderson 1703, Price 1816, Vaughan 2005, Tomkins 569, Amphlett 1511, Williams 2005, Bower 765, Denis 1541, and many others. The minutes of the previous meeting having been confirmed, Lodge was advanced to the third, and Bros. W. R. Spindler and J. H. Selby were raised to the sublime degree, the impressive ceremony being performed in eloquent and perfect manner by the Worshipful Master. Resuming in the second, Bros. Weston, Grace, Tingley, and J. H. Ellis were passed. Bro. Arthur Tilbury, 975, by special desire, and with the permission of the W.M. of his Lodge, was also passed to the second degree. After this the ballot was opened for Mr. George Pardy and Mr. James Thwaites, who were unanimously accepted and initiated in the mysteries and privileges of the Order by the W.M., whose working was much admired by all the brethren present. Some other business was transacted, amongst which was a proposition by Bro. Everett P.M. and Treasurer, seconded by Bro. Ferguson, and carried, that the sum of 25 guineas be given from the Lodge funds to Bro. Pierpoint's list for the Boys' Institution. At the conclusion of Lodge business the brethren sat down to a sumptuous banquet, provided in Bro. F. Clemow's best style, which ended, the customary loyal toasts were given in felicitous terms from the chair, and duly honoured. The Immediate Past Master, in proposing the health of the Worshipful Master, observed that reward always follows merit. He trusted that Bro. Willing's merit would be followed by the reward of being elected Grand Treasurer of England, even as Her Majesty had rewarded the merits of General Stewart, who had fought so nobly in the Soudan. Reward had followed merit in the case of Bro. Pierpoint, in his having been placed in the chair of K.S., and the mantle of that position could not have fallen upon more worthy shoulders. He had that day carried out the duties of the Lodge to the satisfaction of every member of it, and to the admiration of the Past Masters, who had watched critically his conduct in the chair. If a man could please and satisfy the Past Masters of the Domatic Lodge he could please anybody. Holding, as this Lodge did, so thorough an estimation in the Craft, they looked for something above mediocre in its W.M., and in this respect Bro. Pierpoint had by no means disappointed them. The toast having been seconded with especial cordiality, Bro. Pierpoint briefly responded. He thanked the brethren most heartily for the manner in which they had received the mention of his name, and was proud to see so numerous a gathering and to witness such a spirit of harmony and unanimity prevailing amongst them. In the short time during which he had occupied the chair of this Lodge he had endeavoured to do his duty, and he trusted he had not failed to give satisfaction to the brethren. He could assure them that in his humble way he should endeavour, while in that position, to do his utmost to uphold the prestige which the Lodge had so long enjoyed, and he hoped to hand down unsullied to his successor the honour which, by the kindness of the brethren, he now enjoyed. He then in suitable terms proposed the health of the initiates, the toast being received in true Masonic fashion. Bro. Pardy, in the course of a well-conceived reply, said he had been many years in Australia, and had often experienced a strong desire to enter the Masonic ranks. That pleasure, however, had been reserved until his return home, and he could hardly say how pleased he was to have been admitted to the advantages of the Craft, of which he had as yet but gained a little insight. Bro. Thwaites also acknowledged the toast in a few happily-chosen sentences. In proposing the Masonic Charities, the W.M. intimated his intention of going up as a Steward at the Festival of the Boys' School, and said he felt sure he should receive that support from the members of the Domatic Lodge which was consistent with common sense—that being not detrimental to themselves or connections. The Domatic Lodge had always stedfastly supported the Masonic Institutions, and this year the turn fell to the Boys. In representing the Lodge, therefore, as its Steward during his year of office, he confidently anticipated the hearty support and assistance of the brethren. He associated with the toast the name of Bro. F. Binckes, the esteemed Secretary of the Institution. Bro. Binckes, in the course of his response, said it was somewhat singular that during his 34 years' connection with Freemasonry this was his first visit to the Domatic Lodge. He was very glad to have the opportunity of repairing the error, and of attending a Lodge which was remarkable for the consistent and stedfast way in which it had supported the Masonic Charities. He returned his best thanks, not only for the Institution with which he was more intimately associated, but for the others, and in doing so he indulged in the assurance that the members of this Lodge would do in the future equally well what they had done in the past. In the order of rotation it fell to the privilege of the Boys' School to be supported this year by the Domatic Lodge and he was pleased to hear that their esteemed Worshipful Master was going up as a Steward at the next Festival. He tendered to Bro. Pierpoint his hearty congratulations upon the manner in which he had discharged his duties that day, and which testified that he was imbued with the true sense of the importance which attached to that position to which he had been elected. Amongst the pleasures and the amenities enjoyed amongst Masons it was satisfactory to know that they never lost sight of the Institutions which were included in the toast, and in which 240 of the daughters of Freemasons were being clothed, fed, and educated; 215 sons of Freemasons were being similarly cared for, whilst 450 of the aged of both sexes were provided with annuities. The Committee of the Boys' Institution were now considering the admission of another fifty boys in the Preparatory School. For all these purposes a sum of not less than £10,000 a year was required, and they never failed to receive it. He trusted that the W.M. would be supported in his efforts as Steward this year, and that they would liberally support the Charities which were undoubtedly the very Keystone of the Order. The W.M. then extended a very cordial welcome to the Visitors, the toast being suitably responded to by Bros. Goodinge P.M. 171, Venner P.M. 1693, Dennison P.M. 1541, and Tremere P.M. 1299. In responding for the Past Masters, Bro. J. Willing jun. congratulated the Lodge upon the choice they had made in their Wor. Master, and whilst regretting his inability to attend the meetings of his Mother Lodge so often as he could wish, he hoped to be a more regular attendant in the future. The W.M. announced with pleasure that the result of the "whip round" on behalf of the Boys' School was £91 9s 6d, a statement which elicited great applause. The W.M. in proposing the health of the Treasurer and Secretary, alluded to the excellent qualities displayed by Bro. G. Everett in the former capacity, and the admirable manner in which he discharged the duties appertaining to the office. Bro. Everett had the interests of the Lodge close at heart, and was always ready to forego his comfort and convenience in order to serve the brethren. The toast was received with great cordiality, and, was responded to in suitable terms by Bro. Everett. The health of the Officers of the Lodge followed, with other complimentary toasts, and interspersed by selections of vocal and instrumental music, combined to make up a very harmonious and agreeable evening.

TRANQUILLITY LODGE, No. 185.

AMONG the laudable aspirations of the zealous Freemason there is none which approaches the desire of attaining to the Master's chair, and to being invested with the distinguishing badge which is "the highest honour it is in the power of the Lodge to bestow on any of its members." This salutary ambition, together with his eventual introduction to a Board of Installed Masters, of which he is about to be admitted as a component part, is a sure means of inducing a feeling of pardonable pride in having secured the goodwill and confidence of the members of his Lodge by whose suffrages he is being placed in so enviable and exalted a position. A Board of Installed Masters is a unique assembly, being composed "not only of Past Masters of the Lodge where the ceremony is about to be performed, but very frequently of Past and Present Grand Officers and visiting Masters and Past Masters of sister Lodges, and the brother in whose honour they have gathered can scarcely fail to be impressed, gratified, and filled with the earnest resolve that his future exertions in the cause of the Craft shall render him, at least in some measure, worthy of the distinction it has been his good fortune to attain. Reflections similar to these have no doubt on many occasions occurred to those privileged to witness the important and solemn ceremony of installation, and more especially when performed with due regard to every detail, as was the case at the above Lodge, which met on Monday, the 16th inst., at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, E.C. The retiring Master, Bro. Sol. Barnett, who at a former part of the evening initiated Messrs. Stanley Bamberger, Van Gelder, and A. Marks, with his usual efficiency, outdid his previous efforts, and by his deliberate address and elocutionary abilities secured for himself the hearty and enthusiastic approval of all present. The newly-installed Worshipful Master, Bro. Synev Boas, commenced his duties by appointing the following as his Officers:—Sol. Barnett I.P.M., H. Peartree S.W., H. Tipper J.W., W. D. Bayley P.M. Treasurer, A. J. Myers Secretary, A. Marks S.D., J. M. Levy J.D., R. Bloomfield jun. I.G., J. D. Barnett P.M. Organist, Thomson W.S., Eisenman D.C., Potter Tyler. A very handsome Past Master's jewel, the gift of the Lodge, was presented to the retiring W.M. for his valuable services during his term of office. After an excellent and well-arranged banquet, under the superintendence of Bro. Silver, the usual toasts were proceeded with. It is needless to say that the Loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and received with accustomed cordiality. The newly-installed W.M., who it appears has never before had an opportunity of presiding at any public gathering, doing this part of his duties in undeniably creditable manner. In reply to the toast of the Visitors, Bro. Valentine W.M. of the Montefiore Lodge disclaimed any personal merit as the cause of the cordiality with which his name was received, but ascribed it to the spirit of sympathy between the sister Lodges towards each other. He would be failing in his duty were he to forget to express his approval and admiration of the manner in which the work of this Lodge was accomplished, and also to declare his gratitude for the fraternal way in which the Visitors were received. Everybody knew the saying, that "gratitude meant a lively sense of favours to come," but he could assure them that no such cynical spirit influenced him in what he had said. Brother J. Rensworthy, Senior Deacon 1728, said his visits to this Lodge, through the kindness of Bro. T. W. C. Bush P.M., had been so frequent, and his sentiments regarding it had so often been reiterated, that he feared his remarks would only be a repetition of what he had expressed on former occasions. He had had opportunities of witnessing the progress of many of the Officers when, step by step, they ultimately arrived at the highest point. It was not at all surprising that a Lodge where the best abilities were exerted in every portion of the work should become prosperous and influential. Bro. Dr. Harrow, P.M. Pilgrim Lodge, said that after the speeches already made by some of the Visitors he should have hesitated to make any remarks were it not that he belonged to a Lodge occupying an exceptional position in the Craft. The Pilgrim Lodge, No. 238, is the only Lodge on the Register under the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of England which is permitted to work the ritual in a foreign tongue. The German language is used. The Lodge was founded in 1779, and had therefore reached a century of its existence in 1879. There are some slight divergences in the work, and he would be happy to meet as many at the Lodge as could make it convenient to visit, that they might be able to note in what the difference consists. He was exceedingly gratified to be able to compliment the Lodge in regard to the efficiency of its Officers, altogether the whole proceedings have a tendency to create a feeling of wishing to come again. The I.P.M., in proposing the health of the W.M., thought that under his guidance the duties appertaining to the chair would be creditably fulfilled, and the W.M. in reply expressed his thanks to the I.P.M. for his kind words, and to the brethren for the cordiality with which his name was received. He would ask them to bear with him in his endeavours, and pardon his shortcomings; relying on their assistance and co-operation he trusted to prove himself not unworthy of their confidence. The I.P.M. Bro. S. Barnett in response said, that in the performance of his duties he was not nervous, but anxious to prevent disappointment. He had always felt that the brethren were "to his faults a little blind, and to his failings very kind;" this encouraged him in his work, and the assurance of their approval was all he aimed at. He would take the opportunity of again expressing his heartfelt gratitude for the very handsome jewel presented to him; the kindness evinced towards him would never be effaced from his memory. The W.M. next proposed prosperity to the Benevolent Fund, coupling with it the name of Bro. Morris Hart, the oldest P.M. of the Lodge, who, during a forcible and telling appeal on behalf of the fund, pointed to the excellent effects that had resulted from the timely application of its benefits, and in particular to the fact that in one case it was deemed neither injudicious nor unjust to grant the sum of £200 to one individual brother. It did not transpire how the appeal was met, but to judge from the generous disposition of Tranquillity members there is no doubt of a considerable increase to the fund, which now consists of £600 India 4 per cents., and £100 Scinde Railway, against which, however, a balance of £90 due to the Treasurer has to be considered. There was an amiable rivalry between Past Masters Bush and Staley, inasmuch as, in giving the health of the P.M.'s, the name of Bro. Bush was first mentioned. Bro. Staley, however, briefly responded, and Bro. Bush, who seemed to have acquired the trick of accomplishing the, to so many people, difficult feat of making an acceptable after-dinner speech, reviewed at some length several phases and experiences he had gathered during his Masonic career, and evoked a considerable amount of cheering when he incidentally mentioned the probable advent of Bro. John Constable P.M. and late Treasurer paying a visit to the Lodge before long. He was pleased with the progress made by the younger members in their official duties, and especially with the position of Bro. Peartree, a name never to be forgotten in this Lodge. The former bearer of it, by his services, had endeared himself to every member of the Lodge. No doubt some faults might be pointed out, but "If from them some errors fall, look in their faces; you'll forgive them all." The toast of the Officers having been proposed and replied to, the Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to a close. The musical arrangements were most ably conducted by Bro. Harry Tipper J.W., chief of the "Royal Criterion Glee Singers," assisted by Bro. Fletcher and Messrs James, Wise, and Doyle. The Visitors were Bros. M. Benjamin 733, E. Walford S.D. 905, D. H. Jones P.M. 1694, D. W. Moorman Sec. 1981, G. Gardner S.W. 2012, E. Kopf D.C. 59, C. Colman 1535, N. P. Valentine W.M. 1017, J. H. Wilson W.M. 194, J. Gersher 1798, Sampson Samuel 1017, P. B. Harris 177, J. Rensworthy J.D. 1728, I. P. Cohen P.M. 205, J. Thompson 733, B. Newington 842, J. Bedford 1671, D. Currie 1017, J. Manning 177, B. S. Woolf 72, Dixon 2012, E. W. Bayley 2012, D. King 1445, J. G. Baker P.M. 753, C. W. Fletcher 2029, C. Harris 238, Lazarus P.M. P.P.G.W. Wiltshire, Alexander 1614, Dr. Harrow P.M. The Past Masters were Bros. M. Hart, R. Z. Bloomfield, N. Moss, T. W. C. Bush, Staley, John Ross, J. D. Barnett Organist, Croker, Harfeld, Defries, N. Gluckstein, and E. Gottheil.

POLISH NATIONAL LODGE, No. 534.

THE above Lodge held its usual meeting at the Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, on Thursday, 12th inst. The proceedings commenced punctually at 5 o'clock. Bros. J. J. Rantz W.M., Bieling S.W., Oliver Bryant J.W., Tongue S.D., Turner J.D., and Banks Tyler. The following P.M.'s were present, E. T. Smith I.P.M., Dr. Corrie Jackson, Dr. Jagielski, Rath, Ebner, Lancaster (Secretary), and Nowakowski (Treasurer). Immediately after the minutes of the last meeting had been read and confirmed the ballot was taken for the following gentlemen: Mr. Daniel Bailey proposed by Brother Edrupt, seconded by Bro. Pardoe; and Mr. Edward O'Neill, proposed by the W.M., and seconded by Bro. A. H. Rantz, the result proved unanimous in favour of the candidates, and Mr. O'Neill who was in attendance was duly admitted to the mysteries of Freemasonry in a manner that seemed deeply to impress him. Bros. Aston and Bottomley were passed to the second degree, and Bros. Hull, and Brushfield were raised. During the evening a telegram from H.R.H. the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M. was read, in answer to one sent by the W.M. congratulating him on the coming of age of H.R.H. Prince Albert Victor. The following is a copy:—

Sandringham. From Prince of Wales to Master, Polish National Lodge, 534. Freemasons' Tavern. I thank you for your kind congratulations.

This was received with great applause by the brethren assembled. All other business being completed Lodge was closed in the usual manner and the brethren retired to a modest repast. After the usual loyal and Masonic toasts had been duly honoured Bro. Smith I.P.M. proposed the health of the Worshipful Master. Bro. Stegart here recited the "Charge of the Light Brigade." After this the W.M. made a suitably reply; it had always been his endeavour to make these evenings enjoyable to the brethren, and he hoped his successor would have as pleasant a year of office as he had had; especially in the number of initiates. He now had the pleasure to propose the health of the initiate of the evening; he felt sure Bro. O'Neill would make a good Mason. Dr. Corrie Jackson P.M. here sang the Entered Apprentice song, and then Bro. O'Neill replied. He had been most favourably impressed with the ritual of the initiation, especially so by the exceedingly eloquent and impressive manner in which the ceremony had been delivered by the W.M., whose aspirations he would make every endeavour to realise. The next toast was that of the Visitors. Bro. Sangart P.M. Wellington Lodge, No. 548, and Bro. J. H. Crowther P.M. Bazshawe Lodge, No. 1157, P.P.G.R. Essex, who both returned thanks. The toast of the Past Masters and Officers was proposed and duly honoured and the Tyler's toast brought to a conclusion a somewhat laborious evening's work.

GREY FRIARS LODGE, No. 1101.

A REGULAR meeting of this spirited Lodge took place at the Masonic Hall, Reading, on Wednesday, 11th inst. Bros. J. H. Hawkes W.M., Ridley I.P.M., Prickett S.W., Ravenscroft J.W., Stransom Treasurer, Greenaway Secretary, Creed S.D., Ferguson P.M. acting J.D., Pulley P.M. D.C., Hickie Organist, Collins I.G., Sands and Slaughter Stewards, Hemming Tyler; P.M.'s Hurley, Margrett, Flanagan, Blackwell, and Dowsett; Bros. Brigham, Hukins, Biggs, Goodhind, James, Knight, Sparrow, Bennett, Ridley, Cottrell, Hunt, and George. Visitors—Bros. Hayward 414, Butler 2013, Knill 414, Withers W.M. 414, Sims 1209, Tubbs I.G. 2043. Lodge was opened and the minutes of the last regular meeting were read and confirmed. Bros. Cottrell and Hunt, candidates for passing, proved their efficiency in the former degree; they were entrusted, and retired for preparation. Lodge was advanced, the candidates were re-admitted, and passed to the degree of Fellow Craft, the W.M. correctly performing the ceremony. After examination, Bro. Goodhind, candidate for the third degree, was raised. The first part of the ceremony was performed by Bro. Dowsett most impressively; the charge and explanation of the Tracing Board was given by Bro. Margrett in a masterly manner, the ceremonies being accompanied by music by Brother Hickie. Lodge was resumed. The Secretary read a communication from the Provincial Grand Secretary, stating that the sum of five guineas had been voted to the Grey Friars Lodge by the Provincial Grand Lodge, and asking to which of the Masonic Institutions it should be applied; also requesting that brethren qualified to receive the Charity jewel should send their applications to him before the 1st of March. It was proposed by the I.P.M., and seconded by Bro. Dowsett, "that the above-named sum of five guineas be applied to the list of the W.M., who would represent the Lodge at the Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, in May." The W.M. returned thanks. Bro. Pulley proposed, and Bro. Collins seconded, a candidate for initiation. All business being ended, Lodge was closed and adjourned.

THE GREAT CITY LODGE.

THE monthly meeting of this Lodge was held on Saturday, 14th inst., at the Cannon-street Hotel. Bro. Baber W.M. presided, supported by his Officers, and there were several visitors present. There was no business for the Worshipful Master, in the shape of initiations or working any of the degrees, but several matters cropped up as to applications for assistance and notices of motions for the next Lodge. Lodge having been closed, the brethren adjourned for refreshment, a bountiful repast being provided for them. At the conclusion, the formal Loyal toasts were given and reponded to. Bro. Rev. R. J. Simpson P.G.C., Chaplain of the Lodge, on behalf of the Grand Officers, said he regretted that none of the Principal Grand Officers were present that night to respond to this toast, but for himself he must say that it was a great pleasure to him to meet so many of his old friends. That pleasure was the greater in visiting them, as he had for some time past played the truant; but he could assure them it was not his wish to stay away, nor should he do so without just cause or impediment. In the first place, as he had said, he regretted that no other Grand Officer was present, and in the second place, he regretted that the Worshipful Master had no work to do, for he was able to do it had they given him the opportunity. In this Lodge he (Bro. Simpson) had nothing to do but to face friends on each side of the table, unlike their gallant soldiers who were now face to face with enemies, in defending what they believed to be the true principles of liberty, in the eastern part of the world. He alluded to an observation which had fallen from the Worshipful Master that night, when he expressed a hope that all of their members who were entitled to attend the next Grand Lodge would do so, and that they would be prepared to take part on that occasion. The power of attending and discussing matters in the Grand Lodge was the safety valve of the Constitution; a question of great importance would come before the Grand Lodge on that occasion. An important principle had been carried—mainly by the influence of Bro. Headon—in the case of Bro. Marshall, and he hoped that that principle would for ever be secured. It was an open question whether they should support Bro. Woodall or Bro. Willing; of Brother Woodall they knew nothing. It was, however, not a personal matter, but one of principle; he thought they would be justified in voting for the London candidate. It would be for them to consider how far it might be desirable that they should have an unwritten law, that they should elect a London member one year and a country one the next, and thus have turn and turn about; the candidates should always have fair play. If any members were pledged, they were bound in honour to redeem that pledge, but they should take care not to fall into the same error of exclusiveness by voting for the same candidate year after year, as was done before, for such a reaction must be deprecated. This was the only office—that of Grand Treasurer—that it was in the power of Grand Lodge to bestow. It was a great subject of Masonic polity which, after many years had been adopted, and he trusted in future years it might annually be followed. Bro. Keeble I.P.M., in proposing the health of the Worshipful Master, said he knew that Bro. Baber had prepared himself for any duties when he was elected to the office of W.M., and he regretted that he had not the opportunity of exhibiting the skill he possessed to discharge all the duties which might fall to him. He (Bro. Keeble) had placed his services at the disposal of the Lodge to represent them as Steward at the Festival of the Royal Benevolent Institution for the Old People, and if on Monday he should receive valentines in the shape of £5 notes he should be glad, and if they took the form of £10 notes he should not object to it. He concluded by proposing the health of the Worshipful Master, which was heartily responded to. The W.M. returned thanks to the brethren for the manner in which they had received the toast; he joined in the regret expressed by the Past Grand Chaplain (Bro. Simpson) that they had given him no work to do; he trusted that his successor would be more fortunate. He thanked the brethren most sincerely for the manner in which his health had been received. The health of the Past Masters of the Lodge was next given, and after a few words from Bros. Kibble, Freeman and Hamer, Bro. Headon, in returning thanks, entered into an explanation as to his intention to support the candidature of Bro. Willing for the office of Grand Treasurer. Bro. Willing last year had retired in favour of Bro. Marshall, and had not failed to recognise the principle for which they contended. Therefore, he should support the man who sacrificed himself to uphold a grand principle, which he (Bro. Headon) hoped they would establish for ever. Who knew Bro. Woodall? and how did they know if he was elected that at the end of the year he might not be desirous of going forward again? He was told that the country brethren were coming up in crowds, by excursion trains, and were on their arrival to wait on the steps at the door of Grand Lodge from nine o'clock in the morning, to crowd out the London brethren. He did not believe such would be the case, and he hoped that justice would be done by the election of Bro. Willing. Several other toasts were given. The evening was very harmoniously spent; Bro. Cozens presided at the pianoforte.

NEW CROSS LODGE, No. 1559.

THE installation meeting was held on Friday, 13th instant, at the Ship Hotel, Greenwich. The Lodge was opened by the W.M., Brother Henton, who was supported by the following Past Masters—Bros. Thiellay Treasurer (founder), Smith Secretary, Cowley, and Grammant I.P.M. The Officers present were Bros. the Rev. Sturdee S.W., Bertini J.W., Grassi S.D., Cash J.D., Priest I.G., and Church Tyler. Among the Visitors were—Bros. Rose 73, Addington 217, and Brinton 1329. The minutes of the regular and emergency meetings held on 12th December 1884 and 9th January 1885 were read and confirmed. The report of the Audit Committee, which was of a satisfactory character, was read, confirmed, and ordered to be printed. Bros. Lucas, Shaw, Rowe, and Monitor were then raised to the sublime degree. The solemn ceremony of installation was then proceeded with, the Installing Master being Brother Grammant, by whom the ceremony was performed without a hitch. Brother the Rev. Sturdee having been duly installed, invested his Officers, as follow:—Bros. Henton I.P.M., Bertini S.W., Grassi J.W., Thiellay P.M. Treasurer, Smith Secretary, Cash S.D., Priest J.D., Graham I.G., Cowley P.M. D.C., Wild Deputy D.C., Court Assistant Deputy D.C., Grammant W.S., North Assistant W.S., Meyers Assistant Secretary, Church Tyler. The W.M. then presented the retiring W.M. with the Lodge jewel, which had been unanimously voted him at the previous meeting. After some formal business had been transacted the Lodge was closed in due form. The brethren proceeded to the banqueting room in which a récherché repast awaited them. On the removal of the cloth the W.M. gave in sequence the toasts of the Queen and the Craft; the health of the M.W. the Grand Master; the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers Present and Past. Each toast was prefaced by some exceedingly eloquent remarks. Brother Henton next proposed the health of the Worshipful Master, and alluded in graceful terms to the esteem in which Brother Sturdee was held by all who knew him, more especially by those who were present. The W.M. acknowledged the toast in a short modest speech. The Visitors were next complimented. The Worshipful Master passed a warm tribute of praise on Brother D. Rose, Past Master 73, for the instruction he had received from him for a long period, and which had enabled him to discharge duties incumbent on his position with pleasure and satisfaction. Bro. J. J. Brinton responded. He expressed the pleasure he had experienced in being a visitor on this occasion. He had never seen an installation more carefully and solemnly carried out. He heartily congratulated the Lodge on having such a painstaking Master and such efficient officers. He wished them prosperity for all time to come. Brother D. Rose P.M. and Preceptor also responded. The W.M. then proposed the health of the Installing Master, to whom they were all so much indebted. Bro. J. Grammant, in responding, remarked that as their I.P.M. could not perform the ceremony, owing to pressing professional engagements, he had done so, but he felt his imperfections, and much regretted them. However, at all times he would do all in his power to promote the interests of the Lodge, and in order to accomplish that duty he had placed himself at their disposal. The toasts of the Past Masters, the Masonic Charities, the Treasurer, Secretary, and Wardens, followed, and the proceedings concluded with the Tyler's toast. Some popular pieces of music were rendered, and some capital recitations given during the evening.

CREATON LODGE, No. 1791.

THE installation meeting of this flourishing Lodge, named after our late respected Grand Secretary, Colonel Creaton, was held on the 12th inst., at the Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, under the presidency of the W.M. Bro. W. Williams, who was supported by Bros. Ferguson S.W., Rogers J.W., Cantle Secretary, Austin S.D., Colvill J.D., Williams I.G.; P.M.'s Neilson, Williams, Cornelissen. Visitors—Bros. Williams 909, Speare 860 Boston U.S., Cubitt 193, Burdon 11, Russell 733, Phillips P.P.G.D. Essex, Phillips 173, Dane 173, Arthur Thomas 1319, Jeffries 901, Reynolds 1441, Chalfont 1125, Craggs 834, Horn 1624, H. M. Levy 188. Lodge was formally opened, and the minutes of last meeting were confirmed. Bro. Bradbury was raised to the third degree and Bro. Head was passed, in an able and perfect manner. The report of the Audit Committee was read and adopted; it showed the Lodge was free from liability and in a flourishing financial condition. In due course a Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. Ferguson S.W. and W.M.

elect was presented by Bro. Cantle, and in the presence of seventeen Worshipful Masters and Past Masters duly installed into the chair by the retiring W.M., who was assisted by Bro. Williams, who rendered the addresses in a perfect and impressive manner. Bro. Cantle acted as D.C. The customary salutations of the brethren having been given, the W.M. appointed and invested his Officers, as follow:—Bros. Williams I.P.M., Rogers S.W., Austin J.W., Thurkle Treasurer, Cantle Secretary, Colvill S.D., G. F. Williams J.D., Helden I.G., Kift Organist, Cross W.S., Walter and Bull Stewards, Woodstock Tyler. Applause followed the investiture of each Officer. Bro. Cantle proposed, and Bro. Thurkle seconded, that the sum of ten guineas be voted from the funds of the Lodge, to be placed on the list of the I.P.M. (Bro. Williams), who will serve as a Steward at the next Anniversary Festival of the Boys' School. This was carried unanimously. Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Holborn Restaurant, where a most récherché banquet was provided by Bros. Gordon and Hamp. The W.M. proposed the usual loyal toasts. Bro. Williams rose; he had great pleasure in proposing the health of the W.M. He had known him well for many years, they were partners in business as well as Freemasonry. Brother Ferguson was one whom they all respected, and all trusted he might have health to carry out the duties with credit to himself and satisfaction to the Lodge. The W.M., in reply, thanked Brother Williams for the kind manner he had spoken of him. Bro. Phillips, P.M. of the Phœnix Lodge, whom he was glad to see present, had initiated him into Freemasonry. He would strive to give the brethren every satisfaction in the Lodge. At the festive board he wished to promote love and harmony, and he hoped at the expiration of his year of office they would say he had given them satisfaction. The toast of the Visitors was next on the list. The W.M. said the Lodge was famed for its hospitality; they had many distinguished visitors present; all were pleased to see them. He would call on Bros. Phillips P.P.G. Warden Somersetshire, Phillips P.M. 173, Jefferies P.M. 902, Cubitt P.G.P., Reynolds W.M. 1441, and Baker P.M. 753. These brethren severally responded, and paid just compliments to the I.P.M. and also to Bro. Williams, who had performed the latter part of the ceremony. Bro. Phillips P.M. 173 paid a just tribute to the memory of the respected founder of the Lodge, whose name he hoped would be perpetuated. Bro. Phillips also expressed regret that the W.M. had left the Phœnix Lodge; he (Bro. Phillips) had initiated him into the Order; he was a man of strict integrity, and they would never regret having chosen him for their Master. The W.M. next proposed the health of the Installing Master Brother Williams. Last August Brother Williams met with a serious accident, but they were pleased to say he had recovered. He had done his work with skill and ability during his year of office, and the members would not sufficiently thank him. He had lately been very unwell, but they had seen him perform the ceremonies of passing and raising, in addition to the installation ceremony. Turning to Bro. Williams, Bro. Ferguson said he had great pleasure in presenting him with the jewel voted him at the last meeting; and, in investing him with it, he knew it would be highly prized; he trusted he would live long to wear it. Bro. Cantle P.M. and Secretary, said he desired to say the Officers of the Lodge wished to endorse all that had been said by the W.M. The Officers, with the assistance of the brethren, in order to mark their approbation, had prepared an illuminated testimonial on vellum; it was the talented work of Mr. E. Jackman, and it had a suitable inscription. Bro. Cantle added, this testimonial was not given with any vain idea of glorification, but he hoped the G.A.O.T.U. might spare their respected brother for many years; and when at home he looked at it, it might remind him of his many friends, Masonic and otherwise. Bro. Williams I.P.M. said he could hardly find words to express his gratitude. From the first time he entered the Lodge he had worked; he had advanced from the bottom of the ladder, and was pleased whenever his efforts had met with their approval. With respect to the elegant jewel voted him, he thanked them heartily, and hoped he might live long to wear it among them. With regard to the illuminated testimonial it was an unexpected pleasure to receive it. He was led to believe he had done his duty, and he would receive it with great pleasure, and appreciate it as a token of their kindness. He hoped he had performed his part of the ceremony to their satisfaction, and he thanked Bro. Williams for the admirable manner in which he had given the addresses. Bro. Williams followed; if his efforts had given them pleasure, he was fully satisfied. His services were at their command. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Treasurer and Secretary. Bro. Thurkle was a tried friend: he had done a great amount of good for the Lodge, and had kept it free from debt. With regard to Bro. Cantle, they knew his worth and capabilities as Secretary. He had now great pleasure in presenting Bro. Thurkle with a testimonial for his zeal and ability; this consisted of a very valuable gold keyless watch, with albert chain and locket, bearing a suitable inscription. Bro. Thurkle said he felt proud at receiving the testimonial. When he looked at it he should never forget their kindness. He hoped to be among them for many years, and he trusted the Lodge would continue to prosper. Bro. Cantle P.M. and Secretary followed. He had tried, and would continue to try, to make the Creaton Lodge second to none in the Craft. This would be one of the best monuments to perpetuate the memory of the late Colonel Creaton. It was the desire of the members to meet, not so much in numbers, but to be an harmonious Lodge; with the co-operation of the brethren he was sure it would prosper. He might say they had a good balance to credit, and they might give to the Charities. The Lodge had been only six years in existence. He hoped they would become Vice-Presidents. The W.M. was to be a Steward, and he (Bro. Cantle) trusted he would take up a good list. All his energies would be at their service. The toast of the Officers and Wardens came next; the W.M. was sure those whom he had selected were capable. Bros. Rogers and Austin responded, they were followed by Bros. Phillips, Capt. Helden, Cross, Walker, and brothers. The Tyler's toast was then given, a very agreeable and harmonious evening was passed. The W.M. provided an artistic selection of music, exercising the talents of Bros. Arthur Thomas, J. Kift, J. Cantle, and Masters Charlton and Lewis. A very humourous recitation was given by Bro. W. G. Reynolds.

COBORN LODGE, No. 1804.

THE installation of the Worshipful Master of this Lodge usually draws together a good attendance of the members and friends, and as the Lodge is one which especially supports the Charities, in preference to sitting down to a banquet after each meeting, its installation Festival is heartily enjoyed. The impressive ceremony of installing the W.M. elect was performed by Bro. W. Clarke P.G.P., in his wonted impressive manner, it was evidently appreciated. The Lodge was opened in due form by the W.M. Bro. R. Logan, who was supported by Bros. J. T. Robey S.W., Charles J. L. Tijon J.W., P. Edinger Treasurer, A. Souch S.D., E. G. Johnson J.D., C. Lawrence D.C., Ellerton Organist, Wheatley I.G., Erlam Steward, A. Harrison Tyler; P.M.'s C. Brown and F. J. Hunt, with a goodly array of members. The Visitors included Bros. Hancock W.M. 1716, P.M.'s Wildey Wright 1827, H. R. Jones 1044, J. Taylor 883 (Preceptor of the Coborn Lodge of Instruction), Huggett 1625, Potts 1716, Deason 1625, C. Reeve 1816, and several others. After the formal business was taken, Bro. Clarke assumed the chair, and installed the W.M. elect Bro. J. T. Robey into the throne of K.S. The W.M. then appointed and invested his Officers for the year:—Bros. Tijon S.W., Gouch J.W., Edinger (re-elected) Treasurer, Hunt Secretary, Johnson S.W., Wheatley J.D., Ellerton Organist, Lawrence I.G., Erlam D.C., Plater Steward, and Harrison (re-elected) Tyler. The W.M. of the Lodge always takes a Stewardship for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and the sum of ten guineas from the Funds of the Lodge was placed upon his list. A sincere vote of thanks having been given to the Installing Master, the Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Holborn Restaurant, where the banquet was served in the high class style for which that establishment is noted. The usual toasts were all heartily received, Bro. Clarke replying for the Officers of Grand Lodge, and to his health as Installing Master. Bros. Wildey Wright and Hancock responded for the Visitors. After Bro. Clarke had proposed the Charies, of which he is an ardent supporter, the W.M. presented a handsome P.M.'s jewel to Bro. Logan. The Tyler's toast brought to a conclusion an instructive and pleasant evening, many of the brethren expressing a hearty wish that each succeeding installation would be as successful in every way. Bro. Ellerton presided at the piano, and had the management of the musical arrangements.

WHARTON LODGE, No. 2945.

THE third regular meeting of this Lodge was held at the White Hart Hotel, Willesden, N.W., on Tuesday 17th February. The Lodge was formally opened by Bro. Wm. Side W.M., in the presence of his Officers and about twenty members and visitors. The minutes of the last regular and two emergency meetings were read and confirmed. Bros. Bettesworth, Langley, Claise, and McRae were raised to the 3rd degree, and Bros. Bradshaw, Mitchell, Hartley Harris, and Bird-Gibson were passed. The two ceremonies were performed by the W.M. in his usual impressive style. A banquet followed the closing of the Lodge. In the course of the evening the health of the W.M. was heartily proposed, and pleasure was expressed by all that Bro. Side had had such an increase of members since the foundation of the Lodge, in August last. No less than 16 members have been initiated into the Lodge and four brethren have joined from other Lodges. The health of the Treasurer and Secretary was proposed by the W.M. Regret was expressed at the unavoidable absence of the Secretary, Bro. Gawith, on account of a serious accident, which will unfortunately necessitate his keeping his bed for some weeks. The Rev. J. C. Wharton Treas. responded, and congratulated the brethren upon the flourishing condition of the Lodge. The Tyler's toast brought to a close one of the most pleasant evenings this Lodge has held since its birth, and augurs well for the future.

The annual supper of the Covent Garden Lodge of Instruction, No. 1614, will be held at the Criterion, Piccadilly, on Thursday, the 5th proximo. The chair will be occupied by Brother John Jacobs, W.M. of the parent Lodge; and Brother G. Coleman, I.P.M. of the same Lodge, will fill the vice chair. Bros. A. Clark P.M. 1227, W. C. Smith S.W. 1563, and G. Fowles I.G. 1348 have been appointed Stewards. Tickets, price 3/6 each, may be had of Bro. G. Reynolds, 3 St. James Square, Pall Mall, or at the Bedford Head Hotel, Maiden Lane, Covent Garden, on Thursday evenings.

Bro. James Stevens asks us to inform the brethren of North Kent that he is arranging to deliver his Lecture, "Knobs and Excrescences," by invitation of the Union Lodge, No. 127, at Margate, between the 13th and 27th of next month, and would be willing to arrange dates with other Lodges on the line of route between that place and London.

CONSECRATION OF THE PORTSMOUTH, TEMPERANCE LODGE, No. 2038.

ON Monday afternoon the R.W. Provincial Grand Master of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight (Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P.), accompanied by Bro. Le Fevre Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and a number of the Grand Officers of the Province, attended at the Soldiers' Institute, Portsmouth, for the purpose of consecrating the above Lodge, which, as its name implies, has been established on temperance principles, as only non-alcoholic beverages will be served at its banquets, although non-abstainers are eligible for membership. There was a large muster in the Lodge-room at 4.30 when the Prov. Grand Master took the chair, and after the customary preliminaries had been gone through, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master made a few remarks on the circumstances under which the Lodge was formed, after which the Provincial Grand Master addressed the brethren. In some cases they might doubt whether if new Lodges sprang into existence they would be adequately and properly supported. But in this large and important neighbourhood, embracing as it did such a large population, he saw no reason for believing that when a new Lodge was applied for, those taking that course were not actuated by a sincere desire to promote the interests of Freemasonry. He felt quite certain that no brethren would ever think of applying for a new Lodge unless they desired to ensure its success. He had no reason to complain on this score, for he had seen new Lodges spring into existence, and he had always found that brethren who had started them had been fully impressed with the weight and responsibility of what they had undertaken. Therefore he was quite certain that in this case he was not misinterpreting the feelings of those who had applied for the warrant and offered to hold office under it when he said that they were animated by the desire to secure the permanence, stability, and success of the Lodge. He wished them well, and that their success might be in accordance with what was anticipated. To propagate Freemasonry in the present day was no light work, and they must all feel that in the belonging to such a large and important Order, which extended its branches over every part of the civilised world, they had a heavy responsibility cast upon them. Every individual Mason ought to show that he had something to do for the welfare of the Order to which he belonged, that he had to show that he was a worthy member of it, and that if by his means something might be done to increase the repute, the permanence, stability, and the welfare of the Order, he might feel certain that he had done some good. He ought to feel that if the outer world pointed to Freemasonry and Freemasons as a body of men who were doing no good in the world, he was able to refute it, so far as he could, by his own conduct, and by showing that the lessons of Freemasonry had a powerful influence in shaping it, and turning him towards good and not towards evil. Let them feel that whatever might be said about their Order they could not have the finger of scorn pointed at them, or have it said that they were doing that which was wrong. Let them be animated by feelings like that, and they would do the very best they could to vindicate the fame of the Order to which they belonged, and of which they ought to be proud. He trusted that in that Lodge the principles which were instilled would have a powerful effect upon many who were initiated within its walls, and that the Lodge would be the means of propagating the tenets of Freemasonry, and doing good to many who were admitted within its precincts. He trusted that the Lodge might flourish, and that when they met again on any anniversary or other occasion they would be able to congratulate themselves upon the success which had attended the efforts of the promoters and those who might become members. Subsequently the Provincial Grand Chaplain (the Rev. Dr. Mullins, Chaplain to H.M.'s Forces, Aldershot) delivered an address. The constitution of the Portsmouth Temperance Lodge was a marked event in the annals of the Province, for although there were Temperance Lodges in other provinces, this was the first in Hants, and it was fitting that Portsmouth should take the lead. The name of the Lodge cast no reflection on other Lodges, for he was sure that nothing was farther from the founder's wish than to claim a higher status of culture and utility than their fellows. Every Masonic Lodge that remained faithful to the principles of the Craft must, in the strict sense of the word, be a Temperance Lodge, and every Freemason who was true to the principles of the Craft must be a man who led a sober, righteous, and he would add a godly life. Temperance was one of the cardinal virtues, and as such was held in high esteem. The keystone of English Freemasonry was a belief in the existence of a personal, individual God, who had created all men, and consequently in His sight all were brethren, so that Freemasonry could be carried on upon an equal footing, and in a Masonic Lodge there could be no distinction, but all men were equal. Yet it was a fact that class Lodges existed for the convenience of the members. There were Lodges for the Army and Navy, for Barristers, for people engaged in the theatrical profession, for members of the Universities—the Sir Isaac Newton at Cambridge and the Apollo at Oxford. Therefore no apology was necessary for the constitution of a Lodge in which the brethren were united by a common opinion as to what they should not drink. It could not be denied that of late years a great movement had been taking place in this country, and there were about five millions of total abstainers, amongst whom, no doubt, were a large number of Masons, for wherever they saw any great and philanthropic movement there they found Masons to the front. Therefore, it was only fair that here and there a Lodge should be constituted for their convenience. This was an age of searching inquiry and of intellectual activity, when most of their old institutions were on their trial. That being the case Masonry could not expect to escape the spirit of the age. But when they found Freemasonry come forth, and that from its inherent principles it was prepared to take part in the onward march of civilisation, that was the surest sign of its vitality and strength. There was no denying the fact that a great social reform had been progressing of late years. The temperance movement was one of the most remarkable of the age. It had more or less influenced all classes in society. Social reformers told them on indisputable grounds that in the future habits of temperance would elevate and improve the condition of the people. He was not there to deliver a lecture, but he regarded it as an indication of the power and vital energy of Masonry that it extended its sympathy to this movement, and accentuated its approval of this great social reform, as it did that day. Freemasonry had taken a glorious part in the great educational movement, and their Schools stood forth as a memorial of Masonic benevolence. For their great Institutions the large sum of £48,883 was received in 1884, besides between nine and ten thousand pounds voted by the Lodge of Benevolence to indigent Masons of all nationalities. One of the wisest things that had been done by the Provincial Grand Lodge was to formulate a scheme for the education of their local orphans. He thought the Grand Lodge of England had acted wisely in permitting the foundation of Temperance Lodges. One of the truest maxims to be found in George Eliot's works was—"Those whom we trust we educate," and he had no doubt that their total abstaining brethren would repay the confidence of the Grand Lodge, and in a tangible way show the stability of their principles, by constituting the new Lodge a Life Governor of the Masonic Charities. At the conclusion of the ceremony the Prov. Grand Master installed Captain T. Ward, R.A., P.M., as first Worshipful Master of the Lodge, amid the applause of the brethren, expressing his belief that he would fully justify the choice, and that his past experience would be brought to bear for the good of the Lodge. Some of the Officers were invested, the complete list being as follows:—Bros. A. L. Emanuel, Past Master, Immediate Past Master, J. Palmer Senior Warden, G. Reading J.W., G. F. Bevis Treasurer, J. R. Pither P.M. Sec., P. H. Emanuel S.D., W. G. Robinson J.D., Q. Cecconi I.G., W. Robinson D.C., G. Sylvester Org., C. G. Adams P.M. Steward, W. Miller Steward. Several propositions for initiation and joining were submitted, and the P.G.M., D.P.G.M., and Sir George Willis were elected honorary members of the Lodge. At the banquet, which was served in the Officers' House, the W.M. presided, supported by the P.G.M. and the D.P.G.M. At the conclusion of an excellent repast, with which non-intoxicants were served, a congratulatory telegram was read from the W.M. of the Wolseley (temperance) Lodge, Manchester. After the preliminary Masonic toasts had been given from the chair Bro. Captain Haldane, in proposing the health of the Provincial Grand Master, said they all knew how excellent a Mason he was, and what pains he took to make the Craft work well under his banner. The P.G.M., in reply, said he might congratulate them, and the world at large, upon the fact that while in the present day there were many who assailed Royalty, religion, and every rooted institution, a large body of men were banded together for the purpose of brotherhood, whose creed was reverence to religion and loyalty to their sovereign. Bro. C. G. Adames proposed the D.P.G.M. and Officers of P.G. Lodge, and Bros. Le Fevre and E. Goble, the recently appointed Prov. G. Secretary, responded. The P.G.M., in eulogistic terms, gave the W.M., who made a suitable reply. Other toasts followed, and with the aid of harmony a pleasant evening was spent. Bro. Sylvester presided at the piano.—Portsmouth Times.

ADELPHI.

"WHEN is G. R. Sims' new play to appear?" we asked the acting manager of the Adelphi the other night, and like Christopher Wren's epitaph, he replied, "circumspice." Looking around there were stalls, boxes, pit and gallery—all full. The people's Charles, after more than four hundred nights, plays with the same vigour and sincerity as when he first put his uniform on. Mr. Beveridge, as the villain, is no less cynical and incisive, and seems to enjoy the vigorous hissing the immortal gods bestow upon him so liberally. That ancient and honourable sympathy with virtue and detestation of wickedness which once always distinguished Olympus now is sadly fading out. West of the Griffin it is only at the dear old Adelphi the noble tradition is still honoured. "In the Ranks" is a thoroughly honest, wholesome play, and may Adelphi audiences long enjoy such good reason for their ready laughter and sympathetic handkerchiefs.

PRINCE'S HALL.

FOR us of "la vieille garde" who cherish among our pleasantest memories the mystic wonders wrought of old by the great necromancers Phillippe and Robert Houdin there has seemed little chance of again enjoying such hours of delicious bewilderment. Monsieur Verbecke, who, like so many of his confraternity, is a Frenchman, has come to us with such wonder-working powers that he brings his spectators to dumb amazement, until, having recovered from the astonishment of each successive trick, they relieve the mental tension by loud applause. M. Verbeck has a fine presence, a most expressive physiognomy, and hands so mobile and delicate of touch one could imagine him unwinding a spider's web without breaking it. He is gifted with ready epigrammatic wit, which adds much to the charm of his performance. A high-bred homme du monde, the performance of M. Verbeck seems given, as it were, by a delightful friend, not by a professional prestidigitateur. It is difficult to recount his miracles—how an ordinary pack of cards held spread out in the left hand is gently patted by the right forefinger and immediately the cards shrink to one-third their size. The patting is repeated, they shrink again and again and again until they are no bigger than a postage-stamp. Then a ring lent by one of the audience is entrusted to a volunteer assistant to wrap up in a programme. He puts it inside, folds up the paper, and crushes it into a tight ball. In this form it is given to M. Verbeck, who, with coat and shirt cuffs turned back, receives the packet, and holds it in one hand whilst the other is motionless by his side. He unclasps his fingers, and, lo! they hold a sealed envelope. It is opened. There is another, also sealed; within this a third, and so on until the tiny fifth, which is given to the owner of the ring, and she finds her property safe inside. M. Verbeck gathers up the torn envelopes, crushes them in his hand, and produces from them the perfect piece of paper out of which they had been evolved. Two slates of the commonest description, apparently quite blank, and most innocent-looking, are tied together; questions are written on cards by the audience; one of these is chosen, not by M. Verbeck, the slate is untied, and the reply, filling the whole side, is found written in slate-pencil on it. Watches are borrowed and conjured into the pockets or under the waistcoats of innocent members of the audience who have not been approached by the Wizard. Coins appear and vanish, no matter how securely held, till, in the utter bewilderment M. Verbeck reduces us to, we begin to have an uneasy suspicion that perhaps he has exercised his mesmeric powers upon his confiding audience and made them think they see "such things as dreams are made of." The second part of the entertainment illustrates M. Verbeck's powers of animal magnetism over his comely subject, Mdlle. de Marguerit. Complete rigidity of limb was produced at will, her eyes so affected that the eyelids remained motionless for ten minutes, whilst a strong flame held near them caused no contraction of the pupil. The phenomena would have been called miraculous by our simple-minded forefathers, and indeed they had a certain weirdness "not just canny," as an old Scotch lady who sat near us said. We believe we saw a gold pin stuck into the arm of the young lady, whilst no sign of discomfort was shown by her; but once having entered that enchanted hall we can only report the things it pleases the arch enchanter to make us accept as realities. We have no doubt the London public will enjoy these mystifications no less than the Lord and Lady of Sandringham, but we hope, in the interest of the public, M. Verbeck may consent to modify the prices of the reserved seats, which are fixed at a scale somewhat high for these hard times.

Bro. J. Greenfield (of the firm of Greenfield and Abbott), solicitor, 37 Queen Victoria Street, and Kingston-on-Thames, has been appointed by Sir William Foster Stawell, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court at Melbourne, a commissioner for taking affidavits, &c., for the said Supreme Court, Colony of Victoria.

Bro. John Armstrong died at Guernsey, on Thursday morning; he had attained the age of ninety-five; he was initiated in the Mariners Lodge, No. 168, in the year 1815, though, singular to relate, he only received his certificate from Grand Lodge a few months since.

RANDOM NOTES ON FREEMASONRY.

LAST week Bro. Emra Holmes, Fellow of the Royal Historical Society and Honorary Provincial Prior to the Knight Templars of Canada, delivered a lecture with the above title, before the members of the Mariners' Lodge of Freemasons here. In the course of his remarks, after enlarging on the antiquity of the Order and its connection with the Ancient Mysteries and the Travelling Freemasons of the Middle Ages, themselves descended from the Collegium Artificium of Roman times, the lecturer said:—In these days of Utilitarianism it is often asked what is the use of Freemasonry? What good does it do? It is useless for us to answer:—We have our great Masonic Charities, because the reply is, so have other Bodies with not half the pretensions of the Freemasons. What nobler work than the fostering and study of Architecture and Archæology, the restoration of the churches built by our ancestors? The Masons of Bristol, under their esteemed Provincial Grand Master, the Earl of Limerick, have set a noble example. They have restored the Lady Chapel of the St. Mary Redcliffe, the grandest Parish Church in England, at a very great cost, and they took part in laying the foundation stone of the new nave of their Cathedral. We can all do something in this way to show the world we are not degenerate scions of the Mediæval Masons, for we can always help with our money, if not with our hands, in the restoration of those beautiful and historic fanes reared by the wisdom and piety of our ancestors. Wherever a Masonic Lodge is situated near to some grand old church going to decay, as in the case of your Church of St. Peter-Port, its members should be the first to help with loving hands to rebuild the sacred edifice, if they believe in the history of their Order. Did time permit I could enlarge upon the science of symbolism, portrayed as it is in our sacred edifices, specially interesting to us Masons, and upon the curious Masons' Marks found scattered over the Cathedrals and Temples in Europe and Asia. Many of these marks in countries most remote are almost identical, pointing to a solidarity and community whose purpose, aims, history and origin were one. The lecture took an hour and a quarter in its delivery and was listened to throughout with great interest and attention. A cordial vote of thanks was given to Bro. Emra Holmes at its conclusion, and the brethren afterwards adjourned to the banqueting room, where the usual collation was served, and a very agreeable evening, enlivened with speech, song, and recitation, was spent.—Guernsey Advertiser, 14th February.

Obituary.

BROTHER D. W. CABLE.

THE death of this respected brother, a most promising member of the staff of the London and South Western Railway, took place on Sunday, the 8th inst. It is about three and a-half years since Bro. Cable, who joined the service in 1869, was promoted from chief clerk at Addison-road Station, Kensington, to the charge of Norbiton Station. He at once displayed abilities of no mean order, and has always discharged his duties efficiently, courteously, and yet firmly. Last autumn fever broke out in the residence attached to the station, but happily all who were attacked recovered. Bro. Cable himself escaped the contagion. A second outbreak occurred about a month since, and Bro. Cable was relieved from duty. Just when it was hoped that the worst had passed, he was struck down, and in less than a fortnight death had claimed its victim. A general feeling of regret was expressed by all who had been associated with Bro. Cable, either in his public or private capacity. He was Secretary of the Brownrigg Lodge, No. 1638, an office he had held with marked ability. Amongst his brethren he was very popular, and it can be said of him most truly that he acted up to the principles of the body to which he belonged. The interment took place on Wednesday, at Kingston Cemetery, in the presence of a large number of the Brownrigg Lodge, and other members of the Order. These led the procession from the entrance gates to the chapel, with the following of the Railway Company's service:—Mr. Petit, Mr. Damen, Mr. Brooks and Inspector Townsend (Kingston station); Chief Inspector Rumbelow (Waterloo), Mr. S. Fay (Traffic Superintendent's office), Mr. White (Manager's office); Mr. Jebbitt (relieving agent), Mr. Barnard, Signalmen Baker and Vincent, Head Porter Longhurst, Porters Papjoy, French and Whatman, and Outside Porter Papworth, of Norbiton; Porters Baker and Warland, of Hampton Wick, and Mr. Goodson, station master of Putney; in all there were about ninety assembled, to pay a last token of regard for a departed friend. Bro. Cable, who was but thirty years old, leaves a wife and four children, a number expected to be increased daily.

The regular meeting of the Board of Masters and Lodge of Benevolence took place at Freemasons' Hall, on Wednesday. Bro, Joshua Nunn, President of the Lodge of Benevolence, presided, supported by Bro. Cottebrune, Vice President. The agenda for the Grand Lodge of the 4th March having been agreed to, the Lodge of Benevolence proceeded to the consideration of the petitions before them, having first confirmed the business transacted at the last meeting. The new cases were forty in number, and of these four were dismissed, and six were referred. To the remainder, sums varying from £100 to £5 were recommended or voted, the total amount granted being £710, made up of one £100, one £50, three of £40 each, four of £30 each, one £25, nine of £20, four of £15 each, four of £10 each, and three of £5 each, Saint W.M., Brown S.W., Gilderaleve J.W., Pitt Secretary, T. J. Maidwell, &c. After the usual preliminaries had been observed, Lodge was advanced to the second degree and Bro. Pitt answered the questions leading to the third. Lodge was opened in the third degree, and the ceremony of raising was rehearsed. Bro. S.W. Brown was elected to the chair for the ensuing week. Lodge was closed in due form and adjourned to Wednesday next, at seven o'clock.

Royal Alfred Lodge of Instruction, No. 780.—On Friday, 13th instant, at the Star and Garter Hotel, Kew Bridge. Present—Bros. F. Botley W.M., Sperring S.W., Wing J.W., Andrews Treasurer and Preceptor, C. E. Botley Secretary, Norton S.D., Cammell J.D., Thomas I.G.; also Bro. Turner. After preliminaries, the second and third sections of the first lecture were worked. Bro. Norton answered the questions leading to the third degree. Bro. F. Botley vacated the chair in favour of Bro. C. E. Botley, who rehearsed the ceremony of installation, Bro. F. Botley acting as W.M. elect. Lodge having been resumed, Bro. Sperring was elected W.M. for February, 20th instant.

Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, No. 860.—Held at Bro. Smyth's, Sisters Tavern, Dalston, on Tuesday, 17th instant. Bros. Polak W.M., Christian S.W., Clark J.W., Bunker S.D., Catling J.D., Smyth I.G., Carr Secretary, Brasted P.M. Preceptor, and other brethren. Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Mortimer offered himself as candidate for raising; he was interrogated and entrusted. Lodge was opened in the third degree, and the ceremony rehearsed. Bro. Carr assisted Bro. Christian to work the third section of the lecture. Lodge was regularly closed in the third degree. Bro. Bunker assisted the Preceptor to work the first section of the lecture. Lodge was resumed, and Bro. Christian was elected W.M. for the ensuing week, and appointed his officers in rotation. Lodge was then closed and adjourned. The annual supper of the above Lodge will take place on Monday, the 30th of March, when a large attendance of old members is anticipated.

Brownrigg Lodge of Instruction, No. 1638.—On Monday, the 9th instant, Bro. the Rev. C. W. Arnold, Deputy Provincial Grand Master Surrey, attended the meeting of this Lodge of Instruction, now held at the Alexandra Hotel, Kingston Hill. There was a large gathering of brethren, and for their edification the ceremony of consecrating a Lodge was rehearsed. The Deputy Provincial Grand Master was much pleased with the room and the appointments, and congratulated the members upon the desire which they displayed for improving themselves in the working incidental to assemblies of the Order.

