OUR THIRTIETH VOLUME.

WE issue the first number of a new Volume of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE under exceptional circumstances. This is the first time since this Journal was established—nearly fifteen years since—that we have fully realized the fact that the Grand Institution of Freemasonry is in a divided condition; that party feeling is in the ascendant, and that many of the best friends of the Institutions that we have been so boastful of are foregoing or curtailing their labours and exertions for their success. We are fully alive to the fact that many will argue that the services of the old fogies who have hitherto "had things all their own way" can be dispensed with, and that there are plenty of youngsters ready to come to the front and do good service in carrying on the work. Well, we will not attempt to discuss this question here. We are not of the iconoclastic breed, nor do we wish to paint things worse than they absolutely are. We are told, almost daily, that the Masonic Craft is not adequately represented by the journals that are supposed to be specially devoted to its welfare; and we are forced to the conclusion, in the majority of cases where this doctrine is urged, that we have failed to realise each individual speaker's idea of what a Masonic Journal should be. We will not attempt to refute the assertions made, but will reiterate what we have said time after time. The columns of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE are open to all who desire to ventilate a grievance; the only stipulation we make is, that in all debatable questions courtesy be exercised, and where differences of opinion exist that the first obligation shall be to try the principle of adjustment. When these efforts fail, we will readily give support to any views that will advance the grand principles we are all pledged to support, these are—Brotherly Love, Relief and Truth.

THE CRAFT AND THE APPROACHING ROYAL MARRIAGE.

THE annual meeting of the Freemasons of Suffolk was held on Wednesday, at Beccles, under the presidency of Lord Henniker, Past Grand Warden, Provincial Grand Master. Referring to the approaching marriage of Princess Louise of Wales, Lord Henniker said all must be glad that the eldest daughter of the Grand Master was to be married to a British subject, and that it would not be necessary for her to leave her native shores. Lord Henniker moved a vote of congratulation to the Prince and Princess of Wales, in the following terms:—

"The Freemasons of the Province of Suffolk, in Provincial Grand Lodge assembled, offer His Royal Highness the Grand Master and the Princess of Wales their heartfelt congratulations on the approaching marriage of H.R.H. the Princess Louise and Lord Fife, with the hope that the Great Architect of the Universe may bless the union and grant them all the happiness and prosperity which the world can afford."

The proposition was heartily received, and carried with acclamation. The other business of the day comprised the appointment of the Provincial Officers, the voting of various sums to the Masonic Charitable Institutions, and the general work of the Province for the year. The brethren afterwards attended divine service, and in the evening a banquet was held, presided over by the Rev. C. J. Martyn, Deputy Grand Master of the Province. We shall give a full report of the proceedings next week.

MASONRY'S WORK.

An extract from an Address by Rev. Alfred Manchester at the Laying of the Corner-Stone of the Public Library Building in Barrington, Rhode Island, 24th September 1887.

FREEMASONRY has always been and is always willing to show its interest in all that pertains to human welfare and to throw its influence upon the side of truth and virtue. It is a secret society, but it is much more. Its noble principles and good deeds are known and read of all men. But any man who will read what is printed for the public eye, any man who will observe the course of life among men, may, in our records and from our actions, which are open to the world, draw material for the formation of an opinion that is favourable to our Order. The inner working of an institution of learning is practically a profound secret to those who have never had experience within its walls. But the man who is ignorant of the method knows how to appreciate the result which appears in the life of those to whom the method is familiar. Any man of proper mental powers can learn how to walk the hidden paths of wisdom. So any man of upright character and noble purpose may learn the secret process through which Freemasonry preserves its existence and does its work in the world. Secrecy is not the end of Masonry. The world at large may rest assured that with the darkest shadow of mystery which appertains to this institution there exists not the least element of anything which would bring injury to the purest mind to which it might be revealed. Every social fellowship has the right to state the terms of its membership which shall be accepted by those who are identified with it.

The great end in view among Masons, as may be plainly seen, is social enjoyment and practical beneficence among brethren who are bound together in the application to life of certain noble principles which lie at the foundation of all human welfare. An attempt is here made to put in practice within a limited circle a certain type of life which no man can afford to neglect.

Masonry is not usurper of the rites and privileges of the Church. It does not aspire to be the perfect embodiment of the religious life of humanity. There are limitations to its fellowship, which it recognises to be inconsistent with any attempt to embody the religious sentiment in its fullest development. If, however, it is not the sun shining in the perfect day of man's religious life, we may at least compare its influence to that of the refulgent moon which throws no other light over the earth than that which is first derived from the sun itself, and then reflected in glory and beauty over the scene of human life. Freemasonry reflects many of the choicest rays of the Sun of Righteousness, and throws a gentle light over the night of man's sorrows. So while our beloved Order does not seek to cover the whole ground of man's religious obligation, it is careful so far as it does go to say and to do nothing that shall be out of harmony with the deepest needs and the highest aspirations of the human soul. The true Mason bows in reverence whenever he hears the name of God. The atheist must look outside of this Society for congenial companionship.

There is nothing which of right belongs to Masonry which interferes in the slightest degree with the attainment of a perfect Christian character. On the contrary, a faithful observance of the obligations which Masons assume, the application of the symbolical teaching of the ritual, and the manifestation in social life of the spirit which pervades the Lodge-room, will strengthen and increase those elements of character which it is the province of the church to carry to their perfection.

There comes a time in the life of every man when he needs that which money cannot buy. Sickness lays him low, sorrow throws its pall over his life, his plans fail, all things press heavily upon him—he needs a friend. Our Institution tries to do its share in lifting the weight of sorrow from human hearts. From thousands of those who have felt the touch of its beneficent hand the song of its praise ascends to heaven.

While this is not in its essential features a society for mutual benefit in a monetary sense, there is developed among its members that spirit of helpfulness which allows no member selfishly to enjoy the abundance with which he has been blessed so long as a brother, or the widow or orphan of a brother, is in need of that which he can supply to make life comfortable. Masonic charity is free and full.

Freemasonry is often spoken of as an Order. It is one among many institutions which have sought to bring order into human life. No Society established among men has been more successful in giving men a calm and orderly view of life. Through ignorance and wilfulness the life of man is full of disorder and confusion, it is often without satisfaction either to himself or to society.

Masonry tries to bring order into man's life by teaching him that he is a part of a great order of creation. It points him again and again to the order which is manifested throughout the realm of nature, by which the stars move in their orbits, and all processes of growth go on. This order it teaches him to imitate within the sphere of his own life. Geometry and architecture are used as illustrations of the order of moral and spiritual life which man should seek to have established within his own being.

Through the maintenance of rank and station, with a due respect for authority within its own borders, and through the practice of brotherly love and relief, among those who are linked in its mystic chain, Masonry seeks to lead men to the truth—it guides men into the presence of God with some power to see the true meaning of life.

SYSTEMATIC SUPPORT FOR THE CHARITIES.

ELSEWHERE we announce the receipt of subscriptions amounting to close on £13,200, as the outcome of this year's Anniversary Festival on behalf of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and a splendid result it must be acknowledged to be; far different to what was needed a few years back to produce a successful Festival, and far different to what the most sanguine Craftsman of the last generation would have dared to expect could ever be received on behalf of one of the Masonic Institutions. Yet we have now come to look upon such an immense sum as absolutely necessary, year after year, not for the entire work of Masonic benevolence, but for each of the three Central Charities of the Order, while there are many around us who go so far as to say that the totals are yet capable of considerable extension. We shall not here discuss the possibilities of increasing the scope of Masonic Benevolence, all we hope is that the future may produce sums sufficient to meet the many calls made on the Order by members who, through unforeseen calamity or misfortune, are reduced to the necessity of asking help from their fellows. What we now intend to discuss is one of the means by which the splendid results of to-day are achieved, and the channel by which a fair continuance may be looked for in years to come. This we find in the "systematic" subscribing which is now so popular throughout the country, and which is rapidly extending year by year.

As we have just said, the Festivals of the present time are widely different to what they were a few years back. Now we must get well up in the thousands before we can describe a result as anything like a success; then as many hundreds were received with equal gratification, and were regarded with equal pride as is shown to-day over the larger amounts. We need not go back so very far either to reach this state of affairs. There are many brethren around us who can remember a total of thirteen hundred pounds, received at the Anniversary Festival of one of the Masonic Charities, as being regarded as a grand success, and yet, in face of this there are many others who will tell us that the present generation of Masons had little, if anything, to do with securing for the Institutions the proud and exalted position they now occupy. They can hardly believe that thirty or thirty-five years ago there was such a wide difference as that we here mention, but such is the case, and it is not too much to say that the men who raised the Masonic Institutions to their present grandeur are still among us, and have not yet ceased their efforts in the good cause.

We need not go back nearly so far as the thirty years just spoken of to find the commencement of the "Systematic" support that is now enjoyed by the Masonic Charities. A far shorter period will take us to the time when the Provinces lacked the regular organisations they nearly all enjoy at the present time, and, as the most casual observer must know, we shall, by tracing the origin of these organisations, get far towards the root of the system which now produces such splendid results, and which, should it by any chance cease, would at once affect the Institutions, even if it did not seriously cripple their working. But there is little fear of a cessation in the work of systematic support, for on all sides we find evidence that the idea is most popular, that continued effort is being made to extend it, and make it even more beneficial than it is at present.

Only during the present week have we had evidence of this healthy feeling in Masonic Charity affairs. At the annual meeting of the Prov. Grand Lodge of Suffolk, held on Wednesday, the eighth annual report of the Provincial Charity Committee was presented, and so satisfactory a report it has seldom been our fortune to listen to. Here, in a Province which has seriously felt the effects of the agricultural depression which has played such havoc during the past few years, we hear of nothing but satisfactory—even more than satisfactory—progress in the promotion of Masonic benevolence. Not one of the Lodges but was able to report to the Provincial Grand Master a number of votes held by the Lodge or its members for one, two, or all three of the Masonic Charities, and in nearly every case there was reference to good work done during the past few months on behalf of the Funds referred to. The total amount subscribed during the present year by the brethren of Suffolk exceeds £1050, and this was not contributed by one or two brethren or Lodges, but, it seemed to us, by the Craftsmen of the entire district. It would be wrong to accredit all this to the Provincial Charity organisation, but there is no question that a large amount of the support recently sent up from Suffolk is to be accounted for in such a way, and Suffolk is no exception to the rule which holds throughout the country—which, in this respect is divided up into a number of centres, all of whom seem to vie one with the other as to who shall do the most for the good cause. Fortunately this systematic working is firmly established, and is likely not only to continue, but be considerably augmented year by year, so that we may safely say that much of the future of the Masonic Institutions depends on the systematic system of subscribing which now exists, and which, as we have already said, is the growth of the last few years, and the work of the present members of the Order.

THE FESTIVAL OF THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

IT is not a thankful task we have now to enter upon; we would fain try to gloss over the shortcomings and disquietude we had to contend with on Wednesday last, but we fail to see a course before us, and we must exercise caution in the way we give expression to our feelings in the matter. The Festival was celebrated at the Alexandra Palace, but we have no hesitation in saying the provision made for the 400 odd guests who sat down was anything but what we had been led to expect, and must be described as lamentably short of what has been achieved at this establishment in years gone by. The friends of the Institution had secured the services of Bro. Richard Eve, Past Grand Treasurer, for chairman, and after the banquet this worthy Brother rose to give the initial toast. Brother Eve said that the first toast he had to bring before the notice of the company was one which he knew they would all greet with a great amount of pleasure. The toast of Her Majesty the Queen was always received with acclaim in assemblies of Englishmen. It was 52 years since the Queen, then a young lady of 17, ascended the throne, and from that time to the present England had enjoyed a greater amount of prosperity—socially, morally, and financially—than during any other period. No body of men more appreciated this toast than Freemasons. The Queen was the mother of Masons, a grandmother of a Mason, and she was also the daughter of a Mason. This was followed by the National Anthem, the solos being sung by Miss Fannie Joyce. The Chairman said: Next to Her Majesty the Queen there was no person in England who was more entitled to the consideration of the brethren than the Prince of Wales. As their Grand Master, Masons felt for him the greatest affection and devotion. During the term of his fourteen or fifteen years' reign Masonry had more than doubled in the number of its Lodges, and in the number and influence of its members. This toast was followed by "God bless the Prince of Wales," Miss Mary Belval taking the solo part. In speaking to the third toast Bro. Eve referred to the great services of the Pro Grand Master and the Deputy Grand Master. Among the other Grand Officers they had brethren of distinction, who had been selected by Her Majesty to fill various positions in the State, and in the administration of this great Empire. They had also men of all kinds and classes; all the various professions were duly represented; law, divinity and physic were represented; also literature and science; and what they knew of these men was that they had exerted themselves for years. They would, therefore, drink the toast with pleasure. He would call on Bro. Cama, who was his (Bro. Eve's) immediate predecessor in the office of Grand Treasurer, to respond. Bro. Cama, in reply, said it gave him great pleasure to return his hearty thanks for the honour done to the Grand Officers. The way in which the toast had been proposed by the Chairman, and received by those present, showed that the brethren had confidence in their Grand Officers. It was very good of the Chairman to couple his (Bro. Cama's) name with the toast. Bro. Col. Shadwell H. Clerke G. Sec. rose to propose the next toast,—the health of the distinguished brother who presided over them. On these occasions they were always honoured by the presidency of some distinguished Mason, and he was sure they would all agree with him when he said that to-night that rule had been strictly followed. The chairman of the evening, Bro. Eve, was not only a gentleman well-known and highly esteemed in private life, but he was also a highly distinguished and highly honoured Mason. He had belonged to the Order for some five and thirty years, and during that time he had always been most active, most energetic, and enthusiastic for the best interests of the Order. Bro. Eve, in replying, thanked the brethren very heartily for the kind way in which they had received the toast. He could assure them that it was with very great hesitation that he took upon himself the position of Chairman of such a Festival; but whatever hesitation he had had, had been removed by the pleasure and gratification that he felt in meeting that night so many friends of the Institution. Col. Shadwell H. Clerke had referred to his long association with the Masonic body. There was nothing more gratifying to him than to reflect how long he had been a member of the Craft. It was now 30 years since he became a Master in the Order, and he had never had reason to regret the fact. He undertook the position of chairman, and he could assure the brethren that he had had no hesitation in so doing; he felt that the Institution required a friend, and that if by means of his accepting the presidency of that Festival the Institution could be advantaged he should be highly gratified. On again rising Bro. Eve said he would ask them to bear with him for a few minutes. He wanted to call their attention to the next toast, the toast of the evening. It was one he was sure they would receive with great pleasure, and that they would drink it with enthusiasm. Now, he could assure them it was with some diffidence that he approached the subject, because he felt that individually he was scarcely able to fully enunciate the claims which the Institution had upon them. The Masonic Institution for Boys had now been in existence something like 90 years, and in the course of another 10 years they would be hoping to hold its Centenary. The Institution had been somewhat under a cloud for the last 12 months, because the Institution for Girls held its Centenary Festival last year, and was presided over by the M.W. Grand Master. All knew that the great exertions then made resulted in a collection of over £50,000 for the Girls' Institution. Well, when such great exertions were made in favour of one Institution, it must be at the expense of the others during that year, and they knew that was the case, and that it was in consequence of that that the contributions to the Institution for Boys last year amounted to only £8000. That lee-way had to be made up. That was an Institution which required from £12,000 to £13,000 to keep it going, to pay all working expenses; and, therefore, they knew that the very fact that the subscriptions in last year had fallen short made it all the more necessary that there should be a fair return this year to place the boys in a good position. Well, they had had another matter which had also retarded, to some extent, the movements of the Boys' School. He referred to the Inquiry which—through the wisdom of the brethren and subscribers of the Institution—had been desired. The Inquiry had been held; it had taken nearly twelve months to make a report upon that Inquiry. The report had been before the brethren, and they could best consider it. He was going to put some few figures before them; he was not saying anything against the fact that the Report had been made, and that there were grounds for the Report, but he was telling them that they must not forget the past of the great Institution of which they now were holding the Festival, for, until the year 1857, the Institution was simply for clothing and educating the boys of Freemasons; but in the year 1857 that was departed from, and another portion—and a heavy portion, too—of the expenditure of the Institution was incurred, namely, not only the clothing and education, but then was added the maintenance of the boys of Freemasons. Now he asked anybody—and he was sure all the Committee of Inquiry would go with him—that they could not forget what was the state of the Institution as such in the year 1857; and he wanted to call attention to these facts in order that they might realise their true position. His object was not to set brethren by the ears, but to bring them together. He wished it to be perfectly understood he was not saying anything against the Inquiry Committee, and he was sure that they, after knowing that their Report had been adopted, would be the last to forget that. He knew that all of them were men who had a love for Freemasonry. There were at present about 260 boys who were educated, clothed, and maintained in the Institution. That being so, their object was to get as much as possible, and unless they could show that the work was being carried on honestly and economically, they could not expect to receive the support of the brethren. He was glad of the Inquiry, because it had suggested that a considerable reduction could be made in the expenses. He should only be too happy to find that the reduction could be made. He wanted now to call their attention to the historical part of the Institution. In the year 1857 the subscriptions did not amount to £2000 a year, but in the year 1862 the amount was doubled as compared with the previous year; the next year it was tripled, and every year after that it has been maintained, while in 1883 the enormous sum of £23,000 was subscribed. They must bear in mind also that they had now got a building, and the land upon which it stood. Nearly £100,000 had been laid out. Where had the money come from? It had come from London and the Provinces, to maintain the Institution. It showed how open the hearts of Masons had been. They had now, through the exertions of their officers in the past, obtained that grand building. It might be defective, but if the brethren would give them funds they would remedy that. With reference to the discipline and education of the boys, he knew they were united on that, and he was glad that they were united on the question—the main question—of the education of the boys. He was pleased to say that this Institution was worthy of all the support the brethren could give. Bro. Eve continued his remarks, but his ideas were not accepted by a section of those present, and great uproar ensued. In concluding he said there were boys of that Institution who had become medical men, who had entered her Majesty's service in the Army and Navy, who had become distinguished solicitors, and had obtained honours in the various Universities. That showed that the education and discipline of those children had been equal to that of any body of children in the country. He would give them with all sincerity Prosperity to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. Brother George Plackuett acknowledged the toast. Bro. Binckes said that after the manifestations of feeling that had been exhibited during the address of their excellent Chairman, how was it possible that he could expect to receive at the hands of what he would under other circumstances have called a glorious assemblage a fair hearing. He knew that he had a simple duty to perform, but at the same time they must do him the justice to believe him when he said that he never stood before his friends the Freemasons (this being the 28th Anniversary Festival with which he had been associated) in such peculiar and dubious circumstances as those in which he had now to appear. He asked nothing more than fair play. He had laboured hard to make this Anniversary a success; he had received with gratitude a large amount of support, but he also had to contend with a large amount of persecution. The Stewards' lists were then declared, and of these we give details in another column. Bro. Binckes, in concluding said, that though he accepted the result thankfully, he could say with confidence that the result ought to have yielded £16,000. But for the hostile movement at least £3000 more would have been realised. Other toasts comprised:—the Ladies; the Patrons, Vice-Patrons, Vice-Presidents, Trustees, &c., of the Institution; Prosperity to the kindred Masonic Charities; and the Health of the Stewards. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. E. P. Delevanti. A string band performed a selection of music during the dinner. Between the speeches Miss Fannie Joyce, Miss Mary Belval, Bros. Arthur Thomas and Egbert Roberts contributed songs.

V. Ill. Bro. Frank Richardson, 33°, had the honour of entertaining the other members of the Supreme Council, 33°, at dinner in the Oak Room of the Junior Athenæum Club, on Thursday evening, the 27th ult. The members present were V. Ill. Bro. Capt. Philips M. Ill. L.G.C., V. Ill. Bro. Major-General Clerk Grand Treas.-General, V. Ill. Bro. Hugh Sandeman Grand Sec.-General, V. Ill. Bro. Col. Shadwell H. Clerke G.C. of G. There were also present, to meet the members of the Council, Ill. Bro. J. H. Matthews, 32°, the Grand Dir. of Cers., Ill. Bro. Lieut.-Colonel Somerville Burney S.G.I.G. 33°, Ill. Bro. F. A. Philbrick, Q.C., and Ill. Bro. Lieut.-Colonel George Haldane, 33° nominate, and Ill. Bro. the Earl of Euston, 30°. V. Ill. Bro. the Earl of Lathom, M.P. S.G.C., was prevented, by the illness of his son, from attending.

MASONIC RECOGNITION OF A SILVER WEDDING.

The Brighton Herald says:—

Councillor and Mrs. W. Botting have just become the recipients of a much-valued souvenir of their silver wedding. The gift came from the Royal Brunswick Lodge, of which Mr. Botting has for many years become an esteemed member. It consisted of an address, enclosed in a massive oak and gilt frame, and most artistically illuminated, amongst the adornments being a beautiful floral border, a fac simile of the banner of the Lodge, consisting of a white horse upon a blue ground, with the motto, "Nux aspera terrens," in a circle containing Mr. Botting's family crest, consisting of a swan, with the motto, "Floreat qui laboret," and elsewhere is Mr. and Mrs. Botting's monogram "W. E. B." The wording of the address is as follows:—

Royal Brunswick Lodge, No. 732.
Antient Free and Accepted Masons, England.
To Bro. William Botting P.M.

We, the Worshipful Master, Officers, and Brethren of the Royal Brunswick Lodge assembled at the Royal Pavilion, Brighton, desire to offer you and your wife our sincere and hearty felicitations and congratulations upon your Silver Wedding Day.

May the Great Architect of the Universe bless you and your wife and family with health, happiness, and every blessing, for many years to come.

Samuel Denman W.M.
T. P. Harker S.W.
Horton Ledger P.M. J.W.
W. Alfred Field S.D.
W. Bennett J.D.
Geo. G. Clements I.G.
Charles Nye P.M. Director of Ceremonies.
Walter Smith P.M. Steward.
Henry Davey P.M. Steward.
Richard Willard I.P.M.
W. H. Hollis Secretary.

And the brethren of the Lodge.

The presentation of the address was made at a Lodge meeting and was accompanied by hearty felicitations.

FUNERALS properly carried out and personally attended, in London and Country, by Bro. G. A. HUTTON, 17 Newcastle Street, Strand, W.C. Monuments erected. Valuations made.

"A good action brings its own reward," and this truism has its application in every day life. It will be in the recollection of many of our readers that some two years back a rather troublesome epidemic of scarlet fever broke out in our "grossly mismanaged" institution at Wood Green. Something like 50 boys were attacked, but the domestic staff combated it most successfully, and no one with more pertinacity than the matron, Mrs. Dove. The parents and friends of several of the pupils seem to realize that to her energy is due the fact that no case resulted fatally, and it gratifies us to be in a position to state that now the lady in question is about to leave the Wood Green establishment, communications have been received by her, expressing regret, and expressing the deep obligation of the several writers for Mrs. Dove's motherly care, and conveying the hope she may be successful in the new sphere she is about to embark on. Another feature in connection with this severance of "old associations;" Mr. and Mrs. Dove were recently presented with a handsome salver. We copy the inscription upon this souvenir, which inscription speaks for itself:—

R.M.I.B.
Presented to Mr. and Mrs. Dove,
On their resignation, by the Household Servants.
July 1889.

Appended were the signatures of those who contributed to the Testimonial in question.

A handsome Masonic Hall was opened at Sittingbourne on Tuesday, 25th ult., by the Earl of Amherst, Grand Provincial Master of Kent, who was accompanied by the Provincial Officers.

The Annual Meeting of the Provincial Grand Chapter of Middlesex will be held, this day (Saturday), at the Greyhound Hotel, Hampton Court. The Companions will assemble at three p.m. precisely.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF MIDDLESEX.

THE pretty town of Twickenham was selected this year as place of convocation of the Grand Lodge for the Province of Middlesex, and thither a large number of Brethren of various degrees wended their way last Saturday to take part in this important ceremony. The Town Hall having been placed at the disposal of the Grand Lodge by Lady Freke, was furnished by two of the Local Lodges, and gaily decorated with flowers, ferns, and shrubs. The Provincial Grand Master the R.W. Col. Sir Francis Burdett P.G.S.W. of England, and representative from the Grand Lodge of Ireland, arrived about three o'clock, and was received by the Provincial Officers and Stewards, including Bro Raymond H. Thrupp Deputy Grand Master, Bros. F. W. Levander, Sweetland, Dr. J. W. Oswald, Edmund Yates, C. Moburn, C. A. Walter, J. Etherington, C. S. Buck, W. H. Lee, W. R. Strutt, A. Lingard, E. Y. Jolliffe, J. T. Briggs, J. W. Balderson, J. Tickle, George Gregory, R. W. Forge, E. W. Warner, Howard H. Room, Lee, W. Seward, H. F. Bing, G. S. Elliott, Evan Jones, W. Beavis, W. Beard, R. Wall, E. Calzell, H. W. Seager, T. Inglis, W. Spearing, Elias Rogers, W. F. Reynolds, J. J. Marsh, S. Cooper, C. Parsons, W. C. Williams, R. Fawssett, G. J. Dunkley, Geo. Clark, J. Davies, E. Monson, J. Lawrence, W. S. Dunkley, &c. &c. The Grand Lodge having been duly opened, the roll of the Lodges of the Province was called over by the Secretary, Bro. H. H. Room, and it was found that all but two were represented. The minutes of the last Provincial Grand Lodge were then read for verification, and the reports of the audit and charity committees were read and confirmed. The balance sheet showed a healthy surplus, and subsequently, on the motion of Bro. W. J. Spratling, seconded by Bro. R. H. Thrupp, it was decided to invest the sum of £350. The election of Provincial Grand Treasurer was then proceeded with, and Bro. J. Tickle proposed, and Bro. Spratling seconded that Bro. Geo. Henry Carter should be nominated. No other name being submitted to the meeting, the R.W. Prov. G. Master declared him to be duly elected. The late three members of the Charity Committee were re-elected. The sum of fifteen guineas was voted to each of the three Masonic Charities. It was also decided that for the future the Masonic Calendar for Middlesex should be prepared and issued by the Provincial Grand Secretary, at the primary cost of the Provincial Grand Lodge, and that all moneys received from the sale of copies should be placed to the credit of the funds of the Lodge. The Prov. Grand Master then proceeded to appoint and invest his officers for the ensuing year, in the following order:—

Bro. Raymond H. Thrupp	Deputy G. Master
Edmund Yates	Senior Warden
Dr. J. W. Oswald	Junior Warden
Rev. Evans Jones, Rev. George Nugee	Chaplains
G. H. Carter	Treasurer
H. C. Weld	Registrar
H. H. Room	Secretary
A. Lingard, Dr. H. W. Seager	Senior Deacons
C. S. Buck, Elias Rogers	Junior Deacons
E. Monson	Superintendent of Works
J. Lawrence, A. Tucker, C. Parsons	D. of C.
W. Spearing	Sword Bearer
R. H. Dillon, T. Inglis	Standard Bearers
H. W. Schartau	Organist
F. L. Chandler, J. Weston	Pursuivants
Dr. W. Cock, Dr. A. E. Sansom, Geo. Clark, J. Gawith, Lieut.-Col. Bullock, J. Davies	Stewards
John Gilbert	Tyler

Votes of thanks were passed to Lady Freke for the use of the Hall, to the two local Lodges which had provided the furniture and to the Vicar, Organist and Choir of the Parish Church for services at the Parish Church, to which the Brethren proceeded at the termination of the business. A short choral service was given, and an address by the newly-elected P. G. Chaplain Bro. Evans Jones, and a collection was made on behalf of the Twickenham Hospital towards the funds of which the Provincial Grand Lodge had voted five guineas in commemoration of their visit. About five o'clock the Brethren returned to the Town Hall, where the banquet was served by Bro. J. B. Mella, of Hampton Court. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were cordially received, Sir George Elliot responding for the Grand Officers. The Health of the Provincial Grand Master was given in eulogistic terms by Bro. R. H. Thrupp Deputy G.M., and drank with loud applause by the Brethren. In reply the R.W. Prov. G.M. said that each year endeared the Lodge more thoroughly to him. He had done all he could for the Province, and had been ably upheld by his Officers. There had been a few small difficulties, but they had been amicably settled by himself, and he thought that he had the respect and good opinion of all the Brethren (loud cheers). He was glad to notice the progress the Provincial Grand Lodge had made during the last twenty years. He should always be at the service of the Province whenever he might be required, and concluded by wishing the Brethren good luck, with the hope that they might all meet again soon. He then in felicitous terms proposed the Provincial Grand Officers, for whom Bro. Edmund Yates briefly responded. Sir J. B. Monckton acknowledged the toast of the Visitors, and the Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to a very pleasant termination. The visitors included Bros. Sir George Elliot R.W. Prov. Grand Master South Wales, Sir J. B. Monckton, J. C. Parkinson, Charles Greenwood P.G. Secretary for Surrey, Thomas Fenn, R. Bradley P.G. Secretary for Berks and Bucks.

THE GOVERNOR AND FREEMASONRY.

We cull the following from the South Australian Freemason of the 8th ult.:—

IT has been an open secret for some time past that our M.W. Grand Master had views anent his position that were in the direction of a change, and in acknowledging in graceful terms his re-election at the last Quarterly Communication he again broached the matter, though on somewhat indefinite lines. Since then we have learnt his full intent, and whatever there may have been in his previous references to cause misgiving there is nothing in his after explanation to move us to any other feeling towards him but that of increased confidence and warmer regard. The Grand Master has afforded us many proofs of his strong attachment to the South Australian Constitution, and in the act he contemplates we may find further evidence of a worthy desire to do that which he believes will be to its greater advantage, regardless of any personal considerations. In abdicating his high office that another may reign in his stead, and resigning his supreme authority, he is content to become the subject where he might continue to retain the sovereignty. Certain it is that the appointment of a Freemason of eminent standing and repute in his own country as the illustrious representative of Her Most Gracious in this colony has influenced our Grand Master in the direction indicated, so that our prestige may be the greater by intimate association with the highest in the land and the delegate of royalty. If this meant loss of our beloved brother from our ranks and withdrawal from our Councils, in short, retirement in its fullest sense, we might well demur to such a proposition, as involving on his part something too much of self denial and sacrifice, and its expediency might well be called in question; but, happily, such a step is not intended, and he will still remain with us, though in another capacity. As Pro Grand Master, it is his desire to serve us the same, and as such he will be the real working head of the Craft, the active principle of the combination. As Pro Grand Master it must be our duty and pleasure to accept him, if he so wills it. His dignity will be none the less, and the honour to us the greater. To our M.W. Brother His Honour S. J. Way we owe a large debt of gratitude, and are likely to remain his debtor, for his services to the Constitution are beyond all adequate acknowledgment. Throughout the whole period of his Mastership he has worked with us and for us with all his powers of mind and devoted energies, and in every relation at all seasons we have ever found him—

> The kindest man,
> The best conditioned and unwearied spirit,
> In doing courtesies.

We have been requested to state that the Tredegar Lodge of Instruction, No. 625, held at the Wellington Arms, Wellington Road, Bow, does not adjourn during the summer months, and the brethren can always ensure a meeting each Thursday night, at 7·30.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In his letter in your issue of the 29th ult. Bro. Godson says, in effect, that the Committee of Inquiry have desired to wash the dirty linen in public, and in saying so he is alike unjust and ungenerous to that Committee. As they simply did what Bro. Godson desired should be done in the resolution he proposed at the Quarterly Court of 27th July 1888, viz., submit their report to a subsequent Quarterly Court. As a matter of fact they handed in their report sealed up, and whatever publicity has been given to the report has arisen from the action of that Court, and not in the least caused by the Committee of Inquiry. Bro. Godson himself proposed Bro. Philbrick as the convener of the Inquiry Committee, and all the other six members of that body were brethren of the highest repute, yet, because their absolutely unanimous report differs from the anticipations of Bro. Godson, he stigmatises it as "Crowner's-quest law," a "precious report," founded on "unreliable" and "tainted evidence."

Of the report Bro. Godson says "Cui bono." If he thought that the conscientious report of a Committee of Inquiry would not do any good why did he propose that such a report should be made? On the subject of neglected heads at Wood Green, Bro. Godson says that no witness could give the name, time or date of any boy affected. In my evidence I gave the name of a boy whom I had personally seen shortly after his arrival at home from Wood Green, on two separate and distinct vacations, with his head in a lamentable state from neglected ringworm. I lodged a statement, upon oath, made by the boy's mother, confirming my statement; the boy was in the Institution at the moment I gave evidence, and could have been produced there and then if the allegation of "unreliable" and "tainted" evidence had then been made. I stated, moreover, that I saw this same boy a short time after his arrival from the Institution, with his hands in festering wounds from neglected chilblains, in which state he was sent out from Wood Green, with only a rough wrapping of gray calico, to travel 150 miles, at Christmas time, and I lodged in proof of this a certificate from an M.D. of London University. Is this "tainted" evidence in the eyes of Bro. Godson?

Bro. Godson shows that on heating apparatus alone, at Wood Green, £4978 has been spent, which, reckoning the outside number of 330 Boys, is a capital account of about £15 per head, and yet in 1887 the expenditure for coal, coke, and firewood was £412 17s, a capital and working expenditure, I make bold to say, not to be equalled in any similar Institution in England.

Bro. Godson fears that the Report will assist those who wish local funds to be distributed in the locality, but he does not add why this wish has arisen. It has been created by the bad management and extravagance at the Boys' School. All this complaint is no new matter; it has been expressed year after year—15 years ago the Province of West York proved it up to the hilt, but the management treated that report with scorn. Let the Wood Green establishment be well and economically managed, and no brother will be so foolish as to divert support from an Institution where £95,000 capital has been sunk. Old and hard working subscribers are to be remembered gratefully, and their loss deeply to be regretted if, unhappily, it occurs; but after all we must look largely for current supplies from the daily additions to the ranks of the Craft and their influence, and if they can only be convinced that the three great Masonic Charitable Institutions are well and wisely administered, their hearty support and co-operation may as safely be relied upon in the future as it has been obtained in the past.

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

Stoke-on-Trent. E. V. GREATBACH.

WANTED.—A YOUNG AND ENERGETIC SECRETARY.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Disregarding the well-known adage that it is best to be off with the old love before we get on with the new, certain would-be reformers (heaven save the mark!) of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, are clamouring for a young and energetic Secretary, to take the place of our old and tried friend, Bro. Frederick Binckes. I say "old and tried" advisedly,—it is certainly no disgrace to become old, especially when one has grown so while labouring in such a cause,—as has been the case with the worthy Secretary of the Masonic Boys' School, and most decidedly he has proved himself a tried friend to those who have known him during the thirty years of his Secretaryship. It is only during the last few months that there has been any question as to his fitness for the post he holds, and even now many of us old fogeys would much prefer trusting him with the work of his office than any young and energetic Secretary who could be put forward.

Are we to forget the twenty-nine good years—years of satisfactory labour—because the thirtieth has not gone on quite so smoothly? Are we now to turn out the man who has stood by us year after year, through fair and foul times; who has so won the confidence of his employers that one of the worst charges that can be brought against him is, that he has been allowed to manage all the affairs of the Charity himself, simply because half-a-dozen Masons tell the Craft that an entire change of management is necessary? Even if we allow that there is truth in what has been told us, is it not far better to endure the ills we have, than fly to others we know not of? Or, at least, is it not incumbent on all of us to carefully weigh the two sides of the question?

On the one hand, we have a man who thoroughly knows each part of his duties; a man who can humour every whim of every Steward, or other advocate of the Charity; a man who is known, aye, and respected too, by every Masonic ruler in the country, as well as by most, if not all of those who, by length of association with the Craft, have won the right to interest themselves in its affairs. True, he is getting old, but what does that imply in the case of Brother Binckes? Certainly not that he is getting less fitted for his duties than he was years ago, for I know there is very little, if anything, he used to do, in years gone by, that he would not face to-morrow if he thought the Institution for which he works would reap a benefit thereby. Young blood may be warmer in some respects than that of a man who has faithfully discharged the work of an office for thirty years, but I much question if there are many young men of the present day who would like to start even with Bro. Binckes, and work side by side with him during the next twelve months, as he considers it best to work, in the interests of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. As I have already premised, I too am getting old; possibly Bro. Binckes and I are not many years apart, but I must confess I have not the pluck to face such work as Bro. Binckes sets himself in attending to his duties as Secretary of the Boys' School. I could not undertake a tithe of this work. I should be dead in a month, and I should like to see the "young and energetic Secretary" of to-day after he had experienced a year of it. The question to some minds is, whether all this personal canvass is needed? From my experience I say it is,—and despite the fact that we have a "Girls School Secretary who never goes out, and yet they get the money," I maintain it is only because, in the other two Secretaries the Girls' School has most active advocates. If we were to put three brethren such as Bro. Hedges to manage the three Institutions, I fear, without any disrespect to Bro. Hedges, that things would show a speedy falling off. Energy and personal interest has, without a doubt, placed the Masonic Institutions in their present position, and I cannot believe that anything but continued energy and continued personal canvass will keep them there. Another point. Do the Institutions require a "young" Secretary? I say, certainly not. The Secretary of either of the Masonic Charities should be a man of weight in the Craft, a man who can be looked up to, and is capable of taking a stand alongside the heads of the Order. It must not be forgotten that year after year the duties of the Secretary bring him into close commune with many prominent Masons. Even the Grand Master himself has had to be approached on more occasions than one, as the Chairman of the Anniversary Festival, and is it to be supposed that the intimate relations which must naturally exist on such occasions are to be forgotten when the question arises of appointing a Secretary? Is a young and inexperienced—I beg pardon, "energetic"—Secretary the right person to be trusted on such occasions? Had we not rather pen our faith to "a poor, worn-out old wreck," who has faithfully and efficiently conducted our work for a period of thirty years, and is even now eminently qualified and perfectly capable of continuing his duties, than to the younger Brother, fresh from his initiation, passing, and raising, and with about as much idea of Masonry as a six weeks' old child has of Baptism, after he has just past that terrible ordeal.

I meant to paint the other side of the picture—a "young and energetic Secretary," but what can I say? I have already told you it is no crime to get old, neither is it a crime to be young (I was young myself once), but then there is that awful associate of youth—inexperience. What power, what amount of energy can compensate for that, even in ordinary matters? but I maintain that the Secretaryship of one of the Masonic Institutions is no ordinary function, and I would hold those brethren responsible who placed a "young and energetic" man in Bro. Binckes' place, if the late hours, the unbounded hospitality, and the general work of the office upset him before he had won the honours and privileges that should be associated with venerable age.

The impetuosity of youth does not always win against the decorum of later years, and I hope I shall never live to see it tested in regard to the Secretaryship of one of the Masonic Institutions, all of which owe much to him who, though getting old, is quite energetic enough to continue in office for years to come, and who would, I am sure, press any "young and energetic" competitor very close if it were possible to start them in the race side by side.

I beg to remain, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours faithfully,

AN OLD SUPPORTER OF FREEMASONRY.

MINERVA LODGE, No. ~~95~~.

ON Monday evening, the 24th ult., on the Feast of St. John the Baptist, a large number of Brethren assembled at the Minerva Lodge, Dagger Lane, Hull, to witness the ceremony of installation of Bro. J. W. Burton, as Worshipful Master. The impressive ritual having been duly performed by several Past Masters, the newly-installed Master invested his Officers for the ensuing year, the following being the appointments: Bros. R. R. Hawley I.P.M., G. H. Metcalfe S.W., Alfred Aikman, M.D., J.W., H. Haigh Lecture Master, M. C. Peck Treasurer, Walter Reynolds Treasurer Benevolent Fund, Wm. Holder Treasurer Building Fund, J. J. Adamson Secretary, C. T. Capes S.D., J. M. Bell J.D., C. H. Wood D.C., W. D. Keyworth Almoner, W. Fillingham, W. Thirsk, Saml. Boyd, D. Douglas, and John McDonald Stewards, Vessey King Organist, J. A. Brown I.G., W. Clayton Tyler. The Lodge having been duly closed, the brethren adjourned to the banqueting-hall, for the annual banquet. Bro. J. W. Burton W.M. presided, supported by the Masters of the other Hull Lodges, and by several officials of the Provincial Grand Lodge. The vice-chairs were respectively occupied by Bro. G. H. Metcalfe S.W., and Bro. A. Aikman J.W. The Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and the proceedings passed off with considerable eclat. Harmony was contributed by several brethren, Bro. V. King (Organist) presiding at the pianoforte.

ANGEL LODGE No. 51.

THE annual installation meeting was held on Thursday, 27th ult., when Bro. Fred. Horsman S.W. was installed as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. The ceremony was ably performed by Bro. Charles Osmond, and the following were invested as the Officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. Frank Quilter I.P.M., S. D. C. Ablett S.W., F. C. H. Jones J.W., the Rev. W. Morgan Jones Chaplain, E. Hennemeyer Treasurer, T. J. Ralling Secretary, H. E. Williams S.D., Harold Francis J.D., R. Hayward Ives D.C., C. Osmond Organist, G. F. Wright I.G., Harry Becker, Claude E. Egerton-Green Stewards, S. Munson Tyler, A. Wright Assistant Tyler. The W.M. was unanimously elected to represent the Lodge on the Essex Provincial Charity Committee, and a hearty vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Osmond for the able manner in which he conducted the installation ceremony. In the evening between 40 and 50 Brethren dined together, at the Cups Hotel, under the presidency of the W.M. An elegant banquet was capitally served by the Host and Hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Brown; and the toast list was interspersed with some part singing and solos, under the leadership of Bro. Osmond. Altogether it was agreed on all hands that the Festival was one of the most successful ever remembered. Letters expressing regret at their inability to attend were received from the P.G.M. (the Lord Brooke, M.P.), the D.P.G.M. (Bro. Fred. A. Philbrick Q.C., Recorder of Colchester), Colonel Shadwell Clarke (Grand Secretary of England), Rev. C. J. Martyn D.P.G.M. Suffolk, Bros. James Round, M.P., Andrew Durrant P.G. Treasurer, Albert Lucking P.G.P. England, N. Tracy P.G. Sec Suffolk, Richard Clowes P.M. 650, Fredk. Binckes Sec. R.M.I.B., James Terry Sec. R.M.B.I., E. A. Hunt, Lennox Browne, R. F. Symmons, A. E. Church P.M., Rev. C. L. Acland P.P.G. Chaplain, &c. &c. Miss Philbrick, sister of the D.P.G.M., kindly made a large number of "button-holes" for the use of the Brethren.

STABILITY LODGE, No. 217.

ON Wednesday, 26th June, the members of this Lodge left Waterloo Station, at 11 a.m., for Sunbury. The weather was beautifully fine, and carriages were in attendance at the Railway Station to carry the party to the Magpie Hotel. After slight refreshment the party walked along the banks of the Thames towards Shepperton. Dinner was served at 2 p.m. punctually. The Worshipful Master (Bro. W. Eckersall) presided, and briefly proposed a few toasts. The Queen and Craft; the Visitors. Bro. Elgar responded. Bro. Marfleet P.M. proposed the health of the W.M., who replied, stating his pleasure at meeting and presiding over such a gathering; this was par excellence a Stability Day. As the elements were inviting them, it would be out of place to make a long speech. He very much approved of these occasions, for they were the only time the ladies were present. There was little labour (even that, of love) and much refreshment. Bro. Gorrie P.M. proposed the health of the Ladies, to which Bro. Nixon P.M. humorously responded. The further time at disposal was spent in boating and driving. At 6 p.m. the party sat down to an excellent tea, after which the W.M. congratulated the party on the very pleasant day they had spent. He regretted the absence, through illness, of their oldest P.M. Brother Taylor, who had invariably attended these gatherings heretofore, and was now represented by two of his daughters. More social intercourse was enjoyed near the river, when, after wishing good bye to Bro. Freeman the host, the party proceeded to the Railway Station and reached Waterloo about 9·30. Amongst those present were Bro. Eckersall W.M. and Mrs. Eckersall; Bro. Woolmer J.W. and Master Woolmer jun.; Bro. Hinks senior Treasurer, and Mrs. Hinks; Bro. Nixon P.M. Secretary and Mrs. Nixon; Bro. Marfleet Past Master, and Mr. Marfleet junior with Miss Marfleet; Bro. Addington P.M. and Mrs. Addington; Bro. Gorrie P.M. and Miss Gorrie; Bro. Finch and Mrs. Finch; Bro. Garner; Bro. Itter and Miss Itter; Bro. Hancock; Bro. Cowley P.M. and Mrs. Cowley; with the two Misses Taylor; Bro. Elgar (Sphinx) and Mrs. Elgar; Mrs. Stone and Master Stone (wife and son of Bro. C. H. Stone), with several friends.

BUCKINGHAM LODGE, No. 591.

THE installation meeting was held in the Masonic Hall, Aylesbury, on Wednesday, the 19th ult., and there was a very large attendance of members and visitors. The W.M., Brother J. E. D. Ostrehan, after other business, installed the new Master, Bro. L. N. Simms. The Officers for the ensuing year were appointed, as follows:—Bros. A. Mayne S.W., F. J. Brown J.W., H. Jowett Treasurer, L. Poulton Secretary, F. W. Micklethwaite S.D., E. T. Palmer J.D., H. Martin Dir. of Cer., C. J. Roberts Organist, W. H. Sherman I.G., W. K. Gurney and E. T. Mackrill Stewards, F. Payne Tyler, and J. N. Hodgkinson Assistant Tyler. The annual banquet was afterwards held at the Bull's Head Hotel, and was well served by Bro. Simms.

QUATUOR CORONATI LODGE, No. 2076.

Scott, and N. L. Wilber, all of Providence, Rhode Island, C. Hull, Christchurch, New Zealand; Lieut. Col. H. Fawcett Pudsey, Hull; C. H. O. Curtis, Bournemouth; H. Tipper, Hammersmith; J. Nevin, Clayton, Bradford; T. Hicks P.P.G.J.W. Cornwall St. Columb; R. H. Singleton, Halifax; and Col. Marmaduke Ramsay Dist. Grand Master Malta. This raises the number of intrants to 660. The W.M. referred to the publication, since the last meeting, of Part I. of the 1889 Transactions. It was a larger number than any previously issued, replete with interesting matter, and a credit to all concerned. The "Notes and Queries" department, he thought, would be very valuable; it afforded an opportunity for the preservation of matter which was, perhaps, scarcely fitted to form the basis of a paper or lecture, and he trusted that any brother, however inexperienced, who in the course of his reading came across a passage of possible interest, would make an extract for their Secretary. Such a course would naturally entail the reception of much that was already well known, but although the Committee might decide not to reprint it on that account, the services of the correspondent would be none the less appreciated. On the other hand, much of great interest might be brought to their notice, and gratefully made use of. He would mention, as a curious coincidence, that the Secretary had received, for their next number, no less than four or five notes on Chinese Masonry from different quarters. Further, since their last meeting, Vol. I. of Masonic Reprints had been issued by the Lodge. The brethren would be pleased to hear that he held the written commands of the Most Worshipful the Grand Master to proceed to Marlborough House to present him with a copy of their publications to date. As soon as the volumes were decently bound for the purpose, he should take the first opportunity of complying. Referring to the "Reprints," he was of opinion that from every point of view, Masonic, Archæologic, artistic, and literary, they were a credit to the Editor, the Lodge, and, he would add, the Craft itself. There was one feature of the Book which deserved their special attention. He alluded to the Commentary on the Regius MS. by Bro. Gould. The labour and research involved in its production must have been enormous. He had read it through once, but he intended to apply himself to the study of it, and wished he could have Bro. Gould at his elbow to answer questions as they rose to his mind. He was informed that it represented nearly twelve months of research and hard work, and he wished to impress upon the brethren that all the study, thought and toil was rendered by Bro. Gould freely, cheerfully, and gratuitously, out of the abundant love he had for the Lodge and its welfare. He would now go through the needless formality of moving a vote of thanks, and had great pleasure in expressing to Bro. Gould, what must, of necessity, be the unanimous feeling of the brethren, their gratitude for his work, and their appreciation of the result. Bro. Rylands supported the vote, which was carried by acclamation. Bro. Gould said that he was very greatly obliged to the brethren for the compliment they had paid him, and he appreciated it the more on account of the kindly remarks of the W.M. and Bro. Rylands, with which the resolution had been introduced to the Lodge. The task of writing a Commentary on the oldest document of the Craft had been a formidable one, and in setting to work upon it he had been forcibly reminded of one of those memorable utterances which Cervantes has put into the mouth of Don Quixote. The latter, enumerating the qualifications which should be possessed by a Knight Errant, went on to state, in effect, that he should be a proficient in everything. In like manner, to do full justice to the ancient legends and traditions of Masonry, any person who attempted to commentate upon them ought to be, not only a student or antiquary of the Craft, but a scholar and archæologist in the widest sense of the expressions. A close study of the Masonic Poem would have been incomplete without at least some research into matters not at a first view absolutely connected with it. Thus, the literature, the language, the architecture, the history and laws, and the geography of Britain had each claimed a share of attention. He did not venture to contend that in these collateral studies he had proceeded very far, but, nevertheless, in the time at his disposal, he had spared no exertions to qualify himself, as far as he was able, for the execution of the task which had been allotted to him. He thought the presentation of the Regius MS., in facsimile, was the best of all possible reproductions with which a new series of their publications could be inaugurated, and if the Commentary upon it should be deemed by the Lodge—he would not say altogether, but to some slight extent—worthy of its text, and no discredit to the channel of publication through which it had seen the light, he should be amply compensated for the time and labour he had devoted to it. The Secretary described the preliminary arrangements which had been made for a proposed excursion to St. Albans, in July, and handed round for inspection a photograph of a boss in Peterborough Cathedral, forwarded by Bro. Clarabut. Bro. T. B. Whytehead read a very instructive paper on "The Grand Lodge at York," graphically describing, in concise language, its history so far as known. The paper is naturally far too long for insertion in our columns; for its study we must refer our readers to the next number of "Ars Quatuor Coronatorum." A long and interesting discussion ensued, embracing a number of points arising out of the lecture and of the photograph already alluded to, in which the W.M., and Bros. Gould, Speth, Rylands, Goldney, Dr. Richardson, and Whytehead, took part. A written Commentary on the paper, from the pen of Bro. Hughan, was also read. Hearty good wishes having been tendered, Bro. Colonel Ramsay Dist. G.M. Malta begged to thank the brethren, as a Visitor, for the good work they were doing, and for the opportunity afforded him of being present at such an interesting meeting. He was happy to say, however, that through their kindness in electing him that evening, although he entered their Lodge a self-invited Visitor, he should leave it a member of their widely-spread Correspondence Circle. The brethren then adjourned to refreshment. As usual, the speeches were few and short, the brethren apppearing to find more pleasure in Masonic conversation and discussion than in after dinner oratory. Noteworthy, however, were two speeches. Bro. Whytehead, in reply to Prosperity to the Lodge, recounted his fruitless efforts to connect himself with Masonic Archæology, a desire which he at length partly gratified by joining the Rosicrucian Society of England. Since, however, the establishment of the Quatuor Coronati, which he joined immediately after its formation, the outlook for an intelligent and intellectual Mason had considerably changed for the better. The example set by this Lodge was spreading, and already Yorkshire boasted of two Masonic literary societies, one at Bradford and one at Wakefield, of both of which he was a member. The prosperity of the Lodge was assured. The periodical issue of their Transactions, the publishing of such a volume of Reprints as had just seen the light, with the certain hope of more to follow; the industry, organising power and energy of their Secretary, the literary and scientific status of many of their members, and the extent of their Correspondence Circle—660 members, in every quarter of the globe—made failure simply impossible. Bro. Dr. Richardson replied for the Visitors with all his well known eloquence. He congratulated the Lodge on its past, present, and future. The non success of all previous attempts at an analagous society, in some of which brethren then present had participated, had failed to frighten the founders of the Quatuor Coronati, and quite rightly so, for the repeated attempts proved the demand, and the failure was probably due to causes which No. 2076 had known how to evade or surmount. He had only lately become aware of their existence, and was indebted to his friend Bro. Williams for bringing him there. It was a red-letter day for him, the most enjoyable he had ever spent in Masonry, and he trusted that the indulgence of the brethren, when they came to examine into his qualifications, would soon place it on of his power to return thanks as a Visitor.

THE THEATRES, &c.

—:o:—

On Monday afternoon, Mr. F. J. Potter, the general acting manager, will give his annual matinée at the Gaiety. The programme is a very attractive one, consisting of "Delicate Ground," "Locked in," and the first act of "Faust up to date," with a miscellaneous entertainment. We wish Mr. Potter success.

Mr. and Mrs. Kendal's season will come to a close on Friday next, and on Saturday the 13th instant, will be produced a new and original farce in three acts, by Mr. Ralph R. Lumley entitled "Aunt Jack," in which Mrs. John Wood and Mr. Arthur Cecil will appear.

The "Still Alarm" will be revived at the Princess's, for a fortnight commencing on Monday, 15th inst., to be followed by the celebrated drama, "Proof," for which a very powerful cast is engaged.

The following is the cast for "In Danger," to be produced at the Vaudeville, on the 29th inst.:—Messrs. Lewis Waller, F. H. Macklin, R. S. Boleyn, W. Lestocq, Julian Cross, Sydney Brough, Alfred Melton, C. Milton, J. M. Capel, E. Smedley Yates, Miss Agnes Miller, Mrs. Canninge, and Miss Florence West. Miss Cicely Richards and Miss May Whitty have been engaged to appear in Mr. F. Hamilton Knight's comedietta, "The Postcript," to be played the same afternoon.

Olympia—"R.A. Crowded out and Rejected."—The visitor to this Exhibition—knowing that some thousands of pictures sent to the Royal Academy this year could not be hung, and seeing on the Olympia Prospectus over fifty names on the General Council, including R.A.'s and A.R.A.'s, besides many well known Art patrons, the list being headed by Sir John E. Millais, Bart., R.A.—would be justified in expecting to find a large and somewhat good show of talent in every form of Art; but this is, unfortunately, not the case. Whatever good work may have been rejected by the Council of the Royal Academy it is not here. Pity 'tis, but true. Here, in this magnificent building, admirably adapted for showing pictures or sculpture to the best advantage, there are, in all, only 647 exhibits. No fault can be found with the hanging. The great mistake that has been made, we think, is explained in the words we quote from the Catalogue—"Every picture entered, whatever its merits, has been received and hung." There are in the show a few old faces, so to speak, that have done duty in decorating the walls of previous exhibitions, but they call for no special notice. We can only hope that the Managing Committee, another year, will work on different lines, and make it evident how it would be to the advantage of Artists to bring to the light of public favour some of the best works now buried in their studios.

On Tuesday evening, at Freemasons' Tavern, Bro. A. Madell was entertained by a few personal friends on the occasion of his resignation of the managership at this popular Masonic resort. Bro. James Terry presided, and in the course of the evening Bro. Madell was presented with an illuminated testimonial, and a purse containing £77. The proceedings throughout were of the most cordial nature, and Bro. Madell retired with the assurance that he has left behind him a troup of friends who will be pleased to know he is successful in the new undertaking he has embarked on.

A new Chapter, to be attached to the Montefiore Lodge, No. 1017, will be consecrated at the Café Royal, Regent-street, on Wednesday, the 10th inst.

The Pall Mall Gazette states, regarding the movement to establish a Masonic Lodge in connection with the National Liberal Club, the London correspondent of the Birmingham Gazette is told that some time since the Primrose Club—which, as its name implies, represents a very different partizan "stripe"—thought of doing the same thing, but found the Prince of Wales, inexorably opposed to the idea.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.—Sores, Wounds, Ulcerations, and other diseases affecting the skin, are capable of speedy amendment by this cooling and healing Ointment, which has called forth the loudest praise from persons who had suffered for years from bad legs, bad breasts, piles, abscesses, and chronic ulcers, after every hope of cure had long passed away. None but those who have experienced the soothing effect of this Ointment can form an idea of the comfort it bestows by restraining inflammation and allaying pain. Whenever Holloway's Ointment has been once used it has established its own worth, and has again been eagerly sought for as the easiest and safest remedy for all such complaints. In neuralgia, rheumatism and gout, the same application, properly used, gives wonderful relief.

EADE'S
GOUT & RHEUMATIC PILLS.

The SAFEST and most EFFECTUAL CURE for GOUT, RHEUMATISM, and all PAINS in the HEAD, FACE, and LIMBS.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL from the Rev. F. FARVIS, Baptist Minister.

Mr. G. EADE. March 19, 1887.

Dear Sir,—I have many times felt inclined to inform you of the benefit I have received by taking your Gout and Rheumatic Pills. After suffering for some time from Rheumatism and Sciatica, I was advised to use your Pills. I bought a bottle, and when in severe pain and unable to use the limb affected I took a dose. In a few hours after I felt the pain much better, and after the second dose the pain completely removed and the limb restored to its right use. I thank you, dear sir, for sending forth such a boon for the relief of human suffering.

Yours faithfully,
F. FARVIS,
Baptist Minister.

There are multitudes of people who look upon advertising as a sort of Lottery, and bestow infinitely more thought in the selection of a clerk at £100 a year than in the expenditure of £1000, or two in the same period in advertising. A tithe of the shrewdness displayed in all other branches of their business given to the management of their advertising will be amply repaid. The ADVERTISEMENT AGENT has become an indispensable factor in this matter of publicity, and his raison d'être is perfectly unassailable. Would you leave or enter a port without a pilot? Would you commence and prosecute a law suit without a legal adviser? Either of these courses would not be more foolish than rushing into expenses in Advertising without a competent practical and professional adviser. I am at all times happy to render advertisers every assistance in my power, and to give them the benefit of the experience I have gained during the past twenty years as a London advertising agent. Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist's Testimonial.

My Dear Doctor,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

This is to certify: That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

CERTIFICATES OF OFFICE.

WHAT will be regarded as a novelty in many Masonic quarters has just been inaugurated in one of the Provinces of the East coast, the Grand Master of which recently announced his intention of giving to each of his Provincial Officers a certificate of office on their appointment. There is much to be said in favour of the general adoption of such a system, and we shall not be surprised if the example is not speedily followed in other quarters. We know such a custom already exists in parts of the country, but we consider the practice worthy of more general adoption.

We are accustomed to hear that the Master's chair is the summit of a Mason's ambition, but surely there are few who reach that exalted station but immediately wish for something more, some appointment which will carry with it the right to wear the Purple, either of Grand or of Provincial Grand Lodge. In London Lodges ordinary brethren are not, perhaps, so ambitious in this respect as are the Provincials, from the fact that they know it is next to impossible for them to secure a place among the officers of Grand Lodge. On this account few London Masons ever give a serious thought to the matter, but in the Provinces it is different. There it is not only possible, but in many cases probable, that the principal craftsmen of the year will be rewarded with Provincial Grand Lodge honours. On this account more notice is taken of the appointments, and there are few Lodges but can number among its members one or more present or past Provincial Grand Officers. For all this it must not be supposed that country brethren look upon these distinctions with anything like the contempt which is bred of familiarity, or that they regard the privilege of wearing a Purple collar as being beneath their notice. In nearly all the Provinces the great difficulty which has to be faced is the distribution of the few available appointments among the many brethren of the district who fully deserve them, and as a consequence the few fortunate ones who secure the reward of office have considerable reason to be proud of it, and are looked up to by their fellows as most fortunate. The distinction of clothing makes it very easy for brethren when assembled in Lodge to make known the rank to which they have advanced, but in private life this is not so easy, and although there are few who care to make a boast of the honours they have achieved, there are not many who would object to be occasionally reminded of it by a certificate or form, which might be framed or otherwise placed in a conspicuous position in their home or other haunt of every day life. Besides this, many Lodges have rooms of their own, wherein might well be displayed the certificates of honour won by present or departed members, as well as other mementos of the past; and all this might be done without any approach to ostentatious display or outside show. We do not approve of the Mason who introduces the emblems of the Craft into his business, in the hope of making profit thereby—in our opinion this is a crime which speedily brings its own punishment—but we think an occasional reference to Masonic brotherhood in private life, and especially of honours won in the Craft, is not only admissible, but within the limits of Masonic propriety.

The granting of certificates to the Officers of Provincial Grand Lodge would also, in many cases, create a bond of union between the Provincial Grand Master and the Brother who received it, stronger even than now exists, while their possession would serve to recall pleasant memories much more frequently than is at present possible, because they would come more frequently under notice. This alone should recommend a general adoption of the system, which, however, must be protected from abuse. When we say abuse, we mean that it must be kept within reasonable bounds. What is here recommended for adoption in Provincial Grand Lodges must not be allowed in Private Lodges, or at least it must not be allowed to the same extent, even if it be tolerated at all. We already have a certificate of merit for the Master of a Lodge in the Past Master's jewel, and that is sufficient for private Lodges, for whereas in Provincial Grand Lodge a Brother seldom has a second office conferred upon him, in private Lodges it is the custom for brethren to work up, step by step, from the lowest office to the highest, without missing one of the many appointments available. Certificates of appointments to each of these would be absurd, and would only bring into disrepute a pleasing innovation, which appears to recommend itself for general adoption.

We shall watch, and no doubt some of our readers will likewise do so, for the results which will follow this principle of giving certificates of appointment, and have little doubt but that it will be found that the hope of winning such a certificate proves a yet further inducement for brethren to try and merit promotion at the hands of their Provincial chiefs. Such, we are sure, is the object with which they are being adopted, and as anything which can benefit a part of the Order must of necessity benefit the whole, we hope the desire of those who are introducing them will be gratified to the fullest extent.

SPECULATIVE FREEMASONRY.

MY article in the Freemason, on Elias Ashmole, the Antiquary and "Freemason," does not seem to satisfy my friend Bro. Jacob Norton, for which I am most certainly sorry, but as the fault is not mine, no blame is attached.

All my statements can easily be verified, and so the objections raised can only be "a play on words."

It turns upon the use of the word speculative. As frequently explained before, my employment of the term is to describe a class of men who joined the Freemasons ages ago, who were not operative Masons, and never intended to be, i.e., those who were theoretical Freemasons, or adopted as such, just as we meet with the titles "Geomatic" and "Domatic," descriptive of the two classes of Speculatives and Operatives.

Digitized by Google

We meet with this term Speculative in reference to Masonry, or Freemasonry, as far back as the fifteenth century, so that four centuries of such a custom is a fair reason for its use now.

When Ashmole was initiated as a Speculative Freemason in 1646, it is not likely "there was a single operative Mason present," as Bro. Rylands has well-nigh demonstrated; so that this particular Lodge must have long existed to account for the elimination of the operative element. At Aberdeen, in 1670, the great majority of members consisted of noblemen, gentlemen, and men of other trades than the Masonic, even though the Lodge was used for operative purposes then, and so long since that year.

Bro. Randle Holme, in his "Academie of Armory," Chester, 1688, says, "I cannot but honor the Fellowship of the Masons because of its antiquity; and the more as being a member of that Society called Free-Masons." This is another instance out of many of Speculative Freemasonry in the 17th Century, and I fail to see what fair objection can be raised to my using such a term.

Far too much has been made of Dr. Plot's assumed ridicule of the Freemasons in 1686. Personally, I feel much obliged to the departed Historian for his numerous references and suggestive descriptions of the Society, which I believe to be, precisely the same as Ashmole joined. Indeed, it is inconceivable to me how any one can think otherwise.

How Bro. Norton can declare that the "London Lodge," to which Ashmole was summoned in 1682, "was no other than the London Masonic Guild, which, as already shown [?], had neither any sign, word, grip, or ceremony, save that of a dinner," passes my comprehension, for a more unfounded declaration could not be made.

How does our brother know that in order to gain admission to St. Paul's Lodge ["Antiquity"] in or about 1717, it was necessary "to show a sign, to give a grip, and to whisper a word?" We are quite ignorant of the esoteric character of this old Lodge in 1717, at least no evidence has transpired on this side of the Atlantic, so Bro. Norton will oblige us by forwarding the needful particulars, which are new to us.

I am sorry that Bro. Norton, after all my trouble to give the exact words of Ashmole's Diary, relative to his initiation, &c., quotes from a printed account which is erroneous, notwithstanding he had my reproduction before him. He might surely be a little more careful under the circumstances, as the sense of the extract is seriously affected by the interpolation, to which reference has more than once been made by Bro. Gould and myself.

As to my attempting to show that the Freemasonry of Ashmole's time was "Masonic, in accordance with our ideas" about the Craft, it is not likely Bro. Norton will induce me to try anything so Quixotic. He does nothing very extraordinary, or worth writing about, to set me an impossible task, and then go on to assume it will not be done. And yet, why erase Ashmole's name from the list of "Old Masonic Worthies?"

Supposing, from this date to 1950, changes were gradually introduced into our Lodges, on a par with those from 1646 to 1740, would the brethren be inclined to remove the name of friend Norton from its Roll of Worthies, simply because the degrees or ceremonies worked in 1889, known to him, differed so from those of 1950? I trow not. Whatever it was in 1646-1682, it was Freemasonry, and it is but that now. Not exactly the same as we have it, but none of us now know exactly what is the old, or what is the new in the Three Degrees, but we do know that Lodges have continued on the Scottish Roll through all the changes from then to now. Of course, three separate Degrees were unknown in Ashmole's time.

W. J. HUGHAN.

The Earl of Jersey has resigned the office of Provincial Grand Master of Mark Masons for the Province of Berks and Oxon, a position which he has held for some years. We hear also that Lord Valentia will probably succeed Lord Jersey as Grand Master of the Province.

THOUGHTS FOR THE THINKING MASON.

HOW many Brethren who spend evening after evening in the Lodge-room ever ask themselves to what end all the curious rites and ceremonies, which are the property of our mystic Brotherhood, are so frequently repeated? Who pauses in the midst of the ritual to ask himself its meaning, or stops to inquire in what way it relates to the every-day affairs of life? Too many look upon the work of the Craft as a mere meaningless repetition of words, which by infinite toil must be learned by heart by any one who wishes to become an officer in his Lodge, but to them it is a matter of no concern, demanding no thought or attention, and attracting them only as the words when uttered by a speaker of good delivery may have a sonorous roll, pleasing to the ear.

How seldom, indeed, we find that the pure radiance of the First Great Light is allowed to shine with its divine effulgence upon the Mysteries of our Craft. If our Brethren would but take the trouble to commit to memory, carefully and thoughtfully (not mere parrot learning) the entire ritual of the Fraternity, and then in the patient spirit of investigation look up, by means of reference Bible and Concordance, all those passages which seem obscure and meaningless to them, they will find themselves well rewarded for their trouble. Unfortunately for the good of the Craft, the Bible seems to be as much of a sealed book to not a few Masons, as if they were under the administration of the Romish Church, which forbids the laity to read the word of God for themselves.

If the Craft as a whole knew the work better, we would hear fewer complaints of bad grammar in the authorised work. Too many Americans get their only ideas of grammar from the dogmatic and empiric books on the subject which form the text books in most of our schools, both public and private, and which by arbitrary rules, that seem all important to the self-appointed authority, endeavour to straighten out the English language as if with a rod of iron, thereby seeking to remove from it all the force of character and wonderful strength and elasticity of expression that have kept the English of King James's version of the Bible, and of William Shakespeare, unchanged in all essentials, even down to the present day, while other languages, such as French and German, have suffered far more variation in the same length of time.. If any well-read Mason will carefully examine the work as taught by the Temple School of Instruction, he cannot help being struck by the singular force and beauty of the language used. There is not one word too much, nor is there anything left out which should be there. The language is such as Goldsmith or Addison might have used, from the elegance and purity of its diction, though, perhaps, if tested by the petty standard of Hart's English Grammar, or some other such self-constituted authority, it might be found somewhat lacking.

So much for mere questions of diction, the outward clothing in which the beautiful symbolism of our mystic ceremonies is veiled. But there are far higher beauties to be perceived by every thinking Mason. Who can fail to be struck with the quaint spirit of mediævalism which seems to pervade the whole of Ancient York Masonry. One can almost fancy himself among those ancient builders who, protected by Papal bull, gathered together in companies wherever there was a cathedral or monastery to be erected, a close corporation protecting both their trade secrets and the mystic legends in their possession from the knowledge of the profane world, by the solemn obligations imposed upon any one who desired to unite with them and aid in glorifying God, by assisting in the erection of a Temple to His honour. For, the Freemasons of mediæval Europe were really the architects, sculptors and Mason builders of the religious edifices. The ordinary buildings, dwellings, castles, and the like, were built by common mechanics, who had never learned the secret Mysteries of our Craft, and who were but local artificers following out the rude, every-day practices of their immediate neighbours. The Freemasons, however, were not local workmen, in many cases were not even residents of the countries where they worked, but bound together by a common purpose, they travelled about from place to place, spreading abroad the knowledge of every new discovery in construction or design, so that it might become the common property of the Fraternity at large, in the same manner that the architects of to-day spread broadcast, among the profession, every new constructive expedient or novelty in design in the pages of the professional journals. Can we not imagine our ancient Brethren gathered together in the precincts of the tyled Lodge and there, safe from the intrusion of the local builder who might otherwise discover their knowledge, working out these most complicated problems of the pressure and counter-pressure of groined vaults, mathematical computations so profound that when the monasteries were put down by Henry VIII., and the Freemasons lost their prerogatives, as well as their employment, the secret was lost, until this present age of engineering skill; and architecture from the lack of the requisite knowledge for the construction of Gothic buildings, took on the much simpler forms of the classic, and the world witnessed that mighty change in art, contemporaneous with the great religious upheaval of the times, the Renaissance.

But with all the mediæval spirit of this our ancient and honourable Fraternity, there seems, in its legends and traditions, in its symbols and emblems, a yet more ancient spirit, which would take us back to those remote ages of antiquity, earlier even than the building of that wondrous Temple at Jerusalem by Solomon, King of Israel, and would carry us in spirit within those sacred precincts of the temples on the borders of the Nile, whose priests gathered to themselves all the knowledge of the world, leaving to the common people naught but unceasing toil for their daily bread, and demanded of any one who would seek to penetrate into the mysterious realms of science or art, that he should give proof of the earnestness of his purpose by passing through ordeals where fear or hesitation would proclaim him unworthy of knowing the still greater mystery of the truth of nature's laws. We well know that in Egypt mathematics, from its absolute exactness, was regarded as of divine origin, and the triangle, from being the simplest figure into which all other plane figures can be resolved, was looked upon as a direct emblem of Deity. Can any thinking Mason fail to connect this fact with the many allusions to this figure in our work, and with the threefold character of all ancient Masonry? Or does he prefer to join the ranks of those petty scoffers, who seeing nothing beyond what they can fathom with the petty measuring rod of what they term exact science, deny to our mysteries any antiquity beyond the seventeenth or eighteenth century, and who imagine a set of men gathered together in a London coffee-house could have then and there originated mysteries which on their very face bear the stamp of antiquity? Truly such men could not be convinced though fire were to come down from heaven by a miracle, and illuminate the dim vistas of the past, so that they might see clearly what had gone before.—Keystone.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

THE monthly meeting of the General Committee was held on Saturday last, in the Board Room, Freemasons' Hall. The Earl of Euston, Chairman of the Provisional Committee appointed by the Special Court held on the 6th June, presided. Bro. F. A. Philbrick, Q.C., Grand Registrar, and several members of the Provisional Committee were present, with a large number of Life Governors, Life Subscribers, &c. After the formal business had been transacted, and a list of 69 candidates for admission to the School settled, 16 vacancies in the School were declared for the October election. Brother the Earl of Euston then presented to the Committee the report drawn up by the Provisional Committee of its transactions since the 6th June, and his lordship read the report, as follows:—

The Report of the Provisional Management Committee appointed by the Special General Court on 6th June 1889.

Thie Committee has since its appointment held five meetings, one of which was at Wood Green. The Earl of Euston was elected Chairman, Bro. F. A. Philbrick Vice-Chairman, and Brother J. D. Langton Hon. Sec. of the Committee.

On the 12th June the late House, Finance, and Audit Committees passed a resolution handing over the management of the Institution to this Committee, and this Committee on the same day passed a resolution accepting the charge, and has since that day done all things necessary in carrying on the Institution.

The Matron and Steward of the Institution having resigned, this Committee has taken the matter into its consideration, and recommends that the office of Steward be not filled up for the present, but that the Matron be at once appointed. It therefore asks that it be empowered to make the appointment, subject to the approval of the next General Committee.

The Committee is of opinion that a fresh Medical Officer is required, and recommends it be empowered to take the necessary steps to attain this result forthwith.

It appears to this Committee that, in the interests of the Institution, and in order to carry out the wishes of the Special Court, it is necessary there should be a change at as early a period as possible in the office of Secretary. The committee is unanimous in recommending that a retiring allowance should be accorded to Bro. Frederick Binckes, and asks the General Committee to authorise it to confer with Bro. Binckes on the terms of his retirement, and to arrange them, if possible, and report thereon to the next General Committee.

The Committee has under its consideration the various recommendations of the Committee of Inquiry, with a view to carry them out as desired by the General Court. It has not lost sight of the question of the Head Mastership, but deems it advisable to reserve this, with other important subjects, for further deliberation.

The Committee asks this General Committee to confirm what it has already done, and to depute to it the powers of the House, Audit, and Finance Committees, in order that it may be duly authorised to carry out the directions given by the Special Court, on the occasion of its appointment.

The various duties devolving on the Members of the Committee render it advisable in their opinion, that they should be enabled to add to their number, if found requisite.

The Committee has accepted the honorary services of Messrs. Kennedy and Hobbs, chartered accountants, and have appointed a Sub-Committee, which has received an interim report advising on the system of book-keeping, and that Sub-Committee is engaged in further considering the question of the financial condition of the Institution.

Dated the 6th day of July 1889.
(Signed) EUSTON.

Bro. Philbrick, in moving:—

"That the report of the Provisional Management Committee now read be received and entered on the minutes, and that its proceedings and recommendations do receive the sanction of this Committee, which authorises the Provisional Committee to carry the same into effect," said the Committee found it necessary to ask that further members be added to their number; they, although now 21, did not all attend. Some of these, such as Bro. Gerard Ford, of Brighton, were not always able to attend, and the duties of the Committee were becoming many and arduous. The Committee, however, was anxious to continue its labours with the same zeal, assiduity, and thoroughness as heretofore, and would like more brethren to be conjoined with them. Bro. J. S. Cumberland seconded the motion. A short discussion arose on the Report, the different speakers expressing their approval of the manner in which the Provincial Committee had discharged the burden thrown upon them. Bro. James Motion wanted to ask whether the Secretary had resigned, in conformity with the wish expressed at the Special Court of 6th June? Bro. Binckes said he had not resigned. Bro. Motion then took exception to one paragraph in the Report, that relating to a retiring allowance to the Secretary. He strongly objected to any retiring allowance. It was explained that no recomendation by the Committee that a retiring allowance of any amount would bind the subscribers to the Institution in any way whatever. The Committee could only recommend, and whatever recommendation they might make would be submitted to a Special or Quarterly Court of Subscribers for their confirmation or rejection. The Report was then agreed to, without a dissentient voice, and a resolution was past authorising Lord Euston to sign cheques. Grants for outfits were made to some ex-pupils of the Institution, and a vote of thanks to the Chairman closed the proceedings.

Since we published the lists of contributions at the recent Boys' School Festival, held on the 3rd instant, the following amounts have been received.—

The Provincial Grand Lodge having been opened in regular form, the minutes were confirmed, and the roll of Provincial Officers was called over; this was followed by the calling over of the roll of Lodges, when it was found that all were represented, and were reported as being in a satisfactory state. Bro. Joseph Flintham, of Aldeburgh, was elected Provincial Grand Treasurer, and the thanks of the Lodge accorded to the retiring Treasurer, who had efficiently discharged the duties of the office for some years. The following were appointed as the Provincial Officers:—

The Report of the Board of General Purposes of the Province was read and confirmed, it being of a very satisfactory character. Next followed the Report of the Suffolk Masonic Charity Association, which, has we said last week, was also a most gratifying one. These regretted the Committee appointed to inquire into the affairs of the Boys' School had been obliged to pass such an unfavourable verdict on that Institution, but at the same time it was hoped the brethren of the Province would not, in consequence, withdraw their support from the Charity. The customary grants of ten guineas to each of the three Institutions were proposed, as also were other votes in the cause of benevolence, together with one of five guineas on account of the expense of issuing the Provincial Calendar. Bro. W. Clarke, in proposing the adoption of the Report referred to the Boys' School Inquiry, the necessity for which was regretted on all sides. He was sure, however, the brethren of Suffolk would not be the first to stop their support of the Institution, but would rather aid in dispelling the cloud which was at present hanging over it. The annual Charity Report congratulated the Province on its hearty and continued support of the Charities, which was all the more encouraging after the special efforts which were made last year on behalf of the Girls' School Centenary. This year the Provincial Grand Master undertook the presidency of the Girls' School Festival and eighteen members of the Province gave their services as Stewards to support their chief. They all regretted the absence of Lord Henniker from the Festival, and sincerely sympathised with his lordship at the bereavement which had kept him away. The Deputy of the Province, who was ever ready to perform any good work, had stepped into the breach, and had carried out the duties most efficiently. The result of that Festival, so far as Suffolk was concerned, was that its members had taken up £577 19s 6d, the largest amount ever sent up by the Province, and considerably more than double what was contributed by any other Province to that Festival. At the Benevolent Festival Suffolk had 7 Stewards, who took up £337 1s, while at that of the Boys'—being held that day—they had two Stewards, with lists amounting to £137 18s 6d. Thus they had contributed £1052 19s to the three Institutions during the current year. The Provincial Grand Master then addressed the brethren, congratulating them on what had been done by Suffolk on behalf of the Charities of the Order. He considered benevolence the greatest feature of Freemasonry, and especially thanked the brethren for the assistance they had rendered him in his efforts on behalf of the Girls' School. He especially supported the views of Bro. Clarke in regard to the Boys' School. They had all heard of the Committee of Investigation and its report, but rather than take away any support from the Institution on account of that report, they ought to increase their subscriptions, for they might reasonably expect that all faults would be immediately remedied, now they had been pointed out, and funds would be needed to continue the work. He was very pleased to find the Province in so satisfactory a condition, and thanked the brethren of Beccles for the reception they had accorded the Grand Lodge that day. He had decided to give certificates in future to Provincial Grand Officers on their appointment, in order that brethren who were promoted might have something to show in years to come of the honour that had been conferred on them. As soon as the form had been decided upon he intended to give one to each of the officers it had been his pleasure to appoint since his installation as Provincial Master. Lord Henniker then proposed the vote of congratulation to be G. Master, on the approaching marriage of his daughter; this we mentioned last week. The brethren then attended Divine service at St. Michael's Church, and on their return the Provincial Grand Master proposed votes of thanks to the Mayor of Beccles, for the loan of the Town Hall; to the Rector, for allowing them to meet in his church; and to the Provincial Chaplain, for the excellent sermon they had just listened to. Lord Henniker announced that next year's meeting would be held at Bury, and that the succeeding year he hoped to do as he had wished ever since he had occupied the position of Provincial Master, entertain the Masons of the Province at his own house. Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, Deputy Provincial Grand Master, arrived during the afternoon — he having been detained through alterations in the train service; he offered his apologies for being late, and was accorded a hearty welcome by those assembled. Provincial Lodge was then closed, and the brethren proceeded to the Corn Hall, where a banquet was partaken of, under the presidency of Bro. Martyn.

At the conclusion of the banquet the chairman proposed the usual toasts. The longer they lived the more they must feel the privilege of living under the rule of so Grand a Sovereign as Queen Victoria. They had that day offered congratulations on an event which he hoped would bring joy to Her Majesty and to the members of her family. The next toast was that of the Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. The members of the Masonic Order were not only loyal to the Queen, but equally so to the Prince of Wales, their Masonic sovereign. All shared with His Royal Highness the joy he must feel at the engagement of his eldest daughter. The toast of the Grand Officers followed. This was a most important toast, one which embraced a great many good and worthy Masons. Bro. Martyn believed the visit of the Pro Grand Master to the Antipodes had been productive of great good to the cause of Masonry.

They had among them that day two Grand Officers—Bro. Hedges, whose name at least was known throughout the length and breadth of the land, and who had worked hard on behalf of the Girls' School, and Bro. Clarke, who was too well known in Suffolk to need any eulogy from him. Bro. Martyn was very pleased to again welcome these two brethren. Bro. Hedges replied, thanking the brethren for their reception of the toast, and also for the hearty way in which they had supported the Provincial Grand Master in his presidency at the recent Festival of the Girls' School. The health of the Provincial Grand Master was next given, and most heartily received. Bro. G. F. Crane then proposed the health of the chairman, their Deputy Provincial Grand Master, to which Bro. Martyn replied, in an effective speech. The brethren in all parts were very kind to him—in the words of the song they had just heard, they seemed to "remember" him wherever he went. His desire was so to act that when it pleased God to take him from them, they would still remember him. He loved the Craft so well that he rejoiced when it prospered as it had done in their Province of Suffolk; they all ought to be proud that their district had been able to send up as much as £1050 to the Charities during a single year. This was not a spasmodic effort, but the regular outcome of their love for the Institutions. The toast of the visitors was next given, and having been acknowledged, that of the Provincial Officers followed. They had in Suffolk so many excellent men that it became very difficult to promote all who were worthy of it. They had tried to act as impartially as possible, and, as the Provincial Grand Master had said, had had great difficulty in awarding the few collars among the many brethren who were deserving of them. The toast was heartily received, and ably acknowledged by Bros. Harvey and Bryan. Then followed the toast of the Charities. Bro. Martyn, in proposing it, said he had just received a telegram from Bro. Binckes, the Secretary of the Boys' School, saying that the result of the Festival then being held would be the receipt of about £13,000 on behalf of the Boys' Institution. They must all be delighted at such a result, and he hoped that it would be the commencement of fresh enthusiasm on behalf of that Charity. How on earth was it possible to prop up a sinking ship if every one deserted it? and how was it possible to keep on the work of the Boys' School if its friends refused to lend a hand? To desert the Institution just now would be most cowardly and un-English like—it was equivalent to kicking a man when he was down; he was sure there were none around him who would be guilty of such behaviour. It did them all good at times to take a little medicine, and no doubt the Boys' School would soon be all the better for the dose just administered. Each of the Charities was well deserving of their sympathy and encouragement, and he hoped the brethren of Suffolk would always be to the front in supporting them. Bro. Hedges replied. His presence there that day was to repay the debt of gratitude owing from the Institution of which he was Secretary; to say in person how much they appreciated, and how much they were indebted to the brethren of Suffolk for the help they had rendered at the last Festival of the Girls' School. All associated with the Institution were grateful to the Provincial Grand Master of Suffolk for his promise to take the chair at the Festival, and all sympathised with him that he was unable to fulfil the duties of that office. Bro. Martyn was deeply loved throughout the Craft, and most kindly acted as Deputy, in the absence of his chief. The London brethren claimed him equally with the Suffolk Masons, and were equally pleased at the success which attended his efforts. The £1052 contributed by Suffolk to the three Institutions did not represent all the good the Province had done this year, for its brethren had not omitted any chance of lending a helping hand wherever it was required. The money sent to London represented the steady work of a steady hard working Province, and the three Institutions were heartily thankful for it. Bro. Martyn now proposed the health of Bro. Tracy, Provincial Grand Secretary, whom he described as a most hard working official, doing his duty most efficiently and thoroughly. He had no more pleasurable feeling than to know that one of the large meetings he took such care to organise had passed off well. He must be pleased with the result of that day's meeting, for all had turned out so satisfactorily. Bro. Tracy replied. He did not like the feeling of envy, but he could not help envying the ability of their chairman, who was able to say just the right thing at the right time, and in the kindest possible manner. Bro. Tracy made one or two suggestions as to the way the work of the several Lodges of the Province should be carried on, in all matters which concerned the Province as a whole. He did not complain, and felt all would understand him when he said the work of the district should be as equally divided as possible. If the officials of all the Lodges would do all that lay in their power in their respective centres, they would not have occasion to trouble him with so many communications. Much as he loved Freemasonry the work he was called upon to perform at times came very heavy, indeed it often occupied his entire spare time. While thanking the brethren for their kindness, he knew they would not mind his asking them to render as much help as lay in their power. The toast of the Worshipful Master and the brethren of the Apollo Lodge was next honoured. The Provincial Grand Lodge was greatly indebted to these brethren for the very kind reception they had given them that day. With the toast Bro. Martyn associated the name of Bro. Crane, who, he said, if not actually an Officer of the Provincial Lodge, was at least one of its pillars. He remembered how Bro. Crane had, years ago, come forward at a time when the Apollo Lodge was not in a very happy state, and had worked most efficiently and satisfactorily on its behalf, with the result that now the members had a Lodge they were proud of, and a reputation throughout the Province. Bro. Buckland the W.M. of the Lodge was the first to reply, thanking the brethren for their hearty approval of what had been done that day. The Lodge had made rapid progress of late, and was, he was pleased to say, in a most satisfactory condition. Bro. Crane followed. It had been his desire that the Apollo Lodge should receive the Provincial Lodge at its annual meeting, and he was gratified to know that the day's gathering had resulted satisfactorily. His association with the Apollo Lodge dated back to 1878, when he became a joining member. The night of his election he was appointed Junior Warden, and was elected Worshipful Master the next year. Then he became Secretary, a post he still had the honour to fill. He was indeed pleased, as a member of the Lodge, to know that the meeting that day had been a success, it had certainly succeeded far beyond their most sanguine expectations. Other toasts having been honoured, the meeting was shortly after brought to a conclusion.

FIDELITY LODGE, No. 555.

THE annual meeting was held at the Crown Hotel, Framlingham, on the 19th ult., when Bro. Wm. Balls was installed as W.M., the ceremony being impressively performed by Bro. J. B. Fraser. The W.M. invested his Officers, as under:—Bros. W. Purser S.W., Rev. C. A. Sinclair J.W., W. T. Brunger S.D., E. T. Drake J.D., T. R. Worthington I.G., W. Cocks Treasurer, Rev. J. Home Pilkington Chaplain, W. Vernon D.C., C. Goodwin Steward, J. Marjoram Tyler. The brethren voted to the retiring W.M. a life-vote in one of the Masonic Charities. In the evening the banquet was served in excellent style, in the Corn Hall, by Host Bro. W. Sewell. The usual Loyal and Fraternal toasts having been duly responded to, Bro. the Rev. J. Holme Pilkington in appropriate terms proposed the "Masonic Charities," coupling with it the name of Bro. S. G. Carley. During the past year the Lodge had been represented by Stewards at two of the Charity Festivals. A vote of money has also been made during the year towards a piece of work being done by Freemasons in connection with the restoration of Framlingham Church.

DOWNSHIRE LODGE, No. 594.

ON the 27th ult., at the Masonic Temple, Hope-street, Liverpool, Bro. Edward R. Latham was duly installed as Worshipful Master of this Lodge, this being the thirty-eighth annual meeting. There was a large attendance of members of the Lodge and visiting brethren. The presentation of Bro. Edmund R. Latham for installation was made by Bros. W. Evans and W. Blumsum, the installation being performed by Bro. William R. Roberts, to whom a cordial vote of thanks was subsequently given. The following Officers were then invested:—Bros. E. A. G. Dow I.P.M., D. Dunkel S.W., B. Allonby J.W., Isaac Turner Treasurer, John Phelan Secretary, W. Hudson Organist, J. Edwards S.D., A. C. Gunn J.D., P. Roose I.G., Ernest Smart S., Haydn P. Cowell S., Joseph Howley Bellingham S., E. Jeffriss S., John L. Houghton D.C., A. Pedersen P.M. C.R., and Thomas Malcolm Tyler. Before the business of the Lodge was concluded, the I.P.M., Bro. Dow, was presented with a costly jewel, in recognition of his services, and afterwards the newly-installed W.M., Bro. Edmund R. Latham, presented the Lodge with a beautiful silk banner, suitably inscribed. The members afterwards adjourned to the banqueting-room, where Bro. Casey had provided an excellent repast, to which ample justice was done. During the evening Bro. A. Pederson was the recipient of a handsome Treasurer's jewel, subscribed for by the brethren, in token of his services during the past five years. The usual Masonic toasts were given, and an excellent programme was performed by Bros. W. Sweetman, H. J. Nicholls, J. Thierry, Busfield, Humphries, Barry Stuart, Wylie, Doubleday, and Howley; Bros. H. Cowell and W. Hudson supplying the accompaniments.

ST. AUBYN LODGE, No. 954.

THE annual meeting of this Lodge was held, on the 25th ult., at the Ebrington Masonic Hall, Granby-street, Devonport, when Bro. R. O. Polwhele, Lieutenant R.N., was installed W.M. for the year ensuing by Bros. C. Watson, T. Goodall, J. Jolliffe, and J. R. Dugdale. The Board of Installed Masters being closed, the Officers appointed were Bros. H. Haynes I.P.M., H. Nicholls S.W., T. Launder J.W., J. T. Allingham Treasurer, Jas. Osborn Secretary, A. Willcocks S.D., R. Govier J.D., C. Coombes D.C., C. Newton Organist, W. J. Watson I.G., J. Ellis A.D.C., F. C. Huxham and H. Worth S. Stewards, T. Maynard, T. Ellis, J. Dewstone Junior Stewards, C. Farthing Assistant Organist, and W. Henderson Tyler. In the evening the annual banquet was held at Bro. Rontley's Farley Hotel, Plymouth, where, under the genial presidency of the W.M., a most enjoyable evening was spent. The visitors included Bros. C. Spence Bates P.M. 189, E. Poor P.M. 1136, H. W. Pengelly W.M. 1099, and R. Carter W.M. 202. A capital musical evening was provided. Those who assisted were Bros. W. R. Rawling W.M. 1071 (who was in good voice and deservedly encored), W. Lavers, F. T. W. Curtis, Williams, W. Bettridge, C. Newton, and J. Bassett.

FERMOR LODGE, No. 1313.

BROTHER the Rev. Joseph Ashby was, on the 27th ult., in the presence of a large assembly of members and visiting brethren, duly installed as W.M. of this Lodge, the headquarters of which are at Bank-buildings, Southport. The ceremony of installation was performed by Bro. G. F. Roberts, Treasurer of the Lodge. After his installation, according to ancient custom, the Worshipful Master proceeded to the investiture of his Officers, as follow:—Bros. T. E. Chambers I.P.M., R. Sharrock S.W., A. B. Megson J.W., J. G. Ripley S.D., F. Wood J.D., G. F. Roberts Treasurer, T. Whitehead Secretary, Rev. R. J. W. Latimer Chaplain, H. B. Gough I.G., J. G. Emmison S., S. Fane S., F. Gresswell S., C. E. Bryan P.M. Organist, and G. Reckliff Tyler. The installation ceremony and the ordinary business of the Lodge being concluded, the brethren partook of supper. In this Lodge, the custom is to have a picnic instead of the annual installation banquet. This picnic will take place on Thursday, 11th inst., when the brethren and their friends will proceed by train to Marple, whence they will proceed in vehicles to view the surrounding country and visit Lyme-Park and other places of interest in the district.

After the Audit Committee had been appointed, the Prov. Grand Chapter was closed.

Later on an excellent banquet was served, under the personal superintendence of Bro. Mells. After the loyal toasts, Col. Shadwell H. Clerke, replying for the Grand Officers said, the G. Superintendent had honoured the Grand Officers of England, and he begged, on their behalf, to say a few words. He assured the Companions that the G. Officers were highly honoured by holding their positions, and serving under the illustrious Prince whose great exertions and services in Masonry had been alluded to by the G. Superintendent. No matter in what Degree, H.R.H. evinced the same marvellous interest, and it was a wonder, considering the amount of extraneous work he had to perform, that he found the time he did for his Masonic duties. The Grand Officers were very fortunate in serving under so illustrious a chief. It was a pleasure to those present to witness the continued prosperity of the Prov. G. Chapter of Middlesex, and although he (Comp. Clerke) had not been in attendance for years, he felt great pleasure in being once again under the control of their dear old friend and most excellent Mason, Col. Sir Francis Burdett. So long—and let it be very long—as they had his genial sway, Masonry would be ungrateful if it did not carry on its work well, and progress, as it ought to do, under his auspices. Comp. Raymond H. Thrupp P.G. 2nd Principal, said he had next to propose what they in Middlesex considered a very important toast—it was the health of their Grand Superintendent. The G.S.E. had taken the bread out of his mouth by passing eulogiums upon Sir Francis Burdett, but any one who knew that distinguished Companion was ready to pay tribute to his good qualities as a Mason. He asked the Companions to greet the Grand Superintendent with that hearty welcome he always received in the Province; he had ruled over them for a number of years with the utmost kindness and success, and had done much to promote R.A. Masonry in Middlesex. Sir Francis Burdett, Bart., in reply, said he could not express his gratitude for the manner, not only in which the Companions had received the kind proposition of the Prov. G.H., but also for the manner in which that Companion had spoken of him. The promotion of Royal Arch Masonry in Middlesex had been at his heart, but he could not have done what he had but for Comp. Thrupp and the rest of the Prov. Grand Officers. He was grateful to them for many obligations. It was pleasing to find that the Officers of Grand Chapter visited them occasionally, and were kind enough to flatter them. It had taken a considerable time to make the Province what it is, and he trusted it would not only further progress, but that they would make it as prosperous and as good in working as any under the ruling of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. In speaking to the toast of the Visitors, Sir Francis said he would couple the name of Comp. Philbrick, who, though arriving late, had paid them a high compliment in showing he had not forgotten their Provincial Grand Chapter. Comp. F. A. Philbrick, Q.C., Grand Supt. Essex, in response, said, there was an old adage that the end of a feast was better than the beginning of a fray, and there was a deal of wisdom in it. He believed it was not on record for a Mason to respond for this toast before he had had his soup. On the present occasion he ventured on the unknown ground of endeavouring to express his thanks for the kind and hospitable welcome extended to the strangers, and for what he was about to receive he felt truly thankful. He hoped his dear old friend, the Grand Superintendent, would not think he had not been desirous of paying a proper respect to him and the Province; he had arranged to accompany the Grand Scribe E., but when he told them he had been detained at Freemasons' Hall with business connected with the Boys' School, he thought he should be pardoned. He was glad to see Royal Arch Masonry flourishing in the Province of Middlesex. As the Lodges, so the Chapters, for the Chapter was the quintessence of the Lodge, and drew the working brethren and put the copestone on the work of the Craft. He was glad to see their Grand Superintendent in the full enjoyment of health, and to know the Province was prospering under his beneficent sway. He (Comp. Philbrick) had something to do with Royal Arch Masonry in an adjacent Province, and speaking in the name of that Province he assured them they had a hearty and sincere regard to see the work thoroughly carried out. He wished to offer their best wishes and to express their congratulations on the state of this Province. For the kind and hearty welcome extended to the visitors, he feelingly tendered sincere and grateful thanks. The proceedings shortly afterwards were brought to a conclusion.

GUNDULPH CHAPTER, No. 1050.

THE annual festival was held on Friday, the 21st ultimo, at the King's Head Hotel, Rochester, Comps. T. Watson Z., V. Brown H., and F. Horman J., were duly installed in the principal chairs by Comp. T. S. Warne. Other appointments were afterwards made, as follows :—Comps. W. Watson S.E., F. Nicholls N., J. W. Nash P.S., E. Burrell and S. Brice A.S. The usual banquet subsequently took place, at the King's Hotel.

DUNDAS CHAPTER, No. 1255.

THE annual meeting was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Princess-square, Plymouth, to instal Comps. Geo. Lee as Z., G. Diner as H., and S. J. Daniel as J., the principals for the ensuing year. The installing officers were Comps. J. R. Lord P.Z. 70, W. Allsford P.Z. 202, and Pillar. The other Officers invested were Comps. W. L. Lavers P.S., W. Wallis 1st Asst. S., W. S. Warren 2nd Asst., J. Hammond S.E., S. J. Hearle Treasurer, W. H. Phillips Janitor. At the close of the Chapter the companions adjourned to the refectory in the building, where an excellent supper was laid by Comp. Harvey.

DORSET MASONIC CHARITY.

THE ninth annual meeting of the General Committee was held at the Lodge Room, Wimborne, on Thursday, the 4th inst., Bro. W. D. Dugdale P.P.G.J.W., the Chairman of the Charity, being supported by Bros. Montague J. Guest P.G.M., R. Case P.G. Secretary Treasurer, S. R. Baskett P.P.G.R. Hon. Sec., W. Mortimer Heath P.G. Chaplain of England, L. H. Ruegg P.P.G.S.W., G. J. G. Gregory P.P.G.S.W., J. W. Luff P.P.G.S.W., J. Whitehead Smith P.P.G.J.W., C. H. W. Parkinson P.P.G.J.W., W. W. Stickland P.P.G.J.D., C. G. Targett P.P.G.J.D., T. Giles P.P.G. Supt. Works, J. A. Atkins P.P.G. Supt. Works, A. C. Todd P.P.G. Supt. Works, J. S. Stroud I.P.M. 417, C. J. Woodford W.M. 137, J. Harold W.M. 622, E. Mills W.M. 1037, and Bro A. Taylor J.W. 1146. Only three Lodges in the Province were unrepresented. The half yearly meeting of the Relief and Assistance Sub-Committee, consisting of one member from each Lodge, was first held, and investigated the Petitions for Relief, 5 in number. At the meeting of the General Committee several letters and telegrams, apologising for unavoidable absence, were read from various brethren, including Bro. Z. Milledge P.G.D.C. the Vice Chairman, Bro. C. J. Hambro P.D.P.G.M., and other distinguished brethren. On the recommendation of the Relief and Assistance Sub-Committee grants, varying in amount, were made to six Petitioners, amounting together to £85. The Draft Report to Provincial Grand Lodge was then considered, and showed a most satisfactory progress had been made, and it was ordered to be printed for distribution at the next Provincial Grand Lodge, viz., at Wareham, on the 26th September. Some slight alteration in the Bye Laws having been proposed and carried, it was arranged that the Midwinter meeting should be held at Dorchester, and the meeting closed with the usual vote of thanks to the Chairman, on the proposition of the P.G.M. On the invitation of Bro. J. Harold, the W.M. of the Wimborne Lodge, who had thoughtfully remembered that many of the brethren had come a long distance, the Committee then adjourned to a substantial cold collation, at his expense, under the presidency of the P.G.M.

INTER-MASONIC VOLUNTEER RIFLE MATCH.

ON Thursday, 20th ult., the annual match between the Masonic Lodges attached to several of the Metropolitan Volunteer Rifle Corps was held at the ranges at Caterham, in very fine weather, and resulted in a victory for the Queen's Westminster, with 610 points, made at the usual distances of 200, 500, and 600 yards, seven shots at each range. The London Rifle Brigade team was second with 571, and the South Middlesex third with 569.

MARK MASONRY.

—:o:—

PROV. G. LODGE OF LEICESTERSHIRE NORTHAMPTONSHIRE, DERBYSHIRE, AND RUTLAND.

A GATHERING of peculiar interest took place in Derby, on Monday afternoon, the 8th inst., under the auspices of the Derby Lodge, No. 302. His Worship the Mayor of Derby, Bro. Abraham Woodiwiss, J.P., who has for a considerable number of years taken an exceedingly active part in the affairs of various branches of the ancient Fraternity, was installed as Worshipful Mark Master in the presence of a numerous and influential assemblage. Two years ago Bro. Woodiwiss occupied the chair of that large and prosperous Craft Lodge, the Aboretum, No. 731, and towards the close of last year was appointed by Lord Hartington, P.G.M. of Derbyshire, as Senior Grand Warden of the Province. On Monday the P.G. Mark Master Mason Bro. Wm. Kelly, F.S.A., took occasion to hold a Provincial G. Lodge, under the banner of the Derby Lodge, and during the day conferred upon Bro. Woodiwiss the rank of Provincial Grand Senior Warden. Thus it happens that the Mayor, during his tenure of civic office, has been made the recipient of almost the highest honours the P.G. Masters in the Craft and Mark degrees have it in their power to bestow. The business of the Derby Lodge was commenced at half-past three o'clock, and Bro. Woodiwiss was installed by his immediate predecessor, Bro. Cawthorne Webster, who discharged that important duty with excellent taste and judgment. Subsequently the new Master appointed and invested his Officers in the following order:—Bros. C. Webster I.P.M., R. M. Homer Mole P.G. Standard Bearer S.W., J. Walker J.W., W. J. Piper M.O., W. B. Woodforde S.O., S. Taylor J.O., Rev. T. Orrell Chaplain, J. O. Manton P.P.G.S.O. Treasurer, T. Oldham Registrar of Marks, C. D. Hart Secretary, J. P. Fearfield S.D., T. E. Yeomans J.D., E. Horne Organist, E. J. H. Hoskyns D. of C., W. H. Wheeldon I.G., and W. Stone Tyler.

At half-past four o'clock, the brethren received the Provincial Grand Master and his Officers, past and present, as well as a number of distinguished visitors; and the business of the Provincial Grand Lodge was proceeded with. Bro. Kelly, who, despite his great age, appeared strong and hearty, was supported by the Deputy D.G.M. Bro. Thomas Cox, and many other brethren. The roll of Lodges was called over, and every Lodge in the united Province was found to be represented. The usual reports from the Worshipful Masters, the Committee of General Purposes, the Registrar, and the Treasurer were submitted, and were, on the whole, considered favourable. In each instance the future was hopefully spoken of. The Provincial Grand Master then proceeded to invest his Officers for the ensuing year, as under:—

Bro. Thos. Cox	...	Deputy Master
Abraham Woodiwiss	...	Senior Warden
J. H. Thompson	...	Junior Warden
Brook Sampson	...	M.O.
J. C. Webb	...	S.O.
F. S. Preston	...	J.O.
Rev. S. W. Wigg	...	Chaplains
Rev. Thos. Orrell	...
S. Cleaver	...	Treasurer
S. A. Marris	...	Registrar
Miles J. Walker	...	Secretary
J. E. Whitehead	...	Senior Deacon
John Fletcher	...	Junior Deacon
R. Michie	...	Inspector of Works
J. Harrison	...	Director of Ceremonies
W. Prince	...	Assist. Dir. of Ceremonies
A. Oram...	...	Sword Bearer.
R. L. H. Mole	...	Standard Bearer
Isidore de Solla	...	Organist
W. J. Curtis	...	Inner Guard
J. B. Waring	...	Stewards
W. Frost	...
Hon. C. W. Trollope	...
Derrick ...	...	Tylers
W. Stone	...

The Provincial Grand Master then delivered a brief but interesting address to the brethren, favourably reviewing the work of the past year, and intimating that, as a consequence of the expiration of his patent as Provincial Grand Master (an office he had been privileged to hold for the long period of thirty-one years), it would be necessary to nominate a brother to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales for appointment to the post for the ensuing year. Thereupon Brother Thomas Cox moved that their able and deeply respected friend, Brother William Kelly be once more nominated. The proposal was seconded, and carried with enthusiasm. Brother Kelly briefly acknowledged the compliment, assuring the brethren of his determination to discharge the arduous duties of the office as well as his advancing years would allow him. The Provincial Grand Lodge soon afterwards retired, leaving the Derby Lodge to bring the business of the day to a conclusion. Subsequently upwards of eighty of the brethren partook of a sumptuous repast, provided and admirably served by Brother Thomas Day. The Worshipful Master, who presided, dispensed his hospitality with his accustomed geniality, and an evening of great enjoyment was spent by all. The health of the Provincial Grand Master and of Brother Woodiwiss was honoured with the utmost cordiality, and wishes for the prosperity of the Derby Lodge were earnestly expressed by many speakers. The musical arrangements, which were under the direction of Brother W. L. Dodd, were exceedingly satisfactory. Nor should we omit to make mention of the valuable services rendered by Brother Percy Wallis, both in the Lodge and in the banqueting hall, in the capacity of Director of Ceremonies. Altogether the occasion will rank as a red-letter day in the history of Mark Masonry in Derby.

According to the Liverpool Daily Courier:—

A new secret order, the Chevaliers of Pythias, have established a Lodge in Liverpool. The headquarters of this new society, which in its broad features appears to resemble the Masonic, Oddfellow, and similar orders, are in Massachusetts, but the organisation, though only in its infancy, has already expanded beyond the small bounds of America. The Lodge initiated in this city on Monday is the third established in the United Kingdom, the others being at London and Aberdeen, and there is also one at Paris. the new society being, before everything else, a secret order, it is not possible to penetrate to its inmost purpose. It avowedly exists, however, as an "international" organisation, and its promulgators announce that it "will soon be introduced into every country in Christendom." The order is described as "a secret, beneficial fraternal, Christian, and semi-military organisation," the objects of which are the promotion among men of the true principles of benevolence and charity, the relief of its members in sickness and distress, the payment of a stipulated sum upon the death of a member, and care and protection of the widow and orphan, and the cultivation of fraternal relations among mankind. The eccentric designation of the society is explained by the fact that the history of Damon and Pythias furnishes the main subject for the "Drama of the ritual in this Pythian and chivalric brotherhood." The story, in brief, is this. Pythias having been condemned to death by the tyrant Dionysius I., obtained leave of absence to go home and settle his affairs, and his friend Damon pledged himself to endure the punishment in his stead if he did not return at the appointed time. Pythias, however, was punctual, and the king, pleased by such a rare proof of friendship, pardoned him, and begged to be admitted into their friendship. The story, is of course, efficiently suggestive of the lines upon which the ritual of a friendly society might be based, although if the two ancient friends had not been dead for considerably over two thousand years it might be worth while to discuss which of the pair was more worthy to be adopted as the corner-stone of the brotherhood. Damon had such a love for Pythias and so strong a confidence in his pledged word that he staked his life on it; Pythias redeemed his pledge at the right moment. Truly there is not much room to prefer the heroism of one to that of the other, though as Demon took the initiative he seems to have had a slight start of Pythias in the matter. The name of the latter has probably been preferred by the Chevaliers for purely euphonic reasons. The "Chevaliers of Damon" might become distorted into a less elegant classic. There is nothing in the story which suggests amusement, nevertheless it is mentioned as one of the peculiar advantages of the Pythian order that the fraternal benefits common to other societies of the same kind are supplemented by "the genuine amusement and instruction furnished by the exemplification of our ritualistic work, which has never been equalled by any other society." Membership also confers "the advantages of a thorough military drill," and the Lodges are compelled to pay weekly benefits in case of sickness, as well as a funeral benefit. The organisation is apparently based on a very solid foundation of real fraternity, despite its superficial whimsicality.

The Home Secretary, on the recommendation of the Commissioner of Police for the Metropolis, has raised Superintendent Fisher, of the A Division, to the rank of Chief Superintendent, in recognition of his services in connection with the visit of the Shah to London. Brother Fisher is a P.M. of Lodges 834 and 1823; Senior Deacon 1512 and 2090. In the Royal Arch he fills the office of J. in 834, and P.S. in 1423; while in the Mark he is P.M. and Treasurer of 181, and P.P.G. Supt. of Works Middlesex and Surrey. We most heartily congratulate Bro. Fisher on his well deserved promotion.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—It is with the greatest reluctance that I break the silence I have hitherto so strictly observed during the unfortunate dissensions which have latterly arisen in connection with the government of this Institution. I had even resolved on passing by with the contempt it merits the malicious charge made against me at the Special Court on 6th June—a charge which disgraces him who made it, not me against whom it was made. But, in deference to opinions expressed by many old and valued friends, in whose judgment I have implicit faith, and who tell me their defence of my interests is greatly weakened by the absence of any contradiction by me of this baseless charge, I now offer the following explanation of a proceeding which, with a desire to damage my fair fame as much as possible, my accuser at the Court referred to has magnified into a case of forgery.

Every Governor is, or ought to be, aware that the Audit Committee was appointed to meet quarterly, to examine the receipts and expenditure for the past quarter, taking particular care to ascertain that the bills and accounts had been properly certified by the House Committee before they recommended them for payment; that the vouchers and cheques for the payments ordered by the General Committee agreed with one another; that all receipts and payments are correctly entered and registered by the Secretary, and all balances regularly brought forward. The report of their proceedings at each quarterly meeting is signed by the Auditors present in the cash book and laid before—and read to—the General Committee, and when adopted and approved by the latter body is regularly entered on the minutes. From the four quarterly reports thus submitted and approved is compiled the annual statement of receipts and expenditure, the various items under each head of service—wherever a head of service occurs in more than one quarterly report—being added together, and the names of the auditors who attended the several quarterly meetings appended in verification of its correctness. A transcript of this annual statement is then made for the use of the printer, and it was to this transcript that I appended the names of the auditors who had already certified to the correctness of the quarterly reports from which it was compiled, and to the MS. annual compilation in the cash book itself. In doing this I believe I am correct in stating that I did nothing more than is ordinarily done by Secretaries of other corporate bodies; but I am quite willing to concede that in following this course I may have laid myself open to a charge from those to whom an opportunity for censure is matter for congratulation.

This is the plain, straightforward explanation of a proceeding of mine which, as I have said, has been maliciously enlarged into an accusation of forgery; and I leave it to the impartial judgment of your readers to determine whether my act as described is not as far removed from "forgery" as the disgraceful conduct of my accuser is from that enjoined on him by the principles of Masonry.

It has been suggested that I should take legal proceedings against the slanderous author of this libel, but, apart from the months of anxiety which the progress of a lawsuit entails—to a far greater extent on a righteous plaintiff than on an unrighteous defendant—and the not encouraging experiences of recent legal proceedings, I prefer leaving the reputation for honour and integrity, which I have held during the whole of my past career, and which until now has never been defamed, to vindicate itself, as it will do before many months have passed, from this and similar foul aspersions. There is, however, one circumstance which I consider it right to mention. It is generally accepted that the present turmoil had, at least, its origin in the case of a boy who, by repeated acts of misconduct, culminating in quitting the school premises without leave, incurred the penalty of expulsion. The extreme sentence, however, was modified, at my intercession, the full penalty not having been exacted. For the consequences of this intercession I had to submit to the adverse opinion of the House Committee, while—in a wilfully blind perversion of the course I had recommended—the boy's relatives, friends, and partizans have pursued me with unrelenting, vindictive hostility. In this particular instance, however, I must say that I much prefer the hostility of a faction which, with a vivid recollection of the violent conduct of its members, the amenities of social life forbid me from describing in plain terms, to their favour.

Perhaps, also, it would be well I should take this opportunity—for I have no intention of allowing myself to be drawn into unseemly protracted discussion—of explaining that my so-called claim to co-ordinate authority with the House Committee was not supported by the plea that I was a "permanent official." This term was never used by me. All I intended to convey was, that I was directly amenable to the general body by whom I was appointed, with duties to discharge in connection with the Sub-Committees, whose instructions I was bound to obey, and to whose resolutions it was binding upon me to give effect. Neglect in these particulars would justify a report to the General Committee, who had the power of dealing with such report as they might think fit. In fact, I did no more—intended no more—than to state that I regarded the appointment as one for retention "dum me bene gesserim." This was the very expression I used before the Committee of Inquiry, and is very different from a claim to be recognised as a "permanent official." I cannot at greater length trespass upon your space, however imperfectly I may have discharged a duty, as I have said, reluctantly undertaken.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

10th July 1889. FREDERICK BINCKES.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Bro. Greatbatch asserts that I am wrong in my contention on one point, "vermin," because he says he proved a case or two others, "chilblains and ringworm." This is a charming "non sequitur."

His calculations are equally peculiar.

Did Bro. Greatbatch ever hear of wear and tear, and depreciation of plant and machinery?

A great part of the machinery upon which the £4978 was laid out during the 21 years, and more, of the existence of the Institution became worn out and was replaced by other machinery, included in this same sum total. No allowance is made by him for this. It would be far more fair to take the number of the boys who have gone through the Institution during that time, and divide this capital expenditure by that. He would find that it did not average £2 a head, much less £15.

I fear that he will find that, with increased heating, the amount of expenditure will rise over the present £412 17*s*.

The West Yorkshire report was rejected at a Quarterly Court, by a majority, in the proportion of about 20 to 1.

As the whole question at issue will probably before long come before a Court of Law,—if any one can be found foolish enough to stand by the Report of the Inquiry Committee,—I do not propose to continue this discussion any further.

Yours sincerely and faithfully,

9th July 1889. A. F. GODSON.

The York Herald states that Mrs. Cutt, of Belfort House, Harrowgate, has, in loving memory of her husband, qualified as a patroness of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, Battersea Rise, and contributed a donation of one hundred guineas to that Charity.

The following is a copy of a circular which Bro. Ralling Prov. Grand Secretary has sent to the Worshipful Masters of the several Lodges in the Province of Essex:—

WINNOCK LODGE, COLCHESTER,
9th July 1889.

WORSHIPFUL SIR AND BROTHER,—I beg to notify, for the information of yourself and the members of your Lodge, that the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master has fixed Tuesday, 6th August 1889, for the annual meeting of Provincial Grand Lodge, which, as you will recollect, is to take place at his Lordship's picturesque seat of Easton Lodge, near Dunmow.

The day's proceedings will include the usual business meeting, followed by a banquet, and in the evening there will be a garden party in the private grounds.

A detailed circular for distribution amongst the members of your Lodge will be sent as soon as possible.

I am, Worshipful Sir and Brother,

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

THOS. J. RALLING, Prov. G. Sec.

A writer in the Glasgow Evening News says:—

The keynote of alarm has been sounded in Masonic circles, but there is nothing really to scare. "He that entereth not by the door" has little to gain, and much to lose that he would have gained had he not "climbed up some other way." The cause of alarm dates from the assumption of a body at Melrose, some fifteen years ago, to grant charters for conferring degrees, which, however perfect, were for practical purposes nil. At that time those who became acquainted with the Order in this way soon found their mistake, and were glad to pay for their error and become associated with the Grand Lodge of Scotland. The same kind of spurious Lodges have kept cropping up from time to time, and the result has always been the same. Thus the chief harm done is to those who are being initiated, and it is my intention, in giving publicity to the system, to warn the unwary from becoming identified with an association which does not possess a power which one ignorant of the facts might suppose.

REVIEWS.

All Books intended for Review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, Belvidere Works, Hermes Hill, Pentonville, London, N.

—:o:—

"The Engraved List of Regular Lodges for A.D. 1734." In Facsimile. With an introduction and explanatory notes by WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN, Past Senior G. Deacon of England; Past S.G. Warden of Iowa, &c.; P. Prov. S.G.W., and P. Prov. G. Sec. of Cornwall, &c. &c. &c. London: George Kenning, 16 Great Queen Street, W.C. 1889.

WE have examined this last production of Bro. Hughan with great interest. In all he undertakes Bro. Hughan's work displays a heartiness and love for what he is engaged upon that is sure to have practical and beneficial results. In his introductory remarks our zealous brother says:—"Until quite recently scarcely any attention was paid to Registers or Lists of Lodges, whether printed or engraved, but since my sketches and reproductions of several of these curious and important souvenirs of the eventful past, a more satisfactory state of things is apparent." Personally, we fully endorse this statement; moreover, we may add, that we are in a position to "place" with collectors copies of any old works or records that can give reliable evidence as to the antecedents of any of the old Lodges on the roll of English Freemasonry. Indeed, the interest in these old records is increasing to such an extent that we may confidently anticipate many reproductions will be undertaken at an early date. Where the work is carried through in the perfect way in which the re-issue now under notice has been done, we are inclined to think the labour will not be unremunerative; still, we must bear in mind that the task is one that must not be undertaken by the novice; he who enters upon such a function, must bring to bear a vast amount of acumen and power of research. These qualities Bro. Hughan unquestionably possesses, and all who examine his latest effort, will give him credit for what he has achieved. We are proud to know the limited supply of copies issued has already been nearly disposed of, and look forward to an early date when the work will be at a premium on the price it was originally offered at.

"The Little Chatelaine." By the Earl of Desart. London: Swan Sonnenschein and Co., Paternoster Square.

WE have thoroughly enjoyed our perusal of this work, one of the objects of which is to portray some of the evil effects of that curse of modern society—betting and gambling on the turf. Lord Desart takes us to the upper ranks of turf life—to the owners as well as the backers of race horses, and introduces us to some of the villainies peculiar to this section of the community. One of the characters, who risks his own and his two children's fortunes to support his mania, meets with a violent death while riding in a steeplechase. His demise, however, enables the author to show his readers the many good qualities of a Captain Carruthers, who, as guardian of the two orphaned children, is truly mindful of their welfare, and thoroughly devotes himself to their interests. He ultimately wins the elder as his bride, and all ends happily, after the complete discomfiture of those whose scheming and plotting have caused no small amount of trouble to the leading characters. The interest in the story is well maintained, the characters faithfully portrayed, and altogether an interesting work is presented.

Subscriptions are invited for the production of a new art work,—"The Celebrated Book of Nicholas Flamel, 1625,"—illustrated with the whole of the exquisitely beautiful plates, on Indian paper, including those in the Book of "Abraham, the Jew." Our learned Brother Dr. W. W. Westcott has undertaken to write the Preface. One hundred copies only to be printed; small 4to; price 7s 6d to immediate subscribers, who should address Robt H. Fryar, Fellow of the Society of Science, Letters, and Art, 8 Northumberland Place, Bath.

Mr. T. Beecham, the well known proprietor of Beecham's Pills, emboldened by the success attained by the Annual he published last Christmas, has just issued "The Beecham Illustrated Holiday Number," which is one of the most extraordinary penny-worths we have yet seen. Comprised in one hundred pages we find twelve complete tales, by such well known authors as James Payne, G. R. Sims, Hawley Smart, James Greenwood, Sir Gilbert Campbell, Bart., Geo. Manville Fenn, Philip May, Howard Paul, &c., &c., each story having been written expressly for this work. Three months free insurance is also guaranteed to the purchaser of every copy. The book is well printed and in clear type, and is just what a holiday number should be. It is published by Messrs F. J. Lambert and Co, 18 Bouverie Street, E.C.

The members of the Masonic Club, Stockton, with their lady friends, had their annual picnic, on the 28th ult. The party numbered upwards of sixty, and selected charming Cotherstone for their outing.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Female Complaints.—On the mothers of England devolves much and serious responsibility in securing for their daughters robust health; frequently, alas! thoughtlessly sacrificed by culpable bashfulness at a particular period of life, when all important changes take place in the female constitution, upon the management of which depends future happiness or misery. Holloway's Pills, especially if aided with the Ointment, have the happiest effect in establishing those functions, upon the due performance of which health and even life itself depend. Mother and daughter may safely use these powerful deobstruent remedies without consulting any one. Universally adopted as the one grand remedy for female complaints these Pills never fail, never weaken the system, and always bring about the desired result.

HOLIDAY HAUNTS.

POETS have sung the praises of new friends, and have recounted the veneration for old ones, but even without them it is no very difficult matter to soon learn to love the face of fresh companions, although next to impossible to show towards them the same feelings we entertain for the "dear, dear friends of old." This is as true of places as it is of persons, and however much we may travel, and however much we may enjoy the beauties of nature or the work of man, met with on every side, there always remains a feeling of veneration for home, or for those spots which, associated with our childhood or some special event in our lives, have become particularly dear. Great Yarmouth and the surrounding neighbourhood has such associations for us, and despite the many attractions we have met with in other parts, there seem to be special features which attract us to the old town, and fond memories which render a visit there more enjoyable than is usually the case when making a sojourn in other of the "Holiday Haunts" of the kingdom. But the Yarmouth of to-day is not the same as we knew it twenty odd years ago. Time has worked many changes, and yet nearly everything seems familiar. The town has grown, and has certainly improved, but above all this—from the holiday seeker's point of view—is to be noticed the many additional means of enjoyment that have been provided for the visitor.

Leaving the great metropolis by the Liverpool Street Terminus of the Great Eastern Railway Company an improvement soon makes itself apparent in the ease and comfort of travelling. The summer service of trains, now in full force, brings us through in 3¼ hours, a time we expect will soon be further shortened, inasmuch as the return journey is completed in 3 hours and 5 minutes, and what is possible in one direction will not long remain unattempted in the opposite. This great acceleration, as compared with years gone by, is of the greatest benefit to Yarmouth and the surrounding country, as it relieves the journey of a great drawback, which previously affected the number of visitors, so many regarding an extra hour or two in a railway carriage as an insurmountable objection, and as a consequence selected spots within easier distance of home. But not only has time been economised, other and equally pleasant improvements have been made, notably in the accommodation provided, which is now of the very best description, and renders the journey as comfortable as is possible.

Having reached the end of our journey we find the fine old town has grown, and is still growing; new houses have been erected wherever there was room, while the builder is now at work in many quarters, extending the accommodation which, though apparently ample for all requirements, is frequently put to the severest test during the height of the Yarmouth season. We do not know what the enthusiastic preserver of London open spaces would say to the inroads of brick and mortar in this East Coast Holiday Resort, but there is ample compensation for this modern evil in the grand expanse of sandy beach which is to be found within five minutes walk of the centre of the town, and which can never be utilised for the permanent abode of the "rapacious landlord" or the "struggling tenant." Yarmouth Beach is as grand an institution as ever it was, and well deserves the reputation it enjoys as the happy hunting ground of the growing generation. But its attractions are not limited to the young alone, every amusement which can be provided for their elders is to be found here, while above all are the beauties provided by nature, which in themselves render it one of the most enjoyable "Holiday Haunts" of the present day.

Being of a roving disposition and withal a lover of fishing, we were not long in Yarmouth without making inquiry as to our old haunts—the Broads and rivers of the district, where we have enjoyed many a day's fishing and boating, and where we again hope to spend many happy hours. Here it was we found one of the greatest improvements which time has wrought. In days gone by the full enjoyment of these particular sports was somewhat restricted. It was not every visitor who could charter a yacht, and start on a circular tour up the river and around the Broads of the District, accordingly many had to content themselves with a journey by road or rail, and as much enjoyment as they could secure in a small boat when they reached the spot they started for. Now we find a number of cheap, circular trips, by Rail and Saloon Steam Boats, have been arranged by the Great Eastern Company, who give the Visitor the full benefit of their district main lines and branches, added to the enjoyment of river travel. Next week we intend to say something further of these circular trips, which are very inexpensive, thoroughly enjoyable, and among the healthiest it is possible to meet with anywhere. Until then we can but advise our readers to follow our example, and take a trip to the fine old East Coast watering place of Great Yarmouth.

The gathering of Freemasons of the Province of Berks and Bucks, at Reading, on Thursday, was a very successful one. In the absence, through illness, of the R.W. the Provincial Grand Master Sir Daniel Gooch, Bart., the meeting was presided over by the Deputy Prov. G. Master, V.W. the Rev. Studholme J. Brownrigg P.G.C. We shall give a detailed report of the proceedings in our next issue.

The Ramsey brethren are doubtful about having their magnificent Hall ready for occupation in the early days of August, as they hoped, but the opening will take place at the earliest possible moment. It is expected that the Provincial Grand Officers will attend the inauguration ceremony, and no doubt the occasion will be marked by a large attendance of brethren.

NOTES FROM AN OLD FREEMASON PUBLICATION.

I CAME across a publication in book form the other day (writes a correspondent of the Glasgow Evening News) of the year 1809, written in a very quaint style, and purporting to be an "authentic key to the door of Freemasonry." The writer is what is known in Masonic circles as a "Cowan," but the work itself is entirely flattering to the Order. Although an eavesdropper, his finding on what he saw and heard is:—"I am inclined to think that the chief design of the establishment is to rectify the heart, inform the mind, and promote the moral and social virtues of humanity, decency, and good order, as much as possible in the world." Among other items of interest in the book I find that St. Alban formed the first Grand Lodge in Britain in A.D. 287. In 926 Prince Edwin formed a Grand Lodge at York, and though through a long vista of years there is little recorded of the Order, it seems to have been growing in power, for in 1425 Masons' assemblies were prohibited by Parliament. Twenty-five years later Henry VI. was initiated into Masonry, and in 1690 the secret of the Order was revealed to William III. privately. The Freemasons inaugurated the building of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, in 1657, and completed it in 1733. The office of Grand Secretary for England was first established in 1723, and the following year a Grand Treasurer was appointed. It was in the two succeeding years that a "general fund for distressed Masons" was proposed, and a "Committee of Charity" appointed, who founded a system which has grown till now it has assumed proportions of great magnitude. Indeed, so firm a hold has it obtained, that at a meeting held recently in London, over £50,000 was subscribed by those present for Masonic charitable purposes. The plans for a Freemasons' Hall, in London, were approved by Grand Lodge of England in 1769, but it is not till four years later that any definite steps seem to have been taken. A Hall Committee was appointed in 1773, and the year following a site for this building was purchased. The first stone of this building was laid in 1775, and the same year five thousand pounds towards the building of the hall was raised by means of a tontine. The hall was dedicated in 1776, and the following year the anniversary of the dedication was ordered to be kept. It was not always merry with the Masons, however. It is recorded that in 1757 fourteen persons were expelled the Order for irregularities, and that in 1762 several others shared the same fate. In 1777 several Masons had to submit to the indignity of imprisonment at Naples, but on what pretence it does not appear. His Royal Highness the Duke of Cumberland was elected Grand Master in 1782, and during his tenure of office (1788) the Royal Cumberland Freemason School was instituted. At his death, in 1790, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, initiated in 1787, was elected to the vacancy. It is worthy of note that at the date on which the book was published (1809) H.R.H. George Augustus Frederick the then Prince of Wales filled the office of Grand Master of England, a position which is held in this year of grace, 1889, by Albert Edward Prince of Wales.

AN AMERICAN MASONIC DISPUTE.

A telegram from Scranton, Pa., says: Considerable excitement prevails in Masonic circles here over the condemnation, by the Grand Master M'Calla, of a Lodge belonging to the Cerneau rite of Scottish Masonry. The introduction of the Cerneau rite into this region was regarded by the ancient northern jurisdiction as a sort of Masonic schism. It is alleged against the new rite that it confers degrees easily, unworthily, and cheaply, and sometimes sold its honours for solid cash. As a result, men of no merit were found displaying evidences of Masonic dignity to which they were not entitled. These and other offences moved the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania to declare the Cerneau rite clandestine.

The monthly meeting of the Committee of Management of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution was held at Freemasons' Hall, on Wednesday, under the presidency of Bro. J. A. Farnfield P.A.G.D.C., Treasurer of the Institution. There were also present Bros. Cotter, Hubbert, Bolton, Perryman, Garrod, Mercer, Purchas, Dr. Jabez Hogg, Perceval, West, C. A. Cottebrune, Kompton, Forsyth, Making, Cox, Newton, Hill, Haslip, Brooks, Lacey, Tattershall, Mead, Smith, Brett and James Terry (Secretary). The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and verified, the Secretary reported the death of three annuitants (one male and two widows). The Warden's report for the past month was read. A vote of thanks was unanimously passed to the House Committee of the Boys' School for their kindness in granting permission to the School Band to attend on the occasion of the Stewards' visit to the Institution. The report of the Finance Committee was read, adopted, and ordered to be entered on the minutes. The recommendation as to the appointment of an Accountant was agreed to, and also that he be requested to examine the books of the Institution and report thereon. Bro. J. S. Cumberland gave notice of a motion for the next meeting, and the proceedings then concluded with the usual vote of thanks to the Chairman.

THE THEATRES, &c.

—:o:—

Adelphi.—The revival of Dion Boucicault's Irish drama "The Shaughraun" is certainly a happy choice; for these Irish revivals have proved attractive on previous occasions, and, judging from appearances, are likely to do so now. "The Shaughraun" is a capital piece, full of interesting and exciting situations, while the comedy parts are admirably conceived. The scenery has been painted by Bruce Smith, and it does this gentleman credit. The company that Messrs. Gatti have selected is one that can do ample justice to the play. Mr. William Terriss and Miss Millward are in the caste, and enact the parts of Captain Molineaux and Claire Ffolliott respectively. Needless to say these popular artistes do their work splendidly, and score well with the audience. Mr. J. D. Beveridge is an ideal Corry Kinchela, and Mr. W. L. Abington a good Robert Ffolliott. Mr. J. L. Shine, as Conn, is the favourite with the audience, and what with the fun that has been provided in the book, and his own "gag," Mr. Shine is most amusing. Messrs. John Maclean, Robert Pateman, Mrs. John Carter, Miss Clifton, and Mrs. Brunton, all render good service. "The Shaughraun" is nightly received with favour, and we hope this will continue for some time to come.

Messrs. Groves and Bacon's matinée of "My Uncle" takes place at Terry's, on Tuesday, 16th inst.; and at the same theatre, on Wednesday afternoon, 24th inst., Miss Muriel Wylford will produce "The Catspaw," a new play, by John Treher.

"Sweet Lavender" will reach its 500th performance on Friday, 2nd August, when the following ladies and gentlemen will appear in it:—Messrs. Edward Terry, Alfred Bishop, Brandon Thomas, H. Dans, H. B. Smith, Sant Matthews, P. Miller; Mesdames M. A. Victor, Blanche Horlock, Annie Irish, and Carlotta Addison.

The oldest Lodge in the district of Dunedin, the Otago Lodge, E.C., passed a unanimous resolution on 1st May, "That it is desirable that a Grand Lodge for New Zealand be constituted," and appointed Bros. W. M. De Renzy, Dr. Fitchett, Barth, the Rev. Ronaldson, and M'Gregor as Delegates to the Convention in Wellington, during the next session of Parliament, to arrange the basis of the Union, proclaim a Grand Lodge, and elect the first Grand Master.

The annual excursion of the Freemasons of Paisley took place on Tuesday, under the most favourable auspices as regards weather. The brethren, to a large number, left Paisley early in the forenoon, and were conveyed by Brother Wm. Young, carriage hirer, by way of Glasgow, Milngavie, and Finnick Glen to Drymen. At the glen the party halted and spent a short time in viewing that beautiful spot. In the course of the day, Buchanan Castle and grounds, the residence of the Duke of Montrose, were, by permission of his Grace, visited. In the afternoon the party sat down to dinner in the Buchanan Arms Hotel. The return home was made in the evening by way of Balloch, Bonhill, and Bowling, and Paisley was reached at a reasonable hour, after a day of thorough enjoyment.

On Wednesday, 26th ult, Mr. H. Phillips, who for a period of 34 years has been caterer and caretaker at the Masonic Hall, Portland St., Cheltenham, and Tyler for five Masonic bodies, was recipient at the hands of Bro. Baylis, W.M. of the Foundation Lodge, of a timepiece, and Mrs Philips of a purse of gold, as a mark of esteem for their past services. Mr. Phillips is retiring from the position of caterer and caretaker, but retains the office of Tyler. The presentation was made in open Lodge by the W.M. in a brief but appropriate speech. The timepiece bore the following inscription:—Presented to Bro. H. Phillips by the brethren, present and past, of the Foundation Lodge, No. 82, as a token of their appreciation of his services to the Lodge during the last 34 years. June 26, 1889.

PRINTING OFFICE SECRETS.—It is an unwritten law of the printing office that all its operations shall be considered confidential, and in an experience of many years we have never known of a wilful violation of this rule. Yet its observance is, of late years, becoming more lax. It is not an unusual thing to hear printers from various offices talking together about the works that pass through their hands, and even discoursing them with outsiders. This is all wrong. No operative has any right to afford any information concerning a job to any one except his immediate superiors or the customer, and a cast-iron rule should be enforced to this effect. Though it may not be expressly stipulated that the work in hand is to be considered "confidential," it should be treated as such. No outsider should be allowed to know even that any certain work is in hand, much more what is its import, the number to be printed, or anything else concerning it. It is not unlikely that an unprincipled person might take advantage of the indiscretion of printers to obtain information concerning the affairs of a rival, to the great detriment of the latter. Certain it is that no business man is anxious or willing to announce beforehand what are his plans and purposes, or to have them discussed by uninterested parties, even though it may be his intention to give them, at the proper time, the widest publicity. It might seem to the unthinking printer that it could not make any difference if the matter should be mentioned, and yet at the same time it might work irreparable injury—as it certainly would great annoyance—to the customer. In many offices the sensible rule is observed of so keeping all copies, proofs, &c., that they cannot be inspected by casual visitors, and this should be adopted in all offices. The printer holds a confidential relation toward the customer; and he has no more right to betray that confidence than has the customer's book-keeper or clerks.

EADE'S
GOUT & RHEUMATIC PILLS.

The SAFEST and most EFFECTUAL CURE for GOUT, RHEUMATISM, and all PAINS in the HEAD, FACE, and LIMBS.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL from the Rev. F. FARVIS, Baptist Minister.

Mr. G. EADE. March 19, 1887.

Dear Sir,—I have many times felt inclined to inform you of the benefit I have received by taking your Gout and Rheumatic Pills. After suffering for some time from Rheumatics and Sciatica, I was advised to use your Pills. I bought a bottle, and when in severe pain and unable to use the limb affected I took a dose. In a few hours after I felt the pain much better, and after the second dose the pain completely removed and the limb restored to its right use. I thank you, dear sir, for sending forth such a boon for the relief of human suffering.

Yours faithfully,
F. FARVIS,
Baptist Minister.

Nothing tends so much to mar one's appearance in Evening Dress as a Front struggling to escape from the Waistcoat.

This Shirt effectually solves that problem.

FREEMASONS, M.P.'s, and all who dress well, will be convinced of this after a trial, and no other will be worn morning or evening.

There are multitudes of people who look upon advertising as a sort of Lottery, and bestow infinitely more thought in the selection of a clerk at £100 a year than in the expenditure of £1000, or two in the same period in advertising. A tithe of the shrewdness displayed in all other branches of their business given to the management of their advertising will be amply repaid. The ADVERTISEMENT AGENT has become an indispensable factor in this matter of publicity, and his raison d'être is perfectly unassailable. Would you leave or enter a port without a pilot? Would you commence and prosecute a law suit without a legal adviser? Either of these courses would not be more foolish than rushing into expenses in Advertising without a competent practical and professional adviser. I am at all times happy to render advertisers every assistance in my power, and to give them the benefit of the experience I have gained during the past twenty years as a London advertising agent. "PAINLESS AND PERFECT DENTISTRY."

A New Pamphlet, by Dr. GEO. H. JONES, F.R.S.L., F.R.M.S., &c., Surgeon-Dentist, 57 Great Russell-street, facing British Museum entrance, London, contains a list of Diplomas, and Silver Medals and other Awards obtained at the Great International Exhibitions. Forwarded gratis and post free.

Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist's Testimonial.

My Dear Doctor,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

S. G. HUTCHINS,
By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

Geo. H. Jones, Esq., D.D.S.

Scientific Department.
Laboratory of Experimental Science.

This is to certify: That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

(Signed),
EDWARD V. GARDNER, F.H.S., M.S.A.,
Professor of Chemistry, and of Berners College, W.

To Dr. Geo. H. Jones, Surgeon-Dentist,

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

Are universally admitted to be worth a Guinea a Box for Nervous and Bilious Disorders, such as wind and pain in the stomach, sick headache, giddiness, fullness and swelling after meals, dizziness and drowsiness, cold chills, flushings of heat, loss of appetite, shortness of breath, costiveness, scurvy, blotches on the skin, disturbed sleep, frightful dreams, and all nervous and trembling sensations, &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes. This is no fiction, for they have done it in thousands of cases. Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all humours, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no medicine to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

For a weak stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the liver they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse in action with the ROSEBUD of health the whole physical energy of the human frame. These are the "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of society, and one of the best guarantees to the nervous and debilitated, is that have the largest sale of any patent medicine in the world.

