Master's work that night, but when they came next time they would see how well he would perform the duties devolving upon him. They had seen how well and hospitably the W.M. had laid out the table, and they as Masons, prided themselves upon having such an excellent fourth degree. Sometimes the first, second and third came very quietly, but the fourth degree was a great success. If what they had witnessed that night was a specimen of the Master's work, he thought they might look forward to a very happy year. Knowing what their W.M. was and what he would be, he asked them to drink to his very good health. The W.M., in responding, begged to return his sincere thanks for the kind manner in which they had received the toast of his health. He felt it a great privilege to be installed into the chair of King Solomon in the Cator Lodge, and he would endeavour as far as possible to imitate all that was good in the example of the I.P.M., who had had a very heavy year and gone through his work remarkably well. During the whole time it had been their pleasure and privilege to serve under their I.P.M. they had found that he had acted from the best motives and used the best possible efforts for the welfare and success of the Cator Lodge. He was sure that the Immediate Past Master's effort had been fully appreciated by one and all, and during the coming year he (the W.M.) would do his best to imitate his good example, and if at the end of the year they were as well satisfied with his poor efforts as those of their I.P.M. he should feel himself well recompensed. The W.M. then proposed the Installing Master—Brother Jas. Hill, remarking upon the impressive manner in which he had performed his duties that day. His virtues were so well known that it was quite unnecessary for him (the W.M.) to say more upon the subject. He had also to carry out one of the greatest pleasures of the day in presenting Bro. Hill with an Immediate Past Master's jewel, which had been unanimously voted by the Lodge as some slight mark of the appreciation in which they held his services during the past year, and the admirable way in which he had discharged the duties of his office. Bro. Jas. Hill thanked them very much for the jewel and the way they had received the toast of his health. It was true the work had been arduous during the past year, and they had had many difficulties to overcome, but he had endeavoured to meet them with all the love, harmony and charity he could possibly use. There would be difficulties in all new Lodges, and the W.M. had to consider what was best to be done. He was glad to say that they had as good a set of men in their Lodge as any Master could possibly wish for. He was sorry to hear of the resignation of Bro. Adams, who promised to be as enthusiastic a worker as almost any man in the Lodge. They had grown enormously in the course of the year, having now 39 members as against 19 initiates and ten founders last year. He hoped it would long continue to grow at the same pace, and in after years, when younger members took their place, let them hope that the Cator Lodge would be noted for the good it had done in the cause of charity and love. The W.M. next proposed the Visitors. If there was one thing more than another upon which a Mason prided himself it was that he was always ready to give a hearty welcome to the Visitors. Instead of looking upon them as being the obliged party, they were always looked upon as conferring an obligation on the Lodge they visited. There were several Past Masters present, several visiting brethren, several personal friends of his own, and several whom he hoped would become personal friends. As they would not all respond he coupled the toast with the names of Brothers Martin, J. Dickins W.M., F. Cooper Willis, G. T. Rait and Scorer. Brother Dickens, in responding, warmly complimented the W.M. upon the way in which the work had been done that night. Bro. G. T. Rait said it afforded him peculiar pleasure to be present that night. As Secretary of the Beckenham Lodge he need scarcely say that every member of that Lodge took a warm interest in the progress of the Cator Lodge. He could not but remark the wonderful strength, not only numerically, but in the working of the Lodge, which they possessed. It proved to him and to every other member in Beckenham that there was ample room for two Lodges, and he only hoped that the same good feeling which existed at present should exist to all time. He hoped that many members of the Cator Lodge would favour the Beckenham Lodge with their company, and he could not say how much pleasure it would give him and all the other members to extend their brotherly love not only to the Cator Lodge but to all other Lodges throughout the world. Their W.M. had been a personal friend of his own and it was to him that he (Bro. Rait) was indebted for witnessing the ceremonial and being present that night. He thanked them very cordially for the way in which they had received the toast of the Visitors. Bro. Cooper Willis said when he entered that hospitable banquet he looked around and saw so many brethren holding high rank that he flattered himself he should not be called upon to make a speech. But he had laid a flattering unction to his soul, to which he was not entitled. He thought all had been said that could be said by the Visitors who had already replied. It afforded him great pleasure to be able to state that he had known their W.M. for a considerable time, and he fully appreciated not only his ability but his true manliness and kindly disposition. To those who knew their W.M. but slightly he would say, "the more you know him the more you will like him." It was always a great pleasure to himself, and must be to every Mason, to have an opportunity of attending on an occasion of that kind, because it was by such occasions as those that one saw what was meant by a true Mason. He appreciated the admirable manner in which the work had been done by the I.P.M., and he was sure they would have equal pleasure next year when their worthy W.M. installed his successor. Brother Scorer also responded. The next toast was the Past Masters, proposed from the chair, to which Bros. Rose, Hilton, Poysey, and Powell replied. The W.M. next proposed the Treasurer and Secretary of the Cator Lodge. Bro. Carpenter, in responding for himself, said it gave him great pleasure to be present, occupying the position of Treasurer. He could only say that he would carefully take care of any funds which might be placed in his hands, and he hoped that at the close of the ensuing year they would have even a better balance at the banker's than they had at present. During the past year they had had to incur many expenses which would not be incurred again. It would give him much pleasure to do all he could for the welfare of the Lodge. As they knew he was connected with the other Lodge in Beckenham, and anything he could do in the future to bring the two Lodges closer together he should be pleased to do it. Bro. G. P. Carlton said he felt it a great honour to occupy the position of Secretary, and the work during the past twelve months had been a source of pleasure to him. He believed the Cator Lodge would be a great success. At the beginning of the year they started with a deficiency of £50; this year they started with a balance in hand of £33, and had paid for their furniture and other sundry expenses. He hoped during the coming year there would be a considerable influx of new blood, and that their present balance would be considerably increased. The other toasts were the Officers of the Lodge and the Tyler's toast, which were duly honoured.

CHOUGH LODGE, No. 2264.

THE annual installation meeting of this young but successful Lodge took place on Thursday evening, at the Cannon-street Hotel, when a large number of brethren assembled to witness the interesting ceremony. Bro. G. T. Edwards W.M. presided, and was supported by Bros. W. B. Marcus S.W., J. J. Judge J.W., Saxelby Treasurer, J. A. Dewsnap Secretary, C. Mussared S.D., W. H. Tomsett J.D., W. J. Noad D.C., E. Piggott I.G., Turle Lee Organist, and Bros. Dr. Lennox Browne P.G.S.W., Rev. W. H. Casely P.P.G.C., Dr. Cock P.G.S., W. J. Crump P.G.S., and Past Masters Walter Martin, J. M. Smith, A. Watson, A. H. Jakins, W. H. Hook, Dr. Richardson, W. Heagerty P.G.S., F. Bevan, C. Sturgeon, W. Price, also the following brethren:—W. C. Smith, W. F. Jules, G. Scott Miller, A. Haynes, J. W. Breeze, T. W. Noad, John Almond, Charles Curtis, E. S. Miller, A. Strugnell, Branley, F. Williams, E. Banfield, W. J. Baker, H. J. Sturgeon, O. H. Cox, A. Thompson, &c. The minutes of the last meeting having been read, the installation ceremony was immediately proceeded with, the W.M., Bro. G. T. Edwards, acting as Installing Master, and Bro. Henry Massey as Director of the Ceremonies. Bro. John Almond P.P.G.D.C. temporarily acted as Senior Warden, and Bro. Walter Martin P.M. occupied the chair of Junior Warden. Bro. Walter B. Marcus having answered the usual questions and signified his adherence to the obligations of the Craft, was duly installed into the chair. The following Officers were then appointed and invested:—Bros. J. J. Judge S.W., Charles Mussared J.W., W. H. Tomsett S.D., E. Piggott J.D., W. J. Noad I.G., Turle Lee Organist, T. W. Noad and S. Scherer Stewards, E. T. Edwards, the first initiate of the Lodge, being appointed D.C. Bros. H. Saxelby and J. W. Dewsnap were invested as Treasurer and Secretary respectively. Bro. Coles was unanimously accepted as a joining member. The Lodge having been duly closed, the brethren adjourned to the banquet, which was served in the large room of the hotel. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts having been duly honoured, the Immediate Past Master, Bro. Edwards, rose, and in felicitous terms proposed the health of the Worshipful Master, and called attention to the installation ceremony of twelve months ago, when he, the speaker, was elected the first Master. He trusted that he had upheld the high standard of Masonic work, whereby great results may be obtained. The office had now passed into worthier hands. He was quite sure the interests of the Lodge were perfectly safe. He now gave way to a worthy Mason and esteemed Brother, and he heartily wished him health, wealth, and prosperity during his year of office. The W.M., in reply, said that if he could only follow in the footsteps of his predecessor, and do as well as he had done during the past year, he would do very well indeed. He had the honour of being one of the founders, and might well be supposed to have the interests of the Lodge at heart, and it would not be his fault if he did not add somewhat to its popularity, and he thanked the brethren most heartily for the kind manner in which they had received the toast. Bro. Marcus then gave the Installing Master, and said that it was necessary that the Officer who performed this duty should be a worthy Mason, and after the manner in which Bro. Edwards had worked the ceremony no one could doubt but that he had been most successful. He had much pleasure in investing Bro. Edwards with the first Past Master's jewel of the Lodge, which on account of the valuable services rendered was of exceptional value, and he trusted the Chough Lodge would soon make its way in the Craft. Bro. Edwards modestly responded, and attributed his success to the great assistance he had received from the whole of the brethren. The thought of his year of office would linger long in his memory, bright as the jewel with which he had been adorned. The W.M. then proposed the Visitors, who would be always welcome guests to the Chough Lodge, and their best talent would always be forthcoming for their delectation. Bros. Dr. Richardson, Dr. Cock, and W. Martin responded. The Past Master's of the Lodge were then honoured, to which Bro. Saxelby, the acting I.P.M., and Bro. Edwards replied. The next toast was the Treasurer and Secretary, both of whom acknowledged the compliment. Bro. Dewsnap stating the great pleasure it was for him to lend assistance; it was a labour of love, and he was deeply gratified to find that his work had given satisfaction. The Officers of the Lodge and the Tyler's toast brought a most enjoyable evening to a close. The musical entertainment, for which the Chough Lodge is so celebrated, was undertaken by Bros. A. Thompson, Albert James, A. Strugnell, F. Bevan, H. Lester-Brown, and Turle Lee, who very ably presided at the piano.

FUNERALS properly carried out and personally attended in London and Country, by Bro. G. A. HUTTON, 17 Newcastle Street, Strand, W.C. Monuments erected, Valuations made.

THE SECRETARYSHIP OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—As an admirer of Bro. Binckes, and one who desires to show appreciation of the valuable services rendered by that Brother in the cause of Masonic Benevolence, I am delighted to hear that a meeting of his friends is proposed, in order to arrange that the course of events shall be watched on his behalf. I have long felt it to be very unfair that Bro. Binckes should be left single handed to cope with the numerous committees and organizations springing up all over the country for the one object of attacking him, or at least attacking the principles of which he has long been the responsible head. It appears to me, Bro. Binckes is expected to discharge the duties of his office as efficiently as he has hitherto done, to show the same amount of interest in the affairs of the Institution of which he is Secretary as in years gone by, and all in face of severe opposition, personal insults, and a lack of sympathy which is far from creditable on the part of the Masonic Order.

It is not for me, perhaps, to cast the first stone, but I think that a protest should be offered, even if something stronger is not attempted, to put an end, for the present, to the canvass which is going on on behalf of one or other of the brethren who have decided to offer themselves as candidates for the office now held by Bro. Binckes. I consider it most unbecoming, even indecent, to canvass for an appointment still held by a Mason who, although, perhaps, misunderstood by a few, has won, and still retains, the esteem and regard of the English Craft; and I would suggest that the Committee of the Institution, who, it must be remembered, are availing themselves of Bro. Binckes's services and experience, should spare him the annoyance he must feel in hearing of the "vultures" eager for his post, by announcing that any one canvassing for the appointment before the office is declared vacant shall be ineligible to compete for it. This would not be an illegal proceeding, for in many Charities canvass at any time is a disqualification, and surely this little consideration for the feelings of an old and tried servant is not much to ask. Besides this, there are the interests of the Institution to be considered, and is it reasonable to expect that its present Secretary can properly discharge his duties, in face of the annoyance and worry these premature attacks must occasion him? Is it fair to ask a man to make his own coffin, or dig his own grave, when he is yet in the enjoyment of health, strength and energy? and yet this is what the Craft is forcing upon Bro. Binckes. He is retained in his position as Secretary, expected to put every thing in order and make all easy and comfortable for a successor; and it must indeed gall him to hear on every side the claims or the qualifications of this or that candidate for his office. Surely there is enough of decency and love of fairness left in the ranks of the Craft to check the unnecessary, ill-advised, and ill-timed proceedings of these reformers (?)

I am afraid I am digressing from my original intention in writing to you, but while I was thinking what I should say in this letter I read what may be described as the "electioneering address" of one of these candidates, and I felt considerably annoyed at the bad taste such an early publication displayed. But to return, I am informed a preliminary meeting is proposed to be held at the Holborn Restaurant next Thursday, to settle what steps are necessary to be taken by the friends of Bro. Binckes to "watch the case on his behalf." The action of these "friends" need not, nor is it at all likely, to in any way affect the interests of the Institution; on the contrary, it is likely to strengthen it, by putting a check on some of the unseemly riot now indulged in. At the present time the wildest statements may be put forth as truth, and they usually go unanswered, simply because there is no organisation to reply on behalf of the brother principally interested. This, I imagine will be one of the questions to be considered, but beyond it there is another field open for labour—I consider that some steps should be taken to meet the legal and regular resolutions passed in various quarters, in regard to the retiring allowance to be given to Bro. Binckes, if his removal is decided upon. For instance, at a numerously attended meeting of the Charity Committee of the Province of West Lancashire, recently held, it was unanimously agreed, so says the Liverpool Mercury, "that a sum not exceeding £200 should be suggested to the brethren at the approaching P.G. Lodge meeting, as the retiring allowance of Bro. Binckes, the Secretary of the Boys' Institution."

I do not know on what basis these West Lancashire brethren fix £200 as an adequate pension, but I think that such valuable services as have been rendered by Bro. Binckes should be fairly and properly recognised, and, personally, I do not consider the sum here decided upon is enough. Perhaps a committee of Bro. Binckes's friends might be able to correspond with the West Lancashire representatives, as well as other Provinces where the matter has been officially noticed, and arrange an amicable and unanimous understanding, which would be far better than a severe and stormy discussion when the matter comes forward for actual settlement. It must not be forgotten that Bro. Binckes has many supporters, and if he is not treated properly they will resent it, just as some of the opposition threaten to do if his services are, in their estimation, over valued. In either case, if disagreement is carried to extremes, the Institution will suffer; but if an amicable settlement, in which both sides concede something, is arrived at, all may be well, and the future prosperity of the Charity assured.

I am, Sir, yours fraternally,

LUX

We have been asked to insert the following circular notice:—

THE OLD MASONIANS

AN ASSOCIATION OF EX-PUPILS OF THE

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

DEAR SIR,—I have the pleasure to enclose you our Third Annual Report and Financial Statement, and at the same time desire to draw your attention more particularly to the objects we have in view.

The Committee cannot but feel that were these objects more fully known among the general body of Freemasons, assistance in furthering the main purpose of the Association would not be wanting, and they would therefore solicit your kindness in submitting these matters to the members of your Lodge.

It is the aim of the Association to extend the works of those whose energies have hitherto been devoted to the efficient maintenance of the School. The education provided being of a sound and practical character, we are naturally solicitous of seeing that education rightly directed and applied.

As there are several lads who, from time to time, leave the Institution without friends to counsel and aid them, we, as an Association, are desirous of assisting in placing them in good and permanent situations, for which by their education they are eminently fitted, and in furtherance of this object, the Committee feel that they cannot do better than to apply to their first friends, and ask them to remember the lads they have assisted to educate, should any opportunity occur, or any vacancy in their respective businesses arise.

I have confidence that this appeal will not be made in vain, and I shall be pleased to correspond with any gentleman on the matter.

On Saturday, 2nd November, a dramatic performance will be given by the members, at St. George's Hall, Regent Street, W., the proceeds of which are to be devoted to the formation of a "Benevolent and Grant Fund." The object of this Fund will be (firstly) to assist any Old Boy, who, through no fault of his own, may be in temporary distress; (secondly) to make grants, returnable or otherwise as the Council may determine, to members situated in such circumstances as it is felt would warrant such a course and be deemed advisable and (thirdly) it is hoped in time to realize such an amount as will enable the Association to set apart a sum for an annual Scholarship to a pupil of the R.M.I.B., which sum could be used either as a means of further education or for purposes of apprenticeship.

Several members of the Craft have expressed a desire to be more closely connected with the Association, and as the office of Vice-President is open to all Freemasons on payment of a donation of £3 3s, and any Freemason may be elected as Hon. Associate on payment of an annual subscription of 10s 6d, it is hoped that many of our well-wishers will show by practical sympathy their interest in the affairs of the Association.

Trusting we shall receive the support of your Lodge, and feeling sure that our aims will be considered worthy of your encouragement,

I am, dear Sir,

Your obedient servant,

ALFRED WATKINS, Hon. Sec.

21 Belgrave Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.
September 1889.

GLEANINGS.

Ambition, restrained within due limits, may seem to be a wholesome property of life. A desire to excel, to be foremost in the race for earthly honours and rewards, may stimulate exertion and lead to large enterprises. Ambition is a passion, however, which is very likely to break away from control and get the mastery. It is very apt to unite the elements of envy, pride, vanity, covetousness, and other base qualities, so developing a character by no means worthy of commendation, and leading to results that are most repulsive. Well has it been said:—"The nature of ambition is to make men liars and cheats, and hide the truth in their breasts, and show, like jugglers, another thing in their mouths; to cut all friendships and enmities to the measure of their interest, and to make a good countenance without the help of a good will or an honest heart." When this sort of ambition is let loose in the community, and when men thus influenced become prominent in the affairs of any organization, only the worst results can ensue. The root principle of an unhallowed ambition is selfishness.

There is a growing feeling in Toronto that it is about time to call a halt in decorating the walls of the Toronto-street hall with portraits, life-size, of Past Grand Masters. In this democratic country, and in such a democratic Institution as Freemasonry should be, men are often the idols of a passing hour, and then drop into obscurity. There are, however, men of such noble qualities that their names will long be revered, but such men would prefer being remembered for their sterling qualities than by being portrayed on canvas. The portraits may be historical in a way, but when the honest Masonic historian of the future does his duty more than one of the illuminated scraps of history will be objects of contempt.

The length of a Mason's cable-tow is measured by his own standard, and he alone is responsible for that test of judgment.

The death of the Tyler, Bro. Wilkinson Pool is recorded in 1802, his funeral being attended by the Lodge, and great respect paid to his memory. He was for 31 years Tyler of the Lodge. A fac-simile copy of an inscription on his tomb-stone is included in Bro. Crossley's book. About this time the Lodge suffered other losses through the death of members, among others being Bro. Samuel Lord, who had been a subscriber over thirty-nine years (1763-1802). In 1804 the members attended, with those of other Lodges, the funeral of Bro. Robert Sutcliffe, special services being arranged for the occasion. In 1807 various "lectures" are recorded, and from the minutes they appear to have been appreciated. Several emergency meetings are recorded about this time, at many of which members were "passed the chair," so as to qualify them for the Royal Arch Degree, which appears to have been in favour at the time. It is remarked that "the Lodge at this period was in a most flourishing condition; its members were constantly increasing; and the persons who were admitted were members of society held in high esteem by their fellow townsmen, and who to this day have left their mark in the town and neighbourhood."

As senior Lodge of the district "Probity" appears to have exercised a close supervision of the Lodges at a distance from the Provincial Grand Lodge centre, reporting to that authority on difficulties as they cropped up in the vicinity. A question of selling the warrant of the Loyal Halifax Lodge to some brethren of Heptonstall was one of the matters to which special reference is made under this heading. The members of Probity called an emergency meeting, and summoned the brethren interested in the transfer to attend, calling upon the members of the Loyal Halifax to refund the money paid for the transfer. The whole proceedings were duly reported to the Provincial Lodge, and a petition for the regular removal of the warrant was forwarded. There does not appear to be any record of the result of these proceedings, except that on 11th July 1809 a brother attended as a visitor from the Prince Frederick Lodge, Heptonstall, from which it is inferred the prayer of the petition was granted. An emergency meeting of Probity was held on the 17th July 1809, at Heptonstall, when it appears the local Lodge was regularly established. On this occasion there was an attendance of 113; 57 as Craft Masons, 23 as Royal Arch Masons, and 33 as Knights Templar. A procession was formed, and the whole company attended church, returning therefrom to a "plentiful dinner" at the Stag's Inn. A collection, which amounted to £4 5s 3d was made, 20s of which was given to a poor Mason's widow, while the balance was given to the Minister of Heptonstall, to distribute to such poor persons as he thought proper.

MAN'S PRE-EMINENCE.

FREEMASONRY emphasizes the dignity of man. It inculcates respect for human nature. It enforces the lessons of Bible revelation that man was appointed to hold pre-eminent position, having both an original capacity and a natural power of development which indicate his masterful relation towards the rest of the animal creation, as well as to material forces and products. David asks the significant question: "What is man that Thou art mindful of him? or the son of man that Thou visitest him?" The response comes at once and is most assuring: "Behold Thou hast made him but little lower than the angels and crowned him with glory and honour. Thou madest him to have dominion over the works of Thy hand. Thou hast put all things under his feet."

Experience attests the truthfulness of this declaration. It shows man to be a masterful being, who grows more and more so with every passing age and generation. His supremacy over all material things and over all forms of the animate creation becomes more evident as the years go by. Already he has found out many of the secrets of Nature, has laid his strong hand on her laws and forces, to compel these to do his bidding, until he has well nigh conquered the world of matter. He has proven his power in various ways and given clear evidence of the fact that he was created to bear rule.

Much of man's pre-eminence, however, is acquired; he obtains power from a variety of sources—it is not all a birthright gift. His masterfulness depends upon numerous helps and ministries of which he must avail himself if he would take the foremost position to which he may of right aspire. Freemasonry affirms this proposition, while of itself it is a means of culture toward the desired end. It encourages man to strive to make his being robust and productive, and it points to special helps and agencies that are most potent in contributing to fullness of life.

Freemasonry recognises the value of Nature's teachings. It directs attention to the sun, moon, and stars, to the glory of the heavens above, and the order, the movements, the life, the beauty of the earth below, that so there may be both an enlargement and a quickening of human thought. Dull are we, indeed, if we are not constant learners of those material instructors that are all about us—if we do not realise that there are > "Tongues in trees,

> Sermons in stones,
> Books in the running brook,
> And good in every thing."

Imagination, the poetic feeling, moral sensibility, reverence toward God, faith and kindred qualities, are awakened and strengthened by communion with the outward world, by study of the things that are over our heads and beneath our feet—by contact with the "sweetness and light" of Nature. To learn to see is one of the chief objects of education and life. A man that is insensible to the beauty of the world about him—who hears not its voices of wise suggestion, of delightful harmony and of sweet consolation—will most likely be blind to great facts, and will lack power to reason and to do. Natural scenery and forces—the miracle of beauty that so often repeats itself on this fair earth—hills and mountains, lands and seas, forests and rivers—all are serviceable in educating and in enriching human nature, thus helping man to a noble and more productive existence than else he would have.

Freemasonry appreciates the worth of books, schools, and all the well defined appliances of instruction, in helping man to that larger life which she commends. The liberal arts and sciences find recognition in the Masonic system. Knowledge is recommended to every Mason, not only as being a means of power, but for its own sake. Members of the Fraternity are exhorted to think and study, making use of the best helps that may be within their reach. All this is well. Books and institutions are conducive to that culture of mind which helps a man to assert the masterfulness for which he is designed, and to be useful on the earth. There is a training essential to the largest honour and usefulness, and a part of this culture comes from books, schools, and institutional ministries. The really strong man is grateful for the helps thus afforded.

But this is not all of education or power. The broadest culture of life does not come from books and schools. Men must be instructed in other ways to have the best training, and to gather in their hands the elements of largest power and usefulness. They must touch the pulses of humanity and be quickened thereby; they must open their hearts to the inflowing of generous sentiments, and be sympathetic with the world of life about them, in order to get the best education and acquire that regal power which is most grand and blessed. It is by close fellowship with other hearts and lives that the most of individual strength is developed, that the character becomes symmetrical and attractive, and the life charged with usefulness. It is in the same way, by mixing in the world, bearing a hand in its work, entering into human joys and sorrows with a sympathetic feeling, that the zest of present living is augmented, while the best that is in human nature comes into expression. Blessed is the mission of Freemasonry that it makes some provision for this higher, better life, of the affections and the soul! It recognises man's pre-eminence, and seeks to help him to live nobly and well, according to what are the prerogatives of his being and the trend of his most exalted thought.

Obituary.

BRO. GERARD FORD.

SOME few weeks back we published particulars of an accident that had befallen this worthy brother, and it is with deep regret we have now to record his death, which occurred at his residence, 58 Marine Parade, Brighton, on Saturday last. Bro. Gerard Ford was appointed Deputy Provincial Grand Master for Sussex, in succession to Bro. John Henderson Scott, who died in the year 1886, and during the absence of the Provincial Grand Master His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught may be said to have controlled the destinies of the Province of Sussex. Bro. Ford entered the Masonic Order in 1870, he was initiated in the Royal Clarence Lodge, No. 271, Brighton, and therein he served the office of Worshipful Master. He afterwards joined the Bayons Lodge and the St. Matthew's Lodge in Lincolnshire, and for services rendered to that Province the Provincial Grand Master conferred on him, in the year 1878, the office of Prov. G.S.D. Two years later Bro. Sir Walter Burrell, Prov. Grand Master of Sussex, conferred on Bro. Ford the office of Grand Registrar of the Province, a post which he held until the death of the late Bro. John Henderson Scott, when the Duke of Connaught appointed him his Deputy in the ruling of the Province. Bro. Ford was also associated with several other Craft Lodges. In 1887 he had conferred on him the honour of a Past Grand Deaconship of the Grand Lodge of England. In the Royal Arch Bro. Ford was a member and Past Officer of the Lennox and the Hova Villa Chapters, in Brighton, and the St. Matthew's Chapter, in Lincolnshire. He filled the office of Grand Registrar of Sussex until, on the death of Sir Walter Burrell, he received the appointment of Grand Superintendent of the Province. In the Mark Degree Bro. Ford was a member and Past Master of the Hova Lodge, in Brighton, and was, for some time, Grand Registrar of the Province. On the expiration of Lord Arthur Hill's term of office, Bro. Ford received from His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales the appointment of Provincial Grand Master.

His mortal remains were consigned to their last resting place in the Extra-Mural Cemetery, Brighton, on Tuesday afternoon. The funeral cortège, consisting of a car, five mourning coaches, and several private carriages, left the residence of the deceased at a quarter-past three. At the gates of the Cemetery, which were reached shortly before a quarter to four, a large assembly of Freemasons fell in and headed the funeral procession. The chief mourners were Mrs. Gerard Ford and sister, General Ford and Mr. Wharton Ford (brothers), Rev. Gerard J. Ford, Mr. Thomas Ford, Mr. Letchworth, Mr. C. C. Bailey, Mr. Willoughby Farner, Mr. Cooper, and the Reverend Canon Waugh (Vicar of Saint Mary's, Brighton). The burial service was conducted by the Rev. Canon Waugh. The Psalms were chanted by the choir of St. Peter's Church, under the direction of the organist, Mr. Stanley Cooke, who presided at the harmonium. Previous to the Lesson, the hymn "Gracious spirit, Holy Ghost," was sung; and, after the Lesson, "God moves in a mysterious way." While proceeding to the family mausoleum, which is situated near the church, and contains the remains of the deceased gentleman's first wife, the choir sang the hymn, "For thee, O dear, dear country," and terminated the service with "Lead, kindly light." The coffin, which was of polished mahogany with gilt fittings, was covered with choice wreaths of flowers, and bore the following inscription: "Gerard Ford, born 20th May 1830, died 28th September 1889." Wreaths were sent by the following Masonic bodies: Mark Master Masons of Sussex, Royal Clarence Lodge, Pelham Lodge, South Saxon Chapter, Hever Mark Lodge, Stanford Lodge, Hova Villa Chapter, Earl of Sussex Lodge, St. Cecilia Lodge, Royal Brunswick Lodge, Ockenden Lodge, South Saxon Lodge, and Jerusalem Lodge. Wreaths were also sent by relatives and personal friends. Passing the mausoleum the Freemasons dropped sprigs of acacia on the coffin.

The Lord Mayor elect, Sir Henry Aaron Isaacs, is a distinguished Freemason, and Past Master of several Lodges. He now fills the chair of Senior Warden in the Drury Lane Lodge.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

THE motion for an injunction in the action of Lord Leigh and others v. the Vestry of St. Mary, Battersea, to restrain the Defendants from erecting the bridge over the railway at St. John's Hill in such a way as to interfere with the access of the Plaintiffs to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, came on again before Mr. Justice Denman, in the Vacation Court, on Wednesday, but as the parties had not come to terms, as it had been suggested on the former Wednesday they probably would, Mr. Justice Denman refused to fully hear the case, as it would interfere with the other business before the Court, and he, therefore, adjourned the arguments of counsel till Friday.

On Friday, before Mr. Justice Denman, Mr. Wilkinson informed his Lordship that both parties in the action of Lord Leigh v. the Vestry of St. Mary, Battersea, had come to terms as to the Bridge and Road to be made adjacent to the Institution, and that the Defendants would pay the Plaintiffs fifty pounds and costs.

BRO. GOULD IN SCOTLAND.

WE must congratulate Glasgow Chapter, No. 50, on the enterprise shown by its esteemed M.E.Z. Comp. Edward Macbean, in carrying on the series of Lectures, now in its third year of unbroken continuity. For the address which inaugurated the cause the Chapter was indebted to no external aid, as it was delivered by the Third Principal; nor, indeed, has it been found necessary to call in outside assistance, for there is still an ample supply of available material for at least the remainder of this session.

Our highly respected Bro. W. J. Hughan (who was exalted in this Chapter, 1865) while on a visit to Bro. Macbean, last summer, was requested to put himself more fully en evidence with the Masons of Glasgow, which he most obligingly complied with, and spoke on "Five Centuries of Freemasonry" to an appreciative audience, which completely filled the spacious room secured for the occasion. This Lecture acted as an incentive to Bro. Edward Macbean, who had already done good suit and service on many points of independent Masonic inquiry—notably with regard to our ancient symbolism, a subject on which his colleagues of the Quatuor Coronati Lodge consider he has clearly established a right to figure as an authority—and was thereby encouraged to still greater efforts than those by which he had already been locally distinguished. Among the several subjects treated by Bro. Macbean in his various addresses are the following:—"Notes on the History of Freemasonry;" "Explanations of Masonic Ceremonials;" "Mark Degree versus Mark Custom;" "Early Symbols; "Students' Addresses; "Instructions on the Royal Arch," &c., and numerous discourses at installation and other special meetings.

Following in the footsteps of Bro. Hughan, our equally well-known Bro. R. F. Gould has also paid a visit to the north, as the guest of Bro. Macbean, and in a like manner yielding to the persuasive eloquence of his host, delivered, on the 30th September, an address, of which the following is a brief epitome.

Bro. Gould said, that the period of time, 1717-23, had been termed "the epoch of transition," because in the opinion of many leading authorities, the system of Masonry now possessed (or, in other words, the three degrees of the Craft as they were commonly styled), was then manufactured or concocted. Against this, however, was arrayed the conviction of another set of authorities, who were firm believers in the antiquity of Masonic degrees, and discredited the notion that any alteration had been made by the Grand Lodge of England in the secrets of Masonry, except in what might be termed non-essentials—or, to use words of greater precision, in the method adopted of imparting them.

Thus there were two theories, or schools of thought with regard to the degrees, or as he preferred to call it, the Symbolism of Freemasonry, a wider term, and one which would cover everything done or practised in the Lodges from 1723 onwards, for which (it was alleged) no equivalent was to be found in the doings and practices of the Lodges in existence prior to 1717.

Each of those views or theories had its supporters, and to whichever side the argument might for the moment seem to preponderate, he (Bro. Gould) thought they could not be too careful in recollecting that there was evidence to the contrary.

The time at their disposal would only admit of one side of the question being discussed at that sitting, and he could therefore merely put before them one branch of the case, viz., the arguments that might be adduced in favour of the antiquity of Masonic Symbolism.

The point for their consideration was the following one:—

Was the Symbolism of Masonry an inheritance derived from the old Masons who flourished before the era of Grand Lodges, or had it been borrowed from the Rosicrucians, or others, after 1717?

Or to illustrate still more clearly the line of argument he should pursue:—

Was there ground for supposing that the Symbolism of our present Freemasonry existed in Mediæval times, and that it had decayed, pari passu, with the operative Masonry of that period, and come down to them divested of much of its real significancy, as a legacy or inheritance from the working Masons of those early times?

The period of origin assigned by common repute to the institution of Freemasonry was the 13th century, which synchronized with that of the rise of Gothic architecture. The latter, indeed, was for a long time considered as being under the exclusive charge of the Freemasons, though latterly the tide had turned, and the old and popular belief, in any connection between the two, was regarded as the high water mark of credulity.

But a paper by Professor Hayter Lewis—"Scottish Masons' Marks compared with those of other countries,"—read before the British Archæological Association, at its recent session in Glasgow, would be deemed by many persons to have gone a long way towards reinstating the old belief or tradition.

Among the conclusions formulated by the Professor were the following:—

1st. "That certain definite methods of marking the general surfaces of the stones, characterised the Masonry of the style which we call Norman, and that this had apparently a Western origin.

2nd. That in the 13th century there was introduced with the Early Pointed Style [a phase of Gothic], an entirely different method of finishing the surface, and that the source of this method was apparently from the East.

3rd. That Masons' marks do not appear to have been commonly used in Europe until late in the 12th century.

4th. That some of the most prominent of these marks appear to have been used continuously, from very early times, in Eastern Countries."

It was not too much to say that Masons' Marks which had long been regarded by advanced students as possessing a sentimental value, out of all proportion to their serviceable worth, were now, owing to the research of Bro. Hayter Lewis, shown to be a very important factor in the complicated problem of Masonic history.

After the Early Pointed, came the Middle, or Perfect Pointed Style, known in England by the name of Decorated. After this the finest age of Gothic Architecture was at an end, and it might be said to have gone out in a blaze of glory under the Tudors.

Here was, he thought, a greater probability of the present Masonic Symbolism having existed during the splendour of mediæval operative Masonry than of its having been introduced at any period after its decline.

This was borne out to some extent by the written traditions of the Society, the earliest of which—Regius MS.—dating from about 1425, contained inculcations which were very far removed from the mental range of the operative brethren to whom the Manuscript Constitutions were rehearsed at a later era.

Between the Regius MS. and the earliest of the MS. Constitutions there was a gap of a century and a-half, and both before and during this period there were influences at work which left their mark on the civilisation of the era.

In England, down to the War of the Roses, the hand of the English sculptor had grown still, and the arts had lost their vigour and beauty. But in Scotland, the relapse into comparative anarchy was even greater, owing to the War of Independence.

It was, therefore, a plausible conjecture, and might account to some extent for the simplicity of the Scottish ceremonial, that while in the one instance—Scotland—the ancient symbolism of Masonry had descended to the level of the ordinary artisan; in the other instance—England—more of the old framework still existed?

It was contended by those writers who opposed the view, for which he (Bro. Gould) was supporting, that virtually the symbolism of Masonry as they then had it, was the invention of the "new-comers" into Masonry, circa 1721-30. But it was a curious fact that not only did the actual ceremonial of those early days bear witness to its own antiquity, but the fact in question was so accepted by all contemporary critics of the Society.

That point, indeed, he would not favour, but left each brother to determine for himself. It was clear, however, that if the symbolism which prevailed during the first decade of the Grand Lodge of England could be carried back beyond or behind the so-called revival of 1717, an important point—to those who believed in its great antiquity—would have been attained.

Upon the whole, he thought it was very far removed from being an arbitrary hypothesis that the existing symbolism of Masonry had come down, in all its main features, from very ancient times; and that it originated during the shadows of mediæval operative Masonry and not in its decline. Also

That at a period of time, now very remote from our own, much knowledge of all kinds was embodied in mystical figures and schemes, such as were deemed appropriate emblems for its preservation, and that many of these figures and schemes are preserved in Masonry, though their meaning is no longer understood by the fraternity.

At the conclusion of Bro. Gould's address, which was listened to with marked attention, occasionally interrupted by outbursts of applause, the M.E.Z. Bro. Macbean invited a discussion on the many new points advanced by the able lecturer in the thesis which he presented as the result of his most recent contemplations. Among those who responded to the invitation of the M.E.Z. may be noticed more particularly, as space forbids us entering into the minutiæ of inquiries which were abundantly presented and as fully disposed of by the lecturer, were Bro. James Crichton Grand Sword Bearer and M.E.Z. No. 1 (Edinburgh), and R. S. Brown Grand Scribe E.

A vote of thanks was warmly acclaimed by the meeting, to which a suitable response was made by Bro. Gould. The proceedings terminated by conferring honorary affiliation on Bro. Gould, as a token of the estimation in which his labours were regarded by the Glasgow Royal Arch Chapter, No. 50, the oldest in the Province. When retiring from the Temple the brethren had an opportunity of contributing to the Benevolent Fund of the Supreme Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Scotland, an appeal which was liberally responded to.

LIGHT FROM DARKNESS.

THE REV. HERBERT BOTT, Provincial Grand Chaplain of Northumberland, delivered the following oration at the Provincial Grand Lodge of Northumberland, held at Hexham, on the 9th ultimo, selecting as his text the words:—"And God said, let there be light: and there was light. And God saw the light, that it was good: and God divided the light from the darkness."—Genesis i. 3, 4.

"Without form and void," are the elements of the natural world. They sleep as yet without motion, silent and in disorder.

> "Chaos umpire sits
> And by decision more embroils the fray
> By which he reigns. Next him, high arbiter,
> Chance governs all. Into this wild abyss
> The womb of nature and perhaps her grave,"

—the spirit of God moved—the fiat of the Divine word went forth, and lo! sudden light burst in mid-day splendour o'er the void and formless infinite. Fit and striking emblem of man's spiritual darkness before illumined and quickened by the grace of God. The preacher proceeded to impress upon his hearers the high value they ought to set on that more ineffably glorious and eternal light which comes from the bright and morning Star of redemption, which only could expel the darkness from our souls in which sin and corruption had marked them. To them, as members of their ancient and honourable fraternity, whose predominant wish must ever be for light, and whose eyes must be ever lifted to that bright morning star, whose rising should bring peace and salvation to the faithfu and obedient of the human race, this their subject was of peculiar interest. For from what they were taught and instructed in the valued tenets of their Order they saw that Masonry in the most sacred sense was a science of light—a bright beam, a noble and holy system of practical religion which derived its excellence from and would ever direct its children to the first grand lesson of all light—the mighty God, the everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace. What then, he would ask, was the attitude which they, as Masons, assumed towards their society? Did they embrace and did they estimate it as a mere bond of brotherly union without concern about its internal excellencies, which, if duly practised and studied according to their time and abilities, must help them to be better men? Did they unite themselves with it, or did they behave as if they united themselves with it as a mere society to be desired and followed solely for its exclusive Charity and peculiar mysteries? God forbid! At their initiation they professed to believe, and in the course of their regular advancement they had been subsequently taught and made to know that the principles of their Order were founded upon the never-failing base of revealed light of true religion. And they could not moreover forget how imperatively it insisted upon and prized the daily practice of every moral, social and religious virtue. It was consequently their most serious duty, as professors of this light, to endeavour undeviatingly to comply with its important and solemn obligations. The more indeed they considered and entered into the true spirit of the Craft which had, let him most emphatically repeat it, for its aim the glory of God and the good of mankind, the more will their minds be illumined and their hearts improved by the holy wisdom and virtue which it delighted to cherish and diffuse throughout its members. Nor was it over-colouring the moral beauties of the Order, nor raising it on too elevated a pedestal of superiority, to say of it, in relation to those who enrolled themselves under its banner, that Christianity and infidelity were not more incapable of union than a good Mason and a bad man. The combination of such contradictory characters was as impossible as the agreement of light with darkness. It might be said by the scoffer in the outside world that in claiming so exalted a position for Freemasonry they made it almost a religion, or sought to put it in the place of one. Not so, they made it what the brotherhood who had preceded them in the long vista of ages gone by had made it—the handmaid of religion and the guardian of civilization, and that only. At one time perhaps religion, when persecuted, might have found shelter beneath her handmaid's robe, as false faiths had made themselves identical with the spurious imitations of the science but he would fain wish that the distinction was as carefully drawn by the outer world as it was fully understood and preserved by the brotherhood. And, on the other hand, did they hear the cry that Masonry was subversive to a certain extent of all true religion. How fallacious, when they knew that its object had been from of old to lead men to look to the one great Architect of the Universe—the Author and Giver of all good things. When they could point to the fact that men whose piety and sound faith had been without question, had been found within its ranks, when the good and the holy, the pious and learned bishop, the loved and God-fearing pastor had declared themselves honoured by being addressed as brother. Ages had rolled away after ages, and still the ancient landmarks had never been removed. Persecution in almost every land and every era had been visited, aye, brothers, even as against Christianity itself, upon the brotherhood, and its members had borne the storm bravely,—yes, even to the death by axe and fire. Calumny had been permitted to shoot her many barbed and poisonous shafts against it, but they had fallen blunted before the only weapon presented to their flight—the shield of integrity and truth; and it stood before the world acquitted by universal acclamation of all the grosser charges that had been hurled against it. True it was they were enshrined in an atmosphere of secresy and mystery, but these were sanctioned by the divine author of all light in the religion of their most holy faith. They embraced in the laudable objects of Masonry the promotion of virtue and the increase of human happiness. They rested on the broad altar of Christian principles and devoted loyalty. Masonry, around the reputation of her children, cast a consecrated robe which she forbade her followers to touch, much less tear off with ruthless violence, and when compelled by honour and justice to do so she bade them with a tear of pity, and not a smile of malice, to be merciful, and was not that echoing back the very voice of the Gospel which taught them to speak evil of no man. So the immortal poet and greatest moralist this world beheld instructed mankind—"The quality of mercy is not strained." And no one who was not dead to the nobleness of the human character or insensible to the finest feeling of his nature could hear of or see without just anger and indignation the Christian command and Masonic obligation of unspeakable consequence so wantonly violated as was often witnessed. For the sake, therefore, of all that was lovely and of good report let them as much as laid in them have a conscience void of offence toward man and God. In conclusion, the preacher said:—"Thus walking in the light as 'children of the light,' let us not forget the Mason's moral to go unto perfection; o'er the tesselated pavement of this fleeting and chequered existence, we are fast hastening to the common end of all men, and along the downward track of time we are descending, some more smoothly than others, but all with no less sure and quick transition. Let us, therefore, be not unmindful of the merciful ends of our creation and redemption, to shine as the stars for ever and ever, when raised in glorified bodies from the darkness of the tomb of transgression, we shall be presented by our all-sufficient Conductor before the throne of the Almighty Eternal Master of the Grand Lodge above. If heretofore irresolute and wavering, begin we at once to strive for the mastery and in earnest to ascend the ladder of hope, by the regular and progressive steps of obedience, faith, and love, our Christian as our Masonic course must be steady, gradual, and measured, or an advancement in virtue and godliness will be irregular, uncertain and unsuccessful. Thus we have been already taught in the creation of light and the perfecting of the visible works of God, and even so it is in the spiritual creation of the soul anew. Our increase in holiness if we would grow 'in the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God,' unto the perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ, is step by step, higher and higher, as we are enlightened, strengthened, and improved, until the door of the Grand Lodge of everlasting life opens to receive us in the glorious abodes of immortal light. Oh, that we may all of us, my Masonic brethren, be the blessed partakers of that unspeakable and never-fading glory, and to this end may we remember that we are not our own but bought with a price, and thus mindful that our duty is to glorify God in our bodies and in our spirits, and let our light so shine before men that they may see our good works and glorify our Father which is in heaven."

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

LODGE OF HARMONY, No. 272.

ON Thursday evening, the 19th ultimo, the brethren partook of a dinner, at Bro. Eloy's, Red Cow Hotel, Boston, to celebrate in an informal manner the granting of the charter by the Grand Lodge of England in August 1779. Bro. C. Lucas W.M. presided, and Bro. W. Appleton occupied the vice chair. The usual Loyal Masonic and complimentary toasts were honoured.

MOIRA LODGE, No. 324.

ON Thursday, 12th ult., at the Wellington Hotel, Stalybridge, a most pleasing ceremony took place after the usual business of the Lodge had been completed. This was the presentation of an illuminated address, together with a Past Master's jewel, to Brother Wm. Robert Batchelor. Bro. Henry Hall, who is now the oldest Past Master of the Lodge, made the presentation, and in doing so spoke of Bro. Batchelor's sterling worth, of his past labours for the Lodge, and of his strict devotion to the principles of Freemasonry, for a period of more than 25 years. After having spoken at some length Bro. Hall concluded by thanking the brethren for the honour done him in asking him to make the presentation. Bro. Batchelor, who had received no hint of what was to take place, thanked the members for their goodwill towards him.

PERSEVERANCE LODGE, No. 345.

ON Thursday, 19th instant, at the Old Bull Hotel, Blackburn, Mr. W. H. Burnett was formally initiated a member. Bro. T. W. Gregson is the W.M. of the Lodge, and Mr. Burnett was elected on the proposal of Bro. Scott P.M., seconded by Bro. Holt P.M.

DE OGIE LODGE, No. 636.

DRAMATIC LODGE, No. 1609.

ON Tuesday, 24th ult., in the presence of a numerous assembly of members of the Lodge and visitors, Bro. W. W. Sandbrook was, at the Masonic Temple, Hope-street, Liverpool, duly installed as Worshipful Master. The retiring Master of this flourishing Lodge, which ranks fifth amongst the whole of the 95 Lodges of the Province of West Lancashire in the amount contributed to the cause of charity, is Bro. H. Round, who has discharged his duties with ability and tact, and was on Tuesday presented by his brethren with a Past Master's jewel and two diamond rings—one for himself and one for Mrs. Round—as a token of their esteem and regard. His successor in the chair should have been the late Bro. E. H. Allen, who fulfilled the duties of Senior Warden with marked success, and whose accession to the chair was looked forward to as an event which would ensure as efficient a discharge of the duties as could be desired by the most exacting. However, Dr. Allen was removed by death, in May last, and the appointment of a successor became necessary. Bro. W. W. Sandbrook, who is a Past Master of the Lodge, was at the last assembly of the brethren nominated and duly elected to the chair, and the ceremony of installation was performed by Bro. H. Round I.P.M., the presenting Officers being Bro. J. B. M'Kenzie and Bro. Lindo Courtenay. The visiting brethren present included Bros. Foote P.P.G. Treasurer, H. H. Smith P.P.A.G.D.C., T. H. W. Walker P.P.G. Treasurer, J. I. Callow P.P.G. Treasurer, B. W. Rowson P.P.G.S.W., T. Clarke P.G.R., J. Gordon P.M. 443 S.C., S. Mattinson P.P.G.S., Lawton W.M. 220, Edward R. Latham W.M. 594, F. A. Withey P.M. 1299, H. Hatch P.M. 220, F. F. Foulkes P.M. 292, J. Humphreys P.M. 724, J. Ashley P.M. 1356, W. Lamb P.M. 979, B. M. Bannatyne S.W. 216, T. Lowton J.W. 2042, and H. H. Smith S.D. 1730. After his installation the Worshipful Master proceeded to invest his Officers for the ensuing year, as follows:—Bros. H. Round I.P.M., J. Fineberg S.W., J. H. Light J.W., H. Heard Secretary, J. L. Shrapnell Treasurer, A. Mein S.D., A. E. Workman J.D., Eaton Batty I.G., Josef Cantor Organist, Barry Stuart S.S., J. Heginbotham J.S., George Clarance A.S., E. Graham A.S., W. Savage P.M. Director of Ceremonies, and W. H. Ball Tyler. The ceremony of installation and investiture concluded, the brethren sat down to a sumptuous banquet, provided by Bro. W. Vines. The usual toast list was gone through, but an especial feature was made of that pledging the health of the Grand and Provincial Grand Officers, on account of the fact that the Dramatic Lodge was on Wednesday of last week honoured by the appointment of one of its Past Masters for Provincial Grand honours at the meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge held at Barrow-in-Furness, and presided over by the Provincial Grand Master Bro. the Right Hon. the Earl of Lathom. In proposing the toast and coupling with it the name of Bro. Josef Cantor, the brother so signally honoured, the W.M. referred to Bro. Cantor in felicitous terms, dwelling upon his ability alike as a Mason and as a musician. He was sure that his appointment as Provincial Grand Organist would be amply justified, and that Bro. Cantor, who had acquitted himself so well as Master of that Lodge, would discharge his new duties with equal tact and efficiency. Bro. Josef Cantor suitably responded, remarking that he looked upon the appointment more as an honour to his mother Lodge than to himself personally. An excellent miscellaneous programme was contributed to by Bros. E. Edwards, N. F. Burt, J. Heginbotham, T. Shaw, L. Courtenay, R. Baxter, H. G. Round, H. Randall, and Josef Cantor, by whom the accompaniments were ably supplied. Bro. T. Shaw delighted all present with his charming violin solos, and a very interesting and pleasing musical selection, which constituted the chief feature of the programme, was contributed by Bros. Josef Cantor (piano), T. Shaw (violin), H. G. Round (cornet), and R. Baxter (clarionet).

GRAYSTONE LODGE, No. 1915.

THE annual installation meeting was held at the Foresters' Hall, Whitstable, on Thursday, the 12th ult., when Bro. T. W. Porter was duly installed as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, the ceremony being ably performed by Bro. Sibert Saunders, the retiring W.M. The new W.M. invested Bro. S. Saunders as I.P.M., and appointed and invested the Officers, as follow:—Brothers E. G. Walthew S.W., F. Browning J.W., the Rev. H. M. Maugham Chaplain, A. Anderson Treasurer, J. Wood Secretary, W. London S.D., A. W. Southwell J.D., F. A. Johnson Organist, Bruce Lightfoot D.C., A. Harrison I.G., M. Kemp and C. M. Driffield Stewards. The usual banquet was held, after Lodge, at the Assembly Rooms, and was attended by a large number of home and visiting members.

PROFICIENCY BEFORE ADVANCEMENT.

IT has always been wisely provided by the Craft, that except under such extraordinary circumstances as justify a Dispensation, the three degrees of Freemasonry should not be conferred on one and the same evening. At least one month must intervene between the conferring of the several degrees. The reasons for this regulation are numerous, but we purpose referring now to but one, and that is: the Craft designs that every Entered Apprentice and Fellow Craft, before he is advanced, shall become reasonably familiar with that portion of the mystery which was taught him in the preceding degree. To accomplish this, time and instruction are necessary. Freemasonry is both a science and an art, and it requires attention and study to master it. If it did not, it would be empty of meaning, and unworthy of any intelligent person's regard. But it is because it includes instruction of the highest importance to the initiate, that the Fraternity provides, in its organic law, that he shall show proficiency in the preceding degree before he receives advancement to a higher one.

The "Ahiman Rezon" of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania provides as follows upon this subject:

"It is recommended to all Lodges to require proof of a Brother's proficiency in the Craft, by examination in the Lodge, before he be advanced."

While some of the Lodges in this jurisdiction to our own knowledge have heeded this recommendation, we have reason to fear that the majority have not. Because it was "recommended," but not absolutely required, they appear to have regarded it as a matter in which they had an option, and the result is, that every year an army of initiates is introduced into the Masonic world without any qualification for constituting an intelligent portion of our ancient and honourable Craft, which is thus dishonoured by its own members.

How many Masons cannot visit a Lodge unless they are vouched for? How many can barely enter, when in a foreign jurisdiction, and thus reflect discredit upon their mother jurisdiction? Pennsylvania creditably leads, in most respects, the jurisdictions of the globe; none are truer to the all-important Ancient Landmarks, and the time-honoured usages and customs of the Craft; but in this matter of examination in open Lodge of a candidate before advancement, we have been sadly deficient, and it is time to turn over a new leaf, and comply with the plainly-expressed recommendation of the "Ahiman Rezon."

Consider what is the ground of this recommendation, It is of primary importance, because it refers to the very A, B, C, of Masonry. If the groundwork be not learned, it will be vain to expect any superstructure to arise thereon. A merely nominal Master Mason, who is not proficient in the preceding degrees, is not fit to be a member of the Lodge, nor to perform any of its duties. He is a profane in everything except the name. For all the advantage his initiation and advancement can be to him he might as well have saved his money. He is a drone in the Masonic hive, an ignoramus in our school of knowledge, unskilled in the mystery and unfitted for visiting abroad or holding office at home. Until he supplies this radical defect in his Masonic education he is a cipher in the Lodge. If he remain a cipher he soon necessarily loses his interest in Masonry, he becomes a rare attendant at Lodge, careless with regard to the payment of his dues, and ultimately is either suspended or becomes a non-affiliate.

Now look on the other side of the picture. The Lodge in which a candidate is made, heeds the recommendation of the "Ahiman Rezon," to "require proof of a Brother's proficiency in the Craft by examination in the Lodge before he is advanced," and the result is, that the Brother becomes at once interested in Freemasonry. He is given something to learn, and he learns it. And then he desires to learn more, and to fully understand all that he has learned. He soon comprehends how much there is in Freemasonry. It broadens out like a sea before him. He realises that it is indeed a mystery, and that it will repay a life-long study. What is it that attaches the affections of a Brother to Freemasonry through three-score years? It is not the mere fact that he has been initiated in the Craft, but it is his progress in Masonic knowledge, his apprehension of the entire scope of the Fraternity—its interesting history, its connection with the science of architecture, its lofty symbolism, and its stimulating knowledge in many directions. These are some of the charms which inseparately and visibly connect the enlightened, the educated, those honoured by the world in its several stations, with our Fraternity, and without these we should lack the long continued support and countenance of our most reputable members. The Lodge which absolutely requires proficiency in its candidates before advancement, takes a long look ahead, and provides for the making of Masons that are Masons, and members that never forsake the Craft. It secures Brethren competent to fill, at a moment's notice, any place or station in the Lodge; and it and it alone performs its duty at once to the Grand Lodge and to its own members. We invite the earnest attention of Masters of Lodges in this jurisdiction to this subject, and their cordial co-operation in fulfilling the recommendation of the "Ahiman Rezon."—Keystone.

Chaplain, Bro. the Rev. Boughton Leigh. The collection for the Charities realised £12. The procession was re-formed and returned to the Lodge, when the Provincial Grand Lodge was closed. PROV. G. LODGE OF SOUTH WALES (WESTERN DIVISION).

FOR the second time since its foundation, in 1867, the Tenby Lodge had the honour on Wednesday, the 25th ult., of welcoming the Provincial Grand Lodge of the Western Division of South Wales under its banner. In consequence of the large number of the brethren that assemble on such occasions the Masonic room in South Parade was deemed too small for the caarying out of the business, and consequently the Grand Lodge was held in the Assembly Rooms of the Royal Gate House, Tenby, which were properly fitted up for the occasion. The members of the Tenby Lodge assembled at eleven o'clock, and the Lodge being tyled, was soon afterwards opened by Bro. A. H. Brookman W.M. and his Officers. Preparations were speedily proceeded with for the due reception of the Right Worshipful Brother Lord Kensington Provincial Grand Master, and his Officers. At noon precisely they were announced, and received by the brethren in the manner customary on all such occasions. Among those present were :—

The Committee recommended that the thanks of the Province be given to Bro. F. E. Remfrey 1177, in recognition of his services as Steward on behalf of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for the past year, and that Bro. F. E. Remfrey 1177 be elected to represent the Province as Steward at the Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls for the year 1890. The recommendation of the Committee was adopted. The brethren then proceeded in procession to St. Mary's Church, when evensong was sung, at 1·15, by the Rev. Nool Hunt. A banquet followed in the Public Hall, provided by Bro. J. B. Hughes.

PROV. GRAND LODGE OF DORSET.

THE annual meeting of the above Provincial Grand Lodge was held on Thursday, the 26th ult., at the National School-rooms, Wareham, under the banner of the Lodge of Unity, No. 386, Wareham. The R.W. Montague J. Guest Provincial Grand Master presided, and was supported by Bros. W. E. Brymer D.P.G.M., W. J. Fletcher P.S.G.W., W. H. Bond P.P.S.G.W. acting as P.J.G.W., Rev. W. C. Browne P.G. Chaplain, S. R. Baskett P.P.G.Reg. acting as P.G.Reg., R. Case P.G.Sec., F. G. Gregory and J. W. Luff P.P.S.G. Wardens, J. S. Webb, C. W. Parkinson, G. J. T. Brady and J. Whitehead Smith P.P.J.G. Wardens, Rev. T. Russell Wright P.P.G. Chap., Polly Hooper P.P.G. Reg., H. A. Tribbett P.P. Assist. Dir. of Cers., with a large assemblage of brethren, all the Lodges in the Province being represented.

After the roll of the Lodges had been called, and the minutes of the last meeting duly confirmed, Bro. W. C. Browne W.M. 386 Prov. Grand Chaplain delivered a short but very impressive oration, which was listened to with great attention, and a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to him. The Provincial Grand Master, according to his usual custom, then addressed the brethren on the state and progress of the Craft, and the general business of the Province. He commenced by alluding to the annual return furnished by each Lodge of the work done, and was glad to find how much had been done by the W.M.'s themselves. He had recently obtained a picture of R.W. H. R. Willett, formerly Provincial Grand Master, and had had a number of copies prepared and framed, and hoped each Lodge would accept a copy from him. Alluding to the general state of the Craft, he commented at some length upon the inquiry into the state of the Boys' School, and gave a résumé of the report of the Committee of Investigation, reading extracts from the report, and expressed his opinion that the Provincial Grand Lodge should pass some resolution, showing their feeling on the subject. After a discussion, it was unanimously resolved :—

"That this Provincial Grand Lodge desires to express its complete confidence in the ability and absolute impartiality of the members of the Committee of Investigation appointed to inquire into the management, &c., of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and is strongly of opinion that the recommendations made by that Committee should be carried out."

The Provincial Grand Master then moved :—

"That the hearty thanks of this Provincial Grand Lodge be given to W. Bro. Zillwood Milledge P.P.G.D.C. and Bro. Sidney Spark Milledge for their generous gift of a Fire Proof Safe for the use of Provincial Grand Lodge."

This was carried unanimously. A vote of thanks to the Provincial Grand Master for his address, and for his generous gift of the copies of R.W. Bro. Willett's portrait was also carried unanimously. The accounts of the Provincial Grand Treasurer, Bro. R. D. Thornton, who was unavoidably absent, were then passed, showing a balance of £134 1s 6d in hand. On the motion of Bro. W. E. Brymer D.P.G.M., seconded by Bro. Rev. T. Russell Wright, Bro. R. D. Thornton was unanimously re-elected Provincial Grand Treasurer. The report of the Provincial Charity Organization Committee was then received and adopted. Bro. S. R. Baskett P.P.G. Registrar announced that in addition to his list as Steward for the Province at the last Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, Bro. N. Howard had gone up as Steward for the Rutland Lodge, and Bro. C. J. Freeman had also been collecting for the same Institution, with a total result that some £240 had been collected, and he asked to be appointed as Steward to represent the Province at the next Festival of the Boys' School, which, on the proposition of the Provincial Grand Master, was unanimously done. The report of the General Committee of the Dorset Masonic Charity was then presented by the Hon. Sec., Bro. S. R. Baskett, and showed that the Charity was still gaining ground, the number of subscribers in 1888 having increased to 251 from 167 in 1887. He also announced the amounts received from each Lodge to date for the current year. The Provincial Grand HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Prevision.—As autumn trends on winter, slender, delicate, and pale-faced youths become listless, languid, and debilitated, unless an alterative, combined with some tonic, be administered to quicken their enfeebled organs. This precise requirement is supplied in these noted Pills, which can and will accomplish all that is wanted, provided the printed instructions surrounding them meet with scrupulous attention. Holloway's Pills are especially adapted to supply the medical wants of youth, because his medicine acts gently, though surely, as a purifier, regulator, alterative, tonic, and mild aperient. A very few doses of these Pills will convince any discouraged invalid that his cure lies in his own hands, and a little perseverance only is demanded for its completion.

THE THEATRES, &c.

Lyceum.—Notwithstanding the splendid reception given to Mr. Irving's latest revival—The Dead Heart—we do not anticipate the work will secure a long run. Mr. Irving has undoubtedly brought to bear the full measure of his vast experience, and the stage pictures he has set before his patrons will bear favourable comparison with any of his previous productions. Still there appears to be a something wanting in the conception of the play that will assuredly assert itself, and after a while the desire to see the favoured actor in an essentially new character will exhaust itself, and a change of programme will be the result. We can well understand Mr. Irving's motive in selecting "The Dead Heart" for revival. The part of Robert Landry is associated with the name of one of the most emotional actors the English stage has ever produced, but the tastes of the playgoers have materially changed since the days when the late Benjamin Webster was in high favour with habitués of the theatre. Moreover, the play is stilted in its character; there is a lack of motif throughout; and we can scarcely realise how even so crafty and ingenious a scoundrel as the Abbé Latour could for so many years sway the destinies of those whom he has made his dupes. His boasted love for Catherine Duval counts for nought when we find him ready to transfer her to the arms of his rival, the Count de St. Valéry, and however much we may be inclined to favour Cathorine, we cannot dismiss from our minds the fact that she is something of a flirt, and is readily consoled for the loss of Robert by her acceptance of the hand of St. Valéry. Still, it is almost too late in the day to be captious as to the plot of a piece that has retained its admirers for a period of thirty years. Mr. Irving has revived the play, and it is of this revival we have now to write upon. As many of our readers may remember, "The Dead Heart" was written by the late Mr. Watts Phillips, but it has been revised by Mr. Walter H. Pollock, and is now produced with that strict regard to detail that characterises all Mr. Henry Irving undertakes. This gentleman's presentment of the crushed and heart-broken sculptor will long be remembered by those who may have the opportunity of witnessing it. To Mr. Bancroft has been entrusted the part of the Abbé Latour, but finished actor as that gentleman unquestionably is, we noticed a certain "ponderosity" about his assumption that left a regret that the light and airy David Fisher was not still with us. The staunch-hearted friend Legrand is manfully portrayed by Mr. Arthur Stirling, and Mr. Haviland does the best he can as the St. Count de Valéry. The male parts, however, when we except Landry and Latour, are not strong ones, and we are willing to concede that it is not possible to make more of them; while the eccentricities of Poupot (Mr. E. Righton) smack too much of what used to be called "carpenter's scenes" for an era when mechanical scenery is all the rage. As Catherine Duval Miss Ellen Terry has but few opportunities, but when opportunity does serve this lady never loses it. Messrs. W. Telbin, Hawes Craven and J. Harker are responsible for the scenery, which is of the highest order. The incidental music reflects great credit on Mons. Jacobi, the composer; while Mr. W. H. Margetson and Mrs. Comyns Carr have done all that they could in fashioning the dresses to the instructions of Mr. Joseph Grego.

Opera Comique.—Major George Cockle, a distinguished amateur who has taken the degree of Bachelor of Music at Oxford, presented last Wednesday his romantic opera, in three acts, entitled "The Castle of Como." It is our old friend "The Lady of Lyons" set to music, and, after the manner of serious opera, the dialogue is carried on in recitative. The libretto, by Mr. Charles Searle, is arranged with considerable ability so as to embrace the principal details of the story, and commences with the marriage of Pauline and the "Prince of Como;" then follows the scene in Widow Melnotte's cottage, while the third act of the opera closely portrays the fifth act of the play. The music throughout is melodious and attractive, though it would be difficult to fix the particular school adopted, and reflects great credit upon the composer. The orchestration is rather noisy, and the "soul-stirring drum" somewhat over emphasised in parts, while the orchestra itself is too large for so small a house. The second act is decidedly the strongest, the principal morceaux in which are the Widow's cheery song, the confession of Claude, the villagers' chorus, which dies away in the distance, and final quartette for soprano, tenor, baritone and bass. Melnotte's song in the last act should become popular, and the dance music is appropriately light and pretty. Most of the artistes engaged have made a reputation in the concert room, and in time will become more at ease in their respective characters. The Pauline, who is here of a more affectionate nature than Bulwer Lytton's disdainful beauty, is Madle. Rosina Isidor. Mr. Cadwalader has a capital voice, but requires stage training. Mr. Leo Stormont is satisfactory as Beauseant, and Mr. Donnell Balfe achieved a distinct success as Damas, while Miss Amy Martin makes a charming Widow Melnotte, and Mr. Henry Pope adequately fills the part of Deschapelles. The stage arrangements are well designed, but the actual realization of the Castle of Como that takes place in the first act should be omitted; it is certainly not required, and tends unnecessarily to delay the action of the piece at an important moment. Major Cockle was called for at the termination of the opera, but it was stated he was not present, and the manager said he would communicate to him the success of his work as soon as possible.

A new farcical comedy, in three acts, entitled "The Bungalow," by Mr. Fred Horner, will be produced at Toole's, on Monday. The following are in the cast:—Messrs. Chas. Glenny, Yorke Stephens, Compton Coutts, Fred Kaye, the Misses Sallie Turner, Helen Forsyth, Cissy Grahame, Vane Featherstone, Cicely Richards, and M. A. Gifford.

"Caste" will be revived at the Criterion to-night (Saturday), when a capital presentment is anticipated.

BISHOP BAGSHAWE AND FREEMASONRY.

CARDINAL MANNING, on Sunday the 29th ult., reminded his flocks in London and throughout the extensive Roman Catholic diocese of Westminster that certain days of the current week are to be given up for special devotions for the intentions of his Holiness the Pope. The Holy Father has himself ordered the reading in the vernacular of an allocution against what is called the "sacrilegious outrage" on the Christian faith by the erection in Rome of a statue to Giordano Bruno, the Pantheist, whom Leo XIII. describes as "a man of a depraved heart and perverted abilities." Dr. Bagshawe, Bishop of Nottingham, has forestalled Cardinal Manning in exhorting those in his diocese to make reparation for "the awful outrages lately committed at Rome against Almighty God, when the statue of an impious and impure Atheist was publicly set up and honoured there by delegates from all parts of the world, when hymns were sung in honour of Satan, and the banner of the arch fiend, represented as triumphing over the church of God, was openly displayed." "This was," says the bishop, "a public proclamation of the audacious attempt, inspired by the powers of hell, and long secretly intended, utterly to destroy Christianity, and the Holy Catholic Church. The Holy See itself assures us that 'the dark society of Masons is striving to overthrow the Kingdom of Christ on earth by various and manifold schemes, plots, and arts,' and that 'to prepare the way for that overthrow, the design was begun and perfected to obtain possession of the City of Rome'; and lastly, that 'the leaders of the hostile sect have now declared by word and deed what was their ultimate object in taking the City; by deed, when they wished the Holy City to witness the honours by which they extolled the crimes and obstinacy of an impure apostate; by word, when by the voice of their leaders they declared openly that they were inaugurating by those solemnities a new religion, in which setting aside the dominion of the immortal God a divine worship is given to the reason of man.'" Dr Bagshawe says the assault that is thus being carried on against the Church is so urgent and terrible that the Pope assured them that his liberty and dignity in the discharge of his apostolic office have already been grievously diminished, and that his person was not exempt from fear and danger. Catholics were bound to open their eyes "and those of others to the danger to which religion and faith are exposed because of that sect of Freemasonry, which, assailing the unwary with craft and insidiousness, exerts all its powers against the Roman Pontiff. We are bound to remember, and to warn all those who depend upon us, of the obligation we are all under, to oppose that sect, to avoid these conspiracies, and to defend and strenuously bear witness to the Catholic faith both by word and work."—Nottingham Daily Express.

By the fire that occurred last week at the New Falcon Hotel, Gravesend, two Lodges, viz, Freedom, No. 77, and Sympathy, No. 483, are rendered temporarily homeless. The greater part of the Lodge furniture was destroyed, and the remainder was much damaged by smoke and water. The loss is the more unfortunate on account of the ancient character of some of the articles, notably a very fine set of tracing boards, some oil paintings of former Officers of the Lodge, and several photographs. The Warrant of the Sympathy Lodge, which was in the Instruction room, was completely consumed, as well as the Centenary Warrant issued to the Lodge of Freedom; but Police Superintendent Berry, who is also captain of the local fire brigade, fortunately succeeded in rescuing the original Warrant of this Lodge. At a meeting of the Gravesend Town Council it was proposed, by Bro. Councillor T. R. S. Champion, Secretary of Lodge of Sympathy, that the brethren of the two Lodges might be permitted to assemble in the Town Hall until they were re-installed in their old quarters, and the proposition was accepted.

EADE'S
GOUT & RHEUMATIC PILLS.

The SAFEST and most EFFECTUAL CURE for GOUT, RHEUMATISM, and all PAINS in the HEAD, FACE, and LIMBS.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL from the Rev. F. FARVIS, Baptist Minister.

Mr. G. Eade.

Dear Sir,—I have many times felt inclined to inform you of the benefit I have received by taking your Gout and Rheumatic Pills. After suffering for some time from Rheumatics and Sciatica, I was advised to use your Pills. I bought a bottle, and when in severe pain and unable to use the limb affected I took a dose. In a few hours after I felt the pain much better, and after the second dose the pain completely removed and the limb restored to its right use. I thank you, dear sir, for sending forth such a boon for the relief of human suffering.

Yours faithfully,
F. Farvis,
Baptist Minister.

There are multitudes of people who look upon advertising as a sort of Lottery, and bestow infinitely more thought in the selection of a clerk at £100 a year than in the expenditure of £1000, or two in the same period in advertising. A tithe of the shrewdness displayed in all other branches of their business given to the management of their advertising will be amply repaid. The ADVERTISEMENT AGENT has become an indispensable factor in this matter of publicity, and his raison d'être is perfectly unassailable. Would you leave or enter a port without a pilot? Would you commence and prosecute a law suit without a legal adviser? Either of these courses would not be more foolish than rushing into expenses in Advertising without a competent practical and professional adviser. I am at all times happy to render advertisers every assistance in my power, and to give them the benefit of the experience I have gained during the past twenty years as a London advertising agent. "PAINLESS AND PERFECT DENTISTRY."

Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist's Testimonial.

My Dear Doctor,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

S. G. HUTCHINS,
By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

Geo. H. Jones, Esq., D.D.S.

Scientific Department.
Laboratory of Experimental Science.

This is to certify: That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

THE APPROACHING ELECTION FOR THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

THE usual half-yearly election of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys will take place on Friday, the 25th inst., on which occasion seventy candidates will go to the poll, to compete for sixteen vacancies. Among these seventy are forty-five who have taken part in previous contests, one of them appearing for the seventh time, four for the fifth, eight for the fourth, fifteen for the third, and seventeen for the second. There are thus twenty-five candidates who now come forward for the first time, and among them are three who, if unsuccessful at this election, will not have another opportunity of competing, being barred by the age limit rule. Nos. 1 and 21 are also last application cases, so that there are five such on the present list. No. 1, John Crossman, is the lad who has taken part in six previous elections, but he only brings forward 17 votes as the result thereof. He is one of two children, whose father was initiated in St. Anne, No. 970, Cornwall, and who subsequently joined St. John, No. 70, Devon, subscribing to the latter until the time of his death, in January 1884. No. 21, Benjamin Henry Tiedeman, now makes his third application, with 1041 votes to his credit. His father was admitted a Mason in Guelph Lodge, No. 1685, London, and subscribed thereto up till the time of his death, which occurred in February of last year. During his membership of the Craft he qualified as a Life Governor of the Institution for which his son is now a candidate. This lad and four other members of the family are dependent on their mother, who, we hope, will be so far fortunate as to secure one of the sixteen vacancies to be competed for. No. 53, Mark Somers, comes from the Province of West Yorkshire, where his father was initiated, in the Goderich Lodge, No. 1211; he was also a member of the Zetland Lodge, No. 1311, at the time of his death. At present five of the children of the late Bro. Somers are entirely, and one partly, dependent on the widow. No. 61, George Lofthouse, is the son of a very old member of the Craft, and is jointly accredited to the two strong Provinces of East Lancashire and West Yorkshire. The father was initiated in the Limestone Rock Lodge, No. 369, in December 1853, and subscribed thereto until the time of his death, his dues being paid for 35¾ years. He subsequently joined Royal Forest Lodge, No. 401, and subscribed to it for twenty-four years. He was a Past Master of his Lodge, and P.G.A.D.C. of the Province of East Lancashire. His widow has five children dependent on her for support, but with such a long association with the Craft, as is shown in this case, we think it hardly too much to hope the members of the Order will, ere long, relieve her of responsibility in regard to one of them. We trust such may prove to be the result of the election. No. 64, Robert Rae Jewitt, is another Lancashire case, the Western Division of that county being interested, the father having been admitted in the Hamer Lodge, No. 1393, to which he subscribed for twelve and a half years, passing the chair therein, and being elected to the office of Treasurer. In this case also there are five children dependent on the widowed mother.

It will be at once apparent to the reader that four of these last application cases are in very good hands, but as regards the other, No. 1 on the list, it is impossible to say, from previous results, what is likely to happen. Of course, the seventeen votes polled for young Crossman during the past three years may be no criterion of what is in store for him on the 25th, as both the Provinces interested in his case—Cornwall and Devon—are strong organisers in the matter of votes, and may have been saving their strength, or holding over Crossman's case until its proper turn. We believe that if the condition of the family is such as to really deserve the united assistance of the father's Provinces it will not be withheld at this last moment. The case in which London is interested (No. 21) has a credit of 1041 polled votes, so that it is reasonable to suppose the brethren working are fully alive to the requirements of the case, and no doubt they will use every effort in their power to ensure success. West Yorkshire, East and West Lancashire are associated with the other cases, and doubtless are fully prepared to see them through, so that, taking them altogether, there is a brighter prospect than usual for the "last applications."

No. 13, Ernest Edward Whale, is the first on the list who has neither parent living. This lad is one of four children left by an initiate and former Past Master of the Harmony Lodge, No. 309, Hants and Isle of Wight, and has already taken part in three elections. As the result thereof he has 19 votes to his credit. No. 33, Frederick Eden Walter Cooper, is another lad both of whose parents are dead; he and three other children are now dependent on their friends. His father was initiated in the Mount Lebanon Lodge, No. 73, London, and subscribed thereto for 10¾ years, really up to the time of his death. The lad was a candidate in April last, and then secured 263 votes, so it is evident he has friends working on his behalf. No. 37, William Joseph Williams, is the son of an old initiate and late Junior Warden of the St. John's Lodge, No. 761, Gloucestershire. He and four other children are left to the care of friends, among whom we hope the Masonic Craft will soon win the distinction of being classed. The lad was a candidate at the last Election, but no votes were recorded on his behalf, not, let us hope, from any lack of sympathy, but because his turn had not yet come round. No. 69, Horace James Murrell Aldous, is also parentless—an only child left by an initiate of the St. Marylebone Lodge, No. 1305, London, for whom, let it be hoped, the Masonic School will one day be opened.

Having, as usual, summarised the various cases on the list under the heads of "last" and "parentless," we leave the remainder, in the hope that their several friends will do all that lies in their power to bring the claims of each before the Craft, with the view of securing the election of the most deserving. In these days of voting organisations, the elections are not nearly the open matters they were some few years back, when much more could be done by open canvass than is now possible, when nearly every vote is pledged to one or other of the Provincial or Local Associations. In many respects this combination is most beneficial, but, like everything else of its kind, it has drawbacks, which have been made painfully apparent to many, whose candidates have not happened to be the particular ones selected for the support of the combination. After all it is perhaps best to leave the selection of candidates to men who are on the spot, and know many features in connection with each case that cannot be made apparent to the world at large.

KNIGHTS, NEW AND OLD.

THERE have been in Chicago during the present week some twenty thousand Knights of the Templar variety. The modern Knight Templar has never yet been able to ascertain whether, when two or more of him are gathered together, they should be called Knight Templars, Knights Templar, or Knights Templars, and in order to spare his feelings, a sympathising press ought clearly to shirk the question, and to describe the Chicago Knights in terms that cannot come in conflict with any possible grammatical rule.

We all know who the original Templars were, for the biography of Eminent Sir Wilfrid Ivanhoe, of York Commandery, New York, is a mine of information on the subject. The Templar was a person who wore a variegated night-gown (whence, perhaps, the word Knight) in the day-time, and took a series of iron-clad oaths. He bound himself never to marry, a vow that did not put him to much inconvenience, but which must have signally failed to meet the views of his wife and children. He also swore to live in a state of poverty, a vow which he liberally interpreted to mean that he should earn nothing, but should live on the confiscated property of other people. He took an oath of obedience to his Grand Master, and undertook to go to the Holy Land to deliver Jerusalem from the Saracens. The latter obligation had its manifest advantages. Occasionally the Knight Templar did go to the Holy Land and fight, but to a much greater extent he stayed at home. He was, however, always on the point of taking the 8·30 p.m. express for Joppa, and consequently always had an excuse for declining to do anything that did not please him. If his children wanted shoes, he always remarked that as he expected to depart immediately for the Holy Land, he really needed all his available money wherewith to pay his passage, and could not possibly buy shoes until his return. If his rent was due and the landlord notified him that he must pay at once, he immediately wrote him a note, saying that he had just received orders to start for Jerusalem, and that as it was quite out of the question for him to call on his bankers before leaving, he would be compelled to postpone that little matter of the rent until his return. Thus the Templar who was always going to the Holy Land, but who never went, was the envy of less fortunate men who had no ready-made excuses to meet every difficulty. It appears from the life of Eminent Sir Wilfrid Ivanhoe that the Knight Templar frequently took part in free circus entertainments, most of which were, doubtless, designed for the benefit of Sunday schools. In these entertainments the Knights were often badly hurt, and there is good reason to believe that they were occasionally happily killed. In the absence of any steady employment, the Knights did a good deal of miscellaneous fighting with any available neighbours, and Most Eminent Sir Brian de Bois-Guilbert, of Jackson Commandery, No. 27, was in this respect a fair specimen of the fighting Knight.

The modern American Knight Templar is not at all like his illustrious predecessor. Instead of a white night-gown with a red cross, he wears a black frock-coat, a cocked hat, and shoulder-straps—a uniform that makes him resemble a Chaplain in the Navy who has pawned his regulation blue coat and been compelled to transfer his shoulder-straps to a borrowed black coat. He does not take vows of chastity, poverty and obedience, and rarely—if we may credit the reports of the recent Chicago conclave—takes even the total abstinence pledge. For Jerusalem he cares nothing, and never makes the slightest pretence of going there. His holy places are Chicago, St. Louis, or San Francisco, in one of which cities he gathers himself together once every three years, and marches in a solemn procession, sweltering in his close-buttoned coat and cocked hat, and exciting the wonder of the beholding foreigner. At these triennial conclaves he always gives a public exhibition of Templar tactics, which consist in a series of semi-military evolutions of great intricacy and total lack of purpose. To the small boy he is an object of mingled amazement and mirth, and the public, which regard him as a sort of hybrid between the Militia soldier and the circus performer, fails to comprehend why he exists and fatigues himself with tiresome and expensive triennial conclaves.

Though the American Templar likes to fancy that he is in some way a lineal descendant of the Knights of the Temple, he is in his secret heart well aware that he was invented by an ingenious peddler called Thomas Webb, and that he is a purely American invention. There are, to be sure, French and English varieties of Knights of the Temple, but they have no connection with the American Knights, and being products of the pauper labour of Europe, could not be imported into this country except upon the payment of a heavy duty. What the American Knight Templar does in the secrecy of his Lodge-room is, of course, a mystery to the outside world. People who are immediately below a room in which the Knights are accustomed to gather hear noises which lead them to believe that the Knights make a practice of falling over a large amount of furniture, a theory which is apparently confirmed by the fact that they issue from their meetings in a very heated and extremely thirsty state. Still, it seems intrinsically improbable that men should go to large expense in point of uniforms and horse-collars merely to meet together and fall over furniture, and we must assume that a meeting of Templars has some other and worthier objects—perhaps of the nature of poker or even marbles.

There was a time when many intelligent men, including John Quincy Adams and Thurlow Weed, believed that the Knight Templars Society was a dangerous thing, chiefly because it takes its members exclusively from the Masonic Fraternity. In these days no one views the Templars with alarm. A more innocuous gathering never took place than that which has just delighted the Chicago hotel keepers. The Knights are not as picturesque as the old Templars, but they behave themselves much better, and as between the ancient Knight in the act of torturing a Jew and the modern Knight peacefully nodding through a long sermon in a Methodist meeting house, it is very easy to make a choice.—Boston Exchange.

It is a pleasing feature in Masonry that when any brother falls out of the ranks, there is another who is at once prepared to take his place. For many years our lamented Comp. Bumstead was the centre from whence the R.A. ritual was disseminated in South London. Now that he has passed away, his pupils, Companions Hilton P.Z. and Grummant P.Z., are able to carry on the work with equal zeal and energy. They obtained from him, in the Pythagorean Chapter of Instruction, that which he took such delight in imparting, and now in turn are giving similar tuition in the Star Chapter of Instruction (wherein Companion Hilton is Preceptor), which meets at the Stirling Castle, Camberwell, every Friday evening. There not only is the ceremony of exaltation regularly rehearsed in its entirety, but also each week one of the ceremonies of installation is taken. So far this season there has been a good attendance of Principals and Past Principals, and all have been delighted with the precision and accuracy with which the work is performed.

FUNERALS properly carried out and personally attended in London and Country, by Bro. G. A. HUTTON, 17 Newcastle Street, Strand, W.C. Monuments erected. Valuations made.

CONSECRATION OF THE BISLEY LODGE, No. 2317.

ON Wednesday, the 25th ult., a new Lodge was consecrated in due form at the National School Room, Bisley. The acting Provincial Grand Master, Bro. F. West, assisted by Bro. C. Greenwood Provincial Grand Secretary, and other distinguished brethren, performed the ceremony. The Rector of Bisley, Bro. Rev. J. Cater, was duly installed as first Worshipful Master, and then proceeded to appoint the following brethren as Officers for the year:—Bros. E. H. Gale Crowdy S.W., J. B. S. Lancaster J.W., T. Aitken S.D., Major Collins J.D., C. F. Passmore I.G., C. Pulman Secretary, F. W. Biscoe Treasurer, T. Coxhead nominated as I.P.M., and Mason as Tyler. The brethren and visitors were afterwards conveyed to the Brookwood Hotel, where Bro. and Mrs. Loder prepared an excellent banquet. Judging from the speeches made in reply to the customary toasts, it would appear that considerable good work is likely to be accomplished, and that a bright future is before the new Lodge.

PORTLAND LODGE, No. 637.

ON Thursday, the 3rd inst., at Stoke-upon-Trent, Bro. G. W. Hancock was installed as W.M. for the ensuing year, in the presence of about fifty brethren, including several visitors from other Lodges. The ceremony was performed by Bro. J. Eardley the retiring W.M., assisted by Brothers H. C. Faram, J. B. Ashwell, E. Roberts, W. T. Copeland, D. Smith. The following Officers were appointed:—Bros. W. H. Bamber S.W., E. Penn J.W., W. T. Copeland Treasurer, R. Williams Secretary, R. Burt S.D., W. Burt J.D., H. C. Faram D.C., W. N. Edge Organist, T. R. Yoxall I.G., H. N. Marks and W. H. Smith Stewards, S. Kingston Tyler. After the Lodge had been closed, the brethren adjourned to the Copeland Arms Hotel, where a most sumptuous banquet was provided by Bro. Raynes. The loyal toasts having been honoured, the toasts of the Pro Grand Master (the Earl of Carnarvon), the D.G.M. (the Earl of Lathom), and the P.G.M. (Colonel Gough), were proposed in succession. Bro. Ashton next proposed the D.P.G.M. (Col. Bindley) and the other Officers of the Prov. Grand Lodge present and past, for whom Bros. Copeland and Stevenson responded. Bro. Ashwell, in complimentary terms, proposed the health of the W.M., which was very cordially received, and Bro. Hancock responded. The health of the Installing Master (Bro. Eardley) having been drunk with much heartiness, Bro. Penn, in a neat speech, proposed the Visiting Brethren, Bros. Windle, Skerrett and Taylor responding. The toast of the Past Masters of the Lodge, proposed by Bro. Bamber, was acknowledged by Bros. Tooth, D. Smith, and Faram. Bro. Clayton submitted the toast of the Officers of the Lodge, the Inner Guard responding. The Masonic Charities and the Tyler's toast followed. Several brethren contributed music. The evening was spent in a convivial manner.

PLEIADES LODGE, No. 710.

THE annual installation meeting took place on the 3rd instant, at the Masonic Hall, Totnes. Bro. Dr. Fraser W.M. elect was duly installed Worshipful Master, the installation ceremony being performed by Bro. J. Drennan, assisted by the Board of Installed Masters. The W.M. appointed and invested his Officers, as follow:—Bros. L. Harris I.P.M., R. Pearce S.W., W. Willcocks J.W., Rev. W. M. Drake Chaplain, C. Barrett S.D., David J.D., W. B. Maye Secretary, G. L. Loam Organist, W. Darke I.G., Brennan Dir. of Cers., A. H. Tanqueraz Senior Steward, Foote Junior Steward, J. Crocker Tyler. Bro. W. B. Mayne was appointed to represent the Lodge on the Committee of Petitions. Bro. J. Drennan was appointed Almoner, and Bro. J. Cole assistant Almoner. The brethren then adjourned to Bro. Darke's Castle Hotel, where the annual banquet took place. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly proposed and responded to. Several good songs and recitations were given during the evening. The banquet reflected great credit on Bro. Darke, and the floral decorations were also much admired.

TORBAY LODGE, No. 1358.

THE installation meeting was held on the 30th ult., at the Town Hall, Paignton. Bro. Charles W. Perrett W.M. presided, and after the first degree had been worked, presented Bro. John Bradford with a Secretary's jewel, as a mark of esteem of the zeal and ability he had displayed during the eight years he had acted as Secretary. Bro. Bradford, in accepting the jewel, said he should always value it, for it had been a pleasure to him to work as he had done to get the Lodge into its present condition, which was certainly equal to that of any in the Province. He hoped he should continue to merit the esteem in which they held him at present. The W.M. elect—Bro. R. Light, R.N.—was then installed by Bro. John Lane P.M. 1402, in a very able manner; the Board of Installed Masters included Bros. G. S. Bridgman, Rev. Noel Platt, J. Bradford, W. E. Warren, F. Palk, and A. W. Palk, all of 1402, John Wheaten 248, R. L. Mugford I.P.M., and W. Taylor 328, T. H. Wills W.M. 1402, H. L. Friend 1443, and H. P. Jarman 1669. The Board of Installed Masters having been closed, the W.M. presented Bro. C. W. Perrott with a P.M.'s jewel, and then invested his Officers, as follow:—Bros. C. W. Perrett I.P.M., W. E. Warren Chaplain, H. P. Jarman S.W., the Rev. A. H. M. Hare J.W., F. Palk Treasurer, J. Bradford Secretary, J. Hoyles S.D., R. E. Drew J.D., C. Emmett D.C., J. G. Scavill I.G., T. Brooks Organist, A. Waycott S.S., H. P. Rabbich J.S., and W. J. Tozer Tyler. The visitors, besides those already named, included:—Bros. C. de B. Stewart 2258, S. E. Endacott 1138, W. J. Bradden I.G. 248, and W. Thomas 189. The installation banquet followed.

CLAUSENTUM LODGE, No. 1461.

THE regular meeting of this Lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Woolston, on Wednesday, the 2nd instant, for the transaction of the usual business, when a very large number of members and visitors attended, the principal event of the evening being the presentation of a portrait of Bro. Walter Bowyer, Secretary, to the Lodge by Bro. John Butler, in consideration of the services rendered during the past 15 years, as Founder, Worshipful Master, and Secretary. The Worshipful Master had invited the W.M.'s, P.M.'s, and Wardens of the following Lodges to be present on this occasion: Economy Lodge, No. 76, Winchester; Royal Gloucester Lodge, 130; Peace and Harmony Lodge, 359; Southampton Lodge, 394; Shirley Lodge, 1112; Albert Edward Lodge, 1780, and a goodly number responded to the invitations. The presentation was made by Bro. E. T. Wise I.P.M., on behalf of Bro. J. Butler. In doing so, he alluded to the valuable services rendered by the Secretary during the time he had been connected with the Lodge, and to Masonry in general. The Worshipful Master accepted the portrait on behalf of the Lodge, adding that the painting would hang on the walls and remind them of one who had worked hard in the interests of the Lodge from its foundation, and to whose efforts they were greatly indebted for the erection of the handsome building in which they were now assembled, and also of one who had contributed materially to the success, not only of the Clausentum Lodge, but to Freemasonry in the Province of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight. The Worshipful Master welcomed the Visitors, who responded with hearty good wishes for the Clausentum Lodge. The business ended, about sixty sat down to a banquet, which had been prepared by the Tyler of the Lodge Bro. C. Henley, and on the cloth being removed, the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given, interspersed with some excellent harmony by Bros. H. Kemp, S. J. Line, S. B. Crook, H. Lashmore, W. H. Smith, and others; Bros. W. H. Smith and W. Fowler accompanied at the piano.

ROYAL COMMEMORATION LODGE, No. 1585.

A REGULAR meeting of this Lodge was held at the White Lion Hotel, Putney Bridge, on Wednesday, the 2nd inst. The Lodge was called for and opened at 5 p.m. punctually. There were present:—Bros. V. Wing W.M., Harding S.W., Sandalls J.W., Watkins Treasurer, Robinson P.M. Secretary, Oliver S.D., Wright J.D., Collins P.M. D.C., Stacey P.M. Organist, Grundy Steward acting I.G., Fayers Assistant Steward, Gordon Assistant Organist, Walkley Tyler, Williams I.P.M., Pardoe, Boehr, and some 20 other members of the Lodge. Amongst the visitors were:—Bros. Dr. Causton W.M. 865, Hatfield 304, Holmes W.M. 1981, Wade J.W. 1360, Jones 1624, Alexander P.M. 1257, Ball 1567, Bird P.M. 1567, Haynes 865, Tucker S.D. 144, &c. The Lodge having been opened, and the minutes of last meeting read and confirmed, Bro. Saines was proved and entrusted. The Lodge was opened in the second degree, and Bro. Saines was passed. The Lodge was resumed in the first degree, and a ballot taken for Mr. Jas. E. Colverd, comedian ("Jovial John Bull"), who was proposed by Bro. Theodore Gordon, and seconded by Bro. Wright; Mr. A. F. Lloyd, electrician, proposed by Bro. Knight, and seconded by Bro. Grundy; and Mr. J. Wetherell, proposed by Bro. Chapman, and seconded by Bro. Cox. The ballot was unanimous in favour of the candidates, and they were duly and ably initiated, according to ancient custom. After some charitable and other routine business had been disposed of, the appointment of a Secretary, in the room of P.M. Robinson resigning, occupied the attention of the Lodge for some time. The W.M. remarked on the excellent services Bro. Robinson had rendered to the Lodge since its formation, and expressed the regret with which he contemplated Bro. Robinson's severance of his official connection with it. These sentiments met with hearty accord from the members present. The W.M. added that to find an able successor for the post had been a difficult task for himself and the Past Masters; several names had been suggested of members more or less qualified, but it was deemed necessary that the Secretary should be a tried, trusty, and skilled Past Master; consequently the I.P.M. Bro. Williams had been selected for the post. At the same time he wished those brethren whose claims had been put forward to believe that the selection had been made with a fervent desire for the welfare of the Lodge. These remarks were endorsed by a most emphatic approval from the brethren, and the W.M. then, with a few trenchant remarks, transferred the Secretary's collar from Bro. P.M. Robinson to Bro. I.P.M. Williams. Several of the brethren having testified to the high esteem in which Bro. Robinson had been held for so many years, and expressed their hope that he would visit the Lodge as often as convenient, the Lodge closed in perfect harmony, and adjourned till Wednesday, 6th of November. Owing to the late hour before which the protracted business of the Lodge was completed, the banquet was shorn of one of the most distinguishing features of the Royal Commemoration Lodge, viz., its musical entertainment. The W.M. suggested, and in fact set the example for short speeches, but the Loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and enthusically received, and honoured with real "Commemoration Fire." The health of the W.M., the I.P.M., the Initiates, and the Visitors were ably proposed and suitably responded to. The compliment to the Treasurer and Secretary invoked a great amount of enthusiasm. The Treasurer and new Secretary are both well known and deservedly popular members of the Lodge. After they had replied, a general call was made for the ex-Secretary, Bro. Robinson, and a perfect round of applause greeted his remark that as long as he lived he hoped to remain a member of the Royal Commemoration Lodge, and to come among the brethren as often as his duties would permit. The toast of the Past Masters followed; it was responded to by Bros. Williams, Robinson, and Pardoe. The Officers came next, and Bros. S.W., J.W., and Steward responded in terms suited to the exigencies of the time at their disposal. The Tyler's toast concluded a most enjoyable evening, both as regards labour and refreshment, at the reasonable hour of 10·45.

The I.P.M. Bro. Williams requests us to thank the brethren in and out of Lodge for their kindness in giving and lending him votes on behalf of the son of the late Bro. Court, at the last Election for the Boys' School. By the help so kindly accorded, the brethren interested had succeeded in getting their candidate placed, No. 17 on the list of those successful.

DE LA POLE LODGE, No. 1605.

THE ceremony of installing Bro. William Stratford as the Worshipful Master took place in the Masonic-hall, Kingston-Square, Hull, on the 4th instant. Bro. the Hon. W. T. Orde-Powlett D.P.G.M. North and East Yorks was announced to be present for the event, but at the last moment insurmountable circumstances led to his visit to Hull being put off. The investiture of Bro. W. Stratford therefore devolved very worthily upon Bro. J. R. Ansdell, whose knowledge in the ritual and ceremonies appertaining to this distinguished position is unquestionable. There was a large attendance of visiting brethren from the sister Lodges in Hull and district, and the installation was a thorough success from beginning to end. With the termination of the ceremony the newly-installed Master invested the following brethren as his Officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. H. Hirst I.P.M., T. W. Tindell S.W., J. H. Manning J.W., G. The Lodge being opened in the first and second degrees, Bros. Ivimey and Smith were asked the necessary questions previous to raising. The Lodge being then resumed in the first degree, Messrs. Adams, Horlock, and Grimwood were duly initiated. On their retirement, Lodge was then proceeded with in the second and third degrees, when Bros. Ivimey and Smith were raised to the degree of Master Mason. Lodge being again resumed in the first degree, the ballot was taken for the W.M. for the ensuing year, when it fell to the lot of Bro. S. W. Sinclair. The election of Treasurer being then proceeded with, Bro. Morris, who has so ably fulfilled the duties of that office for the past six years, was again chosen. The jewel and collar of the P.M. were voted for presentation to the W.M., Bro. Kinniple, on the next occasion of meeting. Lodge being then closed, the brethren adjourned to the banquet, which was worthy of the reputation of this well-known hostelry. The Loyal toasts were drunk with the usual enthusiasm; and in the course of the evening the W.M. was congratulated on the eminently satisfactory condition of the Lodge, financially, numerically, and otherwise.

Richardson. The Grand honours were accorded to Bro. Robertson Deputy Grand Master Canada, who said that words failed him to express his gratification, both as a member of their wonderful Correspondence Circle, and as a member of a jurisdiction thousands of miles away. As one who took a great interest in Masonic research, an interest not solely Platonic, but which led him to actively prosecute the study of Masonic History, his ambition for some time had been to be present at a meeting of this Lodge, and though his stay in Europe was short, and the date of this meeting had necessitated a curtailment of his Paris trip, he had torn himself away from the fascinations of that gay city and its modern Tower of Babel, rather than miss the opportunity afforded him of making the acquaintance of the distinguished brethren who were members of Lodge Quatuor Coronati. He was a member and Officer of one of the most prosperous swarms of that prolific mother of Grand Lodges, the first in time and the first in honour of all Grand Lodges, the Grand Lodge of England. He was prepared to maintain that no body of Masons held the Grand Lodge of England in higher veneration, in more affectionate remembrance than the Grand Lodge of Canada. Though separated in distance they were united at heart, and across thousands of miles of sea and land endeavoured, with their twenty thousand Craftsmen and 400 Lodges to carry out the principles of their great progenitor. In their efforts they were assisted by an energetic Grand Master and first rate Board of General Purposes. It gave him personally unbounded pleasure to be present. He trusted other Lodges of a similar character might soon be formed in every jurisdiction. The Quatuor Coronati had shown the way, it remained for other Lodges to follow. He could conceive of no Lodge doing more good to the true interests of Freemasonry. It was an incentive to himself and others who were at the moment trying to build up a true and trustworthy history of Canadian Freemasonry and of the Grand Lodge of Canada. His Grand Lodge was of course not so ancient as their own, but it claimed to have a history, a history of much interest and worthy of preservation. Such a history he hoped to record before long, and to produce a work creditable to themselves and that they might be proud of, and that even the Quatuor Coronati might be proud of. He concluded by again assuring the brethren of his gratification. The following fifty-four brethren and three Lodges were added to the roll of the Correspondence Circle. Southern Cross Lodge, No. 398 (S.C.), Cape Town; St. John's in the South Lodge, No. 747 (S.C.), and the Jubilee Lodge (D.C.), both of Barberton, Transvaal; and Bros. H. the election of Lieut.-Col. S. C. Pratt for W.M., and the re-election of Walter Besant for Treasurer, and J. W. Freeman for Tyler. The following candidates to join the Lodge were proposed from the chair, and seconded by the Senior Warden, viz.:—Brother Sydney Klein, the Red House, Stanmore. Born 1853. Fellow of the Linnæan Society, Fellow of the Royal Astronomical Society, &c.; initiated in the Waterford Lodge, No. 404, in 1888; author of "Thirty-six Hours' Hunting among the Hymenoptera and Lepidoptera of Middlesex," "Appearance of Ephestia Kühniella in London, and the Remedy provided by Nature," and other papers, read before Scientific Societies. Bro. Benjamin Ward Richardson, 25 Manchester Square, London, W. Born 1828. M.A., M.D., LL.D., Fellow of the Royal Society, Fellow of the Society of Arts, Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians, Member of the Imperial Academy of Natural Sciences, Member of the Philosophical Society of America; initiated in St. Andrew's Lodge, No. 231, in 1864, W.M. in 1868, joined Lodge of King Solomon, No. 2029, in 1885, W.M. in 1885 and 1886; author of "Hygeia, a Model City," "Diseases of Modern Life," "The Guild of Good Life," "The Common Health," and various biographical memoirs. A letter was read, conveying the thanks of the M.W. Grand Master H.R.H. the Prince of Wales to the W.M., for copies received of the Transactions and Publications of the Lodge to date; it was ordered to be recorded on the minutes. A letter was read from the Grand Lodge of the Eclectic Union at Frankfurt, thanking the Lodge and Bro. Whymper for the gift of said brother's fac-simile reproduction of the Regius MS., and offering for acceptance a copy of their own Annals. A similar letter was read from the National Grand Lodge at Berlin. After extolling the Quatuor Lodge, the letter concluded by saying, "Let us assure you that we highly appreciate your meritorious literary and scientific labours, and follow your career with great attention. As a slight token of our gratitude and fraternal feelings, and as a poor return for your handsome gift, we honour ourselves by sending you, for your library, a copper plate engraving, a copy of which H.M. the Emperor William II. has been graciously pleased to present to every Lodge in his dominions." The engraving represents Frederick the Great, as Grand Master, conferring the light on a candidate. It was resolved:—"That Bro. W. Simpson, R.I., having completed his year of office as W.M. of the Lodge Quatuor Coronati, No. 2076, the thanks of the brethren be, and hereby are, tendered to him for his courtesy in the chair, and efficient management of the affairs of the Lodge; and that the resolution be suitably engrossed and presented to him." Bro. W. M. Williams read a paper on "Some errors of scientific expression in the Masonic Ritual," which was followed with attention, and discussed by Bros. Speth, Gould, Rylands, Simpson, Driver, Edwards, and Dr. Richardson. A vote of thanks was accorded, and suitably acknowledged. A letter from Bro. Hughan, recording the discovery of a previously unknown scroll of the "Old Constitutions," in the possession of Bro. T. W. Watson, of Sunderland, and describing the same, was read. A paper on the derivation of the word "Free" as a component of Freemason, by Bro. F. F. Schnitger, was, for want of time, taken as read. The Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment, during the course of which Bro. Robertson gave an interesting account of the working of their Association in America and Canada for the detection and suppression of the Masonic tramp.

WHITWELL LODGE, No. 2104.

THE annual ceremony of installation in connection with this Lodge was held on the 8th instant, in the Freemasons' Hall, Stockton, when Bro. J. F. Craggs installed Bro. John Cradock in the chair of K.S. for the ensuing year. The newly-elected W.M. invested the following brethren as his Officers:—Bros. C. J. Seaman S.W., H. Gaston J.W., G. D. Long Treasurer, John Broome Secretary, John Harrison S.D., S. Appleton J.D., T. M. Taylor I.G., John Wilks S.S., D. McNaughten J.S., Bedford R. Smith Tyler. At the conclusion of the ceremony the brethren and their lady friends dined together in the banqueting hall. A dance was held afterwards.

JOSIAH WEDGWOOD LODGE, No. 2214.

THE annual festival of St. John and the installation of a W.M. for the ensuing year, in connection with this Lodge, took place on the 26th ult., at the Wesleyan Schools, Etruria. The Lodge assembled at 3 o'clock, when there was a large attendance of brethren, including numerous Visitors from neighbouring Lodges, amongst those present being:—Bros. J. Stephenson 1942, J. Bromley 418, J. B. Ashwell 637, S. Bentley 98, S. Bennett 98, J. Ingamells 460, E. Roberts 637, T. Unwin 637, J. Davenport 451, J. Godwin 98, Rev. L. C. A. Edgworth 98, F. Skerrett 460, E. Pearson 98, S. Morley 451, G. W. Hancock 637, W. H. Bamber 637, E. Penn 637, R. Owen 98, W. Jackson 418, J. Pennington 418, J. Buckley 418, A. Boulton 98, J. Turner 418, J. Fairbairns 418, and the following members of the Josiah Wedgwood Lodge:—Bros. E. J. Hammersley, C. E. Hedge, G. A. Marsden, H. A. Ollivant, T. F. Rhodes, T. Shore, J. R. Lewellyn, J. H. Fradley, and J. Blagg. The Lodge having been opened, Bro. David Smith was installed W.M. for the ensuing year, the ceremony of installation being impressively performed by Bros. E. B. Jackson and R. Tooth the retiring W.M. After the ceremony the newly-elected W.M. invested the following Officers:—Bros. E. B. Jackson S.W., W. J. Carr J.W., R. Small Treasurer, J. White Secretary, W. R. Tooth S.D., R. Tooth D.C., C. Bullock J.D., S. Frost I.G., J. A. Spence, L. Taylor Stewards, and S. Johnson Tyler. Previous to the closing of the Lodge, the W.M. presented the I.P.M. (Bro. R. Tooth) with a beautiful Past Master's jewel, on behalf of the members of the Lodge, in recognition of the services Bro. Tooth had rendered to the Lodge, as one of the founders, and for the able manner in which he had discharged the duties of W.M. for two years. The jewel, which was a most handsome one, and extremely chaste in design, was presented by the W.M. in eulogistic terms, and Bro. Tooth feelingly responded. The inscription on the back of the jewel was as follows:—

"Presented by the brethren of the Josiah Wedgwood Lodge, 2214, to W. Bro. R. Tooth, P.P.G. Registrar, in recognition of his services as W.M. of the Lodge from August 1887 to September 1889. Etruria, 26th September."

The Lodge having been closed, the brethren adjourned to the Queen's Hotel, Basford, where forty sat down to a sumptuous banquet, served in excellent style by Mr. and Mrs. Ashford, and which gave the greatest satisfaction. The W.M. Bro. Smith presided, and after the Loyal toasts had been given Bro. Tooth submitted the toast of the Right Worshipful Bro. Colonel Foster Gough P.G.S.B. Provincial Grand Master of Staffordshire, and in doing so alluded to the satisfaction which the appointment gave to the brethren of the Province when Colonel Gough received the appointment from the Prince of Wales. Bro. Hammersley proposed the health of Bro. Lieutenant-Colonel Brindley, Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and the Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge past and present. Bro. Bentley responded. Bro. Tooth next proposed the health of the W.M. for the ensuing year. He said the brethren of the Lodge ought to feel proud in having succeeded in getting such a man to fill the position of W.M. as Brother Smith. He was a thorough Mason, and one who appreciated and acted up to the teachings of Masonry. Bro. Smith suitably replied, expressing his gratitude to the brethren for the honour they had that day conferred upon him. He should do all in his power to discharge the obligations of the office. He was succeeding an able and zealous brother, and although he might not add lustre to the position, he should never tarnish it, and he hoped at the end of his year of office he should have earned the appreciation of his brethren. Bro. Smith then proposed the health of the I.P.M. He said the services that Bro. Tooth had rendered to Masonry generally, and the Josiah Wedgwood Lodge in particular, were well known, and he need not dilate upon them, neither need he dilate upon the many excellent qualities of Bro. Tooth. It was his privilege to know many Masons, excellent Masons, but he knew no one, whether as a Freemason or a citizen of the world, or as an individual who endeavoured to carry out the principles of the Craft, and practise out of Lodge those excellent precepts which they were taught, in a more marked manner than did Bro. Tooth. The latter replied, and said if his object had been attained in making the Josiah Wedgwood Lodge a success, he was fully rewarded and repaid for any services he had rendered. Bro. Bromley gave the Installing Master (Bro. Jackson) who replied. Bro. Small proposed the Visiting Brethren, which was acknowledged by the Rev. L. C. A. Edgworth. The Officers of the Lodge was proposed by Bro. Spence, and responded to by Bro. Bullock; and Bro. Hammersley proposed the Masonic Charities, the concluding toast being that of the Tyler. During the evening songs and recitations were contributed by various brethren, the proceedings being of a most pleasant character.

COPLEY LODGE, No. 111.

AT the meeting held on Tuesday evening, 1st inst., at the Masonic Hall, Great George Street, Leeds, Bro. Robert Craig was installed W.M. for the ensuing year by the Rev. Dr. Smyth D.P.G.M., and the following brethren were invested as the Officers:—Brothers A. Williamson S.W., W. Flockton J.W., G. F. Carr M.O., C. Middleton S.O., Bowman J.O., T. CHELMER LODGE, No. 342.

THE annual meeting was held at the Corn Exchange, Chelmsford, on Tuesday, the 24th ult. The auditor's report and balance sheet having been received, Bro. Thomas Rymer Jarvis was installed W.M. by Bro. J. P. Lewin, acting in the unavoidable absence of Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, Deputy Provincial Grand Master and Grand Chaplain of England. The ceremony was very ably performed. The new W.M. afterwards appointed and invested his Officers for the ensuing year, as follow:—Bros. W. Metcalfe I.P.M., T. J. G. Cramphorn S.W., J. C. Cresswell J.W., F. P. Sutthery M.O., H. P. Hay S.O., E. W. Holland J.O., Rev. F. B. Shepherd Chaplain, G. W. Pascall Treasurer, Arthur Mead Registrar of Marks, Adolphus G. Mascall Secretary, J. P. Lewin D.C., A. J. Pitts S.D., E. J. Wick J.D., W. S. Emden I.G. An excellent banquet was afterwards served at the White Hart Hotel, by Bro. A. M. Hipkin.

To judge by the following clipping—taken from the Glasgow Evening Times of the 28th ult.—it would appear that by the Scottish Press our well-known Bro. R. F. Gould P.G.D. has been made to figure as an octogenarian:—

"Companion Gould is acknowledged to be the greatest living historian of Freemasonry, and his published works on the history of the Craft and the higher degrees are both many and erudite. He has undoubtedly had excellent opportunities of acquiring an extensive knowledge of the Craft, having travelled over most of the known world. Companion Gould is a man of nearly eighty years of age, tall and spare in figure, but erect and of military appearance."