On Thursday, the 12th instant, a ball, under the auspices of the Brownrigg Lodge, was held at the Albany Hall. The lamentable death of the Secretary of this Lodge caused some to stay away, and the Stewards would have gladly postponed the gathering, had it been possible to obtain the hall on another night within reasonable time. As it was, about eighty were present; the arrangements made by the Stewards gave general satisfaction. The centre of the hall was covered with a "dancing cloth," and the space under the galleries on either side was shut off by hangings, so forming refreshment and supper rooms. Messrs. G. and C. Nuthall were the caterers (except for wine, which was supplied by Messrs. Bond and Co.), and as is always the case with that firm, they acquitted themselves well.

Guelph Lodge of Instruction, No. 1685.—The anniversary meeting took place on 5th February, when the Fifteen Sections were worked under the presidency of Bro. James Boulton P.M. 1056 and J.W. 28. The Lodge meetings are usually held at the Three Blackbirds Inn, Leyton; but on this occasion the brethren assembled at the Leyton Town Hall, to the number of nearly two hundred, and, Masonic costume being general, the room presented a pleasing effect. Besides those enumerated below, who worked the Sections, we noticed the following brethren present:—Bros. Tharpe 1228, Hobbs 249, Brown W.M. 1685, Purdue 834, Tugg 749, Vincent 1585, Robins 1056, Taylor 1421, Crombie 28, Bean and Dawson 1228, besides representatives from over fifty different Lodges. Lodge having been opened in due form and the minutes of the previous meeting confirmed, the W.M., who was assisted by Bros. Candick P.M. 1421 and P.Z. 933 as S.W., and Berry P.M. and P.Z. 554 as J.W., Bro. Latreille P.M. 1056 officiating as I.P.M., proceeded with the Fifteen Sections, according to the following programme:—First Lecture—Bros. Carr, Watkinson, Musto, Terry, Myers, Calver, and Candick. Second Lecture—Bros. Barnes, Berry, Stewart, Christian, and Latreille. Third Lecture—Bros. King, McDonald, and G. Ward Verry. The three lectures were delivered in an admirable manner; on no former occasion do we remember them worked more perfectly, and those who were present will not be likely to forget the intellectual treat provided. The whole of the fifteen brethren who worked and the W.M. acquitted themselves so ably that individual praise is impossible, but a word of thanks is certainly due to Bro. Barnes, who at a few minutes notice took the place of Bro. Durrant P.M. 1056, who was to have taken the first section of the second lecture, but was unavoidably absent. At the conclusion of the sections twenty brethren were proposed and duly elected members of the Lodge of Instruction, and it was likewise carried the brethren who worked the different sections should be elected honorary members. Bro. Bare P.M. 1685, the worthy Preceptor, proposed, and Bro. Slade J.D. 1685 Secretary, seconded a hearty vote of thanks to the W.M. The W.M. proposed, and Bro. Brown seconded, a vote of thanks to the other fifteen brethren who officiated, both of which were carried with enthusiasm and suitably responded to. Lodge having been closed in the usual manner the meeting adjourned, thus bringing to an end one of the most successful Masonic gatherings ever held in this district

Kingsland Lodge of Instruction, No. 1693.—Held on Monday last, at the Cock Tavern, Highbury, N. Bros. Weeden W.M., Dixie S.W., Turner J.W., Collingridge Secretary, Giffard J.D., McMillan I.G., Western W.M. 1693 Assistant Preceptor; and several other brethren. After preliminaries, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Whittle acting as candidate. This brother answered the questions leading to the second degree. Lodge was advanced, and the ceremony rehearsed, Bro. Stockhall acting as candidate. Lodge was closed in second and first degrees in perfect harmony. The brethren and members of this Lodge of Instruction are invited to attend next Monday, to consider a notice of motion by Bro. Dixie, to amend a Bye-law, so that the sections may be occasionally worked in this Lodge. Bro. Edis 228 was elected a member. Bro. Hall P.M. 1693 will rehearse the ceremony of installation on Monday next; Bro. Dixie will occupy the chair on Monday, March 2nd.

Selwyn Lodge of Instruction, No. 1901.—The usual weekly meeting was held on Friday evening, the 6th inst., at the East Dulwich Hotel, East Dulwich Green, when there were present Bros. Wimble W.M., P.M. Powell S.W., L. E. Eagle J.W., Stone S.D., Cattermole J.D., Shorter I.G., Morgan Organist, P.M. Bellis Preceptor, and E. Eagle Secretary; also Bros. Davis, Hitchcock, Anderson, Philips, Powles, F. Dadd, Burnett W.M. 1901, P.M. James Stevens 720, 1216, 1426, McNaughton 291, Bannister 1632, Langley 1986, Bailey 948, Stone 1641, Channon 1475, Cheese 869, Neale 1981, Omer 1259, Wallis 901, Keyse 1314, Eadle 1441, Tilling 765, Pettit 1632, Beneditti 1155, Nomiss 1158, Wills 1901, and others. Lodge was opened in due form at 7.30 p.m., when the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The W.M. then introduced Bro. Stevens to the meeting, and claimed their attention to his lecture, according to the notice which had been issued. The lecturer soon gave evidence of an ability to secure such attention; and, having opened his subject by a brief history of Masonic ritual from what he considers to be about the date of the commencement of Speculative Freemasonry, he took up the numerous points of divergence in verbiage and practice, and hurriedly explained their causes and effects. That these points were numerous and afforded opportunity for considerable comment may be inferred from the fact that lapse of time was forgotten alike by the lecturer and his audience, and the brethren were surprised to find that when Bro. Stevens was only about midway in the initiation ceremony they had given him their undivided attention for considerably over two hours. It was then arranged that an open discussion on some of the points which had been referred to, and the continuation and completion of the lecture, should be deferred to another evening, and Bro. Stevens expressing his willingness thereto, it was decided that the evening of Friday, the 27th inst., should be devoted to that purpose, the meeting to be held at seven o'clock instead of at the usual hour of eight. Bro. Stevens, who had received frequent favourable acknowledgments of satisfaction with his lecture during its progress, resumed his seat amidst considerable applause. On the first rising of the W. Master the following brethren were proposed and elected members:—Bros. Tilling, Wilkinson, Field, Swan, Hunter, and others. The dues were then collected, and the W.M. rose for the second time. It was proposed by Bro. P.M. Ellis, seconded by Bro. L. E. Eagle, that Bro. Powell occupy the chair of W.M. at the next meeting,—carried. It was also proposed by Bro. Bellis, seconded by Bro. James Burnett, W.M. 1901, that a hearty vote of thanks be given to Bro. James Stevens for his valuable and instructive lecture, and the same be recorded on the minutes; also that Bro. Stevens be elected an honorary member of the Lodge. The W.M. rose for the third time, and there being no further Masonic business, the Lodge was closed in due form, and the meeting adjourned until Friday evening next at eight o'clock.

Chiswick Lodge of Instruction, No. 2012.—A meeting was held on Saturday, 14th instant, at the Hampshire Hog, King-street, Hammersmith. Present:—Bros. G. Gardner (Treas.) W.M., Wing S.W., Wood J.W., Strong Secretary, Walden S.D., Perdue J.D., Alfred Bishop I.G., Weeks Tyler. P.M.'s Bros. Ayling Preceptor, Johnson; also Bros. A. Tilbury, A. Williams, D. Stroud, Gomm, J. Sims, and several others. Lodge was opened in due form and the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The brethren assisted the Preceptor to work the sections of the second degree, and Bro. Tilbury answered the questions leading to the third. Lodge was resumed to the first degree, and Bro. Williams offered himself for passing, and was examined and entrusted. Lodge was again resumed and the ceremony rehearsed. Later on, the Senior Warden was unanimously elected to fill the chair of King Solomon for the ensuing meeting, and appointed his Officers. It was then announced that the first annual supper will be held at the Bolton Hotel, Duke's Road, Chiswick, on Saturday, 28th instant, at 7 o'clock precisely. Stewards have been appointed, from whom tickets can be obtained. There being a considerable amount of musical talent among the brethren of this Lodge a very enjoyable evening may be expected. Brethren are cordially invited. Nothing further offering, Lodge was closed in ancient form.

LUXURY IN TRAVELLING.

THERE is no railway out of London that affords better accommodation than the Midland. The management of this line for years past has exhibited an enterprise worthy of all praise and emulation. The first in the field of novelty, it still continues to push its claims to public support by new methods of comfort and convenience. While looking to the wealthy or well-to-do travellers as probably the best customers in long journeys, the manager has not forgotten the ordinary customers, whose wants are regarded with care and consideration. In illustration of our meaning, we may draw attention to the arrangements for traffic to and from Scotland. A special service of express trains now run from St. Pancras to Edinburgh and Glasgow, and back, for which third-class tickets are issued between all the principal stations. The journey can be broken under favourable conditions as to time, while those who go right through need not change. The express trains are through ones, and are fitted up with all modern appliances. Pullman cars, warmed and ventilated, fitted with lavatory and every comfort, accompanied by an attendant, are fixed to each train. There is one each way, to and from Glasgow, of what is termed the parlour car in the morning. The sleeping cars run at night from St. Pancras and from Edinburgh and Glasgow. Both kinds are models of comfort and luxury, and the additional cost for sleeping accommodation is exceedingly moderate. For ladies travelling alone, a separate saloon is reserved in the sleeping cars, and all passengers holding first-class tickets can avail themselves of the day cars without extra expense. We need not dwell upon the hotel arrangements at St. Pancras, but we may mention that equally excellent accommodation is provided at Glasgow and Edinburgh. Those who need refreshment on the road can obtain luncheon baskets at most of the large towns on the journey, and those who desire a substantial dainty meal can have it at Normanton, where the up and down day express trains stop half an hour. A special room has been set apart for the purpose, and a table d'hote of five courses, with dessert, is furnished for half a crown, and no fees. What could the hungry traveller wish for more? If a special dinner is wanted, it is only necessary to inform the guard, and he will telegraph instructions in advance without charge. Travelling long distances is thus made a pleasure, and at a cost that must be admitted to be extremely moderate. Besides these advantages, four persons travelling together first-class can easily secure a compartment to themselves. Invalids can be accommodated with the minimum of disturbance, and whole families can charter a carriage fitted up with all the necessary comforts and conveniences. We might go on to enumerate other features of a general character, such as the carting of luggage, the conveyance of fruit and vegetables, game and fish, horses and carriages, but these are details which can readily be ascertained. We may, however, state that every arrangement seems to have been made to meet, and even anticipate, the wants of travellers of every kind.

PRESENTATION TO BRO. W. E. WOOD.—On Thursday, at a complimentary dinner, held at the Royal Aquarium, Messrs. Bertram and Roberts' manager (Bro. Wood) was presented with a testimonial, which consisted of a handsome illuminated address on vellum and a purse of fifty sovereigns. The address was worded as follows:—"Presented, together with a purse of sovereigns, to Mr. W. E. Wood, manager, refreshment department Royal Aquarium, Westminster, by the staff of Bertram and Roberts, at the Royal Aquarium, with a few friends, as a token of their esteem and respect, February 1885." At the same time and place, Mr. F. Todman, late manager of the refreshment department Royal Courts of Justice, was the recipient of a similar honour. Both gentlemen responded in appropriate terms.

We learn that Messrs. Cassell and Company have made arrangements to include an illustrated descriptive account of the campaign now proceeding in the Soudan in "Recent British Battles," by Mr. James Grant, the issue of which has just been commenced in monthly parts. By a coincidence, it was in Khartoum, after a visit to General Gordon, then on the White Nile, that Colonel Burnaby resolved upon taking his famous ride to Khiva. A paragraph in an English newspaper stated that Russia would not permit a foreign traveller to enter its Asiatic possessions, and this inspired Colonel Burnaby to make the attempt. We all know, from his most entertaining narrative, how he fared, but the tragic ending of the gallant soldier's adventurous career will arouse fresh interest in the story of his former achievement. His "Ride to Khiva" has gone through numerous editions, and is now issued by Messrs. Cassell and Company in a cheap form, price 1s 6d in cloth. Apart from the association of its authorship, the book throws much light on Russian operations in the border lands of our Indian empire, a subject to which public attention is being drawn with increasing interest.

LODGES OF INSTRUCTION.

VARIOUS are the ideas we have recently heard expressed relative to the mode of admission to, and the conduct of, our Lodges of Instruction; and although from time to time we have ventured to express our opinion on these points, probably a brief space may not be inopportunely occupied if we revert to a few of them in the light of utterances we have overheard within the past few weeks. As most of our readers are aware, these "nurseries" of the Craft partake too frequently of the "free and easy" character; their regulations are in many instances lax; and the test of admission, if any, is far from disciplinarian. We do not mean for a moment that there is often occasion for the ejaculation "It rains" as regards a Lodge of Instruction; there is, and ever must be, an insurmountable barrier against the cowan's approach to the sacred threshold of a Masonic Lodge. But why not the same safeguard against intrusion into a Lodge of Instruction as is provided for in a regular Lodge. As a matter of fact the almost universal rule is, that the outworks are not guarded, and although the brethren may be in themselves assured the conclave is properly tyled, there is no difference. Every Lodge of Instruction, as well as a regular Lodge, should have an attendance book as well as a Tyler. To give a case in point. Only very recently we attended a Lodge of Instruction where several brethren were waiting, during the progress of the ceremony, for admission. Amongst them was a brother—whom we afterwards ascertained was to all intents "good and true"—who, when challenged by the superior Officer of the Lodge, failed in the first instance to give even the rudimentary proofs of his being a Mason. We have known scores of "rusty" brethren—who from a variety of circumstances have fallen into arrears in that respect—similarly placed. But in the case to which we more particularly refer the Officer, insistant upon proof, put our brother through a variety of evolutions, until, in the end, although not au fait, he convinced the brethren present of his eligibility for admission, and was thereupon received with the same cordiality as though he had been an expert at the Art and had been known for years amongst the members of the Lodge. But the question arises—Suppose this had been otherwise? Assuming that a man had "picked up" in his travels—as we know many have done—from incautious brethren many of the preliminary signs and tokens of Freemasonry, and by those means had gained sufficient notion of gesture to enter an indifferently conducted Lodge of Instruction? Let it be borne in mind we are only assuming such might be possible. We do not say the intruder would remain long undiscovered, or that he would gain much solid insight into the true work of the Craft; but such an idea has struck us as possible, and it would be as well if the possibilities of such a case were guarded against. Sitting at dinner in a commercial room one night, in the country, the subject of Freemasonry cropped up, and remarks upon it were, as we suggested, used rather too freely. Our "next door neighbour," with signs he, as admitted, had "picked up," expressed himself glad to meet us "as a brother," and to find himself in the congenial company of so many other members of the ancient and honourable Institution. He heartily wished us all well, and the compliment was, though we saw rather suspiciously by some, reciprocated. We ventured to inquire of our newly-found friend where was he made a Mason? and then came the innocent reply, "at Cheltenham!" It need hardly be said that the incipient Ananius who had "tried it on," no doubt with partial success at other places, was quietly advised to get back to Cheltenham as rapidly as he could, and sent to Coventry for the remainder of the evening. It is an undeniable fact that the Masonic signs and secrets are too frequently expressed in mixed assemblies, regardless of that strict caution which is so rigidly enjoined in the earlier stages of the Mason's career; and it may be that the insidious are able to glean much from indiscreet members of the Craft to insinuate themselves far into the regions where they speedily come to grief. We think it was in Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress" where somebody who wanted to get to the celestial spheres by royal road vaulted "over the garden wall" instead of entering by the prescribed wicket gate, and who very soon fell amongst thieves and repented of his temerity. Such a fate always meets the man who is foolish enough to assume a virtue he does not possess, and who thinks it wonderfully clever to steal a march in the direction we have indicated. We admit there are few mean or base enough to attempt such a deceit; but there would be more if they thought that by practice and ingenuity they could accomplish a clever feat. It remains, therefore, a question with those who have the interest of our Lodges of Instruction at heart to use every precaution against the possibility of intrusion; and we only re-echo an expression we overheard the other night that absolute security should be provided by the approval of a voluntary Tyler on the occasion of each meeting, and the requirement also of an attendance book such as is used at the regular Lodges. Brethren would be readily found to accept the outer guardship of a Lodge of Instruction as a preliminary step to other offices, and who would see that the applicants for admission were perfectly eligible. Another point which has been frequently argued is, that of the importation of "refreshments" during the periods of labour, and this is one which we think should be seriously considered by Preceptors and members generally of Lodges of Instruction. It may be argued that it is a matter of conscientious scruple, and entirely at the individual option of the brethren, whether the consumption of "liquor" and tobacco during the rehearsal of solemn ceremonies is the "correct thing." But be that as it may, we apparently protest against a custom, which is emphatically on the increase, that requires every attendant at a Lodge of Instruction to mingle refreshment with labour, whether or not he is so inclined. It may not be that he is directly coerced into giving his "orders to the waiter," as he may be in an hotel or restaurant; but the look, either askant or derisive, is to a sensitive mind sufficient to divert the attention of the student, and to render his mind uneasy during the rehearsal of sublime ceremonies. As a matter of stern decorum, refreshment should never be mingled with solemn and impressive rites; but at any rate brethren who are scrupulous on the point should be free from reproach if they prefer to defer their predilections for the fourth degree until they are called off by the Junior Warden. There is yet another question to which our attention has often been directed, and that is the compulsion almost which is placed upon visitors to join Lodges of Instruction, There are many Lodges in which, when a stranger appears invited it may be for an evening by a friend, he is immediately pounced upon and—amidst felicitations, no doubt—he is unanimously elected a member of the Lodge of Instruction, which under many circumstances he may never be permitted to enter again. It is argued that the entrance fee is a mere bagatelle, and that the small amount received is devoted to Masonic Charity. That may be so; but the principle involved is the same, and for a visitor to be swooped down upon and elected a member of a Lodge before he can pronounce the proverbial "Jack Robinson" is to our mind both out of taste and indicative of a spirit of black mail which should find no place in our Masonic ranks. In every case a brother should be asked beforehand whether it would be agreeable to him to be nominated as a member, and in no instance should a man have the "honour conferred upon him" without his explicit consent. Otherwise the apparently increasing strength of Lodges of Instruction is merely a myth, for no man can belong to, and honestly perform the duties of, a score of Lodges of Instruction, to which in a moment of perhaps well-intended friendliness he has been unanimously elected. It is a very satisfactory feature that, connected with many of our Lodges of Instruction, Associations are being formed in aid of the Masonic Charities, and the ballots which so frequently take place in them are an evidence of the real spirit of benevolence which is engendered in these "conservatories" of the Craft. We only hope they may go on and prosper. Let us recollect that Lodges of Instruction are not primarily intended for the benefit of those worthy brethren who cater for their comfort and enjoyment, but for the weal of an Institution which it is our pride and boast to have so far carried on satisfactorily, and to the admiration of the world.

THE LATE BRO. CURSETJEE NUSSERWANJEE CAMA.

WERE there no other tie to bind us, in memory at least, to the noble Parsee, Bro. C. N. Cama, the interest he took in Press matters, and the enterprise he displayed in promoting the establishment of newspapers, would be sufficient. In this, as in all other business matters, he displayed rare acumen and public spirit, and in his dealings with other subjects he proved that he possessed high moral courage, a heart overflowing with kindness, and a moral energy that demands for him a niche in the gallery of real heroes. Bro. Cama was born in 1815, and was therefore 69 years of age at his death, which took place at Breach Candy, Bombay, on the 24th ult., after a very brief illness. Originally in poor circumstances, by industry, integrity, and pluck, deceased worked his way up until he became one of the most successful merchants trading between England and China. He united in one man the enterprising and successful trader, the social reformer, and the devoted patriot. A brief summary of his career will bear out this statement. It is almost like reading a romance, so full is it of eventful deeds and noble purposes. Bro. Cama, in 1834, when 19 years of age, began his commercial career in Bombay as an apprentice; two years later he went to China, and having there finished his training, he returned to Bombay, where he commenced business as the head of a firm. Branches were opened in Calcutta and China, and prosperity followed every enterprise. Two ships were built, and with proper patriotism Bro. Cama wished to have them officered and manned by a Parsee crew. In this he failed, but he showed the deep interest he took in all matters that affected his race. He was the founder of two newspapers, and took a prominent part in the establishment of a third, all of which are successful. He was instrumental in opening a girls' school, in connection with the Students' Literary Society, and he continued to support it with his means. When Sir Erskine Perry, Chief Justice, retired from Bombay in 1851, Bro. Cama contributed largely to a "Perry Professorship of Jurisprudence," for which he received high commendation from Sir Erskine for "the services rendered by Mr. Cama to the native community," and for "his good qualities of head and heart." The deceased started the Moola Feroze Madrasa (College) in 1854, and afterwards established schools for the poor at Trombay, Kerole, and Worli. The former he helped with his money, the latter he entirely supported for ten years. Two years later Bro. Cama took the lead in opening a school for boys at Nowsaree, and rendered valuable services as chairman and treasurer of the institution. He was one of the prime movers in founding the Victoria Museum, Chairman of the Native Music Club, and principal promoter of a Parsee dramatic company, the object of the latter movement being a means of introducing social reforms among his countrymen. To the foregoing long and eminent record of educational work must be added his labours in favour of sending the sons of Parsees to England to be educated. He set an example by committing his own sons to the hands of English teachers, and as a branch of the firm was established in London, it was made the head centre for counsel and encouragement to all those who were studying in England. Before closing this branch of our subject it should be mentioned that the third paper Bro. Cama was instrumental in starting, the Stri Badh, is now entirely written by Parsee ladies.

While engaged in so much educational work, the deceased found time and opportunities for helping in numerous charitable undertakings. When an epidemic of smallpox broke out in India, resulting in the destruction of hundreds of thousands of lives, Bro. Cama "offered a handsome prize for a Gujrati essay on the use and advantages of vaccination, and circulated the pamphlet at his own expense far and wide in the remote corners of the Presidency." He was foremost in the establishment of a charitable dispensary in the Fort, an institution he never ceased to help with his means and counsel. He also assisted to found a similar institution at Bandora. Indeed, there was no movement of a benevolent character that Bro. Cama did not support. While reserving the first place in his heart for those of his own persuasion, he was ever kindly disposed to listen to the call of the oppressed and afflicted. He furthered the cause of the Hindoos, especially with regard to widow remarriage, and no one engaged in literary pursuits sought his aid in vain. He stretched out his hand to help his poorer brethren in Persia, and so highly was he regarded that he was elected a member of a "committee appointed to frame the Parsee law of succession and inheritance," and "his suggestions, which were the results of his long worldly experience and strong common sense, were taken in a kindly spirit by the committee." A citizen so active and large-hearted could not be a bad son, so no surprise need be felt at the fact that, upon the death of his father, Bro. Cama and another member of his family contributed "Rs.1,25,000 towards the nucleus of a charity fund to commemorate his memory." Having sketched the career of the deceased thus far, we may add that very early in his career he displayed business qualifications of a high order. He was brought prominently into notice by his skilful administration of an estate which was said to be insolvent. Subsequently he had a hand in the formation of numerous public companies, and yet he never forgot his duties as a citizen nor the claims of humanity. Like many others, he suffered greatly in the crisis of 1864, from which he never wholly recovered, but it speaks well for the man that the change in worldly circumstances never caused his heart to falter in the promotion and execution of deeds of charity. The Times of India, to which paper we are indebted for the particulars here set forth, says of Bro. Cama that "he made the best of his rather unenviable position, and it is said that even in his latter days the needy and the indigent did not seek his aid in vain." Mr. Dosabhoy Framjee, in his history of the Parsees, writing about the Cama family, says: "It has been well distinguished for its commercial enterprise, honesty, and uprightness in Bombay." Deceased was a Justice of the Peace, a Fellow of the Bombay University, and an honorary member of the Students' Literary Society. From the prefix to his name, it goes without saying that he was a Freemason. He was a member of the Lodge Rising Star of Western India, the first native Lodge in Bombay, and we believe that the brethren held a funeral service in his honour at the meeting next following his death. Of course, his countrymen paid all honour to the dead. The Oothumna was duly performed by the High Priest of the Kadmee Parsees, in the presence of a large circle of relatives and friends. At the conclusion of the ceremony, says our authority,

> The high priest proposed, that with a view to commemorate the memory of the deceased, his name should be included in the list of ancient Persian kings and leading Parsees who have rendered rare and valuable services to their community, and should be recited at every public religious ceremony. This is one of the rarest honours rendered to the memory of the dead by the Parsees, and it says much for the esteem in which the deceased was held that the proposal met with universal approbation. The sons and relations of the deceased subscribed among themselves Rs. 8,000 to form the nucleus of a fund for the purpose of supporting Parsee students in indigent circumstances.

So ended life's journey, so full of incident and fraught with good. In prosperity and adversity Bro. Cama never neglected the best instincts of the human heart; nought depressed him except the misfortune he could not relieve, and nothing made him so happy as rendering help where it was needed, regardless of creed or country. No doubt charity was an inborn quality of our deceased brother's heart, but its exercise was stimulated and strengthened by the Masonic teaching he could not fail to learn. What an example does Bro. Cama's life present to all, to the young especially; and what hope does it not inspire in the breasts of all true Masons, who can point to such a noble disciple of the Craft. Bro. Cama's career was the spirit of Freemasonry put into action; the embodiment of its loftiest teaching, and the lesson we should learn is that what was possible in his case is also possible in that of others. The deceased was a bright and shining light, the lustre of which has been somewhat dimmed by the death of the mortal body. When the mists caused by sorrow shall have cleared away; when memory recalls the noble deeds done in the flesh, then will the light shine more brilliant that ever, then will it become the beacon for all who desire to emulate their grand prototype. At this time and under present circumstances it seems almost impertinent to mix up the living with the dead, but we cannot resist the opportunity of offering condolence to one member of the deceased's family now amongst us. Our own Bro. Cama has made a name in the Fraternity, and if he but possesses one tithe of his lamented uncle's virtues, he is worthy of all the honour that the Craft can bestow upon him. He comes of a good stock, as we have seen, and if virtue as well as evil be hereditary, then the claims of Bro. Cama stand high indeed. His loss just now must be a deep grief, but in the testimony of worth comes the consolation; and in the bright career of his uncle he will find an example which, if followed, cannot fail to lead him to honour and renown.

A Convocation of the North London Chapter of Improvement was held on Thursday evening, at the Alwyne Castle Tavern, Canonbury, at eight o'clock. These meetings invariably command a good attendance; indeed, this has been so since the foundation of the Chapter of Improvement.

As will be seen by Advertisement appearing in another column, the proprietors of the Holborn Restaurant will make special provision for the visit of our Provincial brethren to United Grand Lodge on Wednesday next. The Holborn Restaurant has been justly described "as one of the sights of London," and we do not think our visitors—many of whom, perhaps, will be in the metropolis for the first time—could do better than make arrangements to dine at this deservedly popular establishment.

The unfortunate Press regulations which, as the official authority of the House of Commons, the Speaker felt himself compelled to issue, doubtless at the instance of the Home Secretary, Sir Wm. Harcourt, and others, having now become to a certain extent a dead letter, we cannot but congratulate the Gallery Committee (elected annually by the journalists in the Houses of Parliament) upon the very firm stand which they made in defence of the privileges of their colleagues. There were present at the meeting of the Committee, when the determination was arrived at to see the Speaker, amongst others, Bros. Henry Massey, T. Minstrell, Herbert Wright, and J. Heckther. It may be mentioned that the efforts to deprive the journalists of No. 18 Committe room for transcribing purposes is only one of a series of attempts which have been made in the same direction. There seems to be a little jealousy on the part of some of the officials of the House at the privilege which is given to the Press by sanctioning the use of this room.

We regret to announce the death, which occurred at Ealing, on Wednesday, 18th inst., of Captain A. P. Hobson, the manager of the Royal Aquarium. He had been suffering from blood poisoning, but his condition had not been considered serious.

THE BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION FESTIVAL.

THE Anniversary Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons was held on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Tavern, London, under the presidency of Bro. Sir Michael E. Hicks Beach, M.P., Prov. Grand Master of Gloucestershire. There was a very strong attendance both of London and Provincial brethren, the large Hall of the Tavern being filled to its fullest extent. The banquet was well served, and, considering the large number of guests, reflected the greatest credit on the caterers, Messrs Spiers and Pond. At its conclusion grace was sung.

Sir Michael Hicks Beach proposed the health of Her Majesty the Queen. This was the first toast at every festive gathering of Englishmen, but would be doubly welcomed at a meeting of the Craft, the proud boast of whose members was that loyalty was one of the first attributes of a true Mason. It would be trebly welcomed when it was remembered that the occasion of their meeting was one of Charity; for when any one remembered the history of Her Majesty's reign they must see in her not merely a great constitutional monarch, but also the true and loving heart of a good woman. Whether it be to high or to low, to rich or to poor, the time of distress always brought Her Majesty's kindly sympathy, and thus it was she reigned in the hearts of her people by a prouder title than that of long descent.

The next toast was that of the Prince and Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family. The Chairman felt those present would drink the health of the Prince of Wales, not only with the loyalty due to the member of the Royal Family who was heir to the throne, but also with that peculiar loyalty which as Masons they felt towards their Grand Master. His ability and geniality, he ventured to say had made him popular with every member of the Order. It was a remarkable testimony to the activity with which his Royal Highness performed his public duties, that it hardly ever happened among the numerous occasions when his health was drank at public meetings, that it was not possible to find some new duties he had undertaken, or some fresh idea that had occurred to him for the benefit of the country. It was but a few days back that the press had announced the issuing of treasonable and insulting manifestoes on the other side of the Atlantic, by traitors against the life or liberty of his Royal Highness, who sheltered themselves under the protection of a foreign country, and shortly after came the announcement that the Prince and Princess of Wales intended to pay an early visit to Ireland. This answer of His Royal Highness to the threats of his foes was worthy of him and of our future king—he accepts the challenge—he will visit Ireland. The speaker ventured to think that from the warm-hearted and generous, though often mistaken people of Ireland, he would receive that cordial welcome which his courage and his genial character deserved, and that the Princess of Wales would exercise over this susceptible race that charm with which she had enslaved us from the first moment she set foot on our shores.

The third toast was that of the Pro Grand Master Lord Carnarvon. The Chairman was quite sure he need say nothing to commend the toast to the sympathy of the brethren. They had often witnessed the ability with which the Earl of Carnarvon presided in the absence of the Grand Master in Grand Lodge, and knew full well the eloquence with which it was possible for Lord Carnarvon to expound matters that might be for the welfare of the Craft, or demolish foolish prejudices arising from ignorance of what Masonry really was. The brethren had appreciated his labours for the Craft in the past, and hoped they might long be continued in the future.

In proposing the health of the Deputy G.M. Lord Lathom, and the Present and Past Grand Officers, the Chairman felt he need say little of Lord Lathom. His interest in Masonry and his popularity among the brethren was known to all. He also felt sure there was no necessity to bespeak from those around him a hearty welcome for the Officers of the Grand Lodge of England. He spoke of the Grand Officers as he had found them. Whenever any Masonic work had to be done in the Province with which it was his good fortune to be connected—requiring special care in its performance—he had always found the Officers of Grand Lodge most prompt and anxious to help. Their assistance was also given most zealously in the cause of Charity. Only last year, on the similar occasion to that they were then celebrating, one of their number (Sir John Monckton), at a moment's notice took the place of a brother who was absent in consequence of ill health, and nobly pleaded the cause of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. In coupling the name of Bro. Monckton with the toast the speaker felt he was sure of a hearty welcome, not merely because of that brother's past services to Grand Lodge and to Masonry at large, but also because of what he achieved last year on behalf of the Benevolent Institution.

Sir John B. Monckton responded. He did so with great gratitude, both to the Chairman for proposing the toast, and to the brethren for the way in which they had received it. The toast was one which any brother might be proud to respond to, associated as it was with the name of the Earl of Lathom, than whom a better Mason, a better man, or a better friend to the Craft, never existed. The Chairman had very kindly referred to the Festival of last year, and had spoken of its result as being unprecedented. He (Sir J. B. Monckton) was not ungenerous when he hoped that honour might not be attached to it much longer. Without betraying any secret, he might predict that the Festival presided over by Sir M. Hicks Beach would prove to be the most successful of all the Festivals held on behalf of the Benevolent Institution.

The toast of the evening—Success to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons—was next proposed. The President did not doubt that nearly every one present knew as much of the benefits of the Institution as he could convey to them; still it was his duty as Chairman to remember that there might be a brother among them who ought to know more than he did know. Therefore he should tell them, as shortly as he could, what the Institution did, how it did it, and why it was worthy of their suppprt. Since the Institution was started it had aided with its annuities more than one thousand brethren and widows of brethren. At the present time 170 old Masons and 203 widows were in receipt of sums of £40 and £32 a year respectively and this was done at a cost of something like £15,000 a year. How was this sum provided? He believed that not more than £3,600 per annum arose from any certain source of income; thus there was something like £11,500 dependent annually upon the charitable gifts of the English Craft, to meet merely the present liabilities of the Institution, and it would be impossible, he ventured to say, for such an association as English Freemasonry to disappoint the old people of the pension which they legitimately reckoned on receiving. But even more was required year by year, as more and more candidates came forward for the benefits of the Institution. At the present moment there were 119 approved candidates awaiting election. The Committee were proposing to elect nineteen more than the vacancies would warrant, but even then they could only elect, with a reasonable regard for safety, 35 out of the 119; he therefore felt the brethren had a reason for the utmost liberality they could exercise that night. The Institution was only some forty-three years of age—a part of it even less—and at its initiation it had to withstand severe opposition. There were many at its formation who felt that it would encroach on the then existing Institutions, who doubted whether the Craft could maintain another Charity, and who felt that the Board of Benevolence sufficiently supplied the needs of decayed brethren. All these doubts had to be met, and he ventured to say that the Institution at its birth must have been very strong and vigorous or it would have perished before it came to perfection. But the difficulties and doubts were surmounted, and the way in which they had been surmounted was perhaps the most extraordinary event in the charitable records of this charitable country. Thirty years ago there was not one-tenth of the interest taken in this Institution that there was at the present time, neither was there one-tenth the number of Stewards or one-tenth the amount contributed. The Charity had grown with marvellous rapidity, and he looked to the brethren that night to provide for a further extension of the work of the Institution. The candidates were deserving objects—not men who had entered Masonry in order to profit by it, but brethren who had been a credit to the Order; while the widows had been the dear partners in life of such brethren. Every case which appeared on the list of candidates was that of a person who had been well to do in past life, often wealthy, and utterly unfit to cope with the workhouse, which their refinement and education would make a veritable purgatory of. By their charity the brethren delivered them from what in many cases would be worse than death itself, and in delivering them the brethren maintained the character of the Craft. Some might think that the claims of helpless children appealed more strongly to their sympathies than those of the Old People. He wished that any one who did think so would do as he had done last Saturday—pay a visit to the Institution at Croydon—he would then see the quiet, peaceable way in which the liberality of the Craft enabled these old people to live, and would be touched by the gratitude which these old people testify to the bounty of the Craft, and by the anxiety which they show that this Festival should be a success, not so much for their own sakes, but that others might share similar benefits to those they enjoy. He earnestly believed that the toast he recommended was success to that which was a true Charity. All the contributions of the brethren went directly to its benefit. In conclusion, he felt he had only to refer the brethren to the day when they were each admitted as candidates to Freemasonry, poor and penniless, and to the admiration which they then expressed for the Virtue Charity, which is not only one of the principal articles of the Masonic creed, but also the distinguishing virtue in the heart of every true Mason. He hoped that day would be a memorable one, not only to those who had subscribed, but to the old folks on whose behalf he, however feebly, had tried to plead.

Bro. Frank Richardson, as Vice President of the Institution, responded. He thanked the Chairman for the way in which he had proposed Success to the Institution, and on behalf of the Institution for the able manner in which he had presided that day. He also thanked the Stewards for the way in which they had seconded their Chairman's efforts. Bro. Terry then announced the totals of the several lists, of which we append details, giving as the sum of the contributions the grand total of £17,636 6s 8d; the Provinces, represented by 186 Stewards, sending up £7,825 10s 8d; and London, represented by 164 Stewards, £9,810 16s. This was the highest sum ever announced in the history of the Institution, being £3,200 in advance of last year's total, which was at the time the largest.

Bro. Col. Lyne proposed the health of Bro. Sir Michael Hicks Beach, paying a high compliment to that brother for the part he had taken in securing the success which had been achieved. Bro. Beach tendered his hearty thanks for the kindness with which he had been received and also for the kind way in which the toast had been welcomed. It had been to him a matter of the deepest satisfaction and thankfulness that the Festival should have had so triumphant a result as had been announced that night. If he had had the smallest share in bringing about that result, he was more than rewarded for anything he had done. He should say no more about himself but might be pardoned for a little egotism, and he wanted to say something of the Province over which he ruled and of which he was very proud. There were but some 600 Masons in Gloucestershire, and they were not too well off. Every one of its Lodges and Chapters had sent a Steward to the Festival, some of them several. Out of every ten members in his district one was a Steward, and between them they had raised a sum of £1200. This result was principally due to the exertions of Bro. Vassar-Smith, but was also the outcome of the true Masonic spirit of the brethren of his Province. He did not mention these facts for the sake of making invidious comparisons, but would say to the brethren of other Provinces "Go and do likewise." What Gloucestershire had done could be done by every Province in England, and he felt sure those present would join him in thanking the brethren of Gloucestershire for what they had accomplished. He was proud to represent such a Province, and was thankful to have had the opportunity of presiding over the Festival. He did not think he should ever forget the triumphant result, or the share which his own people had had in it.

Bro. Rev. C. J. Martyn proposed success to the other Institutions, and Bro. Hedges responded. Col. Shadwell H. Clerke gave the Stewards, and the toast having been replied to, that of the Ladies was given, and the brethren separated. A concert followed in the Grand Lodge Temple, which was crowded by ladies and brethren.

THE THEATRES.

LYCEUM.

A FRIVOLOUS modern audience might well desire that the "Hunchback" and his family could retire, with the "Stranger" and the "Gentle Faulkland," to some home for aged Christians, where they could blank verse each other and relieve the unconverted of their "Morality."

But Master Walter has an exasperatingly strong constitution, and Miss Mary Anderson summoned the shade of Sheridan Knowles, with his cabinet of curiosities, "some of them living and some of them stuffed," to occupy the stage of the Lyceum. A full house gathered to do honour to the event. The first scene passed quietly, though both Mr. Arthur Stirling and Mr. Terriss had a hearty welcome. In the second scene the curtain rises on a lovely garden, rich with flowers, a closely-cropped lawn and wonderful mossy gnarled old trees. In the scene with Helen (Miss Bella Pateman) Miss Mary Anderson was at her best; the girlish innocence, tenderness and joyousness of Julia could rarely have been more gracefully rendered. That Miss Anderson looked lovely in her Henrietta Maria gowns we need not say. Her smiles and laughter, touched with soft refinement, gave a charm and interest to the opening of the play which even the gifted Adelaide Neilson failed to attain. The little bit of love making with Clifford was pretty enough, though Mr. Terriss seemed ill at ease, and rather suggested an understudy of Modus cropping through the jeune premier. As the action proceeds, and the heroine mounts the crescendo of grief and despair, Miss Anderson failed to give vitality to the part; she now and again seemed to feel a momentary inspiration of real emotion, but before she could arouse the sympathies of the audience it was gone. A beautiful girl in a striking attitude stood on the stage, but why she so appeared stirred the heart of no one present. The most unreal and stilted sentiment if vivified by the passionate soul of a great actress will thrill the pulses and command the tears of an audience; but the audience on Tuesday night sat watching for the next pose, and gave up hoping for anything more. That Miss Anderson is ill-advised to attempt to galvanize this fossilized play into life, she herself will doubtless feel. Let her abandon high pressure sentimental heroines, and let us applaud her in some bright and wholesome comedy, her winsomeness and grace will assuredly command delighted appreciation where now a melancholy crowd is tempted to yawn, and sometimes irreverently to titter. We are sorry for Mr. Terriss, that fate condemns him for a "certain term to walk the night" with scarcely less depressing results than those attending Hamlet Père's proceedings. Sir Thomas is an insufferable prig, but could not Mr. Terriss infuse a little "Sherry" into him to correct the too much "Knowles?" Mr. Arthur Stirling played studiously as Master Walter, but why does he adopt those peculiar twists of the head, turns of the eye, and twitches of the eye-brow we associate with the "Master" of the Lyceum? Miss Pateman struggled hard to lift the weight that seemed to settle on the spirits of the audience, and in the favourite scenes with Modus gained the first really hearty applause of the night. She played as so careful and excellent an artist must play, with delicacy and finish; but her gaiety wanted the ring of spontaneousness, and her efforts were too evidently prepared. Helen is a part little suited to Miss Bella Pateman's gifts, though these are unquestionable. We cannot but think the play would greatly gain if the two ladies exchanged parts, Miss Anderson would thus have better opportunity of showing her comedy powers. Mr. Standing is dull and clumsy as Modus—who was at least a scholar and a gentleman; he need not model his interpretation on the Pickwick fat boy. Mr. Irish as Fathom was a welcome relief among these doleful creatures. The curtain fell amid but tepid expressions of approval. One of Maddison Morton's old farces, "Your life's in danger," was the opening piece of the evening. It was listened to with tolerable patience, but at the tag, "Now if our friends in front approve," there came a vigorous shower of hoots and hisses.

MOHAWK MINSTRELS.

THE grandmotherly care of the Middlesex magistrates in decreeing the clôture on worldly play-acting and such carnal follies fell lightly on the good people of Islington last Ash Wednesday. Mr. Francis, of the Mohawk Minstrels, organized afternoon and evening concerts, with selections from Verdi, Costa, Rossini, Mendelssohn, and other classics. His admirably-drilled band rendered the music with great delicacy and finish. M. Guilmartin, in a euphonium solo, and M. Kottaun, with a cornet, were especially distinguished. Mr. Miles proved himself both a powerful and refined harpist. Among many good vocalists we would especially mention the baratone, Mr. Gordon, who not only possesses an exceptionally fine organ, but sings with the finish and mastery of a true artist.

INSTALLATION MEETINGS, &c.

WESTBOURNE LODGE, No. 733.

THE installation meeting was held on the 19th inst., at Lord's Hotel, St. John's Wood. Present:—Bros. Walker W.M., M. C. Joy S.W., Wickens J.W., J. Welford P.M. Treas., T. W. Allen P.M. Sec., Biorn S.D.; P.M.'s Kershaw, C. A. Cottebrune P.G.P., Hitchcock, Ascott, Goodwin, Hallett, Collins, and a numerous assemblage of other members and Visitors, amongst whom we may mention Bros. Dr. Cuson P.M. 1706 P.P.G.O., Studd, Bailey 1425, Thomas 753, Heal 1642, Ralph 1614, Hewett 1614, Dorsett 172, Groves 172, Conway 1892, Dillon 1667, Hunt W.M. 1425, Stephens 1425, Coleman 1425, Mills 1716, Cuthbertson 1507, Side P.M. 1507, Massey P.M. 1297, Phillips P.M. 205, Hedges P.M. 1706, Lichtenfeld 205, Ansell 1502, Groves 172, Barwell 1425, A. G. Stead 1627, Shaw 1406, Blank 704, Taylor 1642, Hoddenott 901, Debin 1732, Snare P.M. 225, Leah 25, Flood 1642, Levy P.M. 188. After preliminaries the minutes of the former regular and emergency meetings were read. The Auditors' report was read and adopted; it showed the Lodge was in a flourishing condition, and that a good balance remained in the hands of the Treasurer. A Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. Joy S.W. and W.M. elect was presented and duly installed in the chair in the presence of 18 W.M.'s and P.M.'s, Bro. Walker performing the ceremony in a very perfect manner; he was deservedly complimented by the brethren and visitors. On the readmission of the brethren, the customary salutations were given, and the following were appointed and invested as Officers:—Walker I.P.M., Wickens S.W., Humfress J.W., Welford P.M. Treas., Allen P.M. Secretary, Bidon S.D., Drew J.D., Burton I.G., Curtis and Cottebrune P.G.P. D.C.'s, Bell Assistant D.C., Eaton Organist, Curtis W.S., Belsham Assistant W.S., Thomas Tyler. The selection made by the Master seemed to be generally acceptable to the Lodge. Hearty good wishes were tendered, and Lodge was closed. The brethren, to the number of ninety, sat down in the large and commodious room to a very sumptuous and récherché banquet and dessert, provided by Bro. Rieder. Grace having been sung, the W.M., in excellent terms, proposed the Loyal and Masonic toasts, that of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales Most Worshipful Grand Master being received with loud and enthusiastic cheering. In speaking to the toast of the Grand Officers, the W.M. said they had a Grand Officer present, one whom they were proud to have with them, that was their respected Bro. Cottebrune P.G.P. In reply, Bro. Cottebrune said it was not his intention to make a long speech; for twenty-seven years he had had to return thanks for the P.M.'s, and for many years for the Grand Officers. He was proud to be associated with so distinguished a body. He was one of the founders of this Lodge. Bro. Walker I.P.M. had now to propose the toast of the W.M. It was some years since the W.M. had been initiated; he had passed through every office, and had done this with great efficiency; he wished Bro. Joy a most enjoyable and successful year of office. Brother Joy, in reply, thanked Brother Walker for the kind manner he had spoken of him, and the brethren for their response to the toast. He was proud to be installed as Master of this Lodge; he trusted during his year of office that he should give them satisfaction. He felt especial pleasure in following so excellent a Master as the one who had preceded him. He would strive to follow in his footsteps and, with the assistance of the brethren, hoped to conduct the business to their satisfaction. In speaking of the Immediate Past Master, Bro. Walker, the W.M. said the members had good reason to appreciate his working; he is held in estimation by all in the Lodge. It was with great pleasure he had now to present him with a Past Master's jewel, and a collar; he hoped they might be present together on many future occasions, and that Bro. Walker would always feel a pride in wearing it. In response, Bro. Walker said in his new position he would do all in his power to render service to the Lodge. He had tried to do his best to perform the ceremony of installation, and had had some hard work to do in the various degrees. He had also presided at the emergency meeting, but whatever he had done had been a labour of love. He had installed his successor, and he hoped he had done so to the satisfaction of the brethren. With respect to the jewel presented him, he would look on it with pride; it would ever remind him of his connection with the Lodge. Bros. Casson, Relph, Snare, Ansell, Flood and Phillips responded for the Visitors, and paid just compliments to the Immediate Past Master for his working. The hospitality of the Lodge was proverbial, and on this occasion it had been well carried out, while to the W.M. infinite credit was due for the kind and genial manner he had presided. Bros. Snare and Ansell, who were members of West Lancashire Lodges, fully endorsed the remarks of those who had preceded them. Later on a just compliment was paid to the Past Masters for the manner they had looked after the interests of the Lodge. Bro. Walker, in response, said what he had done in the past he would strive to do in the future. Bro. Cottebrune followed; he was the father of the Lodge, and was proud of his children. Other of the Past Masters followed, and all expressed their desire to render service for the good of the Lodge. The toast of the Wardens, Treasurer, Secretary and Officers was then given, and the Tyler's toast concluded a very agreeable and harmonious evening. A very excellent selection of music was provided by the W.M., under the direction of Bro. Hodges P.M. 1706. When we say the artists included Bros. Lawler, Hanson and Linley, we need scarcely add the brethren were delighted. A special feature was the charming vocalisation of Miss Meredith Elliott, who rendered in exquisite style the "Lost Chord," for which she received an enthusiastic encore, and gave the "Better Land." Bros. Belsham and Curtis looked after the comforts of the brethren and visitors. During the evening Bro. Bell sung a very excellent impromptu song.

CORINTHIAN LODGE, No. 1208.

A LARGE number of the members of this Lodge assembled at the Royal Hotel, Dover, on Monday, the 16th inst., to witness the installation of Bro. Perkins as W.M. for the ensuing year. The installation ceremony was very impressively performed by the outgoing W.M., Bro. Pearson O. Potter, who was warmly congratulated upon the ability with which he carried out the duty. The following brethren were appointed to the several offices:—Bros. Pearson O. Potter I.P.M., W. O. Kennett S.W., J. Marsh J.W., C. Walker Treasurer, E. W. A. Smeeth Secretary, J. J. Wright Senior Deacon, H. C. Wellard Junior Deacon, C. L. Adams Organist, W. W. Burkett I.G., Wilson Tyler. The first duty of the new Master was the presentation of a P.M.'s jewel to his predecessor, in recognition of the zeal, ability, and industry with which Bro. Potter had discharged the duties of the chair during his tenure of that office. The general business being concluded, Lodge was closed, and between thirty and forty of the brethren sat down to the banquet which followed. In this department the well-earned reputation gained by Bro. and Mrs. Oldfield was fully sustained. The various Loyal toasts, and those particularly pertaining to the Craft, were interspersed with a selection of glees, duets, songs, &c., unqualified approval being expressed at the admirable manner in which the musical arrangements were conducted by Bros. Igglesden and Kennett, with the valued assistance of Bro. Winterbon. The National Anthem brought to a conclusion another of those red letter days in the annals of this flourishing Lodge. Among the guests were the Provincial Grand Chaplain, Bro. the Rev. V. S. Vicars, the Provincial Grand Treasurer Bros. Thorpe, James Terry Secretary Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, the W.M.'s of Lodges 184 and 1206, Bros. Hearn S.W. 199, Torrington 199, &c.

United Mariners' Lodge of Instruction, No. 30.—

On Wednesday evening, notwithstanding a number of the regular attendants at this Lodge of Instruction were engaged at the Festival of the Benevolent Institution, there was a numerous muster at the Lugard Tavern, Peckham, when Bro. Webster ably filled the chair, and was supported by Bros. Eedle S.W., Harvey J.W., Giddens S.D., Wimble J.D., Eaton I.G., Walter Martin Preceptor, S. Lampen Treas., C. L. Tokely Sec., R. Pierpoint W.M. 177, Ledger P.M. 364, Dutton, Belchamber, Wilkinson, and many others. Lodge having been opened and the minutes confirmed, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Belchamber personating the candidate. The lecture on the Tracing Board was then ably rendered by Bro. Belchamber, after which the brethren answered questions leading to the second degree, and the second section of the lecture was worked by Bro. Wimble. Bros. Ashford and Cray, of Ivy Lodge 1441, were elected members of this Lodge of Instruction, and thanks were accorded to Bro. Webster for his able conduct in the chair. It was unanimously resolved that this Lodge of Instruction should subscribe for the current year's issue of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE, and a warm compliment was paid to that journal for the faithful reports of the proceedings of the United Mariners' Lodge of Instruction which had appeared in its pages. Bro. Pierpoint, in remarking that there were many worthy brethren fighting the battles of their Queen and country in the Soudan, expressed the hope that they might have a speedy return to their native land. The patriotic sentiments of Bro. Pierpoint were most enthusiastically responded to, and Lodge closed. On the preceding Wednesday evening Bro. W. Dutton acted efficiently as W.M., with Bros. Webster as S.W., Wimble J.W., Belchamber S.D., R. Pierpoint J.D., S. Lampen Treas., C. L. Tokely Sec., Wilkinson I.G., and many other brethren. Lodge was opened in due form, and after the confirmation of the minutes, was advanced to the second degree, and the ceremony of passing rehearsed, with Bro. Garland personating the candidate. The working was such as reflected the utmost credit on Bro. Dutton, who then vacated the chair in favour of Bro. Pierpoint, and Lodge having been advanced to the third degree the ceremony of raising was rehearsed, with Bro. S. Lampen as candidate. Bro. Dutton then resumed the chair as W.M. and Lodge was closed in the second and first degrees. A most cordial vote of thanks was accorded to Bro. Dutton for the able manner in which he had discharged the duties of the chair, being his first time in this Lodge of Instruction. A most instructive and agreeable evening was enjoyed.

Star Lodge of Instruction, No. 1275. — Of all the Masonic "nurseries" in the South of London, probably the Star holds the most prominent position, not only in point of attendance and the valuable instruction imparted at its weekly meetings, but also for the substantial support it gives to the Masonic Institutions. We are credibly informed that during the past two years no less a sum than £400 per annum has been sent up from the Association in connection with this Lodge in aid of the Charities; and, judging from the vigorous growth of the Lodge, which is constantly adding to its muster-roll, greater things may be expected from it in the future than in the past. For some weeks, during the regretted indisposition of its worthy Preceptor, Bro. G. Andrews, whose health we rejoice to hear is being gradually restored, the duties have been kindly and efficiently undertaken by the Secretary, Brother Walter Martin S.W. 879; and the manner in which he has discharged his important and voluntary functions has won for him the deserved and hearty approbation of the brethren. There was an extraordinarily strong muster at the weekly meeting last Saturday evening, at the Five Bells, New-cross, when upwards of fifty assembled, under the presidency of Bro. Finch as W.M. He was supported by Bros. Walter Martin Preceptor pro tem, Belchamber S.W., Gross J.W., Eaton S.D., Wilkinson J.D., Needham I.G., Tokely acting Secretary, G. Powell W.M. 1135 Organist, and others. Lodge having been opened in the three degrees, the ceremony of raising was impressively rehearsed by Bro. Finch, assisted by his Officers, the working being much admired by the numerous assemblage present. Bro. Beavis W.M. 879 was candidate. On closing, several brethren were unanimously elected members of this Lodge of Instruction, and returned thanks in suitable terms, reference being specially made to the Star as an exceptionally strong and useful Lodge, more particularly in reference to the Benevolent Institutions of the Craft. Bro. Belchamber was unanimously elected as W.M. for the first Saturday in March, and allusion was made to him as a well-known and excellent Mason, whose experience and ability were acknowledged by this and other Lodges of Instruction he attended. Bro. Belchamber acknowledged the compliment that had been paid to him, and expressed the hope that, with the assistance of their able Preceptor, he might be able to perform the ceremonies to the satisfaction of the brethren. Bro. Walter, of the Wellington Lodge of Instruction, reminded those present that the weekly meetings of that Lodge were held on Monday evenings, at the White Swan, High-street, Deptford, and cordially invited all who could make it convenient to attend. Bro. Powell was sure the brethren would be sorry to hear that Bro. Chatterton, who took so great an interest in the Star Lodge of Instruction, was very ill, suffering from rheumatic fever. He was convinced that any expression of sympathy from the brethren in his affliction would be a source of solace and comfort to him. The Preceptor thought the case would not necessarily involve a resolution, and he asked their acting Secretary to forward a letter to Bro. Chatterton, expressing the deep regret of the brethren under the circumstances, and a hope that he might be speedily restored to health. Bro. Tokely sincerely acquiesced in the request suggested to him. Bro. Martin then said he was sure the brethren would rejoice to hear that Bro. Andrews, the esteemed Preceptor of this Lodge of Instruction, whose valuable services had been temporarily lost to them in consequence of indisposition, was rapidly improving in health, and they sincerely hoped he might soon be with them again in his accustomed place. He then proposed that Bro. Tokely, who had been acting as Secretary during the time that he (Bro. Martin) had temporarily filled the position of Preceptor, in the stead of Bro. Andrews, should be elected an honorary member of this Lodge of Instruction. Bro. Tokely had always been ready to assist in any capacity in which his services were requested, and he had certainly rendered valuable aid to the Star by filling his (the speaker's) place during the illness of their Preceptor. The resolution having been carried unanimously, Bro. Tokely, in acknowledging the compliment paid to him, said he esteemed it a very great honour, knowing what a splendid Lodge of Instruction this was. He always tried to do his best, and as long as he was Acting Secretary, which he hoped would not be long, in the improved condition of Bro. Andrews's health, he should do all he possibly could to promote the prosperity and influence of the Lodge. Bro. Martin then intimated that the following Saturday (this evening) would be an "off night," when Bro. Beavis W.M. of the Southwark Lodge 879 would rehearse the installation ceremony. He felt sure the brethren would come and support Bro. Beavis in large numbers. By so doing they would give him, perhaps, better heart in his work, and derive a considerable amount of mutual pleasure and edification. Bro. Beavis thought when he told the brethren that on the occasion referred to he should have the honour of installing their excellent Preceptor Bro. Walter Martin into the chair it would be an additional incentive to them to attend in full force. Hearty good wishes having been expressed, Lodge was closed in due form, Bro. Martin delivering the closing address in an eloquent and impressive manner. The musical portions of the ceremony were rendered with great heartiness, the singing of the anthems and responses being ably led by Bro. Geo. Powell, who presided at the organ. Excellent arrangements were made by Bro. Bear, the proprietor of the Five Bells, for the comfort and convenience of the brethren, and a most harmonious and enjoyable evening was passed.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—During every break of wintry weather exertions should be made by the afflicted to recover health before unremitting cold and trying storms set in. Throat ailments, coughs, wheezing, asthmatical affections, shortness of breath, morning nausea, and accumulation of phlegm can readily be removed by rubbing this fine derivative Ointment twice a day upon the chest and neck. Holloway's treatment is strongly recommended with the view of giving immediate ease, preventing prospective danger, and effecting permanent relief. These all-important ends his Ointment and Pills can accomplish, and will surely prevent insidious diseases from fastening on the constitution to display themselves afterwards in those disastrous forms that will probably embitter life till death itself is almost prayed for.