Prepared only, and sold Wholesale and Retail by the Proprietor, T. BEECHAM Chemist, St. Helen's, Lancashire, in Boxes, 1s 1½d and 2s 9d each. Sent post Free from the Proprietor, for 15 or 35 stamps. Sold by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Dealers in the United Kingdom.

FULL DIRECTIONS ARE GIVEN WITH EACH BOX.

PRIVILEGED COMMUNICATIONS.

FEW who have not had an actual experience can form any idea of the amount of work which devolves upon the Secretary or Worshipful Master of a Lodge, outside of what we may term their public performances. An ordinary member of the Craft is accustomed to take his place at the regular meetings of his Lodge, and witness, from the time of opening until the Tyler gives the concluding toast at the supper or banquet, a succession of events following one another with clock-like regularity, and all apparently running their own natural course, without let or hindrance. But is it reasonable to suppose all this happens without previous arrangement? or that the business of a meeting can be carried through without skilful guidance and manipulation somewhere? Previous attention is essential, and the more successful the meeting, and the more regular the proceedings, the greater the credit due to those to whom is due its preparation. In many cases we need not go further than the Secretary of a Lodge to discover who has had the arrangement of affairs, and to that Officer is due, more often than otherwise, the success or failure of an assembly. This is giving the Secretary credit for a great deal, but as our readers are aware, we entertain the feeling that a good Secretary is an all-important factor in a Lodge, and we do not think that too much credit can be accorded the Brother who faithfully discharges the work attached to the appointment. We do not mean that the Secretary performs the lion's share of the actual Masonic work of a particular meeting, but he has so much to prepare, that on him, to a marked extent, depends the result of a gathering. If everything is properly arranged beforehand, success is more than half assured; but if, on the other side, all, or a part of the work, has been left to chance, then it is we feel the want of a guiding hand, and learn to appreciate the work of those whose forethought ensures comfort and success. In this respect the Secretary of a Lodge doubtless receives considerable assistance from the Worshipful Master, but as the one is often a sort of permanent official, while the Master only holds the office for a single year, the work can hardly be said to equally divide itself, the one knowing everything associated with his office, the other being removable, as soon as he begins to get used to the duties of his appointment. But it is not only in arranging for the regular meetings of a Lodge that the Secretary is called upon to show his ability. There are many other matters which really depend on him, and on his capacity immediately to decide on a course of action. Not the least important in this respect is the correspondence addressed to his Lodge. He must be able to form an opinion as to which are privileged communications, and which of a general character; which he shall announce in Lodge, and which he shall pass over without comment.

In this respect we cannot help the feeling that most Lodge Secretaries are very loth to consider a communication so far "privileged" as to deserve notice in open Lodge. The majority—a very large majority—of communications received are dismissed without public comment, or without being officially brought under the notice of the Lodge members, and, as a consequence, it has now become very difficult to address the members of the Craft, as a body, except through the columns of the public press. We do not wish that every circular or every letter sent out broadcast should be read in open Lodge, but, as we have said, we think that Lodge Secretaries have too much power in their hands when the question of communications addressed to their Lodges is considered, and one of the results of such a system is, that mistaken ideas arise as to what is going on throughout the Order. As an example of what we mean, we may refer to the work of canvassing for the Masonic Charitable Institutions, and concerning which so much has been said and written during the last few years. We were recently present at a meeting when conversation turned on this topic, when one brother, well known in Craft, Arch and Mark Masonry, gave his experience. He said he had been a member of one of the best London Lodges for upwards of fifteen years, during which time he had regularly attended, but during the whole of that period neither one of the Charity Secretaries had ever sent a circular or a letter to the Lodge. We tried to convince him of his error, but he was not to be convinced, as he felt sure every communication sent to the Lodge was regularly announced to the members. It is quite useless to argue against such ideas as these; unless we had heard them ourselves we should never have believed it possible any one could entertain them, but that we have stated is actually what occurred, and of course the only explanation of such a statement is to imagine the Lodge Secretary never looked upon Charity appeals and circulars as "privileged" communications. The question is,—what other letters and other matters were treated in the same manner? while it behoves us to ask,—how far does such a system extend?

We were aware that many communications which we should regard as essentially of a public character never went beyond the Secretary's table, but we were certainly taken aback at hearing what we have just recounted, and we think the subject is worthy of something more than passing notice at the hands of the Craft. It is not for us to dictate what shall be done, but it seems to us that some alteration is desirable, or it will soon be quite impossible to communicate with the individual members of the Order in anything like an official manner, for if the appeals of the Masonic Institutions are not to be considered as privileged, what communications are to become entitled to that distinction?

MASONRY AND EVERY-DAY LIFE.

Address given by Past Grand Master the Rev. W. N. Ackley, at the Dedication of Memorial Statue of Thomas A. Doyle, in Providence, 3rd June 1889.

EVERY institution, like the individual man, must expect to be judged on a twofold basis—upon the ground of its inherent character and its relations with that with which it is surrounded, its power to perform for the world those offices suggested in its principles. To be entitled to recognition as a factor in our busy life it must demonstrate its ability to touch society with vital influence. Great truths may be engrossed upon enduring materials, sealed and laid away, securely guarded from the eye and touch of men. But to guard truth so is to insult its dignity, to invest it with that too common royalty which is simply impotent isolation from the throbbing life of man. That alone is truly royal which can tolerate the strong gaze of the world, can respond to the demands of society upon it. In this, as in our religion, the servant is nobler than the Law. The truth is not worth the seeking which has, as it takes shape in our thoughts, no service to render to mankind. And, inasmuch as our Masonic Institution is a monument to truths that are fundamental, so, to warrant our presence, as its representatives here to-day, must it be a living, working force, bringing its embodied truth into vital connection with the world's life. The eye of the loyal Mason glances back into the past, only that it may more keenly take account of the present, of the needs which may guide into hopeful channels the influence at our command.

Suffer me for a brief period to centre our thoughts upon those features of our Masonic institution, which manifest its inherent character and its practical influence upon life, leaving meanwhile those numberless qualities which may indeed interest the curious, but which are accidental rather than inherent. It is the symbol on which the eye rests. The fundamental truth is that which takes possession of the discriminating mind. So, they who find in the sign and ceremony and symbol the essence of Masonry mistake the colour for the texture of the fabric. Just as in a man the wealth of power is in the character and the ability to bring that character into vital connection with the interest of men, so it is with our ancient institution. It is a life, a developed life, trained in the school of human necessity. Its soul is found in the unflagging championship of those immortal truths which underlie even religion, which are the sanction of all moral conduct, which are the stay of men's hearts in life's extremest hours. We need not linger to set forth anew here those old truths, ever new to each new life, to each life newly awakened to the highest things—the truth about God, eternity, immortality, responsibility; truths echoing through all the language of our forms, flashing out in our varied ceremonial. It has been said that persons dwelling in close intimacy with strong and noble souls grow by degrees into their likeness. The Mason dwells in the presence of embodied truth, whose voice speaks ever the same unvarying counsel, and appeals to him with the same eternal sanctions. Something of truth's glorious features should shine out ere long in the lineaments of his character. And need we wonder, in the light of these facts, that so often the silvery-haired veteran in our ranks, to whom long ago life's play-things had lost their charm, and who is growing more and more to value things according to their essential qualities, should enter our asylums with fresh, warm devotion to a brotherhood he has known so long. He has dwelt in the presence of truth personified in our stately ceremonial and been suffused with its lofty spirit. The life of the man and of every lasting institution must anchor itself in those immutable truths which lie at the root of all religion and of all morality. And so, while Masonry never intrudes itself unbidden within the sacred domain of religion, never assumes to do more than second and further that work committed especially to the Church of Christ, never haughtily frowns upon other groups of men seeking the same noble ends, it plants itself solidly upon the immutable doctrines of God, of eternity, of a resurrection to the immortal life, of responsibility to the God of heaven for the lives we live. Upon these foundations rises our Masonic structure, and they who dwell within its sacred precincts dwell where God is, where truth reigns, are guilty of profaning the sacredness of heavenly things when word or act fails to accord with the spirit of the divine law. Symbolic ceremony, traditional and historic illustrations combine within our walls to implant indelibly those divine teachings upon the hearts of our disciples.

But they are guilty of grave error who pronounce Masonry a thing of the past, because its lessons are couched in ancient symbolism and because it deals in eternal verities. Eternity reaches forward as well as backward—forward always to every soul truly awake to the grandest things. The conservative tenacity of Masonry for immutable truth is its safeguard, the ground of its power to be a sure and lasting help to the interests of men. Only the spirit of anarchy would change that which ought to be counted immutable. But, just as eternity touches time by including it within itself, so these eternal principles touch the ever-varying interests of humanity. They who are well versed in the teachings of Masonry will wonder at their breadth of range, at their vivid setting forth of the facts and experiences of life. And what does this reveal? Why, the fact that Masonry has been a growth, that it has grown out of a keen appreciation of those changeless truths we have catalogued, and, in addition to that, a clear, sympathetic knowledge of the longings and needs of humanity. Through unnumbered generations the handicraft of speculative and symbolic Masonry has been exercised in working into its structure the varied experiences, the drama of human life—setting the whole story to the keynote of principle. What men need and feel most keenly it has made the subject of its thought and study; so that, while the world outside may think of us as secluded within a shrine where everything is an ancient, our practical relations are with the living realities of to-day; just as love and sympathy and sense of mutual obligation are but empty words, except as they deal with the real life of the present with which we come in contact. Does society desire to learn a wholesome lesson in the rightful relation between the so-called highest and lowest among its ranks? We will teach them that he who, as our Grand Master, holds the highest office in the gift of Masonry, and with it, an authority extremely exceptional in this modern age; nevertheless, as far as his fraternal relations with his fellows and personal character are concerned, stands for what he is worth as a man, on a level as a brother among brethren with the humblest brother moving in the ranks. Come hither and learn among our impressive lessons—oft repeated during the Masonic life—this wholesome lesson upon the equality of human rights, upon the duty of respecting men according to their inherent worth. Sense of brotherhood must rest upon this conviction. And it is the sense of brotherhood that lifts love, sympathy, fellowship, generosity, helpfulness out of the low realm of the artificial and the conventional into the domain of the real and the true. True, courtly manners are flavoured with the spirit of a real respect for one's fellows. And all those virtues, which are but courtly manners wrought into more substantial shape, become princely in the sterling reality given them by the sympathetic spirit. It is no wonder that the founders of Masonry, schooled so well in the needs of men, should have wrought the great, inclusive duty of charity all through our ceremonial teachings. This virtue, so slowly learned by a cold humanity, becomes the natural, logical deduction from a conviction of the brotherhood of men. The man who sees in man his brother, and is keenly sensitive to the fact, cannot do less than love his own. So we teach first the lesson of brotherhood. Generosity of spirit and of deed is its angelic sequel. You are teaching an impotent law of conduct, when your charity of heart is not put before, as a cause, that charity of act, whose symbol is the open hand, the helpful deed.

We have time to do scarcely more than say how this great lesson of brotherhood deserves to be first always, to be oftenest repeated in the ears of men and how in it we touch all the duties of man to man. Let the spirit of brotherhood and consequent charity of heart find a welcome amid the busy throng, where competition rages, where suffering and want intrude their hard presence, aye, within the hallowed precincts of the home, more and more; and, verily, the life, the motley throng are living would feel the genial sunrise of a new joy, and the spirit of antagonism with which men view one another so often now would be counted an intruder upon the peaceful life of the society. To intensify the spirit of human fellowship, of that charity whose fountain is in the heart, is one of the leading offices of our Masonic Institution. If, in our teaching, if, in the communion of brother with brother within our walls, if, in the nearer contact of man with man in the common interests of Masonry, we can develop in our hearts a keener sensitiveness, widen our sympathies, sweeten our spirits, train ourselves in thought and acts of charity, giving to them all that supreme sanction growing out of a sense of solemn responsibility; then are we one of the factors for good in the world; then are we touching vitally the most sacred interests of every-day life. Our Institution, even as it does so stand in tradition and organic structure, should in our convictions and lives stand for nobility of manhood, championship of the right, love and fellowship wider than the limits of our brotherhood, the heart and deed of a true fraternal love. As this noble statue, wrought into artistic form the more forcibly to remind the throngs that through generations may cluster about it, and ask its meaning, stands as symbol of the character and deeds of the man whose heart beat responsive to his fellows' needs, so may our institutions stand as something lasting and immovable, yet speaking of life, standing for something instinct with life, a symmetrical building indeed, yet, in its practical activity and influence, in touch with all that is noble and sweet in the life of the world. Our office is to speak these lessons of humanity and fellowship with all their eternal and divine sanction into the ears of unwilling men. In this we are not indeed alone. We only join the voice from many an institution, many an earnest, great-hearted spirit. As a man alone you may engage in the lofty work of bringing about the reign of great thoughts and loving deeds. The voice, however, should take on a more determined emphasis when uttered in the unison and harmony of our fraternal fellowship. The individual, under the inspiration of a loving heart, may indeed

"Join hands with God to make a man to live."

But as a compact body, linked in that strength which comes of united forces and purposes at one, fired with the electric power of that brotherly love fostered in the fellowship of kindred spirits, we may in very deed "join hands with God" and with one another, to bring strength and purpose, and power, and richness, and gladness into the world's every-day life.

"There is no greater factor in the elevation of our moral natures than the knowledge that one whose opinion we value believes in us; and nothing will so soon drive a soul downward as the conviction that this confidence is withheld. You must give what you would receive; show love, sympathy and truth yourself if you would find them in others. If you look out on the world from soiled or clouded spectacles, all objects will appear to you blurred and distorted."—Liberal Freemason.

THE PORCH OF THE TEMPLE.

MOST striking and beautiful was the porch of King Solomon's Temple, worthy in itself of a journey to Jerusalem to behold. King David gave to King Solomon the pattern of this porch (1 Chronicles xxviii. 11), and Solomon was chosen by the Lord to build it—together with the entire Temple. The two chief features of the porch were the two famous pillars, named by Solomon Jachin and Boaz. Whether these two pillars stood in the porch, or in front of it, has always been a vexed question—1 Kings vii. 21 stating, that "he set up the pillars in the porch of the Temple," and 2 Chronicles iii. 17, that "he reared up the pillars before the Temple." We think the pillars were in the porch, supporting its roof, for while so situated they were also in reality in front of the Temple. These two pillars, of brass, were the work of Hiram, the architect of Tyre, and cast under his direction, with chapiters of molten brass upon the tops of the pillars as capitals, with nets of checker work and wreaths of chain-work, and upon their tops was lily work. This porch was twenty cubits in length, and the same in breadth, and at its entrance was a gate made entirely of Corinthian brass—the most precious metal known to the ancients. Such, in brief, was the porch of the Temple, "a thing of beauty," and through its verbal delineation "a joy for ever."

Suppose a stranger had come to Jerusalem after the completion of the Temple, on purpose to see it, and had viewed and admired its wonderful porch, but after doing so had turned his back on the Temple itself, after having been invited to enter it and behold all of its wondrous beauties! What would be thought of the good sense, or the fine taste, of such a one, and if he were a mystic disciple of King Solomon, what would be thought of his Freemasonry? Standing in the porch, with the privilege of familiarizing himself with all the marvels of construction and ornamentation of the Temple interior, and refusing to enter, such a one might be denominated intellectually blind, morally lame, and Masonically dumb.

Brother reader, have you not seen this blin , lame and dumb man, this blind, lame and dumb Freemason? More than the schoolmaster he is abroad in the world. "The woods is full of them." Men who have eyes and see not, ears and hear not, minds and understand not. Men who have feet and walk not from the outer porch into the inner temple. Men who are initiates but not adepts. Brethren who are familiar with the exoteric but ignorant of the esoteric. None of these things should be. The eye was constituted to be the organ of sight, the ear to hear, the feet to walk, the mind to think. He who abridges his physical, mental or Masonic ability drags around with him for life a dead member, and makes himself a spectacle for men and angels.

Now we have reached the heart of this subject. Every Freemason is entitled, completely entitled, to enter not only the porch of the mystic Temple of the Craft, but to penetrate into its holy place, and its holy of holies. The entire triad is his. Especially is it his privilege to enter the penetralia, the adytum, the most holy place. No Masonic secret is lawfully denied him. The complete secret, art and mystery is his, to master and enjoy—if he will; but he must will if it is to be his. "Whosoever will" is the language of Freemasonry, as well as of Holy Writ.

What a rich reward does the Fraternity bestow upon every initiate who seeks to know the entire mystery! We would that it were in our power to make this so clear that every Brother might comprehend its truth and force. We would that every initiate might understand that one may be a Master Mason without being a Master of Masonry. To be the latter is the work, the pleasure, the reward of a lifetime's study. The student of the mystery of Freemasonry is no mere book-worm, no antiquated pedagogue, but an intelligent tourist through an intellectual paradise, which is watered with silvery streams, flowing through flowery meads, shaded with stately trees, through which balmy zephyrs play, birds of rich plumage sing, and every prospect is one of enchantment and beauty. This is the interior of the Masonic Temple. Those who remain in the Porch of the Temple never behold it. The porch is the sign, it is the thing signified. The porch is the type, it is the anti-type. The porch is the symbol, it is the symbol's hidden meaning.

Yes, the joys of the porch are great. All the initiated resort there. There are social pleasures, and there is Masonic recognition. But why remain there. Why be satisfied with these? Why not enter the Temple? Why not become more than mechanical Masons? Why not discover the hidden beauties and excellences of Masonry? Why not understand and enjoy the meaning of our symbolism? If you are a Mason, why not be a thorough one?

There is a sublimity in Freemasonry which justifies the phrase "sublime degree of a Master Mason." Every Brother should be a sublime Mason, and he may be if he will. There is ravishment for the sight, enchantment for the imagination, satisfaction for the understanding. All are invited to this intellectual banquet. The gates of Corinthian brass in the Porch of the Temple are thrown wide open, and every Master Mason is invited to enter the Temple itself.—Keystone.

A MASON'S FREE BED.—By the will of the late Bro. James E. Gale, of Haverhill, Mass, the sum of 3000 dollars is to be paid to the Master and Wardens of the Lodge in Haverhill, for the establishment and maintenance of a free bed in the Haverhill Hospital, for the use of such Masons as they may deem worthy. This is a practical Charity, and an enduring monument to the memory of an intelligent and eminently worthy Freemason.—Liberal Freemason.

ENTHUSIASTIC WELCOME OF THE GOVERNOR OF NEW ZEALAND.

THE formal reception of His Excellency the Governor, the Earl of Onslow, and the Countess of Onslow, took place on Monday, the 22nd April. The arrangements by the Freemasons were admirable. The brethren of the three Constitutions assembled in the Freemasons' Hall, shortly after nine o'clock, and here they were suitably arranged in their respective Lodges, and proceeded to Government House. The entrance through the verandah to the house was lined by the District and Provincial Grand Lodge Officers. The English Grand Lodge was represented by Bro. G. S. Graham D.G.M., Bro. W. Lodder D.D.G.M., Bro. H. G. Wade D.G.S., Bros. Rev. C. M. Nelson and W. Tebbs (the latter also appearing as Past Grand Chaplain of Somerset), and Bros. Clark and Warren. The Irish Constitution was represented by Bros. G. P. Pierce P.G.M., Bros. Powley, Mitchell, Dr. Kidd, and A. Brock. The Scottish Constitution was represented by Bro. the Hon. Sir Frederick Whitaker P.G.M., and Bro. M. Nicool D.P.G.M., the other Officers of the Grand Lodge taking up their positions with their respective Craft Lodges. The bands and troops marched past Government House, and when His Excellency's carriage arrived a halt was made, and Lord Onslow was at once received on the verandah by the District and Provincial Grand Masters, and Bro. G. S. Graham said that to him had been entrusted the pleasing duty of presenting an address from the Freemasons of Auckland. He then read the address, as follows:—

To the Right Worshipful Brother the Right Honourable the Earl of Onslow, P.G.S.W. of England.

Right Worshipful Sir and Brother,—On behalf of the Freemasons of Auckland, we beg to offer you a cordial and fraternal welcome to New Zealand. We hail with great pleasure the advent of so distinguished a brother in Freemasonry as yourself, and we cannot but feel that your residence amongst us will tend to promote the welfare and prosperity of the Craft throughout the colony. With hearty good wishes for the health and happiness of yourself, Lady Onslow and family, and trusting that your sojourn amongst us may be every way agreeable and enjoyable.

We have the honour to subscribe ourselves, Right Worshipful Sir,

Yours truly and fraternally,

G. S. GRAHAM, D.G.M. E.C., G. P. PIERCE, P.G.M. I.C., FREDK. WHITAKER, P.G.M. S.C.

His Lordship made the following reply:—

Worshipful Brethren,—It has afforded me sincere pleasure to receive in your name, representing as you do the important District Grand Lodge of Auckland, so cordial and fraternal a welcome on landing on the shores of New Zealand. It shows, if proof were wanting, that brotherly love, the first principle of Freemasonry, is as strong in this important Province of the Empire as in the heart of the Grand Lodge of England itself. As a Grand Warden of that Lodge it will be a pleasure to me to express to His Royal Highness, the Grand Master, the satisfaction which I feel in learning that Freemasonry in New Zealand does not yield in vigour, in prosperity, or in loyalty to any of her sister colonies in Australasia.

Auckland, 22nd April 1889. ONSLOW.

The Rev. C. M. Nelson then presented an address from the Mark Master Masons:—

To the R.W. Bro. the Hon. the Earl of Onslow, K.C.M.G., P.G.S.W.

Right Worshipful Sir and Brother,—It affords us great pleasure, on behalf of the Mark Master Masons of Auckland, E.C., to welcome you to New Zealand. The great interest you have always taken in Mark Masonry, and the exalted position you occupy in connection with that degree, is already well known to and highly appreciated by us. You come amongst us, Worshipful Sir, not as a stranger, but as a brother, who has made such a mark in our Order as can never be effaced, and whilst we honour you as the representative of our Gracious Majesty the Queen, we would beg you to accept our most sincere and fraternal regards as a representative of that Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of which we have the honour to be humble but loyal members.

(Sd.) F. W. E. Dawson, P.G.M., C. M. Nelson, D.P.G.M., W. P. Moat, P.G.D., P.G. Treasurer,
T. W. Kitt, P.G. Swd. Br., P.G. Secretary.

Lord Onslow replied, as follows:—

Worshipful Brethren,—I have received your friendly and fraternal address with feelings of no small gratitude. To be welcomed, not as a stranger, but as a brother, in a land where I am not personally known, adds another proof of the value to all men of being included within our degree. Cemented by this common bond, I am led to hope that my brethren of the Craft, who are so numerous, so influential, and so widely spread throughout the colony, will be favourably predisposed towards my humble efforts worthily to represent Her Gracious Majesty. That they will not readily mark whatever may be done amiss, but will rather seek to interpret all actions in the spirit suggested by the principles inculcated by our Order.

Auckland, 22nd April 1889. ONSLOW.

Lord Onslow then retired into Government House, and the brethren, reforming procession, returned to Freemasons' Hall, where, after disrobing, they separated for the day.

LONDON AND SOUTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

AT this time of the year when it is the earnest desire of parents to seek out a healthy resort whereto to send their children, it would be well for them to inspect the arrangements made by the London and South Western Railway Company. These arrangements are on a most liberal scale. The tariff of fares is as low as it consistently can be, while the service of trains is both frequent and well regulated. It is unnecessary for us to describe the different places of interest that this line traverses, but when we mention Exeter, Plymouth, Devonport, Barnstaple, Ilfracombe, Channel Islands, Southampton, Portsmouth, Isle of Wight, Bournemouth, Swanage, Dorchester, Weymouth; this year's centre of attraction—France; not to enumerate Hampton Court Palace, which can be inspected at a few hours' leisure, it will be seen there is abundance to choose from. To these several resorts, tourist and excursion tickets are issued on most reasonable terms,—to first, second, and third class passengers. Moreover, these tourist tickets are available for two months. To Exeter, the railway runs fast express trains, the journey being completed in four hours; while to that charming sea-side resort Bournemouth, the journey is completed in two and a half hours, by the new direct line. Other places reached by this line are Plymouth, in six and a quarter hours; and Ilfracombe, in six and a half hours. Visitors to Paris have certainly had their comfort looked after by this Company. Trains leave the terminus (Waterloo Station) every Monday, Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday, while the Company's steamers leave Southampton Docks the same day, for Havre. The average time in crossing the Channel is about six and a half hours, and about two additional hours in the river. These Mail Steamers are fast travellers, and, what is more essential, are most comfortable. Germany is also to be reached easily by this line, via Southampton and the Norddeutscher Lloyd Ocean Steamers. The voyage to Harts Mountains, Berlin, Hanover, and North East Europe, is accomplished in twenty-five hours by the Atlantic steamers, of 5,500 tons. These Mail Steamers call at Southampton every Thursday and Sunday, on their way from New York to Bremen, and take first and second class passengers for the trip through the North Sea. The facilities for picnic or pleasure parties are also adequate. During the summer months, return tickets are issued at reduced rates, and this opportunity should be taken advantage of, for a more enjoyable outing than that afforded by a run through the Thames Valley could not be wished for; frequent trains for which are run by the London and South Western Railway. In conclusion, if further information is needed, we can refer our readers to the Guide Book, issued by the Company; or better still, to the General Manager of the line, at the Waterloo terminus; he will readily give further information if it be required.

CERTIFICATES OF OFFICE.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Anent your remarks on certificates of honour, you will be interested to know that it has been for many years the practice for the Provincial Grand Master and Grand Superintendent of the Province of Essex to give such certificates, and they are much appreciated by the fortunate possessors.

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

We have been asked to insert the enclosed letter, from the Toronto Mail:—

FREEMASONRY AND CHRISTIANITY.

To the Editor of The Mail.

SIR,—Recently, at a Masonic demonstration at Wellington, Ontario, Rev. Mr. Stratton, G. Chaplain, &c., who was one of the speakers of the day, stated, during the course of his remarks, that Freemasonry would be made use of to sustain Christianity and to put down infidelity. Having gained so much information from the rev. gentleman, we would take it as a great kindness if he would now go a little further, and give us a little more light upon the subject. For instance, would the rev. gentleman tell us when and by whom was Masonry so designed? How does Masonry propose to accomplish this end? Do they purpose using force? What particular sect do they intend to take in hand to guard? Is Christianity founded on Masonry, or is it only recently that it has turned to Masonry for a little assistance? If the Church rests in any manner upon Masonry, how shall we render the old familiar hymn that says—

"The Church's one foundation Is Jesus Christ her Lord?"

Would not this hymn and many others, and the Bible also, all have to be re-written? Is it not a fact that Freemasonry numbers within its ranks Jews, Mohammedans, Hindoos, and others who do not believe in the Christian religion? And yet they are Masons. But they could not be Masons if Masonry is what you say it is—that is, synonymous with Christianity.

Yours, &c.

PROV. GRAND LODGE OF SURREY.

THE Annual Meeting was held on Thursday, the 18th inst., at the Public Hall, Caterham, where the arrangements made by the members of the entertaining Lodge, the Caterham, No. 2095, resulted in an eminently satisfactory day's proceedings. There was an exceptionally large attendance, and the capacious room where the meeting was held, when set out, and decorated with the banners of the several Lodges, presented a very picturesque and elegant appearance. At 3·30 o'clock the Provincial Grand Lodge was opened by the Wor. Brother Frederick West P.G.D., Deputy Provincial Grand Master, in charge of the Province, who was supported by the following Present and Past Prov. Grand Officers and Brethren :—

D. P. Cama S.G. Warden, H. M. Hobbs J.G. Warden, George Price Grand Treasurer, Charles Greenwood G. Secretary, Alfred Bishop, Fountain Meen, F. T. Ridpath, C. H. Woodward. Amongst the Past Provincial Grand Officers were: F. A. Guimaraens, Henry J. P. Dumas, H. G. Thompson, H. C. Leigh Bennett, G. T. Lister, A. T. Jeffery, Hugh D. Sandeman, H. E. Frances, J. E. Before commencing the general business of the day, W. Bro. Frederick West told the brethren that immediately on his receipt of the mournful tidings conveying the particulars of the decease of their late Provincial Grand Master, General J. Studholme Brownrigg, C.B., he, on behalf of the Province, sent Mrs. Brownrigg and other members of her family an expression of their sympathy, and condolence in their bereavement. To this communication he had received replies,—from Mrs. Brownrigg, and from the Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg, Deputy Prov. G. Master for Berks and Bucks. The Rev. Bro. Brownrigg had signified his intention to join them in Provincial Grand Lodge that day, but, at the last moment, in consequence of pressing business engagements, had been compelled to forego the pleasure of meeting the brethren of Surrey on this occasion. Brother West, continuing, said that later in the day he would propose a resolution that he thought would convey the sentiments of all those present. The first item was to call over the roll of Lodges, and it is satisfactory to state that one Lodge only was unrepresented. A fair proportion of the Provincial Grand Officers were in attendance. The minutes of last Prov. Grand Lodge, held at the Public Hall, Carshalton, on the 18th July 1888, were read and adopted. The Report of the Finance and Audit Committee was unanimously adopted; the balance standing to the credit of Provincial Grand Lodge being declared at £283 18s 10d. The following sums were voted to the Masonic Institutions :—Twenty guineas to the Boys' School; Ten guineas to the Girls' School; and Ten guineas respectively to the Male and Female Funds of the Benevolent Institution. In accordance with previous custom, Provincial Grand Lodge also voted £10 10s to local Charity, the amount to be disbursed by the Vicar of St. John's Church, Caterham Valley. Brother George Price was re-elected Provincial Grand Treasurer, by acclamation, and then the following Brethren were invested with the collars of office :—

Bro. J. E. Street	...	Senior Warden
Dr. Gibbes	...	Junior Warden
Rev. E. Chichester	...	Chaplains
Rev. W. W. Martin	...	Chaplains

Bro. Frederick West then addressed those present, in the following terms :—

Brethren,—It has been our custom to meet together, once in every year, in different places, for the purpose of electing and appointing the Officers and transacting the business of the Province. On these occasions we have taken a retrospect of what has happened in the past year of interest to the Province, and generally considered the position of Masonry in it. The first thought is a sad one, for as you are too well aware we have lost our Provincial Grand Master. Immediately I heard the sad news I, as the head of the Province, in your name conveyed our sympathy with his family in the great loss they had sustained. We cannot, however, allow this opportunity to pass without testifying to the invaluable services of our late Provincial Grand Master in raising the Province to the position it now holds. When he was appointed, in 1871, there were 10 Lodges and 5 Chapters. Since then 24 new Lodges and 7 new Chapters have been consecrated, so that now we have no less than 34 Lodges and 12 Chapters. I am glad to say the name of our late chief has been perpetuated in the Province, there being a Lodge and a Chapter named after him. The enthusiasm thrown by him into the work, and the encouragement given to deserving Masons, did much to enhance the success of his ruling over us. The Brethren in the Province, too, appreciated the high Masonic Standard he fixed, and did their best to maintain it. Thus we find to-day that not only is the Province flourishing, but there is good Masonic feeling throughout it. Our late Provincial Grand Master was a strict disciplinarian, but notwithstanding this, his kindness and geniality created an affection for him, which did much towards the success of his Masonic career in Surrey. But his work did not end here, he advocated strongly and carried into practice the great principles of our Order. Twice did he preside at the Festivals of our Noble Institutions, and loyally did the Province support him. You will remember, when he took the Chair at the Festival of the Girls' School, in the year 1886, the liberal contributions of this Province, amounting to no less a sum than £1,300. I might also remind you of the interest he took in promoting the success of Surrey Candidates for the benefits of the Institutions. He was always to be found presiding at the Charity Committee Meetings, when candidates were selected, and he encouraged us to work for their return, which he materially assisted by the large number of votes he could always control. Our late Provincial Grand Master was equally earnest in his other duties of life. Whether it was in the Playing Fields of Eton, in Canada, or the Crimea, John Studholme Brownrigg was equally successful. The early discipline he learnt at Eton, and the Public School spirit which he acquired there, were his best friends throughout life. He was an Englishman in every respect, and a true Mason. Well may those nearer and dearer to him mourn his loss, but we share it with them; and, brethren, if we desire to perpetuate in this Province his valuable services to us, let us follow his example, and persuade others to do the same. It will be my duty, at the close of this address, to submit to you a resolution bearing on the subject of these remarks. I will now turn for a few minutes to the position of the Province. Since we last met one of the best Lodges in the Province, i.e., the East Surrey Lodge of Concord, has celebrated its Jubilee, and I was very pleased to have been present on the occasion, and take part in the installation of our W. Bro. Geo. Price Prov. G. Treasurer, who filled the office of W.M. in the same Lodge 48 years ago, an event which, I believe, is almost, if not quite, unique in the history of Masonry. I think I am safe in saying that we all wish Bro. Price a very prosperous year of office. Brethren, I think we may fairly say we are in a flourishing condition; good work is being done, and there is an excellent Masonic feeling prevailing. Not only do the Lodges carry out the Ritual well in most cases, but I am glad to add that they assist materially to swell the funds of our Institutions. I think we ought to be thankful that both our Surrey candidates, one Boy and one Girl, have been elected, and now we have undertaken to assist in procuring the admission of a son of the late Bro. Samuel Andrews (P.M. of St. Andrew's Lodge) to the Boys' School. I ask for your united assistance for this object. It is determination of the Committee to have only one candidate at a time, so that the full strength of the votes of the Province may be given from all sources. It would materially strengthen the hands of the Committee, which is thoroughly representative of the Province, if brethren would more loyally support them than heretofore. You will agree with me, Brethren, I am sure, when I say, that without loyalty to the cause continued action becomes useless. I must appeal to Secretaries of Lodges, and more especially to Scribes of Chapters, to assist the work of the Province by conforming to the spirit of the Rules of the Province with respect to returns. Some are absolutely useless and are hardly creditable to the experienced Masons who send them in. Without proper information, the Rulers of the Province cannot succeed, and the want of it on the present occasion has been to the detriment of some brethren who would otherwise have been promoted. I am glad to find that several Lodges have Lodges of Instruction attached, which are of great assistance to the proper working of the ceremonies. I must urge upon Masters of Lodges the desirability of punctuality. There are some Lodges in which this appears to be of no object, and the consequence is that the ceremonies suffer, and comfort of visitors at the subsequent banquet is impaired. I would urge Lodges not to try and do too much on one evening, especially on installation nights, when, if the Installation ceremony is fully and properly rendered, it is a good evening's work. Our muster roll is rapidly increasing, but from what I have seen during the past year I must seriously call your attention once more to the fact, and remind you that however zealous you may be to bring candidates forward, you are not promoting the best interests of the Craft by introducing those whose position in life does not warrant the necessary expenses of Masonry. Our noble Craft is not a benefit society, but it will soon become one unless a better discrimination is displayed in admitting members. I have to thank you for the kind support you have always loyally accorded me, and I can assure you it very much assists me in carrying out my somewhat arduous duties, especially under the present circumstances. I trust that as long as I take any part in the ruling of this Province, that the same assistance will be extended to me. The resolution which I ask you to adopt and allow to be entered on the minutes, and copy sent to Mrs. Brownrigg, is:—

"That this assembly of the members of Provincial Grand Lodge and Provincial Grand Chapter, desire to express to Mrs. Brownrigg and her family their sympathy with them in the great loss they have sustained by the death of the late General Studholme Brownrigg, C.B., P.G.M., and P.G. Superintendent of this Province, and at the same time to testify to the great debt of gratitude this Province owes to him for his invaluable service to the cause of Masonry for a period of 18 years, during which time the Lodges increased from 10 to 34, and the Chapters from 5 to 12; and further this assembly wish to mark their appreciation of his advocacy and encouragement of the principles of Masonry, and the valuable assistance he rendered as ruler of the Province to the great Masonic Institutions."

Bro. West then formally proposed the resolution, which was seconded by Bro. H. J. P. Dumas, and received the cordial assent of Prov. G. Lodge. Bro. Charles Greenwood Prov. G. Secretary drew the attention of the Masters and Secretaries of the various Lodges to the desirability of their being prompt in making their annual returns. Much difficulty was entailed where this neglect prevailed. Shortly afterwards Prov. Grand Lodge was closed. The brethren then repaired to the Church of St. John, Caterham Valley, where a short service was held; the sermon being preached by the Rev. E. A. Chichester Prov. G. Chaplain. Subsequently a banquet was served, and the after proceedings were of an essentially agreeable character. A full toast list was honoured, and the brethren of the entertaining Lodge were congratulated on the success that had attended their efforts to entertain Provincial Grand Lodge.

PROV. G. LODGE BERKS AND BUCKS.

IN the unavoidable absence, through indisposition, of the Prov. G.M. Sir Daniel Gooch, Bart. the members of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Berks and Bucks held their annual meeting in the Assembly Rooms, Reading, on Thursday, the 11th inst., under the presidency of the Deputy Prov. Grand Master the Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg. The brethren were summoned for one o'clock, when Prov. Grand Lodge was opened by Bro. the Rev. J. S. Brownrigg, P.G.C., assisted by Bro. John Tomkins P.P.S.G.W. and a fair attendance of Present and Past Prov. G. Officers. After P.G. Lodge had been formally opened the Deputy Provincial Grand Master expressed great regret, which he was sure was felt by all the brethren, that their esteemed Provincial Grand Master Sir Daniel Gooch was unable to attend, owing to the state of his health. Sir Daniel had not been well for some time, and it was undesirable that he should overtax his strength by undertaking duties which involved a certain amount of toil, as well as pleasure. They all entertained the hope that Sir Daniel's ailment was merely of a temporary character, and that when they next assembled they would have the advantage of his presidency. According to custom, the minutes of the last annual Prov. Grand Lodge, held at High Wycombe, on the 25th June 1888, had been printed and circulated; these were taken as read and unanimously adopted. Bro. Bradley Past Grand Sword Bearer of England Prov. Grand Secretary, read letters he had received; these included communications from Sir Francis Burdett, Bart., Prov. Grand Master Middlesex, Colonel Shadwell Clerke Grand Secretary, Bro. F. West Deputy Prov. Grand Master Surrey, Bro. F. Binckes, &c. The list of Lodges in the Province was then called; nearly all were represented; while the roll of Provincial Grand Officers was also adequately answered. The Treasurer's financial statement and the report of the Charity Committee were presented, and adopted; while sums of money were voted to several Lodges in the Province, to be applied to aid the Masonic Charities. A lengthy discussion ensued in reference to the working of the Charity Committee. It seemed to be the desire of many of the brethren that, the Lodges in the two counties having so materially increased, the time had arrived when the Province should be divided. The Provincial Grand Secretary gave his report upon the condition of the several Lodges. From this it appeared there were 899 members and 221 Past Masters. During the past year 158 regular Lodges and 12 Lodges of emergency had been held, and during the same period there had been 33 joining members and 63 initiations. The increase in the membership during the 12 months had been about 70. A new Lodge (the George Gardner) was consecrated, at Datchet, by the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, on the 13th May, the number of the Lodge being 2309.

The Deputy Provincial Grand Master congratulated the brethren upon the progress which Masonry had made in the Province during the past year, as shown by the gratifying report just read by the Provincial Grand Secretary. The Deputy Provincial Grand Master also alluded to the satisfactory state of the finances, and the valuable services of the Prov. Grand Treasurer, Bro. Charles Stephens, whose re-election he proposed with much pleasure. Bro. E. L. Shepherd P.M. P.J.G.W. seconded the motion, which was unanimously agreed to. The D.P.G.M. then invested the following with the Provincial Charity jewel: Bros. John W. Martin P.M., Maurice Wheeler P.M., Charles E. Belcher P.M., Charles Stephens P.M. (with bars); and M. J. Withers P.M. (with ribbon). The following officers were appointed for the ensuing year:—

Bro. E. Margrett 1101	...	Senior Warden
E. H. Cox 1639	...	Junior Warden
Rev. R. Williams 574	...	Chaplain
Chas. Stephens 414	...	Treasurer
G. H. Charsley 1894	...	Registrar
R. Bradley 414	...	Secretary
T. T. Fountaine 948	...	S.D.
J. W. H. Thompson 2228	...	J.D.
J. E. Sydenham 2043	...	Supt. of Works
W. Sherwood 414	...	D.C.
M. H. Palmer 574	...	A.D.C.
Raymond Tucker 1899	...	Sword Bearer
Maurice Wheeler 945	...	Standard Bearers
Chas. A. Bennett 1787	...	Standard Bearers
G. F. Slade 1887	...	Assist. Sec.
T. Page 771	...	Purst.
Chas. Slaughter 1101	...	Asst. Purst.
J. T. Dodd 414	...	Stewards
B. W. Bennett 2043	...	Stewards
A. Turner 1894	...	Stewards
Stubbington 2043	...	Stewards
W. Hemmings	...	Tyler

After some few other matters had received attention, the Provincial Grand Lodge was closed. The arrangements for the refreshment of the inner man had been entrusted to Bro. Flanagan, of the Great Western Hotel. As a caterer, Bro. Flanagan has deservedly acquired a high reputation. He furnishes his tables in no niggardly spirit, and a general feeling of regret was expressed that a larger proportion of those who attended Prov. G. Lodge did not avail themselves of the opportunity Brother Flangan offered them. After the toast, the Queen and the Craft, had been honoured, the Deputy Prov. G.M proposed the health of the Grand Master of England. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales was not merely a Grand Master in name, but in deed, and there was no detail connected with his high office of which he was not cognizant. Indeed, the Prince took a deep and active interest in everything that concerned the welfare of the Craft, and this was a circumstance which must be highly gratifying and satisfactory to Freemasons. With the next toast, the Pro G.M. the Earl of Carnarvon, the Deputy Grand Master the Earl of Lathom, and the rest of the Grand Officers of England, Present and Past, was associated the name of the estimable Grand Secretary of this Province, Bro. Robert Bradley, Past G.S.B., who in reponse said, that to have his name associated with this toast was regarded by him not only as an honour to himself, but also to the province with which he had had the pleasure of being connected for so many years. They all knew how much they, as Masons, owed to the Prince of Wales. Since his Royal Highness had held office as Grand Master there had been a vast increase in the number of Masonic Lodges throughout the country. The Prince took a warm personal interest in the prosperity of Masonry, and there was no Mason who had worked harder or more assiduously to promote the welfare of the Craft than did the Grand Master himself. As Masons they must all feel anxious that the interesting event in the Prince's family which was soon about to take place would prove a source of satisfaction and happiness to the Prince and Princess of Wales, and the other members of the Royal Family. In speaking of the Grand Secretary, Bro. Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke, Bro. Bradley said that zealous brother gave most thoughtful and careful attention to all matters affecting the welfare of Masonry. In speaking of the R.W. Bro. Sir Daniel Gooch, Bart., Prov. Grand Master, Bro. Brownrigg expressed the regret all the brethren must feel that Sir Daniel was not able to be present. They entertained the hope, however, that Sir Daniel's illness was merely of a transitory character, and that when they next met the Prov. Grand Master would be in his usual place. On Bro. Tompkins P.M. devolved the duty of proposing the next toast, the health of the Deputy Prov. Grand Master, who acknowleged the compliment, and proposed the toast of the Masonic Charities, to which Bro. Terry, the Sec. to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, replied. For the Prov. Grand Officers, Bros. Margrett and Cox responded. For the W.M.'s and Officers of the Reading Lodges, Bros. Shorwood and Slaughter replied. Other toasts given were the health of the Prov. Grand Treasurer and Prov. Grand Secretary, and Bros. Stephens and Bradley replied; the latter announced that the next Prov. Grand Lodge would be held at Aylesbury. The health of the Caterer, Bro. Flanagan, and the Stewards, with the Tyler's toast completed the business. The singing throughout displayed a high order of cultivation. The musical arrangements were carried out by Bros. E. Richardson, H. O. Crane P.M., and W. E. Knowles, under the direction of Bro. A. Rowley P.M.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

—:o:—

SINCERITY LODGE, No. 189.

THE annual meeting was held on the 8th inst., at the Sincerity Masonic Temple, St George's Hall, Stonehouse, Bro. Frank R. Thomas W.M. presiding. Bro. Surgeon Major Allan May having been passed to the second degree, and Bro. W. Thomas (brother to the W.M.) passed to the third degree, the W.M. elect, Bro. J. B. Moulder, was impressively installed. The ceremony was ably performed by Bros. the Rev. T. W. Lemon M.A., Charles Croyden, and Frank R. Thomas the retiring W.M. The Board of Installed Masters being closed, the W.M. invested his Officers, as follow:—Bros. F. R. Thomas I.P.M., Dr. J. Harrison S.W., George Stawell J.W., the Rev. T. W. Lemon Chaplain, George Hawken Treasurer, A. S. Hendry Secretary, S. Graves S.D., George Dunsterville J.D., C. Dunsterville D.C., F. E. Sach A.D.C., W. Blight I.G., J. Parker and Harcourt Foden Senior Stewards, C. Massey and T. Pearn Junior Stewards, and Gidley Tyler. The Treasurer presented a most satisfactory balance-sheet, which was unanimously adopted. The brethren then sat down to a capital supper, supplied by Bro. Dixon.

RURAL PHILANTHROPIC LODGE, No. 291.

A MEETING was held on Friday, the 12th inst., at the Masonic Rooms, at the Railway Hotel, Highbridge, when Bro. T. H. Railton S.W. was duly installed W.M. The installation ceremony was performed by Bro. R. C. Else. The W.M. afterwards appointed his Officers. There was a goodly attendance of Officers and brethren. The customary banquet was afterwards held, under the presidency of the W.M.

APOLLO LODGE, No. 305.

AT the anniversary meeting, held at the Town Hall, Beccles, on the 4th inst., Bros. A. R. Scott was installed W.M., C. Buckland I.P.M., F. J. Allen S.W., Captain Blake J.W., J. T. Ecclestone Treasurer, F. G. Crane Secretary, C. Geer S.D., N. W. Pells J.D., G. Lane I.G., W. H. Cutting Steward, R. S. Norman Tyler. The brethren afterwards adjourned to the King's Head Hotel, for the installation banquet.

MARINERS' LODGE, No. 249.

BRO. William Hewson was, on the 4th inst., in the presence of a very large assembly of members and visiting brethren, at the Masonic Temple, Hope Street, Liverpool, duly installed as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. The W.M. elect was presented for installation by Bros. R. G. Bradley and J. Whalley, the ceremony of installation being performed by the retiring W.M., assisted by Bro. J. Hayes. The Officers invested were as follow:—Bros. J. C. Spurr I.P.M., Duncan C. Davidson S.W., W. B. Bridge J.W., J. Hayes Treasurer, E. Shacklady Secretary, Alfred B. Ewart Organist, H. F. Neale S.D., T. Bush J.D., H. Brown I.G., Edmund Routledge S., T. I. Roberts S., F. G. Saunders S., Christopher Fowles S., and H. J. Pye D.C. The brethren subsequently sat down to a banquet, excellently served by Bro. Casey. A capital programme was contributed to by Bros. Nicholls, Fargher, Latham, Busfield, Sweetman, and Shaw, Bro. Ewart furnishing the accompaniments.

AIRE AND CALDER LODGE, No. 458.

ON Friday evening, the 12th inst., this Lodge celebrated its Jubilee. It first met at the Lowther Hotel, on the 12th July 1839, when Bro. Jacques was elected W.M. The brethren had read to them the record of the minutes of the first Lodge. On the motion of Bro. Cawthorn a resolution was ordered to be inscribed on the books, congratulating the W.M. of the Lodge (Bro. R. Dayson) on the attainment of the Jubilee, and expressed the hope that under his guidance, and that of succeeding masters, the principles of Freemasonry would continue to flourish in Goole. Several members spoke to the motion, comment being made on the fact that all the original members had passed away. Congratulatory telegrams were received from several Lodges in the neighbourhood.

ST. PETER'S LODGE, No. 481.

AT the annual festival, held at the Masonic Hall, Maple Street, Newcastle, on Monday, the 8th inst., Bro. John Spearman was presented by the Brethren and Companions of St. Peter's Lodge and Chapter with a very handsome and valuable sterling silver tea and coffee service, in recognition of his able and valuable services as Treasurer for a period of ten years. The presentation was made by Bro. E. Turnbull W.M., and Bro. Spearman very suitably and feelingly responded.

BENEVOLENCE LODGE, No. 666.

THE annual meeting was held at the Masonic Rooms, Princetown, on Wednesday, the 10th inst., when Bro. E. M. Ellis, the unanimously elected Master, was installed. The interesting ceremony was well performed by Bro. W. Holdstock, assisted by a Board of Installed Masters, amongst whom were Bros. Major M. Tracey P.M. 2258, J. R. Lord P.M. 1247, J. B. Gover P.M. 70, J. J. Daw P.M. 282, C. H. Cooper P.M. 105, George Roseveare P.M. 1254, William Male P.M. 110, William Orchard P.M. 164, T. Kerslake W.M. 282, Captain O. W. Every, W. H. Gray, T. Bennett, J. Adams, J. Delaney, and J. Stapleton. The Officers invested were:—Bros. W. H. Johns I.P.M., J. Geake S.W., C. Whiter J.W., O. W. Every Treasurer, Holdstock Secretary, J. Weeks S.D., R. Baker J.D., R. Leak I.G., and T. Balkwill Tyler. Captain O. W. Every was appointed as the reporter on the Committee of Petitions. The Lodge was reported to be in a very good position financially. The brethren adjourned to the Duchy Hotel, where an excellent dinner was served and well appreciated, the hostess, Mrs. Rowe, being especially thanked.

ST. JOHN'S LODGE, No. 673.

BROTHER J. O. Mallabar was, on the 2nd inst., at the Masonic Temple, Hope-street, Liverpool, duly installed as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. There was a very large attendance of members, and amongst the visiting brethren were Bros. A. D. Hesketh, Walter Ervin, R. Foote, W. H. Smith, H. M. Molyneux, Rev. H. G. Vernon, J. M. Tunstall, J. C. Robinson, W. J. Jarman, E. R. Latham, J. B. Galloway, H. Round, G. A. Harradon, R. Warriner, W. M. Lunt, E. Shaw, R. G. Bradley, R. Robertson, R. H. Leake, and J. G. Hassell. The presenting Officers were Bros. J. T. Callow and T. Clark, and the W.M. elect was installed by Bro. J. B. Parker I.P.M. After his installation Bro. J. O. Mallabar W.M. proceeded to invest his Officers, as follow:—Bros. J. B. Parker I.P.M., R. Rawlinson S.W., W. E. Morton J.W., D. Jackson Treasurer, James Williams Secretary, Rev. W. H. Harpur Chaplain, J. T. Callow D.C., Albert E. Workman Organist, W. H. Williams S.D., Joseph Jones J.D., J. Wylie I.G., W. R. Roberts S., T. H. Youds S., W. H. Jones S., and W. H. Ball Tyler. The musical service at the installation was performed by Bros. Kirkham, Heginbotham, Burt, Hudson, and Poulsom, Bro. A. E. Workman presiding at the organ, and these brethren also supplied the musical programme after the banquet, which was served in the large dining-hall, by Bro. Casey, the House Steward. During the evening, Bro. J. B. Parker was presented with a Past Master's jewel.

ST. OSWALD LODGE, No. 850.

THE annual festival took place on the 8th inst. The Lodge was opened at two o'clock, by Bro. G. M. Bond, the retiring W.M., and the ceremony of installation was admirably performed by Bro. T. Cox. The new W.M., Bro. J. R. Rigby, appointed and invested his Officers, as follow:—Bros. G. M. Bond I.P.M., H. Twigg S.W., W. Davenport J.W., J. Young Chaplain, P. R. Littleton Treasurer, J. Howell Secretary, H. Brambles Almoner, W. A. Lytle S.D., A. M. Wither J.D., R. Beardmore D.C., W. H. Tatt Organist, T. O. Farmer I.G., J. T. Marple and W. H. Smedley Stewards, R. Brown Tyler. At the conclusion of the Lodge the brethren adjourned to the Green Man Hotel, where a banquet was provided, Bro. Rigby, the newly-elected W.M., presiding.

FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE

SATURDAY, 20TH JULY 1889.

AMERICAN MASONIC MANIAS.

BY BRO. JACOB NORTON.

WHEN I first came to Boston, I heard for the first time the phrase "Masonic Jurisprudence." When I asked whether Masonic jurisprudence is not embraced in the Masonic Constitutions? I was answered that we have written and unwritten laws, and Masonic jurisprudence means both kinds of laws. But the joke is, there is no agreement among our learned expounders of unwritten laws. I have here a book called "Digest of Masonic Law, being a complete code of Regulations, Decisions, and Opinions," &c., by Geo. Wingate Chase, which is full of contradictions. The mania of Masonic jurisprudence was magnified into a science. Symbolism also had its day. In 1846 (I believe) Mackey gave an outline of about two dozen Masonic landmarks, which he afterwards amplified and enlarged, and which were quoted as "Gospel truth." Since then the mania for expelling Masons for not believing that every word in the Bible was inspired, raged in several Masonic jurisdictions. Still more recently, laws were enacted in some jurisdictions to expel saloon keepers from Masonry, but the most absurd mania which afflicts some jurisdictions is the anti-Cerneauite mania.

To make the subject clear to new subscribers or readers of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE, I must inform them that there are in existence some thirty ceremonies or degrees, which are variously called "Scotch Rite," and "Ancient and Accepted Rite." In reality, however, the said degrees are neither Scotch nor ancient. These degrees, wherever they were introduced, always gave rise to splits, divisions, and discord. Now, in the United States, there are two Sovereigns of that Scotch rite, one is in the South and the other is in the North, but the sovereignty on each side of the dividing line is disputed; the descendants of Cerneau claim jurisdiction over all the "United States and its Territories." These antagonistic factions abuse each other in Billingsgate style, each swears to be the Simon Pure, and denounces the opponent, as bogus, illegitimate, &c. Now, the leading members of the respective Grand Lodges North and South belong either to what is called the "Northern Jurisdiction" of the A. and A. rite, or to the "Southern Jurisdiction" of the same rite. As a rule, the leading dignitaries of the Grand Lodges North and South never paid a cent for the honours of being thirty-thirded or thirty-seconded; these degrees are conferred upon them merely as a bribe to enlist their influence in behalf of the faction; getting, as they do, these degrees for nothing, they are bound to swear through thick and thin that their organization is of the true blue blood, while the other organizations are mere Masonic bastards. For a time their squabbles were confined among themselves, and were only made known through their own publications. But a few years ago a mania began to rage in certain jurisdictions, among the leading members of its Grand Lodges, to pass laws for expelling from Masonry all those who belong to the Scotch rite of the opposite or Cerneau faction. The excuse of the said leaders of Grand Lodge is, that it was the duty of the Grand Lodge to prevent imposition among Masonic brethren. The fact, however, is simply this: both factions are alike worthless, but one faction sells its stuff for one hundred dollars, while the other faction charges for the same stuff only twenty-five dollars. Now our worthy conscientious Grand Lodge members have no objection to our Masonic brethren being cheated out of one hundred dollars, but they are ready to expel a brother Mason who allowed himself to be cheated out of twenty-five dollars.

Bro. Parvin P.G.M., and now Grand Secretary, and also Chairman of the Committee of Foreign Correspondence of Iowa, seemed to have been for some time the champion for Masonic rationalism; he bravely fought, right and left, with all believers or pretended believers in the old nonsense written in bygone times, and he does so still. But even Bro. Parvin has lost his balance on the Saloon Keeper question. I do not think that he pretends to be a total abstinence man; at least he does not seem to insist that Masons must be teetotallers. It seems that he does not object to moderate drinking by Masonic brethren, but he is fiercely opposed to the man who sells them the liquor. This notion seems to me inconsistent, for if a man may drink, he surely must buy the stuff, and if he may buy it, then why may not another man sell it?

They say that in ancient times Masons used to meet on high hills and in low vales. If so they could not have been either English, Scotch, Irish, or American Masons, for, as far as I know, English speaking Masons, from the remotest antiquity, always met in public houses. "The four old Lodges" we read of, who formed the first Grand Lodge, met in public houses. The Grand Lodge of England was originally constituted in a public house, and for many years it continued to hold its meetings in public houses. The engraved Lodge Lists of the last century prove conclusively that Lodges were principally known by the names and signboards of the public houses where they held their meetings, and even to-day a majority of the English Lodges meet in public houses. Henry Price constituted the first regular chartered Lodge in America in a Boston public house, and Franklin's unchartered Lodge in Philadelphia, from its very start in 1731, used to meet in a public house. Now, as a rule, the keepers of public houses where Masons meet are, and always were, Masons, and I never heard that public house keepers behaved worse in Lodges than brethren who follow other trades do. In 1739, that is one hundred and fifty years ago, Bro. Luke Vardy, the keeper of a public house wherein the Boston Lodge used to hold its meetings, walked in a public St. John's Day Masonic procession, in Boston, side by side with Henry Price, Andrew Belcher, and other founders of American legitimate Masonry; and if a public house keeper was worthy of being a Mason then, why cannot one of them be worthy of Masonry to-day? Besides, for a number of years after my arrival in America, the Grand Lodge of New York used to hold its meetings in a public house, and so did every Lodge in New York and Brooklyn. The Grand Lodge of England lets part of its premises for a tavern, or public house, and the manager of Freemasons' Tavern is a Mason, and a worthy one too. In short, public houses may be claimed to have been, in olden times, the hot-houses and nurseries of ancient Freemasonry, and I believe that if there had been no public houses in England for hundreds of years past, we should have been to-day without Masonic Lodges both in England and America.

But that is not all. I was verbally informed (I hope it is not true) that my philosophic friend Bro. Parvin was recently attacked with the now spreading anti-Cerneauism mania. Now, I can understand the reason of extreme teetotallers for opposing the admission or even expelling the Saloon Keepers from Masonry, but I cannot conceive what Bro. Parvin can say against Cerneauism that cannot with equal justice be said against Gourgasism, Pikeism, Templarism, and all other kinds of high degreeism. One is not better than another, and no Grand Lodge has a right to patronise or to recommend either kind of humbug.

But with all Bro. Parvin's new notions, we are still indebted to him for the good he has done, and is still doing, in his efforts to cure our deluded American Masonic writers of their various Masonic manias. In his report of Foreign Correspondence for 1888, Bro. Parvin says, that he had devoted considerable time in preparing an exhaustive attack on the "Ancient Landmark" mania, but he found that it was too long for the space allotted for his publication, but he happened to get hold of some orations delivered by Bro. Albert Pike, at Washington, which answered his purpose completely.

Now, Bro. Pike, though he is an out and out high degreer, and claims to be Sovereign Grand Commander of Great Grandmother Consistory of the World, is, nevertheless, apt now and then to astonish the Masonic noodles with some truth. Now, among these orations one treats on the absurdity of believing in Mackey's 25 ancient landmarks. This oration Bro. Parvin republished in his Proceedings. There may be a few faults in it, but upon the whole it is very good, and, as to the best of my belief, no American Masonic papers have noticed it, I have copied it (merely adding a few notes between brackets) for the benefit of all who are still afflicted with the ancient landmarks mania.

WALTON CHAPTER, No. 1086.

THE Companions of this Chapter met in the Skelmersdale Masonic Hall, Westminster Road, Liverpool, on Friday evening, the 28th ult., for the annual installation of principals and investiture of officers. The Chapter was opened by Companion F. Ewart Z, Companion R. T. Britten H., and Companion J. Unsworth J., there being present upwards of 40 members and visitors, amongst whom were Companions W. Goodacre, J. Hounsdell 203, D. Davies 823, George Eyton 823, &c. Companion Goodacre having taken the chair, Companion F. Ewart presented Companions R. T. Britten, J. Unsworth, and John Lunt, the three principals elect, for installation. Companion Goodacre having given the opening addresses, the installing principal, John Lunt 1086, proceeded with the ceremony, and in a very able manner installed Companion R. T. Britten as first principal, and Companion J. Unsworth as second principal, after which Companion Britton placed Companion John Lunt in the third principal's chair for the ensuing year, and invested the following Companions, viz.:—Companions C. Johnson S.E., W. Young S.N., W. Bushell P.S. (second time), J. Walker A.S., Williamson being re-elected Janitor. The Companions afterwards dined together in the large hall. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given and cordially received. The "Standard Quartette"—Companions Fargher, Williams, Griffiths, and Pugmire—under the conductorship of Professor G. Eyton, discoursed an excellent musical programme.

Israel Chapter of Improvement, No. 205.—A new Chapter of Improvement will be inaugurated at Tupp's Restaurant, 8 Tottenham Court Road, W.C. (Oxford Street end), on Monday, 22nd July. The ceremony of consecration will be rehearsed by E. Comp. Frederick Binckes P.G.S.B. as M.E.Z., assisted by E. Comp. C. F. Hogard P.A.G.D.C. as H., E. Comp. S. V. Abraham M.E.Z. 1017 as J. The proceedings will commence at 6 o'clock precisely, and at the conclusion of the ceremony a supper will be provided, tickets 3s 6d. In order that the convenience of the Companions attending may be studied, Bro. E. H. Norden, the Secretary, will esteem it a favour if Companions will let him know if it is their intention to be present. The regular meetings of the Chapter of Improvement will be held at 8 o'clock on every Monday evening throughout the year. Companions will be heartily welcomed. Preceptor, Comp. H. J. Phillips M.E.Z. 205.

ROYAL STANDARD LODGE, No. 498.

THE annual festival was held on the 10th inst., at the Dudley Arms Hotel, Dudley. Bro. Dr. J. Bellingham was installed W.M. for the year, the installation being performed by Bro. W. J. Gilliver. The following brethren were invested:—Bros. J. W. Roberts S.W., F. G. Thompson J.W., H. H. Hughes S.D., W. Richardson J.D., W. B. Palethorpe Organist, W. Shepley Secretary, A. Green Treasurer, M. Robinson and Prichard Stewards, King I.G., Timmins Tyler, the Rev. J. W. Wilshaw Chaplain, J. Fisher Assistant Chaplain D.C. There was a very large number of visiting brethren, and the ceremony was followed by a banquet.

THE WILLIAM PRESTON LODGE, No 766.

THIS Lodge had a summer outing on Tuesday, the 16th inst. The brethren and their ladies and visitors met at Paddington Railway Station, where a saloon carriage, attached to the 10 o'clock train, conveyed them to Windsor. On arrival there, the commodious steam launch "Fashion" was in waiting, which took them to Caversham. The weather was lovely, and the water trip most enjoyable. An excellent banquet was prepared at Boud's Hotel. The brethren returned by train from Reading, after having had one of the most enjoyable days possible. Amongst those present were:—Bro. G. F. Edwards W.M. and Mrs. Edwards, Bro. W. Worrell P.M. and Sec. and Madame Worrell, Bros. W. J. Heath P.M., W. J. Collens P.M., Bro. J. F. Haden J.D. and Mrs. Haden, Bro. J. G. Kemp and Mrs. and Miss Kemp, Bro. R. C. Wilson and Mrs. Wilson, Bros. M. Woolf, W. Pierson, &c. Visitors.—Bro. G. W. Marsden P.M. 1329 and Mrs. Marsden, Bro. R. J. Voisey P.M. 1329, Bro. J. Hart No. 65 and Mrs. Hart, Bro. J. H. Hawkins P.M. 65, Bro. H. Von Joel P.M. 857 and Mrs. and Miss Von Joel, Bro. C. T. Artaud S.D. 1305 and Mrs. Artaud, &c.

DALHOUSIE LODGE, No. 865.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge was held on Wednesday, the 26th ult (by dispensation from the Provincial Grand Master), at the Church Room, Mordaunt Road, Hounslow. The Lodge having been opened and the minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed, Bros. F. A. Barth and T. W. Barth, and Bros. Thomas and Papworth, of 1585, were passed to the degree of F.C. Bros. Emery, Boyce, Robinson, and Haynes, were raised to the third degree. Bro. Keene then vacated the chair, for Bro. W. C. Williams to act as Installing Master. Bro. R. H. Williams having presented Bro. W. H. Causton W.M. elect, he was most impressively installed into the chair of K.S. by the Installing Master. The following brethren were appointed and invested as the Officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. S. W. Keene I.P.M., G. Swann S.W., P. J. Davies J.W., C. A. Walter Treasurer, W. C. Williams Secretary, C. Woods S.D., John Davies J.D., J. Doble I.G., R. H. Williams D. of C., E. Clare Organist, J. M. Long Steward, and T. Bowler Tyler. The charges were then given in Bro. W. C. Williams' best manner. The account of the audit was given, and it was resolved to adopt and print same for circulation amongst the members. The Secretary having given a notice of motion for the next meeting, it was resolved that a committee be formed for the purpose of carrying out the details for an excursion from Hounslow, on the 17th inst. There being no further business, the Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Red Lion Hotel. The banquet was served in Host Bull's usual sumptuous manner, everything being of the best in quality and quantity, while the tables were beautifully decorated with flowers. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given by the W.M., with a very appropriate speech to each. During the evening Bro. T. W. Heath played a solo on the cornet, which was most vociferously encored, and Bro. Heath kindly played "The last rose of summer." The members of the Lodge may well congratulate themselves on the acquisition of Bro. Theodore Barth, who contributed some beautiful music, vocal and instrumental. Bro. A. J. Turner gave a very laughable recitation, entitled "The quack doctor," and last, though not least, came Bro. Spraggs, who for comic songs is a host in himself. The Lodge will soon be one of the most prosperous Lodges in the Province—within the last four years there have been 30 initiated and 10 joining members admitted.

MERIDIAN LODGE, No. 893.

THE annual installation meeting was held in the Freemasons' Hall, Millbrook, on the 8th inst., when the following were installed for the ensuing year:—Bros. W. E. Marchant W.M., J. Duckett I.P.M., E. Price S.W., G. B. Nicoll J.W., R. H. Frizell Chaplain, Bersey Treasurer, W. H. Bickford Secretary, S. B. Stanton S.D., Wilton J.D., Cowling Inner Guard, Veale Organist, John Price D.C., Ewens S.S., Morey J.S., Fisher Tyler. The installing officer was the I.P.M. (Bro. James Duckett), assisted by the other P.M.'s present, who were:—Bros. W. Harris 893, J. Pearn 893, J. Hocking 893, E. J. Worth 893, Canso 893, Bickford 893, H. J. Barter 1247, N. Radmore 159, A. H. Whidden 122, J. Leonard 202, and several visitors. A handsome P.M.'s jewel was presented to Bro. J. Duckett, the retiring W.M., in appreciation of his Masonic zeal and ability, and he in turn presented the Lodge with a pair of silver wands. The Brethren adjourned to the Commercial Hotel, where a splendid repast was laid. During the evening some capital songs were sung by Bros. Barter, Leonard, Sawdy, Pemberthy, and Whidden, Bro. Veale accompanying on the piano.

ROYAL VICTORIA LODGE, No. 1013.

ON the 3rd inst., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, Bro. Frederick Evans was duly installed as Worshipful Master of this Lodge. The Worshipful Master elect was presented by Bros.

T. W. Edwards and W. F. M'Donnell, the Installing Officer being Bro. T. K. Hughes. After his installation, the new W.M. proceeded to invest his Officers, as follow:—Bros. W. F. M'Donnell I.P.M., H. W. Thornton S.W., W. M'William J.W., W. Warburton S.D., J. W. Glendinning J.D., G. Broadbent I.G., Squire Chapman Treasurer, T. K. Hughes Dir. of Cers., J. W. Napton Secretary, E. Barnett, P. B. Warburton, T. P. Bethell and G. Proudman Stewards, J. Jones Org., Peter Ball Tyler. Subsequently the brethren sat down to a banquet, provided by Bro. Casey, the House Steward, and the proceedings were enlivened by the musical contributions of Bros. T. W. Edwards, S. Howard, G. Broadbent, W. H. Outram, Geo. Proudman, J. D. Cockerton and R. Woods, Bro. J. Jones presiding at the piano. A Past Master's jewel was presented to Bro. W. F. M'Donnell, the retiring Worshipful Master.

KENNARD LODGE, No. 1258.

ON Thursday, 27th ult., the annual installation festival took place at Pontypool, when Bro. Capt. D. R. Jones, the W.M. elect, was installed as W. Master for the ensuing year, the ceremony being very ably performed by Bro. J. Holloway, assisted by Bro. Dr. Mulligan. After the ceremony, the W.M. invested his Officers, as follow:—Bros. Dr. Edmunds I.P.M., D. E. Williams S.W., H. Griffiths J.W., H. Feather Secretary, W. H. Haskins Organist and Treasurer, H. J. Parkhurst S.D., A. H. Watkins J.D., D. M. Llewellin I.G., R. Herbert and W. S. Mends Stewards, Winkworth and Johnson Tylers. The Lodge having been closed in due form, the brethren adjourned to the Crown Hotel, where a sumptous repast was partaken of, under the presidency of Bro. Capt. D. R. Jones, the newly-installed Master. The tables having been cleared, the toast list was proceeded with, the loyal toasts being, as usual, heartily honoured. Bro. J. W. Mulligan, in proposing the health of the newly-installed W.M., said he had known him for many years in many walks of life—as a Mason, as a Brother-Officer in the Volunteers, as a civilian, and as a neighbour—and everything he had known of him redounded to his credit. He was sure that Bro. D. R. Jones would make an excellent Master for the Kennard Lodge, and had great pleasure in proposing the toast of his health. The toast was heartily received, and was accorded musical honours. The W.M., in responding, said he deeply felt the great honour that had been done him that day. It was his intention to follow in the footsteps of those who had gone before him in the office, and to do all he could for the prosperity and advancement of the Lodge. The W.M. afterwards proposed the toast of the Right Worshipful Col. Lyne P.G.M., the Very Worshipful Capt. Geo. Homfray D.P.G.M., and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers, a toast which was received with acclamation. Bro. G. Homfray D.P.G.M., in responding, expressed the great pleasure he had in being present that day, and stated that he had never missed attending the annual festival at Pontypool since the Lodge had been opened. He was glad to say that at the last Festival of the R. M. Institution for Boys the Province of Monmouth stood well, and he had been enabled to take up a large sum of money. Bro. D. E. Williams J.W. next proposed the health of the Immediate Past Master, Dr. R. Edmunds, remarking that he was sure that during the Past Master's year of office he had done all that he could to advance the interests of the Lodge, and that during his term of office he had only been absent on two occasions. He felt sure that his non-attendance on those occasions was due to no fault of his own. The toast having been received with musical honours, Bro. R. Edmunds responded in appropriate terms for the compliment paid him, after which Bro. D. Williams proposed the health of the Installing Masters, Bros. Holloway and Mulligan, stating in the course of his remarks that he had been, and he was sure every Brother in the Lodge had been very much impressed with the manner in which the installation ceremony had been gone through that day. He felt sure they could not find in the Province of Monmouth two brethren who could have gone through the ceremony in a more able and impressive manner than the brethren named had done that day. Bro. J. Holloway responded on behalf of himself and Bro. Mulligan (who had just left), and said he thanked Bro. D. Williams for the kind way in which he had proposed the toast, and the brethren generally for the heartiness with which they had received it. It had been a great pleasure to him to have had the honour of installing their Worshipful Master, as he felt sure that they had that day placed a worthy Mason in a very honourable position. In wishing him a happy and prosperous year of office, he begged to assure him that if there was anything he could do, as far as his limited ability would allow, he should be only too pleased to place his services at his disposal. The time-honoured toast of to all Poor and Distressed Masons, proposed in fitting terms by Bro. Winkworth, brought the toast list to a close. The proceedings, which were of an enjoyable character throughout, were enlivened at intervals by some capital songs by Bros. W. H. Haskins, H. Fox, D. Williams, &c., and recitations by Bros. D. R. Jones, J. Holloway, D. E. Williams, &c.

TOXTETH LODGE, No. 1356.

ON the 10th inst., the brethren celebrated their annual festival at their commodious hall in North-hill Street, Liverpool. The only Lodge situated at the south end, it is a great favourite with the Craft. It has had several years of prosperity, and it was formerly known as the "De Grey and Ripon," but after the retirement of the Grand Master whose name the Lodge bore, it was felt desirable to give it a local character by changing its name. After the installation, which was very effectively performed by Bro. B. Holgate, the candidate, Bro. Lawrance Phillips, being presented by Bros. T. Nickson and John Ashton, the following Officers were appointed and invested:—Bros. A. H. Hughes I.P.M., D. M'Farlane S.W., R. W. Chatham J.W., J. J. Williams P.M. Treasurer, James Rankin Secretary, H. Bridger S.D., Theo. Williams J.D., W. Hudson Organist, A. Jones I.G., J. Lloyd S.S., Phipps Williams J.S., J. A. Glover A.S., R. Watt A.S. Bro. F. De Chemin was re-elected Tyler. The brethren afterwards dined together, when the usual loyal and patriotic toasts were duly honoured, and during the evening the I.P.M. Bro. H. H. Hughes was presented with a handsome P.M.'s jewel, on behalf of the Lodge, accompanied by a valuable silver tea and coffee service (on the part of the Officers) for Mrs. Hughes. The picnic this year is to be held at Bolton Abbey.

SACKVILLE LODGE, No. 1619.

THE annual installation festival took place at the Masonic rooms East Grinstead, on Tuesday, the 2nd inst., when Bro. George Mitchell was installed Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. Bro. Hoskin W.M. performed the ceremony, in a very able manner. The Officers appointed were:—Bros. W. H. Brown S.W., G. Wilson J.W., F. J. Baker S.D., G. D. Woolgar J.D., R. White I.G., Evelyn A. Head Treasurer, and A. M. Betchley Secretary. Following this ceremony a banquet was held in the large room at the Crown Hotel, Bro. George Mitchell, the W.M., presiding. The usual loyal and fraternal toasts were given. The toast of health to the Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Sussex, and the Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge, was acknowledged by Bros. Metcalf, Denman, and Betchley. Bro. Hopkins, in felicitous language, submitted the toast of the W.M., who replied. The toast of the visitors elicited very warm approval from the visiting brethren of the manner in which the business of the Lodge was conducted, and in which Bro. Hopkins had conducted the installation ceremony that day.

TILBURY LODGE, No. 2006.

THE brethren of this lodge assembled at the Tilbury Hotel, at the early hour of "high twelve," in order to dispose of the business of the Lodge previous to embarking for an excursion down the river Thames, on the 13th inst. The W.M., Dr. S. J. J. Kirby, presided, and was supported by the following Officers:—Bros. W. W. Barber S.W., W. J. Crump J.W., J. Burton S.D., Dr. Fred. H. Davies J.D., A. G. Dudgeon Treasurer, and W. L. Dudgeon Secretary. Bro. A. N. Hughes acted as I.G. There were also present Bros. F. C. Ahlfeldt, John Lowe, W. H. Barber, Bradshawe Brown, Orlton Cooper, and several others. The minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, the Treasurer presented his report, which showed a satisfactory balance. Mr. Watter Christie and Mr. Wm. Ed. Newcombe were then nominated, balloted for, and accepted, after which the W.M. proceeded to initiate them, and performed the ceremony in a highly impressive manner. The newly-made brothers having received the congratulations of those present, the Lodge was adjourned till October. The brethren then embarked at the Tilbury Dock Basin, and the weather proving propitious, they enjoyed a very pleasant trip. A cold collation was provided on board by Bro. J. W. Smith, of the Tilbury Hotel.

On Tuesday, the 9th inst., the half yearly meeting of the Charities Committee of the Province of Durham was held at the Masonic Hall, Durham. Bro. C. S. Lane presided. The officers of the Committee were re-elected, as follows:—Bros. C. S. Lane Chairman, T. Bradley Secretary, M. Corbitt Treasurer, C. S. Lane, M. Corbitt, S. Fenny, T. Coulson, D. P. Huntley, T. Bradley, and R. Singleton, Sub-Committee. Some applications in regard to the London Schools and two county applications were considered. The latter the committee were unable to deal with in a satisfactory manner. The former were deferred, owing to prior claims. The Durham Masonic Education Fund was reported to be progressing satisfactorily.

The twenty-first Anniversary Festival of the Mark Benevolent Fund will be celebrated on Wednesday next, the 24th instant, at the Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, Lincoln's Inn Field. R.W. Bro. Sir Lionel E. Darell, Bart., G.J.W., will preside. Dinner will be served at 5·30 for 6.

The Family Churchman has the following in regard to the forthcoming visit of the Queen to North Wales:—

"It has been arranged that the Princess Beatrice will lay the foundation stone of Barmouth Church. The Masonic ceremonial, we are sorry to see, is again to be dragged into the function. No doubt it is picturesque enough, but it is a pity that the Church's own ceremonial should be put aside in favour of that of a purely voluntary secular society.

By the kind permission of Mr. George Edwardes, Mr. George Stone will take his first benefit at the Gaiety Theatre, on Saturday morning, 27th July, when, in addition to an act from "Faust up to Date," and one from "Esmeralda," most of the prominent artistes on the London stage will assist.

The Vaudeville will re-open on Monday, 29th inst., with a new play, entitled "In Danger," by Messrs. W. Lestocq and H. Grosewell. The piece will be produced by arrangement with Mr. John Hare.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—The stomach and its troubles cause more discomfort and bring more unhappiness than is commonly supposed. The thousand ills that settle there may be prevented or dislodged by the judicious use of these purifying Pills, which act as a sure, gentle anti-acid specific, without annoying the nerves of the susceptible or irritating the most delicate organisation. Holloway's Pills will bestow comfort and confer relief on every hepatic, dyspeptic, and sickly sufferer whose tortures make him a burden to himself and a bugbear to his friends. These Pills have long been the popular remedy for a weak stomach, for a disordered liver, or a paralysed digestion, which yield without difficulty to their regulating, purifying, and tonic qualities.

THE GRAND LODGE OF NEW YORK.

THE delegates to the 108th Annual Communication of the State of New York met in the Masonic Temple, at Twenty-third-street, and Sixth-avenue, on the 4th ult. At 2 o'clock the order was given to fall in line, and the 700 representatives of the various Lodges throughout the State, wearing their glittering jewels and beautiful regalia, proceeded to the council chamber, were they were received by the resident members. During the interval taken up in seating the delegates, the organist, George W. Morgan, assisted by the St. Cecile Lodge, furnished appropriate music. Prayer was then offered by the Rev. Dr. Robert Collyer, after which the "New Jubilee March" was played.

After receiving a number of distinguished visitors from England, Scotland and Ireland, and several States in the Union, Grand Master Frank R. Lawrence delivered his address, which was interrupted frequently by applause from the hearers. "For the first time in its history, the Grand Lodge assembles to-day in a home which is absolutely its own," said the Grand Master, "a home over which no debt casts its shadow, against which no man holds the smallest claim. The sounds of our recent rejoicing have scarcely died away when we come together, to take sober account of the doings of the past and to develop further plans for the future." The Grand Master then devoted considerable time to the commemoration of deceased members, to the dispensations and appointments. Referring to the Washington Centennial, he said:

At about the beginning of the year I was invited to designate, and did designate, three members of the Grand Lodge as members of the General Committee, having the celebration in charge, understanding the invitation as signifying a desire that the Masonic Fraternity should take part in the proceedings. Although the brethren designated by me were appointed as members of the General Committee several months before the celebration their views were not requested upon any subject connected with the purpose for which the Committee was organised. They were never notified of the holding of a meeting of the committee, nor, so far as they are aware, was such a meeting held subsequently to their appointment. The ceremonies, I am happy to say, were altogether successful. The subject is here mentioned only in order that the omission of our Fraternity to take an appropriate part in them may not remain without explanation.

He added further, as to the policy of the Grand Lodge in granting dispensations for new Lodges, that it had been to discourage such applications, and he believed rightfully. Touching upon the relations with sister Grand Lodges, the Grand Master gave a protracted history of the difficulty with the Grand Lodge of New Jersey, regarding the Lemm brothers. "As the matter stands," continued the Grand Master, "the regular initiation of a candidate in a Lodge under our jurisdiction has been branded as 'unlawful, without Masonic virtue, null, void and of no effect,' and one whom we recognise as one of our brethren is denied that fraternal intercourse which must be enjoyed by all Masons of this State. Our request for the arbitration of the question has been assented to, after a delay of many months." It would, he added, soon be amicably settled.

The Grand Master then spoke of the Hall and Asylum Fund, which amounted, all told, to 140,000 dollars. The bonds, he said, had been completely paid off, and the improvement which had taken place in the financial affairs of the Grand Lodge amounted to more than 600,000 dollars in the last four years.

The report of the Grand Secretary, E. M. L. Ehlers, showed a balance on hand, after all expenditures, of 30,921·81 dollars. There will be meetings this morning at 9 o'clock, and this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The Grand Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, met in the Grand Commandery room, Masonic Temple, on the same morning. Sister Martha W. Travers, Most Worthy Grand Matron, presided. Members were present from all parts of the State. A Chapter meeting was held at the Crescent Chapter Rooms, Masonic Hall, East Brooklyn, last evening. The order will meet to-day at 9 a.m. and at 2 p.m.

Kane Lodge No. 454 gave a reception to the visiting delegates of the Assembly, at its rooms in Masonic Hall, last evening. The programme was interesting and varied. The prominent features were: Reception of Grand Officers and visitors by Rollin M. Morgan, Master; presentation of testimonial to Thomas E. Stewart, Past Master; introduction of Arctic explorers by Charles J. Bliven; address of welcome by J. Edward Simmons, Past Grand Master; an address "The Abandonment of the Brig 'Advance,'" by J. Wall Wilson, and the presentation of a historical painting entitled "Farewell" to Kane Lodge, by Albert Operti, the artist.—New York Tribune.

EADE'S
GOUT & RHEUMATIC PILLS.

The SAFEST and most EFFECTUAL CURE for GOUT, RHEUMATISM, and all PAINS in the HEAD, FACE, and LIMBS.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL from the Rev. F. FARVIS, Baptist Minister.

Mr. G. EADE. March 19, 1887.

Dear Sir,—I have many times felt inclined to inform you of the benefit I have received by taking your Gout and Rheumatic Pills. After suffering for some time from Rheumatics and Sciatica, I was advised to use your Pills. I bought a bottle, and when in severe pain and unable to use the limb affected I took a dose. In a few hours after I felt the pain much better, and after the second dose the pain completely removed and the limb restored to its right use. I thank you, dear sir, for sending forth such a boon for the relief of human suffering.

Yours faithfully,
F. FARVIS,
Baptist Minister.

There are multitudes of people who look upon advertising as a sort of Lottery, and bestow infinitely more thought in the selection of a clerk at £100 a year than in the expenditure of £1000, or two in the same period in advertising. A tithe of the shrewdness displayed in all other branches of their business given to the management of their advertising will be amply repaid. The ADVERTISEMENT AGENT has become an indispensable factor in this matter of publicity, and his raison d'être is perfectly unassailable. Would you leave or enter a port without a pilot? Would you commence and prosecute a law suit without a legal adviser? Either of these courses would not be more foolish than rushing into expenses in Advertising without a competent practical and professional adviser. I am at all times happy to render advertisers every assistance in my power, and to give them the benefit of the experience I have gained during the past twenty years as a London advertising agent. My Dear Doctor,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

Are universally admitted to be worth a Guinea a Box for Nervous and Bilious Disorders, such as wind and pain in the stomach, sick headache, giddiness, fullness and swelling after meals, dizziness and drowsiness, cold chills, flushings of heat, loss of appetite, shortness of breath, costiveness, scurvy, blotches on the skin, disturbed sleep, frightful dreams, and all nervous and trembling sensations, &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes. This is no fiction, for they have done it in thousands of cases. Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all humours, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no medicine to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

For a weak stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the liver they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse in action with the ROSEBUD of health the whole physical energy of the human frame. These are the "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of society, and one of the best guarantees to the nervous and debilitated, is that

THE MARK BENEVOLENT FUND.

THIS year's Anniversary Festival of the Mark Benevolent Fund, which was held on Wednesday, affords a further exemplification of the desire of English Freemasons to uphold the splendid reputation the Order has already gained as a medium for dispensing Charity, and affording relief to those members or their families who unfortunately fall into distressed circumstances. For the last twenty-one years it has been the custom for brethren associated with Mark Masonry to hold an Annual Festival on behalf of a special Benevolent Fund for the Degree, and almost every year the total of the subscriptions announced in connection with these Festivals has exceeded the result of the preceding one; indeed, the whole career of the Fund may be described as a continuation of successes, and to-day we find the organisation, which was started but a comparatively short time back, with modest pretensions, has risen to the dimensions of a national Institution, drawing support from all parts of the world, where English Mark Masonry is known, and affording a means of alleviating some of the distress which prevails over an equally wide area.

This year's contributions to the Mark Fund of Benevolence show an increase, as compared with the total of last year, although they hardly reach to what was realised in the Jubilee year, 1887, when, under the presidency of the Right Hon. Earl Amherst, a sum of £2260 was realised. With this one exception the support given this year is the largest ever known in the history of the Fund, and it hardly seems possible, when we look at the £2084 2s 6d total of Wednesday last, that as recently as 1869 the first Festival was held, under the presidency of the lately deceased Canon Portal, when the modest sum of £97 2s 8d was contributed, at the hands of six Stewards. The following year (1870) the total was but £53 odd, while in 1871 it rose to £85 8s. For the next few years it varied from £176 11s 6d in 1875, to £96 15s in 1876, after which we have a jump to £221 9s in 1877, since which period the success of the Fund may be said to have been assured, the contributions gradually rising, until, in 1884, they totalled up to £832 19s. Then came a period of great prosperity for the Fund, the succeeding year's total being more than double that of its predecessor, the actual figures of 1885 being £1721 16s 6d. The year 1886 showed a slight falling off, £1534 10s 6d being collected, but this was amply compensated for by the grand success of the following year—to which we have already alluded—the £2260 of 1887. This was succeeded by an announce- of £1818 12s, and now we have the £2084 2s 6d of the current year. Altogether then we may look upon the present income of this special Masonic Charity as something like two thousand pounds per annum, with the same prospects of its increasing in the future, year by year, as it has done in the past, providing the need exists for more liberal support, and that, unfortunately, is always sure to be the case.

The fund thus raised by the Mark Degree is devoted to the relief of special cases of distress brought under the notice of the General Board, while provision is also made for permanent annuities for the aged of both sexes, and the education of both boys and girls, children of Mark Master Masons. All moneys are equally divided for these three objects, and so carefully have they been distributed in years gone by that no applicant for either branch, whose case has been found worthy, has ever been sent away unrelieved. This is saying a great deal, when we remember the many thousands who have been associated with the English Mark Grand Lodge, and we hope that the same most satisfactory state of affairs may always continue, both for the sake of those who may need help, as well as for the reputation of the Mark Degree.

MARK MASONRY.

—:o:—

A SPECIAL Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of England and Wales and the Colonies and Dependencies of the British Crown was held on Wednesday, at No. 8a Red Lion-square. Lord Egerton of Tatton, M.W. Pro G.M., presided, and among the brethren present were:—W. J. Hughan P.G.W. acting as S.G. Warden, Sir Lionel Darell J.G.W., W. G. Lemon S.G.O., H. Kynaston G. Chap., Frank Richardson G. Registrar, Frank Sumner Knyvett S.G.D., H. E. Cousans J.G.D., Robert Berridge G.D.C., J. B. Bridgeman A.G.D.C., J. H. Matthews A.G.D.C., T. B. Purchas G.S.B., J. Mainwaring G.I.G., J. W. H. Thompson, S. Knight, and J. M. Collins G. Stewards, Baron de Ferrières P.G.M. Gloucester and Herefordshire, J. H. Wynne P.G.I.G., C. F. Woodall P.S.G.D., J. L. Murray P.G. Standard Bearer, N. T. West P.G.O., Alfred Williams P.G.M.O., Walter Adlard P.G.M.O., Geo. Allen P.G.O., Geo. Graveley P.G.S.B., John A. Lloyd P.G.C., John Ramsey P.A.G.D.C., Driver P G. Standard Bearer, R. I. Emmens P.G.M.O., B. R. Bryant P.G. Standard Bearer, T. Cubitt P.S.G.O., E. T. Hoare P.G. Organist, J. S. Cumberland P.J.G.O., G. Powell P.G.S., James Stevens P.G.J.O., George Mickley P.G.D., Jabez Church P.G.S., A. B. Cook P.G.M.O., Chas. H. Driver P.G.M.O., Lord Euston P.S.G.W. P.G.B., Thos. J. Ralling P.G.D., Edwin M. Lott P.G. Organist, W. H. Kempster, M.D., P.G. Steward, R. Loveland Loveland D.P.G.M.M. Hants, and others. After preliminaries Lord Egerton of Tatton said: Brethren, you have heard the notice just read convening this meeting, the object of which is to receive a special communication from his Royal Highness the M.W.G.M. I have received a letter from Sir Francis Knollys, in which it is stated that his Royal Highness entirely approves of the recommendations of the General Board, which are—first, that a Special Grand Mark Lodge be held to invest a new Grand Secretary in the place of Bro. Binckes, who has resigned; his Royal Highness has also signified his approval of the recommendation that a sum of £125 be given to Bro. Binckes as a retiring allowance. I have now, therefore, to signify his Royal Highness's approval of the appointment of Bro. Matier, Assistant Grand Secretary, as Grand Secretary—and I have his Royal Highness's command to invest him, in lieu of Bro. Binckes, as Grand Secretary. In answer to a question from Bro. Percy Wallis (Derby), Lord Egerton of Tatton said, that the retiring allowance was to be an annual allowance. The Earl of Euston formerly moved that a retiring allowance of £125 a year be granted to Bro. Binckes. Lord Egerton said we like to do that which is right and just to a man who has served Mark Masonry so well and so long. At the General Board, when Bro. Binckes signified his intention to retire, we thoroughly investigated the matter, and we unanimously recommended to his Royal Highness the M.W.G.M., that this allowance should be awarded to Bro. Binckes, in consideration of his past services to the Order of Mark Masons. I have the greatest pleasure in moving, now, that a retiring allowance of £125 be voted by Grand Mark Lodge; that the sum of £125 a year be given to him, from the Funds of Grand Mark Lodge. Lord Euston stated that Brother Binckes sent the resignation through him to His Royal Highness. His Royal Highness accepted it, and confirmed the recommendation of the General Board, that Bro. Matier should be appointed Grand Secretary. Brother Frank Richardson, Grand Registrar, as President of the General Board, had much pleasure in seconding this resolution. Bro. Binckes had served Mark Masonry well and truly, and should receive some recognition of appreciation for his services. He had, therefore, much pleasure in seconding the motion, which was put and carried. Brother C. F. Matier was then formally invested with the collar and jewel of Grand Secretary. Bro. W. J. Hughan said: Most Worshipful Pro Grand Master, will you allow me, as the representative of the Grand Chapter of Pennsylvania, in Grand Mark Lodge of England, to present "Hearty good wishes" of that Grand Chapter to this Grand Lodge. It was the first Grand Chapter that recognised this Grand Lodge. I am sorry that one of the brethren from the United States is not here. He left this country this morning, and he very much regrets not being able to be present. He represents 150,000 Mark Masons, of the United States and Canada, and he thought such good wishes were worth having. He was happy also to say that he heartily congratulated this Grand Lodge on the appointment of Bro. Matier, as Grand Secretary. Bro. Matier was then formally saluted, and Lord Egerton said there was no other business on the paper, but there was one event which was about to happen that he felt justified in asking the brethren to give a favourable reception to. He alluded to the approaching marriage of the eldest daughter of our Grand Master, the Princess Louise, with the Earl of Fife. He was sure that an event like that, which affects so closely the welfare and happiness of His Royal Highness the Most Worshipful Grand Master, must be recognised by all Mark Masons, and would give every satisfaction to Mark Masons, who would also like to testify their loyalty and affection to their Grand Master on such an occasion; therefore it would not be inappropriate that he should move that a humble address be presented to His Royal Highness the Most Worshipful Grand Master, congratulating him on the auspicious event of the marriage of his eldest daughter, the Princess Louise, with the Earl of Fife. All would agree that we should not allow this opportunity to pass by without expressing our great joy and sympathy with his Royal Highness on such an interesting occasion. We know also that her Royal Highness, like all the members of the Royal Family, has been well known to Masons on various public occasions, and has shown her interest in all Masonic events. We also know that Lord Fife has taken a prominent part in Scotland in Masonry, as Provincial Grand Master of Banffshire, and he is also known as a Royal Arch Mason in the Scottish Order. We have therefore every reason to greatly congratulate ourselves, as Masons, that the eldest daughter of our Grand Master is about to ally herself to a distinguished Mason. He had much pleasure in moving the resolution, and he trusted it would be received as cordially by Grand Lodge as he moved it. "That a congratulatory address be presented to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Grand Mark Master, on the auspicious marriage of H.R.H. the Princess Louise of Wales with Bro. the Earl of Fife, P.G.M. of Banffshire." The Earl of Euston seconded the motion. No words were needed from him, after what the Most Worshipful Pro Grand Master had said. Mark Masons are loyal, and wish every happiness to their Grand Master and his family. After some other matters had been considered, Grand Mark Lodge was closed.

MARK BENEVOLENT FUND.

THE annual festival was held on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Tavern, where a large company of ladies and brethren, presided over by Sir Lionel Darell, Junior Grand Warden, attended. Among those present were Lady Darell, and Miss Darell; Right Hon. the Earl of Euston, President General Board; Col. Shadwell H. Clerke P.S.G.W.; Major A. B. Cook P.G.M.O., and Mrs. Cook; Seva Ram and Mrs. Ram, of Lahore; E. X. Lehon P.G.D. P.G. Secretary Jamaica; Frank Richardson G. Registrar, Vice-President General Board; C. F. Matier P.G.W. G. Secretary, Secretary M.B.F.; James Moon P.G. Treasurer, Thos. Fenn P.G.W., Geo. Mickley P.G.D., J. D. Murray P.G.D., G. W. Marsden, Dr. Zacharie G.S.R. Secret Monitor, Alfred Williams P.G. Overseer, Col. Marmaduke Ramsey D.G.M. Mediterranean, A. F. Godson P.G.M. Worcestershire, Baron de Ferrières P.G.M. Gloucestershire and Herefordshire, Robert Berridge G.D. of C., Dr. Purchase G. Standard Bearer, R. J. Emmerson P.G.O., Rev. H. R. Cooper-Smith P.G.O., Horatio Ward P.G.D., Percy Wallis P.G.D., A. Woodiwiss, Mayor of Derby, C. H. Driver P.G.M.O., Geo. Cooper P.G.O., and James Terry P.A.G.D.C. After the banquet the toast the Queen and Mark Masonry was cordially received. The Chairman in proposing the health of the M.W.G.M.M.M. said, wherever the Prince of Wales could, he did everything to promote the highest interests of Freemasonry. The G.M. had many onerous and arduous duties, and the brethren knew how faithfully and strictly he performed them. He might say, without fear of contradiction that no man in the world performed the duties of his high station with a greater sense of responsibility than did the Grand Mark Master. This might also be said with regard to the rest of the Royal Family. On the present occasion, especially as the festive board was graced with the presence of ladies, he must allude to the happy event which was about to take place in the family of the Grand Master, viz., the marriage of his eldest daughter, the Princess Louise, with the Earl of Fife. They were assured by their Grand Master that this marriage was one of love and affection. Lord Fife was a Mason, he was Prov. G. Master of Banffshire, also a Mark Mason. On the present occasion, in drinking to the health of the Grand Master, he must couple the Princess of Wales, the Princess Louise and Lord Fife, the bride and bridegroom, wishing them long life, health, happiness, prosperity, and God speed. The Chairman next proposed the Pro Grand Master the Right Hon. the Lord Egerton of Tatton, and the Past Grand Masters, the Right Hon. Lord Leigh, the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, the Right Hon. the Earl Amherst, W. W. B. Beach, Esq., M.P., the Right Hon. the Earl Percy, M.P., the Right Hon. the Earl of Limerick, the Right Hon. the Earl of Lathom, the Right Hon. the Lord Henniker, and the Right Hon. the Earl of Kintore. Lord Egerton of Tatton was very sorry he was not able to be present. All knew full well the good work that these Past Grand Masters have done, and we are quite sure they will always do what they can to promote the best interests of Mark Masonry. The Chairman, in giving the toast of the R.W. Bro. the Most Hon. the Marquis of Hertford, Deputy Grand Master, Prov. Grand Master of Warwickshire, and that of the Grand Officers Present and Past, said it was fresh in the memories of most of them how well and ably the Marquis of Hertford had filled the Chair at this Festival last year, They were always glad on these occasions to welcome Grand Officers, and they were glad to see them present that evening. With the toast would be associated the name of Bro. the Rev. T. Robinson, Provincial Grand Master of Kent. Bro. Rev. T. Robinson thanked the brethren on behalf of his brother Officers,—whether noblemen or commoners, whether present or past, whether belonging to the Metropolis or to the Provinces; he returned sincere thanks for the way in which the toast had been received. Every Master of a Lodge, every Grand Office must have its Officers; and we are all sensible of the honour which the Grand Master has done us in promoting us to high office. If, in case of death or sickness, or the pressure of secular avocations, a Present Officer is prevented from doing his work, there are others always ready to step forward, out of loyalty to their chief, to take his place. The Earl of Euston rose; the toast he was about to submit to the notice of the brethren was one they would all drink with enthusiasm; it gave him the most hearty pleasure to propose it, because the Chairman of the evening was a personal friend. Those who did not know the Chairman so well as he did, might be assured Sir Lionel Darrell was a thorough good Mason, from the crown of his head to the sole of his foot. He would ask them to drink most heartily to the toast, wishing Sir Lionel good luck in the future, and that he might live amongst them to help them by the earnest way in which he always took up whatever work he put his hand to. In reply the Chairman said he was much obliged to their good brother for the far too flattering manner in which he had mentioned his name, and to the ladies and brethren for the way in which they had received the toast. He could assure them that he really had the greatest appreciation of Masonry. The word "Mason" always to him had a good metallic ring about it. It was now his pleasure to propose the toast of the evening—viz., "Prosperity to the Mark Benevolent Fund." When he was asked to take the chair on this occasion he did so with some diffidence, not for fear of the present, for their good Bro. Matier would shortly announce the Stewards' lists, which he hoped would be a fair record with those of former years, but it was for the future of the Mark Benevolent Fund that he appealed that evening. This Fund was founded some 21 years ago. It differed from other Masonic Institutions, in that it had no houses to keep up, and was at very little expense; in fact, with the exception of printing and postage, and an annual grant to the Secretary, all the money that was subscribed went for actual benevolence. It was divided into three branches, the benevolent, the educational, and the annuity. Sums for the benevolent were given in relief every month by the General Board, and since the year 1869 these sums had amounted to considerably over £2000. The educational branch was established only in 1879, and since that time 40 children had been educated at their own homes under the care of their parents and guardians, and in the year 1886 it was resolved that £5 be annually given to each pupil for clothes. This required a yearly expenditure of something like £450. The annuity branch was founded in the year 1885, by the liberality of Lord Egerton of Tatton, who as a nucleus to the Fund gave a sum of £105. The Fund now gave to five old brethren £26 a year each, and £5 extra was given at Christmas. There were three candidates now seeking relief, but it would depend on the liberality of the Stewards to attend those benefits. He might say that at the first Festival the Benevolent Fund realised a sum of only £50, and in the year 1887 it reached the substantial sum of £2320. The brethren would see from this the excellent work this Mark Benevolent Fund was doing, and he called upon the company one and all to do everything in their power to increase and augment that Fund. It was that night celebrating its majority,—its 21st year. They looked upon a man as not having come to full age till he had become 21 years old; then, as a general rule, he grew in strength, and generally in size. So he trusted it would be with this Fund. He hoped that Mark Masonry would grow in strength, by the increase of its members, and that it would increase in size, by reason of the increase in its funds. He really did not think he need say anything further about this most excellent Fund, which commended itself most heartily and cordially to each and every one of them. He now had the pleasure of making the announcement, which he was sure would be a most popular one. Most of them were aware that Bro. Binckes had resigned the office of Grand Secretary, and it had been the pleasure of the Grand Master to confer that office on Bro. Matier. Some of the brethren had that afternoon had the opportunity of seeing that brother invested with the collar of the office, by Lord Egerton of Tatton. It would be invidious on his part, in his presence, to speak of what Bro. Matier had done for the Mark Benevolent Fund, because they all knew his good work. He should therefore content himself with asking the company to drink to the future prosperity of the Mark Benevolent Fund. With the toast he should couple the name of their Grand Secretary Bro. Matier. He should ask them to drink his very good health; long life and happiness to him, and to congratulate him on the honour which had been conferred upon him, an honour which he so richly deserved. Bro. Matier, who was received with, loud cheers, said before he read the result of the list of Stewards, who had so heartily worked for the success of to-night's proceedings, would they permit him to express how much he felt, and how deeply he appreciated, the sentiments expressed. It should be his aim to do everything in his power to promote the interests of the Order, and the extension of the Mark Benevolent Fund. Though not on this occasion breaking the record, he could congratulate the Chairman on being the President of the second most successful gathering that has taken place in the annals of the Mark Benevolent Fund. We have one Steward to-night who has brought up—from the Rose and Thistle Lodge of Wigan, in Lancashire—the large sum—the totally unprecedented amount—of 200 guineas. Bro. Matier then announced the lists, of which we append details. Baron de Ferrières said Masonry was established for the promotion of brotherly love and Charity. It could not be gainsaid that Masons contributed £40,000 and upwards to their Charities every year. They were scattered over the world; but they had no means of shaking hands and meeting each other except on these occasions. These meetings were a great means of promoting Charity, and they were proud to be favoured with the presence of ladies. They had heard the record that evening. For a small body, the sum of £2000, their average subscription, was a very large sum, one of which they might well be proud. But, while congratulating themselves, they must not forget the machinery by which they got it—the Board of Stewards; it was owing to their efforts. To the head of this Board their thanks were due, for raising the necessary funds. The Chairman, Lord Euston, was a brother well known to them. There was also Bro. Murray, whose name he should couple with the toast. Bro. Murray had brought up the largest sum ever collected by one Steward. Lancashire and Yorkshire were somewhat of dampers; the other Provinces felt they could not come up to them. Great credit must be given to Lancashire and Yorkshire, especially to Bro. Murray. Lord Euston, on behalf of the Board of Stewards, thanked Baron de Ferrières, and the ladies and brethren present, for the compliment paid them. They had only done their best to make this an agreeable evening. If they had succeeded in providing a pleasant entertainment, it was encouraging to think that they had also been the means of providing funds for those who really wanted help, and who belonged to their Order. The Stewards of that night would only be too glad to serve in the same capacity again. Bro. Murray expressed regret that so few brethren were present from Lancashire, but hoped that the contribution the county had sent would be taken as a proof of their desire to add to the usefulness of the Order. Major A. Bott Cook proposed the Ladies, which toast was responded to by Bro. F. S. Knyvett. Bro. the Earl of Euston proposed the Visitors; this toast was always proposed and drunk with hearty good feeling, because they knew that, as Masons, wherever they went, throughout the world—whether in America, where they spoke the same language, or in India, where there was a mixture of languages, or in China, or Japan, or Australia—which had taken such a prominent part in Freemasonry—any brother who presented himself with his credentials to Lodges was made most heartily welcome. Bro. Leon on behalf of the province he had the honour to represent, thanked the brethren for the distinguished honour conferred upon him, by his name being associated with the toast of the visitors. He represented a very humble province under Mark Masonry, but he could assure the brethren that they bowed to none in loyalty to the Grand Master and Grand Mark Lodge. They had striven to do their duty in Mark Masonry, and he hoped at the next Grand Festival of Jamaica would flourish, and be as conspicuous in their position there then as they were here that evening. A selection of vocal and instrumental music was performed, under the direction of Bro. Edwin Lott, Mus. Doc., Grand Organist, assisted by Madame Agnes Larkcom, Miss Minnie Freeman, Miss Minnie Kirton, Bro. Reginald Groome, and Bro. Stanley Smith; solo violin—Miss Kate Chaplin; at the pianoforte—Miss Nellie Chaplin and Dr. Lott.

Digitized by Google

PROV. G. LODGE GLOUCESTERSHIRE AND HEREFORDSHIRE.

BY command of the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, the annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge and General Communication of Mark Master Masons of the united Province of Gloucestershire and Herefordshire was held on Tuesday afternoon, the 16th inst., at Hereford, under the banner of the St. Ethelbert Lodge, No. 243. There was a large attendance, which included:—

The St. Ethelbert Lodge was opened shortly after three o'clock, and transacted preliminary business. Then the Provincial Grand Master and his Officers were received with due ceremony, at 4 o'clock, and the chairs were vacated by the Lodge Officers for them. Provincial Grand Lodge was next opened, and the business of the Province was proceeded with. Reports were received from the various Lodges, giving an account of their charitable and other brotherly work during the past year. In the course of other business, the Provincial Grand Master appointed his Officers, as follow, for 1889:—

Bro. O. Shellard	...	Deputy
M. F. Curter	...	Senior Warden
J. Nasmyth	...	Junior Warden
W. R. Porcher	...	M.O.

Edward George	...	Steward
T. G. Chance	...	Pursuivant
H. Phillips	...	Tyler

A banquet was subsequently held under the presidency of Baron de Ferrières, when the usual Masonic toasts were honoured. In replying to one of the local toasts, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master Bro. O. Shellard expressed the pleasure which it afforded him and the other Provincial Grand Officers to support the Provincial Grand Master in his arduous duties, and he also said he hoped to see an increase in the number of Mark Masons in the Province. The P. G. Master gave, in terms of praise, the health of Bros. George and Chance, who had acted as Provincial Grand Stewards on this occasion, and to whose excellent arrangements the success of the gathering was in a great measure due. Bro. George having been obliged to leave early, on account of another engagement, the toast was responded to by Bro. T. G. Chance. The Baron also very highly complimented Bro. John Barnes, the Lodge Secretary, upon the willing and admirable assistance which was received from him on this and all other occasions. The toast was replied to by Bro. Barnes, and the toast of the Tyler brought a pleasant afternoon's gathering to a close.

PROV. G. LODGE CUMBERLAND AND WESTMORELAND.

THE annual Grand Lodge of this Province was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Frizington, on Wednesday, the 17th inst., under the banner of the Henry Lodge, No. 216. Previous to opening Provincial Grand Lodge, the Henry Lodge was opened by Brother B. Craig W.M., assisted by his officers and members, when the minutes of the last regular Lodge were read and confirmed, and Bro. William Heathcote was balloted for and unanimously accepted as a candidate for Mark Masonry, and in, the presence of the Present and Past Grand Officers of the Province, was advanced to the honourable degree by the W.M. and his Officers, in a faultless manner. The brethren then retired for a short time, and at 1·30 p.m. the Deputy Provincial

Grand Master and the Grand Officers were reported, and admitted in due and ancient form. Brother Col. F. R. Sewell D.P.G.M. in the chair; Brothers P. de E. Collin as D.P.G.M, Jas. Gardiner P.G.S.W., James Harper P.G.J.W., and other Officers present and past Provincial Grand Lodge was opened in due form, and the roll of Lodges called, when all but one responded. The Provincial Officers also were well represented. The minutes of the last annual Provincial Grand Lodge, held at Maryport, were read and confirmed. Brother Gardiner, Provincial Grand Treasurer, read his statement of accounts, which, after having voted to two of the Masonic Charities twenty guineas, showed a balance to the credit of the Province of £22 9s 6d. Brother Col. Sewell moved, and Brother William Carlyle seconded the motion, that Brother Gardiner be again elected Provincial Grand Treasurer. Carried by a unanimous vote, for the eighth time. The Deputy Provincial Grand Master then nominated and invested the following as the Provincial Grand Officers for the ensuing year, viz.:—

Bro. John Paterson	...	Senior Warden
Rev. Jas. Anderson	...	Junior Warden
Dr. Jas. I. Lace	...	M.O.

G. B. M'Kay	...	Stewards
Joseph Dickson	...	Tyler

The following brethren were unanimously appointed to serve on the Committee of General Purposes for the ensuing year, viz.:—Brothers Joseph Nicholson, P. de E. Collin, James Harper, and B. Craig. The past and present Provincial Grand Officers for 1887-8 were presented by the Provincial Grand Master in the chair with their Provincial certificates. Brother Rev. Jas. Anderson moved, as a recommendation to the Provincial Grand Master, that the next annual Provincial Grand Lodge be held at Whitehaven, under the banner of Fletcher Lodge, which was supported by the Provincial Grand Master in the chair, and agreed to. Bro. Collin subsequently called the brethren's attention to a circular that had been sent to the Provincial Grand Secretary, anent the Peterborough Cathedral, and the erection of stalls therein. And as the corner stone was laid by the Provincial Grand Master, with Masonic honours, that the Mark Masters of this Province be invited to vote a small donation on behalf of the same. On the motion of Brother Rev. J. Anderson, supported by Brother Collin, two guineas was voted from this Provincial Grand Lodge. Letters from various brethren of the Province were read, tendering their apology for absence, and other general business of a routine character; and with hearty good wishes, Provincial Grand Lodge was closed, and the brethren sat down to a cold collation, prepared by Mrs. Bentley, which pleased exceedingly. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts followed, and a very agreeable evening was spent.

PROV. GRAND LODGE OF HAMPSHIRE AND THE ISLE OF WIGHT.

THERE was an unusually large gathering of Mark Masons of this Province at the Freemasons' Hall, Landport, on the 19th inst., to witness the ceremony of installation of Bro. W. W. Beach, M.P., as the Provincial Grand Mark Master, in succession to the late Canon Portal. Bro. R. Loveland Loveland, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, opened the Lodge, and the Marquis of Hertford Deputy Grand Master was received with due honours. The R.W. Provincial Grand Mark Master (Bro. Beach) was then introduced in proper form, and with the accustomed ceremonial was duly installed by the Marquis of Hertford. The newly installed Provincial Grand Mark Master was then saluted with the grand honours, and appointed as his Deputy Bro. R. Loveland Loveland, who was similarly honoured, the brethren being marshalled by Bro. Berridge G.D.C. of England. Bro. T. W. Faulkner P.G.S.B. England was elected as Treasurer, in succession to Bro. Rastrick, resigned. The Provincial Grand Mark Master then appointed and invested the following as Provincial Grand Officers for the year:—

Bro. R. J. Turney	...	Senior Warden

J. Richardson	...	I.G.
J. Ezell	...	Tyler
H. T. Holmes	...	Stewards
Ansle	...	Stewards
C. Curtis	...	Stewards

Votes of thanks were passed to the Marquis of Hertford, to the Assistant Grand Mark Secretary (Bro. C. F. Matier), and Grand Director of Ceremonies (Bro. Berridge) for their services. The sum of ten guineas was voted to the Mark Benevolent Fund, on the proposition of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master. Letters were received from Lord Valentia, Lord Cremorne, Lord Euston, and other Grand Officers, regretting their inability to attend. Amongst those present were Bros. the Rev. J. N. Palmer Grand Chaplain, J. E. Le Feuvre G.O., F. Newman G.O., G. J. Tilling Grand Steward, G. F. Lancaster, W. J. Borrow, the Rev. H. J. Mason, J. T. Burchett, J. C. Airs, R. Boughton-Smith, W. C. Webb, H. Pigeon, D. O. Hobbs, G. Cross, S. M. Emanuel, H. Durrant, J. D. Antill, J. Scott-Ramsay, S. Salter, F. Sanders, T. W. Price, Colonel Meade, Commodore Markham, R.N., C. J. Robinson, J. Leftwich, H. Cawte, G. A. Mursell, Everett, R. W. Mitchell, J. W. Willmott, H. Barton, &c.

THE "OLD MASONIANS."

THE Committee of this flourishing Association have just issued their Report for the year ending 30th April 1889. This document shows a very prosperous state of affairs. The number of new members for the year is nineteen, a larger increase than that obtained in the previous year. The Committee would express their thanks to those members who, during the past season, have undertaken the duties and responsibilities of Chairman on the Social Evenings. The efficient programmes provided, not without the expenditure of time and money on their part, have greatly enhanced the pleasure of the Social Meetings, and secured a higher average of attendance. Relying on a former success, three Cinderella Evenings have been held this year, which were both socially and financially successful, benefitting the General Fund to the amount of £5 5s 9d. The attendances at the "Social Evenings" has shown a marked increase; while the Council Meetings instituted at the beginning of the season have fully realised the usefulness expected of them. The annual dinner was held on Saturday, 13th April. Bro. A. F. Godson, M.P. (Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Worcestershire) was the President; he was supported by Bros. Frederick Binckes (B.G.S.B., Vice-Patron and Secretary of the Institution), Past President, Bros. Augustus Harris (P.M. 2127), Asher Barfield (G. Treas.), Major George Lambert (F.S.A., P.G. Stand. Bearer), Vice-Presidents, and other influential Masons. The Association must be congratulated on the fact that the V.W. Bro. Rev. C. J. Martyn (Prov. Grand Chaplain, Deputy Prov. Grand Master Suffolk, Patron of the Institution) has kindly undertaken the office of President for the ensuing year. To the Report is appended a Financial Statement, which shows a balance to the credit side of the account of between £30 and £40.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Nervous Debility.—No part of the human machine requires more watching than the nervous system—upon it hangs health and life itself. These Pills are the best regulators and strengtheners of the nerves, and the safest general purifiers. Nausea, headache, giddiness, numbness, and mental apathy yield to them. They despatch in a summary manner those distressing dyspeptic symptoms, stomachic pains, fulness at the pit of the stomach, abdominal distension, and overcome both capricious appetites and confined bowels—the commonly accompanying signs of defective or deranged nervous power. Holloway's Pills are particularly recommended to persons of studious and sedentary habits, who gradually sink into a nervous and debilitated state, unless some such restorative be occasionally taken.

LODGE OF ANTIQUITY, No. 178.

THE members of this Lodge held their annual pic-nic on Wednesday, 17th inst., when they visited Beeston Castle, Cheshire. About thirty-five brethren, with their ladies, journeyed in saloons, per London and North Western Railway to Hartford, where conveyances were in waiting to carry them to Beeston. On their way to the latter place the party, by special permission, were allowed to go through Lord Delomere's grounds, Vale Royal. On arriving at Beeston, the party made their way to the Castle Hotel, where a splendid repast was in readiness. The meal, which was excellently served by the host (Mr. S. Williamson), was greatly appreciated, and this part of the proceedings concluded, the party visited the ancient Castle. The ruins were minutely inspected, and the party subsequently took tea in the grounds. Beeston was left shortly after six o'clock, and the company left Hartford at 8·20, arriving in Wigan a few minutes after nine.

UNITY LODGE, No. 267.

ON Thursday, the 18th inst., this Lodge celebrated the Festival of St. John the Baptist, at their Lodge-room at the Macclesfield Arms Hotel. The Lodge met at 2·30, under the presidency of the retiring W.M. Bro. T. Brough, and there was a good muster of brethren. Bro. Thos. Richards was installed W.M. for the ensuing year, by Bros. Brough and W. I. Bates. The W.M. appointed his Officers, as follow:—Bros. T. Brough I.P.M., C. A. Bradley S.W., W. Carswell J.W., W. Astle Treasurer, B. Morton Secretary, R. Edwards S.D., J. L. Fawcett J.D., W. Kettlewell I.G., A. Cockayne D. of C., W. I. Bates P.M. Almoner, J. A. Fox Organist, G. Fountain S.S., S. Schofield, C. Stoneley Stewards, D. Mason Tyler, F. Hulme Assistant Tyler. In the evening the annual banquet took place, the W.M. presiding, and the S.W. occupying the vice-chair. Bro. Crowther catered in his usual satisfactory manner. Amongst those present were Bro. R. Newhouse, the Provincial Grand Secretary, who, in the course of the evening, expressed himself highly pleased with the working of the Lodge, and the general condition of the Craft in Macclesfield; Bro. George Swindells, 295 (Mayor of the Borough), Captain H. Cardwell 1387, T. S. Sheldon W.M. 533, J. Staniforth W.M. 295, the newly-elected Officers and other members of 267, several of the Officers and members of the sister Lodge in Macclesfield, and of the Congleton Lodge, and several visitors from Lancashire and Cheshire Lodges, numbering in all about 60. The usual Masonic toasts were given and heartily responded to, the proceedings terminating before the statutory hour.

PEACE AND HARMONY LODGE, No. 359.

THIS Lodge was honoured, at the regular meeting on Monday, the 15th inst., by a visit from the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master (Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P.), accompanied by several members of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight. The W.M. of the Lodge (Bro. A. J. Blackman) presided, and amongst those assembled to greet the visitors were Bros. T. P. Payne, J. R. Weston, M. Emanuel, C. W. A. Jellicoe, John Adams, H. Dussautoy, T. Lashmore, H. P. Arthur, G. Cross, D. O. Hobbs, E. O. Longland, J. E. Aldis, J. Fewings, C. J. Appleford, W. Foster, J. H. Martin, Rev. F. J. Ashmall, F. Dacombe, A. Hewett, and W. Hussey. The W.M.'s and Wardens of the Clausentum and Shirley Lodges were unavoidably absent, and sent apologies. During the evening a handsome P.M.'s jewel was presented to I.P.M. Dussautoy, who in turn presented the Lodge with a seal impress. After the business had been transacted they sat down to an admirably-served banquet, and a very pleasant evening, and one long to be remembered in the history of the Lodge, was spent. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, the health of the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master his Deputy and Officers was drunk. The Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, in responding, referred in commendatory terms to the manner in which the business of the Lodge of Peace and Harmony was conducted, and congratulated the brethren upon the very influential and prosperous condition of the Lodge.

MENTURIA LODGE, No. 418.

THE usual monthly meeting of this Lodge was held at Hanley, on Tuesday, the 16th inst., the W.M. Bro. H. Windle in the chair, and for a summer meeting there was a good attendance of the members, between 30 and 40 being present. The Lodge was honoured with a visit from the R.W. Provincial Grand Master of the Province Col. Foster Gough, LL.D., P.G.S.B. On entering the Lodge, attended by Past and Present Provincial Grand Officers, the R.W. P.G.M. took the chair whilst the circular and minutes were read and confirmed, after which he requested the W.M. to resume the gavel, and proceed with the further business. Bros. Forester and Rushforth were then questioned as necessary, and passed to the second degree by the W.M., the charge being delivered by the S.W. Bro. T. Robinson. After fraternal greetings from the visiting brethren, a resolution was proposed by Bro. E. V. Greatbatch P.M. P.P.G. Supt. Works, and seconded by Bro. Tunnicliff I.P.M., that the sum of Fifty Guineas be subscribed to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, out of the proceeds of the Conversazione held in February last. The proposer and seconder referred to the fact that they had taken an active part in assisting to bring about, and producing evidence before, the recent Committee of Inquiry into the management of the Boy's School, and they hoped and believed that nothing but good to the Institution would result from that Inquiry. They had now the greatest possible pleasure in asking the Lodge to strengthen the hands of the Provisional Committee by a handsome subscription to the funds. Some discussion took place as to the desirability of increasing the amount to such a sum as would constitute the Lodge a Vice Patron, but ultimately the resolution was carried, the hope being held out that at an early date funds would be forthcoming to enrol the Lodge amongst the list of Vice Patrons. The R.W. Provincial Grand Master then complimented the W.M. and Officers upon the excellent manner in which, not only the two passings, but the entire business of the Lodge had been conducted. It left little, very little indeed, further to be desired. He had found every Officer at his post, and well up in his duties, which gave him very great pleasure. He also expressed his gratification at seeing the resolution carried with respect to the grant to the Boys' School, showing as it did the truly Masonic spirit of the brethren. Some, possibly most of the members of the Lodge, thought that some improvement might be made in the management of the Institution, but at the same time they were not withholding their pecuniary aid. They recognised the fact that the boys were there, and must be provided for. He was truly glad that a Staffordshire Lodge was acting so nobly in the matter, and he doubted not that the action of the "Menturia" would carry influence even beyond the borders of his own Province. Colonel Gough then referred, in eulogistic terms, to a paper on voting in Lodges (as to candidates), which was read by Bro. Greatbatch before the members of the Lodge recently, a printed copy of which he had received. He thoroughly endorsed the principles suggested in the paper, and he thought it a most useful and commendable contribution. He apologised for having to leave the Lodge before it was closed, but was compelled to do so in order to catch a train. After the departure of the R.W. Prov. Grand Master the Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to light refreshment in the anteroom.

ELLESMERE LODGE, No. 758.

ON Thursday, the 18th inst., the Festival of St. John was celebrated at the Masonic-rooms, Runcorn. Bro. Newhouse congratulated Bro. Summerfield on the efficient way in which the business of the Lodge had been conducted. Bro. Summerfield then installed Bro. Arthur Linaker as W.M. for the ensuing year. The newly-elected W.M. afterwards invested the following Officers:—Bros. G. Summerfield I.P.M., J. Cooper S.W., J. Littler J.W., C. W. Phillips S.D., T. S. Burgess J.D., W. Hankinson I.G., W. R. Wass Treasurer, T. Sharrocks Secretary, W. E. Lancaster Organist, J. Le Conteur Almoner, and G. Hayes Tyler. A Past Master's jewel was presented to Bro. George Summerfield, for his services during his term of office, and also a Life Governorship on the Cheshire Masonic Educational Institution.

EVERTON LODGE, No. 823.

THIS well known and influential Lodge, which at one time held its meetings in Everton itself, assembled on 17th inst., in very strong force at the Masonic Hall, Hope-Street, Liverpool, to instal the W.M. elect Bro. R. S. Milne. The Lodge has become a very strong one during the past twelve or fourteen years, and many well known local men of standing still keep up their connection with it, the annual assembly being always looked forward to with interest by Masons in the city. The chair was taken by Bro. W. Maddox W.M. There were numerous Visitors who accepted the hospitality of the Lodge. The W.M. elect was presented by Bros. Councillors John Houlding and W. J. Lunt, and the ceremony was performed by Bro. Maddox. The following Officers were invested:—Bros. William Maddox I.P.M, R. T. Britten S.W., John Mantle J.W., Councillor W. J. Lunt Treasurer (re-elected), Edwin Kite Secretary, W. J. Guilbert S.D., T. W. King J.D., W. Spencer I.G., F. Turner S.S., T. C. Millington J.S., Jabez Oates A.S., Joseph Bennett A.S. Bros. W. H. Ball was re-elected Tyler, and R. W. Gow D.C. Before the Lodge closed, a handsome Past Treasurer's jewel, in recognition of his twenty-one years' service, was presented to Bro. Councillor W. J. Lunt, and suitably acknowledged. Bro. Casey catered admirably for the brethren, and during the evening a valuable P.M.'s jewel was presented to the I.P.M. on behalf of the Lodge, and it was accompanied by a full suit of regalia. A well-executed musical programme conduced to the enjoyment of the brethren.

BURGOYNE LODGE, No. 907.

THE members had a most enjoyable outing on Tuesday, 16th inst. Nearly all the committee of the Lodge hail from the neighbourhood of Clapham Junction, so Battersea was well represented in the pleasant little party which went down to Windsor, by saloon carriage, had a drive to Virginia Water, and afterwards dined at The Castle Inn. Bro. John Cross W.M. presided. A number of ladies were present, and the toast of the Ladies, given by the W.M., was well received. Bros. Mark Gill, Rashleigh, Norrington, Harvey, Price, Sadler, White, Prince, Gabb, and other well-known Craftsmen took part in the proceedings. The genial Bro. George acted as Steward, and contributed a good deal to the success of the day.

MARWOOD LODGE, No. 1244.

ON the 2nd inst. the celebration of the Annual Festival of the Marwood Lodge and the installation of Bro. George Hood as the W.M. for the ensuing year took place at Redcar. The ceremony of installation was performed by the Right Worshipful the Hon. W. T. Orde-Powlett P.G.W. and D.P.G.M. N. and E. Yorkshire. Several visitors were present, including brethren from Middlesborough, Stockton, Darlington, Huddersfield, &c. The W.M. afterwards invested the officers for the year, and the proceedings concluded with a banquet, held at the Cotham Hotel.

ST MARGARET'S LODGE, No. 1452.

ON Monday, the 1st inst., the members of this Lodge presented to Bro. F. A. Mann P.G.O. a Past Master's jewel and an illuminated address, on the occasion of his leaving Lowestoft. After the Lodge business was concluded, the brethren adjourned to the Great Eastern Hotel, and partook of a cold supper, which was supplied in excellent style by the host, Bro. Bales.

ISLE OF AXHOLME LODGE, No. 1482.

ON Tuesday, 9th inst, the very interesting ceremony of installing Bro. W. Burtonshaw as W.M. was ably performed by Bro. Staniforth. The rendering of the anthem, "Be thou faithful," by Bro. Blagbro' was delightfully sung. The W.M. invested the following Brethren as his Officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. Chamberlain I.P.M., Constable S.W., Behrendt J.W., Le Gassick as Chaplain, Watson Treasurer, R. Wood Secretary, R. N. Brunyee S.D., C. Fox J.D., Hemingbrough D.C., Horobin Steward, Staniforth Almoner, Burtonshaw Organist, Druary Standard Bearer, Faulkner I.G., Pickering, Petch, Coulman, and Scholey Stewards, G. Naylor Tyler. There was a goodly number of brethren present. Telegrams and congratulations were received from the Prov. Grand Sec., the W.M. of Aire and Calder, Goole; the W.M. elect of St. Nicholas, Thorne; and other Masonic officials and Lodges. After Lodge duties the brethren adjourned to Bro. Burtonshaw's residence, where a group picture was photographed by Bro. Brookes, from Messrs. Wellsted's, of Hull, as a memento of the occasion. The banquet was set out in the Town Hall, and was of a first-class character, provided by Mrs. Chafer, and the Misses Chafer, of the Darby and Joan Hotel. The W.M. Bro. Burtonshaw presided, and the vice-chair was occupied by Bro. Constable S.W. Bro. Hemingbrough D.C. very ably managed the duties of his office. The Loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to in the manner usual with Masons. These toasts were interspersed with songs, exceptionally well rendered. The instrumentalists were Bros. Burtonshaw Organist, Le Gassick, and Goodhind. The instrumental duet by Bros. Burtonshaw (piano), and Goodhind (violin), was a delightful piece of work. Bros. Blagbro', Fox, Hemingbrough, and Bellerby, did pleasant service vocally. The happy meeting was only broken up by the arrival of "Mr. Bruce's hour."

LIVERPOOL LODGE, No. 1547.

A NUMEROUS company of members and visitors assembled at the Masonic-hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, on the 10th inst., to instal Bro. Henry Isaac. The chair was taken by Bro. Jessop W.M. After the installation the following Officers were invested:—Bros. J. Jessop I.P.M., R. E. W. Stephenson S.W., W. Montgomery J.W., John H. Parker Treasurer (re-elected), R. H. Leake Secretary, T. M. Stephenson S.D., John Haynes J.D., J. C. M'Guire D.C., C. H. Eaton Organist, J. Killip I.G., John H. Newton S.S., John W. Hughes J.S., E. Cornish A.S. Bro. W. H. Ball was re-elected Tyler. A chaste P.M.'s jewel was presented to the I.P.M., on behalf of the Lodge.

PRUDENCE LODGE, No. 1550.

THE members held their annual meeting at the Freemasons' Hall, Plymouth, on Saturday, 6th inst., when, after the initiation of a candidate, the raising of two brethren, and the election as a joining member of Bro. A. Roberts, of Lodge 230, the installation of Bro. N. Reed was proceeded with. The installing Officers were Bros. A. Goodman, J. G. Kevern, C. Philip, J. B. Gover, and J. R. Lord, assisted by a board of installed officers. The W.M. afterwards invested his Officers, as follow:—Bros. A. Goodman I.P.M., A. C. Titherley S.W., J. J. Beer J.W., C. Philp Treasurer, T. Goodall Secretary, C. Mutten S.D., Godfrey Evans J.D, E. Budge I.G., H. Robins D.C., J. Penwarne A.D.C., W. Smith-Rean Organist, T. Griffiths and T. B. Leonard Stewards. W. H. Phillips Tyler.

DEE LODGE, No. 1576.

THE members held their annual installation on Thursday, the 11th inst., when Bro. Joseph Clarke J.W., who was elected unanimously at the previous Lodge, was installed in the chair of W.M. There were a number of visiting brethren from both the provinces of West Lancashire and Cheshire. By dispensation from the Provincial Grand Lodge, the ceremony of installation was performed in the school-room adjacent to the Union Hotel. The attendance of brethren was large. Bro. G. B. Richmond officiated as Installing Master. Bro. Clarke was presented for installation by Bros. the Hon. Henry Holbrook and John Morris. The W.M. invested his Officers:—Bros. George B. Richmond I.P.M., R. G. Hawkins S.W., James W. Shaw J.W., John Morris P.M. Treasurer, W. Taylor P.M. Secretary, George Forrester Assistant Secretary, J. W. Evans S.D., J. M. Gibbs J.D., John Mayers I.G., William Jones D.C., John J. White S.S., F. V. Fearn J.S., J. Gerrish Assistant Steward, and A. J. Phipps O. Bro. Craft was unanimously re-elected Tyler. For the post of Charity Steward, Bro. J. Morris was unanimously chosen. After some ordinary business had been transacted the Lodge was closed, and the Brethren adjourned to the regular Lodge room at the Union Hotel, where a banquet was served which quite sustained the wide reputation of the house. Bro. Joseph Clarke W.M. presided, the vice-chairs being respectively occupied by Bros. Hawkins S.W., and Shaw J.W. The toast of the Queen was given from the chair, and was loyally received with musical honours. The Prince of Wales and the Officers of the Grand Lodge were next toasted, and this too was drunk with musical honours. Bro. J. Morris proposed the health of the Right Hon. Lord Egerton of Tatton and Prov. Grand Officers present and past, paying a well-deserved compliment to Lord Egerton and his Officers for their management of the affairs of the Province. The toast was drunk with musical honours. The response was entrusted to Bros. Barnes and the Hon. H. Holbrook, the latter of whom took Provincial honours so far back as 40 years ago, under Lord Combermere. Bro. G. B. Richmond I.P.M., in giving the toast of the Cheshire Masonic Educational Institution, and all other Masonic Charities, made a passing reference to the report of the Commissioners who had inquired into the management of the Boys' School. He said the feeling which that report had evoked must lead to thorough reform, and the report itself could do no harm, inasmuch as no really good institution could be harmed by a knowledge of the truth. Coming to our own Province he said that, thanks to the agency of the Cheshire Institution, they were enabled to spend their own money in their own Province, among their own people, in their own way. They themselves had the control of the financial and other arrangements; they had no extravagant management expenses to pay; and they were enabled by its organisation at a minimum of cost to produce the maximum of efficiency and do the greatest possible amount of good to the distressed ones whom it was their duty and privilege to help. Bro. J. Morris responding, made allusion to the memorable Girls' School Centenary in London, at which he was present, and where the magnificent sum of £51,000 was collected. Compared with other Provinces, Cheshire might seem to be in an unfavourable position in regard to her support of Charities, but then Cheshire had educational and charitable institutions of her own, which were doing a great and good work. Bro. Richmond next proposed the Worshipful Master, in eulogistic terms, and Bro. Clarke feelingly responded. The W.M. proposed the Visiting Brethren, Bros. Brittain, White, Maddock 823, Dean, Clarke, and J. Humphreys W.M. 721, responding. The remaining toasts were the Installing Master, the Past Masters, the Officers of the Lodge, and the Tyler's toast. The harmony of the evening was materially contributed to by the excellent songs of Bros C. S. Dean, T. Brittain, E. Robinson, R. Parry, and J. Humphreys; whilst the Junior Warden (Bro. Shaw) convulsed the audience with laughter by an amusing reading, which took the form of a sermon on the text "Old Mother Hubbard." Bro. A. Phipps played all the accompaniments in his usual delightful manner.

OGMORE LODGE, No. 1752.

THE annual meeting was held on Monday, 22nd inst., at the Wyndham Arms, Bridgend, when Bro. T. B. Boucher was installed as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. The following represents his official staff:—Bros. J. C. Couth I.P.M., J. F. C. Boles S.W., G. T. D. David J.W., John Herdman Treasurer, D. M. Lellan Secretary, Geo. Vaughan S.D., Robert Seale J.D., William Francis I.G., R. Richard D.C., William Jones Organist, E. Jenkins and T. C. Forester Stewards, L. Bees Charity Steward, and A. D. Weber Tyler. The ceremony of installation was performed by Bro. Behs, the duties of Director of Ceremonies being undertaken by Bro. Hemming. The brethren at the close of the Lodge drove to Southerndown and the camp at Ewenny. On their return they sat down to a well-served and liberal banquet, supplied by Bro. Hislop and Mrs. Hislop, of the Wyndham Arms Hotel.

CLAREMONT LODGE, No. 1861.

THE installation meeting of the above took place on Saturday, 20th inst., at the Crown Hotel, Chertsey. Owing to various causes, the muster of the members was not so numerous as heretofore. Among the P.M.'s was Bro. T. Vincent, P.G.S.B., father of the Lodge; we regret to say, however, that Bro. Vincent did not appear in his usual health; still he was as genial as ever. Bros. Woodin P.M., Frances P.M. Secretary, W. Morfit I.P.M., and W. Williams P.M., who, in a very able manner, installed into the chair of K.S. Bro. Claude Thomaseti the W.M. elect. Several visitors and members of the Lodge were present. The I.P.M. was presented with the handsome P.M.'s jewel usually given by this Lodge. Bro. Frances P.M. officiated as D.C. An excellent dinner followed, provided by the hostess, Mrs. Heckroe, and the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts received due honour.

MARTYN LODGE, No. 1933.

THE installation of Bro. T. Sergeant as W.M. took place at the Lodge Room, at the Town Hall, Southwold, on Friday, the 12th inst. The Deputy Provincial Grand Master, the Rev. C. J. Martyn P.G. Chaplain England, assisted by Bro. P. M. Canova 388, ably performed the installation ceremony. The W.M. having been duly installed, proceeded to invest his Officers, as follow:—Bros. W. T. Griffiths S.W., W. H. Elmy J.W., J. M. Canova Treasurer, T. H. Jellicoe Secretary, O. G. Rackham S.D., R. J. Allen J.D., W. J. Browne D.C., W. G. Jackson I.G., W. Porter Tyler. After the installation the brethren proceeded to the Centre Cliff Hotel, where they were photographed in a group by Bro. D. R. Gooding. A banquet took place at 6.30 o'clock, Mrs. Downes, the manageress of the hotel, catering in a style which reflected upon her the utmost credit. After the banquet the usual Masonic toasts were honoured.

WESTERN DISTRICT UNITED SERVICE LODGE, No. 2258.

THE annual meeting was held at the Masonic Rooms, Caroline-place, Stonehouse, on the 17th instant, to instal Bro. Col. J. Philips, C.B., Senior Warden as Worshipful Master for the year ensuing. The ceremony was well rendered by the retiring Worshipful Master Bro. M. Tracy, R.A., P.S.G.W., assisted by Bro. Powell P.M. 1295 2258 and a large Board of Installed Masters. The Board of Installed Masters being closed, the Worshipful Master invested his Officers—Bros. Major M. Tracy I.P.M., Sergeant-Major A. Revill S.W., Major N. Page J.W., Rev. J. Black, M.A., Chaplain, D. Cross P.M. Treasurer, W. Powell P.M. Secretary, Major C. B. G. Dick S.D., Lieut. and Quartermaster W. E. Donohue J.D., Lieut. Bowman I.G., Quartermaster Sergeant A. Jones Dir. of Cers., Capt. and Adjutant J. H. Swanton Assist. Dir. of Cers., Bandmaster C. F. H. Frechnert Organist, Lieut. and Quartermaster T. Reynolds, Lieut. H. M. C. W. Graham, Lieut. J. H. E. Allen Stewards, James Gidley acting Tyler, S. Jew Representative on Committee of Petitions. Prior to the closing of the Lodge, three gentlemen were proposed as candidates for initiation, and a brother as a joining member. The brethren adjourned for the installation banquet to the Farley Hotel, Plymouth, under the presidency of the Worshipful Master Bro. J. Philips, C.B., assisted by the Senior Warden, Junior Warden, and supported by the Past Masters of the Lodge, a very enjoyable evening was passed.