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Dyspepsia, Jaundice. These complaints are the results of a disordered liver, which secretes bile in quality or quantity incapable of digesting food. Digestion requires a free flow of healthy bile, to ensure which Holloway's Pills and Ointment have long been famous, for eclipsing other medicines. Food, irregularity of living, climates and other causes, are constantly throwing the liver into disorder, but this important organ can under all circumstances soon be regulated and healthily adjusted by Holloway's Pills and Ointment, which act directly upon its vital secretions. The Ointment, rubbed upon the skin, penetrates immediately to the liver, whose blood and nerves it rectifies. One trial is all that is needed—a cure will soon follow.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

THE monthly meeting of the General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys assembled on Saturday last, in the Board Room, Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Richard Eve P.G. Treasurer was unanimously called to the chair. The minutes of the meeting in August were read by Bro. Binckes, when the question was asked, Whether the meeting thoroughly understood that the resolution containing a recommendation from the General Committee for the grant of a pension of £350 to Bro. Binckes was for the Quarterly Court? In reply Bro. Eve said, Certainly; this was a recommendation by the Provisional Committee, but whatever is done must be considered by a Quarterly Court. Bro. Binckes read the minutes of the House Committee for information. In these were detailed certain matters which had come before the Committee. The matron had written a letter complaining of Dr. Morris, and Dr. Morris had answered the allegations. The Committee reported what had been done with reference to the choice of a new medical officer. They had had the testimonials of 37 applicants before them; had subsequently reduced the number of candidates to 15, again to 10, then to 6, and afterwards to 2; after which they recommended one gentleman, and returned the testimonials of the remainder. Brother Britten said that it appeared that the resolution of the Provisional Committee with regard to the election of the medical officer was irrevocable, but he wished to say a few words. He was told that the temporary medical officer, since the retirement of Mr. Hall, was an entirely satisfactory officer; he was resident something more than a mile from the Institution, but if he was a satisfactory officer he did not think it was right to reject him because he was a little out of the radius which the Provisional Committee had prescribed. The Chairman said he had heard from other brethren observations to this effect, and he felt himself that the Provisional Committee had done wrong in returning their testimonials to the candidates. What the Provisional Committee had done was to recommend one brother for appointment. It was for the Quarterly Court to say whether they would select him or any other of the applicants. The gentleman who was now acting was content to appear before the Quarterly Court with the others. After an inquiry as to the fitness of this gentleman for the post having been answered in the affirmative, Bro. Britten said he should like to hear read the reference as to the duties of the Provisional Committee. Bro. Binckes then read the minutes of the Special Meeting at which the Provisional Committee were appointed. Whereupon Bro. Britten said he had it in his mind that the Provisional Committee were expressly appointed to carry out the report of the Inquiry of the Philbrick Commission; he would, with permission, read one or two extracts from it. The Chairman having ruled that what was now being said arose out of the reading of the minutes, Bro. Britten continued—"The educational staff is satisfactory, the teaching good, and the school discipline well maintained," "There should be one head, and the entire establishment should be subject to him." Bro. Britten said he was not one of the Committee, and he did not know the reasons for coming to their conclusions. He thought these recommended that Dr. Morris be dismissed, or be permitted to retire. The Chairman—That notice has been given. Bro. Britten—Obviously the entire scope of this report was that the school under Dr. Morris was satisfactory; therefore he was at a loss to see why the Head Master should be requested to retire. He was quite able to understand that there might be good reasons why a change was necessary, but no reason was given other than that the new matron did not approve of him. Every man of business must agree that in the conduct of such an establishment as the Masonic Boys' School the head master should be the matron's master, and he thought the notion that Miss Harcomb seemed to have that she should come and go as she liked could not be maintained. The Chairman said there were recommendations other than those Bro. Britten had read. The resolutions were arrived at before the question of the matron and Dr. Morris had arisen, and it was arrived at in consequence of the report of the Investigation Committee. That was the reason given; it was arrived at before that question of the matron, and he might say it was a unanimous resolution of a large Committee—the largest Committee he had ever seen in connection with the working of the Institution. The Committee express themselves by resolution and do not generally enter into reasons. Bro. W. A. Scurrah said he did not think the Provisional Committee had gone outside their duties in this respect, because the first thing in the report of the Philbrick Commission was —"We, therefore, are of opinion that an entire change in the administration, and a thorough breaking away from the present practice must take place before the management, expenditure, and discipline of the Institution will be satisfactory." Therefore, the Committee had not gone beyond its duties. He would like to ask, through the Chairman, why he (Bro. Scurrah) was treated with discourtesy when he wrote a letter to the Secretary, respecting the medical officer. The Secretary acknowledged the receipt of the letter, and stated that it should be placed before the Provisional Committee. He appealed to the Provisional Committee, as a member of this General Committee, as one who had done some service to the Institution, to support his contention that he ought to have had a reply to his letter. The Chairman had stated that all the medical gentlemen were at liberty to come up to the Quarterly Court. He understood from several candidates that they had been requested to send back their testimonials, and how could they appear before the Quarterly Court as candidates if the Quarterly Court had not their testimonials? If the Sub-Committee was appointed to select one candidate, then he could understand that the Sub-Committee was in perfect order in doing so. But it was not so, and no Committee was at liberty to say one was to be selected and thirty-six to go away. The Chairman said that the Committee did not wish to treat Brother Scurrah with discourtesy. When his letter arrived it took them by surprise. They had sent information to the candidates that they might come before the Quarterly Court, and that they might produce their testimonials. Bro. Scurrah said a letter should have been sent to him informing him of this fact. The Chairman admitted it ought to have been sent, and it must have been by an oversight it was not. After further discussion the Chairman said he was going to close this question. If the conduct of the Committee had not been such as the General Committee approved, they were sorry for it, but he might say they gave the candidates the greatest amount of information they could; that the Court was open for them to send their applications to, and that it was perfectly in order for them to come to the Quarterly Court. Brother Scurrah moved a resolution that a letter be sent by the Secretary to all the candidates for the office of medical officer, telling them that their applications are not dismissed, and that they will be laid before the General Court, and to send back their testimonials. Bro. J. S. Cumberland said he wished to put the matter in this way. The brethren elected a Provisional Committee to do the best they could for the interests of the Institution. It was utterly impossible for any body of men like those meeting there that day, or at the Quarterly Court, to take into consideration all the testimonials that came before them; they therefore appointed a Sub-Committee to come to a satisfactory conclusion. That Committee had gone through the testimonials, and in their wisdom they selected, say five, or ten, or fifteen out of the candidates. Was it to be supposed that the whole of them could come to the Quarterly General Court with their testimonials, and throw them at the feet of 300 brethren, some of them, perhaps, their partizans? What would be the result? Why, the matter would be deferred again. The Provisional Committee had been appointed, and they were the acting Committee until they were turned out. How could the Quarterly Court select the best man? For himself, he thanked the Committee very much for having gone through the qualifications of the candidates; but he wanted to know why they limited the distance to not more than one mile from the Institution within which a candidate must reside? He supposed they thought that an Institution containing the sons of Masons should have a doctor who could soon be fetched on a cold winter night. If they could get as good a man within half a mile, it was for the interests of the Institution. If Bro. Scurrah's motion, or any other motion was passed, it would be referred back. It would be utterly impossible to consider the question at a Quarterly Court. As to the gentlemen sending back their testimonials, it was rather a dig in the ribs to them. If the brethren had not sufficient confidence in the Provisional Committee, let them get rid of them. Bro. Charles Dairy asked how long the gentlemn temporarily holding office had been elected for. The Chairman said as far as Bro. Saunders' resolution went, he must inform him that they could not now say what the Quarterly Court would do. At that Court the election of the doctor would take place. Bro. Saunders had proposed "That it be referred to the next Quarterly Court." That motion he could not receive, but the motion of Bro. Scurrah could be received. He would, however, submit that the utmost notice had been given the candidates. All that the Committee had done had been done under Laws 40 and 45 of the Institution, by which they were to inquire into the qualifications of candidates, select some, and report to the General Committee. They had done so, and they had intimated to all the others that they would be open to election at the Quarterly Court. He had no objection to receive Bro. Scurrah's notice. Bro. James Stevens inquired whether it was just that the Provisional Committee should recommend one particular person? Was it not a nomination? According to the circular, it was an intimation that one particular candidate had been chosen out of the 37. The Chairman said he had read the clause under which they acted. They had recommended one candidate. The decision will be entirely in the hands of the Quarterly Court. Bro. Dr. Jabez Hogg said he would propose to confirm the minutes, and after that to be permitted to offer a resolution on a subject which would answer all the questions that had been put to the meeting. He was sure they would not disagree, and then would get over the business well. The Chairman—What is the proposition? Bro. Dr. Hogg—To refer the question back to the Committee. He said he did so because he felt confident that there had been misapprehension by the Committee itself on this question. There was an advertisement issued in the medical journals, and the Committee proceeded to deal with the question with reference to this advertisement. The difficulty had arisen in this way. The candidate for the office of medical officer must reside near to and visit the school at least once every day. That advertisement did not say anything about a distance of a mile or half a mile. That omission had led to all this disagreement to-day. The Committee, he knew, desired to do the best they could, and the brethren were all very much indebted to them; but without thinking of this advertisement they passed this resolution limiting the radius to a mile from the Institution, and confining the applicants to those living within that radius. That was the omission. The Chairman had not this advertisement before him when he did that, and so this mistake arose. If this was referred back to the Committee, they would see the matter as he had, that the limiting of the distance had the effect of keeping off some of the best men. These gentlemen were ready, at whatever distance, to do their best for the Instituton. Distance was now annihilated as regards London by the facilities there were for getting about, and all these gentlemen were prepared to waive that subject of distance; they came forward with the understanding to come and fight their own battle. On the question of getting the best man for the Institution, the Committee had the means of keeping off some of the most eligible. That was a misfortune for the Institution. He was about to move that this question should be referred back to the Committee for their reconsideration, and that they should bring up a report and recommendation. Bro. Hawkins said although the Chairman had read the rule that they should report on the candidates, it did not mean that they should report on all of them. He believed the subscribers and donors had confidence in the Committee; but they objected to have one man foisted on them for the office; they did not want it, and they would not have it. The custom was for the Sub-Committee to make a selection of three or six, but to give the general body of subscribers, who found the funds, an opportunity of selecting a man. It was the course of public bodies when electing any officers for a Sub-Committee to select a certain number, and they were to present their testimonials to the general body that elected the officer. If that had been done, Bro. Sourrah would not have had any suspicion. He did not say there was cause, but there was just an element of suspicion, and keeping in view the recent history of this Institution, they were justified in encouraging that suspicion, and therefore should be given the opportunity of electing one of three, or one of six. A Brother said several of the brethren understood that the qualifications of those applicants who reside beyond the radius of a mile were not considered at all by the Committee. The Chairman—Every one of them was. You had 15, you had 10, you had 6. It was reported to the Quarterly Court, and it is competent for the Quarterly Court to select out of the 37. It was considered that whoever was appointed ought to be within a mile. A Brother reminded the Chairman of Dr. Hogg's remarks, and the Chairman said he did not think the Committee wished to have the matter referred back to them, but they did wish to do justice to all. If one candidate had better qualifications than the other, by all means let him try. If any brethren felt slighted, let them go before the Quarterly Court. Dr. Hogg's motion was seconded by Bro. W. M. Stiles. The Chairman then put the motion of Bro. Sourrah—"That a letter be sent by the Secretary to all those candidates for the office of medical officer, telling them that their applications are not dismissed, and that their applications will be laid before the General Court, and to send back their testimonials in order that they may be put before the Quarterly Court. The Chairman put the motion again in these words "That these 37 candidates be requested to send in their testimonials, to be submitted to the Quarterly Court," to this Dr. Hogg's amendment, that the matter be referred back to the Provisional Committee. The Committee divided. On a show of hands, the Chairman declared there were none for the amendment. He then put the motion, which was carried. Bro. Alfred Durrant asked the Chairman whether the meeting was going to be a party to the recommendation, the result of which was that the head master should have no support. The Chairman said they had not come to that part of the report yet. Brother Binckes then read the House Committee's minutes, and the Finance Committee's report. Two petitions from the friends of candidates for election into the School were considered, and deferred for further information by the Lodges in which the fathers of the candidates were initiated. Two grants of £5 each for outfits for ex-pupils of the Institution were then granted. Bro. John Glass now said that following on the recommendations of the report of the Provisional Management Committee which was laid before the brethren in July last, paragraph No. 6 of which was—"The Committee has under its consideration the various recommendations of the Committee of Inquiry, with a view to carry them out as desired by the General Court. It had not lost sight of the question of the Head Mastership, but deems it advisable to reserve this, with other important subjects, for further deliberation." Since July the Committee had devoted real and anxious consideration to this question, and afterwards they unanimously passed a resolution that this proposition should be laid before the brethren to-day. It was not his duty to comment upon it in any way; he only reiterated what the Chairman had already mentioned—that they had, in the best interests of the Institution, given this grave matter their very best attention, and whether the brethren approved of it or not was of course a matter for them. The Committee believed that they had in this instance done their duty faithfully, fearlessly, and well, and they asked the brethren to support them. He now moved—"That the Provisional Committee be authorised to terminate the appointment of Dr. Morris, the Head Master, in accordance with the terms of agreement dated 20th August 1875, and that the said Committee be further empowered to take such steps as they may deem desirable to appoint another Head Master in accordance with the laws of the Institution." Bro. J. S. Cumberland rose to second the proposition. He would go back to what he stated before, viz., that they elected the Committee to submit to them certain recommendations, and this was one, and he might say one of the most vital in connection with the Institution. He was not going to speak of the brother as a brother; he was going to speak against the system which had been carried on at the Institution, which had to some extent grown within his knowledge. He could not help thinking that all the matters which had cropped up from time to time, and come before the monthly meeting, showed that there had been a great want of discipline. The position the Secretary had taken with regard to the master, if the master was worth his salt he would have at once brought the question before the Committee, and if they did not listen to his complaints and the explanations of the Secretary, and then bring the whole matter before the Craft, he ought to have done so. He hoped the brethren would agree with him. What he was doing was in the interests of the Institution. If they elected another Secretary they might have a brother not acquainted with the commercial interests of the Institution, and on that ground he would say they would want a still stronger master. He had no hesitation at all in seconding the resolution. He would go further than that, and say that the brother elected to fill the place of the head master should be recommended to them as a general body. He would not be elected by the Committee, and those to find the money would have the appointment. Bro. Britton said he thought that the Provisional Committee was expressly appointed to carry out the report of the Philbrick Commission, and that report was in favour of Dr. Morris. They said that the discipline of the school under Dr. Morris was satisfactory, and he should move as an amendment that, in face of the Philbrick report and the questions 45 and 46, "This Committee is of opinion that the services of Dr. Morris should be retained." Bro. W. H. Saunders seconded the amendment. The Chairman said there was no necessity for the amendment, as it was a direct negative. Brother Jones thought that by the resolution passed at the June Quarterly Court the whole of the administrative officers of the Institution were to resign or tender their resignations. He could not conceive how this General Committee could upset a resolution of the Quarterly Court. To his mind a Quarterly Court was of far more importance than these monthly meetings. At the Quarterly Court they had brethren who subscribed their guinea and their five guineas. At this time they had the Life Governors. The Committee he contended, with all due respect to Bro. Britton, was appointed to carry out the resolution passed by the Quarterly Court, which was that the whole of the officers of the Institution should be got rid of. In the face of that resolution it was the duty of the Committee to carry it out. There was not sufficient discipline in the School, more especially considering the amount of money spent. He had had the expenses before him, and he knew. He did not know how they could refuse to get another Master; it was a conundrum to him that one Committee could upset another. He hoped this Committee would support the Provisional Committee to the very letter. Bro. Alfred Durrant could not allow any statement to be made on this occasion or in any public body reflecting on Dr. Morris. He had had many opportunities of seeing and knowing how discipline was maintained at the School, and he most unhesitatingly said, and he was ready to bring evidence of it, that their School as far as its Head Master was concerned was well managed, and that its discipline was excellent. Bro. Spratling would like to say that the state of the School at the time when Dr. Morris became Master was very different to what it was now. From his own knowledge, and from information of a friend of his who was second master in the School, he could say this. The state of the School now, educationally, was very far higher than when Dr. Morris undertook it. As to discipline he thought that if the monthly reports were gone over it would be found that John Jones was a naughty boy one day and Tom Smith a naughty boy another day. It would be found to be the case in every school, but that did not prove the discipline was bad. If Bro. Cumberland meant that, there was not much in it. Without throwing stones at anybody else, the difficulties must have increased if one thirtieth or one fiftieth part of what they heard was true. He thought Dr. Morris held his own pretty strongly and firmly. They were going to change a very important part of their administration; in fact to alter the whole thing. If they wished to do so they should pause and consider what they were about, and let the School feel its feet first. Dr. Morris might not be the best man, but he was free to do what he liked. Bro. Hawkins—as one of those who joined in advocating the making of a clean sweep of the officers, and in the entire administration of the School, and supporting various charges then found—said they were not conscious that Dr. Morris had been inefficient as far as the discipline of the School was concerned, but that he had been weak in not coming to the House Committee to protest against the Secretary's control. This statement had been made, and they were told that when he had come to the House Committee he was not supported there. They never heard of that until he came before the Philbrick Commission. Now, either Dr. Morris did go to the House Committee, and complain of interference with his administration, or he did not. If he did he was right, if he did not he was wrong. The Philbrick Committee held that the educational condition of the School was good, he heard practically the same Commission, consisting of the same gentlemen, recommending unanimously that Dr. Morris should be dismissed. Did those gentlemen accede to that report? Was any information obtained from Bro. Philbrick, or Sir Reginald Hanson or others, as to whether Dr. Morris had had the opportunity of carrying on the Institution with another staff. It seemed to him that Dr. Morris had no real opportunity of being the Governor of the School. Was the Provisional Committee, after so many years of Dr. Morris's services, going to give Dr. Morris a six months' notice or six months' salary only, when they were going to give another a gigantic pension? He was surprised at such conduct. There was no reason in the thing. They recommended the pensioning of their officer at £50 a year more than the salary which they were going to give his successor. The Chairman—So long as Brother Hawkins confines himself to Dr. Morris he is in order. Bro. Hawkins said if Dr. Morris was to go, give him some solatium; show the brotherly love they talked about. If Dr. Morris was such an incompetent master, such a bad scholar, how was it he (Bro. Hawkins) had read for years the reports from the Secretary and the Committee extolling Dr. Morris. There must certainly be some arguments in his favour. He did not say keep him permanently, but give him an opportunity of receiving something if they were going to turn him away at once. The brethren then voted by show of hands on the motion of Bro. Glass.

Against	...	...	35

Bro. Durrant proposed that it be referred to the Provisional Committee to consider the advisability of granting a pension to Dr. Morris. The Chairman read several letters from individual brethren, and on behalf of provinces. Some were in favour, and some in opposition to the proposed pension to Bro. Binckes. Bro. Britten—Is the resolution with regard to Dr. Morris to be acted on by this Committee or by the Quarterly Court? The Chairman—It will be acted on by the Provisional Committee. Bro. G. Faulkner seconded Bro. Durrant's proposition, which was then handed in in writing. Bro. the Rev. J. S. Brownrigg P.G.C. thought the proposition had better be laid before the Provisional Committee. The motion was carried. Bro. Jones said the brethren would recollect that at the monthly meeting in August a recommendation came from the Provisional Committee—that this Committee should confirm a proposition they made to give a pension of £150 a year to Bro. Binckes. He wished to ask the Chairman to-day, when the question of Bro. Binckes' pension was discussed, how many of the Provisional Committee were present? After some further discussion Bro. Hawkins asked whether it would be necessary to give notice of motion opposing the pension to Bro. Binckes? to which the Chairman answered, No. This closed the proceedings.

FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE

PROV. G. CHAPTER OF LEICESTERSHIRE AND RUTLAND.

THE annual convocation of the Provincial Grand Chapter of Leicestershire and Rutland was held at Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Tuesday, the 1st inst., by invitation of the St. George's Chapter, No. 1560. Comp. S. S. Partridge P.G.S.B. England, Provincial Grand H., presided, in the absence of the Grand Superintendent M.E. Comp. William Kelly. The following also attended

Comps. G. Toller P.G.S.B. England P.P.G.H., the Rev. W. Langley P.P.G.H., the Rev. C. Henton Wood Prov. G.S.E., J. Hassall Prov. G.S.N., J. Tuckfield Prov. G. Treasurer, Edgar Taylor Prov. The St. George's Chapter having been previously opened, the acting Provincial Grand Superintendent and Provincial Grand Officers were received, and the Provincial Grand Chapter was opened. Before proceeding with the business of the day, the Provincial Grand H. stated that he had received a letter announcing that the Provincial Grand Superintendent Comp. Kelly was prevented, by severe indisposition, from attending the meeting, it being the first occasion during his nineteen years' rule of Royal Arch Masonry in the Province on which he had been absent, and the Provincial Grand H. felt sure that the esteemed First Principal's accustomed presence would be very much missed by the Companions. He would therefore move a resolution expressing the regret of the Provincial Grand Chapter at Comp. Kelly's enforced absence, and their best wishes for his speedy recovery. The proposition was seconded by Comp. Langley, and cordially adopted, and a copy of the resolution ordered to be forwarded to Comp. Kelly. The rolls of the several Chapters and of the Provincial Grand Officers were then called, and duly responded to, after which the minutes of the previous annual convocation, which had been printed and circulated, were taken as read, and were duly confirmed. The report of the Audit Committee upon the Provincial Grand Treasurer's account, which showed a balance in hand of £22 4s 2d, was read, and upon motion duly made the account was passed, and a vote of thanks accorded to the Provincial Grand Treasurer for his services. The Provincial Grand Registrar's report was next read, showing a decrease of three in the number of subscribing members in the Province. Comp. J. Tuckfield was re-elected Provincial Grand Treasurer. The Provincial Grand Superintendent having selected the following as his Provincial Grand Officers for the ensuing year, they were duly invested by the Provincial Grand H. :—

The Provincial Grand Scribe E. read a communication which had been received from the Provincial Grand Secretary of Dorset, with reference to a resolution passed at the annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Dorset, expressing confidence in the ability and impartiality of the members of the Committee of investigation appointed to inquire into the management, &c., of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. After some discussion it was considered that at present the circumstances did not call for any expression of opinion on the part of this Provincial Grand Chapter. An appeal was also read from certain brethren at Peterborough, soliciting contributions for the erection of a stall or stalls in the newly restored choir of Peterborough Cathedral, and upon motion duly made a contribution from the funds of the Provincial Grand Chapter was voted to that object. Apologies for absence were read from Comps. Col. Le Gendre Starkie, W. J. Hughan, C. Fendelow, R. Brewin, and others. No other business being forthcoming, the Provincial Grand Chapter was closed, and a banquet followed.

Star Chapter of Instruction, No. 1275. — On Friday, 4th inst., at the Stirling Castle, Camberwell. Present:—Comps. F. Hilton Preceptor, Moore M.E.Z., Grammant H., Fleck J., Captain Vincent P.S., Stone S.E., C. H. Stone S.N., North and Addington. The Chapter was regularly opened. The ceremony of installation of Z. was performed in splendid style by Companion Hilton. The ceremony of exaltation was rehearsed, Companion North candidate. Companion Grummant was elected M.E.Z. for the next meeting. A very hearty vote of thanks was given to Companion Fleck for his rendering of the duties of J. so ably, for the first time. It was announced that an installation ceremony will be rehearsed at the next meeting.

COMPLETION OF THE NEW MASONIC HALL AT DUNBLANE.

ON the 16th ult., the new Masonic Hall for Lodge St. John, No. 9, was formally opened for working, the painting and decorating of the building having now been thoroughly completed. The erection of this Hall owes its origin chiefly to the generosity of Colonel Stirling, of Kippendavie, whose enthusiastic interest in Freemasonry is now well known to the Craft all over Scotland. Although a comparatively young Mason, Colonel Stirling has already done a great deal of good sound work for the Craft, not only in his own immediate district, but in various parts of the country. When the Colonel succeeded to the property, he learned that his father, amongst his multitudinous engagements, took a great personal interest in the work of Freemasonry, and four years ago the Colonel expressed a desire that, if it were agreeable to the brethren, he would be pleased to connect himself with a body with which the Stirlings of Kippendavie had long been associated. The application received a cordial welcome from the brethren, and Bro. Thomas Hunter, then R.W. Master of Scone and Perth, No. 3, and his Office-bearers were invited to perform the ceremonies of initiation, passing, and raising. Colonel Stirling was shortly afterwards installed as R.W. Master, and he signalised the occasion by intimating his intention to erect a suitable hall. The Colonel did not allow the grass to grow under his feet, as on the 26th June 1886 the foundation stone was laid with full Masonic honours, and amidst much popular rejoicing. On 21st June 1887 the hall was duly consecrated as part of the proceedings on the ever-memorable Jubilee of the accession of Queen Victoria to the throne. The hall was built from a design by the late Mr. J. M'Lean, architect, Stirling, and may fairly claim to be one of the most handsome Masonic Temples in the country, both as regards its design, its furnishings, and its general arrangements for working. The furnishings are of a particularly elegant and ornate description, the designs being specially prepared by the architect. The mantelpiece consists of a beautiful piece of oak carving, showing the Stirling crest and motto, "Gang Forward," combined with Masonic emblems and mottoes. Towards the Main Street there is a magnificent memorial window bearing a representation of Hiram Abiff and St. John, the upper part of the window and borders being filled in with Masonic emblems in harmony with the figures. The window—which was put in by Messrs. Swaine and Bourne, Birmingham, and is a highly artistic piece of work—bears the following inscription :—

Presented by the office-bearers and brethren of St. John's Lodge, No. 9, in memory of their late R.W.M., Brother John Stirling, of Kippendavie. 1887.

The work of decorating the hall was entrusted to Messrs. G. R. Douglas and Son, Perth, and the way in which they have carried out this part of their work is not only highly creditable to the firm, but most satisfactory to the Lodge. The ceiling, which is divided into varied panels by plaster members running throughout, has been painted a fine pale blue, and ornamented with gold stars. The members are finished in shades of buff and green, lighter shades of the same colour being used on the centre pieces, the festoons of which are effectively tipped with gold. In a circular panel at either end of the ceiling the usual Masonic devices are very artistically introduced. The walls are coloured a dark rose pink, and the cornice is done in shades of buff and pink—the egg and dart ornaments consisting of pink, picked out with blue, while the trusses, beads, &c., are richly hatched with gold. The frieze, an exceedingly beautiful one, is also remarkably neatly finished. The design of the frieze consists of alternate panels of figures and festoons in bas-relief, divided by gold lines, the figures and festoons being white and gold—the background being pink several shades lighter than the walls, while shades of green are pleasingly introduced on cornice and frieze. The dado round the walls and other woodwork is stained dark oak, with ebonized mouldings and rich gold beadings. The floor is stained dark oak and polished. On the wall behind the altar there is an admirably executed Masonic design, painted in marble, with devices in gold. Altogether, the interior of the hall presents an exceedingly chaste and elaborate appearance. The entire cost of decorating the hall, upwards of £60, was defrayed by Bro. Sir John Stirling Maxwell, Bart., of Pollok.

THE THEATRES, &c.

Criterion.—It is pleasing to notice the flattering reception accorded the revival of T. W. Robertson's simple little comedy "Caste," a piece that recalls memories of the glorious days of the old Prince of Wales' Theatre under the Bancroft management, when a specially constituted company was engaged for plays of this description, and were personally superintended by the author. Public taste has doubtless greatly changed since "Caste" was first produced, and it is also most difficult to replace those actors who gave the charm to the slight story by their perfect acting. Still Mr. William Duck has brought together a fairly representative gathering, and they who did not witness the comedy at the old theatre will have no reason to complain. Mr. Leonard Boyne gives a satisfactory rendering of George D'Alroy, and Mr. Arthur Elwood fairly represents the eccentricities of Captain Hawtree, while Miss Olga Brandon pathetically portrays the character of Esther Eccles. Admirers of Mr. David James can readily imagine what he would make of that sublime humbug Eccles, and sallies of laughter run through the house whenever he makes his appearance. Miss Lottie Venne is lively and diverting as Polly, and Mr. Brookfield gives a life-like portrait of the young workman, Sam Gerridge. May we suggest the advisability of having a short farce in front of the comedy, as the complaints as to the long intervals were loud and deep on the occasion of our visit?

On Wednesaynext, the 16th instant, at the Avenue, will be produced a new Opera Comique, in three acts, entitled "La Prima Donna," composed by Tito Mattei, adapted from a well known story by H. B. Farnie and Alfred Murray. The new scenery is by Richard Douglass and Fred Storey. The incidental dances have been arranged by Mr. Willie Warde. The following are in the cast:—Mesdames Sara Palma, Florence Paltzer, Amelia Gruhn, Alice Lethbridge, &c.; Messrs. Alec Marsh, Joseph Tapley, George Sinclair, Geo. Capel, Harry Grattan and Albert Chevalier. Mr. John Crook will conduct.

Certainly a new era for such towns as Eastbourne, Reading, Oxford, and Cambridge, has been opened up by the enterprise of Mr. Glostor Armstrong, in booking matinées of "Æsop's Fables" with the entire London Company, thus affording the local residents the opportunity of seeing a London success, with such artists as Mr. Penley and Miss Stanley playing, without their having the expense and trouble of journeying to London. "Imitation is the sincerest flattery," so Mr. Edouin has followed Mr. Armstrong's lead and booked "Our Flat" for a matinée at Reading.

Nothing succeeds like success. Seven companies are playing "The Balloon" through the country, and three companies are booking dates for the spring and two for the autumn of 1890.

NEW MUSIC.

Triumphal March. Composed by Bro. FARREN LAMBERT. London: Weekes and Co., 14 Hanover Street, Regent Street, W.

THIS march, which is dedicated by special permission to Her R.H. the Duchess and His Grace the Duke of Fife, on the occasion of their marriage, is a most welcome addition to our march music. It is a tuneful composition, with plenty of swing in it, while it is suited for the piano or American organ just as well as to the organ. It is an appropriate piece for weddings, harvest festivals, or any other jubilant occasion, and has already become very popular, more especially in the West of England, where the Freemasons welcome it with pleasure at their installation and other banquets. Lovers of marches will do well to get a copy of Bro. Farren Lambert's composition, for it is a capital piece of music.

On the 25th ult., the Freemasons of the Retford district had an interesting gathering on the borders of the Dukeries, at Haughton, formerly the ancestral home of the Earls of Clare. In the ancient ruins of the Chapel a Lodge was opened, by special dispensation granted by the Provincial Grand Lodge of Nottinghamshire. The architectural features of the building were explained, and its history traced, and the members also visited the site of the old hall, on the banks of the River Maun. The party were favoured with most brilliant weather, and the outing, which had been arranged by Worshipful Bro. Past Master Marshall, was of a most enjoyable character. Luncheon was afterwards served at Lound Hall, at which Mr. Marshall presided, Mr. Walker, of the Criterion, Retford, being the caterer.

Obituary.

BRO. MICHAEL WATSON.

THE death of Brother Michael Watson occurred, at his residence, 28 The Gardens, East Dulwich, on the 3rd inst. The deceased gentleman, who had achieved a considerable reputation as a composer of songs, anthems, trios, and duets, was a son of a professor of music at Newcastle-on-Tyne, and was born in 1839. He commenced life as a student at the old school of design at Marlborough House, but subsequently adopted his father's profession. Many of his earlier compositions appeared under the pseudonym of "Jules Favre." His well-known song, "The Powder Monkey," won for him merited popularity. Amongst other of his numerous contributions to the musical repertoire may be mentioned "Anchored," "The Kissing Gate," "All in a Garden Fair," "The Old Timepiece," "Somebody's Pride," "The vision of Love," "Afloat," and "Little Birdie mine." At the time of his death he was engaged upon two sacred cantatas and operettas, and an original comedy opera. His premature decease will be deeply regretted by a large number of friends and admirers. Bro. Michael Watson was a member of the Chough Lodge, and had intended to have been present at the installation meeting, on 26th ultimo, when his new song, "My Lass and I," was rendered by Bro. A. Strugnell.

BRO. CHARLES H. O'DONOGHUE.

ON Tuesday, the 1st instant, the remains of Bro. Charles H. O'Donoghue, a native of Devonport, were consigned to the grave in the churchyard of Lidlington, Bedfordshire, the place in which he has laboured as the Master of the Board School for the last eleven years. The deceased had been ill for over three months, and his sufferings had been very intense indeed. The early part of his career was passed as a pupil teacher, under the tuition of the late Mr. Thomas Good, at the Royal Naval and Military Free Schools, Devonport, from which establishment he proceeded to the Exeter Training College. After passing the full term he became master of a school in Surrey, but eventually joined the service as a naval schoolmaster, and in which he served ten years. He was at the time of his death the president of the Bedford and Ampthill Teachers' Association, and also the delegate selected for that district to attend the annual conference of the National Union of Teachers. He was also a member of the Beaudesert Lodge, No, 1087, Leighton Buzzard.

The regular monthly meeting of the Committee of Management of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution was held at Freemasons' Hall on Wednesday. Bro. J. A. Farnfield (Vice-Patron and Treasurer) occupied the chair, and there were present Bros. James Brett, John Bulmer, C. A. Cottebrune, John E. Dawson, Joseph Freeman, W. H. Perryman, C. H. Webb, Charles Daniel, E. West, G. Bolton, W. Masters, Dr. Jabez Hogg, Alex. Forsyth, W. H. Hubbert, G. E. Fairchild, J. S. Cumberland, T. B. Purchas, Charles G. Hill, L. G. Gordon Robbins, Chas. J. Perceval, David D. Mercer, Charles Kempton, A. Durrant, Hugh Cotter, W. B. Daniell, C. Lacey, William Clarke, Henry Cox, C. H. Driver, Robert Berridge, L. C. Haslip, Frederick Mead, Robert Griggs, W. Belchamber, W. J. Murlis, C. F. Hogard, A. H. Tattershall, W. Smith, John Larkin, John J. Berry, and James Terry (Secretary). The minutes of the previous meeting were read and, after a long discussion, verified by a large majority. The Secretary reported the death of two female annuitants. The Warden's report for the past month was read, and that of the Finance Committee read, adopted, and ordered to be entered on the minutes. One petition (male) having been considered and accepted, and the name ordered to be placed on the list of candidates for the election in May 1890, the proceedings terminated, with a vote of thanks to the Chairman.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Devonshire, under the presidency of the Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master, Viscount Ebrington, M.P., will be held at Seaton, on Wednesday, the 6th November next.

THE MAGISTRATE'S CLERK AND HIS SUNDAY DINNER.

"WHAT say you to a piece of beef and mustard?" asked Gramio of Katherina, when discussing with the shrewish lady what her repast should be. The same question has been put frequently since Shakspere's time. But it is one thing to procure these essentials to a good English dinner and another thing to partake of them. This has just been the experience of a gentleman well-known and highly respected in local and legal Masonic circles, and a trusted adviser of the city justices, Mr. Wm. S——. This gentleman has been the victim of an impudent theft or a silly practical joke.

Mr. S—— resides in Fitzclarence-street. On Saturday night before retiring he examined his premises to see if they were all right. Everything appeared to be correct. The meat safe was examined, and it contained the material for the Sunday's meal—a sirloin of beef, a goodly quantity of rump steak, a fine ham, and other things. A short time after Mr. S—— had again occasion to look at the meat safe. To his astonishment he found that the contents had vanished—beef, ham, steak, and also a quantity of sugar. Where could they have disappeared to in so short a time? He at once proceeded to the street to see if he could discover the thief. No one was to be seen, and Mr. S—— returned to the house to mourn the loss of what he intended for his Sunday's repast. He, however, could not remain provisionless. But there would be a difficulty in procuring the necessary edibles, as the hour was late and nearly all the shops in the neighbourhood were closed. Fortunately there was a friend and brother Mason, who is in the provision line, and with that fraternal feeling which is one of the leading features of the mystic Craft he at once furnished his neighbour with the needful supplies for the Sunday. The police had been informed of the occurrence. They attribute it to the depredation of an area sneak, but some of Mr. S——'s many friends humorously describe the disappearance of the good things from his meat safe as a "Masonic mystery."

Whatever may have led to this extraordinary affair it has given rise to a good deal of gossip in legal and Masonic circles. The loss was great, but Mr. S—— has the consolation of knowing that he has the sincere sympathy and condolence of all who know him. This kindly feeling has been displayed towards him in a very unmistakable manner. One legal official friend has made the theft of the beef, ham, &c., the theme of a poem which he has composed. This is probably one of the lawyer's first poetic flights. His verses are not classic in style, but they are intensely sympathetic with his friend in his loss. Mr. S—— is a leading member of one of our principal Masonic Lodges, the Dramatic. For the installation of their W.M. the members of the Dramatic met at the Temple, Hope-street, recently. The attendance was numerous and influential, among those present being several well-known members of the legal, literary, and dramatic professions. During the proceedings, it is stated, a gentleman renowned for his elocutionary gifts, recited, with rare dramatic effect and pathos, the poem mentioned, which in heroic numbers recounted the abstraction of victuals from their worthy brother's safe. A sample, as recited, of the thrilling verse may be interesting:—

A loud and piercing cry is heard,
At twelve o'clock at night;
A man came tearing wildly on,
Impetuous was his flight.

His wail it rends the midnight air,
He groans, and shouts "Stop thief!
My Sunday dinner has disappeared—
My ham, my steak, my beef."

The recital of the poem touched the hearts of the assembled brethren. A vote of condolence was accorded to Mr. S—— and it was unanimously decided that they should present to him another sirloin in place of the one he had so mysteriously lost.

KNIGHTS TEMPLARS BARRED OUT.

WASHINGTON, D.C., 8TH SEPTEMBER 1889.

GRAND Master Roome, of the Conclave of Knights Templars, which will meet here in October, has created a sensation by issuing an order prohibiting Commanderies of the State of Iowa from participating in the Templar parade. On this action hangs a long controversy, which will come up at the tri-annual Conclave for discussion, and will cause very hot debates. At the tri-annual meeting in St. Louis in 1886 a form of ritual was discussed, which last year Roome ordered should be used in all the Commanderies in his jurisdiction. The Conclave of 1886 had left the question of the ritual in rather an unsettled state, and a great many Knights did not look upon it as adopted. This faction was strongest in the Grand Commandery in Iowa, which refused to use Roome's ritual, whereupon the latter declared Iowa Templars to be in a state of rebellion and disloyalty to the Order, and their continued resistance has now caused the arbitrary order prohibiting them the right to parade. The matter of the ritual will come before the Conclave next month and will be fought over. Iowans and their followers, who are very strong, are contending for the ancient form of working their degrees, while Roome will advocate a more modern one.—Boston Herald.

Promptness in opening Masonic bodies in conformity to the bye-laws is the best method of securing a prompt attendance of the members. It sometimes happens that there is a lack of punctuality on the part of presiding officers, and they often delay the opening, thus making it necessary to hold the meetings to a much later hour. Promptness should be impressed on presiding officers, and when adhered to, will insure prompt and willing attendance on the part of the members.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL from the Rev. F. FARVIS, Baptist Minister.

Mr. G. EADE. March 10, 1887.

Dear Sir,—I have many times felt inclined to inform you of the benefit I have received by taking your Gout and Rheumatic Pills. After suffering for some time from Rheumatics and Sciatica, I was advised to use your Pills. I bought a bottle, and when in severe pain and unable to use the limb affected I took a dose. In a few hours after I felt the pain much better, and after the second dose the pain completely removed and the limb restored to its right use. I thank you, dear sir, for sending forth such a boon for the relief of human suffering.

Yours faithfully,
F. FARVIS,

There are multitudes of people who look upon advertising as a sort of Lottery, and bestow infinitely more thought in the selection of a clerk at £100 a year than in the expenditure of £1000, or two in the same period on advertising. A tithe of the shrewdness displayed in all other branches of their business given to the management of their advertising will be amply repaid. The ADVERTISEMENT AGENT has become an indispensable factor in this matter of publicity, and his raison d'être is perfectly unassailable. Would you leave or enter a port without a pilot? Would you commence and prosecute a law suit without a legal adviser? Either of these courses would not be more foolish than rushing into expenses in Advertising without a competent practical and professional adviser. I am at all times happy to render advertisers every assistance in my power, and to give them the benefit of the experience I have gained during the past twenty years as a London advertising agent. My Dear Doctor,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

THE regular Quarterly General Court of this Institution will be held on Friday next, the 25th inst., in the Large Hall of the Freemasons' Tavern, and, judging from the business then to be transacted, a lengthy and animated meeting may be expected. Beginning at the end of the agenda, we think it will be well for the meeting to decide, before starting on the various discussions which must arise on the general business to be transacted, as to what is to be done in regard to the Election which, as usual, is timed to commence at one o'clock, and close at three. The meeting of the day will open at twelve o'clock, so that there is only three hours available for all the business, and this we think will be found to be hardly sufficient. If this should prove to be the case, how would the Election stand? The poll must close at three o'clock, and we are of opinion the other business may extend beyond that hour. It may therefore be desirable to open the poll in a separate room, and appoint some brother or brethren to take charge of the papers.

The first business on the agenda is to elect a Medical Officer for the Institution, and here, unfortunately, a hitch may be looked for. In answer to the advertisement announcing the vacancy, thirty-seven duly qualified candidates have made application for the appointment, and although we believe some two or three of these have since expressed their intention of not taking any part in the contest, there yet remains a very large number to be considered. The Provisional Management Committee, in the exercise of their judgment, selected from this large number of candidates six whom they considered especially qualified, the special feature to recommend these gentlemen being the fact that they all resided within a mile of the Institution. This is undoubtedly an important qualification, but it has been pointed out that if this had to be made a condition for the appointment, it should have been so stated in the advertisement. On the other hand some of the distant candidates would, unquestionably, take up their residence in Wood Green, or its neighbourhood, were they to secure the appointment, so that it would be well to know exactly what each candidate intended to do before coming to a decision on this head in regard to his application. But the Provisional Committee did not leave the matter alone, even after they had selected the six specially qualified candidates, and it is much to be regretted they did not do so, as it would have made the final selection a much more easy task. They further considered the testimonials, abilities, and qualifications of the six who reside within the one mile radius, and ultimately decided to recommend a gentleman who, so far as we understand, lives much beyond a mile from the Institution, so that we are at a loss to account for the one mile limit being introduced.

With such a large number of boys to attend to as at present reside at Wood Green it is imperative the Medical Officer should be on the spot. As an instance we may mention the case of a slight accident which occurred to one of the lads a few days since, when, as the regular medical attendant was not expected to call for at least five hours, and he was not within reach, a local practitioner was called in and his services were made available. This means additional expense to the Charity, opens the way to the creation of professional jealousy, and may be expected to lead to such a general disorganisation of this important branch of the Institution as to at once condemn it in the minds of the Subscribers. We consider the limit of a mile is a very good one to enforce, and it will be well if the electors make this part of the question one of the first they decide upon. It will save them the trouble of considering the claims of all the candidates, but it should first be discovered how many of the outsiders propose to remove within the radius should they be selected for the appointment.

Among the six candidates to which the Provisional Committee narrowed their list are, we understand, three who are members of the Craft, and three who are not. Does Masonic membership stand for anything in such a case? or is the promise to help a Brother Mason, when it can be done without detriment to ourselves or our connections, merely a string of meaningless words? In the case before us there is little to choose between the several candidates who come within the mile radius; they are all well qualified for the appointment, all have every-day practice in the neighbourhood, and, so far as can at present be judged, have equal chances of successfully discharging the work attached to the appointment. Should not then the obligation to help a Brother Mason, as far as possible, have some weight in deciding the matter? There are many who consider it should do so, and we certainly, personally, incline to that opinion, but whether it will have any effect with the general body of the electors on Friday next remains to be seen.

We have shown that the task of deciding as to which of the candidates is best fitted for the vacant office is a difficult one, and as all the applicants are well recommended, the mere reading of their testimonials and qualifications will in itself be a lengthy task, so that we should not be surprised if the question is referred back to a Committee, with instructions to consider the whole merits of the case, and select a few of the candidates as being the most eligible. We have already seen that the selection of one candidate by a Committee does not meet with approbation, and justly so. Let the contest be free and open to all, but let such reasonable restrictions be imposed as will bring the number of candidates within manageable bounds for the whole body of electors to finally decide the matter.

Having disposed of this election—or postponed the matter, which is equally probable—the Governors and Subscribers will be asked to consider the following notice of motion, submitted by V.W. Bro. Richard Eve, Patron (P.G. Treasurer), on behalf of the Provisional Management Committee :—

"That in accordance with the recommendation of the Provisional Management Committee, adopted by the General Committee on Saturday, 10th August 1889, an allowance of £350 per annum, for life, be made to Bro. Frederick Binckes, on his retirement from the office of Secretary, after a service of upwards of 28 years."

We are aware this retiring allowance will not be granted without opposition, but it will be a lasting disgrace to the Craft, or at least to its Charitable Institutions, if the past services of Bro. Binckes are not fully recognised and adequately remunerated. we do not anticipate the opposition will have much chance of upsetting the recommendation of the Provisional Committee, but it is to be hoped that all who recognise what Bro. Binckes has done, and who consider his services are worthy of recognition, will attend, and vote in such a way as they may consider consistent. What has Brother Binckes done for the Boy's School? is a question asked by those who are talking of opposition to the granting of this retiring allowance. We may re-echo,—What, indeed? and for answer, say—Everything that should entitle him to the grant now proposed. It is very difficult to look back a matter of nearly thirty years, and say how much or how little has been accomplished in that period through the "influence of one man," and it is manifestly unfair for men who have only known the Institutions for a few years, and have perhaps only been associated with Freemasonry some six or eight, to attempt to solve the question as to how much of the present prosperity of the Masonic Institutions is due to the exertions of Bro. Binckes. But beyond all this there is the custom of the world in regard to such matters to guide us, and the proposition to be submitted to the Subscribers next Friday is not an unreasonable one from this point of view. True, it is a large amount the Subscribers are asked to pay for past services, but when the past services have been of such a nature as is the case here, and have been extended over so long a period, it is none too much, and we hope the proposition will be carried, if not unanimously, at least with such a strong majority as to show that the efforts Bro. Binckes has made in years gone by, on behalf of the Institution, are recognised and appreciated.

We have spoken of opposition to this proposed grant because it has been publicly announced that opposition is contemplated, but it must not be forgotten that this recommendation of the Provisional Management Committee has already been submitted to the General Committee of the Institution, namely, on the 10th August last, when, at a very largely attended meeting, it was adopted with but six dissentients—the number present on that occasion being over one hundred. To further show the approval with which the proposition has been received, we may refer to the fact that at the August meeting, already referred to, a proposal to reduce the annual allowance to £200 fell through for want of a seconder. Since then, however, the subject has been discussed throughout the country and, as a natural consequence, the advocates of both sides have gained supporters. Some of the Provinces approve of the idea of a reduction to £200 per annum, others consider £350 a year none too much, while others again pledge themselves to support the action of the Provisional Committee in the various works of reform they devote their attention to.

The second notice of motion on the agenda emanates from the Sanitary Sub-Committee of the Provisional Committee, and stands in the name of Bro. W. Masters, Life Governor, who will propose

"That the Provisional Management Committee be authorised to expend a sum not exceeding £1,000 to provide additional Baths in the School Buildings, and for general Sanitary requirements. Also, that the Committee be authorised to expend a sum not exceeding £2,500 in the erection of a Swimming Bath."

The general body of supporters of the Institution will, we imagine, hail the first part of this proposition with delight, for in all matters concerning the health or comfort of the large family entrusted to their care they are, and ever have been, most liberal. The expenditure of the proposed £1,000 for the purpose of providing additional Baths in the School Buildings, and for general Sanitary requirements is evidence of a desire to make things more satisfactory in the point of cleanliness for the future than they are accredited with having been in the past, and if the £1,000 now proposed is sufficient for the purpose we are convinced it will be cheerfully voted. The extra amount of £2,500 required for the erection of a swimming bath is, no doubt, equally necessary, and we anticipate it will be agreed to, although the outlay of so large an amount just now may not find general favour. Undoubtedly a swimming bath would be a most valuable acquisition to such an establishment as that possessed by the Freemasons at Wood Green, while the advantages of teaching the lads the art of natation cannot be over-estimated. Both from sanitary and utilitarian points of view then the expenditure can be recommended, and if the General Court feels justified in voting the necessary funds no doubt it will prove one of the most satisfactory investments ever made.

Following these matters we come to a series of propositions submitted by Brother William Harris Saunders, Life Governor, P.P.G.S.D. Middlesex, who suggests as follows :—

(a) "That boys shall be educated according to the position their fathers occupied while in prosperity, and that where considered desirable by the Committee, an allowance be granted for education out of the Institution. That the General Committee be requested to take this matter under consideration, on application being made for a boy to be placed on List of Candidates."

(b) "That following the example of many other Public Schools, pupils shall be received into the Institution at a fixed annual sum, and that sons of Masons only shall be eligible for election or otherwise."

(c) "That the Court recommend to the General Committee to make special inquiries in all last cases, with a view to their Election should the case prove to be that of a really destitute Candidate."

(d) "That all petitions be thoroughly inquired into (as per resolution recently adopted by the Girls' General Committee) by a Sub-Committee, who shall report to the General Committee prior to such petitions being brought before them, but who shall not have power to reject any Candidate."

This first proposal of Bro. Saunders is a mistake, and should be rejected. How is it possible to have a number of grades in such a School as that of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys? We know the trials and troubles of the University man who secures a scholarship, or in some other way is in marked contrast to his fellows—in many cases his life is a misery. Why, therefore, attempt to introduce class distinctions into our School? Besides, our argument always has been that the man who does his best, no matter in what sphere he moves, is equal to the man of any other sphere who also does his best. Let us endeavour to educate the boys, not as their fathers would have done, but as their fathers would have wished to do—in other words give them all the care and attention possible. The question of granting an allowance for educational purposes out of the Institution is no new idea, but the action of outside Provinces, many of which are now in possession of Educational funds of their own, while others are contemplating their establishment, should at once set this matter at rest. If brethren interested in a case find themselves unable to secure a place in either one of the central Institutions it is for them to decide whether they will subscribe sufficient among themselves to pay for the education of the girl or boy at a local school. Many have so decided, and the result has been, as we say above, the establishment of several local Educational Funds. While the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys has full accommodation for all the children it is possible to maintain no attempt should be made to upset existing regulations, but when the day comes to propose an extension of the existing buildings then it may be desirable to consider as a counter proposition the views now favoured by Bro. Saunders.

The question of receiving paying pupils at the Institution is merely a matter of arrangement, and must entirely depend on the views entertained by those interested in the management of the Institution. Perhaps the new head master, when one is appointed, should be consulted on this point, and his views, together with those of the Committee for the time being, laid before the Craft in the form of a report.

It is quite impossible to do anything with Brother Saunders' third proposal. No distinction can possibly be made in regard to the election on last applications—all must take equal chance, and the only royal road to success must be influence enough to secure the necessary votes. If a rule was adopted to make a distinction it would only be necessary to secure a candidate a place on the list, and quietly await his or her last chance, no voting would be needed, and the whole system of selection by those who subscribed the money would be done away with. Much as we regret the necessity for occasionally rejecting, on account of age, candidates whose friends have worked hard to secure their election, we see no possible chance of lessening the hardship of doing so.

Brother Saunders will probably see his fourth proposal carried, that if he is prepared to show that the new system works well in connection with the sister Institution.

The next business will be the election of sixteen Boys, from an approved list of seventy candidates. We have already referred to this part of the day's work, and can only hope it will be as satisfactorily carried out as past contests have been. Altogether we anticipate a busy meeting, and we hope that whatever is done may result to the benefit of the Charity. One matter we would especially impress on those who propose to attend. They have the reputation of being gentlemen, and we hope none of them will so far forget themselves as to forfeit their right to that distinction. It is not necessary to make a noise or create a disturbance to show opposition, but rather to discuss calmly and deliberately the several questions raised. If the opposition is fair, it will then stand a better chance of success.

SIR DANIEL GOOCH, BART.

By the death of Sir Daniel Gooch, Bart., another vacancy has been created amongst our Provincial Grand Masters. This untoward event had been anticipated by the majority of our readers, who eagerly looked forward day by day for any tidings that might lead them to a hope that their beloved brother was likely to recover from the illness that had laid him prostrate. But the sad event at length took place. Sir Daniel Gooch died on Tuesday, the 15th inst., at his Berkshire residence, Clewer Park, near Windsor. From our "MASONIC PORTRAITS," Second Series, we quote the following particulars of Sir Daniel Gooch's Masonic record:—"He was initiated in the month of February 1850 in the St. George's Lodge, No. 112, Exeter. In 1853 he was chosen to fill the chair of the Royal Sussex Lodge of Emulation, No. 355, Swindon, of which, in the meantime, he had become a joining member. During his term of office he initiated, passed, and raised twenty-eight candidates. Such indeed was the general estimation in which he was held, not only in his Province, but throughout the Craft generally, that during this same year he was appointed Deputy Prov. G. Master of Wiltshire, and a member of the Board of General Purposes while in 1854 the further honour was conferred upon him of re-electing him Master of the Royal Sussex. He was subsequently chosen Master of the Lansdowne Lodge of Unity, No. 626, Calne, of the Britannic, No. 33, and of the Middlesex Lodge, No. 143, and during these three Masterships, and his second of No. 355, he initiated, passed, and raised as many as thirty-nine candidates, the total of those he has introduced to one or other of the degrees being no less than eighty. In 1858, he was not only elected Worshipful Master of the Methuen Lodge, No. 631, Swindon, but his Provincial services were recognised in Grand Lodge by his appointment to the office of Grand Sword Bearer. In 1868 he was appointed by the late Earl of Zetland to be the Provincial Grand Master of Berks and Bucks, and prior to his quitting the Province of Wilts, with which he had been prominently connected for so many years, he was entertained at a banquet at Chippenham, at which Lord Methuen, the Prov. G. Master, presided. On this occasion he was presented with his full regalia as Prov. G. Master, his Wilts brethren having subscribed amongst them about £100 for that purpose. The exalted office to which he was then appointed has been held by him ever since. His administration of the Province has been attended with results most satisfactory to the interests of the Craft. The number of Lodges and members has been doubled, and whereas, previous to the appointment to the post nothing was done by the Province as such towards any of our great central Charities, it now takes a leading part in contributing to the needs of these Institutions. This is due to his exertions entirely, for almost his first act was to take measures for organising a scheme for raising contributions, and during his tenure of office, Berks and Berks, both as a Province and by the impetus given to private subscription, has figured liberally and most regularly at our Charitable Festivals. Such have been the services of our hero in Craft Masonry, but they are far from being the sum of his achievements. Is he not Grand Superintendent of Royal Arch Masonry in his own Province? and does he not figure in the list of those distingnished brethren who have taken the Mark, Templar, and High Degrees? In 1851, he was advanced to the Mark Degree, in the Bon Accord Lodge, in the Metropolis, and subsequently held various offices. The same year he was exalted to the Royal Arch Degree, in St. George's Chapter, No. 112, Exeter, and received the Knight Templar Degree in the Rougemont or Union Encampment, No. 39, Exeter. In 1852 he took the Rose Croix and Ne Plus Ultra degrees in Exeter, and that of G.E.K., K.H., 30° and intermediate degrees in London. In 1856 he was installed First Principal in Moriah Chapter, No. 9, and during his tenure of office exalted three candidates, while as Z. of the Wiltshire, No. 355, he exalted not less that ten candidates. In 1858 he was appointed Grand Sword Bearer in Grand Chapter, holding this post of distinction in the Arch concurrently with the same office in Grand Lodge or Craft Masonry. In 1861, he was elected First Principal of the Britannic Chapter, No. 33, and lastly, and by way of putting the Keystone to the Arch of his reputation and the distinctions he had attained, he was, in 1875, installed as Grand Superintendent of the Provincial Grand Chapter of Berks and Bucks. It should be further mentioned that he has personally conducted the ceremony of consecration in the case of the following Lodges, namely, Methuen Lodge, No. 631, formerly of Swindon, but since migrated to Taplow Bucks; Canonbury Lodge, No. 657, London; Wiltshire Lodge of Fidelity, No. 663, Devizes; and Lodge of Concord, No. 632, Trowbridge." Sir Daniel was twice married—first to Margaret, daughter of the late Mr. Henry Tanner, of Bishopwearmouth, by whom he had several children; and, secondly, to Emily, daughter of the late Mr. John Burder, of Norwood, his widow.

There are few towns of a like size that can, in the matter of improvements, compare with Crediton, which of late years has increased in every direction. Numbers of new houses have been erected, more especially on the western part, and have found tenants almost as soon as they were built. The factories have all been improved and modernised, and a new one built at the junction of the east and west towns. Several important public buildings are in course of construction or about to be commenced. The new Masonic Hall, a handsome structure, is near completion, and a new Wesleyan chapel will shortly be commenced, as will also a new manse attached to the Congregational Chapel.

ORTHODOX AMERICAN SCOTCH RITERS AND THE GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE.

By Brother Jacob Norton.

In a former paper I have shown that the hostility to the Grand Orient of France by American Grand Lodges originated first, because the Grand Orient acknowledged the American negro Masons, and second, because it acknowledged Foulhouse of Louisiana as Sovereign of the Scotch Riters. As the hatred for negroes is dying out, and Foulhouse has disappeared, the Scotch Riters are now trying to make capital out of the alleged atheism of the Grand Orient of France. Briefly then, Bro. Gorgas (not the old Gourgas of 1813) of Baltimore (and others) deserted or rebelled against Sovereign Albert Pike, of the Southern Jurisdiction, and enrolled himself under the banner of Bro. Peckham, the Seymourite Cerneanite Sovereign of all American Scotch Riters; that is, of all who acknowledged his sway. Subsequently, the said Bro. Gorgas somehow succeeded Bro. Peckham in that high office. About eighteen months ago the new Seymourite Sovereign visited Paris, and was there acknowledged in his dignity by a Scotch Rite concern which is subject to the Grand Orient of France. About five weeks ago the whole American Continent was startled with the news that, owing to the alleged atheism of the Grand Orient of France, Bro. Peckham was all at once conscience smitten against the sin committed by his successor in visiting in Paris the Grand Orient Scotch Rite concerns, and for receiving acknowledgment from the Grand Orient. It is rather curious that it took Bro. Peckham eighteen months before he discovered the palpable sin committed by Bro. Gorgas. However, Bro. Peckham frankly acknowledged his error, but instead of receiving sympathy, he is attacked by all parties, with sneers, sarcasms, &c. The Toronto Freemason published a number of those squibs; thus, Bro. Millar, a Northern Jurisdiction Scotch Riter, says that the whole affair of Seymourism was a money-making scheme, and that Bro. Barker, the leading spirit of the other Cerneanite faction, who was formerly a Seymourite, was now getting all the money, and therefore Peckham got tired of it. Bro. McClanachan says:

"Seymour would confer the degrees for little or nothing, and being a jeweller and regalia manufacturer, made money by selling his regalia. Mr. Peckham kept up the work as long as it was worth while."

Messrs. Gassette and Barnard also ridicule Peckham's resignation. The former says, "Peckham belongs to the body which is not Masonic, and never has been," and Barnard says, that "he (Peckham) has been simply a peddler of degrees until he sold out his interest to Gorgas of Baltimore, neither of the two are in good standing among Masons."

Bro. John G. Barkirs, of the other Cerneanite faction, feels also joyful at the confusion occasioned by the desertion of Bro. Peckham from his rival Cerneanite concern. But my attention was especially directed to the following remarks by Bro. Ehlers, Grand Secretary of New York, who said to a newspaper reporter as follows:—

"Mr. Peckham was wise in his day and generation. He has taken time by the forelock. There are but two things for the members of the Cerneanan Rite to do; either to ignore Gorgas, or to be subject to a Masonic trial in a Blue Lodge. There can be no doubt of the power of the Blue Lodges to act in the matter. The law reads that no person shall be recognised as a Freemason who doubts or ignores the existence of a Supreme Being. Certainly the recognition by Gorgas of the Grand Orient of France, where no such a belief is required, is in direct violation of the law."

Bro. Ehlers, who is doubtless a very able Grand Secretary, has, however, overshot his mark when advising about law. The question is, has not a Grand Lodge a right to alter the ritual or laws? "No!" exclaim the dogmatic jurisprudence mongers, for Anderson said, "Provided the whole landmarks are carefully preserved." Very well! let us now see what Anderson said. In the first place Anderson restricted the privileges of Masonry to men of sound limb and to free born. But the Grand Lodge of England always discarded the sound limb condition, and for free born it substituted "free man." Now, Mr. Jurisprudence monger, I want you to explain why the Grand Lodge of England may discard Anderson's laws, and why the Grand Orient of France may not?

And now about religion. Anderson says:

"A Mason is obliged by his tenure to obey the moral law; and if he rightly understands the art, he will never be a stupid atheist nor an irreligious libertine. But though in ancient times Masons were charged in every country to be of the religion of that country or nation [or in other words, "to be true to the Church,"] yet it is now thought more expedient to oblige them to that religion in which all men agree, leaving their particular opinions [in which they disagree] to themselves. That is, to be good men and true, or men of honour and honesty, by whatever denomination or persuasion they may be distinguished. Whereby Masonry becomes the centre of union and the means of conciliating true and sincere friendship among persons who must have remained at a perpetual distance."

In the above paragraph there is no hint about believing in the Bible, in a future state, in resurrection, in salvation, nor in any other dogma about which good and true men disagree, and have always disagreed. Now the word "landmark" means that the mark should not be moved to one side of the line or to the other, or, in other words, you must neither diminish nor increase the line of demarcation, and you must neither add to it nor take anything from it. Such being the case, you had no right to impose belief in the inspiration of any sacred book or books on Masons, and sundry other dogmas besides; and if you, Jurisprudence mongers, allow the Andersonian landmark to be removed on one side, why may not the Grand Orient of France be allowed to shift the landmark on the other side?

But that is not all. The main object of the founders of our modern Masonry was for "conciliating true friendship among persons that must have remained at a perpetual distance," or, in other words, to unite "good and true men—men of honour and honesty by whatever denomination or persuasion they may be distinguished," and these are Anderson's own words. Now, it is well known that the Grand Lodge of Sweden, as well as a Grand Lodge in Berlin, exclude all from Masonry who do not believe in Christianity, and why do you, Jurisprudence mongers, allow Masons to visit Swedish and Berlin Lodges—where the main object of the founders of our Masonry is discarded—while, at the same time, you prohibit Masons to visit French Lodges where the main object of the founders of our Masonry was merely extended?

But that is not all. Under the Grand Orient of France the candidate for Masonry is not questioned about his belief in God, but is that any reason for supposing that French Masons must necessarily be atheists? Surely I belong to several societies in Boston, where no one is questioned about belief in God, yet I never heard that a member of the said societies was ever suspected of being an atheist, and I venture to say that there are no more atheists in the French Lodges under the Grand Orient than we have in the above-named Boston societies. But supposing even that the whole Grand Orient are atheists, surely no one ever charged those atheists with disobeying Bro. Anderson's injunction of keeping those opinions to themselves while in the Lodge. But how is it in our godly American Lodges? Here the Worshipful Master does indeed make the same promises to candidates of all persuasions about enjoying all the Masonic privileges without violating his or their duty to God, &c.; and this promise is given "on the word and honour of a gentleman and Mason." But a Jewish Mason knows that the said pious American Worshipful Masters are neither men of honour nor gentlemen; because a man of honour and a gentleman never makes a promise which he does not intend to keep, but the American pious W. Masters make promises which they never mean to keep. Now, if a tree may be judged by its fruit, then the French atheists certainly act while they meet in Masonic Lodges more in accordance with the ideas of men of honour, gentlemen, and Masons than our pious Christian Masons do in American Lodges.

Assuming, however, that a Blue Lodge may expel a member for having been inside of a Lodge chartered by the Grand Orient of France, is that any reason for the Blue Lodge having a right to expel a member because he visited, in Paris, a Scotch Rite concern which belongs to the said Grand Orient? Surely a Blue Lodge has no more connection with Scotch Rite than it has with Mystic Shinery, and with fifty other Tom-fooleries that certain classes of Masons indulge in. Suppose, now, I choose to visit a French Mystic Shrinery; or suppose I choose to have my life insured in a French Masonic Life Insurance Society, I ask, in the name of common sense, what right my Lodge has to expel me for it, or trouble itself about it at all? Briefly, then, it is my firm belief that a Mason has a right to belong to any Society (providing it is not immoral) he pleases, whether French Masons belong to it or not, and that a Mason has a right to buy his hat, clothes, shoes, &c., of an atheist if he pleases, and he has also a perfect right to buy his Scotch Rite nonsense of an atheist too.

My worthy Bro. Ehlers' method of reasoning about Masonic law runs after the following fashion. Namely:—

Whereas in New York a candidate for Masonry is asked about his belief in God, and in the Grand Orient Lodges candidates are not questioned upon the subject.

And whereas Masonic snobs in this country, as well as in France, congregate together for performing Scotch Rite something, but the members thereof are, in America, split up into factions.

And whereas Bro. Gorgas, the head of one of the American Scotch Rite factions hobnobbed while he was in Paris with a Scotch Rite concern belonging to the Grand Orient of France.

And whereas Bro. John Smith of the Holy Evangelist's Lodge, in New York, believes in Bro. Gorgas's right to rule all the Scotch Riters in "America and its Territories."

Therefore the said Holy Evangelist's Lodge is authorised to expel the said John Smith from all the rights and privileges of Masonry.

Now, bear in mind Bro. Smith is not accused of being an atheist, nor is Bro. Gorgas an atheist. But as the Grand Orient asks no questions in its Blue Lodges about belief in God, hence an atheist may have been there initiated, and the same atheist may have become there a Scotch Riter, and he may have been present in the Scotch Rite concern during Bro. Gorgas's visit to that concern. Therefore it is the duty of the Holy Evangelist's Lodge to expel Bro. John Smith from Masonry.

I must here add that a few days ago I happened to hear an old gentleman, who is not a Mason, sing part of a song which he learned from an old Mason living next door to his father, and here is the fragment of the song which was copied for me:—

"In kingdoms there are quarrels,
In interest there are laurels,
In church these Christians wrangle and jar.
There is no such invasions among the Freemasons,
No rumours, nor ruptures, or internal wars."

Ah! said I to myself, after hearing the above, surely neither the author of that song nor the zealous brother Mason who sang it more than sixty years ago could have supposed that a time would come when Masons would wrangle and jar as bad as they did in the Church; and that a Grand Secretary of New York would advise the Holy Evangelist's Lodge to expel Bro. John Smith from Masonry because Bro. Gorgas, of Baltimore, had hobnobbed in Paris with Scotch Riters in a concern which has no connection whatever with Blue Lodge Masonry.

MAYORAL MASONIC BANQUET.

A BANQUET of a most unique nature was given on the 10th inst., at the Town Hall, Liverpool, by his Worship the Mayor (Bro. E. H. Cookson), at which about 70 guests were present. In addition to the honour he so worthily upholds as the chief magistrate of Liverpool, his Worship also occupies the distinguished positions of P.G.S.W. in the province of West Lancashire, and the chair of Worshipful Master of the Lodge of Harmony, No. 32, the oldest and most noted in a province which is numerically the strongest in connection with the Grand Lodge of England. Included in the invitations to the banquet were the Officers and members of Lodge 32; the P.G.M. of East Lancashire (Bro. Colonel Le Gendre Starkie); and the Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge of West Lancashire. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were received with enthusiasm, and in proposing the health of the host Colonel Starkie referred with satisfaction to the fact that out of the members of the Lodge of Harmony there had come no fewer than four Provincial Grand Masters. The proceedings were greatly enlivened by capital songs, given by members of No. 32.

The members of the Kidderminster Masonic Club now possess a capital reading room. There has been an outlay of about £200 in enlarging and improving it, and in doing other work at the Club. The new room was recently opened, and the borough member (Bro. A. F. Godson) was present as chairman. He congratulated the members on the result of the alterations. The improvements at the Club ought to bring in new members.

INSTALLATION OF THE MARQUIS OF HERTFORD AS P.G. MASTER OF ANTRIM.

ON the 9th inst., the Marquis of Hertford was installed as Prov. Grand Master of the County Antrim in connection with the Masonic Order, in room of the late occupant of that office, Sir Charles Lanyon. The ceremony, which took place in the Exhibition Hall, Botanic Gardens, Belfast, was a most interesting one, and was attended by a numerous and distinguished assemblage of members of the Order. Lord Hertford arrived from Lisburn, and was met on the platform of the Great Northern Railway Terminus by Mr. Thos. Valentine, J.P., the Deputy Grand Master of A. F. and A. Masons of Antrim, the Provincial Grand Secretary, and the Provincial Grand Treasurer. These brethren escorted the Grand Master-elect to the Exhibition Hall of the Royal Botanic Gardens. The Hall was artistically decorated with hothouse plants and delicate drapery. Regalia having been assumed in one of the ante-rooms of the Hall, the Right Worshipful the Deputy Grand Master, Bro. R. D. Shekleton, Q.C., attended by the Grand Officers and the Provincial Grand Officers, entered the Lodge room. The Provincial Grand Lodge was then opened in ample form, after which the Most Worshipful the Grand Master, his Grace the Duke of Abercorn, was introduced and inducted to the throne. The Provincial Grand Master-elect, the Marquis of Hertford, having been announced as in attendance, and his warrant of appointment having been read, the Most Worshipful the Grand Master (the Duke of Abercorn) appointed a deputation to introduce him. An appropriate ode was then sung, after which a procession was formed under the direction of the Worshipful the Grand Director of Ceremonies, and it entered the Lodge Room in the following order:—The Provincial Grand Deacons, a Past Master carrying the Holy Bible, a Past Master carrying the Book of Constitutions, a Past Master carrying the collar and apron of the Provincial Grand Master and Provincial Grand Lodge Bye-laws, the Grand Officers and Provincial Grand Officers forming the deputation, the Provincial Grand Master-elect, the Director of Ceremonies. Having marched three times around the room, the procession halted on reaching the foot of the throne, when the Provincial Grand Master-elect was presented to the M.W. the Grand Master, and the ceremony of installation was proceeded with. The installation ode, which was composed specially for the occasion by Bro. William Redfern Kelly P.G.R.C. Prince of Wales Lodge, 154, having been rendered to the tune of the "Old Hundreth," the M.W. the Grand Master directed the Provincial Grand Master-elect to kneel and take the obligation of office, and then invested him with the insignia of office, &c., and placed him in the chair of the Provincial Grand Lodge. The Director of Ceremonies then declared the Most Honourable Hugh de Grey, Marquis of Hertford, duly installed as R.W. Prov. Grand Master of the Masonic Province of Antrim. The newly installed Provincial Grand Master having been saluted with full Masonic honours, the R.W. Provincial Grand Master nominated and appointed his Provincial Deputy Grand Master. The R.W. the Provincial Grand Master presented the R.W. Thomas Valentine D.P.G.M. with the collar and jewel of his office, on behalf of his Masonic friends in the Province; after which the closing ode was rendered, to the tune "Sicilian Mariners' Hymn." The Provincial Grand Lodge was then closed in the usual form, and the interesting ceremony came to an end. In the evening, at seven o'clock, the Prov. Grand Master was entertained at a banquet in the Ulster Hall. Close on 400 guests sat down to dinner, and in the gallery was a very large number of ladies. The Hall was handsomely decorated with flags, Masonic emblems, &c., and the scene presented was a peculiarly picturesque and animated one. The Band of the Gordon Highlanders was in attendance, and played a choice selection of airs during the dinner. The Duke of Abercorn presided. On the right of his Grace were the Marquis of Hertford, Bros. Thomas Valentine, J.P., D.P.G.M., Harry Hodges, Sir Henry Cochrane, D.L., Thomas W. Fitzgerald, John MacDonald, Oliver Fry, Major Thompson, Sir W. Millar, and R. J. Hilton. On the left were Bros. R. D. Shekleton, Q.C., D.G.M., Lord Arthur Hill, Major Scott, W. C. M'Crawley, Fred R. Pim, Colonel Irvine, R. Carey, Rev. Dr. Irvine, William Rankin, and W. T. Chetwode Crawley, LL.D. After dinner letters of apology were announced to have been received from a number of gentlemen, including Judge Townshend, the Marquis of Headfort, Sir Edward Hudson-Kinahan, Bart., his Grace Lord Plunket, and the Mayor of Belfast. The Chairman proposed the health of the Queen, and in the course of his observations said Her Majesty was not quite unknown in the city of Belfast. She visited it many years ago, and he believed recollections of that visit still remain in the hearts of some of the citizens, and he was sure they all looked forward with hope to a time when Her Majesty might again be pleased to visit that great city and see the progress that had been made in it since she was there before. The toast was loyally honoured. The Chairman gave the toast of the Prince of Wales. He said the Prince of Wales, in his capacity of Grand Master of England, undertook the duties which devolved upon him as Heir to the Throne, and it could be said of him that whatever he undertook he did thoroughly. Since he had been created Grand Master of England he had endeavoured, to the utmost of his ability, to raise the standard of Masonry in that country, and his efforts had proved most successful. There was one other word he would like to add. Alarming reports had been going about for the last few days and had been published in the public papers, regarding the state of the health of His Royal Highness. He (the Chairman) could only say that he put no credit in these reports. It must, of course, be well known that the Prince of Wales had passed through a very arduous life, and at his years a man needed some change and rest. It would, therefore, be the prayer of all true Masons that the change which his Royal Highness would take through the coming winter would completely restore him to his usual robust health. The toast was drunk with full

Digitized by Google

Masonic honours. Bro. Neill having sung "Hearts of Oak," Bro. Valentine D.P.G.M. gave the toast of the Grand Master of Ireland, and spoke in eulogistic terms of the services which the Duke of Abercorn had rendered to the Craft. The Grand Master, in responding, having thanked the company for the manner in which they had received the toast, said he could not help thinking that gatherings like the present must be the means of doing a great deal of good to Freemasonry in Ireland, and more especially in the North of Ireland, for they afforded a means of bringing Masons of all classes, and from different parts of the country, together; and the interchange of thoughts and ideas which would naturally take place could not prove other than most advantageous. He had been told, when inquiring who would be present at the banquet, that very few of the Freemasons of Belfast were known. That was not as it should be, and he trusted that the list of those present at the banquet would be published in the morning papers, and then they would certainly know who were the Masons of Antrim and Belfast. For his own part he would only say that he had endeavoured to follow in the footsteps of his father, who was known not only as a Mason, but as an Ulsterman, and he hoped he might always be placed in the same category. While in his present position he would always endeavour to uphold the duties and ties of Masonry in Ireland, and he was happy to tell them that at the present moment Masonry was in a most flourishing condition in this country. New life appeared to have been infused, and the standard of Masonry had risen very considerably. It was also satisfactory to him to be able to announce that, despite the depressed times, the funds which came for the support of Masonry had not in any way diminished during the last few years, but, on the contrary, had increased. His lordship concluded by strongly recommending to the sympathy of all Freemasons the Masonic Orphan Charities, and pointed out that, although the Girls' School was free from debt, there was a considerable sum due for the building of the Boys' School. These two Charities were so useful and so important that, in his opinion, it was the duty of every Freemason to give to them all the support they possibly could, and none of them knew how soon an appeal might have to be made on behalf of their families to those Institutions. Haydn's "Stars of the summer night" having been sung, the Chairman gave the toast of the Deputy Grand Master and Officers of the Grand Lodge of Ireland. Bro. Shekleton responded. The Chairman then proposed the Health of the Most Hon. the Marquis of Hertford, Worshipful Provincial Grand Master of the Freemasons of Antrim, and referred to the fact that the noble Marquis was no stranger to the people of Belfast. He had fought political battles, and fought them successfully, in their town, and as a Mason he would prove himself second to none. The toast was drunk with the usual honours. The Marquis of Hertford said—It was now about twenty years almost to a day since he addressed a meeting in that Hall, and that meeting was not one in which brotherly love and kindness prevailed. He was at a loss to find words to express his thanks that the honour had been conferred upon him—an honour which he highly esteemed and which it afforded him pleasure to receive. The only thing that detracted from that pleasure was the event which rendered his appointment necessary, in the death of their old friend Sir Charles Lanyon, who had been removed from their midst by the hand of death. There was an idea existing that the Freemason body were of an extraordinary character, conducted within closed doors, and that these proceedings were only varied by the eating of some very good dinners. He would appeal to all good Masons to prove that this was not the case by the manner in which they responded to the call of Charity. Such response was the more required after what had been said of them by the Grand Master; and, in his opinion, no matter what individuals did, it was in the power of private Lodges to do more than they did at present in the matter of supporting these Schools. Some of them were apt to forget that they had the great Masonic duty of Charity to perform. He appealed to them to bear in mind that charity was the great word which should be in the front of Masonry on all occasions. His lordship concluded by saying it would be his endeavour to carry out the duties of his office to the best of his ability, and to forward the interests of the Province. The Provincial Grand Master proposed the toast of the Deputy Grand Master and Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Antrim. Lord Arthur Hill responded. The toast of the Sister Provincial Grand Lodge having been proposed by Bro. R. J. Hilton, J.P., and duly honoured, the singing of the National Anthem brought the proceedings to a close.

Among the candidates eligible to take part in the election of Friday next, for the benefits of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys is Hugh Stanley Thompson, aged 8 years, the eldest son of the late John George Thompson, Solicitor, of Stockton-on-Tees, and Redcar, Yorks, a Mason of 30 years' standing, P.M., P.P.G.R., Tees Lodge, No. 509, P.Z. &c. Bro. Thompson was initiated in Tees Lodge in 1858, and was a founder of the Lodge of Philanthropy, No. 910. He had severe pecuniary losses about 5 years ago, and died suddenly in October last, leaving a widow penniless, with no relations in a position to help her, and 6 children living (eldest, a girl 10 years, and youngest three months). The case is strongly recommended by some of the best known Craftsmen of the day, but outside help is urgently desired, in order to make sure of the lad's election at an early date. Several of our friends at Kingston-on-Thames are interesting themselves in the case, and we are assured by them it is one really deserving of all the help it is in the power of the Craft to give.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

ST. MICHAEL'S LODGE, No. 211.

THE first meeting of the Lodge, after the summer recess, was held at the Albion, Aldersgate-street, E.C., on the 8th inst. Bro. Henry Lindfield, the W.M., was supported by Bros. H. Nash S.W., P. J. King J.W., A. Green P.M. Treasurer, W. Radcliffe P.M. Secretary, Orlton Cooper S.D., William Kirkland J.D., W. J. Dyer I.G.; P.M.'s F. J. Hentsch, Usher Back, A. Dickson, John Laver, W. W. Morgan, T. H. Peirce; also W. J. Bennett, Parsons, C. Skipp. Visitors—Bros. T. Corbett 1612, F. Schmidt, A. E. W. Powles 1901, J. G. Collings Organist 1693. In the course of the evening a distressed brother, who some forty years back was associated with "Old St. Michael's," was assisted with a grant of three guineas. The brethren after labour partook of a banquet, which was served in the perfect way that characterises this establishment. A couple of hours were spent in agreeable converse, enlivened with some capital songs, &c.

CHISWICK LODGE, No. 2012.

A MEETING of this popular Lodge was held on Monday last, at the Star and Garter Hotel, Kew Bridge. In the absence of the W.M. the Rt. Hon Lord George F. Hamilton, M.P., Senior Grand Warden, the chair was taken by Bro. George Gardner (Secretary) P.M., who was supported by Bros. Dr F. Lawrance P.M., George Everett P.M. Treasurer, W. A. Dowling S.W., J. Brown J.W., R. H. Wimpey S.D., F. Walden J.D., C. Hughes I.G., C. Patrick Tyler. Visitors—Bros. G. J. Westfield I.P.M. 2184 Prov. G. Sword Bearer Essex, Louis Lee 2309, Thomas Brooks W.M. 382, R. S. Pullman 2309, A. E. Hewer 2309, H. J. Gifford 468 (S.C.), H. E. Jefferys 902, R. Bennetts 2309, W. W. Morgan P.M. 211, G. W. Maple 1706, F. Dusterwald J.D. 1586, Frank Kemp 2309, H. Ellis 933. After the Lodge had been constituted and formally opened, Bros. Louis Lee and Pullman, of the George Gardner Lodge, No. 2309, were raised to the third degree, the ceremony being conducted by the acting Worshipful Master. Bro. Gardner had also requested the W.M. of the Chiswick Lodge to pass two candidates, also from the Lodge that bears his name, and for this purpose Dr. Lawrance now took the chair of No. 2012, and the candidates—Bros. Bennetts and Kemp, with Bro. R. J. Steel of the home Lodge—were introduced and placed under examination as to the proficiency they had made in the science. The result was satisfactory, and later on Dr. Lawrance conferred the degree upon them. The name of a candidate for initiation was handed in, some notices of withdrawal considered, with other details respecting the Lodge government, and the business was brought to a close. The brethren then partook of a banquet which was thoroughly enjoyed, and the after proceedings were enlivened with some capital songs and musical selections, Bro. Louis Lee, who holds diplomas of a high order as a Professor of Music, especially distinguishing himself. Bro. Edward P. Delevante was the accompanist throughout.

BECKENHAM LODGE, No. 2047.

THE ceremony of installing Bro. Charles R. Pilcher W.M. of the above Lodge, followed by the installation banquet, took place at the Lodge-room, at the Beckenham Public Hall, on Thursday evening, the 10th inst. The following brethren were present:—Officers of the Lodge—Bros. G. V. Schofield W.M., C. R. Pilcher S.W., R. Milburn J.W., Edward Carpenter Treasurer, G. T. Rait Secretary, Thos. Garrard S.D., John Patrickson I.G., F. W. Mansell Steward, Rev. John Harding Chaplain, R. S. Archbold P.M., Jas. Craig P.M., L. G. Reinhardt Tyler. Members of the Lodge—C. W. Gribble, H. W. Hammell, E. Hedley, W. V. Ditcham, C. M. Tilly, W. Howard. Visitors—Bros. Wimble P.P.G.D. Kent, R. Myers, C. J. Reynolds, E. Scovell, F. Newcombe, R. M. Northcote, Wm. Smith, Thos. Reed, A. Lawrence Fryer, H. J. Dutton. The brethren assembled in the Lodge-room at half-past five in the evening, and the Lodge having been opened with the usual ceremonies the installation of Bro. Charles R. Pilcher was performed in a most impressive manner by Bro. R. S. Archbold. The Worshipful Master then proceeded to invest the following Officers:—Bros. R. Milburn S.W., T. E. Garrard J.W., G. V. A. Schofield I.P.M., E. Carpenter Treasurer, G. T. Rait Secretary, Rev. J. Harding Chaplain, J. Patrickson S.D., H. W. Hammell J.D., C. W. Gribble I.G., F. S. Newcombe Organist. The banquet took place at the Public Hall, at half-past seven, which gave great satisfaction. The banquet over, the W.M. proposed the Loyal toasts and that of the Grand Officers, which were received with the usual honours, and followed by the National Anthem and "God bless the Prince of Wales," and a part song, "Absent," by Bros. H. Dutton, Lawrence Fryer, E. Scovell, and F. Bevan. Bro. Schofield I.P.M. proposed the Worshipful Master, which he said they must all agree was the principal toast of the evening. Everybody in Beckenham would know that they had elected the most popular man in Beckenham—a jolly good fellow—who, as they might have seen from what he had already done in the Lodge-room, intended to keep up the reputation of the Lodge. Seldom had they heard the charge given as it was given that evening, and they might take it as a good augury of the work he would do later on. He did not think anything he could say would enhance the W.M.'s virtues in their eyes. The W.M. said he scarcely knew how to express his thanks, not only for the eloquent terms in which the I.P.M. had proposed his health, but for the cordial manner in which they had received the toast. It would give him zest and encouragement to go on with the work and to do all he could for the welfare of the Lodge, knowing that at the outset he had with him their kindly feelings and sympathies. He could scarcely think that anything that he had done in the past merited such kind expressions as had fallen from the I.P.M. He took it as an augury that if he followed in the footsteps of previous Masters he should be doing that which was right in the interests of the Lodge. He thanked them very much for the kind expressions with which the toast had been given and received. Before sitting down he would propose the health of the I.P.M. This was an easy task for him to do, because they must all feel what he had done for the Lodge, the attention which at all times he had given to its interests, the manner in which he had performed his duties, and the lively interest he felt in its prosperity. It needed no words to recapitulate the benefits the Lodge had received under his Mastership, and he (the W.M.) sincerely trusted that the I.P.M. would continue in the future to show his lively interest in the Lodge as in the past. It was with great pleasure that he invested Bro. Schofield with the I.P.M.'s jewel, which the Beckenham Lodge had great pleasure in presenting to him. The I.P.M. said he could not be sufficiently thankful for the kind words that had fallen from the W.M. He felt it all the more highly because it was one of the few jewels which could not be bought. With regard to his year of office, he regretted that the Lodge did not give him more work to do, when they might have found him wanting. However, he had tried to do his best, and that he took a great interest in Masonry they would see when he mentioned that he was in office in five Lodges. If the brethren accorded the W.M. the same assistance they had given him he could assure the W.M. that during the coming year he would have a very pleasant task. The W.M. next toasted the Installing Master Bro. R. S. Archbold. They would give particular attention to that toast because they knew how well the Installing Master had served this Lodge, both within and without. The way in which he had performed the installation that evening was something remarkable. The impressive manner in which he had performed the ceremony was something to be envied. Every word went home, and it made them feel that there was something in Masonry more than ordinary minds comprehended. There was more good, more benevolence, more holiness, he might almost say, than what people generally gave it credit for. If those outside could have heard their solemn service that day he was sure that every man would wish to become a Freemason. Those who knew the Installing Master would appreciate him more, and those who did not know him as intimately as some of them did would wish to do so. Bro. Archbold in responding to the toast said he felt the W.M. had accorded to him far greater praise than he deserved for having performed what he considered to be his duty. All through life he had felt that whatever he undertook he ought to perform to the best of his ability, and in this instance, as in all others, he had endeavoured to set an example to those who should come after him in the office—an example that should be worth following. There was no doubt that, as the W.M. had said, there was far more in Masonry than was known to the outside circle. He could not overlook the fact that there was amongst the ladies, especially the married ladies, a great prejudice against Masonry. The married ladies did not like to feel that their husbands had any secrets which they did not like them to know; but he thought if the married ladies only knew the real truth with regard to Masonry they would be the first to advocate its extension. He looked upon it, not as a secret only, but as a religion, and if they only followed out in their every-day life the precepts which were given them in the Lodge, if those outside only knew the duties which were taught within the Lodge, there would be less crime and less of all kinds of incorrectness than there was at the present moment. He only regretted that Masonry was not better known amongst the tender sex, because if it were so it would gain far wider acceptance than it did at present. He was more than obliged to the W.M. for the kind manner in which he had spoken of his efforts. It had always been his object to foster the prosperity of this Lodge. Unfortunately the meetings of his mother Lodge were held on the same night, but his interest in Beckenham induced him to give this Lodge the preference to his mother Lodge. The W.M. next proposed the Past Masters, remarking that most of them had been founders of the Lodge, and took the greatest interest in its prosperity. Although small, it was one of the most united Lodges in the kingdom, and he attributed this to the manner in which the Past Masters had held it together, and the example they had set to the younger members. He coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Dr. Carpenter. Bro. Dr. Carpenter, although wishing that the duty of responding to the toast had fallen into better hands, felt highly honoured in being called upon to respond. He was sorry that there were so few Past Masters, at the present time, feeling that a great deal of the prosperity of the Lodge depended upon them and the Worshipful Master, but as far as his own services went, he would do the best he could for the good of the Beckenham Lodge. He congratulated the W.M. on having attained his present position in the Lodge, having been initiated only five years ago. This ought to show the junior members that they too might attain this proud position if they would only put their shoulders to the wheel. The W.M. next proposed the Visitors, remarking that he hoped it would always be the privilege of the Beckenham Lodge to be amongst those noted for their hospitality. Bros. Wimbole, Myers, Northoote and Scovell responded. The W.M. next toasted the Secretary and Treasurer. He remarked that the interest the Secretary had shown in the Lodge was beyond all praise, and the manner in which he fulfilled the duties must be a cause of admiration to every member who witnessed his principles, his tact, and his perseverance. Whatever he undertook to do, he always did it well, and if he undertook to do a thing they might always look upon it as done. As to their worthy Treasurer, he served them in an equally efficient manner. Bro G. T. Rait the Secretary said he felt very much indebted to the Lodge for appointing him Secretary, because the work of the Lodge gave him much pleasure, and, as year followed year, and Master followed Master, that pleasure increased rather than diminished. He facetiously remarked that he had heard that the married ladies of Beckenham were going to form a Lodge, and if they needed a Secretary he would be glad to offer his services. Bro. Dr. Carpenter, as Treasurer, also responded. The W.M. proposed the Officers, remarking that he could not have better Officers, and he begged to tender them sincere thanks for the way in which they had supported him. Bros. R. Milburn S.W. and T. E. Garrard J.W. responded. The W.M. proposed the health of Bro. Newcombe the Organist, who had so kindly provided the musical treat of the evening. Bros. Newcombe and Scovell responded. The Tyler's toast brought the very pleasant proceedings to a close shortly before eleven o'clock.

PRUDENCE LODGE, No. 2069.

ON the 12th instant one of the largest and most successful gatherings yet held under the auspices of this popular Lodge took place at Leeds, to mark the retirement of Bro. William Watson P.M., the outgoing W.M. Bro. Watson was supported by the following Officers and brethren of the Lodge:—Bros. Charles Middleton S.W., J. J. Fretwell J.W., Rev. J. H. Evans Chaplain, Robert Abbott Treasurer, Tom Atkinson Secretary, Bro. Robert Craig P.M. P.P.G.D. Preceptor, A. Butterworth S.D., Benjamin S. Bailey J.D., Tudor Trevor P.M. I.P.M. D.C., Lewis Howarth I.G., R. A. Smithson Assistant Secretary, Charles Cryer Steward, Edward Bentley Assistant Steward, Harris Begbie Abbott Assistant Steward and Musical Librarian, Jas. Buckley Organist, S. Barrand Prov. Grand Tyler Tyler, Rev. T. C. Smyth, D.D., LL.D., Past Grand Chaplain of England, C. L. Mason P.M. Past Provincial Grand Treasurer, J. T. Jones, Ingamells, F. G. Dinery P.M., J. P. Robinson, G. W. Pratt and Storey. There was an extremely large assembly of Visitors, including past and present members of the Provincial Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire, brethren from Leeds and distant Lodges. Amongst others—there were close upon one hundred in the Lodge—we noticed Bro. Henry Smith P.M. D.P.G.M., J. Cooper Malcolm P.M. P.P.G. Registrar, R. Allison P.M. P.P.G.D., W. F. Smithson P.M. P.P.G.D. (Chairman of the West Yorkshire Charity Committee), W. Fitton P.P.G.A.D.C., A. W. Ramsden P.P.D.C., &c. &c. After the minutes of the last meeting had been read and confirmed, Bro. Charles Middleton was elected W.M. for the ensuing year, and suitably acknowledged the honour paid him. Bro. Abbott was for the fifth time re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Barrand was re-elected Tyler. Bros. Trevor and Fretwell were elected auditors. The Lodge then unanimously voted Bro. Watson a Founder's jewel, in acknowledgment of the manner in which he had ruled the Lodge for the past twelve months. This business having been satisfactorily disposed of, the most interesting item on the programme, and the one which was responsible for that splendid gathering was proceeded with, namely, the reading of a paper by Bro. Dr. Smyth, entitled "His Personal Reminiscences of the Indian Mutiny." For upwards of an hour the Doctor held his audience spell-bound by his eloquent recital of the many dangers through which he passed at that most trying time in the nation's history. He related how the Mutiny first came to a head at Meerut, on the 10th May 1857, a station at which he was then residing as Chaplain to the Forces. The dreadful scenes that were enacted under his eyes were treated of with an eloquence, and yet with a modesty, which charmed all hearers. Nor was the story merely a recital of horrors, for the relation was interspersed with many amusing episodes, which occurred at that time, and which, as the Doctor stated, served somewhat to draw their minds away from the unparalleled barbarities which were daily being committed in their midst. Dr. Smyth touched but lightly on his own share in the heroism displayed by all grades of Europeans at that time, but it was plain to see that, try as he would to minimise his own exploits, they were differently regarded both by his comrades and the Government, who at the conclusion of the Mutiny rewarded him with the Chaplaincy of Singapore. One of the most interesting incidents took place at the conclusion of the lecture. Amongst his delighted audience were half a dozen non-commissioned officers of the Sixth Carabineers, who are at present stationed in Leeds. These men marched in a body to the dais to shake hands with the Doctor, and it then transpired that this regiment was at Meerut during the Mutiny, and that the Doctor had ministered to their spiritual wants in such a manner as to endear him to the memories of all, from the commanding officer downward. When the Doctor left the station the regiment turned out in review order and saluted him, an honour which rarely falls to the lot of any one but a distinguished military commandant. In the records of the regiment mention is made of Dr. Smyth and his goodness, and his military brethren felt that they were greeting an old comrade, and one to whom the honour of the Queen's troops was as precious as it was to themselves. Needless to say this pleasing and unique incident called forth the loud applause of the assembled brethren. On the motion of the Worshipful Master, seconded by Bro. Tudor Trevor, who is himself an old Indian civil servant, a cordial vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Dr. Smyth, and the Lodge was closed in peace and harmony. An admirably served banquet was enjoyed by all, and the rest of the evening was spent in that happy fraternal manner for which Lodge Prudence is so celebrated.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,

The election of Medical Officer to the above Institution will take place on Friday, 25th October, at 12 noon, at the Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen Street, and I take this last opportunity of asking you to be present on that day, and to inscribe your votes on my behalf—for these reasons: that I am married, and reside within a two minutes' walk of the School, and have done so for over five years; that I believe the testimonials I hold (copies of which have been distributed and advertised in the Masonic Journals) are as fully recommendatory as those of any other candidate; that I have been actively employed in the study and practice of my profession for 20 years; and that I have been a Life Subscriber to the Institution since my initiation into Freemasonry. I promise that, if elected, my best care shall be devoted to the health of the pupils. I beg to thank the friends who have voluntarily come forward to my assistance, and regret that I have not been able to address individually the members of the electorate, the large number forming that body (over 14,000) preventing my doing so.

I have the honour to remain,
Ladies and Gentlemen,
Yours very obediently,

ELECTION, 25TH OCTOBER 1889.

The votes of subscribers are earnestly solicited for
HAROLD STREETER GOLDSMITH,
YOUNGEST SON OF THE LATE BRO. W. O. GOLDSMITH.

Bro. GOLDSMITH was initiated in the Chislehurst Lodge, No. 1531, shortly after its consecration in 1875, and remained a subscribing member till 1881, when he joined the Gallery Lodge, No. 1928. In this latter Lodge he served all the offices up to that of W.M. It was while holding this office, and three days after the election of his successor, that he died, on the 15th November 1887. He was a Life Governor of the Boys' School, and a Subscriber to all the Masonic Charities, and was, at all times, a hard worker in Masonry. He was for many years, and at the time of his death, a member of the Reporting Staff of the Press Association, and in that capacity was well know to all Journalists in the United Kingdom. The under-mentioned Brethren strongly recommend the case of his son, the above-named candidate:—

THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE

PROV. GRAND LODGE OF SUSSEX.

THE annual meeting of the Sussex Provincial Grand Lodge was held at the Royal Pavilion, Brighton, on Saturday, the 12th inst. Lieut.-Colonel Lord Algernon-Lennox, Provincial Grand Senior Warden, presided, Bro. T. Trollope P.P.G.S.W. acting as Deputy Provincial Grand Master. The Wardens' chairs were occupied by Bro. W. Marchant acting Prov. G.S.W., and Bro. J. Farncombe Prov. G.J.W. There was a very large muster of the brethren of the Province. The Lodge having been opened in due form, the Provincial Grand Secretary read the minutes of the last general meeting and of the special meeting held in December last. These being confirmed, the roll of the Lodges was then called, and it was found that each Lodge was represented. A letter from Mrs. R. Crosskey was read in acknowledgment of the vote of condolence passed to her and her family on the death of her husband, the late Brother R. Crosskey, Provincial Grand Treasurer. On the motion of Bro. W. Marchant, seconded by Bro. W. R. Wood, Bro. W. H. Hallett was unanimously re-elected Provincial Grand Treasurer. The reports of the Board of Finance and the Provincial Charities' Committee were read and adopted, Bro. C. H. Haine being elected Steward of the Charities' Committee in the place of Bro. J. Eberall, whose resignation was accepted with regret, and with hearty thanks for his past services. The Secretary read statistics showing that the members of the Provincial Lodges had increased from 1,179 to 1,200 during the past year. It was decided by a unanimous vote to continue the publication of the Masonic Almanac. A letter was read from Mrs. Gerard Ford, who alluded in graceful terms to the continuous interest her late husband, the deeply lamented Deputy Provincial Grand Master, had taken in the work of the Province. She also forwarded the following address, which the late Bro. F. Gerard Ford had commenced in anticipation of being present at the annual meeting. The unfinished address was as follows:—

It seems hardly possible, Brethren, that a year has passed since I last addressed you. It has been, Masonically, a quiet, uneventful year in the Province. But it is in the quiet uneventful years that real progress is made. It is in the stillness and darkness of the earth that the corn germinates and springs forth, not in the glare and roar of the busy highway. I believe that a steady advance has taken place in our beloved Craft in the Province, and that the love of it and the understanding of it, as a rule of life and conduct, is higher to-day than it was last year. I draw this conclusion from many seemingly unimportant circumstances, the tone of our meetings, the increase in our numbers, and many pleasant talks I have had with my brethren, when I have learned what their feelings are with regard to our brotherhood; I have rejoiced to find their hearts in unison with mine. Masonry, I may truly say, is now the work of my life; the time I spend on other things is but a tithe of what I give to Masonry, and it is a most inspiriting thought and one which gives me infinite gratification to know that my labour is not unrewarded. It rejoices my heart to feel, as indeed I have often felt this year, that when I visit the Lodges I receive a welcome, not only as Deputy Provincial Grand Master, but as Gerard Ford, your fellow Craftsman and your Brother. There have been times, Brethren, during the past few months when the waters have seemed about to close over me, and I have doubted whether I should ever again stand here at your head and address you. During that time the beautiful words of the Third Degree have been often present to my mind, for it seemed that nature was about to present to me that "one great and useful lesson more"—that last great lesson after learning which we may enter the Grand Lodge above. Alas! my brethren, since we gathered here a year ago many breaches have again been made in our ranks; my dear Brother Crosskey, whose absence we lamented so much a year ago, I.P.M. Smith, that good and worthy Mason, and many more. Bear with me, brethren, if my words are somewhat tinged with the hue of that dark valley into which I seemed about to enter. It is well, perhaps, sometimes that even at a joyful meeting like the present we should stand quietly apart for a moment from the bustle and stir of business and prosperity, and lift our hearts to the contemplation of the impenetrable mysteries of life. I think we shall return to our duties and our pleasures none the worse for those quiet moments when our thoughts were raised above the sordid things of every day life. Ours is a complicated double existence, and it is as true to-day as it was more than eighteen hundred years ago that "man does not live by bread alone." It was a great pleasure to me to receive a kind and gracious letter from H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, our Right W. Prov. Grand Master. Before this time next year he will be again in England, but it is well that brethren should not expect too much personal attention from one whose exalted position gives him many high and difficult duties to perform, the execution of which he cannot relegate to a Deputy. During my wanderings, and more especially since the heavy hand of affliction has been laid upon me, I have often felt cheered and comforted by the kind messages that have reached me from my brethren. Once on board a boat on the Rhine I had the happiness of meeting with a brother Mason, a German-American, with whom I had a long and interesting talk about the Craft on the other side of the world."

The acting Provincial Grand Master (Bro. Lieutenant-Colonel Lord Algernon Gordon-Lennox) said they had heard a most touching address from the late Bro. Ford, and the least they could do was to tender to his widow the expression of their deepest and most heartfelt sympathy and condolence with her in the very great affliction which had fallen upon her. Speaking of the late Bro. Ford he said he was a kind and affectionate friend and a good Mason. He then proposed the following resolution, and that a copy should be forwarded to Mrs. Gerard Ford:

"We, the Freemasons of the Province of Sussex in Provincial Grand Lodge assembled, desire to tender to Mrs. Gerard Ford the expression of our respectful and sincere sympathy with her in the distressing and heavy bereavement with which it has pleased the G.A.O.T.U. to visit her. They further desire to testify their deep and lasting gratitude to their late and much lamented Brother and Deputy Provincial Grand Master (whose death has filled the hearts of all Sussex Masons with grief) for the full and well nigh perfect manner in which, with firmness, discretion and impartiality he discharged the onerous duties, and maintained in undiminished lustre the honour of the high office to which H.R.H. the Right W. Prov. Grand Master had been graciously pleased to appoint him, and for the general courtesy and kindness he, at all times and on all occasions, evinced and showed to his Brethren in Freemasonry. They desire also to thank Mrs. Ford for her truly Masonic letter, and the opportunity she has given them of hearing the touching words which he had prepared with the hope of reading them in Lodge to-day. They form a fitting farewell to his earthly labours and a record that the interests of Freemasonry occupied his last moments. And they pray that T.G.A.O.T.U. will, of his Infinite Mercy, grant to those nearest and dearest to him grace and consolation in the hour of this, their heavy affliction. Dated this 12th day of October 1889. Algernon Gordon-Lennox, acting Prov. Grand Master in the chair, R. Pidcock, Prov. G. Registrar, V. P. Freeman, Prov. G. Secretary."

Bro. W. Marchant seconded. Bro. W. Dawes said he had been asked to speak upon the resolution. While rising in response to that request he felt that he could not do justice to the memory of their late Deputy Provincial Grand Master For some years he had been privileged to share the friendship of Bro. Ford; he had had opportunities of studying his character, and it had been most interesting to him to study Bro. Ford as a Freemason. He reviewed his zealous work during the seven years he was Provincial Grand Registrar, and bore testimony to the conscientious manner in which he discharged his duties. When the high honour of Deputy Provincial Grand Master was conferred upon him, he (Bro. Ford) often wondered as to what his success would be. He felt that he was not, like the late Bro. J. H. Scott, well-known to the brethren, and, in the early months of his Provincial Grand Mastership, though he did well, he was anxious to do better, and that anxiety had doubtless affected his health. As time went on he began to appreciate that he had the loyalty and also the confidence of the brethren, and had even secured their personal affection. His task became daily lighter, and he looked forward to many years of usefulness to the Province. What he did for the Province he did with his might; his deeds of benevolence, charity, and kindness were many. Concluding his touching address Bro. Dawes said:—

> We have lost him: he is gone;
> We know him now: all narrow jealousies
> Are silent; and we see him as he moved,
> How modest, kindly, all-accomplished, wise,
> With what sublime repression of himself,
> And in what limits, and how tenderly:
> Not swaying to this faction, or to that;
> Not making his high place the lawless perch
> Of winged ambitions, nor a vantage-ground
> For pleasure; but thro' all this tract of years
> Wearing the white flower of a blameless life.

Bro. Dawes resumed his seat amid hearty and highly appreciative applause. The resolution was carried unanimously. The following brethren, appointed Provincial Grand Officers for the ensuing year, were invested with the insignia of their respective offices:—

All business ended, the Provincial Grand Lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to the Banqueting Room, where they sat down to a banquet, which was presided over by the Provincial Senior Grand Warden, the Right Hon. Sir W. T. Marriott, and was served by Bro. Mutton, in his best style. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts followed. Bro. A. Lloyd P.M. 1726, in proposing the health of the Provincial Senior Grand Warden and Provincial Grand Officers, alluded in feeling terms to the death of the late Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Gerard Ford. Sir W. T. Marriott responded in his usual felicitous terms. Bro. Lieutenant-General C. W. Randolph proposed the Visitors, for whom Bro. White, District Grand Deacon of Hong Kong, replied. Bro. C. W. Hudson gave the W.M.'s of the Lodges in the Province, and Bro. T. Billing W.M. 271 and Bro. W. Dawes W.M. 1842 responded. The toast of the Royal Masonic Institutions, proposed by Bro. R. Pidcock, was coupled with the name of Bro. J. M. Reed, the Secretary of the Provincial Grand Lodge Charities Committee, who took the opportunity of asking that the brethren would place their votes at the disposition of the Committee. The health of, and thanks to the Stewards—Bros. H. Beaumont, W. Seymour Burrows, W. Balchin junior, W. L. Wallis, A. M. Botchley, and W. H. Causton—and the Tyler's toast terminated the proceedings. The musical portion of the entertainment was under the direction of Dr. F. J. Sawyer, Provincial Grand Organist, who introduced for the first time to an English audience Madame Antoinette Link, the daughter of a German Mason, who charmed the brethren by her clever execution. Miss Minnie Freeman and Mr. Douglas Lott were also applauded for their various contributions, and the humorous songs of Mr. C. T. West formed a pleasing interlude, and assisted materially to promote the harmony of the evening.

Ralph Oldacre Dickens, aged 9 years, is a candidate on the list for next Friday's election for the Boys' School. He is the son of a Mason with whom we were personally acquainted.—Bro. William Gough Dickens, who died November last, aged 42, of bronchitis, leaving a widow and six children totally unprovided for. Bro. Dickens was a subscribing member of the Dalhousie Lodge, No. 860, up to a few months prior to his death; was a Past Master, and for some years Secretary, of the same Lodge; and was a Life-Governor of the Boys' Institution. His widow is also a Life-Governor of that Charity. The case is well recommended by a number of influential Metropolitan Masons, and also has the support of the father's Lodge, so that there is ample evidence of the lad being deserving of support. We shall be pleased to hear that the addition of our appeal to that of many others has been productive of some help for the widow and her family.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Rheumatism and Rheumatic gout are the most dreaded of all diseases, because their victims know that they are safe at no season, and at no age secure. Holloway's Ointment, after fomentation of the painful parts, gives greater relief than any other application; but it must be diligently used to obtain this desirable result. It has been highly commended by rheumatic subjects of all ages and of both sexes, for rendering their attacks less frequent and violent, and for removing the sour perspirations and soothing the nerves. In many cases Holloway's Ointment and Pills have proved the greatest blessings in removing rheumatism and rheumatic gout which has assailed persons previously and at the prime of life.

THE ROYAL MASONIC BOYS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In justice to numerous friends who, under adverse circumstances, have most kindly given me their generous support, and to myself as feeling acutely the unmerited obloquy to which I have been subjected, I cannot refrain from requesting space in your paper to enable me to place on record my protest—effectual or ineffectual as the case may be—against the unmeasured bitterness of tone which has found expression in some of the communications from Provincial localities, with resolutions embodying disapproval of the action recommended by the Provisional Management Committee.

For nearly thirty years my conduct has been before the Masonic world, and in that lengthy period of public life I do not fear to assert that I have never been guilty of an official act upon which I can look back with regret, or of which I need feel ashamed. With what justice, therefore, is it asserted, that because the Report of a Commission conveys an unfavourable opinion of my estimate of the duties of my position I have therefore "forfeited the confidence of every member of the Craft?" Mistaken in my estimate I may have been; false to my trust, I defy any one to maintain.

From the date of my appointment in 1861 I have laboured assiduously and successfully, and have been complimented by repeated acknowledgments of my services from those best qualified to form an opinion.

If it is to be accepted that apathy and repose are satisfactory substitutes for "energy and activity" so let it be. At my time of life I should welcome such an understanding, and it is no secret that for a considerable period I have longed for relaxation.

Controversial argument I wish to avoid, and I should hesitate to trouble you and your readers with these few lines were I not anxious to make known to friends and opponents alike that my abstention from wordy or written discussion has not been dictated by any such motive as that of allowing judgment to go by default, but by a firm conviction that from every point of view it is wise and politic to avoid public strife and dissension, and rely upon your own inner consciousness, supported by the favourable verdict of those possessing the best means of forming a dispassionate judgment.

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

FREDERICK BINCKES.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

SIR,—We notice with great regret the resolution passed by the General Committee on 5th October to terminate the appointment of the Rev. Dr. Morris, the present Head Master of the Boys' School.

Dr. Morris is very well known outside the Masonic body: firstly, in regard to his connection with King's College School, London, where he was for 7 years a master and lecturer; secondly, from his great literary reputation as an English scholar; thirdly, from his general successes in the educational world, especially in connection with the R.M.I.B. These latter are too well known to need dilating upon here, the printed reports of the University Local Examinations, together with the Annual Reports of the School Committee, bear ample testimony to this fact.

But our object in addressing you is not altogether to draw especial notice to these particulars, but to direct the attention of the Craft generally, the supporters of the School, to the very marked change and great improvement which have taken place in the régime of the establishment under the auspices of Dr. Morris. On this point we claim to have had a very practical experience, each of us having passed nearly six years in the School under three successive Head Masters, and are therefore, we think, more competent to express an opinion as to what Dr. Morris has done for the good of the School, as it actually affects the moral training and education of the pupils, than those who have been there only under one Head Master or than those of the governing body or of the Craft generally who cannot have had the same facilities for becoming intimately acquainted with the internal working of the School as we have had. One of us wished to give evidence upon this point before the last Committee of Inquiry, and wrote to a member of the late House Committee testifying his readiness to attend when desired, but was not even treated to the courtesy of an acknowldgement of that letter, which undoubtedly reached its destination for the addressee mentioned its reception to a member of the Craft.

We do not hesitate to say that the system of education and discipline pursued in the School underwent a complete revolution for the better even during the first few years of Dr. Morris's rule, which only those who actually passed through it can fully appreciate. Vexatious and unnecessary restrictions upon our liberty were removed, and we could obtain certain much valued privileges by application to studies and by good conduct. Our curriculum of study was greatly enlarged, more high mathematics, elementary science, and other subjects were added, and, with a view to our ultimate aims in life, some of us were encouraged and assisted in the study of special subjects outside the ordinary School curriculum; we, the writers have each attained the highest grade in our respective faculties at the University of London, and we feel that the careful training by Dr. Morris was a very considerable factor in our success at the University.

The friction between the educational and the domestic staff (mentioned in the report of the Committee of Inquiry) existed quite as much in our time as it has of late, and we were painfuly aware of it, for it left us in a state of uncertainty which authority to obey when their opinions clashed. Dr. Morris, by his wise and considerate procedure, poured, as far as he was able, oil on troubled waters, and enabled the work of the educational branch to proceed much more smoothly than before.

Under these improved conditions the educational status and moral tone of the School rose rapidly, and we can testify to the very great difference in the average attainments of the boys on leaving the School before and during Dr. Morris's tenure of office, and to the much happier relationship which was brought about between Masters and Boys.

We cannot but regard Dr. Morris as the true friend of his pupils, both past and present; ever willing to lend a helping hand to the sons of Freemasons. In him we felt we had a friend, and one, too, to whom are particularly applicable the lines of Langridge:—

A friend's hand in mine, lads,
A kind hand and true;
In rough ways and dark days
It helps a man through.

Gratitude to our old Head Master, and justice alike, compel us to address you, in order that the Masonic Craft may see the kind of man on whose shoulders they placed great responsibility, and how faithfully he carried out his trust.

We ask the Masonic Craft generally whether the resolution of 5th October is in accordance with the reputation of that body for justice and fair treatment, or whether it be not rather an example of excellent services ill-requited?

We would add one word more. We are certain that the opinions which we express are not those of ourselves alone, but also of very many others who have had the good fortune to be pupils of the Rev. Dr. Morris.

We enclose our cards, and are,

Sir, yours faithfully,

TWO OLD PUPILS OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

15th October 1889.

We wish to say that we are not unmindful nor unappreciative of the services which the Rev. O. G. D. Perrot rendered to the School and to its pupils during his brief rule.

Toole's.—A capital company has been got together to play the new farcial comedy written by Mr. Horner entitled "The Bungalow," and if the play fails to attract the fault must be ascribed to the play and not to the company. But we see no good reason why the play should not, to use an expression borrowed from over the water, "catch on." The first two acts cause so much laughter that the third comes as a disappointing surprise, and steps must be taken to strengthen it if "The Bungalow" is to be more than a temporary structure at Toole's. The third act is the weakest in the play. But this is not the only defect. The whole play is founded on a series of incidents which, innocent in themselves, are suggestive of moral obliquity, and we cannot say that their tendency is of a wholesome character. This is essentially no play for babes and sucklings, and for ourselves we must confess to a distaste for fun based on the misunderstanding that pervades "The Bungalow." But having said this, we are free to admit Mr. Horner's skill in constructing an amusing play, and his scrupulous care in stating that it is founded on the French piece, "La Garçonniere," although to all intents and purposes it is new, having little in common with the original. We wish all adaptors were so conscientious. Of the plot it is not necessary to speak in detail; and of the players it is difficult to make a selection for especial praise when almost all act exceedingly well. With the single exception of Miss Sallie Turner the caste is an excellent one. But it is almost unnecessary to say this when it is recollected that the caste consists of Messrs. F. Kaye, Charles Glenney, Yorke Stephens, and Compton Coutts; and Misses Helen Forsyth, Cissy Graham, Vane Featherston, Ciceley Richards, and M. A. Giffard. We may mention that since the above was written Miss Sophie Larkin has taken Miss Turner's part.

Criterion.—We are glad to notice that the management have adopted our suggestion of last week, and the comedy of "Caste" is now preceded by Mr. F. W. Broughton's comedietta "Sunshine," which forms a pleasant prelude to the pièce de resistance. As a consequence the evening's entertainment now commences at eight o'clock.

Saturday, the 26th inst, has been appointed for the private view of the Autumn Exhibition, (the Nineteenth), of the 19th Century Art Society, at the Conduit Street Galleries, and the exhibition will open to the public on Monday, the 28th inst.

Star Chapter of Instruction, No. 1275.—On Friday, 11th inst., at Camberwell. Present:—Comps. Hilton Preceptor, Moore M.E.Z, Eadie H., Hill J., Stone S.E., Woods S.N., Stone P.S., and Addington. The ceremony of exaltation was rehearsed, Comp. Addington as candidate. Comp. Eadie was elected Z. for the next meeting.

GOUT & RHEUMATIC PILLS.

The SAFEST and most EFFECTUAL CURE for GOUT, RHEUMATISM, and all PAINS in the HEAD, FACE, and LIMBS.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL from the Rev. F. FARVIS, Baptist Minister.

Mr. G. EADE. March 19, 1887.

Dear Sir,—I have many times felt inclined to inform you of the benefit I have received by taking your Gout and Rheumatic Pills. After suffering for some time from Rheumatics and Sciatica, I was advised to use your Pills. I bought a bottle, and when in severe pain and unable to use the limb affected I took a dose. In a few hours after I felt the pain much better, and after the second dose the pain completely removed and the limb restored to its right use. I thank you, dear sir, for sending forth such a boon for the relief of human suffering.

Yours faithfully,
F. FARVIS,
Baptist Minister.

There are multitudes of people who look upon advertising as a sort of Lottery, and bestow infinitely more thought in the selection of a clerk at £100 a year than in the expenditure of £1000, or two in the same period in advertising. A tithe of the shrewdness displayed in all other branches of their business given to the management of their advertising will be amply repaid. The ADVERTISEMENT AGENT has become an indispensable factor in this matter of publicity, and his raison d'être is perfectly unassailable. Would you leave or enter a port without a pilot? Would you commence and prosecute a law suit without a legal adviser? Either of these courses would not be more foolish than rushing into expenses in Advertising without a competent practical and professional adviser. I am at all times happy to render advertisers every assistance in my power, and to give them the benefit of the experience I have gained during the past twenty years as a London advertising agent. "PAINLESS AND PERFECT DENTISTRY."

A New Pamphlet, by Dr. GEO. H. JONES, F.R.S.L., F.R.M.S., &c., Surgeon-Dentist, 57 Great Russell-street, facing British Museum entrance, London, contains a list of Diplomas, and Silver Medals and other Awards obtained at the Great International Exhibitions. Forwarded gratis and post free.

Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist's Testimonial.

My Dear Doctor,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

S. G. HUTCHINS,
By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

Geo. H. Jones, Esq., D.D.S.

Scientific Department.
Laboratory of Experimental Science.

This is to certify: That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

Are universally admitted to be worth a Guinea a Box for Nervous and Bilious Disorders, such as wind and pain in the stomach, sick headache, giddiness, fullness and swelling after meals, dizziness and drowsiness, cold chills, flushings of heat, loss of appetite, shortness of breath, costiveness, scurvy, blotches on the skin, disturbed sleep, frightful dreams, and all nervous and trembling sensations, &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes. This is no fiction, for they have done it in thousands of cases. Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all humours, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no medicine to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

For a weak stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the liver they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse in action with the ROSEBUD of health the whole physical energy of the human frame. These are the "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of society, and one of the best guarantees to the nervous and debilitated, is that have the largest sale of any patent medicine in the world.

TRADING ON FREEMASONRY.

IT is not often we have so clear a case of attempting to trade on the reputation and ceremonies of Freemasonry as one which has come under our notice, as having recently occurred within a few hours journey of the great metropolis.

It appears an application was made on behalf of the proprietor of a local inn "for an extension of time till 6 p.m. on Sunday afternoon, on the occasion of a Masonic funeral, a part of which, it was stated, is attendance at church by the Freemasons. The Bench refused the application on the ground that bonâ fide visitors could get refreshment by the law, but granting the application would open the house to the village generally." We are very pleased the application was refused, and sorry the occurrence of a "Masonic funeral" should ever have been made the pretext for such an application as that referred to in the above extract from a contemporary.