5. REPORT OF THE BOARD OF GENERAL PURPOSES.

To the United Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England.

The Board beg to report that their attention having been called to a printed circular issued by a Lodge, inviting the Members to disclose their votes on a ballot which had been taken for a candidate for initiation, and which had resulted in five black balls appearing against him, the Master, Wardens, and Secretary were summoned to attend and produce their Warrant and books, and it having been proved that the circular was drawn up by the Secretary, and issued by a resolution of the Lodge at the recommendation of the Master and Secretary, thus wholly nullifying the principle of the ballot, the Board resolved that the said Lodge be suspended for a period of three months, and the Lodge was and remains suspended accordingly.

The Board further resolved—That the Master and Secretary, being both experienced Past Masters, be censured for instigating and recommending the Lodge to issue such circular, and they were censured accordingly.

A question having arisen as to the effect of this sentence of suspension, it was resolved—That the suspension for any period of a Lodge means the suspension of its warrant, during which time the Lodge cannot meet or perform any of its Masonic functions. The suspension of any particular brother involves an entire incapacity on his part to exercise any rights or duties as a Mason, or to participate in any Masonic privileges during the period such suspension remains in force.

It will be recollected that in March 1880 a sum of £3,000 was voted by the Grand Lodge for the purpose of painting and decorating the interior of the building. Of this sum about £1,300 was expended in the autumn of that year, when the work was unavoidably suspended. The Board have to report that the painting and decorating of the whole of the rooms, together with the grand staircase and corridors, have now been completed by their order, under the personal superintendence of the Grand Superintendent of Works, at a cost within the sum voted for that purpose.

(Signed) THOMAS FENN,
President.

FREEMASONS' HALL, LONDON, W.C.
17th February 1885.

To the report is subjoined a statement of the Grand Lodge Accounts, at the last meeting of the Finance Committee, held on Friday, the 13th day of February instant, shewing a Balance in the Bank of England, Western Branch, of £2,697 14s 11d; and in the hands of the Grand Secretary for Petty Cash £100, and for Servants' Wages £100; and Balance of Annual Allowance for Library £13 17s 6d.

6. REPORT OF SPECIAL BUILDING COMMITTEE.

To the United Grand Lodge of Antient Free and Accepted Masons of England.

The Building Committee, in continuation of their report to Grand Lodge of the 4th of December last, now beg to submit as follows:—

In that report reference was made to certain works, not of mere restoration, but of necessary and substantial improvements, including the re-opening of the Old Gallery, the various new exits in case of fire, the ventilation, the removal of the dangerous flues, the extra expense on pictures, &c., &c., none of which were of course covered by the monies received from the insurances, and the Committee promised to report to Grand Lodge on the 4th of March the amount required to meet the extra expenditure thus incurred.

The works being now almost completed, the Committee have been able to balance the various accounts, and they have thus ascertained that a sum of £800 beyond the monies received from the Insurance Offices will be sufficient to defray the entire cost of the restoration, whereby the Order will be once more placed in possession of their Ancient Hall, with increased accommodation, with its portraits restored, with its decorations renewed, and with many modern improvements.

The Committee therefore recommend to Grand Lodge that a vote of £800 be made for the above purpose.

(Signed) JOHN B. MONCKTON,
Chairman.

FREEMASONS' HALL, LONDON, W.C.
16th February 1885.

7. Report of Brother Stanley G. Harding, Auditor of Grand Lodge Accounts, of Receipts and Disbursements during the year 1884.

8. APPEALS:—

(1) By Brother Henry Godbier, P.M. of the Victoria in Burmah Lodge, No. 832, Rangoon, against a decision of the District Grand Master of British Burmah ruling that a complaint made by Brother Godbier against the W. Master relative to confirmation of minutes was frivolous and vexatious.

(2) By the same Brother Henry Godbier, P.M. of the Victoria in Burmah Lodge, No. 832, Rangoon, against a decision of the Deputy District Grand Master in charge of the District of British Burmah declining to give a separate ruling on a second complaint made by Brother Godbier against the W. Master and the Lodge, on the ground that the ruling of the District Grand Master had covered both cases.

(3) By Brother Rustomji Cowasji Jaboolee, P.M. of the Cyrus Lodge, No. 1359, Bombay, against a censure passed on him by the District Master of Bombay for printing and circulating documents connected with a complaint which he was submitting to his Lodge.

(4) By Brother Samuel George Davison, S.W. of the Lodge "Emulation," No. 2071, Sydney, against the ruling of the District Grand Master of New South Wales, forbidding the election of a second W. Master, in consequence of the Warrant not having arrived from England, and the Lodge working under Dispensation.

N.B.—The papers relating to these appeals will be in the Grand Secretary's office till the meeting of Grand Lodge, and open for the inspection of the Brethren during office hours.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF LEICESTER AND RUTLAND.

CONSECRATION OF THE LODGE OF THE GOLDEN FLEECE, No. 2081.

A SPECIAL meeting of this Provincial Grand Lodge was held at Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Monday, 16th February, for the purpose of consecrating the Lodge of the Golden Fleece, when there was a numerous attendance of local and visiting brethren. In the unavoidable absence of the R.W. Prov. Grand Master the Earl Ferrers, the chair was taken by the Deputy Prov. Grand Master, Bro. Samuel S. Partridge, who proceeded to open the Provincial Grand Lodge, assisted by Bros. Wm. Kelly P.P.G.M., George Toller jun. P.G.S.B. England acting as D.P.G.M., Dr. G. T. Willan Prov. Musson and R. Michie Prov. Grand Deacons, J. Metcalfe Prov. Grand Superintendent of Works, J. Young Prov. Grand Director of Ceremonies, A. Mc Ivor Tindall, Prov. G.S.B., B. A. Smith Prov. Grand Standard Bearer, T. B. Laxton Prov. Grand Organist, George Matt Prov. G.P., Lionel P. Chamberlain Prov. G.A.P., H. Pickard Brown and F. B. Wilmer Prov. G. Stewards. The following Past Provincial Grand Officers were likewise present, viz.:—Bros. C. E. Stretton, Miles J. Walker, Rev. J. Bird M.A., S. Clever, J. O. Law, E. Taylor, E. H. Butler, and J. Hassall, together with a large number of Past Masters, Wardens, and Brethren of the several Lodges in the Province. Amongst the Visitors may specially be mentioned the R.W. Bro. Colonel Le Gendre Starkie P.G.W. England Provincial Grand Master West Lancashire. Letters of apology for inability to attend were received from Bros. Captain N. G. Philips P.G.D., J. F. H. Woodward P.G. Secretary Middlesex, S. J. W. Sanders P.P.G.C. Norths and Hunts, Captain J. G. F. Richardson P.P.G.S.B., James Terry Secretary Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, F. Hedges Secretary R.M.I.G., and several others. The Provincial Grand Secretary read the petition for and Warrant of the new Lodge, and at the request of the Prov. Grand Master the ceremony of solemnly constituting and dedicating the Lodge of the Golden Fleece was admirably and impressively performed by the newly appointed Deputy Prov. Grand Master, Bro. S. S. Partridge. A most excellent oration was delivered by Bro. the Rev. Walter R. Hurd (Chaplain 1391), Vicar of Oadby, near Leicester. The musical portion of the ceremony was very ably rendered by a Masonic choir, under the leadership of the Prov. Grand Organist; Bro. W. H. Barrow, F.C.O., Organist 523 presiding at the instrument. On the consecration being concluded, Bro. Edward Watson P.P.G.J.D. I.P.M. 1391, was installed by Bro. Partridge as first Worshipful Master, and he was duly proclaimed and saluted. Bro. Alfred Chamberlain P.P.G.O. P.M. 1391 was elected as Treasurer, and, together with the following brethren, invested as Officers of the new Lodge for the ensuing year, viz.:—Bros. E. P. Steeds S.W., W. H. Lead J.W., John B. Waring Secretary, Rev. W. R. Hurd Chaplain, John L. West S.D., George Jessop J.D., Christopher C. Woodcock P.P.G.R. Director of Cers., and J. G. Parr and W. H. Swingler Stewards. Bye-laws were temporarily adopted for governing the Lodge, three candidates were proposed for initiation, and several joining members. The W.M. in submitting votes of thanks to the Consecrating and Installing Officers, the acting Chaplain, and other brethren who had kindly attended to inaugurate the Lodge of the Golden Fleece proposed the following as honorary members:—Bros. W. Kelly P.P.G.M., F.R.H.S., the "Father of Freemasonry" in this Province, and S. S. Partridge Prov. D.G.M. Thanks were also accorded to the Junior Warden for his generous gift of a handsomely bound and complete set of Lodge books. On the Lodge being closed and the Provincial Grand Lodge resumed, Bro. Partridge called attention to the forthcoming election of Grand Treasurer, and moved that the Provincial Grand Lodge heartily approves the candidature of a Provincial brother for the office, and recommends Bro. John Woodall Woodall P.M., P.P.S.G.W. North and East Yorkshire, to the support of the brethren of the Province. The proposition was seconded by Bro. Toller, and carried unanimously. After the Provincial Grand Lodge had been closed, a banquet was served under the presidency of the Prov. Deputy Grand Master when the usual toasts were duly honoured, and a very enjoyable day brought successfully to a close.

The Kensington Museum Authorities have added to the Bethnal Green Museum some charming pictures from the collection of Bro. J. Storey P.M. 1107, Past Superintendent of Works Kent, &c. Fourteen of the works are from the brush of Mr. M. E. Dockree; some of them may be well known to frequenters at the Royal Academy and other West End Exhibitions. No doubt these works will be more enjoyable to visitors at the Museum as they are so well placed that every part of the manipulation and rich mellow colour of this earnest landscape painter can be seen to advantage.

THE GRAND TREASURERSHIP.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Walk up! walk up! Just going to begin! First you will see—yet, stay; this irreverence will never do! It's all through reading that remarkable circular from Yorkshire. Like every other W.M., I have been treated to a quantity of it. So has my poor Secretary, oh! such a lot. We have sympathized with one another over it—over this "Masonic life-history" as it is called. May I briefly review it? First it appears that a notice on the subject of the Grand Treasurership appeared in the Freemason, and such notice heads the circular. There is nothing in the notice to complain of; no candidate's name appears. But see what comes next. A letter from several Yorkshire brethren forming the local committee for assisting Bro. Woodall in his candidature. The committeemen have remarked (so they say) that although the notices in the Freemason are in the main correct, &c., they append a brief history of Bro. Woodall's Masonic (and civic) life. From it we learn that Bro. Woodall is a soldier and a sailor, that he was initiated into Masonry, that he served the office of Warden before he became (for once) W.M. Then he was exalted to Royal Arch, and was M.E.Z. of two Chapters, was awarded Provincial honours, was a founder of two Lodges, and is now acting W.M. of one of them; then (and why this advertisement?) he was elected an honorary member "in conjunction with" H.R.H. the late Duke of Albany. He was a subscribing member of two other Lodges, &c. Here follows a string of distinctions in degrees not recognized by the Craft. Then we hear about Bro. Woodall's schoolboy days, that he attained manhood and the highest distinctions in the gift of his fellow townsmen, and became an alderman, a mayor, and a J.P., and had his portrait painted, and is a yachtsman; and being all these strangely mixed up things he ought to be elected Grand Treasurer of the United Grand Lodge of England. At least, that is my interpretation of the whole circular. I hear that lately post cards have been liberally distributed, asking how we intend to vote.

One cannot but admire the great desire of Bro. Woodall to attain the proud position, but are the means so resorted to justified from a Masonic point of view? I think not. Bro. Woodall is unknown to me, and is doubtless a worthy brother, but if he was a party to the issue of such a circular he is evidently not of a modest turn of mind.

Never heed the civic honours, the soldiering and sailoring, nor the several "fancy" degrees. Look only at those in Craft Masonry. They are honourable ones, suitable to be quoted, but not of an extraordinary character; yet enough to entitle a brother to hope for the coveted collar. Still, in fairness, they should not be quoted to the detriment of any other brother nominated to the office. Each have an equal right, from their Masonic rank and services, to expect success, but I hold that Bro. Willing is, in one respect, the most deserving of support because, quite as anxious, he has not distributed broadcast such printed matter, and, if I am rightly informed, post cards, by way of advertisement. He does now, as he has always done, liberally support our Charities, and devotes a vast amount of his time to the interests of our Institutions, and therefore I trust when the votes are taken that Bro. Willing will find that his unobtrusive conduct has not been the means of causing his friends to forget his virtues. That, in spite of the threatened invasion of Grand Lodge on the night of the election next Wednesday by hundreds and hundreds of Yorkshire brethren, Bro. Willing may be successful; or, if beaten, that the majority may not be the large one the supporters of Bro. Woodall boast of being able to obtain. A point has been made by the latter of the unfairness of again electing a London brother to the Grand Treasurership, and they urge that it is only right that a Provincial brother should, each alternate year, have the honour, but here they argue in Bro. Willing's favour, for the present Grand Treasurer is a Provincial brother.

All I need say in conclusion is, that I hope the best man will win, and that the unostentatious conduct of Bro. Willing will not affect his chances of success amidst the very unusual clamour, tom toms, and advertisements of the advancing forces from the North.

Yours fraternally,

23rd February 1885. W.M.

ELECTIONEERING TACTICS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—The art of puffing has almost grown into a science, and when the work is seriously undertaken by a paper of respectable character, we naturally look for those little subtleties which cover an ulterior purpose, and which disguise the bait intended to be swallowed. Your evening contemporary, now and then given to Masonic meanderings, on Wednesday last scorned all the little arts of deception, and with a courage bordering on recklessness entered the lists as champion of Bro. Willing for the office of Grand Treasurer. I do not know Bro. Willing. I never saw him in my life to my knowledge. I am just as ignorant of the features and character of Bros. Woodall and Cama, yet I cannot believe that the description given by your evening contemporary of the two latter brethren is altogether fair. The sarcasm about the York gathering is no doubt intended to tell in favour of Bro.

Digitized by Google

Willing, but the spite against Bro. Woodall is painfully manifest. Would it not have been as well to have said that Bro. Woodall is Provincial Grand Mark Master of North and East Yorkshire, and that even so recently as last July he presided at the Festival in aid of the Benevolent Fund of the Mark Grand Lodge, at which was subscribed the largest amount that has ever been contributed? If Bro. Woodall is not quite as generous as the writer referred to would have us believe, he has at least the merit of drawing out the generosity of others.

I do not agree that this fight for the Grand Treasurership is a battle London versus the Provinces, and I do not think much of a brother who would provoke strife by the bare mention of such a possibility, and I certainly cannot refrain from rebuking him for his want of patriotism in doing his worst to bring about a war of classes. Whether Bro. Woodall's friends have gone too far or not in their mode of canvass, I do not know, but it appears to me something like kettle versus pot, for the writer in your contemporary to condemn in others what he himself practises. In his desire to promote the success of Bro. Willing he forgets the respect that is due to others, and uses means that, to say the least, smack of the gutter. If the course pursued by the friends of Bro. Woodall is wrong, then the action of Bro. Willing's friends is alike condemned, and as Bro. Cama seems to have imitated neither, he stands out as the champion of purity of election and of good taste. I think the best thing the brethren can do on Wednesday next is to elect Bro. Cama, and thus scotch the too obtrusive action of some of our Provincial brethren, and snub the pretensions of a select few in the metropolis whose aim it is to rule the roost. "A plague o' both your houses," say I. There is one sentence in the article to which I am alluding that puzzles me. It is as follows: "Few Masons have done more to carry out the high social teachings of the Order than Bro. Willing." "High social teachings!" What are they? Do they belong to the Lodge room or to the banqueting hall? If to the former, all we can say is, that Bro. Willing's fame as a teacher has not reached far; if to the latter, then we have too much of that kind of teaching already.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

ALEX.

"THE GREAT LIGHT."

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In your issue of Saturday last appears a very beautiful extract from the "Masonic Home Journal," setting forth what the Light of lights defines. To give the exact words will be advisable. They are recorded thus: "The Bible, that great Light and Guide defines" (True religion and undefiled.) To visit the widow and fatherless in their affliction, and keep yourselves "unspotted from the world. ." I will now deviate a little, and return to the subject after a few words. Some little time since I was in the West of England, and sought admission to a Masonic Lodge. Business had caused me to be late, and the Lodge was at work. After due examination I was admitted; prior to entering, not discovering the degree in which the work was progressing in a way in which you generally ascertain the same, I inquired, and was told that upon entering I should find what I required in the West. I there saw "The Great Light," supporting those implements which are to regulate our actions and keep us in due bounds with all mankind, &c. These three lights, directed me to the class of work going, and I acted in accordance. A pedestal set apart for the support of so great a light did indeed appear to me the correct thing; so hallowed a book as the V. of S.L. should have nothing near it of a mean order. I have seen it before occupying such an exalted position, but in how many Lodges do we see it covered up with missives, correspondence, and accounts, which have to be passed from the Secretary to the Worshipful Master to be signed in open Lodge? To "owe no man anything" is a Divine command, but I do not think it was ever intended that "the Great Light" should be used as a support or platform for the Master of the Lodge to attest the correctness of an account by appending his signature. No. That sacred volume was intended as a support for higher aspirations. To cover it up reminds me of the candle hid under a bushel. My time is fully occupied. Perhaps some learned Masonic orators or students will give their opinions.

Yours fraternally,

A BUCKINGHAMSHIRE APPRENTICE.

Miss Marie Davis, a debutante, made her appearance at Her Majesty's Theatre, on Monday night. The song "Ruth" was artistically rendered by her; it was loudly applauded and deservedly encored.

COAST DEFENCES OF NEW SOUTH WALES.—Port Jackson, Newcastle, and Botany Bay, the three most important points, from a military point of view, on the New South Wales coast, have been formidably strengthened, according to the most approved appliances of modern warfare, and there are now about 60 pieces of heavy ordnance mounted, besides others on their way to the Colony, and exclusive also of batteries of position, consisting of 40 pr. B. L. Armstrong guns and field batteries of 16 pr. M.L.R. guns. The torpedo defences are also upon a formidable scale, and every arrangement has been made for the prompt and effective disposition of these terrible weapons, so as, in case of active hostilities, to form a complete barricade across the harbours of Port Jackson and Newcastle. Other fortifications are in course of preparation.

ELECTION OF THE GRAND TREASURER OF FREEMASONS.

FROM THE EVENING NEWS.

GREAT excitement prevails amongst the members of the Masonic Brotherhood, and, if we are to believe well-authenticated rumours, next Wednesday will see the largest gathering ever assembled within the mystic portals of the Hall in Great Queen-street. To the uninitiated this untoward commotion may savour somewhat of a storm in a teacup, but we are assured by those who should know, that the matter is one of extraordinary importance. The Grand Treasurer, it seems, has little or nothing to do, and incurs a responsibility which is merely nominal, but, on the other hand, the honour belonging to the office is almost the only distinction which the Craft at large has the power to bestow by its suffrages. The battle in the present instance, if we are informed aright, is to be London versus the Provinces, and it will be fought out to the bitter end. We hear of special trains from York and Liverpool, and it is expected that the Hall will be besieged at an early hour by a compact mass of north-country Masters and Past Masters in eager if somewhat undignified haste to support by vote and voice the candidate of their choice. All this is fair enough, for the overflow meetings will accommodate the London brethren, and we presume due care will be taken that every Mason within the four corners of the building shall have an opportunity of exercising his privileges. A circular issued by the Committee of the Prov. candidate is, we believe, a very different matter. Although the vote is to be recorded by secret ballot, each brother is asked to give his assurances and state his choice by prepaid post card, and an attempt is thus made to unduly influence the opinion of each individual elector. This proceeding will, if we are rightly informed, give rise to some serious protests, and may possibly involve the nullity of the election. We shall hear a good deal more about Masonic electioneering next Wednesday, and we fear a Masonic Corrupt Practices Act must shortly find a place in Masonic jurisprudence. The candidates are three in number, but only two can be regarded as serious competitors, viz., Bro. Woodall, of Scarborough, and Bro. James Willing jun., of London. Bro. Cama, of Bombay, is practically unknown to Masonic fame, but we are told that his father has built a hospital, and that he has himself given £300 in his wife's name to the Masonic Charities. Major Woodall is a wealthy Yorkshire banker, and knows how to exercise in a very high degree the traditional hospitality of that ancient shire. The brethren of the Mark Degree who visited York last summer will not easily forget the reception which awaited them, and it was evidently an oversight when the visitors were first asked to pay a penny for admission to the banquet-room, and then, in many instances, to purchase the tickets which entitled them to share in the entertainment itself. When some Whytehead of the future comes to tell the story of modern Yorkshire Masonry, not the least remarkable or the least interesting page will be that which hands down to posterity the details of Bro. Woodall's unostentatious munificence in the matter of providing the regalia for his Grand Mark Lodge, an instance of rare Masonic disinterestedness which his detractors fail to rightly appreciate. If the Grand Treasurer had any longer to keep a tight hold on the purse-strings of Grand Lodge, there could be little doubt of the singular fitness of Major Woodall for the office. Unfortunately for the Craft, however, the fiduciary functions once attached to the post have ceased to exist. Except as far as these memorable visits to York are concerned, nobody in London knows anything of Bro. Woodall, but there is probably no Metropolitan Mason who is not more or less acquainted with James Willing. Few Masons are more popular, and few have done more to carry out the high social teachings of the Order than Bro. Willing. He has already made his mark in the Board of General Purposes, and has undoubtedly a prosperous Masonic career before him. He has not asked the London brethren to guarantee him their suffrages by return of post, nor have his friends set forth his many qualifications in a pompous prospectus. He never has, nor ever will, attempt to vie with Major Woodall in the exercise of the virtue of hospitality. We hope the brethren of London will resist as one man the threatened combination of special trains, return post-cards, specious circulars, and hall-packing, and give their utmost support to the genial brother they have known so long and so favourably, and who is fighting their battle at the present moment against such formidable odds. The London brethren should resist all attempts to introduce class considerations into Masonic elections, and they can only effectually do so by assembling next Wednesday in such force as will ensure, beyond a doubt, the election of James Willing as Grand Treasurer of England.

Freemason's Chronicle;

A WEEKLY RECORD OF MASONIC INTELLIGENCE.

Registered at the G.P.O. as a Newspaper.

Reports of United Grand Lodge are published with the Special Sanction of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Most Worshipful the Grand Master of England.

VOL. XXI.—No. 530. SATURDAY, 7th MARCH 1885. [PRICE THREEPENCE. 13s 6d per annum, post free.

UNITED GRAND LODGE.

BY far the most numerously attended meeting of Grand Lodge since the memorable gathering at the Albert Hall, on the occasion of the installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as Grand Master, took place on Wednesday, the cause of the special attendance being the interest taken in the election of Grand Treasurer for the ensuing year. Considerably over twelve hundred brethren were present,—if we may judge from the number of votes recorded when the ballot for Treasurer was taken, the actual total was 1252, but we are aware that some of those who attended did not record their opinion, while generally we feel that the arrangements for the ballot will prevent anything like a definite idea being formed upon such a basis as the figures referred to. Of course we need hardly say that the attendance was far in advance of what could be accommodated in the Masonic Temple. Indeed, the whole of the available space in Freemasons' Hall was called into requisition, and even then the several rooms were inconveniently crowded. Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M. P., Provincial Grand Master Hants and Isle of Wight, presided in Grand Lodge, and was supported by a large number of Grand Officers and Past Grand Officers, among them being Lord Cremorne S.G.W., Alderman R. N. Fowler, M.P., J.G.W., H. B. Marshall Grand Treasurer, F. A. Philbrick, Q.C., Grand Registrar, Thomas Fenn President of Board of General Purposes, Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke Grand Secretary, E. E. Wendt Grand Secretary for German Correspondence, Baron De Ferrieres, M.P., and F. Davison Senior Grand Deacons, J. S. Eastes and E. Letchworth Junior Grand Deacons, Horace Jones Grand Superintendent of Works, Sir Albert W. Woods (Garter) P.G.W. Grand Director of Ceremonies, A. Richards Deputy Grand Director of Ceremonies, Griffith Smith Assistant Grand Director of Ceremonies, Major E. Locock Grand Sword Bearer, James H. Matthews and Lieuteant Colonel Samuel E. Taylor Grand Standard Bearers, E. M. Lott Grand Organist, H. G. Buss Assistant Grand Secretary, and Henry Garrod Assistant Grand Pursuivant.

The minutes of the last Communication having been confirmed, the election of Grand Master for the ensuing year was proceeded with. Bro. F. H. Goldney P.P.S.G.W. Wilts proposed the re-election of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. He had been entrusted with the privilege of proposing His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales for re-election as Grand Master, and did so with the fullest confidence that the proposal would meet with the hearty and unanimous approbation of the Craft. It was of great advantage to a society like Freemasonry—so large and influential, and composed of men of every class and of all countries—that it should be ruled over by one who in his own person united exalted rank, sound judgment, and ability, which commanded respect and admiration; one who, unswayed by political motives, and uninfluenced by religious faction, might be above the thoughts of envy, and beyond the reach of rivalry. Such a one had been the Prince of Wales. Born to reign over a great empire and a loyal people, he had yet more intimately attached himself to his future subjects by the bonds of Freemasonry. The eleven years of His Royal Highness's Grand Mastership will be for all time distinguished by the unprecedented increase in the Craft, both as regards numbers and social status, and also by the extraordinary benevolence of the brethren, who, during that period, contributed to the three principal Masonic Charities upwards of £350,000, ample proof, if any were needed, of the beneficial effects of the most excellent rule of the Prince of Wales. Bro. Dr. Paul P.M. 46 seconded the proposition. He would merely say that His Royal Highness had done great service to the Craft. Masonry had flourished under the auspices of the Prince of Wales, who had done his best to promote its interests. The acting Grand Master then put the proposition to Grand Lodge, and His Royal Highness was unanimously elected. In due course he was proclaimed Grand Master by Bro. Sir Albert Woods. The next item of business—the election of Grand Treasurer—was now proceeded with. The names of three candidates nominated at the last Communication—Bro. D. P. Cama, Bro. J. Willing, and Bro. J. Woodall—being formally submitted to the brethren, scrutineers were appointed, the balloting papers collected, and the work of counting the votes commenced. Meanwhile the report of the Board of Benevolence for the last quarter, in which were recommendations for grants of £50, £100, £50, £50, £80, £50, and £100 respectively was adopted, as was also that of the Board of General Purposes (both reports were given in our last issue). In reference to this letter, Brother Thomas Fenn, the President of the Board, in moving its adoption, said that the only matter in the report which required a resolution of Grand Lodge was that which referred to the suspension of Lodges and the effect of that suspension on the rights and privileges of the individual members of the Lodges suspended. Hitherto it was held that the suspension of a Lodge included all the members of the Lodge. This was abundantly proved by the reports of Grand Lodge and the minutes of the Board of General Purposes, but as this interpretation was not always followed, it was attended with great difficulties, and in some cases with great injustice. It had become the practice for brethren to belong to more Lodges than one, and it might happen that a brother fully and actively engaged in a Lodge or on a Committee of one of the Masonic Charities might find himself suspended from all his Masonic functions because he happened to belong to a distant Lodge; one which he rarely attended or in which he took any active part. It had been suggested that while suspension should attach to all the other members of the Lodge those who belonged to other Lodges should be excepted. This was unjust, because in many cases the penalty would fall on those who were comparatively innocent, while those who had been doing wrong might escape. The Board had therefore considered it would be far better to interpret the suspension of a Lodge as the suspension of its warrant, thus preventing the Lodge from meeting or performing any Masonic functions while those brethren for whose wrongdoing the Lodge had been suspended should be dealt with individually. Grand Lodge was not called upon to make a new law, but to adopt an interpretation of an existing one which was suggested by the Board of General Purposes. As we have already said, the report was adopted. The report of the Special Building Committee (also published in our last issue) was then submitted. Sir John B. Monckton, Chairman of the Building Committee, moved its adoption; Brother Raynham W. Stewart seconded, and the report—involving a grant of £800—was adopted. The Auditors' report was passed, and then the appeals —as given last week—were considered, The first and second were dismissed as frivolous and vexatious; the third was allowed, with a direction that there should be communicated to the D.G.M. the reason—that the brother censured was not called upon to explain. The fourth appeal was also allowed, with an addendum that the District Grand Master thought he was doing his duty, and wished to regard the supreme authority of Grand Lodge.

The announcement of the result of the poll for Grand Treasurership was then made, the following being the return of the Scrutineers:—

For Bro. John Woodall	749	votes
„ „ James Willing jun.	424	„
„ „ D. P. Cama	89	„

The acting Grand Master having declared Brother Woodall duly elected, a protest was handed in on behalf of Bro. Willing, but this was not entertained, the acting Grand Master stating that he had declared Bro. Woodall elected. Grand Lodge was then formally closed.

BACKSLIDING AND BIGOTRY.

FREEMASONRY, according to its enemies, is in the unenviable position of being "between the Devil and the deep sea." The expurgation of the cardinal landmark of the Order—the name of God—on the one hand, and the curses of the Pope of Rome and his satellites on the other, seem to give colour to the supposition that before very long either his Satanic majesty will claim his own, or that the Craft will be hurled into oblivion, never again to emerge to corrupt mankind, and to trouble Holy Mother Church. If curses and misrepresentation could effect either or both these ends Freemasons would long ago have paid the penalty of imputed wickedness. Somehow or other the Fraternity has escaped even the temporary punishment inflicted upon that famous Jackdaw which the humorous Barham has immortalised, notwithstanding that candle, bell and book have been freely used in bitter denunciation. They refuse to yield to curses, to even moult a feather; they object to enforced obscurity, and defy the ignorance and malignity of their assailants, as strongly as they regret the backsliding of their French brethren. Unlike the poor bird of the legend, they have escaped visible chastisement, but instead of being accounted "pious" as the reward of restitution, they are damned for their perversity. Still they flourish, in happy ignorance of an impending doom, and are greater stumbling-blocks than ever to tyranny of every kind.

At the present time cowans are taking a peculiar interest in Freemasonry, and it must be confessed that much that is now taking place, both at home and on the Continent, is calculated to attract the gaping multitude. There is the eccentric conduct of M. Andrieux, a French Radical Deputy, formerly Prefect of Police at Paris; a quondam brother, now renegade and slanderer. Then there is the Grand Orient of France, the highest Masonic authority in that country, who declared, in 1877, and has since maintained, that it is not necessary for initiates to affirm their belief in the existence of the Deity. The Grand Lodge of England take a different view, and has broken off intercourse with our French brethren. The Grand Orient do not take their ostracism kindly, and would fain pose as martyrs to English Puritanism. All these matters afford food for scandal, an article that never lacks admirers, and which is as dearly cherished now by the idle and the vicious as ever it was. Sheridan but emphasized the love of slander when he wrote that incomparable play the "School for Scandal." As if to complicate matters, the Roman Catholic Church comes down with its anathemas against all secret societies, and especially signals out Freemasonry as the object of its bitter and vindictive assaults. The situation, therefore, is not only interesting, but is pregnant with grave issues. The mere looker-on, the man who seeks amusement in the entanglement of interests and purposes, will find pleasure in the imbroglio. The judicious, who love truth and progress, and not empty demagogisms; those who value simple faith in God and immortality higher than they do the gaudy trappings of an imperious, haughty and persecuting Church, will feel pained at the unholy warfare that is being waged, and will shrink with disgust from the weapons that the enemies of Freemasonry so freely use.

M. Andrieux may be dismissed very briefly. His record is not good. As Prefect of Police he necessarily became possessed of secrets, which he is now disclosing in a newspaper started by himself a short time ago. A man who forgets the obligations of office directly he ceases to hold it can hardly be accounted honourable; but when he uses those secrets to further his own personal ends no language within the bounds of newspaper courtesy is strong enough to denounce such conduct. No wonder need be felt that this same Andrieux is trying to carry on a similar traffic in what are termed the secrets of Freemasonry. He it was who broke up the monasteries in Paris, an act he now condemns. By this means, and by his attacks upon Freemasonry, he has gained some favour with French ecclesiastics. They condone past misconduct with present repentance, and particularly gloat over what they fondly believe to be revelations of the crimes of the Craft. We do not care to disabuse their minds. Any stick is good enough to beat a dog with, and any tool, however foul, seems to be welcome when used by the Roman Catholic Church against Freemasonry. Ignorance is the parent of folly and misunderstanding, and so far as those are concerned whose good opinion we value, we feel we have done enough in laying bare the character of M. Andrieux to secure the Craft from a hasty condemnation. As for secrets, the French renegade can do no harm. He can disclose nothing that cannot be already known without his aid. The knowledge is not worth the seeking, for were the cowan to possess it he could not use it. He would lack the key, which the expert alone holds. These disclosures of M. Andrieux, such as they are, coupled with the omission of the recognition of God by the Grand Orient, has given a handle to the French clerical newspapers. They have some right of complaint against the Craft in France, but none against the Craft in England, at least so far as their attitude to religion is concerned. We are not interested in the subtle distinctions set up by M. Cousin, Grand Master of the Supreme Council of the Grand Orient; we are quite certain that no possible explanation can rid us of the objection we have to the expunging of the name of the Great Architect of the Universe from our ceremonies. The position taken up by the Grand Lodge of England is not open even to discussion, and as our Grand Master has firmly, but courteously declined to re-open the question of the relative positions of the two great bodies, we accept his decision as wise and just.

One of the most extraordinary diatribes ever launched against Freemasonry is the Lenten pastoral lately issued by Dr. Bagshawe, Roman Catholic Bishop of Nottingham. We might here point out that the title the rev. gentleman has assumed is an usurped one. What was once only tolerated has now become a right, only to vanish again some day when the Romish Church shall be seen—as it always has been—the enemy to progress and the tyrant of princes and people. Dr. Bagshawe begins his pastoral by lamenting the alienation of certain funds by the Government of Italy from the Pope, while "so-called Christian Governments" did not think it "worth while to lift a finger in defence of the Supreme Pastor of the Christian flock." When sheep stray, neglect is imputed to the shepherd; and when children forsake their parents, they can generally produce some justification for their conduct. Then we are told that "multitudes deny the very existence of God; many more deny all knowledge of Him. . . . Many deny the immortality of the soul, and a future state of reward and punishments." The consequences of this unbelief are set forth, and among them are—"that marriage has no longer any sanctity; divorces and adulteries are condoned and approved; nay, murder is glorified and becomes heroic." The principal objects of life are "to get rich and to wallow in sensual pleasures;" to destroy and root out "all Christian education of children," with the view of making the rising generation "more immoral and less religious than the ancient pagans themselves." The catalogue of crime is both long and terrible, and it is all owing to those wicked Freemasons. Has not the Pope proclaimed it, and do not his followers take up the parrot cry? The reason for all this wrath and lamentation is not to be found in real sorrow for sin, but in the fact that Freemasonry is hostile to the Romish Church. "Do we not," asks Dr. Bagshawe, "in effect see the hostile movement against the Church and Holy See has grown in extent and importance in proportion as the Freemasons have grown; that the chief and most influential enemies of the Church have been invariably Freemasons, and that the Governments which betrayed and persecuted her have been Freemason Governments?" This admission covers the whole ground, and what the Pope is fighting for is his own hand, which is not quite the same thing as absolute truth and right. All the fine phrases about infidelity, immorality, and plunder are used as they affect the Romish Church, and apparently have no wider application. We can forgive much when a foe is driven to desperation, nevertheless it is only prudent to let the world know now and then that the Romish scolds are not altogether the disinterested beings they themselves would make out. Dr. Bagshawe says "the principles of the movements have been consistently avowed and defended in Masonic journals and speeches . . . and the open acts of the society declared its complicity with the evil." We take it that the writer intends these sentences to apply to what follows in reference to the acts alleged to have been committed by French Freemasons from the great Revolution to the present time. We leave our French brethren to defend themselves, as doubtless they are well able to do. For ourselves, we have only pity and contempt for men who forget all the amenities of truth.

We are not left long in doubt as to what Dr. Bagshawe thinks of English Freemasonry. Our French brethren are paid the left-handed compliment of being more open in their evil work than ourselves. Apparently, we are harmless, but really we are the wolf in sheep's clothing, and this is how we have gained this unenviable character. Says our judge: "We do not doubt that a great multitude of English Freemasons would hold such deeds [of the French Revolution] in horror, for it is the avowed principle of Freemasonry to keep always a secret in reserve from its disciples, until its highest grades be reached, so that the three symbolic grades, and even the dignitaries, may easily know little or nothing of what is done and purposed by their superiors in the Order in the higher secret grades." How dreadful! Companions and Knights Templars, what horrors are committed in your names. How do you manage to concoct so much evil, and why, oh why, do you yield your secrets to the Romish Church alone? A little further on Dr. Bagshawe twits the English Freemasons with their inconsistency in contending for the acknowledgment of the name of God while they permit the omission of the name of Christ. The answer is obvious. Craft Freemasonry unites the whole religious world in one bond of Brotherhood, brings them together on one common ground where the bitterness of controversy cannot enter, and where the persecuting priest and the tyrant can find no foothold. The other degrees enlarge the scope of inquiry, while Knights Templary embraces the soldiers of Christ. But this fact will not satisfy Dr. Bagshawe, for according to his theory it is amongst the disciples of the higher degrees of Freemasonry that all the evils he deplores are conceived and matured, from which even the profession of faith in Christ does not save them. In fact no profession except that of belief in the Pope will satisfy this angry Bishop. He gets bolder as he proceeds with his pastoral, and says, "there are abundant proofs that the English and Scotch Masons are one with those on the Continent." He does not furnish any proof, however, but simply refers to the records of Mackey to show that "nearly all the Continental Grand Lodges were established by members of either English or Scotch Lodges." This proves nothing, unless it be the fact that the sire may be good and the progeny sometimes degenerate. Perhaps Dr. Bagshawe could find some apt illustrations of this theory even in Holy Mother Church. Not only is Freemasonry bad in itself, but, urges our authority, "all other secret societies, spreading their deadly poison and ruin to Christian States, are dependents and accomplices, and willing servants and instruments." Then follow warnings and maledictions, and so ends this pastoral of a Christian Bishop to a Christian people.

What a mockery of that Charity which covereth a multitude of sins, which hopeth all things; what a perversion of that spirit of humility which Christ exhibited. What a violation of truth. What can be the object of these Roman Catholic bigots? Surely it may be said of them, those whom the gods wished to destroy they first drove made. Silence would best become them if they do not wish the shame and sin of ages to be laid bare. With such a record,—written in blood, lighted with consuming flame, conceived in tyranny and carried into execution with barbarity — we marvel at the temerity of Romish advocates. Let the past go; a modern instance or two will show that the old Adam is still alive. We are accused of being the accomplices of murder. We deny the charge, and hurl it back in the teeth of the Romish Church. We point to Ireland, where the priests have held unquestionable sway and power for generations, and we ask—What is the record there? We are told that the Government of Italy robbed the Church, but we are not informed that the head of the Government counted his kingly dignity of small moment compared with his high sense of justice, that he voluntarily offered himself as a witness in a common court of law that right might be done. And is it not on record that this same king risked his life among the poor cholera patients that he might lend succour and strength to the sufferers? We might multiply these suggestive comparisons, we might take the war into the enemy's country with powerful effect, but we have said enough to expose slanderers and correct misrepresentations. As Masons we are indifferent to the fulminations of Papal priests, but as citizens we repudiate them.

THE THEATRES.

THE PRINCESS'S.

THE play of "Junius, or the Household Gods," by the late Lord Lytton, presented by Mr. Barrett on Thursday week, for the first time on any stage, is a tragedy in the highest sense of the word. It relies in no way for its interest on well-drilled crowds, startling effects or clever theatrical situations. It is simple, intense, and powerful,—as the old classic tragedies. We feel that fate is dogging the steps of the wrongdoer. The prophecy of the Sibyl, who announces that only with the destruction of the household gods shall vengeance awake and false Sextus' doom be sealed. Our interest is in the development of the human emotions made living by the poet's words, as uttered in thrilling accents that hold us spell-bound. There have been many tragedies on the theme of the Tarquins' fall—some making the assumed madness of Junius the centre of interest. Howard Payne's culminated in the intensely dramatic crisis where Junius condemns his own sons to death as adherents of the Tarquins. Lord Lytton avoids temptation to melodramatic points. It may, perhaps, be regretted he has so slightly indicated the disloyalty of the sons of Brutus, thus foregoing the opportunity for the display of most poignant passion on the part of their patriotic father. Seeing it, however, as it is, we hesitate to wish it otherwise. The mounting is magnificent, not that we are impressed at once by its costliness, but the Rome through which Horatius went forth to meet Lars Porsena seems actually summoned from the past, with its temples, palaces, and towers; its humbler streets, and the life that filled the city in the brave days of old. The curtain rises on a street scene, with a distant view of the city. Here a group of conspirators are assembled; they are presently joined by Junius, whose simulated idiotcy is not made too prominent a feature by Mr. Barrett. No grander figure than this Junius—with his pale, classic face, white hair and white robe—has trod the stage in our generation. The Tarquin gens was of Greek origin, and Mr. Willard, as Sextus, has marked the difference of race in his manner and bearing. It is a fine scene where Sextus enters, with his rose-crowned companions; breaks up the meeting of the conspirators, and mocks the patriot Junius, who is biding his time to avenge his own and his country's wrongs. A most pleasant surprise was afforded the audience by the entrance of Miss Eastlake, who has endowed Lucretia with all the calm dignity befitting the typical martyr of matron purity. The second scene brings us to Tarquin's palace, where Sextus makes the bet with Collatinus, despite Junius' effort to prevent it. Mr. Willard gave a fine picture here of the reckless tyrant, as he lolls on the triclinium whilst his slaves sing, to the accompaniment of the citabo. Here Mr. Neville Doone's "Nonsense! Yes, by Jove!" is certainly out of place, and should be reformed. The scene that follows it is one of the most impressive in the play. It is night, and among lofty pine trees lie the ruined pillars of the temple of Romulus, the moss-grown altar still standing. Here Junius is met by Vindex, the trusted slave and spy of Sextus, who has been ordered to kill the dangerous madman. Vindex is disarmed, and his life spared; whereupon he swears devotion to Junius. Here also a group of conspirators meet to discuss their plans, but they scornfully refuse the proffered adherence of Junius, who is left alone, to muse on the misery of his country. It is then the weird sybil emerges from the rocks, and foretells the downfall of Tarquin, when the measure of his iniquities is full, and the household gods are shattered. The third act passes in Lucretia's home. The curtain rises on a lofty hall; it is late evening, the lamps burn dimly; the fire flickers on the hearth, round which stand the tutelary lares. Lucretia sits with her maidens beguiling her husband's absence—

"As she plied the distaff,
In a sweet voice and loud she sang."

Sextus enters and claims a night's shelter. Lovely Lucretia looks, in her long soft drapery and Roman coiffure of tendril curls. He offers her love. "Her husband may be divorced, and she, as Tarquin's wife, shall be Queen of Rome." His offer scorned, he professes it was but made to prove her supreme virtue. Then, with troubled mind, she commends him to the care of her slaves, and retires. Here the most difficult part of the play has to be encountered. The desired end is, however, achieved by a fine inspiration of the author. The horror is acutely realised, but with no word or cry. Tarquin glides from his chamber to seek Lucretia's, and as he approaches the threshold of her chamber the moonlight sky, seen through the open door, grows black, and from the clouds a lightning flash strikes the hearthstone, and the household gods lay shattered amid its ruins. Sextus's own doom is sealed. The scene in the fourth act, where Lucretia summonses her kinsmen to hear the recital of her wrongs, and avenge her, gives a fine opportunity to the actress, and Miss Eastlake held her audience spell-bound by her icy agony. This lady has a most trying and difficult task in the long address to her kinsmen, but she spoke it with the tragic intensity befitting the anguish of the moment, yet with a self-repression and restrained passion worthy of all praise. Here Junius throws off all disguise, and, in a magnificent address, calls on his kinsmen and Lucretia's to do justice on Tarquin. We could have wished Collatinus had displayed more emotion, or that the kinsmen, as they listen to Lucretia, would exhibit more natural pity and horror. Act 5 takes us again to the palace of Tarquin. In the audience hall stands the gold throne, high on its marble dais. The roof is hidden by splendid velaria, draped from the Corinthian capitals. Sextus, pale and conscience-stricken, sits on the throne. He appeals for advice to his soothsayer, Sophronion (Mr. Dewhurst), but is met with scorn; for help to his guards, who mock him. News comes of revolt in the city, when a cry of "Room for the household gods!" is heard. The bronze gates are thrown open, and Lucretia's lifeless form is brought in. Sextus would escape, but is dragged up the marble steps by Junius, and stabbed at the foot of the throne. The curtain fell amid universal and most enthusiastic applause. Each principal actor was summoned by name, and Mr. Wilson Barrett had to return again and again, and still the house seemed unwilling to part with one to whom they owe so much. We cannot close our notice without a cordial recognition of the singularly fine presentment of Vindex, the Eastern slave, played with an Eastern fervour and barbaric force by Mr. Hudson. It is a remarkable creation. Miss Leighton as the Sybil, a small part, has yet fine opportunity to display her impressive elocutionary powers. Her stately presence is of great value. Mr. Speakman as the captain of the guard played with that sincerity and force which always distinguishes him. We regret we cannot praise Mr. Clifford Cooper, who, as the Roman patrician Lucretius, was certainly neither Roman nor patrician in voice or bearing. Lucretius should for no moment forget his dignity of caste and race. He should be, above all things, a Roman noble. In Lucretia's dishonour, not his heart alone but the altars of his ancestors have been outraged. The music, composed and arranged by Mr. Jones, is in excellent taste, a mere undercurrent of melody, never obtrusive, it often intensifies the feeling of the spoken words.

HAYMARKET.

THE revival of "Masks and Faces," at the Haymarket, last Saturday, was welcomed with an enthusiasm that few successful "first nights" could excel. "The calm that marks the caste" of orchestra stalls and balcony vanished at the touch of that sweet womanly pathos, with fleeting lights of smiles and tears, when Peg Woffington is the arch enchantress. Pocket-handkerchiefs were in requisition all over the house, however skilfully dissembled. Mrs. Bancroft played her part with the old charm and freshness; surely we can give no higher praise. Mr. Bancroft gave his carefully-finished study of the gentle-hearted starveling poet. His interview with Lady Vane, when he struggles with his famished longing for the tempting biscuits, was indicated with artistic delicacy. Mr. Bancroft has so rarely trusted himself to a portrayal of the stronger emotions that his rendering of Triplet has the greater claim on our hearty recognition. Miss Calhoun was at her best as Lady Vane; she looked the girl-wife to perfection, and acted with a most pleasant sincerity. Messrs. Kemble and Brookfield are excellent actors, but are too much given to accentuate all they touch. It is a pleasure to welcome Mr. Wyatt into the world of high comedy. His Soaper proves he may soon win an assured position.

ROYALTY.

CROWDED houses and the box-office returns might prove M. Mayer has been well advised to revive "Niniche" for Mme. Jane May's second visit to us, that charming young lady taking the title part. The scene opens, as our readers doubtless know, at Tronville, and no further than Dean-street we may enjoy the fun and the absurdities of life on the sands. In these dull foggy days the sight of the bean baigneur Gregoire (M. Colombey) inspires one with breezy cheerfulness. Colombey is at his best in the part, his professional pride, his ambition to possess the red ribbon. He finds no consolation in his own medals—"any fool would pull a drowning man out of the water, but you can't get the Legion of Honour by doing anything." He is terribly troubled by the adoration of his fair clients, but ambition fills his soul. There is a Count Corniski and his lovely wife staying at the hotel, and through the Countess Gregoire hopes to secure his decoration. She appears very lovely, girlish and innocent, as presented to us by Mme. May. This is surely not "Niniche" the impertinent minx to whom Mdlle. Judic introduced us. This is a refined and pure-hearted young lady, who for mere gaiety of heart is playing at being a something she knows nothing about. We have not Niniche, but we have that which is so much better and brighter and pleasanter; we scarcely think one in the audience could have wished a more realistic interpretation. She gives us something quite other than Messieurs Hennequin and Millaud intended in their heroine. A Rosalind—not with a spear, in the forest of Arden—but still under the necessity of dissembling in this preposterous world of pantomime in which she has lost her way. As Mr. Pigott does not object, why should we cry fie? And then the play undoubtedly is immensely funny; the acting so bright, brisk, and spontaneous, one has no time to stop to criticise. Didier, as the solemn, severely proper, bald-headed Polish Count, makes a splendid portrait of a diplomatist; Madame Rioquier as the lively friend of Niniche is excellent. Our ever-welcome Schey is delightful as the benevolent confidant, who is brought to dire straits by his cheerful trustfulness. Mme. Lion as the femme de chambre is the perfection of pertness and piquancy. Mme. Santa in a very small part, Courdier, Debray, and Rioquier all giving efficient aid in the neat finish of the picture. The colouring is surely excellent—would only the draughtsmanship of the authors were a little less école Régence.

GAIETY.

THROUGH the fictitious sentimentalism and dull factiousness of multitudinous Matinées, the genuine fun and wholesome laughter of our old friend "London Assurance" gave us last Thursday most welcome relief. The play is a little old fashioned perhaps, as some old college chum returning from long absence in regions where ozone is plentiful; but with lively Helen Barry as Lady Gay, and William Farren as Courtley, the old fashioned flavour makes it no less pleasant. Mr. Herbert was agreeable, and the rest of the cast were efficient.

Miss Minnie Bell, a clever emotional actress from the provincial stage, has introduced "A Fair Sinner" to the London public. This is described as an original drama, by W. Appleton, but it strangely suggests a consommé of some very weak French romance:—A scowling husband, an idiotic father, an undecided lover and a lady with the usual "aching heart" are the chief characters, but they were so cleverly played they almost seemed possible. There is one very dramatic situation, where the husband (Mr. Macdona) forces the lover (Mr. Rosier) to play écarté, with their lives as the stake. This roused even a matinée audience to enthusiasm. Mr. Giddens as a cockney millionaire was delightful, in vivacious Foker style. The Hon. Member for Easthampton was in a private box, and seemed much entertained by Secretary Baffin's tribulations.

Though the favourite Blue-beard still proves attractive Mr. Burnand's "Mazeppa" is, we learn, in active rehearsal. It is to be produced at an early date.

STRAND.

THE members of the St. Swithin's Amateur Dramatic Club gave an excellent performance of "Caste," on Wednesday and Thursday of last week, at the Royal Strand Theatre. The band, conducted by Mr. Max Schröter, played a good selection of music. The parts of the Hon. George D'Alroy and Capt. Hawtree were taken by Messrs. W. F. Lee and R. C. Lochlein. Mr. E. C. Silverthorne, the stage manager, took that of Eccles, and he pourtrayed the drunken father carefully. Mr. J. W. Williams also did well as Sam Gerridge. The Misses Effie Liston and Cora Stuart took the parts respectively of Esther and Polly Eccles, and the latter kept the audience amused with her jokes and trickery in making the haughty Captain her slave. Mr. Gaston Murray (by permission of Messrs. Hare and Kendal) appeared as the Marquise de St. Maur, and Mr. G. G. McCulloch as Dixon. The acting was admirable throughout, while the dresses and scenery were everything that could be desired.

THE GRAND.

THREE years ago Miss Litton, whose early death has been so great a loss, first introduced "Mankind" to a West End audience, and the West End playgoer learnt that in London, unknown to its Middlesex population, an actor could be found with power sufficient to almost congeal the blood in the veins of his audience, and capable of displaying intensity of passion such as Robson of the old days or Irving at the present time alone could command. Mr. George Conquest's Daniel Groodge, the centenarian miser and murderer, is a Rembrandt portrait that might hang by the side of Daddy Hardacre or Matthias and lose no tone of its grand colouring. Unhappily Mr. Conquest returned to the unknown land on the other side of the artistic Rubicon, though many whom he had fascinated by his weird power have since made pilgrimages across the Thames. We rejoice, however, to be able to say he has brought the same drama to the Grand, where he is delighting large audiences. Mr. Conquest is supported by a capable company; especially we must commend his "masher" miscreant, Mr. Nye, while we cannot too highly praise the delightful delicacy, tenderness, and unaffected pathos of Miss Amy MacNeil, who, in the part of the heroine, may bear comparison with our recollections of Miss Litton. We hear Miss MacNeil has accepted an engagement at Drury Lane, and we heartily congratulate Mr. Harris on his good fortune. Next Monday Mr. George Conquest will make his appearance as Zacky Pastrana in "For Ever."

Bro. Dr. Whalley, M.A., and Bro. Jules Reichet, D.C.L., had the honour to give recitals from Shakespeare on Friday, 20th ult., before a distinguished assembly, at a drawing-room conversazione given at Windsor. Holding high honours and orders, both English and Continental, these gentlemen take high rank as Shakesperian exponents, both in England and France. The beautiful passages from "As you like it," "Romeo and Juliet," "Midsummer Night's Dream," and "Much ado about nothing," given by Mons. Jules Reichet, formed a pleasant contrast to the selections from "Macbeth," "Hamlet," "Othello," "Richard III.," &c., given by Dr. Whalley. The beauty and pathos of one, along with the force and polish of the other, produced a good effect, and ringing cheers greeted each. On Saturday both gentlemen were engaged in a work of charity, for the benefit of institutions connected with destitute women and girls of London, in which an especial interest is taken and high patronage given by Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen and other members of the Royal Family.

LODGE OF JOPPA, No. 188.

A REGULAR meeting was held on the 2nd inst., at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street. Bros. Martin W.M., Dewsnap P.M. S.W., Wall J.W., Lazarus P.M. Secretary, Lyon Treasurer, Lion S.D., Davis I.G., Van Noorden Organist, Dodson P.M. D.C., P.M.'s Alexander, Myers, Levy, Baker. Visitors—Inwards 1320, Hooper 1320, Jacobs P.P.G.P. Essex, Lichtenfeld 205, Lyon 185. After preliminaries, Bro. Bendit was raised. Ballots were taken for the admission of Messrs. Thomas and Marks, who were duly initiated into the Order. The ceremonies were excellently rendered by the W.M. A notice of motion, given by Bro. Levy P.M., that in future the Lodge, in electing an honorary member shall qualify him as a fully subscribing member, was carried. Lodge was then closed, the brethren sat down to a very excellent supper, provided by Bro. Dawkins, and superintended by Bro. Silver. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were honoured. Bro. Alexander P.M. responded to the toast of the Benevolent Fund, and then proposed the health of the W.M., paying him a just compliment for his excellent working. The absence of the I.P.M. was deplored, as it was caused by indisposition. The W.M. made an appropriate response. Bro. Dodson acknowledged the toast of the P.M.'s, and Bros. Marks and Thomas the toast of the Initiates. The latter brother made an excellent speech. The Visitors, the Wardens, the Treasurer, Secretary and Junior Officers were also honoured. Bros. Baker P.M. and Laundy contributed to the harmony.

UNITED PILGRIMS' LODGE, No. 507.