ORDER OF THE SECRET MONITOR.

Bro Dr I Zacharie		5	5	0

The Freemasons of Barnard Castle have erected a handsome headstone to the memory of the late Bro. John Kirtley.

The members of the Royal Albert Edward Lodge, No. 906, Weston, have subscribed for and presented to the Lodge the portrait of Bro. George Henry Bartlett I.P.M., P.P.J.G.W. Somerset, in recognition of his Masonic services.

A Provincial Grand Lodge meeting of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight will be held at Andover, on the 13th August.

H.R.H. the Prince of Wales has been pleased to accept the dedication of a March Nuptial, composed and to be performed by Mr. Jekyll at the forthcoming royal wedding. The march is published by Metzler and Co., Great Marlborough-street, and in all probability it will be heard next Sunday in most of the churches throughout the United Kingdom.

THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE

SATURDAY, 27TH JULY 1889.

BRO. ALBERT PIKE'S REMARKS ON MACKAY'S 25 LANDMARKS.

"ONE of [Mackey's] lists, which is published as if compiled by authority, sets down twenty-five landmarks. I will give them one by one [says Bro. Pike], with such remarks with regard to each as may occur to me.

"1. The modes of recognition.

"How are 'the modes of recognition' a landmark? Is it meant that our present modes of recognition were used in Ancient Craft Masonry? That would not be true, because all the secrets of Masonry, anciently, were those which were made known to the apprentices.

"Is it meant that the modes of recognition are the same everywhere? That is not true, because the substitute word used in England is wholly another word than that used here, and the same that has long been used in France, because the order of two others has been transposed since 1723, because there are words used elsewhere that we do not use, and because some of the signs are different in different countries.

"Is it meant that the mode of recognition cannot be changed? They have been changed, and they may, if it be found necessary, be changed again. And modes of recognition are not principles, much less essential and fundamental principles.

"2. The division of symbolic Masonry into degrees.

"But Ancient Craft Masonry had no 'degrees.' These were made about 1723, and forty years afterwards there were Lodges, under the Grand Lodge of England, that had never accepted them. [The above is new to me].

"3. The legend of the Third Degree.

"This was not introduced into Masonry until about 1723, and those who believe that the legend is true, must believe the two Kings and Hiram the artificer were Freemasons, and, therefore, that there was Freemasonry before the facts in the legend had occurred.

"4. The government of the Fraternity by a presiding officer called Grand Master, who is elected from the body of the Craft.

"There is absolutely no evidence that there ever was a Grand Master in England, or a general assembly of Masons held there, before Sayer was elected, in 1717.

"The 'body of the Craft' then meant the Apprentices and Fellows, for they constituted the Lodge and General Assembly, and a Fellow Craft could be elected Grand Master. The body of the Craft was the body of Fellows of the Craft, but now a Fellow Craft has, in this country, no voice in the election of a Grand Master.

"And Masonry existed, and there were Lodges in England and Scotland, long before there were either Grand Lodges or Grand Masters.

"5. The prerogatives of Grand Masters to preside over every assembly of the Craft, wheresoever and whensoever held.

Digitized by Google

"There could have been no such right before there were Grand Masters, nor is this prerogative known to have been claimed or exercised anywhere by any Grand Master in the early days of Masonry.

"6. The prerogative of a Grand Master to grant dispensation for conferring degrees at irregular times.

"This prerogative was not anciently possessed by the Grand Master, because no such dispensations were needed, inasmuch as each Lodge was entirely uncontrolled in regard to the times of conferring the degrees, and conferred them when it pleased.

"7. The prerogative of a Grand Master to grant dispensations for opening and holding Lodges.

"The old Lodges were opened and held by the spontaneous and free action of the members, without authority from any one. The practice of granting Warrants and Charters grew up in modern days, and the Grand Lodges may, if they see fit, take away from the Grand Masters the power of granting what are now incorrectly styled dispensations.

"8. The prerogatives of a Grand Master to make Masons at sight.

"The Grand Master could make Masons with the aid of a proper number of brethren, called together by him, but the power of a Grand Master to take a person into a room and, by himself alone, to make him a Mason, will be looked in vain for in the Ancient Charges and Regulations, and this supposed prerogative was not a landmark, because it no longer belongs to Grand Masters.

"It is supposed to have always been a landmark that a man could only be made a Mason in a just and lawfully constituted Lodge. But this became a law of Masonry by being enacted by the Grand Lodge; and independent Lodges, at Newcastle and elsewhere, holding no charters, but self constituted, continued to make Masons at will.

"In Scotland, private Lodges had the right to issue commissions or dispensations to one or more individuals, to admit and enter such duly qualified persons as might apply to them, into the Society or Lodge, either as Apprentices or Fellow Crafts. This was done by the Lodge of Kilwinning, in 1677; by the Lodge of Haughfoot, in the early part of the eighteenth century; in 1804, by the Lodge Royal Arch, at Maybole, which commissioned one of its members to confer degrees, and in other cases.

"9. The necessity for Masons to congregate in Lodges.

"10. The government of every Lodge by a Master and Wardens.

"These were undoubtedly landmarks. [Not so, Bro. Pike, for the old Lodges in Scotland were governed by Deacons, and sometimes by Wardens, and I doubt whether English Lodges always had to have two Wardens.]

"11. The necessity that every Lodge when congregated shou'd be duly tyled.

"Undoubtedly it was a landmark (for a Lodge to be tyled.)

"12. The right of every Master to be represented in all general meetings of the Craft, and to instruct his representatives.

"Every Apprentice and Fellow Craft in London and Westminster had a right to be present and vote, but no right to be represented, in the general assembly. In the Grand Lodge, individual Masons were not represented. The Masters and Wardens represented the Lodge, and not the Masons who were unaffiliated, and the right of instruction never belonged to 'every' Mason, or to any individual Mason, neither was any such a right recognised when the general assemblies were deprived of their power by usurpation on the part of the Grand Lodge.

"Nor was it ever a landmark that a Lodge represented in Grand Lodge could instruct its representatives there in regard to questions and matters as they arose.

"13. The right of every Mason to appeal from the decision of his brethren in Lodge convened, to the Grand Lodge, or to a general assembly of Masons.

"There was never any right of appeal from the decision of a Lodge to the general assembly, and the right to appeal to the Grand Lodge was not possessed by individual members, except so far as it was given by the Grand Lodge, and in regard to very many decisions, never has existed in England at all.

"14. The right of every Mason to visit and sit in every regular Lodge.

"There is no such right now, and never was any such a right. [Query]. No Mason from this country can visit a Lodge in London without being vouched for [is it so?], not only as a Mason, but as a person fit to be received as a visitor. Any member of a Lodge can object to a Mason seeking to visit his Lodge.

"15. That no visitor not known to some brother present as a Mason can enter a Lodge without undergoing examination.

"It is a law enacted by the Grand Lodge of England that no brother can visit without being vouched for, but in most countries of the world there are no examinations, a visitor being admitted upon production of his diploma or patent.

"If it is a landmark that no person not vouched for can visit without being examined, brethren from other countries in which the English language is not spoken, and in which the work differs from ours, will always find their diplomas and patents valueless, and if the rule prevailed in other countries, no American Mason could visit any Lodge in Sweden, Norway, Denmark, or in any Latin country on the face of the globe.

"16. That no Lodge can interfere in the business or labour of another Lodge.

This is entirely too vague and general to be a landmark. It might be stretched wide enough to cover the doctrine of perpetual proprietorship over a rejected candidate (that is, that no Lodge could initiate a man who was rejected by another Lodge until the Lodge that rejected him permits another to initiate him).

"17. That every Freemason is amenable to the criminal (1) laws and regulations of the Masonic jurisdiction in which he resides.

"(1). (The word "criminal" was inserted by Parvin, who holds that a brother may be tried for Masonic offences where committed).

"This is not true, except to a limited extent. Suppose the Grand Lodge of the District of Columbia should require every Mason residing here to become affiliated here. Nor is it by any means settled that Masons affiliated in one State can be tried by a Lodge in another State. If one of us visit Italy, do we become amenable to the laws of the Grand Orient of Italy in every respect, by residing there unaffiliated? The language is too general and indefinite.

"18. That every candidate for initiation must be a man, free-born, and of lawful age.

"It was not anciently necessary that to become an Apprentice one should be a man of lawful age. He was described as a youth, and was in general not of age. Nor is it now necessary in England that he should be free-born.

[The landmark of "Sound limb" was as important, in the estimation of Dr. Mackey, as any other landmark. Strange! very strange! that Bro. Albert Pike omitted to refer in the above remarks to the landmark of sound limb].

"19. That every Mason must believe in the existence of God as the Grand Architect of the Universe.

"The phrase, 'Grand Architect of the Universe,' is not an ancient one, and does not express the adequate idea of the Deity, and the truth is, that it was originally, and for a very long while, in England and Scotland, a landmark, that no one, not a Christian and a believer in the Trinity, could be made a Mason.

"20. That every Mason must believe in the resurrection to a future life.

"Every Mason must believe in another life for the soul of man; belief in a life that is a continuance of this, but not in any sense a resurrection, being certainly sufficient.

"21. That a book of the law of God must constitute an indispensable part of the furniture of the Lodge.

"It does not appear that this was required in olden days of Masonry.

"22. That all men in the sight of God are equal, and meet in the Lodge on one common level.

"It is not a landmark of Masonry, that all men are equal in the sight of God. That is a statement that God regards men in a certain way. The Australian savage, as equal in every way, in the greatest and best of the race. Whether this be true or not, it is no landmark of Masonry. But it is a landmark that on the floor of the Lodge all Masons stand on one common level. It is not true that we are bound to admit to that common level all men, of all kinds of races, who may apply.

Digitized by Google

"23. That Freemasonry is a secret society, in possession of secrets that cannot be divulged.

"It is not true that Freemasonry is a secret society. A secret society is one whose existence is a secret, and its members unknown. But it is a landmark that the secrets of Masonry cannot be divulged.

"24. That Freemasonry consists of a speculative science, founded on speculative art.

"There is neither science nor art in Freemasonry. Its true definition is, that it is a system of morality, veiled in allegory, and illustrated by symbols. It does not pursue scientific studies nor practice of the arts.

"25. That the landmarks of Masonry can never be changed.

"But they can be, and they have been. It is true that its real landmarks ought not to be changed. But who is to say what these landmarks are?

"One would be warranted in believing that it was an ancient landmark that no one could be admitted into the society except by unanimous consent, but one of the earliest acts of the Grand Lodge of England was to authorize certain Lodges to receive candidates when unanimous consent was refused by even more than one vote.

"It was never a landmark that the vote should be taken by a secret ballot, although that now seems to possess greater sanctity than many things that time has taken away. It was only required that the unanimous consent should be had, the brethren expressing their pleasure in their own way.

"Thus most of the so-called landmarks were not known either to Ancient Craft Masonry in England or Scotland before the Revolution of 1723; or to the new Masonry, as landmarks, for years afterwards. It is a pity that Masonry has not a Pope, or cannot make one of some Grand Master, Editor, Chairman of a Committee on Foreign Correspondence, endowed with infallibility, to determine the age which a landmark must have to entitle it to call itself a landmark. What is the essential nature of a landmark? how many of the supposed twenty-five are landmarks? and what others the oracular wisdom of the author [meaning Mackey] of this catalogue has overlooked?

"A mushroom may grow ever so tall on a boundary line or in a corner, but it will never be mistaken for a landmark.

"If there was such an infallible authority and arbiter, I should like to submit for his consideration a score or so of additional landmarks of the same nature as some of those on the semi-official catalogue, and it seems to me equally entitled to figure in it."

AT REFRESHMENT.

IN the annual revolution of the seasons we have reached the time of Midsummer, and the Craft is generally at Refreshment. The abundant Labour of the preceding Autumn, Winter, and Spring have been properly succeeded by the Refeshment of Summer. "All work, and no play, makes Jack a dull boy." True, we miss the monthly meetings with, and greetings of our Brethren, but we shall value and enjoy them the more when we renew them in September. It is not well to have a monotony, even of our enjoyments. Novelty and change are at least valuable in this, that they add zest to our appreciation of either duties or pleasures, and as a consequence, when our Masonic meetings are resumed in the Autumn, they will appear almost as fresh and new to us as if they were entirely novel experiences.

The demand for periodic rest and refreshment is one which is natural to man, implanted in his physical constitution. One cannot labour continually, either through day and night, or continuously every day in the year, without suffering from impaired health or physical or mental debility. We must have rest if we would appear always at our best. Periodicity is a law of our being. The First Great Light in Masonry informs us that even the Grand Master of the Universe rested from His labour, and enjoined mankind to rest, in like manner, one day out of seven through all time. It is in recognition of a natural law that the Fraternity of Freemasons regularly supplements Labour with Refreshment at Masonic meetings. The Refreshment is wages for Labour. The Brother who has performed his duties to the Craft, who has been present at his Lodge or other meeting, has encouraged and supported the officers in their several stations and places, and has aided in the work when required, at the close of the Labour is richly entitled to meet with his Brethren, who like him have conscientiously performed their respective duties, and share with them in the physical, social, intellectual and convivial pleasures of the banquet board. It is not the material food, which all so much enjoy, as the good fellowship, the freedom from conventionality, the abandon, the sociability and the spirit of fraternity which so unmistakably prevails. This is true Masonic Refreshment. It exhilarates the mind. It enlivens the heart. It enables us to understand, appreciate, and value our fellows at their true worth. Man—the machine of machines—is then repairing and winding up. When we rise from the social board we feel, in the language attributed to Zachary Taylor, "at peace with the world and the rest of mankind." This is the reward which accompanies the Refreshment which closes and completes a Lodge, or other Masonic meeting.

The Refreshment which results from the omission of Masonic meetings in either or both of the months of July and August, is of kindred value. In mid-summer the Lodge Room is anything but comfortable. It appears to be impossible to thoroughly ventilate a Lodge Room, crowded with Brethren, even in the Winter season; and in the summer the conditions are still more unmanageable. Hot air, largely unchanged, is almost unbearable. Who of us has not been present on occasions when fans and handkerchiefs were powerless to bring comfort. Nature ordains rest in Midsummer, and all Masonic bodies except those most pressed with work willingly obey it. Among the latter, this Summer, are the Commanderies. The cry in them is, "On to Washington," in the Autumn; to attend the Grand Encampment of the United States, and in consequence of, this during the Summer months, Knights are dubbed at an extraordinary rate. Indeed, we have learned of cases where candidates entered the Lodge, in the months recently gone by, with the cry, "On to Washington" sounding in their ears there, and stimulating their zeal. Such a spirit is to be reprobated. Freemasonry is not a rendezvous for crusaders, and the degrees of Ancient Craft Masonry are not mere stepping stones to something beyond. They exist for themselves, and those who use them for ulterior purposes have no proper conception of their dignity, their meaning or value.

One thing is always to be borne in mind with regard to either hours or days of Refreshment, that they are never to be converted into occasions for intemperance or excess. Overplay is worse than overwork. Over indulgence in any form of amusement during Masonic periods is equally forbidden by the laws of nature and of Masonry. We must temper our zeal for Refreshment with discretion. Men must be men and not boys, Masons must be Masons and not profane. We have been initiated into the Craft; we have made solemn promises which bind us for all time; we are not our own, but built into a Temple which is now visible and temporal, but which we trust will one day be eternal. We are bound to practise out of the Lodge those duties which we are taught within it. Freemasonry is not like clothing, to be put off or on at pleasure, but is a part of the body and the life of every initiate. So completely is this true, that the common phrase, "once a Mason always a Mason," expresses the indefectibility of Masonic obligations. They abide with us for ever, so that we can never abrogate or renounce them. This is true of the degrees of Ancient Craft Masonry, but of those of no other so-called Masonry, if it comes in conflict with our primary obligations, those taken in the Blue Lodge. Whatever is superadded, is subject to the action of the Lodge and Grand Lodge, in case there be a conflict. This fact should be remembered as well during seasons of Refreshment as of Labour. Our Masonic bodies may not be in session now, but we are always Masons, always bound by the Mystic Tie, always under obligation to be true men and worthy fellows, a credit to Freemasonry, and worthy of the high vocation of a Master Mason to which we have been called.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

THE usual summer entertainment to the residents was given on Thursday. There was a very fair attendance of ladies and brethren, friends and supporters of the Institution, among whom we may mention :—Bros. C. J. Perceval, W. Eckersall, C. H. Stone, T. Cubitt, J. G. Tongue, G. F. Cook, E. S. Boulter, J. Newton, C. F. Hogard, W. W. Morgan, G. Plucknett, A. H. Tattershall, W. Massey, H. M. Hobbs, James Stevens, J. S. Fraser, C. G. Hill, H. G. Thompson, Hugh Cotter, A. T. Fanll, J. E. Terry, J. A. Farnfield, E. Terry, H. A. Lovett; Mesdames Jas. Terry, E. Eckersall, Stone, Newton, Tongue, Morgan, A. R. and C. Massey, Stevens, Hill, Clara Cooke, Cissie Crutch, K. S. Terry, M. Rucker, Aïda Crutch, Jessie Terry, Lillian Rucker, Cotter, Angelina Hill, Lovett, &c., &c. The majority of the party left Charing Cross and Cannon Street Railway Stations respectively at 3·22 and 3·32 p.m. On reaching the Institution the usual house to house visitations took place, and the ladies in particular gave expression to the sustained interest they individually take in the comfort and welfare of the residents. The Supreme Council 33° considerately renewed their thoughtful gifts of tea and sugar to the females, and tobacco to the male residents. The Misses Cotter (daughters of our genial Brother Hugh Cotter P.M. 554) again evinced their interest and forethought,—on this occasion they presented their aged sisters each with a pot of jam. Later the party partook of high tea, and still later a very enjoyable musical entertainment, under the direction of Bro. A. G. Pritchard, who was assisted by Miss Emily Pritchard, Miss Lizzie Holmes, Miss Frances Grahame, Mr. John Cross and Bro. George Cronin. The entertainment was divided into two parts, and was of a very successful character throughout. Bro. Pritchard has secured a high reputation as a versatile mimic, and his "Swiss Experiences" on this occasion were most heartily relished. Miss Holmes was enthusiastically applauded after her song, "The Old Sun Dial," and responded to a demand for an encore with "The Miller and the Maid." For the second part Dibdin's Ballad Opera, "The Waterman," had been selected. As Tom Tug Mr. John Cross gave a manly representation, and sang the several songs allotted him in a hearty and spirited fashion. Bro. Cronin was entrusted with the part of Robin, and he displayed a true sense of comedy, without vulgarity, in the way he gave expression to that worthy market gardener's peculiarities. Miss Emily Pritchard was the Wilhelmina, and this lady charmed her audience by the manner in which she sang the songs "Cherry Ripe," and "Tell me, my heart," while as an actress she gave signs of careful training. Bro. Pritchard was a capital Bundle, and made the most of his opportunities. As Mrs. Bundle Miss Lizzie Holmes was everything that could be desired; we venture to predict that at an early date this young lady will secure a position at one or other of our London theatres. At the close of the evening a cordial vote of thanks was given to Bro. Pritchard and his party, for their services. This compliment having been gracefully acknowledged, the visitors shortly afterwards took leave of the residents, and returned to town. We have omitted to refer to Miss Frances Grahame; this would indeed have been a fault. This lady proved herself a brilliant player, and her associates can be complimented on having had the services of so competent an accompanist.

HOLIDAY HAUNTS.

WE have already spoken of the circular trips arranged by the Great Eastern Railway Company in the neighbourhood of Yarmouth, Lowestoft, and the rivers of Norfolk. Too much cannot be said in their praise, for they have really opened up to the ordinary tourist a very pleasant district, which was hitherto all but inaccessible—only to be enjoyed by those who could personally charter a small yacht, and not always an unmixed enjoyment then, as those who have found themselves some dozen miles or so away from home, without a breath of wind, can well testify. During the summer season well appointed Saloon Steam Boats leave Yarmouth, every week day, on the arrival of the 8·30 a.m. train from Lowestoft. The first of these, which starts from Yarmouth Bridge about 9·10, travels via the River Bure, as far as Wroxham, a distance of twenty-seven miles, from whence train is taken to Norwich, which is reached at 1·15 p.m. The tourist may at once return to either Yarmouth or Lowestoft, or may spend a few hours in the county town, returning by any train the same day to the coast town from which he started. The fares for this circular trip are 4s 6d and 3s 6d, for 2nd and 3rd class respectively, from Lowestoft; and 3s 6d and 2s 6d respectively from Yarmouth.

The second boat leaves Yarmouth Bridge about 9·30 a.m. and proceeds via the River Yare direct to Norwich (also a journey by boat of twenty-seven miles), arriving there about 12·40. As is the case with the other trip, the traveller may avail himself of any train the same day for the return journey, the first available being timed to reach Yarmouth at 2·25 p.m. and Lowestoft at 2·30 p.m. The fares by this route are 4s and 3s respectively from Lowestoft, and 3s and 2s respectively from Yarmouth.

The return journies of the boats is taken advantage of to provide circular trips from Norwich and Cromer, the boat travelling via the River Yare, arriving at Yarmouth Bridge about 5·20, and that via the River Bure at about 5·50. This affords ample time for a brief stay at Yarmouth, the last train leaving that town for Norwich at 10·22 p.m., and for Cromer at 7·20 p.m. The fares for the Norwich to Norwich trips are the same as those charged for the Yarmouth to Yarmouth ones, while from Cromer to Yarmouth and back the charge is 4s second class, and 3s third class.

By availing himself of these trips, the tourist is enabled to spend a very pleasant holiday on the Norfolk rivers; has an opportunity of viewing the sights of the district, and at the same time can enjoy a half-day at Norwich, a city which possesses many items of interest, and will well repay a visit.

To visit the famous Broads of Norfolk we must again avail ourselves of the Great Eastern system. Oulton Broad is but a short journey from Lowestoft, and is close to the Oulton Broad Station, on the Yarmouth and Lowestoft direct line. Fritton Broad is in the same district, close to the St. Olave's, station on the main line, and at either of these resorts there is ample accommodation for fishing, boating, picnics, and other rural enjoyments. To reach Ormesby, Filby, and most of the other popular Broads, we had best first reach Yarmouth, and then travel either by road, or the new Eastern and Midlands Railway, to our destination. Ormesby Broad is perhaps the most favoured of the many which abound hereabout, and a most enjoyable place it is whereat to spend a holiday. At the noted "Eel's Foot," of which Mr. Ed. Mouncy is the proprietor, every accommodation is available. Comfortable apartments can be secured, dinners and teas are provided, there is no lack of good boats, while fishing tackle, bait, &c., may be procured. Above all this the lover of angling may rest assured that it is next to impossible for him to cast his line anywhere without speedily securing the attention of one of the many members of the finny tribe which are here so plentiful.

THE MIDLAND RAILWAY.

THE difficulty of the present age is not so much to find a place where a pleasant holiday may be expected, as it is to make a selection from the many centres of attraction, and means of getting about that are now provided. The Midland Railway Company has always been provertial for its go ahead proclivities, and it is but reasonable to expect that in the matter of Tourist and Holiday arrangements it is well to the front. The Tourist Programme of this Company provides us with particulars of the principal Holiday Resorts of the United Kingdom. Ireland being reached via the Barrow and Belfast route, or via Liverpool and Dublin. Circular tours are arranged, embracing the principal attractions of the Lake District and the North of Ireland, and, indeed, everything that is possible is done to attract the visitors to the sister Isle. The route between London and Scotland via Settle and Carlisle offers many attractions to the traveller, not the least of which is the magnificent scenery of the Peak District, and if a few minutes anger is spent over the journey to Edinburgh, Glasgow and the Highlands, than is the case if either the West Coast or East Coast route is selected, it is in a measure compensated for by the variety which a change of route affords.

Derby, Matlock, Buxton and the Peak District are among the especial attractions of the Midland Railway system, and many timed have we enjoyed the journey which business or pleasure has rendered necessary in this neighbourhood. But it is not here alone that the Midland Railway Company is able to offer tempting allurements to the holiday seeker, the line is such an extended one that there is hardly a place of any importance which is not in communication with some one or more of the special attractions of our country, and in every case the Midland Company may be said to second, as far as they are able, the advantages which nature has provided.

In the matter of accommodation the Midland is also prominently to the front. Pulman and Saloon carriages are available on the principal day trains, while for the night service luxurious sleeping carriages are provided. In the former case the saloon carriages are available for first class passages without extra charge, while for a berth in the sleeping cars a small extra charge is made. Special facilities are provided by this line for the conveyance of passengers' luggage in advance, so as to avoid the trouble inseparable from having a number of packages to look after; the journey may be broken at various points of interest on the route, and in fact, every concession, that can reasonably be expected is provided.

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

IN accordance with their usual custom, the Great Western Railway Company have made arrangements for the issue of tickets during the week preceding the August Bank Holiday, at their City and West End Offices, viz. :—193 and 407 Oxford-street, 23 New Oxford-street, 269 Strand, Holborn Circus, 29 Charing Cross, 26 Regent-street, 5 Arthur-street-east, London Bridge, 82 Queen Victoria-street, 43 and 44 Crutched-friars, 67 Gresham-street, and 4 Cheapside.

The booking offices at the Paddington Station will be open all day on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, and passengers can obtain tickets at any hour for use on either day.

To meet the expected additional traffic by the ordinary trains on Saturday, 3rd August, the Company will run, in duplicate, the 11·45 a.m., 3·0, 5·0, and 9·0 p.m. trains from London to the West of England; and the 12·0 noon and 5·45 p.m. trains to Weymouth, Hereford, and South Wales. The first portion of the 5·0 p.m. train will leave Paddington at 4·55 p.m., but the first part of the other trains will leave at the advertised times, the second a few minutes afterwards, the long distance passengers being as far as possible taken in the first portion, but, with a few exceptions, both trains will stop at the advertised stations to take up and set down passengers. On Thursday, 1st August, an Excursion train will leave Paddington at 8·5 a.m., for Gloucester, Cardiff, Newport, Swansea, New Milford, &c.; passengers will also be booked at excursion fares to certain stations in the South of Ireland. Fast Excursion trains for West of England will leave Paddington at 8·5 a.m. and 3·5 p.m. on Saturday, 3rd August, reaching Exeter in 5¼ hours and Plymouth in 7¼ hours; and Excursions will also be run on the same day to Bath, Bristol, Dorchester, Weymouth (for the Channel Islands), Cheltenham, Worcester, Malvern, Hereford, Birmingham, Wolverhampton, Shrewsbury, Chester, Liverpool, Manchester, and other Stations on the Great Western System.

Cheap tickets are issued daily from Paddington, and from most of the Stations on the Metropolitan, District and North London Railways, to Windsor, Taplow, Bourne End, Cookham, Henley, and other riverside resorts. A service of Omnibuses has recently been established between Slough and Burnham Beeches, and cheap through tickets are issued daily by certain trains from Paddington.

ROYAL ARCH.

—:o:—

PROV. GRAND CHAPTER OF DURHAM

THE Annual Provincial Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons for the Province of Durham was held on Tuesday night the 16th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Durham. Sir Hedworth Williamson, Grand Superintendent of the Province, presided, and there was a full attendance. The Grand Chapter having been duly opened, Sir Hedworth Williamson regretted that he had to announce receipt of a telegram stating that Lord Lathom's son had died suddenly. The announcement cast a gloom over the meeting. The following Officers were appointed :—

THE CRAFT OF OLDEN TIME.

All honour to our forefathers, the Craftsmen true of old,
Propounders of the sacred truths which we their children hold,
And guard with jealous caution, as the miser would his gold,
Safe from the coward's crafty will, and him who battles bold:

'Twas theirs to rear the stately dome, aspiring to the skies,
While wond'ring crowds astonished viewed the stately structure rise;
And deemed the labour magic, in their wonder and surprise,
Nor knew that science in our hand a giant's strength supplies.

Nor were their useful labours to brick and stone confined;
'Twas theirs to mould in beauty's forms the rude, unpolished mind,
Which by their moral regime, exalted and refined,
Fulfilled the noble destiny for which it was designed.

Our ancient Brethren, emulous, in virtue took delight,
And zealously and fervently contended for "the right."
Not with the arm of earthly power, or sword of carnal might,
But with the spear of reason and the force of moral light.

Then let us strive to emulate those virtues which have made
The name of Mason glorious as Sol in light arrayed;
And demonstrate to all the earth, that ages have conveyed,
Undimmed to us, the holy Light whose guiding lustre strayed
The actions of our Brethren, the Craft of olden time.

—Keystone.

The present has been happily described as "The Golden Age of Masonry in Australia." Several brothers of high distinction in the Lodges of the United Kingdom are now temporarily resident in the colonies, and the deep interest they evince in the advancement of the Order is cordially appreciated by the colonists. The Earl of Kintore, the new Governor of South Australia, is welcomed as "the greatest Mason who has taken up residence in Australia," and Lord Carrington, the Governor of New South Wales, has long ago "made it solid"—to use an Americanism—with the enthusiastic Fraternity on the eastern side of the continent.

EADE'S
GOUT & RHEUMATIC PILLS.

The SAFEST and most EFFECTUAL CURE for GOUT, RHEUMATISM, and all PAINS in the HEAD, FACE, and LIMBS.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL from the Rev. F. FARVIS, Baptist Minister.

March 19, 1887.

Mr. G. EADE.

Dear Sir,—I have many times felt inclined to inform you of the benefit I have received by taking your Gout and Rheumatic Pills. After suffering for some time from Rheumatics and Sciatica, I was advised to use your Pills. I bought a bottle, and when in severe pain and unable to use the limb affected I took a dose. In a few hours after I felt the pain much better, and after the second dose the pain completely removed and the limb restored to its right use. I thank you, dear sir, for sending forth such a boon for the relief of human suffering.

Yours faithfully,
F. FARVIS,
Baptist Minister.

There are multitudes of people who look upon advertising as a sort of Lottery, and bestow infinitely more thought in the selection of a clerk at £100 a year than in the expenditure of £1000, or two in the same period in advertising. A tithe of the shrewdness displayed in all other branches of their business given to the management of their advertising will be amply repaid. The ADVERTISEMENT AGENT has become an indespensable factor in this matter of publicity, and his raison d'être is perfectly unassailable. Would you leave or enter a port without a pilot? Would you commence and prosecute a law suit without a legal adviser? Either of these courses would not be more foolish than rushing into expenses in Advertising without a competent practical and professional adviser. I am at all times happy to render advertisers every assistance in my power, and to give them the benefit of the experience I have gained during the past twenty years as a London advertising agent. "PAINLESS AND PERFECT DENTISTRY."

A New Pamphlet, by Dr. GEO. H. JONES, F.R.S.L., F.R.M.S., &c., Surgeon-Dentist, 57 Great Russell-street, facing British Museum entrance, London, contains a list of Diplomas, and Silver Medals and other Awards obtained at the Great International Exhibitions. Forwarded gratis and post free.

Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist's Testimonial.

My Dear Doctor,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

S. G. HUTCHINS,
By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

Geo. H. Jones, Esq., D.D.S.

Scientific Department.
Laboratory of Experimental Science.

This is to certify: That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

(Signed),

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

Are universally admitted to be worth a Guinea a Box for Nervous and Bilious Disorders, such as wind and pain in the stomach, sick headache, giddiness, fullness and swelling after meals, dizziness and drowsiness, cold chills, flushings of heat, loss of appetite, shortness of breath, costiveness, scurvy, blotches on the skin, disturbed sleep, frightful dreams, and all nervous and trembling sensations, &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes. This is no fiction, for they have done it in thousands of cases. Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all humours, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no medicine to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

For a weak stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the liver they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse in person with the ROSEBUD of health the whole physical energy of the human frame. These are the "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of society, and one of the best guarantees to the nervous and debilitated, is that have the largest sale of any patent medicine in the world.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

REJECTING A CANDIDATE.

THE Masonic Order is essentially a cosmopolitan brotherhood, and yet, at the same time, it is one of the most exclusive combinations to be found anywhere among the human race. Its benefits are open to the whole world, the only qualifications being that a candidate shall be of good character, of full age, and a free man. On the other hand, two or three members of a Lodge can exclude any person they may consider unsuitable to become one of their number, or against whom they may entertain feelings of animosity. We are aware it is most unMasonic to keep a man out of the Order simply on account of personal disagreement, but at the same time we know such a course is adopted, and no doubt we shall continue to hear of instances for all time.

In spite of what may be urged to the contrary, there is something to be said in support of those who consider that in some cases the use of the ballot for the purpose of rejecting a candidate on merely personal grounds may be excused, or certainly tolerated; it is really the only method available, in some quarters, to ensure a continuance of peace and harmony in a Lodge, or at least among a section of its members. But it must not be imagined we are in favour of its general adoption—on the contrary, we consider great harm is likely to follow whenever it is practised, but, as we have said, it is sometimes the only course open, and as such it fully deserves careful consideration. We have recently received "A Paper on Voting," read by Brother E. V. Greatbach, at the Menturia Lodge, No. 418, of which Bro. Greatbach is a Past Master, and from this we gather one of the strongest, if not the only argument, that can be used in favour of rejecting a candidate on the ballot. In using it, however, we do not by any means wish to support it, except as showing what is sometimes necessary, and as offering a word of excuse for those brethren who at times find themselves compelled to depart from ordinary procedure. Bro. Greatbach asks, "What have we to submit as a step whereby an objectionable candidate may be prevented gaining admission without the use of the blackball?" and he replies, "Simply this—there has for years past existed an honourable understanding amongst us that any brethren having objections to a candidate, who has been, or is about to be proposed, shall tell the Worshipful Master that such an objection exists; it is optional whether or not the grounds of the objection are stated, though personally I should specify them. The Worshipful Master then informs the proposer that an objection or objections exist, and that, consequently, his nominee may not be accepted; after that it is for the friends of the candidate to decide whether or not they will force him to the ballot. If they do so, it is done with their eyes wide open—they know the indisputable right of every brother to emphasise his objection, in a way not to be resisted, so that if the candidate is then taken to the ballot by his friends, they must accept the result, and the blame, if any, afterwards rests upon their shoulders." The course here set out by Bro. Greatbach is certainly the best, and we think it is the one most generally adopted, but it has certain drawbacks; at times it is absolutely impossible to adopt such a line of action, however much a brother may desire it. Bro. Greatbach knows of one of the drawbacks to which we refer, as later on he says:—"I know it is alleged that these objections (the existence of which has been communicated to the W.M.) have not been held sacred by Worshipful Masters, but I think that must be due to a misapprehension of facts." To support the argument we allude to, let us take a typical case: a gentleman is proposed, against whom certain objections exist in the minds of one or two of the Lodge members. To make these known to even the Worshipful Master might do the candidate far more harm than his ultimate rejection on the ballot, even if worse results were not likely to follow, and in such cases blackballing is resorted to—and we consider fairly so. Let us suppose the member or members who object to the candidate communicate with the Worshipful Master, simply saying that an objection did exist, they might expect to be called upon to give full particulars, and, on their considering it unwise to do so, might lose the respect and esteem of their fellow members, although they might be actuated by the best of motives. It is very well to argue that the communication addressed to the Master should be held sacred by him, but how often is such really the case? We do not say that Masters intentionally betray the trust reposed in them, but somehow or other the facts get known all round, and, occasionally with far more disastrous results among the members themselves than would have been the case if the objection had been kept back until the time of ballot. This, then, is one of the arguments that may be used in support of the principle of blackballing a candidate, when that course unfortunately becomes absolutely necessary, but we do not give it here merely to encourage Masons to adopt that most unmasonic proceeding; in ninety-nine cases out of every hundred it can, and should be avoided, but in the one remaining case it is perhaps absolutely imperative, and this being the fact, we should not too harshly condemn the brother who has to resort to it.

In his "Paper" Bro. Greatbach considers this question of blackballing, and voting generally, from other standpoints; indeed he seems to thoroughly exhaust the subject, and in such a way that his lecture might well be repeated in other Lodges. For this we have no doubt he will willingly grant permission. Later on we may have occasion to refer at greater length to his remarks.

ABOUT OUR AMERICAN SCOTCH RITE CRANKS, ONCE MORE.

By Bro. Jacob Norton.

THE late Bro. W. S. Gardner P.G.M. of Massachusetts, though he was formerly an admirer of Masonic high degreedom, finally came to the conclusion that all the so-called high degrees were "mere Masonic excrescences," and that no Grand Lodge should encourage or interfere with high degreedom whatever. I have more than once described the American Scotch Rite factions, and more especially the battles between the Gourgasites and Cerneauites, since 1813. Common sense proves conclusively that if one of these factions is a humbug, so is the other. But, nevertheless, the Gourgasites have somehow managed to capture some of our Grand Lodges. Of these the most conspicuous are, 1st, the Grand Lodge of Ohio; 2nd, the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts; 3rd, the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania. How many other of our Grand Lodges are tainted with more or less of high degree crankyism, I know not. In Massachusetts a Cerneauite may be expelled from Masonry. In Ohio, Cerneauites must be expelled from Lodges, Commanderies, &c., &c.; and I recently noticed that my friend Bro. MacCalla, Grand Master of Pennsylvania, was compelled (I believe against his will) warn all the Cerneautite sinners in his jurisdiction that, if they do not discard Cerneauism on a certain day, they must be expelled from all the rights and privileges of Masonry. I am, however, glad to perceive that though the high degree mania is spreading in American jurisdictions, there is at least one jurisdiction where common sense still prevails, as the following address of Bro. Ingersoll, Grand Master of Tennessee, and the approbation it received from the Committee of Jurisprudence, which was unanimously approved by the Grand Lodge, on 1st February 1889, will show. Grand Master H. H. Ingersoll said:—

"Last month the Grand Master of Ohio notified me that he had withdrawn the Commission of Bro. Wilbur F. Foster as representative of the Grand Lodge of Ohio near this Grand Lodge; and our Representative near the Grand Lodge of Ohio having departed this life, and the Grand Master of Ohio having refused to receive a Representative, hence, diplomatic relations between the two Grand Lodges may be said to be in abeyance.

"The cause of this I presume to be the Scottish Rite war in Ohio, and my request to the Grand Master of that State to nominate for our Representative near the Grand Lodge of Ohio some worthy brother who had not been conspicuous in bitterness and intolerance in thatwar,—as none such could properly represent the liberal, generous spirit of Tennessee Masonry. To this the Grand Master [of Ohio] responded: 'The majority of Masons in Ohio do not tolerate treason and rebellion,' and recommended a brother much esteemed in Ohio; but, as I was left to infer, fully in harmony with the proscriptive spirit of the majority. Having no connection or relation with either of the Scottish Rite factions, whose contention has disturbed the peace and harmony of our Order in Ohio, and knowing that Tennessee Masons should be represented by a brother conspicuous for his loyalty to Ancient Craft Masonry, rather than to any Scottish Rite, I requested him to name some other brother, of high character and good standing, not tainted with 'treason or rebellion,' but opposed to the policy of the dominant majority of that State. I also suggested the name of a worthy brother, a Past Grand Officer, and a member of the Scottish Rite body orthodox in that State, but liberal and tolerant in his views, and asked if he would be accepted as our Representative. The suggestion was not favourably received, because, as the Grand Master wrote, the brother named was then the Representative of the Grand Lodge of New York. This mistake of the Grand Master he afterwards corrected, by saying the brother's term had expired, and another brother had been appointed in lieu, as Representative from New York. But no change of view appeared from the discovery of the mistake; and I inferred that the reason for declining to accept my suggestion was, the very liberality of views and opposition to Masonic intolerance which had caused me to suggest his name. With a courteous and considerate reference to Ohio loyalty and Tennessee rebellion, the Grand Master assured me, in plain terms, that no Representative would be received from us unless he was not only an orthodox Scotch Rite Mason, but also an active and prominent supporter of the locally dominant faction in its policy of using the great power of the Grand Lodge to support an order of the Scottish Rite.

"Such a Mason, however high and respected at home, I could not knowingly appoint as our representative. Such an one could not correctly represent the Grand Lodge of Tennessee. Whatever may be the views and opinions of the Tennessee Masons upon the merits of the Scottish imbroglio, or whether we sympathize with either of the three or four factions claiming legitimacy and contending for supremacy in that Order. One thing we can and do agree about.

"Ancient Craft Masonry—comprising the three symbolic degrees of Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft, and Master Mason, universal and uniform throughout the world—is absolutely free and independent of all orders, and should not be, and cannot lawfully be allied with, or dominated by, any order of Scottish Rite Masons. Nor can we, as Freemasons, be called upon, through our Grand Lodges, to hear and decide any controversy between the various claimants to legitimacy in that Rite. If they pretend—any of them—to confer our degrees, then they are clandestine Lodges, and their votaries are to us as heathens and publicans. We know them not, and can hold no sort of Masonic communication with them. If they do not lay claim to symbolic degrees, then they are not of us. We have no knowledge or standard by which we can test their claim, try their cause, or decide their rights. As well might we interfere with Odd Fellows, United Workmen, Knights of Honour, Knights of Pythias, or Knights of Labour. If they claim the right to base their Order upon our Triune Temple, we cannot forbid them; and one, two, ten or twenty different and even belligerent bodies may indulge in this pastime; we can endure them all without harm or fear—on the outside . . . But outside is their place and their sphere; outside, they are impotent to injure Freemasonry; outside, they cannot destroy our peace and harmony; and outside they must remain, and not profane our sacred precincts.

"Standing to and abiding by the Ancient Charge, 'that it is not in the power of any man or body of men to make innovations in the body of Masonry,' I earnestly protest against the introduction of this foreign element into our perfect and symmetrical body . . . . believing that Lodge membership makes a brother a member of the whole Masonic family . . . I protest against the external conditions imposed by the Grand Master of Ohio, upon worthy brethren of his own Jurisdiction, to receive an honourable commission from the Grand Lodge of Tennessee. Nay, more, believing that a Freemason is a free man, I deny the right of any Lodge, subordinate or Grand, to dictate to him whether he shall, or shall not, become a member of any other Society . . . whose purposes and practices are not immoral, and saving only clandestine symbolic Lodges, it is not the function—nay, it is not within the scope of the powers of any Lodge, Subordinate or Grand, to hold an inquisition over, and pronounce upon legitimacy, regularity, orthodoxy or loyalty of any such order, society, or fraternity.

"These I believe to be the cardinal doctrines, and vital principles of Ancient Craft Masonry . . . In this spirit I addressed the Grand Master of Ohio a brief reply to his note, requesting me to appoint a representative near that Grand Lodge, and asked him to nominate some worthy brother, in good standing, who agreed with these views, who was an orthodox Craft Mason, and esteemed our Order above any Scoth Rite. He declined an exchange of Grand Representatives, until he could have the assurance that the spirit of Tennessee Masonry, as expressed by its Grand Master, was not in favour of rebellion.

"This means, my brethren, that Ohio not only intends to accept and establish a foreign dynasty in her own limits, but to compel her sister States to recognise it, and to approve of its dominion, at the peril of a loss of fraternal relations."

After expressing regret for the necessity of giving the above explanations, Bro. Ingersoll goes on to say:—

"The Ohio Grand Lodge prescribes by edict what Order of the Scottish Rite [or, rather, which of the Scotch factions] Freemasons may unite with, and not only expels them, but forfeits Lodge Charters, if they join any other Order of Scotch Rite. This, of course, we cannot prevent, but we are not bound to approve of such pernicious policy, directly or indirectly. Such resolutions and conduct are unwise, as our Committee of Correspondence has more than once said." (See Proceedings of the G.L. of Tenn. of 1883, p 407, and of 1885, p 113).

After administering a few more lashes to the benighted Grand Lodge and Grand Master of Ohio, and after expressing an earnest hope that the Ohio Masons will become wiser, freeer, and better than they are now, the Committee of Correspondence presented the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted.

"While earnestly deploring that such a condition of affairs should exist, we cannot but feel, after carefully studying the Correspondence, that the Grand Master of Tennessee has truly reflected the sentiments and wishes of the Masons of this jurisdiction, in insisting that he who shall be commissioned as our Representative shall be one who is willing to ignore outside organizations, and to preserve unbroken the integrity of peace and goodwill, which should, and we trust will ever, prevail in the great brotherhood of ancient Craft Masonry.

"The three degrees of our beloved Fraternity . . . comprising all over which the Grand Lodge claims jurisdiction, . . . embrace within their triple lines all which concerns our welfare. Let us not be drawn into disputes which may arise between organizations of which we have no legal knowledge, and in which, except as reluctant spectators of their trouble, we have no interest.

"In Tennessee, God willing, we are determined that no such strife shall disturb our Councils . . . We are of opinion that those who may be selected and commissioned as the Representatives of the Masons of Tennessee, even in those Grand Jurisdictions where that unfortunate controversy may exist, shall be of like conviction with ourselves. This being so, and the Grand Master of Ohio being unwilling that any but partizan in the struggle, in which his jurisdiction is unfortunately involved, shall hold our commission, and receive courteous fraternal reception from the Grand Lodge of Ohio, it would be undignified that we should insist, and still less true to our convictions and self respect, that we should consent to the appointment of one, however otherwise worthy, who would on so important an issue hold opinions at variance with our own."

I have given sufficient extracts from the Proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Tennessee to prove that Tennessee at least is not infected with the high degrees mania, and I have reason to believe that the unvarnished rebuke given to the pervertors of Masony in Ohio by the Grand Lodge of Tennessee, will eventually tend to bring the whole system of the so-called "High Degrees" into well merited contempt. Indeed, if I am not mistaken, the leading men in the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts are now sorry for having suffered themselves to become the tools of a high degree faction, and even Bro. MacCalla, though he is in duty bound to the high degree Pennsylvania pervertors of Masonry, to expel some unfortunate Cerneauites for sticking to the Cerneau faction, yet, in an article, reprinted in this paper of 13th April, from the Keystone, he says:

"Three and only three degrees are ancient; and whatever more than these is an excrescency, a superaddition, and ultimately and surely a seed of conflict and evil."

Putting aside Bro. MacCalla's notion, that "Three degrees are ancient," I heartily endorse the remaining part of the above paragraph, thus showing, what I intimated above, that the warning he issued to the Cerneauites in his jurisdiction, was not in harmony with his own common sense.

EVER SACRED.

An Oration by Bro. Thomas Henry Laine, before the Grand Lodge of California, F. and A. M., 10th October 1888.

CONVENED in this sacred place, surrounded by the mystic symbols and emblems of our Order, and having constantly before our eyes the whole insignia of the Craft, all vocal with lessons of wisdom and beauty, the mind, intoxicated with their perfume, is loth to wander from Masonry to any other subject. For Masonry, as a theme, like unto the Holy Writings as a book, is always new, inspiring and exhaustless; a fountain, for ever pouring forth the pure waters of wisdom, love and truth—the true waters of the river of life that flows from the throne of God. Our loved Fraternity is hoary with age, yet full of the vigour and beauty of youth, knowing no decay.

> "Revolutions sweep o'er the earth,
> Like troubled visions o'er the breast of dreaming sorrow."

Nation rises against nation, and system rises against system, in the great work of change and destruction. The world's arena is strewn with ruins, bones and blood. But, amidst these mighty scenes of passion, war and ruin, the Lodges of our Craft have stood as beacons upon the highest hills and lights in the deepest vales, offering places of shelter and repose. In those sacred precincts there has been for ever taught the lesson of all lessons, that there is one Almighty Father, the Architect of all things seen and unseen—most holy and loving—in whose sight all men are brethren, equally under His protection—a Living God, who, "discerneth deep things out of darkness, and bringeth to light the shadow of death," and of whom it is said, "Hell is naked before Him, destruction hath no coming."

Whence came this puissant and venerable Order? What corner of the globe can claim to be its birth-place? At what point in the tide of time came it into being? Geographically considered, it came not into being in the frozen and sterile North Land, nor from the parched and burning equatorial regions, but in some temperate clime where the physical needs and strength of man gave him the desire and power to use the twenty-four inch gauge, the common gavel, the setting maul, the square, the plumb-line, the compass and the trowel. Not only did it originate in the temperate regions of the earth, but at some point north of the equator. This is apparent to the Masonic mind without learned arguments to support it; the situation of the Lodge and the location of its lights is enough—the North being the place of Masonic darkness. To narrow further the limits, we claim that it could not have been born of atheism, barbarism or ignorance. No! She bears upon her brow and in her body and spirit the unmistakable evidences of her high birth. That only hearts and minds, pure and God-fearing, laid her foundations and wrought upon her in the beginning, is evident from her landmarks and foundation principles.

Some have inconsiderately contended for an Egyptian origin of our Craft, as that ancient people had much of learning and art. But such a contention is without foundation. Its grand moral and theocratic system could not have been the outgrowth of the brute-worshipping Egyptian people. No! Search her monuments from Monæ to disemboguing Nile; examine every inscription, statue and structure, whether it be sphinx, temple, tomb, or mighty pyramid; and nowhere is there to be found the slightest trace of Israel's God, Who in the beginning created the heavens and the earth. Search other lands, their records and monuments, and nowhere will you find a civilisation from which such an Order could spring or find nourishment in infancy, except in that land in which was erected that wondrous temple on Mount Moriah, within whose walls no graven image, no statue of man, bird or beast is found, but only the altar from whose brazen top there ascended the sweet-smelling odours of sacrifice to the invisible God, and where, day and night, blazed the mystic Shekinah—that fire fed by no human hand or earthly fuel. That holy temple has fallen; over its ruins long since were heard the screams of the godless Roman's eagles. Yet neither the tread of armies, the shock of battle, the breath of pestilence, or the tooth of all-devouring time, have been able to remove from those ruins the evidences that it was the work of Masons—of a civilised, God-fearing people. The foe and the elements have dug down on its foundation, lasting as the eternal hill of which it forms no inconsiderable part, and found the sure evidences of Masonic work that every well-instructed Mason knows how to read. We have thus fixed the place and time of Masonry's birth. It is a Royal Order, brethren. Hiram of Tyre and Solomon of Israel exalted the widow's son, whose royalty was labour, wisdom and fidelity.

The Craft itself has been as well built and enduring as this mighty foundation was. The ruthless hand of man, with blast, pick, crow and shovel, May remove Mount Moriah, or cast Mount Zion into the sea; it may pull up by the roots the cedars of Lebanon; but the God-planted institution of Masonry is beyond his powers. Its roots are too deep and strong to be dug out or pulled up; they are beneath every land and clime, and the nations rest in the shade of their great tree.

But Masonry, like all sublunary things, has had and still has its enemies. Those enemies, in the times now past, were powerful and often cruel. But I care not to open these barbarous records of the past, either to arrange our enemies or to vindicate our sublime Craft. Suffice it to say that Masonry, in the ages that are past, with charity for all and persecution for none, has borne with becoming fortitude its trials and perils, biding its time with patience; and that, when her secrets were demanded by the base or the powerful, she has answered with the firmness and devotion of the widow's son, and the secrets remained sacred—the would-be destroyer getting nothing but dust and ashes. When her principles were assailed or challenged, she answered her accusers with the royal dignity and wisdom of Hiram of Tyre and Solomon of Israel, and the world listened. When her devoted leaders were placed on the burning pile, they fearlessly summoned their persecutors to meet them before the throne of the Eternal Father. When her sons, as a last insult, were denied burial in consecrated ground, she proudly answered that any ground is holy and consecrated in which is planted by Masonic hands the sprig of acacia, and on which rests the eye of God.

But, despite the war upon her, she now stands forth sovereign of the ascendant, clothed in royal purple. For she has this day in her ranks more presidents, kings, princes, governors, rulers, bishops, statesmen, generals, judges, law-givers, and great ones, than any other body of men upon the earth; and none dare lay in anger their finger "upon the hem of her garment." She has enemies yet—but who are they? They may be set forth in two classes. First, that class of men, confined to no clime, and called and best described by the word "crank." This class proudly numbers in its fold the criminal, the fool and the idler—an unsavoury trinity of political cranks, social cranks, and religious cranks—a body of men who never begin or advance any good work, but are always trying to pull down something erected by others. As their cranky disposition renders them incapable of organising for any good work, it makes them doubt the capacity of others; so also it renders them almost powerless as enemies. True, they are for ever jabbering about the perniciousness and uselessness of secret societies, ever contending that all good things should be made public to everybody. But we, remembering the wise and ancient injunction, "Give ye not thou that which is holy unto the dogs, neither cast ye your pearls before swine," regard them as the idle wind and pass on with our work. The second class is composed of pseudo-religionists from all creeds—Catholic, Greek, Protestant, Hebrew, Mohammedan, Buddhist, Mormon and Spiritualist—those who are more righteous than their brothers in the several denominations of the earth, a zealous, fuming, frothing lot, that would light again the torch and fagot, bring forth again the rack, the wheel, and the instruments of torture; but the wise and good of every creed stand with us against the whole motley herd of self-righteous fanatics, and we laugh at their fury.

THE UNAFFILATED MASON.

THE gentleman whose designation heads this article is a sore thorn in the side of some Grand jurisdictions, who are constantly legislating, with more or less success, with a view to improving him off the face of the earth. The Grand Lodge of England, true to its traditional ostrich-head-in-sand policy, lets things slide, closes both eyes, and passes by on the other side, whilst the Grand Lodge of Scotland treats the unaffiliated on very much the same footing as the subscribing member. And yet the "Mason" who is not sufficient of a Mason to keep up a connection with any one Lodge, is an anomaly of the most flagrant character, and Grand Lodges ought to get rid of him or perish in the attempt. It is perfectly true, no doubt, that in a certain sense a man once a Mason is always a Mason, in so far as the modicum of esoteric knowledge he has obtained cannot be taken away from him, but it does not follow as a necessary corollary that every man who has managed to slip through the very loose portals of the ballot box, and has paid his moderate initiation fees, should ergo acquire the right for the remainder of his natural existence of enjoying the privileges and pleasures of an institution built up and kept together by the self-denying labours of more energetic men. In this colony of ours, and if we may judge by our exchanges in every part of the Masonic world, there are numbers of Masons, save the mark, who for years have never paid one single cent of money, or contributed one single hour of labour to the Craft, but who nevertheless roll up regularly at a banquet or a ball, flaunt themselves in Masonic regalia at any big ceremonial, or make their Masonic existence known should unfortunate circumstances render them dependent upon charity. For some there is every excuse. It may happen that after doing their Masonic duty for a certain period, untoward circumstances have prevented their fulfilling their financial obligations to the Craft. To them we can only extend our fraternal sympathy. But they only constitute a small minority of the unaffiliated. The bulk of those who are Masons minus Lodge membership, have dropped working connection with the Craft from other and less excusable causes. Either their enthusiasm does not rise to the financial high water mark of ten or twelve shillings per quarter, or they are of the wrong stuff, and never should have been admitted, or the Lodges have failed to interest and retain hold of them. For the first class we have nothing but contempt. For the second the loose notions now so prevalent about the use of the blackball are responsible. For the third, Lodges have to blame themselves. As we have before pointed out, Lodges fail grievously in their duty if they do not give their initiates some more solid metal pabulum than stale repetitions of ceremonies which lead to nothing. But at the same time the neglect of Lodges in this respect does not justify members in ceasing to subscribe to them. The great army of unaffiliates is so numerous that if disgust at the methods of Lodges were the real moving spring of their abstention they could have worked a beneficial revolution ages ago. And, broadly speaking, for a brother who is not a member of a Lodge to show himself as a Mason at all is a disgrace and a piece of meanness of which no honourable man should be guilty. The English Constitutions lay down a rule that non-affiliates should visit no one Lodge more than once, but this rule is flagrantly and constantly disregarded, and the non-affiliates rise to the surface (on grand occasions) as constantly as ever. Our American friends, with their customary "level headedness," keep a much sharper watch on the non-affiliates, and some of them have made these gentry pay dues to Grand Lodges or lose their Masonic status altogether. Some such provision, drastic though it may seem, we should cordially welcome, but failing it, we should say that the first W.M. who has the moral courage to refuse admittance to a non-affiliate who visits his Lodge a second time would prove himself a true exemplar of the Constitutions which he has solemnly pledged himself to observe.

Bro. the Rev. T. W. Lemon, M.A., Prov. G.J.W. of the Province of Devon, P.S.G. Warden of Prov. Mark Grand Lodge of Devon, and Prov. Prior of the Knights Templar of Devon, presented a donation, on the 19th ult., of one hundred guineas to the Masonic Institution for Boys, and completed his gift of one hundred guineas to the Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons. He had previously constituted himself a Vice Patron of the Masonic Institution for Girls, and by his present donations is now Vice Patron of all three of the great London Masonic charities.

The half-yearly meeting of the Annuity Fund Board of Grand Lodge of Scotland was held on the 18th ult., Bro. Elliot, of Wolflee, presiding. Petitions were read from 41 applicants for election as annuitants. After carefully going over the list a short leet of fifteen were elected—twelve of £10 each, two of £15 each, and one of £20.

Bro. Brackstone Baker has been nominated representative of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania at the United Grand Lodge of England. He has received a similar appointment from the Grand Lodges of Ohio and Michigan. Bro. Baker is now the accredited delegate of twenty United States Grand Lodges, besides two of the Dominion of Canada, viz., New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

PROV. GRAND LODGE OF N. AND E. YORKSHIRE.

BY invitation of The Humber (57), the Provincial Grand Lodge of North and East York held its annual assembly at the Public Room, at Hull, on the 24th ult. The Right Hon. the Earl of Zetland, the R.W. Provincial Grand Master of North and East Yorkshire, was supported by Bro. Lieut.-Colonel the Hon. W. T. Orde-Powlett P.G.W., Deputy Prov. Grand Master; the R.W. Prov. Grand Master of West Yorkshire, and his Deputy Bro. Henry Smith. The Lodge was opened about two o'clock in the afternoon. There must have been nearly 200 brethren present, and the magnificent hall of the Public-rooms presented a striking and most picturesque spectacle whilst the Lodge was in session. After the formal opening, an address of congratulation was presented to the R.W. the Provincial Grand Master on his appointment to the post of Viceroy of Ireland, and this compliment was acknowledged by Lord Zetland in a most appropriate speech. The usual business was then transacted, and after the transaction of other formal matters, the Provincial Grand Master invested the following brethren as Officers for the ensuing year:—

Bro. Dr. J. A. Malcolmsen	...	Senior Warden
Wm. Ascough Dennison	...	Junior Warden
Rev. H. Lowther Clarke, M.A.	...	Chaplains
Rev. R. Blakeney ...	...
Walter Reynolds ...	...	Treas.
F. Fullerton ...	...	Registrar
M. C. Peck ...	...	Secretary
J. Clark	...	Senior Deacon
W. Coltman ...	...	Junior Deacon
F. Blackburn ...	...	Supt. of Works
A. W. Walker ...	...	D. of C.
Jas. Bordas ...	...	A.D. of C.
Mackail	...	Sword Bearer
R. H. Sootheran ...	...	Standard Bearers
John Chappell ...	...
Jas. R. Stringer ...	...	Organist
T. Oates	...	A.S.
Geo. Chambers ...	...	Pursuivant
John Macfadden ...	...	Assist. Pursuivant
Fred J. Lambert ...	...	Tyler

Subsequently a large number of the officers and brethren sat down to a banquet, in the lecture-hall of the public-rooms. The R.W. the Prov. G.M. (Lord Zetland) presided, and after the repast the customary Loyal and Masonic toasts were given from the chair. The R.W. the Prov. G.M. of West Yorkshire (Bro. T. W. Tew) submitted the toast of "The Right Hon. the Earl of Zetland R.W. Grand Master of North and East Yorkshire." For fifteen years Lord Zetland had presided over the Masonic destinies of that most historic province, which had been ever loyal to the Throne, to the family of Zetland, and which would ever be loyal to the present R.W. Grand Master of the Province. Nothing had given those from West Yorkshire greater pleasure than to be present at the Grand Lodge, and to echo in every respect the noble sentiments expressed in the address which Lord Zetland had been graciously pleased to receive. He was present to show how beloved Lord Zetland was to those in West Yorkshire, and to add his feeling testimony to the joy they all felt at his lordship's patriotism in accepting the important office of Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, and that the choice of her Most Gracious Majesty had fallen upon so popular an English nobleman and noble English gentleman. He hoped that when his term of office had expired Lord Zetland would return to his beloved Province, with health and strength to preside over it with that ability which had distinguished him in the past. He wished his lordship God-speed in the arduous duties he was about to undertake, and he doubted not that so popular a Yorkshireman would make their friends in Ireland more peaceable subjects to law and order that they had ever been before. Lord Zetland, in replying, thanked those present for the exceedingly kind manner in which the toast had been proposed and received. The proposer had referred to that high office he had accepted in her Majesty's present Government. He could assure them that he should thoroughly appreciate the honourable position of being her Majesty's representative in Ireland, and he could only repeat what he had said when he was presented that afternoon with that magnificent address, that when it became his duty to go across the Channel, he would endeavour to do his duty in Ireland as became a Briton and a Yorkshireman. He would feel one great regret in going to Ireland, and that was that for a time possibly he should have to sever the connection, which had now existed for fifteen years, between the Province of North and East Yorkshire and himself, so far as to render it impossible for him to reside so continuously within the Province as he had hitherto done. That regret, however, was alleviated very much by his feeling that he should not only enjoy the sympathy of the Freemasons of the Province, but that, under the guidance of the Deputy Grand Master, the interests of Freemasonry would be as safely guarded as if he himself were among them. In conclusion, his Lordship proposed the health of the R.W. Provincial Grand Master of West Yorkshire (Bro. Tew). Bro. Tew, in responding, assured those present that his brethren in West Yorkshire were only too anxious to co-operate with North and East Yorkshire in everything that was for the benefit of Freemasonry. Bro. J. Todd P.P.G.S.W. submitted the health of Lieut.-Colonel the Hon. W. T. Orde-Powlett, R.W. Past Grand Warden, Deputy Provincial Grand Master of North and East Yorkshire. Brother Lieutenant-Colonel Orde-Powlett replied, and said he would try, with the help of the Officers, to undertake his duty to the best of his skill and ability. It had given him very great pleasure to come to Hull; it always did, for Freemasonry was increasing in popularity in Hull, and in the right way. They should not ask men to become Masons for the sake of filling Lodges, but they should ask good and true men to join the Craft. It was only by electing proper people that they could expect Freemasonry to flourish. It was now more than 20 years since the Provincial Grand Lodge assembled under the banner of the Humber Lodge, which was, he believed, the senior Lodge in the Province, and which set a good example in everything it undertook. In Hull a number of Lodges had sprung up round about the Humber; they were all most anxious to do their duty, and he thought they had succeeded uncommonly well. He returned thanks for the way in which the toast had been received, and proposed the newly-appointed Officers of the Prov. Grand Lodge. The toast was replied to by Bro. J. A. Malcolmsen P.S.G.W., who said he and and his fellow Officers would do their duty to the best of their ability. They had no doubt but that Masonry would go on well during his Lordship's temporary absence. Lord Zetland proposed the health of the W.M. of the Humber Lodge. Bro. J. Rutter W.M. of the Humber Lodge responded. The other toasts were the Visiting Brethren, and the Masonic Charities. The proceedings were interspersed with harmony. Next year's Provincial Grand Lodge will be held at Malton.

MARK MASONRY.

—:o—

PROV. G. LODGE BERKS AND OXON.

THE Annual Meeting of the Officers and Brethren of the Berks and Oxon Provincial Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons was held at Oxford, on Wednesday afternoon, under the banner of the Alfred Lodge, and the proceedings were more than usually interesting on account of the installation of Viscount Valentia as Provincial Grand Master, in the room of the Earl of Jersey, who recently retired from that office, which he had held, with great advantage to the Province, from the date of its foundation, ten years ago. Another interesting feature in the day's programme was the presentation of an address to the retiring Provincial Grand Master. Lord Jersey opened the Provincial Grand Lodge shortly after mid-day, assisted by the Deputy P.G.M. Bro. Stephens, and the P.G. Officers. Several distinguished Grand Lodge Officers honoured the gathering with their presence, including:—

The Earl of Euston President of the Board of General Purposes P.S.G. Warden, Sir Lionel Darell G.J. Warden, Bro. Matier Grand Secretary, Bro. Berridge Grand Director of Ceremonies, Bro. Leon P.G. Deacon, Captain Airey and Bro. S. Knight Grand Steward, Major Cook, Bro. Cousans G.J. Deacon, Bro. the Rev. J. H. Jukes Past Grand Chaplain, Bro. Baynes P.G.M.O., Bro. Tomkins P.G. Steward, Bro. Ravenscroft P.G. Secretary, Bros. Margrett and Pulley Past Grand Deacons, and a number of Past and Present Provincial Grand Officers and Brethren.

The reports presented by the P.G. Secretary as to the Lodges in the Province and the progress of Mark Masonry, were of a satisfactory character. Bro. Tomkins was unanimously re-elected Provincial Grand Treasurer. The Patent, signed by the Grand Master H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, having been read by the Grand Director of Ceremonies, appointing Viscount Valentia to the office of Provincial Grand Master, his Lordship was introduced, and suitably addressed by Lord Jersey, who proceeded to instal the noble Viscount, whom he invested with the regalia of Provincial Grand Master, amidst the hearty applause of the brethren. The newly installed P.G. Master then appointed and invested the P.G. Officers for the ensuing year, as follow :—

Bro. C. Stephens	Deputy
H. G. W. Drinkwater ...	Senior Warden
H. Creed...	Junior Warden
W. Dunning	M.O.
A. C. Hewitt	S.O.
J. B. King	J.O.
Rev. R. W. Pope	Chaplains
Rev. J. M. Guilding
John Tomkins	Treasurer
E. A. Bivess	Registrar of Marks
W. Ravenscroft	Secretary
C. L. Lovett	J.D.
C. E. Hewitt	Inspector of Works
R. Canning	D.C.
R. Maples	Sword Bearer
W. Fenton	Standard Bearer
H. G. Sherwin	Organist
W. C. Long	Assist. Sec.
J. W. Messenger	I.G.
W. W. Wyatt	Stewards
S. C. Wakefield
A. E. Preston
A. J. Kersley
W. Hemmings	Tylers
G. Norwood

The P.G. Secretary then read the following address, which was presented to Lord Jersey :—

Provincial Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons, Berks and Oxon.

To the Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master, the Right Hon. the Earl of Jersey.

Right Worshipful Sir and Brother,—With most sincere regret this Provincial Grand Lodge has to record your resignation of its Chief Office. In so doing, the hearty wish of the brethren is that expression shall be given to the deep sense felt by all as to the able, efficient, and genial manner in which your Lordship has carried out the duties devolving upon you during the past ten years in the capacity of Grand Master, contributing thereby so largely to the prosperity enjoyed by the Province from its formation in 1879 until the present time.

We beg therefore respectfully that you will accept this address as testifying our grateful appreciation of your rule over us, and our hope and trust that it may please the G.O.O.T.U. long to spare your life, and if so it may be, that we may long retain your interest and influence amongst us.

On behalf of the Province, we beg to subscribe ourselves,

Right Worshipful Sir and Brother,
Yours faithfully and fraternally,

VALENTIA, Prov. Grand Master.
C. STEPHENS, Dep. Prov. Grand Master.
W. RAVENSCROFT, Prov. G. Secretary.

31st July 1889.

Lord Jersey, in a feeling speech, expressed his thanks to the brethren, and congratulated them upon the appointment of Viscount Valentia as his successor. The Provincial Grand Lodge was shortly afterwards closed, and a number of the brethren subsequently drove to Blenheim Palace, and inspected the principal apartments, by the kind permission of the Duke of Malborough, and also visited the famous orchid houses, after which they returned to Oxford, and partook of a banquet, when the usual Mark Masonic toasts were proposed and honoured.

CHARITY LODGE, No. 76.

THE annual meeting was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Princes-square, Plymouth, on the 26th ult., to instal Bro. W. Stenlake as Worshipful Master for the year ensuing. The Officers invested were Bros. W. J. E. Hannaford I.P.M., J. A. Lavers S.W., A. Revill J.W., D. S. Stanbury M.O., P. Hannaford S.O., L. A. Court J.O., T. W. Lemon P.M. Chaplain, W. Browning P.M. Treasurer, S. Yeomans Reg. of Marks, J. M. Hiffby P.M. Secretary, J. G. Tozar S.D., G. B. Gale J.D., J. W. Cornish I.G., T. Lillicrap Dir. of Cers., T. A Stephens Asst. Dir. of Cers., W. Biscombe Std. Br., C. H. Soper Organist, T. Taylor Steward, and W. H. Phillips Tyler.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—A frequent cause of gout and rheumatism is the inflammatory state of the blood, attended with bad digestion and general debility. A few doses of the Pills taken in time are an effectual preventive against gout and rheumatism. Any one who has an attack of either should use Holloway's Ointment also, the powerful action of which, combined with the operation of the Pills, must infallibly effect a cure. These Pills act directly on the blood, which they purify and improve. Having once subdued the severity of these diseases, perseverance with the Ointment, after fomenting the affected joints with warm brine, will speedily relieve all stiffness and prevent any permanent contraction.

CONSECRATION OF THE SCOTS LODGE, No. 2319.

ON Saturday, 27th ult., a most important function in connection with the Craft was held at the Scottish Corporation Hall, Crane-court, Fleet-street. This was the consecration of the newly-founded Scots Lodge, 2319, by V.W. Bro. Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke Grand Secretary of England, who was assisted by R.W. Bro. Sir John Monckton P.G.W. as S.W., V.W. Bro. the Rev. G. W. Weldon P.G Chaplain as Chaplain, and W. Bro. Frank Richardson P.G.D. as D.C. A most brilliant gathering of eminent Masons had assembled to bid Godspeed to the new Lodge, amongst those present being Captain Sir Henry Morland, Grand Master of All India (Scottish Constitution), W. Bro. Mullet P.G.D., W. Bro. Sir Lionel Darell, Bart., G.J.W. of the Mark Degree, W. B. Fenwick Grand Registrar of Queensland, Bro. Tilden, from America, and many other Grand Officers and Provincial Grand Officers, including W. Bros. R. Berridge P.M., C. O. Driver P.M., Shoppee P.M., Levick P.M., E. C. Mulvey P.M., and R. H. Dillon P.M. Grand Standard Bearer Middlesex. There were also present Bros. Colonel T. Tully W.M. of the Centurion Lodge 1,718, Capt. C. Probyn P.M. Old Dundee Lodge 18, J. R. Stacey P.M. and Secretary Alexandra Palace Lodge 1541, W. W. Snelling P.M. Alexandra Palace Lodge 1541, J. Edmeston P.M., P. H. Jones P.M., D. Forbes P.M., A. A. Pendlebury A.G.S., besides Bros. Pozatti Prince Fred. William Lodge 756, Gilbert Marsh Lewis Lodge 1185, Massey of the Freemason, and many other brethren. Amongst the founders were the Earl of Euston Prov. Grand Master Northampton and Hants, W.M. designate of the Scots Lodge, W. Bro. Charles F. Maties P.G. Standard Bearer England and Scotland, P.G.S.W. Aberdeenshire, and G.S. of the Mark Degree, who was appointed D.C. of the new Lodge, Bros. Vero Shaw S.W. designate, John Whitehead P.M. 1425 J.W. designate, George Shaw P.M. 59 Treasurer, George Henderson Secretary Designate, John Page W.M. 753 S.D. designate, Thomas Grant J.D. designate, and James Thomson Steward. Amongst the others founders of the Scots Lodge who were at the ceremony were Bro. D. F. Gellion P.M. 1425, D. Charteris, J. Plenderleith, and Roderick Mitchell, but unfortunately Sir Michel R. Shaw Stewart, Bart., Past Grand Master of Scotland, Bro. George Edward and Bro. H. Campbell-Beaver I.G. designate, were prevented from taking part in the proceedings. The Scots Lodge having been duly consecrated by Colonel Shadwell Clerke, in his usual admirable manner, and the Earl of Euston having been installed as W.M., Bros. Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke Grand Secretary of England, Sir John Monckton, Thos. Fenn, the Rev. G. W. Weldon, Frank Richardson, R. Berridge, Captain Sir Henry Morland, and D. Murray Lyon Grand Secretary of Scotland, were elected honorary members of the Scots Lodge. The W.M. next, on behalf of the Founders, presented a Founders' jewel in 18-carat gold to the Grand Secretary, as a memento of the ceremony, and the Secretary, Bro. George Henderson, having read a letter of apology from the Grand Secretary of Scotland, who was prevented at the very last moment by his Masonic duties from attending, the Lodge was closed in due form.

A most recherché banquet, accompanied by the music of the pipes, was served in the lower hall, the menu including a variety of Scottish courses, such as the traditional cock-a-leekie, hotch potch, sheepsheads, and haggis, the wines provided being sherry, hock, champagne (Koch Fils 1884, in magnums, and Damant and Co., 1884, in rehoboams), and, of course, whisky. The usual patriotic toasts having been drunk with enthusiasm, the Grand Secretary of England, in proposing the health of the Earl of Euston, took the opportunity of congratulating him upon the brilliant prospect that lay before the Scots Lodge, and most heartily drank his health as its Worshipful Master. Sir Henry Morland, in replying for the Grand Lodge of Scotland, expressed his profound conviction that a great future lay before the Lodge, which has for its main object the drawing closer of the bonds that bind English and Scottish Masons together, and Colonel Clerke having responded for the Consecrating Officers, and the S.W. Bro. V. Shaw, for the Officers, a most enjoyable and instructive evening, which had not been marred by the vestige of a hitch or contretemps, was brought to a termination. In fact it may safely be prophesied that a great future lies before the Scots Lodge, which, it may be observed, is the only central Lodge in London that can boast of having its own premises, kitchen, and cellar of wine. It may, however, be added that the cuisine on Saturday was in the hands of Messrs. Hill and Son, of Bishopsgate-street, as the large number of guests necessitated special arrangements being made for the occasion, whilst the music was being superintended by Brother E. Bryant, of Messrs. Novellos, with the happiest results. It should likewise be stated that Bro. Charles Thomas, Provincial Grand Tyler of Herts, was elected Tyler of the Scots Lodge.—Morning Advertiser.

PRESENTATION OF AN ADDRESS TO THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT.

AT a meeting of the Bombay Lodges, held on St. John's Eve, was exhibited the casket which is to contain the address presented to H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught by the Freemasons. It was universally admired, which is no matter of surprise, as it is a perfect little gem of the jeweller's art, and redounds the greatest credit on the workers, Messrs. Weber and Schenck, jewellers and watchmakers. The casket itself is of finely polished bamboo, capped at either end with silver, wrought into elegant designs. Its supports are two combinations of the square and compasses, the point of the square being embedded in the rich dark blue plush with which the pedestal is lined. The pedestal is of walnut, with rosewood inlaid. The inscription is on a silver scroll, placed in the centre of the casket. Taking it as a whole, the ornament is unique and artistic, and we are sure that the Royal Mason will cherish is as one of the dearest souvenirs of his visit to the capital of the chief Native State in India.—Indian Mail.

SUPREME GRAND CHAPTER.

A QUARTERLY Convocation of the Supreme Grand Chapter will be held at Freemasons' Hall, London, on Wednesday, the 7th day of August, at six o'clock in the evening.

BUSINESS.

The minutes of the last Quarterly Convocation to be read for confirmation.

THE REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE OF GENERAL PURPOSES.

To the Supreme Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of England.

The Committee of General Purposes beg to report that they have examined the accounts from the 17th April 1889, to the 16th of July 1889, both inclusive, which they find to be as follows:—

Balance Grand Chapter	123	13	7	Disbursements during the quarter	304	14	0
Unappropriated Account	192	19	7	Balance	175	3	7
Subsequent Receipts	358	11	6	,, Unappropriated Account	195	7	1
	£675	4	8		£675	4	8

which balances are in the Bank of England, Western Branch.

The Committee have to report that they have received the following petitions:—

1st. From Companions Colonel Henry Platt as Z., Donald Cameron as H., William Hugh Thomas as J., and eight others for a Chapter to be attached to the St. David's Lodge, No. 384, Bangor, to be called "The Star of Gwynedd Chapter," and to meet at the Masonic Hall, Bangor, in the Province of North Wales.

Digitized by Google

2nd. From Companions George Joseph Westbury as Z., Thomas Edward Lucy as H., Edward Arthur Hicks as J., and six others for a Chapter to be attached to the Lodge Semper Fidelis, No. 529, Worcester, to be called "The Semper Fidelis Chapter," and to meet at the Masonic Hall, High-street, in the City of Worcester.

3rd. From Companions Alfred Rixon as Z., Walter Galt Gribbon as H., Thomas Blanco White as J., and six others for a Chapter to be attached to the Mount Moriah Lodge, No. 34, London, to be called "The Moriah Chapter," and to meet at Freemasons' Hall, London.

4th. From Companions Jehanghir Kursetji Rustomji Cama as Z., Nathaniel John Goodchild as H., Ebenezer Charles Mulvey as J., and seven others for a Chapter to be attached to the Regent's Park Lodge, No. 2202, London, to be called "The Regent's Park Chapter," and to meet at the York and Albany Hotel, Gloucester Gate, Regent's Park, London.

The foregoing petitions being in all respects regular, the Committee recommend that the Prayers thereof be respectively granted.

The Committee have also to report that they have received memorials, with extracts of minutes, on the removal of the following Chapters, and being satisfied of the reasonableness of the requests, recommend that the removal of these Chapters be sanctioned, viz.:—

The Joppa Chapter, No. 188, from the Albion Tavern, to the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, London.

The Westbourne Chapter, No. 733, from St. John's Wood, to the Holborn Restaurant, Holborn.

The Phœnix Chapter of St. Ann, No. 1235, from the Court House, to the Town Hall, Buxton.

The Committee have further to report that in consequence of the formation and recognition of a Grand Lodge of Victoria, there are with the exception of the Meridian Lodge of St. John, No. 729, and the Combermere Lodge, No. 752, Melbourne, which have not yet signified their intention of joining the Grand Lodge of Victoria, no longer English Craft Lodges in that colony to which the Chapters meeting in the District of Victoria can be attached, as required by Article 45, Royal Arch Regulations.

The Committee, therefore, recommend that the Charters of the undermentioned Chapters be withdrawn and cancelled, and that the Chapters be erased from the Register of the Grand Chapter.

SUMMER EXCURSION OF THE QUATUOR CORONATI LODGE, No. 2076.

ALMOST enjoyable trip, which even the showery weather of the forenoon was unable to seriously mar, was undertaken by this Lodge on Saturday, 20th July. We have it on good authority that "absence makes the heart grow cold," and the chief object of the brethren in undertaking the excursion was, possibly, to break the long interval between the stated Lodge meetings in June and October, thus, by a timely outing, renewing the pleasures of social intercourse. True, however, to the antiquarian tastes and studies encouraged by the Lodge, a spot of abiding interest to Freemasons was chosen, the city of St. Alban, England's proto-martyr, and the traditional founder of the Craft in these isles. Does not the Grand Lodge MS. of the Old Charges (which is dated 1583) state distinctly "Inglande in all this season stoyde voyd of any chardge of Massonrie untill St. Albon's tyme, and in his dayes the Kyng of Ingland that was a paynym he did wall thee towne aboute that is called St. Albons. And St. Albon was a woorthy Knyght & Stewarde of the Kyng's householde, and had the gou'ment of thee realme, & also of thee towne walls, and loved Massons well and cherished them muche, and he mayde their paye right good (standing as the realme did) for he gave them ijs vjd a weeke and three pence to their cheire, for before that tyme throwe the lande a Masson toke but a peny a daye and his meate, untill St. Albone amended yt. and gave them a charter of thee Kynge & his Counsell for to houlde a gen'all Counsell, and gaue it the name of an Assemblye, and was thereat himself and healped for to make Massons and gave thee chardges as yee shall heare afterwarde righte sone." Bro. W. Simpson, the W.M., was unfortunately detained at Balmoral, on business, and a few other brethren, who rarely miss a Lodge meeting, were unavoidably absent, but the following members assembled at St. Pancras, under the S.W., Bro. Col. S. C. Pratt, viz., Bro. W. M. Bywater P.G.S.B. J.W., Professor T. Hayter Lewis S.D., Dr. W. W. Westcott J.D., G. W. Speth Secretary, Professor W. Mattieu Williams, and Dr. W. J. Chetwoode Crawley (of Dublin). With these were the following members of the Correspondence Circle, viz., Bros. Dr. W. R. Woodman P.G.S.B., S. Richardson, C. B. Barnes, F. A. Powell, J. S. Cumberland, C. E. Ferry, Col. J. Mead, and G. H. Piper (of Ledbury) D.P.G.M. Herefordshire, and the following visitors: Dr. Benj. W. Richardson, F. Pegler, Sydney T. Klein, C. Bowley (of Belfast), Mahaim (of Liège), and Reg. T. Webster (of Margate). A saloon carriage, attached to the 11·10 a.m. train, took the party comfortably to St. Albans, where a frugal lunch awaited them at the Peahen Hotel, after which a visit was first paid to the Church of St. Peters. Here they were met by the Curate, Bro. Rev. Valentine Faulkner, under whose auspices the Church was inspected, the chief point of interest being the monument of Edward Strong the elder, for whom Dr. Anderson claims the honour of having been appointed Junior Grand Warden under Grand Master Sir Christopher Wren, in 1685. The truth of this can scarcely be admitted, but the Strong family appeals to our sympathies, as Masons, in a high degree. Timothy Strong was a quarry owner and builder in Gloucestershire and Oxfordshire. His son, Valentine, was a notable builder in his day, and on his tomb, at Fairford, Oxfordshire, 1662, is described as "Valentine Strong, Freemason." Valentine's son, Thomas, was engaged at Trinity College, Oxford, in 1665, under Sir C. Wren, and in 1675 made the first contract with the Commissioners for rebuilding St. Paul's. According to the family memoirs, written in 1716, he laid the first stone in the foundation with his own hands. Dying in 1681, he was succeeded by his brother Edward,—buried at St. Peter's, St. Alban's,—who associated with himself his son Edward the younger. The "Memoirs" state, "About the year 1706 Edward Strong, junior, began the lanthorn in the Dome of St. Paul's, London, and on the 20th October 1708, Edward Strong, senior, laid the last stone upon the same." This last claim is re-asserted on the monument in question. Skirting the City, the old Church of St. Michael's was next visited. Apart from its high architectural interest, the Church is noticeable for containing the body and statue of Lord Bacon, "the wisest, greatest, meanest of mankind." Sauntering through the fields, along the banks of the river and under the spreading elms, a typical scene of English rural beauty at its best, the brethren made their way to the Abbey, where they were met by the Rev. W. Urwick, who has made the register and archives of the edifice his special study for years. Under his capable guidance, every part of the structure was visited and its history explained, the old works admired, and the restorations criticised. Some difference of opinion was apparent as to the taste, but none as to the solidity and thoroughness of the restored parts, or as to the public spirit and generosity of Lord Grimthorpe, who for years has borne the enormous cost of what is more than restoration, for it was necessary in many parts to entirely re construct. Lord Grimthorpe himself now joined the party, and kindly submitted to a course of "heckling"; the reasons for this and that alteration being fully explained by his Lordship in answer to home questions, and he incidentally supplied many details as to the structure of the Abbey, its foundations, vaults, &c., which were of great interest. The party having been generously admitted by the Rector, the Venerable Archdeacon Lawrence, free, thus entailing a loss on the Restoration Fund, a collection was made, which, we are glad to say, considerably more than covered the charge for admission. Lord Grimthorpe was thanked for his explanations, and there being still an hour to spare before dinner, the brethren struck once more across the fields, visiting the old Roman walls and moat, and reached an eminence whence a beautiful view of the Abbey and its surroundings was obtained. Dinner was served at the Pea Hen at 6 o'clock, after which votes of thanks were moved and carried to Brother Rev. V. Faulkner and to the Rev. Mr. Urwick for their kindness in affording the brethren so much instruction and the pleasure of their company, and suitably acknowledged, Mr. Urwick eloquently pointing out that St. Albans was the scene of more than one martyrdom, interesting in ecclesiastical history. Bro. Speth was thanked for making the arrangements, and indicated that Bro. Klein would be their guide next year, through a district of great interest around his own residence, at Stanmore, whilst in 1891 he (Bro. Speth) hoped to introduce them to Sandwich, the City of the dead; the Roman ruins of Richborough Castle, Minster Church and Abbey, Dandelion Gateway, near Margate, and other monuments in the Isle of Thanet. The party returned by the 8·32 train, to which a saloon carriage had been added for their separate use, it being unanimously admitted that the day had been most enjoyable.

CORRESPONDENCE.

—:o:—

A MASON'S FREE BED.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

SIR,—Will you please find room for this very short epistle? My attention has been directed to a paragraph, which appeared a few weeks since in the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE, viz.:—"By the will of the late Bro. James O'Gale, of Haverhill, the sum of 3000 dollars is to be paid to the Masters and Wardens of the Lodge in Haverhill, for the establishment and maintenance of a free bed in the Haverhill Hospital, for the use of such Masons as they may deem worthy." This is a practical charity, and an enduring monument, adds the Liberal Freemason, to the memory of an intelligent and eminently worthy Freemason."

Allow me to ask the question,—are there any similar beds in this the mother country? If there be not,—why not? No doubt there are innumerable instances in which a bed may be available. Allow me to inquire, if any brother can inform me of the fact. A brother, while in the execution of his duties, may at once be struck down when far from home, or friends, without the means which a Mason's free bed bestows. Are there not at the present moment many brethren who are suffering acutely from afflictions, to relieve which they are unable to apply remedial measures? This will be effectual for the present. In all probability I have stated enough; I hope, however, that the brethren who have the means within their reach will exercise them, to the alleviation of suffering humanity.

THE QUARTERLY COURTS.

WE, generally, are prepared for a quiet time of it at the July Quarterly Courts of our Scholastic Institution, and, notwithstanding the excitement that has lately prevailed as to the working of the system of management in vogue, the meetings of last week may be said to present no special features.

The Royal Masonic Institution for Boys held its Quarterly Court on Friday, the 26th ult., when there was a fair attendance. Bro. Eve P.G. Treasurer was elected Chairman. Among those present were Bros. E. Terry G. Treasurer, J. D. Langton, W. Lake, Bourne, Plucknett, Smithson, Cubitt, Scurrah, Brett, Cohen, Jones, Marwood, Hastings Miller, Mather, Hogard, Carter, Kidder, Dicketts, Morgan, J. Terry, Powell, Dr. Morris, John Stevens, Hemming, Soppet, Paas, Storr, Still, Blyth, Spaull, Dixie, Webb, Cumberland, Binckes (Secretary). The advertisement convening the meeting, and the minutes of the last Quarterly Court were read and confirmed, after which the minutes of the Special Court of 6th June were read and passed as correctly entered. Minutes of the General Committee of 4th May, 6th and 29th June, and 6th July were also read. One petition, deferred by the General Committee for further information was considered and accepted, making a total of 70 candidates, for the election in October, from which 16 boys are to be elected. The Chairman, as a member of the Provisional Committee, and as their Chairman at the meeting held that afternoon, had only further to state, in addition to the report already presented, which was in print (and which he now moved might be taken as read), that the Provisional Committee had appointed as Matron, to enter on her duties on 1st August, Miss Harcombe, Matron of the Royal St. Ann's Society, Red Hill. They had also made an ad interim appointment of a doctor for two months, during which time advertisments would be issued for applications for the post. The gentlemen appointed pro tem was Dr. John Joseph Lock, who practised in the neighbourhood of Wood Green. Further, in accordance with the authority conferred on the Provisional Committee, they had conferred with Bro. Binckes in regard to the terms on which he should retire, and that matter was still under consideration. It was proposed by Bro. Bevir, Prov. G. Sec. Wilts, and seconded—"That the report of the Provisional Committee be received, and that its proceedings and recommendations do receive the sanction of this Quarterly Court, which authorises the Provisional Committee to carry the same into effect." The motion was opposed by several brethren, who considered the Provisional Committee should complete their report on all matters before them before asking the approval of the Committee; but, after some discussion, Bro. Bevir's motion was put and carried. The usual vote of thanks to the Chairman closed the proceedings.

The Royal Masonic Institution for Girls Quarterly Court was held on Saturday, 27th ult., at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Horace Brooks Marshall P.G.T., Treasurer of the Institution, was in the chair. There were also present Bros. George Powell, J. S. Cumberland, Herbert Dicketts, James Brett, C. H. Webb, Charles G. Hill, H. Massey, W. M. Bywater, Col. F. Gadsden, J. Terry, Arthur E. Gladwell, and F. R. W. Hedges (Secretary). After the reading and confirmation of the minutes of the meeting of 27th April, and the reading of the minutes of the Special Court of 30th May, and summaries of minutes of General Committees, for information, the Court agreed to the recommendation of the General Committee, that the 32 eligible candidates remaining from the last election, together with the 17 whose petitions have been since approved, be placed upon the list for the October Election, and that nine vacancies, caused by girls leaving the School, be declared. On the motion of Bro. Herbert Dicketts, Vice President, seconded by Bro. C. H. Webb, the following alterations were made in the laws of the Institution:

In Law 35, omit words "and audit."
In the first heading, on page 32, omit the words "and audit."
In Law 47, in first line, substitute "twelve" for "nine."
In third and fourth lines, after the word "finance," omit words "and audit."
In sixth line, substitute "three" for "two."
In Law 49, after word "meet" in first line, omit words "in the months of January, April, July, and October," and substitute "monthly, or oftener, if necessary."
After word "payment" in sixth line, omit all up to the word "report" in the twelth line.
Add, as a fresh paragraph, headed "Audit," "the accounts of the Institution shall be annually audited by a Chartered Accountant to be elected annually by the General Committee at the meeting in May."
In Law 79, add, after word "Trustees," "and be annually examined by the Accountant."

On the suggestion of Bro. James Terry, the words "and audit," occurring in Law 43, were also struck out. With reference to the new paragraph respecting the auditing of the accounts by a chartered accountant, Bro. Cumberland said he hoped the auditors would go through the accounts quarterly, as well as yearly. Perhaps they might not be able to examine them monthly. If there were errors, they would be more easily discovered in a tri-monthly investigation than in a yearly. Bro. Hedges said it was in contemplation that there should be a quarterly examination. Bro. Dicketts said the accounts would be audited monthly. Bro Cumberland observed that he did not mean examined by the auditors—he meant audited by the chartered accountant. He wanted that the accountant should go through the accounts quarterly, as well as annually. Bro. Webb said that, anyhow, the chartered accountant would be responsible. Bro. Marshall intimated that they might now carry these resolutions, and then afterwards make an additional regulation. Bro. Cumberland moved that the auditor go through the accounts quarterly, and once a year make out a balance sheet, and examine the documents of the Institution. Brother Marshall: And securities. Brother Cumberland: Yes, whatever is in the bank concerning the monetary affairs of the Institution. Brother Dicketts: In law 79 it says:—"All deeds and securities shall be deposited for safe custody with the bankers of the Institution in the names of the trustees," and add to that, "and annually examined by the accountant." The motion having been seconded, was carried, and a vote of thanks to the Chairman closed the meeting.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Essex will be held on Tuesday next, the 6th inst., in the Library at Easton Lodge, Dunmow, the seat of the Right Hon. the Lord Brooke, M.P., Provincial Grand Master. The meeting is called for 2 o'clock, Prov. G. Lodge being opened punctually at half-past, but previous to this (at 1·30) the Finance Committee will meet to audit the Provincial Grand Treasurer's accounts, and report thereon. The business to be transacted is of the usual character, and will embrace the reception of various reports, of the auditors, of the Charity Committee, and in regard to the publication of the Provincial Calendar. A motion will be made that a Committee be formed to revise the By-laws of Prov. G. Lodge, and another that a grant be made to one or other of the Royal Masonic Institutions. We anticipate a very pleasant day's meeting for our Essex brethren, many of whom have for some time past looked forward to this visit to the home of the Provincial Grand Master; all that will be required is fine weather to ensure a thorough success. Easton Lodge is four miles from the Dunmow Station on the Great Eastern Railway, and carriages will be provided to convey the brethren to and fro. Admission to the library will be by ticket, and must of necessity be restricted to members of Provincial Grand Lodge, but the extensive and picturesque Park, Pleasure Gardens, &c., will be thrown open to all members of Lodges in the Province, who may also be present at the banquet. A band will be in attendance, and the grounds will be illuminated in the evening. The Great Eastern Railway Co., besides consenting to issue return tickets at single fares to brethren attending the meeting, on production of summons, have kindly made special train arrangements, running additional trains to and from Dunmow Station, in connection with regular trains on both the Colchester and Cambridge lines.

In connection with this meeting there is one matter we may refer to. On the last occasion when Prov. Grand Lodge assembled, a keen competition arose when the question of re-electing the Prov. Grand Treasurer was brought forward. A section of the members of Prov. Grand Lodge were decidedly in favour of a change; not that they were dissatisfied with the way Bro. Andrew Durrant (who has been re-elected year after year) has discharged his functions, but they claimed the honour of Provincial rank should be conferred on as many worthy Craftsmen as present themselves, having due regard to the limit that binds the Prov. G. Master. We are told that the question will again be brought forward on Tuesday, and we can but express the hope that the question will be considered in a fraternal and truly Masonic spirit.

THE GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

THE opening of the Severn Tunnel for passenger traffic has afforded an additional and more expeditious means of transit between the West of England and the various parts of Wales, Lancashire and the North of England, which has been taken full advantage of by the Great Western Railway Company. In times gone by the journey from Bristol to Newport, Cardiff, Swansea, and the towns of South Wales generally, was a formidable undertaking as compared with what it is at the present time, when a few minutes ride, without change of carriage, transfers us from one side of the River Severn to the other, and it is perhaps in association with such works as the Severn Tunnel and its counterpart between Liverpool and Birkenhead that we can best appreciate the benefits of the engineering skill of the day. In the rush and bustle of the present age, when every minute that can be saved in transit from one point to another is made capital of by those whose business it is to cater for the public, the tunneling of rivers like the Severn and the Mersey, at such points as they are now pierced at, is of immense advantage. Now that we have two great successes to point to in this country, we imagine it will not be very long before others are attempted, and the tedium of travel correspondingly lessened. But it is not only in the matter of passenger traffic that advantage follows the completion of such works as the Mersey and Severn Tunnels, the advantage to goods traffic is almost equally important, a few miles or a few minutes saved often placing local markets in a much more favourable position than was ever possible otherwise. It is on these grounds many persons deplore the collapse of the Channel Tunnel operations, which would prove even more beneficial to commerce than any number of shorter tunnels, for while in the latter case the journey may be completed, in a roundabout way, without change of carriage, this is impossible in the case of the service between England and the Continent. As we have said, the Great Western Railway Company offer their patrons the full benefit of this latest addition to the feats of modern science, and it has opened up many new features of interest to the ordinary traveller or tourist, with whom time is a matter of consideration. It is superfluous to particularise the many points of interest served by the great Western System. With lines extending from London to the extreme West of England, through the length and breadth of Wales, and most extensively through the Midland Counties, it may well be imagined that to make a list of even the most popular of the "Holiday Haunts" on the line would be an extensive undertaking. We must therefore leave the matter in a somewhat incomplete state, with the general advice to such of our readers as are in search of knowledge to procure one of the Tourist Programmes or general Time Tables of the Company. They will therein find full particulars as to fares, and times of the various trains, and, in addition, some interesting particulars of some of the principal points of interest on the line.

Savoy Theatre.—A new departure has been taken by Sir Arthur Sullivan and Mr. W. S. Gilbert in their latest combination, which is entitled "The Yeomen of the Guard, or the Merryman and his Maid." (By the way, the latter title is somewhat of a misnomer, as the jester is anything but a merry man, and his maid is taken by somebody else, and therefore becomes somebody else's maid). The story takes us back to the Tudor Henrys, and we find Colonel Fairfax, a brave soldier, under sentence of death for witchcraft. In order to spite a relative, whom he believes to be the cause of his trouble, he marries, one hour before the time fixed for his execution, a strolling singer, Elsie Maynard. Through the instrumentality of Sergeant Meryll and his daughter Phœbe, the Colonel escapes from his cell and personates Leonard Meryll, who has been appointed one of the Yeomen. In this disguise he woos his wife, and when the long delayed pardon arrives he astonishes her by asserting himself as the missing Colonel. The unfortunate side of the otherwise pretty tale is, that in order that the Colonel may be saved, other people have to suffer, thus Elsie has to bestow her hand upon a surly janitor, Wilfrid Shadbolt; the old Sergeant has to marry Dame Carruthers whom he detests, and the poor Merryman is deprived of his intended bride. The dialogue is comparatively free from Mr. Gilbert's biting satire, and the music of Sir Arthur Sullivan is full of local colour, though it cannot be said that any of the songs will become as popular as some of their predecessors. The scene of the White Tower is exceedingly well arranged, and the costumes are highly pretty and appropriate. Miss Geraldine Ulmar sings her lyrics like an artiste; Miss Annie Cole makes a bewitching Phœbe, and Messrs. C. Pounds (Fairfax), Richard Temple (Meryll), W. H. Denny (Shadbolt), and last, but by no means least, George Grossmith (Jack Point), all work with a will to ensure the desired succes.

Mr. Freeman Thomas announces his eighth series of Promenade Concerts at Covent Garden Theatre, commencing 10th August. The following distinguished Artistes have been exclusively engaged:—Nikita, Mdme. Clara Samuell, Mdlle. Colombati, Miss Fanny Joyce, Miss Beata Francis, Mdme. Pauline Rita, Mdme. Rose Hersee, and Mdme. Valleria, Mdme. Patey, Mdlle. Tremelli, Mdme. Belle-Cole, and Antoinette Sterling; Mr. Sims Reeves, Signor Runcio, Mr. Valentine Smith, Mr. Charles Chilley, Mr. Holberry Hagyard, Mr. Henry Piercy, Mr. Orlando Harley, Signor Foli, Mr. Walter Clifford, Signor Ciampi, Signor Abramoff, Mr. Barrington Foote; Solo Pianoforte, Mdme. Roger-Miolos, Herr Arthur Friedheim, and Miss Florence Wand; Solo Violin and Leader, Mr. Carrodus; Solo Flute, Mr. John Radcliff; Solo Piccolo, Mr. J. A. Hamilton; Solo Violoncello, Mr. E. Howell; Solo Oboe, M. Vandenburg; Solo Clarionet, Mr. Julian Egerton; Solo Cornet, Mr. A. H. Smith; Solo Euphonium, Mr. C. Bourne; Solo Bassoon, Mr. J. F. Hutchins; Accompanist and Assistant Conductor, Mr. H. M. Higgs; Musical Director, Signor Arditi. The admission will be one shilling, and Mr. Freeman Thomas has provided, at the price of one guinea, season ticket books containing sixty admissions, available for any evening, a liberality which will undoubtedly be appreciated by the music-loving public.

The Continental Gallery, New Bond Street, is worth visiting, to inspect some pictures from the Paris Salon. There are in all 124, the majority of which are what may fitly be called gems, both from their size, their interest, and treatment. Of these, two are remarkable, "In a deuce of a Fix" (12), by G. Bortignoni, for its humour and Meissonnier-like finish, and "Children with little Chickens" (73), by B. U. N. Maillart, for its admirable colour, and poetic rendering of a very simple subject. A large canvass, some thirteen feet high by seven or eight wide, "The Queen of Sheba" (54), by J. Profr. Kronberg, is a powerful painting, more fitted for a decorative panel in a grand room than an independent picture. It will, however, properly arrest attention. To the student interested in the French School of landscape, there is much to admire, and some things to smile at—as flat as wall paper; but as the space at our disposal will not enable us to go into a critical analysis of the peculiarities of French ambition or caprice in depicting nature, we can only now call public attention to a most interesting gallery.

TEMPLE LODGE, No. 1094.

THE members of this Liverpool Lodge, with their lady friends and visitors, held one of their enjoyable annual excursions which are so conductive to friendly intercourse and harmony on Wednesday, 24th ult. Bro. W. Pye W.M. took charge of the party, and was loyally supported by Bros. Alexander I.P.M., J. Alexander P.M. Secretary, G. Alexander S.W., A. J. Lett J.W., C. Knowels S., Mathew Yeoman S., J. Casey P.M. 1570, P. Ball P.P.G.T., J. Travis, James Wylie, &c., and Messrs M'Clury and R. Summer, who contributed much to the enjoyment of the members who were present. The party assembled at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, at 12 noon, and after lunch and the singing of the "Old hundredth," proceeded in drags to Billinge, taking, by the kindness of Lords Sefton and Derby, the picturesque route through Croxteth and Knowsley Parks. Notwithstanding the somewhat gloomy state of the weather, the drive was most enjoyable, and after the ascent to the ancient beacon, the party, after visiting the quaint old church, sat down to a substantial tea, supplied by the Lodge through Bro. Casey, at the Stork Hotel; the landlord of which, Mr. J. G. Howard, did his best for the comfort of the visitors, who subsequently enjoyed themselves thoroughly with music and dancing, the latter being largely contributed to by some of the best local step dancers. The return was made at 7·39 p.m. and great credit is due to the committee for their arrangements.

SOUTHDOWN LODGE, No. 164.

THE annual installation meeting of this popular Mark Lodge was held at the Station Hotel, Haywards Heath, on Wednesday, 24th ult. The Lodge was opened by the W.M. Bro. G. Masters. The chief business of the meeting was the installation of the W.M. elect Bro. John C. Buckwell, the ceremony being performed by the retiring W.M. Bro. G. Masters, assisted by Bro. H. W. G. Abell P.M. A Past Master's jewel was presented to Bro. G. Masters, in appreciation of the manner in which he had carried out his duties as W.M. during the past year. The newly elected W.M. Bro. John C. Buckwell appointed the following Officers for the coming year:—Bros. George Masters I.P.M., J. Belcher S.W., Rev. W. A. Tooth J.W., C. Clarke M.O., A. F. Lamette S.O., George Rawlinson J.O., H. W. G. Abell P.M. Treasurer, Charles Briscoe Reg. of M., J. J. Abell Secretary, T. Wickham S.D., A. D. Bailey J.D., Thomas Chapman D.C., F. H. Beeney I.G., A. Alwen Steward, and H. Hughes Tyler. The Lodge having been closed, the brethren sat down to an excellent banquet, served up in admirable style by Bro. C. Goulding, The W.M. presided. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured.

HOPE AND UNITY LODGE, No. 214.

THE quarterly meeting was held at the White Hart Hotel, Brentwood, on the 25th ult. Bros. A. O. V. Pendy and W. J. Smyth were passed to the second degree. At the close of the Lodge business, the brethren sat down to a banquet, excellently served by Mrs. Mason.

ELLESMERE LODGE, No. 768.

THE annual picnic took place on Thursday, the 25th ultimo, when Llangollen was visited. The party left Runcorn about eight o'clock, reaching their destination about ten, and paid a visit to Plas Newydd, making an inspection of the picturesque residence, and all thoroughly enjoyed the landscape. Subsequently they returned to the Hand Hotel, where a substantial dinner had been provided. Bro. T. H. Annett occupied the chair, and the usual loyal and patriotic toasts were honoured. An enjoyable drive to Chirk Castle followed this, and at six o'clock tea was partaken of at the hotel. Various spots of interest were afterwards visited. The party arrived at Runcorn again at about half-past eleven o'clock, after spending a most enjoyable day.

THE METALS IN SOLOMON'S TEMPLE:—The London Ironmonger says: That there was more metal in the Temple of Solomon than was ever collected in any other building, we take to be an historical postulate. But it still remains to be asked: How was so much metal cast? With what moulds did the Hebrews manage to do it? Where did they perform their operations? As to moulds, it seems evident from the Scripture accounts that clay mixed with sand was the moulding material. In our own time this is esteemed the safest mould. But what a vast series of furnaces must have been required for such operations, and how harmonious must have been the action, the outpouring from the mould, to produce the giant unity of design! Was there a national foundry on the plains of Jordan before the Jews; did Jeremiah allude to it as having been "repaired" at the time of the restoration of the Temple? Possibly this may have been so. But we must remember that the Phœnicians were the main founders and workers for the mighty King Solomon, who remunerated them; that as the tabernacle owed much to the Egyptian arts, so the Temple owed much to Phœnician merchandise. It may be doubted whether the bronze wonders of the Temple were not a good deal more foreign than home made. Jerusalem became the focus of the world's industries, because its king was the master of the world's intellect. "But Solomon built him a house" is only a graphic way of saying that he used his intellect and his influence for the combining in one store-house all the glories of his profoundly artistic age. Ad majorem dei gloriam was the motive of the assemblage, but art and commerce brought the "sinews," if not the homage.

EADE'S
GOUT & RHEUMATIC PILLS.

The SAFEST and most EFFECTUAL CURE for GOUT, RHEUMATISM, and all PAINS in the HEAD, FACE, and LIMBS.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL from the Rev. F. FARVIS, Baptist Minister.

Mr. G. EADE. March 19, 1887.

Dear Sir,—I have many times felt inclined to inform you of the benefit I have received by taking your Gout and Rheumatic Pills. After suffering for some time from Rheumatics and Sciatica, I was advised to use your Pills. I bought a bottle, and when in severe pain and unable to use the limb affected I took a dose. In a few hours after I felt the pain much better, and after the second dose the pain completely removed and the limb restored to its right use. I thank you, dear sir, for sending forth such a boon for the relief of human suffering.

Yours faithfully,
F. FARVIS,
Baptist Minister.

There are multitudes of people who look upon advertising as a sort of Lottery, and bestow infinitely more thought in the selection of a clerk at £100 a year than in the expenditure of £1000, or two in the same period in advertising. A tithe of the shrewdness displayed in all other branches of their business given to the management of their advertising will be amply repaid. The ADVERTISEMENT AGENT has become an indispensable factor in this matter of publicity, and his raison d'être is perfectly unassailable. Would you leave or enter a port without a pilot? Would you commence and prosecute a law suit without a legal adviser? Either of these courses would not be more foolish than rushing into expenses in Advertising without a competent practical and professional adviser. I am at all times happy to render advertisers every assistance in my power, and to give them the benefit of the experience I have gained during the past twenty years as a London advertising agent. Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist's Testimonial.

My Dear Doctor,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

This is to certify: That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

MASONIC CHARITY WORK IN HEREFORDSHIRE.

UNTIL the year 1878, says the Hereford Journal, it appears the Province of Herefordshire was somewhat noted in the Masonic world for the smallness of the sums it had contributed to the Institutions of the Order, although several Herefordshire children had been boarded and educated in the Masonic Schools, and some of the ancient local brethren and their widows had for many years received annuities from the Benevolent Institution. In the year referred to, Bro. Wm. Earle, during his Mastership of the Palladian Lodge, Hereford, took the preliminary steps towards forming a Local Association to aid the Charities. He has since continued the Honorary Secretaryship of this Association, which has been the means of sending a total of £661 10s to the three Institutions during the eleven years of its existence. This sum has been divided between the Charities, in the following proportions:—To the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution £241 10s (Male Fund £115 10s, Widows' Fund £126), to the Boys' School £236 5s, and to the Girls' School £183 15s.

We will not take to ourselves the entire credit of having brought about this change, which has taken place in this and other Masonic Provinces during the period of our existence, but those of our readers who knew us at the time to which we have just referred will agree that some share of the credit attached to this improved state of affairs in Herefordshire is due to our efforts. Suffice it to say, however the change may have been brought about, we are delighted to think that increased and systematic exertions are being made in this Province, with the object of raising money for the principal Charity Funds of the Order, and we hope that the Association inaugurated by Bro. Earle, and so successfully carried on under his Secretaryship, may continue for all time, and that it may increase year by year, both in usefulness and local estimation.

In considering the value of the work performed by this Association it is well to remember that the Province of Herefordshire is composed of but five Lodges, and one of them only dates back to the beginning of 1888, so that, for the greater part of the period during which the Association has been at work there have been but four Lodges from which to draw supplies. An average of contributions, therefore, of £60 per annum from the members of this Association to the three Charities is a most gratifying result, and one which will compare favourably with what has been done in other parts of the kingdom. But, as we may judge from the Report, presented at the Twelfth Annual Meeting, held at the Green Dragon Hotel, Hereford, on Monday, 29th ult., the Committee are not yet satisfied at what is being done, for they express the wish that all the brethren in the Province, especially those holding Provincial or Lodge rank, would consider it their duty to obtain at least one Life Subscribership in a Masonic Institution, and they venture to hope that the Masters, Past Masters, Officers and Brethren of the five Lodges of the Province will be good enough to aid in increasing the number of subscribers to the Association, in order that the ancient Province of Herefordshire may occupy a creditable position in the annual reports issued from the Masonic Institutions. No doubt much more will be done through this Association in years to come than has been achieved in the past, and not only will the great Charities benefit in a pecuniary way, but the Masons of the district will also reap an advantage, in a greater number of votes and an increase of accommodation for those in their midst who may unfortunately require assistance from their fellows.

Judging from the remarks in the paper to which we have referred above, we may conclude that one of the causes that led to the formation of the Association was the feeling that the Masons of Herefordshire were taking benefits from the Institutions, but were not giving corresponding advantages in return. We should be very sorry to think that the benevolence of the Masonic Order was disbursed strictly on the quid pro quo principle, but, on the other hand, it hardly seems fair for the brethren of one district to perform the lion's share of the work, and those of another district take the best part of the benefits; yet such has been the experience of years gone by, and such is really the case to-day. One section of the Craft subscribes much more liberally than another, and it almost seems the prizes are distributed in inverse ratio to the amount of subscriptions; at any rate, those who do the most get very far short of their share of the returns. How long this state of affairs is likely to continue, or how it is to be altered, we are not in a position to say, but we hail with delight such an experience as we are this week able to record in connection with the Province of Herefordshire, the Craftsmen of which have admitted their shortcomings, and have taken the very best means in their power of remedying for the future their neglect in the past. We hope the example they have set may be followed elsewhere, wherever it is needed.

REPLY TO BRO. HUGHAN'S "SPECULATIVE MASONRY."

BY BRO. JACOB NORTON.

BROTHER HUGHAN'S method of argument for bolstering up Elias Ashmole as a "true blue" Mason may convince an unwary reader, or one who had not read my paper, in the previous number of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE (viz. 29th June). To an experienced reader, however, it must be evident that the splurge he makes about the meaning of the word "s , and about "play of words," was just designed to divert the reader's attention from the question at issue; for the word speculative was incidentally used by me only once, without comment or argument. Hence Bro. Hughan had no need to devote nearly a third of his letter to explaining the meaning of speculative, and to charge me with making capital of it, or a "display of words." And here is another specimen of the same kind, and designed for the same purpose. He says:—

"I am sorry that Bro. Norton, after all my trouble to give the exact words of Ashmole's Diary, relative to his initiation, &c., quotes from a printed account which is erroneous, notwithstanding he had my reproduction before him. He might surely be a little more careful under the circumstances, as the sense of the extract is seriously affected by the interpolation to which reference has more than once been made by Bro. Gould and myself."

As I am apt sometimes, either through carelessness, or without knowledge and intent, to omit or add a word when copying a quotation, or, when it is not essential, to give merely the gist of a quotation; yet, as I am conscious that I never make such alteration for the purpose of misleading or misconstruing, I thought, after reading the above fierce rebuke, that I must have made a terrible blunder, which laid me open to such serious charges as any one would infer from the above lecture; but, on comparing Bro. Hughan's extract with my own, I find the difference consists just in one word, viz., Bro. Hughan's quotation reads:—

"11. [March 1682]. Accordingly I went, and about noon were admitted" while mine reads, "was admitted."

Now, with due respect to Bro. Hughan, I do not believe that he would have resorted to such quibbles and innuendoes if he had not felt the lack of better argument.

The main argument of Bro. Hughan consists, first, in disbelieving in Dr. Plott's statement, in 1686, that Masons had secrets, he says:—

"How does Bro. Norton know that in order to gain admission into St. Paul's Lodge [Antiquity], in or about 1717, it was necessary to show a sign, to give a grip, or to whisper a word? We are quite ignorant of the esoteric character of this Lodge in 1717, at least no evidence has transpired on this side of the Atlantic, so Bro. Norton will oblige us by forwarding the needful particulars, which are new to us."

The first witness I shall put on the stand to show that the pre-1717 Masons had a degree, that is, one degree or ceremony at least, is Bro. Hughan himself. In the "Kingston Masonic Annual," page 46, Bro. Hughan says about the pre-1717 period:—

"So far as their preserved records are concerned, [they] only seemed to have worked a simple Rite of one degree."

Second, on the same page, further down, Bro. Hughan says:—

"The distinguished Scottish Historian, Bro. D. M. Lyon, alluding to the secrets of the Fraternity anterior to the establishment of Grand Lodges, well observes, that "There is a total absence from Lodge records of any allusion to Masonic Rites other than what was embraced in giving the Masons' word. . . . Great value was attached by Craftsmen to possession of this talismanic monosyllable; for all who were without the word, were regarded as Cowans, to work with whom subjected defaulters to fine or expulsion."

The above quotations were copied from Bro. Hughan's own work of 1871, but in 1889 he professes total ignorance that the pre-1717 had any secrets, words, or ceremonies. But that is not all; I am pretty sure, though I cannot prove it, that Bro. Hughan had read Bro. Lyon's History of Freemasonry in Scotland, published in 1873, and he must have read on pages 22 and 23, that the Scotch Lodges had a Masons' word and a Masons' grip. And again, on page 151 of Bro. Lyon's History, Bro. Hughan must have read as follows:—

"Att Maries Chapell, 24 of August 1821 years—James Wattson present deacon of the Masons of Edinb. Preses. The which day Doctor John Theophilus Desaguliers . . . . late General Master of the Mason Lodges in England, being in town, and desirous to have a conference with the Deacon, Warden, and Master Masons of Edinb. which was accordingly granted, and finding him duly qualified in all points of Masonry, they received him as a Brother into their Society."

To which Bro. Lyon adds, on page 152:—

"That he [Desaguliers] and his brethren in Mary's Chapel should have so thoroughly understood each other on all the points of Masonry shows, either that in their main features the secrets of the old Operative Lodges of the two countries were somewhat similar, or that an inkling of the novelty had already been conveyed to Scotland."

Cannot the above satisfy Bro. Hughan that the Freemasons in England as well as in Scotland had secrets before 1717? I believe that Dr. Plott's description of the Masons in 1586 was in the main correct, but if that is not enough to convince our good brother Hughan, I must refer him to Bro. Carson of Cincinnati, who is in possession of an English publication of 1696, wherein it is stated that the Masons had a secret word.

Again, says Bro. Hughan:—

"How Bro. Norton can declare that the London Lodge to which Ashmole was summoned, in 1682, was no other than the Masonic Guild which, as already shown [?], had neither any sign, word, grip, or ceremony, save that of a dinner, passes my comprehension, for a more unfounded declaration could not be made."

In answer to the above, I say that Bro. Hughan's doubts about the London Masons' Guild having had no secret forms of recognition, in 1682, can easily be removed by his calling at Masons' Hall, Masons' Alley, between Basinghall-street and Coleman-street, in the City of London, and there he can learn whether the Masons' Guild had a secret word, sign, or grip, in 1512, or not. I have, however, two of the very best informed brethren of our Fraternity, who will testify that in the days of Elias Ashmole there were two distinct Masonic organizations in England, who had no connection with each other; no brotherhood existed between them, nor did there exist the least sign of sympathy for each other. One of the said organizations was blessed with secret modes of recognition and a secret ceremony of initiation. These were our progenitors. The other Masonic organization had no more secrets to keep and conceal than the Fishmongers' Guild, the Barbers' Guild, or any other Guild. First, Bro. Gould says:—

"Also, it does not seem clear whether the building trades generally [meaning our progenitors] had any connection with the Masons' Company of London, and I should be inclined to think that the building trades' associations [our ancestors' trade] were trade union societies, differing from the Guilds, which partook more of a corporate character, and which hence more closely resembled the Collegia."

The next witness I have the pleasure to introduce was especially recommended by Bro. Hughan himself, in his article in the Freemason, as "having given," in the Masonic Magazine, December 1881, "by far the best account of the subject [of Guilds] ever printed," viz., Bro. W. H. Rylands, F.S.A. Bro. Gould's opinion is given in a hesitating manner, but in Vol. I., page 125, of the Quatuor Coronati Proceedings, Bro. Rylands speaks with more certainty upon the question at issue. He says:

"I cannot help thinking that the trade Guilds of Paris, incorporated as they express it, arranged in banners, by Louis XI., in 1467, bore the same relationship to the ordinary Compagnonage, as the Masons' Company of London, incorporated (or at least was granted armorial bearings) by Edward IV., in 1472-3, as well as possibly the Masons' Companies in other large towns, whether incorporated or not, bore to the old Lodges of Freemasons, scattered over the whole country [meaning our progenitors], and of which occasional mention has been found, and of whose non-connection with Masons' Companies there is evident proof." (The italicizing is mine).

The reader will bear in mind that two A.A. No. 1 Masonic Students bear testimony that there were formerly in England two distinct Masonic organisations, which had no connection whatever, viz., Incorporated Masons' Guilds, and Operative Masons or Trades Unions. Now Ashmole, in 1682, was summoned to attend the meeting of a Lodge held in Masons' Hall. The Masons' Guild have, and then had, a building known in London as "Masons' Hall." I am not aware that more than one Masons' Hall existed in London in 1682. Ashmole must therefore have been summoned to a meeting of the Masons' Guild, which had no more Masonic secrets then than they have now. Ashmole claimed the title of "Senior Fellow" of that organisation, hence the Masonry he received in Warrington, in 1646, must have been of the same kind as the London Masons' Guild confers to-day, and as it conferred in 1682. Hence Ashmole could no more have gained admission into a Lodge of our predecessors then the Master of the Masons' Guild could get admission to-day into one of our Lodges without previous initiation into our mysteries, and hence it is absurd on our part to claim Ashmole as our Brother Mason, when in reality his Masonry, as the saying is, was a horse of another colour.

BOSTON, U.S., 26th July 1889.

THE "MASONIC POEM" OF A.D. 1390.

THE most ancient, extended and undoubted record of Freemasonry extant is the well-known British Museum MS., "Bib. Regius," or "Halliwell MS." By universal consent it is of great antiquity. The late Bro. Woodford and others date it A.D. 1390, while Mr. Edward A. Bond (keeper of MSS.) and Bro. Dr. Geo. Kloss date it fifty years later. It was originally made known to the public by the late Mr. James O. Halliwell, F.R.S., in an essay read before the Society of Antiquaries of England in 1839. It is contained in a small quarto, well written on vellum, and before it was acquired by the British Museum, it was owned by a noted collector of the seventeenth century, Mr. Charles Theyer. David Casley catalogued it in 1734 for the British Museum, and then styled it "A Poem of Moral Duties," not recognizing its Masonic character. About 1757 it was labelled "Poem on the Craft of Masonry." Mr. Halliwell was the first to distinctly point out, in 1839, its important Masonic character. He printed it in 1840, and again in 1844; and it was printed in the United States, at Philadelphia, in 1856, by Bro. Leon Hyneman, in his "Masonic Library," a valuable compend, in two volumes, containing also the famous Anderson "Constitutions" of both 1723 and 1738. Prior to the present year, however, this invaluable "Masonic Poem" has never been published in fac simile. This notable work has just been accomplished by the Lodge Quatuor Coronati, No. 2076, London—the literary Masonic Lodge of the world—which has issued it in the first volume of its "Masonic Reprints," under the title of "Quatuor Coronatorum Antigrapha." Of the beauty, the interest and the value of this fac simile, and of the entire volume, we cannot speak in too laudatory terms. It reflects the highest credit on the Quatuor Coronati Lodge, its Secretary our esteemed friend and Brother Geo. Wm. Speth, the accomplished Secretary of the Lodge, and editor of the volume, and on Bro. Robert Freke Gould, the historian of Freemasonry, who is the commentator on the Masonic Poem, and the other curious contents of this Reprint. We use only measured language when we say, that this volume should be in the library of every Freemason who has any desire for culture. It is handsome, it is curious, it is valuable—to our mind one of the most valuable monographs ever issued on Freemasonry.

The volume includes ten papers: (1) fac simile and transcript of the "Masonic Poem;" (2) fac simile and transcript of "Urbanitatis;" (3) fac simile and transcript from "Instructions for a Parish Priest;" (4) Article on the Freemasons in "The Plain Dealer," No. 51, September 14, 1724; (5) "An Ode to the Grand Khaibar" (1726); (6) "A Defence of Masonry," from Smith's "Freemason's Pocket Companion" (1738); (7) "Brother Euclid's Letter to the Author of Anderson's 1738 Constitutions;" (8) A Commentary on Nos. 1, 2 and 3, by Bro. Robert Freke Gould; (9) Three maps of England, at the time of Edwin, A.D. 627, in A.D. 878, and in A.D. 926, in the era of Athelstan, by Bro. Speth; and (10) a glossary by Bro. Speth.

The second and third numbers are given in fac simile and transcript, because the "Masonic Poem" contains extended quotations from them, and they therefore throw important light upon its text.

Here we must commend, also in the highest terms, Bro. Gould's thoughtful, able and entirely satisfactory commentary on the Poem. He was evidently benefited by the criticisms (ours with that of others) on his previous lack of veneration for Craft traditions, as evidenced in his "History of Freemasonry." His careful study of the Masonic Poem has led him to revise his views on this important branch of Masonic learning, and we are glad to announce that he is now in line with those who accept the traditions of Freemasonry as monumenting Masonic history. We congratulate him on his growth in Masonic grace and true Masonic scholarship, and we trust that hereafter the Keystone and he will be at one in their estimate of the value of Masonic tradition as an exponent of lost or obscured Masonic history.

Bro. Gould says, there is "a strong presumption that the Masonic Poem was of Northumbrian origin." This carries us back from the year of the writing of the Poem, about A.D. 1390 or 1440, to the year 627, the era of King Edwin of Northumbria.

It may help us the better to comprehend the date of the writing of the MS. of this Poem by recalling the fact, that Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales" shortly antedate it.

The fact that it is poetic in form, while singular now, was customary then, as Bro. Gould abundantly shows. The laws of ancient Spain were versified. Down to the thirteenth century the compositions of jongleurs and trouvères were exclusively preserved by song and recitation. A rhythmical oath was taken by candidates on becoming members of the Holy Vehme, and the court was opened with a metrical dialogue. The marriage service of the Episcopal Church to-day is rhythmical, and in the Roman Catholic Church the priests sing the mass. Gould says, in this connection: "Our Masonic laws and traditions may have been passed down through the alliterative rhythm of the Anglo-Saxons, and the rhyme of the Normans, to find their first place in written language a remove or two only from the Poem under examination."

When the reader is informed that nearly one-third of the Masonic Poem is composed of extracts from two other old MSS.—"Mirks' Instructions to Parish Priests," and "Urbanitatis"—a poem relating to conduct at meals, in the presence of a lord, he will be glad that fac similes and transcriptions from both of these deeply interesting originals supplement the Poem in this Reprint.

The late Bro. Woodford believed that the concluding one hundred lines of the Poem (693 to 794) and "Urbanitatis," had a common origin, and the same learned Brother declared that the Poem was "the original of all our later 'Constitutions.'" The earliest version of these MS. Constitutions which have come down to us is that known as the "Grand Lodge MS.," of date about A.D. 1583. It is now in the archives of Freemasons' Hall, London. In nearly all of these MSS. Prince Edwin and King Athelstan are referred to as loving Masons and practising Masonry. Concerning them and the ancient city of York Bro. Gould says: "In that ancient city all lines of way seem to converge, and in connection with it a tradition has grown up wherein are associated the names of Athelstan and Edwin as patrons of Masonry. * * Edwin was the first King of Northumberland, and has left his name on the frontier fortress of Eadwinesburgh or Edinburgh. * * I think we may safely assume that Athelstan having been the first king of all England, was therefore the most natural fountain-head from which a legendary belief in the grant of a Royal Charter to the Masons can be supposed to have arisen." Athelstan, we know, granted two charters to the monastery of St. Wilfrid, and one to the Church at Beverley, from both of which instruments Bro. Gould quotes; and the statutes of the London Guilds were first reduced to writing in the time of Athelstan.

Our Brother styles the "Masonic Poem" the "Regius MS.," for two reasons—because it is in the Royal Library of the British Museum, and also because "of its supremacy as a document of the Craft." He significantly adds, as to the concurrent testimony of all the leading Masonic MSS., that "the 'Old Charges' or 'Manuscript Constitutions' concur with the 'Regius MS.' in tracing the establishment of Masonry as a science to an Egyptian origin." Here, again, we are at one with Bro. Gould, in his construction of these venerable Craft documents.

In order that the reader may fully comprehend the important Masonic events upon which light is cast by the Masonic Poem and the Old Charges of Freemasonry, and also that they may appreciate and applaud Bro. Gould's present estimate of the value of Craft traditions, as embodied in Craft MSS., we quote from his Commentary on the Poem in this Reprint the following significant paragraphs:—

> The facts then are, that the Cathedral of St. Peter's at York was begun under Edwin in 627, and the officiating clergy of the same edifice were granted a charter by Athelstan about the year 936. Here at all events two leading incidents in the Legend of the Craft coalesce in a common centre—York Minster—which Edwin founded, and whose ministers Athelstan endowed. * *
> That the Edwin of Masonic tradition is identical with Edwin of Northumbria, seems to me fairly inferential, from the fact that the latter was an undoubted patron of Operative Masonry, A.D. 627. The Athelstan of the Legend can be identified with even greater ease, and he equally owes his position in Masonic history to an actual connection with York and its famous Minster. If, indeed, in the skein of fable of which the Masonic Legend is composed, there be a solitary thread of fact, it appears to me that we must look for it among those of our traditions which can be associated in any way with the city of York and the Cathedral there. It is noteworthy, also, as supporting the claim for its antiquity, that no other later king than Athelstan is referred to in the Legend. * *

Digitized by Google

It has seemed to me at least a reasonable supposition that the Old Charges or Manuscript Constitutions had become fixed or crystalised before the Regius MS. took form as a writing. * *

That the Masonic Poem was in the possession of a Guild, and that the Guild so possessing it was not composed of Operative Masons, are propositions which I think can be established. * *

The last hundred lines of the Masonic Poem are almost exactly the same as the poem "Urbanitatis," a fac simile of which is given in the present volume. The latter consists of minute directions for behaviour—in the presence of a lord—at table—and among ladies. * *

These rules of decorum read very curiously in the present age, but their inapplicability to the circumstances of the working Masons in the fourteenth or fifteenth century will be at once apparent. They were intended for gentlemen of those days, and the instructions for behaviour in the presence of a lord—at table—and in the society of ladies—would all have been equally out of place in a code of manners drawn up for the use of a Guild or Craft of artizans. * *

The conclusion, therefore, to which, as it seems to me, we are directed by the evidence, is that the persons to whom the text of the Regius MS. was sung or recited, were a Guild or Fraternity from whom all but the memory or tradition of its ancient trade had departed. * *

Here we must bring these interesting quotations to a close. We doubt not, however, every reader of the Keystone will have his appetite quickened for a thorough acquaintance with this beautiful and remarkable Masonic Reprint, concerning a portion only of the contents of which we have in this article had space to refer.—Keystone.

LODGE HISTORIES.

THE LODGE OF PROBITY, No. 61.*

THE volume of the History of this Lodge, now presented to the Craft, is indeed a handsome addition to the literature of the Order, and is in itself an unmistakable sign of the prosperity of the Lodge of whose career it is a record. Unlike many of the Histories which have appeared from time to time, and which have been undertaken by individual members, this work is stamped with the authority of the Lodge itself, for its compilation was agreed to by a resolution of the members in open Lodge, and they are therefore entitled to the distinction of being among the first to officially undertake the production of a Lodge History, and thereby add another link to the chain of evidence that we hope will some day be available for a general and complete history of the Craft. It was at the Lodge meeting in February 1885 that a request was made that the records should be collected, with a view to the History of the Lodge being published. A Committee was appointed for this purpose, and the then Secretary, Bro. Herbert Crossley, was entrusted with the work. Most faithfully has he discharged his duty, not only to his Lodge, but to the Craft Universal, for, as we have said on previous occasions, it is from reliable and complete Histories of private Lodges that the future historian of the Mason Craft will look for the materials wherewith to build up his more stupendous undertaking.

Brother Crossley takes us, in his first chapter, to "Halifax and its surroundings at the time of the formation of the Lodge of Probity," which, we are told, took place on the 12th July 1738, at the Bull's Head, Halifax. After tracing the rise of the town to its present state of prosperity, and speaking of some few of the more important works carried out in the earlier days of its career, he says that in all these great and useful objects it will be found that the brethren whose names are enrolled on our books as members, and often as rulers of the Craft, were by no means in the background, but were promoters in all objects which might prove useful to the well-being of the town. Here we have additional evidence of the way in which Freemasonry has always taken an active part in promoting the welfare of the country at large, just as it continues to do at the present time, when, in spite of occasional taunts that the Masonic ceremony adds nothing to the dignity of local works, we find that in all quarters the help and co-operation of the Craft is eagerly sought and generally appreciated.

In the next chapter the formation of the Provincial Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire is touched upon, and the compiler of this History thinks that the testimony at the disposal of the Lodge of Probity should assist in settling the date of the establishment of that body, as distinct from that of the whole of Yorkshire—differences of opinion existing as to whether the separate establishment should date from 1738 or 1822. The Grand Lodge of England gives the latter period, while, on the opposite side, Entick's Book of Constitutions for 1757 is quoted. Therein the Provincial Grand Lodge of the "West Riding" of Yorkshire is accredited to 1738, William Horton, Esq., being given as the Master (this brother is named by Grand Lodge as the first Provincial Master of "Yorkshire"). In addition to this proof Bro. Crossley acknowledges his indebtedness to Bro. Sadler, Grand Tyler, who, after searching the records of Grand Lodge, supplies the following extract therefrom :—

"William Horton, Esqre. for ye West Riding of ye County of York. Carnarvon G.M. Edward Rooke Leeds, Esqre. Provincial for the West Riding of ye County of York, instead of William Horton, Esqre. deceased. KINTORE G.M."

In addition to this extract from Grand Lodge records some other interesting particulars are given touching upon this period of the Craft's history in Yorkshire, and among other matters we have a fine reproduction of a portrait of the Bro. William Horton here referred to (from a painting in the possession of Bro. Capt. J. T. Horton, J.P., Howroyde, Barkisland). Summing up this question, Bro. Crossley says, "from the evidence here adduced the assertion is warranted that the West Riding of Yorkshire had a Provincial Grand Master in 1738; and as there is some doubt as to the truth of this statement, the writer felt he was justified in having gone out of his way to vindicate this assertion; and also as the Provincial Grand Masters, who were appointed, were men who resided in the immediate vicinity of Halifax, and were probably members and founders of the Lodge of Probity. . . . . Further he cannot but remark that one of the family of Horton, a direct descendant of the before mentioned William Horton, is at the present time enrolled on the list of the members of the Lodge of Probity."

In the next chapter the historian commences on the actual records of his Lodge, tracing it from its foundation, in 1738, up to the year 1769. Our consideration of this and subsequent chapters we leave for another time; for the present we think that we have shown enough to prove the value of Bro. Crossley's work, not only as a memento of his own Lodge, but associated with the Craft of the entire neighbourhood.

By Herbert Crossley (S.W. of the Lodge of Probity), Halifax." Published by the Lodge of Probity. 1888.

In consequence of Dr. Hall's retirement from the post of Medical Officer to the R.M. Institution for Boys, at Wood Green, a successor will shortly have to be appointed. Of the candidates already in the field we may mention Bro. R. F. Tomlin. Amongst the qualifications this gentleman puts forward is one that should not be overlooked—he resides close to the Institution, while as regards testimonials, those he submits speak highly of his ability as a Surgeon and general Medical Practitioner.

The annual meeting of Prov. Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of Northumberland and Durham has been fixed to take place at Berwick, on Tuesday, the 20th inst., under the presidency of R.W. Bro. the Rev. Canon Tristram, D.D., &c, P.G.M.M.M., supported by W. Bro. R. B. Reed D.P.G.M., Bro. J. Straker Wilson Prov. Grand Secretary, &c.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Council for the Delicate.—Those to whom the changeable temperature is a protracted period of trial should seek the earliest opportunity of removing all obstacles to good health. This cooling Ointment, perseveringly rubbed upon the skin, is the most reliable remedy for overcoming all diseases of the throat and chest. Quinsey, relaxed tonsils, sore throat, swollen glands, ordinary catarrh, and bronchitis, usually prevailing at this season, may be arrested as soon as discovered, and every symptom banished by Holloway's simple and effective treatment. This Ointment and Pills are highly commended for the facility with which they successfully contend with influenza; they allay in an incredibly short time the distressing fever and teasing cough.

PROV. GRAND LODGE OF SOMERSET.

ON Friday, the 2nd inst., the Provincial Grand Lodge was held at the Town Hall, Weston-Super-Mare, under the presidency of the M.W. the Prov. G.M. the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master of England. The apartment had been decorated for the occasion by a committee from the receiving Lodge (St. Kew, 1222). The Officers of the P.G.L. were received with due honours at 1·30, and, under the presidency of the D.P.G.M. (Bro. R. C. Else), the formal part of the business was proceeded with. The minutes of the last meeting were confirmed, and the audited accounts of the Treasurer produced, the same shewing a balance in hand of £93 11s 11d, as against £143 4s 1d at the corresponding date of last year. The P.G. Treasurer (Bro. C. L. F. Edwards) explained that at first sight it would appear that they had lost £50 during the year, whereas their ordinary receipts had exceeded their expenditure by £48, as their disbursements included £89 5s to the Girls' School and £18 7s 6d annuity to Bro. Woodward. The revised by-laws were produced, the principal alteration being to the effect that every Officer of the P.G.L., on his appointment to office—except that of Steward—shall provide himself with, and retain the same as his property, a full dress collar and apron of regulation pattern. This alteration was suggested to save the Province the cost of a new set of office emblems, which are sadly needed. The resolution was unanimously adopted. The M.W. the Prov. G.M. entered the Lodge room at 2·30, accompanied by Bros. Ffarington W.M., and G. H. Perrett I.P.M. (Officers of the receiving Lodge), preceded by the G.S.B. and P.G. Deacons. His Lordship having apologised for being late—owing to the crowded traffic on the railway—thanked the D.P.G.M. for having proceeded with the business. He then invested the following Brethren with collars of office for the ensuing year:—

Bro. G. E. Alford 1222	Senior Warden
A. Durkett 291	Junior Warden
F. S. Byrde 1296	Chaplains
F. W. Macdonald 329 ...
C. L. Fry Edwards (re-elected) ...	Treasurer
W. Fuller 53	Registrar
J. C. Hunt (re-appointed) ...	Secretary
F. W. Warren 1953	S.D.
A. S. Ashcroft 1296	J.D.
G. B. Laffan	Superintendent of Works
S. Spill 793	D.C.
S. W. Pusey 437	A.D.C.
C. E. Pearce 261	Sword Bearer
E. Bennett 2038	Standard Bearer
F. Wood 1199
W. E. Sparrow 906	Organist
P. Manning 285	Purst.
T. E. Wilton 241	Assist. Purst.
G. H. Perrett 1222	Stewards
C. Lockyer 976
J. Gill 1966
E. P. Palmer 772
G. Barry 814
A. J. Salter	Tylers
C. Bidgood

The M.W. Prov. G.M. thought the whole of the large assemblage that had gathered that day would agree with him in a resolution expressive of their deep regret at the lamented death of Brigadier-General Adair, Past Provincial Grand Master of Somerset, and their sympathy with the bereaved members of his family. The D.P.G.M. seconded the resolution, which was unanimously carried.