It is some gratification to think that in this case no member of the Masonic Order appears to be primarily interested in the proposed "trading," but the facts as they are recounted above are of such a nature as to make us ask whether the work of Freemasonry is not sometimes made too much display of, and whether it is wise to continue to allow even the small amount of ceremonial it is now possible to perform in public to be so worked. It may be urged that the Masonic funeral referred to was likely to cause a large gathering of the members of the Order, but are we to understand that even under such conditions it should be necessary to open the village inn, on a Sunday afternoon, for the purpose of giving them refreshment? This is certainly carrying the principle of "refreshment after labour" to an excess, and we should like to know, for the sake of the reputation of the local Craftsmen, if they were party to the application, or approved of its being made? We can now understand the disfavour shown by Grand Lodge against members of the Order attending funerals of deceased Craftsmen in Masonic clothing. We do not know if in the case referred to regalia was to be worn; we should almost think not, the funeral being on a Sunday, but if it was it would be well for the local authorities to bear in mind this application for an extended license, before again granting the necessary permit.

We have not thought it worth while to give full particulars as to the locality where the funeral took place, but we assure our readers our information is obtained from a reliable source, and although the matter may not be said to concern any member of the Craft personally, it yet shows the feeling entertained towards us by outsiders, and as such it opens up a wide field for reflection.

The Masonic Order is well known for its charity and its fraternal assistance, but it also has the reputation of being a first class patron of the enjoyments of this life. If we should ever be forced to recognise that its work required the granting of such requests as the one referred to, we should consider it more than a misfortune—the good name of Freemasonry would be forfeited, and it would no longer be an honour to be ranked as one of its members. It is, then, matter for congratulation that the application was refused, but similar results may not always attend similar requests, and on that account the members of the Order will do well to guard, as far as possible, against their being made. If a Lodge should happen to hear of such a proposal being entertained, the members would do no more than their duty in strenuously opposing it, and thus prove to the world that all attempts at trading on Freemasonry are abhorred by the Order itself, even if they are occasionally recognised or practised by individual members.

FREEMASONRY AT PRESENT.

"Of every tongue on earth's extended bound,
In every land our brotherhood is found;
Rising to labour with the awakening East,
Sinking to slumber with the darkening West;
Leading our sons as we ourselves were led;
Laying in honoured graves our quiet dead."

NEVER before in the history of the ages has Freemasonry occupied so important a position as at the present time. Never was its influence so marked, its membership so extensive, its teaching so revered. It is to-day the greatest of all earth-born societies, the handmaiden of religion and civilisation, the promoter of virtue and benevolence, the adherent to the grandest principles ever evolved from the active brain of man, Its standard is to be seen in every land and beneath every sun. It is the pioneer in all good works, and before the steady march of its pure, unadulterated principles, ignorance and bigotry flee away, and peace and prosperity make "the desert blossom as the rose."

No one can mark the progress of Freemasonry without being impressed with its influence upon society. It is now respected by church and state. In its quiet, unobtrusive work, it propagates tenets that permeate every walk of life. Freemasonry is not confined to the four walls of the Lodge-room, neither to the actions of the members of the Fraternity alone.

Whether we admit it or not, we are influenced by the things that surround us, and do many things because our neighbour sets the example. Circumstances make men more than men make circumstances. We cannot separate ourselves and be singular in all our doings. Without our knowledge or effort we will be drawn into some current that sweeps with irresistible force through society. The hermit, seeking seclusion and solitude in the lonesomeness of the desert, will there find incentive to devotion in the pure air of heaven and the singing birds of the wild wood. Thus does the physical world as well as the world of our fellows about us inspire us, and more or less mould our actions.

The tenets of Freemasonry are to be found in every good word and work, giving form and beauty to the highest order of morality. The golden rule of the Great Teacher is a fundamental principle of the Craft, and when practiced either by those known to be Masons or by the great world without, is no less a Masonic virtue. And he who follows this principle fully, "doing unto others as he would that they should do unto him," cannot materially err in his duty to mankind. There are more Masons outside the great brotherhood than within it. Religion and Masonry go hand in hand in demanding a reverence for the God of the Bible, and for the Bible of God. They alike teach a dependence upon the Creator, from whose bountiful hand every blessing comes; they inculcate a pure morality, a firm adherence to right, a fulfilment of every vow. Pure morals and pure Freemasonry are synonymous terms, and the man who embodies them in his daily life is already prepared in heart to receive those minor lessons that bind the Craft into one common band of brothers. Thus Freemasonry influences society, and unperceived sows the seed that brings forth fruit in wholesome laws and righteous enactments. It upholds the right, relieves the distressed, defends the weak and raises the fallen. So, silently but surely and continually, it builds into the great fabric of human society.

As a circle around the globe the indissoluble chain of fraternal affection extends, and wherever the heart has been properly prepared, and the ear received the mystic word, there is found a chord that responds in harmony to every call a brother makes. Love forges the links that bind heart to heart, and duty clasps them in one unending chain. At no period of the world's history, perhaps, was there as wide-spread a knowledge of the esoteric principles of Freemasonry as at present. Its influence is, therefore, greater than ever before, and the good that must follow the practice of its teachings must of necessity become more and more manifest. Never was there more purity in Freemasonry and never—paradoxical as it may seem—was there more impurity. When the Sons of God assembled—Satan came also. In the purity of the Garden of Eden, fresh from the Creator's hand, evil enshrined itself, and the slime of the serpent is trailed upon the earth from that day to this. No virtue is secure from the attacks of vice. Virtue may successfully resist, but the purer the life the more beautiful the character, the fiercer and more determined will be the onslaught of impurity. Among the twelve chosen followers of the Great Teacher was found one who "basely violated his vow and betrayed his trust." In the purest society in the world will be found the unworthy. Within the sacred desk are those who "wear the livery of heaven to serve the devil in." Therefore it should not surprise us to find bad and evil disposed men among the "Sons of Light." Virtue is timid and shrinks from public gaze. Merit is patient and often suffers in silent neglect. The true Mason is found in the quieter walks of life. His life is as the peaceful river that flows on and on, blessing every shore that it touches. If the true Mason is elevated to a high station he bears his honours modestly, and is respected for the practice of those lessons he learned in the Lodge room. It sometimes happens that the unworthy are elevated to high and honoured stations, and, being seen from afar, are injurious to the Craft and to the world. They do not possess the spirit of true Masonry. Beneath the lambskin is concealed the tiger's claws, and in the white gloved hand the scimitar of bitter hatred, and within the unfaithful breast that unbelief that makes men but whited sepulchres. Freemasonry in its teaching is as pure to-day as it ever was. Its lessons are God-breathed and should be found only in the pure in heart. Freemasonry itself is not injured by contamination wth evil, no more than the pearl can be marred by the filth of the gutter. It will shine amidst it all.

Freemasonry at present is stronger for good than it ever was. Its quiet, unobtrusive work is being manifested on every hand. Not an Asylum rears its turrets to heaven but is an exemplification of its teachings. Not a refuge for the fallen, the sick and abandoned, but is built upon the principle of brotherly love. Not a haven of rest for the aged and feeble but proclaims the influence of Masonic doctrine. As towers and monuments that will last through the ages, rise the institutions of Masonry itself. There are homes for the homeless, and asylums for the afflicted. There are kind hands and loving hearts ready to minister to the little ones bereft of tender friendships. These are but the tangible forms of the foundation principles of Freemasonry. This is Freemasonry at the present time and as the world looks upon these manifestations of the tenets of our profession, they are impressed with its grandeur and purity, and whether they will or not, they are influenced by their presence. The towering walls casting a shadow upon the passer by, lead him to thank the hands that reared them.

Let us, then, be proud of the position of Freemasonry at the present time, and so live that we may reflect the beauty of its purity, and become fitted for that Grand Lodge above where the Great Architect of the Universe presides.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

A QUARTERLY General Court of the Governors and Subscribers of this Institution was held in the Hall, Freemasons' Tavern, on Friday, for the transaction of the ordinary business of the Institution. Bro. Edward Terry, Grand Treasurer, having been voted to the chair, the usual preliminaries were observed, after which the following Report of the Provisional Management Committee was formally submitted :—

The committee has since its appointment on 6th June 1889, held twenty-two meetings, several of these at Wood Green.

In accordance with instructions given to the Committee at the Quarterly Court, held on Friday, 26th July last, an efficient Matron has been appointed.

With regard to the Medical Officer, thirty-seven applications were received and the Committee carefully considered and examined into the qualifications of the several candidates. At a subsequent meeting the number of candidates was reduced to fifteen, then to ten, and afterwards to six, as those from whom a final selection should be made. On the 20th September, the six gentlemen attended the Committee at the Institution, when it was unanimously resolved that Mr. W. E. Porter, M.B., C.M. Edin., M.R.C.S. Lon., should be recommended for the appointment ,at a salary of £80 per annum.

The Committee acting upon the authority given to it at the last Quarterly Court to confer with the Secretary, Bro. Binckes "as to the terms of his retirement and to arrange them if possible" has, after deliberation arranged with him that he shall retire from the office of Secretary at the end of the present year 1889 upon a retiring allowance of £350 per annum for life. This arrangement received the almost unanimous approval of the General Committee on 10th August last, and this Committee now asks the General Court to sanction and confirm the same.

A Sub-Committee has been appointed to consider a general revision of the Laws of the Institution. The report will be presented in due course to a Quarterly General Court.

The General Committee having, on the 5th inst., resolved to terminate the engagement of the present Head Master—this Committee has under consideration the course most advisable for the appointment of a successor.

This Committee since its formation has added to its number, now comprising thirty-two members.

A Sanitary-Sub-Committee has been nominated which is zealously pursuing its important investigations.

By order of the Provisional Management Committee,

EDWARD TERRY, Grand Treasurer,
Chairman, pro tem

23rd October 1889.

The report was taken as read, and formally accepted. The election of Medical Officer followed, the choice of the meeting falling on Mr. W. E. Porter, the gentleman recommended by the Provisional Committee.

Bro. Richard Eve's proposition, made on behalf of the Provisional Committee—

"That in accordance with the recommendation of the Provisional Management Committee, adopted by the General Committee on Saturday, 10th August 1889, an allowance of £350 per annum, for life, be made to Bro. Frederick Binckes on his retirement from the office of Secretary after a service of upwards of 28 years."

was then brought forward and elicited considerable discussion. Several amendments were proposed, all of which were fully considered in turn. The result was that the recommendation of the Committee, that Bro. Binckes be awarded a retiring pension of £350 per annum, was carried, the majority in favour being, however, a very small one. The proposal of Bro. Masters, made on behalf of the Sanitary Sub-Committee of the Provisional Committee—

"That the Provisional Management Committee be authorised to expend a sum not exceeding £1000 to provide additional Baths in the School Buildings, and for general Sanitary requirements. Also, that the Committee be authorised to expend a sum not exceeding £2500 in the erection of a Swimming Bath."

was agreed to, subject to specifications for the proposed swimming bath being submitted to a subsequent Quarterly Court. Bro. W. H. Saunders having withdrawn the proposals standing in his name, the business was brought to a conclusion.

In accordance with our suggestion of last week arrangements were made for the election to be held in the Crown Room of Freemasons' Tavern. Bro. John Glass was elected to preside over this portion of the proceedings, which were carried through in due course. The result of the ballot will be found in our advertising columns.

The meeting was one of the most numerously attended known in the history of our Institutions, between 400 and 500 being present. As a consequence the accommodation provided was put to a severe test, and although all was done that could be suggested under the circumstances, it must yet be admitted that the arrangements were far from satisfactory.

THE BLUE LODGE.

"BLUE Masonry" and the "Blue Lodge" are phrases often on the lips of Freemasons. Those that use them understand exactly what they apply to, but perhaps all do not comprehend their real significance. Blue Masonry, any tyro will tell you, is Ancient Craft Masonry, and the Blue Lodge is the only lawful body for conferring the three degrees of Free and Accepted Masonry,—degrees which are at once "ancient," and derived from the "Craft" of operative Masons: hence the designation, "Ancient Craft Masonry." Sometimes we are told that the Blue Lodge is so called from the colour of its decorations; but this is an explanation which does not explain. Why are the decorations blue?

From the most ancient times blue has been regarded as a divine colour, symbolising purity, friendship, truth and immortality. If we turn to Egypt, the most ancient of civilised countries, we find that the blue waters of the sacred Nile gave to that river its name, for nila in Sanskrit signifies blue. The Egyptian god, Amun, "the first emanation from the Supreme Being," was painted blue, to represent his peculiarly exalted and heavenly nature; and their goddess, Isis, was represented concealed under a dark blue veil. They also portrayed the risen bodies of the disciples of Osiris as blue.

An analogous symbolism prevailed in India. Among the Hindoos their god, Vishnu, was portrayed of this colour, in allusion to the supposed tint of that primordial fluid on which he, as Narayana, moved in the beginning of time, floating on the chaotic waters. The following is a curious Hindoo legend: A jackal fell into a well of indigo, and perceiving that he was of a dark blue colour, he said, "I am now of a divine colour—the colour of Crishna! What greatness may I not attain unto?" He then summoned other jackals, saying, "See my holy colour! The deity of the wood has anointed me sovereign, and by my command justice shall be administered in the forest." The beasts perceiving his distinguished colour, fell prostrate before him and paid him homage, saying, "As the king commands!"

The American Indians used blue earth for making their pipes of peace, and blue beads were highly prized by them. Among all the Eastern nations blue was a type of friendship and brotherly love. Among the Druids, blue was a symbol of truth, and candidates for initiation into their sacred rites were invested with a garment of three colours, blue, white and green. Among the Jews, the robe of the High Priest's ephod, the ribbon for his breastplate and the plate of his mitre were blue, as was also one of the veils of the Tabernacle. So, the prophet Jeremiah tells us, the Babylonians clothed their deities in blue. The Chinese also regard blue as the symbol of deity, since being composed of black and red it represents the obscure and the brilliant, the male and female, or active and passive principles. Portal says blue was the symbol of perfection, and Weale that blue "in divine language is the symbol of eternal truth, in consecrated language of immortality, and in profane language of fidelity."

The Freemason, with the aid of this illustrative light thrown on his favourite colour—the colour which distinguishes Ancient Craft Masonry, and gives name, in common parlance, to the Lodge and the degrees of Free and Accepted Masonry, can readily understand the full force and significance of its employment, and say in all truthfulness, there is nothing trival in Freemasonry, but everything has its due Masonic signification. Let him ponder, then, the lessons taught by Blue Masonry, as follows:

Blue symbolises fidelity—that lofty principle which actuates every true Freemason in his conduct towards his fellows and the Craft. It symbolises also friendship and brotherly love, the Mystic Tie which unites Masons wherever dispersed into one family, with God as their father, and all the initiated as their Brethren. It symbolises, further, the immortality of the Soul, and hence faith in the regeneration of the lower nature, the resurrection of the body, and the eternity of the immortal spirit in its reorganised form in the world beyond the grave. It typifies also truth—the truth of God, the truth set forth in the First Great Light in Masonry, the eternal principles of justice, mercy and love, faith, hope and charity. All this is inseparably connected with the Blue Lodge and Blue Masonry; all this is ours to know, to possess and to enjoy.—Keystone.

DORIC LODGE, No. 933.

THIS Lodge met after the recess on Tuesday, the 8th inst., at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-Street, there being present Bros. J. Hall Brown W.M., Grey S.W., W. Smith J.W., W. Wainwright P.M. (Treasurer), Scott I.G., G. Seddon Organist, Moss D.C., Pearson W.S., Rawles Tyler, James Smith I.P.M., P.M.'s Barnes, Calver, Ayton, West, Hollington, Tucker, and Crane; Bros. Etheridge, Rushforth, Caslake, Johnson, Cates, Steedman, Hodsoll, Dance and Pick. Visitors: Bros. Broad J.D. 2225, Read J.D. 1910, Camp 1695, Cullen 1685. The business of the evening included the raising of Bro. Etheridge to the third degree, and the passing of Bro. Hodsoll to the second degree. The absence of Bro. Bowron, the venerable Secretary to the Lodge, had been the occasion of remark, and in the course of the proceedings information arrived of his death having occurred in the morning. The announcement caused general gloom, and on the motion of Bro. Hollington, seconded by Bro. Ayton, it was resolved that a letter of condolence and sympathy be addressed to the widow and family; and further, that a wreath be sent on the occasion of the funeral, and the date of the same intimated to the members. A petition of a former member of the Lodge, to the Board of Benevolence, was signed, and some applications for assistance considered. Some other applications for relief were brought under consideration, and arrangements made for the temporary performance of the duties of Secretary, the W.M. appointing Bro. Scott as Secretary pro tem, after which the Lodge adjourned, and in the course of the subsequent proceedings feeling allusion was made to the loss the Lodge had sustained by the death of the late Bro. Dale, and to the illness of Bro. Edney, for whose restoration to health a unanimous wish was expressed. The proceedings were conducted with the silence customary under such circumstances.

FRIENDSHIP AND UNITY LODGE No. 1271.

THE installation festival of the above Lodge was held on Monday, the 7th instant, at the Masonic Rooms in Kingston Road, Bradford-on-Avon. The Lodge was opened by the retiring Master, Bro. B. W. Bryant, who, after the usual preliminaries proceeded to instal his successor (Bro. A. F. Brereton S.W.) into the chair, being assisted in a portion of the ceremony by Bro. the Rev. W. N. C. Wheeler. The ceremony was most effectively rendered, and on its completion the W.M. appointed and invested his Officers for the year, the Lodge being afterwards closed, and the brethren then adjourned to the Town-hall, where an excellent banquet was served by Bro. E. J. Rossiter, to which most of the brethren present at Lodge sat down. Among those present were Bros. Col. Magrath P.M., A. J. Beaven P.M., C. W. Bryant P.M., A. F. Brereton W.M., G. J. WARREN LODGE, No. 1276.

THE annual installation meeting took place, on the 15th inst., at the Lodge-room, Seacombe Hotel, Seacombe, when there was a numerous attendance. The chair at the opening of the proceedings was occupied by Bro. A. Fay W.M., and he was supported by the Officers. The visitors included A. G. Akinson W.M. 1189, P. Duff W.M. 605, E. Shield P.M. 1557, J. Clarke W.M. 1576, E. Roberts Secretary 2132, T. Pierrepoint P.M. 1393, J. T. Lee P.M. P.P.Supt. of Works 605, Eaton Batty I.G. 1609, T. K. Stevenson P.M. 537, J. Subsequently Bro. R. Parry W.M. elect was presented by Bros. T. B. Hughes and A. Fay for installation, the ceremony of installation being efficiently performed by Bro. H. Matthews. Afterwards the newly-elected W.M. invested his Officers:—Bros. A. Fay I.P.M., W. Cloves S.W., W. Ellison J.W., E. G. Mason Treasurer, R. Lake Dir. of Cers., W. Davidson Secretary, S. Jones S.D., F. Fay for his services to the Lodge. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and responded to. An excellent musical programme was rendered by Bros. George Barton, Eaton Batty, E. Edwards, &c. Bro. A. J. Phipps, Mus. Bac., presided at the organ with his usual ability.

JORDAN LODGE, No. 1402.

ON the 8th inst. a very interesting ceremony took place at the Masonic Hall, Torquay. Bro. T. H. Wills, the W.M., presided, and a handsome enlarged photograph was presented to the Lodge, bearing an illuminated inscription, as follows:—

"The W. Bro. John Chapman P.M., P. Prov. G.D. of Devon, &c., Originator and Founder of the Jordan Lodge, No. 1402, Torquay, A.D. 1872, presented by W. Bro. T. W. Morgan I.P.M., W. Master of the Lodge 1876-7, 1888-9; 8th October 1889."

The presentation was made by Bro. W. J. Hughan, P.G.S.D. (England), who, in the course of an eloquent address, traced the Masonic career of Bro. Chapman from his initiation into Lodge Sincerity, No. 189, at St. George's Hall, East Stonehouse, in 1870, down to the present time. Shortly after his initiation Bro. Chapman removed to Torquay, where he founded the Jordan Lodge, afterwards leaving for Sheffield, whence he has again come back to Torquay. The Jordan Lodge was founded on the 13th of June 1872, and its Past Masters include Bros. Chapman and Morgan, J. Murray P.P.G.Dir. of Cers., W. Bradnee P.P.G.S.D., J. Dodge P.P.G.T., A. J. Blamey P.P.G.J.D., J. Lane P.P.G. Reg., B. Knight, F. S. Hex, and T. Prust. The warrant was granted to a number of brethren on the principle that no refreshments should be served in connection with the Lodge, except, of course, at the annual banquet. This plan has not been departed from, and the precedent has been established, which has now been observed for some years, for the Master to present a donation of five guineas to one of the Masonic Charities instead of ordering champagne for the installation banquet. The photograph, which was by Mr. C. Collins, was a very good one, and was mounted in an oak and gold frame by Bro. J. D. Beer.

TRINITY COLLEGE LODGE, No. 1765.

ON Thursday, the 3rd instant, the members of this Lodge met at Trinity College, Mandeville-place, Manchester-square. Among the brethren present were F. W. Plant Martin W.M., E. Burritt Lane S.W., J. Mills J.W., J. A. Hammond P.M. Secretary, A. G. Howard P.M., J. E. Biddlecombe S.D., J. Sargeant J.D., C. J. Ozanne Dir. of Cers., S. J. J. Wilford, H. H. Robertson, J. J. Hutchinson, and W. C. Hutchinson. The minutes having been read and confirmed, Bro. H. H. Robertson was raised to the degree of Master Mason. The brethren having then proceeded to the election of W.M. for the ensuing year, Bro. E. Burritt Lane was unanimously elected. The office of Treasurer then being put to the vote, the papers were all but unanimously in favour of Bro. J. A. Hammond, who has for many years past held the office of Secretary to the universal satisfaction of the Officers and Brethren of the Lodge. He being then declared elected, the Tyler was re-elected. The P.M.'s jewel was voted to Bro. Plant Martin for his good conduct of the Lodge during his year of office. Other business then being disposed of, the Lodge was duly closed, and the brethren retired for refreshment. The loyal toasts having been drunk with the usual enthusiasm observed among Masons, the Trinity brethren beguiled an hour or two with short speeches, interspersed with longer spells of harmony.

PENGE LODGE, No. 1815.

ON Friday, the 4th instant, the installation of Brother William Thomas Hocken, as Worshipful Master, took place at the Thicket Hotel, Anerley Road. After the installation and the business of the Lodge had been transacted, upwards of 50 brethren of the Craft, including visitors, sat down to a banquet, served up in a first class manner by host Brother Brown. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and responded to. The programme also included songs and recitations, which greatly enhanced the success of the gathering. The following Officers were present:—Brothers W. T. Hocken W.M., R. A. Tidmas I.P.M., T. J. Cuthbert S.W., F. Betts J.W., J. Dibble Treasurer, T. West P.M. Secretary, W. T. Sergeant S.D., H. Leney J.D., W. Baker I.G., H. O. Budd and J. O. Curtis Stewards, G. W. Rowe Tyler.

BURRELL LODGE, No. 1829.

THE annual installation meeting was held on Thursday afternoon, the 10th inst., at the Buckingham Arms Hotel, Shoreham. The Worshipful Master (Bro. R. B. Higham) presided. The chief business of the meeting was the installation of the W.M. elect, Bro. W. Gill. The ceremony was performed by the retiring W.M., Bro. R. B. Higham, the charges being delivered by Bro. T. Hardy. The following were appointed Officers for the ensuing year, and those present were invested with the insignia of their respective offices, viz.:—Bros. R. B. Higham I.P.M., H. Packham S.W., E. New J.W., T. Packham P.M. Treasurer, A. J. Carpenter Secretary, J. Flinn S.D., H. E. M. Fiennell J.D., J. Hughes D.C., H. Dyer Organist, T. Shrivell I.G., J. W. Penfold, E. Lodder Stewards, and W. Stanton Tyler. A banquet was afterwards held, and a toast list carried out. The W.M., in proposing the Past Masters of the Lodge, said that of their ten Past Masters seven had secured Provincial honours. There were few Lodges in which the work had been better done. Of their I.P.M. he said he could not speak too highly. Under his rule, during the past year, the Lodge had increased by seven members, and his own family had also increased. They had no silver cradle to present to Bro. Higham, but the brethren, desirous of showing him some mark of their favour, had subscribed a purse of gold, which he had great pleasure in handing him, together with an illuminated address. The address was as follows:—

"Burrell Lodge, No. 1829. Presented to Bro. R. B. Higham, of Shoreham, together with a purse of money, by the members of the above Lodge, as a token of fraternal regard, and record of his services to Freemasonry, as one of the Founders of the Lodge, his subsequent efforts for its success, and the admirable manner in which he discharged his duties as W.M. during the year 1888-9."

The gifts were, Bro. Gill said, "ornamental and useful," and he hoped Bro. Higham would live long to enjoy both. Bro. Higham, in responding, said the presentation was unexpected, and that he had no idea that his humble services would be so appreciated. He felt that he could not thank them sufficiently for their generosity. From the Brethren of the Lodge, and from Masons in the Province generally, he had experienced so much kindness, that though he felt grateful he could not trust himself to speak as he would wish.

EGERTON LODGE, No. 2132.

ON the 10th inst., at the Seacombe Hotel, Seacombe, Bro. E. King-Ellison was duly installed as Worshipful Master. The members of the Lodge present were Bros. Charles Leighton W.M., E. King-Ellison S.W., Dr. W. A. Napier J.W., W. F. Robinson Secretary, Edwin Roberts J.D., Samuel King Steward, C. S. Dean P.M., Henry B. Brown P.M., and T. Diloock P.M., and among the Visitors were Bros. R. Norris Jones W.M. 1350, Alfred Fay W.M. 1276, F. N. Stevenson P.M. 537, J. Roberts S.D. 1713, and T. Williams J.D. 1356. The Worshipful Master elect was presented by Bros. C. G. Parker and H. B. Brown. After his installation Bro. E. King-Ellison proceeded to invest his Officers for the ensuing year, as follow:—Bros. Charles Leighton I.P.M., Dr. Napier S.W., W. F. Robinson J.W., H. B. Browne Treasurer, Edwin Roberts Secretary, John Simpson S.D., S. King J.D., Charles Jones I.G., John H. Crellan Steward, and C. S. Dean D.C.

RYE LODGE, No. 2272.

THE installation meeting of the brethren of this Lodge was held, on the 9th inst., at the Peckham Public Hall. The Lodge was opened by the W.M. Bro. J. W. Dewsnap, and there was a good attendance of members and visitors. The business of the meeting comprised a raising and passing, and the installation of Bro. Fredk. Dunn as W.M. for the year ensuing, and the presentation to Bro. Dewsnap of a Past Master's jewel, in appreciation of the admirable manner in which he had discharged the duties of the chair of K.S. as the first Master of the Lodge. The installation of the W.M. was ably performed by Bro. Dewsnap, which ended, Bro. Dunn as the newly installed W.M. appointed his Officers for the year. At the banquet, after labour, the usual Masonic toasts were duly honoured. The various speeches were agreeably interspersed by vocal selections, given in pleasing style by Bros. Cook, Voisey, Warne, Piggott, and Nightingale; recitations by Bro. Jaggs being much appreciated. Bro. S. R. Phillips ably carried out a flute solo selection from the Bohemian Girl. The duties of accompanist were carried out by Bro. Pettit, the organist of the Lodge, in his usual able style.

WHITE HORSE LODGE, No. 2227.

ON Thursday, the 10th inst., this Lodge had a meeting at their Masonic Hall, Westbury, Wilts, to take part in the installation of the W.M. elect for the year, Bro. H. Reeves, who was duly inducted into the chair of King Solomon by Bro. Sir Gabriel Goldney, Part., Deputy Provincial Grand Master Wilts. After the ceremony the W.M. appointed the following brethren as his Officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. C. N. P. Phipps I.P.M., J. J. Trask S.W., H. W. Pinniger J.W., R. M. Kirwan Chaplain, Thomas Reeves Treasurer, S. Anderson Secretary, G. H. Knight S.D., A. P. Hall J.D., W. H. Reed Organist, A. W. Tuffin I.G., H. Mead and H. Green Stewards. The brethren afterwards dined at the Lopes Arms Hotel, Miss Mainwood catering.

Loughborough Lodge of Instruction, No. 22.—On Monday, 14th inst., at the Camden Hotel, Clapham. Present—Bros. Westley Preceptor, Livett W.M., and about twenty brethren. The ceremonies of passing and initiation were ably rehearsed by the W.M., who was very heartily congratulated on filling the chair of W.M. so ably, for the first time. Bro. Beaven was elected W.M. for the next meeting. A letter was read from Bro. Esling, thanking the members for their letter of sympathy with him, on account of his bereavement, by accident, of his son.

Merchant Navy Lodge of Instruction, No. 781.—On Wednesday, the 16th instant, the brethren of this Lodge were favoured with an exhibition of Masonic lore, such as seldom falls to the lot of those seeking instruction. Amongst the brethren present were:—Bros. F. Robinson P.M. in the chair of K.S., F. Oxley S.W., S. W. Bull J.W., F. Lancett S.D., G. Seage J.D., C. Breden, J. J. Berry, Cotter, Money, and many others. Lodge being duly opened in the three degrees, Bro. Preceptor Pugh delivered the lecture on the third tracing board in a manner at once clear, impressive, and difficult to emulate. Then followed an exposition of what is termed the Masonic Alphabet. Even among many brethren old in Masonry, this system of symbols is but imperfectly understood, but, explained by such a Master of the Craft, that which was before obscure, became distinct; that which appeared difficult, when revealed, was simplicity itself. The diagram illustrating it could have been mastered by a clever schoolboy. On Wednesday, the 30th instant, Bro. Oxley W.M. 1306 will rehearse the installation ceremony. It is to be hoped brethren will give a full muster.

Doric Lodge of Instruction, No. 933.—At the opening meeting of the season, at this Lodge, which is held at Bro. Musto's, the White Horse, White Horse-lane, Mile End, Bro. Basil Stewart with that effective elocution for which he is justly noted, performed the ceremony of installation, the Lodge being constituted as follows:—Bros. J. Oxley W.M., C. N. Fox S.W., Corper J.W., Yetton S.D., Bibro J.D., Harris I.G., B. Da Costa Preceptor, W. Musto Secretary; there were also present Bros. Dupree, N. Isaacs, J. Friedlander, J. Taylor, B. Cundick, B. F. P. Franks, and others. After the installation, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, and this was followed by two sections of the first lecture, worked by Bro. N. Isaacs, forming a good evening's instruction; the W.M. carrying the proceedings through with promptitude and smartness.

The Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes read and confirmed. Mapleton Secretaries, Dr. Causton, Fraser, and C. W. C. Webb Committee, S. L. Smith and Tolmein Auditors.

The following address was delivered by Bro. Thomas William Tew, J.P., on Wednesday, the 16th instant, at the Provincial Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire, held at the Freemasons' Hall, Fitzwilliam Street, Huddersfield:—

BRETHREN,—In accordance with the Bye-Laws of the West Yorkshire Provincial Grand Lodge, the W. Past Masters and Acting Wardens are convoked to attend to the duties of our Masonic Autumnal Session, and at which all Master Masons of the seventy four Lodges are invited to be present. Before this Provincial Grand Lodge was closed, at Leeds, on the 10th April, the invitation of the Lodge Albert Edward, No. 1783, was accepted by the Provincial Grand Lodge, to assemble under its banner during this month. This Lodge was consecrated on the 12th December 1878, and it is the first time this Provincial Grand Lodge has been brought under its banner. Our acknowledgments are due to the W.M. and members for the arrangements they have made for our convenience and comfort. The Provincial Grand Officers not only greet the four prosperous Lodges in Huddersfield, Nos. 275, 290, 521, and 1783, but also Metham Lodge, No. 119, Lindley Lodge, No. 1514, Kirkburton Lodge, No. 2035, and Milnes Bridge Lodge, No. 2261, numbering some 400 Masons, who have well responded to the Roll Call this day. We offer to one and all of them our earnest and fraternal wishes for their prosperity and perpetuity. On the 20th June, at Worksop, this Provincial Grand Lodge had the honour of installing the Rev. Fredk. Bessell, of Balderton, as the Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Nottinghamshire. A little later on—24th July—it had the pleasure, at Hull, of witnessing the presentation of an address of congratulation to the new Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, the Earl of Zetland, in his Provincial Grand Lodge of North and East Yorkshire. At the Fidelity Lodge, Leeds, on the 1st August, the Craft presented a stirring address to Bro. Hamilton Murrell, Captain of the ss. "Missouri," in recognition of his bravery, on the 6th April last, in rescuing the passengers and crew of the ship "Danmark" in mid-ocean. On the 28th September, this Provincial Grand Lodge consecrated a new Lodge at Bradford, the Acacia, No. 2321 on the Roll of the Grand Lodge of England; and on the 3rd October many West Yorkshire members supported the Deputy Provincial Grand Master of North and East Yorkshire, whilst he dedicated the new Masonic Hall of S. Cuthbert, at Howden. Our Librarian will also announce some valuable presents and the more comfortable accommodation provided at Wakefield for our Masonic books and curiosities. He and I are now in cooperation with the Lodge of Quatuor Coronati, No. 2076. We have the Library Catalogue of that Lodge, and are in possession of their literary essays and proceedings. It is my fervent desire to acquire, at Wakefield, a collection of Masonic works, books, and writings, as shall supply a much needed literary guide for the information of Lodges and Provincial Grand Officers. I mention these matters to show the activity and influence of Freemasonry in the County of York. But, Brethren, the objects for which we are most particularly gathered together within these walls is to consider the report of our Charity Committee, and the two most important resolutions on our agenda paper. I desire most emphatically to impress upon your attention the recommendations involved in these resolutions. They relate to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, at Wood Green; and they have been framed, so as to bring for the first time before the Provincial Grand Lodge the Report of the London Committee of Investigation, which I now lay on the eastern pedestal of this Provincial Grand Lodge. This Committee of seven gentlemen, with Bro. Frederick A. Philbrick, Q.C., Grand Registrar of England, as Chairman, was appointed under resolution of the Quarterly Court of 27th July 1888. This Committee presented their report to the Quarterly Court, held in London, on the 26th April 1889. Before this Report, showing the gravity of affairs at Wood Green, was distributed to the Craft generally, this Province did, at its first half-yearly Charity Committee meeting, held at Dewsbury, on 6th April 1889, and acting on the suggestion of Bro. Malcolm, the learned Coroner for Leeds, who generously placed his time and services at the disposal of West Yorkshire and the London Committee of Investigation, nominate nine brethren, being Life Governors of the Boys' School, as a precautionary measure, in order that these West Yorkshire representative brethren should be in an authorised position to receive such London Report when issued, and, if requisite, to consider its provisions and to propose to this Provincial Grand Lodge what steps it should take to enforce any recommendations that such London Report might advocate. This was necessary on the part of West Yorkshire, because Provincial Grand Lodge might not meet until the month of October, except on an emergency, until some six months after such Report might be issued to the Craft. This special West Yorkshire Committee was confirmed by Provincial Grand Lodge on 10th April, at Leeds. The members are Bros. W. H. Smithson of No. 1007, J. B. Fox of No. 208, W. Harrop of 290, C. L. Mason of No. 204, R. S. Critchley of No. 208, J. D. Kay No. 289, A. W. Stansfield No. 1019, W. C. Lupton of 974, and John Francis Moss of No. 296. Most able brethren, who have met several times, and will, through their spokesman, shortly move the most important of the resolutions on the Agenda Paper, and make a statement to this Prov. Grand Lodge. This West Yorkshire Sub-Committee, on the 30th May 1889, met the representatives of the Provinces of West and East Lancashire and Cheshire, at Manchester, and framed a resolution for the London Quarterly Court of the 6th June, and which was sent to every Subscriber to the Boys' School, in their respective Provinces, recommendatory of the Report of the Committee of Investigation of the Boys' School. I shall try to narrow this discussion by a brief synopsis of occurrences since this Prov. Grand Lodge met in April last, and I trust that spirit of fairness and impartiality which distinguishes our Order in its discussions in our Charity meetings, will be to-day as free from bias as possible, and that your good sense will relieve your Prov. Grand Master of the responsibility he feels in attempting to guide the deliberations of this Prov. Grand Lodge in its consideration of one of the most difficult and thorny questions that I suppose, with regard to this School, have ever perplexed its subscribers, or was brought before a Grand Lodge. It was my duty to present this London Report of the Committee of Investigation to the nine members of the West Yorkshire Committee, on the 1st May, at Harrogate. It has been their property since this date. I believe, moreover, that every Subscriber, Contributor, or Life Governor has had a copy of this London Report for his reading and study, and therefore it may be taken as read. The Prov. Grand Officers, the Chairman and Vice-Chairman of the Charity Committee and your special West Yorkshire Committee are of opinion, I believe, that in consequence of a most important meeting in London, to be held on Friday, the 25th of this month, in reference to the Provisional Management Committee of the affairs of the Boys' School ("for the position of this Committee may be compromised by faction, and perhaps have to resign, which would stultify the labours of the Report of the Committee of Management, and undo the work of re-organisation, which is going on satisfactorily"), that this Provincial Grand Lodge should have this opportunity of expressing its opinions upon the London Report, as well as on the statement and resolution of West Yorkshire—for the observation of the Vice-Chairman and the Chairman of our Charity Committee, the latter who is also our representative on the London Provisional Management Committee of the Boys' School; and, if necessary, and called upon, our Life Governors and contributors may be in Freemasons' Hall on the 25th inst., and by our influence endorse the recommendations of the Provisional Management Committee, presided over by the Earl of Euston, with Bro. F. A. Philbrick as Vice Chairman, in carrying out the opinions on pages 45 and 47 of the London Investigation Report. The seven brethren who drew up the Report of the London Committee of Investigation summarised their exhaustive examinations into the management of the Boys' School by seven opinions, the most important of which, on page 46, is thus expressed, "that an entire change in administration and a thorough breaking away from the present practice must take place before the management, discipline, and expenditure of the Institution will be satisfactory." In a Province like West Yorkshire, the passing of a formal resolution affirmative or otherwise of these seven recommendations, and only confirming it hereafter upon the Prov. Grand Lodge "Minutes," like many Provinces, and taking no further action to enforce the views of this Provincial Grand Lodge, would hardly be compatible with our desires for the welfare of this School, considering the large amount of money contributed by the Lodges which, since 1871, is upwards of £12,000. Nor would it be in accordance with our sense of equity and generosity to abstain from the annual contributions for the educational benefits this Province receives from this Institution in the maintenance of the 24 West Yorkshire orphan boys in the School, and three more seeking our votes for admission therein. I have ever been anxious for reformation in the management of the School, but not for the abandonment of it. This must be the last resort, failing the adequate carrying out of the seven opinions under the London Provisional Management Committee. Brethren, our discussions of the "Resolutions" on the agenda paper are, if possible, to join issue with those who have the desire that you will give them the power by your presence, on the 25th inst., to place this School, once and for all, on that satisfactory basis which the Report and the Management Committee have clearly indicated should be accomplished. Let me say that the Report of the Investigation Committee, at the head of which Committee is the learned Bro. Fred. A. Philbrick, has done all the work of examination and eliciting evidence for the framing of the Report, which our West Yorkshire Committee might perhaps have otherwise tried to undertake, and therefore the labours of Bro. A. W. Stanfield P.M. and P.P.G.R. and his friends have been restricted to watching events, and considering the manner the London Report could be worked out by the Provisional Management Committee, and reporting to this Prov. Grand Lodge. Briefly, what has occurred since the 26th April 1889 may be stated as follows:—A meeting was held on the 6th June, in Freemasons' Hall, when the Earl of Euston was elected Chairman of the Provisional Management Committee. This Committee, after it had held five meetings (one being at Wood Green), presented a Report, on the 6th July, to the General Committee. On the 12th June the then House, Finance, and Audit Committees of the School, by "resolution," handed over to this Provisional Committee the management of the School at Wood Green; and this Committee, by a resolution, accepted the charge, and, under the Earl of Euston, Bros. Philbrick, Smithson, Langton, &c., has done all things necessary, and in accordance with the report, and in nine conclusions and seven opinions in carrying on the work of the School, and the reformation of the Institution. A most important letter, dated 13th May 1889, was written by Bro. F. A. Philbrick, and published in the Masonic journals, to each of the Rota Chairmen of the House, Finance, and Audit Committees, justifying every conclusion and opinion to which the Committee of Investigation had unanimously arrived; this letter has not received from the Craft, I fear, the attention it deserves. The old matron and steward of the School resigned. A new matron has recently been selected, and has entered upon her duties at Wood Green, 1st August. Doctor W. E. Porter, the son of Bro. Porter, of the Aire and Calder Lodge, has been recommended by the Management Committee to the office of Medical Officer of the School. I hope this appointment may be confirmed, and not upset by factious opposition, on the 25th inst., at the Quarterly Meeting in Freemasons' Hall. The "Provisional Committee has not lost sight of the question of the Head Mastership. Circumstances have arisen which have occasioned Lord Euston's Committee to somewhat accelerate the retirement of the present Head Master, in accordance with opinion No. 1 page 46, of the Report. A question may arise on the 25th instant as to granting him a pension, and to what amount, and further, as there "should be a change at as early as possible in the office of Secretary," that he should also have a retiring allowance. Is it to be a larger or smaller sum than that of the new Secretary, or have £200 a year in lieu of commission as a collector for the School? I believe the present Secretary is to retire towards the close of the year, which step the following General Court sanctioned and approved. There are a number of applicants for the office of Secretary. It is proposed to give the new Secretary £300 a year. I ask all the Lodges in West York not to be committed to any private application whatever which candidates may make by tendering testimonials before the office of Secretary is declared vacant. Lastly, chartered accountants have been appointed, and they have advised on the system of book keeping; and the financial condition of the Institution is also being considered. These are some of the progressions made by the London Committee in the direction of carrying out the Report, and on their proposal our own West Yorkshire special Committee will make a report and move a resolution. Whatever conclusions this Provincial Grand Lodge may come to this afternoon on the prospective business of the Quarterly Court on the 25th October of the Boys' School, I fervently hope the Report and its recommendations may not be rendered nugatory for the want of assistance from the Life Governors of West Yorkshire. I am most anxious the labours of our own special Committee, and Chairman and Vice Chairman of our own Charity Committee should be upheld, and their views as the exponents of this Provincial Grand Lodge sustained in Freemasons' Hall on this eventful Friday. Only personal presence and personal voting, if necessary, can be of any avail and adequate efficiency if we are to give to the Report of the Committee of Investigation and the Management Committee, as well as our own representatives, the most uncompromising and determined assistance. In an Institution whose management is so varied and complicated as is the Boys' School, you cannot at once change an old and disastrous system of administration. It takes time to place the management, discipline, and expenditure of a School, whose welfare West Yorkshire has so much at heart, upon a remodelled and satisfactory working basis. We must exhibit not only patience but determination also, and help these joint new Committees to work out this Report in every way we can. I venture to hope their labours, so far, in the direction of "an entire change" at Wood Green, may merit your confidence and the members of these new Committees your esteem, for their judgment, equity, and impartiality in the duties they have undertaken to fulfil on behalf of the two thousand three hundred and thirty Lodges on the roll of the Grand Lodge of England throughout the world. With these remarks, I ask you, brethren, to accept my thanks on behalf of this Provincial Grand Lodge for the cordiality of your reception and the salutation you have given to the occupant of this chair, as well as to my Deputy, and the other eminent Visitors, our honoured guests this afternoon.

NEW MUSIC.

All Music intended for review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, Belvidere Works, Hermes Hill, Pentonville, London, N.

"By Normandie's Blue Hills." Written by Clifton Bingham, composed by H. Trotère.

"Sweet Lavender." Written by John Muir, composed by Edith Cooke.

"Hark! Hark! the Dogs do bark!" Written by R. S. Hickens, composed by J. L. Roeckel.

"Ma Belle Reine." Graceful Dance, composed for the pianoforte by H. Trotère.

"Alexandra Gavotte, in F." Composed for the pianoforte by C. H. R. Marriott.

"The Horse Guards." Quick step March, composed for the pianoforte by C. H. R. Marriott.

London: J. B. CRAMER AND Co., 201 Regent Street, W.

THIS well known firm of music publishers are to the fore with new songs and pieces for the coming winter months. We have lately had the opportunity of sampling some of Messrs. Cramer's new publications, and we are glad to be able to say they are up to standard. Clifton Bingham and H. Trotère's "By Normandie's Blue Hills" is a most tuneful and pretty composition, admirably suited for accompaniment on the violin, music for which is supplied. "Sweet Lavender" is another good song, the theme of which is pretty, while the music is soft and bright. This song has been dedicated to Bro. Edward Terry, G. Treasurer. "Hark! Hark! the Dogs do bark!" is a song written by R. S. Hickens, who has founded his verses on an old rhyme. The music puts one in mind of "The Vagabond;" it is of a cheery nature, with plenty of swing in it. All these songs are exceedingly good compositions, and we feel sure will be heard frequently during the present winter. For those who are fond of pianoforte music, Messrs. Cramer have published some good pieces. "Ma Belle Reine" is a "Graceful Dance," composed by H. Trotère; it is of a spirited and lively character, and cannot fail to give satisfaction to any one at all fond of such music. C. H. R. Marriott's "Alexandra Gavotte, in F," is a simple, yet pleasing piece, and is well suited to the drawing-room. "The Horse Guards" quick step March is by the same composer, and if anything is more taking than the former, it having a more operatic tendency. These three pieces are of a character that will bear being heard any number of times, and always leave a pleasing impression.

"The Old Oak Settle." Written by Catherine Armstrong, composed by Annie E. Armstrong.

"How will it be?" Written by Clement Scott, composed by Isidore de Lara.

"Dearest." Written by Miss Maud Blackett, composed by Mrs. Lynedoch Moncrieff.

"Springtime." Written by Arthur Chapman, composed by S. A. Sabel.

London: B. MOCATTA AND Co., 37 Berners Street, W.

THIS celebrated firm likewise offers several new compositions. "The Old Oak Settle" is a pathetic song, founded on a story of the 17th century, by Catherine Armstrong, and set to music by Annie E. Armstrong. The music is most appropriate, being of a soft and impressive nature. "How will it be?" is a sequel to "The Garden of Sleep," and is dedicated to Mrs. Thomas Nunn. The melody is tuneful and bright, and is sure to become popular. "Dearest" is hardly as good a composition as the others we have mentioned, but, nevertheless, is a pretty piece of work. "Springtime" is a good song, and bids fair to become popular. It has been composed by S. A. Sabel, who has given us bright and tuneful music. The above are all worth attention, and we recommend our musical readers to purchase them.

"The Captain of the Lifeboat." Written by F. E. Weatherley, composed by Louis Diehl. London: W. MORLEY AND Co., 127 Regent Street, W.

THE above is a fine nautical song, with a good swinging tune, especially the chorus. F. E. Weatherley's words are capital, and Louis Diehl's music is so taking that it bids fair to become one of the most popular songs of the day. It should be in every concert programme for some time to come.

"Why not now?" Written by F. Bowyer, composed by Antonio L. Mora.

"Love will wake." Written by Clifton Bingham, composed by Felix Keston.

London: HOPWOOD AND CREW, 42 Bond Street, W.

THE first of these two songs has been expressly composed for, and is sung by, Madame Marie Roze. We can say that it has a taking air, with good words by F. Bowyer, set to music by Antonio L. Mora. We can also strongly recommend "Love will wake"; the music is effective, and the refrain is one that can easily be taken up, and remembered, while the song is not a difficult one.

"The Spanish Gipsy." Written and composed by Michael Watson. London: PATEY AND WILLIS, 44 Great Marlborough Street, W.

THIS song, written and composed by the late Michael Watson, has an attractive air. It is of a tuneful description, and is in the well known style of the late composer. It should be eagerly sought after.

PROV. GRAND LODGE OF DEVON.

THE annual Provincial Grand Lodge of Devon was held on the 23rd inst., at Tavistock, under the banner of Russell Lodge, No. 23. A meeting of the Provincial Committee was held first in the Lodge-room at the Abbey. The accounts showed a balance in hand of £29 4s. It was resolved to recommend the grant of £20 to the widow of a distinguished brother in very distressing circumstances, and to hold the balance to provide for any further expenses in connection with the memorial to be erected to the memory of the last Provincial Grand Master, Colonel J. Tanner Davy, in Rose Ash Church. The Committee then adjourned to the Bedford Hotel, where the ball-room had been tastefully fitted up as a Lodge-room. There was a large attendance of brethren. Brother the Rev. T. W. Lemon presided, and was well supported by the Provincial Grand Officers and Acting Officers for the year, besides a numerous assemblage of Visitors. The Secretary (Brother H. Stocker) reported that the present membership was 471, against 455 of last year, an increase of 16. The Treasurer's report accorded the same balance as arrived at by the Committee. Those reports and that of the Provincial Committee were adopted. The election for the recommendation of a brother to the M.W. the Grand Master of England for the office of Provincial Grand Master of Devonshire for the ensuing three years then took place. A strong desire was expressed for Bro. Lemon to allow himself to be nominated, but he firmly declined the office, having already much Masonic work on hand. Bros. H. M. Imbert-Terry and Capt. Strode-Lowe were nominated. From the general preference expressed for the latter, the nomination of Bro. Imbert-Terry was withdrawn, and Bro. Strode-Lowe elected. Brother John Leonard was elected Provincial Grand Treasurer. The Officers for the ensuing year were appointed and invested by Brother Lemon, the acting Provincial Grand Master :—

A vote of condolence was accorded and directed to be sent to the widow and family of the late much respected Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. C. Spence Bate. Bro. Strode-Lowe returned thanks for his recommendation to the office of Provincial Grand Master, and said if appointed he would do his best to carry out the duties of that office. In the evening the brethren dined together at the Bedford Hotel, Brother the Rev. T. W. Lemon presiding.

Halliwell, several Masonic toasts were proposed, and then Bro. Woodall, who presided, made the presentation, which consisted of an English gold keyless lever watch and an illuminated address. The address was in the following terms :—

"We, the undersigned Mark Master Masons of the Province of North and East Yorkshire, with hearty good wishes and fraternal greeting, present to our Very Worthy Bro. Thos. B. Whytehead P.M. P.G.O. England, P.P.G.S.W., the accompanying gold watch, as a token of our esteem and regard, and in recognition of the excellent and highly valued services he has so long rendered in the cause of Mark Masonry, and particularly for the zealous manner in which he assisted in the formation of the Grand Mark Lodge of the Province, and in fulfilling the duties of Provincial Grand Secretary for a period of six years. We sincerely hope and trust that the Great Overseer of the Universe may vouchsafe to our highly esteemed brother a long life of continued prosperity and usefulness, and that he may long be spared to continue his connection with the Province, and that he and his family may enjoy every blessing this world can bestow."

Bro. Whytehead feelingly acknowledged the gift.

PROV. G. LODGE OF NORTH WALES.

BY command of the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, Lord Harlech, the Grand Lodge of the Province of North Wales assembled at Barmouth, on Tuesday, the 22nd inst., a large number of members and brethren being present. The brethren met at the tastefully decorated Masonic Temple of the Mawddach Lodge, No. 1988, where Provincial Grand Lodge was opened. Bro. Lord Harlech, and Bro. Colonel Henry Platt, Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and the Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge entered the Lodge-room at two o'clock. There was a large assemblage of Present and Past Provincial Grand Officers and visitors. After the usual formalities, the minutes of the Provincial Grand Lodge, held at Carnarvon, were read and confirmed. The roll call of Lodges showed that two were unrepresented. The Provincial Grand Secretary read a report showing that there was a marked improvement in the manner in which the minute books of Lodges in the Province were kept. More uniformity, however, was needed, and it was his intention to submit a scheme on the subject. Brothers, Corbet, Edisbury, and Benson were re-elected to audit the Provincial Grand Treasurer's accounts. Bro. Salmon was re-elected Provincial Grand Treasurer, and submitted a statement showing that the funds in hand to the credit of the Provincial Grand Lodge amounted to £90 3s 5d. On the "B" fund of the North Wales Charitable Association there was in hand a balance of £251, after relieving the several cases submitted last year. This fund was really the nursery of the other funds, and ought to be better supported by the Lodges, only one-third of which subscribed towards it at present. The Provincial Grand Master afterwards appointed and invested his Officers, as follow :—

Bro. Hon. Col. West ...	...	Senior Warden
Dr. Jones-Morris ...	...	Junior Warden
Rev. J. Morgan ...	...	Chaplain
Salmon	...	Treasurer
W. L. Bankes ...	...	Registrar

Edward Roberts ...	... }
Dr. Henry Evans ...	... }
J. Burton... ...	... }
H. B. Stubbington ...	...	Tyler

The Deputy Provincial Grand Master said it was with feelings of pleasure that he was able to announce that his scheme for a life presentation to the Girls' Masonic School had been completed. It now remained for the Provincial Grand Lodge to arrange as to the proper mode in which the Charity should be managed. In the individual subscriptions received were—the Provincial Grand Master, £25; the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, £25; the Masonic-hall, Bangor, £22; Bro. S. Pope, £20; with other special Lodge and individual subscriptions, making a total of £163 4s. The full sum collected when the promises were paid up would exceed £525. He asked for £27 17s 6d to complete the presentation. Bro. Salmon proposed that the amount should be voted, with a hearty vote of thanks to the Deputy Provincial Grand Master for the trouble he had taken. Bro. Edisbury seconded the proposal, which was agreed to. A long discussion followed as to the mode in which the Charity should be managed. The Provincial Grand Master proposed, and Bro. Edisbury seconded, the appointment of a committee, composed of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Provincial Grand Treasurer, and Provincial Grand Secretary, to make arrangements as to the most deserving cases for consideration and submission to the North Wales Charitable Association. Bro. Dr. Jones-Morris pointed out that the Lodges having contributed largely towards the fund, were specially debarred from partaking in its administration, and urged that this should be remedied. Brother Salmon remarked that Lodges should subscribe specially each year before their representatives could have a voice in the disposal of the Charities. Bro. Jones-Morris said that last year some of the Lodges had made a special effort to provide a sum of money required by the Deputy Provincial Grand Master towards the fund, and he did not see why they should now be debarred from having a voice in its administration. Bro. Salmon, as Provincial Grand Treasurer, said that the Association could not go beyond its bye-laws. The only way out of the difficulty was that each Lodge should subscribe a guinea in the name of the W.M. for the time being. The Deputy Provincial Grand Master thought it would be only courteous towards the subscribing Lodges that when the selection of first candidates came forward, the W.M. of each should be asked to attend. Brother Salmon agreed with the suggestion. The Provincial Grand Treasurer called attention to the fact that two Lodges—Cadewain (Newtown) and Llanidloes—were not represented at the Provincial Grand Lodge; and, on the motion of Bro. Tuxford, it was decided that the Provincial Grand Secretary should by circular call the attention of the Lodges to the bye-law on the point, and the penalty attendant upon infringement. The Provincial Grand Master read a circular from the Provincial Grand Lodge of Dorset, with reference to the Boys' School, and enclosing certain recommendations. The Deputy Provincial Grand Master proposed the adoption of the same, which was agreed to. On the motion of Bro. Salmon, seconded by Bro. Jones-Morris, a resolution was adopted strongly protesting against any excessive grant being allowed to the Secretary of the Boys' School upon his retirement. The banquet was served at the Corsygedol Hotel.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE SIR DANIEL GOOCH, BART.

THE funeral of the late Sir Daniel Gooch, Bart., of Clewer Park, Windsor, took place on Saturday, the 19th inst., at 12 a.m., the interment being made in Clewer Churchyard. The late Sir Daniel was one of the most remarkable and energetic characters. He was elected Chairman of the Great Western Railway Company in 1866, and has held the post ever since, and it will be remembered that to him is chiefly owing the wonderful development of that large undertaking, for he was mainly instrumental in raising the finances of the Company, from the very low ebb to which they had become reduced, to the magnificent position in which they now stand. Our older readers will remember that the successful completion of the Atlantic Cable was largely owing to his enterprise. Owing to the family desiring the funeral to be of a private nature, it was decided, that the Prov. Grand Lodge should not officially take part in it; but that the Masonic tribute of respect should be paid by the Windsor Castle Lodge (of which he was a subscribing member) summoning a Lodge of Emergency, and attending the interment, accompanied by any Masons of the Province who might wish to attend. Accordingly the W.M. of the Windsor Castle Lodge (Bro. W. G. Nottage) summoned a meeting, and invited all W.M.'s, Wardens and Brethren of the Province to attend. The Lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, and opened in the third degree, when it was "called off," and the Brethren proceeded to the Church. At the close of the burial service the customary sprigs of acacia were cast into the grave. After the funeral the Lodge was "called on," when a vote of condolence from the Lodge was moved by the W.M., seconded by the Senior Past Master, and supported in an eloquent speech by Past Grand Chaplain Simpson, it was carried unanimously, and ordered to be sent to Lady Gooch. Representatives of most of the Lodges in the Province, and several distinguished Freemasons were present, but owing to an unfortunate misunderstanding a paragraph appeared in the daily papers on the day previous to the funeral, stating the Freemasons would not attend; consequently a large number of Masons who had arranged to be present abandoned doing so.

INFLUENCE OF SECRECY.

PROFANES have often spoken disparagingly of Freemasonry, simply because it was a "Secret Society," they taking the ground that secrecy necessarily means dark deeds, or a screen for work that would not bear the light. Masonry is, in one sense, a secret society, but its withdrawal from publicity in nowise condemns it.

> "Full many a gem of purest ray serene
> The dark unfathomed caves of ocean bear."

There is a pure crystal stream whose spring is buried deep in the fastness of Masonic truths and principles, which, like the influence of a pure heart, bubbles and forces its way out through many obstacles, quenching the thirst, and laving the tired, perplexed brain of many a wayfarer. Although the outer door is well guarded, that the world may not penetrate the veil which preserves the sanctity of the inner chamber, still the unbounded influence which emanates from the secret work cannot be estimated from Equator to Poles. The philanthropy of Masonry is a living reality.

The guarding of secrets has, in a great measure, much to do with the success of most, if not all good institutions. What to-day is the foundations of the world's most flourishing government? Is it not the secret society called Home?

> "There where vows are truly plighted,
> There where hearts are so united."

But what would this stronghold of nations be if the home trust was not shielded from the stranger's gaze?

Each member of the family brings his hopes, his ambitions, his joys and his disappointments, and lays them on the home altar, knowing that they are safe from the unsympathetic approach of a stranger, and each individual around that mystic shrine is truer and stronger for sharing that secret, and the incense of the dear home love burns constantly, wafting its perfume out upon mankind. The influence is felt, but the source is hidden deep. The world does not condemn the home because of its secret life, this strength of Church and State. No! The loyalty to home inspires a loyalty to the larger trusts; the private affairs entrusted to the few is secure against all foreign intrusion.

Again, how beautifully the value of a guarded secret is illustrated during the time of war. A vast army of brave men will lie down to rest by the cheerful camp fire, with no fears of surprise from the enemy; one word has been whispered from tent to tent and binds into one; no foe can pass the outer guard; he has the secret countersign, and the ceaseless tread of the sentinel hurries on; the blessed "all's well" brings a sense of rest and safety to the weary soldier, and he sleeps deep and long. A brother walks without, proud and strong with the magnitude of his responsibility; one false act from him, one word spoken to the enemy, death and disaster follows, the plans and secret manœuvres are discovered, and the battle is lost. The sign of a Mason secures him a brother's protection throughout the world, each plighted vow welds together thousands of brave hearts, each remembering he carries the weight of a brother's character; he must guard and shield him from the merciless weapons of the hard, indifferent world. Let the secret work go on, it is the stronghold of our Fraternity. May the silent deed of charity toward a brother strengthen the unity between them—the gift bestowed is sweeter for the world not having known it. The kindly admonition sinks deeper in the heart of an erring one when spoken heart to heart and lip to ear. Let the Lodge be the universal home altar of a Mason, where he may lay bare his heart, and feel secure against the outside world.—The Royal Craftsmen.

THE THEATRES, &c.

Globe.—Miss Loie Fuller, an American actress of some repute, has brought to England a play that has achieved considerable success in the United States, though it is more than doubtful whether it will gain much popularity in this country. It is entitled "Caprice," and is written by Mr. Howard P. Taylor, but it also appears to have been necessary—to what extent we cannot tell—to have it revised by Mr. F. W. Broughton. Certainly, as represented on Tuesday, the piece is loosely constructed and evinces slight knowledge of stage requirements on the part of the author. The story shows the caprice of Jack Henderson, a young artist, who falls in love with Mercy Baxter, an unsophisticated farmer's daughter, and, in spite of the very reasonable objections of his friends, makes her his wife. The inevitable result soon follows; the social defects and uneducated lapses of the wife prove a source of trouble to the husband, until at length, goaded by continual reproaches, Mercy resolves to leave her home for the purpose of educating herself. We are not informed how long a period has elapsed, but in the last act we find Mercy, under an assumed name, playing la grande dame in her father-in-law's house, where her repentant husband recognises her and obtains forgiveness. The piece itself is too much spun out, and could easily be reduced to three acts, though the earlier scenes are decidedly the best, and are those in which Miss Fuller is seen to greater advantage. We hope, however, soon to see her in some other part more capable of displaying her talents. Mr. J. G. Grahame made the most of the rather foolish Jack Henderson, while Mr. Alfred Maltby and Miss Susie Vaughan did their best to instil some humour into the piece. On Tuesday next the play will be preceded by "A Promise," a new comedietta by S. B. Lawrence, in which Miss Harriet Ford will appear.

Drury Lane.—Notwithstanding the doubtful reception accorded by the Press to Mr. Augustus Harris's latest drama, we are glad to be able to record that "The Royal Oak" has resulted in a great success. This is to be accounted for by Mr. Harris having set to work with a will, and while sacrificing much of the original, he has strengthened what remains, and now the piece goes much closer and is most interesting and exciting. The ladies and gentlemen engaged to interpret the piece have worked their parts up, and are now seen to advantage. A splendid tableaux has been added; this represents the King's return, which sends every one home in a happy frame of mind. We feel sure "The Royal Oak" will keep the boards until they are wanted for the annual pantomime, which we hear will be of an exceptionally brilliant character.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked at the Covent Garden Lodge of Instruction, meeting at the Criterion, Piccadilly, on Thursday, the 31st inst. Bros. Joseph Greenway W.M., J. Hemming S.W., Dr. J. Powdrell J.W., George Reynolds W.M. of the mother Lodge (Secretary).

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Weary of Life.—Derangement of the liver is one of the most efficient causes of dangerous diseases, and the most prolific source of those melancholy forebodings which are worse than death itself. A few doses of these noted Pills act magically in dispelling low spirits, and repelling the covert attacks made on the nerves by excessive heat, impure atmosphere, overindulgence, or exhausting excitement. The most shattered constitution may derive benefit from Holloway's Pills, which will regulate disordered action, brace the nerves, increase the energy of the intellectual faculties, and revive the failing memory. By attentively studying the instructions for taking these Pills and explicitly putting them in practice, the most despondingly will soon feel confident of a perfect recovery.

In reference to the consecration of the new Chapter, the Pall Mall Gazette writes as follow :—

The adaptability of Britons is marvellous. That a number of acclimatized Gauls should wish to grapple themselves together with bonds of—Masonic—steel is nothing wonderful, but that an equal number of English "Rulers in the Craft"—or in this case "the Arch"—should be found not merely willing but able to perform the lengthy ceremony of consecrating in the Gallic vernacular "Le Chapitre La France," which the fraternal Frenchmen desired to found "sous l'obédience du Grand Chapitre d'Angleterre," and that these accommodating Masons should be ordinary workaday Britons is really somewhat astonishing. At any rate, with the aforesaid unique object a great gathering of Royal Arch Masons assembled on the 21st instant, in the "Temple Maçonnique," at the Café Royal, when "les tres Excellents Compagnons," Thomas Fenn, Colonel Shadwell Clerke, F. A. Philbrick, Q.C., Sir John Monckton, Frank Richardson, and E. M. Lott, as master of the music, commenced the impressive series of ceremonies which were entirely performed in French, and which culminated in the addition of Chapter No. 2060 to the roll of the Grand Chapter of England, and the installation of Companions Eugène Monteuuis, Henri Bué, and Ernest St. Clair as its first three Principals. Among the many prominent Masons present were Companions Lord Euston, Colonels Haldane, Burney, and A. B. Cook, J. C. Parkinson, P. de L. Long, R. G. Glover, Edward Letchworth, Major Lambert, Captain N. G. Philips, H. D. Sandeman, Rev. E. C. D'Auquier, and T. Robinson, Matier, Saillard, Clutton, and many others. The "Labour" was followed by "Refreshment," and toasts in the good old Masonic manner; and as all these elements were French alike, those who were curious, either in cookery or in accent, had ample field for criticism before this remarkable evening came to an end.

Saint Anne's Lodge, No. 970, held at Looe, has received from the Prov. J.G.W. of Devon (Bro. Rev. T. W. Lemon, M.A.) a framed photo-lithographic portrait of the late Sir Charles Lemon, Bart., Prov. G.M. of Cornwall. The presentation was made on Bro. Lemon's behalf by Bro. J. G. Henwood P.M., at a meeting on Wednesday, the 9th instant.

The SAFEST and most EFFECTUAL CURE for GOUT, RHEUMATISM, and all PAINS in the HEAD, FACE, and LIMBS.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL from the Rev. F. FARVIS, Baptist Minister.

Mr. G. Eade. March 19, 1887.

Dear Sir,—I have many times felt inclined to inform you of the benefit I have received by taking your Gout and Rheumatic Pills. After suffering for some time from Rheumatics and Sciatica, I was advised to use your Pills. I bought a bottle, and when in severe pain and unable to use the limb affected I took a dose. In a few hours after I felt the pain numb better, and after the second dose the pain completely removed and the limb restored to its right use. I thank you, dear sir, for sending forth such a boon for the relief of human suffering.

Yours faithfully,
F. FARVIS,
Baptist Minister.

There are multitudes of people who look upon advertising as a sort of Lottery, and bestow infinitely more thought in the selection of a clerk at £100 a year than in the expenditure of £1000 or two in the same period in advertising. A tithe of the shrewdness displayed in all other branches of their business given to the management of their advertising will be amply repaid. The ADVERTISEMENT AGENT has become an indispensable factor in this matter of publicity, and his mot d'ordre is perfectly unassailable. Would you leave or enter a port without a pilot? Would you commence and prosecute a law suit without a legal adviser? Either of these courses would not be more foolish than rushing into expenses in Advertising without a competent practical and professional adviser. I am at all times happy to render advertisers every assistance in my power, and to give them the benefit of the experience I have gained during the past twenty years as a London advertising agent. My Dear Doctor,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. For a weak stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the liver they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. MORE TRADING ON MASONRY.

WHEN we wrote last week of an application being made for an extension of hours for a country inn, on the occasion of a special Masonic service at the local church, we thought we were referring to as flagrant a case of trading on Freemasonry as was likely to occur, but we have not had to wait many hours for a much stronger example, as the perusal of the copies given below of two circulars, which have been sent to us by a provincial subscriber, will fully demonstrate. It must be remembered that last week we spoke of an outsider endeavouring to profit by a special gathering of Freemasons, now it is a member of the Order whose dealings we have occasion to refer to, and as the brother in question holds a distinguished office in his Chapter he must have had sufficient experience to have learned that his actions are opposed to the principles and teachings of Freemasonry. On this account his actions are much more blameworthy than was the case in the matter referred to last week, and we think some action should be taken by the authorities to put an end to such open trading on Freemasonry, which, if continued, will eventually become a scandal to the Craft.

The correspondent who sends us the circulars refers to our article of last week, and then tells us his attention has been called to the circulars to which we now refer, and which he characterises as "Trading on Freemasonry" with a vengeance. This opinion we fully endorse, and so, we imagine, will every Mason who reads them. For obvious reasons we withhold names and addresses, but in other respects the circulars are as follows :—

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER:

I have sent to your Masonic Address fifty Circulars for distribution amongst the Brethren of your Lodge, and if you will do me the great favour of enclosing one of them to each of your Members, with the next Circular you issue, I shall be exceedingly thankful, and consider you have rendered me a great service, and, at the same time, given your brethren an opportunity of obtaining good and cheap Fish.

If I can do you any similar service, I shall be very pleased to do it.

Trusting you will not think that I am asking too much of you,

I remain, Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

Scribe E., —— Chapter of R.A. Freemasons, No. ——

TELEGRAM ADDRESS:—

——, September 1889.

SIR AND BROTHER:

CHEAP FRESH FISH.

I HAVE visited many Lodges and Provincial Gatherings, and at Refreshments I have often heard the Brethren comment very severely on the enormous price they have had to pay for small quantities of Fish, (not always the freshest) and, knowing that I belonged to the Fish Metropolis of the World, they have asked me if I did not know of any remedy. Now, sir, I have given the matter my fair consideration, and have come to the conclusion that I will do my best to alter to alter the same. I am prepared, upon receipt of a Postal Order for 2/6, to forward you or your friends, by passenger train, (carriage paid) a bass containing over six pounds of Fresh Fish, cleaned and ready for cooking; the same to consist of two of the following sorts: Fresh Cod, Ling, Haddocks, Skate, Plaice, or Smoked Haddocks, (and in the summer months, Halibut) you stating with your order which two sorts you prefer. And should you wish for a large quantity, I will send it at the same ratio; or should you be desirous of opening a deposit account, you can do so.

I am the fourth generation of my family which has been in the fish trade. My Bankers are the ——; and my masonic position you can obtain from the secretary of your lodge.

Yours fraternally,

N.B.—Should you favour me with your orders, please be particular in giving me your name and address distinct; and if any particular station you want it sent to, state the same so as to avoid delay.

Soles and Turbots about three times the above price.
Live Crimped Cod (whole) from 10 to 20 pounds, about double the above price per 6 lbs.

The question that must at once suggest itself to readers of the above circulars is, how long will such instances of direct disregard of Masonic obligations be allowed without comment from the authorities of Grand Lodge? If such wholesale trading on Freemasonry is to pass unnoticed where will it lead us? and what will be the opinion of outsiders into whose hands the circulars may fall. In this particular case the brother may be sincere in his desire to give his fellow Freemasons cheap and wholesome fish, but the method he has adopted of bringing his wares under their notice is so opposed to the proper spirit of Freemasonry—indeed it is in direct opposition to its laws—as to call forth the strongest disapproval and condemnation.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

WE have little to add to what we said last week in our report of the Quarterly Court of this Institution. The "cross purposes" that have prevailed at recent meetings somewhat interfered with the good order that of yore characterised our gatherings. This was evidenced in the matter of the election of Medical Officer. It may be said no definite programme had been laid down as to what course the Provisional Committee should take when their ruling was called into question at the last Monthly Committee meeting, and as a consequence they were only able to hold to their original proposition. They had considered the qualifications of the respective candidates, and having narrowed the subject to a recommendation of one applicant only, any reconsideration that might have altered this decision would have been regarded in many quarters as a stultification of their proceedings. Consequently, as Bro. Bevir put it, it resolved itself into a vote of confidence in the Provisional Committee. As a result Mr. Porter was elected, but it must be admitted that the choice was arrived at more from a desire loyally to support the Provisional Committee, than from a full consideration of the relative qualifications of the candidates who offered themselves for the Medical Officership. This may be considered rather rough upon the other applicants, but under the peculiar circumstances of the case we fail to see that a better course could have been followed.

An important feature in connection with the discussion on the amount of the retiring allowance which should be awarded to Bro. Frederick Binckes was the letter from Bro. Samuel Pope, Q.C., which Bro. Eve read to the meeting, and which was as follows :—

"38 Parliament-street, Westminster, S.W.
"17th October 1889.

"Dear Bro. Eve,—I shall be detained in Lancashire on official duty over 25th inst., and shall therefore be unable to be present at the Quarterly Court of the Boys' School. If I could have been there I should earnestly have supported the resolution of which you have given notice. I have not in any way consulted my colleagues on the Investigation Committee, but so far as my individual opinion is of any consequence, I should desire it to be known that, in arriving at the conclusion that under existing circumstances a change was desirable, I entirely relied on the generosity of the Craft to recognise the undoubted services of Bro. Binckes, and to provide some such means of honourable or voluntary retirement as is contemplated in your resolution. It could answer no good end to express in detail the reasons which induced me to acquiesce in the conclusions unanimously arrived at, but there is nothing in those conclusions or in the Report of the Committee inconsistent with an acknowledgment of the vigour, the pluck, or the success with which Bro. Binckes has served the Institution. I hope your resolution will be overwhelmingly carried. I write this in order that you may make any use of it which, in your absolute discretion, you may think desirable.

Yours truly and fraternally,
(Signed) "SAML. POPE, P.G.D.

"Bro. R. Eve, P.G. Treasurer."

This letter so fully embodies our views that we feel we need not add a word to it.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

THE Quarterly Court of Subscribers to this Institution was held on Saturday, at Freemasons' Tavern, Bro. Horace Brooks Marshall, Past Grand Treasurer, in the chair. Bro. Henry Smith Deputy Provincial Grand Master for West Yorkshire objected to the arrangement of the candidates' names in alphabetical order. Hitherto the much more convenient system had been adopted of placing them according to the seniority of their candidature. He was quite sure the scrutineers of votes would experience great difficulty in the new system, and these brethren should have every facility afforded them. A change ought not to have been made without some good reason. Bro. Hedges, Secretary, read a minute of the General Committee of 26th July, under which the change had been made. On the motion of Bro. Henry Smith, seconded by Bro. Frank Richardson, it was resolved to revert to the old system. Bro. D. D. Mercer, G.P., moved a vote of thanks to Bro. Frank Richardson for his exertions in the case of "Lord Leigh and others v. the Vestry of St. Mary, Battersea," which had preserved the property of the Institution from the encroachments by the vestry. Bro. Richardson had taken a great deal of trouble in the matter, and had succeeded in keeping the vestry back. Bro. James Brett, P.G.P., seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously. Bro. Frank Richardson thanked the brethren very sincerely for the recognition of his poor services to the Institution. They all knew he had his heart there, and what he did was a matter of love to the Institution. The proceedings were quite necessary to be taken. Two or three years ago a Quarterly Court sanctioned an agreement with the vestry as to the making of a road, and the first thing the vestry did, for their own benefit, was to block up the gates of the Institution. He told them they must not go beyond the agreement. There was no power to prevent the vestry from raising the road, but for the encroachments on the Institution's property there was a remedy, and it was enforced. In addition to that, the Institution got £50 from the vestry as compensation for keeping the Institution's road down, and the vestry paid the cost of the legal proceedings. The poll for the election of candidates was then proceeded with ; in due course the result was announced. The list of those successful will be found in our advertisement column. We append the list of those unsuccessful, with the number of votes accorded to each.

which balances are in the Bank of England, Western Branch.

The Committee have also to report that they have received a Memorial from the Mount Moriah Chapter, No. 9, meeting at the Albion Tavern, London, praying to be detached from the Albion Lodge, No. 9, and to be attached to the Middlesex Lodge, No. 143, London, to which all their present members belong. Both Lodges having given their consent, the Committee recommend that the prayer of the Memorial be granted.

The Committee have likewise to report that they have received a Memorial from the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of Victoria, Australia, reporting that they have been regularly established, in March 1889, and asking recognition by the Grand Chapter of England, and that fraternal communication may be established between the two Grand Chapters.

The Committee recommended that inasmuch as the Grand Lodge of Victoria has been duly acknowledged by the Grand Lodge of England, the Grand Chapter of Victoria be also recognised.

Re ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

SIR,—I shall be glad to know under what statute or other powers it is lawful to grant Bro. Binckes a pension of £350 for life, and further, whether it was obligatory that all entitled to vote should receive a notice of the meeting on the 25th inst. I may mention that I know several brethren who received an official notice, whereas others, myself included, did not.

In my opinion the granting of a pension to Bro. Binckes was a great mistake, and if it could by legal means be upset the necessary steps should be taken.

Yours faithfully,
L. S. FONTAINE,
Life Governor R.M.I.B.

237 Goldhawk Road, 26th October 1889.

[Doubtless some of our brethren, who are learned in the law, will comply with our correspondent's request. We would remind him, however, that he has not enclosed the "fee." For ourselves, we have not yet been "called to the bar," but Bro. Fountaine will find precedence for such grants if he consults the records of this and similar institutions. We also recommend to his serious perusal the text of a letter from Bro. Samuel Pope, Q.C., one of the members of the Inquiry Commission; this letter h will find on page 274 of our present issue.—ED. F. C.]

Bro. Greey has been appointed Secretary to the Lily Lodge of Instruction, at the Greyhound Hotel, Richmond, in place of Bro. Austin, who, after having served in the office for seven years has been promoted to the dignity of Deputy Preceptor.

We beg to remind our readers that the Dramatic performance in aid of the Benevolent and Grant Fund of the "Old Masonians," will take place at the St. George's Hall, Langham Place, this (Saturday) evening. A very interesting gathering is anticipated, many friends of our "Old Boys" having signified their intention to be present. The performance will commence at 7·30.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

ROYAL GLOUCESTER LODGE, No. 130.

THERE was a large gathering of brethren at the Masonic Hall, Southampton, on Thursday, the 10th ult., on the occasion of a visit of the Provincial Grand Master of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight, Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P., and the Provincial Grand Officers. The Provincial Grand Master was accompanied by his Deputy, Bro. J. E. Le Feuvre, and Bros. the Rev. Dr. Burton Prov. Grand Chaplain, E. Goble Prov. Grand Secretary, J. Gieve Prov. Grand Treasurer, C. G. Beaumont Prov. Grand Registrar, G. Davies Prov. Grand Senior Deacon, Sharland (W.M. 76) Prov. Grand A.P., and J. D. Blackman Prov. Grand Steward, many Past Provincial Officers being also in attendance. The work of the Lodge was conducted by the W.M., Bro. J. Fewings, and included the first and second lectures, which were well given by the W.M. and Bro. J. Cole Secretary. An excellent banquet was afterwards served by Bro. Biggs, one feature connected with which was a very quaint programme worded in old English, printed in old-faced type. In responding for Grand Lodge Officers, Bro. E. Goble announced that Prov. Grand Chapter would meet in Southampton in February next. The health of the Prov. Grand Master was cordially drank, and, in responding, Bro. Beach justified the existence of the Order on several grounds, and referred to the rapid progress it was making, not only in England, but throughout all parts of the British Empire. The Deputy Provincial Grand Master, in responding for Prov. Grand Officers, said the Province numbered nearly 50 Lodges. It had not added to its number during the past year, but not much regret could be felt at that, because there was hardly a place in the Province which had not a Lodge well within reach. Speaking of the Royal Gloucester Lodge, he reminded the brethren of the successful celebration of the Centenary in 1872, under the old warrant. The Lodge possessed two warrants, the second being granted under the modern Constitution in 1792. He hinted it was within the minds of the Past Masters of the Lodge to arrange if possible to hold another centenary celebration in 1892, and if it should be decided to hold it an endeavour would be made to secure the presence of Masons very high in office. The brethren would remember that in 1872 Lord Ripon, then Grand Master of England, and his Officers visited the Lodge. The Rev. Dr. Burton Prov. Grand Chaplain also responded. The health of Bro. Fewings was proposed by the Prov. Grand Master, and cordially honoured. Several other toasts were given.

ROYAL CLARENCE LODGE, No. 271.

THE Centenary Festival was celebrated on the 18th ult., at the Royal Pavilion, Brighton. The ceremonies, which had been admirably arranged by the W.M. Bro. T. Billing and the Past Masters, were carried out with the greatest success. While the brethren (not Grand or Provincial Grand Officers) were assembling in the Music Room, introductory organ solos were rendered in able style by Bro. Dr. A. King P.P.G.O. P.M., and Bro. Dr. F. J. Sawyer Prov. Grand Organist. The Lodge was opened by W.M. Bro. T. Billing, who was supported by the following Officers, viz.:—Bros. F. C. Parsons S.W., Rev. L. Dowdall J.W., T. Wilkinson Treasurer, C. J. Corder Secretary, H. Balean S.D., D. M. Ross J.D., G. Campbell D.C., C. A. Kendall I.G., Riviere Steward, and H. Hughes Tyler. The following Past Masters were also present, viz.:—Bros. W. Kuhe, C. J. Pocock, W. H. Hallett, Sir C. Raymond Bunch, Bart., T. Wilkinson, T. C. Woodman, A. Kirg, J. Dennant, G. Campbell, and H. Laugton. The hymn, "O God, our help in ages past," having been sung, the Secretary, Bro. C. J. Corder, read the Centenary Warrant. The W.M., in a few words, gave a hearty welcome to the assembled brethren. Bro. J. Dennant next read the history of the Lodge, which he had carefully prepared from the available minutes of the Lodge recorded during the past century. The history proved highly interesting, and, among many other local events, referred to the laying of the foundation stones of St. Peter's Church, the London-road Viaduct, Brighton, the Adelaide Wing, County Hospital, the Norfolk Bridge, Shoreham, with Masonic honours by the Royal Clarence Lodge. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Brother Dennant for his excellent compilation. Bro. J. Puttick followed with a short address. A very impressive rendering of the anthem, "Behold how good and joyful," was given by Bros. J. A. Brown, E. A. Dalzell, James Kift, and C. Ackerman. Bro. V. P. Freeman was unanimously elected an Honorary member of the Lodge. The ceremony having concluded the Lodge was duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Banqueting Room, where they sat down to an elegant banquet, supplied by Bro. D. Mutton, whose catering gave universal satisfaction. The W.M. presided. The post prandial proceedings were of an enthusiastic character. The W.M. opened the toast list with the Queen and the Craft, briefly remarking that her Majesty had many virtues, and the Craft no vices. He next proposed the Most W. Brother H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Grand Master of England. Freemasons, he said, were proud in having the Prince of Wales as their Grand Master, and were grateful to him for devoting so much of his time to Freemasonry. Bro. C. J. Pocock then gave the toast of the Officers of Grand Lodge, Present and Past. The Officers of Grand Lodge, he said, fully deserved their high preferment on account of their past services in the Craft. Their interest did not, however, cease on their appointment. They still worked actively in Freemasonry. He gracefully alluded to the honour conferred upon the Lodge by the attendance of Bro. Parkinson and other Grand Officers that day, and to the late Bros. J. H. Scott and Gerard Ford and other members of the Royal Clarence, who had been promoted to Grand Lodge honours. Bro. J. Parkinson, in responding, said nothing was more interesting in the Craft than the celebration of Centenary Festivals. It had been a source of pleasure to him to find the Royal Clarence Lodge prosperous and strong, and to see that the brethren, amidst other interchanges of fraternal sentiments, upheld the traditions of the Craft and the dignity of their Lodge. Bro. Trollope also acknowledged the toast, and, congratulating the W.M. on the success of the afternoon and evening, alluded to the pleasure he had experienced in visiting the late Bro. J. H. Scott. Thanking the Royal Clarence brethren for their hospitality, he expressed the hope that their Lodge would again do great and useful work in the next century. The W.M. proposed the Right W. Bro. the Duke of Connaught, Provincial Grand Master. Coming nearer home, he said, all present knew full well the interest the Duke of Connaught took in the Craft, and how well he performed the ceremonies of his high office. Unfortunately for the Province H.R.H. had been called away to India, where he took no less an interest in the Craft in that great Empire. He had been two years away, and they all looked forward to the early part of next year, when they hoped to see him once more amongst them. He had not only sent letters through his Secretary, but had, himself, written to their late Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Brother Ford, asking for information respecting the Sussex Province. They also wished him health and happiness and a speedy return to his native land. Bro. G. Campbell P.M. proposed the W. Bro. the Right Hon. Sir W. T. Marriott, M.P., Q.C., P.S.G.W., and the Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge, Present and Past. It was pleasing, he said, to the brethren of the Royal Clarence Lodge to see present so large a gathering of distinguished Officers of Grand Lodge and Provincial Grand Lodge. The Royal Clarence Lodge was closely identified with the Provincial Grand Lodge, for the offices of Provincial Grand Master and Deputy Provincial Grand Master had been held by brethren of the Lodge. He especially eulogised the efforts of their late Bro. Gavin E. Pocock in Freemasonry, that brother having done more than any other to resuscitate the Provincial Grand Lodge. By the kindness of his esteemed son, Bro. C. J. Pocock, the Lodge had been presented with the Cup which had been presented to him (Bro. Gavin E. Pocock) by the brethren of the Province. In fitting and eloquent terms he referred to the eminent services of the late Bros. Sir W. W. Burrell, J. H. Scott, and Gerard Ford. He regretted that Bro. Sir W. T. Marriott had been called away from their gathering, and coupled the toast with the name of Bro. V. P. Freeman. The latter, in responding, said that the Officers, deprived of their leading directors, would all unite in promoting the interests of the Province. Bro. Edmund Yates was cordially received on rising to propose the Worshipful Master. He said all present would realise his feelings when he said how happy he felt after the week's heavy work and labour to gain a little rest, and his pleasure in gliding from the stormy seas of controversy to the peaceful haven of the Royal Clarence Lodge. Leaving the public platform and diversities of opinion behind, he stood before them confident that there would be no divergence from his own opinions. No one would ask him pressing questions as to why he left his house, or whether he lived in the top room of a club. The term "boy" could not be adapted to him, and all present would see that the hair on his head was visible. He had great pleasure, he said, in heartily proposing the Worshipful Master. He had known Brother Billing for many years, and, alluding to the past services of the late Bro. J. H. Scott, said no more fitting successor to that distinguished brother could be found than their W.M. Brother Billing was a hard-working Mason, and in no point was he deficient. He was a jolly good fellow, perfectly sound and sensible, with no fads, one of the most courteous of men, and always accessible. They had all seen how admirably he had discharged his duties that day, and he felt that the brethren of the Lodge were honoured in having him as their Worshipful Master. Bro. T. Billing, in rising to respond, was enthusiastically received. He said "out of the heart the mouth speaketh," but their kind reception had almost taken all words from him. He thanked Bro. Yates for the kind and flattering manner in which he had spoken of him, and the brethren for the cordial reception they had given to the toast. He deeply felt the honour of being their W.M. for the second time. The honour had not arisen from any self-seeking on his part, and he felt grateful to the brethren for their confidence in him. The Royal Clarence Lodge was one of the oldest and most influential in the Province, and he felt additional pride in following such worthy Masons as those alluded to by Bro. Campbell. He gracefully alluded to the zeal and efficiency of their late Bro. Gerard Ford. His recent loss would remind them all that "Man proposes, but the Great Architect of the Universe disposes. Concluding his response, he said he should strive earnestly to carry out his duties to the satisfaction of the brethren, that when weighed in the balance he trusted he should not be found wanting. Bro. W. Kuhe, in his customary facetious manner, proposed the Visitors. Bros. W. C. Morrison and W. Sendall responded, each speaking in high terms of the hospitality extended to them by the Royal Clarence Lodge. Bro. Parkinson proposed Success to the Royal Clarence Lodge. Bro. T. Billing W.M. responded, and thanked those present for assisting in the celebration of the Lodge Centenary. for 27 years the Grand Lodge of Sussex, he said, had lapsed, and the Royal Clarence Lodge was called upon to undertake its duties. It was mainly owing to their late Bro. Gavin E. Pocock that the Provincial Grand Lodge was revived. The cup presented to that distinguished brother had recently been presented to the Lodge by his son, Bro. C. J. Pocock, as a loving cup. With so large a gathering before him the cup could not then be passed round, but he himself would drink to them all a hearty welcome to the Royal Clarence. He trusted the Lodge would continue to prosper, that it would be happy in the choice of it members, and ever uphold its present high standard of honour and efficiency. The W.M. proposed the Worshipful Masters of the Province of Sussex, to which Bro. E. S. Medcalf responded. Bro. L. Dowdall gave Past Masters, which Bro. C. J. Corder acknowledged, with allusions to his own connection with the Lodge for a third of a century, and referred to the work of the late Bros. Gavin, E. Pocock and J. H. Scott. The W.M. proposed the Officers, to which Bros. F. C. Parson S.W., and C. A. Kendall I.G. replied. The Tyler's toast completed the very successful and enjoyable evening

The musical programme, carried out under the direction of Bros. Dr. A. King and Dr. F. J. Sawyer proved most enjoyable. The vocalists engaged were Madame Antoinette Luck, Miss Minnie Freeman, and Bros. J. A. Brown, Edward Dalzell, Edward Plater, and C. Ackerman, who elicited warm applause by the admirable manner in which they gave their songs and glees, the latter, for the male voices, being an especially pleasing feature. Bro. Kuhe delighted the brethren with a pianoforte solo. The duties of accompanist were admirably carried by Bro. W. N. Roe.

COMBERMERE LODGE, No. 605.

AT the regular meeting, held at the Queen's Hotel, Birkenhead, on the 17th ult., a well deserved honour, was paid by the attendance of the Provincial Grand Master of Cheshire, Bro. Lord Egerton of Tatton, accompanied by Bros. the Hon. Allan Egerton P.P.G.S.W., R. Newhouse P.G.S., S. W. Ramsden P.G.S.D., J. Salmon P.M. 421, T. C. Thorburn P.P.G.S.W., J. Lete 1289, H. Holbrooke P.M., P. M'Nermy P.M., J. Watt I.G., J. Leach S.S., J. Woodcock J.S., R. Crockett P.M., R. Powell, J. Adam, &c. On behalf of the Lodge Bro. M'Nermy moved a resolution thanking his lordship for his most gracious visit that evening, when the Provincial Grand Master congratulated the Lodge on its members, and in particular the working. Never had he seen it performed in such a manner. It was creditable to Br. P. Duff and his Officers. He wished them every success. Bro. Duff initiated Messrs. Southen and R. M. Smith. Afterwards the brethren dined together in the Lodge-room, under the chairmanship of Bro. Duff, when the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and responded to. The proceedings were agreeably varied by an excellent selection of music, rendered by Bros. G. Barton, A. Moorhouse, A. Atkinson, J. Leach, G. Mason, A. Birkett &c.

YARBOROUGH LODGE, No. 811.

THE annual installation meeting took place in the Royal Pavilion, Brighton, on Saturday the 19th ult. There was a large gathering of brethren of the Lodge and distinguished visitors, great interest being taken in the installation as W.M. of Bro. Pocock, the ceremony being most ably performed by that Past Master of Masonic ritual Bro. T. Fenn. Bro. C. J. Pocock having been duly installed, appointed the following Officers for the ensuing year, and those present were invested with the insignia of their respective offices, viz.:—Bros. J. Hallett S.W., J. W. H. Winter-Foster J.W., Jacobs Chaplain, H. Abbey Treasurer, De Paris Secretary, E. G. Whittle S.D., Turton J.D., F. Holford D.C., A. Poole Organist, Dowson I.G., and E. J. Scott Steward. On the closing of the Lodge the brethren adjourned to the Banqueting Room, where they sat down to an excellent banquet supplied by Bro. E. Booth, whose catering was admirable.

WILLIAMSON LODGE, No. 949.

THE meeting held on the 21st ult., in the Masonic Hall, North Bridge Street, Monkwearmouth, was quite an exceptional gathering, the meeting being the first since the Provincial Grand Lodge of Durham, held at Sunderland last month, at which the Senior P.M. of the Lodge, Bro. R. W. Halfnight, was elected as Grand Treasurer of the Province, and the present W.M. of the Lodge, Bro. George Washington Bain, was appointed Grand Registrar of the Province of Durham. The attendance on the present occasion was a very large one. After the regular business of the meeting, the proceedings at the recent meeting of Provincial Grand Lodge and the honour conferred upon Bros. Halfnight and Bain, and thus upon the Williamson Lodge, was made the subject of a resolution that a suitable minute be entered upon the Lodge records, which was proposed by Bro. F. Maddison, seconded by Bro. Wm. Liddell, and accordingly adopted. The fact that a number of the principal Provincial Officers of the Province of Northumberland were present at the recent meeting was also included in the resolution.

SINCERITY LODGE, No. 1019.

ON Wednesday, the 16th ult., a highly interesting and instructive lecture was given by Bro. Dr. Spark P.M. 289, to a large gathering of Freemasons in the above Lodge, of which Bro. William Ash is the Worshipful Master. The illustrations, which comprised many beautiful compositions by brethren of the "mystic tie"—Mozart, Haydn, Mendelssohn, Franz, Henry Smart, and the lecturer himself, were admirably rendered by Bros. Blagbro, Scarth, Flower, Hardman, G. Carbeit, and Dunnill, the latter of whom presided at the organ. The lecture was one of deep interest to those Masons who feel the importance of a good "musical ritual" in the various degrees, and it received the cordial approval of all the brethren present (among whom were many of the leaders of the Craft in West Yorkshire), and we hope to see Brother Dr. Spark's "Liber Musicus," from which the whole of the musical illustrations were taken, more generally appreciated and adopted.

ALEXANDRA PALACE LODGE, No. 1541.

THE greatly discussed question as to the admission of ladies to Masonic festivities was very pleasantly solved last Saturday, when the brethren of the above Lodge, accompanied by their wives, sisters, and sweethearts, assembled at the Holborn Viaduct Hotel, and spent a most enjoyable evening. The Lodge was previously opened for business in the afternoon, when the W.M. Bro. E. Wilding presided, and was assisted by Bros. Snelling I.P.M., H. H. Shirley S.W., J. E. Richardson J.W., Larchin P.M. Treasurer, J. R. Stacey P.M. Secretary, W. Newton S.D., Walter Braly J.D., Howard Sammons D.C., Lansdown I.G., Charles Browning Organist, and Bros. R. J. Ward P.M., E. Kearney P.M., Felix Weiss P.M., with Bros. W. Gibson, Percy Gibson, J. Gardner, H. Toovey, J. Harding, J. W. Brockman, C. W. Mayo, E. Bryant, F. J. Steel, John Harding, Orlton Cooper, &c., &c. Mr. George Benjamin Crook, a candidate for the privileges of Freemasonry, having been duly balloted for and approved, was initiated by the W.M. in a highly impressive manner, and subsequently took his seat in the Lodge. Bros. Harris, Tustin, and Immisch, having answered the usual questions, were raised to the sublime degree, the ceremony being likewise performed by Bro. Wilding. The balance sheets for the Lodge and the Benevolent Fund were audited and passed. The business being thus satisfactorily concluded, the Lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned. The guests were received upon arrival by a number of willing Stewards, who conducted them to the reception room, where they were duly presented to the Worshipful Master by Bro. J. R. Stacey, and soon after six o'clock proceeded to the banquet room, where dinner was served. The few Loyal and Masonic toasts were supplemented by that of the Ladies, proposed by the W.M. and humorously responded to by the Brother Initiate. A capital concert followed, in which the family of Bro. R. J. Ward took principal part, and proved themselves proficient artistes. The company afterwards adjourned to the ball-room, when dancing was commenced, to the great enjoyment of the fair sex, all of whom must have coincided with the opinion expressed by one of their number, who said that, "Really, Masonry was very jolly." We must also congratulate the W.M. and the Lodge generally on the success of their venture, for everything passed off without the slightest hitch.

WEST MIDDLESEX LODGE, No. 1612.

Squires J.D. 1743, J. C. Toy 172, F. G. Hambleton 1319, G. F. Hearne 733, E. Hopgood 946, E. Delevante, H. Delevante, and H. Mickleburgh 2021, C. Dairy P.M. 141, C. Lambert S.W., and G. Lambert P.G.S.B. 198, M. J. Jessop W.M. 2265, A. Turner W.M. 1894, H. Thomas, W. H. Wills, and J. J. Thomas I.P.M. 753, A. R. W. Pontes P.M. 1901, W. Kirkland Treasurer 1949, H. D. Aslett W.M. 1892, Alex. Jones W.M. 2021. The Lodge was opened in the usual form, and after two candidates had been initated by Bro. E. C. Porter, the ceremony of installing Bro. George Coop was proceeded with, after which Bro. Coop appointed his Officers:—Bros. E. C. Porter I.P.M., John Wells S.W., A. Pooley J.W., E. J. Acworth P.M. Treasurer, A. J. Burr P.M. Secretary, G. Harper Assistant Secretary, E. P. Bellerby jun. S.D., E. T. Brown J.D., J. Fryers D.C., J. Clarke A.D.C., C. W. Cunningham I.G., H. S. Timpson Steward, S. C. Quinion Assistant Steward. The addresses were impressively rendered by Bro. H. Kasner. A sum of ten guineas was voted to the friends of a deceased brother, from the Benevolent Fund, and then Lodge was closed. The banquet was given in the Prince's Hall, and was admirably served by Bro. E. T. Brown, of the Broadway, Ealing. In proposing the first toast, that of the Queen, the W.M. said the Lodge was to be congratulated on now having a suitable place in which to hold its meetings. After years of fitful wanderings they could say they had found a haven of rest; this might be looked upon as one of the many happy results of the truly great and prosperous rule of the gracious lady who had for over fifty years presided over the destinies of this land. A period when Civilisation, the Arts and Sciences had made greater progress than in any similar epoch. After the toast of the M.W. the Grand Master had been effectively given and heartily and loyally responded to by the brethren, the toast of the Pro Grand Master the Earl of Carnarvon, the Deputy Grand Master the Earl of Lathom, and the rest of the Grand Officers Present and Past was given, coupled with the name of W. Bro. G. Lambert P.G.S.B. In reply, Bro. Lambert thanked the brethren for the great cordiality with which they had received the toast, in response to the kindly, not to say eloquent, remarks which the W.M. had been pleased to make respecting the great work necessarily to be gone through in order to have the business of this great Order conducted on proper business lines. Personally he could truly state that from the M.W. the Grand Master down to the latest appointed Grand Officer, each was actuated with one idea—that was to discharge whatever duties devolved upon them with freedom, fervency, and zeal. Bro. George Coop, their W.M., was well known to him (Bro. Lambert) as a volunteer of over 20 years' standing, and a zealous worker in whatever would conduce to the good of the Craft, or to any Lodge in which he might be a member. He ventured to prophecy a prosperous year during the time Brother Coop presided over their Lodge. Bro. E. C. Porter gave the health of the Worshipful Master, a toast which was received with considerable enthusiasm. Since the Worshipful Master had been initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry he had worked hard, distinguished himself in the Craft, and gained many honours. He was now P.M. of two other Lodges, and they had, therefore, every reason to be proud of their Worshipful Master. In turning over the government of the Lodge to Bro. Coop, which he (the speaker) did with much pleasure, knowing they would have a good Master, he with all his heart wished him a bright and prosperous year of office. The W.M. said although it was true he was a Past Master of two other Lodges, he felt that the greatest honour he had had conferred in Masonry was that of being elected Master of his mother Lodge. The brethren might depend that he would do his best to carry out his duties during the ensuing twelve months. The toast of the Past Masters and Installing Officer was next given, and in submitting it, the W.M. congratulated the Lodge on the number of P.M.'s it contained. Personally, he was exceedingly gratified that Bro. Beasley had postponed a visit to the country in order to be present. Bro. Kasner, than whom no wiser, more zealous, or active brother existed, had done good service as Treasurer and Installing Officer. Bro. Burr, as Secretary, had also done valuable work, and no books or accounts could be better kept or in better order than the books of this Lodge. Bro. Acworth, also an initiate of this Lodge, could be heartily congratulated upon the honours he had attained, as no brother had worked harder or deserved them better. And whether it was in Kent or Essex, or the Barnato Lodge, or, in fact, any Lodge, their Bro. Treasurer could not be received with greater heartiness or be held in higher esteem and respect than in the West Middlesex. Bro. Wright was the right man in the right place; the excellency and carefulness of his working as an Officer and Master all must acknowledge. Last, but not least there was their I.P.M. Bro. Porter, who had now completed a most successful year. Whether in Lodge of Instruction or in Lodge itself, his work was always ably and carefully rendered. As one who had worked up with Bro. Porter to the chair, it afforded him (Bro. Coop) the greatest possible pleasure to present him, on behalf of the Lodge, with a Past Master's jewel, as a token of the esteem and friendship felt by every member. Might Bro. Porter be spared many years to wear the jewel of the West Middlesex Lodge with pleasure to himself and gratification to all its members. Bro. E. C. Porter Immediate Past Master responded, and thanked the brethren for the manner in which the toast had been received. It was most gratifying to him to know that he had discharged the duties of the office with satisfaction to the Lodge. He took that opportunity of thanking the Officers for the able assistance they had rendered him. He should always value the handsome jewel presented that night as a mark of the esteem of many friends, and he trusted he might be spared for many years to wear it and to be useful to the Lodge, whose interests he should always have at heart. Bros. Beasley, Kasner, Wright, Fisher, Acworth, and Burr also responded in suitable terms. In proposing the Initiates the W.M. remarked that they had that evening enrolled two excellent initiates, who, he trusted, would eventually succeed to the distinguished position of W.M. Both brethren suitably replied. The W.M. expressed their pleasure that they had with them a goodly number of visitors, to all of whom he extended a cordial welcome. He coupled with this toast the names of Bros. Jessop, W. H. Wills, J. J. Thomas and Alex. Jones. The Treasurer and Secretary was the next toast. In response, Bro. Acworth thanked the Lodge for trusting him with the onerous duty of taking care of their funds, and said so long as he occupied the position assigned to him he hoped to give satisfaction, and to retain the confidence and respect of the brethren. Brother Burr also replied, and observed that so long as the brethren appreciated his efforts he should take great pleasure in the discharge of the duties devolving upon him. In complimenting the Officers of the Lodge, the W.M. remarked that without the support of good Officers he could not satisfactorily carry on his duties. Bros. Wells, Pooley, Bellerby, E. T. Brown, Cunningham, Fryers, Clarke, Timpson, and Quinion replied. During the evening an excellent programme of music, arranged by the Bros. Delavante, was contributed: Bros. May, Rowe, T. S. Hanson, L. S. Guy, and Mr. H. Meckleburgh assisting.

JOSHUA NUNN LODGE, No. 2154.

ON Tuesday evening, the 15th ult., the installation meeting was held at Halstead, when Bro. J. J. Cavill was installed as W.M. for the ensuing year, the ceremony being ably performed by Bro. Vero. W. Taylor. At the conclusion of the ceremony the following were appointed Officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. Mark Gentry I.P.M., R. G. Kellett S.W., George Copus J.W., Mark Gentry Treasurer, E. H. Inman Secretary, Harris Hills S.D., Z. Hunt J.D., Woodward D.C., Bromley I.G., Woodward Steward, Pendle Tyler. A vote of thanks was unanimously passed to Bro. Vero Taylor for his kindness in attending and performing the ceremony, especially as he was suffering from a fractured rib. A handsome Past Master's jewel was presented to the outgoing Master (Bro. Mark Gentry) who, in acknowledging it, said, as a Founder and resident in the district, he took a deep interest in the Joshua Nunn Lodge, and was pleased to do all he could for its welfare. On the motion of Bro. Mark Gentry, Bro. Zach Hunt was unanimously elected to represent the Lodge on the Essex Provincial Charity Committee, and a suggestion was made that he should go up as a Steward to one of the Festivals during the coming year. Between 20 and 30 brethren dined together, at the George Hotel, Halstead, a splendid repast being well served by the host, Mr. Turnell. The Visitors present included Bros. T. J. Ralling P.G.A.D.C. Prov. G. Secretary Essex, J. F. Hills P.P.G.W. Suffolk, M. L. Sanders P.M. and Secretary 650, J. Fuller P.M. 1312, W. Lake W.M. 1312, J. W. Cass 1312, &c.

WEST HAM ABBEY LODGE, No. 2291.

ON Thursday, the 24th ult., the members of this Lodge gave a ball at the Town Hall, Stratford, in aid of the West Ham Hospital, at which about 200 ladies and gentlemen were present. The arrangements were under the control of a committee, of which Bro. W. G. Norman was the Hon. Secretary, and it is due to the care and attention of the committee that the ball was so eminently successful. The Officers of the Lodge are—Bros. James Boulton W.M., Geo. Hay S.W., A. Govier J.W., C. W. Carrell I.P.M., W. E. Purdue Treasurer, F. C. D. Fenn Secretary, M. Gentry S.D., E. Triggs I.G., and A. Reed D.C. The following gentlemen acted as Masters of the Ceremonies:—Bros. E. Bare, J. Byford, C. W. Carrell, W. Jones, C. B. Riche, T. Ringrose, and E. Triggs. There was a spirited programme of dances, and as the brethren wore their Craft and Royal Arch clothing, the room presented a very gay and animated appearance. The company included among others the following ladies and gentlemen:—The Mayor (Alderman R. L. Curtis), Alderman Geo. Rivett, Alderman R. Fielder and Miss Fielder, Alderman H. Worland, Alderman H. Barry, Alderman Geo. Hay and Mrs. Hay, Miss Hay, Councillor and Mrs. Kidd, Councillor and Mrs. Govier, Councillor and Mrs. Young, Councillor and Mrs. Mansfield, Councillor Withers, Councillor Goodchild, &c. Mr. J. W. Youen's band was engaged.

Joppa Lodge of Instruction, No. 188.—The meetings of this Lodge of Instruction were resumed at the Manchester Hotel, Aldersgate-street, E.C., on the 29th ult., Bro. Emanuel P.M. 205 was in the chair. Shoesmith; also a number of other brethren. Lodge was opened in due form and the minutes of last meeting read and confirmed. Bro. Corper offered himself as a candidate and was asked the usual questions. Lodge was opened in the third degree, and the W.M. rehearsed the ceremony of raising. Lodge was closed in the third and second degrees, and Bro. L. A. Da Costa was elected W.M. for the ensuing week. After routine business Lodge was closed and adjourned until the following Monday evening.

THE THEATRES, &c.

Nineteenth Century Art Society.—For general quality, this exhibition is above the average. The landscapes are, of course, to the fore, and the one occupying the post of honour, "The First Snow on Loch-na-Gar," by S. J. Barnes, of Birmingham (131), is a powerful work, the glinting rays through the broken clouds and the brown heather are charmingly done. "Eton College" (100), by Mr. Robert Gallon is a conscientious work, and Mr Henry Cheadle's "The Severn, near Bewdley," (212) is an admirable gem. "Harvest Time, near Billingshurst, Sussex," (228), is a clever piece of corn painting; the sky is not so good; and "On a Pass 'twixt Lake and Wood" (64), by Hamilton Marr, A.R.C.A., is a fine atmospheric study. Amongst the sea pictures, "A Breezy Afternoon," (270), by Frederick James Aldridge, is to be commended for its capitally painted sea and good drawing of the vessels, and "Mussel Gathering," (54), by G. A. Williams, is a fine rugged bit of work. Mr. A. Leicester Barroughs, a rising young portrait painter, sends only a small work, of a very picturesque "Village Smithy" (93) which is quite a little Dutch picture, in the style of the old masters, for its breadth and detail from the anvil to the smallest misty nail. Of animal pictures there are several very pretty and humorous ones, and the flower pictures are good, but the best is "Unity is strength" (80), by J. Fitz-Marshall—a very pretty conceit and highly finished: it consists of a bronze vase, containing roses, thistle and shamrock—standing on a union jack. Our space will not permit us to note the principal contents of the water colour room, which are well worth inspection, but those of Mr Edward Jennings (301) "Corner of Wych Street, Drury Lane," and Mr. James Loxham Browne (302) "Glen Almond, Perthshire," deserve special attention.

In order to meet the convenience of a large number of patrons resident in the suburbs, (and by special desire), the management of the Alhambra has arranged to alter the times of performance of the two ballets. Accordingly, on and after Monday, the 4th instant, "Our Army and Navy" ballet will commence at 8·30 o'clock, and "Astrea" will be presented at 10·20.

The Wednesday matinées of "Sweet Lavender," at Terry's, are so successful that they will be continued in addition to the usual Saturday ones throughout the year. This will make eight performances per week.

The members of the Benevolence Lodge, No. 1168, have shown their appreciation of the services of Bro. W. S. Gillard P.M., as Treasurer of the Lodge, by presenting him with a Grand Lodge suit of clothing, Bro. A. P. Irwin making the presentation.

PROV. GRAND LODGE OF SUSSEX.

THE annual Provincial Grand Lodge meeting of Sussex was held on Wednesday, the 23rd ult., at the Royal Pavilion, Brighton. The Deputy Provincial Grand M. Master (Bro. Charles J. Smith) presided, and was supported by the following officers, viz.: Bros. Rev. W. A. Tooth Prov. G. Chaplain, H. W. G. Abell Prov. M.O, S. R. Legg Prov. G. Treasurer, J. C. Buckwell Prov. G. R. of M, J. P. Slingsby Roberts Prov. G. Secretary, J. Belcher Prov. G. D. of C., J. J. Abell Prov. G. Assist. D. of C., C. H. Haine Prov. G.I.G., J. Adames, W. E. Morrison, and J. T. Musson Prov. G. Stewards, and

H. H. Hughes Prov. G. Tyler. The following were also present, viz.:—Bros. C. F. Matier Grand Secretary, R. Berridge Grand Director of Ceremonies, T. Trollope P.P.G.M., R. Pidcock P.P.G.R., Seymour Burrows P.P.G. Secretary, A. F. Lamette, R. Willard, C. Lewis, W. Welling, G. Cole, G. Holman, J. Ridge, C. F. Goode, Tomes, Wright, Wickham, Fitch, and Bullock. On the motion of Bro. T. Trollope, seconded by Bro. C. J. Smith, it was resolved that a letter of condolence should be sent to the widow of the late Bro. Gerard Ford. Bro. H. W. G. Abell, nominated Bro. H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught to the post of Provincial Grand Master, and the proposition was received with acclamation. On behalf of the brethren, Bro. T. Trollope presented Brother C. J. Smith (who, but for the lamented death of the late Bro. Gerard Ford, would have retired from office) with a gold jewel, in appreciation of the admirable manner in which he had carried out the duties of Deputy Provincial Grand M. Master during the last six years. The jewel bore the following inscription :—

"Presented, with fraternal good wishes, to Bro. Charles John Smith, Deputy Provincial Grand Master, 1883-1889, by brethren in Sussex."

Bro. Trollope bore testimony to the energy with which Bro. Smith had presided over the Province in the absence of the Provincial Grand Mark Master, Bro. Lord Arthur Hill, M.P. Bro. C. J. Smith made a suitable response, thanking the brethren for their mark of confidence. A jewel had also been subscribed for by the brethren for presentation to Bro. Lord Arthur Hill. The Provincial Grand Lodge having been closed, the brethren adjourned to Bro. E. Booth's restaurant, East-street, and in the private dining-room, admirably adapted to the purpose, sat down to an excellent banquet, under the presidency of Bro. C. J. Smith. The customary loyal toasts having been duly honoured, the Chairman proposed the Past Grand Mark Masters and the Officers of Grand Lodge Present and Past. The Past Grand Officers, he said, fully merited the gratitude and encomiums of all Mark Master Masons. He expressed the pleasure he felt that the gathering was honoured by the presence of the Grand Secretary and the Grand Director of Ceremonies, and eulogised those brethren for the energetic and zealous manner in which they had promulgated the principles of Mark Masonry. Bro. Matier, in responding, thanked Brother Smith for the kind and eloquent terms in which he had proposed the toast. The duties of the Grand Officers were, he said, onerous and honourable. They all worked with one thought—the consolidation of the Order and the success of Mark Masonry. Under the Duke of Connaught the Province would, he believed, make great and prosperous strides in Mark Masonry. Bro. Berridge also responded, remarking that for fourteen years he had assisted Bro. Matier in the consecration of Lodges, and was pleased to say that all the Grand Lodge Officers worked harmoniously together. Bro. Matier then proposed the R.W. Prov. G.M.M., Bro. Lord Arthur Hill; the W. Deputy Prov. G.M.M., Bro. C. J. Smith; and the Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge Present and Past. All present knew, he said, as much about Bro. Lord Arthur Hill as he did. He asked them to drink a bumper to their Chairman (Bro. C. J. Smith), who had combined the suaviter in modo with the fortiter in re in carrying out the duties of his office, and had proved himself the best Deputy Prov. G.M. they had ever had. With the Duke of Connaught's acceptance of the post of Prov. G.M.M. he believed the Province would receive such an impetus that Mark Masonry would be sure to advance. Bro. Smith had, for many years, been prominent in the Craft and other degrees, but his achievements in Mark Masonry had transcended his work in those. Bro. C. J. Smith, in acknowledging the toast, said that Bro. Lord Arthur Hill had been prevented by his many duties from being often present with them. They all felt his absence, but not more keenly than did the Prov. G.M.M. himself. His influence had, however, effected much good in the Province. Speaking for himself, he said his work was a labour of love. He had had much to do, but he always endeavoured to rise to the requirements of his position. He felt grateful to the brethren for the manner in which they had appreciated his services, and hoped that his ruling had not been unpleasant. He had been assisted by earnest Officers, and they might all congratulate themselves upon the success of Mark Masonry in the Province. He thanked them for the jewel, and especially for the kind sympathy they had shewn to him during the recent illness of his son. Bro. R. Pidcock proposed the W. Masters and Past Masters of the Province of Sussex. They had, he said, worked zealously, and he was desirous of paying honour where honour was due. Bro. C. J. Buckwell responded, and spoke in eulogistic terms of the eminent services rendered to Mark Masonry by Bro. H. W. G. Abell. He was glad to see the Order flourishing, and believed a brighter future was in store for it. Bro. H. W. G. Abell also acknowledged the toast, and remarked that he was always pleased to further the interests of the Mark Degree. He had the honour of nominating H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught as Provincial Grand Master, and felt assured that if such a popular Grand Master presided over the Province Mark Masonry in Sussex would largely increase in prosperity. Bro. S. R. Legg likewise responded, and expressed his belief that the Province would achieve every prosperity possible. The Chairman begged to interpolate a toast. It was possibly the last occasion on which he should officially address them, and he wished to propose the health of Bros. H. W. G. Abell, J. C. Buckwell, A. F. Lamette, and J. Slingsby Roberts, for the great support and the energetic manner in which they had worked in the revival of Mark Masonry in Sussex. After response from those brethren, Bro. J. Belcher gave "The Visitors," to which Bros. G. Cole and Matier responded. The latter asked the brethren to send a Steward for the Mark Masters' Benevolent Fund. Bro. C. J. Smith readily accepted the office, and received several promises of substantial support from the brethren. Bros. C. J. Buckwell and H. W. G. Abell said that the Sussex Lodges had been greatly assisted by the fund when applications were made on behalf of deserving cases, and the Benevolent Fund was one which deserved their cordial support. The Tylers' toast completed a very enjoyable evening.