WITH the annual election meeting, which was held at the Bridge House Hotel, on the evening of Thursday, the 22nd ult., Bro. H. E. Joyce, editor of the Shipping Gazette, brought to an eminently successful termination his two consecutive years of office as Worshipful Master of this old and vigorous Lodge. Bro. Joyce's interest in the Lodge of his adoption has all along been exemplified in the most practical form, for besides infusing into its membership many of his personal friends, in the City and in the Lewisham district, where he resides and is well-known, both in public and private life; he has stimulated the brethren to a keen sense of their duties and obligations respecting the Masonic Charities. These qualities were so appreciated during his first year of office that on the expiration of his term, the brethren unanimously decided upon paying him a compliment which falls to the lot of very few Masons, namely, to re-elect him to the chair. The expectations that were then formed respecting his retention of the office have been fully realised during the year, and the admirable services rendered by Bro. Joyce to the Lodge by whom he has been so honoured, and deservedly so, were amply recognised on the occasion to which we refer. Lodge was opened at five o'clock, under the presidency of the Worshipful Master, who was supported by Bros. E. Blake S.W., Terry P.M. acting as J.W., Peters P.M. Secretary, Wiltshire S.D., Noakes J.D., Worsfold W.S., Sharman C.S., Jordan Organist, Harrison Tyler. The other Past Masters present were Bros. Watts, Cooper and Beckley; and amongst the Visitors were Bros. Bing P.M. 1597, Sindall P.M. 1293, Skelton P.M. 1056, Breton P.M. 788, Williams S.D. 788, Abbott P.M. 192, Winnett 1397, Bennett 1415, Watson 73, Dodson 1397, Pickering 11, and others. Ancient formalities having been observed, and the minutes of previous Lodge confirmed, a ballot was opened for Mr. Marshall, who had been nominated by Bro. Peters P.M. and Secretary, and seconded by Bro. Blake S.W. The voting was unanimously in favour, and Mr. Marshall was duly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of the Order, the ceremony being performed in perfect manner by the Worshipful Master. Bro. Cockell, having answered the questions satisfactorily, was entrusted, and on his return to the Lodge he was passed to the second degree; after which Lodge was advanced to the third, and Bro. Edgar was raised to the sublime degree, all the work being done by the Worshipful Master in impressive manner and with Preceptor-like ability. Notwithstanding the formidable character of the agenda, Bro. Joyce elected to carry through the whole of the rites unaided, and it is no empty compliment to him to say his working afforded considerable edification, as well as pleasure, to all present. The brethen then proceeded to the election of Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, and the choice fell unanimously on Bro. Blake, who had ably discharged the duties of the Senior Warden's chair during the past twelve months. Bro. Blake suitably returned thanks for the unanimous vote of the brethren, and said as it had afforded him great pleasure to do his duty in the office he now filled, so would it be his pride and pleasure, while in the chair, to conduct the affairs of the Lodge to the satisfaction of the brethren. Bro. Grellett P.M. was unanimously re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Harrison Tyler. An Audit Committee was appointed, of the whole Lodge, and the meeting was fixed for Thursday, 12th inst., at 5.30 p.m., when the revised Bye-laws of the Lodge will be considered. A petition had been received from a distressed brother, and it was resolved to recommend the case to the Board of Benevolence. At the conclusion of business, the brethren and visitors sat down to a sumptuous banquet, under the presidency of Bro. Joyce W.M., who, in genial spirit, conducted the festivities of the evening. The Worshipful Master proposed the Most Worshipful Grand Master His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, the Deputy and Pro Grand Masters, and the rest of the Grand Officers present and past. Referring to His Royal Highness's intended visit to Ireland, he considered it was a bold step to take, though he questioned if it was well-advised in the present disquiet condition of the sister isle. However, his resolve to go there as a messenger of peace proved that he was possessed of the manliness of heart of a true Englishman and a true Mason. At this stage of the proceedings Bro. Joyce presented to the Lodge a handsomely-bound volume of music, which was accepted with thanks and amidst loud cheers. The Immediate Past Master (Bro. Peters), in proposing the health of the Worshipful Master, said he could not help being reminded of the autumn evenings, when they watched the setting sun and saw the pristine colours as old Sol disappeared behind the horizon. So it was now with their esteemed Worshipful Master, who was about to vacate the chair of this Lodge as the sun setting in glorious splendour, carrying with him the affection and good feeling of every member of the Lodge. They all felt delighted with what Bro. Joyce had done during the time he had been in office. He had improved the Lodge in many ways, and there could not be a better proof of his affection for it than by his having introduced into the Lodge many of his best personal friends. This was not his mother Lodge, but he certainly regarded it with the affection he might feel towards a step-mother; and although, as they knew, he was about to take an active part in another Lodge, in his own district, they would all rejoice that he would still come amongst them and continue, by his valuable counsel and experience, to uphold the Lodge of his adoption. The Worshipful Master, who was cordially received on rising to reply, thanked the brethren very much for the kind way in which they had received the toast, couched in such friendly terms by his Immediate Past Master. He could only say the two years during which he had filled the chair of this Lodge had been eventful ones to him. He had been exceedingly proud of that position—so proud indeed that there need not be the slightest fear of what Bro. Peters seemed to indicate, namely, that of lessening his interest in this Lodge in behalf of any new one in which he might be interested. They had been reminded that this was the Lodge of his adoption. His mother Lodge, as many present knew, was far too official for him. He was not official at all, and so he joined this Lodge, and no man was ever more devoted to his mother Lodge than he had been to this Lodge of his adoption. That they had felt this was evidenced by their kindness to him during the two years he had occupied the chair, and that kindness had culminated to-night in the very cordial manner in which they had received the mention of his name. He trusted the day might be far distant, not only when he should cease to be a member of this Lodge, but when he should cease to be an active member of it. He knew of certain Past Masters who were so in name only; and though he did not like to speak reproachfully, he regretted there were such Masons. But, turning to a more agreeable subject, he was enabled to speak of Past Masters who did attend, and who were of great and valuable assistance to the Master. He had to thank the Past Masters who were present that evening, and who were ever ready to tender their aid in carrying out any work that he might undertake. His thanks were especially due to the Past Masters for the great help they had been to him during his term of office, without which he could not have carried on the duties to their satisfaction. He also thanked his Officers and the brethren generally for their kind support during his term. He did not suppose that any Master who had preceded him had had such opportunities as had fallen to his lot of initiating members, who had spread so widely the name of the United Pilgrims' Lodge. He had initiated members who were now scattered over the four quarters of the globe, and the United Pilgrims' Lodge had now representatives in China, British Columbia, Canada, the Cape, and Australia. These brethren all retained their names on the roll; and they had recently an exhibition of the love they bore to the Lodge when one who had been initiated in it before going abroad waited until his return to England for the completion of the ceremonies. Two others were looking forward to resuming active membership on their return home from abroad. He hoped the success which had attended him in office would be continued next year, and he had little fear on that head, seeing that one of his chicks was to follow him. He had only one thing to say, and it was this—when Bro. Blake got into the chair he would not have such a capital I.P.M. to prompt him as he (the speaker) had. He should strive to emulate Bro. Peters when he subsided into that chair, and should do his utmost to support the Lodge, for which he wished many years of prosperity, with the same harmony and goodwill that now characterised it. So long as he had health and strength he should not cease to be an active member of the Lodge, That was his intention, and it was the only way in which he could show his appreciation of the great kindness he had received at the hands of the brethren. The Worshipful Master then proposed the health of the Initiate, the toast being warmly received, and Bro. Marshall briefly replied, to the effect that he should endeavour to carry himself as a Mason, an officer, and a gentleman. The next toast was that of the Visitors, to whom the W.M. extended a hearty welcome. Bro. Williams, who was most cordially received, said it was always a great pleasure to Visitors to any Lodge to have the privilege of returning thanks for this toast, and he thought he might say that the visitors to-night shared that pleasure and that privilege. The Worshipful Master, in proposing the health of the Worshipful Master elect, said anything that he had himself done to sustain the position of the Lodge would, he felt sure, be continued when Bro. Blake occupied the chair, and that at the expiration of his term of office he would leave the Lodge in as good a position as he found it. Bro. Blake W.M. elect responded in suitable terms. Several other complimentary toasts followed, including the health of the Treasurer and Secretary, the Officers of the Lodge, and the proceedings were fittingly concluded with the Tyler's toast. An abundance of good vocal and instrumental music, interspersing the toasts, tended materially to enhance the pleasures of the evening.

ST. GEORGE'S LODGE, No. 1723.

Brockbank, W. Blain, Thos. Higson, W. Court, Robt. Latham; Bros. Whewell, Smith, Pend'ebury, Naylor, Jas. Lever, Brierley, Arden, Parkinson. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Lever having passed a satisfactory examination was entrusted. After he had retired the Lodge was opened in the second; the candidate was readmitted and passed to the degree of Fellow Craft, by Bro. Robt. Latham, and the working tools were explained to him by the S.W. Lodge was then closed to the first degree. The Secretary read a letter from the Treasurer of the Ball Committee (Bro. G. P. Brockbank), stating that from the surplus funds the sum of twenty pounds had been paid to the credit of this Lodge with the East Lancashire Systematic Institution, constituting the W.M. for the time being a Vice-President of that Institution. On the motion of Bro. Brockbank, it was resolved that the Lodge become a subscriber annually of £1 1s in aid of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, in response to circular issued by Bro. Binckes, Secretary to the School. The circular for the evening exhibited a large amount of work to be done, but owing to the illness and absence of some of the Officers the programme was considerably curtailed. Bro. W. Blain Past Master of the Lodge delivered the lecture on the tracing board of the degree, and greatly enchanted the brethren by his quiet, dignified and correct rendering of this important part of Masonic working. Closed in peace and harmony at 7·30.

ANCHOR AND HOPE LODGE, No. 37.

THE monthly meeting was held at the Swan Hotel, Bolton, on Monday, the 2nd instant, at 6 o'clock. Bros. Pacey W.M., Poyntz S.W., Hardcastle J.W., Brockbank Secretary, Lomax S.D., Naylor J.D., Nightingale I.G., Roiley Tyler; P.M.'s Bros. Johnson Mills, John Morris Prov. G.S.W, Freeman and Garstang; also Bros. Forrest, Thompson, Murphy, Robinson, Golding, Gillibrand, Clarke and Mather; Visitor Bro. Jno. Skelton W.M. 146. The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Lodge was then opened in the second degree, when Bros. Murphy and Thompson passed a satisfactory examination as to their proficiency, and being entrusted with a test of merit retired. Lodge was opened in the third, when Bros. Murphy and Thompson were raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason by the W.M.; the working tools of the degree were explained by Bro. Mills. Later on Mr. Thos. Baines, who was proposed as a candidate for initiation, was balloted for, elected and duly initiated an Entered Apprentice Freemason by the W.M. The working tools of the degree were explained to him by Bro. Brockbank. A portion of the ancient rules and charges having been read by the Senior Warden, the Lodge was closed in form and with prayer at nine o'clock.

TEMPLE LODGE, No. 550.

ON Tuesday afternoon this Lodge assembled at the Town Hall, Folkestone, for the purpose of installing Brother S. Joseph as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. The ceremony was ably and impressively performed by the retiring W.M., Bro. G. L. Hart, and at its close the following Officers were appointed:—Bros. A. Petts S.W., A. Crane J.W., G. Flint S.D., H. Waite J.D., H. S. Roberts Organist, W. Goddard I.G., F. Francis and W. Dunk Stewards, and Job Baker Tyler. Among those present at the installation were the following:—P.M.'s G. L. Hart, J. Sherwood, H. Stock, W. L. Earnshaw, S. Penfold, F. Klatt, Jas. Kennett, A. H. Holbein, W. Francis, R. White, H. Samson, and C. Gosby 1436, T. G. Pulley 340, and F. Binckes P.G S. and Secretary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. The Lodge was also honoured by the presence of the Deputy Prov. Grand Master for Kent (Bro. J. S. Eastes G.J.D.) An interesting feature in the proceedings was the presentation of a jewel to the I.P.M. (Bro. Hart), who has presided as W.M. for the past two years, and rendered most distinguished service to the Lodge, he having initiated no less than 18 brethren. Bro. Stock, who was entrusted with the duty of making the presentation, referred in eulogistic terms to the able manner in which the I.P.M. had filled the post, and to his untiring efforts to promote the prosperity of the Lodge. At the conclusion of the business, the Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Pavilion Hotel, where a sumptuous banquet was provided by Bros. Spurgen and Waite. About sixty were present. The W.M. (Bro. Joseph) presided. The Worshipful Master proposed in able terms the Queen and the Craft, the M.W. Grand Master H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the M.W. Pro Grand Master the Earl of Carnarvon, and the rest of the Grand Officers, the R.W. Provincial Grand Master of Kent (Bro. J. S. Eastes), who responded. Bro. S. Renford proposed the Provincial Grand Officers of Kent Present and Past, to which Bro. F. Klatt replied. The toast of the evening, the Worshipful Master, was entrusted to Bro. Sherwood, who proposed it in an admirable speech. The Masonic Charities was given by Bro. Pulley, and acknowledged by Bro. Binckes, Secretary to the Boys' Institution. Following this toast, the Charity-bag was passed round, and a handsome sum was collected, which a brother generously made up to ten guineas, which will be handed to Bro. J. N. Rogers, who will represent the Temple Lodge as Steward at the Festival of the Boys' Masonic Institution in June next. The Visitors, proposed by Bro. Stock, and responded to by Bro. Poole; the Installing Master, proposed by Bro. Binckes, and acknowledged by Bro. Hart; the Past Masters of the Temple Lodge, to which Bro. H. Stock replied; the Officers of the Lodge, to which Bro. A. Petts replied; and the Tyler's toast concluded the list. The musical arrangements were under the able conductorship of Bro. H. S. Roberts Organist, and the following contributed songs:—Bros. H. Clements, W. Dunk, C. Sheath, W. Francis, and W. H. Major.

KILBURN LODGE, No. 1608.

A REGULAR meeting of this flourishing Lodge was held on the 23rd ultimo, at the Queen's Arms Hotel, Kilburn. Bros. Barclay W.M., Kiallmark S.W., Fletcher P.M. 185 J.W., Brooks P.M. Secretary, Bennett P.M. S.D., Johnson I.G., Whitlock D.C., Haswell I.P.M., and F. Brewer P.M. Visitors—Kirk 1681, Potter 742, Smith 1321, Maidwell P.M. 27, Hambling and Kent 2030, Preston 1819, Packer 1571, Thomas P.M. 1319, Tweedale 286, Wray 25, H. M. Levy P.M. 188. Lodge was formally opened and the minutes were confirmed; a ballot was taken for the admission as a joining member of Bro. Harris 177; this was unanimous in favour. A candidate was proposed for initiation, and then Lodge was closed. The brethren sat down to a capital banquet and dessert, provided in excellent style by Bro. Hartley. The W.M. proposed the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts. Speaking to the toast of his Royal Highness the Most Worshipful Grand Master, the W.M. said the interests of the Order were well looked after by the Prince of Wales. The cheering words spoken to our soldiers on leaving their native land would be echoed in the heart of every brother. The toast was enthusiastically received. The W.M. then proposed the Pro Grand Master the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, the R.W. the Earl of Lathom and the rest of the Grand Officers Present and Past. Bro. H. Turner I.P.M. then rose. It was with great pleasure he claimed the privilege to propose the health of the W.M., who had advanced step by step. Bro. Barclay is capable in every way to perform any duty required of him. It was a custom in this Lodge to see that the S.W. could do his work, so that he might be able to act as W.M. The present W.M. had endeared himself to every brother in the Lodge, and he (Bro. Turner) was sure at the expiration of his term of office it would be declared he had given every satisfaction. The W.M. thanked Bro. Turner for his kind expressions. If he had the opportunity which he anticipated on the next occasion, he would strive to show the brethren who had elected him he was capable of doing the work. In proposing the toast of the Visitors, the W.M. said it was a toast they were proud of; he would call on Bros. Maidwell and Abrahams. The latter brother said he was pleased to see that so young a Lodge in seven years had contributed the sum of £1,125; the W.M. had undertaken a Stewardship for the Boys' School. He with the other Visiting Brethren thanked the W.M. for his hospitality. Among other toasts were those of the Past Masters, responded to by Bros. Turner and Brewer; the Treasurer and Secretary, for which Bro. Brooks replied; the Wardens and other Officers, &c. The Tyler gave the parting toast. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. W. F. Packer 1571; Bros. Arthur Thomas, Henry Prenton, and F. Brewer P.M. sang some excellent songs and duets.

W.M., Tacon S.W., Main J.W., Simpson Sec., Cornu S.D., Bond J.D.; Green I.G., Dodson P.M. Preceptor. P.M.'s Tate, Larchin, Gush, Gardner, &c. After preliminaries the first section of the second lecture was worked by Bro. Tate and the second by Bro. Dodson. Lodge resumed. Bro. Marsden, a candidate for passing, was entrusted. Lodge was resumed to the second degree, and the ceremony was rehearsed. The third section was worked by Bro. Larchin, and the fourth by Bro. Drury. It was arranged that the Fifteen Sections be worked on the 14th and 21st April. Bro. Larchin P.M. kindly consented to preside. Brethren are cordially invited to attend this new Lodge room, it being one of the most commodious and best ventilated in London.

Royal Alfred Lodge of Instruction, No. 780.—A meeting was held on Friday, 20th ultimo, at the Star and Garter, Hotel, Kew Bridge. Present:—Bros. Wing W.M., Norton S.W., Camwell J.W., Andrews (Preceptor) Treasurer, C. E. Botley Sec., Thomas S.D., Turner J.D., Sherring I.G. P.M.'s Bros. W. Goss, F. Botley, Bailey, Sperring; also Bros. C. Pearce 1996, and F. Toynbee 1996. Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes were read, confirmed, and signed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Bailey candidate. Questions leading to the second degree were answered by the same candidate, who was entrusted and in due course the ceremony of passing was rehearsed. Bro. C. E. Botley gave the lecture on the tracing board of the degree. Bro. Norton answered the questions leading to the third degree. Bros. C. Pearce and F. Toynbee, of the Priory Lodge of Acton, No. 1996, were elected members. Bro. Sperring was elected W.M. for 27th February, after which Lodge was closed and adjourned.

On Friday, 27th February.—Bros. Norton W.M., Cammell S.W., Thomas J.W., F. Botley Secretary, Turner S.D., C. E. Botley J.D. Bailey I.G., Andrews Preceptor, Wing, &c. Lodge was formally opened and the minutes of last meeting were read and signed. The W.M. vacated the chair in favour of Bro. C. E. Botley. Bro. Wing answered the questions leading to the third degree and was entrusted. Lodge was opened in the third degree, and the ceremony was rehearsed. Lodge closed in the third degree. Bro. Norton resumed the chair. Lodge was closed in the second degree. Bro. C. E. Botley worked the first section, and Bro. F. Botley the second section of the first lecture. Bro. Cammell was elected W.M. for the next meeting. A vote of thanks was accorded to Bro. Norton on his taking the chair for the first time. Lodge was closed in due form. The brethren meet at eight p.m.

Star Lodge of Instruction, No. 1275.—Although an "off night" last Saturday, it was an extraordinarily enjoyable one, at the Five Bells, New Cross, under the auspices of this Lodge of Instruction, which is one of the first rank in the South of London. Bro. Beavis, W.M. of the Southwark Lodge 879, presided, with Bro. Stamp S.W., Nightingale J.W., Giddins S.D., Wilkinson J.D., Eaton I.G., Walter Martin Preceptor, C. L. Tokely Sec., G. Powell Org., and about forty other brethren. Lodge having been opened in due form, Bro. Holding offered himself as a candidate for passing, answered satisfactorily the interrogatories, and was entrusted. Lodge was then opened in the second degree, and Bro. Holding was passed to F.C., the ceremony being perfectly rehearsed by the W.M. The brethren having been called from labour to refreshment and vice versa, the ceremony of installation was rehearsed by the W.M. Bro. Beavis, Bro. Martin personating the candidate. The eloquent manner in which the charges were delivered by Bro. Beavis elicited the unbounded and genuine appreciation of the brethren, whose unanimous verdict was that they had assisted at a rare intellectual treat. The musical portion of the ceremonies, which lend such charm to meetings at this Lodge of Instruction, were conducted by Bro. G. Powell, and tended much to enhance the pleasure of, as well as the interest in, the proceedings of the evening. The newly-installed Master invested his officers, with a few appropriate remarks to each as to his respective duties. Resuming in the third degree and closing to the first, the first section of the lecture was worked by Bro. Giddins, who acquitted himself creditably. Several members were elected, and heartiest good wishes expressed. On the motion of Bro. Youngman P.M., who had acted as Director of Ceremonies, seconded by Bro. Grummant P.M., and cordially supported by Bro. Good P.M., a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Bro. Beavis for the admirable and impressive manner in which he had rehearsed the ceremonies, and in response Bro. Beavis tendered his heartfelt thanks. He had endeavoured to qualify himself for the Master's chair, and he thought no Mason's duties were complete unless he was prepared to instal his successor. He would soon have the pleasure of installing their worthy Preceptor pro tem, into the chair of his own Lodge, and he had not the slightest fear but that Bro. Martin would signalise his year by giving every satisfaction to the brethren. The Secretary reported that, in accordance with request at the last meeting, he had sent a letter of sympathy to Bro. Chatterton, in his illness, and had received a grateful and appreciative reply. There was reason to hope that Bro. Chatterton would rally, and the brethren expressed their fervent wishes for his speedy restoration to health. Bro. Powell thanked the brethren of this Lodge of Instruction for so liberally contributing to his list as a Steward at the Festival of the Benevolent Institution, when he was enabled to take up £150 3s. Out of that sum £15 13s came from his own Lodge, No. 1185, and the remainder from this Lodge of Instruction. Bro. Martin kindly withdrew in order to allow him (the speaker) to attend as Steward. There were 164 Stewards representing London, and he stood eleventh on the list; of the total number of 354 Stewards from all parts of the kingdom he was eighteenth in order. He expressed his thanks to the brethren of this Lodge for the support they had given him. Bro. Martin said he should go up next year, and hoped, instead of taking up £150, he might be enabled to take up £300. At headquarters this Lodge of Instruction was well known, and the efforts of the brethren were much appreciated by the executive of the Charities. The remainder of the evening was spent in harmony.

Hyde Park Lodge of Instruction, No. 1425.—A meeting was held on 2nd March, at the Fountains Abbey Hotel, 111 Praed-street, Paddington, W. Bros. Wood W.M., Mason S.W., Lawrence J.W., Read P.M. 511 Treasurer, H. Dehane P.M. 1543 Secretary, Humfress S.D., Mote J.D., Cruttenden Steward, Friend I.G.; P.M.'s Bros. G. P. Festa, W. H. Chalfont, Jubal Webb; Cliburn, Dobbin, Middleweek, Francis, Coleman, Robinson, Death. Lodge was opened in due form and the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The call off and on was practised. The ceremonies of initiation and passing were then rehearsed. Bro. Mason was elected Worshipful Master for 9th March. A unanimous vote of thanks was recorded to Bro. Dobbin for his courtesy and kindness to the brethren who attend this Lodge of Instruction. The Lodge was closed in perfect harmony.

Rose Lodge of Instruction, No. 1622.—The usual meeting of this Lodge was held on Thursday evening, the 26th ult., at the Stirling Castle Hotel, Church-street, Camberwell. There was an unusual number of brethren present, in consequence of its being announced that the Fifteen Sections would be worked. Lodge having been opened in due form by the W.M. Bro. Rose P.M. 73, Preceptor, and the minutes of the preceding meeting having been read and confirmed, the working was proceeded with, as follows:—First Lecture—Bros. Martin, Kettle-White, Wilson, Stone, Channon, Morshe, Hilton. Second Lecture—Bros. Briant, Grummant, Voisey, Hilton, Voisey. Third Lecture—Bros. Stone, Vincent, Grummant. Several brethren were proposed and duly elected as members. Bro. Britton W.M. 1329 proposed that a cordial vote of thanks be accorded to Bro. Rose for the manner he had conducted the work of the evening. They were indebted to Bro. Rose for the assiduity with which he attended to the duties of Preceptor, both in that Lodge and at the Peckham Lodge, held at the Lord Wellington. There was not a brother present who had not cause to be thankful for the edification received at his hands. Bro. Wilson seconded the proposition. Bro. Rose thanked the brethren. For the last seventeen years he had been a Preceptor, during which time he had assisted in working the Fifteen Sections again and again, but on no previous occasion had he been so much pleased with the accuracy of the work done as on that evening. All the brethren had answered to their names, and all had been perfect. Rev. Bro. Sturdee W.M. proposed a vote of thanks to the brethren who had worked the sections. The annual meeting and dinner of this Lodge will be held on Tuesday evening next, when a large assemblage of the brethren is anticipated.

Kingsland Lodge of Instruction, No. 1693.—On Monday last, at Bro. Baker's, Cock Tavern, Highbury, N. Bros. Cusworth, Hall, Tillett, Weeden S.W. 861, Fenner, Woodman S.W. 1950, and several other brethren. The work comprised the rehearsal of the ceremony of initiation, Bro. Marks acting as candidate. Bros. Marks and Whiddle answered the questions leading to the second degree. Lodge was advanced and Bro. Turner, as candidate for raising, answered the usual questions, was entrusted, and in due course that ceremony was rehearsed. Lodge was resumed to the first degree, when Bro. Western W.M. 1693 was elected W.M. for Monday, 9th instant. The annual supper will be held on Monday, 23rd March, tickets 3s 6d each. Bro. Western in the chair, Bro. FRESH SILVER DISCOVERIES IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—At Sunny Corner there is an immense quantity of silver ore in sight for smelting, and one large furnace is in operation. At Silverton two fresh finds have been made in the vicinity of Lake's Camp. One shows horn silver on the surface. In the other, one man in three days brought to grass £3,000 worth of ore. Several other Silverton mines report rich yields. A number of mineral leases have been taken up near Locksley in the Lithgow district, where the prospects are said to be good for silver-mining.

LODGES OF INSTRUCTION.

To the Editor of the Freemason's Chronicle.

Dear Sir and Brother,—In a recent issue of the Freemason's Chronicle, "Mariner" pointed out that many Lodges of Instruction were far removed from their parent Lodges. There are various causes for this state of things, which at first sight appear to be very undesirable. A consideration of the whole question may not be just now out of place, if only to look at it in its many-sided forms.

Aspirants for office naturally seek for instruction in the ritual in use in their own Lodges, and they reasonably expect to find it in those seminaries of the Craft which derive their authority from the parent Lodge. The results hardly ever realise expectations, for reasons which are not far to seek. Much depends upon the Preceptor, who not infrequently belongs to some other Lodge than the one where he instructs; the consequence is some curious discrepancies in working. They are not so serious as to affect the character of the ceremony, or to alter the meaning of the ritual, but they are puzzling to the neophyte, and often confusing to the expert. The remedy for this is an act of uniformity, which I do not recommend, or for the learner to seek out for himself that kind of instruction which will best meet his needs. The parent Lodge of Instruction undoubtedly has the first claim upon the members of the enfranchising Lodge, but loyalty in some cases must yield to necessity. Masonic schools are to be found in every part of London, and he would be a very poor-spirited brother indeed who would count a short journey too much trouble to obtain the teaching he deems so necessary for his success. There is no royal road to Masonic knowledge. It must be toiled for, and he who gains it through difficulties will appreciate it the more. Besides, there is the advantage of extended intercourse, which to the intelligent brother means a fuller and loftier conception of the Craft. Just as travel enlarges the mind, so does the continued and varied interchange of thought as to the rendering of the ceremonies of the Order tend to enlightenment and confidence. He who is working for an appointment should stick to the Lodge of Instruction best suited to his requirements. He who has passed through the ordeal of office should seek every opportunity to enlarge his experience in order to qualify him in reality as well as in name for the distinguished position of a P.M., a post of honour and responsibility. I by no means wish to depreciate Lodge teaching and experience, and exalt the instruction imparted in Lodge schools. There is all the difference in the world between the solemnity and grandeur of a cathedral and the simplicity—almost barrenness—of a secluded room of even a first class hotel. In both cases the ritual may be the same, but how different the surroundings! The Lodge Temple is for service, in which experts lead and the rest follow. Schools of Instruction are for all, where the humblest member may figure as Master one week and lapse into the humblest position the next. To my mind, the brother who desires experience in its most diverse and practical form should frequent Lodges of Instruction rather than regular Lodges. Intercourse would be freer, and certainly the practice in signs, gestures, and formularies would be greater. There would be no fear of the migratory brother becoming slovenly if he attended Lodges of Instruction. A good Preceptor, one worthy of the name, would always insist upon accuracy in the performance of Lodge duties. He is the teacher, the ruler for the time being, and all who sit under him must obey his authority. If challenged, he should be ready with a reason for his own method of working. Endowed with autocratic powers, he should not be an autocrat. He should be "guide, philosopher, and friend." In the presence of such a man intercourse becomes enjoyable and instructive, and affords training, not only in the forms and ceremonies, but in the courtesies of life, and the moral and intellectual character of the Craft.

Some Lodges of Instruction are content to work the ceremonies only; others combine the lectures with them. It is a moot question as to which is best. It appears to me that a knowledge of the former is all that is required for the Master Mason, and that directly he seeks office he should begin the study of the latter. The ceremonies are for the learner, the lectures are for the student. The ceremonies are beautiful in themselves, but when supported by the lectures sublime. In their complete form they open up the portals of mystery and invite reverence and contemplation. Of course, I have set up an ideal Lodge of Instruction and Preceptor. I cannot say that my experience would warrant me in saying that the ideal had been reached. On the contrary, in most cases Preceptors have been neither better nor worse than the brethren generally, and only differ in this, that they are more or less masters of the ceremonies and lectures, and are able to work them mechanically. I never yet heard a Preceptor enter into the hidden meaning of any portion of text or subject, never go beyond mere verbal declamation and accuracy. In this respect even there is great room for improvement. Every brother knows that the language of the ceremonies is beautiful, and many of them know how adapted it is to elocutionary display; and yet how few understand, or if they do understand, care to take the trouble to make necessary emphasis and pauses. I do not expect a W.M. to be a finished elocutionist, but I do look for something like force of expression and clearness of intonation. As a rule, both conditions are violated, and I hold that the blame is due in a measure to the Preceptor, who should instruct as to manner as well as to the ipsissima verba. It is, perhaps, too much to expect that Preceptors will become philosophers as well as instructors; but I believe it would be a grand thing for the Craft if efforts were made to blend spiritual, intellectual, and moral lessons with the illustrations of the forms in which they are enclosed.

There are some points in your leader last week on this subject I should be glad to dwell upon, but I must defer the matter until a future opportunity. I should be glad to see this question taken up with earnestness, in order that the most glorious mundane institution ever known should be worthy of its fame.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

Watchman.

FREEMASONRY AND THE PRESS.

To the Editor of the Freemason's Chronicle.

Dear Sir and Brother,—No doubt I shall be put down as very heterodox by all those—and their number is legion—whose god is their stomach, whose love of luxury and ease is a passion, but I hold a higher view of Masonic duty and pleasure, and fearlessly assert that so long as proper discipline in Lodges is permitted to languish as it does now, and so long as the present slavish devotion to the table lasts, there is no possible hope for that new birth of intelligence the necessity for which you contended last week.

At first sight it may appear that the connection between Masonic discipline and the desire for literature is about as remote as is our Royal Grand Master from the man in the moon. There is, however, a relevancy which I hope to make apparent to the thoughtful, though I despair of reaching the consciences of those who forget everything else when indulging in the luxuries of the table. I assume as a fact, and few will dispute the accuracy of my conclusion, that by far the majority of members of the Craft do not know or have forgotten how to enter a Lodge properly. When they know they are generally careless in performance, as if the forms of salutation and recognition were mere idle mummeries. If any one doubts this statement, let him observe for himself, and if he be of a humourous turn of mind, he will not fail to find food for amusement; if, on the other hand, he believes, as I do, that the forms are but the caskets of the jewels within, the rough stone covering the sparkling gem, he will feel pained and discouraged at the indifference and slovenliness so habitually displayed. There is no brother so obtuse and illiterate as to be unable to distinguish the difference between the present slipshod methods of salutation and rehearsal and the skilful performance of Lodge duties. Every brother can understand, if he cannot always fully appreciate, clear articulation, grammatical expression, and elocutionary force. To the cultured ear and mind the correct and fervid delivery of the prayers and other ceremonial language is an exquisite charm. It is of itself an elevating kind of education, and were the qualifications for office more studied than they are, were the test of fitness made more real, and the conditions more stringent, much that is now gross, selfish and degrading would vanish. What is true of the working of the ceremonies is also true, but in a lesser degree, of the methods of entering the Lodge. With the enforced careful performance of the several offices of the Craft would come a salutary lesson in discipline. Improved practice would necessarily tend to enlarge thought, and as nature is said to lead up to nature's God, so would the symbols of the Fraternity lead to the study of their hidden meaning. As children begin with learning the alphabet, so Freemasons begin with learning the signs. If the learner stops at either stage, letters and signs become skeletons—mere drybones. Letters skilfully formed into words open out a new hope to the child, signs faithfully and intelligently translated into action are the life of Freemasonry. In both cases the preliminary knowledge must be complete in order that the superstructure may grow in strength and beauty.

It is an admitted axiom that upon the early training of the young depends the career of the adult. Healthy moral and intellectual instincts when properly cultivated in the child, as a rule develop into a strong well-balanced mind. Good training does not necessarily mean ostracism from fleshly indulgences, on the contrary, it enables the man who possesses it to partake of the good things of this world so as to minister to his necessary and natural wants. The educated man makes the pleasures of the table serve their proper purpose, but he refuses to become the slave of desires. The initiate in Freemasonry just needs to be trained in the same way, then like results might fairly be expected to follow. Instead of lamenting the apathy and ignorance that now prevails, a healthy growth of intelligence would spring up, and with it would come an increased desire to know more of the inward spiritual workings of the Order. The learned labours of our forefathers would find new students, mysteries that now lie concealed would probably yield to that keener vision of young enthusiasts, and the moral and intellectual status of the whole body would be placed on a footing as firm as the rock of ages. If Freemasonry is not divine it is nothing, and if hitherto it has been made of little effect, it is because the soul has not burst through the carcase which holds it, or its brightness has been dimmed by dark shadows. Clear these away, let the light shine as full as the grand orb of day, then Freemasonry will appear in its true glory. The pleasures of the table would not be less, their enjoyment would be more pure and chaste. The social intercourse of the brethren would then indeed be "a feast of reason and a flow of soul." How little there is now of either, I leave to the brethren to consider; for myself, I may say that I have often left the banquet table with sad misgivings as to the moral teachings of the Craft, and as to its possible future. I expect to be met with sneers and cries of "goody goody." Even giants in culture and morality have met with the scoffs of the unthinking, and it is not likely that a puny disciple like myself will escape; hard words, however, break no bones, and I am contented to follow those whose motto in all things just and true is "Excelsior."

I shall be met too, most likely, with something like the following: "Look at our Charitable Institutions, at the increase in the number of members, and the power of the Order." My reply would be—that numbers is no test of real progress, that the Charities, glorious as they are, might still be better, and that power is more seeming than real. Most brethren who have given the matter a thought do not regard numbers as equivalent to strength, and it is an open secret that the demands for succour have outgrown the power to relieve. Every year makes the difficulty greater on the part of the Secretaries in getting together the necessary sums to meet the needs of the several Institutions, and no one will say that the means adopted are always dignified and such as bespeak the possession of the power so often claimed. No doubt there is power in the Order, but it wants guiding and utilising. There is the power of the mind as well as the depth of the pocket, the strength and ever-increasing vigour of intelligence which centres its hopes on the science and moral and spiritual beauties of the Craft. Depend upon it, Sir, Freemasonry in England will never be worthy of their inheritance until they learn the value of its literature, until they put the desires of the mind above the lusts of the flesh. One of the simplest and readiest means to this end is to improve the discipline of the Lodge, and to encourage the practice of an easy and correct, at the same time solemn rehearsal of the ceremonies.

Thanking you in anticipation for the insertion of this letter,

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

PROGRESS.

THE ROMAN CATHOLIC BISHOP AND FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the Nottingham Daily Guardian.

SIR,—Bishop Bagshawe's silly attack on the Masonic Brotherhood has now become an annual affair. The general mot d'ordre comes, of course, from Rome, but in a local pastoral the matter becomes a gratuitous insult to a large body of leading and honourable men in our community.

So long as Dr. Bagshawe confines his Lenten remarks to those innocent injunctions of culinary discipline, which he deems good for his flock—as, for instance, whether their omelette may be cooked in butter or suet—we have no quarrel with him. We can only hope that his followers are loyal to him in his capacity of maitre du cuisine. The Salvation Army has its bill of fare—Hallelujah jam and other delicacies—why should not the bishop and the Romanists enjoy theirs?

When, however, the bishop takes the liberty of classing us, as Masons, with assassins and dinamitards, it is a more serious matter. The attack is neither truthful nor charitable, and by way of turning the bishop's guns on himself I should like to ask him a question or two.

Who are the assassins and dynamiters plotting against the Government? If those we have caught and hanged are specimens of the whole, without exception, whether Irish, French, or American, they all belong to the Romish Church. The Phœnix Park gang present no exception. A priest of Bishop Bagshawe's persuasion invariably gave the last ministrations on the scaffold. I challenge the bishop to produce any one outside his own communion who has put hand to dagger or dynamite against the English Government. Masonry can take care of itself, but how will the Lenten pastoral get out of this?

Dr. Bagshawe would have us believe that the millennium of morals would at once set in if we all joined the Romish Church. I prefer the verdict of history on the subject. Let us take Italy as an example, when the whole nation was on its knees to Rome. The morals of Italy at this stage of her history would have made a Zulu blush. Assassination, of which the bishops speaks, was so rife in Rome itself that it was reduced to a fine art, and could be purchased like any common commodity, and what is worse pardoned by the Church for a consideration.

A bishop of the Romish sect must smile as he pens his little anathema against the Masons as a secret society, for does not his own religious communion embrace the Jesuits, the most gigantic and corrupt secret society the world has ever seen—"a society," says Boileau, "whose work has ever been to lengthen the creed and shorten the decalogue?" The principles of Jesuit morals are so corrupt that no true Mason could for a moment associate himself with such. Let me add for the information of Dr. Bagshawe, and also of his champion, "Pro ecclesia Dei," that they both err in treating Masonry as a religion. It does not profess to be or call itself a religion, but a system of morality; and as a Mason of some experience I may add that the system is so lofty and pure that all the little thunder of all the Lent pastorals of all the Romish bishops in the world will never shake its stability.

I am, Sir, &c.

Bros. Brown, Butterworth, and Foulson, Quartermasters of the Brigade of Guards now on its way to Egypt, are all members of the Wanderers' Lodge, No. 1604. We wish them success, and a safe and speedy return to their native land.

We note that within the last few weeks Bro. Frank Snook, late of the King's Arms, Kentish Town, has taken over the business of Mr. Harris, at the Golden Anchor Tavern, Evelina-road, Peckham, and that by improvements which have been effected in the management the old "Anchor" is becoming an increasingly favourite haunt of the brethren of "ye mystic tie" residing in this part of the Peckham district. REVIEWS.

All Books intended for Review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, Belvidere Works, Hermes Hill, Pentonville, London, N.

—:o:—

"Freemasons' Calendar and Pocket Book for the Year 1885." London: Spencer's Masonic Depot, 23A Great Queen-street, W.C.

"Irish Freemasons' Calendar and Directory for the Year 1885." Dublin: S. Underwood. To be had at Freemasons' Hall, Molesworth-street.

"The Freemasons' Calendar and Directory for Gloucester, 1885." Gloucester: John Bellows.

"The Masonic Year Book for the Province of Cambridgeshire, 1885.' Cambridge: W. P. Spalding, 43 Sidney-street.

"The Freemason's Calendar and Directory for the Province of Leicestershire and Rutland, 1885." Leicester: J. and T. Spencer, Cane-street.

"Masonic Calendar and Official Directory for the Province of Wiltshire, 1885." Devizes: W. H. Bush, Wine-street.

HERE are six eminently useful Masonic publications, varying in character and importance, yet all fulfilling a good purpose. It is scarcely necessary to dwell upon the merits of the first-mentioned work, they are so well known and widely appreciated. The Calendar is published for the benefit of the Charity Fund, under the sanction of the United Grand Lodge of England, and by command of the Most Worshipful Grand Master. Cum privilegio is as clearly indicated as if the words were printed on the title page, according to the practice pursued in the authorised issues of Bibles and Prayer-Books. No Mason can be said to be informed upon matters relating to the Craft in general unless he possesses and studies this Calendar, and although improvements might be suggested, we see nothing in the work as it stands to impair its usefulness, or to derogate from the position it has attained.

Like the above, the Irish Calendar is published under authority, and is dedicated to the Most Worshipful his Grace the Duke of Abercorn, K.G., Grand Master. It is a very complete compilation. The scope of the work embraces all that is generally found in a pocket-book, so that the Calendar should be almost as welcome to the citizen as to the Freemason. Evidently much labour has been bestowed upon the present work, and if the details are as accurate as the arrangement is comprehensive, it is worthy of all praise. No feature seems to have been omitted that could make this brochure serviceable, and while conning its contents we could not resist the feeling that we should like to know more of our Irish brethren than we do. That they are equal to the business demands of the Craft the book before us proves, and we are sure that moral and intellectual culture has not been neglected. At any rate, it is only necessary to read the names and descriptions of the brethren given in this useful Calendar to arrive at the conclusion that the Fraternity in Ireland comprises the flower of the country, and that so long as they are true to the teaching of Freemasonry, the Queen will never lack loyal subjects, nor England warm allies. Treason mongers may rave, and communists may plot, but our Royal Grand Master will neither lack friends nor a welcome befitting his position and merits when he visits the Emerald Isle.

We hardly know which to admire most in the Gloucester Calendar—the handsome style in which it is printed, or the excellence and completeness of the information which Bro. R. Vassar-Smith, Provincial Charity Secretary, has brought together. All that is needed for a Mason of the Province to know is recorded, and much useful matter is added relative to the adjoining provinces of Bristol, Berkshire, Herefordshire, Monmouth, Oxfordshire, Somersetshire, Warwickshire, Wiltshire, and Worcestershire. It is an able and compact contribution to Masonic reference books, and well accords with the spirit of the Gloucester brethren, as evidenced by their recent liberality and that of their Provincial Grand Master, Right Worshipful Bro. the Right Hon. Sir M. E. Hicks-Beach, Bart., M.P., P.S.G.W., under whose presidency at the Festival last week the funds of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution secured such large augmentation.

The Cambridgeshire Calendar seems to be the production of Bro. W. Spalding, and without bearing the stamp of official recognition, there is internal evidence that great care and labour has been bestowed upon this useful and unpretentious manual. It is a brief but apparently complete compendium of the Lodges and Temples held under the Craft, Arch, Mark, Knights Templar, and Rose Croix degrees. The Province is so small that we wonder at it possessing a Calendar to itself, but Bro. Spalding has faith in the enterprise and in the public spirit of the brethren with whom he is associated.

Bro. Samuel S. Partridge P.M. P.Z., Deputy Provincial Grand Master, is the compiler of the Leicestershire and Rutland Calendar, and right well has he executed his task. The book is compact in size, and the arrangement of dates and diary clear and useful. The information respecting the Province is full, and no doubt accurate. In addition there is a list of Lodges, &c., in the adjoining provinces of Warwickshire, Northe and Hunts, Nottinghamshire, and Derbyshire.

The Masonic Calendar for Wiltshire is issued with the sanction of the Right Worshipful Lord Methuen, Provincial Grand Master, and is edited by Bro. William Nott P.M. P.Z., Provincial Charity Secretary. The style of printing falls somewhat short of other models we have named, but the contents of the work have been well and carefully done. There is no diary, but the Calendar portion furnishes a complete guide to meetings. Those interested in Provincial Benevolent Fund work would do well to get this little guide. It contains a copy of the rules in operation in the Province of Wiltshire, and a record of work done. What is briefly recorded about Wiltshire Freemasonry in the Gloucestershire diary is here set forth fully and clearly, and as a reference book it is all that can be desired.

A Diary and Almanack for 1885 has been issued by the Accident Insurance Company Limited, St. Swithin's-lane, London, E.C. The spaces for diary and dates are sufficient for a book for the pocket, and the incidents recorded at the foot of the pages will help the memory in recalling facts that so soon become history now-a-days. Of course the Company has taken care to give full information of what they are prepared to do for the public, which to those who travel will be very useful. The work is issued for gratuitous circulation, and can be had at the Office as above.

Cassell and Co. are issuing, in monthly parts, a new and revised edition of their "Popular Educator," one of the best and most complete works of the kind ever issued. When first brought out, the style and arrangement were unique; rivals have since sprung up, but none equals the original in comprehensiveness and interest.

"The Life and Words of Christ," by Cunningham Geikie, D.D., is another serial work issued by the same firm. The author is known and admired by all sections of the Christian Church; and it speaks well for him when such representatives of opposite religious views as the Archbishop of York and the Rev. C. H. Spurgeon stand sponsors for the excellence of his work. Dr. Geikie is a somewhat prolific writer; all his works are highly prized, but none exceeds, or indeed equals in interest, the story so graphically and reverently told in the pages before us. It is the sweet story of old, related by a master mind, to which justice has been done by the publishers, so far as outward clothing is concerned. The book will be a handsome addition to Christian literature.

Obituary.

Bro. WILLIAM STEPHENS P.M., 1489, 1642, Grand Pursuivant, &c.

IT is with extreme regret we have to record the death of Bro. William Stephens, the Grand Pursuivant of the Grand Lodge of England for the current year, which sad event recently occurred at Auckland, New Zealand. Brother Stephens had been in failing health for some time past, and his journey to the Antipodes was undertaken in the hope of benefitting him. It has not, however, had the desired result, and we now have to mourn the loss of a most worthy Mason and one of our most intimate acquaintance in the mystic circle. Brother Stephens was well known in London, and took an active interest in more than one Metropolitan Lodge. We may fairly say that the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge, No. 1642, owed much of its success to him, and its members will no doubt acutely feel his loss, following as it does on that of more than one of its oldest and most distinguished members. We beg to tender our sincerest sympathy to his family in their bereavement.

UNITED SERVICE CHAPTER, No. 1428.

THE annual meeting for the installation of the Principals of the above Chapter for the ensuing year was held at the Masonic Hall, Landport, on Friday, 20th ult. The ceremony was performed by Comp. Arnold Z. in a very able manner, and he installed the following as Principals:—Comps. C. Travess Z., G. R. Strick H., and John Laverty J. (in the place of Comp. Mason J., who had resigned). The other Officers invested were Comps. W. A. Marshallsay S.E., W. Miller S.N., Lind P.Z. Treasurer, Mitchell P.S., Stockall First A.S., Kenshott Second A.S., Archer D.C., Sylvester Organist, Coleman and Coldrey Stewards, and G. Carter Janitor. A vote of thanks was passed at the close of the ceremony to Comp. Arnold for the excellent manner in which he had performed the duty of Installing Principal. At the conclusion of the business an excellent banquet was served by the steward of the club (Mr. Kingswell). The proceedings were of a most enjoyable character.

Panmure Mark Mariners' Lodge, No. 139.—An emergency meeting was held on the 2nd inst., at the Masonic Hall, Red Lion-square. Bros. Poore as C.N.; Vincent and Pulman P.C.N.'s, and the full complement of Officers. Bro. Selfe P.G.D., 25, Sydney, was advanced to the degree of Ark Mariner. Lodge was then closed.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are strongly recommended to all persons who are much reduced in power and condition, whose stomachs are weak, and whose nerves are shattered. The beneficial effects of these Pills will be perceptible after a few days' trial, though a more extended course may be required to establish perfect health. Holloway's medicine acts on the organs of digestion, and induces complete regularity in the stomach, liver, pancreas, and kidneys. This treatment is both safe and certain in result, and is thoroughly consistent with observation, experience, and common sense. The purification of the blood, the removal of all noxious matter from the secretions, and the excitement of gentle action in the bowels, are the sources of the curative powers of Holloway's Pills.

ROMANTIC SCENERY IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—Those who imagine that New South Wales is deficient in picturesque scenery labour under a grave error, as in many places it rivals the most beautiful portions of Switzerland or Italy. The Blue Mountains, crossed by a railway, abound in spots which tempt the pencil of the artist. Among these are the Adelina Falls. These, situated in one of the most lovely places the imagination can conceive, are not less than 70 feet in their unbroken descent, and are justly admired, tumbling over a mass of dark shining rocks into a scene of sylvan beauty. This water-formed chasm (or "ghwyll" as the Welsh would call it) is fringed with masses of green brushwood and long reedy grass, well shaded everywhere by the white-trunked eucalyptus; the narrow semi-circular valley itself, into which the streamlet dashes, being partially filled up with tall straggling gum-trees. Near the base of the grand cascade there is a fine display of ferns and such like plants. Ferns and creepers overhang this beautiful waterfall like waving tresses, and bedeck the sombre wall of cliff over which the sparkling rivulet descends. Near to this Fall are several elegant coachwood trees and other arborescents such as are usually seen in these moist and secluded localities. The air is deliciously fresh and cool, even during the hottest summer day. Seated in the shade—from his dry and elevated look-out on the solid rock—the visitor may pass many an hour of delicious repose listening to the murmuring splash of the water, the faint whisper of the wind, and the joyous "sweet jargoning" of the birds.

A WEEKLY RECORD OF MASONIC INTELLIGENCE.

Registered at the G.P.O. as a Newspaper.

THE VISIT OF THE GRAND MASTER TO IRELAND.

WHATEVER may have been the reasons which induced their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales to undertake a visit to Ireland, it is certain that their mission is looked upon throughout England as one of peace, or certainly one that it is hoped will lead to more tranquil times in the Sister Isle. It may perhaps be asked, What is this visit to do with Freemasonry? Our answer to this question, until within the last few days, would have been,—absolutely nothing, but since the title of Grand Master of the English Freemasons has been introduced into a letter addressed, or supposed to be addressed, by Fenians resident in Paris to His Royal Highness, the matter has assumed a different aspect, and we now look round for the motive which induced these professed opponents of order to address our Grand Master by his official title as Head of the English Craft. Assuming the letter to which we refer, and a copy of which we publish in another column, to be genuine;—to have been written by those who claim it as their own;—by what right, or for what object, do they select the title of Grand Master of the English Freemasons from among the many enjoyed by the Prince of Wales? It cannot be that the writers themselves are Freemasons,—active Freemasons we mean—for no member of our Brotherhood would take part in the work they profess to be engaged upon; while, if they were admitted when in a different frame of mind, and have since renounced the Order, it is hardly to be expected they would so far countenance it as to recognise its Grand Master. We are sure, therefore, that the writers of the letter are not members of our Order. Such being the case, we feel there must be some other motive than mere caprice for associating Freemasonry with so unholy a cause. We are among those who think that the Prince and Princess of Wales are acting somewhat unwisely in trusting themselves to the mercy of such miscreants as we have reason to know Ireland has in its midst, but doubtless all risks were weighed before His Royal Highness came to the decision he has arrived at. Still, it is pretty generally recognised that there are risks, and if it should happen that an attack were attempted on the Royal visitors—which it is to be hoped will not be the case—we feel that the letter to which we have referred would be quoted; and the Masonic Brotherhood accused as being participators in, if not instigators of the attack. It is this eventuality which we think has prompted the writers to address our Grand Master by his Masonic title. Its use in this sense will be an excuse for reproach by the enemies of the Order, even though Freemasons had no hand in using it; while, as we have said, its use will be accepted as evidence of complicity on the part of Freemasons, in any disturbances in Ireland, should such occur during the visit of the Prince and Princess of Wales.

NOT VOLUNTARY.

PERHAPS no phrase employed in connection with the Lodge has been more generally misunderstood than that which is used in the declaration of the candidate indicating that he freely and voluntarily presents himself for initiation. Upon it is built the startling heresy that every duty performed in Masonry is the result of mere volition, and not the direct sequence of a pledge to perform that duty. The mistake originates in the false premise that Masonry is a voluntary institution, whereas directly the contrary is the truth. It is voluntary only in the sense that one is free to ask admission, and that he cannot be received if he applies under compulsion; one is free to assume its obligations, but not to disregard or break them. Once within its pale it is no longer a mere matter of choice. The contract is a mutual one between the initiate and the whole body of the Craft, the consideration for the promise of conformity being the reciprocal promise of others to him. It does not depend upon the faithfulness of others in the performance of their covenants, for if every other Mason in the world should prove false he nevertheless is firmly bound. One has no more moral right to throw off his obligations to the Craft than he has to repudiate his promissory note given for a valuable consideration, and the idea that a Mason may dimit from his Lodge without a cause is as bad in morals as it is in Masonic law. The maxim of the church, "Once a priest always a priest," may be read in Masonry, "Once a Mason always a Mason." The tie is indissoluble and there is no absolution from its consequences.

There is no Masonic obligation stronger, in words, than that which binds the initiate to the observance of the laws, rules and regulations of the Craft, established from time immemorial, and amongst those rules we find one, in the Ancient Charges, which says that "every brother ought to belong to a Lodge and be subject to its bye-laws." When these charges were "extracted from the ancient records," the word "ought" was used in the sense of "to be under obligation to pay—the same as owed," of which Webster gives us three illustrations, as follows, "The due obedience which they ought to the king."—Tyndale. "The love and duty I long have ought you."—Spelman. "That followed, sir, which to myself I ought."—Dryden. Read in this sense it undoubtedly means, that every brother owes to the Craft the duty of belonging to a Lodge. Farther on in the same charges, in speaking of the Lodge, we find these words: In ancient times no Master, or Fellow, could be absent from it, especially when warned to be at it, without incurring severe censure, until it appeared to the Master and Wardens that pure necessity hindered him." But if this is not enough, there is an old regulation directly in point which reads in this way: "No set or number of brethren shall withdraw or separate themselves from the Lodge in which they were made brothers or afterward admitted members, unless the Lodge becomes too numerous; nor even then without a dispensation from the Grand Master or his Deputy. And when they are thus separated they must immediately join themselves to such other Lodge as they like best * * * * * * or else they must obtain the Grand Master's warrant to join in forming a new Lodge."

What language could have been employed to state more plainly the rule that every Mason must be a member of a regular Lodge than is used in these ancient laws, which have everywhere, since the revival of Masonry, been held in the greatest veneration, and upon what a flimsy basis rests the argument of those who claim that one is free to go, according as his own caprice may dictate? One writer cites from the charge delivered to the candidate in the first degree the following sentence, as justifying the idea that a dimit is the inalienable right of a member: "Although your frequent attendance at our regular meetings is earnestly solicited, yet it is not meant that Masonry should interfere with your necessary vocations," language which is far from supporting his position, if, indeed, by implication it does not negative it. While it is true that Masonry regards the obligation to support one's family as paramount to that of attending the Lodge, it never was intended to inculcate the idea that one is free to attend Lodge or not as his comfort, convenience, or pleasure may dictate. It is his employment in his "necessary vocations" which excuses his attendance. But even if it were true that a member is under no obligation to attend his Lodge, that is a very different thing from dimission therefrom.

There is no support for the theory of those who advocate the right of dimission at pleasure any more than there is for the other kindred heresy, which has become so prevalent that an initiate is simply made a Mason by his initiation, and thereafter may become a member, or not, of that or any other Lodge, as he may deem expedient; a sort of honorary member at large, as it were, with no obligations to perform, no responsibility except such as in the exercise of his own "sweet will" he may thereafter choose to impose upon himself, and yet entitled to claim every privilege which Lodge members enjoy, even that of intruding his presence in every regular Lodge, and a participation in its charity fund when his necessities require. It is doubtful if there is any organization outside of Masonry which for a moment would entertain so preposterous a claim as that a dimit is a matter of right without the consent of the other contracting party. It is death by suicide and violation of every economic principle which has been formulated since man was doomed to earn bread by the sweat of his brow. It sets the "drone in the hive of nature, a useless member of [our] society, and unworthy of our protection as Masons," in the chief seat in the synagogue, and places upon him the robe of honour.

There has been an abundance of learned nonsense (I beg ten thousand pardons of the ten thousand brethren whom this shoe fits) written to prove that in its growth Masonry has been governed by a principle so utterly destructive of reason and sound policy.

Said an eminent brother, in a magazine article, not many years ago: "If we cannot make our members feel at home with us, if the principles of the Order are not sufficiently attractive to keep them, in vain shall we attempt to coerce them to remain in our midst. And if Masonry cannot sustain itself without a forced membership the sooner it goes down the better. It is not an institution for freemen if it is a forced involuntary one." All of which sounds very forcible, and doubtless was intended as a "squelcher" upon the very illiberal class of fellows who see in Masonry something more than is exhibited in a political club or a cordwainers' union. The answer is, men should not be made Masons to whom the principles of the Craft are not sufficiently attractive to keep them true to their obligations to it. As well attempt the hopeless task of making a whistle out of a hog's tail as to attempt to make Masons out of such material. It is one of those things which cannot be done. They may go through the forms a dozen times and yet be as far from being Masons as they were before the ink dried with which they signed their petitions. If we could lawfully do so, the sooner we bade them depart with a blessing, the better it would be for them and us too —particularly us—but if they must needs go out, by all means they should leave behind them all which was bestowed upon them when they came in. Force is a relative term, and it is somewhat difficult to understand its application by the esteemed brother. If, however, he means to say that moral force cannot be applied to hold our Lodges together, then he virtually admits that there is no such thing as a Masonic tie, that Masonry is but a rope of sand —a mere worthless, idle ceremonial, utterly beneath the contempt of sensible men. Masonry, like all other human organizations, for good, is held together solely by moral force, acting upon the hearts and consciences of its members. It would "die like a dull worm, to rot," the moment that force ceased to act upon its votaries, and it ought to. The glittering but meaningless generality of the brother quoted, that "it is not an institution for freemen, if it is a forced involuntary one," sounds pretty, but it is wholly inapplicable to Masonry because no one is "forced" to become a Mason, but every one who has become one is forced for ever to remain a Mason. So long as moral forces exert an influence, there can, in the very nature of things, be no such thing as an organized society, which, after its inception, is not a "forced involuntary one," simply because moral obligations are not like garments to be laid aside at pleasure. One might as well say he is not a free man because he is under an obligation from his birth to do right, and is not at liberty to do wrong. No one is free, if the tast of freedom set up by our brother is a correct one, for we are all bound to obey the laws of the land enacted by rightful authority, but if those laws are just, they do not deprive us of our liberties, and the simple fact that we are compelled by a sound public sentiment to obey them does not make us any the less freemen. The fact that we make a voluntary promise to our wife not to get drunk does not make us her slave. Such reasoning, or rather want of reason, would overthrow the whole social system of civilization and destroy every government on earth.