The P.G.M. then proposed that a similar resolution should be recorded in the case of the late Bro. Sumner Toms, who had died during his year of office as P.G.J.W. The P.G.S.W. seconded the resolution, which was also carried. On the proposal of the P.G. Treasurer, Bro. T. B. Ashley P.P.S.G.W. was elected as a trustee of the property of the Province in the place of the late Bro. Adair, and the sum of £100 was ordered to be drawn from deposit and invested in consols. Bro. S. R. Baskett 329 then proposed "That this Provincial Grand Lodge is of opinion that it is desirable to have a Benevolent Fund for local charitable purposes for the Province of Somerset, and that the matter be referred to the Charity Organization Committee, or to a Committee specially appointed by this P.G.L. to consider the question, and report at the next meeting of Provincial Grand Lodge." Bro. Rev. J. A. Lloyd seconded the proposal, which was spoken to by Bro. White. After some discussion it was resolved to omit the latter part of the resolution, leaving it to the P.G.M. to determine whether, after consultation with the Charity Organization Committee, it was desirable to convene a special meeting of the P.G. Lodge. Alms were then collected, amounting to £7 14s 3½d, which, on the proposal of the W.M. of St. Kew Lodge, seconded by the I.P.M., was voted to the Weston-Super-Mare Hospital, and acknowledged by the P.G.S.W., as one of the Officers of that Institution. An adjournment was subsequently made to the Grand Atlantic Hotel, where a large number partook of a repast, served in excellent style, under the presidency of the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, who was pleased to express his entire approval of the arrangements made, and congratulated the town on Mr. Drinkwater's extensive undertaking.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF ESSEX.

THIS Provincial Grand Lodge was held on Tuesday, at Easton Lodge, the residence of the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master Lord Brooke, M.P. The meeting was held under the banner of the Rosslyn Lodge, No. 1543. The Great Eastern Railway Company, with the characteristic liberality which actuates them, had made special arrangements, and brethren from all parts of the Province were enabled to take part in the proceedings. Special trains were run from Bishop Stortford and Witham, and these were met at Dunmow Station by an ample supply of brakes, in which the brethren were conveyed through the quaint Essex town to the country seat of the Provincial Grand Master. The Library at Easton Lodge was set apart for the meeting of the Prov. Grand Lodge, and an elegant Lodge-room it made. Unfortunately it was not sufficiently commodious to accommodate all the brethren who desired to be present, consequently admission was confined to the members of Prov. Grand Lodge. For his other visitors Lord Brooke had thoughtfully provided entertainment in the beautifully wooded park and charming gardens which surround the house, where the splendid band of the Northumberland Fusiliers, under Mr. W. H. Dencer, performed selections of operatic and classical music, which were very much enjoyed. The Prov. Grand Lodge was opened at half-past two o'clock, by the Prov. Grand Master, assisted by the Prov. Grand Officers. V.W. the Rev. C. J. Martyn D.P.G.M. Suffolk, in the absence of V.W. Bro. Philbrick, Q.C., acting as D.P.G.M. Amongst those present were:—

George Harrison P.G.S.W., John C. Quennell P.G.J.W., Thomas Cochrane P.G.C., Andrew Durrant P.G. Treasurer, Thos. Ralling P.G. Sec. P.A.G.D. of C., J. W. Whitlock P.G.S. of W., A. Lucking P.G.P. P.G.D. of C., E. Roberts P.G.O., C. T. Lewis P.G.S.B., and A. Martin P.G.T.; J. P. Lewin, H. E. Dehane, Vero W. Taylor, Rev. F. B. Shephord, F. J. Snell, A. Welsh, John Hutley, E. J. Acworth, G. R. Dawson, W. R. Willcocks, Thos. Humphreys, Thos. F. Barrett, Thomas Lloyd, F. R. Hales, Robert Martin, A. Gosling, G. A. Eustace, Joseph Grimes, John J. C. Turner, E. Hennemeyer, Edmund Gowers, F. G. Green, Rev. E. H. Crate, W. V. Wilson, Alf. F. Ginn, F. Wood, E. Sheadd, J. E. Wiseman, John Downes, H. Finn, Charles Cobb, W. Sowman, R. Haward Ives, Thomas P. Mills, R. G. Kellett, George Motion, Jas. Salmon, J. E. Horn, Arthur Mead, E. H. Inman, Thomas Malyn, J. Fuller, E. H. Horwood, J. E. White, H. T. S. Barney, Alf. Buck, Andrew C. Durrant, W. D. Merritt, G. D. Clapham, J. Tanner, G. H. Finch, A. G. Marshall, G. P. Gilbey, James P. Britton, J. F. W. Bullock, John Taylor jun., T. J. D. Crampton.

There was also a very large attendance of the Masters and Past Masters of the various Lodges in the Province. Amongst the Visitors were:—

Bros. J. Lewis Thomas, Col. S. Barney, Rev. H. A. Pickard, Robert Grey, William Lake, G. Cooper, W. H. Perryman, W. H. Saunders, George Abbot, Rev. George Nugee, Fred C. Atkinson, W. W. Morgan, &c.

Letters, regretting inability to attend, were announced as having been received from the Marquis of Hertford, Lord Algernon Lennox, Lord Henniker, Sir Francis Burdett, Sir Reginald Hanson, Sir Whittaker Ellis, Sir George Harris, Col. Shadwell Clerke (Grand Secretary), &c., &c.

At an earlier stage of the day's proceedings the Finance Committee met to audit the Provincial Grand Treasurer's accounts. After the Lodge had been formally constituted the Provincial Grand Master was saluted according to ancient form, and the minutes of the last annual Prov. Grand Lodge were read and duly confirmed. On calling over the roll of Lodges, representatives were present from each, and they duly answered the call. From the report read by the Prov. Grand Secretary, it appeared that the total number of brethren on the roll was 1300, an increase of 36 as compared with last year.

Digitized by Google

The amount of contributions from the various Lodges, and the number of members in each for 1889 presented a very satisfactory result. There was a balance of £93 18s 8d in the hands of the Prov. Grand Treasurer. The Auditors' report was then read, and it was received, adopted, and ordered to be entered on the minutes. The report of the Charity Committee was unanimously adopted, and directions given that it be duly recorded on the minutes. With regard to the Provincial Calendar, a motion was made that its publication be continued. On the suggestion of the Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Dehane proposed, and Bro. Dr. Lennox Brown seconded a proposition, that the names of brethren sending in votes to the Charity Committee be published. The Prov. Grand Master then addressed the brethren. After giving them a very cordial welcome to Easton Lodge, Lord Brooke expressed the hope that by the arrangements which had been made, the inconvenience of holding the meeting there had been minimised. He felt that a very great honour had been conferred upon him by the holding of Prov. Grand Lodge under his roof, and he thanked the brethren for attending in such large numbers. He took the opportunity to acknowledge the cordial support they had given him on that as well as on many previous occasions. With regard to the state of Freemasonry in the Province, he thought they had every reason for congratulation. When he was appointed to rule over the Province the number of members was 866. Since then several new Lodges had been consecrated, and at the present moment there were 1,300 members in the Province. Referring to the recent consecration of the Lennox Brown Lodge, his Lordship predicted for it a most successful career. The brother after whom the Lodge was named, and whom he was glad to see amongst them that day, had taken the greatest interest in everything connected with Freemasonry. He was glad to see that the financial position of the Province had improved, and that, notwithstanding the agricultural depression which so seriously affected the district, the contributions to the Masonic Charities showed an increase on previous years. £291 had been sent up to the Masonic Benevolent Institution, towards which Bro. Lennox-Browne contributed the magnificent sum of £234. £23 had been sent up to the Girls' School, and £331 to the Boys', making a total of £645; this he thought was a very satisfactory amount for a not very rich Province. The Prov. Grand Master then announced that Bro. Philbrick, Q.C., had consented to act as his Deputy Prov. Grand Master for the ensuing year. The next business was the election of a Provincial Grand Treasurer. Bro. Vero W. Taylor proposed the re-election of Bro. Andrew Durrant. He knew there was a feeling that there should be a change, but he did not share that feeling; and he thought it better to retain the services of so good an officer as Bro. Durrant had proved himself to be. Bro. G. T. Clapham seconded. Bro. J. J. C. Turner nominated Bro. Sadler, W.M. of St. Peter's Lodge, Maldon. He endorsed everything that had been said in favour of Bro. Andrew Durrant, but it was impossible to confer upon him any greater honour than he already possessed, and it would not detract from that honour if another brother were elected to the office Bro. Durrant had filled with so much credit for so many years. Bro. Sadler was the present Mayor of Maldon, and every way a most suitable brother for the position of Prov. Grand Treasurer. Bro. F. R. Hales seconded the nomination of Bro. Sadler. Bro. Salmon nominated Bro. Acworth, who was a P.M. of three Lodges, was Treasurer of his mother Lodge, and Past Treasurer of the Epping Lodge. Bro. John Glass seconded the nomination of Bro. Acworth. Scrutineers were then nominated to examine the voting papers, and later on Bro. Sadler was declared duly elected. The following shows the result of the voting:—Bro. Sadler 77, Bro. Acworth 61, and Bro. Andrew Durrant 39. The following brethren were then invested with the collars of their respective offices:—

After the new Provincial Grand Officers had been saluted, Bro. Bailey was unanimously elected a member of the Charity Committee, in the place of Bro. Lewin who retired by rotation; and, on the proposition of the Prov. Grand Master, the remuneration of the Prov. Grand Secretary was increased from ten guineas to 20 guineas per annum, an additional honorarium of 10 guineas being granted to Bro. Ralling for his services during the past year. On the proposition of Bro. Salmon, seconded by Bro. Corbell, and supported by Bro. Sadler, it was resolved that a jewel be presented to Bro. Durrant, and that the thanks of the Prov. Grand Lodge be recorded on the minutes for his past services as Prov. Grand Treasurer. In response Bro. Durrant said, that during the ten years he had filled the office of Treasurer he had endeavoured to discharge the duties to the best of his ability, and if in the future he could give any assistance to the newly-elected Treasurer he should be only too pleased to do so. On the proposition of Bro. Sadler, the sum of 10 guineas was voted to the Boys' School, and 10 guineas to the Girls' School, from Prov. G. Lodge Funds; 10 guineas was voted to the R. M. Benevolent Institution, from the Charity Fund of the Province. On the proposition of Bro. Snell, 10 guineas was also voted to the Royal Agricultural Benevolent Institution, the votes to be vested in the Master of the Rosslyn Lodge for the time being. The Prov. Grand Master announced that he intended to hold the next Provincial Grand Lodge at Walton-on-the-Naze. A vote of thanks was accorded to the Great Eastern Railway Company, for the facilities afforded to the brethren attending the meeting, and on the proposition of Bro. Merritt, seconded by Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, a similar compliment was accorded the Prov. Grand Master for the hospitable manner in which he had received the Provincial Grand Lodge. The Prov. Grand Master briefly responded, and then Lodge was closed.

The Banquet was served in one of Messrs. Rands and Jeckell's large marquees, erected in the park. The interior was lined with broad strips of Masonic blue and white, and presented quite an imposing appearance. The Prov. Grand Master presided, and over 300 brethren were present. The dinner was admirably served by Messrs. Wright and Son, of Colchester. The Provincial Grand Master proposed the Queen and the Grand Master, and referred in felicitous terms to the recent marriage of the Princess Louise of Wales. He said he should be very sorry to say anything disparaging of any foreigner, but he was sure it was a matter of satisfaction to every Englishman that Her Royal Highness had become affianced and married to one of their own flesh and blood. Lord Brooke next gave the Grand Officers, and coupled with it the toast and name of the Rev. C. J. Martyn, who responded in a characteristically happy speech, in which he stated that a good many years ago he had the honour to consecrate the Rosslyn Lodge at Dunmow, and he was proud and happy to see the progress it had made. Before sitting down he proposed the toast of the evening, the health of Lord Brooke, the Rt. Wor. Prov. Grand Master," a toast which was drunk with the utmost enthusiasm. Lord Brooke, in response, said he was happy to think that the day had passed off without a single note of discord. With regard to the election of Treasurer, he thought it was perfectly right that the office should be open to election, and he felt sure that Bro. Durrant, who had filled the office for some time, with pleasure to himself and with great benefit to the Province, would be glad to see the honour conferred upon such a worthy Mason as Bro. Sadler. After a brief reference to the manner in which the Province had supported the Masonic Charities during the past year, his Lordship alluded to the growth of Masonry abroad, and referred to the hospitable receptions which he had met with from brethren in India and Egypt, and in conclusion again thanked the brethren for the honour they had done him by meeting in Provincial Grand Lodge under his roof. His Lordship next proposed the Provincial Grand Officers, for whom Bro. Lennox-Brown responded. The toast of the Visitors, proposed by the P.G.M., was acknowledged by Bro. Pickard, and for the W.M.'s of the Lodges in the Province, also proposed from the chair, Brother Clapham W.M. of the Rosslyn Lodge, responded. The other toasts were the Prov. Grand Secretary Bro. Ralling, and Prov. Grand Dir. of Cers. Bro. Lucking, both of whom responded. After the banquet the gardens were beautifully illuminated with variegated lights and Chinese lanterns, and a short concert, which was graced with the presence of Lady Brooke, was given in front of the house by talented and well-known artistes. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Mr. Chas. Clark. Mr. N. Howlett was the accompanist. At dusk there was a display of fireworks, culminating in an effective set piece by Aggio, of Colchester. The illumination of the gardens and the upholstery in the marquee were the work of Mr. Griffin, of Colchester. Altogether, the meeting was a success. Everything passed off admirably, and the cheers which were given for Lord Brooke and his charming wife before the brethren left the Park were of the heartiest description. Special trains conveyed the visitors to Witham and Bishop Stortford, and thus a most enjoyable day was brought to a happy conclusion.

ROYAL ARCH.

SUPREME GRAND CHAPTER.

THE Quarterly Convocation was held on Wednesday evening, at the Freemasons' Hall. The Principals' chairs were occupied by Companions the Rev. H. Adair Pickard, M.A., Grand Superintendent of Oxfordshire; James Glaisher Past Assistant Grand Sojourner, and Colonel Marmaduke Ramsay Grand Superintendent of Malta. Charters were granted for new Royal Arch Chapters to be attached to St. David's Lodge, No. 384, Bangor; the Semper Fidelis Lodge, No. 529, Worcester; the Mount Moriah Lodge, No. 34, London; and the Regent's Park Lodge, No. 2202, London. Sanction was also given for the removal of the Joppa Chapter, No. 188, to the Guildhall Tavern; the Westbourne Chapter, No. 733, to the Holborn Restaurant; and the Phœnix Chapter, No. 1235, to the Town Hall, Buxton. In consequence of the formation (and recognition by Grand Lodge of England) of a Grand Lodge of Victoria, the Australasian Chapters, named in our issue last week were erased from the register of Grand Chapter, the Lodges to which those Chapters are attached having joined the Grand Lodge of Victoria. In the course of the evening Dr. Jabez Hogg was invested with the regalia of Grand Sword Bearer.

CONCORD CHAPTER, No. 223.

THE annual convocation was held on the 30th ult., at the Freemasons' Hall, Plymouth. The Principals elect were installed:—J. Hoyten as Z., P. H. Bridgman H., A. Trout J. Ex-Comps. J. M. Hilley P.P.G.Std.Br., J. W. Cornish 223 were the Installing Officers. The Officers invested were Ex-Comp. J. M. Hilley S.E., Comp. C. B. Gale S.N., Ex-Comp. W. Browning Treasurer, Comps. J. Jermyn P.S., T. Lillicrap 1st A.S., G. W. Bell 2nd A.S., C. H. Tozer Dir. of Cers., A. E. Bridgman Assist. Dir. of Cers., P. Hannaford and T. A. Stephens Stewards, W. H. Phillips Janitor. Two guineas were voted to the Devon Masonic Educational Fund towards entitling the Chapter to a Governorship of that Institution. The day of Convocation was changed to the first Thursday in October, January, April, and July, instead of the third Wednesday.

The General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys held its monthly meeting on Saturday last, at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. George Plucknett P.G.D., Treasurer of the Institution, in the chair There were also present Bros. C. H. Webb, James Brett, Gordon Smith, John Jones, H. Dickey, W. W. Morgan, H. Massey, Arthur E. Gladwell, and F. Binckes (Secretary). As arranged at the July meeting, that on account of the Naval Review and the August Bank Holiday very few brethren would be likely to attend this meeting, the business to be transacted should be postponed till Saturday, the 10th inst., the only work done was to read and confirm the minutes of the July meeting, and this course was pursued. Bro. Jones suggested that the adjournment should be advertised in the newspapers. He did not think the brethren generally understood that there was to be an adjournment. The business to be transacted was very important. The Provisional Committee was to bring up its further report, and he desired that the action to be taken upon that report should not be adopted at a small meeting. He hoped that no one would be able to say that it was done at a hole-and-corner meeting. He, therefore, trusted the meeting would be advertised in the usual way. Bro. Binckes said it could not be in the usual way, because the meetings of the General Committee were not advertised. However, there need be no difficulty about advertising. All that Bro. Jones had to do was to make a motion that the adjourned meeting for the 10th inst., at 4 p.m., be advertised, and if it was seconded and carried, he (Bro. Binckes) would send the advertisement out at once. Bro. Jones then moved, and Bro. James Brett seconded, that the adjourned meeting be advertised. The motion was carried, and a vote of thanks to the Chairman closed the proceedings.

GRAND LODGE OF SCOTLAND.

A QUARTERLY communication of the Grand Lodge of Scotland was held on the 1st inst., in the Freemasons' Hall, George Street, Edinburgh. The Senior Grand Warden, Brother James T. S. Elliot, acted as the M.W.G. Master. Among the other office-bearers present were D. Murray Lyon G. Secretary, J. Dalrymple Duncan Acting S.G. Warden, Lieutenant-Colonel John Campbell Acting J.G. Warden, George Christie, David Hume, Major F. W. Allan, and others. Apologies for absence were received from Sir Archibald C. Campbell, Bart., John Graham of Broadstone, Sir Charles Dalrymple, the Rev. Thomas Somerville, David Reid, &c. The Lodge was opened shortly after four o'clock with a very poor attendance compared with the large assemblages in the other portions of the year. Before proceeding with the business of the Lodge, the Acting Grand Master moved—"That this Lodge forward a loyal and dutiful address to Her Majesty the Queen on the occasion of the marriage of the eldest daughter of the Prince of Wales. Also, that addresses be sent to the Prince of Wales and to the Duke and Duchess of Fife." The motion was unanimously agreed to, and the Grand Secretary instructed accordingly. The recommendation of the Committee on Grand Lodge Rulings that "Grand Lodge fully recognises the inalienable right of all Master Masons to meet, discuss, and petition Grand Lodge on any matter connected with Masonry; but when a communication is to be addressed to the whole Craft, the sanction of the Grand Committee must be first procured," was, on the motion of Brother Caldwell, sent back to committee for re-consideration. The recommendation of committee that Grand Lodge enter into fraternal relations with the Grand Lodge of Victoria, and to accede to the request of the seceding Scottish-holding Lodges as to the retention of their charters, was unanimously adopted. Lord Clanmorris was appointed representative to the Grand Lodge of Ireland. From the reports submitted it appeared that the income during the last three months amounted to £1,235 2s 2d, and the expenditure to £562 16s 8d. Grants made from the Scottish Masonic Benevolent Fund during the quarter ending 20th July amounted to £90 10s, while the income for the same period amounted to £62 4s 6d. For the half-year ending 18th July 1889, the Board of the Annuity Branch had under consideration 41 cases, 7 of which were continued, 19 rejected, and 15 entertained. To one case—the widow of a brother at Dunedin—£20 was allotted, two cases £15 each, and the remaining twelve £10 each—total £170, which, added to £155 allotted last January, gives the total of £325 being paid in annuities to brothers, brothers' widows, or brothers' children.

Obituary.

Bro. J. W. Moulton, of the Kingsland Lodge, No. 1693, was, a few days since, struck with paralysis, which terminated fatally on Monday morning last, at his residence in Peter-street, Islington. Our late brother was very much respected by his fellows, and his loss will be deeply regretted by them. Bro. Moulton was of a kind, genial disposition, ever ready to lend a helping hand where needed. Truly it may be said of him, "A good man and brother," in every sense of the word. He was buried on Thursday, at Highgate Cemetery, the funeral being attended by a numerous assemblage of sorrowing relatives, friends, and employés. The Lodge was represented by Bros. A. W. Fenner, Founder, P.M. and Secretary, Jas. Cooper P.M. and Treasurer, R. P. Forge P.M., J. Potter, and J. Collings. It may be mentioned that the Kingsland Lodge sent a wreath to be placed on the grave.

We have been requested to state that the Pythagorean Chapter of Instruction, No. 79, has removed from the Portland Hotel, Greenwich, to the Dover Castle, Broadway, Deptford. The meeting nights will be the 2nd and 4th Thursdays in the month, throughout the year, at 8 p.m., instead of Friday evenings, as hitherto.

Royal Masonic Institution for Boys,
WOOD GREEN, LONDON, N.

THE MONTHLY MEETING of the General Committee will be held, by adjournment from Saturday, 3rd August, on Saturday 10th August, at the Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen Street, London, at the usual hour of four o'clock in the afternoon, for the transaction of general business.

By Order,
FREDERICK BINCKES (P.G. Sword Bearer), V.-Pat., Secretary.

OFFICE—6 Freemasons' Hall, London, W.C.
6th August 1889.

To the Governors and Subscribers of the

Royal Masonic Institution for Boys,
WOOD GREEN, LONDON, N.

DEAR MADAM OR SIR,

The post of Surgeon to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys at Wood Green being now vacant, I desire to offer myself as candidate for the same.

I have been residing within one minute's walk from the Institution for the last four years, and am intimately acquainted with the working of it.

I have the honour to append Testimonials of my professional life, and to state that if I am honoured by being appointed to the post, I shall always make it my best endeavour to work in harmony with my brother Officials.

I have the honour to remain,

Yours very obediently,

Lordship Lane, Wood Green, August 1889. R. F. TOMLIN, M.R.C.S.Eng., &c.

Copies of Testimonials received by R. F. Tomlin, Surgeon.

Devonport, 28th May 1873.

This is to certify that Mr. Robert Francis Tomlin became my Articled Pupil in September 1869, and remained with me till October 1870. During this time he was attentive to his duties and his studies, very punctual in his attendance, and always anxious to please. He has been with me occasionally during the last three years, and I find he is prosecuting his studies with Exemplary Diligence, and gives proof of great ability and unremitting application to his work.

JOSEPH MAY, Surgeon.

21 Grosvenor, Bath, 23rd July 1889.

I am pleased to state that Mr. R. F. Tomlin acted as assistant to my late father-in-law, Dr. Leahy, of Bridgend, during the years 1873 and 1874, and gave him every satisfaction. He considered him most skilful and attentive to his patients. The practice was chiefly amongst colliers, railway men, and iron-workers, so that his opportunities for surgical work were very great.

W. S. STABLES, L.S.A. (Lond).

Becket House Wantage, 23rd July 1889.

Having known Mr. R. F. Tomlin most intimately for the last Fourteen Years, I can bear every testimony to his Character and Abilities, both professionally and socially.

After having been with me for four years as Assistant, he joined me in partnership, and it was with deep regret that, owing to circumstances relating solely to myself, our connection had to be broken, and I need hardly say that he took away with him the hearty good wishes of a large number of patients, by whom he had been much valued for his kind and skilful services. He is thoroughly qualified for the post of Surgeon to the Masonic Schools, for which I understand he is a candidate, alike by his kindness and industry, as by his professional knowledge and experience, and I feel quite sure in him the Governors will find a most painstaking and efficient Officer.

J. A. BALL, M.B. (Lond.)
Physician to St. Mary's Home, Wantage;
Consulting Surgeon to the Stockport Infirmary.

THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE

SATURDAY, 10TH AUGUST 1889.

SUTHERLAND OF UNITY LODGE, No. 460.

THE jubilee of this Lodge, whose place of meeting is the Castle Hotel, Newcastle-under-Lyme, was celebrated on the 26th ult. On the 26th of June 1839, there was a meeting of members of the Craft at Newcastle concerning the consecration of a new Lodge, but very little information is supplied by the Lodge minute-books as to the nature of the business transacted. From that little, however, and other circumstances, it would appear that William Mason was the leader of the movement for rallying together those gentlemen living in the town who had already been initiated into the mysteries and privileges of Freemasonry. There was originally an intention to name the new Lodge the Sutherland, but some Burslem brethren, notwithstanding the existence of the old St. Martin's in that town, forestalled the Newcastle applicants for a warrant, and secured for themselves the name of Sutherland. The Freemasons in the old borough were obliged to submit, at the same time they determined to adhere to the name "Sutherland," adding to it the words "of Unity," to distinguish it from the Lodge now numbered 451. We are not aware that any confusion has been caused, though some years ago the proposal to change the name to the Anson was seriously entertained. Before the meeting referred to, the Lodge warrant had been granted, under date 26th March 1839, and the consecration took place on 26th July in the same year. In the warrant William Mason was named the first W.M., with John Woolley as S.W. and John Boulton as J.W. It has sometimes been said that in the early days of the Lodge the brethren were more jovial than their successors, and that, in accordance with the custom of the times, later hours were kept, so that the brethren fixed the day of meeting on the Friday nearest the full moon in the hope of thereby getting home with greater safety. It is curious to notice that in the first year of the Lodge's existence the brethren were summoned to ordinary meetings at irregular hours, sometimes at three, five, six, or seven o'clock, and Bruce's Act not having come into operation, no doubt the moon was a useful luminary to many after the Tyler's toast had been drunk, for many brethren had a long distance to walk and perhaps on rough and lonely roads. It must not be inferred that in their hilarity the brethren showed any lack of charity, "the characteristic of a Freemason's heart," for in their contributions to benevolent objects the members of the Sutherland Lodge of Unity have always kept pace with the times. In the early days of the Lodge a candidate after initiation had to be regularly proposed, seconded, and voted for, before he could be passed to a second degree, and he had again to be formally proposed and elected before being raised to the sublime degree. But this arrangement was not long insisted upon. In 1840 John Bostock was initiated and passed the same night, which was a common occurrence a little later, but has long since been contrary to the Book of Constitutions. Blackballing was commenced in the same year, and while several candidates were elected on the 11th of September 1840, one was rejected as the result of the ballot. Blackballing has been practised at intervals, though sparingly and not always wisely, ever since. The Lodge was in the first instance numbered 674 on the registry of the Grand Lodge of England, but in 1863, in accordance with a resolution of Grand Lodge, all the Lodges on the register were brought forward in regular succession by filling up the numbers of those which had become vacant, either by voluntary surrender of warrants or by erasure. From that time the number of the Sutherland of Unity has been 460. William Mason the first W.M. was, at the time of the formation of the Lodge, Mayor of the borough, an office which his father, John Mason, had held from the 1st of January to the 9th November 1836. He was in business with his father, as a hat manufacturer, employing a large number of hands, the site of the factory being at the present time covered with the sugar refinery on the London-road. William Mason presided over the Lodge till the end of 1840, and in 1847 he was appointed P.G.S.W. He continued to take an active interest in Freemasonry nearly a quarter of a century after the founding of the Lodge, and he was buried in St. Giles's churchyard. Of the first Wardens, the senior (Bro. John Woolley) was only a member of the Lodge for a short time, and the junior (Bro. John Boulton), though eligible for the chair, never took office as W.M. The first S.D. was George Tait, the first J.D. Robert Miller, and the Treasurer and Secretary were elected from brethren initiated after the consecration. The first candidate for initiation as a member of the Lodge was Liddle Elliot, C.E., and he was the first Treasurer of the Lodge. Bro. Elliot was elected Mayor of Newcastle in 1843, and was afterwards chosen, by the promoters of a scheme for obtaining a sufficient supply of water for the townships of Hanley and Shelton, to make a survey and report "as to the capability of the district to afford a sufficient supply of water for the se townships and such other districts of the Staffordshire Potteries as may be deemed practicable." We quote the words of the instructions to the engineer, which may be said to be the origin of the Potteries Waterworks Company, whose engineer Bro. Elliot continued to be till the time of his death. In the first year of the existence of the Lodge there were also initiated Robert Fenton, who became W.M. as early as 1842, and P.G.S.W. in 1848 (Mayor of the borough in 1844); John Hallam, who was W.M. in 1843 and P.G.S.W. in 1848 (Mayor in 1847); Charles Trubshaw, who was W.M. in 1845, became P.G.S.W. in 1851, and was well known for many years as the county surveyor for Staffordshire; Robert Chapman, for many years borough surveyor of Newcastle, who took office, but never occupied the W.M.'s chair. Altogether, at the end of 1839 there were 19 members, including Henry Rothwell, the first Tyler. The initiates in 1840 numbered 13, and there were two joining members. The initiates included William Hargreaves, who was W.M. in 1844, P.G.S.W. in 1867, and took a warm interest in the concerns of the Lodge till his removal from the town, and in 1881 he was elected an honorary member, a mark of respect which is sparingly paid to brethren, and is therefore all the greater compliment. He was Mayor in 1854. The initiates in 1840 also included Joseph Cooper, who, though he rendered valuable services to the town as a member of the Corporation, and served the office of Mayor for the year commencing November 1857, was not a zealous Mason; Frederick Crewe, W.M. 1846; John Cook Snape, father of John Twist Snape, the latter of whom was W.M. in 1885, had provincial honours conferred on him in 1887, and is now Secretary to the Lodge; and Edwin Hill (Mayor, November 1859). One of the joining members this year, J. R. Home, became Master of the Lodge in 1841. In the minute-book there is a record of the installation of Bro. Home as W.M. on the 30th of December 1840, and for the first time "St. John's" is alluded to, but the Secretary has omitted to say anything with regard to its celebration. In 1841 John Trubshaw was initiated, and James Trubshaw (W.M. in 1848) was admitted a joining member. The initiates also included John Broomhall (W.M. in 1847), Minshull G. Philips (W.M. 1859), Charles Booth, who is still living, at a very advanced age; and Henry Bagguley. The last-named was initiated on the 7th May 1841, subsequently passed and raised, and commenced his duties as Tyler of the Lodge in 1842, and Tyler of P.G. Lodge in 1845. He continued to hold both offices till two or three years ago, though his health had been giving way for years, and he was elected an honorary member of the Sutherland Lodge of Unity—a position which he holds at the present time. In 1842 there were only two initiates, one of them being Samuel Mayer Turner, who was W.M. in 1854, and P.G.A.D.C. in 1860 (twice Mayor of the borough).

In February 1841, according to an entry in the minute-book, interest on borrowed money was ordered to be paid, which would appear to indicate that the Lodge was not in a very prosperous condition at that date. The state of the funds no doubt has had an influence in fixing the annual subscription of the Lodge to the North Staffordshire Infirmary at £2 2s in 1843, subsequently increasing it to £10 10s, and afterwards lowering it to £5 5s. But whatever fluctuations may have taken place since the date named, the finances are satisfactory at the present time.

One of the earliest entries in 1842 is the statement that at the meeting of the Lodge held on the 29th January, Bro. Mason P.M. read two interesting sermons—one that was preached by a Rev. and respected brother before the Lodge at Madras—the other by the Rev. W. Brook Jones, Grand Chaplain, at Chelmsford, at the installation of the Right Worshipful G. Downing P.G. Master of Essex. During that year the Secretary missed attending Lodge four months in succession, and disregarded remonstrances addressed to him. In May 1842 a resolution was passed in favour of holding Lodges of Instruction, which had been held at irregular intervals till recent years. One good resolution was passed this year, which has, however, long been in abeyance, attaching a penalty to any brother neglecting to signify whether he intends or not to dine at the Festival of St. John.

In 1843 there were three initiates—Wm. Bailey, Robert W. Fraser, M.D., and Thomas Jenkins; another candidate, who had been duly elected, declining to come forward, as others have occasionally done since, for obvious reasons. On the 7th August in this year the Lodge was not opened "in consequence of the unavoidable absence of the candidates," and amongst the other records is a statement that at the meeting in April a Committee was appointed to draw up a memorial to the Grand Master on the subject of the neglected state of the Province. Three years later a communication was received from the P.G. Lodge to the effect that one of the Lodges in South Staffordshire was suspended for seven months "for sundry irregularities in discipline and inattention to their Masonic duties." At the same time this notification was made, Dr. Slade D.P.G.M. (who was no doubt paying a round of inspection), examined the working condition and whole position of the Sutherland Lodge of Unity. He warmly eulogised the way in which all the duties were performed, and offered a few words of congratulation "upon the high position the Lodge had attained with respect to the number and respectability of its members. In 1843 a Lodge of Emergency was held, for the purpose of balloting for and initiating Dr. Fraser, on the ground that he was "an officer of Her Majesty's regiment of Infantry now stationed in this town. His stay is uncertain, consequent on the detachment being under marching orders." It was on the 8th of December 1843 that Thomas Jenkins was initiated. He was at the time clerk of the works at Trentham Hall. In 1852 Bro. Jenkins presented to the Lodge the gavel, and subsequently the square and level used by King George the Fourth, in laying the foundation-stone at the rebuilding of Windsor Castle. The gavel was used by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales in laying the foundation-stone of the North Staffordshire Infirmary in 1866, and recently by Col. Gough, the R.W. P.G.M. of Staffordshire, in laying the foundation stone of new public buildings at Tunstall, all which occurrences are inscribed on silver plates inlaid on the gavel—an instrument the possession of which is regarded with much pleasure and pardonable pride by the members. It is also used in laying the foundation stone of Newcastle Public Buildings, 6th July 1888. Bro. Jenkins left his country many years ago, and afterwards distinguished himself as a Freemason in Australia.

A large addition was made to the membership of the Lodge in the same year, when the P.G. Lodge was held at Newcastle. Bro. Hyslop is still a subscribing member, and is Treasurer of the Lodge. In November 1872, he was elected Mayor of the borough. The other initiates in 1850 included James Winstanley, Samuel Peake Howson, Charles Massey (Mayor in 1863), Samuel Carryer and James Poole (W.M. in 1867), while Samuel Crewe, Jesse Prime, and the Rev. W. Astley Cave-Brown-Cave became joining members. Walter Acton joined in 1861, was W.M. in 1865 and 1874, and P.G.J.W. in 1866. In 1861 William Ottey Briggs was initiated; he was W.M. in 1866 and P.G.S.W. in 1869, when the P.G. Lodge assembled at Newcastle, and his name stands as the senior subscribing P.M. of the Lodge in this year's Calendar. Bro. Briggs was elected Mayor of Newcastle in November 1874. William Large, who was made a joining member in 1861, was P.G.S.D. in 1862; another, who joined at the same time, William Cecil Cave-Brown-Cave, becoming P.G. Chaplain in 1862. It was in 1861 that Bro. William Dutton had the pleasing duty of initiating Colin Minton Campbell, who, as a member of Parliament from 1874 to 1879, as a magistrate of the county, as a director of the North Staffordshire Railway (the later years as chairman), as a manufacturer, and as one who took part for many years in the management of local affairs, had his time too much occupied to permit of his frequent attendance at Lodge, but who continued to be associated with his mother Lodge of Freemasons till his much lamented death in 1885. Altogether, there were 18 new members in 1861. In the next few years there were many new members, including in 1862 Charles Holtom (Stoke), in 1863 the Rev. M. M'Hutchin and Charles Howard King, the latter a joining member, who was P.G.J.D. in 1859.

It is recorded that in 1862 pecuniary aid was rendered to Carlo Bragazzi, who, after residing in this Province 35 years, was about to return to Italy, his native country. The members expressed "sincere feelings of respect and esteem for one who, during his long residence in this Province, has acquired and maintained the reputation of a true, faithful, and worthy Mason, and truly honest, honourable, and respectable man, and also their earnest wish that in his own native land, now happily relieved from that heavy oppression which 35 years ago compelled him to seek refuge in England, the evening of his life may be passed in comfort, contentment, tranquillity and peace."

In 1864 there were initiated, amongst others, William Young Craig, who resigned membership soon after he commenced the representation of North Staffordshire in Parliament, in 1879; John Warner P.G.P., in 1871, and Clement Marsh, three times W.M.—namely, in 1870, 1871, and 1873. Dr. Charles Orton joined the Lodge in 1864, and became W.M. in 1868, while in 1866 Alfred Glover P.G.S.W. 1857 joined, and John Adamthwaite, William Shepherd Allen (M.P. for the borough from 1865 to 1885, and still a member of the Lodge), and William Jones, W.M. in 1872 and P.G.S. of Works in 1875, were initiated.

The members added since 1866 have included the following:—In 1867, Dr. M. J. Crean; 1869, Charles Hickson, W.M. in 1875 and P.G.J.W. in 1876; and George Barclay W.M. in 1876. In 1871 (joining) J. G. Ainsworth, W.M. 1879, P.G.S.D. 1881. In 1873 (joining) Thomas Turner, W.M. in 1878, and P.G.R. in 1879; J. Ingamells, W.M. in 1877, P.G.J.D. in 1878, and at present Director of Ceremonies; and E. E. Scrivener (joining), previously P.G.S.D. In 1874, E. H. Croydon, W.M. 1882, P.G. Assistant Sec. 1884. In 1875, Thomas E. Storey, P.G.A.D.C. 1884, and Alfred Leigh Broad, W.M. 1880, P.G.J.W. 1882. In 1876, William Henry Bucknell, W.M. 1881, P.G.A.D.C. 1883; T. G. Booth (at present Chief Bailiff of Tunstall), Joseph Griffith, J. T. Eayres, the latter of whom was W.M. of 662 in 1884. In 1877, Edwin Harrison, one of the present Stewards; Thomas Peake Heath, who devoted more time to municipal duties than Masonic work, and was elected Mayor of the Borough in 1880; and William Thomas Aggutter W.M. 1884, P.G.S.D. 1885. In 1878, Dr. St. John Edwards (joining), F. Mountford, W.M. 1883, P.G.O. 1882, and P.G.S.D. 1889; and John Smith W.M. 1877. In 1879, Harold Bonsor, the present S.W.; John Twist Snape, W.M. 1885 and 1886, P.P.S.B. 1886; Frederick Skerrett, the present W.M.; T. W. Eardley the present S.D. In 1881, Henry Hollins, the present J.D.; and in 1883, W. H. Newby, the present J.W. Besides Bro. Newby, there were six other initiates, but four of them are now non-resident, and the other two are absentees on Lodge nights. Though there has been a paucity in the attendance, and in the amount of "work" done, since 1883, the W.M. and his Officers are hopeful that they see signs of renewed prosperity, which is gratifying to them at this time, when they are celebrating the jubilee of the Lodge. Joseph Griffith, Mayor of the borough in November 1881, was initiated in this Lodge, and is still a member. One of the most recent initiates is the present Mayor of Newcastle, Bro. J. A. Whittingham, and there are now fifty-three subscribing members.

The following have held the office of W.M. since the consecration of the Lodge:—1839 and 1840, William Mason; 1841, J. R. Home; 1842, Robert Fenton; 1843, John Hallam; 1844, William Hargreaves; 1845, Charles Trubshaw; 1846, Frederick Crewe; 1847, John Broomhall; 1848, James Trubshaw; 1849 and 1850, Thomas Ward; 1851, Thomas Fenton; 1852, William Cartwright; 1853, Henry Hall; 1854, Samuel Mayer Turner; 1855, Thomas Mason; 1856, David Dilworth; 1857, John Hallam; 1858, Jos. Knight; 1859, M. G. Phillips; 1860 and 1861, Wm. Dutton; 1862, John Pearson; 1863, William Hyatt; 1864, R. W. Lichfield; 1865, Walter Acton; 1866, William Ottey Briggs; 1867, James Poole; 1868, Charles Orton; 1869, Samuel Hyslop; 1870, and 1871, Clement Marsh; 1872, William Jones; 1873, Clement Marsh; 1874, Walter Acton; 1875, Charles Hickson; 1876, George Barclay; 1877, J. Ingamells; 1878, Thomas Turner; 1879, J. Green Ainsworth; 1880, Alfred Leigh Broad; 1881, William Henry Bucknell; 1882, Edward Henry Croydon; 1883, Frederick Mountford; 1884, William Thomas Aggutter; 1885 and 1886, John Twist Snape; 1887, John Smith; 1888, Frederick Mountford; 1889, Frederick Skerrett.

For many years the Perseverance Chapter of Royal Arch Masons was held at Newcastle, consisting mainly of members of the Sutherland Lodge of Unity. But the membership became so low in 1884, that the Chapter ceased to appear in the Masonic Calendar after that year, and most of the Royal Arch Masons of Newcastle are affiliated with the Staffordshire Knot Chapter at Hanley. Whether Chapter 160 may be resuscitated remains to be seen.

CENTENNIAL OF THE CONNECTICUT G. LODGE.

AN event of unusual importance to the Masonic Fraternity in Connecticut occurred on the 10th ult., when the Grand Lodge of that State, assisted by subordinate Commanderies and Lodges and distinguished invited guests from other States, celebrated the Centennial Anniversary of the Grand Lodge of Connecticut. Elaborate preparations had been in progress for many months. The Ceremonies opened with a parade by the Commanderies and Lodges of Connecticut escorting the Grand Lodge, and in which 4000 Masons took part. Attendance had been promised by 68 Lodges, with a total of 2846 members, and there were also 10 Commanderies of Knights Templar in line, with nearly 600 members. There were 22 bands, including Colt's Armoury Band of Hartford and Cappa's 7th Regimental band of New York. The musicians numbered nearly 400. Dinner was served in the Armoury for those who took part in the parade, and arrangements had been made for 4000 persons. The public exercises included an historical address by Grand Secretary Joseph K. Wheeler, of Hartford and other appropriate services. In the evening a concert was given at the Hyperion, which was open to the public, and for which tickets had been sold. This was preceded by a banquet, to which only Masons were admitted. On the evening of the 9th ult. Grand Master Swartwont, of Stamford, held a reception, to which all the Grand Officers and District Deputy Grand Masters had been invited. In addition to the immense gathering of the Craft in Connecticut, there were many present from other States, and among the invited guests many of the most prominent Masons in the country. Massachusetts was represented by Grand Master Henry Endicott and Grand Secretary Sereno D. Nickerson, of Massachusetts, who were present as special invited guests of the Grand Lodge of Connecticut. Other distinguished Freemasons present were:—Grand Master John C. Smith, of Illinois; Past Grand Master Josiah H. Drummond, of Maine; Grand Master Thomas J. Shryock, of Maryland; Grand Master Webb, of New Jersey; Grand Master George W. Currier, of New Hampshire; Past Grand Master Richard Vaux, of Pennsylvania; Deputy Grand Master Benjamin F. Haller, of Tennessee; Deputy Grand Master John W. Vrooman, of New York; Grand Secretary Edwin Baker, of Rhode Island; Grand Master Clifford P. MacCalla, of Pennsylvania; Grand Master George H. Kenyon, of Rhode Island, and others. Freemasonry in Connecticut began with the institution of Hiram Lodge, No. 1, of New Haven, in 1750. Hiram Lodge was chartered by St. John's Grand Lodge of Massachusetts, Thomas Oxnard Grand Master, and is consequently the oldest Lodge in the State. The Lodge was suspended by the Grand Lodge of Connecticut in 1887, after 130 years of active life, but the difficulties between the two bodies have recently been healed, and the ancient Lodge restored to its place at the head of Connecticut Freemasonry. The petition to St. John's Grand Lodge was headed by D. Wooster, then Captain, afterwards General, in the Continental Army, and also contained the names of some of the most prominent and best known citizens of New Haven. David Wooster was appointed the first Master of the Lodge. Wooster was a veteran of the French and Indian wars, and served with distinction in the provincial army. He led his regiment of Connecticut Volunteers in three campaigns against the French posts of Crown Point and Ticonderoga. In the last campaign, the English, under command of General Amherst, were successful, and, with the capture of Quebec by General Wolfe's army, brought about the loss of the whole of Canada to the French. Gen. Wooster distinguished himself in these campaigns for great personal courage, and led a desperate though unsuccessful attack upon the French breastworks at Lake George, in Lord London's campaign. In 1775, upon the breaking out of the revolutionary war, the Connecticut General Assembly raised six regiments of troops, and appointed Gen. Wooster Major-General and Commander-in-Chief of the Connecticut troops. His Brigadiers were Joseph Spencer and Israel Putnam. When the army was reorganized by the Continental Congress, the merits of Wooster were overlooked, and through the greater fame of Putnam he was appointed Major-General from Connecticut, while Wooster was appointed Brigadier-General. This slight, however, made no difference to Wooster, who served in the campaign against Canada, under General Schuyler, with distinction. He was killed by a musket ball, fired by a Tory, when Benedict Arnold made his descent upon the Connecticut towns, in 1781. The Grand Lodge of Connecticut was instituted 8th July 1789, when there were 13 Lodges in the State. It will be noticed that the real anniversary was 8th July, but for convenience the celebration was held on the 10th July. The first convention of delegates, representing the Masonic Lodges of Connecticut, was held at New Haven, 18th March 1783. Twelve Lodges were represented. Several votes were passed, and various recommendations were made to the Lodges. The sentiment at that time was in favour of the institution of a Grand Lodge, but nothing came of the convention in that direction. The convention adjourned until the following September, but no record exists of a meeting being held at that time, and it is supposed that no further movement was made. The next convention was held at New Haven, 14th May 1789. At this time 13 Lodges were represented. At this meeting the sentiment in favour of the establishment of a Grand Lodge appeared to be unanimous. A committee was appointed to draw up a plan, and prepare constitution and by-laws for the government of the proposed Grand Lodge. The convention was then adjourned to 8th July in the same year, the committee being instructed to report at that time. On the appointed day the convention reassembled. The committee reported at length, and presented a draft for a constitution and by-laws, and a complete plan for the organization of the Grand Lodge. The proposed constitution was adopted by the convention, and a full board of Grand Officers elected. The following Lodges were represented:—Hiram Lodge, New Haven; St. John's Lodge, Middletown; St. John's Lodge, Fairfield; St. John's Lodge, Hartford; King Solomon's Lodge, Woodbury; St. John's Lodge, Stratford; Lodges in Wallingford and Danbury; Wooster Lodge, Colchester; St. Paul's Lodge, Litchfield; Frederick Lodge, Farmington; Montgomery Lodge, Salisbury. Of these Lodges, 12 were chartered by the Grand Lodges in Massachusetts, all but St. John's Lodge, Fairfield; and St. John's Lodge, Stratford, being so chartered. The first Grand Master was Pierrepont Edwards of New Haven, a member of Hiram Lodge, and the youngest son of the famous theologian and divine, Jonathan Edwards. He was born in Northampton, Mass., in 1750. He was graduated at Princeton in 1768, and began the practice of law in New Haven in 1771. He was frequently elected to the Legislature, and was appointed administrator of the estate of Benedict Arnold at the time of his treason. He took an early stand in favour of the colonies in the contest with the mother country, and served with honour in the revolutionary army. After the close of the war he became a member of the Continental Congress, and was a warm advocate of the constitution. Later in life he became judge of the United States district court, which position he occupied at the time of his death, which occurred at Bridgeport in 1826. He was made a Mason in Hiram Lodge in 1775, and was Worshipful Master of the Lodge in 1768. For two years he filled the office of Grand Master, with marked ability, and his administration was a credit to himself and the Fraternity. The history of Masonry in Connecticut is closely interwoven with the story of the patriotic citizens of that state. Many of those prominent in the revolutionary war were honoured members of the Masonic fraternity. Indeed, it is stated on good authority that of the 56 signers of the Declaration of Independence, 50 were Freemasons, as were also nearly all of the general officers of the army and navy of the colonies. From this it will be seen that Connecticut was not alone in the devotion of her patriots to the ancient institution of Freemasonry. Benedict Arnold was a member of Hiram Lodge of New Haven, being a frequent attendant at its meetings until 1772. Gen. Israel Putnam was also a member, and his character and fame added lustre to the Lodge, which even the treason of Arnold could not dim. Among other celebrated men who have been identified with Masonry in the Nutmeg State may be mentioned Hon. David Daggnett, who was the first Deputy Grand Master of the Grand Lodge, and held the office for many years. He was for several years a senator of the United States for Connecticut, and afterwards judge of the superior court. Henry W. Edwards, afterwards Governor of the State, was a member of Hiram Lodge. Hon. Ephraim Kirby, a member of King Solomon's Lodge of Woodbury, served during the whole of the revolutionary war. He was present and participated in 13 battles and skirmishes, among which were Bunker Hill, Brandywine, Monmouth and Germantown, and received 13 wounds. He held high rank in his profession, and was the author of the first volume of judicial decisions ever published in this country. He died in Mississippi while on the way to assume the duties of judge of the territory of Orleans, to which he had been appointed. The members of the legal profession, the medical profession, and the clergy, have belonged to the Masons, and a full list of members would include many governors and other state officers, United States officers and representatives, judges of courts and eminent divines and physicians. The Grand Lodge of Connecticut at present has under its jurisdiction 110 subordinate Lodges and 14,731 members. The present Grand Master is John W. Swartwont of Stamford, and the Grand Secretary is Joseph K. Wheeler of Hartford. Grand Secretary Wheeler is a well read Masonic student and an authority upon all Masonic topics. The historical address was delivered by him, and was a model of research and historical accuracy.—Boston Herald.

CORRESPONDENCE.

—:o:—

A CAUTION.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Will you permit me, through the medium of your columns, to caution your readers against an individual representing himself as connected with this Theatre, and obtaining money for pretended admission tickets, the said tickets being printed on the back of my advertisement railway tickets. They are forgeries. Any admissions granted to bill exhibitors are invariably sent by post, never by hand. The man is described as being tall, and with a fair moustache.

He generally carries bills under his arm, which he asks permission to exhibit.

This warning may save your readers the annoyance of being refused admission, and at the same time put an end to these frauds, which have existed for a considerable period.

Yours sincerely,

EDWARD TERRY.

DEDICATION OF A NEW MASONIC HALL AT CROOK.

ON Wednesday, 17th ult., Bro. Babbington Boulton, Restoration Lodge, No. 111, P.P.G.Treas. and Acting Deputy Master, in the unavoidable absence of Sir Hedworth Williamson, Bart., Provincial Grand Master for the Province of Durham, in a most impressive manner solemnly consecrated and dedicated a handsome building in Church-street, Crook, to the services of Masonry. The Crook Lodge, No. 2019, of which Bro. E. Milburn is W.M., is in a very prosperous state, there being now a membership of over sixty. Its formation took place seven years ago. A sumptuous banquet was afterwards partaken of.

ANCIENT UNION LODGE, No. 203.

THE annual picnic was held at Clitheroe. The party, numbering about sixty, left Tithebarn-street Station by the 9·50 a.m. train, on the 25th ult., in saloon carriages, courteously placed for their comfort by Mr. Helliwell, the company's passenger agent, and after a sharp run arrived at Clitheroe, and at once proceeded to the Swan and Royal Hotel, were they were kindly received by the widow of Bro. Lofthouse. After viewing the old castle, and admiring the magnificent view of the surrounding country from its walls, the members and their ladies returned to the hotel, where they partook of dinner, and at the termination of the meal the usual loyal toasts were given by the W.M. (Bro. Thomas Wood). The W.M.'s toast was then proposed by Bro. J. N. Hounsell P.M., and Treasurer, who acted as D.C., to which Bro. Wood replied in felicitous terms. Waggonettes were in waiting, and conveyed the party through a most picturesque country, via Whalley Abbey (where the party were photographed, under the walls), Bolton, Gisburne, returning by a shorter route to the hotel. After tea the W.M. thanked several of the brethren for their valuable assistance in making the picnic so great a success, and asked the party to adjourn to the meadow by the Ribble for the sports. The 120 yards race for gentlemen, first prize a handsome briar-root pipe in case, was won by Bro. Dockerill; the second prize, a walking stick, by Mr. Hessam. The ladies potato race, which proved very exciting, was won by Mrs. Clark, the prize being a handsome silk umbrella; and the second prize a pair of gloves, &c., by Mrs. Galloway. The ladies again competed in the egg and spoon race, the prize being a beautiful handkerchief and glove-box, which was won by Miss Williams. The sports were wound up with the tug-of-war, which was won by the team captained by Bro. Galloway P.M. The party then returned to the station, where, while waiting for the arrival of the 8·5 p.m. train, the prizes were distributed to the successful competitors. After a sharp run home, the party separated at Tithebarn-street, after spending a most enjoyable day, and congratulating each other on the success of the outing.

LODGE OF HARMONY, No. 220.

BRO. Thomas Lawton was, on the 24th ult., at the Garston Hotel, Garston, duly installed as Worshipful Master. The Lodge of Harmony has now attained its 97th year, being one of the oldest Lodges in the province of West Lancashire. Amongst the visitors were Bros. Harry Round 1609, W. L. Sweetman 1505, J. F. Booth 1299, S. Haden Jones 1299, T. Sowden 786, J. Shield 1086, H. T. Wakeham 1432, R. W. T. Hatch 613, F. L. Elsworth 241, C. Stopford 1713, and W. Tomkinson 786. The presenting officers were Bros. W. S. Vines and H. Hatch Treasurer, the Worshipful Master being installed in a most impressive and able manner by his predecessor in the chair, Bro. T. F. Hill. Subsequently the Worshipful Master proceeded to invest his Officers, as follow:—Brothers S. S. Fisher S.W., J. W. Billingsley J.W., H. Hatch Treasurer, J. Carter Secretary, W. S. Vines D.C., J. C. Watson S.D., Dr. J. A. Fisher J.D., T. Broughton I.G., J. Williams Organist, W. W. Gamble S., T. Finch S., and T. Gidlow S. The brethren afterwards sat down to an excellent banquet, supplied by Bro. T. Wilson, landlord of the Garston Hotel. During the evening the retiring W.M. was presented with a beautiful tea and coffee service, supplied by Messrs Elkington and Co., Church-street, Liverpool. Each piece is enriched with an engraved rosette band, and bears the monogram of Mr. and Mrs. Hill. The salver, which is 18 inches in diameter, is mounted with a cable border and a richly engraved scroll band, and bears the following inscription:—"Presented to Brother Thomas F. Hill P.M., P.G.S.B., together with a tea and coffee service, by the members of the Lodge of Harmony, No. 220, as a token of their esteem and regard, on his retiring from the W.M.'s chair, July 1889."

ATHOLE LODGE, No. 1004.

AT the meeting, held on 22nd ult., at the Masonic Hall, Douglass, Isle of Man, a most unusual event in Masonic circles took place. Ceremonies in the three degrees were gone through, the third degree being ably performed by Bro. S. Webb P.Z. P.M. P.G.J.W. The occasion will be long remembered by that genial brother, inasmuch as he had the pleasure of giving his two sons—Thomas and Henry—the sublime degree. We wonder how often a father can say that he has, in one night, conferred this degree on his two sons. Mr. Thomas Webb is a sailor, mate of the Argomene, one of the finest ships sailing out of Liverpool, and he came to the Island on Monday purposely to take his third degree here. Some of the Liverpool brethren offered to give him his degree there, but he preferred coming over to his mother Lodge to have the degree conferred by his father. Bro. S. Webb has three sons who are Masons, and he initiated all of them.

HOWE AND CHARNWOOD LODGE, No. 1007.

A VERY large and influential gathering of the Freemasons of Leicestershire and Rutland lunched together in the Town Hall, Leicester, on Tuesday, the 30th ult, to meet the Marquis of Granby, who was that day about to be admitted into the Masonic Order, as a member of this Lodge, which holds its meetings at the Bull's Head Hotel. Mr. George Carter Oliver, of Leicester, the W.M. of the Lodge, presided, and he was supported by the Marquis of Granby, Bros. W. Kelly P.P.G.M., S. S. Partridge D.P.G.M., E. Wood, Mayor of Leicester; J. Griggs, Mayor of Loughborough; Ald. T. Wright, ex-Mayor of Leicester; the Rev. J. Bird Chaplain of the Lodge, Dr. Corcoran I.P.M., George Oliver, J.P., P.M., and a great number of other leading Masons of the Province. After the lunch, the toasts of the Queen and the Prince of Wales were heartily drunk, and the company adjourned to the Lodge Room, at the Bull's Head Hotel, where the Marquis of Granby was initiated a member of the Masonic Craft, the ceremony being most impressively and effectively performed by Bro. G. C. Oliver the W.M., ably assisted by Bros. T. B. Laxton S.W., and J. H. Marshall P.M. In the course of the proceedings Bro. G. C. Oliver proposed, and the Marquis of Granby seconded, a vote of congratulation to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales the Grand Master of the Order, upon the marriage of his daughter, the Princess Louise of Wales, with the Earl of Fife P.G.M. of Banff.

FALCON LODGE, No. 1416.

ON Thursday, the 1st inst., the brethren of this Lodge, accompanied by several lady friends, had a picnic to Richmond and neighbourhood, and spent a pleasant day in viewing the picturesque scenery of that district. The party arrived at Richmond shortly before noon, and at one o'clock partook of luncheon at the King's Head Hotel. They afterwards left in conveyances for Aske Hall, the residence of the Earl of Zetland, P.G.M. for N. and E. Yorkshire, and the recently appointed Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland. Easby Abbey was also visited, and other places of special interest in the locality. At five o'clock tea was served, at the King's Head Hotel, and at 6·30 the party left Richmond by train for Thirsk, having passed an enjoyable day.

ALBERT EDWARD LODGE, No. 1714.

ON Saturday, 27th ult., on the occasion of the marriage of the Princess Louise, this Lodge, of which the Duke of Connaught is a member, sent a congratulatory address to the Prince of Wales. The address was presented by the Secretary, Bro. Robert Bunce P.P.G.S., who was cordially received at Marlborough House by Sir Francis Knollys. Mr. Pountney, of Reading, executed the address on vellum, and it was enclosed in a neat case of imperial blue morocco. The address was signed by the Worshipful Master, Past Masters, Wardens, Treasurer, and Secretary.

PEACE LODGE, No. 2269.

ON Wednesday, 31st ult., the members and a number of lady friends, held a pic-nic. The party, which numbered thirty-eight, left the London and North Western Station, Wigan, at 9·36 a.m., en route for Preston. On arriving there, they at once took their places in three wagonnettes, each drawn by four horses, and were driven through some beautiful country to Whalley Abbey, where an excellent lunch was in waiting. After visiting the abbey and church, the party were driven, viâ Milton Church and Stonyhurst College, to Whitewell, which is one of the most charming spots in North-East Lancashire. The party arrived there at 4·15, and spent an hour pleasantly admiring the beautiful scenery, &c. Dinner was served at 5·15, and at 6·30 the party again took their seats in the wagonettes, and were driven back to Preston, a distance of eighteen miles. The entire distance by road by which the party travelled was forty-two miles. Preston was reached at 8·50, and Wigan at ten o'clock. The weather throughout was very fine, and the whole proceedings were heartily enjoyed by all who took part in them.

MASONIC RELICS.—On the 25th July, when the Masons were piercing the wall of the old Parochial School, Manchline, to lead in the gas, they came on the foundation-stone of the addition built in 1865. The chisel passed through the glass bottle, in which were found a list of the members of Manchline St. Mungo's Lodge, No. 179, the names of the teachers in the Parish School and the New Educational Institution, the ministers of Manchline, the churches, and public works. There were fourteen photos, in good preservation, a few coins, and two newspapers, the Glasgow Herald and Ayrshire Express, of August 26th, 1865. The Lodge addressed the relics to future generations, but the same generation that witnessed the ceremony now gather round them and gaze on the features of many dead. The present proprietor, Mr John Mather, contractor, purposes replacing them in a stone of a new porch to his dwelling-house.

TROUBLE AMONG FREEMASONS.—The controversy respecting the Cerneau Scottish Rite, which has deeply interested members of the Masonic Fraternity throughout the country, reached a climax at Washington on Saturday. An edict was issued by Harrison Dingman, the Most Worshipful Grand Master of Masons of the District Columbia, pronouncing the Cerneau organisation clandestine, and warning all members of that Rite that they are liable to discipline from the Grand Lodge, unless they at once withdraw from the Cerneau body. The main reason for the edict, aside from other questions arising in the Scottish Rite controversy, is stated to be that the Cerneau organisation has established relations of amity and Masonic correspondence with the Grand Orient of France, the governing body of Masons of that Country, which is under the ban of at least every English speaking Grand Lodge in the world, because the Grand Orient has stricken the name of God from its rituals. The Grand Lodges of this country, it is said, have an additional grievance against the Grand Orient of France, because the latter persists in recognising the Negro Grand Lodges of the United States. Grand Master Dingman's edict directs that all visitors to Lodges in the district of Columbia shall be required to state before admission that they are not Members of the Cerneau organisation. The meeting of the Cerneau section in any Masonic hall is also prohibited.—New York Herald.

GOUT & RHEUMATIC PILLS.

The SAFEST and most EFFECTUAL CURE for GOUT, RHEUMATISM, and all PAINS in the HEAD, FACE, and LIMBS.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL from the Rev. F. FARVIS, Baptist Minister.

Mr. G. Eade, March 19, 1887.

Dear Sir,—I have many times felt inclined to inform you of the benefit I have received by taking your Gout and Rheumatic Pills. After suffering for some time from Rheumatics and Sciatica, I was advised to use your Pills. I bought a bottle, and when in severe pain and unable to use the limb affected I took a dose. In a few hours after I felt the pain much better, and after the second dose the pain completely removed and the limb restored to its right use. I thank you, dear sir, for sending forth such a boon for the relief of human suffering.

Yours faithfully,
F. FARVIS,
Baptist Minister.

There are multitudes of people who look upon advertising as a sort of Lottery, and bestow infinitely more thought in the selection of a clerk at £100 a year than in the expenditure of £1000 or two in the same period in advertising. A tithe of the shrewdness displayed in all other branches of their business given to the management of their advertising will be amply repaid. The ADVERTISEMENT AGENT has become an indispensable factor in this matter of publicity, and his raison d'être is perfectly unassailable. Would you leave or enter a port without a pilot? Would you commence and prosecute a law suit without a legal adviser? Either of these courses would not be more foolish than rushing into expenses in Advertising without a competent practical and professional adviser. I am at all times happy to render advertisers every assistance in my power, and to give them the benefit of the experience I have gained during the past twenty years as a London advertising agent. "PAINLESS AND PERFECT DENTISTRY."

A New Pamphlet, by Dr. GEO. H. JONES, F.R.S.L., F.R.M.S., &c., Surgeon-Dentist, 57 Great Russell-street, facing British Museum entrance, London, contains a list of Diplomas and Silver Medals and other Awards obtained at the Great International Exhibitions. Forwarded gratis and post free.

Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist's Testimonial.

My Dear Doctor,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

S. G. HUTCHINS,
By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

Geo. H. Jones, Esq., D.D.S.

Scientific Department.
Laboratory of Experimental Science.

This is to certify: That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

(Signed),
EDWARD V. GARDNER, F.H.S., M.S.A.,
Professor of Chemistry, and of Berners College, W.

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

Are universally admitted to be worth a Guinea a Box for Nervous and Bilious Disorders, such as wind and pain in the stomach, sick headache, giddiness, fullness and swelling after meals, dizziness and drowsiness, cold chills, flushings of heat, loss of appetite, shortness of breath, costiveness, scurvy, blotches on the skin, disturbed sleep, frightful dreams, and all nervous and trembling sensations, &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes. This is no fiction, for they have done it in thousands of cases. Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all humours, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no medicine to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

For a weak stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the liver they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse in action with the ROSEBUD of health the whole physical energy of the human frame. These are the "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of society, and one of the best guarantees to the nervous and debilitated, is that

MESMERISM AND THE "BLACK HAND" IN FREEMASONRY.

MEMBERS of the Masonic Order must have been somewhat amused in reading, as they had an opportunity of doing a few days ago, of the delusions of a Romish Priest—the Rev. John Bowden—concerning whose sanity an inquiry was recently held before one of the Masters in Lunacy. It is not our intention to discuss the merits of the inquiry, or the result of the investigation, but the reverend gentleman appeared to possess some strange ideas in reference to Freemasons and the Masonic Order—a point which is of special interest to us. The Rev. Mr. Bowden may or may not be answerable for his utterances, that is not a matter that concerns us, but as there can be no smoke without fire we think an examination of some of his delusions may lead us a little behind the scenes as to what is said among the Romish priesthood concerning Freemasonry, more especially as his delusions in a measure confirm previous experiences in the same quarter.

In the course of the evidence produced we are told that the reverend gentleman appeared to have been possessed with the idea that he had been mesmerised by the Freemasons, and that he had pursued them into the gates of Hell with a big stick, and that he had broken the gates, as well as a number of windows. It will be news to some among us to learn that the much maligned abode of the prince of darkness has a gate, and is enlivened with windows, but why it should be necessary to go to this particular quarter in order to pursue and punish the members of the Masonic Order is beyond our comprehension. Surely there are enough members of the "mystic tie" within easy reach, without taking so long a journey as is here suggested, and were it not well known that the unhappy gentleman who possessed these delusions had an excuse for them in the teachings of his superiors, it would be sad to contemplate his condition. But if the ideas expressed by Mr. Bowden were the creation of a disordered intellect, there are many others in equally prominent positions, and who are regarded as perfectly sane, who express, and pretend to believe, the same, or nearly the same nonsense in regard to the Masonic Order.

Later on, we are told that this reverend gentleman had other delusions associated with Freemasonry. He said he had been marked with a "black hand," which he described as a Freemason's sign for him to be put to death, while one of his fancies involved a number of charges of immorality, which immorality he also connected with the Freemasons. But we think enough has been said to prove that this unfortunate gentleman was very severe on the subject of Freemasonry, and, as we have said, we regard his delusions as but the actual teachings of a section of the Romish church, many of whose shining lights utter equally absurd charges against Freemasons and their teachings.

We had almost thought that Freemasonry had outlived the opposition of the Pope and his followers, and perhaps we are wrong in accepting the delusions of Mr. Bowden as evidence to the contrary, but who, knowing the way in which Freemasonry has been assailed in this quarter in years gone by, can wholly disassociate his ideas from official teaching. They are in fact just what has been preached time after time by members of the Church of Rome, in the hope of lessening the influence of the Masonic Order, and bringing its followers into contempt and ridicule.

There is one redeeming feature in all this that stands out prominently on behalf of Freemasonry. In the general opinion of the world such ideas as those expressed by Mr. Bowden are now regarded as sufficiently absurd to stamp their possessor as a lunatic, and accordingly, we have the gratification of knowing that in public estimation Freemasons are not wholly associated with the custody of Hell, the putting to death of objectionable characters, or the practise of immorality. There is much then to be thankful for, and we hold up the experience of the gentleman here referred to to such other disciples of Popery as are never tired of abusing the members of the Craft. If they wish to enjoy the reputation of being in their right senses it would seem desirable for them to formulate and preach in the future doctrines more in accord with common sense than they have been in the habit of doing in the past.

ASHMOLE AS A FREEMASON.

MY friend Bro. Jacob Norton, in his reply to my brief criticism of his objections to Ashmole being accepted as a brother Freemason, has written so much about what I did not say, that it appears to me better to ask our readers to consult the original article in the Freemason, by me, on that well known antiquary; next Bro. Norton's communication, and finally my reply, with his following, in the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

My contention is simply this,—that it is better to quote from the "Diary," rather than from the two printed editions thereof, as both of the latter are wrong, and introduce words that entirely mislead, especially the word "by" in relation to the meeting of 1682.

1. I do not disbelieve Dr. Plot's statement that the Freemasons had "secrets."

2. Have never professed (or felt) ignorance that the pre-1717 brethren had any secrets, &c.

3. Have never supposed that the Masons' Guild had secret forms of recognition; but, on the contrary, have long maintained otherwise. What I ask for is evidence that in order to gain admission "into St. Paul's Lodge [Antiquity], in or about 1717, it was necessary to show a sign, to give a grip, or to whisper a word." It might have been so, and no one can deny it, but to affirm it is quite another matter, especially as there is not a scrap of evidence to justify the statement as to "the sign and grip" being used then in that Lodge.

Then, again, it was a "Lodge" that assembled at "Masons' Hall" in 1682, not a Masons' Guild or Company; and here again it is well to keep to the exact phrascology. It was a "Lodge" also, in 1646, that accepted Ashmole as a member, and we still meet in Lodges as then, only since the Grand Lodge era other degrees have been added.

As Bro. Norton seems to rather resent any criticism of his criticisms, I promise him not to hurt his feelings in that respect again.

W. J HUGHAN.

BLEST MORAL SCIENCE.

IT is a very easy task to trace from reason and the nature of things the wise ends and designs of the sacred constitution of Masonry, which not alone cultivates and improves a real and undisguised friendship among men, but teaches them the more important duties of society. Vain, then, is each idle surmise against this sacred art which our enemies may either meanly cherish in their own bosoms, or ignorantly promulgate to the uninterested world. By decrying Masonry they derogate from human nature itself, and from that good order and wise constitution of things which the Almighty Author of the world has framed for the government of mankind and has established as the basis of the moral system, which, by a secret but attractive force, disposes the human heart to every social virtue. Can friendship or social delights be the object of reproach? Can that wisdom which hoary time has sanctified be the object of ridicule? How mean, how contemptible must those men appear who vainly pretend to censure or contemn what they cannot comprehend! The generous heart will pity ignorance so aspiring and insolent.

I shall now proceed and consider in what shape Masonry is of universal utility to mankind, how it is reconcilable to the best policy, why it deserves the general esteem, and why all men are bound to promote it.

Abstracting from the pure pleasures which arise from a friendship so wisely constituted, and which it is scarce possible that any circumstance or occurrence can erase, let us consider that Masonry is a science confined to no particular country, but diffused over the whole terrestrial globe, where arts flourish. Add to this that by secret and inviolable signs, carefully preserved among ourselves throughout the world, Masonry becomes an universal language. By this means many advantages are gained: men of all religions and of all nations are united. The distant Chinese, the wild Arab, or the American savage, will embrace his brother; and he will know that, besides the common ties of humanity, there is still a stronger obligation to engage him to kind and friendly actions. The spirit of the fulminating priest will be tamed, and a moral brother, though of a different persuasion, engage his esteem. Thus, all those disputes which embitter life and sour the temper are avoided, and every face is clad with smiles while the common good of all, the general design of the Craft, is zealously pursued.

It is not evident that Masonry is an universal advantage to mankind? For, sure, unless discord and harmony be the same, it must be so. Is it not likewise reconcilable to the best policy? for it prevents that heat of passion, and those partial animosities, which different interests too often create. Masonry teaches us to be faithful to the government, and true to our country; to avoid turbulent measures, and to submit with reverence to the decisions of legislative power. It is surely, then, no mean advantage, no trifling acquisition, to any community or state, to have under its power and jurisdiction loyal subjects and citizens, patrons of science, and friends to mankind.

Does not Masonry, therefore, of itself command the highest regard? Does it not claim the greatest esteem? Does it not merit the most exclusive patronage? Without doubt. If all that is good and amiable, if all that is useful to mankind or society, be deserving a wise man's attention. Masonry claims it in the highest degree. What beautiful ideas does it not inspire? How does it open and enlarge the mind? And how abundant a source of satisfaction does it afford? Does it not recommend universal benevolence, and every other virtue which can endear one man to another? And is it not particularly adapted to give the mind the most disinterested, the most generous notions?

An uniformity of opinion, not only useful in exigencies, but pleasing in familiar life universally prevails among Masons, strengthens all the ties of their friendship, and equally promotes love and esteem. Masons are brethren and amongst brethren there exists no invidious distinctions. A king is reminded that though a crown adorns his head and a sceptre is in his hand, yet the blood in his veins is derived from the common parent of mankind, and is no better than that of the humblest individual. Men in inferior states are taught to love their superiors, when they see them divested of their grandeur, and condescending to trace the path of wisdom and follow virtue, assisted by those of a rank beneath them. Virtue is true nobility, and wisdom the channel by which it is directed and conveyed. Wisdom and virtue, therefore, are the great characteristics of Masons.

Masonry inculcates universal love and benevolence, and disposes the heart to particular acts of goodness. A Mason possessed of this amiable, this God-like disposition, is shocked at misery under every form or appearance. His pity is not only excited, but he is prompted, as far as is consistent with the rules of prudence, to alleviate the pain of the sufferer, and cheerfully to contribute to his relief. For this end our funds are raised and our charities established on the firmest foundation. When a brother is in distress, what heart does not ache? When he is hungry, do we not convey him food? Do we not clothe him when he is naked? Do we not fly to his relief when he is in trouble? Thus we evince the propriety of the title we assume, and demonstrate to the world that the term or endearing name of brother among Masons is not nominal.

If these acts are not sufficient to recommend so great and generous a plan, such a wise and good society, happy in themselves, and equally happy in the possession of every social virtue, nothing which is truly good can prevail. The man who resists arguments drawn from such topics must be callous to every noble principle, and lost to all sense of honour.

Nevertheless, though the fairest and the best ideas may be thus imprinted in the mind, there are brethren who, careless of their own reputation, disregard the instructive lessons of our noble science, and by yielding to vice and intemperance, not only disgrace themselves, but reflect dishonour on Masonry in general. It is this unfortunate circumstance which has given rise to those severe and unjust reflections which the prejudiced part of mankind have so liberally bestowed on us. But let these apostate brethren know, and let it be proclaimed to the world at large, that they are unworthy of the trust, and that whatever name or designation they assume, they are in reality no Masons. It is as possible for a mouse to move a mountain, or a man to calm the boisterous ocean, as it is for a principled Mason to commit a dishonourable action. Masonry consists in virtuous improvement, in cheerful and innocent pastime, and not in lewd debauchery or unguarded excess.

But though unhappy brethren thus transgress, no wise man will draw any argument from thence against the society, or urge it as an objection against the institution. If the wicked lives of men were admitted as an argument, the religion which they profess, with all its divine beauties, would be exposed to censure. Let us, therefore, endeavour strenuously to support the dignity of our characters, and by reforming the abuses which have crept in among us, display Masonry in its primitive lustre, and convince mankind that the source from which it flows is truly divine.

It is this conduct which can alone retrieve the ancient glory of the Craft. Our good and generous actions must distinguish our titles to the privileges of Masonry, and the regularity of our behaviour display their influence and utility. Thus the world will admire our sanctity of manners, and effectually reconcile our uniform conduct with the incomparable tenets we profess and admire.

As our Order is founded upon harmony, and subsists by regularity and proportion, so our passions ought to be properly restrained, and be ever subservient to the dictates of right reason. As the delicate pleasures of friendship harmonise our minds, and exclude rancour, malice or ill-nature, so we ought to live like brethren bound by the same tie, always cultivating fraternal affection, and reconciling ourselves to the practice of those duties which are the basis on which the structure we erect must be supported. By improving our minds in the principles of morality and virtue, we enlarge our understandings and more effectually answer the great ends of our existence. Such as violate our laws and infringe our good order, we mark with a peculiar odium; and if our mild endeavours to reform their lives should not answer the good purposes intended, we expel them our assemblies as unfit members of the society. Rich and poor receive equal justice.

This is the practice which should universally prevail among Masons. Our outward conduct being directed by our inward principles, we should be equally careful to avoid censure and reproach. Useful knowledge ought to be the great object of our desire, for the ways of wisdom are beautiful and lead to pleasure. We ought to search into nature, as the advantages accruing from so agreeable a study will amply compensate our unwearied assiduity. Knowledge must be attained by degrees, and is not everywhere to be found. Wisdom seeks the secret shade, the lonely cell designed for contemplation; there enthroned, she sits delivering her sacred oracles; there let us seek her and pursue the real bliss, for though the passage be difficult, the farther we trace it the easier it will become.

If we remain united, our society must flourish; let us, then, promote the useful arts, and by that means mark our distinction and superiority; let us cultivate the social virtues, and improve in all that is good and amiable; let the genius of Masonry preside, and under her sovereign sway let us endeavour to act with becoming dignity.

I flatter myself that I have convinced my readers that Freemasonry is undoubtedly an institution of the most beneficial and amiable nature, since its professed design is the extension and confirmation of mutual happiness, by the most perfect and effectual method: the practice of every moral and social virtue. It is a salutary institution, wherein bad men, if they chance, as they ought not on any consideration to be admitted, are most generally restrained in their moral retrogradation, or downhill progress in vice; whilst the good are taught and excited to aspire at higher degrees of virtue and perfection. A good man and a good Mason are synonymous terms; since a good man must necessarily make a good Mason, and a good Mason can never be a bad man: and, as the better men are the more they love each other, and on the contrary, the more they love each other they become more perfect Masons.

Those who have the honour and happiness of being regular members of this most excellent society are strictly bound to practise its duties and precepts. Foremost in the rank of our duties stands our obligation to obey the laws of the great Giver of all good gifts and graces, to conform to His will, and to conduct ourselves as under the inspection of His All-Seeing Eye; for as in Him we live, move and have our being, partake of His goodness and depend on His favours, so whatever we think, speak, or do, ought all to be subservient, and capable of being referred to His glory.

This primary and fundamental duty of obedience to the Supreme Being, from whence, as from their fountain, all other duties with respect to ourselves and our neighbours flow, is evidently taught by reason, confirmed by revelation, and enforced by Freemasonry. Subordinate and consequent to this our grand obligation, is the important and indispensable duty of brotherly love, which delights and ought always to demonstrate itself, in real acts of genuine beneficence.

Freemasonry has not only united its worthy members and genuine sons in the most indissoluble bands of confidence, concord, and amity; it has even caused religion to shine forth with renewed lustre, and introduced its spirit which the Royal Craft has strongly imbibed, in every nation and persuasion wherein it has gained admittance; and it produces the most benevolent and charitable set of men, in proportion to its number, of any society whatever throughout the known world. Thus inestimable is Freemasonry for its manifold and most useful qualities. It super-eminently excels all other arts by the bright rays of truth which it sheds on the minds of its faithful votaries, illuminating their understanding with the beams of a more resplendent light than is to be derived from the assemblage of all other arts whatsoever, of which the newly initiated brother begins to participate when he is girded with the emblem of innocence, more ancient than the tower of Babel, and far more honourable than the imperial dignity. As it excels all other arts in its vast and admirable extent, so it far surpasses them in its pleasing and effectual modes of communicating its instructions. But of this the enlightened brother alone can form a judgment or make the comparison. Those who have happily made the experiment are convinced of its transcendent excellence in this particular. The unenlightened by Masonry can only form vague and uncertain conjectures of the utility of the Royal Craft, or of the modes of initiation into its various degrees, or of the subsequent different delightful and beneficial instructions respectively communicated.

As we ought to be irreproachable in our own demeanour, so we ought to be careful that our candidates for Freemasonry have the requisite qualifications, which indispensably ought to be a good reputation, an honest method of living, sound morals, and a competent understanding.

No member who has the honour of the society, or even his own, sincerely at heart, will presume to nominate any that are not possessed of these valuable qualities. In that case it would be incumbent upon every worthy brother to give a negative, and reprobate such indecorous conduct.

It is to be supposed, at least amongst Masons, that as enlightened members of so noble a society, we have more just, sublime and comprehensive ideas, with respect to virtue, decorum, and dignity of human nature, than the generality of the misled mass of mankind. It is to be apprehended that we grant admission to none but men of principle, of virtue, honour and integrity, lest the ancient institution, instead of being an object of deserved veneration, fall into disrepute and become a subject of ridicule. It is therefore to be expected that neither the wealth, the station, or the power of any man shall procure from us his admission into our respectable Lodges, but his propriety of conduct, his uprightness, his goodness. Such indeed as answer this description will be an honour to our sublime Craft, and are best qualified to reap from it every desirable advantage. And although it is a maxim with us to solicit none to enter into our society, yet we shall be always exceedingly glad to enrol such worthy members in the honourable lists of our numerous members. Those are egregiously deceived, and may they ever be disappointed in their application for admittance as Freemasons, who consider us in the light of a Bacchanalian society, or under any similar ignoble idea. Our association, indeed, admits of all becoming cheerfulness, festivity and gaiety of temper, at suitable seasons and intervals; but indeed our assemblies are principally convened from the most beneficial and exalted purposes: for purifying the heart, correcting the manners, and enlightening the understanding. Thus the useful and the agreeable are by us happily united; instruction and pleasure are blended together. Order, decorum, concord and complacency are constant attendants upon our Lodges.

Now, is Masonry so good, so valuable a science? Does it tend to instruct the mind, and tame each unruly passion? Does it reconcile men of all religious and of all nations? Does it expel rancour, hatred and envy? It is an universal cement, binding its followers to charity, good will and secret friendship? It is calculated to promote the greatest freedom? Does it teach men to lead quiet lives? In short, are not its precepts a complete system of moral virtue? Then, hail, thou glorious Craft! bright transcript of all that is amiable! Hail, thou blest moral science, which so beautifully exemplifies virtue! Welcome, ye delightful mansions, where all enjoy the pleasures of a serene and tranquil life! Welcome, ye blessed retreats, where smiling friendship ever blooms, and from her throne dispenses pleasure with unbounded liberality! Welcome, sacred habitations, where peace and innocence for ever dwell!—Voice of Masonry.

In reply to the loyal and congratulatory address to the Prince and Princess of Wales, adopted at the annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Suffolk, held at Beccles, the Right Hon. Lord Henniker Provincial Grand Master has received the following:—

Marlborough House, Pall Mall, S.W.
30th July 1889.

My Lord,—I am directed by the Prince of Wales to acknowledge the receipt of the loyal and fraternal address from the Freemasons of the "Province of Suffolk," and in reply to convey to the brethren His Royal Highness's best thanks for the kind and generous congratulations contained therein upon the marriage of the Princess Louise, Duchess of Fife.—I am, &c.

OLD UNDATED MASONIC MANUSCRIPTS.

By Bro. Jacob Norton.

THE first of these MSS. was hitherto known as the "Halliwell Poem." Bro. Gould, however, calls it "The Regius MS." Next to it is "The Matthew Cooke MS." These are followed by about sixty other MSS., which Brother Hughan calls "Old Charges of British Freemasons." A few of these, however, have dates attached to them; the oldest was written in 1585. All the said MSS. contain legends and laws of the Craft, and the Cooke MS., as well as the "Old Charges," were doubtless the rituals of our pre-1717 brethren. The questions about these MSS. are, first, how old are they? Second, are any parts of the legends true? And, third, if not true, when and by whom were they invented? Let us first consider the age of the poem.

Mr. Wallbran, an antiquary, fixed the date of the poem to 1390. Mr. Halliwell says that it was written not later than the latter part of the fourteenth century; and Mr. Bond, of the British Museum, says that it was not written before the middle of the fifteenth century. These learned antiquaries draw their conclusions from the style of penmanship of various periods, but their difference in the time when it was written amounts to sixty years. It is evident, therefore, that their rule is faulty and unreliable.

For instance, my own handwriting has not changed for the last forty years. Suppose then an undated scrap of my own penmanship was laid before me, and there was no internal evidence to indicate its age, I myself could not tell whether it was written five years ago or fifty. Some persons' style of writing, however, does change with age; in some cases persons purposely change, now and then, the formation of more or less letters, and in other cases, decay of strength, age or nervousness will cause a change in the style of writing. In such a case if it is necessary to ascertain the age of an undated MS. of such an individual, if a sufficient number of dated MSS. of the same penman exists, covering all the decades of his life, then the undated MS. will have to be compared with all the dated ones, and even then all that might reasonably be said about it is, that it was written somewhere near a certain decade, or that it was not written before a certain year, nor after a certain year. But, any how, when we know the penman was born and when he died, then we are sure that it was written within the period of his lifetime.

Now, with regard to the writer of the Masonic poem; no one knows his name, when he was born, or when he died; hence, it seems to me to be impossible to fix its age, even to within a period of sixty years. I admit, however, that changes have taken place, both in the art or mode of penmanship, in language, in phrases, and certain marks as substitutes for words. These changes, however, have been gradual, and, what is more, in some parts of the country they were more backward than in others. Even to-day the language spoken in the north of England differs very much from the language spoken in London; the language in London has gradually changed since the days of Chaucer, while in the north very little change is perceptible. And as we do not know where the poem was written, it enhances the difficulty of ascertaining even in which century it was written.

Unfortunately, I am not an expert of old MSS. I have seen very few of them in my lifetime, and never thought of making an effort to compare any until I obtained the "Quatuor Coronati Masonic Reprints," which contains fac similes of the Masonic poem, and also of two other poems, and all were written by different penmen. These three MSS. I have compared with each other, and with the fac simile page in Matthew Cooke's MS., and I will try to give an idea about some of the differences I observed. For instance, I found in the Masonic poem the letter ȝ,—sometimes in the beginning of a word, sometimes in the middle, and sometimes at the end,—which puzzled me exceedingly.

In the two other fac similes, reprinted by the "Quatuor Coronati Lodge," the letter ȝ is also sounded in the above fashion, but in the Cooke MS. the letter ȝ is no longer so sounded or used. And, on the other hand, while the said two MSS., as well as that of Matthew Cooke, have marks to denote the word "and," though all the marks differ, and differ from the present mark), the Masonic Poem has no such mark, or any mark for the word and.

These three MSS. were written by different penmen, and may be at different times more or less remote; and they may have been written at the same time, in different parts of the country, where the fashion of penmanship varied. Hence, in order to ascertain the age of our poem, it is necessary to possess dated MSS. from all parts of England, of all the decades covering a period of about three centuries; and even then, all that an unprejudiced expert could decide would be that our poem was written within a stipulated period of about eighty or a hundred years.

I have, however, pointed out, in the Masonic Magazine, Vol. III., pp 131-2, &c., internal evidence in the poem, that it could not have been written before 1406, for the following reason, viz.:—Up to 1388, the law was that labourers could not charge higher wages than they received in the 20th year of Edward the Third's reign. But during famine years, when food doubled or trebled in price, the labourer could not live on his wages, which gave rise to discontent and riots. Hence, in 1388, it was ordained that thenceforth Magistrates in Counties, and City Governments in Cities, should meet twice a year, in order to ordain the amount of wages that was to be paid, to servants and to various classes of employés for the next six months, in accordance with the price of food in their respective localities. The said law did not, however, answer the purpose. The working people would not obey the Magistrates; hence, in the seventh year of Henry IV., it was ordained that the working people should be present at the semi annual meetings of the Magistrates, and there take an oath to abide by the decision of the said Magistrates or City Governments, and the following part of the poem refers to the last named law. It says:—

"The twelfth point is of great roalty.
There as the assembly holden shall be,
There shall be masters and fellows also,
And other great lords many more.
And there shall be the sheriff of that county,
Knights and squires there shall be,
And other Aldermen, as ye shall see.
Such ordinances as they make there,
They shall maintain it whole together
Against that man, whoe'er he be,
That belong to the Craft both fair and free.
If any strife against them make,
Into their ward [prison] he shall be taken.

FOURTEENTH POINT.

The fourteenth point is ful of good law
To him that would be under awa.
A good and true oath he must there swear
To his master and his fellows that be there,
He must be steadfast and true also,
To all this ordinance wheresoever he go.

. . . . . .

And to all these points here before,
To them though must needs be sworn.
And all shall swear the same oath,
Of the Masons, be they willing or be they loth
To all these points here before
That hath been ordained by full good lore.
And they shall inquire, every man,
Of his party as well as he can,
If any man may be found guilty
In any of these points especially.
And what he be, let him be sought,
And to the assembly let him be brought.

FIFTEENTH POINT.

The fifteenth point is full of good lore
For them that shall be sworn.
Such ordinance as the assembly was laid [provided]
Of great Lords and masters before said.
For thylke [every one] that be disobedient for certain Against the ordinance that there is.

N.B.—The poem, as here given, I copied from a translated edition into modern English.

Which winds up with the punishment of the disobedient, viz.: by being deprived of his cattle, and by imprisonment during the King's pleasure.

Now the above "Points," or laws, were suggested by an Act of Parliament passed in 1406. The Masons' code from which the poet copied the above laws could not have been written before 1406 at least. And as the poet claimed that the laws of the Masons' code were enacted by Athelstan, the Mason's code could not have fallen into the poet's hands until many years after it was written. We know, therefore, that the poem was not written before 1406, because the code itself was not written before then; but whether the poem was written twenty-five years after 1406, or seventy-five years after the above year, it is difficult to prove. One fact is certain, viz.: that the poem was written by a true blue Roman Catholic, for Roman Catholics. But I cannot say as much about the Matthew Cooke MS.; for every Catholic prayer of a guild that I have seen makes mention of the Virgin, of Christ, and of a Patron Saint or Saints; the invocation in the Masonic poem begins with, "Pray we now to God Almighty, and to His mother Mary bright." Then follows the story of the four holy martyrs, and "Christ's law," &c. The Strasburg and the Turgo Constitutions also refer to the Virgin, to the four Saints, and to the Trinity. I have seen a similar document, belonging to the Grocers' Guild, wherein the Trinity, the Virgin, and St. Anthony (I believe) were appealed to. Mr. Herbert, in his History of the Twelve London Livery Companies, says :—

"None of the trades assembled to form fraternities without ranging themselves under the banner of some Saint; and, if possible, they chose a Saint who either bore relation to their trade, or to some other analogous circumstances." Thus the Fishmongers chose St. Peter for their Patron, the Carpenters had Saint Joseph for their Patron, &c. Now, the London Drapers could not find a Saint that was engaged in the drapery business, but as some of the goods they sold were made out of lambs' wool, and as Christ is called "The Holy Lamb," and as a lamb is covered with wool, so they chose the Virgin for their Patron Saint, because she was the mother of the "Holy Lamb."

The London Tailors were as puzzled in choosing a suitable Saint as the Drapers were. Strange to say, that among the old Saints of Jewish origin not one of them was a tailor, or even a dealer in "old clo." The woollen cloth used by Tailors doubtless suggested the "Holy Lamb," but as the Drapers had already appropriated the mother of the Lamb, they therefore chose the Baptist for their Patron Saint, because, says Herbert, "he was the Harbinger of the Holy Lamb."

And here I cannot help noticing the extraordinary imagination of the old pious brethren in the woollen trades, viz., because the Virgin and the Baptist were imaginarily connected with imaginary wool of an imaginary lamb, therefore the pious dealers in woollen goods imagined that the said Saints were bound to take an interest in the woollen trade, and would use their influence with the powers above to promote the prosperity of the said trade. But, any how, I have given sufficient illustrations to prove that the documents and doings of the old guilds were crammed with allusions to the Catholic religion.

Now the Cooke MS. is utterly minus of all allusion to the Catholic religion. It seems to have been written by a Protestant for Protestants. True, the language seems to have been used before the Reformation. We must not, however, forget that Masonic writers were always prone to make things appear older than they were. Nor was that craze confined to Masons. Mr. Herbert says:—"The societies chartered are mostly stated to be of great antiquity, or to have existed from time whereof there is no memory." But as to Masonic writers, that craze to make out everything in Masonry older than it is is still rampant among them. Now, with regard to the Cooke MS., I say that it may have been written in the days of Edward VI., but in a place remote from London, where the old fashioned ways, of a hundred years before, of speaking and writing were still retained; or it may have been written in London after the Reformation, but the scribe thereof thought it prudent to use the old style in order to mislead the reader, that the cock and bull stories which he added to the history of Masonry might seem to have come down from olden time. And such was the case with the scribes of all succeeding Masonic MSS. Take, for instance, the MS. dated 1585, and compare it with contemporary writings, such as Plott's or Ashmole's, and we must admit that it was purposely designed to make it appear a hundred years older than its date, and even the latest MSS. are crammed with archaisms that have been out of use for centuries, and I cannot, therefore, see why the writer of the Cooke MS. may not have resorted to the same dodge.

Two things, however, are certain; 1st, that the Poem was written by a Roman Catholic; and 2nd, that the sixty or more dated and undated MSS., known as the "Old Charges," were the offspring of the Cooke MS. To be sure, some of them are varied by additions or omissions, but, nevertheless, the Cooke MS. is the parent, direct or indirect, of all of them.

FREEMASONRY IS RELIGIOUS.

THERE seems, of late years, to have been a very needless expenditure of ingenuity and talent, by a large number of Masonic orators and essayists, in the endeavour to prove that Masonry is not religion. This has, undoubtedly, arisen from a well-intended but erroneous view that has been taken of the connection between religion and Masonry, and from a fear that if a complete disseverance of the two institutions was not made manifest, the opponents of Masonry would be enabled successfully to establish a theory which they have been fond of advancing, that the Masons were disposed to substitute the teachings of their Craft for the truths of Christianity. Now, we have never for a moment believed that any such unwarrantable presumption, as that Masonry is intended to be a substitute for Christianity, could ever obtain admission into any well-regulated mind, and we, therefore, are not disposed to yield on the subject of the religious character of Masonry, quite so much as has been yielded by our more timid Brethren. On the contrary, we contend, without any sort of hesitation, that Masonry is, in every sense of the word, except one, and that its least philosophical, an eminently religious institution—that it is indebted solely to the religious element which it contains for its origin, and for its continued existence, and that without this religious element it would scarcely be worthy of cultivation by the wise or the good. But that we may understand ourselves, and be truly understood, it will be well that we should first agree upon the true definition of religion. There is nothing more illogical than to reason upon undefined terms.

One of the most eminent orthoepists of our age has given four distinct definitions of religion.

1. Religion, in a comprehensive sense, includes, he says, a belief in the being and perfections of God; in the revelation of His will to man; in man's obligation to obey His commands; in a state of reward and punishment, and in man's accountableness to God; and also true godliness or piety of life with the practice of all moral duties.

2. His second definition is, that religion, as distinct from theology, is godliness or real piety in practice, consisting in the performance of all known duties to God and our fellow men, in obedience to Divine command, or from love to God and His law.

3. Again, he says that religion, as distinct from virtue or morality, consists in the performance of the duties we owe directly to God, from a principle of obedience to His will.

4. And lastly, he defines religion to be any system of faith or worship; and in this sense he says religion comprehends the belief and worship of pagans and Mohammedans as well as of Christians; any religion consisting in the belief of a superior power or powers governing the world and in the worship of such power or powers. And it is in this sense that we speak of the Turkish religion, or the Jewish religion, as well as of the Christian.

Now, it appears very plain to us, that in either of the first three senses in which we may take the word religion (and they do not very materially differ from each other), Masonry may rightfully claim to be called a religious institution. Closely and accurately examined, it will be found to answer to any one of the requirements of either of these three definitions. So much does it "include a belief in the being and perfections of God," that the public profession of such a faith is essentially necessary to gain admission into the Craft. No disbeliever in the existence of God can be made a Mason. The "revelation of His will to man" is technically called the "spiritual, moral and Masonic trestleboard" of every Mason, according to the rules and designs of which he is to erect the spiritual edifice of his eternal life. A "state of reward and punishment" is necessarily included in the very idea of an obligation, which, without the belief in such a state, could be of no binding force or efficacy. And "true godliness or piety of life" is inculcated as the invariable duty of every Mason, from the inception of the first to the end of the very last degree that he takes. So, again, in reference to the second and third definitions, all this practical piety and performance of the duties we owe to God and our fellow-men arise from and are founded on a principle of obedience to the Divine will. Whence else, or from what other will, could they have arisen? It is the voice of the Grand Architect of the Universe, symbolised to us in every ceremony of our ritual and from every portion of the furniture of our Lodge, that speaks to the true Mason, commanding him to fear God and to love the Brethren. It is idle to say that the Mason does good simply in obedience to the statutes of the Craft. These very statutes owe their sanction to the Masonic idea of the nature and perfection of God, which idea has come down to us from the earliest history of the Institution and the promulgation of which idea was the very object and design of its origin.

But it must be confessed that the fourth definition does not appear to be strictly applicable to Masonry. It has no pretension to assume a place among the religions of the world, as a sectarian "system of faith and worship," in the sense in which we distinguish Christianity from Judaism, or Judaism from Mohammedism. In this meaning of the word we do not and cannot speak of the Masonic religion, nor say of a man that he is not a Christian, but a Mason. Here it is that the opponents of Freemasonry have assumed mistaken ground, in confounding the idea of a religious institution with that of the Christian religion as a peculiar form of worship, and in supposing, because Masonry teaches religious truth, that it is offered as a substitute for Christian truth and Christian obligation. Its warmest and most enlightened friends have never advanced or supported such a claim. Freemasonry is not Christianity, nor a substitute for it. It is not intended to supersede it, nor any other form of worship or system of faith. It does not meddle with sectarian creeds or doctrines, but teaches fundamental religious truth—not enough to do away with the necessity of the Christian scheme of salvation—but more than enough to show, to demonstrate, that it is in every philosophical sense of the word, a religious institution, and one, too, in which the true Christian Mason will find, if he earnestly seek for them, abundant types and shadows of his own exalted and divinely inspired faith.

The tendency of all pure Masonry is toward religion. If it make any progress, it is to that holy end. Look at its ancient Landmarks—its sublime ceremonies—its profound symbols and allegories—all inculcating religious doctrine, commanding religious observance, and religious truth; and who can deny that it is an eminently religious institution?

But, besides, Masonry is in all its forms thoroughly tinctured with a true devotional spirit. We open and close our Lodges with prayer; we invoke the blessing of the Most High upon all our labours; we demand of our neophytes a profession of trusting belief in the existence and the superintending care of God; and we teach them to bow with humility and reverence at His awful name, while His holy law is widely opened upon our altars. Freemasonry is thus identified with religion, and although a man may be eminently religious without being a Mason, it is impossible that a Mason can be "true and trusty" unless he is a respector of religion, and an observer of religious principle.

But then the religion of Masonry is not sectarian. It admits men of every creed within its hospitable bosom, rejecting none and approving none for his peculiar faith. It is not Judaism, though there is nothing in it to offend a Jew; it is not Christianity, but there is nothing in it repugnant to the faith of a Christian. Its religion is that general one of nature and primitive revelation—handed down to us from some ancient and patriarchal priesthood, in which all men may agree, and in which no men can differ. It inculcates the practice of virtue, but it supplies no scheme of redemption for sin. It points its disciples to the path of righteousness, but it does not claim to be "the way, the truth and the life." In so far, therefore, it cannot become a substitute for Christianity, but its tendency is thitherward; and as a handmaid of religion it may, and often does, act as the porch that introduces its votaries into the temple of Divine truth.

Masonry, then, is a religious institution, and on this ground mainly, if not alone, should the religious Mason defend it.—Keystone.

PILGRIMS' DAY.

THE following spirited address was delivered by Grand Master Endicott, at the celebration, at Plymouth, Boston, U.S.A., in memory of the Pilgrim Fathers, held on Thursday, the 1st August:—

We have met here on an occasion that enlists our deepest interest. For about 15 years the people of the United States have been celebrating at intervals the centennial days of American independence. In April 1875, was commemorated at Concord the firing of the shot "heard round the world," and last April the list seemed completed by the universal remembrance of the 100th anniversary of Washington's inauguration as President of the United States. Let such days as these stand as a pledge that we are not forgetful of the efforts our fathers made to establish homes, nor are we indifferent to the privileges they won for us. To-day our thoughts go back for two centuries and a half, and dwell on the time when a little band of men and women landed on this shore, and knew not that they were bringing with them the destinies of a great nation. In all history where can one look for such another picture as this, of the little vessel ploughing its way across unknown seas, freighted with the hopes and fears of men to whom principle was dearer than life itself, and landing them at last on a bleak coast in cold and storm. They came impelled by the same spirit that ever through the history of the world has made for righteousness and freedom. Touched with the strength of a common purpose, they braved danger and scorned hardship. The endurance in those brave hearts has stirred endurance in many who came after them, for never was privation nobly borne or difficulty surmounted that it did not leave added strength for future trial.

Thirty years ago was laid with appropriate ceremonial the corner-stone of this monument. It might have been an unwelcome word to the enthusiasm of that day, if one had said that the call for its dedication would not go forth for 30 years; but most fitting it is that this monument to the memory of men who lived and died for freedom should now be dedicated in a free country; men who have themselves known the struggle that gave the gift of freedom which was their own birthright to a captive race may indeed bless the completion of a monument like this. Thirty years ago men were alarmed, distracted with shadows of approaching conflict. Two or three years later Massachusetts was making history, not commemorating it, but to-day we may well gather to repeat the story of its founders. It is not necessary that I should dwell here on the interest of Freemasonry in all that concerns the life of the community or the welfare of humanity. The principles that emulated the Pilgrims are, indeed, the guiding stars of our Order, and it was with joyful readiness that we accepted the honour of sharing in this service that crowns the completed work. It has been sometimes fancied that Masonry was perhaps too ready to remember the past alone and to defend its right of existence on the grounds of its antiquity. We have far deeper reasons than that for our participation in this ceremony to-day. If Masonry were content to rest on its past alone, its days would indeed be quickly numbered. It fails not in interest for the active, earnest life of to-day. It turns with grateful affection indeed to the noble men and noble deeds of generations past, but would win from the new inspiration to act bravely in the life of to-day and to press on hopefully to all that lies before. Thus it is our hope that this monument may serve a double purpose. First, let it keep alive in the hearts of later generations the memory of all that our present prosperity has cost, that our ease has been bought with the struggles and privations of many, and that faith and undaunted heroism have entered into the very foundations of our institutions. Let it stand to teach that reverence for the past which is a part of every true nature. Only by building on the past can we lift ourselves to higher levels. Let this monument stand also as a promise for the future; let it teach young men that to rightfully reverence the past, they must live for the future, as did those men whose memory we honour to-day. Prosperity has its perils no less than adversity. It is sometimes easier to be brave in the face of hardship than to be true in the midst of luxury. How many a man has kept himself honest and hard-working in comparative poverty, who has proved himself unequal to the temptations of sudden wealth. Let this monument say to him who would honour the Pilgrim that he can rightfully do so only by practising the Pilgrim's virtues. If such a retrospect as this day affords us signifies any deep truth, it means that the ideal is more than the actual. The ideal of right that was in the hearts of the Pilgrims was stronger than the actual privations that surrounded them. The power of an idea drew them from comfort, taught them to endure with fortitude and to work with will. This thought of right, this ideal in their hearts, sustained them as comrade buried comrade in the little burying ground yonder, and it continued with them as they turned back to their hard toil, and their frequent encounters with the Indian. What convincing testimony to the value of an idea does such a movement as this present! May it stand through the years to recall the early days of our country to the minds of all who behold it, and to bear witness to that surpassing power in the human heart which reckons pain and suffering of little account, when it is pressing forward to the accomplishment of Divine ends.

DUBLIN MASONIC ORPHAN SCHOOLS.

THE secretary of Lodge 683, Anahilt True Blues, Hillsborough, has received £16 16s 3d from Bro. W. Tennent Henry, C.E., J.P., late secretary of Hillsborough Presbyterian Church, being the amount of collection in that church on the occasion of a Masonic festival, and subscriptions before and since received towards founding two official governorships for this Lodge in connection with the Masonic Orphan Schools in Dublin. The Lodge also begs to return their very best thanks to Bro. the Rev. Chas. Donaldson and V.W. Bro. Tennent Henry, for their valuable services on that occasion.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

THE adjourned meeting of the General Committee of this Institution was held on Saturday last, at Freemasons' Hall, under the presidency of Bro. the Earl of Euston P.G.M. Norths and Hunts, Chairman of the Provisional Management Committee. Among others present were Bros. C. F. Hogard, J. L. Mather, Major A. B. Cook, F. Mead, C. H. Webb, G. P. Gillard, Rev. R. Morris, M.A., LL.D., A. Durrant, G. Gregory, W. M. Stiles, W. W. Morgan, A. E. Gladwell, B. Kaufmann, John Barnett jun., W. Smith, Stanley Attenborough, G. Bolton, H. Dickey, S. Leith Tomkins, Richard Eve, H. Algar, John Pollard, W. A. Scurrah, George Plucknett, W. Masters, E. G. Harewood, Robert W. Bourne, W. F. Smithson, C. Greenwood, W. H. Saunders, J. C. Hopwood, J. Moon, G. Cooper, Jas. Stevens, Joseph Tanner, George Mickley, M.A., M.B., S. Richardson, E. E. Brown Kidder, A. M. Cohen, G. Corble, F. W. Ramsay, M.D., J. S. Cumberland, W. H. Perryman, John Jones, H. Massey, Joseph D. Langton, and Fredk. Binckes (Secretary). The Earl of Euston read the further report of the Provisional Management Committee, as follows: —

"The Provisional Committee report that they have conferred with Bro. Binckes on the terms of his retirement, and have arranged that he shall retire from the office of Secretary at the end of the present year (1889) upon a retiring allowance of £350 per annum for life. They recommend that this arrangement be carried out, and the necessary notices given under the laws of the Institution for this purpose, and that this Committee be empowered to take the necessary steps to carry into effect the arrangement with Bro. Binckes. The Provisional Committee further recommend that the salary of any future Secretary shall not commence with a sum exceeding £300 per annum."

That, Lord Euston said, was all his Committee had to report that day for the Committee to come to a resolution upon. Bro. J. S. Cumberland inquired if the Committee had considered the subject of the Secretary's salary, in connection with the granting him a pension after service. Lord Euston thought that subject was not for consideration on the present occasion. Bro. Cumberland was glad of this. Still, he thought it should be an instruction to the Committee to consider whether a Secretary should be entitled, after having served the Institution for years, to a pension. Bro. W. A. Scurrah suggested before proceeding the meeting ought to have the minutes read. He understood that the meeting of the 3rd inst. was to be only a formal meeting, consequently a great many brethren stayed away. Bro. John Jones said that Bro. Plucknett was in the chair on the 3rd inst.; it was a regular meeting. The minutes were read and confirmed, and there was a general understanding that there was nothing to be done but the passing of the minutes, and he did not think it was right to read the minutes again. Bro. Cumberland said if the minutes were again read would it not be opening up a precedent? It was recognised that the meeting of the 3rd inst. would have to be adjourned, and that only the minutes would be read. He was sure that if Lord Euston thought the minutes ought to be read he would have suggested it. Some discussion now arose as to the qualification which was necessary for brethren to attend the meetings of the General Committee, and several of those present were declared ineligible to attend, and as a consequence had to leave the room. Bro. Cumberland then formally moved the adoption of the report from the Provisional Committee. It gave him great pleasure to make this motion, for more than one reason. First of all, Bro. Binckes had performed very valuable services to the Institution. He did not care much for remarks made outside; he looked more to the services rendered; and he hoped the time was far distant when the brethren would forget what any brother had done to help the poor children and the Schools. Bro. Binckes had been the pioneer of the Masonic Institutions. Surely after the report they had received from the Investigation Committee, all the sins of omission and commission were not to be charged upon the shoulders of Bro. Binckes. If the House Committee had allowed him a little more latitude than he ought to have had, it was not so much his fault as theirs. He went further: if Bro. Binckes had done a little bit wrong, was there any brother in the room who, during his life, had not done wrong? He ought not to be persecuted because, by some mischance or other, he had done something or had said something which had not met with the approval of all the brethren. Bro. Binckes had worked very hard for the Institution. He had brought it to a state of great prosperity, and after so many years' service they ought not to let him go without some recognition of his services. He had very great pleasure in proposing that the recommendation of the Provisional Management Committee be accepted, and he sincerely trusted his proposal would be well received. Bro. Alderman Harwood (Bolton), Chairman East Lancashire Charity Committee, seconded the motion. Bro. W. A. Scurrah considered the second part of the Report unnecessary. He should move that that portion be expunged. He perfectly agreed with the recommendation that the salary of the future Secretary should not be more than £300 a year, but he maintained that the power of electing the Secretary was not in the Provisional Committee. They might do what they liked in the way of recommending, but the election of Secretary was in the hands of a General Committee. All that the Provisional Management Committee had to do in this respect was to report to the General Committee. Bro. Richard Eve P.G. Treasurer said that part of the Report was drafted by himself, and it, in his opinion, met all the difficulties. It was necessary that some one should take steps and put everything in trim. When it was requisite to call the brethren together who were entitled to vote at the election of Secretary it was necessary that advertisements and notices should be issued. All those would be submitted to a body that had the power to elect, and that body was the brethren now present. But it was necessary that the Provisional Committee should take preliminary steps to see that all brethren in England should have an opportunity to come in and offer their services, and the Provisional Committee wanted the fullest opportunity to let them know; therefore, they asked to be the agents of the general body and nothing more. For himself, he should be happy to be divested of the power to elect from some sixty, a hundred, or perhaps, three or four hundred, candidates. He only hoped they would elect the proper man. Bro. Scurrah urged that the Provisional Committee was given the full powers exercised by the defunct House Committee. Consequently they required no further authority from the present meeting. Bro. Cumberland agreed with Bro. W. A. Scurrah that it was necessary for the Provisional Committee to ask for powers of that kind; the Provisional Committee entirely took the place of the House Committee. Bro. Jones proposed an amendment, that the retiring allowance to Bro. Binckes should be reduced to £200. Far be it from him to say anything against Bro. Binckes, but, having considered thoroughly the whole position, he could not say justly, as a public official of many years' standing, that the School was what it should be. The parish school at Shoreditch was better than this School at Wood Green. Bro. James Stevens, in supporting the original proposal, thought it would be a disgrace to Freemasons to allow Brother Binckes to retire without some recognition of his services in the past. But he wished to ask from what source would the proposed pension be derived? The Earl of Euston said he believed the Committees of the Institution had the power. Bro. Dr. Mickley stated that pensions were given in many Institutions and in private concerns, notwithstanding that the servants were paid for their work. Bro. Scurrah, as one connected with one of the largest hospitals in London, could say that some few years ago an executive officer at that Institution was growing old, and the Committee of the time, after obtaining counsel's opinion on the subject, granted that man £300 a year pension for the remainder of his life. They need not go outside the Boys' School for a precedent. They had a pensioner at the present time on the list; there was one in the Girls' School, and one in the Benevolent Institution. Going outside again, the Commercial Travellers' School had pensioned off their Secretary. Bro. Stevens' proposition had nothing to do with the matter. He should be but too pleased to do all he could to support the resolution. Bro. Richard Eve said Bro. Philbrick was quite of opinion that the retiring allowance could be granted, and charged to the Institution. The motion was eventually carried. It was announced that Miss Hercome, of the St. Anne's School, had been elected Matron, and notice given to Mr. Hall, the Medical Officer, terminating his engagement. The petitions for placing two boys on the list for next April were considered and agreed to, and outfits were granted to four former pupils. The names of Albert Escott, Greenwich; H. J. Nash, Richmond; and J. Blyth, St. John's Wood, were added to the Committee. Shortly afterwards the meeting closed, after a vote of thanks to the Chairman had been unanimously passed.

UNIVERSITY OF LONDON AND THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

AT the last examination for the Degree of Doctor of Science at the University of London only one candidate passed in Mixed Mathematics, namely R. Bryant, an old pupil of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and he is the only man in England who has taken the D. Sc. in this branch of the Doctorate. On leaving the Institution, Mr. Bryant was placed by Dr. Morris under a "Wrangler" for two years. At the end of this time, Mr. Bryant gained an exhibition at Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge. But the funds at Dr. Morris's disposal were exhausted, and the youthful aspirant for mathematical honours at Cambridge had to give up the idea of a University career and take to private teaching. Mr. Bryant did not give up the idea of taking a Degree, and in 1881 he matriculated at the London University, and in two or three years afterwards graduated as B.A., B.Sc. In June 1889, he took the Degree of D.Sc., and sent in as his thesis a work on the "Orbit of the Comet Sappho." Dr. Bryant is a fellow of the Astronomical Society, and has read several valuable papers at its customary meetings.

The Committee of Management of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution held its monthly meeting at Freemasons' Hall, on Wednesday, Bro. C. J. Perceval, Vice-President, was in the chair, and was supported by Bros. W. A. Scurrah, A. H. Tattershall, Hugh Cotter, C. H. Webb, S. C. Haslip, Charles Kempton, W. B. Daniell, Charles Daniel, J. J. Berry, W. H. Hulbert, S. Brooks, David D. Mercer, A. Mullord, Dr. Jabez Hogg P.G.D., R. Berridge P.G.D.C., H. Driver P.G.S. of W., C. H. Bevir, J. S. Cumberland, Hugh M. Hobbs, and John Mason (acting Secretary). The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and verified, the death of an accepted widow candidate was reported. A letter was read from Bro. the Earl of Euston, in which his lordship expressed his very cordial acknowledgments for the illuminated address of thanks presented to him in recognition of his services as Chairman at the last Anniversary Festival. The Warden's Report for the past month was read, and a vote of thanks passed to the Supreme Council, Ancient and Accepted Rite, for the renewal of their gifts to the inmates of the Institution at Croydon. Applications from two widows to be allowed the half of their late husband's annuities were acceded to, and two petitions (one male and one widow) were examined and accepted, and the names ordered to be entered on the lists of candidates for the election in May 1890. A vote of thanks to the Chairman brought the proceedings to a close.

To the Governors and Subscribers of the

Royal Masonic Institution for Boys,

WOOD GREEN, LONDON, N.

Dear Madam or Sir,

The post of Surgeon to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys at Wood Green being now vacant, I desire to offer myself as candidate for the same.

I have been residing within one minute's walk from the Institution for the last four years, and am intimately acquainted with the working of it.

I have the honour to append Testimonials of my professional life, and to state that if I am honoured by being appointed to the post, I shall always make it my best endeavour to work in harmony with my brother Officials.

I have the honour to remain,

Yours very obediently,

Lordship Lane, Wood Green, August 1889. R. F. TOMLIN, M.R.C.S.Eng., &c.

Copies of Testimonials received by R. F. Tomlin, Surgeon.

Devonport, 26th May 1873.

This is to certify that Mr. Robert Francis Tomlin became my Articled Pupil in September 1869, and remained with me till October 1870. During this time he was attentive to his duties and his studies, very punctual in his attendance, and always anxious to please. He has been with me occasionally during the last three years, and I find he is prosecuting his studies with Exemplary Diligence, and gives proof of great ability and unremitting application to his work.

JOSEPH MAY, Surgeon.

21 Grosvenor, Bath, 23rd July 1889.

I am pleased to state that Mr. R. F. Tomlin acted as assistant to my late father-in-law, Dr. Leahy, of Bridgend, during the years 1873 and 1874, and gave him every satisfaction. He considered him most skilful and attentive to his patients. The practice was chiefly amongst colliers, railway men, and iron-workers, so that his opportunities for surgical work were very great.

W. S. STABLES, L.S.A. (Lond).

Becket House Wantage, 23rd July 1889.

Having known Mr. R. F. Tomlin most intimately for the last Fourteen Years, I can bear every testimony to his Character and Abilities, both professionally and socially.

After having been with me for four years as Assistant, he joined me in partnership, and it was with deep regret that, owing to circumstances relating solely to myself, our connection had to be broken, and I need hardly say that he took away with him the hearty good wishes of a large number of patients, by whom he had been much valued for his kind and skilful services. He is thoroughly qualified for the post of Surgeon to the Masonic Schools, for which I understand he is a candidate, alike by his kindness and industry, as by his professional knowledge and experience, and I feel quite sure in him the Governors will find a most painstaking and efficient Officer.

J. A. BALL, M.B. (Lond.)
Physician to St. Mary's Home, Wantage;
Consulting Surgeon to the Stockport Infirmary.

MAYO'S CASTLE HOTEL

LODGE HISTORIES.

—:o:—

THE LODGE OF PROBITY, No. 61.

CHAPTER III. of Bro. Crossley's History—which we shall now consider—treats of the formation and early career of the Probity Lodge. As we have mentioned, in our first notice of the book, the Lodge was constituted on the 12th July 1738, at the Bull's Head, Halifax, the warrant empowering the Lodge to meet on the last Monday in each month. From the engraved lists of the period—of which fac similes are given in the book—the Lodge was originally numbered 176, from this it gradually worked up, until, at the re-numbering of 1792, it became No. 61. At the Union of the two Grand Lodges, in 1813, this number was again altered—to 84, since which time it has been twice changed, in 1832 to 73, and in 1863 to No. 61. It may here be noted, and, as Bro. Crossley puts it, it is somewhat curious, that the Lodge of Probity should succeed in 1863 to the same number—61—it enjoyed from the re-numbering in 1792 until the Union in 1813. While on this subject of numbers there is another curious instance pointed out in the History. Bro. Crossley refers to the establishment of a second Lodge in Halifax, in August 1769, under the title of the Bacchus, and this Lodge was numbered 448; it was erased in 1783. At the present time there is a second Lodge in Halifax, and this bears the number 448, the same as was borne by its predecessor upwards of a hundred years ago. Of course these two agreements between the numbering of last century and of the present day are nothing but coincidences, but they are just of that character on which much might be written, and many strange fancies formulated; they are a living evidence that "truth is stranger than fiction."

Unfortunately, but little is known of the early doings of the Lodge, the minutes, if written, are not known to be in existence, and, as usual, the records of Grand Lodge afford no assistance in the matter, not even lists of members of private Lodges being kept between 1730 and 1770. The Warrant under which the Lodge now works is not the original, but was presented to the Lodge on 24th July 1765, when Bro. Spencer G.S. was thanked by letter "for his magnificent present to this Lodge of a renewed Warrant." This Warrant is granted on the petition of John Senior and several other brethren, and empowers the said John Senior to convene the "brethren residing at Halifax aforesaid, who have signed the said petition, and in due form constitute them into a regular Lodge." This Bro. Senior then is regarded as the Father of the Lodge, but it has been quite impossible to discover who were associated with him, or who petitioned with him for its establishment.

The first written records of the Lodge are to be found in the Minute Book commencing in 1762, and also the Treasurer's book bearing the same date, but the continuity of the Lodge's existence from its establishment until that date is made apparent by its regular insertion in the engraved and other lists of Lodges which were issued in the interim. Possibly, says the historian, the records had not been written before 1762. At any rate, in that year the Lodge seemed in a prosperous condition, which in part may be accounted for from the fact that "in 1761 the Grand Lodge of York was revived, and several Lodges warranted by it."

The first recorded meeting, 10th November 1762, was held at the Rose and Crown, to which the Lodge had removed, apparently from the Black Bull, to which it is accredited in the engraved lists of 1740 and 1756. R.W. Bro. William Newby was in the chair on this occasion. The minute records the opening "an Apprentic's Lodge in ample Form," after which the Lodge duly and regularly went "thro' the Apprentice Work." Bro. John Hindson was proposed as a candidate for Masonry, and the Lodge was closed to the following Tuesday—16th November 1762. The next minute refers to this date, which is described as an "Extraordinary Lodge night," and records the initiation of the candidate proposed at the preceding meeting. From the Treasurer's book it appears that the "xpenses in making Bro. John Hindson—all the members agreed to make him gratis, he being for the Tyler"—amounted to 16s 6d. Bro. Crossley refers to the fact that at these early recorded meetings the visitors were fairly numerous, and this leads him to suppose that although the Lodge was the only one known in the district at the date, there must have been Lodges of some kind in the immediate neighbourhood. In this connection Brother Crossley refers to Bro. Sadler's "Facts and Fictions," in which it is recorded that in various parts of the country there were Lodges in existence that were unattached to any Grand Lodge.

If we have devoted a large share of attention to these early doings of the Probity Lodge it is because we have been so interested in what we have thus far read of Bro. Crossley's work, and for the same reason we have extracted largely from it, both in the hope of interesting our readers, and also with the object of circulating the views and the opinions he has formed in connection with the earlier doings of the Craft in Halifax. We hope others may equally enjoy the result of Bro. Crossley's labours.

REVIEWS.

All Books intended for Review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, Belvidere Works, Hermes Hill, Pentonville, London, N.

—:o:—

"Constituciones Artis Gemetriæ Secundum Euclydem." A facsimile of the early poem on Freemasonry from the original MS. presented by King George II. to the English Nation in 1757, now in the British Museum, [Bibl. Reg. 17, A. 1.] London: Spencer and Co., Great Queen Street.

Masonic students will readily accord their thanks to Bro. Whymper, C.I.E., Past Deputy District Grand Master Punjab, for the admirable manner in which he has reproduced, in facsimile, this well known Poem, which is supposed to be the oldest document of the Craft available at the present day. The work is perhaps better known as the Halliwell MS., mainly from the fact that the late Mr. J. O. Halliwell-Phillips was the first who drew attention to the essentially Masonic character of its contents. The original is written on vellum, and will be found classified as No. 17, A. 1., in the Bibl. Reg. British Museum. Brother Whymper, in his Introductory Remarks, tells us that "the MS. formerly belonged to Charles Theyer, a collector in the seventeenth century," and is described in Bernard's "Catalogus Manuscriptorum Angliæ" (Oxford 1697). Its existence was well-known, but it does not seem to have been generally understood until 1838-9, when Mr. Halliwell drew attention to it in a paper "On the Introduction of Freemasonry into England." Later on this gentleman published two small editions of his work "The Early History of Freemasonry in England," and therein gave a transcript of the poem. "The fac simile itself has been entrusted to Mr. F. Compton Price, a skilled lithographic artist, who was pupil to Mr. Halliwell's copyist, Mr. Joseph Netherclift. During the tracing, Mr. Price has referred, word by word, to the Halliwell transcript, and it is therefore trusted the present production is absolutely accurate."

We may add that the work now offered is the exact size of the original. It has the Royal Arms stamped on both covers, and G. R. II., with the date, 1757. The lettering on the back has been reproduced. The Masonic Student will find much to interest him in a study of its contents.

The result of the recent examination of girls of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, in science and art, at the Science and Art Department, South Kensington, was that out of 30 girls submitted for examination, nine passed in the first class, and 20 in the second.

PROV. GRAND CHAPTER OF KENT.

THE annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Chapter of Kent was held at the Clarendon Hotel, Gravesend, on Tuesday afternoon, the 30th ult. In consequence of the unavoidable absence of Earl Amherst, Grand Superintendent (who was engaged in attending an important meeting of the Bath and West of England Society), Comp. J. S. Eastes P.G.H. presided, and opened the Provincial Grand Chapter. The report of the Audit Committee was approved and adopted, and on the recommendation of that body the sum of £105, from the funds, was voted in grants to the Male and Female Funds of the Royal Benevolent Institution, and the Boys' and Girls' Schools. The following Companions were appointed Provincial Grand Officers for the ensuing year, and each duly invested with the collar and jewel of his office, viz:—

Comp. Jas. Smith Eastes P.Z. 503, 709		H.

Comp. William Russell was unanimously elected Prov. Grand Treasurer, in the place of Comp. B. K. Thorpe, who has resigned that appointment consequent on his removal from the Province. A cordial vote of thanks was given to Comp. Thorpe for the able way in which he had discharged the Treasurership of Prov. Grand Chapter from its foundation, and a Committee was appointed to make the arrangements for presenting him with a suitable testimonial. After the transaction of other business Provincial Grand Chapter was closed, the Companions afterwards partaking their annual banquet, under the presidency of Earl Amherst, when the customary Masonic and other toasts were given and duly honoured.

PROV. GRAND CHAPER OF DEVON.

THE annual Convocation of the Provincial Grand Chapter of Devon was held on the 31st ult., at the Freemasons' Hall, Plymouth. Comp. Major G. C. Davie Prov. G.S.E. officiated as Prov. G. Supt. pro tem, and he was supported by a large number of P.G. Officers and visiting brethren. Comp. Davie apologised for the absence of Viscount Ebrington, M.P., the P.G. Superintendent. His Lordship, he said, had made every arrangement to attend that Convocation, and had arrived in the West for that purpose, when he was unexpectedly recalled to London to attend to his Parliamentary duties. Comp. W. G. Rogers P.G.H. was also unavoidably absent, through a meeting of the Exeter City Council being held that day, which he had to attend as City Treasurer. The acting P.G.S.E. reported that twenty-seven Chapters had forwarded their returns and dues. The P.G. Treasurer reported that the receipts for the year had been £97 15s, and that the present balance in hand available for the votes of the Chapter was £42. Comp. Kersteman proposed, and Comp. Du Pre seconded, that 20 guineas be voted to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Widows, the sum to be placed on the Steward's list of Comp. the Rev. T. W. Lemon. Comp. Lord proposed that £7 10s each be voted to the Fortescue Annuity Fund and the Devon Masonic Educational Fund. Comp. Cornish seconded, and both propositions were unanimously adopted. On the proposition of Comp. J. Kinton Bond, seconded by Comp. Du Pre, and supported by several other members, Comp. J. W. Cornish was elected the Treasurer. Comps. J. R. Lord and J. Kinton Bond were elected the Auditors. The acting P.G. Superintendent then invested the Officers for the year:—

SUPREME GRAND CHAPTER OF SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

THE Supreme Grand Chapter of South Australia held its first congregation in connection with the Royal Arch Chapter under the S.A. Constitution on Wednesday evening, 26th June, in the Masonic Hall, Flinders-street, Adelaide. The Chapter was opened in ample form by the Principals, and the Supreme Grand Chapter was received with the accustomed Masonic honours. The Supreme Z. (Chief Justice Way) and the Grand Principal (H. E. Downer, M.P.) entered the Chapter and at once declared the Grand Chapter open. The following Officers were appointed for the ensuing year:—

Comp. S. J. Way ...	...	1st Principal
H. E. Downer, M.P.	...	2nd Principal
S. Solomon, M.P. ...	...	3rd Principal
P. Sansom ...	...	S.N.

E. Cooke ...	...	2nd A.S.
F. C. Bowen ...	...	Registrar
M. V. Adams ...	...	Sword Bearer
Cornish ...	...	Standard Bearer
N. Kildael ...	...	Janitor

The Officers were duly presented, and installed by the Chief Justice, and before the Chapter closed the Grand Z. was saluted with the usual Masonic Rites. Afterwards a banquet was held in the banqueting hall, to which the Grand Z. remained, and made an interesting speech, mentioning, inter alia, that he had received from the Grand Chapter of England the full recognition for which they had so long and anxiously waited. This announcement was received with much enthusiasm. His Honour also expressed his gratification at having been permitted to open the new Grand Chapter of Victoria.

PATRIOTIC CHAPTER, No. 51.

AT the Quarterly Convocation of this Chapter, held at Colchester, on Thursday, the 8th inst., the following Officers were elected for the ensuing year:—Comps. T. G. Mills Z., J. T. Bailey H., A. S. B. Sparling J., T. J. Ralling P.Z. P.G. Sword Bearer England P.G.S.E. Essex S.E., C. Osmond P.P.G.O. S.N., Thomas Rix P.Z. P.P.G. Sword Bearer Treasurer, R. D. Poppleton P.S., the Rev. W. M. Jones 1st A.S., A. Barritt 2nd A.S., S. Munson and A. Wright Janitors.

BRUNSWICK CHAPTER, No. 159.

THE annual election was held on the 31st ult. The Principals elected were:—Comps. W. H. Williams Z., N. Radmore H., C. Marshall J. The Officers also elected were Comps. F. J. Price S.E., J. E. Davis S.N., T. Stoner P.S., C. Sellick 1st A.S., J. T. Rook 2nd A.S. Comps. C. A. Nicholson and J. Bartlett were re-elected Treasurer and Janitor.

ELLIOTT CHAPTER, No. 1205.

THE annual meeting was held on the 5th inst., at the Masonic Rooms, Caroline-place, Stonehouse, to instal Comp F. Couch as H. and Comp. W. Powell as J. Comp. W. H. Lister Z. elect was unavoidably absent. The installing principals were Comps. J. E. Lord P.Z. 70 and James Gidley P.Z. 1205. The Officers were invested, as follow:—Comps. J. G. Wilson I.P.Z., A. W. King S.N., D. Cross Treasurer, G. Gurney P. Soj., J. J. Facey 1st A. Soj., A. Revills 2nd A. Soj., and J. Gidley Janitor. Comps. E. A. Maddock and Jno. Maunder were appointed as Stewards. Prior to the ceremony of installation two candidates were exalted to the supreme degree.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Indigestion and Liver Complaints.—The digestion cannot be long or seriously disordered without the derangement being perceptible on the countenance. These Pills prevent both unpleasant consequences; they improve the appetite, and with the increase of desire for food, they augment the powers of digestion and assimilation in the stomach. Holloway's Pills deal most satisfactorily with deranged or diseased conditions of the many organs engaged in extracting nourishment for our bodies from our various diets—as the liver, stomach and bowels, over all of which they exercise the most salutary control. By resorting at an early stage of this malady to these purifying and laxative Pills, the dyspeptic is speedily restored to health and strength, and his sallowness gradually vanishes.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

MARINERS' LODGE, No. 249.

THE annual picnic in connection with this Lodge was recently held at Broxton, in Cheshire. The members and their friends met at the Liverpool landing-stage at a quarter-past ten a.m., crossed over to Birkenhead, took the train to Chester, and from thence were conveyed in waggonettes, via Eaton Park and Farndon, to the Egerton Arms Hotel, Broxton, where a splendid dinner was waiting to be served to them. After doing justice to the good things supplied, the party was photographed on the lawn at the back of the hotel by Brother Ashley. A first-class programme of sports and dancing was then provided, the different events being eagerly contested, and very much enjoyed, the music being provided by Brother Busfield and his band. After having an excellent tea, some very valuable prizes were presented to the successful competitors by Mrs. Hewson, the wife of the Worshipful Master, and at seven o'clock the return journey was made to Chester, the whole party arriving in Liverpool at about half-past nine, after spending a most enjoyable day. Among the members present were Bros. W. Hewson W.M., Spurr I.P.M., J. Whalley P.M., R. G. Bradley P.M., J. Humphries P.M., D. C. Davidson S.W., John Hayes Treasurer, R. Shacklady Secretary, H. F. Neale S.D., T. Bush, J.D., E. Routledge S.S., T. J. Roberts J.S., F. Saunders A.S., &c.

DUKE OF EDINBURGH LODGE, No. 1182.

THIS Lodge, which originally held its meetings at Wavertree, some years ago, but has since, to its advantage, removed to the central habitat in Hope Street, Liverpool, held its annual meeting on the 8th instant, under circumstances which gave the assembly great éclat. The Lodge has had a prosperous year, £50 having been expended on the Charities, and the retiring W.M. has every reason to be satisfied with the way in which the brethren have supported him. He himself took the chair, and was supported by Bros. J. Pittaway I.P.M., J. W. Tyson, T. Davey, J. Edwards S.W. (W.M. elect), W. Rawsthorne J.W., A. D. Hesketh Treasurer, A. Morris Secretary, W. F. Ferguson S.D., W. R. Parkinson I.G., A. Barclay D.C., &c. The W.M. elect was presented by Bros. A. Barclay and R. Martin, and the ceremony of installation was very creditably performed by Bros. J. B. Galloway W.M. and A. D. Hesketh, after which the following Officers were invested:—Bros. J. B. Galloway I.P.M., W. Rawsthorne S.W., A. Morris J.W., A. D. Hesketh Treasurer, W. F. Ferguson Secretary, W. R. Parkinson S.D., R. Tunnicliffe J.D., D. Lowthian I.G., J. T. Shutt S.S., J. H. Mills J.S., H. S. Wright Organist, A. Barclay D.C. Bro. P. Ball was re-elected Tyler. Bro. Casey afterwards catered very satisfactorily for the brethren, and during the evening, which was very happily spent, a beautiful P.M.'s jewel, with collar, was presented to the I.P.M. by the W.M. on behalf of the Lodge.

JORDAN LODGE, No. 1402.

AT the monthly meeting, at the Masonic Hall, Torquay, on the 13th inst., the W.M. Bro. T. W. Morgan presiding, Bro. T. H. Wills S.W. was elected W.M. for the ensuing year, and Bro. John Dodge was re-elected Treasurer. Bro. John Taylor J.D. and Librarian announced that the newly-formed library was now open, with contributions of no less than eighty-three volumes. The donors of the several books, which included many valuable works, besides the Freemason complete to date with the exception of Vol. 4, were Bros. W. J. Hughan P.G.D. England, John Chapman P.P.G.J.D., John Lane P.P.G.R., and John Taylor J.D. The thanks of the Lodge were severally accorded to these brethren for their generous gifts. During the evening Bro. W. J. Noseworthy was made a Master Mason, Bro. John Lane ably performing the ceremony.

Lord Carrington was, on the 24th June, installed for the second time as Master of the United Grand Lodge of New South Wales, at the Masonic Hall, the ceremony being attended by upwards of 300 leading Masons. Bro. C. F. Stokes was installed as Deputy Grand Master. Lord Carrington in his address referred to the colliery disaster at Newcastle. He stated that if relief were required for the widows and orphans, the Masons in the colony, who deeply sympathized with the sufferers through the calamity, would not be behindhand in contributions.

A grand Bazaar for the purpose of raising a sum of about £10,000 to aid the Annuity Fund of the Extended Scheme of Scottish Masonic Benevolence, for the benefit of indigent Scottish Masons, their widows or children, is to be held at the end of next year, in Edinburgh. A number of influential names stand on the committee, including Sir Archibald Campbell of Blythswood, the Earl of Haddington, and Lord Saltoun, who is Junior Grand Warden. Contributions are being collected, and the excellent object in view ought to find ready sympathisers even beyond the ranks of Freemasonry. Mr. W. A. Davies, accountant, Edinburgh, is the bazaar secretary.

UNVEILING MEMORIAL WINDOWS AT WINSON GREEN.