ST. MICHAEL'S LODGE, No. 175.

THE annual meeting was held in the Masonic Rooms, Helston, on Wednesday, the 16th ult., when Bro. Trevenen was duly installed W.M. for the ensuing year. PROV. G. LODGE OF OXFORDSHIRE.

ON Wednesday the Annual Provincial Grand Lodge of Oxfordshire was held in the pretty little town of Henley-on-Thames, and the proceedings were marked by an event of special interest, the Earl of Jersey P.G.W. Provincial Grand Master, having consented to lay the foundation stone of a Masonic Hall, to be erected by the brethren of the Thames Lodge, No 1895, on a suitable site in the Reading Road, within a short distance of the Great Western Railway Station, generously presented by Bro. Mackenzie. The brethren attended in good numbers from different parts of the Province, and for their convenience the Great Western Railway Company slipped a carriage from one of their fast up trains, at Twyford Junction. The Provincial Grand Lodge was opened at two o'clock, at the Town Hall, by Lord Jersey, assisted by Bro. Reginald Bird, M.A., Past Grand Deacon Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. the Rev. H. Sayers Provincial Grand Chaplain, Bros. Hermon Hodge, M.P., W. Lewis Morgan Provincial Grand Secretary, and other Provincial Grand Officers. The roll of the Lodges having been called, and the minutes of the last Provincial Grand Lodge confirmed, the brethren formed into procession and walked through the Market Place and Duke Street to the site, in the Reading Road, where a large concourse of persons had assembled, the weather being extremely fine. The Worshipful Master of the Thames Lodge, Brother E. Carlisle, presented a silver trowel, suitably inscribed, to the Provincial Grand Master, who proceeded to lay the stone. At the conclusion of the ceremony, which was carried out with full Masonic rites, the procession re-formed, and the brethren returned to the Town Hall, when the Provincial Grand Lodge business was at once resumed, and the Provincial Grand Master appointed and invested his Officers for the ensuing year. The Provincial Grand Lodge having been closed in due form, the brethren adjourned to the Red Lion Hotel, where a banquet was served, and the usual Masonic toasts were honoured.

Colonel J. R. Bramble P.A.G.D.C. England, was announced and formally received. The minutes of the last regular meeting, at which Bro. Pierepont Harris was re-elected as W.M., having been read and confirmed, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master took the chair, and re-installed the W.M. At the close of the ceremony, an installation anthem, composed for the occasion by Brother John Northam, was sung, under the direction of the composer. The solos were beautifully rendered by the well-known West of England baritone, Bro. Montague Worlock, and it is sufficient to add that the singers of the choruses were chiefly members of the Bristol Orpheus and Bristol Madrigal Societies. The composition was very much admired. The W.M. then proceeded to appoint and invest his Officers, as follow:—Bros. W. E. Parry I.P.M., George Dowson S.W., Peter Allison J.W., W. K. Abbott Treasurer, John Northam Secretary, W. R. Chandler S.D., H. F. Lewis J.D., Harold Lewis D.C., F. L. Brown I.G., J. Stoate Tyler, J. Webber Assistant Tyler. Bro. W. E. Parry then, on behalf of the brethren, presented the W.M. with an exceedingly handsome Past Master's jewel, made of 18 carat gold, and beautifully chaste. At the top of the ribbon was a bar with the word Founder, and on the ribbon a shield with the arms and motto of the Lodge in coloured enamel. Bro. Parry said that every member of the Lodge had taken part in the provision of that present, which he hoped the W.M. would wear in testimony of their appreciation of how much the successful starting and present prosperity of the Lodge were due to his energy and ability and good work. Bro. Harold Lewis said he had been requested to support the remarks of the previous speaker, and bore testimony to the minute attention which Bro. Harris gave every detail in connection with the work of the Lodge. The W.M. suitably acknowledged the present. Two candidates for initiation and five joining members having been proposed, the Lodge was closed, Bro. Farran Lambert's new march being played as the brethren left the Lodge-room. They then adjourned to the spacious banqueting-hall on the ground floor of the building, where the installation supper was partaken of. The usual toast list was gone through, but the speeches were rigidly condensed, as the following very attractive programme had been arranged:—"God Save the Queen"; "God Bless the Prince of Wales"; glee, "Three Doughty Men"; song, "Simon the Cellarer," Brother J. Tochatti; song, "Good bye Sweetheart," Bro. Adam Rankin; song, "The King's Minstrel," Bro. Montague Worlock; duet, "My Heart's Delight," Bros. W. R. Chandler and J. Northam; song, "Oh, Hear the Wild Winds blow," Bro. Caink; glee, "Banish, O, Maiden"; song, "Come into the Garden, Maud," Bro. S. W. Pullen; song, "The Toreador," Bro. Montague Worlock; glee, "The Old Brigade"; song, "My Queen," Bro. H. H. Hood Daniel; song, "Femmine, Femmine," Bro. Caink; song, "Mari Jane," Bro. H. The evening's proceeding's furnished a rich musical treat, and it was generally agreed by the visitors that they had never been present at a more enjoyable or more successful Masonic gathering.

MORGAN'S SHILLING CHESS LIBRARY.—The fourth book of this handy and popular series contains a second selection of games played at the International Tournament in New York in the spring of this year. Among the forty games will be found one between M. I. Tschigorin and Max Weiss, the two players who tied for first honours with 29 points each, and divided the prizes after four subsequent games had been drawn. The hand book, which is neatly printed, can be obtained at Simpkin, Marshall and Co., or of W. W. Morgan jun., 17 Medina Road, Holloway, N.—Daily Chronicle.

The new volume of "Cassell's Family Magazine," begins with the December Part, which will be ready on the 25th inst. The following attractive serial stories have been arranged for, and will be commenced in that Part:—"The Stronger Will," a characteristic love-story, by E. Everett Green, author of "Monica," &c.; "To be Given up," a story of quiet surrender, by Kate Eyre, author of "A Step in the Dark," &c.; "In the Wild West," a story of adventure, by J. Berwick Harwood, author of "Paul Knox, Pitman," "Lady Flavia," &c. Besides these, there will be numerous other features, both useful and interesting, that we feel sure will uphold the prestige of this excellent journal.

The annual prize meeting of the Honourable Artillery Company took place at Park the other week. Rain fell throughout most of the day. The entries were larger than in any previous year. The prize presented by the Fitzroy Lodge, attached to the regiment, was taken by Private Gilbert, with 76 points out of a possible 80; and Mayor Mainwarning Jones' prize at 200, 500, and 600 yards, was taken with the capital score of 90 points by Colour-Sergeant Brooking. The "N.C.O." also won the first prize in the aggregates, value 15 guineas, presented by Lord De Vesci. The championship and gold jewel of the regiment was taken by Sergeant Wood, who it will be remembered recently won the championship of Middlesex.

"Ma Chérie." Waltz. Composed by Percy M. Hewitt.
"Sweetheart." Song. Written by Claxson Bellamy, composed by Percy M. Hewitt.
"Dream Memories." Song. Written and composed by Lindsay Lennox.
London: THE LONDON MUSIC PUBLISHING CO. (LIMITED), 51 Great Marlborough Street, W.

FOR either playing or dancing "Ma Chérie" waltz is well adapted, as it is smooth sounding and pretty. It has already become so popular that it is nightly played at several theatres during interva's. The waltz is dedicated to the composer's friend, Edward Frood, Esq. A song, entitled "Sweetheart," has been adapted from the above waltz, and appropriate words have been written by Claxson Bellamy. The refrain of the waltz is of course brought in, and it makes a charming song. Mr. Lindsay Lennox has shown some clever work in his "Dream Memories." It is an effective and bright composition, the burden of the music being of a lively waltz tune, which is sure to please an audience.

"Eldorado." Waltz. Composed by T. Popplewell Royle.
"Thy King." Song. Written by Henry Vaughan, composed by Paul Rodney.
"Little Lord Fauntleroy." Song. Written and composed by Michael Watson.
London: ENOCH AND SONS, 14 and 14a Great Marlborough Street, W.

DANCE music, and especially waltzes, are always welcome, and we feel sure that T. P. Royle's "Eldorado" is destined to stay and become popular. It is a strikingly taking piece, while the melody is pretty. Henry Vaughan and Paul Rodney's "Thy King" is a splendid sacred song; the words are appropriate, while the music is effective and tuneful. "Little Lord Fauntleroy" is another good composition; it is dedicated to Mrs. Francis Burnett. It was written and composed by the late Michael Watson, who has supplied the musical world with a song that will be heard frequently; it has a fine melody, and the refrain is taking.

"Tell Them." Song. Written by Clifton Bingham, composed by F. Paolo Tosti. London: G. RICORDI AND CO., 265 Regent Street, W.

THIS song is one that can well be recommended, it is in F. Paolo Tosti's best style. The delightful themes are so taking that any one singing them cannot fail to be appreciated. Graceful words have been supplied by Clifton Bingham.

"Love's Guiding Star." Song. Written by Wallace Lowell, composed by M. Le Roy.
"The Bonny Oak Tree." Song. Written by Clement Scott, composed by Edward Solomon.
"A Song of the Sea." Song. Written by Arthur Bourchier, composed by Lady Arthur Hill.
London: METZLER AND CO., 42 Great Marlborough Street, W.

ALL these songs are above the average of the drawing-room ballad, and should be eagerly sought after. "Love's Guiding Star" is a tuneful waltz song, with a pleasant air, and one easily learned. It has been sung by Nikita, at the Covent Garden Promenade Concerts, where it proved a great success. A fine bass or baritone song is Clement Scott and Edward Solomon's "Bonny Oak Tree." Just at this time, while "The Royal Oak" is popular at Drury Lane, this composition is appropriate, but at any time it should be a favourite, for it has the merit of being not only a good song, but a taking and effective one in the bargain. "A Song of the Sea" is, as the title implies, a nautical one, with a fine swinging refrain, and a striking and melodious air.

"Come back, Dear Heart." Song. Written by Lindsay Lennox, composed by Seymour Smith.
"Toil and Prayer." Song. Written and composed by M. Piccolomini.
London: EVANS AND CO., 33 Argyll Street, Regent Street, W.

THE first of these two compositions is a pretty song by our well known Brother Seymour Smith. The harmony is capital, while the theme is most attractive. "Toil and Prayer" is a tuneful composition, and can be sung either as a sacred subject or not. The accompaniment is most pleasant, the cross-hand movements, representing the chime of bells, being exceedingly pretty. We can predict for this work a success that is seldom achieved by such pieces.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Soldiers and Sailors.—These well-known and easily used remedies are especially serviceable and convenient for those who, like soldiers and sailors, are exposed to great changes of climate, and the hardships inseparable from their calling. Many of the diseases engendered in the system from these and other untoward causes can be checked and controlled by attention at the onset, and in Holloway's remedies will be found a ready means of relief, without hindrance from duty. Many a man is invalided and rendered more or less a burden to himself and friends from neglect of the early symptoms of his complaint, which calamity might be averted by timely recourse to the use of Holloway's Pills and Ointment.

DIARY FOR THE WEEK.

We shall be obliged if the Secretaries of the various Lodges throughout the Kingdom will favour us with a list of their Days of Meetings, &c., as we have decided to insert only those that are verified by the Officers of the several Lodges.

EADE'S
GOUT & RHEUMATIC PILLS.

The SAFEST and most EFFECTUAL CURE for GOUT, RHEUMATISM, and all PAINS in the HEAD, FACE, and LIMBS.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL from the Rev. F. FARVIS, Baptist Minister.

Mr. G. EADE. March 19, 1887.

Dear Sir,—I have many times felt inclined to inform you of the benefit I have received by taking your Gout and Rheumatic Pills. After suffering for some time from Rheumatics and Sciatica, I was advised to use your Pills. I bought a bottle, and when in severe pain and unable to use the limb affected I took a dose. In a few hours after I felt the pain much better, and after the second dose the pain completely removed and the limb restored to its right use. I thank you, dear sir, for sending forth such a boon for the relief of human suffering.

Yours faithfully,
F. FARVIS,
Baptist Minister.

There are multitudes of people who look upon advertising as a sort of Lottery, and bestow infinitely more thought in the selection of a clerk at £100 a year than in the expenditure of £1000, or two in the same period in advertising. A tithe of the shrewdness displayed in all other branches of their business given to the management of their advertising will be amply repaid. The ADVERTISEMENT AGENT has become an indispensable factor in this matter of publicity, and his raison d'être is perfectly unassailable. Would you leave or enter a port without a pilot? Would you commence and prosecute a law suit without a legal adviser? Either of these courses would not be more foolish than rushing into expenses in Advertising without a competent practical and professional adviser. I am at all times happy to render advertisers every assistance in my power, and to give them the benefit of the experience I have gained during the past twenty years as a London advertising agent. "PAINLESS AND PERFECT DENTISTRY."

A New Pamphlet, by Dr. GEO. H. JONES, F.R.S.L., F.R.M.S., &c., Surgeon-Dentist, 57 Great Russell-street, facing British Museum entrance, London, contains a list of Diplomas, and Silver Medals and other Awards obtained at the Great International Exhibitions. Forwarded gratis and post free.

Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist's Testimonial.

My Dear Doctor,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

S. G. HUTCHINS,
By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

Geo. H. Jones, Esq., D.D.S.

Scientific Department.
Laboratory of Experimental Science.

This is to certify: That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

LODGE HISTORIES.

—:o:—

THE LODGE OF PROBITY, No. 61.

IN our last article we showed how the Probity, at the beginning of the present century, exercised a kind of supervision over its neighbouring Lodges, concluding our reference with an account of the establishment of a new Lodge at Heptonstall. In 1808 the Lodge of Probity had the advantage of a good set of Officers, and several candidates were initiated. In October 1809 a proposition was made that the 25th of the month, being the 49th anniversary of His Majesty's (King George III.) reign, should be celebrated by the Fraternity with particular respect. A dinner was proposed for the occasion, and the Lodge of Harmony was invited to join in the festivities, while a subscription should be made and devoted to such charitable purposes as might be agreed upon. The celebration duly came off on the 25th, when 70 members were present, 22 from Probity, 13 from Harmony (both of Halifax), 15 from Bradford, 18 from Heptonstall, and one each from Harwich and Almondbury. The Lodge was opened at 10 a.m., when it was put to the meeting that the brethren go to church in procession. On a division there was a great majority averse to such a proceeding; accordingly, the W.M. adjourned the Lodge till 2 p.m., when the brethren sat down to a "very plentiful dinner." A committee appointed to manage the proposed subscription made their report, from which it appeared £42 10s had been subscribed, and this sum it was agreed should be presented to the Halifax General Dispensary, of which the R.W.M. (Bro. Thomson) was one of the physicians. A proposition was made that the brethren of Lodge 61 and the other neighbouring Lodges should annually visit each other, and the 12th of August (the birthday of the M.W. Grand Master) was considered a proper day for such fraternal gatherings. The minute book of the Lodge gives details of the amount subscribed as above, from which we learn that Lodge No. 61 contributed £23 18s, Lodge No. 461, £13 14s 6d, and Lodge No. 549, £4 17s 6d. The cost of collecting this sum is set down at £1.

At the close of 1809 the brethren unanimously re-elected Bro. Thomson to the office of Master, but his professional duties forced him to decline the honour, and Brother C. Whiteley was chosen in his stead. This was a commencement of a period of quietness (such as frequently occurs, says the historian) and there is little to refer to. On one occasion a brother initiated some six months before came forward for his second degree, explaining that domestic affliction and distance from the place of meeting had kept him away. This was considered sufficient excuse, but the Worshipful Master delivered a serious and pointed charge, "impressing upon the brother the duties of a Freemason."

Bro. John Sutcliffe ascended to the chair in 1811, he having been made a Mason in August 1808. This brother, we are told, "continued, except for a short period, a good worker, and repeatedly occupied the chair of the Lodge; he turned out to be a truly good Mason, and was a great prop to the Lodge; one whom it could always rely upon, through fair weather and foul." A portrait of Bro. Sutcliffe (from a drawing in crayons, in the possession of the Lodge of Probity) is inserted in Bro. Crossley's work, and a further link between the brethren of to-day and of a past age is thereby supplied. About this time it was decided that "every member be examined in the grips and signs." Accordingly, at the next Lodge the brethren present "went through the antient mode of examining and trying each other, which they found had been much wanted." Some misunderstanding arose later on, and as a result Bro. Whiteley resigned his membership, upon which it was suggested that the Lodge be closed "until certain internal dissentions were healed." However, this did not take place, and renewed confidence was expressed in Bro. Sutcliffe, by his election to the chair for the two succeeding years (1812-13). Sums of 10s 6d were annually voted at this period for the prisoners in Halifax Gaol, while on another occasion £2 2s was voted in charity "to British prisoners."

The news of the "Union" does not appear to have reached the Lodge of Probity until some time after its completion, although, judging from the meagre details given it would seem the Probity Lodge at this period did not take much interest in Masonic affairs of any kind. In November 1814 a letter was read from Grand Lodge respecting the meetings of Instruction given by United Grand Lodge, when it was resolved the letter stand over for consideration until February 1815. At this latter date a ballot took place among those present, "respecting the members going to London to the Grand Lodge for Instruction." It was ultimately agreed that every member of the Lodge deposit £2 to defray the expenses of the journey. This realised £18, and Bros. Sutcliffe, Smith, and Bates being selected as delegates, they were allowed £6 each for expenses. Bro. Sutcliffe was forced, by business, to give up the journey, and resigned in favour of Bro. Holdsworth, who, however, signified he should go at his own expense.

It is here recorded that "the transactions of this Lodge having been repeatedly divulged to the other Lodges in this town, and turned into ridicule; and as every member declares his innocence, it was thought the Tyler was the tale-bearer." He was accordingly unanimously discharged, and a new Tyler appointed. Later on, the thanks of the Lodge were voted to the brethren who went to London to receive the instructions of Grand Lodge, and a handsome Masonic stick was voted to Bro. Philip Broadfoot, a member of the Lodge of Reconciliation, as a mark of gratitude and esteem for his kindness and attention to the brethren on their visit to that Lodge. A circular was sent to the neighbouring Lodges, informing them that the Lodge of Probity was willing and ready, as a Lodge of Reconciliation, to communicate all the new regulations of Grand Lodge, together with the present mode of working, as Masons with the new Obligations. In answer to this circular five Lodges replied, accepting; one declined the offer for the present, while from five others no answer was received. It was agreed in connection with this subject that any Lodge receiving the Lectures from the Probity should pay their quota towards the expense of the delegates to London—such expenses being set down as £25. This "Lodge of Promulgation" duly assembled, and the next chapter of the "History" is devoted to its doings.

In April 1815 a handsome Past Master's jewel was voted to Bro. Sutcliffe, and at the same meeting it was ordered that an Inner Guard's jewel be obtained—the first mention of this office in the Lodge. Bro. Sutcliffe's jewel was duly presented, as also was the stick to Bro. Broadfoot.

The letter of this brother acknowledging the presentation is given, and in it Bro. Broadfoot promises to pay such attention to future visitors as they may require—a promise he subsequently fulfilled most satisfactorily. This brother also repeatedly communicated with the Lodge and numerous queries were from time to time addressed to him. His replies to these are still in the possession of the Lodge, and are described as particularly interesting; while they show that the ritual has been well preserved to the present time. Naturally the letters cannot be published.

In June 1815 it was agreed an Inner Guard should be made, to assist the Tyler, who was unable to fulfil the arduous duties of the Lodge. He was to have half the fees of initiation, the Tyler receiving the other half; also 6d for liquor each Lodge night. This resolution would seem to imply that the office of Inner Guard at the time was very different to what it is now. Perhaps there are many among us who regret it was ever altered.

In concluding this chapter of the History Bro. Crossley refers to the great events which occurred at the period, and claims for the Probity Lodge a share in the good work of the time, it having "effectually brought the sister Lodges of the district into closer communion with each other, thus prompting Brotherly Love and Peace."

An Address by Bro. Edward S. Taylor, at the Laying of the Corner-Stone of Evans Lodge, No. 524, F. and A. M., at Evanston, Illinois, 2nd July 1889.

WE are not met here at high noon, in this open display, to catch the public ear or to awaken a public interest in our Order. We are not here to laud some grand achievement of warrior or sage, nor to celebrate the anniversary of some great event, but, as brethren of one faith, we have come together to witness a ceremony consecrated by ancient usage; to participate in placing the headstone of the corner, whereon shall be reared a temple to be dedicated as our home, wherein, in the fullness of time, the members of this Order may find a sanctuary, an asylum, and a shrine.

Bound together in a common brotherhood by the mystic ties of a Masonic obligation; imbued with the spirit of brotherly love and charity and truth, we look forward to and shall gladly hail that day, promised by the ceremony of this hour, when, the temple being completed, its willing portals shall open obedient to the magic of our touch, and there before the lighted altar the members of the Order may rejoice together and "worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness."

The ancient origin of this Order is obscured in the mists of ages—a veil so impenetrable that certainty gives way to conjecture. Far beyond recorded history tradition unfolds to the believer the organisation of a brotherhood with its mystic rites and symbols in the long ago, when the Jews, aided by their brethren from Tyre, erected beneath the shadow of Zion the grand Temple which has had no rival in the beauty of its architecture, and scarce an equal in the sanctity of its shrines. Neither Greek, Mahomedan, nor Christian, in the ages which have elapsed, have in their feeble imitations approached the antique magnificence and grandeur of that palace of Jehovah, which for four centuries glitteringly towered above the heights of Moriah and was the great glory of Jerusalem and the region thereabouts.

Turn back the hand on the dial of time ten centuries before Mount Moriah was crowned with its monument of glory, and behold the obelisks of Egypt, the colossal reminders of ancient kings, the placing of which in position required a skill and genius scarcely developed by the races which have peopled the earth in the intervening four thousand years. It is stated that when, but a few years ago, one of these ancient tokens was removed from its foundation to be transported to this country, there was found secreted there the implements and symbols of a Master Mason. Empires and dynasties have come and gone, kings have passed away—their names no longer remembered; languages have been forgotten; yonder are the rocks in their solitude, laved by the waters which bore the commerce of mighty Tyre; to-day Tyre and its trade are but a reminiscence, yet the simple faith which binds this brotherhood may be traced back far beyond forgotten history.

To the brotherhood, conjecture, tradition, and record, sufficiently indicate the trackway through the ages of the ancient faith upon which the altars of our Order rests, to justify the claim of an early origin, and that the secrets and the symbols of Masonry passed from the land of the Jew to the land of the Gentile, and thence, in the advancing tread of civilisation, have penetrated the remotest portions of earth, dissolving darkness by erecting the altars and lighting the lights of this Order.

Be the origin of Masonry ancient or otherwise, true it is that its grand purpose, its invincible progress throughout the world needs not the factitious aid of an ancient origin to either magnify its purpose or give impulse to its progress. The design of Masonry is to ennoble, elevate and bless mankind, seeking to attain that object by inculcating virtue, temperance, brotherly love and charity among its members. Launched upon the tide of time with a purpose so holy, guided by a star, a symbol of that star in the east which in the olden day guided the wise men, until, resting over Bethlehem, it flashed its finger of light upon the manger wherein the Infant Redeemer lay; so animated under such a guidance, why should Masonry falter in its conquering course? Indeed, why should opposition be arrayed against us; why the voice of venom assail? Yet organised opposition seeks our destruction. Though ignorance and prejudice revile, we are unmindful of such persecution, for inspiration has written, "Clouds they are without water, carried about of winds." The Order recognises God, our country, and the rights of man, and requires obedience to its precepts and obligations alike regardless of rank, riches, or reputation; its blessings are conferred, its benefactions extended, equally in the abode of the humble or the palace of the exalted.

The teachings and tenets of Masonry ever direct us to at least measurably emulate that purity, devotion and loving-kindness of which John the Baptist was an anointed exemplar, and which has endeared him to the Order as its patron saint. Masonry has a life beyond the ceremonial which meets the public eye. In that inner life is found the exercise of all the virtues, the exemplification of the spiritual in man's nature, the cultivation and development of the nobler powers of humanity, and it tends to the exaltation and betterment of mankind. The potency of the teachings of Masonry is the history of the centuries in the exercise of its pity, ever the invincible opponent of error, the faithful friend of the oppressed. In the display of its power Masonry is ever firm for the maintenance of social order, ever the upholder of the honour and majesty of constitutional law. Uniform in its teaching, its spread is universal. Representatives of nations unlike in language and laws, between which no intercourse has existed, have met and at once recognised each other as bound by the same mystic tie and believers in a kindred faith; and true it is that a Mason, however destitute, if worthy, may find in every clime a brother, in every land a home. The Tartar in his wandering course has borne with him the secrets of the Order; the proud Castilian, defying the imperial edict at peril of life, has with a faithful few sought refuge midst the solitude of a mountain pass, and there, in a guarded hour, opened Lodge and been comforted in the enjoyment of a chosen faith. The arbitrary power of the "autocrat of all the Russias" has proved powerless to quench the flame of the faith in the heart of the exile, midst the frozen snows of Siberia; wherever civilisation exists, it matters not what tongue is spoken, the universal language of Masonry is understood; in feature, form and faith identical, the force and lustre of the ancient faith neither added to nor abated during the long procession of the centuries.

Of our history one has written: "the hardy spirits who founded your Order and lighted up the sacred asylum in Palestine were fired with zeal that no human effort could resist. They had visited that land consecrated by the advent of the Messiah. They stood upon the shores of the Jordan that had seen the descent of the baptismal dove. They sat down and sorrowed upon those hills of Judea that had trembled at the miracles of God. They saw the pious pilgrim murdered by the ruthless Turk. They saw the mosque and minaret tower in impious grandeur over the tomb of Christ, and the chosen habitation of Israel seemed to them cursed on account of the infidel possessor. The burning sun and the barren fig tree of Holy Writ were still there; dried up rivers, scorched and barren fields, spoke to them the curse of heaven, and there the desert stretched out its burning arms in mute desolation, as if it had not dared to break the dread silence since the Eternal uttered His voice." It was through scenes like these, surviving the vicissitude of chance and change that the Order exists here to-day—not an institution frail and feeble and fearful, under no ban as is the Order among the effete monarchies of Europe—but conscious of the nobility of its purpose, with firm, commanding form, it moves along the pathway of progress, ever keeping pace with the advancing tread of civilisation and reform. By its gradual growth the Order now numbers six hundred and eighty thousand members in North America; forty-one thousand of the number, all good men and true, find lodgment in Illinois.

Twenty-three years ago in the coming October, the supreme Masonic authority of the State granted a dispensation to all of the Craft who were residents of Evanston and vicinity, authorising the formation of Evans Lodge. A year later a full charter was obtained, and on the 2nd of November A.D. 1867, the Lodge held its first meeting, numbering thirty-one members. Of those who were with us then ten have dimitted to the Lodge beyond yon canopy, and now worship in a temple not made with hands, whose builder and maker is God; two hundred and thirty constitute the membership of this Lodge to-day. They are representatives of every vocation and every calling; true and faithful, worthy and well qualified, they have proved in their lives an honour to American citizenship. The Fraternity, inspired by the tenets of their cherished faith, cloaked with truth, fearing no evil, still face Zionward, and their mission will have been accomplished only when misery and want are exiles; when ignorance no longer dominates, and when the heavy hand of oppression has been lifted from its victim. The mission of Masonry ends only when the reign of peace on earth and good will among men shall have been universally established.

With such an object to attain, prompted by a purpose so unselfish, we await with eager expectancy the hour when we shall find lodgment here. Then, with increased facilities and opportunities for good, plighting anew our fealty to the principles of the Order, clad in the beautiful garments of peace, our doors shall be thrown wide open for the reception of the pure in heart of every kindred and of every tongue.

Let prejudice, born of ignorance, continue to deride and revile. They shall not prevail. To the taunt that Masonry is but an idle pageant, we ask,—Was Warren, who at Bunker Hill first taught the lesson of sacrifice to the American people, a deluded devotee of pageantry and pomp? Was Franklin, who brought the lightning from heaven that it might be made vassal to the will of man, in his wisdom, a rapt believer in an idle show? Was Washington, whose memory but sixty days ago a nation hallowed, likely to lend his influence to hollow mockery and pretence? These men were Masters in our Order, and worshipped at a common shrine. The martyred Garfield passed from the highest altars of our Order to the proud position of power. I say this not in defence of our Craft; it needs no defence, for Masonry, like the sun in its daily course, circles the earth, everywhere illuminating the nations with the purity and beneficence of its light.—Voice of Masonry.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

THE General Committee of this Institution met on Saturday, at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. Richard Eve Past Grand Treasurer presiding. The minutes of the former meeting having been read and confirmed, and the minutes of other Committees, and of the Quarterly Court of the 25th ult., having been read for information, Bro. Scurrah asked what had been done by the Sub-Committee entrusted with the arrangements as to a new head master. Bro. Bevis said the Committee had been sitting that day. Without going into details, the result of the meeting was really this—that the terms on which the new head master should be appointed were discussed and considered, and an outline of those terms was entrusted to a Sub-Committee of six, with instructions to advertise and receive applications with a view to their being considered by the Provisional Committee before the end of the present month, in the hope that the Provisional Committee might, at its meeting that day month, bring before the General Committee the names of gentlemen applying for the situation, in order that one might be selected, subject to confirmation by the Committee. The object they had in view was that some kind of selection might be made at the next meeting of the General Committee so that a gentlemen might be appointed before the Christmas holidays. In answer to an inquiry whether Dr. Morris's notice had expired, Bro. Bevir said it expired in April next. A large number of the under masters had given notice of resignation. That had somewhat forced the hands of the Committee. They must have time for the head master to be selected, and give him opportunity to select assistants. It was then moved, seconded, and carried, that Lord Euston should sign cheques for the accounts which had been recommended by the House and Finance Committees to be paid. Some discussion ensued as to the Grand Treasurer having refused to accept other amendments to the motion to give Bro. Binckes an allowance of £350 a year. The Chairman said he distinctly remembered Bro. Terry saying at the time he put the motion that three amendments had been rejected, and therefore he need not put any more. Bro. Scurrah said he should like to ask one question with regard to the Secretary. The Quarterly Court had voted £350 a year to Bro. Binckes, was it now understood that he had resigned, and that he would leave at Christmas? Was it not made a condition that if Bro. Binckes was awarded the pension named he would resign? In answer to a direct inquiry, the Chairman replied that that really became a legal question. Bro. Binckes said he had not resigned. Bro. Scarab: We understood that Bro. Binckes would resign at Christmas. Those were the very words made use of at that time. I want to know if an arrangement has been made that if £350 was voted at the Quarterly Court Brother Binckes would resign. After other speakers had stated their views, the Chairman said the matter had been partly considered, but it involved money questions which it was very difficult to answer. The Provisional Committee would report on the first opportunity. He did not know whether they would be able to decide before the next Quarterly Court, but before they decided they would take all matters into consideration, legal and otherwise. Another Brother would like to know in what position the question would stand if the minutes were confirmed. He was sorry to say the question of the retiring pension to Bro. Binckes had been discussed as far as he had heard in that room with very great heat, but it was a question that the brethren should not get warm upon. He wished to ask when, if they confirmed those minutes that day, it would have any influence whatever on the question. The Chairman: None whatever. It must be reported at the Quarterly Court. They are only read for information. If, after taking advice, we find it is conclusive, we may not trouble the Quarterly Court again. Bro. Scurrah said it was perfectly satisfactory to him. Five petitioners were placed on the list for next election, one petition was deferred, and one dismissed. Bro. Binckes wished to say that the announcement of lists at the last festival was £13,200. Since then lists had come in making it up to £13,600. He had received up to that day £13,325, leaving £275 still to come in, all of which he hoped was good. At the bankers there was £1339. Therefore there was not much ground for the complaint that their resources were falling off, notwithstanding the unfortunate circumstances in which the Institution had been placed. The proceedings shortly afterwards closed.

It was at the Masonic Ball. They were dreadfully "spooney," and, after their third or fourth enchanting waltz, availed themselves of the cool air of the promenade, and eventually found themselves delightfully hidden away in a sort of cupboard nook, where the wicked ceased from troubling and the weary were at rest. Very delicious, no doubt. But he was a greenhorn at that sort of thing, and forgot to see that everything was safe around. So, before the blissful pair knew where they were, they found that some heartless wretch had closed the door, and locked it! Oh! horror; what was to be done? To stay there till the ball was over was not to be thought of; besides mamma would miss her. So there was nothing for it but to hammer at the door till somebody came to know where the fire was, and then explain that he and she had gone there to look after a lost pocket handkerchief, which, of course, everybody believed.

FREEMASONRY AND POLITICS, AT BRIGHTON.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In the last two numbers of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE I have read with great interest your able and well-timed observations upon the unauthorised way in which the Order of Freemasonry is perverted and sullied by being used by unscrupulous persons to minister to their benefit for trade purposes, in defiance of one of the first principles of Freemasonry. It is but too well known how its emblems have been turned to account by publicans, who are particularly proud of displaying them on the front part of their houses, for the purpose of bringing profit to them, in violation of a solemn declaration that they, in seeking admission to our Order, were "uninfluenced by mercenary or any other unworthy motive;" whereas it is well known, from their subsequent conduct, in many instances, that one or both these were the active motives for their seeking admission as members. You gave in your last impression a notice of a shameful violation of the principles which should govern all true Freemasons, and which calls loudly for action being taken upon it in Grand Lodge, with a view of an adequate remedy being applied, and it is to be hoped that this will speedily be done.

In your last number I read with some interest a report of the Centenary Meeting of the Royal Clarence Lodge, No. 271, and amongst the speakers on that occasion, I see it stated that "Brother Edmund Yates was received with cheering, to propose the W. Master. He said all present would realise his feelings when he said how happy he felt after the week's heavy work and labour to gain a little rest, and his pleasure in gliding from the stormy seas of controversy to the peaceful haven of the Royal Clarence Lodge." Now here was a direct and unmistakable introduction of politics into the Lodge, for every one knew that his allusion was to the Brighton election, which had just terminated, and doubtless there were present members who had a divided opinion upon the result, and the "stormy seas" which Bro. Yates had done his best to lash into fury. I would ask, Sir, whether such action as this is not calculated to "produce dissension amongst the brethren, and in time bring scandal on the Craft?" I was always under the impression that we, as Masons, should at all times treat our fellow creatures with love and kindness, whether they come within the pale of Freemasonry or not, they are not to be despised because they do not belong to the "household of the faith." But what shall we say to the following observations which he thought fit to address to his fellow townsmen, at a meeting at Hove, on the 24th ult. He said, "I have been a fighter all my life, and shall remain so. I like a downright upstanding contest between two English gentlemen for the representation of our borough, but I am ready to confess that my blood begins to boil when I think that the cause of one of these gentlemen has been supported here in Brighton by the imposition on us of a set of hireling advocates of disloyalty and sedition. (Cheers). Those champions are paid, undoubtedly paid, by the National League, or the Land League, or the Clan-na-Gael, or the Invincibles—I care not under what title this nest of traitors calls itself, with money wrung from the Pats of Connemara, cajoled from the Biddies of New York, to come down here to hoodwink and cajole us with whispered hint or blatant invective against what they are pleased to call cruelty and coercion." These scurrilous, slanderous, and untrue remarks were received, it is said, with loud cheers, as well as his ungentlemanly observations about the pure air of Brighton being polluted by the odour of potatoes and whisky, and the pigs "grunting and squeaking, which Mr. O'Connor had been driving about in a cart, but he did not know whether with or without a net over them," and this by a man who calls him a Freemason, and blazons his doings in a Freemasons' Lodge. But as one who cherishes the principles of brotherly love and truth, I cannot read his filthy observations without shame, coming from a man who parades his fellowship in an Order which for many years it has hitherto been my pride and honour to belong to.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother, yours truly and fraternally,

A DISGUSTED BROTHER.

P.S.—It should be known that the "pigs" here so designated by Bro. Yates are members of Parliament anxious to support the candidature of Sir Robert Peel, whose father, at great personal sacrifice, secured for ever untold benefits on the working man.

4th November 1889.

It may be considered something of "hard lines" when a man reaches the patriarchal age of ninety-two years, and then realizes the fact that "Life is not worth living." This, however, seems to have been the case with Bro. John Hole, one of the residents in the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, at Croydon. He, on Friday, the 1st instant, in a temporary fit of insanity, committed suicide. Brother Hole had been a resident in the Institution 27 years.

initiated, and two others passed to the second degree. Afterwards supper was served, and the usual pleasant evening was spent. Smith 1797, and Thomas Howell 1797. The Secretary read the names of brethren who had been invited, but were unable to be present, among them being Bros. Lord Brooke P.G. Master Essex, Thomas Fenn, President Board General Purposes, Rev. C. J. Martyn P.G. Chaplain Deputy P.G. Master Suffolk, F. West Deputy P.G. Master (in charge) Surrey, A. M. Moyes P.G. Standard Bearer Deputy P.G. Master Cambridgeshire, W. G. Bell W.M., and Hamett Knott W.M. elect 859. The Lodge having been opened, and the minutes read and confirmed, a ballot was taken for Bros. Lord H. F. Thynne P.G. Warden, and W. Morshead as joining members, who were elected. A ballot was taken for Mr. Richard Percy Clowes (a son of the W.M. elect) as a candidate for initiation; this was declared unanimous in his favour. The W.M. then asked the Grand Registrar, Bro. F. A. Philbrick, to take the chair and perform the ceremony of initiation, and Mr. Richard Percy Clowes was duly initiated. The W.M. again took the chair, and the ordinary business was transacted, after which the Grand Secretary, Bro. Col. Shadwell H. Clerke, who is an Honorary Member of the Lodge, took the chair, and installed, in an impressive manner, and in the presence of a Board of 80 Installed Masters, Bro. Richard Clowes P.M. 650 P.P.G.S.W. Essex as W.M. for the year, who appointed his Officers, as follow:—Bros. the Right Hon. Sir W. Marriott, Q.C., M.P., Judge Advocate-General, P.G. Steward, P.G.S.W. I.P.M., Very Rev. E. R. Currie, Dean of Battle, P.G. Chaplain S.W., H. E. Price, M.D., P.P.G. Warden J.W., Major-General Barnett Ford P. Dist. G. Deacon Benl al Treasurer, V. P. Freeman P.G.D. P.G. Sec. Secretary, Dr. A. King, Mus. Bac., P.P.G. Organist S.D., C. W. Hudson P.P.G.W. J.D., C. Bamfylde Warre P.P.G.D. D.C., J. P. Slingsby Roberts Organist, J. P. Knight I.G., R. Pidcock P.G. Registrar, Lennox Browne P.G. S.W. Essex, and R. Percy Clowes Steward. Letters were read from the late Deputy P.G. Master, Bro. Gerard Ford P.M., one enclosing lithograph of a letter received from H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught P.G. Master, and another offering for the acceptance of the Lodge a portrait of himself in Masonic clothing. A letter was read from Mrs. Ford, informing the brethren that her late husband had by his will bequeathed a sum of £50 to endow the chair of the Lodge. Bro. R. Clowes W.M. expressed his regret at the loss the Lodge had sustained by the death of their P.M. Bro. Gerard Ford. He said he was sure the brethren would all unite with him in acknowledging the fraternal kindness with which Bro. Ford had always treated the members of the Lodge, and would desire to join in expressing their respect and esteem for him, and sympathy with Mrs. Ford. He would therefore move that the following address be presented to her:—

"To Mrs. Gerard Ford.

"The members of the Earl of Sussex Lodge are deeply moved by the letters which have been read to them from their late loved and respected P.M. and Deputy Prov. Grand Master, and also have to acknowledge the kind letter which accompanied the notification of the legacy to the Lodge.

"They desire to thank Mrs. Ford most sincerely for the touching words with which she has addressed them, and to assure her that the trouble the late Bro. Ford took in arranging, establishing, and acting as first W.M., will never be forgotten by the brethren.

"They wish to express their deep and heartfelt sympathy with Mrs. Ford in her bereavement, and hope that the Almighty will give her strength to sustain her in her affliction; although it is small consolation, they venture to believe that the affection and esteem in which he was held, so amply testified by the Masons generally throughout the Province, will at all events comfort her in her hour of trial, as proving that he who was so much beloved by her was thoroughly understood and appreciated by so many others.

"At this, the first meeting after his death, the brethren wish to place on record a testimony to his worth, so that future generations may be able to find particulars of the proceedings, and bear in remembrance Bro. Gerard Ford, who was the originator, principal founder, and, during his life, a most active member of the Earl of Sussex Lodge.

"R. CLOWES W.M.

"Royal Pavilion, Brighton, 26th Oct. 1889."

Bro. V. P. Freeman seconded the proposition, and desired to express in open Lodge the fraternal regard the late Bro. Ford had shown for the brethren, and his anxiety to gain their affection and esteem. Having been associated together for so many years, many of the acts of kindness which Bro. Ford had done had been known to him, and he could bear testimony to the increase year by year of his popularity. The resolution was unanimously adopted. The newly-elected member for Brighton, Mr. Gerald Walter Erskine Loder, was proposed by Bro. the Right Hon. Sir W. T. Marriott P.M. as a candidate for initiation. The W.M. Bro. R. Clowes seconded the proposition. Bro. F. A. Philbrick Grand Registrar was unanimously elected an honorary member of the Lodge. The Lodge having been closed, the brethren adjourned to the banqueting room, where they sat down to an elegant banquet, supplied by Brother D. Mutton, whose catering gave the greatest satisfaction. The post prandial proceedings were of a thoroughly hearty character. The W.M. Bro. Richard Clowes, who presided, gave the customary loyal toasts, which were duly honoured. In submitting the Officers of Grand Lodge, Present and Past, he said that those who had been privileged to attend Grand Lodge must have felt that it was ruled by energetic and zealous Officers. He himself regarded it a privilege to have around him so many Officers of Grand Lodge, and he heartily thanked them for their kind attendance and support. Bro. F. A. Philbrick, Q.C., Grand Registrar, in reply, said the Officers of Grand Lodge took the greatest interest in the Province, and he himself was deeply interested in the success of the Lodge. He was glad to see the Province and Lodge were making satisfactory progress, and said the brethren should feel proud of being presided over by such a Provincial Grand Master as the Duke of Connaught. Bro. Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke Grand Secretary also responded. He said that, though he felt one response was sufficient, he was grateful for the opportunity of speaking. Paying a graceful tribute to the memory of the late Bro. Gerard Ford Deputy Prov. Grand Master, he said he himself was interested in the Lodge. He had assisted at its consecration, installed the late Bro. Gerard Ford as first W.M., also their I.P.M. Bro. Sir W. T. Marriott, and he had been pleased that day to instal the W.M. Bro. Clowes. Referring to the excellent work of the late Bros. Sir W. W. Burrell and J. H. Scott, he said the Province of Sussex was second to none. Their work was admirably done, and, from the reports he received from time to time from their indefatigable Prov. G. Secretary, he saw that an excellent spirit pervaded the Province, and while harmony reigned supreme the Charities were well supported. Bros. J. C. Parkinson, T. J. Ralling and Major Lambert also acknowledged the toast, the last-named speaking in high terms of the excellent work in the Craft which Bro. Clowes had shown during his residence in the Essex Province. He congratulated the Sussex Freemasons upon having so good a brother among them. The W.M. then proposed the Provincial Grand Master H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught and Strathearn, Earl of Sussex. The Duke, he said, was expected to return to England early next year, and he was sure no Lodge would give him a heartier welcome than the Earl of Sussex Lodge. In submitting the next toast, the Provincial Senior Grand Warden in Charge, the Right Hon. Sir William T. Marriott, Q.C., M.P., the W.M. said he experienced sorrow in thinking of their late Deputy Prov. G. Master Bro. Gerard Ford. Fortunately the Provincial Grand Lodge had a popular brother in charge—Sir W. T. Marriott; and, further, all their Officers were brethren who could be relied upon in case of emergency. Bro. Sir W. T. Marriott, on rising to respond, was warmly received. He thanked the brethren sincerely for the hearty manner in which they had received the toast. All would agree with the W.M. that in the late Bro. Gerard Ford they had lost one whose whole heart was in Freemasonry. Speaking for himself, he said it was great pleasure, after his recent rough and tumble life, to come within those walls, and to be in a haven of rest. Their brotherly love cemented all their differences, and all experienced happiness in doing their duty to each other. He then said he had another pleasant duty to perform—to propose the Worshipful Master. The chair was, he remarked, adorned by Bro. Clowes, who was imbued with the true spirit of Freemasonry. During the last two years (the Lodge was but a young one), Bro. Clowes had performed his duties with great ability, and he heartily wished him success and happiness during the coming year. Bro. R. Clowes was received with prolonged and enthusiastic applause on rising to respond. He said he felt proud of the high position in which the brethren, by their unanimous vote, had placed him. He was grateful to Bro. Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke for installing him, and to the many old and new friends who had come from all parts to welcome him in his new position. His pleasure had been further increased by seeing his eldest son initiated. He, however, expressed his sincere regret that the late Bro. Gerard Ford, who had asked him to assist him in founding the Lodge, and who had proposed that his (Brother Clowe's) son should be initiated was no longer with them. He trusted that at the end of the year he should experience the same kind feelings that had been expressed towards him that day. Bro. F. A. Philbrick, Q.C., Grand Registrar next proposed the Initiate. A good father, he said, ought to make a good son. Speaking as an Essex Freemason, he bore testimony to the very hearty manner in which the Worshipful Master had supported Freemasonry in his mother Province, and he believed his son would follow in his footsteps. He himself had a prescriptive right in proposing the toast. Not only had he installed the Worshipful Master in his mother Lodge in Essex, but he had the pleasure of proposing the health of his son, Bro. R. Percy Clowes, when he attained his majority. He was his sponsor in the Inns of Court to which he belonged, and had initiated him that day. The toast was heartily drunk, and Bro. R. Percy Clowes, on rising to respond, was warmly received He had been impressed, he said, with the ceremony of initiation, and felt that Freemasonry was calculated to make each one a better man. He thanked the brethren of the Earl of Sussex Lodge for admitting him into the Fraternity. He had lost a good friend in the late Bro. Ford, who had proposed him. He trusted to merit promotion, till he ultimately reached the chair of the Lodge. The Worshipful Master proposed the Visitors. Bro. W. Sendall (Mayor of Brighton) responded. He said Bro. Marriott had spoken of the pleasure of coming to the Lodge as a haven of rest. But he asked what were his feelings? During the late election excitement, he had endeavoured to tread a bee line and go straight, in spite of the temptation of gas lights, flaming posters, and newspaper reports. He had looked forward to that meeting with pleasure, and had been amply repaid by the hearty good feeling with which he and other visitors had been received. Bro. A. Welch, referring to the Worshipful Master's excellent work in Freemasonry in Essex, said two Lodges in that county sent him fraternal greetings. It was without precedent, he thought, that during one afternoon a W.M. should be installed, and his son not only initiated, but immediately honoured with office in the Lodge. Bro. W. E. Morrison (Mayor elect of Eastbourne) also responded. Eastbourne, he said, was interested in the welfare of its sister town, Brighton, copying what was good and endeavouring to profit by shortcomings which arose. Their Mayor, Aldermen, and Town Clerk were all Freemasons. He said the Freemasons would give the Provincial Grand Lodge a hearty welcome if they held one of their meetings at Eastbourne. The W.M., in proposing the Past Master, presented Bro. Sir W. T. Marriott with a Past Master's jewel in appreciation of the admirable manner in which he had carried out his duties during the past year. Bro. Marriott, in responding, expressed his gratitude to the brethren for their kindness to him. His year of office had been one of pleasure and good fellowship, and he would do all he could to assist the W.M. in carrying out the duties of his office. The W.M. proposed the Officers of the Lodge, to which Bros. H. E. Prince J.W. Secretary and J. P. Knight I.G. responded. From want of time the W.M. briefly proposed the Worshipful Masters of Lodges in the Province, and the Joining Members, without asking for responses. The Tyler's toast completed the list. The majority of the company then left to catch their respective trains. During the evening the musical programme, under the direction of Bros. J. P. Slingsby Roberts Organist of the Lodge, Dr. Alfred King P.P.G.O., and Turle Lee, was ably sustained by Miss Minnie Freeman, Master C. Stewart, Bros. J. Brown, J. Gawthrop, and R. Grice. The duties of accompanist were admirably carried out by Bro. Turle Lee.

ASAPH LODGE, No. 1319.

ONE of the most popular of our London Lodges is that of the Asaph, No. 1319, the membership of which is—to a considerable extent at least—identified with the Dramatic and Musical professions. The Lodge, we believe, is an off-shoot from the Israel, No. 205, but whether considered as an off-shoot or an original growth, there can be no question as to its vitality. This was amply demonstrated on Monday last when the members assembled at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, W.C., to celebrate their Installation Meeting and Annual Festival. On the occasion under notice the Festival may essentially be considered the feature, as the members only recognise one banquet a year, though they assemble monthly from November to July. Moreover, as workers, the Lodge holds a high position in the Craft. The W.M. of the past year, Bro. George E. Fairchild, presided, and he was supported by Past Masters C. Wellard (Treasurer), J. M. Chamberlin (Secretary), W. A. Tinney, W. Lestocq, J. Weaver, E. Swanborough, J. Maclean, E. Frewins, and Meyer Lutz; the W.M. elect, Bro. J. D. Beveridge, and the Officers of the Lodge, with the following:—Bros. W. S. Penley, J. E. Hambleton, F. H. Macklin, Sam Johnson, F. Stewart, H. Crisp, C. E. Howson, C. J. Coxhead, R. S. Boleyn, J. G. Taylor, Luigi Lablache, H. W. Cushing, C. Dodsworth, J. E. Hinson, F. Mellish, W. J. Mathews, J. J. Solomon, J. C. Hambleton, H. J. Callcott, C. Powell, A. W. Cornish, E. Humphrey, L. Honig, H. Harper jun., Ambrose Austin, Sant Matthews, Clement Smith, C. G. Alias, H. J. Hitchins, H. Randall, W. H. Cremer, J. L. Simon and Ormond Yearsley. Visitors:—Bros. E. Fernandez, Harry Nicholls, Lionel Rignold, J. D. Russell, W. Fowles, R. S. Cummings, J. L. Shine, F. Dangerfield, C. P. Leonard, F. Denby, W. E. Haycock, W. J. Pitcher, H. Hart, W. J. Holloway, R. After the Lodge had been formally constituted, Bro. Weaver P.M. presented the W.M. elect, and Bro. Jas. D. Beveridge was regularly installed in the chair, Bro. George Fairchild, who holds a prominent position as an exponent of Masonic Ritual, fairly excelling himself on this special occasion. The new W.M. invested the following as his Officers:—Bros. T. de Brunnow Holmes S.W., A. E. Bishop J.W., Tinney P.M. D.C., Wellard P.M. Treasurer, Chamberlin P.M. Sec., W. S. Penley S.D., J. E. Hambleton J.D., F. H. Macklin I.G., Sam Johnson and Frank Stewart Stewards, and John Gilbert Tyler. The spirit of emulation was actively at work. Bro. Beveridge, in addressing his Officers on their investment, was both eloquent and graceful; his remarks were enthusiastically received. The addresses from Brother Fairchild completed this portion of the day's work. Before closing, an appeal was made to the brethren for support to the fund now being raised for the widow and family of the late Bro. F. Delevanti P.M. The banquet was served in the large hall of Freemasons' Tavern, personally superintended by Bro. Dartnell. The W.M., in proposing the Queen and the Craft, said he should premise that the speeches as far as he was concerned would be of the briefest order. They had a post-prandial entertainment of unusual excellence, and he was sure that would be better than any display of his poor oratory. He would ask them to drink the Queen and the Craft—a toast, he trusted, that would never be disassociated as long as Her Majesty reigned. Loyalty was the distinguishing characteristic of Freemasons, and he did not think it needed any assurance from him that the devotion of the Masonic body was met by Her Majesty in the display of her interest in the Masonic Order. This had been proved over and over again. In speaking of the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M., the W.M. said His Royal Highness was the future chief of this great empire; he was patron of the Arts, Sciences, the Drama, and of everything which tended to the welfare of the nation. With the next toast, the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Present and Past, the W.M. said might be introduced a refreshing deviation from the stereotyped form. When the brethren recognised that the Pro Grand Master and the Deputy Grand Master could spare leisure from their high official duties to devote time and energy, in conjunction with the Grand Master and the rest of the Grand Officers, for the welfare of the Craft in general, and the Lodge of Asaph in particular, they must acknowledge that they owed them a deep debt of gratitude. Speaking as an actor he must say he was very proud that one of the highest offices in Grand Lodge was held by their distinguished Bro. Edward Terry. But this was not the first time in the history of Masonry or the history of the stage that Grand Office had been held by an actor. A friend of his, Mr. Adams, of the Adelphi Theatre, who was not an actor, presented him the other day with a book 150 years of age, and on glancing over its pages he found the following passage, which referred to the year 1731:—"Amongst many good effects arising from a renovation of this Institution"—(that is Masonry, which is fallen into rather low water)—"the theatre experienced its share. Masons are in general warm friends of the drama, which they deem essential to the cause of virtue, and as Charity is one of their leading principles, they constantly devote the profits arising from one night's performance at the theatre every season towards the relief of their distressed and indigent brethren. At this time, however, in 1731, their laudable zeal carried them so far as to make them bespeak the tragedy of Cato, then remarkably popular, the male characters of which were all performed by gentlemen Masons; the prices were advanced; and so crowded and brilliant an audience had never at that time been seen in this kingdom." The Grand Secretary at that time was a Mr. Griffiths, a rather eminent actor, and so pleased were the brethren at what he had done in Dublin to restore Freemasonry to something like its pristine glory that they gave him a benefit to which the Grand Master and Grand Officers went in Masonic regalia, in procession, and the quaint old book said that "thereby he reaped great profit." The present genial Grand Secretary did not need a benefit, but supposing their Grand Treasurer wanted a benefit, supposing he got a dispensation from the Grand Master for his brethren to walk in regalia to Terry's Theatre, he did not know where he would house them, or whether the state of the Strand, to say nothing of the London County Council, would permit of the proceeding. Bro. Edward Terry Grand Treasurer said that in rising to attempt to respond to the toast of the Grand Officers, he might slightly alter a Shakesperian quotation, and say, of all things o'er I have evaded this—up to the present—as owing to the exigencies of his profession, he had escaped from the banquets before the speeches came on. He thoroughly appreciated all that the W.M. had said of him and the Grand Officers generally. He felt it, personally, because he believed he assisted at the Masonic birth of Bro. Beveridge, who had now come forward to a very fine full-grown manhood, and had taken the post they always believed he would take, and which he was sure he would adorn during the rest of his year of office. Should there be a recurrence of the affair that took place in Dublin in 1731—though their shining mark, Griffiths, was not a particularly "safe man"—it would be equally safe, as was shown to him at his election as Grand Treasurer. He never saw so much good fellowship or Masonic feeling in his life, not only by members of the Asaph Lodge, in which he had had the honour to pass through all the offices up to the chair, but men from all parts of the country came forward and supported him to a most astounding extent. He was told when he was made Grand Treasurer that he would have no work to do. He found he was grossly deceived; that he would never be allowed to sign a cheque—which was rather a slur—but he found that in his year of office the G. Treasurer was not expected to do nothing, for by virtue of his office he was a member of the Provisional Management Committee of the Boys' School, of the Committee of the Girls' School, and of the old Men and Women, and that he was supposed to attend all the Committee meetings. When he told them that in one Institution alone there had been 22 meetings since last June, he might fairly assert that he was grossly deceived on that point. However, joking apart, of course it was a labour of love to assist in all good Masonic work, and if the brethren had known as intimately as he knew, since he became a Grand Officer, the good feeling, the kind fraternal regard which the Grand Officers had for the Craft, it would do them, as it had it done him, good to see and listen to it. It was a thing to be proud of. Col. Shadwell H. Clerke said that he hoped that he would be represented by the eloquence of Bro. Terry, under whose shadow he thought he was. As there was so much beautiful music to come, he would not delay the brethren further than to thank them for the exceedingly kind and fraternal manner in which they had received his name on that and several other occasions. He took a deep interest in the Craft, and in so praiseworthy and distinguished a Lodge as the Asaph, for which he anticipated in the future the success it so thoroughly deserved. Bro. Fairchild, in proposing the health of the W.M., said at any time he had not the power, and on the present occasion he had not the privilege of making any lengthened remarks, because he been almost forbidden by the W.M., who was anxious to get through some other toasts in order to go to his professional duties. In the way of seniority, of ability, of geniality, and almost everything Masonic, Bro. Beveridge ought to have preceeded many of them in the Lodge of Asaph. It had been a matter of regret that Bro. Beveridge had not passed through the chair some years previously, but his professional duties had called him elsewhere, and he had been supplanted for a time. He had now, however, the satisfaction of being in the proud position which the brethren had had the honour of conferring on him. Bro. Beveridge had the advantage of having many illustrious predecessors; but whatever else he might be they knew he was one of the most refined and polished villains, but still he sank that character when he came to the Asaph Lodge. At the present time he had only to fill the character of the moral, good, kindly, genial gentleman, and he occupied his position in the Masonic world with an ability of which he had given evidence that evening. He had the courage, which very few Masters had, to close down the Lodge on an exciting evening in the different degrees. He had presided also at the banquet in a way which must have given satisfaction to all. He (Bro. Fairchild) had had the pleasure and privilege of working with him for many years, and lately very intimately and closely, and he found that he had one object in view—the welfare of the Asaph Lodge. Bro. Beveridge occupied the position of Master of the Lodge with a full sense of the responsibilities attached to the office, and in the hope that he would perform the duties as well as other Masters had done. The W.M., in reply, said—Brethren, I can only thank you for the great honour you have done me in drinking my health. As I said just now the speeches would be short, it would ill become me to make a long one. The W.M., in proposing the I.P.M., Bro. Fairchild, presented that brother with a handsome P.M.'s jewel. He was more than proud to pin the jewel on Bro. Fairchild's breast. It was a difficult moment for him, because no words of his could express how he appreciated, and the brethren appreciated, the services of Bro. Fairchild to the Lodge, knowing as he did that of all the distinguished Masters of the Lodge there had never been a worthier, or one who possessed to a greater extent all the good qualities which should appertain to a man and a Mason. Individually, he (the W.M.) had come into a closer contact with Bro. Fairchild than others, and he could say that in every matter of detail no trouble had been too great for him to take to help him (the W.M.) in his work. If he failed in any portion of it they must blame the pupil, not the master. Bro. Fairchild's services to all the Masonic Charities were known to the brethren of the Lodge, and to the whole Masonic body. Bro. Fairchild responded. He had done what he could in his little way to perform the duties of W.M properly. Not one of the nine meetings of the Lodge in twelve months had been without a great deal of Masonic work. Although he had left the chair, he should not relax any of his efforts for the welfare of the Asaph Lodge. He recognised the assistance he had received from the Officers he appointed a year ago, and particularly to Brother Chamberlin, Secretary. It was a large Lodge, numbering over 100 members. They had numerous meetings, and the details were very severe. No Master could have better assistance than he had had from Bro. Chamberlin. For the Visitors Bros. Dr. Spence, Tickle, C.C., T. Catling, and Fitzgerald responded. At this stage of the proceedings the W.M. and several other brethren were compelled to leave, but Bro. Fairchild, as locum tenen, did full justice to the remaining toast. A charming entertainment was given, it comprised recitations and vocal and instrumental music, by the following brethren, under the direction of Bro. A. Thomas: Bros. E. Terry, H. Reynolds, R. Temple, T. de B. Holmes, Albert James, Fred Bevan, J. A. Brown, J. Kift, John Maclean, Arthur Thomas, Ormond Yearsley, E. Frewin, Frank Stewart, J. Weaver, F. G., J. E., and J. C. Hambleton, C. Smith, Conford, Hastings, Beasley and Daubeny were elected members. Lodge was then formally closed.

THE OLD MASONIANS.

OUR "old boys" must not be angry with us when we say we were disappointed with their performance on Saturday last, at St. George's Hall. From a long experience we attribute their failure—if we may use so harsh a term—to their being over confident; they had not paid sufficient attention to rehearsals. The idea that men are "born actors," has long been exploded; and to secure a position in theatrical life, the student must work, hard and consistently, and must fully recognise the grave responsibilities he has embarked on. It has become recognised that a perfect performance cannot be secured unless all who are engaged enter thoroughly into the spirit of their work. Our friends must not despair—they will do much better yet, if they but "screw their courage to the sticking place." The ladies, unquestionably, must be awarded the palm of merit, while of the gentlemen those who most distinguished themselves were Messrs. Mark Paton, C. H. Uwins, G. A. Segar, and A. B. Whiteley. The attendance was not a large one, but this may be accounted for by the fact that there were several important meetings on the same evening that kept many friends of our "old boys" away. We, however, trust the fund for which the performance was given may not be overlooked by those who have hitherto supported the youngsters in their praiseworthy efforts. The selection of a piece resulted in the choice of the late H. J. Byron's comedy, in five acts, entitled "Cyril's Success." This was produced under the direction of Mr. Fred. Garteide. The following comprised the cast of characters:—Viscount Glycerine, Mr. R. H. Williams; Cyril Cuthbert (a popular author), Mr. A. G. Robinson; Major Treherne, M.P., Mr. C. H. Uwins; Hon. Fredk. Titeboy (a musical amateur), Mr. G. A. Segar; Mathew Pincher (a literary hack), Mr. A. B. Whiteley; Mr. Fitz Pelham (manager of the Polygon theatre), Mr. R. S. Chandler; Jonas Grimley (of Grimley Brothers, Paternoster Row), Mr. W. J. Packer; Colonel Rawker (unattached), Mr. J. C. Johnson; Paul Bingo, R.A., Mr. F. Dyer; Pepper, Mr. P. O'Doherty; Mrs. Cuthbert, Miss Lillie Russell; Miss Grannett (her old schoolmistress), Mrs. M. B. De Solla; Mrs. Singleton Bliss (a young widow), Miss Kate Osborne; Perkins (Mrs. Cuthbert's maid), Miss Gertrude Uwins; Members of the Grantley Club, Servants, &c., represented by Messrs. W. Booser, F. Crew, W. A. Glass, E. A. Gough, and A. Watkins.

Mr. Campbell Rae-Brown's new novel—to be published by Messrs. Dean and Son—is entitled "The Loveliest Woman in London." Its scenes are laid partly in Switzerland and partly in the fashionable quarter of the metropolis.

Messrs. Dean and Son (160A Fleet Street) have in the Press an important new serial dealing with Dogs, which will be illustrated with numerous portraits, and published at One Shilling. Amongst the contributors are Dr. Gordon Stables, Mr. Everett Millais, Mr. George R. Krehl, Mr. W. K. Taunton, and Mr. A. J. Sewell.

The Christmas part of "The Little One's Own Coloured Picture Paper" will be "A Welcome Friend," which will contain a humorous monotint presentation plate, entitled "Time, Please!"

THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE

SATURDAY, 9TH NOVEMBER 1889.

P.G. LODGE OF WEST YORKSHIRE.

A MEETING of this Provincial Grand Lodge was held in the Freemasons' Hall, Fitzwilliam Street, Huddersfield, on Wednesday, 16th ult., under the banner of the Albert Edward Lodge, No. 1783, when Bro. Thomas William Tew, J.P., Past G.D. of England, Provincial Grand Master presided, supported by Bro. Henry Smith, Past G.D. of England, Deputy Provincial Grand Master. There was a very large number of the members of the Province present, and the following Visitors—Bros. Rev. F. C. Bussell, M.A., P.G. Chaplain England, R. Hudson P.G. Secretary Durham, F. Preston P.P.G.W. Cheshire, Geo. W. Hudson P.G.W. North and East Yorkshire, Chas. S. Lane P.P.G.D. Durham, W. B. Dyson 1611, T. E. Jamieson 728, E. Wright 236, and M. Barrowclough 65, Victoria. The Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Thomas William Tew, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Henry Smith, and the Provincial Grand Officers entered at two o'clock, and Provincial Grand Lodge was opened in due form. After preliminaries, the roll of Lodges and the roll of Present Provincial Grand Officers was called. The minutes of the meeting held at Leeds on Wednesday, 10th of April 1889, were presented, when it was moved, seconded, and resolved, "That they be taken as read, and confirmed." The Provincial Grand Master delivered his address, which we published in our issue of the 26th ult. The Deputy Provincial Grand Master thanked the brethren cordially for their salutation, and impressed upon them the necessity of promptly signing their voting papers and returning them to their respective Charity Members. Bro. W. F. Smithson, Chairman of the Charity Committee, stated that, since the April meeting, West Yorkshire had presented one boy, and elected a second to the Schools, and had also been successful with three girls and three annuitants, two males and one widow. Bro. Smithson's statement was very cordially received. Bro. A. W. Stanfield moved, and Bro. Richardson seconded the following Resolution :—

"That this Provincial Grand Lodge receive and adopt the Report of the Committee appointed to inquire into the management of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys; and it trusts that steps will be taken to carry out the recommendations of the Committee, as stated on pages 46 and 47 of the Report, in order that no recurrence of the very serious abuses of the Charity may be possible in the future."

This was carried nem con. Bro. W. Harrop proposed, and Bro. Thos. Ruddock, seconded the following :—

"That the best thanks of Provincial Grand Lodge are due, and be given, to Bro. John C. Malcolm P.M. 306 P. Prov. Grand Registrar, for his valuable services as a member of the London Investigation Committee of the R.M.I. for Boys, so efficiently performed, at serious inconvenience and cost to himself, and that if Prov. G. Lodge consider it desirable he be re-imbursed his expenses out of pocket to the extent of fifty guineas."

This was also carried, and Bro. Malcolm suitably replied in acknowledgment. Bro. W. F. Smithson presented a petition for relief on behalf of Bro. W. D. Hall P.M. 337, and stated that the Committee had recommended £20, subject to the consent on the part of Provincial Grand Lodge to the suspension of By-Law 42. This being accorded, Bro. Smithson moved, Bro. Harrop seconded, and it was resolved, "That £20 be granted to Bro. W. D. Hall, and that he receive the money in weekly sums." The question of the retiring pension to be awarded to Bro. Binckes was then discussed, Bros. Smithson, Harrop, Tasker, and others taking part in it. As an expression of the opinion of Prov. Grand Lodge, it was eventually proposed by Bro. Wm. Harrop, "That this Prov. G. Lodge recommend that the pension to Bro. Binckes do not exceed £250 a year." This was seconded by Bro. Henry Oxley. An amendment, proposed by Bro. J. R. Dore, and seconded by Bro. W. Fisher Tasker, "That the amount do not exceed £200 per annum," was carried by a very large majority. After thanks, and fraternal good wishes and greetings from the distinguished visitors, Provincial Grand Lodge was closed in due form, and with solemn prayer, at 4·30 p.m. Dinner was served at the George Hotel, at five p.m. Some eighty brethren sat down, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master presiding.

On the proposition of Sir Knight Gover, Sir Knight D. Cross was unanimously elected Provincial Grand Treasurer. The Provincial Grand Prior then appointed and invested the following Sir Knights as his Officers for the year ensuing :—Provincial Great Officers—Sir Knights John Brewer Sub-Prior, the Rev. J. Dickinson Prelate, Hy. Stocker Chancellor, T. W. Coffin Chamberlain England Constable, J. Du Pre Marshal, D. Cross Treasurer, Jas. Griffin Registrar. The Provincial Officers appointed were :—Sir Knights G. W. Barnett Vice-Chancellor, Major Swann Sub-Marshal, the Rev. H. G. Morse Almoner and Chaplain, W. F. Westcott Warder of Regalia, J. R. Lord Herald, W. G. Hill 1st Stand. Bearer, H. Rogers 2nd Stand. Bearer, John Taylor Prior's B. Bearer, J. Chapman A.D.C., J. B. Gover Chamberlain, E. H. Shorto Captain of Guard, G. S. Lowe Sword Bearer, H. B. Stark Organist, and James Gidley Guard. The alms collected from the Knights were devoted to the Devon Masonic Educational Fund. Sir Knight John Chapman proposed, in a forcible speech, "That the Prov. Priory of Devonshire suggest to the National Great Priory of England that it is very desirable to amend the rule or regulation of the Order, by granting to all Sir Knights that have received Provincial honours, and that shall receive in the future Provincial rank, the right of past rank on the expiration of their term of office for so long as they shall remain subscribing members of the Order." The resolution was unanimously carried, and the meeting shortly after closed.

The Provincial Grand Chapter of West Yorkshire will be held at the Masonic Hall, South Parade, Huddersfield, on Wednesday, the 13th inst.

FOOD AND COOKERY EXHIBITION.

THE ordinary purchaser of an iron safe has little or nothing to guide him in the election of what has now become an almost indispensable article of furniture; he must be content to take the word of the salesman who supplies him, and must rest with his assurance that the article will fulfil its mission. When he remembers the importance of the books or other documents for which the safe is needed he may well quake, lest, in case of accident, it should not stand the test of fire, but, as we have said, he is virtually at the mercy of the seller. At the present time Messrs. F. Whitfield and Co., of Oxford-street, Birmingham, and 66 Holborn Viaduct, London, have on view, at the Food and Cookery Exhibition, a safe which in itself fully demonstrates the value of their manufacture. This safe has stood the test of fire—in Milton-street, City—and we are told by its owners that the contents were afterwards recovered from it safe and sound; much to their gratification, and very much to their surprise, for the fire was a fierce one, and the safe in the heat of it. This, and the fact that a new safe was at once ordered from Messrs. Whitfield is the best of evidence that their goods may be relied on, but in addition the firm can point to six prize medals (won at the exhibitions of London 1851, Paris 1878, Sydney 1879, Melbourne 1880, Adelaide 1881, and Calcutta 1884), besides a large home and foreign trade, while in regard to price their goods will stand comparison with those of any other house in the trade.

It is not always possible or convenient to have a fire in our office or bedroom, especially one that will last through a long night without attention. On this account many of us, year by year, dread the approach of cold weather, and live in a half-frozen state during its prevalence. Happily science has stepped in and is making rapid strides towards securing comfort, but unfortunately most of the inventions so far brought under the notice of the public have some drawback. Many of them are absolutely unhealthy on account of their noxious fumes. This is the case more particularly with heating and cooking stoves intended for gas, and this fault has done much to retard the general adoption of many handy and useful articles provided for general use. The fault, however, is now removed, an ingenious regulator having been invented by Mr. H. Cox, which blends the gas and air before it passes to the burner for ignition, thereby securing perfect combustion, preventing smell or fume of any kind, and dispensing with a flue altogether; besides which the whole of the heat is kept in the room, or used for cooking purposes, instead of, as was formerly the case, half of it escaping up the chimney; while the amount of gas used is considerably lessened. Messrs. Terranean and Co., of 123 Pall Mall, S.W. are the sole agents for this patent, and they are introducing the "Boudoir" gas stove, fitted with it, as well as supplying the regulator to be fitted to existing gas stoves. The "Boudoir" stoves, being very compact (12 inches diameter, by a height of 26 inches), can be placed in a small space, and it is believed that they will ultimately supersede hot water pipes, with their expensive cost, for Churches and public buildings, they are admirably suited for Masonic Halls, Lodge rooms, office and general use, and should at once secure a high position in public favour. At the Food and Cookery Exhibition, now open at the Agricultural Hall, Mr. Cox's patent is shown in various forms, while as proof of the thorough practicability of the invention we may add that "Bovril Limited" have adopted the regulators on the gas stoves working at their exhibit, and fully appreciate the advantages derived from its use.

Among the exhibits at the Food and Cookery Exhibition now open at the Agricultural Hall, London, are those of Messrs. Paine and Co., Brewers, Millers, &c., of St. Neots. This firm has long had its London Stores at Hornsey, and from them several of our readers have been supplied with the first class ale and stout for which Messrs. Paine and Co. are famous. We are pleased to hear that business has so extended in the metropolis that larger and more central premises are needed, and these have been secured at the Great Northern Railway Goods Department, at King's Cross, which will henceforth be the London address of the firm. Besides ale and stout, Messrs. Paine exhibit at the exhibition samples of their flour, and these seemed, on the occasion of our visit well worthy the attention of consumers. A prominent feature also are the official awards made them from the various exhibitions which they have entered. From one of these we learn that at Adelaide (1881), they received the "gold medal and first order of merit for bottled ale," their exhibit there being characterised as "a most refreshing ale of delicate and clear palate, combined with strength and undoubted keeping qualities—worthy of the highest award." This is most gratifying testimony for any firm to receive, and it has undoubtedly done much to secure for Messrs. Paine the large forcing trade they now enjoy. They also have an extensive home and family connection, while their specialities are well worth more extended patronage.

There is probably no better known figure in civic and Masonic circles than Major George Lambert, F.S.A., Prime Warden of the Goldsmiths' Company. Major Lambert is one of the few members of the Courts of the great companies, at least, who is a member of the trade to the Guild of which he belongs, and may be seen any day attending to business in his old-fashioned shop at the top of the Haymarket, whose windows are just the same now as they were when the house was built in the good old Georgian days. Major Lambert, who is a Past Grand Sword Bearer, and Past Provincial Grand Warden of Hertfordshire, is a patron of the three great Masonic Charities, and to all poor and distressed Masons a munificent benefactor. One of the earliest volunteers, he is an enthusiastic soldier, and as stout and loyal a subject as any of the old race of London citizens who in time of trouble quitted themselves like men. Major Lambert is an antiquarian, whose technical knowledge of matters concerning antique gold and silver plate is proverbial.

After the minutes of the August Convocation had been read and confirmed, the report of the Committee of General Purposes, as published by us last week, was taken as read and duly confirmed. With respect to the other business, Comp. Letchworth moved, and Comp. Philbrick seconded, a resolution that the Grand Chapter of Victoria be recognised, and that fraternal communication be established between the two Grand Chapters, and the same was unanimously carried. Comp. Letchworth moved, and Comp. Frank Richardson seconded, the other recommendations. These also were unanimously carried. Grand Chapter was then closed.

At the monthly meeting of the General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, on Thursday, the 1st inst., at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. Robert Grey, P.G.D., in the chair, Bros. Dawson, Mintz, Kentish, Nash, Johnson, and Money were proposed for election to the vacancies on the Finance Committee at next meeting.

As will be seen by an advertisement, which appears in another column of this issue, applications are invited for the post of Head Master to the Royal Masonic School for Boys. The successful candidate will have to enter upon his duties on the 1st of January next.

NEW MUSIC.

All Music intended for review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, Belvidere Works, Hermes Hill, Pentonville, London, N.

—:o:—

"Jack's Wedding Morn." Song. Written by Clifton Bingham, composed by F. Boscovitz.

"Were I the River." Song. Written by Clifton Bingham, composed by Tito Mattei.

"Lead them Straight." Song. Written by Frederick Langbridge, M.A., composed by William Smallwood.

London: CHAPPELL AND Co., 50 New Bond Street, W.

THE first of these songs is of the popular kind, and if not having anything special to recommend it, has the advantage of being of a description that is sure to please. F. Boscovitz is the composer; his music is tuneful and bright. Clifton Bingham and Tito Mattei's "Were I the River" is a splendid song; the words are good, while the music is of an exceptionally pretty character. This song is sure to be welcomed wherever sung. A fine martial ditty, with a good swinging chorus, is "Lead them Straight." The words are excellent, while the music is of a description that stirs up to such a pitch that one feels inclined to join. "Lead them Straight" will be a favourite at smoking concerts.

"In Dreamland." Song. Written by D'Arcy Jaxone, composed by Henri Logé.

"The Lifeboatman." Song. Written and composed by H. Trotère.

"John's Wife." Song. Written by Frederic E. Weatherly, composed by J. L. Roeckel.

"The Vampire." Song. Written by Henry Martingale, composed by Michael Watson.

"Heaven on Earth." Song. Written by Arthur Chapman, composed by Franco Novara.

"The Stars are with the Voyager." Song. Written by Thomas Hood, composed by Henri Logé.

"Espanita." Song. Written by F. Bowyer, composed by Antonio L. Mora.

London: ASCHERBERG AND Co., 46 Berners Street, W.

DOUBTLESS the majority of our readers have already become acquainted with Miss Marion Hood's song in "Ruy Blas," entitled "In Dreamland." To those who have not, we can strongly recommend it. Henri Logé's music is bright, and the words so graceful, that it is sure to become popular. "The Lifeboatman" is a nautical theme; the music tuneful and spirited, while the words are pathetic and natural. "John's Wife" is another capital song, the words showing how a wife grows old in love. It has been put to appropriate music by J. L. Roeckel. For bass or baritone singers "The Vampire" is well suited; Michael Watson's music is rollicking, bright, and spirited, and of an effective character. "Heaven on Earth," by A. Chapman and Franco Novara, and "The Stars are with the Voyager," by Thomas Hood and Henri Logé, are pretty compositions, which we feel sure will be heard frequently during the winter. "Espanita" is a Spanish love song, composed expressly for and sung by Madame Marie Roze. The burden of the music is of such an exceptionally tuneful description that any one singing it cannot fail to readily win the favour of an audience.

"Gipsy Life." Song. Written by Lindsay Lennox, composed by Arnold Bruce.

"Only Yesterday." Song. Written and composed by Lindsay Lennox.

"The Norseman." Song. Written by Frederick Edwards, composed by Kent Sutton.

London: WILCOCK BROS., City Music Stores, Moorgate Station Arcade, E.C.

NOTHING prettier than these three need be wished for. The first —"Gipsy Life"—is, as the title implies, of a roving description, and the music by Arnold Bruce is so cheery and taking that we feel sure it will be eagerly sought after. "Only Yesterday" is another capital composition, with violin obbligato. The theme is pretty, while the music is tuneful and bright. We can also recommend Kent Sutton's "The Norseman;" the melody is effective and the refrain is one that can easily be taken up and remembered.

"If at your Window, Love." Song. Written by R. S. Hickens, composed by Ethel Harraden. London: FORSYTH BROS., 272A Regent Circus, W.

THIS is a love ballad, composed by Ethel Harraden, who has set R. S. Hickens' words to some pretty and airy music. Such a piece as the above is always welcome, not only in the concert hall, but in the drawing room, inasmuch as it is a composition that must leave a pleasant impression on its hearers.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Counsel for the delicate. Those to whom the changeable temperature is a protracted period of trial should seek the earliest opportunity of removing all obstacles to good health. This cooling Ointment, perseveringly rubbed upon the skin, is the most reliable remedy for overcoming all diseases of the throat and chest. Quinsey, relaxed tonsils, sore throat, swollen glands, ordinary catarrh, and bronchitis, usually prevailing at this season, may be arrested as soon as discovered, and every symptom banished by Holloway's simple and effective treatment. This Ointment and Pills are highly commended for the facility with which they successfully contend with influenza; they allay in an incredibly short time the distressing fever and teasing cough.

DIARY FOR THE WEEK.

We shall be obliged if the Secretaries of the various Lodges throughout the Kingdom will favour us with a list of their Days of Meetings, &c., as we have decided to insert only those that are verified by the Officers of the several Lodges.

EADE'S
GOUT & RHEUMATIC PILLS.

The SAFEST and most EFFECTUAL CURE for GOUT, RHEUMATISM, and all PAINS in the HEAD, FACE, and LIMBS.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL from the Rev. F. FARVIS, Baptist Minister.

Mr. G. EADE. March 19, 1887.

Dear Sir,—I have many times felt inclined to inform you of the benefit I have received by taking your Gout and Rheumatic Pills. After suffering for some time from Rheumatics and Sciatica, I was advised to use your Pills. I bought a bottle, and when in severe pain and unable to use the limb affected I took a dose. In a few hours after I felt the pain much better, and after the second dose the pain completely removed and the limb restored to its right use. I thank you, dear sir, for sending forth such a boon for the relief of human suffering.

Yours faithfully,
F. FARVIS,
Baptist Minister.

There are multitudes of people who look upon advertising as a sort of Lottery, and bestow infinitely more thought in the selection of a clerk at £100 a year than in the expenditure of £1000, or two in the same period in advertising. A tithe of the shrewdness displayed in all other branches of their business given to the management of their advertising will be amply repaid. The ADVERTISEMENT AGENT has become an indispensable factor in this matter of publicity, and his raison d'être is perfectly unassailable. Would you leave or enter a port without a pilot? Would you commence and prosecute a law suit without a legal adviser? Either of these courses would not be more foolish than rushing into expenses in Advertising without a competent practical and professional adviser. I am at all times happy to render advertisers every assistance in my power, and to give them the benefit of the experience I have gained during the past twenty years as a London advertising agent. Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist's Testimonial.

My Dear Doctor,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

This is to certify: That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

Are universally admitted to be worth a Guinea a Box for Nervous and Bilious Disorders, such as wind and pain in the stomach, sick headache, giddiness, fullness and swelling after meals, dizziness and drowsiness, cold chills, flushings of heat, loss of appetite, shortness of breath, costiveness, scurvy, blotches on the skin, disturbed sleep, frightful dreams, and all nervous and trembling sensations, &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes. This is no fiction, for they have done it in thousands of cases. Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all humours, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no medicine to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

For a weak stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the liver they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse in action with the ROSEBUD of health the whole physical energy of the human frame. These are the "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of society, and one of the best guarantees to the nervous and debilitated, is that

LODGE HISTORIES.

—:o:—

THE LODGE OF PROBITY, No. 61.

WE have now to record the working of the Lodge of Promulgation referred to in our last summary. The minutes being considered as of great interest, and perhaps worthy of special reference by other Lodges, the whole are reproduced in the History before us. It appears the Royal Yorkshire Lodge, No. 503, Keighley, having sent an invitation to the Lodge of Probity, the members went to Keighley, and there formed the Lodge of Promulgation, being met by members of the Philanthropic, No. 540; Three Graces, No. 541; Amity, No. 280; and a Bingley Lodge, in addition to those who had sent the invitation. "The day was spent in the most agreeable and proper manner, and the whole departed to their own homes much gratified." The Lodge being opened in due and proper form, the Officers and Brethren of the Royal Yorkshire were proposed to be obligated according to the Articles of Union. They were unanimously accepted and accordingly obligated in the first degree, after which similar propositions and obligations took place in regard to the other Lodges represented. Resolutions were agreed to in regard to payment of the expenses, and the various Lodges receiving the degrees were restricted in regard to communication of them to others. Subsequent minutes of this Lodge of Promulgation relate to the second and third degrees, the lectures and so forth. On the 28th April 1815, a meeting was held at Halifax, for the purpose of admitting members of the Amphibious Lodge, of that town, and they paid their £4 4s accordingly. Next day the Lodge of Promulgation met at Rossendale, Tranquillity and Silent Temple Lodges joining the combination, and contributing the agreed sum. Altogether, sixteen Lodges of the neighbourhood received the new rules and regulations through the Lodge of Promulgation started by the Lodge of Probity, the brethren of which latter body seems to have been most assiduous in their exertions to give the necessary instructions. The reading of these minutes is very interesting at the present time, and gives us a far greater insight into the "mysteries" of the Union than anything we have yet perused. They go to prove the care and ability that was displayed by the rulers of the Order in those days to ensure a thorough understanding between the two opposing sections than had previously existed.

One of the principal acts of the Lodge of Promulgation was the voting of an address to the Duke of Sussex, M.W. G.M., congratulating him on the Union, and expressing the loyalty of the Lodges forming the Special Lodge here referred to. This was graciously acknowledged, and copies of both the address and reply are given in the History before us.

The year 1816 opened in the Probity Lodge in a very quiet and inauspicious manner after the busy times of the two preceding years. It was found necessary to thoroughly revise the Bye Laws, so as to adapt them to the new state of things. A subscription was made during the year towards the funds of Grand Lodge, when the sum of £5 5s was raised, "to be used for repairs which were required." A new Tyler being needed a Mr. Benj. Wood was initiated, appointed as Tyler, and entrusted with the badge of the office. He had, however, previously signed an agreement in which he declared on his honour that, if elected, he would not communicate any of the proceedings of the Lodge to any one not a member, without orders from the Master; that he would punctually obey the orders of the Master, and fulfil his duty to the Lodge to the best of his power.

On the 1st October 1816 occurs an important minute, to the effect that "owing to the great increase of Lodges in the Province, and for the better working of the same, it was advisable that the Province should be divided." This we presume, may be regarded as the first step towards the division of the Province, which followed the presentation of this petition. This is regarded by the historian of the Probity Lodge—and justly so—as a most important event in the career of his Lodge, and he accordingly devotes a special chapter to the subject, which we shall deal with in due course.

About this time it was found necessary to order the Tyler to "refuse admission to any member whom he perceived to be intoxicated," also to exclude any member not clean and decently clad with a white neck-cloth and in proper clothing," while in regard to visitors none were to be admitted who had "not proper clothing according to the regulations of the Craft," it being expressly ordered that no visitor be admitted "with a color'd neck-cloth." The fee for visiting was 1s 6d.

On 6th March 1817 an address was voted to H.R.H. the Prince Regent, congratulating him on his escape from the late daring attempt to assassinate him, and it was recommended the address should be presented to H.R.H. by Bro. Lord George Beresford, who was one of those initiated in the Lodge of Probity. The address was regularly presented and properly acknowledged, and, as Bro. Crossley puts it, affords another proof of the loyalty and attachment the brethren of that time had for the Throne and the rulers of the Craft, an attachment which it is hoped will always exist.

The accounts of the Chapter of Sincerity and the Craft Lodge appear to have been kept together at this time, and the proceedings of the former are frequently referred to in the records of the latter. The Chapter received its charter from Grand Chapter in 1818, the number being changed from 73 to 84, the same number as that of the Probity Lodge, with which it was henceforth to be associated.

Various difficulties having arisen in regard to the working or management of some of the sister Lodges, the aid of "Probity" was sought, and a satisfactory settlement was arrived at in the several cases, thus showing the Lodge of Probity was still looked up to by its neighbours, and that it still exercised a kind of supervision. We now arrive at an unfortunate gap in the records of the Lodge, the minute books from 4th April 1822 to 20th December 1847 being missing. Every effort has been made, we are told, to trace these records but so far without avail, although hopes have not yet been wholly abandoned. We should very much like to be the means of restoring these records to the Lodge of Probity, and if any of our readers should ever come across them they will perhaps remember with what pleasure they would be hailed by our brethren of Halifax.

FREEMASONRY—ITS MEANING AND INFLUENCE.

THE most important step in the advancement of a candidate for the mysteries of Freemasonry is what is known as the shock of enlightenment, when there rings in upon his ears that grand announcement, "And God said, let there be light, and there was light." This shock of enlightenment is intended to symbolise the change which is now taking place in the intellectual condition of the candidate. He now beholds the form of the Lodge room, and sees the brethren standing around him, a solid phalanx of friendship to assist him in every glorious undertaking. He beholds the greater and the three lesser lights of Masonry. The Holy Bible is given him as the rule and guide of his faith; the square to square his actions; and the compasses to circumscribe his passions and desires in due bounds with all mankind, especially with brother Masons. The Holy Bible is to teach him his duty to God; the square, his duty to his fellow men; the compasses, his duty to Masons. He is reminded that the serious work of life has now begun. He is provided with working tools. He is taught that on his own efforts depends his future success. A holy ambition is inspired within his soul to excel in all laudable undertakings. The Entered Apprentice degree represents and provides for the period of youth. The follies of idleness, intemperance and sensuality are pictured before him, and he is exhorted to honour the name of God, to act on the square with all men and to avoid all intemperance and irregularity, which may impair his faculties or debase the dignity of his profession. The second degree of Masonry symbolises the stage of manhood. The lessons of wisdom and virtue which he received in his youth, as an Entered Apprentice, are now to produce their active fruits. The working and thinking period of life has now arrived. The rewards of industry are set forth in most impressive emblematic forms, and the candidate is taught that by faithful work, in due time, he will be entitled to receive wages. The second degree illustrates the power of the human mind. The duty of study and investigation is inculcated. The reasoning faculty is called forth.

But the true beauty and resplendent glories of Masonry are seen in the sublime degree of a Master Mason, which symbolizes the stage of old age after the period of active life has been passed. Those virtues are taught and hopes inspired which are calculated to comfort one's declining days, and prepare us for the exalted joys of the future glorious existence. As an Entered Apprentice the Mason is taught those elementary principles which are to fit him to confront the temptations and grapple with the ambitions of opening manhood; as a Fellow Craft, he is taught to continue his investigations, and patiently to climb the mountain of knowledge and to economize the forces of life by concentration, instead of expending them by diffusion; as a Master Mason he is taught that truth so hard to learn, which the seasons and passing years and the tolling bell and the open grave are constantly preaching to us, that he must die and present his work for inspection to the Supreme Builder. The Master Mason represents man after all the labours of life are over; it is the time of fleeting shadows and farewells spoken hopefully, and yearnings for a sight of the heavenly temple. The Master Mason is a pilgrim watching for the dawn of the morning, to which so many of the emblems about him give direction. In his advancement the working tools are laid aside, and the sprig of acacia is cherished as the eloquent expression of his belief in the immortality of the soul. To him—

> "Solemn strikes the funeral chime, > Notes of his departing time."

And as—

> "Calmly the good man meets his fate,
> Guards celestial round him wait,
> When he bursts the mortal chains,
> And over death the victory gains."

Thus we have indicated the meaning of Masonry—may we not estimate its influence beyond all human computation? Who can measure manhood and character and good deeds? Who can follow the results of heart-Masonry in the world? Masonry is an attempt to carry over and concentrate the results and victories of the past into the present and future. It is the vehicle in which the experience of one age is transported into the succeeding age. Nearly all the institutions of man are coeval only with the age in which they are founded. Politics and political parties are constantly changing. They are only the scaffolding with which to construct new apartments in the temple of state, and when these are completed they are torn down. Social customs are born and die with an age. Methods of business—the forms of social and domestic life—the usages and forms of governments—are never uniform. One of the glories of Masonry is that it is uniform clear around the globe. An age may come and an age may go, but Masonry still remains the same institution of fraternal greetings, of mutual assistance, and social concord. The old man departs, and the young man is initiated, and a new membership occupies the seats of the Lodge, but there has been no change in the institution. We of the present age will load the vessel with the rich cargo of our noblest resolutions, our holiest aspirations, our most heroic sacrifices, and the storm of death may remove us from the management of the Royal Craft, but she still sails on down the stream of time, touching at the harbour of every year till time shall be no more.

Masonry, therefore, is an attempt to establish a permanent good in society. It is an effort to realise in the social sphere what the builders of the Pyramids sought to realise in the sphere of the material. It is said that the shadows of the Pyramids fell upon Abraham and his flock as he journeyed toward the Land of Promise, and we know that scarcely any change will be wrought in them during the next thousand years; but when the mutations of time have levelled even these Pyramids to the ground, Masons will exchange greetings by the same mystic words and forms as they do now, and the same indissoluble links will hold them together as bind them now—links which are designed not only to bind human hearts together, but the years and centuries as well.

Masonry has emphasized a larger life for the race. It announces the liberty of the choice of companions. It insists that the ties of the heart are the only ties that cannot be broken. It lifts its wings of peace over society and says, "Let the strife of sects cease and let brotherhood prevail." A true definition of a Mason therefore is one who lives at peace with his neighbours, who is allied with all constructive forces of society and whose influence ever bears on the true, the beautiful and the good. Wherever a Mason goes he is sure to meet friends. The word stranger is unknown within the sacred portals of the Lodge. Masonry is built on practical benevolence—not only wishing well but doing well. It means relieve the sick, care for the widow and orphan, and bury the dead. It means take stones of offence and stumbling out of the way of your fellows, and give every one an equal chance to succeed. It means self-control—the harmonious development of every faculty and force of your nature—inspiration to everything good—determent from everything wrong—charitable judgments and generous sympathies. But there is one danger in the way of all such institution, which I feel it my duty to warn you against, viz: the sinking of your individuality in the Lodge. You are not necessarily a decent man because you are a Mason, but a decent man as a Mason is a very fine recommendation of the institution. Manhood must stand first. People judge the Lodge by what it does for you. A Lodge is very much like a church—we judge it by the people that are in it. We are first made Masons in our hearts, not in the Lodge. Masonry is not the end but the means to the end. It is to make you better men; it is to give you larger hearts; it is to make your lives musical. I look upon Masonry as a sailor does upon his ship. It is a noble craft we are sailing on down the stream of time. The fore-top gallant and the main mizzen masts are spreading the canvas majestically to the breeze. The fore royals and main royals and studding sails are pressing against the storms as if the spirit of Neptune possessed them, and the heavy, rolling seas of our turbulent life swing them across the heavens with regular sweep and irresistible force. There is life on the vessel. There is hope. There is charity that reaches high as heaven and covers the earth. There is the championship of royal hearts. There is the fire of unchangeable friendship. There is the angel of down-reaching mercy and tender sympathy, unseen by mortal eyes, but whose ministry goes on unwearied and unbroken, making earth ever so much like we would wish heaven to be. Down the stream of time she glides, sweeping the shores of every land, touching at the harbour of every home, welcomed by all who long to see good triumph, the ripple of the waves against her hull making music to every heart.

This is the ship we are sailing on. The crew is changing all the time, but the pennant flows ever the same, inscribed with the mystic insignia of our Order. The time is soon coming when we will be summoned from her decks, but others will step forward to man her yards and climb her ratlines. She will doubtless have a better crew and sail under fairer skies and on smoother waters, but let it be said of us that we manned her faithfully in our day and sent her down to coming ages surcharged with a precious cargo of knowledge, hope and truth.—Rev. Bro. S. C. Busser, Grand Orator, Kansas.

THE THEATRES, &c.

—o:—

Olympia.—The thousands of visitors who witnessed the initial performance of Mr. Barnum's circus and exhibition last Monday must certainly have been of opinion that in quantity, variety and general excellence the enterprising showman has fully justified his proud pretension that it is "the greatest show on earth." Nothing of the same magnitude has ever been seen in England, and, though there is little novelty to chronicle, there are so many attractions and such a diversity of performances that it will necessitate frequent visits before all can be seen. The circus proper presents a perfect puzzle to the spectator, and the mind becomes bewildered and confused at so many things taking place at one and the same time. There are three distinct circles and two platforms, constantly occupied with performers of various kinds, who succeed one another with amazing rapidity, until at length one is tempted to cry out, "Hold, enough." In all there are twelve "displays," amounting to upwards of fifty different performances, and we may therefore be excused from describing them, as with a single exception they have all been seen before. This latter is Mr. John O'Brien's five-horse tandem hurdle race, which is both startling and graceful. There are also several other races which appeal strongly to our national character and cause considerable excitement. Two hours are allowed previous to each performance for the inspection of the "freaks," the menagerie and stables, and the visitor will be well repaid for the time spent. The animals, of which there are over a hundred different species, are all remarkably fine and healthy, while the horses are of great beauty. The "freaks," or natural curiousities, are chiefly noticeable for their contrasts: thus we have a tiny manikin of twenty-seven inches placed by side of the two Cowboy Giants; there is a gentleman with feet but no legs alongside another individual who was born without arms; the living skeleton naturally comes next to the fat lady, and the beautiful Circassian, the bearded lady and the Zulus bring us to the pair of Aztecs, the lowest type of humanity. Then there are several ladies arranged in various positions, so that by means of a clever optical delusion they appear to be cut in half, one being made up to represent a mermaid. Lastly we have our old friend Jumbo, who returns to us in duplicate, that is to say there is his stuffed hide on one side of the entrance and his skeleton on the other, so that altogether it may be easily imagined that the two hours slip quickly by. The entertainment concludes with a gorgeous spectacle entitled "Nero, or the Destruction of Rome," in which the entire strength of the show, assisted by some hundreds of supernumeries take part. Mr. Barnum received quite an ovation as he drove round the arena on Monday night, and we cordially trust that the success of his first performance may be an augury of a prosperous visit to this country.

The Royalty will re-open on Wednesday next, the 20th instant, under the direction of Messrs Augustus Harris, Henry Watkin, and Arthur Roberts, with a musical extravaganze by Cecil Raleigh and Walter Slaughter, entitled "The New Corsican Brothers, in which Mr. Arthur Roberts and a powerful company will appear.

As will be seen by an advertisement that appears in another column an appeal is being made on behalf of the widow of Bro. Frederick David Delevante, a well known member of the Musical Profession (for over 37 years Musical Director at Madame Tussaud's), who died, after a short illness, at his residence at Acton, leaving a widow and two daughters almost totally unprovided for. Since this loss, the anxieties of the widow have been intensified by the death of Miss Sophie Delevante. Various promises of aid have already been received, and with characteristic liberality Brother Edward Terry has placed his Theatre and services at the disposal of the Committee, and other eminent members of the Dramatic and Musical Professions have generously consented to assist at a matinée, which will take place on Thursday, the 28th inst., by which it is hoped a considerable sum may be realised. The publisher of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE will be pleased to forward tickets to any brother who may feel inclined to assist the widow.

The Mohawk Minstrels will celebrate the inauguration of their seventeenth year at the Agricultural Hall, to night (Saturday), by a grand operatic night, including selections from "Il Trovatore," concluding with the famous "Anvil Chorus."

The Alhambra announce the exclusive engagement of Sandow, the pupil of Professor Attila, both of whom will appear (for the first time) on Monday evening next, the 18th inst.

The London acting managers have, in meeting assembled, decided that they should have a club of their own, which will be formed immediately. Mr. Charles Morton has been asked to be the first President, and the following is a list of the officials:—Treasurer, Mr. W. H. Griffiths; Secretary, Mr. H. T. Brickwell. Committee: Messrs. C. J. Abud, W. Greet, R. D'Albertson, E. F. Bradley, Harrington Baily, H. A. Freeman and J. E. Hollingshead. The subscription fee will be five guineas per annum, and the club premises will be in a central position.

NEW MUSIC.

All Music intended for review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, Belvidere Works, Hermes Hill, Pentonville, London, N.

—:o:—

"Will you come back to me?" Song. Written and composed by Frank L. Moir.

"On Conway Quay." Song. Written by Clifton Bingham, composed by H. Trotère.

"An Evening Melody." Song. Written by Clifton Bingham, composed by Joseph Barnby.

London: W. MORLEY AND Co., 127 Regent Street, W.

THE first of these is in Frank L. Moir's best style, and should add to that composer's fame. The words are interesting, while the theme is of a very tuneful and bright description. "On Conway Quay" is also a good composition. Clifton Bingham has written the rhymes, and H. Trotère has set them to some spirited and melodious music. The refrain is taking and will become popular. A pretty and catchy song is "An Evening Melody;" it has been written by Clifton Bingham, and composed by Joseph Barnby. The music is certainly all that can be wished for, the taking and effective strains being in good taste to the words. All these songs are neatly got up, and, we are disposed to predict, will be frequently heard.

"The Turned-down Page." Song. Written and composed by Harriet Kendall.

"Never to Meet." Song. Written by G. Clifton Bingham, composed by E. M. Flavell.

"The Lovers of Linger Lane." Song. Written by G. S. Jealous, composed by Max Maile.

"Leoline." Song. Written by the Earl of Lytton, composed by Isidore de Lara.

"I wait for thee!" Song. Written by William Toynbee, composed by H. Bemberg.

"Bird that art Singing." Song. Written by Mrs. Hemans, composed by Ernest R. Newton.

"The Beauteous Flowers." Song. Written by A. J. Marriott, composed by C. H. R. Marriott.

London: B. MOCATTA AND Co., 37 Berners Street, W.

THE above capital selection of songs are worth the attention of vocalists. "The Turned-down Page" is a bright and attractive theme, written and composed by Harriet Kendall. It is dedicated to Rupert Garry, Esq., F.S.L.A. Once more G. Clifton Bingham is to the fore; this time with words for "Never to Meet," while the melody has been composed by E. M. Flavell. In all respects this is a pretty song, the burden of the music being of a very taking and tuneful description. G. S. Jealous and Max Maile's "The Lovers of Linger Lane" is also to be recommended; its appropriate music to some graceful words make an agreeable composition, and one that should be a favourite. The Earl of Lytton (Owen Meredith) is responsible for the verses of "Leoline," while Isidore de Lara is the composer. Both have done good work, with result that a capital song is the issue. "I wait for thee" is a love ballad, set to tuneful and melodious music by H. Bemberg. The melody is effective, and will be a favourite in the drawing room. "Bird that art Singing" is a pretty little ditty, composed by Ernest R. Newton, whose music is of a nature that cannot fail to put an audience in the best of humours. The last of this selection—"The Beauteous Flowers"—is one that ought to help artists to easily decide what to sing. A. J. Marriott and C. H. R. Marriott are responsible for it, and a more tuneful composition could not be wished for. The melody is soft and most attractive, and admirably suited to the words. We shall expect to hear these songs frequently during the forthcoming winter months.

The brethren of the Barnato Lodge, No. 2265, announce that their second annual Ball (in aid of their Masonic Benevolent Fund) will take place at the Hotel Metropole, Whitehall Rooms, on Tuesday, 7th January 1890. In order that proper arrangements may be made, it is requested that an early application for Tickets (which are strictly limited) should be made, to one or other of the following Stewards:—Bros. M. J. Jessop W.M., 11 Priory Villas, Sydenham; J. Joel Treasurer, 20 Devonshire Terrace, Hyde Park; M. J. De Leeuw Secretary, Belitha Villas, Barnsbury; S. B. Joel J.W., 20 Devonshire Terrace, Hyde Park; T. Honey S.D., 211 South Lambeth Road, S.W.; E. J. Acworth J.D., "Homeleigh," Ealing, W.; A. Levy D.C., 193 Hatton Garden; H. Barnato, 84 Hatton Garden; Hugo Warner, 17 Hatton Garden.

The brethren of the East Surrey Lodge of Concord, No. 463, had a very pleasant meeting on Wednesday last, when Brother George Price, Provincial Grand Treasurer Surrey, was presented with a splendidly executed portrait, in recognition of his having reached the jubilee of his association with the Lodge. A full report will be given in our next issue.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS AND ITS SECRETARY.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Your contemporary has given admission, without editorial note or comment, to a letter signed "E. V. GREATBACH," the statements in which are so outrageous that I cannot refrain from reply. Conceding, for the sake of argument, the disclaimer of "malignity," on the part of "some of us, at least," what is to be said of that which really appears to be a wilful disregard of veracity? If statements are put forth as authentic—if figures are quoted as accurate—and vouched for as such by the signature of the writer, when the absolute reverse is the case, and when information could be readily ascertained by inquiry, what conclusion is naturally arrived at? Utterly ignoring the primary lessons of Freemasonry, it would seem that the mot d'ordre is—vilify and traduce, without measure and without stint,—and so create a justification for pertinaciously running to earth a Brother who is not chargeable with any offence, but whose long official career has met with continuous approval,—until an opinion is suddenly arrived at that he has been too energetic in the discharge of his duties, and that although his efforts have been uninterruptedly successful there are faults of an administrative nature, for which he must be made a scapegoat and be relegated to the uncovenanted mercies of a relentless, vindictive minority. And now for the figures, which have the imprimatur of "E. V. GREATBACH;" but prefatorily let me notice the unfairness displayed in assuming the salary of the Secretary as £700 per annum from the commencement of his duties, in 1861, when the remuneration was £150 per annum on an income of about £2,500. This amount was increased from time to time, but it was not until the lapse of some years that the present amount of £700 was reached. The income has been increased from £2,500 to an average of £14,000, while in the period from 1861 to 1883 the sum of nearly £90,000 has been raised for the purchase of land and erection of School Buildings, with the funded property improved from £11,000 to £17,000. The "£700 per annum" is supplemented by

1.—"Average Annual Donation from Festival Stewards' Lists £125."

This is the most intolerable, as it is the most untenable, attempt to mislead that has been perpetrated throughout this miserable controversy.

The surplus from the Stewards' Festival Fund for 22 years, 1868-1889, has been £2,156; of this I have been the grateful recipient of an average of not quite £50 per annum, instead of £125.

2.—"Secretary to Grand Mark Lodge" £250

Of this, from the time of its first payment until June 1889, I have voluntarily surrendered, for remuneration of Clerk, or Assistant Grand Secretary, £125 per annum, so that deducting this sum £125, and the Average Stewards' Surplus £125 — £50, £75 = £200, from £1,075, leaves £875, a difference perhaps scarcely worth consideration by one whose mission would seem to have been to detect inaccuracies in others.

With a necessitated annual expenditure of not less than £100, entirely in association with official position; legal expenses, and unfortunate investments, the "hope" indulged in by your correspondent as not "unreasonable," must be abandoned, and the truth confessed that "Bro. Binckes has 'not' been happy enough to be able to make liberal provision for himself"—as, despite the obstacles stated, he might perhaps have done had the figures under review correctly represented the condition of affairs.

Faithfully and fraternally yours,

FREDERICK BINCKES.

London, 13th November 1889.

REITERATION.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—King Charles's Head once more; this time the ghastly and repulsive subject takes the form of "The Inquiry Commission." I am a diner out, and spend a fair proportion of my evenings in Masonic Lodges, and having nothing particular to do, am at all times ready for a run out if there is anything Masonic on the way. I look back with trepidation when I remember what a surfeit we had at prominent gatherings when our W.M.'s never tired of alluding to the "memorable occasion, &c., &c., when our Most Worshipful the Grand Master was installed at the Albert Hall." In due course, however, this special "head" for a discourse became the signal for interruption, and the theme was changed. We have since had several phases of the apparition, but ridicule has been the most potent factor to place the troublesome spirit in a safe and sacred repository. Now, Sir, my object in writing to you is to suggest we have had enough of the Inquiry Commission, and, as it is a recognised fact that the discussion of questions wherever there exists any likelihood of a difference of opinion cropping up—such for instance as politics or religion—should be tabooed, I think we might extend our limit to the subject I now have under consideration. Bro. Philbrick, when he presented the Report, said it had been drafted "without fear, favour, or affection"; whether it was ever intended to make the Report a bone of contention or not, I leave others to decide. We do not all agree with its contents, and consequently many of us object to its introduction at our Masonic festivities At a recent meeting Brother Philbrick is reported as having said "They (the Inquiry Commission) might, it was quite true, have endeavoured to do that which painters do when they leave their work—put on a coat of varnish—and he could assure them it would have been much more congenial to that Committee if they could have said that which would have done as well, and felt they could do it and look their brethren in the face." Our learned brother will pardon me if I venture to suggest that a painter who desires to preserve his work, and hopes to make it a beauty and a thing for ever does not spare the varnish, and I am weak enough to imagine that in this case the administration of a fair coat would not have been detrimental.

Yours faithfully,

SANDOW.

Obituary.

BRO. JOHN ECCLES, 1991.

THE funeral of Bro. John Eccles, Treasurer of the Agricola Lodge, No. 1991, took place at York, on the 31st ult., when the brethren paid a last tribute of respect to his memory. At one o'clock the brethren and visitors assembled at the Masonic Hall, Castle-gate, York, where the Worshipful Master, Bro. John H. Taylor, opened a Lodge of Sorrow, and thence proceeded, with the brethren, to the church of St. Maurice, Monkgate, where the first portion of the Burial Service of the Established Church was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. F. G. Sandford, and the Curate, the Rev. H. E. Booty. The funeral cortège thence wended its way to the Cemetery, where the interment took place in the presence of a large representative body of the Craft and of friends and neighbours of the deceased. After the concluding prayers had been said by Mr. Sandford, the brethren filed past the grave, into which they dropped sprigs of acacia, in accordance with the Masonic rite After the funeral the brethren returned to their meeting-place, where the Lodge was resumed, and a vote of condolence with the widow and family of the departed brother was passed, on the proposition of the Worshipful Master, seconded by the Immediate Past Master, and supported by the Senior Deacon. At the Lodge of Sorrow those present were the W.M., Bro. John H. Taylor, presiding, the officers supporting him being Bros. White I.P.M., J. E. Wilkinson S.W., W. Harper Wigham S.D., George Manton J.D., Thomas Laverack Sec., D. Young I.G., E. Osborne T., W. Johnson Std. The members present included Bros. W. H. Beckwick, Thomas Bouttell, Joseph Booth, Charles Garrood, Francis Buckton, Robert A. Young, John Riley, Thomas Moyser, C. H. S. Brooke, J. Wilson, Paul Pearson, A. Sollitt, and John Sutcliffe; and the visitors Bros. J. A. McGee, St. Georges 190 S.C., Walter J. Cramp 437, and A. Bellerby 1611. Several other Masons were present at the church and cemetery.

BRO. W. S. SCANES.

WE regret to note the decease of Bro. W. S. Scanes, in his 62nd year, an old member of the Merchant Navy Lodge, No. 781. Since his 14th year he has been connected (from apprenticeship to the leading position under Mr. Amor) with the Limekiln Dry Dock, transferred within the last few years from Messrs. Spence, Tebbutt, and Amor to the Dry Docks Corporation of London. His course of life has been uniformly conducted on truly Masonic principles, and he dies lamented by a large circle of friends. His funeral took place on Saturday the 2nd inst., at the Bow Cemetery.

Bro. James Stevens P.M. P.Z. will deliver his popular lecture on "The Ritual and Ceremonial of the Symbolic Degrees in Freemasonry," in the Camden Lodge of Instruction, No. 704, held at the Lord Northbrook Hotel, close to Lee Railway Station on the South Eastern Railway, Lee, S.E., on Thursday, the 21st instant. Lodge will be opened at 7 p.m. sharp. Master Masons only can be present.

TO THE DEAF.—A Person cured of Deafness and noises in the head of 23 years' standing by a simple remedy, will send a description of it FREE to any Person who applies to NICHOLSON, 21 Bedford Square, W.C.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

ST. MICHAEL'S LODGE, No. 211.

THE November meeting of this Lodge was held on Tuesday, at the Albion, Aldersgate-street, E.C. The W.M. Bro. Henry Lindfield presided, and he was supported by Bros. Harry Nash S.W., P. J. King J.W., W. Radcliffe P.M. Secretary, Orlton Cooper S.D., W. Kirkland J.D., W. J. Dyer I.G., B. Banks Tyler; Past Masters Bros. John Laver, Usher Back, F. J. Hentsch, Alex. Dickson; Visitors—Bros. Frederick Binckes P.G. Sword Bearer, George King P.M. 172, A. J. Martin P.M. 188, J. I. Cantle P.M. 1791, A. R. W. Parkes 1901, Alfred Craven Greenwood 410 Assistant G. Secretary Province of Surrey, W. Thomas 188, J. A. Collings Organist 1693. Lodge was formally opened at 6·30, and the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Mr. Arthur Bingley Spawforth, a candidate for initiation, who had been regularly proposed at the last meeting of the Lodge, was ballotted for. The result was unanimous in favour of the candidate, who was then introduced and regularly initiated into the mysteries of the first degree, the ceremony being carefully and impressively carried out by Bro. Lindfield the W.M., Bro. A. Dickson, the Immediate Past Master, eloquently delivering the charge. Routine business followed; the resignation of two members was handed in, and accepted with regret. In the course of the evening a letter was announced as having been received from Bro. Alfred Green P.M. and Treasurer of the Lodge. Bro. Green regretted his inability to be present, and announced the death of his mother. It was also stated that Bro. F. H. Horscroft was afflicted with a domestic bereavement; his wife died a few days since. The Secretary was requested to communicate with these brethren, assuring them the Lodge condoled with them in the loss each had respectively experienced. After the name of a gentleman as a candidate for initiation had been handed in, Lodge was closed. One of the modest little repasts that this Lodge makes a feature of followed, and on the removal of the cloth a few toasts were given. After the Queen and the Craft, Bro. John Laver (Father of the Lodge) proposed the health of the W.M. Bro. Lindfield, he stated, was initiated in the St. Michael's Lodge, and had filled the various posts, which culminated in his advancement to the chair. He had given evidence of deep interest in Masonic work, and the members one and all were proud to see him in his elevated position. Bro. Lindfield suitably acknowledged the compliment, and assured the brethren he should ever retain an interest in the Lodge and its affairs. To Bro. W. W. Morgan P.M. was entrusted the toast of the Visitors, and he briefly outlined the special characteristics of each, assuring them, on behalf of the Lodge, that if they repeated their visits, the members would strive to make them comfortable. The replies were terse, but each guest addressed a few observations. The speeches were interspersed with songs and recitations, and the enjoyment of the evening was capitally sustained. At 10·30 the W.M. gave the summons for the Tyler, who gave the parting toast.