If the Ancient Charges are the law of Masonry, it follows that every Mason is obligated to "belong to a Lodge and be subject to its bye-laws," and the modern practice of granting dimits whenever they may be asked for, regardless of the reason or without any reason at all, is in violation of the very letter of that law, and consequently an innovation upon the body of Masonry. Enforced membership is, therefore, the fixed and immutable law of the Society, which can never be changed. The true remedy for non-affiliation is to firmly impress upon the mind of every candidate the necessity for considering well the step he proposes to take, in view of the fact that the relations he seeks to establish are not for a day, but for all time, and then only to grant dimits for the purpose indicated by the Ancient Charges.

So long as we continue to work into our building timber rotten at the heart, or, in plain English, men who do not keep their promises, made in the face of the world, we need not look for them to keep those made in secret to the chosen few, and when the novelty of being in good company has worn off, we may as well open the door and let them depart with the stamp of perfidy upon them, but when their Masonic clothing is laid aside, with it should be laid all the rights, benefits, and privileges of Masonry. The real question at issue is, not how the matter shall be remedied, but how it may be prevented—some one to tell us how to escape the disease—not a nostrum to cure it. This the writer has endeavoured to point out, with what success his readers must determine for themselves.—Voice of Masonry.

PREFERENCES.

A BROTHER, formerly a resident of New York, and an active member of one of our Lodges, moved to another country, from which he writes us, saying that he had visited a Lodge in his new location, and expresses unbounded surprise at finding our methods of procedure entirely set aside, and a formula of their own adopted in its place. He mentions various particulars which, as a matter of course, we cannot re-produce in this place; but we may say that the examination consisted principally in examining his diploma; that the altar formed part of the Master's desk; that the entire ceremonial was read from a book; that the Lodge was opened and all business, including the ballot, transacted in the E.A. Degree; that where a candidate was rejected by eleven adverse votes, the Master ordered that its effect should continue for a corresponding number of years; that a petition after having been received and referred, was allowed to be withdrawn, and others of a more esoteric character.

We are not at all surprised, and proceed to explain to our esteemed correspondent that while the principles of Freemasonry are everywhere the same, and the instructions to a candidate in every country tend to the same point, though each country has its own idiosyncrasies and walks in its path toward the end in view, we cannot make our forms and our laws of force beyond our own jurisdiction. We entertain no doubt that if our brother were to go to England, from whence all our Masonry comes, he would be equally surprised—nay, even shocked—by the difference in their mode of conducting the ceremony of initiation, and he and others may be assured that the real bond of unity which is everywhere the same is the legend of the Third Degree, although even this is differently rendered, as one may see by attending any of our city Lodges, composed of brethren of foreign nativity and working in their own language. Nevertheless the result is absolutely the same.

Again, it has probably escaped the notice of our correspondent, as it has that of many others, that, up to 1848 or 1849, not such a dreadful while ago, the Lodges in New York were in the habit of transacting their business in the degree of E.A., which had been their practice from time immemorial up to that date, and that they never thought of opening on the Second or Third degrees, except for performing the ceremony belonging to each degree, respectively. That Lodges in other countries have not thought proper to imitate our example is a matter of their own concern, as will be found by those who visit Lodges on the continent of Europe, or in Central and South America. In many, if not all, the altar is placed in the East, and the use of written or printed rituals is nearly universal among them, our obligations in that respect never having obtained in those countries.

We are of opinion that the placing of our altar is an innovation, made to conform to our ritual, which of itself is an elongation of the practice of the Fathers, and that while it suits us and our habits of thought, must not be held obligatory upon Lodges in other countries, the members of which have not had the advantage of seeing and studying our system, which, professing to be the Ancient York Rite, is in reality the modern or better "American Rite," not practised elsewhere on the surface of the globe.

Finally, our correspondent asks if the Grand Lodge of New York would grant a warrant to a number of brethren domiciled in the country in which he is located, to which we frankly answer that it will not, having quite sufficient to do in caring for the interests of its seven hundred and odd Lodges at home, without any entangling foreign alliances.—New York Dispatch.

THE GRAND MASTER.

THE Christian Million, which is securing for itself a high position as an Illustrated Weekly Paper, published, on the 5th instant, a capital likeness of the Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. The same issue contains the following interesting particulars respecting the Order:—

His Royal Highness was yesterday (Wednesday) re-elected Grand Master of that powerful and wonderful Brotherhood the English Freemasons. It is ten years since he was first elected to this post, and the term of office having expired he has now been selected once more.

Of course those not initiated into this Secret Order were rigidly excluded from witnessing the ceremony of installation at the Royal Albert Hall ten years ago. But the Craft has so many thousands of adherents that there was no lack of attendance—indeed, the managers had great difficulty in deciding the claims of those who wished to be present. At length it was decided that a certain number of tickets should be sent to each Lodge, which were there disposed of among the members by ballot.

It being a Masonic "crime" to allow any of the clothing of the Order to be seen by the outside world, the brethren had to conceal their gorgeous decorations beneath the sombre folds of prosaic overcoats, and it is to be hoped that no portion of their apparel became out of order during travelling, for the slightest error in Masonic regalia is sufficient to exclude the unhappy offender. For the purpose of scrutiny, examiners of clothing, with Grand Pursuivants, &c., were stationed at the doors, and no person was allowed to pass befored he had satisfied these lynx-eyed guardians of the mysteries of the Craft.

Within, there being no fear of any profane and prying eye stealing a hurried glance at the scene, the glories of Masonry were fully displayed. The gorgeous trappings and decorations of the Order, the glittering gems, the mass of brilliant clothing and the Masonic decorations of the Hall itself, made a truly magnificent picture. The "throne" was cushioned and covered with rich purple velvet, and on either side of it were arranged the state chairs of the principal Grand Officers. Thick and sumptuous carpets covered the floor, and exquisite flowers and graceful palms added their beauty to the imposing ceremony.

Freemasonry is, as we suppose nearly every one knows, the popular name of a wide-spread and secret association, existing now, it is said, principally for the mutual aid of its members. Freemasons are found in every civilised quarter of the globe, and are of every religion and of all conditions of life. Every member, before his initiation, makes a solemn engagement never to divulge any of the secrets, signs, or plans of the Order, and, after a probationary interval, if he be found qualified, he is promoted until he has obtained that wider and more profound knowledge of Masonry which will enable him to hold the highest offices of trust in the Fraternity. After the new member has been initiated with due formalities and ceremonies, certain words and signs are given to him by which he may be able to make himself known to other Masons, and convince them, if necessary, that he is a member of the Brotherhood, and entitled to its privileges, should he be in distress in a distant land.

At certain intervals friendly meetings of the Brotherhood are held in "Lodges," and at these gatherings all distinctions of rank and all political and religious differences are laid aside. The Grand Lodge of England has power to grant charters for holding other Lodges, and at the present time it has over 2,000 Lodges under its authority. In Scotland there appears to be about 400 Lodges. The Masons are possessed of great wealth, and support a Masonic Girls' School, Boys' School, Fund for Aged Masons, a Widows' Fund, &c.

Opinions differ as to the origin and antiquity of Freemasonry, some persons maintaining it is as old as creation, others that it originated at the building of the Tower of Babel, and others again trace it back to the building of Solomon's Temple. There can be no doubt, however, that it is of very ancient origin, and it is said that it has been carried down in unbroken succession, through all changes of governments, religions, and forms of civilisation, to the present time. In the beginning of the eighteenth century, however, a change was effected in the constitution of the Fraternity, and while retaining name and customs, &c., it ceased to be connected with building work, and came to exist for fraternal affection and aid.

The first Lodge said to be formed in England was at York, in the year 926, and it is still in existence. Edwin, brother of King Athelstan, was its patron, and obtained for it a charter from the King, and himself became its Grand Master. Its Constitution—still in existence—is reported to be a very curious document, giving the history of the Order from Adam, and containing Rabbinical tales of the building of the Tower of Babel and Solomon's Temple. The architects of Kilwinning Abbey introduced Masonry into Scotland, and the Kilwinning Lodge was the first established in that country. From these two Lodges the principles of the Craft appear to have spread very rapidly throughout Great Britain, and other Lodges were erected. It has survived the jealousy of the Church and of the Crown, though the feeling of the latter against it appears never to have been very strong, and an act passed in its disfavour in Henry III's reign was never enforced. At first the membership appears to have been confined to architects and builders, but in course of time men of all grades and handicrafts, kings, princes, and noblemen, were enrolled as "Free and Accepted Masons."

For the use of Lodges Mr. James Anderson drew up, in 1723, "The Book of Constitutions," which was based upon the "Gothic Constitutions" of 926, and several editions have since been issued. The Order does not seem to have flourished so largely in France and Germany as in England, but of late years it has made great advances in the United States.

The Prince of Wales is not the only Royal Grand Master who has been installed in comparatively recent years. Some sixty or seventy years ago the Duke of Sussex held the office, and among other great notabilities in centuries gone by who have preceded H.R.H. in this post, may be mentioned Henry VII., Cardinal Wolsey, and Sir Christopher Wren.

It is thoroughly in accordance with the Prince's assiduity in fulfilling public duties that he discharges this high office, another instance of which may be seen in the visit which he and the Princess will shortly pay to Ireland. That visit will be a most important public service, and is certainly well-timed. Drawing-room receptions and levées will be held at Dublin Castle on Her Majesty's behalf, and their Royal Highnesses will also visit other parts of the country. Ireland seems settling down to the enjoyment of the results of recent legislation, and this visit may aid these happy results.

The Prince's popularity is largely owing to his frank good nature, boundless tact, and the admirable manner in which he so readily fulfils so many public duties, and we imagine that not the least of these is the Most Worshipful Grand Mastership of the English Freemasons.

The members of the Metropolitan (1507) and King's Cross (1732) Lodges of Instruction will hold an annual banquet in unison. This will take place on Monday next, 16th instant, at the Holborn Restaurant. Tickets, 4/6 each. Bro. W. M. Stiles P.M. 1507 and 1732 will preside, and Bro. Lewis Solomon P.M. 1732 will act as Vice President.

A Convocation of the North London Chapter of Improvement was held on Thursday last, at the Alwyne Castle Tavern, St. Paul's-road, Canonbury, the Companions assembling at eight o'clock. The several chairs were filled by Comps. F. Brasted M.E.Z., Wm. Radcliffe H., G. W. Knight J., J. E. Sheffield S.E., T. C. Edmonds S.N., J. Strugnell P.S. The Officers performed their respective duties in a very able manner.

The following Dinners were held at the Freemasons' Tavern during the week ending 14th March:—

Monday—St. George and Corner Stone Lodge. Tuesday—St. James's Union Lodge, Waldeck Lodge. Wednesday—Enoch Lodge, United Lodge. Thursday — Polish National Lodge. Friday — Britannic Lodge, Bedford Lodge, Eclectic Lodge. Saturday—Phœnix Lodge, Duke of Cornwall Lodge.

DEATH.

STRAND.

"OUTCAST LONDON" has been preached for, lectured at, interviewed, and treated as a psychological demonstration; but a little lady comes back to us from Australia,—and from triumphs there,—to show, with a life and poignancy hitherto unrealised by editors or philanthropists, the horrors that lurk in the dark places of our civilisation. She paints, with eloquence of voice and gesture, Charles Dickens' forlorn waif "Jo." The Murillo delicacy of touch has lost nothing since we parted with this gifted artist, and the pitifulness of the hunted scrap of humanity commands our tears and even reluctant laughter as completely as when Jenny Lee's powers first startled a London audience. Miss Lee is supported by several of the original cast, notably by Mr. Burnett, whose Bucket is admirable in its freedom from exaggeration—a characteristic always in jeopardy in representations from Charles Dickens's novels. Miss Ada Ward made a stately and touching Lady Dedlock, whilst Hortense was portrayed with fire and force by Miss Dolores Drummond, who, by the way, possesses the rare accomplishment of a perfect French accent. Miss Katie Lee's "Guster" made a fit pendant to her gifted sister's "Jo." Mr. Lee, however, out-Dickens Dickens in his impossible Guy Faux beadle. Mr. Wilkinson has very carefully reproduced the original Snagsby. His is a Cruickshank drawing made living. The rest of the cast was efficient, and did their best with the episodical business. We hope that Miss Lee may ere long give us occasion to applaud her in some fresh part, which may not owe all its interest and value to its title rôle alone. The play is very well mounted, while the costumes are for the most part characteristic of forty years ago. The drawing room at Chesney Wold is a fine set piece, rich in colouring, and "Tom's Alone" no less good in its melancholy realism.

GRAND.

THE revival of "For Ever," at this theatre, last Monday, was welcomed with great enthusiasm by the residents of Islington. Mr. George Conquest, who takes the part of Zicky Pastrana, played with his usual artistic finish. The scene at the Aquarium, where he simulates madness, was especially good. He is well backed by the company, amongst whom we may mention Mr. T. F. Nye (as the villainous nephew of Sir Philip Daremount), and Mr. E. Gurney (Sir Philip's son), as being well to the fore. Miss Amy McNeill played with great feeling. "For Ever" will be withdrawn on Saturday, the 21st, and on Monday, the 23rd inst., Mr. J. H. Clynds will re-appear, in a new and original nautical drama, "Before the Mast," by Fred. W. Broughton.

ROYALTY.

IN this struggle for the survival of the fittest among managers, we may expect Mr. Mayer to emerge with the smile of conscious merit. His pleasant season at the Royalty is about to close, with the favourite pyrotechnic display of the respected firm of Tricoche et Cacolet. We are heartily sorry to part with our friends Colombey, Didier, Mme. Léon, and their brilliant confrères, but we shall look forward to many bright hours with them ere next New Year. In the meantime the beautiful and gifted Jane Hading, and the famous singer Mlle. Van Zandt, are promised by Mr. Mayer for his coming season at the Gaiety. "Le Maitre des Forgès," "Fron Fron," and "Prince Zillar," are to be illustrated by Mme. Hading, Damala, and the company from the Gymnase, whilst Mlle. Van Zandt is to appear in the new operas "Lackmé," "Mignon"" and "Mireille."

THE CANTERBURY.

THE farce "Robert Macaire" was originally written for the dramatic blue fire school, but was turned into a burlesque by Frederick Lemaitre, who by it created one of his triumphs. Some of us have alternately laughed and shuddered when Irving and Toole have put on the tattered garments of Bertrand and Robert. But even the twin brethren of tragedy and comedy, with the power of spoken words, scarce give a more living presentment than that of the Martinettis,—Paul and Alfred. With the aid of their graceful sister Josephine, and a well-trained company, their representation may be pronounced a grand success. The drama of course is acted in dumb show, but so admirable is the gesture and facial expression brought to bear that dialogue seems unnecessary. The escape from prison, introduced as a prologue, was followed by the arrival of the hungry pair of rascals at the village inn, where they partake of breakfast under difficulties that keeps the house convulsed with laughter. The theft of the cash box by Robert, whilst Bertrand keeps watch outside, is made a great feature of. Robert (Paul Martinetti) sees the cloak and cocked hat of a gensdarme on a hayfork, and is seized with terror and a mad instinct to murder his supposed enemy. It was here the actor's tragic power showed. The house at the display of his ghastly fear and ferocity grew silent, as, with clenched teeth and starting eyes, he rushes at his supposed victim and strikes again and again. Presently his companion appears, only to be shot by the awakened gensdarme. Bertrand wildly tries to escape, and climbs to the roof of a shed, only to fall, mortally wounded, to the ground. Here he struggles, till he sees his companion's body, when he staggers to it, and gazes with frantic despair, till the death agony seizes him. The reckless defiant villainy of Robert (Alfred Martinetti) was no less ably represented. Those amongst us who, like the Athenians of old, are seeking for something new, will assuredly find it at the handsome hall on the other side the Thames. For those who care to see women, young and graceful, risk life and limb to make a London holiday, we would say nothing more daring has been seen than the trapeze performance of the sisters Vaidis.

MARK MASONRY.

PANMURE LODGE, No. 139.

THE regular meeting of the above was held on the 2nd instant, at the Masonic Hall, No. 8A Red Lion-square. Bro. W. Vincent P.G.O. Middlesex and Surrey W.M., G. Gregory as S.W., T. C. Edmonds as J.W., Axford S.O., G. Allen M.O., C. Tayler J.O., T. C. Edmonds Treasurer, C. Pulman Secretary, C. Phillips S.D., J. Bond J.D., C. Lee Organist, John Grist I.G., T. Poore P.M., C. Thomas Tyler. Visitors—Bros. Harington 8, Gardner 8, Selfe P.G.S.D. Sydney 25, Matier P.G.W., Captain Hunter P.G.M.M. North Wales. After preliminaries, Bro. Church, York Lodge, was elected a member, and ballot was taken for the admission of Bro. Bignold, Eccleston Lodge 1624, and he was advanced into the degree, Bro. Vincent perfectly and impressively conducting the ceremony. The brethren then adjourned to the Holborn Restaurant, where a sumptuous and récherché banquet and dessert was provided by Bros. Gordon and Hamp and served in the Venetian Room. The W.M. proposed the usual Loyal and Mark toasts. These included the health of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as Past Grand Master; Right Worshipful Earl of Kintore G.M.; Right Worshipful Lord Egerton of Tatton D.G.M., and the Grand Officers. In speaking to the latter toast, the W.M. said they were honoured by the presence of Grand Officers, and he would couple with it the name of Brother C. F. Matier P.G.W., who eloquently responded; he referred to the Benevolent Fund attached to the Degree, and hoped they would not forget the 22nd of July next, on which occasion the D.G.M. Lord Egerton of Tatton would preside. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the R.W. Sir Francis Burdett, Prov. G.M. Middlesex, and the Provincial Grand Officers, present and past, and he would call on Bro. Poore P.G.I.G. to respond. Bro. Poore P.M. having acknowledged the compliment, proposed the health of the W.M. Bro. Vincent, he said, had proved himself a good worker; that had especially been seen that night. To refer to his various qualities would be superfluous. It is fully recognised he is well qualified to perform any ceremony required of him. Bro. Vincent said in future he hoped the Lodge would show what it could do; he always felt he had the support of the Officers. The toast of the Exaltee was next on the list. Bro. Bignold was one whom they were all pleased to see; he (the W.M.) was present at his initiation into the Craft; he was sure he would be as good a member in the Mark degree. With the toast also he would associate the name of the joining member, Bro. Church. He hoped to see him in the chair of a Mark Lodge. Bro. Bignold having appropriately responded, Bro. Church made a few remarks. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Past Masters of the Lodge. He regretted so many were absent; but he could speak of their good qualities, especially so of two who were present, and he would call on Bros. Poore and Pulman. The latter brother responded in a very humorous speech; he might say that during the present W.M.'s occupation of the chair all their meetings had been most successful. In proposing the toast of the Visitors, the W.M. said they were honoured by the presence of Bro. Norman Selfe, from the Colonies; this brother desired to take the Ark Mariners' degree. The Lodge also was honoured by the visit of Bro. Capt. Hunter P.G.M. North Wales. He was very pleased to hear him express an opinion, before they left the Lodge, as to the working. Bro. N. Selfe P.S.G.D. Sydney, No. 25, responded; it was with warm heart and feelings that he did so. He had been for twenty years a Mark Mason, but had never seen better working; he had to thank the W.M. for his kind expressions. The Craft Lodge to which he belonged generally had about 20 visitors; it only took 35 days to visit Sydney; if any of the brethren came there they would receive a hearty welcome. Bro. Gardner said this was his first visit since his advancement. He was pleased with the manner the W.M. had performed his duties. The W.M. in proposing the toast of the Wardens and Officers, said that thanks were due to Bros. Gregory and Edmonds; he hoped the Officers would in future be at their posts to be able to assist him, so that the ceremonies might be properly performed; and at the expiration of his year of office that it might be said he had done his duty to their satisfaction. Bros. Gregory and Edmonds having responded, the Tyler gave the parting toast.

Bro. W. W. Morgan, I.P.M. 211, will deliver his Lecture entitled "Our Masonic Institutions; their Establishment and Development," at the Lily of Richmond Lodge of Instruction, at the Greyhound Hotel, Richmond, on Tuesday next, the 17th instant, at 7·30 p.m. Brethren are cordially invited to attend.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—The Great Need.—The blood is the life, and on its purity our health as well as our existence depends. These Pills thoroughly cleanse the vital fluid from all contaminations, and by their means strengthen and invigorate the whole system, healthily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish ordered circulation and secretion through at every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills exercises marvellous power in giving tone to debilitated and nervous constitutions. These Pills do failure all obstructions, both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons, who are naturally weak, or have from some cause become so.

Lodge was opened, and the minutes duly received confirmation. A Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. J. J. Woolley, W.M. elect, was presented and duly installed into the chair by Bro. Wells P.M., who rendered the ceremony perfectly and impressively, warranting the encomiums passed on him at its conclusion. The work was done in the presence of 17 W.M.'s and P.M.'s. On the re-admission of the brethren, the W.M. was saluted according to ancient custom. He then appointed and invested the following as Officers:—Stimson I.P.M., James S.W., Cammell J.W., Dr. Sleeman P.M. Treas., Dukes P.M. Sec., Pritchard S.D., Towers J.D., Burton I.G., W. Scott D.C., Saunders Org., Wells P.M. W.S., A. Walkley Tyler. Applause followed the investiture of each officer. The newly-installed W.M. then showed his proficiency by initiating Messrs. J. Williams and H. H. Barr into the Order. His conduct of the ceremony reflected great credit on him, and augured well for the Lodge continuing to prosper. The W.M.'s next duty was to present to Bro. Stimson, in the name of the Lodge, a very elegant Past Master's jewel. Bro. Stimson's year of office had been the most successful one in the annals of the Lodge; he (Bro. Woolley) hoped he would be spared for many years to wear the jewel among them. Bro. Stimson thanked the W.M. for his kind remarks. Of all the jewels presented him this would be the most valued. Bro. Dukes P.M. then proposed a vote of thanks, to be recorded on the minutes, to Bro. Wells P.M. for the able and impressive manner in which he had performed the ceremony of installation. Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Venetian Room of the Holborn Restaurant, where, to the number of 101, they sat down to a sumptuous and récherché banquet and dessert, provided by Bros. Gordon and Hamp. The tables were artistically decorated, and button-holes were provided for each guest. Grace having been sung, the W.M. said during the evening he should be very brief in his remarks in offering the various toasts. Bro. Stimson I.P.M. said it was his privilege to propose a welcome toast; that was the health of the W.M. On a former occasion he had remarked Bro. Woolley was one who would give them satisfaction and uphold the dignity of the Kent Lodge. The brethren had seen what he could do now he was installed. He knew all hoped he would have a prosperous year of office, and enjoy good health. He would now ask them to drink the toast with the heartiness it deserved. The W.M., in reply, thanked Bro. Stimson and the brethren for their kind expressions. He could promise them that during his year of office he would strive to make them satisfied, both in regard to working and to their comforts. Before he sat down he desired to say it had been a great pleasure to witness the excellent manner in which the ceremony of installation had been rendered by Brother Wells Past Master; he would ask the brethren to drink his health. he was one whom they all respected, while his working was well known and appreciated everywhere. Bro. Wells in reply said it had been a labour of love to be present to instal Bro. Woolley, whom he introduced into Masonry. Wherever he might be he would endeavour to be ready to do any service to support the W.M, but he thought he would not require any help, he knew his duties so well. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Initiates Bros. Williams and Barr, and the latter brother in a few but pertinent remarks responded. In proposing the toast of the Visitors the Worshipful Master said he could take it as a compliment that there were 61 present. He would call on one who had made his mark in Freemasonry, the Mayor of Maidstone, to reply. Bro. G. Long P.M. 503 in an eloquent speech replied. This was his first visit; he regretted not being present in Lodge to witness the ceremony rendered by Bro. Wells; he had often worked with him in a social as well as a friendly capacity, but he would readily admit that London beat Maidstone in working. He was sure from the able manner the W.M. had performed his duties that the collar he wore would fall with dignity on his successor. The Worshipful Master then proposed the toast of the Past Masters; they had done their work well; he would call on Bro. Stimson I.P.M. to respond: he had passed through an eminently successful year, which he bored to follow with as good a result. Bro. Stimson duly responded; it was his first appearance in his new capacity. He as well as the P.M.'s would do all they could for the interest of the Lodge. He might here remark that it was with great pleasure he had to take up the sum of £120 Is 6d as the contribution of the Lodge to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. The W.M. then announced that Bro. Saunders, the leader of the band, was a member of the Lodge, and that he would play a special selection. The toast of the Treasurer and Secretary came next; the former brother was one whom they all respected, and the same remark might equally apply to the latter Officer, whose duties had always been done to their satisfaction. These two popular brethren having responded, the toast of the Wardens and Officers followed. The W.M. said in selecting them, he was sure he had chosen those who knew their duties. After a reply from Bro. James, the Tyler's toast was given, and the brethren, after passing a most agreeable evening, separated. We append the programme of music, which was most creditably carried out by the brethren named:—National Anthem, "God Save the Queen," Dr. John Bull—Bros. W. A. Frost, Edwin Moss, J. Shirley Hodson, P.M., H. Walmsley Little, Mus. Doc.; Masonic Glee, "How merrily we live, that Masons be," Bro. Michael Este; Song, "No Surrender," E. Burri—Bro. J. ROYAL SAVOY LODGE, No. 1744.

THE first meeting of this popular Lodge, since the installation of the present W.M., Bro. J. W. Smith, took place on Tuesday, the 24th ultimo, at the Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, London, W.C. In consequence of the death of Bro. Sillis, the Senior Warden of the Lodge, which sad event occurred on the 29th of January, the brethren wore mourning, and the Lodge-room was draped. After preliminaries had been duly observed, Bros. J. Moore, W. Bowen, and J. Oldridge Dicker were raised, and Bros. F. W. Huddlestone, A. Thomas, G. Moy, W. Wagstaff, and J. Wagstaff were passed to the degree of Fellow Craft. Mr. Walter Harding, a candidate for initiation, was then proposed by Bro. A. Fleischhener, and duly ballotted for. The result was in favour of the candidate, who was initiated by the W.M. Bro. Smith conducted the ceremonies in an eminently successful manner, and was heartily commended for the ability he brought to bear in his work. A frugal supper followed the work of the Lodge, and a pleasant evening was brought to a close at an early hour.

United Mariners' Lodge of Instruction, No. 30.—At the weekly meeting of this popular Lodge of Instruction, held on Wednesday evening, at the Lugard Tavern, Peckham, Bro. Belchamber presided as W.M., supported by Bros. Wilkinson as S.W., Harvey J.W., Ashford S.D., Dale J.D., McChristie I.G., Walter Martin Preceptor, C. L. Tokely Sec., and others. Lodge having been opened in form, and the minutes confirmed, Bro. Wimple answered the questions for passing and was entrusted. Lodge was then opened in the second degree, and the ceremony of passing was rehearsed, Bro. Wimple personating the candidate. The first section of the lecture was worked by Bro. Harvey, and the second by Bro. Belchamber, when the Lodge was called from labour to refreshment. On resuming, Lodge was closed in the second degree and Bro. Pierpoint W.M. of the Domatic Lodge 177 referred to the visit he and his Officers had paid to the Lodge of Instruction in connection with the Domatic on the previous night, and made some practical observations on the duty of Masters of Lodges to encourage, by occasional visits, the offshoots of the bodies over whom they ruled. The J.W. expressed a hope that the Master and Officers of the United Mariners' Lodge might soon be induced to follow Bro. Pierpoint's example, and visit this Lodge of Instruction. Bro. Martin reminded the brethren that he intended to go up as a Steward at the next Festival of the Benevolent Institution, and said although early yet to speak about it, he should constantly remind the brethren of the fact, in the hope that by so doing he might ultimately be able to take up a substantial list. Bro. Wilkinson was elected as W.M. for next Wednesday evening, and as a young Mason was highly complimented upon the progress he has already made in the science, and the warm interest he has manifested in Lodges of Instruction.

Constitutional Lodge of Instruction, No. 55.—A meeting was held at the Bedford Hotel, Southampton Buildings, W.C., on Tuesday, 10th inst. Present:—Bros. Tongue W.M., Richardson S.D., Snodin J.W., Fox P.M. Preceptor, Simpson Sec., Coleman S.W., Rayne J.D., Green I.G., Sayers, Laury, and numerous others. After preliminaries, Bro. Rayne, as candidate for passing, answered the usual questions and was entrusted. Lodge opened in the second degree, and the first section was worked by Bro. Dickins P.M. The ceremony of passing was then rehearsed, Bro. Rayne acting as candidate. The second section of the lecture was worked by Bro. Snodin. The ceremony of installation will be rehearsed on the 24th inst., and the Fifteen Sections worked on the 21st April. Lodge was closed in due form and adjourned to Tuesday next.

Domatic Lodge of Instruction, No. 177.—On Wednesday evening the Worshipful Master of the mother Lodge, Bro. R. Pierpoint, who was accompanied by his Wardens and other Officers, paid a visit to this Lodge of Instruction, held at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell-road, where they were met with every fraternal greeting by a goodly number of brethren, who had assembled under the presidency of the W.M. of the Skelmersdale Lodge. After the ceremony of installation had been rehearsed, with Bro. Hill P.M. as Preceptor, it was unanimously resolved that a cordial vote of thanks to Bro. Pierpoint W.M and his Officers be recorded on the minutes, expressing the pleasure of the brethren to receive a visit from the rulers of the mother Lodge. In response Bro. Pierpoint said he held it as the duty of every Master of a Lodge to pay an occasional visit to the Lodge of Instruction which assembled under its banner, and although their place of meeting was at a considerable distance from the residences of many of the brethren, it afforded him and his Officers the greatest pleasure to have had an opportunity of being

On the Worshipful Master rising for the first time, Bros. Watts 1571 and Cocks 120 were unanimously elected members of this Lodge of Instruction, and they suitably acknowledged the compliment paid to them. A cordial vote of thanks was accorded to Bro. Belchamber for the admirable manner in which he had performed the work and delivered the impressive charges, after which Bro. Gross was appointed W.M. for this (Saturday) evening. The musical portions of the ceremony were led by Bro. Powell Organist, who presided ably at the organ. Visitors are cordially invited to this Lodge of Instruction, where the heartiness of their welcome will be only exceeded by the perfection of the work which is always witnessed here.

Perdue afterwards worked the second section of the first lecture. Bro. J. Wood was elected to fill the chair at the ensuing meeting. Bro. Gardner announced that he should be able (from the proceeds of the recent successful first Annual Supper) to place a small amount to the credit of the Lodge funds. This brother also suggested that the ceremonies be worked with more uniformity. Bro. D. Stroud, in order to carry out the suggestion, gave notice that he should bring forward a motion that the different degrees be worked seriatim, on the first, second, and third Saturdays of the month, leaving the fourth Saturday to the option of the W.M. SOUTHGATE LODGE, No. 1950.

ONE of the most successful meetings held in connection with this Lodge since its consecration, took place on Thursday, 5th instant, under the presidency of Bro. Arthur Hancock W.M., at the Railway Hotel, New Southgate, on which occasion Bro. Edwin Woodman was installed as Worshipful Master for the current year. The Lodge having been formally opened, and the minutes confirmed, was advanced to the second degree, when Bro. Woodman was presented to Brother R. P. Forge, who had assumed the chair, for the benefits of installation. Having been obligated he was duly installed and saluted, after which he invested the following brethren as his Officers:—Bros. Matthews S.W., Cooper J.W., Lefeber Treasurer, Trewinnard P.M. Secretary, Butcher S.D., Clark J.D., Dixon I.G., Cleverley D.C., Lewis and Stretch Stewards, Rowe Tyler. Bro. Forge then proceeded to complete the installation ceremony, giving the customary addresses in his usual forcible manner. The ballot having been satisfactorily appealed to, Brother Woodman was at once called upon to display his proficiency in the ritual, three candidates presenting themselves for initiation, viz., Messrs. Leopold Plaut, William Schlencker, and Dr. William John Simpson Ladell, M.R.C.S. These gentlemen were admitted to a participation of Masonic Light by the new W.M. in a careful and impressive manner, and then the Lodge was closed. An excellent banquet followed, and at its conclusion the usual toasts were honoured. That of the newly-installed Master was most enthusiastically received, and the heartiest good wishes expressed towards him for a successful year of office. In proposing the health of the I.P.M. the W.M. referred to the way in which his predecessor had fulfilled his duties as Master during the past year, and concluded by presenting him with the handsome Past Master's jewel voted by the members, which he trusted would long be worn by Bro. Hancock, as a memento of the pleasant hours he had spent in the Southgate Lodge and among the Southgate members. The toast of the Installing Master, who it will be remembered was the first Worshipful Master of the Lodge, was among the most warmly received of the evening. The Masonic Charities was ably proposed by the Worshipful Master, and coupled with the name of Brother Frederick Binckes, who, in responding, enumerated the claims the three Institutions had on the Craft. He spoke of the joint Stewardship undertaken by the Worshipful Master and Brother Forge on behalf of the Boys' School, and strongly urged those present to do their utmost in support of it. The result of the efforts of those two brethren promised to be a handsome one. Still, the heartiest co-operation of every member was needed, and this he hoped the Institution he represented would receive. Other toasts were honoured in due course, and eventually the Tyler was summoned to give the parting one, thus bringing to a conclusion a meeting which was conducted throughout without a hitch. An excellent programme of music was gone through during the evening (Bro. Collings officiating at the piano), and everything gave promise of a successful year, which we trust it will be the good fortune of the Southgate Lodge to enjoy under the presidency of Bro. Woodman. Among the Visitors present were Bros. Seaman P.M. 619, Fox Royal Savoy, Thompson 1693, Collings Organist 1693, Osborn P.M. 1602, W.M. 1897, Hammond 1471, Harding 1471, Turner W.S. 1693, Sewerby P.M., Bayne Organist 1897, Rhodes 1524, Akehurst 1693, Salmon 177, Binckes P.G.S, Busby St. Andrew's Lodge, Western W.M. 1693, Whittell 1693, Potter 1693, Hirst P.M. 15, Snook S.D. 1693, Newton Alexandra Park, Brown Chiswick, R. Baker P.M. 188.

With the exception of the Junior Warden, the Officers were all present, and the Lodge was honoured with the company of the following Visitors:—Bros. Sir John Whittaker Ellis P.G.W. P.M. No. 1; E. After the Lodge had been formally opened, the Secretary (Bro. W. R. Phillips P.M. 975) proceeded to read the minutes of the last meeting, which were unanimously confirmed. Lodge was then advanced, and in due course the W.M. proceeded to raise Bro. Burrell. Bros. Meeres, James, Cook, and Trinder were next passed to the degree of Fellow Craft, and then the brethren balloted, for Mr. George Harriss Hester, who was proposed as a candidate by Bro. Maton W.S. and seconded by Bro. Aldin. The result was in favour of the candidate, who was allowed to take his first step in Freemasonry. The next business was to elect a Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, and the Senior Warden, Bro. C. I. Digby, was unanimously chosen to fill the office. Bro. F. Reynolds was selected Treasurer, and Bros. Aldin, Covell, and Rowland were appointed auditors. The banquet which followed was served in most excellent style by Bro. Munro, and the after proceedings, which were of a most agreeable character, were enlivened by some good singing, Mr. Gatfield and Miss Harris especially distinguishing themselves.

The Montague Guest Chapter was consecrated last evening at the Inns of Court Hotel. We shall give a report of the proceedings in our next.

THE MASONIC SCHOOLS AND THE CAMBRIDGE LOCAL EXAMINATIONS

THE results achieved by the pupils of the two Masonic Educational Institutions who competed in the Cambridge Middle Class Examinations in December last have just been announced, and are of the most gratifying character. In the case of the Girls' School, all who went up succeeded in satisfying the Examiners, while of the ten juniors four obtained honours. Of the boys—sixteen in number—twelve passed with honours, and the other four satisfied the Examiners. We thus see that all of the Masonic pupils passed, while the number who did so with honours was exceptionally large. Those who are acquainted with the inner working of our Schools will not be surprised at this result, as it is felt that everything is being done that can be done to give the orphans under our care a sound and thorough education. The result, however, is particularly gratifying to all concerned—the subscribers, the tutors, and the Committees—while it affords another instance of the care which the English brethren bestow on those who, through misfortune, are obliged to claim their sympathy. We append a list of the pupils and the special honours secured by each.

The General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys held their monthly meeting at Freemasons' Hall, on Saturday last, Bro. William Roebuck P.G. Steward, Vice Patron and Trustee, occupying the chair. There was an exceptionally large attendance of the subscribers; the question of election for brethren to serve on the House Committee being evidently the attraction. The minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, and those of the special meetings of the House and Building Committees on the 7th ult., and the House Committee on the 20th ult., having been read for information, it was moved, seconded, and resolved that so much of the minutes of the General Committee as referred to the rejection of petition on behalf of L. C. E. Ambrose be rescinded. Two petitions, on behalf of Ambrose and another, were submitted and accepted, and their names will accordingly be included in the list for the October election. Grants of £5 each, for outfits, in two cases were made, after which the Scrutineers appointed to conduct the ballot at the election of two brethren to serve on the House Committee handed in their report, from which it appeared that the result was as follows:—Bros. Henry Venn 56 votes, T. Hastings Miller 52, Charles Belton 37, and W. H. Saunders 24. Accordingly Bros. Venn and Miller were declared elected, and the meeting terminated with the usual vote of thanks to the Chairman.

The Committee of Management of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution held their monthly meeting at Freemasons' Hall, on Wednesday last. Bro. H. B. Marshall, Past G. Treasurer and Patron presiding. There were present Bros. J. Newton, J. L. Mather, Cottebrune P.G.P., W. Murch, W. Daniell, West, Tattershall, Murliss, Goodall, Case, Hogard, Bush, Dr. Jabez Hogg P.G.D, Freeman, Bowyer P.G.S.B., Fairchild, Bulmer, Holton, Moore, Adlard, Hilton, Stean, Cubitt P.G.P., Dilley, Festa, and James Terry, Secretary. The minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, the Secretary reported the death of five annuitants,—two male and three female. The Matron's report was submitted and approved. There being no resident brother at Croydon who, in the opinion of the House Committee, could be recommended for the appointment of Warden, it was agreed that Miss Norris should discharge the duties of the office, in conjunction with that of Matron, the emoluments of the Wardenship being paid to her additionally. The result of the Festival on Wednesday, the 25th ult., was reported as £17,802 6s 6d, with three lists still outstanding. The resignation of Bro. G. S. Recknell, who has been appointed to a Clerkship in Grand Secretary's office, was announced and accepted. Bro. Vassar Smith was made Honorary Vice-President in consideration of his services at the Festival, and generally in behalf of the Institution. Bro. Edgar Bowyer gave notice of motion to vote to Bro. Terry the sum of 100 guineas, in recognition of his valuable services at the Festival. After this a vote of thanks to the Chairman was passed, and the proceedings terminated.

The final meeting of the Board of Stewards of the recent Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons, was held at Freemasons' Hall, London, on the 6th inst., under the presidency of Bro. H. B. Marshall, P.G. Treas. The usual formal business having been disposed of, votes of thanks were passed to the Board of General Purposes for the use of the Temple on the occasion of the recent Festival; to the Grand Secretary, for having interested himself in arranging for its use; and to Bro. Sir Michael E. Hicks-Beach, Bart., M.P., Prov. G. Master, Gloucestershire, for his kindness in presiding. The resolution of the Board of Management of the Institution, thanking the Stewards, individually and collectively, in the most complimentary manner, for their valuable services was read. Votes of thanks were passed to the Officers of the Board of Stewards for the part they had taken in securing the success which had attended the Festival. The accounts having been passed, and the Hon. Treasurer instructed to discharge the same, a vote of thanks was passed to the Chairman of the meeting, and the business was concluded.

Obituary.

MRS. GEORGE EVERETT.

IT is with deep regret we have to announce the death, which occurred on Sunday last, of the wife of Bro. George Everett. The deceased lady, who was but thirty-five years of age, had earned for herself the lasting gratitude of many a poor widow and orphan child, by the interest she took in our periodical elections, while, in the immediate locality in which she resided, she was at all times prepared to counsel and assist, to the best of her ability, the necessitous and afflicted. We are sure all who know Brother George Everett will receive this mournful intelligence with sad but sympathetic hearts. The funeral took place at Norwood Cemetery, on Thursday, and amongst those who contributed Floral Wreaths, by which the coffin was literally covered, were the brethren of the Domatic and Chiswick Lodges, in the former of which Brother George Everett holds the office of Treasurer, while in the latter it is well known to our readers he was the Founder and first Worshipful Master.

THE BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION FESTIVAL.

Dear Sir and Brother,—If ever there was a time when Freemasons ought to feel proud, it is now. The Festival of the Benevolent Institution was a gigantic success, and from it ought to spring results that should make many a heart glad. I expected something good from the presidency of Bro. Sir M. Hicks Beach, and I was sure the brethren of the Province over which he so ably presides as Grand Master would subscribe liberally, but I was not prepared for the very generous amount of £1,200. There are only fourteen Lodges in Gloucestershire, comprising 600 members; so that the contribution of each Lodge averages £85 (over), £2 each brother, respectively. That is something like a backing of pretensions. This special subscription and the gross total of £17,636 6s 8d will make the Festival of 1885 a memorable one, both locally and generally. While rejoicing over this increase of £3,000 on last year's list, I am not unmindful of the fact that leaps and bounds in finance are apt to be followed by severe reaction. It would be difficult to anticipate the future growth of the Craft, or the generosity of the brethren. Results have put all such calculations out of the question, and perhaps it would be "as well to feel" that sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof. Nevertheless, I do not think between £17,000 and £18,000 a normal subscription list, and therefore caution should be exercised in entering upon fresh obligations. I should like to see the capital fund increased, so as to provide that the operations of the Institution could never sink below a point which, if not altogether satisfactory, would still be highly beneficent. The question is, where shall this increased capital come from? That is a problem the Committee, who have all the facts and figures before them, must solve. It is enough for me to say that it should not come from assured yearly income. Every farthing of the contribution of Grand Lodge ought to be spent in the year in which it is subscribed, and for the purposes—special or general—indicated. As far as I can perceive, this practice is not now completely carried out. If this is so, it is to be regretted, for so many candidates are knocking at the door of charity that every farthing of secured yearly income should be spent in relief, and not hoarded.

I have got a few figures together which may not be altogether unworthy of notice at the present moment, assuming they are correct. Before I introduce them I would just observe that I am not contending for a fad, or striking a blow at any one. I only want the truth, and if, upon investigation, it turns out that I am wrong, I shall be quite ready to make the amende honorable. I make no charge, insinuate no imputation, and if my testimony be worth anything, I may say that I believe the affairs of the Institution are honourably and ably governed. What I have to say, therefore, touches methods, and not honour or capacity.

170	Widows - - - - -	5,440
20	„ (half-pay) - - -	440
355		£12,600

The difference in the number of recipients in the two years is just 20. This increase was warranted, I take it, by the success of the previous Festival, and was in no way affected by the extra contribution of £800 by Grand Lodge. Ten widows were added to the list of annuitants in 1883, at a cost of £320. Supposing this was taken out of the increased grant by Grand Lodge, what became of the balance of £480? But I do not see that this fund would be available at that particular time, and therefore the increase of annuitants was made in consequence of the success of the Festival. In 1881 ten female candidates were added to the regular vacancies, but as the Festival of that year produced £14,612 10s, the largest sum ever known, the additional expenditure of £320 already incurred, and £320 about to be incurred, seems out of all proportion to the income. I do not see what became of the additional grants of Grand Lodge unless they were used to swell the capital invested. Coming to the present year we have the enormous sum of £3,000 more than last year's Festival yielded, and it remains to be seen what further advantages will be offered beyond the nineteen candidates already proposed to be added to the sixteen vacancies. The time seems to me to be particularly favourable for considering the whole matter, and I trust what I have said may help on the subject.

Before I close, permit me to point out what appears to be a very singular discrepancy. At the election of 1883 it was stated that 325 annuitants involved an outlay of £12,600. At the recent Festival the Chairman said: "At the present time 170 old Masons and 202 widows were in receipt of sums of £10 and £32 respectively, and this was done at a cost of something like £15,000 a year." The difference in numbers in the two cases is 18, and allowing £10 for each that would make £720. Add the latter to the absolute cost of 355 annuitants in 1883, and the gross total would be £13,220. What becomes of the balance of £1,680? No doubt the discrepancy can be accounted for, but as it stands there appears to be a looseness of statement. In the interest of accuracy, therefore, I deem it right to call attention to what appears to me to be a serious confusion of figures.

Dear Sir,

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

Factor.

THE GREAT LIGHT.

Dear Brother Editor,—I was much pleased with the letter of "A Buckingham Apprentice" in your issue of 28th February. I would like to know how it is that this Great Light is not placed in its proper position in a Lodge-room? The present arrangement in some Lodges that I have visited is grossly in error, or the tracing board is wrong. If a Master is not to work according to the tracing board, why have it in a Lodge-room at all?

A commotion was made in May 1816 respecting the Master's Light being blown out or covered, and a lanthorn showing a star introduced for a short time in lieu, yet but little notice is taken of the Light of Lights being covered over with circulars, papers, or anything that comes to hand. Is this irregularity to continue? I trust not, but that the matter will be taken in hand by the Craft in general, and so move that all will see the importance of placing separate and distinct the Holy Bible, so that all in the Lodge-room can see it, get round it in a circle, and this be the centre, or on the vertex of the circle East of the centre.

Let the solemn Act of Union and the arrangement of the Hall for that event be brought to light, then the Craft of to-day will be a little wiser on this point.

Yours fraternally,

Argumentum ad Judicium.

ELECTION OF GRAND TREASURER.

To the Editor of the Freemason's Chronicle.

Dear Sir and Brother,—Another contest for the G. Treasurer's collar has ended, leaving behind much matter for anxious thought. Strongly as I feel in favour of the principle of open competition, and impressed as I am with the propriety of the mass composing Grand Lodge conferring the only favour they have to bestow in their own way, I am not a little ashamed of some of the tactics that were discovered during the recent election. There is a good deal of truth in the aphorism—Vox populi est vox Dei, but it is only really true when the public voice itself speaks, and not when heard through a medium, or at the instigation of cliques. It must be admitted that leaders are often necessary, and it is imperative that they should be intelligent, of sound judgment, and courteous in demeanour. Their power over the popular will is generally great, and their responsibility is not less because unseen they pull the string while the puppets dance. All these conditions, I fear, were violated during the late contest, and what is of more importance, the tendency seems to be in a downward direction. Candidates for a distinguished post are not like goods at a sale, to be catalogued and appraised after the style of a Robbins. Their virtues might be great and numerous, but it would not be dignified to set them forth in the language of an auctioneer, however eminent and gifted.

It is very desirable that the merits of those seeking office should be as widely known amongst brethren as possible, and the safest and best medium for that purpose would be the Masonic Press. Apart from the question of special fitness, the two able exponents of the Craft in England would be in sympathy with the movement, and would possess knowledge that cannot be within the ken of outsiders. Cases set forth in these journals would necessarily have to be carefully considered. Any exaggeration would be at once detected, error would be corrected, and the truth made apparent. With this knowledge before, and loyalty to principle, mistake would be next to impossible. Something no doubt was done by the Masonic papers in question in maturing opinion in the late contest, but the area of battle was chiefly confined to circulars and canvassing at Lodge meetings. An article appeared in a profane paper—copied by you I suppose on the principle of giving everything as far as possible—which recalled the very obnoxious Old Bailey practice of bullying. A more offensive and un-Masonic attack I never read. It discounted one brother for the purpose of exalting another, and made a hero out of very questionable materials indeed.

I do not approve of the way in which the fight in favour of Bro. Woodall was carried on. I admire the pluck and determination shown by the country brethren. They fought with the only weapons that appeared to them most likely to be effective, and in success they have satisfaction, if not justification. It is, perhaps, vain to expect the practice of the higher virtues until Masons understand their duties as well as privileges, and so long as popular methods are followed, it would be idle to look for much else than detraction on the one hand, and fulsome adulation on the other. Apparently Brother Willing never had a chance of winning, and few out of his own circle will regret his defeat. If he reads the lesson aright he will come out of the ordeal purged of some faults, and enlightened on matters that hitherto have only presented one view to him. He will find that in a candidate for distinction in Grand Lodge something more is wanted than the will and the power to make Masons and to found Lodges. It is not enough to seek offices, and then parade the work done as a good conferred on the brethren only, without taking into account that the holder counted it an honour to be selected. Bro. Willing has time on his side, and if he works and waits patiently his reward will come in due season. A majority vote, although a large one, is not a great compliment. The fact remains, that the minority vote was given against the successful candidate, and that of itself, in the case of an honorary office, is a considerable drawback, and so it must ever be until a better system than now prevails in estimating character and fitness is adopted.

Bro. Cama avoided all the arts and wiles of popular advocacy, and he polled 89 votes. This fact of itself tells a lamentable tale. Bro. Cama is in no sense inferior to Bro. Willing. On the contrary, I should say that socially he stands higher, and that his Masonic record is as good. He has the additional advantage of inheriting a name and reputation which few possess. He belongs to a foreign race who hold Masonry in high reverence, and to elect him to a post of honour would be paying a just compliment to the Parsees in particular, and foreign brethren generally, throughout the world. The fact would be practically recognising that cosmopolitan character of Freemasonry which all profess to admire.

I hope we have seen the last of vestry and Old Bailey tactics. The Press is a mighty power, but its action must be spontaneous to be useful and reliable. I think few will say that the article that appeared in the Evening News, and another one that followed in the Evening Standard, reflected the unbiassed opinions of the editors of those papers. They were friendly contributions to Bro. Willing's cause, but they were mistaken kindnesses, for the purpose the writers had in view was too evident, and the means used worked its defeat.

Perhaps another year we may see an improvement upon present methods; at any rate we ought to profit by experience.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

ALEX.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I was one of those present at the last Communication of Grand Lodge. I am also a pretty regular attendant each quarter, but I must say a worse organised meeting I never took part in. In addition to my being nearly crushed through the block in the passageway, I had my coat torn. However, that is not what I am about to claim from you space to record. With respect to the Provincial brethren, many belonged to London Lodges, and could, if they had been so minded, have signed more than once, and thereby had a chance of receiving their voting papers twice. So much for the past, for the present the matter ends. Now for the future. Let the Grand Treasurer be elected annually, and the brethren be nominated as now; but why compel brethren to travel hundreds of miles to the neglect of their business affairs, and mulct them for expenses when this could be easily obviated? In my opinion, the balloting papers should be sent to every Lodge where those entitled to vote could receive them. Let them be returned under cover to the Grand Secretary, and the scrutineers could announce to Grand Lodge the result of the election.

I am, yours fraternally,

A PAST MASTER.

PHYSICAL QUALIFICATIONS OF CANDIDATES.

To the Editor of the Canadian Craftsman.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I am rejoiced to see and read your article entitled "Stand by the Ancient Landmarks." It may be, and doubtless is, an unpopular view just now in America generally, as respects our Masonic legislators, but never mind, your view, and our view, as to the subject will yet prevail. I am really astonished that so much valuable time is wasted by so many intelligent and zealous Grand Masters in the United States, in discussing the physical qualifications of candidates. To come to the point—How many of them are perfectly sound? You speak of one having ruled, that if a man had a cataract in the eye he could not be admitted. Well, that is the most absurd decision I have yet met with, but if men are to be wholly physically sound, as candidates for initiation, then, of course he was right and we are wrong. I have many times had a few words to say against any such absurd interpretation of what are called the "Ancient Landmarks," and I think now of adding slightly to the discussion, by supporting your opinion that "The whole thing is a farce, and an arrant humbug, and a remnant of the dark ages." Let us inquire how it originated, and what possible justification can be urged for the "physical qualification" legislation of American Grand Lodges. The only authority for these physical tests is to be found in the Charges of a Freemason, which precede the General Regulations of the Book of Constitution of 1723, and subsequent editions. I make bold to say that they were never intended to apply practically to the modern Craft, but are simply presented in each Book of Constitution of the Grand Lodge of England from 1723 to 1884, as extracts from The ancient records of Lodges beyond sea, and of those in England, Scotland and Ireland, for the use of the Lodges in London. To be read at the making of new brethren, or when the Master shall order it. Notwithstanding all the numerous alterations in our laws they remain practically the same in 1884 as in 1723, and there is not a Grand Lodge under the sun that could adopt them as their Rules and Regulations at the present time. Some apply to the present, as of old, because, mainly, to do with the conduct of brethren; but others refer us more to the Craft now, than they did in 1723, having only to do with the brotherhood in ancient times, when Masonry was a monopoly, and chiefly if not exclusively operative. These Charges are an abridgment, with additions and alterations by Dr. Anderson in 1723, of the Old Charges, of which we have now about fifty copies, ranging from the fourteenth down to the last century. A number of these I had printed in my Old Charges of British Freemasons, in 1872. Take one of the oldest as a sample of the others, viz.: The York MS. of A.D. 1600: Such apprentice, sufficiently able of body and sound of limbs, and also of good birth, free born, noe alian, &c. Now it would be unfair to take out this rule from the context and ignore the others, such as: 1. True to ye Holy Church (probably Roman Catholic then). 2. True allegiance to ye King of England. 3. Noe Mason shall be a common player att cards or dice, &c., &c. I want to know why the physical qualification regulation should be retained, and the others passed out. But, say some, we have to do with the extracts of 1723. Now let us see what they say:—No Master should take an Apprentice, unless he has sufficient employment for him, and unless he be a perfect youth, having no maim or defect in his body that may render him incapable of learning the art, of serving his Master's Lord, and of being made a Brother, and then a Fellow Craft in due time. Surely this regulation, even in early days, would not have been considered sufficient to exclude from initiation a man with a glass eye, one who had lost a portion of the second finger of his right hand, or one who had a cataract in his eye. So long as any defect of a physical character was not such as to render a candidate incapable of learning the art of serving his Master, or of being made a brother, he was not ineligible for initiation. But I go further, and ask, why the many curious rules in these extracts are omitted, but the one as to physical perfection retained? A Fellow Craft, by these old charges, was eligible for election as a Warden, or even a Grand Master; all the tools used by the operative Masons had to be approved by the Grand Lodge, all the candidates must have had honest parents, have served their full time, according to the custom of their country, before being a Fellow Craft. All Masons must meekly receive their wages and not leave their Masters until the work is finished. And there are also other curious rules, which no Grand Lodge could possibly observe at the present time. It is evident, therefore, that they were not intended other than as an abridged account of the old operative charges, and the Grand Lodge of England from 1723 has never accepted them in any other sense. Therefore, I also say,—Away with it.

Yours fraternally,

W. J. HUGHAN.

CHRISTIANITY AND FREEMASONRY.

We reproduce the following letter from the Nottingham Daily Guardian:—

To the Editor.

SIR,—I did not originally intend to write anything upon this vexed question, being quite incompetent for such an undertaking, but happening this morning to refer to Fredk. von Schlegel's lectures on the "Philosophy of History," delivered in Vienna about the year 1828, I thought the following passage might satisfy the curiosity of your readers, as it bears kindly on the question.

"There are in the history of the 18th century many phenomena which occurred so suddenly, so instantaneously, so contrary to all expectation, that although on deeper consideration we may discover their efficient sources in the past, in the natural state of things, and in the general situation of the world, yet there are many circumstances which prove that there was a deliberate, though secret, preparation of events, as, indeed, in many instances has been actually demonstrated. I must now say a few words on this secret and mysterious branch of illuminism, and on the progress it made during the period of its sway, in order to complete the sketch of that period, and to show the influence of this principle, both in regard to the origin and general spirit of the Revolution (which in its fanaticism believed itself a regeneration of the world), and in regard to the true restoration of society, founded on the basis of Christian justice. But there is this peculiar circumstance in this historical inquiry, that those who, as eye-witnesses, could best speak from their personal experience, cannot always be considered as the most credible vouchers; for we never know, or can know, what their particular views and interests may lead them to say or conceal, to suppress wholly or in part. However, it has so happened that, in the universal convulsion and overthrow of society, many things have come to light on this mysterious and esoteric clue in modern history—things which when combined together furnish us with a not incorrect and a tolerably complete idea of this mighty element of the Revolution and of illuminism, true and false, which has exercised so evident and so various an influence on the world. And it is only on such historical grounds (which are quite sufficient for our purpose, and can alone be made the matter of moderation here) I am at all competent to pronounce an opinion on this subject; or rather, I should say, to give an account of this event, and it is from historical sources, facts, and references alone, that the following sketch has been taken.