ON Monday, the 12th inst., Lord Leigh Provincial Grand Master of Warwickshire, assisted by the members of the Provincial Grand Lodge and the brethren of the Province, held a special meeting in the Dudley-road Board Schools, and subsequently formed in procession and walked to St. Cuthbert's Church, where three memorial windows were unveiled. The windows have been subscribed for by the Sunday schools and parishioners in memory of the late Vicar, Bro. the Rev. W. H. Tarleton P.P.G. Chaplain. The Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge who accompanied Lord Leigh were Bros. J. T. Collins Deputy Provincial Grand Master, G. H. Rooker Asst. D.C., Mears S.B., J. R. Jackson D.C., F. H. Reece G.O., G. Beech G.S., J. W. Matthews Asst Secretary, W. H. Wood G.P., W. E. Fowkes Asst. G.P., and W. E. Mewis G. Steward There were also present several Past Officers of Grand Lodge and members. In the course of the service Lord Leigh unveiled the windows, which are situated in the Chancel, and consists of three lights each, with a single figure in each light, the pedestals and canopies, in the perpendicular style, being in keeping with the architectural features of the church. The subjects treated are Abraham, Moses, Elijah, John the Baptist, Our Lord Jesus Christ, St. Peter, St. Paul, St. Andrew, and St. John. In the tracery of the centre window are Masonic emblems, and the other traceries are treated in gresaille. The colouring is rich, but chaste; the draperies are remarkable free and flowing, and the treatment of the whole is broad and effective. Messrs. W. Pearce and Company, of Bridge-street, Birmingham, executed the work, from the designs of their superintendent, Mr. Thomas Stacy. The whole chancel has been much improved, the walls have been stencilled a neat ecclesiastial pattern, and the iron lights replaced by brass standards, by Mr. G. Hadley, Monument-road. The service at the church was conducted by the vicar (the Rev. Dr. McCann), Canon Bowlby, and the Rev. T. W. Peart. In the course of a short sermon, based on 1 Corinthians x. 31, the Vicar said the windows were more than the expression of living memories—they were that of unforgotten services rendered by one whose whole sympathy and love were in the church he founded. At a subsequent meeting of the Prov. G. Lodge, on the motion of Lord Leigh, a sum of 10 guineas was voted from the funds to the Sunday Schools. Luncheon was afterwards served in the school, and presided over by Lord Leigh. Amongst those present were the Revds. Dr. McCann, A. R. Vardy, W. B. Wilkinson, and T. W. Peart; Messrs. G. Beech, W. F. Tolladay, J. Bowen, and others. Apologies were announced from Viscountess Newport, the Marquis of Hertford, Lord Ernest Seymour, Mr. Dixon, M.P., Mr. Jaffray, Mr. Commissioner Philbrick, the Mayor (Alderman Barrow), the Mayor of West Bromwich (Councillor Heelis), and Alderman Manton. After the Loyal toasts, the Rev. Dr. McCann proposed Lord Leigh and the Provincial Grand Lodge of Warwickshire. He said that his Lordship was one of the most popular men in the country, and whenever he was asked to do a kindness he did it kindly. In reply, Lord Leigh said that his presence there that day had been for him a source of great pleasure, not unmixed with pain. They all remembered the first vicar of that parish, and he could only say that, as Freemasons, they felt it a great honour to be permitted to unveil the beautiful windows subscribed for by the children and parishioners. It was seventeen years since he (Lord Leigh) had the pleasure of laying Masonically the first stone of that church, and he knew how anxiously their late Bro. Tarleton exerted himself to obtain funds to build the church. They all felt deeply his loss, and rejoiced to find that Bro. Tolladay had worked so excellently to get up that meeting, to which he had asked the attendance of the Prov. Grand Lodge. The Rev. A. R. Vardy, in proposing success to St. Cuthbert's Sunday Schools, said he knew the late vicar as a pupil at King Edward's School, and testified to the earnestness of his work on behalf of the school and in the parish. The labour of the Sunday Schools was very important. There was a time when in all schools religious instruction formed part of the work. He regretted very much the changes which had recently taken place, and which had banished to a great extent Bible-teaching from the ordinary schoolroom. That only made the work and function of the Sunday schools more important, and if the young generation were to be trained aright they must be trained in the knowledge and fear of God. That work was being done most efficiently in that parish in the large Sunday schools connected with the Church. The erection of those windows was a striking illustration of the value the children placed on the services of the late vicar. It was a unique event that school-children should, by their scanty means, raise so noble and enduring a monument to one who worked for them. The Rev. T. W. Peart responded on behalf of Mrs. Peart, superintendent of the Girls' Sunday School. A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. W. F. Tolladay, for the excellent manner in which he had carried out the arrangements. Several other toasts were proposed.

At a recent meeting of Lodge Canterbury, 1048, E.C., held in the St. Augustine Hall, Christchurch, a motion affirming the desirability of establishing a United Grand Lodge in New Zealand was carried by a substantial majority.

The Shaftesbury re-opens, on the 27th inst., with a new and original four act play of Modern English life, entitled "The Middleman," by Henry Arthur Jones. Mr. E. S. Willard will be supported by Messrs. Mackintosh and E. W. Garden; Miss Maude Millett, Miss Annie Hughes, Mrs. E. H. Brooke, and Miss Agnes Verity.

MARK MASONRY.

Paterson Treasurer, Rev. E. M. Rice Chaplain, J. Warwick Secretary, A. Ashmore M.O., J. Parker S.O., J. Howieson J.O. E. Leach S.D., J. Jolley J.D., S. Bethell I.G., J. Cooper Organist, D. Simons Director of Ceremonies, G. H. S. Smith Reg. of Marks, W. Whitehead Tyler. Hearty good wishes were expressed for the newly installed W.M. from the Provincial Grand Lodge. Upon the Lodge being closed, the brethren, at the W.M.'s invitation, partook of a banquet, which was provided at the Green Dragon Hotel, by Brother and Mrs. Howieson. The W.M., Bro. Dickinson, presided.

AN EDICT AGAINST THE CERNEAU SCOTTISH RITE.

Washington, 28th July.

THE controversy which has been general among the Masonic Fraternity throughout the country respecting the Cerneau Scottish rite has culminated here in the issue of an edict by Harrison Dingman, Most Worshipful Grand Master of Masons of the District of Columbia, under date of 25th July, pronouncing the Cerneau organisation clandestine and warning all members of that rite that they are liable to discipline from the Grand Lodge unless they at once withdraw from said Cerneau body. The main reason for the edict, aside from other questions arising in the Scottish Rite controversy, is stated to be that the Cerneau organization has established relations of amity and Masonic correspondence with the Grand Orient of France, the governing body of Masons in that country, which is under the ban of at least every English speaking Grand Lodge in the world, because the Grand Orient has stricken the name of God from its rituals. The Grand Lodge of this country, it is said, have an additional grievance against the Grand Orient of France because the latter persists in recognising the negro Grand Lodge of the United States. Grand Master Dingman's edict directs that all visitors to the Lodges in the district of Columbia shall be required to state before admission that they are not members of the Cerneau organisation. The meeting of the Cerneau organisation in any Masonic hall is also prohibited.

FRUIT OF THE AMERICAN MASONIC ANTI CERNEAU MANIA.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., 20th July.

AN action was begun yesterday in the district court at Marion that will startle Masonic circles more than anything else perhaps of late years. Judge Preston, on the petition of Grand Officers of the Iowa Consistory of that branch of Scottish Rite Masonry commonly known as the Cerneau, ordered a temporary injunction against the Grand Lodge of Iowa Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, restraining them from putting into effect the legislation of the last session of the Grand Lodge, referring to the Cerneau bodies and which commanded Master Masons to leave the Consistory of Iowa of that Rite, under punishment of expulsion. The petition states that as the body represented by the plaintiffs does not confer the blue Lodge degrees and the Grand Lodge or its subordinate Lodges do not confer the 29 higher degrees, the Grand Lodge has no jurisdiction whatever, and its action is illegal, arbitrary, oppressive, proscriptive of their individual consciences and Masonic relations, and hurtful to their standing as good and reputable citizens. This is the first time a Masonic body has appealed to the state courts, and the action of the Supreme Court to which it will finally go will be a precedent for other States. The time for hearing the arguments for a perpetual injunction will be in the October term of court at Marion.

The Western Morning News, referring to the approaching annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Cornwall, to be held at Liskeard on Tuesday, 27th August, says:—

"It is likely to be a very successful gathering. It is eight years since a meeting was held at Liskeard, and since then so many changes have taken place and new members joined that in not a few respects the personnel of the brethren is considerably changed. The Province, however, is favoured with the same Prov. Grand Master, who has acted in that capacity since 1873, and also the same Deputy Prov. G.M. (Sir Charles B. Graves Sawle, Bart.), who has been re-appointed from the year 1880 by the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe. There is a new Provincial Grand Secretary, who is efficiently discharging the duties of that onerous position, the office being in good hands under the able management of that Masonic veteran Bro. Thomas Chirgwin, J.P. A fresh candidate for favour is the Cornwall Masonic Charity Association, with Bro. G. B. Pearce as the energetic and enthusiastic Secretary, who in four years has raised the large sum of £1,200, and will doubtless have another cheering report to present. The old friend, the Annuity and Benevolent Fund, is as vigorous as ever, having over £4,300 in hand, and has obtained nearly £7,000 since its institution in 1864, when the R.W. Bro. Augustus Smith was Prov. G.M. The educational branch is very popular with the brethren, and only needs to be made a little more elastic to make it one of the best funds of the kind in England. There are two candidates for its benefits, and not more than £25 per annum can be shared between them just now. Had it not been for the funding of so much money the full sum might have been payable. There are no candidates for annuities this time, although there are vacancies, which is surely a good sign. The Prov. Grand Lodge will be opened at a quarter to eleven, and after the several reports have been received the Committee appointed to consider Bro. Bake's proposition will state their views, and the matter will be decided. Likely enough the status in quo will be considered. Bro. Truscott's report will also be received. Bro. Rowe has given notice to extend the educational grants to the age of 15, and, if carried, the law will be altered accordingly, after confirmation at the next annual meeting. The procession to church will be at noon, when the Rev. R. F. Fraser-Frizell will preach the annual sermon, and on returning to the Town Hall the Provincial Officers will be appointed and the Treasurer elected. Bro. R. A. Courtenay P.M., &c., is the Secretary of the Lodge, and to him all communications of a local character should be made, and will be duly attended to. The W.M. of the Lodge is Bro. George Hallet, of Liskeard. "St. Martin's" was formed in 1845, and has its own Masonic Hall and appointments."

EADE'S
GOUT & RHEUMATIC PILLS.

The SAFEST and most EFFECTUAL CURE for GOUT, RHEUMATISM, and all PAINS in the HEAD, FACE, and LIMBS.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL from the Rev. F. FARVIS, Baptist Minister.

Mr. G. EADE. March 19, 1887.

Dear Sir,—I have many times felt inclined to inform you of the benefit I have received by taking your Gout and Rheumatic Pills. After suffering for some time from Rheumatics and Sciatica, I was advised to use your Pills. I bought a bottle, and when in severe pain and unable to use the limb affected I took a dose. In a few hours after I felt the pain much better, and after the second dose the pain completely removed and the limb restored to its right use. I thank you, dear sir, for sending forth such a boon for the relief of human suffering.

Yours faithfully,
F. FARVIS,
Baptist Minister.

There are multitudes of people who look upon advertising as a sort of Lottery, and bestow infinitely more thought in the selection of a clerk at £100 a year than in the expenditure of £1000, or two in the same period in advertising. A tithe of the shrewdness displayed in all other branches of their business given to the management of their advertising will be amply repaid. The ADVERTISEMENT AGENT has become an indispensable factor in this matter of publicity, and his raison d'être is perfectly unassailable. Would you leave or enter a port without a pilot? Would you commence and prosecute a law suit without a legal adviser? Either of these courses would not be more foolish than rushing into expenses in Advertising without a competent practical and professional adviser. I am at all times happy to render advertisers every assistance in my power, and to give them the benefit of the experience I have gained during the past twenty years as a London advertising agent. "PAINLESS AND PERFECT DENTISTRY."

A New Pamphlet, by Dr. GEO. H. JONES, F.R.S.L., F.R.M.S., &c., Surgeon-Dentist, 57 Great Russell-street, facing British Museum entrance, London, contains a list of Diplomas, and Silver Medals and other Awards obtained at the Great International Exhibitions. Forwarded gratis and post free.

Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist's Testimonial.

My Dear Doctor,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

S. G. HUTCHINS,
By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

Geo. H. Jones, Esq., D.D.S.

Scientific Department.
Laboratory of Experimental Science.

This is to certify: That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

(Signed),

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

Are universally admitted to be worth a Guinea a Box for Nervous and Bilious Disorders, such as wind and pain in the stomach, sick headache, giddiness, fullness and swelling after meals, dizziness and drowsiness, cold chills, flushings of heat, loss of appetite, shortness of breath, costiveness, scurvy, blotches on the skin, disturbed sleep, frightful dreams, and all nervous and trembling sensations, &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes. This is no fiction, for they have done it in thousands of cases. Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all humours, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no medicine to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

For a weak stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the liver they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse in action with the ROSEBUD of health the whole physical energy of the human frame. These are the "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of society, and one of the best guarantees to the nervous and debilitated, is that

MORE CLASS MASONRY.

IT seems those in authority in the Masonic Order do not by any means share the views we have more than once expressed in regard to Class Masonry, and we are of opinion that nothing short of a Masonic calamity will make any impression on them in this particular. We may be wrong, but we consider continuance of the tactics of the past few years, in regard to the establishment of new Lodges, limited to particular classes or sections of the community, must, sooner or later, end in disaster; and we are more than surprised that the Grand Master and his advisers cannot see the danger towards which they are drifting. Masonry is free—freedom is, indeed, one of the most prominent features in the structure, and it is impossible to explain how this freedom can be maintained in association with numberless class Lodges—or in other words, Lodges which are only free to particular persons. The whole system of making stipulations as to who shall and who shall not be admitted amongst us, except those which have been associated with the Craft as long as it has existed in its present form, is an innovation, and a departure from the established customs and usages of Freemasonry that should have called down the condemnation of Grand Lodge rather than have received encouragement and support from that quarter.

We do not suppose anything we can urge will cause an immediate alteration in regard to existing class Lodges, neither do we imagine we shall be able to influence the opinions of those who have the power to recommend the granting new Warrants, but we may arouse the feelings of individual Craftsmen on the subject, and, it may be, lay the foundation for a movement which shall eventually restore Freemasonry to its original freedom. We are told the strength of a chain is the strength of its weakest link; in like manner the prosperity of Freemasonry is influenced by the prosperity of its subordinate Lodges, and if one of these acts in any way contrary to the spirit of the Order the whole suffers, perhaps not to any appreciable extent where small matters are concerned, but none the less certain on that account. If Class Masonry is to be allowed in individual Lodges, it is only the stepping stone to a huge system of cliquism, of combinations and of sectionism, which can do no good to those who support them, and must work detrimentally to the Craft as a whole. Looking at the matter calmly, and from an unprejudiced point of view, we cannot see any ground on which to excuse the formation of exclusive Lodges, while, on the opposite side, we see much to cause anxiety and alarm. It is as well sometimes to see ourselves as others see us, and as we have recently had practical experience in this direction, perhaps it will better illustrate our case if we recount such experience. A Colonial paper was sent us by an old friend, wherein was recorded the fact that a new Lodge was to be established in London, under the title of the Scots Lodge—which, as our readers are aware, was duly consecrated. To this was added, as an explanation of the title, an announcement that the Lodge was established for the purpose of giving Scotchmen in London a special Lodge for their particular benefit, and, further, that only such candidates as were born in Scotland would be admissible as members. Our friend, who has not been well posted as to the growing tendency to establish class Lodges in this country, could not understand the restrictions set out in his local paper, and he asks us, among other matters, if this Scots Lodge is to own allegiance to the Grand Lodge of England, or to the Grand Lodge of Scotland? while, in either case, he is puzzled to see the way in which the members will adhere to their restrictive laws, and at the same time keep to the spirit of their Masonic obligations. Here is the opinion of a brother thousands of miles away, one who has been accustomed to see Lodges of more than one Constitution at work side by side, and yet he can find cause for surprise in the present procedure in the Masonic home of the world—in enlightened England.

Of course our correspondent is wrong in even supposing the Scots Lodge is to work under the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, but his query gives rise to another. If it is legal for the Grand Lodge of England to establish a Lodge for Scotchmen alone, in London, how much worse would it be for them to warrant a Lodge exclusively for Englishmen, in Edinburgh? This would be trespassing on another Grand Lodge's jurisdiction, and no doubt it would be speedily resented; but by adopting the course that has now become so popular we consider that Grand Lodge is encroaching on the liberty of its own subjects. Will they be equally alive to the situation, and will they ever resent it?

OUTSIDE CRITICISM.

IT will generally be conceded that the purveyors of intelligence of the present day have their work cut out for them, but as to whether or no they possess the requisite skill to make a good job of what they undertake we dare not venture to give a decided opinion upon. In the old days it was generally recognised that before a writer took up his pen to set forth his views on any given subject it was absolutely necessary he should undergo a course of "coaching" or "reading up," but the modern caterer, for the news of the hour, cannot devote his time—leisure he has not—to a course of preparation; he must supply, in order to keep pace with demand, and he cares little as to the value or quality of what he offers. As a consequence the papers of the day in relation to technical or special matters are continually at fault. This is borne out by a statement made in the Evening News of the 2nd inst., from which we cull the following:—

"Bro. Binckes has done yeoman's service for Masonry, but no one, inside or outside the Craft, can fail to come to the conclusion that, as Secretary to what Masons know as the Boys' School, he formed an altogether mistaken notion of his position. "The Boys' School; I am the Boys' School," seems to have been the Secretary's view, and so grave did matters become that, exactly a year ago, on Saturday, 27th July 1888, a Committee of Investigation was appointed, by the Quarterly Court of Governors, whose report was presented 26th April. Engaged at a salary of £150 a year, the Secretary's present emoluments, according to the report, are £700 a year. Considering what Bro. Binckes has done, it cannot be denied that he is worth it; his great mistake has been that, not being satisfied with being Secretary, he has tried to be head master, head everything—a very Walpole among secretaries."

Now this may be "smart" writing, but does it show that the author has any practical knowledge upon the subject? We venture to say, emphatically, he has not. When Bro. Binckes was appointed Secretary to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, now nearly 30 years ago, the annual income of that Charity was something like £2000; from time to time Bro. Binckes's duties have increased, while the demands upon his time—which at first were limited to some few hours each week—have been extended, till for some years now past he has had to devote all his energies to carry out the demands made upon him. Bro. Binckes's salary has been increased from time to time, as the majority of our readers know, till it now stands at £500 per annum; while for "emoluments" the only feature that can be described as such is embodied in a well earned recognition for eminent services rendered, viz.: the fund whereby Bro. Binckes commuted his claim for a per centage on certain amounts realised from time to time, through his exertions, for an annual payment in lieu of commission of £200 per annum, and in accepting this arrangement most of those who fully understand the facts of the case will give Bro. Binckes the credit for having acted in a liberal and conciliatory spirit.

We do not propose to-day to enlarge on the theme thus brought under our notice, but what can those of our readers who know the facts of the case say to the following garbled summary of the recommendations of the Investigation Committee:—

"The entries charging 100 cucumbers, the statement of the Investigating Committee that 'beyond such quantities of grapes, cucumbers, and tomatoes as the House Committee may consume at its monthly dinners, and some grapes and tomatoes at the stewards' own table, we could trace no consumption of these articles in the House,' are cruel in their brutal stupidity.

"And while there were some grapes and tomatoes on the stewards' own table, what of the boys? 'We noticed the general appearance of the boys was pale, and their manner spiritless.' 'Moreover a large dustbin is placed in the playground of the younger children.' 'As to the towels, each is used in common by several boys, and this occurs even when boys are suffering from ringworm.' Hapless Lewises! it was indeed time that something should be done: a secretary pensioned or a Committee man hanged, drawn, and quartered."

Well, well; we suppose this "tall" writing is acceptable to the masses or it would not be so universal at the present day.

NO RIGHT OF INITIATION.

THERE is an erroneous opinion abroad, in certain quarters, that the best men among the profane have the right to be initiated in Freemasonry, if they see fit to claim the right. This opinion every well-informed Freemason knows is utterly unfounded. The only right which any profane enjoys is the right to petition for initiation, and even this right is qualified by the fact that his petition is of no effect unless it be recommended by two Master Masons, members of the body which he seeks to enter. If the angel Gabriel were on earth he would have no right to Masonic initiation: he would have only the right to petition, as above set forth. As all Freemasons are on the level, so are all the profane. All must follow in the old paths which their fathers trod, from time immemorial. Hence no repute, however general it may be, for virtue, ability or character, can take the place of that Masonic scrutiny which has always been required to precede initiation. Indeed, the profane cannot know what the criterion of judgment is which the Craft sets up. It cannot understand what physical, mental, moral or social attributes are required of candidates. These are familiar only to members of the Fraternity. And even if a profane knew and possessed them all, he would still be in the dark as to the result of his application. Initiation is a favour, not a right. The Craft is a Brotherhood, and every brother in a Lodge has the inherent right to say whether an applicant possesses the qualifications for becoming, in the highest and best sense of the term, a Brother of the Craft.

The regulations, written and unwritten, which Freemasonry prescribes with reference to applicants for initiation are of exclusion rather than of inclusion. That is to say, all who do not possess certain indispensable qualifications are for ever excluded. Not possessing these, he is not entitled even to the right of petition, and even after he has petitioned, without the knowledge of his deficiency by the members, the Master of a Lodge, as soon as he becomes aware of the disqualifying facts, is justified in declining to act upon his petition. Freemasonry does not strain its regulations or landmarks in favour of any applicant. It stands on so high a level, has such an established repute, has existed so long, that it is above all petty or individual considerations. It lives for itself, and the continued accomplishment of its high mission. Let us seek to obtain a glimpse of what this mission is.

The mission of Freemasonry, in a word, is to do good unto all men, but especially to those who have been admitted to the fellowship of the mystery. In the Old Charges we find such phraseology as this: an applicant must be competent to perform "the Lord's work," and capable in all respects of "serving his Master's Lord." "The Lord's work" is the enlightenment of the initiate, his instruction in Masonic symbolism, and those noble principles, the nobility of labour, the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. No one is admitted who cannot labour. All the officers, seconded by the members, engage in labour at the initiation or advancement of a candidate. When made a Mason the candidate is a new creation. He has been born into Masonry; he has been brought to Masonic Light; he has learned a new language; he has been introduced into a mystic company, all the members of which have passed through the same ceremonies and are bound by the same promises as himself. Hence all Freemasons are one—in spirit, in purpose, in pride.

Does some one say, the Craft is weakened when it fails to admit worthy men. Not at all. Were a thousand worthy men rejected it would not suffer. It is not the exclusion of the worthy, but the inclusion of the unworthy that is the peril of the Craft. The scrutiny cannot be too severe. We cannot be too exact in living up to all the Landmarks. Let the applicant always be a "perfect youth," so that he may be in himself a physical symbol of that intellectual and moral perfection which is expected of all applicants. Let him be in all respects fitted to "serve his Master's Lord," and perform "the Lord's work." Let him be qualified for entry into the brotherhood by being dominated by the spirit of brotherly love. Let him be a lover of science and art, of liberty and good government. Let him be a lover of wisdom, a discerner of secrets, and ambitious to learn all he can concerning the origin, history and purpose of the Craft. Being such a man, he is in the highest sense qualified for Freemasonry. But even he possesses no right to be initiated. The Masonic Brethren must select him from the profane, rather than he them. He first seeks them, but they alone accept him. Weighty responsibility is that which rests upon every Brother when he passes upon the merit or demerit of a candidate for initiation. It is his duty to see that the Mosaic pavement of the Lodge Room be not trodden by hasty feet, or the portals of the Lodge entered by one who is not the possessor of clean hands and a pure heart—Keystone.

The meetings of the St. Ambrose Lodge of Instruction, No. 1891, will be resumed on Monday, the 2nd proximo, at the Baron's Court Hotel, West Kensington, at 8 p.m. Bro. James Sims is the W.M. elect for that evening, with Bro. Jesse Collings as Preceptor. Monday, the 22nd proximo, is the date mentioned for the working of the Fifteen Sections, and the Secretary will be pleased if any brother desiring to assist will forward his name and the section he would like to work, to him, as soon as possible. Bro. F. Craggs, 4 Shaftesbury Road, Hammersmith, W., is the Secretary.

INFORMATION RECEIVED ABOUT RABBI JACOB JEHUDAH LEON.

By Bro. Jacob Norton.

As many readers of this paper may have forgotten what Dermott wrote in his 1764 edition of the Ahiman Rezon, and as a great many Masons into whose hands this paper may fall have never heard about the Ahiman Rezon, I shall reproduce, from the Ahiman Rezon, the following story, viz. :—

"The Freemasons' Arms in the upper part of the frontispiece of this book [the Ahiman Rezon] was found in the collection of the famous and learned Hebrewist, architect, and brother, Rabbi Jacob Jehudah Leon. This gentleman, at the request of the States of Holland, built a model of Solomon's temple. The design of this undertaking was to build a temple in Holland, but upon surveying the model it was adjudged that the united provinces were not rich enough to pay for it, whereupon the States generously bestowed the model upon the builder, notwithstanding they had already paid him his demand, which was very great. [How great was it?] This model was exhibited to public view, by authority, at Paris and Vienna, and afterwards in London, by a patent under the great seal of England, and signed Killigrew, in the reign of King Charles the Second. At the same time, Jacob Jehudah Leon published a description of the tabernacle and the temple, and dedicated it to his Majesty, and in the years 1759 and 1760 I had the pleasure of perusing and examining both of these curiosities. The arms are emblazoned thus :—quarterly per squares, counterchanged vert. In the first quarter, Azure a Lyon rampant Or; in the second quarter Or, an ox passant sable; in the third quarter Or, a man with a hand erect, proper robed, crimson and ermine; in the fourth quarter Azure, an eagle displayed Or, Crest, the holy ark of the covenant proper, supported by Cherubims. Motto, Kodes la Adonijie, Holiness to the Lord."

Now, in the first place, I did not believe that a Rabbi was a brother Mason in the days of Charles 2nd. Second, I believed that the States of Holland at that time could afford to build as expensive a Temple as Solomon did when in the height of his glory; and third, I had reason to doubt that Rabbi Leon had illustrated his book with such highly coloured pictures or emblazonments of "Masons' Arms," as above described. In short, I was puzzled as to whether any part of Dermott's story was true, or whether there was truth at all in it. While pondering over the question as to the best method of solving my puzzle, I happened to recollect of Bros. Gould's and Speth's recent visit to the Grand Lodge of Holland, of which Bro. Gould informed me when I met him in London last year. This, somehow, brought a lucky thought into my head. I at once pitched upon Bro. Speth as being the best man to answer my purpose, and the result proves that I was right. Briefly, then, my good Bro. Speth, at my suggestion, opened a correspondence with his new Hollandish acquaintances. Many letters passed to and fro between them; at last, however, the researches of Bro. Speth's friends brought to light some important facts upon the question at issue, which Bro. Speth lost no time in communicating to me. I refrained, however, from publishing the news until I received his permission. This having been obtained, I lay the result before the readers of the Freemason's Chronicle, viz. :—

"The Hague, 27th May 1889.

"My Dear Bro. Speth,

"At last I am so fortunate as to have collected some particulars about the Jehudah question.

"The enclosed paper, written by Bro. Inaas Geesteranus, who took much pleasure in making researches; he had a correspondence with several brethren, and was assisted by a very able brother, who is thoroughly acquainted with the history of the Jews and Jewish literature.

"To Bro. Inaas Geesteranus' account I beg to add that one of my friends, a very esteemed historian and archæologist, made researches in the Royal Archives, containing also the archives of the States of Holland, but without any success: he could find no trace of the question.

"Bro. Inaas Geesteranus and I are of opinion that there is a mistake or misunderstanding in Dermott's statement [this is merely a specimen of Masonic courtesy] concerning the order given by the States of Holland. Evidently, never such an order was given. In the midst of the 17th century a freedom of press existed, but still no book could be published without permission or privilege of the authorities; and, now, Jacob Judah got that permission or privilege, which was printed in front of his book. Such a privilege gave the same right as what now exists as copyright. As I said, it is clear that here was a misunderstanding. I hope the enclosed paper will be of some use to you.

"Yours very fraternally,

"J. P. Vaillant."

Now for the arrived information.

"Jacob Juda (or Jehuda) Leon lived in Middelburg, in Holland, about the middle of the XVII. century. He had made, but without any order, commission, or assistance, whether pecuniary or otherwise, of the Government, a model of Solomon's Temple, that he himself gives the following account of :—"Cette eminente fabrique que j'ai faitte, et que j'ai chez moy, est une pièce de dix pieds de long de l'orient à l'occident, de vingt pieds de large du Midy au Septentrion, et dix-sept de hauteur, faitte avec telle proportion qu'elle vienne à prendre à longueur une partie de trois cent, en hauteur une partie de nonante mil, et en profondeur une partie de vingt et sept millions de la grandeur du mesme Temple."*

"In 1642 he edited, at Amsterdam, in the Dutch language, a small book, of which only one copy is known to be extant in the country, under this title—'Description of Solomon's Temple, containing a short account of the form of the building and of all the vessels and instruments used in the service thereof, which model is in the possession of the author, and can be seen by anybody, by Jacob Jehudah Leon Ebreo.'" This description is dedicated to the State of Zealand, who voted a present of 12 pounds 10 sh[ings] Flemish to the author (about £6 10s)."

In 1643 he edited the same book in French, under this title :—

"Portrait du Temple de Solomon, Dans lequel se descrit brièvement la constitution de la fabrique du Temple. Et de tous les vases et utensils d'iceluy: dont la modèle se trouve après le mesme auteur comme chacun peut le voir, composé van Jacob Juda Leon, Hebrew, habitant de Middlebourg en la province de Zélande, L'an de la création du monde 5403. à Amsterdam."

"The then Duke of Brunswick caused a Latin translation of Leon's description of the Temple to be made and edited in 1665. It appears that Leon's work caused a certain and lasting interest in the country, for not only did a new edition (2nd or 3rd) appear in 1644, and a fourth, both in the Dutch language, in 1669, but in the last mentioned year he issued a description of a model of the same kind, viz., of Moses' Tabernacle. The title of this book reads as follows :—'Description of the Tabernacle that Moses made, by God's command. Also of all vessels and instruments used in the service thereof. Likewise the situation of the bodies of Levites and Israelites round the Tabernacle, all according to Holy Scripture. By Jacob Jehuda Leon, Hebrew, author of the model of Solomon's Temple. Amsterdam. 1669.'"

"This last book, a small 4to vol. of 24 pages, is dedicated to the Prince of Orange, Nassau (William III.) and his consort the Princess Royal Mary, the oldest daughter of his Royal Majesty of Great Brittain, &c., &c."

In the dedication, Leon refers to the honour the Princes did him when some years before it pleased them to throw their eyes on the model of Solomon's Temple, being not only an uncommon piece of work, but worthy to be inspected by the greatest Princes of the world.

In one of his prefaces, Leon tells us that the model and contents do not only relate to Solomon's Temple alone, but also to the building after its reedification, so that a great many vessels, instruments and ornaments were put there together, which neither of the Temples had possessed at the same time, and even Anachronisms of Herod's time were met with in Leon's model. So the historical unity was not strictly observed.

In the first place, information about Leon and his models was looked for from the Jewish Scholars at the Hague and Rotterdam, but they had never heard of the man nor his work. But when those gentlemen had made the acquaintance of the above mentioned books, that were discovered in an old library depending (or belonging) to the Leyden University, and had compared the contents with the old Jewish [account of the] Talmudian books on the subject, they declared Leon's description quite in conformity with the particulars mentioned therein. However, they did not know any other works on Jewish archæology by the same author, to which he alludes passim in his prefaces.

Leon's contemporaries did not judge very favourably of his writings. Wilhelm Goeree, who wrote Jewish Antiquities, or an Initiation into the Wisdom of the Bible (Amsterdam, 1690), contradicted some of his [Leon's] statements about the Temple's localities.

"Neither in the Archives of the Synagogue at Middelbourg, nor in those of the municipality of that town, was anything to be found

* Which in English is as follows :—

"This remarkable building, which I have made, and which I have, is ten feet long from the east to the west, twenty feet wide from the south to the north, seventeen feet high, made in the proportion of one to three hundred in length, one to ninety thousand in height, and one to twenty-seven million in depth." To which Bro. Speth adds, in a note :—"When Jehudah speaks of the proportions in length, width, and depth, a calculation will show he meant length, square, and cube.

The scale in length is		1 in 300.
"	superfices	1 in 300 × 300 = $\frac{1}{90000}$.
"	cube content	1 in 300 × 300 × 300 = $\frac{1}{27000000}$."

about the man, his works, and his models. It is unknown where the latter can have gone to.

"I may add that a model of Solomon's Temple does actually exist in this country. It is in the possession of the Rev. Schouten, Minister of the Gospel at Utrecht, who had it made entirely at his own expense. The model is on view at the Minister's house, on certain days, for a small contribution, destined for the poor."

All of which Bro. Speth certifies, as follows :—

"Copies of the letters of Bro. Vaillant G. Sec., and Bro. Geesteranus Dep. G.M. to Geo. Speth—copied by Mrs. Speth, for Bro. Jacob Norton, of Boston, 29th May 1889."

The above correspondence proves that Rabbi Leon existed; that he built a model of Solomon's Temple, and that he published a book about his workmanship. It disproves, however, that the States of Holland had ordered Rabbi Leon to make the said model, or that they had paid him any money for making it. One point, however, remains undecided, viz., was Rabbi Leon's book illustrated and emblazoned with the grand colours, as described by Dermott, or, in other words, did Dermott copy his Masons' Arms from Rabbi Leon's book?

In conclusion, I respectfully thank our distinguished Dutch brethren for the trouble they took in hunting up the above information. I thank Bro. Speth for his part of the performance in the Jacob Jehudah Leon question. And last, though not least, I sincerely thank my good Sister Speth for transcribing four folio sheets of paper for my enlightenment and gratification.

A LIVING WORKING FORCE.

Eulogy delivered by Rev. William Nichols Ackley, Past Grand Master, at the Dedication of the Monument to Bro. and Hon. Thomas Arthur Doyle, at Providence, Rhode Island, 24th June 1889.

EVERY institution, like the individual man, must expect to be judged on a twofold basis—upon the ground of its inherent character, and its relations with that with which it is surrounded, its power to perform for the world those offices suggested in its principles. To be entitled to recognition as a factor in our busy life it must demonstrate its ability to touch society with vital influence. Great truths may be engrossed upon enduring materials, sealed and laid away, securely guarded from the eye and touch of men. But to guard truth so is to insult its dignity, to invest it with that too common royalty which is simply impotent isolation from the throbbing life of man. That alone is truly royal which can tolerate the strong gaze of the world—can respond to the demands of society upon it. In this, as in our religion, the servant is nobler than the lord. That truth is not worth the seeking which has, as it takes shape in our thoughts, no service to render to mankind. And, inasmuch as our Masonic institution is a monument to truths that are fundamental, so, to warrant our presence as its representatives here to-day, must it be a living, working force, bringing its embodied truth into vital connection with the world's life. The eye of the loyal Mason glances back into the past, only that it may more keenly take account of the present, of the needs which may guide into hopeful channels the influence at our command.

As to-day we cluster about this memorial to our honoured chief, whose personality touched with such potent influence the hearts of the people of this great city, and made itself felt not seldom in the larger commonwealth, because the interest of the people were his own, are there to be seen any features of our Institution, with whose stately words we consecrate this statue, that may, like him we honour, touch the weal of the every-day lives of men? If the life we revere and the body, whose offices we bring are in accord, then are we we fitly gathered here.

Suffer me for a brief period to centre our thoughts upon those features of our Masonic Institution which manifest its inherent character and its practical influence upon life, leaving meanwhile those numberless qualities which may indeed interest the curious, but which are accidental rather than inherent. It is the symbol on which the eye rests. The fundamental truth is that which takes possession of the discriminating mind. So, they who find in the sign and ceremony and symbol the essence of Masonry mistake the colour for the texture of the fabric. Just as in a man the wealth of power is in the character and the ability to bring that character into vital connection with the interest of men, so it is is with our ancient Institution. It is a life, a developed life, trained in the school of human necessity. Its soul is found in the unflagging championship of those immortal truths which underlie even religion, which are the sanction of all moral conduct, which are the stay of men's hearts in life's extremest hours. We need not linger to set forth anew here those old truths, even new to each new life, to each life newly awakened to the highest things—the truth about God, eternity, immortality, responsibility; truths echoing through all the language of our forms, flashing out in our varied ceremonials. It has been said that persons dwelling in close intimacy with strong and noble souls grow by degrees into their likeness. The Mason dwells in the presence of embodied truth, whose voice speaks ever the same unvarying counsel, and appeals to him with the same eternal sanctions. Something of truth's glorious features should shine out ere long in the lineaments of his character. And need we wonder, in the light of these facts, that so often the silvery-haired veteran in our ranks, to whom long ago life's playthings had lost their charm, and who is growing more and more to value things according to their essential qualities, should enter our asylums with fresh, warm devotion to a brotherhood he has known so long. He has dwelt in the presence of truth personified in our stately ceremonial and been suffused with its lofty spirit. The life of man and of every lasting institution must anchor itself in those immutable truths which lie at the root of all religion and of all morality. And so, while Masonry never intrudes itself unbidden within the sacred domain of religion, never assumes to do more than second and further that work committed especially to the church of Christ, never haughtily frowns upon other groups of men seeking the same noble ends, it plants itself solidly upon the immutable doctrines of God, of eternity, of a resurrection to the immortal life, of responsibility to the God of heaven for the lives we live. Upon these foundations rises our Masonic structure, and they who dwell within its sacred precincts dwell where God is, where truth reigns; are guilty of profaning the sacredness of heavenly things when word or act fails to accord with the spirit of the divine law. Symbolic ceremony, traditional and historic illustrations combine within our walls to implant indelibly these divine teachings upon the hearts of our disciples.

But they are guilty of grave error who pronounce Masonry a thing of the past, because its lessons are couched in ancient symbolism and because it deals in eternal verities. Eternity reaches forward as well as backward—forward always to every soul truly awake to the grandest things. The conservative tenacity of Masonry for immutable truth is its safeguard, the ground of its power to be a sure and lasting help to the interests of men. Only the spirit of anarchy would change that which ought to be counted immutable. But, just as eternity touches time by including it within itself, so these eternal principles touch the ever-varying interests of humanity. They who are well versed in the teachings of Masonry will wonder at their breadth of range, at their vivid setting forth of the facts and experiences of life. And what does this reveal? Why, the fact that Masonry has been a growth, that it has grown out of a keen appreciation of those changeless truths we have catalogued, and, in addition to that, a clear, sympathetic knowledge of the longings and needs of humanity. Through unnumbered generations the handicraft of speculative and symbolic Masonry has been exercised in working into its structure the varied experiences, the drama of human life—setting the whole story to the key-note of principle. What men need and feel most keenly it has made the subject of its thought and study; so that, while the world outside may think of us as secluded within a shrine where everything is ancient, our practical relations are with the living realities of to-day; just as love and sympathy and sense of mutual obligation are but empty words, except as they deal with the real life of the present, with which we come in contact. Does society desire to learn a wholesome lesson in the rightful relation between the so-called highest and lowest among its ranks? We will teach them that he who, as our Grand Master, holds the highest office in the gift of Masonry, and, with it, an authority extremely exceptional in this modern age, nevertheless, as far as his fraternal relations with his fellows and personal character are concerned, stands for what he is worth as a man, on a level as a brother among brethren with the humblest brother moving in the ranks. Come hither and learn among our impressive lessons—oft repeated during the Masonic life—this wholesome lesson upon the equality of human rights, upon the duty of respecting men according to their inherent worth. Sense of brotherhood must rest upon this conviction. And it is this sense of brotherhood that lifts love, sympathy, fellowship, generosity, helpfulness, out of the low realm of the artificial and the conventional into the domain of the real and the true. True, courtly manners are flavoured with the spirit of a real respect for one's fellows. And all those virtues, which are but courtly manners wrought into more substantial shape, become princely in the sterling reality given them by the sympathetic spirit. It is no wonder that the founders of Masonry, schooled so well in the needs of men, should have wrought the great, inclusive duty of charity all through our ceremonial teachings. This virtue, so slowly learned by a cold humanity, becomes the natural, logical deduction from a conviction of the brotherhood of men. The man who sees in man his brother, and is keenly sensitive to the fact, cannot do less than love his own. So we teach first the lesson of brotherhood. Generosity of spirit and of deed is its angelic sequel. You are teaching an impotent law of conduct when your charity of heart is not put before, as a cause, that charity of act, whose symbol is the open hand, the helpful deed.

We have time to do scarcely more than say how this great lesson of brotherhood deserves to be first always, to be oftenest repeated in the ears of men, and how in it we touch all the duties of man to man. Let the spirit of brotherhood and consequent charity of heart find a welcome amid the busy throng, where competition rages, where suffering and want intrude their hard presence; aye, within the hallowed precincts of the home more and more; and, verily, the life the motley throng are living would feel the genial sunrise of a new joy, and the spirit of antagonism with which men view one another so often now would be counted an intruder upon the peaceful life of society. To intensify the spirit of human fellowship, of that charity whose fountain is in the heart, is one of the leading offices of our Masonic institution. If, in our teachings—if, in the communion of brother with brother within our walls—if, in the nearer contact of man with man in the common interests of Masonry, we can develop in our hearts a keener sensitiveness, widen our sympathies, sweeten our spirits, train ourselves in thoughts and acts of charity, giving to them all that supreme sanction growing out of a sense of solemn responsibility, then are we one of the factors for good in the world; then are we touching vitally the most sacred interests of everyday life. Our Institution, even as it does so stand in tradition and organic structure, should in our convictions and lives stand for nobility of manhood, championship of the right, love and fellowship wider than the limits of our brotherhood, the heart and deed of a true fraternal love. As this noble statue, wrought into artistic form the more forcibly to remind the throngs that though generations may cluster about it and ask its meaning, stands as a symbol of the character and deeds of the man whose heart beats responsive to his fellows' needs; so may our institution stand as something lasting and immovable, yet speaking of life, standing for something instinct with life, a symmetrical building indeed, yet in its practical activity and influence, in touch with all that is noble and sweet in the life of the world. Our office is to speak these lessons of humanity and fellowship with all their eternal and divine sanction into the ears of unwilling men. In this we are not indeed alone. We only join the voice from many an institution, many an earnest, great-hearted spirit. As a man alone you may engage in the lofty work of bringing about the reign of great thoughts and loving deeds. The voice, however, should take on a more determined emphasis when uttered in the unison and harmony of our fraternal fellowship. The individual, under the inspiration of a loving heart, may indeed—

"Join hands with God to make a man to live."

But, as a compact body, linked in that strength which comes of united forces and purposes at one, fired with the electric power of that brotherly love fostered in the fellowship of kindred spirits, we may in very deed "join hands with God," and with one another, to bring strength and purpose and power and richness and gladness into the world's every day life.—Voice of Masonry.

IMPROPER USE OF MASONIC HALLS.

FREEMASONS' Halls are consecrated to Masonic purposes—the performance of sacred and devotional rites. We invoke the presence of the most High during the rendering of a very solemn portion of our ritual, and therefore it cannot be contented with any degree of consistency, that dancing or any similar amusement is at all in keeping with the beautiful services conducted in a Craft Lodge Room. Too little thought is often given to the sacredness of character of Masonic ceremonies, and we are prone to go through the workings of the Lodge in some places in a perfunctory sort of style, without paying due regard to the beautiful lessons presented for our consideration. It appears to us as amounting to a desecration when Masonic Halls are converted into dance rooms, and we cannot comprehend why a place consecrated and dedicated for the solemn proceedings at meetings of the Fraternity should be deemed of a less holy character than churches or chapels. No good Jews or Gentiles would think for a moment of permitting any secular amusement to be carried on in their place of worship; then why, we ask, should the floor of a Masonic Lodge Room be utilized for any purpose but for which it was intended? It may be contended that "amusement such as dancing and participation in secular music are not injurious to the principles of Masonry," and we would not seek to debar our Brethren from enjoying themselves in a rational manner; but it is highly necessary—if our Halls are to maintain a sacred character—that Masonic workings should be placed on a footing with religious ceremonies, and everything of a free and easy, hilarious nature excluded from places set apart for the rendering of the Craft ritual. We cannot think that any body of Freemasons would willingly permit its sacred chamber to be desecrated, and it is only, probably, through a want of thought that Masonic Halls are occasionally used for other than Craft purposes; nevertheless such things do occur in some parts of the colony, and intelligent Brethren should take steps to check what cannot but be justly regarded as an evil.

MASONIC TEMPERANCE.

IN speaking of the cultivation of this Masonic virtue we desire to get away from the narrow, contracted definition that in these degenerate days seems to circumscribe and belittle this virtue. We make of it a hobby upon which we mount, and imagine ourselves a full troop of cavalry. We endeavour to ride rough shod over every other virtue; and when we think we have vanquished our imaginary foe, and our conflict with the windmill is ended, we dismount from our charger to view the result of the battle, and behold the scene just as it was before the conflict, and our banner is still trailing in the dust.

Temperance, as taught by Masonry, is not simply abstinence from strong drink, but temperance in thought, words and actions. By temperance we do not only circumscribe our desire for intoxicants, or abstain from putting the bottle to our Brother's lips, and making him drunken also, but we are taught to be temperate in words, to govern our tongue, and instead of going to the highways and byways and mounting upon the housetops and proclaiming our Brother's shortcomings, we go to him and whisper good council in his ear, and in the most tender manner remind him of his fault, and endeavour to aid his reformation. Words passionately or intemperately spoken may do us, as well as our Brother, more injury, may cause more grief and sorrow, and bring more reproach upon Masonry, than intoxication.

How intemperate it seems, "nay, not seems but is," for a Brother who, after passing the threshold of our Lodge, professing his trust in God, attaining the sublime degree of Masonry, who has bowed at the Sacred name of Deity, and been taught to adore his great Creator, when out of the Lodge Room and in contact with the profane "out-Herods Herod" in taking Gods name in vain, and with the next breath declaring that Masonry is a good enough religion for him, showing conclusively that he has a very faint conception of the religion of Masonry, even if Masonry was, or ever claimed to be, a religious institution, or rather that there is a religion in Masonry.

GOOD THOUGHTS WELL PRESENTED.

THERE is to be found no greater field for active thought and work than in Masonry. The brightness of her deeds can never be dimmed by any investigation. Her code of ethics has taught man to be noble, true and faithful, has assisted in driving superstition from the minds of men, has closed the doors of immorality and vice, and opened the avenues of intellectual freedom. Her enemies are slanderers and bigots, her friends are those who love the human family. Unlike other institutions which have enslaved their worshippers, the teachings of Freemasonry have always tended to render man more independent, to cultivate a broader manhood and develop a deeper intellectuality. She has never enslaved a human being, but has laboured for man's prosperity in every relation of human existence. Masonry is light—the light of scientific thought, the light that man needs for a successful guide, and in great measure, that he may enjoy the full fruition of a well-spent life, and some results of a happy destiny. It denies every mythological and superstitious idea of man's creation, existence and destiny, but with impressive ceremony acknowledges God, the creator of all things, and solemnly recognises our dependence upon Him.

Masonry is truth. We are taught that "truth is a divine attribute;" yet, like other virtues, is within the reach of man, and may be appropriated to his use. It is sometimes difficult to distinguish it in these days of tinsel and gloss, but upon this rock we profess to build Masonic character. Masonic light cannot illuminate that which is false. When in the creation, God commanded, "Let there be light," and the light was given, it served to make truth visible, the truths of creation. The analogy is plain. When first we opened our eyes, we learned that Masonic light was given to read the "Word of Truth," that should prove a lamp to our feet.

He who thinks that he has accomplished all there is to be learned in the entire field of intellectual and moral teaching of Freemasonry deceives himself. The best educated among us has gained but a superficial view, while he who has learned the simplest lessons taught by the tenacity of the Acacia, has linked his soul to the Infinite and built a Temple therein whose corner-stone is taken from the quarries of Eternal Truth, and whose timbers are stronger than the Cedars of Lebanon. Masonry is the religion of education under forms and ceremonies. It pays homage to no other system, and, because of its independence, it has life.

If education have no religious tendency, then is our civilisation a failure, and all instruction goes for nought. Better for man to remain in slavery and degradation than to use the forces of education which result in nothing but barren hopes and fruitless endeavour. Happily we experience a different result. The forces of education have elevated man to the moral and intellectual being of to-day. Among these forces we recognise Masonic knowledge, which has participated in this great work, until now we find the test of true Masonic character applied to the highest type of developed manhood. Unmasonic conduct must, therefore, be the resultant operation of an impure mind, a soul devoid of true manhood and influenced by unholy desires and passions.—Grand Master Collier, West Virginia.

Lord Carnarvon has presented a site for a parish reading and coffee room, to be erected at Burghclere, near Newbury, as a memorial of the late Canon Portal, who was rector of Burghclere for many years, and also domestic chaplain to Lord Carnarvon. Between £500 and £600 have been promised towards the fund.

The early Norman Church of Upper Helmsley, near York, has been enriched by a stained glass window, from the studio of Mr. Taylor, of Berners-street, the gift of the Farrow family, in memory of their parents.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Biliousness and Dyspepsia.—There is no organ in the human body so liable to derangement as the liver; food, fatigue, climate, and anxiety all disorder its action, and render its secretions, the bile, more or less depraved, super-abundant or scanty. The first symptoms should receive attention. A pain in the side, or the top of the shoulder, a harsh cough, and difficulty of breathing are signs of liver disease, which are removed without delay by friction with Holloway's inestimable Ointment. The Pills should be taken without delay. For all diseases of this vital organ the action of these conjoined remedies is a specific by checking the over supply of bile, regulating its secretion and giving nervous tone.

BRO. JAMES ALBERY.

IT is with sincere regret that we have to announce the death of Bro. James Albery, the talented author of "The Two Roses," and several other popular plays. It occurred on Thursday, the 15th inst., at 30 St. Martin's Lane, W.C. The lamented deceased was born on 4th May 1838, and was therefore in his fifty-second year. For some time past he had been in ill health, but his sudden death was unexpected. The distinguished gentleman, even in early youth, exhibited considerable aptitude as a dramatist, and many farcical pieces were produced at the Southwark Literary Society. One of his plays, a four act drama, entitled "The Mate of the Mountjoy," gained the second T. P. Cooke prize. Mr. Albery's dialogue was always crisp and witty, and, though occasionally satirical, was full of poetical imagery. It was in "The Two Roses" that Mr. Henry Irving achieved his first conspicuous success in London, his rendering of the pompous but mean-spirited Digby Grant being the dramatic event of the year 1870. The deceased dramatist was buried on Tuesday last, at Kensal Green Cemetery, next to the family vault of Mr. J. L. Toole. Several floral tokens of affection were deposited on the coffin—notably a wreath "from his three loving sisters, Millie, Lillie, and Carry," and a cross from Mr. and Mrs. Usher Back and children—each of these contained a red and a white rose, a delicate compliment to the deceased's master piece. Among those present at the funeral were Master Irving Albery, son; Mr. Walter Albery, brother; Mr. W. T. Hemsley and Mr. Usher Back, brothers-in-law; Mr. L. Albery Back, nephew; Mr. B. L. Farjeon, Mr. Barnes Amor, Mr. Wm. Duck, Mr. J. L. Moore, Mr. F. W. Broughton, Mr. Joseph Hatton, and Mr. R. D. Holl.

BRO. WILLIAM GREEN.

THE remains of the late Bro. William Green, who died on Wednesday, the 14th inst., at the age of 50 years, were interred at Ann's Hill Cemetery, Gosport, on Monday. Deceased, who was for a number of years connected with the Royal Engineers, was a prominent member of the Masonic order. The body, enclosed in a black coffin, the lid of which was of glass, left the deceased's residence at 3·45, the principal mourners being deceased's son and Mr. Hodgson, an old friend. The Masons present included Bros. G. F. Lancaster P.M., H. Crisp W.M. 2153 (of which deceased was a P.M.), T. Stretton I.P.M., J. Read I.P.M. Cama Lodge, C. Seidenstucker D.C., Staff-Sergeant Leonard I.G., G. Dunbar Treasurer, and a number of others, amongst whom were Messrs. Jenkins, G. Pearman, Adams, J. Appleton, G. King, and Sergeants W. Phillips, and T. Cusse, of the R.M.L.I. The body was received at the Cemetery gates by the Rev. Howard Betts (curate of St. Mary's, Alverstoke), who conducted the service, and at the conclusion sprigs of acacia were thrown upon the coffin by the brethren.

Bro. Gerard Ford, Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Sussex, who some weeks ago was ordered to Switzerland for the benefit of his health, has met with a most unfortunate accident while staying at Berne. He and Mrs. Ford were walking one afternoon the other week in the Spitalgasse, one of the galleried streets, when a heavy thunder shower began. There was a rush of roughs for the shelter of the colonnade, one of whom pushed violently against Bro. Ford, who slipped on the wet pavement, and fell heavily to the ground, breaking his arm just below the shoulder. The shock to his system is very great, more especially as he was just recovering from a recent illness. He is attended by a very skilful surgeon, and will, it is hoped, soon be able to begin a journey, by slow stages, to England. This accident is the more regrettable, as the 27th of next month has been fixed as the date of Bro. Ford's installation as Provincial Grand Master of Mark Masons in Sussex, in succession to Lord Arthur Hill, who resigns his office. It is to be hoped he will be able to go through the ceremony, though, of course, debarred from taking any active part in Masonry until quite recovered from the results of this unlucky accident.

FREEMASONRY IN QUEENSLAND.

WE have been requested to publish the following letters :—

To the Editor of the Brisbane Courier.

SIR,—The article reprinted in your journal of 29th June, headed as above, may lead to considerable error in the minds of the public, and, possibly, of some of the members of the Order, if the statements and assertions in the article are permitted to be regarded as altogether truthful and a fair statement of the facts of the case.

It is evident that the writer of the article believed all that was said by the speakers at a meeting of the District Grand Lodge of the English Constitution, held at the Masonic Hall on 6th March, attended by some 20 or 30 persons, the Proceedings being printed and circulated the following day. Strange to say, all the speeches on one side were read from printed slips, and it is stated that they were all written by the same hand, and distributed amongst those willing to take charge of them. The great similarity of style gives some force to this statement. This goes to show the opposition to the movement was carefully pre-arranged some time before the meeting was called. But even at the meeting of the English District Grand Lodge, the expression of those present was far from being unanimous, as some of the oldest and most respected members differed altogether from their colleagues; but their speeches not having been prepared beforehand and printed, may not have run so smothly as those on the other side. It is evident that the Editor of the Freemason (the paper from which the extract was taken) arrived at his conclusions solely from an ex parte statement; or it is quite possible that the article may have been written by the same hand which is supposed to have concocted the speeches. Be that as it may, it was manifestly unfair to come to any conclusion or to express decided opinions before hearing what was to be said on the other side!

Now, what are the facts. On 7th March (one day after the District Grand Lodge met) the most numerous and influential meeting of the members of the three Constitutions ever held in Queensland took place in the Masonic Hall, having been called by public advertisement, and open to all who wished to attend. The actual number of those who signed the attendance roll was as follows :—There were 63 of the English, 69 of the Scotch, and 84 of the Irish Constitution—216 in all. Of this number only seven voted against the establishment of a Grand Lodge of Queensland, and one of those was not an English Mason, so that really 63 of the 69 English Masons present were in favour of the new Grand Lodge; and when it is considered that strong efforts have been made to prevent the attendance of the English Masons, the result of the voting shows what the real opinion of those present was.

The Grand Lodges of South Australia, New South Wales and Victoria were at once recognised by the Grand Lodge of England. The highest and most influential Mason in England, or perhaps in the world—the Prince of Wales—has most unhesitatingly expressed his approval of the formation of Grand Lodges in the Colonies, believing that they would greatly extend the influence and power of the Order; and it is manifest that those who oppose his wishes disobey the supreme authority of the English Constitution.

It would appear from the tone of the utterances from those opposed to the Queensland Grand Lodge, that the English Constitution is the principal representative of Queensland Masonry. Figures prove the opposite. There are not more than 32 Masonic bodies holding authority under English warrants, including the higher Degrees; while there are 45 under the Scotch and Irish Constitutions. The actual number of members of the two Constitutions is supposed to be nearly double that of the English, so that so far as numbers go an overwhelming majority is in favour of the proposed change.

Much more could be said on the subject, but I fear to make this letter too long.

Lastly, all discussion has been forbidden in the English Lodges on the subject of the Queensland Constitution, showing the fear which exists of the matter being fairly and openly discussed.

I am, Sir, &c.,

MASTER MASON.

To the Editor of the Brisbane Courier.

SIR,—It is not my intention to reply fully to the statements made by "Master Mason" on the above subject in this morning's Courier, as I do not thing the public print the proper place to conduct such a controversy. There are, however, one or two statements of fact, or want of fact, which might be drawn attention to. "Master Mason" says that at a meeting held on 7th March there were present 63 English, 69 Scotch, and 84 Irish Masons; and that, because when the vote was taken, only seven Masons were against the change, therefore 63 (sic) English Masons were in favour of the same. In this calculation the fact is lost sight of that, after the first hour, the English Masons were leaving the room by dozens, and that when the vote was taken, certainly not more than 15 remained; the eight who voted for the resolution representing the prime movers, &c. "Master Mason" goes on to say that there are only 32 Masonic Lodges in the colony holding English Warrants, against 45 Lodges holding Scotch and Irish Warrants. But in this calculation is included higher degrees, which form no part of the present agitation. They hold Warrants from different governing bodies altogether. The scheme under view is that of having a Grand Lodge for all the Blue Lodges, of which there are 31 English, against 28 Scotch and Irish. The English are practically unanimous against a change. Certain few members are of a different opinion, as there always will be amongst a large body of men. Would it not be better for those few to bow to the overwhelming majority, instead of working up the feeling of uneasiness at present existing. In conclusion, a great point is made of the way matters were managed in South Australia, but it hardly applies to this colony, for in South Australia the three District Grand Lodges were unanimous—here a very different feeling exists.

CRYPTIC MASONRY.

AT nine o'clock on the morning of the 19th ult., the Grand Council R. and S. Masters of Canada convened in the Masonic Hall, Owen Sound, being presided over by Grand Master Phil. J. Slatter, of Toronto. In his address the Grand Master referred to condition of the Rite, as follows :—"While I regret that I cannot chronicle any marked progress of the Order in my jurisdiction, it is pleasant to be able to say that there has been no retrogression, that peace and harmony prevail, that no grievances have been brought before me, and that no instances of personal or Masonic dispute have been submitted to me for decision." After referring in feeling language to the deaths of Rev. Canon Portal, master of New Rite in England, and Dr. Rob V. Morris, of Kentucky, Grand Master Slatter offered the following suggestions :—"I would strongly advise that a ritual be authorized by this Grand Council for use in this jurisdiction. At present we have none, and the work is, I know from visits made to the Council, not only this year but other years, apt to be inharmonious and incomplete, owing to the lack of the necessary literature. Indeed so generally is the lack of this felt that the degrees, owing to the bad equipment of those doing the work, are apt to be conferred rather than worked. I would also advise that this Grand Council communicate with the Grand Priory of Canada urging that membership in the Cryptic Rite be made preliminary and necessary to the conferring of Templar degrees. A knowledge of the beautiful mysteries of the Masonry of the Secret Vault could not be but an elevating and impressive introduction to the knowledge imparted in the degree of the Red Cross and those of the Crusader. I have always maintained that the Arch is incomplete without the Cryptic Rite, and the force of what I suggest should certainly be urged upon the Great Priory." The following is the result of the election of Officers :—David Taylor G.M., George J. Bennett D.G.M., David McLellan G.T., John Hetherington G.L., D. F. McWatt Grand Director of Ceremonies, J. K. Kerr, P. J. Slatter, D. Spry, and J. Patton, Executive Committee. It was recommended that the Grand Council meet at Toronto next year, on a date hereafter to be determined by the Grand Master. It was also suggested that the number of Inspectors-General be reduced to one, and a motion that the Executive Committee report at next meeting with regard to a revision of the constitution to that effect was carried.—Toronto Daily Mail.

At the annual meeting of All Saints Chapter, recently held at Gainsborough, the Election of Officers took place, as follows :—Comps. Alfred Kirk P.Z. re-appointed M.E.Z., Baines H., Baines J., Bowby S.E., H. Wright S.N., Liversidge P.Z. re-appointed Treasurer, A. Curtis Organist, and Scott Janitor.

A complimentary matinée to Sir Randal Roberts is announced, to take place on 25th September, at Terry's. On this occasion a new and original play will be produced, the artistes giving their services gratuitously. Tickets can be obtained of Mr. H. T. Brickwell, who has kindly consented to undertake the business management.

A Masonic Educational Fund has been established, under the District Grand Lodge, Eastern Division, of South Africa, and the Board of Management meet, at the Masonic Temple, King Williamstown, to further the objects of the Institution. We are not in possession of full particulars connected with the scheme, but we infer it is limited to the children or connections of Freemasons in that colony whose means are insufficient to meet such demands. By the last report the Treasurer had a credit balance in hand of £436 and the fund was being most successfully worked.

To the Governors and Subscribers of the

Royal Masonic Institution for Boys,

WOOD GREEN, LONDON, N.

DEAR MADAM OR SIR,

The post of Surgeon to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys at Wood Green being now vacant, I desire to offer myself as candidate for the same.

I have been residing within one minute's walk from the Institution for the last four years, and am intimately acquainted with the working of it.

I have the honour to append Testimonials of my professional life, and to state that if I am honoured by being appointed to the post, I shall always make it my best endeavour to work in harmony with my brother Officials.

I have the honour to remain,

Yours very obediently,

Lordship Lane, Wood Green, August 1889. R. F. TOMLIN, M.R.C.S.Eng., &c.

Copies of Testimonials received by R. F. Tomlin, Surgeon.

Devonport, 26th May 1873.

This is to certify that Mr. Robert Francis Tomlin became my Articled Pupil in September 1869, and remained with me till October 1870. During this time he was attentive to his duties and his studies, very punctual in his attendance, and always anxious to please. He has been with me occasionally during the last three years, and I find he is prosecuting his studies with Exemplary Diligence, and gives proof of great ability and unremitting application to his work.

JOSEPH MAY, Surgeon.

21 Grosvenor, Bath, 23rd July 1889.

I am pleased to state that Mr. R. F. Tomlin acted as assistant to my late father-in-law, Dr. Leahy, of Bridgend, during the years 1873 and 1874, and gave him every satisfaction. He considered him most skilful and attentive to his patients. The practice was chiefly amongst colliers, railway men, and iron-workers, so that his opportunities for surgical work were very great.

W. S. STABLES, L.S.A. (Lond.).

Becket House Wantage, 23rd July 1889.

Having known Mr. R. F. Tomlin most intimately for the last Fourteen Years, I can bear every testimony to his Character and Abilities, both professionally and socially.

After having been with me for four years as Assistant, he joined me in partnership, and it was with deep regret that, owing to circumstances relating solely to myself, our connection had to be broken, and I need hardly say that he took away with him the hearty good wishes of a large number of patients, by whom he had been much valued for his kind and skilful services. He is thoroughly qualified for the post of Surgeon to the Masonic Schools, for which I understand he is a candidate, alike by his kindness and industry, as by his professional knowledge and experience, and I feel quite sure in him the Governors will find a most painstaking and efficient Officer.

At the conclusion of the Lodge there was a banquet at the Foresters' Hall, which was well attended. The usual toast list was gone through, and the health of the Prov. Grand Master was, at the call of the Rev. E. J. Nepean, drunk with much enthusiasm.

MARK MASONRY.

—:o:—

P. G. LODGE OF NORTHUMBERLAND AND DURHAM.

ON the 20th inst., the annual meeting of the Prov. Grand Lodge of Northumberland and Durham was held in the Freemasons' Hall, under the banner of St. Cuthbert's Lodge, at Berwick-on-Tweed, when there was a very good gathering of the "cream" of Masonry, as the members of the Mark Degree have been so felicitously termed by the R.W. Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Rev. Canon Tristram, D.D., P.P.G. Chaplain of England, who has presided over the destinies of Northumberland and Durham Mark Masonry with such conspicuous ability for the past 16 years. The meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge was opened by the Provincial Grand Master, R.W. Brother Canon Tristram, and the following Officers of the Lodge:—Bros. R. B. Reed D.P.G.M., T. Y. Strachan Past D.P.G.M., John Strachan P.G.S.W., J. C. Moor P.G.J.W., W. F. Carmon P.G.S.O., J. F. Wilson P.G.J.O., J. S. B. Bell P.G. Treasurer, Wm. Davidson P.G.R.M., J. Straker Wilson P.G. Secretary, G. S. Riddle P.G.S.D., D. G. Andersen P.G.J.D., J. Ferguson P.G.S.I. of W., Thos. Bell P.G.D. of C., Wm. Brown P. G. Standard Bearer, Richard Lock P.G.I.G., J. Curry P.G. Tyler, and among Prov. and other Officers were Bros. M. Corbitt,

T. Coulson, J. Page, C. S. Lane, A. Robertson, J. Wood, W. Logan, T. Dinning, T. J. Armstrong, R. Thompson, J. R. Patterson, Geo. Porteous, Adam Wilson, R. Whitfield, C. Spencer, T. Purvis, T. Metcalf, W. Slater, T. Horn, A. S. Cockburn, A. H. Miller, T. M. Morrison, Wm. Green, W. P. Carr, W. Burr, R. Craik, Dr. Carr, J. A. Forbes, G. Moor, J. Baker, &c. The annual report of the General Purposes Committee, read by the Provincial Grand Secretary, showed that the Order continued to prosper. Forty new members had been added during the year, and deducting those struck off, the net gain was 12. The amount subscribed by Provincial Grand Mark Lodge to the various Masonic Charities from 1873 to 1888 was £245 15s. The accounts showed a balance of £28 17s in hand, out of which the Committee recommended that £15 15s be given to the Mark Benevolent Fund, and £10 to the Mark Educational Fund. On the motion of Bro. R. H. Reed, seconded by Bro. T. G. Strachan, the report was unanimously adopted. The roll of Lodges of the Province was afterwards called, when reports were presented from each, all showing a more or less steady increase. The Provincial Grand Master (Rev. Canon Tristram), in the course of his address to the Provincial Grand Lodge, said it gave him very great pleasure to preside over them for the sixteenth time since his appointment. Ever since he had the honour of being their Provincial Grand Master, the number of Lodges and the membership thereof had steadily increased, and he was glad at the prosperity now shown. It gave him great satisfaction to find that every Lodge was reported on the occasion of their visiting the Northumberland Lodge of the Province, and he was sure they were all very gratified with the reception the brethren of St. Cuthbert's Lodge had so hospitably given them. He acknowledged the able services of his Deputy Provincial Grand Master and the Officers for the year. The Committee of General Purposes and the Auditors for the year were then appointed, and Bro. J. St. B. Bell was re-elected P.G. Treasurer. The Provincial Grand Master then invested the following Officers for the ensuing year :—

Bro. R. B. Reed	...	Deputy Master
J. Straker Wilson	...	Senior Warden
Richard Luck	...	Junior Warden
H. T. Heron	...	M.O.
Adam Wilson, M.D., W.M. 346	...	S.O.
Jos. Robson Pattison W.M. 124	...	J.O.
Rev. E. Thornton	...	Chaplain
Robt. Whitfield W.M. 293	...	Registrar of Marks
C. B. Ford	...	Secretary
J. S. B. Bell	...	Treasurer
A. Mayne, M.D.	...	S.D.
A. S. Cockburn	...	J.D.
M. J. Wheatley	...	Inspector of Works
Thos. Bell W.M. elect 356	...	D.C.
Chas. Spencer	...	Sword Bearer
Thos. Metcalfe W.M. 39	...	Standard Bearer
W. Mayson	...	I.G.
W. Green	...	Organist
Joshua Curry	...	Tyler

The place of meeting for next year was fixed at Durham. The Lodge was afterwards closed in due form. In the evening the brethren dined together at the King's Arms Hotel, under the presidency of the Rev. Canon Tristram, whose health was proposed in most flattering terms by Bro. T. Y. Strachan. In reply the P.G.M. gave a very eloquent address on the historical connection of the Mark Degree, which proved most interesting. He also proposed the health of Bro. R. B. Reed, and Bro. Reed replied. The health of the Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge was responded to by Bro. John Strachan. Bro. Thos. Bell very ably discharged the duties of D. of C.

On the 18th proximo, the P.G.M. the Earl of Lathom Deputy Grand Master of England, will hold the annual meeting of the Province of West Lancashire, the most influential in the country, containing, as it does, nearly 190 Lodges and many thousands of members. The assembly will be held at Barrow-in-Furness, and it will take into consideration the usual routine business, other important matters, and the reports of the various Charities, &c. It is expected that a large number of brethren from Liverpool and other districts will attend.

At a general meeting of the Blackwater Lodge, No. 1977, held at the Blue Boar Hotel, Maldon, Bro. W. Rudrum S.W., was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year

"Masonic Orations," by Bro. L. P. METHAM P.G.D. (England) P.D. Prov. G.M. Devon, &c., delivered in Devon and Cornwall, from A.D. 1866, at the Dedication of Masonic Halls, Consecration of Lodges and Chapters, Installations, &c. With an introduction by Bro. Wm. James Hughan P.G.D. (England), &c., on Freemasonry in Devon and Cornwall. Edited by Bro. John Chapman P.M. 1402, &c. London: George Kenning, 16 Great Queen Street, W.C.

IT is a well recognised fact that as a special feature in all important Masonic functions the Oration must not be overlooked, and it is also as fully recognised that we have in our midst many active and talented brethren who are ready at all times to supply such an address as the special features of the ceremony may demand. Our good Brother the late Rev. A. F. A. Woodford spared no amount of labour to make the Orations he was called upon to deliver from time to time of interest to the advanced Masonic Student, while hundreds of our younger brethren were led on to a study of the literature and history of the Craft after they had had the opportunity of listening to the teachings of this eloquent and learned Craftsman. Another diligent student on the same lines is the author of the work now under notice, and it was a happy suggestion that prompted our Bro. the Rev. L. P. Metham to publish a collection of the principal addresses delivered by him—at the celebration of public events in the Provinces of Cornwall and Devon—in the course of a Masonic career extending from 1866 to the present time. As a matter of course, the majority of these addresses have previously been published, but they will be none the less welcome in their collected form on that account. Bro. Chapman P.M. 1402 has superintended the production of the book, and it has been handsomely printed by Bro. George Kenning. Bro. W. J. Hughan, P.G.D., who, notwithstanding the many calls upon his time, always seems to have a few hours to spare whenever his services are in request, has written a most interesting introduction, which is thus spoken of by a writer in the Western Daily Mercury :—Bro. Hughan stands probably second to none in England for the attention that he has given to the great historic past of the Masonic world, to whose study he has devoted a large portion of his life. He commences his account of Freemasonry in Devon and Cornwall with a few words on the Masonic career of the Orator, prior to a short history of the Fraternity of the two counties. From this it appears that our Rev. Bro. Metham was initiated in Lodge Sincerity, No. 189, East Stonehouse, on 21st March 1844, and from thence he proceeded through various degrees till in 1867 the Earl of Zetland invested him as Junior Grand Deacon of England, "in commemoration of which the brethren of the three towns presented our brother with a full dress suit of Grand Lodge clothing." The further career of Bro. Metham is briefly stated, and his great work of honorary Secretary of the Royal British Female Orphan Asylum is ably condensed. The fraternal feelings and the high regard in which his brother Masons hold his work is shown in their generous contributions towards this Asylum, which amount to nearly £1800, while he has been equally regardful of the claims of the orphans of those who have died in the country's service by obtaining the election of thirty-five orphans into the Asylum. Bro. Hughan then gives details of the earliest of the Lodges of the two counties, the premier Lodge being formed in Exeter in the year 1732. We must leave the reader who is interested to consult the work itself for an account of the progress of the Brotherhood in both counties. In 1866 the late beloved Rev. John Huyshe was appointed Provincial Grand Master of Devon. The Freemasons of the Province subscribed for and presented him with a beautiful and costly gold chain, as an heirloom to the Province, to descend from each retiring Provincial Grand Master to his successor. They also subscribed 500 guineas, at another period, to purchase the "Huyshe Presentation Fund" in the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. The gold chain is now worn by Lord Ebrington, who has, in the kindest manner, effected an insurance on his own life, so that the privilege of presentation to the Boys' School may be continued by his lordship's successor. The Masons have certainly lived very much up to the great standards that they have set up, for their works are seen in many other benevolences to which we have not even alluded. The book also contains, in addition to the twenty-five Orations, lists of the Lodges and Chapters in the two counties. We may add that the price of the work is five shillings, and whatever profit may accrue from its publication will be given to the Royal British Female Orphan Asylum, of which the distinguished Orator still remains the zealous honorary secretary.

At a recent meeting of the United Grand Lodge of Victoria, the first since its inauguration in March last, at the Masonic Hall, Melbourne, Sir Wm. J. Clarke, the Grand Master, occupied the chair, and there was a large attendance of Masons. Considerable discussion arose upon the report of the Board of General Purposes, and the meeting did not adjourn until after midnight. The salary of the Grand Secretary was fixed at £500 per annum, the Grand Secretary for Foreign Correspondence at £100 per annum, and the Assistant Secretary at £200 per annum. The question as to the recognition of past rank conferred on members of the late Victorian Constitution was left for consideration at a future date. A considerable amount of general business was transacted before the meeting terminated.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

—:o:—

THE FREDERICK WEST LODGE, No. 2222.

THIS popular Lodge celebrated its Second Annual Ladies' Excursion on Tuesday last, the 20th inst. In the early morning the prospects of the party—having regard to the weather—were anything but promising; a heavy gale prevailed almost all over England during Monday night, and the downpour of rain in the morning of Tuesday was almost sufficient to damp the ardour of the most venturesome. However, the brethren of the "Four Twos" do their spiriting in no perfunctory fashion; what they undertake they enter upon thoroughly, and with such a spirit pervading their "chiefs," success is almost certain to follow. This was eminently the case on the occasion under notice. The Frederick West may be said to be almost a "family" Lodge; we have therein three Hughes, three Lanes, and three Mayos; and this in a membership of something under five and twenty. The Lodge was consecrated on the 22nd December 1887, and Bro. R. T. Elsam P.M. 201, &c., was its first Worshipful Master. Brother John Hughes P.M. 901 now wields the gavel, and he has associated with him in the government of the Lodge his Brothers David and Daniel, who respectively occupy the chairs of Senior and Junior Warden. The Lodge holds its meetings at Bro. John Mayo's noted hostelry, the Castle Hotel, East Molesey, and when this fact is under consideration in connection with a "Ladies' Day," no marvel that "Silvery Thames" should be requisitioned for their delectation and enjoyment. The programme of the day was drawn somewhat on the lines laid down for last year's outing, and embodied a trip on a steam launch, with luncheon on board; a "call" at some noted house of entertainment up the river, and then back to Bro. Mayo's, where the banquet was to be served; the day's festivities to be brought to a close by the fair ladies and their devoted swains exercising themselves in the mazy dance. The Brothers Hughes were early upon the scene, and about 11 a.m. the party took to the water, and a start was effected. Amongst those present were the W.M. Bro. J. and Mrs. Hughes; the S.W. Bro. David and Mrs. David Hughes, with the J.W. Bro. Daniel Hughes. The I.P.M. was accompanied by Mrs. Elsam; whilst others of the party comprised Bro. Idiens (2045) and Miss Sanders, Bro. Watkins (901) and Mrs. Watkins, Mr. T. Elsam and the Misses (three) Elsam, Mr. and Mrs. Dawson, Brother Thomas, Bro. Sam Hewett (1614) and Mrs. Hewett, Bro. Horace White (P.M. 1257) and Mrs. White, Bro. J. Piller (2222) and Mrs Piller, Bro. and Mrs. Parrott, Bros. John and Joseph Mayo and Miss Mayo, Bro. Barton (946) and Mrs. Barton, Mr. Sheppard, Mr. Tribe, Bro. Bennett (2222), Bro. W. Lane (P.M. 1638, &c.), Bro. Le Fevre, Bro. Watts (1249) and Mrs. Watts, Bro. F. Lockett (2222), Bro. W. W. Morgan (P.M. 211), &c. Notwithstanding the gusts of wind that prevailed throughout the day, the water trip was thoroughly enjoyed; the rain fortunately kept off. The "Princess Beatrice," the steam launch engaged for the occasion, is roomy and well appointed, while the creature comforts of the assembly had been adequately provided for by Bro. John Mayo and his assistants. Music, of course, had been considered an essential, and this was well supplied by the band of Mr. Neave (of Molesey), whose efforts in this regard are always appreciated. As we have already stated, a special feature of the day was the "friendly call," and for this occasion the "Pack Horse" at Staines was the favoured spot. At this popular resort our party was received by one of the proprietors (the Brothers Raynor), who, with his wife, gave their guests a cordial greeting. Here a vocal concert was improvised, and a friendly glass quaffed to our good friends the Brothers Raynor, with the hope that the venture they have embarked in at Staines may result profitably, and that they may be as successful as public caterers as in days past they proved themselves to be as public entertainers. But the signal for the return journey has been given; the ship must again be taken, and now we have as a companion vessel the popular Oxford boat, which for the nonce shares with us the locks from Staines to Molesey. Back at the Castle, the order is for a wash and a brush up, and then Brother John Mayo serves the banquet This was of an eminently récherché character; the quality of the viands was of the best, while the cooking and service was perfection. On the removal of the cloth, the Loyal toast was given, and was cordially greeted. Brother R. T. Elsam, in brief terms, submitted the health of the W.M., and gracefully recognised the efforts Bro. John Hughes had made for the happiness and comfort of the party. Bro. John Hughes suitably replied, and after the services of Bro. Lockett (dubbed for the occasion, by an irreverent brother, "the ubiquitous Freddy") had been commended, Bro. John Mayo was complimented, and then the room was cleared for dancing, which was kept up with spirit till 1 a.m. For ourselves—we cannot now so well stand these long hours as in days of yore—it was with reluctance we left the genial assembly, by the 11·5 p.m. train from Hampton Court.

KINGSWOOD LODGE, No. 2278.

THE regular meeting of this Lodge was held at Elstree, on Thursday, the 8th inst., under the presidency of the acting I.P.M., Bro. John Petch, supported by Bros. E. Blinkhorn, H. T. Nell acting S.W., George T. Chretien acting J.W., W. Ball Secretary, C. M. Coxon S.D., T. C. Berg acting J.D., W. H. Aplin I.G., G. Couchman Tyler, T. Williams Assist. Tyler, R. W. Nicole, E. H. Moore, and J. W. Rattenbury, and the following visitors:—Bros. T. C. Berg I.P.M. 1613, T. A. Blyth 1804, J. Copestick P.M. 869 P.P.G.W. Herts, T. H. Martin W.M. 1385, S. Scott-Young W.M. 226, R. Wright P.S.W. 454 (S.C.), Newfoundland, A. Rodger P.S.W. 454 (S.C.), Newfoundland, and L. H. Ingram Lodge Kilwinning, Ontario. The Lodge having been opened, the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Bros. E. H. Moore, R. W. Nicholl, and T. Williams were raised to the degree of M.M. The ceremony in the case of the two first named brethren was ably performed by the Secretary Bro. W. Ball, by his wish. Bro. J. W. Rattenbury was passed to the degree of F.C. The candidate for initiation was unable to attend. He will, therefore, present himself at the next meeting. The names of two gentlemen, candidates for initiation, were proposed and seconded, and that of one brother as a joining member. This completing the business, the Lodge was closed. The brethren afterwards reassembled for the banquet, and the W.M. proposed the customary toasts, coupling with that of the Provincial Grand Master and the Prov. Grand Officers the name of Bro. Copestick P.P.G.W., assuring him of the pleasure it gave the Lodge at any time to receive visits from the Provincial Grand Officers. Bro. Copestick, in reply, thanked the brethren for the hearty reception accorded to the toast. He eulogised the Provincial Grand Master for the services he rendered to Freemasonry in his Province, and trusted that the Kingswood Lodge might, at no very distant date be again honoured by the presence of the Prov. Grand Master, Bro. T. F. Halsey, M.P. This remark was very warmly received. Bro. E. Blinkhorn proposed the health of the acting W.M., which was replied to. The Worshipful Master then proposed the health of the Visitors, saying it was with a large amount of pleasure that they welcomed their visitors on that occasion; they were delighted to have the opportunity of extending such hospitality as was within their means to distinguished brethren of the Province, from London, and from our distant colonies, and hoped that it might often be their privilege to do so. They had visitors that evening who had been amongst them before—notably, Bro. Scott-Young, who had again so kindly assisted in the musical arrangements, and to whom they were much indebted. He was also pleased to welcome the Worshipful Master of another Lodge in the Province, Bro. Martin 1385. This toast was received very heartily. Bro. Wright 454 (S.C.), Newfoundland, in reply, said it was the second time he had visted the Kingswood Lodge, and he might tell the brethren that whenever he was on this side of the Atlantic, if he did not receive an invitation to visit them he should feel aggrieved. He was delighted to be present. Bro. Rodger, of the same Lodge, also spoke in very cordial terms of the kindly feelings shown them by their brethren in the old country. Bro. Scott-Young W.M. 226 said he was becoming a frequent visitor. He was pleased to meet again the brethren from the colonies, as their presence showed the universality of the science. He complimented the Lodge on the work done. Bro. Ingram, Ontario, thanked the brethren for the reception accorded them. He was much impressed by the working on this side, as well as by the kindly welcomes he received. He could not say that Freemasonry would make a bad man a good one, but he was convinced that it would make a good man a better one. Bros. Copestick, Martin, Berg, and Blyth also briefly acknowledged the compliment. The W.M. proposed the Treasurer and Secretary. He regretted the absence of their worthy Treasurer, Bro. Pheasant, through indisposition; he could only say of him that he was a splendid Officer of the Lodge, and knew well how to take care of the funds. Bro. W. Ball replied, thanking the brethren on behalf of the Treasurer. For himself, he was about to cross the Atlantic again, and should, unfortunately, be absent at the next meeting. He hoped the brethren would think of him when the Tyler's toast was given—not as a poor and distressed brother, but as one who desired a speedy return to his native land. The health of the Officers having been given and acknowledged, Bro. Wright, Newfoundland, claimed indulgence from the W.M. on behalf of the visitors. They had received so much kindness from the brethren that they could not separate without drinking with the utmost heartiness and goodwill—Prosperity to the Kingswood Lodge. The W.M. briefly thanked the visitors for their good wishes, so ably expressed. The Tyler's toast closed the proceedings. Bros. Scott-Young, Blyth, Moore, and Blinkhorn assisted in promoting the harmony of the evening, by contributing some excellent songs, and the meeting proved a very pleasant and successful one.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Worcester will be held in the Town Hall, Stourport, on Wednesday, the 11th day of September, at 12 o'clock at noon. The R.W. Brother Sir Edmund A. H. Lechmere, Bart., M.P., is the Provincial Grand Master, and W. Brother A. F. Godson, M.P., P.G.D. England, P. Prov. G.S.W., is the Deputy Prov. Grand Master. A banquet will be served at 4·30 p.m., at the Swan Hotel, Stourport, for which tickets (6s 6d each) may be procured from the Provincial Grand Stewards.

The members of St. Aubyn Lodge, No. 954, had their annual outing on Wednesday, the 14th inst. The brethren, with their wives and other relatives, drove to the Bedford Hotel, Tavistock, where a substantial luncheon was served, and, after visiting the Horticultural Exhibition and viewing objects of interest in the locality, the company drove home, Devonport being reached at a quarter to eleven. An enjoyable day was spent, in spite of the weather.

"There is not in nature anything so remotely distant from God, or so extremely opposite to Him, as a greedy and griping niggard."

GLEANINGS.

Freemasonry is by many regarded as one of the many delusions of the wicked One to lure men on to destruction and perdition. Hence the attitude of some sections of the Christian Church is hostile, only hostile, and that continually. But the brethren of the Craft themselves profess to be animated by a desire to search into the hidden mysteries of nature and science, and to be in the regular Apostolic Succession of the wise men who came from the east to Jerusalem in the infancy of Christianity. Nay, they claim to be predecessors of those wise men as well as the successors. In the time of Solomon they were employed in building the Temple, but since then they have been, as a rule, not operative, but rather speculative, or free and accepted Masons, and apply all the principles of the Craft to the enforcement of moral precepts. Certainly there is no sign of the cloven foot in any of the proceedings of the Grand Lodge, which met recently in Owen Sound. About four hundred and fifty delegates from all parts of the Province assembled, for the transaction of business. Among these are some of the most prominent men in the clerical, legal, and medical professions, as well as the most successful business men in all walks of life. The Order certainly is not lacking in respectability, if the social status of its membership counts for anything. Some figures gleaned from the address of the Grand Master may be of interest. They have a Benevolent Fund with a capital of 69,000 dollars, of which 60,000 is invested, and the remainder in the bank. They have paid out in aid to the needy among their members, including their widows and orphans, over 150,000 dollars during the last twenty-five years. The average annual disbursements during the last few years have been 11,000 dols. They have now upon their list of pensioners three hundred and fifty-five widows, fifty-five orphans, and thirty-one needy brethren. Their receipts during the past year amounted to over 17,000 dollars. They contemplate having a big centennial demonstration in 1892, when delegates will be present from all parts of the continent. Their next annual meeting will be held in the city of Kingston. What is the matter with the Craft in Orillia? They do not appear to have been represented at the Grand Lodge.—Orillia Packet.

Don't go to the Lodge to find fault, to raise a row, to talk of friendship when you mean hate, determined to set yourself on edge with any that come near you. Try the antithesis of this. Speak kindly to all. If you disagree with a brother, do so in such a charitable spirit that your words will influence your hearers, and perchance you may bring a flood of harmony where discord abounded. Courtesy costs nothing. Cheap, is it not? Try it. The elixir of life is not half as palatable.

In love for one another let us be real—not hollow. The curse of our fraternity is the brother who grasps your hand, utters pleasant sentences, and winds up by some remark that savours so much of business that you feel like either casting your apron from you or pitching the so-called brother from the dormer window.

A live, true, worthy Mason, is one who regularly attends his Lodge, discharging all the duties incumbent upon him as a member of the Craft, studies to understand the living principles of, and remembers every point in, his covenant. He thinks enough of Masonry to make some sacrifices in its interest.

Keep clear of the brother who blaspheme. It is the curses heard in Lodge ante-rooms that sicken many a man who thought that Masonry was free from such muck.

We are sometimes on the keen edge of discontent with our brother. We snap and snarl at every word, forgetting the hour when we bonded our life to his in the woven strands of good-will and charity.

The sunlight of friendship should gladden us as we meet in our Lodge rooms. Life is so mingled with joy and sorrow that we ought to make the most of the happy hours when we meet upon the checkered floor.

A good name, when deserved, gives a strength and mild courage, quiet boldness and modest assurance, which are worth all that they cost.

A man, to be of any account in this world, must stand up for truth, and back his opinions by integrity. A skulking, deceptive, self-seeking man is devoid of these potent elements of character, and, after a time, is lost in the fog of worldly contempt, and is forgotten; while the man of truth and integrity, though for a moment he forfeit popular applause, is sure to command universal respect and to win at last.

When we meet a man who never changes any of his opinions, never corrects any of his mistakes, and is not wise enough to discover any mistakes in himself, we at once make up our mind that he is a poor judge of human nature, that he is destitute of charity, and has pastured upon selfishness based upon conceit. Such men are of no account in the mart where goodness and truth are dealt out. Members of our fraternity will do well to try "to see themsel's as ithers see them."

THE SOCIAL TIE.—Freemasonry in all its branches is a social brotherhood, and while teaching a "beautiful system of morality, veiled in allegory and illustrated by symbols," it will fail if the social element is neglected. The social tie is the tie which binds, and these organizations have originated to supply a social necessity. Man was created a helpless and dependent being, and it is a natural heaven-born impulse that compels him to seek companionship with his fellow man; and if he finds it not among those he was taught to recognise by the endearing title of brother, he will leave Masonry. The ritual with all its beauties will in time fail to attract, independent of anything else. The following old Latin maxim is a good one, and applies to Masonry as well as some other societies: "Ridentem dicere verum, quid retat."

WHAT IS A SQUARE?—This question is often asked in our Lodge rooms and readily answered. But beyond lines of measurement, it has a meaning of far deeper import in its relations to human action.

1. It is to avoid intemperance and excess.
2. It is to be humane in our treatment of our fellow-men.
3. If we obey the above, we shall treat our dumb animals with kindness.
4. It is to give good weight and measure, and tell the truth at all times about the wares we may sell.
5. It is to avoid evil speaking and slander. We are brothers, and it is unbecoming in brothers to speak evil of each other.
6. It is to try by all the means within our power, to do all we can to aid our brother man, by words of good cheer and deeds of love and mercy.

Such is our answer as to what is a square.—Masonic Journal.

It is well to keep in view the duties that Freemasonry enjoins. They will never be changed, and require self-denial. When a profane makes up his mind to seek our mysteries he ought to be told plainly that the good he will receive from them will be what happiness one gives by performing acts of charity from motions wholly unselfish. To do good without hope of fee or reward is the motive which should actuate seekers after light in Masonry.

How many of the bitter animosities of the Lodge room might be allayed, and how much happier would we feel with our brethren if before we uttered the harsh word in debate we gave but a thought to the principle in the keystone of that arch which binds us in sweet charity with all, be he brother or friend.

A GOOD DEFINITION.—In the course of a Masonic sermon, delivered in New Rothesay Established Church, the Rev. W. W. Tullock, of Glasgow, said he rejoiced to bring Freemasonry prominently before the people of the country, seeing that the Order was a great moral force, which largely helped on the redemption of the world from evil. In its Lodges the peer was on a level with the peasant, and the peasant could take precedence of the peer, if he were a better Mason. Masonry was subservient to no creed or colour, but was at work all over the world for the moral and spiritual welfare of mankind.

TRUE CONCEPTION OF MASONRY.—How infinitely removed from the true conception of the Masonic essence are those who see or expect in Masonry nothing but a society for ameliorations and benefits? These are temporal concerns; material objects sought according to convenience and circumstance. Far be it from my thoughts to detract, by remotest insinuation or inference, from the merit of those institutions which men have organised for mutual benefit. They are praiseworthy; they are useful; they relieve distress, and shelter against poverty and want. But they are neither a substitute nor an equivalent for Freemasonry. They are as far removed from it as the image of some partial superstition is removed from the One Infinite. Masonry is more than "a beautiful system of morality." No definition can lay down its scope or measure its extent. Its soul is truth; its mission, the brotherhood of man; a vague generality, perhaps, to the superficial mind, but a well-defined substance to the thoughtful and the earnest. Ordinary morality, uprightness of life, charitable impulse, these are the common attributes of all good men, be they Masons or no. But Freemasonry combines them into higher uses and nobler purposes. It teaches not only morality, but also equality; not only charity, but also toleration; the fraternity, not of Masons, only as such, but the fraternity of the human race. When we speak of the "universality of Masonry," we assume something more than a mere historic or geographical fact. We do not mean only that Masonry can and does flourish everywhere; but that, in its essence, it is universal; in its nature, benevolent; in its objects, ideal; striving to fit man for a condition of perfect moral and social communism, where geography traces no boundaries and history erects no boastful monuments; where we are content to forget and forgive, remembering only the points of fellowship, our fears, our hopes, our common struggle and our common destiny.—Charles F. Buck G.M. La.

MASONRY MULTIPLIES FRIENDSHIPS.—Man's greatest need on earth is friendship, constant, true and helpful. Masonry multiplies friendships. The quality of sweet friendship, like that of her sister, mercy, is not strained. It blesses him who gives, and him who takes, and so on to the end. Let our aim and efforts ever be to establish and maintain true and abiding friendships, and he will teem with richer blessings.—P.G.M. Congdon, of New York.

COMPANION.—It was not until near the close of the last century that the word Companion was used to designate a Royal Arch Mason. In the records of St. Andrew's Chapter the term is first applied October 20, 1795, on which date Thomas S. Webb, of Temple Chapter, Albany, N. Y., was present as a guest of St. Andrew's Chapter. It was about this time that considerable changes in the Royal Arch Ritual and system took place—changes largely due to the fashioning hand of Webb—and most likely the word Companion was then introduced to distinguish Royal Arch Brethren from Master Masons. Companion is a word of less general use and application than Brother. Dr. Mackey, in pointing out the difference in the meaning of the two terms, says: "The latter refers to the universal Fatherhood of God and the universal brotherhood of man; but the former represents a companionship or common pursuit of an object—the common endurance of suffering or the common enjoyment of happiness. Companion represents a closer tie than Brother. The one is a natural relation shared by all men; the other a connection, the result of choice, and confined to a few. All men are our brethren, but not all are our Companions."

HOPE LODGE, No. 618 (E.C.)

THIS Lodge met at the Masonic Hall, Launceston, on Tuesday, the 25th June, for the purpose of installation, and about 60 members were present, including representatives of town and country Lodges. Worshipful Deputy D.G. Master E.C., Bro. R. J. Sadler, acted as Installing Officer, and was assisted by P.M.'s Bros. C. H. F. Shearn and W. Horne. The following Officers were installed and invested for the ensuing year:—Bros. H. C. Hallowes W.M., C. H. F. Shearn I.P.M., A. M'Connell S.W., H. White J.W., W. Horne Treasurer, Jas. Scott Secretary, C. J. Newey S.D., W. Martin J.D., J. H. Bryan Organist, A. J. Green and G. H. Lee Stewards, A. North I.G., E. Williams O.G. Two presentations of Past Master's jewels were made by Bro. Sadler, on behalf of the members initiated during their respective terms of office as W.M.'s, to Bros. R. S. Scott and Jas. Scott. Both jewels were inscribed with the names of the initiates. At the conclusion of the business the members sat down to a banquet, where the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given.

PERFECT UNANIMITY LODGE, No. 660 (S.C.)

ON Monday evening, the 24th June, this Lodge met at the Masonic Hall, Launceston, for installation, when there was an excellent attendance of members and visitors, some 70 brethren being present. The visitors included representatives from Scottsdale, Lefroy, Lower Piper, Beaconsfield, and Longford, the Deputy D.G. Master E.C., attended by his Officers, the Provincial Grand Master I.C. being unable to attend, through ill-health. The R.W. D.G. Master S.C., Bro. P. Barrett, acted as Installing Officer, assisted by his Deputy D.G. Master, Bro. M. E. Robinson, and other Officers of the Scottish District. The following Officers were installed and invested for the ensuing Masonic year:—Bros. E. H. Sutton W.M., W. A. Macdougall I.P.M., F. J. Read S.W., J. M. Pardey J.W., W. A. Macdougall Treasurer, A. Kirkland (re-elected) Secretary, E. R. Fulton S.D., C. Eberhard J.D., F. Allison Steward, A. T. Cruikshanks I.G., R. E. Waters Tyler. The report and balance-sheet were presented, the general fund and benevolent fund both showing a credit balance. On behalf of the Officers of the Lodge, Bro. Kirkland presented the R.W. D.G. Master with a framed portrait group, well executed by Bro. S. Spurling, of the Officers of the Lodge, the autograph of each Officer appearing below his likeness. In making the presentation Bro. Kirkland said that it was but a faint expression of the pride in, and esteem for, their District Grand Master, entertained not only by the Officers, but also by the members of Perfect Unanimity. Bro. Barrett said he found words fail him in his endeavour to express his appreciation of this unexpected but gratifying indication of the esteem in which he is held in Masonic circles. The musical portion of the ceremonies was efficiently conducted by Bro. J. H. Bryan, and at the conclusion of the business the members and visitors adjourned to the banquet room, where a tastefully laid out banquet awaited them. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given, a pleasant social evening being spent.

TASMANIAN LODGE, No. 274.

THE regular quarterly Convocation of this Lodge of Mark Master Masons, was held at the Lodge Room, Murray-street, Hobart Town, on Wednesday, 5th June, the W.M., Bro. E. A. Marsden, presiding. After routine business had been transacted, the following Officers were appointed and installed for the ensuing year:—Bros. E. F. Lovett W.M., E. A. Marsden I.P.M., E. R. Roe S.W., R. F. Digges J.W., J. W. Toplis M.O., F. B. Pocock S.O., J. Blackley J.O., Rev. R. D. Poulett-Harris Chaplain, J. Chisholm Treasurer, J. G. Steele Secretary, W. O. Russell Registrar, W. J. Watchorn S.D., J. Patt J.D., E. J. Rogers Organist, H. L. D'Emden I.G., W. G. Beaumont O.G. Before the Lodge was closed a hearty vote of thanks was proposed by the W.M., and supported by Bros. Giblin, Allport, and Marsden, to Bro. R. S. Pink, for the valuable services rendered by him as Secretary for the past seven years.

CONCORDIA LODGE, No. 28.

ON Friday evening, the 21st June, the installation of Bro. Max Andresen as W.M. of this Lodge, took place in the Freemasons' Hall, Flinders-street, Adelaide, before a large and representative gathering of Freemasons, among whom were the M.W. the Grand Master (Bro. the Hon. S. J. Way, Chief Justice), Bro. H. C. E. Muecke P.G.M., and a large number of Grand Lodge Officers. The installation ceremony was performed in an able and impressive manner by the I.P.M., Bro. C. L. Meyer, assisted by Bro. Philip Sansom P.S.G.W. The W.M. then invested the folowing Officers:—Bros. F. Seessle S.W., A. Ornstein J.W., H. C. Böcker Treasurer, H. E. Allert Secretary, H. Schmidt S.D., H. Kasper J.D., D. Caro I.G., H. Schultz D.C., J. Shakespeare G.O. Organist, L. Wertheimer and W. Kindermann Stewards, N. Kildael Tyler. Before the close of the proceedings, Bro. C. L. Meyer I.P.M. was presented with a handsome P.M.'s jewel, on behalf of the members of the Concordia Lodge, by Bro. H. C. E. Muecke, who in an eloquent speech eulogised the many services rendered by him to the Craft. The recipient suitably responded. An adjournment was then made to the banqueting hall, where one of the largest assemblies ever gathered in that hall did ample justice to an excellent repast, in the Host (Brother Jene's) best style. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts followed. During the banquet the proceedings were enlivened by the musical contributions of several brethren.

EADE'S
GOUT & RHEUMATIC PILLS.

The SAFEST and most EFFECTUAL CURE for GOUT, RHEUMATISM, and all PAINS in the HEAD, FACE, and LIMBS.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL from the Rev. F. FARVIS, Baptist Minister.

Mr. G. EADE. March 19, 1887.

Dear Sir,—I have many times felt inclined to inform you of the benefit I have received by taking your Gout and Rheumatic Pills. After suffering for some time from Rheumatics and Sciatica, I was advised to use your Pills. I bought a bottle, and when in severe pain and unable to use the limb affected I took a dose. In a few hours after I felt the pain much better, and after the second dose the pain completely removed and the limb restored to its right use. I thank you, dear sir, for sending forth such a boon for the relief of human suffering.

Yours faithfully,
F. FARVIS,
Baptist Minister.

There are multitudes of people who look upon advertising as a sort of Lottery, and bestow infinitely more thought in the selection of a clerk at £100 a year than in the expenditure of £1000, or two in the same period in advertising. A tithe of the shrewdness displayed in all other branches of their business given to the management of their advertising will be amply repaid. The ADVERTISEMENT AGENT has become an indispensable factor in this matter of publicity, and his raison d'être is perfectly unassailable. Would you leave or enter a port without a pilot? Would you commence and prosecute a law suit without a legal adviser? Either of these courses would not be more foolish than rushing into expenses in Advertising without a competent practical and professional adviser. LODGE HISTORIES.

—:o:—

THE LODGE OF PROBITY, No. 61.

RESUMING our summary of Bro. Crossley's History of this Lodge, we now come to the 24th November 1762, when a regular meeting was held, at which Wm. Finch was initiated. In connection with this ceremony the minutes record the reading of "the several charges contained in the Book of Constitutions, as also our Bye Laws," and this gives rise to a query, in the book before us, as to how often this is now done, even in Lodges of superior working? We are afraid this must be regarded as an old-fashioned custom, either considered unnecessary nowadays, or "crowded out" in the ever increasing calls made on the Mason of the present time; while, on the other hand, the increased facilities which now exist for providing each member with a printed copy of the Bye Laws and other matters has, in part, made their frequent repetition in connection with the ceremonies all but unnecessary. It is by weighing such matters, apparently trivial in themselves, that we are able to gauge the advance and development of the Masonic Order, and form some sort of idea of the class of men who were associated with it in the earlier days of its establishment. Another peculiarity of these days is observable from the minutes, which record, on many occasions, that the Master had "duly and regularly gone thro' the apprentices work," even where there was no candidate to initiate. Our views on this point are known to our readers; we think it far better to have some regular routine of work, either the rehearsal of a ceremony, a lecture on one or other of the tracing boards, or a discussion on some topic of interest—the latter, as likely to be more attractive, for choice—set down for each Lodge meeting, so that, whether there is a candidate or not, the brethren may not lose the opportunity of being instructed in some of the working of Freemasonry, or its peculiar teachings.

Early in 1763 a Brother's "address to the Lodge was received for leave of absence till the 4th Wednesday in March." Bro. Crossley remarks this seems to imply that "the By-Laws were not only stringent, but the penalty was carried out." It would certainly be somewhat of a novel experience for a Lodge of the present day to be asked to excuse the absence of a member for two meetings, as was the case in 1763. The minute of the 8th June following is interesting. It is the first mention of the celebration of the Festival of St. John the Baptist, and is the first occasion where a new appointment of Officers is mentioned. Among these latter are the Senior and Junior Deacons, and this is accredited as being the first record, so far as has yet been discovered, of the appointment of Deacon in a Lodge under the Grand Lodge of England, though there is mention of this office in Lodges under the Antients. But, says the historian, the most strange appointment of the day is that of W.M., Bro. Wm. Gream being elected for the year. This brother was only initiated on the 23rd February preceding, was passed on the 23rd March, raised on the 9th May, and installed as W.M. on the 8th June—"advancement of a very rapid character, and one which in our time might be envied by such brethren who prefer high rank to hard Masonic plodding." From Watson's "History of Halifax" it seems this William Greame was "a gentleman of fortune, author of a short speech addressed to the Antient and honourable Society of Free and Accepted Masons . . . . . 24th June 1763," which address was printed by Brother P. Darby, 1763. Strenuous efforts have been made to discover a copy of this address, but so far without success. It would be very interesting, both locally and generally, but it is more than doubtful if it will ever be brought to light now. At this same meeting "the members present subscribed 12d each, making a total of 17s, which was given to Bro. Jas. Wilson, being an object of charity." On the 13th July 1763 "it was agreed to send to the Grand Lodge the sum of £2 2s as a gratuity." The minutes of 12th September 1764 show that the brethren of that period, like their fellows of to-day, were not wholly for themselves, but that they took an interest in outside affairs. It is recorded that on this date £31 10s was "subscribed by the members for the Defence of the Organ intended to be set up in Halifax Church, 22nd August 1764." This it appears was a sort of guarantee fund, to defray the costs of a suit which was entered into in opposition to the proposed organ. The guarantee amounted together to £720, of which twenty-five per cent. was ultimately called up, in order to pay the expenses incurred. Those who were in favour of the organ won the day.

On 9th January 1765, a "proposition for establishing a Royal Arch Lodge" was adopted. This Chapter was ultimately formed, the first meeting being held on the 30th of the same month. "This was the first known Royal Arch Chapter in the north of England, with the exception of the one at York; which at this time was in abeyance." About this time it was proposed to receive a Jew as a member of the Lodge, but the nomination was refused, proving that the Order in those days was not so cosmopolitan as it is at the present. A member was admitted at an Extraordinary Lodge, 28th October 1764, and subsequently passed and raised, whose certificate is still in possession of the Lodge, a fac simile thereof being introduced in the work under notice. This certificate is addressed "To the Right Worshipful Masters, Wardens and Brethren of the Antient and Honourable Society of Free and Accepted Masons," and, after recording the regular admission of the brother referred to, concludes, "He having behav'd himself as a worthy Brother, we recommend him to your Friendship and Protection, after due examination." It is signed by the Master, two Wardens and Secretary.

On 30th September 1765 the Lodge removed to the Old Cock Inn, particular care being apparently taken to see that the Lodge room was proof against "cowans." This remained the home of the Lodge until September 1782, when a move was made to the Union Cross Inn, from whence the Lodge returned to the Old Cock Inn in 1804, remaining there until 1869, when the present Freemasons' Hall was built. An Extraordinary Lodge meeting was held on 31st January 1766, to make arrangements for the members to attend the funeral of a Brother who died that morning. It was arranged that the whole body of the Lodge attend at the Lodge room the following Sunday, at 1 o'clock, in order to attend the said funeral. It appears that a pall, gloves for every member, and new plain aprons were ordered; and it is recorded that all the members assembled as arranged, the expenses paid by the Lodge totalling up to £4 17s 9d. On the 19th and 20th June following other Extraordinary Lodges were held, to arrange a similar sad mission, a member having died on the former date and his funeral taking place on the latter. The expenses on this occasion were £1 8s.

A disagreement occurred in 1766-7, which was settled, so far as the Lodge was concerned, in a somewhat novel manner. A ballot was taken whether one or both the disputants should be expelled. As a result one of the members had his half-year's subscription repaid him. Later on it appears the excluded brother was again put to the test of the ballot, when 12 voted for him and 6 against. He was not admitted, but was "at liberty to visit when he chose." On 11th February 1767 £10 was voted "to the distress'd people of Halifax, and others who are represented as worthy of Charity, or in real distress." New Bye-Laws were introduced at this time, and the copy then signed by each member being still in possession of the Lodge, a transcript is appended to the History. This is interesting in many ways, but principally from the fact that "the office of Deacon, which was not known previously to exist in Lodges under the Grand Lodge of England, is described, and the duties set forth, even as at the present day." It is to be noted that the office of Inner Guard had not then been inaugurated. In these Bye-laws the Lodge is named the Lodge of St. John the Baptist, and this appears to have been its title until 1795, when the name was changed to "Lodge of Probity." On 11th May 1768 it is "ordered y^t the Lodge will be always glad to see Bro. Senior without any expense to him, he being an old Standard and Well-wisher." About this time the members appear to have been in difficulties—monetary difficulties of a peculiar character. They did not know what to do with a balance of £20 odd they then possessed. They accordingly agreed to pay all Lodge expenses out of this for a year, at the conclusion of which it appears the Lodge was in debt 13s 6d. This is pointed out by Bro. Crossley as being a rather strange proceeding, especially as about this time the Lodge excused its contributions to Grand Lodge, on the plea that so much distress prevailed at home, and to relieve which heavy payments had been made by the Lodge. The Probity had a neighbour established in 1769—the Bacchus—to which we have already referred, and which was erased in 1783.

This concludes the history of the Lodge so far as its first minute book goes, namely, from June 1762 to June 1769. As Bro. Crossley observes, many changes took place in that period, short though it was. The fortunes of the Lodge ebbed and flowed, its members showed themselves full of good intentions and high aims, a fairly good roll of members resulted, but at the conclusion its record was a roll of twelve members and a balance to the debit of the Lodge.

In Chapter IV. we have the career of the Lodge from 1769 to 1780, and we are told that the heading to this should be "The Dark Ages"—"the Lodge was simply struggling on aimlessly, like a ship without a rudder, or an army without a leader." At one time the membership fell as low as five, yet regular meetings were held, and, above all, it would seem, the regulation number of suppers were enjoyed. The extracts of minutes given in this chapter are interesting, and we have little doubt the perusal of the minutes themselves proved even more so, especially to those who are now on the roll of the Lodge. At the close of this period (1780) the Lodge had a balance in hand of £20, so that there appears to have been a certain amount of good management, at least towards the end of the term, and we may accordingly look forward to an improvement when we have an opportunity of dealing with the fifth chapter of the History.

From an Address Delivered by Bro. J. Edwin Thomas, P.W. Grand Lecturer before the Masters' and Wardens' Association, Adelaide, 29th April 1889.

COMPLYING with the request made to me, that I should endeavour to provide for the consideration and thought of the brethren present some material whereon we all might exercise our intellectual faculties, I have ventured to reduce to writing some few crude and unpolished ideas of my own on the subject of "Masonic Ritual: Its Purpose and Treatment."

Standing as I do before many brethren of known experience and deserved repute, it behoves me to guard against any appearance of elevating my own ideas into undue and silly prominence or of arrogating to myself any assumptions which by their inflated character could but cover me with confusion. Admirer as I am of all true manliness and self confidence, I am, I trust, equally profound in my contempt for the distinguishing characteristics of the egotist and pretender. Let me hope, therefore, I shall succeed this evening in steering clear of all tendency to unduly magnify the wisdom of my remarks, and to be enabled to keep rightly within those bounds which are set between want of individuality on the one hand and a repugnant assertion of self-confidence on the other.

I shall not pretend to exhaust the subject, or to define within rigid and unalterable limits the height and the depth and the profundity of the subject set before us. It will entirely suffice me, if I succeed in initiating here this evening some organised effort on the part of able and enthusiastic Masons—many of whom are present with us, and very many more who are absent—which shall have for its object the more effectual elucidation and more general enlightenment of this most interesting and important subject. I sincerely trust, therefore, that my attempt will thus be but the first of many succeeding ones ventured on by brethren who ought and can from past study and experience help to the general improvement which is certainly needed.

Our chief object being, then, to attempt some inquiry as to the best method of interpreting and improving the rendering of our ritual, our primal duty is to form some true conceptions as to its use and aim. I can hardly imagine that we have among our members any of so crude Masonic education, or so devoid of intelligent thought, as to harbour any idea that our ritual means nothing; that it forms but an imposing function intended to enhance the solemnity of our proceedings by merely parading a mock ceremonial; that it affords an opportunity for certain brethren placed in superior rank to air their importance by cabalistic utterances; or that it is resorted to as a means whereby the initiate is awed or frightened into a serious conclusion as to the terrible degree of patronage which has been accorded him in suffering him to cross the mystic borderland which exists between the Freemason and the profane.

Brethren, I dare not assert that in no single instance has such deplorable result not be brought about in many a Lodge. I trust I am not over-depreciatory when I venture to assert that the manner, uncouth and often grotesque, in which I have heard the pregnant and full-meaning words of our ritual rendered by some brethren are capable of producing nothing but a gibe and a sneer from those who enter our fold, and find nothing therein upon their first entrance but husks and stubble and the empty paradings of a mock ceremonial and a badly performed function. It is no use attempting to conceal the well-known fact that many a brother has taken upon himself to be the employer and instructor of his brethren in Freemasonry with no other serious qualification than being the possessor of an inordinate craving for going through the whole series of offices with as little delay as he can control and as little application of thought as he cannot well avoid giving. Many, I regret to say, do not even attempt to carry out their work in such a manner as to gain any credit for themselves. This aim, at least, is human, if not strictly commendable.

What, then, does our ritual mean? The answer cannot be difficult to find. To me it is this—if Freemasonry be, as we are so taught, a peculiar system of morality, its ritual must be the allegory figurative of that system, and be the medium through which its "signs and secrets" are conveyed. To the superficial and unitiated it presents but a series of warnings, exhortations and charges, generally couched in language closely allied with geometrical figures and references which apparently mean nothing, and only serve the purpose of investing it with a peculiarity which renders it distinctively esoteric. To remove this should be the duty of every conscientious Master. His should be the task of elucidating its inward meaning, of leading the thoughts and serious consideration of his brethren to the truths which underlie its peculiar style of expression; and if he succeed, but in scant measure, he will lay the foundations whereon his brethren may raise a substantial superstructure at once noble in all its parts and honourable to the builders. The other day, whilst reading the delightful writings of Prof. Wilson, which are grouped under the title of Noctes Ambrosinæ, and having this effort of mine weighing upon my peace of mind, I instinctively connected the attributes of our ritual as enumerated by me with the following passage:—"Quoth the 'Shepherd,' as he sits wrapped in admiration at the learned disquisition of Christopher North on the 'Pleasures and dangers of Imagination'—'Listenin' to ye, sir, is like lookin' into a well. At first ye think it clear, but no verra deep; but ye let drap in a peeble, and what a length of time ere the air-bells come up to the surface frae the profoond!'"

And now, having made a bald and superficial review of the aims and objects of our ritual, let us consider how and in what manner it should be used and interpreted. Let me start off with the truism that no success in this direction can be accomplished without an honest and sustained effort to commit its phraseology to memory in as perfect a manner as possible. This is almost essential—I do not say absolutely; for many an intelligent brother, having a complete grasp of its meaning at its various stages, will easily fill up any lapse or gap caused by a momentary or temporary loss of memory, and leave no painful evidence to those present that the slip from the well beaten track has landed him in the slough of confusion. If this occurs and he is hopelessly adrift, how can a ceremony be termed to have been successfully performed? That it does happen has been painfully apparent in most of our experiences. How often has it happened within our knowledge that a brother has come to a full stop because (as we well knew) he had devoted neither the time nor the care to the committal of the ritual to memory which its own importance and his duty to his brethren demanded at his hands. "Slumming" work is discreditable under all circumstances in life. It entails nothing but a loss of respect. It produces nothing but a varying degree of sorrow for want of ordinary attention, and well deserved contempt for studied indifference to duty when the latter is palpable. Still, with some natures committal to memory is not easy; indeed, one might say that to but very few does the task appear easy. In my own case I approached it with fear and trembling, as in no previous period of my life had I been called upon to exercise the faculty, and I had grave doubts on that score whether I ought rightly to assume the responsibilities of a position such as that of Master, were the demands upon one's retentive faculties are so serious and so sustained. However, as in many another experience of life, I discovered that by applying myself diligently to the task the horror of its magnitude became gradually effaced by the attractiveness of its fairly rapid extinction. Let none despair on this score, for over and above all criticism there ought to be—and we know there does exist—a tender feeling of sympathy with all brethren whose lapses are known by their manner and deportment to have been caused not by "slumming" their work, but entirely due to physical causes. Next in importance, and most decidedly of far superior value, is the manner in which the rendering ought to be made. For ourselves we abhor the flippant, jaunty, and free-and-easy style; we have an equal objection to that style which is usually suggestive of an educated and highly cultured member of a feathered tribe which usually haunts the eucalypti of this continent. We have as much reverence and respect for that style as we have for the æsthetic parson who considers that the ideal of a church service is one in which the liturgy is read in the quickest time on record and in a tone and manner most likley to completely dissociate it from the "vulgar" tongue in which it is written and understanded of the people. Would you have your Lodge listen to you with pleasure and interest?—then remove all trace of artificiality in your speech and manner. Would you have your brethren follow your words with kindly attention and encouraging heed?—then speak naturally and without circumvention. Let your words and actions betray an attractive simplicity, free from all taint of laboured and borrowed effect. Bear in mind that the chief purport of our Ritual in its tendency is exhortatory, not declamatory, and that in order to secure for its lessons the best form of success your manner should be that of one treating of serious things with all due gravity and impressiveness. Such a method, if pursued, will in all probability remove that taint of listlessness and inattention which so often accompanies our Lodge proceedings, and which is made known by a general murmur of subdued conversation carried on among the brethren, who, finding time hang heavily on their hands and discovering no merit in the treatment of the proceedings, seek for relief in social intercourse which ought to be reserved for times of refreshment.

Then again, brethren, I think we lack pomp in our conduct of Masonic ceremonials. I do not mean that quality of pomp which is the outward expression of ostentation and display, but rather that species which leads one to connect it with the dignity of stateliness and punctiliousness. From the entry of the W.M. and Officers into a Lodge prior to its opening, until their exit after closing there should be more of a justifiable formality. My idea is that every private Lodge ought to be opened and closed with the same degree of ceremonial as Grand Lodge usually is. * * * If, after all have reached their places, the Master addresses a few words expressive of hearty and fraternal greeting to the brethren present, I consider he acts with dignity and in conformity with the honourableness of his office. How much better must all this be as compared with the slipshod, slovenly style so much in vogue in many of our Blue Lodges! And here I would remark, though by no means relevant to our subject, that to my mind too great laxity is allowed in the admission of visitors before the opening of our Lodges. It is a very common custom to allow visitors to take their seats in Lodge before commencing to open. By this procedure some of the recognised forms of inquiry or of proof are evaded, and it might be possible for a cowan or profane to take part in our proceedings without our knowledge. The time for admission of visitors is after the Lodge has been opened, when by the announcement of their names every member of the Lodge has ample opportunity of knowing their bonâ fides, or of bearing testimony to their worthiness or otherwise. Moreover, it might happen that the admission of even a well-known visiting brother might be obnoxious to some member of the Lodge, and surely he ought to have in his own Lodge the right of preserving his immunity from disturbing and disquieting associations.

Then again, my remarks as to stateliness and formality apply in full force to the whole of the work of the entire staff of officers. Deacons especially, owing to their prominence and importance in all ceremonial matters, ought to be urged to carry out their duties and perambulations with exactitude and punctiliousness. Often and often have I seen the part of a careful and conscientious Master utterly ruined by the bungling of Deacons. This is very trying and very depressing, yet is easily remedied. More especially have I witnessed it in that peculiarly delicate piece of ceremony in the First Degree, where the newly initiated is appealed to for an expression of his charitable instincts. It needs great care to preserve it from running into the performance of a farce, or of an "idle and dishonourable proceeding." Properly, seriously, and delicately performed, with quiet, unobstrusive promptings, it forms a beautiful homily; slovenly and boorishly attempted, it presents as coarse and as ridiculous a burlesque as one can well imagine.

And now comes the last aspect upon which I shall attempt to expatiate. Granted that our Ritual is ancient and beautiful—granted that it embodies some of the very best lessons in morality that we are capable of learning and of attempting to carry into practice—have we licence to alter its phraseology in the slightest degree? I know this to be a debateable question. Some brethren hold that no Master or Officer has any right to depart from the strict letter and form as preserved in our Forms of Ritual, and that to do so is a direct violation of our obligation. I have myself been kindly and fraternally admonished for peccadillos of such nature. Still, despite all admonitions I maintain alterations within proper bounds are allowable. Firstly, because the peculiar style and often disconnected phrases do not agree with the particular diction of every one—they do not flow easily and fluently; and secondly, because one cannot agree with many of the sentiments set forth and expressed. Who, for instance, agrees with the declaration that the C points out to us the advantage of education, by which means alone we are rendered fit members of regularly organised society? And yet it appears to be generally and almost always so repeated when the W.T. of the First Degree are presented. Then again, who can applaud the narrow conceptions of Masonic Fraternity contained in those words which an Installing Master is supposed to address to the brethren of a Lodge on the occasion of the investiture of a fresh batch of Officers, when he proceeds seriously to warn them against displaying a "disposition to envy their preferment?" It can hardly be termed a high compliment to our boasted Fraternity, and it certainly does not assume a high standard of brotherly love. These are but few instances of a want of conformity with modern demands, and I have no doubt that after I have finished several brethren will be prepared to multiply such similar defects.

And now, Right Worshipful Bro. President, I am prepared to conclude my efforts. Such as they are, I commend them to the consideration of my brother Masons. Of the spirit in which they have been originated I can but say that they are intended to bear the impress of a strong desire to perfect our rendition of Ritual, and to enhance the value and effect of our ceremonials. I am not alone in this gathering in my deep and sincere regard for the Craft of Masonry, nor am I more than ordinarily fired with the enthusiasm which forms part of a Masonic character. Here we meet on the common ground of high Masonic aspirations, fired with resolves to win for our Order those emphatic encomiums which are the reward of all true and noble efforts. One and all are we pledged to the laudable purpose of doing all that lies within our powers to make our noble Institution worthy of the great principles on which it is founded. Let us not fail in our performance, therefore, and whilst persevering with our own individual efforts, let us see to it that these efforts are rightly conceived—in fine, that they are initiated in that Wisdom which should be the sure and unshaken foundation of all our aspirations; that they are pursued with that strength of purpose and steady perseverance which justifies the good opinion of our fellow-workers; and above all, that they are accompanied with the comely beauty of a disinterested and generous spirit.—South Australian Freemason.

OLD UNDATED MASONIC MANUSCRIPTS.

By Bro. Jacob Norton.

I SHALL now endeavour to describe the three facsimile MS. poems printed by the Quatuor Coronatorum or Quatuor Coronati Lodge. The Masonic poem, the oldest Masonic MS. known, begins thus:

"Whose wol bothe rede and loke,
He may fynde wryte yn olde boke." (namely)

That the Egyptian nobles had more boys than their income could maintain. The King of Egypt thereupon advertised for advice, when Euclid proposed to take charge of the boys, to organise them into a brotherhood, and teach them geometry, which is the same as Masonry, which would enable them to earn a respectable livelihood; and this was the beginning of Masonry. Now, Euclid is said to have been born about three hundred years before Christ, and the poem was written about seventeen hundred years after Euclid died, the question is, suppose the poet had read the story in an old boke, how old was the boke? And, on the other hand, it is evident that our oldest author had never heard about either Solomon's or Zerubbabel's Masonic doings, nor about Scottish Rite, nor Knight Templar Rite, nor of any other Masonic Rite. Yea, not even "York Rite."

From three hundred years before Christ, our poet all at once comes down to King Athelstan, who reigned from about A.D. 924 or 926, to about 940 or 941. This King Athelstan was pleased to call together all the Masons (when, and where that meeting was held, is unknown), he also summoned to that meeting Lords, Dukes, Knights, Squires and "great burghers of that City" (of what City?), and he gave the Masons a code of laws, containing "Fifteen Articles," and "Fifteen Points," which the poet put into verse.

"The said Fifteen Articles" and "Fifteen Points" are followed by a supplement, headed "Alia Ordinacio artis gemetriae," meaning "Another ordination of the art of geometry." Next comes "Ars quatuor coronatorum," meaning "Art of the four crowned," or the four crowned martyrs. The legend informs us that the said martyrs "were masons and gravers of images." And being of the stone-cutting trade, they were chosen by the English and German Masons for their patron saints. Their annual Feast Day was held "After Hallows the eighth day," or the eighth of November. The Quatuor Coronati Lodge is named after the four saints. But instead of feasting on their Saint's Day, that is 8th November, as the old Masons probably did, the members of the Coronati Lodge keep St. John's Day,—and why?

After the four crowned martyr legend, comes the "Seven Sciences." And next, a bit of Bible history, viz., that Nebuchadnezzar built the "Tower of Babylon," seven miles high, that in case of another flood the people might go up to the higher stories and be saved from drowning. Next comes a long Roman Catholic sermon about religion, and our poem winds up with lessons for behaviour when visiting a nobleman or a gentleman, how to behave in his hall, or at his table, &c. Here is a specimen of the religious lesson, viz.:—

"To the church doar when thou doest come,
Of that holy water there take some,
And say thy paternoster and thy ave.
And when the Gospel men read shall,
Fairly thou stand from the wall;
And when the Gospel is done,
Again thou mightest kneel down;
On both thy knees down thou fall,
For his love that bought us all.
And say then, in this manner,
Fair soft without bere, [without noise]
Jhesu, Lord, welcome thou be,
In form of bread, as I thee see.
Amen, amen, so mote it be,
Now, sweet lady, pray for me."

Mr. Halliwell inferred from the above that the poet was a priest, and such may have been the case. But, without any intermission, the poet next flies to another subject. He continues thus:—

"Furthermore, yet, I will have to preach
To your fellows it for to teach:
When thou comest before a Lord,
In hall, in bower, or at board,
Hood or cap that those off do [remove]
Ere thou comest him entirely to." &c.

In 1874 the late lamented Bro. Woodford discovered in the publications of the Early English Text Society two poems. One is headed "Instructions to Parish Priests," which is said to have been written about 1420. The other is headed "Urbanitatis," and on placing the first named poem beside the religious sermon in our Masonic Poem, and on placing the second named poem side by side with that portion of the Masonic Poem which teaches good manners, they were found to be, with a few slight variations, identical. (See pp 130 and 163, 2nd Vol., of the Masonic Magazine). The last named poem is said to have been written about A.D. 1460, and fac similes of the said two poems were also printed by the Quatuor Coronati Lodge. Now, as the last named poems were appropriated by the author of the Masonic Poem, they must have existed before our Masonic Poem was written, and as the year of "Urbanitatis" is fixed to about 1460, our Masonic Poem must have been written after 1460. This reduces its age about seventy or more years, to what Mr. Wallbran made it, for according to his dictum it was written in 1390.

I have here the first volume of the Early English Text Society publication, and I notice that it contains a number of poems of the 15th century which teach good behaviour. There is one for teaching babies, covering eight pages. Another is called "Learn or be Lewde." Next follows "Urbanitatis." "The little children's Boke." "The young children's Boke." "The book of Curtesie." In short, there are in it hundreds of pages of poetry containing advice and lessons upon numerous subjects. On the margin of each page brief explanations are given in modern English of the meaning of the lines. Thus, on the margin to "Urbinitatis" I find

When you come before a lord take off your cap or hood, and fall on your knee twice or thrice. Keep your cap off till you are told to put it on. Hold up your chin. Look the lord in the face. Keep hands and feet still. Don't spit or snot. Break wind quietly. Behave well when you go into the hall . . . . See that your hands are clean and your knife sharp. Don't clutch the best bit. Keep your hands from dirtying the table cloth, and don't wipe your nose on it.

Now as the "Urbinitatis" poem was joined unto the Masonic poem our Bro. Gould somehow "got out of his reckoning," and came to the conclusion that whereas the lessons therein were designed for what is called "the upper ten," and not for mere operative Masons, hence he concluded that the members of a Masonic guild in 1390, or at least in the first half of the 15th century, must have consisted of "Speculative Masons," which implies the early existence of Speculative Masonry. To be sure our good brother confesses that evidence for his theory is not sufficient. But what of it? A bare hint from Bro. Gould that the antiquity of Speculative Masonry is possible, set all the hankerers for Masonic antiquity agog. Now I do not dispute Bro. Gould's supposition that there may have been a Masons' guild in the 15th century, composed of gentlemen or even of Lords, Dukes, Bishops, Deans, &c. Such may, indeed, have been the case; but if so, these non-operative Masons were no more Speculative Masons than the Lords, Dukes, Bishops, Deans, &c. who belonged to the guilds of the tailors, grocers, or fishmongers, &c. were Speculative tailors, Speculative grocers, or Speculative fishmongers.

The opinion I formed when I first learned that the latter parts of the Masonic poem were plagiarised, was that during the 15th century, probably immediately after Edward IV., in 1724, honoured the Masons' Company with permission to wear a livery, that some generous and patriotic member of the Company was ambitious to have the glories of the Craft celebrated in verse. Accordingly, he contracted with a rhymester for a poem of a certain length; he gave the poet the then Masons' code of laws, told him the names of their patron saints, and requested him to embellish the poem with the early history of the Masons' Craft. Our poet accordingly manufactured his stories about Euclid, and about Athelstan; spun out long yarns about the Masons' code, the four martyrs, the seven sciences, and Nebuchadnezzar's seven miles high tower; and falling short of suitable material for finishing his poem to the agreed size. So he adapted the poem that was intended as advice to parish priests into a religious sermon for the Masonic brotherhood, and as after being honoured by the king (as I suppose) with permission to wear a livery, which event it was supposed might induce noblemen to join the Company, hence the poet thought that lessons of urbanity and politeness would not be out of place, even to operative Masons. The poem being already made, so he clapped on to his own poem, without any one caring about it. Of course, this is mere conjecture, but it seems not at all unreasonable that such may have been the case.

The Masons' code in the poem is not, however, as some imagine, the first or oldest laws Masons ever had; for, in 1868, Mr. Thomas Riley published a book, called "Memorial of London and London Life in the 13th, 14th, and 15th centuries, from the early archives of the City of London, in which may be found, as follows:—

"Regulations for the trade of Masons, 30th Edward III., A.D. 1356. Letter Book G., fol. xli. Latin and Norman French."

"At a congregation of the Mayor and Aldermen, holden on the Monday next before the Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary [2nd February], in the 30th year of the reign of King Edward III., &c., there being present Simon Fraunceys, the Mayor; John Lovekin and other Aldermen, the Sheriffs, and John Little, Symon de Benyngton, and William de Helbeche, Commoners, certain Articles were ordained, touching the trade of Masons, in these words:—

"Whereas Simon Fraunceys, Mayor of the City of London, has been given to understand that divers dissensions have been moved in the said city between Masons who are hewers, on one hand, and the light masons and setters on the other, because that their trade has not been regulated in due manner by the government, and folks of their trade in such form as other trades are. Therefore, the said Mayor, for maintaining the peace of our Lord the King, and for allaying such manner of dissensions and disputes, and for nurturing love among all manner of folks, in honour of the said city * * * by assent and counsel of the Aldermen and Sheriffs, caused all the good folks of the said trade to be summoned before him, to have from them good and due information how their trade might be best ordered and ruled for the profit of the common people."

The Masons thereupon sent twelve delegates, at whose suggestion the Mayor and Aldermen provided the needful laws, together with some necessary punishments for the disobedient; and that was probably the beginning of Masons' fellowship in England. As to York, Bro. Gould, on page 53 of his Commentary, says:—

"The York Fabric Rolls show clearly enough what the Masons had to do when in Lodge, and it has been well observed, 'that the orders supplied to the Masons at work at York Cathedral in 1352-55, give but a poor notion of there being then existing in that City anything like a guild of fellowship, claiming authority in virtue of a charter supposed to have been given to it by Athelstan in 926, not only over that City, but over all England."

The above paragraph should convince all the Masonic antiquity hankerers, that Bro. Gould does not believe in the Athelstan York tradition; and I do not think that he believes in the antiquity of Speculative or Symbolic Masonry either.

BOSTON, U.S., 9th August 1889.

CONDITIONS OF FUTURE PROSPERITY FOR THE MASONIC INSTITUTION.

FREEMASONRY has a bright and attractive record. We read its history to note the wonderful progress it has made, its attainment of great influence, and the large and varied services it has rendered, not only within the lines of its own membership, but in wider regions where its benign power has been exerted for the good of man. It has been a productive institution, fruitful in ministries that adorn and bless the related life of the world, and it has prospered according to its deservings. Its past, all so luminous and inspiring, is our inheritance. Well may we rejoice in its prestige and in its accomplishments. The fathers established Freemasonry on a firm foundation; they wrought worthily in building and adorning the structure they have left for our use; and with an equal sense of gratitude and responsibility should the Craft of to-day receive the gift thus transmitted.

Freemasonry, however, cannot live and thrive on this glory of the past alone. We may cherish a glad, exultant feeling as we connect our Fraternity with the great names that adorn its history and hold prominent place among its traditions, but however strong and abiding this feeling may be, it will not ensure future prosperity. We may call over the noble and pure teachings of the Masonic system, as it has made expression of itself in the past, and the blessed work it has done in the name of truth and humanity, but we cannot secure a desired progress by dwelling on the merits of the fathers and magnifying their labours. They have sent down to us a precious heritage, an organization of large resources and possibilities for good, well equipped for social and moral helpfulness, and our obligations to preserve the institution and make it of more use among men are correspondingly increased. It is our duty—the duty of the latest generation into whose hands this heritage comes—to make a bold, clear, practical expression of the power of Freemasonry, and so transmit it with new and brighter lustre to coming generations, that it may remain to cheer and bless the world to the latest period of time. Is this obligation sufficiently realized? Is there felt broadly and deeply, as there should be, the need of studying the signs of the times, and of adapting the Masonic system and organization to the movements in social and public life that call for increased efforts in certain directions, and a possible modification of methods in some particulars? All this may be done without disturbing essential landmarks, and without doing injury to the fundamental principles and purposes of Freemasonry. We are conservative as any, and we should feel called upon to resist strenuously any attempt to re-organize or greatly change the character and objects which are distinctive in the Masonic system. We believe, however, that Freemasonry is a progressive institution, and consequently we hold that it may adapt itself to the movements and needs of society, as these are constantly presenting themselves in varied forms, add to its rules, improve its methods, and broaden its lines of operations. The zealous Craftsman should remember, as much as the faithful worker in any other worthy association, that > "New occasions teach new duties,

> Time makes ancient good uncouth;
> They must upward still and onward
> Who would keep abreast of truth."

If asked to specify some of the conditions on which the future prosperity of the Masonic Institution largely depends, we should name the following:—

1. More insistance upon the intellectual features of the system. There need be no innovations upon the ancient landmarks, or changes in the accepted ritual, in an endeavour to make the intellectual side of Freemasonry somewhat more prominent. Philosophy and science, art and literature, are recommended to the attention of every brother at a very early stage in the ceremony of his induction into the Order. His attention is called to natural science, to the profound themes of philosophical inquiry, to the importance of logic and intelligent reasoning in passing upon great subjects put before the mind, and to architecture, painting, music, with other branches of learning and accomplishment that appeal especially to the mind and the imagination. But these primary suggestions are not followed out in any subsequent lessons to the young Craftsman; nor is he much appealed to after he has entered upon his Masonic career to use his mental powers in the way of study on any of the grand themes named. Freemasonry is a system, and under the forms and practices of its present organisation, does not greatly stimulate its members to investigate truth, to acquire knowledge, or become specially interested in the arts and sciences. Might it not properly attempt something more of suggestion and influence, perhaps of practical teaching, in this direction? Might it not become more of a school of intelligence than now? What harm would come if lectures and discussions pertaining to the subjects named were arranged for in the Lodge—if papers were read before the members by eminent specialists in Science—and considerable more attention given to awakening and quickening the intellectual nature? Freemasonry can hardly hope to live and thrive in the twentieth century merely as a club; it must have, as justly belongs to its character—the expression of its true genius—more abundant ministries; those that provide for the mind as well as the body. "If I had but two loaves of bread, I would sell one of them and buy hyacinths to feed my soul," was the declaration of one whom the world has pronounced exceeding wise, and his declaration is at least suggestive of the proposition affirmed that Freemasonry can flourish most efficiently only as it emphasises and presses into use its intellectual ministries.

2. It must do more and better benevolent work. This is not saying that Freemasonry has not rendered a grand service in the way of enlightened philanthropy in the past. Its works of practical charity in feeding the hungry, clothing the naked, burying the dead, educating orphans and relieving distress, go far beyond any commutation that may be made of its expenditure of means. There has been personal help as well as institutional, according to what are the teachings with which every intelligent Craftsman is familiar. But with all that has been done for charity's sake there is still a demand for increased service. Freemasonry must go well to the front as a working force in the relief of human suffering, or it will not prosper according to what are its possibilities. Within every Grand Lodge jurisdiction there ought to be an Asylum, a home for aged brethren who may be reduced to poverty, and for the wives or widows of such; and there ought also to be a school for children left in destitution, where they may be cared for and trained in the things that make for worthy living. If in any jurisdiction there are happily so few indigent brethren, or those belonging to the families of such a class, that there seems no special call for the home and school, still let these ministries be provided, and so far as possible given to the public, in accordance with the prompting of that universal benevolence which every Mason is taught to respect.

3. The most vital essential of Masonic prosperity is that the Institution shall stand for the law of practical righteousness. Freemasonry rests upon a moral basis. It inculcates moral obligations; it imposes moral restraints; it places full in view before its members and before the world a high standard of moral excellence. Its decadence will come only when these principles and rules are forgotten or ignored. Just now, with the tides of intemperance, licentiousness, and selfishness, running with so much force in society, there is a special call that Freemasonry in its organic life should adhere to the law of practical righteousness, and count no man a true Mason, or worthy of its honours, who does not rigidly observe the moral law. It must make the binding force of its great principles to be felt by all who bear its name or represent its powers and interests. Selfish and base men, the indolent, undeserving, sensual and vile, must be kept without its lines; or if perchance any of this class gain admission they must be quickly reformed or sent to the rear. Only thus will Freemasonry become in practice what it is in name—a great moral institution; only thus will it observe one of the most important conditions on which its future prosperity depends.—Freemasons' Repository.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

—:o:—

FRIENDSHIP LODGE, No. 277.