THE annual festival of this Lodge was held at Amlwch on the 5th inst., when Bro. T. Fanning Evans was installed W.M. for the coming year. In the evening the Officers, members, and visiting brethren were entertained by the newly elected W.M. to a banquet, at his residence, Mona Lodge.

AGRICOLA LODGE, No. 1911.

ON Monday evening, the 28th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Castlegate, York, a meeting was held, the W.M. Bro. John H. Taylor presiding, the Officers supporting him being Bros. White I.P.M., J. E. Wilkinson S.W., George Manton S.D., T. M. Lathom J.D., J. Daw D.C., W. H. Lumley O., Thomas Laverack Sec., D. Young I.G., E. Osborne T., W. Johnson and J. Colaham Stewards. There was a good gathering of members and visitors from other Lodges, who were no doubt chiefly attracted by the announcement of a lecture on "The Craft, its ancient and modern condition," by Bro. M. C. Peck P.M. P.G.S.B. England and Prov. G. Secretary of North and East Yorkshire. Brother Peck gave an extremely interesting sketch of Masonry from its earliest times, dwelt upon recent discoveries, and paid a tribute to the interest taken in the Craft by the Prince of Wales, Prince Albert Victor, Lord Zetland, and others. A cordial vote of thanks was passed to him for his lecture. In the course of the business Bro. J. Taylor W.M. was appointed, on the motion of Bro. Major McGachen, seconded by Bro. A. M. White I.P.M., the representative of the Lodge for the Provincial Charities Association. Deep sympathy was expressed with the serious illness of the Treasurer of the Lodge, Bro. John Eccles, whose genial disposition and active work for the Craft had won for him the warm friendship of all who knew him.

Simpson's year of office. The W.M. elect Bro. Lieut-Col. S. C. Pratt, R.A., was then presented for installation by Bro. Walter Besant P.M. and Treasurer, after which the ceremony of his induction into the chair was carried out by Bro. R. F. Gould P.G.D. The Officers appointed and invested for the ensuing year are:—Bros. W. Simpson, R.I., I.P.M., W. M. Bywater S.W., Prof. T. Hayter Lewis, R.I., B.A., J.W. (in whose unavoidable absence the duties of the office were performed by Bro. Bodenham P.G.A.D.C.), Walter Besant Treasurer, G. W. Speth Secretary, Dr. W. W. Westcott S.D., Rev. J. C. Ball J.D., E. Macbean I.G., R. F. Gould P.G.D. D.C., W. M. Williams Steward, and J. W. Freeman Tyler. The W.M. delivered an excellent inaugural address, reviewing the work of the Lodge during the past year, and suggesting the development of which it is still capable. The record of the literary labours of its members in both Circles since the accession of his predecessor was a remarkable one, showing no less than 19 publications of varying importance, but all of solid merit. The paper of the evening was by Bro. W. H. Rylands, on the picture of "Night," by Bro. Hogarth. Bro. Rylands was unfortunately only able to read extracts of this highly interesting paper, owing to the lateness of the hour, a cause which also prevented any serious discussion. This is of less importance than it might otherwise be, as the members of the Lodge and C.C. will have the benefit of receiving it printed in full, in Ars Quatuor Coronatorum, Part III. for 1889. Bro. Williams exhibited a ticket for a series of nine Masonic Concerts, in 1783, at F.M.H., designed by Bartolozzi, and engraved by Cipriani. This will also be reproduced, fac simile, in the "Transactions." At the subsequent banquet, after the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts, Bro. Simpson said—It is now my duty, and a very pleasant one, to propose to you the toast of the evening, that of our W.M. Lieut.-Colonel S. C. Pratt. In doing this I shall follow the custom which has already found acceptance with us, and give you, not a biography exactly, but a short account of some of those things which our W.M. has accomplished. It is at no time a very pleasant matter to listen to a history of your own doings, and I know that our W.M. is sensitive on this point, but he must on this occasion consent to suffer, as the relation will be of interest to all of us, and it is important that the brethren of the Lodge, as well as those of the Correspondence Circle, should know something of the merits of the brother who is to rule us for the time being. Our W.M. is a soldier, a Lieutenant-Colonel in a high and honourable profession. He comes of a family of soldiers, his father held staff appointments as well as a military command in time of war—he was also a Mason. Thus our brother comes to us, bringing with him associations of our Craft descending from father to son. In many respects, a good soldier should be a good Mason. This idea was impressed upon me at the installation of our M.W.G.M. It is now a number of years since that took place, but I have never forgotten the impression produced. The capacious Albert Hall was filled with a great concourse of people who had never met before, but though unknown to each other during the ceremony, the whole body acted as one person, and moved in conjunction with the accuracy of a crack regiment. It then dawned on me that we are a drilled body, obeying orders, and moving at the word of command. Moreover, obedience in other matters is early instilled in us, and unhesitating obedience is the motto of a good soldier. I then formed the opinion that a good soldier should be a good Mason, and that a capable officer must make a good W.M. Now in Bro. Pratt we have the good soldier and the capable officer—a good augury for the future of the Lodge under his guidance. It is curious that our rulers thus far have been soldiers. Bro. Woodford, our lamented first I.P.M., began life in the Coldstream Guards; our first Master was Sir C. Warren, then came Bro. Gould, late of the 31st Reg., and although I was never a soldier, I have, as a war correspondent, shared in many of the military campaigns, beginning with the Crimean war. We have now Col. Pratt at our head, the fifth in order, and there were just five soldiers in the nine martyrs who composed the Quatuor Coronati. Our W.M. belongs to the Artillery, which has always been considered one of the educated branches of the Service, but our brother stands still higher, for he has occupied the position of teacher in this higher branch. He has served in that capacity on the educational staff both at Sandhurst and at Woolwich. To this must be added that he is the author of works connected with military education. One of these, entitled Military Law, has gone through no less than five editions, a proof it was fitted for its purpose, and when I add that it was favourably reviewed in the Saturday Review you will appreciate its merits. Another work, on Field Artillery, our W.M.'s own branch of the Service, was reviewed at great length in the Times, and has gone through a number of editions; but perhaps the highest compliment it has received has been its acceptance as a text-book at West Point Military Academy on the Hudson River. We may safely assume some "grit" in a book when the Americans have adopted its teaching. Our W.M. has also written a Précis on the Franco German War, besides a variety of papers and notes on subjects connected with Military History and Art, and he has also acted as one of the Government Examiners. These details of literary work will justify our W.M.'s right to take his place in the ranks of the Quatuor Coronati. But his services have not been all of this peaceful character. The smell of powder has been familiar to him in the fields of battle as well as on the practice ground. He has served in India, and took part in an expedition in Bhotan in 1864-65, a rather tough piece of work. Bhotan is in the Himalayas, to the east of Darjeeling, a country of mountains covered with dense forests, where it was difficult for troops to move, and still more so for artillery. Such a region gave the enemy, who were mountaineers, great advantages, one being the opportunity offered for surprises and night attacks, of which they availed themselves on more than one occasion. The campaign was no child's play, but one of great danger, entailing heavy marching and a great deal of hard fighting. But there was another and more terrible anxiety. The Deb Rajah, or Divine King, who ruled the Bhotanese, sent a letter to the Brigadier commanding the British forces, warning him as to what would happen if he continued the attack. Among other threats the missive contained the following:—"I shall send the Divine force of twelve Gods, as per margin, who are very ferocious ghosts." The Rajah must have had some Baboo in his pay who had been a regiment clerk in our service, the phrase "as per margin" betrays this; it became quite a stock form among the Baboos, who at one time scarcely ever wrote a letter without introducing it. A story is told of a Baboo who wrote to his commanding officer that he could not come to his work one day "owing to a large boil, as per margin," which was on a certain part of his body. In the face of all difficulties and with the very gods of the locality against them, the force pushed on. The fort of Dalmicote was perched on a high hill; the artillery was brought up and breached the walls, it was stormed and taken, our W.M. being prominent in the attack. He also took part in the actions at Chamurchi and at the Bala Pass. For his services he was repeatedly mentioned in despatches. To all this I may add that he was distinguished with the Gold Medal of the Royal Artillery Institution, in 1871, and subsequently passed through the Staff College. By thus placing before you what our W.M. has done in his military and literary capacities, you will be able to form some idea of what he may achieve in the duties upon which he now enters. I feel sure that he will rule and guide our Lodge well, that he will encourage us in the labours which are peculiar to the Quatuor Coronati, and that, as we are a young body, with much yet to do in many ways in order to carry out the objects we have in view, he will use every exertion to foster and help our studies to the best of his ability. The remaining toasts were the Founders and Past Masters, proposed by the W.M. and responded to by Bro. Simpson I.P.M.; the Correspondence Circle, by the Secretary, who called for replies from Bros. Dr. Morris and J. Newton; the Visitors, replied to by Bro. Wilkinson in a speech of great humour; and the Officers, in giving which the W.M. pointed out that he measured the willingness of all by the proofs given by Bro. Macbean, who habitually travelled up from Glasgow to carry out the duties entrusted to his care.

A letter was read from the Secretary of the West Middlesex Lodge of Instruction. It was decided that the brethren should support this Lodge in preference to starting one in connection with their own. After a new candidate had been nominated, the Lodge was closed in due form and the brethren afterwards dined together. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and during the evening a Past Master's jewel was presented to Bro. Hall I.P.M. The Visitors present were:—Bros. Taplin P.M., Reid, Fleming S.W., and Marsh 382, Clarke 1612, and Bros. Smith and Webbe (Eton College), who rendered assistance in the musical part of the proceedings.

DERBY ALLCROFT LODGE, No. 2168.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge took place on Thursday evening, at the Midland Grand Hotel, St. Pancras, when a large number of the brethren and visitors assembled to take part in the festive ceremony. Bro. James P. Fitzgerald W.M. presided, and was supported by Bro. John D. Allcroft Past Grand Treasurer, Bros. Harold Halliday S.W., Joseph Corbett J.W., E. Y. Jolliffe Treasurer, R. D. Cummings Secretary, W. Harding S.D., W. F. Lord J.D., S. Garcia Dir. of Cers., Jas. F. Haskins Organist, G. A. Ayres P.M., John Maclean P.M., L. Engel P.M., J. Miles P.M., O. Barnett W.M., W. Macklin, J. F. Jermyn, A. T. Yardley, John Morris, C. P. Coles, Orlton Cooper, &c. Lodge having been opened, Bro. J. P. Fitzgerald proceeded to instal his successor. Bro. Harold Halliday was brought before the Lodge and duly signified his assent to the conditions; he was conducted to the chair of K.S. with the usual ceremony. He was subsequently saluted by the brethren in the three degrees, and then proceeded to invest his Officers for the ensuing year, as follow:—Bros. Joseph Corbett P.M. S.W., J. P. Harding P.M. J.W., E. Y. Jolliffe P.M. P.Z. Treasurer, Robert D. Cummings P.M. Secretary, W. F. Lord S.D., Geo. Rawlinson J.D., W. J. Wetenhall I.G., S. Darcey Dir. of Cers., Jas. Haskins Organist, Geo. Godfrey and A. A. Millward Stewards. At the termination of the ceremony the brethren proceeded to the large hall, where the banquet was served. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were heartily proposed and accepted, Bro. John Derby Allcroft responding for the Grand Officers. He said that on the roll of their Lodge they had four or five Grand Officers, and though he was the only representative present, the others were well aware that they could see as good work here as in any Lodge in England, and he could safely say that they rightly upheld the integrity of the Craft. Bro. J. P. Fitzgerald then gave the health of the Worshipful Master, and said that Bro. Halliday having been unanimously elected Master was entitled to the loyalty and assistance of the brethren, so that his year of office might be a successful one. No previous Master had ever started with brighter prospects, or with such a brilliant gathering to welcome him, and he predicted that he would have a good time. The W.M., rising to return thanks, was received with acclamation, and briefly stated that he would do his best to deserve the honour paid him by the brethren, and if he could emulate the I.P.M. in his working he could hope for nothing better. He then proceeded to invest Brother Fitzgerald with a beautiful P.M.'s jewel, that had been unanimously voted by the Lodge, as a tangible appreciation of his services. Bro. Fitzgerald, in acknowledging the compliment, thanked the brethren sincerely for their kind present, and desired specially to thank Bro. Cummings, the Secretary, for the great assistance rendered during the past year. He had always found him ready to put him right in Masonic matters, and when any difficulty arose he was ever ready to smooth it over. The W.M. proposed the Visitors in felicitous terms, and the toast was responded to by Bros. David Hughes, John Maclean, Nathan Robinson, and John Hughes. Several other toasts followed, and altogether a most pleasant evening was spent, made more enjoyable by some excellent songs by Brothers A. James, Robert Grice, Walter Coward, and James Kift. A humorous recitation was given by Bro. Macklin.

To the Patrons, Vice-Patrons, Vice-Presidents, and Life Governors of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys.

2 Paper Buildings, Temple, E.C.
1st November 1889.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—The Quarterly Court of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys having agreed to the retirement of the present Secretary, I intend to offer myself as a candidate for the vacancy which will thus be created.

I have been a Mason over 10 years, and am now nearly 34 years of age.

I was educated at King's College School, London, and Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, and took the degree of B.A. in the Mathematical Tripos 1879, (M.A. 1885). Shortly after quitting the University, I was appointed Mathematical Master in Truro Grammar School, but retired from that position on being called to the Bar, in 1881, since when I have practised, up to the present time, and have been engaged in the compilation of more than one legal work.

In Masonry I hold the following positions—Past Grand Steward (Eng.); W.M. Tuscan Lodge, No. 14; P.M. and Founder West Kent Volunteer Lodge, No. 2041; Secretary and Founder Argonauts' Lodge, No. 2233; J. Asaph Chapter, No. 1319; P.S. George Price Chapter, No. 2036. Member of the Board of General Purposes, and Life Governor Royal Masonic Institution for Boys.

I have for some years been Hon. Secretary of the Langton Masonic Benevolent Association, through which between £1300 and £1400 will, in four years, have been subscribed to the Masonic Charities.

Should I have the honour of being elected I shall always endeavour to discharge my duties with advantage to the Institution and to your full satisfaction.

I have the honour to be, Ladies and Gentlemen,
Your obedient Servant,
GORDON SMITH, M.A.
Barrister-at-Law.

THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE

SATURDAY, 16TH NOVEMBER 1889.

PROV. G. LODGE OF DEVONSHIRE.

THE annual meeting of the Prov. Grand Lodge was held on the 6th inst., at the Beach Hotel, Seaton. The West-country brethren commented strongly on the fact that the meeting was held so late in the year, and at a place so inconvenient for the brethren to get at. A meeting of the Committee of Petitions was held previous to the Provincial Grand Lodge. Bro. W. G. Rogers D.P.G.M., Chairman of the Committee, presided. The Secretary, Bro. J. B. Gover, reported that the votes received from the Province this year for the great Masonic Charities amounted to 2,900, being an increase of 211 over last year. The voting power of the Province was about four hundred more than it was two years since, and this without taking in about 850 votes which Bro. Whittley secured from outside sources. Provincial Grand Lodge was afterwards held in the Assembly Rooms, under the banner of De La Pole Lodge, No. 1181. The room was prettily decorated for the occasion, and every provision made for the comfort and convenience of the brethren. Bro. Viscount Ebrington P.M. 251, the Provincial Grand Master, sat on the throne, and was supported by the following Provincial Grand Officers :—Bros. W. G. Rodgers D.M., Major Tracey S.W., the Rev. T. Lemon, M.A., J.W., the Rev. R. Tyacke Chaplain, J. R. Lord Treasurer, G. C. Davie Secretary, Ben. J. Fisher S.D., T. C. Lewarn and A. J. Blamey Junior Deacons, J. Moas Superintendent of Works, C. Watson D.D. of Cers., Major Lewis E. Bearne Sword Bearer, T. D. Ford Standard Bearer, W. Yeo Assist. Secretary, J. Kingdon Assist. Pursuivant, J. Shooter Tyler, J. Algar, H. M. Imbert Terry, A. P. Reece, J. Drennan, Captain Ivemy, and W. Adams Stewards. The Provincial Grand Secretary reported that there were on the books of the Lodges in the Province on 31st December 1888, 2,871 Masons, being an increase of 127 over the preceding year; 281 brethren had been initiated into Masonry during the year, being an increase of 50. There were 670 Past Masters on the books of the Lodges. He had received the sum of £10 10s, being a moiety of the sum necessary to obtain a Life Governorship in the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, together with an application for a similar grant from Provincial Grand Lodge, from each of the following Lodges, viz. : 1254 Exeter, 1284 Topsham, and 2189 Ashburton. The sum of £10 10s, being a moiety of the sum necessary to obtain a Life Governorship in the Royal Masonic Institution for Aged Freemasons, together with an application for a similar grant from Provincial Grand Lodge, had also been received from each of the following Lodges :—105 Plymouth, and 2189 Ashburton. The Provincial Grand Treasurer reported that the year commenced with a balance in hand of £204, and the total income amounted to £590 18s 11d. After paying grants to Lodges, Charities, &c., there was a balance of £288 10s 2d. The governors of the Fortescue Annuity Fund reported that there were six annuitants on the fund. The principal alterations in the rules which had been revised were :—Instead of giving to the Provincial Grand Master any votes in respect of the sums paid over to the fund by Provincial Grand Lodge, which have hitherto been treated as donations, the new rules provide that each Lodge shall have votes annually in proportion to the amount of its quarterages paid to the Provincial Grand Lodge. Facilities are afforded for inquiries into the position of applicants, and provision is made for excluding from the voters' list the name of any brother who is not considered to be in a position entitling him to become a recipient of the fund. An endeavour is made to secure the right of electing annuitants to bona fide donors and subscribers only. The total receipts of the Fortescue Annuity Fund were £336 8s 7d, including a balance of £38 11s 10d, and of this sum £270 had been paid to annuitants. There was a balance in hand of £50 13s 8d. The capital account amounted to £2,558 1s 1d. The reports were received and adopted. The Committee of Petitions, in submitting their annual statement to the Provincial Grand Lodge, reported that their efforts had been as successful as on any former occasion. For this year they had received from the Province 2,900 votes, an increase of 211 over the previous year, and of 400 over 1887. This increase was largely due to a great effort made to support the Provincial Grand Master, who accepted the Chairmanship at the Annual Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and to Bro. the Rev. T. W. Lemon, M.A., who by his personal donations of 245 guineas to those Charities, in addition to former subscriptions, was now vice-patron of each, and possessed the largest number of votes in the Province. Bro. the Rev. W. Whittley, by his admirable management was enabled to secure the election of the widow of a deceased brother on the Widows' Fund, and a girl to the Girls' School. He had also helped largely to secure the elections of a widow and a brother. It should be remembered that a greater number of votes was required at each election to elect a candidate, and therefore every lodge and every brother were earnestly invited to keep their votes for the Devon candidates, and it would much facilitate the arrangements if all votes were sent to the Secretary as soon as received. The Fortescue Fund and the Devon Masonic Educational Fund were doing good in relieving deserving Masons and the children of Masons, and each fund deserved a larger measure of support. In these Institutions there were no paid Officers; consequently no pensions, and the money went directly to the purpose for which it was given. At a meeting of the Committee at Exeter in January £15 was voted to two brothers and the widow of a brother. At a meeting of the Committee held that day they had voted and recommended the sum of £100 to Masons and the widows of Masons. In accordance with the by-laws they recommended that the sums necessary to qualify the following Lodges as Life Governors of Institutions who have sent their portion of the money be granted: for the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, Lodges 1254, 1284, 2189; and for the Royal Masonic Institution for Aged Masons and Widows', Lodges 105, and 2189, and that the available balance, £21, be given to the Royal Masonic Institution for Aged Masons, &c. (Widows' Fund) and be placed on the list of Bro. Rev. T. W. Lemon, M.A. The report was adopted. Bro. Jones proposed Bro. James Templeton P.M. 1332 as Provincial Grand Treas., and Bro. Crabb seconded. Bro. D. Cross nominated Bro. W. Powell P.M. 1205, Bro. Major Tracey seconded, and Bro. C. Watson supported. On a vote being taken Bro. Templeton was elected. Bros. J. Stocker and E. T. Fulford were appointed auditors. The Provincial Grand Master then appointed and invested the following brethren as his Officers:—

It was decided to place the votes of the Provincial Grand Lodge with reference to the appointment of a Secretary for the Boys' School in the hands of the Provincial Grand Master, and a resolution was passed protesting against the proposal to giving Bro. Binckes so large a pension as £350 per year, and also granting pensions on a similar scale to other Officers. The Provincial Grand Lodge then closed.

The Provincial Grand Lodge was then opened, and the usual preliminary business, including the reading and confirmation of the minutes, was proceeded with, after which came the presentation of reports from the Committee of General Purposes, the Provincial Charity Committee, and the Provincial Grand Registrar. The former made interesting reference to the recent celebration of the jubilee of the initiation into Freemasonry of R.W. Bro. Kelly Past Provincial Grand Master, and also to the occasion, next year, of the Centenary of St. John's Lodge, No. 279, and then dealt mainly with matters of local interest. After discussion with reference to an unauthorised publication in local newspapers of Masonic proceedings at one of the local Lodges, the report was adopted. The report of the Charity Committee, which was of a very satisfactory nature, alluded specially to the support given by the Province during the year to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, which was of a most gratifying character, and having regard to the trying and adverse conditions of things under which the Charity had of late been placed, the handsome contributions from Leicestershire and Rutland had doubtless proved very acceptable. The Committee, in their report, very warmly acknowledged the indefatigable exertions of Bro. J. Herbert Marshall P.M. 1007, P.P.A.G.D.C., through which the successful result referred to had been achieved, his list having amounted to £530 5s. The report concluded by recommending the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution as the Charity to be specially supported by the Province in the coming year, and the appointment of Bro. A. McTindall P.M. 1330 P.P.G.J.W. as Charity Steward to represent the Province at the next Festival of that Institution. The Report was adopted, as also was that of the Provincial Grand Registrar, on which much trouble had been expended in setting out in tabular form the annual returns and reports from the several Lodges in the Province. According to the latter report the total membership of the Province appeared to be 541, being a net increase of 8 over the returns of last year. The Provincial Grand Treasurer's account having been received and adopted, a vote of thanks was accorded to him for his services. Bro. R. Waite, who has for several years past ably discharged the duties of Provincial Grand Treasurer, was again unanimously re-elected to that office. The following were appointed and invested by the Provincial Grand Master as Provincial Grand Officers for the ensuing year:—

In compliance with the recommendation of the Charity Committee Brother Tindall was duly appointed Charity Steward, Bros. C. J. Wilkinson Prov. G.S.W. and G. Jessop P.P.G.S.B. were elected as representative members on the Committee of Freemasons' Hall, Leicester. Reference was made by a brother present to the proceedings at the recent Quarterly Court of the Boys' School on the subject of the intended retiring pension to the Secretary, but no notice of motion having been given, the Prov. G. Master ruled that any discussion thereon would be out of order. The Deputy Provincial Grand Master suggested that if a desire were strongly expressed on the part of any number of the brethren that the subject should be further considered, a requisition could be sent to the Provincial Grand Master to hold a special meeting of Provincial Grand Lodge for the purpose, but he strongly deprecated the adoption of any hasty or immature action on the question. The Provincial Grand Master expressed his willingness to convene a meeting, if such a requisition as the Deputy Provincial Grand Master had suggested were submitted to him. A letter was read from the W.M. of No. 279, inviting the Provincial Grand Master to hold the meeting of Provincial Grand Lodge, for the year 1890, at Leicester, under the banner of St. John's Lodge, it being the completion of the 100th year of that Lodge's existence. A communication was also read soliciting contributions for the erection of a Masonic stall or stalls in the newly-restored choir of Peterborough Cathedral, and a contribution of two guineas from the funds of Provincial Grand Lodge was voted to that object. Some other business of a formal character having been disposed of, and letters of apology for absence read from several distinguished brethren, including one from Bro. Kelly Past Provincial Grand Master, the state of whose health prevented his attendance, the Provincial Grand Lodge was closed in due form. At the conclusion of the business, the brethren adjourned to the Bull's Head Hotel, where an excellent banquet had been provided. Bro. Earl Ferrers presided, and the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured.

H. W. Macey were appointed as scrutineers. The result of the voting was as follows:—The daughter of a deceased brother of Lodge Hoyshe, No. 1099, brought forward 307 votes, total 742; the daughter of a brother of Fidelity, 230, brought forward 409, total votes 691; the son of a deceased brother of Jordan Lodge, No. 1402, 731 votes; the daughter of a deceased brother of Elmes Lodge, No. 1212, 382 votes; the son of a deceased brother of Devon Lodge, No. 1138, 118 votes; and the son of a deceased brother of Friendship Lodge, No. 202, 43 votes. Littleton, the respective Charity Stewards of the Lodges, who were deservedly complimented for placing their candidates on the list, were nominated as the guardians of the children. Votes of thanks to the Chairman and scrutineers concluded the business of the meeting.

We are informed that the Selwyn Lodge of Instruction, No. 1901, now holds its meetings every Friday evening, at 8 o'clock, at the Montpelier Hotel, Chaumont Road, Peckham, in addition to the meetings held at the East Dulwich Hotel on Monday evenings.

The Committee of Management of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution held their monthly meeting on Wednesday. Bro. J. A. Farnfield, P.G.A.D.C. Treasurer, presided; he was supported by Bros. C. A. Cottebrune, C. Kempton, Charles Lacey, J. Newton, W. J. Murlis, William Clarke, David D. Mercer, E. West, Hugh Cotter, Thomas Cubitt, A. H. Tattershall, S. Brooks, John E. Dawson, J. L. Mather, F. Woods, R. Griggs, Charles Daniel, C. J. Perceval, C. H. Webb, W. Belchamber, J. M. Case, J. S. Cumberland, W. H. Halford, T. B. Purchas, Fred. Mead, A. Forsyth, C. F. Hogard, W. A. Scurrah, A. Durrant, W. H. Perryman, W. H. Making, J. Dixon, Thos. G. Ballen, W. J. Crutch, and James Terry (Secretary). The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and verified, the Secretary reported the death of five annuitants (four men and one widow), and read a letter from a widow resigning her annuity, as she had inherited some property. The Warden's report for the past month was read, and also a letter from the Secretary of the Inland Revenue abandoning its claim to assess the Institution to Corporation Duty. A vote of thanks was unanimously passed to Bro. J. A. Farnfield for his services in obtaining this result. The following report from the Sub-Committee appointed to inquire into the working of the Secretary's office was presented, adopted, and ordered to be entered on the minutes:—

To the Committee of Management of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution.

The Sub-Committee appointed at the meeting of the Committee on Wednesday, 11th September last, "to inquire into the working of the Secretary's office," have to report that they have held two meetings, namely, on the 31st October and 5th of November respectively, and the Secretary produced the minutes containing the report of the Sub-Committee defining his duties and emoluments at the time of his appointment in 1872, and the dates of the minutes showing the various changes in the latter that have been made, also the minutes containing the appointment of a permanent clerk, as well as the report of the Sub-Committee defining the duties and emoluments of the Collector on his appointment, all of which were fully considered and due inquiry made as to whether each had faithfully performed his allotted task. The Sub-Committee have much pleasure in stating that they found such was the case, and that, at the instance of the Secretary, the office hours had been extended from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m., such extension having been rendered necessary in his opinion by the ever-increasing work of the Institution.

In view of certain statements that had been made, that the Collector had received commission on sums which had not been received by him, the Sub-Committee desire to call particular attention to Clause 9 of the report of the Sub-Committee appointed on 9th June 1880, to consider the duties to be performed by him, and the commission to be paid, and which report was approved at a Special Committee on the 22nd of June 1880. Such clause is as follows:—

9. "That he be paid a commission of 5 per cent. upon all sums received by him, with the exception of those paid on the day of the Festival and up to and inclusive of the settling day, and also excepting any amounts paid into the office, and for which receipts are given by the Secretary or Clerk."

On inquiry of the Secretary, he pledged himself that in no case had moneys sent to him after the settling day been handed over to the Collector, in order that he should receive a commission on them, unless the person so remitting the money requested that it might be so handed over, and as no member of the Sub-Committee (even including the mover of the resolution upon which the Sub-Committee was appointed) was able to name any one case upon which inquiry could be made, and as no complaint had been received at the office, your Sub-Committee are of opinion that all moneys which the Collector had been paid he was fully entitled to, in accordance with the terms of his appointment.

Looking at the fact that the Committee of Management had lately had so favourable an opinion from Bro. Smith, the Grand Lodge Auditor, as to the mode of keeping the accounts, your Sub-Committee do not think it necessary to again travel over that ground.

Dated this 13th day of November 1889.

Applications were made by two widows for the half of their late husband's annuities. In one case the application was granted, but in the other it was deferred for the necessary certificate. Ten petitions (six male and four widows) were considered, with the result that four of the former were accepted and two refused, and the four latter accepted, the names being ordered to be placed on the lists of candidates for the Election in May 1890. The usual vote of thanks was passed to the Chairman.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Ever useful. The afflicted by illness should look their destiny fully in the face, and at once seek a remedy for them. A short search will convince the most sceptical that these noble medicaments have afforded ease, comfort, and oft times complete recovery, to the most inveterate sufferers. The Ointment will cure all descriptions of sores, wounds, bad legs, spots, etc., to name only a few complaints, which are enumerated in the directions. The Pills never fail to correct the stomach, and after relaxing the stomach, and in restoring a sluggish liver to a wonderful condition, in purifying the kidneys to increase their secretion, and in re-establishing the natural healthy activity of the bowels. Holloway's are a remedies for complaints of all classes of society.

EADE'S
GOUT & RHEUMATIC PILLS.

The SAFEST and most EFFECTUAL CURE for GOUT, RHEUMATISM, and all PAINS in the HEAD, FACE, and LIMBS.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL from the Rev. F. FARVIS, Baptist Minister.

March 19, 1887.

Mr. G. EADE.

Dear Sir,—I have many times felt inclined to inform you of the benefit I have received by taking your Gout and Rheumatic Pills. After suffering for some time from Rheumatics and Sciatica, I was advised to use your Pills. I bought a bottle, and when in severe pain and unable to use the limb affected I took a dose. In a few hours after I felt the pain much better, and after the second dose the pain completely removed and the limb restored to its right use. I thank you, dear sir, for sending forth such a boon for the relief of human suffering.

Yours faithfully,
F. FARVIS,
Baptist Minister.

There are multitudes of people who look upon advertising as a sort of Lottery, and bestow infinitely more thought in the selection of a clerk at £100 a year than in the expenditure of £1000, or two in the same period in advertising. A tithe of the shrewdness displayed in all other branches of their business given to the management of their advertising will be amply repaid. The ADVERTISEMENT AGENT has become an indespensable factor in this matter of publicity, and his raison d'être is perfectly unassailable. Would you leave or enter a port without a pilot? Would you commence and prosecute a law suit without a legal adviser? Either of these courses would not be more foolish than rushing into expenses in Advertising without a competent practical and professional adviser. Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist's Testimonial.

My Dear Doctor,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

This is to certify: That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all humours, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. BEECHAM'S PILLS.

For a weak stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the liver they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. A WEEKLY RECORD OF MASONIC INTELLIGENCE.

THE RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE CHAIR.

ALTHOUGH every Mason before taking upon himself the duties of Wor. Master pledges himself to discharge the work of the office, we fear there are few who give more than a passing thought as to what that work may involve, or how far they are capable of performing it. In Freemasonry promotion goes, we are told, by merit, but there is considerable difference of opinion as to what really constitutes merit. We have frequently urged that the man who does his best, and works as far as he is able to satisfy those around him displays true merit, and fully entitles himself to advancement and recognition as far as it lies in the power of his Lodge to confer it. But there are others who gauge from a different standpoint. These would have us believe there is no real merit—sufficient to deserve promotion—without letter perfect knowledge of our ritual, disregarding all considerations as to whether the knowledge of the words of the ceremonies has made any impression on the mind or actions of the individual, or whether he is likely to do more than "preach" the gospel of Freemasonry.

We say few men who approach the chair of their Lodge give more than a passing thought to what its acceptance involves, and as evidence in support of our view it is only necessary to count the number of those who, on the eve of advancement, hold back from taking the final step; and further to consider the surprise which follows the retirement of a Senior Warden from the annual ballot taken for Worshipful Master. In some Lodges a hard and fast rule is made, that if, by any chance, the Senior Warden asks to be allowed to stand aside for a time, in the matter of advancement to the chair, he shall lose his turn, and not again be eligible for the ballot until he has re-started from the lowest of the minor offices. This is neither just nor politic, for it forces on the brother an office which he may conscientiously wish to hold back from, and to this cause may be attributed some of the failures which occur year by year among those appointed to rule over us. There is really no excuse for thus penalising the brother who does not feel fully qualified for the Master's chair, or who may have good and sufficient private reasons for keeping back. He may ask to remain in the office of Warden for another year without harming any one in the round of promotion. The Junior Warden gains a year, but not at the expense of those below him, for the Senior Deacon and his followers will reach the east just as soon if they allow the Senior Warden to be passed over for a term as if promotion went strictly in order of seniority. Why, then, should injustice be done? and why should brethren make rules—unwritten though they may be—which so palpably act to the detriment of those who are effected by them?

In considering this subject, it may be asked—On what grounds should a Mason, duly qualified, keep back from the promotion to which he has become entitled by seniority? and for answer it may be urged there are many considerations in the public or private life of us all which may render an adjournment desirable. As it is not always possible to explain such reasons in public, the members of a Lodge should accept the word of any one among them, and believe him when he says delay is necessary. They should do everything in their power to encourage legitimate delay, rather than force a Brother to take upon himself responsibilities he does not feel justified in assuming. But by doing so we are told in some quarters the whole routine of a Lodge is upset, and its management disorganised. This argument seems so absurd to us—as it will no doubt seem to most of our readers—that it would not be worthy of consideration if we did not know of more than one instance of its application.

We never write on such lines as we to-day adopt without positive proof that the evil to which we refer actually exists in our midst, and it is considerable gratification for us to know that some of the subjects we have discussed in the past have only needed bringing to the notice of the Craft to ensure partial or complete reformation. We hope that in this case similar success will attend our efforts, and although, as we have said, we know of more than one instance in which the Senior Warden of a Lodge has been virtually disqualified for promotion simply because he asked for delay, there is one particular case before us in which the rule has been applied most severely, and, as it turns out, most unexpectedly on the brother concerned. His is a prosperous Lodge, and he had good grounds for holding back, a few months since, when his turn for promotion came round. He is now ready and willing to go on, and he and his friends are naturally surprised to learn that many members of the Lodge regard him as wholly disqualified from participating in the ballot for Mastership, which will be taken in a few weeks' time. The brother we refer to asked to be passed over for a year, and retired from office altogether for that period, expecting in the ordinary course of events to succeed to the Mastership at the following election, but, as stated, it is the opinion of many members of the Lodge that he has forfeited his claim, and they intend to pass him over. As they are in the majority they will probably succeed in their intention, and they will do more—they will upset the peace and harmony of their Lodge, even if they do not wholly crush it. Is there any power that can convince these brethren they are acting contrary to the best interests of Freemasonry, or are they to be allowed to proceed with their mistaken ideas of what is right and just? Public opinion is the best and most powerful lever we can call in to the aid of this brother, who considers himself aggrieved, and though it may be specially on his behalf we write to-day, there are no doubt many others who will thank us for calling public attention to a somewhat common practice—which is both unconstitutional and actuated by most mistaken ideas as to the true spirit of Freemasonry.

PROGRESSION v. STRENGTH.

[COMMUNICATED.]

THE question often arises, "Which Lodge is the greater friend to Masonry?" the one that makes the most brethren, admitting almost any one, or that which is exclusive, and hardly ever makes an initiate? Judging by the disposition of Provincial Grand Lodge honours, it seems only too apparent that the former is considered flourishing and prosperous, and must be recognised and rewarded. And yet an analysis of the accounts of such a Lodge are not altogether edifying. We have one before us now. The Lodge has 94 members, 42 dating from 1855 to 1883, and 52 since, the influx of members being on the increase; in 1886 seven, 1887 nine, 1888 eleven, and 1889 ten, up to now three more for initation this month, and another meeting to be held in December. The accounts show that during the last year the balance in hand has been reduced by £20. The members' subscriptions appear to have paid all the legitimate expenses of the Lodge, Grand and Provincial Grand dues, rent, stationery, printing, and postage (£22!), repairs to furniture, donation to Charities, &c, and left £6 over. Then, in order to satisfy the requirements of the fourth degree, for which nearly £90 is required, all the initiation fees, amounting to over £60, as well as the £20 of previous year's balance is absorbed, so that it would appear that this Lodge is enabled to carry on its fourth degree only by admitting as many members as they can scrape together. The W.M. of this Lodge last year received high Provincial Grand Lodge honours (only initiated in 1885), and was received with great demonstrations of appreciation for his prosperous Lodge. And yet throughout the London district there are many, very many, old and tried Masons—P.M.'s of more that one Lodge, supporters of all our Charities, always ready to participate in every good work, not so zealous to admit all sorts and conditions of men, and how are they rewarded? And this opens up another question, whether it would not be better to have a Provincial Grand Lodge for London, through which many of these good brothers would be able to obtain the purple, the chance of their ever doing so through Grand Lodge being most remote.

Had it been possible it would perhaps have been well if Grand Lodge, when revising its "Constitutions," had decided who should be eligible to be made Masons, or perhaps who should not; for within our experience journeymen plumbers and carpenters, engine drivers, stokers, engineers, stewards, &c., of ships, Custom House officers, &c., &c., not to say uneducated and even illiterate petty tradesmen are often admitted, to the detriment of the prestige of Masonry and the ridicule of an outside public.

MASONIC OBEDIENCE.

THE virtue of obedience to duly constituted Masonic authority is one upon which too great stress cannot be laid in Freemasonry. Order is not only heaven's first law, but the Craft's as well, and its sole guarantee is obedience; while disobedience is the parent of disorder, dissension and distress. Montaigne said truly, "From obedience and submission spring all other virtues, as all sin springs from self-opinion;" while the quaint Quarles taught, "Examine not why it is commanded, but observe it because it is commanded. True obedience neither procrastinates nor questions;" and Carlyle significantly remarked, "Obedience is our universal duty and destiny; wherein whoso will not bend must break."

The First Great Light in Freemasonry brilliantly illumines the virtue of obedience—implicit, voluntary, free, cheerful obedience, to the Grand Master of the Universe, and His commandments. So the Fraternity of Freemasons expects and requires from every initiate a ready obedience to its Constitutions, Rules, Regulations, Edicts, Usages, Customs and Landmarks. Such obedience was voluntarily, without equivocation, as well as faithfully and solemnly pledged. To ensure the rightful observance of this obligation, it is provided, from the aforetime, the most admirable system of compensations and balances. The Master Mason is to obey the Lodge, the Lodge is to obey the Grand Lodge, and the Grand Lodge is to obey the Landmarks. To determine what these Landmarks are, there is no power higher than that of the Grand Lodge itself, and hence its decision in every case is final. It, and it alone, is supreme and sovereign, and from it there can be no appeal. The Brother who does not yield to its decision is false to his obligation, false to the Craft, and false to himself. If he by any deceit or sophistry blinds himself to the truth, the truth nevertheless remains. Freemasonry always "speaks the truth in love," but if the truth, thus spoken, be wilfully and persistently dishonoured and disobeyed, the Grand Lodge, which is the pillar and ground of Masonic truth, is justified in visiting punishment upon those who are recreant to their Masonic trust. But it always unwillingly punishes. It always remembers that the guilty are its Brethren, and not until they conclusively indicate by their conduct that they are beyond the pale of Masonic Light, beyond recall by fraternal appeal, and self-willed servants of Darkness rather than Light, does it give them over to the self-imposed consequences. There cannot be a more reasonable, a more impartial, a more paternal government than that of Freemasonry, since it is the embodiment of brotherly love. But when its mandate is officially pronounced, that mandate is final and irrevocable. Yet, as St. Paul, the apostle of the mysteries, taught, "rulers are not a terror to good works, but to the evil. Wilt thou then not be afraid of the power? Do that which is good, and thou shalt have praise of the same."—Keystone.

An appeal is being made for funds on behalf of the Parish Church of Christ Church, Blackfriars Road, which is in need of immediate repair, and the Report of the Surveyor makes it evident that unless the foundations are in part rebuilt, the windows repaired, the supports to the galleries looked to, and the floor mended, sooner or later a deplorable accident may be the result. The cost for doing the work is estimated at £3,300, of which one-half has to be contributed by the general public, to meet the other half promised by the Marshall's Trustees. The Rev. A. H. De Fontaine, M.A., Christ Church Rectory, will gladly acknowledge any subscriptions that may be sent to him in aid of this desirable object. Subscriptions may also be sent to the Hon. Treasurer Bro. Charles Greenwood, Prov. G. Sec. Surrey, 12 Serjeant's Inn, Temple, E.C.

In consequence of the death of the V.W. Bro. F. Davison P.G.W., Deputy Provincial Grand Mark Master of the Mark Master Masons of Middlesex and Surrey, the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, Sir Francis Burdett, Bart., has ordered that all Lodges under his jurisdiction shall be suitably draped in mourning, and that all members thereof shall wear mourning for the next three meetings of their respective Lodges, as a token of esteem and respect for a departed Brother whose loss will be universally deplored. The official order for mourning directs that in Lodges—pedestals and candlesticks are to be draped with crape or cloth. Individual Brethren—Provincial Grand Officers Present and Past, Masters and Past Masters, three rosettes of black crape on the badge and one at the upper point of the collar. Brethren below the above rank, three black crape rosettes on the badge, white gloves.

The Manchester Lodge of Instruction, No. 179, has removed from the Blue Posts, Charlotte Street, Fitzroy Square, to Bro. Harvey's, Tupps Restaurant, 8 Tottenham Court Road, Oxford Street end. Bro. J. C. Smith P.M. 1744 P.Z. 1507 is the Preceptor, and Bro. Wood W.M. 1681 the Secretary. The meetings are held on Saturday evenings, at 8 o'clock. The first meeting at the new quarters took place on Saturday, the 16th inst.

At the last meeting of the Unanimity and Sincerity Lodge, No. 261, Taunton, an inscription was submitted for a brass plate to be erected in the Masonic Hall, Taunton, in memory of the I.P.M. Bro. Brig. Gen. Adair P.P.G.M. for Somerset, who died suddenly, at Bath, early in the year.

BRO. FALLOWS.

On the afternoon prior to the regular meeting of the Callender Lodge, No. 1052, the W.M. Bro. Acton Williams, and a number of the brethren of this and other Lodges, met at the Mode Wheel Cemetery, near Manchester, to pay the last sad office of respect to the late Bro. P.M. Fallows, who died on the previous Friday afternoon, after a long and painful illness. His death was a great loss to the Lodge, because he was one of the oldest P.M.'s, had been a regular attendant, and was ever ready to help, with heart, hand and purse, any object which meant Charity or the prosperity of Freemasonry. A quantity of very beautiful wreaths adorned the coffin, sent by relatives and friends; one was sent by the employés of the Silver Grid Dining Rooms, of which the deceased brother was proprietor; and a large and beautiful floral square and compass made of choice white roses, with the letter G made of violets in the centre, was sent by the Lodge. After the funeral service in the church was over, and the coffin lowered into the grave, the Worshipful Master, who stood at the head of the grave, holding the floral contribution of the Lodge, summoned the brethren to stand round, and in ancient manner took leave of their departed brother.

BRO. R. J. PATON.

We regret to have to record the death of Bro. R. J. Paton, I.P.M. Israel Lodge, No. 205. It appears that Bro. Paton, while passing down Coldharbour-lane, Brixton, either missed his footing or slipped upon something, and his head coming in contact with the kerbstone caused instantaneous death. The deceased leaves a widow and five children.

BRO. R. H. SOOTHERAN.

On Wednesday, 13th inst., Bro. R. H. Sootheran died at his residence, South Parade, Northallerton, at the age of forty-eight. Deceased was well known, not only in North Yorkshire, but throughout the whole of South Durham, he having travelled that district for the well-known firm of Messrs. Ryland and Co., of Manchester, for upwards of twenty years. Latterly he has been in indifferent health, and some six weeks ago he had the misfortune to lose his wife. In fact he has been so seriously indisposed for months past as to be unable to follow his business, but his demise was sudden. He suffered from a complication of ailments, the principal of which was kidney and heart disease.

The current number of the Masonic Review fully sustains its character for perfection, so far as the art of typography is concerned, but in other respects we fear it will not meet the demand that prompted its appearance in the path devoted to Masonic Journalism. The brief references it makes to the late Sir Daniel Gooch have appeared elsewhere, and the same remark will apply equally to a large proportion of the other "intelligence" our contemporary indulges in. A splendid specimen of the printer's art is displayed in the portrrit of the late Sir Daniel Gooch, which is everything that could be desired. Bro. Frederick Binckes is the worthy Mason selected for the "At Home" page, and that brother's friends will appreciate the fraternal spirit that pervades the writer's remarks throughout. The portrait of Bro. Binckes is also a very successful one.

THE FIFTEEN SECTIONS

WILL BE WORKED

At the Emblematic Lodge of Instruction, No. 1321, held at the Mona Hotel, Henrietta-street, Covent Garden, W.C., on Tuesday, 26th inst. Bros. Greenway J.W. 1310 W.M., W. Cleghorn P.M. 1287 S.W., H. Esling W.M. 1321 J.W. First Lecture—Bros. Potter, Berry, Hunter, Goldfinch, Kirk, Cleghorn, Hemming. Second Lecture—Bros. Rymer, Brindley, Cursons, Corby, Noakes. Third Lecture—Bros. Powdrell, Esling, Swan.

There was a very full attendance at the Board of Benevolence on Wednesday evening at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Robert Grey P.G.D. President, Bro. James Brett P.G.P., and Bro. C. A. Cottebrune P.G.P. occupied their respective chairs; Bros. Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke Grand Secretary, A. A. Pendlebury A.G.S., W. Dodd, W. H. Lee, and Neville Green represented Grand Secretary's Office. The Board of Masters was first held, when the agenda paper for next Quarterly Communication was read to the brethren. Bro. James Brett proposed a vote of thanks to Bro. Grey for the able manner in which he had presided over the Board during the past year. The brethren would not be discharging their duty if they did not take that opportunity of recognising Bro. Grey's ability and geniality, not only during the past year, but ever since he had been President of the Board. Bro. Cottebrune seconded the motion, which was unanimously agreed to. Bro. Grey returned his hearty thanks, and assured the brethren that he had only endeavoured to do his duty. He had been so ably supported by the other members of the Board that it was a pleasure to work with them in their great and noble cause. The Board of Benevolence having been opened, the brethren confirmed recommendations to the Grand Master, made at the October meeting, to the amount of £290. The new list contained the names of 38 petitioners. Two cases were dismissed, as not coming within the rules of the Board, and five were deferred, not being complete. The remainder were relieved, with a total sum of £805. This amount was made up of one recommendation to Grand Lodge of £200, and two recommendations of £50; two recommendations to the Grand Master of £40, and three of £30. There were 11 grants of £20, one of £15, nine of £10, and two of £5.

THE THEATRES, &c.

Herbert Waring, Lewis Waller, R. Cathcart, Sidney Brough, Gilbert Farquhar, Lawrence D'Orsay, C. Dodsworth, Charles Hudson, F. H. Knight, F. Powell, R. Power, R. Harding, and J. Forbes-Robertson. For the sketches of the costumes Mr. Hare is indebted to the kindness of Mr. E. Abbey, and for the design for the Church of St. Andrea to Mr. E. Salmons, F.R.I.B.A. The dance in act II. has been arranged by Signor Casati, by kind permission of the Directors of the Alhambra Company, while the scenery is by Messrs. Harford and Ryan.

The revival of "The Pink Domicoes" at the Comedy, under the direction of Mr. William Duck, will take place to-night (Saturday). It will be remembered that the comedy is adapted from the French of Delacour and Hennequin, by James Albery. The following are in the cast:—Messrs. Charles H. Hawtrey, Herbert Standing, Alfred Maltby, Aubrey Boucicault, E. Dagnall, A. Bearne, Erskine; Misses Rose Saker, Gabrielle Goldney, Alma Stanley, Fanny Robertson and Eastwell.

Mr. Thomas Thorne returns to the Vaudeville on Thursday, the 28th instant, when he will reopen with the successful comedy drama, "Joseph's Sweetheart." Mr. Thorne will be supported by Messrs. Frank Gillmore, Cyril Maude, F. Grove, C. Harbury, J. S. Blythe, Stanley Hope, and Fred Thorne, the Misses Ella Banister, Sylvia Hodson, Coralie Owen, Rose Dudley, Lillie Bryer, L. Hinton, Kate Fane, and Gladys Ffolliott.

A "Masonic" benefit is a new idea. Such an entertainment wi take place at Terry's Theatre on the 28th inst., in aid of the widow of Mr. Delavanti, a well-known musical conductor. Mr. Edward Terry, Grand Treasurer of the Order, gives the theatre, and, with his company, will play an act of "Sweet Lavender." This will be followed by a miscellaneous entertainment, and an interesting feature will be a performance of "A Sheep in Wolf's Clothing," in which all the male parts will be played by members of the St. Asaph Lodge of Freemasons, assisted by their wives! On such an occasion as this should have been revived, with full Masonic honours, the time-honoured farce, "The Secret; or, The Hole in the Wall," or a new adaptation, "The Secret; or, The Woman in the Clock Case."—Daily Telegraph.

The fourteenth annual report of the Southampton Masonic Benevolent Association, whose operations are confined to the Royal Gloucester, Peace and Harmony, and Southampton Lodges, has just been issued. Six benevolent grants were made during the year. The capital account stands at £1,300, and there is a balance of £101 5s at the bankers.

CONSECRATION OF THE EAST LANCASHIRE CENTURION LODGE, No. 2322.

THE ceremony of consecrating this Lodge was performed on the 15th inst., in the presence of upwards of 300 brethren, assembled in the spacious Drill Hall, at the Headquarters of the 5th (Ardwick) V. B. Manchester Regiment, Ardwick Green. East Lancashire has now reached extraordinary bulk as a Province, Colonel Starkie, the Provincial Grand Master, having now no fewer than 100 Lodges under his control. In further keeping with the name of this hundredth Lodge is the fact that its members are to be drawn from holders of Her Majesty's commission in any of the Services, Naval or Military. A number of members have joined since the warrant was applied for, and the present strength is about 30. Although the consecration took place in the building already mentioned, the home of the Centurion will for a time, at least, be at the Freemason's Hall, Cooper Street, Manchester. The Prov. Grand Master being nominated as the first Worshipful Master, the solemn dedication devolved upon the Very Worshipful Bro. Col. Shadwell H. Clerke G. Secretary, who was assisted by Bros. F. A. Philbrick G. Registrar as S.W., Thomas Fenn, President Board of General Purposes as J.W., and Frank Richardson P.G.D. as D.C. Other Officials of Grand Lodge and distinguished Provincials present were Bros. T. Tew Prov. G. Master West Yorkshire, H. Smith Deputy Prov. G. Master West Yorkshire, W. F. Smithson P.P.G.S.D. West Yorkshire, J. H. Sillitoe P.G. Standard Bearer, W. Goodacre P.G. Standard Bearer, George Mellor Deputy Prov. G. Master East Lancashire, J. Chadwick P.G.S.B. Prov. G. Secretary, Edmund Ashworth P.G.D., C. F. Matier P.G. Standard Bearer, and N. G. Philips P.G.D. The Presiding Officer, after opening the Lodge, briefly addressed the brethren. He said they were assembled for the purpose of giving effect to a warrant which had been issued by his Royal Highness the Most Worshipful Grand Master to constitute another Lodge in this Province of East Lancashire, and so to add one more name to the long and glorious record of Lodges under the United Grand Lodge of England. He (Colonel Clerke) need scarcely tell the brethren of East Lancashire that their Province had been for many years one of the foremost and one of the most distinguished Provinces that Grand Lodge had upon its roll. They had increased marvellously in the present generation, and now they had met for the purpose of celebrating the unique event of the formation of the 100th Lodge in this Province, a position which had not hitherto been attained by any Province under the Grand Lodge of England. The Provincial Grand Master, with that Masonic spirit for which he had been long and justly celebrated, had been determined to make that a special occasion, and he had, notwithstanding the various cares and occupations of his public life, come forward to take the chair of that Lodge. It was a compliment which he (the Presiding Officer) was sure would be highly appreciated by the Province over which he ruled. He found that the new Lodge was to be mainly composed of members of the Army. He could not but personally feel that this was very appropriate, because he was sure that those officers of the Army who were going to take part in that Lodge would show the same loyalty to the Craft that he was confident they had hitherto shown, and always would show to their Queen and to their country. The office of consecration was then proceeded with by the Presiding Officer. Bro. the Rev. A. T. Twigg Provincial Grand Chaplain, and Bro. the Rev. E. B. Bigoe Bagot Past Prov. Grand Chaplain, took part, and the oration was given by Bro. Bagot. Bro. W. O. Pettit Provincial Grand Organist had charge of the musical arrangements, and with him were a party of singing brethren. Colonel Starkie was duly installed Worshipful Master, the Board of Installing Masters numbering 180 brethren, and he invested the following as his Officers for the year :—Bros. Colonels H. L. Rocca S.W., F. Eaton J.W., Clark S.D., Captain Andres J.D., Colonel Aspland Secretary, Major Allinson Treasurer, Rev. E. B. Bigoe Bagot Chaplain, Captain Booth Organist, Major Hopkins I.G., Captains Thomas and Gilbody Stewards, and Sergeant-Major Hardy, Duke of Lancaster's Yeomanry, Tyler. Before the Lodge closed Bro. Captain M. Smith proposed, and Bro. Colonel Aspland seconded a vote of thanks to Colonel Shadwell Clerke, which was heartily accorded, and duly acknowledged.

UNITY AND SINCERITY LODGE, No. 261.

AT the last meeting of this Lodge, held at Taunton, the following resolution was adopted by acclamation on the proposition of Bro. P.M. Meyler (Town Clerk) :—"That the brethren of this Lodge desire to record upon the minutes their hearty congratulations to their Worshipful Master upon his appointment, by the unanimous vote of the Corporation, and with the cordial appreciation of his fellow-townsmen to the high office of Mayor and Chief Magistrate of his native town." The W.M. responded in a suitable manner, expressing his opinion that his success in business and in public life had been due to the fact that he had acted upon truly Masonic principles, and to the confidence in himself which the work of the Lodge (which is the largest in Somerset) ever since he first took a collar had given him. At the complimentary banquet to the Mayor last week, the Masons present cordially drank the health of their W.M. before he responded to the toast of the evening.

THE PRINCE OF WALES LODGE, No. 959.

THE anniversary meeting was held at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich, on Monday evening, the 4th inst., when Bro. George T. Pick was installed as Worshipful Master of the Lodge for the ensuing year. There was a very large muster of the members of the Lodge and visiting brethren. The installation was very ably performed by Bro. E. J. Brown. The charge to the newly-installed Master was delivered by the Deputy Prov. Grand Master, the working tools of a Master Mason being presented by the Immediate Past Master Bro. John White. The Officers for the ensuing year were invested by the W.M., as follows :—Bros. J. White I.P.M., A. A. Bennett S.W., J. Hardwick J.W., W. Cookow Treasurer, C. T. Townsend Secretary, J. Foakes Jackson Chaplain, Charles Markwell S.D., W. Kemp J.D., E. J. Brown D. of C., Charles Cooke Organist, C. W. Vaughan I.G., Alma Cocks and S. Andrews Stewards, George Gould Tyler. Before the closing of the Lodge Bro. A. A. Bennett proposed, and Bro. W. B. Hanson seconded, a vote of thanks to the I.P.M., Bro. White, for the efficient manner in which he had filled the chair during the past year. The proposition was unanimously approved, and ordered to be entered on the minutes. The Deputy Provincial Grand Master expressed his admiration of the work he had witnessed, and complimented the W.M. and the Lodge on the numerous attendance. The installation banquet was held subsequently, under the presidency of the Worshipful Master Bro. Pick, who was supported by the D.P.G.M. Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, Bro. Boby P.G.S.B. Eng., and about 60 other brethren. The menu was an exceedingly interesting production. It contained a splendid cabinet-sized photograph of the W.M., in full Masonic clothing, and smaller portraits of the whole of the Officers. The names of the Officers were also set out, and to each an appropriate Shakespearian quotation was allotted. The photographs were from the studio of the I.P.M. Bro. Jno. White; for the literary work and the general "get up" of the card Bro. W. B. Hanson is entitled to credit; while the catering, not the least important portion of the event, was most satisfactorily carried out by Bro. J. Hardwick. The W.M. proposed the Queen and the Craft, the M.W. the Grand Master, and the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the Officers of the Grand Lodge, for whom Bro. W. Boby responded. He briefly alluded to the inquiry which was made into the administration of the Boys' Charity, and expressed the hope that nothing which had transpired would induce any Brother to withold his support and sympathy from that Institution. Bro. W. B. Hanson proposed the Prov. Grand Master Lord Henniker, the Deputy Prov. Grand Master, and the Prov. Grand Officers. Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn responded, in an entertaining speech; Bro. Townsend replied for the Past, and Bro. Trew for the Present Officers. Bro. Jno. White, in proposing the health of the W.M., said ever since Bro. Pick joined the Lodge he had done everything in his power to promote its success, and had filled the various offices to which he had been appointed with the greatest courtesy and zeal, and to the entire satisfaction of the Masters under whom he had served. Now that he had been elevated to the proud position of Master of the Lodge, he felt confident that the brethren would show their appreciation of his worth by supporting him most heartily and loyally, and by doing all they possibly could to make his year of office a most complete success. The Worshipful Master, who was received with loud applause, expressed the hope that the brethren of the Lodge would rally round him, and promised that he would do everything he could to conduct the work of the Lodge in an efficient manner. Before sitting down he proposed in complimentary terms the health of the Installing Master, Bro. Brown, who was an indispensable member of the Lodge. Bro. Brown responded, and proposed the health of the I.P.M., Bro. White. Bro. White responded in felicitous terms. The other toasts were the Visitors, proposed by the W.M. and acknowledged by the Masters of the Lodges represented and other brethren; the Masonic Charities, proposed by Bro. A. A. Bennett, and responded to by Bro. N. Tracy; the Officers of the Lodge, and the Tyler's toast. The toasts were interspersed with songs and recitations, by various brethren.

CALLENDER LODGE, No. 1052.

THE regular meeting of this Lodge was held on Tuesday evening, 19th instant, at the Masonic Rooms, King-street, Manchester. Bro. Acton Williams W.M. opened the Lodge in due form and with solemn prayer at 7·30. The minutes of the last regular meeting were read by the Secretary Bro. R. White P.M. The W.M. then proposed his son Mr. Robert Williams for initiation. Bro. Campbell S.W. had much pleasure in seconding the proposition, and on the ballot being taken it proved unanimous. The candidate was then admitted, and after answering the necessary questions he was duly obligated by his father the W.M. in a most impressive manner, the brethren singing Masonic chaunts during the ceremony. Immediately after the obligation, the organ chimed forth that beautiful chant, "Lord have mercy upon us, and incline our hearts to keep this Law." The corner stone lecture was then given by the W.M., and the working tools explained in an efficient manner by the J.W. Bro. Tofthouse. The candidate then retired, and on his return Bro. Campbell S.W. gave the charge after initiation, in an eloquent manner.

HUYSHE LODGE, No. 1099.

THE annual meeting was held on the 14th inst., at Home Park, Stoke. Two candidates were admitted, and three more proposed. Bro. Jeremiah William Foster was installed W.M. Bros. W. H. Gillman, W. J. A handsome Past Master's jewel was presented to the Treasurer with the inscription—

"Presented to W. Bro. S. Panter P.M. by members of Huyshe Lodge in memory of his fiftieth birthday."

Bro. S. J. Page made the presentation on behalf of the donors in a very eulogistic acknowledgment of the many services of Bro. Panter to the Lodge. That day happened to complete Bro. Panter's first half-century, might he long live in the second. The Lodge resolved to hold the annual banquet this year in the handsome new refectory just added to the Hall.

GREY FRIARS LODGE, No. 1101.

THIS Lodge held its installation meeting at the Masonic Hall, Reading, on Wednesday, the 13th inst., when there was a good attendance of members and friends. In consequence of the death of the Provincial Grand Master (Bro. Sir Daniel Gooch, Bart.), the Lodge was draped in black, and the brethren appeared in Masonic mourning. The ceremony of installing Bro. Hickie, who had been elected W.M. for the ensuing year at a previous Lodge, was admirably performed by Bro. C. Slaughter, his predecessor in office. After the installation, the W.M. invested his Officers, as follow:—Bros. C. Slaughter I.P.M., J. Greenaway S.W., H. G. Sherwin J.W., J. T. Stransom (re-elected) Treasurer, E. W. Ridley Secretary, T. P. Stewart S.D., S. Biggs J.D., T. J. Pulley P.M. (1436) D.C., W. B. Biddles Organist, R. E. Hodder I.G., W. C. Long, W.M., Colebrook, and R. F. Hart Stewards, W. Hemmings Tyler, R. Dowsett Almoner. When the ceremony had been completed, the W.M., in a few well chosen sentences, presented a Past Master's jewel to Bro. Slaughter, in recognition of the excellent manner in which he fulfilled the duties of W.M. during the past year. Bro. Slaughter suitably returned thanks for the handsome gift made to him. At the conclusion of the business, the brethren adjourned to the Great Western Hotel, where a banquet was served in good style by Bro. Flanagan P.M. After dinner the usual Masonic toasts were proposed. In returning thanks for the Officers of Grand Lodge, Bro. R. Bradley said that it is anticipated that Berks and Bucks would be divided into separate Provinces. There were thirteen Lodges in the former, and twelve in the latter. The health of the W.M. was received with great cordiality, and he, in response, expressed an earnest hope that he might be able to maintain the traditions of the Lodge in respect to charity, to working, and to a thoroughly fraternal feeling. The Masonic Institutions were proposed by Bro. E. J. Blackwell, and responded to by Bro. W. Ferguson P.M., who has on more than one occasion been a Steward at the annual Festivals of the Charities. Bro. Arthur Welch P.M. proposed the Visitors, and Bro. Nottage, W.M. of the Windsor Castle Lodge, and Bro. Turner, of the Herschel Lodge (Slough), returned thanks. The Immediate Past Master and the other Past Masters was next proposed, and a special tribute paid to the manner in which Bro. Slaughter had filled the office of W.M. Bro. W. W. Ridley P.M. gave the health of the Treasurer and Secretary, Bros. Stransom and E. W. Ridley. The W.M. proposed the Fellow Craft, Bro. Farrer. Bro. E. Margrett P.M. proposed the Worshipful Masters of the Lodge of Union and the Kendrick Lodge, and much regret was expressed at the absence of the former (Brother W. Sherwood), from indisposition. Bro. C. Hawkes returned thanks for the Union, and Bro. B. W. Bennett W.M. for the Kendrick Lodge. Bro. J. T. Dodd (Mayor of Reading), who was warmly received, proposed the Wardens and other Officers of the Grey Friars Lodge, and Bros. Greenaway and Sherwin responded. The Tyler's toast, the last on the list, was duly given. The Grey Friars Lodge always makes a point of having singing at its dinners, and this year the musical arrangements were unusually good. There were some capital songs by Bro. Taylor (a professional vocalist, who sings ballads most charmingly), Bros. Hodder, Herm, Biddles, Smallwood, Long, and others. The W.M. presided in an able manner, and made some spirited speeches. All the brethren stand clear of tediousness; the songs went extremely well, and the meeting altogether was a most cheery one.

Bro. Wheeler, in acknowledging the presentation, said the work he had done in connection with the Lodge had been a labour of love, and had brought its own reward. He was deeply grateful to the brethren for their very handsome present. After the transaction of Lodge business, the brethren adjourned to the Rose and Crown Hotel, where the banquet was admirably served by Bro. J. George The newly-installed W.M. Bro. Wheeler proposed the Deputy Provincial Grand Master and the Provincial Grand Officers, and referred to the splendid manner in which the installation ceremony was performed by Bro. the Rev C. J. Martyn. The Deputy Provincial Grand Master responded in a neat and humorous speech, and before sitting down proposed the health of the W.M. The Worshipful Master briefly responded. Bro. William Clarke proposed the Masonic Charities, and referring to the recent inquiry with respect to the administration of the Boys' Schools, said that whatever else may be said of Bro. Binckes, there was no doubt that he had been a very powerful lever in the great Masonic body, and had the welfare of the Institution at heart. But even if one brother had failed, he asked was there any reason why they should withhold their support from the Institution? He was confident that in spite of all that had transpired the Masons of England would have faith in the School and would do all in their power to promote the welfare of so noble an Institution. Bro. C. J. N. Row, whose name was coupled with the toast, in the course of his response, stated that the Province commanded 3608 votes, and although the Stour Valley stood fourteenth in numerical strength, it was fourth in voting power. MOUNT EDGCUMBE LODGE, No. 1544.

THE brethren met at the Masonic Hall, Camborne, on the 13th inst., when the installation ceremony was most efficiently performed by I.P.M. Bro. J. The business being ended the Lodge was closed, and adjourned till Wednesday, the 4th December. After the usual repast, the W.M. proposed the ordinary Loyal and Masonic toasts, which were heartily received. The W.M. A brilliant pianoforte duet was contributed by the Misses Silcock, daughters of the genial host.

VICTORIA PARK LODGE, No 1816.

the usual charges, was duly installed by Bro. C. Reeve in the chair of K.S. The installing Officer performed the ceremony in a most impressive and earnest manner, delivering all the addresses with the greatest precision and accuracy. The new W.M. invested his Officers, as follow:—Bros. E. Clements S.W., Albert Govier J.W., George Morris Treasurer, H. Rogers Secretary, W. B. Abrahams S.D., R. W. Carroll J.D., D. Meikleread I.G., F. Garrood D.C., Bradford S.S., A. Read J.S., H. W. Sherwin Organist; and Stewart Tyler. The W.M. then presented the P.M.'s jewel to the I.P.M. Bro. J. T. Kinipple, at the same time congratulating him in the name of the Lodge for the manner in which he had conducted the business during his term of office. Bro. Kinipple having feelingly and suitably responded, after "hearty good wishes" the Lodge was duly closed. The brethren then retired to the Queen's Room, where a splendid banquet was served, in a manner that could but enhance the pleasure of all who were participants. This important ceremony passed, the loyal toasts, the Queen and the Craft, and the M.W.G.M. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, were received with enthusiasm, and in a no less hearty manner the M.W. Pro G.M. the Earl of Carnarvon, the R.W. Deputy G.M. the Earl of Lathom, and all the Grand Officers Present and Past. Bro. I.P.M. Kinipple then proposed the Worshipful Master, mentioning that he was the third initiate of that Lodge who had arrived at the honourable position which he had now attained; to which Bro. H. Sinclair replied, stating that he intended to fulfil all the duties of his high office faithfully and justly. In reply to the toast of the Immediate Past Master Bro. J. Kinipple referred to the present prosperity of the Lodge, and claimed the consideration of the brethren for his endeavours to put the Lodge in a sound financial position; even if he had incurred some little imputation for closeness, it was all for the good of the Lodge, and on Masonic principles. Replying for the Installing Master, Bro. C. Reeve referred to brotherly love as a first condition of Masonry, and expatiated eloquently on the virtues of temperance and charity in all things. The P.M.'s and the Initiates having been adequately proposed and acknowledged, the W.M., in giving the Masonic Charities, expressed his resolution to take a Stewardship at both the approaching Festivals of the Old People and the Girls' School. On the list being sent round, the handsome amount of £63 was quickly subscribed, and was gratefully acknowledged by the W.M. To the toast of the Visitors Bro. H. Cooper felicitated the Lodge in warm terms on the true Masonic spirit evident among them, and was followed in the same sense by several other visitors. Amongst others responding for the Officers, Bro. H. Rogers said that during the whole term of his Secretaryship, he had a good record to report, and that the prosperous condition of the Lodge continued to increase, and was never more apparent, nor its progress more certain than at the present moment. The Tyler's toast concluded an evening delightfully spent. During the intervals between the toasts and the replies, several brethren contributed to the enjoyment of the company by their vocal and instrumental performances. Among these were Bros. I.P.M. Kinipple, Duck and Gammon, whose efforts were highly appreciated and applauded. The Organist of the Lodge effectively accompanied, and filled up the interval with solos.

EAST SURREY LODGE OF CONCORD, No. 463.

A MEETING of the members of this Lodge, one of the oldest in the Province of Surrey, was held on Wednesday, the 13th inst., at the Greyhound Hotel, High-street, Croydon. It will be in the recollection of many of our readers that in April last this Lodge celebrated its Jubilee, and the brethren to do honour to one of the staunchest Masons the Province has ever produced, resolved to re-elect to the chair Bro. George Price Prov. Grand Treasurer. Brother Price joined Freemasonry fifty years back, in this Lodge, and four years after filled, with credit to himself and pleasure to the members, the Master's chair. Since then he has kept up his association with the Lodge, and though now in his eightieth year, displays a lasting and continuous interest in its welfare. On the occasion we are now more especially considering Bro. George Price opened his Lodge at five o'clock, when he was supported by Past Masters C. H. Woodward (Secretary), Dr. F. Nicholls, J. K. Pitt, W. Sharp; W. F. Haines S.W., J. R. Hubbard J.W., R. W. Price Treasurer, B. Williams S.D., Thos. Griffiths J.D., J. W. Hellwell Steward, Thos. Huntley I.G., and Lane Tyler. Amongst the Visitors were the Deputy Prov. G. Master (in charge of the Province) Bro. Frederick West, F. Cambridge W.M. 2096, F. Wright J.D. 2128, J. S. Fraser P.M. 2096, Reginald Piper I.P.M. 1872, J. Kilvington W.M. 1790, C. Everist P.M. 720, H. M. Hobbs P.P.G.J.W. Surrey, Joseph D. Langton P.P.G.J.W. Surrey, W. G. Fenn W.M. 538, W. W. Morgan P.M. 211, &c. After preliminaries had been fully observed, Bro. Edwin Plats was raised to the sublime degree. Bro. Dr. Nicholls P.M. conducting the ceremony in a masterly manner. The ballot was taken for Mr. William John Russell, a candidate for initiation, a gentleman well known to residents of Croydon. The result was in favour of the candidate. A similar verdict was given on behalf of Brother Abraham Charles Crossley, of the Strand Lodge, No. 1987, who desired to join Lodge 463. Brother Woodward now took the chair, and the candidate was introduced and regularly initiated into the first degree in Freemasonry. Now Bro. Price resumed his position, and Bro. C. H. Woodward, as the oldest Past Master after Bro. George Price, rose. In graceful and eloquent terms Bro. Woodward described how gratified the members were that they still had with them a brother who could claim an uninterrupted association with their Lodge for fifty years' duration. For himself, he thought this was almost, if not quite a unique event, so far as the Craft was concerned. Four years after his initiation, Bro George Price was elected Worshipful Master; twenty years later he (Bro. Woodward) followed as W.M.; there were at the present time 18 Past Masters on the roll of the Lodge, which he ventured to assert gave evidence of the interest the old members still hold in its working. To celebrate in a fit and proper way this event in the Lodge's history, a small committee had been formed, while a desire had been expressed by some of the members of the George Price Lodge, which may be considered somewhat of an offshoot of the East Surrey, and which Lodge meets in the same hostelry, that they should take part in providing the necessary funds to carry out the object contemplated. The Chapters also which met at the Greyhound expressed a wish to assist, and consequently it had been decided that the presentation should embody a life-like presentment of their esteemed Worshipful Master, which might for ages yet to come hold a place where the members of the several Lodges and Chapters assembled, and be handed down so long as the Lodge had a place for meeting in. Bro. Woodward now unveiled the portrait, which had been executed in the highest style, by Mr. S. L. Phillips, of East Croydon. The likeness is a "speaking" one, and has been produced from an enlarged photograph, reflecting credit upon, and adding lustre to the fame of the talented artist to whom it had been entrusted. Bro. George Price, in thanking the brethren for their generous gift, said it gave him infinite pleasure in accepting it. In the course of his long career he had been made the recipient of many honours, but nothing had given him greater pleasure than the intimation that day of their good feeling towards him. He was pleased at the suggestion that Bro. Woodward had made. Here, where the Lodges and Chapters with which he was associated met, was its proper abiding place. To the several members who had acted upon the Committee, and especially to Bro. Woodward, his best thanks were due, for the uniform kindness they had ever shown towards him. The Lodge was shortly afterwards closed. A banquet followed, after which the Loyal and Masonic toasts were fully honoured. A very pleasant evening was spent, some capital songs being given, Bro. Williams especially distinguishing himself in this regard.

HADRIAN LODGE, No. 1970.

ON the 5th inst., the annual meeting was held in the Freemasons' Hall, South Shields, for the installation of the W.M. and investment of Officers for the ensuing year. The W.M., Bro. T. D. Marshall, presided, and was well supported by his Officers and brethren. The Provincial Grand Master Sir Hedworth Williamson, Bart., accompanied by Bro. R. Hudson Provincial Grand Secretary, and many of his Provincial Officers, paid his first visit to the Hadrian Lodge. Upon the Lodge being opened, the Provincial Grand Master and Officers of Provincial Grand Lodge were received in due form by the brethren, and the Provincial Grand Master took the chair. After some preliminary business, the W.M. Bro. T. D. Marshall, in most respectful terms, welcomed the Provincial Grand Master to the Lodge, and asked his acceptance of an illuminated and handsomely framed address. The lettering and adornment was the work of Messrs. Mawson, Swan, and Morgan, and was very tasteful. The name and number of the Lodge, with a picture of Hadrian, was upon the side design. The address was read by Bro. Marshall. The Provincial Grand Master acknowledging the welcome and the address, congratulated the Lodge upon its steady progress, its excellent balance-sheet, and their assistance to the Masonic Charities, particularly the Durham Masonic Educational Fund. He assured them that he felt great pleasure in visiting the Lodge, and he was more pleased, if possible, because he had received a very pleasing surprise in the valuable address they had given him. Nothing could give him more satisfaction than to find that his efforts were well received by the brethren. The installation of the W.M. elect, Bro. J. T. Ross, then took place, Bro. Walter Ross acting as installing Master. The newly-installed Master invested the following Officers for the year:—Bros. T. D. Marshall I.P.M., J. H. Penny S.W., George Harland J.W., Sinclair Oates Chaplain, T. Coulson P.M. Treasurer, D. Walton Secretary, J. W. Henderson S.D., R. H. Copeland J.D., J. J. Athey D. of C., J. Tate I.G., W. Thomas S.S., R. Farmer J.S., T. Potter P.M. Tyler. The Lodge was afterwards closed in due form, and in the evening the annual festival took place, the W.M. Bro. J. T. Ross in the chair.

PRUDENCE LODGE, No. 2069.

IN the presence of about 70 brethren, representing the leading members of Provincial Grand Lodge, the Leeds Lodges, and visitors from neighbouring towns, the installation meeting of this Lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Great George Street, Leeds, on the 9th inst. W. Bro. Watson P.M. Prov. Grand Superintendent of Works, the W.M., was in the chair, and was supported by the following Officers:—W. Bros. Trevor I.P.M., Charles Middleton S.W. W.M. elect, J. J. Fretwell J.W., Tom Atkinson Secretary, Robt. Abbott Treasurer, Rev. J. H. Evans Chaplain, A. Butterworth S.D., B. S. Bailey J.D., R. A. Smithson Assistant Secretary, Thornton Jones as I.G., and Jas. Buckley Organist. Among others present were V.W. Bros. Dr. Smyth Past Grand Chaplain of England, R. Craig P.P.G.D., Joseph Binney P.M. P.P.G. Registrar, C. L. Mason P.M. P.P.G. Treasurer, Sam Fitton P.M. P.G.A.D.C., Major Moore P.M. P.P.G.S.B., Matthewman P.G. Assistant Secretary, Allinson P.M. P.P.G.D., and many others. The Lodge having been opened in due and ancient form, the minutes were duly adopted, and then Bro. Chas. Middleton was presented by Bro. Trevor for the benefit of installation. The obligation was impressively administered by Bro. Robt. Craig, after which the Officers were called upon to hand over their collars, beginning at the Junior Officer. Previous to the opening of the Board of Installed Masters, the W.M. Brother Watson returned thanks to the brethren for their kind and courteous treatment of him during the time he had ruled over the Lodge. Especially were his acknowledgments due to his Past Masters, who had been such a support to him during the past year. There had not been the slightest appearance of discord, and that being the case he would be wrong if he laid down the reins without thanking all. They had supported him nobly, and he had done his best to deserve their support. He also warmly thanked his Officers, singling out for special commendation Bro. Trevor D.C., and Bro. Tom Atkinson the Secretary. The last named brother had been exceedingly active and zealous, and his duties had been performed in a way that was beyond all praise. He had thought no labour too great to carry out his work in a satisfactory manner, and the Lodge had been the gainer thereby. Bro. Trevor, too, had been a tower of strength. Brethren having retired from the Lodge, a Board of Installed Masters was formed, and the ceremony of installation completed, it being taken part in by Bros. Watson, Dr. Smyth, C. L. Mason, Craig, and Trevor. Afterwards Bro. Chas. Middleton, the newly installed W.M., invested his Officers, as follow:—Bros. John James Fretwell S.W., Tom Atkinson J.W., Rev. J. H. Evans Chaplain, Robert Abbott Secretary, Robert Craig P.M. 304 P.P.G.D. Preceptor, Arthur Butterworth S.D., Benjamin Sykes Bailey J.D., Tudor Trevor P.M. D.C., R. A. Smithson I.G., H. B. Abbott Assistant Secretary, J. T. Jones, E. Ellis Stewards, James Buckley Organist, Samuel Barrand Tyler. Bro. Watson I.P.M., the Prov. Charity member, reported that during the year the brethren had endowed two chairs, to the amount of 20 guineas. During the past four years that Lodge had sent up to our great Institutions a total of 420 guineas, which all must admit was a noble result. He never pressed for contributions, believing that all Masonic Charity should be voluntary, and the result had shewn the wisdom of this course. He earnestly appealed for future support, and said his position as their Charity member had always been a proud and a happy one. On the motion of Bro. Dr. Smyth, seconded by Bro. Tudor Trevor, Bro. Watson was unanimously re-elected Charity member for the ensuing year. Bros. Trevor and Fretwell S.W. were unanimously elected to represent the Lodge on the Local Charity Committee. The W.M. (Bro. Chas. Middleton) then, on behalf of the brethren of Lodge Prudence, presented to Bro. Watson a handsome Past Master's jewel of the Lodge pattern, and bearing the word "Founder" on a special bar, Bro. Watson being one of the founders. In making the presentation, the W.M. expressed the pleasure it gave him at being the vehicle through which the Lodge presented that mark of esteem. The year that had just closed had been a very happy one, and he hoped they would always be able to keep up the harmony and good feeling which had, since its formation, characterised their Lodge. Bro. Watson was as highly esteemed in the Province as he was in that Lodge, as was evidenced by the fact that the Prov. Grand Master Bro. Tew had raised him to the purple by making him Grand Supt. of Works. His labours, too, in connection with the Provincial Library at Wakefield were well known and appreciated, and that work would remain as an enduring monument of his Masonic research and skill long after he had passed away. The members of that Lodge could not respect him more highly than they did, and he hoped Brother Watson would wear the jewel as a solid and visible sign of their appreciation of him both as a man and a Mason. Bro. Watson, who was most cordially received, thanked the brethren with great warmth, and said that the foundation of the prosperity of the Lodge had been well and truly laid by the Past Masters. When he was installed he succeeded to no unpleasant legacy, and he was glad to know that he handed on the work to his successor as free from doubt and difficulty as he received it. The interests of Lodge Prudence had ever been in his mind, and he had striven to the best of his ability to promote them. The jewel he should wear as a recognition from his brethren, as a proof that they recognised that he had striven, and not in vain, to promote the best interests in their Lodge. On the motion of the W.M., seconded by Bro. Tudor Trevor, a resolution of condolence was passed to Bro. Fretwell, who has just lost his father. This duty was most sympathetically and gracefully performed. It having been briefly but feelingly acknowledged, the Lodge closed in peace and harmony and with solemn prayer. The à la fourchette was served by Bro. Barrand, in the banqueting hall, at which most of the brethren were present. The W.M. most genially presided, and a long toast list having been gone through, the rest of the evening was spent in harmony, Bro. Jas. Buckley, the talented Organist, taking charge of this part of the programme with his accustomed success. At ten o'clock the Tyler's toast brought to a close one of the most successful and happy installation meetings yet held in the history of this Lodge.

BARNATO LODGE, No. 2265.

A VERY pleasant time resulted from the meeting of this Lodge, on Monday last, when the members assembled at the Cock Tavern, Highbury Railway Station, under the presidency of their Worshipful Master, Bro. M. J. Jessop (P.M. 1261). Bro. Jessop was supported by Bro. Charles Hogard, Past Grand Standard Bearer, as I.P.M.; in the absence of Bro. L. Kool the S.W.'s chair was taken by Bro. E. J. Acworth P.M. 1612, &c., S. B. Joel J.W., J. Joel Treas., M. J. de Leeuw Sec., Thos. Honey S.D., J. B. Joel I.G., J. H. Gluckstein Steward, Walkley Tyler. Amongst the visitors were Bros. Fred. Binckes Past Grand Sword Bearer, B. H. Joseph P.M. 43 P.P.G J.D. Warwickshire, Max Mendelssohn I.G. 212, Dr. B. C. Scott 1297, W. Lloyd S.W. 145, W. Mundy 1839, Herbert Sprake 2192, J. C. Rivers 1879, A. E. Sarti P.M. 180, G. Harwood 813, J. Abrahams 359, W. W. Morgan P.M. 211, &c. After the Lodge had been formally opened, and the minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed the ballot was taken for two candidates for initiation—Mr. Edmund John Whiteway, who was proposed by the W.M., and seconded by Bro. C. F. Hogard; the second candidate was Mr. Joseph Polak, and he had for his sponsors Bros. De Leeuw (Secretary) and Kool (S.W.) The result was unanimous in favour of each candidate. Bro. Richard Warner of the Strand Lodge, No. 1987, desired to become a joining member, and the ballot being unanimous in his favour, he took his seat as a member of the Barnato Lodge. The name of another gentleman appeared on the agenda paper as a candidate for our mysteries, but through illness he was unable to attend on the present occasion. The two candidates named above were introduced and initiated by the W.M. The Worshipful Master, addressing the brethren, stated he had now a mournful duty to perform. At their last meeting they had with them a respected member of the Craft, a Past Grand Chaplain, one who was an honorary member of the Barnato Lodge. He referred to the late Bro. Weldon, who had acted as the Grand Chaplain at the consecration of their Lodge. The brethren would all remember Bro. Weldon's towering height, and would recognise the immensity of brain power which he possessed. His orations were at all times practical, and would hold in the memory of those who had had the privilege of listening to them. Their deceased brother had been with them on several occasions since their inauguration night, and he would be long remembered by those who had on such occasions met him. Bro. Jessop concluded by proposing that a vote of condolence be sent to the son of the late Rev. Brother Weldon, expressing the sympathy the Lodge felt with the family in their bereavement. This was seconded by Brother Acworth the acting S.W., and unanimously agreed to. In the course of the evening it was proposed that the services of Bro. Hogard, who had devoted himself most assiduously in the formation of the Lodge, and who had rendered good service as I.P.M., and W.M. in the enforced absence of Bro. J. Da Silva, should receive some slight recognition. Brother Barnato proposed that a Past Master's jewel should be provided, and the presentation made at the next meeting of the Lodge. This was seconded by Bro. Jessop the W.M., and supported by Bro. Acworth, who expressed his gratification that the suggestion he incidentally made at the last meeting had so soon been acted upon. The proposition was unanimously agreed to. Reference was next made to the very successful ball held by the Lodge last year, when a sum of close upon £60 was raised for the Lodge Benevolent Fund. It was now decided that a second ball should be held, to take place at the Hotel Metropole, on or about 7th January next. After some other matters had received attention Lodge was closed. A capital banquet was supplied by the Bros. Baker, the service being superintended by Bro. Sams. On the removal of the cloth the W.M. briefly introduced the Loyal toasts. These having received full honours, the health of the Earl of Carnarvon, the Earl of Lathom, and the rest of the Grand Officers was given, and Bro. F. Binckes acknowledged the toast. Bro. Hogard next gave the health of the W.M. The way in which the mention of Bro. Jessop's name had been received was an earnest of the esteem in which all the members of the Lodge held him. As a worker Bro. Jessop had established for himself a reputation, and this had been confirmed by the way in which he had initiated the candidates that night. He had so endeared himself to the Lodge that no further words were necessary to commend the toast. The W.M. gracefully acknowledged the compliment paid him, and assured the brethren he should at all times strive to advance the best interests of the members. In speaking to the toast of the Initiates, the W.M. said accession to membership was a desirable feature in all new Lodges. In the Barnato they did not go out into the highways and byeways, but when eligible candidates presented themselves, and were properly vouched for, the Lodge would give them every encouragement. This had been the case with the two gentlemen who had been received into the Lodge that evening, and he (the W.M.) had great pleasure in asking the brethren to drink a toast in their honour. Bros. Whiteway and Polak briefly acknowledged the honour done them. The W.M., in giving the toast of the Past Masters, referred to the absence of Brother J. Da Silva. Brother Hogard in reply said he was assured the brethren one and all trusted Brother Da Silva was securing a bountiful supply of that commodity they so much coveted. For himself, he was intensely gratified at the kindly expression of approval that had been given to his poor services. The other toasts given were the Visitors, for which Bros. Josephs, Lloyd, Rivers, Sprake, Morgan, and others responded; the Officers, responded to by the Acting S.W. and the Secretary. A special toast in honour of the brother after whom the Lodge is named was entrusted to Bro. F. Binckes, who gracefully referred to what had been done by the Lodge since its formation, and to the interest Bro. Barnato had taken in the Masonic Institutions. Bro. Barnato made a suitable response, and shortly afterwards the Tyler closed the meeting. Some capital songs were given, Bro. Lloyd especially distinguishing himself. By request, Bro. Morgan recited the "In Memoriam" lines, and Bro. Wright's musical interpolations rendered these very solemn and effective. As accompanist during the evening Brother Wright was all that could be desired.

Joppa Lodge of Instruction, No. 188.—On Tuesday, at the Manchester Hotel, Aldersgate-street, E.C. Bros. H. Saqui W.M., Goodinge S.W., Liscombe J.W., Samuels J.D., Cohen I.G., P. M. Emanuel S.D., S. Dancyger Preceptor. Visitors:—Bros. Isaac Davis P.M. (Niagara Frontier Lodge, No. 132). The work of the evening comprised the ceremony of raising, with traditional history, Bro. Quadratstein candidate. Lodge resumed to the 1st degree, and the fourth section of the lecture was worked by Bro. A. J. Marks.

Duke of Cornwall Lodge of Instruction, No. 1839.—The weekly meeting was held on Tuesday last, at the Queen's Arms, Queen-street, Cheapside. Present—Bros. F. C. Dixie W.M., Culver S.W., Williams Treasurer, Miller Secretary, Foot J.D., Marcus I.G., and several brethren, who duly signed the attendance book. Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the preceding meeting were read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Brother F. Smith acting as candidate. Lodge was opened in the second degree, and Bro. E. Smith answered the usual questions and was entrusted. Lodge opened in the third degree, and the ceremony of raising was rehearsed, Bro. E. Smith candidate. Bro. Belchamber, assisted by Bro. Weedon, worked the second section of the lecture. Lodge was formally lowered, and closed in perfect harmony.

HAROLD STREETER GOLDSMITH,

YOUNGEST SON OF THE LATE BRO. W. O. GOLDSMITH.

Bro. Goldsmith was initiated in the Chiselhurst Lodge, No. 1531, shortly after its consecration in 1875, and remained a subscribing member till 1881, when he joined the Gallery Lodge, No. 1928. In this latter Lodge he served all the offices up to that of W.M. It was while holding this office, and three days after the election of his successor, that he died, on the 15th November 1887. He was a Life Governor of the Boys' School, and a Subscriber to all the Masonic Charities, and was, at all times, a hard worker in Masonry. He was for many years, and at the time of his death, a member of the Reporting Staff of the Press Association, and in that capacity was well know to all Journalists in the United Kingdom. The under-mentioned Brethren strongly recommend the case of his son, the above-named candidate:—

FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE

SATURDAY, 23RD NOVEMBER 1889.

WHAT A CALIFORNIAN THIRTY-THIRDER SAID ABOUT PAPAL ASSUMPTION.

By Brother Jacob Norton.

WITH all due respect to the Pope, it cannot be denied that the Popes have always been more inveterate "ancient landmark sticklers," than the most orthodox Masonic luminaries were; and, like our American Christian Masons, the Popes always had a one-sided golden rule unto themselves. The Pope says, "You must do unto me as you wish that I should do unto you, but I may do unto you what I would not that you should do unto me. You must not persecute me or mine for conscience sake, but I may persecute you and yours for conscience sake. I may erect statues in honour of those who died for my opinion, but you must not erect a statue in honour of one who died for your opinion. And these notions are defended because they have become ancient landmarks. By hook or crook the Popes once obtained power to tyrannize over the Romans, and they claim the right to tyrannize over the Romans for ever. In 1738 a Pope condemned Freemasonry as a great sin, and almost every Pope since then has repeated the same nonsense. This, however, not only did not injure Masonry, but it actually served to swell its ranks, for those Catholics who were initiated into Masonry before the Pope issued his first anti-Masonic Bull, must have become convinced that the Pope was not infallible. Others who were born in the Roman Catholic faith, but for some reason became sceptical, rushed into Masonry to learn what it was all about; and Protestants rushed into it because the Pope condemned it. The Pope's Bull against Masonry may therefore be put down as a Papal blunder.

Again, the present generation of Italians have ceased to believe in the Pope's one-sided golden rule, and have therefore erected a statue in honour of Giordano Bruno, who was burned by the Holy Inquisition in A.D. 1600. Thereupon His Holiness assumed a ludicrous air of offended dignity, issued a protest against it, and ordered the Catholic dignitaries the world over to have it read in every Church in Catholicdom. Now, in every organisation, whether it is Masonic, or political, or ecclesiastical, those who aspire to a high position must ingratiate themselves into the leader's graces by praising up with all their might the leader's policy. Yes, right or wrong, they must say it is right. Hence our American Catholic Churchmen, in their deliverances on the Bruno question, actually outpoped the Pope himself, for besides denouncing the Romans for the gross insult given to the Church in condemning its actions of bygone days, they added a bitter dose to the Freemasons. Now, if Bruno had been a Mason, there would have been some reason for mixing up Masonry with Bruno's sins. But as Bruno was not a Mason it was simply absurd to lug Masonry into connection with Bruno's sins.

Again, a priest attached to the mission of San Jose, in California, has evidently been on the look out for something that would give him a chance to ingratiate himself into favour with his superior. The authorities of Pleasanton happened to invite a Masonic Lodge to perform a little harmless Masonic flummery in laying the corner-stone of a school house. Thereupon our priest of San Jose went to work and made a great splurge about it in the newspapers; he considered it a gross insult to his Church for the town authorities to honour Masons, whom all the Popes in 1738 hated and detested. This, however, provoked the Most Puissant Thrice Illustrious Bro. Edwin A. Sherman 33°, and at the celebration of St. John the Baptist's Day by the Gethsemane Chapter of Rose Croix, Scotch Rite, our valiant champion armed himself, figuratively speaking, cap-à-pie, and with a battle axe in one hand and a sledge hammer in the other, he struck away right and left against the Papal assumption and presumption, and the following paragraph from the pamphlet wherein the oration was printed will show how highly Bro. Sherman's efforts were appreciated by all the Masonic high luminaries who heard him. It says:—

"Although the address occupied an hour and a quarter in delivery, yet it was listened to with interest and wrapt attention to its close. Its telling points and deductions met with frequent and hearty applause, and on motion of Bro. James B. Merritt 33°, it was unanimously ordered to be printed, and a collection was taken up to aid in the payment of the same."

The orator confined himself chiefly to two subjects, namely, the wickedness of the Papacy and the history of Masonry, to which I may add the virtues of Masons and Masonry were not forgotten. Thus, according to the orator's notions, there was no such thing as Jesuitism in Masonry—no lying, no deceiving, no breaking of solemn promises; in short Masons are models of perfection, while, on the other hand, Popery is as bad as anything could be; it seeks to enslave us, it is an enemy to education and enlightenment, it was the assassin of hundreds of thousands when it had the power to do so with impunity. The assassination of Henry III. and of Henry IV. of France, of William of Orange, the repeated efforts made to assassinate Queen Elizabeth, the massacre on St. Bartholomew's Day, the attempt made to blow up the Houses of Parliament by Guy Fawkes, the Horrors of the Holy Inquisition, &c., &c., are given. But the most startling charge against the Jesuits I found on page 15. This is as follows:—

"Foiled at last in their schemes in that direction, the hour appointed for his assassination comes, and the Jesuit conspirators, with their instruments, murder Abraham Lincoln, the martyr President of these United States, whose death by them had been decreed nearly ten years before. The Jesuit Archbishop Bourget, of Montreal, with other Jesuit priests, Sec Pierre and Boucher, are accessories to the crime. More cunning and adroit in their next act of foul assassination in covering their tracks, and James A. Garfield, our brother and President of the United States, is added to their bloody trophies of murder and death, because certain appointments would not be made by him to suit them. Will not our people open their eyes and see?"

Now, as we must take it for granted that Masons never invented lying history, but have always been strictly truthful, as Masons we are therefore bound to believe what a Mason says, especially so one who received the very highest light in Masonry—an actual thirty-thirder of the Scotch Rite. But as we have to enlighten Catholics, Bro. Sherman ought to have furnished, in foot notes, or otherwise, the names of the books, chapter and verse, where his authorities can be found.

The two subjects treated in Bro. Sherman's Oration are, as it were, sandwiched from beginning to end, that is, a thick slice of the sins of Popery is followed by a thin slice of Masonic history. I shall, however, omit as much as possible allusions to Popery, and confine myself to specimens of Masonic history. Well, after a few hard blows with the sledge hammer, comparing the Vatican to "a venomous old rattle snake whose teeth are gone," he goes on thus:—

"But let us go back to the beginning of the very fountain head, and briefly trace the history of this antagonism from its commencement. . . . "While Freemasonry was purely operative and confined itself to the erection of Churches, . . . palaces, . . . and fortifications, . . . it received the encouragement, support, and patronage of Popes and Emperors, and Kings who acknowledged the supremacy of the papal authority; but when scholars and philosophers began their investigations and researches in the realm of science and philosophy, penetrating deeply into the arcana of the hidden mysteries of nature and the universe, and brought forth the grandest discoveries of the age in which they lived, that they too might travel in foreign countries like the Wise Men of old. . . . they, united with the guilds of operative Masonry, were received and accepted as brethren, and the moral and philosophical tenets and principles of our Order were engrafted in the constitution of the Craft.

All which doubtless charmed Bro. Sherman's listeners, who, of course, believed every word, for he went on to show that the Masons began to claim the right to investigate for themselves about science and what not, and then goes on to say:—

"This by our enemies is, and always has been, regarded as rank heresy, and under this pretext of heresy the cupidity, avarice, envy and hatred in the early part of the 14th century towards our ancient brethren of the Knights Templars, who were deceived, entrapped and betrayed, their Grand Master De Molay, with thousands of others, were burned at the stake," &c.

"The Bible, as been a chained prisoner in all monasteries and religious houses in Europe, but few, besides the monks, were permitted to . . . . read it. Among the Templars were found a few who could read and write, and they being operative Masons also . . . . found time at intervals to secretly read, understand and explain the Scriptures themselves. At that time, figuratively speaking, the souls of men throughout Europe were in irons. Edward the 2nd . . . . was engaged in a struggle to seize the kingdom of Scotland, but Robert Bruce . . . . with the aid of the remnant of Knights Templars, who had found shelter under his protection, with 40,000 men, on the 24th June, defeated him" . . . This remnant of Knights Templars were consolidated with the Knights of St. Andrew of Scotland, and in honour of the victory won on St. John the Baptist's Day, he instituted the Order of Rosy Cross, of which we, Masonically speaking, are the descendants."

Who, after reading the above, will deny that America not only beats the world in art, science, war, &c., but it also beats all creation in knowledge of Masonic history; and it is no wonder at all that Bro. Sherman's lecture was so heartily applauded by the most learned Masons in the world. But yet I beg most respectfully to point out, as I did before, the want of historic authority to substantiate it.

I would like to give a few more tit-bits, but space will not allow it. However, I cannot refrain from adding the following newly discovered or revealed fact. Our 33rd Scotch Orator said :—

"William III., observing the fidelity and loyalty of the Freemasons to the government of England, became their patron, and, as a distinguishing mark of his favour and appreciation, directed that their lamb-skin aprons should be bordered with blue, and that the insignia of the Masters and Wardens and other Officers should also be blue, as a badge of honour and fidelity, which colour has been continued by the Craft every where to the present time, and our Symbolic Lodges are generally known as 'Blue Lodges' for this [or the above] reason."

I shall only say—Thank you, Bro. William III., for having made us into Blue Masons, and thank you, Bro. Sherman, for having discovered and made known such an important historical fact.

P.S.—After the above was ready for mailing, I consulted Chamber's Cyclopædia, Articles "St. Andrews" and "Thistle," from which I learn that Bro. Sherman must have been mistaken in his statement that Bruce united the Knight Templars with the Knights of St. Andrews after the battle of Bannockburn, because, in the first place, the Order of the Knights of St. Andrew did not exist before the days of James V., or two hundred years after the battle of Bannockburn was fought; and secondly, I have perused a poem, in two volumes, called "The Bruce," of the "English Text Society." It was compiled in 1375 by a Church dignitary. It gives the history of the struggles and battles of the time of Robert Bruce, and I am sure that no mention was made in the whole poem either of Knight Templars or Knights of St. Andrew. Unless, therefore, Bro. Sherman can furnish conclusive evidence that there were in Scotland in the days of Robert Bruce both Knight Templars and Knights of St. Andrew, I am very much afraid that the Catholic priest at San Jose mission and all other Catholics will never stop poking fun at all the Scotch Riters.

AT the Vernon Arms Hotel, Stockport, on Thursday, the 31st ult., Bro. J. Williamson S.W. was duly installed to the chair of W.M. by Bro. Cartwright W.M. Bro. Williamson appointed the following brethren Officers for the ensuing year :—Bros. Cartwright I.P.M., Booth S.W., Armitage J.W., Worsnup Treasurer, Crossley R.M., McClelland M.O., Atkinson S.O., Foster J.O., Hudson Secretary, Lomas S.D., J. C. Armitage J.D., Harrison I.G., Scott Tyler. There was a good attendance.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Rheumatism and Gout.—These purifying and soothing remedies deserve the earnest attention of all persons liable to gout, sciatica, or other painful affections of the muscles, nerves or joints. The Ointment should be applied after the affected parts have been patiently fomented with warm water, when the Ointment should be diligently rubbed upon the adjacent skin, unless the friction causes pain. Holloway's Pills should be simultaneously taken to diminish pain, reduce inflammation, and purify the blood. This treatment alters the violence and lessens the frequency of gout, rheumatism, and all spasmodic diseases which spring from hereditary predisposition, or from any accidental weakness of constitution. The Ointment checks the local malady, while the Pills restore vital power.

NEW MUSIC.

All Music intended for review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, Belvidere Works, Hermes Hill, Pentonville, London, N.

—:o:—

"The Ship was saved by Laughing!" Song. Written by Philip Dayson, composed by Edward M. Chesham.

"We met too late." Song. Written by Clifton Bingham, composed by Lovett King.

"Jack's Dilemma." Song. Written by Clifton Bingham, composed by Joseph L. Roeckel.

"Lusitania." Song. Written by Wilfred Mills, composed by Edward St. Quentin.

"Weatherwise Notions; or, My new fashioned Barometer." Song. Written by Sidney Bourne, composed by Herbert W. Schartau.

"A Garden of Memories." Waltz. Composed by May Ostlere.

"Lusitania." Waltz. Composed by Florence Fare.

"Pick me up." Polka. Composed by Florence Fare.

London: ROBERT COCKS AND CO., 6 New Burlington Street, W.

THE above selection is calculated to suit the tastes of all lovers of music. For singers Messrs. Cocks have provided songs for both ladies and gentlemen. "The Ship was saved by Laughing" is a fine, jovial, and cheery composition, by Philip Dayson and Edward M. Chesham. It is admirably suited for a bass or baritone voice. "We met too late" is another pleasing song, written by Clifton Bingham, and composed by Lovett King. The music is catchy and tuneful, and does the composer credit. Clifton Bingham is responsible for the words of "Jack's Dilemma," which has been set to appropriate music by Joseph L. Roeckel. The theme is pretty, and will become popular. "Lusitania" is a splendid song; Edward St. Quentin's music is bright and agreeable, and the words so pleasant that it makes a really delightful piece. The comic singer is also provided for in this selection; "Weatherwise Notions; or, My new fashioned Barometer," is a truly comical song written by Sidney Bourne, and set to music by Herbert W. Schartau. All the verses are in good taste, and what is, perhaps, more to the point, are amusing. A charming waltz is May Ostlere's "A Garden of Memories;" it has been founded on Michael Watson's well-known song, and although comparatively easy, is most tuneful. Florence Fare has furnished a smooth and pleasing waltz from "Lusitania." The refrain of the song is brought in in such good taste that one is inclined to start dancing at once. "Pick me up" is a capital polka, and an easy one to dance to. Florence Fare is responsible for it, and here again good work has been done. The frontispiece is most appropriate to the title. All these dance pieces are such that should make the selection of music for a ball programme an easy matter.

"Funiculì, Funiculà." Waltz. Composed by Josef Meissler.

London: G. RICORDI AND CO., 265 Regent Street, W.

THE refrain of this popular song has been utilized by Josef Meissler to found his waltz "Funiculì, Funiculà" on. We can only say that it is a most agreeable and tuneful one, and bids fair to become as popular as the same composer's "Dream Faces." We can heartily recommend it to those fond of dance music.

LEEDS MASONIC LOCAL RELIEF FUND.

THE annual meeting of this Fund was held on Thursday, the 14th inst., under the presidency of W. Bro. Allinson P.M. P.P.G.D., at the Masonic Hall, Great George Street, Leeds. The other brethren present included W. Bros. Robert Craig P.M. P.P.G.D., Trevor P.M., Rickard P.M., Fretwell S.W., Smith W.M., and Robert Lucas, the Secretary. Bro. Rickard presented the annual report, to the following effect :—We have much pleasure in presenting you with the annual report of the Leeds Local Relief Fund. The year closed on the 31st day of October, when the books were duly audited, found correct, and signed. It will be known to you that two years since it was recommended that all cash in the hands of the Almoner at the close of the financial year should be repaid to the Treasurer, and the books balanced accordingly. This has been done, and we think with good results. During the year 66 persons have applied for assistance, 44 were considered worthy and relieved. In some instances we noticed with satisfaction that the Almoner has consulted the President, Treasurer and members of the Committee, and on one occasion the Committee met to consider a peculiar case which had arisen. The relief from November 1888 to October 1889 included 44 persons, of whom 20 were under the English Constitution, 9 under the Scotch, 4 under the Irish, and 11 under Foreign Constitutions. The total amount of relief distributed during that time was £9 12s 3½d, giving an average per case of 4s 4½d. It is worthy of notice that during the last nine years 30 applicants more than in the previous ten years have been relieved, with a decreased expenditure of £16 4s 4d. There is a small amount of 19s 2½d due to the Treasurer; a call on each Lodge of 1s per member is necessary. This amount in all probability will suffice for two years. The funds of the Society are being wisely and judiciously distributed by the Almoner. (Signed) José Rickard I.P.M. 304, and Wm. Bingham W.M. 1012. This report was unanimously adopted, on the motion of Bro. Tudor Trevor, seconded by Bro. Smith. Bro. Allinson was elected President for the ensuing year, Bros. Rickard Vice-President, Craig Treasurer, Barrand Almoner, Rickard and Fretwell Auditors, and Robert Lucas Secretary. A vote of thanks to Bro. Allinson concluded the meeting.

QUID pro QUO.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—It seems to me that for some time past the Provincial Masons have had more than their fair share of talk—they have long enjoyed more than their fair share of benefits—in connection with the great Charities of the Order; and I think it is about time some of the loudest of the Provincials should be met on their own lines. I am afraid I shall make a poor stand against the utterances of the country folk, but "even a worm will turn," and it is about time that London—or some one on behalf of London—turned their attention to the subject.

I am averse to a strict debit and credit account being kept in regard to subscriptions and donations paid to, and benefits received from, the Charities, but there is such a thing as justice, and it is most unjust for those who get the most out of the Institutions to make the loudest complaint about their management. To be more precise in what I mean, I will refer to one or two matters that have recently come under my notice.

In your report of the Grand Master of West Yorkshire's speech, at the Provincial meeting recently held at Huddersfield, I gather that our distinguished Bro. Tew has a very good opinion of what his Province has done for the Boys' School; he has also some strange ideas. He is reported as having said:—

"In a Province like West Yorkshire, the passing of a formal resolution . . . . . , and only confirming it hereafter upon the Provincial Grand Lodge 'Minutes,' like many Provinces, and taking no further action to enforce the views of this Provincial Grand Lodge, would hardly be compatible with our desires for the welfare of this School, considering the large amount of money contributed by the Lodges which, since 1871, is upwards of £12,000."

(The italics are mine.)

Now, Bro. Tew—and Brethren of West Yorkshire generally—I, as a Londoner, while admitting that the £12,000 you boast of is a large amount of money to be contributed by your Lodges, ask—What have you had in return for it? Perhaps a few figures will assist you, and I accordingly give a summary of the number of West Yorkshire cases which have been on the funds of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, during this period, in which you boast of having contributed your £12,000:—

1872	14
1873	12
1874	13
1875	12
1876	12
1877	13
1878	16
1879	19
1880	20
1881	20
1882	21
1883	23
1884	16
1885	12
1886	16
1887	20
1888	23
1889	24
19 years	317 Boys

an average of 16⅔, or, to be less cumbered with fractions, let us say 16¾ Boys per year. How far has your splendid contribution of £12,000 paid the cost of these 317 Boys?

£12,000 spread over 19 years gives an average of £631 11s 7d per year, and this, divided between 16¾ Boys, gives about £37 17s 10½d per child, so that West Yorkshire has maintained 317 children during the last nineteen years, at the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, at about £12 per head—at the very lowest—less than they have cost the Institution. As the average number of beneficiaries is 16¾ this means that each year since 1871 West Yorkshire has benefitted from the Boys' School to the extent of about £200 more than its Lodges and the Province has contributed, and yet the Provincial Grand Master talks of "enforcing" the views of his district in regard to the future conduct of the Institution.

Well may Bro. Tew say the Province of West Yorkshire "desires the welfare of this School." Who would not desire the welfare of a concern yielding a clear profit of at least £200 on an outlay of £631 11s 7d a year? But there are also many side issues that might be considered in this matter. I am very much mistaken if the £12,000 referred to by Bro. Tew does not include the purchase of one or more perpetual presentations, so that—if I am correct—West Yorkshire has not only had upwards of 20s in the £1 for its subscriptions, but has also secured valuable rights in the Institution, so long as it lasts, and yet the Province grumbles! Truly it may be asked—What do they want for their money?

Yours faithfully,

A VICE PRESIDENT.

ROYAL ARCH.

EADE'S
GOUT & RHEUMATIC PILLS.

The SAFEST and most EFFECTUAL CURE for GOUT, RHEUMATISM, and all PAINS in the HEAD, FACE, and LIMBS.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL from the Rev. F. FARVIS, Baptist Minister.

Mr. G. Eade. March 19, 1887.

Dear Sir,—I have many times felt inclined to inform you of the benefit I have received by taking your Gout and Rheumatic Pills. After suffering for some time from Rheumatics and Sciatica, I was advised to use your Pills. I bought a bottle, and when in severe pain and unable to use the limb affected I took a dose. In a few hours after I felt the pain much better, and after the second dose the pain completely removed and the limb restored to its right use. I thank you, dear sir, for sending forth such a boon for the relief of human suffering.

Yours faithfully,
F. Farvis,
Baptist Minister.

There are multitudes of people who look upon advertising as a sort of Lottery, and bestow infinitely more thought in the selection of a clerk at £100 a year than in the expenditure of £1000, or two in the same period in advertising. A tithe of the shrewdness displayed in all other branches of their business given to the management of their advertising will be amply repaid. The ADVERTISEMENT AGENT has become an indispensable factor in this matter of publicity, and his raison d'être is perfectly unassailable. Would you leave or enter a port without a pilot? Would you commence and prosecute a law suit without a legal adviser? Either of these courses would not be more foolish than rushing into expenses in Advertising without a competent practical and professional adviser. I am at all times happy to render advertisers every assistance in my power, and to give them the benefit of the experience I have gained during the past twenty years as a London advertising agent. LODGE HISTORIES.

THE LODGE OF PROBITY, No. 61.

IN our last notice of this History we spoke of a proposal made on the 1st October 1816, as to the division of the Province of Yorkshire, and promised to refer more fully to the subject. In the chapter of the History devoted to it reference is first made to the original formation of the Provincial Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire, and the appointment of various brethren as Prov. G. Masters. Then we are told that no further particulars are known as to the length of time during which this West Yorkshire Grand Lodge existed; indeed, as no records of its proceedings have been discovered, doubts have arisen as to its existence. Brother Crossley considers it probable this Provincial Grand Lodge fell into abeyance some time after 1765, while in 1774 the whole of the county appeared to have been placed under the jurisdiction of Sir Thomas Tancred. Sir Walter Vavasour, Bart. afterwards presided over the Province, and was succeeded by Richard Slater Milnes, who in turn was followed by Robert Pemberton Milnes. It was during the presidency of this latter Brother the Province was divided into two parts, as we know it to-day:—North and East Yorkshire and West Yorkshire.

The minute of 1816, already referred to, speaks of the great and increasing number of Lodges in the West Riding of the county—then 31 in all—and remarks it is highly necessary the new laws respecting Provincial Grand Lodges should be observed. The distance of most of the Lodges from York and the time and expense required to attend there rendered compliance with the laws difficult, and it was on this ground the division of the county was suggested; Leeds or Wakefield being named as the home for the Provincial Grand Lodge of the West Riding. This alteration, it was considered, would enable three-fourths of the Lodges to attend without either inconvenience or expense, while it was further pointed out that both towns were near the seat of the then Provincial Grand Master. These suggestions were drawn up in the form of a resolution, but it was afterwards decided not to send them in that shape, and a memorial was substituted, which was in due course transmitted to the Provincial Grand Master, and, in duplicate, to the Grand Secretary in London.

Among the matters touched upon in this memorial was a suggestion that "as the Provincial Grand Lodge is a representative body, composed of the Provincial Grand Officers, also the Past Masters and Wardens of every Lodge under its jurisdiction, it ought not to be attached to any particular Lodge (as is the case at present), but should be a separate and distinct body of itself, the present Constitutions having provided a fund for its support." Further reference was made to the necessity of appointing to the office of Deputy Provincial Grand Master a brother of "highly respectable character and a man of business," who should be a Past Master (not an acting Master of any private Lodge), while, "in order to prevent jealousies, and to establish union and brotherly love . . . . . the assistant and subordinate Grand Officers should be annually chosen from the Masters and Past Masters of the different Lodges, and not more, if possible, than one Officer from a Lodge."

It seems somewhat strange in these days to read of Private Lodge making such suggestions to the rulers of the Order as are here referred to, and which may be said to have now long become recognised as part and parcel of the groundwork of Masonic supervision. We may imagine from this memorial that the Lodge of Probity, if not the actual proposers of all that is set out in the memorial, were at least among the first to officially direct the attention of the Craft to the proposed alterations, and it must be matter for considerable gratification among those now associated with the Lodge to learn that their predecessors took so active and important a part in the promotion of Freemasonry in its earlier days, and its subsequent management.