"As to the origin of this esoteric influence, the impartial historical inquirers cannot doubt (whatever motives or views some may have to deny the fact) that the Order of Templars was the channel of which this society in its ancient and long preserved form was introduced in the West. The religious Masonic symbols may be accounted for by the Solomonion traditions connected with the very foundation of the Order of Templars; and, indeed, the occasion of these symbols may be traced in other passages of Holy Writ, and in other parts of sacred history, and they may very well admit of Christian interpretation. Traces of these symbols may be found in the monuments of the old German architecture of the middle age. Any secret spiritual association, however, diffused at once among Christians and Mahometans cannot be of a very Christian nature, nor long continue so. Nay, the very men of an esoteric society for the propagation of any secret doctrines, is not compatible with the very principle of Christianity itself, for Christianity is a divine mystery, which according to the intentions of its Founder lies open to all. For this reason, in a revelation imparted to all alike, there can be no secrecy, as in the Pagan mysteries, where, by the side of the popular mythology and the public religion of the State, certain esoteric doctrines were inculcated to the initiated only. This would be to constitute a church within a church—a measure to be as little tolerated or justified as an imperium in imperio; and in an age where worldly interests and public or secret views of policy have far greater ascendancy than religious opinions or sentiments. Such a secret church would unquestionably, as experience has often proved, be very soon transformed into a secret directory for political changes and revolutions. That in this society the unchristian principles of a negative illuminism, veiled, as they often were, in sentiments of universal philanthropy, were of a date tolerably modern, all historical analogies would lead us to suppose. On the other hand, the Christian opinions which survived in this order (though in our times, amid the innumerable factions which have agitated this by their contests, the adherents to Christian principles form a small minority of its members)—the Christian opinions surviving in this order partook, conformably to the historical origin I have assigned, more of an Oriental and Gnostic character . . . . Who does not know, or who does not remember, that the ruler of the world (Napoleon) in the period just passed made use of this vehicle in all the countries he conquered, to delude and deceive the nations with false hopes? And on this account he was styled by his partizans the Man of the Age, and in fact he was a slave to the spirit of his age. A society from whose bosom, as from the secret laboratory of revolution, the Illuminés, the Jacobins, and the Carbonari have successively proceeded, cannot possibly be termed, or be, in fact, very beneficial to mankind, politically sound, or truly Christian in its views and tendency. Still I must here observe, that it has been the fate of the oldest of secret societies, that its venerable forms, which are known to all the initiated, should serve as a cloak to every new conspiracy. In the next place, we must not forget that this order itself appears to be split and divided into a multitude of different sects and factions; and that on this account we must not suppose that all those fearful aberrations and wild excesses of impiety, all those openly destructive or the secretly undermining principle of revolution, were universally approved of by this society. On the contrary, such a supposition would be utterly false, or at least very exaggerated. The mere notice of all the highly estimable characters, mistaken but on this point—of most distinguished and illustrious personages in the 18th century, members of this association—would suffice to annul, or at least materially modify, this sweeping assertion. From many indications we may consider it certain, or at least extremely probable, that in no country did this esoteric society so well harmonise with the State and the whole established order of things as in that country where all the conflicting elements of morals and society are brought into a sort of strange and artificial equipoise—I mean England."

So for our German professor; the immense authority of the Schlegels must be my justification for so lengthy a quotation. The author has been styled by intellectual Germans "one of the profoundest thinkers Germany ever produced," whose works "are a vast repertory of thoughts, hints, perceptions, and views on æsthetics, history, theology, and metaphysics, whose memory was stored with the riches of all climes, whose imagination was so vigorous, whose understanding was so profound, even to mystical intention," &c. My quotation is from the "Philosophy of History," pp 455-8 (London: H. G. Bohn, 1846, Robertson's Trans.) Not being] myself a theologian, I shall be glad to have your readers' opinions on the above citation, which evidently appears to be written with great deference to the intellectual prejudices of others. "In things necessary, unity; things doubtful, liberty; in all things, charity."

INTERNATIONAL MASONIC CONGRATULATIONS.

ON Friday, the 6th inst., the members of the Loyal Berkshire Lodge of Hope, 574, met at the Temperance Hall, Newbury, Bro. W. H. Belcher W.M. presiding. In connection with the 250th Settlement of Newburyport, Mass., it was unanimously resolved to forward the following congratulatory address to the Masonic Lodges in that place:—

Newbury, Berks, 24th February 1885.

WORSHIPFUL SIR AND BROTHER,—The W.M., Officers and Brethren of the Loyal Berkshire Lodge of Hope, No. 574, in open Lodge assembled, desire me to convey to the Officers and Brethren of your Lodge their hearty and sincere congratulations on the 250th Anniversary of your Settlement. They are very pleased to find that Craft Masonry is recognised and practised at Newburyport, and they also hope the W.M., Officers and Brethren of your Lodge will accept the hearty good wishes of the Masons of the old Town of Newbury in England, for the success of Freemasonry and the general welfare of your Town and Settlement.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

STEPHEN KNIGHT P.M. P.Prov. G.D.C.

Secretary.

To the Secretary,

THE FENIANS IN PARIS.

THE Gaulois affirms that the Fenian residents in Paris met on the 6th inst., near Sannais, and addressed the following letter to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, Grand Master of the English Freemasons:—

"The good will manifested by your Highness promising to visit Ireland obliges us, whose hatred for England's bad administration is so pronounced, to establish a distinction between all stupid and fanatical attacks against your person and the inexorable war which we are determined to make when our arrangements are more complete and better organised. Once for all, the members of the Irish Revolutionary Directory are desirous of assuring you that you and the Princess will be perfectly safe so long as you remain on Irish soil. Go and see yourself what the Irish people have suffered, and we shall feel grateful. Although you must be some day the heir of centuries of usurpation and of attempts to exterminate us, the time has passed when Irish patriots believed they could have saved Ireland by the constitution of an Anglo-Irish Republic. Now Ireland rises single-handed, and the sight of your Highness, besides the good impression which no doubt your projected visit will produce, has nothing to do with the aspirations and griefs of Ireland."

THE FIFTEEN SECTIONS

WILL BE WORKED

By the members of the New Finsbury Park Lodge of Instruction No. 1695, at the Hornsey Wood Tavern, Finsbury Park, N., on Tuesday, 24th March, and Tuesday, 31st March. Bros. Larchin W.M., H. G. Gush S.W., J. A. Powell J.W., A. W. Fenner I.P.M. First Lecture (24th March)—Bros. Moon, Mercer, Salmon, Fenner, Cutchey, Gush, Powell. Second Lecture (31st March)—Bros. Cross, Airey, Weedon, Lardner, Gush. Third Lecture—Bros. Dixie, Williams, Hall. Lodge will be opened at eight o'clock each evening punctually. Bro. Berry 1695, Secretary.

On Wednesday last, at the New Hall of the London Cottage Mission, 67 Salmon's Lane, Limehouse, E., in addition to the usual weekly dinner of irish stew provided for the little ones, a number of adults of both sexes were admitted, and furnished with a good substantial meal of a similar character, which was most gratefully appreciated. The advent of spring has as yet worked little, if any, change in the destitute condition of the labouring class population of the East End of London, and funds are most urgently needed to carry on the work of the Mission in its various phases. All contributions or donations are requested to be sent to Mr. Walter Austin, 44 Finsbury Pavement, E.C., or to Miss Napton, 304 Burdett Road, Limehouse, E.

THE RESERVE FORCES IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—In addition to a small permanent military force, and a number of partially paid Volunteer regiments, the colony possesses several purely volunteer corps forming a kind of reserve force. These reserve companies serve gratuitously, and are formed in places where the partially-paid corps do not exist; but they are connected by regimental organisation with the partially-paid corps. Each reserve corps receives an annual capitation allowance of £2 for every efficient officer and volunteer, subject, however, to the proviso that no claim to this allowance shall be admitted if at the commencement of the year the corps so claiming shall have a less number of efficients than three-fifths of the authorised establishment of such corps. In that contingency the services of any such corps will be dispensed with, and all Government property in their possession re-called. The capitation allowance is for the purpose of providing officers commanding companies with the means of supplying uniform, and meeting expenses other than those connected with the issue of arms, accoutrements, ammunition, musketry stores, and instruction; all of which are furnished by the State. The financial affairs of each corps are managed by a Committee of the officers, and two senior non-commissioned officers, and an annual balance-sheet has to be submitted to the Brigade Office at headquarters.

CHRISTIANITY AND FREEMASONRY.

UNDER the above title we last week reproduced a letter that had been sent to the Nottingham Daily Guardian, in which was given a long extract from one of Freiderich von Schlegel's lectures on the "Philosophy of History," delivered about the year 1828. Freiderich was the younger of two sons, but he was far less distinguished than his brother August Wilhelm Schlegel. Born a Protestant, he subsequently became a Roman Catholic, and this fact must be borne in mind when estimating his opinions on matters referring to secret societies. The ban of the Romish Church was not less bitter against Freemasonry in the latter part of the eighteenth and beginning of the nineteenth centuries than it is now, and it is not at all likely that Freiderich Schlegel would be more tolerant of the Craft, being himself a pervert and therefore zealous, than the heads of his own Church. His brother was the intimate friend of Madame de Stael and Goethe. The latter was a Freemason, and the lady was an admirer of the Order. This simple record is suggestive, and points to the inference that care should be observed in admitting, without question, even the statements of a man of the character of Freiderich von Schlegel. In the extract referred to, he is careful in discounting the authority of eye witnesses of events, because he says: "We never know, or can know, what their particular views and interests may lead them to say or conceal, to suppress wholly or in part." Just so, and therefore, for the reasons already given, we should be somewhat sceptical in receiving the views even of the great German philosopher, especially when he omits the grounds upon which his conclusions have been founded.

Freiderich von Schlegel assumes at the outset that "the Order of the Templars was the channel of which this society [Freemasons] in its ancient and long preserved form was introduced to the West." Without attempting to contest this assumption, it may be stated that men quite as capable, if not more capable, than this authority, are by no means agreed as to the relative positions of Templarism and Craft Freemasonry. The evidence is not so overwhelming as not to admit of doubts, and this fact alone is sufficient to arouse caution in accepting as ex cathedra what is a matter of opinion. As if apprehensive of a damaging conclusion being drawn from his own premiss, the philosopher hastens to show that spiritual associations could not long exist among Christians and Mahommedans; that "an esoteric society for the propagation of any secret doctrines is not compatible with the very principle of Christianity itself, for Christianity is a divine mystery, which according to the intentions of its Founder lies open to all." With regard to the first statement it may be boldly asserted that spiritual associations between Christians and Mahommedans do exist, through the medium of Freemasonry. This is one of the grandest features of the Order—that it can retain its spiritual essence without being crippled in its operation by creeds and dogmas. It embraces men of all creeds, and only closes its doors to the atheist. It teaches a belief in God and the immortality of the soul, and although the name of Christ is not invoked there is nothing in the Craft that can offend the most earnest disciple of the Saviour. "Christianity," says Schlegel, "is a divine mystery." So is the religion of the Jews, and is just as open to all as is Christianity. It is hardly correct to say that Freemasonry is founded for the propagation of secret doctrines. Its secrets are not of principles, but of methods of salutation and recognition. It is founded on a universal basis, and never can become a "church within a church." In this sense it stands out in noble contrast to Roman Catholicism, which is, what our author condemns, an imperium in imperio. With a strange perversity he urges that such a Church as he opines Freemasonry to be, "would unquestionably be very soon transformed into a secret directory for political changes and revolutions." Surely he had in view his own Church, which has contributed so much to political strife and dynastic changes. The harsh, imperious sway of Rome, the usurpation of all power over the civil and religious life of mankind, the boasted claim of infallibility, shocked the natural love of liberty. Against all this Freemasonry revolts, and hence the enmity of Pope and priests, who must have the obedience of the dumb brute or no tie at all. This clashing of interests so diverse has led to a bitter antagonism on the part of the Church of Rome, and as her methods of working are violent and unscrupulous, charges have been brought against Freemasonry which are altogether untrue and contrary to its very nature.

If we had not known that Schlegel was a Roman Catholic, we should have been very much surprised at the attitude he has taken up. His connection with the Church, however, explains everything, and certainly detracts from his authority on any matter connected with the Craft. He alleges that the latter is the "secret laboratory of revolution," from whose bosom have proceeded the "Illumines, the Jacobins, and the Carbonari." This is an old fallacy, and scarcely worth refuting. It is enough to say that Freemasonry has nothing whatever to do with affairs of State, except to be loyal citizens; and the secret societies, such as those we have named, were organised because there was no room for the hot spirits that founded them within the extensive boundaries of the Craft. But Schlegel gets more than ordinarily weak towards the close of his argument. He seems afraid of the boldness of his accusations, and modifies them by stating that "the oldest of secret societies appears to be split and divided into a multitude of different sects and factions, and that on this account we must not suppose that all those fearful aberrations and wild excesses of impiety, all those openly destructive or the secretly undermining principle of revolution, were universally approved of by this society." He continues to say that such a supposition would be utterly false, and admits that there were many estimable persons in the eighteenth century connected with Freemasonry, against whom charges of wild excesses could not be brought. Then comes the reference to this country, which can hardly be considered a compliment. He says, "In no country did this esoteric society so well harmonise with the State and the whole established order of things as in that country where all the conflicting elements and morals of society are brought into a sort of strange and artificial equipoise—I mean England."

The admission made in the last quotation explains much of the difference that exists between English and Continental Freemasonry. Here the Craft has been free and unsuspected, and has remained loyal to law and religion. It has grown into a moral power of great magnitude, and the secret of success lies in its cosmopolitan character. It speaks one universal language and proclaims one universal principle. All Masons can recognise each other, and all can claim a Brotherhood of Charity. On the Continent priestly power has contended for the supremacy, and in the struggle for freedom from a corrupt and tyrannical church, men deserted the legal Institution of Freemasonry and established other secret societies. They were driven to desperate resources, and, in the wild excesses that followed, the good suffered with the bad. But, notwithstanding all that took place, there was much to pity in the offenders. Freemasonry could not find a remedy for their grievances, and it ought not to be made responsible for their crimes.

INITIATION OF PRINCE ALBERT VICTOR OF WALES.

THERE can be no question as to the views entertained by our Grand Master in regard to Freemasonry. The Order evidently has his Royal Highness's warmest sympathy; not only in his official capacity as Grand Master, but also in private life as a citizen and a father. That such is the case was amply demonstrated on Tuesday, when His Royal Highness personally initiated his eldest son into the mysteries of the Craft, and conferred on him membership of an Order which must be held in high repute by our future King, for he has taken the earliest opportunity of introducing his son into its ranks. The ceremony took place in the Royal Alpha Lodge, No. 16, at Willis's Rooms, St. James's, and was of all but a private character; simply the members of the Lodge being present to witness the initiation, which, in all probability, will be recorded as one of the principal events of English Freemasonry of the nineteenth century. The Prince of Wales was supported by the leaders of the Craft, who filled the respective offices, and assisted in the admission of the Royal Initiate, who we trust will take as much interest in the welfare of the Order as has been displayed by the members of his Royal Family in the past.

FROM THE DAILY TELEGRAPH, 17TH MARCH 1885.

Ever since the Prince of Wales was initiated into the rites of Freemasonry by the King of Sweden at Stockholm in 1868, His Royal Highness has taken a close personal interest in the welfare of the Craft. He has not been content to appear occasionally among the brethren as a mere ornamental patron of their ancient and widespread society, but has worked in Lodge with industry and assiduity, and is, indeed, apart from other high qualifications, an accomplished Craftsman. When, on the resignation of the Marquis of Ripon, the Prince accepted the duties and responsibilities of Worshipful Grand Master, eight thousand Officers in Masonry assembled at the Albert Hall to witness a sight which for splendour and impressiveness was probably never equalled among Free and Accepted Masons since the time of King Solomon, Hiram, King of Tyre, and Hiram Abiff. His Royal Highness has served the office of Worshipful Master in the Apollo University Lodge at Oxford, in the Prince of Wales' Lodge—in which he initiated his brother, the Duke of Connaught—and in the Alpha Lodge, in which he will receive his eldest son, Prince Albert Victor. Freemasons throughout the world—wherever brethren are known to one another by the occult mysteries which bind them together—will rejoice at the latest accession to an Order which, though founded on the principle of the equality of mankind, is yet full of veneration and respect for rank and precedence. Prince Albert Victor will be the seventeenth of the Blood Royal of Great Britain and Ireland to join the Freemasons since the year 1737, beyond which period the records of the Craft are occasionally vague and not always to be relied on. Without going outside the confines of England, the historians of the society claim for it an antiquity further back than the invasion of the Romans under Julius Cæsar. St. Austin, assumed to be a zealous Mason, helped to found the Cathedrals of Canterbury, Rochester, St. Paul's, and St. Peter's, Westminster, all in the seventh century; and, if the records may be trusted, the Craft has continued to flourish here, with the exception of a period of stagnation during the Heptarchy, from these days to those. According to Anderson's account, St. Augustine, Alfred the Great, St. Dunstan, and Edward the Confessor were all Grand Masters before the coming of the Normans. Nevertheless, the list of the holders of this exalted position among the brethren is not generally accepted without reservation until the end of Queen Anne's reign. Undoubtedly Henry VII. and Henry VIII. were Freemasons, and Inigo Jones and Sir Christopher Wren Masters of Lodges. An historic list of Grand Masters, however, accurate beyond all possibility and dispute, only begins with the Grand Mastership of Henry Sayer in 1717, followed by that of George Payne in 1718. In the year following the office was conferred on Dr. Désaguliers, who initiated Frederick Lewis, twentieth Prince of Wales, eldest son of King George II., at the Palace of Kew, on the 5th November 1737. If we are to place implicit reliance on the Memoirs of Lord Hervey—Pope's "Sporus"—the character of Prince Frederick Lewis was not above criticism. Certain it is that his father, a vain and selfish old man, despised him, and he was hated by his mother, the generally acute Queen Caroline. The Prince, however, was popular with the multitude, and that he must have been popular with the Craft is manifest from the fact that the Book of Constitutions for the year 1748 was dedicated to his Royal Highness.

The uninitiated are in the habit of asking: If Freemasonry be such an admirable institution, why is it not thrown open to everyone; and, furthermore, if it be good for men, why are not women also entrusted with its secrets? To this the Freemasons reply that were the privileges of the Order to be indiscriminately dispensed, its mysteries, becoming familiar, would lose their value and sink into disregard, and, when pressed, they are fain to admit that upon one occasion a lady was actually passed through the degrees of the Craft and emerged a full Freemason. It would appear that at some time during the second quarter of the eighteenth century the meetings of Lodge 44 used to be held at Donoraile House, the seat of Lord Donoraile, in Ireland, his lordship being then Worshipful Master. Lord Donoraile had a sister, the Hon. Elizabeth St. Leger, afterwards the Honourable Mrs. Aldworth, and the young lady so managed affairs that she possessed herself of all the secrets of the Lodge workings. The St. Legers, it will be remembered, were an enterprising family. "Handsome Jack Sellinger," one of the founders of the "Hell Fire Club" and the Doncaster St. Leger, a boon companion of the "First Gentleman in Europe," inherited all the curiosity and liveliness of the Donoraile blood. Some say that the Honourable Elizabeth secreted herself in a clock-case, others that she witnessed the working through a crevice in the wall of the apartment sacred to the mysteries of the Craft. What were the members of Lodge 44 to do under the circumstances? Having discovered her, had they let her go free she might have revealed secrets, close kept since the days of the building of the Temple, to all the parish, and so to society at large. We may suppose that her brother the Worshipful Master, and the Officers and brethren assembled, were hard put how to act for the best. Women might not become Freemasons. Yet here was a woman who, so far as a knowledge of some of the most important secrets, never revealed to the outer or popular world, was already one. The Constitutions did not provide for such a contingency, and it became necessary to create a precedent. Thereupon the Honourable Elizabeth St. Leger, only daughter of Arthur, first Viscount Donoraile, was brought before the authorities of Lodge 44 and solemnly inducted into the secrets and mysteries, the signs and tokens, of a Free and Accepted Mason. What was imparted to the lady is not likely to be made public. For, as one of the most learned of Masons had laid down, "of all the arts which Masons practise the art of secrecy particularly distinguishes them; and that it is agreeable to the Deity Himself may be easily conceived from the glorious example which He gives in concealing from mankind the ways of His Providence. The wisest of men cannot pry into the Arcana of Heaven, nor can they divine to-day what to-morrow may brink forth." Indeed, Harpocrates and Angerona were not more sacred to silence among the Greeks and Romans than is all that goes on in a Lodge close-tiled to the discreet Freemason. Whatever was told to Miss St. Leger, under the seal of secrecy, she possessed the conscience and prudence never to let pass her lips. The Irish Masons revere her memory, and her likeness in full Masonic clothing is still preserved.

When, at the Royal Alpha Lodge, to be held at Willis's Rooms to-day, Prince Albert Victor is received into the Craft by his father, he will become the member of a society illustrious alike for its antiquity and "respectability," and for the innumerable works of charity with which its name is associated. The word "respectability" is used advisedly. It is a word understood and applied according to its best and truest meaning—respect-worthy by the Craft at large. Freemasonry is, in this sense, before all and above all, a respectable institution. Its tenets teach the principles of honour and the practice of virtue. The society aids and assists the sick and the poor, and the widows and orphans of its members. Fond of good fellowship and lavish in the cause of Charity, the typical British Freemason is a good man and a decent citizen. Although it is a secret society, religion has nothing to fear from an Institution based on belief. Only lately the English Lodges have cut themselves adrift from the Grand Orient of France, not, as has been erroneously supposed, because the Orient favours freedom of thought, but because the Grand Commander of French Freemasonry and his Officers refuse to admit that the very life of the Institution is founded on the Masonic acknowledgment of faith in the Great Architect of the Universe. For the Grand Commander of the Orient, or for any lesser Mason, native or foreign, to pretend that the Craft in its purity is possible without a profession of faith is to misunderstand the first principles of Masonry, to misinterpret its injunctions, and to misread its records. Freemasons are, or should be, brethren wherever they meet. The Craft, like Art, speaks a universal language understood by all races of the initiated—East, West, North, and South. In the past it has left its traces upon almost every sacred Jewish and Christian fane famous in the annals of architecture. When the Freemasons really handled the tools of the mason's trade they were a guild by themselves, protected by every enlightened Monarch throughout the civilised world. And now that there are speculative Masons more particularly devoted to ethics and morality, Kings and Princes equally delight to honour an institution which upholds the safety of the State and the stability of the Throne. As of other learning, so of the knowledge of Freemasonry, there is no Royal road to all that it teaches. With the aid of an instructor, however, as able and accomplished in the lessons of the Craft as his illustrious father, Prince Albert Victor enters upon his Masonic career under a most auspicious star.

With respect to some of the remarks as above, a Past Master writes to the Daily Telegraph as follows:—

In your able leading article on Freemasonry, of last Tuesday, you say, "that on one occasion a lady was actually passed through the degrees of the Craft and emerged a full Freemason.' Permit me to add that no less than four of the softer sex have been initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry. These were the Hon. Mrs. Aldworth, in Lodge 44, about 1735, whom you mention; Mrs. Beaton, a native of Norfolk; a certain landlady of a Devonshire hotel; and Madame de Xaintrailles, in France.

THE UNRECORDED YEARS OF THE CRAFT.

WHEN we consider that from the beginning the established policy of Freemasonry has been to commit to writing as little as possible concerning the actual life of the Craft, and when we remember that the art of printing is a modern invention, only some four centuries old, it is not matter for surprise that we know so little of the history of the Masonic Fraternity, not only in the primitive times, but even in the Middle Ages, comparatively near to our own era. Indeed, it is remarkable that we have so many manuscript Constitutions and Old Charges preserved as are now in the possession of old Lodges, or of public or private libraries, when we recall the fact that at the so-called "Revival" in England, in A.D. 1717, the policy was to destroy rather than to preserve the old records of the Craft. Notwithstanding all this, though year by year the past is becoming more remote, the possibility of recovering some of these documents, long hidden away or lost, is improving. Old muniment chests and old garrets, when compelled to give up their possessions, sometimes present records of the greatest value. Thus are old Minute Books and MS. Constitutions discovered, and little by little our vista is extended into the centuries anterior to those now regarded as historic. Yet what we are now absolutely certain of is inadequate to the demands of an enlightened curiosity. We crave a knowledge of the details of Lodge life when Sir Robert Moray was made a Mason at Newcastle, England, in A.D. 1641; when Elias Ashmole was initiated at Warrington, in Lancashire, in 1646; when Randle Holme was a member of the Chester Lodge, in 1665; and generally prior to 1686, at which date, according to Aubrey's "Naturall Historie of Wiltshire," then just completed, "the Fraternity of Free-Masons" * * * "have Severall Lodges in severall Counties" [of England]. Then, prior to that, how gratifying it would be to know something at least concerning the inner history of the Lodges of the Cathedral-builders in Great Britain and on the continent of Europe; the particulars of their connection with the monasteries, the transmission of their art to them from the prior building corporations and guilds, and their derivation, in turn, from Byzantium and the Orient. Then what would we not give to penetrate to the arcana of Lodge life in Palestine in King Solomon's era, and in Egypt in the Mysteries of Osiris? How we should like to learn of the stimulus given by all of these instrumentalities to the impulses of genius among the elder Craftsmen, which resulted in the triumphs of architecture in ancient and mediæval times. How we should delight to verify legend, and change it into history. The poet Longfellow was right:—

> "The legend, I feel, is a part

Now, we have only the paucity of a few attested facts, while, if the past were unfolded to us, we should see as we are seen and know as we are known. Will this ever be? We have faith to believe that it will—measurably, at least. The delving, antiquarian, archæological spirit is actuating not a few prominent, able, and laborious Brethren, and their efforts have already revealed many interesting facts in the past, and have stimulated Freemasons everywhere to be on the qui vive for the discovery of other ancient records. There is a growing demand for information concerning that long period which now includes the unrecorded years of the Craft, and all analogies justify us in expecting that the demand will be gratified, and light gradually be shed upon these dark ages. A few years ago the histories of Nineveh, Babylon, and Egypt were almost closed books to us, but since the labours of Layard, Bunsen, Wilkinson, Mariette, Lenormant, and Rawlinson have uncovered the ruins and discovered the relics of those mighty empires, we have come to feel almost familiarly acquainted with their peoples, who flourished millennials ago. So it may be in Freemasonry. The events of the past are irrevocable, but evidence concerning them is not irrecoverable. Even in the case of a mystic fraternity like that of the Freemasons, sufficient disjecta membra of its once complete records may yet be found, out of which may be reconstructed a satisfactory sketch of its continuous career, and of the early manners and customs of the Craft. The last twenty years have been marked by remarkable discoveries in this respect, which justify us in anticipating a continuous succession of fortunate "finds." Indeed, we have only just set out upon the quest. Not only is the literature of Freemasonry a rapidly growing one, but not a few of the Brethren who are engaged in the labour of diffusing light to the Craft are gifted with rare ability. They are patient, laborious workers, critical scholars, bold and fortunate discoverers, and actuated, withal, by the most loyal affection for our ancient and honourable Fraternity. We wish them "God speed" in their labour of love. "More light" is the earnest cry of earnest Craftsmen, and more light is dawning, year by year. We can bear the full effulgence of the sun of truth. We crave to know all of the past. Little by little this knowledge shall be ours, until the unrecorded years of the Craft are crowded off the pages of Masonic history.—Keystone.

Several installation meeting reports are unavoidably held over.

The ceremony of installation will be rehearsed at the Joppa Lodge of Instruction, Champion Hotel, Aldersgate Street, on Tuesday next, 24th instant, by Brother A. G. Dodson P.M. The Lodge will be opened at seven o'clock precisely. Brethren are invited to attend.

The following Dinners were held at the Freemasons' Tavern during the week ending 21st March:—

Monday—Grand Masters' Lodge, British Lodge. Tuesday—Benevolent Society of St. Patrick, Cadogan Lodge, Salisbury Lodge. Wednesday—Grand Stewards' Lodge, Oak Lodge, Buckingham and Chandos Lodge. Thursday—Home for Little Boys, St. Mary's Lodge, Globe Lodge. Friday—Jordan Lodge, London and Suburban Railway Officials, King's College Hospital Clerks and Dressers. Saturday—Highland Society.

An International Exhibition of French Cookery, "Concours Culinaire Artistique," will be held on the 22nd and 23rd of April, at Willis's Rooms. Exhibitions of this character have been held in Paris, New York, Vienna, and Berlin, but never before in England. Prizes, consisting of medals and diplomas, will be presented. A committee, consisting of Bros. M. Ponard President, Bohers, E. Devien Secretary, Allibert, Lecomte, Mandin, Penet, &c., has been formed.

The ordinary half-yearly meeting of the Crystal Palace District Gas Company was appointed to be held on Friday, the 20th instant (yesterday), at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street, for the reception of the Report, the confirmation of the Balance-Sheet by the auditors, the election of a new auditor in the place of Bro. James Glaisher P.G.D. resigned, the declaration of a dividend, and the transaction of other business. We learn from the Report, which is of a satisfactory character, that the Directors have resolved on reducing the price of gas to 2s 10d per 1000 cubic feet from and after the date of the Lady Day accounts, and that the following are the rates of dividend which it had been resolved to propose for declaration, namely:—6 per cent. on the Preference Stock; 7 per cent. on the Ordinary 7 per Cent. Stock; 10 per cent. on the Ordinary 10 per Cent. Stock; and 7 per cent. on the New Ordinary 7 per Cent. Shares. These Dividends, which will be payable less income tax, will absord over £11,938 out of the balance of net profits for the half-year—over 19,704. We note further that Bro. Glaisher has succeeded the late Bro. Sir Erasmus Wilson on the Board of Directors, hence his resignation of the Auditorship, and that Messrs. R. J. S. Beeton and Charles Beeton are candidates respectively for the latter office. We may also mention—and we do so with pleasure—that one of the Board's recommendations is that a substantial addition be made to the salary of the Secretary, Bro. Magnus Ohren P.G.A.D.C., whose valuable services to the Company are evidently appreciated as they deserve.

VITRUVIAN LODGE, No. 87.

ON Wednesday, the 5th inst., the installation meeting was held at the Bridge House Hotel, under the presidency of Bro. W. H. Bale, the Worshipful Master. There were present Bros. W. R. Davis W.M. elect S.W., T. Minstrell P.M. 1928 J.W.; P.M.'s Timothy Thurkle Treasurer, Stuart Secretary, T. Janeway, J. Harnor, R. Whiting, R. T. Hopkins, J. C. Walter, and a large number of Visitors and members of the Lodge. After previous minutes had been confirmed, the ceremony of passing was performed in the usual excellent style which has characterised the working of the W.M. The installation ceremony was then proceeded with, the retiring W.M. performing the first portion, and P.M. Whiting the last part. The newly-installed W.M., Bro. Davis, invested his Officers—Bros. Minstrell S.W., Birch J.W., Stuart Secretary. P.M. Thurkle, who, like P.M. Stuart, has done good suit and service in the Lodge, again received the collar of Treasurer. The other Officers appointed were Bros. Watson S.D., Lamborne J.D., Chamberlain I.G., Irwin D.C., Payne and Nicholls Wine Stewards, Knollys Organist. The new Worshipful Master afforded ample proof of the Masonic ability which it was known he possessed, in the initiation ceremony which he subsequently performed. Brother Davis is the author of a new song, "The Initiate." During the evening a valuable P.M.'s jewel was presented to the retiring Master, who, as a further mark of respect of the brethren, was presented with a beautifully emblazoned address, which recorded his services in the Lodge during the year. The address was signed on behalf of the Officers of the Lodge. A suitable speech accompanied the presentation, and the same was warmly acknowledged. After Lodge had been duly closed, the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet. A suggestion has been made that the Lodge should have affiliated with it a Chapter; and although the brethren have not yet been asked to sanction the necessary application to the Grand Chapter for a warrant, the movement has been very heartily taken up by the members, very many of whom have expressed a desire to be associated with it. Bro. Minstrell has kindly undertaken the necessary preliminary arrangements.

LODGE OF TRANQUILLITY, No. 185.

AN ordinary meeting of this Lodge was held on Monday, the 16th instant, at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham Street, E.C., Bro. Sydney Boas W.M. in the chair. There were present Bros. Barnett I.P.M., Staley as S.W., Tipper J.W., Bayley P.M. Treasurer, Myers Secretary. Several of the minor Officers were absent, but there was a goodly muster of Brethren. It is the custom in many Lodges for the retiring Master to clear off his work, and not infrequently recourse is had to an emergency meeting for this purpose, generally held about a week before the night of installation, and thus leave the course clear for the new Master. However, such an arrangement is sometimes aggravating, especially when no new candidates are forthcoming, and the newly installed W.M. is up to his work and eager to convince the members that their choice was justified. On the other hand, it is by no means pleasant to a brother, tolerably efficient, but of a nervous temperament, to commence his career with three or four passings and the eventual working of the Master Masons' degree, when, in all probability, the performance of an initiation, in which perhaps he is more at home, might have imparted to him the confidence necessary under such circumstances. Brother Boas had to commence his duties by conferring the second degree upon Bros. M. Marks, Stanley, Bamberger, Van Gelder, T. Davis, Frisher and Lazarus, no easy task for a beginner. After the termination of the Lodge business, an ample supper was served, and the usual toasts were proposed and responded to with very commendable brevity. The Worshipful Master, in response to the toast of his health, expressed his sincere thanks for the cordiality with which the brethren deemed it proper to receive his name. He confessed to a certain amount of nervousness, which every one must have noticed, during the proceedings, but he assured the brethren that his future efforts would be found satisfactory. Brother Barnett I.P.M., who replied for the Past Masters, dilated upon the readiness of that body to render services whensoever and wheresoever they were called upon; this was evidenced that evening, when one of them was required to fulfil duties which he had not attempted for the last four years. Brother Bush P.M. announced his intention to serve a Stewardship at the next Festival, unattached and independent of any Lodge of which he is a member, but he requested the aid of the brethren in the matter. Brother Bush deserves all recognition. He is an indefatigable worker for the Charities, and through his influence no mean amount has been contributed during the last few years. Brother Bayley P.M. and Treasurer, whose name is always received with the most sincere affection, could assure the brethren that he most heartily reciprocated the kind feeling ever shown to him. Brother Asher Myers, the able Secretary, is making rapid strides in securing the esteem of the members, by his unfailing courtesy. A very pleasant and enjoyable gathering came to a close with the Tyler's toast. Bros. Bayley, Tipper, and Thompson amused the brethren by their vocal efforts. The Visitors were Bros. Harris 177, Hills 754, Durrant 34, Hamilton 53, Shiffield 1896, Skipton 1603, Hawkis 107, Rexworthy 1728. The P.M.'s present were Bros. Staley, Bush, Barnett (Organist), Harfeld, Rose, Gluckstein, and Gottheil.

PORTSMOUTH LODGE, No. 487.

THERE was a large attendance of members and visiting brethren at this Lodge on Thursday, the 12th instant, to witness the installation of Bro. Horace E. Loader as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. Lodge was opened in due form by the outgoing W.M. (Bro. H. Poulden Holley), who in suitable language acknowledged the services rendered by the retiring Secretary (Bro. J. T. Thackara) and the Organist (Bro. G. Pearman), each of whom were presented with a gold medal, and the recipients severally returned thanks. The impressive ceremony of installation was ably performed by one of the "fathers" of the Lodge, Bro. M. E. Frost, after which Bro. Loader invested his Officers as follows:—Bros. Holley I.P.M., Cowd S.W., J. T. Thackara J.W., T. P. Palsgrave P.M. Treasurer, J. W. Boughton Secretary, J. Rae Assistant Secretary, G. Whitehall S.D., W. Bates J.D., W. M. Outridge P.M. D. of C., G. Pearman Organist, J. Jenkins I.G., Brough and G. C. Sanderson Stewards, J. Exell and T. Smith Tylers. The new W.M., who had a most cordial welcome, after a few well-chosen remarks, presented his predecessor with a Past Master's jewel, subscribed for by the members, in recognition of the excellent manner in which he had discharged the duties of his office. The musical portion of the ceremony was effectively rendered by a choir, comprising Bros. G. Pearman (who presided at the harmonium), R. W. Downing, J. Jenkins, T. P. Palsgrave, T. Batchelor, G. Grant, C. Larkins, and W. H. Sperring. The ceremonies in the handsome Lodge concluded, an adjournment took place to the banquetting-room, which was tastefully decorated with bunting, while on the tables were candelabra and other plate and choice flowers, the tout ensemble being exceedingly effective. The name of each guest was inscribed on an artistically-executed menu card, which, besides the toasts, contained the following programme, played by the band of the Royal Irish Fusiliers, under the direction of Mr. W. O'Keefe, the Bandmaster:—March, "Triumphal," Robinson; overture, "Le lac des Fees," Auber; valse, "Mariana," Waldteufel; selection, "Falka," Chassaigne; cornet solo, "The lost chord," Sullivan; valse, "Moonlight and starlight," Dobrowolske. A récherché banquet was served from the Albany Hotel, Landport, and the wines were of the first quality. The arrangements were excellent, and the W.M. received valuable assistance from Bro. J. T. Thackara and others. At the conclusion of the banquet the usual toasts were honoured, Bro. Major Shalden Smith responding for the Provincial Grand Master, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and the Provincial Grand Officers. The toast of the Worshipful Master, proposed by Bro. M. E. Frost, had a very warm reception, and elicited an appropriate reply from Bro. Loader. With the aid of harmony a very pleasant evening was spent.

ERME LODGE, No. 1091.

THE brethren of this Lodge held their annual meeting at their rooms, at Ivybridge, on Wednesday, 11th inst. The W.M. elect, Bro. Velvin, was installed by the retiring W.M., Bro. Cobeldick, assisted by Bro. Lavers P.M. and an efficient Board of I.M.'s. At the close of the installation the W.M. invested the following brethren as his Officers for the year:—Bros. Cobeldick I.P.M., Henwood S.W., Lavers J.W., Cole Treasurer, Ford Secretary, Strain S.D., Shepherd J.D., Sellick D.C., Baker A.D.C., Hy. Shepherd I.G., Gulley and Mudge Stewards, Coyte Tyler. Bro. Cole was reappointed the representative of the Lodge on the Committee of Petitions and Lodge Steward for the Devon Educational Fund. A handsome P.M.'s jewel was presented to Bro. Cobeldick, with the following inscription engraved thereon:—

Presented to
W. Bro. Cobeldick, by Erme Lodge, No. 1091,
On his retiring from the chair 11th March 1885.

Bro. Cole made the presentation, remarking in laudatory terms on the zeal and industry shown by Bro. Cobeldick in carrying out the duties of the Lodge during his year of office. In the evening the brethren dined together at Bro. Sandover's, Erme Hotel. Bro. Velvin presided, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

JORDAN LODGE, No. 1402.

BROTHER W. J. HUGHAN P.G.D., &c., lately delivered a lecture, under the banner of the above Lodge, at Torquay, the Master (Bro. B. Knight) in the chair. There was a good attendance of the Past Masters and members of the Lodge, and also of the Master and members of the sister Lodge St. John's, No. 328, as well as of the Masters and members of neighbouring Lodges from Paignton, Brixham, Teignmouth, &c. Bro. Westcott P.M. 70 P. Prov. G. Supt. of Works attended as Treasurer of the Devon Educational Fund. The subject of the lecture was "The Four Grand Lodges of England," the first having been formed in 1717 by four old Lodges meeting in London; the second originated at York in 1725, and was started by a Lodge assembling in that city—in all probability for centuries before; the third was started as a rival to the first in London in 1751; and the fourth was in existence only for ten years from 1779, under the wing of the Lodge of Antiquity during a temporary secession. The York Grand Lodge collapsed in 1792, the first and third continuing as opposing bodies until December 1813, when under the Grand Masterships of their Royal Highnesses the Dukes of Sussex and Kent respectively, they joined hands and formed the United Grand Lodge of England, peace and harmony having since happily prevailed, the difficulties during the last century being in part incident to the change of the Society from a partially operative to a wholly speculative Institution. Many questions were asked and answered at the close of the lecture, and a collection was made on behalf of the Devon Educational Fund, which has benefited that Institution to the extent of five guineas. On behalf of the same Society Bro. Hughan will lecture on the 26th instant, at the Huyshe Masonic Temple, under the banner of the Lodge Fortitude, No. 105, on the "Connecting Links between Ancient and Modern Freemasonry," being the last of the series for the season, when the whole of the proceeds, as hitherto, will be devoted to the Educational Fund.

THE GREAT CITY LODGE, No. 1426.

THE last meeting of this Lodge for the season was held on Saturday, 14th inst., at the Cannon-street Hotel. Bro. Baber W.M. presided, supported by his Officers, Brethren and Visitors:—Bros. Venn P.M. 23, Simpson 1196, Crosbie 1635, Baxter 1296, Doyle 146, Tallent P.M. 186, Parkinson 57, Cozens 907, Goodwin 1768, Deacon 29. The minutes of the last Lodge having been read by Bro. Blackie P.M. and Secretary, some motions concerning the government of the Lodge were discussed and disposed of; the next business was the election of a W.M. for the ensuing year, Bro. Fendick being unanimously chosen to fill that office. The same unanimity was shown in the case of Bro. Headon P.M., who was re-elected to the responsible post of Treasurer of the Lodge, an office which he has filled with credit to himself and satisfaction to the brethren for many years past. Bro. Potter was also re-elected Tyler of the Lodge. The Audit and Almoners' Committees were appointed. An application came from a person who represented himself to be a Spanish Mason; after an investigation of the case, it was dismissed as unworthy the assistance of the Lodge. There being no further business Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned for refreshment, the W.M. presiding. At its conclusion, the toast of the Queen was given, followed by the National Anthem, Bro. Cozens presiding at the pianoforte. The W.M. said the next toast he had the honour to propose was that of the Most Worshipful Grand Master the Prince of Wales, who at all times felt the greatest interest in Freemasonry, and, as proof of this, if any were wanting, he heard that on Tuesday next he intended to introduce his eldest son and initiate him into the ranks of Freemasonry. Therefore, there was every probability that at some future time the Craft would greet him as Most Worshipful Grand Master. It showed how deeply his Royal Highness had the interests of the Craft at heart by thus early initiating his eldest son as a Freemason. Their Grand Master was always engaged in some good work; it was only the day before that he and the Princess of Wales were at the Mansion House, rendering whatever services they could to do honour to the memory of General Gordon. The W.M. gave the health of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, Most Worshipful Grand Master, which was enthusiastically responded to, followed by "God Bless the Prince of Wales," by Bro. Cozens. The other formal toasts were given and responded to. Bro. Keeble I.P.M. said that was the last time he should address the brethren as I.P.M., and therefore he should ask their indulgence while he proposed the health of their W.M. He no doubt felt that it was his misfortune not to have done a greater amount of work, for had it been given him to do he would have performed it with credit to himself and to the satisfaction of the Lodge; but as it was, he would leave the chair with the best wishes of every member, adding lustre to the noble band of Past Masters, of whom he would become a worthy member. As this was the last opportunity he should have of addressing them, he was determined to make the most of it, but if he was interrupted, he feared he should break down; he therefore thought he had better stop at once and propose the health of the W.M. Brother Baber said he thanked their I.P.M. for the manner in which he had proposed, and the brethren for the cordial way in which they had received the toast; he was sorry that the term of his office had come to an end, for it appeared to be a very short one. He was rather dissatisfied he had had so little to do, and that was why the time appeared so short. He thanked them sincerely for the manner in which they had received the toast of his health, and for the uniform kindness shown him since he occupied the chair. The W.M. said the next toast he had to propose was that of the Visitors; The Great City Lodge always gave them a hearty welcome. Bro. Tallent returned thanks. The W.M. then gave the P.M.'s, and alluded to the services they had rendered to the Lodge. Bro. Keeble returned thanks; he was much obliged to the W.M. for the manner in which he had proposed the toast. It had been to him a great pleasure to be at the right hand of the W.M. during his term of office. He had already mentioned that that would be the last occasion on which he should return thanks in the capacity of I.P.M., and from henceforth he should take a lower seat amongst the Past Masters with a deal of pride. Other Past Masters likewise returned thanks. The W.M. said the toast he had next to propose was that of the Treasurer and Secretary. Their Treasurer had that night been re-elected with unanimity, and he doubted not that he would be so re-elected for some years to come. The same remark would apply to Bro. Blackie, the Secretary, who although labouring under disadvantages in necessarily being away so much from London, yet still had devoted his best energies to the good of the Lodge. The toast was cordially received. Bro. Headon P.M. and Treasurer said it almost appeared idle on his part to say that he heartily returned thanks for the compliment which he had received for many years past, as the brethren were always kind in the manner in which the toast of the Treasurer was received, but he must say that he had endured a certain amount of agony for years past, as all his ideas were worn out. He wanted some new ideas; they had the same old toast and the same old thanks; he looked forward with anxiety to the time when he should have something new to say, but that was exceedingly difficult to find. At present he was placed in much such a dilemma in returning thanks as in singing "God save the Queen" over and over again; he was exhausted in speech, but at the next meeting he would endeavour to give them something new; they must be content with his formal thanks for the favour they had conferred upon him. Bro. Blackie P.M. and Secretary, in returning thanks said, in delivering up his collar, from that night he should not again have to respond to the toast of the Secretary, but he should leave everything in order and a perfect state; when a successor came in and took possession he would find the duties of his office a much easier task than he had found them. That was the last time he should address them as Secretary; although he had occupied the position for five years he had always been received with courtesy, and he believed that during the whole of that time he had never given offence to any one. In conclusion he thanked the brethren for the honour they had conferred upon him. The W.M. proposed the health of the W.M. elect, saying that they had worked together for some years past; it was a pleasure to be associated with him, and it would be a satisfaction to him to instal him into the chair, certain that he would fulfil all the duties and add lustre to the Lodge. Bro. Fendick S.W. returned thanks. The Tyler's toast brought the meeting to a close.

HONOR OAK LODGE, No. 1986.

THE installation meeting was held on the 11th instant, at the Moore Park Hotel, Honor Oak, S.E., and the brethren must be congratulated on the arrangements made for the convenience and comfort of those who attended. Sixty brethren were present in Lodge, of whom fifty-five afterwards sat down to refreshment. Lodge was opened by the Worshipful Master, Bro. C. H. Phillips, who was well supported by his Officers. The minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed. There were three candidates for initiation, viz.:—Mr. Joseph Andrews, Dr. Robert Lockhart Lawson, Mr. Wm. Henry Cloake; these gentlemen were approved by Ballot, and were admitted to the mysteries and privileges of antient Freemasonry; the working of the ceremony being most creditable to the W.M. and Officers. The Lodge having been advanced, the W.M. elect, Bro. H. Maunder Williams, was presented by Bro. John Hammond, for the benefit of installation. The Board of Installed Masters numbered twenty. In due course the new W.M. appointed his predecessor I.P.M. and invested his Officers, as follow:—Bros. Henry Stokes S.W., J. W. Hartley J.W., W. Hopekirk P.M. (elected) Treasurer, John Hammond P.P.G.D. Middlesex Secretary, Herbert Hooper S.D., Aug. Daroh P.M. J.D., T. W. Aldwinckle I.G., F. France D.C., J. H. Worstencroft A.D.C., W. H. Simons Organist, W. Bartlett Wine Steward, J. Fuller A.S., A. Pitman Assistant Organist, G. R. Langley Assistant Secretary, C. Thomas Tyler. The installation ceremony was concluded by the Installing Master Bro. Phillips giving the several charges most impressively. The W.M., in the name of the Lodge, presented a P.M.'s jewel to Bro. Phillips, as a mark of esteem and in appreciation of his valuable services as one of the Founders of the Lodge and Worshipful Master for the year 1884-5. He had also to ask his acceptance of a collar and P.M.'s jewel, from some of his friends in the Lodge, as a token of Brotherly Love. He added that the brethren valued Bro. Phillips' services most highly, and trusted that he might long be spared to them, to his Lodge, and to his family. Bro. Phillips acknowledged the gifts in suitable terms. Visitors present:—Bros. E. Bowyer, J. L. Mather, R. A. Matthews, G. Beavis, H. Baldwin, P. T. Breary, W. H. Williams, A. R. Cranch, C. H. Spiller, T. H. Spiller, J. R. Johnson, C. W. Fox, A. J. Bellis, S. Richardson, Sidney Hill, R. Walden, C. Wise, S. R. Smith, J. W. Williams, E. A. Francis, A. E. Albert, James Leutchford, W. T. A. Mayer, W. M. G. Cooper, R. R. Johnstone, J. H. Hudepohl, A. Gooch. The ceremonies were accompanied throughout by Bro. Sidney Hill, Org. 1216, whose improvisations on the organ were extremely appropriate. An excellent banquet was provided by the host, Bro. Bye, and after the cloth was removed the W.M. gave The Queen and the Craft, following this with the M.W.G.M. To the toast of the Grand Officers Bro. Edgar Bowyer P.G.St.B. responded. The I.P.M., in proposing the health of the W.M., said they had worked shoulder to shoulder in Masonry for several years. No more worthy brother than the W.M., nor one who worked more zealously for his Lodge and the interests of the Craft generally, could be found. He predicted a most successful year of office. The W.M., after thanking them, assured the brethren he would do all in his power to maintain the credit of the Lodge. He had no doubt he should have the cordial co-operation of each Officer and member. Each of the Initiates responded to the toast given in their honour. The W.M. welcomed the Visitors to the Lodge. Seveveral personal friends had come from long distances to support him and to favour the Lodge with their presence. Many brethren from Cheshire and Lancashire, with whom he spent the early days of his Masonic career, had sent their congratulations and best wishes to the Lodge. Bros. Williams, Beavis, Matthews, Mather, Breary, King, Baldwin, and Bellis responded. Bro. Binckes acknowledged the toast of the Masonic Institutions, and made a powerful appeal to the brethren to practise the great Masonic Virtue—Charity—and to support Bro. C. H. Phillips, their I.P.M., who had promised to represent the Lodge at the next Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. It was incidentally mentioned that the brethen of the Lodge had an especial interest in the approaching election, as the son of their late Brother Ambrose would be a candidate. After some other toasts Lodge was closed. The vocal music between the toasts was contributed by Bros. Simons, Cranch, Johnstone, Pitman, and S. S. Young, Bro. Sidney Hill as pianist. As the result of Bro. Binckes' appeal, we are gratified in being able to state that a considerable sum was added to the I.P.M.'s list.

ABBEY LODGE, No. 2030.

PROBABLY the career of the Abbey Lodge, Westminster, has no equal in Masonic annals. As its number—2030—indicates, it is of recent creation; its first anniversary was, indeed, only celebrated on the 9th inst., at Westminster Town Hall, yet it has a roll of membership of nearly eighty, and applicants to participate in its benefits rather increase than diminish. Doubtless much of the success of the undertaking is due to the interest which Mr. Burdett-Coutts and the Baroness Burdett-Coutts have taken in its welfare; the former has now for a year occupied the chair, and is about to retire from office with the thanks and esteem of his brethren; the latter, at its inception, presented the Lodge with one of the handsomest sets of furniture to be found in a young Lodge. That the brethren of the Lodge fully appreciated the labours of their W.M. was shown on Monday, when they informally offered him the chair for a second year. The W.M. was courteous in his answer, ascribing his non-acceptance of the honour to business engagements; but those who know him best shrewdly suspect that the welfare of the Lodge and the promotion of the present Officers influenced his decision. After his refusal to continue in the chair, Mr. W. H. Baker was unanimously chosen W.M. elect, and the installation will be proceeded with at the next Lodge meeting. Meanwhile a handsome P.M.'s jewel was voted to the W.M., and a vote of £10 10s made from the Lodge Funds to the W.M.'s list as Steward of the Boys' Festival. An incident of the evening was the presentation to the Lodge, by the Rev. R. J. Simpson P.G. Chaplain, of a handsome album, the only condition of gift being that the Baroness should adorn the first page. This, the W.M. remarked, her ladyship had done, and he expressed the hope that the members would render the album complete by adding their likenesses. The business of the Lodge included the raising of Mr. J. E. Smith, Mr. H. H. Bridgeman, C.C., Mr. Z. A. Berry, the passing of Mr. S. Hodges, Mr. A. W. Hillier, Mr. G. White, and Mr. Pilkington, all of which work was excellently performed by the W.M. Joining members were elected as under: Mr. H. W. Roach, Mr. B. Genner, Mr. T. Vaughan, and Mr. J. M. Hughes. At the banquet the W.M. of course presided, supported by Mr. H. Bowman Spink I.P.M., Mr. W. H. Baker S.W., Mr. F. Seager Hunt J.W., Mr. J. C. M. W. Rogers P.M. Treasurer, Mr. J. E. Shand P.M. Secretary, Mr. W. Sugg P.M. S.D., Mr. R. Montague J.D., Mr. J. Gibson A.D.C., Mr. H. R. Baker I.G., Mr. H. W. Schartau Organist, Mr. R. E. H. Coffin, Mr. C. C. Piper Stewards. The list of thirty-seven Visitors included Mr. Horace Jones P.M. Grand Superintendent of Works, Mr. F. Davison S.G.D., Rev. J. S. Brownrigg P.G. Chaplain of England. The loyal and Masonic toasts were, of course, duly honoured, Mr. F. Davison and Mr. Horace Jones responding for the Grand Officers, the latter of whom, in a jocular speech, wished the Lodge long life and increasing prosperity. It would be impossible to over-estimate the enthusiasm with which the toast of the W.M. was received, at the instance of the I.P.M., and loud was the applause when, having congratulated the members and himself upon the establishment of the Lodge, Mr. Burdett-Coutts expressed the hope that his year of office had rendered him and his brethren life long friends. To the Officers he expressed his thanks for their able cooperation. In submitting the toast of the Visitors the W.M. paid a tribute to the memory of General Gordon, "that most soldierly saint and saintly soldier"—the members impulsively rising to their feet whilst he spoke the words. Gordon was a grand exemplification of the great principle on which the Masonic Order was founded, of Charity in the highest sense of the word, of Charity and kindness to his fellow creatures, of fidelity to the trust reposed in him, of cheerful obedience to the will of God. He was, he felt sure, in sympathy with his brethren when he paid that tribute to the just and virtuous man, to whom death had no terrors equal to the stain of falsehood and dishonour—a tribute in full sympathy with the spirit of a loyal, faithful God-fearing body of Masons. Col. Lugard, of the Army and Navy Lodge, and Mr. Trevannion, P.P.S.W. of Essex, replied. The good services of the Treasurer and Secretary and the other officers were of course recognised in toasts, the W.M. elect being spoken of by the W.M. as "the organiser" of the Lodge. Over £50 was collected in the banquetting room for the W.M.'s list on behalf of the Boys' Charity. Mr. Burdett-Coutts remarking that he knew of no grander or more efficient form of Charity than was to be found in the Masonic Institutions.—The Citizen.

LODGE LA FRANCE, No. 2060.

THIS newly-consecrated and flourishing Lodge, the membership of which is confined to representatives of French nationality, was held on the 16th inst., at the Café Royal, Air-street, Regent-street, under the presidency of the W.M. E. H. Thiellay P.P.G.S.B. Middx., supported by Bros. Montauis P.G.S. S.W., H. Bué J.W., A. Coiffier P.M., L. Mesrouze P.M. Sec., Dubois S.D., E. Cadiot Treas. J.D., Leon Clerc I.G., E. Casabianca D.C., Grummant 1559 as P.M. Visitors—E. Daoust 1627, E. Ponard 1627, H. M. Levy P.M. 180. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes, which were read in French, were confirmed. Satisfactory ballots were taken for the admission of Messrs. L. A. Cabuzet and A. Chiboust, who were duly initiated into the Order. A book of the Constitutions was presented to each candidate. Bros. Sauve, Fournet, and Lacoste, were passed to the 2nd degree, and Bros. St. Clair, Aret, and Benoit were raised. All the ceremonies were performed in a perfect and impressive manner by the W.M., while each Officer was perfect. The Treasurer, Bro. Coiffier P.M., being about to leave England, resigned office, but will continue a member. Expressions of regret at his leaving this country, and wishing him health and prosperity on his retirement, was then proposed, and a vote of thanks was ordered to be recorded on the minutes for his efficient services as Treasurer. This was carried unanimously. After a hearty response Bro. Leon Clerc was elected as Treasurer, and Bro. St. Claire, who was the first Initiate, was invested as I.G. Hearty good wishes were then given, and the Lodge was closed until the third Monday in May. The brethren sat down to a very excellent dinner and dessert, provided by Bro. Nicols, and superintended by Bro. De La Coste. The W.M. proposed the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts. In speaking to the toast of the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M., he said it truly showed how his Royal Highness's heart and soul was in Freemasonry that he was about to initiate his eldest son. The W.M. next proposed "Our Country—La France." He would associate with it the name of the President, M. Grèvy. He regretted that the time was so short for toasts, or he would expatiate more fully. Bro. Grummant P.M. 1559 in a very able speech proposed the health of the Worshipful Master, whose good qualities were well known; the brethren had seen in other Lodges what he had done. Great credit was also due to him for what he had done in this Lodge. The W.M. in reply said all his energies would be at the service of the members; they knew what his feelings were towards them; his aim was to secure the success of the Lodge. Before resuming his seat, he would propose the toast of the Initiates; they had two present, and he was proud to meet them, and hoped one day to see them wield the gavel he now held. This having been responded to in appropriate terms, the W.M. complimented the Visitors. Bros. Grummant and Levy responded. The W.M. next proposed the toast of the Treasurer and Secretary. To the latter brother great credit was due for his services, and also the brother who assisted him. This toast having been responded to, the toast of the Wardens followed. In due course, the Tyler's toast was given, and a very enjoyable evening was closed, Bros. Montauis and Bué contributed to the harmony. The motto of the Lodge—"Union est Force"—is delineated in a garter; this shows the title, Lodge La France 2060; the Union Jack and the French tricolour firmly bound together, with excellent effect.