ON Sunday afternoon, the 18th inst., a special service, in celebration of the Centenary of this Lodge, of the Province of East Lancashire, was held in St. James's Church, Oldham, by permission of the Vicar, the Rev. T. L. Knapp. The brethren met at the Freemasons' Hall, Union-street, at two o'clock, and assembled in the different rooms, as follows:—Tylers, Entered Apprentices, Fellow Crafts, and Master Masons met in the billiard-room; Officers (Wardens, Deacons, &c.) in the Lodge-room; Past Masters and Worshipful Masters in the card-room; and Provincial Officers in the Committee-room. Bro. W. Edwards P.M. Marshal arranged the procession, which left the hall at 2·30. The following are the Officers of the Lodge of Friendship for the current year, most of whom were present:—Bros. John Greaves W.M., C. Mattinson I.P.M., Joseph Braddock S.W., Abraham Clegg J.W., J. O. Jelly, M.A., Chaplain, Charles Watson Treasurer, Thomas Bailey Secretary, John Buckley S.D., Ralph Holden J.D., H. L. Hollingworth Dir. of Cers., F. Lawton Stand. Br., J. Clafton Organist, T. H. Duckworth Pursuivant, J. C. Varley, J. Whiplech, John Greaves jun., W. Wilson Stewards, S. A. Thorp Tyler. Most of the Past Masters of the Lodge, of whom a list is appended, were also present, viz.:—Bros. John Greaves P.P.G.S. of Wks., Henry L. Hollingworth P.P.G.T., Joseph Braddock, Henry Thomas P.P.S.G.D., Joseph Crompton Lees P.P.S.G.W., Joseph Clafton P.P.G.O., Isaac Prockter, Abraham Clegg P.P.S.G.W., John Buckley, Ralph Holden, Thomas H. Duckworth, Chas. Watson, and Bernalf C. Mattinson. There were also in the procession Bros. T. Stevenson, C. V. Haworth, A. J. Haworth, and Representatives from the Imperial George, the Albert (Shaw), the Minerva (Ashton), and the Candour (Uppermill) Lodges. Altogether the brethren in the procession numbered about 170. The banners of the three Oldham Lodges were carried before the respective Worshipful Masters, and the line of route to the church was viâ Union-street, Bottom o'th Moor, and Huddersfield-road. Special hymns, &c., in connection with the Centenary celebrations were used, the anthem being "Blessed be the God and Father." The preacher was the Rev. E. Bigoe Bagot, LL.B. (St. Mary's, Beswick), P.M. and Prov. Grand Chaplain E.L., who delivered an impressive and eloquent address from the 3rd verse of the 16th Psalm.

"All my delight is upon the saints that are in the earth and upon such as excel in virtue."

In the course of his remarks the rev. gentleman said that the world presented a sad spectacle. When morality was depreciated, and the newspapers day by day contained the unsavoury records of impurity, dishonesty, and vice; when order was divided, and submission to anything or anybody was coming to be disregarded as antagonistic to freedom and intelligence; when ancient loyalty was rapidly disappearing under the euphemism of "modern independence"—is it a time to set at naught that which still, as throughout many generations, sets forth the beauty, power and liberty of discipline, obedience, and subordination? In days when the storms of political and religious controversies were raging so loudly, when distinctions of social rank and position must make many strangers to each other who were one in heart and hope, is it not something to find a place where these considerations do not enter—a neutral ground where we can meet in that kindly spirit of friendly interest which does not sanction the intrusion of one uncharitable thought, or necessitate the compromise of one sincere conviction? Masonry was no creed to supplant or supplement Christianity. It expresses the conviction of the human heart from the earliest ages of primitive history—the voice, as it were, of one crying in the wilderness for light, sympathy, order, and power, shaping its ideal by some graphic analogy which seems to express most adequately what it has at heart. But Masonry did more than this. As an independent witness it gave wonderful and remarkable support to the great Catholic doctrines of the Christian Church. To believe in God as the author and source of all created things; to fear His name, to honour His worship, and to work righteousness, was the design and object of the Craft. Faith in the Great Architect; the efficacy and duty of prayer; the power and inspiration of the Holy Scriptures, were all witnessed to by the principles of Masonry. We, as Masons, were reminded that to the just and upright death had no terrors, and that in every human frame there lives the principles and germ of immortality. There was a divine dissatisfaction in the heart of man, and the Bible tells us that all man's misery, all the immense ennui of life, all the wretchedness of satiety, which makes man from time to time—and now more than ever—ask the question, "Is life worth the living?" is only the sublime discontent of the soul, which was made to find its rest in God, and therefore cannot rest in the finite. St. Paul insists on all honour and glory to God when he vindicates His attributes in the magnificent burst, "Oh! the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and of the knowledge of God; how unsearchable are His judgment and His ways past finding out." Freemasons place the being and attributes of God in the forefront of all their proceedings: they never meet without paying homage to His name; and when we, as Masons, were disposed to pay court and honour to those invested with high position, and to bend before them with gratitude for their work, we were reminded that honour belongeth to God alone, and exhorted ever to exclaim, "All glory to the Most High!" All good men ought to be eager to establish and secure upon more firm ground a great society, which was essentially of a religious character, and was a great and important guarantee for social order, morality, and large-heartedness. The magnificent benevolent and educational institutions of Masonry were the secret and method of its success, and the powerful magnet which attracted to its ranks all grades of society and sectional characteristics of mankind, from the future King of England and his son to the humblest subject of the Queen. The powers that make for righteousness, social order, commercial morality, and genial charity, in this land, were deeply indebted to the Order; and the bearing and attitude of all true citizens to the Craft should be those of gratitude and respect, and their own best interest should ever prompt them to strengthen her chords and lengthen her stakes:—

> The friends thou hast, and their adoption tried,
> Grapple them to thy soul with hooks of steel.

At the close of the service an offertory was taken, in aid of the East Lancashire Systematic Masonic Educational and Benevolent Institution. On leaving the church the procession was re-formed, and returned by way of Huddersfield-road, Bottom o'th Moor, Yorkshire-street, and Clegg-street, to the Masonic Hall.

A most interesting and unique ceremony took place on Wednesday, 21st inst., in connection with the Lodge of Friendship, at the Masonic Hall, the occasion being to celebrate the Centenary of the Lodge, which has had an uninterrupted course since the 22nd of August 1789, the warrant for the formation of the Lodge bearing that date. About 70 members and visitors attended. Amongst those present were Bros. J. Greaves W.M., J. Braddock S.W., B. C. Mattinson I.P.M., Abram Clegg J.W., J. O. Jelly, M.A., Chaplain, C. Watson P.M. Treasurer, John Buckley P.M. S.D., Ralph Holden J.D., H. L. Hollingworth D.C., T. Bailey Secretary, and the rest of the Officers. The visitors included the names of Bros. J. H. Sillitoe P.P.J.G.W., J. Chadwick P.G. Secretary, W. Bagnall P.M., and the W.M.'s of the other Oldham and neighbouring Lodges. The Lodge being opened in the usual manner, Bro. Greaves called upon Bro. Jelly to read a History of the Lodge from the time of formation to the present, compiled by Bro. Jelly, from the minute books. After the reading of this interesting record the W.M. called upon Brother Chadwick, Provincial Grand Secretary, to present to the Lodge the centenary warrant granted by the Grand Lodge of England. Part of the warrant grants the privilege to members of the Friendship Lodge, so long as they remain so, to wear a centenary jewel when meeting for Masonic purposes—a privilege which, no doubt, will be highly prized and appreciated amongst members. Bro. Chadwick, in making the presentation said: As a preface, I may say that you might have obtained the services of brethren higher in rank than I for so interesting a duty, but I will say this, brethren, none more earnest or more desirous of fulfilling the duties required of me. I congratulate the Friendship Lodge on possessing such a history as that just given by our good Bro. Jelly, and on its stability and prosperity, and I rejoice to visit it to-day, and present to you, my dear friends and brethren, the centenary warrant granted by the M.W. G.M. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. The aspirations of the Provincial Grand Lodge, of which I am its humble exponent, are that all the brethren under its jurisdiction—especially you of this Friendship Lodge, 277—may be worthy of the obligations they have severally taken, may work in love and unity, and may be in the future, as in the past, a contented, prosperous, and harmonious community of Freemasons, the pride of our estimable and worthy chief Colonel Le Gendre N. Starkie, and the envy of the world outside the mystic circle. I desire, W.M. and brethren, in presenting this centenary warrant, to declare to you the progress the Craft has made in this Province of Lancashire since its institution, but especially since this Lodge was consecrated, 22nd August 1789. The number then was 554, and now it is 277. Bro. Edward Entwistle was our first P.G.M., appointed in 1734, with three Lodges under his jurisdiction. In 1789 Bro. John Allen was P.G.M., with 22 Lodges, and there were also 13 others under Athol Constitution, called Antients. Bro. F. D. Astley was P.G.M. at the Union, in 1813, with 57 Lodges under his jurisdiction. Division of Lancashire, 1826, Bro. Le Gendre N. Starkie appointed P.G.M. of E. D., with 41 Lodges (the number of members I have no means of ascertaining). Col. Starkie appointed P.G.M. in 1870, with 74 Lodges and 3400 members. Now, in 1889, we have 100 Lodges and upwards of 4400 members. This is a record, I venture to say, not surpassed by any Province. I would, before concluding, remind you of the charges that every true Mason should keep, for our grand Craft is a science worthy to be kept and engraven upon the heart of every true Mason. It is a virtuous science, for it teacheth man to speak and write truly, and to discern truth from falsehood. I might, before sitting down, congratulate the Lodges meeting in this hall on their efficiency, and the prudence with which they are usually governed. I should much like to see all the Lodges in our towns housed in a central hall, actuated and animated by one spirit, the spirit of harmony and brotherly love. This, I am positive, would be most conducive to their prosperity, as well as Masonic harmony. Another presentation to the Lodge, by Bro. J. H. Sillitoe, was a gold centenary jewel, to be worn by the W.M. for the time being, and given by one of the members of the Lodge, who, as Bro. Greaves said, on accepting it, "had, with his usual accustomed modesty, prohibited his name being disclosed." The most agreeable presentations of the evening were then made to Bro. Hollingworth, on behalf of the members of the Lodge, who had subscribed a very handsome sum of money in order to show their sincere appreciation of his long and valuable services to the Friendship Lodge in particular, and for the good of Masonry in general. The first was a large photograph of himself in Masonic regalia, beautifully mounted and framed—a credit alike to the committee and the artist. The next was a Past Master's jewel and an address on vellum, containing the names of the Officers and members of the Lodge. The subscription for these presents was most heartily taken up—every member of the Lodge, without exception, subscribed—and, indeed, it was with difficulty confined to the members of the Friendship, Brother Hollingworth being so highly esteemed outside. In acknowledging these presentations, Bro. Hollingworth spoke in brief but very feeling terms his great thanks. He alluded to the great loss sustained by the Lodge during the last twelve months in the death of three of the oldest and most worthy Masons the Lodge had ever received into its ranks. A silver cruet was then presented to Bro. Hollingworth for his good lady. In acknowledgment, Bro. Hollingworth said that he was glad they had remembered the ladies, as they had got the impression that Masons were a very selfish Order, keeping all their pleasures to themselves; but this present would, to some extent, dispel that notion. Bro. Brearley next presented to the W.M., on behalf of the Lodge, a fac-simile portrait of the one given to Brother Hollingworth. The ceremony now being over, the brethren adjourned to the banqueting room, where a sumptuous repast was provided. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and responded to. Great credit is due to the singing brethren for the manner in which they lent their share to the evening's entertainment. The celebration of the Centenary of the Friendship Lodge will be remembered a long time by those who were present on the occasion.

STAFFORDSHIRE KNOT LODGE, No. 726.

AN excursion to Dovedale took place on Tuesday, the 20th inst., under the auspices of the above Lodge. The outing was not confined to the Fraternity, but was joined in by ladies and non-Masons. At 9·5 the party, numbering fifty-one, left Stafford station in saloon carriages attached to the ordinary Great Northern train, the destination being Dovedale. On arriving at Ashbourn a large section of the party visited the beautiful church of St. Oswald, which has been not inappropriately termed the "Cathedral of the Peak." After an excellent luncheon, provided at that good old-fashioned hostelry the Green Man, the visitors were conveyed in brakes to the picturesque village of Ilam. Here a halt was made to view an exquisitely-designed cross of the richest decorated Gothic architecture. The "living present" was in the minds of most, and a walk up the famous dale was participated in by a majority of the visitors. The weather was unfortunately cold and damp, and few got any further than "Reynard's Cave," situate about a mile and a-half from the entrance to the dale. The walk and the scenery were much enjoyed. After a short but pleasant interlude at the Izaak Walton Hotel, the party returned by a different route to Ashbourn, where dinner was served at the Green Man, Bro. Mousley W.M. presiding, and the vice-chairs being occupied by Bros. F. Taylor S.W. and E. W. Taylor J.W. Before starting to regain the train, Bro. H. Woodhouse P.M. proposed a vote of thanks to the Committee for the efforts which they had put forth to make the trip a success. Bro. J. Mottram seconded the vote, which was cordially passed, and Bro. T. Masters Secretary briefly replied. The return journey was safely made, nothing with the exception of the indifferent weather having occurred to interfere with the perfect enjoyment of the excursion.

OBEDIENCE LODGE, No. 1753.

THE annual installation was held on the 24th inst., at the White Hart Hotel, Okehampton, when Bro. S. Slowman was installed W.M. for the ensuing year, Brother Gregory acting as installing Master. The following officers were appointed by the W.M.:—Bros. J. Newcombe I.P.M., J. Reddaway S.W., J. Wonnacott J.W., Burd Treasurer, J. C. Pierce Secretary, W. Mannell S.D., W. Rowe J.D., W. Powell I.G., W. Yeo Organist. Bro. W. Burd was elected representative on the Committee of Petitions. The brethren afterwards dined together at the White Hart Hotel, Host Leake catering in his usual excellent style.

ROBINSON LODGE, No. 2046.

ON Wednesday, the 21st inst., a number of members of this Lodge, together with many other Masonic friends, assembled at the garden of Bro. R. McVicar, College Road, where it was intended to hold a garden party, but the weather proved unpropitious, and the party subsequently repaired to the Mitre Hotel, where they partook of a cold collation, at the invitation of Bro. McVicar. The Mayor (A. Spencer, Esq.) presided, and proposed the health of Mr. and Mrs. McVicar. Bro. McVicar responded in suitable terms, and afterwards the Worshipful Master (Bro. J. B. Groom) proposed the health of the Mayor, the toast being felicitously acknowledged by his Worship. An extremely pleasant afternoon was spent.

The splendid Carrara marble bust of the founder of Trowbridge Town Hall has just had a handsome brass plate placed beneath it, encircled by a floriated border, with Masonic emblems above it. The words explain the gift:—

"Presented to Bro. Wm. Rogor Brown S.W., by the Freemasons of Lodge Concord, No. 632 (Trowbridge), in recognition of his noble gift of this building to the town. Unveiled 14th June 1889, by H.R.H. the Duchess of Albany."

The historic walls of the old Abbey Church at Hexham will witness a congregration on the 9th of September next such as has never before assembled within that beautiful fragment of a noble fane. On that date, the annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Northumberland will be held at Hexham, and an open service will be held in the church. A banquet will take place in the evening. Sir Matthew White Ridley, M.P., Provincial Grand Master, is expected to take part in the procession to the church. The Lodge at Hexham is located in premises of its own in Hall Gate.

FUNERALS properly carried out and personally attended. in London and Country, by Bro. G. A. HUTTON, 17 Newcastle Street, Strand, W.C. Monuments erected. Valuations made.

To the Governors and Subscribers of the

Royal Masonic Institution for Boys,

WOOD GREEN, LONDON, N.

DEAR MADAM OR SIR,

The post of Surgeon to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys at Wood Green being now vacant, I desire to offer myself as candidate for the same.

I have been residing within one minute's walk from the Institution for the last four years, and am intimately acquainted with the working of it.

I have the honour to append Testimonials of my professional life, and to state that if I am honoured by being appointed to the post, I shall always make it my best endeavour to work in harmony with my brother Officials.

I have the honour to remain,

Yours very obediently,

Lordship Lane, Wood Green, August 1889. R. F. TOMLIN, M.R.C.S.Eng., &c.

Copies of Testimonials received by R. F. Tomlin, Surgeon.

Devonport, 26th May 1873.

This is to certify that Mr. Robert Francis Tomlin became my Articled Pupil in September 1869, and remained with me till October 1870. During this time he was attentive to his duties and his studies, very punctual in his attendance, and always anxious to please. He has been with me occasionally during the last three years, and I find he is prosecuting his studies with Exemplary Diligence, and gives proof of great ability and unremitting application to his work.

JOSEPH MAY, Surgeon.

21 Grosvenor, Bath, 23rd July 1889.

I am pleased to state that Mr. R. F. Tomlin acted as assistant to my late father-in-law, Dr. Leahy, of Bridgend, during the years 1873 and 1874, and gave him every satisfaction. He considered him most skilful and attentive to his patients. The practice was chiefly amongst colliers, railway men, and iron-workers, so that his opportunities for surgical work were very great.

W. S. STABLES, L.S.A. (Lond).

Bocket House Wantage, 23rd July 1889.

Having known Mr. R. F. Tomlin most intimately for the last Fourteen Years, I can bear every testimony to his Character and Abilities, both professionally and socially.

After having been with me for four years as Assistant, he joined me in partnership, and it was with deep regret that, owing to circumstances relating solely to myself, our connection had to be broken, and I need hardly say that he took away with him the hearty good wishes of a large number of patients, by whom he had been much valued for his kind and skilful services. He is thoroughly qualified for the post of Surgeon to the Masonic Schools, for which I understand he is a candidate, alike by his kindness and industry, as by his professional knowledge and experience, and I feel quite sure in him the Governors will find a most painstaking and efficient Officer.

FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE

SATURDAY, 31ST AUGUST 1889.

PROV. GRAND LODGE OF CORNWALL.

THE annual meeting of this Provincial Grand Lodge was held on Tuesday, 27th inst., at Liskeard. The brethren assembled in the Market Hall, which was attractively fitted up for the occasion, and the adjoining streets were gaily decorated with flags in honour of the visit of Grand Lodge. The business was opened by Bro. the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe, the Provincial Grand Master, who presided, supported by his Officers:—Bros. Sir C. B. Graves-Sawle, Bart., D.M., G. P. N. Glencross S.W., H. P. Vivian J.W., Rev. W. R. Erskine, Rev. R. Fraser Frizell Chaplains, E. Milford Cock Treas., R. P. Edyvean Registrar, T. Chirgwin Secretary, T. C. Polglase S.D., J. W. Higman and J. Reynolds J.D.'s, W. Huthnance Supt. of Works, P. Giles D.C., H. B. Neame D.D.C., G. M. Down A.D.C., Major J. J. Ross Sword Bearer, W. A. Bennett Standard Bearer, W. A. W. Howlett Organist, J. Tonkin Assistant Secretary, T. R. Mills Pursuivant, J. Langdon Assistant Pursuivant, J. T. Rodda, J. Richards, W. Colenso, J. A. Bersey, H. Down Stewards, J. Nicholas Tyler, J. C. R. Crewes Clerk to P.G. Secretary. The Provincial Grand Master explained that at present it would be injudicious to comply with the petition for the formation of a Lodge at Camelford. He believed that some of the brethren who signed that petition had since altered their views. The usual course would have been to have forwarded that petition to Grand Lodge with the report that he did not recommend its being granted. However, he had concluded that that course was not requisite at present, and he had therefore let the matter stand over. If any brethren who were interested in that petition were desirous of a fuller explanation, an interview could be arranged, when he would explain the matter more fully. His Lordship, also, in reply to several invitations to hold the next Provincial Grand Lodge at various places, said the custom was to hold the meetings alternately in East and West Cornwall, and the latter division would have the next claim. The Provincial Grand Treasurer (Bro. E. Milford Cock) presented his annual statement of accounts. The balance at the bank from the previous year was £152 16s; receipts for the year, £228; total £380 16s. Dispensed in charities, £126; working expenses, £89 10s; balance in hand £165. The directories had not proved profitable, as out of 550 printed only 350 had been sold. Had the others been sold there would have been a profit to the Provincial Grand Lodge. If some Brother in London could undertake the management of the votes for Cornwall at the two elections in the year it would save the Provincial Grand Lodge between £9 and £10. The Provincial Grand Secretary reported that during the year there were 115 initiations, 17 joining members, 1374 subscribing members, total 1506; against, for 1887, 119 initiations, 40 joining members, 1378 subscribing members, total 1537; decrease for 1888, 31 members. He had again to complain of the delays of Lodges in sending in their returns. Grants had during the year been made from the Board of Benevolence in London to petitions from the Province to the amount of £110, against £67 in 1887. Bro. T. Chirgwin, J.P., also read the report of the Cornwall Masonic Annuity and Benevolent Fund, as the Secretary of that Institution. The report shewed a balance from the close of last year, £171; interest on investments, £164 10s; subscriptions and donations for 1889, £173; total £508 10s. Paid to annuitants £70 for the half-year, £90 in educational grants, working expenses £18 10s. Balance at Cornish Bank, £330. Stocks invested, £4184; capital at present meeting £4514, against £4348 at last annual meeting; increase £166. Bro. Gilbert B. Pearce, the Secretary of the Cornwall Masonic Charity Association, read the fourth annual report. During the year there had been received, from 183 subscribers of class A 138 guineas, from seven of class B 14 guineas, and from 32 memberships, by Lodges, Chapters, &c., 64 guineas, which, with six guineas brought forward from last year, made a total of £285 12s. There was now every Lodge in the Province, with one exception, represented in the Association. During the year 270 guineas had been sent to London, 125 guineas to the Aged Masons' and Widows' Benevolent Fund, 85 guineas to the Girls' School, 45 guineas to the Boys' School, and 15 guineas yet unappropriated. There was an increase of 17 in the membership of the Association for the year. The members had, however, to bear in mind that a large proportion of the present members would have completed their payments next year of the sums they had promised to subscribe, and many had already done so. Some had, however, begun again for another term of five years, and it was very desirous the number of those subscribers should be increased. At present there would be 104 one guinea and 25 two guinea subscribers. It was very desirable to have new blood among their members, or the Association might suffer decay. Hitherto it had been very fortunate, but it must be remembered that it started with the aid of many members, who might not all be inclined to give similar support. Bro. C. Truscott, manager of the votes for the London Masonic Charities, presented his annual statement. In October 1888, he endeavoured to carry the approved candidate of their committee, a boy of Fowey, but the polling ran very high, and the 1,326 votes which he polled, together with the outside votes, did not carry him. The highest successful candidate polled 3,702, and the 24th, and lowest, 2,032. In April last they had a girl candidate from Liskeard, who would be too old after this year, and the committee desired that both the boy and girl should be elected if possible, but that he found impossible, and he took, as he considered, the wisest course in polling for the girl. The 1,511 votes of the province and the outside votes made her total 1,579. She was thus placed 36th on the list. The highest successful was 3,434, and the lowest 1,557. Polling thus for the former necessitated his borrowing votes, and whilst the resources on the province would carry the boy in October, a widow candidate in May next, and satisfy the loans in due course, he did not consider a further candidate should be adopted before the first election of 1891. The votes collected in the province during the past year amounted to 627 Girls, 685 Boys, and 835 Benevolent—total 2,147. The number would have exceeded that had all the votes been sent to him, but he regretted to say that many were lost to the Province by some being kept back for personal use, and several by being mislaid or mis-sent. It would assist if all would send in their voting papers, and be a great convenience if they would do so promptly after their receipt. The annual voting power of the Province, so far as he could at present estimate it, was about 770 Girls, 732 Boys, and 884 Benevolent—total 2386; but there were doubtless more to add, as he had not seen the complete lists of 1889 donations. The candidates already approved of by the committee were one boy from Fowey, one widow from Hayle, and applications had been received for two girls from Padstow and Hayle, and one boy from Looe. As it had been intimated to him that at the last Provincial Lodge, before he arrived, remarks were made that were likely to mislead, and did cause many to think that the votes were not being properly and advantageously utilised, he begged to lay before them a summary of his accounts for the years he had held the office of Manager, since October 1881. The votes sent to him by the Province amounted to 2922 Girls, 4000 Boys, and 4986 Benevolent; total 11,908. The elections secured during the same period were two girls, two boys, two old men at £10 a year each for life, and three widows at £32 a year each for life; also 1326 votes on account for a boy at next election—in all ten candidates, at an average of 1100 votes. At present they had in the Institutions four girls at £10, two Boys at £45, four old men at £10, and five widows at £32. The Committee on Brother Bake's motion to move alterations in the rules in reference to the funds collected in the Province for Masonic charity, reported that, in their opinion, it was not at present advisable to form any fresh organization for the collection or management of funds in the Province for Masonic charity. In order to carry out their views as expressed in their communication to the Lodges, they recommended that the by-laws of the Provincial Grand Lodge and the rules of the Cornwall Masonic and Benevolent Fund should be altered, so as to provide that in future the charity interests of the Province should be administered by a Charity Committee, to consist of the Provincial Grand Master, Deputy Provincial Grand Master, the Provincial Grand Wardens, the Provincial Grand Treasurer and Secretary, the Secretary of the Cornwall Masonic Annuity and Benevolent Fund, the Charity representative, and the Secretary of the Cornwall Masonic Charity Association, and one member to be nominated by each Lodge whose subscriptions to the Cornwall Masonic Annuity and Benevolent Fund for the year preceding amounted to not less than £5; that such Committee should, in addition to the duties previously imposed on the Committee of Relief, determine what sums should be devoted from the funds of the Cornwall Masonic Annuity and Benevolent Fund to annuities and educational and other grants, and should recommend the amount to be voted to each candidate for an educational grant, provided always that the total of the annuities and grants in any one year should not exceed the income of the Fund from invested capital, and two-thirds of the other portions of the income during the previous year, and generally to alter the rules as to annuities and grants, so that the funds might be used according to the requirements of the Province for the time being; that in special cases and on the special recommendation of such Committee to Prov. Grand Lodge the term during which an educational grant might be held should be extended from five to six years: that the age up to which educational grants might be held be extended from fourteen to fifteen years: that no ex officio votes be given except in the case of the Stewards of the Cornwall Masonic Annuity and Benevolent Fund. A life voter who has contributed £5, entitling him to two votes for life, might, on payment by himself or his Lodge of a further sum of £5, secure his votes to his Lodge in perpetuity, retaining the use of them, if he chose, during his lifetime. The Committee considered that educational grants were not always administered in accordance with the intention of the votes, but they thought that would probably be corrected in the future by the attention which had been called recently to that point. The whole of these statements and reports were cordially adopted, with only one addition, that in the case of the Charity Committee five members should form a quorum. The report was signed by Bros. Hughan, Anderton, Chirgwin, Pearce and Cock. At this stage of the business the Lodge adjourned, and proceeded in full regalia, with banners displayed, and headed by the Liskeard volunteer band, to church, where a sermon was preached by Bro. the Rev. R. F. Fraser-Frizell Provincial Grand Chaplain, from the 74th Psalm, part of the ninth verse. A collection made at the close amounted to £13 17s. The brethren afterwards returned in procession to the Market Hall, and resumed business. On the proposition of Bro. W. J. Hughan, seconded by Bro. E. Milford Cox, fifty guineas were voted to the Cornwall Masonic Annuity and Benevolent Fund; and on the motion of Bro. Anderton, seconded by Bro. Gilbert B. Pearce, ten guineas were voted to each of the Great London Charities. Bro. Hughan, in supporting the second proposition, said it was not advisable to slight the London Charities because of what had recently occurred in connection with one of them. Those errors would be amended, and the discoveries made would cause greater vigilance. The Provincial Grand Master said he considered the difficulty referred to should not in any way lessen their support of those Charities. Bro. Hughan drew attention to Bro. Chirgwin's having been twenty-five years Secretary of the Cornwall Masonic Annuity and Benevolent Fund and said the Province was much indebted to him for his long and able services. This expression of opinion was very warmly received by the Lodge, other brethren also bearing testimony to the services of Bro. Chirgwin. The two candidates for educational grants from the Cornwall Masonic Annuity and Benevolent Fund were elected, each to have a grant of £12 10s per annum. One was an orphan girl of a brother late of the Phœnix Lodge, Truro; the other a son of a brother late of the Mount Sinai Lodge, Penzance. Bro. W. Rowe withdrew his motion to increase the age of the children receiving education grants to 15 years, as he considered that question was met by the propositions of the Committee on Bro. Bake's motion. The Treasurer, Secretary, and Assistant Secretary of the Cornwall Masonic Annuity and Benevolent Fund were all re-elected, and Bros. J. Rogers 951, J. J. Hawking 151, were elected the auditors of that Charity. Bro. T. H. Gibbons 1272, 856 was elected the Provincial Grand Treasurer. The auditors for the Provincial Grand Lodge were elected. The Committee of Relief was re-elected, with the substitution of Bro. T. H. Gibbons, the new Provincial Grand Treasurer, as the Treasurer. The money collected at Church was distributed, one-fifth to the vicar's private charities, two-fifths to the parochial schools, there being no other public charity in the town; and the other two-fifths to the Cornwall Masonic Annuity and Benevolent Fund. The Provincial Grand Master invested the Officers:—

Digitized by Google

THE THEATRES, &c.

—:o:—

Shaftesbury.—The enthusiastic reception accorded to Mr. H. A. Jones' new play "The Middleman," last Tuesday, was sufficiently warranted by the genuine nature of the work, and the author may be cordially congratulated on what will doubtless prove a lasting success. The story shows the struggle of Cyrus Blenkarne, a ceramic genius, to achieve a fortune by the discovery of a lost branch of the art, that will secure him wealth and fame. His previous discoveries have made the fortune of his master and his native town, without much benefit to himself; but his spirit is roused by the seduction of his favourite daughter by his master's son, and henceforth he devotes all his energies to the success of his plans as a means to vengeance. This is at length secured, and then follow, in the last act, some startling surprises. The wealthy master becomes a pauper—the poor workman becomes a prospective millionaire and the owner of the former master's mansion, and the supposed dead daughter returns as the wife of her seducer. The middleman's vengeance resolves itself into heaping coals of fire in the shape of benefits on his old master, and of course all ends happily, in accordance with popular dramatic law. It will be seen that the interest is centred in Blenkarne, but Mr. Willard, who at length has a chance of playing something else than romantic villains, proves himself fully equal to the demands made upon him, and the audience showed their appreciation by re-calling him several times during the progress of the piece. Mr. Mackintosh gives a capital rendering of the pompous factory owner; Miss Maude Millett is pretty and pathetic as Mary Blenkarne, and Mr. H. Cane is excellent as Batty Todd the factory manager. An amusing pair of lovers, in the shape of Nancy Blenkarne and Jene Pegg, are well sustained by Miss Annie Hughes and Mr. Garden, and Mr. Esmond is satisfactory as Captain Chandler. There are numerous other characters introduced, all of which are in good hands, and the management have certainly assisted liberally in the shape of scenery and music, so that altogether the "Middleman is likely to remain in the programme for many weeks to come.

Those of our readers who were unable to see the successful comic opera "Pepita," at Toole's, some few months ago, will now have an opportunity. Messrs. Van Biene and Lingard's company will commence a short engagement at the Grand Theatre, at Islington, on Monday, the 2nd September.

Mrs. Langtry, who has recently returned from Vichy, will open her autumn tour on the 9th of September, at Wolverhampton. She will appear in "Esther Sandraz," also in "Lady Clancarty," and "As You Like It," and will, we understand, probably give one or two other plays a trial.

The last nights of the Gaiety burlesque, "Faust up to Date," are announced, owing to the autumn tour, starting at Southport, on the 9th September.

The railway accident near Potsdam, New York State, by which thirty valuable horses belonging to Mr. Barnum were killed, will not seriously affect the greatest show on earth, as duplicates of all animals are kept at the winter quarters, Bridgport, U.S.A. Mr. Barnum has completed all his arrangements for the transportation of his Exhibition to this country, and will open in October, at Olympia.

We understand that the brethren intend to entertain the Marquis of Hertford to a banquet, in Belfast, early in October, on the occasion of his installation as Provincial Grand Master of Antrim.

REVIEWS.

All Books intended for Review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, Belvidere Works, Hermes Hill, Pentonville, London, N.

"Ars Quatuor Coronatorum." Volume II., Part 2.

THE latest number of the Transactions of the Lodge—as with strict propriety it might be termed—of the Masonic literati, shows no falling off either in interest or affluence of materials. Within the period comprised in these Proceedings, two papers were read, "The Foundation of Modern Freemasonry," by Bro. G. W. Speth, and "The Grand Lodge at York," by Bro. T. B. Whytehead. Each lecture was followed by a discussion, and here we may commend the practice of the Lodge, in allowing any members, interested in the subject matter of a paper, but who are debarred from actual attendance, when it comes on for debate, to record their views, in the form of "Additional Notes," which are duly printed after the remarks of the various speakers, and constitute, in effect, a postscript to the report. By this latitude of discussion, members residing in the Provinces are enabled, when they think fit, to contribute their quota to the general fund of debate, and among those brethren who from time to time put on record in this way that they are present in the spirit, though absent in the flesh, may be named Bros. Macbean, of Glasgow; Ramsden-Riley, of Bradford; and last—not least—Hughan and Lane, of Torquay.

Among the essays or articles are, "Freemasonry in Rotterdam, 120 Years Ago," by Bro. J. P. Vaillant, Grand Secretary of the Netherlands, and "The Origin of Freemasonry," by Bro. B. Cramer, of Berlin. These two valuable contributions have been carefully translated by the indefatigable Secretary of the Lodge, and Editor of its Transactions, Bro. Speth.

The Note and Query columns are agreeably diversified by many records of old times, being commingled with much new and original matter.

Reviews appear of "Schwalbach's History of Masonic Ritual;" "Quatuor Coronatorum Antigrapha, Vol I."; and "The 1759 Order of True Friendship" by Dr. Mæonal.

Lastly, there is the "Chronicle" of current events, and in bringing our notice to a close, we heartily congratulate both the Inner and Outer Circles of No. 2076, as well upon the continued excellence of its Transactions, as upon their rare fortune in possessing, in Bro. Speth, a Secretary to whose literary versatility must be ascribed, in fairness, no slight share of the success which has crowned the issue of the series of publications, printed by the Quatuor Coronati Lodge.

VACANCY FOR MEDICAL OFFICER.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—As a candidate for Medical Officer to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, I have frequently been asked whether I am a Mason. May I therefore ask space to answer that question in the affirmative, and also to say I am a Life Subscriber to the Institution, having qualified myself on day of my initiation.

Yours fraternally,

R. F. TOMLIN, M.R.C.S.E., &c. (1851).

HOLIDAY JAUNTS THROUGH SOUTH WALES—OUT OF THE BEATEN TRACKS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR,—You have been kind enough on several previous occasions to insert my letters on the above subject, and as many of your readers are now, perhaps, cogitating where to go for their summer holidays, I shall be happy to supply them with full information of some of the most delightful rambles in this part of the kingdom, if they will only write to me, stating the kind of scenery they like best, and enclosing a stamped addressed envelope for reply, which will be the only expense they need go to.

My object is to get this part of the country better known, and appreciated by the thousands who spend large amounts in going to foreign countries without being able to obtain half the enjoyment they could obtain in their own happy land, where the parts out of the beaten tracks are little known.

Yours very truly,

HENRY B. G. BARHAM.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Biliousness and Dyspepsia.—There is no organ in the human body so liable to derangement as the liver; food, fatigue, climate, and anxiety all disorder its action, and render its secretions, the bile, more or less depraved, super-abundant or scanty. The first symptoms should receive attention. A pain in the side, or the top of the shoulder, a harsh cough, and difficulty of breathing are signs of liver disease, which are removed without delay by friction with Holloway's inestimable Ointment. The Pills should be taken without delay. For all diseases of this vital organ the action of these conjoined remedies is a specific by checking the over supply of bile, regulating its secretion and giving nervous tone.

THE RESTAURANT FRASCATI.

TWO of the most difficult problems which exercise the consideration of the average "man about town" are the questions How to Dine, and Where to Dine. It cannot be denied that Londoners are particularly well-favoured in this respect, as some of the most elegant buildings erected at the present day have been requisitioned and set apart for the delectation and satisfying of the inner man; but there is ever a craving for something fresh, something that may be considered novel, actuating the masses, which will render the task of the caterer anything but a light one, while at times he will find all his ingenuity and energy taxed to the uttermost to keep pace with the ever-increasing demand for novelty. During the last few weeks more than one palatial establishment has set forth its claims, and amongst these we may mention the Restaurant Frascati, which has been erected in Oxford-street, on the well known spot recently occupied by the proprietors of the "Bodega," within a few doors of Tottenham Court Road. In company with a friend, we recently visited this establishment, which from basement to roof has been most elegantly fitted and furnished. In the basement will be found two capacious grill rooms, where the succulent chop, the juicy steak, or the appetitising bone can be supplied at all times,—from 12 noon till midnight. These rooms are well ventilated, and are absolutely free from that stuffiness which pervades so many other establishments where the "grill room" forms the basement on which the superstructure rests. On the ground flour a capacious "bar" has been provided, where the thirsty customer can have his wants ministered to, no matter to what extent his requirements may extend. A special corner has been set apart for the supply of cooling drinks, and here the services of a skilled manipulator of American Drinks—from the proverbial "Eye Opener" to the "Night Cap"—seem to be incessantly in request. Ascending by the well-appointed lift, we reach the Renaissance Saloon, where Dinners a la Carte are served. This Saloon is divided into what may be described as the "Lords" and "Commons"; the second division is reserved for parties where ladies participate in the good things provided. In this Saloon the 2s 6d luncheon is made a special feature of; while, later on, the 5s Table d'Hote presents its attractions. On the date of our visit the menu for both these services seemed all that could be wished for, while the detail and surroundings could scarcely be surpassed. This Saloon is most artistically decorated, with a series of panel paintings, the work of the rising artist Bookbinder. It is brilliantly lighted at night, with the incandescent electric light, and in its entirety helps the guests to the enjoyment of what is placed before them. On the second floor another large room is utilized for dining purposes, and here a lower tariff rules, which will doubtless be appreciated by those whose pretensions and requirements are of the modest order. The "private rooms" of the establishment are everything that could be desired. These are available for parties of four, up to twenty, and the arrangements for service are as complete as it is possible to make them. The wine list has been carefully prepared, while the charges for all the well-known brands will bear favourable comparison with other large establishments. A special feature we noticed in connection with the Dinner à la Carte is, that "One portion is served for two persons;" Paterfamilias should bear this in mind when he desires to show his better half and the girls how they serve dinners in "swell" London establishments. The chief of this vast establishment is Bro. Chatrian, of the Percy Lodge, No. 198, and La France, No. 2060, and he has associated with him Mr. Ogden, a gentleman who brings to bear on his duties a well-developed experience. Bro. André Stahl, of the Perseverance Lodge, No. 1743, has been appointed Manager, and for him, assisted as he will be by the spirited proprietors, we anticipate a triumphant success in his new undertaking. In connection with this establishment it is proposed, in about two months time, to open an elegant winter garden, where accommodation will be provided for upwards of a thousand guests. This will be a special feature, and if conducted in the liberal manner which seems now to pervade the minds of the enterprising firm under notice, we cannot but trust will be of an eminently gratifying nature.

Obituary.

BRO. F. DELEVANTE.

BY the death, which occurred on the 27th instant, of this well known brother, the Craft has lost one of its most genial representatives. Bro. Delevante was associated with many of our metropolitan Lodges, among them we may mention the West Middlesex, No. 1612; the Earl of Carnarvon, No. 1642; the Queen's Westminster, No. 2021; the Asaph, No. 1319. In the last named Lodge he had filled the chair, and was always an active worker in the conduct of its business. For many years Bro. Delevante was the Musical Director at Madame Tussaud's Exhibition, where he was deservedly held in high repute. Our deceased brother's remains will be consigned to their last resting place, at Hammersmith Cemetery, this day (Saturday).

EADE'S

GOUT & RHEUMATIC PILLS.

The SAFEST and most EFFECTUAL CURE for GOUT, RHEUMATISM, and all PAINS in the HEAD, FACE, and LIMBS.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL from the Rev. F. FARVIS, Baptist Minister.

March 19, 1887.

Mr. G. EADE.

Dear Sir,—I have many times felt inclined to inform you of the benefit I have received by taking your Gout and Rheumatic Pills. After suffering for some time from Rheumatics and Sciatica, I was advised to use your Pills. I bought a bottle, and when in severe pain and unable to use the limb affected I took a dose. In a few hours after I felt the pain much better, and after the second dose the pain completely removed and the limb restored to its right use. I thank you, dear sir, for sending forth such a boon for the relief of human suffering.

Yours faithfully,
F. FARVIS,
Baptist Minister.

There are multitudes of people who look upon advertising as a sort of Lottery, and bestow infinitely more thought in the selection of a clerk at £100 a year than in the expenditure of £1000 or two in the same period in advertising. A tithe of the shrewdness displayed in all other branches of their business given to the management of their advertising will be amply repaid. The ADVERTISEMENT AGENT has become an indispensable factor in this matter of publicity, and his raison d'être is perfectly unassailable. Would you leave or enter a port without a pilot? Would you commence and prosecute a law suit without a legal adviser? Either of these courses would not be more foolish than rushing into expenses in Advertising without a competent practical and professional adviser. I am at all times happy to render advertisers every assistance in my power, and to give them the benefit of the experience I have gained during the past twenty years as a London advertising agent. "PAINLESS AND PERFECT DENTISTRY."

A New Pamphlet, by Dr. GEO. H. JONES, F.R.S.L., F.R.M.S., &c., Surgeon-Dentist, 57 Great Russell-street, facing British Museum entrance, London, contains a list of Diplomas, and Silver Medals and other Awards obtained at the Great International Exhibitions. Forwarded gratis and post free.

Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist's Testimonial.

My Dear Doctor,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

This is to certify: That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

Are universally admitted to be worth a Guinea a Box for Nervous and Bilious Disorders, such as wind and pain in the stomach, sick headache, giddiness, fullness and swelling after meals, dizziness and drowsiness, cold chills, flushings of heat, loss of appetite, shortness of breath, costiveness, scurvy, blotches on the skin, disturbed sleep, frightful dreams, and all nervous and trembling sensations, &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes. This is no fiction, for they have done it in thousands of cases. Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all humours, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no medicine to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

For a weak stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the liver they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse in action with the ROSEBUD of health the whole physical energy of the human frame. These are the "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of society, and one of the best guarantees to the nervous and debilitated, is that

MORE RESTRICTIONS FOR "FREE" MASONRY.

WHEN we last wrote, a fortnight since, on the subject of Class Masonry, and pointed out that its continuation in individual Lodges would prove merely the stepping stone to a huge system of cliquism, of combinations, and of sectionism, we little thought a few days would bring us full confirmation of our arguments, or that the freedom of Freemasonry was then being rudely assailed as an indirect outcome of the obnoxious feature. Yet such was the case. At the time our remarks were published a paragraph was being circulated throughout the English press, with a sensational heading associating the so-called Temperance cause with Freemasonry, and referring to two resolutions which have recently been passed by the Grand Lodge of the State of Wisconsin. There is nothing contrary to the principles of Freemasonry in holding up Temperance as a Masonic virtue—on the contrary, temperance has been taught as long as Freemasonry has existed, but the "total abstinence" craze of the present day is not "temperance," and its introduc- into the Masonic system is an innovation and a mistake.

The resolutions passed by the Masons of Wisconsin are to the following effect:—(1) "That hereafter no person who is engaged in keeping a Saloon, or selling intoxicating liquors, to be used as a beverage, shall be initiated into any subordinate Lodge in this Jurisdiction, nor shall any Mason who is so engaged be received in any Lodge by affiliation," and (2) "That it is hereby made the imperative duty of all Lodges in this Jurisdiction to exclude from Lodge and ante-rooms all intoxicating liquors." These resolutions may be very well in their way, perhaps the inhabitants of Wisconsin need stringent measures, but they are not Masonic, and however much power a Grand Lodge may possess in matters concerning its members, it can have no right to upset the first principles of Freemasonry, which enjoin that all are free to be received into its ranks, provided they are just, upright, and good men.

We see here a direct result of one Grand Lodge introducing class considerations—others follow the bad example and do worse! While the one allows restrictions for an individual Lodge, another excludes a certain class altogether from Freemasonry, and so matters progress. If the Grand Lodge of Wisconsin excludes all who deal in intoxicating liquors, it is equally possible some other Grand Lodge will exclude some other section of the community, and after a while the chance of becoming a member of the Masonic Order will largely depend on the fads and prejudices of the particular section of the world where one resides. Is this Freemasonry? Is it not rather a return to the bigotry of ages long past, and which, with the enlightenment of the present day, it was hoped would never return?

Let us suppose, for the sake of argument, that another Grand Lodge decides to exclude chapel goers, another section puts a ban on those who go to church, while a third will have nothing to do with Jews, and so forth. Would those who support the total abstinence faddists be equally in accord with all these others? and, if not, on what ground would they support their objection? If it is right for Wisconsin to exclude one section of the community it would be equally right for other Grand Lodges to exclude those whose views were not quite in accord with those of the local majority, and instead of Freemasonry being recognised as one universal system throughout the world, it would become disunited, and, as a consequence, thoroughly disorganised.

There is another and an equally important matter to be considered in regard to Class Masonry—how long are the fads of to-day likely to last? In a few years time fresh ideas will take the place of existing ones, and these strangely unmasonic restrictions will have to be removed. Then we shall see the absurdity of making class regulations; and some of the rules of to-day will appear more like the edicts of the dark ages, than the work of the latter part of the nineteenth century. But we imagine our protests will be in vain, the Masonic authorities do not appear now-a-days to take much, if any interest in upholding the old fashioned ideas of Freemasonry, which, like everything else, seems to change year by year in various parts of the world, in sympathy with the changes of local feeling and local sentiment. In many ways this is most desirable, but when a Grand Lodge passes such sweeping resolutions as those just agreed to in Wisconsin it is going too far, and it is quite time other ruling powers asked themselves the question whether the action is in accordance with the principles of Freemasonry.

REACTION.

HE would indeed be a bold man who attempted to predict the ultimate outcome of the agitation which has disturbed the Masonic Charity World during the last few months—that system of Benevolence which has at its head the three Institutions of the Craft, and which has deservedly become the boast and the pride of the English Brotherhood. Statements have been circulated, charges have been made, and altogether a most reckless line of proceeding has been indulged in. Still, we think the day is not far distant when we shall be in a position to show that much of what has taken place has been the outcome of side influence, if not actual underhand practice. There has been a rude awakening in the minds of some as to the way in which charity funds have been distributed, while those whose object seemed to be to create a disturbance have not been slow to seize upon any point likely to tell in their favour, and against those they have so ruthlessly attacked. Shall we ever know how much of this opposition has been genuine, and how much of it has been the outcome of actual conspiracy,—for it is by no other name that such proceedings as have taken place can be described, provided they are not actually the outcome of genuine agitation? For ourselves, we are still of opinion that very much has been made out of very little; but in this regard a few years experience of whatever reforms may be decided upon will be the best, if not the only method of deciding whether too much or too little blame has been bestowed. If, three or four years hence we find the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys as efficient and as capable as it was a few months back; if then it is able to provide for a like number of children as it was benefitting at the commencement of last year,—and at a greatly reduced outlay,—we shall agree that the exposure that has taken place and the hard language that has been used was in part justifiable; but if, on the other hand, we find little or no improvement or saving, then we shall know that our opinion on the point was a just one, and we shall be even more ready to extend sympathy to the officials and committeemen who have been so indecently, even unmercifully abused, during the last few months.

It is early yet to speak of a reaction setting in in connection with the unfortunate experiences of the last twelve months, and yet signs are not wanting that something of the kind is to be expected. One of the strongest points in favour of our view that the opposition was not wholly just is to be found in the fact that it was not confined to one quarter alone. The Secretary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys happened to be also the Secretary of the Mark Degree, and when he was assailed in one quarter the opportunity was seized of attacking him in the other. The Craft, or at least the members of the Mark Degree, know the outcome of the attack: Bro. Binckes resigned his offices as Mark G. Secretary, and has been awarded a well-earned retiring allowance. But how was this brought about? Was it the outcome of legitimate feeling, or are we to believe that "intrigue has had more to do with the retirement than 'free will and accord.'" This question is just now agitating the minds of a large section of the Craft, and if it should be necessary, we believe there is sufficient evidence capable of being brought forward to prove, not only "intrigue," but the existence of a deep conspiracy. The secret history of this agitation has yet to be written—that it will see the light of day at an early date we cannot promise, but we are assured it will eventually be made public; then things will appear under a very different light to that now apparent. What at present seems very black may wear a different aspect if looked at with a knowledge of men and manners just now denied the ordinary observer.

THE RISING AND SETTING SUN.

FREEMASONRY was born and spent its early life in the East, but now in its manhood inhabits mainly the West, and its course has ever been from the rising towards the setting sun. It reminds one of Bishop Berkeley's prophetic line:

"Westward the course of empire takes its way."

The Craft probably had its origin in Egypt, whence it was carried to Phœnicia, and Palestine, but in none of these countries is it any longer native, but exists only as an offshoot from a western stock; while in Great Britain and the United States of America, especially, and also in some portions of the continent of Europe, the great centres of Masonic Light now exist, whence its rays proceed to all portions of the civilized world. Egypt to-day receives its Masonic Light from England. Strange revolution of history! But greatest of all countries in the future, if not in the present, is the American Union, and here Freemasonry is thriving to a wonderful, nay even to an alarming extent. Grand Lodges are rapidly multiplying in this land of the setting sun, and they already include in their several jurisdictions over six hundred thousand affiliated Masons. So great a multiple of jurisdictions and initiates must, in the nature of things, produce a multitude of counsels, a variety of administrations, decisions and usages. This is to be deprecated, but cannot be altogether prevented.

The East of Freemasonry was a diminutive land, as compared with the West. What are Egypt, Phœnicia, Palestine and India, as compared with Great Britain and America? And what is the America of to-day, as compared with the America to be, a hundred or a thousand years hence? The various past is entitled to our respect and homage, for out of it has come all that we most prize, but the more various future, big with promise, will reveal the wonder-land of Freemasonry, as it will that of civilisation.

The rising sun is a matchless emblem of the Architect of the Universe, as it comes forth from the tents of night, and passing through the golden gate of the Orient, rises in the heavens with the stateliness of an oriental Pharaoh, "monarch of all he surveys;" but after it attains the zenith of its course, at High Twelve, and then royally salaams to the West, and with resplendent grace and beauty enters the blushing portals of the Occident, there is a charm about the setting which overmatches even the splendour of the rising. Gaze on the western sky at the decline of day, and say whether you cannot see there the Isles of the Blest, the Garden of Hesperides, the Happy Hunting Grounds of the nations of all ages? All of these they located in the West. The East is the land of origins, but the West is the land of consummations. The seed is planted in the East, the fruit is gathered in the West. Pharaoh, and the kings of Israel and of Tyre, were notable and powerful rulers of the Craft of Freemasons in their day, but their successors in Solomon's Chair in our day, and in our land, are more powerful still, because they rule over a far greater constituency of Freemasons, who are privileged each to know the entirety of the Mystery, and each is eligible to election to sit in the Oriental Chair.

No one has estimated, or can estimate, the far-reaching character of the influence of Freemasonry in the world. It by no means is limited to the bodies of the Craft. Every initiate is a light-bearer, a centre of light. Freemasonry is itself akin to light in this, that it is among the imponderables. Scientists tell us that so-called material light is immaterial, and but a mode of motion, and to be classed with heat, electricity and magnetism. Possibly, as some one has eloquently said, light is God's natural expression, manifestation, vestment. King David said of Him:

"Thou coverest Thyself with Light as with a garment."

In Job, the Almighty, speaking to the Emir of Arabia out of the whirlwind, says:

"The way—where is it to Light's dwelling place?
And darkness—where the place of its abode?"

While Milton sang:

"Hail, holy Light! Offspring of Heaven, first-born."

What was the Shekinah of the Old Testament but the Light of the living God? And in the New Testament, we are told, respecting the New Jerusalem which shall come down from God, that "the Lamb will be the Light thereof." If so, the Son of the Highest will thenceforth eternally shine.

Freemasonry is nothing if it be not Light. Imitating the all-Father, at such distance as man must imitate Deity, the founders of Freemasonry, in a past so remote that we cannot now specify it, said: "Let there be Light!" That is, let truth prevail, let knowledge increase, let brotherly love continue, let charity be all-embracing. The result is the Craft of to-day—which aims to give its initiates the best enjoyment, the purest lessons of morality, and to inspire high aims for the here and the hereafter. Freemasonry is a system of moral and intellectual Light. It comes to us from the Orient, and is therefore like unto the light of the rising sun, and it streams upon us in the Occident, and hence is akin to the light of the setting sun. Freemasonry possesses one hundred and eighty degrees of light, all crowded into its own three degrees, which are conferred in all lands, from the rising to the setting sun.

The memorial stone of a new Masonic Hall, at Stromness, will be laid, with Masonic honours, on the 11th inst. It is expected that a number of the brethren from Kirkwall, Lerwick, Wick, and Thurso will be present, along with the members of the Provincial Lodge.

MAN'S IDEAL LIFE.

THE living of a man's individual life as nobly as he can, is the true ideal. In that endeavour he gains strength daily; day by day he is visibly conscious of increased power, which comes from an infinitely higher source. He knows this; and is led, rather than governed by any specific rules; whither it may lead him he knows not. By its guidance, however, he will be no more ashamed to enter the lowest hovel on an errand of mercy than he is to bless God for the opportunities of serving him. Such a man may suffer "the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune"—the poverty that in the present day overtakes the rich so quickly and grinds an innocent wife and family in the same cruel mill—nay, even the bitter experiences of that bastard love which "flies out of the window" on its approach—yet he feels, though he knows not how or when it will come about, that the seeds sown in the better days will surely bloom and bear fruit, either here or in eternity. "Nevertheless I am continually with thee" is his power of strength, and the gates of hell may not prevail against it. Asking a dying man what he particularly wished for, "nothing here," said he, "everything smells of earth." There is far too much "earth" in our composition, and were it not that man has a higher principle within, ever ready to be cultivated, we should devour each other like wild beasts. "Make money thy servant," said an old philosopher, "or it will be thy master," and it is one of the best maxims for rich men, who too often do not use, but abuse wealth. Considering that no man can be absolutely certain of possessing his wealth even ten minutes, and the good that may often be done with a very little judiciously bestowed in the immediate proximity of our own dwellings, it is surely an earthy disease of the mind that influences any man to devote all his thoughts and energies to the acquisition of that which when gained he does not even enjoy himself. But we do not wish to insinuate that all rich men necessarily find it difficult to pass through the "needle's eye" of that great responsibility attached to the possession of wealth. There are some who, because they are rich, never get credited for their good deeds. They would be less admirable characters if they expected it.

Above a certain amount, no man is richer than another; that amount varies with the individual. If that surplus be not worthily used, nothing is more certain than this, that it will be abused; for all the ingenuity of man will not prevent the fulfilment of that mission for which alone it was bestowed; there is nearly as much mystery about money as life itself.

But we are wandering a little from the main point. Every man, whether he be rich or poor, gentle or simple, has it in his power to communicate happiness in some way or other to those around him. Money as a specific for many of the ills of life is often of little use; so that, as occasion requires, both rich and poor may be useful if they will. Of all classes of men, Masons have the best opportunities of doing real good. As a body they possess, if the distressed is or has been one of themselves, a better knowledge of the justice of relief, and therefore their heart can be in the work.

Goethe said that if any man were to do all that he is called upon to do, he would kill himself in a twelvemonth. Perhaps that is the reason why so many men avoid suicide by doing so little. However, it is to be feared that some suffer a far more lingering and painful death through having wrapped themselves up in the treacherous Macintoshes of selfishness, than will ever die of enlarged generosity towards their suffering fellow creatures. It is beautifully expressed in an old Manx proverb, that "when one poor man helps another poor man, God himself laughs," —and men can all attempt a deal more than they do for their fellows, without running any risk at all. Masons are such to very little purpose, if they neglect to avail of the opportunities they have of doing good. As previously stated it can be done in many cases without money; hence many a man of whom it has been said "his life was a failure," will be judged far differently hereafter. Whatever may be the mystery and purpose of our lives the man with one talent has but to make use of it to God's honour, and depend upon it he has as good an assurance of Heaven as he who has ten. And as the ripples at the very edge of a sheet of water may be caused by a stone thrown in the centre by a child, so there is no fathoming the depth or knowing the extent or distance at which a good deed may penetrate away from the centre of its commission.

The poor artizan who carries a few fresh gathered flowers into his neighbour's sick room, or drops the sympathetic tear when words fail him in some home darkened by sorrow, has surely better answered the end of his existence than he who on his death bed would bribe the Almighty with the thousands he then leaves for charity! The rounding-off of "self" is undoubtedly the only true entrance on the ideal life, and we are convinced that it is alone productive of the very highest enjoyment that can be realised in this world.—Freemasons' Repository.

THE PRIVILEGES OF EXCLUSION.

WE are informed, upon authority that there is no reason whatever to doubt, that the fact of a brother having been excluded from one Lodge does not prevent him from visiting any other once; or if he happens to be a member of two Lodges, from retaining all the privileges of visiting ad infinitum by virtue of his connection with the Lodge of which he still retains membership. In the latter case indeed we believe he may with impunity visit even the Lodge which has erased him from its roll, unless the W.M. cares to exercise his prerogative, a very unpleasant matter, and refuse him admission on the ground that want of harmony would be the result. In many Constitutions dual membership is not permitted, and thus the extreme features of the case are avoided, whilst other jurisdictions again, give their non-affiliates little or no locus standi. But the English Constitution, wisely or unwisely, we are inclined to think the latter, not only permits dual and multiple membership, but, as we have shown in a previous article, allows the non-affiliated brother to play the Mason pretty well as he likes. We are therefore face to face with the facts, manifest anomalies we cannot but call them, of men who have been purged out of a Lodge exercising exactly the same privileges as if they had honourably retired from it, or even setting at nought the expressed decision of that Masonic body perhaps best acquainted with them, and filling a place in Masonry by virtue of membership of another Lodge. We speak of these facts as anomalies because the reasoning (if any) which expresses itself in the laws which allow them to take up their position is not on all fours with that applied to the powers by which they were originally admitted to the Craft. Our laws enable any one Lodge, however Masonically disreputable it may be, to inflict upon the Craft at large any one whomsoever it lists, but at the same time the individual Lodge has not the same power of having its adverse action endorsed by the Fraternity in general. Or to put it in another way; the action of the supreme authority is needed to deprive a man of the privileges of Masonry, but the action of its most insignificant subordinate can admit him. Take this as you will, it involves a reductio ad absurdum, or lands us in the totally indefensible and absolutely immoral position of making admission as easy as possible, and purification as difficult as we know how. If the Grand or District Grand Lodge is the only body that can say that a man shall cease to be recognised as a Mason, then by a parity of reasoning, the imprimatur of the same bodies should be needed before a candidate can be admitted to the privileges of the Craft. Broadly speaking, the power which admits should expel, that is if our arrangements are to be logical at all. And assuming that the right of the individual Lodge to do as it "darn please," like the typical Yankee, is indisputable, we cannot see why in the name of common sense, the postulate should not tell in one direction as well as another. It may be said that if a man is excluded from an individual Lodge, does lose the right of doing anything but visiting any other Lodge once. We have, however, pretty clearly demonstrated that this means very little indeed in practice. What we want is something more definite. The distinction between expulsion and exclusion should not exist. If the same authority which lifted A.B. into Masonry decides to put him out of it, and that decision is not upset by the supreme authority, it should be effective as to severing his connection with the whole Craft. The appeal to Grand Lodge would always be a safeguard against injustice. It is true that exclusion from a Lodge might be the result of a failure to pay dues, but even if so, we contend that a man who, whether wilfully or from misfortune, cannot pay his dues, should, for the time being, cease to enjoy the benefits of the institution which depends upon those dues for its every day needs. And if a man is excluded by a Lodge from Masonry, that Lodge, and no other, should possess the right of receiving him back.—South African Freemason.

MASONIC CEREMONIAL AT MUSSELBURGH.

ON Saturday, 24th ult., the foundation stone of a new hall for Inveresk Parish Church was laid, with Masonic honours, by the Substitute Grand Master of Scotland, Bro. Sir Charles Dalrymple, Bart., M.P., assisted by the Master, Wardens and Office-bearers of the Lodge St. John's, Fisherrow (No. 112). The Substitute Grand Master was also supported by deputations from most of the Lodges in the Metropolitan Province and a large body of Grand Office-bearers. The Freemasons met at the Lodge-room of the St. John's, where the Lodge was opened. Afterwards a procession was formed, which walked through the principal streets of Musselburgh, by a circuitous route to the site of the hall. The hall will accommodate about 750 persons, and the cost of it will be about £2000, the greater part of which has been subscribed, including a sum of £500 generously given by Mr. John Livingstone, Strathern Road. The style adopted by the architect is fourteenth century Gothic, as exemplified in many of our Scottish ecclesiastical buildings of that period. The front gable is flanked by two buttresses and wings containing the gallery stair, waiting rooms, &c. The main entrance door, in the centre of the front, has a richly moulded and cuped pointed arch, the mouldings dying out against a deeply splayed jamb, instead of being continued to the ground. There are to be some richly traceried windows. The exterior hewn work is being formed of red sandstone from Corncockle, Dumfriesshire, and the rubble of blue Hailesstone, the two forming a very pleasant contrast, which will be further enhanced when the roof is on and covered with the pale green slates which are to be used. The architect is Mr. J. Macintyre Henry, Edinburgh, Grand Architect in the Grand Lodge of Scotland, whose plans were selected in competition. On arriving at the hall the procession opened up, and the Substitute Grand Master, the Grand Lodge deputation, and the members of Lodge St. John, carrying the working tools, passed through to the platform. The National Anthem was rendered by a choir and the band of the 6th V.B. Royal Scots, and then the Rev. James Sharp presented to Sir Charles Dalrymple a silver trowel bearing his crest and motto ("Firme") and a suitable inscription. In doing so he spoke of the honourable and active part which the baronet had taken in the welfare of the Church of Scotland and the community of Inveresk, and said the enthusiasm with which the movement for the erection of this hall had been taken up was proof of the need for such a building, and that the completion of the hall would centralise their forces and perfect to a great extent the organisation of their growing congregation. The hundredth Psalm was sung, the Rev. John Glasse, Acting Grand Chaplain, led in prayer, and then the stone was lowered and laid, with corn and wine, with the usual Masonic ceremonial. The Substitute Grand Master, in a short address, said the stone was encompassed with well-wishers, and those present hoped the work which had advanced thus far would speedily pass to a safe and successful completion. The minister and kirk-session of Inveresk were to be congratulated on the favour which had attended the undertaking, initiated as it had been by the excellent friend of the parish Mr. Livingstone. It was known to many of them that the project of a parish hall was started and discussed in the year before last, but it was in the brief ministry of Mr. Sharp, the first year of which has not yet completed, that it took definite shape and had made the progress of which they were witnesses. The erection of that hall was typical of a great revival and development of parochial work all around them, and he looked for great things in the parish of Inveresk in the years to come. He was quite sure that that parish hall would be of the greatest use to the parish and district, and that, if it were so, they would not only rejoice at being permitted to witness this ceremony, but would be glad to bear their part in completing the important and beneficent work. At the call of Colonel Aitchison of Drummore, thanks were awarded the Substitute Grand Master for his services that day and at all times to the parish. The band played "Rule Britannia," and this closed the ceremony.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Worcester will be held on the 11th of September, at the Town Hall, Stourport. The Great Western Railway Company, with their wonted liberality, have made a concession for the occasion. "Six brethren from any Station will be allowed to travel first-class at a fare and a quarter for the double journey. Secretaries of Lodges are requested to give a few days' notice at their respective railway stations." The Prov. Grand Lodge will be presided over by the R.W. Brother Sir Edmund A. H. Lechmere, Bart., M.P., Prov. Grand Master, and will meet under the auspices of the Vernon Lodge, No. 560. The banquet will be served at the Swan Hotel.

The session of the East Surrey of Concord Lodge of Instruction, No. 463, was commenced on Tuesday, the 3rd instant, at the Greyhound Hotel, High-street, Croydon. The members meet every Tuesday evening at 8, until May 1890. The Preceptor is Brother H. M. Hobbs P.P.J.W. Surrey.

BAKEWELL NEW TOWN HALL.

ON Wednesday, the 21st ult., the corner or memorial stone of the New Town Hall, Bakewell, now in course of erection, was laid with full Masonic ceremony by the R.W. Bro. Haughton Charles Okeover, P.J.G.W. England and Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Derbyshire, assisted by the Officers of the Prov. Grand Lodge of Derbyshire. The scheme for the erection of the building originated about last Christmas with the members of the Dorothy Vernon Lodge of Bakewell, which had then only recently been formed. At first it was intended to erect simply a Masonic hall, but after the matter was discussed the need of a larger building, which should answer the purposes of a town hall, was so generally felt, and promises of support being forthcoming, the present building was resolved upon, and a company, under the Limited Liability Act, was formed to carry it into effect. The building, when complete, will comprise a large hall, suitable for public meetings and entertainments, a room for the accommodation of the Freemasons, Magistrates' and County Court room and offices, and retiring rooms for witnesses, &c., and every other necessary convenience. The estimated cost is £3,500, which has been fully subscribed. The event has been looked forward to with some curiosity by the public, as it is probable no similar ceremony has taken place in Bakewell for a great number of years, perhaps not within the memory of the oldest inhabitant. The brethren assembled at the Old Town Hall, where a procession was formed, and they walked from thence to the Parish Church, preceded by two Tylers with drawn swords, and the Birchover Brass Band, under the leadership of Mr. Marsden, conductor. At the church a short service was held, and an address delivered by one of the Provincial Grand Chaplains (Rev. E. E. Morris). After the service the procession re-formed and proceeded to the site of the new building. Here the officiating brethren took up their positions round the stone, and a hymn was sung, commencing:

"Except the Lord conduct the plan,
The best concerted schemes are vain."

The stone was then raised, and a prayer offered by the Provincial Grand Chaplain. Upon the stone was the following inscription:—

"This stone was laid 21st August 1889, by the R.W. Bro. H. C. Okeover P.J.G.W., D.P.G.M. Derbyshire."

A bottle containing the coins of the realm for the present reign was then deposited by the Provincial Grand Treasurer in a cavity in the stone, after which the stone was slowly let down into its place, and the various Officers having applied the plumb-rule, the level, and the square, according to the usual ceremony, the architect handed the Provincial Grand Junior Warden a mallet (prepared for the occasion), and the stone was declared well and truly laid. Corn as an emblem of plenty, wine as an emblem of joy, oil as an emblem of prosperity and happiness, and salt as an emblem of wisdom, fidelity and perpetuity, were then sprinkled upon the stone, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master concluding this portion of the ceremony with the following benediction:—"And may the all bounteous Author of Nature bless this district, this ancient town and county, and the kingdom at large with abundance of corn and wine and oil and all the necessaries, comforts, and conveniences of life. And may the same Almighty Power preserve the inhabitants in peace and unity and brotherly love," to which the brethren present responded, "So mote it be." The "Old Hundredth Psalm" was then sung, and the "National Anthem" concluded the proceedings, which were witnessed by a large concourse of people. The brethren and friends subsequently dined together at the Rutland Arms Hotel.

At the luncheon Bro. Okeover presided, and amongst the company who were not Masons were Lord Denman, Mr. S. Taylor Whitehead, J.P., Mr. Slater, Mr. Fenton, J.P., and Dr. Wrench. Mr. Whitehead, on behalf of the Directors of the Town Hall Company, thanked the members of the Masonic body for their attendance, and for lending so much éclat to the ceremony of the day. The Chairman suitably acknowledged the toast, expressing gratification at the progress of Freemasonry in the district, and trusting that the new building would prove to be the centre of much that was good and useful in the old town of Bakewell.

INQUISITIVE NORTON.

WE read, in the Chaine D'Union of Paris:—"In response to an inquiry emanating from Bro. J. Norton, of Boston, the Masonic sheets of Germany and of Austria-Hungary have observed that the Bible figures in none of the Lodges in either of these countries. As far as investigation has been pressed, says in this connection the Hajinal of Perth, no traces of the Bible can be discovered."

For what reason our antiquarian friend, unintentionally ennobled by the suffix de Boston to his plebeian name, desired to snuff out one of the Great Lights of American Masonry, we are unconscious. Still he has the satisfaction of having undermined the prevalent fallacy, among Americans, that the Bible should universally be considered as an inseparable companion to Lodge furniture. Heretofore our anathemas have been levelled solely against France for encouragement of atheistical tendencies through the refusal to exact an implicit belief in the Deity as a preliminary authorizing admission to the mysteries of Masonry, but now we ascertain that the major body of the Craft in Continental Europe have openly repudiated the teachings of their English brothers touching the sanctity of the Scriptures. And consideration of this admitted fact must be important at this moment, when some of our Grand Lodges are inclined to promulgation of declarations that a disbelief in the inspiration of the Bible incapacitates admission into the fraternity of Freemasons.—Masonic Chronicle, New York, March 1887.

It is reported that the Queen-Regent of Spain intends to be Grand Mistress of the Freemasons.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

CONSECRATION OF THE PRINCE'S LODGE, No. 2315.

ON Tuesday, the 27th ult, this Lodge, which is the seventh new Lodge in the Province of West Lancashire during the present year—was duly consecrated, according to ancient custom, at the Deaf and Dumb Institute, Prince's Road, Liverpool. The ceremony of consecration was performed by Bro. R. Wylie, P. Prov. G.W., P.G.D. Eng., assisted by several Grand and Provincial Grand Officers. At the conclusion of the ceremony, and the Worshipful Master installed and his Officers invested, the brethren sat down to a sumptuous banquet, provided at the Grand Hotel, in Mr. P. Eberle's best style. The post prandial proceedings were enlivened by the vocal and instrumental efforts of Bros. T. Shaw, O. J. Rowlands, D. J. Davies, D. Williams, and the members of the Cambrian Quartette.

LODGE OF INDUSTRY, No. 48.

THIS thriving Lodge having for the first time indulged in the luxury of a midsummer vacation, resumed work on Monday, the 26th ult., when there was a good attendance of members and visitors at Gateshead-on-Tyne. The W.M. Bro. Wm. Brown presided, and was supported and assisted by Bros. W. Dalrymple I.P.M., Michael Corbitt Treasurer, Robert Whitfield, J. G. Smith, M. H. Dodd, A. Rhagg, E. Shewbrooks, W. F. Raeburn S.W., Wm. Richardson J.W., M. R. Wright Secretary, Rev. W. Bowker Chaplain, W. J. Jobson S.D., Geo. Craighill J.D., Wm. Stafford I.G., R. Ferry Org., W. H. Denton and A. Dodds Stewards, A. Simpson, T. Chegwidden, W. Whitfield, G. C. Potts, G. Hibbert, T. Campbell, T. Thompson, W. H. Knowles, and J. T. Milnes. Amongst the visitors were Bros. J. Fenwick P.M. 906, W. M. Lyon P.M. 406, W. F. Carmon P.M. 487, G. R. Harbottle W.M. 406, R. Shaylor 406, H. Soderberg S.W. 1119, Isaac Taylor J.W. 1342, Wm. Milnes Secretary 1773, A. T. Aitchison I.P.M. 24, H. E. Hollis J.D. 1863, and others. Bro. J. T. Milnes, at the special request of Bro. A. E. Sharp W.M. 1119, was raised by the W.M., who performed the ceremony in a very careful and perfect manner. Two propositions for initiation were made, and, other formal business being ended, the Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the refreshment board, where the remainder of the evening was spent most harmoniously.

ST. JOHN'S LODGE, No. 328

THE first monthly meeting, after the summer recess, was held in the Masonic Hall, Torquay, on Monday last, the W.M. Bro. W. A. Hill being in the chair. Bro. John Taylor J.D. presented to the Lodge a copy of the "Masonic Orations of Bro. L. C. Metham, P.G.D. England, delivered in Devon and Cornwall, with an introduction by Bro. W. J. Hughan, England, and edited by Bro. John Chapman P.M. 1402, &c., P. Prov. G.D. Devon" (author of "The Great Pyramid and Freemasonry.") Bro. John Taylor also presented to the Lodge, on behalf of Bro. Hughan, the following neatly framed engravings:—"H.R.H. the Duke of Albany, K.G.," "Sir Watkin Williams-Wynn, Bart., P.G.M. North Wales and Shropshire," "Robert Freke Gould P.S.G.D (England)," "Major George S. Tudor P.G.M. Staffordshire." A curious engraving of a Mason, engraved and printed in 1801, and re-engraved by F. Compton Price, 1889.

BROWNRIGG LODGE, No. 1638.

A MEETING of this Lodge was held on Wednesday, the 21st ult., at the Sun Hotel, Kingston-on-Thames, when Bro. H. W. Humphreys W.M. was assisted in the opening of the Lodge by Bros. W. Drewett S.W., T. Montague J.W., Willis S.D., Baltzas J.D., and Pennington as I.G. Bros. G. Moorman I.P.M., Abel Laurence P.M. Secretary, C. Aldridge P.M. Treasurer, Youldon P.M., Rumbelow, S. Townsend, J. H. Sumner, Treverton, Gibbons, and others, were also present. Bros. Mann, Heaton, and Whittick were passed to the F.C. degree, and Bro. Band was raised to the sublime degree of M.M., and this, as well as the preceding ceremony, was admirably performed by the W.M., who, however had to contend against the distressing distraction of the noise accompanying a regatta on the river close by the room in which the Lodge was held. To add to this, heavy storms of rain fell at intervals, so that at times the voice of the W.M. was nearly drowned. The by-laws of the Lodge were put in force in respect of a candidate who had been accepted on ballot, but had not presented himself within the specified period, and the names of two brethren were ordered to be struck off the register, they being four years in arrear, and having persistently neglected to reply to any of the applications made to them. In each instance the brother is in respectable circumstances, and could not plead poverty as an excuse for non payment of dues. By an unanimous vote Bro. W. Drewett was elected W.M. for the year ensuing, and Bro. Oldridge as Treasurer. Bro. W. Lane was again elected Tyler. On the motion of the I.P.M. Bro. Moorman, a P.M.'s jewel was voted to the outgoing W.M., to whom well deserved compliments were paid for the excellent working he had exhibited, and for the happy year spent under his rule. Some other business was transacted, and the proceedings were closed. The installation of the new W.M. will take place on Wednesday, the 19th inst.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE, No. 1834.

THE installation of Lieutenant T. Cowd, R.N., as Worshipful Master of this Lodge took place on Tuesday, 27th ult., at the Freemasons' Hall, Commercial-road, Landport. There was a good attendance, including Bros. G. S. Lancaster P.M. 903, J. W. Give P.M. 309, C. Birch I.P.M. 2074, W. Miles P.P.G D.C., W. Gunnell P.P.Supt.Works, W. Bates W.M. 487, W. Wilkins W.M. 1266, J. E. Spurrell J.W. 177, W. Leamy S.W. 342, J. W. Willmott P.M. 342, A. H. Harcox 1776, J. Guyatt Secretary 1776, W. Miller W.M. 2068, J. E. Smith W.M. 1883, H. W. Townsend W.M. 1903, Major Stanley P.G.S.W., W. A. Hill P.M. 309, J. W. D. Pillow 1903, Rev T. H. Fitzhardinge Morton W.M. 257, C. J. Lawrence W.M. 1969, J. R. S. Wright 342, W. H. Sperring W.M. 342, H. Croucher P.M. 342, J. W. Bascombe P.M. 804, J. Hamilton Bridle, Thomas A. Bramadon Secretary 257, F. Sanders P.M. 342, W. White jun. S.D. 1776, A. Tayler 1776, G. L. Green, W. M. Outridge P.M. 487, &c. The members of the Duke of Connaught Lodge in attendance comprised Bros. David T. Rule W.M., C. W. Beavis Treasurer, Lieut. T. Cowd, R.N., J.W., J. J. Suter Secretary, R. J. Waterman Dir. of Cers., H. Cawte I.P.M., G. Farney Brown P.M. P.G.J.D., S. R. Ellis P.M., C. F. Brown, G. Banning, Edward Bramble, Alexander Howell, W. W. Slade, James Kent, A. H. Slade, F. A. Hobbs, I. S. Gardner P.M., W. B. Fogden, &c. Lodge was close tyled at 5·30. The ceremony of installation was ably performed by the retiring W.M. (Bro. D. T. Rule), and was made all the more impressive by the admirable manner in which the anthems were rendered by a small choir, Bro. Pillow presiding at the harmonium. The customary hearty good wishes were offered to the incoming W.M., who, it may be mentioned, on retiring from the service, having completed his term in one of the Royal yachts, was presented by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales with a handsome gold chronometer watch, as a mark of esteem. The W.M. appointed his Officers, as under:—Bros. T. D. Rule I.P.M., G. T. Aylen S.W., J. J. Suter J.W., C. W. Bevis Treas., Alex. Howell Secretary, C. F. Brown Dir. of Cers., R. J. Waterman S.D., W. W. Slade J.D., W. B. Fogden I.G., J. Kent and E. Bramble Stewards, J. Exell Tyler. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded Bro. Rule for his services as Installing Master. The banquet was served in the lower hall, and reflected great credit on the cuisine of the Masonic Club. The W.M. presided, and the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts followed. Bro. the Rev. T. F. Morton, in introducing the M.W. the Pro Grand Master the Earl of Carnarvon, and the R.W. the Deputy Grand Master the Earl of Lathom, and the Officers of Grand Lodge, made sympathetic reference to the recent bereavement sustained by the last-named nobleman in the death of his son, a young and promising naval officer, and who was on the point of becoming a member of the Craft, of which his father is so distinguished a member. The Masonic Charities was proposed by Bro. G. F. Lancaster, who made a judicious reference to the London Charities, and called attention to the Hampshire and Isle of Wight Institute, whose Festival is to be held at Portsmouth in November. Bro. Lancaster, who is the indefatigable Honorary Secretary of this young but flourishing Institution, which has £1,200 invested, showed that good value is obtained for the money expended, and made an appeal for Stewards for the Festival, which was responded to by several members of the Duke of Connaught Lodge. The W.M. had a warm reception on rising to respond to the Worshipful Master. Bro. J. W. Give P.G. Treasurer responded for the Provincial Officers. The songs, &c., with which the toasts were interspersed and the skilful accompaniments of Bro. Pillow were much appreciated by the company.

MARK MASONRY.

—:o:—

PROV. G. LODGE OF DORSETSHIRE.

THE annual Provincial Grand Lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Wimborne Minster, on Thursday, the 22nd ult., under the banner of St. Cuthberga Lodge, No. 99. The Provincial Grand Master Bro. Rev. W. Mortimer Heath presided. The reports of the Registrar and Treasurer of the province were received and adopted. The Provincial Grand Master addressed the brethren on the progress of Mark Masonry generally and in the province, and then appointed and invested the Officers for the ensuing year, as follows:—

Bro. Sir R. N. Howard	...	Deputy Master
H. F. Harvey	...	Senior Warden
J. F. Hatchard	...	Junior Warden
R. Patey	...	M.O.
H. G. B. Frampton	...	S.O.
F. Turner	...	J.O.
Rev. W. C. Browne	...	Chaplain
W. B. Morgan	...	Registrar of Marks
W. J. Fletcher	...	Secretary
G. Habgood (elected)		Treasurer
A. Butler	...	Senior Deacon
G. M. Evans	...	Junior Deacon
G. J. Brady	...	D.C.
T. J. Mason	...	Sword Bearer
J. Downs	...	Standard Bearer
W. H. Hibberd	...	I.G.
R. Simmonds (elected)	...	Tyler

The brethren afterwards dined together, the Provincial Grand Master presiding, when the usual Masonic toasts were given.

A boy, named Robt. Goddard, was charged at the Darlington Police Court, last week, with stealing a Masonic jewel, value £5, from the shop of Mr. J. Bailey, Horse Market. The boy at one time was employed as an errand boy at Mr. Bailey's shop, and the jewel was purloined from a registered letter. The lad, who confessed that he sold the jewel, at Redcar, for 3d, was fined 10s; in default, seven days' imprisonment.

THERE IS ANOTHER ST. JOHN.

BRO. DANIEL F. BELL, of Marshall, Ms., in a communication to the Masonic Constellation, uses the following expression:—

"Why do you Masons celebrate the anniversary of St. John the Baptist? is a question that is asked by some of those who are possibly not well acquainted with the history of Masonry, and it is not an improper question, for we, as Masons, have, as we think, good reasons for our actions."

Bro. Bell gives two reasons for Masonic veneration of the forerunner, the second of which he urges because "he was a promoter and lover of our Order and its principles," which is about as reckless an assertion as the famous one of the French Bro. Enoch, that St. Michael the Archangel was our first Grand Master. Then Bro. Bell gives a very interesting epitome of the customs attending celebrations of St. John's Day in various countries, all of which are remnants of usages peculiar to the Pagan observance of the festival of the summer solstice, as has been demonstrated by observant critics ten times over.

To us it appears incredible that Masons continue to confute St. John the Baptist with St. John of Jerusalem, a decidedly historical character to whom they are told their Lodges are dedicated. This saint, canonized by Rome, under the title of Almoner, or St. John of Jerusalem, was born in the sixth century, was patriarch of Constantinople, went to Jerusalem and erected a hospital for relief of pilgrims to the Holy Sepulchre, dying a martyr to his charitable proclivities. He was, undoubtedly, the patron of the Knights Hospitallers, and thence has passed into Masonry most appropriately. Should, as the learned Abbe Robin contends its original object to have been, perpetuation of the virtues of chivalry, moribund at advent of the renaissance, or re-birth of civilization.—Masonic Chronicle, August 1889, New York.

REMARKS ON THE ABOVE, BY BRO. JACOB NORTON.

However ridiculous Bro. Bell's belief is that St. John the Baptist "was a promoter and lover of our Order," the belief of the critic in the Masonic Chronicle, that St. John of Jerusalem was ever regarded by Masons as their Patron Saint, or that Masons have ever observed or celebrated his Festival Day, is equally absurd. The fact is, Masons in America, until within twenty-five years or so, observed the Saints John Days, because they believed, as Bro. Bell now believes, that the Sts. John were "Eminent Masons," Grand Masters of Masons, &c. But since the sectarian question in Masonry has been raised, and the Masonry of the Sts. John has been exploded, some luminaries have tried to persuade the Jewish Masons that the Masonic Sts. John were not originally designed for the Baptist or for the Evangelist, but for St. John of Jerusalem. St. John of Jerusalem may have been the Patron Saint of the Hospitallers, but as Masons never had any connection with chivalry before Masonic Templarism was invented, and as the Grand Lodge in London was organized on the 24th June 1717, and as Anderson's Constitution ordained that the Days of the Baptist and of the Evangelist should be the Masonic festivals, it is nonsense therefore to talk about St. John of Jerusalem ever having been the Masons' Patron Saint.

BOSTON, U.S., 20th August 1889.

Bro. John Lane's "Masonic Records, 1717-1886," is now out of print. The volume, as its merits became known, was eagerly purchased by students, and, as a matter of course, is already at a premium. These remarks apply also to Bro. W. J. Hughan's last book, which relates to the "Engraved List of 1734," and the Histories of the old Lodges. This is the more gratifying to Bro. Hughan, as the work has only recently been issued. We are convinced the few copies of both books held by booksellers will rapidly increase in value as these facts become known, consequently we advise collectors to procure copies as soon as possible.

At the installation meeting of the Ethelbert Lodge, No. 2099, held on Tuesday, the 13th ult., Bro. J. S. White was installed by the Immediate Past Master, Bro. H. C. Jones.

Lord Egerton of Tatton, Provincial Grand Master of Cheshire, has summoned the Officers and Brethren of the Province to the annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge, to be held at Hyde, on 18th September next. There will be the usual investiture of officers for the ensuing year, and there will be a motion to grant fifty guineas to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, in London.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Counsel for the delicate.—Those to whom the changeable temperature is a protracted period of trial should seek the earliest opportunity of removing all obstacles to good health. This cooling Ointment, perseveringly rubbed upon the skin, is the most reliable remedy for overcoming all diseases of the throat and chest. Quinsey, relaxed tonsils, sore throat, swollen glands, ordinary catarrh, and bronchitis, usually preventing at this season, may be arrested as soon as discovered, and every symptom banished by Holloway's simple and effective treatment. This Ointment and Pills are highly commended for the facility with which they successfully contend with influenza; they allay in an incredibly short time the distressing fever and teasing cough.

Cancer and its Complications. By Charles Egerton Jennings, F.R.C.S. Eng., M.S., M.B. London: Baillière, Tindall and Cox, King William Street, Strand.

MR. JENNINGS, in the book before us, treats of the various forms of cancer, and appears to bring considerable skill and experience to bear upon his subject. It is to such works, and to the researches of such distinguished specialists as the author, that the world owes many of the remedies which have been introduced to lessen or eradicate the sufferings of the human race. Cancer is, unfortunately, a source of great trouble to a very large section of mankind, and any suggestions or practical recommendations likely to lead to its cure, or lessen the number of its victims, are matters of importance to the world at large. To the ordinary reader the work before us may not, perhaps, be very attractive; it is more suitable for the medical student or professor, but there is sufficient in it to interest us, and we cannot peruse it without admiring the author's ability to explain the varied points of his subject, and the apparent skill with which he treats its several parts. We hope the desire of Mr. Jennings, to in some measure alleviate the terrible effects of cancer, may result from the publication of his book, and that he may be able to give the world other results of his researches and ability. We understand that a former work, by the same author, "Transfusion of blood and saline fluids," was well received and approved of in many quarters.

WHY A P.G. COMMANDER WITHDRAWS FROM SCOTTISH RITE MASONRY.

NEW YORK, 20th August.

MASONIC circles were greatly agitated to-day by the resignation of Past M. Grand Commander William H. Peckham, thirty-third degree, from membership in Cerneau Consistory, No. 1, thirty-second degree, this city, thus severing his connection with Scottish Rite Masonry. This action adds new interest to the bitter feud between the adherents of Albert Pike and those of Ferdinand Gorgas. Every adherent of the latter is, by recent Masonic proclamation, in danger of expulsion from the Blue Lodge of Masonry, and the resignation of Mr. Peckham will, it is said by prominent Masons, be followed by many others. Mr. Peckham was for many years prominent among the Cerneau Rite Masons, and for several years held the highest rank in the body, that of Grand Commander for the United States. Two years ago he resigned, and was succeeded by F. S. J. Gorgas, of Baltimore. Mr. Peckham's present resignation, as he states in an open letter addressed "To the Masonic Fraternity throughout the world," is because of the affiliation of the Supreme Council of the body with the Grand Orient of France, which does not recognize the existence of a personal God; whereas, Mr. Peckham states, such recognition is the very corner stone of true Masonry. Mr. Peckham has been a Mason forty years. The affiliation referred to consisted of Mr. Gorgas visiting and meeting with the "Council of the Order" of the Grand Orient while on a visit to Paris in 1888. This Council, it has been claimed, is a distinct body from that of the Grand Orient, but Mr. Peckham gives the names of the members of the Grand Orient, and shows that the Council is made up from them. Consequently, he says, the Council was under the ban of non-Masonic intercourse. In view of these facts he feels constrained to sever his connection with Scottish Rite Masonry.—Boston Post.

THE SPIRIT OF MASONRY.

When the Temple of Solomon, gorgeous and bright,
Its glories display'd on Jerusalem's height,
Both Gentile and Jew on the edifice gazed,
Its beauties admired, and its architect praised.
Its strength, 'twas predicted would baffle old Time,
And win praise for the Craft through each age and each clime;
Even foemen, whilst viewing, their quarrels forgot,
For the "Spirit of Masonry" hallow'd the spot.
Where now are its pillars, its roof-tree, its walls?
They are dust, like the sculptures of Pharoah's proud halls;
But the spirit which rear'd them shall know no decay,
Establish'd in strength doth it flourish to-day;
And, even as then, it now reconciles foes,
And a balm on the waters of trouble still throws;
And better, far better, the word would be found,
Did the "Spirit of Masonry" further abound.
'Tis a spirit of peace, 'tis a spirit of love,
With prudence and wisdom it blendeth the dove;
It links in one cable the rich and the poor,
To the lowly and lofty it opens one door.
One breath of its atmosphere lulls to repose
The demon of discord, its rancour and woes;
For anger will scatter like chaff to the wind,
Where the "Spirit of Masonry's" truly enshrined.

MEMORIAL TO THE LATE CANON PORTAL.

IT is proposed that the Friends of the late Canon Portal should show their respect for his memory by carrying out the scheme that he had most at heart, namely, the building of a Parish Reading and Coffee Room in his parish of Burghclere.

Such a building would cost not less than £1000, and a small endowment would also be necessary.

A site has been kindly promised by the Earl of Carnarvon.

Canon Portal was a Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons, and President of the Board of General Purposes; also chief founder and Chairman of the National Deposit Friendly Society. Contributions to the Memorial Fund are respectfully invited from those who hold in grateful remembrance the valuable services rendered by him to these organisations for so many years.

Subscriptions may be sent either to

FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE

SATURDAY, 7TH SEPTEMBER 1889.

OLD UNDATED MASONIC MANUSCRIPTS.

BY BRO. JACOB NORTON.

BOWERS opened his "History of the Popes" with the following caution:—"We should regard tradition (said he) as a known liar, but a liar may sometimes tell the truth; listen, therefore, to what it has to say, but do not believe a word of it, without good corroborating testimony." (This quotation is from memory).

The value of a tradition depends furthermore on the character of its first promulgator, and also on the period that intervened between the time assigned to the happening of the event and the time when it was first circulated; and the further apart these periods are, the more unreliable is the tradition. Even contemporary authorities should not be accepted without caution; for instance, Aubery was a pious gentleman, and friend of Sir Christopher Wren, but because Aubery was credulous, and for other reasons, Bro. Gould rejected Aubery's testimony about Wren having been made a Mason.

Now the Euclid legend (given in my former paper) was for the first time made known by a nameless poet. To be sure the poet refers us to an "olde boke," but whether "the boke" was written by a contemporary of Euclid, or written a thousand years after Euclid's demise, is not stated. The period intervening between the time of Euclid and that of our poet is more than 1700 years; hence it seems to me perfectly safe to pronounce the Euclid tradition as worthless.

The second authority for the Euclid legend is the author of the Cooke MS., whose name and character is also unknown. As, however, he makes pretension to uncommon scholarship, by quoting from the Bible, and from English, French, and Latin books, it is, therefore, right to hear what he has to say. Now, in the first place, this author begins the history of Masonry, not with Euclid, but with Lamech, and the Euclid story he introduces as follows. He says:—

"Elders that were before us of Masons had these charges written to them as we have now in our charges in the story of Euclid; as we have them written in Latin and French both. But how that Euclid did come to [the knowledge of] geometry, [the] reason would we tell you, as it is noted in the Bible and in other stories. In the twelfth chapter of Genesis he telleth how that Abraham came into the land of Canaan, and our Lord appeared to him and said, I shall give this land to thy seed; but there fell a great hunger, and Abraham took Sarah, his wife, with him, and went into Egypt. . . . And Abraham, as the chronicle saith, he was a wise man, and a great clerk, and coulde [or knew] all the seven sciences, and taught the Egyptians the science of geometry, and this worthy clerk, Euclid, was his clerk, and learned of him. And he gave the first name of geometry; all be that was occupied before it had no name of geometry. But it is said of Isodour Ethemologiarum, in the 5th book Ethemologiarum, capitolo primo, that Euclid was one of the first founders of geometry, and gave it [that] name."

Curiously enough, the same story, which the author assigns to Euclid, he afterwards repeats, and assigns to Englet. This, however, is one of the curiosities of Masonic historic literature.

Now, with all due respect to our hankerers for Masonic antiquity, I can no more believe in the poet's story about Euclid's Masonry than I can believe in the narrative of the Matthew Cooke MS., about Euclid having learned geometry from Abraham. Nay, more, if even that story was taken out of the Bible, as the author intimates, even then I could not believe it, and I am sure that every intelligent boy who attends a Sunday school would laugh at the story, but for all that, the said story was repeated in a majority of the MSS. known as "Old Charges" (but in reality they were the pre-1717 Masonic rituals), from the one written in 1585, up to those written before 1717.

So much for the Euclid Masonic tradition. And now let us see how much more reliable the so-called Athelstan tradition is to the Euclid tradition. Our poet ascribes the beginning or origin of Masonry in England to King Athelstan; he says:—

"This good Lord loved the craft well,
And proposed to strengthen it every dell [part],
For divers faults that in the Craft he found,
He sent about into the londe [land].
After all the Masons of the Craft,
To come to him full even straight,
For to amend those defects all
By good Council, if it might fall.
An assembly then he known let make,
Of divers Lords in their state,
Dukes, Earls, and Barons also,
Knights, Squires, and many more,
And the great City burghers of the City,
They were there, all in their degree,
These were there, each one in every way,
To ordain for their Masons' estate;
There they sought, by their wit,
How they might govern it;
Fifteen articles there they sought,
And fifteen points there they wrought."

The reader will notice that no year or date is mentioned as to when the said assembly was held, nor where it was held. Athelstan, and Athelstan alone, is said to have called the said assembly, and all he did was simply to sanction a code of laws, consisting of 15 articles and 15 points, and not a word about a charter or patent is mentioned. And I must here add that all the authority the poet furnishes for the Athelstan story is as follows:—

"This Craft came into England as I—you say,
In the time of good, kind Athelstan, his day."

Which means that the story was derived from hearsay, or, in other words, that it was a tradition, and the said story found its way into a poem about five hundred or more years after Athelstan's death. So much for the poet's story; and now let us see what the author of the Cooke MS. had to say about it. Now, in the first place, our second Masonic author differs from the first or poet in beginning his history of Masonry from Lamech, and the history of Masonry in England he began with Saint Alban. After Saint Alban, he comes down at once to Athelstan, and says:—

"After that was a worthy King in England that was called Athelstan, and his youngest son loved well the science of geometry, and he wist well that handicraft and the practice of the science of geometry, so well as masons. Wherefore he drew him to council and learned [the] practice of that science to his speculative, for of speculative he was a master,* and he loved masonry and masons. And he became a mason himself, and he gave them charges and names, as is now used in England and in other countries. And he ordained that they should have reasonable pay, and purchased a free patent of the King that they should make [an] assembly."

There the story of Athelstan's son's Masonry is interrupted with the story of Euglet, in Egypt, above referred to, after which he resumes the history of English Masonry, thus:—

"After many years, [after Euglet's story], in the time of King Athelstan, which was some time King of England, by his councillors and other great Lords of the land, by common assent, for great fault found among Masons, they ordained a certain rule amongst them: one time of the year, or in 3 years, as need were to the King and great Lords of the land, and all the commonalty, from province to province, and from country to country, congregations should be made by Masters," &c.

At this assembly, instead of 15 articles and 15 points, only nine of each were ordained; and again, we are not informed as to where or when the said assembly was held; the author of the Cooke MS., however, puts King Athelstan in the back ground, and he ascribes all the Masonic glory to Athelstan's youngest son; and, moreover, he informs us that the youngest son of Athelstan bought a patent, or charter, for the Masons, but the name of the youngest son of Athelstan is not given.

The third Masonic author, viz., of the 1585 MS., says about it: "And he [Athelstan] had a soone, that hight Edwin." The name of Edwin was unknown then as a Mason, until 27th December 1585. Besides which, the 1585 Masonic historian further informs us that Edwin "held himself an assembly at York." We see now that neither Edwin nor York was known to have had any connection with Masonry before the end of 1585.

In Anderson's Constitutions of 1723, Prince Edwin figures as the youngest son of Athelstan, and Bro. Anderson further says that the York assembly was held "about 930." Anderson, however, afterwards learned that King Althelstan was childless, but that he had a brother that was named Edwin, and so in the 1738 Constitutions, Anderson quotes, from some unknown authority, as follows:—

"That Prince Edwin, the King's brother, being taught geometry and Masonry, for the love he had of the said Craft . . . purchased a free charter of King Athelstan, his brother."

But Bro. Anderson made another discovery, viz.: instead of dating the York assembly to "about 930," he made it sharp A.D. 926.

One would suppose that so many successive Masonic scholars must have brought the history of Masonry to perfection with Anderson's investigations and discoveries. But our Masonic antiquity hankerers must needs try to persuade us that Masonry in England is older than Athelstan's day. This Prince Edwin, who was not Masonized before 1585, was only a Prince, and for the honour of Masonry it should have been a King Edwin, and not a Prince Edwin, that founded Masonry in England. Besides which, the time of Athelstan is not ancient enough for them. Now, our late lamented Bro. Woodford, though he was a very good man, was unfortunately afflicted with an inclination of attributing greater antiquity to everything in Masonry than common sense would allow, hence he said, in Kenning's Cyclopædia:—

"The learned Dr. Drake, in 1726, at York, first gave us, as we hold, the true solution of the difficulty, viz., that the Masonic tradition referred to Edwin or Eadwin of Deira, King of Northumberland, baptized by Paulinus at York, in 627, where he built afterwards a stone church," &c.

I must here again repeat that neither the poet nor the author of the Cooke MS. knew either of "York Masonry," or of Edwin's Masonry, but as our later Masonic antiquity hankerers learned from the MSS., known as "The Old Charges," that Edwin summoned a Masonic assembly at York in the 10th Century; Ah! said they, York is right, but the Edwin that summoned the said assembly did not live in the 10th century, but lived in the 7th century, and that his name was not Edwin but Eadwin. This is all very nice; but, on the other hand, as Eadwin was fatherless when he was Masonized, he could not have purchased a Free Charter from his father, hence, after all, the ancient York Masons could never have had a charter.

And now for the various narratives about the origin of Masonry in England.

1st. The poet knew that Athelstan called the Masons together, and gave them 15 Articles and 15 Points.

2nd. The author of the Cooke MS. knew that the youngest son of Athelstan called the said assembly, and he gave the Masons only 9 Articles and 9 Points.

3rd. The author of the 1585 MS. know that the youngest son's name of Athelstan was Edwin, and that the assembly was held at York.

4th. Anderson knew, in 1723, that the said assembly was held "about 930."

5th. In 1738 Anderson knew that Edwin was not a son of Athelstan, but his brother, and that the assembly was held in 926.

6th. In 1726, Dr. Drake knew that the traditional Edwin founded Masonry at York, not in 930 or 926, but in 627.

And 7th. I know that there is no truth whatever in the Masonic York legend. I believe no more in the said legend than I believe in the Messrs. Abraham and Euclid legend. In short, no truth can be extracted from the old MSS, and no truth can be infused into them. Nay, more, Anderson's pre-1717 history of Masonry is as unreliable as the legends in the old MSS. Take, for instance, Anderson's list of the pre-1717 Grand Masters, and I venture to

* Bro. Cooke was elated with the word "speculative" in the MS. But a learned friend assured him that speculative in olden times meant contemplative, and that all the writer of the MS. meant by that word was that Edwin was a designer or architect. See Note K., page 151 of Cooke's MS. And I have no doubt that the learned friend's explanation was correct.

Digitized by Google

assert that not one of those worthies was ever connected with Masons or Masonry.

I must add that while I cannot accept Bro. Gould's reason for extending the age of speculative Masonry, I nevertheless thank him sincerely for the vast amount of facts he has collected for our information. How much time all that took him I know not, but this much I venture to guess; First, that the number of foot-notes in the book are about four hundred; and second, that he must have consulted hundreds of volumes for collecting his materials. It seems that, for certain reasons, a large number of his collected matter remains unpublished, and a proposition was made by Bro. Hughan to have an enlarged edition issued by Bro. Gould. To this I say,—I second the motion; and should that motion be duly carried, I only hope that if Bro. Gould adheres to his opinion about the age of Speculative Masonry that he will, in the next edition, give a better reason for it than he did in his first edition, and that its editor will supply a complete index, and table of contents too, which the editor of the first edition failed to do.

BOSTON, U.S., 13th August 1889.

CRYSTAL PALACE DISTRICT GAS COMPANY.

THE half-yearly Report and Balance Sheet of this Company is again of a favourable nature, and the steady working of the concern must be a subject for congratulation to all who are interested in its welfare. The Directors report that the general working of the Company during the half-year has been satisfactory. There has been an increase in the quantity of gas sold, over the corresponding half-year of 1888, of 1·62 per cent. The reductions made in the price of gas from Michaelmas 1888, and from Lady-day 1889, have resulted, in a benefit to the consumers, during this half-year, of over £2000, while a still further reduction, to 2s 6d per 1000 cubic feet, from and after the date of the present Michaelmas Quarter's Accounts, is arranged for. Tar having improved in value, the Directors have discontinued the use of it for fuel, and as a result there is a goodly sum set down in the account of revenue as being realised from the sale of this article. Our readers will be pleased to learn that our esteemed Brother Magnus Ohren P.G.A.D.C., the Secretary of the Company, continues to enjoy the confidence of the Board, and that among the recommendations made by the Directors is one affecting his salary, which they propose to increase to the extent of £50 per annum. This must be most gratifying to Bro. Ohren, and to those who have the pleasure of his acquaintance. We hope he may long be spared to continue his work, and that he may at all times meet the encouragement he now receives. The following Dividends are recommended for the half-year ending 30th June last, and they will no doubt be authorised at the General Meeting, to be held at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate Street, on the 13th inst.:—6 per cent. on the Preference Stock, 7 per cent. on the Ordinary 7 per Cent. Stock, 10 per Cent. on the Ordinary 10 per Cent. Stock, and 7 per cent on the New Ordinary 7 per Cent. Shares, amounting to £13,625 17s 4d, less Income Tax of £340 13s 0d, and that the Warrants for the Net Amount, £13,285 4s 4d, be forwarded by post, on or before the 20th September inst., to the Registered Proprietors on 30th June last.

Obituary.

—:o:—

BRO. J. J. BRINTON.

MANY of our readers in Southwark and Camberwell will read with regret the announcement of the death of Bro. J. J. Brinton, which occurred on Sunday, the 25th ult., at his residence, 44 Lower Park-road, Peckham. Bro. Brinton, who was in his seventy-first year, was known to a large circle in both localities, and he has been identified with South London life for about half a century. He was originally a Scripture-reader, but subsequently he became attached to a South London journal, now defunct, acting in the capacity of reporter. Many years ago he forsook the Fourth Estate for the less exciting field of parochial service, securing the appointment of vaccination officer to the St. Saviour's Union. After prolonged service in that capacity, he retired, upon a superannuation, about twelve months since. Our deceased brother was an active Mason. He was initiated in the Sphinx Lodge, No. 1329, and after serving as Steward for several years was installed W.M. in 1885. Bro. Brinton also took great interest in the Rose Lodge of Instruction, No. 1622, of which he was a member. The funeral took place last Saturday, at Nunhead, several members of the Sphinx Lodge being present to pay the last tribute to our deceased brother. Though his health failed sadly, his spirits never forsook him, and his smiling face will be missed by not a few.

UNITED GRAND LODGE.

THE Quarterly Communication of United Grand Lodge was held on Wednesday evening, at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Major Goldie-Taubman, Provincial Grand Master of the Isle of Man, presided. Bro. Col. Marmaduke Ramsay District Grand Master of Malta acted as Deputy Grand Master; Bro. Hugh Sandeman Past District Grand Master of Bengal as Past Grand Master; Bro. Sir John B. Monckton as Senior Grand Warden, Bro. Sir Gabriel Goldney as Junior Grand Warden; and among the other brethren present were Bros. Sir Henry Moreland Grand Master of All Scottish Freemasonry in India, John Cave Orr President of the Board of General Purposes for the Province of Bengal, and John Fenwick District Grand Secretary Queensland. After the formal opening of Grand Lodge, and the reading and confirmation of the minutes of the Quarterly Communication of 5th June, Major Goldie-Taubman rose, and said the next notice on the agenda paper was one of a motion in the name of the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, and he (Major Goldie-Taubman) was authorised by the noble Earl that night, and on his behalf, and in his name, to say how very much Lord Carnarvon regretted not being able to be present to make the motion in person. To him (Major Goldie-Taubman) it was a very great source of regret that Lord Carnarvon was not present, as the noble Earl would have done much more justice to the proposition than he (Major Goldie-Taubman) could; but he trusted, and he also knew, the proposition commanded such sympathy among all Masons that it was unnecessary for him to say more than a few words upon it. They recollected that not only the people of England, but all Masons especially, took particular interest in anything in which the Royal House of their Grand Master was concerned. They looked forward to the happiness, not only of himself and the Princess, but of all his family, and this marriage, he thought he might say, on behalf of Masonry, would be not only a good marriage, but a happy one in the future. He begged to propose the motion, which we printed last week, in the name of the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon. Colonel Marmaduke Ramsay said he had much pleasure in seconding the proposition which the Acting Grand Master had just brought before Grand Lodge. It must be an additional source of gratification to them, as Masons, that the bridegroom, the Duke of Fife, was a member of their Order, and not only that, but that he had attained the high rank of a Provincial Grand Master in the Order. With these few words, he had very great pleasure in seconding the proposition of the Acting Grand Master. The motion was carried unanimously. The recommendations of grants by the Board of Benevolence were, on the motion of Bro. Robert Grey, President, seconded by Bro. James Brett, Senior Vice-President of the Board, confirmed. The Report of the Board of General Purposes, as given by us last week, was then taken. Bro. J. S. Cumberland, though not making a motion on the subject, referred to that part of the report relating to Charity jewels, and objected to the price, even the reduced price; he had had such articles examined and taken to pieces by manufacturing jewellers, on whose authority he had it that they could be made for 30s. He thought it better that the 10s should be put into the funds of the Provincial Grand Lodges and devoted to some other purpose. He brought the subject forward because, having had his jewel examined, he was assured that the article could be made, with the gold as good, and the rings thicker, for 30s.

Bro. Thomas Fenn said as Bro. Cumberland did not make any motion affecting the report of the Board, he did not know whether it was competent for him (Bro. Fenn) to speak upon the subject; but he thought it was. However, he thought it right to explain that the Board took this matter seriously into consideration, and they thought it was not right that the jewel should be a flimsy one, but that it should be something substantial, and the gold, instead of being a small ring, should be such that the cost was 12s; the hall marking was 4s; the engraving was considered to be worth 2s 6d, and there were several other items. The metal itself, the silver, should be silver gilt at a cost of 10s 6d. Putting the ribbon on, and putting the jewel together, left very small profit indeed for Mr. Spilling. They thought it was better to continue the Hall marking, and that it would be better to have an established jewel of some value, and the reduction of 10s was all that they could undertake to have taken off. The report was then adopted. Bro. Thomas Fenn, in the absence of Bro. Philbrick, Q.C., Grand Registrar, next brought up an appeal by Bro. Samuel Adolphus Roach, of the Hervey Lodge, No. 1788, Port of Spain, Trinidad, against a decision of the Colonial Board, upholding his exclusion by the Lodge for improper conduct. The appeal, he said, introduced no new circumstances, though the papers were so voluminous that they would take half a day to read. The real statement on which the Colonial Board formed its decision had never been contradicted in any way. The Master of the Lodge charged Bro. Roach with improper conduct, and destroying the peace and harmony of the Lodge. The result was, that he was excluded the Lodge, by five members voting for the exclusion; one brother was not competent to vote, being in arrear, and another brother being neutral. Under these circumstances, the brother being one who was constantly disturbing the harmony of the Lodge, Brother Philbrick and the Colonial Board said he ought to be excluded. Bro. Philbrick now said that this appeal to Grand Lodge had nothing new in it brought forward by Bro. Roach, and he having recommended to the Colonial Board in favour of the exclusion, the recommendation to Grand Lodge would be the same. He therefore moved that the appeal be dismissed. Bro. Robert Gray, President of the Board of Benevolence, seconded the motion. The motion was carried unanimously, and Grand Lodge was then closed.

THE THEATRES, &c.

Grand.—Lecocq's "Pepita," as represented by Messrs. Van Biese and Lingard's company, is proving a great attraction at Islington. As is almost universally known, "Pepita" is an English version of "La Princesse des Canaries." Although the plot is slight, it is interesting, while the music is taking. All the old numbers are capitally rendered, by an efficient company, headed by Mr. Frank Seymour as the lilliputian General Pataques. We have had occasion to speak of this gentleman in the same character before, and need only add that he is as amusing as ever. Miss Rosie St. George is a bright and tuneful Pepita, while Miss Marie Dorval does justice to the part of Inez. Mr. William Hogarth sings and acts well as Captain Bombardos, and with Mr. Seymour gains several encores for the now well-known duet, "My Excellent Friend." Messrs. J. W. Bradbury and James Danvers cause plenty of fun as Iniigo and Pedrillo; however, these gentlemen would do well to remember they are not in the Provinces, and that Londoners do not take so kindly to "gag" as our Provincial friends. Miss Grace Vicat, as the Captain of Cadets, acts with spirit, while Mr. Ernest Cosham (Prince Guzman) and Miss Helen Gwynne (Catterina) are efficient. Mdlle. Topsey Lindon disports herself with good results in the divertissement in the last act. "Pepita" remains at the Grand during next week, while among future engagements already made, we notice that of Mr. W. Bourne's company in "Man for Man," for six nights, starting on the 16th inst.; this will be followed, on the 25th inst., by "Lancelot the Lovely," with Mr. Arthur Roberts in the title rôle.

The new Gaiety burlesque, "Ruy Blas, or the Blasé Roué," was successfully produced at the Grand Theatre, Birmingham, on Tuesday evening. The local papers are high in their praises of the piece, and say the authors, Messrs. Fred Leslie and H. F. Clark, have provided a most amusing burlesque. The music by Herr Meyer Lutz is tuneful and bright, while the mounting of the piece is in the well known Gaiety style. We hear that some startling effects have been reserved for the first night in London. Therefore we restrain from further notice until we have the had opportunity of witnessing the piece in its entirety.

Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree will produce, at the Haymarket, on Thursday, 12th inst., a drama entitled "A Man's Shadow," being an adaptation, by Mr. Robert Buchanan, of "Roger la Honte." Mr. Tree will be supported by Messrs. Fernandez, Kemble, C. Collette, E. M. Robson, C. Allan, E. Gurney, the Misses Julia Neilson, Norreys, Minnie Terry, and Mrs. Tree. We may mention that during the time this theatre has been closed the house has been thoroughly cleaned and re-decorated.

On the 16th inst., at the Avenue, will be produced, for a limited number of nights, "The Brigands," composed by Offenbach, written by Mr. W. S. Gilbert. A powerful company and an efficient chorus has been selected. The piece will be produced under the direction of Messrs. Van Biene and Lingard.

Mr. Augustus Harris announces that he will start his autumn season on Saturday, 21st inst., when he will produce, at Drury Lane, a grand romantic and historical drama, in five acts, entitled "The Royal Oak," by Messrs. Henry Hamilton and Augustus Harris, with the following cast: Miss Winifred Emery, Miss Ada Neilson, and Miss Fanny Brough; Messrs. Henry Neville, Arthur Dacre, Luigi Lablache, E. W. Gardiner, Henry Lorraine, and Harry Nicholls.

GLEANINGS.

What Freemasonry Teaches.—Freemasonry teaches the things that are true and noble, and offers abundant opportunities for the development of mind and heart. Truths that ennoble, purify and bless our race are strongly impressed upon us. We are urged in the most forcible manner, by every possible lesson, to the performance of such duties as will make good, true and noble men, and earnest workers for the good of society. It teaches us to be better husbands and fathers, more earnest and zealous citizens, and it charges us to be loyal to the country in which we live; it pledges us to the advancement of the civilization of man, and the practice of the cardinal virtues. We should endeavour to maintain and loyally exemplify the tenets of our Order. Let this brotherhood, which has withstood the test of time, the persecution of fire, the attacks of ignorance, bigotry, and superstition; this society, which has survived the centuries and still presses forward with vigorous step; this fraternity, which stands with its face toward the rising sun, ready to hail the light of coming day, receive our most cordial support, our unfailing interest and our fraternal devotion. Thereby we shall enjoy the satisfaction of having fully performed our duty as men and as Masons, and of advancing the interests of an Order devoted to the purpose of elevating man to higher thoughts, nobler pursuits and purer actions. We are gathered together in Grand Lodge here to day, from every section of the State, as the representatives of Freemasonry. It is our duty to review the record of the past two years, and to adopt such measures as shall tend to the advancement of the best interest and substantial prosperity of our beloved Order. We recognise the grandeur of the Masonic Society. Its history is one of which every Mason is justly proud. We recognise the fact, however, that no organisation can live on its past history, however resplendent that history may be. It should always be remembered by Masons that it is the resplendent present that makes the glorious past. It is absolutely necessary that we should use our most untiring exertions, our most earnest endeavours, to do and perform all our duties to the Craft, and so conduct our lives and actions as shall bring no reproach upon our most ancient and honourable fraternity.—Mortimer Nye, G.M. Indiana.

Faults.—You will find it less easy to uproot faults than to choke them by gaining virtues. Do not think of your faults; still less of others' faults; in every person who comes near you, look for what is good and strong; honour that; rejoice in it; and, as you can, try to imitate it; and your faults will drop off like leaves, when their time comes.—J. Ruskin.

Practice and profession do not always go together in the Lodge any more than in the church. A Mason is bound by the principles of the Fraternity to which he belongs to be just, generous and true in all his dealings with his fellow men. He is pledged to develop a noble character—to live a useful life—to be in sympathy with his fellow men and helpful to them as their needs shall be disclosed and as there is ability to render desired service. Alas! that the practice of so many but poorly accords with the vows that they have taken and the lessons that they have been taught. Nothing so much interferes with Masonic progress and prosperity as the inconsistencies of its members.—Freemasons' Repository.

Moral Jewels.—The moral jewels, both moveable and immoveable, are so many silent monitors to convey instruction to the mind. Morality and justice, equality and integrity, are taught by the former, and by the latter we are referred to the First Great Light, and the method of polishing and humanizing the uncultivated mind of man by moral and scientific instruction, till it becomes, after a well-spent life in a career of piety, virtue, and benevolence, so perfect in all its thoughts, affections, and deeds, that it can no otherwise be tried than by the Square of God's Holy Word, and the compass of an approving conscience.—Book of the Lodge.

The Lodge of Fortitude, No. 281, Lancaster, will complete its Centenary on the 13th November next, the warrant having been granted on 13th November A.L. 5789, A.D. 1789, No. 559. At a Lodge meeting, held on the 14th ult., a circular was read from Bro. Shadwell H. Clerke, Grand Secretary, stating that a Centenary warrant had been granted, and would be ready in November.

The refreshment contractors for the wonderful Elizabethan town which Mr. Henry J. Leslie has constructed in Her Majesty's Theatre are Messrs. Spiers and Pond, and we may expect to see their buffets well patronised during the run of the Promenade Concerts. The refreshments supplied are equal in quality to those offered at the Criterion. There is a wonderful list of Vintage Champagnes, and Schweppe's mineral waters are offered at all the bars. There is a charming smoking room over the opera colonnade, and indeed, the arrangements for supplying the visitors with refreshment are, throughout, on a very complete and luxurious scale.

Messrs. Dean and Son announce for immediate publication the authorised translation of "Souvenirs intimes de la Cour des Tuileries," by Madame Carette, which recently caused such a furore in Paris, and which will be procurable at all the libraries. The translation is called "My Mistress the Empress Eugénie; or Court Life at the Tuileries," and contains most interesting information relative to the Imperial family, including Napoleon III. and the late Prince Imperial. The fact that Madame Carette (née Bouvet) occupied the position of Private Reader to the Empress should be sufficient guarantee of the reliable nature of the volume.

EADE'S
GOUT & RHEUMATIC PILLS.

The SAFEST and most EFFECTUAL CURE for GOUT, RHEUMATISM, and all PAINS in the HEAD, FACE, and LIMBS.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL from the Rev. F. FARVIS, Baptist Minister.

Mr. G. EADE, March 19, 1887.

Dear Sir,—I have many times felt inclined to inform you of the benefit I have received by taking your Gout and Rheumatic Pills. After suffering for some time from Rheumatics and Sciatica, I was advised to use your Pills. I bought a bottle, and when in severe pain and unable to use the limb affected I took a dose. In a few hours after I felt the pain much better, and after the second dose the pain completely removed and the limb restored to its right use. I thank you, dear sir, for sending forth such a boon for the relief of human suffering.

Yours faithfully,
F. FARVIS,
Baptist Minister.

There are multitudes of people who look upon advertising as a sort of Lottery, and bestow infinitely more thought in the selection of a clerk at £100 a year than in the expenditure of £1000, or two in the same period in advertising. A tithe of the shrewdness displayed in all other branches of their business given to the management of their advertising will be amply repaid. The ADVERTISEMENT AGENT has become an indispensable factor in this matter of publicity, and his raison d'être is perfectly unassailable. Would you leave or enter a port without a pilot? Would you commence and prosecute a law suit without a legal adviser? Either of these courses would not be more foolish than rushing into expenses in Advertising without a competent practical and professional adviser. I am at all times happy to render advertisers every assistance in my power, and to give them the benefit of the experience I have gained during the past twenty years as a London advertising agent. My Dear Doctor,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

This is to certify: That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

HASTY CONCLUSIONS.

THE great danger of hasty judgment, based upon the evidence afforded by a brief period of observation, is, says the Grand Master of one of the American Jurisdictions, in his annual address, the great stumbling-block which besets the path of the superficial observer. This danger, we may add, is by no means confined to American Masonry, rather, it may be said to be as universal as the mystic Craft itself. There are many Lodges in this country indeed which have suffered, and are now suffering, from the hasty conclusions of some of their members, although it is not always fair to regard those members as "superficial observers." The best of us are occasionally deceived, even after carefully considering the many points which long and careful observation provides, and it behoves us all to be particularly careful before committing ourselves to any definite line of action. But if the careful among us are liable to err in this respect, how much more likely is it for the casual observer, who does not take the trouble to inquire whether his first impressions are justified or not, to go astray, and, it may be, upset not only himself, but all who are associated with him in a Lodge or other combination.

It is very difficult to form a fair opinion as to the merits or capabilities of a Mason without knowing his peculiarities outside the Lodge of which he is a member, and on that account it would appear all but impossible for the ordinary Craftsman to be able to judge his fellows. Still there is much which time and careful observation will supply, and if we look back and compare our present ideas of men and matters around us with what they were years ago, after our first impressions, we shall be surprised to see how much our hasty conclusions were at fault. Men we once regarded as anything but desirable companions have since proved themselves the staunchest and truest of friends; while, on the other hand, some who at first seemed perfection, or approaching thereto, have turned out to be false and deceitful, if not even much worse.

On the other hand there is much to be said in favour of first impressions, or hasty conclusions, or whatever else we may term them; and there are many about us who boast they are never wrong in the first opinion they form. We imagine that in many cases the members of this particular class have forgotten what was actually their first impression—they have grown to regard a man with favour or disfavour, and really believe their opinion has not altered during the years or months they have been acquainted with him, but in reality their first impressions are as unreliable as those of others who confess to alteration and change in their opinions.

Masonry presents a wide field for the exercise of the faculty of forming hasty conclusions. Its members are spread over all parts of the world, and no matter what part one may visit he is sure there to find brother members of the Masonic Order, and this membership is alone sufficient to ensure an introduction. In most cases of casual meeting, or even where a Mason pays a visit to a Lodge, new faces are met with, and with some it is usual to form an opinion as to the character and other capabilities of those to whom one is introduced. Thus hasty conclusions appear to be inseparable from a Society which enjoins on its members the practice of visiting, and which, by its peculiar organisation brings so many strangers in close commune with each other.

In the words of the American ruler quoted at the head of our remarks, hasty judgment, based upon brief observation, is undoubtedly a stumbling block to the superficial observer, but in Masonry hasty judgments are so essential that it is quite impossible to wholly abolish them. What we should aim at is, to be careful in acting upon first impressions, to be as just as possible to our subjects, and, above all, not too severe one way or the other until we have had ample opportunity of judging whether the first hasty conclusions will bear the test of more mature consideration.

CORN, WINE AND OIL.

An Oration Delivered by Bro. G. H. Carr, of Emmetsburg, at the Laying of the Corner-Stone of the Temple Block, at Estherville, Iowa, 22nd July 1889.

THE custom of laying the corner-stones of substantial edifices with appropriate ceremonials is universal and time-honoured. Just when and under what peculiar circumstance it had its origin, I am unable to state. But certain it is that the custom has long been in vogue, for we have accounts of the first or corner-stones of buildings of a public character being laid, by eminent men, amid large concourses of people, and with great ceremony, in very early times. It is probable that the only significance which attached to the ceremony, originally, was to give to the begining of great enterprises a striking effect, celebrity, or applause, or to invoke the favourable disposition of the mythological deities towards the undertaking.

This accords with the almost universal habits of the ancients to begin their long voyages, their war-like incursions, and all their great enterprises, with libations and sacrificial offerings to the particular deity or deities who were supposed to take an interest in human affairs of the nature then in hand. In one feature of these ceremonials, as now conducted, we find an innovation upon the ancient usage, and one which to my mind gives to the custom its greatest charm, and from which the greatest benefit to mankind is likely to be derived. I refer to the casket and its contents, and the act of placing it away in the cavity cut into the time-defying granite. The modes of living, the habits of thought, the manners, customs and characters of people of past generations, have a deep interest for all men.

The antiquarian and the historian devote their lives to the study of these things, and, by disseminating the knowledge thus acquired, please and interest their fellow men. The desire to acquire knowledge of the past is not the outgrowth of civilization, nor of trained and educated thought, but is one of man's natural propensities, an innate quality. The untutored Indian listens to the legends of his people, as told by the fathers of his tribe, with as deep an interest as ever was manifested by the scholar in reading the pages of the historian. But while the propensity is natural, educated thought and the energies of civilization have directed and developed it so that man, not satisfied with the knowledge that legends and authentic history have furnished him, has supplemented history, and gone beyond it, to seize with avidity such scraps of information as could be obtained from a minute examination of the surface and bowels of the earth. Time and money have been lavishly expended in searching among the alluvial deposits of the earth, among the caves and crevices of the rocks, and among the tombs of the long-forgotten dead, for arms, implements, ornaments and inscriptions which have defied the ravages of time, and remain to us silent, grim, but true exponents of the character and habits of our remote ancestors.

The archæologist, with untiring industry, has delved in the peat-beds and shell-mounds of Denmark, the lake beds of Switzerland, upon whose surface the ancient lake-dwellers once built their huts; the alluvial deposits of the Mississippi and the Nile, the lime-stone formations of England, Wales and other parts of Europe, and in all places, no matter how difficult of access, provided relics of the people who inhabited this globe in prehistoric ages could be discovered.

And such has been the zeal and intelligence with which these men of science have pursued their investigations, that we are not without a very considerable knowledge of our remote ancestors of the so-called Stone Age, when all the arms and implements used for cutting, then possessed by man, were made of stone. From a knowledge that this propensity, which is a part of our being, must descend from us to our remotest posterity, has come the idea of treasuring up in some safe and secure place memorials of the present for the benefit of future ages.

This is a beautiful and generous custom, and may result in great good to the human family. True, this generation abounds in works of history and general literature, but they give only general knowledge of the customs and habits of the people, and contain little or none of that local history so enchanting to the residents of every locality. It is such memorials as have to-day been deposited, which will tell the future generations more of the daily life of the present inhabitants of Estherville than they will obtain from any other source.

Who can tell how many years shall have rolled away before the little casket which we have to-day deposited shall again see the light; what eager eyes shall search its contents, for knowledge of the daily life of the present inhabitants of your city, which it contains; what hearts will thrill with gratitude to those whose generous act has left them this message from the dead and buried past?

Could we, with prophetic eye, but rend the veil of futurity, and, gazing down the long vista of future years, behold this spot, when all-destroying time shall have caused these walls of solid Masonry to crumble and decay, and that stone to fall from its place and expose to view the treasure hidden there, what wonders might greet our prophetic vision! We might behold a great, prosperous metropolis, a centre of commerce, throbbing with the bustle and activity of a great city; its streets thronged with eager thousands, hurrying to this spot to catch a glimpse of the wonderful relic of antiquity. And we might behold, where now stands this fair city, but a mass of unsightly ruins, where now stretches away, as far as the eye can reach, fertile fields green with summer verdure, naught but barren desert waste, with no sound to break the awful, eternal silence. Improbable as this may seem, its possibility will be admitted when we recall Babylon and Nineveh, and the fertile fields that exhausted nature has permitted to become barren deserts. It may be well for us that we do not know what that scene would be, else might its darkness and gloom fall upon us to-day like a pall. But as we have buried these memorials in darkness, with love and faith let us indulge the hope that they will again be brought to light by those whose hearts will throb with gratitude to those whose generosity and forethought has placed them there.

The "corner-stone" has frequently been referred to metaphorically by orators and writers as a symbol of strength and endurance. Without it the building would be incomplete. No matter how perfect the superstructure in both design and execution, without the foundation, the corner-stone, it cannot endure.

That which the corner-stone is to the building, character is to the man. Without that foundation to build upon, his labours are all in vain. He may possess a mind whose comprehensive grasp can reach out after and seize upon lofty and novel ideas, which can readily discover the fallacies in the most subtle logic, explore the mysteries of nature, and hold communion with the savants of all ages and all countries; but without character he is imperfect and incomplete, a building without a corner-stone, without strength to withstand the storms of adversity or the allurements of vice. Hence to attain success in life we must have character.

Whatever attainments we may possess ourselves of, without character we have nothing. Admitting, then, that character is a thing to be desired, is it a thing to be acquired? Are our spiritual beings modelled, formed and furnished by the hand of the Supreme Architect?

Are we given irresistible inclinations towards good or evil? Are we in our moral natures but the result of natural causes? That many facts can be produced tending to prove the affirmative of this proposition I will not deny. We know there are races of thieves, and that the propensities to defy law and commit crime have been transmitted from father to son for generation after generation. On the other hand, we know that high moral qualities found in an individual can be readily traced through a long line of ancestors noted for honesty and integrity. But these facts only tend to prove the affirmative of the proposition; they are not conclusive evidence that it is correct. On the other hand we have at least occasional examples of individuals breaking away from the good or bad tendencies which they have inherited, and the worthy individual blushing with shame for a debased parentage, and the moral leper raising his disgraced head to point with pride to a long line of worthy and honoured ancestors. We do not inherit our moral natures, but only our moral tendencies. The son of a thief is not necessarily a thief, nor the son of an honest man honest. The one may find in his moral nature a tendency to commit crime, but this he may resist and overcome, and by continual resisting finally eradicate. The other, by continual yielding to temptation, soon finds his moral nature changed, and his natural tendency to choose good rather than evil is entirely destroyed.

But in addition to the evidence that man has the power to form his own moral character, to be found in our observations of the lives of others, we have the most convincing proof in our consciences of the power within us to regulate, govern, and form our moral natures. We know in our own experiences that a temptation resisted ceases to be a temptation, and that a duty, the performance of which at first requires self-denial, eventually becomes a pleasure. But while the Supreme Builder has not furnished us with a complete spiritual building, he has furnished us with the plans and specifications, and the material with which to build, and having done that has left us the choice to build as we will. True, some have been furnished with more and better materials than others, and may thus be able to erect an edifice whose towering beauty, strength, and symmetry may be vastly superior to those which surround it, but all are given material of quality and quantity sufficient to enable them to erect their superstructures in accordance with the Divine plan.

If the work be well done, if character, the corner-stone be well laid, if the material in hand be put to the best possible use, if such adornments and ornamentations as the specifications call for have been carefully and properly affixed, if the opportunities for acquiring knowledge, such as they are, have been improved, then, although the spiritual edifice which we have been able to erect may be plain and humble in comparison with others, it will none the less reflect credit on the builder, and will always possess some points of strength and beauty to call forth the admiration of the beholder. As there are different orders of architecture adopted in the erection of edifices by man, so the Supreme Architect of the Universe has not designed all men upon the same plan. But while the order of architecture after which we are formed may be that of Tuscany, simple and solid, rather than the grace, beauty, and strength of the Corinthian, we may none the less be the masterpiece of our kind.

Let us, then, receive the rough ashlar of our nature, as furnished us from nature's quarry, uncut and unpolished, and form it into the perfect ashlar, which when tried by the square will show no moral defect, will present no inequalities under the level, and which when tested by the plumb will be found possessed of that uprightness and rectitude of conduct without which we are unfitted for "that spiritual building, that house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens."

The ancients had a custom of pouring out liquors upon the earth, or upon a sacrificial offering, in honour of or as a propitiation to some of their deities, or as a libation to the earth to invoke its fruitfulness. This custom, like many other customs of our heathen ancestors, has been retained so far as the mere outward form is concerned, and is sometimes used by us, not for any supposed virtue in the means employed, not as an invocation, but simply as an emblem, to symbolize an idea.

You have witnessed in the ceremonials of laying the stone, the act of pouring corn, wine and oil upon it. These emblems are used in our Masonic rituals, to represent the idea of plenty, joy and gladness and peace.

Emblematically, they are not merely confined to the enterprise in hand, but have a much broader and farther reaching significance. The act of scattering the corn is emblematic of the plenty which to-day abounds in our state and nation. If we raise our eyes and gaze abroad upon the fertile fields of Iowa, with their bountiful harvests, already assuming that golden hue which proclaims that the seed-time has passed and that the harvest is here, upon the immense fields of dark rich green corn, proclaiming alike the fertility of the soil and the favourableness of the weather, and upon the vast herds of cattle converting the succulent grasses into the choicest beef and dairy products in [the world, we feel that we are indeed surrounded by plenty. When we reflect upon the fact that Iowa, young as she is, is rich in public buildings, with her elegant Capitol, her universities for those who seek for knowledge, her asylums for the unfortunate, and her penitentiaries for the evil disposed, and without a single dollar of indebtedness, we feel that the material blessings of our State have been rich and bounteous. When we consider the wonderful growth in the material wealth of our nation, its inexhaustible recources and immense mercantile and manufacturing interests, we are convinced that our lot has been cast in a land where prosperity abounds. The libation of wine is emblematic of joy and gladness, and where is happiness to be found if not in this our favoured land? Here liberty has sought and found a home, here the oppressed of all nations come to bask in her smiles, and here no Czar rules to crush his people with the iron heel of tyranny.

Freedom of thought and action, social equality, laws which give redress for the wrongs of all, and which all must obey; free educational institutions where the rich and poor alike may acquire knowledge; freedom to worship God according to the dictates of their own conscience; these are the agencies which advance and enlighten mankind and consequently render him happier. The pouring out of the oil is symbolical of peace, and at no time in the world's history could the act have a greater or truer significance. Not only are we at peace with all nations, but the angel of peace is spreading its wings over all lands. How long this condition may continue no human foresight can discern; but certain it is that there is a constant growing tendency among all civilized nations to settle international difficulties by peaceable and intellectual agencies.

The misunderstandings and difficulties between the German and British Empires and the United States in their relations with the island of Samoa, now happily settled by a conference of the powers, would formerly have been deemed a sufficient reason for involving three great nations in a long and bloody war. This growing tendency to settle all disputed questions of international policy and to adjust all matters of dispute between the nations by conferences and arbitrations is in keeping with our advancement in civilization.

War at best is brutal and barbarous, and the tendency of our civilisation is to draw man away from those things which are brutal and barbarous. The savages look to brute force as the only means to which they can resort to obtain redress for any grievances which they may have suffered at the hands of a follow man. The civilised man usually, though not always, resorts to some more rational means to get his wrongs righted.

It is, however, only in moments when the savage, in his nature which he has inherited from a remote ancestry, and which centuries of training has not wholly eradicated, has for the time being control of his nature, that he resorts to brutal methods. Hence nations which are not wholly autocratic, partaking as they necessarily must of the nature of those who constitute its people, are showing the same tendency to adopt the more peaceable and rational method in the settlement of disputes which is to be found among individuals. If our Christian civilisation continues to advance, the day is not far distant when nations shall war no more, and when all conflicts shall be intellectual. When the day comes, what a burden of woe will be lifted from humanity! It is appalling to think of the tears of sympathy, pity and despair that have been made to fall from human eyes, the groans of bodily pain and physical suffering which have been forced from human lips, and the sighs of more than mortal anguish which have been wrung from human hearts by red-handed war. What a blessed day for humanity will be that whose rising sun shall smile down upon a universal and abiding peace!

Our nation has not yet fully recovered from the ravages of that awful storm of civil war which a few years ago swept over the land, leaving death and ruin in its path. The seams and scars to be found all over the land, the maimed and crippled remnants of a once perfect manhood which everywhere greet our gaze, and the desolate hearts all about us sighing out a clouded existence, remain as evidence of the woe and suffering brought upon the people of the nation by that dire calamity. But, thank God, we have many substantial reasons upon which to found the hope that the white-winged spirit of peace which now broods over our land will never again be compelled to flee in terror from the fierce and bloody dragon of civil war.

With a land upon which the horn of plenty has been so lavishly poured out, with a social structure of the highest order, with a government whose Institutions were formed by the sages who founded it, from the accumulated wisdom of all preceding ages, and with the one design of contributing to the happiness of the people which it was to govern, with the sweet spirit of peace and Brotherly Love pervading all the people of the nation, and all the nations of the earth, how fraught with meaning has been the act of pouring out the corn, wine and oil, emblems of plenty, happiness and peace—a triple blessing—which, let us trust will ever remain to gladden the hearts of the sons and daughters of America.—Voice of Masonry.

SO-CALLED WEBB'S WORK.

BRO. A. T. PIERSON. of Minnesota, says:—"The American system of lectures was gotten up and arranged by Snow, Hammer, Fowle, Webb, Nye, &c. At the time Webb had been a Mason but three or four years, but as he published a Monitor, and was most active in disseminating the new lectures, the system received the name 'Webb Work.'

"Preston arranged the lectures into six sections in the first degree, four in the second, and twelve in the third. Whoever heard of the term Preston-Webb until it was used to push the fortunes of some lithographic sheets, and afterwards of mnemonics? With equal propriety the term 'Hutchinson-Webb,' or 'Dunckerly-Webb,' or 'Martin Clare-Webb' might be used, as each of them arranged a system of lectures before Preston did.

"Webb taught the system to Gleason, Cushman, Wadsworth, Enos, Cross, &c., who went about the country on lecturing tours. Each had certificates from Webb, but each differed in language, as Webb did himself; but the work was the same, and that was the object of Webb's Monitor, to introduce a uniformity in ceremonial or work, which was happily accomplished, and for which the memory of Thomas Smith Webb deserves more credit than that of either of his coadjutors.

"Masonic lessons are to-day taught all over the country by symbols that Webb knew nothing about, notably, the weeping virgin, introduced by Nye through Cross, first published in Cross's Hieroglyphical Chart, in 1819.

"We ask for information, when did Webb visit England?

"We remember hearing the story many years since that Webb and two or three other names not given had been deputed to visit England for the purpose of getting the work! There is no written or printed evidence that any body of Masons deputed a Committee to go to England, or that Webb was ever out of the United States. What was the necessity when his intimate friend and tutor, John Hammer, who had been the W.M. of the Lodge of Antiquity, London, was in possession of both the Preston and Hemming systems."—Keystone, 17th August 1889.

REMARKS ON THE ABOVE, BY JACOB NORTON.

As Bro. Pierson (for that is his name) rejects the hearsay story that Webb had visited England because there is no written authority for it, he should surely pardon me for asking him for written authority upon some of the above statements, which are entirely new to me, at least. I remember having seen Bro. Gleason, and have also heard about Snow, but have no recollection of ever having seen the names of Nye, Fowle, or Hammer. With regard to Hammer, Bro. Pierson was evidently labouring under a mistake in stating that "John Hammer," the tutor of Webb, "was in possession of both the Preston and Hemming systems," because Hemming's system was unknown before the Union of the two Grand Lodges in 1813, while the first edition of Webb's Monitor was printed in 1797. I would also wish to learn on what evidence (aside from the unreliable Dr. Oliver) Bro. Pierson has for his belief that Martin Clare and Thomas Dunckerly had built up Masonic systems?