We are told the whole district, with the exception of Doncaster, gave the project a hearty support, but, as may be imagined, many difficulties arose. The York brethren particularly were averse to the division, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master (the Hon. Lawrence Dundas) being expected to show opposition to it, or anything which lessened the importance of York, of which he was at the time parliamentary representative. His father (Lord Dundas) was Deputy Grand Master of the Empire, so that the opposition he could bring to bear was of no mean character. In an interview between the Deputy Provincial Grand Master and Bro. John Robinson, of Wakefield, who took considerable interest in the movement, the former, while receiving his guest "with respect and politeness," explained he could not thoroughly comprehend the intention "of the memorialists." To attempt to draw anything from the City of York, he said, would be looked upon with great jealousy, and, instead of cementing the brotherhood, would be more likely to create a schism amongst them. This high official, however, gave expression to his readiness at all times to do everything for the benefit and satisfaction of the Craft consistent with his duty to all parties. He observed that the neighbouring Lodges were inclined to have an annual, biennial, or triennial meeting amongst themselves, and thought such meetings should be encouraged so long as they were conducted properly. We are told the whole question was well ventilated, the various Lodges throughout the West Riding being almost unanimous in petitioning for the division.

The Provincial Grand Master ultimately came to the conclusion that a meeting of the Worshipful Masters who had petitioned for the division should be held, and this was accordingly arranged at his residence, at Fryston, on the 3rd February 1817. The result of this meeting was that the Provincial Grand Master "perfectly agreed to the substance of the memorial, and promised to use his interest with H.R.H. the Most Worshipful Grand Master."

Some delay occurred in consequence of illness in the family of the P.G.M., but the petition to Grand Lodge was submitted to H.R.H. the Duke of Sussex in May, accompanied with an expression of the Provincial Grand Master's opinion as to its reasonableness. It appears to have been favourably received by the Grand Master, but no official notification of the prayer of the petition being granted or otherwise seems to have been received in Yorkshire until March 1818, when the Grand Secretary, in a letter to the W.M. of Probity Lodge, after remarking that he is quite unable to say anything respecting the Provincial Grand Lodge, states that "in the next Calendar the Lodges will be divided under their respective Provinces." Here the matter seems to have rested until the following December, when the Probity Lodge forwarded a memorial to the Board of General Purposes, praying their assistance in forwarding the formation of a Provincial Grand Lodge for the Province. A similar memorial was sent from the Sheffield brethren. The petition of the Probity Lodge was duly presented, and is reported as having received consideration, but more important than all it led to a reply to the effect that "instructions had been sent to Lord Dundas two years previously, appointing him Grand Master of the North and East Ridings, and requesting him to call that Province together; he was requested also to communicate with Right Worshipful Bro. Milnes, and to inform him of his appointment as P.G.M. of the Western Division." Lord Dundas reported to the Board he had never received those instructions, and the matter had again to stand over. Subsequently the Leeds brethren were apprised that the question had been settled, and that Wakefield had been appointed the headquarters for the Province of West Yorkshire. This rumour gave rise to some correspondence, and a meeting was called, the result being that a petition was presented in favour of Leeds being the home of Provincial Grand Lodge, while the district chief was asked to suspend his decision on the matter until the sense of the Lodges at large had been taken.

Further correspondence on this subject (notably two letters from Bro. M. J. Naylor, D.D., Vicar of Wakefield, and afterwards Provincial Grand Chaplain) go to show that the brother appointed to rule the Western Province was very lukewarm. Bro. Milnes even went so far as to say that he almost despaired of the general co-operation of the Lodges concerned; he hardly knew to what Lodges his authority extended; or whether Yorkshire formed one entire Province, or was sub-divided into as many Provinces as Ridings. However, he appears to have moved in the matter, and the result was a communication from the joint Secretaries of Grand Lodge, under date 13th October 1819, to the W.M. of the Probity Lodge, recounting what had been done by the Grand Master in July 1817 (when the Province was really divided) and informing him that a copy of the letter then addressed to Bro. Milnes had that day been forwarded by post at the command of the Grand Master. The hope was expressed in this letter to the Probity Lodge that the R.W. Brother referred to (Bro. Milnes) would "now adopt such measures as may be in conformity with the directions of His Royal Highness the Grand Master, and for the prosperity of the Order under his jurisdiction." After all this it was but reasonable to expect that the Provincial Lodge would be regularly started, but unfortunately this was not the case. The lukewarmness of the Provincial Grand Master asserted itself, and no action appears to have been taken on his part. This led to another memorial (August 1820) from the ever active Lodge of Probity, praying that the Provincial Grand Lodge should be assembled "according to the Constitutions of the Fraternity." The effect of this memorial is not known—there is no minute or record which would lead to the supposition that a meeting was held or that a Provincial Grand Lodge was formed.

In February 1821 the Probity Lodge, at the request of the Leeds brethren, took the initiative, and called a meeting of Masters and Officers of the Province. This meeting was held at the New Inn, Bradford, when it was stated that Bro. Milnes had resigned his position as Provincial Grand Master. At this meeting Lord Viscount Pollington was recommended to the Grand Master as "a person in every respect fully qualified" for the appointment, and it was agreed a memorial should be presented to the Duke of Sussex, containing the recommendation, while a further communication should be addressed to Lord Pollington, informing him of the wish of the meeting, and earnestly requesting him to accede to it.

All these matters were carried through in regular order, the prayer of the petition to the Grand Master was granted, and the Provincial Grand Lodge held its first meeting at Wakefield, on the 18th November 1822. The P.G.M. was duly installed and invested the following April, and in his selection of Officers he fully recognised the claims of the Probity Lodge, as the moving spirit in the new order of things, to special recognition. One of its members was appointed the first Junior Provincial Grand Warden, another first Prov. G. Secretary, and another a Prov. G. Steward.

This, in brief, is the history of the formation of one of the most important—if not the chief—among the Provincial Grand Lodges of English Freemasonry. We have seen how it was inaugurated, on a sound basis—not, however, without considerable trouble and perseverance on the part of the promoters—and, in the words of the historian from whose work we have gathered our facts, we may conclude with the remark: "it has since continued to work for the good of every individual Lodge, and for the Lodges of the whole Province collectively."

There may appear to be little in association with all this to justify its being included in the History of the Lodge of Probity, but, on the other hand, we have seen that it was really this private Lodge that led and forced the establishment of the Provincial one, and such being the case, full credit should be awarded them for their labour. As we have said above, it must be very gratifying to the members of the Lodge to-day to know it was their ancestors who brought about so important a change in the affairs of the Craft as is here referred to. We hope that similar enthusiasm may for all time actuate the Lodge and its members.

BROTHER GOULD'S NEWLY ASSUMED CHAMPIONSHIP FOR.

By Bro. Jacob Norton.

A FEW days after John Brown was executed in Virginia, for creating an anti-slavery riot, Mr. Wandell Phillips said, at a public meeting in Boston, that slavery died with John Brown. "You may imagine it (he said) to be still alive, but I tell you it is dead—past resurrection;" and he compared the then slavery to a tree that was severed from its root. "The tree (said he) seems to be still alive, its leaves continue to be green, and it has sufficient vitality left to shoot forth new buds, but yet the tree is virtually dead. The same simile may be applied to Masonic Antiquity, the Antiquity of Speculative Masonry, &c., which still seem to be alive. You may here also point to its green leaves, in the shape of Bros. Yarker and Professor Hayter Lewis in England, to Bro. MacCalla and all other American pious Masonic editors, pious chairmen of Committees of Correspondence, pious St. John's Day orators, and all other American pious Masonic officials, who are, or pretend to be, as green about Masonic history as grass after a shower in the month of May. Yet Bro. Albert Pike, whose interest obviously is to encourage and perpetuate Masonic greenness, says, in a recent number of the Voice of Masonry:—

"Our American Masonry can only be reinstated in that high consideration among men which it once enjoyed, by doing something that shall prove its title to it. The mystery that once surrounded it is dispelled. The fictions on which it so long relied have been dispelled by its own historians.

And now read what Professor Max Müller urges about the kind of evidence required to prove anything. He said:—

"No one would venture now-a-days to quote from any book, whether sacred or profane, without ever asking these simple, yet monotonous questions, viz.: When was it written? Where and by whom? Was the author an eye witness? or does he only relate what he has heard from others? And if the latter, were his authorities at least contemporaneous with the events which they related? And were they not under the sway of party feeling, or any other disturbing influence?

I shall now, figuratively speaking, place Professor Max Müller in the chair, and submit to his judgment the value of the evidence furnished by our oldest MSS. for the antiquity of Masonic degrees, the antiquity of speculative Masonry, and the antiquity of Masonry itself as an organization.

The first of the said old MSS. is known as the Halliwell Poem, or, as Bro. Gould calls it, "The Regius Poem." Now, nobody knows its author's name or where it was written, but it was doubtless written in the 15th century. The first event we find recorded therein is that Euclid was the originator of the Masonic Brotherhood. Now Euclid lived in the third century before Christ, and the Regius Poem was written in the 15th century after Christ, the poet therefore wrote about an event that took place about seventeen hundred or more years before his time, and all the authority he gives for his statement is, that those who will read and look, may find that story in an old book. He does not say that he had ever read it in an old book, he does not give the title of that book, nor when it was written. Hence, Professor Max Müller would undoubtedly discard the poet's evidence of the Euclid story as worthless.

Digitized by Google

The second piece of information derived from the said poem is about the organization of Masons in England by Athelstan. Now, Athelstan reigned in England either from 924 to 940, or from 926 to 942 (for the early writers differ about the said dates). The poem was therefore written about five hundred years after Athelstan's reign. Now, I have carefully read all the Monkish chronicles published by Bohn, from the days of Athelstan and onward, and I cannot find in any of them the story about Athelstan's Masonry, and all the evidence the poet appealed to for confirmation of Athelstan's Masonry was confined to mere hearsay. The same poet also informs us that Nabogodon's son had built "The Tower of Babyloyne seven miles high," and for obvious reasons I believe no more in his Euclid and Athelstan Masonic stories than I believe in his Tower of Babel story.

The next in order of Masonic MSS. is known as the Matthew Cooke MS. Here also the name of its author and where it was written are unknown. The said author begins the History of Masonry with Lemech: he Masonized Noah, Nimrod, and Abraham. Now, Abraham is said to have lived about 1900 years before Christ, and Euclid (as already stated) lived about 300 years before Christ, but the author of the Cooke MS. informs us that when Abraham was in Egypt he taught Euclid geometry. The said author repeats the Euclid story, and also the Athelstan story with a little variation. He says that the youngest son of Athelstan organized the Masons and bought a charter of his father. He also informs us that King Solomon and King Hiram of Tyre were Masons, and that a son of King Hiram was Solomon's master builder. The name of the master builder, however, he did not give. (The poet knew nothing about Solomon's and Hiram's Masonry). But what authority did the author of the Cooke MS. give for his statements about Solomon and Hiram. Well, he refers us first to the Bible, where it is written that Solomon had four score thousand Masons, and adds, "And in other Chronicles it is said, and in old books of Masonry, that Solomon confirmed the charges that David his father had given to Masons," and I rather guess that for obvious reasons Professor Max Müller would not consent to receive any such evidence for proving the antiquity of Masonry.

Next in order of succession is the MS. printed by Bro. Sadler in his "Facts and Fictions." The year when that MS. was written was erased, but "December 25th" was left untouched. Bro. Sadler and Bro. Henry Jenner are, however, of opinion that it was written in 1585. I have, in a former paper, pointed out the impossibility of fixing dates to undated MSS., merely because the handwriting resembles the style of penmanship of a certain period. The MS. in question, I believe, was not written before 1585; it may, however, have been written thirty years after 1585. But, assuming that Bro. Sadler's date is correct, in the first place the name of its author and where it was written is unknown, and second, the said MS. is simply an abridgment of the Matthew Cooke MS.; the same stories, including the story of Abraham teaching Euclid, are repeated. But it furnishes new information also. It informs us that King Athelstan's son, referred to in the Cooke MS., was named "Edwin," that King Hiram's son, referred to in the Cooke MS. as Solomon's master builder, was named "Aynone," that the famous first Masonic assembly in England was held at "York," and that "Naymus Grecus," who helped to build King Solomon's Temple, went to France and taught Masonry to Charles Martel. If that be so, Bro. Naymus Grecus must have been over 1700 years old when he taught Masonry to Bro. Charles Martel.

The next in order are about forty or more similar MSS. to the above. Brother Hughan named them "Ancient Charges," &c. Nearly all the copies that were written before 1717 repeat the Euclid and Abraham story; some repeat the Naymus Grecus story. They differ, however, about the name of King Hiram's son. One gives "Amon," another "Banian," another "Anjon," another "Ayon," another "Aymon," another "a man," another "Hyman," &c., but in no pre-1717 MS. can the name of Hiram Abiff be found, nor do any of the said MSS. hint at the existence of Masonic degrees, or "Speculative Masonry," that is in accordance with our sense of the phrase. It is evident, therefore, that Speculative Masonry and Hiram Abiff's connection with the Craft was unknown to the pre-1717 Masons; and here is what Bro. Gould himself taught us before his conversion to the old Masonic belief. He says, on page 366 Vol. II. of his History:—

"I am aware of no evidence to justify a belief that the circumstances of his [Hiram Abiff's] decease, as narrated by Anderson, were in any shape or form a tradition of the Craft before the year 1723."

And now let us test the value of the evidence furnished by the pre 1717 MSS. by the rule laid down by Professor Max Müller.

Question 1st. When were the said Masonic MSS. written?

Answer: In some cases hundreds of years, and in some cases thousands of years after the events they relate are said to have happened.

Question 2nd. Where were they written and by whom?

Answer: Nobody knows.

Question 3rd. Was the author of each MS. an eye-witness? or does he relate what he has heard from others, and if the latter, were his authorities at least contemporaneous with the events which they relate?

Answer: They were not eye-witnesses of the events they relate, but in some cases they claim that their narratives may be found in nameless or undescribed books and chronicles, and in other cases they confess that their narratives were derived from mere hearsay.

Question 4th. Were not the authors of these Masonic MSS. under the sway of party feeling, or some other disturbing influence?

Answer: There can be no doubt that the writers of the said MSS. were under the sway of party feeling, and that they were either grossly ignorant or grossly unscrupulous.

Well, I think that Professor Max Müller would not accept the statements of the said MSS. as evidence for Masonic antiquity.

The said MSS., however, furnish some information, viz.:—

First. We can infer from them that there is no evidence in existence that before the middle of the 15th century Euclid's and Athelstan's Masonry was known to any one.

Second. There is no evidence that before the Reformation the Masonry of King Solomon and of King Hiram was known.

Third. There is no evidence that before 1585 it was known that Athelstan had a son by the name of Edwin, or that the first Masonic assembly held in England was at York.

And Fourth. There is not a particle of evidence to prove that either Masonic degrees, or Speculative Masonry, or the connection of Hiram Abiff with the Masonic Craft, was known to either English, Scotch or Irish Masons before the year 1717.

HARMONY LODGE, No. 275.

ON Sunday morning, the 10th inst., the Centenary of the above Lodge was celebrated, when about 400 or 500 members of various Lodges in the West Riding Province attended divine service at Huddersfied Parish Church. They met at the Masonic Hall, South Parade, Huddersfield, and walked from thence in procession to the church. Masonic clothing was worn, and the weather being fine a large number of people witnessed the procession. The Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge of the West Riding brought up the rear. They were headed by the Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master Bro. T. W. Tew (who was preceded by a Sword Bearer, and supported by the two Standard Bearers) and Bro. Henry Smith Deputy Provincial Grand Master. On arriving at the gates of the Church the brethren drew up on each side of the street, in order to allow the Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge to walk through, each of them saluting the Provincial Grand Master as he passed. The brethren filed in afterwards, and followed the Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge into church. At the gate the procession was met and preceded into church by the Rev. Canon Bardsley, M.A., Vicar of Huddersfield, and the Churchwardens (Messrs. Alfred Sykes and W. H. Armitage), each of whom bore his staff of office. The service was commenced with "All people that on earth do dwell." The Rev. C. Dudley Lampen, Vicar of St. Andrew's, Huddersfield, and Provincial Grand Chaplain of West Yorkshire, intoned the service. The first lesson—1 Kings viii. 22 to 54—was read by Bro. A. J. H. Fletcher, M.A., Chaplain No. 275; and the second—1 Corinthians xiii.—by the Rev. Canon Bardsley, M.A. Litany was said by the Rev. W. H. Norman, M.A., Curate. Under the superintendency of Bro. J. North, the choir ably led the musical portion of the service. The Jubilate Deo was sung to Sullivan's service in E., and the anthem, "Behold, how good and joyful," (Clarke-Whitfield), was also rendered, the solos in which were given by Bro. W. Riley and Masters Binns and Easter. After the singing of the hymn "Nearer my God to Thee," the Rev. P. F. J. Pearce, Vicar of Pulloxhill, Amptill, Bedfordshire, and Past Provincial Grand Master of West Yorkshire, preached from the words—"As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially unto them that are of the household of faith," (Galatians vi. 10). The collection taken on behalf of the Huddersfield Infirmary amounted to between £31 and £32, and was conveyed to the communion rails, to be received by the Vicar, by the Right Worshipful Master of the Provincial Grand Lodge, who was accompanied by the Churchwardens and the Sword and Standard Bearers. When the service was over the Masons returned to the Masonic Hall.

ISRAEL LODGE, No. 1502.

BRO. ANDREW KIRKPATRICK, a former occupant of the chair of this Lodge, was, on the 18th instant, at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, duly installed as Worshipful Master. The proceedings were opened by Bro. David Gabrielson, the retiring W.M. Amongst the Visitors were Bros. E. H. Cookson W.M. 32, James T. Callow P.P.G.T., Thomas Salter P.P.J.G.D., C. Gabriel re-elected Treasurer, W. W. Mellor re-elected Secretary, M. Karet S.D., J. O. Roberts J.D., J. Vos I.G., J. C. Lemmens, B. Marcus, J. W. Brien and L. Hammerstein Stewards, and D. Gabrielsen I.P.M. Bro. Williamson was reappointed Tyler. On the conclusion of the ceremony the brethren adjourned to refreshment. Bro. Cookson, in responding to the toast of Bro. the Earl of Lathom, Deputy Grand Master and Provincial Grand Master, and the Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge past and present, expressed the satisfaction he experienced in being present and witnessing such efficient working. As the brethren knew, he had for some time past been precluded from fulfilling his Masonic duties in the way he should have desired, but now that he had terminated his mayoral duties, he would go more into the Masonic world.

EBORACUM LODGE, No. 1611.

THE installation of the W.M. took place in the Hall, St. Saviourgate, York, on the 11th inst., and the event was invested with more than ordinary interest, inasmuch as the Lodge was tyled for the first time since the restoration and adornment of the building. The Lodge-room had been thoroughly renovated, painted, and decorated; new oak seats have been fixed on both sides below the dais, and these have been covered with crimson velvet; the floor has been carpeted, and the room is now one of the most suitable and handsome apartments for purposes of Masonic work that can be found in the country. The carpet may be described as being a magnificent Masonic one, having a blue ground with Masonic devices woven in, and surrounded with the Royal Arch border. The staircase has also been carpeted and painted; the two lower rooms have been painted and fitted with patent ventilators. The entrance hall has been laid with encaustic tiles by Bro. F. Rawlings, and in the Lodge-room itself a sunlight has been fixed in the centre. The roof has been painted in an ethereal blue colour, artistically relieved with groups of stars in gold, the upper panels of the walls being filled in with wall frescoes, the subjects being Egyptian Masonic groups, which have been executed in a masterly style by Bro. Whytehead P.M. The carpet for the large hall, it may be mentioned, and also for the staircase, have been specially woven to the order of Bro. W. Brown at the works of Messrs. Crossley, of Halifax. The painting and decorations have been carried out by Mr. Pearson, Goodramgate, York; and the upholstering work and seating by Bro. A. Chapman, of Petergate, York. The work has been superintended by a committee under the chairmanship of the W.M. Bro. S. J. Dalton. It will be further satisfaction to the brethren to know that a contract has been entered into for the completion, up to a certain point, of the organ, and this work will be carried out during the early part of next year by Messrs. Denman and Sons, Skeldergate, York. It is also contemplated, at no distant date, to erect a suitable lavatory, and to add to the rooms available for Masonic ceremonial purposes the upper floor of the Tyler's cottage, reserving the lower floor for cooking purposes. When this is done the suite of Masonic rooms will be perfect. The brethren with visitors from the West Riding of Yorkshire and other Provinces assembled at the Hall, St. Saviourgate, at three o'clock, and after the transaction of the usual routine business, the Worshipful Master elect, Bro. George Chapman, was presented for installation to the Installing Master, Bro. T. B. Whytehead P.M. P.P.G.S.W., who at once proceeded to induct Bro. Chapman into the chair as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. The Worshipful Master then invested the following brethren as his Officers, viz.:—Bros. S. J. Dalton I.P.M., W. Lackenby S.W., W. Storey J.W., Rev. R. P. T. Tennett Chaplain, G. Balmford P.M. Treasurer, J. Kay Secretary, J. H. Shonksmith S.D., P. Pearson J.D, Geo. Lamb D.C., J. L. Spetch I.G., W. S. Child Organist, F. W. Halliwell, W. Sharp, G. Pook, J. Smith Stewards, J. Hall Tyler, T. B. Whytehead Preceptor and Librarian. Apologies for non-attendance were read from the Very Rev. the Dean of York Past Grand Chaplain, the Hon. W. T. Orde-Powlett Deputy P.G. Master North and East Yorkshire, T. W. Tew P.G. Master West Yorkshire, M. C. Peck P.G. Secretary, W. Reynolds P.G. Treasurer, and a large number of brethren of eminence in this and other Provinces, all of whom tendered their best wishes for a prosperous year. In addition to the Brethren and Officers of the Eboracum Lodge, the following visitors were present:—Bros. J. W. Woodall 200 P.G. Treasurer England, W. H. B. Atkinson P.M. 910, W. F. Tomlinson P.M. 304, J. S. Rymer P.M. 236, S. Chadwick P.M. 1040, D. J. O. Donoghue P.M. 57, W. Baldwin P.M. 630, H. E. Coussans P.M. 297, J. H. Taylor W.M. 1991, C. M. Forbes S.W. 236, C. E. Wright 236 and 357, T. E. Jackson 1448, C. Anderson 236, T. Laverack 1991, J. Sutcliffe 1991, C. Garrood 1991, &c. The ceremony of installation and the addresses to the various Officers were forcibly given by the Installing Officer, who was afterwards appointed the Charity representative for the Lodge during the ensuing year. The annual banquet, supplied by Bro. Halliwell, was held in the evening at the De Grey Rooms, when the W.M. presided, and was supported by Bro. Border W.M. York Lodge, and Bro. Crummack, of York Lodge, and also by the visitors who had attended the installation ceremony, the invested Officers, and a large muster of the brethren of the Lodge. During the evening several glees and songs were given by a quartette, consisting of Bros. J. E. Wilkinson, Sutcliffe, Sample, and Child, in good style, Bro. Child, the Organist of the Lodge, presiding at the piano. Bro. Horner, Baldwin, and other brethren added to the after dinner programme.

Joppa Lodge of Instruction, No. 188.—On Tuesday, 26th inst., at the Manchester Hotel, Aldersgate-street, E.C. Bros. C. H. Cohen W.M., Ansell S.W., Poppmacher J.W., H. Saqui Secretary, Dodd S.D., Samuel I.G.; A. J. Marks, Rubenstein, Friedlander, Emanuel, Garrard, P. Cohen, Quadratstein, Mendoza, &c. The work comprised the rehearsal of the ceremony of initiation, Bro. Rubenstein acting as candidate. The first and second sections of the first lecture were creditably worked by the W.M., in the absence of Bro. Preceptor Dancyger, whose duties to his mother Lodge caused his absence.

Sir Michael Hicks Beach has notified his intention of holding the Provincial Grand Lodge of Gloucestershire in Gloucester next year, and by invitation of the Dean and Chapter it is contemplated holding Provincial Grand Lodge in the Chapter-room of the Cathedral, with a special service for the occasion.

By the kind permission of the Very Rev. the Dean of Manchester, a musical service will be rendered in the Cathedral on the evening of the 9th December, by the brethren of the Arthur Sullivan Lodge, No. 2156. The sermon will be preached by Brother the Rev. T. Barton Spencer, M.A. A collection will be made in aid of the East Lancashire Systematic Educational and Benevolent Institution.

Brother J. Baker was installed on Tuesday, the 26th instant, as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year of the Herschel Lodge, No. 1894.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—The Great Need.—The blood is the life, and on its purity our health as well as our existence depends. These Pills thoroughly cleanse the vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that means strengthen and invigorate the whole system, healthily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills exercises marvellous power in giving tone to debilitated and nervous constitutions. These Pills dislodge all obstruction, both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or have from some cause become so.

PROV. GRAND LODGE OF WILTSHIRE.

THE yearly meeting of the Provincial Lodge of Wiltshire was held at Trowbridge, on Wednesday, under the banner of Lodge of Concord, No 632, of which Brother J. Pocock is the W.M. The presence of the members of Friendship and Fidelity Lodge, 1271, Bradford, and White Horse Lodge, 2227, Westbury, was also specially invited, and they attended in considerable numbers. The brethren attended in the Council Chamber of the Town Hall, at about 2·30, and considerable attention had been devoted to make the building attractive, and in every way worthy of the character of the gathering, by displays of plants and flowers in pots at many a coign of vantage. Even the handsome room, devoted for the first time to the purpose of a Freemasons' Lodge, was made still more pleasing by the addition of ferns and flowers. The brethren of the Province attended in considerable numbers, several Officers of the English Grand Lodge being amongst their number, and the efforts of members of the receiving Lodge to give fitting welcome to their brethren from a distance was highly creditable. After a meeting of the Board of General Purposes, the Provincial Grand Lodge was opened, in the unavoidable absence of Lord Methuen, by the Deputy Provincial Grand Master and Past Grand Warden of England Sir Gabriel Goldney. The roll of the Lodges in the Province was then called and responded to by representatives in every case, and the minutes of the Provincial Grand Lodge held in Swindon in 1888 confirmed. The Provincial Grand Treasurer's accounts were then presented, and Provincial Grand Registrar's report, which showed the total numerical strength of the eleven Lodges to be 517, as against 499 last year. The cash receipts 1889 amounted to £759 6s 3d, as against £833 3s 11d, whilst the expenditure was £816 17s 7d, as compared with £805 11s 4d. The amount distributed in charity was nearly the same as last year, being £173 9s 7d. The benevolent fund account showed an amount invested in 2¾ per cent. stock of £415 17s, being an addition of £80 13s 2d. For the first time since the formation of this Fund, a grant of £20 had been made from it during the past 12 months. The report further spoke of the great loss sustained in the Province by the death of Bro. W. Nott, of Devizes, and that the high appreciation of his merits, and the assurance of the sympathy of the Craft had been made by the Committee to the widow and children. In his address, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master thought the report and various accounts on the whole were satisfactory, and proposed that a donation of twenty guineas should be given to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, and ten guineas to the Boys. He regretted the absence of the Provincial Grand Master Lord Methuen, and hoped that his voyage to the Cape would return him home very much benefited in health. It was in conjunction with Bro. Methuen that the late Bro. Sir Daniel Gooch, whose death he was sure they would all greatly deplore, did so much to resuscitate the Prov. G. Lodge of Wilts some 36 years ago, which up to that time had sunk into abeyance. He suggested that the Prov. Grand Secretary should send Lady Gooch a letter of condolence from Provincial Grand Lodge of Wilts, offering her all the sympathy a Masonic mind could give her. Another deplorable departure from amongst them was that of Bro. W. Nott, of Devizes, for many years Secretary to the Charity Committee, not only in this but in seven other Provinces with which Wiltshire was connected, but he was pleased to state that the help of Bro. the Rev. R. V. Vassar-Smith, Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Gloucestershire, had been secured as hon. secretary of the Charity Association. He expressed his delight at meeting so many brethren that day, and congratulating them upon the appearance of Prov. G. Lodge, made special reference to the noble building their Bro. W. R. Brown had given to the town of Trowbridge. The acting Master then appointed and invested the Prov. Grand Officers for the ensuing year as follows :—

Bro. Rev J. A. Lloyd 1583	...	Senior Warden
G. Ll. Palmer 632	...	Junior Warden
W. Humphreys 663	...	Chaplain
F. H. Goldney 626 (re-appointed)		Treasurer

Harry Bevir 355 (re-appointed)	...	Secretary
C. N. P. Phipps 2227	...	Senior Deacon
W. R. Brown 632	...	Junior Deacon
T. S. Hill 632	...	Superintendent of Works
J. Chandler 355 (re-appointed)	...	Director of Ceremonies
F. Kelland 632	...	Assist. Director of Cers.

J. Pocock 632	...	Pursuivant
J. W. Jones 632	...	Assist. Pursuivant
Hale 1478	...	Stewards
Read 1478	...	Stewards
J Savory 355 (re-appointed)	...	Tyler
W Dean 355	...	Assist. Tyler

After considering certain alterations in the bye-laws, the alms bag was sent round, and resulted in the sum of £4, which, upon the proposal of Bro. G. Ll. Palmer, was given to the Trowbridge Cottage Hospital. This closed the business of the Lodge, and the brethren adjourned to a banquet at the Woolpack Hotel, provided by Mrs. Barton, to which about 70 sat down, presided over by the Deputy Provincial Grand Master. On the removal of the cloth Sir Gabriel gave the usual loyal toasts, which were duly honoured. Bro. W. J. Mann proposed the health of the Grand Officers, Prov. Grand Officers, Past and Present, in felicitous terms, and emphasising particularly the eminent services rendered by Bros. W. Beach, Sir G. Goldney, Lloyd (whose oration at Westbury many would remember), F. H. Goldney, Tombs, Howard and others, most of whom responded, the remarks by Bro. Beach on the principles of Freemasonry being greatly admired and appreciated. The toast of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master was entrusted to Bro. W. R. Brown, who expressed the pleasure they all felt in seeing him once more amongst them, and in such good health. Sir Gabriel replied in an amusing speech, and after a few other Masonic toasts the proceedings closed. Bro. Millington presided at the organ in the Lodge-room, and the pianoforte at the banquet. The last assembly of the Provincial Grand Lodge in Trowbridge was in November 1879.

THE THEATRES, &c.

—:o—

Royalty.—There is much that is clever and witty, and more that is bright and amusing in Mr. Cecil Raleigh's burlesque "The New Corsican Brothers," but the entire piece must be condensed and rearranged before it will have a chance of success. As a two act extravaganza it should go well after some more serious pièce de resistance. The incorporation of incidents from the novel "Mr. Barnes of New York" only serves to complicate matters, and in spite of their utmost endeavours the actors can make nothing of the piece. Mr. Arthur Roberts, upon whom falls the principal work, fills the dual rôle of the two brothers, and endows the characters with numerous touches of humour, but the result is not satisfactory. Miss Kate Chard plays with plenty of fun, Mr. John Clulow gives a fine rendering of the Corsican Danella, and Mr. D. Brand, Mr. J. Wilson, and Miss A. Liddon also merit mention. The scenery is very pretty and a numerous chorus brightly costumed give due effect to the tuneful music of Mr. Walter Slaughter.

Comedy.—The pleasant memories evoked by the revival of the late James Albery's adapted Comedy "The Pink Dominoes" are tinged with sad reflections at the untimely fate of the talented writer, who died some three months ago; however, the space of twelve years which have elapsed since the original production of the piece at the Criterion, has not diminished the public interest in it, and the peals of laughter that resounded through the house on Saturday showed that playgoers are as ready as ever to appreciate a good thing. Moralists may perhaps urge that this piece smacks too much of the Palais Royale, and that the lessons taught are unprofitable to the young, still we venture to believe that it is possible to enjoy the fun without imitating the faults or in any way sanctioning impure ideas. The revival has the advantage of Mr. Herbert Standing in his original character Sir Percy Wagstaff, and his conception of the light hearted man of the world is as good as ever. Mr. Chas. H. Hawtrey now essays the part of Charles Greythorne, and, though the rendering is entirely different to that of Mr. C. Wyndham, we imagine it loses nothing by the change, but is perhaps a trifle serious. Mr. Alfred Maltby is exceedingly droll as Joskin Tubbs, and Mr. A. Boucicault is interesting as Henry Greenlanes. Miss Alma Stanley makes a distinct advance by her portrayal of the hypocritical Rebecca, of which character she gave an effective rendering. Miss Rose Saker as Lady Maggie was excellent, and Miss Gabrielle Goldney looked very pretty as Sophia. To many present the scene of "Cremorne" appeared strange, as the place is now merely a memory, but the sage opinions of Brisket the waiter were heartily enjoyed. In fact the laughter was continuous throughout, and at the final fall of the curtain the performers were greeted with vociferous cheers, so there is little doubt but that the revival of the comedy will command a lengthened run.

TO THE DEAF.—A Person cured of Deafness and noises in the head of 25 years' standing by a simple remedy, will send a description of it FREE to any Person who applies to NICHOLSON, 21 Bedford Square, W.C.

I was educated at King's College School, London, and Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, and took the degree of B.A. in the Mathematical Tripos 1879. (M.A. 1885). Shortly after quitting the University, I was appointed Mathematical Master in Truro Grammar School, but retired from that position on being called to the Bar, in 1881, since when I have practised, up to the present time, and have been engaged in the compilation of more than one legal work.

In Masonry I hold the following positions—Past Grand Steward (Eng.); W.M. Tuscan Lodge, No. 14; P.M. and Founder West Kent Volunteer Lodge, No. 2041; Secretary and Founder Argonauts' Lodge, No. 2243; J. Asaph Chapter, No. 1319; P.S. George Price Chapter, No. 2096. Member of the Board of General Purposes, and Life Governor Royal Masonic Institution for Boys.

I have for some years been Hon. Secretary of the Langton Masonic Benevolent Association, through which between £1300 and £1400 will, in four years, have been subscribed to the Masonic Charities.

Should I have the honour of being elected I shall always endeavour to discharge my duties with advantage to the Institution and to your full satisfaction.

Thomas William Tew, J.P., Grand Superintendent, presided, and he was numerously supported by the Prov. Grand Officers Present and Past; also Companions from the following Chapters, viz. :—61, 139, 154, 208, 242, 258, 264, 265, 275, 289, 290, 302, 304, 306, 307, 380, 387, 448, 458, 495, 521, 600, 603, 652, 750, 827, 837, 904, 1001, 1019, 1042, 1214, 1283, 1513. Apologies for absence were received from the following Provincial Grand Officers, Comps. J. E. D. Darling P.Z. 139 P.G. Sword Bearer, Wm. Greaves P.Z. 289, P.G.A.D.C., J. R. Welsman P.Z. 600, and John Gerrard P.Z. 154 P.G. Stewards. Comp. Alfred Stott Z. and Officers of the Perseverance Chapter, No. 275, opened the Chapter at 3·15, and at 3·30 Comp. Thomas William Tew, J.P., and his Officers entered and opened Grand Chapter. After preliminaries, the minutes of the meeting held at Harrogate, on Wednesday, 1st May 1889, were presented for confirmation, read, and confirmed. The roll of Chapters and Present and Past Provincial Grand Officers was called. The Grand Superintendent then delivered the following address :—

PRINCIPALS AND COMPANIONS,—At the most agreeable and satisfactory meeting at the Queen Hotel, Harrogate, on First of May, under the auspices of Chapter 1001, I received two invitations for this, the November Convocation, viz.: "De Grey and Ripon" 837, "Ripon and Perseverance" 275, Huddersfield, and I exercised my prerogative in favour of the latter, being more accessible to the majority of Companions, particularly at this usually inclement season; and I am sure the representatives of the Ripon Chapter, viz.: Companions Tupman and Pickersgill will acquiesce. It is with much regret we hear of the continued and serious illness of Companions Reverend W. C. Lukis and R. E. Collinson, of their Chapter. This is the forty-ninth meeting of this Grand Chapter, the seventh in Huddersfield, and the fourth under the banner of "Perseverance" Chapter. I am glad to observe "Prosperity" 290, and "Truth" 521, well represented. These three Huddersfield Chapters have an aggregate of 120 members on their rolls, 38 of whom are P.Z.'s. As members of the Craft, on 10th November they assembled to take part in celebrating the Centenary Festival of "Harmony" Lodge, No. 275, in solemn service at the Parish Church, Huddersfield, so kindly placed at their disposal by the Vicar—where upwards of 400 brethren were present, having marched in procession from this Hall. I hope that the hearts of the brethren were filled with gratitude to the Most High, for the privilege of assembling in His Holy Temple, and listening to an eloquent sermon delivered by Companion Reverend P. F. J. Pearce, M.A. May the blessed words—Health, Peace, and Good-will—abound in our hearts, and be wafted over the surface of the globe and promote the happiness of all, and so join mankind together by the indissoluble links of friendship—Peace and Harmony. May the second Centennial of Lodge 275 be as remarkable as this one, not only in the external circumstances of the numerical attendance, but for devoutness and sincerity. Our Treasurer has given notice of his intention to move that this Prov. G. Chapter contribute towards the rent and expenses of the offices of Prov. G. Lodge, where the business of this Grand Chapter is carried on, and I hope you will agree to support the proposition. There is also notice by Companion William Watson, Hon. Librarian: "That each Chapter be invited to supply a photographic copy of its Charter," to be placed in suitable books in our Library, in the same manner as the Lodge warrants, there being 70 out of the 74 already received; in this motion I also heartily concur. He and I feel grateful for your money contribution to the Library, which—I am glad to say—is from time to time gathering rare and valuable Masonic Works, and I trust, in time, will be in possession of as large and interesting a collection as that of the Quatuor Coronati—or even Grand Lodge itself. In conclusion, I have only to say we have 37 Chapters on the roll, with 1189 members; 101 Companions were exalted in 1888; on the other hand, there are figures I commend to the serious consideration of the 330 present and past Principals, as they suggest most serious and anxious thoughts for the continued prosperity of the Chapters; as many as 30 Companions have resigned official connection with the Chapters, 15 more were excluded, and 63 remained in arrears. Two Chapters are in a weak and exhausted condition—certainly an effort should be made to prevent these Chapters lapsing altogether. With these few and somewhat common-place observations and sincere wishes for the continued prosperity of Royal Arch Masonry in West Yorkshire, I beg you to accept the thanks of your Superintendent, and the present and past Provincial Officers, for your loyalty and devotion to ourselves and the affairs of this Convocation, and for the kind reception accorded to us this afternoon.

Comp. Henry Oxley Prov. G. Treasurer, pursuant to notice, moved, and Comp. Alfred Stott Z. 275 seconded, and it was resolved :

"That a contribution of twelve pounds (£12 0s 0d) per annum be made from the funds of Provincial Grand Chapter towards the rent and other expenses of the offices of Provincial Grand Lodge in Wakefield."

Comp. William Watson, pursuant to notice, moved, Comp. William Harrop seconded, and it was resolved :

"That each Chapter in this Province be invited to supply a photographic copy of its Charter on a similar plan to those obtained from Craft Lodges (size 12in. by 10in., carbon process, unmounted), to be sent enclosed in stout pasteboard tube for safety, to E. Comp. William Watson, 28 East Parade, Leeds."

Comp. Mason delivered the mystical lecture in his usual able manner. Invitations to hold the annual meeting in May 1890 were received from the following Companions, viz. :—Comp. Wm. Gaukroger P.Z. 61, to meet under the banner of Sincerity Chapter at Halifax; Comp. Arthur Tupman Z. 837, to meet under the banner of Marquess of Ripon Chapter at Ripon; and Comp. Wm. Watson P.Z. 304, to meet under the joint banners of Chapters 289, 304, 306, and 1042, at Leeds. The P. Grand Superintendent thanked the Companions for their cordial invitations, and said he would shortly make his decision known. It was then moved by Comp. Richard Carter Prov. G.H., and seconded by Comp. George Brooke Prov. G.J., and resolved :

"That a hearty vote of thanks be given to the Z. and Companions of Chapter Perseverence, 275, for their excellent arrangements for the comfort of the Companions."

Provincial Grand Chapter was shortly afterwards closed. Tea was provided at the Queen's Hotel, the Provincial Grand Superintendent presiding over about 50 Companions.

PROV. GRAND CHAPTER OF ESSEX.

ON Thursday, 21st inst., the Grand Superintendent of the Province of Essex, Comp. F. A. Philbrick, Q.C., Grand Registrar, held his annual Provincial Grand Chapter, under the banner of the Francis White Chapter, No. 1437, at Romford, and the proceedings throughout were most successful. The Provincial Grand Chapter was opened in the Romford Public Hall shortly after 5 o'clock, the Grand Superintendent being supported by Comp. E. J. Barron P.Z. and Treasurer 214, acting Prov. G.H., and Comp. Alfred Welch P.Z. 51 P.P.G.J., acting Prov. G.J., several distinguished Grand Officers, and most of the other Provincial Grand Officers of the year, while there was a good attendance of Past Officers and Companions from the Chapters in the Province. The minutes of the last Provincial Grand Chapter (held at Chelmsford) having been read and confirmed, the Provincial Scribe E. Comp. Ralling read letters from several Companions, regretting their inability to be present, including Comps. Lord Brooke, M.P., Col. Shadwell H. Clerke Grand Scribe E., Thomas Fenn, E. Letchworth, R. Clowes P.Z. 51 P.P.G.R., &c. The roll of Chapters was then called and it was found that all the six comprising the Province were duly represented. The annual returns showed an increase in the number of contributing members; the Auditors reported a balance in the hands of the Provincial Grand Treasurer of £21 odd. The Grand Superintendent briefly addressed the Companions, congratulating them upon the satisfactory condition of the Province. Progress there had been, which, though not of an extensive character, was steady and assured, and therefore more lasting. He announced that the meeting next year would be at Southend. On the motion of Comp. the Rev. Thomas Cochrane, seconded by Comp. Fred. Wood,, the Companions unanimously re-elected, for the sixth time, Comp. Andrew Durrant P.Z. and Treasurer 276, as Provincial Grand Treasurer. The Provincial Grand Officers were then appointed and invested, as follow :—

The sum of five guineas having been voted to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, the Grand Superintendent proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the Principals and Companions of the Francis White Chapter for the excellent arrangements they had made for the meeting, which was unanimously carried. The Grand Superintendent then, in feeling terms, referred to the fact that they had been deprived, at the opening of their proceedings, of the presence of their Provincial Grand H., Comp. Merritt, who was prevented from attending by the sudden death of his father. He proposed that the Provincial Grand S.E. be requested to write a letter of condolence to Comp. Merritt. This was carried. Before closing the meeting the Grand Superintendent gave a hearty welcome to Major-General Laurie, District Grand Master of Nova Scotia, who had honoured them by becoming their guest that night. Major-General Laurie acknowledged the salutations of the Companions. Between 30 and 40 Companions afterwards dined together at the Golden Lion Hotel, the repast being well supplied by Bro. Peter Reynolds. The Grand Superintendent presided, in his well-known genial manner, and the greatest harmony and good feeling prevailed. Grummant and Addington were also thanked for their indefatigable exertions, which had been crowned by obtaining such excellent collars for the Officers of the Lodge.

The nominations for the office Grand Treasurer will have to be made at Grand Lodge on Wednesday. Brother Augustus Harris has a very influential body of supporters. On page 359 and 360 of our present issue we give a full list of the brethren who form his Committee. We have heard rumours that other candidates will present themselves to oppose Bro. Augustus Harris, but this question will be definitely settled on Wednesday.

Our Secretaries are now making arrangements for their next year's Festivals. Sir Francis Burdett, Prov. Grand Master of Middlesex, has kindly consented to preside at the Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls.

We are gratified in being able to announce that the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, Sir Henry Aaron Isaacs, has consented to preside at the next Anniversary Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons, Croydon, on the 26th February 1890.

The installation meeting of the William Preston Lodge, No. 766, took place on Thursday evening, at the Cannon Street Hotel. The outgoing Worshipful Master Bro. G. F. Edwards installed as his successor Bro. F. G. Barns, C.C.; the ceremony was carried out in an efficient style by Bro. Edwards. We shall give a full report in our next issue.

The members of the Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, which has recently been shifted from the Hercules Tavern, Leadenhall Street, to the City Arms Tavern, St. Mary Axe, on Tuesday celebrated their removal with a supper. We shall give a full report in our next.

EADE'S
GOUT & RHEUMATIC PILLS.

The SAFEST and most EFFECTUAL CURE for GOUT, RHEUMATISM, and all PAINS in the HEAD, FACE, and LIMBS.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL from the Rev. F. FARVIS, Baptist Minister.

March 19, 1887.

Mr. G. EADE.

Dear Sir,—I have many times felt inclined to inform you of the benefit I have received by taking your Gout and Rheumatic Pills. After suffering for some time from Rheumatics and Sciatica, I was advised to use your Pills. I bought a bottle, and when in severe pain and unable to use the limb affected I took a dose. In a few hours after I felt the pain much better, and after the second dose the pain completely removed and the limb restored to its right use. I thank you, dear sir, for sending forth such a boon for the relief of human suffering.

Yours faithfully,
F. FARVIS,
Baptist Minister.

There are multitudes of people who look upon advertising as a sort of Lottery, and bestow infinitely more thought in the selection of a clerk at £100 a year than in the expenditure of £1000, or two in the same period in advertising. A tithe of the shrewdness displayed in all other branches of their business given to the management of their advertising will be amply repaid. The ADVERTISEMENT AGENT has become an indispensable factor in this matter of publicity, and his raison d'être is perfectly unassailable. Would you leave or enter a port without a pilot? Would you commence and prosecute a law suit without a legal adviser? Either of these courses would not be more foolish than rushing into expenses in Advertising without a competent practical and professional adviser. I am at all times happy to render advertisers every assistance in my power, and to give them the benefit of the experience I have gained during the past twenty years as a London advertising agent. Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist's Testimonial.

My Dear Doctor,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

This is to certify: That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

LODGE HISTORIES.

AS we have already mentioned, the records of this Lodge from 1822 up to 1847 have been lost, and accordingly very meagre details of its doings during that period are forthcoming. Every available source has been drawn upon to supply the missing link, but, as may be expected, not very much has been accomplished. The records of Provincial Grand Lodge have, however, supplied something, and this, with other matter, is included in Chapter XII. of Bro. Crossley's History. At one part of the period referred to great depression appears to have reigned among the members, and it is a wonder the Lodge did not cease to exist. The returns at the beginning of 1822 show that there were 20 subscribing members, which number varied from time to time, going as low as five, whilst in 1847 there was the goodly roll of 62.

A curious and humorous entry appears in the Provincial Grand Lodge records of 1827, which goes to show the position some of the members of Probity considered their Lodge held. From this it appears that Bro. C. Whiteley, of Halifax, had written to a Brother at Wakefield, in somewhat un-Masonic terms, besides holding out a threat "to lay the conduct of the Provincial Grand Lodge before the Lodge of Probity." These matters the brethren assembled in Provincial Grand Lodge considered "as an evidence that Bro. C. Whiteley must have altogether forgotten the respect he owes to this Provincial Grand Lodge, as this Lodge would think it highly derogatory to its dignity to answer for its proceedings to any Provincial Lodge whatever." This record may well be termed "humorous," but no doubt there were brethren in those days—even if there are not still some among us—who would feel quite justified in asserting themselves in an equally officious manner.

In 1837 Probity lost its companion Lodge of Halifax—the Lodge of Harmony, which was removed to Huddersfield, "where it has since had a prosperous career." This separation, after harmonious relations in the same town for some fifty years, did not break the friendship between the two bodies, as is evidenced from one of the earliest records in the next minute book of the Lodge of Probity, where, under date 3rd January 1848, it is stated that a Brother Peace, from the Harmony Lodge, took the chair, and being assisted by several other brethren from his Lodge went through the opening and closing ceremonies of the three degrees. From this it would appear the Probity—which we have seen was at all times ready to render help to others—was not always averse to receive it also.

In July 1838 an important event was celebrated—the Centenary of the Lodge's existence. It was not then customary to grant Centenary Warrants, as is now done, but it is recorded that a dispensation was issued for the brethren to walk in procession to the Parish Church, to celebrate the event. An account of the proceedings on this important occasion appears in the Freemasons' Quarterly Review for September 1838, and this account is embodied in the Lodge History before us. From it we gather that the "Jubilee" was held at the Old Cock Inn. The prayers at the church were read by the Venerable Archdeacon Musgrave, special psalms and lessons being selected for the occasion. The Rev. Dr. Naylor, of Wakefield, Provincial Grand Chaplain, preached an excellent sermon, from 1 Peter xvii. 26—"Honour all men, love the brotherhood, fear God, honour the King." The Provincial Grand Organist (Bro. Walton, of Leeds) sang "Comfort ye my people," in excellent style, supported by a Bro. Sugden and the choir. The proceedings of the day terminated with a dinner, harmony and brotherly love prevailing, it being really "the Masons' holiday." Several local dignitaries of the Craft were present at the proceedings.

On 23rd October 1844, the half-yearly meeting of Provincial Grand Lodge was held, under the banner of the Probity Lodge. The Right Hon. the Earl of Mexborough P.G.M. presided, and he was supported by upwards of two hundred brethren—a goodly assemblage for that period, we consider. On this occasion two very handsome silver vases were presented to the Deputy Provincial Grand Master (Bro. Chas. Lee), who in acknowledgment specially thanked the members of the Probity Lodge, by whom the idea of the presentation had been first mooted. In recognition of the toast, Success to the Probity Lodge, which was proposed by the Provincial Grand Master, it was stated that the Lodge had then sixty members on its roll.

On the 3rd January 1848, Provincial Grand Lodge again held its meeting under the banner of the Probity Lodge, on which occasion Bro. Lee D.P.G.M. presided. In 1849, a Lodge of Instruction was formed, meetings to be held every second Wednesday succeeding regular Lodge night. At the same time a desire was expressed to re-open the Chapter of Sincerity, and steps were taken accordingly, for it is recorded that at the next meeting £10 was voted to be applied towards the restoration of the Chapter. About this time also a Lodge Building Fund was formed, so that everything points to increased interest and activity at this particular period.

In 1849 a dispensation was granted, enabling the Lodge to attend the funeral of an old member—Bro. Christopher Rawson—in association with which record is appended an extract from a speech by this esteemed Brother, delivered at the laying of the foundation stone of the Halifax Literary and Philosophical Society's Hall. The ceremony does not appear to have been a Masonic one, but Bro. Rawson's speech was eminently Masonic, and is fittingly introduced in the records of his Lodge. The 22nd September 1851 was a special day for Yorkshire Freemasonry, a special meeting of Grand Lodge of England being then held at Bradford, on which occasion the M.W.G.M. Lord Zetland presided, and the foundation stone of St. George's Hall was laid with Masonic honours. Between 30 and 40 members of Probity were present on this occasion, and one of its members—Bro. Lawrence Bramley—was appointed Provincial Grand Senior Warden.

In January 1852 Probity once more entertained Provincial Grand Lodge, as it has done on subsequent occasions. In the following November the Mayor of Halifax invited the Lodge to join in a procession to the memory of the departed Bro. Field Marshal the Duke of Wellington. A number of brethren accepted the invitation, and attended a public funeral service at the Parish Church. At a meeting of Provincial Grand Lodge (6th July 1853) a letter was read from Grand Lodge, severely censuring the Probity and other local Lodges for alleged irregularity in working, and the Provincial Grand Lodge at once passed a vote of censure on its subordinates. The brethren of Probity, however, with their old spirit of independence, considered the censure quite undeserved, and protested most strongly against it, a mass of correspondence resulting. It appears the irregularity consisted in conferring the third degree on a brother seventy-four days after he had been passed to the second, this ceremony being unfortunately postponed from the regular day, in consequence of the Lodge quarters not being available. The W.M. of the Lodge communicated the facts of the case to the Board of General Purposes, and having satisfactorily explained the cause of the irregularity, the censure was withdrawn, and matters appear to have been satisfactorily arranged. From the brief details given in the Lodge History we think the brethren of Probity are once more to be congratulated on the result of their zeal, high handed though it may appear to the ordinary observer. Even Provincial Grand Lodge felt it necessary to make a concession to the Probity over this censure, for in a kind letter from the Deputy Provincial Grand Master it was hoped that the appointment of the worthy Senior Warden (of Probity) as Provincial Grand Sword Bearer would be accepted as the olive branch of peace by the Lodge. This complimentary appointment is all the more marked because it had not been customary in the Province of West Yorkshire for such a post to be given to any Brother not a Past Master.

Since this time the Lodge has always been to the fore in taking part in public affairs, and has well maintained the energy for which it has always been famous. Among other events in which the Probity Lodge took a part may be mentioned the laying of the foundation stone of All Souls' Church (April 1856), of the Sowerby Bridge Town Hall (May 1856), the corner stone of St. Augustine's Church (1873).

UNITED GRAND LODGE.

THE Quarterly Communication of United Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of England was held on Wednesday evening at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. W. W. Beach, M.P., Prov. Grand Master of Hants and the Isle of Wight presided; Bro. the Earl of Euston Prov. Grand Master Norths and Hunts acted as Deputy Grand Master; Bro. Hugh D. Sandeman Past District Grand Master of Bengal, as Past Grand Master; Bro. Sir Victor Hedworth Williamson as Senior Warden, and Bro. the Hon. W. W. Vernon P.G.J.W. as Grand Junior Warden. After the formal opening, the minutes of the Quarterly Communication of 4th September were read and confirmed. Sir Henry Aaron Isaacs, Lord Mayor of London, then rose. He said I beg leave to nominate our Illustrious Brother the Prince of Wales to be the Most Worshipful Grand Master of Freemasons for the ensuing year. Happy for me—indeed, I may say happy for this Lodge, and happy for the Craft—the nominor of such a nominee is perfectly independent of the aids of oratory or rhetoric, inasmuch as the name of our Most Worshipful Grand Master is engraven upon the heart of every true Mason. Lord Bacon said, "Princes are like to heavenly bodies which cause good or evil times, and which have much veneration and no rest." If I were asked to point to a Prince who in all history has earned and deservedly enjoyed more veneration than others, I should point to our Most Worshipful Grand Master. If I were asked to point to the Prince who has least rest, whose mind is most occupied by good works, whose heart is moved by a desire to serve his fellow creatures, I should again point to His Royal Highness our Most Worshipful Grand Master. Most Worshipful Grand Master in the chair, I feel I need say no more, and I formally nominate the Most Worshipful Grand Master for the present to be our Grand Master for the ensuing year. Brother Sherriff Harris—Most Worshipful Master in the chair, I have great pleasure in nominating for the post of Grand Treasurer for the ensuing year a brother whose name is known throughout the length and breadth of the land—Brother Augustus Henry Glossop Harris—a member of the London County Council, and of Drury Lane, Covent Garden, and other theatres. He has been for many years a Freemason, having been initiated, passed, and raised in the St. Clair Lodge, No. 349, Edinburgh, in 1875; he afterwards joined the Maybury Lodge, No. 969, London; and in 1885 became one of the founders and the first S.W. of the Drury Lane Lodge, No. 2127. In 1886-7 he served the office of W.M. of the Drury Lane Lodge. He is M.E.Z. of the Royal Naval Chapter, No. 59; he is Life Governor of the three Masonic Charities; he has given special prizes to the Masonic Schools, the pupils of which he has entertained at Drury Lane Theatre. I beg to nominate Bro. Augustus Henry Glossop Harris for the office of Grand Treasurer. No response was given to Bro. Beach's inquiry—Has any brother any other candidate to propose? and we can therefore heartily congratulate Brother Harris on his "walk over." Brother Beach, in re-investing Brother Robert Grey as President of the Board of Benevolence, to which post he had been appointed, said—I congratulate you on having been again appointed by the Grand Master, and I congratulate Grand Lodge on having a brother in the office whose services have been so cheerfully, willingly, and ably given. Bro. Beach announced that the Senior and Junior Vice-Presidents of the Board of Benevolence who had been nominated by the brethren were Bros. James Brett and C. A. Cottebrune, and as those brethren were the only brethren nominated, he declared them duly elected. The twelve Past Masters nominated for the Board of Benevolence were:—

Bro. Brown, William Peter	90
Bunker, James	1158
Chapman, George B.	27
Cundy, George A.	901
Dairy, Charles	141
Grieve, James Burgess	1351
Haslip, Lewis Christopher	813
Langley, George R.	183
Read, George	511
Shedd, Ebenezer	276
Taylor, Robert J.	144
Woodward, Alfred Cooper	1538

and as only twelve were required, he declared these brethren duly elected. Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn P.G.C. —Most Worshipful Grand Master in the chair,—Before the report of the Board of Benevolence is put, I should like to propose one vote, which I am sure will obtain the approval of every member of this Grand Lodge; it is that the hearty thanks of this Grand Lodge be given to Bro. Brett and Bro. Cottebrune, the Senior and Junior Vice-Presidents of the Board of Benevolence, for the kind attention and the constant and unwearied perseverance with which for many years past they have attended the meetings of the Board of Benevolence. It is all very well for us to talk about our grand Masonic Charity, and the way in which it is dispensed, and it is all very well to plume ourselves on the way we relieve, month after month, candidates who appear before us for help, but it is mainly to those, who, month after month, attend the Board of Benevolence that our thanks are due, for the constant and unwearied attention they pay to those meetings. I therefore propose our hearty thanks to Bro. Brett and Bro. Cottebrune, the Senior and Junior Vice-Presidents of the Board of Benevolence for their constant and unwearied attention to the Board of Benevolence for many years past. The Earl of Euston seconded the motion, which was carried nem con. The next business was the consideration of the report of the Board of Benevolence, the full text of which we gave last week. Bro. Robert Grey, President, rose and said that before moving that the recommendations from the Board of Benevolence be confirmed, he would wish to call the attention of Grand Lodge to certain irregularities that occurred, as far as the Board was able to know, in the petitions that were set before the Board of Benevolence, and he ventured to think that that was the first time that it could be laid before the whole Craft. According to Section 244, when a petition came before the Board from a Lodge, the Lodge which recommended the petitioner should state that "We, the undersigned, the Master, Wardens, and majority of the members of the Lodge, in open Lodge assembled," recommend the case. Frequently petitions came before the Board of Benevolence signed by the Master and Wardens and one or two of the brethren. No doubt it was an inadvertence on the part of the Lodge. Surely they could not think that the Master and Wardens carried the whole weight of the Lodge, or that that was sufficient. In fact they were not the majority, and although the Board had not absolute proofs of it they believed that was the case. Now that he had called attention to the matter, he hoped they would conform to the Constitution in that particular. He hoped that no harm had happened to any petitioner in that respect, but certainly it could do them no good if their case was recommended by so few members of their Lodge. He would now move that the several recommendations of the Board of Benevolence be confirmed by Grand Lodge. The motion that the report be received and entered on the minutes, moved by Brother Thomas Fenn, having been carried, Brother Fenn said he would like to explain to the brethren that the electric light with which the Temple was now illuminated, for the first time, was quite of a temporary and experimental nature. It was only that night at 5 o'clock that the connection was made with the works of the Metropolitan Electric Supply Association, whose works were close at the back of Freemasons' Hall. The brethren would see they were by no means complete, nor was the light so brilliant as it might be. He hoped on the next occasion of the meeting of Grand Lodge it would be found to the great advantage of the brethren, and would be an addition to their comfort. Unfortunately they would see that some of the lights were not perfect, and one in particular which happened to be over the portrait of the Most Worshipful Grand Master was not alight. But all these things would be set right in a very short time. Brother Philbrick, Q.C., Grand Registrar, then brought up the appeal:—

> By Bro. Henry Godber P.M. of the Victoria in Burma Lodge, No. 832, Rangoon, against a ruling of the District Grand Master of Burma, dismissing his complaint against the said Lodge for permitting Bro. Joseph Dawson P.M. to withdraw his resignation of membership of the Lodge, which had been regularly announced in writing to the Secretary and entered on the minutes.

Brother Philbrick said the ruling of the District Grand Master against which this appeal was brought was this:—"Ruling, 9th June 1889, that these was no confirmation of the minutes accepting Bro. Dawson's withdrawal; in fact, though Brother Dawson tendered his resignation it was never accepted by the Lodge; it was, therefore, never in form according to the bye-laws of the Lodge, and therefore the District Grand Master dismissed the appeal." Now he (Bro. Philbrick) could not help thinking that the question which the District Grand Master had to solve in this appeal was entirely answered by his own ruling. It had been ruled by his (Bro. Philbrick's) distinguished, and, he was sorry to say, deceased predecessor, Bro. McIntyre, and it had always been held as accepted law, that Masonry being a voluntary Society, the moment a brother announced his resignation and communicated it to his Lodge he ceased to be a member of the Lodge. It was customary to accompany the resignation with terms asking the Lodge to accept it, and often—usually—with expressions of good feeling and regard and attachment to the Lodge. But those were individual matters which did not affect the status of a brother as a member of the Lodge; he had a right to withdraw on signifying his intention to the Lodge; and when he withdrew, and said he withdrew, and signified it to the Lodge, it was no longer in the power of the Lodge to retain him against his wish as a member of the Lodge for a single day. That ruling was clearly laid down by Bro. McIntyre in 1874, following a long succession of precedents; it was referred to in the record of the Proceedings of Grand Lodge of that day. I remember, as appears by the paper he (Brother McIntyre) said something to the same effect—to the effect that he concurred in that ruling. Here the brother who was about to retire from the Lodge wrote, on the 29th June 1889, to the Secretary: "Dear Sir and Brother, From what has lately transpired in the Lodge I have no other alternative than to tender my resignation of membership, which I trust will be accepted with regret, by the end of this month." That was communicated to the Lodge 832 at their next regular meeting. Of course the brother was not present; he resigned on the 31st of January, two days before the date of the letter. That was entered on the minutes; so that the brother de facto ceased to be a member of the Lodge. Afterwards some of the brethren desired that he might reconsider his determination. Of course it was too late as far as membership of the Lodge was concerned, and then they passed a resolution that he should come back to the Lodge, that he should not cease to be a member, and that he should withdraw his resignation. The resolution had not been communicated, and it was not a matter for the Lodge to express its feelings upon—they expressed a wish that should withdraw it, and he refused to do so. Under those circumstances it was quite clear that there had been a resignation on the part of this brother; he had communicated it to the Lodge, and that, ipso facto, made the resignation, whether the Lodge accepted it or not, and the Lodge had nothing to do with it. Under those circumstances, the ruling that there was no withdrawal, he thought, proceeded on an entire misconception of the case. Therefore, as the facts stood, the resignation, he thought, did take effect, and that the action of the District Grand Master could not be supported, and that this Grand Lodge must hold that he was wrong. He, therefore, begged to move that the appeal be allowed, and the decision of the District Grand Master be reversed, and the Grand Lodge declare that the resignation of Bro. Dawson communicated to the Lodge virtually caused his resignation of the Lodge. Bro. Thomas Fenn in seconding the motion said, Grand Lodge after its former decision could not come to any other conclusion. Bro. J. S. Cumberland said, taking it from the ruling of the Grand Registrar, once a brother sent in his resignation it was final. Although between the sending in of the resignation and the meeting of his Lodge an opportunity might occur for doing so, he had no power to withdraw it. If the brother wished to remain a member of the Lodge he must be re-proposed and balloted for. After some remarks by Bro. the Rev. Dr. Smyth, P.G.C., Bro. Philbrick said he had been appealed to to make a statement of Masonic law besides that which was required by the case in hand. At the same time, having listened to the remarks of the brother who had first spoken, he thought in his case the right and true course was pursued, viz.: that the brethren who had resigned in open Lodge had to submit to their names being balloted for again, the fees of the Lodge were remitted, and they resumed the status of members among their brethren. It was always bad to quote oneself as an authority. From the moment a member in the Lodge said "I resign," his membership was ended, and a line was struck. That was the dividing line. Of course a brother might repent of retiring; he might write a letter; but if he communicated it to the Lodge, of course it was beyond his own control; when he had communicated it to the Lodge, then the line was drawn, and he could not become a member again, except under such circumstances as had been alluded to by Bro. Smyth. That was, he thought, a very intelligible and clear rule to be laid down; it avoided difficulties; but it was exactly in accordance with what every one would understand when he said if he as a commercial man wrote and said, "You have the offer of certain matters," and the person to whom he wrote back had said, "I accept the offer," that was a bargain. If the person said, "I disclaim it," and wrote to disclaim of his own motion, why then he had effectively disclaimed it. Bro. James Lewis Thomas, with diffidence, begged to differ from what had fallen from Grand Registrar. He agreed with him that were the resignation was accepted the withdrawal from membership should stand. But the brother should have the power and liberty to withdraw his resignation until the meeting of the Lodge. It seemed to him a commonsense view of the case. Until a resignation was accepted, he did not think it was final. The motion of the Grand Registrar was then put, an carried, and Grand Lodge was closed.

H.R.H. the Duke of Cambridge has consented to preside at a Festival Dinner, on 11th December next, at the Hotel Metropole, in aid of the funds of the Bethnal Green Free Library. This Library depends entirely for its support upon voluntary effort. His Royal Highness will be supported by members of both Houses of Parliament and other influential friends of the institution.

The Borough of Greenwich Lodge, No. 2332, will be consecrated on Wednesday next, the 11th instant, at the Masonic Rooms, William the Fourth, East Greenwich. The Grand Secretary, Brother Colonel S. H. Clerke, who will be assisted by several of the Grand Officers, will conduct the ceremony, which is fixed to take place at 4 p.m.

MASONIC ANTIQUITY;

BROTHER GOULD'S NEWLY ASSUMED CHAMPIONSHIP FOR.

By Bro. Jacob Norton.

As belief and disbelief is independent of human will, I cannot blame Bro. Gould for his "new departure," as the Editor of the Freemason" called it, but when he undertook to convert others to his changed belief, he ought to have furnished better reasons than he did in his Commentary on the Masonic Poem and in his Glasgow address.

Briefly, Bro. Hayter Lewis, in November 1886 informed the Quatuor Coronati Lodge, that Professor D. Marks had seen an Arabic MS., in Hebrew characters, about seven years ago, in which the Hiramic legend was given, and Bro. Lewis added:—

"I have since then been informed that a MS., which seems to be of the character above referred to by Dr. Marks, is said to have been in the Cambridge University Library, and very possibly may be the actual one to which he refers."

This theory of Professor Hayter Lewis Bro. Gould attacked, in the Philadelphia Keystone of 4th December 1886. I was informed privately that while Dr. Marks claimed to have seen the Arabic MS. in the Bodleian Library, upon inquiry no such MS. was to be found there. Recently, however, Bro. Gould has changed his opinion; the first reason he gave in his Commentary of the Masonic or "Regius Poem" is as follows:—

"About ten years ago an Arabic MS. came to the notice of Professor Marks . . . . This work referred to a sign or password known to the Masonic brotherhood, each letter being an initial of a separate word, which word makes up the sentence, 'We have found our Lord Hiram.' The title of the M.S., Dr. Marks says, has passed out of his memory, but he belives it was an introduction to the Sunnah, and the date he assigns to it is that of the 14th century. The book was found by him, to the best of his recollection, in the Bodleian Library, and he adds, 'I made out its meaning readily, inasmuch as the passage referred to Masonry, which, by the bye, it traced up to the Patriarchs, if not to Adam himself." (Regius Commentary, p 13.(

As I have in a measure been instrumental in directing the investigation of the Cambridge MS. referred to by Bro. Hayter Lewis, I will first furnish evidence that no such a MS. ever existed in Cambridge.

First, in the Freemason of 1874, page 584, Bro. Hughan stated that he had read an article by Bro. Jacob Norton, stating that the Rev. George Oliver, in his "Freemason's Treasury," said, that Desaguliers and Anderson obtained the Hiramic legend from idle tales taken out of the Jewish Targums, which were published in London, A.D. 1715, from a MS. in the University Library, at Cambridge. Hence Bro. Hughan urged Bro. Woodford to make inquiry into the case. A few days after the above was published Bro. Woodford received from me a similar request for inquiry. On page 610 of the same volume of the Freemason is the following reply:—

"Bro. Hughan's note has anticipated Bro. Norton's, so we do not deem it needful to publish it . . . . We are authorised to state that Bro. Woodford is at this moment engaged in inquiries at the Cambridge University and at the British Museum, endeavouring to verify Dr. Oliver's original statement."

On page 719 of the same volume I find as follows:—

"Some reference has recently been made by Bro. Hughan and Bro. Norton to some tales from the Talmud, published in 1715, and alluded to by Dr. Oliver. I have had a long search made. No such a book . . . . exists, at any rate of that date [but he heard] that such a book was published at Amsterdam (not in London) in 1715."

And promised to make further inquiry. On page 75 of Vol. VIII of the Freemason (1875) Bro. Lewis may read as follows:—

"In answer to Bro. Hughan, Mr. Bernsley, the Librarian of Cambridge University, tells me there is no legend to be traced. Indeed, it could not well be in the Targums. Oliver's statement is therefore incorrect."

In other words, Oliver invented the story about the Cambridge MS. Hence Bro. Hayter Lewis must therefore give up the idea that Dr. Marks ever saw such a MS. at Cambridge.

And now for another statement made by Dr. Marks. But I must preface by stating that I made the acquaintance of the late Bro. Henry Faudel, of the firm of Faudel and Phillips, in Newgate-street, in 1853, when he told me that Masonry was not ancient. Bro. Faudel was a member of the Grand Stewards' Lodge, was Grand Deacon in 1846, he was acquainted with the German and French languages, possessed an excellent library, was a friend of Dr. Crucifix, was appointed by the Doctor as his executor, and for two years after Dr. Crucifix demised, Bro. Faudel virtually edited the Masonic Magazine, or whatever its name was. And this will account for his knowing, as early as 1853, what no other English Mason seems to have known before 1866, when Bro. Findel's English edition was first printed, viz., that our Masonry was not ancient.

Our acquaintance ripened into friendship. During my subsequent annual visits to England I spent many evenings at Bro. Faudel's house, in Regent's Park. In the Spring of 1857 I met there Dr. Marks, who, in the course of conversation, told us that in a preface to a copy of the "Zohar" he once found the Hiramic legend, but he could not remember in what edition he saw it. Bro. Faudel then turned to me, with a smile, and said, "So, after all, I was mistaken."

Now, I confess that Dr. Marks always had an exceptionably high character for truthfulness. It would therefore be wrong for me to charge him with inventing his statements. But, on the other hand, it is possible that the "Zohar" he saw may have been printed after 1730, and the writer of ts preface may have been a Mason. And as to the MS. which he saw about ten years ago, I verily believe that he saw a forged copy; the said MS. may have been manufactured in the 18th or even in the 19th century. Dr. Marks is doubtless a tip top Hebrew scholar, but it does not follow that he is also a tip top expert in judging the difference between a genuine and forged MS. Every one knows that from the earliest time MSS. have been forged. The book called the "Zohar" is a forgery. It was ascribed to the pen of Rabbi Shimon Ben Yechnai, who lived in the 2nd century. But Dr. Graetz, in his History of the Jews, proved that it was manufactured in the middle of the 13th century (See Masonic Magazine, Vol. VII. p 528). Dr. Krause, the great Masonic sceptic, was imposed upon at York, early in this century, with a Charter alleged to have been copied from King Athelstan's original Latin copy of his Masons' Charter, which was confirmed in 1806 by somebody who called himself "Stonehouse." Not many years since, the late Bro. Woodford got hold of an old Masonic MS., on which was inscribed the name of Inigo Jones, with a date A.D. 1610, but it is known now to have been manufactured in the middle of the 18th century. The Rev. Bro. Kira of Canada exhibited a Masonic MS. in 1860, written in Scarborough, Yorkshire, dated 1505. As soon as I saw a printed copy thereof, in 1873, I at once pronounced it a 1705 MS., and not of 1505; and when the said MS. was produced, it proved that I was right, that a good figure 7 was changed into a 5 (read my letter in the Canadian Craftsman of March 1874, p 89). The Malcolm Charter, the Cologne Charter, and the Frederick the Great Charter are also Masonic forgeries. We see now that forged MSS. have deceived scholars, doctors and clergymen. And as the strongest reasons exist about the alleged antiquity of the Hiramic legend, I must conclude that Dr. Marks, like many other scholars, was deceived by a forged MS., and I think that if the above arguments were submitted to Dr. Marks' consideration, that he would himself admit the possibility of having made such a mistake.

The next argument of Bro. Gould rests upon the poem called "Urbanitatis," which, according to the opinion of its editor, Mr. Furnival, was written in about 1460, and a hundred lines of which poem the author of the Regius poem welded on to his own poem. This poem was designed to teach good manners, and the following are specimens of the manners it taught, viz.:—

"When you come before a lord take off your cap or hood, and fall on your knee twice or thrice. Keep your cap off till you are told to put it on. Hold your chin up. Look the Lord in the face. Keep hands and feet still. Don't spit and snot. Break wind quietly. Behave well when you go into the hall. . . See that your hands are clean and your knife sharp. Don't clutch the best bit. Keep your hands from dirtying the table cloth, and don't wipe your nose on it, &c."

And again, in the Masonic Poem, are the following lines, which I give from a modern version, viz.:—

"By old time written, I find
That the prentice should be of gentle kind,
And so, sometimes, great lords' blood
Took this gemetry that is full good."

Mr. Furnival, the editor of "Urbanitatis," remarked on the above lines:—"I should like to see the evidence of a lord's son, having become a working Mason and dwelling seven years with his Master, hys craft to learne." Our Bro. Gould, however, deduced from the fact of the attachment of the poem called "Urbanitatis" to the Masonic Poem, that there must have existed at that time a Masonic Guild composed wholly of non-operatives, or Speculative Masons, for whose instruction in good behaviour the "Urbanitatis" Poem was tacked on to the Regius Poem. He says:—

Digitized by Google

"The conclusion, therefore, to which it seems to me we are directed by the evidence is, that the persons to whom the text of the Regius MS. was sung or recited were a guild or fraternity from whom all but the memory or traditions of its ancient trade had departed."

In short, because the "Urbanitatis" Poem was tacked on to the Masonic Poem, Bro. Gould came to the conclusion that a "Speculative Lodge" existed in the 15th century. But according to my way of reasoning, I think the case was directly the reverse. I have no doubt that the author of the "Urbanitatis" designed his poem for the instruction of the most rude, ill behaved, and dirtiest class in the community, who had not sense enough to take off a hat in the presence of a nobleman, who were accustomed to spit and snot when in company with their betters, who used to clutch the best bit when eating with others from the same table, who used to wipe their noses with the table cloth, &c., &c. Hence, if the author of the Masonic Poem was not sure that a large portion, at least, of the Masons of his day were not equally dirty, rude and ill-mannered with those above described, he would never have insulted the Masonic fraternity by tacking on the Poem "Urbanitatis" to his own. The fact that he did so proves to my mind conclusively that the Regius Poem was intended for the instruction of a Guild, composed, in a large measure at least, of anything but well behaved gentlemen.

And with regard to the question which puzzled Mr. Furnival, about the allusion of the Masonic poet to the "old time written," that "some times great Lords' blood took this gemetry, &c." The poet did not say that in the 15th century there were among Masons members who could boast of having descended from great lords, but refers to "old time written." Hence, he doubtless referred to his own invention about the sons of the Egyptian nobility, whom Euclid taught "gemetry," and that is all he meant.

In Bro. Gould's lecture, at Glasgow, he produced fresh arguments in favour of his new theory. He said:—

"But a paper by Professor Hayter Lewis—'Scotch Masons' marks compared with those of other countries'—read before the British Archæological Association, at its recent session in Glasgow, could be deemed by many persons to have gone a long way towards reinstating the old belief or tradition."

Here follows a long string of conjectures, inferences, and so forth, but which may be reduced to two points. First, that in the 13th century was introduced, with the early pointed style of Gothic, an entirely different method of finishing the surface, and that the source of this method was apparently from the East. Second, that Masons' marks do not appear to have been commonly used in Europe before late in the twelfth century.

But, in the first place, I heard from an eye witness that the stones of the old Roman aqueducts have Masons' marks on them; and second, what has the "Pointed Style" and Masons' marks to do with Speculative Masonry? I have asked two stonecutters, a German and an Englishman, why they marked the stone they wrought, and the answers in both cases were, "that in case of any fault the overseer might know whose work it was." If Bro. Lewis would take the trouble to question any stonecutter about making marks on the stones, he would receive the same answer I received. Now, I want Bro. Lewis, to inform me by what method of reasoning he came to the conclusion that thousands of years ago Masons had different reasons for marking their stone than Masons to-day have? But that is not all. In the 13th century the "Pointed Style" was known in Germany, and German stonecutters also made marks on the stones in the 13th century. But for all that Bro. Speth has proved that the German Masons knew nothing about secret signs, words, secret initiation, or any kind of Speculative Masonry. Hence, Masons' marks furnish no evidence of the existence of Speculative Masonry before the year 1717.

The last argument (as far as I can understand) of Bro. Gould is based upon a supposition that the three degrees after 1717 were received without a murmur, hence the said degrees must have been inherited from olden times, &c. But in the first place, it is well known that the Grand Lodge would not allow Lodges to confer the 2nd and 3rd degrees before 1725, hence if the three degrees had been an old "inheritance," the Lodges would never have submitted to being deprived of their time immemorial privilege for a moment. Second, when the Grand Lodge repealed that law in 1725 but very few Lodges availed themselves of it. This was one of the arguments of Bro. Gould in the Keystone of 1886, he stated that even as late as 1752 there was still a Lodge in England whose W.M. was only a Fellow Craft. And third, if the mere fact (supposing it to be a fact), that because there was no murmur against the three degrees after 1717, is to be received as a proof that the three degrees were an old inheritance, then Bro. MacCalla may with equal reason prove that Templarism is an old inheritance; Bro. Yarker may prove that Memphisism is an old inheritance; Bro. Edwin A. Sherman may prove that Rosy Crossism was inherited from Robert Bruce, and other members of that "school" (as Bro. Gould styled them) may prove that every moonshine Rite or Degree that has been palmed off on credulous Masons from the beginning, up or down, to the invention of the Mystic Shrine and the American Masonic something known as "No. 101," are all old inheritances. To which I may add Hiram Abiff's monument, and St. John the Evangelist's Grand Mastership, when upwards of ninety years of age. If, therefore, my good Bro. Gould wants to convert us to his new embraced belief he must furnish better arguments than he yet has done; and until then I must continue to believe that neither "Speculative Masonry" nor Masonic Degrees existed before 1717.

Obituary.

BROTHER JOHN LAVER, P.M. 211.

BY the sudden death of this highly respected brother the St. Michael's Lodge, No. 211, has lost another of its most devoted members, while the Craft in him will miss one of its most consistent supporters. Brother Laver died on Thursday, the 28th ultimo, at his residence, Sutherland Gardens, Paddington. He was initiated in the St. Michael's Lodge, in the year 1855, at its then headquarters, the Blue Boar, High Holborn. He filled the chair of No. 211 in the year 1860, and it was during his year that the St. Michael's Lodge removed to the hostelry where it now meets,—the Albion, Aldersgate Street. Bro. John Laver, since the death of his old comrade Brother Charles Greenwood, has filled the position of Father of his Lodge. He was held in the highest esteem by his brother members, who invariably gave full consideration to any suggestion he thought fit to offer. His funeral took place on Wednesday, at the Old Churchyard, Walthamstow, in a family grave that contains the remains of his father. Amongst those who attended to pay a last tribute of affection to a worthy man were his son, Mr. Francis Laver, Messrs. R. H. Aveling and Charles Capper (sons-in-law), Mr. R. Sedgwick (executor), Mr. H. Stephens (solicitor), Mr. F. Harvey and Mr. Robert Davey (representing Messrs. Peters and Sons, the firm with which our deceased brother was associated). St. Michael's Lodge was represented by its W.M. Bro. Henry Lindfield, and by Bros Alfred Green P.M. (Treasurer) and W. W. Morgan P.M. Several of our late Bro. Laver's tenants (he held some house property at Walthamstow) also were in attendance to pay their last respects to a kind and considerate landlord.

BRO. WILLIAM BALL.

THE remains of the late Bro. Ball, of the Stockwell Lodge and Chapter, No. 1339, were interred on Tuesday last, the 3rd inst., at Kensal Green (the oldest Cemetery around London). In addition to the relatives of the deceased, there were present Bros. A. G. Boswell W.M., H. Moss P.M., E. H. Minns S.W., Frances P.P.G.D. Surrey P.M. Secretary, and several other members of the Lodge. At the close of the funeral service, the family and Masonic brethren gathered round the grave and dropped their sprigs of acacia on the coffin. One brother was the bearer of a Masonic wreath. The course of the late Bro. Ball's life was conducted on true Masonic principles.

MARK MASONRY.

—:o:—

The Half-Yearly Communication of the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of England and the Colonies and Dependencies of the British Crown was held on Tuesday last, at the Holborn Restaurant. For some reason, which we are totally at a loss to understand, we are never furnished with the necessary documents whereon to base a report of these half-yearly meetings. We may have something to say on this next week. One feature, however, we have been requested to mention. There were two candidate nominated for the post of Grand Treasurer, the election for which office will take place in June next. The two candidates are Bro. C. Gilles and Bro. George Gardner. Bro. Gardner was initiated in the Domatic (Craft) Lodge, No. 177. He is a founder, P.M. and Secretary of the Chiswick Lodge, No. 2012; founder and W.M. of the George Gardner Lodge, No. 2030; Z. Kensington Chapter, No. 1381; I.G. Thistle Mark Lodge, No. 8; founder, P.M. Treasurer Chiswick Mark Lodge, No. 357; P.P.G.D.C. Middlesex and Surrey; founder and Treasurer Chiswick Lodge of Instruction. Brother George Gardner has also served thirteen Stewardships to the different Institutions, and is a Vice President.

ST. WILFRID'S LODGE, No. 209.

AT the installation meeting on Monday, the 11th ult., at Alford, Bro. Geo. Bosson was installed Master of that Lodge by Bro. G. Green. The appointments were: Bros. W. Mason I.P.M., T. A. Handsley S.W., E. A. Young J.W., Jno. Davies M.O., T. C. Johnson S.O., J. E. Mason J.O., G. Green Treasurer, C. Smyth Secretary, R. Garfit S.D., H. Christian I.G., Burridge O.G. Other appointments stood over. Several Provincial Officers were present.

BEECHAM'S ILLUSTRATED CHRISTMAS ANNUAL.

THE craze for light reading at the Christmas Season seems to be as pronounced as ever, and our popular Advertisers seem fully alive to this fact. Last year the Proprietor of Beecham's Pills, a medicine which has deservedly secured for itself a high repute, both in this country and abroad, issued what may be styled "a wonderful pennyworth." Mr. Beecham this year seems to be equally successful; his second annual issue is before us, and the book is undoubtedly superior to its pioneer. It contains 100 pages of original tales specially written by the following well-known and eminent authors:—Joseph Hatton, Florence Marryatt, Fergus Hume, Sarah Hamer, George Manville Fenn, James Greenwood, H. F. Wood, Ida Lemon, Sir Gilbert E. Campbell, Bart., Howard Paul, Dr. J. W. Kirton. It is well printed, in clear type, and being quite a marvel at the price, as far as literature is concerned, is likely to take rank as one of the best Magazines of the season. The proprietor of "Beecham's Pills" deserves the encouragement of lovers of fiction for the treat he has placed within the reach of all.

MARRIAGE.

STEDALL-JOYCE.—On the 30th ult., at All Saints, Fulham, by the Rev. F. H. Fisher, vicar, ALFRED STEDALL jun., of the Chestnuts, Denmark Hill, to FANNY EDITH, daughter of Bro. W. JOYCE, of Westfield Terrace, Fulham.

DEATH.

LAVER.—On the 28th ult., at Sutherland Avenue, Paddington, Bro. JOHN Laver, in his 70th year.

THE THEATRES, &c.

—:o:—

Vaudeville.—The success that attended the production of Mr. Buchanan's version of Fielding's novel "Joseph Andrews" was sufficient reason for Mr. Thorne to resume the comedy for his autumn season, and the reception accorded to it last week proves the correctness of the genial manager's perception. Additional interest is lent to the revival as many of the characters are sustained by performers other than the original caste, and they have had the advantage of an extended country tour before appearing in London. Mr. Frank Gillmore now undertakes the rôle of the hero, with considerable ability, and Miss Ella Bannister gives a graceful interpretation of the persecuted Fanny; Miss Gladys Ffolliott plays Lady Booby with discretion, Miss Sylvia Hodson makes a capital Mistress Slipslop, and Miss Coralie Owen endows the small part of Mrs. Adams with much pathos. Another new comer is Mr. C. Harbury who is very effective as the dignified Sir George Wilson. Of course Mr. Thorne resumes his inimitable impersonation of Parson Adams,—he could not well be spared,—and was greeted with tremendous applause when he made his appearance on the stage. Mr. Fred Thorne returns with his clever character sketch of the drunken Welsh parson still further delineated. Mr. Blythe also appears again as the Gipsy Jim, and Mr. Cyril Maude as the young beau, Lord Fellamar, enacts the part in a manner that could hardly be surpassed. The same careful stage arrangements and appropriate scenery are presented; and the new act drop, by Mr. Walter Hann, representing Windsor Castle from the Thames, was much admired. We can safely predict a further run of prosperity for the piece, which affords an admirable illustration of English life during the last century.

St. James's Hall.—We recently paid a visit to the Moore and Burgess Minstrels, at their hall in Piccadilly, and, judging from the reception given by a good audience to the different artistes, they remain as popular as ever. Starting in the goood old-fashioned style, with songs, comic and sentimental, to be followed in the second part by miscellaneous items, the present programme thus formed is a most attractive one. Such popular vocalists as Messrs. Ralph Hunt, Stockwell, Vernon Reed, Leo Kloss, T. Spurr, Walter Hawkins, P. Gaulois, Clement Stewart score well in the sentimental line, while the comic business is well kept going by Messrs. G. W. Moore, Eugene Stratton, Sam Raeburn, T. Somers, T. Birchmore, and Pete Dwight. The first part concludes with a grand selection from Auber's opera of "Massaniello," which is splendidly rendered by the choir and orchestra of the company. In the second part we have Mr. P. C. Shortis exhibiting his skill as a banjo and violin player. The music that this gentleman gets out of these two instruments is something to be remembered, and clearly puts Mr. Shortis nearly, if not quite, at the top of the tree in this special line. This is followed by a capital song and dance by Mr. T. Somers, and then comes "Sim Dimpsey," given by Messrs. Eugene Stratton, Sam Raeburn, and Pearce. Signor Benedetto, the male soprano, is certainly worth hearing, while the peroration on modern events by Mr. Tom Birchmore is very amusing. Mr. Sam Raeburn gives an amusing banjo selection of quaint parodies, after which the entertainment is brought to a close by a laughable sketch, entitled "Military Tactics." We may add that the programme throughout is a capital one, and will repay any one who may go to hear it.

Rapid progress is being made at Drury Lane with the Christmas pantomime, which is to be produced on Boxing night. The subject is "Jack and the Beanstalk," which Messrs. Augustus Harris and Harry Nicholls have made very amusing. The following company has been secured:—Messrs. Harry Nicholls, Herbert Campbell, Dan Leno, Chas. Laurie, Brothers Griffiths, George Conquest jun., Leopold Brothers, Tom Pleon, Walter Stanton, Harry Payne; and the Misses Harriett Vernon, Marie Faudelle, Marie Duggan, Agnes Hewitt, Edith Charteris, Rosie Deering, Sybil Grey, with Mdlle. Zanfretti and Æuea (the Flying Dancer). The music is by Walter Slaughter, the scenery by Messrs. Dayes and Caney, Kontsky and Perkins, and the dresses have been executed by Auguste et Cie., Mons. Landolff, Paris, Miss Palmer and Mrs Atkins.

Messrs. Gilbert and Sullivan's new opera will be produced at the Savoy Theatre this (Saturday) evening.

"Master and Man," by G. R. Sims and Henry Pettitt, is in active rehearsal, and will be shortly produced at the Princess's.

The circus at Covent Garden this year promises to be much better in all respects than its predecessors. Attractions of all kinds are promised, while for children a grand spectacle pantomime on the subject of "Cinderella" will be provided. Mons. Raney has been engaged as equestrian director.

Mr. Henry Irving announces two special matinées of "The Dead Heart" on Monday and Tuesday, 23rd and 24th inst., at half past two, on which occasions there will be no evening performance.

The Alhambra announces a special matinée for Saturday, the 14th inst., when the Naval and Military spectacle, "Our Army and Navy," will be presented. Herr Sandow and Professor Attila will perform their marvellous athletic feats; while James Fawn, Harry Randall, Walter Munroe, Miss Marie Coleridge, Marie Lloyd, Rezeno and Robini, Walter Stanton and Mddle. Tina, the Brothers Wilson, and various other artistes will appear.

We are sorry to hear that Mr. Edward Terry is beginning to feel the strain on his system consequent on the work entailed by the run of "Sweet Lavender," and notwithstanding its success it will probably have to be withdrawn early in the ensuing year to enable the eminent comedian to take a few weeks necessary rest. It is not yet decided what attraction will be put on at this theatre during the proprietor's temporary absence, though several offers from popular entertainers are being considered.

to read the usual way—

1890.

More Rhymes for Beecham's Chimes.

MID loud congratulation,
MID the festive Christmas throng,
A mighty British nation
Would wonder what was wrong,
And millions might inquire,
If a message did not reach 'em,
From the universal BEECHAM,
Of St. Helens, Lancashire.

So fill up a bumper:—be merry and wise;
Enjoy the good cheer, with its puddings and pies!
But while fun and feasting the joyous pulse thrills,
Remember the virtues of famed BEECHAM'S PILLS.

Or, when you've a moment, sit down and peruse,
What, to all friends of Beecham, will read like good news;
How advertisement grand, with her myriad-toned voice,
Has told all the earth of the Pills of your choice.

In Britain, at places of seaside resort,
From Boat-sails that skimm'd o'er the waves we were taught,
And from Bathing-machines, 'mong the sands and the rocks,
We have learned of the Pills WORTH A GUINEA A BOX!

The thousands of journals that flood town and city
Have teemed with engravings, delightful or witty,
Whose object and effort were ever the same—
To publish A WONDERFUL MEDICINE's fame.

And School-books, to help on each master and miss,
Were given by the ton!—and the notion was this:—
Graft the ROSE-BUD OF HEALTH upon fair Wisdom's root,
And the youthful idea will the easier shoot!

In France, too, that nation of genius and grace,
Of late BEECHAM'S PILLS found a wide-welcomed place;
While the far East and India constantly cry—
"The Pills ACT LIKE MAGIC—increase our supply!"

To distant America, south of the line,
They oft were despatched in this year 'eighty-nine.—
But reader, adieu; for our space quickly fills;
Take BEECHAM's best wishes, and take—BEECHAM'S PILLS!

POSTSCRIPT.

A word to the wise.—BEECHAM'S ANNUAL is OUT!
Of all Christmas Numbers, the BEST, without doubt.
Though a Shilling's the worth, yet a Penny's the price!
Give news agent orders, with this sound advice—
"Let there be no delay: Try and get it to-day,
For 'tis certain they'll all be snapped up in a trice!"

THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE

SATURDAY, 7TH DECEMBER 1889.

P.G. LODGE OF EAST LANCASHIRE.

THE half-yearly meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of East Lancashire was held, on the 29th ult., in the Assembly Room of the Free Trade Hall, Manchester. Brother Colonel Le Gendre N. Starkie Provincial Grand Master occupied the principal chair, supported by Bro. Edmund Ashworth acting as Deputy Provincial Grand Master Bro. J. H. Sillitoe P.G. Standard Bearer, and a numerous retinue of Provincial Officers past and present. Bros. J. O. S. Thursby and N. A. Earle were in their respective positions as Senior and Junior Wardens, and the other present Officers in attendance were Bros. the Revs. E. Bigoe Bagot 62, and E. T. Wigg 2279 Chaplains, W. S. Boddington 1253 Registrar, John Chadwick 44 Secretary, Hamlet Lees 1863 S.D., Edwin Hardman 274 S.D., W. T. Schofield 1219 J.D., Thomas Woodcock 191 Director of Ceremonies, Chas. E. Collingwood 298 Deputy Director of Ceremonies, Samuel B. Priestley 219 Assistant Director of Ceremonies, Charles Brierley 42 Sword Bearer, Henry Taylor 286, and Whitfield Thompson 1534 Standard Bearers, Walter O. Pettitt 1055 Organist, James Newton 37 Assistant Secretary, Joseph Bridgford 1077 Pursuivant, William Cartwright 633 Assistant Pursuivant, Kenneth Maclean 1030, Ed. Geo. Lingard 1030, James Cookson 1030, J. H. Edmondson 274, James Taylor 274, and Ashworth Law 274 Stewards, Thomas Higson 348 Tyler. Of the 100 Lodges in the Province, representatives were present from 98. The Prov. Grand Master presented to the Provincial Grand Lodge a set of golden vessels of consecration. He said he wished the brethren to accept them as a gift commemorative of the fact that theirs was the only Province in which the 100th Lodge had been consecrated. At the 100th consecration eight Officers of Grand Lodge were present, and five of them took part in the ceremony. He trusted that the vessels might long be of service, and that Lodges would continue to increase in the same proportion that they had increased during the period of his happy reign over this influential Province. Bro. J. Heelis proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the Provincial Grand Master for his gift. Bro. J. O. S. Thursby, in seconding the motion, said the handsome present was but another proof of the interest Bro. Starkie had always shown in Masonry, and an addition to his many acts for the benefit of the Order. The motion was put by Bro. Edmund Ashworth, and carried with enthusiasm. Bro. Major J. W. Allison was re elected to the office of Treasurer until May next, to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of Bro. J. W. Edwards, who was invested with that rank at the last annual meeting. At a later stage of the proceedings the Provincial Grand Master said he was sure the brethren deeply regretted the loss they had sustained by the death of Bro. Edwards. He proposed that a letter of condolence be sent to Mrs. Edwards, expressing deep sympathy with her in her still greater loss, and also recording their admiration of Bro. Edwards's worthiness as a Mason, and their recognition of his valuable services to the Charities and to Provincial Grand Lodge. The motion was carried. Bros. J. Studd and W. R. Sowter were re-elected Auditors, and Bro. Middleton was elected to act with them. The Provincial Grand Secretary read a report of the Charity Committee, and this was adopted, and new by-laws drawn up by that Committee were approved of. After the Provincial Grand Lodge had been closed, there was a Court of Governors of the East Lancashire Systematic Educational and Benevolent Institution, the Provincial Grand Master presiding. Bro. Chadwick Secretary read a report. It said that last year he had to regret a considerable falling off in the support accorded by Lodges and individuals to the Institution, the result, no doubt of the large amount sent by the Province to the Centenary Festival of the Girls' School. This year a very different state of things existed, mainly brought about by the letter issued by the Provincial Grand Master to the Lodges in the Province, drawing their attention to the resolution passed at the last meeting of Governors—"That it is desirable to give to our local institution during the next year our first consideration and principal support," and also by the energy of the Treasurer and the Chairman of Committees. The receipts were:—From Lodges, last year £114 3s, this year £520 18s 11d; from individuals, last year £153 14s, this year £409 8s; totals from all sources, last year £576 14s 7d, this year £1208 11s. In each instance the figures were made up from January to November, and since the account for the present year was drawn up a sum of £150 had been received. The expenditure to the 1st November 1888 was £616 13s 7d, £400 in Consols and £119 12s 11d in the bank, while the expenditure to the 1st November 1889 was £471 5s 6d, £8 new investments, and 1038 6s 6d in the bank. While the Institution thus made progress he could not too strongly urge upon the individual members of the Province its claims for their support. Its usefulness was capable of continued extension, while the help it was bestowing by the education given to the children of many of their late brethren was, they believed, incalculable. They had during the year upon the books for education 21 boys and 14 girls, and it was a pleasing feature that since the establishment of the educational part of the Institution they had had income sufficient to educate all the children brought before the Education Board that were eligible without having to resort to an election. On the motion of Bro. Sillitoe, seconded by Bro. Nicoll, the report was adopted, and the meeting closed with an expression of thanks from the chair to the brethren for their exertions during the year.

After carefully considering the relative qualifications of the thirty-four candidates who presented themselves, the Provisional Committee have selected the Rev. Harry Hebb, M.A. Oxon, to succeed the Rev. R. Morris, LL.D., as the Head Master of the Royal Masonic School for Boys, at Wood Green. The new Master will, subject to the approval of the General Committee, which meets this (Saturday) afternoon, at four o'clock, enter upon his duties on the 1st January next.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Old Sores, Wounds, and Ulcers.—The readiness with which Holloway's unguents remove all obstructions in the circulation of the vessels and lymphatics explains their irresistible influence in healing old sores, bad wounds, and indolent ulcers. To ensure the desired effect the skin surrounding the diseased part should be fomented, dried and immediately well rubbed with the Ointment. This will give purity to the foul blood, and strength to the weakened nerves, the only conditions necessary for the cure of all those ulcerations which render life almost intolerable. No sooner is this Ointment's protective power exerted than the destructive process ceases, and the constructive business begins—new, healthy growth appears to fill up the lately painful excavated pit.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

CONSECRATION OF THE ROSE OF LANCASTER LODGE, No. 2325.

At the conclusion of the business the usual banquet took place at the Hotel, a splendid repast being laid on the table by Host Leach. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured.

HUYSHE LODGE, No. 1099.

THE members held their installation banquet in the new refectory attached to the Lodge-room, Home Park, Stoke, on the 28th ult. Bro. J. W. Foster the W.M. presided, Bros. G. Vanstone S.W., and S. J. Page J.W. being in the vice-chairs. Those present included Bros. the Rev. T. W. Lemon, M.A., P.M. and Chaplain 189, P.P.G. Chaplain, P.P.J.W.; W. J. Stanbury P.M. and Secretary 1099, W. H. Gillman P.M. 1099, R. W. Pitcher P.M. 230, &c. A substantial repast was provided by Bro. Williams, of Fore Street, Devonport. A capital musical entertainment was given by a band under the direction of Bro. G. Miller, Organist of the Lodge. Bro. E. Roseveare P.M. was in excellent voice, and sang "My Pretty Jane" in his own inimitable style. Equally successful was Brother Gillman's rendering of "Who shall be King." Bro. E. Roseveare gave a clever ventriloquial sketch, introducing some smart and humorous local references. In the course of the evening various complimentary remarks were made respecting the enterprise of Lodge Huyshe, in building and fitting up such a handsome refectory.

WILLIAM PRESTON LODGE, No. 766.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge was held on Thursday, the 28th ult., at the Cannon Street Hotel. The W.M. of the past year Brother George Frederick Edwards was early in attendance, and the Lodge was formally opened at the time named on the summons. Among those present were Bros. F. G. Barns W.M. elect, W. Jerrett Miller P.M. (Treasurer), W. Worrell P.M. (Secretary), P.M.'s W. F. Smart, A. Le Grand, W. J. Collens, E. Kidman, W. T. Heath. Amongst the Visitors were Bros. T. R. Parrell I.G. 960, Lieut.-Col. H. Gardner 1718, D. Campbell Steward 1365, T. W. Pritchard I.G. 742, C. Stanger W.M. 12, C. N. McIntyre North J.W. 1559, W. W. Westley I.P.M. 186, W. Medwin P.M. 1615, A. A. Jones 975, H. Garrod P.G.P., H. J. Felton I.P.M. 1056, L. Ferguson I.G. 1997, M. J. Russell 95, J. R. Morgan 569, W. Hancock S.D. 2191, W. Morley W.M. 1769, J. Salmon P.M. 2077, J. W. Tyler S.W. 2077, A. Mullord P.M. 1288, H. Von Joel P.M. 957, W. J. Andrews 1329, E. T. Pearce 1260, H. J. Powell S.D. 1801, A. Paterson S.D. 1804, W. Woodruffe P.M. 957, T. G. Doughty 1287, J. H. Hawkins P.M. 65, R. Lyon 2272, John Trent 2030, C. P. Bellamy I.P.M. 2021, W. W. Morgan P.M. 211, &c. After the minutes of last meeting had been read and confirmed, the report of the audit committee was received and adopted. Bro. A. E. Samuell, a candidate for the second degree, was then introduced, and successfully passed his examination. He was entrusted, and then left the Lodge. After advancement, the candidate was re-admitted, and the ceremony of passing was worked on his behalf, thus giving him the opportunity to take his place as a Fellow Craft Freemason. The W.M. elect, Bro. F. G. Barns, C.C., was then presented, and Bro. Edwards commenced the ceremony of installation. In due course the Board of Installed Masters were called upon to assist, and Bro. Barns was regularly installed into the chair of the Lodge. On the re-admission of the brethren the new W.M. was proclaimed and saluted by the brethren in the three degrees. The investment of Officers followed, the brethren named being chosen for their respective offices:—Bros. G. F. Edwards I.P.M., E. Brooks S.W., Henry Heck J.W., W. J. Miller P.M. Treasurer, W. Worrell P.M. Secretary, J. F. Haden S.D., H. Harker J.D., Dr. Pickett I.G., E. J. Beagle D.C., R. C. Wilson A.D.C., E. Kidman P.M. Steward, M. Woolf Assistant Steward, Louis Reinhardt Tyler. The first duty of the W.M. was to present to his predecessor the elegant jewel of the Lodge. This had been voted at the last meeting, and the W.M in making the presentation to Bro. Edwards congratulated him on the admirable way in which he had conducted the business of the Lodge during the past year. The brethren with the most perfect unanimity had voted the jewel, and he (Bro. Barns) had great pleasure in being the medium for its presentation. The jewel bore the following inscription:—

Presented to Bro. G. F. Edwards P.M.
By the Brethren of the William Preston Lodge, No. 766,
To evince their appreciation of his efficient services whilst presiding over them as W.M. for the year 1888-90.

The compliment was modestly but gracefully acknowledged by Bro. Edwards, who assured the brethren that his interest in the welfare of the Lodge would be sustained so long as he was associated with Freemasonry. We may mention here that Bro. Edwards was also made the recipient of a Past Master's collar and jewel; this was inscribed as under:—

Presented to Bro. G. F. Edwards P.M.
By the Members of the William Preston Lodge, No. 766.
Nov. 28th 1889.

The other business of the evening comprised the election as a re-joining member of Bro. John Greenslade. Mr. George Pearce, a candidate for initiation, who was proposed by Bro. F. G. Barns and seconded by Bro. W. Worrell, successfully underwent the ordeal of ballot, and was initiated by his old friend the new W.M. A letter of condolence was ordered to be sent to Bro. Hutchinson, who had recently lost his wife. The W.M. announced that a "Lady's Night" would be celebrated early in the new year, and after some other matters had received attention, Lodge was closed. The banquet was served in the Pillar Hall, under the superintendence of the new proprietors of the Cannon Street Hotel, and gave the greatest satisfaction to all who sat down. On the removal of the cloth the loyal toasts were briefly given, and the brethren did them full honour. In speaking of the Pro G. Master, the D.G. Master and the rest of the Grand Officers Present and Past, the W.M. dilated on the zeal and ability shown by our Masonic rulers. It was perhaps a matter for regret that the accommodation provided at Freemasons' Hall did not meet the requirements of the brethren at all times, notably when the election of Grand Treasurer took place. This, however, did not militate against the services rendered by the Grand Officers, who were ever ready to advance the best interests of Freemasonry. Bro. Henry Garrod Past Grand Pursuivant replied. Bro. Salmon, C.C., was also called upon; he advocated a subsidiary Grand Lodge, or its equivalent, for London. Bro. Salmon also made reference to the ability displayed by the W.M. in initiating the candidate of the evening. Bro. G. F. Edwards proposed the health of the Worshipful Master. During his term of office the presiding Officer is essentially the fountain head, and in the William Preston, so far as regards Bro. Barns, there could be no question as to his capability to provide for the welfare and happiness of the brethren. In reply, Bro. Barns felt he could scarcely command a supply of words, but he felt animated by a strong desire to carry out his duties in a satisfactory manner. The brethren were to a certain degree sponsors for him, inasmuch as they were responsible for having placed him in his present exalted position. He could assure them their confidence should merit his highest consideration, and he trusted to give them, one and all, satisfaction. At this stage of the proceedings the Charity Box was passed round, and £4 1s 6d was realised. This sum was devoted to the assistance of Mrs. Ramsay, a lady with whom the William Preston Lodge evince a vast amount of sympathy in her misfortunes. The health of the I.P.M. was the next toast. The brethren would all agree with him (the W.M.) when he said they had had a very enjoyable year. Bro. Edwards had never lost an opportunity of promoting the comforts of his brethren, and those who were associated with him in the battle of life. He had striven, successfully striven, to advance the Lodge, and his endeavours had been eminently satisfactory. The compliment was suitably acknowledged by Bro. Edwards. The health of the Initiate was the next toast; the W.M. trusted that he would become one of the lights of the William Preston Lodge. He (the W.M.) had been an old companion of their Initiate; they had known each other since they were boys. Their Initiate was no chicken; this year he had celebrated his jubilee birthday, and he, his old friend, looked forward to do the same next year. Bro. Barns said he was intensely gratified in being privileged to initiate Bro. G. Pearce into the William Preston Lodge. After reply had been made, the Visitors were complimented, and Bros. Morley, Hawkins, Morgan, and others responded. For the Treasurer and Secretary Bro. Miller replied, and the S.W. and J.W. responded for the toast given in their honour. The proceedings were enlivened with some good songs, and it was at a late hour that the Tyler brought this successful meeting to a close.

ROBINSON LODGE, No. 2046.

ON Wednesday, the 13th ult., the installation meeting was held, by kind permission of the Mayor (J. Clifford, Esq.), in the Maidstone Town Hall. This Masonic event is always looked forward to with interest by many of the leading Masons of the Province of Kent, and this year the presence of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master Bro. Smith Eastes added special importance to the gathering. Bro. T. I. Barden was the W.M. elect, and he was duly installed into the chair of the Lodge by his predecessor Bro. J. Beavis Groom, who performed the interesting ceremony in a very impressive manner. Bros. G. T. Ker and D. Walsh took the Wardens' chairs, and Bro. F. W. Wright P.M. admirably filled the office of Director of Ceremonies. After the installation, the Worshipful Master, Bro. T. I. Barden, presented to Bro. J. Beavis Groom, on behalf of the Lodge, a valuable Past Master's jewel as a memento of services rendered the Lodge during his term of office. There was a very large attendance of the brethren of the Lodge, and among the visitors, in addition to Bro. Smith Eastes D.P.G.M., and Bro. Alfred Spencer Provincial Grand Secretary for Kent, were Bros. G. F. Baker W.M. 503, Atkinson W.M. 2305, G. Baker P.M. 503, A. B. Urmston J.W. 1725, Wallis P.M. 503, Elmore P.M. 503, Foord P.M. 503, Silas Wagon P.M. 1063, F. Gordon P.M. 1063, J. H. Clarke P.M. 391, 639, 503, Sharman P.G.S.D. Cambridge, Austin S.W. 709, Hope Secretary 503, Robson 503, Hickmott 503. At 5.30 p.m. the brethren adjourned to the Bell Hotel, where a sumptuous banquet was supplied by Mr. W. W. Frost. Bro. Barden W.M. presided, and he was supported on his right by Bros. Eastes and Spencer. After the banquet the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts followed. Bro. Eastes in his speech, paid a high compliment to the very Worshipful Bro. the Rev. T. Robinson, after whom the Lodge is named. His remarks were received with great applause. Songs were sung in capital style by Bros. Robson, Taverner, Ellis, Jenkinson, and Simmons. Appended is the list of Officers for the year:—Bros. J. Beavis Groom I.P.M., W. Burne Stonham S.W., R. McVicar J.W., G. Roberts Dann Treasurer, D. Walsh, M.D., B.Sc., Secretary, W. Payler Dickinson S.D., W. F. V. Simmons J.D., F. W. Wright P.M. D.C., H. F. Whyman Organist, C. R. Wind I.G., E. Gratwick S. Steward, Ambrose Roberts J. Steward, J. Gowan Tyler, G. Tailor Ker Charity representative. The event proved to be one of the most successful gatherings held in the county for many years.

RYE LODGE, No. 2272.

THE usual monthly meeting of this Lodge was held at the Peckham Public Hall, on Wednesday, the 13th ult., under the presidency of the W.M. Bro. Frederick Dunn, assisted by his Officers, at which Bro. H. E. Reed was raised to the sublime degree of a Master Mason, and Dr. Johnston, M.R.C.S., was initiated into the Craft. A ballot was taken for several joining members, and propositions received for joining the Lodge and for initiation. Among the visitors present we noticed Bros. Abrahams W.M. 72, Penny P.M. 1679, and G. C. May 1901.

Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, No. 65.—This Lodge of Instruction having removed from the Hercules Tavern, Leadenhall Street, to the City Arms Tavern, St. Mary Axe, the members celebrated the event, and opened the new season with a supper, on Tuesday evening of last week, under the presidency of Bro. Geo. Haller, Worshipful Master of the Mother Lodge. Among those present were the following Past Masters of the Prosperity:—Bros. Daniel, Ferry, Chicken, Roberts, Dyson, and Walker, and, in addition, a number of members of the Lodge of Instruction. The repast having been partaken of, the W.M. proceeded with the toasts of the evening, commencing with that of the Queen and the Craft, which was suitably introduced and duly honoured. Bro. Daniel was entrusted with the toast of the Acting Master, Bro. Haller. Bro. Daniel considered the duty entrusted to him was an important one—it was really the most important toast of the evening. Speaking to members of the Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, he felt sure they were all aware of the ability of the brother who was that evening presiding over them, while he could vouch for his efficiency in the mother Lodge. That evening's gathering reminded him of the old days of the Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, which he was pleased to see going on so auspiciously. The meeting that day was a poor one compared with what they had expected, so many who had promised to attend were not present, but as they had given financial support to the gathering they had shown their appreciation of what was being done, and their desire to co-operate in the good work, which all hoped would be continued in the Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, both under its present chief and those who succeded him. Bro. Haller suitably replied. He was not so constant an attendant at the Lodge of Instruction as he could wish, and indeed owed his position that night to the fact of his being present W.M. of the mother Lodge. He specially journeyed from Newcastle to be present, and was amply rewarded by the reception accorded him. Prosperity to the Lodge of Instruction was the next toast. Lodges of Instruction were far more important, in the opinion of the Worshipful Master, than many Masons seemed to imagine. The proceedings at weekly meetings of these Lodges, when brethren attended in their regular every day surroundings, did much to impress them with the dignity and importance of Freemasonry, and teach them the lessons of its beautiful ceremonies and ritual. Freemasonry, indeed, should give a colouring to the every action of a true brother. He (Bro. Haller) should take the opportunity of mentioning their Lodge of Instruction at their next regular Lodge gathering, and should then impress on the members the desirability of supporting it. With the toast was associated the name of Bro. Talbot, the Preceptor, whom the Worshipful Master characterised as a man well able to give the instruction necessary in such a Lodge as theirs. He was really marked out as a leader among his fellows, and well deserved the high honour conferred on him. They must all hope his present actions would ultimately lead him to the highest rungs of the Masonic ladder. Bro. Talbot returned his sincere thanks. He assured those present he actually loved the Prosperity Lodge of Instruction. Every week he liked it more and more, and his only regret was that a larger number of brethren did not avail themselves of its gatherings. It would be their constant endeavour to impart all the instruction it was in their power to give. The toast of the Visitors was heartily given, and to this Brother Hetheridge replied, after which was given the Masonic Press, acknowledged by Bro. W. W. Morgan jun., who spoke of his experiences in the Lodge some thirteen years before, when he remembered being coached by its members in the earliest lessons of Freemasonry. The toast of the Treasurer was given, and it having been acknowledged the proceedings were brought to a conclusion.

Joppa Lodge of Instruction, No. 188.—A meeting was held on Tuesday last, at the Manchester Hotel, Aldersgate Street, E.C., at 8 p.m. Present: Bros. E. Ansell W.M., S. Danoyger S.W., A. Botibol J.W., A. J. Marks S.D., H. Saqui (Secretary) J.D., J. Goodinge I.G.; Bros. Samuel, Garrard, &c. After preliminaries, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Garrard candidate. The 1st section of the lecture was worked by Bro. Saqui, and the 2nd section by Bro. Goodinge. It was settled that the 15 sections be worked on the third Tuesday in January 1890.

Emblematic Lodge of Instruction, No. 1321.—The usual weekly meeting was held at the Mona Hotel, Henrietta Street, Covent Garden, on Tuesday, 3rd inst. Brethren present were J. Greenway Preceptor, T. Marshall W.M., H. Esling S.W., E. L. Berry J.W., Geo. Swan P.M. Secretary, W. O. Welsford S.D., G. Grimes J.D., E. D. Rymer I.G.; Bros. Price W.M. elect 1321, Graham W.M. 1559, Ray P.M., Hunt, and others. The Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed. The first and second sections of the first lecture were then worked by Bro. Greenway, who has quite recently accepted the Preceptorship, and is displaying great energy and ability in his work, thus convincing the members of the wisdom of their choice. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Ray being the candidate. Bro. H. Esling W.M. of the mother Lodge was unanimously elected to the chair of W.M. for the ensuing week. All Masonic business being ended, the Lodge was closed in perfect harmony. The Lodge meets every Tuesday, at 8 o'clock, at the Mona Hotel as above; sections of the lectures are worked, and ceremonies rehearsed at each meeting. Visitors will be cordially welcomed.