ECCLESTON LODGE, No. 1624.

TO the minds of many a step in the right direction has been taken by Lodges occasionally having a Ladies' Night, as well as a Summer Banquet. The Eccleston Lodge had a very successful gathering last year, and a second Ladies' Night was held on the 18th instant, at the Criterion, Piccadilly. The regular meeting was held at an earlier hour the same day, under the presidency of the W.M. Bro. R. Bottle; Grist as S.W., A. A. Johnston J.W., A. W. Beckham Treasurer, Isaacs Secretary, Moorman S.D., J. W. Wray J.D., E. Hooper I.G., Weston D.C., G. R. Egerton Organist, C. Lee and Bignold Stewards, J. Grist Tyler; P.M.'s C. Tayler, W. Vincent, J. E. Flattery, E. Powell, I. G. Fisher. Visitors—Bros. H. Dehane P.P.G.D. Essex, C. Pugh 1346, James Terry P.P.G.J.W. Herts, W. H. Baker W.M. elect 2030, R. Goffin W.M. 1572, A. Fenn 1614, J. Hayler 2030, Aitcheson 2021, H. M. Levy P.M. 188. Lodge was opened and the minutes were confirmed. Bro. C. Pugh was elected a joining member. Bro Smith was raised to the third degree, and Bros. G. Lane, W. E. Lane and Pope were passed; while Mr. E. Nice was duly initiated into the Order by Bro. Powell, who had expressed a wish to initiate his friend. It is almost needless to say (our readers knowing the qualifications of Bros. Bottle and Powell) that the ceremonies were perfectly rendered. Lodge was then closed until September. The Ladies were now introduced, by the Director of Ceremonies, and the guests, eighty-nine in number, sat down to a sumptuous and récherché banquet, provided by Messrs. Spiers and Pond (Limited), and superintended by Bro. Bertini. The tables were artistically decorated, and the service gave unqualified satisfaction. After the cloth had been cleared, the W.M. said he did not wish to take up time with long speeches, but in no assemblage of Masons was the toast of Her Majesty the Queen omitted. On this occasion he would associate with it the name of His Royal Highness our Most Worshipful Grand Master. Only yesterday the Prince of Wales had initiated his eldest son into the Order, and it is said he performed the work in a most efficient manner. Bro. Tayler I.P.M. most cordially proposed the health of the W.M. Bro. Bottle, in reply, thanked the brethren for their kind expressions. Their last meeting of a similar character to this had been held under the direction of the I.P.M. Bro. Tayler; it was a great success; he hoped the present one would be equally so. The W.M., on again rising, said he did so to propose the toast of the evening,—the Ladies,—and he would call on the youngest Mason in the room to respond to it; he referred to Bro. Nice, who had been initiated that night. After a suitable response had been made, the Ladies retired, and several other toasts were introduced. Bros. Terry P.P.G.J.W. Herts, and Dehane P.Prov. Grand Deacon Essex, responded to the compliment paid the Visitors. In the interval the ladies listened to some excellent singing, by Bros. Roberts, Lee, and Tayler. A ball afterwards took place, when all assembled thoroughly enjoyed themselves. The band was under the direction of Bro. Kinkle, while Bro. Chilcott efficiently acted as M.C. To Bro. Vincent P.M., who acted as Director of the Ceremonies, great credit is due for the success of the meeting. It was suggested, before leaving, the brethren should drink to the health of the worthy manager, Bro. Bertini, whose efforts to make every one comfortable had proved so effective. Bro. Bertini gracefully acknowledged the compliment.

Metropolitan and King's Cross Lodges of Instruction.—A joint annual banquet of these two Lodges of Instruction took place on Monday, the 16th inst., at the Holborn Restaurant, under the presidency of Bro. W. M. Stiles P.M. 1507, 1732, &c. There was a large attendance of brethren, close upon one hundred being present, and a most enjoyable evening was spent. A substantial repast having been done ample justice to, and grace having been said, the President proposed Loyalty to the Throne and Devotion to the Craft. Those around him were such loyal subjects that he knew it was not necessary to say anything to ensure a hearty reception being accorded to the toast of Her Majesty the Queen. Of the heads of the Order—H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Earl of Carnarvon, the Earl of Lathom, and the other Grand Officers Present and Past—Masons were exceedingly proud, and in coupling their health with the toast of the Queen, the President felt sure additional enthusiasm would be accorded to it. The toast having been honoured, was followed by the National Anthem, after which Brother Michael P.M. 1107, 1507, 1732, &c. assumed the gavel to propose the next toast—the health of the President of the evening. He had had the pleasure of a long acquaintance with Bro. Stiles; had seen him initiated into Freemasonry, and had watched his career ever since. He had seen Bro. Stiles occupying every office that a Mason could be called upon to fulfil, and in every one he had carried out the duties creditably and in a way of which any one might be proud. Bro. Michael's position was that night an unfortunate, but at the same time a most pleasurable one. He stood there to propose the health of their President, and he supposed the fact of his having been the second Master of the Metropolitan Lodge and the first Master of the King's Cross Lodge somewhat entitled him to the honour; yet he felt his position was an unfortunate one, as he was wholly incapable of doing justice to the task before him; tax himself how he would, he could not speak of Bro. Stiles as that brother deserved. His position was also a most pleasurable one, from the fact that it afforded him another opportunity of paying a compliment to their esteemed President, Bro. Stiles, than whom a more energetic or painstaking brother it would be difficult to discover. He was, however, speaking to those present on a subject with which they were almost, if not quite, as intimate as he was himself, and therefore he should not do any more than call upon them to honour their President. The toast was drunk in the most enthusiastic manner, and in due course Bro. Stiles replied. He felt unable to adequately express his thanks for the hearty manner in which he had been received among them, not only on that occasion, but also on many previous ones. He did not think he deserved anything like so much praise as had been given him, still, he had endeavoured to deserve it, and accordingly hoped some part of it was due. He was very happy in being associated with the two Lodges the festival of which they were then celebrating, and proud, as their founder, that they had prospered as they had done. It was indeed gratifying to be called upon to preside over such a body of brethren as were assembled around him. He next proposed the King's Cross Lodge of Instruction. It was within a day of seven years since its foundation. During the term of its existence it had had a most prosperous career. Much of its success was due to the exertions of its executive Officers. Bro. Solomon, the Secretary, was particularly to be mentioned in this regard. He was painstaking, energetic, and persevering in his work, and had had no small share in securing the success which had characterised this Lodge of Instruction. The Preceptor, Bro. James Hemming (whose name was greeted with hearty cheers) had only to be mentioned to call forth such a burst of enthusiasm as unmistakably proved the estimation in which he was held; he also had a very great share in securing the success which had attended them in the past. Known throughout the Craft for his ability, Bro. Hemming was universally respected and esteemed. He had been the tutor of many of the shining lights of Masonry of the present day, and could point to many Lodges, now noted for the superiority of their working, whose Officers had perfected themselves under his direction. Bro. Hemming had certainly tried his utmost to carry out his duties satisfactorily, and all praise was due to him for the success he had achieved in his self-imposed task. Speaking of the company present, Bro. Stiles felt that the members of the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction were very pleased to be associated with the King's Cross Lodge of Instruction on such an occasion as the present, although it must be admitted there were very few members of either but who belonged to both. Deeds were louder than words, and the actions of those present far in advance of anything he had said or could say. He would therefore at once proceed to the task which he had been asked to undertake, which was to present to Bro. Hemming a memento in appreciation of the manner in which he discharged the duties of Preceptor of the King's Cross Lodge of Instruction. The presentation took the form of a handsome gold watch and chain, the former bearing the following inscription on the case:

Presented, with a Gold Chain,
To Bro. James Hemming, J.D. 1287,
By members of the King's Cross Lodge of Instruction, No. 1732,
In appreciation of his valued services as Preceptor, and in token of the high esteem and regard in which he is held by his numerous Masonic friends.

March 16th, 1885.

We do not remember having seen a more substantial or handsome present during the many years we have been associated with the Craft. It reflected the greatest credit on those who contributed towards it, and was a speaking testimonial of the taste and ability of Bro. Kauffmann, to whom was entrusted the procuring and engraving the articles. In presenting it Bro. Stiles hoped that Bro. Hemming would long be spared to be among his fellow members of the King's Cross Lodge of Instruction, and continue to give them the benefit of his ability, Masonic knowledge, kindly and gentlemanly conduct, and true brotherly bearing. All they desired was a continuance in future of the same services that had been rendered in the past. Bro. Stiles concluded by calling upon the brethren to drink the toast of the King's Cross Lodge of Instruction, coupling with it the name of their esteemed Preceptor. Bro. Hemming replied. He thanked the brethren for the cordial way in which they had associated his name with the Lodge of Instruction, and for their truly Masonic reception of the toast. As Preceptor of the Lodge he had striven to do his very best. It was quite true that seven years had all but elapsed since the foundation of the Lodge. Then there were some eight or nine brethren who desired instruction, and eventually he was asked to undertake the duties of Preceptor. From the proceedings that night it would appear he had given some amount of satisfaction. They had had some grand Masons, and they had had some grand meetings in the King's Cross Lodge of Instruction, and among the results had been the sending up by the members of something like four hundred guineas to the Masonic Charities—this of itself was a result of which they were justly proud. The gift he had received at their hands that night was a far more difficult matter to acknowledge than was the toast he had just spoken to. It came quite as a surprise to him, he having no idea that anything of the sort was proposed—it was, indeed, a grand present and one which he felt he never could repay them for. He had made many friends in Freemasonry, many of them in the King's Cross Lodge of Instruction. He hoped their friendship would continue for the remainder of his life. That day, and the handsome gift of his brother Masons, would ever be stamped on his mind as one of the red letter days of his life. Bro. Stiles next proposed the health of the Vice-President of the evening—Bro. Solomon. The speaker had the pleasure of giving Brother Solomon his first instruction in Freemasonry. Since that time he had done a great deal of good work for the Order. Both in the Lodges of Instruction and in regard to the Masonic Charities had Brother Solomon displayed his energy, and both had felt the benefit of his exertions. Brother Solomon had laboured hard to secure the success of the evening's Festival, and a great share of its success was due to him. Brother Solomon was much delighted in filling the honourable position of Vice-President. It was a very great compliment to fill the post in connection with such a Chairman as they then had, and the pleasure was much enhanced when he considered the special event of the evening—the presentation to their worthy Preceptor. When the Lodge of Instruction was started, its members were seven in number, and those seven had considerable difficulty in even opening the Lodge. Now he felt that any one of them could acquit himself creditably in the matter, and they had to thank Brother Hemming for their proficiency. Brother Solomon next proposed the toast of the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction. He had never been called upon to submit a toast more sure of a hearty reception than this was. Brother Solomon briefly reviewed the history of the Lodge, referring to the active part taken in it by Bro. Stiles, the President of the evening, who, first as Secretary and since as Preceptor, had secured for it a reputation enjoyed by few such institutions. In Bro. Storr, the present Secretary, the Lodge had a worthy successor to Bro. Stiles, but the work had outgrown even that brother's ability, and it had been found necessary to appoint an Assistant Secretary. Bro. Davis filled that office, and he was doing his best to emulate the good example of his predecessors. Bro. Scales was an efficient Treasurer, and completed a roll of permanent officials who would do credit to any Lodge of Instruction. The Metropolitan he looked upon as a pattern school of Freemasonry. If all other Lodges were conducted in the same unanimous manner it would materially add to the credit and reputation of Freemasonry. Bro. Stiles was the first to respond. He very much appreciated what had been said of the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction on various occasions. He felt that its success was owing rather to the kindly feeling existing among its members than to anything done by the permanent officials. He felt it a great honour to occupy the exalted position he did in connection with it. Brother Storr followed. The aim of the members of the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction was to secure good working and good fellowship. Bro. Scales spoke of the great success they had achieved in the past, and hoped they would go on with even improved prospects. They were always pleased to see new members, and usually gave them such a welcome as induced them to continue their association with the Lodge. The fees were small, but mounted up in such a manner as enabled them to do some good with them. They had already contributed four grants of five guineas each to the Charities, and hoped shortly to be able to vote two more such sums. Bro. Davis also spoke to the toast, which was followed by that of the Visitors, given by Bro. Stiles. He hoped the welcome given to the Visitors that night had been sufficient to induce them to seek further acquaintance with the Lodges of Instruction, and that many of those present who were not members would soon become so. Bro. Griffiths replied. As Past Master of two Lodges he fully appreciated the value of Lodges of Instruction; if what he had seen that night was a criterion of what was usual in the two Lodges of Instruction whose festival they were celebrating, they must indeed be models of perfection. Bro. Roberts was also much struck with what he had seen that night. It proved the class of men who were connected with the Lodge when they could present such a testimonial as had that night been given to their Preceptor. They were also mindful of hospitality, which, although perhaps not a leading feature in Freemasonry, was at least an important adjunct. Bro. Easman, March, Hemming sen. and others replied. Bro. Hemming was pleased, to an extent he did not know how to express, to see the way in which those assembled honoured his son. He was much gratified to find he was so beloved and respected as he evidently was by those with whom he was associated. The toast of the Officers of the Mother Lodges was next given. Bro. Stiles was pleased to see Bro. Edwards, the present W.M. of the Metropolitan Lodge among them, and regretted the absence of the presiding Officer of the King's Cross Lodge. They had, however, a worthy substitute in Bro. Michael, the first Worshipful Master of that Lodge. The Lodges of Instruction were much indebted to the parent Lodges for permission to hold their meetings; they endeavoured to faithfully discharge the trust reposed in them. Bro. Edwards expressed the pleasure he felt in being present. Although not able to attend the meetings of the Lodge of Instruction as often as he desired, he yet appreciated what was done in them for the welfare of the Order. He considered Freemasonry owed much to the exertions of brethren who gave their time and ability in Lodges of Instruction. Bro. Michael replied on behalf of the King's Cross Lodge, and then the Committee and Stewards of the Festival were toasted. There were not many, said Bro. Stiles, who had any idea of the amount of work which had been performed by those who had had the arrangement of the banquet and testimonial. They had thoroughly done their work, and were to be highly complimented on the result of their exertions. Bro. Kauffmann had been particularly active in the matter and he would be called upon first to respond. This brother expressed the pleasure it had been to him to act as he had done. He was amply repaid for the time he had devoted to the matter when he saw the success the meeting had been. The seventh anniversary of their Lodge of Instruction, and the presentation of the testimonial to their worthy Preceptor, would ever be pleasurable associations to him. Bros. McKay, Scurrah, Bolton, Knight and others having spoken, Bro. Stiles resumed the active duties of Preceptor, and gave the Tyler's toast "in true Masonic style"—sympathy for the brethren in their distress, with hearty expression of good feeling towards them. The meeting was thus brought to a conclusion.

LODGES OF INSTRUCTION.

Dear Sir and Brother,—In a recent issue you gave me an opportunity of airing my views with regard to the character and conduct of Lodges of Instruction. I now propose to recur to the subject, taking in view some of the points suggested by your leader of the 28th ult. It was hardly to be expected, with the facilities possessed by Lodges generally, that the prevailing tendency to selfish indulgence should not have found its way into them, and that the pleasures of the table should not be regarded with greater solicitude. The habits of the time affect all classes more or less, and however much we may philosophise on the matter, the fact stares us in the face, that the desires of the carnal appetite have to be satisfied, whatever else may be sacrificed. It is the universal practice, so far as my experience goes, and it has been rather large, at Lodges of Instruction to drink and smoke while business is progressing. The incongruity of beer and divinity, the absolute profanity of combining drinking with the exposition of the most sublime system of morality, seem never to have struck the minds of those who smoke and drink while performing or listening to the performance of a ritual the grandeur and sublimity of which cannot be over-estimated. Why what is forbidden in a regular Lodge is permitted and encouraged in a Lodge of Instruction is a puzzle I cannot explain. I deplore the fact, and put its existence down to the spirit of self indulgence which in the present is so dangerously rife. Not only is the habit tolerated, but, as you say, if a brother does not drink, he runs the risk of being derided. Lodges of Instruction should be schools to all intents and purposes, and while at work the mind should be drawn entirely to the lessons to be learned. The soul should be attuned to the splendour of the ceremonies, and nought should be allowed to interfere with the contemplation of moral and divine truths, which are scattered like gems in a noble setting. If brethren must drink and smoke, let the Lodge be called off, according to the ritual in that case made and provided. Better still—shorten the hours of labour, and let those who wish for social enjoyment remain, while others not so inclined might retire. No one would be the worse for such an arrangement, but many would be gainers, and certainly the Institution would be put more in harmony with the genius of the Craft.

The other evil you allude to, namely, urging visitors to join Lodges of Instruction, has not struck me very forcibly, although I have seen what may be described as the touting system freely indulged in. It is only prudent and courteous to inform visitors upon what terms they could become members, and when that has been done they should be left to their own free action. It is a mistaken zeal to force membership, a practice that would be more honoured in the breach than in the observance.

Now, Sir, after having had my grumble, I can turn to the pleasing side of the subject. For some years past I have watched the charity movement in connection with Lodges of Instruction with pride and pleasure. The weekly meetings are suited for the collection of subscriptions, and the machinery is ready to hand for giving effect to the charitable instincts of the brethren. The periodical ballots provide the necessary excitement, and the constant example affords the requisite stimulant. A brother might go through his life without being able to get together ten guineas in one sum, and sincerely lament his inability to help on the Charities connected with the Order. Nearly all, however, can afford the customary weekly shilling, and in due time arrive at the happy consummation of being a life subscriber to one of the Institutions. Many continue to subscribe, until they have obtained the same position with regard to the three Charities. And, after all, the money is not missed, while the reward is beyond description. I am always pleased to hear of these charitable associations, and welcome them, not only for the good they do of themselves, but for the noble discipline of the heart, when the world, the flesh, and the devil strive so hard to corrupt.

With many thanks for past favours,

I remain,

Yours fraternally,

Watchman.

THE QUARTERLY COMMUNICATION.

To the Editor of the Freemason's Chronicle.

Dear Sir and Brother,—I desire emphatically to endorse the criticism of "A Past Master" which appears in your issue of the 14th inst., upon the disgraceful mismanagement of the last meeting of Grand Lodge. I cannot conceive anything more calculated to bring contempt upon what ought to be the most cherished exponent of the dignity and decorum of our Masonic assemblies.

I think the main cause of all the confusion and actual danger which characterised the struggle to enter the Temple may be attributed to the unwise arrangement of keeping the doors closed until almost the last moment. It seems to me that if the brethren, in their desire to be present, arrange to attend early, they should be allowed to proceed into the Temple as they arrive.

If this simple course had been adopted, all the unseemly confusion and the dangerous crowding would have been avoided.

There should be no such difficulty as that which was offered as an excuse, viz., that the early attendance of the officials could not be secured.

I consider the suggestion of a ballot being taken in every Lodge a very valuable one. Such a course would be infinitely preferable to bringing the proceedings of Grand Lodge into disrepute.

I am,

Yours fraternally,

Another Past Master.

The opening ceremony of the International Inventions Exhibition has been fixed by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, President of the Exhibition, for Monday, the 4th May.

On the day of the University Boat race the old civic barge, the "Maria Wood," will be moored near the winning post, at Mortlake. A limited number, who desire to see the finish, will be accommodated by Bros. Ritter and Clifford, of the Guildhall Tavern, at 15/ each. The menu states that hot soups and a cold collation will be supplied. A military band will be in attendance.

We are requested to state that on Friday, 27th March, the ceremonies of Installation and Exaltation will be rehearsed in the Pythagorean Chapter of Improvement, No. 79, by Companion E. J. B. Burnstead, P.Z. 548, at the Portland Hotel, London-street, Greenwich. The Chapter will be opened at seven p.m., when the attendance of Principals and Past Principals is particularly requested. Bro. Burnstead has rehearsed the above ceremonies for several years past, and therefore we hope to see a large attendance of brethren present on the occasion.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Diseases of Advanced Years.—The grand climacteric being passed, mankind passes to old age. Then the digestion becomes impaired, the nervous system grows feeble, and the physical powers become enervated. Now arises congestion of the liver, lungs, or head, followed by dropsy, asthma, or apoplexy, which frequently afflict and often destroy the aged. As the liver usually becomes torpid, its activity may speedily be revived by rubbing Holloway's Ointment thoroughly over the pit of the stomach and right side, at least twice a day, and taking the Pills at the same time. This treatment also disperses all other congestions by varying the parts rubbed according to the situations of the mischief.

SAVOY.

ONE of the dramatic memorabilia which will mark the season was presented at the Savoy Theatre on the evening of the 14th inst., when Messrs. Gilbert and Sullivan's new opera, the "Mikado," saw the foot-lights. The dark places of the Embankment were alive with multitudinous carriages, all wending to the new Japan. Hours before the doors opened enthusiasts sat down at the pit and gallery doors of the beleaguered citadel. Thirty years ago no London theatre could have hoped to bring together such a gathering of notables as were in attendance when Sir Arthur took up his baton. The densely crowded house was hushed when the overture commenced; it was listened to without enthusiasm; its characteristic feature is an adaptation, greatly europeanised, of a native air. It concluded with applause, for the composer rather than for the music. The curtain rose upon a picture, real yet unreal—the very men and women of the land of Nipon, surely no inhabitants of our own prosaic isle. We turn to the bill of the play, half expecting to find that these wonderful folk were really come in a body from the village at Knightsbridge. They were grouped in the quaint attitudes in which we have seen them on tea-trays and tea-pots, and when they presently sing the sparkling opening chorus, we are startled to find that they can speak English. The scene represents the court-yard of Ko-Ko's Palace at Titipu. The costumes have been supplied by Liberty and Co. for the ladies, and by Wilhelm for the gentlemen, after native authorities, and for beauty of colour and richness of fabric nothing more beautiful has been seen. The most exquisite embroidery in silk and gold thread, upon stuffs that an Eastern Sultan might wear on feast days. The pretty girls of the chorus looked fascinating in their clinging robes, dainty sandels, and coiffeurs of jet black hair, wonderfully braided and dressed in orthodox Nipon taste. The story told is simple enough. Ko-Ko (Mr. George Grossmith) holds the office of Lord High Executioner for the town of Titipu, on condition he performs its duties at least once in ten years. There has been a plethora of virtue; his term approaches its end, and he must find a "subject" or kill himself as a substitute. It happens that Nanki-Poo (Mr. Lely), son of the Mikado, has escaped from court to avoid marriage with the "elderly-ugly" lady chosen for him by his papa. He loves the beautiful Yum-Yum (Miss Leonora Braham), and in the disguise of a minstrel woos her. He sings a very effective "minstrel lay" refrain, closing with a Dibden-like "Yo heave ho." In the chorus the assembled multitude of lords and ladies join with a vigour of action rather suggestive of the deck of the Pinafore. Nanki-Poo relates how he has fallen in love with the beautiful Yum-Yum, and having heard that Ko-Ko, to whom she has been betrothed, has, through a new law against flirting, incurred the penalty of death, hurries back in the hope of finding her free. Pish-Tush, a noble lord (Mr. Bovill), informs him of the state of things, and then enters Pooh-Bah (Mr. Barrington), who on all the other ministers resigning has embodied their various offices in his own person. He informs the lover that > "This very day,

> From school, Yum-Yum
> Will wend her way,
> To wed the Lord High Executioner."

The song and chorus following was bright and effective, with that factastic touch of which Sullivan is so great a master. From the opening no doubt of the success of the work had suggested itself, but still a chief factor in a Savoy triumph had to appear, and the audience were impatiently awaiting its Grossmith, who now entered, disguised with the shaven crown, sandalled shoon and gold embroidered robe of Ko-Ko, the Lord High Executioner. Mr. Grossmith's crisp incisive style told admirably, and if the role had not the opportunities of H.M. First Lord, or of Wellington Wells, it was fitted to the special gift of its exponent, and delighted applause followed his first song. Presently enters Yum-Yum (Miss Braham), Peep-Bo (Miss Sybil Grey), and Pitti-Sing (Miss J. Bond). Nothing more facinating or fantastically delightful has ever been given on the stage than the delicious trio,

> "Three little maids from school are we."

Each of the ladies evidently enters into the grace of the situation; they fairly carry away their audience. The trio was thrice re-demanded. It would be impossible to praise too highly the manner in which the intention of composer and author was rendered; nor have these talented ladies ever seemed more to enjoy the work assigned them. It would be worth a visit to the Savoy to hear this trio. How the story proceeds and Yum-Yum is united to her Prince, whilst Ko-Ko escapes the doom pronounced, it is needless to say. There is a pretty fanciful duet between the lovers, and Mr. Grossmith has a good patter song, with which, perhaps, the audience expected a little political sauce piquante, but Mr. Gilbert discreetly leaves blanks for the names of the apologetic statesmen. As the "elderly-ugly" fiancée of the Troubadour Prince, Miss Brandram has some of the finest numbers allotted her, and she rendered them with artistic finish. In Act II. there is a merry duet between Mr. Grossmith and Mr. Lely. In short, Sullivan has never produced music brighter or more dramatic. That the story has nothing of Japan in it but the costumes is true enough, while the dialogue might have been put into the mouths of any of the pleasantly preposterous forbears of these youngest heirs of the Bab gens. Perhaps the Savoyards prefer the mirror held up to reflect the nature familiar to the Strand. In any case it would be unreasonable to carp at a work which will produce smiles and laughter through hundreds of nights and matinées yet to come.

THE EMPIRE.

GLAD tidings for our "golden youth." At the magnificent temple in Leicester-square there is now offered a spectacle more brilliant and costly than the London stage has seen since the days of "Babil and Bijou." Five thousand pounds have been spent in mounting the "Lady of the Locket." The scene opens near the Grand Piazza, Venice, with the Ducal Palace in the distance. A youthful and well-favoured chorus represent the population. When we think of the choruses of earlier days—which were composed of severe matrons and lean-shanked patriarchs—we cannot praise too highly the careful drilling through which those who now fill the stage must have passed. Moreover, they sing with spirit, and more like living men and women, a characteristic at one time difficult to realise. The music, though possessing no marked originality, is graceful and refined, and deserves a better "book" than the words supplied by Mr. Hamilton. Both Miss St. John and Miss Edith Brandon were evidently suffering from the East winds, and though both won deserved applause, will certainly sing with greater effect when the evil influence to which we have referred is dispersed. The story is simple enough. Francesca, the lovely daughter of Baron Bombazine, is betrothed to Cosmo (Mr. Coffin). She, of course, prefers another (Mr. Bracy), who loves her, though he has only beheld her picture in a locket. Cosmo is devoted to the lovely Stella, a ballad singer (Miss Brandon). The story carries us through the hall of the Doge's palace, a magnificent scene, crowded with brilliant costumes, more or less archæologically correct, but all picturesque, and as rich as brocade and cloth of gold can make them. Here there is a very fantastic ballet of Turkish slave girls, dressed in the late popular dual garment, and wearing yashmaks of light gauze, though why Almées should veil their faces we know not; perhaps they were more bashful in the fifteenth than in the nineteenth century. Francesca consents to elope with her adorer, and to this end she is to be assisted by the son of the Doge. Here Miss St. John has a very taking chansonette, "I'm such a pretty girl," and that is followed by a charming quintette, "When you want to elope," given with much spirit by Miss Brandon, Miss St. John, Mr. Bracy, Mr. Coffin, and Mr. Ryley. The political allusions on the first night produced a good deal of opposition from the audience. The Venetian ballet of the last act, in the moonlit gardens of the palace, is very graceful and fantastic, recalling the triumphs of the Alhambra. The ladies represent sea-nymphs, with the colouring of brilliant marine creatures. A dancer from La Scala, Mdlle. Zanla, as the Adriatic, won great applause. She wore a curious costume of darkest blue below, and vapoury skirts of dark blue trenched with green. Mdlle. Sismundi made a fascinating Neptune. Mr. Coffin's drinking song was the success of the evening; he sang it with a spirit that merited the enthusiastic applause it evoked. A good part of the dialogue might be curtailed with advantage; it serves no purpose but to drag out the performance to an unreasonable length. Among the crowd on the stage there is a youthful black, who may be in training for a future Othello, but is now draped most picturesquely in a leopard skin, and enters into the humour of the situation with such evident relish that one wishes the author had found a few lines for him. We are greatly mistaken if he is not the Moorish slave whose dagger made us shudder in the "Claudian" prologue.

GAIETY.

ON Thursday, 12th inst., "Mazeppa," a new three act burlesque by F. C. Burnand, was produced at this house, and, judging from the applause of a large audience, it may be regarded as a success;—to our mind, deservedly so. The dialogue is full of humour, the music bright and taking, and the acting excellent throughout. In this latter respect Miss E. Farren, in the part of Casimir, an orphan Tartar boy, bears away the palm. From start to finish she has the weight of the piece on her shoulders, and splendidly she carries her burden. Her unceasing vivacity and ability cannot be adequately described—these qualities must be seen to be appreciated. Edward Terry makes the most of a comparatively unimportant part, and the other characters are satisfactorily represented, by Messrs. Royce and Dallas, Misses P. Broughton and Clara Jecks—the latter of whom deserves an especial word of praise for her artistic rendering of the small part of a Tartar conspirator. At the conclusion of the performance both author and actors received a hearty call before the curtain.

PRINCESS'S.

OF all farewells we have sorrowfully had reference made to, none have been received with more regret than the announcement that on the 28th of this month the curtain is to fall on "Junius" for the last time. The magnificent scenery, the poetic elevation of the dialogue, the admirable interpretation by the leading artists, to say nothing of Mr. Barrett's own perfect rendering of a classic ideal, have not ensured the success the lessee had a right to expect. "The Silver King" will doubtless be welcomed back, with all its old popularity, but for those who love the loftier heights of tragedy "Junius" will remain a recollection of unfading delight.

COURT.

EMILE ANGIER is to give place to Mr. Pinero, and the hero of the Denhams, in the original made so grand a tradition by Mons. Got, and translated for us by Mr. Clayton with no less tenderness, earnestness, and manly dignity, is to pass away. "The Denhams" is a play full of strong interest, and at the Court it has been admirably staged, except in one instance, where the temptation to bid for cheap applause forced one of the personages grotesquely out of drawing. It is surely well that "Die lustige person" say no more than is put down to him—or her.

CONSECRATION OF THE MONTAGUE GUEST CHAPTER, No. 1900.

WHEN we take into consideration the spirit and energy displayed by the Montague Guest Lodge, and the position it has secured for itself in the estimation of the Craft, we are not surprised that the earliest opportunity should be taken to form a Chapter in connection with it. The popularity of the esteemed First Principal of this Chapter is sufficient to justify us in predicting as grand a success as has already been secured by the Lodge, while those who have been appointed to subordinate positions in it are Companions well able to support the First Principal in all that may be required of them. The consecration took place on Friday, the 13th instant, at the Inns of Court Hotel, Lincoln's Inn Fields, the consecrating officer being Comp. Shadwell H. Clerke Grand Scribe E., who was assisted by Comps. Philbrick, Q.C., Grand Superintendent of Essex as H., Rev. C. W. Arnold P. Grand Chaplain as J., Fenn President of Board of General Purposes as S.E., R. Costa P.G.D.C. as S.N., and Frank Richardson as D.C. At the conclusion of the consecration ceremony Comp. Clerke installed the three Principals:—John Montague Guest, M.P., P.G.N. Z., Giovanni P. Festa J. 77 H., and F. R. W. Hedges 1319 J. In due course the other Officers were appointed, as follows:—Comps. S. Brooks Z. 975 S.E., John Goddard Treasurer, Harry Slyman P.Z. S.N., A. R. Carter P. Sojourner, W. H. Gardener First Assistant Sojourner, E. J. Petts Second Assistant Sojourner. The thanks of the First Principal having been expressed towards the Consecrating Officers, and the names of several brethren handed in as candidates for exaltation, the Chapter was closed in regular form, and the company adjourned to the banquet room, where, after a most enjoyable repast, the customary Loyal and Royal Arch toasts were honoured. The M.E.Z. proposed the first in order—that of the Queen and Royal Arch Masonry—which was followed by that of the Grand Z. His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. The head of Royal Arch Masonry in this country devoted himself to further its interests in every way that lay in his power. The benefit of his well-known energy and perseverance being felt in this, as in everything else with which he associates himself. He was about to introduce his eldest son into Freemasonry, a step which would give to the Order a worthy successor to the present head, when he should vacate that position, which, however, all hoped would not occur for many years to come. The next toast was that of the Pro G.Z. and the rest of the Grand Officers Present and Past, and with it was coupled the name of Comp. Philbrick. That Companion in the course of his reply referred to the presence among them of nine Grand Officers—equal in number to the Muses—and competent by themselves to form a Chapter. He took this as a happy augury of the success of the one they had assisted in constituting. The toast of the Grand Officers was always well received. Both the Earl of Carnarvon and the Earl of Lathom well deserved the thanks they secured from all quarters, while the same might be said of the other G. Officers. Comp. Clerke gave the health of the Three Principals, complimenting the Chapter on having secured so distinguished a Companion as Montague Guest—who had shown to advantage in all his Masonic connections—for its First Principal. Comp. Festa was one well able to support him, and the same might justly be said of Comp. Hedges. The M.E.Z. replied, tendering his best thanks to those present. It was always interesting to witness the birth and watch the life of a new Institution. Like a man, a Lodge or a Chapter had its up and downs. He looked forward with confidence to a successful career for the Montague Guest Chapter. He then proposed the health of the Consecrating Officer—a Companion known and respected wherever Freemasonry was practised. Comp. Clerke responded. It had been a great pleasure to him to fulfil the duties he had undertaken in connection with their new Capter. Companions Goodchild and Bush responded on behalf of the Visitors, and then the toast of the Officers was given from the Chair. The Most Excellent felt he had good material with which to creditably build the structure just commenced. They were particularly indebted to Comp. Brooks for the way in which he had carried out the duties he had undertaken, and this was also the case with Comp. Slyman. He could not, however, omit a special reference to Comp. Festa. Much of the success of the Montague Guest Lodge was due to him, and to him was also due most of the credit for having brought the Montague Guest Chapter into existence. This toast having been replied to, that of the Charities was given, and to this Comp. Frank Richardson responded. With the Janitor's toast the meeting was brought to a conclusion. The musical arrangements were entrusted to Comp. Seymour Smith, who was supported by Comps. Hodges and Carter. Madame Festa contributed some very handsome floral table decorations, which were objects of general admiration.

The first meeting of the Board of Stewards in connection with the coming Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls was held at Freemasons' Hall on Monday, the 16th inst., under the presidency of Bro. H. B. Marshall, Past G. Treasurer. The Officers of the Board of Stewards were chosen, as follows: Lieut.-General Randolph, Prov. S.G.W. Sussex, President, Bro. D. P. Cama, P.P.G.S.B. Middx., Patron of the Institution, Treasurer, J. H. Matthews, Chairman of Ladies' Stewards, F. R. W. Hedges, Secretary of the Instititution, Hon. Sec. of the Board. Music and Dinner Committees were appointed, and the Stewards' fee fixed at the usual sum,—two guineas. Other formal business having been disposed of, the meeting was brought to a conclusion with a vote of thanks to the Chairman.

Percy Lodge of Instruction, No. 198.—The annual supper was held on Tuesday, the 17th instant, at the Jolly Farmers', Southgate Road, N., (where the Lodge of Instruction holds its meetings every Saturday evening), under the presidency of Brother I. P. Cohen P.M. 205, the Preceptor, who was supported by Bro. A. J. Powell 186. The creature comforts were bounteously provided by Brother Langdale, whose efforts to give satisfaction were duly appreciated. The cloth having been cleared, the President in able terms gave the Loyal and Masonic toasts. Success to the Percy Lodge of Instruction was proposed by Brother Powell, who was one of the brethren who aided in its resuscitation, some ten years since. Boasting an existence of over one hundred years, it claims to be the oldest Lodge of Instruction, being originally part and parcel of the mother Lodge, whose members met together for the purposes of mutual instruction. It has passed through stages of prosperity and adversity, even sometimes lapsing into obscurity altogether. However, for the last ten years, under the patronage of the Officers of the mother Lodge, it has had an unequalled time of prosperity and usefulness, of which the members may well be proud. All work together with that harmony and brotherly love so essentially requisite for the well-being and success of a Lodge. The toast was enthusiastically received by the brethren, and responded to by Bro. Cohen. The Officers of the Lodge of Instruction was very flatteringly proposed by the President, and responded to by Bro. A. W. Fenner Treasurer, and R. W. Galer Secretary, who, in a few words (brevity was the order of the evening) thanked the brethren for the support at all times accorded to his efforts, in conjunction with those of the Preceptor, to maintain the efficiency of the Lodge, and to inculcate the grand principle of Freemasonry—Charity. In furtherance of this, sixteen months since, a Masonic Association was inaugurated; it has been so far successful that in that period 22 ballots have taken place, thus benefitting the Institutions to the extent of £231. The health of Bro. G. Lambert P.G.S.B., W.M. for the fourth time of the mother Lodge, with his Officers, was well received, and we trust that the kindly feeling existing between the parent and its offspring will be maintained. Much regret was expressed at their unavoidable absence. The President could not allow the evening to pass without referring to the ceremony which was being performed at that time in the Royal Alpha Lodge, where Prince Albert Victor was being initiated into Freemasonry by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales Most Worshipful Grand Master. Bro. Cohen, with a few appropriate remarks, proposed the health of the Royal Initiate. Votes of thanks to the host, to the pianists—Bros. Baynes and Wright—for their kindness in favouring with their services, were unanimously accorded. Thus a most enjoyable evening was brought to a close. Bro. Mullord undertook the musical arrangements. He was supported by Bros. Bayne, Wright, Gifford, Money, Snook, Woodman, and Langdale.

Rose Lodge of Instruction, No. 1622.—On Tuesday evening the annual supper of the above flourishing Lodge of Instruction was served at the Stirling Castle Hotel, Church-street, Camberwell, the W.M. of the mother Lodge, Bro. Goldschmidt, presiding, Bros. D. Rose Preceptor, T. Grammant Secretary, and Stone Assistant Secretary, being present, with the following brethren:—Martin, Penney, Vickery, Kettlewhite, Woodwell, Terry, Hilton, Smith, Hamlyn, Addington, Burnett, Benedittti, Petherbridge, Sturdee, Channon, Dunn, Sadler, and J. J. Brinton. Bro. Hill, the host, in order that the repast should be supplied in ample form, had secured the services of Bro. C. G. Slawson, the popular chef, of 736 Old Kent-road, who served a récherché meal, which elicited praise from all the guests. On the removal of the cloth, the usual loyal, patriotic, and Masonic toasts were given from the chair, and heartily pledged. Brother W. Hamlyn proposed the health of the President, the I.P.M. of the Rose Lodge. Bro. Hamlyn referred to the care and forethought of Bro. Goldschmidt as W.M. of the mother Lodge, and the time and energy he devoted to furthering the cause of the several Masonic Charities. The President acknowledged the compliment, and stated that the knowledge he had acquired in Freemasonry had been due to the instruction of Bro. Preceptor Rose, who had, from the time of his initiation, most carefully directed his steps. For this he cordially thanked him, and concluded by proposing his health, to which Bro. Rose responded in his usual able manner. The President next proposed the health of the Visitors; and then the Treasurer and Secretary, Bros. Cowley and Grammant, were complimented. The latter responded in a most feeling speech. The President next proposed the Stewards, to which Bro. Stone responded; other toasts followed. The brethren who contributed to the enjoyment of the evening, musically and vocally, were Bros. White, Briant, C. White, Hamlyn, Voisey, and Murché, the editor of Funny Folks. Upwards of forty brethren were present, and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

The regular meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence took place at Freemasons' Hall on Wednesday, when the President, Bro. Joshua Nunn P.G.S.B., and the two Vice-Presidents, Bros. James Brett P.G.P. and C. A. Cottebrune P.G.P., occupied their respective chairs. Last month's recommendations—to the extent of £265—having been confirmed, the consideration of the forty-four new cases on the list was proceeded with. Three of these were dismissed, seven deferred, and the remainder relieved to the extent of £755. The grants made or recommended included two of £5 each, eight of £10, five of £15, six of £20, one of £25, seven of £30, four of £40, and one of £75.

"The Cosmopolitan Calendar, Diary, and Pocket Book for 1885." London: George Kenning, Great Queen-street, Lincoln's-Inn-Fields, and Little Britain, Aldersgate-street.

It is only necessary to observe the title of this work to realise its ambitious character. A book that claims to be a complete storehouse of Masonic reference, and to contain "full particulars of every Grand Masonic body throughout the globe," sets up a bold position, and one that challenges criticism. It is, however, almost enough to say that as time has rolled on the work has been improved, until now it may be said that it defies criticism. We do not mean to say that it is without error, or that improvements might not be suggested, but we do affirm that as a reference book of the Craft and its cognate legitimate branches throughout the world, it is a marvel of comprehensiveness. Started, we believe, in 1871, this Diary is now in its fifteenth year. It has been long enough in existence to test both its strength and weakness, and the fact that it grows in popularity is proof enough that strength is developing with age, while the weakness is vanishing. It is impossible to test the accuracy of much that appears in this work. We may, however, by inference conclude that as the labour of compilation must be both great and full of detail, that accuracy would naturally form one of the most essential features of the compiler's duties. We may, therefore, confidently assume that the "Cosmopolitan" is to be relied on in every respect. Those who travel ought not to be without the book, and those who stay at home would do well to consult its pages, for therein is to be found a record of one of the mightiest movements of this or of any other age. The book is a study, and although it is little better than a mere directory in form and character, it is suggestive of an institution the origin of which is lost in the midst of time, and the future of which none can foresee.

"The Freemasons' Calendar and Directory for the Province of Oxfordshire and neighbourhood, for 1885-86. Oxford: W. R. Bowden, High-street.

A melancholy interest attaches to the present issue of this handy and useful directory. Bro. Bowden is editor, as well as printer and publisher, of his work, and as a matter of duty as well as of advantage, he sought and obtained the official sanction for his labours. The Duke of Albany was Provincial Grand Master of the Province, and he was a patron of Bro. Bowden's Calendar. Here is an extract from the letter, dated 10th February 1884, giving official sanction for the last time: "H.R.H. will renew his patronage, but begs you will not style him 'Prince Leopold' Duke of Albany, but simply Duke of Albany." The death of H.R.H. followed very shortly afterwards, and Oxfordshire lost its valued head, and the Craft a noble brother. Bro. Reginald Bird, as Deputy Provincial Grand Master, took charge of the Province, and from him Bro. Bowden has received official authority for the present issue of his Calendar. It contains a portrait of the late Duke of Albany, and a brief account of his Masonic career, couched in terms of brotherly sympathy and affection. The work before us is rather bulky for a Province, but in addition to information respecting the Craft and Arch in Oxfordshire, it contains an account of the Mark Degree in alliance with Berkshire, also a list of the United Provincial Grand Lodge of Berks and Bucks, and the Lodges contained therein. An enlarged digest of the schemes of the several Charities is given, and for the first time is published "lists of brethren in the Province holding votes in the Girls', Boys', and Benevolent Institutions, corrected to January in the present year." All the usual information is given, and Bro. Bowden deserves the support of the brethren of the Craft for the very excellent reference book he has provided for them. The next meeting of Prov. Grand Lodge will be an important one for them, the successor to the late Duke of Albany must be appointed. Bro. Bowden has anticipated that event in the following suggestive manner: "Rumour has already sketched the portrait of a nobleman residing in our midst as the more than probable successor to the much lamented Royal Duke; let us hope and pray 'so mote it be!' for no brother could be more supreme and acceptable to the hearts of Oxford Freemasons."

Royal Freemasons. Sketches of Scions of Reigning Houses in Europe who have donned the lambskin apron since A.D. 1717. By G. William Speth, of Margate, England. Philadelphia: Masonic Publishing Company. 1885.

We welcome the appearance in book form of these interesting sketches. They appeared originally in the columns of the Philadelphia Keystone, whose readers must have been pleased to make the acquaintance, through this medium, with so careful a compiler as our Bro. Speth. Great pains have evidently been taken in order to obtain all possible information as to the Masonic doings of Royal members of our Society, and to present that information in the most readable form, and Bro. Speth deserves credit for the success which has attended his efforts. Some portions of his task must have been comparatively easy, as in the case of the Masonic members of our own Royal Family, but, on the other, there are some Royal Masons about whom it must have been a work of very considerable difficulty to procure even the barest particulars. However, Brother Speth seems to have gone about his task in a determined and methodical kind of way, and the result is a handy little volume, which will probably find a place in most Masonic libraries. We congratulate both Bro. Speth and the Keystone on the re-appearance of their "Royal Freemasons" in so compact and pleasant a garb.

"The Cosmopolitan Calendar, Diary, and Pocket Book for 1885." London: George Kenning, Great Queen-street, Lincoln's-Inn-Fields, and Little Britain, Aldersgate-street.

IT is only necessary to observe the title of this work to realise its ambitious character. A book that claims to be a complete storehouse of Masonic reference, and to contain "full particulars of every Grand Masonic body throughout the globe," sets up a bold position, and one that challenges criticism. It is, however, almost enough to say that as time has rolled on the work has been improved, until now it may be said that it defies criticism. We do not mean to say that it is without error, or that improvements might not be suggested, but we do affirm that as a reference book of the Craft and its cognate legitimate branches throughout the world, it is a marvel of comprehensiveness. Started, we believe, in 1871, this Diary is now in its fifteenth year. It has been long enough in existence to test both its strength and weakness, and the fact that it grows in popularity is proof enough that strength is developing with age, while the weakness is vanishing. It is impossible to test the accuracy of much that appears in this work. We may, however, by inference conclude that as the labour of compilation must be both great and full of detail, that accuracy would naturally form one of the most essential features of the compiler's duties. We may, therefore, confidently assume that the "Cosmopolitan" is to be relied on in every respect. Those who travel ought not to be without the book, and those who stay at home would do well to consult its pages, for therein is to be found a record of one of the mightiest movements of this or of any other age. The book is a study, and although it is little better than a mere directory in form and character, it is suggestive of an institution the origin of which is lost in the midst of time, and the future of which none can foresee.

"The Freemasons' Calendar and Directory for the Province of Oxfordshire and neighbourhood, for 1885-86. Oxford: W. R. Bowden, High-street.

A MELANCHOLY interest attaches to the present issue of this handy and useful directory. Bro. Bowden is editor, as well as printer and publisher, of his work, and as a matter of duty as well as of advantage, he sought and obtained the official sanction for his labours. The Duke of Albany was Provincial Grand Master of the Province, and he was a patron of Bro. Bowden's Calendar. Here is an extract from the letter, dated 10th February 1884, giving official sanction for the last time: "H.R.H. will renew his patronage, but begs you will not style him 'Prince Leopold' Duke of Albany, but simply Duke of Albany." The death of H.R.H. followed very shortly afterwards, and Oxfordshire lost its valued head, and the Craft a noble brother. Bro. Reginald Bird, as Deputy Provincial Grand Master, took charge of the Province, and from him Bro. Bowden has received official authority for the present issue of his Calendar. It contains a portrait of the late Duke of Albany, and a brief account of his Masonic career, couched in terms of brotherly sympathy and affection. The work before us is rather bulky for a Province, but in addition to information respecting the Craft and Arch in Oxfordshire, it contains an account of the Mark Degree in alliance with Berkshire, also a list of the United Provincial Grand Lodge of Berks and Bucks, and the Lodges contained therein. An enlarged digest of the schemes of the several Charities is given, and for the first time is published "lists of brethren in the Province holding votes in the Girls', Boys', and Benevolent Institutions, corrected to January in the present year." All the usual information is given, and Bro. Bowden deserves the support of the brethren of the Craft for the very excellent reference book he has provided for them. The next meeting of Prov. Grand Lodge will be an important one for them, the successor to the late Duke of Albany must be appointed. Bro. Bowden has anticipated that event in the following suggestive manner: "Rumour has already sketched the portrait of a nobleman residing in our midst as the more than probable successor to the much lamented Royal Duke; let us hope and pray 'so mote it be!' for no brother could be more supreme and acceptable to the hearts of Oxford Freemasons."

Royal Freemasons. Sketches of Scions of Reigning Houses in Europe who have donned the lambskin apron since A.D. 1717. By G. William Speth, of Margate, England. Philadelphia: Masonic Publishing Company. 1885.

WE welcome the appearance in book form of these interesting sketches. They appeared originally in the columns of the Philadelphia Keystone, whose readers must have been pleased to make the acquaintance, through this medium, with so careful a compiler as our Bro. Speth. Great pains have evidently been taken in order to obtain all possible information as to the Masonic doings of Royal members of our Society, and to present that information in the most readable form, and Bro. Speth deserves credit for the success which has attended his efforts. Some portions of his task must have been comparatively easy, as in the case of the Masonic members of our own Royal Family, but, on the other, there are some Royal Masons about whom it must have been a work of very considerable difficulty to procure even the barest particulars. However, Brother Speth seems to have gone about his task in a determined and methodical kind of way, and the result is a handy little volume, which will probably find a place in most Masonic libraries. We congratulate both Bro. Speth and the Keystone on the re-appearance of their "Royal Freemasons" in so compact and pleasant a garb.

SPRING TIME.

THE season is now rapidly approaching when many of our Lodges, especially in the Metropolis, will be called from the winter session of labour to a prolonged period of refreshment; and although within the past few days we have been visited with as keen a touch of snow, and a painful reminder that Jack Frost has not yet finally taken his departure, yet in the intervening glimpses of sunshine with which we have been favoured we see, in the parks and gardens which form the "breathing-spaces of London," a thousand signs of the approach of the bright, sunny days we are all longing for. Bud and blossom are fast appearing on the trees and shrubs, amidst whose branches the already mated birds chirrup gleefully in anticipation of Spring. The evenings are "drawing out" apace, and the various out-door pastimes in which British youth delight are fast developing into active preparation for the summer campaign. The railway companies are announcing trips and excursions in every available direction, and to every possible quarter of our "tight-little island," and elsewhere. Many other symptons there are which forcibly remind us of the nearness of that period when the gavel is put aside for a space in favour of the oar or the cricket bat. It is to all of us a time when our aspirations brighten and hopes rise, in view of the change of scene and variety of pleasure which the balmy period of the year affords. The busy merchant, amidst the worries of life, the fluctuations between temporary briskness and the far too preponderating depression—the hard-worked clerk, chained to his desk, year in year out—the toiling artizan and labourer—all look forward to the longer days with a certain degree of hopeful pleasure, when skies are bright, and glad nature tempts them to spend such leisure as they have away from the "madding crowd," and the din of city life. In like manner, in their own particular sphere, the brethren of "ye mystie tie" hail with satisfaction that respite from labour to the refreshment provided for them by the Universal Junior Warden, and with a consciousness of having done their duty in the session which is now nearly ended, they will enjoy with all the more solidity the respite from the duties of office to which they are eminently entitled. As our columns have attested, the work of the Craft during what may be called practically the working half of the year has not diminished in importance or activity; and, though increasing rapidly in number, there is not the slightest indication of any falling off in the spirit which actuates the members of our Order. On the contrary, there is an ever-growing desire manifested to emulate, and even to outvie, the efforts of preceding years, and the splendid contributions recorded a week or two ago to the funds of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution is only one amongst many proofs of the deepening interest taken in the Craft by its adherents, and the strengthening and solidifying influences that are being brought to bear upon it. Whilst we hear of many other charitable institutions languishing for want of means, and their well-wishers bewailing the "badness of the times"—the commercial and industrial depression which renders them less capable than they could desire of practising the principles of benevolence to which they have set their hands—it is most significant that the charitable impulses of the Craft are not impeded by such considerations, nor the hand of beneficence closed in time of urgent need. We utter these remarks in no invidious spirit, nor would we compare our own boastfully with other institutions whose aim it is to "go about doing good;" but it is, and must be, to all who are interested in the welfare and "good report" of Freemasonry, a matter for the most cordial and heartfelt congratulation that, amidst all the vicissitudes of commercial life, and the strain that is felt on all public and private sources of benevolence, the wheels of the Masonic chariot never flag, but roll grandly and sublimely on, on their mission of succour to the needy and afflicted. We have reason to believe, from the hints thrown out by those brethren who propose going up as Stewards at the Boys' and Girls' Festivals, that, notwithstanding the magnificent total which was made up last month for the Old People, the lists in behalf of these former Institutions will not be in the slightest degree depreciated thereby. We are fain to believe also that the additional help needed for the Preparatory Boys' School, on behalf of which Brother Binckes, the excellent Secretary of the Institution, recently issued so manly an appeal, will be forthcoming; and all these facts, when considered collectively, are a convincing evidence of the undying interest which Masons feel in the great principles they have espoused, and the sound and healthy vitality which permeates the Order of which we have so much reason to be justly proud. Well may the brethren, after such efforts as have elicited the admiration of the world, look forward with complacent satisfaction to the season when they may rest awhile from their labours; though amidst their pleasures—at the seaside, on the Continent, in the country—they will never for a moment lose sight of the fact that whatever good may have been accomplished during the last year must be excelled in the ensuing. "Onward and upward," in all that is beneficent and good, is the "Excelsior" of that Brotherhood whose sustaining pillars are Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth. And thus while we lay aside the trappings and insignia of our Lodge for the summer season we do so with the conviction that they will be taken up again "when the evening shadows lengthen" with a renewed determination to carry on the work with undiminished efficiency, and with increased fervency and zeal. When our brethren who have the means, leisure, and inclination to recruit their physical and mental powers amidst "fresh woods and pastures new" return with the beneficial evidences of their tours upon their countenances, then will recur the hearty "hail fellow, well met!" which is so characteristic of our Masonic gatherings, and the sturdy grip of the hand once more linked in the twice-blessed cause of Charity. In the meantime proposals are being made for those enjoyable interludes in Masonic work in which the fair sex are enabled to participate, and which they do with so much interest. We are glad to see that this spirit is on the increase, and hope that our summer banquets this year may be not only more numerously attended, but that they may be more general amongst our Lodges. They tend to an eminent degree to bind the members of various Lodges together, and by the interchange of amenities between the lady friends and acquaintances of the brethren they engender a most valuable social advantage. Thus, it is satisfactory to learn that already committees are busily engaged considering the preliminary arrangements for these pleasant outings to the country side, the records of which give so agreeable a change to the events that are chronicled in our pages in the summer time; and we earnestly hope that, apart from the personal enjoyment which is invariably afforded by such réunions, they may produce a most potent influence in bringing into closer contact, and uniting in firmer bonds of love and activity, the various branches of our Ancient and Honourable Institution. Thus, when we hear the words "Happy have we met; happy have we been; and happy part again," we know that it will not be for long, and that even in the brief interregnum the spirit of the Craft will be still growing and increasing in volume, while the tide of Benevolence and Charity is never still. Even as, during a Parliamentary recess, the political life of the nation is kept alive by what are known as "extra Parliamentary utterances," so in our own circle will the active principles of the Craft be kept in healthy activity and perpetual motion. That it will be ever thus may be safely concluded by each and all of us; and, whether at hard work or enjoying the delights afforded by the quiet season at which we have hinted as close upon us, the prevading spirit of the Craft will be ever kept alive as one of the most vital and practical exponents of Benevolence and Charity on the face of the habitable globe.

THE GIRLS' SCHOOL ELECTION.

THE balloting paper for the approaching election of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, which takes place on Saturday, the 11th April, at Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, London, contains the names of thirty candidates, of whom twenty-two are to be elected. Fourteen of the candidates have made previous applications, ranging from one to four in number, the remaining sixteen being fresh cases. Four of the girls now appear for the last time, their age precluding them from participation in future elections if unsuccessful at the coming contest. These four are J. W. Hutchings, No. 1; R. A. M. Smith, No. 9; G. F. Greenwood, No. 13; and J. E. Cooke, No. 22. No. 1, Jane Wheeler Hutchings, now appears for the fifth time, with 905 votes to her credit. She is one of four fatherless children dependent on their mother, and a daughter of an old member of the Corinthian Lodge, No. 1382, London. Her father figures as one of the few who have a record of past services for the Charities on this list, he having been a subscriber to the Benevolent Institution; for this reason, if for no other, we hope his daughter will be successful at the next election. No. 9, Rose Adelaide Marsac Smith, now makes a second application, with a total of 56 votes already polled on her behalf. She and one other child are dependent, both parents being alive. She has had a sister in the Institution, a fact which, so far from proving the need for the admission of the present applicant, should, we think, have called for some special details as to the case, especially when we remember that both parents are living. However, as usual, no particulars are given beyond the necessary dates, &c.; and the only redeeming feature in the case—judged from a general point of view is, that the father has served as a Steward and qualified as Life Governor both of the Girls' and Benevolent Institutions. No. 13, Gertrude Frances Greenwood, was very successful at the last election, polling no less than 1,379 votes on that occasion, which augurs well for her chance of success next month. She is one of five children, who, though having both parents alive, are in reality dependent on their mother, whose husband is insane. This is one of those cases where all the help that Freemasons can give is not too much; indeed, we should like to see the Craft in a position to do even more than it does do in relief of such an awful affliction. The Province of Kent has the case in hand, and, but for miscalculation—or so we should imagine—would have secured this Girl's election last October. No. 22, Jessie Edith Cooke, the other "last application," is a new case. She is one of two children dependent on a widowed mother. Her father was P.M. of St. John's Lodge, Cheshire, and this being the only case from that district, there can be little fear as to the result. What a blessing it must be to have the support of such a Province.