MASONIC HOME OF PENNSYLVANIA.

AT a recent meeting of the Board of Managers of the Home, it was stated that in accordance with the requirements of the charter, individual members now have all the rights and privileges of representative members, the only difference being in name.

Life membership has also been established, and those now individual members can become life members by the payment of one hundred and fifty dollars. Master Masons not members can become such by the payment of one hundred dollars, or become life members by the payment of two hundred and fifty dollars.

The fees received for life membership, for the admission of inmates and from donations or legacies, unless otherwise directed by the donor or legatee, are invested as a permanent fund for the maintenance of the Home.

It is expected that those already actively interested by membership in the Home corporation will do their utmost to secure additions to the membership, from both Master Masons and Masonic Bodies, and also annual contributors from those who are not Masons, or from amongst Masons who are not prepared to take an active part in the management of the Home as members of the corporation.

The Board of Managers is composed of twenty-one members, seven of whom are elected annually. The Home, from the commencement until the present, has been a great success. The inmates now number twenty, two of whom were recently admitted—Bro. Wilcox of W. B. Schuider Lodge, No. 419, and Bro. Pawling of Rising Star Lodge, No. 126. All that fraternal love, the mystic tie of brotherhood and a judicious expenditure of the money at their command can do, is being done by the Managers for the comfort and happiness of those who are inmates of the Home, and they all seem to be content, and enjoying themselves as well as any one can with the loss of youth and health.

On Wednesday evening, 14th August, a social and fraternal season was enjoyed. The occasion was a lunch and entertainment given by Bro. Louis Wagner, President, to the inmates and those born in the month of August. They were as follows: Bros. Wagner, Henderson, Steffe (Secretary), and Dr. Yard of the medical staff; inmates Bros. Keck, McCure, Rutter, Knox and Cairns, also the matron, Mrs. Babb.

The Masonic Home of Pennsylvania is a noble Institution. It is doing a glorious work, but the field is a broad one, and much more ought to be now done, and it might and would be done if the Brethren would only heed and respond to the appeals for help according to their ability, for with the number of Masons in Pennsylvania, and their financial ability, the Home never ought to lack a dollar in the accomplishment of its fraternal and beneficent designs.

OPPOSED TO SECRET SOCIETIES.

NEW YORK, 31st August 1889.

IN all the Catholic churches of this archdiocese to-morrow morning will be read a pastoral letter from Archbishop Corrigan and the papal allocution of 30th June, already published. The letter reinforces the admonitions of the allocution, which was based on the erection of the statue of Giordano Bruno in Rome. The Archbishop discusses free thought. The church, he says, maintains that as truth can never contradict truth, true scientific research can never conflict with Divine revelation. But free thought, as advocated by the admirers of Bruno, denies the right of a higher and Divine authority to command the mind's assent and control its speculations, and constitutes human nature the sole supreme judge of all truth, human and Divine; it asserts the absolute independence of the mind of man from all responsibility, even to the Supreme Lord and Master of all; discards His revealed Word and rejects His authority; in a word, it is the deification of human reason. This doctrine is false in philosophy, false in the ology, false in ethics. He says, in conclusion: "And now, dear brethren, the grosser the insults offered to our blessed Lord, the more fervent and devoted in proportion ought to be our love for Him, and our care not to offend Him ourselves. In our day and generation one of the most fatal snares laid for the faithful is the affiliation with secret societies that are based on mere naturalism in exclusion of, and by inference at least, in opposition to our divine Redeemer. The harm that has come to religion in the Eternal city during the past twenty years is attributed mainly to the workings of secret societies. In our land of freedom there is no need of burrowing in the dark. Much less ought Catholics to patronise associations in which the Christian faith and the divinity of Christ our Saviour are ignored. Our sympathy also goes out to the vicar of our Lord on earth. We grieve with Him for the outrages inflicted on religion. We grieve that Rome, sanctified by the blood of myriad martyrs, has seen the standard of the evil one flaunted through her streets in memory of an apostate whose sole merit was to repeat with Lucifer of old: 'I will not serve.' In the pain and insult offered to the head all the members necessarily share. In the wrongs done to the sovereign pontiff the faithful of the whole world are assailed, and against such indignities, continued now for nineteen years, all of us, as Catholics, utter our indignant protest. The reverend clergy are hereby directed to resume in the mass, and to continue until further notice the collect pro papa. They will also please read to the faithful under their charge the allocution of 30th June, and announce a solemn triduum of prayer for the intentions of the holy father, to be held on the 6th, 7th and 8th of September, the exercises consisting of the Litany of the Blessed Virgin and Benediction of the most Holy Sacrament. In accordance with special powers granted by the Holy See, and contained in the faculties of the diocese (No. 9), the faithful who will receive Holy Communion on next Sunday (where the faculty has not already been made use of) may gain a plenary indulgence on the usual conditions."—Boston Sunday Herald.

At the ordinary meeting, on the 5th inst., of the United Industrious Lodge, No. 31, Bro. Frank Wacher was unanimously elected to fill the chair for the coming year.

Obituary.

—:o:—

BRO. W. WRIGHT.

THE remains of the late Bro. William Wright were conveyed to their last resting place, in the Maldon Cemetery, on Monday, the 9th inst., in the presence of a large concourse of spectators. The funeral was attended by all the principal traders and merchants in the town. The St. Peter's Lodge (of which deceased was a member) and the Blackwater Lodge were represented, the former by Bro. Arthur Barritt I.P.M., F. G. Green Secretary, Bros. R Orttewell and C. R. Gowers, and the latter by Bro. S. H. Ellis. At the conclusion of the burial service the Freemasons present advanced to the grave and threw in a sprig of acacia, according to ancient custom.

BRO. JOHN WATSON.

THE remains of the late Bro. John Watson, of Gourock, of the Lodge Firth of Clyde, No. 626, were interred in the New Gourock Cemetery, on Saturday, the 7th inst. There was a very large turn-out of the brethren from the various Lodges in the district.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF NORTHUMBERLAND.

THE annual meeting of Free and Accepted Masons of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Northumberland was held on the 9th inst., at the Corn Exchange, Hexham. Many of the brethren left the Central Station, Newcastle, by special train, and on arrival proceeded to the Corn Exchange. Amongst those present were the Prov. Grand Master Sir Matthew White Ridley, Bart., M.P., Bros. Richard Henry Holmes Past G.D. Deputy Prov. G.M., B. J. Thompson Prov. Grand Secretary, Addison Potter P.P.S.W.; and amongst other Provincial Officers present were Bros. James Deighton Dixon P.G.S.W., J. H. Beckingham P.G.J.W., Rev. H. Bott P.G. Chaplain, John Strachan P.G. Registrar, W. T. Wilson P.G.D., R. H. Dickenson P.G. Supt. of Works, Adam Robertson P.G.D.C., Henry Spittle P.G.A.D.C., J. B. Garland P.G.S.B., J. W. Lambton and James Carmichael P.G. St. B., R. F. W. Liddle P.G.O., William Reed P.G.P., John Barbour P.G.A.P., H. S. Bird P.P.G.R., and Joshua Curry P.G. Tyler. There were also present Bros. Bradley P.G.S.B. England, Matthewman Assistant P.G. Sec. West Yorkshire, John Page P.P.J.G.W., John Duckett P.P.G.J.D., John Wood P.P.G.J.W. Durham, R. Hudson P.G. Sword B. Eng. P.G. Secretary Durham, John Spearman P.P.G.J.W., G. F. Charlton P.P.G.J.W., W. F. Carmon P.P.G.St.B., Charles Roope P.P.G.O., J. Calvert P.P.G.S. of W., John Grey P.P.G.A.P., Thomas Douglas P.P.G.S., R. G. Salmon P.P.G. Assist. Dir. of Cers., Thomas Dinning P.P.G. Assist. Dir. of Cers., Wm. Percy P.P.G.A.P., G. Robinson P.P.G.C., Jos. Hogg P.P.G.S.B., P. H. Gibson P.P.G.A.P., Thos. Ellis P.P.J.D., John Purvis P.P.G.S.B., J. W. Gibson P.P.G.S.D., William Cooper P.P.G.J.D., Robert Jackson P.P.G.P., Thos. Gillespie P.P.G.Reg., W. Davidson P.G.S.W., Rev. John Walker P.P.G.C., G. Spain P.P.G.D., W. M. Bell P.P.G.A.D.C., J. H. Benson P.P.G.S.W., G. E. McCarthy M.C.P.G.R., W. J. Ward P.G.J.W., J. Straker Wilson P.P.G.W., J. Barker P.P.G.O. Durham, J. C. Moor P.P.G.D. Previous to transacting the business of the Provincial Grand Lodge, the brethren formed in procession and marched to the Abbey Church, where they attended Divine Service. The sermon was preached by the Rev. H. Bott, M.A., P.G.C., from Genesis, 1st chapter, and 3rd and 4th verses, "And God said let there be light, and there was light. And God saw the light that it was good, and God divided the light from the darkness." Bro. John Nicholson P.P.G.O. officiated as choir master, whilst Bro. Seaton presided at the organ. Bros. J. Walker, D. Whitehead, J. Nutton, and Leatham of Durham Cathedral, along with the choir boys, sang the anthem, "Behold how good and joyful it is for brethren to dwell together in unity," by Brother Baker, from the Masonic service. At the close of the service a collection was taken, amounting to £10 17s. The brethren then proceeded to the Corn Exchange, where the Provincial Grand Lodge was opened in due form by the Right Worshipful Grand Master Sir M. W. Ridley. After the transaction of business, the R.W. Grand Master stated that the Provincial Grand Lodge meeting that day had been specially marked by the attendance of members at the old church of Hexham. It was one of the most interesting specimens of mediæval church architecture that existed in Northumberland, and possibly in the United Kingdom. He thought the visit to the church must be a matter of satisfaction and gratification, not only to those members who were able to be present, but to many who were not so fortunate. The basis of their constitution and their teaching was from the volume of the sacred law, as they had heard in the excellent and eloquent sermon that day. Their object was to seek the glory of God and the good of mankind. Therefore, it could but be a matter of satisfaction to them, as Masons that in Hexham they had the opportunity of attending in a numerous body divine service in the old Abbey Church. And it gave him great pleasure on their behalf to show how much they appreciated the good services and good will of Canon Barker and his Churchwardens, who had placed the Abbey at their disposal, and assisted the Officers of the Lodge there at Hexham in making adequate and careful provision for the service which had just been held. They were also indebted to their brethren for the arrangements which had been made, as they had been carried out in a most satisfactory manner. He then referred to the affairs of the Province, and said he was happy to see that the Lodges were in such a good state, numerically and financially. A charter had been granted for the consecration of another Lodge at North Shields. Before sitting down, he must, on behalf of the Provincial Grand Lodge, thank the P.G. Chaplain for preaching the sermon just referred to, and, in conclusion, to announce that the next meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge would be held at Blyth, under the Blagdon Lodge. The Provincial Grand Lodge was then closed according to antient form. In the evening the brethren partook of dinner, at the Town Hall.

PROV. G. LODGE WORCESTERSHIRE.

THE annual Provincial Grand Lodge of Worcestershire was held on the 11th instant, at Stourport, when the Assembly Room of the Town Hall was converted into a temple for the occasion. A Craft Lodge was opened by the W.M. and the Officers of the Vernon Lodge, No. 560, shortly after noon. The Provincial Grand Master (Bro. Sir Edmund A. H. Lechmere, Bart., M.P.), together with the Officers of Provincial Grand Lodge, past and present, shortly afterwards entered the Lodge, and were received by the assembled brethren with the accustomed honours. The Provincial Grand Master was supported by the Deputy Provincial Grand Master (Bro. A. F. Godson, M.P.), and there were also present the Provincial Grand Master of Staffordshire (Bro. Colonel Foster Gough), Bro. Rowland G. Venables (the Deputy Grand Master of Shropshire), and Bro. George Taylor (Past Grand Standard Bearer of England), who is also Secretary to the Province. These brethren were saluted according to their office. P.G. Lodge was opened by the P.G. Master at one o'clock, when the muster roll of the twelve Lodges which comprise the Province was called over, and it was then seen that there were 128 brethren present, as well as several visitors from other Provinces. The Worshipful Masters of the various Lodges made statements concerning the work of their Lodges during the last twelve months, from which it was gathered that Masonry is in a very flourishing condition in Worcestershire. The reports of the various benevolent and charitable funds were received and adopted, and various sums of money were voted to the several purposes of Masonry. The Provincial Grand Master appointed the City of Worcester as the locale of next year's Provincial Grand Lodge. The following brethren were appointed to the Grand Offices of the Province for the next year, and duly invested and installed.

Bro. Abraham Green	... ...	Senior Warden
T. Lamb Smith	... ...	Junior Warden
Rev. W. J. Down	... ...	Chaplain
W. S. Davies	... ...	Registrar
J. Joseland	... ...	Treasurer
Geo. Tayler P.G.St.B. England	...	Secretary
W. Thomas	... ...	Senior Deacon
G. F. Grove	... ...	Junior Deacon
F. Frederick Hoult	... ..	Superintendent of Works
John Mossop	... ...	D.C.
George Houldsworth	... ...	A.D.C.
George Hodgkiss	... ...	Sword Bearer
William Merrick Ward	...	Standard Bearer
H. M. Jackson	... ...	Organist
W. H. Talbot	... ...	Pursuivant
Septimus Bagott	... ...	Assistant Pursuivant

The Grand Lodge was afterwards "called off," and a procession was formed, the Junior Lodges leading, and all marched to the Stourport parish church. The brethren wore their Masonic clothing, and the Provincial Grand Master was accompanied by his Grand Officers. As the brethren assembled in the church Bro. H. M. Jackson Provincial Grand Organist played a voluntary on the organ. There was afterwards a processional hymn, during the singing of which the clergy and clerks, preceded by a cross bearer and a banner, marched up the centre aisle and took their places in the stalls and within the sanctuary. The prayers were read by the Rev. Bro. J. W. Down (Provincial Grand Chaplain) and the Vicar of Stourport (the Rev. B. Gibbon). The first lesson was read by the Rev. Bro. J. Knight-Law P.P.G.C., and the second by the Rev. F. O. Gascoigne. The anthem was Sullivan's "I will sing of Thy power," in which the tenor solo was excellently sung by Bro. Lay. The organ was presided over by Bro. F. J. Griffiths. The Rev. Bro. J. W. Wilshaw P.P.G.C. preached a highly appropriate sermon, from the words, "Behold, I build an house to the name of the Lord my God."—2 Chronicles ii. 4. Masons, he said, differed very materially from many societies with which they might have some things in common. The rules of other societies took in only that which concerned the material and the physical. Articles of faith were unknown, and so it came to pass that those of any creed or of no creed at all, were eligible for membership. But with Masons it was far otherwise. There was written down indelibly in every man's creed, "I believe in the existence of God." It was quite true they did not pledge each other beyond that, for they were Catholic in the widest sense in which the term might be employed. As such, there was much that was spoken and written in this 19th century with which they could not sympathise. They could have little in common with those who boasted in agnostic phrase that we come "whence we know not, and that we are hurrying whither we know not." At the conclusion of the service the procession was formed in reversed order, and the brethren returned to the Lodge room, where, after the transaction of formal business, Grand Lodge was declared closed. The brethren afterwards banqueted together at the Swan Hotel.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

HIGH CROSS LODGE, No. 754.

THE installation meeting took place at the Seven Sisters Hotel, Page Green Tottenham, on the 25th ult., and there was a large attendance of Past Masters and Visitors. The business of the day was commenced by Bro. J. Linzell P.M. taking the chair, and passing Bro. C. Crewsler. The installation of Bro. Lovell and investiture of Officers for the ensuing year was then proceeded with. Bro. Major H. Stephens P.M. presented Bro. Lovell, and the ceremony of installation was well and clearly rendered by Bro. Linzell the installing Master. The newly-appointed Worshipful Master then appointed his Officers, as follow: Bros. L. E. Wilson S.W., T. P. Clark J.W., W. Dance Treasurer, J. Linzell Secretary, M. J. Barnes S.D., F. Voller J.D., A. Reeves Inner Guard, W. Wort Director of Ceremonies, W. J. Bastick Steward, and James Very Tyler. Later on, the brethren sat down to an excellent banquet, served by the new proprietor of the hotel, in a manner to be highly praised. The usual toasts were given and received with enthusiasm. Bro. Oddy I.P.M. was presented with a Past Master's jewel for his services during last year, and he responded in feeling and suitable terms. The health of the Installing Master was next submitted, and received with general favour. Bro. Linzell, in responding, said he was very glad to receive such a display of feeling on his behalf. He was at all times ready and willing to assist in every way that would enhance the pleasure and happiness of the brethren. It was some years since he had performed the ceremony of installing a new Master, and had on the present occasion been called upon at very short notice. However, he thought it his duty to comply. He sincerely trusted the Worshipful Master would have a happy and prosperous year of office. Brother Knightley responded in eloquent language for the Masonic Charities, and other toasts followed, the intervals between them being devoted to harmony.

FERMOR-HESKETH LODGE, No. 1350.

AT the Masonic Temple, Hope-street, Liverpool, on the 9th inst., Bro. R. Norris Jones was duly installed as Worshipful Master. The Officers of the Lodge present were:—Bros. F. A. Staedeli W.M., C. P. Titherley P.M., R. Norris Jones S.W., C. C. Robin J.W., H. B. Browne Treasurer, D. Connor S.D., W. Taylor J.D., T. Graham Cox I.G., J. Stowell Chaplain, and W. Hudson Organist. The Visiting Brethren present included Bros. Robert Foote P.P.G. Treas. and J. Brotherton P.M. 241. After his installation the W.M. proceeded to invest his Officers, as follow:—Bros. F. A. Staedeli I.P.M., C. Coker Robin S.W., Capt. D. Connor J.W., H. B. Browne Treasurer, W. Taylor Secretary, Rev. T. Graham Cox S.D., G. M. Richardson J.D., W. Hudson Organist, W. Swift I.G., D. E. M'Cracken S.S., and Rev. John Stowell Chaplain. Subsequently a P.M.'s jewel was presented to Bro. F. A. Staedeli the retiring W.M.

JORDAN LODGE, No. 1402.

THE Installation meeting was held at the Masonic Hall, Torquay, on the 10th inst. The W.M. elect, Bro J. H. Wills, was installed by Bro. John Lane, in a very able and impressive manner, and the Board of Installed Masters also included Bros. T. W. Morgan I.P.M., T. Prust, John Chapman, John Dodge, W. Wakeham P.P.G. Standard Bearer, and J. Grant 328, N. Hopson, John Wheaton W.M., and G. Barry 249, R. H. Benson W.M., and F. Adams Dawson 797. The Board of Installed Masters having been closed, the W.M. invested his Officers for the ensuing year, as follows:—Bros. T. W. Morgan I.P.M., J. W. McKellar S.W., John Taylor J.W., T. Prust Chaplain, J. Dodge Treasurer, J. Chapman Secretary, T. J. Crossman S.D., S. Wills J.D., W. Wingett D.C., T. Brooks Organist, W. Hersey I.G., George West S.S., J. R. Risdon J.S., and J. E. Newton Tyler. Bro. J. Lane was re-elected Charity Steward and Representative on Committee of Petitions. A letter of regret at non-attendance was read from Bro. Gould, the distinguished historian and honorary member, and a vote of thanks was unanimously passed to Bro. F. S. Hex P.M. for his services as Secretary during the past six years. Bro. John Taylor J.W., the Librarian, announced the receipt of several books, including the Constitutions of 1784, with the plate by Bartolozzi, from Bros. W. J. Hughan P.G.S.D. England, and T. Prust, and T. J. Crossman and J. D. Beer. The thanks of the Lodge were accorded to these brethren, and Bro. Taylor stated that the recently formed library numbered nearly one hundred volumes. There was a large attendance, and the visitors included, besides those already named, Bros. John James S.W., James Sparke J.W. 248, C. Clark D.C., G. Burt Tyler 248, H. J. Way S.W., H. Medway J.W. 797, F. Crowe S.D. and Organist 2189, W. Thomas 189, and J. Long 1125. At the close of the Lodge the brethren adjourned to the Royal Hotel, where the annual banquet, served in the French style, took place. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were observed, and the W.M. Bro. T. H. Wills, in the course of his remarks, said he should follow the precedent recently established, and give a donation of five guineas to the Charities.

DRAMATIC LODGE, No. 1609.

THE first after-holiday meeting of the members of the above Lodge took place on Tuesday, the 27th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Hope Street, Liverpool, when there was a large attendance of the Fraternity, the visitors including several brethren of note. The yearly two months' vacation in connection with the Lodge is invariably followed by election day of Worshipful Master, and this event gave increased interest to the gathering. The principal position was occupied by Bro. Harry Round, the W.M., and the Tyler's list also included Bros. O. W. Sanderson P.M., J. B. Mackenzie P.M., W. Savage P.M., W. W. Sandbrook P.M., Lindo Courtenay P.M., Jas. Fineberg J.W., J. L. Shrapnell P.M. and Treasurer, H. Heard Secretary, J. H. Light S.D., A. Mein J.D., Eaton Batty I.G., Barry Stuart and Jas. Heginbotham Stewards, W. H. Ball Tyler, J. Farrell, Charles Macdona, Eustace Baxter, Edward Graham, Fred. D. Punchard, G. Douglas Clarence, Geo. W. Dobson, Henry C. Arnold, W. J. Lancaster, Samuel King, T. J. Irvine, Albert Smith, Peter F. Buck, John Holker, W. A. Whittle, W. Coates, Harris Fineberg, John E. J. Holmes, Walter Bramley, D. S. Davies, F. R. Atkinson, T. Mawdesley, Lewis Reake, and S. Mattison. The visitors were Bros. J. Maccabe, F. M. Maccabe, I. Jacobs, James Elmore, Lawrence Phillips, B. Holgate, W. Sanderson, J. Roberts, Henry De Frece, Wm. Rawsthorne, W. F. M'Donnell, J. Archdeacon, W. Follows, James P. Bryan, T. C. Fargher, and Thomas Bush. After the transaction of the ordinary and preliminary business, the ballot was taken for Messrs. H. J. R. Round (son of the W.M.), G. E. Garlic, and T. W. Armstrong. They were unanimously elected, and subsequently initiated by the W.M. At a later period of the proceedings Bros. W. J. Lancaster and Charles Macdona were duly raised to the degree of M.M. Then followed the annual elections. By the death during the year of the S.W. Bro. Dr. E. H. Allen, to whose loss touching reference was made by the W.M., the voting for the Worshipful Mastership was more open than usual. The ballot resulted as follows:—Bros. W. W. Sandbrook P.M. 23, J. Fineberg J.W. 7, and H. Round W.M. 4. It should be stated, however, that both Bros. Round and Fineberg had intimated their withdrawal in favour of Bro. Sandbrook. Bro. J. L. Shrapnell P.M. was re-elected Treasurer; Brothers J. Reay and W. Savage Auditors; Brothers H. Round, J. Cantor, J. Bell, J. B. Mackenzie, W. Savage, and O. W. Sanderson, members of the Committee of the Fund of Benevolence, attached to the Lodge; Bros. Mackenzie, Cantor, and Light, representatives of the Lodge on the Masonic Hall Committee; Bro. Mackenzie, representative to serve on the Charity Committee of the Provincial Grand Lodge, and Bros. Mein and Canter to serve on the Casual Relief Committee. Bro. Round W.M. then retired, and Bro. Mackenzie proposed a vote of a substantial sum from the funds of the Lodge for the purpose of presenting the retiring Master, Bro. Round, with a P.M.'s jewel and apron, in recognition of the efficient manner in which he had performed his exacting duties, and the geniality and courtesy which had characterised the whole of his conduct during his year's occupancy of the W.M.'s chair. This was seconded by Bro Shrapnell, and carried unanimously. The Lodge was then closed, and, after the usual banquet, a choice and interesting musical and recitative programme was carried out by Bros. Lindo Courtenay, E. Baxter, the Two Macs, Eaton Batty, T. C. Fargher, H. C. Arnold, S. King, F. Punchard, W. Savage, C. Macdona, and H. J. R. Round.

BLACKWATER LODGE, No. 1977.

THE annual installation and banquet took place on Monday, the 9th inst. The brethren assembled in the Lodge-room, Blue Boar Hotel, Maldon, at 4 p.m., under the presidency of the Worshipful Master, Bro. M. W. Meade. The ceremony of installing the new W.M., Bro. Wm. Rudrum S.W., was impressively performed by Bro. Arthur Barritt I.P.M. of the sister Lodge, St. Peter's, No. 1024. The newly-installed Master then appointed and invested his Officers, as follow:—Bros. M. W. Meade I.P.M., J. Grout S.W., G. Davis J.W., George A. Eustace Secretary, W. Strutt Treasurer, E. A. Basham S.D., W. A. Hunt J.D., G. Brown I.G., John Turner, J. Tucker, F. Davies, and G. Clifford Stewards, Rev. Thomas Lloyd Chaplain, W. R. Hance D.C., E. Pearman Tyler. The following visitors were present:—Bros. Joseph Sadler W.M. 1024, A. Barritt I.P.M. 1024, F. G. Green 1024, C. F. Rush Organist 1024, C. Dibben J.W. 1024, T. J. Ralling P.G. Secretary Essex, J. G. Renshaw 697, W. Lawrence 1798. After Lodge the brethren and visitors, to the number of 28, sat down to an excellent banquet at the Blue Bear Hotel, under the genial presidency of the W.M., Bro. Wm. Rudrum. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, Bro. T. J. Ralling replying for the Grand Officers, and Bro. Joseph Sadler for the Provincial Officers. During the evening Bro. Arthur Barritt gave one of his well-known recitations, in his usual inimitable manner, and was vociferously applauded. Bros. S. H. Ellis and S. Shawyer, and Bros. Rush, Hunt, Clifford and Davies contributed to the harmony of the evening.

HOLIDAY HAUNTS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—From time to time I have read in your columns very eulogistic and glowing accounts of certain so-called Holiday Haunts, Health Supplying Resorts, and Emporiums for Nerve Invigoration. Now, Sir, I am one of the "Old School," and have lived in the days when business men did not feel it incumbent on them to run away five or six times during the season to get "braced up" for the exigencies of their toil. I like to enjoy myself—and that all who know me will readily admit. I am not a rich man, but I can keep the wolf from the door, and am in such a position that if I ask half a dozen friends to dine at my own table I am well aware that those associated with me will be able to do all that is necessary, and I need be under no apprehension as to the ability of my cook, or that there will be any complaint to make as to the cheer that will be placed before my guests. I am a domesticated man, and dislike being absent from my own home when the night comes on. Well, Sir, perhaps you will say,—What has this to do with Holiday Haunts? I will endeavour to answer you. I set my face against so-called popular resorts; where I have to pay double charges for my requirements, and, in nine cases out of ten, have to put up with every inconvenience. With some of my friends the bare announcement that there is not a bed to be had in any given place is sufficient for them to go there at once. From such pleasant places keep me at a distance. What I do if I have a few hours leisure is to look out for some enchanting little nook near home, where the rendezvous can be reached by a short railway journey from any of our Metropolitan stations; where a quiet chop or steak can be had, with, perhaps, the adjunct of a plump partridge, to be followed by a bottle of sound, wholesome wine, that will instil healthy vitality into the most jaded system. There are numberless such places round about London, and if they were better known I feel convinced they would be more generally appreciated.

I am led to trouble you with this communication from the fact that a few days since I was in company with some friends who seemed to be in perfect agreement with me on this score. One stated that he spent the better part of his holidays on the top of the tram cars; another that tram cars were not to be sneezed at, but that his idea of enjoyment was a short railway trip, then something in the way of refreshment, to be followed by a two or three hours' drive. He assured his companions that he could introduce them to some of the best scenery to be found in England if they would give him the opportunity of taking them for a fifteen miles' outing. Most of those present took part in the discussion; the Surrey Hills were reviewed, the northern heights discussed, and the glories of Father Thames' domain set forth in their brightest colours. Hadley Wood, Totteridge, Hatfield Park, Epping Forest, the Rye House and neighbourhood, were all points that received consideration, and it was astonishing how unanimous we all became on the question that such locales as Margate, Ramsgate and other places, where the masses congregate, could not compare as regards natural beauty with any of the pretty little nooks we had descanted on. In the end one of our party was reminded that he was owner of "a little bit of land," at Mill Hill, and the question was asked—Have you commenced to build the family mansion? The reply was a negative one, but, our friend added, the grass crop had been secured, and the money realized by its sale was waiting for him to fetch it. Well, go for it, and we'll all keep you company; you've just stated that the surroundings of your estate are of an essentially charming character, and you cannot do better than escort us thither. With all my heart. As a consequence, very soon after the above conversation, we took train by Midland Railway from Moorgate Street Station, and in due course found ourselves deposited at Mill Hill. For myself, I can endorse the eulogiums our friend had indulged in. His "bit of land" is charmingly situated, and, moreover, is bounded by some well grown trees that will make residence within their umbrageous shade endurable on the hottest day in summer. Having completed our inspection, we enjoyed a farther half-hour's stroll, and then dropped in for a little refreshment at the "Three Hammers," a quiet little hostelry, situate at the top of the Hill. Here we partook of claret and lemonade, a glass of grog, or a cup of tea, according to the whim or caprice of each, and then a cosy chat and quiet cigar under the shadow of the trees. Time passed rapidly, reminiscences of the days when it was not considered an regle to spend an hour in a skittle alley were indulged in. This conversation naturally induced the inquiry, Have they a skittle alley here? Well, Sir, it will scarcely be credited, but we, five staid old fogeys, later on were recalling in endeavours to secure a "floorer," and by dint of a little assistance from the "sticker up" this much to be desired consummation was achieved by—we'll say—Stephen the Stalwart, who was heartily congratulated by the other members of our party on his prowess. This business over, we were at once brought to a "charge," and here Mr. Anstee, mine host, gave evidence that his cellar could produce a bottle or so of something fit to drink. The question of how to get back now cropped up, but before this can be considered, is there a chance of having something to eat? said our guide and philosopher. The attendant was summoned, and in a very short time the cloth was laid, and a dish of broiled ham and eggs was placed before us. This was freely partaken of, and when the call for the reckoning was made, we found that we had had the maximum of enjoyment at the minimum of cost.

When we were about to take leave of our host, I for one must say I was surprised to hear him say he thought it would be more agreeable for us to ride to the Station than to walk, so he had told his man to bring round the wagonette; it would be here in five minutes. Good old host, thoughtful ever!

The moral of all this is, Dear Brother Editor, we who are resident in smoky London can, if we take the trouble, find many and many a quiet nook for a holiday ramble without travelling any given number of miles in search of that which, however desirable it may be to meet with, we so often fail to secure.

Yours faithfully,

ONE OF THE OLD SCHOOL.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

MR. WILKINSON, on behalf of Lord Leigh and others, trustees of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, applied to Mr. Baron Pollock, sitting as Vacation Judge, on the 11th inst., for an injunction extending over next Wednesday, restraining the defendants from constructing a road otherwise than in accordance with an agreement of 1887, and from placing any girder, parapet, or pedestal on any portion of the plaintiff's land in such a manner as to prevent access to the Institution. The defendants, according to the statement of counsel, are about to erect girders, and make the road contrary to terms, and this interferes with the access to the Institution provided by the agreement. Mr. Baron Pollock granted the injunction, with leave to serve notice of motion for next Wednesday.

The Committee of Management of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution held their monthly meeting at Freemasons' Hall, on Wednesday, the 11th inst. Bro. Jabez Hogg occupied the chair, and there were present Bros. Saml. Brooks, James Brett, Wm. Clarke, J. Newton, G. Bolton, W. B. Daniell, C. J. Perceval, A. H. Tattershall, Henry Garrod, W. Pierpoint, B. E. Blasby, Wm. Smith, John H. Matthews, Charles Daniel, G. E. Fairchild, H. Cox, Alex. Mullord, Charles Lacey, Hugh Cotter, W. J. Murlis, Joseph Freeman, A. Durrant, T. Cubitt, J. S. Cumberland, C. F. Hogard, C. Kempton, Clifford Probyn, S. Haslip, William Masters, C. G. Dilley, L. G. Gordon Robbins, Charles E. Keyser, H. M. Hobbs, Alexander Forsyth, John Roberts, W. J. Crutch, W. Belchamber, W. A. Scurrah, John E. Dawson, Geo. Mickley, J. Strugnell, R. T. Fennell, J. A. White, W. H. Making, E. M. Money, and James Terry Sec. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and verified, the Secretary reported the death of one male and one female annuitant. The Warden's report for the past month was read. Bro. J. S. Cumberland's motion that a Committee be appointed to inquire into the working of the Secretary's office was then discussed, and a Committee duly appointed. Four petitions were then taken into consideration—three male and one female, those of two male and one widow were accepted, and one male deferred. A report from Mr. Smith the accountant, upon the manner in which the accounts were kept, was read.

THE THEATRES, &c.

—:o:—

A new and original drama, by Messrs. Geo. R. Sims and Henry Pettitt, entitled "London Day by Day," will be produced at the Adelphi, to-morrow (Saturday), at 7·45 p.m. The following are in the cast:—Messrs. George Alexander, Marius, J. D. Beveridge, J. L. Shine, Lionel Rignold, W. L. Abingdon, Theo. Balfour, S. Wilfred, H. Russell, James East, W. Northcote, J. Northcote; Mesdames Alma Murray, Mary Rorke, Clara Jecks, Kate James Charlotte Elliot.

The Gaiety, which is at present closed for complete redecoration, will reopen on Saturday, 21st inst., with a new burlesque, by Messrs. A. C. Torr and H. F. Clarke, music by Meyer Lutz, entitled "Ruy Blas and the Blasé Roué." In this the Gaiety Company will make their reappearance in London. Miss Nellie Farren and Mr. Fred Leslie are both in the cast, and will be supported by the Misses Marion Hood, Letty Lind, Sylvia Grey, Linda Verner, and Messrs. Charles Danby, Fred Storey, Ben Nathan. The scenery is by Walter Hann, T. E. Ryan, and C. Perkins. Properties by Skelly and Kent. Dresses executed by Miss Fisher, Mons. Barthe, and J. A. Harrison, from designs by Percy Anderson. The wigs are by C. H. Fox, while the dances are specially arranged by John D'Auban. The whole produced under the direction of Walter Raynham.

We are glad to be able to announce that Mr. Augustus Harris has changed the date of the production of "The Royal Oak" from the 21st to the 23rd instant.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. Invalids, distracted by indigestion and discouraged in their search for its remedy should make trial of this never-failing medicine. A lady, long a martyr to dyspeptic torture, writes that Holloway's Pills made her feel as if a burden had been taken off her. Her spirits, formerly low, have greatly improved, her capricious appetite has given place to healthy hunger; her dull rock headache has departed, and gradually so marvellous a change has been effected that she is altogether a new creature, and again fit for her duties. These Pills may be administered with safety to the most delicate. They never act harshly, nor do they ever induce weakness; they rightly direct deranged and control excessive action.

ELECTION, 25TH OCTOBER 1889.

The votes of subscribers are earnestly solicited for

HAROLD STRETEER GOLDSMITH,

AGED 7 YEARS,

YOUNGEST SON OF THE LATE BRO. W. O. GOLDSMITH

Bro. GOLDSMITH was initiated in the Chisleburst Lodge, No. 1531, shortly after its consecration in 1875, and remained a subscribing member till 1881, when he joined the Gallery Lodge, No. 1928. In this latter Lodge he served all the offices up to that of W.M. It was while holding this office, and three days after the election of his successor, that he died, on the 15th November 1887. He was a Life Governor of the Boys' School, and a Subscriber to all the Masonic Charities, and was, at all times, a hard worker in Masonry. He was for many years, and at the time of his death, a member of the Reporting Staff of the Press Association, and in that capacity was well know to all Journalists in the United Kingdom. The under-mentioned Brethren strongly recommend the case of his son, the above-named candidate:—

SATURDAY, 14TH SEPTEMBER 1889.

NORTHAMPTON NEW MASONIC BUILDINGS; LAYING OF THE FOUNDATION STONE

WITH appropriate Masonic ceremony and honours, the Right Honourable the Earl of Euston, D.L., Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master of Norths and Hunts, on Friday, the 6th inst., laid the foundation stone of Northampton's New Masonic Buildings, which promise to be a most valuable and acceptable addition to the architectural beauty of the borough. Situate on part of the site of the ancient priory of Grey Friars, comprising about 5700 feet, the handsome erections "that are to be" will have an exceedingly fine frontage to Princes' Street. The buildings will be placed somewhat back from the line of this thoroughfare, an open space in front being surrounded by a tasteful wrought iron paling. The front elevation will illustrate a phase of our English Renaissance, and will be built mainly of Bath stone. The windows looking on to Princes' Street will be magnificent bays, and an attractive feature of the front will be profuse carvings in stone. There will be two entrances from Princes' Street. The central and principal doorway will have coupled three quarter columns of the Doric order on either side; and the foundation-stone is to form part of the left pedestal to these columns. Through a second pair of folding-doors access is to be gained to the entrance hall—30 feet by 22 feet and 16 feet high—a spacious and delightful apartment, lighted by one of the lofty bay windows before referred to. A nice reception-room over 20 feet square is to occupy the remainder of the front "run"—to be supplied with light in a similar way to the entrance hall. Double folding doors separate the reception-room from the supper-room—of handsome proportions, enriched by a panelled wood dado around the walls, and a panelled and moulded plaster ceiling decoratively embellished. Here especial attention will be given to arrangements for ventilation and illumination. To the supper-room, "the servery" adjoining will be found a most convenient adjunct, and it will be in direct communication with the steward's department. The "club" premises will be entered by the smaller door previously indicated—at the east end of the frontage in Princes' Street. They will be ornate and elaborately fitted. There will be a billiard-room accommodating two full sized tables and ingeniously and charmingly illumined by a large lantern in the roof. A refreshment bar will be in close proximity. There will also be a spacious but comfortable reading-room. The first floor of the buildings will contain three rooms—the "robing" room, 30 feet by 22 feet, a small "convenient" room, and the "Lodge" room. Large bay windows will be requisitioned again to light the first-named of these rooms, and also the landing at the top of the grand staircase. It is intended to glaze these windows with especially designed stained glass. The Lodge room will be an extensive one—50 feet by 25—and will measure 21 feet from floor to ceiling. It will have wall arcades of triple pilasters, supporting semi-circular arches, from which will spring a circular carved ceiling, ornamented with moulded ribs and panels. Small circular windows of glazed stained glass will cast a pleasantly subdued light upon the mysterious transactions of the Masons here assembled. Warmth will be supplied by high pressure hot-water pipes in the larger rooms; but in the smaller ones there will be open fire-places. Mr. J. T. Ingman, of Hazelwood Road, is the architect, and Mr. Edwin Archer, of Abington-Street, is the contractor, the contract price being £3344 10s. The ceremony was a novel, brilliant, interesting, and impressive one. Prior to its commencement, at four o'clock, there was a meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge in the Old Masonic Hall, Abington Street. An adjournment was made to Bro. Brook Sampson's, Beethoven House, the Market-square, where a procession was formed at the rear, and proceeded by the garden to the site of the new building. Here the scaffolding had been gaily trimmed with vari-coloured flags and bunting, whilst over the stone was an awning, along the front of which was the inscription, "The Queen and Craft," in silver letters, surmounted by a symbolical shield. Other symbols of the Ancient and Honourable Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons were visible around, and in the rear centre of the awning, brightly tinted, was a portrait of Her Majesty Queen Victoria. On a raised platform to the left of the site was a large company of ladies, and a few gentlemen unconnected with the Craft. On arrival at the site the Masons formed two lines, which respectively faced left and right inwards, and between them the R.W. Provincial Grand Master advanced to a position on the right of the stone. Clustered around him were the principal Officers Past and Present of the Province, the Standard Bearers occupying prominent positions. The fine regalia of the Order, the ladies' dresses, the beautiful bannerettes, and the clusters of flags on the scaffold towering above, gave the scene a singularly attractive and pleasing aspect. When the Masons had properly ranged themselves there was perfect silence for a few moments, and then the following hymn was sung:—

Digitized by Google

Hail, Eternal! by whose aid
All created things were made;
Heaven and earth Thy vast design,
Hear us, Architect Divine.

May our work, begun in Thee,
Ever blest with order be;
And may we, when labours cease,
Part in harmony and peace.

By thy glorious Majesty,
By the trust we place in Thee,
By the badge and mystic sign,
Hear us, Architect Divine.

The Provincial Grand Master then moved forward a few paces, and addressed the Masons. He said that day would in the future be looked back upon as a notable one in the history of the Craft in this Province. The fact that they were there laying the stone of new Mason buildings was of itself evidence that since the opening of the old hall the Order had progressed in Northampton, and more accommodation for the Masons was needful. It was with the greatest pleasure he laid the stone, hoping that in days to come they would increase their numbers in the same ratio as in the past; and that the Order would continue to do thoroughly well in the town and Province. Whilst the preparations for the actual laying of the stone were being made by the contractor and his men, Bro. T. P. Dorman, Past Provincial Grand Superintendent Works, addressed a few words to the Provincial Grand Master. He, as Chairman of the Directors of the Masonic Club and Buildings Company, Limited, on their behalf, welcomed the Provincial Grand Master to the spot where they hoped to erect a superstructure worthy of the great institution to which they belonged. They thanked the Provincial Grand Master for the performance of the work he had so kindly undertaken that day. As to the need for the new hall, it was manifest to all belonging to the Order in Northampton. In handing a new silver trowel to the Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Dorman said he would read the inscriptions on the old Masonic trowel, which was also there. This he did. It appeared that Earl Spencer used it to lay the Northampton Lunatic Asylum foundation stone, on 26th May 1836; that it was used when the first stone of St. Katharine's Church, Northampton, was laid, on 11th August 1837, by the Marquis of Northampton; that the foundation stone of St. Andrew's Church, Northampton, was laid with it by Sir Charles Knightley, Bart., M.P., on 20th October 1840; that the corner stone of St. Giles's Parochial Schools, Northampton, was laid with it on the 24th May 1861, by Earl Spencer. The same trowel was used by H.R.H. Prince Albert Victor of Wales in laying the foundation stone of the new Jubilee Wing of the Infirmary in October 1887. But as there was no room to record that fact on the old trowel, the Directors had purchased a new trowel, whose face is to be divided into equal spaces for future inscriptions. Proceeding, Bro. Dorman said they hoped that the Great Architect of the Universe might long spare the Provincial Grand Master's life to carry on the great work of Masonry in the Province; and that he might be called upon to use that new trowel so often that the divisions might soon be filled up with the record. As to Masonry in the town, they had every reason to be thankful that they had a new Provincial Grand Master to lay with a new trowel the foundation stone of new Masonic buildings, which should engender new life in the old brethren, and lead to an extension of knowledge Masonic to many new candidates in their ancient and honourable Order. At the close of Bro. Dorman's address, all reverently bowing, the Provincial Grand Chaplain (Bro. the Rev. F. S. Thornton) prayed, as follows:—"O Almighty Architect of the Universe, who didst hallow the gates of Jerusalem with the glory of jewels, and Who by the mouth of Thy peoples hast said: 'Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem, for He hath made fast the bars of thy gates, and hath blessed thy children within thee.' We beseech Thee, help this work about to be begun, and grant that Thy word running on the swiftest may fill us with the flour of wheat, and that the unction of the Holy Spirit may defend us, that all who meet in this house may dwell together in peace, and praise Thee in voice, heart, and work, knowing that great is Thy power and infinite Thy wisdom, who rulest over all for ever and ever. Amen." The Chaplain's prayer ended, the Prov. Secretary, Bro. F. J. Buckle, read out the following inscription, which was that on the stone:—

This stone was laid, with Masonic honours, by The R.W. Prov. G.M. of Norths and Hunts,
Bro. the Earl of Euston, D.L.,
September 8th, A.L. 5889, A.D. 1889.

The Provincial Treasurer Bro. A. Eames Parsons, afterwards walked to the stone and deposited beneath it a vial containing copies of the last week's Mercury, and Herald, and Tuesday's Daily Reporter, and Chronicle. The plans of the buildings, programmes of the day, names of members of the Province, and the coins of the realm. The Provincial Grand Master then tested the laying of the stone by the usual Masonic processes, with plumb-rule, level, and square, delivered to him by Bros. Smith Provincial Senior Grand Warden, Emery Provincial Junior Grand Warden, and Butler Wilkins Provincial Grand Standard Bearer, said in succession, and after brief intervals: "I find this stone perfect and trustworthy." "I find this stone well founded." "I find this stone perfect and true." "I declare this stone to be well and truly laid. May the Almighty Architect of the Universe look down with benignity on this our work. May He crown the edifice, the foundation of which we have just laid, with every success." Bro. J. Snow W.M. of the Pomfret Lodge, No. 360, having handed to the Provincial Grand Master corn; Bro. R. Croft W.M. of the Eleanor Cross 1764 wine; and Bro. J. Eunson W.M. of the Delapré 1911 oil; the Prov. Grand Master placed these in turn on the stone, declaring as he did so—I scatter corn upon this stone, the emblem of plenty and abundance. May we eat the bread of peace and live in harmony with our neighbours. I pour out wine upon this stone, the emblem of joy and gladness. May we rejoice in the revelation of the truth and may virtue flourish as the vine. I pour oil upon this stone, the emblem of peace and unanimity. May that peace which passeth all understanding descend upon us and remain with us for ever. The architect was, later on, presented by the Worshipful the Deputy Provincial Grand Master Bro. Butler Wilkins to the Provincial Grand Master; and the Provincial Grand Master having inspected the plans of the intended buildings, delivered the same to the architect, together with the several tools used in proving the position of the stone, and desired him to proceed without loss of time to the completion of the work in conformity with the plans, which he commended. The Chaplain after this offered up the Lord's Prayer, and

"Now the evening shadows closing
Warn from toil to peaceful rest;
Mystic arts and rites reposing
Sacred in each faithful breast.

God of light, whose love unceasing
Doth to all Thy works extend,
Crown our Order with Thy blessing;
Build,—sustain us to the end.

Humbly now we bow before Thee,
Grateful for Thy aid Divine;
Everlasting power and glory,
Mighty Architect, be Thine."

was sung. The Chaplain's pronunciation of the Benediction closed the ceremony. But prior to the procession re-forming the gathering was photographed by Mr. Charles Law, of Bridge Street, Northampton, and also by another gentleman. Grand Lodge, but in view of the completion of the New Masonic Buildings he had decided to hold the next meeting at Northampton, the time to be fixed according to the completion of the buildings—which he hoped would be by the middle of June. His Lordship's decision gave great satisfaction to the brethren.—Northampton Mercury.

The following eloquent address was delivered by the Provincial Grand Chaplain, the Rev. E. E. Morris on the occasion of laying the corner-stone of the new Town Hall for Bakewell :—

My Brethren,—It is with feelings of the deepest pleasure that I welcome to this grand old church to-day, you, my brethren in Freemasonry of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Derbyshire, as well as my brethren of the comparatively newly-formed Lodge in this town of Bakewell. You have done well to embrace this opportunity of presenting yourselves in true Masonic form before the Great Architect of the Universe, and of seeking at His hands a blessing upon your labours in the interest of Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth. It is written in the Sacred Volume of the Law (which as true Masons we revere), that "What God blesses is blest" indeed, and it is in recognition of that truth, and not from any desire for ostentatious display that you are gathered here to-day. You come to seek a blessing, and may God grant that you may not be disappointed of your hope. The time at my disposal to-day is limited—very limited—it would be useless, therefore, for me to attempt to enlarge at any length upon your duties to your God, or to the ennobling and supremely philanthropic Society to which you have, unbiassed by the improper solicitations of friends, and uninfluenced by unworthy or mercenary motives, allied yourselves. I will content myself, therefore, with reminding you (in the first place) of the responsibility which rests upon you, not only as a body, but individually, of preserving intact, unblemished and spotless, the reputation of your Order. The past, the glorious past, of Freemasonry I must leave almost untouched, but I must remind you that our Order presents to the world to-day, the spectacle of an universal Brotherhood, which has stood the test of time and criticism, and ridicule, which has numbered amongst its members all conditions of the various nations, and yet stands out to-day acknowledged freely by all as the most charitable body in the whole world. It is based upon the grand fundamental doctrine of the Fatherhood of God and Brotherhood of man, and teaches you truths which you have good need to lay at heart. It teaches you truths which you—my Masonic brethren—who have heard that charge which was delivered to you at that impressive moment when you first took upon yourselves the vows of Truth, Relief, and Brotherly Love, can never have effaced from your memories. Let me very briefly again urge upon you then—what Freemasonry must ever urge upon you—the three great duties, viz., to your God, your brethren, and yourselves. As regards your duty to God, the Great Architect of Heaven and Earth, Freemasonry teaches you never to make mention of His name without that reverence which is due from the creature to his Creator. It teaches you to study carefully and reverently the Sacred Volume of the Law, and to read therein in every written word the living voice of the great God speaking to you words of counsel and of guidance. It teaches you to go to Him with your daily supplications, and to seek at His hands blessings which no other power can give. It teaches you (as you, my brethren, know) in times of doubt and difficulty to place your whole trust in Him as well as in your times of ease and plenty. Do not fall short of this teaching—it is good and right—it is comfort and strength to every true hearted Mason. And while you thus are taught to remember your duty to God you are urged never to forget your duty to your brethren—your brethren at large, and especially to the brethren with which you have allied yourselves in the Masonic Bond. "Live as brethren." Let the posture of your daily supplication ever remind you of a brother's wants. Be ever ready to stretch forth a helping hand. Let the deepest promptings of benevolence have full sway, and remember that true Brotherhood consists not in word but in deed, and above all remember that the truest help is that accompanied by heavenly sympathy in the time of trial and bereavement. One other duty too—and that a most important one—Freemasonry urges upon you. I mean duty to yourselves. It urges upon you the duty of self-discipline without which the other law can never be properly performed. See then that you impose upon yourselves such discipline as will keep your corporeal and mental faculties in such vigour as will enable you to perform (and perform aright) such duties as you may be called upon to perform in that state of life into which it has pleased God to call you. I must dwell no longer (though I would fain do so) upon these truths, but I would in conclusion remind you of one other fact. Freemasonry is not a perfect system of religion. It is not—it was never intended to be a system of religion at all. When I state this fact I am, I know, stating only a trite truth as far as you, for the most part, are concerned. I speak, however, to some who are young in the Craft, and my remarks will be heard by many to whom the secret charges of Freemasonry are unknown. For the sake of both, therefore, I say Freemasonry, though founded upon the purest principles of piety and virtue, is not a system of religion. Religion is a thing we leave to the individual soul and its Creator. We cannot, we will not, intrude upon the solemn ground of a brother's faith. That is a matter for himself and God. All that we require, all that we insist upon, is that a man shall revere and adore the great God of Heaven and earth and that he shall love the universal Brotherhood. We bid him, it is true, offer his petitions at the throne of God. We bid him read the Holy Scriptures. We bid him practise every moral and social virtue, and we tell him, though not perhaps in these very words, that "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world." All who can accept this definition of true religion may join us, and as a matter of fact we number amongst us members of almost all religious bodies. We close our doors only against "the fool who has said in his heart there is no God" and the libertine. The former could find no home where every meeting for the transaction of business is opened with solemn prayer and closed in like manner, and where the Sacred Volume of God's law is ever open. The latter could only disgrace a Society which teaches its members "To love as brethren" and "To do unto others as we would they should do unto us and ours." Go forth then, my brethren, and ever remember that the true Mason is the true man. Remember where you were first made a Mason. Labour for the highest objects of your Order, in dependence upon your God, and remember that wherever you are and whatever you do He is with you, and His all-seeing eye observes you, and whilst you continue to act in accordance with the principles of the Craft see that you fail not to discharge your duty to Him with fervency and zeal, then may you hope when the summon shall come to call you from this sublunary abode to ascend to the Grand Lodge above where the Great Architect of the Universe lives and reigns for ever and ever.

PLANTATION LODGE, No. 581.

A REGULAR meeting of this Lodge took place in its hall, 465 Paisley-road, Glasgow, on Monday, the 2nd inst., Brother James Ormiston Struthers R.W.M. in the chair, supported by Bros. Thomas Stobo, W. Ferguson and John Clark P.M.'s of the Lodge, Bros. Charles Marshall D.M., James Ritchie S.M., John Cardle S.W., James Ross J.W., James Smith Treasurer, John Pardie B.F. Treasurer, Alexander Purdie Secretary, and Councillor John Ure, Primrose, Glasgow. There were also on the dais the following brethren from sister Lodges:—Bros. Richard Barnwell D.P.G.M., Major F. W. Allan R.W.M. 617, James M'Gregor Malloch R.W.M. 437, Provost Ferguson 437, Captain Hamilton 437, Councillor Thomas C. Guthrie 257, Bailie Kirkwood, W. Inglis P.M. 117, J. C. H. M'Naught R.W.M. 556, Andsew Cochrane R.W.M. 419, W. Phillips P.M. 566, John Gordon I.P.M. 4, John M'Innes P.M. 405, T. G. Jamieson P.M. 4, Alex. Mackie R.W.M. 592, James Currie R.W.M. 729, James M'Lellan Blair 607, and numerous deputations. Altogether over 200 signed the sederunt book. The minutes of the last regular and two special meetings having been read and confirmed, and other routine business being disposed of, the R.W.M. called upon Bro. Campbell R.W.M. of Lodge Clyde to take the chair, when the Lodge was advanced to the Degree of Mark Master. Twenty-nine Master Masons had that Degree conferred on them in a very able and efficient manner by Bro. Campbell. Bro. Struthers having again taken the chair, the Lodge was reduced to that of E.A. Degree, when a hearty vote of thanks was awarded Bro. Campbell, which was duly acknowledged. Bro. Struthers intimated that Lodge Plantation was under considerable obligations to several of the brethren present, and that this was a most suitable time for acknowledging those favours. He then proposed the following brethren for honorary affiliation, that being the highest honour they had in their power to bestow—Bros. Provost Ferguson, Bailie Kirkwood, James M'Lellan Blair, Major F. W. Allan, Councillor T. C. Guthrie, J. M'Naught Campbell, Andrew Cochrane, Lodge Neptune, and Bro. Denholm S.W. 553. Bro. Ferguson duly acknowledged the honour that had been conferred on the brethren affiliated. The Lodge was then transferred to harmony, when the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and responded to. A most enjoyable concert followed, when the following, amongst others, took part—Bros. Ritchie, Gideon Duncan, Thomas R. Young, Alexander Mooney, John T. Buchanan, James Dunlop, James Houston, James Lyon, T. Mabon, Andrew Rodie, John Rhodes. There was quite a superabundance of talent. Bro. Cochrane R.W.M. then proposed the toast of Lodge Plantation in a very able manner, which was responded to by Bro. Struthers R.W.M. of the Lodge. The Lodge was then called to labour, and closed in due and ancient form.

The annual Masonic sermon was preached on Sunday, the 1st inst., to the brethren of Dalmuir St. John's Lodge, No. 543, in St. James's Parish Church, Clydebank, by the Rev. Bro. Robert M'Lellan, of Inchinnan. There was a very large turn out of Freemasons in the Masonic Hall, Dalmuir, and the Lodge being duly opened by Bro. Samuel Crawford, R.W.M., the brethren marched to Clydebank, accompanied by deputations from Prince of Wales Lodge, Renfrew, Paisley, Patrick, and Whiteinch Lodges. There was a handsome retiring collection towards the Benevolent Fund.

We have been requested to announce that the Duke of Connaught Lodge of Instruction, No. 1524, has resumed its labours after the vacation, at the Royal Edward, Mare Street, Hackney. Bro. Richardson is the Preceptor, and Bro. E. Dignam P.M. 1524 the Secretary.

FLETCHER LODGE, No. 213.

THE regular monthly meeting of this Lodge was held at Whitehaven on Friday, the 30th ult., Bro. Rev. Jas. Anderson W.M. in the chair, supported as follows:—Bros. W. D. P. Field S.W., W. J. Tyson J.W., H. Burns M.O., G. Dalrymple as S.O., J. Casson J.O., W. H. Bowlay Secretary, J. M. Clarke S.D., T. Brakenridge as J.D., D. H. Cook Organist, T. Mitchell I.G., R. D. Metcalf Tyler, T. Atkinson, W. Gaffney, S. Broadbent, and J. Lawson. The minutes of the last Lodge were read and confirmed, and the ballot taken for Brother G. Starkie, who was accepted and advanced to the honourable degree of Mark Master, in an able manner by the W.M. With hearty good wishes the Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned a short time for refreshments.

LODGE OF INDUSTRY, No. 293.

THE labours of this Lodge were resumed, after the Midsummer Holidays, on the 2nd inst., at Gateshead on Tyne, with the prospect of plenty work until the end of the present year. The W.M., Bro. Robert Whitfield, presided, and was supported by Bros. John Wood, W. P. Carmon I.P.M., and M. H. Dodd. The Officers in attendance were Bros. W. Brown S.W., W. M. Lyon as J.W., Robt. Wilson M.O., W. Richardson S.O., A. Simpson J.O., J. A. Armstrong R.M., T. R. Short Secretary, T. R. Jobson S.D., A. Dodds J.D., R. Ferry Organist, J. A. Black and C. P. Laidler Stewards, and Joshua Curry Tyler. The ballot was successfully taken for Bros. Thomas Lambert and C. A. Joel. Bro. George Craigbill (previously elected) being in attendance, was duly advanced by the W.M., who explained the tools and gave the charge. Another candidate was proposed, after which the proceedings closed, and an adjournment made to the refreshment board.

LEWES LODGE, No. 391.

A MEETING was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Lewes, on Wednesday afternoon, the 4th inst., when Bro. S. R. Legg was installed as W.M. for the ensuing year. The usual business was transacted, and several new members were elected. Subsequently the brethren and several visitors sat down to a sumptuous banquet at the Bear Hotel, provided by Bro. Whitcomb.

Star Chapter of Instruction.—On Friday, 6th inst, at the Stirling Castle, Church Street, Camberwell. Present:—Comps. F. Hilton P.Z. and Preceptor, T. Grummant P.Z. H., J. Warren Z. 1348 J., Stone S.E., North S.N., Stone P.S., Patrick, Woods, Addington Z. 1275, Marché, Powell P.Z., H. Martin, and Towers. The ceremony of exaltation was rehearsed, Comp. Patrick candidate. Comp. Warren was elected a member. Comp. Grummant was elected M.E.Z. for Friday, 13th inst.

Bro. Thomas Vincent, who is spending the vacation at Broadstairs, met with a nasty accident on Saturday. While driving through Ramsgate in a dog-cart the horse shied and dashed into a vehicle standing by, Bro. Vincent with a friend who was with him being thrown out. Both gentlemen were severely bruised and shaken. Bro. Vincent has of late been in bad health, and consequently to sustain an accident was particularly unfortunate. However, he is making satisfactory progress, and it is hoped that in the course of a week he will be able to be moved to his suburban residence.

On Friday, the 6th inst., a large meeting of the local Freemasons was held at the New Cross Public Hall, with a view to form a company to erect a Masonic Temple and Hall for the South-Eastern district. Bro. J. G. Thomas presided. A freehold plot of ground has been purchased on Deptford-bridge for £1600, on which it is proposed to erect the building. The capital will probably be £5000, in £1 shares.

Nothing more effective or more touching as a spectacle can be imagined than a Masonic funeral, more especially when the officiating clergyman happens to be a member of the Craft, as was the case on Thursday, the 4th inst., when the obsequies of the late Mr. Dickinson, of Church-street, were performed at the Blackpool Cemetery. Having finished a short oration at the grave side, the surpliced minister took from his breast a sprig of acacia—so pregnant of meaning as the emblem of love, truth, and simplicity—and cast it sadly upon the coffin of the deceased brother; and then the large assemblage of Masons filed past the grave and affectionately followed the example of their clergyman. Thus the world moves on, and our friends and brothers live in memory.—Blackpool Times.

FUNERALS properly carried out and personally attended. in London and Country, by Bro. G. A. HUTTON, 17 Newcastle Street, Strand, W.C. Monuments erected. Valuations made.

GLEANINGS.

—:o:—

THE THREE STEPS.—As delineated upon the Master's carpet the three steps point to the three all-important periods in human existence—Youth, Manhood, and Age. Aside from the Master's lesson or dissertation, when he explains the symbols to the initiate, three others could be added that would naturally incline the mind of a young Mason towards thoughts that are truly Masonic in character and form—Honour, Industry, and Fidelity. In the every day associations of business and social life we find these essentials of a true manhood held in high valuation by all men, and by none are they more dearly prized than by those who have learned to treasure Masonic truths at their full valuation. Honour holds its votaries with a silken cord as rich in texture as it is precious to its possessor. Honour leads men to the palace of the king and exacts full homage from him to his subjects. Industry climbs mountains and subdues the most formidable fortress. It guides the traveller from poverty to riches; it dispels gloom from sad places, and it replaces thorns with flowers; it unites oceans and seas across dry lands, and it brings lightning subservient to the hand of man. Fidelity is a divine attribute. Without it honour and industry could not exist among men. Fidelity makes us true to ourselves and to our Creator. It makes life safe and protects the rights of property. Combined, these three jewels are essential to the three steps of Youth, Manhood, and Age. With them no Mason, no man, need fear to battle in the struggles of this life, or to accept a summons for that which is to come in the unknown hereafter.—New York Sunday Times.

In the sight of God no man is poor but he who is wanting in goodness, and no man is rich but he who abounds in virtue.

SOLOMON'S TEMPLE.—When Reginald Heber read his prose poem of "Palestine" to Bro. Sir Walter Scott, the latter observed that one striking circumstance had escaped him, namely, no tool of man was used in its erection. Heber retired for a few minutes to the corner of the room, and returned with these beautiful lines:—

No hammer fell, no ponderous axes rung,
Like some tall palm the mystic fabric sprung.

FAIL TO SEE.—Thousands of persons tread the earth and behold the sky without discerning any of the beauties or wisdom they display. They look upon a landscape, beautifully ornamented with trees, shrubs, plants, and flowers, but receive no definite impression of any part of it, and could not name or describe any object thereon. They behold the starry canopy above them, but see there no constellations, no planets, and no movements indicating the wisdom, the power, and the glory of the Great Architect of the Universe. So it is with many who are admitted into Freemasonry. They observe the forms, the ceremonies, the emblems, and the jewels, and they hear the lectures and charges, but fail to discern the ethics and philosophy thereof. They hear the enunciation—"Freemasonry is a science of morality, veiled in allegory, and illustrated by symbols," but do not fathom its meaning, and consequently do not solve the allegories nor discern the signification of the symbols. They are in the temple, but do not get the temple idea. They are among the workmen, but do not see that they are all to be master builders for time and eternity. They are in the light, but do not receive and apply it as the great means of fitting themselves as living stones for the temple not made with hands eternal in the heavens. The ritual is beautiful, and should be mastered and impressively communicated; nevertheless, it is but the burr, the hull, the husk to the wisdom, the strength, and the beauty to Freemasonry. It conceals gems of unparalleled richness and beauty, which must be searched for diligently and faithfully if they shall be found and enjoyed. Oh! that all the Craft would realise this fact and act accordingly, as thus they would be better panoplied with truth, better animated with faith, hope, and charity, and better build the temple of the soul.—Voice of Masonry.

A Brother discussing ritual with another of maturer membership, urged that certain words and passages therein were not grammar, or found in the dictionary; the other replied, "I want you to know that Masonry existed before there was a dictionary or grammar."

In Constantinople there are two English Lodges, one Irish, and one Italian, besides several French, which are, of course, unrecognised by the others. The Sultan looks favourably upon Masonry.

The P.M.'s drop out inside of two years, as a general thing, but we hear of a P.D.G.M. who lost all interest in Craft work the moment his successor was elected. There must be something wrong with the Institution when prominent brethren refuse to take an active interest in its affairs once they have attained the height of their ambition. Perhaps office was what they "jined" for.

MASONIC CHARITY.—A Masonic organization does not fulfil the highest purpose of its establishment unless it renders some actual service of benevolence. It should do a subjective work among its members in the way of intellectual and moral teaching, and by social ministries, for which it ought to make due provision; but beyond this line of expression it must go if it is to justify its existence according to what are the distinctive objects of the Institution. It must practise a noble and far-reaching charity. It must help to supply the needs of the sick and poor who are within its reach, and have some claim to its benefactions. It must do a humane work in the community no less than that which is technical and of a ceremonial and business character.—Freemasons' Repository.

Freemasonry powerfully develops all the social and benevolent affections; it mitigates without and annihilates within the virulence of political and theological controversy; and it affords the only natural ground on which all ranks and classes meet in perfect equality, and associate without degradation or mortification, whether for purposes of moral instruction or social intercourse.—Earl of Durham.

EADE'S
GOUT & RHEUMATIC PILLS.

The SAFEST and most EFFECTUAL CURE for GOUT, RHEUMATISM, and all PAINS in the HEAD, FACE, and LIMBS.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL from the Rev. F. FARVIS, Baptist Minister.

Mr. G. EADE. March 19, 1887.

Dear Sir,—I have many times felt inclined to inform you of the benefit I have received by taking your Gout and Rheumatic Pills. After suffering for some time from Rheumatics and Sciatica, I was advised to use your Pills. I bought a bottle, and when in severe pain and unable to use the limb affected I took a dose. In a few hours after I felt the pain much better, and after the second dose the pain completely removed and the limb restored to its right use. I thank you, dear sir, for sending forth such a boon for the relief of human suffering.

Yours faithfully,
F. FARVIS,
Baptist Minister.

There are multitudes of people who look upon advertising as a sort of Lottery, and bestow infinitely more thought in the selection of a clerk at £100 a year than in the expenditure of £100, or two in the same period in advertising. A tithe of the shrewdness displayed in all other branches of their business given to the management of their advertising will be amply repaid. The ADVERTISEMENT AGENT has become an indispensable factor in this matter of publicity, and his raison d'être is perfectly unassailable. Would you leave or enter a port without a pilot? Would you commence and prosecute a law suit without a legal adviser? Either of these courses would not be more foolish than rushing into expenses in Advertising without a competent practical and professional adviser. I am at all times happy to render advertisers every assistance in my power, and to give them the benefit of the experience I have gained during the past twenty years as a London advertising agent. "PAINLESS AND PERFECT DENTISTRY."

A New Pamphlet, by Dr. GEO. H. JONES, F.R.S.L., F.R.M.S., &c., Surgeon-Dentist, 57 Great Russell-street, facing British Museum entrance, London, contains a list of Diplomas, and Silver Medals and other Awards obtained at the Great Internationa Exhibitions. Forwarded gratis and post free.

Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist's Testimonial.

My Dear Doctor,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

S. G. HUTCHINS,
By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

Geo. H. Jones, Esq., D.D.S.

Scientific Department.
Laboratory of Experimental Science.

This is to certify: That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

(Signed),
EDWARD V. GARDNER, F.H.S., M.S.A.,
Professor of Chemistry, and of Berners College, W.

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

Are universally admitted to be worth a Guinea a Box for Nervous and Bilious Disorders, such as wind and pain in the stomach, sick headache, giddiness, fullness and swelling after meals, dizziness and drowsiness, cold chills, flushings of heat, loss of appetite, shortness of breath, costiveness, scurvy, blotches on the skin, disturbed sleep, frightful dreams, and all nervous and trembling sensations, &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes. This is no fiction, for they have done it in thousands of cases. Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all humours, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no medicine to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

For a weak stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the liver they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse in action with the ROSEBUD of health the whole physical energy of the human frame. These are the "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of society, and one of the best guarantees to the nervous and debilitated, is that have the largest sale of any patent medicine in the world.

Prepared only, and sold Wholesale and Retail by the Proprietor, T. BEECHAM Chemist, St. Helen's, Lancashire, in Boxes, 1s 1½d and 2s 9d each. Sent post Free from the Proprietor, for 15 or 35 stamps. Sold by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Dealers in the United Kingdom.

LODGE ACCOMMODATION.

THE desire on the part of Lodges to possess a home of their own, which is rapidly extending in this country, and in the colonies and other British possessions abroad, as well as in the United States of America, is a sign of the advancement of the Masonic Order, and promises well for the future, both from a financial as well as a moral point of view. Financially it must be apparent that the possession by Lodges and members of the Craft of a number of Halls in various parts of the world is a valuable acquisition, while the moral effect on the growing generation of buildings devoted to the purposes of Freemasonry—really to the alleviation of distress and the advancement of the human race—must be advantageous to the community at large, and redound to the credit of members of the Craft. Besides all this, the provision of special accommodation for the regular meetings of the Order, distinct from the outside influence of public buildings, is well worthy the careful consideration and hearty co-operation of every Mason who desires to elevate the surroundings of Freemasonry, and keep it, as it always has been, foremost among the many and varied friendly societies of the universe.

Admitting all the benefits which accrue from the ever increasing number of Masonic Halls which are being erected, we must not be led away in our enthusiasm to ignore the ample, and in many cases really splendid accommodation, which is provided for the purposes of Freemasonry by those whose business it is to cater for the public. All things being equal, it is of course preferable for the ceremonies of the Craft to be worked in halls or other buildings specially built or adapted to the requirements of Freemasonry, but there are so many matters to be considered in this respect that it is almost impossible to argue in any general way, so as to meet all the requirements of the case. In large towns, where a number of Lodges can combine and erect for themselves a home, and can afford a sufficient outlay year by year to keep the building habitable and in proper repair; or even in small towns, where a Masonic Club can be associated with independent Lodge quarters, Masonic Halls can, and often are, successfully conducted, but difficulties present themselves, especially in medium sized places, where perhaps only one Lodge is located, as to what is to be done with the Masonic Hall, its furniture and fittings, during the long periods which elapse between the monthly or other stated meetings. Financial considerations must step in here, as being of paramount importance. In the case of towns such as we have referred to, represented by one Lodge, the expense of building and fitting a Masonic Hall would fall very heavily on the thirty, forty, or perhaps fifty members of the Lodge, but supposing the first outlay to be satisfactorily met, there is still the question of repairs and general maintenance to be provided for, year by year, and these would form no inconsiderable tax on the local members. Of course the Masonic Hall might be built in such a way as to be available for other purposes, and this is often done, but unless something outside of Freemasonry can be introduced to bear some part of the outlay it is impossible to believe that Masonic Halls will ever become the rule, rather than, as they now are, the exception, and on this account we think those who now regard the accommodation of a Lodge month by month, and the provision of the refreshment which usually follows labour, as a part of their business, need have little fear of losing their customers.

We have recently referred to the action of certain American Grand Lodges who are pushing the crusade against the drink question, and all who are associated with it in any shape or form, in the most severe manner, even introducing Freemasonry into the struggle, and using it and its strong associations to further their own particular ideas. These enthusiasts in the cause of total abstinence exclude saloon keepers and every one associated with the drink traffic from Freemasonry, they enjoin all Masons to keep intoxicating liquors away from the Lodges and the ante-rooms, and, it may well be imagined—with such severe limits as are here shown—they do not allow their Lodges to meet at public houses. In such quarters Masonic Halls become a necessity, or at least some suitable building must be available, apart from the usual public resorts, in which to hold the meetings of the Lodge. But we cannot imagine such severe restrictions ever becoming universally popular, and hence it may be out of place to even consider what would be the possible result if it did happen, but it is useful to take all such matters into consideration when discussing such a subject as that before us. America is very young in many respects, and perhaps the experience of our transatlantic cousins on the subject of private clubs and organizations is one of the matters in which they have little experience. In England there are many who feel that much more evil may be worked in the privacy of a Club than is possible in the publicity of an hotel or other licensed premises, and if the drink question were the only consideration which could be put forward in favour of a general adoption of private Masonic Halls it would soon defeat itself, but happily such considerations do not have much weight with the ordinary Mason. As we said a few weeks back, severe measures may be necessary in certain quarters, to remedy certain evils, but the general body of the Order does not wish or require such exclusiveness as that to which we have referred.

The question of providing Masonic Halls for Lodge purposes has, and must continue to have, other and more noble points to recommend it. The beautiful ceremonies of the Order can be made much more impressive in a building especially adapted to the requirements of the Craft than is possible in any room roughly put in shape for Lodge purposes, and yet how much, even in this respect, depends upon the Master, Officers and other members of a Lodge. We have been as much impressed in the quiet Lodge room provided at a provincial Hotel as in the most elaborate Masonic Hall it has been our fortune to visit, and no doubt our readers have had similar experience. Still, we should always give the preference to the provision of a separate home for Masonic Lodges should we be consulted on the point, and we should do so believing it to be possible to make stronger impressions in a home specially provided for Freemasonry than in one devoted to general purposes.

After all, the question of Lodge accommodation is a very insignificant one in comparison with that of deciding who shall be admitted to avail themselves of such accommodation. The quarters of a Lodge may be everything that can be desired, and yet the Lodge may not prosper; its Temple may be among the grandest, but at the same time its membership may be of the blackest; so that in this respect Masonic Halls are little or nothing to judge by. Indeed, we are inclined to the belief that the elaborate displays we sometimes hear of in connection with special Lodge accommodation are made rather in the hope of creating envy or admiration than with the idea of promoting the true principles of Freemasonry. Let us remember that, wherever we are the All-seeing eye beholds us, and let us so conduct ourselves before the world as to prove worthy of the name of Freemason, no matter what may be the accommodation provided for our particular Lodge.

FROM LOW TO HIGH TWELVE.

An Address at a Lodge of Sorrow at Macon, Georgia, by Rev. James R. Winchester, 32°.

WHENCE came ye? What came ye here to do? Having finished your work, what are the wages? These are the practical questions which Speculative Masonry asks us at the hour of low twelve to answer for our departed brothers, and then with all available light apply to ourselves. On such an occasion as this memory is personified, and appears as a beautiful Virgin free from evil, bending in grief over a broken column, some noble life prematurely cut off, while opportunities for usefulness were spread before it. With a sprig of Acacia in her right hand she seems to forget, while lingering with fond devotion, that it must be planted on the loved one's grave and viewed henceforth as an emblem of hope beyond death's power. With her bridal hand she clings to the sacred urn in which are deposited the ashes of cherished associations. Turning fully to the broken column, and bowing with more lowly grief over the spot in which sleeps the mortal part of her beloved, she catches sight of a book resting on the upright fragment of stone. There white pages present themselves, and it is here permitted to write the virtues and forget the human frailties of her dead. Suddenly the urn is transformed into a casket of golden records, and the Acacia becoming rooted above the life that was folded up and laid away in the keeping of its God, points upward to immortality, where the soul dwells in the full light of its Temple, not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

In this world of disappointment, memory must weep until catching reflections of glory beyond the grave, and learning that death does not end all, rejoices with exceeding great joy. While these opposite emotions spontaneously spring from the same source and exhaust the life, Time tenderly touches the flowing ringlets and each head whitens for his sickle. Thus, standing face to face with death, Masonry scorns the appearance of atheism that writes on the gates of her cemeteries, "Gone for ever." She detests infidelity, which gives no consolation to dry sorrow's tears when the desire of the eye has been removed, laid low by the setting maul and covered beneath the clods of the valley. But she hearkens to the true word which points to a ladder reaching from earth beyond the clouds into the stars, and waits with patience while a voice comes in tones of tenderness, "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." Therefore we can meditate upon our brethren who faithfully carried out the designs on life's trestle-boards as happy, for the Master has simply called them from labour to refreshment. We are taught to watch their bright spirits, enveloped in light, entering the pearly gates of that temple which needs no sun, for the Lord God is the light thereof. Bowing upon the tessellated pavement, clothed with the badge of innocence, the righteousness of Him who was, and is, and is to come, they shall gain admission into the presence of the everlasting King and behold the beatific vision. Such a thought should turn the Lodge of sorrow into a banquet of joy. There the great multitude of souls will be gathered—"All the innocent little ones that have passed away like a breath of vernal air since time began; all the souls which the great, and the wise, and the aged, have sighed forth in pain and weariness after long and noble lives; all the souls of the wild races of hunters and fishermen in the boundless prairies or the icy floes; all the souls that have passed, worn and heavy laden, from the roaring city streets; all the souls of those whose life has ebbed away in the red tide of unnumbered battles, or whose bodies have been dropped into the troubled waves unkelled, uncoffined, and, save to their God, unknown." We take the liberty of adding to the picture, painted above, that all with implicit trust in God, who seek His assistance in every duty are blessed when dead. Their hope has been well founded, and there is nothing to fear.

Reviewing the lives of our faithful brethren, we see through the night of sorrow their virtues shining as constellations in the firmament of glory. Pain and disappointment are insignificant compared with eternal bliss.

Since the human heart yearns for a more serene home than this earth affords, why should we not brush away the rising tear when another soul has gone to join the white-robed throng? The attempt to better one's condition is the absorbing thought of life; yet trouble enters each door immediately behind pleasure; the hearse follows closely the bridal carriage. The merry bells have scarcely sent their joyous echoes into surrounding space before they begin to give forth their solemn notes; and in response the living come to plant the acacia upon another grave. Generation succeed generation like waves of the restless sea; army after army of strong men are swept as forest leaves into the cemetery of the past to mingle with mother earth, impressing the comforting thought that this world is not the home of the soul. Again, Speculative Masonry has taught her initiates that it is not the final resting place for the body. Though laid in the grave, where the dim light of nature allows the skin to slip from the flesh, and where Pagan Philosophy and the shadowy mists of ancient religions cannot prevent the flesh cleaving from the bones, yet as Masons we believe the body shall be raised—made to stand upright. The only power that can make the dead alive, and meet us at every point of human fellowship, is in the Lion of the tribe of Judah. Whoever accepts this power shall therefore be raised bodily from the sleep of death to a sublime condition. Though our departed brethren have fallen under the hand of some evil disease and lie buried in temporal ruins, let us believe they died true to their word, and are but sleeping in the love of One who can raise the decomposed body to life; for "the earth is the Lord's, and the fullness thereof." There can be no terror associated with the grave when the everlasting arms are underneath and around it. With this realisation each faithful man can say, with one of old, "Though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God."

Whereas, the immortality of the soul and the resurrection of the body are subjects so comforting, let us leave this Lodge of Sorrow full of rejoicing with the consoling thought that He who is for us is greater than all against us. The setting maul, the spade and coffin, only speak of refreshment after labour.

In view of the attainable, and as true Masons, we have constraining motives urging us to the faithful discharge of duty. Here ceaseless activity, exhausting labour, daily unrest, appear in every life, and the work assigned by the Worshipful Master slowly approaches completion; yet each one must go forward, diffusing light, though men refuse to see it; heeding the cry of distress, even if the charity is never appreciated during this earthly pilgrimage, and give sympathy to the heavy laden, albeit the motive is misconstrued by the profane. So long as the world has destitute and suffering humanity so long will true Masonic feet bleed in the path of duty. Like the poor red man, we may sometimes think a place of rest is found and call it Alabama; but a moment's reflection reveals a false name, and we push towards the setting sun; or, like that Abyssinian prince described by a Master's pen, may listen with credulity to the whispers of fancy and pursue with eagerness the phantoms of hope, but will find, as he found, that age does not perform the promises of youth, and that the deficiencies of the present day are not supplied by the morrow. When our work is finished, like the Supreme Architect of the Universe, we can call the time thereafter a day of rest, and that is what we understand by the transition from labour to refreshment.

Let us gather new hopes and strength at this time from the lives of our faithful brothers. They are not dead, but we trust have just begun to enjoy the true life. We view their death as a sunset, and rest is the afterglow which leaves the evening glorious, making the still hours of bereavement holy.

Rest, the word so sweet to toiling men, is music to the weary ear, cordial to the fainting heart, and joy to the sin-tossed soul. Such, we trust, is the endless state of all our faithful workmen who have been called from labour to refreshment. "They are happy now, and we soon their happiness shall see."

But until our summons comes, let us be faithful in the discharge of duty, remembering our privilege of living at a time when civilisation, in its broadest sense, is at meridian splendour. The glory of intellectual worth and the beauty of moral merit adorn our homes and sanctify our domestic relations. What heathenism left vague and dark, our three lights have made manifest. Revelation, natural science and conscience tell us that happiness here consists in faithfully using our working tools. Then, hereafter, let the twenty four-inch gauge divide our time, the gavel divest our hearts and consciences of the vices and superfluities of life, and the trowel cement our secret thoughts with charity. These are the instruments that can polish the rough ashlar of human character, after it is brought from darkness to light. Every Mason should, therefore, strive to make his life symmetrical; his Entered Apprentice degree, like rightly spent youth, should be stored with useful knowledge; his Fellow Craft, as vigorous manhood, should be the practical application of that acquired learning, and then, as a Master Mason, like honoured old age, he should possess the consciousness of a well-spent life, faithful discharge of duty to his God, his neighbour and himself. Such a man, as a heavy sheaf of wheat or rounded ear of corn, reproduces himself through the germinal virtues composing his character, and lives again in succeeding generations. Thus there is a resurrection of each noble act in the life that received it. Then let us think of our departed brothers as having believed in God, and that no plumb-line can sound the depths of His mercy. They believed in God, and no compasses can circumscribe His omnipotence. They believed in God, and no human mathematics can ever explain the incomprehensible triangle contained within His eternal existence. Profane wisdom can never define the limits of love which passeth knowledge. Let us again trust that the souls of our brothers are in joy and felicity, and their bodies will be raised at the last day. While resting from labours they are refreshed with a certain hope that what once was subject to dissolution shall soon rise a harmonious and strong temple, whose beauty no ruffian hands can mar, and whose glory will be noontide splendour. Perfect consummation and bliss will be the day when the material and spiritual elements are reunited:

"Each waiting soul must claim his own, when the archangel soundeth,
And all the fields and all the hills shall move a man of life;
Bodies numberless, crowding on the land and covering the trampled sea,
Darkening the air precipitate, and gathered scathless from the fire;
The Himalayan peaks shall yield their charge, and the desolate steppes of Siberia,
The maelstrom disengulf its spoil, and the iceberg manufit its captive;
All shall teem with life, the converging fragments of humanity,
Till every conscious essence greet his individual frame;
For in some dignified similitude, alike, yet different in glory,
This body shall be shaped anew, fit dwelling for the soul;
The hovel hath grown to a palace, the bulb hath burst into the flower;
Matter hath put on incorruption, and is at peace with spirit."

The Board of Benevolence met on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Robert Grey P.G.D., President of the Board, presided, and Bro. James Brett P.G.P., Senior Vice-President, and Bro. C. A. Cottebrune P.G.P., Junior Vice-President, were in their respective chairs. The brethren first confirmed recommendations made to the Grand Master at the August meeting, to the amount of £140. There were only fifteen new cases on the list. One of these was relieved with £60, and one with £50, two were relieved with £30 each, four with £20 each, and one with £10; total £260. Four cases were deferred, and two dismissed.

We have pleasure in being able to announce that Bro. John Lane's new work, "A Handy Book to the study of the Engraved, Printed, and Manuscript Lists of Lodges of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England ('Moderns' and 'Ancients'), from 1723 to 1814, with an Appendix and Valuable Statistical Tables," will be ready in October. The book will be sent post free to subscribers for 7s 6d, and orders for the same should be forwarded to Bro. Jno. Lane, Bannercross, Torquay.

We regret to announce the death, which occurred on Thursday, of Brother Æneas J. McIntyre, Q.C., Past Grand Registrar, &c., &c. A full record of Bro. McIntyre's Masonic career will be found in the First Series of our Masonic Portraits.

Mr. R. L. Stevenson's new story, "The Master of Ballantrae," will be issued in a few days, by Messrs. Cassell and Company.

Messrs. Cassell and Company announce a new serial publication, to be called "The Cabinet Portrait Gallery." Each monthly part will contain three cabinet-sized photographs of eminent men and women of the day, with accompanying biographical sketches. The photographs are taken by Messrs. W. and D. Downey, and are reproduced by the Woodbury-type process.—Academy.

In view of the visit of H.R.H. Prince Albert Victor to India this winter, Messrs. Cassell and Company are issuing a new serial edition of their "Illustrated History of India," with the first part of which a large portrait of Prince Albert Victor will be given.

On Saturday evening, the 28th inst., Mr. Henry Irving will produce "The Dead Heart." Elaborate scenery has been painted by Messrs. Telbin, Harker, and Hawes Craven, while the costumes, designed by Mr. Joseph Grego, Mr. Margeston, and Mrs. Comyns Carr, are sure to be picturesque and absolutely accurate. The taking of the Bastille is the great scene of the play. Mr. Jacobi has written the incidental music. Mr. Irving will appear as Robert Landry, and he will be supported by Mr. Bancroft (Abbé Latour), Miss Ellen Terry (Catherine Duval), Miss Kate Phillips (Cerisette), Mr. Edward Righton (Toupet), Mr. Arthur Stirling (Legrand), Mr. F. Tyars (Reboul), Mr Haviland (the Comte de St. Valerie), Mr. Gordon Craig (Arthur de St. Valerie), &c. We may mention that the curtain will rise at eight o'clock.

The Opera Comique will be re-opened, under the management of Mr. George Cockle, on Saturday, the 28th instant, when there will be produced a new romantic opera, in three acts, entitled "The Castle of Como," (founded on Lord Lytton's "Lady of Lyons"), by Mr. Geo. Cockle, Mus. Bac. Oxon; libretto by the late Charles Searle, with additions by the composer. The principal artistes in the caste are:—Mdlle. Rosina Isidore, the Misses De Vernet, Verity, Vito, and Amy Martin; Messrs. Richard Clarke, Cadwalader, Macarthy, Donnell Balfe, Henry Pope, and Leo Stormont. The acting manager is Mr. J. H. Grattan, while the stage management is in the hands of Mr. William Parry. New scenery by Mr. Banks; new costumes by Mrs. May. The orchestra will consist of 40 performers, under the direction of Sig. Cav. Coronaro (deputy-conductor of La Scala, Milan). The opera will be preceded by a comedietta, entitled "The Dancing Master," by Max Pemberton, with incidental music by Milton Wellings, in which Miss Praeger, Miss Wallis, Mr. Calvert, and Mr. Fleming Norton will take part.

Star Chapter of Instruction, No. 1275.—On Friday, the 13th inst., at the Stirling Castle, Camberwell. Present—Comps. F. Hilton P.Z. Preceptor, Grummant P.Z. M.E.Z., Warren Z. 1348 H., Wingham 25 J., Charlie Woods A.S. 1275 S.E., Addington Z. 1275 S.N., George Powell P.Z. Z. 1185 P.S., Osterstock A.S. 1185, H. Martin 1275. The Chapter was regularly opened by the Principals. The ceremony of installation of Z. was rehearsed by Comp. Warren. The Companions were admitted. The minutes were read and confirmed. The ceremony of exaltation was rehearsed. Comp. Osterstock was elected a joining member. Comp. Warren was elected M.E.Z. for the next meeting. A letter of sympathy was ordered to be sent to the widow of our late Comp. Bumstead. Comps. Hilton and Grummant, who had attended the funeral on the previous Wednesday, spoke of the very great loss that the Order had suffered. Not only was Comp. Bumstead a splendid Mason and perfect gentleman, but he had aimed at teaching the beautiful R.A. ritual in its purest state. His work as Preceptor of the Pythagorean Chapter could never be forgotten. Notice was given that the installation ceremony would be rehearsed on Friday, the 20th inst., at 7·30 p.m. It is to be hoped that South London Principals will try to be present.

"GREATEST BROTHERHOOD QUARREL EVER KNOWN."

ALTHOUGH labour has been suspended for the season by almost every one of the City Lodges, the Masons are in a prodigious excitement in consequence of the receipt of intelligence that, following in the wake of the Grand Masters of Ohio, Iowa, Kentucky, and Pennsylvania, M.W. Harrison Dingman, Grand Master of the District of Columbia, has issued, 25th July, his decree pronouncing the "Cerneau organisation" to be a body of Clandestine Masons, and ordering Master Masons to withdraw from it, under penalty of expulsion from the Order. A similar decree in Ohio, fulminated some two years since, has led to one of the bitterest internal fights shaking the Fraternity for the past fifty years; Lodge warrants have been arrested, and some revoked; many Masons have been suspended, and others expelled on suspicion of being Cerneauites; while more than half a dozen law suits were awaiting trial, in which the Grand Lodge Officers are defendants from the Grand Lodge of Ohio.

The proclamation mania has spread to other States, threatening "chaos to come again," but this final decree of Grand Master Dingman, charging the "Cerneau organisation" with having made alliance with the proscribed Grand Orient of France, must culminate into a serious complication, morally certain to embroil the entire Fraternity in an internecine quarrel to be waged to the death.

All American Masons are aware that fraternal relations with the Grand Orient of France have been severed for many years past, still ninety-nine in every hundred are in blissful ignorance as to the causes leading to this dissolution of friendly ties and to practical rupture of boasted Masonic unity, a condition of affairs which can be best illustrated by stating that were Lafayette alive and visiting us, as in 1824, the guest of the nation, any Masons entertaining him as a brother would be expelled from the Order for treason to a Grand Lodge [that is, in those jurisdictions where the anti-Cerneau mania rages]. This French difficulty finds its origin in the distant State of Louisiana, as far back as 1857, and was the sequence of a Scotch Rite quarrel. At the time of the formation of the Grand Lodge of Louisiana there was but one English-speaking Lodge in the jurisdiction working with the York, or rather American, Rite, the other Lodges practising the French Rites. After the close of the Mexican war, hundreds of Americans, unaffiliated Masons, settled in New Orleans, who disliked foreign Masonic rule, and conspired against the Grand Lodge, which had recognized the Grand Council of Princes of the Royal Secret Thirty-Second, or Cerneau creation, as of concurrent jurisdiction. Obtaining dispensations from Grand Master John A. Quitman, of Mississippi, for some nine or ten York Rite Lodges, the Americans then organised an Ancient York Grand Lodge in opposition to the one formed in 1812 and then in existence.

The two Grand Lodges combated for a time, but finally united and worked in harmony until the creole population [meaning the descendants of the old French settlers] became irritated at a passage of a resolution by the Grand Lodge, declaring that it would henceforth grant no warrants except to Lodges working the York Rite. There was organised, by the Marquis Santangelo, at New Orleans, in 1836, a Supreme Council for the United States, which was declared to be illegitimate by the Supreme Council of France, which recognised the Supreme Council [Cerneau's] at New York, bearing a similar title, which the Marquis had appropriated. Santangelo's Council was recognised in 1857 by James Foulhouse as the Supreme Council for the Independent Sovereign State of Louisiana, under whose jurisdiction the French and Scottish Rite Lodges placed themselves after their withdrawal from the Grand Lodge. Persecuted by the Supreme Council of the Southern Jurisdiction, Foulhouse went to France, and gained recognition for his Supreme Council and its subordinates from the Grand Orient. To break up this Council, the Southern Council, under Albert Pike, induced the Louisiana Grand Lodge to declare the Lodges under its obedience [that is, under Foulhouse's Grand Council] to be clandestine, and to demand of the Grand Orient of France a severance of fraternal relations with those of the Foulhouse Council. With this demand the Grand Orient refused to comply, and thereupon the Grand Lodge of Louisiana cut off her communications with French Masons, on the ground of invasion of her territory, and requested her sister Grand Lodges to imitate her example, which [of course] they did, although the Grand Orient had committed no trespass upon their rights and prerogatives.

Although Foulhouse had abjured [Masonry] and returned to the Roman Catholic Church, of which he had formerly been a priest, and his Grand Council and its Lodges have disappeared over a quarter of a century since, the inhibition of the Grand Orient of France by the American Grand Lodges still remains in full force, so that when M. Dermous, one of its high dignitaries, visited this country, as a representative of the Chamber of Deputies, he received a cold shoulder from the Masons of high and low degrees. Still during this long period of suppression the Grand Orient has committed offences which in American eyes justify its own expulsion from Masonry. It has decreed a belief in the existence of a Supreme Being not to be necessary to insure initiation into the Craft, while York Masons contend such a belief to be the corner-stone of the Temple. Again, the Grand Orient has recognised the coloured Grand Lodges [but which the God-believing pious Christian] American Masons claim to be bogus in the extreme, inasmuch as the Prince Hall (or African Lodge) Charter was originally obtained through fraud, and afterwards revoked for non-payment of dues. Finally, there are in this city four Lodges, meeting in Blecker-street Buildings, working at present under the Grand Orient of France.

Somewhere about 1870 Harry I. Seymour, actor and costumier, [was] Grand Master of Ceremonies for the United States of America [meaning the Cerneauites], whence he had been expelled. Finding himself impecunious, he conferred the thirty-third and last degree upon a number of Master Masons, whom he formed into a Supreme Council, which he claimed as being a continuation of the Sovereign Grand Consistory, founded by Joseph Cerneau, in 1807, in this city, although expelled from the Scottish Rite Masonry by the self-same body, whose name he, like his fellow impostor Santangelo, appropriated. Despite its unmitigated illegitimacy, Seymour's creation has at the present moment a large following, particularly in Kentucky, Virginia and Maryland, who have been ingeniously entrapped through fraudulent assumption of the title and history of another New York Supreme [Cerneauite] Council, still extant, [which was] declared by the treaty of Paris, at which it was represented by Lafayette, to be the only legitimate Council in America, of which Judge John I. Gorman is present Grand Commander. In April 1888, Ferdinand J. S. Gorgas Grand Commander of the [Seymourite] Cerneau Grand Consistory visited Paris, saw Frederick Dermous and other officers of the Grand Orient, established fraternal relations with it, and appointed Alpha O. Munro, of Paris, his representative, "in guarantee of friendship." Strange to say, this same Gorgas was chairman of the Maryland Grand Lodge Committee, [and] recommended perpetual severance of fraternal relations with the Grand Orient, as a promoter of infidelity.

REMARKS ON THE ABOVE.

By Bro. Jacob Norton.

I copied the above from a newspaper slip, I know not the name of the paper. I infer, however, from its contents that the said paper was printed in New York, in August last. As the writer mentions the visit of Lafayette, I thought of something I have read and of something Dr. Folger, the historian of the A. and A. Rite, told me about Lafayette. I must, however, preface the anecdote, viz.:—

From 1807 to 1813 the Cerneauites alone had a 33rd concern in New York. In 1813 a Charlestonian came to New York and established a rival Scotch Rite concern by the name of Gorgas and Co. This new concern, however, soon disappeared: it remained right down dead until 1844, when Gorgas and Co. was revived by Bostonians. When Lafayette came to New York, in 1824, the Cerneauites there at once thirty-thirded him. The New York Cerneauites had a branch, in 1824, in Charleston, South Carolina, which was then the sanctum sanctorum of the earliest Scotch Riters in America, and of course there existed the fiercest hatred between the originals and the new comers; each denounced the other as bogus, illegitimate, &c. Now, the City of Charleston, of course, invited a visit from the distinguished guest, and the day was known when General Lafayette would arrive at Charleston The dignitaries of the Scotch originals there made up their minds to capture Lafayette. So, on the day of the General's arrival, they held a grand assembly, dressed themselves in their grand robes, bedecked themselves with grand jewels, seated themselves in their grand chairs, and sent a Committee to General Lafayette, to invite him to come there and be at once thirty-thirded. The Committee, however, soon returned and, with downcast looks and woful countenances, reported that the Cerneauites had already captured the General and thirty-thirded him; and he, of course, was made to believe that the Cerneauites were all right, and the originals were all wrong; but as there was no help for it, the poor originals had to disrobe themselves and return disappointed to their respective homes.

The history of the former troubles in New Orleans is clearly given in the above narrative; but I must add to the writer's remarks about the new fire kindled among the Scotch Riters in Maryland, that within two or three years the Baltimore high degreers rejected some one from being a Scotch Riter. Sovereign Albert Pike thereupon chartered another high degree concern in Baltimore, where the "rejected stone" was inserted into the Scotch Rite arch. This gave mortal offence to the rejectors, who immediately rebelled against Sovereign Pike, and enrolled themselves under that branch of Cerneauites which was originally started by Harry Seymour, and of which Bro. Peckham was the Grand Sovereign. Subsequently Bro. Gorgas, of Baltimore, succeeded Bro. Peckham as Grand Sovereign. Scotch Riters are great splitters—so as soon as a Scotch Rite concern was established anywhere, it immediately split itself into two or more factions. Now, as a fundamental rule exists amongst them, that each concern must be acknowledged by another, Sovereign Gorgas visited several parts of Europe, and his concern was of course acknowledged in many jurisdictions by those concerns that are hostile to Sovereign Albert Pike's pretensions; and among these the Grand Orient of France acknowledged Bro. Gorgas's exclusive Sovereignty over the whole United States of America. Of course, the Grand Orient had offended our American Scotch Riters by acknowledging Foulhouse at New Orleans; it offended the American negro haters by acknowledging the coloured Grand Lodges, and it offended the pious ones, because it asks no questions of candidates about belief in God; all these points are utilised by the anti-Cerneauites. So, what between the two branches of the Cerneauites and the self-declared orthodox Northern and Southern Jurisdictioners, no less than about a dozen pamphlets have been fired off within two years by the various factions, besides any amount of talk in Grand Lodges.

But, strange to say, the Grand Lodge of New York seems to entertain the utmost contempt for the maniac crew of anti-Cerneauites, for at its last annual meeting it elected Bro. John I. Gorman, Sovereign Grand Commander of a Cerneauite concern, for Grand Treasurer. What the anti-Cerneauites will say remains to be seen.

Finally I shall say something about the coloured Masons. About forty odd years ago a report was circulated by a very pious Boston brother that the charter for the African Lodge in Boston was obtained by Prince Hall, from England, by fraud; but when the fraud was discovered the Grand Lodge of England requested the negroes to return the Charter, for inserting something therein. Accordingly, Prince Hall copied it and sent the Charter back to England, which the Grand Lodge of England never returned. Bro. Findel's History exploded that story. I myself saw the original Charter in Boston; the late Bro. Hervey also showed me some documents that Prince Hall sent to the then Grand Secretary of England. From the above New York paper I learn that the story of having obtained the Charter by fraud is still circulated, with the addition that the coloured or African Lodge was erased from the English Lodge list because it did not pay its dues to the Grand Lodge of England. But that is also untrue, for the American Lodges paid no dues to the Grand Lodge of England. The truth is, the African Lodge was erased from the English Lodge list in 1813, when all other American Lodges were erased, and all were erased for one and the same reason. Now, on comparing the conduct of the "infidel" Grand Orient of France towards the American coloured Masons, with that of our American pious Masons, I cannot help thinking that the French "infidels" acted more in accordance with Masonic teaching than our American pious Masons did.

WEST LANCASHIRE MASONIC CHARITIES.

A MEETING of the Charity Committee of the Provincial Grand Lodge of West Lancashire, which was very numerously attended, took place on the 13th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, under the presidency of Bro. R. Wylie. Recommendations for grants from the Provincial Grand Lodge Fund of Benevolence, to the amount of about £70, for distressed brethren and widows of deceased Freemasons, were adopted, and the votes of the Province for candidates at the forthcoming Charity Elections were also arranged. A most interesting and exhaustive synopsis of the Masonic Charities of West Lancashire has been prepared by Bro. J. H. Tyson P.M. 1182. In the course of his admirably prepared statement Bro. Tyson says that the Educational Institution (established 1850), for the education and clothing of children of deceased Freemasons, was recently amended to also include, in certain cases, the maintenance of children. The sub-division of the Province shows that from the year 1850 to 1888 the Liverpool Lodges have provided funds to the extent of £18,162 7s 10d, and the benefits to that section have been 12,971 16s 9d. During the same period the outer section of the Province (49 Lodges) has provided the sum of £5268 11s 10d, while the sum of £5863 10s 4d has been granted for children on account of the same Lodges. Taking separately the latter portion—the last nine years of the time (1880 to 1888 inclusive)—it shows that Liverpool has supplied £7282 12s 10d, and the payments for children have been £7954 9s 10d, while the outer section has provided only £2755 13s 9d, and has had for children grants amounting to £4502 16s 9d, showing that, while the demands on the institution on account of the outer section are increasing very much, the subscriptions and donations are on a smaller scale. The nearest obtainable account of the total receipts of the institution is £38,782 12s 9d, of which about £18,835 7s 1d has been disbursed for aid to children, while there remains a capital of £20,308 18s. The interest received on the capital of this institution has been £13,816 18s 7d. The entire working expenses (being merely printing, stationery, stamps, &c.) for the whole period of 39 years have been only £1355 5s 4d. Prior to 1876 fees were paid to this Institution on account of each Lodge through the Provincial Grand Lodge; up to that date such fees amounted to £2114 11s 6d, viz., on account of Liverpool Lodges £1472 15s 6d, and the outer section £641 16s. Since that time, there have instead been sundry special grants from Provincial Grand Lodge, amounting in all to £1417 10s (an average of £118 2s 6d per year). The Hamer Institution, established in 1874, for annuities to aged Freemasons, has made very pleasing progress. For this charity Liverpool provided the sum of £1701 17s 5d, and the outer section £113 10s 6d. The interest on capital has amounted to £678 8s 8d; the annuities paid out amount to £479 3s 2d. The capital of the institution at the close of the period named was £3032 12s 4d; the total working expenses (consisting of printing, stationery, stamps, &c.) for the 15 years being only £191 19s 4d. The Alpass Institution was established in the year 1886 for annuities to widows of Freemasons. The object of this Institution has so commended it to the brethren as to ensure very considerable success during its short existence; but the number of candidates for its benefits show the urgent need of increased support. The interest received on capital has been £110 9s 6d; the annuities paid out have amounted to £232 10s; the capital of the Institution being £2273 7s 1d; the total working expenses for the three years have been £145 4s 4d. Bro. Tyson adds—It is only fair to remember that the working of these Charities is carried out by brethren, without any cost to the institutions for their constant labours in the cause.

MOUNT GRACE PRECEPTORY.

ON the 11th instant, at the Masonic Hall, Stockton, an encampment of this Preceptory was held, with Sir Knight H. B. Olsen E.P., when Sir Knight Hill-Drury P.E.P. installed Companion Sinclair. The Visitors were Sir Knights Henry Maddison and S. Bowesfield.

The St. Michael Mark Lodge, No. 175, Holston, has unanimously elected Bro. W. Trevenan W.M. for the ensuing year. Bro. J. M. Richards was re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. R. James Tyler. The installation of the W.M. will take place on 16th October.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Rheumatism and Rheumatic gout are the most dreaded of all diseases, because their victims know that they are safe at no season, and at no age secure. Holloway's Ointment, after fomentation of the painful parts, gives greater relief than any other application; but it must be diligently used to obtain this desirable result. It has been highly commended by rheumatic subjects of all ages and of both sexes, for rendering their attacks less frequent and less vigorous, and for repressing the sour perspirations and soothing the nerves. In many cases Holloway's Ointment and Pills have proved the greatest blessings in removing rheumatism and rheumatic gout which has destroyed persons previously and at the prime of life.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

—:o:—

ST. DAVID'S LODGE, No. 384.

BROTHER JOSIAH HUGHES, a P.M. of this Lodge, on the 9th instant, entertained the W.M., the Officers, and the P.M.'s, at a banquet at the Castle Hotel, Bangor, on the occasion of his leaving for a tour through the Australian Colonies. In the course of the evening Bro. Hughes was presented with a P.M.'s jewel.

ST. BARTHOLOMEW'S LODGE, No. 696.

MR. S. EVERSHED, M.P., the owner of the Anchor Hotel, Wednesbury, has, at the request of the members of the above Lodge, defrayed the cost of carrying out a series of improvements in the Assembly Room in order to make it suitable for a Masonic hall. Mr. W. H. Bodin, from designs prepared by Mr. E. M. Scott, carried out the improvements, and the hall is now pronounced to be one of the best in the district. The Lodge-room has been furnished by Mr. Joseph Dicken. The installation of Bro. Bodin as W.M. will take place in October.

THE BROWNRIGG LODGE, No. 1638.

THE members of this popular Lodge must be heartily congratulated on the success that attended their installation meeting, on Wednesday last. The work of the day was efficiently performed; there was a strong body of Visitors present, and one and all went away satisfied with the arrangements made for their entertainment by the Worshipful Masters—both outgoing and incoming—who, in this regard, received every assistance from their Officers. In order to provide ample accommodation for those who desired to attend, the members made arrangements for the meeting to be held at the Albany Hall, a convenient building adjoining the Railway, and for this change of locality a dispensation had been granted by the Prov. G. Lodge. The proceedings commenced at 3·30, when the minutes of last regular meeting were read and confirmed. The dispensation giving authority for holding the meeting away from headquarters was next recited, and then the auditors presented their report. The presentment was satisfactory, and now Bros. Fortescue, Whittaker, Mann, and Heaton, candidates for raising, declared themselves. They gave evidence of their worthiness for preferment, and were introduced in pairs, and instructed in the mysteries of the third degree, the outgoing W.M. conducting the ceremonies in a perfect manner. Bro. Abel Laurence next presented the W.M. elect, Bro. William Drewett, who has already passed the chair of a Surrey Lodge, the Dobie, No. 889, and is well recognised throughout the Craft as an experienced and enthusiastic Mason. Bro. Humphreys accepted the presentation, and at once proceeded with the ceremony. In due course a strong Board of Installed Masters was formed, and Bro. Drewett took his place as ruler, and was heartily congratulated on his attainment of so honourable a position in the Lodge. On the readmission of the brethren who as yet cannot mount the levels, the new W.M. was proclaimed and saluted in the three degrees, and he then invested the following brethren as his Officers:—Bros. Montague S.W., Willis J.W., Oldridge P.M. Treasurer, Abel Laurence P.M. Sec., Taylor S.D., Rumbelow J.D., Treverton I.G., Baltz Dir. of Cers., Gibbons and Pennington Stewards, and W. Lane Tyler. The Installing Master, Bro. Humphreys, now completed the installation ceremony, rendering the addresses in an effective manner, that was highly appreciated by all present. The W.M. presented a handsome P.M.'s jewel to the I.P.M., and referred to the excellent work done by Bro. Humphreys during his year of office. Bro. Humphreys briefly responded. During the past year he had only done what he previously told them he should do, viz., endeavour to maintain the prestige of the Brownrigg Lodge. Whatever he had done was to promote its interests, and he was glad to find his efforts were appreciated. After some other business Lodge was closed, and the brethren sjourned to the Sun Hotel, Kingston, where a capital banquet was supplied, and the usual toast list carried out, the W.M. suggesting that as there was an excellent programme of music, the speeches should be as brief as possible. Bro. Sir John Whittaker Ellis P.G.W. responded for the G. Officers; it was a toast which Englishman should be proud to acknowledge. The Grand Officers were appointed by the M.W. Grand Master, and were honoured by their appointments. H.R.H. the M.W.G.M. had shown so much talent and ability that he believed the nation looked forward to the time when he would rule over them, and naturally they, as Masons, felt proud of the interest he had taken in Freemasonry. He (Bro. Ellis) had very often been asked what Freemasonry was; he had always summed it up in a few words—Charity to all men, truthful and honourable conduct, a kindly and generous feeling, a sympathetic desire to advance the interests of all around, and a disregard of themselves when others were in want. His occupations had been various, and what with the other demands on his time he had been prevented from being so actively concerned in Masonry as he could have desired. He begged to assure them that no one felt more deeply than he did the important services which their great Institution had rendered to the country. It had bound men together for good, and he had never heard that Freemasons had ever banded together for a wrong purpose. He thanked the W.M. for his kind invitation, and for so kindly allowing him to respond. The next toast was the health of the Provincial Grand Master in charge, Bro. Frederick West. The W.M. said that in that brother's absence he could say much, but in his presence he was not going lavishly to praise him. Bro. West's name was not only known in their Province, but in other Provinces—in fact, wherever Masonry had obtained a foothold—as one of the most experienced guiders they had in the Craft. He should like to say on behalf of this Lodge that they felt it an honour that Brother West should visit them, and he was personally glad, for it gave him an opportunity of seeing the way in which their Immediate Past Master Brother Humphreys had done the work. Their Lodge was called after the name of one who was revered wherever Masonry was known, and had only to be mentioned to be received with respect, and Bro. West had shown how fit he was to carry on the work. Bro. West said it afforded him, as the present ruler of the province, great pleasure to be present at the installation meeting of a Lodge named after one who was beloved in Surrey. It was also a double pleasure to see the W.M. installed in the chair, because he felt confident that the Lodge would not only be maintained, but kept in that state of Masonic feeling and work which would have pleased him whose name it bears. The rendering of the installation ceremony was a treat to all who appreciate a ceremony properly done. He considered that the principles which Bro. Sir W. Ellis had stated were the foundation of Masonry, and such as every true Mason should have at heart. He was very pleased to find the Lodge so prosperous as regards numbers, but he thought that a Lodge might become too large, and that the number they now had should not be increased very much. They knew that Masonry was making great strides, and a great number were anxious to become brethren, but from some little experience he thought that he was not wrong in saying that the true Masonic feeling was not always promoted by having a large Lodge. In conclusion he wished the W.M. a prosperous year of office. In proposing the Provincial Grand Officers, the W.M. said there were many distinguished brethren present, but there was one he was proud especially to refer to—Bro. A. C. Greenwood Assistant Prov. Grand Secretary—a brother of their esteemed Provincial Grand Secretary, who, unfortunately, was prevented from attending. In the brother present they had an excellent representative of a family which would always be remembered, for the kindly words of the late Bro. Greenwood were always acceptable in the Province. Bro. Alfred Greenwood was a candidate for the position of Secretary to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and he made bold to say that if they meant anything by Masonry they ought to stick together whenever they had an opportunity, and if any brother who was a Life Governor of that School thought that a member of the Greenwood family was worthy to hold that office, he should give him his vote. Bro. A. C. Greenwood, in reply, said he scarcely knew how to express his sincere thanks for the toast so ably proposed and so heartily received. On behalf of the other Prov. G. Officers he thanked them. The W.M. had been good enough to mention the fact that he was a candidate for the Secretaryship of the Boys' School,—should that appointment become vacant. It was a subject of extreme delicacy, as the present Secretary had not yet intimated his intention to resign. However, he assured them that if Brother Binckes did so, and he should be appointed, he held a sacred trust from his late father to hand the name of Greenwood down as pure and unsullied as he had received it. Brother Humphreys Immediate Past Master, proposed the health of the W.M. They all knew Bro. Drewett, and the way in which he had worked in the Lodge. It was owing to the fact that he was W.M. of another Lodge that he did not reach the chair last year. It must be palpable to them, as it was to him, that they had a good W.M. at the present time, and therefore it behoved them to give him the support he deserved. Brother Drewett responded, it gave him great pleasure to stand there in the capacity of W.M. of his mother Lodge. Although he had served the office in another, this Lodge had always been a good friend to him, and he could look round and see P.M.'s who had assisted at his initiation nine years ago. It was not given to every Mason to make such rapid strides, but it was his pleasure for some years to work through the various offices, although not holding a collar. He thanked them very much for all their kindness, and the new members for the way in which they had always received him. He hoped he should have a pleasant year of office, and trusted it would be said of him, as of his predecessor, that he tried to do his best, and did it well. His heart was in Masonry, and would always be in the prosperity of their Lodge. Several other toasts followed. The musical arrangements of the evening were conducted by the veteran Bro. John Hodges, who was assisted by Brothers J. Gawthrop, D. Strong, and Sutton Shepley. Their united efforts gave unqualified satisfaction to all present. In addition to those we have already mentioned, the following Past Masters of the Lodge were present:—Bros. W. Youldon, W. Lane, John Drewett, and George Moorman. Amongst the Visitors were Bros. Sir John Whittaker Ellis P.G.W., Frede. West Prov. G.M. in charge, E. J. Williams I.P.M. 1539, W. Vaas 88, B. Colbrough S.W. 889, T. Raggs P.M. 160, A. Greenwood Assist. Prov. G. Sec., George Porter P.P.G.S.B., Jno. Mayo 1614, W. W. Lee 1897, A. Grundy 1585, A. M. Levy S.D. 889, J. B. Stevens P.M. 167, W. W. Morgan P.M. 211, J. Colebourn P.M. 1381, R. Sc'avian Hart P.P.G.S.D., F. J. Hayward S.D. 9, F. P. Heal W.M. 2146, H. J. Shelley S.W. 1981, R. T. Ebsen P.P.G.D.C., W. T. P. Montgomery P.M. 1475, G. G. Straw 1604, D. Hughes P.P.G.D.C., J. DUKE OF CORNWALL LODGE, No. 1839.

DURING the past week the sound of the gavel has again been heard in many of our popular Masonic resorts, and the enforced silence of the recess has given way under the nimble fingers of the Tylers, whose special duty it is to see the jewels are bright and the regalia of the various Officers in a neat and trim-like fashion. The members of the Duke of Cornwall Lodge assembled in full strength on Saturday last, at the Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen Street, London, and the gathering was one of the most successful that has attended the efforts of this popular Lodge. Bro. Walter B. Marcus opened the Lodge, when he was supported by Past Masters J. W. Brooke, A. Williams, T. C. Corpe (Treasurer), H. Catterinole, J. W. Dewsnap (Secretary), A. Stokes, W. G. Batt; the Rev. J. Sindholme Brownrigg P.G.C., D. Provincial Grand Master Berks and Bucks, A. J. Dixie P.M. 153, A. H. Jakins (Senior Warden and Worshipful Master elect), with the following Visitors:—Bros. C. G. Marcus 1585, J. C. Wilkins, Walter Martin P.M. 879, F. Corbett 1612, M. Docking 569, E. T. Edwards P.M. 2201, J. W.

Lodge having been formally constituted, the minutes of the last meeting, held on the 13th April, were read and confirmed. The ballot was then taken for Mr. Walter Thomas Perrins, who was proposed as a candidate for initiation by Bro. J. F. Perrins and seconded by the W.M. Bro. Marcus. The result was unanimously in favour of the candidate, who later in the day was initiated by the outgoing Worshipful Master, who also installed Bro. Jakins, the W.M. elect. The following brethren were invested as Officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. Walter B. Marcus I.P.M., C. H. Cox S.W., J. T. Williams J.W., T. C. Corpe P.M. Treasurer, J. W. Dewsnap P.M. Secretary, J. Bladon S.D., John Calver J.D., H. S. Trego I.G. and Organist, M. Keith-Frith Director of Ceremonies, W. H. Foot and W. H. Lowry Stewards, T. Bowler Tyler. A Past Master's jewel was presented to Bro. Marcus I.P.M. Assistance was voted to the widow of a deceased former member of the Lodge, and her petition to the Board of Benevolence was duly signed in open Lodge. The following letter was received by the W.M. from the Lodge in Auckland, under the Irish Constitution, in which he was initiated:—

"Ara Lodge, No. 348, I.C.
"Freemasons' Hall, Auckland.
"July 12, 1889.

"Alfred Jakins, Esq., W.M. No. 1839, Duke of Cornwall Lodge.

"WORSHIPFUL SIR AND BROTHER,—The Freemason you so kindly posted to the W.M. of 'Ara' was duly received, and the portion which particularly concerned yourself and 'Ara' was read to the Lodge. All present were exceedingly pleased at the exalted position you have obtained as a 'ruler in the Craft,' and hope you will have a successful and prosperous year of office. I was also directed by the W.M. to post to you the Herald, containing a brief account of the 50th installation in our Lodge. I also enclose therein a programme, balance sheet, and a circular which will easily explain itself. Bro. P.M.'s Russell, Rees, Pierce, and several of the brethren tender you congratulations, which are heartily endorsed by,

Yours fraternally,

GEORGE H. POWLEY P.M. Sec. 348 I.C.

34 Shortland St.

The brethren, before closing the Lodge, discussed a motion for reducing the number of meetings each year by one, but ultimately adjourned that business till next meeting. An excellent banquet was then partaken of, at Freemasons' Tavern, and the list of toasts was subsequently honoured. The W.M., in proposing the toast of the Queen and the Craft, said that loyalty to Her Majesty was spread over the four quarters of the Globe, like the Craft. Wherever we went loyalty sprang forth, and so did members of the Craft. He had had the honour of drinking Her Majesty's health in Norfolk Island, which was as far south as one could go. The W.M. next proposed the M.W.G.M. Those members of the Craft who had had the pleasure of meeting the Prince of Wales had been struck with his attention to all that concerned the Craft. Those who met him in the Albert Hall the year before last came to the conclusion that the Prince of Wales was the best speaker they had that day. The W.M., in proposing the Earl of Carnarvon, &c., said this toast was always well received in the Duke of Cornwall Lodge, as they always had some Grand Officer at their meeting. They regretted that the Grand Secretary was not present, but he wrote to say he had a previous engagement. They had, however, a Grand Officer with them in the person of the Rev. J. S. Brownrigg Past Grand Chaplain. Brother the Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg, in responding, said this was certainly not the first time—and as far as he was concerned he hoped it would not be the last—he had had to return thanks for this toast. Sometimes he had returned thanks for it alone, and borne on his own shoulders the accumulated weight of the thanks of others, combined with his. But sometimes he had had more distinguished brethren present to return thanks. To-night, however, he was as the last rose of summer, left blooming—not blushing—alone. But there were other friends equally blooming as himself who were not present, and it was their regret that they were not here. On their behalf and on his own, he returned thanks. Bro. Marcus I.P.M., in proposing the health of the W.M., said the way in which Bro. A. H. Jakins had conducted the work that night in the Lodge, in investing his Officers, had won general favour. He had been in hopes to see him initiate the candidate, but the W.M. considered it was the duty of the I.P.M. to do it, as the ceremony came in his year of office, before the installation. He acceded to this wish, but he should have preferred to see the W.M. do it. He had seen him do the work most successfully in the Lodge of Instruction he was so regular an attendant at, and where he was trying to qualify himself to discharge those duties which every Master was proud to perform. As a good social brother they knew him well. He had been with them several years, and every one in the Lodge respected him. At the end of his year of office he would feel that he had done his duty, as the other P.M.'s had done. It was a pride to all P.M.'s to know that they had fulfilled their duty, to the satisfaction of the Lodge. He (Bro. Marcus), as the I.P.M., felt he had done his duty as best he could, and he could not do more. When Bro. Jakins left the chair he would feel the same with regard to himself. In reply the W.M. thanked the brethren very heartily for the warmth with which they had received the toast, so gracefully proposed by Bro. Marcus, who had stuck to him all the time he (Bro. Jakins) had been in office in the Lodge. Without Bro. Marcus's good fellowship and instruction he should never have been able to attain the high office of W.M. He thanked the brethren one and all. Bro. Brooke P.M., who comes to England every year from Vienna to attend the installation meeting of the Duke of Cornwall Lodge, proposed the health of the Installing Officer, the I.P.M., and said he need not assure the brethren that it was with great pleasure he rose to so, because it was simply due to his old friend Bro. Marcus. The words "Installing Officer" he felt quite sure were enough to commend themselves to the acceptation of all the brethren, for the simple reason that during Bro. Marcus's year of office he had well and ably performed his duties. His ability had culminated that evening in his performing the office of Installing Master. The way he had performed it they had all witnessed, and he felt that Bro. Marcus was the man of the future, and that he had made his mark in Masonry. Bro. Marcus said, in response, that he thanked the brethren most heartily for the cordial way in which they had received the toast proposed by Past Master Brooke, the first Master of the Lodge. Bro. Brooke was "the observed of all observers;" they all looked on Bro. Brooke with the greatest affection; he never failed to come once a year to propose the health of their Installing Officer. It was a great honour for that toast to be proposed by such a brother, who came so many hundred miles to propose it. He had spoken in the Lodge with respect to himself, and he could not say more. He had tried to do his duty as W.M., and he felt in going out of office, with the Past Master's jewel on his breast, he had the affection and the respect of the brethren. Brother Perrins, responding to the toast of the Initiate, said he felt very much impressed with the ceremony he had gone through, and he gave his very best thanks to the brethren for their kind and cordial reception. He trusted as he grew older in the Craft, and was initiated in all its ways, he might be a credit to it. Bro. Walter Martin, as one of the respondents to the toast of the Visitors, said he had had the pleasure of knowing the W.M. and the P.M.'s in Lodges of Instruction, and in the Duke of Cornwall Lodge of Instruction. Under Bro. Valentine they had made progress in Masonry, and performed their duties with great credit to themselves. Bro. Valentine P.M. 1017 impressed upon the brethren the duty of attending Lodges of Instruction. No matter under what circumstances any Preceptor might be connected with any other Lodge of Instruction, never would he find a body of men more willing to do their best to receive the tuition of the Preceptor than those members of the Duke of Cornwall Lodge of Instruction he had come in contact with. It was the only way to improvement; there was no royal road to the position of W.M. Bro. Lennox Browne also responded, and congratulated the Lodge on having a member who could sing so beautifully as their Initiate, Bro. Perrins. Brothers Marcus, Brooke, and Bott responded to the toast of the Past Masters, Bro. Bott remarking on the very happy evening they had spent. It reminded him of years gone by, when the Lodge was not so numerous as now, and those very happy and convivial evenings they used to spend together in September. When he heard in Lodge that it was proposed to take out the September meeting, he much regretted it. Bro. Corpe, as Treasurer, and Bro. Dewsnap, as Secretary, in the briefest terms, responded to the toast of the Treasurer and Secretary, both stating they willingly did all they could for the Lodge, which they were happy to find was a great success. Bros. Morgan and Massey responded to the Masonic Press, and the Senior and Junior Wardens replied to the toast of the Officers. Bro. Bowler gave the Tyler's toast, and the brethren separated, after enjoying a most delightful evening, the harmony of which was contributed to by some beautiful singing by Bros. C. Mussared, W. B. Marcus, W. H. Foote, C. Styles, H. Stafford Trego, W. T. Perrins, J. Calver, J. T. Williams, and W. H. Lowry.

THE BARNATO LODGE, No. 2265.

THE installation meeting, and celebration of the anniversary of the consecration of this Lodge, took place on Monday, at the Highbury Station Hotel. There was a very full gathering, and on all hands the members were congratulated on the position the Lodge had already made for itself. Lodge was opened at 4.30 p.m. by Bros. C. F. Hogard P.G.S.B. as W.M., M. J. de Leeuw S.W., Lion Kool J.W., J. Joel Treasurer, M. J. Jessop Secretary, T. Honey S.D., E. J. Acworth J.D., M. Bash I.G., S. B. Joel and J. B. Joel Stewards, W. Wright Organist. Amongst the Visitors present were Bros. the Rev. G. W. Weldon P.G. Chaplain, Richard Eve P.G. Treasurer, Col. Shadwell H. Clerke Grand Secretary, Dr. Woodman P.G.S.B., J. L. Mather P.A.G.D.C., F. Binckes P.G.S.B., A. K. Cooper Secretary 1246, W. C. Pinchbeck 913, L. Schuler 1601, Geoffrey C. Herbert Secretary 2108, S. Lancaster W.M. 1668, J. P. Fitzgerald W.M. 2168, W. The business on the agenda included the working of the three degrees, in addition to the installation ceremony. After preliminaries, the reports of the Audit Committee and Benevolent Fund Committee were received and adopted. Bro. Morris Hyman 188 was elected a joining member. Bro. F. B. Phillips was passed, Bros. S. Fox and Smart were raised, and Mr. Z. Goodman was initiated. The installation ceremony was now proceeded with. Bro. Matthew J. Jessop was presented and duly installed as the W.M., Bro. J. L. Mather P.A.G.D.C. acting as D.C. The Officers were appointed and invested, as follows:—Bros. Lion Kool S.W., S. B. Joel J.W., J. Joel Treasurer, M. J. de Leeuw Secretary, T. Honey S.D., E. J. Acworth P.P.G. Steward Essex J.D., A. Levy D.C., W. Wright Organist, J. B. Joel I.G., I. H. Glackstein and M. Bash Stewards, and J. A. Walkley Tyler. In investing Bro. Acworth, the W.M. said he should not congratulate that brother so much on his appointment as he could the Lodge, that so well tried a brother should condescend to take an inferior position. It augured well for this young Lodge that Brother Acworth had acted so nobly.

HAROLD STREETER GOLDSMITH,

AGED 7 YEARS,

YOUNGEST SON OF THE LATE BRO. W. O. GOLDSMITH

Bro. GOLDSMITH was initiated in the Chislehurst Lodge, No. 1531, shortly after its consecration in 1875, and remained a subscribing member till 1881, when he joined the Gallery Lodge, No. 1928. In this latter Lodge he served all the offices up to that of W.M. It was while holding this office, and three days after the election of his successor, that he died, on the 15th November 1887. He was a Life Governor of the Boys' School, and a Subscriber to all the Masonic Charities, and was, at all times, a hard worker in Masonry. He was for many years, and at the time of his death, a member of the Reporting Staff of the Press Association, and in that capacity was well know to all Journalists in the United Kingdom. The under-mentioned Brethren strongly recommend the case of his son, the above-named candidate:—

PROV. GRAND LODGE OF CHESHIRE.

THE Provincial Grand Lodge of Cheshire held its annual meeting at the Mechanics' Institute, Hyde, on the 18th inst. P.G.D.C., Walter Kenworthy P.G.D.D.C., John Coxhill P.G.A.D.C., William Chadwick P.G.S.B., Richard Walker P.G. Std. B., John Barnes P.G.S.B., William H. Maxfield P.G.O., Sampson Booth P.G.P., William Barker P.G.A.P., William Pears P.G.S., Alfred Ingham P.G.S., J. H. Turner P.G.S., Stephen Smith P.G. Tyler, and a large number of Past Provincial Officers. Between 400 and 500 brethren assembled, all the Lodges in the Province, with one exception being represented. In the course of his address, the Provincial Grand Master alluded with regret to the loss the Province had sustained by the death of Bro. E. H. Griffiths, who was Provincial Grand Secretary for nearly 50 years, Bro. John Wood P.G.S.W., Bro. James Arthur Birch, Bro. W. C. Fleming, and Bro. Steward, who was a Mason 60 years, and attended at 50 Provincial Grand Lodge meetings in succession. On the other hand he congratulated them on the large attendance, and had pleasure in stating that there had been a steady increase of numbers, from 1533 to 1683. He had had excellent reports from nearly every Lodge in the Province. His feeling was that if the principles of Masonry were to be furthered they should do their best to make it a reality in the Province. His distinguished predecessor initiated an excellent work in the way of educational charities, but he thought they ought to have power to spread the benevolent fund over a variety of purposes and for general objects, such, for instance, as in a great colliery disaster, which might happen in that populous district. He thought he should be supported by a majority of the brethren in endeavouring to show that Masonry was a living and progressive thing, and that they were ready to lend a helping hand, and show that in cases of distress they were not confined to their own body. The Provincial Grand Master referred with satisfaction to the marriage of the Princess Louise, and concluded by moving that a congratulatory address be presented to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales M.W. Grand Master, on the auspicious marriage of the Princess Louise to Bro. the Duke of Fife, Provincial Grand Master of Banffshire. This was seconded by the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and carried with acclamation. On the motion of Bro. W. Booth, seconded by Lieutenant-Colonel Wilkinson, the Provincial Grand Lodge placed on record its high appreciation of the valuable services rendered by the late Brother Griffiths to the Freemasonry of the Province, and its sorrow and regret at his decease. Bros. James Salmon, Major Preston, and John Clayton were elected auditors. The Provincial Grand Master, amid applause, announced his intention to contribute, on behalf of the Provincial Grand Lodge, the sum of 50 guineas to the funds of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. The following Officers were then invested :—

Bro. His Honour Judge Horatio Lloyd	Deputy Master
Lieut.-Col. Wilkinson ...	Senior Warden

Stockport was selected as the place of meeting next year. Bro. Salmon was elected Chairman of the Board of Benevolence, and a vote of thanks was accorded to Bro. Platt for his past services. The brethren attended divine service at St. George's Church, where the sermon was preached by the Rev. Jas. G. Bird P.G.J.C., and a collection made in aid of the Provincial Fund of Benevolence. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. W. H. Maxfield P.G.O., assisted by Bros. W. H. Kershaw, Mark Stafford, J. T. Clarke, Stephen E. Jupp, J. Hamilton, and A. Lowtas.

CENTENARY OF THE ROYAL CLARENCE LODGE, No. 271.

IN the past month of August 1889 occurred an event unique in the annals of Sussex Freemasonry—the first Centenary of a Masonic Lodge indigenous to the county, viz.: the Royal Clarence Lodge, Brighton, the warrant for which was dated 8th August 1789. We propose, therefore, to take this opportunity of giving a brief history of the Craft in Sussex, basing our remarks to some extent on the excellent History of Freemasonry in Sussex by Bro. Thomas Francis. It is not our purpose to pry into the hidden secrets and mysteries of the Craft, although a Masonic poet observes :—

> "The world is aflame
> Our secrets to gain."

The Order, no doubt, is ancient, though it is not clear whether the Masonic poet is correct when he says of the "mystic apron" that it is

> "The badge of innocence, I mean the royal robe
> Which Noah he did wear, when in the ark he stood,
> When the world was destroyed by a deluging flood."

But Sussex Freemasonry claims a considerable antiquity, and it is alleged, and probably correctly, that the College of Smiths (Collegium Fabrorum) referred to in the noted Chichester Roman inscription, now preserved at Goodwood, was of a Masonic character. It is a curious coincidence that the second of the extinct Sussex Lodges, St. Rook's Hill, Chichester (dating from 1730), is described in an early list of Lodges as "from the time of Julius Cæsar." The marks of the fishermen and landsmen of Brighton attached to the curious "Book of all the Ancient Customs" of Brighton, in 1581, bear a strong affinity to some of the early Masons' Marks, though it is true they may be partly derived from the marks of the early wool shippers. The first distinct mention of Sussex Masonry is in Mr. William Preston's "Illustrations of Masonry," which states that in 1697 the Duke of Richmond, who was elected Grand Master, was Master of a Lodge at Chichester. But no records of this Lodge are preserved. In 1717 the Grand Lodge of England was formed, and in 1724 issued a warrant for a Lodge at Chichester, which first met at the Swan Inn, and afterwards at the Dolphin; but it became extinct before 1770. The second Duke of Richmond, son of the before-named Duke, seems to have belonged to this Lodge, and it may be observed that the Dukes of Richmond have always taken a deep interest in Sussex Freemasonry.

The first Provincial Grand Master of Sussex Freemasons was Captain F. G. Minshall, of the Horse Guards, appointed by Lord Petre in 1774, but he disappeared from the lists after 1782, and the office was vacant, until, on 20th May 1788, the Duke of Manchester (then Grand Master) appointed Mr. (after Major-General Sir) Samuel Hulse to the post. He was Treasurer to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. Previously (in February 1788) the Prince himself had been initiated into the mysteries of ancient Freemasonry at the Star and Garter, Pall Mall. The Royal approbation thus bestowed upon the Craft seems to have given it a great impetus in Sussex, as the Prince had settled at Brighton in 1784, and this no doubt led to the formation of the Royal Clarence Lodge, the warrant for which was granted on 8th August 1789, being named from his Royal brother, Prince William Henry (afterwards William IV.), shortly before created Duke of Clarence, who in October wrote approving of the Lodge's title. The first meeting of the Royal Clarence Lodge took place on 26th August 1789, at the White Horse Inn, East Street (now the site of Brill's Baths), but in 1800 the headquarters were at the Old Ship, being moved to the Pavilion in 1863. As the first Brighton Lodge, the Royal Clarence has always taken the lead in Sussex Freemasonry. In 1881 the late Mr. J. H. Scott Deputy Provincial Grand Master stated that "since its formation the Lodge had initiated 636 brethren, and admitted 216 joining members, amongst them many of Brighton's oldest, best known, and most respected inhabitants, and, independently of the benefactions of its members, it had expended from its funds more than £2000 in works of charity and public usefulness. In November 1793 the Prince of Wales, as Grand Master of the Masons, laid the foundation stone of the Chapel Royal, in North-street, Brighton, but whether with Masonic rites is not expressly stated, though it may be assumed.

The next eldest indigenous Sussex Lodge (for the actual oldest is the "Howard Lodge of Brotherly Love," Arundel, founded in London in 1736) is the South Saxon, Lewes, dating from 1796, and in April 1797 Major-General Hulse, with the aid of the South Saxon and Royal Clarence Lodges, laid the foundation-stone of a Masonic Hall at Lewes for the former Lodge, and this still remains the only one in the county. Public Masonic functions have been rare in Sussex, but in 1817 the Royal Clarence Lodge assisted in driving the first pile of Shoreham Harbour; in 1824 the first stone of St. Peter's Church, Brighton; and in 1831 laid the first stone of the Norfolk Bridge, Shoreham. On 27th May 1836 the late Mr. Daniel Mantlorp Folkard, as W.M. of the Royal Clarence Lodge, laid the foundation-stone of the fine Viaduct in New England-hill, ten thousand persons assembling on the neighbouring hills to witness the ceremony. The brethren walked in procession from the Old Ship Hotel. In 1840 the same Lodge laid the first stone of the Adelaide wing of the Sussex County Hospital, Brighton. The next similar undertaking was the foundation-stone-laying of the Sick Children's Hospital, Brighton, in 1881, laid by the late Sir Walter W. Burrell,

Digitized by Google

Bart., who, in 1885, also laid the foundation-stone of St. Saviour's Church, Ditchling-road, Brighton.

The greatest Masonic event in the history of the Province of Sussex was undoubtedly the installation of H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught and Strathearne, Earl of Sussex, as Provincial Grand Master of Sussex, which took place in the Dome, Brighton, in 1885, in the presence of about 1500 Masons. The ceremony at this brilliant gathering was most impressively performed by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, as Grand Master of England, supported by his son Prince Albert Victor of Wales, the Lord Chancellor being G.S.W., and Lord Charles Beresford G.J.W. In 1814 Sir Samuel Hulse was appointed Provincial Grand Master of Kent, and Charles, fourth Duke of Richmond, was placed in charge of the Province of Sussex, which he held until 1819, when his death occurred, while holding the important position of Governor General of Canada. The office continued vacant until 1823, when his Grace's son and successor, the late Duke of Richmond, was appointed Provincial Grand Master, and held the office until his death in October 1860. He never took any active part in the duties of his office, but left it to the management of his Deputy. From 1830 to 1844 the latter office was filled by Mr. Thomas Read Kemp (the well-known founder of Kemp Town, Brighton), who lived abroad for some years before his death (in 1844). In consequence of this neglect the Provincial Grand Lodge never met from 1827 until 1854, when it was resuscitated, meeting at the Old Ship, Brighton. From 1860 to 1865 the Province was placed in charge of the Grand Registrar, but in the latter year the late Lieutenant-Colonel G. C. Dalbiac (of the Brighton Volunteer Artillery) was appointed Provincial Grand Master, and held the office until his death, in 1867, being succeeded by Lord Pelham (now Earl of Chichester), who resigned on account of ill-health, and was followed by the late Sir Walter W. Burrell, who continued Provincial Grand Master until his death in 1886, when H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught was appointed. In recent years Freemasonry has made rapid progress in Sussex, the total of members of Lodges having increased from 263 in 1857 to 754 in 1877, and 1100 in 1882. Sussex occupies a high position in its support of the Masonic Charities, and it was stated at the Provincial Grand Lodge in 1881 that in the previous seven years the Province contributed as much as £3749 to the Charities.—Sussex Daily News.