Langton Lodge of Instruction, No. 1673.—A meeting was held on Thursday, the 27th ult., at the White Hart Tavern, Abchurch Lane, E.C. Bros. Hobbs Preceptor, S. Lea Smith W.M., Besant S.W., Billinghurst J.W., Mapleton Secretary, De Paine S.D., E. R. Smith J.D., Marshall I.G.; Bro. Room (P.G. Secretary Middlesex), and others. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The Lodge was advanced, and the ceremony of passing rehearsed, Bro. Toulmein acting as candidate. The W.M. gave the explanation of the tracing board. The Lodge was closed in the 2nd degree, and Bro. S.W. was elected W.M. for the next meeting, and gave notice that the ceremony of raising would be rehearsed. It was unanimously decided that the Lodge take a share in the Second Langton Benevolent Association now being formed. Bro. Room expressed the great pleasure he had experienced in visiting the Lodge, and congratulated the members on its excellent working. Soon afterwards the Lodge was closed. Brethren desirous of joing the Second Langton Benevolent Association now being formed should apply to the Hon. Secretary, Brother Gordon Smith, 2 Paper Buildings, Temple, E.C.

Duke of Cornwall Lodge of Instruction, No. 1839.—The weekly meeting was held on Tuesday, the 3rd inst., at the Queen's Arms, Queen Street, Cheapside, when there were present Brothers Marcus Preceptor, Foot W.M., Cox S.W., Hart J.W., Williams Treasurer, Miller Secretary, Taylor S.D., Dutton J.D., Plummer I.G., and several P.M.'s and members. After formalities had been complied with, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Dunlop candidate. This was followed by the ceremony of passing, Brother Ensworth acting as candidate. The Lodge was closed in the 2nd degree. The 15 sections will be worked here, by the members of the West Smithfield Lodge of Instruction, on the 2nd Tuesday in January next.

The SAFEST and most EFFECTUAL CURE for GOUT, RHEUMATISM, and all PAINS in the HEAD, FACE, and LIMBS.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL from the Rev. F. FARVIS, Baptist Minister.

Mr. G. EADE. March 19, 1887.

Dear Sir,—I have many times felt inclined to inform you of the benefit I have received by taking your Gout and Rheumatic Pills. After suffering for some time from Rheumatics and Sciatica, I was advised to use your Pills. I bought a bottle, and when in severe pain and unable to use the limb affected I took a dose. In a few hours after I felt the pain much better, and after the second dose the pain completely removed and the limb restored to its right use. I thank you, dear sir, for sending forth such a boon for the relief of human suffering.

Yours faithfully,
F. FARVIS,
Baptist Minister.

A New Pamphlet, by Dr. GEO. H. JONES, F.R.S.L., F.R.M.S., &c., Surgeon-Dentist, 57 Great Russell-street, facing British Museum entrance, London, contains a list of Diplomas, and Silver Medals and other Awards obtained at the Great International Exhibitions. Forwarded gratis and post free.

Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist's Testimonial.

My Dear Doctor,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

S. G. HUTCHINS,
By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

Geo. H. Jones, Esq., D.D.S.

Laboratory of Experimental Science.

This is to certify: That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

RESIGNATION OF MEMBERSHIP.

THE decision arrived at by the brethren assembled at the last Quarterly Communication of United Grand Lodge, coupled with the opinions expressed by the Grand Registrar and others, on the subject of resignation, will set at rest a point which has been a subject of contention among a section of the Craft for some time past. Strange ideas exist in regard to a Mason's right of withdrawal from his Lodge, but it seems to us the ruling of the late Bro. McIntyre is in every respect the correct method of settling the question. This ruling, which the present Grand Registrar tells the Craft has always been held as accepted law, is to the effect that Masonry, being a voluntary Society, the moment a brother announces his resignation and communicates it to his Lodge, he ceases to be a member thereof. There is no option open to any one in the matter. If a brother resigns, the Lodge must accept his resignation, and he, on his part, must abide by his act, even though he may regret it a few moments afterwards.

The whole subject has been raised in Grand Lodge on an appeal from a Past Master of the Victoria in Burmah Lodge, No. 832, Rangoon, who lodged a complaint against his Lodge for permitting one of its Past Masters to withdraw his resignation of membership after it had been regularly announced in writing to the Secretary. The complaint was, in the first instance, submitted to the Grand Master of the District, and he took upon himself to dismiss the complaint—an error of judgment on his part, as has now been decided by Grand Lodge. The complaint was justifiable, and the Lodge was in error in allowing the withdrawal of a regularly communicated resignation; which, it must be understood, requires no formal acceptance by a Lodge, and is not at any time a discussable subject, for if a brother once tenders his resignation his membership thereupon ceases, although it is customary for the Lodge to formally accept it—a practice which the recent discussion in Grand Lodge has shown to be wholly unnecessary. This rendering of Masonic law may have some peculiar effects, as we think it is not an uncommon practice for resignations to be tendered, and subsequently withdrawn, although we suppose that in such cases, when they are withdrawn, with the sanction of the members, the matter settles itself, all concerned being parties to the agreement. On the other hand, last week's decision shows that an individual member of the Lodge may upset the wish of the remaining members in this respect, and can compel the resignation to be carried into effect if he chooses to assert himself, for such is the outcome of the whole subject, as decided by Grand Lodge.

We do not think the full effect of this ruling has been generally appreciated in the past, and it will be well if some of those who are likely to tender their resignation, if everything does not proceed just as they wish it in their Lodge, will bear in mind for the future that it is not a question of the resignation being accepted or otherwise, by the entire Lodge, but rather the possibility of its being enforced by one particular member. We will not go so far as to say that it is a common practice for members to threaten resignation if they do not get all they desire, but such a course often occurs—it is even carried into effect up to a certain point, the resigning brother flattering himself that the Lodge will not agree to the resignation being accepted, or even if they do so at first there is the possibility of matters being patched up afterwards. But we do not believe this class of brethren ever thought it was in the power of one member of the Lodge to enforce their resignation, neither do we think the general body of the Craft were aware of the full effect of the particular law which governs the matter. It is certainly putting tremendous power in the hands of the minority, of a single member in fact, and appears to forcibly impress on the Craft the need for caution and thorough determination before expressing a desire to withdraw from a Lodge.

We have known instances where brethren have resigned immediately on the announcement of an adverse vote, or on some unexpected proposition being brought forward and carried, and they have regretted their action almost before they had time to leave the Lodge. Some of their friends have persuaded them to come back, withdraw their hasty resignation, and go on as before. But did it ever strike the members that any one among them could have compelled the completion of the resignation, and the expulsion from the Lodge of the brother concerned? In many cases we may say, decidedly not, and we are convinced that only a small minority of Craftsmen ever recognised the full power they possessed in this respect. We have even known a proposal to allow the withdrawal of a resignation to go to the vote, and to be opposed—though unsuccessfully, when it now appears that all that was necessary was for one of the objectors to enforce the resignation, which, as we have said, is not an optional subject, to be settled one way or the other, according to the vote of the Lodge, but a matter governed by the laws of the Craft, and that too in a most definite way.

The discussion of this appeal case led to other considerations in regard to retirement, Bro. J. S. Cumberland, for instance, asking if it was to be understood that once a brother sent in his resignation it was final, and whether, although between the sending in of the resignation and the meeting of his Lodge, an opportunity might occur for doing so, he had no power to withdraw it? This, as Bro. Philbrick said, was asking for a statement of Masonic law outside of that required by the case in hand, but he recognised the importance of the subject by answering the questions addressed to the Grand Lodge. "From the moment a member said, 'I resign,' his membership was ended, and a line was struck. After that he was no longer a member of the Lodge, and should he desire to again become associated with it a fresh proposition and a fresh ballot would be necessary. This may be a severe way of asserting the laws of the Craft, but, as was pointed out, it was a very intelligible and clear rule to lay down, and it avoided difficulties. Many of our readers, who have had experience in regard to the resignation of members from their Lodges, will no doubt be able to apply this ruling to special cases, and then appreciate the principle on which it is based. The consideration of the whole subject of resignation may be said to have been re-opened by this discussion of last week, and as good must result from a better knowledge of the laws which govern Freemasonry, we are very pleased it received so much attention from the officials and members of Grand Lodge.

No. 79 ONCE MORE.

By Bro. Jacob Norton.

As it is now about two years since the question about No. 79 was discussed, I must briefly give an explanation for the information of late subscribers to this paper, namely:—In the London edition of Smith's Pocket Companion, 1735, No. 79 in the Lodge List is followed by a blank, but in a reprint of the same book in Dublin, in 1735, the blank was filled up with "The Hoop, in Water Street, Philadelphia, 1st Monday." Now, since 1874, the Philadelphians set up a claim that because Daniel Coxe was appointed Prov. G.M., in 1730, over New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, and because a Lodge was started in Philadelphia in 1731, and because the said Lodge dubbed itself "Grand Lodge" in 1732, therefore Philadelphia must have received its Masonic authority from Daniel Coxe.

As previous Masonic historians, as a rule, always reasoned after the above fashion, it is no wonder that Bro. MacCalla, of Philadelphia, at once converted the highest American Masonic luminaries to his new theory. But, strange to say, our English Masonic writers were also sucked into Brother MacCalla's delusion. I, however, endeavoured to show up the baselessness of Bro. Mac Calla's reasoning, but for some time it was uphill work. About a dozen years ago Bro. Hughan got hold of the Dublin edition of the "Pocket Companion," and finding therein that No. 79 was then located in Philadelphia, he of course published his discovery, which naturally filled the hearts of our American Masonic luminaries with gladness. For instance, I happened by mere accident to take up the Cincinnatti Masonic Review, and to my surprise I saw an article headed "What will Jacob Norton say to it?" The heading was followed by an article from the Keystone. Jacob Norton, however, did say something, and he convinced impartial readers that Brother Mac Calla's reasoning was fallacious. The last contention I had about No. 79 was with Bro. John Lane, for having put into his "Masonic Records" about No. 79 the words from the Dublin Pocket Companion, to which, however, Bro. Lane added—"This in the Dublin List of 1735. Warranted for America, but probably Warrant never used." Recently, however, even Bro. Hughan pronounced that No. 79 having ever been connected with Philadelphia was "exploded" (that is Bro. Hughan's own word), and I was in hopes to hear no more about No. 79, but about a month ago a Brother called my attention to Bro. Lane's new book, viz., "Hand Book for the Lists of Lodges," to the following, viz.:—

"It is only necessary for me now to remark that it may be fairly assumed that the interpolation of 'The Hoop in Water Street,' &c., into a copy of what was virtually an official List would scarcely have been made without some reason that at the time appeared both adequate and satisfactory to the compiler of the [Dublin] List."

But with all due respect to Bro. Lane, the Dublin List was not an official List; the compiler was appointed by nobody to make the said Lodge List, and we do not even know about his character or by what name he was called; and, on the other hand, Bro. Smith must have acquired his information either from a previously printed List, or from the Grand Secretary of England direct; hence, if even no other evidence existed, I think that the evidence derived from Bro. Smith's own Lodge List, that No. 79 was erased in 1735, is certainly preferable to the evidence furnished by a nameless Dublin individual. And now for the evidence about No. 79, obtainable both direct and indirect.

First, No. 79 was in 1731 located at the Castle, in Highgate. Second, it paid to the Grand Lodge of England £2 2s for its charter. And third, the names of the Officers and members of No. 79 were placed on a Record in 1732, which Record I saw myself. So much for direct evidence that No. 79 was a London Lodge in 1732. And now for indirect evidence that No. 79 was never sent to Philadelphia.

First, it seems that no official Lodge List was printed in London either in 1730, 1731, 1732, or 1733. Hence Dr. Rawlinson took the trouble during the summer of 1733 to compile a List of Lodges for his own use. This he could not have done without consulting the Grand Secretary. The Lodges in the said list are brought down to No. 116, and in the said List No. 79 is followed by a blank.

Second, in 1734 Bro. Pine published an official engraved Lodge List. The last Lodge on the said list is No. 128, and its date is 5th November 1734, and in the said official List No. 79 is also blank.

Third, as already stated, Smith's own Lodge List of 1735 (but really of 1734) agrees with the other compilers of Lodge Lists, that No. 79 was erased. Thus no one in London during the year 1734, or to very near its close, seems to have had the least idea that No. 79 was ever sent to Philadelphia. And now let us see whether any one in Philadelphia knew that Lodge No. 79 was located there?

I have already referred to the origin of Masonry in Philadelphia in 1731. Now Benjamin Franklin was Masonized there in 1731. In 1733 he visited Boston, where he met with Henry Price, and where he probably saw Anderson's Constitutions of 1723, from which he learned that he was after all a mere bogus Mason. Price then claimed to be Grand Master of New England only, and had no jurisdiction over Pennsylvania. In 1734 Franklin was elected so-called Grand Master in Philadelphia. In 1734 he republished Anderson's Constitutions, and Price acted as Franklin's agent for the sale of the said Constitutions, and letters were evidently exchanged between them. But while Franklin was pondering in his mind as to how he could get his Lodge legalised, something was brooding in Philadelphia, and he saw something in a Boston paper, which caused him to write an official letter to Henry Price, and on the same sheet he wrote a private letter, giving further explanation. In the official letter Franklin wrote as follows:—

"We have seen in the Boston prints an article of news from London, importing that at a Grand Lodge held there in August last, Mr. Price's Deputation and power was extended over all America. . . . . We think it our duty to lay before your Lodge what we apprehend needful to be done for us in order to promote and strengthen the interest of Masonry in this Province, which seems to want some sanction of some authority derived from home to give the proceedings and determinations of this Lodge due weight, to wit, a Deputation or Charter granted by the Right Worshipful Mr. Price," &c.

In the private letter Franklin said:—

"I beg leave to recommend their [the Philadelphian brethren's] request to you, and to inform you that some false and rebel brethren, who are foreigners, being about to set up a distinct Lodge in opposition to the old and true brethren here, pretending to make Masons for a bowl of punch, and the Craft is to come into discsteem among us unless the true brethren are countenanced and distinguished by some special authority as herein desired. I entreat, therefore, that whatever you shall think proper to do therein, may be sent by the next post, or the next following."

Now, any one who can understand the English language must admit—First, that up to 28th November 1734 (the date when the above letters were written) the Philadelphia Lodge had never received any authority from any one; and second, as Franklin mentions in his letters his own Lodge and a rebel Lodge, he must therefore have known nothing about Lodge No. 79, at the Hoop, in Water Street, Philadelphia. It is indeed not impossible that the "rebel Lodge" may have held its meetings at the Hoop, in Water Street, but can any one believe that the said rebel Lodge was No. 79?

To the above I must add that on the 24th of February 1735 the Master and Wardens of No. 79 attended the Grand Lodge of England. And Picard's engraved Lodge List, which terminates with No. 129, showing that it was printed after Pine's 1734 List, but it must also have been issued before 11th June 1735. Well, on Picard's Lodge List, above "79," is engraved "Little St. Martin's Lane," and above that is engraved two angelic figures holding up a crown, and, in a Lodge List of 1736, I find that No. 79 was located at the "Two Angels and Crown, Little St. Martin's Lane."

Taking, therefore, all these facts into consideration, I must come to the conclusion that the Dublin reprinter of Smith's Pocket Companion was, like many other Masonic scribblers, a mere blunderer. The truth is, Philadelphia had no legal Masonry before 10th July 1749, when Thomas Oxnard, of Boston, who was Grand Master of North America, made Benjamin Franklin Grand Master of Pennsylvania. Such being the case it must be mere cheeky assumption for any one to call Philadelphia "Mother of Legal Masonry in America," or to claim precedence or priority in behalf of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania over the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts.

BOSTON, U.S., 15th November 1889.

THE ANCIENT GUILD OF BHISTIS.

DOES any one know that a fraternity exists in India under vows of brotherly love, secrecy and universal benevolence, savouring much of Freemasonry, quite entitled to the above designation?

It must have been remarked by all who live in India that the bhisti or water-carrier everywhere is distinguished by a coarse red cloth tied round his waist. His capacity, however, is so humble that I do not think many have troubled themselves to ascertain anything about his business or antecedents. After a life-long residence in India the writer, though always much interested in the manners and customs of the people, has only just discovered that this red cloth, besides its utility as a protection against wet, is the sacred insignia of a very large and liberal fraternity, inhabiting the whole of India, and willing to accept within what they consider a holy brotherhood all classes of people that will take the vows of their humble guild and credit its traditions.

The subject in this very illiberal and bigoted country, and at the present time when the insociability of the different classes of the inhabitants is on the tapis, is one that should be of special interest, as illustrating the possibility of combination in India without regard to creed, and particularly to Freemasons, who, I believe, have already traced a Craft in some respects similar to their own existing in Afghanistan.

The burden of a very old English song is—

> "And I hope that his soul in heaven may dwell,
> The first who found out the leather bottell," and I suspect that the use of skin and leather bags as receptables for liquids may be traced to the most primitive times with all people. I remark this, as it leads me to believe that the mussuk or leather bag of the bhisti was known in India, as leather bags for irrigation and huge raw hide bottles for keeping ghi certainly were, long before the advent of the Mahomedans, and that the guild has a Hindu and far more ancient origin than the rather prejudiced brotherhood of the present day, chiefly Mahomedans, assigns to it.

The bhisti of the present day says that he is a follower of the great Khwaja Khidir, a prophet now in heaven, placed in special charge over all the waters of the earth, and that his apron is the archetype of the red cloth now worn round the loins by bhistis generally. Who this gentleman was historically I leave to those to discover who have more leisure than myself. It may be useful to note that there is a place in Calcutta called Kidderpore. Certain it is that the investiture of the longi or apron is a ceremony carried out in the presence of a meeting of the brotherhood and after the aspirant has been tutored by a guru or preceptor in the mystic observances and identifying questions and answers of the Craft and has taken vows. One of these vows I know to be never to refuse a drink of water to any soul that asks for it, never to demand payment but to beg it if in need, and not to press if refused; never to refuse a drink to the thirsty, even if giving it results in inconvenience to yourself, as for example when going a distance with a full waterbag, for opening it and giving out only a small portion of the contents would have the effect of making the water shake, which is unpleasant to the carrier. Another vow is always to help a brother of the apron when in distress, assist his family should he die, and start his boys in life with the implements of the profession.

When a member of the fraternity meets a person he does not know, with a longi round his waist and carrying water, he proceeds to put to him certain questions, the answers of which are known only to the initiated, and are secrets never yet divulged to others. Some of these questions are:—How many mouths has a well? How many mouths has a mussuk? How many straps in a mussuk get wet and how many remain dry? and the like. If the man displays ignorance he is reported to the brotherhood as one carrying on the profession out of the pale of the fraternity, and is promptly obliged to select a preceptor and get properly instructed and initiated. Caste and creed have nothing to do with the matter. Hindu bhistis who wear the longi sit in panchayat with Mahomedans, and, as far as I can see, there is nothing to prevent Christians joining the brotherhood.

A master-bhisti is recognised by his proficiency in leather work and leather decoration. One is spoken of as being to make leather hookah bottoms of such strength that they recover their shape after a heavily-laden cart has gone over them.

Bhistis never hesitate to take service in any part of India, and you rarely meet an old bhisti who has not travelled, and who does not, when applying for a place, talk of having gone with Mr. Thompson to Assam, and with some one else to Peshawar, and to a dozen other opposite points of India. The reason is that they know they will find, like Freemasons, a protecting brotherhood everywhere. They are less liable, I understand, than any other Native camp-follower to shirk the battle-field; and their neutrality, evinced in the moral obligation to give drink to friend or foe being recognised by all, secures them an immunity from hostile interference that would not, I am afraid, be accorded to a Sister of Mercy. The quickness and ease with which bhistis organise a strike must have been often remarked, particularly in hill stations.

With regard to the strap and hook worn over the shoulder by the bhisti for suspending the bucket while filling his bag and the leather belt worn over the apron, I believe their adoption is not enforced by the brotherhood; but as the alternative in the absence of the hook is to suspend the bucket by holding the rope with the teeth, Hindus, who are very particular about contamination, refuse to drink water from those who do not wear it. I have not had an opportunity of analysing the cause of objection by the Hindus in the Punjab to drink from bhistis who do not wear a leather belt over their aprons.

A bhisti who, by some extraordinary good fortune, sat on the throne of Delhi for a few days, is said to have issued a leather currency: a leather disc with a gold pin riveted in the centre, worth about Rs. 2-8. I have never seen a specimen myself, but have heard of the existence of the coin; and if my memory does not deceive me, Thomas says something about it in his Chronicles of the Pathan Kings. The motto of every true bhisti should be, "There is nothing like leather." I feel sure that similar associations will be found to exist in many other Indian trades and professions.—Allen's Indian Mail.

Sir Henry Morland, Scottish Grand Master, presided on Monday, the 3rd inst., at the largest Masonic gathering ever held in Bombay, the occasion being the presentation to the Duke of Connaught of the patent of his nomination as Honorary Past Grand Master of Scottish Freemasons in India. Five hundred European, Parsee, Mohammedan, and Hindoo brethren, from all parts, attended the Lodge. A grand banquet, at which covers were laid for 300 persons, was afterwards given. The entertainment was altogether a very brilliant and successful one.

Bro. W. J. Terrill S.W. has been unanimously elected W.M., and Bro. Thomas Gill re-elected Treasurer, for the Three Grand Principles Lodge, No. 967.

The annual festival of the Madoc Lodge, No. 1509, was celebrated at Portmadoc on the 4th inst., when Brother J. E. Greaves (Lord Lieutenant of Carnarvonshire) was installed W.M. The ceremony of installation was impressively performed by Bro. Dr. W. Jones-Morris.

PROV. G. LODGE OF THE ISLE OF MAN.

BY command of the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master (Bro. John Senhouse Goldie-Taubman, J.P., Speaker of the House of Keys) the annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Loch Parade, Douglas, on Thursday, the 21st ult., at five o'clock. The Provincial Grand Officers occupied the Lodge Room of the Athole Lodge, and were received in the Lodge Room of the Tynwald Lodge, where the members of the various Lodges of the Island, who were not Provincial Grand Officers, had assembled. Provincial Grand Lodge was immediately opened, Bro. J. A. Brown Deputy Proxincial Grand Master presiding, in the absence of the Provincial Grand Master, who, in consequence of a domestic affliction, is at present off the Island. All the Lodges in the Island were represented, and the minutes of the Provincial Grand Lodge, held on the 28th November 1888, having been confirmed, several letters of apology were read from brethren who were unable to be present. The reports of the General Purposes and Charity Committees were also submitted and approved. From these it appeared the Island had twice been honoured during the past year by the Provincial Grand Master presiding over the meeting of the Grand Lodge at Freemasons' Hall, London, in the absence of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. It was also reported that B. G. Wood, one of the sons of the late Dr. Wood, an esteemed member of the Order, has been elected to the Boys' Masonic School out of a large number of candidates. During the subsequent proceedings hearty votes of thanks were accorded to Brothers W. Goodacre Provincial Grand Secretary West Lancashire, and T. H. Nesbitt P.G. Secretary Isle of Man, to whose exertions the election of this candidate was mainly due. The Prov. Grand Secretary than read an elaborate and exhaustive report of the proceedings and work of Freemasonry during the past year; giving an analysis of the work and financial position of each Lodge on the Island. The report was received with marked attention; and the Prov. Grand Secretary was warmly applauded as he resumed his seat. Bro. the Rev. E. Ferrier Prov. Grand Chaplain proposed that a vote of thanks be accorded to the Provincial Grand Secretary for the excellent report that he had prepared. Personally, he had some knowledge of the difficulty experienced in drafting such reports; therefore he had all the more pleasure in proposing the motion. Bro. G. C. Heron Past Grand Standard Bearer England cordially seconded the motion, which was supported by Bro. S. Webb P.G.S.W., and heartily adopted. The Provincial Grand Secretary having returned thanks, it was announced that the Benevolent Fund of the Province had increased to a most gratifying amount during the year. The election of Provincial Grand Treasurer was then proceeded with, and Brother Alexander Bruce was unanimously re-elected. The Deputy Provincial Grand Master then proceeded to invest the Officers, Bro. R. Swinnerton most efficiently acting as the Director of Ceremonies. We append a list of the Officers:

ST. MICHAEL'S LODGE, No. 211.

AT the meeting on Tuesday last the Lodge was presided over by the W.M. (Bro. Hy. Lindfield), who was supported by Bros. H. Nash S.W., Alfred Green P.M. (Treasurer) as S.W., W. Radcliffe P.M. Secretary, Orlton Cooper S.D., W. Kirkland J.D., Dyer I.G., Banks Tyler. There were also present P.M.'s Hentsch, Usher Bach, W. W. Morgan. Visitors—Brothers J. G. Yolland P.M. P.P.G.S.B. Herts, E. P. Delavante, &c. After preliminaries, the ballot was taken for Mr. Frederick Charles Hale, a candidate for initiation, who was proposed by Bro. Percy Burr Steward, and seconded by the Secretary. The announcement was then formally made of the death of the Father of the Lodge, Bro. John Laver P.M., and a vote of condolence was ordered to be sent to the deceased's widow and family. Bro. Arthur Bingley Spawforth was passed to the degree of Fellow Craft, while the candidate named above, for whom the ballot had been unanimous, was regularly initiated into the mysteries of the Craft, the W.M. conducting both ceremonies. After routine work Lodge was closed, and the brethren partook of refreshment, and spent a social hour together.

GOOD FELLOWSHIP LODGE, No. 276.

THE annual meeting was held in the Board-room of the Corn Exchange, at Chelmsford, on Thursday, the 5th inst., and was rendered specially interesting as being the Centenary of the Lodge. In the absence of the W.M. (Bro. Langham) through illness, the chair was taken by Bro. Wilson Metcalfe P.M. Among the visitors present were Bros. Fred. A. Philbrick, Q.C., G. Registrar D.P.G.M., Thomas J. Ralling P.G.A.D.C. England P.G. Secretary Essex, Joseph Sadler P.G. Treasurer, T. Winter Parker W.M. 650, F. G. Green P.M. and Secretary 1024 P.P.G.S.W., A. Welch P.M. 51 P.P.G.J.W., W. Christy P.M., F. J. Nunn S.W. 2063, Fred. Horsman W.M. 51, Jno. Taylor jun. P.M. 1817 P.P.G. Standard Bearer, &c. The principal business of the evening was the installation of the W.M. elect (Bro. T. R. Jarvis S.W.), which ceremony was ably performed by the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, assisted by Bro. A. Welch P.M. P.P.G.J.W., to both of which brethren the hearty thanks of the Lodge were returned for their services. The Officers for the year were appointed and invested, as follows:—Bros. Charles Williams S.W., F. H. Meggy J.W., Rev. F. B. Shepherd Chaplain, Arthur Mead Treasurer, W. A. Kyle S.D., J. C. Smith J.D., J. P. Lewin Secretary, Andrew Durrant D.C., H. W. Tanner I.G., E. W. Holland and A. J. Pitts Stewards, T. S. Sarel Tyler. The W.M. drew attention to the fact that this was the Centenary of the Lodge, a fact of which they were all proud, and proposed that steps be immediately taken to obtain a warrant empowering the members to wear the Centenary jewel. This was seconded by Bro. Dr. Shedd, and carried with great heartiness. The W.M. having been elected to represent the Lodge on the Provincial Charity Committee, the proceedings closed. Between 40 and 50 brethren subsequently dined together at the White Hart Hotel, a splendid dinner being well served by the host, Bro. Hipkin. The new W.M. presided, and was supported by the brethren whose names are given above. The Deputy Provincial Grand Master, in responding for the toast of his health, referred to the interesting fact of the day being the Centenary of the Lodge. A hundred years, he said, slipped very glibly from the tongue, but they must recollect it meant that several generations had passed away since Freemasonry was established in the town of Chelmsford. It was gratifying to find that the Lodge established 100 years ago was still flourishing, and he took it to be an earnest of the confidence which, as an old P.M. he felt in its future, that Bro. Goodchild had not only some time ago introduced his son, but to-day had introduced his son-in-law also. Later in the evening the subject of the Centenary was referred to by the W.M., who stated that he had the Deputy Provincial Grand Master's assurance that not only would he do all he could to forward their application for a Centenary Warrant, but also should be pleased to, when the document was ready, attend a meeting, and present in the Lodge the first jewels to its members.

EARL OF CARNARVON LODGE, No. 1642.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge was held on Thursday, the 14th ult., at the Ladbrooke Hall, Notting Hill, when Brother John Woodmason P.M. P.P.G.D. opened the Lodge for the last time during his year of office as W.M. The main feature of the evening's business was of course the installation of Bro. Reuben C. Green W.M. elect. This ceremony was performed by Bro. Parkhouse Treasurer, and Bro. G. Davis P.M. the Preceptor of the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge of Instruction, and it is needless to add that the working was all that could be desired. The W.M. was well supported by his Officers, and among the visitors were Bros. Robert T. Cooper 130, W. J. Mason W.M. elect 2246, Richard S. Sly P.M. 1653, F. L. Chandler P.M. 1567, W. Middleweek J.W. 1793, J. H. Pearson P.M. 1567, W. C. Williams P.M. P.P.G. Standard Bearer, N. Moss P.M. 184, William Mote 1206 P.P.G.S.W. Kent, Geo. Inglish 901, J. Turner 1767, J. P. Pearson 1196, Philip Monson P.M. 1194, J. H. Hayden 901, J. R. Crook 733, Fredk. Binckes P.M. Grand Stewards Lodge P.G.S.B., E. Connell 1512, G. Wilson Watts P.M. 194, and Edmund Routledge P.M. 1635. After the banquet which followed the Lodge meeting, a long list of toasts was proposed from the cross table, where Bro. Green, the new W.M. proved himself to be as efficient a host as he is a Mason. The toast the Queen and the Craft was of course disposed of in a few words, the Master merely saying that though they were members of a secret society they had as a first principle loyalty to the Queen, her crown, and dignity. The toast was enthusiastically received, and was followed by the National Anthem. The toast H.R.H. the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M., was also disposed of in a few words, and was likewise duly honoured by the brethren. The next was a special toast, the Earl of Carnarvon, always a separate toast in this Lodge, because, as the Master said, they had been authorised by his lordship to bear his name and arms, a privilege for which they had always been grateful since the foundation of the Lodge, in 1876; visitors would therefore understand why they made that a separate toast. In proposing the toast of the Earl of Lathom and the rest of the Grand Officers, the W.M. said that, as a young Mason, he was not prepared to criticise those eminent Masons. He knew, as they all did, that the Grand Officers did excellent work, and seeing those who were present to represent the Grand Lodge, they could do no less than drink to their very good health. They were fortunate on that occasion in the presence of Bros. Cama, Binckes, and Rogers. Bros. Cama and Rogers were members of the Carnarvon Lodge, and the worthy Bro. Binckes, he was proud to say, was a somewhat frequent visitor. In proposing this toast he associated with it the names of those three brethren. Bro. Rogers said he was very proud to respond to the toast in the character of one of the present Grand Officers, who, he hoped, had the entire confidence of the Craft. He was especially proud to return thanks for the Grand Officers in that Lodge because it was the Lodge in which he had been initiated. Bro. Cama also responded. Bro. Woodmason I.P.M. proposed the health of the W.M., and in reply Bro. Green said he thanked the brethren for having drunk the toast, because he believed that they not only drank to the office he held, but drank to the man himself. He had to thank them for their cordiality, but their numbers prevented him thanking them as he should like to do. The kindness that had been shown to him, and to one nearest and dearest to him, who had now retired from work, had stimulated him (the W.M.) to work up to the office which he now held, but he was afraid that the very high standard of work which had been set up in that Lodge would make his task a hard one. He hoped, however, that he should be able to preserve the kind of work they had set up in the Lodge. He would leave it to them to judge him when his year of office was over. He knew that they would extend to him the right hand of fellowship, and it was in reliance upon their support that he said he believed he should be able to get through his year of office to their satisfaction. He would say no more now, as they had so many visitors, but he thanked them from the bottom of his heart for the way in which they had received the toast of his health. Bro. Green then proceeded to say that he had a duty cast upon him which he would now attempt to execute with a great deal of pleasure. It was to introduce to them two joining members to the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge, who had been elected, in the course of the evening previous to his installation. They were Bro. Capt. James and Bro. Edmund Routledge. Those brethren were well known, and they were all very glad that they had become members of the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge. Bro. Capt. James said he rose with very mixed feelings to return thanks for the honour and kindness displayed to him and Bro. Routledge. He had been extremely struck with the way in which the W.M. (the worthy son of a worthy father) invested his Officers for the next year. Some little reference had been made to the fact that Bro. Routledge and he were sitting side by side on that occasion, in allusion he presumed, to the fact that their seats—if they got them—in another place would be cast on different sides. Brethren might be satisfied that Bro. Routledge and he would be united in this—that differences of opinion should never alter friendship. Bro. Routledge, in responding, said that he was present on Monday at a very extraordinary entertainment, in which two circuses were going on at the same time, and it occurred to him whether it would not have been better if his brother joining member had been able to perform in one circle while he (Bro. Routledge) performed in another. He spoke simply on his own account, as he should be the last man to say that his (Bro. James's) entertainment should be shortened in the least degree. Before he was a member he had had the pleasure of partaking of the boundless hospitality of the Lodge, and now that he was a member he hoped he should remain one for many years to come. He was gratified to think that he was the invited guest of their Worshipful Chairman, a brother for whom he had the greatest esteem, and whose respected father he had had the pleasure of knowing for a great many years. There was only one other he had been connected with longer—Bro. Pierson—on whose authority he was informed that he had been intimate with him for 52 years. He regretted to say these were the last dying notes of the swan, for he could never again address them as a visitor, and he could not think that he should ever rise to such a position as would enable him to address them in another capacity. The brethren had probably seen in the Barnum show two marvellous freaks of nature, the Siamese twins. Whether or not the brethren agreed with him that Bro. James and himself adequately carried out the functions of the other twins it was not for him to say; but Bro. James never left him. The W.M. then briefly proposed Success to the Masonic Charities, coupling the toast with the name of Bro. Fredk. Binckes, Secretary of the Boys' School. Bro. Binckes, in reply, said that it was now some five or six years since he was at that Lodge on a similar occasion, and he thanked them for the continued and continuous support rendered to the various Masonic Institutions by the Carnarvon Lodge. He did not know that he could single out any Lodge that had done more than the Carnarvon. Their Master said that he would make his remarks as brief as possible, and he (Bro. Binckes) was sure that no words of his were needed. All that he had to do was to return his very sincere thanks for the Institution with which he was still associated for the support which had been afforded it by the Carnarvon Lodge, and he need hardly say that whatever might be his destiny or his fate he trusted that the efforts of Bro. Woodmason might be as liberally supported in the present as the efforts of others had been in the past. He did not want to make any sensational observations, but with regard to the Masonic Institutions, the time lately had not flowed as quietly as usual. There was a fierce light that during the last two or three years had beaten upon various bodies and various institutions, and he did not know why they should expect that the Masonic Institutions should be an exception. Why the Boys' School had been selected for attack he did not know, but he thought he could say a few words that would show them that after all said and done that Institution was not deserving of the grave censure that had been passed upon it. But he was there as a visitor, and he would be sorry to be tempted to make any observations of a controversial nature. He thought, however, he would not find one dissentient when he said, if faults be found, let those faults be remedied, but do not let them interfere with the flow of charity, which had for its object the maintenance, education, and clothing of four or five hundred of the children of Freemasons. Bro. Binckes added that he was delighted to be there that evening as a not altogether unwelcome guest, and still—however imperfectly he might have discharged his duties—as earnest now as ever he was in the cause of Masonic Charity. Time was a great consoler, and it was also a great avenger, and he hoped as it went on feelings would be toned down and opportunity given for dispassionate judgment. In conclusion, he hoped that the efforts of the brethren of the Carnarvon Lodge in the ensuing year would be directed one and all to do what they could to place the Carnarvon Lodge in 1890 in connection with the Festival of the Boys' School in the same proud position as it had held in the past. Several other toasts were proposed, including the Visitors, which was responded to by Bros. Sly, Dr. Cooper, and Leete; the Treasurer and Secretary, responded to by Bros. Murlis and Parkhouse; the Preceptor, for which Bro. Davis returned thanks; and the Officers of the Lodge, to which the J.W. replied, in the absence of the S.W., who had been obliged to leave before the toast was reached. In proposing the Past Master's health, Bro. Green included the presentation to Bro. Woodmason of a handsome Past Master's jewel, which had been voted to him by the Lodge, and for which Bro. Woodmason, in his reply, made suitable acknowledgment. The intervals between the speeches were enlivened with some pleasant vocal and instrumental music, contributed by Miss Florence Kent, Mr. Walter Turner, Bros. T. W. Heath, W. A. Vincent, and Master Felix Lochner (violin). Bro. Russell Lochner presided at the pianoforte.

EARL OF SUSSEX LODGE No. 2201.

THE brethren of this Lodge held their closing meeting of the year at the Royal Pavilion, on Saturday afternoon, the 30th ult. The Lodge was opened by the W.M. Bro. Richard Clowes. The principal business of the meeting was the initiation of Mr. Gerald W. E. Loder, M.P., Mr. Alfred Scott, and Mr. Chapman Marshall; the ceremony being impressively performed by Bro. Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke. A letter was read from the R.W. the Provincial Grand Master, H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, expressing his deep regret at the death of the late Deputy Provincial Grand Master Bro. Gerard Ford, and also a letter from Mrs. Gerard Ford in graceful acknowledgment of the vote of condolence forwarded her by the Lodge. The Lodge having been closed in due form, the brethren adjourned to the Banqueting Room, where they partook of an elegant banquet, supplied by Bro. D. Mutton, whose catering gave the greatest satisfaction. The W.M. Bro. Richard Clowes presided. The customary Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. The W.M. after proposing the Queen and the Craft and the M.W. the Grand Master H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, gave the toast of the Officers of Grand Lodge Present and Past, to which Bro. Thomas Fenn President of the Board of General Purposes responded. He said the members of Grand Lodge who were present had been especially interested in the ceremony of the afternoon, and that the Earl of Sussex Lodge was honoured by numbering among their brethren both of the Borough Members of Parliament. The W.M. next proposed the R.W. Provincial Grand Master H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught. Sussex Masons, he said, knew the deep interest the Provincial Grand Master took in the Province, and his sympathetic letter, read during the afternoon, testified to his great concern in everything relating to Sussex Freemasonry. They all wished him a speedy return, and were prepared to give him a hearty welcome. The W.M. then gave the W. Provincial Senior Grand Warden in charge Bro. the Right Hon. Sir W. T. Marriott, Q.C., M.P., P.G. Steward, and Officers of Provincial Grand Lodge, Present and Past. He said that the brethren of the Province had full confidence in Bro. Marriott, and felt that while he was in charge the Province was well represented. The Present and Past Provincial Officers were all true and trusty, and fully prepared to carry out any duty entrusted to them. Bro. the Right Hon. Sir W. T. Marriott, on rising to respond, was cordially received. Speaking for himself and the other Provincial Officers, he said they were all prepared to do their duty in their respective high positions. He had been gratified in attending the Lodge that afternoon, and witnessing the initiation of the three new members, and spoke in eulogistic terms of the admirable manner in which Bro. Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke had carried out the ceremony. Bro. T. Billing Prov. Grand Junior Warden also acknowledged the toast. He congratulated the three initiates upon becoming members of such a Lodge as that of the Earl of Sussex. Representations had been made to him of the duties which would devolve upon him if anything happened to Bro. Sir W. T. Marriott. He trusted nothing would happen to him; but, in case of emergency, he and the remaining Officers would do their best. Bro. Crawford J. Pocock also responded. Bro. Sir W. T. Marriott next proposed the Worshipful Master of the Lodge, and spoke in high terms of the zeal and energy which Bro. Clowes displayed in Freemasonry. Bro. Richard Clowes was greeted with hearty and prolonged applause on rising to respond. He thanked Sir W. T. Marriott for the kind terms in which he had proposed the toast, and the brethren for their generous reception of it. He was proud to be the W.M. of such a distinguished Lodge, and trusted always to retain the good wishes of the brethren. As they would not meet again till next year he heartily wished them all a "Merry Christmas," and a "Happy New Year." He then gave what he termed the toast of the evening, the Initiates. He said he regarded their initiates as the coming Officers and Worshipful Masters of the Lodge. The Lodge was proud to receive them. Brother Gerald Loder numbered at least 7132 Brighton friends, all of whom had sent him birthday cards on the 28th of October last, and those who did not agree with his views would wish him "Many happy returns of the day." Bro. Scott recalled the name of an honoured Brother—John Henderson Scott—and if their newly-made brother followed in his footsteps the Lodge would, indeed, be proud of him. Bro. Chapman Marshall, an accomplished musician, would, he said, be able to add to their pleasures. He heartily welcomed the three initiates, and congratulated them upon having been initiated by the Grand Secretary. Bro. Gerald W. E. Loder was warmly applauded on rising to acknowledge the toast. Thanking the brethren for the too flattering manner in which they had received the toast, he said the initiates, and not the Lodge, had been honoured that afternoon. He had attended many ceremonies, but he could sincerely say that none had made such a deep impression upon him as the ceremony of his initiation. He felt grateful that he was able to respond in another capacity from that which he had recently occupied, and that he was not expected to make a set speech. He looked forward with pleasure to his association with Freemasonry, and would work assiduously and earnestly in its promotion. He trusted he would then be able to respond in more eloquent and appropriate terms. Bros. A. Scott and Chapman Marshall also responded. The W.M. proposed the Visitors. Bro. F. West P.G.D. responded, and after thanking the Lodge for enabling him to be present at the afternoon's ceremony and sharing their hospitality, said it would be better for the country at large if Masonic principles were more fully carried out, and that speeches in high places would be more moderate and conciliatory. Bros. Sir Somers Vine, J. Blundell Maple, M.P., and Augustus Harris, also briefly responded. The W.M. gave the Past Master. The Lodge deeply regretted, he said, the loss of their first W.M.—the late Bro. Gerard Ford. Bro. Sir W. T. Marriott was their only Past Master, and while he continued to take an active part in Freemasonry the Earl of Sussex Lodge would flourish. Bro. Sir W. T. Marriott responded. Alluding to the late Bro. Ford's ability and zeal, he said their lamented brother had also time to devote to Freemasonry. He himself had not an abundance of time to spare, but he was as firm a believer as their late brother in the principles of the Craft. They were indeed grand principles, and he would defy the representatives of any religious creed to take exception to either of them. If those principles were not only professed but carried out the work would be much better. The W.M. submitted the Officers of the Lodge, to which Bros. C. W. Hudson and R. Pidcock responded. The Tyler's toast completed the list. During the evening a pleasing selection of vocal music was sustained by Miss Minnie Freeman, Miss Edith Hands, Bro. A. King, and Mr. Martin Barling, the last named taking the place of Bro. J. P. Slingsby Roberts, Organist of the Lodge, who had arranged the programme, but was prevented by illness from being present. The duties of accompanist were admirably carried out by Bro. W. N. Roe.

SAINT LEONARD LODGE, No. 1766.

THE members of this Lodge had a regular "field-day" in Freemasonry last Wednesday, when the brethren assembled at the Town Hall, Shoreditch, for the purpose of witnessing the installation of their new Master for the ensuing year, and to receive and welcome three additional candidates for Masonic privileges. The W.M. Bro. Joseph Cox opened the Lodge soon after four o'clock, and was assisted by Bros. H. J. Thrower S.W., L. A. Harrison J.W., C. F. Barham P.M. Secretary, Louis Stean P.M., G. T. Barr P.M., E. Benjamin P.M., H. G. Gush P.M., J. Funston P.M., F. Matthews I.P.M., S. Smither P.M., and Edward Smith P.P.G.J.W. North Wales. There were also present Bros. W. Beasley S.D., S. Batcheler D.C., R. S. Ricketts Organist, H. Waynforth, J. Tidball, W. Snellgrove, B. Nicholson, F. Meriton, G. Colls, W. Shurmur, W. E. Johnson, W. H. Mills, S. Bertin, L. Levy, H. Levy, J. Mordecai, H. Joseph, F. F. Kaufman, Ungar, R. Jeremy, F. E. Abbott, H. Johnson, J. Barnes, J. James, C. Gamage, J. A. Fagg, S. J. Thrower, W. Blenkinsop, S. Alberts, W. D. Lee, W. H. Toye, Orlton Cooper, &c. The usual business of the Lodge being disposed of, Bro. Louis Stean P.M. proceeded with the installation ceremony. We may here mention that Bro. Stean is eighty years of age, and boasts of having been a Mason for nigh upon sixty years, so may well be considered as one of the fathers of the Craft, and the Saint Leonard Lodge may be congratulated on possessing such an ardent worker. Bro. Henry J. Thrower having signified his assent to the usual conditions, was duly installed in the chair, and was saluted in the three degrees by the brethren. Bro. Geo. T. Barr acted as Director of Ceremonies. The W.M. then appointed and invested the following Officers:—Bro. L. A. Harrison S.W., W. Beasley J.W., J. Cox I.P.M. pro tem Treasurer, C. F. Barham P.M. Secretary, W. Shurmur P.M. S.D., S. C. Kaufman J.D., F. Meriton I.G., S. Batcheler D.C., L. Levy and H. Levy Stewards, R. S. Ricketts Organist, J. Very Tyler. Bro. Joseph Cox was subsequently invested with the Past Master's jewel, for which he expressed his thanks. Mr. Thomas W. D'Aubney, Mr. George Bishop, and Mr. Benjamin Jacobs, having been balloted for and approved, were introduced into the Lodge, and duly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry by the new W.M. The business of the evening having thus come to a satisfactory termination, the Lodge was closed about eight o'clock, and the brethren adjourned to banquet. At the conclusion of the repast the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given, that of the Grand Officers being acknowledged by Bro. Edward Smith Past P.G.J.W. North Wales. Brother J. Cox I.P.M., in submitting the health of the Worshipful Master, said he had many reasons for being pleased that he was permitted to propose that toast. In the first place Bro. Thrower was a personal friend of many years standing, he was engaged in the important duty of bringing up and educating some of the young generation, and he had worked his way up from the ranks through all the stages until at length he found himself in the chair, and thereby had attained the highest honour. He felt assured from the way in which Bro. Thrower had commenced his duties that evening that he would have a prosperous year of office. The W.M. in his reply stated that ten years previous he was occupying one of the chairs on his right (those of the initiates), and he was then told, by perseverance and hard work he might attain the position of Master. Bro. Stean had initiated him into the Lodge, and he was proud at having been installed by him also. It seemed as though Bro. Stean had taken a fresh lease of life, and he fervently trusted that the Lodge might have the benefit of his services for many years to come. He then called upon the brethren to honour him as Installing Master. Bro. Stean in acknowledging the compliment said that he was the first Master of the Lodge, which had now been established for eleven years, and he had done his utmost to keep it in a flourishing state. It had been said that the brethren got tired of the long addresses, but he trusted that every young Mason would uphold the ancient traditions. He was sure that if these innovations continued, universal confusion would ensue, and it was necessary that there should be a standard of excellence in order that the various Lodges might work in harmony. He was initiated in 1830, and had been a preceptor of different Lodges of Instruction for more than twenty-five years, and had ever carried out the ritual in accordance with the old traditions; while he was permitted to work the ceremonies there should be no deviation. This he was sure would be for the benefit of the Craft in general and their Lodge in particular. Other toasts followed, and the company separated at a late hour.

On Christmas Day the usual Sunday service of trains will be run, with the following additions:—The 5·15 a.m. newspaper express from London (Euston) will run to Northampton, Rugby, Birmingham, Nuneaton, Tamworth, Lichfield, Rugeley, Stafford, Shrewsbury, Crewe, Liverpool, Manchester, Warrington, Wigan, Preston, Lancaster, Carnforth, Oxenholme, Kendal, Windermere, Tebay, Penrith, Carlisle, Edinburgh, and Glasgow. The 7·15 a.m. down day Irish mail from Euston to Holyhead, and the 11·30 a.m. up day Irish mail from Holyhead to Euston, will be run on Christmas Day the same as on week days. The down mail will call, if required, at Rhyl, Conway, and Bangor, and the up mail, if required, at Bangor, Conway, Colwyn Bay, Rhyl, and Holywell. The 11·17 a.m., Chester to Birkenhead, will wait at Chester the arrival of the 7·15 a.m. from London. On Thursday (Bank Holiday), 26th December, numerous residential trains in the neighbourhood of important cities and towns will not be run.

NEW MUSIC.

All Music intended for review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, Belvidere Works, Hermes Hill, Pentonville, London, N.

—:o:—

"All in the wild March Morning." Song. Written by William Twamley, composed by C. F. Horan.

"Stories." Song. Written by Mary Mark-Lemon, composed by A. H. Behrend.

"The Albert Victor Waltz." Composed by Felix Burns.

"Un Chant D'Amour Valse." Composed by Felix Burns.

"May Queen." Country Dance. Composed by Felix Burns.

London: PATEY AND WILLIS, 44 Great Marlborough Street, W.

WE have received a capital selection of music from Messrs. Patey and Willis, got up in a careful style. "All in the wild March Morning" is a good, spirited and attractive song, written by William Twamley and composed by C. F. Horan. The words are interesting, while the melody is tuneful. Mary Mark-Lemon and A. H. Behrend's song "Stories" is, we feel sure, destined to become one of the attractions of the season. Good words, set to a most attractive and melodious refrain, make up a really charming composition. The compilers of ball programmes have also had their wants looked after. "The Albert Victor" is a capital waltz, easy to play, and a good one to dance to. "Un Chant D'Amour" is another spirited piece, with a catchy and melodious refrain. Both these waltzes have been composed by Felix Burns, as also has "The May Queen," a country dance for the pianoforte, which is a piece admirably suited for the drawing-room; the music is not difficult, yet tuneful, and will become popular. We recommend all these pieces to the notice of our readers.

THE THEATRES, &c.

—:o—

Kilburn Town Hall.—On Tuesday last a dramatic recital took place, which deserves special notice from the fact that Miss Ethel Davies, who gave it, showed quite exceptional elocutionary and dramatic powers, which augur well for her future should she be persuaded to devote that future to art. Her recitations included the whole range from comedy to tragedy, and it says a great deal for her powers that only in the case of the somewhat hackneyed "Charge of the Light Brigade" were we disappointed. Her recitation entitled "A Lawn Tennysonian Idyll" was particularly effective. Among those who assisted were Mr. Lawrence Kellie, who sang with feeling the well known song, of which he is the composer, "Douglas Gordon," and Miss Hope Temple, who gave an effective rendering of the song "Because I love thee." Miss Hope Temple, whose pupil Miss Davies is, must have been gratified at the success of the evening's entertainment.

A recent number of the Melbourne Age contains the following letter:—

THE ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH AND FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor.

SIR,—Referring to the above subject and the controversy it has evoked in your columns, I should like to correct your last correspondent, "Grand Chaplain," on a matter of history. First of all, though, let me explain that I have been for a number of years a subscribing member to one or more Lodges in different parts of the world, and that, like many active Masons, I have long been in the habit of treating the misrepresentations and falsehoods fulminated against the Order by the Roman Catholic Church with the supreme contempt and indifference they merit. In other words, if it pleases the clerics of that church to vilify and misrepresent an honourable, a loyal, and a philanthropic Institution, they are welcome to the pleasure it affords them; but it does not harm Freemasonry in the least. I am therefore not about to combat the Rev. Father Cahill's statements; but, as I have said, desire to point out an inaccuracy on the part of "Grand Chaplain." His reference to Sir Christopher Wren and the supposed connection of that great architect with the Freemasons is entirely erroneous. It has never been proved that Sir Christopher was a member of our body; indeed, there is no official document or authoritative record existing in support of a statement that appears to have had its origin in the imagination of an enthusiastic and not over careful writer of the last century. Elias "Ashworth" should also be printed Ashmole.

Yours, &c.

FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE

SATURDAY, 14TH DECEMBER 1889.

HAMPSHIRE AND I. OF W. EDUCATIONAL AND BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

ON Tuesday, the 3rd instant, the Festival of the Hampshire and Isle of Wight Masonic Educational and Benevolent Institution was held in the Freemasons' Hall, Commercial-road, Landport, under the presidency of the Chairman (the Right Worshipful Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P., Provincial Grand Master of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight). The D.P.G.M. (Bro. J. E. Le Feuvre), the Worshipful the Mayor (Bro. Sir William King), and other well-known members of the Craft were unavoidably absent. The Provincial Grand Master was supported by the Provincial Grand Secretary (Bro. Edgar Goble), the Provincial Grand Treasurer (Bro. John W. Gieve), the Rev. J. N. Palmer (P.G. Chaplain of England), the Provincial Grand Senior Warden (Bro. Major W. Campbell P.M. 257), and the Hon. Secretary of the Institution (Bro. G. F. Lancaster). The company included Bros. Henry Cawte, S. R. Ellis, E. S. Main, W. A. Hill, T. H. Williams, Thomas W. Haydon, J. G. Mason, W. Miller, R. G. Pither, W. H. Sperring, W. J. Townsend, Henry Edwards, H. Simes, E. Godwin, George W. Peel, Fred. Avery, George Backler, W. F. Westerman, Bernard Harfield, Charles Dobson, Francis Orford, Lieut. T. Cowd, F. H. Woodrow, W. Bates, J. Collings, H. W. Smith-Parsons, J. E. Buck, R. Boughton-Smith, Arthur J. Firth, G. F. Brown, Fredk. P. Ansle, &c. An excellent dinner was served under the direction of Mr. Pearce, the steward of the club, a string band, conducted by Bro. T. F. Wilton, played choice selections. Grace before and after the repast was said by the Rev. J. N. Palmer, after which the Provincial Grand Master proposed the Queen and the Craft. Loyalty to the Sovereign of their native land was, he said, a duty incumbent upon all Englishmen, and discharged with the greatest pleasure, because they cherished love towards her person and a devoted attachment to the institution of which she was the head. Freemasons yielded to no section of the community in loyalty and devotion to Her Majesty. The Provincial Grand Master next proposed H.R.H. the Prince of Wales M.W. Grand Master, who had presided over them with such great advantage to their Institution for many years. From the moment that His Royal Highness had acceded to the wish that he should like to be their head, Freemasonry had grown to an almost unexampled extent, and the interest which he had taken in the work of their Order had been of the utmost advantage to and reflected the greatest credit upon it. Looking forward to the time when he must be the head of this Kingdom, though he might not then act as their Grand Master, he was sure that His Royal Highness would not relinquish the love which he bore towards Freemasonry. The Provincial Grand Master submitted the Pro Grand Master (the Earl of Carnarvon), the Deputy Grand Master (the Earl of Lathom), and the Officers of Grand Lodge present and past. The Rev. J. N. Palmer Prov. Grand Chaplain, in responding, said that as a Province they ought to congratulate themselves that they had a man to rule over them who was looked up to in Grand Lodge with such thorough respect and esteem as their Grand Master was. He had often presided at Grand Lodge, and whenever he was called upon his decisions were marked by calmness and prudence, and were universally accepted. Bro. E. Goble, in proposing the R.W. Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P., Prov. Grand Master, Chairman, said that in his capacity as Provincial Grand Secretary he had great opportunities of seeing the work that was done by their Grand Master. From his youth up he had been a Freemason, and ever since he had joined the Craft he had worked hard in the cause. He was initiated in the Apollo Lodge at Oxford, and he had manfully worked himself up from an "entered apprentice." He had done everything that one could for the cause of Freemasonry, and he could look back with a large amount of pride to a few years ago when he sat as Chairman at the Festival of one of their London Charities, and when the largest sum ever gathered into that fund on such an occasion was received. Whenever there was a call upon him they would always find him to the front, and he was there to-night to put before them the cause of the Hampshire and Isle of Wight Educational and Benevolent Institution. He hoped that when they heard their Honorary Secretary speak they would hear of a good sum being gathered for the Institution, which he looked upon as almost absolutely necessary for this Province. The toast was drunk with cheers. The Provincial Grand Master, in responding, said that it had given him very great pleasure to be there that evening. It was quite true, as Bro. Goble had said, that from the time he was initiated into Freemasonry he had taken a great interest in the welfare of the Craft, and one of the first things he undertook after he had been made a Mason was the Stewardship of one of their Masonic Charities. He thought that gave him the first insight into the good the Craft was doing, because he saw the vast benefits that accrued from the cause of education being carried out at one of their great institutions, and he then made an inward resolve to do all he could to support an Order conferring such great advantages. He did not think he had relaxed his efforts in the cause, neither did he think that his ardour was damped in any way, and he had done his duty whether in a low position or the high one which he now filled for the benefit of the Craft. He was quite sure that it was working a great good amongst those children who had no means of supporting themselves, and in a social point of view, because it brought men together and made them friends in the time of need, uniting them in a bond of brotherly love. Freemasonry did not only a great work in their own social gatherings and in their own country, but was a benefit with regard to the relationship of one country with another. He appealed to them to adhere to the ancient rules of the Craft, and not to allow innovations to be introduced which would destroy the essential principles established by their forefathers. Let them adhere to their ancient principles and traditions, and do their best to fulfil them themselves and transmit them to their descendants. He acknowledged the support he had always received as Grand Master of that very large and important Province, and said it was a great gratification to him to come amongst his brethren and receive such a hearty welcome as he had received that evening. The Provincial Grand Master next proposed the Worshipful Brother J. E. LeFeuvre Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and the Officers of Provincial Grand Lodge, present and past. He said that he was sure that Bro. LeFeuvre would have been there if he could have managed it, but unfortunately he was in the North of England. They all knew the interest he took in this Province and also in Grand Lodge. He was for many years Provincial Grand Secretary, and in that very onerous capacity always did good service, and his ability and geniality commended him to all his brother Masons. The Provincial Officers, present and past, always rendered him the most ample assistance in the promotion of Masonry in that Province. He associated with the toast the name of Bro. J. W. Gieve, the Provincial Grand Treasurer, who, he said, had served with great credit to himself, and had given the greatest assistance to Grand Lodge. His office required considerable tact and ability, and he had received from Bro. Gieve the greatest assistance. Bro. Gieve, in responding, said the Provincial Officers all felt bound to support the Grand Master in every possible way that lay in their power. He felt it an honour to work with so able a Mason, who was looked up to not only by the brethren of that Province but throughout England, and more especially by those who were connected with the Grand Lodge. Meeting together to celebrate the second anniversary of that institution he congratulated Bro. Lancaster on its present position. He (Bro. Gieve) had received, with a certain deduction, the legacy of £200 of the late Major Hooper, a Past Warden of the Province, and suggested that it should be invested for the benefit of this institution, and adding that this would be for the brethren to decide at the Provincial meeting to be held in January. The Provincial Grand Master next introduced Success to the Hampshire and Isle of Wight Masonic Educational and Benevolent Institution. He said that but for the inclement weather the attendance would have been much larger, and mentioned that one eminent Mason in that locality had intended to come, but was prevented through being unwell—he referred to Colonel Crease, a Past Master of the Phœnix Lodge. The interest which had been felt in this institution was very great and unexampled. He thought the balance sheet in their hands showed that it had been very successful. There were great Masonic institutions demanding large support from the Craft, which they had received with no unstinted hand from the Province of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight. There was a time when their charities received more support from London than the country, where they were not then sufficiently known. But in time they became better known, they received very great support from the Provinces, and now the great central charities were not only supported by London but very much from the Provinces. There were large Provinces, which, though they gave great support to these charities, could not expect to get their children elected very often. If they got one elected every year or two it was all they could expect. When they had a great number of Lodges in a Province, with a great many brethren, the demands upon the charities became greater than they could bear, and naturally there was some call for fresh institutions which might take up those who could not expect to get into the larger charities. Therefore he thought a very good work was done when, through Bro. Lancaster, this charity was established. In most of these things some one must pull the stroke oar, give an impetus to it and put his shoulder to the wheel, and Bro. Lancaster, with unexampled energy, had instituted and, with the assistance of others, carried out this great work. He thought it reflected great credit upon him and the brethren who had supported him that the institution had borne such good fruit, as there were now no less than six children receiving the benefits of education. He thought the institution well deserved the support of Freemasons in the Province. In smaller Provinces it could not be expected that a local charity should receive sufficient assistance to render it successful. It seemed almost doubtful, even in this Province, whether a charity could be supported, but no doubt it was doing a great and important work in the cause of charity. He should be very loath himself to support it if their central Charities were in consequence to suffer to any extent. But such was not the case, and, on the contrary, they did their utmost to support this institution in harmony and side by side with the great Masonic Charities of the Order. He coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Lancaster, who had done such very good work in starting the institution. Bro. G. F. Lancaster, in reply, said that when he had the pleasure to bring this idea to the front and submit it to a few friends in the room overhead, he had no idea that it would reach such successful results as it had done. He explained why a festival had not been held last year, and read a list of subscriptions, amounting to £449 10s 3d. Although they would have liked to see a large number present, the magnificent total—the result of the exertions of 23 Stewards, two of whom had not yet made their return—was matter for great congratulation. The last toast was the Stewards, proposed by Bro. Goble, and responded to by Bro. E. S. Main, who referred to the fact that in two years the Province had subscribed £1764 to this institution, besides what it had given to the central Charities.

CONSECRATION OF THE BOROUGH OF GREENWICH LODGE, No. 2332.

WE have on previous occasions called attention to the fact that in no district in the kingdom is there more zeal displayed in advancing the best interests of Freemasonry than in the South-eastern part of London. We shall not attempt to account for or explain the charm, the attraction,—or to decide the knotty point whether it is the hope of benefits to be afterwards secured,—that may be the motive that draws so many to our ranks in this particular quarter, but take it as accepted the power must be a potent and a mighty one. Moreover, we are proud to be in a position to record that our brethren thus located are not perfunctory or half-hearted in what they set about. When they undertake the duties of Stewards at each or other of our Festivals, it goes almost without a doubt that their Lists will be substantial ones; if a Masonic Hall is needed, there is but little difficulty in raising the necessary funds, while as for competency as workers the South Easterners can satisfactorily hold their position in the foremost rank. Under all these circumstances, then, it cannot be matter for wonder that the necessity for a new Lodge in the district asserted itself, and Greenwich was selected as the most fitting place for the brethren to meet at. A strong contingent of brethren now combined, and the following constituted themselves a band of Founders:—Bros. A. H. Bateman P.M., W. T. Hunt P.M. 79, C. C. Featherstone, H. T. Grey, J. O. Pearson, J. Harper, A. Morgan, S. W. Phillips, G. P. Carter, T. P. Newton, E. G. Grove P.M., E. Jerrard, J. J. Pitt, J. G. Thomas, Daniel Bear, E. Burale, E. Watkins, E. W. Carpenter, A. H. Oakley, T. D. Hayes P.M., J. W. Boord P.M., W. J. Woodwell, B. R. Banks. The next proceeding was to select one of these to conduct the preliminary negociations, and we venture to say a wise choice was made when our good brother A. H. Bateman P.M. was induced to undertake these duties. In due course the prayer of the Petitioners was granted, and Wednesday, the 11th inst., was fixed for the consecration. The Masonic Rooms, at the William the Fourth, East Greenwich, was made headquarters, and here on the day we have named the brethren assembled at four o'clock. Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke, Grand Secretary, was the Consecrating Officer, and he was assisted by Dr. Ralph Gooding P.G.D. as S.W., Lieut-Col. George Haldane P.G. Sword Bearer as J.W., the Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg P.G.C. as Chaplain, Frank Richardson P.G.D. as D.C., and Col W. Bristowe P.G. Sword Bearer as I.G. Amongst those who were present were:—H. Nuding P.M. 140, A. W. Kemp 1924, W. Rowley P.M. 1924, A. Zimmer Carl G.A.L. Frankfort-on-the-Maine, R. J. Amos 871, J. L. Watts P.M. 158, C. N. Syder I.P.M. 79, Alfred Baigent 1032, C. Newman 1597, W. Wilkinson 1531, G. After the brethren had taken their places no time was lost; Col. Clerke opened the Lodge. After the Hymn "Hail, Eternal," the Consecrating Officer addressed the brethren, and the Chaplain gave the Opening Prayer. The Petition and Warrant were read, and then the Grand Chaplain delivered the following Oration:

BRETHREN,—With all that is great, and good, and useful, whether in the past, present, or future, our Craft has a natural sympathy. You have therefore chosen a most appropriate name for your new Lodge in calling it the "Borough of Greenwich." There are few places in England which are more full of history and interest. Situated as it is on the Water Way to London, and on the earliest English road—the Watling Street, which runs from Dover to York through your Borough, it has always been, from the earliest times, a place of note. The little green village of the Saxons has grown with our country, and has borne its share in making England what it is.

It would be impossible for me in the few minutes at my disposal to attempt even an outline of your history. I will select only a few of those practical works of usefulness, wisdom and mercy, with which your Borough has has had a close connection, feeling sure that these bright memories of the past will stir up your new Lodge to copy and emulate them. And first as to your share in that great work of the past, the Watling Street, first a British track and then a Roman Road. At one time it was probably the only means of communication from one end of the kingdom to the other. In making and maintaining this road, for possibly more than a thousand years, Greenwich has had its share.

Man is socially and intellectually bettered by being brought out of the narrow limit of self and of his own locality into communion with his fellow man, and so that early historic road was one of the means of preventing England continuing separated into many isolated kingdoms; was one of the means of consolidating us into that strong and loyal nation which as yet neither the traitor within or the foe without has been able to rend asunder.

Emulate, my brethren, the example of your ancestors, and in your times do all that lies within your power to preserve and cultivate the fraternal unity of our great Empire.

Created a borough in the year 1557, your town quickly sprang into importance, and for more than one generation Kings and Queens dwelt amongst you, at the Royal Palace of Greenwich, which was partly built by that great operative mason Inigo Jones.

Nor was it merely a pleasure resort for English Royalty. Charles the Second, in 1675, founded your Royal Observatory. It was founded because it was represented to the king that for the want of accurate astronomical observations his pilots and sailors were placed at a disadvantage. He declared at once that English sailors should not want what their king could give them, and so the Observatory, which makes the name of Greenwich known in every part of the habitable world, had its origin.

Is there not here again a spirit truly in accordance with our Craft? England has ever been ready to supply all that was needed for her servants' use. The English nature takes a pride in maintaining for England her proper place—the van of science and civilisation. The Liberal Arts and Sciences are under the special protection of our Order, and I need hardly remind every Craftsman of his duty.

One feature more in your past history. William the Third and his Queen devoted Greenwich Palace to its great object, namely, the relief and support of seamen of the Royal Navy. Our Grand Master Sir Christopher Wren contributing his time, labour and skill without any emolument or reward.

Brethren, here again is a matter for you to imitate. Give, if you can, your money, give any how your time and your skill to the sacred cause of Charity. Remember that true charity does not limit herself to pecuniary help. Do not think that money is the only thing you have to give. Many a good work languishes, not from want of funds, but from want of interest. Much money is thrown away and wasted because it is not accompanied with sympathy. May your Lodge learn how to give liberally, and, moreover, join to all its gifts the golden touch of brotherly love.

The ceremony was then completed in the manner that characterises all the work of our Grand Secretary. Lodge having been resumed, the W.M. designate, Bro. T. W. Boord, M.P., P.M. P.G.D., was introduced and regularly installed as the first Master. The following were appointed and invested as Officers:—Bros. A. H. Bateman P.M. acting I.P.M., Capt. Blakey P.M. P.G.W. Kent S.W., Henry Roberts P.M. J.W., W. T. Hunt P.M. Treasurer, George P. Carter Secretary, A. H. Oakley P.M. S.D., J. G. Thomas P.M. J.D., J. J. Pitt P.M. I.G., A. H. Bateman P.M. D.C., Kipps P.M. Organist, Watkins P.M. Steward, Spinks Tyler. Colonel Clerke delivered the addresses, and on taking his seat a cordial vote of thanks was voted him for his services. In addition, the Consecrating Officer with the brethren who had assisted him throughout the day were made honorary members. The W.M. next made complimentary allusion to the excellent work done by the acting Secretary, Bro. P.M. Bateman, and he was made the recipient of the Founder's jewel of the Lodge. This the brethren had decided to present him with as a slight recognition of the zeal he had displayed in the formation of the Lodge. The jewel is of neat design, and embodies the coat of arms and motto of the first Worshipful Master of the Lodge. In acknowledgment Bro. Bateman modestly referred to the duties he had had cast upon him, and congratulated himself that he had performed them to the satisfaction of his brother founders. Several gifts of "portables" towards the decoration and furnishing of the Lodge were then announced, and we are assured that in this regard the members will be in possession of all they require at no distant date. Brother Bateman contributed the Volume of the Sacred Law. The names of ten candidates for initiation were handed in; a Committee was formed to frame Bye-Laws, and the Lodge was closed. An admirably served banquet followed; Bro. George Burney, mine host of the William the Fourth, having spared no exertions to make this part of the entertainment a success. A full toast list was afterwards gone through, but we were compelled to leave at an early hour; we must therefore content ourselves with an outline of the speeches. The preliminary toasts were loyally honoured. The Rev. J. S. Brownrigg, with his characteristic brevity, replied for the Grand Officers. The health of the W.M. was proposed by Colonel S. H. Clerke; Bro. Boord was an old P.M., and received the collar of Senior Grand Deacon in 1876. He had, however, from a variety of causes not been so active a Mason in recent years as of yore. He was however a most popular man in the Borough of Greenwich, and he (the speaker) ventured to say no more acceptable choice could have been made for the first W.M. of the Borough of Greenwich Lodge. In reply, Bro. Boord thanked the Grand Secretary, and assured the brethren so far as his time would permit he would do all in his power to advance the interests of the Lodge and its members. In replying to the toast of the Consecrating and Installing Master, Colonel Clerke made reference to each of the brethren who had assisted him on this occasion; no better qualified brethren could have been found. The other toasts comprised the Visitors, the Officers, the Charities, &c. The musical arrangements of the day were entrusted to Bro. Kipps P.M., who was assisted by Bros. Schartau, Dalzell, and Hubbard. The furniture and appointments were supplied by Messrs. Spencer and Co.

STORES WITHOUT TICKETS.—The London and Westminster Supply Association in New Bridge-street, Blackfriars, which has been annexed by Messrs. Spiers and Pond to their adjacent stores and provision market in Water-lane, Ludgate, is as completely equipped as any in London. It has also one great additional advantage since no ticket is required, and thus no payment is demanded before dealing with it. As the prices will compare favourably with those of any other stores in the metropolis it is obvious that the London and Westminster offers exceptional advantages to householders.

FUNERALS properly carried out and personally attended in London and Country, by Bro. G. A. HUTTON, 17 Newcastle Street, Strand, W.C. Monuments erected. Valuations made.

The General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys held its monthly meeting at Freemasons' Hall, on Saturday last. Bro. Richard Eve P.G. Treasurer, presided. Amongst others present were, Bros. George Plucknett, G. Everett, C. F. Hogard, G. Corble, W. Masters, J. Glass, Joseph D. Langton, S. Richardson, W. A. Scurrah, F. E. Bennett, William Smith, E. Valeriani, E. de la Coste, C. H. Webb, E. Chamberlain, Stanley J. Attenborough, W. W. Morgan, J. S. Cumberland, Gordon Smith, George Mickley, M.A., M.B., the Rev. R. Morris, M.A., W. Maple, Arthur H. Scurrah, G. P. Britten, A. Durrant, Alfred Lamb, G. R. Langley, G. P. Gillard, J. H. Hawkins, W. M. Stiles, J. Newton, C. D. Mote, E. St. Clair, Andrew Motion, A. J. Dixie, W. H. Saunders, C. Motion, Edwin Storr, and F. Binckes Provincial Grand Sword Bearer (Secretary). The minutes of the previous Committee having been read and verified, those of the Provisional Committee were read for information. On the motion of Bro. Dixie, seconded by Bro. Cumberland, the selection of Rev. H. Hebb as the new Head Master was approved. The report of the Provisional Management Committee, relating to Dr. Morris, stated:—

"The Provisional Management Committee has considered the claim of Dr. Morris against the Institution upon the termination of his services," and "under all the circumstances, the Committee recommends that a sum of £500 be offered to Dr. Morris in settlement of all claims under the agreement and in lieu of notice, and by way of recognition for his services to the Institution, as the Provisional Committee cannot see its way to recommend the granting of a pension to Dr. Morris."

A long and stormy discussion ensued, but general confusion seems to prevail as to what was the result. With respect to Bro. Binckes's retiring allowance, the Provisional Committee say:—

"Having regard to the small majority with which the resolution as to Bro. Binckes's retiring allowance was carried, and the various other circumstances connected therewith, they ask the Court not to proceed further with the resolution granting a pension of £350, and to substitute in place thereof one of £250."

Three petitions were considered, with the result that one was deferred and two accepted, and the names ordered to be placed on the list of candidates for the election in April 1890. Four applications made in respect of grants towards outfit were acceded to. A vote of thanks to the Chairman closed the proceedings.

The December meeting of the Committee of Management of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution was held in Freemasons' Hall on Wednesday. Bro. Dr. Jabez Hogg P.G.D. occupied the chair, and there were present Bros. C. A. Cottebrune, Joseph Freeman, James Brett, Alex. Mullord, David D. Mercer, G. Bolton, W. J. Murlis, J. Newton, J. M. Case, Thomas Cubitt, William Smith, Charles G. Hill, A. H. Tattershall, Charles J. Perceval, Charles Lacey, W. Pierpoint, W. A. Scurrah, John Bulmer, Chas. Daniel, J. L. Mather, Sam. Brooks, H. After confirmation of the minutes, the Secretary reported the death of one male and one widow annuitant and one widow candidate. The Warden's report for the past month was read, and an application from the widow of a recently-deceased candidate for half her late husband's annuity was granted. Eleven petitions (seven men and four widows) were considered; of the male petitions five were accepted, one deferred, and one rejected; while the widows were accepted, the names being ordered to be placed on the list of candidates for the election in May 1890. A vote of thanks to the Chairman concluded the proceedings.

Bro. T. Foley has been elected the Worshipful Master of the Constitutional Lodge, No. 294, for the ensuing year.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Coughs, Influenza.—The soothing properties of these medicaments render them well worthy of trial in all diseases of the lungs. In common colds and influenza the Pills taken internally, and the Ointment rubbed externally, are exceedingly efficacious. When influenza is epidemic this treatment is easiest, safest, and surest. Holloway's Pills and Ointment purify the blood, remove all obstructions to its free circulation through the lungs, relieve the overgorged air tubes, and render respiration free without reducing the strength, irritating the nerves, or depressing the spirits. Such are the ready means of saving suffering when afflicted with colds, coughs, bronchitis, and other complaints by which so many are seriously and permanently afflicted in most countries.

DIARY FOR THE WEEK.

We shall be obliged if the Secretaries of the various Lodges throughout the Kingdom will favour us with a list of their Days of Meetings, &c., as we have decided to insert only those that are verified by the Officers of the several Lodges.

NEW MASONIC HALL IN HULL.

ESTABLISHED but little more than four years ago, the Wilberforce Lodge, No. 2134, has made such rapid strides in membership that the accommodation to be obtained at the present premises in Charlotte-street has been found to be insufficient, and it was determined some months since to seek a new home for the Lodge. It was thought desirable by the brethren not to continue to rent a building for their meetings, but that an endeavour should be made either to erect a Masonic Hall for themselves or to purchase and adapt some building to that purpose. Accordingly the matter was taken in hand, and eventually a large building in St. Luke-street, known as the Baptist Tabernacle, and which was originally built for a temperance-hall, was purchased. The premises, which were copyhold, were made freehold, the purchase money being £750, while the expense of altering the building is estimated at about £400. The work of transforming the place into a Masonic-hall is now being rapidly proceeded with, the architect being Mr. C. Todd. Every inch of room in the building is being utilised, and, when completed, the Wilberforce Lodge will possess a hall which will do credit to the brethren, and suffice for their accommodation for many years to come. The banqueting room is on the ground floor, and is of large dimensions, being capable of seating about 200. A statue of Wilberforce has been presented to the Lodge by Bro. Keyworth, and this will occupy a prominent position in the banqueting-room. The vestibule is tiled. The Lodge-room, which is situate on the first floor, is very capacious, and will present a very handsome appearance when completed. Highly-ornamented Corinthian pillars surround the room, which will be lighted by a powerful sunlight burner, and the ceiling is bracketed and panelled. Around the room is a raised dais, and the seats will be of iron, handsomely upholstered. The kitchen, which contains a large range, supplied by Mr. Turner, of the Market-place, is also on the first floor, and is connected with the banqueting-room by a lift. There are waiting and retiring rooms on each floor, and every convenience for the comfort of the brethren.. The whole of the rooms will be well ventilated and heated by the newest appliances. All the windows throughout the hall are fitted with double casements, and Mr. T. T. Davis has supplied a large lamp to be placed above the entrance to the building. The contractor is Mr. Crowther, Arlington-street; the plumber, glazier, and gasfitter, Mr. George Taylor, Osborne-street; and the painter, Mr. Drury, St. Luke-street. The W.M. of the Lodge, Bro. W. Woodhall, who has been well supported by the brethren, has taken a warm interest in the undertaking, and it is intended that the anniversary of the Lodge and the consecration of its new habitation shall take place on the 29th January next. A warrant for a Royal Arch Chapter, it may be mentioned, has been obtained for the Lodge. The whole of the money for the purchase and alteration of the new building has been raised from among the members of the Lodge by bonds.

At a meeting of the Newcastle-on-Tyne Lodge, No. 24, at the Masonic Hall, Grainger Street, Newcastle, on the 5th inst., Bro. T. W. Alderson S.W. was unanimously elected to the chair of K.S. Bro. Aitchison was elected Treasurer.

The SAFEST and most EFFECTUAL CURE for GOUT, RHEUMATISM, and all PAINS in the HEAD, FACE, and LIMBS.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL from the Rev. F. FARVIS, Baptist Minister.

Mr. G. EADE. March 19, 1887.

Dear Sir,—I have many times felt inclined to inform you of the benefit I have received by taking your Gout and Rheumatic Pills. After suffering for some time from Rheumatics and Sciatica, I was advised to use your Pills. I bought a bottle, and when in severe pain and unable to use the limb affected I took a dose. In a few hours after I felt the pain much better, and after the second dose the pain completely removed and the limb restored to its right use. I thank you, dear sir, for sending forth such a boon for the relief of human suffering.

Yours faithfully,
F. FARVIS,
Baptist Minister.

Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist's Testimonial.

My Dear Doctor,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

Laboratory of Experimental Science.

This is to certify: That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

For a weak stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the liver they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. SEASONABLE GREETINGS.

BEFORE the next issue of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE reaches our subscribers, the Christmas term of Festivities will be in full swing. To one and all our kind friends we tender our best wishes that it may be a period free from anxiety and trouble. May comfort and happiness reign supreme with them and theirs, and may the new year, so soon to be entered upon, be as successful as any they have yet had experience of.

So mote it be.

AUSTRALIAN FREEMASONRY.

THE Craftsmen of the Australian Colonies are to be commended for the enthusiasm they display in matters relating to Freemasonry, which has been particularly active in their midst during the last few years. Independent Grand Lodges have been formed, and influential support has been secured, with results of the most satisfactory character. Recent advices from South Australia give full details of the installation of the Governor of that Colony—the Right Honourable the Earl of Kintore—as Most Wor. Grand Master, in succession to Chief Justice Way, who had occupied the chair of South Australia since its formation, on the 17th April 1884, and had recently resigned his position—as he often promised he would do—so soon as South Australia had, as the Queen's representative, a gentleman who was a member of the Order, and who would accept supreme power among the local Freemasons. We are heartily pleased that our brethren in this distant part of the Empire should have succeeded in enlisting the good offices of so distinguished a personage as the governor of their colony, not only because of the status it gives to Freemasonry, but also because Lord Kintore is known on this side of the world as a staunch and able Craftsman. There is no fear that South Australian Freemasonry will suffer at his hands, and we know enough of our colonial brethren to be sure that their new Grand Master will lose nothing by the part he has taken in connection with Australian Freemasonry—it is really a case of mutual advantage, with perhaps greater benefits likely to accrue to the South Australian Grand Lodge, than it can confer on the illustrious nobleman now at its head. But he is not the brother to make a hard bargain under such conditions, and we can imagine the pleasure with which he has entered upon his new duties in connection with Freemasonry, and the gratification he will feel in discharging them to the best of his ability.

Soon after his arrival in the colony, Lord Kintore was made the subject of a Masonic welcome, and an address "conveying cordial, loyal, and fraternal greetings" was presented to him. Shortly afterwards he signified his desire to connect himself with one of the local Lodges, his choice falling on St. Andrew, No. 19 (formerly No. 555 under the Scotch Constitution), among whose Past Masters he is now enrolled. His election as Grand Master followed immediately after, and with it came an alteration in the Constitution of the Grand Lodge, the office of Pro Grand Master being created. This office has been conferred on the retiring Grand Master, who will, therefore, continue to be practically the working head of the Craft in the Constitution, the members of which will thus retain the valuable services of their first Grand Master.

The Grand Lodge of which Lord Kintore has assumed the head has 37 private Lodges under its dominion, with a roll of 2093 subscribing members, and embraces the entire Craft of South Australia, with the exception of the Leinster Lodge, which still holds allegiance to the Grand Lodge of Ireland. It is expected that next year the Governor of the Colony will assume the position of First Grand Principal of the Supreme Grand Chapter of South Australia, which is now held by his predecessor in the Grand Mastership of the Craft—Chief Justice Way; while it is not too much to expect that some of the outside degrees may secure his lordship's patronage, he having already won high positions in the Ancient and Accepted Rite, besides being a Past Grand Master of English Mark Masonry.

Since the inauguration of the Grand Lodge in South Australia, Masonic differences in New South Wales and Victoria have been peaceably adjusted. Each colony had for many years a local Grand Lodge, but in each case it represented only a minority of the Craft, and was not recognised by the Grand Lodges in the United Kingdom, or the District and Provincial Grand Lodges of the same Constitutions in the colonies. The success of the South Australian movement, however, indicated the mode in which union could be brought about, and the example so set was followed first in New South Wales and afterwards in Victoria. In the former colony a United Grand Lodge was inaugurated on the 16th of August 1888, when his Excellency Lord Carrington was installed as Grand Master, the ceremony being performed by his Honour Chief Justice Way. Early in the present year the United Grand Lodge of Victoria was constituted, and the Hon. Sir William Clarke, Bart., was chosen and installed by Lord Carrington as the first Grand Master. Both of these Grand Lodges, which are junior to that of South Australia, were represented at the installation of Lord Kintore. Lord Carrington and Sir William Clarke played an important part in the proceedings, and they were accompanied by a number of members of their respective Lodges.

The gathering was held at the Town Hall, Adelaide, on the 30th October, the building being admirably suited for the ceremony, and specially decorated for the occasion. It was estimated that considerably over a thousand members of the Order were present, the meeting really being the most numerous and brilliant ever seen in connection with South Australian Freemasonry. The Grand Master (Hon. S. J. Way) and his Officers were regularly saluted on their entrance, and Grand Lodge was opened in ample form, the Grand Chaplain (Bro. the Rev. Canon Poole) giving the prayer.

Next in the order of the proceedings was the reception of the members of other Grand Lodges. The first to be admitted were P.P.G.T. of the Irish Constitution (Bro. his Honour Judge Boucaut), P.P.D.G.M. of the I.C. (Brother Fiveash), and P.D.G.M. of the English Constitution (Bro. A. Hardy). These brethren took their places on the dais to the extreme left of the Grand Master. Next the Grand Master of Victoria, Bro. Sir William Clarke, and his Officers were received, Sir William being seated on the left hand of the Grand Master. The Grand Master of New South Wales, Bro. Lord Carrington, and his Officers were the last to be admitted. His Excellency was accorded the seat of honour to the right of the Grand Master, while on the left was the Grand Chaplain of New South Wales, the Bishop of Bathurst.

The Grand Master said :—

On behalf of the Grand Lodge of South Australia I have to tender a most hearty welcome to the Most Worshipful Grand Masters, Grand Officers, and brethren of the other Constitutions who have honoured us with their presence on this occasion. The presence of the M.W. Grand Master of Victoria is especially welcome to us. He has come a great distance, at considerable inconvenience to himself, for the purpose of taking a part in the interesting ceremonial. I also desire to thank the M.W. Grand Master of New South Wales most cordially for his attendance. This is not the first occasion on which the Grand Lodge of South Australia has been honoured by the presence of Bro. His Excellency Lord Carrington. He has travelled 1200 miles to be again of great service to South Australian Masonry, and therefore we should be exceedingly ungrateful if we did not accord him a hearty welcome to this Grand Lodge. M.W. Grand Sir, I ask you to honour us by presiding on this occasion, as Installing Master, to induct into his office our M.W. Grand Master elect, Brother His Excellency the Earl of Kintore.

In response to this invitation, the M.W. Grand Master of New South Wales, Lord Carrington, took the chair, and at his request the Grand Secretary read the certificate of the election of his Excellency the Earl of Kintore as Grand Master, and the commission authorising the Grand Master of New South Wales to instal him. At the conclusion of this formal proceeding, his Excellency the Governor was announced, and, the brethren upstanding, was escorted to his seat. During the reception, a grand march was rendered by the organist and orchestra, with vocal accompaniment by the choir.

MASONS' OPINIONS ON THE BIBLE QUESTION.

By Bro. Jacob Norton.

THE 25th of February 1888 number of this paper has an article of mine about an attempt made in Illinois to expel a brother from Masonry on account of his disbelief in the Bible, with Bro. Robbins' report against the said attempt. Bro. Robbins' report stirred up the ire of some zealots, and to judge from their writings in their reports in 1888 and 1889, one would suppose that Bro. Robbins was the first Mason who maintained that belief in the Bible was not essential to Masonry. In order, therefore, to disabuse the minds of those who may have been misled, I shall give all the extracts collected by Bro. Chase, of Massachusetts, in his "Digest of Masonic Law," touching the question at issue, which will show that even what I may call in the dark ages of Masonry, as far as knowledge of history is concerned, for some reason or other prominent Masons maintained the same views on the Bible question as Bro. Robbins does to-day, and if Bro. Robbins is a Masonic sinner he is not the first Masonic sinner in that direction. And now for the extracts :—

1st. "According to what is generally received as 'Ancient Masonry,' a candidate must be 'a good and true, or man of honour and honesty,' and before his initiation must acknowledge his trust in God (an Atheist cannot be made a Mason). In our opinion any further religious test is not necessary, and to require that a candidate profess in a belief in the divine authenticity of the Bible, or a state of future reward and punishment, is a serious innovation in the very body of Masonry."*

"We now hold as our forefathers held, and as we hope our posterity to hold, that from the votaries of Masonry is expected and required a sincere belief in the existence of a God, the Creator and Governor of the world; and that beyond this great principle of faith, it is not lawful to impose any religious test as a requisite for admission to our mysteries."

(Committee of Foreign Correspondence of Virginia 1848, which was endorsed by the C. of F.C. of New Hampshire in 1849.)

2nd. "It is anti-Masonic to require a religious test, other than the candidate should believe in a God, the Creator and Governor of the Universe. (Resolution of the G.L. of Alabama, 1848.)

3rd. "We can find no reason for interdicting any otherwise worthy applicant who firmly believes in the existence of a Supreme Being; nor can we allow any right to interrogate him further as to his religious belief.

(Hubbard. C.F.C. of New Hampshire, 1857. And the above opinion was endorsed by Bro. O'Sullivan G. Sec. and Sec. of F.C. of Missouri, in 1858.)

4th. "The Grand Lodge of Vermont condemns as un-Masonic the introduction of any test of a sectarian character. The only faith required of a candidate is a belief and trust in God; without this no obligation would be binding on him. (Haswell, C.F.C., 1849.)

5th. "Resolved that in the opinion of this Grand Lodge, the exclusion of any class of men from the privileges of Masonry who believe in the existence and moral government of the Supreme Being, evinces a spirit adverse to the genius of our institution, and that it is an assumption of power not sanctioned by the ancient usages of the Craft. (G.L. Massachusetts, 1843.)

6th. "The true doctrine on this subject has been well laid down by our illustrious brother Prince Murat, Grand Master of the Grand Orient of France. All men who believe in the existence of a Supreme Being, the Great Architect of the Universe; who believes in the immortality of the soul, and consequently in an eternal well being; every man who feels the love of his fellow man vibrate in him is acceptable among us. ([Rob] Morris, C.F.C. Kentucky, 1857.)

7th. "Resolved. That this Grand Lodge is clearly of opinion that a distinct avowal of a belief in the Divine Authority of the Holy Scriptures should be required of every one who is admitted to the privileges of Masonry, and that a denial of the same is an offence against the institution, calling for exemplary discipline." (Ohio, 1856.)

Hence, if an Ohio Mason does not believe in the existence of witchcraft, or that the world moves, and similar notions that have been exploded by science, he must be expelled from Masonry. Mackey, however, did not agree with the Ohio luminaries. He said :

"The Grand Lodge of Ohio attempted to amend, as they supposed, the law, and at once the universality of the institution is destroyed, and none but the Christians become eligible for initiation."

8th. Resolved. That candidates for Masonry should be required to avow their belief not only in the existence of God but in the divine authenticity of His word, as revealed in the Bible. (Storer, C.F.C. Connecticut, 1858.")

The above resolution was rejected.

9th. "The only declaration of faith necessary on the part of a candidate, before initiation, is the profession of belief and trust in God. But we also say that a man who declares his disbelief in the divine authenticity of the Holy Bible cannot be made a Mason. (Brown, C.F.C. Florida, 1858.)

10th. "Your Committee believe this (Ohio Resolution) all wrong. The Jews, the Chinese, the Turks, each reject either the New Testament or the Old, or both, and yet we see no good reason why they should not be made Masons. In fact, Blue Lodge Masonry has nothing whatever to do with the Bible. It is not founded on the Bible: if it was, it would not be Masonry, it would be something else; Masonry is a mere charitable institution—nothing else, and it is founded upon tradition. Solomon, to whom it is traced, and who is said to have been the first Grand Master, never heard of the New Testament. He was not a Christian. We must, therefore, either blot out the memory of Solomon, and also that of the other Grand Masters, or we must not insist upon a belief in the authenticity of either the Old or New Testament. The position which Christian Masons assign to the Bible is very natural, but not a necessary one. It is thus to them as Christians, but not as Masons." (Sayer, C.F.C. Alabama 1855.)

11th. "Freemasonry calls no man to account for his belief of any religion on the globe. (Const. of the Grand Orient of France.)

12th. "We would require no express declaration of a belief in either the Old or the New Testament as an open qualification of a candidate; but we feel bound to adopt the views of the Chairman of the Committee of Foreign Correspondence of Iowa. Without the Bible there is no Masonry." (Daniel, C.F.C. Mississippi 1857.)

13th. "Resolved. That the Grand Lodge of Texas declares that a belief in the divine authenticity of the Holy Scriptures is an indispensable pre-requisite for Masonic admission, and the Grand Lodge does not mean to exclude the Israelite whom it does not regard as being disqualified for the mysteries of Masonry." (Texas, 1857.)

Why Israelites, who disbelieve in what Christians regard as the most essential part of the Bible, are not excluded from Masonry is a puzzle which no one can solve. I must, however, add that Bro. Mellen, Grand Secretary of Mississippi, in his magazine, viz., The Acacia, criticised and condemned the action of the Grand Lodges of Texas and Ohio, in both his volumes, published in 1855 and 1856. Yes, quite as severely as Bro. Robbins did.

14th. "No religious test shall ever be required of any applicant for initiation other than a stedfast belief in the existence and perfection of Deity, and no Lodge under this jurisdiction shall receive any candidate without the acknowledgment of such belief." (Constitution of Nebraska.)

15th. "The religious views of a candidate are not regarded at all. It is sufficient if he believes in the existence and providence of God." (C. W. Moore 1849.)

* For brevity sake the letters "C.F.C." at the end of the paragraphs stand for "Committee Foreign Correspondence."

And again:—

"No Christian doubts the authority of the Bible, and in this country we need not trouble ourselves much about any other class of people. We place it upon our altar as the Word of God; the initiate is practically taught to regard it; and we take it and enjoin others to take it as the rule and guide of our conduct. This is enough. If any others who are not willing so to recognize and take it, we are not bound to receive them. Every Lodge is to judge of the fitness of its own candidates; let this suffice, and remove not the ancient landmarks which our fathers have set." (C. W. Moore.)

Bro. Chase, the author of the book I am quoting from, endorses Bro. Moore's letter, but gives no date thereunto, nor where to find the said letter.

16th. "Masonry simply requires of the candidate his assent to one great fundamental religious truth, the existence and providence of God." (Declaration of five thousand Freemasons of New England, 1831.)

17th. "Do you seriously declare upon your honour that you believe in the existence of God and a state of future rewards and punishments." (Regulations in Tennessee from 1823 to 1843).—To which the author adds, in a foot note, "It is but just that we inform the reader that this regulation was nearly a dead letter during the twenty years it remained among the regulations."

18th. "It is clearly settled that in the first degrees of Masonry, religious tenets shall not be barrier to the admission or advancement of applicants, providing they profess belief in God and His Holy Word." (Resolution in Ohio, 1820.)

19th. "No test except belief in God who governs the Universe, should be exacted." (C.F.C. of Rhode Island, 1850). Similar resolutions were adopted in Ohio in 1850, and Alabama in 1848.

20th. "If the applicant believe in the moral law (the Ten Commandments) and governs himself accordingly, we can require no further." (Rob Morris, American Freemason, Vol. III., p 121.)

21st. "By the usages and principles of our Order, he who does not believe in and acknowledge the Bible as a rule and guide of his conduct, ought not to be received into our Order." (HUBBARD, Ohio 1858.)

22nd. "With the spirit of the TEXAS resolution we cannot concur. It is not Ancient Free and Accepted Masonry. In the latter, a belief in Deity, in God, or rather trust in God, is all that is required of a candidate." (C.F.C. of Rhode Island, 1858.)

23rd. "The Grand Lodge of Iowa recognises no religious creed or dogma as a pre-requisite to gain admission into the portals of her temple: all she requires is, that the candidate should believe in the existence of God, the Creator of all things, and be freeborn, of lawful age, and well recommended as a good man and true. (PARVIN, 1849.)

24th. "Resolved. That Masonry, as we received it from our fathers, teaches the divine authenticity of the Holy Scriptures, and that the views of candidates on this subject should be ascertained by the Committee of Inquiry, or otherwise, as well as their other qualifications and fitness to be received into the Order." (Iowa, 1855.) "We protest against all such innovations," said Bro. Barber, of the C.F.C. of Arkansas in 1856.

25th. "It is the sense of this Grand Lodge, that no man can become a Mason unless he can avow a belief in the principles contained in the Holy Bible, and that the demand for such a belief does not conflict with the universality of Freemasonry." (Resolution. Nebraska 1858.)*

The above extracts prove, in the first place, that Bro. Robbins did not originate the idea that belief in the inspiration of the Bible was not essential to Masonry. Secondly, a majority of about two-thirds of the above quotations accord with Bro. Robbins' views on the question at issue. And thirdly, while the names of those who maintained that belief in the Bible was necessary for Masonry are unknown outside of their respective jurisdictions, the names of Mackey, Moore, and Morris had a world-wide reputation during their lifetime, and notwithstanding their faults and shortcomings Masonic students will have to consult their writings as long as Masonic students exist.

Another fact must be noticed. The opponents of Bro. Robbins not only resorted to the style usually adopted by theological debaters of bluffing, &c., but one of them even called Bro. Robbins an unbeliever in the Bible. Now, what Bro. Robbins believes and disbelieves I do not know; but I maintain that the mere fact of his belief about the Bible as far as Masonry is concerned cannot prove his disbelief in the Bible, for otherwise we must assume that Mackey, Moore, Morris, the five thousand Masons in New England in 1831, and all the names mentioned in the above extracts who advocated the same views that Bro. Robbins does, must also have been disbelievers in the inspiration of the Bible.

The fact is our Masonic bigots are imbued with the spirit of the "Holy Inquisition," and I verily believe that if they had the power they would act as badly as the Inquisition did.

MEMBERSHIP OF GRAND LODGE.

THE members of a Grand Lodge are such as are designated members by its "Ahiman Rezon" or "Book of Constitutions." At different eras in the history of the Craft, the Grand Lodges of the several jurisdictions have been composed of different classes of members. As to this each Grand Lodge is a law unto itself. At the formation of the Grand Lodge of England, in 1717, it was composed of Masters and Wardens of all the regular Lodges, with the Grand Officers. Since then various regulations have been adopted. In some jurisdictions, as in Pennsylvania at the present time, the Grand Lodge is composed of "the Grand and Past Grand Officers; the Masters and Past Masters by two years' service, and Wardens of all Lodges lawfully warranted and duly constituted by it and under its jurisdictions, and the elected representatives of such Lodges." In other jurisdictions, the Grand Lodge is composed only of Masters and representatives,—Wardens and Past Masters not being members; while in still other jurisdictions Masters and Wardens are members, Past Masters only being excluded. These variations in practice are due, in the main, to the recognized necessity, in the largest jurisdictions, of keeping Grand Lodge within such bounds as to membership as shall enable it to transact its business with satisfaction to itself. An unusually large deliberative body is always cumbrous. It becomes a question, first, how to seat such a body in a Masonic Temple—for a public hall is not to be thought of for use as a tyled Lodge; and, second, how to readily handle a body which may become so numerous as to amount almost to a mob. Hence it is that in all Masonic jurisdictions which contain a large constituency of Lodges and Freemasons, some modification has been made of the early system, of including all Masters, Wardens, and Past Masters in Grand Lodge.

We have been confronted with this question in Pennsylvania, and three years ago a slight modification and only a slight one, was adopted, to wit, to measurably limit the further growth in numbers of Grand Lodge by including Masters and Past Masters by two years' service only; instead of by one, as theretofore. For three years we have had this system in operation, and as far as our observation has gone the system has worked exceedingly well. Auxiliary and very important advantages have also sprung from it. The two years' service of Masters has the better prepared them to preside over their several Lodges. They have become better workers and superior rulers; they have grown more experienced in all of their duties, and the Craft at large has been advantaged accordingly.

We know of no honour that a Lodge can bestow superior to that of the Mastership of the Lodge. Every Master should be gratified to serve for two terms, and we believe the large majority of them are; but it appears that some of the Wardens do not fancy serving two years as Wardens. If Wardens really desire to be capable, proficient and duly instructed Masters, two years' service is necessary. In Grand Lodge, however, the Grand Officers by re-election have always served two years in each of the four stations, making in all eight years; why, then, should not the officers of the constituent Lodges serve six years?

Let us remember, the great body of the Craft has interests in the welfare of the Fraternity. The Craft will be best served by the capacity and ability of Lodge Officers to perform accurately and strictly their duties. Suppose it should be determined to return to the former practice of Masters serving but a single year. Then we would be immediately confronted with the necessity of limiting the membership of Grand Lodge in some other way. What way should that be, which would be more acceptable to the Craft at large than the present two years' service of Masters to ensure their permanent membership? Shall the Wardens be cut off from membership? Or shall the Past Masters? Some regulation of this kind would be necessary. We have three hundred and ninety Lodges at the present time in Pennsylvania, and these add, under the present regulation, three hundred and ninety Past Masters to Grand Lodge every two years; but if we should go back to the old regulation they would add that number every year.

We invite the Brethren to carefully weigh these considerations, and pause before they proceed to change the present regulation. A Lodge has a far higher purpose than to be a manufactory of members of Grand Lodge—especially when that body is already so numerous that it would be well if it should be limited to its present number. Limited it must be, as all thinking members will admit, so that if we go back to the old practice of making Masters permanent members after one year's service, we must then ex-necessitate, adopt some other means of accomplishing that which the present two years' service, in part at least accomplishes. What shall it be? Shall the Wardens in service we cut off from membership, or shall Past Masters, or both? Or shall all of these alternates be avoiding by adhering to our present two years' regulation?

MASONIC NOVELTIES.

HUMAN nature presents many of the same distinguishing features in all ages and among all nations. The love of the new and strange, appears to be a fundamental element of human character. Man is always an inquirer; he seeks to get outside the beaten paths and make discoveries which shall help him to a wider range of thought, vision, and experience. His curiosity, his ambition, not less than the imagination and mercurial forces of his nature, impel him to make many new departures, some of which are to be counted as helps, and others as hindrances, to his progressive career.

There are people, and classes of people, in whom this tendency shows itself as having more than ordinary influence. The dwellers in Athens two thousand years ago were a very curious people. There congregated the philosophers from all of the then civilized world. There flourished innumerable systems and associations that indicated the ardent search of the Athenians after wisdom. It was commendable that there should have been so much of mental activity displayed, and such abundant provision made to satisfy the investigating temper of the age; but the old Athenians are not to be commended that they were such ardent seekers after new things. Many of the Athenian writers, Demosthenes and Thucydides among the number, censure their countrymen because they were so unsettled in their thought and determinations, and because they were so quickly attracted to novelties of one sort and another. St. Luke, in the Christian Scriptures, makes mention of the fact that curiosity and love of new and strange things were characteristics of the people of Athens; "For they spent their time in nothing else, but either to tell or to hear, some new thing."

One modern society is infected by the same passion, and consequently there is a tremendous rush for new systems theories, forms, and schemes, in business undertakings, the departments of related life, and in the varied departments of ethics, morals, and religion. The old system does not satisfy, the former method does not please, while that which is presented in the form of novelty seems to be invested with a peculiar charm. Members of the Masonic Fraternity, sharing in the common feeling, are attracted to what they deem to be some new and better expression of the system in which they have been instructed, and turn greedily to some organisation, denominated Masonic, that is supposed to far outrank the old Craft institution. Imaginative and curious brethren, looking always for novelties that may be labelled Masonic, are quickly attracted to fanciful schemes and newly formed associations, often manifesting an enthusiasm in their support not shown to the old organisation.

"On what basis does your new society rest, and what are its special recommendations?" was the question addressed not long since to a zealous brother who was advocating a modern association notable for its high sounding titles and large pretensions. "O, it is the best kind of Masonry," was the reply. "Every Craftsman will be sure to like it; I tell you, the Lodge will seem a tame affair after you have entered our new society." Thus extolled by its forwarders and leaders, claiming to be in some way Masonic, but to be a more select and attractive organisation, the pretentious organisation gets a start and flourishes for a time to the satisfaction of all concerned, though it happens, not infrequently, that credulous brethren, who have given their time and money to foster the interests of the new rite, are brought ere long by an unwelcome experience to consider that "All is not gold that glitters."

The present is not the first period in the history of Freemasonry, when systems, rites, and orders, holding a more or less closely defined relation to the Craft, have been put forth in its name and under its auspices. A hundred years ago Continental Europe was filled with societies claiming a descent from or an alliance with the Masonic institution. Then new rites were instituted, elaborate rituals put forth, systems and organisations being established on a basis of fanciful, often ridiculous, representations, which proved, ere long, to be too great a load for the newly formed societies to carry, and consequently they toppled into ruins, or became merely the adjuncts of a political or selfish crusade. Count Cagliostro projected several such organisations, giving to them special interest and attraction by the Egyptian and Oriental features made conspicuous in their forms and ceremonies. Only Masons were admitted, and they were made to believe that the new society was the latest and highest evolution of their own institution. It was not long, however, before the new movement received a severe check, and soon it was regarded as in no proper sense connected with Freemasonry.

From Cagliostro's day until now there have been seen the flashing of many new lights upon the Masonic firmament. Zealous brethren have sought to originate new schemes and systems for social and beneficial purposes, and calling the new rites or orders by the Masonic name they have found plenty of curious Craftsmen to follow them into the seemingly attractive paths of progress. Legitimate Masonry has suffered sometimes by reason of such new schemes and organisations, and sufficient warning, it would seem, has been given against the misleading lights that from time to time shine out upon the Masonic way. The ancient and well defined system of Freemasonry, as understood and practised by the fathers, may well claim our warmest devotion and best offices. It cannot be greatly improved upon; nor does it require the addition of any new and fantastic forms of expression to commend its principles to those who are first made Masons in their hearts, or to augment the scope of its practical usefulness. Brethren, let us "Prove all things, and hold fast to that which is good."—Freemasons' Repository.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—During every break of wintry weather exertions should be made by the afflicted to recover health before unremitting cold and trying storms set in. Throat ailments, coughs, wheezings, asthmatical affections, shortness of breath, morning nausea, and accumulations of phlegm can readily be removed by rubbing this fine derivative Ointment twice a day upon the chest and neck. Holloway's treatment is strongly recommended with the view of giving immediate ease, preventing prospective danger, and effecting permanent relief. These all-important ends his Ointment and Pills can accomplish, and will surely prevent insidious diseases from fastening on the constitution to display themselves afterwards in those disastrous forms that will probably embitter life till death itself is almost prayed for.

The toast of the evening, the Memory of Earl Moira, the Patron of the Lodge, was proposed in eloquent terms by Bro. Wilkinson. Space altogether forbids our doing justice to this Oration, which will take rank among the best efforts, in a similar direction, of Bro. Wilkinson. But we have much pleasure in reporting the excellent speech of the W.M., with which our notice of this most interesting meeting must be brought to a close. In replying to the toast of the W.M., Bro. Sir Norman Pringle said, Bro. P.M. Tweedie, I thank you for the kind manner in which you have proposed my health, and you, brethren, most heartily, for the cordiality with which it has been received. I have been longer than some of you in climbing to the position in which I now find myself, but the exigencies of military service, by requiring me to be present with my regiment abroad, have operated to a certain extent to my disadvantage, Masonically, by arresting the flow of promotion which in the ordinary case would have carried me through all the minor offices, and rendered me eligible for the chair some years before it has actually been my good fortune to fill it. But I cannot thank you too warmly, or those brethren who kindly stood aside that I might last year be invested with the Senior Warden's collar, thus conveying to me the gratifying assurance that both the members and Officers were conscious of my wish to work up to the chair, and of the causes which had prevented me from so doing. Soldiers who are Masons have to contend with very grave disabilities, from which other sections of our Fraternity are exempt. Prominent among these is the constant shifting of quarters, which renders it impossible for a military brother, except on very rare occasions, to remain at any one station sufficiently long to reap the reward due to faithful service in the subordinate offices by election to the Master's chair. I was appointed an Officer of this Lodge in 1880, but vacated the appointment on joing the headquarters of my regiment at Malta. Returning to England, I again took office, but only to again vacate it by embarking for active service in Egypt. Since then I have been an office-bearer in Lodges at Malta and Gibraltar, and lastly (until my promotion to-night) for the third time as one of the subordinate officers of No. 92. In former days things were very different. At one time almost every British regiment had a Lodge attached to it, and to the influence of these military or travelling Lodges is due much of the Masonic progress of the last century, more especially in America. There was a famous Lodge in my own regiment, formerly the 38th Foot, now the 1st Battalion South Staffordshire, for which a warrant, bearing the number 441, was granted by the Grand Lodge of Ireland in 1765. This Lodge had a remarkable history. The records of the regiment, the Lodge-chest, warrant, and jewels were on one occasion captured by the enemy. The regimental records were never recovered, but the property of the Lodge was returned intact. Later in its career its proceedings, from the publicity accorded them, were a common topic of discussion in the Masonic Press. But I shall here only mention that Lodge No. 441, in the 38th Foot, was one of the nine Lodges present at the inauguration of the Grand Lodge of New York, in 1782, and an officer of the regiment and the Lodge, Lieutenant John Studholme Brownrigg, was elected the first Senior Grand Warden of the new governing body. Of these nine Lodges which took part in the formation of the Grand Lodge of New York, it is not a little remarkable that no less than six were attached to British regiments then forming a portion of the garrison. I have been unable to resist this passing allusion to an old and distinguished Lodge, attached for upwards of a century to the regiment which I have so recently had the honour to command. The Lodge was in working order up to 1860, but, owing to our being split up in detachments, then ceased to work. But I must now endeavour to show you that there are other and stronger reasons than the pleasing associations connected with my own regimental career, for the wish I have so long entertained to fill the important office in which I have been this evening so ably installed by Bro. Gould, P.M. Moira Lodge and P.G.D. In England, so far as I am informed, there is no documentary evidence relating to the actual proceedings of Lodges which is of older date than the Grand Lodge of England. By this I mean that there are no Lodge minutes on record earlier than 1717. The W.M. of the oldest English Lodge I am glad to say is present, and at a later period I dare say he will kindly put me right if I am wrong in that supposition. To proceed, however, with my remarks. In Scotland the circumstances of the Lodges were very different, and both minutes and records abound. From these I shall next make a brief selection. It would appear from the oldest minute book of St. John's Lodge, Kelso, which dates from 1701, that in that year, "George Faa was the Master." This name is well known on the Border, being the name of the Royal Family of the Gipsy tribe located there. In the next year, under the date, Kelso, 2nd June 1702, the minutes record that "the Company of Masons have selected the honourable Sir John Pringall to be Master in place of the deceased deacon Faa, and to continue as Master until St. John's day next, when the Company shall again have it under their consideration whether to elect another or continue the said Sir John Pringall." When St. John's Day arrived, Sir John Pringle was unanimously re-elected. And here I must pause to explain why these extracts have never been recited to you. It would seem that in 1702, or fifteen years before there was a Grand Lodge of England, my direct ancestor—at how many removes I cannot at the moment say, without reference to family documents—succeeded either the King of the Gipsies, or one of that royal line, as Master of the Kelso Lodge. One more quotation and I have done. The Grand Secretary of Scotland, in his history of the Lodge of Edinburgh, records under the date of 24th June 1670, the admission of Walter Pringle, Advocate, as "brother and fellow-craft." This Walter Pringle was the brother of my direct ancestor, Sir Robert Pringle, and with his name, I reach the highest point to which I can trace my Masonic pedigree, that is to say, 219 years from the present date. But it will suffice, I hope, to establish the point which I am anxious to submit for your consideration. It is, that the love of Masonry, with which I sincerely trust I am imbued, has come down to me by inheritance, and that in seeking admission into the Craft, as well as in my fortunate selection of a Mother Lodge, I have been guided by an instinctive feeling, which has happily caused my feet to tread in the footsteps of those brethren of my name and family, in the 17th and 18th century, whose connection with the Lodges of Edinburgh and Kelso respectively I have briefly adverted to. Lastly, Brethren, and I hope that I have not fatigued you with my remarks, let me assure you that during my year of office it will be my constant aim to act according to the traditions of this chair, and to fill as worthily as I can a seat which has been well and usefully occupied, both by brethren in the remote past, and by the goodly array of Past Masters now present, in times with which we are more familiar.

FORTITUDE LODGE, No. 105.

THE annual meeting was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Plymouth, on the 9th inst., when the brethren elected Bro. Samuel Edgcumbe W.M. Bro. J. T. A unanimous vote of thanks was accorded to Bro. Browning for the able and efficient services he had rendered the Lodge as its Treasurer for the past five years.

BRITISH UNION LODGE, No. 114.

A LARGE and representative body of brethren assembled at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich, on Thursday, the 5th inst., on the occasion of the installation of Bro. H. C. Casley as W.M. The ceremony of installation was most impressively performed by Bro. Sir John Monckton P.G.S.W. England, the chair of S.W. being occupied by Bro. Peter de Lande Long P.M. P.G.D. The W.M. then invested his Officers, as follow:—Bros. R. Tidbury, M.D., I.P.M., Sam. Geoding S.W., Thos. Palmer, Mus. Bac., J.W., R. N. Sanderson Chaplain, W. Boby Treasurer, B. P. Grimsey Secretary, A. F. Penraven S.D., C. E. Tempest J.D., W. Clarke D.C., Thos. Palmer Organist, Thomas B. Read I.G., F. J. W. Wood and J. R. Geard Stewards, George Gould Tyler. At the conclusion of the ceremony a most recherché banquet was served, in the style for which the British Union Lodge has long been famous. After the usual Loyal toasts, given by the W.M., and received with full Masonic honours, the W.M. gave the Earl of Carnarvon M.W. Pro G.M., the Earl of Lathom R.W. D.G.M., and the Grand Officers, present and past, coupled with the name of Wor. Bro. Peter de Lande Long, who, in responding, made special allusion to the interest he had ever taken in the administration of the affairs of the Masonic Girls' Institution, and the great benefits derived therefrom by candidates from the Province of Suffolk. The toast of the R.W. Lord Henniker P.G.M., the V.W. Rev. C. J. Martyn P.G. Chaplain, D.P.G.M. Suffolk, and the Officers of Provincial Grand Lodge, present and past, was responded to by Bros. Flintham and Tracy. The W.M. then gave the toast of the Installing Master (Wor. Sir John Monckton), who had done him the honour eleven years ago of installing him into the chair of W.M. of the British Union Lodge, and had now come down at no small personal inconvenience to perform the same ceremony. Although Bro. Sir John Monckton was a member of the Lodge, it was no small honour for the brethren to have among them so distinguished a Mason, ranking as he did among the very highest in England, whilst on the Continent he had a wide-spread reputation, having received distinctions at the hands of monarchs, who knew his worth. Bro. Sir John Monckton, in responding, expressed the pleasure it afforded him to lend his services to the British Union Lodge, more especially when relatives of his own were in so prominent a position in the Lodge as they now were, and he hoped that he might live to perform the same offices for succeeding generations. Bro. R. Tidbury I.P.M. proposed the health of the W.M., eulogising Bro. Casley as one of the mainstays of the Province of Suffolk. The W.M. responded in an eloquent speech, in which he exhorted the Past Masters and Officers of the Lodge to assist him in making his year of office one of the most successful in the annals of the Lodge. The Masonic Charities, proposed by Bro. Wm. Clarke, was responded to at some length by Bro. H. M. Harvey. The toast of the Visitors, cordially proposed by the W.M., and received with full honours, was responded to by Bros. S. J. Morley, G. T. Pick, and Hall, the latter brother asserting that if the newly-elected Master showed half the ability in the administration of his Masonic duties that he displayed in the exercise of his municipal office in Aldeburgh, the British Union Lodge had indeed reason for congratulation on his accepting the chair. The toast of the Past Masters, prop ed by the W.M., was briefly acknowledged by Bro. G. S. Elliston. For the Officers of the Lodge the S.W. Bro. Samuel Gooding, and the J.W. Bro. T. Palmer briefly responded, and the Tyler's toast brought a most enjoyable and successful ceremony to an end. During the evening some excellent songs were contributed, by Bros. Brookes of Norwich Cathedral Choir, Copeland, Henry Miller, and G. T. Pick, the accompaniments on the pianoforte being ably rendered by Bro. T. Palmer, Mus. Bac., Organist to the Lodge.