The case of Minnie Madeline Mansell, No. 11, is perhaps one of the most deserving on the list. She is one of six children left parentless, four of whom are entirely, and two partially, dependent on friends. The father was a member of the Panmure Lodge, No. 720, London, and his daughter now makes a second application, with 184 votes to her credit. No. 15, Mary Alice G. Smith, is another parentless child, and so also are No. 18, Ethel Clara Gillett, No. 29, Myrtle Speed, and No. 30, Mary Frances Read. These four are all fresh cases. Mary Smith is one of three children, whose father was S.W. of the Pelham Pillar Lodge, Lincolnshire, at the time of his death in January 1881. Ethel Gillett is one of nine children dependent. Her father was a member of the Yarborough Lodge, No. 554, London. We feel we may look for this child's early election to the School, as the brethren of her father's Lodge are hardly the ones to allow such a case to remain long uncared for. Myrtle Speed comes from Derbyshire, her father having been an initiate of the Scarsdale Lodge, No. 681. She is one of six children now dependent on their friends, and we hope that the Freemasons of England will soon be entitled to be ranked among such, by undertaking the care of at least one of the orphans. Mary Reed is an only child dependent, and is in good hands if the brethren of her father's Province—North and East Yorkshire—have taken up her case. We hope for her sake they have done so.

Among the other cases there are ten whose fathers are dead, each of whom have already figured at one or other of the elections of the past two years. No. 4, Jessie Louisa Beilby, now comes forward for the third time, with 1669 votes to her credit, a total which we think should be ample to secure her election, even if no others are polled for her on the 11th proximo. She is one of seven dependent children, and is accredited to Northumberland. No. 2, Mary Amelia Wheeler, and No. 3, Maude Mary Bromley, follow very closely so far as votes already polled are concerned. Both girls now make a fourth application, the one having already polled 1569 votes, and the other 1568. Wheeler is one of six, and Bromley one of seven dependent children. No. 6, Florence Jane Obey, one of three children left to the care of their mother, was a candidate in October last, and then secured 1347 votes. Her father, formerly a member of the Prince Leopold Lodge, No. 1445, died in 1881. No. 5, Florence Eleanor Relph, polled 1319 votes at the two elections of last year. She and one other child are now relying for support on their mother, the widow of a Past Master of the Joppa Lodge, No. 188. No. 8, Rose Isabel Marian Woodforde, polled 775 votes at the last election, a number which, if duplicated in April, should place her on the list of successful. We trust her friends will be able to support her to this extent. Her case is accredited to Somersetshire, and she is one of four fatherless children left to the care of their mother. 560 votes already stand to the credit of No. 12, Louisa Adelaide Smithers, who with six other children are left dependent on a widowed mother. Her father was a member of the Faith Lodge, No. 141, London. No. 10, Edith Fanny Tanner, has a brother in the Boys' School. There are still three children—including the present candidate—relying on their mother for support. Her father was a member of the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge, No. 1642, at the time of his decease, and most faithfully have the brethren of this Lodge fulfilled their obligation to him. As we have said, one of his sons has been admitted to the Boys' School, and now one of his daughters stands a fair chance of being cared for in the sister Institution. She goes to the poll with 477 votes to her credit. No. 14, Kate Sharland, one of four fatherless children, polled 198 votes in October last. Her father was initiated in St. Peter's, No. 1125, Devonshire, and rose to the office of S.W. in that Lodge. No. 7, Margaret E. M. Holmes, closes the list, so far as the candidates who have already taken part in previous elections are concerned. She comes forward with 178 votes in hand. She is one of five fatherless children whose father was a member of the Barnard Lodge, No. 1230, Durham.

The new cases—other than the five already disposed of—do not appear to present any particular feature for notice. They are no doubt all worthy, but it is impossible to assign to them any order of precedence. In the case of No. 24, Florence Ellen Dunlop, there is a family of nine children dependent on the mother. The father was a P.M. of the Star in the East Lodge, No. 650, Harwich, and his daughter will doubtless secure the sympathy of the Essex brethren. No. 20, May E. Marlow, and No. 21, Lilian Frances Wells, are each members of families of seven left to the care of widowed mothers. No. 25, Lelia Constance Whitaker, and No. 28, Maud Emily Fitt, each members of families of six similarly circumstanced, and No. 16, Marien Grace M. Watson, No. 19, Mary Sybil Tucker, No. 26, Mary Scott Patience, and No. 27, Gertrude Lockwood, each members of families of five. In the case of Mary Tucker it is not known whether or not the father is dead, but in each of the other cases the mother is the only parent surviving. No. 23, Hetty July Wrightson, daughter of an old member of the Prudence Lodge, No. 388, and who attained to Provincial honours in Suffolk, is one of three children dependent on that brother's widow. No. 17, Mary Louisa C. Allen, is one of a family of four, two of whom are partially provided for. Her father was initiated in the Surrey Masonic Hall Lodge, No. 1539, and died in July of last year.

Having concluded our review of the several cases we can but congratulate the candidates and their friends on the comparatively large number of vacancies in proportion to the number of applicants. Twenty-two of the former to relieve the needs of thirty of the latter is about as satisfactory a state of affairs as we could wish for if we desire to maintain a spirit of healthful competition for the benefits of the Masonic Educational Institutions.

One of the customary series of entertainments was given in the well arranged Gymnasium at the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, at Wood Green, on Wednesday. Herr Frikell performed some very clever sleight of hand, card, and other amusing tricks. The Boys enlivened the evening by playing several pieces, in a manner that reflected credit on their Bandmaster Bro. W. Whare. After a couple of hours had been spent most enjoyably, the proceedings concluded, with three cheers for "The Conjuror," Miss Binckes, Bros. Bowyer and Dr. Morris, M.A., LL.D., given with right good will. Several prominent supporters of the Institution were present.

The regular meeting of the General Committe of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls took place on Thursday, at Freemason's Hall, London, under the presidency of Bro. J. A. Rucker. The minutes of the last meeting, and of the other committees, having been read and disposed of, an additional vacancy was recommended for the April election. A grant of £10 was made to one of the pupil teachers on leaving the School. It was then resolved, that in order to relieve Miss Jarwood—the Matron of the School—of the more laborious part of her duties, the House Committee be empowered to appoint an "Acting Matron," at a salary of £70 per annum. A notice of motion for the next Quarterly General Court was then given by Bro. Grey, to the following effect:—

"That, in recognition of the valuable services rendered to the Institution by Mrs. Howell, she should be elected as Hon. Vice-Patron, with the votes attaching thereto."

Five petitions were then considered, and of this number three were accepted and ordered to be added to the list of candidates for the October Election; one was rejected, and one was deferred. The meeting was then brought to a conclusion.

The first meeting of the Industry Lodge, No. 186, since its enforced recess, was held on Tuesday, the 24th inst., at Freemasons' Hall, under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. John G. Horsey P.P.G.D.C. Surrey. Some considerable discussion ensued during the evening as to the best course to be adopted under the circumstances in which the Lodge is placed, and for its regulation in the future. A banquet was afterwards served, under the presidency of the W.M., and an agreeable hour was spent. We sincerely trust that wise counsels will in the end prevail, and that this Lodge, which boasts of a long career of usefulness, will carry out in peace and harmony the good work it has in the past been noted for.

We are requested to announce that the Vitruvian Lodge, No. 87, has removed its headquarters from the White Hart, Belvidere Road, to the Bridge House Hotel, and the meeting nights have also been altered, from the second Wednesdays in September to April, to the second Wednesdays in March, May, July, September, November, and January; this commenced on the 11th instant. The meetings of the Lodge of Instruction are not, we understand, yet definitely arranged.

£20.—Tobacconists Commencing.—A Pamphlet, 110 pages. How to Open respectably from £20 to £500. 3 Stamps. H. Myers & Co., Cigar and Tobacco Merchants, 109 Euston Road, London. Wholesale only. Telephone No. 7541.

The Railway Companies, as usual, appear to be vieing with each other to accommodate the travellers and holiday seekers who will doubtless patronise them during the next few days. Easter may be said to open the excursion season, and as such receives from the principal lines perhaps more attention than any other of the holidays of the year. The London and North-Western Company will run special excursions during the Easter holidays to their principal stations, and will extend some of their ordinary trains so as to suit the convenience of their patrons. The same may truly be said of the Great Western and other lines, each of which will secure its fair share of the holiday traffic.

The Southwark Lodge of Instruction, No. 879, has been removed to Bro. Day's, Sir Garnet Wolseley, Warndon-street, Rotherhithe New-road, S.E., and the night of meeting has been altered from Wednesday to Thursday. On Thursday, 2nd April next, the Fifteen Sections will be worked by Bro. Walter Martin, S.W. Southwark Lodge, No. 879, assisted by several eminent and well-known brethren.

The ceremony of installation will be rehearsed at the Earl of Lathom Lodge of Instruction, No. 1922, Station Hotel, Camberwell New Road (close to the Camberwell New Road Station of London, Chatham and Dover Railway), on Wednesday, 1st April 1885, by Bro. J. T. Wentworth Chapman, W.M. of the mother Lodge. The Lodge will be opened at eight o'clock p.m. precisely,

The Masonic Hall, Chertsey, will be formally dedicated this day (Saturday). The proceedings will be conducted by the Provincial Grand Lodge and Officers of Surrey, who will assemble in the new building at 3 p.m.

The following Dinners were held at the Freemasons' Tavern during the week ending Saturday, 28th March:—

Monday—Old Kings Arms Lodge, De Grey and Ripon Lodge, Royal Somerset House and Inverness Lodge. Tuesday—Waldeck Lodge, Tuscan Lodge, Royal Savoy Lodge, Industry Lodge. Wednesday—Smeatonian Society of Civil Engineers, Hackney Carriage Proprietors' Fund, London Galloway Association, Lodge of Antiquity. Thursday—Old Acquaintance Musical Society, Mount Moriah Lodge, Grenadier's Lodge, St. George's Chapter, Vane Chapter. Friday—Scottish Ball, Jerusalem Lodge, Peace and Harmony Lodge.

Royal Savoy Lodge of Instruction, No. 1744.—At the meeting held at the Yorkshire Grey, Charlotte-street, Fitzroy-square, on Thursday, 19th instant, Bro. Smith W.M., Thom S.W., Mordey J.W., Holland S.D., Verdin J.D., Burgess I.G., Smith Preceptor, Scurrah Sec. pro tem. There were also present Bros. Bathard, Guyer, Hemming, Greenway, Dickey, Pratt, Davies, Nadenik, Rusicki, &c. Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Lodge was opened in the second and third degrees, and the ceremony of raising rehearsed, Bro. Guyer candidate. The second section was worked by Bro. Hemming. Lodge was resumed to the first degree, and the first section was worked by the Preceptor. This being the night for election of executive Officers, Bro. Smith was unanimously re-elected Preceptor, and Bro. Smith Treasurer. Bro. Mordey then proposed, and Bro. Holland seconded, Bro. Scurrah as Secretary, in place of the late respected Bro. Sillis; while Bro. Guyer proposed, and Bro. Thom seconded, Bro. Davies; on a show of hands there was a large majority in favour of Bro. Davies, who was thereupon elected. Bros. Guyer, Greenway, and Thom were unanimously elected Auditors. The Lodge was closed until the following Thursday.

United Mariners' Lodge of Instruction, No. 30.—There was a goodly attendance at this popular Lodge of Instruction, on Wednesday evening, at the Lugard Tavern, Peckham, when the duties of the chair were ably discharged by Bro. Wimble, who was supported by Bros. Harvey S.W., Webster J.W., Belchamber S.D., Nomico J.D., Smith I.G., Martin Preceptor, Tokely Secretary. Lodge having been opened in form, and the minutes of previous meeting confirmed, was advanced to the third, and the ceremony of raising was rehearsed, with Bro. Best as candidate. Lodge was then resumed in the first degree, and the first section of the lecture worked by Bro. Harvey, and the second by Bro. Belchamber. It was announced with considerable regret that Bro. Lampen, who had taken such an active interest in this Lodge of Instruction, of which he was one of the Founders, had been laid aside by severe illness for some time, and it was unanimously resolved that a letter of sympathy should be forwarded to him, expressing the sincere regret of the brethren with Bro. Lampen in his temporary disablement, and their equally earnest hope that he might speedily be restored to health and participate in the good work in which he has ever taken so deep an interest. Some other formal business having been transacted Lodge was closed in the customary harmonious manner.

A STORM IN A TEACUP.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Why all this "pother" about the alleged "missing jewels," anent which so much fuss has been made in the columns of your contemporary? I was not fortunate enough to have noticed the first letter which appeared on the subject from Bro. Gamble, but I glean from the many correspondents who have since been gambolling in his train that over forty of the brethren who attended last Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge lost their jewels in the general "scrooge" to get in, and that the original correspondent had not yet recovered his—for which misfortune he not only blames the officials of Grand Lodge, but also casts a slur upon the honesty of some other of the brethren who attended on that occasion. Various thoughts are suggested by all these incidents, but that so much "dirty linen washed in public" should have been the outcome of them is to me astoundingly inexplicable. Without doubt there was a great crush at the meeting, in consequence of the election of Grand Treasurer—a scene of party feeling never before witnessed in a Masonic gathering, and which I hope never to witness again; and it was with "many a mutual punch and shove" that those who gained admission to the hall succeeded in doing so. Very naturally, bejewelled brethren ran the risk of having some of their cherished decorations detached in the human friction that prevailed, and one would have thought they would have taken due precaution against such accidents. When one squeezes with the crowd to see a pantomime on Boxing-night one usually takes the precaution to button up close, and to frustrate the knavish tricks of those who would ply their deft, dishonest fingers. In a Masonic gathering there could be no apprehensions of this kind; still it is only natural to assume that in the onward pressing throng, such as that to which I refer, every care would be taken to prevent the jewels worn on the breast from being accidentally "rubbed off." This, it appears, was not the case in some instances, and four—not forty!—brethren lost their Royal Arch jewels, three of which were found by the Grand Tyler and restored to their owners, though the fourth had, unfortunately, not come to hand up to the 16th instant. Forthwith the owner of the unhappy "fourth," rushes into print, and, to gather from the later correspondence, accuses all round of something more than dereliction of duty because his particular "jewels" have not been returned to him! We are not told how many "jewels" or what degree are those which have been lost—when or how they were missed, or the place which the complaining brother occupied in the assembly. The only inference to be drawn from the perusal of the letters—which ought never to have appeared in a public print—is that Bro. Gamble somehow and at some time "missed" certain undefined "jewels," and that instanter he hurls a volley of vague charges at the officials and others who attended Grand Lodge. Was ever such an exhibition of peevishness and exceeding bad taste? Did any one ever come across so sweeping a slur upon the honesty of the officials, indeed of the Craft in general? I have more than once—and no doubt most of your readers are in the same position—inadvertently left articles of personal property at the Lodges I have attended; but never in a single instance have I had any cause for apprehension as to their safety, and never have I been in the slightest degree disappointed. I have in every such case intimated my loss to the Tyler, who, true to his post, has repaired the loss. Why was not a similar course taken by Bro. Gamble after he had discovered his mishap on the occasion to which he refers? I dare say that most of those who have read the correspondence on the subject are personally acquainted with Bro. Sadler, our excellent Grand Tyler, and would scout the insinuation—even if such were intended—that he is inattentive to his duties. From my personal knowledge of him, I can vouch for the courtesy and gentlemanly ability with which he discharges the functions of his by no means unimportant office, and to suggest the slightest impeachment of his integrity would be a libel which would receive the indignant resentment of the Craft.

Instead, however, of making his loss known, as is the invariable and proper course, to the Grand Tyler, Bro. Gamble, like a good many other impulsive and inconsiderate brethren, flies off into the regions of print, and there are many who will share with Bro. Sadler "some astonishment and considerable regret," inasmuch as they will be unable to conceive that "such fearful havoc had been made with the decorations of the brethren as to occasion the loss of between thirty and forty jewels." Good gracious! Through what kind of "double-barrelled magnifying glasses," as the younger Weller described them, was Bro. Gamble looking when he "saw double" in so extraordinary a fashion? There is a quiet satire in Bro. Sadler's letter when he premises that the length of time our Bro. Complainant has been in the Craft "has obliterated from his memory the importance of caution, with which young Masons are perfectly familiar;" and if this acrobatic exhibition does not make him careful in the future, we shall have to give up all hope of his reclamation. Equally homethrust is the allusion to the correspondent preferring "the medium of the Press to the usual method of communication;" and I have heard on all sides expressions of profound surprise that such a letter should have been admitted into the columns of a newspaper. If the "jewels" were irretrievably lost—either in Grand Lodge or in some post-prandial festivity, it could not be expected that the editor of a journal could recover them. That being the case, what earthly use could there have been in flaunting before other than Masonic eyes the fact that on the occasion of a great gathering of the Craft certain "jewels" have been missed, and the owner had failed to trace them? The whole affair has caused a titter in the Masonic ranks, albeit the fun is mingled with a certain amount of regret. I only hope that by this time Bro. Gamble has recovered his lost jewels, but of this we may be sure, he will not cease to regret having so petulantly aired his grievance in the columns of the public Press, and that your contemporary will equally regret having inserted the communication instead of having consigned it to its rightful place—the waste-paper basket. I should have imagined that on receipt of such correspondence the conductor of a journal devoted to the interests of Freemasonry would have reminded his correspondent of the oft-repeated assurance that caution is needful, and have advised him to take the usual and proper course of communicating with the custodian of Grand Lodge. Hoping soon to hear the announcement that the "jewels" have reached their rightful owner,

I remain, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

QUIZ.

[We have received a number of letters from brethren in various parts of the country, but agree with our correspondent that such matters are not fit subject for comment in public, and have therefore consigned the communications ruthlessly to the limbo of forgotten things. Intimation should certainly have been made to the Grand Tyler, whose probity is only excelled by the courteous and gentlemanly ability with which he discharges his duties.—ED. F.C.]

A MISSING JEWEL.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—What do you think? I lost my temper at that tremendous crush at Grand Lodge recently! A brother—I cannot think intentionally—trod upon my foot as we moved slowly on towards the portals, &c. Now, I had scarcely recovered from an acute attack of rheumatic gout, and my feelings may be "better imagined than described!" Yes; and instead of sending you a whining, complaining letter about it, I have sent an intimation to the Grand Tyler, who I hope will speedily find and restore to me my temper, which my wife regards as the brightest jewel of which I am possessed.

Yours fraternally, &c.

OPINIONS ON FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—As Freemasons we often have the opinions of great persons thrown at us, the latest artist selected for mud throwing being Freiderich von Schlegel. I was pleased to see that you did not allow the bane to go without the the antidote. Mr. George O'Byrne, the gentleman who called attention to Schlegel's writing, is evidently an Irishman, and probably a Roman Catholic. I find no fault with him for that, but there is just one point in his letter which appears to have escaped your critical vision. O'Byrne says: "The immense authority of the Schlegels must be my justification for so lengthy a quotation." I know you say that August Wilhelm Schlegel was more distinguished than his brother Freiderich, and you add that the former was the friend of Goethe, a giant among giants—and of Madame de Stael, but the connection implied between the brothers, as being of major authority, you lose sight of. Freiderich's opinion alone, as a Roman Catholic, on a subject anathematised by his Church would be of small moment; but, backed by the authority of August Schlegel, it would be of very great importance. There was no connection whatever between the brothers on the subject of Freemasonry, and "the immense authority" therefore just rests upon Freiderich von Schlegel alone. You have discounted the value of that authority already, and I need not further refer to the matter. You mention in your article both Goethe and Madame de Stael. The former was a member of the Fraternity for over fifty years, and Herr Pitsch, in his record of that career says: "Masonic echoes are to be detected in all the works written by Goethe after the year 1780, and particularly in his letters to Charlotte von Stein." One of the most attractive of Goethe's shorter poems, I believe, is devoted to the praise of the Craft, and declares, according to the eloquent translation of Carlyle, that

> The Mason's ways are a type of existence,
> And his persistence is as our days are.

This genius was the intimate friend of August Wilhelm Schlegel, and associated with both was Madame de Stael, daughter of the great Finance Minister Becker. Through her intercourse with Goethe, Schlegel, Wieland, and Schiller, she gained an extensive knowledge of German, which she embodied in a work on that country. Immediately after the publication of this work, entitled "De l'Allemagne," 10,000 copies were seized by Napoleon's minister of police. Madame de Stael protested against this act of spoliation, but it was met with the reply from the Minister: "Your last work is not French, and I have stopped its publication. Your exile is a natural consequence of your constant behaviour for years past. I have thought that the air of France was not suitable to you, for we are not yet reduced so low as to seek for models amongst nations you admire." A greater tribute could not have been paid to the book. What was rejected with scorn at that time was forced by war a few years ago, when Germany brought proud France on its knees and despoiled it of fair provinces.

I propose, Sir, to take an extract from the work referred to, showing the estimation in which Freemasonry was held by this remarkably gifted lady. She says: "Freemasonry has existed in all countries. It is an institution much more serious in Scotland and Germany than in France; but it nevertheless appears that it was from Germany especially that this association took its origin; that it was afterwards transported to England by the Anglo-Saxons, and renewed, at the death of Charles I., by the partizans of the Restoration, who assembled somewhere near St. Paul's Church, for the purpose of recalling Charles II. to the throne. It is also believed that the Freemasons, especially in Scotland, are in some measure connected with the Order of Templars." Lessing has written a dialogue upon Freemasonry, in which his luminous genius is very remarkable. He believes that this association has for its object the union of men, in spite of the barriers of society; for if, in certain respects, the social state forms a bond of connection between men, by subjecting them to the empire of the laws it separates them from by the differences of rank and government. This sort of Brotherhood, that true image of the golden age, has been mingled with many other ideas, equally good and moral, in Freemasonry. However, we cannot dissemble that there is something in the nature of secret associations which leads the mind to independence, but these associations are very favourable to the development of knowledge; for everything men do, by themselves and spontaneously, gives their judgment more strength and more comprehensiveness. It is also possible that the principle of democratic equality may be propagated by this species of institution, which exhibits mankind according to their real value, and according to their several ranks in the world. Secret associations teach us what is the power of number and of union, while insulated citizens are, if we may use the expression, abstract beings with relation to each other. In this point of view these associations may be a great influence in the state, but it is nevertheless just to acknowledge that Freemasonry in general is only occupied with religious and philosophical interests. Its members are divided into two classes—the Philosophical Freemasonry, and the Hermetic or Egyptian Freemasonry. The first has for its object the internal Church, or the development of the spirituality of the soul; the second is connected with the sciences—with those sciences which are employed upon the secrets of nature. . . . . Political institutions, social relations, and often even those of our own family, comprehend only the exterior of life. It is, then, natural that, at all times, men should have sought some intimate manner of knowledge and understanding each other; and also those whose characters, having depth, believe they are adepts, and edeavour to distinguish themselves, by some signs, from the rest of mankind. Secret associations degenerate with time, but their principle is almost always an enthusiastic feeling restrained by society."

I am,

Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

OBSERVER.

LODGES OF INSTRUCTION.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Some sensible remarks by the Worshipful Master of the Domatic Lodge at a meeting the other night on Lodges of Instruction, a report of which I read in a recent issue of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE, strikes me as worthy of attention. Bro. Pierpoint held it to be the duty of the Masters and Officers of Lodges to pay occasional visits to Lodges of Instruction established under their own banners; and I echo that sentiment most cordially. It may be—it invariably is—that these offshoots meet at a distance from the residences of many members of the Mother Lodge, and that, as a rule, they are prevented from collectively attending the weekly meetings, as they would no doubt like to do, in company with the brethren of the mother Lodge. But surely it is no great hardship, and it ought to be a pleasure as well as a duty, for the Worshipful Master and his Officers to attend their own Lodges of Instruction occasionally—say once in three months—so as to encourage the brethren who take a lead in fostering the work of the Craft and training the younger brethren who are anxious to qualify themselves to take office in their respective Lodges. By following the example of the Worshipful Master and Officers of the Domatic, and which is no doubt emulated by many others, the rulers of the Craft would do much to cement the good feeling between Lodges and their Lodges of Instruction, and stimulate the laudable intentions of those who are solicitous for the welfare and good working of the Lodges to which they belong. I know of Lodges of Instruction in which it is held as a sort of reflection that the Master and Officers not only do not attend, but absolutely ignore, the offspring of their Lodges. Thus, a laxity of spirit is engendered, and much benefit is lost which might otherwise accrue to both mother Lodge and "child." As to the importance and influence of Lodges of Instruction it would be superfluous for me to speak, as it is so well known. In country districts there are fewer opportunities for gaining that instruction which every student of Masonry desires to attain, or of the interchange of visits where work in all its phases may be practised. I am free to admit that having been a Mason ten years, I have gained a greater insight into the inner working of the Craft in one year through attending good Lodges of Instruction than in all the rest of the time besides; and thus I am grateful for the means afforded of emerging from what I fear might be construed a position usually designated as a "rusty" Mason.

I remain,

Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

STUDENT.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—There is no doubt a great deal of truth in what your correspondent "WATCHMAN" says as to the "incongrnity of beer and divinity, the absolute profanity of combining drinking with the exposition of the most sublime system of morality," and as to brethren smoking and drinking "while performing or listening to the ritual, the grandeur and sublimity of which cannot be over-estimated." I have often thought the same, and the subject has been most thoroughly threshed out in the columns of your own and other Masonic journals. The conclusion arrived at, after a conscientious discussion of the subject, was that too hard and fast a line in that direction cannot be drawn. It is argued, and with some degree of practical force, that brethren, however anxious of working up the ritual, would scarcely care to spend a couple of evenings weekly under the rigid school-like discipline which "WATCHMAN" suggests, and that it is better to allow a little margin in the matter of "personal comforts" than to run the risk of diminishing the attendance or discouraging young brethren from availing themselves of the advantages afforded by Lodges of Instruction. Whilst admitting the theory propounded by your correspondent, therefore, my experience is that where brethren can combine rational enjoyment with educational improvement, there should be no impediment cast in the way. It must not be inferred from "WATCHMAN'S" remarks that a Lodge of Instruction is comparable to a drinking bout in a tap room, or that the grand r tual is performed amidst a dense fog of tobacco smoke. I have seldom seen, during the two hours, or two hours and a-half, over which the work of Lodges of Instruction extends, a second glass ordered by a brother; if it is done, it is not the rule, but the exception, so far as my experience goes. And the innate consciousness of the brethren causes them naturally to cease from smoking during the more reverent portions of the ceremonies. For the rest, and while the ordinary ritual is being rehearsed—without the solemnities by which they are accompanied in open Lodge—there is little to complain of if the brethren think proper to assist their memories and concentrate their thoughts over the "fragrant weed," and its almost necessary accompaniment a glass of ale. To grumble at this one little fault, if it can be called a fault at all, is to strain at a gnat and swallow a camel. "WATCHMAN" says, "if brethren must drink and smoke, let Lodge be called off, according to the ritual made and provided. Better still—shorten the hours of labour, and let those who wish for social enjoyment remain, while others not so inclined might retire." One might as well say if a brother does not find it in accordance with his conscientious scruples to combine social enjoyment with such instruction as is imparted in these "nurseries of the Craft"—as you once described them—let him try and find, if he can, some other Lodge of Instruction which will suit his tastes in every particular. For my own part, I thoroughly enjoy my cigar whilst listening to, and endeavouring to learn, the routine of our interesting ceremonies, and look upon my evening at my Lodge of Instruction as one of the most soothing, agreeable, and edifying of the week.

Yours fraternally,

VIA MEDIA.

BRO. W. PLOWS, No. 87.

IT is with unfeigned regret that we announce the death of Bro. W. Plows, an active member of the Vitruvian Lodge, No. 87, which melancholy event occurred somewhat suddenly at Brixton, on Saturday, the 7th instant. The funeral took place on the 14th, at Lingfield, Surrey, and was attended by the Secretary and several of the members of his own and other Lodges, by whom he was sincerely and deservedly respected. The procession was met at the church by the Vicar of the parish, who performed the solemn rites to the Church of England in an impressive manner. In addition to about fifty members of the Craft who attended, there was a number of Oddfellows present, our deceased Brother having been a member of a local branch of that Order. We understand that a letter of condolence has been sent by the Vitruvian Lodge to the widow, expressing the regret of the brethren at the loss of so respected and valued a member of the Lodge, and their sympathy with her in her bereavement. Our deceased Brother was a quiet, though earnest Mason, and his kindly disposition had earned for him the respect and esteem of all by whom he was surrounded.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Changes of temperature and weather frequently upset persons who are most careful of their health, and particular in their diet. These corrective, purifying, and gently aperient Pills are the best remedy for all defective action of the digestive organs. They augment the appetite, strengthen the stomach, correct biliousness, and carry off all that is noxious from the system. Holloway's Pills are composed of rare balsams, unmixed with baser matter, and on that account are peculiarly well adapted to the young, delicate, and aged. As this peerless medicine has gained fame in the past, so it will preserve it in the future by its renovating and invigorating qualities, and the impossibility of its doing harm.

ROYAL UNION LODGE, No. 382.

THE annual meeting of this Lodge was held at the Chequers Hotel, Uxbridge, on Monday, the 16th instant. Lodge was opened at four o'clock by the W.M., Bro. H. W. Nicholson, with the Officers, Past Masters, and the following Visitors:—W. H. Liddall 45, W. R. Cooper I.G. 599, J. R. Hayward Organist 414, J. F. Tarrant 1158, J. T. Brown 2043, C. E. Botley W.M. 1996, C. Andrews P.M. 77, J. W. Parry P.M. 1314, W. Clarke P.M. 141, W. W. Morgan I.P.M. 211, James Kift 1791, F. Percival 1314. Amongst the Past Masters of the Lodge who were present were Bros. G. Rowles, Samuel Halliday, W. Webb, Joseph Lonsdale (who fulfilled the duties of Installing Master), G. Febrenbach Treasurer, and W. Coombes P. Prov. G.S.B. Middlesex Secretary. After the Lodge had been formally constituted, the Secretary read the minutes of the last regular meeting, which duly received confirmation. Several matters of interest were then discussed, and it was incidentally mentioned that Bros. Harvey and Goodbun, candidates respectively for raising and passing, were unable to be present on this occasion. As the installation ceremony had been set down for 5·15, and there was still some time to spare, the W.M. directed the Junior Warden to call off. On Lodge duties being resumed, the chairs of Senior Warden and Junior Warden were taken by Bros. Past Masters Febrenbach and Andrews, while Bro. Rowles undertook the duties of Inner Guard. The W.M. elect was now presented, and obligated by Bro. Lonsdale, who performed the duties of Installing Master. In regular order a Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. Cotton was placed in the chair. On the re-admission of the brethren who had not yet reached the chair, Bro. Cotton was saluted in the three degrees, and he invested the following as his Officers:—Bros. W. C. Hall S.W., J. J. Wilson J.W., G. Febrenbach P.M. Treasurer, W. Coombes P.M. Secretary, T. Brooks S.D., J. Tapling J.D., Fleming I.G., Bailey Organist, J. Lonsdale P.M. D.C., T. Aitken Steward, F. Stacey Assistant Steward, G. Duffin Tyler. Bro. Lonsdale completed his duties by giving the customary charges to the new Master, the Wardens, and the Brethren. He was heartily congratulated on the way he had conducted the proceedings, and his services were recognised by a cordial vote of thanks from the Lodge. Bro. Nicholson, the outgoing Master, was presented with the Past Master's jewel, which had been unanimously voted at the last meeting of the Lodge. This compliment he gracefully acknowledged. Anything he had done had been to him a labour of love. He should ever take an interest in the progress and welfare of the Lodge. One proposition for joining was handed in; this to be considered at the next meeting. The Auditors' report, with a detailed statement of receipts and expenditure, which had been printed for distribution amongst the members, was then presented and adopted. The condition of the Lodge may be considered satisfactory, while the Benevolent Fund, after handing over £17 10s to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and granting relief to a distressed brother, shows a balance in favour of the Lodge of about £10. The Immediate Past Master now presented a financial statement respecting the expenditure the Lodge had incurred over loss of its furniture. It will be in the recollection of many of our readers that a disastrous fire occurred last year at the Chequers Hotel, the headquarters of the Lodge, by which the furniture and other properties were almost totally destroyed. Fortunately, the Lodge had taken the precaution to insure in the Royal Office, and Brother Nicholson recounted the steps he had taken to get the furniture replaced. From his report we gather that the members have every reason to be gratified at the liberality displayed; the amount for which the Lodge had secured itself in case of loss amounted to £100, and the Company liberally paid the brethren £90, and handed them over what salvage there was. As a consequence, the Lodge-room is again well appointed and, we need hardly add, presents a very neat and satisfactory appearance. After some other matters had received attention, the Visitors tendered their good wishes, and Lodge was closed. The customary banquet was capitally served by host Bro. Phillips, and in due course the toasts were brought under notice. These were interspersed with songs by Bros. Cantle, Percival and Kift. We congratulate Bro. Cotton on entering on his duties as W.M. under such favourable auspices. We append the programme of songs, &c. Grace, "For what we have received," Bailey. National Anthem, "God save the Queen," Dr. Bull; Solo, Bro. Frank Percival. Masonic Anthem, "God bless the Prince of Wales," B. Richards; Solo, Bro. J. Ion Cantle. Duet, "The Sailor Sighs," Balfe, Bros. Frank Percival and J. Ion Cantle. Song, "A City Man," C. T. West; Bro. Jas. Kift. Song, "Death of Nelson," Braham; Bro. Frank Percival. Song, "To-morrow will be Friday," Molloy; Bro. J. Ion Cantle. Duet, "Oh, Albion," Braham; Bros. Frank Percival and J. Ion Cantle. Song, "The Deutsche," Bro. Jas. Kift. Song, "Come into the garden, Maud," Balfe; Bro. Frank Percival. Song, "In days of old," Hatton; Bro. J. Ion Cantle.

UNITED PILGRIMS' LODGE, No. 507.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge was held on Thursday evening, at the Bridge House Hotel, under the presidency of the retiring Worshipful Master, Bro. H. E. Joyce (editor of the Shipping Gazette), who had filled that position two years consecutively. He was supported by Bros. E. Blake S.W. and W.M. elect, W. T. Folkes J.W., H. R. Grellett P.M. Treas., C. W. Peters P.M. Sec., C. H. Wiltshire S.D., T. Noakes I.G., W. N. Worsfold S., H. Sharman A.S., and many distinguished Visitors. After the transaction of some routine business Bro. E. Blake was presented for installation, and a Board of Installed Masters having been duly constituted, that ceremony was most efficiently performed by Bro. Joyce, whose working was much appreciated. On the re-admission of the brethren the newly-installed W.M. was greeted with the customary honours, and invested his Officers for the year as follows: Bros. H. E. Joyce I.P.M., W. J. Folkes S.W., C. H. Wiltshire J.W., H. R. Grellett P.M. Treasurer, C. W. Peters P.M. Secretary, T. Noakes S.D., P. Michaelis J.D., H. Sharman W.S., W. J. Hough S., J. Watts P.M. Director of Ceremonies, G. Harrison Tyler. At the conclusion of the Lodge business, the brethren and Visitors partook of a sumptuous banquet, under the presidency of the new Master, Bro. Blake, when the customary Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. In the course of the evening a splendid gilt ormulu clock was presented to the retiring Master in token of the high esteem in which he is held by the brethren, and in recognition and appreciation of the valuable services rendered by him to the Lodge during the two successive years he filled the chair. The clock, which was supplied by Messrs. Silber and Fleming, of Wood-street, is of the Empire pattern, with relieved pillars in silver, and movement of 15 days, striking the hours and half-hours on a deep cathedral-toned gong. It is mounted on an extra-gilded velvet stand, with glass shade. The inscription plate is of solid silver, gilt to match the clock, and the inscription picked out in silver, relieved with Masonic emblems. In accepting the gift Bro. Joyce said he felt considerable difficulty in returning thanks, after the flattering remarks which had been made with regard to himself. He felt almost inclined to adopt the motto, "Speech is silvern, silence is golden." However, he thanked them all most heartily for their magnificent gift and kindly wishes, and should continue in the future, as in the past, to do all he could to promote the welfare of the Lodge. Several other toasts were proposed and suitably responded to, and the interesting proceedings were enlivened by some capital recitations by Bro. Osmond P.M., and selections of vocal and instrumental music, Bro. W. Lee Davis presiding at the pianoforte, in the room of Bro. Jordan, the Organist of the Lodge, who was prevented by indisposition from attending. We are compelled, in consequence of pressure on our space, to reserve our full report until next week.

GREY FRIARS LODGE, No. 1101.

A REGULAR Lodge meeting was held on the 11th instant. Present:—Bros. Hawkes W.M., Ridley I.P.M., Prickett S.W., Ravenscroft J.W., Stransom Treasurer, Greenaway Secretary, Creed S.D., Vowles J.D., Pulley P.M. D.C., Collins I.G., Hickie Org., Slaughter Steward, Hemmings Tyler; Visitors—Adams 414, Hawkes J.D. 414, Bradley P.M. 414, Blackwell J.W. 414, Gadd 1247. Lodge was opened, and minutes of last regular meeting were read and confirmed. The Lodge was opened in the second degree. Bros. Giles, Ayres, Cotterell, and Hunt, being candidates for the third degree, answered the usual questions in a satisfactory manner and were entrusted; the Lodge was opened in the third; Bros. Ayres, Cotterell, and Hunt were readmitted and raised to the sublime degree of M.M.; the ceremony was performed by the W.M., assisted by P.M.'s Blackwell and Margrett, accompanied with vocal and instrumental music under the direction of Bro. Hickie Organist. The Lodge was resumed to the first degree, when the ballot was taken for Mr. Thomas Perkins Stewart, who was proposed as a candidate for initiation at the last regular Lodge by Bro. Pulley P.M. and seconded by Bro. Collins. The candidate was declared to be elected. The W.M. proposed as a candidate for initiation Mr. H. L. Smith, Post Master of Goring-on-Thames, Oxon, this was seconded by Bro. Parkes. After the usual routine work, Lodge was closed according to ancient form and adjourned.

WALLINGTON LODGE, No. 1892.

ONE of the most agreeable and successful gatherings we have lately had the pleasure of taking part in was that of the installation meeting of this Lodge, which was held at the Public Hall, Carshalton, on Thursday, the 19th inst. Since the Lodge was consecrated, in the year 1880, it has been presided over by brethren who have striven to inculcate and advance the best interests of Freemasonry, and one of the most ardent and persevering students in this regard with whom we are acquainted is the new W.M., Bro James William Baldwin. The proceedings commenced at 3.30, when Bro. Edward Dickman opened the Lodge, supported by his Past Masters and Officers. The Deputy Provincial Grand Master, the Rev. C. W. Arnold, Past Grand Chaplain, had signified his intention to be present, and had kindly undertaken to perform the ceremony of installation. There were also present the following Visitors:—Bros. H. A. Pocock P.M. 902, T. C. Newsom P.M. 1693, Ransom J.W. 1790, Underwood W.M. 1366, Locke W.M. 1347, Smith P.M. 30, Williams P.M. 162, Gibbs P.M. 1538, Frost P.M. 1347 P.P.G.J.D. Surrey, Vincent P.M. 1823, Everist P.M. 720, Byard 1641, Gore W.M. 1692, Catterson I.P.M. 1981, Grinsted I.P.M. 1692, Davies 1673, Frost P.M. 1347, Kitson P.M. 548, Hill Organist 1347, C. Greenwood jun. P.P.G. Reg. Surrey, Yonge 1216, W. W. Morgan I.P.M. 211. After the minutes of last meeting had been read and confirmed, a notice of motion, by Brother John G. Horsey P.M.—

"That a Past Master's jewel of the value of five guineas be presented by the Lodge to Brother E. Dickman, in recognition of his valuable services during his year of office as Worshipful Master"—was unanimously agreed to, while another notice of motion, that affected the bye-laws, was deferred, in order that a fuller consideration of its merits might be entered into on an occasion more favourable as regards exigencies of time. Brother Arnold now took the chair and nominated Brother Horsey P.M. as S.W. and Brother Gibbs P.M. as J.W. respectively, for the ceremony of the day. Brother Baldwin was presented, and in due course installed in the chair of the Lodge. On the re-entry of the brethren the Officers were appointed, as under:—Bros. Bishop S.W., Carter J.W., Crowe P.M. Treas., Mesrouze P.M. Sec., Bassett S.D., Weal J.D., Sawyer P.M. D.C., Filmer I.G., Harwood S., Aslett Org., Rowley Tyler. After the addresses had been delivered, Brother Arnold, who had conducted the ceremony throughout most impressively, was heartily thanked for his services. Brother Dickman was formally presented with the P.M.'s jewel, and then the next feature was to ballot for Mr. John Rewcastle—who was proposed by Brother Bassett and seconded by Brother Aslett—as a candidate for initiation. The result was favourable, and Bro. Baldwin conducted the ceremony in favour of Mr. Rewcastle with the most perfect regard to detail, and by his impressiveness produced a marked effect upon the candidate. Soon afterwards Lodge was closed. The banquet was given at the Greyhound Hotel, Carshalton, and it was served in excellent style by Brother Verdun. On the removal of the cloth the W.M. gave the first toast—Her Majesty the Queen and the Craft—which was most loyally responded to. After the National Anthem, the W.M., in proposing the health of the M.W. the Grand Master, called attention to the fact that the Prince of Wales was essentially a Master in the Craft. This would be readily recognised from the fact that he had taken upon himself the duty of initiating his eldest son into the ranks of Masonry. The Prince was earnest in all he undertook, and he (the W.M.) had great pleasure in offering the toast for the acceptance of the brethren. In speaking of the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Bro. Baldwin drew attention to the zeal these brethren displayed in the fulfilment of their duties. This was especially evidenced by Bro. Arnold, who spared no effort to promote the best interests of Freemasonry. In reply the Deputy Provincial Grand Master thanked the brethren for the way they had received the toast of the Leaders of the Craft. Many of those present had been in Grand Lodge, and could testify to the interest taken by those Leaders in the fulfilment of their duties. In their names he thanked the brethren for the reception they had given the toast. In speaking of the Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master, General Brownrigg, the Worshipful Master only desired he could command words sufficient to recount the praises of the Provincial Grand Master, who was beloved and respected by all in the Province. The next toast was the health of the Very Worshipful Bro. the Rev. W. C. Arnold, M.A., P.G. Chaplain and Deputy Prov. Grand Master for Surrey, and the Officers of Provincial Grand Lodge, Present and Past. In response Bro. Arnold said that when he replied for the Grand Officers he did so in general terms, as Deputy Provincial Grand Master he felt he was getting nearer home. He was proud in being able to state that Freemasonry in Surrey was progressing in every way. He had now had eight years' experience with the brethren, and in that period he only knew one instance of anything unpleasant having arisen, and then the difficulty had been surmounted with the exercise of a few words. It was eminently gratifying to know that there was a uniformity adopted in the working; that proper attention was given to this in the several Lodges of Instruction. The members of the Province were earnest in their efforts on behalf of the Charities of the Order. He urged the brethren to support the Charity organisation that had been established, and to make the most of their voting powers. He forcibly impressed on them the desirability of exercising proper caution in the admission of candidates. He looked back with pleasure to the day of the consecration of the Wallington Lodge, on which occasion he had acted as Principal Officer. He had perhaps not been with them so frequently as he could have wished, but this might be accounted for by the fact that there was a mutual arrangement with the Provincial Grand Master that they should each confine themselves, to some extent, to a district. Bro. Arnold then made happy reference to the way in which he found the Lodge was carrying on its work, and to the ability displayed by the present Master, and concluded a most interesting address by proposing Bro. Baldwin's health. This compliment was modestly replied to by the W.M., who seemed intensely gratified at the reception given by the brethren to the toast. The Initiate, Bro. Rewcastle, acknowledged the toast given in his honour; he trusted he might always appreciate the favour conferred on him by electing him a member of the Order. For the Visitors Bros. Gibbs, Major Williams, Greenwood, Smith, Vincent, and others replied. Several other toasts followed, and when the Tyler was summoned all were agreed a most harmonious meeting had been celebrated. During the evening a capital programme of songs was gone through; Bros. Crowe, Carter, Bishop, Gibbs, Tite, Frayling, and Maspero rendering good service. Bro. Morgan contributed one of his popular recitations.

Fidelity Lodge of Instruction, No. 3.—A meeting was held on Wednesday, the 25th instant, at the Alfred, Roman-road, Barnsbury, N. Present—Bros. Solomon P.M. 1732 W.M., Thom S.W., Day J.W., Silvester Treas., Treadwell Sec., Messer J.D., Bleakley I.G. P.M.'s Ferguson, Burgess, Larcom, Cordwell. Visitors—Chinnery, Wheelock, Gregory. Lodge was opened in due form and minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Ferguson, assisted by the brethren, worked the first section of the Lecture. Some discussion then took place with reference to the removal of this Lodge of Instruction from its old quarters. Bros. Larcom, Cordwell, Solomon, Ferguson, and others taking part. It was ultimately proposed and seconded that a letter be written to the Lodge of Fidelity, No. 3, on the matter. A vote of thanks was then recorded on the minutes to Bros. Larcom and Cordwell, of the mother Lodge for their attendance on this occasion. Lodge was opened in the second degree, and Bro. Wheelock was examined and entrusted. Lodge was further advanced, and the ceremony of raising rehearsed. Bro. Thom was elected to preside at the next meeting.

Cubitt W.M., Saint S.W., John Egan J.W., Pitt Secretary, Hewlett J.D., Holland P.M. D.C, Freeman I.G., Webb P.M. Preceptor; Visitors, Bros. Geo. D. Stephenson, E. T. Westwood. After preliminaries the ceremony of raising was rehearsed, Bro. Stephenson candidate. Lodge was closed in the third and second degrees. Bros. Stephenson and Westwood were elected members. Bro. Webb P.M. congratulated the Lodge on the accession to its membership of Bro. Stephenson, who had gained much reputation by his masterly embellishment of our Grand Lodge. Bro. Saint S.W. was elected W.M. for ensuing week. One Guinea was voted to the W.M.'s list for the Girls' School, and a vote of thanks was passed to the W.M. on this his first occupancy of the Chair. All labour ended, Lodge was closed in due form.

Wanderers' Lodge, No. 1604.—A regular meeting of this Military Lodge was held on the 9th inst., at the Freemasons' Hall. Present:—Bros. W. Brindley W.M., J. Gibson S.W., Wray P.M. as J.W., T. Meredith P.M. Treas., R. Scott Sec., Coleman S.D., Minns J.D., Glover I.G., Halpin Chap., P.M.'s Wade, Brooks, and Bolton. Lodge was opened and the minutes were confirmed. Bro. Blackman was raised to the third degree, the ceremony being worked very impressively. Bro. J. Gibson was unanimously elected W.M., T. Meredith P.M. Treas., and Lacklin Tyler. A gold P.M.'s jewel was unanimously voted to the retiring W.M., for the zeal and ability he had displayed in performing the duties during his year of office. Lodge was then closed until the second Tuesday in April.

Kingsland Lodge of Instruction, No. 1693.—On Monday, 16th inst., at Bro. Baker's, Cock Tavern, Highbury, N., Bros. Dixie W.M., Edis S.W., Cooper J.W., Collingridge (Secretary) J.D., Finck S.D., McMillan, &c. After preliminaries, Brother Snook, as candidate for passing, answered the questions, and the ceremony was rehearsed. Lodge was closed in the second, and the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Brother Giffard candidate. Bro. Coles 1693 was elected a member.

The members celebrated their fifth annual supper on Monday last, and, thanks to the able manner in which Bro. J. Baker catered, the result may be pronounced a great success. 50 Brethren and Visitors sat down. The usual Masonic toasts were briefly given. Bros. Bayne Organist 1897 and Collings Organist 1693 presided at the piano during the evening. Prosperity to the Kingsland Lodge of Instruction, and the health of its Treasurer and Secretary having been duly honoured, Bro. Collingridge responded. He informed the brethren that a successful year had passed; the roll of members showed an increase of 38 above those who joined last year. The receipts also were above those received the previous year. The Lodge had been enabled to award five guineas to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons, and also two guineas to the Christmas Entertainment of the "Old Folks." Bro Forge briefly responded on behalf of the Treasurer, and he, with Bro. Woodman, were later on called on to respond for the Masonic Charities; these brethren work together as Stewards for the Boys' School next Festival. Bro. Binckes P.G.S. was called on to respond for the Visitors; this he did in his usual able manner, and of course incidentally mentioned the Boys' Institution. During the evening Bros. Snook, Woodman, Bayne, Giffard, Atterton, Collings, Mullord, Symon, &c., sang. The health of the Chairman was proposed, and the brethren separated after spending a most enjoyable evening.

There was again a satisfactory attendance at the North London Chapter of Improvement, at the Alwyne Castle Tavern, St. Paul's-road, Canonbury, on Thursday. The chairs were filled by Comps. Phillips M.E Z., Carter H., George J., Sheffield S.E., Strugnell S.N, Radcliffe P.S. The work was performed in an able manner.

ROYAL UNION LODGE, No. 382.

THE annual meeting of this Lodge was held at the Chequers Hotel, Uxbridge, on Monday, the 16th instant. Lodge was opened at four o'clock by the W.M., Bro. H. W. Nicholson, with the Officers, Past Masters, and the following Visitors:—W. H. Liddall 45, W. R. Cooper I.G. 599, J. R. Hayward Organist 414, J. F. Tarrant 1158, J. T. Brown 2043, C. E. Botley W.M. 1996, C. Andrews P.M. 77, J. W. Parry P.M. 1314, W. Clarke P.M. 141, W. W. Morgan I.P.M. 211, James Kift 1791, F. Percival 1314. Amongst the Past Masters of the Lodge who were present were Bros. G. Rowles, Samuel Halliday, W. Webb, Joseph Lonsdale (who fulfilled the duties of Installing Master), G. Fehrenbach Treasurer, and W. Coombes P. Prov. G.S.B. Middlesex Secretary. After the Lodge had been formally constituted, the Secretary read the minutes of the last regular meeting, which duly received confirmation. Several matters of interest were then discussed, and it was incidentally mentioned that Bros. Harvey and Goodbun, candidates respectively for raising and passing, were unable to be present on this occasion. As the installation ceremony had been set down for 5·15, and there was still some time to spare, the W.M. directed the Junior Warden to call off. On Lodge duties being resumed, the chairs of Senior Warden and Junior Warden were taken by Bros. Past Masters Fehrenbach and Andrews, while Bro. Rowles undertook the duties of Inner Guard. The W.M. elect was now presented, and obligated by Bro. Lonsdale, who performed the duties of Installing Master. In regular order a Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. Cotton was placed in the chair. On the re-admission of the brethren who had not yet reached the chair, Bro. Cotton was saluted in the three degrees, and he invested the following as his Officers:—Bros. W. C. Hall S.W., J. J. Wilson J.W., G. Fehrenbach P.M. Treasurer, W. Coombes P.M. Secretary, T. Brooks S.D., J. Tapling J.D., Fleming I.G., Bailey Organist, J. Lonsdale P.M. D.C., T. Aitken Steward, F. Stacey Assistant Steward, G. Duffin Tyler. Bro. Lonsdale completed his duties by giving the customary charges to the new Master, the Wardens, and the Brethren. He was heartily congratulated on the way he had conducted the proceedings, and his services were recognised by a cordial vote of thanks from the Lodge. Bro. Nicholson, the outgoing Master, was presented with the Past Master's jewel, which had been unanimously voted at the last meeting of the Lodge. This compliment he gracefully acknowledged. Anything he had done had been to him a labour of love. He should ever take an interest in the progress and welfare of the Lodge. One proposition for joining was handed in; this to be considered at the next meeting. The Auditors' report, with a detailed statement of receipts and expenditure, which had been printed for distribution amongst the members, was then presented and adopted. The condition of the Lodge may be considered satisfactory, while the Benevolent Fund, after handing over £17 10s to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and granting relief to a distressed brother, shows a balance in favour of the Lodge of about £10. The Immediate Past Master now presented a financial statement respecting the expenditure the Lodge had incurred over loss of its furniture. It will be in the recollection of many of our readers that a disastrous fire occurred last year at the Chequers Hotel, the headquarters of the Lodge, by which the furniture and other properties were almost totally destroyed. Fortunately, the Lodge had taken the precaution to insure in the Royal Office, and Brother Nicholson recounted the steps he had taken to get the furniture replaced. From his report we gather that the members have every reason to be gratified at the liberality displayed; the amount for which the Lodge had secured itself in case of loss amounted to £100, and the Company liberally paid the brethren £90, and handed them over what salvage there was. As a consequence, the Lodge-room is again well appointed and, we need hardly add, presents a very neat and satisfactory appearance. After some other matters had received attention, the Visitors tendered their good wishes, and Lodge was closed. The customary banquet was capitally served by host Bro. Phillips, and in due course the toasts were brought under notice. These were interspersed with songs by Bros. Cantle, Percival and Kift. We congratulate Bro. Cotton on entering on his duties as W.M. under such favourable auspices. We append the programme of songs, &c. Grace, "For what we have received," Bailey. National Anthem, "God save the Queen," Dr. Bull; Solo, Bro. Frank Percival. Masonic Anthem, "God bless the Prince of Wales," B. Richards; Solo, Bro. J. Ion Cantle. UNITED PILGRIMS' LODGE, No. 507.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge was held on Thursday evening, at the Bridge House Hotel, under the presidency of the retiring Worshipful Master, Bro. H. E. Joyce (editor of the Shipping Gazette), who had filled that position two years consecutively. He was supported by Bros. E. Blake S.W. and W.M. elect, W. T. Folkes J.W., H. R. Grellett P.M. Treas., C. W. Peters P.M. Sec., C. H. Wiltshire S.D., T. Noakes I.G., W. N. Worsfold S., H. Sharman A.S., and many distinguished Visitors. After the transaction of some routine business Bro. E. Blake was presented for installation, and a Board of Installed Masters having been duly constituted, that ceremony was most efficiently performed by Bro. Joyce, whose working was much appreciated. On the re-admission of the brethren the newly-installed W.M. was greeted with the customary honours, and invested his Officers for the year as follows: Bros. H. E. Joyce I.P.M., W. J. Folkes S.W., C. H. Wiltshire J.W., H. R. Grellett P.M. Treasurer, C. W. Peters P.M. Secretary, T. Noakes S.D., P. Michaelis J.D., H. Sharman W.S., W. J. Hough S., J. Watts P.M. Director of Ceremonies, G. Harrison Tyler. At the conclusion of the Lodge business, the brethren and Visitors partook of a sumptuous banquet, under the presidency of the new Master, Bro. Blake, when the customary Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. In the course of the evening a splendid gilt ormulu clock was presented to the retiring Master in token of the high esteem in which he is held by the brethren, and in recognition and appreciation of the valuable services rendered by him to the Lodge during the two successive years he filled the chair. The clock, which was supplied by Messrs. Silber and Fleming, of Wood-street, is of the Empire pattern, with relieved pillars in silver, and movement of 16 days, striking the hours and half-hours on a deep cathedral-toned gong. It is mounted on an extra-gilded velvet stand, with glass shade. The inscription plate is of solid silver, gilt to match the clock, and the inscription picked out in silver, relieved with Masonic emblems. In accepting the gift Bro. Joyce said he felt considerable difficulty in returning thanks, after the flattering remarks which had been made with regard to himself. He felt almost inclined to adopt the motto, "Speech is silvern, silence is golden." However, he thanked them all most heartily for their magnificent gift and kindly wishes, and should continue in the future, as in the past, to do all he could to promote the welfare of the Lodge. Several other toasts were proposed and suitably responded to, and the interesting proceedings were enlivened by some capital recitations by Bro. Osmond P.M., and selections of vocal and instrumental music, Bro. W. Lee Davis presiding at the pianoforte, in the room of Bro. Jordan, the Organist of the Lodge, who was prevented by indisposition from attending. We are compelled, in consequence of pressure on our space, to reserve our full report until next week.