THE THEATRES, &c.

—:o:—

Haymarket.—Mr. Buchanan's adaptation of "Roger la Honte," with which Mr. Beerbohm Tree opened his autumn season, promises to become a greater success than its original, as the story set forth in "A Man's Shadow" is more compact, and the various dramatic situations are more skilfully brought on. Lucien Laroque and Roland De Noirville have been comrades during the Franco-German war, during which the former has saved the latter's life, so that a firm friendship has been formed between them. At the opening of the play, Laroque, now a banker, is in business difficulties, and visits De Noirville, an advocate, for advice and assistance. To his astonishment he recognises, in his friend's wife, a woman who betrayed and left him eight years previously. Julie De Noirville wishes to renew their former intimacy, but being indignantly spurned by Laroque, vows vengeance. Whilst writing a last appeal to her old lover, she is visited by Luversan, a scoundrel who bears an extraordinary resemblance to Laroque, and, deceived by the likeness, gives him the compromising letter. Luversan was formerly a German spy, and as such had been condemned to death by Laroque, but escaped, and the wretch eagerly enters into the plans of vengeance proposed by Madame De Noirville. Owing to a peculiar combination of circumstances, Luversan murders a M. Gerbier, Laroque's principal creditor, robs him of 100,000 francs, and sends the money, with a fac simile of Julie De Noirville's letter, to Lucien. At the same time Laroque's wife and child believe they have seen him commit the murder. The third act takes place in the assize court, where little Suzanne becomes one of the principal witnesses against her father, as was the case in "Proof." De Noirville is counsel for his old comrade, and vainly endeavours to induce him to reveal the source from which he received the bank notes, the chief evidence against him; but Laroque, rather than betray the perfidy of his friend's wife, prefers to suffer. During an interval of the trial, Luversan sends Julie's letter to De Noirville, who then learns that Laroque must be innocent; but to state the truth is to publish his own dishonour, and a terrible moral struggle ensues. He, however, resolves to do his duty, and is on the point of stating that it was his wife who sent the notes when he drops dead on the floor. This is a grand scene, and would alone make the fortune of the play. The burst of applause that resounded through the house at the termination of the act sufficiently bespoke the feelings of the audience, and thrice had the curtain to be raised before the actors were allowed finally to retire. The last act is entirely original, and shows how Laroque's innocence is proved, and how retributive justice overtakes Luversan. There are a few improbabilities in the play, but where so much is excellent it would be ungracious to refer to them, especially as the adaptor had to overcome many difficulties in presenting the piece to an English audience. It will be perceived that the burden of the play rests with three characters, and two of these—Laroque and his "Shadow"—are cleverly doubled by Mr. Tree. The necessary resemblance is thus maintained while the actor makes the distinction between the two ever perfectly clear to the audience. Thus the high minded gentleman enlists our sympathy as much as the crafty scoundrel deserves our detestation; the change is complete, and both contrasts are perfectly rendered. Mr. Fernandez gives a sublime performance as De Noirville; in the trial scene he becomes the principal attraction, even the unfortunate Laroque is forgotten, and the audience are enthralled by the talent of the artiste. Mrs. Tree enacts the devoted Henriette with genuine pathos, and Miss Minnie Terry plays the child with considerable intelligence, while Miss Julie Neilson is satisfactory as Madame De Noirville. The humour of the piece consists of a lively waiting-maid, Victoire, who being married to Tristol, is in love with Picolet; she obtains a divorce from the former and marries the latter, when her affection is transferred to her former husband. Very French, certainly! These characters are amusingly sustained by pretty Miss Norreys and Messrs. Collette and Robson. The drama is elegantly placed on the stage, and the theatre having been newly decorated presents a very brilliant appearance.

Adelphi.—The first night of an Adelphi drama resembles nothing so much as a Drury Lane pantomime on Boxing Night. The audience come perfectly prepared to enjoy themselves, and they know exactly what they are to expect. Indeed, a dramatist who fails to comply with the requirements of an Adelphi audience had better take his work elsewhere. There must be the persecuted heroine, the manly, ardent hero, the egregious villain, and a pair of low comedy lovers. The audience must be able to applaud the heroine and her sweetheart throughout their struggles, to hiss and howl at the villain, and to roar at the stupidity of the comic pair. With these ingredients the plot is of secondary importance, but it must be confessed that in "London Day by Day," Messrs. G. R. Sims and Henry Pettitt have furnished an exciting work, which fully realises the expectations of the audience, and will doubtless prove an attraction for some time to come. It is, however, rather a startling novelty to find that the heroine is an ex-convict, and hiding from the police, with a ticket-of-leave. Of course Violet Chester is innocent of her alleged crime, a fact that is quite apparent to Frank Granville long before he hears her secret, but Frank's worldly father does not seem to see it, and forbids the marriage bells to ring. The poor girl's tribulations are caused by Patrick O'Brien arriving to prove her innocence, and her an heiress. Unfortunately, he goes to Marks and Co. with his news, and, instead of assisting him, one partner seeks to marry the girl for the sake of her fortune, while another puts O'Brien off the search by showing him London life. Henri de Belleville is however married, but has deserted his wife, who, left to her own resources, becomes a concert singer, and through her instrumentality the villains are foiled, and Violet is finally united to Frank. The play is full of character sketches, for which the authors are so celebrated, and the various scenes are skilfully linked together so as to form a continual round of excitement. A capital company has been engaged for its representation, foremost of whom is Mr. George Alexander, who, as Frank Granville, speedily won the approbation of the audience by his manly bearing and graceful love-making. Miss Alma Murray is the beau ideal of a persecuted heroine, and Mons. Marius, specially engaged, makes a very strong minded villain. The comic lovers, Dolly Blossom and Tom Galloway, are represented by those experienced players Miss Clara Jecks and Mr. J. L. Shine, who make the most of their opportunities. Mr. L. Rignold gives a humorous rendering of a money lending Jew, and Miss Kate James deserves mention for her clever sketch of a street Arab. Her idea of passing off the War Cry as a sporting paper is very droll. From the first note of the overture to the final fall of the curtain the audience vociferously expressed their satisfaction, and the success of the piece was achieved. As usual, the marvellous mechanical scenery was greatly applauded, and the incidental music, composed by Mr. H. Sprake, is well adapted for the occasion.

Avenue.—The production of "The Brigands," on Monday evening, failed to bring any striking feature before playgoers, and although the opera is at times amusing, and the music always bright and pretty, we are afraid it will not prove very attractive. The libretto is by Mr. W. S. Gilbert, who adapted it, from the French of Meilhac and Halevy, many years ago. Mr. Gilbert's well-known style can be traced throughout the book, but it lacks the spirit of some of this gentleman's later works. Offenbach's pretty music is excellent—it is spirited, tuneful, and easily catches hold of the audience. Several of the numbers deserve special mention, particularly the "Beggar's Chorus," and the Princess's solo in the second act, and Fiorela's descriptive song to the young Duke of Mantua in the first act. It is not our intention to give the story of the opera; we must frankly admit that we failed to clearly make it out. From what we gathered, however, a Brigand chief contrives to make his daughter impersonate the Princess of Grenade, by which means he will get hold of a large sum of money from the Palace of Mantua. How the Brigands get to the Palace, only to find that the money is not forthcoming, how they are found out, and then pardoned, is shown, but not clearly. We may mention that the Brigand's daughter marries a young farmer, who has joined the band out of devotion to her. The rendering is good on the whole, the chorus being efficient, and but in one instance acquitted themselves admirably. As the Brigand chief, Mr. Hallen Mostyn did capital service. His strong voice is just suited to the character, but it would be even more effective in the vocal part if it was trained a little more. Miss Agnes Delaporte, as the Brigand's daughter, scored a great success. She sang and acted with plenty of spirit, and kept the piece going whenever she was on the stage. Mr. Frank Wemsley has a capital voice, and in his part of the farmer had opportunities of which he was not slow to avail himself. Mr. Horace Lingard was quaint and amusing as a Lieutenant, while a special word of praise is due to Messrs. Pollard, Ambrose, and Morand for their rendering of Brigands' parts. Miss Marie Luella sang exceedingly well, and gained a double encore for her song in the second act. Mr. George Honey was most amusing as a Captain of a band of Carbineers, whose marching caused immense fun. Mr. Sam Wilkinson scored well in his scene with the Brigand Chief, while Miss Geraldine St. Maur did herself credit in a minor part. Miss Millie Marion danced a tarantella in the third act, for which she gained an encore. The opera is prettily mounted, while a strong orchestra renders the music perfectly.

—:o:—

The Installing Master then completed the ceremonial work by a forcible delivery of the addresses to Master, Wardens, and Brethren. Before taking his seat, however, Bro. Hogard said that on occasions like the one they were assembled upon it was usual for the W.M. to present to the outgoing Master a jewel, but some months back, when Brother Da Silva left, the Lodge undertook that duty. Some of the Officers and Brethren had considered that, as the first Secretary of the Lodge, upon whom a large amount of labour had fallen, they could not do otherwise than ask Bro. Jessop to accept a jewel as Past Secretary, and as a slight token of the esteem and respect in which they held him. He had, therefore, much pleasure in pinning on Bro. Jessop's breast this jewel, and hoped he might long be spared to wear it. In reply the W.M. said he was utterly taken by surprise, although he felt he need not be surprised at any token of good will and good fellowship displayed from the Barnato Lodge. During the past year there had been emanating nothing but good will. One resignation, and several propositions for new membership having been received, Bro. Acworth proposed that a hearty vote of thanks be accorded to Bro. Hogard for the admirable manner in which he had carried out the work of the day, including the installation ceremony. He wished it could be expressed in some more tangible form, and hoped that during the coming year this idea would be carried into effect. The Secretary seconded the motion, which was unanimously carried. Bro. Hogard, in returning thanks, remarked that it had been a labour of love to do all he could for the Lodge. This completed the heavy labours of the day, and Bro. Hogard was heartily complimented on the way he had conducted the proceedings. The brethren now repaired to the banquet room, where a sumptuous repast was served. On the removal of the cloth Bro. Jessop, the W.M., proposed the health of Her Majesty the Queen, and Prosperity to the Craft, which was followed by the National Anthem, the solo given by Miss L. White. The toast of the M.W. the Grand Master H.R.H. the Prince of Wales came next, and was followed by that of the Pro Grand Master. With the toast of the R.W. Deputy Grand Master the Right Hon the Earl of Lathom, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Present and Past, was associated the names of Bros. the Rev. G. W. Weldon, Richard Eve, and Col. S. H. Clerke. In introducing the toast the W.M. said, as a young Lodge they had been most unusually honoured by the presence of Grand Officers. At the consecration meeting there was a grand array. On the present occasion there was a meeting of La France Lodge, and many of the Grand Officers were there. Still they had several well known and tried members of Grand Lodge with them. Freemasonry without a Grand Lodge would be a train without an engine, a body without a mind—in fact, chaos. The Grand Officers were an able body, and did all they could for Freemasonry. He asked the brethren to drink heartily and sincerely to the Grand Officers. Bro. Rev. G. W. Weldon P.G. Chaplain said in response, on such an occasion as the present he occupied a double position. It was quite true he was a Grand Officer, but whenever he found an initiate on his left he liked, as a Past Grand Chaplain, to say one or two words for his benefit, and to point out that Freemasonry was not what the outer world thought it. If it was not a religion, it was worth living for. He did not know that there was any system of religion at the present moment which could collect so many heterogeneous elements as Freemasonry, in brotherly affection, and utterly regardless of caste or creed. Freemasonry brought together in one grand brotherhood men who, in point of politics as well as in religion, entirely differed, and this could not be done in any other known system with which he was acquainted. Freemasonry, was simply a universal brotherhood. All who could acknowledge the existence of one true God, and the continuity of life after death, were eligible to be enrolled amongst its ranks. Having travelled a good deal, he had had the opportunity of finding, in various parts of the earth, men quite opposed to each other with regard to creed and politics, and yet who could give the right hand of fellowship simply on the broad basis of the universal brotherhood of man. Whether it be Jew or Gentile, they all met on a common ground, and showed each other brotherly kindness and charity. He should not occupy their time, but simply say that so long as they met together on those lines they were carrying out the true spirit of the founders of the Craft, however far back their origin, viz., that Freemasonry should be a power to cement, by the tie of universal brotherhood, men who would not otherwise be brought together. He was glad to think he was privileged to be with them, and was also glad to see so many present. He thanked them in his own name, and as an honorary member of their Lodge, for the honour conferred upon him. Bro. Richard Eve, P.G. Treasurer, also returned thanks. It was not the first time he had been present; he attended the consecration of the Lodge, when a deep impression was made upon him. He was glad to hear Bro. Weldon say he realised the fact that Freemasonry was more than a social Institution, and that it was worthy of far higher consideration; it tended to enlarge the mind, scope, and ability of all who joined the Order, and gave a higher view of things generally. He appreciated that striking lesson which had been dilated upon—the brotherhood of man; and they must bear in mind that higher principles could not be expressed by any Institution than the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. Whether it be in the East or West, it mattered not; of whatever colour or creed, it embraced all those who were believers in a God. He realized that Masonry itself had a high capacity and a strong reach, and had a mighty claim on every well regulated mind; for it brought under its banners the Christian and the Jew, Mahommedan and Parsee, red, yellow, and black men. He gloried in Masonry, from the fact that it could draw under its banners all phases of opinion and thought, and that all colours and creeds of men could meet upon terms of brotherhood and fellowship. Brother Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke Grand Secretary said he would simply confine himself to remarking that he had had the honour of consecrating the Lodge, but he had not since then visited it. He was delighted to find that the Lodge had fulfilled the expectations expressed, and was proud to feel that it had justified its existence. Bro. C. F. Hogard P.G.S.B., acting as I.P.M., in rising to propose the next toast, said he found himself in a unique position. He was, at the consecration, invested as acting I.P.M., and owing to circumstances which they all know, he was again in possession of the gavel to propose the health of their W.M. He need not say much of Bro. Jessop's qualities, because, since June 1888, he had been the Secretary of their Lodge. They all knew the duties devolving upon him in looking after the arrangements, and those duties did not end in coming to the Lodge, for since the consecration Bro. Jessop had always had heavy duties to perform. That he had carried out those duties to their satisfaction had been proved by the manner in which he had been elected as W.M. That their Lodge had prospered, they had heard from the Consecrating Officer; and that it had prospered in a marvellous degree was proved by the gathering that evening. A great deal of the success had depended upon their late Secretary, and he was sure that now the Lodge was on its pinnacle, Bro. Jessop, as their W.M., would see that it did not retrograde. As they had a long programme he would not detain them; it required no further words to propose the health of their W.M., and to find the brethren receiving it in an enthusiastic manner. Bro. Jessop, in reply, again thanked them. They had treated him better than he deserved. During the past year he had done his best as Secretary, but business had prevented him doing all he could have wished. They had treated him in an exceedingly kind manner. Every brother was proud of a jewel, but there were various ways by which they were obtained. As a Steward for the Charities he received a jewel, and to a W.M. it was customary to pay such a compliment. Still, what the members of the Barnato Lodge had done he thought was almost unique. It had been to him a pleasant surprise, and was the greatest mark of appreciation they could pay him. If he had 50 jewels, there would be none he should value so much as the one presented to him that evening. Bro. Dr. Woodman P.G.S.B. responded for the Visitors. He also was present at the consecration of the Lodge, which was a noble function; he was also present at its next meeting, but the present meeting was a still larger one. The manner in which the Visitors were treated left nothing to be desired, and they could hardly thank the members sufficiently for their kindness. There were few Lodges which had sprung up to the position now held by this Lodge in so short a time. Brother S. V. Abrahams P.M. 1017 also replied. Divinity and eloquence had already claimed their attention, and he felt that one who would follow those able speakers ought to add something that would not only interest, but at the same time claim their attention. Whilst he did not pretend to any eloquence, or want of eloquence, he had the qualification of having to speak to them on a subject dear to the hearts of the members present. He alluded to the Visitors. He had to thank the members for the cordial reception accorded to them, which had been considerably enhanced by the kind expressions used by the W.M. in proposing the toast. Whilst he felt they owed a debt in acknowledgment for what they had received, they were ready to admit that their visit had not been one of an ordinary nature. They had heard the ceremonies performed in a manner that could not be excelled in many older Lodges; they had had the opportunity and pleasure of hearing Brother Hogard deliver the ritual of installation in a manner that showed how worthy he is to hold a high position in the Craft. Whilst they had been deeply impressed with his delivery of the addresses, they could not but help thinking of the lessons which they contained, and which, if followed out by the members, could not fail to make a lasting and deep impression, and make them better and more worthy citizens and Masons. However few his remarks, let it be understood that they were sincere, and as the representative of a Lodge that was held in some little esteem by the Barnato Lodge, he thanked them for the compliment paid him. The W.M., in proposing the health of the Installing Master, said it was the toast of the evening. They all knew Bro. Hogard, and knew him to be one amongst a million, ever ready to do anything for them at any time. He had done his (the W.M.'s) Secretarial work when he had been away, and if he (Bro. Jessop) talked for a month he could not say one-tenth of what he felt and the brethren felt towards Bro. Hogard. Bro. Hogard, in reply, said he really knew not how to thank them for the extremely enthusiastic manner in which they had drunk the toast. Anything he could do, either working in the Lodge or outside it, he should be only too pleased to do to the best of his ability. It was only about 15 or 16 months since the Lodge started, and they had had a most prosperous career. If could only hope that what had happened in the past would recur in the future; his best exertions should be devoted to the interests of the Lodge. A few other toasts were given. A capital musical programme was carried out by Bro. W. Wright, Organist, who was assisted by Miss L. White, Bros. R. Jessop and T. Houey, Messrs. S. de Sola, J. Barker, and J. Rogers.

TEES CHAPTER, No. 509.

PROV. GRAND LODGE OF NEW ZEALAND (S.C.)

ABOUT 150 brethren were present at the Communication of the Provincial Grand Lodge of New Zealand, S.C., on 27th July, for the installation of Bro. E. T. Gillon as Deputy Provincial Grand Master of the North Island. In the absence of Bro. Sir Frederick Whitaker, Bro. Nicoll, of Auckland, Substitute Provincial Grand Master presided, and conducted the ceremony in a very impressive manner. The District Grand Master of Wellington, E.C., was present, also the District Grand Master of Auckland, Bro. Graham, E.C., and the Past Provincial Grand Master of New Zealand, Bro. Pyke, S.C. All the Craft Lodges in Wellington were represented, and Brother Hamilton represented the Provincial Grand Lodge of New Zealand I.C. The ceremony was a choral one, Bro. Warren acting as Director of Music. After the Lodge closed there was a banquet, at which the Loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed. Altogether the proceedings were a great success, and passed off without a hitch. Brother Gillon was presented for installation by Bro. Warren, Past Master of the Otago Kilwinning Lodge, as Master of which, some twenty-five years ago, he initiated Bro. Gillon. Parliamentary proceedings prevented the attendance of Sir Harry Atkinson, and a large number of members of the House of Representatives, from whom apologies were received.

A "smart" writer in the Northern Weekly Leader gives us the following:—

The Masonic procession to and from Hexham Abbey Church on Monday, the 9th inst., was witnessed by a considerable number of the townsfolk, to whom the spectacle had the merit of novelty. Beaumont Street was swarming with children, and at first it was thought that the compulsory clauses of the Education Acts had in some mysterious fashon become null and void. Before the starting of the procession two of the brethren had the temerity to appear upon the scene in Masonic costume, and as the sword of the Order had not then been unsheathed, these irreverent youngsters made a precipitate rush for them. But for the strategic dispositions of a stalwart policeman, who showed great presence of mind, the movement would have spread, and I am afraid that the dignity of Hexham would have suffered in consequence. After this small but portentous episode the youngsters maintained an attitude of becoming gravity and decorum. One of the older generation summed up his impressions of the spectacle with the remark that such a collection of tall hats—all in a row—had never been seen in Hexham before.

EADE'S
GOUT & RHEUMATIC PILLS.

The SAFEST and most EFFECTUAL CURE for GOUT, RHEUMATISM, and all PAINS in the HEAD, FACE, and LIMBS.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL from the Rev. F. FARVIS, Baptist Minister.

Mr. G. EADE. March 19, 1887.

Dear Sir,—I have many times felt inclined to inform you of the benefit I have received by taking your Gout and Rheumatic Pills. After suffering for some time from Rheumatics and Sciatica, I was advised to use your Pills. I bought a bottle, and when in severe pain and unable to use the limb affected I took a dose. In a few hours after I felt the pain much better, and after the second dose the pain completely removed and the limb restored to its right use. I thank you, dear sir, for sending forth such a boon for the relief of human suffering.

Yours faithfully,
F. FARVIS,
Baptist Minister.

There are multitudes of people who look upon advertising as a sort of Lottery, and bestow infinitely more thought in the selection of a clerk at £100 a year than in the expenditure of £1000, or two in the same period in advertising. A tithe of the shrewdness displayed in all other branches of their business given to the management of their advertising will be amply repaid. The ADVERTISEMENT AGENT has become an indispensable factor in this matter of publicity, and his raison d'être is perfectly unassailable. Would you leave or enter a port without a pilot? Would you commence and prosecute a law suit without a legal adviser? Either of these courses would not be more foolish than rushing into expenses in Advertising without a competent practical and professional adviser. I am at all times happy to render advertisers every assistance in my power, and to give them the benefit of the experience I have gained during the past twenty years as a London advertising agent. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes. This is no fiction, for they have done it in thousands of cases. Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all humours, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no medicine to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

For a weak stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the liver they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse in action with the ROSEBUD of health the whole physical energy of the human frame. These are the "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of society, and one of the best guarantees to the nervous and debilitated, is that

THE APPROACHING ELECTION FOR THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

THE ballot paper issued for the next election of this Institution, which will take place on Saturday, the 26th prox., contains particulars of forty-nine candidates, and announces that there are but nine vacancies. This is but a poor proportion of prizes for the large number of applicants, but we must not forget that at the half-yearly election in April last no less than thirty-seven girls were taken on to the funds of the Institution, which is now pledged to the maintenance and education of two hundred and sixty-four children. This, it must be admitted, is a very large number to be provided for from the free-will-offerings of the Craft, especially when we bear in mind that there are two other large Charities to be kept up, in addition to numberless minor calls to be answered, and all in the cause of Masonic Benevolence. The two hundred and sixty-four girls at present on the funds of this Charity compare most favourably with the hundred who were reaping the benefits of the Institution in December 1872, and it is but necessary to consider the wide difference in the total then and now—a period of less than seventeen years has elapsed—to fully appreciate the very rapid strides which have been made in connection with this Institution.

Among the forty-nine candidates now appealing for the sympathies of the Craft are six, whose age will preclude them from taking part in another election if they are unsuccessful at the coming contest. We will not attempt to say these six are the most deserving cases on the list, but with all of them it is now or never. The circumstances of each case have been inquired into, and all have been found worthy of being admitted to the benefits of the Charity. Under such conditions then it would seem imperative that all of them should be elected next month even if one or two more deserving cases have to be put aside for half a year—until the next election—to make room for them; otherwise they will be for ever excluded from the benefits which their friends have been led to expect, and which on all hands it is admitted they are fully entitled to receive. Unfortunately, it seldom happens that all of the last application cases at one of the elections are successful, but we hope this occasion will prove an exception to the rule, and that the six girls now taking their last chance of securing a home in the School will not be permanently excluded from its benefits. Of these six candidates two now apply for the third time; No. 1, Dorothy Parnell Anthony, who is one of five children dependent on a widowed mother, brings forward 4 votes from the two elections in which she has taken part. Her father was initiated in the St. John's Lodge, No. 70, Devonshire, in 1871, and subscribed thereto until the time of his death, in 1887. We hope this case may receive the support of the father's Province, and that the brethren thereof may receive sufficient outside support as to render the election a certainty. No. 19, Emily Frances Griffiths, has not had much better fortune in the past, her total of votes in hand being but 47, but this lack of support at the last two elections must not be considered as any augury of what is in store for the child next month; the friends may have been busy on other cases, and may now intend to help this one in its proper order. There are five children dependent on the mother of this girl, the father of whom was admitted to Masonry in the Sir Watkin Lodge, No. 1477, North Wales, in December 1875, remaining a subscribing member thereof until the time of his death, which took place in 1886. No. 27, Isabella Mildred T. Lane, would appear to stand a tolerably good chance of success, for she comes forward on this occasion with 1138 votes to her credit, that number having been polled on her behalf in April. She is one of four children left to the care of a widowed mother. The father died in 1888, after a membership of 17½ years in the Crescent Lodge, No. 788, Middlesex, of which Lodge he was a Past Master. No. 35, Ethel Mary Poore, had 370 votes polled on her behalf last election. Both her parents are living. The father was initiated in the Enfield Lodge, No. 1237, Middlesex; has subscribed to his Lodge for 16 years; risen to the office of Past Master therein, and has had the collar of Provincial Grand Director of Ceremonies conferred on him. There are two children entirely and three partially dependent on him, and although we have no particulars of his condition we are convinced the case is worthy of assistance, else it would never have been allowed on the list. We may add that the father has served the office of Steward for the Girls' School, and has qualified as Life Governor of all three of the Institutions. No. 49, Mary Glover Wood, has 106 votes to her credit. She is one of ten children dependent on their mother. The father was initiated in the St. Maughold Lodge, No. 1075, Isle of Man, and passed the chair therein. He was a subscribing member for 12 years. No. 44, Mabel Elizabeth Warren, now makes a first application. She is the daughter of a brother made in the Ebury Lodge, No. 1348, London, and is one of four children dependent on their mother. We again hope she and these other last application cases will be successful at the coming contest.

No. 25, Bertha Johnston, is another case deserving special notice, she having neither parent living. She is one of three children dependent on friends, and now makes her third application for admission to the Girls' School. She brings forward 28 votes from the two last elections, and has a chance of competing in four others, in addition to that of next month. Still, that is no reason her claims should be overlooked, provided there is room for her in the Institution, without excluding others who are in greater need. Of course, it is quite impossible to decide on this point, and all we can therefore hope is that she may receive as much support as the merits of her case deserve. Her father was initiated in the Marquis of Granby Lodge, No. 124, Durham, became a Past Master thereof and G.S.B. of the Province. He subscribed for 15¾ years and, we trust, made a sufficient number of friends to ensure the early admission of his daughter to the benefits of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls.

The remaining cases we shall leave, as usual, to speak for themselves. We are sure all are deserving of support, and our principal regret—as it is the regret of many others—is that they cannot all be admitted at once to the full enjoyment of the benefits they are seeking.

An alteration has been made in the arrangement of the ballot papers which does not strike us as being any improvement, rather the reverse. We have been accustomed to see the list of candidates in order according to the date of their being passed as eligible to compete. Then it was possible to at once judge how long a candidate had been before the subscribers; now the list is given in alphabetical order, and, except that it may be somewhat easier for reference, we cannot see any advantage in the change, as it appears to make the list very confusing. For instance, No. 1 on the list is a third application case, No. 2 a first, No. 3 a fourth, No. 36 a fourth, No. 37 a first, No. 38 a third, and so on throughout. Unless there is some manifest advantage in the the new arrangement which is not as yet apparent to us, it would be much better to revert to the old system, which at least has the merit of showing the candidates in regular sequence, no small consideration to those who make a point of studying the lists issued from time to time, as the elections come round.

A MISUNDERSTANDING EXPLAINED.

By Bro Jacob Norton.

WHILE pondering over the Ashmole question some time ago, that is, whether he was our brother Mason? the old adage came into my mind, "Tell me what company you keep, and I will know what you are;" hence, as Ashmole told us, that he was "the senior fellow" of a Masons' organisation which met at Masons' Hall, and as I knew that the Masons that met at the said Hall were not our kind of Masons, I concluded that Ashmole was not our brother Mason.

A short time after I came to the above conclusion, I happened to see an article in the Freemason, by Brother Hughan, headed "Ashmole as a Mason," and seeing therein the well known extracts from Ashmole's diary, I supposed that the article was a mere repetition of the oft-told Ashmole story, I therefore neglected to read it, but merely copied from it the said extracts, and made my comments on the question I had in view. To my surprise Bro. Hughan's reply was mainly confined to finding fault with my misquoting the said extracts, and to a stranger it must have appeared that I was charged with misquoting for the purpose of misleading the reader. I endeavoured to correct Bro. Hughan's mistake, but this did not conciliate him, so I submitted the whole question to an impartial friend, and begged him to discover in what way I have sinned against Bro. Hughan. In due time my friend said, "You have not read carefully Bro. Hughan's article, and consequently you did not know what his aim was for writing it. Bro. Hughan merely wished to call attention to the fact that Ashmole's MS. diary varies somewhat in spelling from the printed copies of the said diary." Now while begging Brother Hughan ten thousand pardons for my carelessness, I must still insist that he has exaggerated greatly my sin, for either version of the said diary does not at all influence the main question as to which kind of Masonry Ashmole received in 1646. To make the subject clear I herewith place the two versions side by side:—

Printed version.

1682, Mar. 10. About 5 Hor. post merid., I received a summons to appear at a Lodge to be held next day at Masons Hall, in London.

11. Accordingly I went, and about noon was admitted into the Fellowship of Freemasons, by Sir William Wilson, Knight; Captain Richard Borthwick, Mr. William Woodman, Mr. William Grey, Mr. Samuel Taylour, and Mr. William Wise.

I was the Senior Fellow among them (it being 35 years since I was admitted). There were present besides myself the Fellows after named:—Mr. Thomas Wise Master of the Masons' Company this present year, Mr. Thomas Shorthose, Mr. Thomas Shadbolt, Waidfford Esq., Mr. Nicholas Young, Mr. John Shorthose, Mr. William Hamon, Mr. John Thompson, and Mr. William Stanton. We all dined at the Half Moon Tavern, in Cheapside, a noble dinner prepared at the new accepted Mason.

MS. version.

March 1682.—10. About 5 p.m. I received a summons to appear at a Lodge to be held the next day at Masons'Hall, London.

11. Accordingly I went, and about Noone wore admitted in Fellowship of Freemasons.

Sir William Wilson, Knight, Capt. Rich. Borthwick, Mr. Will. Woodman, Mr. Wm. Grey, Mr. Samuell Taylour, and Mr. William Wise.

I was the Senior Fellow among them (it being 35 years since I was admitted). There were present besides my selfe the Fellowes after named:—Mr. Tho. Wise Mr. of the Masons' Company this p'sent yeare, Mr. Thomas Shorthose, Mr. Thomas Shadbolt,—Wainsford, Esq., Mr. Nich. Young, Mr. John Shorthose, Mr. William Hamon, Mr. John Thompson, and Mr. Will. Stanton,

We all dyned at the Half Moone Taverne, in Cheapside, at a noble dinner prepared at the charge of the new-accepted Mason.

Now, no one appreciates Bro. Hughan's services to the Craft more highly than I do, and those who know me, know that I am not apt to flatter; but for all that I firmly believe that Bro. Hughan can make a mistake as well as I can. I pointed out that there were two disconnected Masonic Societies in the days of Ashmole, and gave my reason why I supposed that Ashmole's Masonry would not have entitled him to enter a Lodge of our predecessors; but instead of proving that the Lodge at Warrington of 1646, or the London Lodge, which Ashmole visited in 1862, imparted secret modes of recognition. My good friend, Bro. Hughan, replied by asking "How does our brother know that in order to gain admission to St. Paul's Lodge (Antiquity), in or about 1717, it was necessary to show a sign, to give a grip, and to whisper a word? We are quite ignorant of the esoteric character of this old Lodge in 1717," &c. And after asking me to send him evidence that the pre-1717 Masons had secret modes of recognition, he went again at me for not reproducing the improved version of Ashmole's diary. Now, with all due respect to Bro. Hughan, he ought to have known by this time that such kind of reasoning would not convince me that he was right.

In his last brief reply Bro. Hughan called my attention to Ashmole's using the word "Lodge" both in 1646 and 1682. Hence, he must have meant by it, what we now call a Lodge. I beg, however, to remind my good brother—1st. There can be no doubt that the first Mason's Guild organised by the Lord Mayor of London in 1356 were altogether Operative Masons. 2nd. There is no doubt that perhaps for two hundred years after 1356 the London Guild called themselves "Freemasons." It is not unreasonable, therefore, to suppose that the word "Lodge" may also have been retained for many years by the London Mason's Guild, and although the said Guild discarded the old words, yet, who knows, whether the Mason's Guild at Warrington in 1646 did not retain the old words and phrases of the early Operative Masons? Besides which, Ashmole was an antiquary, and men of his proclivity are very apt to make use of antiquated phrases. Indeed, Bro. Gould seems to look upon Ashmole in the same light he does upon Aubrey. "As a rule (says Bro. Gould) Ashmole's Diary is trifling where it is not simply nauseous." I do not, therefore, attach much importance to the words "Lodge" or "Freemason," which Ashmole incidentally used in his Diary.

Another argument in behalf of the old belief of Ashmole's Masonry is that Ashmole was not a member of the London Masons' Guild. But suppose he was not? Cannot a Master of a Guild invite to-day a distinguished gentleman to the Guild's feast, and could not the Master of the London Masons' Guild have invited Mr. Ashmole, who was Mazonised in a similar Guild at Warrington in 1646? And as the Guild had no secrets to conceal, I cannot see why any friend of an influential member could not have been invited upon that occasion.

Curious stories have been circulated about Ashmole's manufacturing Masonic rituals, Brother Gould (vol. 2, page 136), says:

Digitized by Google

"The argument usually brought forward in behalf of the Ashmolean theory is an admirable specimen of the kind of reasoning too often employed on such matters. Certain observances and ideas which did not exist before are found, or are supposed to have been found, and prevalent amongst Masons towards the commencement of the eighteenth century. Ashmole was known to have been a Mason, and to have been fond of wasting his time upon all sorts of queer out of the way and unprofitable pursuits. Therefore [say they] these new conceits were taught by Ashmole to the Freemasons." A New York editor of a Masonic magazine told me recently that Ashmole remodelled the Masonic ritual, and while I remonstrated against the absurdity, a literary old brother Mason happened to come into the office, who confirmed the other's statement without an if or a but, and referred me to Anthony Wood's "Athenæ" for his authority. I have thus far been unable to consult the "Athenæ," but supposing there is something in the book to that effect, as Anthony Wood was not a Mason, I would hesitate to pin my faith on his statement about Ashmole's Masonry.

But here is another point which should not be lost sight of, viz.: in Ashmole's diary of 1646 he mentions Richard Penket as the Warden at Warrington. Now, that title may mean either a Master of a Lodge or a Master of a Guild; but in his 1682 diary he mentions "Mr. Tho. Wise, Master of the Masons' Company," thus intimating that he visited a Masons' Guild and not a Masons' Lodge. Besides which, I find that even Brother Gould doubts whether the Masonic Society did meet in Masons' Hall (p. 136, vol. 2nd). A brother, however, informed me that Bro. Hughan has the best of the argument on the question at issue. His theory is that the most prominent members of the London Masonic Company in 1682 were true blue Masons, and that it was through their influence that their Masons' Hall was allowed to be used for the meeting of a true blue Lodge, to which Ashmole was invited to visit, as stated in his diary of 1682. To which I reply that when the said good brother has proved satisfactorily that the twelve gentlemen mentioned by Ashmole as having partaken with him of the "noble dinner" at the "Half Moone Taverne," were all Masonised in true blue Lodges before the 11th of March 1682 I will at once not only submit without a murmur, but will thank him for his information besides.

BOSTON, U.S., 13th September 1889.

MASONIC FORBEARANCE.—As we are none of us free from faults, it is the duty of every brother to bear with the infirmities, to pardon the errors, and to be kind and considerate towards those with whom he is intimately connected. There are few tempers so depraved but a sincere endeavour to please will excite in their bosoms a corresponding sentiment of love and gratitude. We are under peculiar obligations, and it is equally our duty and our interest to discharge them faithfully, and to the letter. Amidst the various dispositions of mankind we must not expect to meet with all we could wish in every brother who is linked with us in the indissoluble chain of Masonry; but if we resolve to do unto others as we would have them do unto us, our happiness and mental satisfaction will usually be amply gratified. Every relative and social duty is founded on reciprocal obligations; and where the seeds of love and friendship are not sown, or where that which springs from them is not cultivated and improved, it will be but "as the grass growing on the housetop, wherewith the mower filleth not his hand, neither he that bindeth up the sheaves in his bosom."

"Illustrations," Mr. Frances George Heath's Magazine of Amusement, Art, Biography, Economy, Invention, Literature and Science will commence its fifth volume, in October, with a new pictorial cover, and its forthcoming issues will include, besides fiction, illustrated papers, embracing drawings of the month, reproductions of National Gallery pictures, pretty places, art studies, eminent artists, pen and pencil portraits of celebrities, public and private schools, Tyrolese winter resorts, popular flowers, farm gossip, and miscellaneous "sketches" of men, things, places, art, literature, and science. "Illustrations" will be published by the firm about to amalgamate as Simpkin, Marshall, Hamilton, Kent and Co.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—During the autumn months, when the atmospheric changes are alike sudden and extreme, it is subject for grave and serious consideration how the health can be best preserved. An occasional alterative, like these pills will be the surest preventive of disease, because it overcomes all derangements of the system, purifies and regulates the circulation, and gives that needful energy to the nervous structures which carries the frame triumphantly through trials to which the weak and sickly would succumb. Neuralgic pains and rheumatic agonies derive present and permanent relief from diligent friction with Holloway's ointment, which, acting as a derivative, relieves the gorged and irritated blood vessels from the congestion and the nerves from pressure.

BRO. GEORGE EDWARD BENNETT.

THIS brother died suddenly at his residence on the 18th inst. During the last few months Bro. Bennett has not felt well, but on Tuesday was apparently in good health, and was very cheerful. He went to bed the same as usual, but about 6·15 in the morning became very ill. Dr. Young was called in, but his services did not avail, Bro. Bennett expiring shortly after eight o'clock. The deceased, who was 50 years of age, was well known in the district of Sheffield as a Freemason, having joined the Britannia Lodge about the year 1864. In 1868 he founded the Wentworth Lodge, which is now flourishing. Deceased was an energetic worker for the good of the Order, and was much liked and respected by all the members, to whom his death came as a great shock. He has held various offices, having been the Master of the Wentworth Craft Lodge, Provincial Officer for West Yorkshire, Principal of a Royal Arch Chapter, and Master of a Mark Lodge. Since the formation of the Masonic private theatricals, in 1878, he has successfully occupied the position of stage manager. Deceased leaves a widow and three children. The interment took place last Saturday, at the General Cemetery.

BRO. FREDERICK SLEIGHT.

THE remains of the late Bro. Frederick Sleight, I.P.M. of the Ancient Britons Lodge, No. 1675, who died suddenly on Monday, the 9th inst., were interred in Toxteth Cemetery, on the 17th inst., in the presence of a large number of Masonic brethren and friends. The cortége left deceased's late residence, Upper Parliament-street, about 2·30 o'clock, and on arrival at the Cemetery gates it was joined by the following brethren, representing the Lodge:—Bros. Samuel John Hughes W.M., William Hawkins J.W., O. J. Rowlands S.W., R. M'Gee Secretary, Hugh Jones P.M., J. H. Peake, J. G. Frederick Gillet, John Pimlett, William Skinner, George Porter, John Long, John Price, Thomas J. Smith, Horace Van Gruisen, John Morris, J. J. G. Little, R. W. Manning, R. H. Bullen, and Captain Topley. Other Lodges were represented by Bros. J. R. Bottomley P.P.G.D.C., Jonathan Parry P.M. 1547, F. D. Foulkes Chap. 292, H. D. Foulkes Chap. 292, Thomas Morgan 241, John Holker 1609, and G. N. Hawke 823. The coffin, which was of French polished brown oak, with handsome brass furniture, bore the following inscription:—"Frederick Sleight, died 16th September 1889, aged 35 years." The interment took place in the Church of England portion of the cemetery, the Rev. R. F. Herring, M.A., St. John the Baptist Church, Toxteth Park, officiating.

The Domatic Chapter of Instruction will remove to St. James's Restaurant, Piccadilly, on the 2nd October. The meetings take place every Wednesday evening, at eight p.m.

The Metropolitan Chapter of Improvement will commence the session on Tuesday, the 1st October, at the White Hart, corner of Abchurch Lane and Cannon Street, E.C., at 6·30 o'clock, and will continue to meet every Tuesday until the end of May. We may mention that Comp. F. Brown is the Preceptor.

On Monday, the 16th instant, a serious accident happened off Southsea Beach, which very nearly terminated fatally. It appears that an old gentleman with a lady and a little boy, visitors, hired a pleasure boat and went out for a row. As they were returning, they met the sailing boat whose canvas for the last few weeks has advertised the virtues of Beecham's Pills, and in manœuvring to get out of her way placed themselves across the bow of the Vesta, another rowing boat, which was coming along at a considerable speed. In vain the occupants of the Vesta tried to stop her; it was too late, and she ran right into the other boat, almost cutting off her stern. The occupants were merged into the water, and their chance of life seemed a bad one, as none of them appeared able to swim. "Beecham's Pills," however tacked and picked them up.—Portsmouth Evening Mail.

On the motion of Comp. Colonel Long, seconded by Comp. R. C. Else (Grand Superintendent) the Provincial Grand Chapter recorded their grief at the loss to Royal Arch Masonry and the Province of Somerset through the lamented death of their Grand Superintendent, the late Brigadier-General Adair, after whom the entertaining Chapter was named. The alms taken were given to Clevedon Cottage Hospital. The Provincial Grand Chapter was then closed in due form. Subsequently the Companions dined together, under the presidency of the Provincial Grand Superintendent, in the Town-hall, when the usual Masonic toasts were gone through.

Star Chapter of Instruction, No. 1275.—On Friday, the 20th inst., at the Stirling Castle, Camberwell. Present:—Comps. F. Hilton P.Z. Preceptor, G. L. Moore Z. 169 M.E.Z., T. Grummant P.Z. H., Captain Vincent P.Z. J., C. H. Stone S.E., Stone S.N., Woods P.S., and Addington. The Chapter was regularly opened by the Principals, and the ceremony of installation of H. was rehearsed by Comp. Moore. The Companions were admitted. The ceremony of exaltation was rehearsed, Comp. Addington candidate. Comp Grummant promised to work the ceremony of installation of J. on Friday evening next (27th inst.)

DEDICATION OF THE KIMBERLEY MASONIC TEMPLE.

WHAT is probably the handsomest and most complete Masonic Temple in South Africa was recently dedicated at Kimberley, where an excellent site was secured in the Du Toits Pan-road. The Temple occupies two full stands extending from the front boundary north, in Du Toit's Pan-road, to the roadway running parallel at the south end, in rear, and covers an area of 7000 superficial feet, exclusive of the Tyler's house, which will be detached from the tempel. The facade is from the Roman-Corinthian order of architecture, and the details of the window, dressings, entrance, doorway, portico (which is a very handsome feature of the structure), and the entablatures and pendiment of the front and side facades are elaborately and effectively designed. The stained-glass window, which is noticeable as soon as the visitor enters the building, is a splendid piece of artistic workmanship, appropriate in design, and showing a most tasteful combination of delicate colouring. The hall measures thirty feet in length by twenty in breadth, having at one end two spacious semi-circular-headed doorways opening into an inner vestibule to be occupied by the Tyler in guarding the Temple and degree-rooms on each side. Two sets of preparation and degree-rooms flank the main building, and at first storey height there are four additional degree-rooms for conducting ceremonies in the higher degrees of Freemasonry. The lighting, ventilating, and sanitary arrangements are all that could be desired, and the work reflects great credit on the architect, Mr. H. A. Reid, of Port Elizabeth; the contractors, Messrs. Beckett and Morgan; Mr. Mills, the clerk of works; as well as upon Mr. Coombes, of De Beer's-road, for the exceedingly creditable manner in which he has turned out the ornamental iron railings in front of the building. The building, the foundation-stone of which was laid in October last, will probably cost about £7000. The members of the Committee, who have indefatigably worked on behalf of this important project, some of whom are at present absent from the Diamond Fields, are the following:—Bros. D. J. Haarhoff (Chairman), George Richards (Honorary Treasurer), John Hampton (Honorary Secretary), H. F. E. Pistorius, C. A. Aburrow, J. Lawrense, A. Bayne, H. W. Peters, A. Yockmonitz, B. Klisser, W. M. Willis, and W. H. Craven. The dedicatory ceremony was ably conducted by Bro. D. J. Haarhoff, in the presence of about 400 brethren from all parts of the colony, including Cape Town, Port Elizabeth, Barkly West, King William's Town, East London, &c. Lodge having been opened in due form in the three degrees by Bro. Richards, Bro. Haarhoff took the chair of K.S. The Ven. Archdeacon Gaul having offered up prayer, the dedicatory ceremonial was proceeded with, the Ven. Archdeacon Gaul S.W. of the Cosmopolitan Lodge ably assisting in the impressive service. The hymns sung were "Behold, how good a thing it is," "Supreme Grand Master, God of Power," and "Guide us, O Thou Great Jehovah!" The solemn procession round the interior of the Grand Hall, accompanied by music, vocal and instrumental, was witnessed in awe-inspiring silence. The brethren taking part in the procession were Bros. Yockmonitz, Beaton, Lawrence, Peters, Gaul, and the dedicating Officer, Bro. D. J. Haarhoff. The appropriate gifts of corn, wine, and oil were supplemented by the parading of a censor containing incense three or four times round the hall, by Bro. Archdeacon Gaul, Bro. Tregarthen meanwhile playing a ceremonial march specially composed by him for the occasion. Bro. D. J. Haarhoff then addressed the brethren, giving a sketch of the negotiations connected with the Temple since the first inception in August 1887, the difficulties which those engaged in its promotion had to contend with, and the pleasing, though arduous, work of the Building Committee since its formation up till the previous evening, when their labours were so grandly consummated. Bro. Richards was then presented with an address, handsomely engrossed and framed, expressing the profound regret of the brethren at his intention shortly to take his departure from Kimberley, and adding, "We deem this important occasion in the history of Freemasonry on the Diamond Fields a fitting opportunity of expressing our high appreciation of your qualities as a citizen, friend, and brother, and our deep sense of the manifold services you have rendered to our beloved Craft." Brother Richards, in responding to the remarks of Bro. Lawrence, delivered an eloquent and telling oration, and his words of gratitude and farewell were characterised by a ring of genuine sincerity and depth of feeling which went to the heart of every brother present. It was announced by Bro. Richards that telegrams of congratulation and apology for unavoidable absence had been received from District Grand Masters in various parts of South Africa, and from other leading brethren who had from the first taken a warm interest in the progress of the work, so that, as Bro. Richards expressed it, "We have now ended as we began, with the hearty good wishes of the whole of the Craft in South Africa." Lodge was then closed in due and ancient form, and refreshments were partaken of in the side-rooms, the health of Bros. Richards and Haarhoff being cordially toasted in brimming bumpers.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

TRUE LOVE AND UNITY LODGE, No. 248.

THE members of this Lodge met at the Masonic Hall, Brixham, on Monday evening, the 16th inst., on a very interesting occasion. Bro. John Wheaton W.M., in the course of a few appropriate remarks, alluded to the departure of Bro. the Rev. Elrington, whose acceptance he asked, on behalf of the members of the Lodge, of a P.M.'s jewel and address. The latter, which was illuminated, read as follows :—

"Presented to W. Bro. the Rev. R. B. F. Elrington P.M. P.P.G. Chaplain of Devon, by the W.M., Wardens and Brethren of the True Love and Unity Lodge of Freemasons, No. 248, Brixham, on the occasion of his leaving the town, as a mark of esteem and fraternal regard for his valuable services to the Lodge and to Freemasonry generally, heartily wishing him health, long life, continued prosperity, and happiness. Signed, on behalf of the Lodge, by W. Bro. John Wheaton W.M., Bros. John T. James S.W., James Spark J.W., and the Officers and Brethren."

The jewel was a very pretty design, and bore an appropriate inscription besides the crest of the recipient, a stork, in gold, on the ribbon. Bro. Elrington cordially thanked the brethren for their expression of good feeling and interest in his welfare, and spoke of the sincere regret with which he left Brixham after residing in it for so many years. Bro. Rev. Elrington leaves Lower Brixham, of which he has been the vicar for 35 years, this week for Leamington, on his retirement from active service. He was W.M. of True Love and Unity for two years, in 1886-7, when the new hall was consecrated, and was initiated into Masonry 42 years ago, at the Shakespeare Lodge, No. 143, Dublin, the Chaplain of which at that time was Dr. Magee, now the Bishop of Peterborough. Bro. Elrington is also a M.M.M. and third Principal of Torbay Chapter, No. 1358, Paignton. During the evening Bro. J. W. Matthews was raised to the degree of M.M., the ceremony being most efficiently performed in a very excellent manner by Bro. N. Hopson, P.G.J.W. of the United Grand Lodge of New South Wales, who was afterwards accorded a vote of thanks. Amongst the visiting brethren were Bros. T. J. Cressman S.D., West S.S., and E. J. Pratt, all of 1402.

CONCORD LODGE, No. 323.

A LARGE meeting was held at the Florist Hotel, Shaw Heath, on Wednesday, the 11th inst., to celebrate the fact that this Lodge had become a Patron of the Royal Masonic Institution for Aged Freemasons. The following Officers and members attended :—Bros. John Smith W.M., James Breen I.P.M., W. Merrison S.W., J. O. Wylde J. W., W. Pritchard Treasurer, Thomas Brookes Secretary, E. Stevens S.D., A. Horton J.D., Henry Newton I.G., John Scott Tyler, with Past Masters Bros. Samuel Lowe, Thomas Whalley, John Knott, Christopher Atkinson, Joseph Slack, George Boothby, and John Slack; also Bros. Charles J. Cheetham, Joseph Wood, E. Edmondson, William Walmsley, Joseph Broadhurst, W. Johnson, Thomas Roberts, William Wood, E. Taylor, James E. Penny, and Joseph D. Kain. The W.M. was also supported by the following visiting brethren :—Bros. Thomas W. Weathered 365 (New York), Charles Clarkson W.M. 104, George Gaskill S.W. 104, Joseph Hollingworth W.M. 758, J. Beresford P.M. 104 and P.P.G.S.D., Geo. McClelland I.P.M. 287, Alfred Taylor P.M. 287, H. H. Royle W.M. 322, William Loose 645, James Paget 314, G. W. Cookson 1030, George Sam Smith P.M. 1134, Charles Booth 287, James Cookson I.P.M. 287 and 1030, and William Booth P.M. 104. After the Lodge had been duly opened and the ordinary business concluded, the announcement was made that there had been paid to the Aged Freemasons' Fund a further sum of 100 guineas in addition to the fifty guineas within six months to the same Institution, and thus the Lodge became a "Patron" in perpetuity. The Lodge was previously a "Vice-Patron," and subsequently, after the usual duties of "Masons" and "citizens" had been performed, a vote of thanks was proposed to Bro. Thomas Brookes P.M. for his able services in having, by his action, put the Lodge in so honourable a position, and which was very heartily supported, particularly by the respective visiting brethren. Bro. Brookes, in reply, deprecated so very much honour being showered upon him personally. It was quite true that he had originated the idea, but had he not had the very generous band of brethren in the Lodge to work with, and without their noble and spontaneous responses he himself could not have done it. The credit was due to all the members of the Lodge, as 41 out of a total of 44 had subscribed to this fund, and when it was remembered that only six months ago there were voluntary contributions to a considerable amount to make up the previous 50 guineas, he was sure the visitors would see that it was the members of the Lodge, and not he, who had accomplished the object with which he had set out. This was true "Masonic Charity," nothing done for personal laudation, but large and small subscriptions were blended in the one object, in the united name of the Lodge. The Lodge now possesses 154 votes for this Charity, nor had the members confined its benevolence to this alone, but stood high in the other, both local and general, Masonic Charities, and though the Lodge was not numerous, he believed the position it now had attained was unique, and the Lodge remembered it was only fulfilling the principles at the very foundation of Masonry. The evening was enjoyed by every brother, and was enlivened by songs from Bros. Smith, Thomas Whalley, William Booth, James Breen, &c.

STAR LODGE, No. 1275.

THE installation meeting was held at the Ship, Greenwich, on Friday, 6th inst. The chair was occupied by Bro. W. F. Crook W.M., who was supported by Bro. R. Pringle S.W. elect, J. Long, Major Williams Treasurer, Major C. W. Williams Secretary, &c. Lodge was opened in due form, after which the minutes of preceding meeting were read and confirmed, and the Auditors' report received and adopted. Bros. Moyes and Dorey were raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason. The ballot was taken for Messrs. Reid and Kipps, who being duly elected were initiated as E.A.'s by the Worshipful Master. Bro. Pringle S.W. was then presented by Bro. Kipps to the W.M., and duly installed in the chair of K.S., according to ancient custom, for the ensuing year. The Officers were then appointed and invested, and the Installing Master delivered the usual addresses. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the Installing Master, and ordered to be recorded on the minutes. The Lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to a banquet. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were subsequently duly honoured. The health of the Worshipful Master was proposed by Bro. W. F. Crook. Bro. Pringle had, he said, advanced step by step through the various offices until he reached his present high position. He asked the brethren to cordially join him in drinking the health of their Master, wishing him prosperity throughout his year of office. Bro. Pringle, in replying, said he could assure them that during his year of office he should do everything in his power to promote the welfare of the Lodge, and he should leave no stone unturned to carry out the work properly. All he desired was the support of the brethren, which he was sure he should have. The I.P.M. was then complimented by the W.M., who said that Bro. W. F. Crook had to be congratulated upon a successful year of office. Whatever he had done he had done well, and there was no doubt he would use the same endeavours in the future to benefit the Lodge as he had in the past. The members had signified their appreciation of his services by voting him a jewel, which he had placed upon the breast of Bro. Crook with much pleasure. He had thoroughly deserved that mark of their favour, and the brethren would heartily drink his health and wish him success in the future. Bro. W. F. Crook briefly returned thanks for the manner in which the toast had been received, and also for the beautiful jewel, which he should wear, he hoped, for many years to come. The health of the Initiates, the Visitors, Past Masters, Officers, &c., were given and duly responded to. The Tyler's toast brought this pleasant evening to a close. During the evening songs were sung by Bros. Briggs, Blanchard, Williamson, &c., Bro. Kipps, R.A.M., organist, presiding at the pianoforte.

CATOR LODGE, No. 2266.

THE second installation meeting of the above Lodge took place at the Railway Hotel, Beckenham, on Wednesday, the 18th inst., when there was a large attendance of the brethren. Amongst those present at the installation ceremony, or at the banquet, were the following :—Bros. James Hill W.M., J. E. Fox S.W., R. C. Davis J.W., Edward Carpenter Treasurer, G. B. Carlton Secretary, C. W. Gribble S.D., J. C. Osterstock J.D., S. V. Duren Anley D.C., J. W. Newell Steward, W. Lovelock Steward, L. G. Reinhardt Tyler. Visitors :—Bros. L. A. Pearce, E. E. Miderston, E. Van Putten, A. Thompson, W. Cooper, R. Voisey, G. Powell, J. L. Lewis, G. Church, M. J. Dickens, D. Grinsted, J. H. Francis, H. J. Lansbury, H. Cooper Willis, H. Kebble, G. Wining Organist 1963, A. E. Scorer, R. Elgar Secretary 1329, G. T. Rait Secretary 2017, W. Briant, T. Reed, T. L. Nye, &c. The Lodge having been opened with the usual ceremonial the Worshipful Master elect, Bro. J. E. Fox, was duly installed by the W.M., Bro. James Hill P.G.S.B, the first W.M. of the Cator Lodge, the ceremony being performed in a very impressive manner. Bro. Fox then proceeded to invest the following Officers :—Bros. R. C. Davis S.W, C. W. Gribble J.W., Dr. Carpenter Treasurer, G. B. Carlton Secretary, J. C. Osterocck S.D., R. C. Scrivner J.D., L. V. D. Anley I.G., J. W. Newell S., R. C. Kline A.S., W. J. Hewett D.C., Wm. Lovelock A.D.C. In the course of the ceremony jewels were presented to Bro. Dr. Carpenter and Bro. G. B. Carlton for the valuable service rendered in their respective offices during the past year. The banquet was well served in the large room of the Railway Hotel, and reflects great credit on the host, Bro. Cakebread. After the cloth had been removed the W.M. proposed the usual Loyal toasts. In proposing that of the Queen and the Craft, he warmly eulogised the virtues of Her Majesty, and said the Craft was spread over the entire surface of the globe, and if they acted up to its principles it would extend still more. As its principles and practice extended, the world at large would see that to be a Freemason was to be a better man, a better citizen, a better father, and a better son. If they saw anything wrong in Freemasonry it was no fault of the Craft, but of the individual members themselves. He was quite sure that he spoke their sentiments when he said that to be a good Freemason was to be a good man. The toast was received with honours, and the National Anthem was sung. Next came the toast of the Most Worshipful the Pro Grand Master and the Grand Officers Past and Present, followed by God bless the Prince of Wales. Bro. Hill I.P.M. responded on behalf of the Grand Lodge, giving an account of how he had risen in the Craft, and how he had become Provincial Grand Standard Bearer—a small office which he was thankful to receive and hold until he got a better one bye and bye. If those present wanted to rise in the Craft, they must put their shoulder to the wheel. They must do something extraordinary, when they would sure to be noticed and rewarded; but if they jogged slowly along in a quiet pleasant sort of way they would end pretty much as they began. Bro. Grinsted responded on behalf of Provincial Grand Lodge of Kent, tendering his heartfelt thanks for having his name coupled with the toast. He alluded in a facetious way to the hard work of the Provincial Grand Officers, remarking that since he had been in office he had gone to three dinners, attempted to make one speech, and now he was attempting to make another. However, whatever duties he had to perform, he would perform them to the best of his ability. Bro. Hill proposed the health of the W.M., which he characterised as the principal toast of the evening. The brethren had seen a little of their Worshipful

CHOUGH LODGE, No. 2264.

THE annual installation meeting of this young but successful Lodge took place on Thursday evening, at the Cannon-street Hotel, when a large number of brethren assembled to witness the interesting ceremony. Bro. G. T. Edwards W.M. presided, and was supported by Bros. W. B. Marcus S.W., J. J. Judge J.W., Saxelby Treasurer, J. A. Dewsnap Secretary, C. Mussared S.D., W. H. Tomsett J.D., W. J. Noad D.C., E. Piggott I.G., Turle Lee Organist, and Bros. Dr. Lennox Browne P.G.S.W., Rev. W. H. Casely P.P.G.C., Dr. Cook P.G.S., W. J. Crump P.G.S., and Past Masters Walter Martin, J. M. Smith, A. Watson, A. H. Jakins, W. H. Hook, Dr. Richardson, W. Heagerty P.G.S., F. Bevan, C. Sturgeon, W. Price, also the following brethren:—W. C. Smith, W. F. Jules, G. Scott Miller, A. Haynes, J. W. Breeze, T. W. Noad, John Almond, Charles Curtis, E. S. Miller, A. Strugnell, Branley, F. Williams, E. Banfield, W. J. Baker, H. J. Sturgeon, C. H. Cox, A. Thompson, &c. The minutes of the last meeting having been read, the installation ceremony was immediately proceeded with, the W.M., Bro. G. T. Edwards, acting as Installing Master, and Bro. Henry Massey as Director of the Ceremonies. Bro. John Almond P.P.G.D.C. temporarily acted as Senior Warden, and Bro. Walter Martin P.M. occupied the chair of Junior Warden. Bro. Walter B. Marcus having answered the usual questions and signified his adherence to the obligations of the Craft, was duly installed into the chair. The following Officers were then appointed and invested:—Bros. J. J. Judge S.W., Charles Mussared J.W., W. H. Tomsett S.D., E. Piggott J.D., W. J. Noad I.G., Turle Lee Organist, T. W. Noad and S. Scherer Stewards, E. T. Edwards, the first initiate of the Lodge, being appointed D.C. Bros. H. Saxelby and J. W. Dewsnap were invested as Treasurer and Secretary respectively. Bro. Coles was unanimously accepted as a joining member. The Lodge having been duly closed, the brethren adjourned to the banquet, which was served in the large room of the hotel. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts having been duly honoured, the Immediate Past Master, Bro. Edwards, rose, and in felicitous terms proposed the health of the Worshipful Master, and called attention to the installation ceremony of twelve months ago, when he, the speaker, was elected the first Master. He trusted that he had upheld the high standard of Masonic work, whereby great results may be obtained. The office had now passed into worthier hands. He was quite sure the interests of the Lodge were perfectly safe. He now gave way to a worthy Mason and esteemed Brother, and he heartily wished him health, wealth, and prosperity during his year of office. The W.M., in reply, said that if he could only follow in the footsteps of his predecessor, and do as well as he had done during the past year, he would do very well indeed. He had the honour of being one of the founders, and might well be supposed to have the interests of the Lodge at heart, and it would not be his fault if he did not add somewhat to its popularity, and he thanked the brethren most heartily for the kind manner in which they had received the toast. Bro. Marcus then gave the Installing Master, and said that it was necessary that the Officer who performed this duty should be a worthy Mason, and after the manner in which Bro. Edwards had worked the ceremony no one could doubt but that he had been most successful. He had much pleasure in investing Bro. Edwards with the first Past Master's jewel of the Lodge, which on account of the valuable services rendered was of exceptional value, and he trusted the Chough Lodge would soon make its way in the Craft. Bro. Edwards modestly responded, and attributed his success to the great assistance he had received from the whole of the brethren. The thought of his year of office would linger long in his memory, bright as the jewel with which he had been adorned. The W.M. then proposed the Visitors, who would be always welcome guests to the Chough Lodge, and their best talent would always be forthcoming for their delectation. Bros. Dr. Richardson, Dr. Cook, and W. Martin responded. The Past Master's of the Lodge were then honoured, to which Bro. Saxelby, the acting I.P.M., and Bro. Edwards replied. The next toast was the Treasurer and Secretary, both of whom acknowledged the compliment. Bro. Dewsnap stating the great pleasure it was for him to lend assistance; it was a labour of love, and he was deeply gratified to find that his work had given satisfaction. The Officers of the Lodge and the Tyler's toast brought a most enjoyable evening to a close. The musical entertainment, for which the Chough Lodge is so celebrated, was undertaken by Bros. A. Thompson, Albert James, A. Strugnell, F. Bevan, H. Lester-Brown, and Turle Lee, who very ably presided at the piano.

FUNERALS properly carried out and personally attended in London and Country, by Bro. G. A. HUTTON, 17 Newcastle Street, Strand, W.C. Monuments erected, Valuations made.

THE SECRETARYSHIP OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—As an admirer of Bro. Binckes, and one who desires to show appreciation of the valuable services rendered by that Brother in the cause of Masonic Benevolence, I am delighted to hear that a meeting of his friends is proposed, in order to arrange that the course of events shall be watched on his behalf. I have long felt it to be very unfair that Bro. Binckes should be left single handed to cope with the numerous committees and organizations springing up all over the country for the one object of attacking him, or at least attacking the principles of which he has long been the responsible head. It appears to me, Bro. Binckes is expected to discharge the duties of his office as efficiently as he has hitherto done, to show the same amount of interest in the affairs of the Institution of which he is Secretary as in years gone by, and all in face of severe opposition, personal insults, and a lack of sympathy which is far from creditable on the part of the Masonic Order.

It is not for me, perhaps, to cast the first stone, but I think that a protest should be offered, even if something stronger is not attempted, to put an end, for the present, to the canvass which is going on on behalf of one or other of the brethren who have decided to offer themselves as candidates for the office now held by Bro. Binckes. I consider it most unbecoming, even indecent, to canvass for an appointment still held by a Mason who, although, perhaps, misunderstood by a few, has won, and still retains, the esteem and regard of the English Craft; and I would suggest that the Committee of the Institution, who, it must be remembered, are availing themselves of Bro. Binckes's services and experience, should spare him the annoyance he must feel in hearing of the "vultures" eager for his post, by announcing that any one canvassing for the appointment before the office is declared vacant shall be ineligible to compete for it. This would not be an illegal proceeding, for in many Charities canvass at any time is a disqualification, and surely this little consideration for the feelings of an old and tried servant is not much to ask. Besides this, there are the interests of the Institution to be considered, and is it reasonable to expect that its present Secretary can properly discharge his duties, in face of the annoyance and worry these premature attacks must occasion him? Is it fair to ask a man to make his own coffin, or dig his own grave, when he is yet in the enjoyment of health, strength and energy? and yet this is what the Craft is forcing upon Bro. Binckes. He is retained in his position as Secretary, expected to put every thing in order and make all easy and comfortable for a successor; and it must indeed gall him to hear on every side the claims or the qualifications of this or that candidate for his office. Surely there is enough of decency and love of fairness left in the ranks of the Craft to check the unnecessary, ill-advised, and ill-timed proceedings of these reformers (?)

I am afraid I am digressing from my original intention in writing to you, but while I was thinking what I should say in this letter I read what may be described as the "electioneering address" of one of these candidates, and I felt considerably annoyed at the bad taste such an early publication displayed. But to return, I am informed a preliminary meeting is proposed to be held at the Holborn Restaurant next Thursday, to settle what steps are necessary to be taken by the friends of Bro. Binckes to "watch the case on his behalf." The action of these "friends" need not, nor is it at all likely, to in any way affect the interests of the Institution; on the contrary, it is likely to strengthen it, by putting a check on some of the unseemly riot now indulged in. At the present time the wildest statements may be put forth as truth, and they usually go unanswered, simply because there is no organisation to reply on behalf of the brother principally interested. This, I imagine will be one of the questions to be considered, but beyond it there is another field open for labour—I consider that some steps should be taken to meet the legal and regular resolutions passed in various quarters, in regard to the retiring allowance to be given to Bro. Binckes, if his removal is decided upon. For instance, at a numerously attended meeting of the Charity Committee of the Province of West Lancashire, recently held, it was unanimously agreed, so says the Liverpool Mercury, "that a sum not exceeding £200 should be suggested to the brethren at the approaching P.G. Lodge meeting, as the retiring allowance of Bro. Binckes, the Secretary of the Boys' Institution."

I do not know on what basis these West Lancashire brethren fix £200 as an adequate pension, but I think that such valuable services as have been rendered by Bro. Binckes should be fairly and properly recognised, and, personally, I do not consider the sum here decided upon is enough. Perhaps a committee of Bro. Binckes's friends might be able to correspond with the West Lancashire representatives, as well as other Provinces where the matter has been officially noticed, and arrange an amicable and unanimous understanding, which would be far better than a severe and stormy discussion when the matter comes forward for actual settlement. It must not be forgotten that Bro. Binckes has many supporters, and if he is not treated properly they will resent it, just as some of the opposition threaten to do if his services are, in their estimation, over valued. In either case, if disagreement is carried to extremes, the Institution will suffer; but if an amicable settlement, in which both sides concede something, is arrived at, all may be well, and the future prosperity of the Charity assured.

I am, Sir, yours fraternally,

LUX

We have been asked to insert the following circular notice:—

THE OLD MASONIANS

AN ASSOCIATION OF EX-PUPILS OF THE

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

DEAR SIR,—I have the pleasure to enclose you our Third Annual Report and Financial Statement, and at the same time desire to draw your attention more particularly to the objects we have in view.

The Committee cannot but feel that were these objects more fully known among the general body of Freemasons, assistance in furthering the main purpose of the Association would not be wanting, and they would therefore solicit your kindness in submitting these matters to the members of your Lodge.

It is the aim of the Association to extend the works of those whose energies have hitherto been devoted to the efficient maintenance of the School. The education provided being of a sound and practical character, we are naturally solicitous of seeing that education rightly directed and applied.

As there are several lads who, from time to time, leave the Institution without friends to counsel and aid them, we, as an Association, are desirous of assisting in placing them in good and permanent situations, for which by their education they are eminently fitted, and in furtherance of this object, the Committee feel that they cannot do better than to apply to their first friends, and ask them to remember the lads they have assisted to educate, should any opportunity occur, or any vacancy in their respective businesses arise.

I have confidence that this appeal will not be made in vain, and I shall be pleased to correspond with any gentleman on the matter.

On Saturday, 2nd November, a dramatic performance will be given by the members, at St. George's Hall, Regent Street, W., the proceeds of which are to be devoted to the formation of a "Benevolent and Grant Fund." The object of this Fund will be (firstly) to assist any Old Boy, who, through no fault of his own, may be in temporary distress; (secondly) to make grants, returnable or otherwise as the Council may determine, to members situated in such circumstances as it is felt would warrant such a course and be deemed advisable and (thirdly) it is hoped in time to realize such an amount as will enable the Association to set apart a sum for an annual Scholarship to a pupil of the R.M.I.B., which sum could be used either as a means of further education or for purposes of apprenticeship.

Several members of the Craft have expressed a desire to be more closely connected with the Association, and as the office of Vice-President is open to all Freemasons on payment of a donation of £3 3*s*, and any Freemason may be elected as Hon. Associate on payment of an annual subscription of 10*s* 6*d*, it is hoped that many of our well-wishers will show by practical sympathy their interest in the affairs of the Association.

Trusting we shall receive the support of your Lodge, and feeling sure that our aims will be considered worthy of your encouragement,

I am, dear Sir,

Your obedient servant,

ALFRED WATKINS, Hon. Sec.

21 Belgrave Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.
September 1889.

GLEANINGS.

—:o:—

Ambition, restrained within due limits, may seem to be a wholesome property of life. A desire to excel, to be foremost in the race for earthly honours and rewards, may stimulate exertion and lead to large enterprises. Ambition is a passion, however, which is very likely to break away from control and get the mastery. It is very apt to unite the elements of envy, pride, vanity, covetousness, and other base qualities, so developing a character by no means worthy of commendation, and leading to results that are most repulsive. Well has it been said:—"The nature of ambition is to make men liars and cheats, and hide the truth in their breasts, and show, like jugglers, another thing in their mouths; to cut all friendships and enmities to the measure of their interest, and to make a good countenance without the help of a good will or an honest heart." When this sort of ambition is let loose in the community, and when men thus influenced become prominent in the affairs of any organization, only the worst results can ensue. The root principle of an unhallowed ambition is selfishness.

There is a growing feeling in Toronto that it is about time to call a halt in decorating the walls of the Toronto-street hall with portraits, life-size, of Past Grand Masters. In this democratic country, and in such a democratic Institution as Freemasonry should be, men are often the idols of a passing hour, and then drop into obscurity. There are, however, men of such noble qualities that their names will long be revered, but such men would prefer being remembered for their sterling qualities than by being portrayed on canvas. The portraits may be historical in a way, but when the honest Masonic historian of the future does his duty more than one of the illuminated scraps of history will be objects of contempt.

The length of a Mason's cable-tow is measured by his own standard, and he alone is responsible for that test of judgment.

Royal Masonic Institution for Boys,

ELECTION, 25TH OCTOBER 1889.

The votes of subscribers are earnestly solicited for

HAROLD STREETER GOLDSMITH,

AGED 7 YEARS,

YOUNGEST SON OF THE LATE BRO. W. O. GOLDSMITH

Bro. GOLDSMITH was initiated in the Chiselhurst Lodge, No. 1531, shortly after its consecration in 1875, and remained a subscribing member till 1881, when he joined the Gallery Lodge, No. 1928. In this latter Lodge he served all the offices up to that of W.M. It was while holding this office, and three days after the election of his successor, that he died, on the 15th November 1887. He was a Life Governor of the Boys' School, and a Subscriber to all the Masonic Charities, and was, at all times, a hard worker in Masonry. He was for many years, and at the time of his death, a member of the Reporting Staff of the Press Association, and in that capacity was well know to all Journalists in the United Kingdom. The under-mentioned Brethren strongly recommend the case of his son, the above-named candidate:—

THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE

SATURDAY, 21st SEPTEMBER 1889.

PROV. GRAND LODGE OF WEST LANCASHIRE.

THE annual meeting of this Province was held on the 18th inst., in the Drill Hall, Barrow-in-Furness, under the presidency of the Earl of Lathom, Provincial Grand Master. The meeting, which was held under the banner of Hartington Lodge, No. 1021, was largely attended by brethren, all the Lodges in the Province being represented, with the exception of Harmonic Lodge, No. 216, Liverpool. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and confirmed, the accounts of the Provincial G. Grand Treasurer were presented. Bro. J. H. Tyson P.M. 1182 objected to the confirmation of these minutes, on the ground that the fund of the Lodge of Benevolence had not been applied according to the bye-laws. He stated that half of the printing charges, and half of the Grand Secretary's salary, amounting to £125, had been appropriated from the Benevolent fund, whereas he argued, these payments ought to have come out of the Provincial Lodge Fund. He objected to the passing of the minutes, because latter on he had a resolution to the same effect to submit, and he could not, therefore, allow the Treasurer's report to pass without entering his protest. It was agreed, however, after some conversation, that the account be passed, and that Bro. Tyson's motion be heard latter on. The Provincial Grand Secretary (Bro. Goodacre) submitted his report, and said that a great increase had taken place in the number of new candidates, and six new Lodges had been added to the roll of the Province. The actually initiated numbered 619, as against 556 during the past year, and warrants had been granted for three new Lodges, these being at Horwich, Southport, and Wigan. The appointment and investiture of Provincial Grand Officers was then proceeded with, the following being the list :—

Bro. the Right Hon. Earl of Crawford		Deputy Master
Edward Cookson	...	Senior Warden
W. B. Richardson	...	Junior Warden
Rev. J. Kirby Turner	...	Chaplain
J. R. Johns P.M. 113	...	Treasurer
T. Clarke	...	Registrar
W. Goodacre	...	Secretary
T. Adams 613	...	Senior Deacon
Richard Walker	...	Junior Deacon
Geo. S. Willings	...	Junior Deacon
J. Brindle	...	Superintendent of Works
Edwards George	...	D. of C.
J. N. Patterson	...	Deputy D. of C.
John Robinson	...	A.D. of C.
Joseph Queen	...	Sword Bearer

On the motion of Bro. Wylie a vote of condolence was passed to the relatives of the late Prov. G. Senior Warden, Bro. Shuttleworth. Charity jewels were presented to Bros. A. Smiley, A. Henochsberg, E. Segar, J. de Bell-Adams, S. Sock, T. Banner-Newton, T. Whitehead, and J. Brindle. On the motion of Bro. Wylie it was agreed that the sum of 25 guineas be voted from the Charity Fund to the West Lancashire Orphan Benevolent Institution, also the sum of 25 guineas to the West Lancashire Hamer Benevolent Fund. On the motion of Bro. Broadbridge it was agreed that the sum of 50 guineas be voted from the Charity Fund to the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institute. Bro. J. H. Tyson P.M. 1182 moved: "That the following clause be added to bye-law 7—'A printed copy of the audited accounts shall be sent to the W.M. of each Lodge seven days at least before each annual meeting, in addition to the general distribution of the accounts at the Provincial Grand Lodge;' that the accounts of the Provincial Grand Lodge having for a number of years been made up in a manner not in accordance with bye-laws, by reason of various sums being wrongly charged to the funds of benevolence, the accounts in future to be kept in accordance with the bye-laws, so as to show the true position of each fund; and that a committee be appointed to take into consideration forthwith the financial position, and to report as to what may be necessary in order to reduce the expenditure, and to keep the expenditure of the Provincial Grand Lodge within the limits of its income." It was ruled that this notice of motion could not be heard at the present meeting, and accordingly it was deferred till the next meeting of the Province. It was stated that the legacy left by the late Bro. Crossfield of 2000 guineas had been appropriated, 1100 guineas being given to the West Lancashire Charities, and the other to the Cosmopolitan Charities belonging to the Order.

PROV. GRAND LODGE OF DURHAM.

THE annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Durham was held on the 24th instant, at the Victoria Hall, Sunderland. There was a large attendance of brethren. The Fund Committee of the Charities Committee met prior to the Lodge meeting to transact the usual business at the Masonic Hall, Sunderland. The Provincial Grand Master, Sir H. Williamson, Bart., presided over the Provincial Grand Lodge, and was supported by Bro. Victor Williamson, acting in the unavoidable absence of Bro. the Rev. Canon Tristram, as Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Thomas Bradley P.P.G.S.W. acting as P.G.S.W., Alderman J. Potts P.G.J.W., Rev. James Haworth P.G. Chaplain, John Stonehouse P.G. Treasurer, W. M. Pybus P.G.R., R. Hudson P.G. Secretary, D. P. Huntley P.G.S.D., W. Mayson P.G.J.D., R. Singleton P.G.J.D., W. Logan P.G.D.C., J. Heppell P.G.D. D. of C., S. Chadwick P.G.S.B., J. G. Greener and G. Rutherford P.G. Standard Bearers, Jos. Lax P.G.O., J. Robson Pattison P.G.A.S., John Reed P.G.P., T. Hartig P.G.P., Thomas Potter P.G. Tyler. The Lodge having been opened in due form, the following brethren from the Provincial Grand Lodge of Northumberland were received as visitors:—Bros. R. H. Holmes D.P.G.M., Addison Potter, C.B., P.G. Superintendent, Rev. T. B. Nicholls P.P.G.S.W., Faraday Spence P.G.S.W., John Strachan P.P.G.R., H. S. Bird P.P.G.R., T. Gillespie P.P.G.R., J. Straker Wilson P.G.S.W., G. F. Charlton P.P.G.J., W. A. Hepburn P.G.S.D., W. Mores Lyon P.P.G.S.D., R. H. Dickinson P.P.G.S. of Works, J. W. Lambton P.P. Standard Bearer, J. Carmichael P.P.G. Standard Bearer, Richard Seaton P.G.O., G. Elphick and T. Waters P.P.G. Stewards. Bro. J. Stonehouse Provincial Grand Treasurer presented the financial statement, showing a balance in hand of £251. The report was adopted. Bro. Victor Williamson P.G.W. read the report of the Fund Committee, which made several recommendations respecting grants in response to applications for relief. These in the aggregate amounted to £75; in addition to which it was proposed that the sum of £25 be given to the Durham Education Fund, besides the fees of honour; that the sum of 25 guineas be given to Royal Masonic Institution for Boys; that 50 guineas be given to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls; and that £62 13s 7d be donated to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. Brother R. Luck moved that the last named sum be 50 guineas. Brother Babington Boulton seconded the motion, which was agreed to. Bro. G. Bradley P.P.G.S.W., Secretary of the Durham Masonic Education Committee, read the report of the Charities Committee of the Province. It showed that the cost of the Boys' School of the Order, of the Girls' School, and of the Men's Benevolent Institution was £553 6s 4d per annum. Seventeen children were now being educated and provided for out of the Durham Education Fund. The invested capital of the Fund was £971 16s 7d. Subscriptions during the year amounted to £95 7s 2d, and donations to £140 1s 7d. The balance in hand on the 30th June was £160 12s 6d. Bro. C. S. Lane P.P.G.J.D., Chairman of the Charities Committee, moved the adoption of the Report, and had pleasure in announcing that the Durham Masonic Education Fund would have, with the grant of the Provincial Grand Lodge that day, a capital fund of £1000. Bro. D. P. Huntley P.G.S.D. seconded the motion, which was unanimously agreed to. The roll of Lodges was then called, when the Worshipful Masters of the respective Lodges responded. The Provincial Grand Master said, after hearing the very satisfactory record of the Lodges of the Province, it became his duty to offer a few observations to them with respect to the Province of Durham during the past year. But before doing so, he was sure he would be expressing the opinion of all brethren of the Durham Prov. G. Lodge when he called attention, with the utmost satisfaction, to the presence on that occasion of the Deputy Grand Master of the Provincial Lodge of Northumberland and Officers of the Northumberland Provincial Grand Lodge. He had received a letter from their old friend, Sir Matthew White Ridley, who was unable to be present with them. He had to thank once more Bro. Holmes very warmly for the kind way in which he had visited them that day. He was glad to find that Brother had been paying due attention to what had taken place in the Lodge, especially to the satisfactory report of the Charities Committee, for he heard him express his opinion on the very good report which had been presented. It would be a satisfaction to the brethren of the Province of Durham that their report had met with the approval of so expert a Mason as Brother Holmes. He thought that was not the first or only time that Bro. Holmes had visited one of their Lodges, because he believed in November last he visited St. Hilda's Lodge, and he was quite certain if they had the opportunity they would reciprocate the kindness of their Northumberland brethren. He felt sure that nothing was so encouraging as these visitations to various Lodges, and it was particularly desirable to meet together in that way in the Provincial Grand Lodge. He then proceeded to allude with very deep regret to the losses they had suffered both in the Province and in the Craft during the past year. He specially alluded to the lamented death of Bro. J. J. Clay, who for some time had acted as Provincial Grand Director of Ceremonies of Durham, and who was present at their last annual meeting. He was quite sure everybody would miss Bro. Clay. He also regretted the death of Bro. Lazenby, of Stockton, Provincial Grand Superintendent of Works. Another hard-working Mason at Stockton, Bro. Knowles P.G.D., who was appointed many years ago by Bro. Fawcett, who never appointed a man unless he was perfectly worthy, had also passed away. Masonry in general had also suffered a severe loss in the death of Bro. Æneas MacIntyre, Queen's Counsel, who rendered valuable services to the Grand Master for some time as Grand Registrar of England. He begged to pay that simple tribute to his memory. He referred to the fact that during his absence the Province had been under the direction of their most esteemed Deputy Provincial Grand Master (Canon Tristram), who attended Monkwearmouth at the foundation stone laying of their Hall there. On that day Canon Tristram caught a very severe cold, and was obliged to go abroad. During his absence, his excellent and good friend the Provincial Grand Secretary, Bro. R. Hudson, was left in charge, and under his able guidance everything had been going on well. When he (Sir Hedworth) came back to England in due course, one of the first things he did was to go and attend the ceremony of installing his brethren of the Williamson Lodge in their new habitation—a convenient and excellent Lodge room. There had been no new Lodges formed, but two Lodges had got in their own premises during the year, the Williamson Lodge at Monkwearmouth, and the Crook Lodge. He also found that they were keeping up their numbers in spite of deaths and resignations. Their numbers were in 1886, 2,127; in 1887, 2,188; and in 1888, 2,181. He congratulated his Province on having had, though not a very eventful year, yet a year of steady prosperity. If they only continued such years as that, he would be able to congratulate the Grand Lodge on having to rule over a contented, happy, and prosperous Province. Bro. R. W. Halfnight, was elected Provincial Grand Treasurer. Bro. J. Sedcole P.M. 1119, W. A. Priestly W.M. 2059 were elected auditors for the ensuing year. The Provincial Grand Master then proceeded to invest the following Officers for the ensuing year :—

Bro. Canon Tristram 124	Deputy Master
J. G. Wilson 375	Senior Warden
J. M. While 1379	Junior Warden
Rev. Harry Becher 2039	Chaplains
Rev. H. Jennings 1230	Chaplains
R. W. Halfnight 949	Treasurer
G. W. Bain 949	Registrar
R. Hudson 2039	Secretary

A. M. White 1862	Stewards

The Provincial Grand Lodge was then closed in due form, after which a large number of the brethren proceeded to the Palatine Hotel, where they partook of dinner.

Devon Freemasons will hold this year's Provincial Grand Lodge at Seaton, on 6th November. The annual report of the London representative for the Province, Rev. William Whittley P.G.D. of England and P.P.G.S.W. of Devon has been forwarded to the members of the Committee of Petitions. Two candidates from the Province have during the year been elected on the London Masonic Charities—Mrs. Godtschalk to the Institution for Widows, and Fanny Clarke Campbell to the Girls' School. The votes polled from the Province were 4105, those polled at the elections 4957—an excess of 852, which was received from other sources. The representative was, however, able to inform the brethren that the Province was quite free from debt. As a member of the Provincial Committee for the management of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, he also could assure the brethren that everything possible was being done to render that Institution worthy of their continued and increased support.

We regret to hear that complications have arisen in the state of Bro. Gerard Ford's health, and that he is still lying ill at Berne. His condition caused grave anxiety last week, but he is now out of danger, and will be removed so soon as is possible, for it is thought the air of Brighton will do more than anything else towards restoring him to health. All Bro. Gerard Ford's Masonic engagements must of course be foregone, and he was unable to attend the Provincial meeting of Mark Master Masons on the 27th instant, at which meeting he was to have been installed Provincial Grand Master.

It will interest Freemasons to hear that Dr. Kynaston has been appointed by the Bishop of Durham to succeed the late Canon Evans in the Greek Professorship at Durham University, to which a Canonry is attached. The new Canon will find a Deputy Provincial Grand Master in one of his brother Canons, Canon Tristram.

Bro. R. F. Gould P.G.D. has consented to deliver a lecture "On the Antiquity of Masonic Symbolism," before the Glasgow Royal Arch Chapter, No. 50, at St. Mark's Masonic Hall, on Monday evening, the 30th September, at 8 p.m. At the conclusion of the lecture, a collection will be made on behalf of the Benevolent Fund of the Supreme Chapter of Scotland.

TO THE DEAF.—A Person cured of Deafness and noises in the head of 25 years' standing by a simple remedy, will send a description of it Free to any Person who applies to Nicholson, 21 Bedford-square, W.C.

Drury Lane.—That romantic period of English History which is embraced by the middle of the seventeenth century has frequently been presented both on the dramatic and operatic stage, and it is seldom that the adventures of King Charles the Second fail to enlist the sympathies of an audience. This knowledge has probably induced Messrs. Henry Hamilton and Augustus Harris to select the subject for their autumn attraction at the National Theatre, and in "The Royal Oak" the authors have presented a series of stirring scenes, illustrating the hair breadth escapes of the unfortunate Prince following Cromwell's "crowning mercy" at Worcester. It cannot be said that Charles is represented as a very gracious or dignified personage, though it hardly matters as the character is subservient to the charming love story of Mildred Clavering and Dorian Cholmondeley. The disturbing element eminates from Colonel Anckstell, a Puritan officer, also in love with Mildred, who uses his power in order to force her to marry him, but of course in the end the lovers are united, though not until Mildred rescues Dorian from the shadow of the block. A strong company has been brought together for its representation, chief of whom is Miss Winifred Emery, who brings all the resources of her talent to pourtray the unfortunate heroine. Mr. Arthur Dacre makes a picturesque cavalier and quickly enlisted the sympathies of the audience on his behalf. It was not Mr. Henry Neville's fault that he failed in this respect, though he rendered the "merry monarch" as rollicking as possible, and obtained an excellent reception. Mr. Harry Nicholls affords considerable amusement as Walk-in-the-Way-Dear love—a Roundhead, whose conversion to Royalism is due to the vivacious Patty Woodroffe, capitally played by Miss Fanny Brough. These two throw a pleasant contrast on their gloomy surroundings, and meet with corresponding appreciation. Mr. Luigi Lablache gives an admirable sketch as the passionate Puritan, and Miss Ada Neilson represents the aristocratic Lady Cholmondeley with much dignity. The play will doubtless be greatly compressed and some of the scenes eliminated—on the first representation it was too long. No praise could be too great as regards the stage management, which reflects the highest credit on Mr. Harris—the exterior and interior of the old hall, the grand scene of Boscobel Wood, with its "royal oak," its horsemen and soldiers passing through the leafy glades, and the final tableau of the execution on Tower Hill are most artistic pictures. The theatre itself, newly redecorated, presents a brilliant appearance, and the lobbies and refreshment rooms are now enriched by some finely executed frescoes by Mr. J. M. Boekbinder. The entrance hall has been converted into a magnificent crush room with stained glass doors, and in a short time the whole theatre will be lighted by electricity.

Comedy.—The good old farce of "The Area Belle" has been set to music by Mr. Edward Solomon, and re-christened "Penelope," after the heroine, and on Tuesday evening the little operetta was favourably welcomed by a critical audience. The lyrics by Mr. Geo. P. Hawtrey admirably narrate the story in humorous verse, while the music itself is brimful of fun, and causes unbounded merriment. The faint suggestion of well-known songs with which some of the morceaux commence is exceedingly droll, and proves the composer an apt pupil of Sir Arthur Sullivan's school. The songs contain some sweetly pretty airs, and the orchestration is altogether of an high order. Mr. W. S. Penley is irresistibly funny as the Policeman Pitcher, and is ably assisted by Mr. W. Sugg as the military Tosser. Miss Alma Stanley develops considerable humour as Penelope, and the smaller parts of Mrs. Croker, "the Misses," and Chalks the milkman were agreeably rendered by Miss Zerbini and Mr. R. Stockton. Mr. Edward Solomon, who conducted, was called before the curtain at the termination, and was assured of the success of his composition. The trifle is likely to have a long run and will prove a capital addition to the lively farce "Æsop's Fables."

Monday, the 7th October, has been appointed for the reception of Works of Art intended for the Autumn Exhibition (the Nineteenth), of the 19th Century Art Society, at the Conduit Street Galleries.

In Bengal there is a Masonic Educational Association doing good service. Since it was started 61 children have been, or are being, educated, and its progress is reported to be satisfactory and steady, the contributions in aid being most liberal, and amounting for the half-year, up to the end of December last, to 3920 rupees. The invested funds amount to 65,000 rupees, the interest annually derivable thereon being some 2700 rupees, and the expenses of management are extremely moderate.

It appears from an extract from a private letter from a prominent Mason at Johnstown, which appears in the Masonic Chronicle of Columbus, Ohio, for July, that the Masonic Hall at Johnstown withstood the floods which destroyed that city, and was the means of saving about 150 people of all classes, and religions, &c. Among the incidents which occurred is one, which, even under the terrible circumstances of the moment, must have been somewhat ludicrous. One Denny Mitchell, a Roman Catholic and a tough citizen, floated into the hall, clad only in the wristband of his shirt, nearly every one else being in apparently the same plight. He and the others obtained from the chests and wardrobes in the hall whatever they could find in the way of garments, and on the Sunday following the catastrophe, when these people were rescued, Denny Mitchell turned out in the High Priest's robe, remarking, as he went out, that he was the "only Mick initiated into the Masonic Lodge during the flood." It is added that the various Lodges in Johnstown have held no meetings since the flood, but that they have not lost heart, and will recommence shortly.—Leeds Times.

PROV. G. LODGE OF NORTH WALES.

THE Provincial Grand Lodge of North Wales was held at Carnarvon Castle, on the 25th instant, when Colonel Hunter Provincial Grand Master presided, supported by his Deputy, Brother Colonel Gordon Warren. There was a good attendance of brethren from the northern part of the Principality. The Elphin Mark Lodge was opened at half-past two, when Bro. Hardman, the College, Carnarvon, was installed W.M. for the ensuing year. The Provincial Grand Master and his Provincial Grand Officers were received at four o'clock. Colonel Hunter, after going through the matter of business of Provincial Grand Lodge, alluded in feeling terms to the great loss the Province had sustained in the death of their much valued friend and brother, Dr. T. C. Roden, M.D., who was formerly Deputy Provincial Grand Master, but who resigned on account of declining health. A vote of thanks was passed by the Provincial Grand Lodge to Bro. G. L. Woodley, Llandudno, Past Provincial Grand Secretary, for his unremitting attention to the duties of the office, which he has held for many years. The Officers for the Provincial Grand Lodge were appointed, as follow :—

Bro. Lieut.-Col. Gordon Warren	...	Deputy Master
H. Hardman	...	Senior Warden
D. Wynn Williams	...	Junior Warden
N. Bunnell	...	M.O.
R. H. Pritchard	...	S.O.

J. Williams	...	Organist
A. L. Clear	...	Standard Bearer
W. A. Nott	...	I.G.
W. Farren	...	Senior Steward
Allan Sumner	...	Junior Steward
Vincent ...	...	Tyler

The banquet was served at the Royal Hotel, the Provincial Grand Master, Colonel Hunter, presiding, Bro. Hardman W.M. St. Elphin being the Vice President. A splendid carte was provided by Bro. E. Humphreys.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

THE action by Lord Leigh and others, Trustees of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, against the Vestry of the Parish of St. Mary, Battersea, was again in the Vacation Court paper of Mr. Justice Denman on Wednesday, to which day it had been adjourned by the consent of the defendants from that day week. Mr. Wilkinson, who with Mr. Lionel Monckton appeared for the plaintiffs, informed his lordship that his friend, Mr. Chubb, who appeared for the defendants, asked that the motion might again stand for a week, the injunction being continued, and the defendants to give their affidavits to the plaintiffs on Monday if they could. Mr. Justice Denman acceded to the request, and the motion was posponed till next Wednesday.

EADE'S
GOUT & RHEUMATIC PILLS.

The SAFEST and most EFFECTUAL CURE for GOUT, RHEUMATISM, and all PAINS in the HEAD, FACE, and LIMBS.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL from the Rev. F. FARVIS, Baptist Minister.

Mr. G. EADE. March 19, 1887.

Dear Sir,—I have many times felt inclined to inform you of the benefit I have received by taking your Gout and Rheumatic Pills. After suffering for some time from Rheumatics and Sciatica, I was advised to use your Pills. I bought a bottle, and when in severe pain and unable to use the limb affected I took a dose. In a few hours after I felt the pain much better, and after the second dose the pain completely removed and the limb restored to its right use. I thank you, dear sir, for sending forth such a boon for the relief of human suffering.

Yours faithfully,
F. FARVIS,
Baptist Minister.

There are multitudes of people who look upon advertising as a sort of Lottery, and bestow infinitely more thought in the selection of a clerk at £100 a year than in the expenditure of £1000, or two in the same period in advertising. A tithe of the shrewdness displayed in all other branches of their business given to the management of their advertising will be amply repaid. The ADVERTISEMENT AGENT has become an indispensable factor in this matter of publicity, and his raison d'être is perfectly unassailable. Would you NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING leave or enter a port without a pilot? Would you commence and prosecute a law suit without a legal adviser? Either of these courses would not be more foolish than rushing into expenses in Advertising without a competent practical and professional adviser. I am at all times happy to render advertisers every assistance in my power, and to give them the benefit of the experience I have gained during the past twenty years as a London advertising agent. "PAINLESS AND PERFECT DENTISTRY."

A New Pamphlet, by Dr. GEO. H. JONES F.R.S.L., F.R.M.S., &c., Surgeon-Dentist, 57 Great Russell-street, facing British Museum entrance, London, contains a list of Diplomas, and Silver Medals and other Awards obtained at the Great International Exhibitions. Forwarded gratis and post free.

Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist's Testimonial.

My Dear Doctor,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

S. G. HUTCHINS,
By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

Geo. H. Jones, Esq., D.D.S.

Scientific Department.
Laboratory of Experimental Science.

This is to certify: That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

(Signed),
EDWARD V. GARDNER, F.H.S., M.S.A.,
Professor of Chemistry, and of Berners College, W.

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

Are universally admitted to be worth a Guinea a Box for Nervous and Bilious Disorders, such as wind and pain in the stomach, sick headache, giddiness, fullness and swelling after meals, dizziness and drowsiness, cold chills, flushings of heat, loss of appetite, shortness of breath, costiveness, scurvy, blotches on the skin, disturbed sleep, frightful dreams, and all nervous and trembling sensations, &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes. This is no fiction, for they have done it in thousands of cases. Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all humours, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no medicine to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

For a weak stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the liver they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse in action with the ROSEBUD of health the whole physical energy of the human frame. These are the "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of society, and one of the best guarantees to the nervous and debilitated, is that have the largest sale of any patent medicine in the world.

Prepared only, and sold Wholesale and Retail by the Proprietor, T. BEECHAM Chemist, St. Helen's, Lancashire, in Boxes, 1s 1½d and 2s 9d each. Sent post Free from the Proprietor, for 15 or 35 stamps. Sold by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Dealers in the United Kingdom.

LODGE HISTORIES.

—:o:—

THE LODGE OF PROBITY, No. 61.

CHAPTER V. of Bro. Crossley's History of this Lodge embraces the period from 1780 to 1801, and, as we said at the conclusion of our last notice, the Lodge started at that time with a balance in hand of £20, a state of affairs far different to what was experienced during the preceding period, which was one of the most troublesome in the career of the Lodge. About the year 1780 the number of members was but seven or eight, so that the balance mentioned above was no inconsiderable sum for so small a company. During the preceding two years more than the average number of candidates had been initiated into the Lodge, but these do not appear to have permanently made the "Probity" their home. Some of these initiates came from Keighley and Huddersfield, so that, considering the trouble of travelling in those days, it could hardly be expected they would become settled members. There is a record in 1780 (September) that the brethren visited both Huddersfield and Keighley, by invitation of the Craftsmen of those towns, and in reference to these visits Brother Crossley remarks they could not have been made to Lodges, as there is no record of any being established at the time in either place. Possibly, says the historian, there may have been unattached Lodges there, but we should rather think not, else why need the local candidates journey to Halifax to be initiated, as we have just recorded they did do. The initiation fee was now £2 2s, and 2s 6d for registration, this increase having been ordered by Grand Lodge. The first payment to Provincial Grand Lodge is noted towards the close of 1782, while in the following year the Lodge purchased two books, the one the "Use and Abuse of Masonry," the other "Preston's Illustrations," both of which, however, have been lost to the Lodge.

About 1790 the fees for visiting were for those attending on St. John's Day 5s each, subsequently altered to 7s 6d if they remained the day, but if attending at supper then only 2s 6d was the fee. From this it would seem that our ancient brethren of Halifax used to honour their St. John's Festival in royal style, evidently devoting the whole day to their ceremonies and rejoicings. At the celebration in 1792, twenty-three members signed the roll, while the Treasurer had a balance in hand of £15 odd. Several references of interest occur about this time, which appears to have been a prosperous one for the Lodge. Members were received from various towns in the neighbourhood where Lodges were subsequently established, and it is but fair to give credit to the "Probity" for having been the means of extending Freemasonry in its district. We must not omit to mention, too, the establishment of a second Lodge in Halifax (the Lodge of Harmony, 12th November 1789) as evidence of the Masonic spirit prevailing there. These two Lodges worked most amicably together, some of the brethren belonging to both, and all appearing to strive to make the work of Masonry progress satisfactorily.

In October 1793 a Lodge of Emergency was held, at which it was decided to expel a Brother Wilson, who, it seems, had been guilty of "breathing disaffection towards the Government" under which the country then "so happily lived." In January 1794 some brethren of "Probity," together with representatives of other Lodges in the neighbourhood, attended the funeral of the late Bro. Miles Rushworth, and the minutes contain full details as to the order of procession, ceremony, &c., the same being reproduced in the book before us. In 1795 a resolution was passed which has intimate association with matters lately referred to in these columns. It was to the following effect:—"That no landlord keeping the house at which the Lodge is kept be admitted a member." We suppose there must be some good and sufficient reason for this exclusiveness, which, as here shown, was practised in 1795, just as it is to-day. We, however, fail to see its necessity; in this particular case it appears to have resulted from a disagreement with the landlord of a house at which the Lodge met, and therefore we think its severity is self evident—all landlords are made to suffer because in one case a disagreement arose. Truly, the Craft has not changed much—it was just as arbitrary in the last century as it is now, when it suited the members to be so. How is it we have won the distinction of being wholly "Free" Masons? It certainly does not appear to be a right designation for a body which at all times has had the power—and has often exercised it—of making itself most "exclusive."

The next few entries refer to losses sustained by the Lodge, through the death of members, the Lodge being ordered into mourning, and Masonic funerals occurring from time to time. On such occasions it was ordered that the brethren appear "in black with clean white stockings and white gloves," while on another occasion the order was "white gloves, black stockings, and black buckles or shoe strings."

In 1797 the Lodge received an invitation from the Royal Brunswick Lodge, Sheffield, to attend a grand Masonic procession, on the occasion of the opening of the Sheffield Infirmary. Two members were appointed to attend, and the expenses (£2 0s 2d) were paid out of the Lodge funds. In the following year it is recorded that the Lodge "very liberally contributed towards the defence of the country in aid of the government," the sum of £64 2s being subscribed (in sums ranging from 2s 6d to £10), and regularly handed over. In January 1800 there were only three members and the Tyler present, so that the members can hardly be said to have started the new century with enthusiasm, unless perhaps their enthusiasm found vent outside the Lodge. Later on in the same year (April) we find the Master directing attention to the finances of the Lodge, there being a debit balance, which led to the abolition of "expenses" for a time, it being recorded on several occasions that "all present paid their own bill." This question of arrears was again reverted to in August, when it was agreed that "whenever the Treasurer is in advance, the Brothers pay their own expenses." The matter is not again referred to until January 1801, when it is recorded "the members present defrayed the expenses." The close of this year found the Lodge with a balance on the right side. In September 1800 Mr. Charles Whiteley was initiated, and he became a great acquisition to the Lodge. It is mentioned that it was through his advocacy that the idea of the division of the Province of Yorkshire was first promulgated. With the close of this period we are told another minute book of the Lodge is completed.

need. Of course, it is quite impossible to decide on this point, and all we can therefore hope is that she may receive as much support as the merits of her case deserve. Her father was initiated in the Marquis of Granby Lodge, No. 124, Durham, became a Past Master thereof and G.S.B. of the Province. He subscribed for 15¾ years and, we trust, made a sufficient number of friends to ensure the early admission of his daughter to the benefits of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls.

The remaining cases we shall leave, as usual, to speak for themselves. We are sure all are deserving of support, and our principal regret—as it is the regret of many others—is that they cannot all be admitted at once to the full enjoyment of the benefits they are seeking.

An alteration has been made in the arrangement of the ballot papers which does not strike us as being any improvement, rather the reverse. We have been accustomed to see the list of candidates in order according to the date of their being passed as eligible to compete. Then it was possible to at once judge how long a candidate had been before the subscribers; now the list is given in alphabetical order, and, except that it may be somewhat easier for reference, we cannot see any advantage in the change, as it appears to make the list very confusing. For instance, No. 1 on the list is a third application case, No. 2 a first, No. 3 a fourth, No. 36 a fourth, No. 37 a first, No. 38 a third, and so on throughout. Unless there is some manifest advantage in the the new arrangement which is not as yet apparent to us, it would be much better to revert to the old system, which at least has the merit of showing the candidates in regular sequence, no small consideration to those who make a point of studying the lists issued from time to time, as the elections ocme round.

A MISUNDERSTANDING EXPLAINED.

By Bro Jacob Norton.

WHILE pondering over the Ashmole question some time ago, that is, whether he was our brother Mason? the old adage came into my mind, "Tell me what company you keep, and I will know what you are;" hence, as Ashmole told us, that he was "the senior fellow" of a Masons' organisation which met at Masons' Hall, and as I knew that the Masons that met at the said Hall were not our kind of Masons, I concluded that Ashmole was not our brother Mason.

A short time after I came to the above conclusion, I happened to see an article in the Freemason, by Brother Hughan, headed "Ashmole as a Mason," and seeing therein the well known extracts from Ashmole's diary, I supposed that the article was a mere repetition of the oft-told Ashmole story, I therefore neglected to read it, but merely copied from it the said extracts, and made my comments on the question I had in view. To my surprise Bro. Hughan's reply was mainly confined to finding fault with my misquoting the said extracts, and to a stranger it must have appeared that I was charged with misquoting for the purpose of misleading the reader. I endeavoured to correct Bro. Hughan's mistake, but this did not conciliate him, so I submitted the whole question to an impartial friend, and begged him to discover in what way I have sinned against Bro. Hughan. In due time my friend said, "You have not read carefully Bro. Hughan's article, and consequently you did not know what his aim was for writing it. Bro. Hughan merely wished to call attention to the fact that Ashmole's MS. diary varies somewhat in spelling from the printed copies of the said diary." Now while begging Brother Hughan ten thousand pardons for my carelessness, I must still insist that he has exaggerated greatly my sin, for either version of the said diary does not at all influence the main question as to which kind of Masonry Ashmole received in 1646. To make the subject clear I herewith place the two versions side by side:—

Printed version.

1682, Mar. 10. About 5 Hor. post merid., I received a summons to appear at a Lodge to be held next day at Masons Hall, in London.

11. Accordingly I went, and about noon was admitted into the Fellowship of Freemasons, by Sir William Wilson, Knight; Captain Richard Borthwick, Mr. William Woodman, Mr. William Grey, Mr. Samuel Taylour, and Mr. William Wise.

I was the Senior Fellow among them (it being 35 years since I was admitted). There were present besides myself the Fellows after named:—Mr. Thomas Wise Master of the Masons' Company this present year, Mr. Thomas Shorthose, Mr. Thomas Shadbolt, Waidfford Esq., Mr. Nicholas Young, Mr. John Shorthose, Mr. William Hamon, Mr. John Thompson, and Mr. William Stanton. We all dined at the Half Moon Tavern, in Cheapside, a noble dinner prepared at the new accepted Mason.

MS. version.

March 1682.—10. About 5 p.m. I received a summons to appear at a Lodge to be held the next day at Masons'Hall, London.

11. Accordingly I went, and about Noone were admitted in Fellowship of Freemasons.

Sir William Wilson, Knight, Capt. Rich. Borthwick, Mr. Will. Woodman, Mr. Wm. Grey, Mr. Samuell Taylour, and Mr. William Wise.

I was the Senior Fellow among them (it being 35 years since I was admitted). There were present besides my selfe the Fellowes after named:—Mr. Tho. Wise Mr. of the Masons' Company this p'sent yeare, Mr. Thomas Shorthose, Mr. Thomas Shadbolt,—Wainsford, Esq., Mr. Nich. Young, Mr. John Shorthose, Mr. William Hamon, Mr. John Thompson, and Mr. Will. Stanton,

We all dyned at the Half Moone Taverne, in Cheapside, at a noble dinner prepared at the charge of the new-accepted Mason.

Now, no one appreciates Bro. Hughan's services to the Craft more highly than I do, and those who know me, know that I am not apt to flatter; but for all that I firmly believe that Bro. Hughan can make a mistake as well as I can. I pointed out that there were two disconnected Masonic Societies in the days of Ashmole, and gave my reason why I supposed that Ashmole's Masonry would not have entitled him to enter a Lodge of our predecessors; but instead of proving that the Lodge at Warrington of 1646, or the London Lodge, which Ashmole visited in 1862, imparted secret modes of recognition. My good friend, Bro. Hughan, replied by asking "How does our brother know that in order to gain admission to St. Paul's Lodge (Antiquity), in or about 1717, it was necessary to show a sign, to give a grip, and to whisper a word? We are quite ignorant of the esoteric character of this old Lodge in 1717," &c. And after asking me to send him evidence that the pre-1717 Masons had secret modes of recognition, he went again at me for not reproducing the improved version of Ashmole's diary. Now, with all due respect to Bro. Hughan, he ought to have known by this time that such kind of reasoning would not convince me that he was right.

In his last brief reply Bro. Hughan called my attention to Ashmole's using the word "Lodge" both in 1646 and 1682. Hence, he must have meant by it, what we now call a Lodge. I beg, however, to remind my good brother—1st. There can be no doubt that the first Mason's Guild organised by the Lord Mayor of London in 1356 were altogether Operative Masons. 2nd. There is no doubt that perhaps for two hundred years after 1356 the London Guild called themselves "Freemasons." It is not unreasonable, therefore, to suppose that the word "Lodge" may also have been retained for many years by the London Mason's Guild, and although the said Guild discarded the old words, yet, who knows, whether the Mason's Guild at Warrington in 1646 did not retain the old words and phrases of the early Operative Masons? Besides which, Ashmole was an antiquary, and men of his proclivity are very apt to make use of antiquated phrases. Indeed, Bro. Gould seems to look upon Ashmole in the same light he does upon Aubrey. "As a rule (says Bro. Gould) Ashmole's Diary is trifling where it is not simply nauseous." I do not, therefore, attach much importance to the words "Lodge" or "Freemason," which Ashmole incidentally used in his Diary.

Another argument in behalf of the old belief of Ashmole's Masonry is that Ashmole was not a member of the London Masons' Guild. But suppose he was not? Cannot a Master of a Guild invite to-day a distinguished gentleman to the Guild's feast, and could not the Master of the London Masons' Guild have invited Mr. Ashmole, who was Mazonised in a similar Guild at Warrington in 1646? And as the Guild had no secrets to conceal, I cannot see why any friend of an influential member could not have been invited upon that occasion.

Curious stories have been circulated about Ashmole's manufacturing Masonic rituals, Brother Gould (vol. 2, page 136), says:

"The argument usually brought forward in behalf of the Ashmolean theory is an admirable specimen of the kind of reasoning too often employed on such matters. Certain observances and ideas which did not exist before are found, or are supposed to have been found, and prevalent amongst Masons towards the commencement of the eighteenth century. Ashmole was known to have been a Mason, and to have been fond of wasting his time upon all sorts of queer out of the way and unprofitable pursuits. Therefore [say they] these new conceits were taught by Ashmole to the Freemasons." A New York editor of a Masonic magazine told me recently that Ashmole remodelled the Masonic ritual, and while I remonstrated against the absurdity, a literary old brother Mason happened to come into the office, who confirmed the other's statement without an if or a but, and referred me to Anthony Wood's "Athenæ" for his authority. I have thus far been unable to consult the "Athenæ," but supposing there is something in the book to that effect, as Anthony Wood was not a Mason, I would hesitate to pin my faith on his statement about Ashmole's Masonry.

But here is another point which should not be lost sight of, viz.: in Ashmole's diary of 1646 he mentions Richard Penket as the Warden at Warrington. Now, that title may mean either a Master of a Lodge or a Master of a Guild; but in his 1682 diary he mentions "Mr. Tho. Wise, Master of the Masons' Company," thus intimating that he visited a Masons' Guild and not a Masons' Lodge. Besides which, I find that even Brother Gould doubts whether the Masonic Society did meet in Masons' Hall (p. 136, vol. 2nd). A brother, however, informed me that Bro. Hughan has the best of the argument on the question at issue. His theory is that the most prominent members of the London Masonic Company in 1682 were true blue Masons, and that it was through their influence that their Masons' Hall was allowed to be used for the meeting of a true blue Lodge, to which Ashmole was invited to visit, as stated in his diary of 1682. To which I reply that when the said good brother has proved satisfactorily that the twelve gentlemen mentioned by Ashmole as having partaken with him of the "noble dinner" at the "Half Moone Taverne," were all Masonised in true blue Lodges before the 11th of March 1682 I will at once not only submit without a murmur, but will thank him for his information besides.

BOSTON, U.S., 13th September 1889.

MASONIC FORBEARANCE.—As we are none of us free from faults, it is the duty of every brother to bear with the infirmities, to pardon the errors, and to be kind and considerate towards those with whom he is intimately connected. There are few tempers so depraved but a sincere endeavour to please will excite in their bosoms a corresponding sentiment of love and gratitude. We are under peculiar obligations, and it is equally our duty and our interest to discharge them faithfully, and to the letter. Amidst the various dispositions of mankind we must not expect to meet with all we could wish in every brother who is linked with us in the indissoluble chain of Masonry; but if we resolve to do unto others as we would have them do unto us, our happiness and mental satisfaction will usually be amply gratified. Every relative and social duty is founded on reciprocal obligations; and where the seeds of love and friendship are not sown, or where that which springs from them is not cultivated and improved, it will be but "as the grass growing on the housetop, wherewith the mower filleth not his hand, neither he that bindeth up the sheaves in his bosom."

"Illustrations," Mr. Frances George Heath's Magazine of Amusement, Art, Biography, Economy, Invention, Literature and Science will commence its fifth volume, in October, with a new pictorial cover, and its forthcoming issues will include, besides fiction, illustrated papers, embracing drawings of the month, reproductions of National Gallery pictures, pretty places, art studies, eminent artists, pen and pencil portraits of celebrities, public and private schools, Tyrolese winter resorts, popular flowers, farm gossip, and miscellaneous "sketches" of men, things, places, art, literature, and science. "Illustrations" will be published by the firm about to amalgamate as Simpkin, Marshall, Hamilton, Kent and Co.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—During the autumn months, when the atmospheric changes are alike sudden and extreme, it is subject for grave and serious consideration how the health can be best preserved. An occasional alterative, like these pills will be the surest preventive of disease, because it overcomes all derangements of the system, purifies and regulates the circulation, and gives that needful energy to the nervous structures which carries the frame triumphantly through trials to which the weak and sickly would succumb. Neuralgic pains and rheumatic agonies derive present and permanent relief from diligent friction with Holloway's ointment, which, acting as a derivative, relieves the gorged and irritated blood vessels from the congestion and the nerves from pressure.

BRO. GEORGE EDWARD BENNETT.

THIS brother died suddenly at his residence on the 18th inst. During the last few months Bro. Bennett has not felt well, but on Tuesday was apparently in good health, and was very cheerful. He went to bed the same as usual, but about 6·15 in the morning became very ill. Dr. Young was called in, but his services did not avail, Bro. Bennett expiring shortly after eight o'clock. The deceased, who was 50 years of age, was well known in the district of Sheffield as a Freemason, having joined the Britannia Lodge about the year 1864. In 1868 he founded the Wentworth Lodge, which is now flourishing. Deceased was an energetic worker for the good of the Order, and was much liked and respected by all the members, to whom his death came as a great shock. He has held various offices, having been the Master of the Wentworth Craft Lodge, Provincial Officer for West Yorkshire, Principal of a Royal Arch Chapter, and Master of a Mark Lodge. Since the formation of the Masonic private theatricals, in 1878, he has successfully occupied the position of stage manager. Deceased leaves a widow and three children. The interment took place last Saturday, at the General Cemetery.

BRO. FREDERICK SLEIGHT.

THE remains of the late Bro. Frederick Sleight, I.P.M. of the Ancient Britons Lodge, No. 1675, who died suddenly on Monday, the 9th inst., were interred in Toxteth Cemetery, on the 17th inst., in the presence of a large number of Masonic brethren and friends. The cortége left deceased's late residence, Upper Parliament-street, about 2·30 o'clock, and on arrival at the Cemetery gates it was joined by the following brethren, representing the Lodge:—Bros. Samuel John Hughes W.M., William Hawkins J.W., O. J. Rowlands S.W., R. M'Gee Secretary, Hugh Jones P.M., J. H. Peake, J. G. Frederick Gillet, John Pimlett, William Skinner, George Porter, John Long, John Price, Thomas J. Smith, Horace Van Gruisen, John Morris, J. J. G. Little, R. W. Manning, R. H. Bullen, and Captain Topley. Other Lodges were represented by Bros. J. R. Bottomley P.P.G.D.C., Jonathan Parry P.M. 1547, F. D. Foulkes Chap. 292, H. D. Foulkes Chap. 292, Thomas Morgan 241, John Holker 1609, and G. N. Hawke 823. The coffin, which was of French polished brown oak, with handsome brass furniture, bore the following inscription:—"Frederick Sleight, died 16th September 1889, aged 35 years." The interment took place in the Church of England portion of the cemetery, the Rev. R. F. Herring, M.A., St. John the Baptist Church, Toxteth Park, officiating.

The Domatic Chapter of Instruction will remove to St. James's Restaurant, Piccadilly, on the 2nd October. The meetings take place every Wednesday evening, at eight p.m.

The Metropolitan Chapter of Improvement will commence the session on Tuesday, the 1st October, at the White Hart, corner of Abchurch Lane and Cannon Street, E.C., at 6·30 o'clock, and will continue to meet every Tuesday until the end of May. We may mention that Comp. F. Brown is the Preceptor.

On Monday, the 16th instant, a serious accident happened off Southsea Beach, which very nearly terminated fatally. It appears that an old gentleman with a lady and a little boy, visitors, hired a pleasure boat and went out for a row. As they were returning, they met the sailing boat whose canvas for the last few weeks has advertised the virtues of Beecham's Pills, and in manœuvring to get out of her way placed themselves across the bow of the Vesta, another rowing boat, which was coming along at a considerable speed. In vain the occupants of the Vesta tried to stop her; it was too late, and she ran right into the other boat, almost cutting off her stern. The occupants were merged into the water, and their chance of life seemed a bad one, as none of them appeared able to swim. "Beecham's Pills," however tacked and picked them up.—Portsmouth Evening Mail.

PROV. G. CHAPTER OF SOMERSET.

THE annual meeting was held on the 20th instant, at Clevedon, under the banner of the Adair Chapter, No. 1750, when there was a large gathering of Companions from all parts of the Province. Companion Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke, Grand Scribe E. of England, presided, having for his second and third Principals Companion Captain Homfray (Province of Monmouth) and Companion Rev. J. A. Lloyd (Grand Chaplain of England). Among those present were the following Officers of Provincial Grand Chapter:—

Comps. R. C. Else, B. H. Watts Treasurer, W. Bidgood S.N., W. Long Scribe E., T. G. Williams Assistant Scribe E., W. J. Nosworthy P.S., G. Glossop 1st Assist. Soj., A. J. Salter Janitor, S. Bigwood Assist. Janitor, and the following Companions:—C. W. Radway, C. F. Marshall, A. W. N. Weatherly, J. Randle Ford, J. A. Sawyer, G. K. Foster, A. F. Ross, F. Glover, W. Montague, J. Rubie, J. C. Moncrieff, T. Meyler, J. Westlake, H. B. Farington, W. M. Rice, J. B. Marwood, E. D. Barnes, E. Noke, W. F. Langworthy, T. Lloyd Norris, L. Howe, W. B. Gregory, G. H. Perrett, S. R. Baskett, F. T. Elworthy, J. Gill, L. Ringer, E. J. B. Mercer, E. Winter, W. T. Male, J. A. Bright, W. Reece, J. Burnett, J. Allan Tucker, J. A. Timmins, W. F. Gould, G. Baskett, J. Knight, T. J. Sedones, W. H. Fisher, A. L. Wade, E. Bath, E. A. Hington, J. Cornwall, T. B. Montrie, T. Hearne, E. Fry Wade, &c.

The Treasurer's account, showing a balance of £110 in favour of the Prov. Grand Chapter, was adopted. Comp. Shadwell H. Clerke then installed Comp. R. C. Else as Grand Superintendent of the Province in the place of the late Brigadier-General Adair, and complimented him upon the distinguished position to which he had attained, and the patent appointing Comp. Else to that position having been read, all offices were declared vacant, and the following were elected and invested as Provincial Grand Officers for the ensuing year by the Provincial Grand Superintendent:—

Comp. Colonel Long	... ...	1st Principal
T. Barnes	... ...	2nd Principal
Noke ...	... ...	S.E.
Rev. J. A. Lloyd	... ...	S.N.
Glover	... ...	Registrar
W. Wright	... ...	P.S.
A. Law-Wade	... ...	1st A.S.
E. F. Wade	... ...	2nd A.S.

Bigwood	... ...	Assistant Janitor
Nosworthy	... ...	Organist

On the motion of Comp. Colonel Long, seconded by Comp. R. C. Else (Grand Superintendent) the Provincial Grand Chapter recorded their grief at the loss to Royal Arch Masonry and the Province of Somerset through the lamented death of their Grand Superintendent, the late Brigadier-General Adair, after whom the entertaining Chapter was named. The alms taken were given to Clevedon Cottage Hospital. The Provincial Grand Chapter was then closed in due form. Subsequently the Companions dined together, under the presidency of the Provincial Grand Superintendent, in the Town-hall, when the usual Masonic toasts were gone through.

Star Chapter of Instruction, No. 1275.—On Friday, the 20th inst., at the Stirling Castle, Camberwell. Present:—Comps. F. Hilton P.Z. Preceptor, G. L. Moore Z. 169 M.E.Z., T. Grummant P.Z. H., Captain Vincent P.Z. J., C. H. Stone S.E., Stone S.N., Woods P.S., and Addington. The Chapter was regularly opened by the Principals, and the ceremony of installation of H. was rehearsed by Comp. Moore. The Companions were admitted. The ceremony of exaltation was rehearsed, Comp. Addington candidate. Comp Grummant promised to work the ceremony of installation of J. on Friday evening next (27th inst.)

DEDICATION OF THE KIMBERLEY MASONIC TEMPLE.

WHAT is probably the handsomest and most complete Masonic Temple in South Africa was recently dedicated at Kimberley, where an excellent site was secured in the Du Toits Pan-road. The Temple occupies two full stands extending from the front boundary north, in Du Toit's Pan-road, to the roadway running parallel at the south end, in rear, and covers an area of 7000 superficial feet, exclusive of the Tyler's house, which will be detached from the tempel. The facade is from the Roman-Corinthian order of architecture, and the details of the window, dressings, entrance, doorway, portico (which is a very handsome feature of the structure), and the entablatures and pendiment of the front and side facades are elaborately and effectively designed. The stained-glass window, which is noticeable as soon as the visitor enters the building, is a splendid piece of artistic workmanship, appropriate in design, and showing a most tasteful combination of delicate colouring. The hall measures thirty feet in length by twenty in breadth, having at one end two spacious semi-circular-headed doorways opening into an inner vestibule to be occupied by the Tyler in guarding the Temple and degree-rooms on each side. Two sets of preparation and degree-rooms flank the main building, and at first storey height there are four additional degree-rooms for conducting ceremonies in the higher degrees of Freemasonry. The lighting, ventilating, and sanitary arrangements are all that could be desired, and the work reflects great credit on the architect, Mr. H. A. Reid, of Port Elizabeth; the contractors, Messrs. Beckett and Morgan; Mr. Mills, the clerk of works; as well as upon Mr. Coombes, of De Beer's-road, for the exceedingly creditable manner in which he has turned out the ornamental iron railings in front of the building. The building, the foundation-stone of which was laid in October last, will probably cost about £7000. The members of the Committee, who have indefatigably worked on behalf of this important project, some of whom are at present absent from the Diamond Fields, are the following:—Bros. D. J. Haarhoff (Chairman), George Richards (Honorary Treasurer), John Hampton (Honorary Secretary), H. F. E. Pistorius, C. A. Aburrow, J. Lawrense, A. Bayne, H. W. Peters, A. Yockmonitz, B. Klisser, W. M. Willis, and W. H. Craven. The dedicatory ceremony was ably conducted by Bro. D. J. Haarhoff, in the presence of about 400 brethren from all parts of the colony, including Cape Town, Port Elizabeth, Barkly West, King William's Town, East London, &c. Lodge having been opened in due form in the three degrees by Bro. Richards, Bro. Haarhoff took the chair of K.S. The Ven. Archdeacon Gaul having offered up prayer, the dedicatory ceremonial was proceeded with, the Ven. Archdeacon Gaul S.W. of the Cosmopolitan Lodge ably assisting in the impressive service. The hymns sung were "Behold, how good a thing it is," "Supreme Grand Master, God of Power," and "Guide us, O Thou Great Jehovah!" The solemn procession round the interior of the Grand Hall, accompanied by music, vocal and instrumental, was witnessed in awe-inspiring silence. The brethren taking part in the procession were Bros. Yockmonitz, Beaton, Lawrence, Peters, Gaul, and the dedicating Officer, Bro. D. J. Haarhoff. The appropriate gifts of corn, wine, and oil were supplemented by the parading of a censor containing incense three or four times round the hall, by Bro. Archdeacon Gaul, Bro. Tregarthen meanwhile playing a ceremonial march specially composed by him for the occasion. Bro. D. J. Haarhoff then addressed the brethren, giving a sketch of the negotiations connected with the Temple since the first inception in August 1887, the difficulties which those engaged in its promotion had to contend with, and the pleasing, though arduous, work of the Building Committee since its formation up till the previous evening, when their labours were so grandly consummated. Bro. Richards was then presented with an address, handsomely engrossed and framed, expressing the profound regret of the brethren at his intention shortly to take his departure from Kimberley, and adding, "We deem this important occasion in the history of Freemasonry on the Diamond Fields a fitting opportunity of expressing our high appreciation of your qualities as a citizen, friend, and brother, and our deep sense of the manifold services you have rendered to our beloved Craft." Brother Richards, in responding to the remarks of Bro. Lawrence, delivered an eloquent and telling oration, and his words of gratitude and farewell were characterised by a ring of genuine sincerity and depth of feeling which went to the heart of every brother present. It was announced by Bro. Richards that telegrams of congratulation and apology for unavoidable absence had been received from District Grand Masters in various parts of South Africa, and from other leading brethren who had from the first taken a warm interest in the progress of the work, so that, as Bro. Richards expressed it, "We have now ended as we began, with the hearty good wishes of the whole of the Craft in South Africa." Lodge was then closed in due and ancient form, and refreshments were partaken of in the side-rooms, the health of Bros. Richards and Haarhoff being cordially toasted in brimming bumpers.

TRUE LOVE AND UNITY LODGE, No. 248.

THE members of this Lodge met at the Masonic Hall, Brixham, on Monday evening, the 16th inst., on a very interesting occasion. Bro. John Wheaton W.M., in the course of a few appropriate remarks, alluded to the departure of Bro. the Rev. Elrington, whose acceptance he asked, on behalf of the members of the Lodge, of a P.M.'s jewel and address. The latter, which was illuminated, read as follows :—

"Presented to W. Bro. the Rev. R. B. F. Elrington P.M. P.P.G. Chaplain of Devon, by the W.M., Wardens and Brethren of the True Love and Unity Lodge of Freemasons, No. 248, Brixham, on the occasion of his leaving the town, as a mark of esteem and fraternal regard for his valuable services to the Lodge and to Freemasonry generally, heartily wishing him health, long life, continued prosperity, and happiness. Signed, on behalf of the Lodge, by W. Bro. John Wheaton W.M., Bros. John T. James S.W., James Spark J.W., and the Officers and Brethren."

The jewel was a very pretty design, and bore an appropriate inscription besides the crest of the recipient, a stork, in gold, on the ribbon. Bro. Elrington cordially thanked the brethren for their expression of good feeling and interest in his welfare, and spoke of the sincere regret with which he left Brixham after residing in it for so many years. Bro. Rev. Elrington leaves Lower Brixham, of which he has been the vicar for 35 years, this week for Leamington, on his retirement from active service. He was W.M. of True Love and Unity for two years, in 1886-7, when the new hall was consecrated, and was initiated into Masonry 42 years ago, at the Shakespeare Lodge, No. 143, Dublin, the Chaplain of which at that time was Dr. Magee, now the Bishop of Peterborough. Bro. Elrington is also a M.M.M. and third Principal of Torbay Chapter, No. 1358, Paignton. During the evening Bro. J. W. Matthews was raised to the degree of M.M., the ceremony being most efficiently performed in a very excellent manner by Bro. N. Hopson, P.G.J.W. of the United Grand Lodge of New South Wales, who was afterwards accorded a vote of thanks. Amongst the visiting brethren were Bros. T. J. Cressman S.D., West S.S., and E. J. Pratt, all of 1402.

CONCORD LODGE, No. 323.

A LARGE meeting was held at the Florist Hotel, Shaw Heath, on Wednesday, the 11th inst., to celebrate the fact that this Lodge had become a Patron of the Royal Masonic Institution for Aged Freemasons. The following Officers and members attended :—Bros. John Smith W.M., James Breen I.P.M., W. Merrison S.W., J. O. Wylde J. W., W. Pritchard Treasurer, Thomas Brookes Secretary, E. Stevens S.D., A. Horton J.D., Henry Newton I.G., John Scott Tyler, with Past Masters Bros. Samuel Lowe, Thomas Whalley, John Knott, Christopher Atkinson, Joseph Slack, George Boothby, and John Slack; also Bros. Charles J. Cheetham, Joseph Wood, E. Edmondson, William Walmsley, Joseph Broadhurst, W. Johnson, Thomas Roberts, William Wood, E. Taylor, James E. Penny, and Joseph D. Kain. The W.M. was also supported by the following visiting brethren :—Bros. Thomas W. Weathered 365 (New York), Charles Clarkson W.M. 104, George Gaskill S.W. 104, Joseph Hollingworth W.M. 758, J. Beresford P.M. 104 and P.P.G.S.D., Geo. McClelland I.P.M. 287, Alfred Taylor P.M. 287, H. H. Royle W.M. 822, William Loose 645, James Paget 314, G. W. Cookson 1030, George Sam Smith P.M. 1134, Charles Booth 287, James Cookson I.P.M. 287 and 1030, and William Booth P.M. 104. After the Lodge had been duly opened and the ordinary business concluded, the announcement was made that there had been paid to the Aged Freemasons' Fund a further sum of 100 guineas in addition to the fifty guineas within six months to the same Institution, and thus the Lodge became a "Patron" in perpetuity. The Lodge was previously a "Vice-Patron," and subsequently, after the usual duties of "Masons" and "citizens" had been performed, a vote of thanks was proposed to Bro. Thomas Brookes P.M. for his able services in having, by his action, put the Lodge in so honourable a position, and which was very heartily supported, particularly by the respective visiting brethren. Bro. Brookes, in reply, deprecated so very much honour being showered upon him personally. It was quite true that he had originated the idea, but had he not had the very generous band of brethren in the Lodge to work with, and without their noble and spontaneous responses he himself could not have done it. The credit was due to all the members of the Lodge, as 41 out of a total of 44 had subscribed to this fund, and when it was remembered that only six months ago there were voluntary contributions to a considerable amount to make up the previous 50 guineas, he was sure the visitors would see that it was the members of the Lodge, and not he, who had accomplished the object with which he had set out. This was true "Masonic Charity," nothing done for personal laudation, but large and small subscriptions were blended in the one object, in the united name of the Lodge. The Lodge now possesses 154 votes for this Charity, nor had the members confined its benevolence to this alone, but stood high in the other, both local and general, Masonic Charities, and though the Lodge was not numerous, he believed the position it now had attained was unique, and the Lodge remembered it was only fulfilling the principles at the very foundation of Masonry. The evening was enjoyed by every brother, and was enlivened by songs from Bros. Smith, Thomas Whalley, William Booth, James Breen, &c.

STAR LODGE, No. 1275.

THE installation meeting was held at the Ship, Greenwich, on Friday, 6th inst. The chair was occupied by Bro. W. F. Crook W.M., who was supported by Bro. R. Pringle S.W. elect, J. Long, Major Williams Treasurer, Major C. W. Williams Secretary, &c. Lodge was opened in due form, after which the minutes of preceding meeting were read and confirmed, and the Auditors' report received and adopted. Bros. Moyes and Dorey were raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason. The ballot was taken for Messrs. Reid and Kipps, who being duly elected were initiated as E.A.'s by the Worshipful Master. Bro. Pringle S.W. was then presented by Bro. Kipps to the W.M., and duly installed in the chair of K.S., according to ancient custom, for the ensuing year. The Officers were then appointed and invested, and the Installing Master delivered the usual addresses. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the Installing Master, and ordered to be recorded on the minutes. The Lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to a banquet. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were subsequently duly honoured. The health of the Worshipful Master was proposed by Bro. W. F. Crook. Bro. Pringle had, he said, advanced step by step through the various offices until he reached his present high position. He asked the brethren to cordially join him in drinking the health of their Master, wishing him prosperity throughout his year of office. Bro. Pringle, in replying, said he could assure them that during his year of office he should do everything in his power to promote the welfare of the Lodge, and he should leave no stone unturned to carry out the work properly. All he desired was the support of the brethren, which he was sure he should have. The I.P.M. was then complimented by the W.M., who said that Bro. W. F. Crook had to be congratulated upon a successful year of office. Whatever he had done he had done well, and there was no doubt he would use the same endeavours in the future to benefit the Lodge as he had in the past. The members had signified their appreciation of his services by voting him a jewel, which he had placed upon the breast of Bro. Crook with much pleasure. He had thoroughly deserved that mark of their favour, and the brethren would heartily drink his health and wish him success in the future. Bro. W. F. Crook briefly returned thanks for the manner in which the toast had been received, and also for the beautiful jewel, which he should wear, he hoped, for many years to come. The health of the Initiates, the Visitors, Past Masters, Officers, &c., were given and duly responded to. The Tyler's toast brought this pleasant evening to a close. During the evening songs were sung by Bros. Briggs, Blanchard, Williamson, &c., Bro. Kipps, R.A.M., organist, presiding at the pianoforte.

CATOR LODGE, No. 2266.

THE second installation meeting of the above Lodge took place at the Railway Hotel, Beckenham, on Wednesday, the 18th inst., when there was a large attendance of the brethren. Amongst those present at the installation ceremony, or at the banquet, were the following :—Bros. James Hill W.M., J. E. Fox S.W., R. C. Davis J.W., Edward Carpenter Treasurer, G. B. Carlton Secretary, C. W. Gribble S.D., J. C. Osterstock J.D., S. V. Duren Anley D.C., J. W. Newell Steward, W. Lovelock Steward, L. G. Reinhardt Tyler. Visitors :—Bros. L. A. Pearce, E. E. Miderston, E. Van Putten, A. Thompson, W. Cooper, R. Voisey, G. Powell, J. L. Lewis, G. Church, M. J. Dickens, D. Grinsted, J. H. Francis, H. J. Lansbury, H. Cooper Willis, H. Kebble, G. Wiging Organist 1963, A. E. Scorer, R. Elgar Secretary 1329, G. T. Rait Secretary 2047, W. Briant, T. Reed, T. L. Nye, &c. The Lodge having been opened with the usual ceremonial the Worshipful Master elect, Bro. J. E. Fox, was duly installed by the W.M., Bro. James Hill P.G.S.B, the first W.M. of the Cator Lodge, the ceremony being performed in a very impressive manner. Bro. Fox then proceeded to invest the following Officers :—Bros. R. C. Davis S.W, C. W. Gribble J.W., Dr. Carpenter Treasurer, G. B. Carlton Secretary, J. C. Osterccck S.D., R. C. Scrivner J.D., L. V. D. Anley I.G., J. W. Newell S., R. C. Kline A.S., W. J. Hewett D.C., Wm. Lovelock A.D.C. In the course of the ceremony jewels were presented to Bro. Dr. Carpenter and Bro. G. B. Carlton for the valuable service rendered in their respective offices during the past year. The banquet was well served in the large room of the Railway Hotel, and reflects great credit on the host, Bro. Cakebread. After the cloth had been removed the W.M. proposed the usual Loyal toasts. In proposing that of the Queen and the Craft, he warmly eulogised the virtues of Her Majesty, and said the Craft was spread over the entire surface of the globe, and if they acted up to its principles it would extend still more. As its principles and practice extended, the world at large would see that to be a Freemason was to be a better man, a better citizen, a better father, and a better son. If they saw anything wrong in Freemasonry it was no fault of the Craft, but of the individual members themselves. He was quite sure that he spoke their sentiments when he said that to be a good Freemason was to be a good man. The toast was received with honours, and the National Anthem was sung. Next came the toast of the Most Worshipful the Pro Grand Master and the Grand Officers Past and Present, followed by God bless the Prince of Wales. Bro. Hill I.P.M. responded on behalf of the Grand Lodge, giving an account of how he had risen in the Craft, and how he had become Provincial Grand Standard Bearer—a small office which he was thankful to receive and hold until he got a better one bye and bye. If those present wanted to rise in the Craft, they must put their shoulder to the wheel. They must do something extraordinary, when they would sure to be noticed and rewarded; but if they jogged slowly along in a quiet pleasant sort of way they would end pretty much as they began. Bro. Grinsted responded on behalf of Provincial Grand Lodge of Kent, tendering his heartfelt thanks for having his name coupled with the toast. He alluded in a facetious way to the hard work of the Provincial Grand Officers, remarking that since he had been in office he had gone to three dinners, attempted to make one speech, and now he was attempting to make another. However, whatever duties he had to perform, he would perform them to the best of his ability. Bro. Hill proposed the health of the W.M., which he characterised as the principal toast of the evening. The brethren had seen a little of their Worshipful