The W.M. responded in a neat and appropriate speech. Bro. Geo. Abbott proposed the Immediate Past Master, and said St. Luke's Lodge had had a very successful year under Bro. Morley's Mastership. Bro. Morley having responded, Bro. Cook proposed the Masonic Charities, for which Bro. The W.M., in responding, said he unfortunately lived some fifty miles from Plymouth, but he did not allow this to prevent him from attending the meetings of the Lodge whenever there was any work to be done. He took a great interest in Freemasonry, and would spare no effort to do what he could to promote the interests and welfare of the Lodge. Lord proposed the Treasurer and the Secretary, remarking that the duties connected with these offices were of a very onerous and responsible character, but Bro. Philp, as the Treasurer, and Bro. Goodall, as the Secretary, had always shewn themselves fully equal to the discharge of their duties, and the excellent position which Lodge Prudence now occupied in the Province was largely due to the admirable manner in which these two brothers had carried out their duties for many years past. Bro. Goodall, as the Secretary, was also the lawgiver of the Lodge, and experience had proved that they could always safely rely upon the advice he gave them. Bros. Philp and Goodall returned thanks. Brother Gover next gave the toast of the Senior and Junior Wardens, and other Officers, all of whom, he said, had shown a strong desire to make themselves thoroughly efficient in their respective offices, and had done their best to qualify for the more important offices which awaited them. William Pryor, who had been initiated into the mysteries and privileges of the Order at a meeting of the Lodge held in the afternoon. On behalf of the brethren he extended to Bro. Pryor a cordial welcome, and hoped that as he advanced in Masonic knowledge, so also would he prove himself to be a good and useful Mason. Bro. Pryor suitably responded. The other toasts were the Sister Lodges and Visiting Brethren, proposed by the W.M., and acknowledged by Bro. F. B. Westlake, A. Knight Cooper, and W. F. Before the proceedings closed Bro. Harvey and his wife were cordially thanked for, and complimented on, the excellent dinner which they had provided. Kindly and sympathetic reference was also made to Bro. J. J. Beer J.D., whose protracted illness has prevented him from attending the Lodge for several months. Strong hopes were expressed that he would soon be restored to full health, and a letter was read from him expressing his great regret that he was unable to be present at the meeting and dinner, and his hope that the brethren would would spend an enjoyable evening.

The Lodge was lowered to the first, and after routine business was closed in due form.

THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE

SATURDAY, 21st DECEMBER 1889.

CONSECRATION OF THE RAVENSCROFT LODGE, No. 2331.

"LITTLE HEARTS" is expanding; that is to say, Masonically speaking. When its present R.W. Provincial Grand Master, Bro. T. F. Halsey, M.P., took over the reins of management, in the year 1873, the number of Lodges was eight, or thereabouts; the Lodge consecrated on Tuesday, which will make High Barnet its headquarters, brings up the muster roll to nineteen. At the present time, when so much diversity of opinion exists as to whether or no it is desirable to multiply our Lodges, we do not care to question the wisdom of granting a second warrant for so limited a sphere of operations as is embraced in this suburban locality. If we attempt to draw comparison with similar districts, we candidly confess we do not fear that any clashing of interests is likely to arise. There are—and we are inclined to think there ever will be—Lodges and Lodges; and while the "class" interest prevails, and is imported so largely into our assemblies, we need scarcely look with a jealous eye if strangers invade what we may hitherto have looked upon as especially our own hunting grounds. However, let us quit the field of speculation, and proceed to our record. A strong band of founders applied for the warrant for the proposed new Lodge; these comprised Bros. James Thom, Henry Edwin Fraser, John Hudson, George Arnold, David Baker, T. W. Bintoliffe, J. H. Gunn, H. Cronin, S. H. Wright, Mansell Powell, J. H. Catchpole, E. Rawlinson, W. Williams, J. Hume, C. Gammon, C. F. Howorth. In due course the prayer of the petitioners was granted, and on Tuesday, the 17th instant, the brethren assembled at the Red Lion Hotel, High Barnet, at 3·30 p.m. The R.W. the Provincial Grand Master, Bro. T. F. Halsey, M.P., had undertaken the duties of Consecrating Officer, and he appointed as his Wardens Bro. T. S. Carter and Bro. M. Slaughter, two of the most popular of the Provincial Grand Officers. The Rev. H. F. Oliver acted as Prov. G. Chaplain, and the other Provincial Grand Officers who assisted were Bros. G. E. Lake Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Charles Bullock Prov. G. Secretary, James Terry (P.G. Sword Bearer) Provincial Grand Director of Ceremonies, and Harry Tipper who acted as Inner Guard. Amongst the brethren who signed the attendance book were:—Bros. A. Phillips Hills, W.M. 2054, R. Burgin S.W. 2186, M. G. Laughlin, 404 P.G.J.W., J. H. Miller W.M. 228, R. Middlehurst J.W. 1327, J. Robins P.M. 1327 P.P.G.J.W., Thomas Wigginton 404 P.P.G.S.W., John Goodchild W.M. 2202, S. R. Timson W.M. elect 504, W. Lovell 504, J. W. Duvall 404, H. Trask 1327, C. J. Grove I.P.M. 742, W. Ball P.M. and Secretary 2278, S. S. Scott I.P.M. 226, A. F. Scholding J.W. 1512, J. Simpson 957, Dr. J. Powdrell W.M. 2271, J. Tydeman P.M. 1327 P.P.G.P. Essex, G. Holdsworth P.M. 1327 P.P.G.R., J. Thomson 2319, G. Cronin 9, J. T. Davies 1348, H. Massey P.M. 619 1928, J. Hemming W.M. 1237, F. W. Hearn Organist 2206, N. Ruffen 2060, C. J. Fox S.W. 1743, W. W. Langley J.D. 2206, A. A. Nottingham S.D. 2206, C. Poston 134, G. J. Holdsworth 1327, E. Heathcote 1568, J. Dix 209, Henry Lindfield W.M. 211, W. W. Morgan P.M. 211, T. B. Smith 1743, H. A. Wheelden 2266, J. H. Dobbs 2206, J. Mason 2206, G. Ransford W.M. 1512, F. Hill I.P.M. 1563, &c. The Provincial Grand Master having assumed the chair, and opened the Lodge in the three degrees, the usual preliminaries were observed, and then the following oration was delivered by Bro. the Rev. H. F. Oliver:—

R.W. PROVINCIAL GRAND MASTER AND BRETHREN,—Allow me to ask your kind attention and indulgence while I endeavour shortly to allude to some of the purposes for which this Institution, ancient in its foundation, and venerable by many associations, is founded, and to mention some of the characteristics which should mark its members.

I presume that the universal cry of our present existence is a desire for light and information about truth, infinity above and beyond us; and the greater the advance we make in material, philosophical, or religious knowledge, the greater the longing. Masonry, while at the outset she acknowledges that desire, strives, while we follow her guidance, to foster its growth and to lead us ever higher and upward, from material to natural, from natural to spiritual light, till she finally bids us look upward to that bright morning star whose rising brings peace and salvation to the faithful and obedient of the human race. And where is true light to be found on earth but in the volume of the Sacred Word which is given to lead us from this sublunary abode even to the Throne of God Himself? Masonry may well be considered one of the greatest helps in the development of a religious life, while the teaching she bids us follow appeals to the better side of our humanity, and urges us to apply the implements of manual labour and handicraft to the perfection of our moral nature and the building up of ourselves in the knowledge and fear of God.

For Masonry reminds us of the two great fundamental truths of religion. Faith in and obedience to a Being infinitely higher and more perfect than ourselves, who deigns to draw us to Himself by processes of gradual development and revelation.

But there is a danger which besets us as we advance in Freemasonry, just as it besets all advances in any direction nearer the truth, and that is the danger of familiarity, which, we are told, breeds contempt. Let us guard ever against allowing familiarity with Masonic ritual and instruction to lead us to overlook the genuine precepts and tenets of the Craft; if we are to persevere in prosecuting the objects of our institution we shall not rest content with outwardly conforming to its ritual in Lodge, but will ever strive, while following its guidance, to learn and practise the lessons it has for us,—Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth.

Thus we may feel that the purposes which underly the foundation of this Institution are calculated to advance each individual to a state of greater perfection, by making him feel a sincere sympathy with others, and leading him to see in them the means of practising virtues which he professes to admire.

And with these thoughts before us permit me briefly to mention what ought to be some of the characteristics of its members—which they should display to the outer world.

I. Veneration for what in our best selves we confess to be infinitely above and beyond our present state of existence, and a genuine respect for spiritual revelation, which, in these days of free thought and (as we are pleased to think) great mental attainments, is a virtue we need to cultivate.

II. Perseverance to use the light offered to us to overcome our present difficulties and to follow, the steps of those of whom it is written in that most mystical Volume of Spiritual Revelation—"These have passed through much tribulation." If we set before ourselves, as we ought, a high standard to attain to, let us not be discouraged if we need many attempts, and even failures, to reach it. Persevere, and we shall succeed.

III. Obedience, a virtue the keeping of which is needful to the happiness of the community, and the practice of which by the individual, he may not like it, yet is decidedly a help in deepening the genuine character of the individual by teaching him the need of self thought, control and self sacrifice, which are helpful for any real strength of moral worth and excellence.

And finally, Brethren, as the consecration of a new Lodge marks the starting of a fresh centre of Masonic life, let it remind us who take part in it that in this state of existence we are all of us serving our apprenticeship. The Grand Architect of the Universe places us in the varied positions of life, where we are all to work for Him. If we are working honestly we may leave the result with Him, in a firm and confident hope that when this life here is ended we may ascend to the Grand Lodge above, where the World's Great Architect reigns supreme for ever.

The ceremony of consecration was then completed, and by the direction of the Provincial Grand Master his Deputy Bro. G. E. Lake installed Bro. James Thom I.P.M. 2206 as Worshipful Master. Bro. George Arnold P.M. P.P.G. Supt. of Works Northa and Hants was appointed to act as I.P.M., Bros. H. E. Fraser W.M. 2206 was invested as S.W., J. Hudson J.W., D. Baker Treasurer, G. Arnold I.P.M. Secretary, T. W. Bintoliffe S.D., J. H. Gunn J.D., H. Cronin D.C., S. H. Wright I.G., M. Powell A.D.C., J. H. Catchpole Steward, E. Rawlinson Assistant Steward, and R. H. Goddard Tyler. After the delivery of the addresses the W.M. proposed a vote of thanks and the honorary membership of the Lodge to Bro. Halsey, accompanying the compliment with the presentation of a Founder's jewel. Bro. Fraser S.W. seconded the motion, which, being carried unanimously, was replied to by Col. Halsey, who said that in the honour that had been done him the W.M. had alluded to great services which he (Col. Halsey) had performed in consecrating the Lodge, but he was afraid he must disclaim some of the work, as his Deputy performed the installation ceremony, and during the negotiations and arrangements for the Lodge took a most important portion of the work, in his (Col. Halsey's) absence on a tour in America. At the same time it had given him the greatest pleasure to come and consecrate the Lodge, and to see so large a number of founders and such a good prospect of success. He hoped the new Lodge would uphold the character of Masonry in the Province. With regard to the honorary membership of the Lodge, he accepted it with the greatest pride, and hoped to come frequently among the brethren and witness the long course of usefulness and prosperity it would have. The founder's jewel he also accepted with pleasure, and should wear it in the spirit in which it was given, as a memento of the occasion when a good flourishing Lodge commenced its career. A vote of thanks, with the honorary membership of the Lodge, was also passed to the Deputy Provincial Grand Master and the Provincial Grand Secretary, on the motion of the W.M., seconded by the J.W. Bro. G. E. Lake and Bro. Bullock both acknowledged the compliment. The Provincial Grand Chaplain and Bro. Terry Provincial Grand D.C. also received votes of thanks, and returned their thanks. The names of several candidates for initiation were proposed and seconded, and the Lodge was closed with the usual formalities. A banquet, which cannot be too highly praised, was subsequently partaken of, and the customary toasts followed. Bro. James Terry, as Past Grand Sword Bearer, was called upon to reply for the toast which includes the Grand Officers, and he said that in the presence of his Provincial Grand Master he felt a great amount of diffidence in doing so, because Colonel Halsey, as a Provincial Grand Master, took precedence of the Grand Wardens of England. But it was said that modesty did sometimes come to the front, and in that respect an opportunity was now afforded modesty to speak. He thanked the brethren for drinking this most comprehensive toast, which embraced the names of noblemen and gentlemen in high position all over the country, who were honoured with the confidence of Her Majesty, and of Her Majesty's subjects; men who were devoted in their loyalty to their chiefs. As one who was devoted in his loyalty to his chief, he thanked the brethren. He trusted in the absence of other Grand Officers, the remarks he had made might be acceptable. Though there was such a titter round the room when he spoke of modesty, he assured the brethren there was no more modest man than he, or one who tried more in his own way to discharge the duties of his office. The Worshipful Master next proposed the R.W. Provincial G. Master, Col. Halsey, M.P. for Hertfordshire, whose great abilities the brethren had seen that day. Col. Halsey had left his many other duties to attend at High Barnet to consecrate the Ravenscroft Lodge, and had said that it had been a pleasure to him to come. Many brethren with the will to perform such services had not the ability; but Col. Halsey had the ability, and had made it his duty. The brethren of the Ravenscroft Lodge considered it a great honour, as well as a great pleasure, to have their Prov. Grand Master performing the consecration. Col. Shadwell Clerke performed the ceremonies in the London district, except when he deputed some one else to do it, as in the case of the Hendon Lodge, which Bro. Terry consecrated. But the Provincial Grand Master in flesh and blood, and the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and the Provincial Grand Secretary came to consecrate the Ravenscroft Lodge. What more could they expect or desire? Col. Halsey, in reply, said he was overwhelmed by the cordiality of his reception. He again congratulated the brethren on the success of the Lodge's consecration meeting. They had the prospect of being a great addition to his Province. He deduced this from the manner in which the Worshipful Master conducted the Lodge, invested his Officers, and presided over the banquet. It augured a bright and happy future both for the Lodge proceedings and for the banqueting. He sincerely trusted there would be such a future for the Lodge. He welcomed the Lodge as an addition to the ranks of Hertfordshire. The Ravenscroft was now the nineteenth Lodge on the roll of that Province, and it was with justifiable pride that he reflected on the fact that when he was first appointed Provincial Grand Master, fifteen years ago, there were only eight Lodges in the Province. One of the first duties he was called upon to perform, after his appointment, was to consecrate the Halsey Lodge, at St. Alban's. Since that time the Lodges had gone on increasing, and he rejoiced to think although there was the possibility that an increase of Lodges might not be a real increase in Masonry, because one Lodge might be taking the place of another that was going down, he did not think that was the case with any Lodge in his Province. There was scope and room for the Lodges that had been consecrated in the Province, and especially in this town of High Barnet, which was a fairly large-sized town, and he both hoped and believed that there was no reason whatever why there should be any antagonism between the two Lodges. They were different in their scope, aims, and objects, and the arrival of a new Lodge need not be feared by the old. There would be no poaching by one on the preserves of the other, and for what he had seen of the W.M. of the Ravenscroft Lodge, there would be no attempt to interfere in any way with the Gladsmuir; there was no necessity for it. That was his experience at Watford, where both the Lodges that were held there flourished. The only rivalry between them was, which should attain the greater eminence; yet each had acted with the other. The same result ought to take place in High Barnet. To the toast of the Deputy Prov. Grand Master and the Provincial Grand Officers, Bro. Bullock Prov. Secretary responded, and in the course of his observations said he did not view with equanimity the growth of Lodges in the Province, as it entailed additional labour on him, even though that labour might readily be given. He looked upon the Ravenscroft Lodge as a little sister, who was glad of a brother's assistance; but little sisters grew up, and brothers were then generally in the way. When the Ravenscroft Lodge little sister grew up, she would perhaps reject the assistance she now was glad of. When young ladies grew up, they did not like to walk alone, but they did not like their brothers to walk with them, as two were considered company, but three none. But, joking apart, he hoped the Lodge would go on as well as it had begun, that it would become an important Lodge of the Province, and that there would be nothing like jealousy, or rivalry, or unkind feeling, on the part of other Lodges. Bro. Oliver Provincial Grand Chaplain also replied, thanking the brethren for their hospitable welcome. Col. Halsey proposed the W.M., and said that the enthusiastic plaudits with which the announcement was made, and from what the founders had seen that day, they would feel that they had exercised a wise discretion in selecting Bro. James Thom as the first W.M. of the Ravenscroft Lodge. Under the auspices of that Brother, the bright beginning and grand start the Lodge had made would continue, and he would hand over the Lodge at the end of his year of office to an excellent successor, who would come into a brilliant heritage. Long might it continue, and he hoped the Lodge would have a career of great prosperity. Bro. Thom W.M. thanked the brethren most heartily for the toast so kindly submitted by the Provincial Grand Master. It was one of the greatest honours to be chosen the first W.M. of a Lodge, more especially considering the easy way in which the Lodge had gained its warrant, through the kindness of the Executive of the Provincial Grand Officers of Herts. The founders of the Ravenscroft Lodge knew how much they were indebted to those Provincial Grand Officers, and they heartily thanked them. They had done so much that it was plain sailing for the founders. The warrant was obtained, and the Provincial Grand Officers finished up what they had done by consecrating the Lodge. The ceremony had been performed in perfect fashion by the Provincial Grand Master, than whom none had more ability. He the (W.M.) should devote all his efforts to making a great future for the Lodge. Bros. Dr. Powdrell, Hemming, Scholding, and Langley responded to the toast of the Visitors. Col. Halsey responded to the toast of the Charities, and said that the Province of Herts had piqued itself on its support of the Masonic Charities, at a Festival of one of which it headed the list. Much could be done by energy and determination, and this Province would do its part. Referring to the Herts Provincial Charity Committee, he said it was started some years ago by the late Dr. Wilson Iles, but was not then thoroughly understood. The Province had a large voting power, and the Committee was designed to prevent a waste of that power. Some thought it was intended to deprive them of their free will with regard to their votes, but such was not the case. It was intended that they should unite, and recommend and support cases, if they had no individual case to support. Every Lodge in the Province was asked to elect a brother to serve on the Committee. He hoped they would put the Provincial Charity Organisation on a proper footing. Other toasts were then given, and the proceedings concluded with the Tyler's toast. The arrangements for the meeting, and the way in which the comforts of those who attended were looked after, by Mr. Phillips, the new proprietor of the Red Lion Hotel, deserve special recognition. The furniture and appointments of the Lodge were supplied by Messrs. E. Stillwell and Son, of Little Britain.

It may be interesting to some of the members of this new Lodge if we supply a few particulars of the worthy gentleman after whom their Lodge is named. Master James Ravenscroft founded Jesus Hospital and endowed the Parish Church, both of Chipping Barnet, in the year 1679. He was a merchant of High Holborn, and, with his parents, is buried in the chancel of Barnet Church. The Church, some 15 years since, was restored and enlarged, the expense being defrayed from funds which had accrued from the increased value of James Ravenscroft's original gift. Queen Elizabeth's Grammar School also participated, while Jesus Hospital was improved. However, what was called Jesus Hospital in 1679, in this year of grace 1889 is better known as the Ravenscroft Alms Houses.

THE THEATRES, &c.

Savoy.—In a spirit similar to that of the old waiter described by Dickens who when given a holiday went to assist a brother servitor, so the dramatic and musical profession assembled on Thursday afternoon to witness a special performance of "The Gondoliers, or the King of Barataria," the latest success of Mr. W. S. Gilbert and Sir Arthur Sullivan. So many members had accepted Mr. D'Oyley Carte's kind invitation that the handsome theatre was packed from floor to ceiling, and the utmost good humour prevailed. It was to be expected that such an audience would be more amicable than critical, but to such an extent was appreciation carried that doubtless, in the matter of encores, the brethren and sisters cried Hold! enough; though it is one of the secrets of the Savoy entertainments that the performers appear to enjoy the fun as much as the audience. Sir Arthur attended to personally conduct the second act of the opera, and received quite an ovation, while both Mr. Gilbert and Mr. Carte were warmly greeted at the final fall of the curtain. All the special points of the witty, though often satirical, libretto made their mark, while those that might be taken in connection with the profession were received with roars of laughter. Each artiste was vociferously welcomed as he or she made appearance on the stage, that extended to the new additions of the company being "extra special." Thus, when Mr. Frank Wyatt and Miss Decima Moore entered, the action of the piece was stayed while they bowed continuously their acknowledgments. An equally good reception was accorded to Mr. Rutland Barrington, who once more resumes his old position. The plot of the piece is simple enough, though it is elaborated into two long acts, and narrates the confusion that exists consequent upon the kidnapping of the son of the King of Barataria, who was married as an infant to the daughter of the Duke of Plaza-Toro. The child is presumably looked after by the Grand Inquisitor, and is brought up as a Gondolier at Venice, but a doubt exists as to which of two children is the regal heir. The mystery is solved at length by the discovery that neither is the king, but Luiz, the attendant of the Duke; so matters are satisfactorily arranged as the two Gondoliers had already taken unto themselves wives, and Casilda was in love with Luiz. Mr. Gilbert's delightful humour runs riot throughout the piece, which Sir Arthur Sullivan's music fits exactly. Where all is so good it seems useless to select any of the morceaux for greater praise, but Luiz's song, "There was a time," one by Marco, "Take a pair of sparkling eyes"—the quartet "One of us will be a queen," and the concerted piece, "In contemplative fashion," may be commended for special delectation. Mr. Denny is the mildest mannered Grand Inquisitor that could possibly be, and enters thoroughly into the humour of the character. Messrs. Barrington and Courtice Pounds act and sing the parts of the two Gondoliers to perfection, and Mr. Brownlow is well placed as Luiz. Mesdames Geraldine Ulmar and Jessie Bond are so well versed in Gilbertian fun that they could not be surpassed, and Miss Decima Moore is a decided acquisition to the strength of the company. The scenery, painted by Hawes Craven, consists of two charming pictures, while the costumes are bright and effective.

Mr. J. L. Toole returns to his own theatre, for seven weeks, on Christmas Eve, 24th instant, for a series of farewell performances prior to his departure for his Australian tour, and will appear in a round of favourite characters, commencing on Christmas Eve with the adaptation of Charles Dickens's "Cricket on the Hearth," called "Dot." Mr. Toole will appear in his original character of Caleb Plummer. The performance will conclude with "The Steeplechase; or, Toole in the Pigskin."

The production at the Alhambra of a new grand fantastic ballet, in three tableaux, entitled "Asmodeus," invented and arranged by Signor Casati, the music being specially composed by M. Jacobi, will take place on Monday, the 23rd inst. The part of "Asmodeus" will be represented by Signor de Vicenti, from La Scala, Milan, who will on this occasion make his first appearance in England; and other characters will be undertaken by Signorina Bessone, Signorina Spotti, Signorina Saracco, Mdme. Roffey, Miss Thurgate, and Mdlle. Marie. The scenery is by T. E. Ryan, and the costumes (from designs from M. Bianchini, of the Grand Opera, Paris) are by Mons. and Madame Alias. A special matinée will be given on Boxing Day.

LODGE HISTORIES.

IN 1857 Bro. Henry Edwards, who the previous year had been most active as Senior Warden, rose to the chair of Probity Lodge, and it is but natural the members look back to this period as an important one in their history, bearing as it does on the ultimate elevation of Sir Henry Edwards to the Provincial Grand Mastership of West Yorkshire. In 1867 the St. James Lodge (then also meeting at Halifax) decided to build a Masonic Hall on its own account. Probity hearing of this, made such overtures that it was decided the purchase of land and the building of a Masonic Temple should be carried out by the joint Lodges. Every arrangement was properly completed, and it being decided that the ceremony of laying the corner stone should be observed with due solemnity, Sir Henry Edwards, Bart., M.P., then Past Prov. G.S.W., was invited to preside on the occasion. This he did, the ceremonies being performed in regular Masonic style, a dispensation having been granted for the occasion. This was on the 30th June 1868, and on the 16th August of the following year the Lodge of Probity held its first meeting in the new Hall. The Hall, however, was not formally consecrated until 24th November 1869, an emergency meeting of the junior Lodge of the town being held for the purpose.

A third Lodge was warranted for Halifax, 11th July 1870, and was named the De Warren, holding its first meetings at the White Swan Hotel, and continuing its gatherings to the present time.

The great event in the history of Probity Lodge of this period was the appointment of its Past Master (Sir Henry Edwards) as Provincial Grand Master for West Yorkshire. His installation occurred at a Lodge of Emergency, held in the Drill Hall, 21st April 1875, while his genial rule over this important district is too much a matter of modern history to need further comment here.

On similar grounds we may now conclude our review of the Probity History. No doubt its subsequent actions are well known throughout the Craft, and if they have not been recorded year by year in the pages of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE as fully as some would wish, it must be remembered our field of operations is a large one, and if we do not always do all that is required of us, it is rather from inability than any lack of desire on our part.

Once more we congratulate the Lodge of Probity on the brilliant records of its past career, now collected and presented to the world in handsome form by Bro. Crossley, and while we cannot say that every one of our older Lodges could compile such a record, we are fain to believe that with such a Historian as the Probity has secured much would be possible. From dry matters of fact, dates, and ordinary minutes he has written a most enjoyable Masonic book—the persual of which has afforded us as much pleasure as ever fell to our lot in connection with a Masonic volume.

We have omitted to mention that on the 4th November 1888 the Lodge celebrated the 150th year of its existence, the brethren attending service at church on that day. We congratulate them on such a celebration, and hope that in due course the members may have an opportunity of similarly rejoicing on the completion of the second century of their Lodge's career.

The first halfpenny weekly number of a large-paper illustrated edition of Archdeacon Farrar's "Life of Christ" will be published on 1st January. The size will be uniform with the halfpenny weekly edition of the "Doré Bible," which has had so large a sale. The work will also be published in threepenny monthly parts.

At the usual monthly meeting of the Coleridge Lodge, No. 1750, held at the Masonic Rooms, Public Hall, Cleveden, on Thursday, the 12th inst., Bro. E. G. Rivers was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year, Bro. T. Barnes re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. R. Stephens Tyler. It was decided to hold the annual banquet, at the Royal Pier Hotel, on Thursday, 9th January 1890.

TO THE DEAF.—A Person cured of Deafness and noises in the head of 23 years' standing by a simple remedy, will send a description of it FREE to any Person who applies to NICHOLSON, 21 Bedford Square, W.C.

THE LORD MAYOR.

SIR HENRY AARON ISAACS is the subject of a "Celebrities at Home" sketch which recently appeared in the World. The first portion of the sketch is devoted to a description of the artistic contents of the new Lord Mayor's private residence, at 27 Belsize Park. Proceeding next to the subject of the article the writer says:—

"Few men have laboured more indefatigably in the best interests of the City during the past quarter of a century than Sir Henry Isaacs, and the drawing-room abounds in tokens of the grateful recognition of his fellow-citizens. The statue of Cupid, by Legrow, was the gift of the Special Bridge Committee; the vases of early Berlin china were presented to him by his colleagues of the 'Markets'; and the silver goblets on the grand piano commemorate his untiring efforts for the federation of the synagogues. Both Sir Henry Isaacs and his wife are accomplished musicians. They possess respectively fine bass-baritone and mezzo-soprano voices, and during the coming twelvemonths their friends in Belsize Park will sorely miss their pleasant evening parties. The figure of 'Moses' once belonged to an Archbishop of Utrecht; the tall centrepiece facing the window is a souvenir from the committee appointed to organise the reception of the Prince of Wales at the Guildhall on his return from India; and on the walls conspicuous places are occupied by one of Savry's cattle-pieces, a moonlight scene by Pether, and a painting of Eve by Rinaldi. Sir Henry Isaacs is probably the first monarch of the Mansion House who has devoted a portion of his leisure to the collection of Lowestoft china. Three days before the Common Council acclaimed him as Lord Mayor he realised one of the dearest wishes of his life by acquiring the three most perfect Lowestoft vases in existence."

"It is from a silver box used by the Heir-Apparent during his visit to the City thirteen years ago that the Alderman of Portsoken extracts a fragrant cigar, which you smoke while he tells you something of a career which has led, step by step, to the highest honour which the greatest municipality in the world can bestow on one of her citizens. His father, Michael Isaacs, was an inhabitant of the Ward of Aldgate fifty-nine years ago, when the future Lord Mayor was born, and his mother belonged to the Spanish family of Mendoza. He went into business very early, and, before he was twenty, married the daughter of a Scotch officer, Alexander Rowland, who, when serving in the 9th Regiment, had twice saved the life of his comrade Colin Campbell, afterwards Lord Clyde. Without neglecting his own affairs, Sir Henry Isaacs soon became a prominent supporter of the various charitable institutions belonging to the Hebrew community, and so far back as 1871 he received a costly testimonial from the Hambro Synagogue, where he had acted as Warden. His work in connection with several important commercial enterprises did not prevent him from becoming a leader amongst Freemasons, an active Common Councilman, and a Master of the Loriners' Company. Five-and-twenty years ago he began to agitate the now popular question of improved dwellings for the poor. He was mainly instrumental in bringing about many much-needed reforms in the Finance Committee of the Corporation, and in 1869 he was appointed to the Chairmanship of the City Lands Committee. Some years afterwards, as head of the Markets Committee, he gave valuable evidence before the House of Commons, and the Tower Bridge now in course of erection owes, in a great measure, its existence to his dogged persistency. After the Chicago fire he drew the attention of the Corporation to the question of precautions against a similar calamity in a convincing pamphlet, and his suggestions resulted in the establishment of a large number of hydrants. In 1871 he was the donor of a bust of the Princess of Wales which is now to be seen in the Guildhall, and three years later he headed the Reception Committee on the return of her husband from India. He has also turned his attention to certain shortcomings in the London water, the qualifications of jurors in the City Courts, and the introduction into England of the oral system of teaching deaf mutes. Upon the last subject his brochure, 'Sounds versus Signs,' is a recognised authority. His earnest protest prevented the appearance of Court Chaplain Herr Stöcker in the Egyptian Hall. Alderman Isaacs is both an able and painstaking magistrate. His crusade against the oppressors of the brute creation struck terror into the hearts of evildoers: he makes a practice of taking careful notes of the testimony adduced before him, and has written trenchant letters on 'Police Evidence' and 'School Board Cases.' The Lord Mayor has also won his spurs as a composer. His ode on the death of the Prince Consort appeared in 1862, but the better-known 'Love Star' is the work upon which the learned judge promptly replied that, in his humble opinion, 'the publication of an original song by a Sheriff of the City of London is an undoubted sign of the progress we are making in civilisation.'"

Among other gifts which have from time to time enriched Sir Henry Isaacs' home, the sketch in the World mentions "the Empire candelabra in old bronze and ormolu, the offerings of the City Lands Committee, or the enormous Georgian dish in repoussé work, the reward of twenty years' loyal services to the Ward of Aldgate. The salvers of the Lodge of Tranquillity and the snuff-box of his Prosperity pupils remind him of the strong probability of his succeeding Sir Edward Inglefield as Master of the Drury Lane Masonic Lodge, within a few weeks of his accession to office in the City. With a reference to Sir Henry's love for paintings, of which he is an accomplished connoisseur, the article is brought to a conclusion.

The Provincial Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight will be held at Southampton on the 3rd of February 1890.

The last meeting for the year of the Board of Benevolence was held on Wednesday evening, at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. Robert Grey, President of the Board, presiding. The Senior and Junior Vice-Presidents, Bros. James Brett and C. A. Cottebrune, occupied their respective chairs. Bros. Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke Grand Secretary, A. A. Pendlebury Assistant Grand Secretary, W. Dodd, and W. H. Lee represented Grand Secretary's office; there were also present Bros. the Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg, Perryman, Lucking, Mercer, Garrod, Brown, Montennis, Chapman, Belton, Grieve, Shedd, Hogard, Woodward, Bunker, Taylor, Letchworth, Devan, Birch, Newton, Mote, Archer, Grice, Webber, Dehane, Powell, Spinks, Bateman, Massey, Cox, Brooke, Clark, Adams, Ransford, Salter, Lister, Mayer, Shepherd, Wing, Darck, Dickey, Bilby, Weeks, Graham, Parker, Orme, Dodner, Douglas, Farwig, Cantle, Harbord, Emblin, and Sadler. The brethren first confirmed recommendations made at the former meeting to the extent of £170. There were thirty-nine cases on the new list. Five of the cases were deferred, being incomplete, and one was dismissed, not being within the rules of the Board of Benevolence. The remainder were relieved with a total sum of £782. There were in this sum two recommendations to Grand Lodge of £50 each; five to the Grand Master of £40 each; and six of £30 each. There were also 11 immediate grants of £20 each; two of £15 each; four of £10 each, two of £5 each, and one of £2.

A recent issue of the Universe contains the following:—

The Freemasons of Portugal are much shocked at the impiety of the patriarch of Lisbon, Cardinal Neta. It appears that in the course of his funeral sermon His Eminence remarked that the deceased King had need of the prayers of his subjects, as it was evident, notwithstanding his many virtues, that he must have committed many venial sins in his lifetime, and might therefore be still in purgatory. Now, of course, no Catholic who remembered his Catechism, or who attended to his religious duties, would see anything strange in the patriarch's remarks; to pray for the soul of the deceased monarch would seem to him to be the most obvious and practical way of showing his affection for him. But the Freemasons of Portugal and France are indignant at the suggestion that King Luis's soul did not ascend straight to eternal bliss. This is refreshing to hear from members of an Order which has expunged the name of God from its books—whose motto is, Ni Dieu ni Maître—"Neither God nor Master."

Even our very respectable contemporary, the Paris Figaro, is horrified. Listen to its plaintive protest:—After having been the model of constitutional Sovereigns, after having proved himself a good son, a good husband, a good father, having left to his subjects the memory of all his virtues, and being regretted by them as no other King could be, having died a sincere Christian, with the Apostolic Benediction, and after having a whole nation regretting him and praying for the repose of his soul; all this is of no avail, it would seem, for King Luis's soul is still in purgatory. The Figaro is evidently much disturbed in its tonsorial soul at the possible consequences of the patriarch's sermon; it might even bring about a schism in Portugal, and what grief and consternation there would be in the Lodges throughout Europe. But the most comic part of the article is where its writer explains to the public the grave significance of the patriarch's utterance as being no less than a "formal disavowal of the absolution pronounced over the dying King by the Pope's Nuncio." We strongly recommend this theme for development by our Protestant contemporaries in England.

We often wonder how our ancestors, of the "good old times," used to create an appetite, or add to the taste of the good things provided for their use. They had none of the sauces and other delicacies which at the present day seem indispensable, and yet we are told they enjoyed life to a good old age. We are afraid this statement must be accepted with great reserve; no doubt many of our forefathers enjoyed good appetites and good digestion, but many more of them must have suffered a martyrdom which, happily, is not forced upon us at the present day. Among the many good things provided in order to tempt us to a meal, help us to relish it, and at the same assist digestion, may specially be mentioned the productions of Messrs. Gordon and Dilworth, a firm long established and well known in America, who are now represented in this country, at 119 Minories E.C., by Mr. Elias Jessarun. Among the specialities of the firm are their Tomato Catsup and Sauce, both of which are excellent, and well worthy a trial. The Catsup is made but once a year, in Tomato season, from the whole fresh Tomatoes, and has a particular piquancy attained only by the new process of this firm. It is the only sauce on the market made entirely of Tomatoes, and is really the popular national sauce of America. Among the many other good things provided by this firm may be mentioned Preserved, Canned and Brandy-Fruits, Fruit-Jellies, Syrups and Jams, Vegetables, Salad-Dressing, Blackberry Brandy, Mince Meat, Plum Pudding, Olives and Capers, Sweet Pickles, Wine Jellies, Soups, Sauces, &c., but we strongly advise our readers to send for a full illustrated catalogue and price list, or ask their local tradesman to procure them one.

PROPOSED GRAND LODGE IN NEW ZEALAND.

THE committee appointed at a meeting of the three Masonic Constitutions working in New Zealand, held in Dunedin, for the purpose of considering the advisableness of attempting to bring about a union with the view of founding a Grand Lodge in that colony, has submitted its report. The committee recommends that if the subordinate Lodges and the Craft generally approve of the formation of a Grand Lodge in New Zealand the following principles should be insisted upon, and made unalterable by the Grand Lodge, save with the consent of all the District Grand Lodges. The Grand Lodge should meet once a year; and the place of meeting should be changed annually. The Grand Lodge should be composed of the District Grand Masters, Deputy District Grand Masters, and Wardens ex-officio, and fifty members appointed by the subordinate Lodges. The Grand Master should hold office for four years, and appoint his Deputy. But all the other Officers should be elected by the Grand Lodge. In other respects the Grand Lodge should have full legislative powers, and supervise the administration of District Grand Lodges. There should be five District Grand Lodges in the colony —viz.: Auckland, Wellington, Westland, Canterbury, and Otago; and new District Grand Lodges may be constituted from time to time by the Grand Lodge. In the opinion of the Committee, no real union will be consummated until there is greater harmony among the members and Lodges on the question of a Grand Lodge; and this cannot be obtained without further consideration and negotiation. Pending the consideration of the foregoing recommendations by the subordinate Lodges, the Committee suggests that the Grand Lodge formed in Wellington should not be countenanced.

AUSTRALIAN FREEMASONRY.

THE installation was then proceeded with, the Grand Master elect being presented by his predecessor in the high office, and being regularly installed by Lord Carrington. The Past Grand Master (Bro. S. J. Way) delivered a most interesting charge to the Grand Master, which we are able to print:—

"Notwithstanding the surpassing interest of this imposing ceremonial, there are many amongst us who, even during its most solemn incidents, have been unable to refrain from recalling memories of another gathering in this Hall, between five and six years ago, when the Grand Lodge of South Australia announced its independence to the world. We did not falter in our faith in the principles of Masonic union which we had espoused, or in the lawfulness of the work to which we had set our hands. But we did not anticipate that the acceptance of those principles or the recognition of our work would be so rapid and so universal. We were prepared for a harder fight; we did not expect such a speedy victory. The great Masonic events in New South Wales and Victoria during the last eighteen months still lay hidden in the womb of the future. None of us, even in our most sanguine moments, foresaw that when we next assembled as a Grand Lodge in this building it would be to instal, with such distinguished assistance, a Grand Master bearing a great historic name in British Masonry, and who has won for himself brilliant rank in the Craft on the other side of the world. In undertaking the work which has had such happy results, we knew we were making 'no innovation in Masonry.' We only essayed to set up in South Australia two of the ancient landmarks—'the government of the Fraternity in each country by a Grand Master,' and the subjection of 'every Mason to the Grand Lodge of the country in which he resides.' Our contentions were for the same principles as were upheld in the establishment of the Grand Lodges of the United Kingdom. Those principles, it cannot be irrelevant to mention, were advocated as earnestly as we advocate them by the head, M.W.G.M., of your own family at that time. Students of our history will remember that in the first half of the 18th Century, when George the Second was king, the doctrine of Masonic Autonomy in each country and of Masonic Unity in all countries was supported by three Scottish noblemen in this practical way:—Each of them served a year in the Grand Mastership, first of Scotland and afterwards of England. The first of these three noblemen was John, Earl of Kintore, who was installed Grand Master Mason of Scotland in 1738, and Grand Master of England in 1740. It is not unworthy, I think, of the traditions of a noble house that the principles which were acted upon by the third Earl of Kintore 150 years ago should be consistently maintained to-day by his successor, the ninth Earl, on a continent which was then unnamed, and, except to a few adventurous navigators, altogether unknown. Certainly it adds to the prestige of your office, and it unites us as South Australians still more closely to British Masonry, that our Grand Master's chair should be filled by the descendant of one of the early Grand Masters of England and of Scotland. But, M.W.G.M., although venerable Masonic associations attach themselves to your name, your title to the suffrages of your brethren rested upon something higher. Yours is an hereditary fitness indeed, but your own character and your own career furnish your best qualifications. Surely no Grand Master ever had a more complete training for his duties. Initiated into Masonry in the Lodge of Edinburgh, Mary's Chapel—the mother Lodge of your ancestor and of so many eminent Scotsmen—you soon rose to be Provincial Grand Master of Kincardineshire. During 13 years' membership of the Grand Lodge of Scotland you filled various high offices in succession, being for the last four years Substitute Grand Master Mason, with only one step intervening between you and the Grand Master's chair. You are still Second Grand Principal of the Supreme Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Scotland, and Trustee of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, of the Fund of Masonic Benevolence, and of the Annuity Fund. If I may not speak on this occasion of your rank in those more advanced degrees which are not recognised in Craft Lodges, I may turn to your services to English and Colonial Masonry, which until now had their culmination in your tenure for three years of the Grand Mastership of the Grand Lodge of Mark Masons of England, Wales, and the Colonies and Dependencies of the British Crown—an Order which is still a bond of organic union between English and Colonial Masons. It was a striking tribute to the success of your government of Mark Masonry that H.R.H. the Prince of Wales should have consented to become your successor, and that you should have had the privilege of yourself installing him in the chair, which you had filled so long and with so much distinction. When I add to this imperfect sketch of your Masonic work that you have won the confidence and favour of your Sovereign, and that since you have been amongst us we have not failed to discern your zeal for the Craft, your earnest manliness of character, and that you wear 'the white flower of a blameless life'—it will be understood why with common consent your brethren in South Australia invited you to place yourself at their head. Let me say, also, that the enthusiasm with which we hail your installation is increased by the fact of your being our Governor; for, in choosing Her Majesty's representative as our Grand Master, we are able to manifest in the most emphatic manner possible to us our loyalty and devotion to the Queen. M.W.G.M.—I accept it as a great honour to be the first to convey to you my own congratulations and the congratulations of your brethren on your complete installation. Most sincerely and heartily do I congratulate the Craft also on the accession to the Grand Mastership of South Australia of so illustrious a Mason. May your rule, M.W.G.M., be long, happy, and prosperous, honourable to yourself, and for the advancement of Masonry. It would not become me to offer advice as to your duties to so experienced a brother. The first Grand Master of your name introduced into Scotland the practice at all events of the visitation by the Grand Lodge of private Lodges which for similar reasons we have this very year taken steps to secure for our most distant Blue Lodges. During his Grand Mastership also the office of Provincial Grand Master was created.

I have no doubt you will show the same readiness of resource and the same adherence to Masonic law in dealing with the problems old and new with which you will now find yourself face to face. From my own happy experience during the last five or six years I can confidently assure you that whatever difficulties you may have to encounter, and under all circumstances, you will have the loyal support of the members of your Grand Lodge and of your Masonic brethren all over the colony. Even during your short residence here you cannot fail to have noticed the prevalence of Freemasonry throughout Australia. Remarkable indeed from one aspect is the vigorous growth in these young and democratic communities of our ancient and conservative Society in which, whilst keeping aloof from political controversies, the prerogative of its rulers and obedience to lawful authority are inflexibly maintained. On the other hand no human institution upholds more firmly the rights of the individual. On the floor of a Freemasons' Lodge prince and peasant stand on the same plane of equality. What other body of men has paid such homage to the dignity of labour? Members of a trades' union that has existed from remote antiquity, we still use the tools of the artizan in building up our system of morality, and we seek to become experts in work for the benefit of the race. Another reason for the growth of Masonry may be found in the simplicity and comprehensiveness of its belief, which can be accepted by good men of every creed. In all our Lodges the volume of the Sacred Law is laid open before us as the chart for our journey through this world to the next. We place the square and compass upon its open page to indicate that we recognise no conflict between science and true religion, and that to us the most exact demonstrations of geometry are not more certain than the essentials of our faith. Lastly, Masonry shows in the most practical manner our brotherhood to every member of the Craft, and through the Craft to all mankind. Ours is not a Society in which the help bestowed on its members is apportioned by the tables of the actuary. The measure of our benefactions is a brother's necessity and our own ability to give him relief. You will not find in this colony Schools, Orphanages, and other buildings dedicated to Masonic Charity. I doubt myself if they are desirable in a land in which such liberal provision is made for education, or if the training of the young in any institution, however well conducted, is comparable to that which may be had in a humble virtuous home. But, M.W.G.M., you will find the principle of relief in active and salutary operation. A searching inquiry, which has recently been made into the working of our Benevolent Fund, has satisfied me that since the establishment of the South Australian Constitution, no genuine case of need has been brought under our notice without receiving substantial assistance. I have also the pleasure of announcing that this Communication of Grand Lodge will not close without marking the commencement of your rule by the most splendid benefaction for the aid of indigent and decayed Freemasons which has yet been made in Australia by any member of the Craft. Before I sit down, let me assure you that we have found that Masonic union has brought us, as Australian Masons, into closer sympathy and communication with each other, and unquestionably it has not divided us from our brethren across the seas. It has given a new significance to the language of the ancient charges—'Thus Masonry is the centre of union between good men and true, and the happy means of conciliating friendship amongst these who most otherwise have remained at a perpetual distance.' The badge of our royal patron waves over Australian as well as over British and Irish Masonry. The Grand Lodge of England has given to New South Wales a Grand Master universally admired and as universally beloved. The Grand Lodge of Scotland has done the same for South Australia. We need not go outside these walls for proof of the advantages of Masonic union. Without it we could not have the two Governors, who are here present, as the leaders of the Craft in their respective colonies, or Sir William Clarke (the most eminent of native born Australian Masons) as the leader of a united brotherhood in Victoria. Masonic union has brought our visitors and ourselves together from all parts of Australia with one common object—the good of the Craft. No wonder that many of our brethren in the colonies in which Masonic independance has not yet been achieved desire to share the benefits we happily enjoy. Although they have not yet secured the unanimity which is the vital condition of success, I cannot doubt that the obstacles to their progress (like those which we had to conquer) will soon be overcome. With the Craft united in each of these great southern lands we may expect a development of Masonry to which what has already been accomplished will be but the vestibule. And then for ages to come—as long as the Southern Cross sheds its mild radiance in the nightly sky, and points out to the mariner his path over the trackless deep—our beloved Masonry, shining like a constellation with united splendour, shall fill this hemisphere with benignant light, teaching men 'to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with (their) God.'"

Then followed an anthem, after which Lord Kintore replied, in a lengthy, well considered address, as follows:—

M.W. Grand Sirs, R.W.G. Wardens, and Brethren,—I think I shall only consult the feelings of all if I begin by thanking the M.W. Past Grand Master for the charge he has just delivered, exhibiting as it does such research, and displaying as it also does such felicity of diction. I desire very respectfully to return you my sincere and hearty thanks for the kind feeling which prompted my nomination to chair of Grand Lodge, to the brethren who brought the proposal before you, and to you all for the unanimity which marked my election, as well as for the enthusiasm which has attended my installation. Believe me I am at a total loss to know how best to attempt to assure you of my gratitude. You have, many of you, heard me protest times without number that my vocabulary has been exhausted in the effort to acknowledge worthily the constant acts of kindness which have been done to me during the half-year I have spent amongst you. The proceedings of this afternoon have immeasurably increased my difficulty. When I look round at the brilliant assemblage of Freemasons, some of whose faces are familiar to me as being faces I have seen in far distant parts of this colony; when I see present in such numbers our distinguished brethren from the great centres of Masonic life in Australia, all of whom have come to do honour to its senior Grand Lodge, and to him who has from the beginning ruled it with such ability and wisdom, and incidentally to offer the right hand of fellowship to his unworthy successor, I confess that words fail me in which to paint to you the feelings which fill my breast. Now, brethren, let me state at the outset that I entirely realise that the sole reason why I, a comparative stranger, am now filling the highest office in the power of Grand Lodge to bestow is owing to the coincidence of my happening to be at once the representative of the Queen and a Freemason. Treasuring, as I do, the recollection of the long-standing connection my family has had with Freemasonry, you can understand how grateful I am for the coincidence. I understand that the Masons of South Australia desire to manifest their loyalty and attachment to the Throne in a manner which cannot be mistaken, and so with the cordial approval of their Grand Master they have elected as their Grand Master for the ensuing year her Majesty's Governor. Brethren, loyalty to my Sovereign, respectful admiration of her blameless life and noble character, gratitude for her constant adherence to the lines of conduct marked out for the ruler of a constitutionally governed monarchy, undying affection for the old country which is her home, and a longing that a few but valued ties which, centreing in the Governor, still exist to unite us to her, should not be loosed, are sentiments which I passionately share. How then could I refrain from agreeing to place my poor services and such time as I can find available at your disposal? And yet, brethren, I do assure you that, glorying though I do in the reason which is the cause of my election, proud beyond words though I am at being permitted to occupy so high and so dignified an office, still I cannot conquer the feeling of dismay which overmasters me when I think of the sacrifice that was necessary in order to render vacant the throne of Grand Lodge. No need for me to remind you of the late Grand Master's services to this Grand Lodge and to Freemasonry. His praises are in every mouth, they are sung in every land. We are thankful that his work has been appreciated and acknowledged by Masons the world over. In laying down his office his is the pleasure of being able to reflect that he has earned the respect, the admiration, and the affection of all those very people whose loving regard he most desired to possess. Brethren, had it followed that by accepting the Grand Mastership I should have deprived Grand Lodge altogether of Bro. Chief Justice Way's services, no consideration would have been weighty enough to induce me to accept it. However, I rejoice to inform you that in a spirit of devotion to his Grand Lodge, and with the intention of adding yet another good deed to the many for which I am his debtor, M.W. Brother his Honour Chief Justice Way has consented to take the office of Pro Grand Master. Thus happily Grand Lodge will still have the full benefit of his advice and experience, and I of his much-valued help. Greatly shall I need it; often I shall have to appeal for your kind indulgence, for it is no light thing I have undertaken. I have undertaken the Mastership of a Grand Lodge renowned for its devotion to Masonic principles, celebrated for the finish and accuracy of its working, and which, though but five years old possesses the allegiance of 37 Lodges, with more quickly to follow, and which, without waiting for a larger membership, has made a good start in the inauguration of a scheme of Masonic Charity. But, more than that, the Grand Master has to see to it that he ever faithfully endeavours to adapt the words and actions of daily life to the high standard which Freemasonry and this Grand Lodge inculcates. For, brethren, it would be a bad day for Masonry if it came generally to be supposed that it consisted of a collection of mysterious signs or phrases without corresponding action. Undoubtedly we possess secrets which we may not divulge. So do other crafts. The merchant has his private mark, the professional man his sacred confidences. The priest is under most solemn vows to reveal naught of what reaches him in the confessional. But, brethren, whatever our secrets are our principles and objects we proclaim from the house-tops. They are principles which we are neither ashamed nor afraid to acknowledge, thus at once fixing a great gulf between ourselves and those secret societies which adopt principles and exist for objects which they dare not avow. We are the champions of freedom and truth. I remember how Fox Maule, Lord Dalhousie, one of the most eminent Grand Masters the Grand Lodge of Scotland has ever heard, used to point out that in the dark days when civil liberty and religious truth were both endangered by tyranny and superstition, the Lodges of Masonry were the receptacle and protection of both. Tyrants, said he, have ever dreaded Masonry, because Masons are the champions of freedom. Superstition has denounced it because Masonry is the friend and protector of the truth. Brethren, we believe in God as the Great Architect of the Universe, and we worship Him. We do not believe, as has been well said, that the clay is the potter, that the matter is the Maker, or that the atom is the Architect of the Universe. We acknowledge with gratitude the goodness of the bountiful giver of our corn and wine and oil. We commence our undertakings hoping for and asking for the Divine blessing. The Holy Bible is placed in our Lodge as a guide to our faith and practice. No dark conspiracies are found among us. We fear God, honour the Queen, and as children of the Great Father of all we teach the gospel of brotherly love, relief and truth, of loyalty and charity, of virtue and honour. We would stretch a helping hand to him that is in necessity; we inculcate universal benevolence without distinction of class or colour, or country or creed; we look for integrity and charity in every action between man and man; we enjoin subjection to civil authority and loyalty to our rightful Sovereign. We would obey God's will so far as we know it, we would carry ourselves while we live as good men honest and true, and in dying we would cast ourselves humbly and hopefully into the depths of infinite love. Brethren, such are our principles and objects. I rejoice to think that many and many a time has Masonry given tangible proofs of unselfish generosity, of nobleness of purpose, and of being a brotherhood of philanthropy limited only by the bounds of the habitable globe, which have commanded the respect and admiration of mankind. Let us look to it that we fall not too woefully short of so high an ideal, that we, so far as in us lies, carry on these aims in this work-a-day world, and so find our greatest delight in lightening the sorrows of others. Brethren, I cannot sit down without offering the grateful thanks of Grand Lodge to the M.W. the Grand Masters of New South Wales and Victoria and their Grand Officers for their attendance and kind services. It comes to me personally as a token of great encouragement, and to us all as a most valued expression of good will. In your name and in mine I thank them. Brethren, I have done. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for all your generous kindness—kindness as warm as any I have received in South Australia. I cannot say more. May the Great Architect of the Universe have this Grand Lodge, our sister Grand Lodges, and each and all of these great colonies for ever in His most holy keeping.

Then followed the appointment of P.G.M. Way as Pro Grand Master, and he having been saluted, at once addressed the Grand Master, introducing to his notice Brother W. H. Gray, an old member of the Craft in South Australia, whose wish it was to mark the commencement of the rule of his Excellency the Governor over Freemasonry in the colony by making a gift for the benefit of the Craft. It was his purpose to help towards the erection of a home for indigent and decayed Freemasons, and with this aim he offered to the Grand Lodge a piece of land of considerable extent, and also considerable value. Bro. Gray intended that the gift should be of a permanent character. The land he gave was to be made over to the Craft in perpetuity for the purpose of having built upon it houses for the reception of poor members of the Craft, their widows, and their children. He had no doubt that it would be interesting to the M.W.G.M. and to the members of the Grand Lodge to know the value of this gift. It consisted of fourteen acres of land adjoining the town of Glenelg. Bro. Gray was offered not long ago the sum of £1500 for this very piece of land, and he (the Pro Grand Master) was informed by one of the most practical and sagacious dealers in property in the colony that he would be ready if the land were in the market to give £2000 for it. It was the intention some time ago of the Government of South Australia to acquire the land Bro. Gray offered for the purpose of building a fort upon it—but at some future time voyagers up the Gulf of St. Vincent, instead of seeing upon this land the formidable instruments of artillery it was originally intended to place there, would have the gratification of beholding one of the outposts of Masonic benevolence. He presented to the Grand Master Bro. Gray, in order that he might with his own hands transfer the title deeds conveying this most magnificent gift to the Order.

Bro. Gray then stepped forward to the dais and handed over the deed. This was contained in a handsomely-illuminated cover adorned with Masonic emblems. The Grand Master said he was sure the Grand Lodge would join with him in extending sincere thanks to Bro. Gray for the munificent gift which it had been in his heart to present to the Order in South Australia for all times. He accepted the deed offered very heartily, and he presented to Bro. Gray in their name and in his, own cordial thanks for the generous donation.

Then came a presentation to the Pro G. Master, which took the form of a Past Grand Master's jewel, and which was handed over by Bro. Muecke P.G.M. with appropriate remarks and congratulations on the successful termination of Bro. Way's term of office as Grand Master. The gift was acknowledged in grateful terms, and then a vote of thanks was passed to Lord Carrington, for his services as Installing Master, while Bro. Sir W. Clarke, Grand Master of Victoria, took the opportunity of presenting an address to him, in recognition of his services at the inauguration of the Grand Lodge of Victoria. Bro. Sir W. Clarke next presented an address to Pro G.M. Way, as First Principal of the Supreme Grand Chapter of South Australia, which, in turn, was acknowledged. Grand Lodge was then closed. A banquet was held in the evening, under the presidency of the Grand Master, who was supported by his numerous distinguished guests. Various toasts were honoured, and a most interesting event in Australian Freemasonry was brought to a successful conclusion.

MASONIC LIFE.

SOUTH.

The sun is at meridian, his beams
Fall gently o'er the grateful, waiting earth;
They spread their glory in resplendent streams
Of light and warmth, celestial in their birth.

'Tis now that labour seeks the verdant shade,
And casts aside the implements of toil—
The weary scythe, the sickle, axe or spade,
Wherewith he robs or decorates the soil.

His stalwart frame, his muscles tense and firm,
Relax their force, and woo reclining rest;
His humble meal fills up the midday term,
And brings contentment to his brawny breast.

Thus well refreshed, he rises to his feet,
And grasps the instruments of work once more;
Submits again to ardent solar heat,
And exercises till the day is o'er.

The Junior Warden marks the midday sun,
And bids our labour cease, and rest begin;
So that amidst the tasks so well begun,
A pause may be, and strength be gained to win.

He represents our lives when at the best,
When strength of frame and intellect abound,
When full enjoyment waits on work or rest,
And every aim with hope is wreathed around.

WEST.

The sun sinks low, but from his fading fire
Spring out rich hues of glory; o'er the skies
They spread, and when they finally expire
A gentle hush o'er darkening nature lies.

The worker now has left his scene of toil,
And with the sun has sought his earned repose;
No ill performed his appetite may spoil,
Or fill his musings ere his eyelids close.

The Senior Warden in his place appears
To mark the sun when sitting in the west;
He warns that labour to its closing nears,
And, fast approaching, comes retiring rest.

To us he shows the end of all our days,
When life and energy are waning fast;
The tottering steps and silvered hair betrays
The lack of strength which boldly filled the past.

EAST.

But now behold! The eastern sky is red,
And night's dark curtain slowly rolls away;
The moon out-splendoured with the stars has fled,
And, proudly rising, beams the God of Day.

The toiler, fresh and cheerful, seeks again
The field of labour, feeling healthful glow;
His voice elate, rings out in hearty strain,
His pulses quicken as the breezes blow.

The glorious east! 'Tis there the Master stands,
To cheer our rising from the gloom of night—
To bid us lay aside sepulchral bands,
And bask in rays of God's eternal light.

An emblem he of that bright morn to come,
When we shall cast aside the sleep of death,
And gladly quitting this our mortal home,
Obtain new life from God's immortal breath.

WORK.

The sturdy manhood of Masonic life,
When noble aspirations move the soul,
To meet dishonour in unflinching strife,
Is 'neath the Junior Warden's stern control.

REST.

And when Masonic age upon us calls,
And we must lay the tools of labour by,
The Senior Warden's gavel gently falls,
To tell us time is o'er, and we must die.

REWARD.

And then the Master holds his reign of love,
Gives his command to separate from earth.
We swift obey, and in the halls above
Receive the guerdon of eternal birth.

BURNS AND THE TARBOLTON FREEMASONS.

(From the Scotsman, 13th November 1889.)

THERE is no period in Burns' life when the activity of his mind and body are more observable than the time he spent in the neighbourhood of Tarbolton. That period embraced the years from 1777, when William Burness, the poet's father, entered into the occupancy of the farm of Lochlee, in Tarbolton parish, till 1788, when the poet removed to Ellisland, and fixed himself down to farming on his own account. The Kilmarnock edition (1786) and the Edinburgh edition (1787) of his works were covered in the interval between his entrance into and removal from the district. From his brother's remarks it can be gathered that there was no time when Burns showed more fully his enjoyment of life, and yet the period is fraught with incidents that might naturally have operated on his constitutional tendency towards melancholy. It was at Lochlee, on 13th February 1784, that his father died, after a manful struggle against poverty and hardship. This in a double sense put an end to the lease of the farm of Lochlee, and it was then that the brothers Robert and Gilbert tried their fortunes at farming as a joint venture a few miles further south, at Mossgiel. It was during the residence of the family at Lochlee that Burns was sent for six months to further his education at Kirkoswald, and a couple of years afterwards he showed his interest in intellectual pursuits by starting, along with his brother and one or two others similarly inclined, what was called the Tarbolton Bachelors' Club or Literary Society. This Literary Society has been resuscitated in recent years, under the auspices of the parish minister, and is carried on with much appearance of success. Very shortly after the formation of the Bachelors' Club, Burns was initiated in Tarbolton as a Freemason, and it is more particularly with this latter connection that we wish to deal in this article. Fortunately, the minute books of the Lodges exist now as they were in Burns' time, and an inspection of them affords much amusement as well as instruction. Burns became a Mason on 4th July 1781, when the family had been about four years in the parish, and when he himself must have just started his unfortunate flax venture in Irvine, which morally did so much by its associations to damage the poet's character, and was so disastrous financially. His initiation took place in an old building then used as a public house, and still standing at the end of the village of Tarbolton, nearest the Willie's Mill of "Death and Dr. Hornbook." The Lodge was named St. David's, but at the end of 1781, after he had been raised to the position of a Master Mason, Burns and some others left St. David's and re-started St. James's Lodge, which for a time had been worked in combination with St. David's. It is in connection with the minutes and relics of St. James's that Burns figures prominently as a Mason, three of the minutes having been completely written by his own hand, and about thirty of them having been signed by him as Depute Master. The minute-book of St. David's is private property, and was lent to the International Exhibition at Glasgow. That of St. James's has always remained the property of the Lodge despite the utmost exertions of various Burns Museum authorities. Neither persuasion nor money has ever succeeded in removing the property from its original owners, and its value is attested by a holograph certificate on the fly-leaf stating that it was re-bound by Mr. M'Kie, the well-known Kilmarnock collector and publisher. Mr. M'Kie did this during a visit to Tarbolton in 1853.

The rules of St. James's present some interesting features as indices to the custom prevailing during Burns's time. It is therein laid down that "at the third stroke of the Grand Master's hammer strict silence shall be maintained under a penalty of twopence." Every transgression of a rule seems to have been followed by penalties in the shape of fines and other modes of punishment. "Any speaker who shall deviate from the subject in debate has a like penalty inflicted upon him, and any brother using another affrontively shall be extruded." More severe in its consequences is the "holding up of funds belonging to the Lodge by a brother," such a crime being visited by the exclusion of such brother from the Lodge for ever.

"Whosoever shall break a drinking glass at any meeting shall be liable to the instant payment of sixpence sterling for it, and to the same sum for every other he may break before he leave the room or company." Those not at meetings within an hour of the fixed time shall be fined twopence, but well grounded reasons "will excuse the transgressors" from the penalty. It is also provided "that if any brother be so unfortunate as to have disordered his senses by strong liquors, and thereby rendered himself incapable of behaving decently, peaceably and kindly towards those around him; such brother coming to the Lodge in that condition to the disturbance and disgust of his brethren shall be prudently ordered away to some place of safety in the meantime, and at the next meeting shall submit to such censure and admonition from the chair, and to such a fine inflicted by the Lodge on him as to them may appear proper to punish his crime, and to deter him from it in all time coming.

This rule is admirably clear and full, so far as it goes, but not a word is there in it about the punishment meted out to those unfortunate enough to disorder their senses during the course of a meeting. The ideal of the Lodge is a high one, as can be gathered from the following:—

"Whereas a Lodge always means a company of worthy men and circumspect, gathered together in order to promote charity, friendship, civility and good neighbourhood; it is enacted that no member of this Lodge shall speak slightingly, detractingly, or calumniously of any of his brethren behind their backs, so as to damage them in their professions or reputations, without any certain grounds;" and any member committing such an offence must humble himself by asking "on his knees the pardon of such person or persons as his folly or malice hath aggrieved." Obstinate refusal to comply with the finding of the brethren assembled shall be met by expulsion "from the Lodge with every mark of ignominy and disgrace that is consistent with justice and Freemasonry."

These rules were all written on the formation of the Lodge, the date of the first charter under Mother Kilwinning being 17th May 1771, and under Grand Lodge 26th May 1774, both of these original charters being still amongst the muniments of the Lodge. But the other rule was added under 7th December 1785, and Signed "Robt. Burns D.M."

"That whoever stands as Master, shall be bound at the entry of a new member for that member's dues, if the money is not paid, or security such as the Lodge shall approve of given."

Other minutes refer to orders for drinking glasses, confirming what may be inferred from some of the rules above quoted, that the meetings were to a great extent of a convivial nature. A good deal of attention seems to have been given to the financial affairs of the Lodge, frequent mention being met with in the records regarding "arrears," and some curious features are disclosed. Thus we learn that Brother Hugh Wilson, Monkton, being considerably behind with his quarter accounts, it was agreed by the Lodge that they should be liquidated to two shillings, which he paid, and was admitted a member." Referring to the same general subject, it is noted "that no Brother that is behind with his quarterly accounts shall have any vote at their meetings, nor be allowed to wear the Lodge's aprons." "John Hall having been danceted for his entire money, the Lodge agreed to mitigate the expense to two shillings, which he is 'to pay at next procession.'" In Burns's letter to the Lodge, written from Edinburgh on the 23rd August 1787 (during one of his frequent short visits to the capital subsequent to the famous visit when he was made so much of) —he urges the brethren to "spare" debtors to the Lodge who "confess debt and crave days," and though the minutes breathe threatenings on many occasions, mercy seems, on the whole, to have tempered justice. Thus we read that the Lodge "gave up to Brother George Wilson his bill bearing date the 23rd of June 1781, 9s 4d, including interest, finding him at present in distress." On occasion, however, they went further. Those who had not paid their entries were to be prosecuted we are told, "for which purpose they have appointed the Secretary to write to John Hamilton, Esq., of Sundrum, for a warrant to call them before him as a Justice of the Piece." Decreet seems to have been procured against certain members, and at one meeting the brethren discuss how far they shall give effect to such powers. Frequent references are made in the minutes to bills and promissory notes given by the members to the Lodge. As an instance of this, it is recorded on 7th September 1785 that "Brother Hugh Steven granted his promissory note with caution for twelve shillings and sixpence sterling as his entery money," this being one of the minutes bearing the Poet's signature, and a full minute written in the hand of Gilbert Burns and signed by him as Junior Warden refers to the same subject. It is as follows:—

"Tarbolton, 4th August 1786.—This evening the Lodge met, when Quintin Rone and James Good, being before entered apprentices, were passed and raised, and gave promissory notes, with caution for their entry moneys."

The cabinet containing the funds of the Lodge and the Treasurer's books were periodically examined, the composing of a letter to "all the brethren indebted to the Lodge, either by bill or quarterly accounts," being referred to after one of these audits, and we can be tolerably certain that Brother Burns had the lion's share in this composition, prosaic even as is the subject. It is pleasing to note that the Lodge had other channels for their money than that caused by the drinking customs of the time. From a minute dated 5th September 1787, it is evident that benefactions to indigent members formed one item of expenditure—as "it was agreed to give John M'Millan, a brother, three shillings, he being in distress by a misfortune."

Burns must have been the life and soul of the St. James's Lodge in more ways than one. The minutes show that there were more meetings when he was an Office Bearer than at any other period. Though Burns is known to have been a member from the end of 1781, and it is not till 27th July 1784 that we have the record of his apointment to a position of influence in the Lodge. The Deputy Mastership was then conferred upon him—a position that carried with it the active duties of the Grand Master, who was not frequently present at the meetings. All assemblies at which the Master was not present were under the presidency of the Deputy Master, and it is in this capacity that Burns has signed so many of the minutes. There are three short minutes written in full by the poet. The first is dated "Tarbolton, 1st September 1784," that is unsigned, a circumstance not uncommon amongst the records of that time. The minutes bears marks of literary conceit at any rate, the antithesis being worthy of note. It is almost ludicrous to find the world-famed poet writing this—

"This night the Lodge met and ordered four pounds of candles and one quire of eightpence paper for the use of the Lodge, which money was laid out by the Treasurer, and the candles and paper laid in accordingly."

The other minutes, written fully in the poet's hand, are as follows:—

"Tarbolton, June 23, 1786.—This night the Lodge met, and Robert Andrew, a brother of St. David's, Tarbolton, was admitted by unanimous vote, gratis; likewise James Good, having been duely recommended was entered an apprentice. R. Burns, D.M." "Tarbolton, August 18th (no year, but from the dates immediately before and after, sure to be 1786.)—This night the Lodge met, and James Tennant, from Ochiltree, having been recommended was admitted accordingly. Robt. Burns, D.M."

It is a curious coincidence that two of the three minutes written in full by Robert Burns are near to the one written in the hand of Gilbert Burns, the three being in view at the one opening of the book. Burns, who, whether living at Lochlee or Mossgiel, must have had several miles to walk in order to attend the meetings of the Lodge, was most attentive to his duties. The first minute which he signed as Depute Master is dated 29th June 1785, and the last to which his name is adhibited is dated 23rd May 1788; but this does not mark his final departure from the Lodge, as Dr. Robert Chambers erroneously states in his "Land of Burns." On the 21st October 1788, and again on the 11th November of the same year, the minutes record that Bro. Robert Burns was in the chair, though his signature was not attached. Both of these meetings took place at Mauchline, and they must have been held during a flying visit from Ellisland, as Burns settled there on 12th June 1788, a letter of his dated 13th June, stating that "this is the second day he had been on his farm in Dumfriesshire." Between the first and last signature, Burns has in all signed his name 29 times, and on one occasion he has his initials placed to a postscript; but one of the signatures has been cut out by some unscrupulous admirer. The theft occurs in the second last minute that was signed by the poet, the signature being that of the main part of the minute—the minute having been divided into three. Burns has signed a "P.S." to the same minute, and also an addition to this "P.S." connected by the words "also at same time," and to the last of these hangs a tale. The gentleman in Tarbolton who had charge of the minute book was at one time showing it to a visitor, but being called away for a moment to attend a sick daughter in another room, the visitor and the book were left unwatched. After the visitor departed the gentleman was asked by his daughter to look to the book, as she was afraid something would be found wrong. Whilst her father was with her she heard either a knife or a pair of scissors at work, and she was right in the surmise that one of the minutes had been tampered with. On discovering this, the visitor was communicated with, and ordered to return the stolen property or suffer the consequences, and the cutting was returned. The stolen part is now neatly pasted in at its original place, and being on the opposite page from the blank left by the cut out signature, eloquent testimony is borne to the rapacity of collectors and the value placed upon relics of our national bard. Strange as the omission may appear, there is no mention of the poet's demission of office, nor of his leaving the district, even though Burns himself looked so favourably on the position he held amongst to Tarbolton Masons as to address a poem to them as his farewell. This was in 1786, when he seriously contemplated emigrating to the West Indies. It is curious also to note the manner in which Burns signs his name; in this there is great variety. In regard to the spelling, he continues the "Burness" up till 1st March 1786—the first under the more familiar "Burns" being of date 25th May of the same year. Whilst Burns signs "Burness" so long, it is noteworthy that the references to him in the text of the minutes are always spelt "Burns" unless on one occasion when the name had first been spelt "Burns," but afterwards altered to "Burness," probably by the poet himself, or at least by his instructions, as his name appears at the foot of this minute as "Burness." In regard to the Christian name, it appears once before Burness as "Robert," and thirteen times it precedes the same spelling as "Robt." Before the later spelling of Burns we have it once only in full as "Robert," a single time as "R," and eleven times as "Robt."—this latter having, it is thus seen, the greatest favour with the poet. Amongst a long list of signatures of members many of them having their Mason's marks attached, we find Burns signing himself in full "Robert Burns," and adding his Masonic mark of nine points on the same line. This signature has less resemblance to the familiar and undoubtedly genuine form than any of the others, but there is no date to it, and it is just possible that the conditions under which he signed were what the Lodge might term unfortunate.

Burns's younger brother, Gilbert, was entered, passed, and raised as a brother on the 1st March 1786 (the last date on which the poet signed Burness), and must, for a time at least, have taken an active part in the affairs of the Lodge. We find Gilbert signing the minutes on five separate occasions between 11th December 1786 and 21st December 1787, one of these, as already said, being written by him in full. The last reference to either of the brothers occurs on 18th November and 20th November 1788, on which dates the text of the minutes states that Brother Gilbert Burns occupied the chair. These last-named meetings were held in Mauchline, and form the closing testimony to the warm interest maintained for six or seven years by Robert, and the shorter period by Gilbert, in the affairs of St. James's, Tarbolton, Lodge.

Burns signs the minute relating to the visit of Professor Dugald Stewart to the Lodge, who at that time was tenant of Catrine House, and was a friend of the poet. The record is as follows:—

"'A deputation of the Lodge met at Mauchline on 25th July 1787, and entered Brother Alexander Allison of Barmuir an apprentice. Likewise admitted Brothers Professor Stewart of Cathrine, and Claud Alexander, Esq., of Ballochmyle; Claud Nielson, Esq., Paisley; John Farquhar Gray, Esq., of Gilmilnscroft; and Dr. George Grierson, Glasgow, honorary members of this Lodge,' the minute being signed Robt. Burns, D.M., in very faint ink."

John Wilson, who was parish teacher of Tarbolton, and the Dr. Hornbook of Burns's well-known poem, was Secretary to the Lodge from 8th August 1782 till some time in 1787, and in that capacity wrote many of the minutes. Two of them are signed by him, one as "Master pro tempore" and the other as "M.P.T." This last minute shows his adhesion to the Lodge after his successor in the Secretaryship had been appointed, and it is not shown that he was at the date the holder of any office other than that of ordinary membership. Immediately succeeding Wilson's first signature as "Master pro tempore" he finds an imitator in James M'Donald, the succeeding chairman, who signs his name and adds "P.T." merely, a thing that occurs also once afterwards in the writing of another temporary president.

Two of the Grand Masters sign the minutes occasionally, viz.:—Mr. James Montgomerie of Coilsfield, and Mr. James Dalrymple of Orangefield—but these are the only names adhibited of the half-dozen Grand Masters who held office during the years embraced in the minutes. The others were Mr. John Hamilton of Sundrum—a name still honoured in the county in the person of the present proprietor; Mr. Mungo Smith, Mr. Alexander Montgomerie, of Coilsfield (a branch of the Eglinton family, whose estate had to be parted with after the Eglinton tournament) and Mr. Gavin Hamilton, the well-known friend and correspondent of Burns. The name of the Montgomeries suggests the immortality shed upon the family and their estate by the poet's works. The gratitude of the Lodge is expressed at one meeting to Captain Montgomerie, the Right Worshipful Master of the Lodge, for his trouble in recovering their colours, for some time illegally retained by the Lodge of St. David.

The Lodge of St. James, Tarbolton, still possesses a number of relics associated with Burns and the Lodge. The chair and footstool used by him as Depute-Master are still doing service, their strength being apparently as great as ever; a compass and square, very likely those referred to in a minute bearing date 15th September 1785 as having been ordered, are exhibited; the Bible, a copy of the authorised version dated 1775, is the one which was paid for on 29th July 1786 as a "new Bible per Brother Burns, 13s," and on which the price is still pencilled on a corner of the fly-leaf. An old ink bottle with cover, all of solid lead, whose purchase is minuted during Burns' time, remains also as a curious relic. The small mason's mallet used by Burns when acting Depute-Master forms another interesting bond between himself and the Lodge, as is also the Lodge silver badge, referred to by the poet in his "Farewell to St. James's Lodge." Not the least valuable of the Lodge Burnsiana is the letter, carefully framed to allow the address on the back to be read as well as the main body of the epistle, already alluded to here.

Tarbolton in its main outlines is not materially altered since Burns' days. The click of the handloom weaver's shuttle still forms the most important mechanical music of the place. It is one of the mysteries which can only be explained by the general soberity and rigid economy of the people how they can at all maintain such a respectable appearance on their miserable earnings. Silk handkerchiefs, amongst other articles, are the chief product of the looms, and by dint of long hours and constant work 8s or 9s weekly is considered a good wage for a man. It is highly complimentary to the moral qualities of the workers to say that they live respectably on such an income. The Lorimer Institute, the Public School, and a few other buildings are the most important additions to the houses existing in Burns' time, and now the village is about to commemorate in a lasting manner the poet's connection by a Freemasons' Hall, which is being erected. Up till now the Lodge has met in a room of one of the inns, but in a short time they will have the pleasure of meeting under their own vine and fig tree. Their own, we said, but not altogether so, as about £150 will remain as a debt at the opening unless some generous admirers of the poet come forward and subscribe the needful. The Lodge have had the benefit of a bequest of £200 made by the late Mr. Alexander Munnoch, of Crunzett, Stirling, and the members have done much amongst themselves to meet the cost. They are hopeful that in some way or other the funds will be forthcoming, and as the hall will be a public convenience as well as a place of meeting for the Lodge, their hopes have a solid basis to sustain them.

The Devon Lodge, No. 1138, has unanimously elected Bro. C. Dobell S.W. as W.M., and Bro. H. Martin P.M. as Treasurer, for the ensuing year.

Bro. T. S. Eyre was, on the 12th instant, elected W.M. of St. John's Lodge, No. 1247. Bro. J. R. Lord Treasurer and Bro. W. H. Phillips Tyler were re-elected.

The members of the Love and Honour Lodge, No. 75, Falmouth, have elected Bro. T. R. Grylls S.W., as W.M., and re-elected Bros. W. F. Newman Treasurer, and Brother J. N. Francis Tyler.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—With darkening days and changing temperature the digestion becomes impaired, the liver disordered, and the mind despondent, unless the cause of the irregularity be expelled from the blood and body by such an alterative as these Pills. They directly attack the source of the evil, thrust out all impurities from the circulation, restore the distempered organs to their natural state, and correct all defective or contaminated secretions. Such an easy means of instituting health, strength, and cheerfulness should be applied by all whose stomachs are weak, whose minds are much harassed, or whose brains are overworked. Holloway's is essentially a blood tempering medicine, whereby its influence reaches the remotest fibre of the frame and effects a universal good.

PEEP-HOLES IN MASONRY.

SECRECY and silence are cardinal principles in Freemasonry. They are the safeguards of the Craft's existence, the guarantees of its perpetuity. Without them there can be no Freemasonry. Were its initiates permitted to disclose the "secret art and mystery," it would be abandoned to the profane—the mass of whom are not fitted by nature to comprehend it, and by whom it would be held up to the scorn and derision of men morally and mentally blind. Hence the Craft neither authorises nor pardons any action which tends to expose it to the world. Hence all peep-holes into Masonry are contrary to its genius and forbidden by its Landmarks. Secrecy is one of these Landmarks, which no one may remove. And yet, how the vanity and vacuity of some members of the Fraternity have blinded their minds, so that they have been unconsciously guilty of making an innovation in the body of Masonry.

Peep-holes are of two kinds, actual and metaphorical. Alas! both of them exist in some Masonic jurisdictions. Qui capit ille facit.

Some Lodges have actual peep-holes into them—holes in their outer door, covered only with a sliding cap! They do not have two doors, an inner door and an outer door, but only one, and that with a peep-hole in it! And yet these style themselves Masonic Lodges! They certainly have departed from the ancient custom of the Craft, and have adopted a twopenny contrivance, a cheap substitute for a secret door by some recent society, which bears the same relation to Freemasonry that a rushlight does to the sun. The Lodge which occupies a room that has a peep-hole into it should never punish a member for exposing its secrets, since it sets the example of possibly opening Masonry to the world. No Lodge Room is properly constructed unless it has both an inner and an outer door, with an inner vestibule between them, and both of the doors without peep-holes.

Another peep-hole is a written or printed ritual. Notwithstanding a part of the "art and mystery" is contained in this ritual, and hence the ritual is esoteric, it is not permissible to commit it to writting, but it should always be communicated by oral instruction only. In some jurisdictions, which have not adhered to the Landmarks of the Craft, a part, and sometimes a larger part, of this ritual, it is to be feared, is written or printed. In substantiation of this fear we quote from the Sydney (Australia) Freemason, of 7th September 1889:

> The Grand Secretary has, with thoughtful courtesy, forwarded to us, on behalf of the Ritual Committee, an advance copy of the new Ritual for our perusal and criticism. The Ritual has been printed in handy form, with a flap cover, and will thus be found most convenient.
> The duty of preparing a Ritual for uniform work throughout the Lodges under the United Grand Lodge was an onerous one, requiring a thorough knowledge of the "working" of four different Constitutions, and a discriminative ability to compile a mode of working the three degrees, which would reduce to a minimum the changes absolutely necessary in the text. The English Ritual has been taken as the basis of the work, which was a wise decision, as about three-fourths of the Blue Lodges have practically worked under that Ritual. * * * * * *
> The old Scotch Lodges will, perhaps, find the new Ritual somewhat awkward for a while, but, with a little study, the new mode of working can be given with effect.

So the Masonic ritual—the ritual, too, spelled with a big R—"has been printed in handy form, with a flap cover, and will thus be found most convenient." Yes, "most convenient" for men without minds, or memories, or apprehension of the dignity or secrecy of Freemasonry. We are aware of the fact that in many of the so-called "higher degrees" (higher in what? certainly not in an appreciation of the Masonic cardinal principles of secrecy and silence) it is customary to have written or printed rituals, but the measure of the distance of their removal from Freemasonry is found in these very printed rituals. The quotation we have made has reference to Blue Lodges in New South Wales, and the Grand Secretary of England appears to be referred to as sending a printed ritual for use in the Australian Lodges. This is a peep-hole which needs to be closed. There can be no safety, no secrecy, no silence, to Masonry, where a printed ritual is used!

But there are lesser peep-holes, although the lesser generally lead down to the greater. Some Brethren advocate "popularising" Freemasonry by "exposing" a portion of its secret ceremonies to invited guests selected from the profane public. They can do this for no other reason than to receive plaudits from those profane, with the hope that some of them also may be thereby led to seek Masonic initiation. It is an advertising scheme to obtain candidates, where it is not purely a clap-trap. In many instances it is both. The usual form this peep-hole assumes is that of a "public installation of the Officers of a Lodge." The public have no relation to the Lodge, its Officers are not their Officers, and they never can obtain admission to the Lodge afterwards as profanes; but, nevertheless, they are invited there then, and a part of the work of Masonry is exposed to their gaze. In some Masonic jurisdictions they have done this so often that, no doubt, they regard it as an ancient Landmark, and they probably look in horror upon those Masonic jurisdictions which forbid the practice, as committing a breach of ancient Masonic usage and law! And yet, what thoughtful Freemason will maintain that it is either right or appropriate to instal, in the presence of the profane, the Officers of a Lodge, which Officers are to preside exclusively over initiates.

It is the pardonable pride of Freemasonry in Pennsylvania that it permits no peep-holes in Masonry. To know what the "art and mystery" is among us, you must learn it in the good old way. You may not peep at it through a hole in the Lodge room door; you may not read it in a written or printed ritual; and you may not, if you are a profane, witness the installation of the Officers of a Lodge. Here, at least, the ancient usages, customs and Landmarks of Freemasonry are maintained in their pristine purity.

THE THEATRES, &c.

—:o—

Princess's.—The management have undoubtedly acted wisely in withdrawing "The Gold Craze" and replacing it by Messrs. Henry Pettitt and George R. Sims' powerful drama "Master and Man." The Princess's has for some very many years been looked upon as one of the theatres wherein we may hope to see pieces of the melodrama stamp, so that the present production will not be out of place. Although the main incidents in "Master and Man" have been used times without number, such well versed authors as Messrs. Pettitt and Sims are sure to serve them up in a new shape, and in the present case they have not failed. Starting with the heroine (Hester Thornbury) choosing for a husband the hero (Jack Walton) instead of the villian (Robert Carlton), it is only true melodramatic form that Carlton and his accomplice should hold the upper hand, and the hero and heroine suffer all the wrongs imaginable. Among these we may mention that Walton is unable to get work through scandal being put about by a man named Humpy Logan; later on Walton is sentenced to seven years imprisonment for a crime committed by another. He, however, escapes, and after seeing his wife, and evading the police who come to arrest him, manages to get to the Ironworks where Logan is foreman. The men of the works are dissatisfied and being led on by a man named Jem Burleigh, whose wife Carlton and Logan have betrayed, they attempt to put the latter in the furnace, but he is saved by Walton. This scene is one of the strongest that it has ever been our lot to witness, and Mr. Robert Pateman's acting is so grand that it cannot fail to draw all London. This actor has never been seen to greater advantage; his fright is so cleverly depicted, the nervous excitement so wonderfully shown that he thoroughly deserved the cheering that was awarded him by the crowded audience. After this scene Carlton gets Hester's child stolen from her, and naturally works all the ills he possibly can, only to be finally check-mated in the last scene. This is brought about by Humpy Logan turning round and helping Walton. There is some comic business throughout, which is in the well-known vein of the authors. A powerful company has been selected to interpret the piece, and of these Mr. Pateman bears the palm. This well known actor has done many good things in his time, but we can say without fear of contradiction that his Humpy Logan is the best he has yet accomplished. At the outset Mr. Pateman gets well within his part, and never leaves it. His third act is one not likely to be forgotten, while in the next he also comes out well. Mr. Henry Neville is a bright and manly hero, while Mr. Charles Dalton is a cool and deliberate villain. Messrs. Sidney Howard and E. W. Gardiner with Miss Fanny Brough look well after the comic scenes, and Miss Bella Pateman gained the sympathy of her audience by her sound acting as Hester. Mr. J. H. Barnes has not much to do as Jem Burleigh, but he did his little well, while Mr. Bassett Roe makes a model inspector of police, care having undoubtedly been bestowed on this small part by him. A special word of praise is due to little Marie Pearl for her acting as Hester's child, and to Mrs. Frank Huntley as Hester's aunt. In conclusion, we feel sure that "Master and Man" will draw, not only during the holidays, but for some time after.

Globe.—A company, which, under the management of Mr. F. R. Benson, has attained considerable popularity in the provinces, appeared here on Thursday last, in Shakespeare's delightful comedy, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," and it is intended to present several of the poet's more popular plays during the season. There can be no doubt at the present time, when the modern drama and farcical comedy are the favourite dramatic condiments of the London public, that the provincial performer has much greater advantages for a Shakespearian training than his or her metropolitan brother or sister. Mr. Benson's company are all well trained in the old traditions, and give a fairly good rendering of the text, at the same time we trust that when the members settle down to their work, we may be favoured with better elocution. With this hint we may mention that Mr. Sidney Price, though undertaking the part at a short notice, was an excellent representative of Theseus, while Lysander and Demetrius were well sustained by Mr. Benson and Mr. H. Ross respectively. The Hermia of Miss Ada Ferrar fully deserved the applause bestowed, and Miss Marion Grey, though a delicate Amazon Queen, spoke her lines with due emphasis. We can hardly congratulate Miss Kate Rorke upon her rendering of Helena, and at times she could not be heard in spite of the smallness of the theatre. Mr. A. Brydone played the small part of Egeus with vigour, and Mr. G. M. Howard delivered his address to the court with good effect. Perhaps the best elocutionist of all was Mr. Otho Stuart, who undertook the character of Oberon in a most satisfactory manner. Mrs. Benson was the Fairy Queen, and Miss G. Geraldine made a very vivacious Puck. The immortal Bottom was carefully portrayed by Mr. G. R. Weir, and with Messrs. H. A. Forde, G. F. Black, S. Phillips, H. G. Tomkins, and A. Grenville, as Quince, Snug, Flute, Snout, and Starveling, caused considerable amusement. The piece is exquisitely mounted, the woodland scenery with its lights and shades being especially attractive; while the numerous fairies, elves, and sprites have been admirably trained, and in the third act "the dream" may be said to be fully realised. Mendelssohn's music is largely drawn upon to add its charm to the general effect; indeed all that long, expensive and careful study can achieve has been employed to render the play successful. A morning performance will be given on Boxing Day, and every Saturday till further notice, so that Pater Familias need not be at a loss for a treat for his little folks during the holidays.

The Loveliest Women in London A story in ten scenes. By Campbell Rae-Brown. London: DEAN AND SON, 160A Fleet-street, E.C.

For those who are fond of sensational novels, written in bright and interesting style, we can recommend the above. The author has developed a good and exciting plot in a very little space, which could easily have been made to fill a book two or three times the size of the present one. For a companion on a journey, or for a short read for an evening or two, "The Loveliest Women in London" will prove most attractive. It is printed in good bold type, on good paper, and will well repay those who may read it.

We have received through Mr. Wm. McDougle, 11 Newgate Street, E.C., a copy of the testimonial awarded to the Stewards of the late Festival in connection with the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys in recognition of their exertions on the occasion. It is a magnificent piece of illuminated work, the groundwork being of a creamy brown colour, the heading being composed of letters in shaded blue and pink with gold bordering, and is surmounted by the royal crown. The wording of the testimonial is neatly printed in black with red capitals, and is signed by Bro. Frederick Binckes, the Secretary. At the foot of the address are two medallions, one containing the Treasurer's insignia and the other the monogram (in pink and blue on a gold ground) of V.W. Bro. Richard Eve, Patron of the Institution, who was the Chairman on the occasion. The whole is surrounded with a delicately designed scroll work in light blue and pink, with a broad border of gold. It is decidedly quite a work of art, and will doubtless be highly prized by the fortunate recipients.

On Tuesday, the 10th instant, Bros. W. E. Lukies and J. C. R. Crewes were re-elected as W.M. and Treasurer respectively, and Bro. John Langdon Tyler, of the Fortitude Lodge, No. 131.

St. Martin Lodge, No. 510, on Tuesday, the 10th instant, elected Bros. W. H. Stanton S.W. the W.M., T. White Treasurer, and B. Penwarden Tyler.

The usual New Year's entertainment to the old folks of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons, Croydon, will take place on Wednesday, the 1st January next. A special second class saloon carriage will be reserved by the 12·57 a.m. train from Charing Cross, or 1·9 p.m. from Cannon Street, for East Croydon.

PROV. GRAND LODGE OF DERBYSHIRE.

THE annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Derbyshire was held on Tuesday, the 17th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Gower Street, Derby, under the presidency of the Right Worshipful Bro. Haughton Charles Okeover P.G. Warden England, Deputy Provincial Grand Master. The attendance of brethren was exceptionally large, probably as a consequence of the intimation that the election of a new Provincial Grand Treasurer would be included in the business of the day. When the Deputy Provincial Grand Master took his seat, he was supported by the following Provincial Grand Officers:—Bros. A. Woodiwiss S.W., J. H. Orme J.W., Rev. H. Price and Rev. E. E. Morris Chaplains, Thomas Cox Treasurer, William Naylor Secretary, J. D. Wragg S.D., R. Knowles J.D., R. Slater Supt. of Works, W. J. Piper Director of Ceremonies, W. Elphinstone Assistant Director of Ceremonies, J. C. Webb Sword Bearer, H. B. Bong, J. F. Donegani

Standard Bearers, H. N. Biggin Organist, J. H. Clarke Assistant Secretary, Sam. Warhurst Pursuivant, J. D. Simpson Assistant Pursuivant, Bros. H. V. Edwards, E. MeInnes, A. Brown, F. G. Huggins, and Thomas Hardstaff Stewards. There were a great many Past Prov. Grand Officers present, as well as representatives from every one of the twenty-two Lodges in the Province. In short, the handsome Lodge-room was crowded, and presented a very imposing appearance. The usual formalities having been observed, the Worshipful Masters of the various Lodges presented their annual reports. Without a single exception, these documents were of the most satisfactory character, containing as they did evidence of internal harmony and prosperity, and of increasing regard for the splendid Charities of the Fraternity. The report of the Masonic Hall Committee referred to a considerable number of improvements which have either been effected or are in contemplation, and which are all designed to promote the comfort of the brethren. On the motion of Bro. Sir John Smith, Chairman of the Committee, seconded by Brother Walters, it was adopted. In the absence of Brother G. T. Wright, the report of the Charity Committee was read by Bro. Percy Wallis. It set forth that the full voting power of the Province would be required during the coming year, and the brethren were earnestly requested to strengthen the hands of the Committee. The Auditors' Report, which was satisfactory, contained an intimation to the effect that a donation of £100 has been given by Bro. Colonel John Evans, and is now in the hands of the Provincial Grand Treasurer, towards the alteration and extension of the ante-room accommodation in the Masonic Hall, on condition that definite steps be taken to carry out this object within two years from 1st January 1889. Bro. Thomas Cox remarked that he had for a period of nearly a quarter of a century acted as Provincial Grand Treasurer; but he had decided to tender his resignation of that office. Accordingly a few of them had met and resolved to take steps to promote the election of a brother who was well known and respected to them all; he meant Bro. Thomas Roe. He might mention that Bro. Roe had for many years been connected with the Order, and had been a generous and consistent supporter of their Charities. Moreover, although he was one of the oldest of their Past Masters, he had not hitherto held an office in Provincial Grand Lodge. Referring to observations which had been made on a previous occasion as to the wisdom of appointing a Buxton brother as Provincial Grand Treasurer, Bro. Cox warmly insisted upon keeping such purely business departments as those of the Provincial Grand Secretary and the Provincial Grand Treasurer in Derby. He moved the appointment of Bro. Roe. The proposition was seconded by Bro. Woodiwiss, and carried without a single dissentient. Bro. Roe, who was cordially received, briefly acknowledged the honour done him, and promised that his endeavour should be to discharge the duties of the office as faithfully as they had been performed by his worthy predecessor. A hearty and unanimous vote of thanks was accorded to Bro. Cox for his past services, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Marsden, and others dwelling forcibly upon the valuable and disinterested character of his labours. A representative committee was also appointed with the object of devising some appropriate method of recognising his long official connection with the Provincial Grand Lodge. On the motion of Bro. Percy Wallis, Bro. G. T. Wright was unanimously re-elected Chairman of the Charity Committee, and a similar compliment was paid to the members of the Masonic Hall Committee of Management. The Deputy Provincial Grand Master then proceeded to invest the Provincial Grand Officers for the ensuing year, in the following order:—

Bros. A. E. Cockayne	...	Senior Warden

After the transaction of some formal business, it was resolved, on the motion of Bro. Percy Wallis, that Bro. J. H. Lawson be the Steward of the Provincial Grand Lodge at the next Festival of the Boys' School. It was further resolved that the candidature of Bro. J. M. M'Leod, P.M. of the Derwent Lodge, for the Secretaryship of the Masonic Institution for Boys, be recommended to the support of the brethren in the Province. Before closing the Provincial Grand Lodge, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master addressed a few impressive observations, expressive of his gratification at the moral and material advancement of the Fraternity in Derbyshire. At the conclusion of the business, a very large number of the brethren dined together at the Royal Hotel, the manager of which establishment, Mr. H. Keyl, made abundant provision for their enjoyment.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

ROYAL CLARENCE LODGE, No. 976.

THE installation of Bro. the Rev. E. G. Austen (rector of Pensel-wood) as W.M., took place on Thursday, the 5th instant, at the Blue Ball Hotel, Bruton. The ceremony was performed by Brother R. C. Else D.P.G.M. Somerset. The Worshipful Master invested his Officers, as follow:—Bros. R. Moody I.P.M., C. Phippen S.W., J. Cruse J.W., E. R. Hayter Treasurer, J. J. White Secretary, W. P. Buckley D.C., W. J. Clarke S.D., A. E. J. Creed J.D., J. F. Looke I.G., J. W. Pearce Organist, R. Bowring and W. Bergman Stewards, J. P. Swain Tyler. The members afterwards sat down to a banquet, provided by Host Bullone, of the Blue Ball Hotel, when the usual Masonic toasts were honoured.

GALLERY LODGE, No. 1928.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge was held on Saturday, the 14th inst., at the Brixton Hall, Acre-lane, Brixton, when, as there was a considerable amount of business to be transacted, the Lodge was opened at 3 p.m. In the absence of Bro. R. J. Griffiths W.M., the Lodge was opened by Bro. Massey P.M. and Treasurer, as acting W.M. The minutes of last regular meeting having been read and confirmed, the report of the Audit Committee was presented and received. The ballot was then taken for the following joining members:—Bros. H. J. Fisher 93, and Frederick W. Brodie, formerly Secretary 1254, and was found to be unanimous in favour of their admission. The next business was to take the ballot for the following candidates for initation, namely:—Mr. George H. Ribbons and Mr. Henry Lewis Bell; it being declared in favour of their admission, they were initiated by Brother Massey. The Lodge was then called off for refreshment, preparatory to the installation of the W.M. elect, Bro. Herbert Wright the S.W. of the past year, who had been unanimously elected by the Lodge to the office of Master for the ensuing 12 months. Upon the brethren being summoned to resume labour, Bro. Wright was presented to Bro. Massey, as Installing Officer, to receive at his hands the benefit of installation, whereupon Bro. Massey addressed the brethren present upon the practice among Craft Lodges in reference to the annual election and installation of the presiding Officer, and he, having afterwards pointed out to the W.M. elect the qualifications necessary in a candidate for the chair, directed his attention to the Secretary, who recited the ancient charges, to all of which the W.M. gave his unqualified assent. Bro. Wright then took the obligation of a W.M. elect, and all brethren below the rank of Installed Master having retired, a Board of Installed Masters was formed, in whose presence Bro. Wright was installed into the chair of K.S., and received the salutations and congratulations of the members of the Board of Masters. The brethren were then re-admitted, and the newly-installed Master was proclaimed and saluted in the three degrees. Bro. Wright then proceeded to invest his Officers, of which the following is a list—Bros. W. T. Perkins S.W., R. J. Albery J.W., H. Massey P.M. Treasurer, Thos. Minstrell P.M. Secretary, C. B. Cooke S.D., E. E. Peacock J.D., F. Gale I.G., J. Henwood Thomas P.M. D.C., C. K. Moore Assistant D.C., F. H. Pattison, Manning, Look, and Sanderson Stewards, P. W. Husk Organist, and Very Tyler. The Lodge having been thus organised for the coming year, the installation ceremony was brought to a close by Bro. Massey delivering the customary addresses to the Master, the Wardens, and the lay brethren, winding up with the oration upon the nature and principles of Freemasonry. There was a very good attendance of members, and among the Visitors were the following:—Bros. C. J. Phillips P.M. P.P.G.S.D., Samuel Edgar 62, W. A. Barrett P.G. Organist, E. Walker P.M. 72, R. Temple 1319, A. E. Albert W.M. 1949, J. Lardlow P.M. 90, W. T. Martin 1626, F. W. Stephens 1348, E. G. Field J.W. 1362, Alfred Smythson 1670, W. Senior 2190, Edgar Barnes 1262, Edwin Pintman I.G. 1362, and Thomas Catling W.M. 2190. At the conclusion of the dinner which succeeded the Lodge meeting, the customary Loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed, and duly honoured by the brethren present. In proposing the first toast, Brother Herbert Wright said that he rose to propose what was always on these occasions the first sentiment, namely, the toast to the gracious lady who was at once the Sovereign of this realm and the Patroness of the Order. He gave them the Queen and the Craft. Rising again, Bro. Wright said that the next toast which it was his duty to honour was the M.W.G.M. After having honoured the Sovereign of the realm, it was desirable that they should honour the Sovereign of the Craft. He would, therefore, ask them to be upstanding to drink to the health of the Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. In proposing the next toast, the W.M. said it was now his duty to propose the toast of the M.W. Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon; the Deputy Grand Master, the Earl of Lathom; and the rest of the Grand Officers, Present and Past. They had a Grand Officer and a Provincial Grand Officer with them on that occasion, and he (Bro. Wright) had hoped to see others also. He was sorry that those others were unable to be present, and in proposing that toast he should couple with it the name of Bro. Dr. Barrett, P.G. Organist. In replying, Bro. Dr. Barrett, on behalf of the whole of the Grand Officers who were included in this comprehensive toast, begged to return his heartiest thanks for the compliment that had been paid them. There were a number of Grand Officers of various degrees in Grand Lodge. They all having had the purple conferred on them, were in a Masonic sense to be considered equal. But there were some who by the position they hold in the outer world were men of greater dignity than others. Those men carried their position into Grand Lodge, and conferred a status upon it. He was proud of the office which he himself held in Grand Lodge, which he considered to be one of great importance. He was sorry there were not other Grand Officers present, as, had there been, more justice would have been done to that toast. In the name of the Grand Officers, he returned his hearty thanks for the honour done to them in the drinking of that toast. Bro. Dr. Griffiths I.P.M., in rising to propose the health of the W.M., said a great many years ago there was a man called David, and there was a friend of his called Jonathan. It struck him, although it did not bear on the matter now on hand, that Mr. David knew a few more things than Mr. Jonathan knew; at all events, his was the winning hand. But although Jonathan was the loser he was true to David to the last, and David himself admitted that Jonathan had always been very pleasant to him, and had for him wonderful love, passing the love of women. Bro. Griffiths said he would say the same of his brother in the chair. He had known Bro. Herbert Wright for a great number of years; they were, in fact, like David and Jonathan. Jonathan knew that David was to be king, and he desired that it should be so, and in like manner nothing could give him (Bro. Griffiths) greater pleasure than to see Bro. Herbert Wright put into the chair of King Solomon, and he was quite sure that it was not only his desire, but the hope of every brother in the room that Bro. Herbert Wright should have a very happy and prosperous year of office. But he wished the Master to bear in mind that it was necessary to look to the financial question in governing a Lodge; it was necessary to see that everybody paid up his dues, or trouble would come of it. Bro. Griffiths concluded by asking the brethren to join him in drinking to the health of Bro. Herbert Wright and a happy and prosperous reign to him. Bro. Herbert Wright, in reply, said that he could not sufficiently thank Bro. Griffiths and the brethren for the very kind manner in which the toast of his health had been proposed and received. There were times in one's life which one was apt to say were the proudest moments of life, and if he were now to say that that was the proudest moment of his life he should have a fair excuse for using that expression. The Lodge which began under such happy auspices eight or nine years ago, when the present installing Master was placed in the chair of K.S., had had a worthy and prosperous career, and that career had culminated in an event of especial importance that evening. And he would tell them why the event of that evening was of special importance. It was because he who was now installed was the first initiate in that Lodge, so that the Lodge had now a Mason of their own manufacture presiding over it. He had always considered that he enjoyed a very high honour and distinction in being the first initiate in the Lodge, and the brethren might well conceive that his cup of honour and distinction was running over when he found himself called upon to take the chair. He hoped that during his year of office he should be called upon to do something that would make the Lodge even more popular than when he entered it, so that when he went out of office he might have the assurance that he had filled his position to the greatest satisfaction of those who elected him to it. He did not know that his Bro. Griffith's financial hints were altogether justified. For his own part, he had the greatest confidence in the Lodge—that every brother would cash up, and he had every possible confidence that at the end of his year of office, they would find themselves in even a better position than they were now. Bro. Wright then touched upon the proceedings of the coming year in regard to its social entertainments, and trusted that they might at least come up to the successes achieved by the Lodge in that direction in former years. He concluded by saying that there was one duty which he must discharge before sitting down, and that was to propose the health of the Immediate Past Master, whom he hoped they would long see in their ever-lengthening line of Past Masters. Bro. Griffiths having returned thanks, the W.M. said he would now ask them to drink a toast which was always welcome, and that was the health of the Initiates. They were peculiarly fortunate in the initiates who had been introduced that evening into the Lodge. He thought that they were calculated to do honour to the Lodge, and to the Craft in general. Bro. Ribbons and Bell having acknowledged the compliment, and expressed the hope that they might never do anything to bring discredit on the Lodge, the Worshipful Master proposed the health of the Visitors, calling on Bros. Senior 2190, Albert W.M. 1948, and Martin 26, to reply, and those brethren having returned thanks for their entertainment, and expressed the pleasure they had had in witnessing the interesting ceremonies of the day; Bro. Wright rose to propose the health of the Installing Master, in doing which he said they had heard encomiums justly bestowed on the admirable manner in which Bro. Massey performed the ceremonies that evening. They all honoured and esteemed Bro. Massey for his intrinsic merits, but he had a peculiar claim on their regard, for he was not only a brother of their Lodge but the father of it as well. And whatever duty was put on Bro. Massey was always well performed. Bro. Massey, in reply, said it was a gratification to him that he had performed the ceremony of initiation upon the first candidate for initiation in the Lodge, and now that initiate he had that afternoon had the further pleasure of installing into the chair of K.S. But he most sincerely hoped that that would prove to be the last occasion upon which he should be called upon to perform that ceremony. He entertained that hope for the sake of the honour, reputation, and usefulness of the Lodge, because the Master of a Lodge ought to consider it not only an honour but a duty incumbent upon him to instal his successor. No greater honour could be achieved by a Master than to instal his successor. He had always objected to there being a regular Installing Master in a Lodge, and he hoped that Bro. Wright would instal Bro. Perkins. It would, of course, afford him (Bro. Massey) the greatest pleasure to instal Bro. Perkins, but he hoped Bro. Wright would consider it to be one of the duties of Master, as Master of the Lodge, to instal his successor. Hitherto, almost every Master of the Gallery Lodge had installed his successor, one had not lived to do so, and the others had taken a prominent part in the ceremony. He returned his hearty thanks for the cordial manner in which the toast of his health had been received. The Worshipful Master proposed the health of the Past Masters, for whom Bro. Harry Bussey responded. The health of the Officers of the Lodge was acknowledged by Bros. Perkins S.W. and Abbey J.W., and then the Tyler's toast brought the proceedings of a very pleasant evening to a close. In the intervals between the speeches some capital songs were contributed by various brethren, Bro. Alfred Smythson officiating as accompanist.

Soper the Musical Director, presented the W.M. with a Queen Anne guinea, suitably mounted, as a mark of fraternal esteem. The presentation was suitably acknowledged. The brethren, to the number of seventy, then adjourned to the refectory, where a pleasant evening was spent by all present.

MENTURIA LODGE, No. 418.

THE annual festival of St. John, and the installation of the W.M. took place on the 17th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Cheapside, Hanley, when a highly successful gathering was held, there being a large attendance of members of the Menturia Lodge, in addition to a number of visiting brethren from neighbouring Lodges. The Lodge was opened at three o'clock, when Bro. J. Robinson was installed W.M. for the ensuing year in succession to Bro. Herbert Windle. The newly-elected W.M. was installed by Bro. Windle, assisted by Bros. T. Bickley, E. V. Greatbatch, J. S. Crapper, E. B. Jackson, and W. H. Hales. After the installation ceremony, which was performed in an impressive manner, the W.M. installed the following as his Officers:—Bros. W. Hampton S.W., J. B. Devereux J.W., Rev. A. S. Walters Chaplain, W. H. Hales Treasurer, D. Jones Secretary, J. Barlow S.D., E. Jones J.D., E. V. Greatbatch D.C., J. Goodson I.G., W. Jones and M. Tunnicliff Stewards, and W. Wood Tyler. The Lodge having been duly closed, the brethren adjourned to the Town Hall, where about eighty-six sat down to a banquet provided by Bro. J. Munro. The W.M. presided; and the Queen having been honoured, the W.M. proposed the Most Worshipful His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales Grand Master of England, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family, speaking of the attention the Prince of Wales devoted to Freemasonry and the great interest he took in the Craft. The Most Worshipful Pro Grand Master the Earl of Carnarvon, the Very Worshipful the Deputy Grand Master the Earl of Lathom, and the Officers of the Grand Lodge present and past, having been proposed, also from the chair, Bro. Bickley submitted the Right Worshipful Bro. Colonel Foster Gough, the Provincial Grand Master of Staffordshire. Bro. Bickley said he was sure every brother in the Province was proud of the present position which Colonel Gough occupied, and they all wished him long life and good health to perform the duties pertaining to the office. Bro. Tunnicliff next gave Bro. Lieutenant-Colonel Bindley, Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and the Officers of Provincial Grand Lodge present and past. In doing so, he expressed a hope that Bro. Bindley would soon visit the north of the Province, when he could assure him of a hearty welcome. Bro. Pitchford having acknowledged the toast, Bro. Windle proceeded to propose the toast of the evening, Bro. J. Robinson W.M. for the ensuing year. In an eulogistic speech, Bro. Windle said in Bro. Robinson they had no ordinary Master. He was favoured with gifts above many of the brethren, and he felt sure he would use those gifts to the advantage of the Menturia Lodge. Bro. Robinson had been a member of the Lodge for a considerable number of years, and during that time he had done credit to himself and to the Lodge, in which he had filled many offices, and he had no fear he would fill with credit the chair which he had been elected to fill that day. The toast was then drunk in true hearty Masonic fashion. The W.M. responded in a very appropriate speech and thanked the brethren from his heart for the reception they had given him. He should like to say that if he had not felt capable of fulfilling the office of W.M. he should not have been occupying the position that night. It would be his earnest endeavour to carry out the duties of the office to which they had done him the honour of electing him to the best of his ability. He looked forward with confidence to the support of his Officers during the ensuing year. Bro. Bromley next gave the health of the Visiting Brethren. Bro. Barker first responded. He said he found a fire, a force, and a vigour in Masonry in Hanley, and it was a source of congratulation to find so many Past Masters in attendance, as well as the distinction which the Menturia Lodge had attained in the Province. He further congratulated the Lodge upon its position in the benevolent portion of Masonry, and the free and open manner in which the brethren of that Lodge had contributed in times past. Bro. Smith also responded, acknowledging the kind and generous hospitality shown that evening to the visitors, and expressed his satisfaction and congratulation on seeing the confidence reposed in Bro. Robinson by the members of the Menturia Lodge. The W.M. next proposed the health of the I.P.M. Bro. Windle, and spoke of the latter as a brother who had a great interest in the progress of Masonry. Bro. Windle returned thanks in a suitable manner, after which he submitted the toast of the Masonic Charities, which was responded to by Bro. Ryder, the Secretry of the Staffordshire Masonic Charitable Association, who said that the Menturia Lodge stood very nearly in the premier position, as regarded the amount of contributions to the Masonic Charities. He referred with satisfaction to the action taken by Bros. Greatbatch and Tunnicliff in regard to the inquiry in respect to the conduct of the Masonic Institution for Boys. Alluding to the Secretary of that Institution, Bro. Binckes, he said that the pension proposed to be granted to that brother would not trench on the funds of the Institution. Bro. Greatbatch also replied, and thoroughly justified the action that had been taken in regard to the Institution referred to. A clean sweep of the officials had been made, with the exception of the Secretary, and he believed the result would be that the Boys' Institution would in the future raise the credit of the Craft. The remaining toasts were the Past Masters of the Lodge, the Officers of the Lodge, the Ladies, and all Poor and Distressed Masons. During the evening a capital musical programme, arranged by Bro. Baker, was gone through, the members of the Lodge contributing to it.

EADE'S
GOUT & RHEUMATIC PILLS.

The SAFEST and most EFFECTUAL CURE for GOUT, RHEUMATISM, and all PAINS in the HEAD, FACE, and LIMBS.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL from the Rev. F. FARVIS, Baptist Minister.

Mr. G. EADE. March 19, 1887.

Dear Sir,—I have many times felt inclined to inform you of the benefit I have received by taking your Gout and Rheumatic Pills. After suffering for some time from Rheumatics and Sciatica, I was advised to use your Pills. I bought a bottle, and when in severe pain and unable to use the limb affected I took a dose. In a few hours after I felt the pain much better, and after the second dose the pain completely removed and the limb restored to its right use. I thank you, dear sir, for sending forth such a boon for the relief of human suffering.

Yours faithfully,
F. FARVIS,
Baptist Minister.

"PAINLESS AND PERFECT DENTISTRY."

Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist's Testimonial.

My Dear Doctor,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

S. G. HUTCHINS,
By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

Geo. H. Jones, Esq., D.D.S.

Scientific Department.
Laboratory of Experimental Science.

This is to certify: That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

(Signed) EDWARD V. GARDNER, F.H.S., M.S.A., Professor of Chemistry, and of Berners College, W.

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

Are universally admitted to be worth a Guinea a Box for Nervous and Bilious Disorders, such as wind and pain in the stomach, sick headache, giddiness, fullness and swelling after meals, dizziness and drowsiness, cold chills, flushings of heat, loss of appetite, shortness of breath, costiveness, scurvy, blotches on the skin, disturbed sleep, frightful dreams, and all nervous and trembling sensations, &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes. This is no fiction, for they have done it in thousands of cases. Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all humours, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no medicine to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

For a weak stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the liver they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse in action with the ROSEBUD of health the whole physical energy of the human frame. These are the "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of society, and one of the best guarantees to the nervous and debilitated, is that
